

Utilities Will Seek $250,000 EDA Grant

By JAMES KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville Utilities Commission authorized director Charles Horne to file an application with the Economic Development Administration for a $257,000 federal grant, after learning the Commission's pre-application, filed some months ago, had been approved.

The action came at the Commission's last night where Horne told the Commission that a pre-application had "received favorable consideration." The requested money amounts to half of the total proposed cost of the west Greenville sewer system addition. Horne told the Commissioners that the approval of the pre-application does not necessarily mean the application will be approved, however.

The sewer system addition will provide sanitary sewer service to Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. It is expected to be completed in about 12 months, according to Horne. The Commission plans to proceed with advertisement for bids and the project will probably be under construction before a final decision on the grant application is reached, Horne said. If the application is disapproved, the Commission has made alternate plans to fund the project. A $62,270 state grant has already been approved for the project, Horne said. The Commission also learned last night that VEPCO's fossil fuel charge will be higher for the month of August. The charge will be $9.71 per 1,000 kilowatt hours in August, compared to $8.69 per 1,000 kilowatt hours charged in July, due to an increase in coal and oil facilities on the line during the peak summer months.

Malcolm Green, superintendent of the electric department, told the commissioners that July was "a heavy month for us, and it's going to get worse." He said the electric department is "beginning to feel the load of these bulk tobacco barns." After the summer is over, Green said the Commission should "take a real serious look at these (barns), and what they are doing to our system."

Commission business manager Curtis Howell reported on the progress of a deposit refund program. He said the Commission should be able to refund 20-year deposits around October 1. Horne said a public announcement about the refunds, totalling around $75,000, will be made before the refunding begins.

The 1974-75 budget was amended to show an $11,201, increase in revenue to offset a $7,044 increase in salaries and wages expenditure and a $4,157 increase in expenditures for contracted services.

A bid from N.C. Equipment Co. for a tractor-trailer, to be purchased by the Commission, was accepted. The bid was $5,350. The Commission had budgeted $7,500 for the purchase.

The Commission authorized Horne to ask insurance consultants to look into a liability insurance policy for the Commission. There will be no charge or obligation for the investigation, Horne said.

Horne told the Commission that the N.C. Utilities commission has approved an order whereby four cities, including Greenville, purchasing from N.C. Natural Gas, will receive early information on rate increases from NCNG.

Horne told the Commissioners that bids on materials purchased will now be included in the minutes of both the Commission and City Council meetings.

Also, an informal report was given on the recent Electricities meeting attended by some commissioners.

Bloodmobile

Tuesday's visit of the Bloodmobile to the Moose Lodge was a successful one, according to Pitt Blood chairman Billy Ross, as 131 pints of blood were collected.

Ross said that in addition to the 131 donors, there were 14 persons rejected for various health reasons.

The chairman pointed out that the turnout yesterday was "mostly steady" throughout the day and he added that local officials were "real pleased" with the visit, considering the time of year when vacations normally hold collection totals down.

The Bloodmobile was at the Moose Lodge again today while a visit is scheduled for Thursday at Union Carbide from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Coffee Survey

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — The United States, Brazil's main coffee customer, is taking a careful look at results of a frost that caused widespread damage to Brazilian coffee trees.

Since the July 18 freeze, the U.S. Embassy here has cabled a series of private reports to Washington on the after-effects. Now two coffee experts from the U.S. Department of Agriculture are on a two-week tour of frost-stricken Parana, Sao Paulo and Minas Gerais — the three states that produce most of Brazil's coffee. They are expected to report to the department next week.

U.S. interest is high because whatever happens to coffee in Brazil, the world's top producer, can be felt economically by importers, distributors and consumers in the United States and other coffee-importing countries.

News of the Brazilian frost already has caused prices to soar on the world coffee market.

OUT OF HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stanley K. Hathaway, who resigned as secretary of interior after serving five weeks, has been released from Bethesda Naval Hospital where he had been treated for fatigue, moderate depression and a mild case of diabetes.

Ticket Titlist

CHICAGO (AP) — Into the glare of television cameras and a horde of newsmen emerged 40-year-old Henry Rabin, Chicago's newest champion. Nobody before had gotten so many parking tickets, 468, all unpaid, according to traffic court officials.

"It just got out of hand," Rabin told Judge Richard LeFevour.

Rabin said, "I was working for this real estate firm located around Clark and Madison and I'd be in and out of the office all day, parking, you know, so it was a ticket here and a ticket there. Pretty soon, well, there were a real lot of tickets. So many I figured there was no way I could pay them. It sort of pyramided."

Rabin was ticketed 303 times in 1973, 132 in 1974 and 33 so far this year. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5,000. The judge ordered him to pay off the fine at $100 per month.

Portugal's Military Said Divided As To Loyalties

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Security chief Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho met today with military commanders following two nights of attacks on Communist political offices in northern Portugal.

A power struggle within the armed forces continued to divide the pro-Communist officers and moderates opposed to the establishment of a Communist dictatorship.

Anti-Communist violence that claimed four lives and injured scores in the north appeared to have let up today.

There were unconfirmed reports that Carvalho, one of three generals on the ruling junta, was preparing his own program for the next steps in Portugal's 15-month-old revolution.

The Carvalho program was described as slightly to the left of the demands of nine moderate officers whose position paper called for turning the revolution from its veer leftward back toward the center.

President Francisco de Costa Gomes' office said it could not comment on a report that the dissident nine, reportedly backed by 85 per cent of the armed forces, had demanded the resignation of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves.

Meeting at the summons of Carvalho were the nation's regional military commanders, heads of all units and representatives of the Armed Forces Movement — AFM — the organization Goncalves and Carvalho secretly commanded to overthrow the old rightist dictatorship.

Two of the regional commanders were among the nine dissident officers suspended last week from the Revolutionary Council that held supreme authority before the junta of Goncalves, Costa Gomes and Carvalho was created by the AFM assembly.

It seemed evident pressure was building up for a showdown between Goncalves, backed by the Communist party and radical left AFM leaders, and the moderate Melo Antunes group, supported by the Socialist party, the nation's biggest.

The Socialists scheduled a rally in Lisbon on Thursday to demand Goncalves' resignation.

Prosecution Opens Rebuttal To Little

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—Defense attorney Jerry Paul and prosecutor William Griffin clashed heatedly over Griffin's attempt to win admission for the testimony of a Beaufort County telephone operator today as the state opened its rebuttal in the Joan Little murder trial.

Griffin wanted the jury to hear Nancy Lee Hollis testify that she had attempted to place a collect phone call from the Beaufort County jail for a person identifying herself as Miss Little shortly after jailer Clarence Alligood was stabbed last Aug. 27.

Miss Little has denied making any phone calls from the jail after 10 p.m. on Aug. 26. The 21-year-old black is on trial for second degree murder in the ice pick slaying of her white jailer. She has admitted stabbing Alligood, but testified that she acted in self defense after he forced her to perform oral sex on him. The state contends she killed Alligood during an escape.

With the jury absent this morning, Paul told Judge Hamilton Hobgood that Miss Hollis' testimony should be ruled inadmissible for rebuttal, as it was during the original presentation of the prosecution's case. Hobgood delayed his ruling.

Paul argued that the telephone company records which might substantiate the testimony have been destroyed.

Paul charged that the records were destroyed through the intentional neglect of Griffin, whom Paul said did not try to get them from the telephone company within the six-month period in which the company retains its call records.

"He has been deceitful. He has used trickery. He wanted those phone records to be destroyed," Paul said.

Griffin replied, "I've had it up to here with that kind of naked assertion and innuendo that I've had to endure since last September."

He and special prosecutor John Wilkinson argued that Miss Hollis' testimony was needed in the absence of the records.

As the trial neared an end, attorneys for each side predicted difficulty with jurors.

Wants State Out

SOUTHPORT (AP)—Turning a state-operated port over to private enterprise was advocated by the chairman of the North Carolina Ports Authority Tuesday.

W. Dorch Langston of Goldsboro said that if the state does not do that with the Small Boat Harbor at Southport, then it should improve the port's services and efficiency.

The port is a marina for commercial fishing boats and recreational vessels. It is located just off the Cape Fear River. "I think if the state is going to operate a recreational facility to operate a recreational facility of that kind, we should better the facility or get out, and I'm in favor of leasing it and getting out," Langston said.

The harbor, never a money-maker for the state, recently came under fire from boatowners who claimed it provided poor service. Adding fuel for critics was a budget deficit of $90,261 last year.

The facility cannot be sold because it was financed with bonds, said an assistant attorney general.

WHO CAN GIVE TEST?

I wrote to the President's Council On Physical Fitness to try out for the award. They sent me a chart which tells me I qualify, but that I must have someone to supervise the test. Is there anyone in Greenville who can administer the test? K.C.

Hotline contacted City Schools physical education instructor Charles Crumpler, who said he would be glad to give you the test as soon as he had learned more about the test himself. He said that he had tried to get some college kids together in the spring to help give the test to students in the Greenville City Schools, but that he did not know the proper procedure at that time. He told us that if the proper information were provided, he would gladly administer the test for you. Crumpler said he could be contacted at the Moose Lodge pool, 756-7451, or at home in the evenings, 758-2479.

HIGH SCHOOLERS PREFERRED?

I would like to know why high school students are hired over college students at Manpower. V.A.

They're not, according to Manpower counselor Ed Evans. The only guidelines in this area are that the prospective employee be between the ages of 14 and 21 and that he meet federal poverty guidelines. Manpower has some college students, but mostly high school students, Evans said. To get a job, an employee must plan to return to school in the fall, according to Evans. The Manpower phone number is 758-3575.

Teens And Blacks Said Most Often Victimized

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government survey shows that teen-agers are more likely to be the victims of rape, robbery, assault and larceny than their elders.

The report, issued Tuesday by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, also said that black men generally are victimized more often than other groups.

The summary was the first full-year report from the LEAA's $12-million project to measure the crime rate by using polling techniques.

The report was based on a 1973 poll of 60,000 households and 15,000 business establishments across the country. The Census Bureau conducts the poll for LEAA.

It showed that about 236 of every 1,000 persons from ages 12 to 19 were victims of personal crime. The age category with the lowest victimization rate, 31.6 per 1,000, was 65 years and over.

The report said "Blacks were more likely than whites to have been victimized by rape, robbery and assault, whereas whites were more likely to have been victims of personal larceny," defined as the theft of a purse or wallet without a threat of violence.

The report showed that 161 of every 1,000 black men were victims of personal crime, compared with 151.5 for white men. Black and white women were victimized at about the same rate, slightly over 100 per 1,000.

The statistics on rape showed that black women were victimized at a rate of 3.1 per 1,000, compared with 1.7 for white women.

Tobacco Exporter Says His Firm Plans Buy Less Leaf This Year

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A leading tobacco exporter said Tuesday his firm will buy more flue-cured leaf as leaf quality improves, but will purchase "substantially less" this year than last.

H.L. Shelton, president of Export Leaf of Richmond, Va., said the recession abroad is at the root of his firm's buying decision. Shelton, whose company is a subsidiary of the British-American Tobacco Co., said the recession in other parts of the world has had a "profound impact on the exporting of American tobacco this year."

He also cited poor leaf quality on American markets and tax increases imposed by the British Government as other factors.

Tobacco growing quotas were increased for the 1975 season partially because those who set the quotas believed foreign demand would increase this year.

What occurred was a 17 per cent increase in the nation's flue-cured tobacco crop over last year's volume, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture figures, but no comparable increase in foreign demand for the product.

A federal official said that in spite of some specific overseas markets, the overall prospects for tobacco exports this year are not promising.

"If we can maintain what we had last year, we will be doing pretty good," said B.G. Andrews of the Agriculture Department's foreign agriculture service. Andrews cited Egypt and Syria as potentially better customers this year and said American officials are hopeful the Italians will buy more.

On the other hand, Shelton said Southeast Asian markets were adversely affected when the Communist takeover occurred. He said the loss of the Southeast Asian market would effect his own company's tobacco purchases. Industry sources say that South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia imported about 20 million pounds of tobacco last year.

Operation Sunshine Girls Entertained At Party

Girls enrolled in the summer program of Operation Sunshine were entertained at a party Tuesday morning at Elm Street Park given by members of the Opti-Mrs. Club of Greenville. A highlight of the party was the naming of the "most optimistic" girls—Vicki Jones of the Newtown group and Felicia Williams, who is enrolled in the West Greenville group. Mrs. Curtis Howell, projects chairman for the Opti-Mrs., made the presentations. Mrs. Charles Ross, president of the club, gave a brief history of the summertime project and welcomed the Sunshine girls attending.

Nurse Of Yesteryear Gives Point Of View

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: The nursing problems of 1880 caught my eye because I was a graduate nurse in 1908.

In training we received $8 per month for four years. We worked 10 hours a day, six days a week, and did all the cleaning. Three months every year, we worked in the TB ward.

Later, on private cases, we were allowed to charge only $25 a week. On contagious cases, we cooked all the patient's meals in the family kitchen, but many times, all I got to eat was one bowl of milk and bread.

On private cases we worked 20 hours a day and usually left the case after three weeks feeling exhausted and very hungry.

Today, nursing is a ball.

NORA J.

DEAR NORA: The low pay, long hours and drudgery of nursing in the early 1900s may make today's nursing look easy. But the academic and professional requirements for an R.N. these days are no "ball." And the competition, tensions and living costs that face the modern nurse don't make her work or her life a "ball," either.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who I like, but his wife can be very obnoxious.

This wife asked me to take a urine sample to the hospital lab for her in the morning because she and her husband leave for work earlier than the lab opens up and I go right by the hospital on my way to work later.

I said no flat out.

The next morning, this woman's mother was there to pick up the little jar to deliver it to the hospital, which is only six blocks away.

IT'S URINE, NOT MINE

DEAR IT'S: I think you were being unduly squeamish. You probably would have taken a blood sample and would not have been shocked by the request—unless, of course, you don't like any part of your neighbor's wife.

DEAR ABBY: Joe, a guy I bowl with, told me that he just came back from Las Vegas where he had been the best man at three weddings. (I'll call the bridegroom "Paul.")

Joe said that Paul first married a girl who was visibly pregnant just to give her baby a name. Immediately after they were married, Paul divorced her.

Then Paul went back to the chapel and married Girl No. 2 for the same reason. As soon as they were married, Paul divorced her, too.

Paul said the divorces had been set up in advance.

Then, they went back to the chapel, and Paul married the girl he was really in love with. (Joe said the third one didn't look pregnant.)

How about blood tests and waiting periods? Personally, I think this so-called "best man" is full of baloney, but he swears this actually happened.

Is this possible?

DOUBTING THOMAS

DEAR TOM: It's possible. Blood tests and waiting periods are not required in Nevada. I am informed that divorces are final when granted and the parties are free to marry immediately.

DEAR ABBY: You indicated that you were in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment. I am amazed at you. Don't you know that if it becomes law, there will no longer be separate public restrooms for men and women? And the men and women will not have separate quarters in college dorms, prisons, schools, locker rooms and even public hospitals? Do your homework!

AGAINST ERA IN ILLINOIS

DEAR AGAINST: Do yours! In 1965, the Supreme Court established the constitutional right to privacy. This permits the separation of the sexes in all places involving sleeping, disrobing and all other private functions.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Combines Practical Care With Lush Fabrics

New fall fashions for women concentrate on soft, brushed fabrics. Many fabrications use a touch of rabbit's hair or angora in polyester blends. For others, brushing, napping, shearing or sueding gives the warm cozy feeling.

Colors lean toward royal wine shades, burgundies and chablis. The Chinese influence introduces red and Persian blue. Loden and yellowed greens, rust, gray and black figure importantly. Winter ices in lavender to green give a change of pace and teal continues in smoke and heather tones. For subtlety, colors are woven or knitted, often as tone-on-tone and no-pattern patterns. Ombre, the gradation of tone, continues in importance and is new as a ground for prints and stripes.

Borders are coming on strong for the Big Shape dress and pared-down chemise. There are more dimensional plaids. The newer stripes are broken or simply a suggestion of stripes. Others are done as foulard (plain or twill weaves printed with small figures on dark and light backgrounds) or floral configurations. Something new is faux uni, or false one. For example, a solid effect is actually made up of bits of color.

Styling takes two directions: big, loose, swaggy shapes and body-hugging slim lines. Often in separates, the two looks are combined for a newly-layered interest. An overdress is added to pants and a shirt topped by a sweater. Pants are as popular as ever and sometimes worn under either slim, clingy or Big Look dresses and tunics. Or a Big Tip goes over pared-down pants or slim-look skirts. The Chinese influence for tops includes quilting, side-wraps, toggle and frog closings and lacquer colors. Shorter, cropped blazers top cuffed pants.

There are longer skirts in wrap-arounds and swishy rounds. The opposite slim lines allow plenty of free action with box pleats giving skirts the slim look. In dresses, body-hugging sweater dresses and Sirens are newsworthy and the chemise is popular in a pared-down version. All come in tactile fabrics.

