

Haile Selassie Is Found Dead

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Haile Selassie, the diminutive strong man who ruled Ethiopia as the "King of Kings" for 58 years before he was deposed by the military last September, died today. He was 83.

The government said the former monarch was found dead in his bed by a servant early this morning.

In Washington, intelligence sources said an Addis Ababa radio broadcast reported that Selassie died as a result of illness affecting his prostate gland. Last May, Selassie was reported seriously ill with a prostate condition.

The sources said the broadcast gave no further details.

The State Department had no immediate comment.

Since he was deposed last Sept. 12 Selassie had been confined in one of his former palaces in the Ethiopian capital, and access to him had been denied to outsiders.

Only Details Remain

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says only "nuances" remain to be resolved in a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement providing for another Israeli pullback in the Sinai Desert.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem said today a key part of the pact already is complete and ready for signing. They said the completed section obliged both sides to refrain from "the use or threat of force" and was to be signed directly between Israel and Egypt.

Kissinger reported "remarkable progress" in the negotiations after his arrival from Israel late Tuesday afternoon to confer with President Anwar Sadat.

The Israeli officials said the completed portion — one of three sections in the pact — also specified permission for Israeli cargo to move through the Suez canal and included an appendix of maps and timetables for territorial changes. They declined to say when it might be signed, but all indications were that it would be wrapped up before the end of the week.

Ironically, Selassie himself ordered the changes that eventually led to his downfall — the military training programs that exposed Ethiopian officers to democracy in the United States, and Haile Selassie University, where students learned to think in revolutionary terms.

Drought had taken more than 100,000 lives in Ethiopia by February 1974, when the armed forces mutinied for pay raises and then began nibbling away at the emperor's power and public support.

Though slightly built and barely 5 feet 2, the descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, was an iron man who always used stern methods to suppress his enemies. Lij Yasu, the emperor from whom he seized the throne in 1928, was kept in chains for 19 years until he died.

Selassie was born Prince Tafari Makonnen on July 23, 1892, a member of the Ethiopian royal family but not in the direct line of succession to the throne. With the support of tribal barons he had himself proclaimed king in 1928.

Hospital Rates Will Rise On September 1

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Room rates at Pitt Memorial Hospital will be increased $10 per day, effective September 1, it was announced at the Hospital Board of Trustees meeting last night.

A ward bed will cost $53 a day; a semi-private room $56 a day; a regular private room $59; and a private room with a full bath, $60. A special surgery unit bed will be $87 a day; an intensive care monitored bed $92 a day.

The delivery fee will increase from $70 to $90, and laboratory fees also will be increased.

The delivery fee will increase from $70 to $90, and laboratory fees also will be increased.

These changed rates are expected to generate near $650,000 increased revenue and other increased activity hopefully will take care of increased expenses of $893,000, Hospital Director Jack Richardson said. The biggest increase comes because of the minimum wage increase to $2.20 per hour base. Some $356,500 will be spent on labor increases alone. Utility costs are expected to be up $198,000 and laundry costs up $110,000.

The average cost of a hospital stay will be up 10.29 per cent overall, with six-and-a-half-day average stay costing $793.33, or $74 more than it would have before, Richardson said.

Projected gross charges for hospital services during the next fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, will be $9,419,606. Of these, $1,348,428, are expected to have to be written off as bad debts (including Medicare and Medicaid balances which can never even be reported to the patient according to federal rules). So net revenue should be $8,326,486. Expenses should run $8,258,389—"if inflation doesn't run away with us," Richardson said. No levy support is being asked of the county.

Hospital Board and Staff bylaws were approved, with changes made to suit Joint Committee on Accreditation guidelines. Chief of Staff Dr. Eric Fearrington estimated that about 100 committee hours had gone into the changes made by the medical staff.

One change is that the Board will consider individually each physician on the staff annually. Dr. Kelly Wallace has had the responsibility of setting up a system of having every physician report and document his specialties and areas of competency and these are being checked by several different committees before they come to the board for approval. These reports will be staggered so the Board can approve or disapprove the physicians in three different groups three different months. With about 80 on the staff at present, they will consider one-third in September, one-third in October, and one-third in November, with December reserved for any problems that might come up to be squared away before the new year begins.

By-laws of the medical staff presented by Dr. Fearrington include step-by-step ways a physician may be disciplined by his fellow staff members, along with delineation of his rights and recourse during the procedure.

A resolution of appreciation to Dr. Joe Pou commissioned last month was read. Dr. Pou, who was chairman of the Pitt Memorial Bond Drive which made possible the new hospital now under construction, has recently moved from Greenville to Atlanta.

Richardson said a hospital safety committee is now in operation making monthly reports. Procedures and signs for proper exit during fire will be completed during the next month, according to a report by John Watson, Committeeman, during a hospital Department Managers meeting, Richardson said.

Economy Index Is Up: Fifth Month

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today its index to anticipate future trends in the economy advanced for the fifth consecutive month in July.

The Commerce Department said its index of leading indicators, a composite of a dozen individual economic measures, climbed 1.7 per cent in July, putting the index figure 11.5 per cent ahead of its low point last February.

The advance, combined with a revision of June's advance from its originally reported 1.9 per cent rise to a 2.9 per cent increase, signaled continuing recovery in the economy, the department said.

It said the strongest upward influence in the index in July was a heavier volume of new orders for consumer products and raw materials.

That category advanced 7 per cent.

In all, 7 of the 10 individual statistics available when the July index was computed advanced. Three of the components declined and two were not available for compilation.

The strongest downward influence in the composite was a 1 per cent decline in the nation's money supply. Also exerting a downward influence were higher prices for key raw materials and reduced spending on factories and equipment.

The other components indicating a quickened pace of economic activity in the future were a longer work week for factory workers, an increase in cash and assets for business, faster formation for new business, higher stock prices, and increased volume of building permits issued and a slower performance from key suppliers of business goods.

The slower performance is taken as an indication that business is picking up.

West Will Run For 8th Term

Mayor S. Eugene West will seek his eighth term as head of the city government in the Oct. 7 municipal elections.

West made his reelection intentions official by paying his filing fee Tuesday afternoon at the Pitt County Board of Elections.

The mayor is completing his 18th year in city government, four of which were served as mayor pro tem. First elected to the City Council in 1953, West was then elected mayor in 1957 and since that time has been selected by Greenville voters seven times to serve as mayor.

"I hope that the people have been pleased with their city government for the past ten or 12 years," the veteran political figure commented, "and I would like to be a part of the continuing growth and expansion of Greenville."

West said that, "I would like to help keep Greenville providing a sound and economical government, providing all needed services at a minimum tax rate."

He added, "At the present time, I feel that Greenville has, by far, the best tax rate of any town in North Carolina and our services have not suffered."

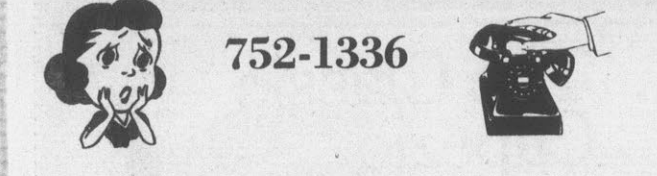

West, who has served as president of Greenville Industries since its inception, mentioned that he "would like to see the industrial growth of Greenville continue as the needs require in order that our young people may find employment at home instead of having to go elsewhere."

A native of Statesville, West first came to Greenville in 1934 and settled here in 1947. The mayor is married to the former Vivian S. Smith of Greenville. He is a charter member of Hooker Memorial Christian Church and is also a member of the Greenville Moose and Elks Lodges. In 1968, he was elected "Citizen of the Year" by the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

M.D. CONTAINER
A Muscular Dystrophy container has been in our store for some time. It has several dollars in it, but no one has come to collect it. We'd like to know with whom to get in touch. B.D.

Hotline checked with City Hall, which registers all solicitations. The City Manager's secretary said she did not have a current listing, but gave us the name of Nancy Hall, a former chairman, who suggested we contact Sue Turcotte, a later worker for the cause. Mrs. Turcotte gave us the name and address of a man in Virginia who was supposed to be making collections in this area. We wrote to him and he suggested you change the money in the container into a check or money order and send it to Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, Inc., 502 Board of Trade Building, 304 Plume Street, East, Norfolk, Va. 23510. Anyone else wishing to contribute may use the same address, of course.

PARKING METERS?
I have been reading about the new Evans Street mall. Are the parking meters downtown going to be removed when it's finished? I hope so. L.H.

"We wish we could remove the meters right away," Gene Skinner, chairman of the Greenville Parking Authority said. "But we've spent a lot of money acquiring new lots recently and the meter revenue helps pay for these as well as for maintenance of the lots. Our long-range plan, though, is to have free parking as soon as we are able to."

Striking Firemen Warn May 'Close Down City'

By MIKE DUNSTAN
Associated Press Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Striking city firemen say they will "close the whole city down" if Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. sends in state fire fighters to man Berkeley's firehouses.

Mayor Warren Widener declared a state of emergency after all but 10 of 160 firemen struck for higher wages Tuesday and asked Brown to send seven crews from the state Division of Forestry to provide fire protection.

Brown sent two state fire crews to protect the University of California campus, but took no action on Widener's original request. The two crews could respond to other fires at the request of Berkeley's fire chief.

Firemen on the picket lines said they would try to spark sympathy strikes throughout this city of 120,000 persons if more state crews were brought in.

Only one of seven fire stations was open

Tuesday night, staffed by eight supervisors capable of manning two fire trucks, Deputy Fire Chief Roland Scrivner said. The six remaining stations were closed.

Negotiations between Local 1227 of the Fire Fighters' Association and city council broke down early Tuesday after a 16-hour session.

The firemen are seeking a 15.5 per cent pay raise that would give them annual salaries ranging from $15,252 to $16,800. The city offered an 8 per cent boost this year and a 7 per cent increase next July would provide yearly salaries from $14,136 to $15,576.

Scrivner admitted that "fire protection has suffered some," but he said, "Under the mutual aid plan, we can call in whatever we need from neighboring fire departments, and I wouldn't hesitate for a minute to call them right now."

But some firemen in neighboring cities said they would not fight fires in Berkeley unless a major disaster occurred.

Lightning Causes Power Failure For Large Section Of Greenville

By JAMES KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer

Lightning caused a power failure last night that lasted about an hour in Greenville and even longer in some other areas.

Malcolm Green, assistant director of Greenville Utilities Commission, said lightning hit a GUC high voltage wire which caused a circuit breaker at Meadowbrook substation to blow up. Meadowbrook substation is the main Vepco entry point to Greenville, according to Green.

Much of the time the power was off was spent getting a Vepco representative here from Williamston, Green said. He said it took about 45 minutes for the Vepco man to arrive. "When he got here, we were able to get back about 70 per cent of the system, except for isolated areas in the county, and Winterville and Ayden," Green said.

"We had to do some makeshift work to pick up Winterville and Ayden. When we did that, we had only some isolated areas out. Some of them were pretty big areas, though. Glendale subdivision was off, but we didn't know it," Green said.

"Approximately 9:15, we had all our main facilities on. We spent until about 12:00 getting everybody back on."

"However, the real problem will come today," Green said this morning. "We have about 75 per cent of a system that was using 80 per cent" of capability. "We have requested our major industrial customers to cut off non-essential loads."

According to Green, the heavy load GUC customers have been using lately didn't contribute to the power

Couple Said Vows Recently

WASHINGTON—In a sunrise ceremony Sunday, Aug. 17, Miss Drusilla Ellen Crawford and Richard Mott of Norwalk, Conn., were united in marriage.

The Rev. Richard Rhea Gammon performed the double ring, outdoor ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Blount Modlin Jr., Bayside Shore, Washington.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Leonard O'Banion Crawford of Greenville, and the late Mr. Crawford. Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Roland Blount Modlin Jr., the bride wore a formal gown of ivory imported silk taffeta styled with an empire bodice and Victorian collar of re-embroidered lace and clusters of pearls. The sheer yoke was encircled with lace motifs in a flower design centered with pearls. Lace motifs cascaded the bodice and front of the A-line skirt, which extended into a chapel sweep train highlighted at the back of the waist with a belt fastened with self-covered buttons.

Her cathedral length mantilla of English net and peau d'ange lace complemented her gown. She carried a cascade of ivory roses.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mott of Norwalk, Conn.

