Lays Groundwork For Military Confrontation

Portuguese Moderates Ousted By Leftist Junta

By ARTHUR HERMAN

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Portugal's three-man leftist junta ousted nine moderate officers from an influential advisory council Saturday, laying the groundwork for a military confrontation in the nation's explosive political crisis.

Former Foreign Minister Maj. Melo Antunes, the leader of the moderates and one of the nine suspended from the 30-man Revolutionary Council, adopted a militant view towards the junta's decision.

"We don't make compromises," he said. "We defend our positions."

Information Minister Jorge Correia Jesuino slapped a news blackout on a manifesto written by Antunes that demanded democracy for Portugal. Newsmen said a disagreement developed at the government-owned television station on whether to obey this ruling.

The dramatic junta announcement appeared to be aimed at silencing the opposition to its pro-Communist policies, which has been rapidly spreading through Portugal's military units and the country's civilian population.

Significantly, it was issued through the office of President Francisco da Costa Gomes, who earlier in the day appeared to be backing the moderates.

Costa Gomes, the most moderate official on the junta, has been noted for shifting his position to meet the demands of the moment, but never to the extent indicated by the junta's decision.

Diplomats said the move was bound to aggravate the current political crisis, but noted it was not made until most of the nation's soldiers had left their bases for the weekend.

The ruling trio announced the action in a communique after it met with Portugal's top military leaders on a day when opposition to the junta and to the cabinet it appointed Friday was reported growing by the hour.

In the past two weeks anti-Communist rioting has broken out in more than 40 towns and unrest in the army has grown rapidly. In some instances troops have refused to break up the riots.

A communique from the president's office said the nine were suspended from the Revolutionary Council and were ordered to report to the commands of their respective military branches for new assignments.

The document drafted by the nine and endorsed by other prominent officers, including the commanders of two of the four military regions, continued to circulate among military units throughout the country.

It rejected "a model of socialism of the East European type" and called for a democratic socialism.

"We must construct a society of tolerance and peace and not a society subjected to oppression," the manifesto said. "This cannot be done with the current ruling team, even if altered."

The junta's communique said the trio "has decided to suspend from activities of the Revolutionary Council nine officers who signed and circulated the document.

"The officers were ordered to present themselves to the chiefs of staff of their military branches for subsequent posting."

The suspension order by the triumvirate—President Francisco da Costa Gomes, Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves and Military Security Chief Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho—caused some surprise in political circles.

Lisbon newspapers reported that Costa Gomes had indicated his agreement with the ideas laid out in the manifesto and the country's moderate political parties supported it. The Socialist, Popular Democratic and Democratic Center parties represent about 66 per cent of Portugal's electorate.

The Communist party and its allies opposed the document and its release threw the country into a political uproar because it made glaringly public the deep rift in the 30-man Revolutionary Council which advises the 15-day-old junta.

Almost all military units in the conservative north were reported to have withdrawn their support from the junta's pro-Communist policies. The army bases in the central region were said to be moving in the same direction.

New Violence In Ireland

By FRANK JOHNSTON

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Thousands of Catholics and Protestants battled each other in the streets across Northern Ireland Saturday in what security officials called the most widespread mob clashes in four years.

Police reported no deaths so far in more than 48 hours of protests that began when Catholic demonstrators marked the fourth anniversary of Britain's practice of interning suspected extremists without trial.

Protests across the province spilled into mob violence, with crowds of republicans in Belfast, Derry, Newry and other urban centers attacking police and army patrols and installations with rocks, bottles, and gasoline bombs.

At one point some 60 police stations were under threatened attack. British army troops fired riot gas canisters and plastic and rubber bullets, which were used for the first time in months.

A police official said it was the most widespread unrest since no-trial internment was put into force in Aug. 1971. And for the first time in years it appeared Roman Catholic republican youths went out of their way to provoke Protestant loyalists.

In some places in Londonderry and Belfast, police said, only security forces kept Protestant and Catholic mobs apart.

One such confrontation erupted in mid-town Belfast when a sniper shot and wounded a 9-year-old Protestant girl in a busy street Saturday, a police official said.

Despite the province-wide alert, however, security officials said the violence did not run out of control. They said they expected it to die down Sunday night because the underground Irish Republican Army ordered its supporters to diminish the agitation.

The troubles erupted in Roman Catholic neighborhoods Friday night and continued throughout Saturday.

Police said it was one of the worst nights of violence in the province this year. Roaming gangs hijacked cars and buses, set up roadblocks and pelted British soldiers with gasoline bombs, rocks and bottles. Snipers fired at soldiers in Belfast.

The body of a 17-year-old Catholic youth was left at Belfast's Royal Victoria hospital at dawn. He had died from bullet wounds in the chest but police did not know whether his death was connected with the rioting.

At least 14 soldiers and one policeman were injured and 34 persons arrested following incidents in Belfast, Londonderry, Newry, Armagh, Stewartstown and Lurgan.

Soldiers found a young woman with severe head injuries lying in a Belfast street where fighting had taken place earlier.

Several organizations including the outlawed Irish Republican Army called for demonstrations early Saturday to mark the fourth anniversary of the day British soldiers began detaining individuals believed to be behind the bloody feuding between Northern Ireland's Protestants and Roman Catholics.

The protests were to have been peaceful but soon flared into violence.

About 250 persons — virtually all of them Roman Catholics — presently are now detained, although the government has released another 350 since the IRA declared a cease-fire in the province Feb. 10.

The worst fighting was in Belfast where gunfire could be heard through the night in many neighborhoods. Snipers fired at soldiers in the Andersonstown district. but no one was injured.

In the Lower Falls Road youths hijacked a bus, used it to block a road and then set fire to it. Six cars along the Antrim Road were hijacked and burned.

Residents in a small Catholic enclave in East Belfast broke into a large engineering works and tried to set it on fire, but were driven away by police.

Astronaut Brand Takes Blame For Fumes Entering Apollo

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apollo astronaut Vance D. Brand said Saturday he was to blame for not throwing two switches which would have prevented poisonous gas fumes from entering the American spaceship as it returned to earth after the docking mission with Russia's Soyuz.

"I'll take the responsibility," Brand told a news conference. "The switches should have been turned on, and they weren't."

But Commander Thomas P. Stafford sought to soften the blame on Brand by saying all three crew members should have been alert to the checklist and seen to it that the switches were flipped at the proper time.

Stafford, Brand, and the third crewman, Donald K. Slayton, met reporters for the first time since their return to earth.

They flew to Washington Friday night from Honolulu, where they were hospitalized for treatment of lung ailments resulting from breathing the gas.

After their hospitalization they spent an additional week in Hawaii. Their families joined them in the semi-isolation prescribed by doctors to reduce the chance of infection.

Stafford said all three spacemen have been given a "clean bill of health by the doctors." But he said they would be monitored for some time to make sure there is no recurrence of lung problems.

The switches which Brand should have thrown at 30,000 feet would have activated the automatic parachute system and also would have shut off steering jets. The gas fumes filtered into the spaceship from the jets, which continued to operate long after they should have.

Brand said that once the spacemen realized the switches had not been thrown they quickly activated the parachutes manually and "that backup procedure worked perfectly."

"We were all surprised," when the gas entered the cabin through an air intake valve, Brand said.

"It was mildly irritating to the face and the main thing was we coughed a lot," he said.

"When we landed, Deke (Slayton) didn't look like he felt too well. Because I hadn't had my oxygen mask on too long I passed out for about 40 seconds," he said. 'Tom got my mask on, and after that I felt O.K."

Stafford said that because of the angle of the parachutes the spaceship hit the Pacific "like a ton of bricks." He said it turned upside down immediately, which is a habit of Apollo spaceships, adding to the confusion as the spacemen scrambled for oxygen masks to protect themselves from the gas.

But the spaceship then righted automatically and its ventilation system pushed the gas out of the cabin.

To Visit Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential contender Terry Sanford said Friday he will leave for Moscow on Wednesday for a 10-day trip that will include an education conference and discussions of U.S.-Soviet relations.

The Duke University president planned to attend a weeklong conference sponsored by the International Association of Universities, but he later decided to expand the trip by three days to allow time for discussing foreign policy as it relates to his presidential campaign.

Clearing Civil War Bombs

RALEIGH (AP)—An effort will begin next week to clear Fort Macon State Park of live mortar shells left over from the Civil War.

State officials said a bomb demolition team from the Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station will search for a disarm the shells.

The shells remained from a battle at the fort in 1862. Park officials said there have been no recent injuries, but visitors might detonate the shells by illegally searching the grounds with metal detectors.

Storms, rains and shifting sand dunes have uncovered some of the shells, officials said.

Final Train Run

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The last passenger train linking Asheville with other cities in the state made its final Asheville-to-Salisbury run Friday, marking the end of a 90-year-old era.

More than 200 persons took a nostalgic, farewell ride as Southern Railway's train No. 4 crept down the winding mountain tracks, dropping off passengers along the way.

Southern's service to the mountain city began in the 1880s when the steep incline of Old Fort Mountain was conquered by railroad crews.

Running three days a week, No. 4 had averaged only 17 passengers and the railroad found it unprofitable to continue the train.

Evidence Poorly Handled

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Using testimony of a criminology expert from New York, defense attorneys in the Joan Little murder trial tried Friday to reconstruct the final moments of Clarence Alligood's life, the man Miss Little is accused of killing with an ice pick.

Herbert L. MacDonnell also testified that the evidence at the crime scene had been poorly handled and questioned the quality of photographs of the scene.

Defends Administration

RALEIGH (AP)—Wake County Commissioner Waverly F. Akins has gained a campaign manager and attracted the attention of Gov. Jim Holshouser.

Akins, planning to run for lieutenant governor next year, has engaged Bobby R. Stott, assistant director of the Wake Department of Social Services, as his campaign manager. Stott is taking an unpaid leave of absence from his job.

Holshouser issued a statement Saturday blasting Akins for remarks he made last week as outgoing president of the state association of county commissioners.

3.8 US Steel Hike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp. has announced price boosts and cuts which result in increases averaging 3.8 per cent, while two other steelmakers have postponed previously announced price hikes.

Within hours after the No. 1 steelmaker's announcement Friday, fifth-ranked Armco and ninth-ranked Wheeling-Pittsburgh said they were postponing until further notice their planned 9 per cent increases on flat-rolled steel.

Armco announced the first increases on flat-rolled steel in 13 months on Tuesday, and Wheeling followed 24 hours later. Flat-rolled steel is widely used in the automotive and appliance industries.

Neither company offered a reason for its retrenchment, but one industry observer said, U.S. Steel is traditionally the industry pacesetter on pricing.

Meeting Cancelled

The regular monthly meeting of the Greenville Recreation Commission for the month of August has been cancelled. The monthly meetings are normally held on the second Wednesday of each month.

The next meeting of the commission is slated for the second Wednesday in September.

Election Information On 10 Pitt Municipalities

Information on municipal elections for the ten municipalities in Pitt County has been consolidated by the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Three of the ten municipalities—Ayden, Grifton and Grimesland—have chosen to conduct their own elections. Elections for the other seven municipalities will be conducted by the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Information relative to the municipal elections follows.

Other information on municipal elections shows that for Farmville and Greenville, a non-partisan election is to be held October 7; with a run-off, if necessary, held on November 4.

All other municipalities will hold a non-partisan plurality election on November 4.

For Greenville and Farmville, the filing period for candidates begins at noon on August 15 and closes at noon on September 5. Registration deadline for voters is 5 p.m. September 8.

For the other eight Pitt County municipalities, the filing period for candidates is from noon September 12 until noon October 3. Registration deadline in these municipalities is 5 p.m. October 6.

Bloodmobile Visits Set

The Bloodmobile will be in Greenville this week for visits at the Moose Lodge and Union Carbide.

Pitt Blood chairman Billy Ross said that the Bloodmobile will be at the Moose Lodge for a 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. visit on Tuesday and a 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. visit on Wednesday.

The Moose Lodge, according to Ross, is sponsoring both of the visits.

On Thursday, Union Carbide is sponsoring a visit of the Bloodmobile at the company plant from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The chairman pointed out that the upcoming visits are the first for Greenville since July and donors who gave blood at the last visit are again eligible.

He said that officials of the Tidewater Region of the Red Cross blood bank report that the region as a whole is running behind in its blood quota. Ross encouraged all eligible persons to consider donating blood this week.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor, Red Cross director, has issued an urgent appeal for volunteer nurses. Nurses who can help are asked to call Mrs. Taylor at her office, 752-4222 or at home, 756-2965

Ford Observes 1st Anniversary

By RICHARD E. LERNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford launched a new year in office Saturday by discussing unresolved energy and economic problems with his top advisers and by an inviting Vice President and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller to a private "first anniversary" dinner in the White House.

Aides said Ford has not been in contact with Richard M. Nixon to note the historic transfer of power that occurred last Aug. 9. Except for the Rockefeller dinner, it was essentially "business as usual" at the White House.

The only fanfare came at a noontime ceremony in the Rose Garden, where Ford presented a NASA Distinguished Service Medal to the three American astronauts who took part in last month's Apollo-Soyuz link-up in space with two Soviet cosmonauts.

Ford planned to leave Sunday for a two-week vacation in Vail, Colo, which also will include at least 13 appearances on side trips to seven states. Some of those visits will give him a chance to test the political climate for his 1976 campaign to win election to a full term in his own right.

On the way west, Ford will stop in Arkansas to tour the South Vietnamese refugee camp at Ft. Chaffee.

The President began work Saturday by conferring in early morning for an hour with his top economic strategists — providing a chance to assess the outlook for inflation and unemployment that have given Ford his two biggest domestic headaches.

Farmer Helps Mexicans

WILLOW SPRINGS, N.C. (AP)—A white tobacco farmer has helped four Mexican tobacco workers bring suit against a swimming pond owner he said refused to allow them to swim.

"It just isn't right. Swimming ought to be available there to anyone who looks decent and acts decent. And my Mexican helpers are just as clean as white people," said Carl Wise.

Wise said his four workers and his son tried to pay the 35 cent admission charge to swim at Panther Lake one hot day in July. The owner, R.H. "Bubba" Monday, refused admission to them.

Their discrimination suit will be heard Monday in U.S. District Court.

Monday, who owns an adjacent trailer camp and general store, has since tacked up a "private club" sign at the lake. He declined to comment on the situation. "I don't want to get the coloreds riled up. Fifty per cent of my business is with the coloreds," he said.

Recipients Of Ashland Oil Campaign Funds Revealed

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine U.S. senators, Rep. Wilbur Mills and the president of Gabon were among the recipients of $724,000 in illegal campaign contributions and almost $400,000 in payments to foreign officials by Ashland Oil, Inc., documents filed by the company revealed today.

The senators received illegal contributions ranging up to $20,000 from the Kentucky-based firm, and Mills, D-Ark., received a $50,000 donation, documents filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission showed.

The foreign payments by Ashland included $150,000 to Albert Bernard Bongo, president of Gabon, where Ashland has oil drilling rights.

Other foreign payments were made to various officials in Libya, Nigeria and the Dominican Republic, including about $2,500 of corporate funds spent in connection with the wedding of Omar Shali, a Libyan national who was an adviser to King Idris.

The Ashland disclosure was the first time the SEC has forced an American corporation to publicly reveal the names of the recipients of such payments and contributions.

Ashland filed the names and amounts with the SEC only after the agency threatened continued court action if the company refused.

The firm said "no useful purpose" would be served by disclosing the names of those receiving the contributions or payments, and refused to release the names itself even after the documents had been filed with the SEC.

The documents confirmed previous reports that former President Richard M. Nixon's campaigns received $200,000 in contributions, and that the $100,000 given to his 1972 reelection effort was returned to the company.

Robert Strauss, current chairman of the Democratic party, received $50,000 from the company for party purposes.

Much of the illegal campaign money went to Kentucky politicians.

A partial list of contributions reported by Ashland Oil Co., as released Saturday by the Securities and Exchange Commission includes:

Contributions Jan. 1, 1969 to Dec. 31, 1969, included Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., $10,000.

Persons listed in the McNelis report as the recipients of contributions channeled by the company through Carl Arnold included:

—Allen J. Ellender, Democratic candidate, U.S. Senate, Louisiana, $5,000.

—Allen J. Ellender to use to assist unidentified candidates, $5,000.

Heavy Toll Reported In Chinese Collision

HONG KONG (AP) — A collision between two triple-decked excursion boats in the Hsi river near Canton has left more than 400 dead and 100 missing, newspapers here reported today.

Accounts attributed to Hong Kong residents returning from China said two 1,000-ton boats collided at 1 a.m. last Sunday. Each carried more than 400 passengers. About 100 passengers on one boat were believed to be Hong Kong residents.

China has not officially reported the incident and Hong Kong officials refused comment.

The Hong Kong bureau of the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua said: "It was believed such an incident happened recently."

The reports said the steel-hulled Red Star 245 capsized immediately and sank when it was rammed by the Red Star 240. The cement hull of the Red Star 240 disintegrated and it sank later.

Swift currents in the Hsi, south China's major river, slowed rescue efforts by troops, medical personnel and boats from Canton, the newspaper reports said.

Two Dead In Crash Of Small Plane

ISLE OF PALMS, S.C. (AP)—Two Charlotte, N.C. persons abroad a small private plane were killed Saturday afternoon when the aircraft crashed and burned after an aborted takeoff from the Isle of Palms, airport, the Charleston County Police Department said.

Charleston County Coroner Kenneth Cue identified the victims as Robert Howard Stephens, 54, and Mariann Johnson, 29. Stephens was reportedly the pilot of the plane.

Two other persons, reportedly the dead man's wife and stepson, were hopitalized at the Charleston County Hospital as a result of injuries suffered in the crash. They have been identifed as Donald Stevens, 29, and Elio Stevens, 35. It is not yet known whether Johnson was a member of the family.

A police spokesman said the single-engine Cessna 170 crashed about 3:30 p.m. The crash site is about seven miles east of Charleston.

The spokesman added that the four-seated aircraft was reported to be owned by Sullivans Island Seafood Co. of adjoining Sullivans Island.

The circumstances of the crash or the plane's flight plan were not immediately known.

Three Accidents Friday

According to the Greenville Police Department, three auto accidents occurred here Friday.

In an accident on Dickinson Ave. at 8:10 a.m., cars driven by Arthur Randol Scott, 616 Hudson St. and Freddy Ray Watson, 1918 Norcott Circle collided and resulted in damages totaling approximately $600. Damages estimated are $250 to the Scott vehicle and $350 to the Watson vehicle. Arthur Scott was charged with failure to see safe movement.

An accident involving cars driven by Thermon Perkins Jr., 1710-A W. Conley St. and Ida Mae Williams, 1908 A.W. Conley St. occurred on Darden Drive at 6:40 p.m. Estimated damages were $100 to the Perkins vehicle and $300 to the Williams vehicle. Ida Mae Williams was charged with failure to reduce speed.

At 6:44 a.m. police reported that autos driven by Deborah Gowman Sheppard, P.O. Box 374, collided with a vehicle driven by Margaret Strickland Atkinson, 905 Church St. and resulted in the injury of John C. Sheppard, a passenger who was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital and released. Estimated damages to the Sheppard vehicle were $1000 and $450 to the Atkinson auto. No charges were made.

Investigates Auto Theft

Greenville police are investigating the theft of an auto from a restaurant parking lot early Saturday morning. Police later found the car, but after the car had suffered $200 in damages.

According to police, David Emerson Bosley of Grifton reported that his car was stolen from a parking area at the corner of Reade and Fourth Streets shortly after midnight. Police said that Bosley reportedly had left the keys in the ignition.

Mathews Has Few Illusions

WASHINGTON (AP) — F. David Mathews, the new secretary of health, education and welfare, says he has "few illusions" about what he can accomplish to solve the nation's social problems.

He said at his swearing-in ceremonies Friday that he would make no "grand promises," and that he feels "we badly need to be more accurate about what this department can, in fact, do about all the problems that fall into its orbit."

The 39-year-old Mathews, president of the University of Alabama for six years, is the first southerner and the youngest member in Ford's Cabinet. He succeeds Caspar W. Weinberger.

Relays Israeli Reaction To Interim Peace Proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israeli Abmassador Simcha Dinitz relayed to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Israel's full reaction to the latest Egyptian proposals for an interim Middle East peace agreement in a meeting Saturday, but wouldn't reveal what it was.

Dinitz, who conferred with Kissinger nearly two hours at the White House but did not see President Ford, said Kissinger would relay the Israeli reaction to Egypt. Dinitz said he would be back in touch with Kissinger sometime next week. Saturday's session was his third this week with Kissinger.

Although Dinitz would not comment about any facet of the negotiations or contents of either the Egyptian or Israeli proposals, Israeli newspapers reporting in Washington and Jerusalem said Egypt had made some concessions on minor points but still insisted on complete Israeli withdrawal from the strategic Mitla and Gidi mountain passes in West-Central Sinai.

Dinitz also told reporters that a team of Israeli experts would come to Washington next week to continue discussions on Israeli aid, including both military and economic assistance.

He said reports of Kissinger resuming his shuttle diplomacy trips in the Middle East were premature, but he branded as "without foundation" reports that Israel had asked Kissinger not to resume his shuttle yet.

"The question of the shuttle was always discussed," Dinitz said. "We haven't fixed any date for this, and I think it is premature to speculate."

Dinitz refused to state whether he felt progress had been made during his latest meeting with Kissinger. "I have never gone into the question of optimism or pessimism. I leave that up to the commentators," Dinitz said.

The tempo of negotiations for a new interim agreement between Israel and Egypt have stepped up this past week, but State Department officials emphatically deny reports that Kissinger told Israel to hurry up the negotiating process.

Hermann F. Eilts, U.S. Ambassador to Cairo, is expected to return to Egypt within several days to report to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, according to State Department officials Friday.

Eilts flew last week from Cairo to Belgrade and met Kissinger to give him the Egyptian response to earlier Israeli ideas regarding new lines in the Sinai.

Eilts returned to Washington with Kissinger to await the Israeli response.

Agents Seize Car In Hoffa Case

By JEFFERY L. SHELER

DETROIT (UPI) — Federal agents Saturday seized a blood-stained car belonging to the son of a reputed Mafia figure who former Teamster boss James R. Hoffa set out to meet the day he disappeared.

Joe Giacalone, son of Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, reportedly told FBI agents that stains found in the front seat of his car were [illegible] blood. Although the FBI would neither confirm nor deny the report, it was believed [illegible] were analyzing the stains in a state police crime lab.

Young Giacalone's neighbors at a fashionable apartment complex in suburban St. Clair Shores reported four or five FBI agents took the car from the parking lot early Saturday morning. Investigators had asked Giacalone to give up the car voluntarily, but when he flatly refused, agents obtained a federal warrant to impound it.

In a related development, it was reported Saturday that the fallen labor czar met with "Tony Jack" and his son at Hoffa's Lake Orion home July 26 to arrange the luncheon meeting Hoffa was headed for when he disappeared four days later.

4,400 Acre Fire In California

IDYLLWILD, Calif. (UPI) — Firefighters battling a 4,400-acre fire in 100 degree temperatures warned 1,500 persons in the small mountain town of Anza Saturday to be prepared to evacuate in case they were unable to halt the fast-moving flames.

Deputies put residents on alert at dawn when the out-of-control blaze moved unchecked through thick, 15-foot high dry brush and pine to within two miles of the resort town.

The fire — feeding on brush "so thick you can hardly walk in it" — broke out Friday morning near the 4,000-foot high community of Idyllwild, about 25 miles southwest of Palm Springs, fire officials said.

More than 500 U.S. Forest Service and California Division of Forestry firemen tried to control the blaze Friday afternoon but the 103-degree temperatures, shifting winds and heavy brush fueled the flames down the south slopes of San Jacinto Mountain.

Some 150 residents of the community of Thomas Mountain were evacuated at noon Friday as the fire swept close to the village's 52 dwellings. Backfires were set to keep the flames away from the community.

The fire moved past the town early Saturday destroying two homes on the outskirts of the community. Other residents returned to their homes at dawn.

Astronauts Decorated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a sun-drenched ceremony in the White House Rose Garden, President Ford presented medals Saturday to the three Apollo crew members who took part in last month's space adventure and feigned surprise that they decided to return to the problems of earth.

Ford pinned NASA Distinguished Service Medals on the lapels of astronauts Thomas Stafford, Donald (Deke) Slayton and Vance Brand as well as Glynn Lunney, U.S. technical director for the joint flight.

Rules FBI Negligent

CINCINNATI (AP) — A federal appeals court has ruled that the FBI was negligent in the handling of a 1971 airplane hijacking in which three persons died.

It overruled a lower court decision that FBI actions are immune to civil action and said immunity can be applied only if the agents involved act rea onably and within guidelines of law and regulations.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal ruling Friday placed a $388,530.98 judgment against the United States.

Immunity For Mrs. Ghandi

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The upper house of India's parliament approved a new constitutional amendment giving Prime Minister Indira Gandhi immunity from prosecution on criminal and civil charges.

The house voted 154-0 in favor of the legislation less than two hours after it was introduced by Law Minister H.R. Gokhale.

Solemn Ceremony

NAGASAKI, Japan (AP) — More than 15,000 survivors of the Nagasaki atom bomb placed wreaths Saturday to victims and prayed for peace on the 30th anniversary of the World War II attack.

The solemn ceremony opened with Mayor Yoshitake Morotani and two surviving families of the holocaust dedicating a list of 1,054 persons whose deaths have been confirmed in the last year as having resulted from the blast or its after effects.

Upholds Conviction

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal court of appeals has upheld the contempt conviction of Los Angeles reporter William T. Farr for his refusal to reveal sources of a story he wrote about the Charles Manson investigation in 1971.

"It appears I face the prospect of going back to jail," Farr said Friday after the 9th U.S. Court of Appeals ruled that a newsman's privilege not to reveal sources was secondary to a defendant's right to a fair trial.

Hail Coming Voyage

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Excited scientists hailed the coming voyage of twin Viking spaceships in search of life on Mars as "a great adventure" while the countdown for the first launch proceeded Saturday without a hitch.

With the first Viking prepared for takeoff atop a Titan Centaur rocket at 4:59 p.m. EDT Monday, the scientists talked of what might be found during the year-long odyssey of the two unmanned but instrument-laden "longboats" bound for uncharted ports on Mars.

Raleigh Boy Charged In Death Of Widow

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A 13-year-old boy accused of first degree murder would be sentenced to a detention home until he's 18 then released if convicted, but two of his sisters and a brother would go to the gas chamber if convicted of the same crime.

The four youngsters are charged with murder in the death Wednesday of an 81-year-old widow in Raleigh. Police said Euphie D. Adams was found on her front lawn, dead from a blow to her head by a blunt object. They said robbery of less than $100 and some property was the apparent motive.

Several hours after the body was found, police arrested Linda Stokes, 20, her sister Kathy, 16, and brothers Timothy, 14, and Steven, 13. The Stokes live in a middle class housing development near Mrs. Adams' home.

The boys were on vacation from a home near Raleigh for wayward children. They had been sent there by county officials.

Wake County Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell said Friday that Steven cannot be tried as an adult, but the others can. He said if Steven is convicted, the boy would be sent to a detention home until he is 18, then released.

The other children can be tried as adults and, under North Carolina law, would be sentenced to the gas chamber if convicted of first degree murder, Mitchell said.

In an interview Friday, Paul Stokes, father of the children, said "It's just one of those things you think will happen to somebody else." The 47-year-old disabled truck driver has eight children.

He disputed the police claim that robbery could motivate his children to murder. "I don't see it. What in the world would they want to steal a .22 rifle for? There are three on a gun rack back here," he said. Police listed a .22 caliber rifle among the stolen property.

One of his sons, Ron, 17, said Kathy had sometimes helped Mrs. Adams rake her lawn. "A nicer woman you couldn't find," he said of Mrs. Adams.

Neighbors said the widow commonly asked children into her home and gave the cookies. "She loved children," one neighbor said.

Since the arrests, life has become difficult for his family, Stokes said. People hear about the charges and drive by the Stokes home out of curiosity, he said.

"I don't think they did it," Ron said.

"But you got to put the blame on somebody," Stokes added.

Reburial For Chief

FT. SILL, Okla. (AP) — A 21-gun salute and the chant of an Indian prayer heralded a new resting place Saturday for Chief Black Beaver, one of the legendary figures of the Old West.

Soldiers, Indians and historians joined to move Black Beaver's remains from an obscure family plot near Anadarko, Okla., to the company of other Indian leaders here on Chief's Knoll in the cemetery of this sprawling Army artillery base.

The Delaware chief's new grave lies among those of such famed Indians as Quanah Parker, last chief of the Comanches, and Kiowa chiefs Sitting Bear, Satanta and Kickingbird. Across the post, in an Apache cemetery, is the grave of Geronimo.

Born in 1806, Black Beaver led the first party of white men to the site of Ft. Sill in 1834. He was a well-known guide and scout for the Army, and commanded a troop of Indians in the Mexican War. In 1830 he charted the California Trail from Fort Smith, Ark., to the West Coast, and he rode horseback seven times from the Midwest to the Pacific Ocean.

King Of Hoboes

A crowd estimated at 15,000 spectators has crammed this small north-central Iowa community for the past two days to attend the carnival, art show and other activities connected with the colorful Hobo Convention.

Your Search for the Perfect Business . . .

Let's suppose we approach the Business School of any major university and lay down a set of specifications asking them to try to find for us the perfect business.

We might ask them to find a business opportunity matching the following: The product or service, or whatever it is, is to be oblivious to the law of supply and demand. It should be an endless, unlimited supply and yet its demand should be great and constant, whether times are good or bad. There should be NO:

1. Manufacturing problems
2. Production problems
3. Transportation problems
4. Problem of obsolescence or style changes
4. Depreciation or deterioration
6. Foreign imports to hurt it
7. Tariffs to harass it
8. Union problems
9. Account receivables
10. Labor problems

Once located, we want it to be professional in nature. Because of the continuing service rendered, an element of mutual trust will be developed.

We want the company which offers this to supply complete training facilities. They should have a financing arrangement to launch us, at no cost to us. In effect, we expect the company to supply all necessary capital and operating resources not only at the start, but also after we are established.

Once we are under way, we want to both own and operate this business for ourselves. Rewards must come, based upon ability and performance. We want no problem of seniority blocking us; no limit on our income. This business must offer us an annual built-in compensation increase. Naturally we would expect this comprehensive compensation to also include the security of a complete program of doctor, hosptial, dental and all other modern day health care coverages with the business paying the majority of the cost.

In order to avoid misunderstanding, we prefer everything having to do with this be contractual in nature.

We want the relationship with the clientele to be through a contract which the clientele controls so that our customers will always be able to refer to the ground rules of their business relationship with us. We want our contract with whatever company this is to spell out very clearly the compensation arrangements we have just defined. It will thus permit us to control our own destiny.

There should be no compulsory retirement at age 65. Since the business will be ours, we want the right to keep on operating it after age 65, earning all that we wish; but we do insist that a pension be paid on top of whatever we earn. In other words, if we choose to keep on working, we expect a pay raise at age 65 when everyone else is taking a cut in pay.

When you locate this unique business, we want one more important provision which we realize will be difficult.

We do not want a mandatory educational requirement such as doctors, dentists and attorneys must meet. Though we realize additional education is always beneficial, we would like our opportunities to be based on pure courage, self-discipline and the willingness to work. We realize that a college degree is important but we would want our business associates to have the opportunity to enter our business regardless of the type of degree they have.

When we find this business opportunity, we promise to do certain things. We will study constantly to keep well informed realizing that the professional nature of this occupation will demand it. We agree to ignore the clock. In fact, we would like to insist that we be allowed to work as long as we want, to earn as much as we want, and to vacation when we please. We will promise to render continuous and high-class service to our clients and be loyal to our company.

Well, it becomes rather obvious, doesn't it? The business we seek is the life insurance business. The product it provides — the life insurance contract — is the only answer to the universal desire for security, both present and future, and because of this it has become a necessity of life. It is the only sure protection against the economic consequences of dying too soon or of living too long and for this reason it meets well the test of supply and demand.

This could be the perfect business for you. To help you evaluate your potential for success, why not drop me a note or, better still, give me a call and we will arrange a convenient time to thoroughly evaluate your potential as the Man from Equitable in Greenville. All contacts will be held in strictest confidence. Yes, this could be the perfect business for you . . . why not take a good look.

Three Days For Blood Donors

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Greenville three days this week, and The Reflector would call it to your attention.

Your personal attention (in fact, that of everybody in the Tidewater region served by the touring bloodmobiles) is necessary. The situation is not good.

The picture painted by Dr. Lee West, pathologist at Pitt Memorial Hospital, pretty much confirmed recently the impression built up over a number of years: Americans are not the bloodgivers they could be. Dr. West said that about five per cent of the potential donors contribute to the national need for blood. That about fits the picture in Pitt County. More local, and regular, donors are needed.

Pitt fell far short of its quota in the 1974-75 year; we contributed 2,604 pints during that period and the quota was 3,329 pints. Many of those units of blood that were donated were from repeaters . . . the "believers" who give more than once a year. Pitt Memorial Hospital is one of the larger blood-users in the region; in fact, our hospital is virtually a regional medical center, and because of our local interest in health care the trend in blood needs can only be upward.

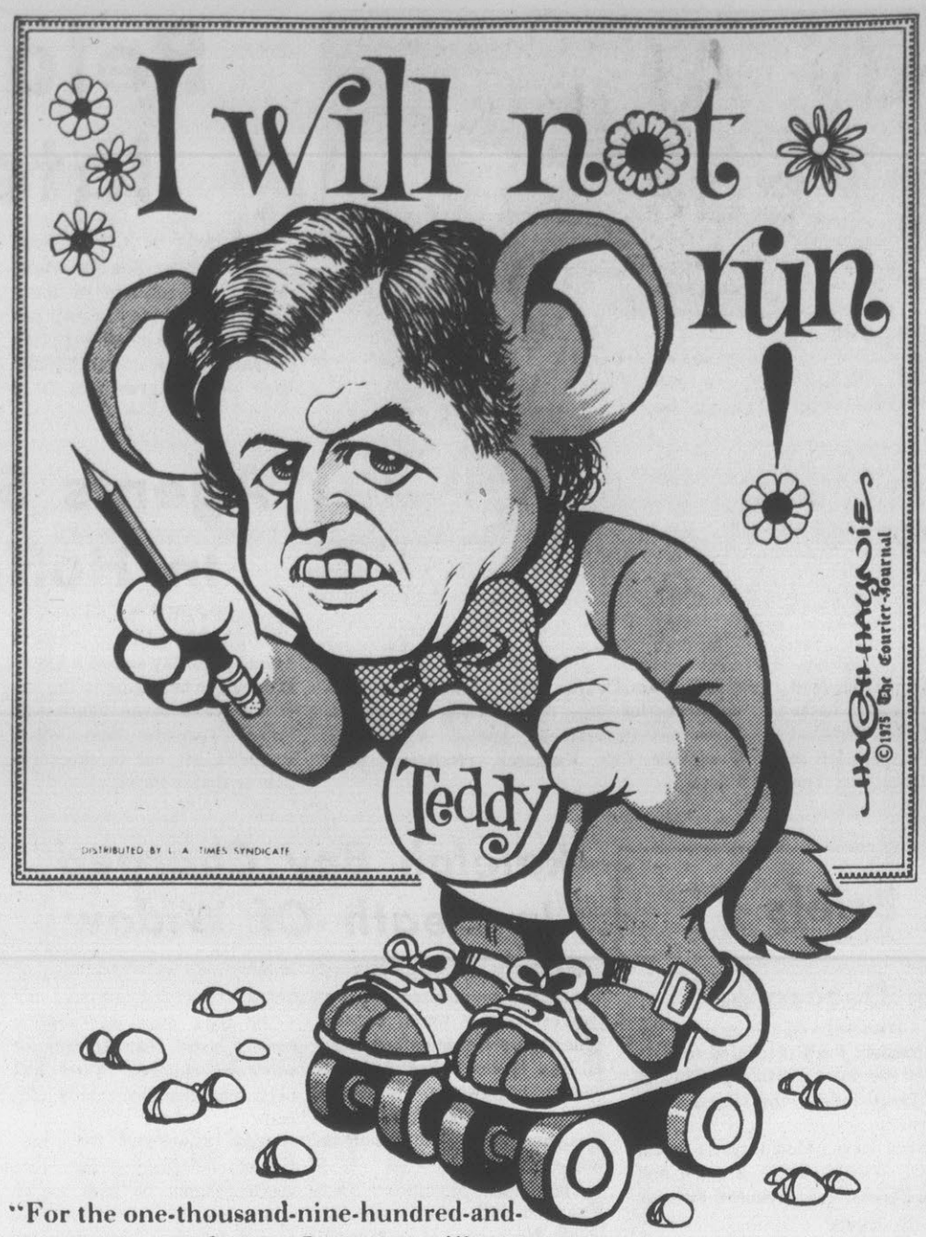

There is no substitute for blood used in treatment of the multitude of surgical patients expectable in the year (and years) ahead. If we do not meet our own needs, we should not look to others to carry us.

For the "new year" which begins for us on August 12, we have a smaller total quota and only six three-day visits by the bloodmobile. This should make it easier for repeaters and for first-time donors. At the same time, a certain amount of personal dedication is necessary.

August has not been a good month for the bloodmobile. We have it straight from the local Red Cross office that blood is not coming in throughout the area. Thus far, we're told, the Tidewater Center collections have not been able to meet hospital needs. Pitt County's response this time around is going to make a big difference; we hope.

To make it easier, we have a smaller quota this year and fewer visits by the bloodmobile in Pitt County. The quota for the year is but 2,450 pints; but to make it, we're going to have to average 136 pints per day for the 18 days the bloodmobile will be in the county.

On August 12 and 13 the bloodmobile will be at the Greenville Moose Lodge; on August 14, at the Union Carbide plant. Blood is something only you can give . . . share with those who will be the most in need.

"For the one-thousand-nine-hundred-and-seventy-sixth time, I repeat . . .!"

Travel Still Big Business

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Often overlooked when you're asked to name fast North Carolina's leading industries is travel.

Ranking third—right behind textiles and tobacco—is a growing industry which this year should pass the billion-dollar mark, with more than 39 million people traveling in the state.

And that money is pretty evenly spread across North Carolina, according to a recent survey by the travel development section of the State Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

All three of the state's major regions have some of the high-density travel business. Charlotte leads as the main travel drawing card, followed by two other Piedmont counties: Guilford and Wake (the state capitol).

In fourth place is Buncombe County and Asheville, gateway to the Smokies. Next is the coastal county of Dare, followed by Durham, then two other coastal counties: New Hanover and Carteret; and then the Sandhills golfing center in Moore County.

Almost 60 per cent of the state's total travel business is concentrated in those 10 counties, and the high-density tourist counties showed a 1974 increase of 11.5 per cent compared with a six per cent growth rate for the state as a whole.

Not surprisingly, the survey also proved that June, July, and August are the key travel months.

Young Mothers

State public health officials are alarmed at recent studies which show that young girls (age 10 to 14) have the highest percentage of illegitimate births in the state. And the figures also show concentration of illegitimate births in nonwhite population.

One of every 25 births to a white mother was illegitimate; two out of every five births to a nonwhite was out of wedlock.

Of the 10,329 nonwhite illegitimate births in 1974, over 63 per cent were to mothers under 20 years of age.

A Local Pitch

One among the many Democratic candidates for lieutenant governor has spelled out the framework for his campaign—county government versus the state.

Waverly F. Akins, president of the N.C. Association of County Commissioners, told his colleagues in convention recently that county governments are treated with "disregard and lack of esteem . . . at the state level."

Akins warned that state government has steadily moved in to take over local responsibilities, listing education, highways, courts, as examples; and said it is "crystal clear" that centralization of government is occurring rapidly. "State government has been accruing power, expanding in scope and function . . . (resulting) in a government remote from the people."