In fact, fabrics are the most exciting aspect of the fashion picture. Luxurious fabrics frequently offer the practical feature of washability. So reading labels beforehand is beneficial.

Along with the emphasis on soft, supple hand and lofty surfaces, there are many blends and look-alikes. A textured polyester looks and feels like suede. Synthetics simulate cotton. Others feel like wool. Heavy single knits resemble double knits, such as shiny-matte combinations of nylon and polyester. A double knit that looks like a woven is made of 75 per cent polyester, 15 per cent linen, and 10 per cent rayon. In sportswear woollens, the greatest interest is in blends with high polyester content—80 per cent polyester-20 per cent worsted, for example.

In general, knits are either lightweight interlocks and slinky single knits or bulky, coarse-gauge sweater knits. Watch for chenille yarns in bulkies, polished, often boucle yarns for tight, curly textures and polyester carpeting yarns for the newest effects.

Slick surfaces are very good this season and emphasize pointelle patterns and openwork designs. Dull-shiny looks are achieved by using a variety of yarns, frequently in a jacquard construction.

There is a marked trend towards wovens. Chino, poplin, serge and gabardine are showing up in various weights and constructions. Some are coated to add sheen. Others shine from the fiber itself. Many are brushed for a warm hand. Textures and slubby weaves including homespun looks continue in popularity.

Clean-up Procedures for Outdoor Eating

It's cookout season! Save time and steps in serving and cleanup—plan a routine. Use large serving trays to transport dishes, glasses, silverware, condiments and food. Take a plastic-lined pail outdoors to scrape dishes after a meal right on the spot. Fill another pail with sudsy water before eating. Afterwards, place dishes, silverware and serving bowls in the suds solution to soak. Then remove utensils and servingware; place on trays to take inside for washing to carry back in the pail if it's not too heavy.

Couple Weds Saturday Evening

The marriage of Jeri Barber Greene and Lyman Earl Tyson was solemnized Saturday at 8:00 p.m. in the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Jack Mayo. Mrs. Joyce Gray of Winterville presented a program of organ music.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lee Barber of Tennessee, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length white dress printed with pink and blue flowers accented by a matching jacket. She carried a bouquet of white, pale pink and blue mums.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Heber Lyman Tyson of Rt. 1, Farmville.

The maid of honor was Wendy Barber of Tennessee, sister of the bride. She wore a formal length off white dress trimmed in lace and carried a long-stemmed blue mum.

The flower girl was Julie Dawn Green of Greenville, daughter of the bride. She wore a pale pink dress of organza and satin trimmed in white daisies at the waistline. She carried a white basket of pink and white mums.

The best man was Charles Joyner of Farmville.

The bride attended J.H. Rose High School and is a beautician at Glamor Beauty Shop, Greenville. The bridegroom attended Farmville High School and is employed by S.E. Nichols, Greenville.

The couple will reside in Greenville after a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina.

A reception, held at the bride's home, followed the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a pink linen cloth and decorated with wedding bells tied with pink ribbon. The centerpiece was an arrangement of pink and white mums in a pink swan flanked by white candles.

Sound Decisions Carry A Price

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has informed Gov. Holshouser of the possibility of "initiation of formal administrative enforcement proceedings against the state" involving the higher education system.

This was said in a letter to the governor from HEW's Office for Civil Rights.

"Administrative enforcement proceedings" is bureaucratic talk for cutting off federal funds to the state's higher education system because HEW feels that North Carolina has not proceeded rapidly enough on its desegregation program.

The HEW report cites many things which it considers deficiencies; most of them we believe to be in the nit picking category. Curiously the University of North Carolina's semi-annual report was on the way to HEW with firm answers to most of the charges leveled in HEW's findings. HEW was aware of this but apparently was so anxious to get its administrative processes going that its officials were unwilling to wait until the semi-annual report was in hand.

It is not likely that it would have made any difference anyway if HEW had taken a look at the university's semi-annual report before sending the letter to Gov. Holshouser.

It is obvious that North Carolina's decision to place a veterinary school at N.C. State University, rather than North Carolina A&T made somebody in the vast bureaucracy angry, and there is a determination there to force North Carolina to buckle under. All this despite the fact that this state's universities were long ago desegregated and the community college system has always been operated without regard to race.

Of course, railing at Hew at this point won't do any good. The matter will probably wind up in the courts and judging by thinness of the allegations that HEW has made, it would appear to us, as laymen, that North Carolina has an exceptionally good opportunity to win this one.

In the meantime HEW meddling will be very disruptive to the University of North Carolina and community colleges systems, but it is a price we will have to pay for the right to make a sound educational decision.

The only hope of avoiding a court confrontation is that cooler heads in HEW will recognize the strong possibilities of losing this case in court. And a loss here would be a bureaucratic disaster. HEW would be set back for years by a court ruling favorable to North Carolina. Perhaps if that is the result, our state's plight will do a world of good for the other 49 states.

Roses Are A Mania

By GREGORY JENSEN
WINDSOR, England (UPI) — Under the spreading chestnut trees beside the queen's moat stood circus-sized tents filled with an Englishman's dearest passion, roses.

The English rose is a national mania. Or so it seems each summer when every park and suburban or village street is heavy with the sight and scent of the queen of blooms.

The 100-year-old Royal National Rose society, with more than 65,000 members, is the nation's biggest gardening group. It has more than 1,200 local affiliated societies, and every one holds an annual show.

The Royal Windsor Rose and Horticultural show is one. This year, as every year, it spread its tents on the queen's own meadows in the private grounds of Windsor Castle. For something which expressed a national mania it fairly oozed gentility.

Matrons in printed silks strolled from the tea tent to sit decorously by a lily-filled moat under the frowning battlements of the world's largest inhabited castle.

Dancers and handbell ringers performed on the grass. A school band tootled atrociously to ringing applause. Pony rides carried children past Windsor Bowmen arching arrows across the drought-browned lawns.

But the business of the day was roses — big ones, small ones, new ones, favorite ones, milk-white roses and those of a deep lavender blue.

"We have fewer roses this year — than usual, I fear," apologized the show manager, a harried-looking gentleman counting coins in the secretary's tent. "It's the drought, you know."

Several weeks had passed without rain, a drought which brittle thorny stems and

Ended Year In Fiscal Hole

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—The state of North Carolina wound up fiscal year 1974-75 in the monetary hole by $54.8 million, and budget officials are right now scurrying about for funds to balance the loss.

The shortage will be made up from "reversions," which are dollars parceled out to state agencies for various purposes, but not spent during the budget period; therefore, returned to the general fund.

Sources say they expect the reversions to cover the loss—but just barely. In fact, the original estimate of reversions for the past year was $52 million, and if that estimate were proven correct, the state would be in violation of the Constitution which requires a balanced budget with no deficit financing.

Hunting Pennies

Even though reversion reports from all agencies were due July 15, the final reports have not been tallied as top-level officials seek out every possible penny to make the budget balance.

But the situation puts the coming year in an awfully precarious balance.

When he first unveiled his 1975-76 budget, Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr., called for using the reversions from last year to finance some programs and to cut the sales tax on food.

Rather than having reversions for that purpose, the money must be used to balance the past year's budget. Actual revenue collections were $62.1 million less than the estimate used by the governor and the Advisory Budget Commission; $54.8 million below the actual amount needed to balance.

Legislators who bypassed salary increases for teachers and state employees and cut a number of favorite projects during the recent budget-cutting session had hoped to come back to Raleigh next May and mend those fences.

No Increase

There will likely be no hefty increase in state revenues to allow such rewards, and the absence of a substantial reversion total to begin with will put budget-makers even further in the hole.

General Assembly staff economists put it, formally, this way in a report to legislators: "A stronger recovery from the recession than previously assumed is necessary to achieve the estimated revenue and balance the budget for 1975-76... assuming no extreme resurgence of inflation, which probably would slow the recovery to a standstill, real growth must be closer to six per cent in order to achieve estimated revenues."

"The undercollections appear to reduce the possibility of substantial overcollections in 1975-76, and increases the possibility of undercollections and thus using a portion of reversions to balance the budget."

In plain language, the economists will tell you, that means the chances of pleasant money surprises for North Carolina are very slim.

The picture is likewise grim in highway funds, apart from the general fund. Actual collections for 1974-75 were $13.1 million below estimates, and current collections are below last year's, leading economists to predict a "shortfall in revenue... depending on energy policy in Washington and the size of price increases for gasoline... which could be relatively minor or of significant proportions."

In the general fund, the economic picture shows that tax revenues must grow significantly in order to balance the current fiscal-year budget... a prospect not bright. Economists in Raleigh say the situation, "substantially reduces the probability of significant overcollections... and increases the possibility of undercollections."

Let's See Who Salutes

(As part of the Bicentennial celebration Mr. Buchwald has given us permission to use one of the pieces he wrote when he was covering television for the Colonial Broadcasting Network in 1775.)

Have you ever wondered what would have happened if the people who are in charge of television today were passing on the draft of the Declaration of Independence?

The scene is Philadelphia at WJULY-TV. Several men are sitting around holding copies of the declaration.

Thomas Jefferson comes in nervously.

"Tommy," says the producer, "it's just great. I would say it was a masterpiece."

"We love it, Tommy boy," the advertising agency man says. "It sings. Lots of drama, and it holds your interest. There are a few things that have to be changed, but otherwise it stays intact."

"What's wrong with it?" Mr. Jefferson asks.

There's a pause. Everyone looks at the man from the network.

"Well, frankly, Tommy, it smacks of being a little anti-British. I mean, we've got quite a few Tory listeners, and something like this might bring in a lot of mail."

"Now don't get sore, Tommy boy," the agency man says. "You're the best Declaration of Independence writer in the business. That's why we hired you. But our sponsor, the Boston Tea Co., is interested in selling tea, not independence. Mr. Cornwallis, the sponsor's representative, is here, and I think he has a few thoughts on the matter. Go ahead, Corney. Let's hear what you think."

Mr. Cornwallis stands up. "Mr. Jefferson, all of us in this room want this to be a whole of a document. I think we'll agree on that."

Everyone in the room nods his head.

"At the same time we feel—I think I can speak for everybody—that we don't want to go over the heads of the mass of people who we hope will buy our product. You use words like despotism, annihilation, migration and tenure. Those are all egghead words and don't mean a damn thing to the public. Now I like your stuff about 'life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.' They all tie in great with tea, particularly pursuit of happiness, but it's the feeling of all of us that you're really getting into controversial water when you start attacking the King of England."

Mr. Jefferson says, "But every word of it is true. I've got the documentary proof."

"Let me take a crack at it, Corney," the agency man says. "Look, Tommy boy, it isn't a question of whether it's true or not. All of us here know what a louse George III can be. But if you remind people of all those taxes George has laid on us, they're not going to go out and buy tea. They're not going to go out and buy anything."

The INSIDE REPORT

Lapse By 'Dovish' Admiral

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Apprehension swept through the Pentagon when it learned that retired Navy Rear Adm. Gene R. LaRocque, favorite military expert of the American left, was about to visit Japan for the first time as guest of big left-wing Tokyo newspapers.

The alarm was justified by past performance. Highly questionable Senate testimony by LaRocque on nuclear weapons last year set off a major Japanese political crisis. Before leaving for his current tour of Japan, he reassured the State Department he had no wish to "foul up" U.S.-Japanese relations. But in Tokyo last Thursday, the dovish admiral was up to his old tricks.

Incorrectly billed in the Japanese press as former commander of the U.S. Sixth Fleet, the ex-cruiser skipper told a press conference that U.S. bases in Japan and South Korea "do not in any way contribute to the national defense of the U.S., directly or indirectly."

Such strategic apostasy from a U.S. admiral undercuts the communique issued here last week by President Ford and Japanese prime minister Takeo Miki, strongly reiterating this bedrock of the U.S.-Japanese alliance: mutual security inextricably linked to the Korean peninsula, where the U.S. maintains 42,000 battle-ready troops and extensive military bases. But that is in keeping with LaRocque's outrageous testimony on the nuclear question.

That testimony by LaRocque, who heads the anti-Pentagon Center of Defense Information, was made before a joint Atomic Energy subcommittee last Sept. 10 and stands intact in the record despite documented rebuttal from the Defense Department.

Summoned by the subcommittee chairman, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, to discuss nuclear proliferation, LaRocque first made his well-publicized statement which triggered political turbulence in Japan. He said "most people" were not aware that U.S. naval vessels armed with nuclear weapons regularly visit Japanese ports and that "there is a real danger that we may get an inadvertent use of one of those nuclear weapons."

He then went on to a cozy, intimate account of what he alleged to be just such a near-miss accidental nuclear firing. Describing an incident in which the Terrier anti-aircraft missile was to be fired in a practice session from the deck of the cruiser Providence, commanded by LaRocque, the retired admiral testified:

"Lo and behold, we were ready to fire and the machinery clanks and the computers all buzz and whir and up popped a red-tipped missile. Now, a red-tipped missile is a nuclear missile... This mechanism was now completely automated and almost out of anybody's control because the radars had locked on the incoming (practice) plane and the computers had all been mashed. We were able, of course, to put the genie back in the bottle (but) it really worried me."

Edward J. Bauser, then committee counsel, at Symington's direction, sent this explosive allegation to the Defense Department for a complete report. What came back was a carefully understated letter from D.R.

Cotter, assistant for atomic energy to Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, which gave the lie to LaRocque's testimony, stem to stern.

"No Navy Department record of such an incident could be located. If such an incident had occurred, the commanding officer (LaRocque) was of course required to submit a report in compliance with existing Navy directives."

That letter was dated Sept. 25. Thereafter, the Defense Department interviewed members of the crew during LaRocque's command from October 1964 to November 1965. Not one could recall an incident even remotely consistent with the admiral's scary testimony. Excerpts from the statements of two crew members who served throughout LaRocque's command, one by the senior chief fire control technician and the other from the missile house chief, sum up the evidence.

The fire control technician: "An incident such as the one described by (then) Capt. LaRocque never occurred during my time aboard to my knowledge. I can never recall a Y (nuclear) bird on the rail for any reason."

The missile house chief: "Nuclear warheads had no red ball or nose whatever."

Strength For Today

HOMES AND HEALING

The Greek word for "household" used in the New Testament is "therapeia." From this word we get the English word therapeutics, which means the science of healing. The ancient Greek-speaking world therefore looked upon the home as a place of healing—the place where the wounds of life were cleansed and dressed and the diseases of mind and body cared for and healed.

A true home today is this very same place—a center of healing and health wherein all that is hurt is healed, and all that is weak and immature tended with loving care.

But unfortunately there are some households which are not of this nature. Some are places of bruising and cutting. And where this is true the members thereof need to ask themselves why they are turning something God intended to be good into something which Satan uses for every evil purpose. When people make the home a center of bitterness and hate, they have transformed it into an engine to destroy the people housed within it.

Alcoholism Costly To Business

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Alcoholism is inflationary. Seldom do you hear the disease discussed in this context, but a realization of its enormous costs is making business take a new look at the problem.

A federal study found that alcohol misuse costs the nation $23.7 billion a year, and that the largest segment of that overall figure, some $9.35 billion, is in the form of lost production.

Absenteeism, wasted time on the job, inefficiency, faulty decision-making, accidents, and rehabilitation costs are the chief ingredients of that $9.35 billion, a sum that inevitably finds its way into the prices of goods.

Dr. Nicholas Pace, corporate medical director of General Motors Corp., told a meeting on alcoholism here last month that a study of its Pontiac operations showed alcoholics averaged no less than 93 days absent a year.

That's only one indicator. The sickness and accident claims, he said, amounted to more than four times those of the "normal" employee. The alcoholic received repeated disciplinary layoffs for drinking on the job.

Even grimmer statistics come from the Labor-Management Committee of the National Council on Alcoholism, which puts the cost to American industry at $12.5 billion a year.

"There are nine million alcoholics in this country," it said in a statement signed by George Meany, AFL-CIO president, and James Roche, GM director and former chairman. "Five million are employed, more than 4 per cent of our work force."

The "rock bottom" average cost of each alcoholic to his employer, the labor leader and the industrialist said, is $2,500 a year. "Alcoholism can strike a board chairman as easily as a blue collar worker," they said.

Nevertheless, companies that in other ways fight to cut costs, to raise productivity, to improve morale, often fail to have programs for alcoholics, despite the obvious human and economic benefits of instituting them. "A job is a tremendous method of motivating people," Pace said in an interview. "When they recover they work their tail off for the company. The time they used to spend drinking is now donated to the company. They feel responsible."

Despite the belated realization, GM and an increasing number of large companies — Hughes Aircraft, Firestone and Du Pont, to name some of the prominent ones — find it pays to treat rather than fire alcoholics.

"It takes 12 to 14 years to develop this problem, and if you fire the worker you've lost an employee in which you have an investment," said

Pace. "We hold the hand out to the alcoholic. We offer treatment."

