

Rep. Jones Feels No Veto Ahead On New Tobacco Bill

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A boost in 1975 tobacco price supports of nearly 10 per cent has been voted by the House tobacco subcommittee — along with a call for smaller crops to drive up prices. The price support bill was approved unanimously by the subcommittee Wednesday over Agriculture Department objections that it would hurt U.S. exports and would be unfair to farmers who have already sold their tobacco. Chairman Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., called that opposition minimal and said it indicates President Ford would sign the price support increase into law. "I would be very surprised if President Ford vetoed this bill," Jones said. He said he believes Congress can have the bill on Ford's desk by mid-October, saying he expects little opposition in either the House or Senate. Jones said he based his optimism that Ford will sign the bill on the fact that he asked the White House to keep anticipated Agriculture opposition to a minimum and he considers that to be what Agriculture did. That opposition, primarily on grounds that the higher U.S. tobacco prices would reduce U.S. exports and increase imports, was delivered to the subcommittee by Elvin J. Person, deputy administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. "The department is very much aware of the cost-price problems facing tobacco producers — in fact all producers," Person said. "But in the long run farmers would be harmed by this bill," he said. He said they would be harmed "as we can see where this would decrease both the domestic use and exports thereby causing quotas for subsequent years to be decreased." But Rep John W. Jenrette Jr., D-S.C., told him that decreased tobacco acreage quotas is "just what farmers want" to reduce supply and make the tobacco companies pay higher prices. Charles L. Frazier of the National Farmers Organization agreed with that, telling the subcommittee the Agriculture Department "has become obsessed with the concept that we must have an export market." Rep. Dawson Mathis, D-Ga., accused the department of listening to the tobacco companies rather than farmers in supporting policies to increase tobacco production. "That's like asking the fox about the chicken coop," Mathis said. "Obviously they would like to have all the tobacco they can get to keep the price down." The subcommittee unanimously approved a non-binding resolution proposed by Mathis urging Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz to promise at least a 15 per cent cut in U.S. tobacco acreage allotments next year.

Kissinger Avers Russia Violating Helsinki Pact

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today that Soviet support for the Communist minority in Portugal is contrary to the recently signed Helsinki pact on European security. At the same time, he pledged that the United States "will oppose and speak out against the efforts of a minority that appears to be subverting the revolution for its own purpose." "The Portuguese people should know that we and all the democratic countries of the West are deeply concerned about their future and stand ready to help a democratic Portugal," Kissinger said. Kissinger said the Soviet Union "should not assume that it has the option, either directly or indirectly, to influence events contrary to the right of the Portuguese people to determine their own future." "The involvement of external powers for this purpose in a country which is an old friend and ally of ours, is inconsistent with any principle of European security," he said. Kissinger's remarks came in a major foreign policy address prepared for the Southern Commodity Producers Conference, one of a series of appearances in which the secretary hopes, according to an aide, "to bring his message home to the folks." Kissinger did not specify in what way he feels the Soviet Union is attempting to improperly influence events in Portugal. But U.S. intelligence reports have put Moscow's financial support of the Communist party in Portugal at up to $10 million per month. "The United States has never accepted that the Soviet Union is free to relax tensions selectively or as a cover for the pursuit of unilateral advantage," Kissinger said. Recalling that 80 per cent of the Portuguese people have voted for non-Communist parties, he said that "the attempt by an anti-democratic and doctrinaire minority to thwart this desire is meeting inevitable and growing popular resistance." Kissinger's reference to the Helsinki declaration, signed earlier this month by 35 heads of government in the Finnish capital comes in the wake of a Soviet charge that it is the West which violates the Helsinki principles. The Soviet Communist party paper Pravda said earlier this week that the West, by withholding economic aid to Portugal, has, in effect, interfered in that country's internal affairs. Kissinger, as in most of his recent speeches, spoke out firmly against isolationist tendencies and pleaded for unity in handling foreign affairs. "America is a leader among nations whether we like it or not... If we do not care about global stability, if we do not help resist aggression, if we do not work for a more equitable and productive world economy, if we do not promote liberty and justice, no nation will take our place — at least no nation that believes in our values," he said.

Though in the United States the powers are divided between the three branches of the government, "to the world we are one government and one nation," the secretary added.

Day Of Final Arguments Underway In Little Case

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Defense attorney Marvin Miller told jurors in Joan Little's second degree murder trial this morning that the state's case was full of "holes." Miller told the six whites and six blacks on the panel that insufficient evidence had been presented to convict the 21-year-old black woman of killing Beaufort County jailer Clarence Alligood, 62. The state has maintained that she killed Alligood with an icepick last August in an escape plot. Miss Little has maintained that Alligood had used the icepick to force her to perform oral sex on him and she had merely defended herself from the sexual attack. Closing arguments alternated between the defense and prosecution. Calling for conviction of Miss Little this morning was Lester Chalmers, a prosecutor assigned to the case by the state attorney general's office. Chalmers admonished the jury to remember they had promised to give the state "a fair trial." That promise was elicited from each of the jurors during jury selection. "The bedrock of our society, if you believe, is first of all a belief in Jesus Christ Almighty and secondly a belief in the law," Chalmers said, gesturing with abandon and sprinkling his arguments with passages from law books. "My only purpose to be here is to see that justice is done," he told the jury. In his arguments, Miller dwelled on what he called "holes" in the state's case. "Let's look at that sterling evidence that they (prosecutors) want to use to put her in jail for the rest of her life," he said before reviewing the state's evidence. Among the weak points cited by Miller was the fact that police investigators hadn't tried to get fingerprints from the desk drawer in the jail office where the icepick was kept. The state says Miss Little took the weapon from the desk several hours before Alligood was killed. "They will present a logical theory, but can you put someone in jail on a logical theory? There is more than one logical theory," he said. Closing arguments began Wednesday. In the first argument for the defense, attorney Jim Rowan told the jury of six whites and six blacks that Miss Little surrendered to face charges because she wanted to vindicate herself. He said she knew "fair minded people could come to only one conclusion," that she killed Beaufort County jailer Clarence Alligood in self defense against a sexual attack. Alligood's body, naked from the waist down, was found in Miss Little's cell in the jail last Aug. 27. She had fled, but turned herself in to state authorities in Raleigh eight days later. "She believes, she knows, that the truth will set her free, that she can rely on your ability to search out the truth, to find it, and find for her," Rowan said. He told the jury that Judge Hamilton Hobgood would charge them that the burden is on the state to disprove self defense and not on Miss Little to prove it. Speaking in soft tones, Rowan said, "The bedrock of Joan Little's defense is that she had to defend herself. What is the bedrock of the state of North Carolina's case?" Rowan said the state had handled the investigation of the killing poorly, and that "preservation of the evidence was a shambles." He said prosecutors had only showed the jury some of the items found in Miss Little's cell. Other items, he said "are mysteriously not available." He said the prosecution presented only the physical evidence that supports their theory that Miss Little killed Alligood to escape. He told the jurors the main question before them was, "Did Joan Little on the morning of Aug. 27 act in self defense in repelling Clarence T. Alligood?" "What has been submitted to you is that Joan Little, under attack, was forced to commit a sexual act against her will, rebelled and said, 'I will not do this any longer.' To gain her freedom, she struck Clarence Alligood and his death resulted," Rowan said.

Tighten Little Trial Security

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Some spectators, including Winston-Salem, N.C., Black Panther leader Larry Little, were barred from the Joan Little courtroom for an hour and a half this morning as security tightened on the eve of the trial's end. When this morning's session began, Little was left standing two floors below the courtroom in the lobby of the Wake County Courthouse along with a disgruntled band of Black Panthers and other Joan Little supporters. There were empty seats in the courtroom. Little, no relation to Joan Little, said he had been 11th in line this morning when a deputy sheriff came down, counted to his position and said only nine spectators would be allowed to enter. Two of those in front of him gave up their positions so he could be ninth in line. Little said the deputies then told him no one would be allowed in the courtroom. At a recess about 11 a.m., Little and 13 other spectators were allowed to enter the courtroom. Police officials had no comment. "You'll have to ask the judge," one official said. Wednesday afternoon, extra police were called in to barricade the third floor of the courthouse, allowing no one from the general public to enter. There was no official comment on the extra security, but several deputies said it was in response to rumors that the Black Panthers planned to "rush the courtroom."

On Tuesday, Little and Black Panther Anthony Semir were abruptly ejected from the courtroom when a bailiff told presiding Judge Hamilton Hobgood he had heard someone in their vicinity mutter "son of a bitch." Both Little and Semir denied saying anything. No charges were pressed against them because the bailiff acknowledged he could not identify the individual who made the alleged remark. Hobgood's administrative assistant Jimmy Glenn said he thought Hobgood had issued a verbal order barring Little from the courtroom. Chief Deputy Lester Kelly said he had no comment on whether there was an order or why the spectators had been barred.

Belfast Terror

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Ambulance men say more bodies may be found in the rubble of a bar blown up by a bomb. At least four persons died in the terrorist attack on the haunt of militant Protestants. The dead included a security guard gunned down at the door and a woman. More than 40 persons were injured, some of them seriously. No group immediately claimed responsibility for Wednesday's attack on the Bayardo Bar in the Protestant-dominated Shankill Road area. Police and witnesses gave the following account: Just before closing time a gunman opened fire from a dark-blue car on two security men posted at the door of the bar, killing one and wounding the other. A companion flung the bomb through the unguarded door of the bar. It exploded quickly, almost wrecking the building decorated with the flags of Ulster and of the Ulster Defense Association, one of the largest Protestant paramilitary groups. A woman customer injured in the blast said: "It was terrible. The bomb went off almost immediately and the building was shaken to its foundations."

Wage Hikes

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Five of the nation's leading textile companies have announced wage increases for about 140,000 hourly workers in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. The raises are expected to average 7 to 8 per cent. Among the companies were Burlington Industries and J. P. Stevens, the nation's two leading textile producers. Deering Milliken, Cone Mills and Springs Mills also announced wage adjustments for their plants, all effective in September. Other companies were expected to follow suit.

Mechanization Partly Blamed For Tobacco Crop's Poorer Quality

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The poor quality of flue-cured tobacco this year is partially the result of heavy summer rains and mechanization designed to produce larger crops, several tobacco experts said Wednesday. In response to complaints of low prices for leaf, tobacco buying companies have charged that they are being offered bad tobacco, and have said that purchases will increase as the quality becomes better. John H. Cyrus, tobacco expert for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture said to-acco with scalding, barn rot and foreign matter has contributed to nearly double the amount of tobacco that has been graded nondescript in 1975 compared with the last two years. Nondescript is the lowest grade for which price support is provided. On the Eastern Belt last week, 13.4 per cent of the tobacco was nondescript and 3.8 per cent no grade. Last year, those figures were 4.8 per cent and 1.7 per cent. According to U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates based on Aug. 1 conditions, North Carolina's production is around 954 million pounds, a 24 per cent increase. Cyrus said the jump was caused by a 15 per cent increase in quotas and a nine per cent carryover of allotments from 1974. Bulk barn curing combined with heavy rains to cause problems for the farmers, especially those who have just started using bulk barns, Cyrus said. He added that the excess water made learning procedures even more difficult. Scalding and barn rot happen when regulation and ventilation scheduling of bulk curers are not handled correctly, said S.N. Hawks Jr., a North Carolina State University agronomy extension.

Bulk barn sales jumped from 6,000 last year to 10,000 in 1975. The North Carolina State University Agriculture Extension Service also said there has been equal growth of the use of mechanical harvesters. Hawks said mechanical harvesters pick up more sand than do human primers.

Woman Robbed Branch Bank

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—A woman carrying a pistol has robbed the White Horse Road branch of the Citizens and Southern National Bank of South Carolina. According to bank employees, the woman entered the bank about 2:05 p.m. Wednesday and asked to open an account. She then locked bank employees and customers in a bathroom. After looting several cash drawers, she then fled the bank in what witnesses described as a gold 1974 Camaro, which was recovered a short time later.

