Predicts Congress Will Uphold Ford's Planned Veto On Oil Controls

VAIL, Colo. (UPI)— Ford and Kissinger met for an hour Saturday and scheduled another meeting Monday.

Shortly before the meeting, two key presidential advisers predicted Congress will sustain a forthcoming presidential veto of legislation to extend domestic oil price controls for six months rather than let the controls expire Aug. 31.

Removal of the price controls, which presently force some 60 per cent of America's oil to be sold at a price of $5.25 per barrel rather than at market prices of about $13 per barrel, is expected to raise consumer prices for petroleum products.

Ford announced Friday, however, he would remove the current $2-a-barrel tariff on imported crude oil — cushioning the price hike — if his veto is upheld early next month after Congress returns from an August recess.

If both the tariff and the controls are removed, experts said, gasoline prices might increase up to 3 cents a gallon within six to nine months.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb told a Saturday news conference that "it seemed clear to me" a few days ago that "we had sufficient strength on the Senate side" to get Ford's veto sustained.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers told reporters that if Congress passes legislation imposing a windfall profits tax on oil producers and tax rebates for consumers to offset the entire cost of fuel, the decontrol of oil prices "would have no impact of significance on our economic recovery, which is clearly under way."

As of now, Greenspan said: "The basic data which we are looking at ... all point to a fairly firm and solid recovery in the economy throughout this year and next, with the trend of the unemployment rate moving downward pretty much throughout the latter part of 1975 and throughout 1976."

Ford, who invited Kissinger and his wife to a private dinner Saturday evening, began the day by meeting with staff members and speech writers to review plans for a two-day swing through Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois starting Monday.

The President will speak at the Iowa State Fair and address Republican fund-raising events in Des Moines and Minneapolis before going to Illinois. White House officials acknowledged that the trip would give the President a chance to boost his campaign for election to a full term next year.

Ford left his mountain home in the early afternoon to play golf at the local public course in bright sunshine.

It was the President's sixth round of golf since arriving here Sunday for a 15-day "working" vacation. His partners were the course pro, Bob Wolfe; Dick Bass, a Texas businessman who owns the house where Ford and his family are staying; and Jim Brown, a Logan, Utah, businessman whose family is sharing the Bass home with the Fords.

Marriage After Mail Romance

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — An Air Force employe and the Vietnamese woman with whom he had carried on a four-year romance by mail have been married.

Bennetts said he met his bride in Saigon in 1969 but they were separated in 1971 when he left South Vietnam.

They corresponded until May, when she fled the country to avoid the Communists.

Bennetts searched for three months before locating her at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A top official in the state Justice Department has denied a report he knew of an alleged illegal political slush fund run by Southern Bell Telephone Co. prior to taking office.

Mystery Man In Hoffa Case Has Disappeared

By DAVID SMOTHERS

DETROIT (UPI) — An alleged Detroit Mafia leader who has become the mystery man in the search for missing former Teamsters leader James R. Hoffa has also disappeared and police said Saturday they do not know where he is.

Michigan State Police Director George Halverson said law enforcement agencies could not "confirm or deny" reports on what has become of Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone since Hoffa, his longtime associate, dropped out of sight from a restaurant parking lot 17 days ago.

"People don't know where he is," Halverson said.

Giacalone is an essential figure in the mystery because he is one of the three men the former Teamsters president told his family and friends he planned to meet when he set out for his last rendezvous at the Machus Red Fox Restaurant in suburban Bloomfield Township July 30.

Sources close to the case have said Giacalone "set Jimmy up" for whatever happened to Hoffa as he waited for his old friend in the Red Fox parking lot.

Hijacker Arrested

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — A Maryland man, wanted in the deaths of his father and a woman in Washington, was captured at a local airport after hijacking a light plane in Woodbridge, Va., and commandeering a car when the plane ran out of gas near here Saturday evening, police said.

Authorities arrested Roper McNair Jr., 23, of Oxen Hill, Md.

McNair fled the Washington area about 1 p.m. after his father and a woman identified as Moultrie Brown were shot to death, officers said. They said McNair's brother and sister were also wounded and were hospitalized.

McNair reportedly kidnaped flying instructor Juan Ruth und student pilot Richard Abbott of Falls Church, Va., and forced them to fly him south in a Piper Cherokee.

The plane ran out of gas just north of here and after issuing a distress call, Ruth panded the plane on Interstate 95.

Ruth told officers McNair then commandeered a car, driven by Roger Strickland of Stedman, N.C., and forced Strickland to take him to the city airport.

At the airport, police said, McNair demanded another plane and a parachute.

Officers said the three hostages told them McNair was vague about where he wanted to be taken. They said he mentioned Jamaica, Puerto Rico and Madrid, Spain.

Waits For Abductors To Act

By MEL LAYTNER

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (UPI) — Efforts to secure the release of kidnaped liquor heir Samuel Bronfman II centered on his father's New York City penthouse Saturday, with indications the family and the FBI still were waiting for the abductors to act.

Jonathan Rinehart, chief spokesman for the family, was handling telephone inquiries from the penthouse instead of the suburban estate here.

The 21-year-old Bronfman's father, Edgar, board chairman of Seagram's Ltd., was believed waiting with the FBI agents in the penthouse. But Rinehart and the FBI refused comment his whereabouts, the $4.5 million ransom effort and all other aspects of the case except to say no announcements were scheduled.

There were a flurry for rumors of an imminent break in the case early Saturday. But official sources later indicated that, although the rumors apparently had some validity, they were premature.

The tension and anxiety evident among those involved in the case significantly increased more than a week after the kidnapping. The abductors said in a ransom letter delivered Monday they had young Bronfman "buried" with 10 days supply of air and water. They did not say when the 10-day period started.

Mixed Reactions On Joan Little Verdict

By Robert B. Cullen
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — In Joan Little's hometown, people's reactions to her acquittal depended on their age, their sex and their race, much as they had across the country.

In her neat brick home outside town, Mrs. Clarence Alligood said she "trusted in the Lord that Miss Little would receive justice somewhere."

Mrs. Alligood, 62, said the events of the past year have "numbed me out. I haven't been myself since. The verdict didn't make me feel any better."

In another brick home on the other side of town, 69-year-old Nicie Johnson sat on her front porch with her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Mae Righton. They live in an all-black public housing project. They were pleased with the verdict.

"When I was her age, I doubt it would have gotten to the courthouse. They would have killed her. They were rough on black people in those days," Mrs. Johnson said.

In P.J.'s Tavern, the only bar for young people in this town of 9,000, Tom Smith discussed the case with Anne Webb.

"I think they ought to have hung her. If she had been white, they would have," said Smith, 29, a salesman who wears an American flag on his sleeve.

"I think she was innocent. It's just a feeling, probably because I'm a woman. If someone grabbed me, I'd get anything near me and hit at him with it," said Miss Webb, 19.

"Yeah, but what about her past record?" Smith retorted. Like many people in Beaufort County, he was certain that Joan Little was not an innocent woman, even though she had been acquitted.

"If you were a woman, you might understand how she'd feel," Miss Webb replied.

"But what if she encouraged him?" said Smith.

Miss Webb had no answer. And Smith went on to say that he felt it likely that the whole truth had not come out in the trial. He opined that someone else was in the jail with Miss Little and Alligood on the night he died.

The dead man's son, Don Alligood, who lives near his mother on Lizard Slip road, felt the same way. "I've always felt someone else was involved. Daddy was a person that had never been in any trouble, as

$4.2 Million Bid For Pitt County Sewerage Plant

AYDEN—Low bids totaling $4.2 million were presented for construction of the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District System last week. Peabody Southeast Inc. of Orlando, Fla. was awarded the contract for construction of the central plant.

Peabody was low bidder with a total of $1,866,000 for Division I, which consists of the main plant for the Sewerage District. Bids for Division II, the Pumping Station, were rejected because a number of companies omitted certain articles of equipment from their bids, thus altering final estimates and totals. The CMSD board decided to readvertise for the same bids on Sept. 3.

Three other companies were awarded contracts for the main plant. Divisions III, IV, and V, electrical, plumbing, and heating and ventilation, were awarded to three separate companies. Modern Electrical Co. of Statesville was low bidder on the electrical contract ($334,939), Smith Plumbing and Heating of Raleigh for plumbing ($11,140), and Peele Mechanical Co., also of Raleigh, for heating and ventilation ($11,800).

Division VI and VIII, the installation of Force Mains and Outfall Lines, from Winterville to Ayden-Grifton High School and from Ayden-Grifton to the plant site, went to Winston Construction Co. of Winston-Salem with combined bids of $1,511,653.

After formal recommendation of the bids, those bids are now subject to approval by various state and federal agencies, including the Environmental Protection Agency in Raleigh.

Joan Little Case Points To Need

Many Tar Heel Jails Going To Full Time Matron System

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A year ago a jailer was stabbed to death in a woman's cell in the Beaufort County jail in Washington.

Joan Little has, for the past five weeks, been on trial in Wake County Superior Court in Raleigh on charges of murder in connection with that death.

But Miss Little testified that she stabbed Alligood in self-defense while fending off his sexual advances. She was a prisoner in that cell at the time and said that jailer Clarence T. Alligood forced her into oral sex at the point of an icepick.

The prosecution on the other hand, contended that Miss Little seduced the jailer in a cold-blooded escape scheme, stabbed him 11 times, and left him locked in her cell to die.

In any case, the incident should not have occurred. And as a result of the case, a similar incident may not occur in North Carolina again.

"I really believe," Greenville attorney Milton Williamson—coordinator of courtroom strategy for Miss Little's defense—said two weeks ago, "that the trial itself, regardless of the outcome, will have an effect on the jail system throughout the state."

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson was more positive last week. He said the case has already had an effect on jail operations. Many jails, he said, where once only male jailers were available or where matrons were on duty on a limited basis, have been staffed with matrons on a 24-hour-per-day basis.

Pitt County is one example. For years, Pitt has had matrons on duty during the day and on call at night. But now, matrons and jailers work side-by-side on a 24-hour basis.

Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley explained the Pitt jail's operations.

"We have three full-time matrons and are in the process of hiring a fourth," he said. "They are on duty at all times now. There is a woman available at all times now," to handle female prisoners.

"Male jailers"—and there are four—"don't go into female cells. Matrons take care of all the needs of the female prisoners . . . unless a matron would call him for some reason."

Matrons are on duty around the clock "even though we don't have female prisoners all the time," Oakley emphasized.

"We've had 24-hour matron service for about six months . . . we were not fortunate to have them in the past," Oakley noted.

"We're stricter now . . . since we have full-time matrons," according to Oakley. In the past, when a matron was not on duty all the time, the cook or an off-duty woman was "supposed" to be called in to assist with women prisoners.

"There's absolutely no excuse for not adhering to the rules" now, the chief deputy said.

The county jail, Oakley explained, is a place of "temporary confinement. Eighty per cent of the inmates are innocent (in the sense that) under our system of law, a person is innocent until proven guilty . . . until they have their day in court." Most of those housed in the Pitt jail are awaiting trial. The others confined there have been "sentenced and are waiting to go to prison," Oakley noted, or are trustys serving their time by working at the jail.

Those in jail awaiting trial are there to "guarantee their appearance in court," according to Oakley.

How secure is the jail?

According to Oakley, the average prisoner would have to open six doors to reach freedom. Most prisoners are housed in cells that open into a barred "bull pen". Two doors separate this from the hall-way.

Two other doors—one electrically operated—separate the jail's central hall from the jailers office, while two other doors, again electrically controlled—lie between the jailer's office and the outside.

If for some reason more security is thought warranted for a special prisoner, his cell door can be closed and locked, preventing access to the bull pen . . . a seventh door between the inmate and freedom.

"If something happened to the jailer and his keys "other keys are immediately available," Oakley explained.

The same holds true in case of fire—where prisoners must be evacuated—or in the event of power failure when the electrically operated doors are without power. "We have reminded.

"Jailers check cells each hour . . . sometimes more often" to make sure everything is in order, Oakley explained.

The average population of the 84-prisoner capacity facility is about 45, Oakley said.

To make sure the prisoners are healthy . . . not in need of medical treatment, "we have a regular sick call each morning." Inmates, at other times, are taken for "Appointments to dentists and doctors."

And those housed in jail are provided with three hot meals each day, with the exception of Sunday night and possibly

Slow Riches For Norway

W. JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

OSLO, Norway (AP) — In five years Norway will be one of the world's major petroleum exporters. But the country has chosen to bridle the bonanza, and get rich as slowly and gracefully as it can.

A blend of practicality, idealism and righteousness will hold down production, limit exploration and keep a tight rein on how much of the expected profits of $3 billion a year are sluiced back into the economy once the oil production target level is reached in 1980.

Some Norwegians, including Finance and Foreign Ministry officials, have said that their approach, rejecting quick growth and profits, could serve as an example to the West. Others, less inclined to give lessons, say Norway is acting the only way it can to avoid drowning in its oil wealth.

The riches are these: With barely 20 per cent of its continental shelf explored, Norway will be producing 630 million barrels of oil a year by 1980. The figure is a self-imposed limit, which will be six times Norway's own needs, and about 10 per cent of Western Europe's projected consumption.

In the area of initial production, in the North Sea below the 62nd Parallel, the Ministry of Industry has estimated that Norway's reserves put it on a par with Venezuela and Algeria. Although the government has been cautious on estimates of how much oil could be found above the 62nd Parallel—where test drilling will begin in 1977, some experts say there is likely to be three or four times as much as below and others have projected that the reserves could be as great as the entire Middle East.

"We could be going very much faster and we've been criticized about our selfishness by some people," said Trade Minister Einar Magnussen in an interview. "The problem is, of course, that we'd tear our society apart in the process."

The Norwegians see their new wealth as a threat to the traditional areas of activity—like fishing and farming—which they consider socially important. The difficulty comes because Norway, with a population of four million, has had only 0.8 unemployment in 1975 and new jobs would pull people away from the fishing boats and farms and tend to depopulate the north of the country.

At its peak, the oil industry will employ about 30,000 people. Magnussen says it is not the industry itself but spending the profits that provides the danger because government projections show that for every $230 million put into public improvements 19,000 new jobs are created. This would be more jobs than people available.

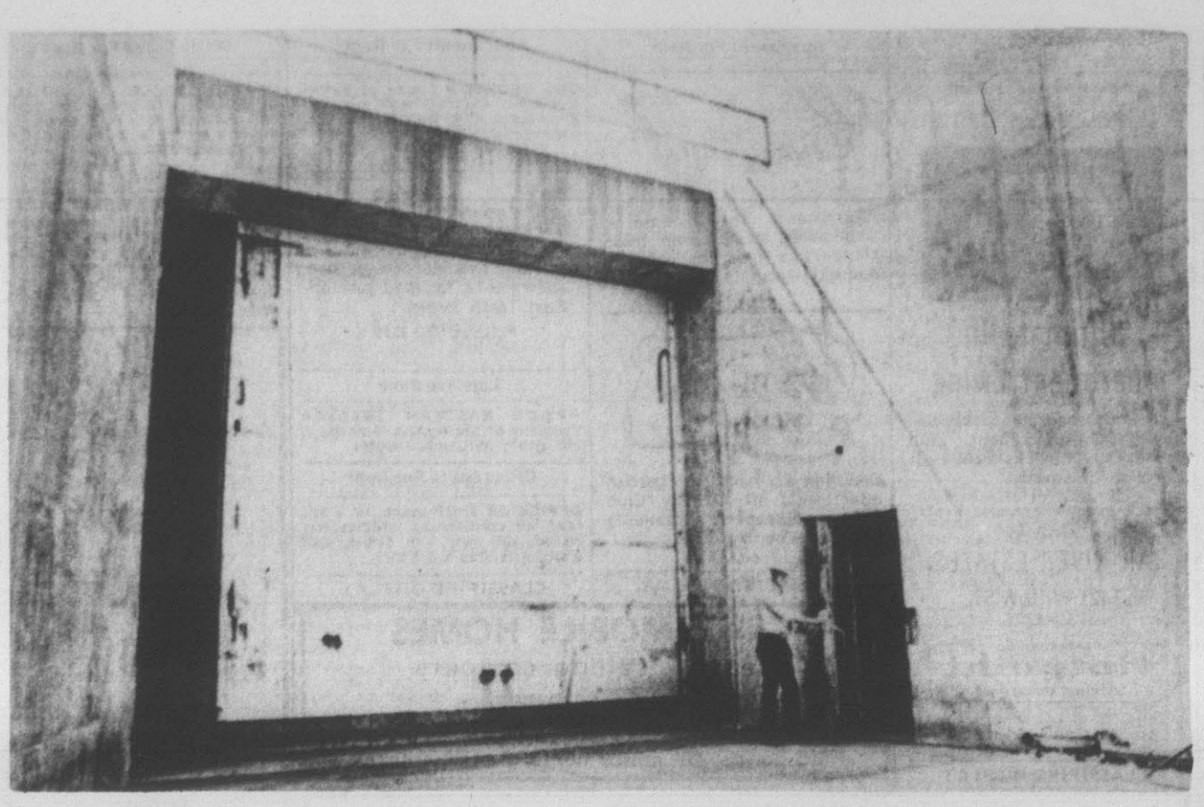

Norway could import foreign workers, but the official position is that the country does not want to import anyone to turn them into a second-class citizen. There is also no small amount of unspoken racism involved in bringing in workers from southern Europe and North Africa.

With its employment dilemma, Norway will hold down its revenues, spending half of the yearly profits of $3 billion in private consumption, a quarter in the public field, with the rest going into paying debts and making foreign investments.

Since the oil is expected to last between 100 and 150 years, the foreign investments will provide future wealth without directly involving the Norwegian economy.

The relatively slow pace will also let Norwegians take over virtually all the expert jobs in the oil industry, many of which have been held by Americans, Britons and Frenchmen.

But there has been criticism of the government's approach, although the polls give it 60 per cent approval. Trouble in the shipbuilding industry, partially attenuated because the biggest shipbuilders have gotten into the construction of oil rigs, has led to some calls to speed things up. Resistance among fishermen in the north, fearing pollution, is dying down and fears of turning society upside down seem to be lessening as well.

Farmer Owns Missile Site But Can't Decide How He'll Use It

By STEVE WEINER
Associated Press Writer

McCaffery, a wheat farmer, owns an Atlas missile site, one of nine built in eastern Washington in the early 1960s and abandoned almost before the paint had dried.

The sites were built for $150 million in an effort to help convince the Soviet Union not to fight a nuclear war. McCaffery's 22-acre area cost between $13 million and $20 million to build and equip.

He bought it in 1967 for just under $5,700.

"I don't know what to do with it," said McCaffrey. "My idea is to turn it into a casino."

The nine sites are like small, underground cities, each capable of withstanding anything other than a direct nuclear hit. They were built as part of the Atlas network and surrounded Fairchild Air Force Base just west of Spokane.

Each site was in operation 24 hours a day, with a crew of 12 always ready to fire the device. The Atlas rocket, fueled by liquid oxygen and a chemical like kerosene, lay on its side inside an enormous, buried "coffin." Around it, also underground, were the steel-encased firing control centers and living quarters.

None of the rockets was fired and the Atlas system was superceded by new kinds of missiles. In 1965, the 567th Strategic Missile Squadron was deactivated and the missiles and tracking equipment were removed.

The General Services Administration sold the sites two years later.

The buyers included farmers seeking to reclaim land, and companies hoping for the bargain of a lifetime.

Power has been turned off at most sites. Cows graze, grasshoppers bound through tall grass and debris is everywhere.

McCaffery finds that sheep like to graze inside his Atlas base. He also stores an antique truck inside the base and his combine sits where a missile once lay.

McCaffrey got a Quonset hut with his purchase and provides free storage for boats and campers of his neighbors. But primarily the place is wasted, he said.

Hope Single Magnetic Pole Particle Is Found

By MIKE DUNSTAN
Associated Press Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Scientists say they have discovered tracks of what they believe is an elusive, tiny particle with only one magnetic pole. If the finding is confirmed, it could open a new world of matter and energy for scientists to explore and revolutionize the electronics industry.

With other experiments, the discovery could establish the existence of a subatomic particle, a "magnetic monopole" comparable to the electron in electricity. It could also alter a major premise of modern physics.. the scientists announced today.

Four physicists — Paul B. Price and E. K. Shirk of the University of California at Berkeley, and W. Z. Osborne and L. S. Pinsky of the University of Houston — were involved in the research.

They said the passing of the subatomic, magnetic particle was recorded through a special film and plastic-like sheet carried aloft by a balloon in September 1973 over Sioux City, Iowa.

"It is the first member of what may be a whole family of magnetic particles smaller than the atom which we have not discovered," Price said in a telephone interview.

The long-accepted theory of quantum electrodynamics — one of the two basic theories upon which modern physics is founded — asserts that all matter is comprised of tiny electrically charged particles. If the existence of monopoles were confirmed, it would disprove the theory by proving the existence of magnetic subatomic particles, Price said.

If the particles could be captured in quantity or manufactured, "They could revolutionize the electronic industry," he said.

Price and the other members of the scientific team said it was too early to determine practical applications of the discovery. But they said possibilities include particle accelerators much more powerful than those in existence now, extremely small and efficient motors and generators, new cancer therapies and new sources of energy.

Price said that the monopole, estimated to travel at about half the speed of light, is energized by simple magnetization and could be used as a limited power source utilizing the earth's magnetic pull as a catalyst.

"What this means is that you might drive ships across the seas by putting a few monopoles in the ship and having the earth's magnetic field tug it across the ocean," he said.

He added, however, that monopoles would probably not become an alternate energy source.

Another use Price cited was the use of monopoles to fight cancer in areas inaccessible to surgeons.

"If you directed a monopole into the brain of a person who has brain cancer, you could rapidly move the monopole back and forth in the region where the cancer is located by turning magnetic fields on and off," he said.

Despite the apparent rarity of monopoles, Price said, scientists could reproduce them by energizing only one and "banging it against matter." The catch, however, is catching the first one.

Deny Congregations Back Synod Split

By CHERYL L. DEBES
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A group trying to enlist support for a split with the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod has no backing from the congregations, a church spokesman says.

"According to our information, there is not one congregation of the 6,000 that intends to leave the Missouri Synod," the Rev. Robert C. Sauer said.

The Rev. Mr. Sauer's forecast was in reaction to a resolution passed unanimously by Evangical Lutherans in Mission earlier in the day. "Apparently, the lay people want to continue in the present fellowship which has been such a blessing before the intrusion of liberalism," he said.

About 2,000 ELIM members voted here to "form clusters of congregations, groups and individuals" and meet next February to "define their direction" as a single body.

ELIM, a moderate group that objects to the synod's literal interpretation of the Bible, claims the new organization could attract as much as one-fourth of synod membership, including some 2,500 churches with 800,000 members.

ELIM's president, Dr. Samuel Roth, stopped short of calling the new organization a separate church. But, he said, "It will be apart from the Missouri Synod."

While the resolution provided primarily for those who desire a split with the synod, it also stated ELIM will "support, encourage and assist" those who feel "they can most effectively carry out their mission and ministry within the institutional context of the LC-MS."

In part, the resolution grew out of a synod convention in Anaheim, Calif., last month at which the splinter group's activities were deemed "divisive" and "schismatic."

Such statements by LC-MS were viewed by ELIM as a rejection, and Thursday's resolution noted, "ELIM now offers no safe haven from which to protest because the LC-MS views it as a separate church. The eviction notice has been given. Implementation will follow."

The Rev. Mr. Sauer denied the synod's intention to oust ELIM. "It's the very opposite. We pleaded with ELIM people to cease their schismatic activities and join hands with people of the Missouri Synod."

Stamps In A Teaching Kit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stamps will be used to teach school children about the nation's history.

"The Colonial Post Rider" is the first of the U.S. Postal Service's "Image of America" filmstrip teaching kits issued in connection with the nation's Bicentennial.

About 15,000 kits already have been ordered by school teachers. The kits use special issue stamps as a point of departure for presenting noteworthy developments or events in American history.

In the case of the "Post Rider," the package includes a full color filmstrip, a tape cassette or a record, a reproduction of Bicentennial stamps, and a teacher's study guide for planning class projects. It also traces the history of early letter carriers.

It starts with the prerevolutionary colonies and goes up to the battles of Lexington and Concord.

In the second kit, "Almost an American," colonial mailmen cross the Delaware River with Washington on their way to the battle of Trenton. The kit is scheduled for issue this fall.

For information about the program or ordering kits, write Kathie Coll, U.S. Postal Service, Room 10422, Washington, D.C. 20260.

Good Nutrition No More Costly

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Good nutrition is no more expensive than bad nutrition, according to Texas health experts.

Health department officials complain most people don't bother to follow what they know to be good dietary practices.

"Too many people fall for brightly packaged foods, or foods that can be prepared quickly and eaten on the run, rather than the sensible choice of foods that provide a nourishing, balanced daily diet," one expert said.

Rory Calhhoun Files Lawsuit

PARADISE VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Cowboy actor Rory Calhoun has filed a $1 million lawsuit against a land developer who he says is threatening his "good name."

Calhoun says the Daniel Towers Corp. hired him last year to promote land sales in central Arizona and the business of the Crystal Pistol saloon.

The saloon ran into financial troubles, and state Atty. Gen. Bruce Babbitt says Daniel Towers, head of the corporation, is a defendant in a federal lawsuit alleging he milked funds from a bankrupt company.

The 53-year-old Calhoun claims his "good nam" is at stake because of his association with the company. He said, "I'm asking for $1 million in punitive damages plus the $80,000 annual salary promised but never paid'

Towers' secretary said he would have no comment about the allegations.

Dictator Gone, Club Remains

CARACAS (UPI) The military club in Caracas, built by former Venezuelan dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez, is probably the most luxurious of its kind in the world.

The complicated cloverleaf approach to the facilities were made to form the initials of the ex-dictator, MPJ.

He was overthrown in 1958 and now lives in Spain.

VAIL, Colo. (UPI)— Ford and Kissinger met for an hour Saturday and scheduled another meeting Monday.

Shortly before the meeting, two key presidential advisers predicted Congress will sustain a forthcoming presidential veto of legislation to extend domestic oil price controls for six months rather than let the controls expire Aug. 31.

Removal of the price controls, which presently force some 60 per cent of America's oil to be sold at a price of $5.25 per barrel rather than at market prices of about $13 per barrel, is expected to raise consumer prices for petroleum products.

Ford announced Friday, however, he would remove the current $2-a-barrel tariff on imported crude oil — cushioning the price hike — if his veto is upheld early next month after Congress returns from an August recess.

If both the tariff and the controls are removed, experts said, gasoline prices might increase up to 3 cents a gallon within six to nine months.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb told a Saturday news conference that "it seemed clear to me" a few days ago that "we had sufficient strength on the Senate side" to get Ford's veto sustained.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers told reporters that if Congress passes legislation imposing a windfall profits tax on oil producers and tax rebates for consumers to offset the entire cost of fuel, the decontrol of oil prices "would have no impact of significance on our economic recovery, which is clearly under way."

As of now, Greenspan said: "The basic data which we are looking at ... all point to a fairly firm and solid recovery in the economy throughout this year and next, with the trend of the unemployment rate moving downward pretty much throughout the latter part of 1975 and throughout 1976."

Ford, who invited Kissinger and his wife to a private dinner Saturday evening, began the day by meeting with staff members and speech writers to review plans for a two-day swing through Iowa, Minnesota and Illinois starting Monday.

The President will speak at the Iowa State Fair and address Republican fund-raising events in Des Moines and Minneapolis before going to Illinois. White House officials acknowledged that the trip would give the President a chance to boost his campaign for election to a full term next year.

Ford left his mountain home in the early afternoon to play golf at the local public course in bright sunshine.

It was the President's sixth round of golf since arriving here Sunday for a 15-day "working" vacation. His partners were the course pro, Bob Wolfe; Dick Bass, a Texas businessman who owns the house where Ford and his family are staying; and Jim Brown, a Logan, Utah, businessman whose family is sharing the Bass home with the Fords.

Bennetts said he met his bride in Saigon in 1969 but they were separated in 1971 when he left South Vietnam.

They corresponded until May, when she fled the country to avoid the Communists.

$4.2 Million Bid For Pitt County Sewerage Plant

AYDEN—Low bids totaling $4.2 million were presented for construction of the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District System last week. Peabody Southeast Inc. of Orlando, Fla. was awarded the contract for construction of the central plant.

Peabody was low bidder with a total of $1,866,000 for Division I, which consists of the main plant for the Sewerage District. Bids for Division II, the Pumping Station, were rejected because a number of companies omitted certain articles of equipment from their bids, thus altering final estimates and totals. The CMSD board decided to readvertise for the same bids on Sept. 3.

Three other companies were awarded contracts for the main plant. Divisions III, IV, and V, electrical, plumbing, and heating and ventilation, were awarded to three separate companies. Modern Electrical Co. of Statesville was low bidder on the electrical contract ($334,939), Smith Plumbing and Heating of Raleigh for plumbing ($11,140), and Peele Mechanical Co., also of Raleigh, for heating and ventilation ($11,800).

Division VI and VIII, the installation of Force Mains and Outfall Lines, from Winterville to Ayden-Grifton High School and from Ayden-Grifton to the plant site, went to Winston Construction Co. of Winston-Salem with combined bids of $1,511,653.

After formal recommendation of the bids, those bids are now subject to approval by various state and federal agencies, including the Environmental Protection Agency in Raleigh.

Mystery Man In Hoffa Case Has Disappeared

By DAVID SMOTHERS

DETROIT (UPI) — An alleged Detroit Mafia leader who has become the mystery man in the search for missing former Teamsters leader James R. Hoffa has also disappeared and police said Saturday they do not know where he is.

Michigan State Police Director George Halverson said law enforcement agencies could not "confirm or deny" reports on what has become of Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone since Hoffa, his longtime associate, dropped out of sight from a restaurant parking lot 17 days ago.

"People don't know where he is," Halverson said.

Giacalone is an essential figure in the mystery because he is one of the three men the former Teamsters president told his family and friends he planned to meet when he set out for his last rendezvous at the Machus Red Fox Restaurant in suburban Bloomfield Township July 30.

Sources close to the case have said Giacalone "set Jimmy up" for whatever happened to Hoffa as he waited for his old friend in the Red Fox parking lot.

Hijacker Arrested

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — A Maryland man, wanted in the deaths of his father and a woman in Washington, was captured at a local airport after hijacking a light plane in Woodbridge, Va., and commandeering a car when the plane ran out of gas near here Saturday evening, police said.

Authorities arrested Roper McNair Jr., 23, of Oxen Hill, Md.

McNair fled the Washington area about 1 p.m. after his father and a woman identified as Moultrie Brown were shot to death, officers said. They said McNair's brother and sister were also wounded and were hospitalized.

McNair reportedly kidnaped flying instructor Juan Ruth und student pilot Richard Abbott of Falls Church, Va., and forced them to fly him south in a Piper Cherokee.

The plane ran out of gas just north of here and after issuing a distress call, Ruth panded the plane on Interstate 95.

Ruth told officers McNair then commandeered a car, driven by Roger Strickland of Stedman, N.C., and forced Strickland to take him to the city airport.

At the airport, police said, McNair demanded another plane and a parachute.

Officers said the three hostages told them McNair was vague about where he wanted to be taken. They said he mentioned Jamaica, Puerto Rico and Madrid, Spain.

Waits For Abductors To Act

By MEL LAYTNER

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (UPI) — Efforts to secure the release of kidnaped liquor heir Samuel Bronfman II centered on his father's New York City penthouse Saturday, with indications the family and the FBI still were waiting for the abductors to act.

Jonathan Rinehart, chief spokesman for the family, was handling telephone inquiries from the penthouse instead of the suburban estate here.

The 21-year-old Bronfman's father, Edgar, board chairman of Seagram's Ltd., was believed waiting with the FBI agents in the penthouse. But Rinehart and the FBI refused comment his whereabouts, the $4.5 million ransom effort and all other aspects of the case except to say no announcements were scheduled.

There were a flurry for rumors of an imminent break in the case early Saturday. But official sources later indicated that, although the rumors apparently had some validity, they were premature.

The tension and anxiety evident among those involved in the case significantly increased more than a week after the kidnapping. The abductors said in a ransom letter delivered Monday they had young Bronfman "buried" with 10 days supply of air and water. They did not say when the 10-day period started.

Mixed Reactions On Joan Little Verdict

By Robert B. Cullen
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP) — In Joan Little's hometown, people's reactions to her acquittal depended on their age, their sex and their race, much as they had across the country.

In her neat brick home outside town, Mrs. Clarence Alligood said she "trusted in the Lord that Miss Little would receive justice somewhere."

Mrs. Alligood, 62, said the events of the past year have "numbed me out. I haven't been myself since. The verdict didn't make me feel any better."

In another brick home on the other side of town, 69-year-old Nicie Johnson sat on her front porch with her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Mae Righton. They live in an all-black public housing project. They were pleased with the verdict.

"When I was her age, I doubt it would have gotten to the courthouse. They would have killed her. They were rough on black people in those days," Mrs. Johnson said.

In P.J.'s Tavern, the only bar for young people in this town of 9,000, Tom Smith discussed the case with Anne Webb.

"I think they ought to have hung her. If she had been white, they would have," said Smith, 29, a salesman who wears an American flag on his sleeve.

"I think she was innocent. It's just a feeling, probably because I'm a woman. If someone grabbed me, I'd get anything near me and hit at him with it," said Miss Webb, 19.

"Yeah, but what about her past record?" Smith retorted. Like many people in Beaufort County, he was certain that Joan Little was not an innocent woman, even though she had been acquitted.

"If you were a woman, you might understand how she'd feel," Miss Webb replied.

"But what if she encouraged him?" said Smith.

Miss Webb had no answer. And Smith went on to say that he felt it likely that the whole truth had not come out in the trial. He opined that someone else was in the jail with Miss Little and Alligood on the night he died.

The dead man's son, Don Alligood, who lives near his mother on Lizard Slip road, felt the same way. "I've always felt someone else was involved. Daddy was a person that had never been in any trouble, as

Joan Little Case Points To Need

Many Tar Heel Jails Going To Full Time Matron System

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A year ago a jailer was stabbed to death in a woman's cell in the Beaufort County jail in Washington.

Joan Little has, for the past five weeks, been on trial in Wake County Superior Court in Raleigh on charges of murder in connection with that death.

But Miss Little testified that she stabbed Alligood in self-defense while fending off his sexual advances. She was a prisoner in that cell at the time and said that jailer Clarence T. Alligood forced her into oral sex at the point of an icepick.

The prosecution on the other hand, contended that Miss Little seduced the jailer in a cold-blooded escape scheme, stabbed him 11 times, and left him locked in her cell to die.

In any case, the incident should not have occurred. And as a result of the case, a similar incident may not occur in North Carolina again.

"I really believe," Greenville attorney Milton Williamson—coordinator of courtroom strategy for Miss Little's defense—said two weeks ago, "that the trial itself, regardless of the outcome, will have an effect on the jail system throughout the state."

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson was more positive last week. He said the case has already had an effect on jail operations. Many jails, he said, where once only male jailers were available or where matrons were on duty on a limited basis, have been staffed with matrons on a 24-hour-per-day basis.

Pitt County is one example. For years, Pitt has had matrons on duty during the day and on call at night. But now, matrons and jailers work side-by-side on a 24-hour basis.

Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley explained the Pitt jail's operations.

"We have three full-time matrons and are in the process of hiring a fourth," he said. "They are on duty at all times now. There is a woman available at all times now," to handle female prisoners.

"Male jailers"—and there are four—"don't go into female cells. Matrons take care of all the needs of the female prisoners . . . unless a matron would call him for some reason."

Matrons are on duty around the clock "even though we don't have female prisoners all the time," Oakley emphasized.

"We've had 24-hour matron service for about six months . . . we were not fortunate to have them in the past," Oakley noted.

"We're stricter now . . . since we have full-time matrons," according to Oakley. In the past, when a matron was not on duty all the time, the cook or an off-duty woman was "supposed" to be called in to assist with women prisoners.

"There's absolutely no excuse for not adhering to the rules" now, the chief deputy said.

The county jail, Oakley explained, is a place of "temporary confinement. Eighty per cent of the inmates are innocent (in the sense that) under our system of law, a person is innocent until proven guilty . . . until they have their day in court." Most of those housed in the Pitt jail are awaiting trial. The others confined there have been "sentenced and are waiting to go to prison," Oakley noted, or are trustys serving their time by working at the jail.

Those in jail awaiting trial are there to "guarantee their appearance in court," according to Oakley.

How secure is the jail?

According to Oakley, the average prisoner would have to open six doors to reach freedom. Most prisoners are housed in cells that open into a barred "bull pen". Two doors separate this from the hall-way.

Two other doors—one electrically operated—separate the jail's central hall from the jailers office, while two other doors—again electrically controlled—lie between the jailer's office and the outside.

If for some reason more security is thought warranted for a special prisoner, his cell door can be closed and locked, preventing access to the bull pen . . . a seventh door between the inmate and freedom.

"If something happened to the jailer and his keys "other keys are immediately available," Oakley explained.

The same holds true in case of fire—where prisoners must be evacuated—or in the event of power failure when the electrically operated doors are without power. "We have reminded.

"Jailers check cells each hour . . . sometimes more often" to make sure everything is in order, Oakley explained.

The average population of the 84-prisoner capacity facility is about 45, Oakley said.

To make sure the prisoners are healthy . . . not in need of medical treatment, "we have a regular sick call each morning." Inmates, at other times, are taken for "Appointments to dentists and doctors."

And those housed in jail are provided with three hot meals each day, with the exception of Sunday night and possibly

Searches For Bodies In Burned Tanker

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Coast Guard crews Saturday began a detailed search of the smouldering British tanker Globtrik Sun for the bodies of six crewmen missing since the vessel rammed an oil drilling platform in the Gulf of Mexico and burst into flames.

A Coast Guard spokesman said he did not know how long it would take to complete the search of the 734-foot vessel. He said going was slow in some parts of the ship because of intense heat.

"The after section is still pretty hot," the spokesman said.

Firefighters boarded the ship late Friday night after quenching flames that threatened to rupture the hull and spill 300,000 gallons of oil into the Gulf. But a search for bodies was hampered by heat and darkness.

Another 41 crewmen on the Exxon-chartered tanker when it rammed the unmanned oil rig in pre-dawn hours Friday were rescued. The tanker was bound from the Bahamas to Baytown, Tex.

The Coast Guard said oil that spilled from the ship was rapidly disipating.

The vessel lay about 100 miles south of Lake Charles, La., held fast by two tugboats, nearly seven miles from the Chevron-owned platform. Two Coast Guard cutters stood by.

Many of the crewmen, unable to release the lifeboats because of the flames, jumped over the sides and struggled to get away from the burning oil.

Friday Wreck Investigated

A Friday wreck investigated by Greenville Police involved an estimated $325 in total damages, according to police reports.

Cars driven by Helen Joyce Clark of 112 King George Rd. and James Camillus Gordon of Fountain collided at 10:00 p. m. on W. Fifth Street, east of Washington St. Damage to Gordon's car was estimated at $275 and damage to the Clark vehicle was estimated at $50.

No charges were filed in connection with the mishap and no injuries were reported, according to police.

Fruit Contracts Cancelled

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Honduras has cancelled all contracts under which Standard Fruit Co. and a subsidiary of United Brands export bananas from this central American nation.

President Juan Melgar Castro announced the action Friday night, referring to the damage to Honduras by a $1.25 million bribe scandal involving United Brands which markets "Chiquita" bananas.

Rally In Greenwood

GREENWOOD, S.C. (AP)— About 800 blacks marched peacefully Saturday and then staged a rally in front of the courthouse to protest the fatal shooting of a black man by a white highway patrolman. There were few white spectators and no incidents.