The GM program, under which 600,000 workers are covered for up to 45 days of treatment, has involved 8,000 heavy drinkers in the past two years with, said Pace, a recovery rate of 80 per cent.

Isn't the recovered alcoholic a marked person, a worker to be watched closely and even with suspicion, a worker not to be trusted with greater responsibilities? "Not if you have a program of education at the top," said Pace.

While industry does seem to be learning that it can cut costs by treating rather than ignoring alcoholism, a puzzling question that must be answered by researchers is this: Do the strains of industrial society contribute to the problem?

Definitive answers seem to escape the scholars, but a

Air Base Commander Relieved In Drugging Of Viet Refugees

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. Air Force base commander in Thailand was relieved of his position after 13 protesting Vietnamese refugees were drugged and put aboard the last plane for Guam.

Officials said Col. Harold R. Austin was reassigned from command of the key Utapao base to 115th Air Force headquarters at March Air Force Base, Calif.

There was no immediate information on how long after the May 1 drugging incident Austin was removed from his Utapao command by Gen. Louis L. Wilson Jr., Air Force chief in the Pacific.

The Air Force confirmed the drugging episode Tuesday, hours after Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., chairman of the House immigration subcommittee, demanded an explanation of what he called "a horrible thing for our country."

But the Air Force denied Eilberg's allegation that the refugees, who wanted to return home, were beaten. "No physical force was used," it said.

The official Air Force explanation strongly suggested the decision to drug the 13 refugees with sodium pentathol, a sedative, and thiorazine, a tranquilizer, was made because of pressure from Thai officials to remove South Vietnamese from their country quickly.

"The Thai officials were adamant that they leave Thailand immediately," the Air Force said.

About 3,000 South Vietnamese flew to Thailand on Vietnamese planes as their country was being overrun by Communist forces.

The Air Force recalled that the United States sent C141 transport planes to carry the Vietnamese refugees from Thailand after the Thais asserted that the Vietnamese could not remain.

"On May 1, when South Vietnam had fallen and the last C141 was leaving for Guam, a group of 13 Vietnamese refused to go," the Air Force statement said.

"They said that when they boarded the aircraft in Vietnam, their Vietnamese flight crews had told them that their destination was the Delta region of Vietnam."

"Near hysteria, they demanded to be returned to Vietnam and threatened suicide if they were not returned immediately."

As the Air Force told the story, a decision by U.S. and Thai officials on the scene to sedate the Vietnamese and take them to Guam was made after hours of fruitless efforts to persuade the 13 "that there were no means to take them back."

It said the drugs were administered by U.S. medical personnel at Utapao and that an Air Force nurse was aboard the flight.

"No ill effects were noted," the Air Force said.

An Air Force spokesman said the 13 are still on Guam awaiting repatriation, but an aide to Eilberg said one is in the United States.

About 2,000 of the more than 130,000 South Vietnamese who left their country in the dying days of the war have asked to go back.

The warhead was completely white. We did not, during tactical firing operations, operate the feeder system in automatic. The operation would have been in step-manual until it was on the launcher rail."

Moreover, the missile house chief said he believed neither LaRocque nor any commander on the bridge "could see what kind of missile was on the launcher rail," concluding: "I do know that during my tour of duty a nuclear missile was never loaded onto the launcher."

This rebuttal testimony was duly sent to Symington's subcommittee, but was never made public. It was then sent to LaRocque for explanation. A committee official told us LaRocque's reply was "equivocal, not fully responsive."

No wonder. The retired admiral had been caught in at best a monumental lapse of memory; at worst an outrageous fabrication. His Tokyo pronouncements on high global strategy must be viewed in this murky light.

tumbled parched petals far ahead of time. British roses are not bred for drought.

Most are bred in Northern Ireland, in fact, simply because rainless spells are even rarer there than here. Nearly all new ones come from two breeders — the McGredys and the Dicksons — who discard some 100,000 seedlings for every new variety they market.

Each new variety must pass a three-year test in the biggest rose garden in Britain — the National Rose society's eight acres of nothing but roses. Its garden blazes with upward of 35,000 bushes of about 1,500 rose varieties.

Once certified by the society, a new rose can be sold to the legion of British gardeners who pour out $18 million a year on roses.

Few of their products wind up in more glamorous settings than the show under Windsor Castle's walls. But the Windsor show, like most rose shows, was not just roses all the way.

There were delphiniums and pinks, cactus and cakes, rhubarb and home-made wine — one gentleman living in the castle entered "black mead" and fig wine with printed labels reading, "Schloss Windsor."

Flowers of every kind mingled with roses in a tent full of fancy flower arrangements, all on musical themes.

"Moonlight Sonata" was interpreted in cool curves of ivory white roses. First prize in the "Top of the Pops" category went to an arrangement in an electric guitar. A ceramic cowboy held up one bunch of "The Yellow Rose of Texas," and "Bye Bye Blues" arrangements incorporated trumpets, or, in one case, champagne.

A Women's Institute tent demonstrated home crafts like patchwork and paper sculpture and chair caning. One stall sold trinkets to benefit the Save the Children fund, and the tent displayed the prettiest stand in the show displayed bird pictures made of feathers.

Near the screened-off members' enclosure — cucumber sandwiches and a flourishing bar — stood a marquee with five ranks of silver cups and trophies, prizes for the winners among the show's 750 entries.

Lady Egworthy, wife of Windsor Castle's governor, handed over the golden rose of the Royal Windsor Rose trophy and the tub-sized cup King George V donated in 1913.

The rose world's most cherished prizes are those from three giant national shows sponsored yearly by the National Rose society itself. The next is in London on Sept. 12 and 13.

Some Disturbances In Winston-Salem

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—A policeman was hit in the head with a rock or bottle, and then wounded a man during a disturbance Tuesday night, the police department reports.

It gives this account: Police answered a disturbance call shortly before midnight in a black neighborhood of Winston-Salem, the Liberty Street Strip.

They were met with resistance while trying to arrest a man on a disorderly conduct charge. They called for help and a crowd gathered in the street near a night club, and started throwing rocks and bottles.

An officer arrested a man who allegedly threw a rock. And while the man was being placed in a police car, someone hit the officer in the head with a rock or a bottle, and knocked him to his knees. He came up with his service revolver in his hand. He fired one shot at a man running away from him.

The police operations major, Joseph Mastin, says the officer, 33-year-old Jimmy Thompson, apparently missed the man but hit a second man, 26-year-old Anthony Smoak, in the chest. Smoak is reported in satisfactory condition. Officer Thompson also was treated at a hospital.

Some two hours later, according to Mastin, people broke into a furniture store near the night club. Police came back. They said they arrested 24-year-old Bobby Cundiff as he was leaving with merchandise. He was charged with store-breaking.

Black community leaders helped police restore order.

Anti-Communist Meo Tribesmen In Deep Trouble

By MATT FRANJOLA
Associated Press Writer
BAN NAM LAN, Thailand (AP) — Thousands of mountain tribesmen who fled Laos in the past two months after the pro-Communist Pathet Lao took control of the country are barely subsisting in the jungles around here, weary, sick and in some cases starving.

They walked up to four weeks over rugged terrain only to find themselves unwelcome in this country even here, a day's march into Thailand, and not safe from Pathet Lao raiding parties.

They are Meos, members of a proud and independent primitive race of woodsmen and black-clad, silver-bedecked women, who were caught up on the pro-American side of the Laotian war and now have nowhere to turn.

Thai and Western experts estimate 12,000 Meo refugees are living in temporary shelters in this area of northern Thailand, and Thai medical authorities say 80 per cent of them are suffering from malnutrition, malaria and anemia. Another 18,000 have sought refuge in northeastern Thailand.

Their future is uncertain. Their presence is an irritant to already shaky Thai-Lao relations. And the golden door of America is closed to them.

"We were soldiers of Vang Pao and the Americans," claimed one Meo leader, referring to Gen. Vang Pao, head of a CIA-supported mercenary army who has been granted asylum in the United States.

"The Pathet Lao are the enemy. If we go back we have nothing to eat, and they will kill us or send us off to study where we will never return to our families."

In the Ban Nam Lan area,

TURKEY SWAP
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri conservation officials have negotiated a swap of Missouri wild turkeys for 5,000 Iowa pheasants.

about five miles — a day's walk — from the frontier, 5,700 refugees are virtually imprisoned in a jungle area bordered by Laos, a Thai Communist insurgent base and two rivers.

Thai authorities permit only half a dozen a day to leave and walk four hours to Mae Cherim village to buy essentials.

Thai authorities here in Nam province have spent $40,000 on the refugees, province governor Sawatdi Prapanich said, and provincial refugee sources said it would cost $1,000 a day to meet the basic minimum needs in rice alone.

"If they have no rice and die, that is their problem," said the governor. "We did not ask them to come. We have poor Thais who need help."

The government says it has run out of funds for the refugees. For the time being those here who can afford it are buying Thai army helicopter-transported rice at 20 per cent more than the rate in the province capital, but Lao Teng says in Pua "in two weeks we will run out of money."

At the Ban Nam Lan site about 2,000 refugees have enough money for two more weeks; the rest already are reduced to scavenging in the jungle. They set out daily to hunt for roots, berries and other edible plants.

Some rice and medical aid has been donated by the Y.M.C.A. and Roman Catholic groups in the major north Thai city of Chiangmai. But this has been small compared to the total need.

Of 100 donated sacks of rice, 23 were skimmed off by corrupt Thai officials in the jungle camp, Meo refugees claim.

No Thai official comment was available on the claim. Thais and Westerners emerging from the area in recent weeks have made similar reports.

The United States would aid the refugees through the United Nations or in a multilateral ca-capacity only if the Thai government asked for help, an official at the consulate in Chiangmai said.

Recently the Thais and the United Nations high commission for refugees signed an agreement whereby the commission office would provide $3.1 million for Indochinese refugees in Thailand.

Two U.N. officials recently visited the Thai base at the jungle site and were reported discussing with Thai authorities how much aid to send and how to transport it to the remote area.

The Meo refugees claim to have turned in more than 400 weapons to Thai authorities and are defenseless against Pathet Lao intruders and Thai Communist insurgents in the area.

Nat'l Parks Are Jammed

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Americans are flocking to national parks in record numbers this year, and one federal official says it may represent a last-thing attitude before gasoline prices go higher.

He said the number of visitors to some parks has more than doubled over last year, when national leaders were urging motorists to stay close to home to conserve fuel supplies.

In most cases, statistics show that visitation is even higher than 1973, before the energy crisis slowed vacation travel, said Neil Newton, chief of the National Park Service's statistical unit in Washington, D.C.

"It seems a lot of people think this year is the year to go, before gasoline prices go up some more," said Lloyd Jacklin.

Brain Drain May See Its Other Side

By STEPHEN MORROW
LIMA, Peru (UPI) — The much publicized brain drain has another side to it and Peruvian diplomat Oscar Faura is an outstanding example.

Peru and other developing countries do lose too many of their trained professionals to emigration. But they also benefit from the return of such migrants in later life, who then put experience that could only have been gained abroad to work for their native countries.

Faura, 58, is the director of public relations for the Peruvian Foreign Ministry and the chief interpreter for the president, the prime minister and the foreign minister. His lifetime of training for these jobs included 23 years in the United Nations, eight of them as chief press and public relations aide for the late Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld.

As he did for Hammarskjöld, Faura travels all over the world with Foreign Minister Gen. Miguel Angel de la Flor, a vigorous exponent of a more powerful and unified voice for the nonaligned nations.

Faura, a chunky man with a brisk forceful manner, organizes news coverage for international meetings in Peru, such as the nonaligned nations conference here in late August. His small press shop is known for the promptness with which it delivers important releases. He's always on hand to interpret when a foreign statesman visits Peru.

Faura's training for such assignments began with a bilingual education in London, where his father, an admiral, was posted to diplomatic assignments in Britain and elsewhere in Europe.

His first job was as a war correspondent for the South American service of the British Broadcasting Corp. He watched Spitfires and Messerschmitts dog-fighting over southern England during the Battle of Britain and crossed the Atlantic in a convoy that had 18 of its 75 ships torpedoed by German submarines.

Soon after the war, Faura went to work for the United Nations. Beginning as an interpreter in Spanish, English and French, he moved to the press section and later the executive side.

The years with Hammarskjöld were extremely arduous. "It was suitcase and hotel, suitcase and hotel, constantly traveling, to 65 or 70 countries," Faura recalled. "Getting news out of Dag Hammarskjöld was like pulling teeth."

Faura almost lost his life with Hammarskjöld. At the last minute, Hammarskjöld sent him home early from the Congo (now Zaire) in 1961. The Secretary General then boarded the plane which crashed and killed him in Katanga province in September that year.

In his years as an executive in New York's U.N. secretariat building, Faura on his trips back to Peru was increasingly appalled at the gap between the rich and the poor nations. From the first, he was a strong backer of the military government, which took power in 1968 on a platform of sweeping social change.

"I went back to work for Peru because I believed in what the government was doing," Faura said. "If these men hadn't stepped in and turned things around, I'm convinced that Peru was headed for bloody civil war."

Air Skepticism As To Women

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — American high school pupils think women have the brains and ability to become scientists and astronauts, but they aren't so sure women can handle administrative jobs.

Purdue University discovered these attitudes in a nationwide survey on science career plans. Seventy per cent of the pupils said they think women have as much scientific ability as men, and 75 per cent said they would choose a dentist on the basis of ability rather than gender.

Mrs. Arline C. Erlick, editor of Purdue Opinion Panel, suspects that some myths about women's lack of ability persist as a reaction to the youngsters' early experiences with female supervision in school and at home.

LA Police Chief's Candor Is Becoming A Sort Of Legend

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — He has been caricatured with a large foot in his mouth and referred to in print as "Crazy Ed."

But such indignities fail to stifle the candor of Los Angeles' colorful top law enforcement officer, Police Chief Edward M. Davis.

In recent months, he has aimed his rhetoric at opposing gun control, fuming against more lenient marijuana laws and accusing politicians of taking payoffs from pornographers and homosexuals.

When he was hit with a court gag order — after naming a suspect in the "Skid Row Slasher" murders — Davis faced television cameras with a green silk handkerchief stuck in his mouth. As one aide puts it, "There's nothing wishy washy about this man."

At 57, the white-haired veteran policeman who worked his way up through the ranks has won a strong following among conservatives. Even liberal critics concede he is an able police administrator who has devised innovative programs in his six years at the helm. What separates supporters and detractors are Davis' frequently critical statements and right-of-center views.

City Attorney Burt Pines accuses Davis of making "inaccurate and careless statements" which "cannot help but cause public concern and confusion."

Devoutly religious, Davis

blames "swinging mothers" for increased crime — a statement interpreted by some as a blast at women's lib.

"The chief is speaking for the majority of public thinking in this state and perhaps the country," says Lt. Dan Cooke, a department spokesman.

"Some (supporters) have likened him to Harry Truman and want him to run for political office. They write, 'God bless you, Chief. At least we know where you stand.' Of course, we get some (calls and letters) against from people who think he's a comedian."

Cmdr. Pete Hagan, the department's chief spokesman, concedes, "The public that calls us are the people who are backing the police. We don't have militants calling with their opinions."

But he says Davis' "hard core of supporters" is large and once went so far as to send him $33,000 for the defense of police officers charged in a mistake killing. The money was returned.

Some of the Davis candor has become legendary. At the height of air piracy, Davis suggested that perhaps hijackers should be immediately tried and, if convicted, executed at the airport.

Cooke maintains Davis has been frequently misquoted and says the airport statement may have been misunderstood — "But you have to admit that we've had no hijackings since then."

The chief has blasted "gutless judges" for being too lenient with convicted criminals and has spoken of "Beverly Hills and Bel-Air swimming pool Communists who see to it that the revolutionaries trying to destroy us don't lack for money."

Opposing gun control as a "falacious, quack medicine remedy," he said that one-third of murders are committed with knives.

"We certainly can't have knife control," Davis said. "We'd all have to eat spaghetti if we did."

Leaf Quality Is Improving

FARMVILLE—The quality of tobacco has improved considerably on the Farmville Tobacco Market.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville market, the appearance of more quality grades of cutters, leaf and lugs are responsible for the sharp increases in averages.

The volume of nondescript grades were much lighter yesterday than any day this season. Primings continued to decrease in volume as more top stalk grades appeared on the warehouse floors.

Stabilization receipts yesterday accounted for 29.90 percent of the volume.

The market sold 420,572 pounds of leaf for $403.180 for an average of $95.86 per hundred pounds.

To date the market has sold 8,047,162 pounds of leaf for $7,211,611 for an average of $89.62 for the season.

Report Sept. 2

GRIFTON—Students at Grifton Elementary School will report for orientation on Tuesday, Sept. 2.

The school day will run from 8:30 a.m. until 11:45 a.m. and homeroom lists will be posted on respective grade level doors. All new students or students who cannot find their proper places are asked to report to the library.