The honor attendant was Mrs. John Harry Cross of Norwalk, Conn., sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Roland Blount Modlin Jr. of Washington, sister of the bride, Mrs. Malcolm Clyde Williams Jr. of Greenville, Miss Linda Carol Mott of Norwalk, Conn., sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Nancy Jane Whitten, all of Norwalk.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were David Warren and Gary Steven Mott of Norwalk, Conn., brothers of the bridegroom, and John Harry Cross Jr., brother-in-law of the bride.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Norwalk, Conn. Mrs. Mott attended East Carolina University and is presently employed at Union Trust Co. International Department, Stamford, Conn. The bridegroom attended San Diego Mesa College, San Diego, Calif., and served in the U.S. Navy. He is self employed as a commercial fisherman.

MRS. RICHARD MOTT

Immediately following the ceremony, the mother of the bride entertained guests and the wedding party at a breakfast at the Holiday Inn, Washington.

The wedding party and out-of-town guests were entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner at the Holiday Inn, Washington. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Lewis, Mrs. Spurgeon Caswell Carroll, Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Lewis, Miss Nancy Jane Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. William Ray Long and Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Vann Carroll.

His Kisses Are Not Helping Romance

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm going with a wonderful guy named Morris. He's a terrific fellow, but he has one fault. When he kisses me, he gets carried away and bites my lips. After an evening with Morris, my lips are bruised and raw—sometimes they even bleed!

My mother keeps asking me what's the matter with my lips, and I keep making up excuses. (They're "chapped.") Will you please tell me how I can get Morris to take it easy when he kisses me? I have told him a dozen times not to be so rough, but he forgets. This is no put-on.

SORE LIPS

DEAR SORE: When Morris "forgets" and gets rough, give him a good klop on the back to remind him to take it easy. And keep it up until he's conditioned.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 34-year-old widow who fell in love with a married man. (I'll call him "Rex.") He has two children. We've been seeing each other for 18 months, and I love him dearly. Rex says he loves me and needs me, and as soon as he's financially able to swing it, he'll divorce his wife and marry me.

Rex still lives with his wife, but claims that he has had nothing to do with her since he met me. Here is the part that just about drove me to suicide: He told me yesterday that his wife is now pregnant! He swears it isn't his, but how can I be sure?

I have an 8-year-old son who worships Rex, and if I were to break it off with him, it would be almost as though my son were losing another father because Rex treats him like a son.

How much longer should I give Rex?

LOVES HIM

DEAR LOVES: The advice from here is to say goodbye now and to tell Rex that you don't want to see his face until he is a free man.

In the meantime, you'd better start planning your life without him because as I see it, that is what you will have to do eventually.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the man whose wife is driving him up the wall by her constant use of "you know" in every sentence.

Rejoice! At least "you know" implies that you can comprehend what is being said.

We have a brother who ends almost every sentence with "understand?" This leaves one with the feeling that his mental capacity to follow a simple conversation is somewhat in doubt.

Far better "you know" than "understand?"

HIS SISTER, UNDERSTAND?

DEAR SISTER: I understand, you know.

CONFIDENTIAL TO K IN LOUISVILLE, KY: The authenticity of a painting is like a woman's virtue. Once questioned, it is never quite the same.

DEAR ABBY: How can I get some letters back that I wrote to an old boyfriend? I asked for them, and he said no! I would be satisfied if he would destroy them in front of me, but he refuses to do so.

I no longer feel as I did when I wrote them. What can I do about this?

CHANGE OF HEART

DEAR CHANGE: Nothing. After you sent the letters, they became the property of the receiver.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Marriage Announced

Lisa Ethel Ludd and Clarence Dupree (Dukie) Barnhill Jr. were married Friday, Aug. 15, at 1:00 p.m. The wedding took place at Chapel Two, Francis AFB Cheyenne, Wyo.

The grandparents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barnhill and Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Phillips, all of Greenville.

WILL MAKE DEBUT—Miss Martha Moye Williams, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Sutherland Williams of Durham, will make her debut at the Terpsichorean Club Ball, Raleigh, Friday, Sept. 5. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Novella Moye Williams of Greenville.

Household Hint

Choose snacks for their nutritional value. An orange, for example, contains 65 calories and lots of vitamin C. In contrast, a one-ounce chocolate bar has double the calories and very few other nutrients. An ounce of roasted peanuts has about 170 calories, but it supplies both protein and niacin.

Leisure Suits and Coordinates Boast
Easy Care

A simple but dressed-up look is the major emphasis for men and boys this fall. The effect is achieved through fabric, styling and coordination of all component parts! Refinement and soft character suggest an Ivy League touch with new and varied interpretations.

The focus for younger men is on coordinated separates in leisure suits and sportswear. Men's suits are designed for a total look. Vests are coming on strong. And leisure jackets range from shirt length to bush, battle, and safari cuts.

In general, suits are more fully cut. Making an impact is the bridge suit, something between the standard cut type and the totally casual leisure suit. It may come with a bal collar or pea jacket top or belted.

Detail and design include topstitching, quilting, pin-tucking, patchwork, pointelle, yoke effects, gun patches on jackets. Sweater-fare includes mock turtles and lowered crew necklines while pants feature double-zip sailor styling.

The beige, camel, tan colorations of previous seasons are moving to darker and richer shades. Muted rusts, softened brick and greens are evident. Watch for gray in tones running from slate to gunmetal. Berry tones including mulberry and raspberry are major colorations. Solid shades take the lead with heather and tweed effects.

Warm, washable fabrics provide surface interest. It's a season when knits look like wovens, wovens appear to be knits, man-made fibers take on a natural look, and fabrics made of natural fibers are often treated to give them the easy-care advantages of the man-made.

Jacquards and textures are offered as well as polyester-cotton twills, ribbed and ribless corduroys, velvet, sueded effects and flannels. Denim, including brushed or pre-washed varieties, is still an integral part of the fashion scene with fanciful styles boasting vests and detailed stitching. For the younger set, the basic flare in jeans continues in popularity with some interest in straight and big bell legs.

Bright tops and shirts are on hand to match quieter bottoms and subdued solids in suiting. Ombre, a subtle shifting of tone, is important. The ombres and new stripes often serve as backgrounds for tight, all-over patterns in geometrics and florals. Bold plaids and tone-on-tone are still very popular, but new are the little tartans and tattersall patterns.

The European influence calls for a layered effect with large over-shirts and loose full sweaters. Turtle-neck varieties will be popular as well as cardigans, shown in shawl and regular collar designs often given new zip with argyle patterns and heather and tweed yarns.

Up To Fayetteville To Decide

A news story over the weekend said the city of Fayetteville might strike on its own with plans to build a $400 million power plant designed to meet Fayetteville's electric needs through the 1990s.

Many North Carolina municipally owned electrics have been exploring the possibilities of building joint generating facilities to provide adequate power at the lowest possible costs. If Fayetteville should build its own facilities and thus not become a part of the joint project, it could be a blow to Electricities, the joint municipalities agency.

Of course, we would expect Fayetteville to do whatever its officials consider best for that city, but Fayetteville leaders should take a long look at this plan before a final decision is made.

First, of all a $400 million indebtedness is an awesome thing for one medium sized city to take on all by itself. It is true that revenue bonds would probably be issued to finance the plant construction, but still there would always be the possibility of default if some future new energy source came along. While the city itself might not be required to pay, a default would still be a monumental blow to the city's credit.

Next a larger system such as would serve a number of municipalities could probably be operated more efficiently than the facilities which would serve only one city. There would probably be more backup of facilities in the joint 71 city project than Fayetteville could have alone.

But if, after everything is analyzed, Fayetteville decides to go its own way in constructing power generating facilities, then the other 70 municipalities of Electricities certainly should not give up their plans.

If Fayetteville can build a plant which will efficiently serve its needs, then all the other municipalities, with far greater electric demand, should be able to build the generation stations needed even more economically.

There are obvious economies for the municipalities in building their own power facilities and the work of Electricities should go on, even if Fayetteville withdraws.

Today's Identity Crisis

(The real problem of the United States today is that nobody knows anybody's last name. Mr. Buchwald wrote an article about this years ago and he thinks it's worth repeating as the situation hasn't gotten any better.)

WASHINGTON—One of the most fascinating things that is taking place in America's youth culture is that no one knows anybody else's last name. The fact that American children consider last names irrelevant seems to drive their parents up the wall.

My friend Zinnser tipped me off to this phenomenon. His 15-year-old daughter was giving him a hard time in his living room the other night when I came to pay a holiday visit. It had something to do with a ski trip she wanted to take, but she dashed out in tears before I could discover what the argument was about.

Zinnser filled me in. "I guess I'm one of those old-fashioned parents of the nonpermissive school," he said. "The argument you just walked in on concerns a rule I've laid down that Ellen cannot go skiing for more than 24 hours with any boy whose last name she does not know."

"That's a tough rule," I admitted. "The question arose," Zinnser said, "because Ellen wanted to go on a three-day ski trip with Betsy, Therese, Randy and Steve. By some freak accident she knows Betsy's and Therese's last names, but all she knows about Randy is that he lives in Virginia and Steve lives in Baltimore. For two days we've been arguing about 'Randy of Virginia' and 'Steve from Baltimore.' You might say I'm having an identity crisis."

"I guess it is tough on a father not to know a boy's last name," I said.

"It probably wouldn't be a problem if she just knew one Steve, but she knows three. There is also 'Steve Who Works in the Carryout Shop' and 'Steve the Cousin of Tina.'"

"Tina who?" "That's the problem. She doesn't know Tina's last name either."

"Maybe Ellen isn't good on last names." "It isn't just Ellen. My 16-year-old daughter, Mitzi, is just as bad. The other night she asked to sleep over at the house of a girl she goes to school with named Karen. I suggested we call Karen's parents to see if it was okay. Mitzi said she didn't have Karen's telephone number. I said we could look it up in the telephone book, but Mitzi said she didn't know Karen's last name. As a matter of fact, the only thing she knew about her was that her family had a house in Nag's Head, North Carolina."

"So now we have to refer to Mitzi's friend as 'Karen Whose Family Owns a House at Nag's Head, North Carolina.' You have to admit that's a mouthful."

"My son Chris," said Zinnser, "is not any better. He went up to New York last week with 'Bruce Who Owns Him 15 Dollars' and 'Jim Who Plays the Drums in Some Band' and 'David Who Got Kicked Out of School.'"

"Does Chris use his last name?" I asked.

"I don't believe so. The other night I picked up the phone and the person on the other end of the line asked if

Grizzly Needs Room

By PETER M. KELLY
DENVER (UPI) — When Steve Fuller and his family sat down to a pot of stew last winter, they couldn't have guessed who was coming to dinner.

A 350-pound grizzly scented the stew Fuller's wife had spent the day preparing in their park cabin, lumbered out of the woods and tried to smash through a window.

"The bear pushed its head into the room," said Fuller, a winter custodian in Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park. "I was convinced she was going to get into the house."

Fuller called up rangers, who trucked the bear 40 miles back into the high country, but the grizzly didn't give up. She appeared at the cabin on two subsequent occasions, breaking windows and shredding roof shingles trying to claw her way into the house. The bear finally was labeled an outlaw and killed.

"It's really too bad she had to be destroyed," said Fuller. "Grizzly bears are superb animals and there are very few left in the world."

According to Fuller and animal biologists, man is closing in on the grizzly in the United States. Trophy hunters are poaching the bear, and backpackers and campers are invading the high country of Wyoming, Colorado and Montana.

The government earlier this year proposed classifying the bear as a threatened species, restricting hunting to an area of northern Montana. Biologists in Wyoming, Idaho and Montana have started a study to determine the number of grizzlies in the United States. The estimate currently runs between 700 and 1,000.

But Fuller says he has little hope the domestic grizzly will survive.

"In the pre-white man years, Indians had no weapons against grizzly bears and a grizzly bear had no fear of man," said

40 Years Ago Today

August 27, 1935
Larry Wade, who has appeared in nearly every position of the Greenville Coastal Plain league baseball club this summer, today found himself in a new role—that of hero.

Going to bat in the last half of the ninth with two out and Billy Huiskamp on the bag because of a single, Wade cracked out a two-bagger to deep center to win the opening game of the semi-finals series with Ayden by the score 4-3.

