

Heavy Security For Kissinger Arrival

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew into Israel today on the first stop of his new Middle East peace quest amid the heaviest security ever accorded a visiting dignitary.

The secretary's big Air Force jetliner touched down at Ben-Gurion International Airport. Hours earlier, Jerusalem police said they had nipped a suspected assassination plot aimed at Kissinger. Police detained one American-Israeli and hunted for another man, sources said.

Border troops, other soldiers and police took up stations at Ben-Gurion International Airport long before Kissinger arrived. Officials said security was tighter than when former President Richard M. Nixon visited Israel in 1974.

The Israeli government's concern for Kissinger's safety was heightened by the interception of three Arab guerrillas near the Lebanese border Wednesday and angry anti-Kissinger demonstrations in Jerusalem and Haifa.

Israeli planes flew deep into Lebanese air space Wednesday to attack a Palestinian guerrilla base in northeast Lebanon in retaliation for the abortive guerrilla raid.

Israel's ambassador to Washington, Simcha Dinitz, said in advance of Kissinger and said a new Israeli-Egyptian accord "was certainly not in the bag" yet. He said a number of major points require clarification, but "much progress" had been made toward agreement.

Former Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, who was on the same plane with Dinitz, reiterated his opposition to the proposed agreement "as I now know it."

Diplomatic sources in Washington said that Kissinger still lacks the 90 per cent certainty of success that he said he would need to resume back-and-forth "shuttle diplomacy" between Jerusalem and Cairo to put a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement into final form. But they said he has the major outline of a pact in sight, including Israeli evacuation of the Gidi and Mitla mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis and Balain oilfields.

Leaving Washington Wednesday night, Kissinger said he would spare no effort to obtain an agreement during his visit, which is scheduled to last 10 days. "No area is more in need of peace than the Middle East," he said.

President Ford and Kissinger have warned of renewed warfare in the region if the negotiations fail and, according to Ford, an inevitable Arab boycott like the one after the 1973 war that led to fuel shortages in the United States, Western Europe and Japan.

Despite mounting opposition among the Israeli people, Kissinger believes Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's government is on the verge of doing what it wouldn't during his last visit in March — agreeing to give up the Sinai gateways without obtaining a nonbelligerency pledge from Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

However, Egypt is reported ready to give assurances at yearly intervals for a three-year extension of the U.N. peacekeeping force in Sinai and to promise not to use force unless Egypt or its allies are attacked by the Jewish state.

Demonstrations against Kissinger's visit and the proposed Sinai accord broke out in Israel Wednesday for the third day.

Police said they detained seven protesters in Jerusalem following two demonstrations by hundreds of right-wing youths inside the capital.

In Haifa, Israel's chief port, hundreds marched through the streets, many of them dressed in black, carrying black umbrellas and chanting "Munich, Munich, Munich" to recall British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's abandonment of Czechoslovakia to Hitler.

Five demonstrators broke into Foreign Minister Yigal Allon's residence in the ancient Jewish quarter of Jerusalem. Police evicted them by force and scattered a crowd of about 200 outside.

The Israeli military command said its planes attacked the El Ham base of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine about 35 miles east of Beirut. It was the deepest Israeli penetration of Lebanese air space since the 1973 war except for reconnaissance flights.

Cuban Embargo To Be Eased

By GEORGE GEDDA
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will announce today a partial lifting of the American economic embargo against Cuba, State Department sources disclosed.

The sources said the announcement will permit American firms operating in third countries to sell goods to Cuba for the first time in well over a decade.

The move is more of a gesture toward third countries than toward Cuba, the sources said, but they acknowledged it probably will be interpreted as a softening of the American position toward the Havana regime.

The decision will not affect two-way trade with Cuba, which has been banned by law since 1962. The State Department has asked Congress not to repeal that legislation, reasoning that it should be subject to negotiations with Cuba once bilateral talks on a normalization of relations begin.

Foreign countries have long complained about the restraints on sales to Cuba by American corporations operating within their borders.

Argentina and Canada, for example, have argued that the United States has no business trying to regulate the sales of American firms incorporated under the laws of those countries.

In April 1974, the State Department, in a major departure from previous policy, announced it would grant three U.S. auto manufacturers in Argentina licenses to export vehicles to Cuba.

Argentina had threatened the corporations with nationalization unless the deal were allowed to go through.

Early this year, a similar exception was made for a Canadian-based American firm which manufactures office furniture.

Three weeks ago, the Organization of American States lifted the 11-year-old ban on hemispheric trade with Cuba. Afterward, the State Department announced its willingness to enter into serious discussions with Cuba.

For its part, Cuba has made a series of gestures toward Washington, none of which involve the principal issues dividing the two countries, such as Cuban compensation for $1.8 billion in nationalized American property.

Cuba has returned $2 million in aircraft hijack ransom money to Southern Airways and has expressed interest in bilateral athletic competition. Since last September, four members of Congress have visited Cuba, the first such contacts since 1960.

Firemen, Police End San Francisco Strike

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Leaders of striking police and firemen agreed to a proposed settlement early today after marathon negotiations mediated by Mayor Joseph L. Alioto. But a member of the city's board of supervisors said the mayor's announcement was "premature."

"We're the ones who are going to have to take the action, not him," said Supervisor John L. Molinari.

Meanwhile, striking police and firemen remained on picket lines this morning.

Alioto announced acceptance of the proposed settlement by strike leaders at a news conference about three hours after the supervisors ended their

the pay dispute and appealed to the governor for help from the highway patrol.

Alioto declined to disclose details of the proposal but predicted that the board of supervisors would accept the tentative agreement.

But shortly after awakening this morning, Molinari said: "I think his announcement of a tentative proposal is totally premature."

Alioto said the tentative settlement would be offered to members of the Police Officers Association, Fire Fighters Local 798 and the board of supervisors "at the earliest possible moment."

Asked when he thought police and firemen would be back on the job, Alioto said, "We are going to leave the situation as it is at present."

About 90 per cent of the city's

1,935 policemen went on strike Monday after supervisors approved a 6.5 per cent salary increase, half of what police had demanded. Firemen, seeking the same wage boost, joined the strike Wednesday night.

Jerry Schreff, vice president of the firemen's union, estimated that of the 1,700 men on the force, only about 200 were on duty after an overwhelmingly favorable strike vote.

The current pay schedule for police ranges from $16,044 for rookies to $25,944 for captains. Firemen's salaries are the same as policemen's.

Spontaneous violence and vandalism, including a small bomb explosion at Alioto's home early Wednesday, erupted during the strike by police.

Supervisory personnel and some nonstriking police and firemen provided emergency protection after the walkouts.

The board of supervisors voted a state of emergency Wednesday before the firemen's strike, asking that Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. be requested to send in 200 state highway patrolmen to help police the city.

But Alioto refused to declare the emergency, and supervisors voted unanimously late Wednesday to ask Brown directly for the highway patrolmen.

At that point, Supervisor Terry Francois said Alioto "is not negotiating on our behalf. We never asked him to negotiate."

Dianne Feinstein, president of the board of supervisors, said: "As far as we're concerned, until the public safety needs of this city are met, there are no further negotiations planned."

Meanwhile, officers of the 1,850 member Transport Workers Union, who had been earning $6.73 an hour, agreed to a 6.5 per cent pay raise, averting a bus strike threatened for midnight tonight. A strike would have affected 500,000 daily bus and trolley passengers.

RFK Evidence Has Disappeared

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Several pieces of evidence in the investigation of the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy have disappeared and may have been destroyed, a city official has disclosed.

Dion Morrow, special counsel in the city attorney's office, said Wednesday that the missing evidence included the left sleeve of Kennedy's coat and bullet-riddled ceiling panels from the Ambassador Hotel pantry where he was fatally shot in 1968.

"There were no X rays made of the ceiling panels and the panels were destroyed in June of 1969. There was no place to keep them — you can't fit ceiling panels into a card file," Morrow said in an interview.

"The left sleeve of the senator's coat disappeared before the trial. But there was no significance to the sleeve — Ken-edy's shirt is in the possession of the court, and there are no bullet holes in the left sleeve."

Those demanding a reopening of the assassination investigation contend the ceiling panels are of crucial importance in determining the trajectory and number of bullets fired in the Kennedy shooting.

Morrow said the decision to destroy the panels was made by police because the material had never been entered into evidence in the trial of the convicted assassin, Sirhan B. Sirhan.

City councilmen are considering a motion urging police to release files and physical evidence in the case. Police officials have resisted requests for disclosures of evidence, contending information in the files might be damaging to innocent persons.

Portugal's Premier Asked To Step Down

By JULIE FLINT
Associated Press Writer
LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Moderates are gaining ground as the ouster of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves appears imminent.

Anti-Communists in the armed forces threatened Wednesday to overthrow the government by force if President Francisco de Costa Gomes did not fire Goncalves, who advocates a Soviet-oriented brand of communism.

Costa Gomes later told 18 new junior officers at a swearing-in ceremony, "It is not simple to be a member of a government team whose duration can be expressed in days."

The president was reported to favor naming the army chief of staff, Gen. Carlos Fabiao, as premier. A Paris newspaper said Fabiao told it the Gon-calves regime did not have much time left.

Communist leader Alvaro Cunhal indicated his party would go along with the removal of Goncalves as a way to cut its political losses.

Cunhal told a news conference the premier's Communist-line leadership "has not solved all the problems" facing Portugal. The Communist party is "open to look for other solutions to solve the crisis," he said. "... No one may put his personal ambition before the general interest of the revolution."

However, the Communists brought out tens of thousands of soldiers, farmers and workers for a march through Lisbon Wednesday night in support of Goncalves.

The marchers chanted, "The soldiers always, always with the people.... Down with fascism. Down with capitalism."

