

Kissinger In Egypt As Progress Is Reported

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger made "some progress" today in five hours of talks with the Israelis on a new Sinai pact, then flew from Jerusalem to Alexandria for talks with President Anwar Sadat.

Kissinger said he would return to Jerusalem Saturday night after a stopover in Damascus "to continue the talks with an attitude of hope."

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon reported "some progress in clarifying certain important points, which makes me more hopeful." Kissinger and Allon declined to predict, however, whether the shuttle would end in success.

Speaking to newsmen, the two leaders said the talks were friendly, and indicated the rift in U.S.-Israeli relations caused by the failure of Kissinger's shuttle last March was over.

Shortly before dawn, several hundred demonstrators drove by Kissinger's hotel, shouting anti-American slogans through loudspeakers. Police drove them away.

As Kissinger met with the Israeli negotiating team, hundreds of right-wing demonstrators opposed to the expected Israeli-Egyptian accord in Sinai blocked traffic in Tel Aviv and fired guns into the air until the police dispersed them.

Meanwhile, in Damascus, Syria and Jordan, the two Arab states lagging behind Egypt in U.S. sponsored peace negotiations with Israel, formed a political command to "take joint decisions on war and peace."

The new alliance was disclosed in a joint communique following five days of talks between King Hussein of Jordan and Syrian President Hafez Assad.

The communique said the two leaders would coordinate policy and "carry out the recommendations and proposals made by a high ministerial committee" formed during Assad's visit to Jordan last month.

Syria has expressed reservations about Egypt's willingness to negotiate a second stage disengagement agreement with Israel in the Sinai Desert.

Assad has enlisted the cooperation of Hussein in an obvious effort to exert pressure on Cairo not to go too far in making unilateral deals with Israel.

Syria and Jordan both feel Israeli withdrawals on the Sinai front should be linked to similar disengagement agreements in the occupied Golan Heights and the west bank of the Jordan River.

Kissinger's step-by-step approach is aimed at securing a Sinai pact first, followed by the Golan Heights and then the west bank.

Egyptian officials say an agreement for another Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai Desert is virtually concluded. The Israelis warn that while much progress has been made, there is still a "lot of work to be done."

Israel is reported ready to withdraw behind the strategic Mitla and Gidi mountain passes and return the Abu Rudeis oil fields captured in 1967. Egypt is reported willing to promise not to resort to force unless it or its allies are attacked, and to support a three-year extension of the United Nations peacekeeping force separating the two sides.

Israeli officials say the main points still unresolved include the nature of the presence of American technicians at electronic warning posts in the two passes and the location of certain sections of the withdrawal line where topographical difficulties exist.

Egyptian officials say the two governments still are at odds over whether the crews operating the listening stations will be limited to 100 American civilians or will include Israeli and Egyptian representatives.

Israeli officials say their government also is not yet satisfied with the commitments in aid and political support Washington is offering Israel in return for its signature.

Deny President Seeking Refugee

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A strong explosion destroyed the national radio transmitter on the Portuguese island of Madeira some 600 miles northwest of here in the North Atlantic early today, officials reported.

They blamed the attack on separatist groups at odds with the leftist government in Lisbon.

There were no injuries reported in the TNT blast that wrecked the transmission tower at Monte, about two miles from the island capital of Funchal, shortly before dawn.

News of the attack came amid a climate of nervousness and uncertainty in Lisbon where persistent but unverified reports pointed to the imminent ouster of Premier Vasco Goncalves, an army general the Communists count on to protect their grip on key power centers.

The government took the unusual step today of announcing that Goncalves had not sought refuge in a Lisbon naval base.

Unconfirmed reports said moderate military officers trying to oust the pro-Communist premier were preparing to move against him today.

Information Minister Jorge Jesusino said in a broadcast that the government was denying reports that Goncalves had gone to the Alfeite naval base across the Tagus River from the capital.

Jesuino said the government had a large number of telephone calls during the night from people who said they heard Goncalves had taken refuge in the base.

The navy is considered more leftist than the army and air force.

Meanwhile, the Communist-dominated morning press claimed Goncalves had strengthened his position.

The premier, after a cabinet meeting Thursday, announced a program of "transition toward socialism" which he obviously hoped would help keep him in office and preserve the Communist trend he has led since taking office more than a year ago.

Sources close to Goncalves' opponents in the Armed Forces Movement, led by the former foreign minister Maj. Ernesto Melo Antunes, said the dissident officers might try to force a showdown within hours.

The sources said the army chief of staff, Gen. Carlos Fabiao, 45, was the choice of President Francisco da Costa Gomes to replace Goncalves as premier and possibly in a three-general ruling junta. Goncalves, Costa Gomes and Gen. Otelo Carvalho, now make up the triumvirate.

State Henry Kissinger was inside with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and other officials. Protesters snarled traffic in the city. (AP Wirephoto)

Calloway Defends Mrs. Ford In Start Of North Carolina Visit

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Howard "Bo" Calloway, President Ford's national campaign manager, Thursday defended recent remarks by the nation's first lady.

Betty Ford's highly publicized comments on morality has drawn widespread criticism from several quarters.

Asked about the possible political consequences of her comments about premarital sex and marijuana, Calloway said: "Those who are attempting to attack the President by attacking his wife are making a political mistake. It will backfire."

Mrs. Ford said Thursday she has no regrets about her comments and she thinks her frankness may have gotten a few votes for her husband. The former Georgia congressman expressed his views at a news conference during a brief campaign organization visit to Charlotte.

He said he considered Mrs. Ford an asset to her husband's election effort.

"You can't take the First Lady of this country, a gracious First Lady who has raised five wonderful children in a very difficult time, and try to picture her as an immoral person," he said Calloway.

Actually, the Fords have four children.

"To the extent that Betty Ford is willing to travel with the campaign, I want to use her," Calloway added.

"There is a very conscious attempt by a lot of people to create a split in this administration," Calloway said. "But there is no split."

"The only points I wanted to make clear were that this president supports this vice president clearly, unequivocally and wholeheartedly," he said, "but no decision has been made on who the President would recommend to be the next vice president."

Calloway also announced that Charlotte banker Hugh L. McColl Jr., a registered Democrat, will serve as state finance chairman for the Ford campaign. McColl is president of North Carolina National Bank.

Meanwhile, Northside Baptist Church in Charlotte reports it is being swamped with requests for tapes and printed copies of a sermon entitled "Betty Ford vs. the Bible," which was delivered Sunday by the Rev. W. Jack Hudson, pastor of the church.

About 2,000 persons showed up for the sermon after Hudson announced he would show that the first lady's recent remarks on premarital sex, abortion and marijuana were "directly contradictory to the teachings of the Bible." Hudson's sermon also was heard on 12 North Carolina radio stations.

A church secretary said about 300 tapes had been sold by Thursday at $3 each, 65 of them by mail order. Reprints of the sermon were being prepared for publication and would be sold for 50 cents each, she said.

In a visit to Greensboro later Thursday, Calloway said at a news conference that North Carolina Gov. Jim Holshouser will campaign for the president throughout the South. Holshouser will work with other GOP governors, he said.

Also to work on the Ford effort in the South will be Holshouser aide Gene Anderson and Brad Hays, an associate of Anderson. Calloway said it was "highly unlikely" that Anderson would be given a full time position in the campaign. Anderson and Holshouser are to campaign on their own time.

Holshouser is the only governor on Ford's campaign advisory committee. He had earlier turned down a title as Southern chairman because it might conflict with his gubernatorial duties.

Calloway also told the Greensboro news conference that campaign leaders hope to raise $125,000 in North Carolina. The campaigner told newsmen he didn't believe there is an energy crisis but there might be one in the future. He also said he hadn't tried to get Vice President Nelson Rockefeller off the ticket and his comments on the subject had been "taken out of context."

United Fund Budget Okayed

Pitt County United Fund directors last night approved a $222,044 budget for 1976—an increase of $25,400 over the 1975 budget of $196,643.

The new budget includes two new agencies—the local chapter of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation and Real Crisis Intervention which operates the Real House here.

The requested budget totaled more than $267,100 but was pared to the $222,000 figure by the budget committee before the 1976 budget was acted on by the Board of Directors last night. The various United Fund agencies and the approved 1976 budget for them, as well as their 1975 budget (in parenthesis) include: Association for the Blind, $3,250 ($3,250); Pitt County Mental Health $14,822 ($15,062); The Salvation Army, $32,770 ($31,038); the 4-H Council, $2,265 ($1,965); Girls Scouts, $14,000 ($12,000); Boy Scouts, $31,000 ($30,000); and Retarded Citizens, $6,500 ($6,335).

Others include: Red Cross, $27,024 ($26,000); Boys' Club, $23,000 ($18,500); North Carolina United Fund $9,241 ($8,743); Local Community Services $17,162 ($15,750); contingency fund for unpaid pledges, $5,000 ($5,000); and Pitt County United Fund office, $26,940 ($23,000).

The budget approved for the two new agencies was: Real Crisis Intervention, Inc. $5,000 ($13,500 requested) and National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation $2,750 ($7,000 requested).