Gritton Loan

Congressman Walter B. Jones today announced the approval by the Farmers Home Administration of a loan of $60,000 to the Town of Gritton to be repaid in 40 years at five percent. Two-Day August Blood Donations Are Better

The Bloodmobile collected 82 pints of blood here Wednesday as it closed out a successful two-day drive under the sponsorship of the Greenville Moose Lodge. Yesterday's collection total brought the two-day figure to 213 pints as Tuesday's drive netted a fine 131 pints of blood, according to Bill Ross, Pitt Blood chairman. He added that eight persons were rejected during Wednesday's visit. Ross said that the visit was the best "we've had in recent years for August" and he pointed out that this time of the year is normally one of the most difficult periods for a blood drive. The chairman offered his appreciation to the Moose Lodge for its sponsorship of the drive and he also thanked the Women of the Moose for their help in making telephone calls, mailing cards and assisting in various ways. In addition, Ross thanked the women of the Greenville Service League and the volunteer nurses who assisted in the visits. The Bloodmobile was scheduled to be at Union Carbide today for a visit and then will not be in Greenville again until October when a three-day visit is planned for Oct. 21-22-23 at East Carolina University. Following the ECU drive, the Bloodmobile will not be here again until December when a Moose Lodge visit is scheduled.

Blood Banks A Vital Investment

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I was pleased when you urged your readers to have their blood pressure checked. I wish you'd have added, "And one way to have it checked absolutely free is to become a blood donor. It's quick and painless, and should you have a disease that shows in your blood sample, you are promptly notified."

I donate blood twice a year. And I feel that I'm getting much more than I give.

BLOOD DONOR

DEAR DONOR: God love you. And readers, if you are between 17 and 65, you, too, can become a donor. The only bank in the world that would rather have your blood than your money is the Red Cross Blood Bank!

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. Please don't give me a "try-it, you'll like it" answer because that's not the kind of help I need.

I will be in the eighth grade next year. (I'm a male.) I'll be going to a big public school. The law in our state (Calif.) says that every able-bodied student must take physical education, and that's where my problem comes in.

I HATE team sports, and there is no way to get out of baseball, football, etc., in P.E. Don't get me wrong: I like swimming and things like that, I'm not fat, and I DO exercise regularly so I am in good shape. But I detest sports that will make me part of a team.

I don't want a lecture. I want to know how I can get out of team sports.

HATES SPORTS

DEAR HATES: Unless you can persuade your P.E. teacher to allow you to substitute swimming or something you like for baseball, football and sports you dislike, I'm afraid you're stuck. (Look at it this way: Doing something whether you like it or not is a good preparation for life. Don't fight it.)

DEAR ABBY: I was engaged, and the wedding date was set 16 months ago. As the date drew near, I panicked. For some strange reason, marriage frightened me. I was sure I was in love with my fiancé, but I just couldn't go through with the wedding.

I had had some showers and received some beautiful and expensive shower gifts. We decided to postpone the wedding. (Our wedding invitations were addressed—but never mailed.)

Now the marriage appears unlikely, although my fiancé says that he will wait for as long as I want him to. The shower gifts are still in their original boxes, and it's

Miss Sadler Entertained

Miss Claudia Sadler, bride-elect of Ralph Bailey II, was honored Monday night at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Joe Culbreth.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Bruce Buck and Mrs. Herbert Oliver.

The refreshment table was covered with an ivory lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of summer flowers.

Miss Sadler, her mother, the bridegroom-elect's mother and his grandmother were remembered with rose corsages. There were approximately 15 guests in attendance.

The classic elegance of a long rope of baroque pearls will be back on the fall fashion scene.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

On my 45th birthday, my family chipped in and bought me a tennis racket. I don't wish to sound ungrateful, but this is like buying the Pope a Mouseketeer. Beanie.

"When are you going to use it?" the kids kept clamoring. "When it snows and I get another racket to put on the other foot," I said.

The truth is, I have never cared for sports that take me away from the table. (Besides, I slip easily and tend to black out when I spend an evening licking green stamps.)

Not these obstacles were small compared to the prejudice I encountered when I ventured to the tennis courts with my brand new racket.

There is no evidence to sustain this, but I have a feeling new tennis rackets secrete an odor that is detected within a 50-mile radius by experienced tennis players. The moment you appear, men in white shorts hurry toward their cars, women in white tennis dresses sniff the air and mumble something about burning dinner, and even small children playing in their bare feet back off and say, "I think I hear my mother calling."

I found one young man trying to scale the fence and said, "Would you like to play a game?"

"Have you ever played tennis before?" he asked.

"No," I giggled. "What gave me away?"

"Your sweat band. You don't wear it to the airports."

"But that's where..."

"You wear it around the wrist. Listen, I gotta cut out. Some other time..."

The next night, I went down again and this time collared a 12-year-old girl who tripped and fell as the rest of the players ran from the courts to their cars.

"What am I doing wrong?" I asked.

"First, you don't get a new suit if you hit the ball over the big fence. That's baseball. Next, you don't get an extra point if you hit the drinking fountain. And take the press off your racket when you play."

During the next few weeks, I worked like a demon to shake the new racket stigma—playing with anyone I could trap.

Yesterday, I ambled onto the courts and there was a tired-looking housewife in pedal pushers and a Howard Hughes sweatshirt.

"Have you ever played tennis before?" I asked.

She shook her head. "How can you tell?"

"You don't wear the sweat band around your ankle, dear. I gotta go. I hear the timer on my stove going off..."

Report 4 Collisions In City Yesterday

An estimated $2,000 property damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 9:25 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Evans Street and Greenville Boulevard involving cars driven by Betty McLawhorn Jones of Ayden and Wiley Brown Tripp Jr. of Farmville.

Police, who charged Mrs. Jones with failing to stop for a stop light, estimated damage at $300 to the Jones car and $400 to the Tripp auto.

An estimated $300 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 3:25 p.m. collision on Charles Street, 35 feet South of the Southview Drive intersection.

Drivers involved were listed as James Michael Brown of Route 2, Greenville and Gary Bruce Reids, also of Route 2, Greenville.

Brown was charged with following too close by police.

No charges were made following investigation of a 9:10 p.m. incident at the intersection of Fourth and Reade Streets.

Police said cars driven by Jamie Suzanne Steed of Ayden and James Lee Capps III of 201 River Drive collided, resulting in an estimated $200 damage to the Steed vehicle and $250 damage to the Capps car. Cars operated by William Vinson Ratliff of Glendale Court and Odus Tank Gooden of 608 Gooden Pl. collided about 11:10 a.m. at the intersection of Gendale Drive and Perkins Street, according to investigators. Officers, who made no charges, estimated damage at $150 to the Ratliff auto and $100 to the Gooden car.

Point Finger For Lack Of Insurance Schedule

RALEIGH (AP)—A state Insurance Department staff attorney blames the industry-operated North Carolina Automobile Rate Administrative Rate Office for the lack of a new rate schedule for automobile liability insurance.

A new schedule is needed to comply with a law enacted by the 1975 General Assembly mandating abolition of age and sex as factors in setting auto liability insurance rates by Sept. 2.

Insurance companies have complained that not having the new rate schedule now prevents them from doing necessary work to prepare for the change. They say their offices have come to a standstill.

Gloria Jimenez, Insurance Department staff attorney, blamed the rate office for the delay and said impatient insurance companies should call on the office "to stop playing games."

She said the rate office's original plan "seriously over-stated the number of inexperienced drivers in North Carolina, placed an excessive burden on the one-time violator, ignored the motor vehicle point system in developing the schedule of surcharges, and increased the rate for many safe drivers."

The failure of that plan to meet "the spirit and intent" of the law forced her department to devise an acceptable plan, she said. That plan was given to the rate office, but subsequent efforts to settle differences between the two parties Aug. 5 in an informal meeting failed. The issue will be decided by Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, following a hearing Aug. 20, Jimenez said. Ingram will consider the arguments, then order implementation of a plan.

If that plan is unacceptable to the rate office, then they can appeal, she said, adding that she doubted that a statute could be stayed.

Jimenez said that "an interesting legal question" would arise if the rate office tries to appeal whatever order Ingram issues in this instance.

Judge Orders Quicker Assistance Processing

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Federal Judge James B. McMillan has ordered the state Department of Human Resources to develop a plan which will speed the processing of public assistance applications throughout North Carolina.

The District Court judge issued the order Wednesday along with instructions for implementing. He did so when he ruled on a class-action suit filed last year by four Mecklenburg County welfare applicants. They said the county Department of Social Services was not properly serving their needs. "The state is not effectively supervising performance of counties in the taking and processing of applications for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) and medical assistance," his ruling read.

He based his decision on federal regulations which require states "to allow all individuals wishing to apply for AFDC and medical assistance to do so without delay."

Under McMillan's order, each applicant must be told verbally and in writing of his rights to apply for any public assistance program.

Notice of the applicant's rights must state: "You have a legal right to apply for any public assistance program. Our office must accept your application today or tomorrow."

McMillan also ordered the Department of Human Resources to: —File with the court by Dec. 15 evidence showing the effectiveness of its plan.

—Begin payment of retroactive Aid to Families of Dependent Children (AFDC) benefits no later than 31 days after the date of application, provided the individual was otherwise eligible for AFDC benefits.

—Insure that all counties accept applications from those applying for aid on the day the person wants to apply or on the next working day.

McMillan said that many applicants must make repeated trips to county and city offices to apply for aid. He also said many applications have been pending longer than federal standards allow and that some applicants have been denied full payment of AFDC benefits to which they were otherwise entitled under federal law.

The judge also noted that the state has "not obtained sufficient information regarding the counties' performance in taking and processing applications" and has failed to impose sanctions in cases where guidelines were not being met.

Church Nursery School Reports Some Vacancies

Immanuel Baptist Church Nursery School has a limited number of vacancies in its three-year-old program, according to the director, Mrs. Susan A. Turcotte.

To be eligible for the program, a child must reach his third birthday on or before Oct. 15, 1975. The three-year-old program is held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to noon. In order to assure individual attention, the enrollment is limited to 15 children. Mrs. Turcotte, who holds a B.S. in Early Childhood Education from East Carolina University, is assisted full-time by Mrs. Susan Vincent.

For more information, one may contact Mrs. Turcotte at 752-2437; Mrs. Vincent at 758-3758; or Immanuel Baptist Church, located at 1101 S. Elm Street, directly across from Rose High School.

Farmville Mart Prices Steady

FARMVILLE—Prices on the Farmville Tobacco Market have been comparatively steady this week.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville market, increase in quality grades continued to account for the increase in averages.

The volume was heavy yesterday with lugs cutters and leaf grades accounting for most of the volume.

The demand for quality grades of lugs, cutters and leaf continued to increase.

The market sold 805,674 pounds of leaf for $775,859 for an average of $96.30 per hundred pounds. So far, the market has sold 8,852,836 pounds of leaf for $7,987,470, for an average of $90.22 per hundred pounds for the season.

'Miss Vicki' Is Dancing Again

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—Miss Vicki, the former usherette who married singer Tiny Tim and then left him, has returned from a sojourn in London to her old job as a go-go dancer.

Miss Vicki claims her problems with the local welfare department are straightened out. She was on welfare for three months last year and says it was because she couldn't dance due to a kidney ailment.

She needed welfare, she added, because Tiny Tim doesn't pay support for their 4-year-old daughter Tulip. "I don't think he should have to pay for a mistake that I made," she said.

UN Is Still Far From Perfect

The United States made use of its United States veto power this week to block the entrance of North and South Vietnam from UN membership.

The action was taken because the 15-nation Security Council refused to consider membership for South Korea.