Farmers on their tractors held red carnations, symbol of the 16-month-old revolution. The demand for the dismissal of Goncalves was delivered to the president by a group of eight officers who were accompanied by Gen. Otelo Carvalho, the military security chief who is a member of the ruling junta along with Costa Gomes and Goncalves. The officers, who also included former Foreign Minister Ernesto Melo Antunes and the chiefs of staff of the army and air force, claimed the backing of 85 per cent of the armed forces, sources said.

The officers also submitted a program to reverse the government's trend toward communism and move its policy back toward the center. Moderate sources said the demands had been worked out in consultation with the Socialist party.

The Socialists, the nation's largest party, precipitated the political crisis by quitting the government 40 days ago, charging that the premier was moving Portugal toward a Communist dictatorship. This was followed by anti-Communist riots in conservative northern Portugal in which five persons have been killed and hundreds wounded.

Hotline called St. Gabriel's Church, which is sponsoring the family, and told them about the swing set. ## Shortage May Hit Homes

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Natural gas shortages this winter could affect residential consumers and small businesses for the first time, according to the attorney for a major natural gas pipeline company.

Thomas Ryan, attorney for the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Co. (Transco) told a Federal Power Commission hearing Wednesday that the firm will be forced to impose natural gas curtailments this winter to its distributors of about 40 per cent compared with a 26 per cent cut last winter.

Unlike past curtailments, these cuts may not be able to be borne completely by industrial customers and other relatively low-priority gas users, Ryan said.

Designer Having Special Scarves Printed For 30th Anniversary

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Vera, the designer, known especially for her scarves, is celebrating the 30th anniversary of her company by having a collection of eight scarves manufactured in China, on Chinese silk.

A representative of the National Council for United States-China Trade, in Washington, believes it is the first time that American designs have been produced in the People's Republic of China for sale here.

Why did she want to do it? Vera answers simply: "I thought it would be a great coup."

Originally she had planned the China scarves for the holiday market late this year, but news of the coup "leaked." So they were moved up as part of the fall line, for sale starting in September. After store buyers saw them and bought them all, Vera placed a repeat order with China. She didn't know whether or not it would be accepted. It was.

The whole project began when Vera, whose real name is Vera Neumann, applied to visit China with Marvin Pelzer, her company's vice president in charge of production, who had lived in the Orient for a time. "We never heard a word. Then we got a cable to come in January 1974. It was late December. We couldn't make plans that fast, but we did go early in February.

"That's when they decided that we could have our things done here if we wanted to. They showed us their printing plant, art department and screen-making department — in Shanghai, the center of the silk industry. We didn't know how primitive their process would be. It was pretty much up to date. They had a gadget where screens move from one table to another laying on a little trolley. It's a pretty efficient operation. That's why I thought, 'We'll go ahead and do it.'"

"In the early days, I used to paint directly on the screens in silk-screen printing. I had to have a union card so I could wash the dirty screens. Now it's done photographically. The stuff you brush on washes out after you wash a screen 100,000 times."

Vera was asked what she'd like to see in China and she chose a folk-art school, a museum and a department store. In the department store, there was a counter where people were having their names, their "chop," made on stone.

She left a business card, on which her first name was written in script, and her "chop" was delivered later to her hotel, made on quartz. "Three people who delivered it stood around to see what expression was going to be on my face when I saw it," she says. As well as her name reproduced in English script, there's her name translated into Chinese characters meaning truth and honesty.

That chop is on the scarves made in China. They didn't want to put it on, Vera says, she thinks because individual credit isn't given in the People's Republic of China, but she explained that her name is a selling point on her scarves. They agreed.

Vera did eight designs, four square and four oblong, all inspired by her China trip. They are plum blossoms, horses inspired by some cloisonne she saw in the museum, one of calligraphy and some abstracts of waves, sun and rain. Her next collection to be made in China, which she's designing now, will have more abstracts.

She saw a small sign on which she liked the look of the characters and sketched it, without knowing what it meant, adding stripes in color because she thought the calligraphy wasn't enough. It turned out to mean "Set a good example of

Class Of 1950 Holds Reunion Saturday Night

The Winterville High School class of 1950 held its 25th reunion at the Candlewick Inn Saturday night. Ruby Wingate greeted the guests and directed them to the guest register and memento table.

After the social hour, Amy Mills, toastmistress, welcomed the group and called the roll. Special recognition was given to the following teachers and guests: Miss Alya Ray Taylor; Mrs. Helen Collins; and Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Mobley. Billy Dempsey gave the invocation.

Following the dinner, each class member gave a resume of the past 25 years. Ruby Wingate read the class history and Virginia Shivers gave the class prophecy.

Gifts were presented to the following: J.C. McLawhorn of Salem, Va., who traveled the farthest distance; Mary Alice Harrell, most children; Emma Lou Becker, newest parents; Ruby Wingate, married longest; and Virginia Shivers, grandparents.

Mrs. Amy Mills, chairman of the Reunion Committee, recognized the following committee members: Ruby Wingate; Helen Dozier; Gene Haddock; and Don McGlohon. The class members voted to have another reunion in five years.

J.C. McLawhorn gave the benediction.

Those attending were: J.C. McLawhorn and Bobbie, Salem, Va.; Emma Lou Becker and Russ, New Bern; Jonnie Mae Briley and Elbert, Wilmington; Billy Dempsey, Raleigh; Helen Dozier and J.E.; Virginia Shivers and Tom of Winterville; Ruby Wingate and H.L. and Gene Haddock and Annie Mae of Ayden; Mary Alice Harrell, Colerain; Bill Haddock and Margaret; Winton Hill and Lucille; Mary Louise Whitchard and Linwood; Amy Mills and Marvin, all of Greenville.

yourself." "I had studied calligraphy. The first time I was in Japan, I had a wonderful teacher. I really took to it. I think once, in one of my incarnations, if you believe in that, I must have been Oriental."

The 30th anniversary of the company also will be celebrated by issuing a "best of Vera" collection — scarves that have been favorites during the years. "We do spring, fall and holiday collections," she says, "with 150 scarves in each collection. Come to think of it, that's a lot of scarves."

Nearly every one started as a painter and an exhibit of those, titled "Vera, the Artist in Industry," has just returned from four years of touring department stores.

"I always sleep with a small sketch pad of paper on my night table. I sometimes think of the most fantastic patterns at night. In the early morning hours, if a bird or squirrel passes, my two dogs bark and sometimes I wake up dreaming a design."

Her designs also are on china, table and bed linen, sportswear and needlepoint. Another event of the 30th anniversary year was a call from Schumacher, the wallpaper and fabric house, where she once was associated, to do some designs for them, for 1976. One thing they wanted was the first design she ever did for them. "It is good, even if I do say so myself. Sometimes I look at things and wonder what ever made me do them, but that one is good."

Vera's late husband was Viennese but she was born in Stamford, Conn., and remembers the huge chestnut tree in the front yard when she was growing up. "It had tremendous trunks that spread out. We children each lived in one of those sections, like it was a condominium." On that site now, there's a department store. With a scarf department.

Traveler Gives 'No English' Answer

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to your column item about the person who loved to travel, but who invariably had a seat next to some longwinded bore.

I pretend I don't speak English! It is a nearly fool-proof method I have used for years. When someone cranks up, I say: "No hablo ingles" or "J'n parle francaise," etc.

Of course I have to be careful that when the stewardess or bus driver comes by, I don't respond in English! I also have to be careful to conceal an English language book or newspaper, which is a dead giveaway. With these precautions, it works nearly every time.

One of my female friends discourages would-be conversationalists by removing her partial upper plate. A big, toothless grin in the direction of the offender is usually sufficient.

VETERAN TRAVELER

DEAR ABBY: Because you have always been a good friend to the Como Park Zoo, I am asking a favor of you. We have a 5-month-old female orangutan named Joy who has been invited to the Los Angeles Zoo on a "breeding loan." They have a male orangutan named Guy whom they would like to mate with Joy.

Do you know anyone who has an air-conditioned automobile who would be willing to drive Joy and her foster parents (Arlene and Joe Scheunemann) to Chicago to board an airplane to transport Joy to L.A.?

Joy is small enough to be held in one's arms, she has good manners, and she would do no damage to the automobile. JOHN FLETCHER, DIRECTOR ST. PAUL COMO PARK ZOO

DEAR JOHN: If Joy is a "liberated" orangutan, she may not like the idea of going to L.A. to accommodate the male. If Guy wants a date with a sure thing, why doesn't

HE fly to St. Paul? On the other hand, if Joy WANTS to meet Guy in L.A., I will provide the child bride with air-conditioned transportation. And I hope she returns "hair-conditioned."

DEAR ABBY: My husband does sheet-rock work for a living. He makes good money, but he's always wanted to be an accountant, so he's been going to night school. He's young and smart, and will finish his accounting course next year.

The problem is that everyone we meet asks Carl what he does for a living, and when he tells them he does sheet-rock work, they say, "Oh, come and take a look at this hole in my wall," or, "I've been looking for someone to do that kind of work for me."

Carl and I both work five days a week, and we like to have our weekends free to maybe go someplace together, but with all these sheet-rock jobs he has to do for friends, he's tied up.

How can Carl turn these people down in a nice way? CARL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Carl should simply tell them that he's sorry but he doesn't have the time. And he'd better start practicing that line while he's still in sheet-rock because when he becomes an accountant, he'll have even more "friends" imposing on him for favors.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I read recently in a magazine that for the first time in 25 years, the number of marriages performed in this country is on the decline.

The reason should be obvious. The bedrooms of teen-agers used to be considered "hallowed grounds." Boys were ushered into the living room to await the appearance of their dates and never saw the ashes from which the beautiful phoenix bird arose.

College dormitories segregated so that often a potential bride never knew her mate dried his socks over a lightbulb, or that slept with three sports shirts turned wrongside out. Today, bedrooms are regarded as part of the house. Stereos blare, cola rattle around and it's a general meeting place for visitors of both sexes.