It was a story-book finish to one of the finest games ever witnessed on the diamonds in Greenville and placed Greenville in a three-all tie with Kinston for honors in the championship series to begin after the best-three-of-five semi-finals are over.

In addition to the ninth-inning thriller, the fans were treated to one of the best brands of mound work seen on the local diamond this season. George Barley, fireball chucker, matched his skill against one of Doc Smith's best—Upchurch—and emerged the winner by the skin of his teeth. The speed-ball artist has lost only one game this season and is credited with winning.

Barley was credited with striking out a total of six, and both pitchers found themselves in some tense situations at times.

Hunt Hit On Right Issue

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt has hit on the right issue to evoke response from across North Carolina: a fight against crime.

Obviously launching the early stages of his campaign for the governor's office, with the primary now just one year away, Hunt apparently has zeroed in on the single biggest concern among Tar Heels—and one that a state official can do something about.

Energy crises, unemployment, inflation, and recession are outside the realm of effective action at the state level. Crime is not.

His recent civic club remarks recognize crime as the "major problem viewed by the American people today" with surveys showing half the people afraid to venture forth at night, and statistics proving that things are getting worse instead of better.

Rising, Still

North Carolina has logged an overall 12 percent increase in major categories for the first six months of this year, with decreases in rape and aggravated assault offset by increases in murders, robberies, thefts.

Reports from across North Carolina in recent months have pinpointed the concern of people over rising crime rates.

—Concerned Citizens for Justice organized in Gastonia with a court-watch program; spreading across the state under auspice of the N. C. Extension Homemakers Service.

—Several rural communities banded together for self-protection and citizen patrols cruising the byways at night.

—The state's top police official, State Bureau of Investigation Chief Charles Dunn, decrying the move toward an "armed camp" appearance and the rapid growth of private security forces needed to protect property.

—A Caldwell County citizens group finding that large percentages of residents in that area do not feel safe in their own homes.

—Legislators are looking at ways to make criminal law more effective; more of a deterrent, including passage of the life sentence for armed robbery.

Law And Order

Hunt, in settling on the crime issue, has been quick to disclaim the traditional "law and order" label. It is not, he says, a racist concern because "the fear of crime among non-whites is far greater than among whites."

Setting the stage for a statewide debate on this issue, Hunt is outlining a nine-point program which he feels would be effective. "It is not a finished program, and I would appreciate your thoughts. . . . We need to develop this plan together . . . and I ask your help."

One of his nine points is to "choose leaders who will give the fight against crime an extremely high priority . . . who will ask our people to respond. . . . the governor ought to go before the General Assembly and the people with a special program to fight crime."

Among his other suggestions: teach people the wrong of criminal acts, and encourage a focus on victims rather than "poor criminals;" compensate the victims; increase penalties, and retain death sentence for premeditated murder; strengthen law enforcement capabilities; push for speedy trials; nurture respect for law and law enforcement officers; and resolve to work to solve the crime problem.

Perhaps the most controversial of Hunt's suggestions is a "far greater degree of citizen involvement. . . . It is time, for instance, that we develop programs for citizens patrols to help our law enforcement officers in this fight," Hunt is saying, with a warning that unless such an all-out effort is launched "crime, and the criminals who commit it, are going to destroy this country."

The INSIDE REPORT

Ford's Campaign Loophole

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—President Ford intends to campaign this year without obeying stringent financial regulations imposed on all other presidential candidates by the new election law — an exercise in loophole-seeking which could land him in political and legal trouble.

The President's intentions became clear Aug. 18 and 19 when his six purely political speaking stops were paid for by the Republican National Committee (including an approximate $3,000-an-hour rental for Air Force One). What's more, the national committee will pick up the tab for the rest of the President's 1975 political travels.

That relieves his specially created campaign organization, called the President Ford Committee, from spending its own money. Much more important, none of Mr. Ford's expensive and extensive political travels this year will be charged against the new law's $10 million overall pre-convention spending limit. Finally, the law's limit of $5,000 — less than two hours of Air Force One flying time — for Republican National Committee contributions to a single candidate will become a laugh.

The rationale: Although Mr. Ford is an announced candidate for President, his lawyers claim he is travelling politically this year as leader of the Republican party, not as a candidate. Those travels will be financed by local party funds passed through the national committee when he is not.

This outrages supporters of Ronald Reagan, who is legally a candidate for President opposing Mr. Ford, as defined by the election law. Even if Reagan announces his formal candidacy as expected, the Republican National Committee still plans to finance Mr. Ford's political travels. Protests from Reaganite national committee members would follow.

Mr. Ford's legal problems are more acute. "I see nothing in the law that draws a distinction between political trips by a candidate who is a party leader and one who is not," a Federal Election Commission source told us.

A Republican National Committee spokesman told us the President Ford Committee had asked the FEC for an advisory opinion.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Citizens of Greenville and Pitt County should feel very proud of the national recognition and acclaim recently accorded our own Dr. Andrew A. Best by the National Medical Association at its annual meeting in Miami.

His citation for "Extraordinary Service to the Medical Profession" has an additional significance to all North Carolinians when we consider his contributions to the success of the East Carolina University Medical School fight. He is truly one of the "unsung heroes" of that battle.

Those of us who know of his great dedication to service, and his commitment to the cause of people are not at all surprised by this latest honor. Knowing him, we predict that there will be more to come.

F.H. Mebane Jr.
Ms. Ruth M. Staton

An aide at the President Ford Committee told us the request was being drafted at the White House. White House counsel Philip Buchen told us his staff was preparing a study drawing the distinction between Ford-the-candidate and Ford-the-party-leader but might not ask the FEC for an opinion.

The upshot: The White House is interpreting the law as it sees fit and in a way possible for no other candidate.

Society Brass

The Kremlin's audacious attempts to manipulate the U.S. Congress reached new heights Aug. 13 when a senior Soviet official harangued 19 visiting House members to cut President Ford's defense budget.

A U.S. embassy cablegram reports Boris Ponomarev, a candidate member of the Politburo, telling the Congressmen that the Jackson amendment on Jewish emigration "is an open interference in the internal affairs of the U.S.S.R."

Then, Ponomarev promptly leaped into U.S. internal affairs by suggesting the Congressmen could "make use of the growing role of the House to promote disarmament, particularly cut in the defense budgets. The Congress is now discussing the 1976 budget providing for an increase in the military spending which would reach a fantastic sum of $100

Other Editors Say Russian Power

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Comes now a new and sobering revelation concerning the Yom Kippur War in 1973.

The source is the former Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, and it is the inside story of the Soviet — U.S. confrontation that Henry Kissinger never got around to telling us.

On October 24, 1973, after the Israelis had encircled the Egyptian 3rd Army west of the Suez Canal, Soviet Party boss Leonid Brezhnev sent President Nixon what Zumwalt described in a recent interview as a "savage" letter threatening to send troops to the Middle East unless the U.S. stopped Israel from destroying the Egyptian unit.

Although Nixon ordered a U.S. world-wide military alert, Zumwalt says that the President accepted the basic Soviet demand because the U.S. 6th Fleet was outnumbered 3-2 by the Soviet Navy and the Soviets could also bring overwhelming air power to bear. Under intense U.S. pressure, the Israelis agreed to a cease-fire and finally allowed the Egyptian 3rd Army to escape.

Kissinger never explained what caused the U.S. to declare its alert, though he promised at the time that he would do so within ten days. He denied that Senator Jackson was accurate when Jackson described the Soviet note as "brutal" in tone. As always, Kissinger did not want to spoil the friendly image of détente that is his special creation.

Admiral Zumwalt, however, confirms that the Brezhnev who wrote the letter of October 1973 was a far different man than the publicly smiling, handclapping, good fellow who hammed it up recently with President Ford in Helsinki.

This story should help to remind us that power and the will to use it still form the bedrock of our relations with the Soviet Union.

Relinquishing Fiscal Controls

By C.J. SCHOENER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame has agreed to relinquish the major share of the city's fiscal controls to the state in return for a massive infusion of state loans to avert city default on its debts.

Although Beame denied that his fiscal powers were being further eroded, the agreement, in effect, gave Gov. Hugh L. Carey and State Controller Arthur Levitt full control over the city's budget revenue estimates and thus the power to control the city's expenditures.

The unprecedented agreement was announced Tuesday night by the mayor and Carey at a hastily called news conference.

Carey said the state-city agreement would set up a three-member panel composed of Carey, Beame and Levitt to oversee the city's revenue estimates. The plan will be submitted to a special session of the state legislature for approval.

Although Carey insisted the plan had not been fully worked out and only vaguely described its outlines, questions by newsmen brought out these points:

—If the legislature approves, Levitt will float state securities at low interest rates enjoyed by the state in comparison with the exceedingly high rates charged the city.

—The borrowing powers of the state's Municipal Assistance Corp. (MAC) will be expanded, and banks and other financial institutions will be persuaded to help bail the city out of its fiscal dilemma through November.

—In return, the Carey-Levitt-Beame panel will review the city's budget revenue estimates and have the final say as to what they actually are.

Despite state control of the three-man panel, Beame insisted, "We are not giving up home rule powers."

"I'm completely in accord with this plan. It represents a state involvement in the city of New York. I think it is a good omen for the city."

Carey said, "This will not involve the powers of the mayor, his expenditures, his priorities or the government of the city."

But the tentative agreement represented a further lessening of the mayor's fiscal powers.

The erosion began last June when MAC was created to refinance the city's short-term debt and to ease its cash flow problems.

Beame reluctantly agreed to MAC and, prodded by MAC officials, later imposed a wage freeze on municipal labor unions that had refused to forego a wage increase won in contracts negotiated a year ago.

When the west was young, grizzly bears roamed the Great Plains in search of food, and extended from Mexico to Alaska. The grizzly now inhabits the western provinces of Canada and Alaska in greater numbers than in the pocket of high country in the United States.

Moody by nature the grizzly is a loner even among its own kind. The bear's appetite for meat is voracious and it will dig for hours for ground squirrels. Each year in spawning season, the grizzly will haunt the shores of mountain lakes in hopes of catching fish, a high-protein food source.

Time to Refresh Children's Wardrobe

With summer on the way out, it's a good idea to think about switching clothes from drawers to boxes and closets or vice versa. But, first see what repairs can possibly be made for another season of wear.

Children's togs take the toughest beating — slacks, jackets, playsuits, coordinates, shoes. Check for faulty zippers, ripped seams and pockets or stretched elastics. Buttons abandoned at playgrounds or during ball games need replacing. A colorful patch can make even the oldest jeans usable for hard play or messy artwork.

After the mending and repairing is done, check for spots and stains. Although stains are more difficult to remove when not treated immediately, they may come out with special treatment. Refer to a chart for suggested stain removal procedures, if the stain is known. For a wearable item that has become discolored or faded, consider tinting it a bright hue to match another stranded piece.

Scuff marks on shoes may often be hidden with polish after wiping the shoes with a damp sponge. If footwear has thin soles or worn heels, sending them to a shoemaker offers additional wear-mileage. Sneakers are best cleaned in the washer — laces, too.

and help local boards be more efficient in their operations which involve the control of alcoholic beverages.

The various committees within the association approach the General Assembly to promote legislation that will benefit city and county governments through the return of more of the beverage profits, he said.

Through legislation, Fleming noted, efforts have been made to promote bills that will foster better control of alcoholic beverages as well as deal with law enforcement, education and rehabilitation, and profits.

Legislation passed by the Assembly stipulates that all of the five cents per bottle tax on alcoholic beverages will now be returned to county or municipal boards for the sole purpose of

Ignoring immense Soviet arms expenditures and contending "our policy is firmly aimed at reducing military spending," he admonished the Congressmen: "If your voice is heard in Congress... let us hope that this will lead to positive results."

A footnote: The embassy cable does not show the response from the Congressmen. After we reported last month's exchanges between Senators and the Russians which the Senators had covered up, the State Department ordered the Moscow embassy to stop cabling detailed accounts of such meetings.

Whizzer For President?

Two Western governors, unimpressed by the present field for the Democratic presidential nomination, have quietly turned to the high court for a new face: Associate Justice Byron (Whizzer) White. Despite lack of encouragement from White, they are still trying.