In addition to approving the 1976 budget, the board last night named W. B. "Buff" Chalk UF treasurer. Chalk replaces Tom Allen who resigned the post.

Campaign chairman Tom Taft reported that most of the division chairmen for the coming campaign have been named and that announcements of them will begin in the near future. Pitt UF president Karl Faser presided at last night's meeting.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

WHISTLE FOR HELP

There are many widows in Greenville who would like to know where to get a whistle or noise-maker to warn neighbors when they need help. A. B.

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said he suggests a whistle like those used by referees in sporting events. These whistles can be purchased at most any sporting goods or hardware store. Hotline understands that in some cities, many women of all ages carry whistles to ward off attackers or get help.

NO EXTRA CHARGE

Is it true that in January and December the Greenville Utilities Commission adds a charge to all electric bills to pay for the city's Christmas decorations? M.S.

Charles Horne, director of GUC, emphatically replied, "no," to this question. He said this is a rumor which has been going around for about 25 years, but there is no such charge, there never has been and there could not be one. He said everyone's bill is usually more in January and December, than in November and this is what started the rumor.

POLICY EXCLUDES MINI-BIKES

My father bought a mini-bike for my little sister which was stolen soon after the purchase. My father has homeowner's insurance, but the company said they would not pay for the bike. Can you find out why not? J.P.

Jack Barnes of Pitt County Farm Bureau Insurance, with whom your father has his policy, said motorbikes are excluded from coverage in the homeowner's policy. He said this was not just Farm Bureau, but an industry-wide policy of insurance companies. He read from your father's policy, which said, "this coverage excludes . . . motorized vehicles, except such vehicles pertaining to the service of the premises and not licensed for road use." Barnes said motorized lawn mowers would be covered because they pertain to the service of the premises, but motorbikes do not.

In-Depth Study Seen For Highways 64, 264

By JAMES KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer

"The Department of Transportation will shortly secure the services of an independent consultant to study, in depth, the alternatives" for routes of the proposed corridor for U.S. 64 and U.S. 264, State Transportation Secretary Jacob F. (Jake) Alexander said yesterday.

Addressing a meeting of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce Merchant Association and other interested persons, Alexander said he could give no timetable on the study, except that the state expects to employ a consultant by the end of the year. He could not say how long the study will take.

"These studies will include evaluation of two separate routes as well as various alternatives for a combined highway. Citizens and local governmental officials will be involved in these studies," Alexander said. "After the studies are completed, the Department and Board should have a much better foundation upon which to base the route selection."

Alexander assured the group

the study would be undertaken in the fairest way possible. "If I have anything to do with it, I will make every human effort possible to select someone who has no connection with anyone in North Carolina" to make the study, Alexander said.

The audience consisted of legislators, Chamber members from Greenville and other eastern North Carolina cities, representatives of state and city government and interested area citizens. The Chambers of Wilson, Farmville, Greenville and Washington are making a "special effort" to get U.S. 264 improved.

Alexander outlined the objectives and eastern North Carolina projects of the Highway Improvement Program, instituted by Governor Holshouser. Because of the fact that the state had approved this program, it was eligible for a large portion of the $2.2 billion in impounded highway funds released by President Ford last February.

Alexander said the total highway construction expenditure for 1975 will near the $275 million mark, an all-time record for the state. In naming construction projects proposed or under construction in eastern North Carolina, Alexander said, "No longer can eastern North Carolina claim that you have been slighted, that you are not getting your fair share of highway construction projects."

"The total cost of the improvements . . . for this area, during this administration, is around $121 million," Alexander said.

Jake Alexander

He added, "In looking ahead, the anticipated revenues that will be generated to support the highway trust funds have leveled off and are now declining. The funds that will be available to support highway construction will be reduced, while costs for construction are increasing."

However, Alexander said, "This administration intends to use every dollar available to fulfill the road needs of our citizens."

Audience questions reflected a concern over the U.S. 64-264 issue and Tom Taft, chairman of the Chamber's committee on highways and transportation, asked for the help of all interested persons in working with the Transportation Department on the matter.

Women's Groups Begin To Publicized Wife Beating movement. Until recently, even feminists ignored the issue. The police, the courts and most social agencies have given it little attention. There are no nationwide statistics, but regional statistics are beginning to be publicized, primarily by women's groups.

Any generalization has to be partly guesswork, but wife beating "affects at least three times as many women as the rape issue," says Del Martin, a woman's lib activist in San Francisco who is writing a book on the subject. Some FBI statistics seem to support her statement. In New York State, for example, 4,764 rape cases were reported to police in 1973, while 14,000 wife abuse cases were taken to family court, the FBI says.

"It's usually something people keep very quiet and suffer with," says Enid Keljik, the New York coordinator of the National Organization For Women's (NOW) Marriage and Divorce Committee. "One woman, in a hospital with a fractured skull, said a doctor tried to persuade her to report her beating as a fall downstairs. 'He's remorseful. Go back to him,' she says the doctor told her. And she did, only too ready to believe again."

"It's fear," said another woman. "Your belly's full of it. It usually happens at night when there's no place to go. I used to take the baby carriage out at night and walk the streets to get away."

Both these women live in Somerville, Mass. They are members of a recently formed group of Somerville wives who share the common experience of husbands who beat them. Their organization, called Respond, is trying to open a refuge where the women can go when their men become violent.

"What we need is a place for a woman to get away, to bring her kids and stay for a while with other women who understand her problem," says Mrs. Jean Luce, a leader of Respond.

Early this year, NOW began to discuss the problem. For the first time, wife beating will be on the agenda of a national NOW conference, scheduled for October in Philadelphia.

This summer in San Francisco, the California legislature is holding its first hearings on wife beating. And in a handful of cities — including Seattle, New York and Philadelphia — women have formed organizations similar to Somerville's Respond because they feel the courts, the churches and the social agencies have failed them.

Mrs. Keljik said that she recently discussed wife beating on a television show and later received a score of calls from women who have been beaten. The callers included the wives of "an important official in a very large and influential bank, the head of the surgical department of a large hospital, a psychiatrist and a lawyer."

Mrs. Keljik and others in the women's movement offer statistics like these in support of their claim that wife beating is a major social problem:

— In Boston, police receive 45 wife beating reports a day.

— Sixty per cent of the police calls at night in Atlanta are for domestic disturbances, many of them wife beating cases.

— One out of eight of the 19,500 murders in the nation in 1973 involved a spouse killing a spouse, according to the FBI.

— In Pasadena, Calif., a police department spokesman says, "There's quite a bit of it here, but we don't have anybody expert in the area."

"It's a hidden problem," says Allan Rogers, director of the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute. "Many people don't consider this a serious thing."

They say every man has the right to beat his wife once in a while.

One family service agency serving the Boston area reports that it has encountered a few cases of husband-beating as well.

"They're not common, but we've had them," a spokesman said.

On a recent morning, 10 members of Respond sat around a table at a church in Somerville, Mass., and discussed their problem. The fact that they had found each other and were trying to find a solution was a satisfaction to them all.

Most of the women around the table were from the working class. But they said their problem was shared by the wives of judges, doctors and professors.

They did not seem bitter toward their husbands and ex-husbands.

"A lot of the time they do love their wives," said Angela, a large, graying woman, "but they have so much hate inside themselves. Sometimes they really want to hurt themselves, but they can't beat themselves, so they beat us. We are their wives, we are the closest people to them."

"The pressures on men are terrible," another woman said. "You've got to be a super bread winner, a super lover. A woman is often in the dual role of wife and mother, and a mother always forgives — and forgives and forgives."

It's not a question of blame, Miss Luce said. "The point is, no one deserves to be beaten."

Silence Is Not Always Golden

DEAR ABBY: I am able to appreciate the wisdom of your advice to the girl who was reluctant to tell her fiancé that she had undergone an abortion before they met.

The adage "honesty is the best policy" can, in some cases, hold nothing but regret for the wide-eyed innocent who is eager to start married life with no secrets.

As a naive 19-year-old, I confessed to my fiancé that there had been another man in my life before I met him. And I foolishly told him who it was.

Thirty years and four adult children later, my husband still throws this man in my face periodically, even though I have been a devoted and faithful wife.

How much better off we both would have been had I not made that confession.

I hope you will print this for others who might be inclined to tell all. Silence is indeed golden.

IDIOT WAR BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Silence is not always golden. It is sometimes "guilt."

DEAR ABBY: I would like to be cremated when I die. Is that possible? I am a Catholic.

Also how much is involved, moneywise? Please answer in your column. There must be others wanting the same information. Thank you.

WANTS CREMATION

DEAR WANTS: Catholics may now be cremated. The cost will depend upon your funeral director, but it shouldn't cost any more than $300 to go up in smoke.

DEAR ABBY: Venereal disease is now SECOND on the list of communicable diseases. The first is the common cold. Most people don't know that if V.D. goes untreated, it can affect the heart, and spinal cord, and can eventually lead to death.