The state president of the NAACP, which sponsored the march, used the words "obscene" and "unchristian" to describe what he called the silence of the white community following the July 26 slaying of Herbie Ron Morton, 24.

Bloodbath Useless

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Quaker relief workers just back from South Vietnam said Saturday there has been no bloodbath there because brutality "would be a totally useless policy."

Paul and Sophia Quinn-Judge, who spent two years working in and around Saigon, said the Communist-led Provisional Revolutionary Government is "evangelical ... They're interested in converting people, not hitting them over the head."

Communists Launch Drive

LISBON (UPI) — The Communists launched a drive to reassert their waning influence in the conservative north of Portugal Saturday in response to growing anti-Communist violence. Police took precautions against possible new riots.

Leaders of Communist-controlled unions appealed to the government for guns to defend their headquarters against attacks.

The ruling three-man junta maintained a hectic pace of political negotiations in an attempt to prevent the fall of the government.

Pilots Make Appeal

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A group of 75 American helicopter pilots and their families, marooned in Iran when their company fired them but refused to pay their fares home, have appealed for outside financial help.

A spokesman for the pilots said Saturday U.S. Ambassador to Iran Richard Helms refused to see the pilots but planned to talk to the Iran managers of the helicopter firm, Bell Helicopter International of Dallas.

Spokesman Glen Wood said Bell fired 141 pilots and trainers when the group formed a bargaining unit to negotiate improved sanitary conditions, safety standards and training standards.

Braced For Outbreaks

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Security forces Saturday braced for renewed outbreaks of violence in Northern Ireland, ripped by a week of killings that threatened the shaky six-month-old Irish Republican Army cease-fire.

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Thrust from obscurity to the forefront of the feminist and black movements and exhausted after her five-week trial, Joan Little, acquitted in the stabbing death of jailer Clarence Alligood, went into hiding Saturday.

Turkey Closes American PX's

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey has closed down post exchanges on American military bases, and has given one month's notice to halt package mail under the Army Post Office system, an American military source said Saturday.

He said American officers clubs also were ordered closed.

The source said only the PX at Incirlik airbase, in southeast Turkey, remained opened. Incirlik was exempted in a Turkish government decision last month suspending operations of American military installations and placing them under Turkish command.

The Turkish move came after the House of Representatives refused to ease an arms embargo against Turkey in effect since last February because of Turkey's invasion of Cyprus.

The source said relations between the Turkish units on the bases and the American personnel, numbering about 7,000, were still cordial.

The wife of an American officer based in Balgat, a military unit near Ankara, said those familiar with Turkish markets were planning to hold courses for others on how to buy and prepare Turkish food.

In its reprisal for the embargo, Turkey has stopped short of eliminating the bases and sending the personnel home. But such a move is still not ruled out if Congress decides to continue the embargo in another round of voting expected sometime in early fall.

Record Crops

TOKYO (AP) — China's wheat, barley and other summer crops reached new highs this year, Peking's official Hsinhua news agency reported today in a broadcast monitored here.

Although the broadcast did not report any production figures, it said, "On the basis of the big increase last year, China's total yield of wheat, barley and other summer-harvested crops hit an all-time high this year."

FBI Operation Against Ku Klux Klan Disclosed

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI ran a covert, 10-year operation to disrupt the Ku Klux Klan by distributing anonymous postcards and cartoons, forming a phony anti-Klan committee and planting anti-Klan articles in the news media, according to newly disclosed FBI documents.

The operation against the Klan and other so-called "white hate groups" such as the National States Rights party and the American Nazi party, was described in 125 pages of FBI files turned over Friday to reporters who petitioned for them under the Freedom of Information Act nine months ago.

The files provided the first public glimpse of the counter-intelligence program, called Cointelpro by the FBI, against white hate groups. The FBI previously was forced to disclose documents dealing with operations against the Socialist Workers party and other leftist political groups.

The late J. Edgar Hoover, then the FBI director, launched the anti-Klan operation with a memo Sept. 2 1961, which said in part:

"The devious maneuvers and duplicity of these groups must be exposed to public scrutiny through the cooperation of reliable news media sources, both locally and at the Seat of Government (Washington).

"We must frustrate any effort of the groups to conslidate their forces to recruit new or youthful adherents. In every instance, consideration should be given to disrupting the organized activity of these groups...."

File memos said 17 FBI field offices, primarily in the South, participated in the operation. The offices were not listed, but the memos described activities conducted in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, North Carolina, Florida and Virginia.

Previously disclosed files show that Hoover terminated all Cointelpro operations in April 1971.

The memos describe the anonymous mailing of about 6,000 postcards to Klan members at their homes and offices "to cause public identification of Klan members and spread dissention."

Postcards were used since "a number of persons would read them before delivery, thus exposing the Klansman and removing one of the Klan's most potent weapons — its veil of secrecy," said an April 1966 memo.

The FBI also believed the postcards would "cause disruption in the family and ... difficulty with employment."

Agents in the laboratory division were assigned to sketch postcard cartoons in an "amateurish" way. Two of them showed an obviously nervous Klansman attempting to hide behind his robe and carried the captions, "Trying to hide your identity behind your sheet? You received this — someone KNOWS who you are!" and "Someone is peeking under your sheet."

The Cincinati Enquirer quoted a Cincinnati FBI spokesman as saying, "We don't know who's behind it."

The memos also disclose that the FBI created a phony organization called the National Committee for Domestic Tranquility as a vehicle for distributing circulars to Klan members questioning the Christianity and patriotism of Klan leaders.

Jury For Joan Little Agree

State Failed In It's Evidence

By CHARLES C. HILL
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jurors who acquitted Joan Little Friday said the jury did not necessarily agree that the 21-year-old black woman did not murder her 62-year-old white jailer she says forced her to perform oral sex.

But they all agreed, as their single and unanimous ballot indicated, that the state failed to prove that she was guilty of second-degree murder.

Black juror Donnell Livingston, 22, said one white, female juror she refused to name said she was convinced Miss Little would have been convicted had a proper investigation been held.

"Not all people necessarily believed her story as told," jury foreman Mark Nielsen said in an interview shortly after the verdict was given.

Livingston, 22, characterized the investigation as "sloppy." But he said the jury felt sorry for Beaufort County Deputy Willis Peachey, the man they felt was a scapegoat referred to as "the John Dean of Beaufort County."

Juror after juror, when asked why the verdict was not guilty, replied "lack of evidence."

"The key was that the burden of proof was on the state and they didn't come close," said Nielsen, who owns a Wake Forest audio shop.

The jury of six whites and six blacks deliberated for about 78 minutes before Nielsen, 26, smiled and pronounced "We find the defendant, Joan Little, not guilty."

The eight days that lapsed between Alligood's death and Miss Little's surrender disturbed Marcia Pearce, 32.

"I don't believe everything she said was true. In my opinion, what the verdict came from was lack of evidence from the state," said Mrs. Pearce, a white wife of a country grocer.

She said Miss Little's testimony did not affect her decision much, except that taking the stand when she did not have to was "points in her favor."

Paul Lassister, 25, said the lack of evidence left some questions unanswered. The Raleigh attorney said issues worrying jurors were the number of stab wounds, phone calls Miss Little allegedly made the night before Alligood's corpse was found, and the time the stabbing occurred.

"We felt strongly that there had been self defense. But even without self defense, I don't think the state met its burden of proof," Lassiter said.

Lassister said at no time did he feel the prosecution had shifted the burden of proof to the defense.

Jurors said the seven women and five men opened the deliberations with a prayer to ask for help in reaching a just decision. Then each panelist was allowed several minutes to express "doubts, fears and worries" about the case.

They said faces lifted as the voice vote was taken and the innocent verdict was arrived at without dissent.

"I feel like I've done a great job that God had sent me to do. And I'm happy," said black juror Pecola Jones.

She said that her prayers for guidance were answered.

"It has come to me in the night, scriptures in the Bible, to help relieve the problem," she said.

Nielsen said there was "no hot debate" during deliberation. "It wasn't very difficult."

Jennie Lancaster, a 25-year-old prison counselor, said she was surprised when the state rested that that was all the evidence they presented.

Livingston said Miss Little's plight made him think about his 2-year-old daughter.

"I know damn well that it's happening all over the nation, that young women, black and white, are being taken advantage of by jailers and police," he said.

"Suppose she (his daughter) was stuck down in a jail one night? Wonder would the sheriff take advantage of her? What would she do?" he asked, mostly to himself.

Mrs. Jones, 49, expressed empathy for Miss Little.

"I think she was a great young woman. If it had been me. . .I don't think I could have faced it," she said.

Hugs, handclasps and warm smiles were omnipresent as the jurors said good-bye to each other at the motel where some had been sequestered as long as five weeks.

"All of us felt like kin together," said black Annie Hunter, a 66-year-old widow.

"Friendship like you wouldn't believe — love abounded," exclaimed a smiling Nielsen.

Going To Matron System...

one or two other meals each week when cold cuts are served, Oakley explained.

And in between times "we have three store calls each day . . . once in the morning, again in the afternoon, and after supper."

At these times, those confined may purchase soft drinks, and a variety of snack items.

Visiting hours at the jail are each Thursday and Sunday, from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m.

Visiting at other times is allowed in special cases with the approval of Sheriff Tyson or his chief deputy.

Then, too, members of the "Christian Business Men's Fellowship visit the jail each Thursday night for visitation . . ." with inmates, Oakley explained.

And ministers may visit the prisoners at other times, too.

Oakley explained that through the local ministerial association, a minister "is assigned each week" to the jail. He "visits the jail daily" and may make calls . . . contacts for the inmates."

In addition to the jailers and matrons, two full-time cooks are employed to prepare meals and one trusty works full-time in the kitchen.

All meals are served in the cells under supervision of the matrons and jailers.

To insure proper operation and safety, a state jail inspector checks the facility about once each month, Oakley said, while a Pitt County Health Department inspector visits the jail several times each year to inspect health and safety aspects of the facility.

...Mixed Reactions

far as I know. This was contrary to his beliefs, to what he taught us.

"I've tried to look at this (the evidence) as if he wasn't my father to see how I'd feel. But I just can't feel any differently about it," he said.

Like his mother, Don Alligood will try to forget the whole thing, knowing all the while he will not be able to.

"I'll never forget Don coming to the door that morning. My nerves are gone. It's been a tough ordeal," Mrs. Alligood said.

Another man who would like to forget is Sheriff Ottis "Red" Davis whose department was roundly criticized for its handling of the investigation.

Davis sat in his office near the cell where Alligood died and lit his pipe. He said he didn't want to comment any more. "You know what they refer to me as—the redneck sheriff," he said.

An elderly white man sitting nearby piped in. "I'm glad Jerry Paul's in jail. That's one thing I'm glad about," he said. Davis smiled briefly.

"I'll tell you one thing—and I've never seen this in print. I did not see no racial issue from the beginning at all. I haven't seen it," the sheriff said.

Some eight blocks away, Ernest "Pat" Barnes wasn't anxious to talk about the case either. Barnes, a heavy-set, graying tobacco worker, was identified by Miss Little during the trial as the man who hid her from the police after she left the Beaufort County jail.

Barnes lives in a dilapidated, unpainted, three-room house on an unpaved street. A naked light bulb illuminated the tiny front room where four men were playing cards under a peeling ceiling.

Asked whether they gathered there often, one of the men pointed to the nearby state liquor store. "It's right there, man," he said.

Another man was sitting on a tree stump next to the house. He would not comment on the case. "I'm just out on parole."

Barnes was wandering around looking for some beer. "I'm glad she got out. I only seen her a time or two before she got in trouble. I just felt sorry for her. When the police came I let 'em search. I don't think I'd do it again," he said.

Earlier this week, Dist. Atty. William Griffin said he did not believe Miss Little's story and hadn't thought about whether to prosecute Barnes. Barnes lives next to a now-abandoned house occupied last year by a cousin of Miss Little's.

Miss Little testified that her cousin turned her away and that Barnes took her in after she fled from the jail. She said she hid under a mattress through four police searches.

A Mistake In Leaf Quota Hike

It has become apparent that Sec. of Agriculture Earl Butz's action in increasing tobacco production for this growing season is largely responsible for the dismal prices.

The agricultural secretary last year ordered an increase in flue-cured tobacco production. Farmers planted that extra tobacco but now that marketing time is here there is no comparable increase in demand.

In fact Export Leaf of Richmond this week reported that its purchases this year will be "substantially less" than last year. The firm's president blamed the worldwide recession as affecting the export of U.S. tobacco this year.

Federal officials also concede the lessening of demand. They blame in part loss of Southeast Asian markets through the communist takeover there for a part of the drop in demand for U.S. leaf.

The Department of Agriculture does see the possibility of increase export of tobacco to Egypt and Syria but apparently this will not offset the loss in other areas of the world.

So it is obvious that the big increase in production was not needed this year, and in fact it is creating an unneeded surplus of tobacco. As a result Stabilization Corp. is getting a large part of the crop with 43.8 percent of the Eastern Belt sales going to Stabilization through Tuesday.

This is a lamentable situation, particularly since tobacco supplies would probably have been about right this year if there had been no increase in tobacco production.

With costs soaring as they are, the tobacco farmer can't make it on the support prices which they receive when tobacco is taken by Stabilization. We recall last year that there were many knowledgeable tobacco people who felt that the production increase ordered by the Secretary of Agriculture would create a surplus this year. Sec. Butz wouldn't listen to them, however, and went on and ordered an increase. Now the tobacco grower has to pay the price in lost profits because of the secretary's miscalculation.

Fourth Joins GOP 'List'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Another prominent Republican member of the Holshouser administration has joined the ranks of those mentioned as a possible entry into the 1976 governor's race.

Jacob F. Alexander, secretary of the Department of Transportation, has joined three colleagues on that list: Corrections Secretary David Jones, Human Resources Chief David T. Flaherty, and Natural and Economic Resources head James E. Harrington.

Jones has all but announced his candidacy. Flaherty says he is allowing supporters to conduct field work and organizational activities on his behalf, and is interested.

Harrington said he also encouraged field work by his supporters and is "pleasantly surprised and encouraged by the degree and enthusiasm of response," but says a decision is a long way off.

Some top Republican strategists admit that part of the early jockeying is in direct response to Jones' early lead in entering the race. Some GOP leaders say flatly that they will not permit Jones to win by default.

Martin Moving

U.S. Rep. James G. Martin anticipates some possible troubles from a move he is making: he has put his Davidson house up for sale, and will establish his district home in a Lake Norman chain in Iredell County.

The Republican congressman represents the ninth district, consisting of Mecklenburg, Iredell, Lincoln, and Wilkes Counties. His predecessor in that district was Charles R. Jonas from Lincoln County.

Martin was elected while a professor of chemistry at Davidson College in Mecklenburg County, and the heavy Republican vote in that county is seen as a major factor in his first election, and recent re-election.

"But we have bought a home in Alexandria (near Washington) and simply can't afford to keep uo two houses. . .so we plan to move to the lot we already own in Iredell County," Martin said.

The problem may come to a head in future years as census figures call for redistricting, and Democrats in Raleigh draw new lines. Without Mecklenburg, Martin concedes he could be in trouble.

Looking Ahead

Nobody, says Natural and Economic Secretary James E. Harrington, likes to look ahead to the year 2000—but they should.

Dwindling reserves of natural gas, and the depletion of petroleum, will continue to cause problems and "North Carolina needs to get away from natural gas as a space-heating fuel in homes, business and industry. . .it's an endangered species and will be needed for essential processes in textiles, glass work and such where nothing else will work as well."

The alternative: "Coal and nuclear-powered electric generating capacity to provide plentiful supplies of electricty for heating purposes. . .electricity will be the most desirable option for space heating," he says.

But nobody, Harrington says, wants to read about or think about someting 20 years away.

East or West

Even native Tar Heels occasionally learn new things about North Carolina. Know how to tell a Down Easter from a mountain or Piedmont resident?

When the gnats swarm about your face, a westerner usually takes a hand and swipes them from the eyebrows; an easterner will generally purse his lips on either side and blow a snort of air upward to send the tiny insects scurrying.

More Leave Israel

By ALLEN ALTER

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Seeking greener pastures away from economic hardship and the constant threat of war, Israelis for the first time are leaving the country faster than new immigrants can replace them.

"It is of special concern to us, because one of Israel's basic raisons d'etre is to be a country of open doors and to bring new immigrants," said Yehuda Dominiwitz, director general of the immigration department of the Jewish Agency.

Immigration was down a full 50 per cent in the first half of 1975 compared with the previous year, official figures show. Arrivals totalled 8,500 against nearly 17,000 newcomers in 1974.

But Israel is more concerned about emigrating Israelis. There were 21,000 of them in 1974 compared to 13,000 in 1973 and about 8,000 in previous years.

One official suggested more Israelis may be emigrating than the statistics indicate.

"Israelis rarely declare when they leave what the purpose of the journey is, and many who intend to leave Israel for good don't say so," he said.

Of the 225,000 Israelis who left the state since it was created in 1948, only 100,000 of them said it would be a permanent move before he left.

The disparaging Hebrew for emigrant is "yored"—one who descends—compared with the word for immigrant—oleh—one who ascends.

"I really love Israel, but from a professional point of view, I find it too limited

Sunday Morning Notes

The tearing up of Evans Street brought out local people who have metal detecting devices to determine what had been long buried under the asphalt and brick.

Doug Williams, who works at Coffman's men wear, is an enthusiast and he brought down the metal detecting device he uses to search on old Civil War battlefields.

The Evans Street search was fruitful. Doug found a 1819 one-cent piece in front of the old McLellans Store. An 1869 five cents piece was located in front of the Coffman's building. An old Civil War type bullet was found in front of Smith Electric. Doug said it is a mini ball, about 54 calibre. He believes the bullet dredged up with the sand which was used under the original brick paving from the Tar River.

He also found, an axe head, shovel head, a keyhole cover and oil lamp parts, in addition to an abundance of nails.

Others searching in the area found an assortment of old coins and other metal.

Doug says the value of things he found in Evans Street was nominal but "to me they are very valuable because of where they were found."

ALVIN TAYLOR

Doug usually searches the Civil War battlefields as a hobby and he has found bayonets, cannon balls and other items of war. His collection includes two Confederate belt buckle halves, worth about $75 each. A whole buckle would be worth about $300.

Giant machines were gulping Evans Street between Fifth and Third last week in preparation for construction of the downtown mall.

A senior citizen stood watching the work at the corner of Evans and Third. By that time, the asphalt and brick had been removed from the street and only dirt remained.

"It looks just like it did when I was a boy," he mused.

And a jokester entered a local store as a big machine out front tore up the sidewalk in big slabs.

"See," he said. "I told you if you had paid your paving assessment they wouldn't have repossessed the sidewalk."

Other Editors Say Cotton Dethroned

(Henderson Dispatch)

Cotton is rapidly declining in North Carolina in annual production, and the forecast for 1975 is the smallest since records began in 1866, the first year after the Civil War ended. The pattern for the nation as a whole is similar also in proportion.

This year's forecast for the State is only 50,000 bales, and that is only a third as much as was produced last year. The U.S. crop is forecast at 9,416,000 bales, down 18 percent from 1974.

Practically no cotton is being produced in Vance county this year. A recent ASCS announcement said that only two farms have cotton in 1975. Not so many years ago, Vance county produced about 3,500 bales annually, and there were three gins operating during the harvest season.

To all intents and purposes, King Cotton has been dethroned.

What is the explanation? For one thing, a large portion of the cotton belt has turned to the more lucrative crop of tobacco. Normally, a bale of cotton to the acre is about average, and at present prices it would roughly bring only about $200 per acre. In contrast, income is around $1,700 to $1,800 an acre for flue-cured tobacco, at least on the basis of 1974 record prices.

Another factor is the capture by synthetics of a sizable part of the market once held by cotton. That is more or less general worldwide. Less cotton is being exported than once was the case.

It all amounts to the changing times. Likes and dislikes of consumers have made inroads on products manufactured from cotton.

There is still a tremendous market for cotton products, however. And there is still a demand for cotton. It's just not the equal of former times. Cotton no longer is the big crop in the South that it once was. The shift, to be sure, is regrettable. There will always be a place for the fleecy staple.

40 Years Ago Today

August 17, 1935

Will Rogers, cowboy philosopher-actor and air travel enthusiast, and Wiley Post, who circled the earth alone in a plane, were killed on the evening of August 15 when their plane crashed 15 miles south of Point Barrow in northernmost Alaska.

The word of their death came today to the United States Army Signal Corps headquarters in Seattle, Wash. from the Point Barrow station.

The message from the Army man on duty in Point Barrow said, "Native runner reported plane crash 15 miles south of Barrow. Immediately hired fast launch, proceeded to sea, found plane complete wreck, partially submerged, two feet under water.

"Recovered body of Rogers, then necessary to tear plane apart and extract body of Post from water."

The Capital, where Will Rogers was loved as few others of his time, grieved today to hear of his death.

"Oh, that is awful bad," exclaimed Vice-President Garner, raising his hand on learning that his humorist friend and Wiley Post had crashed.

"Just two mighty good men have been lost to the world. I can't talk about it. Rogers was one of my best friends."

INSIDE REPORT

Ford, Kissinger & SALT

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Although the Pentagon now has been brought into the heart of policymaking on Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT), there is widespread suspicion that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will abandon the military's position if necessary to avoid stalemate with the Soviets.

The fact that Kissinger finessed the Defense Department out of a seat at recent SALT conversations in Helsinki, while not inherently important, demonstrates he is not fully sharing the stage. There is, moreover, informed opinion high in the government that Kissinger will not endanger a SALT agreement by sticking to the Pentagon position on critical questions affecting long-range security of the United States and short-range political success for Gerald R. Ford.

If Kissinger seeks new compromises, the final decision will be President Ford's. He maintains total confidence in Kissinger, and some high-ranking officials cannot imagine him breaking with his Secretary of State if that would prevent 1975 agreement with the Soviets. Other officials, however, believe the President's interests are not identical to Dr. Kissinger's and that he must be prepared to support the harder-line Pentagon position.

Actually, preparations for U.S.-Soviet SALT sessions at Helsinki were far less of a one-man show than in the past. Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, Kissinger's arch-rival inside the administration, attended two top-level planning sessions. Schlesinger and Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, met with the President at a third meeting, which did not include Kissinger.

The result: a unified U.S. position at Helsinki, including Kissinger's acceptance of the Pentagon's tough standard for counting Soviet MIRV's (Multiple Independent Reentry Vehicles). That turned into a vindication of Schlesinger's arguments for hard bargaining when Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev agreed in Helsinki to MIRV verification.

But picayune maneuverings over whether the Pentagon would have its own man in Helsinki undercut this unity. As we reported earlier, Schlesinger requested that a high level Pentagon representative attend the Helsinki bilateral negotiations about SALT. Acting on Kissinger's recommendation, Mr. Ford replied the Soviets wanted only four persons per side—definitely excluding the military of both nations.

Schlesinger, therefore, sent nobody. But at Helsinki, the cozy four-man game suddenly doubled, with eight Americans and eight Russians sitting in—including, unexpectedly, Gen. Mikhail Kozlov, deputy chief of the Soviet general staff.

Pentagon officials concluded Henry had tricked them again. Elsewhere in the bureaucracy, the interpretation was that Kissinger was determined not to let his Kremlin counterparts think he was being outflanked by Schlesinger. Nothing occurred at Helsinki to alarm the Pentagon. But Kissinger's maneuverings raised doubt about how long he—and the President—will stick to these hard bargaining points:

The Soviet Backfire bomber: The Kremlin contends it is only a local weapon and is not to be counted among strategic weapons according to the SALT agreement reached in Vladivostok last November. But the Backfire can easily reach the continental United States on a one-way flight and, by refueling in Cuba, could make a round trip. Therefore, the U.S. insists the Backfire must be counted among strategic weapons.

Cruise missiles: The Soviets claim the Vladivostok agreement counts as strategic weapons subsonic cruise missiles, fired from bombers, with a range over 600 kilometers. But the U.S. military contends that this conveniently discriminates against U.S. cruise missiles which could reach the Russian heartland.

Missile size: The Pentagon, backed by U.S. Disarmanent Director Fred Ikle, considers it vital to negotiate reductions in the huge Soviet advantage of larger missiles and believes Brezhnev is now ready to negotiate.

The question of U.S. survival may depend more on missile size than on any other issue. But in the short run, the Backfire bomber is most politically combustible. Should the U.S. permit this menace to the U.S. heartland to be omitted from strategic weapons, Mr. Ford would be open for intense political assault.

When Kissinger first returned from Helsinki, colleagues found him pessimistic about prospects for a SALT agreement this year and wedded to a tough bargaining position. But more recently, officials describe him as reverting to his old theme of this being the last chance for agreement that would avoid additional multi-billion-dollar defense requirements. If he follows that through by recommending key concessions, Mr. Ford will face the most difficult and most fateful choice of his presidency.

Strength For Today

NO REASON FOR DESPAIR

"Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why are thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise Him who is the health of my countenance and my God." (Ps 43:11).

These are the words of one who had experienced the fellowship of the Divine, who had walked the pathway of life and felt that he did not walk it alone. The only thing that will turn the cries of pain upon our lips into joyful paeans of praise and thanksgiving is the consciousness that the Ruler of the Universe sees and cares and stands ready at all times to help. As God took the cross of Jesus Christ, a tragic thing, and made it into mankind's greatest blessing, so does He take every tragic circumstance of our lives and turn it to our good if we will let Him do so.

If God spared not His own son in His effort to save us and make us happy, we can be sure that divine concern for our welfare still continues.

Many Ignore Warning Signals

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Many small-and medium-size business men prefer to slide down the chute to bankruptcy with their eyes closed and their arms folded rather than recognize the warning signals.

That is the observation of some accountants and others who are called in during the terminal days of once-healthy concerns.

"You'd be surprised how many either will turn their backs on realities or minimize the warning signals when they occur," states an executive of Coopers & Lybrand, the big accounting firm.

Maintaining that "there has never been such a period of uncertainty in predicting the future," the firm is preparing to publish for its clients an advisory booklet on sound planning and cash control techniques.

One tip: Read those sales reports carefully. Salesmen often fear to report dropping orders lest it reflects on their performance, the accountants say. A change in the order "mix" also can foretell dangers.

"A shift in sales mix toward less profitable products is a development that frequently occurs hand in hand with a decrease in sales volume," the booklet will say, making the onset of trouble doubly deadly and swift.

Some other signals of trouble:

—Your customers, who themselves might be pressed, request delays in shipment of orders already placed, thus preventing you from converting products into cash. And the goods might have to be stored at your expense.

—Your customers reject discounts for early payment and ask for longer periods in which to settle. This increases the financing cost to you and adds to the risk of not being able to collect at all, at least in full.

—The quality of your company's work is slipping. Idle time is increasing. Hirelings act contrary to management's plans, especially in the costly areas of hiring and purchasing.

In fighting back, the accounting firm says, the businessman must focus on mobilizing cash, instituting cash controls, improving revenue and using his credit more wisely.

Unproductive assets should be put to work. Funds should be used more intensively. "You should consider using bank wires or telephone transfer checks which can move funds overnight from branch office to head office," they advise.

"Excess funds can be invested temporarily in short-term money market vehicles to earn interest," the booklet will say, advising businessmen that "a broker or banker can quickly identify and obtain secure investments for you over a weekend or even for one day."

An attack might be launched on accounts receivable, particularly where payments are withheld because of customer complaints. Collection agencies might have to be brought in or, if

Optimism Is Leveled Off

PRINCETON, N.J.,—The long uptrend in public optimism concerning the economy has leveled off. In the latest survey, 40 per cent think economic conditions will improve in the next six months while 39 per cent think the situation will get worse.

In the previous survey, conducted in early June, the results obtained closely parallel the latest figures, with 42 per cent saying economic conditions will get "better" and 36 per cent saying "worse." Prior to the June survey, optimism had grown steadily since August 1974, as recorded in regular surveys. In that first measurement, only 13 per cent predicted an improvement in economic conditions.

In terms of occupation groups, those in the professions and business are currently the most optimistic, with nearly twice as many saying "better" as saying "worse." In contrast, only 33 per cent of unskilled manual workers predict better times ahead, compared to 51 per cent who say things will get worse.

The public has established a good record for economic predictions: Most recently, for example, more than eight in 10 Americans in January 1974 predicted a year of economic difficulty. This was in sharp contrast to the predictions of virtually all economists.

Here is the question asked in the latest nationwide survey and in six previous surveys:

"Do you think the economic situation in the United States during the next six months will get better or will get worse?"

Here is the full trend:

Will Economic Conditions Get Better Or Worse During Next Six Months?

here," he said.

"I know many people who, from a professional point of view, don't want to remain in the country."

Wagner studied abroad but returned to Tel Aviv several years ago only to move again this year.

"If you show initiative, people are afraid to help you because you may become better than they," he said. "I'm leaving because I'm looking for the chance to progress."

The Jewish Agency, a semi-governmental body charged with encouraging immigration and taking care of immigrants once they get to Israel, has recently started trying to lure back former Israelis.

Officials said they expect up to 2,000 people to return under the scheme, which provides housing and tax benefits.

But in the first half of 1975, there were only 203 returning residents listed on the books.

"When you're outside the country, there are many promises, but when you return here, it's very different," Wagner said.

Dominowitz said the dominant factor behind increasing emigration is the Middle East political stalemate and the threat of another war with the Arabs.

Yiska Aran, a young Jerusalem secretary, said the desire to leave "is especially prominent among the young men who say they are fed up with the amount of military service they must do."

"Personally, even if I have to suffer here and make do with less than I would outside, this is my home and I would never consider leaving," she said.

Israel had been banking on Soviet Jews to achieve its aims for rapid population growth.

But the rate of immigrating Soviet Jews—32,000 in 1973—dwindled to 17,000 in 1974 and 3,500 in the first half of 1975.

customers themselves are caught in a cash squeeze, a reduced schedule of payments might be negotiated.

The work force should be examined. Often, the accountants say, they find opportunities to reduce clerical staffs. Frequently they find unutilized space that can be eliminated. They advise businessmen to scrutinize telephone bills and expense accounts.

A review of product lines often turn up potential savings. In many companies, they say, close to 80 per cent of sales dollars are generated by just 20 per cent of products.

If a businessman finds this to be so in his company he should consider raising prices of unprofitable or marginal lines, or probably job out marginal lines to subcontractors. He shouldn't be afraid to drop products altogether.

A review of freight allowances might reveal savings opportunities. "Are you still absorbing freight charges based on competitive conditions that no longer exist?" the accountants ask.

Also called for is a closer supervision of returned goods, and a close watch on costs when customers want changes in products after production has begun.

A Conservative View

A Better Course Lies In Restraining Ourselves

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The American Bar Association, meeting in Montreal, heard three heavyweights the other day on the issue of presidential power. The three distinguished scholars came up with a conclusion that even these lightweights could have reached: Time and events have contrived, willy-nilly, to confer great powers upon our Presidents; and willy-nilly, Presidents will use them.

Professor Arthur Schlesinger, who helped to foster the imperial presidency, once more expressed dismay at his offspring. Professor James MacGregor Burns, whose faith in the party system remains touchingly strong, once more advocated a strengthening of the party system. Professor Raoul Berger, who contributed so much to the aborted impeachment of Mr. Nixon, turned around on the theme of a President's war-making powers, which he found insufficiently restrained.

The topic is as old as the Constitution itself, but is is not a topic that would be reserved for intellectual disputation. All of us can get in this act.

Does the executive have too much power? Yes. Is the excess of power likely to be surrendered voluntarily? No. Is the presidential power likely to increase? Yes. Will Congress do anything about it? No. Will the judiciary restrain the presidency? Only in the most extraordinary instances. What, then, should be done? The answer is to elect Presidents with some sense of self-restraint, and to hope for the best.

If that is a pessimistic catechism, so be it. Under the original plan of our federated union, the states were to provide a massive bulwark against the excesses of national power. But the states today are not even paper barricades. Under the theory of separation of powers, the three branches of government were conceived as related planets, each confined to its own orbit; but the theory no longer commands respect. Inevitably, as national problems have demanded national attack, political power has surged to Washington; and inevitably, within Washington, the exercise of that power has gone to the President and to the executive agencies.

Man and boy, I have spent most of my life hearing talk of "restoring the balance of power," and it is all talk. Now and then Congress stirs its flabby bulk and exercises some forgotten muscle; but it is only now and then. The more familiar pattern is for Congress not to assert its powers, but to abdicate them. Read any day's Federal Register, and perceive where power lies.

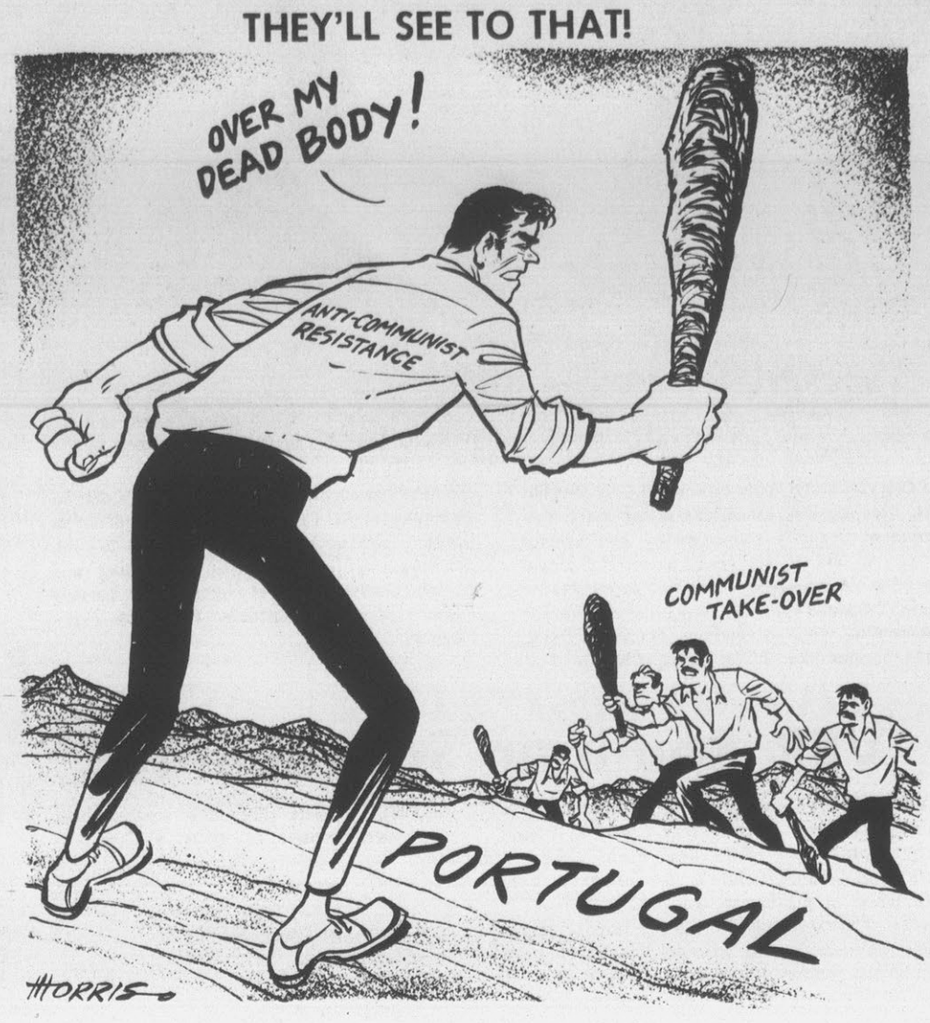

All this was foreseen. If I were dean of a college, and could fix required courses, I would require that every student spend a semester studying the Virginia Convention of 1788. This was the greatest recorded gathering of political minds in the history of this republic. The questions of power that absorbed the scholars at Montreal were the identical questions that absorbed the delegates at Richmond.

Listen to Patrick Henry: "If your American chief be a man of ambition and abilities, how easy is it for him to render himself absolute! The army is in his hands . . . There is to be a great and mighty President, with very extensive powers—the powers of a king! He is to be supported in extravagant magnificence . . . Will not the influence of the President himself have great weight in his re-election? The variety of the offices at his disposal will acquire him the favor and attachment of those who aspire after them. . ."

The underlying theme of that convention was power. Henry insisted that power be sparingly delegated and rigorously restrained: "If you give too little power today, you may give more tomorrow. But the reverse of that proposition will not hold. If you give too much power today, you cannot retake it tomorrow, for tomorrow will never come for that purpose."

Henry's prophecies are as timely as Schlesinger's speeches. Under Gerald Ford, the superficial trappings of an "imperial" presidency thankfully have disappeared—the trumpets, the footmen, the "Hail to the Chief"—but the substance remains. The power remains. And the more the people ask of Congress, in the way of social and economic legislation, the more that power must expand. The best way to avoid the ultimate authoritarianism is not to restrain Presidents, but to restrain ourselves.

THEY'LL SEE TO THAT!

Ford And Burns Appear Willing To Face Clamor Over Inflation-Fighting

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

The Ford White House and the Federal Reserve Board are willing to risk the political flack sure to be generated by the rising trend in interest rates.

At any rate, this is the conclusion of some of the sharp-penciled analysts who follow the money market. They are advising savers to keep investment funds "liquid" so they can take advantage of higher interest rates ahead.

What they are saying is that the slide in interest rates, from the record levels of late last year and early this year, not only has hit bottom but is once again on a firm uptrend. Indeed, one of the most conspicuous of the trend-setting rates, the so-called prime rate banks charge their biggest and best customers, already has made a substantial gain. This rate, as low as 6¾ per cent in June has climbed to 7¾ per cent. Other rates show similar changes, including rates paid by the U.S. Treasury on its borrowings.

The movement in the money markets has a political side which is well worth noting. Many Democrats in Congress have critized President Ford for spending bill vetoes, and the Federal Reserve for credit tightening moves, claiming they are applying anti-inflation brakes which may hamper recovery—slow it.

Ford and Chairman Arthur Bruns of the Federal Reserve Board are well aware of the risks involved. Neither is a stranger to politics. Both see inflation as the big threat to the future. And, apparently, they think they have strong public backing for a tough stand against inflation, as against policies which might send recovery zooming, and prices along with it.

This reading draws support from Ford's successful vetoes of four major "economic" bills during May and June. These were the so-called Emergency Farm Bill, the Emergency Employment Appropriations Act, the Strip Mining Bill and the Emergency Housing Bill.

Ford's a contention was that each of these measures was inflationary. Congress supported the vetoes, even though it was claimed the Employment Act would create 900,000 jobs at a time when unemployment was at the peak rate of 9.2 per cent.

The vetoes produced a lot of yelling in Congress, since three of the four bills were of the spending type which members of the House and Senate dearly love. Significantly, though, there was little criticism of the President from the public. Polls show the public also sees inflation as the no. 1 national danger.

The results not only were encouraging to Ford, facing a huge and hostile Democratic majority in both the House and Senate and concerned that he would loose control of spending completely. They apparently bucked up Chairman Burns, who had been threatened with Congressional restrictions on FED activities.

It was during the string of veto victories that Burns moved from a policy which was rapidly expending the money supply, and depressing interest rates, to a course of restraint. Some money market experts feel the vetoes persuaded Burns that the threat to the Fed could be turned in the same way, if necessary.

Since then, Burns has had to defend himself before the House Banking and Currency Committee, where some of his chief Congressional criticizes it. He pictured the Fed's restraint moves as necessary to correct distortions and not a move to alter the general course of money policy. And he stuck with his commitment to Congress to expand the money supply at an annual rate of, roughly, 5 per cent to 7 per cent.