Kindergarten parents will be notified by mail as to when to bring their child. Kindergarten enrollment will be staggered and will consist of three days of orientation (Sept. 3-5). All kindergarten students will report for full time on Monday, Sept. 8.

The school cafeteria will begin operation on Wednesday, Sept. 3.

Arrest Youth On Exposure Count

Greenville Police last night arrested Burley Lyndal Bullock III, 17 of 1621 Wright Rd. on charges of indecent exposure following an incident in the 200 block of East Fifth St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Bullock was charged about 11:05 p.m. after he allegedly exposed himself in front of a restaurant at 205 East Fifth St.

He was placed under $200 bond pending hearing of the case in District Court.

POLLUTION PROGRAM

KNOXVILLE (AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority board of directors will consider authorizing $6.5 million Thursday for installation of air quality monitoring equipment at TVA coal-fired steam plants.

Garbage Will Be Biggest Assest

EL CAJON, Calif. (AP) — If San Diego County's experimental waste recovery plant works as planned, garbage will be its biggest asset.

Construction starts today on a $10-million plant designed to transform 200 tons of solid waste daily into heating oil, glass and reusable metals. It is scheduled to start operations in August 1976.

The project is a joint venture of the county, the Environmental Protection Agency and Garrett Research and Development Co. of La Verne, Calif.

Using a process called flash pyrolysis, the facility should be able to produce about 42 gallons of fuel, 110 pounds of glass and 140 pounds of metals from each ton of trash.

If it succeeds, officials say it may be the solution to the problems of waste disposal and recycling of resources.

Incoming garbage will be shredded first, with light organic garbage, mostly food waste, separated from heavier inorganic matter such as glass and metal.

The organic material will then be dried, re-shredded and placed in a pyrolysis reactor. The high heat in the absence of oxygen will liquefy the organic waste into heating oil.

The inorganic waste will be processed further into glass and metals.

San Diego Gas & Electric will use the heating oil produced by the plant. The utility company will test its quality against that of other oil fuels.

Farmer Cool To Metric System

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — The metric system apparently rates low with farmers, if one is to judge from a recent poll conducted by Wisconsin Agriculturalist, a farm magazine.

Farmers were asked: "Since most countries of the world now use the metric system, it has been suggested that we adopt it." Only 17 per cent said we should adopt it. Sixty-three per cent were against it and 20 per cent were undecided.

Competed In Michigan

Two athletes from the Greenville Special Olympic program, Beverly Sherrod and Donnie Daniels, competed in the International Special Olympics in Mt. Pleasant, Michigan. There were over 3,000 athletes from all 50 states and from Canada, Belgium, France, Brazil, Mexico and El Salvador.

The games were held at Central Michigan University and included basketball, floor hockey, volleyball, ice skating, bowling, swimming, and track and field.

Beverly placed fifth in the long jump and fifth in the 50 yard dash. Donnie won a gold medal in the 440 and placed fourth in the 50 yard dash. The North Carolina team won a total of eight gold medals, nine silver medals, and sixteen bronze medals.

The fourth International Games were sponsored by the Central Michigan University and the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation.

More than 33 million Americans play tennis today according to the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

City Traffic Saw 3 Mishaps Tuesday

An estimated $1,600 property damage was reported by police following investigation of three traffic collisions here yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 3:45 p.m. mishap on Maxwell Street 150 feet South of the Dickinson Avenue intersection involving cars driven by Anne Catherine Phillips of 106 Fieldside Dr. and Laura Loraine Minges of 2000 Pinecrest Dr.

Investigators estimated damage at $350 to the Phillips car and $400 to the Minges vehicle and charged Mrs. Phillips with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Edwin Elzy Rawls Jr. of 1048 East Rock Springs Rd. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11:44 a.m. mishap on Cotanche Street, 65 feet North of the Reide Circle intersection.

Police also charged the driver of the second car involved in the mishap, Willie Earl Daniels of 1209 Myrtle Ave. with improper equipment (tail lights).

Damage was estimated at $150 to the Daniels car and $450 to the Rawls auto.

A 2:12 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Evans Street and Reade Circle involved cars driven by Sandra Marie Lord of 2202 Charles St. and Beverly Kay Henbree of 59 Stonehaven Dr., investigators reported.

Police who estimated damage at $150 to the Lord car and $100 to the Henbree vehicle, charged Miss Lord with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Reappointed To Railroad Board

A Greenville man has been re-appointed to the Board of Directors representing the state's interests in the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad. Bennett Dixie Green began his third one-year term on the board Friday. Six other directors were re-appointed to the same board Friday at a meeting at Bogue Banks.

MOVIE GROWTH

NEW YORK (UPI) — The movie business is in a boom period, and so are stock market issues of the firms that produce flicks, says Standard & Poor's Industry Surveys. The Standard & Poor index of motion picture stocks through the first four months of this year was up 110 per cent from the level at the end of 1974, a year in which gross movie box office receipts soared almost 25 per cent.

The Victim Is Obsessed To Overeat

By GRANT FJERMEDAL
Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — It is a rare and horrifying disorder. Consider — a three-year-old locks his mother out of the house and eats everything he can find, including two quarts of mayonnaise.

Consider — a 16-year-old who ate 12 pumpkin pies his school class had made for Thanksgiving; an 11-year-old who ate an entire carton — 12 boxes — of Campfire Girls mints his sister was to sell.

University of Washington doctors are taking aim on this unusual syndrome — first described in 1956 by three Swiss doctors — in which the patient literally eats himself to death.

Not only does the Prader-Willi victim have a ravenous appetite, but he gains weight on what would be a restricted diet for any other child. He may also suffer from defective development of tooth enamel, poor muscle strength, underdeveloped genitals and, frequently, mild mental retardation.

The university's Child Development and Mental Retardation Center has put together a team which includes a pediatrician, nutritionist, dentist, nurse, communication specialist, occupational therapist and psychologists.

Twelve boys and two girls between the ages of 2 and 15 are in the program and two others recently have been referred.

"It is supposed to be rare," said Dr. Vanja Holm, pediatrician in charge of the team. "But I think it is underdiagnosed. We have too many patients for it to be that rare a syndrome."

"An undiagnosed 11-year-old ended up in juvenile court because he repeatedly broke into neighbors' homes and threw food around the kitchens," she said. "His mother declared him incorrigible and the court placed him in a group home."

"He had been diagnosed incorrectly by various doctors, but when he was brought here, even the secretary recognized the syndrome."

Dr. Holm saw her first Prader-Willi child five years ago, and two years later, the center formed the multi-discipline team. Dr. Holm says she knows of no other research team studying the disease.

At the center, the team first formulates a diet for each child to bring him down to a normal weight. It took two years to scale a 12-year-old down from 209 pounds to 119.

Next a maintenance diet is established to allow body growth without excess fat. Parents are taught to measure and record all food eaten by the child and siblings, peers and teachers are told how to help.

Children in the project range from slim to husky, but none is nearly as fat as would be inevitable without strict dietary control.

The source of the appetite still eludes the specialists.

"We know what it is not due to," Dr. Holm said. "It's not metabolic and it's not chromosomal. We believe it has something to do with the central nervous system. Their capacity is so outrageous and so different from other obese people."

She says most Prader-Willi adults are in institutions because of their behavior and obesity.

"We really don't know how we can help them function as adults 10 years hence," Dr. Holm added. "But one thing I've been toying within the back of my mind is some of the kids know each other pretty well and a group of mothers are writing a book on how to deal with Prader-Willi. I'm hoping that working together, they might be able to control it."

Promote Good Eating Habits

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Can adults learn good eating habits from teen-agers?

Before you say, "no," consider this: home economics teacher Betty Houston, of Blakely, Ga., was named a national merit winner in the second annual Home Economics Teacher of the Year program for, among other things, organizing a Student Nutrition Council. The council conducted eating habit surveys, improved school lunch menus, gave an assembly program on nutrition, conducted a good nutrition rhyme contest for fifth graders and planned monthly birthday parties for elderly patients.

The program was sponsored by the American Home Economics Association and a national magazine.

Weightlifter Flunked Police Fitness Exam

SEATTLE (AP) — Pat Geroy, a 29-year-old weightlifter who was recently voted Mr. Seattle Physique, has failed a police department physical examination. On two counts.

"I received this post card telling me I had flunked," Geroy said Tuesday. "I can't tell you what a blow to my pride it was."

He could take some consolation in the fact that nearly 600 other men and women also failed in the examination of 1,700 applicants for 48 police jobs.

The Renton warehouseman says he has "pumped iron" for nearly 10 years, working with weights for three hours, six days a week. He lifts up to 425 pounds at a time and runs 2-3 miles several times a week.

But he says he was informed that he failed the Harvard step test, part of the physical in which job candidates were asked to step up and down 30 times a minute on an 18-inch bench for five minutes. The rate of their heart recovery was then measured.

Dr. Marcella Woods, a professor of physical education at the University of Washington who designed the test, said the rate of their heart recovery was then measured.

Dr. Woods said many people who concentrate on building their upper bodies wind up with a high percentage of fatty tissue.

Geroy says he is so angered that he is considering taking his 6-foot, 200-pound frame, with its 50-inch chest and 32-inch waist, to an attorney and filing suit against the department.

"I know what kind of shape I'm in," he says. "And it's going to take more than their test to prove to me that I'm not physically fit."

Moore To Run

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Sen. Herman Moore, Mecklenburg County Democrat, a six-term veteran of the General Assembly, said Tuesday he would run for lieutenant governor next year.

He said he would announce formally about the first of the year that he will seek the nomination.

The 45-year-old Moore indicated he would campaign as a spokesman for urban areas.

fact that somebody lifts weights doesn't guarantee endurance.

Geroy said he was also told he failed on body fat content. Each candidate was measured by a prescribed formula, and applicants with more than 25 per cent of fatty tissue were eliminated.

"I don't want to seem vain, but I've got no body fat," Geroy said.

Dr. Woods said many people who concentrate on building their upper bodies wind up with a high percentage of fatty tissue.

Geroy says he is so angered that he is considering taking his 6-foot, 200-pound frame, with its 50-inch chest and 32-inch waist, to an attorney and filing suit against the department.

"I know what kind of shape I'm in," he says. "And it's going to take more than their test to prove to me that I'm not physically fit."

Seek Price-Fixing In Tobacco

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A spokesman for the U.S. Justice Department said Tuesday that its anti-trust division is looking into possible price fixing violations by tobacco companies.

The News and Observer of Raleigh also reported in its Wednesday editions two civil suits alleging price-fixing among most major tobacco companies were filed.

Mark Sheehan, assistant director of public information with the U.S. Justice Department, was quoted as saying in a telephone interview that the anti-trust division "is looking at tobacco prices and possible violations of the law."

A price-fixing conspiracy by tobacco companies has been charged by some flue-cured tobacco farmers who say prices for flue-cured leaf are unfairly low.

"The usual reason for starting an antitrust investigation is a complaint. We never say what the reason is. We could pick it up out of the press or we could begin to wonder for some other reason," Sheehan said.

The investigation is "Hardly at this stage a major investigation," said Sheehan. He added that there was no indication of any substantial violation of the antitrust laws.

Sheehan also said it is unlikely that the investigation would include U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz's raising of tobacco quotas.

A 15 per cent hike in the allotment last year has also been blamed for farmers' troubles. The quota was upped 10 per cent each of the two years before that.

The two civil suits name Butz among defendants. The suits are pending in federal district court in North Carolina and South Carolina.

The North Carolina class action suit was brought in April by Greenville, N.C. grower J.C. Galloway. It was done on behalf of Galloway and all flue-cured tobacco growers not included in a South Carolina suit, said R.C. Howison, Jr. of Raleigh, Galloway's attorney.

The defendants in the suit are Butz and 36 tobacco companies.

"It alleges that they conspired together to set the prices of tobacco on the tobacco auction market, and that, if that hadn't happened, prices would have been higher," Howison said.

Howard Manning, an attorney representing R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., said the defendants deny a plot to keep prices low. And he said they claim the suit is not a proper class action suit.

Wilkinson Sees 'No Conviction'

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A member of the prosecution team at the Joan Little murder trial has conceded the state probably will get no conviction in the case.

"If we had a different jury, we might have a chance," said Special Prosecutor John Wilkinson Tuesday during an interview with Philadelphia Evening Bulletin reporter Claude Lewis. "But there's at least two whites and four blacks whose minds are made up. No way are they going to be changed."

Wilkinson, hired as a special prosecutor by the family of slain jailer Clarence T. Alligood, said he and the other prosecutors, William Griffin and Lester V. Chalmers, have been at odds about how to run the case almost from the beginning.

"They've tried several times to get rid of me," he said.

Wilkinson told the Bulletin that "the powers that be realize how badly the case has been handled and they want out. What they're probably thinking by now is 'how can we get out of this mess and still look good.' They might even go for a not guilty verdict."

He said such a verdict would make "North Carolina look like a progressive state."

"It would look like justice was done. Nobody could challenge the jury, or complain about anything with a not guilty verdict. Everything would be clean."

Asked where the state went wrong in the Little case, Wilkinson replied, "Miss Little's story is just too incredible. How could a little woman like that overpower a big strong man like Alligood? I say it could never happen."

At the time of his death, Miss Little weighed 115 pounds to Alligood's 190, according to Wilkinson. He said he would have blocked her stabs with one arm and knocked her out.

"When I go into a case, I go in it to win," Wilkinson said. "I'm not beholden to anybody. I don't care about politics or nothing, just accomplishing what I think is right. I believe Clarence Alligood was murdered but the state hasn't proven its case. You can't fault me because I wasn't heading the case."

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS—Charles Goodell, head of the Presidential Clemency Board, tells a Washington news conference Tuesday the board will go out of business Sept. 15, the deadline set by law. Goodell said the board has processed 12,000 of the 15,000 to 16,000 applicants and granted outright pardons to 50 per cent. (AP Wirephoto)

MOTORISTS ATTACKED—Several persons were injured and scores of cars were damaged Tuesday when groups of rock-throwing youths attacked motorists in the Roxbury section of Boston. Police said the driver of the small van truck was pulled from the vehicle and beaten by a group of youths and the van set afire. Officials said the trouble centered around the predominately black Mission Hill housing project. (AP Wirephoto)

200 years at the same location.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience.

And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.

Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 3 years. 1% the first year. Last, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed. Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Naturally Perfect .... Brown Rice

Brown rice is whole-grain rice from which only the hull and a small amount of the bran has been removed. Nutlike in flavor and chewy texture, it needs more water and longer cooking time than white rice. Brown rice is easy to cook—you can boil, steam, oven-cook, or fry it. 1 cup of raw-brown rice gives you 3 cups of cooked rice.

To keep most of the B-vitamins in the cooked rice, don't rinse it before or after cooking. Follow package directions carefully and use just enough water.

Don't stir rice after it comes to a boil; this mashes the rice and makes it gummy. Add a tablespoon of oil to cooking water before adding rice to keep the grains of rice separate.

To test the doneness of rice, use the back of a spoon and press cooked rice kernels against the side of pan. When kernels are soft throughout the rice is ready.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned mixed and sluggish in very quiet trading today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.35 at 826.19. Gainers clung to a narrow lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said it appeared the market was simply drifting in the absence of any developments in the economic news to inspire a substantial move in either direction.

There was a trickle of buying at the outset, apparently inspired by the market's steady showing since the start of the week. The Dow had gained 10.80 points over the last two sessions.

But by late morning it looked as though the market had settled back into the weak trend of the past month amid continuing concern over inflation prospects and rising interest rates.

Middle South Utilities was the most active issue on the Big Board, down 1/4 at 14.

J. Ray McDermott edged up 1/4 to 49 on top of a 2-point advance Tuesday, when the company reported sharply higher profits for the fiscal quarter ended June 30.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .06 to 46.42 in the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .25 at 86.74.

C. Brewer fell a point to 20 1/2 on the Amex. IU International said it wasn't considering buying any more than the 54 per cent of C. Brewer it already owns.

Dog Sniffs For Canning Lids

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — While other watchdogs sniff marijuana or gas leaks, Dobler is vigilant in seeing to it that no canning lids leave Goodwill Industries of Minneapolis via unauthorized channels.

The 110-pound German shepherd is in his second week at Goodwill, which is working with lid manufacturers and the U.S. Commerce Department to distribute canning lids in the face of a national shortage.

He sniffs over employees as they leave the office where lids are prepared for mailing. And at night he roams the building unleased, just in case someone tries to break in to grab some lids.

Obituaries

Powell

Mr. Robert H. Powell, 46, died in North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill Tuesday. Funeral services will be conducted at three o'clock Thursday afternoon at Lane's Chapel United Methodist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Carson Tyson, assisted by the Rev. Lonnie Wetherington. Burial will be in the Church Cemetery. The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Home to the Church one hour prior to the time of services.