U.S. Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan cast the veto vote against the Hanoi and Saigon governments, both of which are now communist controlled.

He said the United States was changing its position of 26 years which was not to use the veto on membership questions. The ambassador blamed the Security Council's refusal to take up the South Korean membership question for the U.S. veto use.

Moynihan indicated that the U.S. would go along with Vietnam membership provided South Korea is also admitted.

We can understand the strategy of the United States delegation on this question. After all the Soviet Union has vetoed the admission of a number of new members, including four vetoes against the South Korean application. Still it is not logical to deny membership to the Vietnamese people.

Given the Soviet Union's history of vetoing memberships there is plenty of justification for our retaliating. At the same time we as the leading democratic nation should set the example for all peoples in the world being represented in the worldwide United Nations organizations.

The UN is far from a perfect world organization. It really has little power to act in international emergencies and certainly at this point we would not be favorable to giving up our sovereignty to the UN.

Still it is all we've got in the way of a world forum and we will have to do the best we can with it. Maybe our strategy of holding up Vietnam membership until South Korea is admitted will work; nevertheless, like Red China once did, the question of some Vietnam representation in the UN will hang and be a constant problem to the United States.

Growth Limits Tested

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A legal case testing a city's right to limit growth and preserve its "small town character" apparently is headed for the U.S. Supreme Court.

The 9th U.S. Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday that the city of Petaluma, Calif., acted within its rights with a 1972 ordinance seeking to maintain its "small-town character, its open spaces, and to grow at an orderly and deliberate pace."

Petaluma, 40 miles north of San Francisco, grew in population from 10,300 in 1950 to 24,500 in 1970. Then explosive development boosted population to 30,500 by 1972.

The city council imposed a development freeze in 1971 and the following year voted a 500-a-year limit on new housing units in projects involving five or more units. The law does not affect single-family home construction, or even four-unit apartments which are not part of a larger project.

"We're going to the Supreme Court with this," said Gordon Blackley, executive vice president of the Associated Building Industry of Northern California, after the appeals court decision was announced. "We regard this as the most critical land use planning issue in the country...."

"The issue is this: The city this year can impose a 500-a-year limit in new housing units. If this stands, then that city council can steadily cut it back to 200, to 100, to zero."

The Court of Appeals decision reversed a trial judge's verdict holding that Petaluma's "no growth" ordinance is unconstitutional.

U.S. District Court Judge Lloyd H. Burke had ruled that the ordinance violated citizens' right to travel or to abide and settle and that the ordinance abridged rights of equal protection.

The appeals court rejected Burke's finding that the Petaluma Plan violated the constitutional right to travel. It said the plaintiffs in the suit.

Insurance Pools Indicated

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Use of insurance pools to guarantee coverage at a fair rate may be the shape of the future in North Carolina in a number of controversial areas.

Wherever abuses occur by insurance firms: cancellations, wildly escalating rates, refusal to write coverage for certain people, the experts foresee expanded use of the reinsurance exchange system.

Particular attention seems to focus on problems in health and hospitalization coverage, and homeowner policies in rural sections, near beaches, or in flood-prone sections.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram delivers a resounding "Yes" to the question of whether the reinsurance pool might be the answer to a lot of consumer problems.

Public Reaction
"As the public sees the success of our current efforts, and is further abused by cancellations and other problems, they will respond through the General Assembly," Ingram says.

The legislature has already written law establishing insurance pools in two critical areas, both pioneered by Ingram: automobile liability insurance and medical malpractice coverage.

"We have abuses in the homeowner's area—cancellations and rate problems. We have people in rural areas who can't even get insurance," Ingram said.

"We have troubles getting insurance on beaches.

"Wherever there is red tape and second class treatment for the consumer, I can see the state moving to the reinsurance concept so that agents will have to write the policies."

Ingram's approach to consumerism in insurance has won him few friends in the insurance industry.

But the insurance consumer generally endorses his efforts, and the auto liability insurance pool, which replaced the discriminatory and highpriced assigned risk system, has proven popular. Ingram was fought by insurance firms who don't like the medical malpractice reinsurance exchange system, but the legislature endorsed that over industry objections.

Likewise, Ingram's push to end age discrimination in auto insurance was bitterly resisted, but won legislative endorsement.

Expand Concept
Having fought and won those battles, Ingram now says he is impressed with further opportunities to expand his concepts.

Perhaps signaling what lies ahead, a little-noticed proposal was introduced in the past session of the General Assembly to broaden the reinsurance concept to establish a reinsurance mechanism for major medical or catastrophic disease insurance in excess of basic policy health protection. Such a move could be the foundation of future legislative action toward a health insurance pool.

Wherever there are abuses, Ingram thinks, there could be law requiring that insurance companies write coverage at reasonable rates set by the commissioner of insurance based on actual loss records in North Carolina.

Whatever the kind of insurance, the reinsurance exchange approach basically operates this way:

All companies doing business in the state in a particular insurance field are required by law to provide coverage at rates set by the commissioner.

A company can, if it chooses, accept the premium payments, issue the policy, and provide coverage. Or, all premiums paid can be put in an exchange fund from which losses are paid and profits split back out to the insurance firms.

For the consumer, this means you can tell your insurance agent you want particular coverage, and he is obliged to provide it without argument or cancellation or overcharging.

The policy may be written by another company, but your agent will handle that for you, and the red tape eliminated.

LIVING TODAY

Shrinking Family Impact

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer
The shrinking American family is forcing U.S. industry to "think small" to survive.

The Census Bureau reports that the size of the average U.S. household dipped below three persons in 1974 for the first time in history—the exact figure is 2.97 persons — and the trend toward small families is expected to continue.

Why?

—Women of child-bearing age claim they want smaller families. "When married women today are asked how many children they expect to have in their lifetime, those under 25 years old say they believe they will have just enough for zero population growth," the Census Bureau says.

—People are living longer and the elderly aren't moving in with their children. They keep their own homes or apartments.

—Young people are moving away from home after graduation from college. The child who used to stay home until marriage is leaving the nest earlier.

These people will still need the goods and services produced by industry. But they will need them in a different shape.

Smaller households mean smaller houses. Smaller automobiles. Smaller packages of food. Smaller appliances. Different types of entertainment and amusement.

Some of the changes are apparent already, caused, in part, by the pressure of recession. Rising gasoline prices and shrinking budgets have prompted Detroit to put new emphasis on the small car. "No-frills" houses provide a bright spot in an otherwise gloomy construction picture.

Investment counselor Jesse Siff says industry is going to have to change its thinking even further or get left behind.

Business and government spokesmen tend to discount reports of entire industries going out of business because of disappearing markets, particularly in the area of products designed for babies and children.

"There will be every bit as many infants, but they will be spread out over more households," said Herbert Zeltner, senior vice president of Kenyon & Eckhardt, Inc., a New Yorkbased advertising agency.

The government has been studying changing buying habits in connection with its revision of the Consumer Price Index. The final index isn't due out until 1977, but a spokesman for the Bureau of Labor Statistics said preliminary findings indicate "people are buying the same things they always did, but in different proportions. It's a gradual change."

Here is a look at what that gradual change might mean to some key industries:

HOUSING

Most of the experts agree that houses will get smaller for several reasons. Building and land costs have skyrocketed. More women entering the work force have neither the time nor the desire to take care of a large house. Smaller families need less space.

Zeltner said the living space of the future may be the cluster home, with a group of individually owned houses sharing common walls and some appliances in an extension of the current townhouse facility. "Why should each family have the expense of a complete kitchen and laundry unit?" Zeltner said, suggesting instead that homes of the future might have small kitchen appliances, washers and dryers and share large ovens and cleaning facilities.

Siff said there will be an increasing use of new materials and new techniques — some of them adapted from research being done in connection with the space program to determine the effects of living at very close quarters.

Siff and others said they believed that the size of the average single-family home has peaked and will start to decline, but the American Homebuilders Association wasn't so sure.

Association economist Bob Sheehan said he believed the demand for the three-bedroom and larger home would continue. "Additional space is not all that expensive," he said. He said the people born in the postwar baby boom are just reaching their 30s. "They're getting married. They're having children."

AUTOMOBILES

Economists inside and outside the auto industry agree that the small car is here to stay. They are less certain about the fate of the large car.

Siff predicted that in 20 years, very large cars "will be an anachronism, maybe even a collector's item."

Norm Crandall, market research director of Ford Motor Co., said he believed large cars were here to stay. But he said that the cars would become "more fuel efficient and what we call more passenger efficient" by providing more interior space while cutting overall dimensions, a trend already apparent in some 1975 models.

While the smaller household will mean "the

The Power To Destroy

The power to tax, said John Marshall in a famous line, involves the power to destroy. If the great jurist were sitting on the bench today, he might recast his sentence. It is the power to regulate that today involves the power to destroy.

This power — the power to regulate — very nearly destroyed the Bradley Import Company of Los Angeles. The story has eerie overtones of Huxley and Orwell. Such things, we suppose, can't happen in a free society. But they do happen.

In 1962, the Bradley company began importing ornamental, decorative dolls from Japan, and later, from Korea. As Judge Louis C. Bechtle would observe in United States District Court, these dolls plainly were never intended for use by children as toys. The dolls did not cry, wet, blink their eyes, or move their limbs. They were not meant to be dressed and undressed. They were sold in gift shops, not toy shops. They retailed at prices up to $75.

In 1973, Congress created the Consumer Product Safety Commission, and gave it sweeping authority to enforce its own rules and regulations over products it deemed to be hazardous. The commission forthwith created regulations governing "banned toys and other banned articles intended for use by children." Under these regulations, no pins could be used in "any doll, stuffed animal, or other similar toy."

On July 9, 1974, without preliminary hearing or warning, the CPSC swooped down upon the Bradley Import Company. This was its crime: Its dolls had pins to hold the elaborate costumes in place. Three U.S. marshals confiscated nearly 80,000 dolls. This was at the very peak of the Christmas order season.

Bernie Hartstein, president of the company, protested in vain that in the 12 years he had been importing and selling the dolls, he never had received a complaint of injury. As it turned out, neither had the government ever received a complaint of injury from a Bradley doll. But the dolls had pins in them!

The case came on for decision before Judge Bechtle in September, 1974. He found against the government on every point. None of Bradley's advertising material, the court observed, depicted children playing with the dolls. The sales catalogs were not pitched at toy departments. There was no evidence that the seized dolls had been destined for toy dealers. On the contrary, the evidence disclosed "that a typical gift store displays the article like those with glassware, figurines, and statuettes, rather than as toys."

The government's own witness acknowledged that Bradley-type imported dolls "were kept in a glass display case apart from other dolls, and apparently under conditions where an employee was expected to permit access to these articles." In brief, it was "perfectly plain" to the court that the dolls in

Other Editors Say We Cannot Agree

(Washington Daily News)

Recently on television a group of distinguished people discussed justice in this country.

The opinion was offered that the swiftness of justice rather than the severity of punishment is the greatest deterrent to crime. While swift justice does help a great deal, we cannot agree that swiftness is the greatest single factor in deterring crime today in America. As we look at the picture, we must say quite strongly that the surety of punishment rather than either the severity or the swiftness is the single greatest deterrent to crime.

When some crime is committed and a year passes before the defendants are brought to trial, we know that usually justice suffers and that punishment is more difficult to realize. But regardless of when a case is tried, be it swift or slow justice, if guilty parties are allowed to go free or if the officers of the law are tried ahead of the criminals, then there is neither justice nor deterrent there. And in our own hearts and minds we see what we believe is exactly this happening.

We would like to see swift justice. We do not subscribe to any school of thought which would put emphasis on severity of punishment. Severity in one case might be great, but leniency in another case might be wise and practical. But the surety of punishment when a crime is committed, with the punishment of course fitting the crime, is the best way we know to cut down on crime.