Govs. J.J. Exon of Nebraska and Ed Herschler of Wyoming agreed earlier this year to sound out White. Exon conferred with White for 1½ hours in Washington two weeks ago. Meeting the Justice for the first time, Exon was impressed but not encouraged. White, 58, told him he had never run for public office and had no intentions of leaving the bench.

Exon reported the bad news in a letter to Herschler. But Herschler, who knew White personally as a schoolmate at the University of Colorado, has not given up and plans to see the Justice on his next trip to Washington.

FARMVILLE—Sales on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday consisted of more primings and lugs than on any sales day in the past ten days, according to sales supervisor Louis Williams.

Williams said that leaf and cutter grades, however, continued to account for most of the sales volume. Non descript grades showed an increase in volume compared to Monday's sale, it was noted.

Grade for grade, prices were steady, the supervisor reported. Stabilization receipts yesterday accounted for 21.13 per cent of sales.

Sales yesterday totaled 740,880 pounds, which brought $746,508 for an average of $100.76 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 12,593,327 pounds for $11,718,335 in averaging $93.05 per hundred pounds.

Sensory Devices Assist Durham School Security

By CORNELIA O. BOWERS
Durham Sun Writer
Written for The AP
DURHAM (AP)—Vandalism, damages incurred during breakins, thefts and prevention measures cost Durham city and county schools more than $100,000 last year.

Administrators say they are concerned but not gravely so. City officials will depend on an electronic warning system this year. The county has contracted to have trained dogs and their handlers patrolling hallways after regular school hours.

Durham's situation is not unlike an epidemic of violence and vandalism sweeping public schools nationwide, except that local problems do not appear to be as serious as those encountered by schools in more heavily populated urban areas.

A U.S. Senate Judiciary subcommittee on juvenile delinquency reported recently that vandalism costs nationally equal the amount spent on textbooks in 1972 — about $500 million.

"The preliminary findings of the subcommittee present clear and dramatic evidence that violence and vandalism in schools has reached a level of crisis that demands immediate comprehensive review and legislative action," the report said.

Dr. Ben Brooks, Durham's city school superintendent, and Dr. J. Frank Yeager, chief county school administrator, believe they have taken adequate security measures to curtail facility damages.

The city schools have $57,000 worth of sensory devices. Every school has an alarm system that is upgraded regularly. All are silent screamers that activate a signal in the police department.

The city system has the added advantage of routine police surveillance. The county decided to use trained dogs as well as electronic sensors, in some of the schools. One factor in the decision was eight successive breakins at Neal Junior High School last year. Those break-ins, which school officials believe were done by professionals, cost the system about $10,000 in thefts of food and assorted business machines, and $2,000 in damage to the building.

Dr. Frank Landing, assistant superintendent for general administration in the county system, said his concept of the security measures is simple: People have no business inside the schools at night.

He said that those persons who do trespass do so at their own risk.

"In the future, they will be subject to dog attack, being shot and being prosecuted. We will prosecute violators to the full limit of the law," Landing said.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg school system has used dogs in effectively reducing the vandalism rate in its schools. The system also maintains a special security section.

Yeager said the vandalism problem is greater in larger cities. Social circumstances affect the extent and character of the damage.

During the gasoline shortage last year, Yeager said vandals would punch holes in the school bus tanks, then set buckets or tubs under them to catch the gasoline. The rest of the gasoline would run on to the ground. The county schools hired a security agency to patrol parked buses until the problem abated.

"We've tried to combat the problems with more and better lighting, better locks and security precautions. Now we've turned to the security dogs. We believe it will help," Yeager said.

Studies Completed By Saudi Students

Seven students from Saudi Arabia have completed an intensive six months program at East Carolina University in the study and usage of the English language.

The special program was conducted under auspices of the ECU Department of Foreign Languages. The Saudis resided in campus dormitories and participated in campus and community life in addition to six hours of study daily. Prof. Marguerite Perry, department chairman, said several of the students developed fluency in English.

Upon completion of the program, the students received certificates. Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, ECU Chancellor, expressed hope that the success of the program would lead to a permanent language institute at ECU.

Names and home addresses of the Saudi students follow:

Selling Seedlings, Buying Pine Cones

The N.C. Division of Forest Resources is selling seedlings and buying loblolly and longleaf pine cones, according to County Ranger Mark Webb.

"This year's seedlings will be ready for transplanting in late November and people who wish to buy them should get their orders in as soon as possible," Ranger Webb said. The seedlings are sold by the Division at cost and are intended for forest planting, erosion control, or as windbreaks. "The seedlings cost as little as $10.20 per thousand seedlings delivered to the buyer for loblolly pine," he said.

According to Ranger Webb, the Division of Forest Resources is now planning for next year's crop of seedlings and will buy loblolly and longleaf pine cones which are picked and handled in accordance with the Division's specifications.

"The Division of Forest Resources will pay $4.50 per bushel for loblolly pine cones and $3.50 per bushel for longleaf cones," he said. "People interested in supplying these pine cones must contact me or the Division District Office in New Bern first, so we can inform them how to properly pick and handle the cones. Pine cones found lying on the ground or that have been improperly handled cannot be used and we will not be able to purchase them."

People who are interested in supplying pine cones should contact Forest Ranger Webb at his office or by telephone at 756-0414.

Hunting Season Appeal Made By Phone Company

The 1975 hunting season is fast approaching and Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company has issued a plea for "careful shooting" by hunters near telephone equipment.

Don A. Collier, local manager for Carolina Telephone, pointed out there have been several instances in recent years of gunfire damage to telephone equipment in the Greenville District.

Even the smallest shot can cut a wire, shatter an insulator, or otherwise disrupt service.

Collier added that an unthinking hunter may not only disrupt the telephone service of others but may also place himself in the position of having to pay a sometimes large bill for repairing the telephone equipment.

Questions And Answers On Ingram Insurance Plan

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Assuming nothing will happen to stop it, a new auto liability insurance plan will take effect in North Carolina Tuesday. It will be a major change with some drivers getting lower rates and others paying more.

Here is an explanation of what the plan will mean to you:

Q—If I renewed my insurance policy in June, does that mean the company will adjust my rates next week to reflect the new plan?

A—No. Policies won't be changed until renewal time. Policies issued Tuesday and thereafter will be based on the new plan.

Q—If my rates would go down, can I take advantage of the change before my regular renewal date?

A—Yes, if you cancel your policy and get a new one. But, insurance companies charge a penalty for cancellation and your agent can say whether you'd save by doing that. See him.

Q—What if my renewal date is in the first days the new plan is in effect, will my company have made the change already?

A—Maybe. But one insurance spokesman said it is unlikely most companies will be able to adjust their computers and inform their agents of the new plan before Tuesday.

Q—What will happen?

A—Your agent probably will issue a policy with you giving him a "binder" to guarantee coverage until the company can bill you the correct amount. It shouldn't be any trouble to you.

Q—Will I have an increase in my basic rate?

A—No, basic rates are about the same. If you live on a farm, the rate is $53 a year; if you live in a town or city and don't drive to work it'll be $70.24; if you live in a large city and drive to work it'll be $77.08; and if you use your car for business it'll cost $106 a year. These prices are for the required minimum liability coverage of 15-30-5.

Q—Will I get a discount for multi-car coverage?

A—Yes, a 20 per cent discount. If you have two cars on a farm, for example, you would pay $84.80 rather than $106. If your family lives in a city and has one car for pleasure only, another used to drive to work and you use a third car for business you would pay $202.66 rather than $253.32, the total if each car was considered separately.

Q—If I have a son under 25 who drives, will I get lower rates?

A—Most likely. The amount you pay will be determined by use of the car, driver experience and driving history. If your son has less than two years driving experience there is a surcharge of $40 and if another member of your family—including you and your spouse—also has less than two years of experience, an additional $40 will be added.

Q—What about surcharges for accidents?

A—For each chargeable accident, you will pay a $60 surcharge a year for three years. A chargeable accident is one where you are at fault and someone is injured or killed or damage amounts to more than $200.

Q—But, what if we have three drivers and each had such an accident?

A—The total surcharge would be $180.

Q—What will a ticket do to my insurance?

A—A two-point ticket will cost you $10 a year and it goes up to $320 a year for 12 points.

Q—How long will that last?

A—Three years. If you get a ticket for speeding above 55 miles per hour you will get three points. The next time you renew your insurance you will pay a $20 surcharge and that charge will be applied the following two times you renew.

Q—What if each of the three drivers in my home had such a speeding ticket? Would that combine to make nine points?

A—No, it would be a $20 surcharge for each driver—a total of $60. If, instead, one driver had collected all three tickets, he would have nine points and the surcharge would be $200.

What's the penalty for drunk driving?

A—The maximum—$320, 12 points. If a drunken driver had an accident, the surcharge would be $380. And if he had less than two years of experience it would be $420 a year for three years.

Q—What if that driver lost his license for a year, would he pay the surcharge just for two years after he got it back?

A—Nope, his three years will begin when he gets his license back. No free rides.

Q—The last time I got a ticket, the state said if I took a safe driving course, the points would come off my record. Would that also mean lower insurance rates?

A—No. The driving course may prevent loss of your license if you have enough points, but it won't spare you the effect of the surcharge because the violation would still be on the record, even if the points are not.

Q—What if the court gave me a "prayer for judgment continue?"

A—A PJC means you haven't been found guilty or innocent, your case was merely set aside and no point go against your license. But, for insurance purposes, a PJC is the same as guilty, so you would pay the surcharge.

Q—What if a person was convicted a second time for drunken driving while still paying the surcharge for the first conviction?

A—Three years will be added to how long he must pay the maximum surcharge.

Q—What if I got a ticket in South Carolina?

A—You'll still pay as states generally inform each other of who gets tickets.

Q—What if I moved to North Carolina recently?

A—Most likely, you'll still have to pay if you have tickets as the state or the insurance company probably will get your record from your previous state.

Q—When you talk about surcharges, you mean a charge in addition to the basic rate, right?

A—Indeed. To figure out how much you'll pay, look at the basic rates above for where you live and how your car is used then tack on the appropriate surcharges, if any.

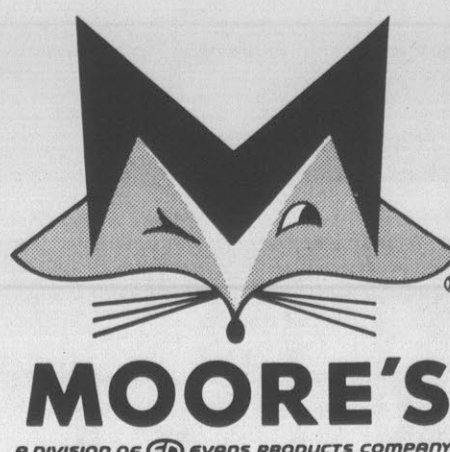

Q—How about an example.

A—If you live in Winston-Salem, have one car for pleasure use ($70.24) and a second car for business use ($106) the total, figuring in the 20 per cent discount, is $140.99. Add $40 for each driver with less than two years experience, $60 for each accident and the surcharge for points accumulated by each driver.

Here is the point schedule: two, $10; three, $20; four, $30; five, $60; six, $90; seven, $120; eight, $160; nine, $200; ten, $240; eleven, $280; and twelve, $320.

Second Suit By Industry

RALEIGH (AP)—The insurance industry has filed a second suit challenging constitutionality of North Carolina's new medical malpractice insurance system.

The new suit, filed in Wake Superior Court Friday, contends the state's malpractice insurance plan is unconstitutional, as did one filed earlier in the week by Hartford Insurance Co. of Connecticut.

Neither suit presents an immediate threat to the new system, which went into full operation Aug. 15. It will keep operating while the cases are being tried.

The second suit was filed by the State Farm companies, Government Employees Insurance Co., Allstate Insurance Co., Pennsylvania National Mutual Insurance Co. and United Services Automobile Association.

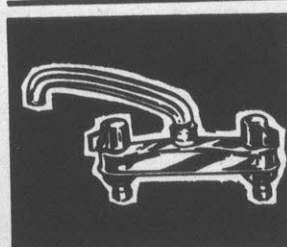

The new suit, like Hartford's, claims the new system is unconstitutional because it forces all general liability insurance companies operating in North Carolina to offer malpractice insurance even though they do not wish to enter that line of business.

Under the new system, a company can cede any policy it doesn't want to handle to a financial pool set up by all the insurance companies.