Labeling this part of a "vicious cycle" which could end in remote state government substituting its will for that of the people, Akins called on local government to seek a new relationship with Raleigh to "right this imbalance."

Akins criticized Republican Gov. James E. Holshouser, accusing him of remaining "content to merely preside over a sprawling, remote, and centralized state government that cannot be attuned to the real needs of the people," as he called for not only a change of administration, but a change of heart in Raleigh.

Sunday Morning Notes

The driver ground the starter but the engine wouldn't catch.

Finally three sergeants emerged from the auto and they pushed it out of the travel lane to a parking place at curb side.

You can bet there were no privates around.

Sally Sumerlin is a pharmacist's assistant at Hollowell's Drug Store No. 2.

She is an attractive, but short young lady. Some of the drugs used by the pharmacists are stored on a shelf high over the front window of the prescription department. There, they are within arm's reach for most of the people who work in the prescription area—but not for Sally.

The resourceful girl long ago solved the problem of how to reach the bottles on the high shelf. Simply jumps from the floor and grabs and proper bottle at the height of her leap. The system works fine, although customers viewing the action through the front window of the prescription department might wonder what's going on.

W.A. Gaskins, whose crews are removing the paving on Evans Street through The Daily Reflector Hotline offered the old brick with which the street was paved to anyone who wanted to come by and pick up a souvenir.

Much of the brick had been removed by then, but a number of people went down that evening to retrieve some of the old bricks.

Chris Hargett, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Hargett, who operate Biggs Drug Store, noticed a loose manhole and cover out in the demolished street. He assumed that was surplus, too, so he tugged at the heavy metal device, loaded it in his car and took it home. There he placed it in the front yard planning to make a table out of it.

Alas, the next day Gaskins was looking for the manhole, which wasn't supposed to be removed from the street.

Chagrinned, Chris rushed home, strained once again to load up the manhole and returned it to its rightful position in Evans Street.

School Rush Readied

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

The bicentennial school year, opening in September, will attract 59.1 million Americans, from pint-sized to adult.

The number is down slightly from the previous academic year's 59.4 million. It is down also from the peak of 60.2 million in 1971 and is expected to keep declining. This is due to the drop in the birth rate.

The National Center for Education Statistics expects school population to drop to 55.7 million by 1983.

Problems associated with the decline in pupil population in the first twelve grades are expected to continue.

The key problem: a continuation of the teacher surplus, something the educational establishment, particularly teachers' unions, hopes to end.

One plan being pushed would start school at age three, a kind of pre-school manned by surplus teachers. Another attack on the surplus, lowering the ratio of pupils to teacher, has just about run its course.

Most school districts, already full of fidgety taxpayers wanting more for their educational dollar, can't sell a significant lowering of the pupil-teacher ratio.

The ratio went from 28.4 in 1963 to 23.3 a decade later. The trend is for it to go to 20.7 by 1983, but there is no guarantee that will happen.

Statistically, the academic year is impressive.

Consider: with kindergarten and nursery school children, the total on the learning trail is 60.8 million. That includes 9.9 million in college; 33.6 million in kindergarten to grade eight; 15.6 million in grades nine to 12; and 1.8 million in kindergarten and nursery.

The bill for this massive quest for knowledge will be $110 billion, including $39.5 billion for higher education. The money comes from federal, state and local tax funds, for the most part. Contributions from each source for grade and high school break down this way: $5.9 billion, federal; $25.9

INSIDE REPORT

A Time Bomb In The UN

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Ticking dangerously in the background of U.S. efforts for an interim settlement between Israel and Egypt is the time bomb set to explode at the United Nations next month if no agreement is reached.

That time bomb is the threat by the Afro-Asian third world bloc, joined by Moscow and other Communist nations, to suspend or even expel Israel from the UN General Assembly.

Thus, for the first time since Secretary of State Henry Kissinger began nonstop Mideast peace mediations following the October 1973 war, the element of time—heretofore an indispensable and precious tool for Kissinger—is inexorably running out.

If Israel fails to reach agreement by next month for withdrawal from the Sinai mountain passes and the Egyptian oil fields seized in the 1967 war, the UN General Assembly is certain to vote extreme sanctions against Israel. That would have cataclysmic repercussions—for the U.S., for Israel and for the world.

It would tie Israel even closer to the U.S., with a vast majority of American voters immediately resolving conflicting emotions about Israel and the Arab states in favor of Israel; would further isolate the U.S. from allies which, because of Arab oil, are far more impatient than the U.S. with Israel's continued occupation of Arab territory; and would probably render the UN useless for any further role in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

There is no disagreement here on these points.

Some high U.S. officials fear that UN suspension of Israel would start political winds which would blow into an anti-UN tornado in this country, gravely weakening or even destroying it as an international forum—though there is serious difference of opinion on this.

Ironically, it was quiet, backstage diplomacy by Egypt and moderate Arab states that prevented other third-world African and Arab countries from inflaming anti-Israel animus into hard action at last week's Kampala meeting of the Organization of African Unity.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, who is betting his whole political future on a Sinai agreement with Israel, quietly lobbied backstage at Kampala against any anti-Israel resolution. But to protect his left flank, he strongly indicated that if there is no interim settlement on the Sinai, Egypt itself would be compelled to join in suspending Israel from the UN General Assembly.

The deadline confronting Kissinger thus appears immutable, with the regular session of the General Assembly opening Sept. 16.

If Kissinger by then has failed to find a compromise Sinai formula, a move to suspend or expel Israel is certain. Experts here feel Egypt will have to support it, along with all Arab countries and most of the third world bloc which now dominates the UN.

Any "important question" in the General Assembly requires a two-thirds vote. With rampant majority control on the floor however, the third world bloc can rule that suspension of Israel is not an "important question," hence subject to a simple majority vote.

The gravity of this UN time bomb is fully understood by responsible leaders of the American-Jewish community, who were impressed by the political risks taken by Sadat at Kampala last week. Many are now convinced for the first time that Sadat is deadly serious about wanting to end the quarter-century struggle with Israel.

Likewise, U.S. officials believe that prime minister Yitzhak Rabin, enjoying vastly greater political power at home following his rejection of Kissinger's Sinai proposals last March, does not want to risk a future in which Israel, removed from the UN, would face further isolation and an almost certain resumption of war.

But some astute U.S. officials say pointedly that there is "another school" of thought, both among hard-line Israeli hawks and militant pro-Israeli Americans. It is this: expulsion of Israel would produce an emotional outpouring of American support, forcing President Ford to end his evenhanded policy in the Mideast and tieing the U.S. inextricably to Israel.

If that school of thought gained the upper hand in Rabin's government and Israel kept throwing up new roadblocks to an interim agreement with Egypt, the UN time bomb would explode in Mr. Ford's face, and his control over American policy in the Middle East would be drastically transformed overnight. Whatever momentary gain it might mean for Israeli hard-liners, its long range impact is

Other Editors Say
Why, Oh Why?

(Henderson Dispatch)

Congress is in recess for a month, but both houses have been considering the wholly unnecessary super body designated as a Consumer Protection Agency. One version has been passed by the Senate, and the House measure is considered headed for passage.

That means that in the end the two bills go to conference for adjusting differences, after which Senate and House will give their approval.

Widespread opposition has surfaced across the country, but Congress is paying no attention to it and is proceeding toward hamstringing the economy with this additional imposition.

The White House position is against the measure generally, in whatever form it may ultimately be approved on Capitol Hill. Belief there is that the country already has too much government regulation, and that this proposal is not needed. It has been estimated that it will cost $60 million a year for operation, including the massive additions to the Federal bureaucracy in employment and payrolls.

Feeling is that President Ford will veto the bill when it reaches him. But the House will probably override. Senate action is uncertain on that phase of the measure.

Business is against it. Polls show consumers do not want it, and that action should be delayed at least until efforts are made toward reform in government regulations generally.

Why then does Congress fly in the face of public opinion? Why does it do such things? It seems to be the hoary idea that papa knows best, that the lawmaking honorables are better qualified to decide what is best for the people.

Washington is honeycombed with bureaucracy. It has gotten so that legitimate business and individuals almost have to knuckle under to the theorists, whatever they may offer. If Congress would keep hands off, the economy would much more quickly return to normal.

40 Years Ago Today

August 10, 1935

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, meeting here this week, placed final okay on the budget tentatively adopted several weeks ago and fixed the countywide tax rate at 90 cents on the $100 valuation. The rate last year was 86 cents.

The tax rate, is based on a valuation of around $30,000,000, about a million and a half over last year.

The total amount of the budget this year was given as $347,724. It was stated that $270,000 this amount would be derived from taxes and the remainder from fees and contributions.

The only increases reflected in the budget this year are shown in the rate for outside poor and relief and school maintenance.

Greenville merchants today were turning their attention to semi-annual "Dollar Day" to be staged here next Thursday, and indications pointed to one of the best events of the kind in years.

Strength For Today

RETURN

"O Ephraim, what shall I do unto thee? O Judah, what shall I do unto thee? For your goodness is as a morning cloud, and as the early dew it goeth away."

This is the picture, as someone has said, of God figuratively wringing his hands over man's moral instability. Loved with the full power of divine love, sought after through the dark wilderness of sin, longed for as only a father can long for a child—yet in the end the object of all this affection proves unworthy. Mankind's goodness is like a fog in the early morning which soon disappears, or like a morning dew which quickly dries up.

The same divine protest could be made over many of us. A few minutes in the heat of temptation and our goodness floats away. This is why the burden of every prophet's song is "Return." We are to come back home again. We are to leave the far country, be done for all time with the swine pens; and rising, go to the Father.

Inflation Problem's Reminder

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ford administration economists say the recent surge in wholesale prices does not foreshadow another round of raging inflation but instead is a reminder that inflation is still a problem.

"It's still a serious problem but I would say this is no more than a reminder, rather than a new round of inflation rearing its ugly head," said Treasury Department economist Edgar R. Fiedler.

He was voicing the general view of administration economists in the wake of the 1.2 per cent increase reported Thursday for July wholesale prices. The rise, at an annual rate of 14.4 per cent, follows a 9.6 per cent jump in the June consumer price index at an annual rate. Consumer price increases had averaged 5.2 per cent in the three months before that.

The general view of the administration is summarized this way:

—Inflation is still a problem, and prices will continue to increase for a few more months at a rate faster than earlier this year.

—But the increase is transitory, unlike the sustained 12.2 per cent inflation last year and the 8.8 per cent the year before that.

—The basic rate of inflation remains about 6 per cent, and the government's indexes will return there before the end of the year.

However, AFL-CIO President George Meany and his chief economist, Nat Goldfinger, remain skeptical.

"We've heard all of this before," said Goldfinger.

A 7.9 per cent increase in grain prices, reflecting the first speculative reactions to possible large Russian grain sales this year, prompted Meany to complain that Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz "is back at his old game of deceiving the American people when he says the Russian grain deal will have little effect on domestic prices.

"Isn't it about time to ask: 'When will President Ford and his advisers put the interest of Americans ahead of the desires of the Kremlin?'"

The administration's reasoning is that food and farm products, unlike most other components in the price indexes, come down as well as go up. And crops now ripening give hope the current rise will be short-lived.

In other economic news:

—Unemployment pushed the nation's family welfare rolls up again in April but the increase was the smallest in several months, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Thursday.

However, the April report also said the number of welfare families headed by jobless fathers declined slightly for the first time this year, and officials predicted the rolls of Aid to Families with Dependent Children would begin to decline also.

—The Federal Trade Commission announced it will survey the 1,000 largest U.S. manufacturers for the first time in 25 years in a search for possible antitrust violations and other corporate wrongdoing.

Kennedy At Polling Peak

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—Sen. Edward Kennedy's renewed disavowal that he is a presidential candidate comes at a time when he has moved into a clear lead over President Ford in the latest nationwide trial heat.

Kennedy's margin over Ford is 50 to 43 per cent. In the previous survey (May 30-June 2), the two were deadlocked, with Kennedy winning the support of 45 per cent of registered voters to 44 per cent for Ford. In a still earlier survey, conducted soon after Ford took office last August, the new President held a wide 57 to 33 per cent lead over Kennedy.

Kennedy, far and away the number one choice of Democratic voters for their party's nomination, is the only Democrat tested during Ford's year in office who is able to defeat the President in these trial heats.

Many political observers feel that Kennedy will definitely not be a candidate for President in 1976, yet speculation persists regarding attempts to draft him.

Here are the questions asked in the survey:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Sen. Edward Kennedy were the Democratic candidate, which would you like to see win?"

All those who indicated another preference or had no opinion were then asked:

"As of today, do you lean more to Ford, the Republican, or to Kennedy, the Democrat?"

Kennedy-Ford Trial Heat
(Choices of Registered Voters)

	Kennedy	Ford	Other-Undecided
LATEST	50%	43%	7%
May 30-June 2	45	44	11

Wallace Added As Third Party Candidate

When Gov. George Wallace of Alabama is added to the test as a possible third party candidate, Kennedy widens his lead over Ford. The three-way results show Kennedy with 42 per cent, Ford with 33 per cent and Wallace with 17 per cent.

Following are the questions asked:

"If Sen. Edward Kennedy were the Democratic candidate and President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama were the candidate of a third party, which would you like to see win?" (If undecided, this question was then asked: "As of today, do you lean more to Kennedy, the Democrat, Ford, the Republican, or Wallace, the third-party candidate?")

Following are the latest results and trend:

	Kennedy	Ford	Wallace	Other-Undecided
LATEST	42%	33%	17%	8%
May 30-June 2	39	34	19	8

The trial heat results reported today are based on the choices of registered voters among the 1,561 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period July 18-21.

A Conservative View
It Is Now Or Never For That Reagan Candidacy

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

"There is a tide in the affairs of men," said Brutus, "which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." Ronald Reagan this month is still waiting for the boat.

It is now or never for the former governor of California. If he intends seriously to compete for the Republican presidential nomination, he cannot delay beyond the end of August. Some of his admirers, growing increasingly impatient, fear he may already have missed the tide he's been waiting for.

The Citizens for Reagan Committee opened a suite of offices two weeks ago at 2021 L Street, N.W., in Washington, with veterans Lyn Nofsiger and John Sears, in charge of the operation. Visiting newsmen find the headquarters in a state of suspended animation: no pictures, no buttons, no handouts, none of the hustle-bustle one expects to see. The desks are empty, the typewriters dust-covered.

Nofsiger, the old pro, is balding, brown-eyed, plump as a teddy bear. He is eager for action. The classic recipe for rabbit stew, a visitor remarks, begins with this instruction: First catch the rabbit. Does he have a rabbit? Will Reagan run?

On a probability scale of 10, Nofsiger says confidently, Reagan now stands at 9.5. Sears is equally certain. Well, then, asks the visitor, what's the hold-up? Nofsiger studies the ceiling; Sears examines the floor.

One explanation is that, so long as he is not officially a candidate, Reagan may continue his radio commentaries. These now are heard on some 350 stations, according to Nofsiger, where they reach "50 to 70 million persons" a day. "How many?," asks the skeptical guest. Well, 20 or 30 million. How many? Uh-huh. A lot of people hear Reagan on the radio.

Putting the best face on things, Nofsiger adds that as a non-candidate, Reagan provides a less visible target. Besides, says the hopeful Sears, if Reagan were officially running, he might have trouble sustaining momentum into the spring. President Ford, possessed of the White House boiler room, can raise a head of steam whenever he pleases. Reagan has no such advantage.

Very well. But time slips away. Big names slip away. Big money slips away. The Young Republicans last month gave quiet notice that if nothing happens by Labor Day, they will have to reassess their position. Such pro-Reagan publications as Human Events grow restless. Reagan's record during two terms as governor demonstrates that he is not an indecisive man; but he is now leaving an indecisive image. Such images are dangerous.

More is involved than mere "image." A national presidential campaign is an enormously complex and costly problem in planning, personnel, and logistics. Less than seven months remain before the New Hampshire primary on March 2. Florida's primary is March 9. These are do-or-die for Reagan. It takes time to rent offices, to hire staff, to arrange printing, to prepare commercials, to plan mailings, to take polls. Volunteers are vital; they are like inner tubes; a campaign floats on their backs—but volunteers have to be incessantly patched, praised, and pumped up. It all takes time.

Meanwhile, from the Ford camp, one hears the muffled trombones of a bandwagon tuning up. The President Ford Committee, at 1200 18th Street, N.W., evidences plenty of hustle-bustle. Manager Bo Callaway, having extricated his ample foot from his ample mouth, is moving nimbly to get his show on the road. In New Hampshire, Florida, and elsewhere, his campaign committees are rapidly shaping up.

Conservatives, whether committed or uncommitted, may be forgiven a prayer that Reagan take the plunge. In terms of experience, political philosophy, and personal appeal, Reagan is a most attractive candidate. He is no mere actor reciting lines. Reagan has the substantive skills of which presidents are made. So far as Ford is concerned, Reagan offers the only serious opposition in sight.

Win or lose, a Reagan candidacy is important. If Ford should win the Republican nomination by default, he would enter the autumn campaign next year with an untested organization. Meanwhile, the combative Democrats would have been grabbing the headlines while the Republicans were having their snooze. The prospect holds small appeal.

Up and at 'im, Reagan! Fish or cut bait! Charge the ball! Let's you and him fight! August is a dull month, and if Reagan doesn't announce, it promises to stay August for the rest of the year.

Economy Trend Up, But Inflation Continues To Lurk; Ready To Explode

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

News of the economy continues to support contentions that the overall trend new is up, following a record-making recession. A recovery of sorts is underway.

Often, individual statistics contradict each other. But this is "normal" during direction changes, whether up or down. It will take another few months for the new pattern to show much uniformity.

There still is a lot of doubt about what is ahead. Pessimists among the forecasters talk of a "false recovery", such as turned up in the great depression of the 1930s. What they are saying is that things may not yet have hit the real bottom. True, there has been no real shaking down of prices, but only a slower inflation rate.

This, though, is a minority view. The concensus of analyists is that we are in for a slow recovery, far different from the rapid comeback which followed the 1969-70 slide. Then, Washington, looking ahead to 1972 politics, pulled out the steps and, when we look back, followed policies which contributed to the recent double digit inflation.

So far, the Ford Administration has given every sign that it intends to treat inflation as the nation's number one danger, even if this furnishes the Democrats a big gun for the 1976 elections. And, politically, that position might not be so dangerous in the political season as might appear.

Polls continue to show inflation, not unemployment, as the public's top concern, as it has been for the past year. This, of course, reflects the fact that the unemployed in July accounted for only 8.4 per cent of the labor force. The other 91.6 per cent was at work, with the highest incomes over. And polls showed job less fear of job loss.

Clearly, a new inflation whirl is the development which could defeat hopes for an orderly and sustained recovery. And the way things stand today, it could easily be touched off.

During the recession, many costs have continued to push right on up. This is true of wages and salaries, transportation, energy, materials needed for farm production. In fact, just about all costs have been on the climb—are well above a year ago and above six months ago. This has been reflected by the fact that living cost increases have eased in such a moderate way.

What this means is that most producers of goods and services are poised to relieve the cost squeeze at the first opportunity — when they think recovery will permit it.

The consumer, restrained for months now, is poised for a "protective" buying spree at the first sign that inflation is taking off again. And he is in a position to act. He has been busy cutting debts and adding to savings.

Any such moves by producers and consumers would upset recovery prospects badly. They could bring about a sudden upward spurt in economic activity, and then a sudden drop — another recession.

Even under the best of conditions, costs are going to be under strong up-pressure in some vital areas. Food, of course, is one. Increases in grain prices resulting from higher experts and, perhaps, weather-damaged crops, will be greatly magnified before they hit the retail food markets.

Energy is another hot spot. Congress has insisted on temporary stop-gap measures, refusing to even consider a long-term energy policy. Unless the Ford Administration yields and accepts Congress's new six months freeze of oil prices, or Congress makes some eleventh hour change, September 1 can see some major price jumps.

Thus, while the stage seems set for a slow-paced recovery, it's no sure bet at all that it can be either orderly or lasting. And it is prudent to remember that while inflationary freezes are more acute in some areas than in others, the underlying cause for general inflation has lost none of its zest.

This is the persistent deficit financing, which relies on what amounts to printing press money—the old greenback system. Every time fresh figures are released, deficit estimates rise.

In most of his spending battles with Congress, Ford has managed to win, but by shrinking margins. In fact, Ford has used the veto to head off more than $10-billion of extra deficit. But there is no assurance he can continue to restrain an election-minded Congress in this way much longer.

After all, one of the last acts of Congress before it went on an August vacation was to vote itself a little inflation protection — tied its pay to living costs.

billion, state; $32.1 billion, local; other, $7 billion. The higher or college bill, is paid from private and other sources, $20.8 billion; from federal funds, $6.2 billion; from state, $11 billion; from local, $1.5 billion.

Nonacademic talk in the nation's schools is expected to center on money, stretching funds to meet bills pumped up by continuing inflation.

Pigs in the financial poke are fuel, food and utility bills.

All are influenced by inflation, but the price of oil is expected to rock school budgets the most, depending on how high it goes.

In private colleges, especially in colder climates, inflation and the price of heating fuel and utility bills have boosted tuition and room and board bills to all-time highs, close to $6,000 an academic year.

The academic world in the year ahead also will be affected quite a bit by two external forces: Title IX and education for relevancy.

Title IX, a part of the Education Act, focuses on equal opportunities for females and minorities on school payrolls.

It also focuses on sex role stereotyping in textbooks, leaving the decision on book selection in the hands of local school boards. Sex role stereotyping shows strong men and frail women. Men never cry; women always do. Major text book publishers have instructed their editors and authors to steer clear of stereotyping. The big switch to new textbooks, especially readers, is on in many school districts.

Education for relevancy means schooling that plugs into the real world, especially in terms of preparing students for jobs.

At the grade and high school level, this translates into career education. All sorts of things are being tried, including businessmen and craftsmen giving courses in the schools and-or accepting students for on-the-job training or internships.

At the college level, the pressure for relevancy is great, in light of the number of college graduates who have trouble finding jobs. The 1975 graduates had an especially tough time, due partly to the recession.

Corporate demands for 1975 grads were the worst on record, according to the recent Endicott Report. Demand for bachelor's degree holders was down 31 per cent; and for master's, 18 per cent.

Private colleges are the most threatened financially. In academic circles there is concern over the survival of some.

One proposal to help all colleges, public and private, would set up a G.I. bill for the unemployed, giving the jobless a chance for a higher education.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, August 10, the 222nd day of 1975. There are 143 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the Japanese offered to surrender in World War II if the Emperor would be permitted to keep his throne.

On this date:

In 1821, Missouri became the 24th state.

In 1967, the people of Gibraltar voted to retain their link with Britain rather than return to Spanish sovereignty.

Ten years ago: Blacks were registering to vote in heavy numbers under provisions of the new Federal voting rights bill.

Five years ago: Despite opposition from conservationists and public offcials, the U.S. Army began moving a deadly cargo of obsolete nerve gas from railroad depots in Kentucky and Alabama to North Carolina's coast for burial in the Atlantic.

One year ago: Portugal made public a two-year blueprint for the granting of independence to her African territory of Angola.

The Expectant Father Requires Preparation

By GAIL MICHAELS

Every woman who has ever been pregnant knows that the most crucial preparation for labor and delivery is her monthly visit to the obstetrician. This visit usually takes about two hours-and-a-half and consists of an hour-and-a-half of sitting in a chair three inches from the floor, half-an-hour of trying to get up, 25 minutes of sitting on a hardwood bench, and five minutes with the doctor. After five such visits I've come to the conclusion that the time one spends with the doctor isn't so important; what's important is the waiting time. From this the prospective mother learns the true meaning of pain.

The other day I was ten minutes into the bench stage of this month's training session when the woman beside me gingerly shifted her fanny into second position and said, "You know what I think? I think that every husband should have to go through this with his wife — just to get some inkling of what we go through."

"That might be a bit too harsh," I said, taking one hand out from under me and sympathetically patting her on the arm. "My mother says that men too delicate to undergo the pressures of prenatalhood."

"I don't care," she whimpered. "We get all the pain, and they get all the credit. And, what's more, that little book the doctor gives us says that men need nine months preparation for fatherhood just like we need nine months preparation for motherhood."

GAIL MICHAELS

Now, I thought about what she said throughout the remainder of my visit, and the more I thought about it, the more I figured she made sense. After all, what did Phillip know about fatherhood? The only time he'd come close to experiencing it was when he tried to hear the baby's heartbeat, and it kicked him in the ear. So I decided that, for his own good, I would let Phillip participate as much as possible in the pregnancy. I started the minute he got home.

"Oh-h-h-h," I moaned as he walked through the door, "What a day!"

"What's the matter, sweetheart?" he asked. "Are you not feeling well?"

"When does any pregnant woman have time to feel well?" I groaned. "But it's worse for me."

He began to look concerned. "What's happened? I thought this pregnancy was going okay."

"Sure it is," I answered. "Except that I'm allergic to it. Every other woman gets a glow of pregnancy — I get a rash."

"Is that all you're worried about?" he sighed with relief. "I thought the doctor gave you a bad report."

"He did," I wailed. "He got all over me for gaining nine pounds in one month — and HE was the one who told me to gain weight."

"Well, I doubt he expected you to take him so seriously," Phillip chuckled.

"I'm too tired to cope with your humor," I said severely. "I had cramps in my legs all last night and couldn't sleep— but then you couldn't possibly appreciate the pain I went through."

"Sure I can," he laughed. "Every time you got a cramp, you kicked me."

Oh, what's the use?" I sobbed. "I'll never get you to participate in this pregnancy. You just won't have any preparation for fatherhood at all."

His eyes dimmed, and an expression of real pain spread over his face. "You forget," he said. "I'm paying the bills."

America's First POWs Endured More Than Other Heroes

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

The greatest heroes of the American Revolution may have been the thousands who suffered and died in British prisons rather than renounce their country.

The worst horrors of the war were endured by these soldiers, sailors and civilians. They were considered traitors by their British captors and worthy of no mercy.

An American sailor transferred from one hellish prison ship to another recalled years later passing an air vent on the infamous ship "Jersey."

"From this aperture proceeded a strong current of foul vapor, of a kind to which I had been accustomed while confined on the "Good Hope;" the peculiarly disgusting smell of which I then recollected, after a lapse of three years," Thoms Dring said.

"This was, however, far more foul and loathsome than anything which I had ever met on board that ship; and it produced a sensation of nausea far beyond my powers of description."

"The air was so foul at times," said another prisoner, "that a lamp could not be kept burning, by reason of which three boys were not missed until they had been dead ten days."

Hundreds of men crammed below decks spent years "some searing and blaspheming, some crying, praying and wringing their hands, and stalking about like ghosts and apparitions; other delirious ... raving and storming; some groaning and dying — all panting for breath; some dead and corrupting."

As England refused pleas for more humane treatment, Americans began to retaliate with harsh measures for British captives.

Two hundred years ago today a neglected British prisoner in Albany, N.Y., implored the local committee for mercy.

"We are here as prisoners, and get nothing to support us," he wrote. "We have fasted for some days, and therefore hope that you will take it into consideration and get us some supply."

The next day George Washington was threatening reprisals unless Americans got better treatment from their English captors.

"I shall regulate all my conduct towards those gentlemen who are or may be in our possession, exactly by the rule you shall observe towards those of ours now in your custody," Washington wrote Gen. Thomas Gage.

The British commander retorted that it was the Americans who were mistreating prisoners, forcing them to labor "like Negro slaves to gain their daily sustenance."

Americans in his custody, Gage insisted, were treated with "care and kindness."

But John Leach, a Bostonian suspected of "being a spy and taking plans," was at that moment in one of Gage's prisons, and Leach's prison journal is a litany of suffering:

"Monday July 17th, my son Tileston died, whom I left well in my house; I was not permitted to attend the funeral ...

"August 11. Close confined; the Provost would not suffer the doors to be opened to put our victuals in, but made us take it through the bars. To day Amos Fish died.

"Tuesday, 15th. Close confined. the weather hot. Died, Capt. Walker ...

"Saturday, 19th. The poor sick and wounded prisoners fare very hard, and are many days without the comforts of life. Some of the limbs which have been taken off, it was said, were in a state of purification; not one survived amputation.

"Wednesday, 23rd. In the afternoon Sergeant Neal and Corporal Royal were confined prisoners by the Provost for giving us air and fresh water in his absence. They told him we were almost suffocated with heat; he replied, "God damn them, if they are dead and rotten, my orders to you is to keep them close."

The British did not recognize Americans as prisoners of war. They were considered treasonous criminals deserving punishment — not unlike the treatment other Americans received in Hanoi two centuries later.

Until they began reacting to English abuses, Americans respected the traditional rules of war for British regulars but regarded American tories as traitors. The tories, in turn, cried for rebel blood.

Compounding the problem was the suddenness with which large numbers of POWs were cast upon captors unable to care for them even if they had been willing.

Some 4,000 Americans were captured in the fighting around New York City in 1776. Americans took some 1,00 Hessians at Trenton the same year. About 5,000 British, Germans and Canadians were snared at Saratoga in 1777. The Americans lost 5,000 at Charleston in 1780, and captured 8,000 British at Yorktown a year later.

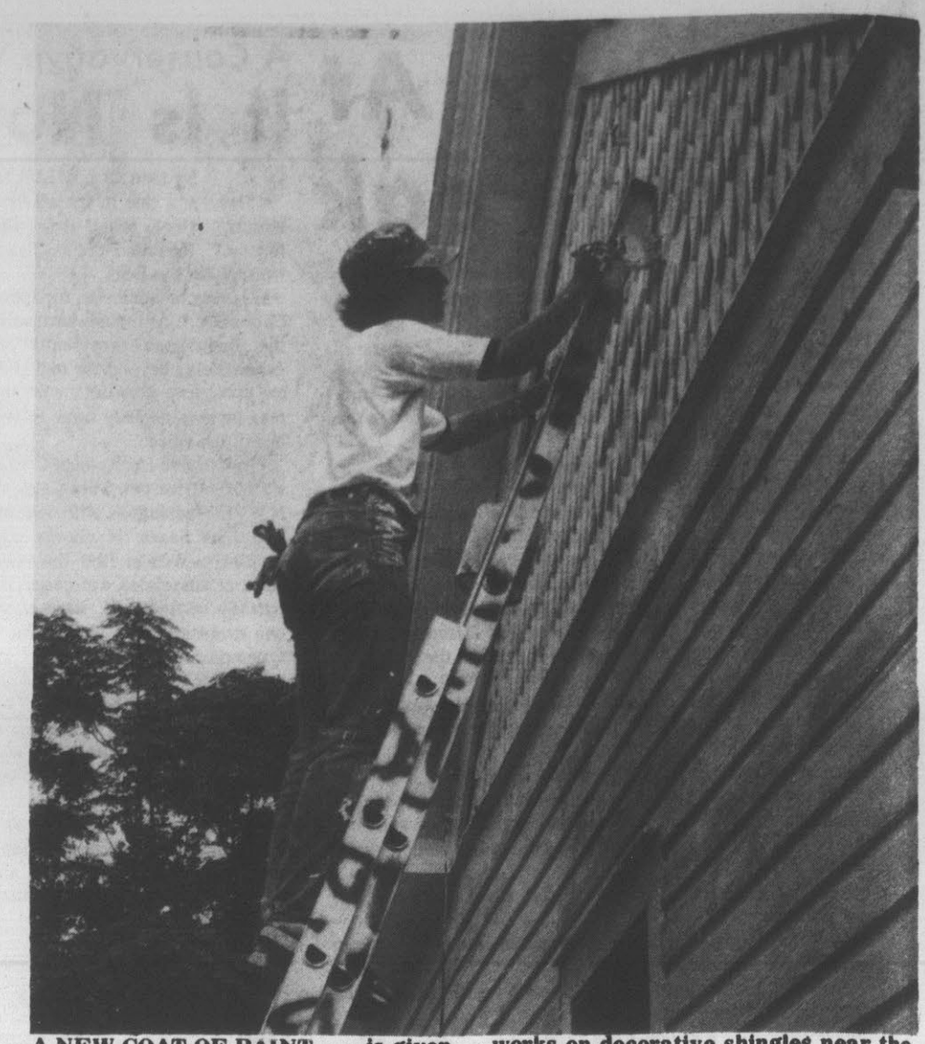

Because of mutual distrust, prisoner exchanges were few. Officers were paroled but the terms of release were blatantly violated, limiting even this nicety of gentlemen's war.

Those unfortunate enough to remain prisoners faced starvation rations, lack of YOUNG CHILDREN AT MEADOWBROOK . . . Day Care Center enjoy having the two youths from AJSS come each day to work with them. This particular project is so popular among the group that the teens take turns each day going to the center. Shown with two of the children is Michael Young.

"What is important is not the actual work we are doing but how our people coming to Greenville has brought people together. It has pooled people together to work at a common cause, both black and white, to help others." Jules Hirsch recently commented.

Hirsch is the director of the co-ed group of teenagers who have come to Greenville for seven weeks this summer to provide service work for the Greenville community in renovation of community buildings and home improvement projects. This group of 15 teenagers, under the auspices of the American Jewish Society For Service (AJSS) first came to Greenville early this month by bus. All of the youths are from the New York area except one 14-year-old girl who comes all the way from Quebec, Canada.

Members of the group include Nancy Leigh Franco, Marcie Lea Frishman, Aviva Goldstein, Mara Krechevsky, Robin Levine, Gail Nalven, Stacey Lynn Stecklow, Lowell Arye, Jerry Deutsh, Spencer Horowitz, and Philip Lipman. Two counselors are also with the group, Michael Young and Michele Marsh. The director, Jules Hirsch has his family with him, Julianne, his wife and his seven-year-old daughter.

The AJSS is an independent charitable organization whose main objective is to provide an opportunity for high school students to perform humanitarian and constructive work on a non-sectarian basis.

The organization has been sponsoring work camp projects for juniors and seniors in high school for the past twenty-five years. Hirsch has been with the organization in New York every summer for 15 years. He is a music teacher in the public schools of Brooklyn during the winter months. "My wife and I have been doing this since we were first married. I am committed to this because life has been good to me and I want to give something back in return. I look back now and see that I have accomplished a great deal in these summers," said Hirsch. "Everyone has been so gracious and cordial to us in Greenville," he added. "People have donated paint and building materials. We have a truck donated by local dealer and so many people have offered their time and assistance."

The group came to Greenville because Linda Williams of VISTA Volunteers saw an advertisement in a VISTA publication called Interaction that the AJSS had placed to appeal to interested sponsors for this type of program. So, the VISTA Volunteers and the Greenville Ministerial Association agreed to invite a group to work in the community. Greenville wasn't selected because of its great need but because there were people who were willing to work together to coordinate a work project here.

Twenty houses have been selected for rehabilitation during the period of time the AJSS people are here. Each day, the group divides into two or three different work teams and work on different projects. They also send two youths to work in the Meadowbrook Day Care Center each day.

Dennis W. Tripp, city building inspector, explained how the houses were selected, "We went to the different houses and inspected them first. To be eligible a person must own his own home, be a senior citizen, and be financially incapable of making the required repairs. I interviewed them and then selected the ones that were in greatest need. We could have required them to do this at their own expense, but we take into consideration they are older people. We work with them in situations like this. That is how the AJSS people come into the picture. They are making these repairs for these old people that might not have been able to afford them otherwise."

The owners of the homes where the group has been working are happy about the changes that have been made on their home. "They are fine girls and boys," Mrs. Ruth Davis commented. "They are mannerly to old people and the thing I like is that they act like everybody is somebody."

Mrs. James Louis Williams of 201 E. 13th St. stood on the front porch overseeing the painting and rebuilding that was going on at her home. From time to time she would bring out water to the youths and utter exclamations of pleasure at seeing the transformation of her home. Hirsch walked up and introduced himself to her as the director of the group.

"Are you a rabbi?" she asked him.

"No, Mrs. Williams," Hirsch answered.

"Are you a doctor?" she asked again.

"No, Mrs. Williams, I'm just a human being," Hirsch told her.

The elderly lady tilted her head back a bit and said, "Well now, Mr. Hirsch, that seems kind of humble. Mr. Hirsch," she continued, "Can the kids go to church with me Sunday? I have already told my pastor that I wanted to bring them."

The director turned to this reporter and with a note of incredulity he said "This lady is 83 years old and she has been out here working every day."

"If I didn't keep going, I'd get stiff," Mrs. Williams smiled and rubbed her joints and said, "Look at my arthritis. I get all swollen up so I have to keep going.

"This is the first time anything like this has ever been done for me and I think its wonderful. The kids all seem good natured. I know the Lord brought them to me."

During a visit to another project, the owner of the home, Mrs. Addie Harris, insisted that everyone come in to see the changes in her house. When asked how she felt about having the AJSS workers help her she said, "I think it's just great. I've just been so happy. They are real nice. She motioned and said "Come see my kitchen. I love everything that has been done, but the kitchen is what I am really proud of. I am 77 years old, you know, but I hope the Lord will let me live a little longer so that I can enjoy it some."

Mrs. Fannie Jackson, director of the Meadowbrook Day Care Center told about having two youths from the group assisting her. "The children love it! They are marvelous help. Whatever there is to be done they do it, from washing windows to scrubbing. They work well with the children, which is surprising because most of them have never had any experience in child care, but they just fall right in."

In the afternoons if one drives by their residence, the previously vacant two story house on the corner of Evans and 8th Ave., he will more than likely see the tired bunch of kids sprawled out on the old couches and chairs on the big open front porch. "It's the only cool place to sit in the house so we all go out there to sit and read or play the guitar." one youth explained.

After the group has rested awhile, they are ready to participate in a variety of nightly activities. They attend movies, and have been entertained with other events. "We challenged Oakmont Baptist Church Youth to a softball game one night, but it was rained out," one young man added. They recently attended a lecture on agriculture in this area and witnessed a tobacco auctioning which one of the New Yorkers described as "Really different from anything I've ever seen."

"Our work is going better than we expected. The people have really been helpful and everyone has been so nice," Michelle Marsh volunteered as she slapped another coat of paint on the rafters of an old house on Railroad St. "We like Greenville very much." When asked if she would define the group's work in Greenville as mission work, 14-year-old Gail Nalvan shrugged her shoulders and answered simply, "Not really, we're just helping some people who are in need."

clothing in the winter, near suffocation in summer, and rampant disease.

Dring tells of eating his victuals surrounded by smallpox victims and deciding to innoculate himself, a common practice for those who survived.

"On looking about me, I soon found a man in the proper stage of the disease, and desired him to favor me with some of the matter for the purpose," Dring recorded.

"The only instrument I could procure, for the purpose of innoculat on, was a common pin. With this, having scarified the skin of my hand, between the thumb and forefinger, I applied the matter and bound up my hand.

"The next morning I found that the wound had begun to fester; a sure sympton that the application had taken effect."

As for hunger, a Continental physician told of prisoners in Philadelphia scraping mortar and rotten wood from the walls to stay the final agonies of starvation.

The exact death toll will never be known, but enough bones were recovered to indicate at least 11,000 Americans died in the 13 British prison ships moored in Wallabout Bay off Brooklyn, N.Y.

Later in the war Americans soldiers were seldom sent to the ships, but Yankee seamen were crammed into them. In retaliation, Congress ordered British seamen interned on ships, where hundreds died.

Land prisons were little better. Thomas Stone was transferred from a ship to the infamous Sugar House prison in New York in 1778.

"We left the floating Hell with joy, but alas, our joy was of short duration," Stone recalled. "Not a pane of glass, nor even a board to a single window in the house, and no fire but once in three days to cook our small allowance or provision. Old shoes were bought and eaten with as much relish as a pig or a turkey.

"In the spring our misery increased; frozen feet began to mortify; by the first of April, death took from our numbers, and I hope from their misery, from seven to ten a day; and by the first of May out of 69 taken with me only 15 were alive."

Englishmen and tories suffered equal horrors in such American prisons as those planted in abandoned copper mines in Connecticut.