It may have set marriage back 150 years.

I lived in a college dormitory that was considered the armpit of the Big Ten. If men had been allowed to visit our rooms, there wouldn't have been one of us who would have made it to the altar.

I had a roommate who was a second-semester senior and still hadn't unpacked. She lived out of boxes and a footlocker.

Another girl had an entire wardrobe of perma-wrinkle... a miracle fabric that tended to look shabby when you walked over it or kicked it under the bed.

We all played the game. Upon leaving a room paved with lipstick smears, hair in the sink, books under the bed, wet towels over the windows, pleated skirts under the mattress, unanswered mail, blouses without buttons, three years of handwash stuffed in a shoe bag, sagging posters and green bread in the wastebasket. I would descend the stairway like a vision to my waiting date.

Suddenly, with a look of terror, I would grab his arm and say, "My goodness, why didn't you tell me my stocking seams were crooked? There is just no excuse for tackiness. Excuse me while I make myself presentable."

Those days are gone. They've been replaced with honesty and any fool knows that won't get you a set of Tupperware leftover-keepers.

The other day I passed the bedroom of one of my teen-agers. The music was deafening as a mob of kids sat around the floor swilling soft drinks and grinding potato chips into the carpet.

"Aren't you apprehensive about kids gathering around a bed?" asked a concerned friend. "Are you crazy?" I said. "They'll never find it in that mess!"

Day Care used to be a disappointing word. But now there's Mini-Skool. And Day Care means everything it should.

Introducing Mini-Skool for your pre-skooler.

How many times have you thought about day care for your pre-skooler, only to be disappointed by what was offered? Well, let's get one thing straight from the start. Mini-Skool is unlike any other day care center your child will experience. Why? Because we offer a standard of child care no one else does.

Strong words, you say? Not to Mini-Skool. Start with our facilities. They're modern and fully equipped to include a complete range of children's equipment for play and learning. Add to this a staff of child care experts, all qualified to look after and not just baby-sit your children. And by look after, we mean provide each Mini-Skooler with the personal attention and care he or she may need.

Now let's talk about your children. What will they be doing? Sitting around idly waiting to go home? Not at Mini-Skool they won't. Because beside having all those toys and games to play with, Mini-Skool offers your children the most imaginative and stimulating preschool programming available. Here's an example. Our September Me, Myself and I program lets your children gain a positive self-image of themselves through an exploration of moods and feelings. And our Forest Comes to Us program makes it fun to learn about forest animals, Smokey the Bear and the magic of the enchanted forest.

But that's just the beginning, because our kind of day care is comprehensive. And that includes delicious, healthy, nutritious meals for your children. And no, it's not the same thing every day.

Consumer Prices Up 1.2% In July

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soaring prices for food, gasoline and used cars pushed consumer prices up 1.2 per cent in July, the biggest monthly rise in inflation this year, the government reported today. Computed annually at 14.4 per cent, the inflation rate is the first in double figures since last September.

Last month's increase compared with a rise of eight-tenths of a per cent in June, providing further evidence that inflationary pressure remains a serious problem for the economy as it recovers from its worst recession since the 1930's. The Labor Department said food prices rose 1.9 per cent in July, the biggest increase since a 2 per cent jump in August 1974. Gasoline prices jumped 4.3 per cent and used cars were up nearly 4 per cent. Officials said these increases accounted for three-fourths of the July increase.

Despite the grim news on the price front, the government was expected to report later in the day that revised figures for the Gross National Product would show that growth resumed during the second quarter of the year following several months of decline.

Ford administration economists have been bracing consumers to expect a sharp increase in the inflation rate, but they contend it will be only temporary and not foreshadow a return to the sustained double-digit inflation that prevailed most of 1974.

The Consumer Price Index stood at 162.3 last month, 9.7 per cent higher than a year ago. That meant it cost $16.20 to buy a variety of goods and services which could have been purchased for $10 in the 1967 base period.

With the new surge in inflation, the pay of American workers failed to keep up with rising prices. Real spendable earnings — what's left after adjustment for taxes and inflation — dropped five-tenths of a per cent in July. Over the year, real earnings were down three-tenths of 1 per cent.

Prices of most foods rose in July, with fresh vegetables, poultry and pork leading the way. Beef prices also were up but less than in May or June. Dairy products jumped in price for the first time this year. Egg prices, after two months of decline, also rose.

About the only good news in the food price picture was a 14.5 per cent drop in sugar prices.

If the over-all increase in prices in July was continued over an entire year, that would be an annual inflation rate of 14.4 per cent.

At the height of last year's inflationary spiral, retail prices were rising at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 13.6 per cent during the three-month period ending in October.

Gasoline prices have been rising steadily over the past four months and are expected to keep rising if government controls are allowed to expire at the end of August, as proposed by President Ford.

Despite the recent surge in consumer prices, Ford administration officials believe it is only temporary and does not foreshadow a return to the higher inflation rate of the past two years.

"While we face perhaps a few months of bad price statistics, I still believe there is no impending threat of a renewed price spiral," said James L. Pate, the Commerce Department's chief economist.

"Once we get through the next few months, we'll see a resumption of the moderation of prices," he added in an interview.

Consumer-price increases had tapered off to an average of about 5.2 per cent over the March-May period before surging in June at an annual rate of 9.6 per cent. Wholesale prices also rose sharply last month, reversing a previous decline.

Despite the latest increases, the general view among administration officials is that the basic inflation rate remains about 6 per cent and that the government's indexes will return there before the end of the year.

A 6 per cent inflation rate, though high by historical standards, is about half the 1974 inflation rate of 12.2 per cent.

Sihanouk Will Make Return

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Cambodia's chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, is preparing to return to his war-shattered country to play a still undisclosed role in its Communist-dominated future.

North Korean President Kim Il-sung disclosed at a banquet Wednesday night in Pyongyang that a Khmer Rouge delegation headed by First Vice Premier Khieu Samphan had arrived in the North Korean capital "in order to accompany Samdech (Chief of State) Norodom Sihanouk home."

He gave no time for Sihanouk's departure from Pyongyang, where he has been living for three months, but it may be within days if he is going with the delegation.

Sihanouk, with the end of his five-year exile now in sight, said in reply that Cambodia has chosen "once and for all, nonalignment as its unshakable line in its conduct in the international arena, in its international affairs and in its relations with foreign countries."

Sihanouk called Kim "a double hero" who has brought North Korea "genial, extremely dynamic and enlightened leadership," while the president described the prince as "our brother, comrade-in-arms and closest friend."

Ailing Premier Penn Nouth, who shared the prince's exile in Peking, also is expected to return to Cambodia with the delegation.

It is not yet clear whether Sihanouk, overthrown in 1970 by Marshal Lon Nol and others who were chased out by the Khmer Rouge, would be chief of state in name only or whether he would participate fully in the decisions of the new government.

Among Cambodia's predominantly peasant population, he remains immensely popular and is revered as a demigod. Before his exile, he directed nearly every phase of Cambodia's existence.

To Have Enough Gas

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Piedmont Natural Gas Co. says it will have enough gas this winter for residences and stores in the Piedmont Carolinas.

Industrial customers will find supplies tight, but some can turn to alternate fuels, the gas company said Monday.

However, some textile mills that use natural gas for direct-flame finishing of yarns and fabrics might have problems finding other fuels.

David Pickard, president of Piedmont, called for deregulation of natural-gas prices at the wellhead. The industry has pushed for deregulation for several years.

GRANT ANNOUNCED... A $36,500 grant by the Southern Area Alcoholic Education and Training Program (SAAETP) was announced in Greenville Wednesday by Miss Marion Kiley, shown here with Jerry Lotterhos, director of ECU's Alcoholism Training Program, recipient of the grant.

Alcohol Help Grant Awarded

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Assistance in the form of a $36,500 grant has been received by the Alcoholism Training Program of the Allied School of Health at East Carolina University.

The grant has been awarded by the Southern Area Alcoholic Education and Training Program (SAAETP) a private, non-profit organization with headquarters in Atlanta, through funding made available by HEW.

Marion Kiley of the SAAETP office was in Greenville Wednesday to work with Jerry Lotterhos, director of ECU's Alcoholism Training Program. "The SAAETP office in Atlanta is one of four in the country," Miss Kiley said. "Our office covers 13 southeastern and southwestern states in programs to identify training and education needs."

"We try to identify all resources available and implement training programs by bringing together resources and needs."

Miss Kiley said her particular area of responsibility was the states of North and South Carolina, Florida, Tennessee and Kentucky.

"Primarily," she pointed out, "we are working with people involved in education and training efforts to work with alcoholics, so our efforts are more to complement training rather than direct work with alcoholism."

The SAAETP, she said, "is a new organization, formed in late 1974 and in operation only since January 1975." The $36,500 grant to ECU is one of 31 grants made by SAAETP from 108 requests for assistance received by the organization.

"The Alcoholism Training Program at ECU," Lotterhos commented, "is primarily a continuing education type activity. In the past, it has been involved in relating to the community, for example by providing training in general hospitals.

Lotterhos explained that this new grant money was significant in that it would help provide pre-service education to health and social science degree students at ECU.

"Basically," Lotterhos said, "this money will be used to help provide additional training within the internal curriculum. It will enable us to add credit curriculum where before the training in the community was non-credit."

Lotterhos said that the ECU Alcoholism Training Program, started in 1971, is "unique in the southeastern part of the country in that it provides educational alternatives to a variety of programs to develop professional training in alcoholism."

Full-Time Matrons Are Needed

The acquittal of Joan Little ends the case as far as North Carolina is concerned, but it should not mean an end to public concern about procedures for handling female prisoners in the state's jails.