Mr. Powell spent most of his life in the Vanceboro Community and was a retired automobile mechanic.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary F. Powell; three sons, Robert H. Powell Jr., John David Powell, and Glenn Edward Powell, all of the home; daughter, Miss Betty Jo Powell, of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Powell of Vanceboro; two brothers, J. C. Powell of Morehead City and Wesley Powell of Vanceboro; and two sisters, Mrs. Virgil Dudley and Mrs. Alton Holmes Jr., both of Vanceboro.

The family will be at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Powell, in Vanceboro.

Smith

Miss Pearlene F. Smith died at her home on Chapman Street in Winterville Tuesday evening. She was the daughter of Mrs. Sylvia Smith, and the late Mr. Dink Smith.

Funeral arrangements, which are being handled by Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home, are incomplete.

Streeter

Mr. William James "Will" Streeter, husband of Mrs. Hattie Streeter of 402 Tyson Street, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Tuesday. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Phillips Brothers Mortuary.

CORRECTION

The obituary in Monday's paper for Mrs. Bertha Spell should have shown that she was the widow of the late Mr. Bennie Spell of Greenville and Baltimore, Md.

Killer Club

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Sportscaster Alford "Al" Wheeler, 37, was killed Tuesday when the metal shaft of a golf club he swung broke open, struck a nearby golf cart and then ricocheted, striking Wheeler in the chest. Wilson County Medical Examiner Dr. Edgar Beddingfield said a 10-inch portion of the shaft snapped off as Wheeler swung his No. 3 wood club while playing golf with his wife, Ida, at the Wilson Country Club. The shaft did not lodge in his chest.

Wheeler broadcast high school football, basketball and baseball games and Atlantic Christian College basketball games.

Funeral services will be held in Wilson at 11 a.m. Thursday, with burial in Maplewood Cemetery.

Science Teachers Attended Workshop

SCIENCE WITHOUT TEXTBOOKS—Science teachers Ira Trollinger (left) and Ross Jenkins of Chapel Hill, N.C. practice a new method of teaching science being taught this summer at East

A three-week leadership conference which began at East Carolina University July 28 is designed to implement a new program of teaching elementary science in North Carolina.

Thirty-four high school and college science teachers are attending the conference to learn the methods involved in the Science Curriculum Improvement System. The system began in California and has been under development for 10 years. Teachers participating in the conference at ECU will, in turn, train other teachers to implement the system in elementary classrooms across the state.

Dr. Floyd Mattheis, chairman of the ECU Department of Science Education, described the system as an activity-based program that gets students involved in scientific projects. "In this program there are no textbooks," he said. "The youngsters learn the principles of science by working with scientific instruments and by conducting basic experiments."

The conference was sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the East Carolina University Department of Science Education.

Names and addresses of participants follow:

MARTIN COUNTY, Jamesville—Neil McDaniel, Route 1

Robersonville—Walter Churchill Briley.

PITT COUNTY, Greenville—Mary Ann Brady, 205 Placid Way.

Can't Afford To Join In Parade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pasadena has traditionally attracted floats from across the nation to be part of the Tournament of Roses Parade, but officials in Los Angeles, 10 miles away, say they can't afford it this year.

The Los Angeles City Council voted Tuesday not to participate in the 87th annual parade next Jan. 1 — the first day of America's bicentennial — to save the estimated $20,000 a floral float would cost.

Seek Players And Sponsors

Players and sponsors are needed for the 26 hour Softball Marathon on August 22 and 23. This will be the first softball marathon for the Greenville area. Proceeds from the marathon will be used for special populations including physically handicapped, mentally retarded and blind citizens.

Sponsors will sponsor either the green team or the white team for the total number of innings they play. Interested persons should call the Recreation Department at 752-4137, ext. 251.

Terrorists Get Army Training

TOKYO (AP) — Ten Japanese terrorists who surrendered to Libyan authorities after flying from Kuala Lumpur to Tripoli last week reportedly are undergoing military training together with Palestine guerrillas, a Japanese report from the Libyan capital said today.

The Asahi Shimbun dispatch quoted "Libyan military sources" as saying that the 10 guerrillas were taken to a Libyan army camp immediately after they landed at Tripoli airport.

Youths Jailed On Rape Charge

Two young men have been charged with rape in connection with an incident reported on Aug. 10 on Rt. 1, Greenville, according to Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

Sheriff Tyson said that Tom Moore Jr., 17, of Box 195-B, Scotland Neck, and James Lee Johnson, 18, of Rt. 1, Box 5489, Winterville, were arrested by Pitt deputies and charged with the rape of an 18-year-old girl.

The sheriff, who said that the incident allegedly took place in a car, noted that the assault was reported at 8:30 p.m. on Aug. 10.

Johnson and Moore were placed in Pitt County Jail without privilege of bond and hearings scheduled for Aug. 27 in District Court here.

Crab Derby On Aug. 16

MOREHEAD CITY—Plans have been finalized for the North Carolina Crab Derby to be held on Saturday in the City Park, 800 block of Shepard Street, Morehead City. The event is expected to attract several thousand visitors from across the state. Activities are to begin at two o'clock with a full line of events scheduled through 7 p.m.

A panel of county and state officials will be on hand to assist with the judging of the activities. Games with a nautical twist and exhibits will also be featured along with kiddie rides aboard a miniature train. The antique car and bicycle parade will be led by the Second Marine Aircraft Wing Band from the Cherry Point Marine Base. One of the special highlights of the day will be a tug-of-war contest between eight local civic clubs which will feature many of the county's citizens and leaders.

Entries for the main event will feature the biggest and fastest Blue Crabs to be found on the East Coast.

The awards ceremony will be conducted by James Harrington, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Grifton Accepts Bids On New Sewage System

GRIFTON—Grifton's town board accepted bids last night on the construction of a new sewage system. Two firms from Jacksonville and Kinston were low bidders for the project.

F and G Construction Co. of Kinston was low bidder for Division One work with a bid of $659,774.47. Sutherland Electric Co. of Jacksonville posted a low bid of $37,763 for electrical and Division Two work. Also provided for was a 900-foot, six-inch section of water line for a fire hydrant in the Meadowgreen subdivision.

In other business, the board compensated the town's policemen for their time served in court, and decided to remove pine trees from the town's cemetery. The board also moved to have a section of sidewalk replaced at the Grifton School. The sidewalk caved in recently.

The board also voted to disclaim responsibility for the local pistol range, thus avoiding responsibility in case of an accident and subsequent legal action. They also purchased small areas of land from Gratz Norcott and Lula Cox. The town appointed Gene Coley to a position as safety director.

Little Case...

N.C., attorney hired by Allgood's family, said in an interview he does not see how the state can obtain a conviction because it "hasn't proven its case."

Paul admitted concern about one juror who he said takes copious notes during prosecution testimony and none while defense witnesses are on the stand. Paul speculated that she would be a strong-willed supporter of a guilty verdict.

Wilkinson said the odds in favor of conviction might have been different with another juror.

"But there's at least two whites and four blacks whose minds are made up. No way are they going to be changed," Wilkinson said.

The defense rested its case Tuesday afternoon after four days of testimony. It appeared likely that the case would go to the jury by Friday or Saturday.

Judge Hobgood denied several defense motions for dismissal of all charges against Miss Little, including one for nonsuit and one for a directed verdict of not guilty.

how to save on your electric bill...

You can help your air conditioner do its job more efficiently by following these suggestions:

- Place the thermostat on the highest comfortable setting. Each degree you raise the air conditioner thermostat will save at least five percent on the cost of operation.
- Whenever possible, run the fan without using the cooling portion of your unit.
- Reduce heat gain from the attic. When your roof is heated by the sun, your attic may be as much as 40 degrees hotter than the temperature of the outside air. Roof and ridge ventilators can be used to remove this hot air from an attic.
- Shade windows, especially from direct sun.
- Use light colored paints and roofing materials.
- Check the filter periodically, cleaning or replacing it as necessary. A dirty filter makes the air conditioner work harder to do the same job.

If your home is not air conditioned, there are many steps you can take to make your home more comfortable this summer. For instance:

- Turn off unnecessary lights or appliances which produce heat. Use an exhaust fan above your range and in your bathrooms.
- Save your "moisture producing" activities, such as showering and laundry, for cool early mornings or late evenings.
- Keep windows and outside doors closed.
- When outside temperature drops below the temperature inside, open your windows to let heat escape. Close your house tightly during the hottest part of the day. You should also keep out solar heat by closing blinds and draperies of windows exposed to direct sunlight.
- Just as insulation saves on your heating bill by keeping warmth in, good insulation also pays summer dividends by keeping heat out.

John Walker Snaps World Mile Mark With First Time Under 3:50

By The Associated Press
GÖTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — John Walker runs in nobody's shadow anymore.

After two years of chasing Filbert Bayi, Walker put it all together in what he described as "a perfect race" and shattered one of sport's most revered records, running the mile in 3 minutes, 49.4 seconds at the Göteborg Games international track and field meet Tuesday night.

"I feel extremely happy — I still can't believe I've broken the record," said Walker, a 23-year-old New Zealander who burst onto the international track scene just two years ago.

"I didn't believe I had a chance. I've been thinking it over and over the last few days — how to run, how to beat it — the record. Now I feel I couldn't have run a more perfect race.

Running under ideal conditions, Walker took the lead on the third lap and sped away from the field to become the first man in history to break 3:50 for the mile. He shaved 1.6 seconds off the world record of 3:51.0, set by Bayi in Kingston, Jamaica May 17. The record came before a crowd estimated at 9,000 at Slottskogsvallen Stadium.

Walker, the only truly top-flight miler in the field, finished nearly six seconds ahead of Ken Hall of Australia, who was clocked in 3:55.2. Graeme Crouch of Australia placed third in 3:56.4 and Gunnar Ekman of Sweden was fourth in 4:01.5. The temperature was 77 degrees when the race began, at 7:50 p.m. local time.

Walker credited Swedish runner Goran Savemark with helping to set up the record run. "He kept exactly the speed I wanted the first 800 meters," Walker said.

Walker was timed in 56.3 seconds for 440 yards and 1:55.5 for 880 as he bided his time behind Savemark. He surged to the front in the third lap, followed by Hall and Crouch, and increased his lead steadily. On the fourth lap he let it all out.

I tried to follow Walker when he surged into the lead but I couldn't," said Hall. "He's the best middle distance runner in the world."

Walker's time at the end of 1,200 meters 1,312 yards was 2:53.5 and he ran the last lap in less than 56 seconds.

Walker first achieved notice when he finished second to Bayi in the 1,500 meters at the 1974 Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, New Zealand. Bayi set a world record for the metric mile of 3:32.2 in that race, in which—as usual—he led all the way. Walker started his finishing kick too late to catch Bayi and came in second in 3:32.5.

Since then Walker has established himself as an outstanding middle distance runner, but when it came to the mile there was always the dominating presence of Bayi. Walker was ranked No. 1 in the world in 1974 by Track and Field News, but that was before Bayi ran his record mile. And three times this year, Walker finished second to Bayi.

He says he now has two goals: to beat Bayi, and to break the record for 1,500 meters. He has no doubts about either.

"If he faces me, I am quite confident I can beat him—as well as his record," Walker said. "I have a good chance, under present conditions, to do better than 3:32.2. Now I know I can stand a tough pace. Next time I won't permit Bayi to disappear after the start."

St. Gabriel Takes Church Loop Tourney Title Over Black Jack

St. Gabriel captured the Church Softball League's Tournament championship last night, downing Black Jack by winning two games of the three game set.

St. Gabriel took the opening game, 8-5, but Black Jack came back to take the middle affair, 12-8. That sent the two teams into the final game which St.

Gabriel took, 16-5.

Neither team was able to score in the first game until the fourth inning, when Black Jack pushed over a run to take the lead. They added four more in the fifth for a 5-0 lead.

At that point, St. Gabriel came to life, pushing over one in the cluding a homer by Sewall to gain the victory.

bottom of the fifth. They added seven more in the sixth, in-

Black Jack came back in the second game to knot the series at a game each. Black Jack got three runs in the first inning, while St. Gabriel came up with two. St. Gabriel added two in the second for a 4-2 lead, but four by Black Jack in the third, including a homer by S. Peele, put Black Jack back out, 7-4.

Black Jack added five more in the fifth to run the lead to 12-4. St. Gabriel came back with four in the fifth and one in the seventh, including a homer by Hale to trim the lead.

Then, in the final game, St. Gabriel pushed over three runs in the opening inning, and never lost the lead. They added two more in the second, and came up with two in the third and two more in the fourth. They finished up the evening with seven big runs in the sixth, with Schink slapping a home run.

Black Jack came up with three in the third, and one each in the fifth and seventh.

Veterans Preparing For Life Off Field

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Ralph Baker has been to the top of the pro football world. He has been a member of the New York Jets for more than one-third of his life. An 11-year veteran, Baker has known the glory of Super Bowl triumph.

Today Baker is preparing to go to work in sales for an acoustical contractor.

Cut by the Jets this week to make way for younger, stronger bodies, the 32-year-old Baker faced up to reality last night and announced his retirement from football.

"This is certainly a sad day, but you know it has to come to everybody," Baker said. "I knew I didn't figure in their plans. But I felt I was insurance — in case some of the young linebackers fouled up."

Placed on waivers Monday, Baker had hoped against hope that some other team might be interested in a linebacker with his experience.

dealing a player not likely to make the team for one who might, or for that well known "future draft choice."

The Pittsburgh Steelers, for example, were well stocked in running backs, so they dealt Steve Davis to the New York Jets for a draft choice. The New York Giants, with a bevy of linebackers, shipped Henry Reed to Denver for defensive tackle Greg Marx. The Washington Redskins sent tight end Mike Hancock to Buffalo for a draft choice.

Among veterans to be placed on waivers were wide receiver Al Barnes, by New Orleans; cornerback Alvin Wyatt, by Washington; punter Tom McNeill, by Atlanta, and offensive tackle Randy Jackson and defensive tackle Don Hultz, by Chicago.

The Detroit Lions said Guy Dennis, expected to be a starter at either center or guard, and reserve defensive tackle Jerry Patton had quit the team, and the Chicago Bears announced that cornerback Joe Taylor was "physically unable to perform."

Officials Clinics Set

Rookie Leads Atlanta To Win Over Pirates

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Belloir family stayed home Tuesday night. . . all except young Rob Belloir.

He showed up at Atlanta Stadium to play shortstop for the Braves—his fifth major league game—and collected his first extra-base hit and first runs batted in with a tie-breaking two-out two-run double in the seventh inning that enabled the Braves to defeat the slumping Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2.

The native Atlantan's clutch blow off Bruce Kison, his second hit of the game and third of his big league career, followed an intentional walk to Ralph Garr and gave the Braves a 3-1 lead.

The loss was the 10th in the last 14 games for the Pirates but they remained three games ahead of Philadelphia in the National League's East Division when the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Phillies 7-6 on Steve Yeager's three-run homer in the 10th inning.

Elsewhere, the St. Louis Cardinals climbed to within 5½ games of the top with a 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros, the New York Mets are 6½ games back after trouncing the San Diego Padres 9-4, the Cincinnati Reds outslugged the Chicago Cubs 12-8 and the San Francisco Giants downed the Montreal Expos 5-2 in 11 innings.

"It was the first game my parents didn't come to," Belloir said. "Last night, I left 16 passes at the gate for relatives and friends and tonight I left none. It's too bad they couldn't have been here tonight."

Dodgers 7, Phillies 6

Jimmy Wynn opened the Los Angeles 10th with a single off Gene Garber, who had allowed only one hit and struck out six since coming on in the sixth. Steve Garvey sacrificed and, after an intentional walk to Ron Cey, Yeager, who singled a run home in the Dodgers' three-run first, walloped his seventh home run of the season. Philadelphia's Jay Johnstone hit a two-run homer off Mike Marshall in the bottom of the 10th.

Cardinals 5, Astros 4

Ted Simmons hit a two-run homer, Lou Brock delivered a two-run single and rookie John Denny singled home what turned out to be the winning run while notching his seventh pitching triumph.

Mets 9, Padres 4

Tom Seaver became the NL's second 16-game winner and Ed

Kranepool ignited a four-run rally in the third inning with a run-scoring double. Seaver lost his shutout bid in the seventh on Randy Hundley's two-run homer.

Reds 12, Cubs 8

Tony Perez drove in four runs with three singles and a double in a free-swinging 34-hit contest. The Reds outhit the Cubs 18-16 although Chicago's Bill Madlock also collected four hits and Jose Cardenal drove in four runs with a double and triple.

Giants 5, Expos 2

Bobby Murcer tripped a tie-breaking two-run double in the 11th inning after Gary Thomasson's double and a single by Derrel Thomas. Murcer was tagged out when he overran second base but Gary Matthews walked and scored on a double by Willie Montanez. The Giants tied the score with two out in the ninth on a single by Thomas, a walk to Murcer and a single by Matthews.