Both sides used prisoners for slave labor. Americans employed British and German prisoners as farm laborers, in saltworks and in munitions plants. Americans were used for forced labor in the East Indies or Senegal on the west coast of Africa.

There was an easy way out for Americans. All they had to do was renounce the American cause and fight for England. Most refused freedom at such a price.

The naval commissioner at Halifax grudgingly conceded that 300 Americans, "surrounded as they are by distress, they are deaf to every solicitude of taking the oath of allegiance of subscribing to any Act whereby they may be liberated."

Over 1,200 Yankees suffered out the war in English jails rather than renounce their country. England, Ben Franklin said, "ought to glory in descendants of such virtue."

Students Teach Special Fields

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — The term, educational alternatives, at Walt Whitman High in Bethesda, translates into "Okay, students, here's a chance to try your hand at teaching."

Youngsters with special knacks or knowledge and a yen for pedagogy teach predictable subjects, such as pottery and sailing, and surprising ones: Greek and Chinese languages and "How to Have a Great Time at the Races," a politely worded reference to betting the horses.

The race course teachers first introduced their 70 classmates to the history of the sport, including the evolution of various breeds. Using racing forms as teaching aids, they also taught handicapping, odds, and win-place-show betting.

Colony

Rustic design fuses indoor, outdoor living

BALCONIED BEDROOMS, ROOFED TERRACE INVITING FEATURES.

By Jerry Bishop

Dominant roof lines give way to subtle suggestions of relaxation offered by terrace and bedroom balconies in this striking contemporary split level.

The exterior, generously layered with red cedar shake shingles, blends with the natural surroundings, and windows admit ample natural light, while the floor plan carefully offers equal time for indoor and outdoor living.

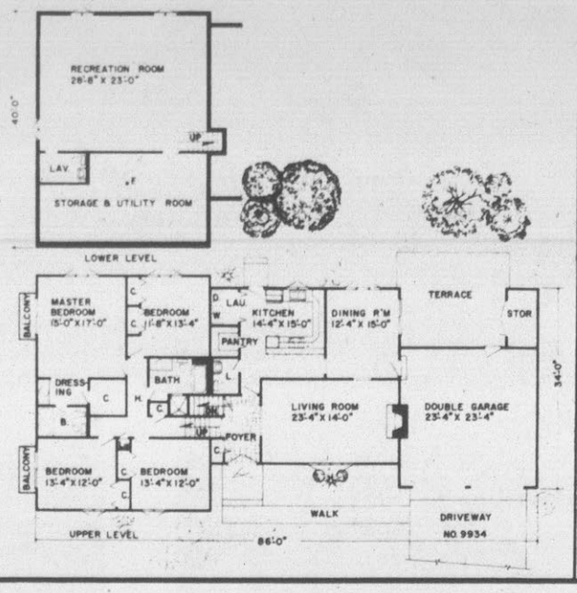

Entry is into a large tiled foyer with coat closet at left and living room at right. Located to discourage cross-traffic, the living room extends over 23 feet to climax in an enjoyable wood-burning fireplace, ideal for entertaining guests in an atomosphere of warmth. The dining room beyond is spacious and suited to formal or informal meals. Connected to the dining room by sliding glass doors is a roofed terrace, useful for barbecues and parties. The terrace also serves as a convenient covered play area for small children.

The kitchen complex is designed for efficiency and maximum use. Tucked into one corner is a laundry niche, bordered by a useful walk-in pantry. For snacks and breakfasts, a sizable breakfast bar is burnished. Other convenient features are the kitchen's rear entrance and the half bath only steps from the work area.

Four bedrooms, each remarkable large and well-closeted, are clustered on a separate level up from the foyer. The opulent master bedroom suite highlights the area, boasting a compartmented dressing area, walk-in closet, and a balcony reached via sliding glass doors. For convenience, the hall bath includes a separate bathtub and shower stall.

The lower level houses a storage and utility room, a half bath, and an immense, windowed recreation room. The design also pffers a large double garage and a lawn and garden supplies storage room off the terrace.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Getting rid of the rain that falls on the roof of a house is the job of gutters and downspouts. When they do not operate properly, the water collects at the foundation of the house, causing basement leaks, damaging plants and shrubbery, eroding soil and fostering dampness. Overflowing of the gutters, the result of clogging, can also send water under roof shingles and cause the rotting of fascia boards.

There are some areas in the country where gutters and downspouts are not mandatory provided that the roof overhang meets certain specifications. In many of these cases, home owners add the equipment at a later date after discovering that the overhang deposits the roof water into the ground just a little away from the house rather than very close to it, a somewhat dubious advantage.

How well water moves away from the bottom of a house depends on several factors, including how well the soil is sloped away from the structure and whether or not there is drainage tile around the base. In the former case, the slope moves the water away before it has much of a chance to sink immediately into the ground. In the latter, the water settles into the ground, falls into the tile (actually piping with openings at the top) and is carried away.

You can tell how well your gutter-downspout system is operating by observing it during a heavy rain. If the gutters are not overflowing and if water is pouring out of the downspouts into splash blocks and moving away from the bottom of the house quickly, you have no problems. Should the water come out of the bottom of the downspouts in a trickle, or not at all, the gutters and-or the downspouts are clogged, probably with leaves and other debris. The cleaning of the gutters must be done mostly by hand. This requires getting on a ladder and, with waterproof gloves, pulling out the junk. In some cases, the flushing action of a garden hose will help. This is a job not to be taken lightly by anyone not used to working with a ladder. Most roofers and many other professional handymen will undertake this chore for anywhere between $20 and $40 for an entire house.

If a gutter is not clogged but there is an overflow of water at a particular point, the chances are that the gutter is sagging. This occurs when the hanger holding it to the house has come loose. It can be renailed or, if necessary, replaced.

When a house is located in an area with a lot of leaf-shedding trees, gutters get clogged very often. In that event, it might pay to install or have installed one of several varieties of open-meshed wiring that runs along the length of the gutter. Even if this aid is not utilized, the tops of all downspouts should be fitted with leaf strainers. Even these need cleaning once or twice a year.

Leaks in metal gutters can be repaired by the use of any waterproof cement on the insides of the gutters where the opening is, but most persons merely use asphalt roofing cement. For large gaps in the metal, it may be best to use a patching kit that contains an epoxy mixture and what appears to be ordinary cloth but actually is fiber glass.

(The home handyman can get invaluable aid from Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — The woodwork in our dining room had been stained, but I was told that I could paint right over it. Luckily, I tried out a small area first and let it stand for a couple of weeks. Sure enough, despite what I had been told, the stain had bled through. I want to be sure when I do the entire woodwork that this doesn't happen again. How can I be sure?

A. — You were wise to make a test first, since even a professional sometimes has a hard time determining whether a particular stain will bleed through a particular paint. Even where it is somebody's judgment that the stain won't bleed, it can save a lot of trouble later on if a sealer is put on first. One of the best sealers is ordinary clear shellac, diluted about 50 per cent with denatured alcohol. To be really sure, apply one coat, wait a day and apply a second coat. Wait another day, then go ahead with the painting.

Q. — One of our basement windows permits the entry of water during a heavy rain storm. I have decided to close up the window entrance with glass blocks. However, I have discovered that, no matter what size glass blocks I get, they will not exactly fill the window opening. Several of the blocks will have to be cut. Can you tell me how to cut such blocks?

A. — Sorry. Cutting a glass block is a tricky job you should not attempt. There is another solution. Merely install a new frame around the window opening, one of a size that will take a specific number of blocks. To do this, you should decide first what size blocks you want to purchase, then determine how many will fit into the frame you intend to make. Be sure that you allow enough extra space for the mortar that is used to hold the blocks in place and make the joints waterproof. If you haven't done work of a similar nature in the past, get detailed instructions from the dealer who sells you the blocks.

Q. — We have an overhead garage door that works electrically. The other day I pushed the wall gadget that sends up the door just prior to backing the car out of the garage. The door went up, but what I did not notice was that it had not gone up all the way. When I backed the car out, the vinyl top slammed into the part of the door that hadn't gone all the way up. There was considerable damage to the top of the car, not serious from a safety standpoint but a large scraping mark was left there. Does my car insurance cover this?

A. — It depends on the kind of policy you have. Nobody can answer that question except your insurance broker or company.

Q. — What's the best way to cut gypsum wallboard so that smooth edges are left?

A. — Use a very sharp knife and a straightedge and slice through the outer paper on one side so that the cut also goes into the gypsum center. Hold the wallboard panel on a table or other flat surface so that the cut side is face up and runs along the edge of the table. Snap downwards. Now slice through the uncut side and the two pieces will separate. But you will never get a completely clean cut, so you must now smooth the two pieces with sandpaper or a rasp.

Wider Attention To 'Downtown'

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press International

New York City, for all its headlined problems, is a viable community; its downtown center alive with stores, museums, theaters and restaurants.

Its efforts to remain so may offer direction for many major U.S. cities where downtown areas have become "deserts of lifelessness almost anytime other than during office hours," in the words of one internationally known architect and city planner, Jacquelin T. Robertson.

Robertson noted major rebuilding programs designed to attract citizens back downtown are underway in such cities as Houston and Detroit, "attempts to restore life to areas which have in fact died."

President of Arlen Realty Corporation's planning and design group, and chief planner now for Shahestan Pahlevi, a major new city being developed on the outskirts of Tehran, Robertson was New York's first director of the Office of Midtown Planning and Development.

In the past five years, Robertson said, the thrust of the planning effort in New York has been to prevent the spread of single-use districts, such as the Wall Street financial community, a virtual ghost town after 7 p.m.

"If people live in the city, the streets are automatically policed, shopping is reinforced and downtown areas remain interesting for visitors," he said.

Buildings such as the new Olympic Tower in New York offer an alternative to the lifelessness which has killed the downtown areas of many American cities and now threatens many city centers in Europe and the Far East, says Robertson.

The Tower is owned jointly by Arlen and Victory Development Corp., the Aristotle-Onassis-owned company now controlled by Christina Onassis through family trusts. It is believed to be the first major building in the country built to a specific set of criteria which define how downtown areas work at their healthiest.

These criteria recognize the need to have people in the city around the clock, yet accommodate the burgeoning need for office space, Robertson said.

Olympic Tower, the city's first mixed-use building, comprises 52 stories, three cellars and Olympic Place, a block-long indoor park within the building structure on upper Fifth Avenue.

The first two floors are designed for retail shops, the next 19 contain corporate space, and the remainder house 230 luxury condominium apartments.

Developers of very expensive center-city land of necessity must seek the highest economic advantage or maximum return on investment from the land, Robertson said. No matter what the zoning restrictions, he said, this pressure has in the past and still today leads real estate companies to develop office buildings.

"When all that is built are office buildings, you have a prescription for the death of a city and slowly you destroy homes, apartments, and small neighborhood stores."

In addition, Robertson said, when office buildings proliferate in a single area, even large retail outlets and luxury boutiques are affected. "Statistics comparing the retail sales activities of upper and lower Fifth Avenue show the strength and survival of the luxury stores on upper Fifth Avenue directly related to the higher density of population in the surrounding area ... It is clear if the stores, theaters and restaurants are to survive in New York, the spread of single-use districts must be halted."

Consequently, he said, New York decided to offer incentives to real estate developers for erecting buildings which contributed to the life of the city. That is, the city offers builders bonuses, usually in the form of extra floors of office space, in return for including in the building residences and facilities that can be enjoyed by the public at large.

For instance, the public will benefit from Olympic Place. In essence an idea borrowed from Europe, the park extends a full block within the building. Rising to a height of three stories, it will be alive with trees, plants and a dramatic multilevel waterfall. There will be a patio restaurant, specialty shops and galleries.

What the cities need is a return to the principles which prevailed of necessity when the first urban centers were born — to provide people with multi-use buildings in which to live, to work and to shop.

Adding to the basic concepts the best of new ideas and design, Robertson said, can provide buildings with a character that spans the ages and provides an answer to life in a way that rehumanizes cities.

Preparedness Can Avert The Losses Of Bad Summer Storm

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Bad summer storms can put a crimper in a vacation. But big ones can cause serious problems. Tornadoes seem to pop up anywhere and hurricanes can be a threat.

People visiting shore points or vacationing in areas new to them should be especially alert — even some northeast points are showing tropical storm patterns. Those in mobile homes should be prepared to brace their homes if an emergency arises.

Fewer lives would be lost and there would be far less damage to property if people observed preparedness, civil defense groups caution.

Nowadays, long-range weather is predictable, giving people a head start. And the National Weather Service passes on its forecasts of weather patterns to civil preparedness groups who alert townspeople and provide material explaining how to cope.

For example, a recent Severe Weather Seminar called by the Connecticut Office of Civil Preparedness was planned to alert town representatives that the northeast might face a natural disaster that could approximate one that took the lives of more than 500 people in 1938.

Warm winters and hot summers indicate tropical storm patterns, a pattern that has been spotted on Long Island — a big vacation area — by meteorologists. This area suffered considerable damage in the 1938 hurricane.

Taken unawares, people as well as buildings were swept away in tidal waves. At one summer inn, owners, guests and employes were carried out to sea during the night.

In a way time breeds indifference because new generations have either forgotten about such disasters or they have never even experienced a mild hurricane, points out Weather Service Director George P. Cressman. It is one reason why the service, an agency of the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, has been providing urgent messages to coastal people in the last years, he says. Mexico, the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico have been involved in hurricanes. The northeast could be next.

What to do about hurricanes and tornadoes?

Acquire booklets or information containing hurricane and tornado safety pointers from local civil preparedness offices. In addition to that information, there are special booklets on lighting, flash flood, mobile homes.

In the event of a hurricane warning or watch acquire a supply of boards, tools, batteries, nonperishable foods and other equipment necessary for comfort.

If it is a hurricane watch (a threat within 24 hours) normal activities should be continued but radio or television for National Weather Service advisories should be left on. If there is a warning (a strike within 24 hours) monitor the storm's position through the advisories. Check all battery-powered equipment. A portable radio may become the only link with the outside world. Emergency cooking facilities and flashlights might be essential if utilities are interrupted. Have your car fully fueled.

Board windows or protect them with storm shutters or tape. Secure outdoor objects that might be blown away or damaged or bring them inside. (Chairs, tables, barbecues may even come flying through a window unless brought inside.)

Store drinking water — a town's supply may be contaminated or diminished by hurricane floods. (Run water in bathtubs, fill bottles for refrigerator, keep other containers of water in handy places.)

Leave low-lying areas when advised to do so. If you are in a mobile home, which is extremely vulnerable to high winds, leave it. If your home is sturdy and at a safe elevation, remain indoors during a hurricane.

Because hurricanes often cause severe flooding as they move inland, stay away from banks of rivers and streams.

Tornadoes are often spawned by hurricanes and are among the storm's lethal effects. When a hurricane approaches listen to radio and television for tornado warnings. Immediate action can save your life, the civil defense points out. Even if the sky is blue continue to listen to a battery-operated radio.

A tornado warning means it has been sighted or indicated by weather radar. Seek inside shelter (in a cellar or reinforced building) and stay away from windows. Curl up so your head and eyes are protected. The basement offers the greatest safety. Seek shelter under sturdy furniture. In homes without basements, take cover in the center part of the house on the lowest floor or in a small room such as a closet or bathroom or under sturdy furniture. Keep some windows open, but stay away from them.

If caught in an office building go to an east-facing or north-facing interior hallway on the lowest floor or to the designated shelter area. Keep away from south-facing rooms and windows.

In open country move away from the tornado's path at right angles. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest ditch or ravine.

Mobile homes are particularly vulnerable to overturning during strong winds. Damage can be minimized by securing trailers with cables anchored in concrete footings. Over-the-top and frame ties are suggested by the Department of Defense to keep the mobile home secure.

Q. Some of my tomato plants are dying, and I think the cause might be bacterial wilt. Is there any way that I can tell for sure? (R. R., Lenior)

A. Yes, there is a simple test for bacterial wilt. Take a sliver from the woody part of the tomato stem that shows browning. Fill a clear glass nearly full of clean water. Then place the sliver next to the inside of the glass at the water level. A milky stream can be seen running from the cut surface of the sliver in about five minutes if bacterial wilt is present. (Charles Averre, extension plant pathologist)

Q. How should I care for my gladiolus bulbs which have finished blooming? (Mrs. W. R., Candor)

A. Let the leaves die back. Then dig and cure in a cool dry place. Cut away tops and store in a room where they will not freeze during winter. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Is it necessary to have manure to start a compost pile? I have mainly grass clippings. (L. G., Charlotte)

A. No. You can make compost with any type or organic material—grass clippings, leaves, stalks and so forth. An application of lime and phosphate every 12 inches of partially decayed, settled material will hasten decay. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. What are snow peas? (G. F., Jacksonville)

A. Snow peas are edible podded green peas used widely in Oriental dished. Melting Sugar and Grey Sugar are two varieties that are widely available. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Real Estate

By Louis E. Clark, GRI
REALTOR

MOMENT OF TRUTH

The situation is this. Husband is transferred to a new job in another state. The family decided to sell their home. If it is not sold prior to the husband's departure, should the wife and children remain behind or accompany him to the new location and try to sell an empty house?

Speaking as a REALTOR — not a marriage counselor — I must advise that the choice will be a matter of finance versus emotions. Why?

Experience shows that an empty house is tougher to sell and brings less money. A house devoid of furniture loses its charm and appearance of livability. Scars and blemishes show up. Empty rooms look smaller without furniture.

On the average, an empty house will bring about 5 to 6 percent less. In some cases, discounts of up to 10 percent are not unusual. Also, selling time is longer for an empty house despite the paradox that the buyer can move in almost immediately.

George Clark Retires From Postal Service

George Clark of Greenville has retired as an employee of the U.S. Postal Service, effective July 31.

A native of Greenville, Clark graduated from Greenville High School in 1937 and was appointed substitute clerk-carrier of the Greenville Post Office in November, 1937. He entered the U.S. Army in June, 1942, and served overseas in North Africa with the Army Air Corps. He was discharged in 1945 with the rank of sergeant.

Clark returned to the postal service in 1946 and has served in such capacities as finance clerk and rural carrier.

At the time of his retirement, Clark was the local steward of rural carriers and vice president of the Tar River District North Carolina Rural Letter Carrier Association.

Congratulated For Zoo Gift

Pitt County 4-H'er Karen Talton was congratulated recently by William Hoff, N.C. Zoo Director, and Lt. Governor Jim Hunt, for Pitt County's 4-H contribution of $401.77 to the North Carolina Zoological Park near Asheboro.

The money was part of a statewide 4-H donation of $10,175 to pay for a pair of oryxes, a type of antelope from Northern Africa.

Grants Made To 17 N.C. Arts Projects

Almost half a million dollars in new grant money soon will be flowing into North Carolina arts endeavors from federal and local sources, Grace J. Rohrer, secretary of the Department of Cultural Resources has announced.

Impetus for the grant money comes for $202,303 awarded to 14 cities and organizations and three individuals by the National Endowment for the Arts. In most cases the grants are to be matched by the recipients.

The grants, of which the largest single one—$40,000 for a sculpture for a pedestrian mall went to the city of Raleigh—were brought about through the efforts of the North Carolina Arts Council. Of the 12 special "City Spirit" grants given by the endowment throughout the nation, one-fourth went to North Carolina. Durham, Winston-Salem, and Charlotte received $25,000 grants for their "City Spirit" proposals.

"City Spirit," a major bicentennial program of the endowment, is a new program with a goal of making the arts a part of the everyday life of a city, neighborhood, town, region or state.

Other grants were:

—Greensboro, N.C. Agricultural and Technical State University, $5,000 for the purchase of two or more works of living American artists.

—The North Carolina Arts Councils, $10,000 for hiring jazz artists to give programs in several North Carolina communities, and $15,000 for the production of two short documentary films on American folklore.

—Old Salem, Inc., Winston-Salem, $10,553 for an environmental renovation project.

—Alliance for Progress, Inc., Powellsville, $4,250 to promote the adaptation of the Gates County Courthouse as a cultural arts center.

—Western Carolina University, $2,000 to support a retrospective exhibition of photography by Doris Ulmann, and $2,500 for an exhibit of coverlets and musical instruments of Appalachia.

—Appalachian Consortium, Inc., Boone, $5,000 for a crafts exhibition.

—Appalachian State University, $2,500 for a quilt exhibition.

—Louise Bigmeat Maney, $5,000, for a craftsmen's fellowship grant.

—North Carolina Museum of Art, $10,000 for the purchase of two or more works of living American artists.

—Claudia Kuehnl, Penland, $5,000 for a craftsmen's fellowship grant.

Arts And Crafts Show Set For Pitt Plaza

An extravaganza of arts and crafts has been announced in Greenville for Friday and Saturday, September 12 and 13. The merchants of Pitt Plaza Mall, in conjunction with the Greenville Parks and Recreation Department, is sponsoring the show. J. Hilary Worthington has been named coordinator.

The two-day show will be situated throughout the mall, with artists and craftsmen coming in from nine states. Potters, weavers, sculptors, jewelry and leather craftsmen, painters and graphic artists will all be represented.

The public will be invited to talk to participating craftsmen and artists and to observe their techniques. Works of crafts and art will be for sale.

Hours scheduled for the show are from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Friday and from 9:30 til 7 p.m. Saturday. Artists and craftsmen of the Greenville area are invited to make application as participants. Entry blanks for the show are available from the Parks and Recreation Department (Elm Street office) and from Hungates Hobby Shop in Pitt Plaza. All media is accepted. Applications to participate are to be accompanied by a photo or slide of the type of work the artist does. Work will be juried by a panel of three artists before an artist or craftsman is accepted to take part in the show.

Chauncey To Attend Convention

Beatrice Chauncey, professor in the East Carolina University School of Music, will attend the annual convention of the National Flute Association in Milwaukee, Wis., August 15-17.

Several of Miss Chauncey's former students will also attend the convention and perform in convention sessions.

Nancy Neidlinger, who received the MA degree from ECU in 1973, will be a featured soloist at the convention. She was awarded the Doctor of Musical Arts degree from the University of Illinois earlier this year.

Marianne Reed, a 1975 Bachelor of Music graduate from ECU, was selected by audition tape to perform in a special convention master class to be conducted by Walfrid Kujala of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Also attending the convention will be Rie Davis, who received the MA degree in flute performance from ECU this past spring.

Depression Realism In Friday TV Film

Following last week's lighthearted musical, "Hooray For Hollywood" this week turns to an early thirties film of contemporary realism for its offering on Friday night at 9 p.m. over UNC-TV, Channel 25.

Directed by Frank Capra, American Madness stars Walter Huston, Pat O'Brien and Constance Cummings.

Writing in The Art of the American Film (in 1974), Charles Higham has this to say of American Madness: "(It) is the story of a banker (Walter Huston) whose most trusted employee (Gavin Gordon) aids a bank robbery and simultaneously attempts to seduce the banker's wife (Kay Johnson). After the robbery, performed by a master criminal, there is a run on the bank, its ruin narrowly avoided by the actions of the chief cashier (Pat O'Brien). Capra achieves with an extraordinary degree of realism the atmosphere of the bank . . . Important as an almost Warner-ish reflection of Depression attitudes, Riskin's script conveys with tough assurance the psychology of the executive class as exemplified by the board of directors . . . the film is persuasively and powerfully made.

Eastern Music Festival Ends 14th Annual Season

GREENSBORO—Eastern Music Festival ended its 14th season on August 2 on a revolutionary note, according to music director and founder, Sheldon Morgenstern.

"It was a fitting way to end the festival by having the Eastern Philharmonic Orchestra perform Shostakovich's 'Symphony No. 12,' a piece dedicated to the Russian revolution and specifically to Lenin. Musically speaking, it is a totally triumphant work.

"EMF is a quality organization and music patrons around the country are beginning to recognize that fact," believes the 36-year-old maestro. "Our students are the answer—each year they seem to be more serious and better performers."

Other EMF faculty members tend to concur with Morgenstern's assessments. Many return year after year to accept lower wages than they could earn elsewhere and also accept an extra number of services to be performed each week in order to participate in what is rapidly becoming one of the nation's most outstanding summer music camps, Eastern Music Festival.

EMF attracted 200 students this summer to participate in its unique program. They experienced the rigors of professional musicianship alongside faculty members drawn from the nation's leading orchestras and conservatories. They engaged in chamber music; in orchestral playing under resident maestro Robert Helmacy and a host of guest conductors; they participated in Project LISTEN, EMF's outreach program which takes music to the people of the Piedmont, in daycare centers, nursing homes, and even street corners.

Few Changes In Book Of Favorites

For millions of Americans, a paperback songbook with its familiar bright gold cover bordered with a ribbon framework of orange and black has been their introduction to the most memorable songs of America and of many foreign lands.

The Golden Book of Favorite Songs, little changed since it was first published 60 years ago, has been printed in 21 editions with a total sale of something like 14 million copies.

Children's songs, patriotic songs, songs about springtime, folk and Christmas songs, the songs of Stephen C. Foster, rounds and nursery rhymes, beloved hymns, Civil War songs and Negro spirituals, national anthems and love songs, even a few arias from operas, are all part of the more than 200 selections included in this songbook sub-titled "A Treasury of the Best Songs of Our People."

The Golden Book of Favorite Songs is truly a kaleidoscope of the diversity of America's musical heritage. It is rich in memorable songs from England, Wales, Ireland and Scotland — "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton," "Loch Lomond," "The Last Rose of Summer," "All Through The Night," "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," and "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

Colorful melodies of Spanish, Italian and Czechoslovakian origin are found in songs such as "Juanita," "Santa Lucia" and "Stodola Pumpa."

Then there's the lilting, joyous melodies that capture the refreshing spirit of the return of springtime with bird song and flowers, expressed in happy songs like "The Birds' Return," a Bohemian folk song, and in Sussmayer's "Tis' Springtime."

Words and music that inspired soldiers and the folks back home in the tragic days of America's Civil War include "Dixie," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," "Just Before the Battle, Mother" and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

The haunting, melodic, English song of World War I, "Keep The Home Fires Burning," is a 20th century confirmation that people will turn to music to give them hope even in their darkest hours.

Several of the finest songs of Stephen C. Foster — referred to in a biographical note as "the foremost composer of American songs of folk character" — appear in The Golden Book of Favorite Songs. Among these are "Old Black Joe," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Folks at Home," "Uncle Ned," and "Hard Times Come Again No More."

Because of it's continuing emphasis on songs that have stood the universal test of time, The Golden Book of Favorite Songs remains an ideal songbook for the singing public of all ages.

In the days when singing in school assemblies was part of national school life, when family and neighborhood song fests around the piano was part of a community's social fabric, "The Golden Book of Favorite Songs" was often used for these occasions.

Tucky Rodrigue, in public relations at Schmitt, Hall and McCreary Company of Minneapolis, publisher of The Golden Book of Favorite Songs, has graciously taken time to do research and provide information on what is known on the history of this long time favorite book of music.

"We still have several requests a week from people wondering if it is in print," she wrote. "Occasionally we receive mail addressed simply to the Gold Book Company, Chicago, Ill. That we should receive these letters is a credit to the Chicago post office for the old Hall and McCreary Company was sold and moved to Minneapolis about 18 years ago."

Generations of musicians from across the nation have served as editors for various editions over the years. The 12th edition, published in 1923, which Ms. Rodrigue notes "sold for 15 cents," had as editors John W. Beattie of Grand Rapids, Mich., William Breach, Winston-Salem, N.C., Mabelle Glenn, Kansas City, Mo., Edgar B. Gordon, Madison, Wisc., Ernest G. Hesser, Indianapolis, Ind., E. Jane Wisenall, Cincinnati, Ohio, and two Chicago men, Walter J. Goodell and Norman H. Hall.

Most of the editors were music teachers or directors in public schools or universities. Of the 1923 editors, Goodell was a composer-harmonist, and Hall at that time was Executive Secretary of the National Week of Song.

"Norman Hall was one of the original founders of the publishing company in 1901," Ms. Rodrigue informs. "Just as his products have enjoyed long life so has he. Last February 18th he passed his 103rd birthday in Evanston, Illinois.

"Apparently the book has always been just what people have wanted," Ms. Rodrigue notes. "Therefore, change is not at all likely, nor wise. Can you think of much else that has remained essentially the same for 60 years?"

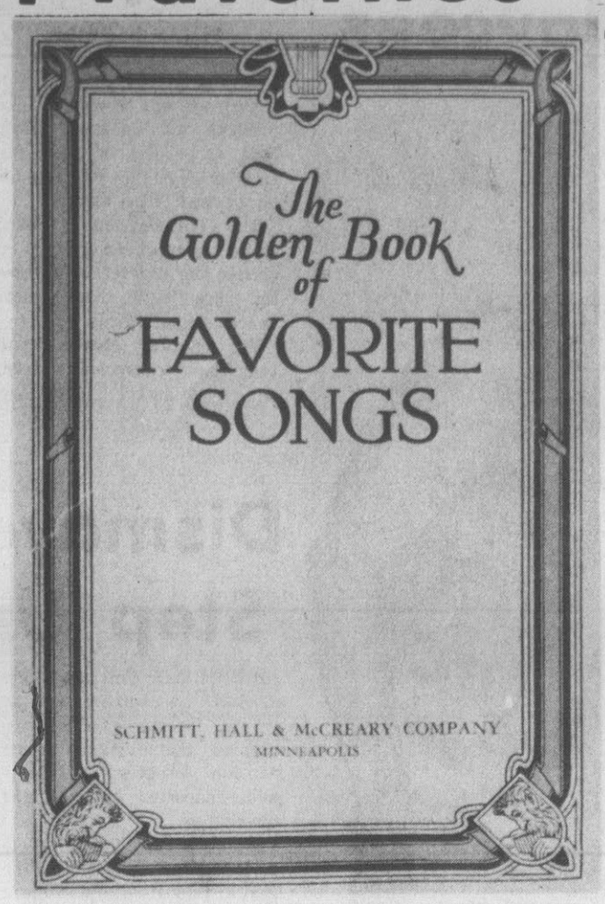

She added a personal observation. "I also grew up with this book. It wasn't until I was in graduate school that I realized 'Tramp, Tramp, Tramp' referred to the Civil War and not World War II!"

With the tremendous growth of packaged entertainment for Americans that has taken place in the past 20 years through records and television, it is perhaps true that The Golden Book of Favorite Songs does not have the widespread musical influence it once had on American singing.

Still, for all who cherish the ageless tradition of amateur singing, alone or in school or community group singing, The Golden Book of Favorite Songs will always hold a special place as a treasury of the music that people love to sing.

—Jerry Raynor

Editor's Note: The 21st edition of The Golden Book of Favorite Songs is currently available from Schmitt Music Center, Publications Division 110 North Fifth Street, Minneapolis, Minn., 55403. The price is 85 cents, plus 35 cents for handling charge and 18 cents for postage, for a total of $1.38 per single copy.

A SIMPLIFIED ARRANGEMENT . . . of Handel's "Largo" from the opera "Xerxes" is one of several arais from operas included in about 200 songs in "The Golden Book of Favorite Songs" which range from nursery rhymes to patriotic tunes.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By June Parker

Sheppard Memorial Library has three new fiction books that should be well-worth reading. The first book is Far Tortuga by Peter Matthiessen. It is written in a sparse, impressionistic prose that matches the starkness of the setting of the story itself. The story is of the last voyage of the schooner Lillias Eden. The setting is in the West Indies where all races and colors come together among the green-turtle fishermen. The book is primarily the dialectic conversations among the crew of the Lillias Eden of legends, sea tales, wrecks, witchcraft, and island lore. These conversations are set off by descriptive passages of the barren seascape—the reefs, the faded schooner, and the men themselves. The story is dominated by the captain, Raib Avers, whose temper and determination over the men and the boat finally bring them to their doom. The turtle season is almost over without success. The captain is determined to sail as far away as the mysterious, remote Far Tortuga in order to find the green turtles which no longer exist. This book is a haunting work of intense but lyrical impressions of human drama.

The second book is Shogun by James Clavell. It centers upon a Westerner in 17th century Japan. The central character is John Blackthorne whose ambition is to be the first Englishman to circle the globe. He plans to return home a rich man after getting control of the trade of China and Japan. As he tries to carry out his plans in Japan, he meets with Toranaga who is the most powerful lord in Japan. His desire to become Shogun, the supreme military dictator. With this power, he could unite the warring feudal sections under one leadership. This story of the two men's struggle for power is complicated by the intervention of love. Lady Mariko falls in love with Blackthorne. She is already torn between the loyalty she feels for her country and her love for Blackthorne who is a foreigner and to her, a barbarian. Clavell with this book has equalled his two previous best-selling novels, Tai-Pan and King Rat. It combines history with a good story to create this epic of the Orient.

The last book is The Eagle Has Landed by Jack Higgins. Here, he blends fiction with history to rebuild September and October of 1943 and a plot to capture Winston Churchill from the Norfolk country home where he was spending a quiet weekend near the sea. Fifty per cent of the novel is documented historical fact. In September 1943 after Mussolini's rescue from the Sports Hotel, Hitler shouted to Wilhelm Canarris, Chief of Military Intelligence, "You should be capable of bringing me Churchill out of England if I asked for it." This statement started a chain of events that ended on Saturday, November 6, 1943, when Heinrick Himmler, head of the SS and Chief of State Police, received a simple message, "The Eagle has landed." This message meant that a small force of German paratroopers were at that moment safely in England ready to attempt the capture. Higgins has set forth in this latest book an enthralling narrative of authentic characters and historical detail.

This Week's Children Films

Several short films are scheduled for showing in the children's summer festival of films series conducted by the libraries of Greenville.

For the coming week, three Marcel Marceau films and one on football are to be shown. Marceau, the famous French mime, will be seen in David and Goliath, Lion Tamer and Butterfly Chase. The films have a forward by Jean Cocteau.

They Call It Pro-Football depicts the early history of football to present day football with its fans, pageanty and players.

Show time for the films are: Tuesday, 4 p.m., Carver Branch Library; Wednesday, 3:30 p.m., the children's room at Sheppard Memorial Library; and Friday, 4 p.m., East Branch

A Child's Book On Safe Boating

SAFE MOTORBOATING FOR KIDS, By John Gabriel Navarra. Doubleday and Co., Inc., Garden City, N.Y., 64 pps. Illustrated. $4.95

This primer explains various parts and functions of motor smallcraft as safely utilized by a boy, ten year old Michael Long. Nautical nomenclature is blended with generalized safe boating procedures, and a nautical dictionary follows a final section on weather, aids to navigation, and coastal warning displays.

The opening paragraph wisely points out that safe boating begins before getting under way—a fact often forgotten by adults. Very brief and introductory explanations of propellors, marine engines, rudders, fire extinguishers, ventilators, running lights, whistles, bells, charts, anchors and lines are each accompanied by at least one black and white photograph of the item being discussed.

Intermingled with pictures of objects are photos of young Mike involved in the processes of fueling, lubricating the engine, and pumping the bilges. All explanations are very brief and serve only to make the reader aware that good, safe motorboating does not occur by accident.

The author, a former professor at East Carolina University, combined his talents with those of his photographer wife Celeste to produce this book for children.

It appears to be the type of publication a boy or girl would not read for pure pleasure but rather one which could be shared by parents and children alike as the young family enters the leisure pursuit of, hopefully, safe boating.

6th Century Nuns In Novel

By JOAN BRUNSKILL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "My publishers were rather appalled when I said my book was about nuns in 6th-century Gaul," said Julia O'Faolain, the Irish writer, talking about her new novel, "Women in the Wall."

Prospective readers need not be daunted. Miss O'Faolain soon won the publishers over to her strong conviction that she'd hit on something that would interest a great many people today — not only women — as much as it interested her.

Miss O'Faolain has given much time and study to the role of women. "But I'm not preaching in this novel," she says. "I get interested in an idea and then I write a story about it."

Miss O'Faolain is married to Lauro Martines, a University of California at Los Angeles historian, and worked with him on an earlier book, "Not in God's Image," a history of women in Western civilization from the Greeks to the Victorians. Their research involved "looking for women's voices" in documents through the ages, avoiding literature because that often gives a fanciful rather than a realistic picture of a period.

Before the 14th century, because of the predominance of literacy among clerics, the voice of woman most frequently left in historical records is that of the nun. In the course of her research Miss O'Faolain's attention was caught by a period she'd never had occasion to study in detail before, the 6th century, and in particular by two illuminating accounts of the life and times of Radegunda, foundress of a convent in Gaul. Radegunda became the protagonist of "Women in the Wall," the work of fiction based on these historical facts.

Greenville Native Co-author Of Education Textbook

Greenville native Martha Pierce Schien and her husband, Bernard Schien, have co-authored an education textbook that is just now coming off the press. The book is Open Classrooms In The Middle Schools.

Mrs. Schien, a 1958 graduate of Rose High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Pierce, formerly of Greenville, now living near Morehead City.

A graduate of Duke University, she has also worked on her master's degree in journalism. As a high school student in Greenville, Martha was a summer time worker at "The Daily Reflector." Her husband is a native of Beaufort, S.C.

On a recent visit to Greenville, Mrs. Schien talked briefly about the book she and her husband have written. "It's a practical book on how to implement the principles of open education for students in middle schools," she said. "It is not a work on the theory of teaching, but is one designed for working in the field of open education." She pointed out it is written in a simplified manner, without annotations and footnotes.

Currently, the husband-wife author-teaching team are teaching at Paideia School in Atlanta, Ga. "We're both involved in teaching classes of multi-age students, mostly in the 12 to 14 age range," Mrs. Schien stated.

They are the parents of two daughters, eight year old Lara, and Maggie, now five months old.

Open Classrooms In The Middle Schools is published by the Parker Publishing Company, Inc., West Nyack, N.Y., 19004, and is available directly from the publishers at $8.95.

Championship Wrestling Sponsored By Jaycees

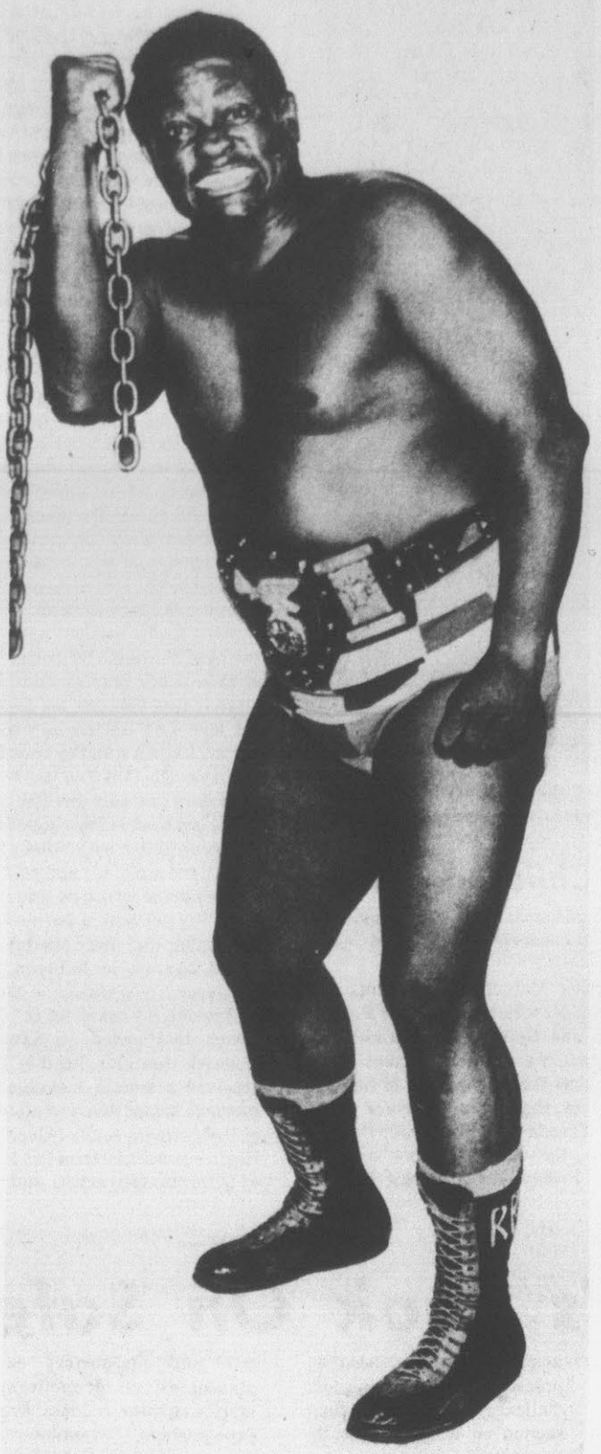

Guy Smith Stadium will be the site for an evening of Mid-Atlantic Championship Wrestling on Tuesday, at 8:15 p.m. The card is being sponsored by the Jaycees for benefit projects.