The National Community Service Corps has established a national hotline that can be called FREE from anywhere in the U.S.A.

It is operated mostly by teenagers who have all the answers concerning V.D., including the symptoms to look for as well as where to go for free examination and treatment in your own community.

The number to call is 1-800-523-1885.

JO-ANNE IN MASS.

DEAR JO-ANNE: I checked it out without disclosing my identity and received straight, accurate and easily understood answers to all the questions I asked about V.D. I highly recommend this service to anyone who has reason to believe that he (or she) has a venereal disease.

CONFIDENTIAL TO G. IN ANCHORAGE: It is said that one does not look behind the door unless he has once stood there, himself. If I were you, I'd watch HIM!

12 other family members. Looking much older than 43, she bends to do the washing, while thinking about what to cook for dinner.

Her chores never end. This is her life, raised as she was in the tradition that has bound her to her home and tasks that would make Western housewives blanch.

The family considers itself lucky. The grandmother is still strong enough to watch the child and do the shopping while the mother works. Without her, the mother would have to stay home and they could not afford even the poor living quarters they have now.

While women in China are on their way to liberation, Hong Kong women have barely made the first step. But even they are finding that doors barred to them in the past are slowly opening.

Many Chinese women in Hong Kong for the first time are daring to question tradition.

Helping them achieve more meaningful lives is the Hong Kong Woman's Council which is sponsoring a conference in October on the theme, "The Hong Kong Woman 1975—Where Is She Now?"

The first of its type in this British Crown Colony, the conference is being organized in conjunction with the United Nations' International Women's Year.

Jane Rice, council secretary, said the conference will examine the stress the family structure goes through as it is increasingly subjected to Western ideas, the changing values applied to love and marriage and the expanding amount of birth control advice and services available.

Eileen Blake, spokeswoman for the conference, said this will be the first opportunity for Hong Kong women from all sectors of society to exchange information and views about their lives.

In a city where a man staying home with the children while the woman holds a fulltime job warrants a newspaper story, a conference focusing on women's identity is a sharp break with the traditional submissive role.

"The conference is not radically feminist, is not militant, and isn't anti-men," Miss Rice said. "It is about women for women, although men will be welcome to attend."

Conference planners hope to draw 500 women and men from all of the colony's interested nationalities, but particularly Chinese.

The conference probably will have no effect upon the weary grandmother's life. But it could lay the cornerstone of a brighter life for her granddaughter.

IN DOWNTOWN GREENVILLE

There Has To Be A Better Way

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten is as puzzled as everyone else about the steadily rising crime rate.

Speaking to the Pitt County Kiwanis Club this week he cited a 30 percent crime rate increase in the state last year.

"I don't know what's the matter," the attorney general confessed. This is true even though North Carolina has some of the harshest penalties of any state in the Union.

Edmisten said citizens should be more willing to appear in court as jurors and witnesses, but he said, "I can't blame people for not going to court."

Left unsaid was anything about the endless rounds of delays that a citizen who voluntarily comes forth to testify faces before a case is finally tried.

A couple of witnesses could easily clear up a downtown purse snatching case, but if a potential witness has ever gone to court in a simple auto accident case, he is likely to be very reluctant to come forth if he sees a crime.

The reason is he might be subpoenaed several times and lose days in court because of delays in bringing the case to trial. He can be subpoenaed for the morning of the trial, sit there all day and then see the case thrown out before he ever testified.

Of course, any witness has to be available to the courts to give his testimony, but there has to be a way to make giving testimony less of an ordeal for a citizen who is uninvolved in the crime and merely doing his duty.

Possibly something might be worked out so that an eyewitness to a crime could give his testimony at the beginning of the trial and then be on his way. Or perhaps depositions could be used more with the witness submitting to questioning by the opposing attorneys and this written record being introduced into the actual court proceedings.

It's easy to say that a witness just has to put up with the inconvenience of going to court, but if a witness simply fails to come forth, then someone is denied justice. There's got to be a better way to make it more convenient for citizens who volunteer to testify in the courts.

Secretaries Run U.S.

(Mr. Buchwald has taken a short respite without our permission. He left behind what he claims is one of his favorite columns.)

WASHINGTON—The thing that hit me when I first came back to the United States was how powerful the American secretary has become in the American way of life.

I hadn't realized it until I tried to make an appointment with a successful college chum who was pulling down around $40,000 a year in a big company (which shall remain nameless as his secretary would never forgive him for speaking to me about her).

After several attempts, I finally managed to get a luncheon date and he apologized profusely for the difficulty I had experienced.

"You don't understand what's going on in the United States," he told me, looking around to make sure no one was listening. "The secretaries are taking over. No one can get through to me if my secretary decides she doesn't want him to."

"She makes all my appointments, she decides when I can take a vacation, if it's safe for me to make a speech in another town. She watches me constantly and I swear I'm scared silly of her."

"Why don't you fire her?" I asked him.

He looked at me incredulously. "You must be out of your mind. You can't

Economy Second Thoughts

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — American investors appear to be having some second thoughts about the optimism they expressed over the economic outlook only a few months ago.

In a turnaround from its 300-point rise from early December through July 15, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials has fallen nearly 90 points in little more than a month.

The Dow was off 2.27 to 790.99 at 12:30 p.m. EDT today after a mild midmorning rally attempt.

Inflation has been one of the key worries of investors recently and the government's announcement that consumer prices rose at a 14.4 per cent annual rate in July cleared the air briefly by putting the anticipated figure on the record.

But, after being up early five points at 11 a.m. EDT, the market began to slip again through the morning.

The slide dragged the closely watched indicator down 14.24 points on Tuesday and another 15.25 Wednesday, leaving it at 793.26 — its first close below 800 since April 11.

Other market measures have shown equal or even sharper pullbacks.

The list of reasons given by market-watchers for the apparent change of heart is substantial:

—Resurgent inflation, as evidenced not only by stepped-up rates of increase in the government's consumer and wholesale price indices, but also by recent boosts in a broad range of basic commodities and materials — like steel, aluminum, wheat and gasoline.

—Rising interest rates, which add to the cost of living and of doing business, and at the same time tend to drain money from the stock market into interest-bearing investments, like

The commencement exercises of the summer school of East Carolina Teachers College, which will be held tomorrow, will bring to a close one of the most successful years in the history of the college.

The session has been marked by an enrollment that exceeds that of any previous year. Not counting any student twice, the enrollment for the regular session was 1096, and for the present summer, 724. The gross enrollment for the twelve months is 2973.

Moreover, the outlook for the coming session is for a still greater enrollment, the number of applications to date being 40 per cent above the number at this time last year. An increase in the number of men students is expected with 135 men's applications received to date.

Greenville Kiwanians turned their attention today toward Wrightsville Beach for the annual district meeting of Kiwanis clubs to be held there tomorrow night at 7:00.

It was said today that numbers of members of the local club were making preparations to attend the affair. Kiwanians from neighboring towns were also planning to attend.

Desires Are Ignored

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—For the first few months in Washington, U. S. Senator Robert Morgan thought he was going mad.

It was, recalls the former North Carolina attorney general, an insane scene, a nightmare, as he got a first-hand introduction to the tyranny of the federal bureaucracy and watched his fellow Democrats in Congress spending the nation broke.

Does he despair?

"Yes, I do despair. And it is time for despair," Morgan says of the state of the nation.

The ills are many: recession-inflation-unemployment; crime which makes people afraid to open a door at night; energy supplies dwindling and moving out of reach in cost; a national debt costing $100 million every day; a federal bureaucracy grown out of all proportion to sane government.

Not Capable

"It disturbs me that the federal government is not capable of running a program—any program... but yet tries to get its hands on everything right down to local schools and welfare offices," Morgan said.

Things are surely out of kilter when one of every 12 Americans is a food stamp recipient; one of five gets a federal check of some sort; government agencies and regulations are so complex that the system is hopelessly bogged down, Morgan said in a recent chat in his Raleigh office.

Congress is on a break which Morgan says the press insists on labeling a vacation, but is really a requirement of law—a time for Congressmen to get home and talk to the people.

Morgan is doing just that, stumping the state almost like a candidate gathering lists of ills and suggested solutions.

And a big part of the problem is that Morgan is probably in the minority of Congressmen doing just that. Many are junketing abroad, vacationing in select spas, remaining splendidly isolated from the severity of problems afoot in the nation.

What is Morgan hearing? Tar Heels are fed up, worried, upset.

"The bureaucracy is there, but the people don't support it. There is a change coming in this country," Morgan believes.

"People are beginning to insist that the federal bureaucracy be eliminated, that the size of federal government be limited," While there is room for debate over how to accomplish that, the senator foresees it happening.

People Ahead

"The people are far ahead of Congress, but the trouble I have found in Washington is that Congressmen don't know what the people are thinking... because they don't go home. This is not a vacation... it was set up by law for us to go home and find out what people are thinking."