But the companies say that doesn't protect them from financial losses in a line of business they don't want to handle.

No dates have been set for hearings on the suits.

Hospital Bd...

A question as to whether a particular portion of the hospital or equipment can be designated in honor of a certain person or persons without an accompanying appropriate donation was turned over to the executive board of the trustees. There is a letter-writing movement underway in the county now to name the pediatric floor for Dr. Frederick Haar, a pediatrician who has practiced here since 1935, the Trustees were told.

The Kiwanis Club of Pitt and Greene Counties are sponsoring a country music festival at Minges Coliseum in September, the Trustees were told. Proceeds will go to the new hospital and the ECU medical school.

Dr. Paul W. Kendrick was granted provisional privileges in internal medicine with a specialty in nephrology, effective until Jan. 1, and Dr. Albert Warshauer, provisional privileges in anesthesiology. Dr. Fearrington explained how the medical staff has begun undertaking audits of certain diseases encountered or procedures used in the hospital, with the goal of pointing out variations and deficiencies that can be eliminated. These audits were suggested by JCAH and a number are underway already. At least one audit report will be made at each monthly Trustees meeting, he said. He told last night of a study of unattended deaths made by the hospital pathologists. Some 149 dead on arrival cases between January, 1972 and January, 1975 were studied. Of these, it was learned that 63 were from natural causes, including hemorrhaging, infection, blood clots, heart attacks, renal failure, heat stroke, and infant prematurity; 36 were accidental, 29 were homicide; five were suicide, 12 were drug overdoses (seven of these alcohol), and two had causes not established. Further breakdowns were made. This study and one other apparently made favorable impressions on the JCAH, when they were presented in Chicago some time ago.

The hospital now has in its possession a letter from JCAH granting one-year accreditation retroactive to the survey of the hospital some time ago.

New hospital construction manager Ralph Hall reported that work on the building is proceeding slowly now because complex mechanical systems are being installed. He said every visitor he has is amazed at the size of the project.

Power Failure...

"We are going to watch it constantly and we know what our load limitations are on each circuit," Green said. If a load capacity is exceeded, it could melt a transmission line, according to Green, but GUC is going to "try to shift stations around and watch it carefully." He said there is the possibility that a circuit may have to be cut off for a few minutes to avoid overloading.

The lightning was not the only severe weather factor causing problems in the area yesterday. The temperature reached 100 degrees, according to the reading at the GUC water plant, and the present dry spell could cause trouble for farmers, if it doesn't end soon.

Yesterday's 100-degree high compared with a low of 71. Although little rain was measured at the water plant, some areas received a downpour which lasted for several minutes.

However, area crops are going to need more rain if they are to overcome the current dry spell. Farm agent Ken Bateman said, "At this time, there are areas in the county that are suffering for rain. It is affecting the yield, and unless we can get some rain soon, yield will be cut some."

Bateman said the biggest problems at this time are soybeans and peanuts. He said corn and tobacco are "pretty well made" by now.

Rule Suicide Facing In Gun Death Daily Penalty

FARMVILLE—The death of Mrs. Betty Johnson Erwin of Route 2, Farmville yesterday has been ruled suicide by Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E.W. Harvey.

According to Harvey, the 42-year-old woman was found about 12:30 p.m. by her husband, William G. Erwin and their teenage son, when they returned for lunch after working on their farm.

Mrs. Erwin, according to the coroner, was found on a bed in the home with a pistol wound in her chest. He said the woman shot herself with a .38 caliber pistol, and had been dead three to four hours when found.

Harvey said the house was locked from the inside when Mr. Erwin and their son returned home. She was last seen alive about 8:30 a.m., Harvey said. A friend, who came to the house about 9 a.m. for a visit, found the doors locked at the time and left, he explained.

ATLANTA (AP)—Five North Carolina cities will face civil penalties of up to $10,000 a day for non-compliance with terms of federal water pollution control permits if they fail to submit required reports within 30 days, the Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday.

ASKS TO ARGUE

RALEIGH (AP)—Wake County District Attorney Burley Mitchell has asked the N.C. Court of Appeals for permission to appear and argue in support of the contempt of court citation given attorney Jerry Paul.

The EPA issued orders against Windsor, Valdese, Roxboro, Albemarle and Wadesboro.

Windsor was cited in two orders for failing to submit discharge elimination monitoring reports. The reports were due April 28 and July 28, EPA said.

Valdese was sent two orders. The EPA said it failed to submit quarterly reports on the quality and quantity of effluents introduced into the municipal system by industries. Orders for similar violations were sent to Wadesboro, Albemarle and Roxboro.

The EPA said letters were sent to each city in May, requiring that reports be submitted within 15 days. It said it has no record of responses from any of the five.

Zebulon Bypass Formally Opens

ZEBULON—Governor James E. Holshouser formally opened the $15 million U.S. 64 Zebulon Bypass yesterday.

The ceremony was attended by about 100 persons, including area residents, state and local officials and civic leaders.

Now open to traffic, one point of the Y-shaped bypass begins near the intersection of State Road 1003 and U.S. 64 and extends to N.C. 39 northeast of Zebulon. The other point joins U.S. 264 east of Zebulon and extends to N.C. 39.

The new bypass will allow travellers from Greenville on U.S. 264 and Rocky Mount on U.S. 64 10 more miles of four-lane road as they approach Raleigh. It will also allow them to bypass the town of Zebulon.

Relationship Is Still Private

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — "Private at this point." That's the way Kristi Vail, 21, says she wants to keep her relationship with Jack Ford, the President's son.

She said she will spend this week with her parents before returning to Utah State University for her senior year.

Stockholm Is A City On The Water

By BARBRO LARSON
STOCKHOLM (UPI) — In summer, Stockholm is not only a city on the water but also a city in the water, at least as far as its citizens are concerned.

There are about seven "beaches" within the central city, not counting dozens of swimming places farther out, treasured by suburban residents.

During this unusually hot and sunny summer, thousands of people have been lying on the rocks and sand strips in the city or splashing about in the water that has been cleaned and purified by health authorities.

Businessmen have switched from airless restaurants to sun-drenched rocks for their working luncheons. Many unfortunate sunlovers, for various reasons forced to remain in town during summer, have spent the days basking in the sun by the waterfront.

Stockholm was originally built on a group of islands in Lake Maelaren, which means it is divided by bays, channels and straits with bridges thrown across.

The sustained industrialization of the city polluted the water. Then authorities decided something must be done.

Over the past three years the city council has spent about $40,000 to clean the water, arrange for showers and toilets and beautify the grounds.

A health official said new rules prohibiting industries from dumping their waste in the water had helped clean the waters of Stockholm, and chemical purifying processes had then brought them to a "perfect level."

"I like to come here because the atmosphere is so cozy and familiar, although it's in the middle of town," said a young woman with a baby daughter at one swimming site. "Besides, I live only one block away."

Langholmen, where many people swim, is a hilly island that, until recently housed the country's most dangerous criminals.

Now it provides idyllic scenery, with sunny rocks overlooking old, exotic parts of the city, with sailing boats slowly passing by.

Some say the boats travel slowly because the skippers want to get a view of the girls sunbathing without their bikinis. But there is a speed limit for boats within the city and, furthermore, most of the girls still wear their bikinis.

Stockholm does have some nudist camps, but they are far out of town and foreigners coming here complain there are too few places where one can swim naked.

"We have many more of them in Germany," a West German woman said. "And here they sometimes separate men and women, which is ridiculous."

New Reading Kits Available

NEW YORK (UPI) — New reading kits using popular characters from two of public television's most successful children's shows will be introduced in grade schools across the United States this fall.

Three kits based on "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" were developed to help bridge the gap between television and the printed page. They use filmstrips, audio-cassettes, special comics, do-it-yourself mini-books and self-correcting games to teach everything from pre-reading through sentence comprehension.

Big Deal For Encyclopedia

CHICAGO (UPI) — One of the largest reference book contracts in history has been signed by an encyclopedia publisher here.

The contract between Marshall Field, publisher of "World Book Encyclopedia," and the chairman of R.R. Donnelley and Sons Company covers printing and binding of both the United States and international editions of the encyclopedia from July, 1977, through 1987.

CAR COUNT
CARACAS (UPI) — There are 918,450 private cars in Venezuela, or one for every 13 inhabitants.

Hopes Rise For Nearly Extinct Bird

By JOHN YEMMA
AUSTWELL, Tex. (UPI) — Huge whooping cranes flew in such great flocks ages ago that they darkened the sun.

The few now in existence are barely enough to cast a fleeting shadow as they wing their way from the tropical Texas coast to the wilds of northern Canada.

But researchers at the Matagorda Island Aransas Wildlife Refuge are hopeful that the paltry number — latest count shows 73 exist in North America, 24 of which are in captivity at a Maryland research station — will increase thanks to a new hatching program in Gray Lake, Idaho.

"We're taking whooping crane eggs to the sandhills of Idaho where they go through a natural incubation period," explained Aransas Refuge Manager Frank Johnson. The program is promising.

So far, nine whoopers have been hatched. Johnson said foster parent birds seem to be caring for the new young.

He said scientists were excited last spring when a baby whooper was hatched naturally in captivity at the Patuxent, Md., research center. But the excitement was shortlived. The baby died in June.

The whooping crane is one of the largest of North America's native birds. It stands five feet tall, with a red-crowned head and white, black-tipped wings.

During migration the birds fly high in the air, with their long necks and legs extended, on wings with a seven-foot span. They signal their passage with a trumpetlike call.

Although whoopers were found in much larger numbers during the early exploration and settlement of North America, scientists believe they have not really been abundant since the early Pleistocene period, about 500,000 years ago.

All of the world's wild whooping cranes winter on or near the Aransas Refuge. Researchers only have scant information on the endangered birds as they spend the summer near Great Slave Lake in Alberta.

"They start coming down to Aransas in mid-October and it won't be until November when we know how many young we have," Johnson said.

Strict conservation and protection over the past 40 years have increased the number of birds.

But federal officials say their continued existence as a species is still precarious. In 1938, there were only 14 known cranes in the wild, but the number has been gradually increasing over the years.

"Civilization has pushed them back to the brink of their nesting range by the development of wetlands, farming and hunting," Johnson said. "With all the draining of North American marshes and potholes, they've retreated into one area of Canada."

Because they are protected for the summer on the 11-million-acre Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada and for the winter at the Aransas Refuge, they will probably never have to retreat to another nesting place.

"The winter looks real promising," Johnson said. "The young will be just about as big as their parents when they fly down ... of course not all the little ones make it. We'll just have to wait and see."

Link Clothing And Confidence

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Properly selected clothes can help children develop social and physical skills, according to a Texas A&M University clothing specialist.

"Clothing that's easy to get on and off helps a child develop self-confidence and encourages independence in dressing," Beverly Rhoades said.

"Learning to dress is not an easy task for a child, and he may become impatient if dressing takes too long, or if he must ask for help."

By TOM FOREMAN JR.
Reflector Staff Writer

D.H. Conley neither swam nor sank last year. While finishing 5-1 last season, Coach Chuck Dunn expected to give someone in the Eastern Carolina Conference trouble.

Most of the trouble came from Southern Wayne, Coach Dunn said. With the strongest running back possibly in the state is Ken Mack, it is small wonder they challenged for the title. Conley's own Clavin Hawkins was no slouch, though, as he gained nearly 1,000 yards.

Coach Dunn credits Hawkins, and linebacker Keith Gould, both seniors, for keeping Conley chins up when they could have possibly had letdowns. Also aiding Conley was the fact no major injuries occurred to slow down the club.

As for the 1975 season, Coach Dunn looks to the arm of senior quarterback Joey Baggett. The three-year starter threw for over 1,100 and is expected to key the offense. Behind Baggett is running back Curtis Clemons who gained 500 yards rushing along with Hawkins in 1974.

Along the offensive line are seniors Lennox Green, Jeffrey Riggs, Eddie Bunch, Ronnie Nichols, and Mike McClanahan. The latter three did not play during their junior years "for various and sundry reasons," Coach Dunn said.

As with most county 3-A schools most of the offensive players will have to hold down the defensive line as well. Helping out on defense will be senior defensive back Donnie Cox, the only other defensive returnee for this year. Jeff McDaniel, at 180 pounds, will play strong side linebacker.