Ric Flair, the Mid-Atlantic TV Champion, and Johnny Valentine, the United States heavyweight champion, combine their tactics in the main event to go against the two-some of Rufus R. Jones and Tim Woods, the former "Mr. Wrestling."

Tim Woods is pitted against Johnny Valentine and Rufus R. Jones will square off with Ric Flair in a one fall-bout with an hour's time limit.

Professor Boris Malenko, a veteran, tangles with Charlie Cook in the semifinal bout. Singles action has Klondike Bill going against Brute Bernard. Other singles action has Danny Miller taking on Art Nelson. The opening bout has Bob Bruggers facing Steve Keirm.

Tickets will be available at the gate prior to performance time at $3.50 for general admission and $4.00 for ringside. Admission for children under 12 is $1.50 (no ringside seats for children). Also, advance tickets are available from any Jaycee or from coordinator John Dilday by telephoning 752-5106 or 756-7289 after 6 p.m.

RUFUS R. JONES. . .is one of a dozen wrestlers scheduled to appear on the varied card of a Mid-Atlantic Championship wrestling benefit sponsored by the Jaycees. The event will take place at Guy Smith Stadium Tuesday at 8:15 p.m.

Delay In Work By Prisoners

RALEIGH (AP)—Legislative leaders complained Friday that Gov. Jim Holshouser has stifled a plan to put prison inmates to work on the state's highways.

At a meeting of the Legislative Services Commission, composed of legislators who handle matters that come up between sessions, it was agreed to pressure Holshouser on the matter and suggest solutions to the problem.

At issue is a law that took effect July 1 calling for 1,000 minimum security prisoners be put to work cleaning up the highways. The inmates are to be paid $1 a day, but the General Assembly didn't provide any funds for the program.

Holshouser's office responded Friday by saying that the problem was caused by the legislature because it didn't appropriate money for the program.

Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, accused Holshouser of "playing politics and dragging his feet." Ramsey also said, "He's not going to settle the problem. Hell, he is the problem."

Among sources of funds suggested by the commission were the secondary roads maintenance fund and the highway contingency and emergency funds.

The controversy erupted last month when Corrections Secretary David L. Jones said the program couldn't be implemented because no funds were provided to pay the inmates. Jones is a Holshouser appointee.

Investigation At Standstill

RALEIGH (AP) — After a much-heralded beginning seven months ago, the North Carolina Justice Department's probe of an alleged political slush fund within Southern Bell has come to a standstill.

Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten says he will wait until federal investigations are complete before deciding whether state laws may have been violated.

Edmisten said he was told by U.S. attorney Keith Snyder that the federal government would turn over information to him for use in any prosecution of state law violations.

"I don't think it would serve a useful purpose to be up here in court while Snyder is doing the same thing before a grand jury," Edmisten said. "We could interview some people but that would mean spending hundreds of hours of manpower and that would be useless."

204 Loans Approved By FHA In FY 74-75

The Pitt County office of the Farmers Home Administration approved 204 rural housing loans during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1975.

The housing loans totaled $4,202,370.

FHA approved 144 farm operating loans which totaled $2,049,700, and five farm ownership loans amounting to $193,570.

Three association or group type loans were approved during the year. The amount was $1,116,000. The loans were made to: Town of Winterville, $66,000; Eastern Pines Fire Department, $50,000; Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District, $1,000.

A total of 1,212 individuals borrowed money from the Pitt County FHA during the year and a total of 3,500 families were served.

The estimated amount added directly to county tax base, including an estimated amount used for equipment purchases and real estate improvements, was $6,000.

The outstanding principal indebtness as of June 30 was $22,859,270.

September Vacations Cheaper

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will be able to take package air vacations after Sept. 13 for less or about the same price as they now pay for air transportation alone.

The Civil Aeronautics Board on Friday approved one-stop inclusive tour charters with rules far more liberal than present charter requirements.

The one-stop charters will provide air transportation from one city to another, hotels during the vacation, baggage handling and related ground transportation. They may also be offered with other items.

The charters will be organized by independent tour operators and sold directly by them. There is no requirement that purchasers belong to any organization or social club.

The charters will cut the cost of air vacations drastically in some instances.

Examples prepared by American Airlines showed that travelers could go from New York to Honolulu on a charter flight and stay seven nights for as little as $361. The regular coach air fare for that trip is $550.

A Dallas to Brussels charter flight might cost as little as $437 compared to $804 for coach fare alone now.

Charter flights are much cheaper than scheduled flights because they operate only with full passenger loads. The scheduled airline flights normally have only about 55 per cent of their seats filled.

The new charters do have several restrictions. One-stop charter trips to places within the 50 states, Mexico, Canada and the Caribbean must be at least four days long. The minimum length outside North America will be seven days.

The price will be based on each passenger's share of the cost of chartering the plane plus $15 for each night's stay for adults and $7.50 per night for children under 12 accompanied by an adult.

Passengers will be required to purchase their tickets in advance of departure and the tour operator and airline doing the chartering must file a list of passenger's names with the CAB at least 15 days before departure on North American charters and 30 days on all others.

The board also approved similar reduced fares for special events, such as the Super Bowl. The flights could leave no more than 36 hours before or after the event.

The board's order was challenged immediately by Trans World Airlines. TWA asked a federal appeals court in New York to overturn the new rules, saying the CAB had overstepped its authority.

TWA's profits have fallen recently and the existing charter fares have gotten some of the blame.

Dismayed Over Order To Step Up Desegregation

RICHMOND, Va.(AP)—State officials have expressed dismay at the federal government's warning that Virginia must step up desegregation of its public-supported colleges and universities.

A progress evaluation led to the letter from an official of the Health, Education and Welfare Department to Gov. Mills Godwin on Friday.

The letter said the evaluation had brought the department to the conclusion that Virginia has in many instances failed to implement, and in others only partially fulfilled, the specific commitments made in a state plan submitted last year.

Dewey E. Dodds, regional director of the Office for Civil Rights of the HEW, added in the letter that his office was left with no alternative but to conclude that violations of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 still exist in Virginia's public colleges and universities.

Dodds warned that unless a series of directives are met, "enforcement action will be initiated against the Commonwealth..."

The plan Dodds referred to was accepted in June 1974 after being submitted by Godwin's administration.

Godwin initially shouldered the burden when he served as governor in the 1960s. He then passed it on to his successor, former Gov. Linwood Holton. The matter went unresolved during Holton's administration and was tossed back into Godwin's lap when he assumed his second term in 1974.

Dodds noted in the 48-page document that his office had accepted the June 1974 plan for desegregating Virginia colleges and universities "in the belief that it contained a process by which significant desegregation could be achieved by the Commonwealth of Virginia over a period of years."

A spokesman for the State Council of Higher Education, which has the responsibility for administering a college desegregation plan, said, "We're dismayed."

Friday's letter was the most recent and the most threatening of a number of letters sent by HEW to Virginia since it first directed the state to develop a college desegregation plan in 1969.

HEW gave Virginia a number of directives to follow and allowed 60 days to meet them. Among the directives were:

—Describe the types of assistance the council has provided and will provide to the traditionally black institutions in program development and how existing programs can be made more attractive to white students.

—Take steps to see that courses in an Urban Studies Cooperative Program can be offered at Norfolk State College and Old Dominion University during the 1975-76 academic year.

—Developed detailed guidelines on the racial impact of all eductional policy decisions in the areas of academic programs, facilities and establishment of new institutions.

Wants To Block Part Of Interstate 95

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A group of Fayetteville businessmen has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to block construction of a 17-mile stretch of Interstate 95 bypassing downtown Fayetteville.

The stretch is the last section of Interstate 95 not committed for construction in North Carolina. Construction of an unfinished section near Wilson is due to begin next month.

The businessmen will argue that the state should have asked the U.S. Department of Transportation to prepare an environmental impact statement before approving the project.

The statement was prepared by state transportation officials. Recently, a federal appeals court in New York ruled that state-prepared environmental impact statements did not meet the requirement of the National Environmental Policies Act.

The businessmen have been fighting the proposed bypass for nine years, fearing it will divert business from the downtown section.

They estimate a $40 million loss if the bypass is completed.

Interstate 95 is a major north-south artery for tourist traffic from the northeast to Florida.

The appeal to the Supreme Court came after the U.S. 4th Circuit of Appeals in Richmond, Va. upheld a district court ruling that state-prepared environmental impact statement was sufficient.

The high court will decide in October whether to hear the case.

Tug Waits For Ice Floe To Move It

WAINWRIGHT, Alaska (AP) — The giant tug Warrior is like an olive in a martini glass trying to find a moving room between ice cubes. With about as much success.

The Warrior and its two huge barges arrived at this Eskimo village at the top of the world July 24 on their way to the North Slope oil fields from Puget Sound.

"This ice isn't going to melt or disintegrate," says Warrior skipper Thomas R. LeLa Hunt. "The ice has to move and that's not going to happen until we get the right wind."

Meanwhile, the Warrior and its barges and the remainder of a 10-mile flotilla of ships carrying 160,000 tons of oil field cargo wait 260 miles short of their destination.

Some of the vessels wait to the south for the situation to improve. All told, there are 23 tugs and 47 barges with 184 crew members on the way to the oil fields. Their cargoes, modules up to 10 stories high, create an alien skyline along the flat arctic horizon.

Fresh food is in short supply, books and magazines are becoming well worn and there has been only one mail-call during the wait for the ice to move. There won't be a restocking until the flotilla reaches Prudhoe Bay.

One of the big concerns is the cables between the tugs and the barges they are towing. The Warrior, a $2 million, 9,000-horsepower supertug, pulls two 400-foot-long barges. Between them is 2,700 feet of 2⅛-inch cable.

Miracle Hole Vaults Nicklaus Into Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus contrived a minor miracle of a par on the 16th hole, swept past faltering Bruce Crampton and Hale Irwin and, with a strong, three-under-par 67, vaulted into a four-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the 57th PGA National Championship.

Nicklaus, gunning for his 16th major championship, cradled his blond head between his forearms, then saluted the massive gallery with a wave of his putter after his one-putt heroics on the famed "Monster" hole.

At 625 yards, it is the longest of all the long, leg-wearying acres that make up the famed, 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club course.

He made a five, a par, after hitting his tee shot unplayable, throwing his third into deep rough behind an elm tree then, boldly, flirting with trees and a small pond, flying his fourth to the green. Then he made a 30-35 foot, downhill par putt that left him in firm command going into Sunday's final round of this last of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness.

It may have been the key hole of the golf tournament. As late as his fourth shot he was looking at a probable bogey—at best—and possibly much worst. He walked away with his imposing lead intact.

Nicklaus, who started play on the warm, sunny day four strokes back of Crampton, finished with a 54-hole total of 205, five under Firestone's demanding par and just one shot away from the all-time record for this tournament.

Crampton, the 39-year-old Australian veteran who established the 36-hole lead with his record 63, stumbled to a 75 but remained the only other man under par with a 209 total, four back of Jack and one under.

He and Irwin, a two-time winner this season who is gunning for a spot in the front rank of the game's greats, opened the gate for Nicklaus' move with their scrambling disasters early in the day.

Crampton's fall came by degrees. He bogeyed the 5th, 6th, 7th, 9th and 10th holes, a slow, gradual, agonizing decline that let Nicklaus make up eight shots in 10 holes.

Irwin's blew his chances with the speed of summer lightning. He took a horrendous, triple-bogey seven on the sixth hole, dropping from three under par to even.

His poor drive put him behind a tree. He tried to cut his second shot, with his driver, around the tree. But he hit it unplayable. After his penalty drop, he pitched his fourth short of the green. The shocked young man, the 1974 U.S. Open champion, reached the green in five and two-putted for the seven that all but killed his once-hopeful chances.

He finished with a 73 and 210.

Tom Weiskopf scrambled his way to a round of par 70 that included three birdies and as many bogeys. He was at 211 for the tournament, one over and six back of Nicklaus, the man he beat in a playoff for the Canadian Open title.

"I'm not out of the tournament," said Long Tom, "but it would take an awful good round to beat him now."

He was tied with Ed Dougherty, a rookie tourist who has been playing the game only six years. Dougherty had a 72-211.

No one else appeared to be within striking distance on the Golden Bear, the game's most famed and feared competitor and the man who seems to reach his peak, time after time, year after year, in the game's major championships.

"Man," the tired, disgusted Trevino proclaimed, "I cut enough hay out there to feed all the cows in Texas."

Arnold Palmer, who at 45 still lacks just this one major title in his two-decade career, shot a 73 and was out of it at 218.

Johnny Miller failed to make the cut for the last two rounds.

Nicklaus made his first move just as Crampton began to back up and completed it about the time Irwin was making his killing seven.

Crampton bogeyed the fifth from a bunker, then missed the green on the next two and failed to get it up and down. Both were bogeys. He managed a par on the next, but was bunkered on the next two and bogeyed them.

"Human inefficiently" the dour, grim-faced Crampton said. "I'm a human being, not a machine."

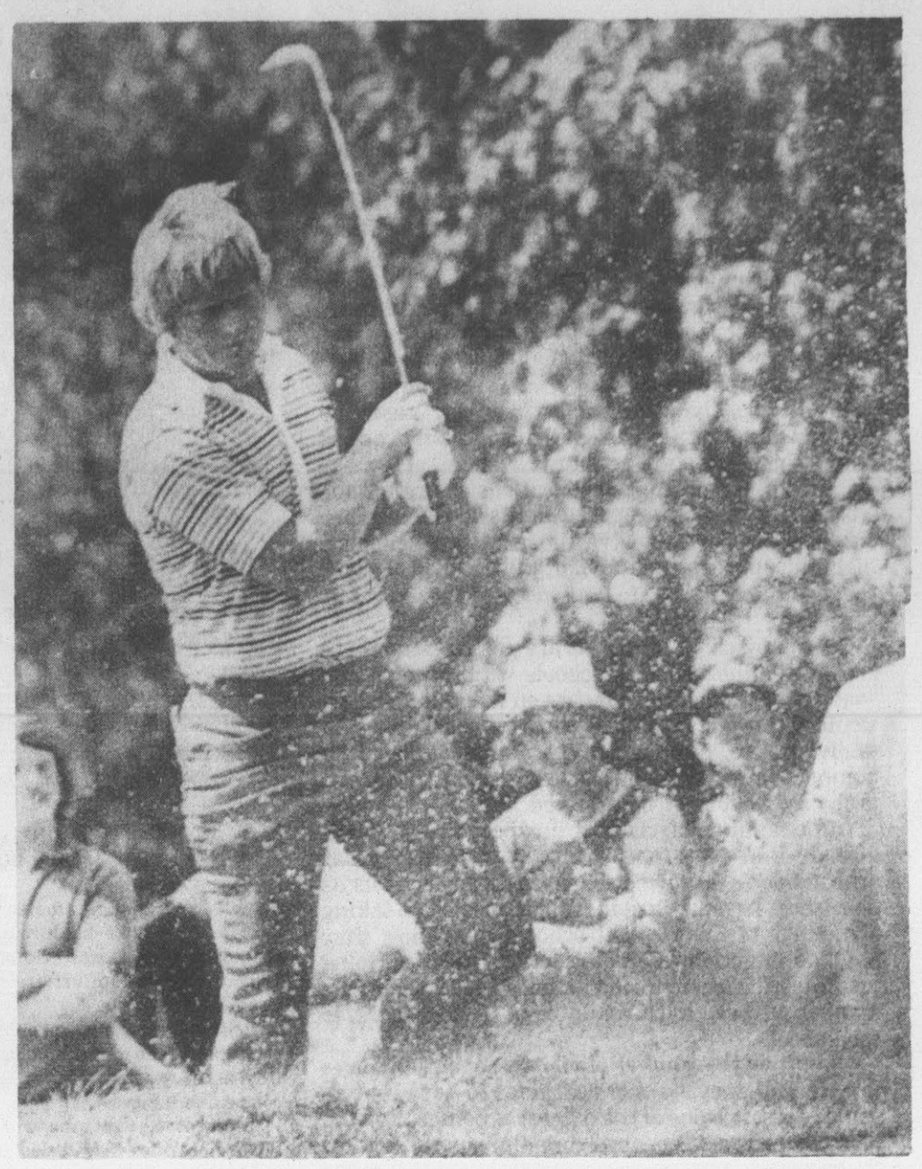

Nicklaus, playing in the same threesome with him, reached the par five second with two big shots and two-putted for birdie. He birdied the next after his gorgeous approach left him only a three-foot putt.

Nicklaus, however, bogeyed the fifth from a bunker—the third day in a row he's lost a stroke there—but holed a 10-footer for birdie on the seventh hole and hit his approach within inches on the 10th. That put him eight strokes up on Crampton in a space of 10 holes.

Jack also birdied the 13th from 12 to 15 feet, then salvaged his dramatic par on the 16th.

He bogeyed the 18th, three-putting, well after the national television cameras had ended their coverage for the day.

It really didn't seem to matter. It just cut his lead from five strokes to four. And a four stroke margin, held by Jack Nicklaus, in one of the game's most important tournaments, is a very impressive lead indeed.

JACK POPS ONE FROM THE SAND—Jack Nicklaus watches his ball as he hits from the sand along the fifth green at Firestone Country Club in Akron Saturday, during the third round of the PGA Tournament. Nicklaus took a bogey on the par-three, 230-yard hole, but went on to take a four-stroke lead in the tournament. (AP Wirephoto)

Tigers Drop 14th Straight

DETROIT (AP) — Dave Goltz fired a five-hitter and Glenn Borgmann singled home a fourth-inning run Saturday to give the Minnesota Twins a 1-0 victory over Detroit and extend the Tigers' losing streak to a team-record 14 consecutive games.

The loss, coming on Detroit Manager Ralph Houk's 56th birthday, surpassed the Tigers' longest previous losing streak of 13 games, set in 1920 and tied in 1953.

Mickey Lolich, 10-12, making his 500th career appearance, pitched a strong game only to lose his seventh straight. He allowed six hits in his sixth successive complete game.

Eric Soderholm doubled and John Briggs walked in the fourth before Borgmann delivered his decisive two-out single to right.

Goltz, 9-10, was in command all the way en route to his first shutout of the year. The only hits off him were singles—by Ben Oglivie in the second inning, Willie Horton in the fourth, Aurelio Rodriguez in the fifth—the 1,000th hit of his career—Bill Freehan in the seventh and Dan Meyer in the ninth. Goltz struck out six and walked two.

Lopes Steals Record; Dodgers Down Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Lopes set a major league base-stealing record, Burt Hooton hurled a three-hitter and Lee Lacy singled home a sixth-inning run to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 2-0 victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

Lopes stole his 31st and 32nd consecutive bases in the nationally televised game to surpass the record of 31 established by Max Carey of the 1922 Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lopes' second steal, his 51st of the season—tops in the National League—also helped to build the Dodgers' other run in the eighth. He led off with a single, was bunted to second by Lacy, stole third and scored on a wild pitch by Jerry Koosman, 10-10.

Lopes, who had equalled Carey's record with a first-inning steal, drilled a one-out double down the left field line in the sixth and scored when Lacy bounced a single between third and short.

Hooton, 9-9, posted his third straight victory. He allowed a leadoff single to Del Unser in the first, a one-out double by Jerry Grote in the fifth and a leadoff single by Felix Millan in the ninth.

The shutout was the third of the season for Hooton, who is 9-7 since the Dodgers acquired him from the Chicago Cubs early in the season.

Grote was one of only two Mets to reach third base against him. He was stranded when Koosman struck out. The only other New York runner to get that far was Ed Kranepool, who drew a two-out walk in the fourth. He went to third when shortstop Bill Russell let Rusty Staub's grounder go through his legs for an error, but center fielder Jimmy Wynn flagged down Wayne Garrett's long fly ball to end the inning.

Hooton's second pitch of the game was stroked into left by Unser, but he was immediately wiped out on Millan's double-play grounder. Hooton then retired the Mets in order until Kranepool's walk.

Homers Pace Rangers, 4-2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Roy Howell and Jeff Burrough slugged home runs Saturday to lead the Texas Rangers to a 4-2 victory over Milwaukee, handing the Brewers their sixth straight defeat.

The Rangers jumped on Tom Hausman, 3-4, for a pair of runs in the third inning. Howell led off with his 10th homer of the season and with one out, Dave Moates singled and Len Randle doubled him home.

Milwaukee got a run back off Ferguson Jenkins, 14-12, in the fifth on Sixto Lezcano'a ninth homer but Texas opened a 4-1 lead in the eighth on Mike Hargrove's double and Burroughs' 21st homer.

The Brewers got their other run in the bottom of the eighth when Bobby Mitchell singled, took second on a walk, moved to third on a sacrifice and came home on George Scott's grounder.

Rosewall, Connors Advance To Finals

By KARL SWANSON
Associated Press Writer

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (AP) — Ken Rosewall twice had to win tiebreakers Saturday to defeat fiery Ilie Nastase and gain the final of the $100,000 international pro tennis tournament against top-seeded Jimmy Connors.

Connors, meanwhile, registered a surprisingly easy 6-4, 6-4 triumph over defending champion Rod Laver in Saturday's other semifinal.

Rosewall's semifinal match against Nastase was a rough one. The two traded leads and tempers often flared before more than 9,000 alternately cheering and booing spectators, but Rosewall finally emerged on top 7-6, 1-6, 7-6.

Nastase opened with deadly serves, taking the first two games. But Rosewall, not to be denied, fought back to capture the set. Nastase lost the first game of the second set and then mixed asides with the fans and officals before reeling off six straight games.

The Romanian also took the first game of the third set before Rosewall recovered to take three straight. In the tiebreaker, Nastase looked like a winner with five straight points, but Rosewall was able to shut him off to win 7-5.

But that outburst, he said later, was the turning point.

In the first semifinal, both Connors and Laver started slowly on the clay court which had only had one night to dry after a heavy rain Friday.

It was the first meeting between the two stars since their challenge match in Las Vegas, in which Connors won 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5 to take a $100,000 prize. But before Saturday's event, both Laver and Connors said they considered their semifinal here not as a rematch but only as a road to winning the tourney.

Laver, who turned 37 Saturday, was greeted with a cry of "Happy Birthday, Rod!" when he stepped on the court to begin play.

The 15-year gap between the two players' ages appeared to be the difference in the second set.

They traded baseline shots throughout the match, with Connors often following his return to the net. In the final half of the second set, Connors showed his top form, dropping in lobs and racing across court to return shots that destroyed Laver.

Looking ahead to the final, Rosewall said the wet clay courts should give him an advantage by slowing Conners' aggressive game. Sunday's winner will take home a $20,000 first prize and a new car.

The tournament is sponsored by Volvo and the Mt. Washington Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Braves Top Cubs

ATLANTA (AP) — Knuckleballer Phil Niekro hurled the final inning of a suspended game Saturday night as the Atlanta Braves trimmed the Chicago Cubs 6-2, completing a game halted by curfew after eight innings on June 12. Niekro then started the regularly scheduled game.

Pitcher Carl Morton worked the first eight innings, yielding six hits, and delivered a two-run double that highlighted a three-run eighth.

Atlanta got an unearned run in the first, scored in the third when Morton singled and scored on Marty Perez' double and got a run on a bases-loaded walk in the fifth. An error gave the Cubs their first run and Rick Monday homered in the sixth.

Bosox Blast Way To Win

OAKLAND (AP) — Denny Doyle, Cecil Cooper and Carlton Fisk homered to pace an 11-hit Boston attack that powered the Red Sox to a 7-2 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Bill Lee, 15-6, yielded five hits in seven innings, including Sal Bando's two-run homer in the seventh. Dick Drago worked the last two innings and the Red Sox won for the 26th time in their last 34 games.

Doyle and Cooper hit consecutive homers off loser Sonny Siebert, 5-5, in the third inning when Boston scored four runs for a 5-0 lead.

Fisk, who singled home Boston's first run in the second inning following Fred Lynn's single and stolen base, hit a two-run homer off Glenn Abbott in the fifth.

The A's scored in the seventh inning when Joe Rudi singled and Bando lined his ninth home run of the season over the left field fence.

It was the first victory of the season for Boston in Oakland. The Red Sox had lost four in a row here, three this season.

Donna Young Takes Title

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Donna Young holed a 60-yard chip for an eagle two at Sunningdale's 11th hole Saturday and went on to win the European Women's Open golf title.

The 30-yar-old professional from Los Angeles finished the 72-hole tournament with a total of 283, 13-under-par. She won a first prize of $11,000.

Sandra Palmer of Dallas was second, two strokes behind at 285. Chako Higuchi of Japan was third on 289.

Mrs. Young and Miss Palmer were racing neck and neck for the title when the Los Angeles golfer made the shot of the tournament at the 295-yard 11th hole.

Her tee shot was right in the middle of the fairway and came to rest on sloping ground.

"It was a downhill lie, and I thought it looked rather tough," Mrs. Young said. "I played it with a sand wedge and it went in the hole. I just couldn't believe it."

When the ball dropped in, she danced around in the fairway. and hugged her caddie.

"I was just like a schoolkid out there," she said. "I was so excited I had to tell myself to calm down and take it easy.

"I was still shaking when I got to the 12th green. Otherwise I might have had another eagle there."

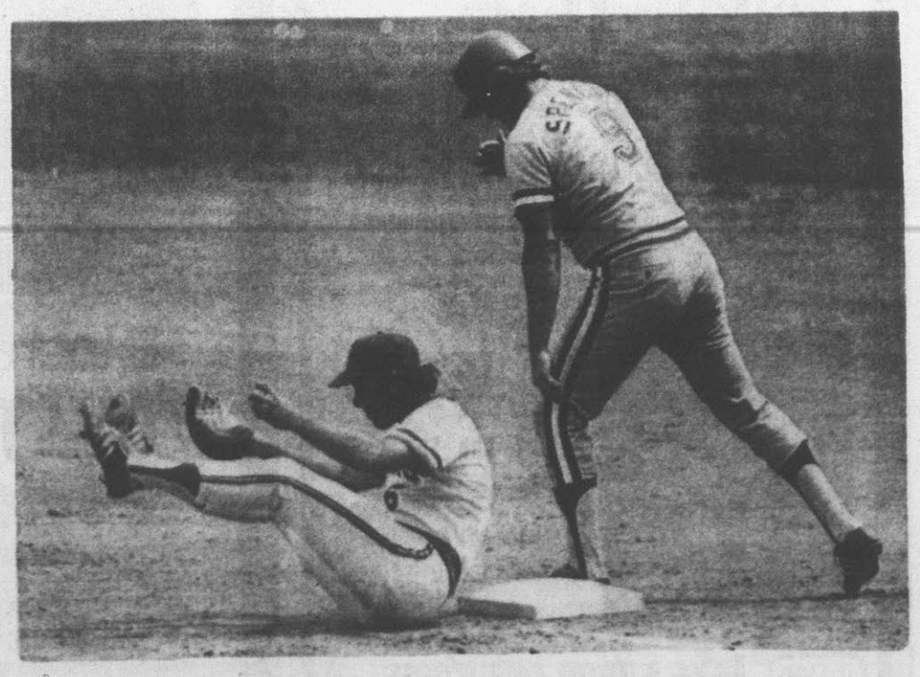

But she missed a 10-foot putt at the 12th and had to make do with a bridie.

Sunningdale's 6,174-yard, par 36-38—74 course played slower after a night of rain. Mrs. Young finished the tournament by shooting a four-under-par 70. Miss Palmer, who started the day two strokes in front, shot 74.

Joanne Carner of Lakeworth, Fla., in the same group with Mrs. Young, was gunning for the title until the dramatic 11th hole. But as Mrs. Young made her eagle, Mrs. Carner had a par four, and she followed that with bogeys at the 12th and the 13th, and a double-bogey seven at the 14th. She was never in contention again.

Miss Higuchi had a three-under-par 71 and edged Mrs. Carner for third place by one stroke.

Gerda Boykin, 37-year-old German player, who lives at Conroe, Tex., set a women's record for the Sunningdale course with a round of 67. She had a remarkable run of birdies on the last five holes but had some high scores in the earlier rounds and finished in a seventh-place tie at 292.

Mark Donohue Turns New Talladega Mark

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Sports Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Mark Donohue won a gamble against rain and wind Saturday and bettered the world's closed-course speed record with a blistering lap at 221.120 miles per hour in a machine that will never race again.

Donohue used a Can-Am style Porsche 917-30 equipped with a 1,100-horsepower, 12-cylinder, five-liter engine in the attempt that broke A.J. Foyt's old mark of 217.854 m.p.h.

Donohue announced that the Porsche would now be turned out as strictly a show car, and any future attempt he might make for the record would be in a different car.

The gleaming red and white $200,000 machine has been out of competition since the Can-Am series folded last year.

Asked if the poor weather had held back speeds on the record try, Donohue said, "I'm absolutely certain of it. We felt the car was easily capable of 225 m.p.h. That's the speed we were shooting for and we might have been able to get it if we could have waited longer.

"But we were committed to doing it at a certain time of day, so we went ahead.

"I didn't think the rain was going to hurt us, but as a precaution, I chose a little bit different setup, a safer one," he said.

Donohue said the car hit speeds near 240 m.p.h. going down the backstretch of the 2.66-mile Alabama International Motor Speedway tri-oval.

In practice, the wind drag as such high speeds sucked the lettering off the sides of the car.

"It wasn't easy," Donohue said of the record ride. "It's easy to say you're going to do it, and it's easy to say you'll hold the throttle down all the way around, but it isn't easy to actually go out there and work up to those speeds."

From a standing start, Donohue hit 195 m.p.h. on his first lap, then peeled off a circuit at 220.027 m.p.h. before the top lap.

"I might have gone a little faster, too, but I got chicken," Donohue said. "When you go into the turns here at that speed, you instinctively back off a little because you think there's no way the car could go through that fast.

"But the centrifugal force holds the car on the turn's banking."

Donohue had atempted earlier this year at Daytona International Speedway to break the record with a larger 5.4-liter engine in the car. "The engine was faster," he explained, "but we had all sorts of unforseen problems running that particular configuration that fast."

The car had been repaired Thursday after a wiring fire destroyed part of the tail section a day earlier.

Donohue said he has no plans to better his own record, but he might consider another run if someone like Foyt breaks it.

Donohue wouldn't say what type of car he would use for any future record attempt.

Foyt, here for Sunday's Talladega 500 stock car race, said he didn't bother to watch Donohue's attempt, but he didn't seem too happy about the new record.

"I have no desire to drive one of those cars," Foyt said gruffly. "They ain't nothing but a big old box with a lot of horsepower."

Foyt added, "I think we'll try for the record again, but I don't know exactly when, because I don't know when we'll have time. But I like the challenge."

Foyt said he had toyed with the idea of flying his Indy car down and challenging Donohue to a $100,000 winner-take-all match race, but decided against it.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

A special meeting of the NCAA is set for later this month, with the primary order of business some way to improve the economic situation many colleges and universities find themselves in these days.

The rising inflation has taken its toll, not to mention the ever-increasing cost of recruiting—especially the blue-chip players. Add to that the fast-rising women's programs at many schools and it all brings about a dangerous situation. Some schools have abandoned football in the past few years, while others have kept that sport but dropped others that don't produce any revenue.

Among the prime considerations on tap for the NCAA meeting are proposed limits to the number of coaches a sport can have, the number of schools a high school prospect can visit, the number of visits coaches can make to prospects, and revenue sharing.

If the coaching proposals are passed—and there is a good liklihood of it, schools with larger staffs would not have to drop coaches on their staffs. They would simply not replace them when they eventually leave. And under recommendations for numbers in football and basketball, East Carolina probably would not be affected.

The number of visits a prospect can make is already limited to one paid visit to a particular school, but he is alowed to visit as many schools as he wishes. In many instances, prospects are taking advantage of this to visit schools they know they have no intention of signing with. They are going just to get the free trip and its benefits. Limiting the number of these trips would be of great benefit to the school.

Limiting the number of visits a coach can make to a recruit may be more difficult to pass, but in some cases, it is one of the biggest expenses. For the real blue-chipper, coaches sometimes visit several times a week. In some cases, an assistant will move in to the town, practically camping on the doorstep. There have been cases where coaches have stayed continually for several months.

This is where recruiting really gets its bad name. This should be forbidden. A coach should not be allowed to visit more than a specific number of times—and the length of the visit should be limited, just as the recruit's time on campus is limited in his visit there. This will definitely cut expenses.

The revenue sharing proposals are not likely to get off the ground. Too many of the bigger schools that get most of the television money don't want it—naturally, and it will be voted down.

It will be an interesting meeting, however, and it is going to mean a lot to the future of the sport—at all schools.

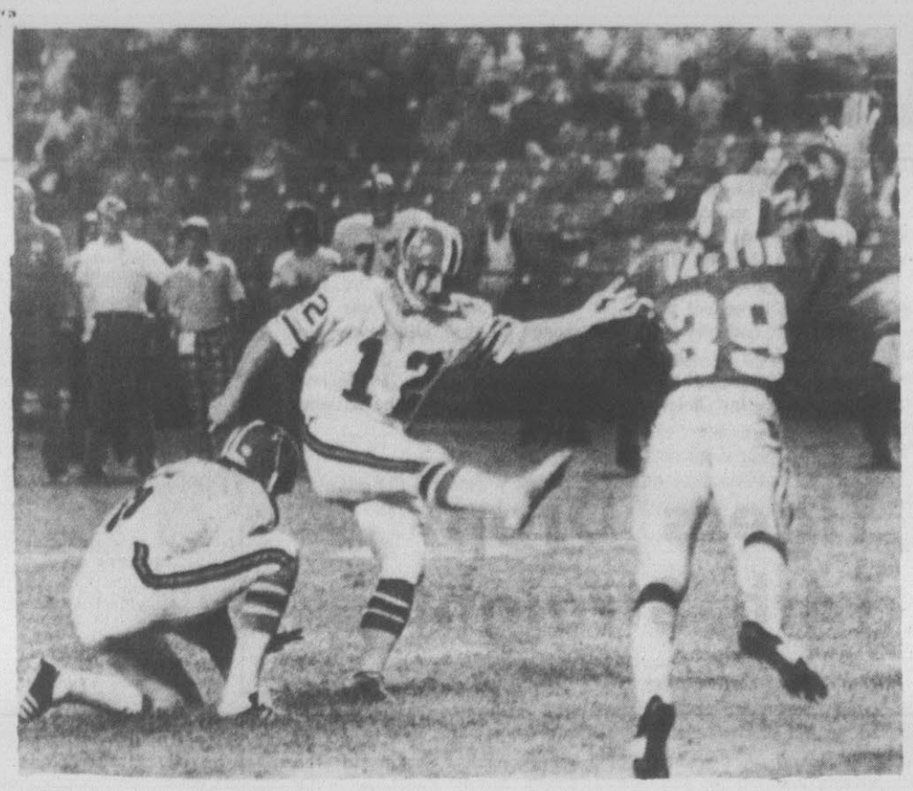

On the high school scene in the area, several of the conferences are seeing changes this year.

The Division I 4-A Conference of which Rose is a member has one change this year. Bertie Central moves in as a full member in football this year. In the past two seasons, Bertie has participated only in the other sports, playing with the 3-A Northeastern in football, but not as a member of that conference.

In the 3-A ranks, the Eastern Carolina loses two if its member schools, Eastern Wayne and Southern Wayne. Both of these schools have advanced to 4-A status.

Robersonville High School, a member of the 2-A Eastern Plains Conference, has some change. It has consolidated with Oak City, and the two have moved into a new building outside Robersonville. It is now known as Roanoke High School, and will be nicknamed the "Redskins."

NCAA May Crumble If Revenue Proposal OKed

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas football Coach Darrell Royal says the big schools may wave goodbye to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) if small schools insist on getting part of television and bowl game receipts.

"And I don't think that would necessarily be bad for athletics," said Royal of the prospect of major schools splitting from the NCAA.

NCAA members begin voting on such proposals as revenue sharing at their annual meeting in Chicago this week.

Royal said only 75 of the 120 schools in NCAA's Division I are involved in bowl games and television packages.

The NCAA has more than 700 member schools in three divisions. The entire budget of the NCAA comes from a slice of the television and bowl revenue earned by the 75 biggest schools, Royal said.

The small schools can outvote the Division I schools, Royal said, but schools like Texas could not accept that.

"I don't think we can divide the television money and bowl receipts with all the schools," he said. "I think it would be so diluted and would be spread so thinly that it wouldn't do the other schools that much good. And it would put the major schools out of business."

"I think there is a possibility—it certainly would be discussed—for the 120 schools in Division I to later get into a conference room and say, 'What are we going to do?' And maybe it might even be a split and a complete division.

"And I don't think that would necessarily be bad for athletics. I think it would be possible for the programs to go on and exist throughout the country just like they are with a complete division of legislation, rules and regulations for each division."

Regarding the Title IX regulations barring discrimination according to sex in schools and colleges, Royal warned against interpreting them on a dollar for dollar basis, either directly or indirectly.

"If it's interpreted that way, we would be completely out of business," he said.

About the best that could be hoped for, he said, would be passage of an amendment by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., that would exempt the revenue-producing sports and divide the profits equally between men's and women's programs in other sports.

Football is the only sport in the black at Texas, he said. It needs $900,000 to perpetuate itself at current levels, but it produces $2.4 million, so there would be $1.5 million to share with women's programs rather than see nearly all of it continue to go to men's basketball, baseball, track, tennis, golf and swimming.

Asked why Texas didn't schedule Notre Dame, Southern California, Ohio State or Penn State in order to fill up the 81,000-seat Memorial Stadium if he was worried about money, Royal said:

"There's no way to empty a stadium out faster than to lose. And I don't care who you lose to. You play a tough one every week and you become worn down and start losing ball games and they won't be there at the end of the season, either.

"It's debatable whether you make more money playing a tough opponent every week or whether you have some that are not quite as tough dribbled in there."

WHO'S LEADING?

SHAWNEE MISSION, Kans. (UPI) — Over the last 10 years, Alabama has the best winning percentage in college football's regular season games (.857), but counting bowl games in the totals, Notre Dame is the leader with .830. The Irish are 3-2 in bowls in the last decade, and Alabama is 2-7-1.

State AAU Track Is Held Here Saturday

The North Carolina Amateur Athletic Union State Age Group championship meet was held at East Carolina University's Bunting Track yesterday.

Approximately 150 people competed in the meet, coming from as far west as Salisbury to compete in the event.

Webster Married

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Marvin Webster, the Denver Nuggets' top college basketball draft choice, hobbled down the aisle at Trinity A.M.E. Zion Church Saturday to marry his college sweetheart, Medera Meadows.

The seven-foot Webster was the first player picked in the American Basketball Association draft and reportedly signed a $1.5 million contract with Denver.

Webster, a two-time NCAA College Division player of the year, was wearing a cast on his right foot. He sustained a fractured metatarsal bone while playing in a pickup game in New York nearly two weeks ago.

The cast is expected to be removed within three weeks, giving the Morgan State product plenty of time to regain his movement. He is scheduled to report to Denver on Sept. 15, although the other Denver rookies are scheduled to report on Monday.