"But too many Congressmen stay in Washington, isolated, an

Other Editors Say Mrs. Ford As Paragon

(Greensboro Daily News)

When First Lady Betty Ford spoke her mind the other day on what she would do if she learned daughter Susan were having an "affair," one would think from the response that the White House had just issued a major policy statement on family morals. Pundit William F. Buckley Jr., for one, called her remarks an "act of aggression," as if she had unilaterally declared war on Innocence and Virtue. Others have been rather more blunt in their disapproval.

We appreciate the sentiments of those who think the private discussions of the First Family ought to be kept more private. And we do wish that correspondents like CBS's Morley Safer wouldn't probe so relentlessly into the innermost corners of presidential life, a phenomenon columnist George Will has dubbed the "English Muffin Theory of Government," based on President Ford's exhaustively publicized penchant for fixing his own breakfast.

Be that as it may, in this instance Mr. Safer did ask the question, and Mrs. Ford chose to answer it. It was not the first time Mrs. Ford has spoken her mind on controversial topics, and it is not likely to be the last. So to our way of thinking the matter really boils down to how one chooses to see the wife of the President. If one is prepared to treat what she had to say with all the deference due her husband's position, then by all means let the warning flags be raised and the guns of protest aimed in her direction. If on the other hand (and we subscribe to this other hand), one believes Mrs. Ford ought not to bear the burdens of the presidency, but is entitled to a distinct self, then one ought to be able to take or leave what she has to say. That, after all, is what President Ford chose to do when he heard of his wife's remarks. And so, we might add, did a prudent daughter Susan.

fire your secretary. She knows where all the bodies are buried. She's my espionage agent to let me know what's going on in the company.

"Without the information she picks up from the other secretaries I wouldn't be able to last a week with the company. Besides, frankly, I don't understand what I'm supposed to be doing in the company, and she does."

"I can see your point," I said, watching him drink his third martini.

He stared into the glass. "The only thing is, I wish she wouldn't hate my wife so."

"Does she hate your wife?"

"All secretaries hate their bosses' wives," he said. "I don't think it has anything to do with jealousy. It's just that secretaries think wives are so damn inefficient. They also feel that wives take up too much of their bosses' time. My secretary thinks that I could do a much better job if I didn't have to go home to my wife for dinner. And she believes my weekends with my family are a complete waste of time. She doesn't see how I can live with a woman who doesn't understand the company."

"Also, since my secretary pays all the bills, she thinks my wife is sort of a spendthrift. But to be honest, I'm so browbeaten by my secretary during the day, with her constant nagging and efficiency, that I really look forward to going home to my wife at night. I look on my wife as a sort of mistress, the only one who understands me."

"What does your wife think about your secretary?"

"She afraid of my secretary. My wife has to be nice to her because if she isn't my secretary won't let my wife speak to me. As it is, my secretary only lets her get through 50 percent of the

The INSIDE REPORT

New Danger In Portugal

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

LISBON—Escalation of political violence in the Portuguese revolution now looks probable as a result of a top-level decision, secret until now, to arrest and imprison anti-Communists alleged to be plotting the mounting assaults on Communist party headquarters throughout the country.

The decision, outlined in an exclusive interview Saturday with President Francisco de Costa Gomes, was reached this week by the ruling three-man Directory: President Costa Gomes himself, prime minister and pro-Communist champion Vasco Gonçalves and internal security chief Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, a non-Communist radical leftist. It is a clear victory for the Communist party, desperately trying to recover from damaging public setbacks.

"We can stop this violence," the President, a pleasant, mild-mannered but slightly harried general told us in his office at Belem Palace. "It is not a spon-tanous act of the people. It is done by small groups directed from the outside. They are the responsible ones. We shall imprison these elements. This is the measure we will now take and we will educate our people about these groups."

President Costa Gomes fully agreed that this decision is a "most important" one, but the fact that these "elements" are allegedly controlled by anti-revolutionary forces, he said, makes them "not only enemies of the country but also dangerous."

Such mailed-fist security measures fly in the face of repeated and credible claims by Mario Soares's large Socialist party that the 30 or 40 widely scattered attacks on Communist party offices in the north are spontaneous.

The Directory's decision was obviously approved by the advisory Armed Forces Council (now shorn of its most powerful anti-Communist members). If carried out, it will probably lead to increasingly violent confrontations with the Socialists and the moderate Popular Democrats.

Although strongly anti-Communist, Otelo Carvalho is violently opposed to any semblance of Western-style political parties and organized parliamentary government, which is Soares's objective. Thus, with a common enemy—a pluralistic, socialist form of government—the Communists and the security chief seem to have made a devil's pact, with the President either compelled or willing to go along.

The impending round-up and jailing of these "small groups" of anti-Communists is the latest proof of the Communist party's humiliating decline in revolutionary Portugal. Party leader Alvaro Cunhal apparently hopes that rising anti-Communist passions will get out of hand as a result of the Draconian security measures now planned, leading to bloody confrontations, more chaos and possibly a new lease for the Communists.

But the result could be quite different: heightened civil conflict splitting both the army and security forces wide open in a military apparatus whose true loyalties are unknown throughout its ranks.

The President, who received us alone and spoke clearly without an interpreter (carefully writing down our

Bible Still Best Selling Book

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the cold, hard, material world of book selling, there is nothing like the Bible. The Word sells like nothing else. It has no equal, year after year.

A best seller, according to the American Booksellers Association, might be purchased by as few as 25,000 buyers or up to more than one million, depending upon the manner of selling, the subject matter, the type of cover.

In hardcover, "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" sold more than one million copies. In softcover, the current best seller is "Jaws," with sales of more than 8.5 million.

But, assets a publisher of Bibles, sales of Old and New Testaments this year might total 15 million copies through retail outlets. That is the estimate of Collins-World of Cleveland, and its parent, William Collins Sons & Co., Ltd.

The Bible business is much larger than that, however. Another 25 million Bibles and New Testaments will be distributed by Bible societies and various organizations who contract with publishers for special editions.

According to the American Bible Society, a modern language "paraphrased" edition, "Ken Taylor's Living Bible," has sold 18 million copies in less than five years. It is published by Tyndale House and distributed by Doubleday.

The Bible Society says that since 1966 it has distributed around the world some 49 million copies of its modern English New Testament, "Good News for Modern Man." Next year it will come out with a complete Bible, "The Good News Bible."

While it is true that many of these copies are given away free — the American Bible Society says it has never made a penny on the sales of Scriptures, selling instead at cost — this is big business.

The Gideons, the organization of Christians whose mission is to place Bibles in hotel and motel rooms, must contract — with National Publishing, Philadelphia — for its editions even though it never sells them at retail.

Nevertheless, there is a tremendous demand from people who are willing to pay for their copies, said Peter Lloyd-Taylor, executive vice president of Collins-World, which together with its parent claims to be the world's biggest Bible publisher.

"Surveys of some religious bookstores show a 30 to 40 per cent sales increase this year," he said, attributing it to these factors:

—"In worrisome times, people look for answers and for comfort. Many people find both in the Bible."

—The growing evangelical movement, "which flows across denominational lines."

—An awareness and interest by the general public in so-called self-help and self-improvement books, which dominate both the hardcover and paperback book lists.

"The Bible is the No. 1 self-help book."

BLESSEDNESS AND HAPPINESS

There can be little doubt that the thing most people seek in life above everything else is happiness. Under these circumstances it is surprising that the noun "happiness" occurs nowhere in the Bible. The adjective "happy" is seldom used: Jesus made use of it only once: "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them" (John 13:17).

The Bible is more interested in blessedness than it is in happiness. Happiness is defined in the dictionary as "a pleasurable experience... that springs from the gratification of desires..." It comes from the word "hap," which means casual occurrence or chance.

Blessedness, on the other hand, is a spiritual state. It is derived from an Anglo-Saxon word which means "to redder with blood." Blessedness, therefore, is the inner satisfaction which people get as a result of sacrifice.

Happiness has its place in life, but blessedness—about which our Lord spoke so often—has a higher place. Happiness is of this world; blessedness, of heaven.

Jury Set To Begin Deliberations In Kent State Shooting Damages

By CLINT SWIFT
Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Jurors in the civil damages trial stemming from the 1970 Kent State University shootings prepared to begin deliberations today after being placed under guard of U.S. marshals.

U.S. District Court Judge Don J. Young said he would define the issues and explain the law before sending the panel of six men and six women away for deliberations. The families of four students shot to death and the nine persons wounded in the incident are asking for $46 million in damages. The shootings came as Ohio National Guard troops tried to break up a campus anti-war rally May 4, 1970. Gov. James A. Rhodes and 29 present or former guardsmen are the defendants.

Young ordered round-the-clock protection for the jury Thursday after one juror was assaulted and threatened. Young refused to give details of the assault but said later the juror had been physically abused.

His announcement of the assault came at a break in final arguments, during which lawyers for the shooting victims claimed no defense had been offered except in an attempt to limit the victims with civil disorders that rocked Kent for three nights before the shootings.

Attorneys for the defendants said the plaintiffs failed to prove, as they said they would in opening statements 14 weeks ago, that Rhodes superseded local law enforcement authorities with the troops and that guardsmen fabricated a claim of self defense after the incident.