This commitment is not to what might be called "easy" money. It is, in fact, moderate, when you take into account the current rate of inflation. It would take a much more expansive policy to drive inflation back into the double diget zone all by itself.

Experts in such matters still find it hard to spell out, in anything approaching specific terms, the objections of Fed policy. But there is a lot of reconsideration of remarks Burns made to the Society of American Business Writers last May, when he talked of the need "to build a solid foundation for our nation's economic future," saying!

"Since World War II, a concensus has been building in this country that the primary task of economic policy is to maintain full employment and promote maximum economic growth. We have pursued these goals by being ever ready to stimulate the economy through increased federal spending, lower taxes, or monetary ease. Neglect of inflation, and of longer-run economic and financial problems, has thus crept insidiously into public policy making. Our government has become accustomed to respond with alacrity to any hint of weakness in economic activity, but to react sluggishly, and sometimes not at all, to signs of excess demand and developing inflationary pressures."

This states the inflation problem and points the direction for policy. And, based on what has been happening. Burns would appear to have the full support of the President. Both are on the side of a recovery which can be sustained, as against another quick boom and another record-shattering recession.

A Great Mental Block And How It All Began

Eastern North Carolina's August humidity does strange things to me. During August I have nightmares about a giant Odor attacking my box of Arm and Hammer Baking Soda. I begin spraying myself with Lysol instead of deodorant. And I refuse to go to the bathroom with the door shut.

This latter peculiarity did not develop without a reason. It resulted from an incident that occurred on the road between Raleigh and Greenville. Phillip and I were driving along one muggy afternoon when the humidity was so high that even the car was sweating, and all of a sudden I heard the call of Nature. Actually, her call wasn't all that sudden—it was just that at this point it increased from a whisper to a full-fledged roar.

"Stop the car at the nearest gas station," I commanded.

"Can't it wait?" Phillip asked, exercising his usual aversion to having to slow down for anything less momentous than an earthquake or food. By the time I convinced him that it couldn't we had passed two perfectly good service stations and were in a stretch of wilderness relieved only by periodic roadside inducements to watch for cows crossing the road and to stop in at the Plowboy Club.

Finally, we spied a small country store and stopped. I partially unwound my legs, hopped out of the car, and asked the manager where the ladies' room was.

"Over thar," he answered, jerking his head to the right and spitting a chaw of tobacco through the gap that was once his front teeth.

GAIL MICHAELS

The shack that he indicated would never be featured in Better Homes and Gardens, but then this wasn't exactly the time to be choosy. I didn't even stop to wonder whether my Lysol would work on a potty where you couldn't see the bottom. I just thanked the man profusely, hobbled over to the outhouse on my plaited legs, and slammed the door.

Two minutes later I tried to open the door. I couldn't. The wood had swelled with the humidity, and the door was stuck.

"Don't panic," I murmured to myself as I sat down on the commode and began to furiously pound the door with my feet.

The door didn't budge.

Then I tried standing on the commode and jumping off, throwing my full weight against the door.

It still didn't budge. The heat was getting so bad that I felt like I'd been trapped in the very bowels of the earth.

"Help!" I screamed, beating the recalcitrant door with my fists. "Get me out of here before I get brain damage from the fumes! Hel-l-up!"

Nobody answered.

I began to envision the Ty-D-Bowl man performing last rites over my asphyxiated body. There was only one thing left to do. I prayed.

"Oh, dear God, if you'll get me out of here, I promise never to forget to clean the bathroom again. I promise I won't drink Pepsi on long trips. I promise . . . I promise I'll never make Phillip stop again, even if I drown."

If God didn't hear me, Phillip did. Just as I was considering flushing myself down the toilet to get relief from the heat, the door was jerked open from the outside. There stood the manager, barely suppressing a grin over my plight, and behind him stood Phillip, nonchalantly munching on a Nabs.

"Where have you been?" I sobbed to Phillip. "What did you think I was doing—making confetti from the Sears Catalogue?"

"Well, I didn't know," he said defensively. "I thought you might be suffering from irregularity."

Finding his explanation unsatisfactory at best, I turned to the manager and screamed, "I could have died of heat stroke in there. That outhouse is a menace to society!"

"Yup," the unruffled manager drawled, spitting another chaw, "We always have trouble with that door."

Millions Of Dollars, Much Effort And Time, Fail Cure Watts

EDITOR'S NOTE — Ten years ago the Watts ghetto erupted in riots and its very name became a symbol of urban black frustration. What has happened to Watts in the decade since? Despite millions of dollars and notable effort, its seems despair is deeper and violence worse.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The goal in this city's black ghetto of Watts 10 years after its week of terror is to survive — to survive unemployment, muggings, killings, robbery and the ignominy of welfare.

For Marquette Frye, whose arrest for drunken driving sparked the 1965 riots there, the world seems to love only junkies and policemen.

In some ways, Frye is a symbol of Watts' despair.

Little has changed since the riots, or "Watts revolt" as some there prefer. Some conditions are worse. Joblessness for inner city blacks stands at about 20 per cent. It is about 9 per cent for the rest of California. In 1965 the rate was about 15 per cent.

Youth gang violence is a daily terror.

Welfare is still a way of life. In city housing projects in the area more than 90 per cent of the residents are on relief.

There are some changes. "We have arrested the educational trend that was going down, down, down," says a school official. More Watts blacks are going to college. There are blacks in jobs that were not open to them 10, even 5, years ago.

There's the $39 million Martin Luther King Hospital. There are real leaders inside the community who get things done.

Los Angeles has a black mayor. It is unthinkable today that blacks should ride in the back of buses, eat at separate lunch counters, drink at segregated fountains, use separate toilets.

But many blacks say they do not glory in having or doing what should have been theirs in the first place as human beings and American citizens.

Another riot? It is not likely, say residents who should know. The lesson of 1965 is that you can't win against the police and National Guard. But these same experts add that the frustration and sense of helplessness may be reflected in another way. Some point to the youth gang violence—blacks killing and robbing blacks.

Frye lives in a modest frame house not far from the scene of the heaviest rioting. Through his screen door he sees children on their way home from school who may soon be dropouts like he had been. He sees gang members with their brimmed hats and poorly concealed guns who might soon be dead. Jobless men lounge over parking meters.

He has been arrested 34 times since the riots ... robbery, assault, disturbing the peace. Police harassment, he says.

He can't get a job. The white world — and many blacks — fear him as a troublemaker, "the man who started the riot," he says. He does odd jobs now under an alias.

Frye was 21 when he was driving home in a 1955 Buick with his stepbrother, Ronnie, after having a couple of drinks. A highway patrolman stopped the car.

It was about 7 p.m., Aug. 11, 1965. Frye was given a sobriety test and then taken into custody for investigation of drunken driving.

Frye's mother appeared on the scene and got into a scuffle with police. A crowd of 1,000 blacks gathered. Police units arrived.

The crowd grew surly. Bottles and bricks were tossed. The lid blew and six days of rioting, looting and burning began.

In that week 34 persons died and $40 million worth of property was damaged or destroyed. The black area has been free of violent racial confrontation since the riot.

Watts is a five-square-mile community of 150,000 that is the heart of where approximately 750,000 blacks live. When most persons say "Watts," they almost always mean the entire south-central area.

For a while after the riots, officialdom poured millions of emergency relief dollars into the black community. But as the Vietnam war gathered steam, money fell off.

Landmarks to the money and effort are sprinkled throughout the area — the hospital, a Bank of America branch, a large welfare building, a small industrial farm. But the general feeling today is that few dollars filtered down to the man in the street.

There are 180 gangs in the Los Angeles area with 12,000 members, police say. That is 50 times the number of gangs in 1965 and, said one officer, "They are 100 times as violent."

About three-quarters are black gangs. Gangs last year were involved in 55 deaths, 943 assaults with a deadly weapon, 346 assaults with intent to commit murder, 279 kidnapings, 22 rapes, 11 fire bombings and 105 cases of shooting at an inhabited dwellings, police say.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The murder trial of former Green Beret Dr. Jeffery MacDonald will not be held before October, if at all, defense attorney Bernard Segal said Friday night.

Segal said the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va. has postponed the trial until appeals of several motions to dismiss the charges are determined.

Those appeals will be argued the week of Oct. 6, said Segal, in a telephone interview from his home in San Francisco.

MacDonald was scheduled to go on trial Monday in Raleigh on charges of murdering his wife and two daughters in 1970 at Ft. Bragg.

An Army investigation cleared MacDonald, but at the insistance of MacDonald's father-in-law, the case was reopened and an indictment handed down in January.

Segal contends that MacDonald has been denied a speedy trial, placed in double jeopardy because that Army investigation was tantamount to prosecution, and indicted by an improperly selected grand jury.

The appellate court said it was "of the view that the contentions made are not frivolous and that the rights asserted are too important to be denied review..."

"For these reasons we allow the appeals and direct the district court to stay further proceedings in in the trial of the case until the appeals are determined," the court said.

Segal has asked for a review by the U.S. Supreme Court of the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals' refusal to issue a writ of mandamus to force U.S. District Court Judge Franklin Dupree to rescind his denial of a motion for a change of venue to Los Angeles.

He said he asked the high court to determine appelate courts should issue those writs and if they have the power to issue them.

Segal has said he wants the trial moved to the west coast, where MacDonald works in a Long Beach, Calif. hospital, because the expense of a North Carolina trial would be financially ruinous to MacDonald.

Segal has also told Dupree that he would be unable to defend MacDonald unless the trial were moved.

MacDonald claims innocence. He has contended all along that a band of hippie marauders killed his wife and daughters.

Search For Suspects

LEXINGTON, N.C. (UPI) — Police Saturday searched for suspects in what they called a running gunbattle involving a local motorcycle club in which one man was left dead in a bullet riddled van.

Davidson County Sheriff Paul McCrary said Terry A. Surratt, 21, of Charlotte was dead on arrival at a local hospital early Saturday after he was shot three times during a exchange of gunfire along Interstate 85 north of here.

Another man, identified only as "Junebug" Curry, received minor wounds from shotgun pellets and did not require hospitalization.

McCrary said both men were members of the "Outlaw" motorcycle gang, and were passengers in a van being pursued by two car loads of men around midnight Friday.

The sheriff said the van was fired on with a shotgun, a .22 caliber rifle, and some type of automatic weapon. He said the van had about 30 bullets holes in it and numerous dents from shotgun pellets when officers arrived on the scene.

The incident was preceded by another shooting which McCrary said apparently was staged to set up an "ambush." One member of the motorcycle group was fired on earlier in the night while on his way to the group's clubhouse on Highway 39.

"They apparently were not trying to shoot the single rider," said McCrary. "They just wanted him to go back and tell the rest of the Outlaws what happened."

Bound Over For Trial

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Two sisters were bound over Friday for trial on first degree murder in the Aug. 5 strangulation death of an elderly widow.

Their brothers are also charged in the death of Mrs. Euphie Adams, 81.

District Court Judge Carlos Murray found probable cause for the trial of Kathy Stokes, 16, and Linda Stokes, 20.

Timothy Stokes, 14, faces a preliminary hearing and could be tried as an adult and face the death penalty. Steven Stokes, 13, will be tried in juvenile court.

Mrs. Adams was hit in the head with a flashlight when she went into her yard to pick flowers, testified two Raleigh police detectives.

Dr. Laurin J. Kassa, changing his earlier report that the woman died from a blow to the head from a blunt object, said death resulted from strangulation.

Kassa said almost half the woman's ribs were broken.

Shave That PEAK!

"Peak demand"...the maximum amount of electricity Greenville Utilities must have the capability of delivering at the time you demand it.

You establish peak demand; and because your electric rates are based in part on peak demand, you help set your own rate.

You can help keep next year's rate down by helping to shave this year's peak demand.

Peak demand usually occurs between 5:00 PM and 7:00 PM on very hot days, when everybody gets home from work. Air conditioning is turned lower...meals are cooked...dishes get washed...laundry is washed and dried. Everybody doing everything at the same time.

A few simple changes in people's habits could make quite a difference.

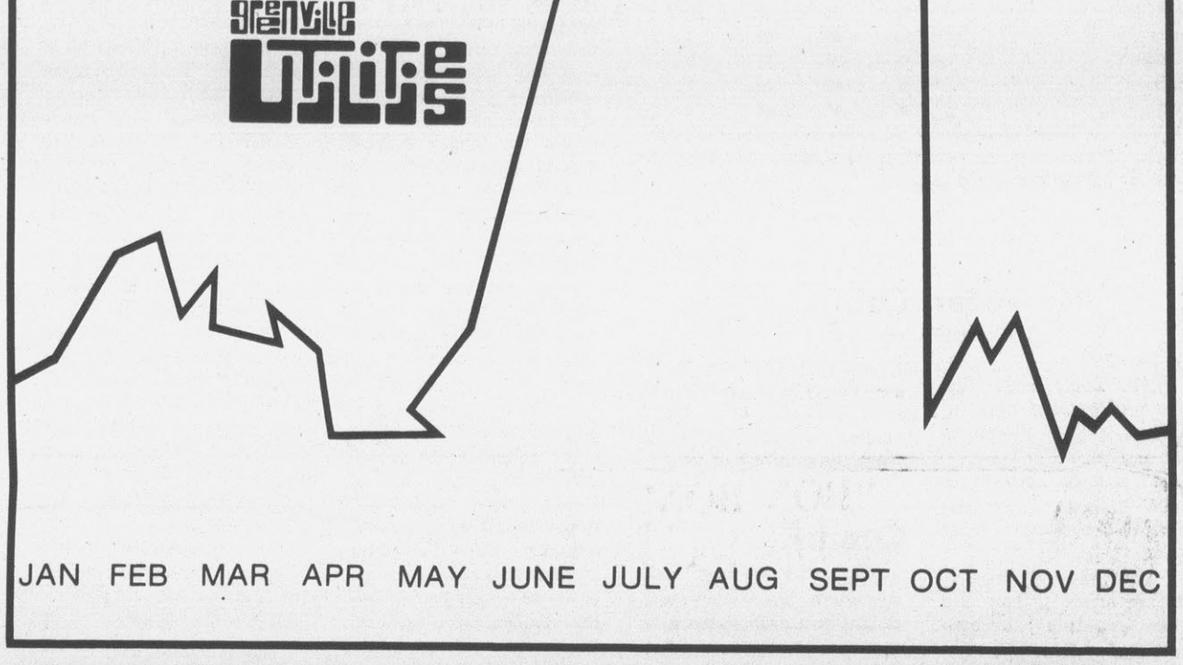

(1)...Set your air conditioning at 78° or higher and leave it there until after 7:00 PM.
(2)...Cook out more often. It's fun and it saves electricity.
(3)...Make indoor meals cool meals: salads, cold cuts, etc.
(4)...Wait till late in the evening or early the next morning to turn on your dishwasher.
(5)...Do your laundry in the morning.
(6)...If you're not watching TV or using a lamp, turn it off.

You don't have to stop using electricity to hold down electric rates...just use it more wisely.

Shave the peak demand.

Kennington

Ranch style displays traditional charm

FLOOR PLAN TAKES CONTEMPORARY APPROACH.

By Jerry Bishop

Trimmed in brick, shutters, and diamond light windows, and accented with a cupola, the Kennington exhibits the successful adaption of traditional design to the dwellings of today. Its highly up-to-date floor plan offers formal living and dining rooms, an open family room-kitchen, and a master bedroom that meets contemporary standards of luxury.

Welcome is expressed by the gracious foyer, with kitchen and family room immediately at left. Informality is the keynote in this area, which combines a 20-ft. family room with a compact kitchen. A snack bar, invaluable for parties, divides the two sections, and a wood-burning fireplace promises warmth and atmosphere.

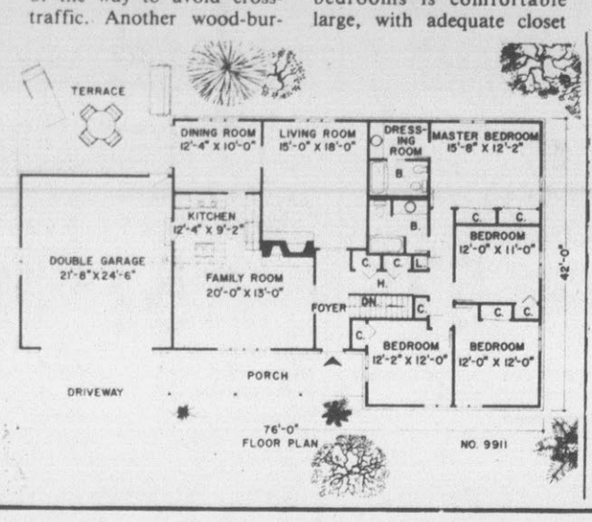

Directly behind the kitchen is the ample dining room. Joined to the terrace via sliding glass doors, the dining room fills the need for a formal eating area and the terrace encourages picnics. Bordering the dining room is a formal living room, set at the back of the house and out of the way to avoid cross-traffic. Another wood-burning fireplace makes this area desirable for entertaining or relaxing.

Off the foyer at right is the well-defined sleeping wing. Four sizable bedrooms are tuck away, with hallway and baths buffering noises from the living area. Each of the bedrooms is comfortable large, with adequate closet space and plenty of natural light. Highlighting this section is the airy master bedroom, well-proportioned and favored with double closets, dressing room, and private bath. The hall bath is compartmented for convenience.

Over 2000 square feet of living space is contained in this appealing ranch style, and a full basement provides the same amount of unfinished space for storage, utilities, and future living areas.

Large enough to house bicycles, tools, and lawn and garden equipment, the double garage borders and opens to the kitchen and terrace.

The Garden Clinic

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. Our bearded iris have become overgrown and crowded. Is it o.k. to thin them out now? (C.A., Ashley Heights)

A. Bearded iris plantings that have become crowded may be dug, divided and replanted now. Cut out rotted portions or rhizomes; coat ends with sulphur. Let rhizomes dry for a few days before planting. Iris beds can be made neater by pulling off browned leaves of each "fan." There is no need for shearing across the tops except when plants are moved. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. This past season my carrots were short and stubby. They are usually long and slender. What caused this?? (T.R., Liberty)

A. You must have changed varieties. There are both short and long varieties. Often the name will signify the type. For example, "Half-Long" is relatively short while "Golden Spike" is long and slender. Length has no effect on flavor, however. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. I vacationed in Europe last year and was impressed by the way in which the Dutch grow strawberries in greenhouses. Couldn't we develop a new industry here by growing greenhouse strawberries during the winter? (C.P., Winston-Salem)

A. I doubt it. We get strawberries from California almost year around, except during early winter when we get them from Florida and Mexico. Because of the tremendous expense of greenhouse culture, it would be awfully hard for a local grower to compete with strawberries shipped from these other areas. I would recommend it only as a hobby or for a very specialized local market. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Q. How rapidly do tomato plants take up fertilizer? (R.W., New Bern)

A. As a general rule, a tomato plant will absorb only three per cent of its total nutrient needs during the first month after transplanting. It will absorb about 27 per cent the second month and about 70 per cent during the remaining months of its growth. (W.W. Reid, extension horticulturist)

Space Photos Evaluate Lakes

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Satellite photographs are being used by scientists here to evaluate about 100 of the nation's lakes in studies which may cut costs for future water quality monitoring.

Using the Earth Resources Technology Satellite, the study group examines photographs taken from 569 miles and compares them with ground samples.

David Boland, physical geography expert for the U.S. Environmental Research Center, says the team may eventually determine the quality of lakes without visiting them.

Boland said the survey is designed to identify major lakes which have potential or existing "aging problems" caused by municipal sewage discharges and runoff from other sources.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Modern paints and materials (especially rollers) have made painting a room in a house a lot less of a chore than it used to be. A professional result can be obtained by almost anyone — provided sufficient time is spent on preparing the surface to be covered.

The difference between a good paint job and a poor one often has nothing to do with the skill of the operator. The chances are the variation in results evolved because one person properly prepared the surface and the other did not.

Even when the old surface appears visibly clean, it should be dusted or vacuumed to rid the walls and ceiling of tiny particles of dirt that are usually there even though you can't see them. Where there is more visible dirt, such as the grease that accumulates on kitchen walls and ceilings, it must be washed off with warm water and a detergent and permitted to dry thoroughly. In a severe case, when a grease spot will not yield to ordinary washing, it should be sealed in before painting. One such sealer is shellac, diluted 50 per cent with denatured alcohol.

Paint will not generally adhere well to a glossy surface. By the time most glossy walls are ready to be painted, most or all of the gloss may be gone. But if it isn't, the glossy areas should be sanded lightly. Where sanding will be a tedious job — if, for instance, the entire surface is still glossy — you can apply a coat of a liquid preparation made especially for this purpose.

Peeling or flaking paint must be scraped off, with the edges smoothed with sandpaper. Any breaks in the plaster or the wallboard can be repaired with a spackling material. Even tiny cracks should be mended. Paint will tend to cover them, but it will be only a question of time before they show through again. Regardless of the kind of plaster patching material that is used, read the instructions on the container to determine whether the patches should be primed after they have dried and been sanded smooth. If the particular brand you buy has no data, play safe and prime the patch with an undercoater, diluted shellac or special primer.

If you do not want to get paint on the electric switch and outlet covers, detach them, paint the area and replace them when the paint is dry to the touch. This is the proper way to get a neat result. However, this may not be the best method if there are children or others in the house who might poke around the opening during the short time the cover is off. Should this be the case and you still want to remove the covers, turn off the electricity to those switches and outlets.

A frequent question is whether one or two coats is required. Nobody can answer that query at long range. It will depend on the kind of paint being used, the condition of the old surface and, perhaps most important, whether a light color is being used over a light color, a light color over a dark color, or a dark color over a light color. In the first and third instances of color, one coat may prove to be enough. In the case of a light color over a dark color, it may be necessary to use two coats.

No doubt about it. Paint must be applied to a clean, sound surface if you are interested in insuring its long life.

(The techniques of painting, including the use of rollers and brushes, are detailed in Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," available by sending 30 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743.)

Ponder Pest To Control Another

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Parks and Wildlife biologists are studying the possibility of using one foreign pest to fight off another.

Several Texas waterways have become infested with hydrilla, a fast-growing plant which clogs lakes and prevents boat traffic.

The biologists are considering importing white amur, an Asian fish commonly known as grass carp, to eat the hydrilla.

'Big Bird' Has Turned On Young Readers

NEW YORK (AP) — Teaching aides usually don't come decked out in yellow feathers but this fall many grade-school teachers across the U.S. will be using the very yellow Big Bird and his "Sesame Street" cronies to turn new and problem learners on to reading.

It's all part of a new three-part multimedia reading assistance program jointly developed by the Children's Television Workshop and the Addison-Wesley publishing company to give teachers the proven appeal and popularity of "Sesame Street" and CTW's grade-school-level reading show, "The Electric Company," as tools to head off reading failure.

One of the three supplemental classroom reading kits based on "Sesame Street" is designed to teach prereading on the kindergarten and first-grade levels. The other two, one of which is already being used in schools, employs "Electric Company" characters to teach important first elements of the actual reading process.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — My husband and I are having a difference of opinion about the question of whether to permit vines to grow up the sides of our house. He says that vines can do much damage to the outside of the house. I maintain that this might be true in the case of a wood house, but that it won't apply in our case because the outside of our house is completely brick. Will you please tell my husband he is wrong?

A. — I can't — not if you want the truth. Creeping vines can be very destructive to a house. They have a way of finding even the tiniest opening and boring into it. What might be a pinhole gap in the mortar between bricks can be penetrated by a vine until it becomes large enough for water to enter the house and cause damage every time it rains. The problem is that the vine covers the gap so that it cannot be seen, which means that you know about the trouble only after it occurs. Also, vines hold moisture, which causes the outside of the house to remain damp long after rain has stopped.

Q. — I recently patched the stucco on one side of my house. In digging away the broken pieces of the stucco, I found no metal lath. It is my understanding that, in a well-built house, stucco is applied over metal lath. Does this mean the builder of my house cut corners to save on construction costs?

A. — No, metal lath is generally used wherever there are cold winters. In the warm climate where you live, stucco is usually applied over masonry blocks.

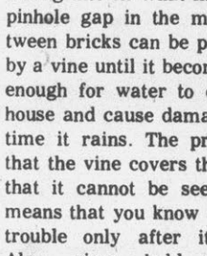

Q. — We moved into an old house a few weeks ago. Every time we shut off any one of the faucets, there is a loud noise, like someone banging on the pipes. What causes this and what can we do about it?

A. — What you hear is an actual banging, known as water hammer. Trace the water lines and see whether one or more of the pipes is loose. It may be that one of the hangers or supports has come loose and is hitting a beam or something similar each time the water pressure causes it to vibrate. If so, reattach the offending pipe. If the water pressure in the system is too high, you will need a plumber to install a pressure-reducing valve, extra pieces of pipe or some other shock-absorbing device. Meanwhile, to prevent damage to the entire plumbing system, instruct everyone in the household to turn off each faucet very slowly.

Q. — During the wash cycle of our dishwater, a tiny bit of water comes out around the door. It is more of a nuisance than anything else, since not enough water leaks to flow to the floor, but I would like to know if there is any way to fix it?

A. — Sounds like an old dishwasher in which the gasket around the door has worn away a little. You can buy a new gasket, remove the old one and glue the new into place. However, you may have a little trouble purchasing the proper kind, so go to a dealer who sells your brand of dishwasher. If he doesn't have it in stock, he can get it for you or, at the very least, tell you where to purchase it.

(Thirty-five do-it-yourself tasks are discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Real Estate

By Louis E. Clark, GRI
REALTOR

PUT VACATION HOME TO WORK

If you build or buy a vacation home, you can put it to work as an investment, let it help your annual tax bill and still enjoy it for your family's pleasure. That's like having your cake and eating it too.

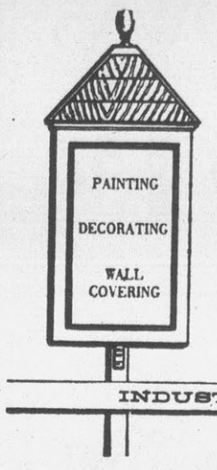

Initially, there's a deduction of real estate taxes, and if you have a mortgage, there's another deduction on the interest paid.

If you decide to rent it out, not only will you receive income to help pay the mortgage, but there are additional legitimate tax savings. You can deduct all of the utilities that you, not the tenant, pay for. Repairs and improvements can also be deducted.

Another important deduction you can take if you rent out your vacation home is depreciation. If a house has a life expectancy of 30 years, you can deduct 1-30th of the cost per year. However, deductions cannot exceed the amount of rental income after you deduct taxes and interest.

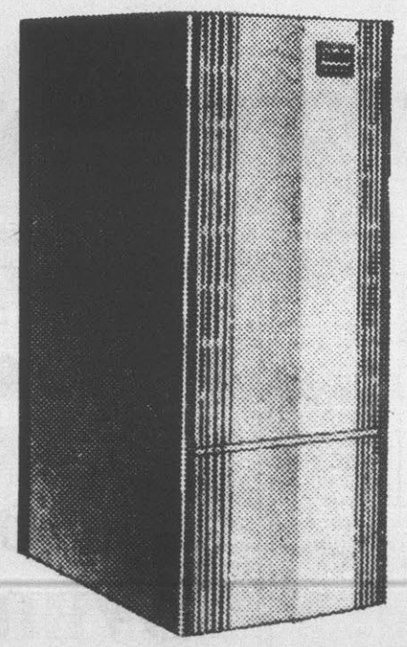

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at LOUIS CLARK AGENCY, IBM Bldg., 100 Reade St., Greenville. Phone: 752-4173. We're here to help!

Change In Postmarks

Rocky Mount and Kinston will still serve as regional postmark centers for mail from Pitt County, but now the postmarks will have those city's names on them instead of just numbers.

The change comes as part of a nationwide move that will change all postmarks in the U.S. Postal Service to include the names of the regional centers from which the mail arrives and departs. Since 1970, only the name of the state and the Zip Code appeared on the postmark. Now, postmarks will bear either Rocky Mount or Kinston, depending on which center the mail came from, and not necessarily the city from which the letter is mailed.

Mail from Greenville and Farmville will be routed to Rocky Mount, according to Greenville postmaster Lloyd Mills. Mail from the Winterville, Ayden, and Grifton communities will go to Kinston. The smaller post offices, Mills said, would continue to postmark their own mail.

College Chorale Here Monday

The Lynchburg Baptist College Chorale will be heard in concert on Monday at 7:00 p.m., at the People's Bible Church, 2020 W. Greenville Blvd.

The chorale includes eight young men and six young ladies. They come equipped with their own sound system, spotlight, and orchestrated accompaniment tracks for many of their numbers.

The program will present the gospel through spirituals and gospel song, as well as with traditional hymns of the church in unusual arrangements, according to Tim St. Clair, road director of the team. Soloists and small-group numbers will be featured, as well as readings by some of the gifted speakers, and personal testimonies by others.

The public is invited to attend the program; there will be no admission charge.

First Marching Band Camp Held For Rose High

Musicians, majorettes and flag bearers of the Rose High School band this past week attended the First Annual Marching Camp ever held for the Greenville School band.

Beginning Sunday, August 10 and continuing through noon Friday, August 15, about 60 students plus the camp's staff put in a week's training at the camp held at Chowan College in Murfreesboro.

With the expressed goal of creating the most spirited marching band ever at Rose for the coming school year, instruction received by the students was concentrated in the fields of rifle, flag and majorette ceremonial movements, in half time shows and marching techniques.

James Rodgers, director of the Rose High School Band, served as director of the First Annual Marching Camp. He was assisted by Kenneth Ginn of Greenville Central High School, whose band has won several major honors.

Regina Bullock of Richmond, Va., head majorette of the ECU Majorette Group; and Frank Oddis, a percussion graduate student of the ECU School of Music, were staff members specializing in work with majorettes and the band's percussion ensemble.

A specialist in flag, rifle and majorette corps ceremonies, Mrs. Lib Waters of Washington, N.C. was another of the staff members at the camp. ECU students under the supervision of Miss Bullock and Oddis rounded out the staff of instructors. Lynn Sherman of Greenville was overall coordinator of activities.

Several Greenville parents were on hand to give assistance—Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shearin, Mrs. Michael Schweisthal, Mrs. Bob Kittrell and Mrs. Norman Wilkerson.

Marlene In 1932 Film Classic

MARLENE DIETRICH. . .famed glamour queen of stage and screen, is shown in a 1932 photograph made during her role in Paramount's "Shanghai Express." The film will be aired at 9 p.m. Friday, August 22 over UNC-TV.

A young Marlene Dietrich, not yet 30, is the star of the 1932 Paramount film, Shanghai Express to be shown over UNC-TV, Channel 25 at 9 p.m. Friday, August 22.

Based on Harry Hervey's story and directed by Joseph von Sternbergh, the film has cinematography by Lee Garms, who won the Academy Award in 1932 for Best Cinematography. Other players starred in Shanghai Express are Clive Brook, Anna May Wong and Warner Oland.

Mordant Hall, writing in the New York Times on February 18, 1932 noted "It is by all odds the best picture Josef von Sternbergh has directed . . . It is as though the audience were taking the ride with the passengers and experiencing some of their nerve-racking experiences."

The ride on the Shanghai Express train has considerable rough action—a killing by stabbing and men popped off by machine-gun fire. But there is also romance between a woman of many casual affairs and a British Army surgeon.

This eighth film of the Hooray For Hollywood series of classic films of the 1930's, being shown over UNC-TV will be followed by another episode of The Phantom Empire, a 12-part serial starring Gene Autry.

Animals From Noah's Ark In Mural At St. James

There's a new mural in Greenville, one that will without question delight the imagination of young children. Blue-eyed dusty rose colored elephants, bright blue rabbits and a pair of overweight worms in colors as bright as Joseph's coat, romp downhill, pleased to be back on dry earth.

Two sisters, Jensina Steinbeck and Rachel Steinbeck Sturz are the artists who painted the big—about 16 foot long, eight foot high wall mural—at St. James United Methodist Church. The brilliantly colored mural is on the hall of the Weekday School section of the church, placed where children will approach the happy menagerie as they walk down the hall to classes.

Noah's Ark, vibrantly fresh in a coat of red paint sits solidly on a hill after the flood waters have receded. A couple of butterflies and the two blue rabbits share the honor of leading the parade out of the ark—a parade that includes two-toned snails, tall spotted giraffes, lemon yellow lion cubs, kangaroos, two plump ducklings. The last in line, coming from the open Ark door are, appropriately smug hippos looking half-asleep.

Both artists are graduates of East Carolina University; Jensina graduated earlier this year with a BFA in design, and Rachel holds a degree in business administration—"from many years ago," she said.

"The idea for the mural came from the mothers in charge of decorating the crib room," Rachel said. "When we saw the big blank wall, the idea of Noah and the Ark came to us."

"We did quite a lot of research," Jensina said, "especially of children's book. We wanted animals that would appeal to children, animals that would be expressive and happy."

All the work involved was a joint project. They began by covering the wall with newsprint. This they took home after making preliminary sketches and lay out to do further work on getting the animals to scale.

"The drawing took much longer than the actual painting once we finished the basic design," Rachel commented. The mural is painted in acrylics on a yellowish-buff plaster background.

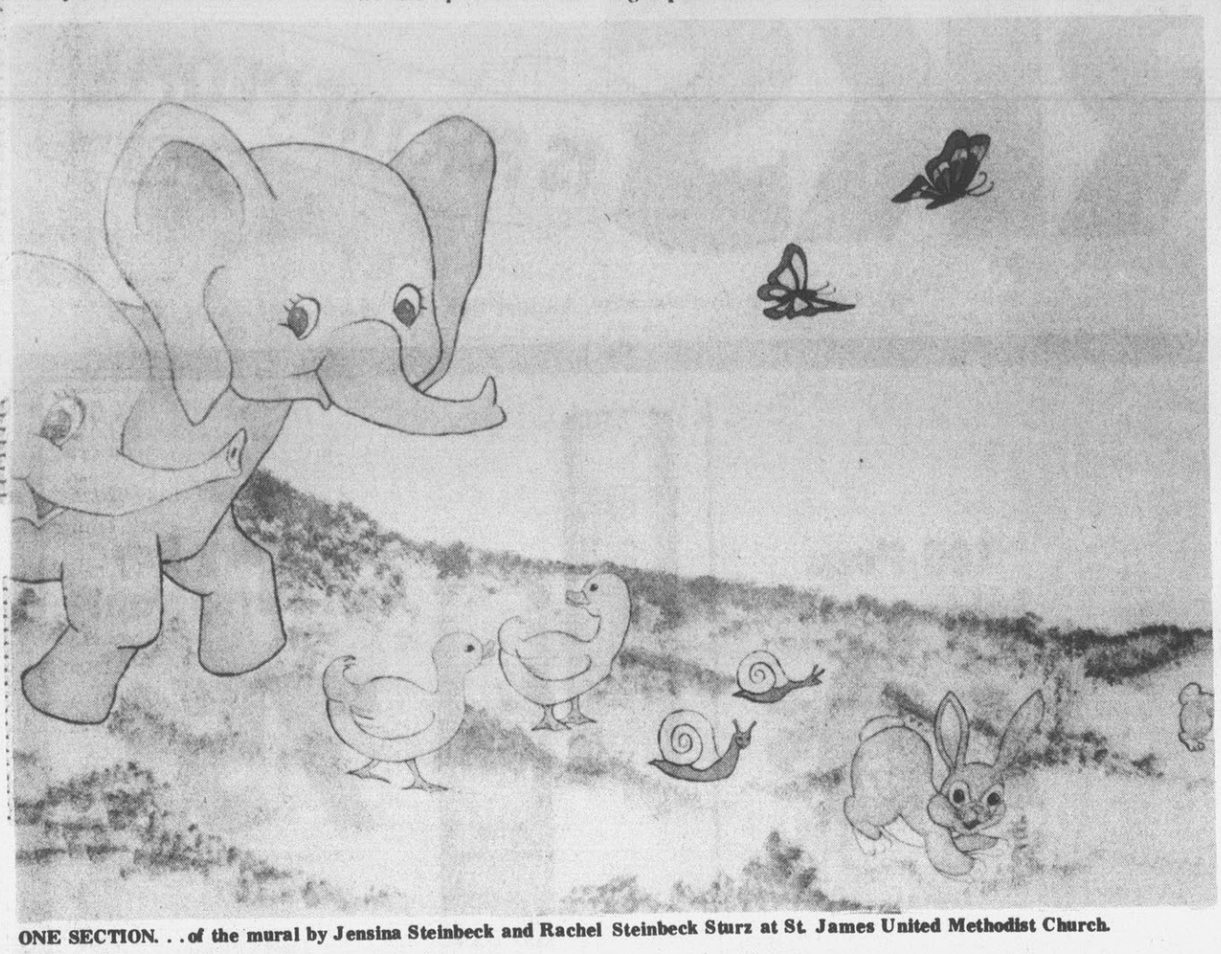

"We enjoyed doing this," Jensina added, "and would certainly be interested in doing similar murals for other churches or interested groups or individuals."

Last Sunday, a presentation ceremony took place at St. James shortly after noon, with the church's senior minister, Rev. F. Roderick Randolph making a statement of purpose about the mural, which was made possible by the United Methodist Women and the Weekday School.

Dr. Ledyard Ross, president of the Board of Trustees of St. James accepted the mural from the two artists on behalf of the church.

The ideal of a beloved Biblical scene in vivid colors seems most fitting for children. The happy beauty of the mural at St. James will appeal also to oldsters who have ever been enchanted by the idea of a traveling zoo returning to land after a long 40 day voyage over the waters of the great flood.

Arts And Crafts Gallery Opens Tomorrow In Winterville

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

Winterville's first arts and craft gallery will make it's debut tomorrow when Abbot and Lynn Webster Hunsucker open "The Woodrack Gallery" at 116 Railroad Street in downtown Winterville.

Both are natives of Winterville and also have in common the fact they're alumni of East Carolina University — Abbott with a degree in industrial and technical education; and Lynn with a degree in English.

"I'm teaching at Kinston High School," Abbot remarked. "Our opening day here at the gallery is also the opening day for the teachers in Kinston schools. But Lynn will be here to open the doors for our first day." Lynn last year taught in the Winterville School, but has given up teaching this year to run the Winterville's first gallery.

Custom framing, collector prints, handcrafted pottery, handcrafted pewter jewelry, books, hand-made afghans and embroidery will form their staple offering of art works.

The young couple pointed out some examples of collector prints, emphasizing that these are almost without exception wildlife prints of birds, flowers, plants and animals.

"We have a variety of prints," Abbott said. "Most are numbered editions and all are signed by the artist. Among the artists whose work we're carrying are Manabu Saito of Japan, and a number of American artists, Don Echleberry, Lunda Gill, Anne Ophelia Dowden, and Arthur Singer." Prints by all these artists are realistic depictions of wildlife in natural colors. One artist, Charles Harper, has stylized silk screens prints. These too are of wildlife, primarily birds.

The pottery being featured is by David Lee of Dillsboro in western North Carolina. Lee is a young potter still in his twenties whose tan, blue, gray and cream worrk includes mugs, plates, cups, goblets and hanging planters.

"Then we have an older artist, aladyin her 70's whose jewelry is made of pewter," Lynn explained. "She's Evelyn Anderson of Webster, she makes necklaces, bracelets, and rings, all signed EGA."

"We're limiting work in our gallery to things that are hand crafted" Lynn added. "There's one thing I hope to have at a later date, Cherokee baskets."

Abbott will handle the custom framing. "My industrial training at ECU has paid dividends," he explained, "because I learned much about wood and craftsmanship." He said he was specializing in frames for prints. "Prints have to be framed correctly," he said, "not only for protection but for the right type of framing to best bring out the beauty of a print."

