

EAMON de VALERA

Free-Ireland Leader Dies

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Eamon de Valera, the tall, scholarly, New York-born revolutionary who rose from guerrilla leader to prime minister and president of the Irish Republic, died today in a nursing home at the age of 92.

Ireland planned a full state funeral for "Dev," the last of the rebel commanders to surrender in the 1916 Easter Rebellion and the one who told the British, "I am De Valera. Shoot me, but spare my men."

He was three times prime minister of the Irish Republic and twice president, retiring after his second seven-year term in 1973 to the nursing home where he died.

He had been in failing health for years.

Members of his family and staff were at his bedside as his condition worsened. An official statement said he died of bronchial pneumonia and cardiac failure.

His body is to lie in state at Dublin Castle for two days and he will be buried at Glasnevin Cemetery.

Beginning with the Easter rebellion in 1916, De Valera fought with single-minded determination to forge an independent Ireland. He became its first prime minister in 1937 and its president in 1959.

After 14 years in the presidency, he retired in 1973 at the age of 90 and bowed out of public life. Though his gaunt, 6-foot-3 frame was still ramrod straight and his mind was still quick, behind his thick glasses his eyes were almost totally sightless.

De Valera's wife, Sinead, died on Jan. 7, their 65th wedding anniversary, at the age of 97. They had been living in separate nursing homes since last year.

The De Valeras had seven children. One died in a riding accident in the 1930s. The other six — and 17 grandchildren — were all present for the couple's golden wedding anniversary celebration in January 1960.

De Valera was the man who, perhaps more than any other, broke the might of the British Empire and showed scores of colonial nationalists the road to independence. A prototype of nationalist leaders, he progressed from agitation and guerrilla warfare through imprisonment to power.

And to millions of Irishmen at home and scattered around the world the tall, gaunt, somber-looking De Valera was Erin incarnate. The Irish poet William Butler Yeats once said of him, "He is a living argument rather than a living man."

Others said he was "the man who became the country."

FPC Revises Purchasing Rule Natural Gas Outlook Brightens

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility that a shortage of natural gas will shut down any industry in North Carolina this winter has become more remote. The Federal Power Commission issued an order Thursday allowing industries to buy gas directly from the wells.

There are 186 gas-dependent industries in North Carolina, including textile giants such as Burlington Industries and Cannon Mills.

Raymond Nery, chief gas engineer for the North Carolina Utilities Commission, said about a dozen industries have expressed interest in getting gas this more expensive way.

Pipeline Co., could force the closing of some industries in a normal or a very cold winter. The industries employ 70,000 workers.

A mild winter probably would mean they would have no problem.

And in any case, gas company officials foresee an adequate supply for homes, schools and stores.

The manager of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass plant in Shelby, Jack Schweppe, said the plant would take advantage of the FPC order and buy gas on its own. It had already made plans to buy propane and oil as alternatives.

Cannon Mills said it had been actively seeking to arrange the private purchase of gas.

Sixteen governors met with President Ford Thursday and urged that price regulations on natural gas be suspended for five years. This would test the theory that supplies would increase with higher prices.

Among those at the meeting was Gov. James Holshouser of North Carolina. He said at a news conference that a severe winter could mean gas shortages for stores and homes in North Carolina. But the state energy chief, Paul Hitchcock, said later that only isolated areas—primarily Hendersonville—might be hit that hard.

Sinai Accord Completion Ready This Weekend

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — With the new Israeli-Egyptian agreement expected to be ready for initialing Sunday or Monday, aides say Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will delay his speech to the United Nations next week so he can wrap up the agreement before leaving.

When he began his mission nine days ago, Kissinger said he intended to address the special U.N. General Assembly session on Sept. 1 or 2 and, if necessary, return to the Middle East to complete the pact.

But aides said that now that an agreement is in sight and no setbacks are anticipated, Kissinger has decided to delay his U.N. speech until next Wednesday, Sept. 3.

He added that there is "a good possibility" the pact would be initialed Sunday or Monday.

Diplomatic sources disclosed several important provisions of the tentative draft pertaining to Israel's commerce.

One clause provides for Egypt and Israel to recognize the Bab el Mandeb strait at the southern end of the Red Sea as an international waterway. This in effect would pledge Egypt not to interfere with shipping passing through the strait to Elat, Israel's southern port, including Iranian oil.

Egypt also will agree to allow Israeli cargo to pass through the Suez Canal, and the semi-official Israeli state radio said cargo for Israel may begin moving through the waterway before the pact is signed.