The troops were ordered to Kent 36 hours before the shootings when city officials decided they could not control demonstrations sparked by then-President Richard M. Nixon's announcement of the U.S. military incursion into Cambodia.

Reports conflicted, but court sources agreed the juror assaulted was one of the men on the panel and that he had received the threat in a face-to-face confrontation.

The sources said the juror was told either he would be killed, his family harmed or his house blown up if he did not vote a certain way. The sources would not reveal which way.

No one would identify the juror further, but none of the panel members showed signs of physical abuse. The sources said they did not know whether the assault constituted a beating or just a shove.

Sources said that the assault was reported to the FBI and was relayed to Young.

Cycle Rates Given Big Cut

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Liability insurance rates for motorcycles were cut by 60 to 85 per cent in an order announced this morning by state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

At a news conference, Ingram ordered that insurance companies charge $17 a year for minimum liability insurance for motorcycles with engines of less than 324 cubic centimeters (cc). For motorcycles with 324 cc and larger engines, the basic rate will be $38 a year, he said. The new rates take effect Sept. 2.

Now, motorcyclists pay at least $43.24 a year with basic rates going as high as $243.20, Ingram said.

Ingram also promised to reveal the new insurance rates for auto liability coverage "early next week."

There are three factors behind the change. First, the base rates will be set by engine size. Now, gross weight of the motorcycle is used to determine the base rate.

Secondly, insurance rates for motorcycles now are computed as a percentage of auto insurance rates. Ingram's order requires that rates be based on claims experience of motorcycles, without regard to auto rates.

The greatest reduction in rates comes for male motorcyclists under the age of 25. Ingram's order implements a new law to take effect Sept. 2 that forbids the use of age or sex as factors in setting insurance rates.

The current $243.20 rate is for a male under 25 who drives a heavy motorcycle. Ingram said current area and use classifications can drive that basic rate up to about $280 a year. Because of the new law, "we are now able to make this change and reduce these excessive rates," he said.

"An even more important reason for these changes is the fact that the insurance companies have been paying out less than 20 cents out of every premium dollar in benefits to the consumer," he said.

"I didn't realize secretaries were that powerful," I said sympathetically.
"You don't know the half of it. Look, if your secretary catches a cold and is out two days, you might as well shoot yourself. But if your wife catches pneumonia, all you have to do is come to the office and tell your secretary to notify Blue Cross."

—Doubts about the economy's ability to mount a sustained recovery from the recession, especially if inflation disrupts the spending plans of businesses and consumers.
—The much-publicized financial problems of New York City, and their potential impact on all the investors who own the city's securities, including the country's biggest banks.
Many market analysts insist that the declines of late can still be looked on as a normal period of retrenchment — a "correction" in Wall Street parlance — after the prolonged and powerful rally of the first six months this year.
"All year long we've been expecting a correction," observed Kenneth W. Johnson, research director at the Minneapolis-based brokerage firm Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood.
"And the longer it was put off, the larger it was likely to be."
It is also widely argued that the market will have to go down a good deal more before anyone can conclude that investors have given up on their hopes for a rebound from the recession.

Thus, Cunhal's fractional-minority Communist party, exploiting its powers inside the government to offset what it has lost outside the government among the Portuguese people, seems to have gained time—and a new get-tough policy with bloody implications for the Portugal revolution.

Wild Blue Yonder

It's just an old toy—yet in his imagination this boy can climb to supersonic heights with it.
In his fancy, he is at the controls, soaring high above the earth. One step more, and he will pilot a rocket to the moon.
It may well be that these dreams, moon and all, will someday become reality for this young man. Meantime, there is countless wonder and joy in his boyish fancies.
There should be countless wonder and joy, too, in his church experience. Non-churchgoers are apt to think that religion is a dull, dour, fearsome matter. Rather, it should be one of the most glorious parts of life.
Look deeply into your own religion. Go to the church of your choice this Sunday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a modest gain today with a boost from hopes for an easing in upward pressure on interest rates.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 1.80 at 753.49, and gainers led losers by about a 2-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was quiet. The spark for the upswing, analysts said, was a sizeable drop in the nation's money supply, as shown in weekly statistics issued by the Federal Reserve after the close Thursday.

The data gave rise to hopes that the Fed would not need to take any more credit-tightening steps of the kind that have contributed to the rise of money rates this summer.

The Fed regards a less-than-rapid growth in the money supply as essential to controlling inflation.

With all that, however, the Dow was up only about 4 points at its early peak before it began settling back gain. In the week's first four sessions the closely watched average fell 34.95 points.

Northwest Airlines, the most active issue on the NYSE, was unchanged at 19 1/2 in a 100,000-share block trade.

Hewlett-Packard lost 1 1/2 to 91 in active trading after a 6 1/2 slide Thursday, when the company reported a drop in quarterly earnings.

The NYSE's composite index was up .20 at 44.42 after the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 13 to 82.86.

James...

Carolyn James—testified in his behalf before defense attorney Marvin Blount declined to put more of them on the stand, saying their testimony would only be repetitious.

Mrs. James told the court that her son "was very proud of his job and very dedicated to it."

In an effort to explain his actions in breaking into the store, Mrs. James said "I think it was because he wanted so many things to please his wife and children," and indicated that the former officer was "over head in debt."

She emphasized, "I definitely think he's learned his lesson."

Blount, in urging a suspended sentence for the former officer told the court the "primary consideration in sentencing is rehabilitation," and said James "is rehabilitating himself."

The attorney said, too, "He will bear the burden of these charges the rest of his life... his children will... his mother and father (former Pitt County Recorder Court Judge Dink James) will."

Blount added, "This man is human, as we all are," and indicated that "every person... at some time in life" is subject to make a mistake.

Judge Lanier, after hearing the character witnesses tendered by the defense, said in his opinion James "is along the way... far along the way toward rehabilitation." He added that although law enforcement officers are in a higher position of trust than the average person, "I still don't think sending him to prison would accomplish any reasonable purpose."

"I do think that he's got to be punished in some way," Judge Lanier emphasized, prior to pronouncing the judgment.

Support Important

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — American Legion support for a "constitutional, democratic form of government, law and order, Americanism and patriotism" is as important now as ever, says Harry G. Wiles, the organization's new president.

But Wiles, a 29-year legionnaire and former national vice commander, said Thursday the belief that legion members only get together for bingo, pancake breakfasts and other good times is "entirely a thing of the past."

Legion members have shed that stereotype and are developing a new image, he said.

"One of our major goals this year is the cancer research fund drive," he said. "We hope to raise up to $5 million."

Wiles, a 59-year-old attorney and one-time candidate for governor of Kansas, was elected without opposition Thursday by delegates to the legion's 57th annual convention. He will lead an organization of 2.7 million legionnaires and more than 900,000 auxiliary members.

Colleges Should Not Be Exempt From Discrimination Prohibitions

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Colleges and universities should not be exempt from federal prohibitions on discrimination against women and minority group members, an official of the University of Notre Dame says.

Howard Glickstein, director of Notre Dame's Center for Civil Rights, spoke Wednesday as the Labor Department opened hearings on the effectiveness of affirmative action guidelines for colleges and universities which have federal contracts.

Glickstein said colleges and universities could be expected to be successful at attracting women and minority group members to their faculties and staffs because of their access to experts in the social sciences, statistics and related fields.

Glickstein, a former general counsel with the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, said the schools have a dismal compliance record and that the federal government has ignored its enforcement responsibilities.

He cited statistics indicating that in 1968, the proportions of black and women faculty members on college and university campuses were 2.2 per cent and 19.1 per cent respectively. For 1973, the percentages had reached 2.9 per cent and 20 per cent.

He rejected assertions that setting goals for hiring more women and minorities leads to reverse discrimination. "When we find minorities and women subjecting white males to the state-imposed enforced codes of discrimination that white males have used to keep women and minorities in their place, then it is time to start talking about reverse discrimination," he said.

But Dr. John Hicks, executive assistant to the president of Purdue University, disagreed and blamed the personnel shortage on past discriminatory practices in higher education. But even with the need to correct past mistakes the universities themselves should not be pressured into minority hiring, he said.

"Remember, the basic purpose of universities is teaching and not employing blacks, women or the handicapped," he said.

Launch New Assault On Taming The Plains

By ERIC KRAMER
Associated Press Writer
LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Farmers armed with modern irrigation equipment have launched a new assault in man's age-old battle to tame the Great Plains.

Approximately 4.5 million acres have come under irrigation in the plains states in the last 10 years, bringing the total to 22.6 million acres. Officials estimate irrigation adds roughly $11 billion annually to the Great Plains economy.

Hundreds of millions of bushels of grain have been added to annual world food production. But the water, placed in the ground over a period of thousands of years, is being used faster than nature can replace it.

Now the farmers are winning — at least temporarily. The plains are being attacked with center pivot irrigation systems. They look like giant lawn sprinklers with a single arm a quarter of a mile long and pump water from underground wells and water supplies. The pivots can irrigate hillier land than regular systems.