Among other two-way participants are Randy Edens, Broderick Best, and Nuggie Worthington, a sophomore. All are expected to get some time at defensive end or tight end.

With the problem of playing both ways is depth. Coach Dunn says his squad will be more shallow than most in the Eastern Carolina. "We do not have a junior varsity team as such, and we only have three feeder schools in the county to get players from. Only one of those schools has a football program. There's just not that much interest in football."

Dunn initial test comes on Sept. 5 against a new opponent, East Carteret. Dunn is not ready to make any strong forecasts about his team, but he may have to make hasty judgment in less than two weeks.

The schedule: Sept. 5 at East Carteret; Sept. 12, West Carteret; Sept. 19, Havelock; Sept. 26 at North Lenoir; Oct. 3, Greene Central; Oct. 10 at Farmville Central; Oct. 17, Southern Nash; Oct. 24 at C.B. Aycock; Oct. 31 at Ayden-Grifton; Nov. 7, North Pitt.

Tiant Doesn't Get Dad's Win

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

They stood together, father and son, on the pitcher's mound at Fenway Park. The older man, beaming, acknowledged the cheers of the crowd as he had in his playing days nearly 30 years ago.

Then Luis Tiant Sr. took off his coat and handed it to his boy, went into his windup and delivered a low fastball across history to Boston catcher Tim Lincecum.

Not satisfied with the form that may have lost something over the years, Tiant, Sr., called for the ball again and fluttered a knuckleball across the plate as 32,086 voices roared. It was Luis Tiant of the New York Yankees, circa 1927-48, all over again.

He reclaimed his coat, whispered something in his son's ear, and left. Luis Tiant, Jr., of the Boston Red Sox, took the mound.

"He just told me, 'Go get 'em. Don't worry about me being here,'" the younger Tiant recalled.

It may not have been nerves or the fact that his father hadn't seen his son since 1961, when Luis Jr. left Havana, Cuba, to seek his fortune in the major leagues. But Luis Jr. lost his game Tuesday night, 8-2 to the California Angels.

So Luis Tiant, Sr. went home a proud but somewhat disappointed man. But the Red Sox still lead the AL East by seven games, and the future still seems rosy.

"Maybe he'll see me pitch in the World Series," said Tiant, Jr. who just had lost his second straight game. "I sure hope so."

Ed Figueroa permitted Boston just five hits and catcher Andy Etchebarren cracked three hits including a homer to pace the California victory.

Elsewhere, New York humbled Oakland 7-1; Kansas City trimmed Baltimore 4-3 before losing 3-2 in the nightcap of their two-night doubleheader; Minnesota shaded Milwaukee 2-1, Texas nipped Detroit 3-2 and the Chicago-Cleveland game was rained out.

Yankees 7, A's 1
New York's Catfish Hunter continued his mastery over his former Oakland teammates, allowing seven hits in beating the world champion A's for the fourth time in as many meetings.

Hunter, 18-12, has held the A's to three runs — no more than one in any game — and 16 singles in the four games. He previously hurled A's for the fourth time in as many meetings.

Twins 2, Brewers 1
Steve Braun's single in the sixth drove in the run that backed Dave Goltz's seven-hitter and helped Minnesota hand reeling Milwaukee its 10th defeat in 11 games and 16th in the last 21.

Tickets Go Well

Ticket sales for the 1975 football season at East Carolina University are going at a record pace, according to Mrs. Earline Leggett, Business Manager of Athletics.

So far ticket sales have already passed last year's record number of season tickets, and an outstanding season at the gate is now predicted.

East Carolina currently has the only remaining tickets for the N.C. State-ECU game on September 6. State has reported that all of its tickets have been sold. A number remain on sale at the ECU ticket office, but it appears certain that a sellout will exist for the game.

The ticket office, too, has begun new hours. It is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., and from 2 until 4 p.m.

Cardinals Sweep Doubleheader To Pull Into NL East's Second

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

A funny thing happened to the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night ... for the second night in a row.

Monday night, the Cards trailed Houston by a run with two out in the bottom of the 11th but salvaged a tie when the skies opened and rained the game out.

It was rescheduled as part of a two-nighter Tuesday. St. Louis trailed the Astros 8-1 after 6½ innings in the opener but rallied with six runs in the seventh and pulled it out 10-9 on Reggie Smith's run-scoring single in the 12th.

The nightcap was a more-often routine 2-1 triumph for the Redbirds and the sweep lifted them into second place in the National League's East Division, three games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates, who whipped Atlanta 8-2, and one game ahead of the Philadelphia Phillies, who bowed to Los Angeles 8-1.

Elsewhere, the New York Mets downed the San Diego Padres 7-2, the Cincinnati Reds edged the Chicago Cubs 6-5 and the San Francisco Giants nipped the Montreal Expos 4-3.

Houston raked four St. Louis pitchers for 20 hits in the opener — none of them a home run by Cliff Johnson — but the Cards bounced back in the seventh, sparked by Hector Cruz's bases-loaded triple. Mike Tyson's two-out single in the eighth sent the contest into overtime and Smith's single won it in the 12th after Bake McBride's single, a sacrifice and an intentional walk to Ted Simmons.

Ron Fairly's homer and Harry Rasmussen's RBI single and five-hit pitching paced St. Louis in the nightcap.

Pirates 8, Braves 2
Duffy Dyer's two-run single capped a six-run first inning in which the first eight Pittsburgh batters hit safely against Jamie Easterly and Ray Sadecki.

Frank Taveras' triple and singles by Rennie Stennett, Al Oliver, Willie Stargell and Richie Zisk chased Easterly. Dave Parker, Richie Hebner and Duffy Dyer also singled — Dyer driving in two runs — before winning pitcher Larry Demery made the first out.

Dodgers 8, Phillies 1
Ron Cey hit a three-run homer and Doug Rau hurled a three-hitter as the Dodgers knocked the Phillies into third place. Rau gave up a first-inning run on a double, single and an infield out and didn't allow another hit until Mike Schmidt singled in the seventh.

Mets 7, Padres 2
Rusty Staub's tie-breaking single triggered a three-run rally in the fifth inning and rookie

Mike Vail added three hits for the Mets to support the nine-hit pitching of Randy Tate, another rookie. Felix Millan, Vail and Staub delivered consecutive hits to snap the deadlock.

Reds 6, Cubs 5
Home runs by Jerry Morales and Andy Thornton staked the Cubs to a 4-0 lead but the Reds chipped away and won on Joe Morgan's two-run single with two out in the ninth, their 10th victory in 11 games against Chicago. Johnny Bench homered for Cincinnati.

Giants 4, Expos 3
Gary Thomasson's eighth-inning homer broke a 3-3 tie. Barry Foote homered for Montreal while San Francisco's Pete Falcone outdueling fellow rookie Dan Warthen in a pair of route-going performances.

Barnes On Staff

The expanding East Carolina Sports Medicine Division has added another fulltime staff member. Division head Rod Compton and Athletic Director Clarence Stasavish have announced the hiring of Ronnie Barnes as Assistant Sports Medicine Director.

Barnes is a 1975 graduate of East Carolina University with a BS degree in Health and Physical Education. During his five years of study, Barnes worked in the Sports Medicine Division as one of Compton's top student assistants.

Barnes was certified as an athletic trainer by the National Athletic Trainers Association this spring.

Duties for Barnes will include assisting Compton in all phases of the program, specific sports and lecturing in the Sports Medicine curriculum.

Compton commented on the addition of Barnes by saying, "Ronnie will be a valuable asset to our ever expanding program. With his assistance we will now be able to participate in a national computer survey on athletic illness and injury. Our program has reached the level that a fulltime assistant is needed and Ronnie is certainly very capable of handling this position."

Barnes is a native of Wilson, the son of Rev. & Mrs. W.R. Barnes, now of Rocky Mount.

All-Weather 78

Goodyear's "All-Weather 78" tire is built with polyester cord that's tempered in an exclusive process for optimum strength and resilience. The wide "78-series" tread is "re-verse molded" — a technique borrowed from race tire production. In reverse molding, the contour of the tread surface is slightly concave as it comes from the mold — so that when the tire is inflated, the tread makes full, flat contact with the road. The rib tread is well grooved, providing plenty of traction edges for decisive grip. In every detail, the "All-Weather 78" gives you honest quality, at a price that's in step with the time.

Hightower Is Glad To Be Back Tyson's Change Put Him Back In Lineup

If the 1974 football season was agonizing for Murrell McGee Hightower, you can bet it was just plain brutal for the East Carolina University Pirates, and more specifically, the offensive line.

Hightower was ill the opening two weeks of the season, but came back to play in games against Southern Illinois and N.C. State. The Tuesday following the State game Hightower suffered a detached retina, finishing him for the season.

The 5-11, 192-pound native of St. Simons Island, Ga., said it was rough sitting out games, and after midseason he noticed an even bigger change.

"For once, I was a college student," said Hightower. "I could study more per night, had no definite plans about what to do with my time and I wasn't losing seven and eight pounds per day."

"The roughest part was wanting to play, but not really being a part of the team, then finding a lot of outside time available to me."

Hightower's quickness in the Pirate offensive line, which at the time was trying to master the intricacies of the Wishbone, was missed. Hightower downplayed that notion by saying that "there is too much togetherness in that unit for one person to be missed. . . everybody works too hard."

"The offensive line works harder as a group on this team than any on the team," said Hightower. "And, as is nature of the game, the line gets less credit though it has to do most of the work.

"But it is the people who care and know about what you are doing that you have to please, and they know what the situation is anyway."

It is evident that there are other things in life than football that interest Hightower when he talks about East Carolina, such as his planned double major in Parks, Recreation and Conservation - Driver Education. However, he just doesn't deviate that much from the football theme and the contribution Hightower and the game make towards each other.

"East Carolina is at a happy medium stage," said Hightower. "You are big enough to be recognized but the school isn't big enough where everyone is just another number."

"I enjoy playing football here because of that: you can be an individual on and off the field and you aren't just another number. Therefore, I could tell any recruit the truth: at East Carolina you can enjoy life."

That, in essence, is what Murrell McGee Hightower enjoys the most, with all the trimmings thrown in. He also credited his mother for her keen foresight in giving him something that is probably as great a football asset as his natural quickness.

"I weighed just under five pounds when I was born," said Hightower. "Mom nicknamed me 'Tiny Tim' and the name stuck. I just shortened it to 'Tim.'"

"If I were listed in the game program as Murrell McGee, I might have had more problems than a 'Boy Named Sue.'"

There doesn't seem to be much of a chance that Hightower would be the subject of a popular country-western recording. He will make enough records of his own. He wants people to remember names like Wayne Bolt and Jimbo Walker; like Larry Lundy, Ricky Bennett and Matt Mulholland; like Barry Johnson and Clay Burnett, all members of the Pirate offensive line.

Hightower had his agonizing moments in 1974, and with his favorite group intact, they will be set to dish out plenty of agony of their own this season.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"I'll tell you who he reminds me of," St. Louis Cardinals Coach Vern Benson said. "He's another Dal Maxvill."

Benson's reference was to fiery shortstop Mike Tyson, who two months ago rediscovered how to hit and has since rebounded into the Cards' lineup.

"In spring training he had choked up on the bat and was spraying the ball all over the park," noted Benson in respect to Tyson.

"I asked him in New York if there was a reason he had abandoned the style he'd adopted. He'd gone down to the end of the bat. He said no, so I asked him, 'How about going back that way,' and he did."

"The first time he batted after that he hit a double," Benson recalled. "He's shown steady improvement ever since he convinced himself that it's his best style."

A .188 hitter on June 23, the 25-year-old Tyson has proven Benson's claims via a climb to a .270 hitting level—his best in professional baseball.

Still at a modest .244 on Aug. 1, he afterward collected 29 hits in his next 92 times at bat for a .315 late-season pace that entrenched him at his position.

"I just choked up on the bat and went to a little heavier bat," acknowledged Tyson, a Cards bench-warmer in April and May.

"It's given me a shorter, quicker stride," he said. "I haven't kept up with what I've been doing, but what it amounts to is that I'm not over-swinging."

Tyson's uncustomary barrage hits, which have included a fusillade of 14 doubles, has helped the Cards construct a team batting average of .276 approaching the season's stretch drive.

And his offensive productions have apparently rubbed off also on his play afield, where in 89 games he has committed but six errors.