It is most disturbing to us today in our land to see leaders in the field of law who quite openly seem to defy our man made laws and who make a mockery of justice itself.

Distinguished judges and attorneys have great knowledge, but when it comes to the matters of justice and deterrent qualities, we believe laymen have opinions just as good.

It is quite surprising to us to hear a distinguished judge say that the swiftness of punishment is the strongest factor. It is strong and we do not minimize its impact for one moment. But somehow a judge who makes such a statement must be so close to the forest that he cannot see the trees.

Many factors become involved in the true search for justice. Honesty, truth, decency, compassion, punishment, and others are there all the time. So is swiftness. But above all of them in the matter of deterring crime is and remains the surety of punishment.

When those of a mind to commit a crime see for certain the punishment being handed out, that measure of surety stands far above swiftness.

The People Remain Cautious

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — When Washington empties for vacation time there often develops a lull in the news, as if events themselves were taking a vacation. But that's an illusion.

The truth is that the news is made by consumers or whatever you want to call the ordinary Americans who make the decisions on whether to buy or sell or be afraid or be optimistic. Washington reacts.

When the President and his advisors are away it probably ceases to react, but the events go on. Nature continues to play its tricks on us, frosting or droughting food prices higher.

It looks as if potatoes will join the list of higher food prices. The government lowered its estimate of the acreage to be harvested and right away the prices for future delivery soared.

In itself that doesn't mean a disaster in the household budget but, added to all those other rising prices, it does suggest that Americans might have to cut back even a bit more.

It isn't likely that many Americans are shocked by these prospects. Disappointed, yes, but all along they knew it was wise to discount those forecasts of steady recovery. How could the recession be over when they were out of work?

Common sense told them nature could intervene anywhere in the world and that they would have to pay, Agriculture Department forecasts of record crops notwithstanding.

It doesn't take a drought in mid-America to drive up the price of grains. The drought can be in the Soviet Union or in India and the impact on domestic prices is just the same. They rise. This is a world economy.

Interest rates are rising. They were supposed to be leveling off; even some of the big banks that recently raised their prime rates again were saying that just a few weeks ago. But in business, opinions never over-ride the facts.

Official figures show that people are getting their jobs back, but suspicion about those figures remain. Some private analysts say they wouldn't be surprised if the jobless rate rebounded in September.

One thing that can be said for the administration reports is that they seem more consistent, at least, than some private forecasts.

Right or wrong, Washington does seem consistent.

Any attempt to fathom what is being said in some of the private investment letters and reports from financial institutions is bound to lead to frustration. Forecasts change by the week. Sometimes two analysts give conflicting views in the same report. They hedge more and more.

In one well-known economic analysis by a university group a former Presidential adviser foresees a steady upturn while a few pages later a consumer forecaster worries about possibilities of a quick return to recession.

The real truth, meanwhile, resides with the quiet consumer, with the suspicious, cautious consumer you might add.

Strength For Today

THE LORD'S PRAYER

The Lord's Prayer has in it one petition which may well make us pause. "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors." We ask God to forgive us only if we in a generous spirit forgive others, and that of course is putting a mighty stricture on the movement of God's love toward our needy hearts.

But how could it be otherwise? If we will not forgive our fellows, how can we expect God to forgive us? The Lord's Prayer assures us that if we are to receive God's forgiving grace, we must hold up to Him a life in which that grace may fittingly dwell. This does not mean a sinless life, because there would be no need for forgiveness if our lives were sinless. But it does mean a life out of which has been expelled all bitterness and malice, all brooding over offenses, all hate of enemies, and into which there has come the deep desire to be rid of the infamy and shame and burden of sin.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly again today in the face of renewed concern over inflation. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.35 at 818.21. Declines outpaced advances by a 3-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was relatively quiet. Brokers said it appeared the market was feeling the effects of a wide range of price increases announced Wednesday on steel, cars, lead and certain plastic resins.

Some of the boosts merely matched increases posted earlier by competitors, and none came as a real surprise on Wall Street.

But it appeared they nevertheless served to emphasize the recent price uptrend in several basic commodities, materials and finished products.

Analysts pointed out that investors also were confronted with a persisting rise in interest rates.

National Semiconductor, the most active issue on the Big Board, was off ¼ at 36½.

Athlone Industries, which announced an offer to buy up to 400,000 shares of its own stock at $9.25 apiece, jumped 1½ to 8½ after a delayed opening.

General Motors slipped ¼ to 48¾ following the company's announcement late Wednesday of its price-increase plans for its 1976 models.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .26 to 45.62 in the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .28 at 85.78.

Viking Lift-Off Claims Hoffa 'Dead'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A second delay in America's twin Viking Project to Mars may kill hopes to land a spaceship on the red planet on the 200th anniversary of the nation's independence.

"There are many unknowns and we might miss the July 4 landing date, but it still could be within the realm of possibility," James Martin, Viking project manager, said Wednesday.

Martin said the scheduled Thursday launch of the sophisticated Viking 1 on a 505-million-mile, 303-day trip to Mars was postponed for about 10 days because of a malfunction that drained a battery in the craft's orbiter section. The launch of the identical Viking 2 was also pushed back.

Martin said an Aug. 24 launch — 10 days from Wednesday — would put Viking 1 at Mars on July 1, 1976, leaving scientists little time to study the landing site before a July 4 touchdown.

The original launch date would have put the spacecraft in a Mars orbit June 28. Scientists said they needed that much time to prepare for a spider-like lander to descend to the surface to explore for signs of life.

Viking 1 was first due to blast off Monday. But the launch was pushed back three days when a last-minute check showed a sticky control valve on its Titan Centaur rocket.

The valve was replaced Tuesday.

Damage City Statue
CHARLOTTE (AP) — A bronze-covered statue of a World War One doughboy which was hacked and painted by vandals in Charlotte has been refurbished by the city at a cost of $3,500. It will be moved to a protected area, the city hall, and will be re-dedicated Friday.

The invocation and benediction Friday will be delivered by the clergyman who delivered the principal address at Doughboy's first dedication on Nov. 12, 1928.

Kilpatrick...
(Continued from page 4) question were never "intended for use by children." That being so, the confiscation could not be justified. The seized dolls were returned to Bradley.

The U.S. Circuit Court, on the government's appeal, sustained Judge Bechtle's ruling.

Meanwhile, by his own estimate, Hartstein had lost $600,000 in sales. He had been put to heavy legal expenses. If he had not been able to float an $80,000 loan, he says he would have been forced into bankruptcy.

And there is a sequel: The vindictive government, chagrined at having lost its case in Los Angeles, still is pursuing Bradley under a similar confiscation proceeding launched in August, 1974, in Ohio. The case is pending before Judge Nicholas J. Walinski in Toledo.

The Bradley company is not the only victim of the power to regulate. Sen. James L. Buckley of New York has cited similar abuses in the case of Marlin Toy Products of Horicon, Wis., whose toy balls were banned by the CPSC. Though the company redesigned its product to meet the commission's objections, the commission inadvertently failed to remove the Marlin balls from its banned list. It was "an editorial error." The company barely survived.

Under an amendment added by Buckley to a pending CPSC bill, such victims as Bradley and Marlin could sue the government for damages resulting from palpable error or misjudgment. In the name of elementary fairness, this is the least that should be done.

Until the Buckley amendment is finally written into law, the commission retains its power to harass with impunity.

Funds Short For Academy
RALEIGH (AP) — The state's Democratic-operated Criminal Justice Academy might have to be closed because of a delay in funding by the Republican dominated Governor's Committee on Law and Order.

Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten said the action taken Wednesday could force a temporary closing of the Salemburg facility his department administers. And he warned that it might kill some programs.

The academy is set up to train law enforcement officers. Gov. Jim Holshouser chairs the committee. He seemed Wednesday to side with the funding opponents.

Edmisten promised to prevent the delay in appropriations from closing the academy or damaging its programs.

"Before that happens I'll hit the road and let the people know why, and would go before the Council of State to ask for emergency funding," the attorney general said.

(Continued from page 4) need for hauling bodies is reduced," rising incomes, due in part to more working wives and fewer family members to support, will increase the ability to pay, Crandall added.

FOOD
Rising food prices, the growing consumer movement and demands for natural ingredients already have put a dent in the convenience food industry.

Zeltner said he believes there will be even more changes. Until 1973, he said, there was a trend toward "hyper-convenience," the fancier and more expensive the better. The recession changed all that, he said, "and my guess is that long after the recession passes, the resistance will be built in. People won't spend huge amounts of money in return for a marginal increase in appeal."

He said smaller households will require smaller packages. "We need to develop a more flexible control of unitizing (enabling people to use enough of a product for one meal and save the rest) without overdoing package expense."

Thomas Released By Washington

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Washington Redskins have apparently had their fill of Duane Thomas.

"He's free to do whatever he wants to do," Tim Temerario, director of player personnel and assistant general manager of the Redskins, said Wednesday of the controversial running back. "He can make a deal with somebody else and they can just call us. They can sign him and then worry about compensation."

Coach George Allen had said two weeks ago that no one, including Thomas, would play if he missed all of the two-a-day practices, which ended last week. Thomas, who had played out his option and became a free agent on May 1, did just that, not reporting to camp.

Thomas, 28, reportedly was seeking a raise from $60,000 in 1974 to $168,000.

The No. 1 choice of the Dallas Cowboys in the National Football League's 1970 college draft, Thomas was the rushing star of Dallas' 1971 Super Bowl victory over Miami, gaining 95 yards.

Traded after a dispute with Coach Tom Landry, he sat out the 1972 season rather than report to New England or San Diego. The Redskins obtained Thomas in 1973 for two draft picks, but he played sparingly despite injuries to a number of other running backs.

The controversies which marred Thomas' stay at Dallas followed him to Washington. He was suspended by the Redskins for seven days after a training camp altercation, was fined for being late for practice and failing to attend a luncheon, raced into the stands after abusive fans in Buffalo and was placed on probation by the NFL after a marijuana conviction.

Elsewhere, the New England Patriots lost 11-year veteran offensive tackle Tom Neville for the year when he suffered a broken left leg during a routine practice drill.

John Didion, starting center for the New Orleans Saints the past four seasons, was traded to the Chicago Bears for an undisclosed draft choice. The Bears also picked up kicker Sergio Albert on waivers from the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Los Angeles Rams dealt reserve tight end Pat Curran, who is entering his seventh pro campaign, and rookie wide receiver Howard Strickland to the San Diego Chargers for a high 1977 draft choice.

The New York Giants released veteran reserve quarterback Jim Del Gaizo and returned defensive tackle Greg Marx to the Denver Broncos. Marx, obtained from Denver Tuesday for linebacker Henry Reed, failed his physical exam because of a shoulder injury.

The Kansas City Chiefs waived veteran offensive lineman Tom Drougas.

Eighteenth Win For Palmer; Loss For Tigs

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Jim Palmer got his 18th. So did the Tigers.

Palmer is Baltimore's ace right-hander, the winningest pitcher in the major leagues this season and perhaps on his way to the best year he's had in a long time.

He boosted his record to 18-7 Wednesday night with his fifth straight victory, a dazzling two-hit, 3-0 shutout of Kansas City that enabled the Orioles to resume their charge toward the top of the American League East.

Angels 8, Red Sox 3

Mike Miley's two-run single capped a six-run third inning that permitted the Angels to breeze past Boston and cut the Red Sox' lead over Baltimore to six games in the East.

Yankees 3, A's 1

Catfish Hunter beat his former Oakland teammates for the third time this year, this time with a three-hitter. Sandy Alomar's squeeze bunt gave the Yanks the winning run in the third inning.

Twins 5, Brewers 2

Solo homers by Steve Braun and Danny Thompson in the sixth inning and a two-run belt by Phil Roof in the eighth offset a pair of blasts by Milwaukee's Darrell Porter and carried the Twins to victory.