Radical Idea In New Stadium

HONOLULU (AP) — Sports writers called it "the monster" and "the great white elephant." Some said it would never work.

The architect was forced to post a $1-million performance bond against the chance that it wouldn't work.

But after delays, tests, heavy criticism and even a squabble over what to name it, the unique 50,000-seat Aloha Stadium is working.

The inaugural game will be played Sept. 13 — a football game between the University of Hawaii and Texas A&I.

The steel-frame stadium uses an "air-film" system to move parts of the grandstands into the best position for watching either football or baseball.

Aloha Stadium "will set a new standard for sports stadiums the world over," says Hawaii Controller Hideo Murakami, who supervised the state project.

Two sections of grandstand remain stationary. Four others — each as tall as a 14-story building, weighing 14 million pounds and containing about 2-500 seats — move with the changing sports seasons. The movable stands place spectators close to the sidelines for football and arched around the infield and outfield for baseball.

The state financed the project to provide a new home for the World Football League Hawaiians, the Pacific Coast League Hawaii Islanders baseball team and local high school and college teams. The total cost isn't known yet, but the figuring starts at $27 million.

"The seating configuration provided at Aloha Stadium will place both the football fan and the baseball fan closer to the playing field with a better viewing angle than ever before achieved in a multipurpose stadium," said architect Charles Luckman.

The grandstands can be moved in about 25 minutes. Compressors pump air through underground pipes to clusters of bearings under each section and lift it a fraction of an inch. Hydraulic jacks guide the sections down concrete runways into position.

CONVERTIBLE STADIUM—The new Aloha Stadium in Honolulu was built to provide ideal accommodations for both football and baseball. However, the method chosen to achieve that goal was so unusual that the architect had to post $1 million bond in case it didn't work. Four sections of the stadium, each weighing 14 million pounds and seating 2,500, move on an "air film" system to change the stadium's configuration. Architect's drawings at left and right show the stadium set up for football and baseball; the aerial photo at center shows the stands being moved. (AP Wirephoto)

Bills Must Live Up To Reputation

By MARVIN R. PIKE
AP Sports Writer
NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Coach Lou Saban, who has made the Buffalo Bills a winner since his return here in 1972, says this about his 1973 team: "We must face the prospect of living up to our reputation."

A year ago, with a team he often described as young, Saban coached the Bills to a 9-5 record and a National Football League playoff berth.

"We have become a consistent winner, a playoff participant and a championship contender," he says.

Now, Saban no longer is saying "we're young."

"We have experience and we have depth," he says. Heartening to Saban was the condition of his veterans and the rookies who reported to training camp at Niagara University.

"Our men came back in excellent shape," he says. "Because of the squad's excellent condition and overall experience, we've been able to keep the workouts brief and business-like. The players have shown an enthusiasm we think is indicative of their outlook for this season."

The offensive front four, all veterans, are guards Reggie McKenzie and Joe DeLamie, and tackles Dave Foley and Donnie Green.

Saban hopes to use Reuben Gant, who missed most of last season with a shoulder injury, at tight end and shift Paul Seymour to tackle.

He has three wide receivers in J.D. Hill, Ahmad Rashad and Bob Chandler and Saban says "I like to think they are the three finest in the league."

The Bills are set with their one-two punch of running back O.J. Simpson, who is hoping for a fourth straight 1,000-plus yard season, and his backfield mate, Jim Braxton.

To assist them, Saban is counting on rookie Tom Donchez of Penn State and fellow Nittany Lions alumnus Gary Hayman, who missed 13 games a year ago after breaking a leg in the season-opener.

Joe Ferguson, now in his third year, will be the Bills' starting quarterback with sophomore Gary Marangi waiting in the wings.

The Bills greatly strengthened their defense by obtaining defensive right end Pat Toomay from the Dallas Cowboys and cornerback Earlie Thomas from the New York Jets.

The Bills' glaring weakness is the linebacking corps. John Skorupen, also hurt last year, is the only quality linebacker. Doug Allen is working at the middle and converted running back Bo Cornell at the other outside position.

Saban had counted on his first two draft picks, Tom Ruddle and Bob Nelson, both of Nebraska, to take up the slack, but so far the Bills have not been able to sign them to contracts.

NCAA Meeting On Economics

By WILLIAM PRATER
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—When the National Collegiate Athletic Association convenes here Thursday, it will debate such cost-cutting plans as eliminating athletic scholarships and stopping small-school athletes from competing for national championships with athletes from bigger institutions.

There always has been some antagonism between Division I schools — largest in the NCAA — and schools in Divisions II and III. But of 73 proposed money-saving changes in the NCAA's bylaws, only three would "take from the rich and give to the poor" — force schools competing in post-season basketball and football championships and in televised football games to share net receipts with other NCAA members.

Two of the three were proposed by Long Beach Calif. State University and the third by the conference to which it belongs, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

Of the three, Resolution No. 65 is most publicized and most controversial. It would divide football television receipts among all schools, with 50 per cent going to Division I schools, 25 per cent to Division II and 25 per cent to Division III.

Dr. Stephen Horn, Long Beach president who proposed it, charges that "only 10 per cent of the major colleges are making money from their football programs and the rest of the schools are not breaking even."

NCAA leaders, however, say Horn's proposal has little chance of being approved and may not even be acceptable for presentation at the Special Convention on finances. NCAA president John A. Kuskak commented Tuesday night that "what is being overlooked here is a decline in gate receipts with televised games. . . . There would be no desire of big schools to go on television" if Horn's plan were approved.

The resolutions are divided into six groups: financial aid, recruiting practices, personnel and squad limitations, playing and practice seasons, income distribution and miscellaneous. Another proposal by the Pacific Coast Athletic Association would amend bylaws so that "no financial aid may be awarded based on a student's athletic ability."

Stanley Marshall, secretary-treasurer of the NCAA and athletic director at South Dakota State, noted that schools in the Pacific Coast conference already have such a rule, but said he "doubted very strongly" that it would be adopted universally.

Schools now are permitted up to 105 football scholarships under NCAA rules. Resolution No. 17 and others would limit that number to 90.

"I believe we're going to see some action on that," Marshall said. "The larger schools have shown some willingness there."

Financial worries are bringing college officials from all over the nation to the special two-day meeting, regarded by NCAA leaders as one of the most important in the organization's history.

Only issues pertaining directly to finances will be considered at the convention.

The Detroit Tigers, down so long they can't remember up, have not lost heart.

"They're playing hard," said Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi. "They're playing like they're going down the stretch for a pennant. They're not going through the motions. They're hustling."

The Tigers lost their 17th straight game Tuesday night, bowing to the Rangers 4-3. Texas scored four times in the first inning and the Tigers spent the rest of the night trying to catch up.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City beat Baltimore 4-2 in 10 innings, Boston whipped California 8-2, New York downed Oakland 7-2, Cleveland trimmed Chicago 6-3 and Milwaukee beat Minnesota 7-4.

The Tigers' latest loss brings them within three games of tying the American League record for futility and within seven of the major league mark. They did get on the scoreboard Tuesday night, however, snapping a 31-inning drought in the third inning when Aurelio Rodriguez tripled and came in on Tom Verzer's single. Rodriguez leaped on the plate as the crowd cheered wildly.

Ron LeFlore and Dan Meyer drove in runs with sacrifice flies in the seventh for the other Detroit runs. Vern Riffe, 9-9, survived Texas' four-run first inning to finish with a five-hitter. Toby Harrah's two-run double was the big blow for the Rangers in the rally.

Stan Perzanowski worked six innings for Texas to record his first major league victory.

Royals 4, Orioles 2
Amos Otis singled, his fourth hit of the night, stole second and scored on George Brett's two-out double in the 10th for Kansas City. Harmon Killebrew singled in an insurance run as the Royals closed to within 5½ games of first-place Oakland in the American League West. Doug Bird, 8-4, got the victory with 41-3 innings of scoreless relief.

Red Sox 8, Angels 2
Rick Wise, 16-6, won his ninth straight game as Boston upped its lead in the American League East to seven games. Wise, who hasn't lost since June 22, tossed a seven-hitter in besting rookie Chuck Hockenberry, 0-2. Carlton Fisk had two singled and a double and drove in three runs for the Red Sox.

Yanks 7, A's 2
Doc Medich, 11-12, limited Oakland to six hits and Chris Chambliss collected a single, double and triple and drove in two runs for New York. Walt Williams hit a solo homer for the Yanks. Ken Holtzman, 14-11, took the loss.

Indians 6, White Sox 3
George Hendrick drove in three runs for Cleveland, two of them with his 17th home run of the season. Fritz Peterson won his third straight game to even his record at 7-7 and Wilbur Wood, 12-15, took the loss. Bill Stein doubled home two runs for the White Sox.

Brewers 7, Twins 4
Milwaukee scored four times in the first inning to chase Jim Hughes, 10-10, and help Bill Travers, 5-7, win for the first time in six weeks. Robin Yount and Bill Sharp contributed doubles and Hank Aaron and Jim Hegan had run-scoring singles in the Brewer first. Eric Soderholm homered for Minnesota.

Bouton Trying For New Chance

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Bouton retired from baseball in 1970 at the age of 31 because his knuckleball didn't knuckle often enough to get batters out consistently.

Since then, he's become rich and successful. He's written a mammoth best seller, "Ball Four", and a less than mammoth sequel, "I'm Glad You Didn't Take It Personally."

He's become a television sportscaster on CBS at $50,000 a year. He's appeared in a Hollywood movie, done an assortment of articles for national magazines, made several appearances with such celebrities as Paul Newman and Elliot Gould, and dabbled in politics.

He has a big house with a pool in Englewood, N.J., and a summer place on a lake.

In other words, he's got it made.

Now he wants to chuck it all or some of it anyway in favor of $300 a month and a spot in the starting rotation of the Portland Mavericks, an unheralded entry in the equally unheralded Northwest League.

"The juices haven't been flowing for a few years," Bouton said in an interview with Newsday. "You get spoiled by the thrills of baseball. It's exciting to walk that tightrope."

"The other night I did. It felt exactly like it always did. One false step and you fall. If you get to the other side, wow! - you've done something."

Bouton, 36, made his debut last Friday night as the Mavericks an independent franchise, faced Walla Walla. It was ballyhoed and a crowd in excess of 10,000 fans turned up to have a look at the man who was called "Bulldog" during his glory years in the early 60s when he won 21 games one year and 18 another with the New York Yankees. "At first the kids in the clubhouse were afraid to say hello," said Bouton. "They warmed up when they saw I had doubts about myself. I've had doubts before and pitched well. I thought about not getting anybody out."

Portland, closing in on its first pennant in 30 years, won the game 5-3 and Bouton went the distance, striking out six batters and walking two. He goes again this Friday night and will be in the club's rotation for the remaining three weeks of the season and into the playoffs.

CBS has given him a leave of absence to pursue his dream but Bouton says he'd have done it anyway.

"I hate to kick away a career I like because I have to go do this," he said, "but I'd take my chances. There are all those people in the world who'd like to quit their jobs and hitch hike to Arizona or sail on a boat to Bolivia."

Headed with his recent success, Bouton says that if all goes well, he plans to go to spring training next year, work on his knuckleball and try to hook up with a major league club again.

Pressed for a quick preview of next season's ACC basketball race, he lumped North Carolina, Maryland, Clemson and Wake Forest as the "four strong teams."

He also said he believed that a team on NCAA probation should be eligible for wire service poll listings. "If you allow them to play they should be ranked," he said.

Sloan Hits Limits

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina State University's basketball coach says recently hired coaches, many of whom are black, would probably be the ones fired if new rules are adopted limiting college coaching staffs.

Of four-man basketball coaching staffs, Norman Sloan said, "We don't need them. The extra man you hire is to recruit. And who will be the coach to go? The last one hired; in many cases a black coach."

The question of limiting coaching staffs for basketball and other sports is on the agenda of a special National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) convention on the economy which opens Thursday in Chicago.

Sloan's comments came Tuesday during an address to sports editors from the Atlantic Coast and Southern Conference area who were attending the Associated Press Sports Editors Association (APSE) convention.

He told the APSE writers that he thought weekly sports polls were important. Without them, Sloan said, "We'd lose a lot of interest in our season."

He added that a school's inclusion among the top teams in a national poll helps in recruiting efforts. He said all coaches "care tremendously" whether their teams receive poll recognition.

He also said he believed that a team on NCAA probation should be eligible for wire service poll listings. "If you allow them to play they should be ranked," he said.

Pressed for a quick preview of next season's ACC basketball race, he lumped North Carolina, Maryland, Clemson and Wake Forest as the "four strong teams."

Computers Help Streetwise Operators Rush Help

EDITOR'S NOTE — Streetwise operators and flawless computers combine to provide the most efficient emergency service ever devised. Dial 911 and, in a growing number of cities, help is on the way — fast. But no lost-pet calls, please.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Its operators deal daily with prank calls, suicide calls, calls of bored old ladies looking for someone to chat with and sometimes ... life or death emergencies.

In more than 200 cities across the United States, that emergency telephone number is the same: 911.

The system that gets a squad car to your door in minutes is incredibly complex. (If, by the way, you're calling in to complain that somebody swiped your poodle the night before last ... well, it won't be there in minutes.) The $12 million system involves quick decisions by at least two mere mortals, and even quicker reaction time by the computers. There's even the correction of misspelling, wrong addresses and human error. By the computer, of course.

Let's look at New York City's 911, probably the most complex in the United States.

At any given time, 90 to 100 persons are on duty in the central office, including operators, dispatchers and supervisors. Some 12,000 calls a day come through the lines, resulting in 7,000 police runs.

The computer talks to your telephone before you talk to anyone. You're calling from the Bronx. The computer knows. Off your call goes, automatically, to the "Bronx room." Say the Bronx room is hopping that night and the lines are busy. The overload is automatically transferred to a backup room or, in this case, to the Manhattan operators. Bronx and Manhattan back each other up, as do Brooklyn and Queens. Staten Island doesn't overload too often.

Imagine a hypothetical call. Shots reported at 140 W. 66th St., Manhattan. The operator punches that into a computer terminal, which looks like a typewriter keyboard with a television screen attached. Let's say that's not a real address. The computer, again, knows. It's programmed with all possible street addresses and intersections. If the caller is still on the phone when the computer says Ix-nay, the operator can then ask more questions. What's that between? Is it an apartment building, a factory, a school, whatever?

The operators — 90 per cent of whom are civilians — say the most important part of their job is to get the address right. Because, if they don't, the boys in blue can't, as they say, get there from here.

Let's say that the computer finds the right address. In this case — a report of shots on the street — the operator might hit the hotline. Or he might walk over to the dispatcher and tell him what he's got. (Some dispatchers prefer the walkover technique.) Depending what the dispatcher has on his call board, the item might take top priority.

The dispatcher can see on an instrument in front of him which operator took the call, time received and incident. He can also punch a button to see the disposition of the various cases.

When the operator hits the hotline, he verbally communicates the priority incident.

Operators quickly learn tricks of the trade. A call about 3 o'clock on a school afternoon, giggles in the background. Probably kids. School's out. Mom's shopping and Ma Bell's toy looks as good as any.

A suicide? They try to keep the caller on the line and trace the call. Calls from as far away as California have come in on toll free 911 from relatives who just talked with a depressed New Yorker.

Some callers are hysterical, screeching nothing but gibberish.

"If they're very excited, you just yell at them. You tell them to shut up," says operator Neil Brosnan, an operator for two years.

The operator makes the first decision — hotline or not. Then the dispatcher must recommend a priority.

They're not as predictable as you might think. Take bomb scares.

"Well, we get 20 to 30 a day on some days," says Patrolman Joe Reitano, a dispatcher. "We don't move too fast on those. Unless of course it's the Israeli consulate. Then we hop on it."

A 10-13 — most of these computer messages are in cop code — gets the quickest response. That's another cop in trouble. Squad cars fly.

The dispatchers quickly learn to read between the computerized, coded lines.

Reitano gets a report of a sick man outside a flea bag Manhattan hotel. "Probably drunk," says the streetwise Reitano, putting that at the bottom of the priority list.

A call that a liquor store alarm was just sounded gets an immediate response. "These guys give out right away. Those guys are prime targets," he says.

On a muggy summer's night, especially the weekends, the screen in front of Reitano might contain 100 jobs that need answering.

"We just do the best we can," he says. "An army couldn't handle the volume."

Besides police calls, the 911 number also dispatches the fire department and ambulance service, simply by hitting a button that automatically transfers the call to the proper agency.

The computer also finds and fixes misspellings. Or, if the operator could only get the word Washington as an address and didn't know whether it was a street, school, park, or whatever, he could ask the computer for the possibilities and try to find a plausible spot.

The operators always ask for the caller's name and phone number, but some don't want to get involved and just hang up.

All calls are tape recorded, on a master tape and on an individual tape. The operator can play back his tape if misinformation turns up.

The master tape, kept for 90 days unless subpoenaed, has been used in court cases.