"Show me another shortstop with as few errors for as many chances," Benson declared.

"The kid is hard-nosed. On the double play, he doesn't listen for footsteps."

"The only thing that disappointed me about Mike was that I thought he conceded the job to Ed Brinkman when the season started," Benson said.

"But when you look at it from his point, you have to accept the fact that he figured the club had gone out and made a trade for a quality player and that the best thing was to wait until he (Brinkman) proved he couldn't do it," the Cards coach added.

Following Brinkman's departure via trade in early June, the 5-foot-9 Tyson outbatted Cards newcomer Mario Guerrero for his job and started 56 of 63 games beginning in New York.

Rozelle Rule Again Villain As Talks Fail

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The Rozelle Rule has done it again.

It's put National Football League contract negotiations right back where they were. Nowhere.

The controversial rule proved the villain once more Tuesday, as representatives of the National Football League Players Association and NFL Management Council broke off negotiations after reaching an impasse on resolving their differences on the regulation.

Federal mediator James F. Searce said no progress was reached in the talks held Monday and Tuesday, despite a glint of movement earlier.

Talks between the two sides over option compensation as well as other issues barring agreement on a contract have carried on fruitlessly for more than a year.

Before last Friday, the players' group had refused to negotiate the Rozelle Rule before a court ruling on their suit challenging its legality.

The rule specifies that the original team owning a player who has played out his option year and signed with another must be adequately compensated. The compensation is determined by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle if the two teams cannot reach a settlement themselves.

Management has insisted that the rule must be negotiated before any contract is agreed upon.

The Chicago meeting came after NFLPA Executive Director Ed Garvey said the players would be willing to discuss a modification of the rule.

"I'm afraid we ran into some of the same old problems we had," said Searce. He characterized the Rozelle Rule as again "the key" hangup in the discussions.

"I don't want to cast a pall (on the situation) . . .," he said, but he wasn't optimistic. In response to a question, he said, "Yeah, they (the talks) are at about the same place" as before the Chicago meeting. Monday night's talks, he said, "gave us some hope for some movement but it just didn't work out this way."

Searce, deputy director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said the talks have been broken off subject to call, but that he won't set up another meeting "until there's some evidence that we've got some place to go."

Both sides have been asked "to examine their positions," and "to see if they can come up with some other approaches," he said.

He would not define what other approaches he sought.

But he added, "We're gonna keep trying and we're looking."

Earlier, Wellington Mara of the New York Giants, chairman of the management council, said in a statement: "The union reverted to its original position of March 1974 when it told us that it objected to any restraints on player movement. Obviously we regarded this as a most serious development."

He had called Monday's meeting "very beneficial."

A court verdict on the Rozelle Rule is possible later this year in a Minneapolis federal court, but Garvey said he thought the lawsuit could be settled.

Golfers Battle Course, Heat

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — John Grace, last year's runner-up, and British Amateur champion Vinny Giles swung into action with 130 other survivors today in the second round of the 75th U.S. Amateur Golf Championship.

Besides their upset-minded opponents, Grace and Giles had to contend with the tough James River Course at the Country Club of Virginia, and the oppressive heat in the later summer sun.

Grace and Giles — who won in 1972 and is the closest to being a defending champion since the last two winners, Jerry Pate and Craig Stadler, have both turned pro — were among the 54 players who drew byes Tuesday.

The whopping field of 200 was trimmed appreciably when 68 entrants were eliminated, but four other matches were halted by darkness and were to be finished today with another 68 matches.

With temperatures in the high 90s, causing even 20-year-old Curtis Strange to complain, only Lance Ten Broeck of Chicago was able to beat par on the 6,672-yard course. Ten Broeck was two-under when he dispatched Michael Preston of Cream Ridge, N.J., 5 and 4.

Only six other golfers were able to match par, including Andy Bean, the strapping Western Amateur winner from Lakeland, Fla., and none played more than 16 holes. In match play, however, it makes no difference.

Robert Young Jr. of Dunwoody, Ga., was eight-over par when he eliminated former Walker Cupper Marty West, 1-up, and so was Tom Kelley of Fort Wayne, Ind., when he scored a 1-up victory over 53-year-old Bill Campbell, who was playing in his 32nd U.S. Amateur.

Even more stunning, perhaps, was the 1-up triumph by 16-year-old John Kircher of Pittsford, N.Y., over Charles Harrison of Atlanta, a veteran of 13 such tournaments. Kircher, who clinched the match with a 22-foot putt on the final hole, was six-over for the round.

Kelley, a 23-year-old spending his honeymoon in Richmond after being married Saturday, said: "Neither of us played real well, but it's an honor just to play with Mr. Campbell."

Kelley took the lead with a birdie on the 16th after blasting out of a trap, and held on when both bogied the final two holes.

Campbell, the 1964 champion from Huntington, W.Va., muffed a chance to send the match into extra holes when he missed a six-footer on the 18th green.

West, from Bethesda, Md., was 4-up over Young before a complete collapse which cost him the final five holes.

Kircher, one of seven children in a family where an older sister was the best player until recently, overcame a string of four consecutive birdies through the 13th hole to overtake the 44-year-old Harrison.

"I was just happy to be here — to be in a major tournament," the pink-cheeked Kircher admitted after the upset. "I wanted to make it close, and maybe go the distance."

Many of the matches were close. Nine of them went into extra holes, and twice the competitors had to play the 20th hole to reach a decision.

ances. Smith's is far below par. He was ranked No. 1 in the United States four times since 1969 — last year sharing the honor with Jimmy Connors — and currently is No. 2. But while Connors, with tornado-like fury cut a wide swath of victories around the globe, Smith was frustrated in the calm.

Since Wimbledon, however, Connors also has been frustrated — by a gimpy leg he claimed to have injured before he lost the All-England crown to Arthur Ashe. He pampered it for a while and then went to Conway, N.H., and beat Rod Laver 6-2, 6-2 in the final of a $100,000 tennis tournament. From there he went to South Orange, N.J., where he bowed in the quarterfinals of the $50,000 Tennis Week to Vijay Amritraj of India.

Smith Attempts Net Comeback

By KAROL STONGER

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Stan Smith, the fair-haired American of international tennis in the late 1960s and early 70s, will attempt a comeback in the U.S. Open Championships tonight when he takes on Onny Parun of New Zealand.

It will mark the first under-the-lights match in the 94-year history of the tournament.

Smith, 28, winner at Forest Hills in 1969 and 1971, probably will welcome the illumination in the 15,500-seat stadium at the West Side Tennis Club. In 1973, he lost a semifinals heart-breaker to Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia as daylight faded into dusk.

Smith reached the quarter-finals last year before being knocked out in four sets by Roscoe Tanner, the rising 22-year-old left-hander from Tennessee, but despite his past successes, he isn't even seeded this year.

Seedings, with a final okay from the tournament committee, are based on computer readouts of the year's perform-

Dutch Accept Nuclear Power

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Forty-five per cent of the Dutch people do not object to nuclear power stations or have never heard of such stations, a public opinion poll showed. Thirty-two per cent of those questioned were opposed to the construction of nuclear power stations and 23 per cent were in favor. More than half of the opponents (19 per cent) were against nuclear energy as such.

Series Of Four Traffic Mishaps Here Tuesday

An estimated $3,850 property damage resulted here yesterday from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a three-vehicle collision on Greene street, just North of the Dudley street intersection at 8:05 a.m. Drivers involved in the collision were listed as George Darton Tetterton Jr. of Route 1, Bethel; Jerry Edward Hilliard of Raleigh and Melinda Robinson Hardison of Bethel.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the Hardison car, $600 to the Tetterton auto and $250 to the Hilliard truck.

Hilliard was charged with having improper brakes.

Ethel Louise Horton of 309 Manhattan Ave. was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 5:40 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Evans Street.

Police said the Horton car collided with an auto operated by Hannah Warren Jones of 1104 Rocksprings Rd. causing an estimated $300 damage to the Horton car and $200 damage to the Jones auto.

Vehicles driven by Billy Jacob Beasley of Route 3, Benson and Marjorie Minton Roebuck of Riverside Trailer Pk. collided about 4:10 p.m. on Memorial Drive South of the Langley Street intersection.

Investigators, who charged Beasley with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage to the Roebuck car at $250. No damage resulted to the truck driven by Beasley, according to officers.

Darnell Speight of Route 1, Greenville was charged with having no operators license and failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:37 p.m. collision on Airport Road, 35 feet West of the Greene Street intersection.

Officers said the Speight car collided with an auto driven by Inga Overton Nichols of Riverside Trailer Pk., resulting in an estimated $100 damage to the Nichols car and $150 damage to the Speight auto.

Sun Dangerous To Older Eyes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Because the natural aging process causes degeneration of the muscles and fluids in the eye, the sun is especially dangerous for older people, says Dr. Michael J. Hogan, researcher in ophthalmology at the University of California Medical Center here.

Near-Epidemic Of Child Abuse

MIAMI (AP) — "It must be an awful feeling to be a 3-year-old and know that the people who are supposed to love you just beat you and burned you," says a psychologist who warns that child abuse is becoming an epidemic here.

Dr. Barry Crown said Tuesday that he and other specialists are taking steps to try to reduce a dramatic increase in the number of abused children.

He attributes the abuse in part to parents who are frustrated by a lack of money and prone to lash out at the first available thing — their children.

Compared with a similar period last year, the number of abused children treated at Dade County's Jackson Memorial Hospital has almost doubled since June, said Dr. Irwin Redlener, chairman of the hospital's Child Abuse Program Committee.

"We've experienced the worst summer ever for child abuse," said Redlener, a partner with Crown in the study of child abuse. "It's reached epidemic proportions."

He said 87 cases of child abuse, including three young victims who died, have been verified at the hospital this summer, compared with 45 cases in the same period of 1974.

Redlener said there were 4,000 confirmed cases throughout the county in 1974, and the total could reach 6,000 this year.

The average child abuser is a white, middle-class, college-educated woman, Crown and Redlener said.

Redlener said the area's slumping economy, hard-hit by cutbacks in real estate and construction, is a major cause of increased attacks on children.

Dropouts Have 'Alternative' School Campus

By STEVEN R. REED
DALLAS (UPI) — Principal Sam Pugh's students all have something in common. They do not want to be, or are not wanted, in the regular classes of their neighborhood schools.

Pugh directs an alternative inner-city program on four campuses for teen-agers and young adults who otherwise might be on the streets or in jail.

For many, Metropolitan Alternative High School is a last chance. For others, the program which began five years ago with eight kids and one teacher in an abandoned lumber yard is a first chance.

"These kids do not have to compete socially, intellectually, physically or in any other way with one another," Pugh said. "Extracurricular activities are eliminated, and with it the pressure to compete or excel in the activities is eliminated."

"We get kids who have cussed out their principals. A lot of boys felt at the regular schools that if they weren't on the football team or in the band or participating some other way then they were nobody, and they'd get out in the hall and raise Cain in order to get attention."

"We don't put teachers on hall duty or lunchroom duty. And I don't care if you're the deputy administrator of the school system, you don't break in our lunch lines. Everybody is equal. The kids know this, they appreciate it and they respond to it."

Metro accepts students who are bonafide dropouts, girls who are pregnant, students with disciplinary problems and those who can't cope emotionally with the pressures of overcrowded classrooms.

"We're strictly academic," Pugh said. "I once had 600 boys I'd see two or three times a week for an hour at a time when I was a P.E. (physical education) instructor at another high school."

"I was as concerned then as I am now, but I didn't even get to know their names, much less their problems, unless they were getting into trouble."

"I know every kid in this school, and they know me. Every course is taught on three levels, modified for the weak and average, and a strong course for the gifted. We want to challenge the gifted. We want to let the slow learners realize some success."

"There are no lectures. There is no home work assigned and none accepted. There is no embarrassment. All work is done in the classroom and graded by the teacher in writing and kept in their permanent folder. They work at their own rate and accomplish something."

Pugh says discipline is not a problem.

"We tell our kids that in order to have this much freedom they have to be mature enough to face responsibility," Pugh said. "There are no bells and no set schedules. This allows them to continue to work if they have jobs. All regimentation is eliminated. It's a library atmosphere. There's something about an open area concept that causes people to quiet down just like they were walking into a library."