Animal tales have enchanted men both young and old since storytelling began. No matter how familiar their basic themes, each tale brings new adventure and wonder to the hearts and minds of their readers. The Lion's Paw by D. R. Sherman is much more than the story of a boy who befriends a wounded lion. The setting is Africa's Kalahari Desert, and the characters include: Pxui, a young Bushman who in a moment of passion and mystery gives new life to an injured lion; Jannie, a great but scarred white safari hunter who is obsessed by the idea of killing not only this lion but all wild game; Carol, a young American who is running, but from what? — and the lion, a magnificent creature remarkably different from its own kind. A lion that is intelligent, solitary, and strangely enough, able to give his love to young Pxui who tries to save him.

Mr. Sherman's tale is a timeless one of hunger, thirst, and pain. It deals with the emotions of all creatures— the lion, the black man, the white man, but more important are the basic emotions themselves — love, fear, hate, courage, and compassion. The lion is by far the least savage beast to be tamed during the course of this story.

The Lion's Paw is a moving adventure giving great insight to the desert life and ways of the African Bushman. It is one of those unique stories which offers as much excitement and inspiration from between the lines as that contained within the printed words. But most important, The Lion's Paw is a very special love story.

Another theme of literature which appeals to a broad volume of readers involves man's curiosity for the supernatural or the unnatural phenomena. Norah Lofts' new collection of twelve short stories deals with such a theme. Hauntings - Is There Anybody There? is a collection of twelve ghost stories about houses that are strange, eerie, not as empty as they should be. Stories of creaking stairways, chill bitten rooms, burning passions of suitors from the past, and horrid cries echoing through otherwise empty houses. Here are houses that leave unerasable impressions on the people who enter them, houses where the actions— sometimes good, more often evil— of the people who lived within them create everlasting atmospheres of mystery and uncertainity.

Norah Lofts has written many successful novels. She has a fondness for ghost stories, historical romances, and an obession about houses— all of which find expression in this collection of frightening tales. This collection of hauntings involve forbidding presences, gentle caresses, invisible forces, and other nightmares that visit us when we are wide awake. Hauntings - Is There Anybody There? is twelve stories of houses and places and people possessed by uncanny forces.

Group Fights To Reduce 'Black On Black' Crime

By ROBERT SCHEIER

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)-The Memphis NAACP chapter is fighting to reduce crime, particularly those crimes in which both the criminal and victim are black.

"We're concerned that the statistics are so high and, secondly, concerned that so much violent crime is perpetrated by blacks against other blacks," said Mrs. Maxine Smith, executive secretary of the local NAACP.

Mrs. Smith said 102 of 140 murders, 388 of 466 assaults, 776 of 1,596 robberies and 52 of 75 sex crimes reported in 1974 involved black victims as well as black assailants.

The NAACP chapter, in an "Attack on Crime" begun earlier this year, is trying to reduce both the high levels of crime and the high number of crimes which are "black on black."

The group hopes to persuade officials to improve police protection in black neighborhoods and convince blacks who have mistrusted police in the past to cooperate with authorities.

Police Chief W. O. Crumby said he believes the program is working.

Crumby said over-all crime increased 17.3 per cent in Memphis in June compared to the same period last year, down from a 19 per cent hike in May. The NAACP program may have contributed to the lower rate of increase, he said.

"It seems to be getting people more involved with the police, in as much as we're getting calls to report suspicious persons and suspicious vehicles in neighborhoods," the chief said. "We're catching quite a few burglars."

While there has been mistrust between blacks and police in the past, Crumby said, "the relationship between police officers and the black community is improving and I hope it will continue.

"It (the program) shows black leaders are concerned. Blacks are the ones getting ripped off in their own neighborhoods by blacks."

"Blacks have never been against law and order if it is tempered with justice," said Mrs. Smith, who is also a member of the Memphis Board of Education, "but that was the missing ingredient."

"American society has made it much cheaper for a black to assault another black or murder another black man than to commit the same crime against a white," said Vasco Smith, Mrs. Smith's husband and a member of the Shelby County Quarterly Court, the county's legislative body.

"We've got to equalize the penalties so it's equally painful for a black to be offending a black as for offending a white."

"Operation Whistlestop", in which residents carry whistles to blow if they see or are victims of a crime, has been introduced in several neighborhoods in Memphis, where nearly 40 per cent of the 700,000 population are black.

Anyone hearing a whistle is asked to call the police.

A three-month security program for three public housing projects recently ended. Police said the program, "designed for the most part" by the residents themselves, almost completely eliminated vandalism and greatly reduced major crimes in the target areas.

The program in the public housing projects was part of the NAACP plan to form community organizations to determine what steps to take to reduce crime.

"Some neighborhoods will be interested in activities for youth, others, from a political action point of view, the crime of absentee landlords and vacant houses left in violation of city ordinances," Mrs. Smith said.

"This is more than just reporting burglaries or assaults."

Eleven standing committees have been formed to work on improving educational and job opportunities, reducing unemployment, increasing recreational opportunities for black youths and easing other conditions that can contribute to crime, Mrs. Smith said.

"What we're talking about is a program which will zero in on the effects without neglecting the causes," said her husband.

Revival Series Begins Monday

A revival will be held Monday through Sunday at the Evangelistic Tabernacle beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The speaker will be the Rev. Ned Sauls, president of Heritage Bible College.

There are many theories why the gangs multiplied. Police Sgt. Ronald Banks, president of the Oscar Joel Bryant Association of black police officers, said that 10 years after the riot parents and teachers can offer no further explanations or remedies about the plight of blacks.

"So the kids say, 'Well, your riot didn't work and your explanation and all the good things they were going to do for us didn't work, so we're going to live for today," said Banks.

There are a few new businesses and a few new jobs in the south-central areas. But hundreds of others never returned after being burned out in the August fires a decade ago.

"Most of our clients looking for jobs have to travel at least 7 or 10 miles just for a job referral," said Richard Procello, manager of the South-Central State Service Center. "This community has little or no industrial base."

As for education, "My overriding impression is that we have arrested the trend that was going down, down, down," said Deputy Schools Supt. James B. Taylor. "I wish I could say it was going up. I can't really say that."

Watts schools, among the oldest in the city, are rundown. They lack money for programs to improve reading and math skills, which are about 20 points off the national norm — though slightly improved since 1965.

The biggest success since the "Watts revolt" has been Ted Watkins, 50, barrel-chested director of the Watts Labor Community Action Committee (WLCAC). He started it on $10 six months before the riots.

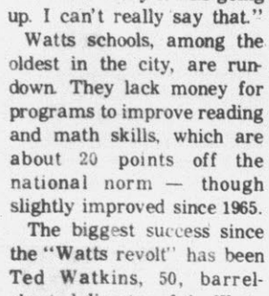

It is a $30 million cooperative today, with more than 1,000 regular employes running a cattle ranch, apartments, condominiums, senior citizens centers, restaurants, gas stations and stores.

Watkins's goal is to ease some of the poverty of Watts. He specializes in hiring and training hard-to-reach teenagers and young adults, a many with criminal records.

Though WLCAC gets funds from the Ford Foundation and federal, state and local governments, most of the operations are self-sustaining. Watkins draws a $35,000 annual salary and lives in the heart of Watts.

Some Watts residents affectionally call him "the godfather."

"Watts is in far worse shape today than it was 10 years ago when we started," he said. "What would it be here in Watts today if WLCAC and others like us were not here? The answer is disaster."

Unheralded Bies Takes Hartford Lead

Green With Laughter

Hubert Green laughs as he look over his putt on the 14th green of the Wethersfield Country Club golf course Saturday during the third round of the Greater Hartford Open Golf tourney. Green's caddie, standing in back of him, seems to be lost in his own thoughts. Green sank the putt for a birdie four, and finished his round at -14, one stroke behind leader Don Bies. (AP Wirephoto)

AP Golf Writer

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Veteran Don Bies, gunning for his first victory in nine years on the tour, pulled into the lead, but six players moved into contention Saturday after the third round of the Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

Bies, 37, winner of $305,377 but never a title, entered the day's play in a tie with Hubert Green but moved in front alone with a four-under-par 67 in cool, cloudy, sometimes drizzly weather.

That gave the soft-spoken, low-key Bies a 54-hole total of 198, 15 under par on the friendly, 6,598-yard Wethersfield Country Club course and a one-stroke lead going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $40,000 first prize.

But a half-dozen others were in position to challenge.

Green, whose wife Judi expects their first child at any time, rolled in birdie putts of 40 and 18 feet on the last two holes to stay within a single stroke at 199. He had a 68.

"Finishing with two birdies has to charge him up," Bies said. "He'll be tough."

Five others were within four strokes of the leader, even though Bies' three-round total has been bettered only once this season.

J.C. Snead and Larry Nelson matched 67s and were at 201.

Andy North, Vic Regalado and Al Geiberger were grouped at 202. North had a 67, Regalado 65 and Geiberger recorded the best round of the day, a seven-under-par 64. He once chipped in for an eagle and had 10 "3's" on his card.

David Glenz and Terry Dill were just one more shot back at 203. Glenz had a 66, Dill 67.

U.S. Open champion Lou Graham was in contention at one time but bogeyed two of his last three holes for a 71—205.

Johnny Miller, with a support bandage bracing the left wrist he said is paining him, had a 68 and was six shots behind at 204. Lee Trevino had a 68—205 and Gary Player 69—206.

Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper, a four-time winner of this tournament, are not competing.

"I got kind of disgusted out there," admitted Green, who missed a number of relatively short putts on the first 14 holes. "I had a chance to make it a two-man race between Bies and me. But I have no excuses. If I was supposed to have shot a really good round, I'd have done it."

After missing a two-foot par putt on the 15th hole—the bogey cost him the lead—Green made a minor adjustment in his crouched and curious putting style.

"It's just a little thing," he said. "I moved the ball up just a little more."

He promptly holed the putts that put him back in the race.

"Maybe it's a change for the good," he said. "It's too early to tell. We'll know tomorrow."

Bies, who had a round of 64 in the pro-am and followed, in order, with tournament scores of 65, 66 and 67, chipped to six inches for a birdie on the second hole, then made his only bogey of the tournament when he missed the green with a nine iron on the sixth hole.

He matched par going out, but blazed home in 32, making birdie on three holes in a row at one stretch. A five-iron shot left him a four-footer on the 11th. He chipped to three feet for birdie on the 14th, made it from 15 feet on the next hole and scored again, this time from six feet, on the next one.

Wajima Romps At Saratoga

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Wajima turned in a powerful performance and soundly whipped four 3-year-old rivals Saturday in the $108,700 Travers Stakes at Saratoga.

The winner's impressive performance wiped away some of the disappointment caused when Kentucky Derby winner Foolish Pleasure was not entered and top contender Forceten had to be scratched the morning of the race.

The victory was the third straight in a stakes for Wajima, who was purchased as a yearling for $600,000 by East-West Stable. The colt now has earned $259,808.

Wajima, ridden Braulio Baeza, broke well and stopped pace-setting Valid Appeal midway in the final turn and then drew away to win by 10¼ lengths over Media in the good time of 2:02 for the 1¼ miles.

Wajima, the 4-5 favorite with a crowd of 32,344, a record at this historic track, paid $3.80. $2.80, $2.10.

Elmendorf's Media returned $4.20 and $2.40, and John Galbreath's Prince Thou Art, who finished 3¾ lengths back of Media, returned $2.20 to show.

Valid Appeal faded to fourth and Ramahorn was last. Each starter carrried 126 pounds.

Wajima was never more than 1½ lengths behind Valid Appeal before he took the lead while Media ran third until the stretch when he moved up to gain the place. Prince Thou Art, the second favorite at 3-2, was last after three-quarters of a mile, but when Marco Castaneda asked the stretch-running colt to make a move he got little response.

"He (Wajima) was running easy right with Valid Appeal down the backstretch and halfway around the turn, about the 3-8ths pole, he took over on his own and went to the lead," said Baeza. "I hit him once, straightening out at the quarter pole to make sure he changed his lead and then hand rode him. He had plenty for me in the stretch."

The victory for the high-priced son of Bold Ruler, who had never won a stakes until a month ago, was his fifth in eight starts this year. He had won two of four races as a 2-year-old.

Forceten, who had won six straight races after losing his first start, was scratched when he developed a filling in his right hind leg. Trainer Neil Drysdsale said X rays would be taken and the colt would be shipped to Belmont Park in New York as soon as possible.

Moret, Relief Ace Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Roger Moret and Jim Willoughby handcuffed the Chicago White Sox on two hits Saturday and Carlton Fisk and Dwight Evans supplied the power that led the Boston Red Sox a 5-0 victory.

Fisk tripled with two outs in the first inning of the nationally televised game after Wilbur Wood, 12-16, had given Juan Beniquez a leadoff walk. Evans belted his 10th home run in the seventh inning.

The Red Sox put the game away with three runs in the ninth. Fisk singled, stole second and came home on Fred Lynn's single. Evans then tripled to score Lynn, and Cecil Cooper chased Wood with a single for the final run.

Moret, 9-2, pitched the first seven innings and gave up both Chicago hits before a sore back forced him out. He now has beaten the White Sox three times this season, twice in relief. And he hasn't given them a run in 22 innings, including a one-hit shutout a year ago.

He gave up a leadoff single to Bill Stein in the third inning, then Stein was erased when Brian Downing grounded into a double play. The White Sox didn't get another hit until Bucky Dent singled in the seventh. But Dent also was wiped out on a double-play bouncer, this one by Ken Henderson.

Davidson Still Plays Football

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(First of a series)

When Southern Conference folks start talking about the Davidson football program, it's in somewhat of a hushed tone—as if one were speaking of the dead.

Last year's decision to degrade the program, playing teams more in line with Davidson's program of grants on a need basis, brought about an end to their actual participation in the conference championship.

Now, Davidson plays only three teams in the league, going against Division II and III teams the rest of the year. It didn't help much as Davidson recorded a 2-7 year.

This season, again they have only nine games, but second year Coach Ed Farrell is hopeful that the record will begin to improve. It remains unlikely that the Wildcats will be of any consequance even in the three league games they play this year, but will furnish almost certain wins to these three opponents. And that fact rankles some of those schools that don't play them.

"We had a lot of problems last year," Farrell said. "We got off to a bad start, but at the end of the year, we did some things better." The coach admitted that perhaps he was too enthuastic and not communicative enough with the players.

"We have to build a foundation first," he said. "We understand what we want better now. We had a good spring and we know more about what our players can do."

For this reason, Farrell has changed both his offense and his defense. This season, the Wildcats will go with the Wing-T on offense and a 5-2 lineup on defense.

The team will depend on the younger players a lot. "We have just 17 seniors. This is adequate, but there is not a lot of talent there. We have just seven juniors. We have 19 or 20 sophomores who played a lot last year, and we'll probably relay on a lot on our incoming freshmen to play a lot. Obviously they will be important." Farrell had 39 incoming freshmen.

Davidson, for years, emphasized the passing game. But with the move to the wing-T, the running game will come into play more. Farrell wants a balanced attack, and feels that this formation will give it to the 'Cats. "Having the wing-T will give us four running backs instead of two, since we want our quarterback to be a runner, too. We don't have the great passer as we have in the past, but sophomore Joel Golmont has shown improvement in this phase of the game."

Joining him in the backfield is likely to be senior Larry Hardaway and junior Chip Crawford at the halfbacks, with senior Steve Stec at fullback. Hardaway was the leading rusher last year, with Stec second.

At split end will be sophomore Stan Brown, with Hal Peacock, a senior at the tight end position. He's expected to get a test from incoming players, however.

Defensively, there is a good bit of experience, except in the secondary, where only senior Mike Eubanks returns. Sophomore Kier Cutler and junior Jim Nichols had good springs in the backfield, however.

One key to the defense could be the return to full duty of junior Jim DeVille, expected to take over the nose guard spot. He missed much of last year with a knee injury. At the tackles will be sophomore Frank Field, sophomore John Huie or junior Mark Wilfley.

Jon Perry returns at one end, while senior Bob Sanders comes off an injury to start at the other end.

Linebackers were a problem last year, but Farrell feels this is less of a problem this season. He needs just two starters and have five to choose from, senior Allen Schaberg, senior Roger Whitley, junior Paul Andrews, and sophomores Cliff Hester and Jerry Taylor.

"I think our offense will be a lot stronger this year," Farrell said. "We threw six touchdown passes in the last two games last year, mainly because of our improved running game. This should open it even more. We've also gotten bigger in the offensive line."

Farrell's goal for 1975 is to complete the building of the foundation of the Davidson program. "Recruiting has been surprising," he said. "We've been able to get good players using the need scholarship system. I think we can compete in the conference."

Whether Davidson really does compete in the league remains a question mark, however. They have opted for the lower-grade program and are not really playing a conference schedule. As long as it continues this way, the school will be thought of as the step-child of the league.

Davidson's schedule: Sept. 27, at VMI; Oct. 4, Guilford; Oct. 11, Lenoir Rhyne; Oct. 18, The Citadel; Oct. 25, at Hampton-Sydney; Nov. 1, at Kenyou; Nov. 8, at Lehigh; Nov. 15, at Lafayette; Nov. 22, at Appalachian State.

NCAA Ponders Money Cuts

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Just how successful was the National Collegiate Athletic Association's cost-cutting convention?

Well, if you ask Walter Byers, the body's executive director, it accomplished huge savings, perhaps as much as $15 million for schools in Divisions I and II.

If you ask Dr. Stephen Horn, president of Long Beach State, it was not nearly as successful as it could have and should have been.

Byers used the $15 million figure—he called it a "guestimate"—based only on the reductions in the values of grants and slashes in staff size. "When you add the savings from the recruiting measures and squad sizes we've adopted, that figure increases," he said.

But Dr. horn was somewhat disappointed over the convention's refusal to cut quite so far as he would have liked. His proposal that Division I football grants be progressivley slashed from the current 105 to 65 by Sept. 1, 1978, was soundly defeated. Delegates preferred a much more modest cut to 95 with initial grants maintained at 30.

"Most of the cuts were inconsequential," Dr. Horn said. "One president said to me, 'I've sat here five hours and saved $134."

But $15 million certainly is more than inconsequential and the measures adopted in many areas will have wide-ranging repercussions throughout collegiate athletics as they begin to be implemented by the NCAA's 809 member institutions and their conferences with the start of the 1975-76 school year.

Among the more important ones was the elimination of the $15 expense money paid monthly to athletes on scholarships and the decision to limit prospects to six expense-paid visits to institutions. Previously, there was no limit on the number of trips prospective student-athletes could accept.

In the area of recruiting, the delegates voted to limit themselves to three off-campus contracts per student-athlete and set a rigid calendar of dates for recruiting. That was a pet project of Darrell Royal, athletic director and football coach at the University of Texas, who called recruiting, "the absolute most important legislation we are considering."

There were other attacks on the economics problem that has already swallowed up some athletic programs and seriously threatened many others.

The convention voted a maximum limit of 80 scholarship grants in all sports except football and basketball. That represented about a 40 per cent cut in awards and imposed for the first time an over-all limit in that area.

That means that athletes seeking scholarships in sports other than the two big money-makers, football and basketball, will find leaner pickings than ever before.

But the big sports didn't escape the knife. Squad limitation quotas were passed, holding traveling teams to 48 players in football and 10 in basketball, sharp cuts in the figures to which coaches have been accustomed. That could dictate strategy changes, particularly in basketball where injuries or players fouling out could place a severe crimp on a visiting team's chance for victory.

Time after time, John Fuzak of Michigan State, president of the NCAA, called for votes amending the cost-cutting legislation, snipping at it in an attempt to soften the slices. But more often than not, the delegates using various colored paddles that designated their division affiliations, voted the amendments down.

"The Council anticipated a tendency to raise the limits imposed," said Byers. "But we anticipated more than what transpired."

The delegates, apparently appreciating the time and thought that had gone into framing the legislation, seemed content with most of it.

"The six visitation limit will save me $6,000," said one athletic director. "But limiting me to bringing in only 75 kids means I can't recruit successfully in my conference."

US Pan-Am Squad Minus 400-Runners

By JOHN HENDERSON
For The Associated Press

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The U.S. Pan American track team will travel to Mexico City in October without a 400-meter contingent. The quarter-milers refused to run in the elimination heats, claiming only a final heat was necessary to determine which of the eight competitors would fill the four U.S. team slots.

Under Pan American Games Committee rules, all running events were to include elimination heats and finals. The quarter-milers, however, felt that since all eight competitors could have run in the final heat, a preliminary heat was superfluous.

But the Games Committee refused to alter the rules and determined that no quarter-milers will represent the U.S in the games.

According to DC Striders coach Brenda Moody, Games Committee chairman Bob Newland asked Moody and quarter-miler Maurice Peoples to present their grievances to the committee after they refused to run.

"Bob Newland believed us," said Peoples. "But the man in charge (Oregon Track Club's Bill Bowerman) thought we were a bunch of radicals. We gave him respect while he lectured us, but as soon as I expressed my opinion, he got up and left."

Bowerman said the games committee discussed the possibility of eliminating preliminary heats but decided they were worthwhile.

"We checked the rules, our obligations to total competition, and we proposed that it would be in the best Pan American trials interests that we have two heats," said Bowerman.

Peoples said the quarter-milers thought of more than themselves in the withdrawal.

"We don't just represent the quarter-milers," said Peoples. "We represent all the athletes. It's unnecessary and dehumanizing. I'm not in college anymore, but some of these guys ran seven races in the NCAA's and we have a month's training after this. It hurts the athletes to run unnecessary heats.

"I feel like a piece of meat. We run for ourselves and we run for other people. But people don't accept us as people. They have dollar signs in their eyes and are not thinking of the athletes."

"You have to qualify to get in the finals," said Bowerman. "Nobody qualified.

"The half-milers didn't complain, and they only had five competing. If you threw the other stuff (elimination heats) out, and ran one race to see who's the one-shot man, you wouldn't have much of a meet."

Ken Sparks, who finished fourth in the 800-meter heat to qualify for the final, didn't like the idea of a preliminary heat but went along with the ruling.

Marcis Car Blows Engine

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Pole sitter Dave Marcis blew the engine of his Dodge in practice Saturday for Sunday's running of the Talladega Grand National stock car race.

Marcis, who won the top spot with a qualifying speed of 191.340 miles per hour, blew the engine in the second turn of the 2.66-mile trioval Alabama International Motor Speedway.

Crew members quickly replaced the engine before his and the other 49 cars were impounded Saturday afternoon. Marcis will be seeking his first Grand National victory.

The $157,070 race was rained out last Sunday and the cars have been under lock and key, with an armed guard at the garage gate, until Saturday's practice runs.

And during those laps, Buddy Baker and Darrell Waltrip clocked a speed of 195.340 m.p.h. in a two-car draft. Baker will be on the outside pole position when the green flag falls Sunday.

Donnie and Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala., brothers, turned in a practice speed of 187.975 m.p.h., also in a two-car draft. Bobby Allison will be in a Matador while brother Donnie will be in A.J. Foyt's Chevrolet. Foyt pulled out of the rescheduled race because of a conflict with another race. The three-time Indianapolis 500 winner has never competed on the high-banked speedway here.

About 65,000 fans turned out to watch the rain last week and track officials said all rain checks will be honored. In addition, about 20,000 more tickets will go on sale early Sunday for the 12:30 p.m., CDT, start.

Late Saturday afternoon the weatherman predicted partly cloudy skies and temperatures around 90 degrees with a 50 per cent chance of thundershowers at starting time.

These five baseball players will be inducted into the Hall of Fame Monday. Shown here depicted in plaques from the Hall of Fame are, from left, Billy Herman, second baseman for the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers; "Bucky" Harris, who managed in the majors for 29 years.; Earl Averill, a lifetime .318 hitter in 11 major league seasons with Cleveland, Detroit, and the Boston Braves; Ralph Kiner, power-hitting outfielder for the Pitsburgh Pirates from 1946-53; and "Judy" Johnson, considered one of the finest third basemen in Negro baseball. Twins Romp

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Dan Ford's two-run double and Phil Roof's two-run homer paced a 20-hit Minnesota assault that carried rookie Jim Hughes and the Twins to a 9-1 romp over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

The Twins, who have won seven of their last eight games, scored twice in the first inning against Eric Raich, 6-8, then chased him with a four-run second, two of the runs on Ford's double. Roof touched reliever Jackie Brown for his fourth homer of the year in the fifth inning.

Hughes, 11-10, checked the Indians on six hits for their sixth loss in seven games. Cleveland's lone run came in the first inning on Boog Powell's double.

A's, 2-1

OAKLAND (AP) — Bill North's ninth-inning sacrifice fly gave the Oakland A's a 2-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Sal Bando drew a walk from Jim Slaton, 11-13, to start the inning, then pinch runner Tommy Harper stole second and moved to third when Phil Garner looped a one-out single to shallow center field.

Bert Campaneris was intentionally walked to load the bases before North lofted his game-winning fly ball to Bill Sharp in left field.

Rollie Fingers, 8-5, who came on in the eighth inning, got the victory. The Brewers scored in the second inning off Ken Holtzman on Charlie Moore's first home run of his major league career.

Oakland tied it in the fourth on Billy Williams' single. It followed Reggie Jackson's pop fly to short center field which fell for a double when three Brewers converged on it, then lost it in the sun.

Mets Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Torre belted a two-run homer in the second inning, and shoddy San Francisco fielding gave New York two more runs in the sixth as the Mets beat the Giants 4-2 Saturday.

Torre's fifth homer of the season, a shot over the left field fence off Pete Falcone, 8-8, followed a walk to Dave Kingman and wiped out the Giants' 1-0 lead.

In the sixth, Kingman led off with a towering popup that catcher Dave Rader dropped in front of the plate. Torre followed with a walk, and Jerry Grote forced him at second.

Jack Heidemann followed with a grounder to shortstop Chris Speier, who threw the ball away for an error that gave the Mets a run. Pitcher Craig Swan then hit a looping drive to Derrel Thomas. The Giants' second baseman, hoping for a possible double play, let the ball drop before fielding it, but he got only a forceout at second and Grote scored from third on the play.

Koosman Hurt

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Jerry Koosman of the New York Mets suffered a fracture of his right big toe, X rays showed Saturday.

However, the Mets said he is not expected to miss his next turn, Wednesday night against Houston.

The Mets said Koosman had stubbed the toe Thursday but didn't complain to the Mets' team physician until after leaving Friday night's first game against San Francisco in the sixth inning. He was the losing pitcher.

Cubs, 3-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Jose Cardenal drove in two runs Saturday with a single and a homer, and Rick Reuschel scattered eight Houston hits to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the Astros.

Rob Sperring opened the first inning with a single off Dave Roberts, 7-14, and was bunted to second by Rick Monday before Cardenal sent him home with a single to center.

The Cubs made it 2-0 in the second on singles by Andy Thornton and Manny Trillo and Steve Swisher's sacrifice fly, then Cardenal drove in what proved to be the winning run with his eighth homer of the year in the third inning.

Reuschel, 9-13, gave up a pair of unearned runs in the seventh. Roger Metzger singled and Wilbur Howard was safe on Thornton's two-out error at first. Both runners scored on Greg Gross' double to right-center field.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tony Perez' tie-breaking two-run homer and Cesar Geronimo's solo blast in the eighth inning powered the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-3 triumph that sent the Pittsburgh Pirates staggering to their fifth straight defeat.

Craig Reynolds' first RBI of the season on a seventh-inning double lifted the Pirates into a 2-2 tie. But Johnny Bench opened the bottom of the eighth against John Candelaria, 6-3, with a double before Perez parked his 17th homer of the season into the left field seats.

Dave Giusti replaced Candelaria and, one out later, Geronimo hit his fifth homer over the right field fence. The victory went to Jack Billingham, 14-5, who got ninth-inning relief help from Will McEnaney and Rawly Eastwick. It was the Reds' seventh straight triumph and also saddled the Pirates with their 10th defeat in their last 11 games.

George Foster ignited a two-run rally for the Reds in the second inning when he tripled to stretch his hitting streak to 14 games. Geronimo brought him home with a single, then he stole second and scored on Doug Flynn's single.

The Pirates got a run back in the fourth when Manny Sanguillen singled and Dave Parker doubled. They also scored in the ninth on Bill Robinson's sacrifice fly.

Walker To Run With Stars This Week

STOCKHOLM (AP) — John Walker, the New Zealander who shattered the world mile record four days ago, will take on the world 1,500 meters mark in a star-studded international track and field meet here Tuesday.

Walker, 23, became the first man to run the magic mile below 3:50 at Goteborg last Tuesday with a time of 3:49.4 to beat Filbert Bayi's three-month-old world record by 1.6 seconds.

And now he's aiming at Bayi's 3:32.2 in the 1,500 meters, set by the Tanzanian during the Commonwealth Games at Christchurch, N.Z., early last year when Walker was second in 3:32.5.

"The mile is harder to run than the 1,500 meters, so I suppose I've got a good chance to beat Bayi's record," Walker said. "With a few days' more rest and a good pacemaker Tuesday, I think the record will fall."

Walker, who has been touring Europe since mid-June, will be competing for the third time this summer at Stockholm's Olympic Stadium. He turned in 3:52.2 in winning the mile here July 1 and then 8:20.6 in the two-mile on July 17 to finish second behind American Marty Liquori.

As in Goteborg earlier this week, a Swede has promised to set the pace needed for an eventual record. This time it's Jan-Anke Nilsson, who recently won the Swedish 800 meters championship.

Other big names in the main event Tuesday include Thomas Wessinghage of West Germany and Ken Hall of Australia, who was second to Walker at Goteborg. Also competing is Steven Ovett, the Briton who was runner-up in the 800 meters at the European track championships in Rome last year.

Rod Dixon of New Zealand, who has lost only once in eight meetings with Walker in the mile, prefers to run the two-mile this time.

In the 5,000 meters, Liquori will face Anders Garderud, Sweden's world 3,000-meter steeplechase record holder, Norwegian ace Knut Boeroe and John Ngeno of Kenya.

Conteh Wins Unanimously

Conteh controlled the first nine rounds of the non-title bout with combinations of his jab, dazing Taylor with a right in the first round, opening a cut over the New Yorker's right eye in the third and bloodying Taylor's nose with three quick lefts in the fifth.

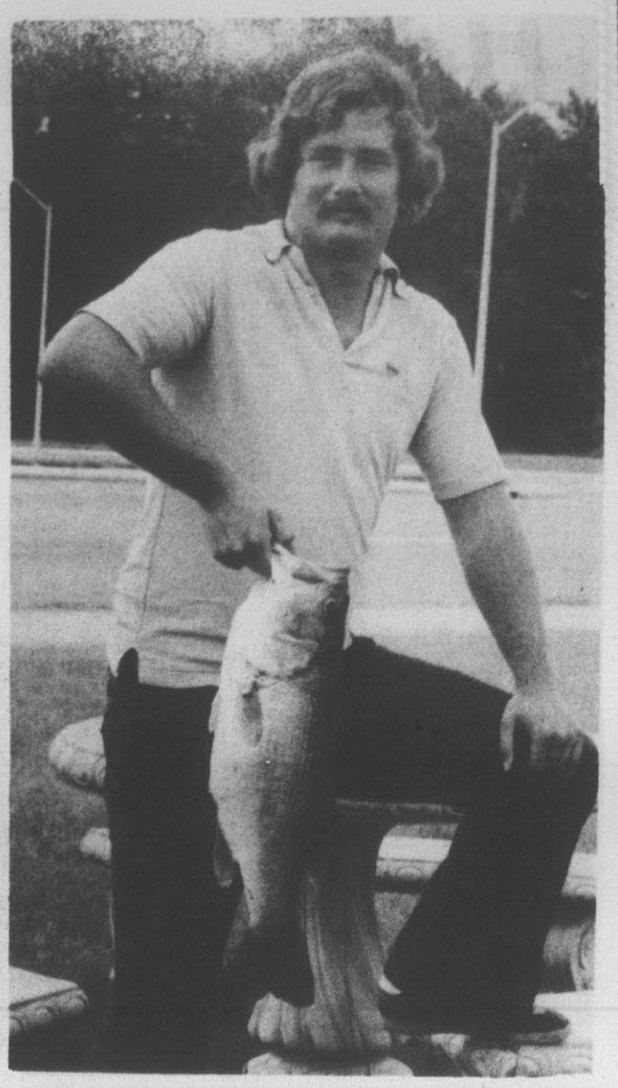

But Taylor, known as "The Bull," never quit slugging. Bloody, with his hands down and flat footed, he exploded in the 10th round and twice stunned the champion with right hooks to the face.

The fight opened with Taylor stalking Conteh. But by the second round, Taylor was in the middle of the ring and Conteh circled him, peppering him with left jabs.

The victory was Conteh's 28th. He has lost once and knocked out 21 opponents. Taylor, who went into the bout a lopsided underdog, has won 10, six by knockout, and this was his fourth loss. He has had three draws.

The 24-year-old Conteh, a native of Liverpool, England, was unhurt and not even stunned until the ferocious 10th round. His white trunks were splattered with Taylor's blood. He seemed as strong as ever in his classic British boxing stance with his legs wide apart and punching off his speedy left jab.

Conteh is the World Boxing Council champ. Victor Galindez of Argentina holds the World Boxing Association version of the title.

Louie Wins

TORONTO (AP) — Marcie Louie of San Francisco defeated Laura Dupont 6-1, 4-6, 6-4 for the women's singles crown in the $130,000 Canadian Open Tennis championships Saturday.

The victory was worth $6,000 from the total purse of $30,000.

Ilie Nastase of Romania recovered from an early tantrum to post a 6-4, 7-6 victory over Phil Dent of Austrlia to move into Sunday's men's final against Manuel Orantes of Spain.

Orantes gained the final for the third straight year by defeating countryman Juan Gisbert 6-4, 6-2.

Miss Louie totally dominated the first set, but Miss Dupont, of Charlotte, N.C., took up the challenge in the second before once again failing in the third.

Nastase exhibited several temperamental outbursts on questionable linecalls. He was called four times for foot faults in the first set by one linesman, who subsequently was replaced at Nastase's request.

After the official was replaced, the Romanian regained his composure, seemed to put his game back together and broke Dent's serve in the 10th game to go one set up.

There were five service breaks in the first set, three of them by Nastase. Nastase raced to a 3-0 lead in the second set, but Dent fought back and broke service three times, tying the set at 5-5. Both held service, and Nastase won the tie-breaker 7-4.

Orantes had little trouble with his doubles partner in advancing to the final, which carries a first prize of $16,000.

Platania Takes Care On Field And In Classroom At Rose High

By TOM FOREMAN JR.
Reflector Staff Writer

There were times when high school football practices didn't begin until late August or September. Players didn't have to worry about stifling heat or getting enough to drink. The cool, crisp autumns made practicing football tolerable, if not enjoyable.

Days like those, though, are over. High schools now start preparing over one month in advance of the opener, be it home or on the road. Starting one month in advance means suffering under summer suns which have not yet slackened their blistering heat, making coaches and players alike somewhat edgy.

Methods have been devised, however, to keep the heat off just a little. Recently, a coach took his players up to a lakeside retreat to practice plays. But for those less extravagant, provisions must be made to make the practice field as reasonable as possible.

The North Carolina High School Athletic Association has made some strides towards the care and protection of athletes, especially football players. Practice schedules have been designed, and hours of practice set so as not to fatigue the athlete, thus making him less prone to injury. In addition, athletic journals offer guides to coaches and trainers to keep abreast of the latest training techniques and equipment for aid to players. Most recently, state law requires that trainers have some previous experience with first aid and medical treatment of sport-related injuries. Adult trainers, in addition to students managers, must be aware of how to treat or diagnose injuries the moment they occur.

In compliance with the state mandate, Rose High School took on James Platania as their sport trainer, with help from various student trainers. His schedule was heavy. Rose's rigorous scheduling required him to be at football games in the fall, wrestling and basketball in the winter, and remain available for track and baseball in spring.

Starting his second year, he has already begun his treatment of football players as they prepare for their first game in two weeks, and a scrimmage this Friday. His role will double, this week as well, for with his duties on the field, he must reassume his job as a biology teacher at the high school.

"There is some correlation between the classroom and the field," Platania said. "There's a little bit of parallel between biology and taking care of football players."

At times, while he treats the bumps and bruises, he gives a mini-biology course to the player he treats. He sometimes describes the particular injury and why the injury occurs.

"Most of the injuries we've been getting in the condition type of injury. Mostly we've had shin splints and groin pulls. There's been an unusual amount of groin pulls during practice so far. This is mainly due to the unusual movements the guys have to make."

Platania thinks the team has been lucky so far, but that he takes no chances. He treats all the players personally, especially those with a history of ankle damage. "We tape them before practice. . .most of these injuries can be prevented in the locker room."

For a time, Platania served as guidance counselor for some of the player's, listening to some of their personal problems and experiences. "I think most of them are settling down now. They're feeling a bit more at ease with the coaches and the rest of the players. When that happens, they just start handling their own problems."

He is most critical of himself, however, citing several out-of classroom cases. He thinks he should be more of a disciplinarian on the field and in the classroom. But for the time being, he'll stay out of the psychology business, and stick with the biology, both in the classroom and on the field.

'Bad Luck' Gullett Slated For Monday

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dor Gullett admits to being unlucky but pooh-poohs allegations that he may be a "snakebit" pitcher.

Gullett returns to the mound for the Cincinnati Reds Monday night against the St. Louis Cardinals in a nationally-televised game exactly nine weeks after suffering a broken left hand.

The thumb fracture, a result of a line drive by Atlanta's Larvell Blanks, was the latest in a series of mishaps for the 24-year-old pitcher who Manager Sparky Anderson calls "the best left-hander in baseball."

"I guess I've had some bad luck," said the five-year veteran from nearby Lynn, Ky. "First it was hepatitis, then my back." And hurt elbows and sprained ankles.

Each setback has taken Gullett out of the Reds' lineup. He has yet to be the 20-game winner that Anderson annually predicts, although he was 17-11 last season and 18-8 in 1973.

Gullett said he is not accident prone. He works at keeping himself in shape and ready for contingencies. After he was injured June 16, he spent hours viewing the video tape of the accident figuring out ways to avoid a repeat.

"They call third base the hot corner," he said, "But on the mound you're 29 feet closer to the plate than the third baseman and you're off balance all the time."

Anderson, noting Gullett's all-sports background in high school, said it was the pitcher's aggressiveness that resulted in the injury.

He said other pitchers on the staff "would have been hit in the back" trying to get out of the way.

Gullett was 9-3 when hurt and had seven complete games. The Reds have only 20 complete games going into the weekend series with Pittsburgh.

"If one guy can ruin everything you ain't as deep as you thought you were," said Anderson after the injury. He then proceded to use his bullpen in tandem over the next six weeks, setting a major league record of 45 consecutive games without a complete game, and the Reds jumped to a big lead in the National League West.

Gullett said he believes he is now fully recovered from the hairline fracture and has been pitching on the sidelines for weeks rebuilding his throwing arm.

"No, it doesn't hurt anymore. It's not very sore," he said.

Would he have preferred not to make his comeback on national television?

"Not at all. That's Sparky's job to set the date. I'm too busy trying to get people out to worry about anything like that."

Bucs Lead Shrinks

Detroit Drops 19th

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"Everybody's been hustling," Ralph Houk said. "There's no dissension, no morale problem. Nobody's bawling anybody else out. A manager can't ask for anything more."

Oh, yeah, Ralph? How's about a victory?

Houk and his Detroit Tigers could be excused if they replied: "What's a victory?" After all, going 19 games without one might tend to dull the senses a bit.