The Palestine Liberation Organization announced in Beirut that it had formed a commission to plan ways of sabotaging the agreement, which it called a "dangerous American plot."

Four Israeli jets on Thursday attacked a Palestinian refugee camp near the Lebanese port of Tyre, a guerrilla training site nearby and a Mediterranean pier used by guerrillas.

Blocks Ingram Rates

RALEIGH (AP)—A Wake County Superior Court judge entered a temporary restraining order today blocking implementation of new automobile insurance rates ordered by state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

Judge James H. Pou Bailey issued the order in response to a suit filed against the new rate schedule by the insurance industry. The temporary injunction will prevent the new rates from going into effect on Sept. 2 as scheduled.

Ingram's rate plan would eliminate age and sex as criteria in setting liability and collision insurance rates. A driver's premium would be determined by his driving record and years of experience.

Despite heavy opposition from the insurance industry, the 1975 General Assembly approved Ingram's proposal to eliminate age and sex as factors in rate setting.

Ingram later rejected a plan proposed by the industry-run North Carolina Automobile Rate Administrative office for a new rate system. He said the industry plan did not tax serious offenders enough and was too severe in additional charges for minor violations.

While Bailey's temporary injunction is in effect, North Carolina drivers will continue paying the rates they are paying now. For men under 25 with clean driving records, that would mean paying about $250 a year for liability coverage instead of about $70 a year provided in Ingram's plan.

The insurance industry contends that the rate schedule will not raise enough money to provide companies with expenses and losses and still provide a reasonable profit.

The rate office also contends Ingram exceeded his authority in using his own plan instead of the one offered by the office.

Death Sentences

WILSON, N.C. (AP)—Two Greenville men have been sentenced to death for the murder of a Wilson service station operator who died in a hospital a month after he was shot during a robbery.

Superior Court Judge Bradford Tillery pronounced the mandatory death sentence Thursday afternoon after a Wilson County jury found Victor Foust and William Earl Matthews guilty of first degree murder.

An earlier trial ended in a mistrial when the jury was unable to reach a verdict.

A medical examiner testified that the service station operator, Donald Mayo, died of complications arising from the shooting in February.

The jury deliberated about 30 minutes before returning the guilty verdict at the close of the two-week trial.

Sen. Morgan Hears Complaints Of Bureaucracy And Red Tape

FARMVILLE—More than a score of people met with U.S. Senator Robert Morgan here yesterday afternoon — his eighth stop on a week-long tour of Eastern North Carolina designed to find out how his constituents feel about the problems and issues facing them today.

Morgan said Tuesday, while meeting with people in Williamston, that he has had a rash of complaints about bureaucracy and federal red tape, as well as inflation and the rising cost of living.

The same held true here yesterday as a number of those speaking to the Senator expressed their concern about high prices and the federal bureaucracy.

Others here during the two-hour afternoon session, like Sam Bundy, a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives simply wanted to greet Morgan, although Bundy did say "I thought I might tell him a thing or two I've been hearing."

chairman of the Board of Trustees of ECU, and North Carolina Attorney General before being elected to the U.S. Senate in 1974.

Morgan commented that "I'm proud that at long last the medical school (at ECU) is going... seems to be nailed down."

The Senator was one of the leaders in the fight for the establishment of a medical school at the Greenville campus and strongly supported expansion of the school to a four-year degree granting program.

Today, Morgan was scheduled to visit Kinston and Goldsboro, the last stops on his swing through the East.

Last week, Morgan made a similar tour of the Piedmont, sampling the views of the residents of central North Carolina.

'Glomar' At Sea

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mystery ship Glomar Explorer has left Catalina Island off the coast of California amid speculation it will again try to raise a sunken Russian submarine in the mid-Pacific.

The Explorer, registered to billionaire recluse Howard Hughes but owned by the federal government, got under way about noon Thursday and headed north, said George Hudson of the Catalina Cove and Camp Agency. He has been watching the ship since it arrived at the resort island about 30 miles off Los Angeles.

The vessel was joined by its companion five-story submersible barge, the HMB1, which accompanied the Explorer last summer when it tried to raise a Soviet sub 750 miles northwest of Hawaii.

A huge claw on the craft retrieved a 38-foot portion of the submarine — along with the bodies of several Soviet sailors — in the effort allegedly sponsored by the Central Intelligence Agency.

The Explorer, ostensibly built for undersea exploration, left Long Beach last week and arrived about a quarter-mile off Catalina Saturday for unspecified tests with the barge.