Satellite photographs indicate the number of center pivot systems in Nebraska increased from 2,713 in 1972 to 6,500 in 1974.

There are now more than 45,000 wells sucking at the state's water table. The U.S. Geological Survey's computer projections say that wells in the Big and Little Blue River basins could be dry by 2022.

A Kansas Water Resources Board report says, "Large areas of western Kansas are mining their ground water, and even at present rates of withdrawal, water shortages will occur in the near future."

In Oklahoma, irrigation has taken its toll on the water tables of the Panhandle and Caddo County. "I don't think they will ever run dry, but it will eventually reach the point where it is not economically feasible to continue pumping water from the deep areas," said Forrest Nelson of the Oklahoma Water Resources Board.

In Texas, a Water Development Board report says only 37 per cent of the water under the High Plains will be left by 2020.

There are efforts under way to solve the problem. The Nebraska Legislature passed a law this year in an attempt to regulate the use of underground water; two ground water management districts have been formed in Kansas to conserve water and search for ways to recharge the water table.

Farmers are trying to justify the cost of bringing Mississippi River water to the High Plains of Texas and Oklahoma is studying a plan to take water from the wetter eastern portion of the state to the dryer western area.

The Las Vegas Hilton, where Presley had been appearing, said the physician had asked Presley to bow out of the engagement because of "a fatigued state that has developed in recent weeks."

Presley had been scheduled to appear through Labor Day.

Furman Returns To Fundamentals In '75

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)
Last year, as the Southern Conference football season rolled around, a lot of people were picking the Furman Paladins to be the team to beat.

Carolina on the ropes, losing only a last-minute touchdown, 15-12.
But there, their troubles began. The downhearted Paladins lost four of their six remaining games.

"We have experience at every position. We don't have to depend on freshmen, but we do have 7-10 who might push for a slot," he said.
The entire offensive backfield returns, and most of the offensive line. The biggest losses were in the defensive secondary, and this is perhaps the biggest questionmark area.

Except for one position, the line returns intact, giving Furman even more reason to be happy. John Forbes returns at left guard, while Tim Kennedy and Larry Stewart, a converted tackle, are top candidates for the right side. Jeff Holcomb and Mike Gibbs appear set at tackle, but sophomore Ken Cadle, who saw a lot of playing time last year, could knock one of them out. Robbie Caldwell returns at center, where he played every game last year, but is getting competition from John Graham.

Simmons, a sophomore, and transfer Angus Poole are both excellent tight ends, giving the Paladins this option. They also have Tommy Southard, who switched from defensive back, and Kenny Middleton and Paul Carapellotti at wide receiver.
The defensive line is expected to be another strong point, with experience at every position. "For the first time since I've been here," Baker said, "we have experience at every position."

The tackles are deep in lettermen. Tony Cox is a two-year starter, but Bruce Williamson and Bobby Church are challenging him. Mike Sanders adds more back-up help. Frank Moses is apparently solid at middle guard. At the ends, Tommy Marshall returns to one side, while Dolphus Carter moves into the lone vacant position left by graduation.

Larry Anderson returns at one of the linebacker slots, giving the team an All-Conference calibre leader here. He was the leading tackler on the team last year. Steve Wilson returns on the other side.
Then, in the secondary, two valuable players were lost from the nation's third leading pass defensive unit. Mark Mosher, one of the cornerbacks, and free safety Curtis Boyd return, making it a partial loss. Top candidates to move into the other spots are transfer Mark

Gordon, and sophomores Rick Perry, Mark Bowers, Larry Kuykendall and Rick Erickson. Freshmen could also move in here.
With such experience, however, Furman cannot be overlooked. Baker knows what it's like to be a pre-season pick however, and isn't going to count any victories until games are played.
Furman's schedule: Sept. 13, Tennessee Tech; Sept. 20, at Richmond; Sept. 27, Appalachian State; Oct. 4, VMI; Oct. 11, at Presbyterian; Oct. 18, Holy Cross; Oct. 25, at William & Mary; Nov. 1, at East Carolina; Nov. 8, Western Carolina; Nov. 15, at The Citadel; Nov. 22, at Wofford.

Cleveland Browns One Big Question Mark For Gregg

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer
KENT, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Browns are a question mark and no one knows it better than new coach Forrest Gregg.
The former Green Bay Packers all-pro offensive tackle has taken the reins of a club which in 1974 had its first losing season since 1956, finishing last in the American Conference's tough Central Division with a 4-10 record.
"We've got our work cut out for us," Gregg said when he was named as the fourth head coach in the history of the Cleveland franchise.
Now, four weeks into the pre-season with a 1-1 record, Gregg knows even better what he faces.

"We've got to have improvement in nearly every area," he explained with a grave smile. I'd say we've come along pretty well and we have progressed some in the areas where we need it the most.
"Over-all, we're pretty well on schedule," Gregg added.
The Browns' defense ranked 23rd among the 26 teams in the National Football League last season. But the addition of several rookies and maturation of some of the team's young veterans could turn it around.
Defensive tackles Jerry Sherk and Walter Johnson, middle linebacker Bob Babich and strong safety Van Green, all veterans, give the Browns proven strength up the middle.
And defensive line coach Dick Modzelewski is sold on rookie defensive ends Mack Mitchell and Stan Lewis. Mitchell is 6-foot-7 1/2, 250-pounds and Lewis 6-4, 246, and both could earn starting positions.
Rookie linebacker Dick Ambrose and first-year cornerback Tony Peters also could work their way into starting roles, giving the Browns a big boost.

running backs and receivers and the settling of Mike Phipps or young Brian Sipes at quarterback to remedy that.
Phipps, a five-year veteran from Purdue, has the starting job but is being pushed by third-year man Sipes. Both have strong accurate arms and will have the likes of veteran tight end Milt Morin and former New England Patriots wide receiver Reggie Rucker to throw to.
Fleet rookie wide receiver Willie Miller has been the most impressive end so far this season, but the Browns' quarterbacks can also choose among Billy Lefear (moved from running back), rookies Willie Armstead and Oscar Roan and 1974 starter Steve Holden.
The running attack is led by swift Greg Pruitt, a dangerous and exciting runner, and veteran fullback Ken Brown. Rookie Larry Poole, another speedster, looks like the best bet to help Cleveland's attack in a hurry.
Injuries have hampered several of the Browns, including Rucker and Holden. And veteran free safety Thom Darden has been lost for the year with a knee injury.
The Browns should find out very quickly if their rebuilding hopes have any merit. They open the regular season with games against Cincinnati, Minnesota and Pittsburgh.

Pirate Pads Pop

The popping of pads were heard for the first time yesterday on the East Carolina football practice fields, as the Pirates held their first full dress practices. It produced both good and bad results.
"I was really, really pleased with the way some of our young people approached the game," said coach Pat Dye. "I'm talking primarily of freshmen and sophomores. Their aggressiveness was impressive and there was obvious improvement over the spring. I think we have four young linebackers who can do the job. They aren't winners yet, but are good football players. That's Harold Randolph, Larry Paul, Emerson Pickett and Harold Fort.
"Cary Godette made some big plays, but the best thing about Cary is that he did not favor his knee."
The dismal part surrounded the offense. All-Southern Conference tackle Ricky Bennett has been lost indefinitely to the team. Bennett injured a ligament in his knee during the afternoon practice.
"It's a real blow at this time to lose Ricky," said Dye. "We not only lost a fine football player but a fine leader."
The surprising thing in practice was how the defense handled the offense, particularly up front.
"I think our offense has been reading the press clippings too much," surmised Dye. "They've got some work to do."
One other note from practice: punter Gill Job was dismissed from the club yesterday by coach Dye, for what was termed as "failure to display a winning attitude."
East Carolina University head football coach Pat Dye will be featured on WRQR-FM Sunday evening.
Dye, in his second year as head coach, can be heard from 8-10 p.m.

Marathon Game Starts Tonight

For most of the summer, almost 30 teams went at it tooth and nail in the various softball leagues in the Greenville Recreation System. This weekend, they'll be at it once more, but this time in the name of charity.
The area's first Softball Marathon will be held starting at 6 p.m. this evening at Evans Park. The "game" will last 26 hours and involve most of the area's local softball devotees.
The teams will be divided into equal shifts from four to six hours each to provide equal play and rest times.
The Softball Marathon is being sponsored by the Greenville Recreation Department in an effort to raise funds for special programs for exceptional people in Greenville. These special programs provide recreational opportunities for the mentally retarded, blind, the elderly, the physically handicapped, and others.