White Sox 4, Indians 3

Pete Varney drew a bases-loaded walk from Rick Waits to force in the 12th-inning run that enabled Chicago to top the Indians.

Grid Playoff May Be Close

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — "The climate is better than ever" for a national college football championship and a plan for one might be forthcoming in a few months, according to the head of a special committee formed to study such a tournament.

"We'll meet again in October and we hope to come up with a proper plan to present to the NCAA convention in January," Ernie Casale, chairman of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Division I Football Championship Feasibility Committee, said Wednesday.

Casale said the newly formed 17-member committee—which includes Coaches Darrell Royal of Texas and John McKay of Southern California—held its first meeting earlier this week in conjunction with the special NCAA cost-cutting convention which opens here today.

"We had quite an interesting discussion and I feel we're going to come up with some sort of recommendation this time one way or another," Casale said. "Either we'll determine there shouldn't be a Division I football championship or, if we determine that there should be one, we'll come up with a plan."

"We threw several plans around and, at least for the time being, the opinion is that we should do something. We did determine two things—if at all possible, we don't want to disturb the present bowl structure and there should be a tournament committee to select the participating teams."

Casale said there is "quite a bit of backing" for either a two-team or four-team playoff starting after the 1976 season since a plan could not be voted on by the NCAA's member institutions before the annual convention in St. Louis next Jan. 14-16.

Casale said most previous plans for a major college football championship would have started in December, finishing in January.

"A problem with that is the exam schedule at most schools in December," he said. "It's very important that we consider the academic calendar. We might possibly select four teams from the bowl games, with the semifinals one week after the bowls and the championship game a week later."

NCAA Begins Task Of Cutting Cost Corners

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association begins a special two-day cost-cutting convention today amid suggestions that much of the proposed legislation would benefit the major powers involved, and hurt the smaller schools, in effect, helping the rich get richer.

"The only proposals that would hurt the major powers are the ones that would share the wealth of bowl and television money, plus the one to eliminate all athletic scholarships," says Frank Broyles, athletic director and head football coach at the University of Arkansas.

Broyles referred to legislation that would guarantee income from postseason contests to all football-playing schools in all three NCAA divisions; distribute money from the NCAA television plan to all schools with football teams and distribute receipts from the NCAA Basketball Tournament to all Division I schools with basketball teams.

However, those proposals are given a slim chance of passage and the NCAA Council, the organization's policy-making body, voted Wednesday to oppose them "in the strongest terms."

The initial piece of legislation before the delegates, a proposal by the Pacific Coast Athletic Association to do away with all athletic scholarships, also is said to have virtually no chance of passing. If it does succeed, though, it would indeed combat the rising cost of intercollegiate athletics — the major purpose of this second special convention in NCAA history — and make other proposals moot.

Starting this afternoon and continuing Friday, more than 500 delegates will vote on issues which could restrict the size of coaching staffs, place drastic limitations on recruiting practices, eliminate in-person scouting of future opponents, cancel spring football practice in Divisions II and III and limit the number of athletes who can suit up for all sports.

Broyles reiterated the possibility that most major conferences might consider bolting the 69-year-old NCAA if the share-the-wealth proposals are adopted.

Broyles emphasized that Arkansas' athletic program is "in the black considerably" and said he felt his school "could compete with any rules they pass."

But, he added, "The course of college athletics will be determined here for years to come."

"There's no question but that drastic cuts will be made," predicted Darrell Royal, athletic director and head coach at the University of Texas and president of the American Football Coaches Association. "A lot of legislation will be eye-openers to a lot of people."

Royal especially favors cutbacks in recruiting.

"Recruiting is far too aggressive," he said. "Too much attention is heaped on a 17- or 18-year-old boy. In some cases, irreparable damage is done. I'd be in favor of recruiting restrictions even if we had unlimited funds."

Rangers 6, Tigers 5

With one out and two on in the 11th, Len Randle hit a grounder to Detroit shortstop Gene Michael. He stepped on second for a forceout — but when he tried for an inning-ending double play, his throw to first was wild and the Rangers' winning run scored.

The Tigers' 18th straight loss is just two short of the AL record, six below the modern-day major league mark and eight shy of the all-time record of 26, suffered in 1889 by Louis-

Curry Hearing Hears Bethea

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Berthelsen, assistant executive director of the National Football League Players Association, lowered his eyes to the table and let out a long sigh in exasperation.

"Your honor," he asked the judge, "how can Mr. Pace sit there and tell us what our own witness is going to say?"

Defense attorney Don H. Pace was cross examining Elvin Bethea of the Houston Oilers about the physical condition of Bill Curry, the former president of the NFLPA who was released on waivers before the 1974 season.

The NFLPA claims, in a National Labor Relations Board action, that Curry's release was not due primarily to a serious knee injury the year before, but because of his involvement in the players' strike that crippled the NFL's preseason activity.

The NFLPA has charged the 26 NFL teams with unfair labor practice.

"Yes, that's exactly what I'm trying to establish," Pace told NLRB Chief Judge Charles E. Schneider, "that Curry was not in proper physical condition when he reported to camp, which he will admit himself when he appears here."

The latter remark brought to a head the exasperation both parties had shown throughout the arduous, highly technical proceedings.

Berthelsen had accused Pace of threatening him earlier with a protracted proceeding and drew admonishment from the judge. And Berthelsen and associate counsel Abraham Borenstein had just unsuccessfully objected to Pace's line of questioning.

ruled that, while he agreed, the matter was relevant and could be put on record for argument.

Under direct examination by Berthelsen, Bethea testified that at the time of his injury, which came in the fourth game of the 1973 season, Curry was Coach Sid Gillman's No. 1 center. When asked to compare Curry with the team's other centers — a question that brought a flurry of objections from Pace — Bethea said: "Well, really there was none. He was much more experienced, a much better blocker. He was the starting center and would have been the rest of the season."

Pace objected that a comparison of talents was irrelevant because "it's not a question of a minimum level of skills. It's a question of whether a particular player can contribute to a winning team. Quarterback Fran Tarkenton, who was traded away from Minnesota and then back, is a good example."

However, Judge Schneider overruled the objection after Borenstein contended that: "If we can establish that Curry was sufficiently talented to make a contribution and that his release was union-related, then the NFL is guilty of a violation."

The hearing, in its third day today, is expected to continue well into the regular season.

Scharf To Aid Clinic

Pace had begun to ask Bethea, a defensive end, about a knee injury he had suffered himself, then about the type of rehabilitation he underwent.

Borenstein objected that the "injuries were not the same, they may not heal alike, and the rehabilitation programs need not necessarily be the same."

However Judge Schneider

East Carolina University head swimming coach Ray Scharf will be flying to Mexico City, Mex., Aug. 22 to give a series of clinics on swimming.

Scharf, who has led the Pirates to nine consecutive swimming championships in the Southern Conference, will be a guest of the Mexican Federation of Sports. The clinics will also be held in Tampico, Mex.

Independents Watching NCAA

ATLANTA (AP) — "I hope we don't get in a panic and set a bunch of foolish rules," says Coach Jim Carlen of South Carolina of the special National Collegiate Athletic Association meeting under way in Chicago to consider college football's financial problems.

"We better not cut our appeal down," Carlen said Wednesday. "We are fighting the pros for the entertainment dollar."

Proposals before the NCAA convention include sharing television and bowl revenue with all schools in the NCAA and limiting athletic scholarships and coaching staffs.

Carlen said he hopes college football doesn't "legislate itself into a corner."

"I just wish we could sit down and decide who is going to be major," he said.

Carlen was one of nine football coaches from Southern independent schools on hand for a news conference to discuss prospects for the upcoming season. Richmond, which leaves the Southern Conference in 1976 to become an independent, also sent a representative.

Carlen said some of the proposals before the convention made about as much sense as forcing a successful business to lower its operating standard to that of its weakest competitor.

Coach Pepper Rodgers of Georgia Tech expressed similar sentiments.

"Everybody cannot possibly play football at the same level," said Rodgers. "College football definitely needs a split among those who can and those who can't. I can do whatever they ask me to do and tell me to do, but that doesn't make it right."

Coach Dairrell Mudra of Florida State said he didn't agree with some of the cutback proposals but felt he and others could adjust to them if approved.

Coach Richard Williamson of Memphis State said he was against the proposed recruiting cuts, reduction of staffs and travel squads and the revenue sharing proposals.

Miller Trying To Heal Game

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Johnny Miller, trying to revive a golf game that has gone from very, very good to something less than mediocre, has made what he calls "a radical change."

It involves his grip. He's trying it out in the $200,000 Greater Hartford Open that got underway today on the 6,598-yard, par 71 Wethersfield Country Club course.

"I don't know whether it'll work or not," Miller said. "It's too soon to tell. We'll just have to see."

"What I'm doing is trying to find something that will work for Johnny Miller. I can generally get away with hitting the ball mediocre. But to win tournaments, you have to hit it good all the time."

"I just haven't been doing that."

The 1974 Player of the Year has tailed off badly after his record-setting exploits in the Arizona deserts at the start of the season. He swept those two tournaments, leading every round, shooting in the 60s in every round, twice scoring 61s. He won his fourth start of the year and ran his money-winnings to $107,318.

But nothing has gone right since then.

He's won only $76,567 in the months since. He hasn't won a tournament. The three times he's put himself in position — of the Masters, Philadelphia and the British Open — his bid fell short. He's slipped to fourth on the money-winning list.

Pirate Signees

East Carolina University head swimming coach Ray Scharf has announced the signing of six swimmers to grants-in-aid for the 1975-76 season.

The Pirate mentor, who once more guided ECU to the Southern Conference championship this past season, evidently decided not to let the team rest on its laurels. So he recruited some freshmen who would push veterans for positions in the winter months.

One of the more notable freshmen on the Pirate squad this year will be John Pero, a 200-freestyle state finalist from Statesville, N.C. He will be joined by David Moody, a backstroker from Kanata, Ontario, Canada. Two recruits come from Greensboro, where they have been under the tutelage of former ECU great Bob Sawyer: John Tudor, a 200-freestyle state finalist and Lund Sox, the state one-meter diving champion.

Joseph Kusby, a 200-freestyler from Plainview, N.Y., and an all-state performer there will also be in the Pirate fold, as will Colin Rooney, a diver from the N.Y. State Military Academy.

Scharf will be looking to shore up the Pirate diving and breastroke corps, which were weak last year.

Moore Appears Set For Express

Two former members of the famed East Carolina University "Wild Dog" defense are living up to that reputation in their attempt to make a pro football club.

Linebacker Danny Kepley, an All-America at East Carolina, and tackle Kenny Moore, are making very strong showings in their respective camps. Kepley is trying to make the Dallas Cowboys of the NFL after signing as a free agent, while Moore has already made the Jacksonville Express squad of the NFL.

Jacksonville public relations director, Stan Olejnik, said on Tuesday, "Kenny Moore is doing a fine job for Jacksonville. He has started all our games at either defensive tackle or end. Kenny has played very good ball during our last few games."

"Our coaches haven't said much about Kenny," continued Olejnik, "but that doesn't mean a great deal. Basically, our coaches talk about superior players or those not getting the job done. Those doing the job are not mentioned. And that's Kenny's case."

Moore was one of very few rookies to land a spot on the Express club. Among the most notable that the former Pirate beat out are Ronnie Robinson of North Carolina and Dan Spivey of Georgia.

Olejnik termed the status of Moore as "at this point, reasonable solid. Our coaches are amazed at how these young players like Kenny are really hitting. What they lack in know-how, skill and experience, they make up for in running around and knocking people down."

While Moore has made his club, Kepley is still hoping to earn a spot on the Dallas roster.

"It's hard to tell from day-today how you stand," said Kepley in a telephone conversation this week. "The only thing you are sure of, is that you'll get a wakeup call each morning; either to go to breakfast or to see coach Landry. If it's for Landry, then you know you have a ticket home. So far, I've had breakfast call each morning."