With Friday night's 8-0 shellacking by the California Angels, Detroit crept within one game of the American League mark for this kind of futility. This record—set in 1906 by Boston and matched twice by the old Philadelphia Athletics—is the kind of record any team would be happy to do without.

In the rest of the AL, Boston beat Chicago 3-2, Texas split with Baltimore, winning 10-6 and losing 13-1, Milwaukee belted Oakland 8-4, New York nipped Kansas City 5-4 and Minnesota defeated Cleveland 8-4.

Contrary to what a lot of fans might think, Houk believes the Tigers simply aren't playing that badly.

"Tonight was the first time we've been whipped like that in quite a while," he said, noting that in the streak Detroit has lost seven games by one run and five others by two runs.

Red Sox 3, White Sox 2

Cecil Cooper slugged a triple and his 11th homer to help boost the Red Sox past Chicago and widen their East Division lead over Baltimore to six games. Rick Miller singled in the sixth inning for what proved to be the winning run.

Boston Manager Darrell Johnson, comparing this year's club to the 1974 squad that folded in the stretch, pointed out that "we've got seven men on this club—aside from pitchers— who weren't here last year. I don't think the players are peeking over their shoulders this time."

Lius Tiant picked up his 15th victory with a seven-hitter. He also posted his 14th complete game, tying Bill Lee and Rick Wise for the club lead.

Rangers 10-1, Orioles 6-13

Tom Grieve cracked a pair of two-run singles and Dave Moates hit a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning to give Texas its first-game victory over Baltimore.

The Orioles stormed back to win the nightcap as Mike Cueller pitched a five-hitter and Doug DeCinces drove in five runs with a homer and a basesloaded triple.

Brewers 8, A's 4

George Scott drove in four runs with a pair of homers to carry the Brewers past Oakland and keep the A's from widening their six-game West Division lead over Kansas City.

Yankees 5, Royals 4

Chris Chambliss' two-run double topped off a three-run eighth inning that catapulted New York over the Royals, who got homers from John Mayberry and Tony Solaita.

Twins 8, Indians 4

Rod Carew singled home two runs in a four-run second inning and Steve Braun doubled home two more in a three-run fifth to power the Twins past Cleveland behind Bert Blyleven's six-hitter.

As their lead melts away like an ice cube left outside on an August day, there are indications that the Pittsburgh Pirates are beginning to feel the pressure of a pennant race—now that there is one.

The Bucs lost Friday night for the fourth time in a row and the ninth time in the last 10 games. They fell 8-3 to the Cincinnati Reds, the team they probably would meet in the playoffs.

Neither would comment on the incident but observers could sense trouble. One observer was Cincinnati's Fred Norman, the left-hander who cruised to his sixth straight victory at the expense of the National League East leaders.

"Those guys are struggling," said Norman, who contributed a bases-loaded single to the Reds' six-run first inning. "I was amazed not to see the Pirates swing the bat. They were taking a lot of pitches."

Elsewhere in the NL Friday night, the Cardinals swept Atlanta 4-1 and 2-1 in a twi-night doubleheader; San Francisco beat New York 6-4 in the opener, then dropped the nightcap of the twinbill 9-4; Montreal downed Los Angeles 8-4, and Houston topped Chicago 4-1.

Reds 8, Pirates 3

Johnny Bench hit his 23rd home run of the season, a two-run shot, and Norman cracked his two-run single as the Reds, romped past Pittsburgh. Norman, 8-3, held the Pirates to seven hits and raised his career record at Riverfront Stadium to 23-6.

Pittsburgh took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first on Manny Sanguillen's RBI double before the Reds jumped on Jim Rooker, 8-9.

Phillies 4, Padres 3

Luzinski's two-run homer in the first inning and Mike Schmidt's 26th an inning later powered Philadelphia past San Diego.

Luzinski connected off Joe McIntosh, 8-11, after a walk to Larry Bowa. Starting pitcher Dick Ruthven knocked in the fourth run in the fourth inning after a Garry Maddox double.

Cardinals 4-2, Braves 1-1

Successive singles by Ron Fairly, Ted Simmons and Reggie Smith chased rookie Atlanta hurler Mike Thompson after six innings of no-hit pitching in the nightcap.

Mike Tyson drove in the opener's winning run with a bad-hop single in the fifth inning and Reggie Smith added an eighth-inning home run to back Ron Reed's seven-hit pitching.

Giants 6-4, Mets 2-9

Wayne Garrett, Rusty Staub and John Stearns hit home runs for New York in the nightcap and combined to drive in all but one Mets runs.

Dock Ellis Suspended For Bullpen Shirk

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitcher Dock Ellis of the slumping Pittsburgh Pirates was fined an undisclosed sum for refusing to pitch in the bullpen Friday night at a game in Cincinnati, the Pirates announced today.

Manager Danny Murtaugh disclosed the fine, although he declined to discuss the shouting incident after the game Friday night in which the Reds won, 8-3.

"I won't comment on any rumor like that," said Murtaugh at the time. "If I did I'd make a statement to everybody at the same time."

Ellis who is 7-7 and has a 3.81 earned run average, worst on the Pirates, has given up hits to the last eight batters he has faced over two starts.

Ellis, reached at his hotel room in Cincinnati, said he would have no comment about his dispute with Murtaugh or the fine.

"No comment, no comment," he kept repeating.

But he did have something to say about the Pirates' slide in general.

"We've been through it before, I've been through them before. We're going to be there. Don't panic. Whatever it takes, we'll do, and I'm going to be a part of it.

"If I have to stand on my head, we'll be there."

Ellis, a right-hander, was knocked out of the game in the first inning of his last two outings, most recently Thursday night when the Reds won 6-1.

Though the Pirates still lead the Eastern Division of the National League by 1½ games over Philadelphia, they have lost four straight games, 10 out of their last 12 on their current road trip and 13 of 15.

Their lead has shrunk from a comfortable lead of seven games, while the St. Louis Cardinals, New York Mets and Phillies have crept closer.

Ellis had said in recent weeks that if he was removed from the pitching rotation, he would refuse to pitch in relief. And so far, he has stuck to his promise.

Pele Tours With Cosmos

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League will take Brazilian superstar Pele on a limited tour starting with a game against the San Jose Earthquakes on August 27th and ending in Montreal on Sept. 30, the club announced Friday.

In between, the Cosmos plan to play at least 10 games in five foreign countries, among them Sweden, Haiti and Jamacia.

VANCOUVER (AP) — The British Columbia Lions have signed Canadian running back Barry Houlihan of Simon Fraser University to a Canadian Football League contract.

The 22-year-old Vancouver native will begin a five-day tryout Monday, the club said Friday.

Houlihan was the Lions' first protected player from the 1975 draft, but the six-foot, 205-pounder elected to try his luck with Green Bay Packers of the National Football League. The Packers released Houlihan earlier this week.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A drug charge against New England Patriots tackle Shelby Jordan has been expanded by a federal grand jury in Providence to include conspiracy to sell cocaine.

Jordan, 23, and Lewis Cohen, 28, of Providence, were charged last week with sale of cocaine.

The indictments, handed down Friday, added the charge of conspiracy in planning the sale of cocaine to the drug sale charges against each man.

ZELTWEG, Austria (AP) — Niki Lauda of Austria, who will be chasing both Emerson Fittapaldi and the Formula I championship this weekend, already is off to a blistering start.

Lauda shattered the unofficial lap record at the Oesterreich ring Friday during practice runs for the Sunday's Grand Prix of Europe auto race.

The present leader in th Formula I world championship standings was clocked in 1 minute, 34:85 seconds in his Ferrari for an average speed of about 140 miles per hour before a crowd of 40,000.

The time eclipsed that of James Hunt of Britain, who registered 1:34.97 in his Hesketh, and defending world champion Fittipaldi of Brazil, who posted 1:35.41 in a McLaren.

Byers Claims Cutting Saves $15 Million

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association says a special cost-cutting convention has saved college sports programs more than $15 million and rejects charges that the NCAA was attempting to end conference and institutional autonomy.

"I'm just making a barnyard guess, but I'd say Divisions I and II saved in excess of $15 million just by the cuts in the scholarships and reductions in the size of coaching staffs," Walter Byers said Friday at the end of a two-day business session attended by more than 800 delegates. It was the second special convention in NCAA history.

But he admitted that a number of new regulations—particularly the one chopping total football scholarships at Divsion I schools from 105 to 95—would create better balance by making more high school athletes available to more colleges.

And he predicted that "some sort of reorganization" beyond the three divisions into which the NCAA divided two years ago "will eventually take place," perhaps with the major powers forming a super conference.

"Our reorganization committee is still at work and the indications are that they're heading toward a four-division concept," he said. "But I can't predict how it will evolve."

He cited the following as key economic measures adopted here:

—Cuts in money that can be handed out to athletes for course-related supplies, plus elimination of the $15-a-month stipend for incidentals.

—Cutting atheltic grants in all sports in Divisions I and II.

—Recruiting restrictions adopted by Division I.

—Cuts in coaching staffs and game squads in Divisions I and II.

—Addition of a 27th regular season basketball game.

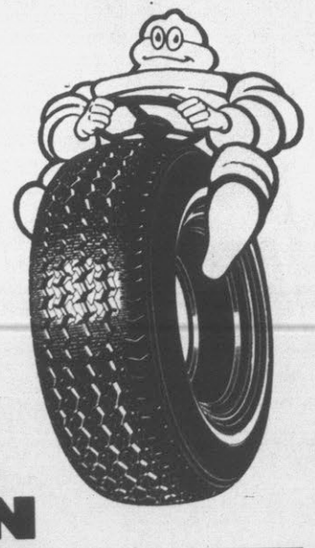

"Far more transpired than we anticipated," he said, even though only 51 of the 73 proposed pieces of legislation actually reached the floor. The remainder—including length of seasons, a possible 12th regular-season football game and a trio of controversial share-the wealth proposals for bowl and TV revenues—probably will be considered at another special session just prior to the NCAA's 70th annual convention in St. Louis next Jan. 14-16.

Green May Leave Lead For Baby

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Hubert Green, in a slump most of the season, has a share of the lead in the $200,000 Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament. He's hitting his irons very well. He's putting good. His game seems back in gear.

But there's a chance he won't even finish.

He might be getting down the road at any time.

A new little Green is due to make an arrival at any minute. If Judi, his wife, calls, Hubert will be on his way.

"She knows my position," Green said Friday after hitting a five-iron only one foot away from the hole for the birdie that tied him with Don Bies.

"If she wants me, she'll call. If she calls, I guess I'll go. Yes, I'm sure I will."

Their first child was due Friday.

Green, displaying a notable lack of expectant-father jitters, blazed over the 6,598-yard Wethersfield Country Club course in six-under-par 65 and, at 131, was 11 under par and tied with the veteran Bies for the top spot halfway through this chase for a $40,000 first prize.

"It was a good round, much better than yesterday," said Green, who won four titles and more than $200,000 last season but fell into a deep slump this year. "I hit my irons so close to the hole I thought I was Johnny Miller for a while. I scared myself."

Bies, 37, who has yet to win in nine long years of tour activity, had a 66 that did not include a bogey.

"Sometimes it bothers me, not winning," he said, "but not often. I've been in contention a lot and about half the time I've been in contention, I've played good. It's not like I'm always choking. But sometimes I'm playing good and the putts don't fall and somebody beats me."

TD Bound

Boobie Clark of the Cincinnati Bengals broke free from the grip of Buffalo Bills linebacker John Skorupan in the second period of their NFL preseason exhibition game. Clark went on to score on the play to give Cincinnati a 21-7 lead in the second period. The Bengals won the game, 38-24. (AP Wirephoto)

Wildlife Afield: What About Old Weapons?

By JIM DEAN

If you hunt with a bow and arrow or a muzzle loader, chances are you've heard about the new primitive weapons license.

"We've had a lot of calls and questions concerning the new primitive weapons license," said Bob Hazel, assistant executive director of field operations for the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission. "Apparently, some rumors have been spread around about it that are misleading. Also, it's possible that some people have been confused by the term 'primitive' weapon."

Actually, the primitive weapons license is required for only bow and arrow hunting and muzzle-loading rifle hunting during the special bow and arrow deer seasons and the special muzzle-loading rifle deer seasons. If you've got a copy of the N. C. Hunting and Trapping Regulations for 1975-76, you'll find these seasons listed on pages 13 and 14.

During the regular hunting seasons, you do not need a primitive weapons license to hunt with a bow and arrow or a muzzle loader.

Lots of hunters have also asked whether muzzle-loading shotguns would be permitted during the special muzzle-loading rifle deer season. The answer is no. Only muzzle-loading rifles are permitted by the law. However, you can still hunt using muzzle-loading shotguns not larger than 10 gauge for deer during the regular gun seasons for deer, and of course, you can use a muzzle-loading shotgun not larger than 10 gauge for other game species like squirrels and quail anytime the season on these species is open.

Another question that's been asked occasionally concerns the use of crossbows. Crossbows are illegal weapons for all hunting in North Carolina.

A couple of letter writers have asked whether the primitive weapons license is required for bow fishing. No, it's not. But, you'll have to buy a special device fishing license, and you can check the requirements for it in your N. C. Inland Fishing Regulations. The confusion over this apparently arises because some folks have wondered whether shooting a fish with an arrow could accurately be called fishing or hunting. "It would be like bait-casting for squirrels," one writer joked. "I don't know what to call it." The Wildlife Commission considers it fishing and bow fishing (or if you prefer, bow hunting for fish) is covered under the Inland Fishing Regulations.

"There is always some confusion when a new license is established," said Hazel, "and this has been no exception. However, we hope these explanations will help our hunters understand what is required. We'd also appreciate it if sportsmen would pass this information along, and if there are other questions, we'll be glad to answer them."

Hunters might also want to check page 32 of their N. C. Hunting and Trapping Regulations for information concerning legal restrictions on bow and arrow equipment. For example, bows must have a minimum pull of 45 pounds, and arrows used for deer must have broadheads with a minimum width of seven-eighths of an inch. Blunt type arrowheads may be used to take game birds and small animals. Of course, all sportsmen should read their regulations booklet thoroughly before the hunting seasons open.

The primitive weapons license costs $5 and is available at license dealers across the state. Anyone who purchases one of these licenses to use during the early bow and arrow or muzzle-loading deer seasons will also need a regular hunting license and also a special big game license. However, you can get all three of these licenses as part of the new $25 Resident Sportsman's License, which also covers statewide fishing, statewide mountain trout and the Game Lands Use Permit.

For further information, write the N. C. Wildlife Resources Commission, 325 N. Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611.

Oakland Cincinnati Ask To Print World Series Tix

NEW YORK (AP) —Why wait till the last minute to let the world know you're a winner?

To avoid being caught with their box office cupboards bare, the Oakland A's and Cincinnati Reds asked for and Friday received permission to print World Series tickets, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced.

The A's, World Champions the past three seasons, are leading the AL West, while Cincinnati is a runaway leader in the NL West.

Kuhn also announced that the third and fourth games of the American and National League championship playoffs will be played at night. The best-of-five series all had been day games since their inception in 1969.

In addition to Oakland and Cincinnati, representatives of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis of the NL and Baltimore, Boston and Kansas City attended the leage championship World Series planning meeting here Fribos New York teams will receive details separately, Kuhn said.

World Series tickets remain part of a dwindling minority of entertainment values still largely unmolested by inflation. For the seventh consecutive year, box seats will sell for $15

3rd Leading Cowboy Rusher

Garrison Quietly Leaves Dallas; Leaves Staubach As Lone Survivor

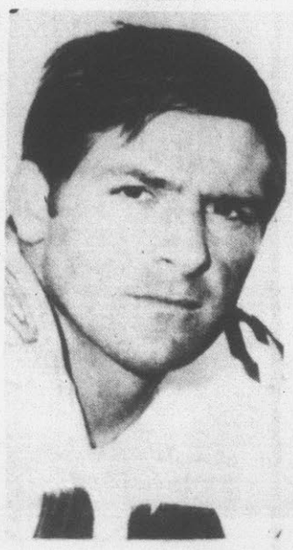

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Without fanfare, veteran fullback Walt Garrison quietly announced his retirement Friday, leaving quarterback Roger Staubach as the lone survivor of the 1974 starting backfield of the Dallas Cowboys.

Tailback Calvin Hill jumped the club to play for Hawaii in the World Football League.

It was yet another blow to a team which reached its peak with a victory over Miami in the 1971 Super Bowl. Only weeks ago All-Pro defensive tackle Bob Lilly announced his retirement, and ageing split end Bob Hayes was traded to San Francisco.

Also, center Dave Manders, a mainstay of the 1971 team, retired earlier in the summer.

Garrison, a 10-year veteran, tore ligaments in his left knee while bulldogging a steer at a rodeo in Bozeman, Mont. The 6-foot, 205-pound former Oklahoma State star probably couldn't have played until November.

Coach Tom Landry said, "When a running back gets hurt at this particular stage of his career, it's awfully hard to get back. But Walt could have done it, I'm sure. He could have been effective, but it was a decision he felt he should make.

"The thing we'll miss most is that Garrison was a part of the great tradition of the Cowboys over the last 10 years. He was one of the focal points. He was an interesting person and a great football player. He did more with limited size, speed and quickness of anybody I've ever seen."

Garrison, besides his off-season rodeoing, did snuff commercials and is noted for his whittling. Once he was stopped while boarding an airplane because the scanner buzzer went off. A guard found 17 whittling knives in Garrison's bag.

Robert Newhouse, a four-year veteran, will replace Garrison, who never gained 1,000 yards in a season but averaged 4.3 yards every time he carried the ball. Known for his second and third effort, Garrison's longest touchdown run was only 41 yards.

Taking over from the retiring Don Perkins on a regular basis in 1969, Garrison became the third leading rusher and fourth all-time receiver on Cowboy honor roles.

Garrison scored 39 touchdowns—nine as a receiver.

"You could always count on him," Landry said of Garrison. "I would say he was a lot like Don Perkins. Every game he was there and every game he played well."

Asked if he was going to keep rodeoing, Garrison replied with a laugh, "Hell, yes. I'm not dead."

He also said he had a tremendous opportunity in promotion with a tobacco company.

An Afternoon With The Birds On Capitol Square

Photographed by Tommy Forrest

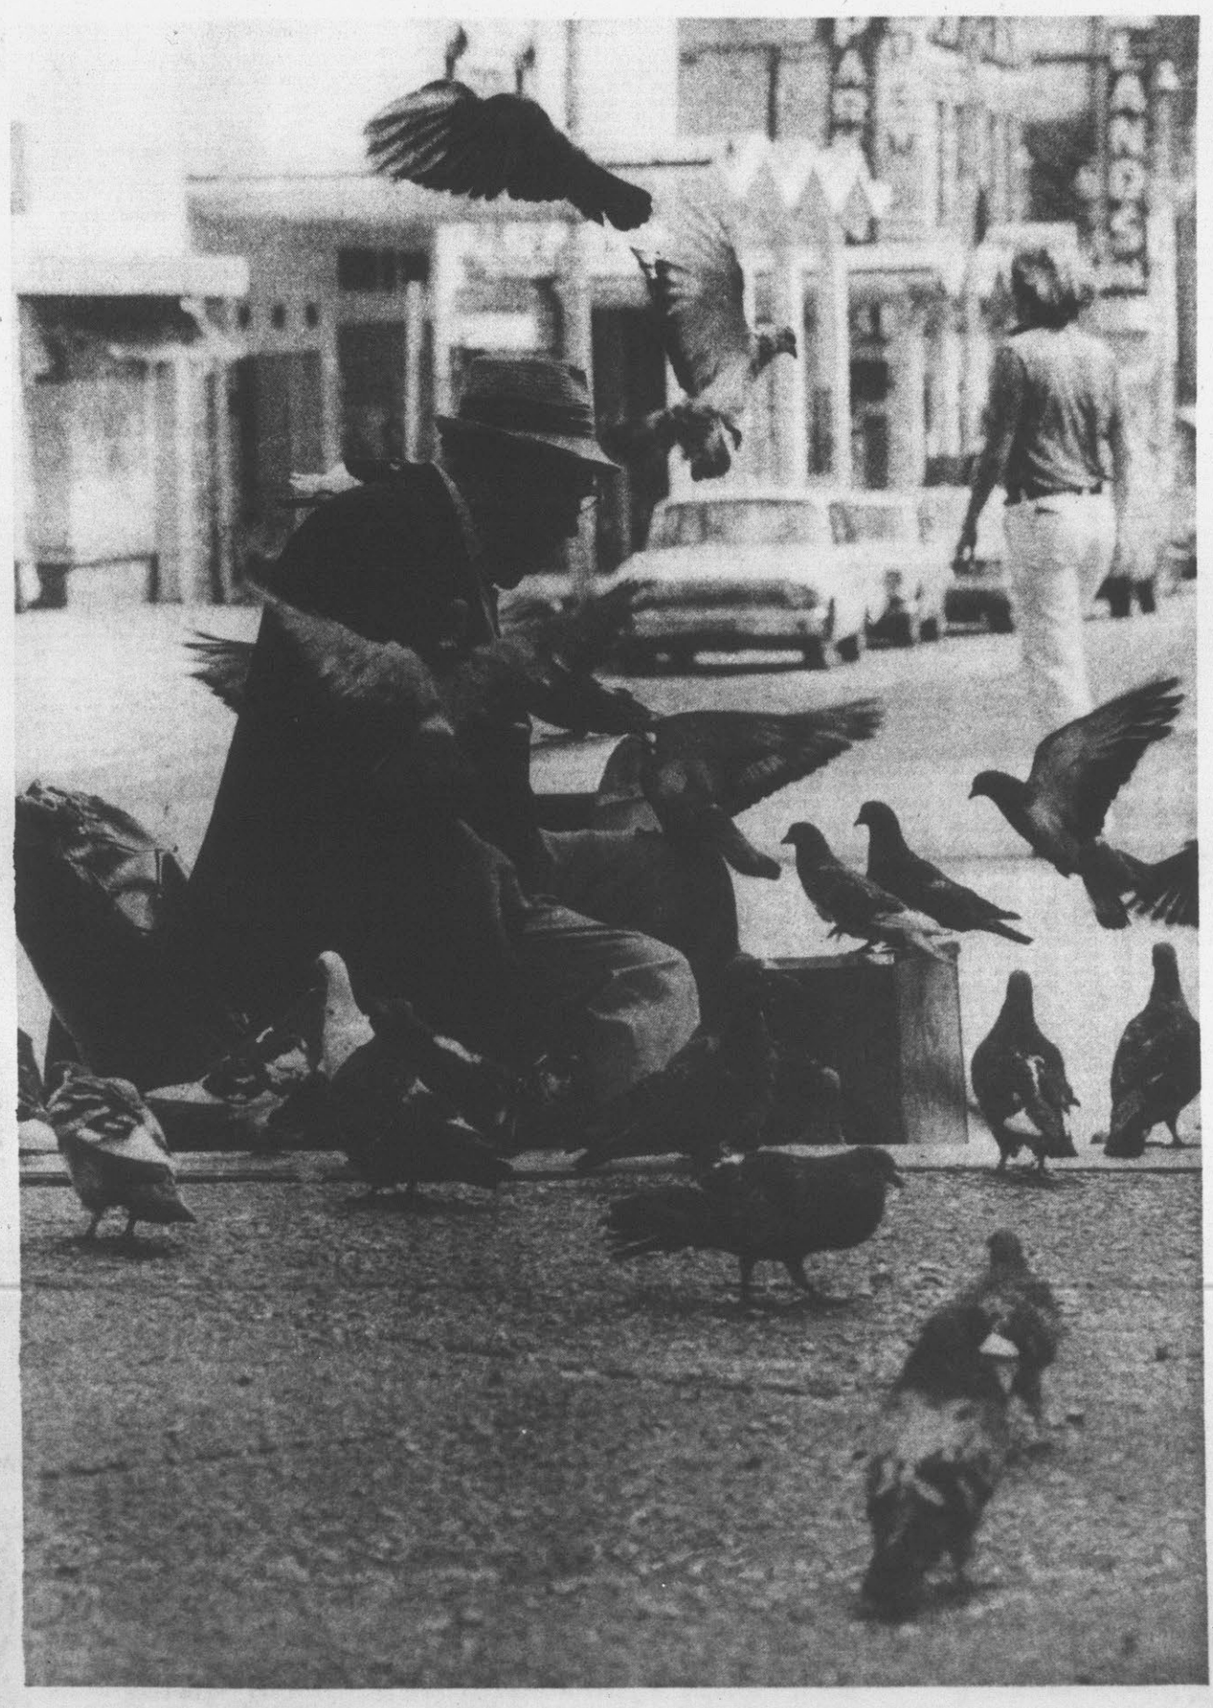

On any day at the Capitol Square in Raleigh, pigeons abound. Singly, in pairs or in flocks, they walk unafraid at people's feet, or fill the air with the flutter of wings as they lift into the air, circle in and around the big trees, and land again.

Smaller birds sometimes mingle with the pigeons, but it is the pigeons who get the major share of attention from people who feed them peanuts.

Political Memorabilia Appeals To Collectors

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The ink is smeared and faded, but the serene visage of Abraham Lincoln is still there.

It's not a well-traveled five spot. It's the black, brown and white button that Honest Abe's campaign workers were pinning on lapels back in his 1860 drive for the White House.

"It'll cost you $35," says Frank Enten of Bethesda, Md. "If it were in real good condition, I could get, maybe, a hundred and a quarter for it."

Enten, 40, has 1,000 buttons in his personal collection and thousands more for sale. An insurance broker by vocation, he peddles buttons from a push-cart on weekends in Washington.

His stock includes an Alf Landon for $9, a William McKinley for $12, and an old Bull Moose pin left over from 1912 for $8.50. A complete Robert A. Taft campaign kit from the 1952 GOP National Convention goes for $12, but Enten will let go of a maroon necktie bearing the white, painted likeness of "Mr. Republican" for $5.

Enten's own collection goes heavy on buttons from the campaigns of Woodrow Wilson, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

"I guess I specialize in candidates who interest me," he said while hawking his goods at a Chicago convention of the Young Americans for Freedom. "I had a great Barry Goldwater collection, but the thing got completely out of hand and I had to sell it off."

Enten says he gets the buttons by scouring flea markets and antique stores and trading with other collectors, some of whom belong to the 3,000-member American Political Items Collectors.

Enten says he became interested in political memorabilia in 1960 when he bought several printed copies of John F. Kennedy's inaugural address. He hung onto them for a while and then sold them to collectors at a profit.

"It just grew from there," he said.

Enten also manufactures buttons with contemporary political slogans and sells those, too. One that was popular with the Young Americans for Freedom, most of whom are followers of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, says: "Ford is an Edsel."

Business Notes

SAFETY AWARD

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. announced that the Greenville district recently received a safety award from the North Carolina Department of Labor.

Don A. Collier, commercial manager for the company, said that the award, signed by Commissioner of Labor W. C. Creel, was in recognition of the Greenville Plant Department's personal injury safety record for 1974.

During 1974, it was noted, plant department employees worked 241,110 man hours with no injuries that caused lost time or required medical treatment.

A. H. Cobb, Greenville district plant manager, accepted the award at a board of directors meeting of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce. Harold Creech, Chamber executive director, made the presentation.

Automatic Checkout Far Ahead

By K.C. MASON

DENVER (UPI) — The automated checkout counter at the supermarket isn't just around the corner.

It may be years away.

Industry leaders describe as premature fears raised by some consumer groups and legislators about automated checkout. Legislation is pending in several states as well as before Congress that would require continued pricing of individual items.

One wholesale grocer here said the legislation is just another reason why a fully automated system is years away.

"I don't foresee any time in the near future where anyone could justify it financially," said Dick Miller, executive vice president and general manager of Associated Grocers, a large wholesale outlet in the Rocky Mountain region.

"With the legislatures saying we can't remove prices from the cans, the hard savings there are taken out. The 'throughput' (productivity) at the checkout also has been reduced because there is no uniform marking of items with codes."

Miller said universal price coding was originally envisioned as coded symbols marked in the same place on each package, possibly on the bottom. But in reality, he said, the codes appear in several different places.

The wholesaler said a 10-lane grocery store would be hard put to make up its initial investment of about $150,000 for automation.

"I've been researching it for well over two years, and I think it's further from reality than people want to admit," Miller said. "We set out on an idealistic path that has so many pitfalls it isn't funny."

Ross McCodder, vice president of the King Soopers retail outlets in the Denver metropolitan area, said his company was not contemplating using the fully automated scanning system at the checkout stands, although some electronic cash registers had been installed.

"The scanning thing is a hot issue and we're not considering putting it in with the attitude that the customers have now," McCodder said. "They have been spooked on the thing."

He said that electronic check stands still would be operated by clerks who read the code and record the price. In the scanner system, the price would be recorded by machine.

Miller said there still would have to be a clerk at each stand to make sure the codes were seen by the scanner. He said codes now are on about 60 per cent of products in stores.

One lawmaker said consumers were scared not by automation or computers, but because prices would show only on the grocery shelves, allowing price changes to be programmed into the machine by the time a customer reached the checkout.

Rep. Gerald Kopel, D-Denver, introduced a bill in the Colorado General Assembly to prohibit stores from removing the price from individual items. The measure died when neither the House nor Senate would accept the others' amendments.

Colorado Common Cause spokesman Steve Barth said his group supported Kopel's bill because one of its board members is a member of the Retail Clerks Union, which objects to the automated system. Union representatives told lawmakers clerks would be put out of jobs with automation —a charge disputed by some grocers and supported by others.

"Automation is automatic to the point where there still need to be clerks to stock the shelves and run the items through the scanner," said Gene Milne, public relations spokesman for the Albertson's supermarket chain. "We don't see any labor force reduction."

McCodder said there may be some labor cutback because the entire grocery system from the warehouse to the checkout line would be more efficient, with the eventual savings passed on to the customer.

"Whether prices go up or down doesn't really matter," McCodder said. "Basically any savings will go to the consumer as long as the competitive situation exists and I say that it does."

Signs Guide Handicapped

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Blue and white signs are popping up all over the country to make it easier for the physically handicapped to park their automobiles.

The symbol-marked spaces are 12-feet wide, allowing handicapped persons the space to unfold wheelchairs or other necessary equipment. In California the physically handicapped get license plates with certain lettering to let a police officer know that the car he may be about to ticket belongs to a physically handicapped person.

The blue and white sign is not limited to parking spots but is used on buildings to indicate entry doors are at least 32 inches wide to allow wheelchair passage; doors that open easily; restrooms that have wider doors, with toilets, wash basins and drinking fountains at reachable levels and public telephones which can be reached by the handicapped.

The United States has some 276 million ounces of gold bullion stored at Fort Knox, Ky.

Organizing Service Plan

C. Don Bradley, vice president of communications and public relations for the Eastern Carolina chapter of the National Association of Accountants, announced that the community affairs program schedule for the 1975-76 chapter year is now being organized.

Bradley explained that the program is part of a nationwide effort by the National Association of Accountants to offer to the public the services of its members, who can provide their business experience and educational background to assist the community in various areas.

The program covers such areas as speeches by members to local high schools, manning booths at career day exhibits, personal visits to high schools or guidance counselors, assistance in the accounting for fund drives of organizations, and other community related projects.

Bradley said that anyone in the Greenville area seeking the services of the Eastern Chapter, which services 18 counties, should contact Charles Harrington at Fieldcrest Mills.

Set Meeting For Tuesday

The city's Public Transportation Commission will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the first floor conference room at city hall.

Tentative agenda items for the session include: discussion of proposed trip to Chapel Hill in September; discussion of the 16 (b) (2) program; election of officers; discussion of a work schedule for the near year; and a general discussion of the Immediate Action Study.

Participates In Nuclear Study

The course, sponsored by the Energy Research and Development Administration, introduced the participants to the many steps involved in assuring that nuclear power plants are built and operated in a safe manner. Miss Kathryn Whichard Weds William C. Poston

Miss Kathryn Oliver Whichard and William Clem Poston were married Saturday at the Memorial Baptist Church of Greenville.

The Rev. Norman Bennett of Greenville officiated at the 12 o'clock noon double ring ceremony.

The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. David Jordan Whichard II of Greenville, and Mrs. Henry Thomas Hines Jr. and the late Grady McLean Poston of Clayton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin organza, appliqued with Guipure and Venise lace. It featured a Queen Anne neckline. Falling from the empire waistline were vertical appliques which outlined the full chapel train.

Her veil, of cathedral length imported silk illusion, cascaded from a lace covered Camelot headpiece. She carried a tapered cascade bouquet of white phalaenopsis and japhet orchids, roses, stephanotis and English ivy.

Mrs. Walter Cox directed the wedding. Joe Goodwin, organist, and Miss Mary Jo White, flutist, provided the nuptial music.

Miss Virginia Suther Whichard of Greenville served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a peach dress of jersey with an empire waistline, halter style neckline and a full A-line skirt. Her dress was accented by a matching hooded tie jacket with long sleeves. Her bouquet was a formal cascade of tropicana roses.

The bridesmaids were Kelsey Lee Canady of Burke, Va., Wendy Schnering of Stevenson, Md., Carolyn Lambert of Smithfield, Angela Loy Latham of Wilson, Deborah Sue Dodson of Raleigh, Mrs. Donald Lee Hardee of Chapel Hill, and Paula Garde Arthur of Greenville. The bridesmaids wore dresses identical to that of the honor attendant.

Miss Sally Jordan Whichard of Greenville was the flower girl. She wore a white formal length dress accented by lace insertions with interwoven peach ribbon. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Charles William Crone Jr. of Raleigh was the best man. Ushers were David Jordan Whichard III of Greenville, brother of the bride, Stanley E. Poston, cousin of the bridegroom, of Fairfax, Va., Terry Herman Hardee, cousin of the bridegroom, of Clayton, George Staples Van Nortwick, cousin of the bride, of Fayetteville, Robert L. Cagle of Wilmington, Ralph A. Palmer of Clinton, Conn., and Charles Lee Schofield of Raleigh. John Anderson Whichard, cousin of the bride, of Greenville, served as junior usher.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Candlewick Inn. The walkway was enhanced by tall standards with bouquets of mixed summer flowers. Mixed summer flowers were also used as centerpieces for the buffet tables.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Amelia Island Plantation, Fla. They will return to their new residence in Raleigh.

The bride attended Sweet Briar College in Virginia and is currently attending the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She was presented at the 1974 Terpsichorean Ball.

The bridegroom is attending North Carolina State University, Raleigh and is employed by the N.C. Department of Transportation, Division of Highways.

An after-rehearsal party honoring the bridal couple was given Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Whichard of Greenville.

Other hosts and hostesses were David Julian Whichard of Greenville, Mr. and Mrs. Nathanial Oliver Van Nortwick Jr. of Greenville, and Dr. and Mrs. William Alva Van Nortwick of Jacksonville, Fla.

A rehearsal dinner party was given Friday evening at the Greenville Golf and Country Club by friends and relatives of the bride and bridegroom.

Antipasto Lunch Can Be Thrifty

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Omar Khayyam thought that a jug of wine, a loaf of bread and a favorite companion was paradise enough. At this season of the year we think that a pitcher of iced tea, a loaf of bread and half a dozen good friends is pleasure enough. With these at hand one can enjoy offering a platter of antipasto for a summer noontime meal.

Antipasto is easy to assemble and can be thrifty or luxurious. Because it is usually composed of meat, fish, eggs, cheese and vegetables, there's great latitude.

Meat first. The choice can be the thriftiest of cold cuts instead of the traditional but more expensive Genoa salami or prosciutto. A group of U. S. Dept. of Agriculture staff members who recently made a survey of ready-to-eat meats in New York found that the most economical ones were "chubs" (chunks) of unsliced bologna and liverwurst, often priced between 79 and 99 cents per pound.

The fish served with antipasto is usually canned anchovies or sardines or both. If there's a fisherman in the family who smokes his catch, there's no reason why it can't substitute for the canned fish.

Hard-cooked eggs, cut in quarters, often appear with antipasto. But the eggs can play a more attractive and filling role on a thrifty platter if you halve them, mash the yolks with a little mayonnaise, mustard and lemon and pile the mixture back into the egg-white cavities.

For cheese, choose a semisoft mild variety. Mild cheddar, for example, costs less than sharp or extra-sharp cheddar.

For a vegetable you can choose carrots from your market or garden and serve them raw or cooked and marinated in French dressing. Cooked snap beans and cooked celery also take to the marinade treatment. Cherry tomatoes or regular ones are good to serve with other vegetables. Ripe or green olives, though traditional, may be omitted.

The loaf of bread? Whether home-baked or bought, it should be a crusty variety. With it you might offer crunchy bread sticks that also may be baked at home or bought.

And now to that pitcher of tea. Brew it by your favorite method for serving it iced and offer lemon or lime and sugar with it.

DEAR ABBY: A friend who recently moved to this city phoned me early one Sunday morning to say that he was in agony and asked if I knew a dentist who could see him immediately.

I reached my dentist, who agreed to see my friend at once.

Later that day, my friend phoned to thank me and tell me what a marvelous job my dentist had done in putting him out of his misery. (He had had an abscessed tooth which required dental surgery.)

Six months later, my dentist called to tell me that he was sorry but that he was turning my friend's dental bill over to a collection agency because all his bills had been ignored!

I was shocked because my friend is well off financially, and I certainly never took him for a deadbeat.

I am terribly embarrassed and don't know what to do. Should I call my friend and ask him to please pay the dentist? Or should I pay him myself? The bill is $90 for three visits.

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: You are not responsible for your friend's debts, but since you were the middleman, urge your friend to pay the dentist at once. It might embarrass him into paying up.

DEAR ABBY: My uncle and I have a disagreement. Recently a good friend of mine came home after being in the service for a long time. I was so happy to see him that I hugged him hard.

My uncle saw this and later told me that it was "disgusting" for two men to hug each other. He said "real" men do not show any outward affection for another man.

Abby, I consider myself a "real" man, and I still don't see anything wrong with what I did. I am 20 and my friend is 21. Do you think we acted "unmanly"?

DOUBTFUL

DEAR DOUBTFUL: No! A "real" man feels sufficiently sure of his own masculinity to hug another man—and even kiss him if he feels like it, without fear of what others might think.

If you have any doubts, save them for your uncle.

DEAR ABBY: We are totally confused about an incident that occurred at one of our finer restaurants. Our waiter brought the check on a tray in the customary fashion. A few minutes later, the cashier came to our table saying he had to close out his cash drawer, even though we hadn't finished our lunch.

We looked at the check, and it totaled $18.02. We placed two $10 bills and two pennies on the tray, and the cashier picked up the tray and never returned with our change.

We know that 20 per cent is the customary gratuity, and we are wondering if they assumed that the extra two dollars was the tip.

Is that the customary procedure at the better restaurants? We've never run into that before.

PREPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: The waiter should always return the change no matter how much (or little) it is. You were within your rights to ask for your change. A "tip" is not an obligation, and the amount should always be left to the discretion of the diner.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CONCERNED PARENT: You can't tell a child "too much." Knowledge doesn't stimulate inappropriate behavior: IGNORANCE does! If you tell your child more than he can understand, he will either ask you another question or turn you off. Parents should work toward being ASKABLE!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

This year, millions of Americans are busing their way through Europe on package tours that offer scenic grandeur at budget prices.

My husband and I just whipped through nine countries in 21 days. (Okay, so I looked down to change the film in my camera and missed Italy.)

How are they able to offer this bargain to travelers, you ask?

Simple. The Continental Breakfast.

To the non-traveler, I must explain that the Continental Breakfast consists of a paper napkin, a knife, fork and spoon for which you have no use, a cup and saucer, a pot of coffee or tea, and a container of marmalade dated, "Please Use Before July, 1936." Finally, two four-letter words that have come to strike terror in the hearts of travelers everywhere . . . the HARD ROLL.