Sample: A woman called 911 and said she was being threatened with a knife by her common-law husband. She spat out his name and her address before hanging up.

She was stabbed to death before the police got there. He had also killed her mother and child. In his trial for triple homicide, the dead woman testified through the tape.

The system has proven so effective that more and more cities are adopting it. Two states, New York and California, have mandated it by certain dates.

Still many of the calls are not emergencies. But New Yorkers at least are getting better.

Part of the credit is due to a television commercial that showed two situations. One a loud party in an apartment and an elderly woman next door unable to snooze. That, the voice said, was not a 911 situation.

The second sample of footage showed King Kong climbing the Empire State Building.

The message: "This is a 911 situation."

Castro Seems To Sense Rich Dividends Shaping Up

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
Fidel Castro, basking in the warmth of smiles from neighbors who once feared him, has just been interviewed by the Soviet press on the Communist future in Latin America, and he seems to scent a trend that promises the party rich dividends.

And why not? Army men and the Communists would have something to offer one

$400 Billion To Get 'New Oil'

FINDLEY, Ohio (AP) — Finding and developing the new oil needed by American consumers by 1985 will cost more than $400 billion, according to Marathon Oil Co.

This is based on needs outlined by President Gerald Ford to achieve "some degree" of energy independence by then, and it assumes an inflation factor of only 5 per cent a year. Marathon pointed out that consumption exceeded 16.5 million barrels per day in 1974, while domestic production of liquid hydrocarbons averaged 10.5 million barrels per day, with the difference provided through imports.

another. The Communists offer strict discipline, secure dictatorship unencumbered by the nuisance of democratic rights. The leftist Army men like the idea of political order under centralized power.

Cuba was bumped by its neighbors out of the hemisphere community a dozen years ago on suspicion of exporting revolution. Now, with U.S. blessing, it's being welcomed back to the hemispheric bosom.

If he doesn't export revolution now, Fidel surely does all he can to encourage the local talent. The Tass interview dealt at length with the mid-June conference in Havana of Communist chiefs from all Latin America, whose declaration, unanimously adopted, sounded like a manual on what to do to hasten the takeover.

As Castro sees it, the "anti-imperialist struggle," meaning anti-Yankee, must involve collaboration with all manner of "progressive" forces, meaning any force

Use Bicycles On Big Ore Vessel

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — The deck of the Cassiopeia, a large Swedish ore carrier docked here, is so long that some crew members use bicycles to get from one end to the other.

The ship is 772 feet long and 102 feet wide so that three rows of 30 end-to-end tennis courts would almost blanket the deck. Capt. Ove Prytz says three bicycles are kept on board so that crew members can move quickly from one end of the vessel to the other.

"You can get tired if you have to walk that distance several times a day," he said in an interview.

willing to accept the party as an ally. This includes, says Castro "progressive elements in the armed forces, who show themselves a new factor in the revolutionary movement."

It is even all right to collaborate with "bourgeois" forces, Castro counsels, quoting the declaration, so long as the Communists never forget that the "struggle" is to be led exclusively by "the working class and its vanguard, the Communist party."

Castro quotes the new Havana declaration as paying admiring tribute to the Soviet detente policy — the policy that led to the recent 35-nation European summit — as an important factor in advancing the fortunes of the international Communist movement.

The interviewer said Castro emphasized that Soviet foreign policy efforts had immense meaning for "the cause of the international revolutionary movement."

"Latin American Communists," the Tass account goes on, "are unanimous that detente and the successes of the struggle for peace, which are the result of the shift in the relation of forces to the advantage of socialism, favor the strengthening of all revolutionary and progressive forces."

Only "reactionary forces," says Castro, want the cold war these days. The interview outlines what Castro calls "long-term strategy and tactics," and evidently all the Latin American Communist leaders now agree with the Soviet Politburo that for the time being, anyway, sugar is a better tool than vinegar — sugar in the form of trade relations and collaboration with all "progressives" instead of vinegar in the form of violence.

This will prosper, figures

Castro, because "capitalism is in no condition to resolve any of the basic problems of Latin America." Castro's Cuba seems now to occupy the role of example to other Communist forces of what can be done by following Moscow's "general line" and bringing about a situation wherein Soviet money and political wallop can play a decisive role. It could happen in Portugal and it could happen in a number of Latin American nations.

At the moment, though, the Organization of American States doesn't seem too worried about such a prospect. In fact, the main concern of many Latin American governments these days with respect to Cuba seems to be to beat a path to the door of Havana in quest of a piece of the Cuban market.

It is unworried too, evidently, that Castro has always held the OAS in contempt. He didn't ask to get back in. He had only demanded—successfully, it turns out—that Latin American nations lift the sanctions they had imposed in 1964 when they were more inclined to follow the U.S. lead.

Fishy Tale For Insurance Agent

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — Francis Lombard of Port Elizabeth has a fishy tale for his insurance agents.

He claims a whale fell on his car, denting the roof and damaging the windshield.

The whale is a fiber-glass model mammal which stands near the entrance to a seaside resort hotel at Pletenberg Bay.

A strong gale recently lifted the whale from the ground and it came crashing down on Lombard's brand new car parked nearby.

No-Fault Is In High Gear

EDITOR'S NOTE — Five years ago, Massachusetts became the first state in the nation to enact a no-fault auto insurance law. Since then, half the 50 states have taken similar action and no-fault seems to be keeping insurance premiums down.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
State legislatures are putting the brakes on the drive toward no-fault auto insurance, but supporters of a federal system of no-fault protection have moved into high gear.

Officials in areas with existing no-fault programs say the laws generally are achieving their objective of keeping costs down, cutting red tape and speeding payment of claims. They add, however, that inflation has offset many of the monetary savings.

Only one state — North Dakota — has passed no-fault legislation this year. Measures providing no-fault insurance were introduced in 19 other states, but they either died, were defeated or were left pending until next year.

In contrast, 24 states passed some sort of no-fault legislation between 1970 and 1974, although not everyone agrees whether all of the measures are really entitled to be called no-fault.

At the federal level, legislation is pending in both the Senate and the House setting standards for state no-fault laws to meet and providing an automatic no-fault system for those states that fail to enact approved laws by a particular date.

A similar measure passed the Senate last year and supporters are hopeful that 1975 may bring success in both houses of Congress.

"Federal legislation is essential to timely reform of the nation's auto accident reparations system," said T. Lawrence Jones, president of the American Insurance Association, in Senate testimony.

Basically, no-fault hinges on the idea that blame should not be the determining factor in deciding accident compensation. Put another way, it means that if two people are involved in an auto accident, each collects from his insurance company — no matter who's to blame.

Most of the no-fault laws deal only with personal expenses — medical costs, loss of income, etc. — and do not cover damage to vehicles.

Before no-fault, the system generally permitted an injured person to collect reimbursement from whomever caused his injury only if he can prove the other person guilty of negligence. The purpose of insurance under this system is to protect the policyholder from financial loss when he is at fault in an accident.

A pure no-fault system would abolish all fault or liability coverage from auto insurance policies. There would be no lawsuits, no matter how much damage was involved.

Thus far, none of the existing or proposed measures completely eliminates the possibility of lawsuits. Instead, the laws provide that lawsuits can be brought only after medical expenses or personal damage reach a certain level or when death, permanent disability or disfigurement are involved.

Government and insurance industry sources generally agree that 14 of the 25 no-fault state measures provide strict enough restrictions on lawsuits and high enough coverage to be called genuine no-fault laws.

However, advocates of national no-fault insurance argue that variations among state laws are one reason a federal program is needed.

Supporters of no-fault insurance say that eliminating the cost of lawsuits helps cut the cost of auto insurance. They also say it often is impossible to accurately determine blame and argue that lawsuits often delay payment of compensation.

Opponents say the no-fault program could mean higher premiums for low-risk drivers, people rarely involved in accidents. Under no-fault, premiums usually depend on how much the insured person stands to lose. The family man with a wife, three children and a well-paying job thus might have to pay more than a teen-ager with no family, even though the younger person might be considered a higher-risk driver.

Statistics on lawsuits and premiums are sparse because most of the no-fault laws have not been in existence long enough for study.

Michigan has one of the most comprehensive no-fault laws. Enacted in 1972, the law requires all drivers to buy personal injury protection that pays for unlimited medical and rehabilitation services, survivor benefits and wage benefits of up to 85 per cent of lost wages.

People keep the right to sue for death, permanent disfigurement or serious impairment of body functions. Damage to vehicles involved in an accident is covered by no-fault, but damage to fixed property — a house or a parked car, for example — is open to lawsuit.

Deputy Insurance Commissioner Robert Rowe said premiums have remained fairly stable since no-fault took effect in 1973. He said there would have been sharp increases without no-fault.

Rowe said total premiums earned by auto insurers went from $768 million in 1973 to $813 million in 1974, an increase of 6 per cent. He said almost all the increase was due to higher costs for repairs.

Minnesota officials said it was too early to tell whether the no-fault law that took effect Jan. 1 is cutting the number of lawsuits or the cost of premiums. But, said Insurance Commissioner Berton Heaton, "It should reduce costs."

Nevada's no-fault law was passed in 1973, and officials said premiums decreased 2 to 3 per cent for about three-quarters of insured Nevada drivers when no-fault took effect.

Insurance Commissioner Dick Rottman said he had no statistics on lawsuits involving auto accidents, but added: "I get a feeling the number ... has gone down."

Possibly Found Stuttering Cure

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A young Chicago psychologist thinks he's accidentally discovered a cure for one of man's oldest mental ills — stuttering.

"It was kind of like the principle of serendipity — finding one thing when you are looking for something else," said Dr. Greg Nunn, 25, director of the Institute for Youth Development at Read Mental Health Center in Chicago.

With a treatment emphasizing controlled breathing and relaxation, Nunn claims he can eliminate 80 to 90 per cent of a person's stuttering in two hours. Since he began work on the technique 2½ years ago, he has treated about 70 patients aged 4 to 67. He says he has an 85 per cent success rate the first day and 93 per cent success over four months.

Nunn says he stumbled on the cure while working for Dr. N.H. Azrin, a behaviorist at Anna State Hospital, on a technique to control stuttering by training sufferers to read aloud in time with a metronome.

He noticed a woman patient was breathing irregularly. Nunn said the breathing pattern was a sign of anxiety, the primary cause of stuttering.

"So I thought, 'Well, what happens if I change her breathing pattern around and have her speak with a change in breathing?' When she came to a word that she was stuttering on I asked her to stop, take a deep breath and read on. And much to my amazement she stopped stuttering."

He reasoned that the metronome procedure regulated stuttering by regulating breathing. If a stutterer could control his breathing, Nunn thought, he could control his speech.

"We teach them to think about what it is they are going to say before they start speaking," he said.

Nunn stresses that an individual maintain a comfortable posture, breathe deeply and regularly, and relax to improve speech patterns.

"Then what I do is I teach them how to breathe when they start to speak. That's the secret ingredient. What I do is I will have them start from the beginning of a book. Before they start speaking they take a deep breath, let just a little bit of air escape through the mouth, say the word, and let the rest of the air remaining in their lungs flow out."

The procedure is repeated, gradually increasing the number of words between breaths. "Then I get to the point where they read and pause at natural pause points in sentences," he said. "Then we go into spontaneous speaking. It's amazing."

Students Work In Consumerism

MANSFIELD, Pa. (UPI) — About 105 students a year at Mansfield State College here enroll in a consumer economics class that was designed jointly by the teacher and students. It serves local consumer groups as well as the student body.

Projects have included writing and broadcasting 5-minute consumer messages three days a week for the campus radio station, and conducting a consumer fair with exhibits on such topics as clothing, food shopping and packaging laws.

Vietnam Refugees Get Warm Welcome In France

By ALINE MOSBY
PARIS (UPI) — The Cafe du Metro on the Place Maubert in the Left Bank Latin Quarter used to be known as Little Algiers because it was swarming with North African immigrants. Now it's called Little Saigon.

More than 2,500 Vietnamese refugees have poured into Paris from emergency camps in the United States since June. Almost every morning more arrive on trans-Atlantic planes at Charles de Gaulle airport.

By the end of 1975 about 10,000 Vietnamese fleeing the fall of Saigon will have made France their new home, immigration officials say.

Most of the newcomers never planned to remain in the United States. They quickly received visas to enter France because they already have relatives in the sizeable Vietnamese colony in France that began to mushroom with the end of the French Vietnam war in 1954.

The new immigrants have moved into the already crowded quarters of their relatives who had settled in the then inexpensive student quarter. The migrants fresh from Saigon are easily spotted by their loose black satin pajamas, the traditional garb of Vietnam. The refugees of the '60s sport the blue jeans of Paris.

"My husband was with the military so of course we had to leave Saigon," said one middle-aged woman as she shopped in a Vietnamese grocery store which opened two years ago on Maubert square.

"We came here because our children already were here, two sons who are doctors and a daughter who is a lawyer. They have jobs in their professions. And we all spoke French before."

Each evening the grocery store is packed with refugees buying mint leaves, rice flour pancakes and other ingredients of Vietnamese dishes. In the cafe the refugees fill the booths, drinking beer, smoking, chatting.

While Vietnamese refugees including orphans met with some protests and controversy upon their entry into the United States, traditional land of immigrants, no outcry has been raised in France yet over the much smaller influx of Asians seeking jobs and housing.

Officials of the half dozen government and private organizations helping the refugees said they were fitting in with no extreme trauma.

"We have had no complaints from the French so far despite unemployment and a bad economic situation here," said Janine Quito, assistant director of social services at the Red Cross.

Jeanne Rondot of the French Immigration Service said, "Certainly these people can integrate here. The Vietnamese always have been welcomed in France. The French who lived in Vietnam came away with a very favorable opinion of Vietnamese. There are many ties between the two countries, including language."

One former Vietnamese minister who arrived in France four years ago said the newcomers are "those who could be blamed by the new regime, the military or those who profited by the war."

The former official, who did not want his name used for fear of reprisal against relatives still in Vietnam, said, "I wanted a neutral, independent Vietnam. They have ended the American influence — but now they are under the Russians and Chinese. They still are not independent."

The Vietnamese who settled in France in the '60s and early '70s appear to have integrated into French life.

Many opened restaurants. Paris used to be virtually without Asian food until the Vietnamese invasion. Now there are an estimated 1,500 Vietnamese-Chinese restaurants in Paris alone, often three to a block. One on the Left Bank is operated by a former prime minister of South Vietnam, Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

Pham Van Hinh, a regional governor and assistant to the army chief of staff in the '60s, now is one of the best known fortune tellers in Paris.

Former Economy Minister Au Druong Dhanh is a director of a Japanese company here. Ex-Minister of Education Tran Huu Thae runs a gift shop on the Avenue Champs Elysees. Ex-Justice Minister Nguyen Quoc Dinh is a law professor, Ex-Justice Minister Nguyen Van Man works in an insurance company and Ex-Minister of State Nguyen Huu Chau teaches economics.

An early refugee in the 1950s was Ho Chi Minh. He went back.

On the walls of the grocery store on the Place Maubert hang colorful posters summoning the refugees to a Vietnamese cultural evening outside Paris. Another sign announces the opening of a larger Vietnamese food market nearby.

"Everything is fine for us so far," said one former military officer as he climbed into his used automobile with two bags of groceries.

Boy Scout President Expects Program Will Continue Growth

By CHRIS CONKLING
NEW YORK (AP) — Gerald Ford was one. So were Neil Armstrong, 53 other astronauts and half the members of the present Congress. And today, five million boys are still promising to be thrifty, brave, clean, obedient, courteous, kind, cheerful, loyal and reverent as members of the Boy Scouts of America.

"As long as we keep 'adventure' in scouting, scouting will continue to grow," predicts Arch Monson Jr., for the 65-year-old program designed to develop the qualities of character, citizenship and physical fitness in American youth. Monson is newly-elected to a one-year, nonsalaried term as president of the BSA.

Monson, 62, is convinced scouting is everlasting to the American culture.

"On my honor I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country. That oath has never changed and it's not going to change, though some people want to make us take 'God' out of it," the tall, robust and graying Monson said in an interview.

"I'm sure no kid ever joined for moral or physical improvement but as long as the leadership fulfills its responsibility of making scouting an adventure, kids will love it."

The San Francisco business executive and civic leader was never a scout but he has been active in scouting for 30 years. His four grown sons all were scouts.

"In my kids," he notes, "scouting developed leadership. That's the primary value I see in scouting. It's an experience where you quickly learn that it's more fun to give orders than to take them."

The new chief scoutmaster says he probably has "more ideas than I can try as president," but he would like to achieve a greater cooperation between young and old.

"We're thinking of asking senior citizens to offer leadership responsibilities," he says. "The senior population is increasing at the same time the youth population is dropping off. They need each other.