Evert Rallies For Victory

By JOHN SHURR
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Defending champion Chris Evert, one game away from elimination, won seven straight games in the second set and won the third set by default over Nancy Gunter Saturday in the $150,000 U.S. Clay Court Championships.

Miss Evert, the tournament's top seed, was given the victory when a leg cramp forced Mrs. Gunter, the No. 5 seed, to drop out while behind 4-2, in third set. Mrs. Gunter won the first set 7-6 in a tie-breaker and Miss Evert, down 5-0, battled back to take the second set 7-5.

At first, Miss Evert had trouble keeping the ball in play. Mrs. Gunter controlled the tempo on the hot Indianapolis Racquet Club stadium court.

Chris, two match points down, won three straight points to take the sixth game of the second set, then broke Mrs. Gunter's service for the first time in the succeeding game.

After that, the 1974 Wimbledon champion reeled off five consecutive games, breaking Mrs. Gunter's serve three times along the way.

At the start of the third set, Mrs. Gunter appeared to have regained her form as she won her service the first two times. But then Miss Evert held service and broke Mrs. Gunter to take a 4-2 advantage before the cramps forced Mrs. Gunter out of action.

"I've had tough matches before but nothing like this," Miss Evert said. I didn't think I had a chance until it was 5-3 in the second set.

"I've never been down like that and been able to come back before. In fact, I was thinking about my doubles match."

Murtaugh Worried About Pirates

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Danny Murtaugh isn't concerned with the second-place Philadelphia Phillies. He's got enough to worry about these days the way his Pittsburgh Pirates are playing.

"I'm not worried about Philadelphia; I only worry about my own club," Murtaugh said Friday night after the Pirates dropped a 5-3 decision to the lowly Houston Astros. Coupled with Philadelphia's 5-4 triumph over the San Francisco Giants, it sliced the Pirates' lead over the Phillies in the National League's East Division to three games, their smallest margin since June 29.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the New York Mets 4-3, the St. Louis Cardinals outlasted the San Diego Padres 10-6, the Montreal Expos nipped the Cincinnati Reds 8-7 and the Chicago Cubs downed the Atlanta Braves 3-1 after dropping the double-header opener 1-0.

Right-hander Dock Ellis was staked to a quick 3-0 lead on Dave Parker's homer but lasted only two-thirds of an inning, allowing four hits, including RBI singles by Cliff Johnson and Milt May. The Astros tied it in the second and won it with two runs off reliever Kent Tekulve in the third on doubles by Greg Gross and Johnson and Doug Rader's single.

Phillies 5, Giants 4

Dick Allen singled home the winning run in the ninth inning after Garry Maddox beat out a one-out infield single, stole second and went to third on reliever Randy Moffitt's wild pickoff throw. Greg Luzinski walked before Allen's game-winning hit.

The Giants tied the game 4-4 on Willie Montanez' three-run homer in the eighth off Tom Underwood. Luzinski drove in two runs with his 28th homer and a sacrifice fly.

Dodgers 4, Mets 3

Ron Cey brought Los Angeles from behind with a two-run single off reliever Ken Sanders in the eighth inning. Jimmy Wynn and Steve Garvey, who accounted for the Dodgers' first two runs with solo homers, singled and Willie Crawford sacrificed before Cey's hit.

Cardinals 10, Padres 6

St. Louis jumped to a 4-0 lead on six straight singles to start the first inning against Dan Spillner and winning pitcher Bob Forsch hit his first major league homer, a two-run shot in the third. Forsch also singled and scored in the second.

The six first-inning hits were by Lou Brock, Willie Davis, Ron Fairly, Ted Simmons, Reggie Smith and Ted Sizemore. By winning, the Cards moved into a third-place tie with the Mets, 7½ games behind the Pirates.

Expos 8, Reds 7

Mike Jorgensen singled home two runs in the ninth inning to tie the game, took second on the throw to the plate and scored on Larry Parrish's single to cap a rally that ended Cincinnati's five-game winning streak.

The Expos also rallied from a 5-0 deficit to tie it in the sixth. The Reds absorbed only their 13th defeat in 57 home games.

Braves 1-1, Cubs 0-3

John Summers' sacrifice fly and Gene Hiser's single delivered the tying and go-ahead runs in the seventh inning of the nightcap, giving Chicago a 2-1 lead. The Braves won the opener as Carl Morton fired a five-hitter for his 13th victory and Earl Williams drove in the only run with a first-inning grounder.

Jackson's Homer Lets Oakland Rally To Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Reggie Cleveland made a pitch too good to the Oakland slugger in the seventh inning Friday night and Jackson homered with two out to break up a no-hitter and spark the Oakland A's to a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

"The pressure really builds up when a guy's got a no-hitter going. If the score was 8-0, maybe I wouldn't feel so good about breaking it up. But when it's 2-0, we're still in the game—and I knew if we'd get it down to one run, we'd have a great chance. We're a great one-run club in our home park," said Jackson.

The A's were as good as Jackson's word. After he belted a line drive over the right-field fence, Billy Williams singled and then Gene Tenace walloped a two-run homer to pull the A's through.

Until that rally, Cleveland had gone through 62-3 innings, allowing two baserunners—a walk and a hit batter.

In the other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox 7-4; the New York Yankees nudged the California Angels 43; the Texas Rangers stopped the Milwaukee Brewers 6-4; the Minnesota Twins turned back the Detroit Tigers 3-1 and the Cleveland Indians nipped the Kansas City Royals 4-3.

Before the A's rallied, the Red Sox got a run off Ken Holtzman, 14-9, in the second inning on a double by Dwight Evans and a single by Rico Petrocelli and scored another in the fifth with the help of an Oakland error.

Orioles 7, White Sox 4

Dave Duncan slugged his eighth home run and hot-hitting Don Baylor lashed a single and double to lead Baltimore over Chicago. The triumph was the sixth straight for the Orioles and moved them within six games of Boston in the American League East.

Yankees 4, Angels 3

Larry Gura stifled California on five hits while New York took advantage of four California errors to defeat the Angels and ailing Nolan Ryan. Despite hitting into six double plays, it was the Yankees' ninth victory in 11 games and sixth in eight starts since Billy Martin replaced Bill Virdon as manager last weekend.

Rangers 6, Brewers 4

Toby Harrah's two-run homer and a three-run pinch homer by Roy Howell sparked a five-run rally in the sixth inning, powering Texas over Milwaukee.

Twins 3, Tigers 1

Jim Hughes scattered seven hits and pitched Minnesota past Detroit, saddling the reeling Tigers with their 13th consecutive setback—tying the club record for futility. The losing streak matched the mark set by the 1920 Tigers and tied in 1953.

Indians 4, Royals 3

Oscar Gamble greeted Kansas City relief ace Doug Bird with a tie-breaking two-run homer in the eighth inning, powering Cleveland over the Royals. The loss ended Kansas City's five-game winning streak.

Christian In Church Finals

Regular season champion First Christian fought back to land a berth in the finals of the Church Softball League's American Division Friday night, but the National Division was left up in the air.

Christian will meet unbeaten St. Gabriel in the American finals on Monday, with two games set if needed. The winner meets the National titlist for the overall league title.

Who that opponent will be remains to be seen. Grace and University-Mt. Pleasant were playing for the right to meet Black Jack on Monday, but a protest halted the game after less than one inning.

In the opening American game, Christian ousted St. James, 3-2. St. James pushed over two runs in the first inning, but wasn't able to score again. Christian came back with two in the second, then got what proved to be the winning run in the third. D. Kaylor doubled and scored on a fielder's choice.

Christian then downed Oakmont, 11-12, in the second game to gain the finals. Christian pushed over two in the first, and added three in the second, including a homer by D. Kaylor Three more crossed in the third, and three in the fourth completed their scoring.

Oakmont got both of its runs in the fourth.

University-Mt. Pleasant downed Immanuel Baptist, 6-5, in the first game of the National playoffs. Immanuel pushed over a pair in the first inning, but U-MP came up with four. Immanuel added two in the third to tie it at 4-4, then scored one in the fourth to take a 5-4 lead.

Two in the fifth for U-MP gave them the win, however.

The second game, between U-MP and Grace had seen one batter in the bottom of the first, with Grace leading 3-0, when U-MP protested that three members of the Grace team were playing without hats. The umpires, unsure how to rule, suspended the game at that point. It will be ruled on by Monday.

Turkey Restoration Program Is Expanded

By JIM DEAN

The future for the wild turkey in North Carolina is looking a lot brighter these days, but it's no accident. It's taken a lot of hard work and a good bit of money.

For the past several years, the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission has been in the midst of a rather ambitious program to restore wild turkeys to many parts of the state where they have been extinct for many years. Turkey biologist Wayne Bailey has been in charge of the field work, having come to North Carolina from West Virginia where he was successful in a similar restoration program.

Basically, the project consists of live-trapping wild turkeys from parts of the state where they are relatively numerous and restocking them in other places where they are extinct or where only small, remnant populations exist.

Much of the restocking has taken place in western parts of the state. Back at the turn of the century after most of the good turkey habitat had been logged, the turkey populations were virtually eliminated. But in the intervening years, the mountains have been reforested, and are now capable of supporting turkeys again. Already, several areas have been successfully restocked.

Encouraged by this success, the Commission plans to intensify its turkey restoration program during 1975-76. Three, and possibly four, Game Lands crews are to be trained in the techniques of turkey live-trapping. This will make it possible to live-trap turkeys from several areas at the same time.

Current plans call for restocking projects on three more western areas which do not now have turkey populations. One is the Dysartsville Game Land. Two others areas may include the upper Catawba River Basin and on Big Ivy (both parts of the huge Pisgah Game Land).

The turkey restoration program is being paid for and supported by hunters across North Carolina from license fees, and as such, it's a good example of how regulated hunting has brought many fish and game species from endangered status to relative abundance.

Indeed, kill reports are also used to help determine turkey populations and dictate the kinds of management and regulations which are necessary.

Commission reports indicate that Tarheel turkey hunters have cooperated very well with the Legislative enactment, effective in 1975, requiring successful hunters to report their kills to check stations or Wildlife Cooperate agents. Slightly over 100 kill reports were received for the seasons which closed this past spring. Eighteen wild turkeys were reported harvested in the Coastal Plain counties, while 75 were reported in the Piedmont counties (where present turkey populations are highest.) Eight kills were reported in mountain counties. Investigations by the Division of Game personnel indicate that the reporting level was good, meaning that the vast majority of hunters appear to have complied with the new law.

It is, of course, far too early to suggest that someday turkeys will be as common in the state as other popular and heavily managed game species such as deer, but the outlook for at least moderate success seems promising.

Sports Briefs

By The Associated Press

HARRISBURG (AP) — Commodore Downs Race Track near Erie will immediately begin operating five days a week instead of six, the Pennsylvania Horse Racing Commission announced Friday.

The commission said it has approved the schedule change for Lakelands Racing Association, whose current meet ends Oct. 4.

The track now will be dark on both Wednesdays and Thursdays and on two Tuesdays, Sept. 2 and 30.

The commission also announced that Lakeland will begin quarter horse racing Aug. 24.

CHICAGO (AP) — Pete Margo of Staten Island, N.Y., and Dallas West of Rockford, Ill., will meet tonight in the finals of the $43,000 U.S. Open Pocket Billiards Championships.

In the women's division, Jean Balukas, 16, of Brooklyn, N.Y., will try for her fourth straight title in a rematch of last year's final against Mieko Harada of Uji City, Japan.

Margo broke the hot streak of his brother-in-law, Steve Mizerak of Woodbridge, N.J., with a 150-86 win Friday night to advance to the finals.

Miss Balukas had a run of 39 and closed out Becky Brown of Miami, 75-29 in 18 innings to advance to the finals.

BUFFALO (AP) — The Buffalo Braves announced Friday they will open the 1975-6 National Basketball Association season at home Oct. 25 against the defending champion Golden State Warriors.

The Braves will play 41 home games during the season. They also will play an exhibition game at home Oct. 11 against the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Donald Reents of Rockford, Ill. is the new national junior chess champion.

Reents overtook Calvin Blocker of Cleveland in Friday's final rounds of the United States Junior Open chess tournament at San Diego State University.

Blocker, who had led throughout the week-long event, failed to place either among the national or the class winners.

Rose JVs Reporting

Junior varsity football practice will begin Monday at 4 p.m. at J.H. Rose High School.

The program, for 10th graders, officially opens then. All those wishing to try out for the team are urged to attend practice then.

Five Pirates On All-League Team

East Carolina University place two men on the first team of the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League All-Conference selections, and added three more on the second unit.

Regular season champion North Carolina dominated the first team, along with last place Louisburg. Both landed three members on the unit.

Methodist College led the second unit with four selections while both East Carolina and the Tar Heels each had three.

Field Goal Tops 'Skins For Atlanta

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It may not have been the Super Bowl nor a regular season National Football League game. Just don't tell the Atlanta Falcons.

Any victory is a Super Plus to Atlanta, especially against the Washington Redskins. Even an exhibition.

To the Falcons, victories haven't come easy or plentiful in recent times.

"Winning a ping pong match is good enough for us at this point," said Coach Marion Campbell after his Falcons opened the 1975 exhibition season with a 16-14 victory over the Redskins Friday night. "You know we haven't had too many victories lately, so we'll take whatever we can get.

"I'm like George Allen, I like to win anything," said Campbell, a former assistant to Washington Coach Allen and now in his first full season as head coach of the Falcons.

Veteran Pat Sullivan, the Atlanta quarterback who engineered the second half come-from-behind victory, said he hopes the triumph in the club's initial game of the season will have lasting effects so the Falcons can reverse their 1974 record of three victories and 11 losses.

"The big question with us is will we lose this initial enthusiasm," said Sullivan. "When the new enthusiasm wears off, how will we do then?"

Mistakes, miscues, errors—call them what you want—dominated the game in which the Redskins, with a 10-4 record and a trip to the playoffs last year, built up a 14-3 halftime lead only to see it evaporate.

Nick Mike-Mayer's third field goal of the night—a 19-yard chip-shot with 15 seconds remaining—provided the Falcons with their first victory over the Redskins in eight meetings, although one ended in a 20-20 tie in 1967.

Two Atlanta personal fouls in the first half gave the Redskins a slight edge which quarterback Bill Kilmer turned into touchdown passes of nine yards to Moses Denson and 13 yards to rookie Ralph Nelson. The only offensive punch the Falcons could muster in the first 30 minutes under two-year man Kim McQuilken was a 38-yard Mike-Mayer field goal.

"We just made too many mistakes in that first half, especially the penalties," said Campbell. "You just can't do that against a great football team like the Redskins.

"At halftime, we talked about poise, and we picked it up and played better," he said. "Sullivan did a fine job—both quarterbacks did a good job."

In the second half, it was the Redskins, winners of their first exhibition a week ago who made the mistakes. And Sullivan took advantage of them.

An interception by safety Ray Brown was turned into Mike-Mayer's second field goal, a 23-yarder. A fumble by Nelson was converted into five-yard touchdown by running back Haskel Stanback that put the score at 14-13 and set the stage for Mike-Mayer's winning field goal.

The Atlanta offensive line, which drew much of the criticism last season, came in for praise by both Sullivan and Campbell, especially for the protection it gave the quarterbacks.

"Those guys blocked beautifully," said Sullivan. "There was not one sack in the game, and with the Redskins playing their vets, that's saying something."

The Redskins' famed Over-The-Hill defensive unit started and played nearly three quarters of the game.

In the Redskins' dressing room, Coach Allen said: "You can't make as many mistakes as we did. If you make that many mistakes, you'll lose."

Petty-Pearson Duel Goes Again

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Sports Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — The potboiler racing rivalry between David Pearson and Richard Petty will be rekindled in Sunday's Talladega 500, where the old rivals battled to a controversial finish last year.

Petty is the defending winner, but a host of other cars have a chance in the $156,000 race, which has become one of the most unpredictable and closely contested stops on the National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing Grand National Circuit.

Only once has the margin of victory been over 200 yards, and that was in 1973 when a 19-car mishap took out most of the contenders. In fact, seven of the 12 races here since 1969 have ended with the top two cars less than a length apart.

Longshots have won the Talladega 500 four out of six times. The other 500-miler run here in the spring has been only slightly more predictable.

Darkhorse Dave Marcis will start on the pole position for the first time in his eight-year career in NASCAR, and the 34-year-old Wausau, Wis., native will be shooting for his first victory.

"This car feels better every time I go out and practice in it," Marcis said of his Dodge. "We're due to win."

One driver well suited to this high-speed 2.66-mile tri-oval is Buddy Baker, who starts on the front row next to Marcis, even his speed was nearly two miles per hour slower than Marcis' 191.340 mph.

Starting alongside Pearson in the second row is versatile A.J. Foyt, who owns the unlimited closed course speed record. He set it on this track in his Coyote Indianapolis-style car at 217.854 mph.

Foyt will be driving a stock car for the first time in a race here. He was entered in May, but withdrew when his daughter became seriously ill.

Behind them are only a scattering of what are considered real contenders—Bobby Allison, Cale Yarborough, and farther back, former winners James Hylton and Dick Brooks.

But the best race on the track should be between Petty and Pearson, especially if they're both in the running at the finish.

The rivalry surfaced again in last week's 500-miler at Pocono International Raceway, where Pearson chugged to victory in a smoking Mercury.

Petty's Dodge was about five seconds back, battling the cloud of smoke from Pearson's car.

Pearson was blackflagged two laps from the finish, and Petty claimed he should have come in. NASCAR rules, however, give a driver a few laps to respond to a black flag.

But last year here it was Petty who caused Pearson a little trouble by slowing suddenly in the first turn and forcing Pearson to go on by. Petty fell in behind the leader and sling-shot past Pearson in the final turn and won the race. Pearson tried to hold Petty back by running him into the infield grass.

A few heated words were exchanged later.

When Foolish Pleasure won the 1975 Kentucky Derby it marked the seventh racetrack over which he scored victories.

INDIA PUSHING CHINA INTO THE PACIFIC—Peter Molnar, assistant professor of geology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, Mass., says satellite pictures indicate India is pushing China into the Pacific, and that this sideways shoving could account for China's unusual pattern of earthquakes. The report written by Molnar (above) and Paul Tapponier, a visiting research fellow at MIT, since returned to the University of Montpelier in France, said the Indian subcontinent is nudging northward, pressing against Eurasia. Announce Staffers For Jarvis Weekday School

Mrs. Vivian Weeks Johnson has assumed the position of kindergarten teacher at the Jarvis Weekday School, it was announced today by Mrs. Patricia Moore, chairman of the Weekday School Committee.

Also joining the staff for this fall will be Mrs. Connie Stallings, who will teach the three-day class for four-year-olds.

Mrs. Lois Patterson will become interim director for the kindergarten and nursery school programs, which are operated by Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church annually from September through May.

Mrs. Johnson earned her B.S. degree in primary education from Appalachian State University and her master's degree in elementary education from East Carolina University. She received her certification in early childhood and in supervision also at ECU.

Through the University of California at San Diego, Mrs. Johnson studied the British Infant Schools program in London during the summer of 1972. Her teaching experience includes first and second grades at Peabody Elementary School in Wilmington, N.C.; first grade at Sadie Saulter in Greenville; and multi-age groups from kindergarten through third grades at Wahl-Coates School. Recently she has conducted workshops for the ECU Department of Continuing Education.

She is married to Richard G. Johnson.

Mrs. Stallings, a native of Hertford, attended the College of the Albemarle at Elizabeth City and received the B.S. degree in elementary education from Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. She taught second grade at Eastern Elementary School in Washington, N.C.

She and her husband, John, have a three-year-old daughter.

Mrs. Patterson, member of the Kindergarten Committee which administers the Weekday School program, has served as its chairman for the past two years. She has been church librarian at Jarvis Methodist Church for nine years.

She received her A.B. degree from Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa., and the B.S. degree in library science from Drexel University in Philadelphia.

She and her husband, H.T. Patterson, have a daughter, Miss Carol Patterson of Greenville, and a son, Dr. Thomas Patterson, who is associated with the University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Other staff members at Jarvis Weekday School are Mrs. Nancy Nobles, Mrs. Sue Toler and Mrs. Emmy Whitehead.

Mrs. Nobles, teacher of 3-year-olds at Jarvis, received the B.S. degree in Child Development and Family Relations from East Carolina University.

Mrs. Toler will continue to teach the five-day program for 4-year-olds, a new program which she developed last year. She holds the B.S. degree in early childhood education from East Carolina University.

Mrs. Whitehead, teacher of 3- and 4-year-olds, received the B.F.A. degree from Syracuse University, Syracuse, N.Y., graduating cum laude. She was certified in early childhood education at Fredonia State University, Fredonia, N.Y.

Jarvis Weekday School was established in the fall of 1969 with a kindergarten and since that time has expanded to include programs two and three days a week for three-year-olds, and three and five days a week for four-year-olds, as well as maintaining a kindergarten.

School will open on Monday, Sept. 8.

Plant Protein Has Important Future

DENTON, Tex. (UPI) — Plant protein that until now has been a dietary supplement for cattle holds promise for people, too.

Betty V. Alford, an associate professor at the Texas Women's University Research Institute, expects liquid cyclone process cottonseed to become an important vegetable protein in the human diet when it is available commercially.

But it may be five to 10 years before LCP is widely used in its primary powdered form, which looks like cream-colored dry milk.

Prof. Alford directed the clinically controlled, medically supervised study by nutrition specialists. They worked with two sets of 20 children each, who volunteered for the project at different children's homes. All were considered normal, healthy youngsters in various stages of development.

For six months, the children were fed balanced diets containing a variety of cottonseed products prepared cooperatively by home dietitians and TWU researchers. The children whose diets contained 30 per cent cottonseed protein showed a larger increase in height than members of the control group, whose diets lacked the product.

Children in the experimental group also had significant increases in vitamin A levels, the professor said.

She added that some children sometimes detected the presence of the new product through tongue feel and a slight change in food color, but in general, they showed pronounced acceptability of high protein and snack foods containing LCP.

She said the product is expected eventually to be used as a food additive and protein supplement, as other vegetable products such as soy flour are now, in baked goods and mixed meat dishes, for example.

The continuing study is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Natural Fiber and Food Protein Committee of Texas. LCP used in the research was produced by the USDA research laboratory in New Orleans, using a process to remove a pigment that is toxic to humans. A private producer, Plains Cooperative Oil Mill, Lubbock, Tex., is trying to establish production for commercial use.

Miss Lois Ann Brown Weds Saturday Afternoon

Miss Lois Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watson Brown of Greenville, was married Saturday afternoon in a double ring ceremony to Julius Perkins Cherry Jr. in the First Presbyterian Church.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Perkins Cherry Sr. of Kinston.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown designed by Frank Masandrea. The gown was of imported silk, beaded with Venise lace rosettes, centered with pearls in a cluster pattern with embroidered leaves. The cap sleeve gown was designed with a high neckline, fitted bodice and sheath A-line skirt. The detachable watteau chapel length train was also appliqued in the beaded lace.

She wore a formal length Brussels lace mantilla, held in place by a Juliet cap trimmed in floral Venise lace beaded with pearls and carried a classic bouquet of cattleya orchids and stephanotis with English ivy tied with a narrow velvet ribbon.

The bridegroom's father served as best man.

Miss Nancy Louise Cherry of Kinston, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Deborah Walston Webb of Greenville were maids of honor.

Other attendants were Mrs. William Sherrod Brown, Mrs. Robert Green Brown, both sisters-in-law of the bride of Greenville, Miss Katherine Ann Elliott of Roanoke, Va., Miss Linda Katherine Taber of Greenville, Ala., Mrs. William Charles Whaley of Kinston, and Miss Laura Bahnson Weathers of Roanoke Rapids.

The attendants were of candlelight chiffon over taffeta. The slip gowns were designed with chiffon straps and a natural inset waistband. The gowns were complemented by a bolero jacket of sheer candlelight chiffon featuring double butterfly sleeves.

Miss Anne Christine Leahy of Greenville was flower girl. She carried a white basket filled with rose petals tied with satin ribbon. Talbot Andrews Green, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Mary Jo Beck, Miss Le Anne West, and Mrs. George Jeffery Beamon of Greenville, Miss Harriet Green Powell of Whiteville, cousin of the bride, Miss Karen Elizabeth Green of Robersonville, cousin of the bride, Miss Amy Louise Everett of Bethel, and Miss Fran Jo Pupello of Tampa, Fla.

Groomsmen were William Sherrod Brown, Robert Green Brown, Bradford Marshall Brown and Thomas Benjamin Brown of Greenville, Dr. Donald Claude Brown of Portland, Ore., all brothers of the bride, Bryant Taylor Aldridge Jr. of Rocky Mount, cousin of the bridegroom, James Edwyn Todd Jr., Michael Lloyd Russell, William Charles Whaley, all of Kinston, and William Frederick Whiteford of Greenville.

Miss Elizabeth Lang and Mrs. Allen Carr Darden served as hostesses and directors of the wedding.

A garden reception immediately following the ceremony was held at the home of the bride.

Mrs. Cherry attended Salem College, Winston-Salem, and will continue with her education at East Carolina University. She was presented at the Terpsichorean Ball in 1974. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Sherrod Brown. Her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lafayette Green Sr. of Robersonville.

The bridegroom is a senior of East Carolina University and is affiliated with his father at Cherry Oil Co., Kinston. He is the grandson of Mrs. James Seymore Hardy and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Tilman Cherry of Kinston, N.C.

The couple left for a wedding trip to The Cloisters, Sea Island, Ga., and will reside in Kinston.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Perkins Cherry were host and hostess for the rehearsal dinner at the Candlewick Inn Friday night honoring the bridal party and out-of-town guests. A dance followed the dinner in the Colonial Ballroom hosted by friends of the brides' parents. Entertainment was provided by Steve-the-Dream of Chapel Hill.

Miss Ann Brown and Julius Cherry, family and out-of-town guests were entertained at a wedding breakfast Saturday at noon at the home of Mrs. F. Harding Sugg. Hosts and hostesses for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. F. Harding Sugg, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Benjamin Sugg, and Mr. and Mrs. James Fred Webb.

The luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Rivers.

Stop Making Such A Fuss Over 'Hair'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, my husband got himself a hairpiece that improves his appearance 100 per cent. The problem is that he wears it only about two-thirds of the time.

I think it's ridiculous for a man to wear a hairpiece all week to work and then to leave it off on the weekend. That's what Horace does. He knows that I want him to wear it all the time, so just to punish me for something, he refuses to wear it to an important function.

When Horace takes a mind to go without his hairpiece, no amount of begging, crying or pleading can make him change his mind.

Abby, how can I get him to wear his hairpiece all the time?

BITTER HALF

DEAR BITTER: You can't. But if you stopped making such a fuss when he refuses to wear it, he'll probably wear it more.

DEAR ABBY: I am a guy, 18, who has been brought up in a good home with fine parents who tried to teach me right from wrong. I have always had high moral standards, but when I was younger, my friends would tell me it was a bunch of puritanical nonsense for a boy to keep his virginity. As I grew older, I realized that a man has no right to expect the woman he marries to be a virgin if he isn't one, himself.

I recently found a column of yours that my mother said she was saving for my younger sister. It was dated August 2, 1964.

Today, with so many people confusing love with lust, I think a lot of young people would benefit if you would run that letter again.

GOT IT TOGETHER

DEAR GOT IT: With pleasure. Here it is:

"DEAR ABBY: I am 17. I copied something out of your book, 'Dear Teen-Ager,' and typed it up to carry with me. It has helped me a lot. Two of my girl friends did the same thing.

"You would be doing many girls a big favor if you would print it in your column. So many girls are having trouble in this line. Thank you, Abby.

SEVENTEEN

"DEAR SEVENTEEN: Here it is:

'Girls need to "prove their love" through illicit sex relations like a moose needs a hat rack. Why not "prove your love" by sticking your head in the oven and turning on the gas? Or playing leapfrog in traffic? It's about as safe.

'Clear the cobwebs out of your head. Any fellow who asks you to "prove your love" is trying to take you for the biggest, most gullible fool who ever walked. That "proving" bit is one of the oldest and rottenest lines ever invented!

'Does he love you? It doesn't sound like it. Someone who loves you wants whatever is best for you. But now figure it out. He wants you to:

'Commit an immoral act...
'Surrender your virtue...
'Throw away your self-respect...
'Risk the loss of your precious reputation...
'And risk getting into trouble...

'Does that sound as though he wants what's best for you? This is the laugh of the century. He wants what's best for him: He wants a thrill he can brag about at your expense...Love? Who's kidding whom?

'A guy who loves a girl would sooner cut off his right arm than hurt her. In my opinion, this self-serving so-and-so has proved that he doesn't love you.

'The predictable aftermath of "proof" of this kind always finds Don Juan tiring of his sport. That's when he drops you, pick up his line and goes casting elsewhere for bigger and equally silly fish.

'If he loves you, let him prove HIS love—by marching you to the ALTAR!' "

Couple Exchanges Vows In Saturday Wedding Ceremony

Memorial Baptist Church was the scene of the Saturday wedding ceremony of Miss Linda Carol Shearin and Dr. Glenn Elgin Woodlief.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Charles Edwards assisted by Frank Ellis of Greenville at 4:00 p.m. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Walter Hearane, organist, and Mrs. Donald Tudor sang "The Wedding Song," "Calm As The Night" and "My Heart Ever Faithful."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Howard Shearin Jr. of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She was dressed in a formal length gown of white silkened organza over peau de soie. The bodice was styled with a jeweled neckline of Venise lace appliques and briad which enhanced the bodice and capped sleeves. The A-line skirt fell into a chapel length train bordered with a flounce.

Her organza fingertip veil was accented with a Juliet cap with braid and seed pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of roses, stephanotis and daisies with lace stramers.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Foch Woodlief of Oxford.

The bride is a graduate of UNC-Greensboro and taught in Harnett County for the past year. The bridegroom is a graduate of Dental School at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is a N.C. Public Health dentist for the Granville-Vance Health District.

The honor attendant was Mrs. Steve Troxler of Brown Summit. She was dressed in a formal length gown of ice blue organza and white flowers over blue taffeta. The gown was styled with blue slip straps, fitted bodice and A-line skirt accompanied by a bolero jacket tied at the empire waistline. Flared ice blue ruffles accented the jacket collar and cuffs. She carried a miniature colonial bouquet.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ricky Woodlief of Durham, Ms. Ellen Daugman of Greenville, Mrs. Stan Brunt of Raleigh, and Mrs. Brian Barna of Monroe. They were dressed like the matron of honor and each carried three white long-stemmed roses.

Honorary bridesmaids were Joy Hill of Rougemont, and Celia Overby of Roanoke Rapids. Junior bridesmaids were Mary Fisher, Julianna Fisher and Martha Fisher, all of Rocky Mount.

The bride's mother selected a long sleeved fitted formal length gown of pink chiffon and wore a white orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom selected a floor length candlelight polyester dress with an embroidered bodice. She wore a yellow orchid corsage.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Sidney and Lee Shearin of Greenville, brothers of the bride, Rickey Woodlief of Durham, and Jay Woodlief of Oxford, brothers of the bridegroom.

The couple will reside in Henderson.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. John A. Moore.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception in the church was given by the bride's parents and directed by Mrs. John Langley. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Crawford and were acknowledged by Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Journigan of Whitakers at the guest register.

The wedding cake was served by Mrs. Joe Elliott and Mrs. Ray Huff of Oxford. Mrs. Ruby Hill of Rougemont poured punch.

The refreshment tables were decorated with summer flowers.

Background piano music was rendered by Mrs. Jasa Allen.

The wedding party was entertained at a luncheon Saturday at the Three Steers. Hosts and Hostesses were aunts and uncles of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Fisher, Mr. and Mr. Ransom Journigan, Dr. and Mrs. Julian Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. James Thomopson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Overby.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at the Arlington Street Baptist Church for the wedding party and out-of-otown guests.

Fritters Stretch Leftover Corn

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A great way to use a little corn, cut from cooked leftover cobs, is in fritters made with cornmeal. These fritters have crisp and crunchy exteriors and soft insides. Served with maple syrup, they taste good with fried chicken, bacon, ham or pork sausage at brunch, lunch or supper.

CORN FRITTERS

- ½ cup flour, stir to aerate before measuring
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup enriched yellow cornmeal
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine (melted) or vegetable oil
- 1 cup corn kernels, cut from leftover cooked cobs

In a medium mixing bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder and salt; stir in cornmeal.

In a small mixing bowl beat together the egg and milk until combined; add to cornmeal mixture with the butter and corn; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened.

Drop by generous tablespoons into hot deep fat (360 degrees) without crowding and fry until browned, turning once — about 3 minutes in all. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot with maple syrup.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Louise M. Ummel of Portland, Ore., and Mr. J. Russell Wooten of Ayden, announce the engagement of their daughter, Teresa Valerie, to Ronald Ray Salmon, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Salmon of Ayden. The wedding will take place Aug. 24.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

When you talk about it in years to come, you will refer to it as "The Last Family Vacation."

It will start out like a score of other family vacations . . . one kid will yell because he has to sit on the hard hump in the middle of the seat. Another will sulk for 300 miles because he can't hear the radio . . . and another will hang his feet out of the window because his legs are cramped. (When did they grow so tall?)

There will still be the perennial recording of "When we gonna eat?" (muted because their mouths are full of food). And you'll ask, "Anyone for a hamburger? A salad? A hot dog?" (Did it always cost $20 to buy them lunch?)

"Gross."

"Would you believe that sunset? It's like a painting."

"Gross."

"Hey, group, Daddy and I are going to chip in and buy you all a new word when we stop."

"Gross."

At the beach, you begin to suspect things are changing when you and Daddy are the only two splashing around in the water. One child is in a phone booth making plans to split. Another has found a girl and is trying to palm himself off as an orphan. And the other is going through Daddy's trousers getting the car keys. (When did they stop talking to us?)

Going home, it is like old times. They are excited at the idea of going swimming with a friend, making it in time for a party, and bolting to their rooms to turn up the stereo until their ears shrivel.

As you unload the car, there is a silence. Without saying a word, everyone seems to know what the silence means. It is a moratorium to the last family vacation.

It will never be the same again. The wet diapers in the plastic bags under your feet, the soggy cookies . . . strains of "This Old Man He Played One" . . . burying your feet in the sand . . . cries of "He's hitting" . . . the cold caves, the burnt hot dogs, the camper that leaked . . . the giggles at bedtime . . . the laundromats and the wonderful, warm feeling that a woman feels when she sees her family tucked in at night.

It is the end of an era . . . the beginning of a new one.

You might allow yourself the luxury of a tear. Or you might say to yourself half in anger, "God! Why did I spend every summer vacation yelling, 'Don't throw rocks in the water' and 'Don't sit on the seats!'"

Speaking Up For Farm Women

CHICAGO (AP) — One of the nation's leading rural magazines says equal rights for farm women are long overdue.

Jim Thomson, editor of Prairie Farmer, says in an editorial: "Women are on the warpath, and we can't say we blame them. Farm women especially have reason to complain. One told us recently that even though she had worked with her husband through 30 years of married life, on his death the government said none of the farm belonged to her."

Thomson feels the role of the farm woman has been changing subtly for many years. A recent Prairie Farmer poll shows that 25 per cent of farm women in the Midwest are taking jobs in town and-or furthering their education.

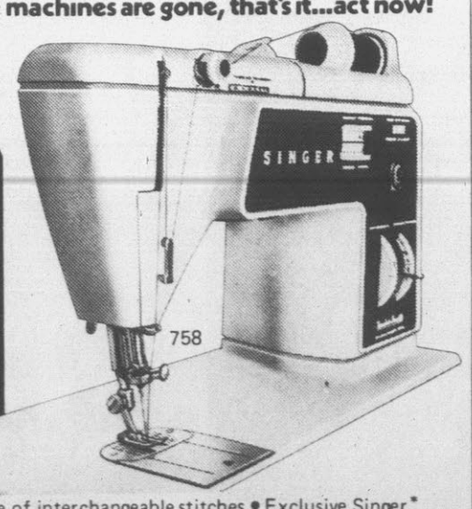

"The farm woman is no longer restricted to an auxiliary position," says Thomson. "In some cases she never was. But the farm woman generally was limited in what she could do and in what was expected of her. She had minimal education in a society with limited education.

"Women are demanding the recognition they rightfully deserve as equal parnters in the farm operation vis-a-vis Social Security, taxation and government regulations," says Thomson.

Holloman-Beamon Vows Solemnized

In a candlelight ceremony Friday evening, Ruby Diane Beamon became the bride of Mitchell Thomas Holloman. The ceremony was performed in the Proctor Memorial Christian Church at eight o'clock by the Rev. Gary Duncan.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Majette of Grimesland, pianist, and Joe Tucker, who sang "O Perfect Love" and "A Time For Us."

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Yvonne Beamon of Rt. 1, Winterville, Mr. J. T. Beamon of Mount Olive, and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Holloman of Grimesland.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Robert E. Briley, wore a formal length white organza gown designed with a high neckline edged in scalloped chantilly lace. The empire bodice was overlayed in lace with lace enhancing the inset band at the waistline. The full bishop sleeves featured cuffs of lace. The hemline and sweep train were styled with a panel of chantilly lace edged in scalloped lace.

The matron of honor was Debra Baker of Chocowinity. She was dressed in a floral sheer gown fashioned with an empire waist and a caplet consisting of orange and green flowers on a yellow background with a matching picture hat.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of mint green chiffon and a corsage of white mums. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of blue polyester knit and a corsage of white mums. The grandmothers were remembered with corsages.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Carroll Carawan, cousin of the bride, and Wayne Holloman, brother of the bridegroom.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Ruby Hodges and Mrs. Nellie Elks of Grimesland. Mrs. Diana Cates presided at the register.

The couple will reside in Grimesland.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of D. H. Conley High School and he is employed by Gaskins Marina, Washington.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the parents of the bridegroom in the church fellowship hall for the bridal party, relatives and friends.

After the first traditional slice of cake was cut, Mrs. Jeanette Duncan and Mrs. Minnie Tucker served cake and Mrs. Mary Holloman, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch.

The bridal couple remembered attendants with gifts.

First Lady Of Massachusetts Has Kept Her Own Career

By SHELLY COHEN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Kitty Dukakis moved through the halls of the State House lobbying for the state Equal Rights Amendment with as much ease as she glided through the movements of a modern dance routine.

She's the wife of Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, but you won't catch her pouring tea at ladies club meetings.

She's kept her job as a teacher of modern dance. She lobbies for projects she believes in. And she strives to keep a semblance of privacy and normality in a most public existence.

Around the Dukakis breakfast table, the talk is of the children's after-school plans, and a plea to the governor to be home for dinner at 6.

Conspicuous by their absence are the morning papers and voices from radio.

"It's a house rule made years ago," Mrs. Dukakis explained.

But life does change, when your husband becomes governor.

Dukakis insists that Andrea, 9, and Kara, 6, walk to school, just down the street from their Brookline two-family home. That means their mother has to call the police, who watch the youngsters as they walk.

A recent telephoned death threat meant state police had to escort all members of the family on their day's travels.

"My head really started to pound then," Mrs. Dukakis confessed.

Kitty Dukakis, at age 37, is a woman who knows exactly what she wants and she uses her very special access to the governor only in limited areas, such as programs to help abused children.

When Andrea was hospitalized for osteomyelitis shortly after the election, one of her hospital roommates was an abused child.

"She used to wait for Mike by the elevator, when Andrea was too sick to get out of bed. She became so attached to us and has since spent weekends with us here.

"Sometimes until you see these things first-hand, your interest is only superficial."

But when it comes to the governor's proposed cuts in the state welfare budget or his tax program, "I stay fairly clear of it," Mrs. Dukakis said. "I never had an economics course and I guess I have a sense of loss about that. I guess that's part of my reluctance to argue the issues."

The quiet that descended on the Dukakis household after the girls left for school was broken as John, 16, dropped down for breakfast after a studying binge that kept him up past 3 a.m.