The Continental Breakfast (literal translation: Keep Out of Reach of Children) has a gradual, but unmistakable effect on people who eat it for a period of 10 days or more.

For the first several days, partakers of the hard roll will pretend it is just the thing they need . . . or the "Famine is Fun" number. Women will pinch their waists and say, "I've been eating too much on this trip. A light breakfast is just what I need."

The truth is, the hard roll is not designed to take off weight. Even though eaten in small pieces, once in the body, it will form again into its original hard ball and build a hard wall across the hips and the stomach. After the 11th day, the hard rolls make you mean.

We had our first hard roll in Ireland on July 1. By July 15, the group was irritable and non-communicative. On the 17th while in Venice, my husband, in a fit of violence, grabbed a hard roll, carved his initials in it, "WLB, 1975" and sent it back to the kitchen.

By the 19th day, the prospect of a hard roll for breakfast forced some travelers to remain in their beds with their faces turned to the wall. Others used the hard roll to pry their luggage open, prop open their doors, or to rub stubborn stains from their shirt collars.

On the 21st day, we looked at our last Continental Breakfast in Paris. My husband ran his fingers across a roll that was initialed, "WLB, 1975."

"It's just a coincidence, isn't it?" he asked.

Some things, it's best not to know.

Tiny Caribbean Island Helped In Marking U.S. Bicentennial

By MARGARET HYMAN

SAN JUAN, P. R. (UPI) — The tiny Dutch Caribbean island of St. Eustatius, which was leveled by British guns for helping the American rebels win their independence, is getting some American reciprocity almost 200 years later for its big celebration next Nov. 16 of the U. S. Revolution Bicentennial.

The seven-square-mile island, lying about 200 miles east of Puerto Rico, was the first foreign government to recognize the independence of the 13 colonies when the garrison at Fort Oranje, on Nov. 16, 1776, officially saluted the American flag flown by the revolutionary navy ship Andrea Doria.

But St. Eustatius, now a part of the Netherlands Antilles and commonly known by its nickname, Statia, made a far larger contribution to U. S. victory than mere formal recognition.

The little island became the major Caribbean trans-shipment point for arms and other supplies from sympathetic European nations which sustained the American rebels.

Statia paid its price for this assistance.

British Adm. George Rodney, declaring of St. Eustatius, "This rock has done England more harm than all the arms of her most potent enemies," barraged the island in 1781 and then sacked it.

The havoc was so great that, even today, Statia mothers warn naughty children: "Rodney will get you if you don't behave."

The importance of Statia to the colonial revolutionaries can be partially judged by the fact that Rodney's men found 3 million pounds worth of goods apparently destined for the U. S. mainland in Statia warehouses and captured 50 U. S. vessels which unknowingly entered the harbor after the English had taken it.

Statia's 1,200 inhabitants have always observed the Nov. 16 anniversary of the recognition of the U. S. flag as a public holiday. But the island's leaders decided they wanted to do the celebration up big this year because of the U. S. Bicentennial.

Through articles in the San Juan Star here, they made contact with U. S. historian Charles W. Toth, a professor at the University of Puerto Rico, who agreed to help them with the celebration.

What the Statians had in mind was the full restoration of Fort Oranje: reconstruction of some of the 18th century buildings, conversion of one of them into a public library, and erection of a Bicentennial Village public housing project.

The Statia authorities also suggested wistfully they would like, eventually, to restore the Dutch Reformed Church and the synagogue, reputed to be the second oldest in the Western Hemisphere, both of which have lain in ruins since the Rodney assault.

Toth tackled the library first. With the help of Violet Nyquist, a member of the board of the San Juan Volunteer Library League, he got the library to put aside duplicate copies of books for Statia.

Then a local moving company offered 30 boxes of books it had stored for a doctor who no longer wanted them.

The next question was how to get the books to Statia. U. S. Air Force Maj. Roland Behnke took a hand. Behnke acts as liaison between the Air Force and the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) here. He already has arranged one CAP book delivery to Statia and more are planned.

Acknowledging that the Navy, of all the U. S. armed forces, is most indebted to Statia, the 10th Naval District here is studying how it can contribute to the Nov. 16 celebration. While no specific plans have been made yet, the district's public affairs officer, Lt. Cmdr. Jim Toombs, said, "We will certainly do something to show our appreciation."

WATERWAYS

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas has more than 80,000 miles of rivers, streams and bayous, Parks and Wildlife Department officials say.

Of the streams, about 13,000 miles are classified as major waterways.

WATER THREAT

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Exhaustion of underground water supplies threatens Texas' agricultural economy, the Texas Water Resources Institute says.

Irrigation has allowed production on 8.3 million acres of Texas land without gambles on rainfall. Production from the irrigated land in 1973 was estimated at $1.83 billion.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Some problem that bothers you is best solved by listening to what an expert has to suggest. Then plan future outlets carefully.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a born organizer and should be given an opportunity to use this quality from earliest age, but teach early to first listen and learn before jumping into anything. The will is strong here and invincible in any argument, while the ability to work is great. Teach the difference between right and wrong at earliest age. Give good religious training, sports that are worthwhile.

Day Care used to be a disappointing word. But now there's Mini-Skool. And Day Care means everything it should.

Introducing Mini-Skool for your pre-skooler.

How many times have you thought about day care for your pre-schooler, only to be disappointed by what was offered? Well, let's get one thing straight from the start. Mini-Skool is unlike any other day care center your child will experience. Why? Because we offer a standard of child care no one else does.

Strong words, you say? Not to Mini-Skool. Start with our facilities. They're modern and fully equipped to include a complete range of children's equipment for play and learning. Add to this a staff of child care experts, all qualified to look-after and not just baby-sit your children. And by look-after, we mean provide each Mini-Skooler with the personal attention and care he or she may need.

Now let's talk about your children. What will they be doing? Sitting around idly waiting to go home? Not at Mini-Skool they won't. Because beside having all those toys and games to play with, Mini-Skool offers your children the most imaginative and stimulating pre-school programming available. Here's an example. Our September Me, Myself and I program lets your children gain a positive self-image of themselves through an exploration of moods and feelings. And our Forest Comes to Us program makes it fun to learn about forest animals, Smokey the Bear and the magic of the enchanted forest.

But that's just the beginning, because our kind of day care is comprehensive. And that includes delicious, healthy, nutritious meals for your children. And no, it's not the same thing every day.

We can prove it. Visit us during our Open House.

But listen, don't take our word for it. Come and see what Mini-Skool is all about for yourself. And please, bring your pre-schoolers. Because the look on their faces will be your final proof. We'll be holding Open House this Wednesday and Thursday, August 20 and 21, until nine p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, August 23 and 24, one 'til five p.m.

A little something for your pre-skooler.

If you decide that Mini-Skool is for your children and would like to register for this fall, we have a little something for our new Mini-Skooler. It's a genuine blue denim Mini-Skool tote bag, T-shirt, growth chart and pennant. Your little Mini-Skooler will be so excited.

Traveled Many Miles

Before winning the title of Miss America of 1975, Shirley Cothran had never been farther east than Texarkana, Texas.

This is no longer true for the brown-haired native of Denton, Tex., who will have traveled more than 350,000 miles during her reign as Miss America.

Of course, in order to compete for the Miss America crown, Shirley flew to Atlantic City, N. J. She'll return to crown her successor at the 55th Annual Miss America Pageant to be colorcast live Saturday, Sept. 6, on NBC-TV.

Since acquiring her title, Shirley has been to New York City for a round of press conferences and to order her fashion wardrobe. She has traveled extensively in this country, from New England to Hawaii.

One visit, to Claxton, Ga., was particularly memorable. "I was a guest at the annual rattlesnake roundup in Claxton," she said. "We rounded up 345 rattlesnakes. The snakes were not killed. They were sent to a rattlesnake farm in Florida, where their venom is milked and used for medical purposes."

Shirley, who is accustomed to the relatively flat terrain of her native Texas, was enchanted with the rolling hills of Vermont and New Hampshire. "They are two of the most beautiful states I've visited," she said.

Shirley's travels as Miss America included visits to the West and Midwest. She was also the guest of honor at the Kona Coffee Festival in Hawaii and in August she will visit the Mediterranean area to entertain American servicemen, heading a Miss America troupe on behalf of the USO.

Her continuous travels as Miss America has inspired her to take up some new interests. "I've started some new hobbies since becoming Miss America," she said. "I've taken up needlepoint and have completed 10 pieces.

"I'm also collecting local art by artists in the localities I visit. My collection includes sculptures and wood carving indicative of the area."

Her traveling has not permitted her time to continue with her favorite sport of motorcycle trailing. "I took it up about six or seven years ago," she said.

The 5-foot-8-inch titleholder has no showbusiness aspirations. Prior to winning the Miss America crown, Shirley had earned bachelor's and master's degrees in education and had experience as a student teacher of the first through sixth grades. She intends to use her Miss America scholarship award of $15,000 to work toward her Ph.D.

"I am going back to school - probably in January - to North Texas State University," she said. "I hope to be a guidance counselor."

In addition to her scholarship award, Shirley expects to earn about $65,000 in personal appearance fees during her reign.

SEEING AMERICA — Before she became Miss America of 1975, Shirley Cothran had never traveled further east than Texarkana, Texas. As Miss America, she will have traveled 350,000 miles during her year-long reign. Shirley crowns her successor during the 55th annual Miss America Pageant, to be colorcast live from Atlantic City, N.J., Saturday, Sept. 6 on NBC-TV.

He's Back In Arena

When Broadway-movie - television favorite, Sheldon Leonard, was asked why he decided to star in Big Eddie," the new half-hour situation comedy series, he replied:

"I've been an actor, I've been a writer and a play-reader. I've been a producer and a director. Now producing is out . . . directing is out . . writing has become too highly standardized, so — if I were to continue functioning in the only profession I know — it seems logical to get back into the acting arena again."

COMEDY SERIES. . . Sheldon Leonard stars as Eddie Smith, owner and operator of a New York City Arena known as "The Big E"; Sheree North co-stars as his wife, Honey, a former dancer; and Quinn Cummings plays Ginger, Eddie's orphaned granddaughter who lives with them in "Big Eddie" new comedy series which premieres Saturday, Aug. 23 (8:30-9:00 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11. "Big Eddie" will be seen Saturdays in that time slot for three successive weeks. Then, on Friday, Sept. 12, the series will move to its regular day and time (Fridays, 8:00-8:30 p.m.).

This particular arena is the new CBS-TV series, "Big Eddie," which will have its premiere broadcast on Saturday, Aug. 23, 8:30 to 9 p.m.., on Ch. 9-11. The series, with Leonard in the title role of Eddie Smith, is expected to be a big hit of the season. To be broadcast in that same Saturday time slot on Aug. 30 and Sept. 6, the show will move to Friday night (8 to 8:30 p.m.) Sept. 12., and remain there for the 1975-76 season.

Also starring in "Big Eddie" is Sheree North as his wife, Honey, an exotic dancer who was Eddie's amour for many years before they decided to marry in order to enable Eddie to gain custody of his beloved orphaned granddaughter, Ginger, played by 8-year-old Quinn Cummings.

The series is "funny within a believable framework," says Leonard. "These are thoroughly realistic, three dimensional characters and we'll deal with real problems. It's a funny show. It's a pertinent show, and it says something."

This is 'perfect casting' for Sheldon Leonard in a series that marks his return to acting after an almost total absence of nearly 25 years. During that period, he was extremely active in the TV industry in Hollywood, but as a creator, writer, director and producer. In those capacities he was a key figure in the production of some of the most acclaimed programming seen on the medium, including such comedy series as Danny Thomas's "Make Room For Daddy," "The Andy Griffith Show," the first "Dick Van Dyke Show," "Gomer Pyle - USMC," "My World and Welcome to It" and the Bill Cosby - Robert Culp adventure series, "I Spy" and others, all of which he supervised as executive producer.

He has 16 Emmy Award nominations and four Emmy Awards and has been nominated four times for Directors Guild of America Awards and four times for Producers Guild of America Awards.

Sen. Bayh Is Guest

Sen. Birch Bayh (D.-Ind.), who has formed a committee to seek the Democratic nomination for President, will be interviewed on the ABC News series, "Issues and Answers," Sunday, Aug. 17, 1:30 to 2 p.m., on ABC-TV. The program will originate live in Washington, D.C.

Although the junior Senator from Indiana has not formerly declared his entry into the race, a Birch Bayh for President Committee has registered with the Federal Election Commission. He will be interviewed by Bob Clark, "Issues and Answers" Chief Correspondent, and Sam Donaldson, ABC News Capitol Hill Correspondent.

". . .The Bad Guys Are Back

Jean Shepherd might well be the world's only real-life comic book hero. The things he actually does come right out of dreams, comic-book fantasies. Like this week's episode of "Jean Shepherd's America," on UNC-TV Sunday, Aug. 17. at 6:00 p.m.

Jean remembers one comic-strip from his boyhood in which the hero gets away in a houseboat. The bad guys are faked out, and left back on the shore shaking their fists. Meanwhile, as the sun slowly sinks in the west, the hero sails safely away. And thanks to the houseboat, good triumphs over evil.

Shepherd has wanted to be the "houseboat hero."And now he gets his big chance on "Jean Shepherd's America." No bad guys this time, and no chase. Just Jean Shepherd on a houseboat.

But "just Jean Shepherd on a houseboat" is truly something to behold. He stands proudly at the helm, reaching into his never-ending stock of stories. There's the soft sound of the engine purring in the background, and the gentle lapping of the waves to complete the mood.

It's all part of his love affair with America's crazy life at sea. And Jean Shepherd goes and does it. He's America's reflection of itself, and he's enjoying himself every minute. You can't help enjoying his dream version of the "houseboat hero."

He's A Happy Host

If being happy were illegal, Bobby Van would be arrested.

Van's euphoria these days is paradoxical, as he is convinced that hosting the ABC-TV Network's free-wheeling new game show, "Showoffs," which airs Mon.-Fri. 12 noon to 12:30 p.m., could well be the most hectic struggle in the entertainment arena.

He can say so with some authority. As a musician, singer, actor and dancer, he has achieved success in theatre (Tony Award nomination for his performance in "No, No, Nanette"), nightclubs, Las Vegas showplaces, motion pictures and television.

"I could tell you the work is difficult," he says, "but why bother with understatement. Let's just say it stops just about an inch short of impossible."

He explains. "Nobody sits down on this show, not for a second. 'Showoffs' is a game of body language, with wildly expressive people, both the celebrities and contestants, acting out clues to words and phrases. If we had a chandelier, they'd be swinging from it. You don't know what's going to happen, except that it will be unexpected.

"My job is to set the pace, the mood, run the show. My mind is going 90 miles a minute, in 700 areas. And from behind the cameras I'm getting orders from everybody. So many computers, clocks, people waving, brandishing signs. Speed it up, stretch it out, commercial coming up. And I'm taking orders from myself - keep the score, announce the score, jolly the contestants. And remember - you're having fun!"

Van grinned. "And the improbable fact is, I am. A couple of times, a floor manager has said during a break, 'Hey, didn't you see me waving at you?' I hadn't. I was having too good a time."

Reflectively, he said, "With the possible exception of bank robbery, you can't have a job with better hours. We tape a week's shows in one day. Occasionally, at home, I've headed for the phone to call my agent. Then I stop. 'Why am I looking for work? I am working.' "

But additional work has come to Van, without his looking for it. Since starting "Showoffs," he has accepted a guest role in a TV drama series, a three-week engagement at Harrah's Club in Reno, and a starring role in a new musical to open at Los Angeles' Music Center. The taping schedule for "Showoffs" is flexible enough to make room for these extra added attractions.

A fringe benefit is that he and his lovely wife, musical comedy star Elaine Joyce, are vastly enjoying their Beverly Hills home, with pool and garden, after years of hotel rooms and New York apartments.

Benny Goodman Appears On ETV

Who else but Benny Goodman brings an audience to its feet just by walking out on stage? The audience at Pops just overflows — with love, with memories, with welcome and reverence — when jazz virtuso Benny Goodman is part of 'The Best of Pops," Sunday, Aug. 17, at 7:30 p.m. over UNC-TV.

The first surprise is that he looks the same as ever. Same firm, mellow face, the quizzical, sweet expression. Same stance, feet planted solidly on the ground with head and chest thrown back. And same natural grip on the clarinet — as though it were something he were born with.

Goodman first plays Weber's Concertino for Clarinet and Orchestra, Op. 26 and then continues with a medley of popular tunes for the clarinet. The audience, in a body, sighs. It's that familiar Benny Goodman sound — smooth-as-silk — and melodies are enough to melt your heart. "Poor Butterfly," "If I Had You," "The Man I Love" — played with real tenderness and delight — and the sad and lovely "Funny Valentine." Lastly, there's "Don't Be That Way" when the audience breaks into applause and the percussion really lets go. Goodman, ever everybody's buddy, glances toward the percussionist with a lifted eyebrow and a gesture . . . as if to say, "Listen to him."

By 1929, at the age of twenty Benny Goodman had been established as a major name among fellow musicians. For the next five years he performed as a "side man" in the lucrative radio and recording fields. In 1934, he organized his own band and began a coast-to-coast radio show-case, "Let's Dance." At the Palomar Ballroom in L.A., an ebthusiastic audience crowded around the bandstand — listening instead of dancing, shouting approval for the Goodman Style — and as history has it, the Swing Era was born. Record hit followed record hit and in 1935 Goodman brought a new innovation to swing — soft, subtle 'chamber music jazz.' His combo, by 1939, included Teddy Wilson, Gene Krupa, Lionel Hampton and Charlie Christian. In 1939, he gave his famous jazz recital at Carnegie Hall — a performance immortalized by a record that is now the largest selling jazz LP of all time. In 1940 he began to give classical recitals in Carnegie Hall and elsewhere, and has since traveled all over the world.

Drama Airs

Part I of "Snow Bear," an Arctic animal adventure, will be presented on "The Wonderful World of Disney" Sunday, Aug. 17, on NBC-TV and Ch. 6-7 (7:30 to 8:30 p.m.).

Separated from her mother, Paka, a female polar bear cub, is snared in a hunting trap in the Arctic wilderness. To prevent killing the uninjured cub, Timko (Steve Kaleak), a sensitive teenage Eskimo, adopts her, convincing his reluctant father, Akotak (Rossman Peetook), that Paka can be traded to a zoo.

Over the months Paka nears maturity and on the day that bush pilot Jim Johnson (Dan Truesdell) lands to trade with the villagers, she breaks out of her shed and into the community storeroom.

The bear destroys the valuable winter food supplies. The town elders counsel and banish Paka from the village, warning Timko that should she return to the settlement she will be shot on sight.

WELL VERSED

Marion Swan, who plays the role of a nurse in many of the hospital scenes in "Ryan's Hope" (daytime drama on ABC-TV), doesn't 'fake' any of her scenes. She is a registered, practicing nurse as well as a professional actress. In addition to appearing before the "Ryan's Hope" cameras, Miss Swan also serves as a consultant to the show's production staff to assure that authentic medical procedures are followed in the hospital scenes.

DECORATING MAGIC

Decorating ideas can please the eye as well as create lovely and livable rooms. Like every other trade, there are magical tricks even when you know how they are worked. Some have to do with lighting; some, with windows, walls, or floor treatment; others, with furniture placement, color-scheming, space saving, accessorizing, room division. It's very important to have a total-room goal in mind and stick to it. Don't get carried away with an idea that just won't work for you.

Speaking of floor treatment, we have the answer to all of your floor problems. Beautiful wall to wall carpeting will do the trick every time. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Carpet is our Business, Not a Hobby."

The late-night entertainment series is colorcast on the NBC Television Network weeknights from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

ABC Late Night Specials

Kirk Douglas, Faye Dunaway, Sidney Poitier, Lee Marvin, Lloyd Bridges, Jose Ferrer and Maximilian Schell are guests in "Stanley Kramer: Triumphs and Defeats of a Hollywood Filmmaker," in which the celebrated producer unfolds an insider's account of the motion picture industry in a two-part "Wide World: Special" to be seen on ABC-TV's late-night program schedule in the week of Aug. 18-22.

"The Picture of Dorian Gray, a made-for-television interpretation of the classic Oscar Wilde story, will be rebroadcast in a special two-part "Wide World: Mystery." All programs, with the exception of "The Picture of Dorian Gray," will be seen from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. on ABC-TV.

Laurence Luckinbill and Jack Ging star with David Hedison in "Murder Impossible," a "Wide World: Mystery" which begins the week on Mon., Aug. 18. In the thriller, which also stars Robin Strasser (Mrs. Luckinbill), a scientist is slain and his new wonder invention is stolen and held for ransom.

Donna Mills stars as an American woman, highly successful in British fashion journalism, who accidentally meets Bob Spelling, an architect, in "Killer With Two Faces," a "Wide World: Mystery" to be rebroadcast Tuesday, Aug. 19.

Neither the woman nor Spelling is aware that Bob's identical twin, a psychotic killer, has escaped from an institution for the criminally insane, has already killed two women, and is on a course that will cross their paths.

"Stanley Kramer: Triumphs and Defeats of a Hollywood Filmmaker," Part I, is the "Wide World: Special" for Wednesday, Aug. 20. Kramer, the program's host and executive producer, will have Kirk Douglas, Sidney Poitier and Lloyd Bridges, with whom Kramer worked in "Champion," "The Defiant Ones" and "High Noon," as guests.

Lee Marvin, Faye Dunaway, Jose Ferrer, and Maximilian Schell are guests on Part II of the program on Thursday, Aug. 21, when discussions will focus on "Cyrano," "Ship of Fools," "Judgement at Nuremberg," and "Oklahoma Crude."

Appropriate film excerpts will accent both parts of the program.

"The Picture of Dorian Gray," based on Oscar Wilde's classic suspense novel about a man who remains eternally young with terrifying consequences, will be rebroadcast as a "Wide World: Mystery" in a special doubleheader format on Friday, August 22, in which both parts of the two-part made-for-television drama will be seen on the same evening.

Starring British actor Shane Briant as Dorian Gray, Part I of the thriller will be seen from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Part II will be seen at 1 to 2:30 a.m.

The Issue Is Education

"Compulsory education for our children is as accepted a part of daily American life as the very air we all breathe. It was not always the case. Little less than a century ago, it was the exception rather than the rule in most of the United States."

Thus says John Matley, executive producer of "Gunsmoke," about "The Fires of Ignorance" episode to be rebroadcast on the series Monday, Aug. 18, 8 to 9 p.m., on the CBS Television Network.

In the script, which vividly underscores Mantley's comments, Henry Decory, played by Allen Garfield, incurs the anger of one Oliver Harker (John Vernon), father of his prize pupil, Tommy, because of the teacher's belief that education must be compulsory. Feelings run high, and the matter winds up in the Dodge City court.

Garfield, as Decory, makes an eloquent plea for education, pointing out, in the words of script writer Jim Byrnes:

"I believe in compulsory education. The pilgrims themselves first formed the act. Massachusetts passed it as a law in 1852. And now it's law in Washington, D. C., Michigan, Nevada, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Vermont."

"Gunsmoke" has been one of the classic examples of the great entertainment film form developed by motion pictures — the Western. It's pure entertainment — but from time to time there's a script that's both an entertainment and a parable. "The Fires of Ignorance" is the latter. Young Tommy Harker has a bumpy road toward education in the Dodge City of the 1870s.

As producer Mantley points out, it is a matter of historical fact that if there had not been compulsory education in the state of Nevada, America would have been deprived of one of her greatest scientists.

Albert Michelson, son of an immigrant family that settled in Nevada, received his elementary education in that state and was eventually appointed to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He went on to carve out a distinguished scientific career, becoming the first to measure accurately the speed of light. As a result, in 1907 he became the first American to be awarded the Nobel Prize in physics.

DOUBLE DUTY

Patrick McGoohan will be guest-star and also director of a "Columbo" episode, "Identity Crisis," scheduled to telecast during the upcoming season.

Stars Play Games

There are stars, stars and more stars participating in this week's game shows. These notables of show business don't just walk out, give the camera a big smile, wave to the audience and disappear: they join in the fun as active, enthusiastic contestants.

"Hollywood Squares" host Peter Marshall welcomes Milton Berle, Trish Van Devere, Edward Asner, Kate Jackson, Demond Wilson, Joan Rivers, John Davidson, Karen Valentine and David Brenner to the tic-tac-toe board.

On hand to team with contestants in challenging the giant pinball machine in "The Magnificent Marble Machine," are actress Susan Clark and singer Frankie Avalon. The show's host is Art James.

Welcomed to "Rhyme and Reason" by host Bob Eubanks are Johnny Brown, Mitzi McCall, Charlie Brill, Lois Nettleton, Jamie Farr and Pat Harrington.

Bill Cullen and Lee Meriwether will be the celebrity players on "The $10,000 Pyramid." Dick Clark is host of this popular game show.

"You Don't Say!"—with Tom Kennedy, host—has Robert Reed, Abby Dalton, Larry Hovis and Ann Elder as guests.

"Coffeetalk" Guests Set

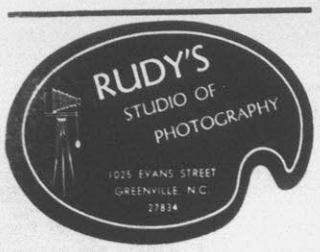

Host Art Bannon has put together a week of programs that all evolve around topics of extreme interest to viewers.

Monday's guest, Mike Glancy, describes a proposed 'pre-trial release program' — an alternative to jailing — that's currently under consideration by New Hanover County.

Tuesday's topic is "The Black Christian," and the Reverend Leroy Blair talks about the involvement of the church in the black community.

The upcoming orientation program at Hoggard High School is on Wednesday's agenda, and "A Down-Home Fish Fry" is featured Thursday when "Coffeetalk's" guest is Bill Leggett. Mr. Leggett explains how the proceeds of this annual charity event are used to aid crippled and burned children.

Art winds up the week with a discussion about laws surrounding search and seizure and the criminal procedure act.

Authenticity Found In "Law"

Normally, Al Nierenberg doesn't like to watch courtroom drama on TV. But he'll make an exception on Tuesday, Aug. 19 (8:30 to 11 p.m.).

That's when "The Law," an "NBC World Premiere Movie," will be colorcast on NBC-TV.

Nierenberg, a Los Angeles deputy public defender, is the model for the character portrayed by Judd Hirsch in the film about the inner workings of the criminal courts system of a large city.

He also served as the film's technical adviser. That he has the credentials seems beyond question. A former policeman, Al was a deputy district attorney before switching sides to the public defender's office.

"Courtroom drama on television usually doesn't ring true," he says. "It plays as though the writer had never been inside a courtroom.

"The real drama usually doesn't take place in front of the jury. It's when the lawyers go to the judge's chambers and do their bargaining.

"That's exactly what I wanted to see on television but never had before 'The Law'." Fortunately, Joel and Bill (Joel Oliansky and producer William Sackheim who co-wrote the script) saw that there was tremendous dramatic potential in showing the behind-the-scenes maneuvering that goes on and they've written an authentic, exciting script.

Further enhancing the movie is the excellent acting of Judd Hirsch, who studied engineering for three years in college and hated every minute of it.

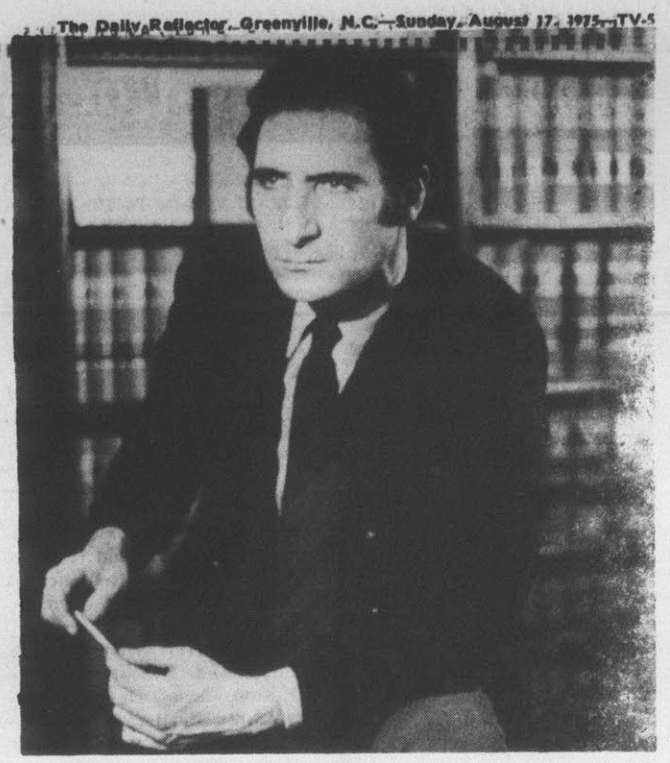

"I guess I always knew I'd never become an engineer. I don't know why I stuck with it so long.

"One day I was walking along the street with a good friend of mine - a fellow sufferer in engineering," Hirsch recalled.

"I said to him, 'What are we doing? We both hate engineering. We don't want to become engineers. Why don't we just put our books down on the sidewalk and walk away from them?' And we did just that!

"I went home and told my father I wanted to become an actor," said Hirsch.

"He had a terrific reaction. He looked at me as though I'd said I had just caught poison oak — like it was a temporary affliction that would go away in time."

PUBLIC DEFENDER. . . Judd Hirsch reprises the role of dedicated public defender Murray Stone in "The Law", the NBC World Premiere Movie, to have a repeat colorcast on Tuesday, Aug. 19 (8:30-11:00 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Reminiscing Time For Two Stars

Several years ago, Connie Stevens turned talent scout and was instrumental in launching the career of Ken Berry.

Now, Connie and Ken are co-starring in "Every Man Needs One," the "Tuesday Movie of the Week" airing Aug. 19, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12. It is the first time the two performers have worked together since Berry had a small part in an episode of Miss Stevens' series, "Wendy and Me" in the mid-1960s. Naturally, it was reminiscing time on the set while shooting the new romantic comedy.

"It was one of Ken's first film roles in Hollywood and his first time on the Warner Bros. lot," Connie recalled. "I was very impressed with his comedy talent and I went to the casting people and told them they must do something.

"I invited the casting department to the projection room to see our daily rushes and judge Ken's talent for themselves. I tried not to go overboard, and it wasn't necessary."

The timing was perfect. Warners was about to start production on a zany Western comedy series for ABC called "F Troop" and was in the process of casting. Ken won a leading role and he hasn't had time to look back since.

"I'm forever grateful to Connie for starting my love affair with television," Ken stated. "You know, I started my little theater career in Los Angeles as a song-and-dance man. It used to be my ambition to emulate Fred Astaire on the stage or in motion-picture musicals. Over the years, my goals have changed somewhat."

After "F Troop," Berry was picked to succeed Andy Griffith in his highly successful rural TV series with a title change to "Mayberry, RFD."

"Those were the happiest days of my life. I had found my niche - working in a trade I love with reasonable hours. Believe me, I really want another half-hour series."

Ken has abandoned his dream of the stage career for several reasons.

"Dancing every night is physically taxing, but it's more than that - at least for me. For some reason, I came to dislike the live audience.

Rollicking Comedy-Adventure Debuts

Yul Brynner, Eli Wallach, Jane Birkin and Lainie Kazan star in "Romance of a Horsethief," a rollicking comedy - adventure making its television premiere on "The ABC Summer Movie," Monday, Aug. 18, 9 to 10 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

New York Daily News film critic Ann Guarino called the movie "a welcome relief from the overflow of realistic drama these days." Judith Crist found it "colorful and silly and amusing," and Los Angeles Times critic Kevin Thomas put all the elements together by describing the film as "a rollicking folk tale with serious undertones, filmed magnificently on the lush northern plains of Yugoslavia and boasting a fine, lively cast." In praising the cast, Thomas said, "Yul Brynner gets the opportunity to play to the hilt a part that fits him like a glove . . . he is well matched by Lainie Kazan."

Eli Wallach and Oliver Thomas play Kifke and Kradnik, two crafty peasants in 1904 Poland who eke out a living selling - and stealing - horses until Cossack Captain Stoloff (Brynner) appropriates all available horses for the Russo - Japanese war. With the village facing economic ruin, and Kradnik's beloved (Jane Birkin) imprisoned for anti - Czarist activities, the two goodhearted thieves arrange an elaborate hoax to free both the lady and the horses from Russian domination.

Capt. Stoloff, who has been lured away to a picnic with the lovely and available Estusha (Lainie Kazan) while his gullible troops are being dehorsed, notes philosophically that "everything changes, whether we want it to or not," and saves his own career by announcing that the horses were diseased, anyway.

COSSACK CAPTAIN. . . Yul Brynner stars as a dashing and devious Cossack Captain outdone by even more devious peasants in 1904 in the television premiere of "Romance of a Horsethief" on ABC Summer Movie Monday, Aug. 18, (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Mann To Develop Script

Oscar and Emmy Award-winning writer Abby Mann has been commissioned by NBC-TV to develop and write a script for a major motion picture titled "King," based on the life of the late Martin Luther King, it was announced recently by Stanley Robertson, Vice President, Motion Pictures for Television, NBC-TV

"When we look back on today," said Mann, "I think we will not think of it as the Kennedy era or the Watergate era but as the King era.

"He was the greatest man I ever knew and time has proven him even greater. The punishment that he received for taking unassailable moral positions is perhaps the greatest story of our time.

"This will not be an attempt to make a plaster saint out of King like previous projects," said Mann, "but to present him as a vulnerable, struggling human being."

Mann had discussed doing a film with King when he was still alive. He will work closely with Mrs. King and Stanley Levinson, one of Dr. King's closest friends.

"We will not rehash generally known facts about Dr. King," Mann said, "but instead will have explosive new material."

Karras In Movie Special

Alex Karras, former defensive tackle for the Detroit Lions and commentator for ABC's Monday Night Football, has been signed by producers Norman Felton and Stanley Rubin to star as George Zaharias in "Babe," a two-hour movie special for CBS starring Susan Clark.

The project focuses on the relationship between Babe Didrickson, "the world's greatest woman athlete," and George Zaharias, the man she loved and married in 1938. A wrestler turned sports promoter, the Greek-born Zaharias helped Babe organize woman's professional golf in the United States.

Following cancer surgery in 1953, Babe took a four-month vacation from golf, then returned to the tournament circuit and won the U. S. Woman's Open. When the illness recurred in March of 1956, a newspaper article quoted Zaharias as saying, "It's hell to sit there and watch somebody you love dying."

Karras flew to Florida in April to confer with George Zaharias, who now lives in Tampa. "This is a role I dearly wanted, and I'm going to give it all I've got," relates Alex, a former collegiate heavyweight wrestling cahamp who bears an uncanny resemblance to a youthful Zaharias.

"Provocative," Says Actor

TRUE STORY — James Franciscus has an uneasy moment before facing the two women who have accused him of adultery in "The Trial of Chaplain Jensen," the true story of a Navy Court martial on the "Wednesday Movie of the Week" Wednesday, August 20 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

"It's a thought - provoking film," says James Franciscus about his last movie, "The Trial of Chaplain Jensen," airing as the ABC Television Network's "Wednesday Movie of the Week," Aug. 20, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

The true account of the only chaplain in the history of the United States to be court-martialed on any charge, and the only officer in the history of the U.S. Navy to be court-martialed on charges of adultery only, stars Emmy - winner ("The Glass Menagerie") Joanna Miles as his wife, Kathleen.

Other key roles are played by Charles Durning, Harris Yulin and Lynda Day George.

"The tragedy was the enormous cost in emotion and money for Chaplain Jensen to clear his name," says Franciscus. "I think he took a terrible risk with his own position and that of his children, but he wanted his name cleared. One certainly sympathizes with him and admires him."

About his portrayal, Franciscus says, "The trap that's easy to fall into in playing a priest or a chaplain is becoming too pious. I tried to play him as a human being with anger. As a matter of fact," he adds, "the Chaplain really learned about hate for the first time. He won, but he was scarred."

After his acquittal, Chaplain Jensen was given a new post by the Navy at the Princeton Theological Seminary. He is currently serving on the chaplaincy staff at Philadelphia Naval Hospital.

Landon Says True Love Will Overcome

Michael Landon, one of the most devoted family men in Hollywood, isn't too concerned about "modern" morals. He is convinced that good, old-fashioned love will still conquer all — even today's youth.

"It's true that some people have decided to live together without benefit of marriage," says the star of NBC Television Network's "Little House on the Prairie" Wednesdays, 8 to 9:00 p.m., but he doesn't think that the basic family unit is threatened by such action.

"They might think that the 'you've got your life and I've got mine' business sounds terrific at first—but when a man and a woman are really, really in love they'll get married.

"When you fall deeply in love things change. It's no longer 'me' and 'you'—it becomes 'us,'' says Landon.

"What is the sense of taking separate vacations? It doesn't make sense to me for a wife to go one way on her vacation and the husband another, so they can meet later and tell each other all about their trips. That's silly.

"The real joy of going on vacation with someone you love is watching them have fun.

Triumphs And Defeats Depicted

Faye Dunaway, Lee Marvin, Jose Ferrer, Maximilian Schell, Kirk Douglas, Sidney Poitier and Lloyd Bridges are guests of celebrated producer-director Stanley Kramer in "Stanley Kramer: Triumphs and Defeats of a Hollywood Filmmaker," a two-part "Wide World: Special" which will be presented on the ABC-TV Network Wednesday, Aug. 20, and Thursday, Aug. 21 (11:30 p.m. to 1:00 a.m.), on Ch. 3-5-12.

"Pictures Which Lost Money and Why" is the subject of Part I. Kramer and Marvin, Gerrer, Schell and Miss Dunaway discuss the margin between success and failure of a motion picture, the thin line that separates the box office bonanza from the succed d'estime.

Film Clips shown from "The Man," a story of paraplegics following World War II; "Cyrano de Bergerac," starring Jose Ferrer; "Judgement at Nuremberg," starring Maxilian Schell; "Ship of Fools," starring Lee Marvin; "On the Beach," the story of a world on the brink of destruction; "Oklahoma Crude," starring Faye Dunaway and George C. Scott, and "Inherit the Wind," based on the famous William Jennings Bryan - Clarence Darrow courtroom confrontation.

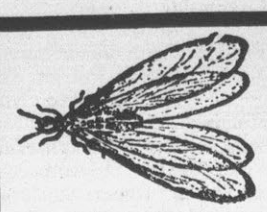

While reminiscing with the stars, Kramer reveals, "I have a penchant for casting against type," explaining that he used Fred Astaire in "On the Beach," a stark drama, and Gene Kelly as a reporter in "Inherit the Wind."

In Part II, Kramer takes up the subject of "Pictures Which Made Money and Why" with Douglas, Bridges and Poitier as his guests.

Highlights include film excerpts from "Champion," starring Kirk Douglas; "The Wild Ones," starring Marlon Brando; "Home of the Brave," with Jeff Corey and James Edwards; "High Noon," with Gary Cooper and Lloyd Bridges; "The Defiant ones," starring Sidney Poitier; "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," starring Poitier, Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy, and other Kramer successes.

Kramer reveals the origin of "The Wild Ones," and discloses heretofore unknown information about "Home of the Brave," a film made at a time of strong racial prejudice. Poitier points out that Kramer put his own career on the line when he starred him with Tony Curtis in "The Defiant Ones."

Kirk Douglas tells how his agent advised against making "Champion," the film which was to make him a star. And Kramer's "inside" stories on a number of other films may surprise even very knowledgeable film buffs.