"If I continue to do well on the specialty teams I feel I have a good chance. I started on all the specialty teams in our game on Saturday and played all of the third quarter at outside linebacker. I made mistakes, but everybody did. I sure learned alot in that one quarter of play."

The Dallas camp has been cut to 60 players, but the roster is yet to be trimmed to 43. Cowboy public relations director, Curt Mosher, says there is more talent on the Cowboy team at linebacker than any other position. For that reason, it's very hard to tell whether Danny will or will not make it.

"Coach Landry said the other day that everybody in the Cowboy camp at linebacker could play in the NFL," noted Mosher. "That's pretty strong for a Landry statement. So it's obvious Danny can play. But then we've got five veterans in camp and three of our top draftees are a linebacker. Danny certainly lives up to his reputation of hitting hard, but the competition is tough at linebacker."

Could Danny play another position for the Cowboys?

"No," said Mosher. "Kepley could not play at any position but linebacker for the Cowboys."

For Kepley, breakfast call is a day-to-day thing. For Kenny Moore, eggs and bacon are on the table.

Patriots Seek Improvement

By DAVE O'HARA

AP Sports Writer

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots started the National Football League by winning their first five games and six of their first seven in Coach Chuck Fairbanks' second season last year.

Then they were hit by crippling injuries and won only one of their last seven outings. But their 7-7 record was the club's best in eight years and even Fairbanks was pleased by the improvement in what he called "one of the most demanding and difficult" seasons in New England's history.

Now the key word in Fairbanks' vocabulary is "improvement" in all phases of the game as he prepares the Patriots for the 1975 campaign.

"We learned that we could win last year," Fairbanks said. "Now I hope we can take the field expecting to win. By that I hope our team will be aggressive, taking the initiative and forcing things to happen."

Only a handful of pre-Fairbanks players are still with the Patriots as the former Oklahoma coach continues the personal challenge of rebuilding a doormat into a winner.

The Patriots did a dramatic turnabout in 1974 in both offense and defense. However, Fairbanks said: "We weren't good enough last season — and we won't stay the same."

Despite injuries to running back Sam Cunningham, tight end Bob Windsor, wide receiver Darryl Stingley and other offensive standouts, the Patriots piled up 348 points, just seven behind NFL leader Oakland. In 1973, New England scored just 258 points.

On defense, the Patriots jumped from last in the league to first. Fairbanks installed a 3-4 defense at the line, frustrating opponents' rush and permitting the Patriots to sack quarterbacks 38 times.

However, with three linemen and four linebackers, the Patriots were susceptible to the pass and rival quarterbacks took advantage of the secondary in the second half of the season.

Plunkett, the former All-American Heisman Trophy winner, came back from knee surgery last season, but nursed nagging injuries. He completed 173 of 352 passes for 2,457 yards and 19 touchdowns, but was intercepted 22 times.

Cunningham, an outstanding blocker and pass receiver when not carrying the ball, and little Mack Herron, the jack-of-all trades, are Plunkett's backfield partners.

Stingley, an outstanding receiver and runner, is fit again after suffering a broken arm last season. So is Windsor, who had his knee mangled in scoring the deciding touchdown in a victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

The Patriots also are expecting big things from their No. 1 draft choice, Russ Francis, a 6-6 tight end from Oregon. Francis interrupted a pro wrestling career to play with New England. Steve Corbett, a blocking guard who missed his entire rookie season, also is expected to help up front.

Two rookies are counted upon for plenty of duty up front on defense. Linebacker Rod Shoate was a No. 2 draft pick out of Oklahoma, while Ohio State's Pete Cusick was drafted in the third round.

Ozark's Head Called For

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies are in a tailspin and the natives are getting restless.

The Phils, given their chance to take over the National League East lead from the stumbling Pittsburgh Pirates, have declined the offer. Pittsburgh has lost seven of its last eight. The Phils have dropped five of their last seven.

And now they're calling for Manager Danny Ozark's head in the City of Brotherly Love.

"How good are the 1975 Phillies? How far can they go?," asks the Philadelphia Inquirer. "We may never know if Ozark is allowed to spend the last month and a half of the season on the bench."

The Philadelphia Bulletin

counters that Ozark isn't doing a totally miserable job ... he just lacks charisma.

The Phils dropped a 5-4 decision to Los Angeles Wednesday night and Ozark was asked about his critics.

"It doesn't affect me," said the 51-year-old skipper. "That's the perils of the job. I don't think it will affect my team. It shouldn't."

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta edged Pittsburgh 4-3, St. Louis beat Houston 4-3 in 11 innings, San Francisco edged Montreal 4-3 in 12 innings and San Diego defeated New York 8-5.

The Phils had to wait 2 hours, 20 minutes for the rain to stop before losing their fourth straight. The long delay came in the bottom of the second and the Dodgers jumped on Steve Carlton, 11-9, for four runs in the top of the third, three of them on a home run by Steve Garvey.

Braves 4, Pirates 3

Mile Lu knocked in the winning run for Atlanta with a bad-hop single in the seventh off Dave Giusti. Dusty Baker and Ralph Garr also had RBI-singles for the Braves and Tom House, 5-5, got the victory with three innings of scoreless relief.

Cardinals 4, Astros 3

Luis Melendez beat out an infield hit with the bases loaded in the 11th inning to knock in the winning run for St. Louis. Ken Reitz had a two-run single for the third-place Cardinals who closed to within 4½ games of first in the NL East. Doug Rader sent it into overtime with a two-run homer for Houston.

Giants 4, Expos 3

Willie Montanez doubled home the winning run in the 12th for San Francisco. The Giants broke a 0-0 tie in the 11th with three runs, two on a homer by Gary Matthews, before Montreal tied it in its half of the inning with the help of Pete Mackanin's two-run triple. Montreal starter Dan Warthen held the Giants to just one hit through the first 10 innings.

Padres 8, Mets 5

Bobby Tolan's three-run homer in the eighth off reliever Rick Baldwin capped a five-run inning to sink the Mets and snap San Diego's five-game losing streak. Mike Ivie also homered for the Padres and Dave Winfield had a pair of run-scoring singles. Jerry Grote and Rusty Staub drove in two runs apiece for New York.

Coach Denies He Is Guilty

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) —

Basketball Coach Lucius Mitchell maintains he's innocent of offenses for which the NCAA has placed Kentucky State University, a small college basketball standout, on indefinite probation.

The school may issue no basketball scholarships and none of its athletic teams may take part in any NCAA post-season competition during the probationary period.

The NCAA did not name players Wednesday, but its investigation has apparently centered around charges that Mitchell accepted money from two former Kentucky State University basketball players, Elmore Smith and Travis Grant, after they signed professional contracts, a violation of NCAA rules.

Smith, a 7-foot center, reportedly received a $1.5 million package deal from the Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association in 1971 and Grant, a forward, a $150,000 contract from the Los Angeles Lakers of the NBA in 1972.

He repeated Wednesday night that he never acted as an agent. "I said I wasn't and I never was," he said.

The NCAA said the one-year suspension was "inappropriate and insufficient in light of his involvement in this case."

KSU track Coach Ken Gibson, whose team will also be affected by the probation order, said KSU should have meted out stronger punishment for Mitchell. "The whole thing has been handled in an asinine way," he said Wednesday night.

The NCAA council heard an appeal Tuesday in Chicago from Mitchell; KSU president Dr. Carl Hill; the chairman of the board of regents, Dr. Joseph Leone, and athletic director William Exum.

The NCAA announced Wednesday the appeal had been denied and that KSU was on indefinite probation.

Coastal Disaster Lurks In Storm-Surge Danger

By MARTIN MERZER
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Disaster is lurking on the nation's ever-developing Atlantic and Gulf coasts, where 60 per cent of the residents have never experienced the full ferocity and devastation of a major hurricane, an expert says.

"Every year we escape without a storm is a year closer to the next one," said Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center.

"And in the past two years, we've come to realize that with more and more people living along the coasts, we'd better get out and do some missionary work."

Frank, who returned recently from an eight-week, 15-city speaking tour, said 33½ million people lived in Atlantic and Gulf coast counties in 1970, the last year surveyed. That's an increase of 20.7 million from when the last major hurricane directly hit each of those counties. That increase makes complete evacuation hopeless, Frank says, citing the following statistics:

—About 600,000 people were living in Suffolk County on New York's Long Island in 1960, the last time a hurricane of moderate intensity directly hit the area. Today, the population there has more than doubled. There are more than 5½ million people throughout Long Island with no experience in surviving strong hurricanes.

—Less than 10 per cent of all Texans lived on the Gulf Coast in 1900. Today, one-fourth of the Texas population lives in coastal areas.

—In one of the most vulnerable sections of the U.S., the southeast Florida coast, more than 80 per cent of the population — 2½ million people — has no experience with direct hits of major hurricanes. Frank said he also fears that people who have had brushes with hurricanes have been lulled into a false sense of security and will not heed forecasters' warnings.

"There's a big difference in the devastation that takes place in the core of a hurricane and that which takes place on the fringes," he said. "Bit storms are relatively rare events and getting in the core of a big storm is even rarer."

While an average hurricane is 300-500 miles wide, the core's width is less than 50 miles. But that's what causes the most damage, Frank said.

The storm surge, a tidal wave-like dome of water found in the core and as high as 25 feet, sweeps to shore just before the eye of a severe hurricane arrives.

Using Florida as an example, he said that if the surge hits on Miami Beach or Key Biscayne, either island could be covered by 2 or 3 feet of water. If South Miami — the site of many new single-home developments — was hit, the water could reach the tops of the homes. Wave action and heavy winds also must be considered.

"We try to give 12 hours lead time for evacuation," Frank said. "In 12 hours, my average forecast error is 40-50 miles. So I've got to post my warnings for an area 50 miles to the left and 50 miles to the right."

"That means roughly two-thirds of the people who have been told to get out, have gotten out unnecessarily. And they come back and say 'Hey, this wasn't as bad as you said it was going to be.'"

Frank said that time is running out for all coastal residents, especially those in Florida.

"My appeal has been that you can't do much about your other pressing problems as an individual. But hurricane preparedness is an entirely different thing — it doesn't take very long."

Learned Execs Usually Tied Up

By JAY SHARBUTT
A Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For five years, Sue Cameron has been a TV critic and chronicler of broadcast industry news for the Hollywood Reporter, a trade magazine. As such, she often phones network executives.

Like others in her dodge, she knows the usual secretarial reply is, "They're tied up in a meeting now." But now she believes it.

"It's the truth," she says. "They really are always in a meeting."

Miss Cameron knows whereof she speaks. Because this week she gave up TV criticizing and chronicling to become ABC's new director of daytime program development, Los Angeles division.

The 30-year-old Los Angeles native, a USC journalism graduate with no prior experience as a broadcast executive, says the new job sort of stemmed from her daily news column about the broadcast industry.

"When I started it, I had the option of doing stupid gossip stuff," she laughed. "Or I could really write a business column where I could talk to the producers and network executives and really find out how the business was run."

She opted for the latter and found it not only a lively source of news, but also the best possible way to learn about TV, from producing to programming, from script changes to film editing.

In her work, she said, she became a friend and admirer of Fred Silverman, regarded as one of the smartest men in the business, when he was running CBS' programs division two years ago.

"Sometimes I'd fly to New York just to have lunch with him because I respected his mind so much," she said. "And he'd sit and talk about programming for hours."

She said he'd explain to her why one show might work, why women might prefer one show and men another, why a bad lead-in could hurt a show and the arts of scheduling and promoting shows.

Her conclusions: "It's like the biggest crossword puzzle or Monopoly game in the world."

She said about a year ago, Silverman offered her a job with CBS, but she turned it down, preferring to stay in Los Anges.