Geiberger Leads TPC

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "It was," smiled Al Geiberger, "sort of a funny round." Not funny ha, ha. Funny weird.
He missed greens, visited bunkers, romped through the wilderness, muffed short putts, explored the "boondocks" and shot a remarkable four-under-par 66 Thursday.
He tamed Colonial's terrors with birdies on four of his five closing holes and seized the first round lead in the $250,000 Tournament Players Golf Championship.
"I was very lucky," he grinned.
The lanky sharpshooter speared an 18-foot putt at the last hole to sweep past Jack Nicklaus, Hale Irwin and Bob Dickson in the race for the $50,000 grand prize.
That trio was in at 67.
Nicklaus, the defending champion, finished dramatically four hours before Geiberger and held the lead alone most of the sultry, serene afternoon.
Big Kac knifed through the par 35-35-70 Colonial course like a killer shark, slashing four shots from par through 16 flawless holes.
He squandered a bit of glory in a jungle at the 17th hole, taking a double bogey six, then struck back with a near eagle at the 434-yard 18th green for a sparkling 67.
"I played a fine round of golf," said Nicklaus somewhat quizzically. "I really did."
Irwin, playing with Geiberger and Arnold Palmer, also committed but one major miscue, and it cost him a share of the lead. He was four under par at the time.
"I tried to play smart golf by hitting a three wood off the tee at No. 6 but I smarted it right into the left rough," he confessed. It cost him a bogey.
Dickson, admittedly floundering about in "quite an off year," said he entered the first round totally without confidence. That his game suddenly and somewhat mysteriously crystallized.
"I was playing with Lale Douglass and Dave Stockton and they said they've never seen me swing so smoothly," Dickson said.

Tony C. Calls Career Again

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
NAHANT, Mass. (AP) — "My body is falling apart," said one-time Red Sox slugger Tony Conigliaro as he retired from baseball to become a television sportscaster.
Conigliaro, whose second comeback attempt was marred by injuries, weak hitting and a demotion to the minors, said Thursday he will go to work next month for WJAR-TV in Providence, R.I.
"I have had just about enough baseball," said the 30-year-old former star. It was the latest turn in a career of ups and downs that appeared to be finished in 1967 when he was hit in the head by a pitched ball.
Conigliaro's latest comeback try with the Red Sox came this year. But after going through spring training, he played in just 21 big league games before his release June 16. Then he went to the Red Sox' International League farm club in Pawtucket, R.I., where his batting average was a dismal .208.
"Whenever I go out on the field, I want to give 100 per cent," he said. "When my body will give only 50 per cent, I think it's time to retire."

Conigliaro said he was hampered with a string of minor injuries this year. On top of that were the long bus trips required in the minor leagues and the realization that the Red Sox, now seven games ahead of Baltimore in the American League East Division, just would not be needing him.
"Of today, I am no longer a Red Sox," he said at a news conference at his nightclub in Nahant. "I have no regrets."
Conigliaro started with the Red Sox in 1964, and his future looked bright the next year when, at age 20, he slammed in 32 home runs, leading the league.
He was a power in the team's successful pennant drive in 1967.

More Police Units May Follow San Francisco's Strike Example

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's policemen, buoyed by the apparent success of the San Francisco police strike, will be more likely to participate in similar labor action in the future, the president of the International Conference of Police Associations says.

New York City policeman and now head of the 180,000-member association of police unions, said in an interview Thursday that there may be numerous police strikes in the future unless some sort of federal law is approved to allow collective bargaining by public employes.

Edward J. Kiernan, once a New York City policeman and now head of the 180,000-member association of police unions, said in an interview Thursday that there may be numerous police strikes in the future unless some sort of federal law is approved to allow collective bargaining by public employes.

San Francisco police tentatively agreed Thursday to accept an offer of a 13.5 per cent pay hike, consisting of 6.5 per cent retroactive to July 1 and a 7 per cent increase beginning Oct. 15. Most of the city's 1,935 policemen walked off the job Monday.

The ICPA represents police groups in every major United States city with a population of more than 500,000, including San Francisco, Kiernan said.

Miners Call Wildcat Strike

By BOB ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A wildcat walkout by more than 30,000 coal miners in three states continued today, with many of the strikers planning to mass here to protest what they claim is interference by the federal courts in union affairs.

At the heart of the 13-day-old strike is concern by miners over judicial processes and what they contend is the slow implementation of new grievance procedures.

ECU Med School Gets Memorial

A financial pledge totaling $50,000 has been made to the East Carolina University School of Medicine to establish the McLean Memorial Fund.

McLean Memorial Scholarships is a special four member advisory committee. The members include: State Senator Kenneth C. Royall Jr. of Durham; Isaac O'Hanlon, President of Antex Exterminators, Fayetteville; Charles S. Edwards, N.C. Dept. of Labor Consultant, Raleigh; and State Agriculture Commissioner James A. Graham, also of Raleigh.

Miners argue that coal companies refuse to arbitrate disagreements promptly, preferring instead to rush into federal court when workers strike.

But Hall and other federal judges have continued to issue temporary restraining orders against strikers. The most recent injunction came Thursday at the request of the Kanawha Coal Operators Association.

The strike began Aug. 11 in Logan and Boone counties when 34,000 miners walked off the job over the firing of two miners.

The strike escalated with complaints by miners that grievance procedures in their 1974 contract were not being implemented quickly enough.

It worked its way Thursday into Pike County, Ky., and about 1,200 men joined sympathy walkouts in two southeastern Ohio counties.

Picketing has closed most mines in Districts 17 and 29, covering West Virginia's southern half, and has idled operations at three Southern Ohio Coal Co. mines in Meigs and Vinton counties in Ohio.

The coal industry says the walkout is cutting production by 300,000 tons a day in West Virginia and 100,000 tons per day in Kentucky. No estimate was available for Ohio.

The miners say an opinion issued Aug. 11 by U.S. District Court Judge K.K. Hall supports their point.

"The court finds it distasteful being placed in the position of being the policeman or disciplinarian for the coal companies all the time...." Hall wrote a coal company attorney.

"I think you might make your client and perhaps some of their associates aware of the fact that this court has just about reached the limit. If this continues this way, every coal company will come in every morning for their morning order from the court."

Leaflets requesting the same demands have been circulated throughout the coalfields this week.

"They're not going back to work until these demands are presented to them," said one miner at the meeting.

San Francisco Police, Firemen Return To Work As Demands Met

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police and firemen were back on the job today after Mayor Joseph L. Alioto invoked emergency powers and granted their salary demands, stunning the city's board of supervisors.

The mayor's action ended a four-day-old police walkout. Firemen joined the strike Wednesday.

The settlement, hammered out during early morning negotiations between Alioto and strike leaders, was approved overwhelmingly by members of the Police Officers Association and Fire Fighters Local 798.

The supervisors, who administer San Francisco's combined city-county government, turned the agreement down in a 9 to 0 vote. They complained that Alioto was usurping the board's power and pushing through an agreement the city could not afford.

No Direct U.S.-Cuba Trade Yet

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 14-year-old ban against direct U.S. trade with Cuba was left untouched by the State Department's decision to allow foreign subsidiaries of American companies to sell to Cuba.

The State Department's announcement Thursday that foreign subsidiaries may resume trading with Cuba came three weeks after the United States joined with 15 Latin American countries in voting an end to the hemispheric embargo against Cuba.

Although the United States retains its prohibition against direct trade with the island, one U.S. official said the decision announced Thursday may help accelerate movement toward a more normal relationship with Havana.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said lifting the ban on sales to Cuba by American firms operating in third countries "really doesn't relate to bilateral relations with Cuba. It relates more to American relations with other inter-American countries."

Asked about President Ford's view of U.S. relations with Cuba, Nessen said there would be no advantage to permanent antagonism between the two countries but that any change in bilateral relations would depend on Cuba's attitude.

Citing outstanding issues between the two nations, he said it was impossible to predict when work might be done on resolving them.

The State Department announcement brought expressions of criticism from Cuban exiles in the Miami area.

Juanita Castro, sister and avowed enemy of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, said, "It is disappointing that the leaders of the free world cannot learn from history when dealing with the Communists. We feel betrayed by the United States once again."

However, the move was hailed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., as a "major step forward on the path toward renewed relations" between Cuba and the United States. McGovern, who visited Cuba earlier this summer, commended Ford for taking the step.

Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y., chairman of a House panel considering legislation to lift the Cuban embargo completely, said the State Department's announcement "leaves the United States in an even more ridiculous posture than before" because "goods manufactured abroad under American auspices now can be sold to Cuba but goods produced by American workers still cannot."

He said his subcommittee hopes to approve the embargo-lifting bill by the end of September.

Proposing Ban On Weather War

By DORIAN FALK
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are proposing a ban on an undeveloped method of warfare that has caused some public anxiety but appears to offer no threat to the world for years to come.

It is called "environmental modification techniques," which means manipulation of the structure of the earth, plant life, air and outer space to cause earthquakes, floods and changes in the weather, climate, ocean currents and other ecological factors.

The subject was first raised by former President Richard M. Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev at their July 1974 meeting. They decided experts from their governments should meet for a close look at the matter.

The United Nations General Assembly picked up the idea and referred it to the Geneva Disarmament Conference. Brezhnev and President Ford discussed it again last Nov. 23 in Vladivostok.

On Thursday, the American and Soviet co-chairmen of the disarmament conference, Joseph Martin Jr. and Alexei Roshchin, presented a joint draft convention to ban environmental warfare.

Proposed as a basis for negotiations and likely to be accepted in many ways, the draft contains no prohibition against development of environmental-changing techniques for either military or civilian purposes. Only their "hostile use" against another country would be banned.