"John's the one who hardly ever gets in newspaper photos because he's either sleeping or he's too tall," she said.

The towering 16-year-old, Mrs. Dukakis's son by a previous marriage, plowed through a teen-ager's portion of coffee cake and glanced at the paper. He and his mother talked about the weekend, a weekend in which John would be in a Brookline High School play and take his college board exams.

"I can't believe John will be graduating next year," she said later, riding in her vintage, blue Plymouth. "It really scares me, the thought of him going off to school. Now I'm beginning to sound like the Jewish mother that I am."

The children who are the products of that mixed marriage "have the best of both worlds," she explained. "We celebrate all holidays. We had 23 people over for Passover dinner and we had the family over for Greek Easter."

Arriving at Lesley College, where she will teach two of the six hours of dance classes she had scheduled that day, she stripped down to a plum-colored leotard and black tights for the beginners' modern dance class.

HOSTESS—Kitty Dukakis, wife of the governor of Massachusetts, has kept her career and shuns tea parties. However, she serves punch on special occasions, such as a visit to her backyard by the first grade class of her youngest child.

She coaxed and cajoled and yelled as a dozen young women tried to match the control of their teacher. She moved through the class, straightening spines, pulling back shoulders.

The daughter of Boston Pops conductor Harry Ellis Dickson, she has been dancing since she was 11 years old and teaching dance since she was 17.

"Michael's been very supportive of my work," she said.

In addition to day and evening classes at Lesley, she teaches dance for children at the Brookline Community Center.

"If I can do anything by my example, such as keeping my career, that will encourage other women, I'd talk from the rooftops about it," she said.

She thinks too many women have to stay in the background and play roles. But it's not true for the wife of the governor of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Dukakis has won a reputation among reporters for being an outspoken advocate of women's rights and the role of women in government.

The day the legislature passed the state Equal Rights Amendment, Kitty Dukakis moved quickly through the State House, rounding up friendly legislators for that final, crucial vote.

She had spent the morning entertaining Kara's class of 17 first graders at a backyard garden party. Several of the boys in the class had taken over a playhouse in the yard and one girl came running to her, saying the boys wouldn't let her in.

"I told her, you go right back there and tell them to let you in. That's not right," Mrs. Dukakis said.

More Girls Are Studying Engineering

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Enrollment in engineering in Stanford University's undergraduate school has jumped nearly 40 per cent with the number of women majoring in the field nearly doubling.

The total of undergraduate majors rose from 471 to 651 this year with the number of women increasing from 49 to 91.

Good jobs and improved chances for graduate work are two reasons for the local and national trends, says Al Kirkland, assistant dean of engineering. Starting salaries for those with bachelor degrees in engineering from Stanford run $1,200 to $1,250 per month.

Mock Cheese Cake

MOCK CHEESE CAKE

From the 1950s and worth reviving.

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup fine zwieback crumbs
¼ cup finely chopped walnuts
1 tablespoon sugar
4 eggs, separated
14-ounce can condensed milk
1 teaspoon grated lemon or lime rind
1-3rd cup lemon or lime juice

Melt butter; off heat stir in crumbs, nuts and sugar. Beat together yolks, condensed milk, lemon rind and lemon juice until blended. Beat whites until stiff; fold into lemon mixture. Pat half of crumb mixture into an 8 by 8 by 2 inch baking dish. Pour in lemon mixture. Sprinkle with remaining crumb mixture. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven 30 minutes; let stand in oven with heat turned off and door closed for 1 hour. At its fluffiest and highest serve warm soon after this; but also delicious when chilled, although it sinks as it cools. Makes 8 servings.

RARE GIFT

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — A gift of 20 rare antique bottles, nucleus of a museum collection, has been made to The Culinary Institute of America here. The donor, Gordon Bass of Montclair, N.J., is a wine authority and collector of antique bottles. The containers date from the early 1600s to the mid-1800s.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

(Editor's Note: Guest columnist for this week is Marian Bailey.)

Judy Tingen spent her vacation in an unusual fashion this summer. The wife of James (Pistol) Tingen and mother of two young boys rode a Honda 350 to Florida and back with her husband and another couple.

In July, Judy, her husband and Kirby Pollard, a friend of the Tingens, started out from here. They stopped in Savannah, Ga. and picked up another passenger and drove until they reached Disneyworld.

"That was the best part of the trip. We were just like children. There was a special parking lot for motorcycles and when we parked our bikes there we saw license tags from all over the place. I couldn't believe some of the people rode all the way from Washington and California and we thought we had come so far, just from North Carolina" Judy said with a laugh.

In St. Augustine, Fla., she had an accident while riding her Honda. "It was raining and I fell on my bike and got all bruised up," she told the reporter. "You have to expect that to happen though if you ride a bike. People can look at my legs now and know I ride a motorcycle."

The four of them camped and stayed in motels while they were traveling, but when they reached their destination, Ft. Lauderdale, they spent three days in a condominium, which is owned by a friend.

"We felt like rednecks, riding up on bikes to that luxurious place where all the people were driving Cadillacs and Mercedes Benzes, but after we got out by the pool we felt no different than the rest. It was really nice." she said.

The entire trip was 2,050 miles long. With the men riding Honda 750's the two couples started home, reaching Greenville by July 19.

This was Mrs. Tingen's fourth long trip on her motorcycle having already traveled to Grandfather Mountain twice and Gatlinburg, Tenn. once. She and her husband are planning to go to Canada on their motorcycles next summer. "I can't wait until the boys are old enough to ride so they can go with us.", Mrs. Tingen added with a spark of excitement.

Pierce-McKinney Vows Said

Miss Jeanette Lee McKinney became the bride of Julian Flemming Pierce Jr. in an eight o'clock evening service Friday. The double ring ceremony took place in Calvary Baptist Church with Rev. Bobby G. Thomas as the officiating minister.

Mrs. Hilda Letchworth presented a program of nuptial music and Miss Janet Pleasant, soloist, sang "Each For The Other" and "Love Is The Key."

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Vicey Marie McKinney of Greenville, and the late, Mr. Arthur Lee McKinney Sr. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian F. Pierce Sr. of Ayden.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Dennis Walston, the bride wore a formal length gown of white satin designed with a scoop neckline. Lace enriched the empire bodice and the bishop sleeve. The modified Aline skirt was styled with matching lace down the front. Lace edged the attached chapel length train.

The bride wore a three tiered waist length illusion veil attached to a Camelot cap. She carried a lace covered Bible with carnations, pom pons and baby's breath with satin ribbon streamers.

The Matron of honor was Mrs. Linette Tripp of Washington, sister of the bride. She wore a formal length spring green crepe gown styled like the bride's. Her head-piece was a bow with streamers made of green embroidered flowered ribbon. She carried a long-stemmed mum sprayed with green ribbon streamers.

The maid of honor was Miss Phyllis Wainright of Greenville. She wore a pink crepe gown styled like that of the bride's. Her headpiece was like that of the matron of honor and she carried a long-stemmed mum with pink ribbon streamers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Joan Ellen Pierce of Ayden, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Teresa Edwards of Greenville. Their gowns, of baby blue crepe, and head pieces were styled as the other attendants. They carried long stemmed mums sprayed.

Miss Leah Williams of Washington was flower girl. Her gown was made of pink crepe and her headpiece of pink satin ribbon. She carried a basket filled with daisy petals and decorated with pom pons, daisies with pink satin ribbon streamers.

Julian F. Pierce Sr. served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Jimmy Smith of Black Jack, brother-in-law of the bridegroom Arthur McKinney Jr., brother of the bride, and Sam Walston, cousin of the bride, both of Greenville. Steven Black, of Washington, was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a high waisted formal length mint green crepe gown. The mother of the bridegroom wore a high waisted formal length blue polyester gown with flared short sleeves and skirt. They both mum corsages.

The bride changed into a blue suit for a wedding trip to an unannounced point, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a rising senior at J. H. Rose High School. She will be employed with Wachovia Computer Center in Greenville. The bridegroom graduated from Ayden-Grifton High School and is employed by Bob's TV and Appliance, Ayden.

The refreshment table was covered with a pink cloth overlayed with lace. It was centered with a silver candelabra decorated with greenery and pink flowers. After the bridal couple cut the first traditional slice of the four-tiered wedding cake, Mrs. Carolyn Edwards served the cake and Mrs. Carolyn Walston, aunt of the bride, poured punch. Miss Janet Pierce, sister of the bridegroom, greeted the guests.

Miss Peggy Dixon Weds Saturday Afternoon

AYDEN—Miss Peggy Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Dixon of Rt. 3, Ayden, and Josephus Burney Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Burney of Ayden, were united in marriage here Saturday at 4:00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by Amos Pollard. A program of wedding music was presented by Vanessa Griffin of Elizabeth City.

Her veil of imported silk illusion fell in triple layers from a Camelot cap of French chantilly lace appliques. Sprays of lace beading accented the cap and trimmed the chapel length illusion. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of daisies, baby's breath and miniature carnations.

The matron of honor was Curcelia Collins, sister of the bride, and Bernice Mabry was maid of honor. They were dressed in formal length halter gowns of polyester flock in rainbow colors accented by a floral cape. They wore white swiss braid hats and carried nosegays of white daisies with rainbow streamers.

Bridesmaids were Ms. Brenda West of Richmond, Va., Ms. Maurenia Dixon of Philadelphia, Pa., cousin of the bride, Ms. Cheryl Artis of Suffolk, Va., niece of the bride, Ms. Gwendolyn Vaughan of Arlington, Va., Ms. Annette Carney of Falkland, cousin of the bridegroom, and Ms. Michelle Burney of Greensboro, sister of the bridegroom. Their dresses, in rainbow colors, were styled like that of the honor attendants.

Junior bridesmaids were Ms. Vicki M. Dixon of Ayden, cousin of the bride, and Ms. Sonya Artis of Suffolk, Va., niece of the bride. The flower girls were Kesha Dixon, niece of the bride, and Brucetta Dixon, cousin of the bride, both of Ayden. Their dresses were identical to those of the other attendants and they carried white baskets trimmed with rainbow ribbon.

The train was carried by Gayla Hardy of Greenville, cousin of the bride. Tommy Nelms of Washington, D. C. cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Robert F. Gaskins of Ayden was best man and groomsmen were Michael Evans of Bronx, N. Y., Ernest Grimsley, Alonza Cox, David Gilbert and Venser Dixon, brother of the bride, all of Ayden, David McKenzie of Philadelphia, Pa. John Allen of Henderson, Michael Gilliam of Winston-Salem, Jessie Collins and Ernest Adams, both of Greenville. The junior groomsman was Perry Dixon of Ayden, brother of the bride.

The wedding was directed by Lucy M. Steward and Gloria Dixon.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of canary yellow polyester and the mother of the bridegroom selected a formal length gown of pale blue chiffon and satin. Both mothers wore corsages.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Elizabeth City.

The bride received her B.S. degree from Winston-Salem State University and her master's degree from Atlanta University, Atlanta, Ga. She is now a counselor at Elizabeth City State University. The bridegroom graduated from A & T State University.

A reception was held at the Ayden Community Building following the ceremony. Guests were greeted by Ester Stewart, aunt of the bride.

The three tier wedding cake was served by Retha Hemby and punch was poured by Ethel Dixon and Grace Dixon. Gifts were registered by Loletta P. Allen and Helen C. Locust.

The parents of the bride entertained the wedding party at a barbecue dinner at their home Friday.

Formal Wear For Summer Evenings

SUMMER EVENINGS can be greeted in floral chiffon or something a bit more clinging, with this season's wrap-and-tie look. New Math Is Taught A New Way

NEW CANAAN, Conn. (AP) — Elementary school pupils here learn their mathematics from several different teachers as part of a program to tailor teaching to the needs of individual pupils.

The system at the Center School in this affluent suburb of New York was designed by its principal, Stephen E. Rubin, who has a Ph. D. in systems theory.

Letting each pupil proceed at his or her own pace is a popular notion among educators but is often difficult to carry out. Rubin believes the whole school should serve each child and children should not be limited to their home rooms.

A set of 146 mathematics teaching objectives was developed. All pupils above the first grade study math during the same period. They move around from teacher to teacher depending on which one is teaching the skills they are ready to acquire.

The school has developed similar programs to a lesser degree in other subjects, including reading, science and social studies.

Information is readily available on how far each child has progressed through devices such as punchcards and flow charts that look like complex molecular drawings.

The program involves more communication between teachers, who must share information about their pupils.

"They really know the kids," said Pam Diamond, who has two children in the school. "You meet a teacher in the hall and she'll say something like, 'Renwick is having trouble with subtraction.'"

Rubin, 35, said that when he became principal of Center School in 1965, "There was no cohesion. Teachers in one grade didn't know what those in the others were doing. Everyone blamed someone else if there was a problem and in the end it was the kids who were short-changed."

He said no systematic studies have been made on the impact of the new programs, but in general pupils achieve "significantly above the levels one would expect on the basis of IQs."

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 10, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to live the Golden Rule and not to get involved in any arguments or adverse results could occur. Think out an intelligent way to solve a particular problem you have.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't argue over money with others. Show that you are a reasonable person. Don't try to force your wishes on others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get out of that bad mood and strive for more harmony in the home. Find a new method for handling regular routines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't burden others with your problems but handle them quietly by yourself and to the best of your ability.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get busy handling financial affairs for which you have little time during the work week. Avoid all arguments.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't get involved in outside affairs for the time being. Become reconciled with a person who has been a friend long ago.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't run off on some tangent at this time. Take time to engage in your favorite hobby with friends. Relax tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to extend some courtesy to another who needs your help at this time. Build up your self-esteem for the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Showing that you are an alert and responsible person is wise now. Don't run off on any foolish tangents at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Show good friends that you are truly interested in their welfare. Show family and friends that you have wisdom.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) First consult with an expert before making definite plans on a new project you have in mind. Smile and be happy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more alert to what those around you are doing and ask any questions that will clarify any situation at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to get your environment more comfortable. Strive to have a better understanding with a long-time associate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will know intuitively how to handle any difficult problem that may arise. Teach early not to lose temper when difficulties arise or a wonderful quality in this chart could be lost. Give ethical training early in life.

Trapper Respects His Adversary

By J. PATRICK LITTLE

WHITE RIVER, S. D. (UPI) — Clarence Grant tied a red bandana around his head, put on a hunting cap and gazed out at the windswept South Dakota prairie as he considered the best way to outsmart one of the most elusie and suspicious animals on the continent.

A coyote had become bold enough on an earlier summer morning to visit a ranch and kill a lamb for breakfast. It was easy and quick. So easy, the coyote could be expected back — just as soon as his hunger pains overcame a healthy fear of man. Another danger was the coyote would forego completely his diet of wild game to kill lambs and ewes for the sake of killing.

Grant, a trapper for the state and federal governments for the past 21 years, had been called to try and catch the coyote — only a third of the size of a timber wolf — before it could strike again. Although Grant is one of the best, his task is not an easy one — enticing the highly suspicious coyote to place its foot on the two-square-inches area of a trap pan.

Knowing the coyote will walk on soft ground whenever possible, Grant had been able to find footprints of the marauder in a recently plowed field. The trapper chose the head of one of two nearby dry creek beds — or fingers — as the location of the trap set.

One set already had been made near the field, but this set would be made closer to the coyote's home territory, and the coyote therefore would be more suspicious.

"You don't want to make too many sets," said Grant, who looks younger than his 57 years. "It'll make him start taking another route and then you have to start all over."

His 21 years of experience has taught Grant to be meticulously careful. Perspiration and dandruff — both of which can be detected by the coyote — necessitate the bandana and hat. Pants legs are pushed inside rock and brush-worn boots to prevent leaving human scent on weeds. Even the scent on boot soles is eliminated by rubbing them in the pungent odor of sage weeds.

Digging two small holes on a clear patch of ground, Grant placed the set traps in and packed dirt solidly around the springs and jaws.

"You have to pack dirt around the trap good so it won't push up if the coyote steps on part of the trap other than the pan," Grant explained as he worked under the hot sun. That completed, a sandwich bag was placed over the pan to prevent the sifted dirt from falling under it and preventing the trap from springing when the coyote stepped on it.

When he was finished, the ground looked as it did before he started. Weeds and small stones were utilized to guide the coyote over the traps instead of walking around the two spots. In three days to two weeks, Grant would have the coyote. He said in one case he caught a pair of coyotes at the same set where he always uses two traps.

Like any other trapper, Grant knows his territory well. The only difference is, his covers several thousand square miles of rolling prairie. And yet, while driving down remote and seemingly endless dirt roads, Grant pointed left and right to locations of coyote dens.

"I only trap on a complaint, but when I get one in an area, I generally know already which coyotes could be causing the trouble," Grant said.

The value of the trapper to the rancher is evident by the welcome he receives at each ranch house he visits. A hot meal and the invitation to stay the night always are offered. Grant is in the field all week.

"Two years ago, they lost 250 lambs, and the next, they lost 150," he said. "I really worked at that one." Grant, whose hair is beginning to gray, said he trapped through the winter and that, by the end of last summer, "they lost only one lamb," he said proudly — holding up a single, tanned finger.

The respect is obvious in Grant's voice when he talks about the coyote.

"They probably are the most adaptable animal around," he said. "There is a higher concentration of coyotes in the Los Angeles area than in any other area of the United States.

"Coyotes always will be around," Grant said in admiration of his life-long adversary. "A friend of mine once said that if we had a nuclear war and everything was wiped out, the only thing that would crawl out of the crack in the ground after things settled down a bit would be a coyote."

Visits From The Tot Generation

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — For weeks the tiny tots attending the Tamalpais Nursery school watched their somewhat senior neighbors in the Redwoods Retirement Home across the street. Many of the seniors were confined to wheel chairs; others walked with canes.

Then one of the tiny tots made a suggestion: "Let's visit those old ladies across the street."

The nursery school teacher thought it would be a good idea and it was arranged.

Now, once a week the little ones bring smiles and happiness to the faces of the older ones.

Auto Industry Probed

There are more than 100 million American cars on the road. But the auto industry, a mainstay of the United States economy, is in the midst of a slump that has affected the largest number of people in the industry's history.

ABC News looks at the economic power of the industry and examines its capacity to produce safer, cleaner, more fuel-efficient cars in the documentary special, "ABC News Closeup on Autos: Spoiled by Success?," Friday, August 15, 10:00 to 11:00 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Av Westin, Executive Producer of ABC News Television Documentaries, said in making the announcement: "The auto industry has a special position in our economy. About one in six workers depends for a livelihood on the industry and related business. The decisions made in Detroit affect the well-being and the pocketbooks of the majority of American families.

"We will explore some of the decisions that have led the industry to the crossroads where it stands today - caught in a recession and faced with the need to develop new responses in a time of diminishing fuel supplies and increasing pollution.

James Benjamin, producer - director, said the ABC News investigation shows that as early as 1952 a Presidential report warned that a fuel shortage was coming and called for smaller, more fuel - efficient cars.

"But in the 1950s and '60s," observed Benjamin, "American autos grew larger and less fuel - efficient. We ask: Why? Safety devices exist to reduce the yearly toll of an estimated 50,000 auto fatalities by 20 percent but the devices are not in our cars. Why?"

In seeking the answers, ABC News Science Editor Jules Bergman and Dan Cordtz, ABC News National Economic Correspondent, have interviewed, among other experts, the Board Chairmen of leading auto manufacturers. They are: Thomas Murphy of General Motors Corp., Henry Ford II of Ford Motor Co., Lynn Townsend of Chrysler Corp. and Roy Chapin of American Motors. Others interviewed include consumer advocate Ralph Nader and Russell Train, Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

"ABC News Closeup on Autos: Spoiled by Success?" was filmed in Detroit, Chicago, Washington, D.C. and New York.

AUTO INDUSTRY . . . The "ABC Closeup" report on the auto industry, airing Friday, August 15 (10-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV, seeks answers on decision-making from the board chairman of leading manufacturers. The report examines the industry as an economic power and its cars as energy consumers.

They're 'Cream Of Musical Crop'

NEW SUMMER SERIES — "The Manhattan Transfer," four singers named Laurel Masse, Janis Siegel, Tim Hauser and Alan Paul (Seated), will brighten the summer with their smooth renditions of favorites from the past, on their four-week series which premieres Sunday, August 10 (7:30-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

According to critics and audiences across the country, The Manhattan Transfer (Tim Hauser, Laurel Masse, Alan Paul and Janis Siegel) may be one of the hottest new vocal groups on the music scene. Well, what do they do? "Hard to define, exactly," admits Hauser, with amusement, "but once someone has seen or heard us, we're sure they won't forget us."

Indeed. Elegantly costumed in formal attire, "The Manhattan Transfer" performs the cream of popular hit tunes from the 1920s to the 1970s in complex harmony, with sophistication, and with a good deal of humor. They'll be doing it, moreover, on their own four-week music-and-comedy series, which premieres Sunday, August 10, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS-TV and Ch. 9-11.

"We cover a lot of musical ground," Alan Paul says. "We found that a song people loved 30 years ago will be loved now, even though, or maybe because it sounds like the good old days." Paul, who has been performing since he appared on Broadway in "Oliver," was starring in the Broadway musical "Grease" when he joined The Manhattan Transfer, which was formed just three years ago — by accident.

Program Response

"I am interested in seeing a 'Saturday Close-Up' feature concerning modern methods of childbirth," wrote Ms. Martha Herrick of Rochester, N.Y., to the "ABC Saturday News With Ted Koppel." "I am appalled at the unnecessarily high infant mortality rates in the United States," she wrote.

Ms. Herrick's letter was one of hundreds which have been coming in ever since ABC News Diplomatic Correspondent Ted Koppel first announced the proposed regular feature, "Saturday Close-Up," inviting viewers' suggestions. Local scandals, injustices and other areas which don't often make the news spotlight, but which would be of national interest, are examined.

In the past weeks, naturalist Roger Caras, in response to several letters on cruelty to animals, has provided features on the dangerous, indiscriminate and inhumane use of animal traps; and in a second report, revealed the conditions at an animal pound from which there are no survivors.

On Saturday, July 26, an incisive look into the shockingly high infant mortality rate, with ABC News Correspondent Margaret Osmer, was presented, as a result of Ms. Herrick's letter, and others like it.

Each week "Saturday Close-Up" will present features like these, prompted by viewer mail. Suggestions should be directed to: "Saturday Close-Up," 7 West 66th Street, New York, N.Y. 10023.

They're Not Actors

A visitor on the 'set' of "Oh! Baby, Baby, Baby. . ." questioned a man wearing an intern's whites and a young woman in a nurse's uniform.

"What characters do you play?" he asked.

"Nobody," said the man. "We're real."

The conversation took place at Washington Hospital in Culver City, California, where the "ABC Afternoon Playbreak" comedy, starring Judy Carne and Bert Convy, was being taped. The 90-minute special will air Thursday, Aug. 14, 1:30 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. The doctor and the nurse were serving as technical advisors on the show. All the other uniformed personnel were performers.

The entire first floor wing of the 99-bed hospital had been set aside for makeup, wardrobe, dressing rooms, production office, story sites, cameras, monitors, and other appurtenances necessary for location shooting. The story, which focuses on an intern and his wife - played by Bert and Judy - who are about to become parents of quintuplets, is enacted in an authentic setting, including the doctor's office, delivery room, and nursery.

As Judy Carne said, laughing, "In this atmosphere, I'm almost convinced I'm about to have five babies. It's fantastic, of course, but its happened before, you know."

Judy, now a fetching redhead and still as slim as when she starred in the "Love on a Rooftop" series for ABC-TV eight years ago, has ten wardrobe changes in "Baby," and with the aid of three progressively larger body pads simulates various stages of pregnancy, from six months to nine months.

Around the corridor, producer Alan Landsburg and his assistant sat in the hospital emergency room, watching the actors on a small monitor. Suddenly, the outside door opened and a man hurried in, calling for a nurse.

"I have an emergency patient outside," he said when a nurse appeared. Moments later, the patient was placed in a wheelchair and taken upstairs, accompanied by the man and his wife.

Later the couple noticed the monitor and sat down to watch.

Captain's Coming At Ya'

A visit by Stubby Kaye and some of his animal friends, and a ride on the Goodyear Blimp are among the highlights on "Captain Kangaroo" broadcasts, Monday through Friday, Aug. 11-15 (8-9 a.m.), on CBS-TV.

Monday morning Miss Ogleby, orinthologist, requests the help of the Captain in her search for a rare Wibble bird that turns out to be "Captain Kangaroo's" very own World Bird. Debbie reads the story "Jennifer's Walk."

Stubby Kaye brings some of his animal friends to the Captain's Place — a goat, skunk, duck, llama and a dog — Tuesday. The Captain's friends make spaghetti for Homer, who desires something other than dog food to eat.

Mr. Tweety, the Bird Watcher, comes to the Captain's Place Wednesday morning with his portable suitcase rooms to camp out in the garden.

On Thursday's show, the Captain takes an exciting trip over the Pacific Ocean on the Goodyear Blimp to follow the migration of the grey whale. A visit to the S.S. Queen Mary and Marineland in Southern California concludes the adventure, which is fun, as well as educational.

FAMILY AFFAIR — Christopher George and Lynda Day George make acting a family affair when they guest-star in "Sharks!" a McCloud drama about a ruthless loan shark operation on "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" August 10 (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Eyesight Under Close Scrutiny

Why does Lord Peter Wimsey wear a monocle? To see the clues better?

Not necessarily. It's more likely that the Dorothy Sayers super-sleuth uses the eyepiece to be seen, rather than to see.

This startling information comes to light as Lord Peter is busy tracking down the cause of death of a young man who fell down a spiral staircase in "Murder Must Advertise." Lord Peter is so busy that it takes him four weeks of PBS Sunday Night Masterpiece Theatre at 8:30 p.m. to unravel the labyrinth of clues.

There are not many precise cluse as to the extent of Lord Peter optical disability to be found in the works of his creator, novelist Dorothy L. Syers. In "Whose Body?" Lord Peter does agree with Inspector Parker's observation that the Wimsey monocle is a "powerful lens." But he's quick to add "and jolly useful when you want to take a good squint at simethin' and look like a bally fool . . ."

All of which makes some close Wimsey observers suspect that Lord Peter may very well have had minimal — if any — eye trouble, and that he used his monocule as a ploty, or put-on — and a "powerful" one at that.

One observer, a Wimsey student since he was a boy, is actor Ian Carmichael, who portrays Lord Peter on the repeat of the Mobil-funded series.

"The point is that Wimsey is putting on his facade," Carmichael theorizes, explaining that the monocle has long been a tradition of the English nobility. "Whimsey is cunningly adopting the misleading mantle of the classical English twit."

First Lady Interviewed

Betty Ford, First Lady for just one year, sits for her first extensive television interview in a candid conversation with CBS News Correspondent Morley Safer on "60 minutes" Sunday, Aug. 10, 9:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

"This is an unusual interview with a very unusual woman," says Safer. "She is open, honest, and completely frank as she discusses her attitudes about her roles as First Lady, wife and mother— and as an independent person in her own right."

The Best Of Pops

(See Sunday Schedule)

When Roger Williams strides on stage in a crepe Edwardian suit — complete with jabot and lacy cuffs — the audience goes wild. "This is Roger Williams of 'Autumn Leaves'?" a woman asks, incredulously. It certainly is — a better-than ever Roger Williams - playing everything from Brahms to music from the silent movie era on the Best of Pops, Sunday, August 10, at 7:30 p.m. on UNC-TV.

Roger Williams begins by practically smashing the piano keys during his opening chord for Brahm's Hungarian Dance No. 5. He grins that flashy grin at the audience's applause and begins to small-talk in his impossible Nebraska drawl — folksy, charming, flittery-yet-down home, "Thanks very much it sure is good to be back in Boston again — especially with Maestro Fiedler." With his combo of percussion, electric guitar and electric bass he goes on to play "On a Clear Day," "Killing Me Softly," "The Way We Were," and his own, most irreverent version of Chopin — "Chopin '73."

Roger Williams then gets into movie music—silent movie music — and Symphony Hall becomes an old movie house! Danger, music; swooning music; running music and best of all— chase and rescue music. This is a marvelous act — with Williams shouting "Help is coming! Help is coming!" with the audience going delightedly - wild and hissing during the villain music and with Williams singling out people in the audience and crying, triumphantly, "See! You remember, you remember!"

This incomparable artist's recording of "Autumn Leaves" in 1955 sold more albums than any other pianist's arrangement in the history of recording, a total of fifteen million copies. This was his beginning on the road to fame.

From there Roger Williams went on the make five more "Gold Albums." They were "Till," "Songs of the Fabulous '50's, Part I," "Songs of the Fabulous '50's, Part II," "Roger Williams' Greatest Hits" and "Born Free".

A native son of Omaha, Nebraska, Roger Williams' father was a Lutheran minister, and his mother — who first taught him to play the piano — was a music teacher. By the time Williams was three years old he could play the piano by ear and by the time he was eight he had mastered twelve other instruments as well. After high school and World War II he received a Master of Arts degree at Drake University in Iowa and then enrolled at the Julliard School in New York where he studied with jazz master Teddy Wilson.

Biblical Epic On ABC

Timothy Bottoms, Keith Mitchell and Anthony Quayle will star in "The Story of David," a special "ABC Theatre" dramatization of the Biblical epic of battles and betrayals and politics and passions. Production began recently in Israel on the program which will encompass four hours of prime time programming during the Easter season.

Commenting on the project, multi - award - winner Mildred Freed Alberg - the producer - said, "What is particularly exciting is that in the story of David as written in the Bible, we have an eyewitness account of David as King.

A Way With Windows
Too often the amateur decorator approaches windows with the idea that there is little variety possible in this area of interior design. Curtains or draperies, she believes, are the only solutions. While simple curtaining is often the best way, there are many other treatments to consider. Roman shades, roller shades, Venetian blinds, cafes, shutters, sliding plastic panels — these are but a few of many possibilities. In choosing the one most suitable for your windows, consider what it can do for the architecture of your room.
Consider what new wall to wall carpeting can do for your home. It's a wise investment in beauty and comfort for many years to come. Eastern Carpet, Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Carpet is our Business, Not a Hobby."

Hang Gliding Is Easy For James Coleman

SOARS SKIES— James Coleman, who stars as officer T. J. McCabe, on ABC-TV "S.W.A.T." Mondays (9-10 p.m.) spends most of his weekends hang gliding at Torrance Beach, Calif., accompanied by his girlfriend actress Ronne Troup.

"Learning to hang glide is easier than learning to ride a bicycle," says James Coleman, who stars as T. J. McCabe in ABC-TV's "S.W.A.T.," seen Mondays from 9 to 10 p.m. on Channel 3-5-12.

Jim, a former Air Force Academy cadet, took up sky sailing nearly two years ago when he was living in a commune near the Oregon coast. Three months later he was making a living as an instructor.

"A few years ago," says Jim, "there were only a few hang gliding buffs on the west coast. Today, there are about 35,000 enthusiasts around the country. It's one of the safest sports I know of. Accidents occur when people get careless, over confident. People get upset when they read about injuries and deaths, but when you consider how many people are hang gliding these days, you realize that accidents are actually rare. More people are hurt riding bikes and walking across streets."

Jim's sky sail is a Seagull III whose basic design is referred to as the Rogallo type (after designer Francis M. Rogallo). It is constructed of Dacron and aircraft quality aluminum tubing. Its rigging is stainless steel. On weekends, he often glides over Torrance Beach, a few miles south of Los Angeles. Catching a gentle uphill breeze, he sails at speeds of about 18 miles an hour, soaring to altitudes of several hundred feet for minutes or hours, depending on wind current and personal durability. Actress Ronne Troup, who is Jim's girlfriend, is his number one student these days.

"Ronne has heard me describe the free, mellow feeling I get from gliding," Jim says. "She hasn't gone up yet, but she will eventually. I'm not prodding her. Maybe it's better that she should just watch me and help me maintain my sky sail. She's learning a lot.

"The first thing she learned is that there are no hang gliders built for two."

Japan's Prime Minister

Prime Minister Takeo Miki of Japan, who will visit this country for the first time to meet with President Gerald Ford, will be the interview guest on the ABC News series, "Issues and Answers," Sunday, August 10.

The program will originate in New York on ABC-TV, and the Nippon Educational Television Network will broadcast the program in Japan.

Prime Minister Miki has called his upcoming talks with President Ford of "utmost importance" in strengthening relations between Japan and the United States.

An advocate of peaceful coexistence and an opponent of large Japanese military forces, Mr. Miki became Prime Minister on Dec. 9, 1974. He succeeded Kakuei Tanaka who resigned. Prime Minister Miki, 67, a veteran of Parliament, has held a number of Cabinet posts including Foreign Minister.

Late Night Attractions

"Harold Lloyd's World of Comedy," a biographical recollection in-depth of the great comic actor more popular in his time than even Buster Keaton and Charlie Chaplin, is a "Wide World: Special" among the programs to be rebroadcast on ABC-TV's late-night schedule for the week of August 11-15, in the 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. time period.

"Wide World Mystery" presents "Screamer" on Monday, Aug. 11, with Pamela Franklin as the victim of an assault, who sees her attacker in a number of men, and takes her revenge on each. Also starred in the suspense drama are Frances White, Donal McCann and Peter Howell.

Anne Francis stars as the unfaithful wife whose anniversary party turns into a nightmare when it develops that the club rented by her husband for the occasion belongs to her former lover, in "Night Life," a "Wide World: Mystery" airing on Tuesday, Aug. 12. Also starring are Tim Matheson, Joel Fabiani and Heather MacRae.

Host Allen Funt unreels highlights of his "Candid Camera" in "Candid Camera: A 25th Anniversary Salute," the "Wide World: Special" airing Wednesday, Aug. 13.

The salute includes memorable stunts by Woody Allen, Dorothy Collins and Fannie Flagg, and a tailored-for-television portion of Funt's motion picture, "What Do You Say to a Naked Lady?"

Geraldo Rivera will bring his newest report on contemporary people and events to the magazine-styled "Geraldo Rivera: Good Night America," a "Wide World: Special" for Thursday, Aug. 14.

Dick Van Dyke is the host for "Harold Lloyd's World of Comedy," a "Wide World: Special" which will be seen Friday, Aug. 15. The major part of the program is devoted to Lloyd's highly successful films, including early one-reelers from the period when his perilous daredevil stunts left audiences gasping.

Actor Sees New Outlook

John Danelle is a black actor who would like to expand the dimensions of the black man as portrayed on film. So he has written his own script about adventures of a middle class black. "I get tired of seeing the same style of one-dimensional black man in films. Not all black people are from the ghetto, or involved in dope, or spout only street talk," he said in a recent interview during a break in the taping of ABC-TV's daytime series, "All My Children" (Mon. Thur Fri., 12:30 to 1 p.m.), in which he plays Dr. Frank Grant.

The role of Dr. Grant gives exposure to that kind of black character that Danelle would like to see more of in the media.

Danelle himself is a multi-faceted man. In addition to acting and writing, he dabbles in carpentry ("I built a bed that comes out of the wall and would like to build my own house some day"), is studying karate, enjoys riding his motorcycle, and likes training his two dogs, a German short-haired pointer and a Yorkshire terrier.

Born in Pittsburgh, he attended Pittsburgh Military College ("After six months I knew there was no way I belonged there") and later Penn State, where "I hung around a lot of theatre types." He quit college to join the Pittsburgh Playhouse and from there he went to Carnegie Tech and on to a series of small acting jobs. His Broadway credits include "The Sign in Sydney Brustein's Window" and "Tough to Get Help."

John Danelle is a multi-dimensional man— just the sort that could very well serve as the subject of a film about the adventures of another kind of black man, different from what the cinema world is now portraying.

FAME GAME

Lloyd Bridges, star of the new drama series, "Joe Forrester," enjoys teasing his actor sons, Beau and Jeff Bridges, about the times when they were embarrassed by their father's fame. "Until they got into the business and became famous themselves," Lloyd says. "They used to make me drop them off a few blocks from school so the other kids wouldn't know who their father was."

SOME HOLIDAY — A vacationing retired cop, Willy Calso (Lee J. Cobb), turns his holiday into an investigation of diamond thefts in "The Great Ice Rip-Off" on ABC-TV's "Tuesday Movie of the Week" August 12 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

House Provides Opulent Setting

"Actually the house should get co-star billing," said Jack Cassidy, who was standing at the foot of a magnificent rolling lawn in front of a Bel Air (Calif.) mansion built in the style of an English country manor.

"It looks like the place where they signed the treaty ending World War I," he quipped.

The sprawling estate was being used as the principal location for "Death Among Friends," an "NBC World Premiere Movie" to be colorcast Tuesday, Aug. 12, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on NBC-TV.

The drama is about a couple of international business tycoons living in high style at the mansion until one of them is found slain.

Kate Reid stars as a Los Angeles police lieutenant who investigates the case; Cassidy portrays an over-the-hill tennis pro mooching off the tycoons.

Though much of the movie was filmed in and around the four-acre estate, costly replicas of a couple of the rooms were built at the studios.

The estate is on the market, and the agent for it is Donna Douglas, the former actress who for nine years on TV, as one of the Clampetts, lived in another mansion on "The Beverly Hillbillies."

Vengeance Spells Danger

A nightclub owner rents his entire club for an evening to a couple and discovers too late they are his mistress and her vengeful husband, in "Night Life," which will receive an encore presentation as a "Wide World Mystery" on "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," Tuesday, Aug. 12, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Anne Francis, Charles Aidman, Tim Matheson, Joel Fabiani and Heather MacRae star in the suspense drama.

Pete and Tommy Martino, owners of a struggling nightclub, are pleased when a couple rents the club for an anniversary party. But Pete's pleasure turns to horror when the couple turns out to be his mistress, Midge Ross, and her husband, Paul.

Much Mileage From This One

"Welcome aboard bus Number 2032. You'll be our passengers for two days, so sit back and enjoy the trip and leave the directing to me."

Thus did producer - director Dan Curtis welcome cast and crew of "The Great Ice Rip-Off," the ABC-TV "Tuesday Movie of the Week" (Aug. 12, 8:30 to 10 p.m.), to an unusual two days of filming on a large passenger bus.

"This was not a cutaway section of a bus on a sound stage," reveals Curtis, "but a regular bus on the open highway."

The entire concept is in keeping with Curtis' style of all-location filming. In this case, the story deals with separate members of a gang committing a series of diamond robberies that are timed to the arrival and departure of the bus in various cities between Seattle and San Diego, with each culprit boarding the bus after his heist. The gang's leader, played by Gig Young, and a retired police officer, portrayed by Lee J. Cobb, are fellow passengers, each unaware of the other's true calling.

To facilitate filming on the bus, which Curtis felt would give the sequence a feeling of reality, several seats were removed to enable the camera crew to photograph the scenes from different angles.

"We had to remove sections of the roof and windows to put in our lights," said cinematographer Paul Lohman, who says these were the tightest quarters he's ever filmed in — including a submarine. "I also had the driver let some air out of the tires to cut down on the vibration while we were in motion. The batteries for the lights were stored in the baggage compartment."

The actual run of the bus was about four miles north and south of Malibu on the Pacific Coast Highway just north of Los Angeles.

"There is a great variety of scenery within this eight mile stretch which matches Washington, northern California, and points-in-between," says Curtis.

For actor-driver Norman Honath, a former Greyhound bus jockey, the task was a delicate one.

"I had to be very careful with starts and stops so as not to jar the camera," recalls Honath. "I also had the responsibility of a few hundred thousand dollars worth of talent and equipment in the 33,000 pound monster."

Honath also admits that the driving did get a bit boring on occasion.

"I'm sure I know every tree, bush, sideroad and chuckhole along the highway in that particular area," he said.

In two days, he put 254 miles on the bus.