Pike's Peeks

By CHARLIE PIKE
TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD—Production on "M-A-S-H" was delayed again recently, just when filming had started on the opening hour-long segment introducing Mike Farrell as B.J. Hunnicutt, the replacement for Wayne Rogers' character, Trapper John. But this time it wasn't due to contract problems. Gary Burghoff, who with his wife recently welcomed their first child, a girl, Gena, sustained a scratched cornea when a pine tree limb struck him in the face while he was mowing the lawn at his Malibu Beach, Calif. home. Gary was off work for a week while the minor injury healed, and because of his prominence in the premiere show, production had to be shut down.

Any reports printed that "Hawaii Five-O" star James MacArthur and wife Melody are expecting can be dismissed. It was merely a badly-placed rumor, for the MacArthur's have no immediate plans for a family.

If David Groh seems to have a brighter smile this Fall, credit it to his dentist. David underwent extensive oral surgery during his vacation, something he admits he should have done long ago.

Ronee Troup, daughter of "Emergency" star Bobby Troup, has announced plans to marry James Coleman, co-star of ABC's "S.W.A.T."

Elaine Orlando, Tony's wife, is on hand weekly for the tapings of her husband's variety show. In fact, Tony says he confers with Elaine weekly on material for the show. Additionally, Elaine has started a career of her own—comedy writing.

Queen Mary: Beloved Ship

Taller than Niagara Falls, longer than three football fields, and weighing 81,000 tons, the former Cunard luxury liner Queen Mary was a gracious hostess to more than two million transatlantic passengers during her 34 years of service.

That's a hard act to follow, even for a Queen, but the great lady of the sea recently faced spectacular 'destruction' as a 'star' of "Adventures of the Queen," suspense-drama starring Robert Stack, Ralph Bellamy, David Hedison and Bradford Dillman, to be presented on "The CBS Thursday Night Movie" Aug. 21, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

The Queen Mary can boast of her 16-ton, 18-foot anchor, secured by a chain of 200 - pound links; her four propellers, each 18 feet in diameter and weighing 35 tons, and her two steam whistles that can be heard 20 miles away — but probably wouldn't. The staggering proportions that prompted writer Dorothy Parker to ask, "When does this place pull out of here?" are only one facet of the liner's mystique.

Her well-appointed wood-panneled cabins, half-acre dining salon and elegant ballrooms created an environment of gracious splendor.

She also served with dignity during World War II in temporary incarnations as troopship, prison and hospital, and she brought British Prime Minister Winston Churchill to his historic meetings with President Roosevelt.

The Queen Mary's last seagoing master, Capt. John Treasure-Jones, has said that the great liner was the nearest ship ever to a living being. She had personality, the captain said, adding that for all who served on her or enjoyed her hospitality, the Queen Mary was "a well-beloved ship."

Compete On "Almost Anything Goes"

Run back with a partner on your shoulders and then try it backwards.

✱Slide down a greased slope. Catch a mug of beer flung at you and pour it into a cylinder.

These and other hilarious games will be seen in the fourth of five editions of "Almost Anything Goes," airing on ABC-TV Thursday, Aug. 21, 8:00 to 9:00 p.m., on Ch. 3W-5-12. The occasion is the "Almost Anything Goes" Western Regional Championship competition, featuring teams from Banning, California, Peoria, Arizona, and Boulder City, Nevada. It will take place in Banning's football stadium.

Dame Judith In Hollywood Special

Hollywood Television Theatre presents Enid Bagnold's "The Chinese Prime Minister" Thursday, Aug. 21, at 9 p.m. on UNC-TV. It stars Dame Judith Anderson as SHE, an aging actress who wants to grow old gracefully. In the opening scene of the play SHE exclaims, "Why does no one write real plays about the fascination and disaster of being old?"

Dame Judith seems the personification of the central character of the play. She is enthusiastic about the role and has been an admirer of Bagnold's work since her role in "The Chalk Garden" in 1956. Dame Judith felt that the sets for this production should reflect something of her own personality, and she contributed photographs of theatrical personalities and sketches of costume designs by Oliver Messel from her own collection. They form part of the set decoration for the bedroom. Dame Judith also provided a collection of personal memorabilia from her home in Santa Barbara, which included two oil portraits of herself. Standing in front of one of these paintings, Dame Judith delivers one of the most telling speeches of the play:

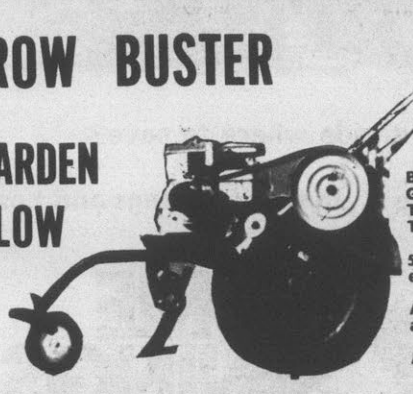

"What I'm trying to say - but don't answer me - is that my life is still full of surprises. I have an extra vitality and extra expectation! I don't know why I say this to you except that it may be a revelation for your old age."

Zorro: One Of First Rebels

The adventures of the dashing avenger of the oppressed people of early California will be retold in the swashbuckling movie classic, "The Mark of Zorro," the ABC Summer Movie" Friday, Aug. 22, 8 to 9:30 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

The story of "Zorro" was fiction, but it has historical basis. Spanish rule levied heavy taxes on the downtrodden people who lived in the Pueblo of Los Angeles in early California — $3,000 from missions for an arsenal in Monterrey and later $1,200 paid in soap, 80 horses, 80 saddles and 50 blankets. They drained the landowner in a similar manner.

"Zorro" actually lived in several youthful rebels who tried to terrorize the rich by riding through the countryside at night burning and sacking storehouses of goods meant for Spain.

Novelist Johnson McCulley in his book, "The Curse of Capistrano," molded all the rebels into one character — "Zorro" — The Fox.

Frank Langella as Don Diego (alias Zorro), returning from Spain in 1820 to El Pueblo de Neustra la Reina de Los Angeles, would have found a squat, adobe settlement of 600 inhabitants comprised of Indians, half-breeds, scattering of Spaniards, and one lone American. (The American was a captured pirate who had drifted south from Monterrey.)

The first church is still standing, as is the schoolhouse where the headmaster was paid the princely sum of $140 per year.

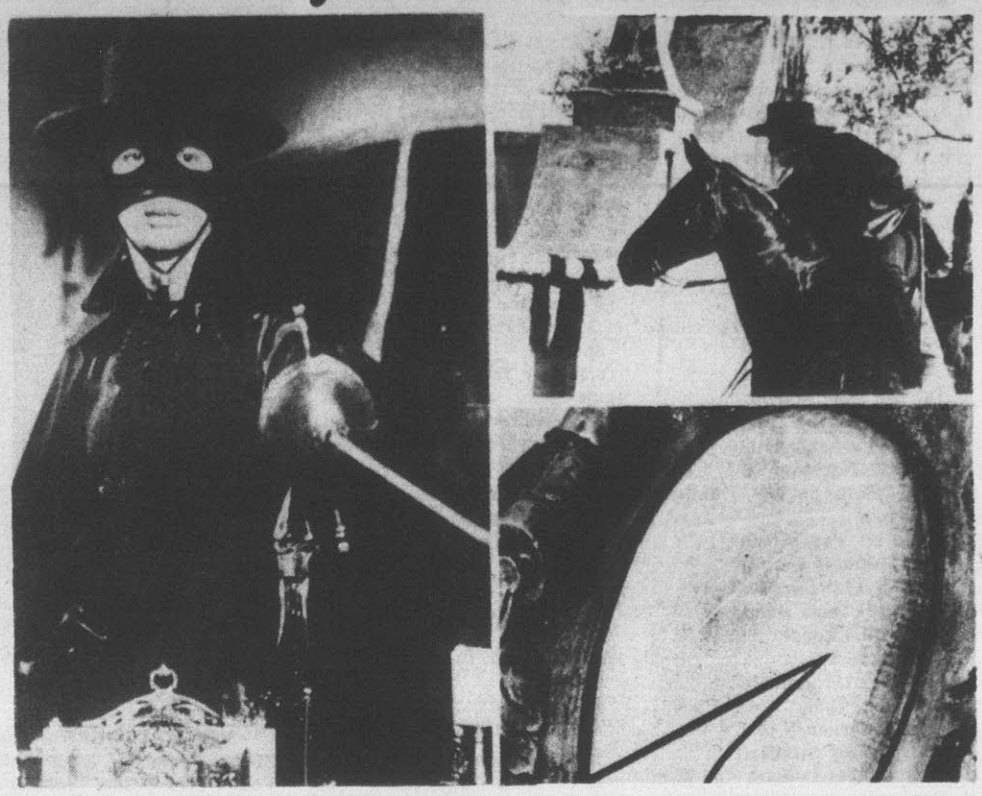

The trip that Don Diego would now take from San Pedro to the Pueblo de Los Angeles to the San Fernando Valley to the mission in San Gabriel Valley would wind through several highways.

The Harbor Freeway, the lifeline between San Pedro Harbor and downtown Los Angeles, is a stream of cars and diesel trucks, where once the horsedrawn carriages clopped along. Downtown, the Los Angeles City Hall sits only a few blocks from the site of the city's origin.

Following Don Diego's route to his father's house, the Hollywood Freeway takes the trail through Hollywood, formerly a bean field and now the moviemaking capital of the world, through the Campo Cahuenga Pass to the San Fernando Valley where Diego's father lived in exile.

Going east from Los Angeles to the Mission San Gabriel (which still stands), the San Bernardino Freeway runs through 20 miles of houses standing where orange groves once flourished upon acres of beautiful, rich soil. The aroma was intoxicating. This heady feeling, along with its product, proclaimed California the citrus fruit capital of the world; now there are mostly houses.

There is little room left, but on Aug. 22, the spirit of Zorro will ride through the remaining orange groves and over the green hills as a symbol of hope for the downtrodden—and anyone else who loves California.

NEW ZORRO—The deadly steel of a sword slashes through the air and once again the dreaded "Z" is on the screen as Frank Langella stars in a new version of "The Mark of Zorro" on "The ABC Summer Movie" Friday, August 22 (8-9:00 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

"Dorian Gray" Airs In 2 Parts

"The Picture of Dorian Gray," a production based on Oscar Wilde's classic suspense novel about a man who remains eternally young with terrifying consequences, will be televised on "ABC Wide World of Entertainment" Friday, Aug. 22, 11:30 p.m. to 2:30 a.m.

Starring in the film version of the bizarre tale are Nigel Davenport, Charles Aidman, Linda Kelsey, Vanessa Howard and Fionnuala Flanagan. English actor Shane Briant makes his American television debut as Dorian Gray.

Posing for his portrait in the studio of Basil Hallward (Aidman), handsome Dorian Gray meets the amoral Sir Harry Wotton (Davenport). Hallward is much concerned about Wotton's possible decadent influence on Dorian. At the same time Dorian makes an 'idle' wish about staying young as he sees his portrait being finished.

Sir Harry proceeds to introduce Dorian to the "world" - the high life of society as well as the low life of the depraved. Dorian reveals in it and the seeds of depravity are sewn. He meets and romances barmaid Sibyl Vane (Miss Howard). When he jilts her, Sibyl kills herself. Dorian feels remorse, but Harry will not let him dwell upon it.

As he continues his wanton ways over the years, Dorian finds his wish coming true - he remains eternally youthful. But to his horror, his portrait ages and becomes grotesque, mirroring his every evil deed, including murder. Dorian desperately tries to find some way to turn the evil tide. He wins the love of a good woman, Beatrice (Miss Kelsey), hoping this love will be enough to save him.

A HANDY ACTOR

Chris Hubbel, who portrays Chuck Tyler on ABC-TV's "All My Children," was reared on a farm and enjoys working with his hands. On a recent vacation he spent most of his time remodeling his California house - putting on a new roof and installing some new plumbing. Asked what he does in his spare time in New York, he said he was restoring a 1957 Mercedes-Benz.

JOIN BROTHERS — Five zany supporting players — Ted Ziegler, Freeman King (L-R, rear), Murray Langston, Billy Van, Peter Cullen (middle Row), along with actress Avril Chown, join in the musical and comedy fun on "The Hudson Brothers Razzle Dazzle Comedy Show," telecast Saturdays (11:30-11:56 a.m.) on CBS-TV. The live action series stars Bill, Mark and Brett Hudson.

New Series For Children

"Vegetable Soup," a 39-week series of programs for children designed to counter the negative, destructive effects of racial prejudice and racial isolation, will be presented Sunday mornings on NBC-TV, starting in November. The programs are aimed at children of elementary school age.

The series will have a magazine format with several continuing features, combining live and animated material. One such continuing feature will be a puppet segment called "Outerscope 1," in which five children encounter fantasy creatures who live in outer space. Other features will be segments on people's jobs, art and poetry, ethnic foods, heroes, crafts, games and folk tales.

A book titled "Vegetable Soup Activities," written by Mary and Roy Shepard, will be published to help parents and teachers guide children in making use of material on the programs.

Yanna Kroyt Brandt, a four-time Emmy Award winner, a Peabody winner and Robert E. Sherwood Award winner, heads a staff of contributing producers, writers and artists, 80 percent of whom are members of minority groups.

Extensive testing of the program material is being made by research groups sampling the reactions of children to see if the programs achieve their stated goals, and making suggestions for changes and additions. The research is aimed at learning not what facts the children have learned, but how the programs affect their attitudes.

Some 30 educators and community leaders have given time and help in preparing the series.

"GO" Show

The life of an earthbound boy whose father spends 85 days in outer space will be examined on the "GO!" show on the NBC Television Network Saturday, Aug. 23, 12:30 to 1 p.m. The minicam focused on 11-year-old John Carr, son of Skylab Commander Gerald Carr, during his father's historic space mission. Rod Serling is host of the program.

English Film Airs

"A Member of the Family," a film from England inspired by Anne Sewell's famous novel "Black Beauty," will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, Aug. 23, 1 to 2 p.m., in color on the CBS-TV Network.

Dr. Gordon, whose daughter Jenny owns the horse Black Beauty, takes in his housekeeper's nephew Ned, a runaway from a London workhouse. One day, the boy is accidentally confronted by Symie, a seedy character from his past. That night, Ned starts a fire in the Gordon's table, but Black Beauty brings the family to the rescue.

The next morning, the local magistrate and the constable arrive to question Ned about recent robberies. Ned runs away and hides in the woods, where he is found by Symie, who threatens to turn him over to the police unless he helps rob the Gordons' house. Black Beauty saves the day by trapping Symie in the Gordons' barn, and Ned is freed of suspicion.

Steelers Clash With Raiders

The defending world champion Pittsburgh Steelers take on the Oakland Raiders in pre-season National Football League action on CBS-TV Sunday, Aug. 17, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Lindsey Nelson, play by play, and former Washington Redskin quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, analyst, will be the commentators for the broadcast from Memorial Stadium in Berkeley, Calif.

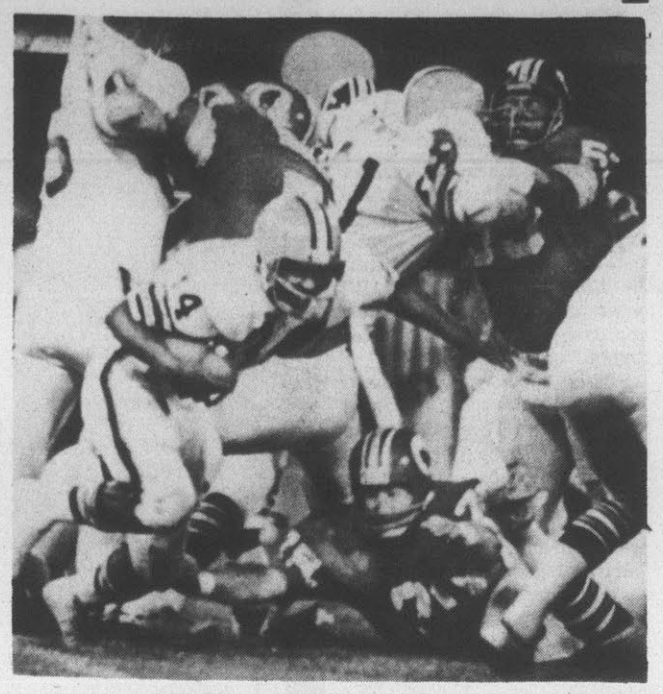

According to coach Chuck Noll, the Steelers' primary goal this season is still to make the playoffs. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw came into his own in late season and goes into the new year as the starter. Joe Gilliam, a 1974 pre-season whiz and starter of the first six games, is the backup man, along with Terry Hanratty. Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier, the Super Bowl running backs, are back with Steve Davis, Preston Pearson, John Fuqua and Reggie Harrison.

Defense is the name of the game in Pittsburgh, where defensive ends Wright White and L. C. Greenwood and defensive tackles Joe Greene and Ernie Holmes accounted for 40 of the club's NFL-leading total of 52 quarterback sacks.

Roy Gerela, American Football Conference scoring leader, kicking for 93 points, and punter Bobby Walden, who averaged 39 yards but only had half his punts returned, lead that department.

The earliest recorded jump in the U.S. took place in 1838, when noted balloonist John Wise made a 13,000-foot descent in an inverted chute. Parachute jumping took on added signifcance with the advent of the airplane, and by 1914 airborne combatants of World War I were using chutists to land behind enemy lines for espionage and battle purposes.

Browns Attempt To Get Back

PRUITT IN ACTION—Greg Pruitt penetrates the massive Redskin line in an exciting NFL contest last season. Pruitt and his Cleveland Browns will meet the Washington Redskins in a Pre-Season battle from RFK Stadium in Washington on Friday, August 22 at 8 p.m. on Channel 3N-6-9-11.

For the 1975 Cleveland Browns, the key word is comeback. The once powerful Browns - whose ferocious attack and stalwart defense kept them among the front-runners for so many years - withered and died last season, leaving them in last place for the first time ever, and with a 4-10 record, the worst in the club's illustrious history. Cleveland will attempt to put the pieces back together as they challenge the Washington Redskins in an NFL Pre-Season Game on Friday, Aug. 22 at 8 p.m., from Robert F. Kennedy Stadium in Washington.

In an attempt for a new facelift, the Browns have elevated former assistant coach Forrest Gregg to the head coaching position. Gregg was named All - Pro eight times as an offensive tackle for the great Green Bay Packer teams, and is a proud possessor of three Super Bowl rings. He cautions that expecting a complete turnaround this year may be too much to ask.

"I really can't say if one year would be enough to bring us a winning season," the coach states candidly.

If the Browns are to return, quarterback Mike Phipps is going to have to stop being the Browns' "quarterback of the future." He's been carrying around that label ever since he was picked as Cleveland's number one draft choice in 1967. Phipps may finally have a corps of pass-catchers to make the future the present.

The team drafted All-American Oscar Roan, a tight end at Southern Methodist but projected as a wide receiver in the pros. The 6'6" youngster starred in the Hula Bowl with seven catches, including a 98-yard touchdown streak. The Browns also acquired wide receiver Reggie Rucker from New England. Rucker led the AFC in catching passes in 1973, and may beef up the passing offense.

In the backfield, exciting Greg Pruitt, the team's 1974 leading rusher, and Hugh McKinnis will combine in the backfield.

To improve the defense, the Browns utilized their top two draft picks to land All-American end Mark Mitchell of Houston and corner-back Tony Peters of Oklahoma, selected to the All-Big Eight Conference Team. Veteran defensive standouts include linebacker John Garlington, who lead the team in tackles, super - safety Walt Sumner, and huge tackles Jerry Sherk and Walter Johnson.

If there was one bright spot in the Brown's 1974 season, it was in the kicking game. Don Cockroft served the role of both place-kicker and punter, and booted 14 of 16 fieldgoal attempts successfully, missing only from 47 to 50 yards out.

Heard Wants Golf Superstardom

To those intense golfing fans all over the country, Jerry Heard makes it very clear - he wants to be one of golf's superstars.

"That's what I'm working toward," the young Californian recently stated.

There are people who believe Jerry already has made it into the high strata reserved for sports heroes. He will appear in the Sammy Davis, Jr. Greater Hartford Open in Hartford, Connecticut. The final round of this rich $200,000 golf tournament will be televised on Sunday, August 17, from 3:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., on CBS-TV.

"The only goal I've ever set has been to win $100,000 a year," he says in a matter - of - fact way. "If you win that much, you usually have to win a tournament or two. Yes, I want to win one of the major tournaments. My game has come along to where I can win one of them, and I believe one will come in time."

He isn't going to be overly concerned if he doesn't win one soon, though. Heard simply isn't the worrying kind. He seems to be loose and tension-free in a tournament.

"Yeah, I am real loose," Heard says. "I don't get nervous. Sure, I want to win, but if I don't, it isn't the end of the world."

Too casual, you say? Heard doesn't think so, and he believes attitude helps to keep him loose. Since he joined the PGA tour, Jerry says the biggest improvement in his game has been in striking the ball. "I used to be a poor driver," he says. "Now, I'm one of the better ones. It's just experience."

Sure, this easy going fellow practices, but not too much. "I never really practice," he stated. "Everyday I hit about 20, just loosen up. That's all."

Although he started golfing when he was 11-years-old, the first time Heard saw a professional tournament was at the Haig Scotch Foursome Invitational in November, 1967. "I was like a duck in a new pond," Jerry notes. "It was the first time I ever had seen people like Billy Casper and Doug Sanders."

Heard was graduated from the 1968 PGA Qualifying School, and since that day he says a number of the pros have helped him. "With most of the players, if you ask them an intelligent question, they'll give you an intelligent answer."

New Space Era

"It will be at least four years before men are blasted into space again from Cape Canaveral," said ABC News Vice President Walter J. Pfister, Jr. "And during that time ABC News will be examining new approaches to covering space flights."

Pfister, in charge of Special Television News Programs, said that as the United States prepares for its next project and the new era of the space shuttle program, the public may begin to look with renewed appreciation at the Apollo series of manned space flights which were capped by the first international space mission - the historic flight of the American Apollo and the Soviet Soyuz spacecraft.

"I think that while the launch pads for manned flight remain silent," said Pfister, "we will develop a nostalgia for 'the good old days' of the Apollo manned flights. They came to be taken matter-of-factly because there were so many and because they were so successful."

Robert Siegenthaler, Executive Producer of the ABC News Special Events Unit, who supervised the live coverage of the Apollo-Soyuz flight, said future developments in space would shape changes in coverage. The space shuttle, for example, will be launched like Apollo. But instead of splashing down in the Pacific in view of television cameras based on helicopters and Naval vessels, the shuttle will return to Cape Canaveral and land on a runway.

"The space frontier is settled," said Siegenthaler. "The space shuttle is like the railroad going west. The shuttle project is not exploration. It's practical application."

Was 1974 A Sign Of Future?

1974 was a year of contrasts for the young Buffalo Bills. Although they made the playoffs for the first time since 1966, they lost to the Pittsburgh Steelers in the first round of last year's playoffs. They also failed to win the AFC Eastern Division by losing five out of their last seven games. (The Bills will meet the Los Angeles Rams Saturday, Aug. 23, 9 p.m., on NBC-TV.)

The offense achieved better balance in 1974, with a bit over 2,000 yards rushing and almost 1,500 yards passing. The legendary O. J. Simpson went over 1,000 yards once again, and fullback Jim Braxton had his best statistics as a professional. Joe Ferguson led the league in passing much of the first half of the season until a shoulder injury slowed him down. Nevertheless, his passing and field leadership as a sophomore was an undeniable asset to the team.

Their young offensive line has become renown due to the overwhelming success of Simpson. Tackles Donnie Green and Dave Foley, guards Reggie McKenzie and Joe DeLamielleure, center Mike Montler and Paul Seymour remained intact during the season, and they are incapable of further improvement.

Receivers Ahmad Rashud and J. D. Hill had big years. Rashad snared 36 passes for 433 yards and four touchdowns, while Hill countered with 32 receptions for 572 yards and six scores.

The main reason for the Bills' success last year may have been the vast improvement in the defense, as they jumped from seventh to second in total statistics, and from ninth to second in pass defense.

Robert James was an All-Pro at cornerback, and Ike Harrison and Neal Craig were standouts at safety. Tony Greene led the club with nine interceptions and was also All-Pro.

In the defensive line, seven-year veteran Earl Edwards was a bulwark at tackle, while Mike Kadish was often spectacular. Walt Patulski was a strong defensive end, while the final line position is up for grabs.

The one possible weak spot on the team was lie in the linebacking, but the return mid-season of injured John Skorupan and draftees Tom Rudd and Bob Nelson of Nebraska and John McCrumbly may help to shore up that position.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RAQUEL WELCH, star of "The Wild Party"*

Do celebrities deserve those fabulous salaries they receive in comparison to those doing hard physical work?—T.O.D., Grand Rapids, Mich.

● Morally it may be unfair, but economically it's very fair. We're not being paid for the amount of work we do, but for what that work earns on the market. On that basis, we're underpaid. What we do sells for millions and millions of profit. Shouldn't we have a share of it? But the public has an inflated idea of how much performers get—and our careers can be short-lived. Does Mick Jagger know how long he'll be up there? Do any of us? For some, 35 is a dangerous age. We don't know if we'll still be popular or whether we'll be able to keep up what we're doing. Besides, our work provides work for other people, and we don't get much credit for that, do we?

FOR ERNIE DI GREGORIO, basketball star, Buffalo Braves*

Is it true that when you were young you played basketball eight hours every day?—Tom Troia, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● Very often it was eight hours—or more. I would shoot in the morning before school and again at night. In the summer, I stayed at the playground all day. Since I was always smaller than the other guys, I spent a lot of time practicing ball handling and dribbling. Kids today frequently just practice shooting. They have to realize it's very important to do the other things too.

FOR LORD SNOWDON

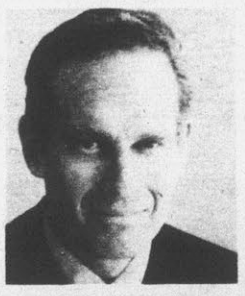

Are your photographs for sale?—R. Allen, Austin, Texas

● I've never given it a thought. I don't know why anyone would want to buy them. In my opinion, photographers aren't on a par with painters. All we do is record what we see with a roll of film. Clicking a lens doesn't require talent, the way holding a brush does. We're not artists. I don't approve of putting our signatures on our photographs—like Van Gogh or Picasso. Photography is a job like accountancy. You wouldn't buy a CPA's ledgers, would you?

FOR CHARLTON HESTON

Have you ever had any desire to enter politics?—Z.K.L., Sacramento, Calif.

● No. I've played three Presidents, three saints and two geniuses. That's enough glory for one man.

FOR HOWARD COSELL, TV personality*

I heard that ABC decided against using you on news shows because you didn't have enough "credibility" because of your sports background. Is that why you changed your mind about running for the Senate, or was it all a publicity gag?—D.R. Wilson, Atlantic City, N.J.

● I was seriously planning to run for the United States Senate from New York state because of Watergate. Once Nixon was gone, I changed my mind.

FOR KATHRYN CROSBY

What are your children's career plans? Do they want to sing?—N. Francis, Washington, D.C.

● Mary Frances wants to be an actress, and studies ballet about five hours a day; Harry studies music and he plays the guitar and piano. Nat is keen on sports. I think he wants to be another Howard Cosell. But Bing and I insist they all must go to college before they decide. We sing quite a lot at home, and the children are in a church choir—which Bing feels is the best training.

FOR NATALIE COLE,

Do you think you're trading on your father's name?—F.A., Hackensack, N.J.

● Even though it's unintentional, I guess I must do that—about 50 percent of the time. Let's face it, my biggest asset is that I'm my father's daughter. I'd probably have gotten where I am, but it would have taken that much longer. Being Natalie Cole has caused the door to open a bit wider and more easily for me.

FOR HILDEGARDE

What makes the "incomparable" Hildegarde incomparable? —D. Deutsch, Jamaica, N.Y.

● At the beginning of World War II, I was introduced for the first time as "the incomparable Hildegarde," and the name stuck. While I modestly deny the literal definition, I feel the "title" is all mine, and I admit to getting upset when I see Marlene Dietrich and Liberace billed as "incomparable"! Talented, legendary, exciting—but not "incomparable." Because I'm still performing!

FOR IRVING WALLACE

Is it true that everyone in your family writes?—P.W., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● Yes. In our house the sound of typewriters is deafening. My son David and I just finished "The People's Almanac" (to be published in November); I'm working on my next book, a political suspense novel; my wife Sylvia (a former magazine editor) has finished the first draft of her first novel; and Amy, my daughter, is completing her first book.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Why don't we ever read good things about Polish people? All I ever read are those sick jokes.—T. Wagorski, Philadelphia, Pa.

● All right—how about singer Bobby Vinton? He was recognized by Zbigniew Dembowski, the Polish Consul General in N.Y., for his contribution to Polish ethnic pride. Bobby's grandparents emigrated here about 1900, and he has been a best-selling singer for 15 years. Said Vinton: "I've heard Polish backgrounds hold people back in their jobs. But Mayor Daley of Chicago thanked me for helping him in the election. Surprised, I said, 'All I did was sing Polish with you.' He said, 'Well, I never won so easily.'" But Poles don't just help elect Irishmen. What about prominent Polish congressmen like Wisconsin's Clement J. Zablocki, Michigan's Lucien Nedzi and John Dingell, and Ed Derwinski of Illinois?

BICENTENNIAL SPECIAL

The Ride Paul Revere Never Made— And Other Bloopers In Our "History"

By John Cameron Swayze

Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

Mr. Swayze

The world is full of historical bloopers. Despite Shakespeare, Caesar was not stabbed to death in the Roman Forum. The Senate wasn't even meeting there at the time. It was meeting at Pompey's Theatre, and that's where Julius was walking on that fateful day. And that old saw about Nero fiddling while Rome burned! The fiddle wasn't invented until the middle of the 16th century, some 1,600 years after Nero lived. Originally, Cinderella's slippers weren't made of glass, they were fur. The switch occurred when a mistake was made in the translation from French to English.

But foreign countries don't have any corner on historical goofs. We have them right here in our beautiful land, and in our Bicentennial year it might be well for us to look at a few of those that relate to our beginnings and have been twisted in the history books.

The Father of Our Country, good old George, didn't throw a silver dollar across the Potomac. For goodness' sake, that's a rifle shot. Yet I heard a soldier, trim and sincere-looking in his freshly pressed khakis, relate that canard to his parents with unquestioning belief. They were standing in front of Mount Vernon as he pointed and said, "He stood right here and threw that dollar across that river. It sure was a long throw."

It sure would have been.

What George did was throw something, probably a rock, across the Rappahannock at a point where that stream was only middling wide. An endless parade of his countrymen, from then until now, have done the same thing from the banks of countless streams, coast to coast.

Also, the calendar didn't read February 22 on the day George was born. It showed the 11th. That one's a little tricky. When the old-style calendar was changed to the new, it caused the altering of the date.

The Liberty Bell wasn't cracked while ringing the first peal for the Declaration of Independence. It was cracked when tolling for the death of Justice John Marshall more than half a century later.

The "shot heard round the world" wasn't fired at Concord; it was fired at Lexington. We can blame Ralph Waldo Emerson, who switched locales in his poem and caused most of us to grow up learning the shot was fired where it wasn't.

And there is absolutely no evidence that Betsy Ross, that nice old lady, sat down and turned out the first flag, as myriad illustrations would have us believe.

Paul Revere's ride! Paul Revere didn't even finish that ride; another man did. But as Walter Winchell wrote, he didn't have Henry Wadsworth Longfellow for a press agent. I wonder if Longfellow had any idea what he was foisting on the nation when he penned that poem. I'd like to dwell on this historical side street for a little.

The fact is, Paul was an adept horseman and the midnight ride was not the first of his equestrian ventures. For example, he had once carried news of the Boston Tea Party from Boston to New York and Philadelphia. But it was his ride on the night of April 18, 1775, that history has remembered—and distorted. That night, Revere was rowed across the Charles River in a small boat with oars muffled by what legend says was a woman's petticoat, commandeered from a patriotic lass. The boat, moving silently, passed virtually under the guns of a British man-of-war and landed Revere at Charlestown. From there he set out for Lexington on a borrowed horse. A short time earlier another messenger, William Dawes, carrying the same warning that the British were coming, had left from Boston Neck, taking an alternate but slightly longer route. Both arrived safely at the house in Lexington where John Hancock and Samuel Adams were staying.

"That old faker Longfellow wrote: 'It was two by the village clock/When he came to the Bridge in Concord town.' At two by the clock, Paul Revere was in British hands."

This, not Concord, was their goal. Hancock and Adams were wanted by the British. The riders, besides sounding the alarm along the way, had been ordered to warn Hancock and Adams that the enemy was coming so they could escape. This done, Revere and Dawes had completed their mission. Going on to Concord was their own idea, prompted by their concern for stores and ammunition held there by the Patriots.

They had not been long on the Concord road when they encountered Dr. Samuel Prescott, a young physician who had been visiting his fiancé in Lexington. Hearing of their mission, he joined them and the newly formed trio sped on. His addition was more important than any of them could foresee. He was the only one to finish the ride!

About halfway to Concord, Prescott and Dawes stopped to alert another farm family, while Revere rode on ahead. Almost at once he saw the British and called to the other two. Dawes immediately broke for a nearby woods and attempted a ruse. As a pair of British soldiers chased him, he shouted, "Hello, boys, I've got two of them!" He was hoping to make the British think they'd fallen into a trap. And indeed his pursuers did pull up; it looked as though Dawes had a good chance of making it. He blew it. He fell off his horse! Luckily, he managed to escape into the woods, but he was left in no position to complete the journey.

When Revere cried his first warning, Prescott rode to join him. Unhappily, both were forced by the British into a rock-fenced pasture. Prescott, familiar with the area, jumped his horse over a low wall and made a getaway. He carried the word to Concord and the Patriots' stores were saved.

Revere, riding for the woods, ran into a second British contingent and was captured. As far as his ride was concerned, that was that. And yet that old faker Longfellow wrote: "It was two by the village clock/When he came to the Bridge in Concord town."

At two by the clock, Paul Revere was in British hands.

Tricky chaps, those rhymers like Longfellow and Emerson. They avoided accuracy as casually as a White House spokesman. But they did give us gallant phrases and thrilling words. Maybe only a churl would quibble about their poetic license. FW

By the way, if you have a pet historical blooper, Mr. Swayze would be interested in hearing it. Send it to John Cameron Swayze, c/o FAMILY WEEKLY, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

"We're looking for people to write children's books."

If you ever wanted to write and be published this is your opportunity.

by Francis Gemme

We need writers. There are over 150 publishers of books for children and more than 250 magazines, all of which have a need for writers.

We know that many people could help fill this need for children's writers if they could only get started. Are you one of those people? Do you have the urge to write and the ambition to work at it but are unable to get professional training? Are you tied to your home or job? Perhaps you lack confidence in your ability?

Have you ever read a children's story and said, "I can do better than that"? Have you ever deplored the lack of good new literature for young readers? Do you love children? Do you want to do something important with your life? Do you want the personal satisfaction and the rewards that come with writing for children? That very attitude may be the clue that you can do it, for the desire to write must come first.

Stories only you can write.

Once you learn to use the basic writing techniques, writing for children may be easier than you think. Your personal experiences, fantasies, personality traits, and hobbies all lend themselves to good subjects. Many of these subjects have been written about—plainly and simply—and have been published. You probably have within yourself many children's stories that only you can write.

A new kind of school.

At the Institute of Children's Literature top writers and publishers have worked together to create a professional course to teach you to write for young children and for teenagers. They include people like Lee Wyndham, a teacher and author of forty-eight books, including Writing for Children and Teenagers, Hardie Gramatky, author and illustrator of many famous children's books like Little Toot, and John Ledes, President of Astor Honor Books and publisher of many award-winning children's books. In total, these professional writers have published hundreds and hundreds of books and magazine articles for young readers. They know how to write—how to teach—and how to help you get your writing published.

Learning to write and to sell.

This course will train you step-by-step from the writing of the opening sentence through the polishing of a finished manuscript. Yes, you will have completed a manuscript suitable for submission to a publisher when you finish this course.

The success of this course has been demonstrated time and again by people who simply knew in their hearts that they could write in a way that would enrich children's reading experiences.

Your own instructor.

Because writing is a very personal experience, we believe that the teaching of writing must also be personalized. That is why, in addition to writing materials, textbooks, instruction, and assignments, you will receive personal guidance on every lesson from your own instructor.

The instructor chosen for you will be a professional writer who will remain with you throughout the course. He will show you how to use your personal feelings, experiences, imagination, and interests to write for children—in your spare time at home.

Work at your own pace.

A writing course is most effective when you can work at the time you feel most like working. With this course, there is no bell to end the class and no interruptions from other students. You and your instructor can work together at the pace most suitable for you. This flexible schedule allows more time for each student than is possible in a classroom situation.

You mail your completed work to your instructor who carefully reads and edits each assignment. He then writes you a long personal letter explaining in detail his corrections and makes specific recommendations. You receive professional advice and guidance while you work where you want—when you want.

The rewards.

Although many writers of children's books earn $10,000 to $15,000 and more a year, the benefits of a career in writing also include the challenge, the excitement, and the great satisfaction of doing something important with your life. When you complete this course, you will be a trained writer with a future. And what a future!

Francis Gemme, a Founder of the Institute of Children's Literature, is the President and Publisher of Gallery Books and former President of Young Reader's Press.

Last year, more than 30 million children's books were published, producing total sales of over 170 million dollars! And over 250 periodicals for children with a combined circulation of over 60,000,000 were published. Books and magazine articles for children are frequently adapted for television and for the movies. In addition, there are twenty-six children's book clubs and a rapidly expanding children's paperback market.

Writing is truly satisfying only when your work is published and, for writers of children's literature, there have never been more publishers.

Will you take the first step?

You may be a teacher, be taking care of a home, or be a concerned grandparent. You may not even believe that you have the necessary background to become a successful writer. But, as an author, you will be judged solely on your ability to write—not on your age, sex, education, or previous writing experience.

For example, female authors appear on the best sellers list as frequently as do male authors and, in the field of children's literature, there are as many female editors as there are male editors.

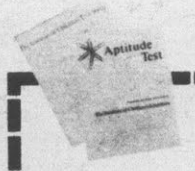

Free test.

To find qualified men and women with an aptitude for writing, the Faculty and Consultants of the Institute have prepared a special Aptitude Test. It is offered free of charge and will be evaluated at no charge to you by members of our staff.

If you want to be a writer, send in the coupon below for this free test and for a free brochure which fully describes the Institute, our course, our faculty, the current publishing market for children's literature, and your new future. If you demonstrate an aptitude for writing, you will be eligible to enroll. Of course, there is no obligation.

Ilie Nastase:
Two Sides of a Great Player

Here's what it can be like to face Ilie Nastase across a net: Nastase often starts a tennis match by shouting at linesmen and casting aspersions on their eyesight. When he feels a wrong call has been made, he will throw a towel at the offending official. He has also been known to hurl his racquet to the ground as a gesture of contempt toward the official who made the "wrong" call. When he misses a shot, he howls, paces up and down, looks skyward as if to implore heaven to remove the hex that has been placed upon him. When he is chastised about his behavior, his English suddenly becomes very poor and he can't understand anything but Rumanian (his English is actually very good). He will be very contrite for a while and promise not to let it happen again, but will invariably repeat his antics in the next tournament. During one tourney, tennis player Clark Graebner became so enraged at Nastase's posturing, he jumped over the net, grabbed the Rumanian and threatened to punch him. Nastase was so rattled he left the court and defaulted the match. . . . Despite all this, Nastase is one of the world's outstanding tennis players. He has been a Wimbledon finalist and U.S. Open champion. The 27-year-old Rumanian is the son of a Bucharest bank cashier. He received a tennis racquet as a birthday present when he was eight and was soon beating players who were ten years older. He had tremendous speed and also showed unusual dexterity in wielding the racquet. By the time Nastase was called up for the compulsory military training required of Rumanian citizens, he had established himself as a top-rated tennis performer in his country.