As Pitt County's Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley pointed out in an interview with Daily Reflector writer Stuart Savage Sunday, most prisoners being held in county jails are awaiting trial. Since they have not been tried they are innocent until proven guilty, as the law provides. Even after a prisoner has been convicted a civilized society should provide humane treatment.

There is not much argument at this stage that there was a failure to provide adequate supervision in the jail where Miss Little was being held at the time Clarence Alligood died. If there had been a matron on duty in the jail at all times there would have been almost no chance that any of the events would have occurred.

The jail death in Beaufort County was a trying experience for everyone involved, but like most such events some good is going to come of it. North Carolina counties and state prisons are even now studying their operations and making changes which should insure that something like this won't happen again.

Here in Pitt County a matron is on duty at all times and only the matron is to enter the women's section of the jail unless she should need assistance. Since fewer women wind up in jail than men, there will be times when there are no female prisoners, but still the matron will pull her shift. We think this is a good thing because there is more safety in two people being on duty in the jail than only one, as has often happened in the past.

We hope that similar arrangements are being made in every jail where women prisoners might be held. In fact we think it would be good if full time matrons were required by state law, when the State Legislature convenes again.

The Beaufort County death and subsequent trial of Joan Little should never have happened, and wouldn't have happened if the jail had been adequately staffed. There is no changing what is done, but we can surely learn from it. We must safeguard against this kind of occurrence from this time on.

New Youth Training

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Within a few months, North Carolina will be on its way with some exciting, new ways to handle juvenile delinquents.

In the offing are widespread use of group homes and other community treatment facilities, and the closing down of more juvenile training school facilities.

Already some young people are being sent to privately operated group homes, with between 25 and 30 such facilities slated for licensing in the next six months.

But even more exciting prospects are on the horizon, says David D. Jordan, chief of the division of youth services recently transferred from the prisons system to the Department of Human Resources.

New Ways
In the planning stages are wilderness camps and oceanography schools where young people can be involved in important, interesting activities and at the same time learn things that can give them a lifelong career—forestry, agriculture, recreation work, fishing, etc. Just back from a firsthand look at Florida's experimental efforts in that direction, Jordan found "many things that do not exist in North Carolina."

At first, local agencies—public or private—which meet state standards will be used to get the community-oriented program underway. Jordan sees the state moving into ownership and operation of the experimental approaches centered on wilderness camps, oceanography, halfway houses, or agriculture, however.

Will North Carolina have enough money to do these things?

State funding of the juvenile training system now stands at $9.2 million, with an additional $3 million in federal funds, per year. Given a usual population of 1,200 kids, the system can invest about $7,400 per child per year; given the flowoff of funds for administration, repeat offenders, diagnostic services for non-committed children, etc.

That level, Jordan says, is about the same as Florida's and should be enough to move in new directions under a program carefully designed for both short-term and long-range (five-year) developments.

Heretofore, Jordan says, each training school has operated pretty much independently without a central planning approach.

Jordan, a former member of the State House of Representatives who was swept out of office in the Republican house-cleaning election last year, transferred to the Department of Human Resources along with the youth system by action of the 1975 General Assembly.

Not Opposed
During debate on that transfer, Jordan fought the idea, but says now that he was merely speaking as a member of the management team at Department of Corrections, and has not had a change of heart—he believes Human Resources is the best place for the juvenile system.

From a host of legislative actions, several shifts are taking place in the juvenile system—the group home, community approach principally. Also, children committed for non-criminal offenses (runaways, truants) are to be phased out of training schools. Jordan says that will not reduce the population by half, as some predicted, but more nearly 10 percent as the courts can make use of the new facilities and approaches for juvenile corrections rather than the training school institutions.

Still, some of those training schools will be closed. The state has already closed two, and now operates four general schools, one medium security and one maximum security school in addition to two diagnostic and evaluation centers.

There is some consideration now being given to converting a couple of the training schools to nursing homes for the elderly under lease arrangements with private operators.

One of the key programs for now, Jordan says, is to begin the process of "retraining staff to modern philosophies of youth training... use of therapy and motivational techniques." A series of public hearings and a survey of employees is underway as part of that approach.

Body And Bureaucrats

A Federal judge in Oklahoma City handed down a ruling the other day that may restore a degree of sanity, temporarily at least, to the lunatic business of banning Laetrile. This was a sound decision, legally and philosophically, and merits a moment of your time.

The controversy over Laetrile has been raging for years. Derived chiefly from apricot pits (though it occurs widely in other fruits and berries), the substance is known chemically as amygdalin. Isolated in 1830, the compound was developed in this century by Dr. E.T. Krebs and his son, biochemist E.T. Krebs, Jr. Out of their researches came the hypothesis that in some patients, Laetrile may tend to be effective in treating some forms of cancer.

The Krebs, father and son, advanced the concept that cancer is not caused by a virus, but rather is a local manifestation of a systemic disease resulting from a deficiency of nitriloside. Small doses of amygdalin, in their view, may correct the deficiency, and in some patients may halt or deter the growth of cancerous cells. The National Health Federation, which supports this nutritional concept, supplies reams of supporting statements from presumably reputable physicians and chemists.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration regards all this as "quackery." Under the law, the FDA can forbid the use of any disease-treating agent unless the FDA is satisfied that the agent is both safe and effective. The FDA does not insist that Laetrile is unsafe, though the FDA breathes hard on the word "cyanide," but the FDA insists emphatically that as a cancer-treating substance, Laetrile is worthless. Says Deputy Commissioner Sherwin Gardner: "This substance has been studied for years without any evidence that it works. It has not been shown to be of any benefit to cancer victims."

Very well. The record is replete with thousands of testimonials from cancer patients who disagree with the FDA. By hook or by crook, they have obtained Laetrile, usually from Mexico where its use is not prohibited, and they insist that for them it does work. They may be victims of illusion, hallucination, self-hypnosis, or plain luck, but they want the stuff.

Thrill Is Only Draw

By JOHN GREELY
Associated Press Writer
JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The thrill of the hunt is apparently the only drawing card for 10 sportsmen picked to cull old bulls from the nation's largest herd of musk oxen. With a projected cost of more than $8 per pound, meat is not the goal.

The controlled hunt, the first of its kind ever held, will begin Sept. 1 on Nunivak Island, a lonely rock in the Bering Sea that has a population of 300 Eskimos, 600 musk oxen and thousands of reindeer.

Despite its fearsome appearance, the musk oxen is a timid beast. Its favorite tactic when threatened is to circle up for protection. It has few enemies except wolf and man.

Eskimos call it "ooming-muk," or "bearded one." It eats tundra plants and produces a prized cashmere-like wool called "qivuit."

Ironically, hunters who now are being enlisted to help the musk oxen thrive nearly wiped out the shaggy creature a century ago.

Under extreme hunting pressure in the late 1800s, vast herds of musk oxen dwindled to nothing in arctic Alaska.

In the 1930s, a herd was established on Nunivak using 34 calves and yearlings purchased from Greenland under a $40,000 federal appropriation, but the herd has not multiplied as rapidly as biologists hoped it would.

Later transplants from Nunivak, including one in April that took 40 of the healthiest animals to Siberia in a detente-inspired deal with the Soviet Union. (Continued on page 16)

40 Years Ago Today

August 21, 1935
Employees of local business houses turned their attention today to drawing the most out of the last half Wednesday holiday to be observed this summer.

The occasion found the local ball club playing in Goldsboro and the only thing the community had as an attraction was activities at the swimming pool.

Scores of fans followed the league-leading Greenies to Wayne County to watch the game with the Bugs, who have shown real life recently.

Each year finds additional firms susceptible to the half holiday fever and it is hoped that next year, more firms than ever will observe the mid-week closings.

If figures mean anything, the Greenville club will enter the semifinals in the Coastal Plain League as a two-to-one favorite. The club, including all games played through August 20, has won a total of 45 games and lost only 18 during the season.

Greenville has played second-place Kinston a total of eight times and has won six of the games. They beat Snow Hill, the third-place team, eight times in ten meetings. Third-place Ayden has played the locals nine times and given up six defeats to the Greenies.

The INSIDE REPORT

George Helped Rebels

EDITOR'S NOTE — Two hundred years ago Saturday King George III turned the tide for independence with a proclamation declaring the American colonies to be in a state of rebellion. The Americans finally believed it themselves.

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
It was King George III himself, more than any Yankee firebrand, who finally silenced the peacemakers and drove the American colonies reluctantly toward independence.

A military standoff at Boston and a political dispute which many still considered just a misunderstanding became a long war to the death in the summer of 1775 when George brushed aside the plea for conciliation and formally declared the Americans a pack of traitors.

On July 6, 1775 the Continental Congress approved a declaration spelling out just why they had decided to forceably resist what they considered British tyranny but assuring at the same time that "we mean not to dissolve that union which has so long and so happily subsisted between us, and which we sincerely wish to see restored."

This was followed two days later by the Olive Branch Petition begging the king to intercede in their quarrel with Parliament and restore peace and union.

Congress declared itself "attached to Your Majesty's person, family and government with all devotion that principle and affection can inspire."

But when this suppliant petition reached England, George refused to receive it. Nonetheless he gave his answer in a proclamation signed Aug. 23, 1775, one of the most important documents in American history. It gave us our independence — or, rather, forced it upon us.

George viewed the trouble in America simply. It was all the work of a few "dangerous and ill designing men" who had misled the Americans by "traitorous correspondence, counsels and comfort of divers wicked and desperate persons."

The ungrateful rebels, George declared, were "forgetting the allegiance which they owe to the power that has protected and supported them." Far from being patriots, they were guilty of "obstruction of lawful commerce" and oppression of our loyal subjects.

George took the insurrection in the colonies as a personal affront to "us, our crown and dignity."

There was no mention of the colonists' grievances, no remedy for the problems which had driven them to armed resistance. In George's view, everything would be all right again if the American agitators would just stop their wickedness.