Roshchin told a news conference that the Soviet government would continue to develop such methods for peaceful purposes. Martin said a ban on research and development would be ineffective.

Both told the news conference the treaty would ban the defoliation of woods and fields which the United States employed extensively in Vietnam. But they cited no other specific techniques that present a potential threat to peace.

Weather experts generally agree that the world's climate can be changed only by such drastic means as changing ocean currents or melting the polar ice caps. These would require supplies of energy that no one can reliably estimate and that probably do not even exist today.

Farmville Is Steady

FARMVILLE—The volume of sales on the Farmville Tobacco Market was heavy Thursday with leaf and cutter grades accounting for most of the sales.

Primings and lugs accounted for approximately 30 percent of the volume. Nondescript grades were about the same as Wednesday. Prices continued steady as compared with other sales days this week.

The top price paid was $1.16 per pound for some leaf grades and Stabilization receipts amounted to 23.92 percent of sales.

The market sold 739,591 pounds of leaf for $730,496, for an average of $98.77 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 11,482,992 pounds for $10,580,999, for an average of $92.23 per hundred pounds.

Hartford To Challenge N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The Hartford Insurance Co. is challenging the constitutionality of North Carolina's medical malpractice insurance system in court.

A suit filed Wednesday in Wake County Superior Court charges that it is unconstitutional for the system to force the 250-plus general liability insurance companies in the state to sell medical malpractice coverage.

A new plan designed to guarantee coverage of doctors, nurses and hospitals requires general liability companies operating in North Carolina to sell the malpractice insurance if it is requested. But companies can reinsure with a pool that includes all companies required to sell malpractice insurance. In that way, losses incurred by insuring bad risks are shared by all.

The state's system is in no imminent danger since the suit does not ask for immediate action to block its operation. But the suit could overturn the system.

A spokesman for the Hartford, Conn. based firm said Thursday that his company considered the state's system "confiscatory."

John Daly, a public relations spokesman, said the system would make his company lose money on malpractice business.

The suit says Hartford is now trying to withdraw from selling malpractice insurance, saying it has had "enormous" underwriting losses in recent years in that kind of insurance.

Daly also warned that some other company operations, such as homeowners insurance, could be affected. And he said the system might jeopardize the solvency of some of the Hartford group's smaller companies.

North Carolina Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, the man who proposed the system, had no comment on the suit Thursday. He called a news conference for Friday to discuss the suit and other insurance questions.

The companies are worried that Ingram won't allow the rate to be as high as they say will be needed for them to earn a profit.

Hartford, in its suit, says that in rate proceedings Ingram "will not act as a quasi-judicial adjudicator but will act as an advocate for rates that are not reasonable or adequate and...any such proceedings will be inherently unfair to plaintiffs and deprive them...of due process of law."

Charge Two In Theft Jobless Rate 8.9%

A juvenile and a 17-year-old were arrested yesterday afternoon on larceny charges following investigation of the theft of a pocketbook from a car parked near the intersection of Grande and Dickinson Avenues.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Barbara Mosley of 1611 Longwood Dr. reported the theft about 2:25 p.m. She told officers that two boys took her handbag from the front seat of her car.

An employee of College View Cleaners on Grande Avenue stopped the two and recovered the pocketbook, which contained an estimated $25 in cash.

Officers, at 2:40 p.m., located Gary Woolen, 17 of 301 Paris Ave. and a juvenile and charged them with larceny in connection with the case.

Break-In Nets $300

Police are investigating a break-in reported early this morning at 802 Willow St. in which an estimated $300 worth of merchandise was taken, Chief Glenn Cannon said.

According to Cannon, George Mansy reported that he returned home about 3:41 and discovered someone in his dwelling. He left to call police and when he returned, the intruder had left.

Reported missing was a coat, a turntable, several record albums and five wine glasses all valued at about $300.

Charge Two In Theft Jobless Rate 8.9%

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Employment Security Commission reported Thursday that the estimated 231,000 workers unemployed in North Carolina in July is the highest mid-summer total ever recorded in the Tar Heel state.

The state's unemployment rate in July, 8.9 per cent, was almost double the jobless rate of the same month last year. But it was lower than the 9.2 per cent level of June. The commission said the national rate for July was 8.7 per cent.

The dollars paid eligible workers in July under the regular state unemployment insurance program was $24.1 million. Thus far, the total for 1975 is $227.3 million, or nearly eight times as much as for the corresponding period of 1974.

Most major industries had fewer workers than they did one year earlier, the commission said, and textiles were at the top of the list with 26,700 fewer. Construction was next with 8,200 fewer, followed by electrical machinery, down 12,600 and furniture, down 8,200.

The three industries with employment levels higher in July, 1975 than in July 1974 were tobacco, up 3,300; government, up 14,100.

Oceans cover 71 per cent of the earth's surface, yet produce only one per cent of man's food.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. * Asterisk denotes warranted car.

Big Eddie Gets Early Premier

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new television season doesn't begin officially until Sept. 7, but CBS is getting a head start by premiering a new comedy series, "Big Eddie," Saturday night.

The idea is to give us a chance to catch the program now—Saturday 8-8:30 p.m. EDT—before the crunch of new shows starts.

Not a bad idea. Except in this case, it's no favor they're doing us.

Wheeler Has A New Flight

Wheeler Airlines today announced plans to begin commuter air service between Raleigh-Durham and Wilmington in April, 1976.

Durham shortly after arrival in Wilmington. Flight time will be about 45 minutes, Kempfer said.

vision comedies are breaking new ground — for TV, at least — in dealing with topics that reflect the times, it's a drag to see a plot centered on the hero's whiplash injury.

nickname is Bang-Bang because he was born on the Fourth of July.

In the first episode, a magazine reporter visits Eddie's home to interview him, but finds Eddie in the middle of treatment for his injured neck.

So while he's waiting he conveniently is beset by other members of the cast who fill in him — and the audience — on themselves and Big Eddie. Finally Eddie emerges and reveals how he got the whiplash.

Where does it say a TV show has to have reality, topicality and bite? Nowhere, it's true. If those considerations were mandatory criteria for television, most shows would never get on. But it does say somewhere that comedy has to have laughs, and "Big Eddie" doesn't. The jokes are tired and punchless, matched in blandness only by the performances of the actors delivering them.

Older viewers may remember Leonard from the scores of movie and radio roles he played during the 1940s, always unmistakable with his Mae West style of talking.

Maybe the series will improve.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
5 ♠ Pass 6 ♠ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Timing the play of the hand is critically important, especially when suits aren't breaking. Today's declarer demonstrated masterly technique in overcoming two bad splits to make his contract.

North was, perhaps, a trifle aggressive to jump shift on a hand containing only one ace and one king, but his hand had tremendous playing potential opposite a spade opening bid. When North confirmed that his jump shift was partly based on spade support, South opted to cue-bid his heart values, and North boldly leaped to slam on the strength of his void in diamonds.

This hand was played in a team match, and at one table declarer received a club lead. He won in dummy and led the jack of spades, which was allowed to win. When West discarded on this trick, declarer crossed to his hand twice with high hearts to ruff two diamonds in dummy. He then tried to cash two clubs, but when East ruffed the second club declarer was dead. He still had two diamond losers in his hand, and only one trump in dummy. Eventually, he lost a diamond in addition to the ace of trumps.

At the other table the declarer, Chuck Lamprey of White Plains, NY, received the king of diamonds opening lead. He ruffed in dummy and led the jack of trumps, which was allowed to win. He tried to cash the ace and king of clubs, and when East ruffed the second round low, he overruffed. Now, he cashed his three top hearts, entered dummy with a diamond ruff and led the jack of hearts. Whatever East did, declarer was home.

East elected to ruff and declarer overruffed. Lamprey ruffed a third diamond in dummy and led the queen of clubs, again presenting East with a Hobson's choice. If he ruffed with his remaining trump—the ace—declarer would discard his losing diamond and claim the rest of the tricks. Alternatively if East did not ruff, declarer would discard his losing diamond and his only loser would be the ace of spades. As in so many other games, correct timing results in a perfect shot!

Woman Heads Troubled Jail

By GREGORY A. GROSS
Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — Next month, a woman will begin running the troubled San Diego County jail.

Elizabeth Clark, 50, was appointed Tuesday to take over the jail under the county's new corrections department.

Sheriff John Duffy, now in charge of the jail, has vowed a court fight to resist the takeover.

Mrs. Clark, the first woman in California to be named head of a county jail, is currently juvenile services director in the probation department, where she has worked for 23 years.

She says she has no "grandiose plans" for the jail but that she doesn't plan to stand pat, either — "There should be change within a couple of months."

The jail has been under heavy criticism in recent years. Built for 700 inmates, it now holds about 1,400.

A grand jury is now investigating charges of brutality against inmates by sheriff's deputies, and earlier this year a civilian guard was convicted of smuggling in narcotics for inmates.

Mrs. Clark said she plans to take a "humanistic" approach to the jail.