"If a kid wants to get up and leave the room to get a Coke or go to the bathroom, he doesn't hold up his hand and ask permission. He just gets up and goes."

The Metro school opened in 1970 in leased space in an abandoned lumber yard in downtown Dallas. The idea of flexible schedules, flexible rates of progress and individualized instruction caught on rapidly. The first school was primarily for dropouts aged 16-21. Most worked, many were married.

"Our first year capacity grew to 200 (at Metro East, the original campus)," Pugh said. "The next year we opened Metro West with a capacity of 350, and by midyear it was filled. The third year two more units opened, downtown Crozier with a capacity of 450 and Metro South with a capacity of 300."

Statistics from the school system, the nation's eighth largest, show 2,545 students participated in the alternative school program last year. Diplomas were awarded to 159 students. But 621 dropped out of the program. Pugh says the dropout figure is misleading because it includes students who entered private schools, joined the military, had health problems and, most significantly, obtained graduate equivalency diplomas.

Some expectant mothers who have their babies also drop out of the alternative school program by returning to regular classes.

Pugh said the Metro programs are locally funded to maintain their flexibility without federal pressure.

"We're not doing anything any other good administrator in Dallas would not want to do, and that is work with kids on an individual basis. They can't do it because of the numbers involved. We just have the opportunity."

Grave Robbers Do Not Rest

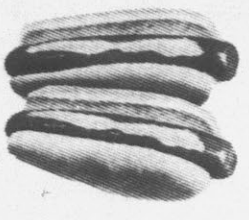

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cemeteries are among the newer targets of thieves and vandals. Pinkerton's, Inc., the large security firm reports. Pinkerton's says the American Cemetery Association calculates that reported thefts from cemeteries amounted to $1.2 million in the past five years. Damage by vandalism comes on top of that and amounted to more in money. Bronze urns, vault doors and gravestone head plates are the thieves' favorite targets, but pieces of statuary, historic headstones and wrought-iron benches also have been taken.

PURITY IN THE AIR—An automatic sensing device to control the purity of air, which will be installed in various parts of Kiev and other major Soviet cities, is displayed in Kiev. These sensors, placed around a city and linked to a data processing center, will control air pollution by using traffic lights to stop traffic from entering any areas where pollution levels have become too high. Life Quality 'Will Worsen'

By H. D. QUIGG
UPI Senior Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Democracy is going to survive. Inflation will continue. The sun will be harnessed. Some types of cancer will be cured. The earth will have another Ice Age. Famine is inevitable in the Third World countries.

And the quality of life will worsen for Americans of the next generation.

These are among the majority opinions in a poll of contributors of the learned articles in the Encyclopaedia Britannica's new Britannica 3 edition.

The poll of personal predictions was sent to U.S. contributors by Warren E. Preece, the Britannica editor, with the idea that the answers "could constitute a source of authoritative opinion concerning many of the questions raised by the state of the world."

About 1,000 answered the questionnaire. The new edition, published last year, is the first complete revision since 1929.

The initial question: As the nation approaches its 200th birthday, do you think that democracy as we know it will survive?

More than 60 per cent of the respondents answered yes. But the general idea was that the democratic process is built on change.

"We can expect it to continue to evolve as it survives, but we will know a new sum total brand," said George C. Cromer of General Motors.

Prof. Charles West of the University of Illinois wrote: "Democracy as defined by Thomas Jefferson has undergone many changes, and will continue to do so."

"Not in its present, or U.S.A. form," was the opinion of Louis Jolyon West, psychiatry professor.

"Not for another 200 years," said Derek Peter Gregory of the Illinois Institute of Technology. "Flexibility is the key," said Alexander DeConde, history professor.

Prof. Isaac Asimov of Boston University was not cheerful: "I don't think civilization will survive, if we continue as we are going."

Asked whether America would experience continued inflation, recession, or depression in the next five years, the group voted 56 per cent for inflation, 23 for recession, 11 for depression.

"The tendency to inflate our dollars out of existence will continue," predicted George S. Avery of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden.

Dr. Roy E. Cameron of the Argonne National Laboratory said: "Phases, degrees, and intensities of inflation-recession will continue, but the depression of the 1930s will not be repeated. The economy of the U.S. will become increasingly world dependent."

Hugh Patuck, author of the Britannica article "Money Markets," predicted continued price rises in the years ahead that would average about 5 per cent annually.

"Inflation has been progressive for centuries, only the rate changes from one period to the next," said Carl B. Cone of Lexington, Ky.

Asimov was a bit more dismal than previously: "The United States will go with the world into the hell of rampant overpopulation and starvation."

He was topped by Forrest McDonald, history professor, Wayne State University, Detroit: "We will not have a depression in the conventional, historical sense, but sooner or later the whole system will stop cold. I lean toward soon."

Conversely, Morris Greenspan, international law writer, said: "The economy will even out." And Prof. James M. Powell of Syracuse University: "I look for a gradual upturn in 1976 and renewed prosperity by 1978-79."

The authorities split—51 per cent yes, 42 no—on whether lasting peace would eventually come to the Middle East.

"I see no easy basis for reconciliation and lasting peace this side of the Apocalypse," said Gordon C. Thomason of Ithaca, N.Y.

"Yes. Not in the immediate future, but a standoff hardens into a solid state," said Albert B. Friedman, Claremont (Calif.) Graduate School. And Lawrence H. Aller, astronomy professor, added: "The alternative is to blow the world up."

"Yes, eventually they'll get tired," wrote Richard W. Macomber, physics professor. But David Maurer, linguistics professor, said: "No, the Arab-Jewish conflict is too old and too deep."

Said Asimov: "Probably the peace of death."

Is widespread famine inevitable in the less developed Third World countries? The group thought so by a margin of nearly 2 to 1.

"Yes, of course, and eventually in the developed lands as well," said Asimov.

"It is already occurring," stated W. Beall Fowler, Lehigh University.

"No, not inevitable, but it will happen because the first two worlds will not do enough to prevent it," said Curt W. Peck, chemistry professor.

One theme dominated the famine answers: overpopulation.

Will the energy crisis ultimately be resolved by development of alternative energy sources? Yes, said 83 per cent. The leading sources voted were solar and nuclear.

The group was given choices in "quality of life in this nation for the next generation" of: better (22 per cent), worse (42 per cent), and about the same as in your lifetime (31 per cent).

"We have been living in a golden age that is ending," said Joseph B. Hoyt, geography professor.

Will there be a cure for cancer in this century? Many of the answers took the form of that of Dr. Frederick C. Nachod, Sterling Winthrop Research Institute: "Cancer is an umbrella for some 30 diseases. There will be chemo-therapy for some within the next 50-100 years while other cancers will elude medical management."

Clifton Fadiman, of the Britannica board of editors, added: "It does not matter. We will die of something else. There is no cure for death."

Will there be another Ice Age? The authorities voted yes by 3 to 1. "Don't sit up waiting for it though—it could be thousands of years away," said Robert E. L. Faris, sociology professor. Said David Fellman, University of Wisconsin: "Not real soon. One scientific friend of mine thinks the next Ice Age is already 600 years overdue."

The entire poll was footnoted by D.P. Gregory of Chicago: "If we knew the answers to half of these questions we would be rich, geniuses, and foolish to tell anybody else."

New Series For A New TV Season Are Ready

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's depressing to return to Fun City after a one-week, two-perch fishing vacation. It isn't hard to know you're back in Fun City. At dawn, you can hear the sparrows coughing. This isn't much of a fishing town. Here, they think a Hula-Popper is a Hawaiian hit man. But there's always TV, which reminds us that the new season is creeping up on us. Serious creeping began Monday with a two-hour premiere of "Beacon Hill," the new CBS series that differs from "Upstairs, Downstairs" in that it wears 1920 Bostonians. Its normal run starts next Tuesday. But for those who insist upon a regular-season starting date for new and returning series, we offer the following list as a public service, or disservice, depending on your point of view. The new series are marked by an x:

SUNDAY — NBC: Walt Disney (Sept. 14), Family Holvak-x (Sept. 7), Sunday Mystery Movie (Sept. 14). CBS: Three for the Road (Sept. 14), Cher (Sept. 7), Kojak (Sept. 14), Bronk-x (Sept. 21). ABC: Swiss Family Robinson-x, Six Million Dollar Man, Sunday Night Movie (all Sept. 14).

MONDAY — NBC: The Invisible Man-x, Monday Movies (Sept. 8). CBS: Rhoda, Phyllis-x, All in the Family, Maude, Medical Center (Sept. 8). ABC: Barbary Coast-x, NFL Football (Sept. 8).
TUESDAY — NBC: Movin' On, Police Story, Joe Forrester-x (Sept. 9). CBS: Good Times, Joe and Sons-x, Switch-x (Sept. 9), Beacon Hill-x (Sept. 2). ABC: Happy Days, Welcome Back Kotter-x, Rookies, Marcus Welby (Sept. 9).

WEDNESDAY — NBC: Little House on the Prairie, Doctors' Hospital-x, Petrucelli (Sept. 10). CBS: Tony Orlando and Dawn, Cannon, Kate McShane-x (Sept. 10). ABC: When Things Were Rotten-x, That's My Mama, Baretta, Starsky and Hutch-x (Sept. 10).
THURSDAY — NBC: The Montefuscos-x, Fay-x (Sept. 4), Ellery Queen (Sept. 11), Medical Story-x (Sept. 4). CBS: The Waltons, Thursday Night Movies (Sept. 11). ABC: Barney Miller, On the Rocks-x, Streets of San Francisco and Harry O (Sept. 11).
FRIDAY — NBC: Sanford and Son, Chico and the Man, Rockford Files, Police Woman (Sept. 12). CBS: Big Eddie-x (Sept. 19), M-A-S-H, Hawaii Five-O (Sept. 12), Barnaby

Jones (Sept. 19). ABC: Mobile One-x, Friday Night Movies (Sept. 12).
SATURDAY — NBC: Emergency, Saturday Night Movies (Sept. 13). CBS: The Jeffersons, Doc-x, Mary Tyler Moore, Bob Newhart, Carol Burnett (Sept. 13). ABC: Saturday Night Live with Howard Cosell (Sept. 20), S.W.A.T. (Sept. 13), Matt Helm-x (Sept. 20).
ABC's "S.W.A.T." and CBS' "Kojak," "Hawaii Five-O" and "M-A-S-H" will be doubly long in their season-openers. It means two hours for each of the cop shows and an hour for the Army medics on opening night.
If that's not enough, CBS has two of its gumshoes — "Cannon" and "Barnaby Jones" — sleuthing for opposing forces in a murder case next month. It's a two-episode case, starting with "Cannon" on Sept. 17 and getting solved in the Sept. 19 season premiere of "Barnaby Jones."

U.S. Ad Costs Said Highest
NEW YORK (UPI) — It costs U.S. merchants a staggering $110.78 per person annually to get their advertising messages across to the public — the highest ad expense in the world, reports The National Enquirer.
A worldwide survey conducted by the International Advertising Association found that Switzerland ranked second with per-person ad spending at $76.63. But in Ethiopia the advertising outlay was only 2 cents for each citizen — the world's lowest.
The association said that U.S. ad costs — part of the $40 billion annual world wide expenditures — include printed advertising, outdoor and transportation ads, radio, TV, direct mail, exhibitions, displays and sales promotions.

Time Wasted By Most Students
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — A professor who has made a 45-year study of American college students concludes that the average student doesn't learn much and quickly forgets even that. Prof. Theodore Newcomb, a psychology professor at the University of Michigan, says all college does for a student is give him a degree that certifies him as a graduate and enables him to find work.

Enzyme Tests For The Heart

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — At a recent session of the Oregon Heart Assn., doctors were told of a sophisticated new test that sorts out the particular enzyme in the blood which indicates damage to heart muscles during a heart attack. The test holds dramatic promise of help for persons who have coronary.

The speaker was Dr. Burton F. Sobel, director of the cardiovascular division of Barnes and Wohl hospitals, St. Louis. He said that although doctors have used an enzyme test for several years to show the difference between enzymes lost by the heart muscle and the same lost from other body muscles, the new method is faster.

"By doing hourly tests," the doctor said, "and feeding information into a computer, we believe we can now predict how big the heart attack is going to be before it is completed."

The Colonial Children's Schoolbook, compiled about 1690, was used for 150 years and combined reading and religious instruction.