It was not until Nov. 1 that Congress learned of George's declaration making them officially rebels and outlaws, the situation which later prompted Benjamin Franklin to remind them that "we must all hang together, or assuredly we shall all hang separately."

On the same day they learned that George was hiring German mercenaries to subdue them and that the British navy had burned Falmouth, Mass. From that time forward it was risky business even to speak kindly of the king.

This was the situation when Thomas Paine suggested in January 1776 that it was only "common sense" for the colonies to assume the status of a free and independent nation.

Six months later, they did just that.

Strength For Today

PRODUCTIVE STORMS
Nothing aids more in the scattering of seeds over the countryside in the spring than raging storms. The lashing back and forth of trees and plants wrests the seeds from their pods and sends them flying for miles over the countryside.

It is well to remember that this is a storm-lashed world. God will come out of much of the evil we see around us, hard as it is to believe it. The helpless Christians that were cast to the lions centuries ago might have found it hard to realize that they were helping the spread of their faith more by their death than by anything they could have done had they lived. The violent political and religious storms in Europe in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries which sent thousands of emigrants to our shores illustrating again the seeding quality of these apparent disasters.

Think about this when trouble is shaking your life or your home. Under the hand of God even the most evil things work together for good.

No Easy Answers For Leaders

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Those in positions of leadership today know there are no easy decisions, no clear-cut answers, no sharply defined routes to follow, no positive actions that do not spin off some negative consequences.

They wish those who aren't in positions of power would understand this. At least that seems to be the lament, the frustration, of public officials. They might not express it publicly, but they do so in private.

Consider a few decisions and their ramifications: —Sell more grain to the Soviet Union. It would further detente. It would help improve the U.S. trade balance and keep the U.S. dollar healthy. It would give U.S. farmers a good price for their labor and ingenuity.

But, it might also raise domestic food prices. It might arouse domestic strife because the AFL-CIO is angry about the lot of common people in the Soviet Union and highly disturbed about U.S. food prices.

—Pursue an easy money policy.

It would speed recovery from the recession. It would put people back to work. It might lower interest rates. It would help business finance its needs. It would, for a while at least help the stock market. It would help housing.

But, it probably would cause an acceleration of prices, a return to the very inflation that caused so many problems. And, it is feared, such a move would trigger a new recession in a year or so.

—Lend federal money to New York City. It would help save financially distressed municipality. It would restore confidence in the municipal bond markets. It would give the city a chance to put its house in order.

But, it would also set a precedent — and there are fears that precedent would be followed widely. It wouldn't solve New York's problems vestments, too.

Right now savings bankers can make home mortgage loans above 9 per cent in some areas, but they are reluctant to do so — even at that high rate. Why? Bankers, no more than any others, know the future. They fear even higher rates.

It would do no good for them to make a 9 per cent loan today for 20 to 25 years only to find their money costs might top that sometime in the near future. It happened before; it could again.

Do you, the ordinary American, understand that? Some public officials and businessmen despair of being understood on such issues.

Of course, you say, what could be simpler? Why, anyone who has to live within the limits of a paycheck, almost everyone in America, knows there are no easy decisions in these perilous, deceiving shifting times. It isn't easy.

If only those in positions of power understood this.

or those of any other city — just postpone them. It would be unfair to taxpayers elsewhere.

—Impose wage-price controls.

They would help stop what seems to be a rebuilding of inflationary fears. They would enforce a sense of stability; don't forget, it is uncertainty about the future that makes many wage demands and price increases so big.

But, they would violate our belief in free enterprise and bring closer a permanent change in the American way of doing business. They might prove to be unenforceable. They might lead to black markets and cheating.

All these decisions refer to actions that might be taken by the federal government. But there are similar decisions that business is trying to deal with.

If you were a banker you would seek all the business you could handle, consistent with your bank's goals. You would want to build your deposits and your in-

Separate Bedrooms 'Too Much' For Betty

NEW YORK (AP)—First Lady Betty Ford says the White House tradition of separate bedrooms "is just too far to go for politics" and she sleeps with her husband "as often as possible."

Mrs. Ford is quoted in the September issue of McCall's magazine as saying she got letters "from all across the country" after she was reported to have spurned the White House practice of separate sleeping chambers.

Many of the writers seemed to "feel it is very immoral for us to be using the same bedroom," Mrs. Ford said. She complained that apparently some Americans think a man who becomes president is "supposed to become a eunuch."

Mrs. Ford, 57, sparked controversy two weeks ago when she said in a television interview that she would not be surprised if her 18-year-old daughter Susan came to her and said she was having an affair. Susan later said she was not having an affair.

Writer Myra MacPherson

says the First Lady shows no generation gap in her attitudes toward younger people's opinions and ways of life, including living together though unmarried.

In this connection, Mrs. Ford is quoted as saying, "Sometimes I'm not so sure that maybe this generation approaches life more wisely than we have. I know that may seem controversial, but it's an actual fact that in college more couples are living off campus together. If these things are going to take place, if I were the parent, I'd rather have the children come to me and feel free to tell me."

She added that freedom to indulge in such a life style might be "impossible for her my own children," being White House children. But she adds, "I don't think they'd do it anyway. I don't think they are inclined that way."

Mrs. Ford says she has always had a strong civil libertarian streak, nurtured by her mother's tolerant attitude for people, according to McCall's. The magazine said Mrs. Ford's personality asserted itself following her very public and emotionally painful breast cancer surgery, an operation whose side effects were eased by the President's empathy. "It was easy for me to accept the operation," Mrs. Ford says. "I had been married 26 years and we had our four children. There was no problem of lack of love, affection and attention."

Looking back on her first year in the White House, Mrs. Ford says, "I think I've learned over the past months the positiveness of the position (First Lady) — which I hadn't realized before."

She said she never thought she would enjoy being First Lady — "All I could think of were teas and that sort of thing."

"I have grown. I have come to realize the power of being able to help."

One of her favorite causes is the pending and controversial Equal Rights Amendment for Women (ERA). She was picketed last winter by opponents of the ERA who charged that she was using taxpayers' money (White House telephones and stationery) to lobby for the amendment. "I feel I've done a great deal for the ERA," she said. "I believe very strongly that this bill should be passed."

Pirates Hold One Game Lead; Cards And Phils Keep Pace

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
San Francisco's Ed Halicki was displaying his knowledge of the Pittsburgh hitters again Wednesday night when they suddenly taught him a thing or two.

"For a young guy, Halicki knows our club very well. His pitching pattern against us is excellent," said winning pitcher Jim Rooker after the Pirates rallied for three runs in the eighth inning and a 3-1 victory over the Giants.

who had beaten them three times this season.

But Richie Zisk got an infield hit with one out in the eighth, took second on Manny Sanguillen's single and scored the tying run on rookie Craig Reynolds' double. Following an intentional walk to pinch hitter Bill Robinson, Randy Moffitt relieved Halicki and Rennie Stennett rapped a tie-breaking two-run single.

Cardinals 4, Reds 0
Bake McBride drove in three runs with his third and fourth homers — his first since May 2 — and Ron Reed pitched a four-hitter as St. Louis ended Fred Norman's six-game winning streak.

Ken Reitz' run-scoring single broke up a scoreless duel in the fourth following hits by Willie Davis and Reggie Smith. An inning later, Lou Brock singled and McBride drove the next pitch over the right field fence near the foul line. The speedy outfielder later greeted reliever Will McEaney with an inside-the-park home run in the eighth.

Reed permitted singles in each of the first four innings, then set down 13 batters in a row following Tony Perez' lead-off hit in the fourth. After an error by shortstop Mike Tyson, Reed retired the last five batters to end the game.

Phillies 4, Braves 1
Greg Luzinski drove in his 100th run of the season with a seventh-inning double and Dave Cash delivered a pair of run-scoring singles. Larry Christenson was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh after allowing only three Atlanta runners to reach base, two on singles and one on a walk.

Astros 5, Mets 4
Cesar Cedeno led off the 10th inning with a single off rookie Rick Baldwin and scored on Cliff Johnson's hit-and-run double for Bill Virdon's first triumph as manager of the Astros. Johnson hit his 12th home run in the sixth inning.

Padres 8, Expos 6
Enzo Hernandez snapped a 5-5 tie with a three-run double in the seventh inning and Gene Locklear knocked in four runs, three with his fourth home run of the season.

Citadel Coach Sees Best Year Coming Up Now

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Citadel football coach Bobby Ross smiles when he looks at the upcoming season. Most of the experts are picking the Bulldogs as a dark horse shot at the Southern Conference title, but Ross feels that role may be too small.

"This could be the best year we've had since 1971, and maybe even better than that," he said. That 1971 team went 8-3 and ranked third in the Southern. Ross feels that the title could be within the 'Dogs' grasp.

There are two chief reasons for this. One is the return of senior Andrew Johnson, who set a single season rushing record in the league, snapping the mark of Carlester Crumpler of East Carolina, with 1,373 yards in 248 carries. Johnson has 1,909 career yards and unless injured appears a sure bet to become the first 3,000-yard rusher in Southern history.

The other reason for Ross' smile is linebacker Brian Ruff, 6-0, 219. He led the Bulldogs for two straight years in tackles with a total of 24 last year.

"With Johnson back, thank God, we have one of the finest rushers in the country," Ross said. "We look for improved passing this year, and this should open Johnson up even more. We still plan to get the ball to him 20 times a game."

But they aren't the entire reason for the optimism in Charleston. Sixteen of 22 starters return. "This gives us more experience, and we have an attitude of confidence in our returnees. This has helped the attitude of the entire team. They think they can win," Ross added.

Heading the other returnees is quarterback Gene Dotson. Last year, he had trouble with his passing, hitting only 38.5 per cent of his tosses. But he's worked hard, and Ross expects a much improved passing attack to go with Johnson's rushing.