"We've enrolled just under one million adult volunteers, but only about 4,000 are professionals. If we could increase the adult volunteer involvement by 10 to 15 per cent we could at least do that with our youth enrollment. Studies have shown that four out of five kids want a scouting experience but we don't have enough schools or advisers. We will make the scouting program available to anyone who can provide the leadership. But it's got to be something that self-generates. We are so dependent on our partners."

It was in 1910 that the English Lord Baden-Powell conceived the scouting idea out of his concern for the poor physical condition of the troops he commanded in the Boer War. His concept was chartered in the United States in 1916 by an act of Congress. Today there are an estimated 15 million cub scouts, scouts and explorer scouts worldwide, involved in activities ranging from a national and world jamboree every four years to the biennial National Explorer's Olympics.

Answering Baden-Powell's call for physical fitness the scouts continue to serve the physically handicapped.

"Scouting for the handicapped has been a major activity in recent years," Monson says. "From a leadership standpoint it brings out the most dedicated people. We offer a full range of activities for handicapped scouts, including an annual camporee."

Monson held his meeting with one scoutmaster who is totally blind. "The scouts in his troop were his eyes and he was their guide. It's a two-way street. The leaders and the scouts get back what they give."

The scouting theme for 1975 is "Be Prepared for Life: Be Safe, Be Fit," stressing activities for fitness and safety, including a cub scout bicycle safety program, a defensive driving course and a national swimming program. In fall the BSA will launch three Bicentennial themes: "Heritage '76," "Festival USA," and "Horizons '76," encouraging scouts to select Bicentennial observances benefiting their own communities.

Saints made the announcement in Tokyo where they were attending a general conference. The temple will be the church's first in Asia and the 18th worldwide. (AP Wirephoto)

Concert By Lost Colony Choir

"The Lost Colony" choir will present its annual concert at 4 p.m. on Sunday, August 17 in the Mount Olive United Methodist Church in Manteo.

The choral work to be presented this year will be Gioacchino Rossini's Stabat Mater. Marjalee Thomas of Elizabeth City, assistant music director for "The Lost Colony," is directing the concert. Rodney Trueblood, organist at the First United Methodist Church in Elizabeth City will be the accompanying organist.

Hollywood's Second Generation Moving To Fore

By DAVID DUGAS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Liza Minnelli, Candice Bergen, Jane Fonda, Peter Fonda, Beau and Jeff Bridges, Michael Douglas. Hollywood's home-grown stars are more and more in evidence these days.

And the list keeps growing.

The combination of looks, talent, luck and fortitude is what counts, so it's still okay to be born in Winnetka, Illinois, and change your name from Roy Fitzgerald to Rock Hudson. But it helps to hail from Beverly Hills or (better yet) Bel Air and have a movie star for a parent. At age 11, even Tatum O'Neal knows that.

So does Scott Newman. Paul Newman's eldest offspring and only son was signed up for a bit part in "The Great Waldo Pepper" because the director, George Roy Hill, was an old family friend. That in turn got the 24-year-old aspiring actor a job in dad's picture, "The Towering Inferno," playing a young fireman.

The handsome Scott, whose mother is actress Jackie Witte, says he has no delusions about inheriting stardom. "I've been making it on my own since I was 20 and I know I have to keep doing it." He recently completed his first starring role — in a Charles Bronson movie called "Breakheart Pass."

One of the prettiest of the new crop is Devon Scott, 16-year-old brown-haired, brown-eyed daughter of George C. Scott by the actor's second marriage.

In her first professional acting chore Devon played a teenage daughter on the short-lived "We'll Get By" television series created by Alan Alda, star of the "MASH" show and son of actor Robert Alda.

Carrie Fisher seems a natural as the worldly teenager who seduces Warren Beatty in "Shampoo." But would she have been hired if she weren't the daughter of Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher? At 18 she can shrug off such questions. Somebody once asked her what it was like being Debbie's daughter. "Compared to what?" asked Carrie.

Being the daughter of a famed Hollywood star gave a publicity advantage to Taryn Power, raised by her actress mother Linda Christian after father Tyrone's death in 1958.

Older sister Romina has found work only in minor European productions, but Taryn, at 21, is trying for Hollywood. She recently completed her first movie there with Dennis Hopper, having already made her American debut with Richard Chamberlain in "The Count of Monte Cristo" for television.

She is now in Spain co-starring with another Hollywood offspring, John Wayne's son Patrick, in "Sinbad and the Eye of the Tiger." Also in the cast is Topo Swope, actress daughter of Dorothy McGuire.

"When you're born into a tradition you seem to have no other choice," Taryn says fatalistically, referring not only to her parents but to her grandfather, Tyrone Power Sr., who began his movie career in Hollywood's silent era.

Taryn says she always wanted to be an actress and remembers "I pretended having screen tests when I was 5."

No such dreams entered the head of 5-year-old Melanie Griffith who, now nearing 18, says she vaguely remembers meeting Alfred Hitchcock while her mother Tippi Hedren ("the new Grace Kelly") was making "The Birds" and "Marnie." Later she collected autographed photos of Charlie Chaplin and Marlon Brando while her mother was working in "The Countess From Hong Kong."

"But I didn't think about being an actress except a few years ago when they talked about my playing the little girl in 'The Exorcist.' By the time they made the movie I was 14 and too old."

Another chance came last year when Arthur Penn cast Melanie as a run-away teenager in Gene Hackman's "Night Moves." She has since done "Smile" about a California beauty contest with Bruce Dern and has a starring role with Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward in "The Drowning Pool."

If the name Carradine is heard a lot around Hollywood these days, it is not only because John Carradine's son David is the head guru of TV's "Kung Fu." Keith Carradine, 13 years younger, now seems to have emerged as a star with his sixth picture, Robert Altman's "Nashville," for which he also composed and performed two principal songs.

Having a movie star for a parent opens doors in Hollywood. Keeping them open long enough to establish a career is harder.

Robert Mitchum's sons Jim and Christopher, both past 30, are still struggling movie actors rather than stars. Of Burt Lancaster's five children, only son William has so far shown interest in films. But after working with his father in the six-part TV series "Moses, the Lawgiver," Bill Lancaster already has declared he is quitting acting for a career in screen-writing. He recently sold his first script.

David Ladd, one of the few movie star kids to achieve stardom as a child actor, retired at age 14 ("My father wanted me to have a normal life").

He has tried for a comeback as an adult, but the late Alan Ladd's boy, now 28, has had limited success. Non-acting brother Alan Ladd Jr., on the other hand, is vice president for world-wide production of 20th Century-Fox.

John Wayne's son Michael keeps his hand in the family business by managing his father's Batjak production company and producing his dad's movies, leaving the second-generation acting to younger brother Patrick, 36. After years of secondary roles, Pat Wayne finally may be catching on. Besides starring in the new "Sinbad" picture, he recently got star billing in Disney's "The Bears and I."

The long-climb-to-the-top process may have been reversed by Desi Arnaz Jr. Lucille Ball's son, a juvenile star with sister Lucie on their mother's marathon TV series, made his movie debut in a well-received picture, "Red Sky At Morning," a few years ago. But "Billy Two Hats," a western with Gregory Peck, was a box office flop. And "Marco," a lavish musical filmed in Japan three years ago with Desi as Marco Polo, has not been released. Desi hasn't made a movie since.

Sister Lucie, who recently made her dramatic debut in a TV movie based on the famed Los Angeles Black Dahlia murder case, may be the one to carry on the Ball-Arnaz tradition.

Hollywood offspring who lack — or are spared — the acting bug, can find themselves in jobs as diverse as TV newscaster (Ingrid Bergman's daughter Pia Lindstrom), princess (Grace Kelly's Caroline) and combat photographer (Errol Flynn's son Sean who disappeared while covering the Vietnam War). The real estate agents and used car salesmen are too numerous to mention.

But the second generation actors and actresses are increasingly spotted in the credits of movies and TV shows.

James Daly, co-star of TV's "Medical Center," is the father of Tyne Daly whose credits include a number of recent TV movies ("Larry"). Television also has provided roles for Maureen Reagan, daughter of Jane Wyman and ex-actor, ex-California governor Ronald Reagan; Gavin O'Herrighy, son of Dan; Dirk Blocker, son of Dan; and Robert Walker Jr. whose mother is Jennifer Jones.

Jack Palance's daughter Holly, who has lived in Britain the past five years, recently made her TV debut in London, getting killed off in the first few minutes. "We've all got to start somewhere," she observes. Another London resident, Orson Welles' daughter Beatrice, 19, has announced her intention of becoming an actress.

Nepotism is as evident in the acting game as elsewhere. Martin Milner and Kent McCord of "Adam-12" have given their teen-age daughters Amy and Kristen guest roles on the weekly series.

Robert Conrad did the same for daughter Nancy while filming his "Assignment: Vienna" series. The 21-year-old Nancy Conrad has since played her father's daughter in a movie awaiting release and plans to make a career of acting.

Older daughter Joan wants no part of show business. "I got Joan to appear in a party scene but she hated the work so much she wouldn't come back the next day to finish it," says Conrad. "She said she had better things to do than sit around a hot set all day."

Joan Conrad isn't the only movie brat not inspired to follow the lead of a famous parent. Shirley MacLaine says daughter Stephanie "wants nothing to do with show business. She considers it a colossal invasion of privacy. And a big bore."

IN SHOW BUSINESS famous parents can help, but in the final analysis talent counts. Two who seem to be making it

are Patrick Wayne and Taryn Power. (UPI Photo)

Fewer Basques Are Moving To Idaho

By JIM McLAUGHLIN
The Idaho Statesman
BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The flow of Basques into Idaho is diminishing.

For years men from the Basque provinces of Spain arrived here on three-year contracts as sheepherders. Many settled, moving into other pursuits or acquired their own ranches and contributed a conspicuous share of the color in Idaho life.

Idaho Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa, a Basque, says there are approximately 20,000 Basques in Idaho, ranging from immigrants to fourth-generation Americans of Basque descent. The federal census does not give accurate figures on the national origins of Americans.

For the past three years, Idaho sheepmen have been employing more Mexican and Peruvian nationals, according to both Lew Williams, executive secretary of the Idaho Wool Growers Association, and John Basabe, president of the livestock division of J.R. Simplot Co.

Both men blame complications of Labor Department regulations for the difficulty in recruiting sheepherders outside the country. They say employment offices are helping sheepmen contact unemployed Americans to work as herders, but tending flocks does not appeal to Americans, employed or not.

One ranch tried hiring Navajo Indians from a reservation in New Mexico. Cenarrusa, Basabe and Williams all said it was not successful.

A spokesman for the Idaho Historical Society said the Basques were not originally brought into the country specifically for sheepherding jobs. In the 1860s Basques were one of the many immigrant nationalities coming from Europe and the principal concentrations were in Mexico and California. Their language, unlike any other, was a barrier to their assimilation into the American melting pot.

Basques found the Idaho mountains similar to their native Pyrenees and moved into the area to raise their own sheep, a vocation not in their previous experience. The historical society spokesman said they found no need to solve the language problem in the lonely life of a sheepherder.

Basques moved into Nevada in the 1870s and 1880s, then from 1890 to 1920 a steady stream came into the western states.

Cenarrusa said the 20,000 Basques in Idaho are the biggest concentration in the United States.

The historical society said Basques tend to gather in groups from their native provinces in Spain. Cenarrusa said most of Idaho's Basques are from Vizcaya, while most of those in Nevada and California are from Guipuscoa Province.

No one knew when the practice of attracting Basques as sheepherders began. Basabe and the historical society spokesman said there are strong bonds of communication. They said Basques here wrote a span of opportunities and life here.

Cenarrusa said Basques are known for their dependability, honesty and physical stamina.

His Definitions Of Education

EDINBORO, Pa. (UPI) — T. H. Bell, U.S. Commissioner of Education, in remarks at Edinboro State College here recently defined education several ways. Some excerpts:

"A wise man once said to me — 'Education is a process, not a destination... Education is the process of moving from cocksure ignorance to thoughtful uncertainty.'

"The first test of a self-educated man or woman is to be prepared to do useful and rewarding work. We all need meaningful work to do each day. Whether we are poor or wealthy beyond the need for any further income, we must have work to find fulfillment in life."

OPEN HOUSE

CARACAS (UPI) — Diego Arria, the 36-year-old governor of Venezuela's federal district, holds open house on Thursday mornings to receive complaints and suggestions from residents.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUGUST 14, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES. You can accomplish much that is sane and sensible early, so organize your time wisely and intelligently. Later you are apt to want to make some hasty and unwise moves that could cause you considerable trouble. Avoid anything drastic or dramatic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get your feet on the ground and discharge your responsibilities. No tangents. Use a different angle and clear up problems like a game.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can reach a far better understanding with associates in a.m., but later proceed with caution or you get into trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know what others expect of you to avoid errors that could prove expensive. Handle unexpected situation carefully. Quiet p.m. at home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans for recreation with friends, then carry through with work at hand. Don't overdo, though, or you could undermine health.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to please kin more in a.m. Tonight, don't anger good friend by being too blunt. Smile more and gain goodwill businesswise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show good friends how much you appreciate them, and reconcile with any with whom you have had altercations. Don't lose temper.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Analyze finances. Don't be too harsh with a good friend, and get away from the influence of a bad one. Drive carefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't spend money foolishly. Not a good day to see a trusted adviser who is pressed for time. Have a fine social p.m.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Assist one who comes to you for help, then do something to improve your position in life. Perk up your appearance. Don't argue.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Interest a friend in some important project in a.m., but don't confide your plans to others later. An expert can help.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of any public work early, then be with congenials. Clarify personal aims. Don't jump into anything you're unsure about.

The bidding:

Opening leading: Ace of ♠.

If there is one thing we have learned in our bridge careers (which, between the two of us, span almost a century), it is never to use the word "never." This applies particularly to the collection of bridge dogma that starts with that word. For example: "Never give an opponent a ruff and discard." West firmly believed in that adage, and it proved to be his downfall on this hand.

South opened the bidding with a weak two-heart bid. The bid describes a hand of less than opening bid strength with a good six-card suit. North's two-trump response asked partner to show an outside feature, if he had one, and South dutifully replied by bidding his ace of clubs. Armed with this extra information, North decided that he had enough to take a shot at game.

West's opening lead of the ace of spades was an excellent and well-reasoned choice. The auction had marked South with a good heart suit and some strength in clubs, so it was most unlikely that he also held the king of spades. Thus, West's queen of spades was a wasted value unless he found the king in his partner's hand.

East signalled with the ten of spades. West continued with a low spade to his partner's king and won the spade return with the queen to complete the defensive book. Now, he shifted to a club, and declarer had no trouble making the rest of the tricks when the queen of hearts appeared on the second round of trumps.

West should have reasoned that it was most unlikely that the defenders could get the setting trick in the minor suits. The only hope, therefore, was to find a trick in the trump suit, and it was doubtful that could be managed without a bit of help.

After winning the queen of spades, West should have led the 13th spade on the grounds that a ruff and discard could not possibly help declarer but just might promote a trump trick via an uppercut. Since East happens to hold two trump honors, he can ruff the 13th spade with either card, and declarer will be unable to prevent West from scoring the setting trick with his nine of hearts.

How do you choose your best opening lead? Charles Goren provides the answers in his new book, "Winning Opening Leads." For a copy, write to "Goren Leads," in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 259, Norwood, New Jersey 07648. Enclose $1.25 in cash or checks, payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

GENERAL TENDENCIES. You can accomplish much that is sane and sensible early, so organize your time wisely and intelligently. Later you are apt to want to make some hasty and unwise moves that could cause you considerable trouble. Avoid anything drastic or dramatic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get your feet on the ground and discharge your responsibilities. No tangents. Use a different angle and clear up problems like a game.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can reach a far better understanding with associates in a.m., but later proceed with caution or you get into trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know what others expect of you to avoid errors that could prove expensive. Handle unexpected situation carefully. Quiet p.m. at home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans for recreation with friends, then carry through with work at hand. Don't overdo, though, or you could undermine health.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to please kin more in a.m. Tonight, don't anger good friend by being too blunt. Smile more and gain goodwill businesswise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show good friends how much you appreciate them, and reconcile with any with whom you have had altercations. Don't lose temper.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Analyze finances. Don't be too harsh with a good friend, and get away from the influence of a bad one. Drive carefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't spend money foolishly. Not a good day to see a trusted adviser who is pressed for time. Have a fine social p.m.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Assist one who comes to you for help, then do something to improve your position in life. Perk up your appearance. Don't argue.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Interest a friend in some important project in a.m., but don't confide your plans to others later. An expert can help.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of any public work early, then be with congenials. Clarify personal aims. Don't jump into anything you're unsure about.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Some new idea can be put in operation early, but later get into routine work where there is no element of danger.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to be most secretive about own plans and will want to do everything alone, but later in life this changes and the importance of having allies is understood and big strides can be made forward in life. Give as fine an education as possible and include the study of foreign languages. Slant schooling toward work with foreign governments, imports and exports, etc.