REALISTIC DRAMA—Rod Taylor and Yvette Mimieux star in "Dark of the Sun," a realistic drama set against the background of the violent conflict in the Belgian Congo in the early 1960s. The film will have its television premiere on the "ABC Sunday Night Movie" Aug. 10 (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Congo Uprisings Drama On Sunday

Jim Brown, Rod Taylor, Yvette Mimieux and Kenneth Moore star in "Dark of the Sun," a realistic drama set against the background of the violent conflict in the Belgian Congo in the early 1960s. This agonizing story of rebels, mercenaries, refugees and murderers will be presented on "ABC Sunday Night Movie," Aug. 10, 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

John Cardiff ("Sons and Lovers") directed the drama of a war-torn nation, where children are casually murdered on behalf of a 'cause'; money means more than lives, and a new nation brings out the best and worst in heroes and cowards.

The story begins when a group of mercenaries led by Capt. Curry (Rod Taylor) and Sgt. Ruffo (Jim Brown) undertake a mission to rescue the inhabitants of a small town which is under attack by the rebel Simba forces in the Congo.

The action that follows includes the sacking and burning of the town by the rebels; the heroism of the mercenaries as they retake the town and rescue the panic-stricken refugees; a series of attacks on Curry's armored train by enemy jet planes; the entry into a time vault containing $20 million worth of uncut diamonds, and the derailing of the train.

Yvette Mimieux stars as Claire, an earthy, sensual blonde, whose presence among the soldiers on the trail is as potentially dangerous as a cache of high explosives.

Good Role

Scott Jacoby, who stars in the title role of "Bad Ronald" on ABC's "Wednesday Movie of the Week," Aug. 13, 8:30 to 10:00 p.m., seems to be first in the running when a producer has a role for a disturbed teenager.

As Ronald, Scott plays a friendless boy who accidentally kills a girl. His mother, portrayed by Kim Hunter, helps him wall off a room in their house and makes him hide there where he retreats into a fantasy world. When she dies suddenly, he is unable to cope with the situation, and all the frustrations and bitterness come to the surface, tipping the balance and sending him over the edge.

Director Buzz Kulik, who sent the script to a psychiatrist friend before he started the film, says, "The story is a psychological study of a boy with no father who has been overly protected by his mother and who is a misfit with his peers.

"The traumatic experiences of the accidental killing of the girl, then his mother's death, lead him right down the path into classic schizophrenia," he says.

Scott himself, who graduated from high school this year, has studied psychology because he feels that it helps him to achieve better understanding of the roles he is asked to play.

Adding to Kulik's description, Scott says, "When Ronald begins to relate to fantasy rather than reality, he becomes almost catatonic."

Scott won an Emmy for his difficult role in "'That Certain Summer" and gave a stirring performance in "The Man Who Could Talk to Kids," both ABC "Movie of the Week" presentations.

Another Language Used By Actors

David Hartman, who stars as Lucas Tanner on NBC's "Lucas Tanner," Wednesdays, 9 to 10 p.m., says that if an actor were to talk technically in his social life, it might sound something like this:

"I knew the jokes for the day and when I hit the set, the first thing I did was an ECU. Then they did a POV shot. Next thing I knew, I was hit with a senior and for the next shot it was a junior.

"Before lunch I did a wild track and a voice over. Then there was a reverse. After lunch they slipped me some pinks and told me that some blues were coming.

"The broads got so hot that I was sweating and Picasso slapped a puff on my kisser.

"By the end of the day I was exhausted but I knew that we only had a few more segs to get in the can and then I could spend several months relaxing on my hiatus."

Translation: I knew my lines and my first shot was an extreme close-up. The next shot was from my point of view. Then they turned a large kleig light on me and then a smaller one.

I did a line over for the soundman and then did a line where you hear my voice but do not see me. The next shot was in the opposite direction from the previous one. They gave me some rewrites and said some more were coming.

The lights were so hot, that to get rid of the perspiration, the makeup man powdered my face.

I knew we only had a few more episodes to film and when they were completed, I could spend several months vacationing.

Police Officials

Six of the nation's leading police officials will be the guests on a special one-hour edition of "Meet the Press," Sunday, Aug. 10, on NBC-TV.

Participating on the special edition are Joseph D. McNamara, Chief of Police of Kansas City, Mo.; James C. Parsons, Chief of Police of Birmingham, Ala.; Robert J. diGrazia, Police Commissioner of Boston; Edward M. Davis, Chief of Police of Los Angeles; Hubert Williams, Police Director of Newark, N.J.; and Patrick V. Murphy, President of the Police Foundation.

Lawrence E. Spivak, producer and regular panelist, will be the moderator.

Newsman interviewing the guests will be Jose M. Ferrer, III of Time magazine, Carl T. Rowan of The Chicago Daily News, James J. Kilpatrick of The Washington Star Syndicate and Bill Monroe of NBC News.

Funt Admits He's Been Duped

In the course of Allen Funt's long career, he has conducted thousands of interviews for "Candid Camera" and, thus, should know about people. He has been looked upon as a type of para-psychologist - sociologist, and the U.S. government has often called on his expertise with the hidden camera and other sophisticated equipment. Yet with all this knowledge and insight, Funt confesses he is the most easily duped man in the world and that he is fooled time and time again.

Funt - the man who has himself fooled thousands and entertained millions of people - is joined by Dorothy Collins, Durward Kirby, Fannie Flagg and John Bartholomew Tucker in "Candid Camera: A 25th Anniversary Salute." The "Wide World Special" will be rebroadcast on the "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," Wednesday, Aug. 13, 11:30 p.m. to 1:00 a.m.

In a recent interview, Funt remembered fondly how once he was even duped by Arthur Godfrey, a one-time co-host of "Candid Camera": "Godfrey had this weekly radio show and he wanted me to be a guest on it. So his writers interviewed me, and they gave me such a terrible time. They knew everything I was sensitive about. First they said to me, 'Godfrey knows your show is phony . . and why is it you're always on it . . because of your ego?" Funt recounted that only shock kept him from screaming out his rage. Later he found out that he had become the butt of his own kind of humor.

"Candid Camera" has been more than a program to Funt. He confided, "Without this show I would be either dead or in a sanitarium. My life has been a turbulence, a soap opera background that would have killed anybody else. But 'Candid Camera' in its own way has been a balancing factor because you see how nutty life is."

For Funt, life has been "nutty," indeed, for the man who has tricked so many people for a laugh was ironically the victim two years ago of an embezzlement scheme which cost him a fortune, a much-publicized event which will never be seen on "Candid Camera."

'The Man' Visits Tony Wednesday

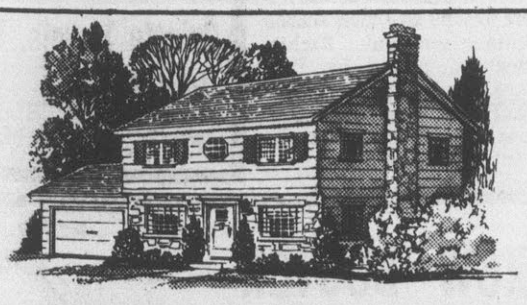

Special guest star Jack Albertson of "Chico and the Man" joins guest star Ruth Buzzi on a rebroadcast of "Tony Orlando and Dawn" Wednesday, Aug. 13, 8:00 to 9:00 p.m., on CBS-TV and Channels 9-11.

In the main comedy sketch, the entire cast joins in a spoof of "Gone With the Wind" with Orlando as Rhett Butler, Miss Buzzi as Scarlett O'Hara, Albertson as her father, and Telma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent Wilson (the show's Dawn) as singing slaves.

For their opening number, Orlando and Dawn sing a medley of two Beatles songs, "Help" and "We Can Work it Out."

Thursday Movie

James Earl Jones and Jane Alexander star in roles they created on Broadway, in the film version of the Pulitzer-Prize winning play "The Great White Hope," to be rebroadcast on "The Thursday Night Movies" August 15, 9 to 11 p.m., in color on Ch. 9-11.

The drama, inspired by the colorful events in the life of boxer Jack Johnson, tells the tragic story of the world's first black heavyweight champion. Jones plays Jack Jefferson, a fighter whose skill in the ring is outmatched by his tendency to flaunt his victory and his girl friend, played by Jane Alexander.

HOPELESSLY IN LOVE — Joanne Woodward stars as Rachel, a middle-aged schoolteacher who attempts to break out of her bleak existence and falls hopelessly in love with a man she knew as a child, in "Rachel, Rachel" the August 14 color-cast of "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

"Rachel" Is Moving Drama

Joanne Woodward stars as a lonely, smalltown schoolteacher in "Rachel, Rachel," a poignant drama to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" Aug. 14, 9:00 to 11:00 p.m., on Channels 6-7. The film marked the feature film directing debut of her husband, Paul Newman. Estelle Parsons and Geraldine Fitzgerald co-star.

Rachel Cameron (Miss Woodward), living with her demading, widowed mother, finds herself trapped and frustrated by her bleak existence as she approaches 35.

HOLLYWOOD—Wayne Rogers will be seen on TV during the upcoming new season. Though he's no longer part of "MASH", an injunction sought to prevent him from appearing in any other shows has been overturned in the courts. 20th Century-Fox Studios, producer of the combat show, had sought the injunction when it filed a breach of contract suit against the actor.

Five actors on daytime TV's "General Hospital" have been given the pink slip, including Peter Kilman who's been a cast member for nine years. Newcomer Rod McCary will also be leaving the show, as will Shelby Hiatt. The latter will leave in August while the others depart in September. ABC is making an all-out effort to beef up the show's ratings.

Everyone associated with Mary Tyler Productions is still in shock from the shooting death actress Barbara Colby. Ms. Colby was to be a regular on "Phyllis" this fall, and had become very close friends with Cloria Leachman, Valerie Harper and Mary. She and actor James Kiernan were gunned down in a Los Angeles parking lot by two would-be robbers.

Members of the Manhattan Transfer, the singing group that stars in its own summer show on CBS this month, are convinced it was destiny that brought them together four years ago: they're all left-handed.

Series Is "Movin' On" With Filming

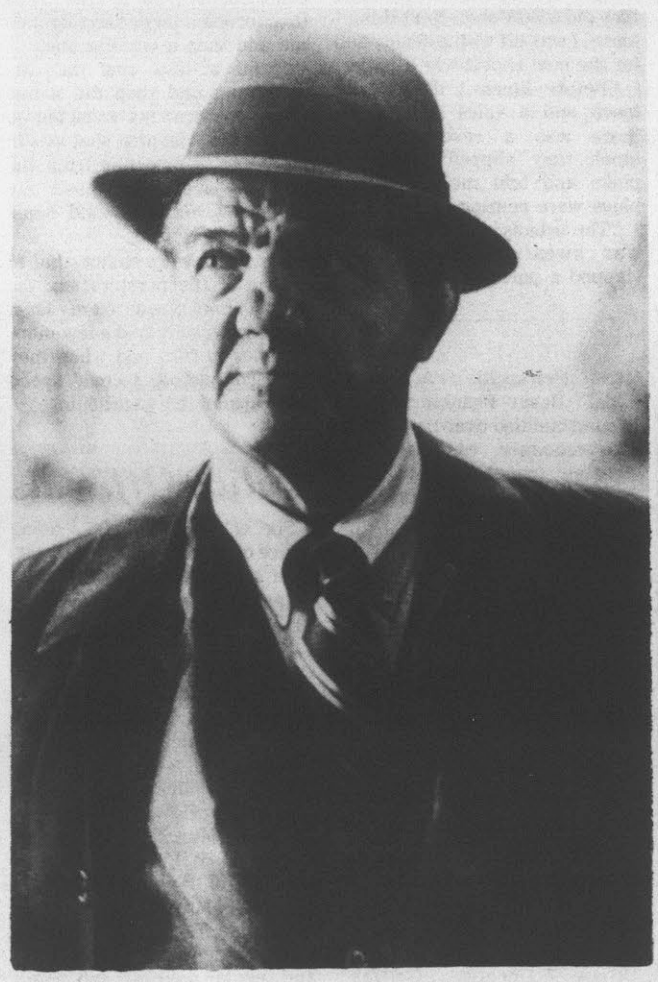

NBC-TV's series "Movin' On" has taken to the road again, and plans are for the show to be an urban show rather than a rural one such as lat year's. The segments seen the first season were filmed primarily in the Northwest and this year's shows are to be shot exclusively in the east.

This change of locales is not without its problems, however. Now the producers of "Movin' On" are having to contend with the ills of the city.

"Our trucks are being sabotaged by people putting sugar in the gas tanks," says co-producer Barry Weitz.

"Moving an entire company around each week is like moving a regiment," continued Weitz. "We have our own caterer and we have to set up camp every where.

The crew is currently filming from there they will film in the states of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

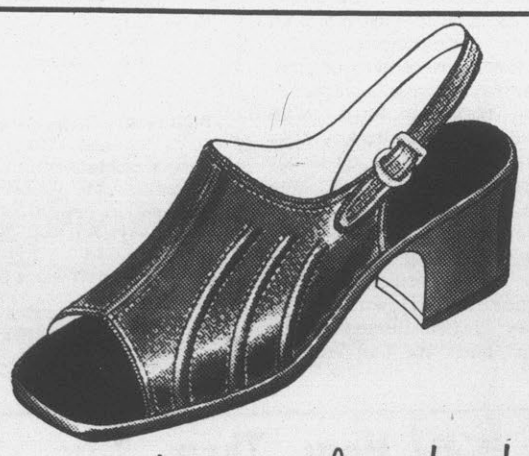

KARL MALDEN—stars with Michael Douglas in "The Streets Of San Francisco". The episode for Thursday, Aug. 14, titled "Letter From the Grave," was shot on location on Alcatraz. As Lt. Mike Stone and Inspector Steve Keller, Malden and Douglas are challenged to solve the mystery of a one-time Alcatraz prisoner, believed to have escaped, but who was actually killed and left hidden in the former federal penitentiary.

Happy Days On Daytime

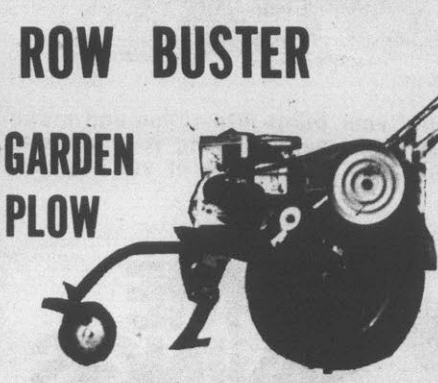

"Happy Days" will join the ABC Television Network's daytime schedule on Monday, September 1, with presentations of the popular prime time series airing Monday - Friday, 11:30 to 12 noon. The series will continue in the network's prime time lineup when it returns this fall for its second full season with all new original episodes.

The nostalgic comedy series centers around two high school students, innocent Richie Cunningham, played by Ron Howard, and his worldlier friend, Potsie Weber, who are growing up in the relatively innocent days of the 1950s.

Success Didn't Come 'Soon' For Helen Reddy

Prior to taping her first show as permanent host of NBC-TV's "The Midnight Special," Helen Reddy reflected on her singing career:

"When I came to New York in 1966, I took what jobs were available.

I got $35 once for going out to sing for a group of World War I vets. The accompanist they had must have been close to 80. But it was a job and I had a very appreciative audience.

"Upon my arrival in New York, I realized I had come to America from Australia at the wrong time. Everything was male groups and loud noise. There was just no market for lone girl singers.

"I'm glad that I didn't 'make it' soon because, looking back, I had all those years of being free to come and go as I pleased. I was free to be myself. Now the other thing is just beginning. People are beginning to recognize me. My life is not now entirely mine and my family's. But I think you almost always lose a little for every gain. It's part of the price.

"In music, taste is moving away from loud noise and back to melody and lyrics. If I have been influenced by anyone, it has come from the work of Peggy Lee, Ray Charles and Chuck Berry. All three have staying power."

Helen, who has hosted "Midnight Special" five times since the show's inception Feb. 3, 1973, including the premiere, became the permanent host of the series July 18.

Friday Night Movies

"The Games" and "The Blue Knight" will air as "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, August 15, 8 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

Men from different parts of the world, with different backgrounds and reasons for wanting to win, compete for an Olympic Gold Medal for the marathon, in "The Games," starring Ryan O'Neal and Michael Crawford. The film will be rebroadcast as the first part of the double feature presentation.

Harry Hayes, a young milkman from a small British town, runs strictly for fun. Spotted by a fanatical trainer, he begins his grooming as a long-distance runner in the Olympic games. Among his competitors is self-assured Yale undergraduate Scott Reynolds.

Lion's Got The Upper Paw

The man who becomes scared stiff when a hungry lion breaths down his neck can consider himself lucky. The more phlegmatic soul who remains mobile enough to saunter away, runs almost as great a risk of attack as the person who follows the impulse to scream and make a mad dash for safety.

Standing abosolutely rigid if a lion jumps on you or tries to bite can save your life, according to Kenya game warden George Adamson. His wife Joy wrote "Born Free," the international best-selling book about Elsa, a lioness they both raised in a human development environment and then returned to jungle freedom.

Adamson, whose vast knowledge of lion lore was increased during the time Elsa shared his home, served as technical advisor during the location shooting of the acclaimed film version of "Born Free," which will be rebroadcast as an "ABC Summer Movie" Friday, Aug. 15, 8 to 10 p.m., on Chn. 3-5-12. He also aided in setting down strict precautions to make certain that no visitors were endangered by the many lions in the Kenya camps.

Special passes and escorts were required for anyone wishing to go near the lion compounds. And when the various animals were taken for runs on the nearby plains by their handlers or by the film's stars, Virginia McKenna and Bill Travers, observers were permitted only if they remained caged inside their cars.

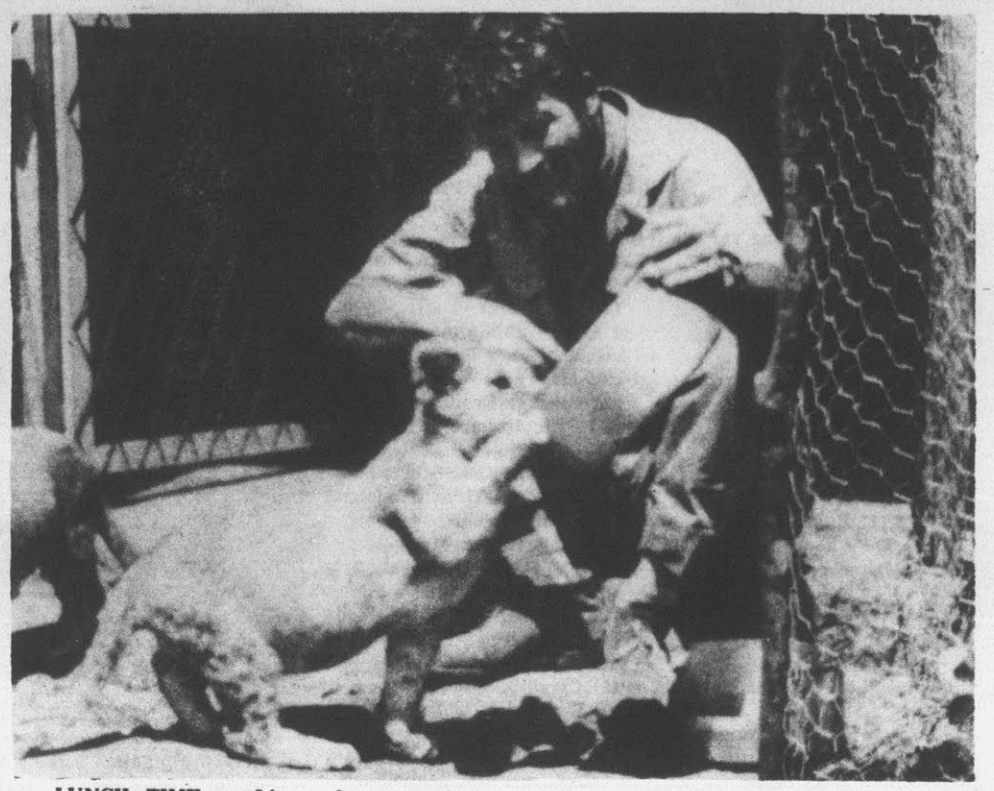

Knowledge of lion law proved to be the greatest safety measure for cast and crew.

"If you can force yourself into immobility upon attack," says Adamson, "nothing worse than a slight scratch or bruise is likely to result.

"At least this was true of the lions in our camp," he adds. "The lion's desire to kill might become active at the sight of blood, however. And if anyone runs from a lion or tries to pull away when the animals leaps at him or puts his paws on his back, anything might happen."

But the 'mane' stars of "Born Free" became great friends of the human cast and crew as a result of the kindness with which they were treated, proving that lions, like elephants, never forget.

Although they do apparently tend to forget you more quickly if you keep still.

LUNCH TIME — Lion cubs pause for refreshment offered by actor Bill Travers during the filming of the acclaimed motion picture "Born Free," to be rebroadcast as a special presentation on the "ABC Summer Movie" Friday, August 15 (8-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

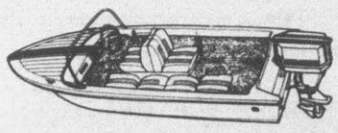

Redd Foxx Entertains

Redd Foxx, star of NBC-TV's hit comedy series "Sanford and Son," recently visited Attica Prison to entertain inmates of the upstate New York correctional facility.

Foxx was accompanied by a group of entertainers including singer Billy Eckstine.

On a short hiatus from "Sanford and Son" production, Foxx was appearing at Melody Fair in Tonawanda, N.Y. He and his troupe then traveled next to Rhode Island for a week's engagement before returning to the West Coast.

A Redd Foxx road trip is never complete without at least one, and often several visits to correctional institutions. The comedy star has made it a point of duty to entertain prison inmates as frequently as his schedule permits.

BELAFONTE STARS — Harry Belafonte stars as the mean-spirited Landlord Roscoe, in "Today Is Ours," the fourth special presentation in the ongoing "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People" series to be rebroadcast Saturday, August 16 (1-2 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

A Reunion For Harry Belafonte

Belafonte now stars with the Davises in "Today Is Ours," which will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Festival of Lively Arts for Young People" series Saturday, Aug. 16, 1:00 to 2:00 p.m.

"Ossie and Ruby were involved in a poetry workshop that I was deeply interested in," Belafonte explains. "The workshop led to Glowchild, a book of poems concerning the black experience, which is the basis for the Davises' script of 'Today Is Ours.' Glowchild's poems were written by gifted young blacks of junior-high and high-school age."

"This broadcast has a therapeutic value for the kids," says Belafonte. "Many of them have never acted before. Ossie and Ruby needed assistance from the professional end. I agreed. In turn, they told me how to perform on a children's show, because I didn't know the technique."

Belafonte, as talented an actor as he is a song stylist, has a host of film credits, including "Carmen Jones," "Island in the Sun."

Jim Nabors In Saturday Morning Show

Beginning in the fall, Jim Nabors will be seen in a Saturday morning show called "The Lost Saucer" with Ruth Buzzi. "The Lost Saucer" is about two outer space creatures who land on the earth accidentally. Two kids discover the saucer and become friendly with the outer space people (Jim and Ruth). Suddenly the warning system in the saucer goes off and they take off with the kids. They can't find 1975 again to land, so they go back and forth in time with each episode being a different time setting.

"GO" Goes Underwater

A trip aboard a windjammer, with adventures on the surface and below the Caribbean waters, is the subject of NBC-TV's "GO!" show Saturday, Aug. 16, 12:30 to 1:00 p.m. Producer-director Phil Miller recruited two youngsters, John Hennessy and Suzie Cheryl Hodge, 11-year-olds who had never before left their native island of Tortola in the British West Indies, to perform on the show.

In the story, they rubberneck aboard the windjammer Yankee Clipper and fail to notice that it has set sail, making them accidental stowaways. During their cruise, the children steer the vessel, work the sails and ropes, and do chores — cleaning the decks, helping in mess.

Some of the crew go overboard with breathing lungs and take some undersea colorscenes, for which the minicam was encased in a special structure designed for the show. It marked the first time a tape camera had been taken underwater. The resulting colorscenes shot at 60 feet below the surface with only natural light, produced pictures that could never have been taken with film.

Pastorini: Key To Oiler's Future

His name, Dante Pastorini, sounds as if it belongs somewhere on the menu in an Italian restaurant. More commonly known as Dan, the youthful, handsome quarterback of the Houston Oilers, he has begun, to read defenses well in the NFL, leading the perennially hapless, last-place Texas club to a surprising 7-7 season. Dan will lead his ball club against the veteran Washington Redskins on Saturday, August 16, in an exhibition game at 9 p.m. on 6-9-11.

OILER PASSER — Dan Pastorini, the young passing whiz for the Houston Oilers, will quarterbac his club against the Washington Redskins in an exhibition broadcast on Saturday, August 16 at 9 p.m.

Pastorini was already dubbed as a quarterback with a tremendous arm before he entered the pro ranks. Houston took him as their number one draft pick in 1971 out of the University of Santa Clara. He was the third player tapped in the draft behind Jim Plunkett of New England and Archie Manning by New Orleans.

Immediately, Dan was challenged by Lynn Dickey for the starting quarterbacking spot. The former displayed his cannonball arm in spring training and clearly won the starting spot. The Santa Claran started ten games in 1971 and led every victory in a 4-9-1 season. In 1972 he guided Houston to their only victory of the year, a shocking 76-70 upset over Joe Namath and the then-super Jets.

Nevertheless, the first few seasons for the young quarterback were far from successful. He ranked near the bottom for three consecutive seasons, completing less than 50 percent of his passes. His touchdown total was also pretty miserable. Much of his failure may have been due to an inability to run behind his very unsure offensive line.

"Sure," he says. "It would be great to be able to stand back there and pick your spots. That's what I'm trained to do. But with our club struggling on the offensive line, I run when I have to, and sometimes even when I don't have to."

Then came 1974, a "rags - to - riches" year for the Oilers. The exuberant, confident team recorded victories in six of their final eight regular season games to reach the .500 plateau for the first time since 1968. Pastorini was clearly the main reason the team did so well, as his passing and steady leadership that spearheaded the Oilers' success at the end of the campaign.

The native of Sonora, California enjoyed his best season in 1974, passing for 1571 yards on 140 of 247 aerial attempts for an astronomical 56.6 completion percentage, and fired a career - high 10 scoring passes. With the Texas teams' puny running attack of 97 yards, it doesn't take a football analyst to discover who made the Houston offense go. Near the end of the season, Pastorini completed pass after pass into the waiting and talented hands of Ken Burrough, Billy Johnson, Billy Parks, three receivers who also enjoyed an excellent season.

With the addition of more pass defense and a sturdier ground game, the Houston Oilers could make a run for the Central Division title of the AFC. Dan Pastorini just may live up to the top billing he received upon entering professional football.

Declares Star Made, Not Born

Some people are born to be stars, while others have to work at it. Chris Hanburger, the outstanding rightside linebacker for the Washington Redskins, is of the latter. Already in his 11th pro season, Chris has that uncanny instinct for usually turning up where the ball-carrier and the ball are. He will help anchor the Redskin defense against the Houston Oilers in an exhibition contest to be broadcast on Saturday, August 16, at 9 p.m. on Channel 6-9-11.

One obvious obstacle that the University of North Carolina veteran had to immediately overcome was his physical size. At 6'2" and 218 pounds, Hanburger appears more suited for the defensive backfield than at linebacker. However, the cagey defensive general makes up for his lack of size with tremendous desire and good speed, excellent reactions, intelligence and a dogmatic determination to succeed.

Chris was not selected until the 18th round in the 1964 college draft by the Redskins, but a sheer desire to excel aided his quest in making the team.

"Until my senior year I really had no intention of playing professional football," he said. "But in my senior year I decided I could play. If I didn't make it with the Redskins, I made up my mind to try out with every other team in the league. I'd have to be cut by every team before I'd be convinced I couldn't play."

Hanburger is not exactly a talkative individual, often being the master of the monsyllabic answer in tough interviews. But when he is asked about his team or coach, the 32-year-old literally explodes with praise.

"We use the word 'togetherness' an awful lot and to some people it sounds corny," he declared. "But you've got to have it if you want a successful team. Everyone takes pride in what he does on the team; offensive players - defensive players - special teamers. To us, the special players are more than that. They're first team ball players who truly believe they are doing their best on every play."

Pro On The Course, Behind The Mike

Caddy, champion golfer, rancher and television commentator; the shortest biography on record but, at the same time, an accurate capsule summary of Byron Nelson, one of golf's all-time greats. Now 56 and a pleasure golfer rather than a feared professional, Byron spends most weekends in front of an ABC microphone working as the expert commentator with Chris Schenkel, Jim McKay and Bill Flemming on telecasts of the year's major tournaments, including the U. S. Open, PGA Championship and British Open.

Byron will lend his expertise to the sport he so dearly loves when ABC broadcasts the final round of the PGA Championship, to be seen on Sunday, Aug. 10, 4:30 to 6 p.m., live from the Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio.

Born in Texas in 1912, Nelson discovered early that golf was to be a major force in his life. He caddied almost as soon as he could lift a bag and at the age of 16 won his initial tournament, the Fort Worth Amateur, only to be disqualified on a technicality.

Nelson turned professional in 1935, signaling the start of an era. Two years later and in 1939 he added the U.S. Open title to his lists of credits.

To that he added two PGA Championships, four World Championships and election to golf's Hall of Fame. He was a member of the Ryder Cup team four times and twice was the tour's leading money winner.

The year 1945 was an amazing one for Nelson. No golfer has dominated the scene in such a way - before or since.

'Rocked' The Boat

During the conversion of the Queen Mary from a seagoing liner to a permanently moored Long Beach, California, tourist attraction, a newspaper carried a story that the crews involved in the work had reported that the ship was haunted by the 'ghosts' of celebrities who had sailed aboard her during her illustrious lifetime.

Then, a different kind of crew, a television film crew, boarded the giant liner for location filming of "The Werewolf," the episode of "Kolchak: The Night Stalker," starring Darren McGavin, to be rebroadcast Saturday, Aug. 16, 8 to 9 p.m., on ABC-TV and Channel 3-5-12.

Soon, eerie and frightening things begin happening on the ship. Prowling the decks, companionways and compartments where royalty, the affluent and thousands of World War II troops once trod, was the unearthly form of a predatory creature brought out by the mystical spell of the full moon.

In the segment, McGavin, as reporter Carl Kolchak, is assigned to cover the nostalgic final cruise of a once-grand luxury liner. But the "swinging singles" excursion cruise turns into a voyage of terror when several passengers and crew members are savagely mauled as if by a wild beast. Kolchak tries, in vain, to convince the captain that the attacks are being committed by a werewolf.

"This is a particularly frightening concept," says McGavin of the episode. "To think that somewhere on board there is a human being compelled to kill when the full moon rises.

"Making it even more chilling is that, like in the Gothic tales of such beings, the cursed human realizes what is happening but has no control over it. There is no escape for himself or his victims. Let's face it, I've met some deadly bores on shipboard, but a werewolf is the last thing anyone on an ocean cruise would expect to encounter!"

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR.

How do you explain your sex appeal? Your father turned my mother on and you turn me on, but my husband says he's better looking than you are.—Helen W., Washington, D.C.

● I can only tell you what a woman told me once—because I certainly see no special sex appeal in myself. She said it was all in the voice. A woman is emotionally affected by a man's voice, whereas a man is affected by what he sees. A woman likes to close her eyes and listen to the words a man is murmuring in her ear, and it doesn't matter what he looks like if the sound is romantic to her. I got this voice from listening to my father and from having been dragged through some good British schools. But my voice doesn't turn on every woman—some would only get goose bumps listening to Stanley Kowalski.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

● Yes. But it's easier to ad lib with your feet than with your mouth! It happened to me once, when Nikita Khrushchev watched us film "Can Can" during his Hollywood visit. Reports said he was shocked by our decadent dancing. Not so. I was watching him (that's why I missed my step) and he was grinning from ear to ear. I think his wife was shocked and she ordered him to express more disapproval.

FOR ERMA BOMBECK, columnist

Do you think parents are too permissive these days? How would you handle a maverick?—Maryellen Wallace, Los Angeles, Calif.

● Not so much permissive as terrified. My son threatened to live at home if he had to get his hair cut. Today people mistake him for Ali MacGraw. As for a maverick, I had one of those. Married him off at ten.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Do you have a favorite family trip?—K.S., Atlanta, Ga.

● Yes. We retraced our honeymoon steps with our daughter when she was a teenager. We spent a few days in the Gaspé Peninsula, stopping at every place we visited all those years ago. A lot of scenes were familiar to her from snapshots. She was fascinated by the whole thing, and we got a vicarious thrill because of her pleasure. For us, it was a second honeymoon. Our third will be with our grandchildren.

FOR EDDY ARNOLD

Do you ever miss the simple life you once had as a farm boy?—Christine Stansell, Jackson, Tenn.

● No. To say I do would be saying that I miss going to the outdoor toilet in the wintertime or taking a bath once a week in the washtub.

FOR SHECKY GREENE

What's your opinion of Women's Lib?—F. Lee, Hamilton, Ohio

● Not much. I want affection, not equality. I put it to any man: Would you rather get a warm directive, such as, "Please, darling, take out the garbage," or a cold announcement, "Pay attention to the deal I negotiated today"?

FOR FRANCES SPATZ LEIGHTON, coauthor of "Dog Days at the White House"

Does your new book, written with the presidential dog keeper, really say anything juicy about what went on in the White House?—S.L., Cleveland, Ohio

● Too much to mention here, but on prudishness, or lack of it, Truman and Nixon were on the prudish side, while LBJ and Kennedy even gloried in a display of nudity. LBJ loved to parade around without a stitch on among his male friends—including the dog keeper—and Kennedy went further—sitting around nude at poolside in mixed company.

FOR SHELLEY WINTERS

Who's your favorite author?—B.T.D., Ann Arbor, Mich.

● Agatha Christie. I've read all her books—at night. I can concentrate more on whodunits when I'm tucked in under the blankets. If I could have a sandwich at the same time, I'd be in heaven. But as I'm forever watching my weight, I just stick to reading.

FOR SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D—Wis.)

How much weight have you lost by jogging, and was that your primary reason for starting? Or were you tired of traffic jams?—Joy Hill, Huron, S.D.

● I've lost no weight running five miles a day, but I've been able to eat more without gaining. Avoiding traffic jams was a side benefit. The real advantages are: I feel much better, look healthier and save a few hundred dollars a year on transportation.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I hear Bette Midler isn't nearly so popular offstage as she is onstage. True?—K. Denton, Newport, Ky.

● Not on the evidence we have. During the New York run of "Clams on the Half Shell," she ordered 70 picnic hampers from the Trattoria and Brasserie restaurants to be delivered to the theater between shows on weekends, as there was no time for the cast and crew to go out to dinner. When Alexis Smith visited Bette backstage after one show, her dressing room was crowded and Alexis didn't recognize Bette, with no makeup and her hair pulled back. "In fact, she was introducing herself to people," said Alexis, who told Bette she was leaving for a Florida club date. With that, Bette took her to a corner and passed on some valuable tips about club work, a rare thing for performers to do. They usually guard their "secrets" as closely as the Pentagon does.

My First Days in Prison

Wide World

"A deep depression hit me so hard that even my physical movements became leaden. There is nothing in prison that can lift that depression. It simply gets worse. One man in the A and O dorm just sat in his chair, hour after hour, looking at nothing."

By Jeb Stuart Magruder

We arrived at Allenwood Prison during visiting hours that Monday, so they let my wife Gail wait in the main room while I was being photographed and fingerprinted. They took all my civilian clothes, checked out my personal effects and gave me my prison khakis. In a few days, I would get clothes that fit me better; until then I had to wear what was available. The unpressed shirt was almost coming apart, and the pants, also unpressed, just made it down to my shins. The black-leather shoes were ripped open at the sides, showing my new, thin, white-cotton socks that barely came to my ankles.

When I returned to the reception room to give Gail my civilian clothes, she looked stricken, and I thought perhaps it would have been better if we had said good-bye earlier. We mumbled a few words, but we both felt extremely awkward.

Finally, I said, "Look, honey, why don't you get in the car and start home?" Then I said something that seemed ridiculous: "I'll be seeing you soon." It would be almost a week before I saw her again, but old habits are strong. I said good-bye as if I'd be home for dinner.

A prisoner I later got to know quite well took me to one of the dorms. Ben was about 50, completely bald, an ex-cop, ex-lawyer and ex-alcoholic, who felt his life had been ruined. He was pretty sour about everything, and his glum outlook got to me.

There are eight dorms at Allenwood; I went to A and O—Assignment and Orientation—for new prisoners. It was a big room with about 50 bunks, separated by five-foot-high partitions. Each prisoner got a metal locker and a "school-desk" chair with a writing arm.

Finally, Ben said, "Well, here it is," and left me staring at my bunk. There were about 40 men in the room, and a few of them came over to say hello. One of them, Bob, a doctor from Philadelphia, had come to Allenwood 23 days earlier. He was very nice and tried to be helpful, in spite of the fact that he was having a very hard time himself. He was in for Medicare fraud.

Wide World

Jeb Stuart Magruder and his wife Gail. Magruder, a former aide to President Nixon, served seven months in prison for his role in the Watergate cover-up.

The prisoners are counted six times a day at Allenwood—three times during waking hours and three times at night. Right after the 4 p.m. count, Bud (Egil) Krogh showed up. He held out his hand. "Good to have you here, Jeb," he said, "if it can be good to be here." I laughed. I already knew what he meant: Seeing someone familiar was a good feeling.

Bud had been sentenced to six months and had served four. He was scheduled to leave the next day to spend the rest of his term at the "safe house" at Fort Holabird in Baltimore.

Bud was very helpful. He introduced me to a few prisoners, and one, Ron, said he would help me learn the ropes. Bud also took me to the commissary so I could pick up toothpaste and other things I might need. The money I had put in my commissary account would take about five days to be processed, so Bud let me use his money. He even bought me a transistor radio, a really welcome gift.

Bud got me sneakers in case I wanted to jog, and he gave me his sweatshirts, which he wouldn't need at Holabird. I have back trouble, and I asked him how to get a bed board. "No problem," Bud said, "lots of beds have them." He looked in empty beds until he found one for me.

"Why don't we have dinner together?" Bud said—and it sounded almost as if we were back in Washington, discussing business over a meal.

"Fine," I said. Like every new prisoner I had a feeling of unreality about everything, almost like dreaming. I kept expecting to wake up.

We walked down to the mess hall, which was a big room with orange-and-yellow plastic tables and chairs. Tall windows looked out on the surrounding hills, and the room wouldn't have been half bad if it weren't in a prison.

They served cafeteria style, usually pork in a gravy or sauce. We got eggs for breakfast about twice a week; the rest of the time it was creamed chipped beef or something. There was always plenty of food, but it didn't encourage any appetites.

I didn't eat at all that first evening, but I can't blame the food. I just wasn't all there. Probably I was in a mild state of shock, as most new prisoners are.

Bud and I sat at a table with two former anti-war demonstrators. One, a Presbyterian minister, was in for burning down an ROTC building in Hawaii. The other, in his early twenties, was a draft resister. They were very friendly and later told me I had communicated clearly but that my eyes had seemed glazed. Only when the minister said he was a Williams grad, like me, did I show any animation.

It was still light after dinner, and Bud and I walked to a church about a mile and a half away. He told me a lot about how the prison worked, which I would appreciate in the days ahead. He told me which prisoners would give me straight answers and which would try to con me—I didn't think I had anything worth conning, but Bud said some of the men would think my government background could get them a pardon. (And sure enough, it happened! Someone did ask me for help.)

Having Bud there that first day made me feel someone was looking out for me, and that was a real comfort. Then Bud said something disturbing.

"Jeb, you may be here for a pretty long time."

"Sure," I said. "But ten months isn't forever."

"It'll be more like 16 or 18 months —at least," he said.