Others coming back on offense include tight end Dickie Regan, split end Mike Riley, tackle Paul Sumner, guards Jerald Snow and Stan Brooks, and flanker Doug Johnson. That leaves only one tackle spot to be filled, the center position and the fullback slot.

Nick Cannata, a sophomore who moved in from guard, took a firm grip on the center spot during the spring. Brooks has been moved to tackle, with Preston Robinson, a junior, moving into Brooks vacated guard spot. But he suffered an injury during the spring and will be contested by Wayne Anthony.

Three sophomores, Jim Wilkinson, Bob Tillman and Jerome Andrews battled during the spring for the other running back slot, but none of them established himself as the top candidate. Mike Bazemore, who missed spring drills, could also be a factor here.

Defensively, the Bulldogs are also heavy in experience. Back are end Ron Shelley, tackle Cary Vick, guards David Sollazzo and Tony Starks, defensive backs Stan Yarborough and Ralph Ferguson, and of course, linebacker Ruff.

The Citadel, too, is one of the few remaining teams in the league using a six-man front line.

On the other end position, Ronnie Easterby, a sophomore, has been switched over from running back. The other tackle is likely to be transfer Greg James, and Ross feels that he could be the best lineman of the group.

Joining Ruff at linebacker will be either Felix Hooks or Randy Johnson, both highly talented. Johnson was a defensive end last year, who was injured and missed part of the year.

Tony Kimbrell appears to be the top candidate for the vacant spot in the secondary.

The kicking game of the Bulldogs will again be solid. Dotson returns to handle the punting, and Steve Bailey, who hit 20 of 21 PATS last year, is back. Paul Tanguay, who hit a 48-yard field goal, also returns.

If there is a problem for the Cadets, it will be depth. "We don't have a lot of it," Ross said. "We have to stay healthy to be successful."

Aside from Rod Lanning at quarterback, Billy Cannon at defensive tackle and Sidney Wiles at defensive guard, there is little proven depth.

Still, Ross has high hopes. "Our goals are to win at least nine games and the conference championship," he said.

If Dotson can open up Johnson's running attack as Ross hopes he will, it just might be the year for the Bulldogs.

The Citadel's schedule: Sept. 13, Presbyterian; Sept. 20, at Colgate; Sept. 27, Wofford; Oct. 4, William & Mary; Oct. 11, East Carolina; Oct. 18, at Davidson; Oct. 25, at VMI; Nov. 1, Appalachian State; Nov. 8, at Richmond; Nov. 15, Furman; Nov. 22, at Chattanooga.

Bengals Hope To Avoid Hurts

BY ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — By the end of last season, the lockerroom of the Cincinnati Bengals could have been renamed Medical Center. The entire backfield was decimated and the linebacking corps had been in shock since Jim LeClair was forced to the football sidelines early in the year.

Looking back, Coach Paul Brown admits that just breaking even at 7-7 was an accomplishment.

"We lost more people with serious injuries than I can remember ever having happened to a team I coached," Brown said.

What happened in the training room and, in some cases on the operating table, is going to be a major factor in how improved the Bengals can be this season.

"The season depends on all those guys that were injured last year. They have to come back for the season to mean something," said Brown, ticking off a list of injured players which included running backs Essex Johnson and Boobie Clark, center Bob Johnson, tackle Vern Holland and linebacker LeClair.

Brown lists Johnson as his principal question mark this season and he almost changed the question mark in the speedster's career to a period before training camp barely began.

Johnson, who has been plagued with knee problems after an impressive 1973 showing, was waived by the Bengals, but allowed to return after releasing the Bengals of any obligation should he re-injure his knee.

Johnson is not the only question mark in the Bengals backfield. Clark spent half of last season on the sidelines with a broken forearm. Brown hopes the 1973 rookie sensation will be able to return to the form that gained him 988 yards his first year.

There is no question at quarterback, except how deep is the well of talent from which Ken Anderson can draw.

Last season, Anderson, the Bengals surprise pick in 1971 from Augustana College, completed 213 of 328 passes for a .649 percentage and 18 touchdowns.

Wide receiver Isaac Curtis was Anderson's favorite target last season, catching 10 touchdown passes in his second year.

Backing Anderson will be John Reeves. Rookies Gary Scheide and Tom Shuman are battling for the No. 3 quarterback slot on the roster.

Star defensive tackle Mike Reid announced during the offseason that he will be pursuing a music career.

The Bengals figure Bill Kolar, their No. 1 draft choice a year ago, can step right into Reid's spot and they have also used a high draft choice this year to land Gary Burley from Pittsburgh.

The Bengals' linebacking corps has been suspect ever since Bill Bergey went to the Philadelphia Eagles, and even Brown admits that "we have to improve in that area."

That's why the Bengals picked four linebackers in this year's draft including first-round choice Glenn Cameron of Florida.

Cameron and LeClair, who had offseason surgery, can work along with seven-year regular Al Beauchamp and Iron Pritchard.

Lemar Parrish and Ken Riley give Cincinnati a strong pair at cornerback.

The Bengals have put all their kicking chores on the toe of Dave Green after trading Horst Muhlmann, their place-kicking specialist.

Borg Starts US Defense

By The Associated Press
Bjorn Borg opened defense of his U.S. Pro Tennis Championship title with an easy first-round victory over West Germany's Hans Jurgen Pohmann, while Guillermo Vilas, Arthur Ashe and Manuel Orantes all posted solid second-round triumphs in the $100,000 event at the Longwood Cricket Club in Brookline, Mass.

The second-seeded Borg, the 19-year-old Swedish star, had no trouble beating Pohmann 6-1, 7-5 in the last first-round match.

Meanwhile, in second-round play, the top-seeded Vilas of Argentina coasted past Italy's Paulo Bertolucci 6-3, 6-4; Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe, the third seed, defeated Chris Mottram of England 6-3, 6-4, and fourth-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain, seeking his second straight triumph on the pro tour, whipped Phil Dent of Australia 6-1, 6-2.

At South Orange, N.J., Jimmy Connors overcame stomach cramps midway through his match and beat Dick Crealy of Australia 7-5, 6-4 in the second round of the $50,000 Tennis Week Open at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club.

The top-seeded Connors took a brief rest period with the score tied 5-5 in the first set, and came on to win the set and gain control of the match.

In other second-round matches, Vic Amaya of Ann Arbor, Mich., defeated John James of Australia 6-3, 6-2 and Balazs Taroczy of Hungary ousted Henry Bunis of Cincinnati 6-2, 6-2. Meanwhile, Vijay Amritraj of India, who won the Buckeye Championship on Monday, began his play with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Rolf Thung of The Netherlands.

At the $75,000 women's tennis tournament at the Westchester Country Club in Harrison, N.Y., second-seeded Martina Navratilova and third-seeded Virginia Wade of Great Britain posted straight-set victories in second-round play by identical scores.

Miss Navratilova beat Julie Anthony of Palo Alto, Calif. and Miss Wade topped Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia, both by 6-1, 6-4 scores.

Rosie Casals of Sausalito, Calif., seeded 10th, was upset by Colombia's Isa Fernandez 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

Suspension Rate Lower Last Year

Expulsions and suspensions in the Greenville City School system for the 1974-75 school year were considerably lower than in 1971-72, the first year that full-time records were maintained on these actions.

Although total expulsions, 18 for the past school year, were up five in number from the 1973-74 school year total of 13, it still reflects a significant drop from the total of 37 expulsions in 1971-72 and 21 in 1972-73.

A statistical chart released by the city school office reveals that for the four year period, expulsions were far more frequent in the junior high (grades 7-9) level than in any other age group. In 1971-72, 25 of the 37 expulsions were within these three grade levels; in 1972-73, these grades accounted for 19 of the 21 expulsions; for nine of 13 expulsions in 1973-74; and for 11 of 18 in the 1974-75 school year.

Expulsions from the senior high level (grades 10-12) accounted for nine, two, four and six respectively for the four school years. At the elementary level, the figures are three expulsions during 1971-72, none in the school years 1972-73 and 1973-74; and one in the past school year.

Total suspensions were also drastically down for the past school year. The figure for 1974-75 is 679 suspensions, compared to 1,371 in 1971-72; 969 in 1972-73; and 1,059 in 1973-74.

Following the same pattern noted in expulsions, the majority of suspensions in the school system were students in the junior high level. The cart of figures show (for grades 7-9) — 794 in 1971-72; 647 in 1972-73; 700 in 1973-74; with a big drop to 378 in 1974-75.

Suspensions at the senior high level for the four year period shows 537 in 1971-72; 313 in 1972-73; 361 in 1973-74; and 278 in 1974-75. The elementary figures (grades 1-6) in suspensions show a total of 40 in 1971-72; nine in 1972-73; and 23 each for the school years 1973-74 and 1974-75.

Paul Released Until Appeal Is Completed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Joan Little greeted her chief defense attorney, Jerry Paul, with little emotion as he was released from the Wake County Jail Wednesday afternoon.

The North Carolina Court of Appeals Wednesday stayed Paul's sentence pending his appeal.

Paul had been imprisoned more than five days. He was handed a 14-day sentence by Judge Hamilton Hobgood Friday, moments after Miss Little was acquitted of a charge of murdering her white, 62-year-old Beaufort County jailer.

Hobgood cited Paul for contempt for remarks Paul made on the second day of the trial.

Paul signed a personal signature bond for $1,000. It provides that he will owe the state that amount should he fail to follow the conditions of the bond.

After his release, Paul conferred privately with his supporters, including Morris Dees of the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, Ala., a member of the defense team, was tossed off the case by Hobgood when accused of trying to get a witness to change her testimony.

Paul talked briefly with reporters as he walked to the parking lot.

"If they had upheld the law, I would have been out by Monday. I'm glad to see they decided to follow the law," he said.