Reelection Bid By Councilman

Joseph M. Taft Jr. became the first incumbent City Councilman to file for reelection in the upcoming October balloting when he paid his filing fee on Thursday afternoon and officially announced his candidacy.

Taft is completing his first term as a Councilman on the six-member governing board.

A Greenville native, the 38-year-old councilman is a partner in Taft Furniture, Co. here.

Taft, who filed with the Pitt Board of Elections, commented, "Greenville is a very progressive city with good city government. I would like to see Greenville continue to be an example for all of Eastern Carolina."

The businessman continued, "Because of organized planning and zoning, recreational facilities and public services, Greenville is a good place to live

Court Fight Begun On Custody Of Seized Car

DETROIT (AP) — A court fight has begun over the custody of a car driven on the day Jimmy Hoffa disappeared. There were reports that trained dogs detected scents of the ex-Teamsters boss in the auto.

The car's owner, Joseph Giacalone, 22, son of reputed Detroit Mafia figure Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, filed a request in U.S. District Court Thursday seeking the return of his car. The auto was seized by the FBI on Aug. 9 and remains in federal custody.

However, a federal prosecutor said investigators have refused to release the car because it may hold a clue to the fate of the 62-year-old Hoffa, who dropped from sight on July 30.

Hoffa's foster son, Charley "Chuckie" O'Brien, whom officials consider a central figure in the case, has said he drove young Giacalone's car near where Hoffa vanished at about the time Hoffa disappeared.

Robert Ozer, who heads the U.S. Attorney's Organized Crime Strike Force here, said authorities could not hold the car if it had no "evidentiary value" in the case, but he declined to say what that value might be.

Sources close to the investigation said that trained dogs used by the FBI detected Hoffa's scent in the car.

"Obviously, the FBI cannot simply hold the car without good reason," Ozer said. "If there were no reason to hold the car, we would have given it back. But we've refused."

Young Giacalone's court suit was scheduled for a hearing before Judge Robert DeMascio on Tuesday.

A brief filed by Giacalone's attorney charged the car was seized and is being held illegally. It also accuses the government of violating Giacalone's constitutional rights because a federal warrant under which the car was seized did not show "probable cause that any federal crime was committed inside or in connection with the car."

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

PICTURE RECEIVED
I got all my son's senior pictures but one 11 by 14, which the Ampix Company in Durham said was not ready but would be sent within the week. That was in June. I have written them since and have made a long distance call to them, but it has done no good. That picture cost $14.95, paid in advance. I'm at the point now that I'll take either the picture or a refund, but I want one or the other. Mrs. L.B.

Hotline wrote to the company and the 11 by 14 must have been sent out to you by the next mail. You report you are very pleased with it.

CREDIT CERTIFICATES
I joined Columbia Record Club last Dec. 4 and have my canceled check for $1.97. I received only 10 of the 12 records promised me in the initial offer. I intend to keep my promise to order eight more records from the club, but not until they answer one of my three different letters about the records I did not receive. I have the invoice. Also, I'm being billed for the $1.97 I have already paid. L.F.

Hotline wrote to the company telling them exactly what you told us and asking that they stop the computer billing and communicate directly with you. Director of Operations John Sullivan answered by sending you two credit certificates and explaining that the $1.97 was for postage processing, and tax on your initial order—that it does not represent the original charge for your enrollment selections. You say you have already sent the company a check now that you understand the additional charge, along with your two long-awaited record choices.

EXPENSIVE LOSS. Firemen battle a tractor-trailer blaze Thursday behind Winn-Dixie that resulted in the total loss of both the vehicle and trailer contents. Leroy McMillan, driver of the truck owned by Carolina Storage Corp. of 2114 Atlantic Avenue.

Raleigh, told police that he heard an explosion beneath the cab and flames immediately enveloped the vehicle. Damage to the cargo of merchandise was estimated at $15,000 while the truck loss was set at $20,000. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Fresh Wave Of School Strikes To Mark Opening

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

A fresh wave of teacher strikes will mark the opening of school this year in cities and towns across the country. New York, Los Angeles and Chicago, the nation's three largest cities, all face possible strikes and a nationwide survey by The Associated Press found contract negotiations stalled in hundreds of smaller school districts. Teachers have scheduled strike votes, printed picket signs and are already marching in some communities.

The National Education Association says that 19 teachers strikes are already in progress, most in small communities. Strikes are considered a possibility in 130 other districts, and the total will probably equal the 40 to 50 strikes that greeted the opening of school last year, NEA officials said.