Shortly after he joined ABC as its programs chief this spring, she said, she was invited by Brandon Stoddard, ABC's daytime programs development chief, to sign on as his top Los Angeles assistant.

She said it was Stoddard's idea to offer her the job. She leaped at the chance, she said, partly because she loves the field of daytime programming. There was another factor, she added.

"All these years I've been making suggestions in the column like, 'If you put this show here, I think you'll get a better share (of audience) than if you put it there,'" she said.

"And for me to actually have someone say, 'Come on in and do it for real, play with the big guys,' I couldn't resist it."

Has she laid in an ample supply of executive anti-ulcer potions?

"It's funny," she mused. "Things did hit my stomach the first day. It's the most incredible pressure I've ever seen — meetings every hour on the hour, 400,000 game show ideas..."

Vernon Lee Conyers, Jr. a recent graduate of the East Carolina University School of Business, has been announced as among 100 top-winning students in an intercollegiate stock market judgment competition. Sponsored by Arnold Bernhard and Co., Inc. New York investment advisory firm, the Value Line Intercollegiate Contest required that the 21,000 entering students from 430 colleges and universities select one stock from each of 25 Beta groups in order to construct a 25-stock portfolio.

Conyers entered the competition along with other students enrolled in ECU's fall, 1974, investments course, taught by Dr. Tilton Willcox of the ECU School of Business faculty. The 25-stock portfolio he selected advanced 60.568 percent in value between November and May.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

INFORMALITY is the keynote of this plan designed by Herman York, as evidenced by the large family kitchen. Here the dining, cooking and lounging before the warmth of an open hearth all can be accomplished in one large room. The laundry area also is a room, large enough for laundry tub in addition to washer and dryer, with lavatory handy nearby. There are two full baths in the bedroom wing; economy in plumbing installation is achieved through a back-to-back arrangement for both bathrooms and kitchen, all pipes being grouped together. Habitable area for Plan HA884Y is 1,186 square feet with additional 96 for the laundry area and 530 for the garage and storage. The architect will answer queries about the cost of the blueprint, sent with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to 90-04 161st St., Jamaica, N.Y. 11432.

Has Twice Seen Patty Hearst

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Walter Scott, brother of sports activist Jack Scott, says he has twice seen missing newspaper heiress Patty Hearst and his brother has offered to deliver her to authorities.

Scott says he saw Miss Hearst twice last summer, once at his parents' apartment in Las Vegas and again at an unspecified place in New York City. In Las Vegas, Miss Hearst was disguised as a pregnant woman, he said.

He also indicated he may know where she is. "I think she is in the United States, as long as you remember there are 50 of them, not 48," Walter Scott told reporters Wednesday.

Scott also claimed that he and his brother had met recently with Miss Hearst's father, San Francisco Examiner president Randolph Hearst, and the meeting ended in a fist fight between Hearst and Jack.

Neither Hearst nor Jack Scott was available for comment. The FBI declined comment.

The interview, Walter Scott's first since his name was linked to the search for Miss Hearst, was arranged by the FBI and held in a downtown Philadelphia hotel. Four Philadelphia reporters and an FBI agent were present. Scott is being held in protective custody by the FBI at his request because he says he fears for his life.

Jack Scott rented a South Canaan, Pa., farmhouse last year where Miss Hearst reportedly stayed for a time. A Harrisburg, Pa., grand jury is investigating the incident and Jack Scott has vowed not to cooperate with investigators.

Walter Scott, said by his brother Jack to have a history of alcohol problems, said Jack offered to deliver Miss Hearst to the government in return for immunity from prosecution and $100,000 to $200,000. But Walter Scott claimed negotiations on the matter have broken off.

Scott said one reason his brother wanted to turn in Miss Hearst was because Jack, who he termed an avowed communist, now considered her to be a liability to radical causes. He said his brother and other left-wing sympathizers did not like Miss Hearst because they thought she was not a dedicated revolutionary.

Miss Hearst was kidnaped in February 1974 by the Symbionese Liberation Army. She later renounced her family, said she had joined her captors, and is now being sought on federal charges of bank robbery, kidnaping and various weapons offenses.

Scott indicated that one of the times he had seen Miss Hearst was on a stopover while she was en route with his parents and his brother across the country, from West to East. He did not say where they had been or where they were going.

He said he believed Miss Hearst was now "in a position where she is being able to benefit comfortably financially ... I don't think that her economic condition is such that she has to live in a ghetto in Detroit." Asked if he thought Miss Hearst's father financially supports her, he said, "I don't know, but I wouldn't be surprised one way or the other."

Collectors Plan Event

The Greenville Collectors Club met Tuesday evening at the home of Ronnie Moye and set plans for its Fourth Annual Antique Show and Flea Market to be held in September.

Members of the club reported on a recent trip to Washington where they viewed an old steam locomotive, and visited the riverside park and a marina. They later traveled to Bath before returning to Greenville.

David Pruett presented a program on trains both real and scale model, presenting models from his private collection. He showed the members several models from his own collection, including a model of the engine in which Casey Jones died, and a hand-built model of the locomotive which made a stop in Greenville during the city's Bicentennial Celebration last year. The same locomotive is making a trip from Raleigh to New Bern Sunday.

The club will meet again on Tuesday, Sept. 9 at the home of Martha and Mickey Elmore.

Nigeria's New Riches Bring Complications, Endless Frustrations

By BRIAN JEFFRIES

Associated Press Correspondent LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) —

"This nation is being strangled by its own prosperity. It's like a newly wealthy man switching from a meager diet to a rich one. His arteries start clogging up and he is in danger of suffering heart failure."

The African diplomat was bewailing the endless frustrations and complications of life in the capital city of Black Africa's richest and most populous nation.

As he talked, a stream of cars inched its way along the road outside. In the sea lanes leading to Lagos, Nigeria's most important port, more than 280 ships, laden with commodities essential for Nigeria's existence and growth, queued for berths.

In the crowded, vibrant streets of the city, a new breed of Nigerian entrepreneur who has managed to cash in on the nation's massive oil wealth rubs shoulders with peanut vendors and impoverished inhabitants of shanty towns who are finding it daily more difficult to make ends meet as the cost of living soars.

There are constant shortages of milk, gasoline, beer and other items of daily life here despite the fact that last year Nigeria earned $8.8 billion dollars from oil.

Lagos is not entirely representative of life in the rest of the country. But it is here that the dreams, aspirations and fears of the nation crystallize.

And over the past few months many residents of the capital have been predicting that something had to give.

Late last month their forecasts came true. As he attended the organization of African Unity summit in Uganda, Gen. Yakubu Gowon was ousted as Nigerian head of state. After nine years of uninterrupted power he was toppled by a handful of dissatisfied brigadiers and colonels who no longer felt he had the authority or capacity to rule.

The new military rulers, headed by 38-year-old Brig. Murtala Muhammed, charged that he had become isolated from the people and was allowing the direction of state affairs to drift to such an extent that the nation's 65-70 million people were again threatened by "bloodshed and chaos."

Nigeria is a conglomeration of some 250 often quarrelsome tribal groupings, divided by religion and culture.

The arid, windswept north is predominantly Moslem, but Christians predominate in the tropical south. Other Nigerians follow their traditional religious customs.

It was Gowon's repeatedly stated desire to weld them irrevocably into one nation. Even his critics agree that he laid the foundations.

Part of the key to his success was Nigerian oil. Fueled by international increases in oil prices, Nigerian coffers were flooded by foreign exchange. But this year falling demand for oil worldwide is expected to cut Nigerian revenues by some $2 billion.

It was the spurt in oil revenues that earlier this year allowed Gowon to award massive pay hikes to civil servants and also launch an ambitious $48 billion, five-year development program. It was designed to create an industrial revolution, boost stagnant agriculture toward self-sufficiency and open up equal opportunities for all Nigerians.

But the pay increases, ranging from 30 to 130 per cent, sparked a series of strikes for similar awards in the private sector, which were met under government pressure.

Yet at least 90 per cent of the nation, reliant on a hand-to-mouth existence from the land, derived little benefit.

As the minority went on a spending spree, inflation soared from 13 to more than 30 per cent.

In addition, as newspapers here have been pointing out in the past week, disillusionment with Gowon's government was further accentuated by a string of broken promises.

These included undertakings to return Nigeria to civilian rule next year, to replace or reshuffle Nigeria's governors then under fire for corruption, and to create new states to make the existing 12 more representative of local aspirations.

Most Nigerians welcomed Gowon's removal. They are biding their time, however, before embracing the new rulers.

One Nigerian summed up the situation: "We are in the position of a man sitting back with his arms folded. We are awaiting events. We very much want the best for our country. We hope the new military rulers will not let us down. We hope they will overcome the crisis of rising expectations and unfulfilled desires."

Reject Sharing Fishing Rights

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina fishermen have rejected a proposal to share their fishing waters with Virginians for a reciprocal allowance.

The North Carolina Marine Fisheries Commission Wednesday turned down a proposal under which North Carolina commercial fishermen could use the Virginia coast in June, July and August in return for Virginia fishermen being allowed to use the North Carolina coast in November, December and January.

Commission members opposing the proposal said it did not offer North Carolina as much as Virginia. But they did not rule out future agreements with other conditions.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pursuant to the General Statutes of North Carolina, Section 142.129, sealed proposals will be received by the City Council of the City of Greenville until 10:00 a.m., Friday, August 22, 1975, in the City Manager's Office of the Municipal Building on the purchase of a sanitary landfill compactor. Specifications and bid proposal forms are on file in the City Manager's Office. No proposal will be considered unless accompanied by a bid deposit of not less than five percent of the proposal. Bid deposits may be in the form of cash, cashier's check, certified check or bid bond. The City Council of the City of Greenville reserves the right to reject any and all proposals. Harry E. The Bride Will Wear Uniform

PETOSKEY, Mich. (AP) — Donna Mellendorf is trading a walk down the aisle for a stroll to center field this Saturday, but she's still going to marry Dave Tacie.

Miss Mellendorf, who is the roving outfielder for the Port Huron L-and-M Rascals softball team, had long ago scheduled her wedding for this Saturday in Port Huron. But the Rascals made it to the state finals of the Class C Womens' Slo-pitch Softball Tournament in Petoskey this weekend.

Day Care used to be a disappointing word. But now there's Mini-Skool. And Day Care means everything it should.

Introducing Mini-Skool for your pre-skooler.

How many times have you thought about day care for your pre-schooler, only to be disappointed by what was offered? Well, let's get one thing straight from the start. Mini-Skool is unlike any other day care center your child will experience. Why? Because we offer a standard of child care no one else does.

Strong words, you say? Not to Mini-Skool. Start with our facilities. They're modern and fully equipped to include a complete range of children's equipment for play and learning. Add to this a staff of child care experts, all qualified to look after and not just baby-sit your children. And by look-after, we mean provide each Mini-Skooler with the personal attention and care he or she may need.

Now let's talk about your children. What will they be doing? Sitting around idly waiting to go home? Not at Mini-Skool they won't. Because beside having all those toys and games to play with, Mini-Skool offers your children the most imaginative and stimulating pre-school programming available. Here's an example. Our September Me, Myself and I program lets your children gain a positive self-image of themselves through an exploration of moods and feelings. And our Forest Comes to Us program makes it fun to learn about forest animals, Smokey the Bear and the magic of the enchanted forest.

But that's just the beginning, because our kind of day care is comprehensive. And that includes delicious, healthy, nutritious meals for your children. And no, it's not the same thing every day.

WE LOVE MINI-SKOOL

WE can prove it. Visit us during our Open House.

But listen, don't take our word for it. Come and see what Mini-Skool is all about for yourself. And please, bring your pre-schoolers. Because the look on their faces will be your final proof. We'll be holding Open House this Wednesday and Thursday, August 20 and 21, until nine p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, August 23 and 24, one 'til five p.m.