"The bar and judiciary are in for a lot of criticism in the running of this jail," Paul said, explaining that he kept notes while confined and plans to issue a statement later.

The Court of Appeals granted two petitions from Paul's lawyers. One was for a writ of superseades, and under that, the jail sentence was ordered suspended.

The other petition asked for a writ of certiorari. In allowing that, the Court of Appeals called the case up from Superior Court for review. The filing schedule for documents means oral arguments will probably be held late in the year.

Paul's attorneys argue that the sentencing was not handled properly. They say a hearing should have been held.

They also contend that Paul's actions were not of a nature that should be punished by a contempt citation, saying that he was only acting in heated advocacy.

Hobgood cited Paul for an exchange of words following Hobgood's refusal to allow certain questions to be asked of potential jurors.

Charge Two In Theft

Two 14-year-old boys, one from Greenville and the other from Baltimore, Md., were arrested here early today on auto larceny charges, according to Police Chief Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said the two were taken into custody by officers at the West End Circle shopping center about 3:12 a.m. after a short chase that began when police attempted to stop the car the two juveniles occupied.

The vehicle, Cannon said, was taken from 2707 Webb St. residence, a short time before the two were arrested.

Cannon quoted the owner of the car as saying the keys had been left in the vehicle.

Tom And Jerry Rated 'Too Violent'

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —
Question: What seven-time Academy Award winner is considered too controversial for television?

Answer: You won't believe this, but it's "Tom and Jerry."
William Hanna and Joseph Barbera, who created the forever feuding cat and mouse 35

years ago, regained rights to the cartoon characters not long ago from MGM and footed it over to the networks.
"We ran into a stone wall," Barbera reports, "because some citizens for the protection of the children of the world have decided cartoons are evil, that they're violent and full of mayhem."
"We showed them (the network folks) five of the old 'Tom and Jerry's' and they laughed so hard they had tears in their eyes. Then they said, 'We can't use them. If we put those on we'll get killed.'"

The reason is that the "Tom and Jerry" cartoons, with their classic slapstick antics in which characters often knock each other silly, are too violent by today's television standards — which were instituted a few years ago in response to pressure by parents' activist groups.
Never mind Tom and Jerry's
seven Oscars and their worldwide popularity that spawned 147 cartoons between 1940 and 1947.
Hanna and Barbera weren't surprised the old ones wouldn't go, having had more than a little experience in the field.
Since departing MGM in 1957

to form their own animation studio, they have turned out more than 100 cartoon series for television, including "The Flintstones," "Yogi Bear" and the current hit, "Scooby-Do."
What they proposed instead was making new "Tom and Jerry" cartoons — the first they'd done in 18 years.
There would still be that marvelous friendship between natural adversaries, but they would be put in more "socially acceptable" situations.
A sample viewing indicates
Tom and Jerry haven't lost
their charm or their ability to create laughs. Since they don't talk — they never did — the emphasis is on action and sight

gags and those crazy things that can only happen in cartoons.
In one of the new cartoons,
for instance, Tom and Jerry are on a pirate ship. Their misadventures cause the boat to sink at least five times but come the next scene it's always right back afloat.
"I'm just as enthusiastic about Tom and Jerry as I was 20 years ago," Barbera says.
"Unless people went back and saw the old ones, I don't think they'll know there's a difference."

That idea appealed to ABC,
and it ordered 48 seven-minute cartoons for a new Saturday morning "Tom and Jerry" series beginning Sept. 6. Hanna and Barbera are personally involved in the production.
"They're not chasing each other anymore," Barbera says of his old friends. "It used to be that Tom would pick on Jerry at the beginning, which would give Jerry the right to defend himself. Now they work together."
A sample viewing indicates
Tom and Jerry haven't lost
their charm or their ability to create laughs. Since they don't

Advertisements Tell Sentences

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sentencing records of judges in drug-selling cases in the suburban San Fernando Valley are being displayed in a Kiwanis newspaper ad campaign, and the judges don't like it.
The ads, published every two weeks in the Van Nuys Valley News and Green Sheet, compare sentences handed out with the maximum penalty the judge could have imposed. In each case, the name of the judge, but not the defendant, is used.

sulted in nonjail punishment.
"Our outlook on this is that we'd like to inform the public
what is going on," said Knoll.
"We have no axes to grind. We respect our judicial system, but we just do not understand why the penal code is not being lived up to."
Roberts termed the ads an
"oversimplification of an emotional problem." He said, "It is not a mechanical process that because the law says you can send someone to prison you must do it. There are many factors involved — the amount of narcotics, the circumstances under which it was allegedly sold, the age of the defendant,
his past record and possible technical defenses because of a fault in the search warrant or overreaching by the police department."

"I think it's unfair to the judges because the only purpose is to point out to the public that judges are universally lenient and not doing their duty
by giving maximum sentences," says Superior Court Judge Raymond R. Roberts.
Roberts, a civil court judge, said he was speaking out because the criminal court judges are not in a position to defend themselves without com-

The Valley Criminal Bar As-

project.

He said if funds are available
he is willing to expand the ads

Of 43 cases handled in San

Budget Is Down

CHARLOTTE (AP)—North Carolina's 57 community colleges and technical institutes will work next school year with an operating budget 16 per cent
short of their initial request.
The vice president of the state
Community College Department, Ike Southerland, says the department originally asked the legislature for an operating budget of $118 million.
However, the legislature ultimately pared it down to $99 million.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 Pass 3 3 4
Pass 4 5 Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

We have been told that a little learning is a dangerous thing. Someone should also have warned that discovering too much runs risks of its own!

North-South arrived at a reasonable five diamond contract despite strenuous interference by the opposition.
East-West wisely refused to take a sacrifice, for five spades can be defeated three tricks, and since North-South would still be 2:1 favorites to win the rubber, 500 would be too high a price to pay to prolong the action.
West led the ace of spades, in response to East's four, shifted to the three of clubs. Declarer's weak spot was under attack. To avoid two club losers, he would have to guess the location of the queen of hearts. A successful finesse in either direction would permit him to discard a club on dummy's ace of hearts.
Instead of relying solely on intuition, declarer set about learning as much about the hand as he could.
He won the ace of clubs,
cashed the ace of trumps
and ruffed a spade in dummy. He returned to his hand with a trump and West discarded a spade. When South ruffed his remaining spade in dummy, West discarded a club.
Declarer paused to review
the situation. West had shown up with three spades, one diamond and probably four clubs (inferred from his shift to the three of clubs and later discard of a club).
Therefore, he had five hearts, and was more likely to have the queen than East.
Operating on this assumption, declarer led a heart to the king and returned the ten to the jack. Unfortunately, East won the queen, and the defenders took two clubs
for a two-trick set.
We must confess that we might have played the hearts the same way declarer did—under normal circumstances. However, as the play went, we would surely have asked ourselves
why West had gone out of his way to show us that he held five hearts. Was it possible that he was so eager to give a count of the hand because he didn't hold the queen?

Puerto Rico Bid Is Ended

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A United Nations committee, in a surprise victory for the United States, has rebuffed a campaign led by Cuba to get recognition for the Puerto Rican independence movement.

The Special Decolonization Committee voted 11-9 with two abstentions to halt discussion of relations between the United States and its Caribbean commonwealth. The United States boycotted the discussion, contending that the committee lacked jurisdiction since the Puerto Ricans have voted overwhelmingly for their present status.

The vote also postponed until 1976 discussion of a resolution which said the Puerto Rican "independistas" represented the "legitimate aspirations of the Puerto Rican people struggling for independence."

U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan commented:

"The United States is gratified by the action of the committee which — given the unassailable fact of the free condition of the people of Puerto Rico — was a responsible action."

U.S. diplomats had lobbied vigorously against the resolution which was sponsored by Cuba, the Congo, Iraq, Mali and Syria.

Cuba contended that Australia's postponement proposal put the committee in the position of "bowing to the dictates of a great imperialist power."

Juan Mari Bras, the secretary-general of the Puerto Rican Socialist party, said: "The U.S. imperialists ... have achieved but a fleeting victory in their efforts to try to stop discussion of the colonial case of Puerto Rico in the committee." He said his party "will bring to other U.N. forums, as well as to the nonaligned movement" a demand for reversal of the decolonization committee's decision.

Remarriage Said Near For Fighting Burtons

GSTAAD, Switzerland (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton were reported traveling together "somewhere in Switzerland" today after 14 months of divorce and another reconciliation. Burton was quoted as saying they might remarry in Israel.

"They are driving around in Switzerland and are expected to be back here before going to Israel next week," said Miss Taylor's secretary at the home the star maintains in Gstaad to reduce her taxes.

"The reconciliation is confirmed," she added. "They are now driving around together in her car, but I don't know where they are."

A spokesman for the couple in New York, John Springer, said Burton had told him: "This is not a trial reconciliation; it is permanent."

Springer said Burton also told him they might remarry during their visit to Israel because "after all, Elizabeth is Jewish."

Miss Taylor converted to Judaism in 1959, between her third and fourth husbands, producer Mike Todd and singer Eddie Fisher, both Jews.

Burton, now 49, was Miss Taylor's fifth husband; she is 43 and was his second wife. Their marriage lasted 10 years, and for much of that time they were among the movies' biggest — and highest paid — attractions. In the latter years, the marriage turned stormy, and last year a Swiss court awarded Miss Taylor an uncontested divorce on grounds of incompatibility.

Since their divorce, Miss Taylor has been the constant companion of a Los Angeles used car dealer named Henry Wynberg while Burton has had a string of girl friends. But Springer said they had been in communication by telephone for some time.

He said Miss Taylor returned to Switzerland last weekend from Leningrad, where she had been making the film "The Bluebird." Burton joined her, and they were reconciled, Springer reported.