I found out later that most prisoners take a dim view of everything. They expect the worst. Parole is the subject they talk about most, and their attitude is tough on new prisoners. "What's your sentence?" is the first thing they ask, and when a new man says he expects to get paroled, the answer usually is, "You'll never be out by then!" Perhaps their own disappointment becomes a little less painful when they see another man's hopes fade. But Bud

Banana Breeze. The shortcut cream pie.

Here's a luscious pie that's easy. Almost as easy as peeling a Dole banana. That's because Eagle Brand lets you make the creamy filling without any cooking. And Kellogg's lets you make a golden crust without any baking. Try it. It's just one delicious shortcut after another.

Banana Breeze Pie
(Makes one 9-inch pie.)

- ⅓ cup regular margarine or butter, melted
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ tsp. cinnamon, optional
- 1 cup Kellogg's® Corn Flake Crumbs
- 1 pkg. (8-oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1 can Eagle® Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk* (not evaporated milk)
- ⅓ cup bottled lemon juice, measured accurately
- 1 tsp. vanilla extract
- 5 medium-size Dole® bananas
- 2 tablespoons bottled lemon juice

*Magnolia® or Dime® Brands may be used.

In small pan over low heat, stir margarine, sugar and cinnamon 'til bubbles form. Remove from heat. Mix in crumbs. Press mixture evenly in 9" pie pan to form crust. Chill.

Line crust with three sliced bananas. Turn filling into crust. Refrigerate 2-3 hours or 'til firm. Cut two bananas into thin slices; dip slices in remaining lemon juice. Top pie with slices.

Do You Know the Art of Handling Bores?

True or False: There is no easy way to discourage the bore who insists on regaling you with the endless details of his or her latest operation or medical problems. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. When you meet a person at a gathering who tries to dominate the conversation, it's easy to cut him off at the ankles, if you know how.

2. There is a self-righteous do-gooder variety of bore who takes it upon himself to lecture you "for your own good" on what you should or shouldn't do, etc. There is no way to shut him up that isn't illegal in most states.

3. There is no easy way to discourage the bore who insists on regaling you with the endless details of his or her latest operation or medical problems.

4. A type of bore that almost everyone is familiar with is the character who bends your ear about the things his children have done. There's little you can do except stand there until your eyeballs are glazed and your jaw muscles stiff from stifled yawns.

5. One way to cure a person of being a bore is to encourage him to travel. It will broaden his knowledge and viewpoint, making him a much more interesting person.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies show that the best psychology is to gang up on him simply by getting your friends to start conversations among themselves whenever the bore begins to hold forth. This technique has a devastating effect on the bore, and is guaranteed to make him wish he were somewhere else—a wish that you and your friends will no doubt join in.

2. False. All it takes to discourage this type of bore is the old verbal one-two. It works like this: When he's completed his little lecture, beam at him appreciatively. "You know, Jack," you tell him, "I feel like a new man after listening to you." And while he's groping for a modest way to accept the compliment, you add reflectively, "But I think I liked the old one better." Then walk away, leaving him to wipe the egg off his face. He isn't likely to come back for more.

3. False. You simply turn the tables, making the bore as uncomfortable as he (or she) makes you. As soon as he pauses for breath, you interrupt with, "That reminds me of the time I thought my canary was pregnant. But it turned out one of the bird seeds she'd swallowed had sprouted and was starting to grow. . . ." This type of treatment is likely to have such an effect on the bore that he (or she) may even spare his doctor an ever-lengthening list of symptoms.

4. False. You can stop this bragging bore dead in his tracks by employing a reverse-twist tactic. Start telling him the truth about your own children: how obstreperous they are on occasion, how they sometimes have you on the verge of climbing the walls. This will create an about-face effect in the other person, and instead of continuing to bore you with his tiresome bragging, he'll try to outdo you in retailing some of the more mischievous misadventures of his own offspring. He may not be quiet, but at least his conversation will be a lot more interesting.

5. False. As one connoisseur of both bores and travel has succinctly noted: "Travel never made a bore interesting; it only makes for a well-traveled bore."

Why smoke if you don't enjoy it?

I smoke because I enjoy it. Salem is why. It's much more than just a good menthol. It's a good cigarette.

Enjoyment is why I smoke. And that's why I smoke Salem.

Why I've Surrendered My Home, My Heart, My Life, to Animals

By Doris Day
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

Ellen Graham

"I can never be depressed for long in my house," says Doris Day, "not with my dogs around."

"I don't believe in sending dogs to school. . . . I don't believe in having them do tricks for the amusement of their owners. People don't ask their children to do tricks before they are fed, so why ask that of their pets?"

Whether one admits it or not, I guess every one of us is prejudiced in one way or another. In my case, it's dogs, cats—and just all animals. I love them. They are as pure and innocent as children. Unfortunately, children grow up. Animals don't. If only people were more like animals, how much easier, how much better life would be. And how much we can learn from them! Patience. And love. You can step on a dog's foot accidentally, he'll cry out, then come back to you and kiss you to show it is all right. Their love is unbelievable.

And loyalty. No matter how much a dog is mistreated, it will show loyalty. There was a case where a mailman found a Weimaraner tied beneath a house. It couldn't move. Skin and bones, down to 30 pounds. Months later, during the court hearing, the dog went up to the man responsible and licked his hand. That man should have gone to jail, but he didn't. That's what I think is wrong with the law.

I can never be depressed for long in my house, not with my dogs around. When I awaken with a heavy feeling, sometimes not even knowing why, it only lasts till my four-legged kids jump on my bed with their ball and romp around with unbounded joy.

And yet, with all the joy, the pleasure, the loyalty and affection that dogs give us, so many people mistreat them. It was for this reason that I got deeply involved with the plight of dogs in my community.

It started when I was doing my television show back in '69 or '70. I joined an organization called Actors and Others for Animals. It was founded by Diana and Richard Basehart, and I first heard about it when Diana invited me to a bazaar for unwanted dogs. Would I come and bring something to be auctioned off, and call friends of mine to attend as well? I did.

A short time later I heard about a kennel where animals were so mistreated that just thinking about it brought tears to my eyes. That night I went out with the ABC news team to see for myself what was going on. We cut the wire fence to get to the animals. It was unbelievable what we found. Most of them were dead. The rest were starving. They were actually eating each other. Speak of man's inhumanity to man! Man's inhumanity to animals is worse because they are at our mercy.

Since that fateful day, animals have played an increasingly important part in my life. As far as I'm concerned, the house I live in isn't my house, it's our house. My animals have the run of it.

I've learned to furnish it in a nice but practical way, to make it easier on myself. My couches are slip-covered and the covers are washable. I have wood floors in the dining room, with area rugs. I'm going to take the rug out of my bedroom and put in a tile floor with throw rugs. They'll be washable too, so that's no big deal. I know people who won't allow their dogs in the house because they are afraid they'll mess it up. So the animals are kept outside and have no feeling of being part of the family, of belonging. Others don't like their dogs in the yard because they dig holes, so they pen them off somewhere. What's a hole? It can be filled in and the grass will grow back fast enough.

I don't believe in sending dogs to school, either. First of all, dogs respond to love. Secondly, I don't believe in having them do tricks for the amusement of their owners. People don't ask their children to do tricks before they are fed, so why ask that of their pets?

My biggest peeve is with people who leave dogs in cars. If the windows are down, the dogs might be stolen. If the windows are up, the dogs can suffocate, particularly in the summer heat, even if there is a crack left for air. If I see a car with a dog trapped like that, I break in and stay with the car until the people return. So far this hasn't gotten me into trouble. If they want to take me to court, let them try. They'll have their match!

When I find a pet, I make a point of trying to get it back to its owner. Many times I've walked around a neighborhood for hours, knocking on all the doors, asking if anyone owns the dog or cat or has seen it around before.

If I can't find the owner, I'll scan the newspapers to see if anyone has advertised a lost dog. If not, I advertise I've found one and board it at the Holiday Shelter, with which Actors and Others for Animals has an arrangement. Here the animals are given medical attention, spayed or neutered, given their shots, and looked after until we find homes for them. We do not just hand them out indiscriminately. Future owners are investigated as carefully as if they wished to join the civil service.

I am always surprised how many people think that pedigrees are the most desirable dogs. It's like having a certain car or living on a certain street. A status symbol. When I am asked about it, I invariably answer, "Are you a pedigree? Are any of us? We're all mixed up, aren't we?" Also, people usually don't want older dogs. They are much harder to place. I think that's strange because they would be so perfect for couples who are of an age where they can't walk too much or too fast. Older dogs aren't boisterous and don't need as much exercise. It's nonsense to say they are too set in their ways. Contrary to people, dogs will adapt to humans at any age. Older dogs are ideal for older people.

A lot of people are afraid it costs too much to keep an animal because food is so expensive. But they don't just need canned food. I cook special things for my pets. Two of them are heart patients anyway, so they have to

"I am always surprised how many people think that pedigrees are the most desirable dogs. When I am asked about it, I invariably answer, 'Are you a pedigree? Are any of us?' " have a special diet. Too many people think all they have to do is dump a can of dog food in a bowl. I give mine scrambled eggs twice a week, low-fat cottage cheese every day, grated carrots, ground meat with soybean, brown rice, barley, a little fresh garlic, squash, whatever vegetables we have on hand, sesame-seed oil, wheat-germ oil and a bit of kibble.

Animals have changed my life in many ways. I was never terribly anxious to do films abroad. Now I'm even less anxious! Even if a beautiful script were offered to me, I wouldn't want to leave my pets for that long a time.

Today I'm chairman of the board of Actors and Others for Animals. Because people know me, I can be helpful with publicity and promotion and raising money. We hold an animal bazaar once a year and we give benefit premieres. (Not long ago we sponsored the movie "Benji" in Los Angeles. All the proceeds went to our group.)

It's nice to know that our group is becoming known internationally. We get donations from all over the world, and presents. Not long ago someone sent me a dachshund—one of those elongated ones made out of cloth. On one side of it was written: "To the Dogcatcher of Beverly Hills." It was the greatest compliment I could have asked for.

When a person enters prison, his most important question is, "When am I going to get out?" Before I entered, I expected to qualify for release in ten months. I was braced for those ten months, and so was Gail. But parole isn't an automatic procedure, and a prisoner isn't automatically eligible for release when his minimum sentence has been served. Parole boards are autonomous, and they have their own ideas about how long a man should serve. They rarely grant parole when a prisoner first becomes eligible. In a sense they try him all over again and impose their own concept of his debt to society. Bud, with his six-month sentence, didn't have to go to the parole board. But most prisoners experience the same disappointment I felt.

By the time I got back to my dorm I was very discouraged. On the outside, months, even years, had passed quickly. But inside prison, time moves unbelievably slowly. A day is a very long time indeed; a week is forever.

Bob, the Philadelphia doctor, had the bunk across from mine and he came over to talk. Prison had been an even greater shock to him than to me —first, because he didn't expect to be convicted, and second, because he was locked up immediately after he was sentenced. At least Gail, our children and I had some time to accept the idea, to strengthen ourselves for the separation. Bob worried a lot about his family, as most of the prisoners did if they had families. Many did not, at least not any more. As I learned later, that was one reason why Ben, the fellow who showed me to my bunk, was so sure his life was ruined. His wife had divorced him and taken custody of their two children—it was a familiar story in prison.

When I thought about my family that first night, I felt a growing guilt, not only for what I had done, but for its painful consequences for Gail and the children. It may seem absurd, but until then I didn't really understand how directly my family was affected by my actions. When that hit me, it hurt.

At 10 p.m. another count was taken, and by 10:30, lights were out and I was in bed. I had trouble getting to sleep. I wasn't used to sleeping in a room with so many people, and the noise level was high. There was a TV room in the building and the late-show watchers were always walking in and out of the dorm. And with 40 to 50 people in one room, there were about 25 conversations going at the same time, including some angry arguments. And then there was the mumbling and restless tossing of those who, like me, were having trouble sleeping.

Finally I fell asleep. Three or four times I woke up and thought for an instant I was home in bed. Then I realized where I was and had a terrible feeling of letdown that was to be repeated again and again.

The next morning I saw Bud Krogh for a few minutes before he left. With Bud gone, the full impact of prison came down on me. A deep depression hit me so hard that even my physical movements became leaden. From what I was to observe, the other prisoners all felt the same way. And there is nothing in prison that can lift that depression. It simply gets worse One man in the A and O dorm just sat in his chair, hour after hour, looking at nothing. Sometimes he read, sometimes he wrote, but only for a few minutes at a time. Then he'd go back to staring.

I had read a theory, I don't remember where, that most men can survive the corrosive effects of prison life for about six months. After that it's downhill unless a man can find enough inner resources to sustain him. For most of my life, whenever I found myself in a situation that wasn't favorable, I either got out or found something worthwhile that would make the same situation work. In prison that's impossible. Confinement makes you feel completely helpless. You can't change your situation, nor are you likely to find anything positive in it. Whatever help a man gets has to come from inside himself.

If I had gone to prison 14 months earlier, I don't think I would have had the kind of inner strength I needed. During the time the Watergate story was coming out, I had been under such severe pressure that my family life had almost come apart without my realizing it. Then came the relief of the pressure finally being over—and in the 14 months between my pleading guilty and my being sentenced to prison, I had had time to rebuild my family relationships and my reservoir of strength for the ordeal ahead of me. Before those 14 months, my spiritual resources had been about an inch deep. Now they were much deeper.

I used to think that when a person had strong faith, it kept him out of trouble. Now I knew better. God had become very real to me, and because I knew more about Him, I understood that He wasn't going to make my problems go away. Nor was He going to spare me any new ones. I not only knew that I had to work out my own problems, but I tried to do what I could to help some of my fellow prisoners with theirs. The difference was that I knew God would help me.

Is your cigarette less than More?

If it isn't More, it's less than More. Because More is the first 120mm cigarette. It's More in every way except price.

More has more style. It has more flavor. It has more. Over 50% more puffs than a 100mm cigarette. Yet More doesn't cost more.

And what's more, More comes in both regular and menthol. They're both long, lean and burnished brown. Regular More delivers rich tobacco flavor while More Menthol packs a cooling blast. Puff after puff after puff.

You'll find that More and More Menthol smoke slower and draw easy for more enjoyment. They're more flavorful. Yet they're surprisingly mild.

More and More Menthol. They sit neat in your hand like they were made for it and fit your face like they found a home.

Now—diet expert Sidney Petrie reports on an exciting way to banish excess poundage...look and feel better... and NEVER go hungry with...

"FAT DESTROYER FOODS"!

Dear Friend:

A fascinating concept has now been presented by a well-known diet expert—in a new book—to enable dieters to continue eating as much or as frequently as they did before, while slimming down!

It's the exciting news that certain foods destroy fat! (See page 10 for this electrifying idea—then read the whole story!) FORGET ABOUT CALORIES, says Sidney Petrie. As long as you eat "Fat-Destroyer Foods," you may, depending on your own metabolism, eat as much as 3,000 calories a day! All kinds of delicious treats while excess weight simply melts off your body!

Yes, you must EAT the substance found in "Fat-Destroyer Foods," a substance that burns away fat! In the words of one medical doctor, "By scientifically adjusting the body's metabolic processes, "Fat-Destroyer Foods" seem to melt away pound after pound . . ."

What this means to you is this: "Fat-Destroyer Foods" actually force excess fat—hundreds and hundreds of extra calories a day—OUT OF YOUR BODY, says Petrie. And, because you must eat them on this weight-loss plan, unwanted pounds disappear fast—and you're never really hungry! Petrie says—

EAT "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS" TILL YOU GROAN AND STILL LOSE WEIGHT!

Stick to "Fat-Destroyer Foods," and you'll lose weight—it's virtually automatic—says Petrie! And what foods!!!

EAT-ALL-YOU-WANT portions of . . . Cheeseburgers . . . Veal Parmigiana . . . Beef Strogonoff . . . Canadian Bacon . . . Eggs Benedict (fried or with mushrooms) . . . Cheese (the whole delicatessen is yours) . . . Barbequed Spareribs . . . Link Sausages . . . Butter, Sauces, Gravies . . . Hungarian Goulash . . . and much more!

GENEROUS, MOUTH-WATERING HELPINGS of Ice Cream . . . Butterscotch Pudding . . . Caramel Custard . . . Fruit-Flavored Gelatin . . . Vanilla Pudding . . . Apple sauce Chocolate Blanc Mange . . . Cheese Cake . . . Whipped Cream Desserts . . . washed down with goblets of red wine . . . coffee breaks . . . frequent snacks . . . drinks . . . and much, much more . . . Chopped herring, Gefilte Fish . . . BLTs . . . blackberries . . . strawberries . . . blueberries . . . cherries . . . dates . . . figs . . . AND STILL THAT'S JUST THE BEGINNING!

But there are certain foods you must avoid, reports the author, at least until you're all slimmed down to your ideal weight (it need not be a permanent sacrifice)!

A SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY THAT CAN CHANGE YOUR LIFE!

We all know some lucky person who can "eat like a horse" and never gain a pound! What has this person got that you haven't?

That's what Sidney Petrie, a diet specialist who has treated thousands of overweight people, wanted to know.

"Then I made a fortuitous discovery," says Petrie.

"Certain foods destroy fat!" he says. Other foods, in excess, are stored as fat. But not "Fat-Destroyer Foods," says Petrie. Excess "Fat-Destroyer Foods" are thrown off as waste. More important—in the absence of those other foods—"Fat-Destroyers" seem to drag body fat away, he says! "You can actually see evidence of your own fat going down the drain."

This is the scientific fact that is now revolutionizing the eating habits of thousands! "Fat-Destroyer Foods" are EAT-ALL-YOU-WANT foods—Petrie adds. There are MORE of them to choose from! They encourage less hunger—less water retention! They are go-go-go foods!

Other foods contain "fat hooks," says Petrie, that can literally hang excess fat on you. They contain "empty calories"—lacking vital nutrients the body needs. You could eat 5,000 calories a day of them and feel weak, says Petrie. And they PREVENT WEIGHT LOSS.

Stick to "Fat-Destroyer Foods," says Petrie. STUFF YOURSELF ON THEM, he says, without guilt. You will in all likelihood continue to lose weight. But let the other foods slip in—just one or two of them—and you are now geared to put the poundage on instead of take it off, he states. What are the "fat hooks"? You'll find complete details in Petrie's new book.

SNACK ANYTIME—EAT AS FREQUENTLY AS YOU WISH!

"Fat-Destroyer Foods" contain the most important ingredient your body needs, says Petrie. The entire body—hair, skin, veins, flesh, bones—everything depends on it.

What happens on a starvation diet of less food—or "empty" foods—that lack this vital ingredient?

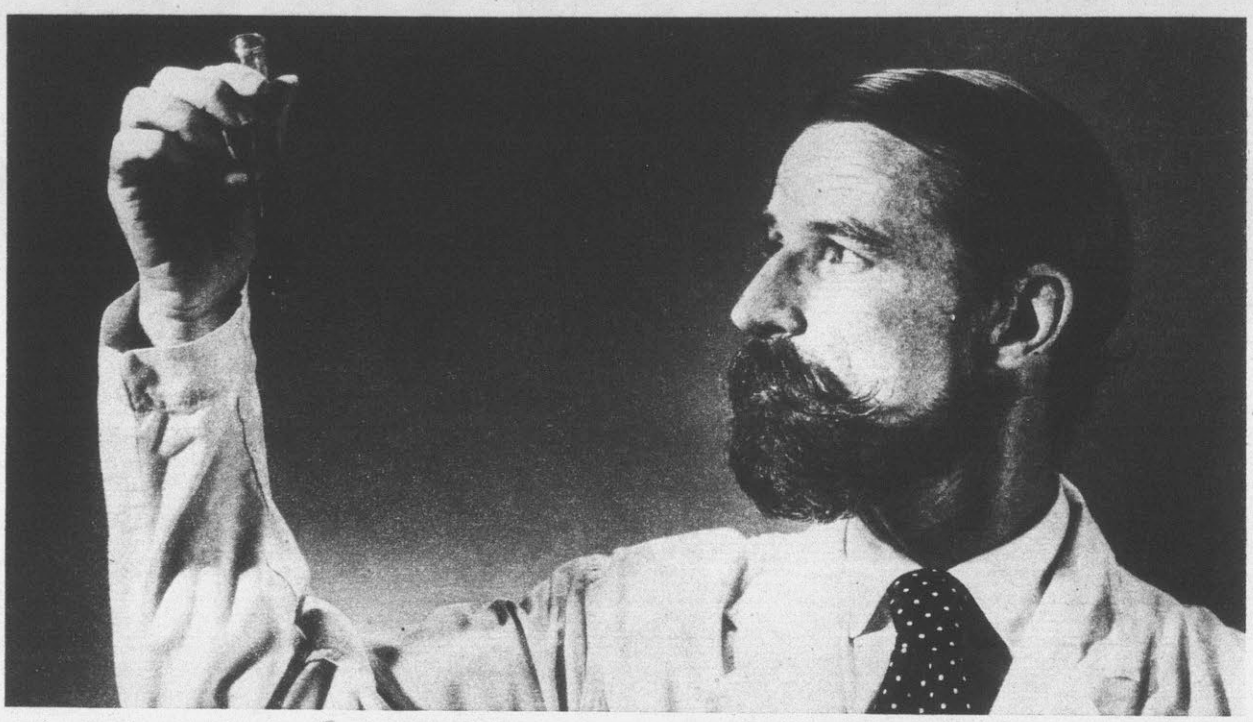

"Doctor," you say, "I just can't stay on my diet. I get so hungry and I feel so weak."

But with "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS" you eat well! You dine regally on foods like Canadian bacon, Portuguese sausages, cheese souffle, whipped cream desserts, Vanilla pudding, wines, gravy, cream soups, and much, much more!

WATCH YOUR WEIGHT PLUMMET!

Now, if you've ever tried conventional weight-loss diets, you know you just can't eat like this. But in scientific experiments, it was found many years ago, that the human body ACTUALLY BURNS UP MORE CALORIES OF "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS" THAN IT TAKES IN! You can eat lavishly of fat burning foods and still lose weight, says Petrie!

P.S.: Always check with a medical doctor before and during any diet, says Petrie.

As a result, you see your weight drop—see pound after pound of it melt away! Even if you're 10, 20, 30 lbs. or more overweight! Some of Petrie's clients have dropped as much as 200 pounds, eating as much and as frequently as before of "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS"!

"It sounds too good to be true," says Petrie, "but IT IS TRUE, and it has lost tons for my clients!" (Naturally, a dieter should use common sense, and not overemphasize fat burning foods to the point of severe underweight!!!)

"I have proved to thousands that they can eat all they want and still lose weight," says Petrie. People like . . .

Harriet, a telephone operator, 34 years old, came to Petrie as a "last resort." At 5 feet 10 inches, she weighed 400 pounds. With tears in her eyes, she told how her doctor had given her up in despair. She could not reduce and stay reduced, and she had a water weight problem. With "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS" she never felt hungry . . .

The Result: 120 lbs. lost in 6 months! Harriet is today slim, attractive, and statuesque— without hunger!

Molly's habit of "tasting" her family's meals ballooned her body to 200 lbs. despite numerous attempts at dieting. Instead of starving, she switched to "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS," eating freely!

The Result: she is now below 140 lbs. and still losing!

Ronald, a business man in his early 40's, tipped the scales at 305 lbs. some 130 lbs. overweight! With "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS" he lost 12 lbs. the first week alone! Week after week, he enjoyed a steady weight-loss, until he reached his desired goal.

The Result: 130 lbs. lost, remaining happy, healthy, and well-fed along the way!

Henry, a high-school principal, weighed 300 lbs. With conventional diets, he was never able to reduce and stay reduced. He loved his favorite foods, and found calorie-counting quite difficult. With "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS," he lost 30 lbs. the first month!

The Result: 110 lbs. lost without hunger. Even his back pains disappeared!

By using this fact in their daily lives, people are now able to eat more and weigh less. With "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS," says Petrie, you can eat more than you ever thought possible . . . and never gain an ounce!

A DOCTOR OF MEDICINE APPRAISES "FAT-DESTROYER FOODS"!

Frank S. Caprio, M.D., in his Foreword to the book, says—

"I am . . . impressed by Petrie's remarkable discovery of "Fat-Destroyer Foods," which I believe to be an entirely new concept in dieting. It permits the dieter to enjoy what I, too, believe is one of the most permissive and pleasant diets ever devised . . . to lose weight and never gain it back."

"I am impressed," Dr. Caprio continues, "by the astonishing and dramatic weight loss results achieved by so many of Petrie's patients—even in seemingly hopeless cases referred to him by physicians and other medical specialists."

"I can honestly say that, in my medical opinion, this book . . . in its category (is) the best I have ever read, and I heartily recommend it to anyone who wants to lose weight quickly, easily, automatically and permanently."

THE EASY WAY TO SHED POUNDS FAST . . . FASTER . . . FASTEST!

You'll never be hungry, or need "will power" with "Fat-Destroyer Foods," Petrie reminds us. Eat all you want of them, AS FREQUENTLY AS YOU WISH, he states. "And if you can't make up your mind between 2 or 3 possibilities—have them all," he says of his Free Diet, the first of several plans revealed.

You can even enjoy frequent snacks . . . at TV time, between meals, at a restaurant. Enjoy a night on the town . . . even "hoist the elbow" with drinks like rye, bourbon, scotch, whiskeys, rum, vodka, gin and brandy, martinis and wines . . . a whole world of food opens up in a dazzling cavalcade of delights!

AND YOU CAN SPEED UP YOUR PROGRESS by adding more "Fat-Destroyer Foods"! There are 3 rapid reducing plans in this book: FAST, FASTER, AND FASTEST! You'll lose weight easily on all 3 depending on how fast you wish to shed those pounds, says Petrie!

Woman Can't Sleep Tortured All Night

..."Then she found those tiny blue pills that helped her fall asleep more naturally and wake up refreshed."

She can't sleep . . . it's one of those occasional nights when simple nervous tension keeps her awake tossing and turning. Lack of sleep oftentimes causes irritability and that downright worn-out feeling. Fortunately a little blue pill called Compoz works to help you unwind the minor and temporary up-tight feelings, so sound blissful sleep may be yours. This modern relaxant tablet contains no barbiturates so it helps you sleep more naturally. So don't suffer the agonizing torture of another sleepless night needlessly. Get Compoz today. Follow directions carefully and see if Compoz doesn't help you sleep sound tonight or tomorrow night. Compoz is not intended for serious or chronic conditions that need a doctor's attention, but only when those occasional sleepless nights occur.

For a free trail package of Compoz send $.25 to cover postage and handling to Department FWA, Box 41, Union, N.J. 07083.

Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieves Pain & Itch...

Gives prompt temporary relief in many cases from hemorrhoidal pain and burning itch in such tissues.

There's an exclusive medication which actually helps shrink painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. And in many cases it gives prompt relief for hours from rectal itching and pain in such tissues.

Tests by doctors on patients showed while it gently relieved such pain, it also helped reduce swelling of these tissues.

The medication used in the tests was Preparation H®. No prescription is needed for Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

AN EXPERT TELLS YOU HOW TO GET BACK IN SHAPE.

Even if you're not particularly interested in building he-man muscles, you owe it to yourself to keep your body fit. It's a sad fact of today's life that many men ignore this point and end up regretting it when they find they've become "old men" long before their time. Thanks to modern exercising techniques, "keeping fit" is now easier than ever. John Texier, Mr. France and leading fitness specialist tells you how.

Q. What does fitness mean?

A. For normally healthy people, fitness is a simple matter of maintaining muscle tone through exercise. In other words—using your muscles often enough and hard enough to keep them healthy and trim.

Q. How does lack of fitness show up?

A. The answer depends on how old you are. If you're still in your teens or early twenties, it's largely a matter of physical development. Young men with pipe-stem arms, caved-in chests, drooping shoulders or bird-like legs aren't fit. When you're a little older the first signs are usually a roll of fat around the middle and a lack of pep and energy. After 40, the whole body tends to become flabby.

Q. Can sports keep me fit?

A. Yes, indeed, if practiced regularly and for long enough periods. Swimming, jogging, gymnastics, tennis, handball, squash, skiing can all help keep you in top condition provided you practice the sport for at least an hour three or four days a week—every week.

Q. Isn't there an easier way?

A. Yes, there's an outstanding home training method which I use and recommend. It's fast, easy and guaranteed to give results.

Q. What's it called?

A. Bullworker training. It's based on Isometric techniques which have been proven to increase strength three times faster than sports or conventional calisthenics. In my opinion, it's the most advanced training system on the market today.

John Frelin shows how he increased his biceps by 2", filled out his chest by 4", his thighs by 1¼" in just a few weeks of Bullworker training.

Q. How long does it take?

A. The 7-exercise introductory program requires only 70 seconds of exercise per day. The complete advanced training program takes about 5 minutes.

Built-in Powermeter
You can actually measure your musclepower g-r-o-w-i-n-g from the very first day.

Q. When do the results start?

A. Right from the very first day. The Bullworker is fitted with a built-in measuring device which shows you exactly how much progress you make every day. And the results can be very impressive—up to 4% more strength per week, up to a 50% improvement in the first three months. I've seen many men go on to double and even triple their strength.

Q. How long does it take to see visible results?

A. From 10 days to three weeks depending on how well you train and how regularly. Each new week brings even more impressive results.

Q. But it's hard work, isn't it?

A. Not at all. The whole point of Isometrics is that by "exercising" for only 7 seconds at a time, you avoid the excess muscle strain and fatigue of "crash" training programs which often do more harm than good. Bullworker training is gauged to each user's personal potential.

Q. Is there an age limit?

A. Generally speaking, men between 15 and 65 in good general health can expect to benefit from fitness and strength building training. Young men should use Bullworker to improve their muscular development: broad, powerful shoulders—rippling biceps—a deep, manly chest tapering down to a slim waist and hips supported by muscular, contoured thighs and calves.

Men in their thirties should use Bullworker to maintain peak physical form and for toning-up the muscles of their abdomen, chest, shoulders and upper arms. After 2 or 3 weeks you'll probably see muscles you didn't even know you had.

From 45 on, Bullworker should be used to regain and maintain a youthful vigorous body that belies the passing years. I've seen lots of Bullworker users in their fifties with more energy, power, and vigor than many younger men.

Q. How can I find out more about the Bullworker and perhaps actually try it out?

A. I understand that the American distributor is now offering the Bullworker on a two-week free home trial basis in order to give as many men as possible a chance to prove to themselves what an outstanding fitness trainer it is. If you're interested in getting back into shape fast, I recommend you contact the distributor for full details.

What in the World!

MAYOR RICHARD DALEY
A political paradox

What's Mayor Daley really like? "Like Chicago itself, the man who has set the U.S. record for serving as a big city mayor is enigmatic. There are some who view Daley as a man whose blood flows through arteries of refrigerated granite. This would seem to be true if one considered only the moments when he has coldly spurned someone who has displeased him or the times when he has petulantly turned icy and imperious. . . . Nonresident writers have not infrequently tried to run him down and exhibit their prize, but the chase leads over a slippery landscape, and it is with an impudent Irish smile that Daley always seems to escape them. How could it be otherwise, when those of us who think we know him and understand the chronology of his rise to power are never quite certain what manner of man he is?" From "Clout: Mayor Daley and His City," by Len O'Connor (Regnery, $10).

HAROU HIROTA
Kamikaze who lived

The shame of his survival: In 1945, during the Battle of Okinawa, "suicide pilot" Harou Hirota was on a collision course with an American destroyer—it was to have been his last mission. But death never came. "I remember hitting the water and going very far under. I must have been unconscious for some time," Hirota recalled for FAMILY WEEKLY. Hirota remembers that he recoiled in shame when he awoke aboard an American destroyer. "I could not believe I had survived. I had felt lucky to have been chosen as a Kamikaze pilot, and at that moment I was just grateful that I had no family aside from an uncle; I didn't have to share my shame." After his remarkable survival, Hirota, who spoke English, was put to work as a service boy in the ship's mess hall. "There I learned to 'bulk-cook' in the American style, and this knowledge has been useful to me ever since," he said. Today Hirota is a chef in the Key Bridge Marriott Hotel in Washington, D.C.

Sonny Bono on the failure of his marriage to Cher: "Show business was not the culprit. We had begun to live our lives on automatic pilot, and then the battery went dead. We couldn't seem to recharge our marriage; nor could we ask the 'manufacturer' to replace the defective parts." Claiming, "I'm now in my 'romantic period,'" the 40-year-old Bono says that he's enamored of a 21-year-old Indian model-actress named Susan

That's the same as starting a race by giving everyone else in it a 30-minute head start and then expecting to catch up with them, pull ahead and win."

ON TV GAME SHOWS

TV is full of games today,
A fact that is for certain.
Contestants guess what's in the box
Or what's behind the curtain.

Not games of skill but luck they are,
It's chance that brings success.
All you can do is guess.

May win a cruise to Bali,
Or dream and scream and hope and pray—
And then get zonked, by golly!

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

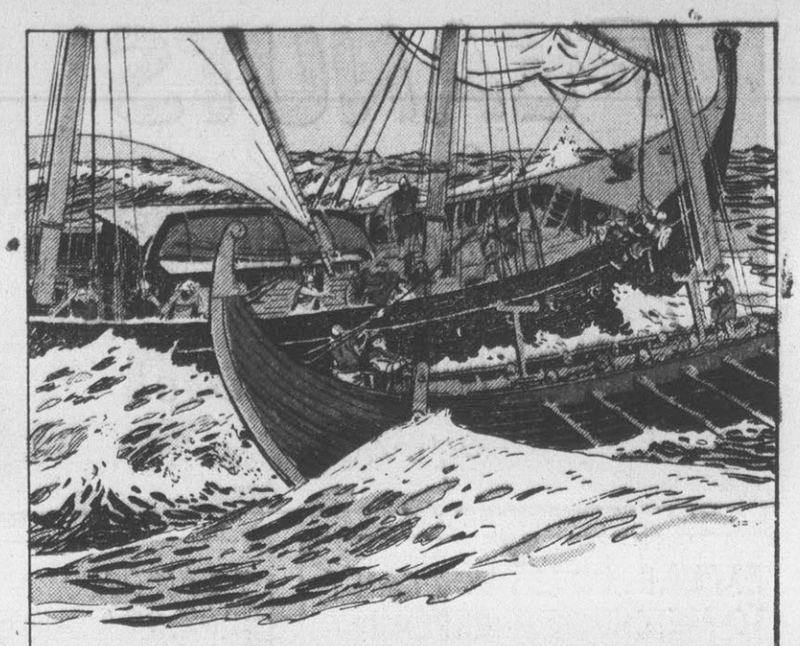

Our Story: IN A SHELTERED COVE ON THE FAR NORTHERN TIP OF CALEDONIA, PRINCE VALIANT AWAITS THE END OF THE WINTER STORMS. HE AND HIS CREW ARE ANXIOUS TO SAIL HOMEWARD AND ARE WILLING TO TAKE CHANCES.

WHILE IN FAR-OFF THULE HIS FAMILY BOARDS THE SAILING SHIP OF GUNDAR HARL, AND WORK THEIR WAY SOUTHWARD, SHELTERED FROM THE WINTER GALES BY THE MANY ISLANDS.

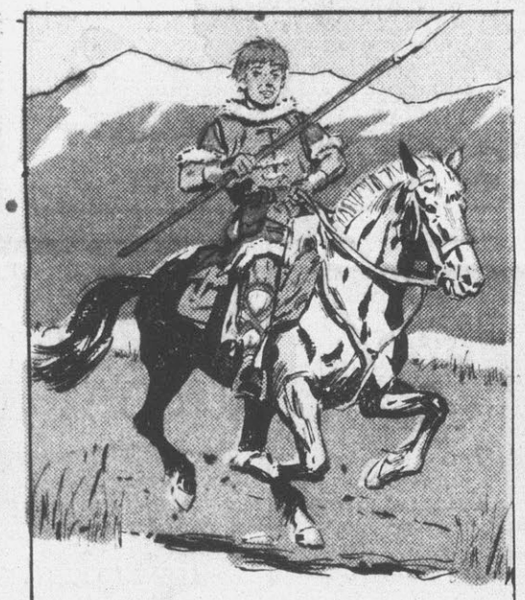

AT BERGEN THEY WAIT THE COMING OF SPRING, THEN BEGIN THE FIVE-HUNDRED MILE CROSSING OF THE NORTH SEA. THE GODDESS OF CHANCE SMILES UPON THEM. FOR IN ALL THIS VAST EXPANSE THE TWO SHIPS MEET.

GUNDAR TURNS HIS SHIP BROADSIDE, AND IN HER LEE PRINCE VALIANT IS HOISTED ABOARD.

HOW WONDERFUL IT IS TO REST SURROUNDED BY HIS HAPPY FAMILY AFTER SO LONG AN ABSENCE. ALETA STRIVES TO PLEASE HIM, FOR WELL SHE KNOWS THAT HE WILL LONG FOR ADVENTURE AND GROW RESTLESS.

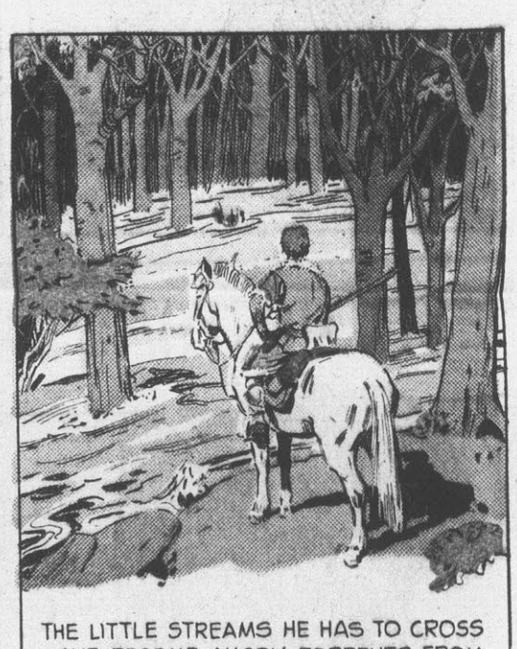

PRINCE ARN HAD ELECTED TO REMAIN IN THULE TO STUDY IN KING AGUAR'S LIBRARY, BUT WITH THE COMING OF SPRING HE DECIDES TO EXPAND THE SCOPE OF HIS LEARNING.

HE WISHES TO LEARN, FOR INSTANCE, IF THE DARK EYES OF LYDIA STILL SMILE A WELCOME, OR IF BEING A NEW-MADE PRINCESS HAS CHANGED HER.

THE LITTLE STREAMS HE HAS TO CROSS HAVE BECOME ANGRY TORRENTS FROM MELTING SNOW AND HE RIDES UP THE VALLEY SEEKING A CROSSING.

AS POTEET LEAVES THE RESIDENCE OF DON CINCO, HIS WIFE'S BROTHERS FORCE HER INTO A WAITING CAR

IT IS NOT THAT WE WISH TO HARM THE SEÑORITA CAÑON...

BUT YOU INSIST TO WRITE THE ACTUAL STORY THAT DON CINCO DID NOT SHOOT HIS WIFE'S LOVER!

WHICH WILL DESTROY THE HONOR OF OUR SISTER

—AND THE ILLUSION THAT HER HUSBAND WAS MADLY JEALOUS!

...WHEN HE REALLY DIED IN AN IRONIC VERSION OF 'LINE OF DUTY'?

—OF COURSE NOT!

SUCH COURAGE —IN THE FACE OF WHAT IT WILL BE NECESSARY FOR US TO DO TO YOU!

THEN—OUT OF THE DARKNESS —IN SPANISH

—AN END TO THIS NONSENSE! THESE ROGUES ATTEMPT TO STEAL OUR GLORY!

WH—

AMATEURS! —WITH NO RESPECT FOR HONEST ANARCHY!

SHALL WE CHOP THEM DOWN AS WE DID THE YANQUI AIR ATTACHÉ!

LET THEM DEPART TO TELL THEIR DON QUIXOTE TALES!

WE'LL KEEP THE SAUCY FEMALE FOR DISCIPLINING!