A little something for your pre-skooler.

If you decide that Mini-Skool is for your children and would like to register for this fall, we have a little something for our new Mini-Skooler. It's a genuine blue denim Mini-Skool tote bag, T-shirt, growth chart and pennant. Your little Mini-Skooler will be so excited.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 15, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: If you are planning a trip or journey, this is a good time to think out where you would like to go and start getting information and details. Look ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) One whose background is different from yours has the key to your advancement, so listen carefully to what is suggested.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Start early at getting all those responsibilities behind you wisely. Be less stubborn, and establish greater rapport in love.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Improve relationships with associates. One who has opposed you in the past can now be made to see things your way. Happy p.m.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Perform duties and postpone recreation to a more favorable time. Take health treatments you need. Read in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make plans for recreation over the weekend and contact congenials you want to be with. Wind up pending work for free time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make home surroundings more charming. New venture needs further study. Do some primping before going out socially in p.m.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Decide early what you want to do this weekend and make proper preparations. Handle transportation problems wisely. Clear desk.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to have more by wise investments and economizing. Listen to what a clever adviser has to suggest. Avoid troublemaker.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your appearance for improvements, and increase attractiveness. Social affairs can then work out nicely for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle career and outside activities to increase income. Find the right gadgets to make your work easier, more profitable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good day to contact as many good pals as you can to increase goodwill as well as for recreation. Repay social debts. Be active.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get into the details of present work load and add to efficiency. Be a good citizen. Be careful of strangers, though.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she thinks along universal lines and can have ideas far beyond those of the average, so be sure to give the finest education you can. Stress the importance of learning about varying philosophies of life, scientific matters that will equip your progeny for great success. A fine musical trait here, also, and sports are a natural. Religion is the forte, mainly, though.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

More Ailments If Diet Poor

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — People with poor diets have more colds, flu-type viruses and other ailments, according to state health officials.

Poor nutrition often results in lower immunity to common diseases and can lead to or contribute to a number of life-threatening diseases and conditions such as hypertension, heart disease, diabetes, and cystic fibrosis, experts said.

Health department spokesmen say there also is some evidence malnutrition is a factor in alcoholism.

 Opening lead: Eight of ♥.

At times, there are different ways to defend a hand. However, varying defenses do not necessarily lead to different results, as illustrated by this hand from a recent game.

At both tables, South became declarer at four spades after North opened the bidding with one no trump. While we are not averse to opening one no trump when holding a five-card major suit, we are not enamored with choosing this bid on a hand so rich in prime controls as North's. We endorse North's raise of his partner's non-forcing two-spade bid, as we do South's decision to go on to game.

At both tables West led his singleton heart. Declarer ducked, and the first East won the jack and returned the suit for his partner to ruff. West shifted to a diamond and won in dummy. Trumps were drawn in one round, followed by the ace of hearts and a diamond ruff in the closed hand. After ruffing a heart in dummy, which eliminated the red suits from both his hand and dummy's, declarer led a low club to the jack and queen.

West was employed. A diamond would give declarer a ruff and sluff, so he exited with a club. Declarer guessed correctly by putting up the ten from dummy, and he was home.

There was some discussion that a club shift by East at trick two would defeat the contract. This analysis was faulty, as proven by the events at the other table, where East did shift to a club at the second trick. Declarer ducked and West won. The diamond return was won in dummy, and after drawing trumps, declarer cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed dummy's remaining diamond.

This time, there was a different endplay. Declarer continued with ace and another club. West won, but was left with nothing but minor suit cards. Whichever suit he returned, declarer would ruff in his hand while discarding dummy's losing heart and so make the contract, losing only one heart trick and two clubs.

YOU'D BETTER BELIEVE IT—Granny, pet of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Burres of St. Augustine, Fla., is just as vicious as the sign indicates, especially since she hatched a pair of biddies recently. Burres put up the warning sign after Granny attacked his granddaughter. (AP Wirephoto)

Another Round Of Higher Living Costs Shaping Up

Overton Is Named New Regional Coordinator

Dabney Overton Jr., program director for the Alcohol Unit at Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro, has been appointed Eastern Regional Alcoholism Program Coordinator, succeeding Wade H. Williams, Jr. He will be working out of the Regional Office in Greenville.

Williams has accepted the position of executive director of Westinghouse Health Systems, Cleveland, Ohio.

Overton, a native of Warsaw, Va., has a wide range of experience in North Carolina's alcoholism programs. For two years he was alcoholism court counselor with the Alamance-Caswell Mental Health Center, Burlington. He came to Eastern North Carolina in October, 1973, as the Eastern Regional Special Programs Developer. He assumed his position at Cherry Hospital in August, 1974.

DABNEY OVERTON, JR.
In announcing Overton's appointment, Eastern Regional Mental Health Director, Dr.

Robert R. Ratcliffe, said "We are extremely pleased to have such a well-qualified person as Dabney join our Regional staff. He is familiar with the 13 mental health centers, our regional facilities, the alcoholism programs and people we serve in Eastern North Carolina."

Overton, an attorney, received his Bachelor of Laws Degree from the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, in June, 1960.

From 1960-70 he was a trial lawyer in Virginia, and in 1967 he was elected attorney for the Commonwealth, Richmond County, Va.

He is married to the former Becki Godshall of Columbia, S.C.

Prices of cars, the steel that goes into them, as well as plastics, family flour and refined lead are headed up again as the current round of higher costs appears to be picking up steam.

General Motors Corp., stating that the company's cost per car had risen $375 since last fall, said Wednesday it is boosting prices on its 1976 models.

GM said that with optional equipment, the average retail price of 1976 models would go up $248, or 4.7 per cent, to $4,970. The base price for the average GM model will go up $206, or 4.4 per cent.

The other major U.S. car makers are expected to follow No. 1 GM's lead closely. American Motors Corp. has released tentative 1976 price schedules calling for average $200, or 6 per cent, increases, and Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. have hinted previously that their prices will rise from $200 to $330 on 1976 models.

Expectations of higher prices this fall failed to spur car buying in early August as the U.S. car industry reported sales in the Aug. 1-10 period plunged 29 per cent from a year ago to a 14-year low.

Apparently influencing the auto industry's price moves was the further spread of higher steel prices. On Wednesday, Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's No. 2 steel maker, announced price changes on its steel products — both upward and downward — that average out to an increase of just under 4 per cent, matching similar price changes posted Friday by top-ranked U.S. Steel Corp.

National Steel Corp., the industry's No. 3 in size, said it was boosting prices on flat-rolled and coated steel products in line with other companies, effective Sept. 1.

could eventually mean higher food bills by raising the cost of the plastic packaging many grocery products are wrapped in, DuPont Co. and Union Carbide Corp. said Wednesday that effective Sept. 1 prices on a broad range of polyethylene plastic products will rise by 2 cents a pound.

The price rise by the No. 1 and No. 2 chemical firms was kicked off on Tuesday by the smaller U.S. Industrial Chemicals Co., a unit of National Distillers and Chemical Corp.

Suggests Betty Created 'Issue'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—U.S. Sen. Helms, R-N.C. said Wednesday he does not think President Gerald Ford has heard the last of First Lady Betty Ford's nationally broadcast remarks about premarital sex, abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment and marijuana.

"I don't know if this hasn't hurt him more than anything. They're supposed to set the highest standards for this country and here she is talking about trial marriages and marijuana," Helms said.

In an interview at his Raleigh office, Helms called Mrs. Ford's views "appalling" and "unwise."

interview last Sunday, the First Lady said she would not be surprised or unduly upset if her 18-year-old unmarried daughter, Susan had an affair. She also said she probably would have experimented with marijuana had it been popular when she was young.

"If what she was saying becomes the norm in America, then we're in bad shape," Helms said.

Helms seemed ill at ease when talking about Mrs. Ford and expressed disdain for publicly criticizing a woman.

He was asked if he planned to tell Mrs. Ford of his disapproval. Helms replied, "Now, I'm not going to jump on the First Lady, but I feel very sorry for the President, very sorry for the country."

Invitation By Mao 'Declined'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon has declined an invitation from Chairman Mao Tse-tung to pay a second visit to China, columnist Jack Anderson has reported.

Anderson said Nixon told friends about the invitation and said he had to decline it because he wants to finish his memoirs before doing any traveling from his San Clemente, Calif., home.

Nixon was not available for comment.

Author Says He Is Locked Out

LEE, Mass. (AP) — William L. Shirer, author of the "Rise and Fall of The Third Reich," has filed a court complaint saying he has been locked out of his house by his wife.

Shirer, 70, filed the complaint against his wife, Martha, 60, on Tuesday. He said he has been unable to get his clothes, checkbooks, and manuscripts since his wife had the locks changed on the house.

After the filing of the complaint, Judge John Dwyer issued a warrant charging Mrs. Shirer with simple larceny by conversion.

The Shirers were married three years ago and Mrs. Shirer now has a petition for separate support pending in probate court.

Hopes Court Load Is Cut

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Mecklenburg County's District Attorney hopes that a new full-time arraignment court scheduled to open Sept. 2 may cut the number of criminal cases reaching Superior Court and therefore break up a backlog of nearly 1,100 cases.

District Attorney Peter Gilchrist III said the change, made possible through a new state law, will allow defendants to enter pleas when they are arraigned. If they plead guilty, they can be sentenced then instead of being scheduled for court. He said that 40 per cent of the defendants who appeared in Superior Court in 1974 pleaded guilty.

The new arraignment court will also hear motions, set trial dates and appoint a lawyer, if necessary.

One reason usually given for court backlogs is that some defendants appear in court several times for procedural matters before the case is actually heard.

"I'm hoping that we will dispose of those cases which are guilty pleas immediately," he said. "That will give us more time to work on those cases which are for trial."

"What we're striving for is to get a case put on the calendar once and get it disposed of," Gilchrist said.

WOMAN'S DAY
The annual Woman's Day program will be held Sunday, at 11:00 a.m. at St. John's Baptist Church in Stokes. The guest speaker will be Mrs. Mary L. Green of Kinston. The public is invited to attend.

Associate Pastor Returned To City

The Rev. Fred Carraway, new associate pastor at Grace Free Will Baptist Church, has returned to Greenville after a seven-year absence.

From 1964 to 1968 Carraway was a student at East Carolina University. During his senior year he accepted Christ and became an active member at Grace Church. After graduation, he taught school one year in Cartaret County before accepting a position with Lane Truck Lease. In this regional company, Carraway rose to vice-president in three years.

Having accepted a divine call to preach, in 1973 Carraway acted as associate pastor at Grace FWB Church in Rocky Mount. While there, Sunday School attendance rose from 275 to over 400 in a few months.

student, he served as associate pastor at Woodbine, Tennessee's largest Free Will Baptist church.

Rev. Carraway has been actively involved in bus ministries, having directed two of the largest ones in the FWB denomination. He has taken part in all phases of church work including youth work, visitation, and teaching. A former art education major, he incorporates lettering and drawing in his teaching and promotional work.

Carraway, 29, is a native of Edgecombe County. He is married to the former Joan Mitchell of Hatterson, Ga. They have two children—Mike, six, and Sherri, three.

REV. FRED CARRAWAY

Came To Aid Of Stepbrother

MEMPHIS (AP) — Police say entertainer Elvis Presley came to the assistance of his stepbrother, paying an early-morning visit to police headquarters.

Officers said Presley showed up about 5 a.m. Wednesday and sought release of Richard Stanley, 21, who had been charged with attempting to obtain a drug through fraud or forgery.

Stanley and Richard Gordon, 23, were released on their own recognizance later in the day.

The two had been arrested Tuesday night at a hospital pharmacy where officers said they attempted to get a prescription for the drug Demoral filled.

Stanley is the stepson of Vernon Presley, Elvis' father.