"Whether they will get married immediately is not absolutely certain," he said, adding that it was probable they would divorced Fisher to marry Burton. That marriage and her next one to English actor Michael Wilding ended in divorce. Burton was divorced from the former Sybil Williams to marry Miss Taylor.

Viking Heads For Red Planet

By G. MICHAEL HARMON
Associated Press Writer
ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — America's Viking spaceship zipped across the orbit of the moon today on a 505-million-mile flight designed to determine if there is life on the planet Mars.

A Titan Centaur rocket launched the Viking on its 303-day chase around the sun at 5:22 p.m. Wednesday, and the letter-perfect performance of the spaceship spread smiles across the faces of space officials who had scowled through two blastoff delays last week.

First, the spacecraft was fired into a parking orbit 105 miles above earth so scientists could position the ship for insertion into a trans-Mars trajectory.

Then, 30 minutes later, another rocket blast sent the Viking streaking toward Mars at 24,000 miles an hour and, hopefully, a soft landing in time for the Bicentennial.

"It's really good to have a smile on my face," said John

Neilon, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's director for launch vehicles. "It was a trouble-free countdown."

The Titan Centaur launch vehicle forced the first delay on Aug. 11 when a guidance control valve in the first stage malfunctioned.

James Martin, project manager for the $1-billion mission, and other space officials have yet to offer a definite cause for the second delay, an errant switch that drained two batteries in the orbiter half of the spaceship.

A sister craft is to be launched Sept. 1.

Martin said officials were considering a long mid-course correction next Wednesday to improve shrinking chances for a landing on Mars July 4, 1976, the 200th anniversary of American independence.

The nine-day delay in the launch may push the touchdown date past the 4th of July.

Order Tests For Kidnapper

NEW YORK (AP) — Mel Patrick Lynch, the New York City fireman described by federal authorities as the mastermind in the kidnaping of whiskey heir Samuel Bronfman 2d, has been ordered to undergo psychiatric examination.

U.S. Atty. Paul Curran has described Lynch, 37, as the "prime mover" in the abduction.

Meanwhile, Elizabeth Byrne, in an interview in the office of her husband's lawyer, Peter E. De Blasio, said that Byrne had protected the kidnaped Seagram heir.

"He protected him because my husband didn't want anything to happen to him. He was under pressure. He was afraid for his life and the boy's life and the rest of us."

Mrs. Byrne said she learned of her husband's connection with the case last Saturday when he telephoned her to say he was "in trouble."

Federal Judge Richard Owen signed the order at the request of Asst. U.S. Atty. Gerald A. Feffer with the consent of Lynch and his court-appointed attorney, Walter Higgins.

Higgins has intimated that any part Lynch may have played in the nine-day kidnaping may have been the result of a "rather severe aberration" in his way of life.

Lynch and his alleged accomplice, Dominic Byrne, a limousine operator, are being held on a total of $700,000 bail on federal charges of extorting a $2.3 million ransom from the victim's father, Edgar Bronfman, head of the billion-dollar Seagram Company, Ltd.

The nine-day kidnaping came to an end Sunday when Samuel was rescued by police and FBI agents from Lynch's Brooklyn apartment. Lynch and Byrne were arrested and the ransom recovered.

"Lynch has that Bronfman boy in his apartment," she quoted her husband as saying. "I have to set him free and protect him. I have to do something: make a phone call to our friends, Marty and Frank."

These friends were police officers, Mrs. Byrne said, adding that Byrne didn't make the call but their daughter, Mary, went to the police about midnight.

Consequently, police got a key to Lynch's apartment from Byrne and Samuel was rescued.

To Seek 4th Term

CHARLOTTE (AP)—John M. Belk, department store millionaire, announced Tuesday that he would seek a fourth consecutive two-year term as mayor of Charlotte.

This ended weeks of speculation among other potential candidates on whether he would run.

In the Democratic primary Sept. 23 he probably will face state Sen. Jim McDuffie, whom he defeated in the last primary for mayor. McDuffie has said he would run if Belk did.

The winner of the Democratic primary will have opposition in the election Nov. 4. The former Mecklenburg County Republican chairman, Henry Wilmer, has announced his candidacy for mayor. There also is a U.S. Labor party candidate, Stanley Ezrol.

Farmville Prices Up

FARMVILLE—Prices were stronger yesterday on the Farmville Tobacco Market than they were on Tuesday.

Leaf grades accounted for most of the increase and good grades of clean cutters were also in strong demand.

Primings and lugs were off in volume as compared with the previous sales day. Nondescript grades accounted for a small percentage of the volume and the top price paid for quality leaf grades was $1.15 per pound.

More smoking leaf appeared on the floor yesterday than on Tuesday. Stabilization receipts accounted for 15 percent of sales.

The market sold 377,049 pounds of tobacco for $374,987, giving an average of $99.45 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 10,743,401 pounds for $9,860,502, giving an average of $91.78 per hundred pounds for the season.

Little Investigation Termed 'Typical'

By CATHY STEELE ROCHE

North Carolina criminal justice

officials say the Beaufort County Sheriff Department's handling of the Joan Little murder case was typical of investigations in the state's small, rural police departments.

The sheriff's deputy who arrived in Miss Little's cell shortly after jailer Clarence Alligood was found slain took the icepick that had been clutched in the dead man's hand and stuck it in his back pocket.

are excited and they aren't thinking about the court case, especially when an officer has been killed."

Miss Little turned herself into the State Bureau of Investigation eight days after the slaying. She said the 62-year-old white jailer forced her to have oral sex with him and she stabbed him in self defense.

after Alligood's slaying, the cell had been cleaned and the evidence removed.

said the courses are free, except for travel expenses and in some cases room and board.

Kilpatrick. . .

old Glen L. Rutherford of Wichita, Kans., came down in 1971 with what was diagnosed as cancer of the rectum. When standard treatments proved ineffective, he went to Mexico for Laetrile. He thinks it cured the condition. On his return to Kansas, he continued to get Laetrile from an illegal source who subsequently was arrested. Rutherford then went into Federal Court and sued for an order prohibiting the government from interfering with his right to treat his own body in his own way.

and abundant warning in cases such as these. Look, it could say to the guy named Rutherford, we have searched for scientifically acceptable proof that Laetrile works. We find none. We think the promoters of Laetrile are quacks engaged in a cruel hoax. To sell an unproven substance is economic fraud. We advise you to rely on surgery, X-ray, or chemo-therapy, or just die quietly.

Jurors who acquitted Miss Little of slaying a Beaufort County jailer said the state did not have enough evidence to prove its case. Some jurors felt the 21-year-old black woman might have been convicted if the investigation had been more complete.

Deputy Willis Peachey said another officer took the weapon from the victim's fingers and handed it to him. It was not checked for fingerprints.

Powell and Hargett echoed comments made by Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood, who tried the Little case. Hobgood said at the close of the trial last week, "We have 100 counties and 25 have excellent training procedures. The small counties are understaffed and undertrained."

He said a minimum standard of 160 hours of training for law enforcement personnel was established in 1973, after creation of the training and standards council. He said, however, that officers employed before the standards were set were exempted and many have not elected to take courses.

Crime scene investigation is one of the courses that will be taught at the Salemburg Criminal Justice Academy, Powell said. He said 2,757 law officers have taken courses at the academy since it was established in 1973. More courses will be offered at Salemburg and at other locations across the state as the program moves into full operation this year, he said.

Powell said 67 per cent of the state's police and sheriff departments have fewer than 10 men and cannot afford to spare a man while he goes for training.

Last week Federal Judge Luther Bohannon agreed with Rutherford. He authorized a six-month supply of the substance for Rutherford's personal use, and criticized the FDA for "abdication of its duty" to the "common man." The government is expected to appeal.

Once such warnings are given, and knowledgeably understood, the government ought to retreat. This is the thrust of Judge Bohannon's ruling, and the judge is absolutely right.

Cecil Hargett, director of the North Carolina Criminal Justice Training and Standards Council said, "The situation in Beaufort County is probably typical of rural county law enforcement."

No samples were taken of the blood found on the cell floor or bunk and key parts of the physical evidence were lost or destroyed.

The judge said of the case, "I would say that the investigation in this county under the fact situation was perhaps average for 75 counties in North Carolina."

State Bureau of Investigation director Charles Dunn said the 160 hours of required training is only half the national average and should be increased.

Judge Hobgood cited the academy and courses offered by the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill as signs that criminal justice training in North Carolina is improving.

The state legislature recently set $6,000 as a minimum salary for law enforcement personnel, to be increased to $6,500 next year. Dunn estimated the average police salary at about $7,000, which he said was only about two-thirds the national average.

The point worth pondering in all this is the breathtaking arrogance of the government's position. Deputy Commissioner Gardner says the ban is supported by "the best science." Merciful heavens! There was a time when the best science concluded that the world was flat, that the sun revolved around the earth, and that insanity could be relieved by drilling holes in the skull to let the demons out. The best science used to believe in the efficacy of leeches, to suck the ill humors out of blood. When Pasteur came along, the best science thought he was crazy.

For the best science to insist that it knows Laetrile is worthless in every case is vainglorious presumption. The possibility ought always to be held open that somewhere on this vast globe, even though the possibility cannot be demonstrated on laboratory mice, somewhere there is a guy named Rutherford whose cancer responds to an extract of apricot pits. Wilder possibilities are demonstrated all the time.

He said, "The efforts of the training council will go a long way to upgrading the quality of the criminal justice practice, hopefully so things like happened in Beaufort County won't happen in the future."

"You want the truth? It's not that unusual," said Perry Powell, director of the state's new Criminal Justice Academy at Salemburg. "Even experienced officers make mistakes. They SBI agent James Allen Bailey, who photographed the Beaufort County jail for the Joan Little case, said he was the only state crime lab agent serving 23 counties. Dunn said the crime lab staff needs to be doubled.