Therefore, he was allowed to play in tournaments all over the world while wearing the uniform of an army lieutenant. He and fellow Rumanian Ion Tiriac became the backbone of Rumania's Davis Cup team. . . . Once a match is over, "Mr. Nasty" becomes "Mr. Charm."

He is so gracious and friendly at social functions and dinners that many people who have watched him in a tournament can't believe he's the same person. But whether he's Jekyll or Hyde, he's successful. His income is currently more than $100,000 a year.—By Barry Abramson

Facts About Poisonous Plants

Many decorative plants are poisonous if eaten in sufficient amounts—and some even in small amounts. Plants like the azalea or other rhododendrons, laurel and mistletoe can be poisonous when eaten—especially by children. A plant with a similar potential for harm is the foxglove, which is known as digitalis in medicine. Acorns and oak leaves were eaten by the priestesses who attended the sacred oracles of ancient Greece—and they literally blew their minds. Their prophecies and advice were given while they were hallucinating from the oak leaves and acorns. Other toxic plants are lily of the valley, iris and larkspur; also the beautiful Christmas rose, which is also known as black hellebore, a dangerous poison. House plants can be dangerously poisonous, too—especially those that grow from bulbs, such as hyacinth, narcissus and daffodil. And poisoning has also occurred from a decorative bean called the jequirity bean, which is made into bracelets and necklaces. Tourists to Latin America or the Caribbean often bring such decorative items home. Illness and death have occurred from eating them. If you have a child in your house who has a habit of putting things in his or her mouth, it might be a good idea to check out those beautiful plants you're so fond of. They could be your child's potential enemy.

Cool and Thrifty: Tuna-Vegetable Supper Salad

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a summer supper with the budget in mind. "I often rely on canned tuna on lean-pocketbook days," says Marilyn. "This time I've combined it with cooked, chilled vegetables."

Rudolph Callender

Tuna-Vegetable Supper Salad has just about everything going for it—it's cool, easy, thrifty, nutritious and tasty!

TUNA-VEGETABLE SUPPER SALAD

1 pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen mixed vegetables
1 pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen cauliflower or broccoli
1 cup thinly sliced celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion
6 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1¼ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon sugar
3 drops Tabasco
2 cans (7-oz. size) tuna, drained and chunked
Crisp lettuce leaves

1. Cook mixed vegetables and cauliflower according to package directions. Drain and chill.

2. After they are chilled, combine mixed vegetables, cauliflower, celery and onion in medium bowl; set aside.

3. Mix oil, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, salt, sugar and Tabasco. Pour over vegetables. Cover and refrigerate 1 hour. Add tuna just before serving.

4. Arrange vegetables and tuna on large lettuce-lined platter. Makes 6 servings

NOODLE PUDDING

3 cups wide (½ inch) noodles
1½ qts. boiling water
2 teaspoons salt, plus ½ teaspoon
½ cup chicken fat, butter or margarine
4 eggs, well beaten
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

1. Preheat oven to 400° F. Lightly grease an 8x8x2-inch pan or a 9-inch pie pan.

2. Cook noodles in boiling water with 2 teaspoons salt for 10 minutes. Drain well.

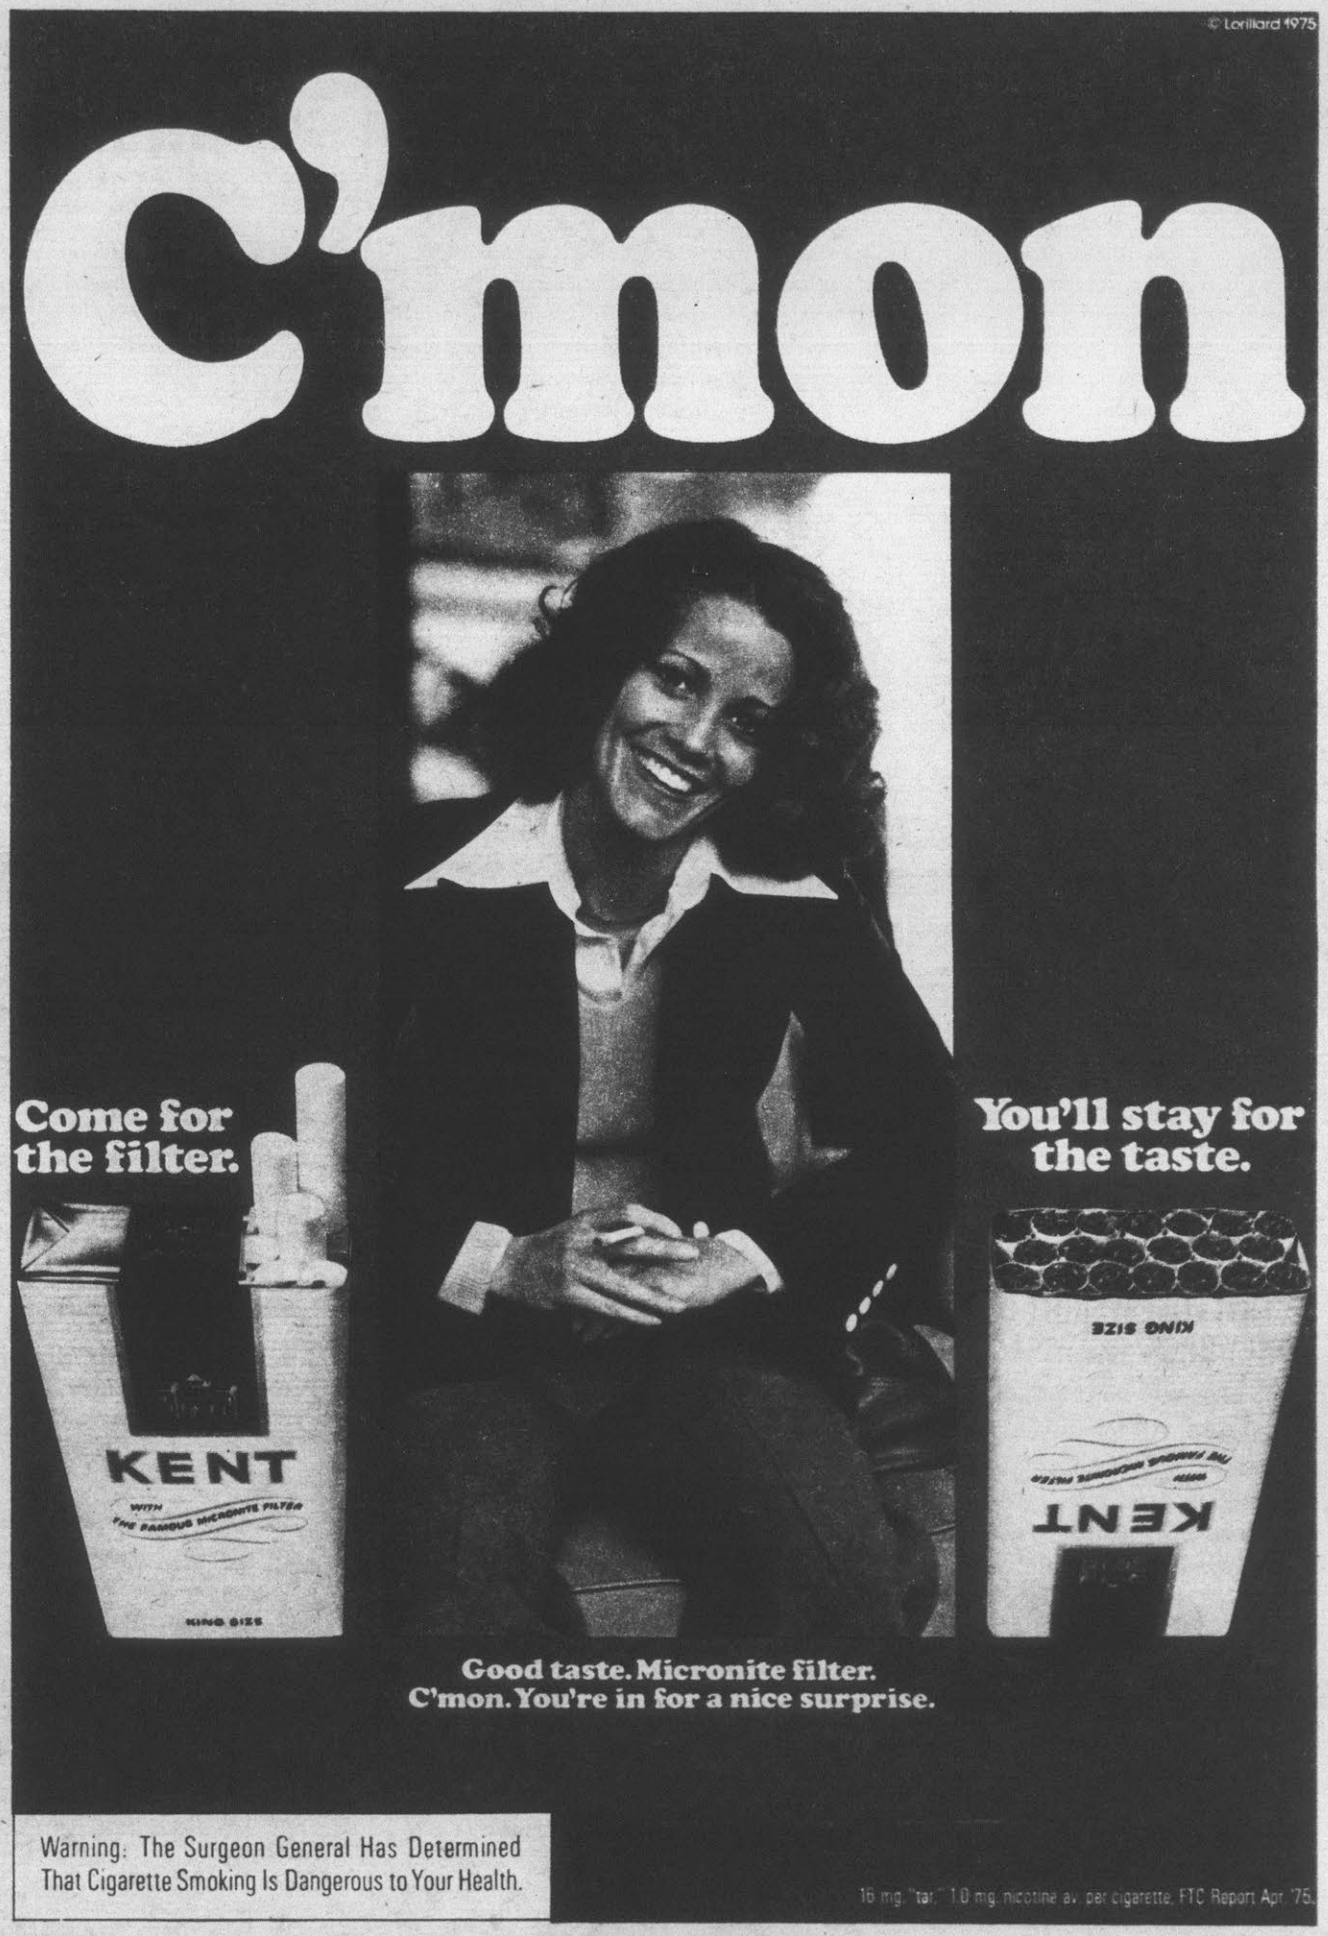

3. Mix noodles with chicken fat, eggs, ½ teaspoon salt and pepper. Pour into pan. Bake for 20-25 minutes, or until top is golden brown.

4. Cut into squares or wedges, serve hot.

Makes 4-6 servings

WHAT'S SMART?

The price of tuna has gradually been coming down, making it a better and better buy. And remember: 70 percent of all tuna consumed is the cheaper "light meat" chunk pack. Noodle Pudding is as easy and as economical as noodles—but more than "just noodles." It can also make a meatless main dish. Just sprinkle a little cheese on top before baking. And leftover Noodle Pudding is excellent cold.

Star Chat

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Michael Landon: Some Candid, Painful– And Painfully Funny– Memories

For 14 grueling years, Michael Landon played the youngest son of an all-male family on NBC's long-running success, "Bonanza." Today he's back in another NBC hit series, "The Little House on the Prairie"–only this time he portrays the pioneer father of three daughters. He is also executive producer and writes and directs some segments. With the responsibility of a large real-life family (he has seven children) and the weight of all his new obligations, I expected quite a change in the man himself. Not so. Even sitting behind his plain desk in his unpretentious suite of offices in Paramount Studios, Michael looked like a good-humored, overgrown kid dressed in scruffy playclothes.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Somebody told me you once had a near-fatal accident when you were cut by glass. Can you tell me about that?

MICHAEL: That was two years before they outlawed plain glass in bathrooms. I was playing a game with the two little kids in the bathtub and slipped on a bar of soap. I fell on the floor so hard I thought I'd broken my back. I didn't know I'd gone right through the glass door on the tub and a spike of it was sticking in one side of my foot and out the other. I noticed the kids staring at the ceiling, and I looked up to see my blood squirting on it. I'd cut an artery.

"I am a strong disciplinarian. It's a lot easier if there are rules to follow. Sporadic discipline is difficult for children to understand."

FW: What did you do?

MICHAEL: I told my wife Lynn, "Bring me something for a tourniquet, some clothes and have the car brought around front." Lynn falls apart when she sees a scratch. If there's bloodshed on TV, she covers her eyes. The next thing I knew, she staggered in lugging a king-size sheet! At that point I wasn't going to reason with her about what did and didn't make a suitable tourniquet, so I began tearing it apart with my teeth while she went for my clothes. She came back with a cashmere sweater! I sent her back for my trousers–and she showed up with my best coat and jacket. Then I began hearing wardrobe doors opening and closing, and for the life of me, I couldn't figure out what was going on. Then Lynn came in with the oddest look on her face and–are you ready for this?–said, "I can't find a thing to wear. . . ."

FW: Did you have any bad effects from the accident?

MICHAEL: No. They had to tie the tendons over the top of my foot, and pieces of glass worked out six months later, but there was never any problem as a result.

FW: How many children do you have?

MICHAEL: I have two from my first marriage, my wife has one from her first marriage, and Lynn and I have four. That makes seven. Mark is 25 and on his own. Cheryl is 21; Josh, 15; Leslie is 12; Mike, Jr., ten; Shawna, three; and the newest addition, Christopher Beau, was born last February 27.

FW: Do you think your being wealthy has been a drawback in raising your children?

MICHAEL: Believe it or not, yes. Of course, it's easy to say that money isn't important if you have some. If you are having trouble putting food on the table, then you're darned right it's important. But I've enjoyed trying to make a success of my life, and I started from nothing. If I hand over a load of money to my sons, they'll never know that feeling of joy and pride in their own accomplishments, and that's worth more than money any day.

FW: How did you meet Lynn?

MICHAEL: We met at the studio while I was making "Bonanza." She was a terrible actress! In one script she was supposed to be chased by an Indian. She played the whole scene with her hands over her face. Scared to death. Not of the Indian–of the camera!

Globe Photos

Michael Landon and his wife Lynn. Landon says he's the boss at home—"but not if the decision has to be discussed."

FW: Would she like to be in your series now?

MICHAEL: No way. She pleads with me not to put her in anything. I remember when I was co-hosting "The Mike Douglas Show." The women in the audience found out Lynn was sitting with them and they wanted her to stand up so she could be seen. She managed that all right, but when they kept on clapping, Mike told her to come up on stage and join us. She was a frozen rope! I knew what she was going through, so when she managed to get herself down to the front of the stage, I stepped forward and extended my hand to help her. She was so rattled, she grabbed it and started shaking it and gibbered, "So glad to meet you!"

FW: Are you the boss at home?

MICHAEL: Yeah, but not if the decision has to be discussed—and we never discuss problems when the kids are in the room. I am a strong disciplinarian. It's a lot easier if there are rules to follow. Sporadic discipline is difficult for children to understand. But sometimes I'll say, "I'm taking this back—I overreacted." My kids know when I do follow through, I really mean it, and it is not in anger.

FW: You've done a lot of TV writing. Can you write any script you want and get it on the air?

MICHAEL: There's one I've been wanting to do, and will sell to someone eventually. It's about bed-wetting. I want to do it so children will realize they are not alone with their problem. So far I've had no takers.

FW: You speak as if you know this problem firsthand.

MICHAEL: Do I! I wet the bed until I was 12. A lot of parents think their kid does it to spite them, and they punish the kid. Mine did. Believe me, no one wants to do it! I remember I went through all sorts of home remedies. One doctor put me on pickled herring, saltines and no water before I went to bed. For five months that was my bedtime diet and all I got was damned thirsty! I nearly died.

FW: What finally happened?

MICHAEL: My parents refused to buy me a new bed until I stopped wetting, so I had to sleep all cramped up in a youth bed that still had sides on it. I wanted a big new bed so badly, I took my lunch money and bought an extra pair of sheets, then every day I'd take the wet ones in my athletic bag to the Laundromat, wash them and hide them in the top of the closet so I could change my bed the next morning before my mother checked. My parents never knew. They thought I'd stopped wetting, so they gave me the new bed.

FW: When did you stop?

MICHAEL: As soon as I had my new bed. I could stretch out and sleep better. Maybe that had something to do with it.

FW: Are there similarities between you and Ingalls, the man you play on "Prairie"?

MICHAEL: Some, I guess. Maybe he takes things a little easier than I do. Maybe I am not so good a farmer. In fact, I'm not very good at all! And I didn't grow a beard. Some people were very upset about my not having a beard.

FW: What about the critics who said the show is too sugar-coated?

MICHAEL: I think it is a sad reviewer who can't find people who love and work together believable. It doesn't say much for that person's own relationships and private well-being if he or she can believe only in perverted, weird acts and bad news.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

What Makes You Attractive To Other People?

True or False: If you make a social blunder, such as accidentally spilling coffee on yourself at a luncheon or tripping on a rug and falling headlong, it is likely to make you appear more attractive in the eyes of the person lunching with you. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. A person isn't likely to be attracted to you if he (or she) feels you are more virtuous than he is.

2. You'll be more attractive to people if, when you first meet them, you talk only about the good things that have been happening to you lately and skip the bad.

3. If you make a social blunder, such as accidentally spilling coffee on yourself at a luncheon or tripping on a rug and falling headlong, it is likely to make you appear more attractive in the eyes of the person lunching with you.

4. Whether a person will feel the same way about you that you do about him or her depends largely on one thing.

5. It's easy to tell if someone finds you attractive.

6. People who have a pessimistic attitude toward themselves and their own abilities are attracted to their opposites.

ANSWERS

1. False. It's likely to be the other way around. Studies show that the tendency is for people "to prefer others who are more sincere, honest and trustworthy than they are."

2. False. The findings of a psychological study at Duke University have shown that "it is unattractive to disclose good fortune early in a relationship." Telling someone how great things have been for you lately can sow the seed of jealousy or envy right from the start and blight the relationship. This doesn't mean you should bend a new acquaintance's ear with a recital of all your troubles, but the mention of a disconcerting incident that has thrown you for a loss is likely to produce a sympathetic and understanding response.

3. True—in the case of many people. In studies at Purdue University, the reactions of men and women to such social blunders on the part of others were carefully evaluated. Findings strongly suggested that "each sex will prefer the person who blunders, but only when that person is a member of the same sex." Why? One explanation is that an individual may empathize more readily with a member of his own sex and, in the case of a blunder, be more attracted to that person to the extent that he can envision himself in the same situation. In viewing a member of the opposite sex, a person may be less tolerant because he cannot empathize as well.

4. True. The degree to which another person will return your feelings depends largely on how accurately you perceive him, how clearly you see him for what he is. Psychological tests at Cornell University have demonstrated that "liking or disliking tends to be reciprocated most strongly when it is seen as being based on an accurate perception of an individual's characteristics."

5. True. A consensus of studies shows that in general, when someone finds you attractive, he will maintain a much closer seating and standing proximity to you than otherwise. He will also maintain more eye contact. And findings show that "a small backward leap of the torso" tends to go hand in hand with interpersonal attraction.

6. True. Investigations show that the less people think of themselves, the more they are attracted to people who are brimming over with self-confidence and optimism. As studies sponsored by the National Science Foundation show, "Persons with unfavorable self-concepts are not as attracted to others whom they perceive to be similar to themselves as they are to dissimilar persons."

I sure do. And Salem Longs are why. They give me all the good cigarette taste I'm smoking for. Plus Salem's fresh menthol. And they're longer, too.

That's why I enjoy smoking. That's why I smoke Salem Longs.

AMERICA'S "5" MOST POPULAR SHADE TREES

LESS THAN $2.00 each (in lots of 16)

ALL SHIPPING COSTS PAID

PLUS OUR "FANTASTIC" .50c BONUS OFFER!

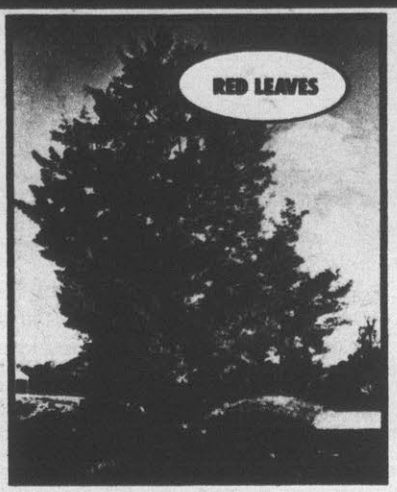

ALL SHADE TREES SHIPPED AT 5 TO 7 FEET

Sugar Maple (acer saccharum) The largest of all maples, and its beautiful array of yellow and orange hues make it a sight to remember due to the foliage thickness — A very hardy northern and southern tree and will grow up to 60 feet. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

E. White Birch (betula verrucosa) This beautiful tree has very delicate foliage with snowy white bark, and a compact form — It can be seen growing in all different climates and the multi-trunk (clump) effect can be obtained by planting two or more trees next to one another. It is also a rapid grower. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

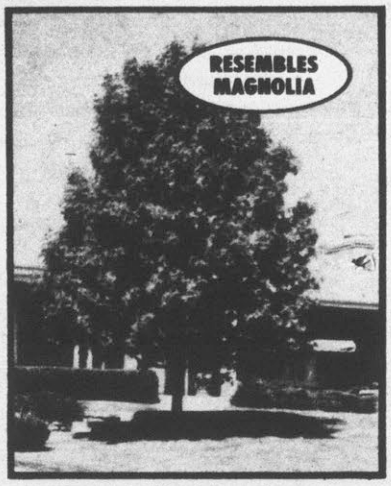

Red Maple (acer rubrum) This is one of the most beautiful of all shade trees. Besides having brilliant scarlet red leaves in the fall of the year, it has another excellent trait —it is an extremely fast grower. It is very easily transplanted and many experts agree it will grow practically anywhere in the U.S.A. Grows to 60 feet. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Weeping Willow (salix babylonica) This tree is the hardiest of all willows, and has clear golden yellow and green leaves, the leaves appear early in Spring and one of the last trees to lose its leaves. A "super fast" growing tree at the rate of 5 to 6 feet per year. An excellent buy. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

"3 WAY GUARANTEE"

1. All shade trees regardless of the number ordered will be 5 to 7 feet tall, and all bonus trees will be 4 to 6 feet. All Shipping Paid.
2. Trees advertised in your area will live in your area.
3. All trees are guaranteed to live and if by mere chance any fail to live they will be replaced free of charge for three years.

Tulip Tree (lirodendron tulipifera) This tree is a very large growing tree reaching heights of eighty feet or more. Its yellow-green leaves turn bright yellow in the fall and in the late Spring it has vivid orange and yellow tulip shaped flowers. Very hardy and fast growing and is a cousin to the magnolia. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

BONUS TREES

You may purchase up to as many bonus trees as you do shade trees — for example if you purchase 4 shade trees you may order either 1-2-3 or 4 bonus trees or none. Each bonus tree costs only 50c each in any combination. All bonus tree orders must be placed at the same time as the shade tree order.

White Dogwood (cornus florida) This beautiful flowering tree has large white blossoms, and can be seen in all parts of the country. Its foliage is attractive all summer and has beautiful fall colors, as the red berries hang on most of the winter. Grows to 25 feet. (shipped at 4 to 6 feet).

RICH LITTLE
Whose car comes first?

Rich Little, the man of a hundred voices, told FAMILY WEEKLY how he got started as an impersonator: "It all began at school when I tried to imitate my teachers' handwriting so I could give myself good marks on test papers. I soon realized, however, that it wasn't working, so I began imitating their voices. I had fantastic success." The impressionist still enjoys harmless practical jokes: "In hotels I phone the garage, and, in the voices of different stars, ask for my car. I keep records on which star gets 'his' car the fastest. John Wayne, Marlon Brando and Jimmy Stewart are the winners. Wayne's came in three minutes, which must be the all-time record!" Rich's forte seems to lie in impersonating yesterday's superstars; he admits he's stumped by Robert Redford, Paul Newman and most of today's celebrities. Why? "There's no emphasis on voice any more," he explained. "Not the way there was with a Bogart, a Gable or a Lorre. Before the sixties, the accent was on personality. Movie stars were larger than life and easily identifiable. If you went to see a Gary Cooper film, it was to see Coop—no one really cared about the story."

On the importance of diversity in education and life: Loretta Long, better known as Susan on TV's "Sesame Street," told FAMILY WEEKLY how she defines her television role: "I feel I have a responsibility to buck society's stereotypes of women and blacks. My hidden agenda is to depict a strong black female model for all children. After all, television is an important part of a child's understanding." For the last five years, Loretta has been expanding the dimension of her TV character. "From my experience as a public-school teacher, where education was so narrowly conceived that the only thing kids looked forward to was lunch, I have tried to make my TV teacher image as entertaining as possible. If you want kids to learn, there's nothing like a little diversity to grab their interest."

CHARLES DEAN
A view of Onassis

It's a butler's life: Charles Dean recently retired from butlerhood with no kind words for the late Aristotle Onassis: "He used to knock a piece of cutlery against a glass to attract the attention of waiters. Now, that is no gentleman. But of course, he was a nobody." Dean, who has retired after 65 years of serving royalty, celebrities and generations of upper-class families, is quick to add that on the whole he had a pleasant career: "I was a butler during the days when top people had charm, style and grace. Being a butler was a broadening experience. I've crossed the Atlantic 42 times in every ship Cunard ever had; most of my employers had several homes in every imaginable country. With Prince Obolensky I had everything because he was a member of the Russian royal family. He remains the perfect gentleman and still sends me birthday and Christmas cards." A true gentleman himself, Dean said, "I can't tell you some of the things that went on in other homes—they were a lot worse than anything in 'Lady Chatterley's Lover'—but at least they were carried out with style."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

GIRL WATCHING

Though married and well satisfied,
It's true I look at others.
I look at budding teenage girls
And also at their mothers.

And should my wife look when I look,
I have a ready out.
"Just looking, dear," I calmly say,
I do not need to shout.

"Just looking" she well understands,
Along perhaps with sighing.
It's what she says herself when she
Is shopping but not buying.

A stranger asked a small boy to direct him to the best movie in town.

"Sure, mister," said the boy, "but it will cost you a dollar."

"A dollar?" the man responded. "Isn't that pretty steep?"

"Not for a movie director," the boy replied. —Lane Olinghouse

"Yes, I did," the wife shot back, "but only because I didn't want to start an argument in front of all those people!" —Conrad Fiorello

Our daughter, six, asked me what the hole in the street was for. I explained that it was a drain for the rainwater to go under the ground. Our son, four, helped me out by adding, "Yeah, cause the devil gets thirsty."

If you smoke.

We're not telling you anything you don't know when we acknowledge that a controversy about smoking exists.

And since we're in the business of selling cigarettes, you obviously know where we stand.

If you don't smoke, we're not about to persuade you to start.

But if you do, we'd like to persuade you to try a cigarette you'll like more than the one you're smoking now.

We mean Vantage, of course.

Vantage gives you flavor like a full-flavor cigarette. Without anywhere near the 'tar' and nicotine.

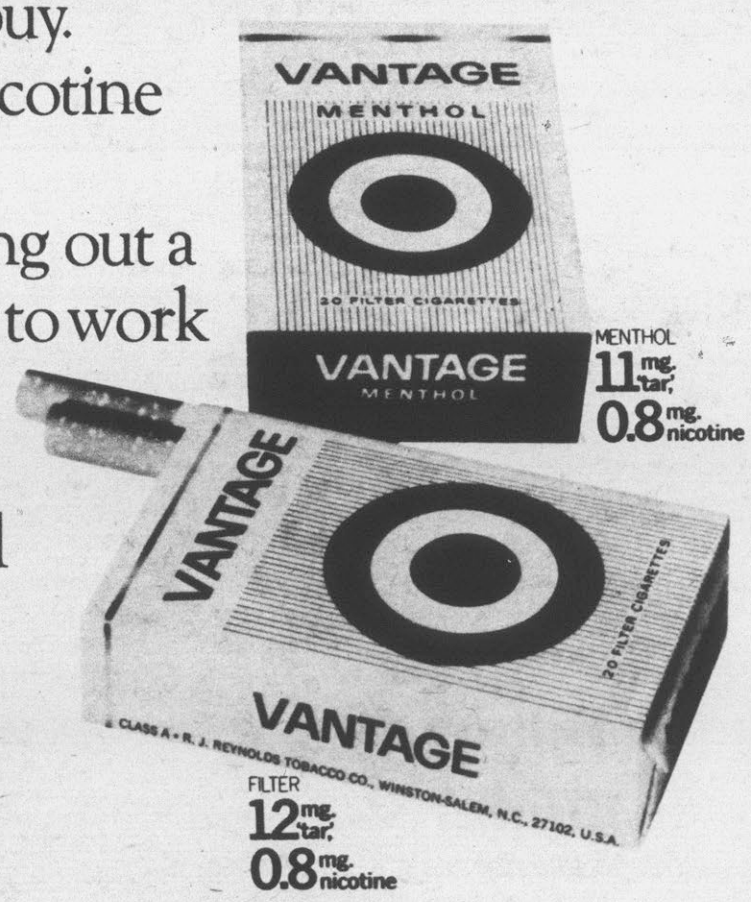

That's a simple statement of truth.

We don't want you to misunderstand us. Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can buy.

It's probably the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you'll enjoy smoking.

We just don't see the point in putting out a low 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you have to work so hard getting some taste out of, you won't smoke it.

If you agree with us, we think you'll enjoy Vantage.

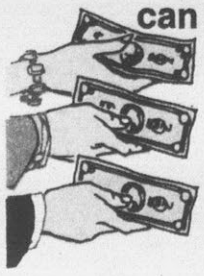

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Will your health insurance pay when you DON'T go to the hospital?

Mutual of Omaha's new MONEY BACK health insurance can protect you three ways . . .

can pay you IN the hospital can pay you OUT of the hospital can refund ALL your premiums if you NEVER get sick or hurt

UP TO $1,200.00 A MONTH AS MUCH AS $40.00 A DAY disability income benefits can be provided when a covered sickness or accident keeps you from working.

What hospital insurance does for hospital bills, this Mutual of Omaha plan can do for your grocery, rent and clothing bills . . . important protection for working men and women. Other disability income coverages include Homemakers' plans for housewives.

Our figures show that you're seven times more likely to be laid up at home than in the hospital. That could leave an awful lot of bills unpaid if your health insurance covers you only in the hospital. Mutual of Omaha thinks you need protection at home, too . . . and does something about it.

With this plan, the family income can be protected during and after hospitalization . . . protected even if you never go to the hospital. And, in addition, if you never get sick, never get hurt, every cent you pay in premiums will be refunded when your policy matures at age 65.

Mutual of Omaha guarantees that you'll collect at least as much as you've paid in when you keep your policy in force to age 65. If you do receive benefits, and they total less than you've paid in at age 65, you then collect the difference. If you've never received benefits, you get a 100% refund . . . every penny you've paid in.

As a breadwinner, man or woman, married or single, you can select the amount you qualify for (from $100.00 to $1,200.00 a month . . . up to $40.00 a day) to help replace your paychecks when a covered sickness or accident keeps you from working. These monthly disability income benefits are payable over and above any benefits you receive for hospital and medical bills. They are yours to spend as you please for any purpose you choose . . . yours to use for every kind of bill.

THERE ARE SEVEN REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD CONSIDER THIS MUTUAL OF OMAHA PLAN

1. You may qualify for a plan that can provide up to $1,200.00 monthly income benefits (up to $40.00 a day) to spend as you see fit if you're sick or hurt and can't work, or refund all your premiums when your policy matures at age 65 if you stay well.

2. These disability income benefits are provided in and out of the hospital.

3. Your coverage becomes effective immediately for new sickness contracted or injury received after your policy is in force. Pre-existing conditions (old health problems) will not be covered for 12 months. This applies to such conditions shown on your application and not excluded from coverage.

4. Mental disorders are covered the same as any other sickness.

5. Your policy protects you as a passenger in any kind of aircraft—even a private plane.

6. Benefits are provided for disabilities incurred both on and off the job. They are available in addition to any Workmen's Compensation and Employer's Liability coverage.

7. You have this renewal agreement: no matter how often you may receive benefits, Mutual of Omaha guarantees to renew your policy as long as premiums are paid on time. Your premium can be changed only when changed for all like policies in your state.

Please note that the amount of the benefit, the premium, and the deductible period vary with the plan you qualify for. And that these disability income benefits are not payable for losses caused by war or military service; narcotics, unless prescribed by a physician; childbirth, pregnancy, or resulting complications. Coverage terminates at retirement or age 65, whichever comes first.

Get the full facts about the disability income plan your work, health, income, etc., now qualify you for. Money back plans are available through age 49. Other disability income plans are available through age 69. Mutual of Omaha will provide personal service in furnishing this information without cost or obligation. You will also receive facts about the fine plans to meet your life insurance needs available from Mutual's affiliate, United of Omaha. Mail the postage free card provided for your convenience, now. IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: IN THE SPRING YOUNG PRINCE ARN'S FANCY TURNS TO THOUGHTS OF LYDIA, BUT THE STREAMS ARE SWOLLEN WITH MELTING SNOW. HE RIDES UP THE VALLEY IN SEARCH OF A CROSSING.

HE FINDS HIMSELF IN A CONFUSION OF MOUNTAINS AND VALLEYS. HE CHOOSES ONE THAT SEEMS TO LEAD IN THE DIRECTION HE WISHES TO GO.

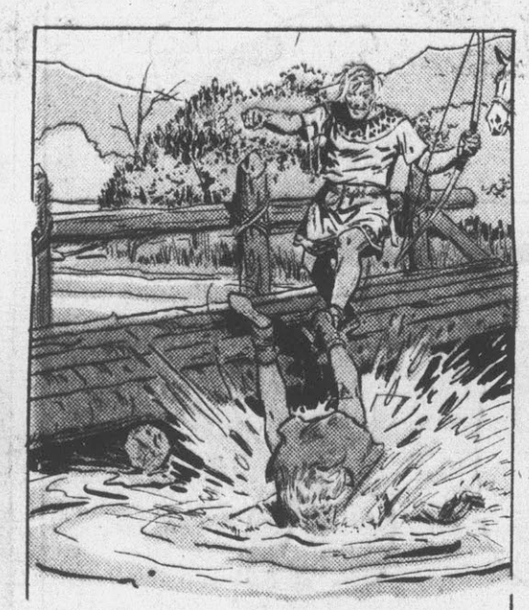

ARN IS ABOUT TO TURN BACK WHEN HE COMES UPON A WIDE PLATEAU WHERE CATTLE GRAZE IN GREEN MEADOWS AND PLOWMEN TILL THE SOIL.

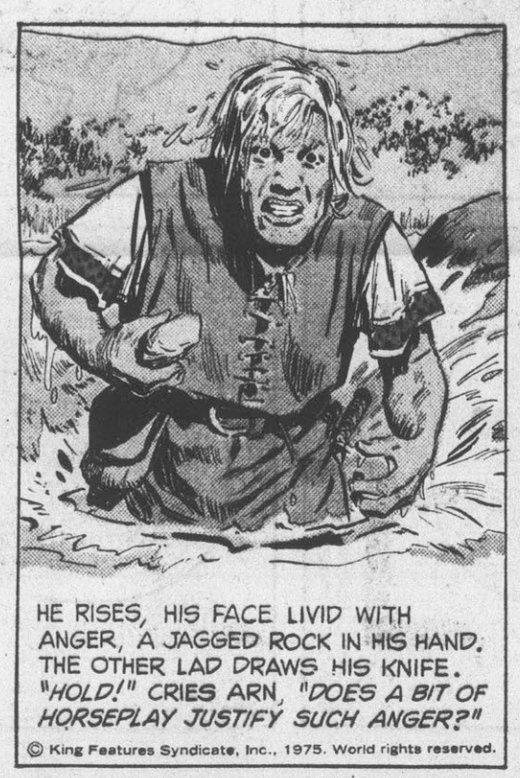

HE IS SURPRISED TO FIND NORSEMEN LIVING SO FAR FROM THE SEA. SUDDENLY TWO WILD-LOOKING YOUTHS SPRING FROM THEIR HIDING PLACE, WEAPONS READY, AND STARE AT HIM IN SILENCE.

ARN DISMOUNTS, LAYS ASIDE HIS SPEAR AND HOLDS OUT EMPTY HANDS: "I AM PRINCE ARN, GRANDSON OF KING AGUAR OF THULE." "HAH! WE ARE PRINCES, TOO. OUR FATHER RULES HERE. COME, WE WILL TAKE YOU TO HIM."

THEY LEAD THE WAY, RUNNING TIRELESSLY LIKE COURSING HOUNDS, UNTIL THEY REACH A BRIDGE. THEN ONE, WITH A MOCKING LAUGH, TRIPS THE OTHER INTO THE STREAM.

HE RISES, HIS FACE LIVID WITH ANGER, A JAGGED ROCK IN HIS HAND. THE OTHER LAD DRAWS HIS KNIFE. "HOLD!" CRIES ARN, "DOES A BIT OF HORSEPLAY JUSTIFY SUCH ANGER?"

STEVE CANYON

NO STORY, EH, CANYON?

NO DIRTY STORY, MYKE!

THE ANSWER IS—NO!

POTEET SEEMS TO HAVE THE BIG UGHS! IF SHE HADN'T BEEN WORKING SO HARD ON THAT STORY—I'D THINK SHE HAD LOST A BOY FRIEND!

ROUGH ASSIGNMENT, STEVE?

THE OFFICER WAS KILLED BY POLITICAL ASSASSINS!

...INSTEAD OF BY A JEALOUS HUSBAND, AS IT WAS WIDELY RUMORED!

WELL, I'M GLAD YOU ARE HOME SAFELY! I HAD SUCH A STRONG SENSE OF DANGER ALL THE WHILE YOU WERE AWAY!

GIVE NAMES!

COME OUT AND BE LIBERATED!

SIM-AND SISTER QU!

YOU WILL LIVE WITH THE OTHER ORPHANS—WHILE YOU ARE TRAINED IN A USEFUL TRADE!

WE GET OUR THINGS, PLEASE!

KEEP UP THE CHIN, YANKEE HOGAN! WE SPRING YOU AFTER WE COOL THESE CLOWNS!

BECAUSE MONEY DOESN'T GO VERY FAR THESE DAYS!

YOU HAVE TO SPEND SOME MONEY ON YOUR GIRLFRIEND! BESIDES...

WELL, A QUART OF MOTOR OIL FOR MY CAR!

IF YOU FEEL THAT WAY, I'LL GIVE IT BACK TO YOU!