Teacher salaries remain the main issue in most disputes, AP reporters found. Job security and class size run a close second as school boards fight to trim budgets. Teachers are also fighting to hang on to preparation periods, sabbatical leaves and other fringe benefits won in recent years.

The teacher surplus — unimagined a few years ago — has had a major impact on negotiations.

About 2.1 million teachers will be on hand as an estimated 44.7 million pupils return to public schools this fall. But another 200,000 qualified teachers could not find teaching jobs, including 115,000 of the 220,000 persons who graduated from college last June with teaching degrees, according to federal statistics.

"Job security has become a principal issue in negotiations, especially with the glut of teachers on the market," said Ralph Vatalaro, executive director of the Public Employment Relations Board in New York State. "With the economy bad and school enrollment down, especially in large cities, school boards are trying to cut back on staffs."

Strike threats have been voiced by teachers from New York to San Francisco.

"No contract, no work" say representatives of New York City's 60,000 teachers, and school board and union spokesmen said Thursday they were far apart on a new agreement. A cost-of-living increase is the main issue, and neither side will say what has been offered.

Los Angeles school officials offered teachers a 4.5 per cent pay boost. "The offer was ridiculous and was rejected out of hand," says the teachers' union chief.

The contract of Chicago's 33,000 teachers expires Sunday and leaders of the Chicago Teachers Union have recommended a strike if there is no new agreement before school opens next Wednesday. School officials say 1,500 teaching positions have to go because of reduced state aid and the union isn't happy with what that will do to class size.

But it isn't just a big-city problem. Teachers in Marion, Ind., have voted to strike next Tuesday; Tiverton, R.I., teachers have a strike-vote meeting scheduled, and teachers in Selma, a farm town in California's San Joaquin Valley, opened a "crisis center" after school officials rejected their request for contract mediation.

Picketing is underway in Nampa, Idaho and Great Falls, Mont., and strikes are underway in five Illinois communities — Belvidere, Harlem, Mattoon, Spring Valley and Urbana.

Former Tarzans Unite To Mark A Centennial

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When four former screen Tarzans get together to celebrate the birthday centennial of creator Edgar Rice Burroughs, you can expect a lot of yelling.

Johnny Weissmuller, now 71, threw back his head, cupped a hand to his mouth and belted. The "Aaaaieeoo!" that came forth was not quite up to the ape man yell he made famous in 12 Tarzan movies.

Nor were the yells attempted by Buster Crabbe, James Pierce and Jock Mahoney, who participated in a Burroughs centennial luncheon Thursday at the opening of the North American Science Fiction Convention.

Joining them were three former Janes — Eve Brent, Joyce McKenzie and Louise Lorraine. Crabbe and Weissmuller said Tarzan and Jane were not lovers — he was merely protecting her.

Weissmuller disputes claims that his Tarzan yell was a blend of various voices and sounds.

"My parents came from Austria and I used to yodel with them when I was a kid," he said. "When it came time to do the yell I just yodeled."

The former Olympic swimmer was the sixth movie — and first talking — Tarzan. Pierce, 71, was the last silent Tarzan.

Weissmuller contends the fictional hero will go on forever.

The Communist Manifesto was issued by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels in 1848.

And from the look of things, he may be right. Burroughs created Tarzan in 1911 and there is no end in sight.

Besides the 26 Tarzan books, which are back in print, the ape man is being exploited in hundreds of products on the market, from Frisbees to clothing to toys to jewelry to a limited edition $3,000 statue of Tarzan and the Golden Lion.

The old Tarzan radio series, starring Pierce and his wife, Joan Burroughs Pierce, the creator's daughter, is being reissued. It is estimated that one of the 40 Tarzan movies or 51 television shows is shown somewhere in the world every day.

Robert Towne, who won an Academy Award for writing "Chinatown," is working on a screenplay for a new $5 million epic of Tarzan.

"It didn't just happen," said Robert Towne, president of the Burroughs family business, located in Tarzana, the section of Los Angeles named after the ape man. "We engineered it. It's the kind of thing that feeds on itself."

In the new movie, Tarzan will be the articulate, erudite Lord Greystoke, who sat in the British House of Lords. Burroughs, who died in 1950, could never tolerate the inarticulate "Me Tarzan, You Jane" screen versions.

Reagan had indicated earlier this year that he was giving some thought to running as a third-party candidate.

But in an interview here, broadcast on the NBC "Today" show, Reagan said, "I don't have much faith in the third-party movement."

"I think a third-party usually succeeds in electing the people they set out to oppose. I don't think that's the way to go."

Reagan said earlier that he did not think a challenge to Ford would be harmful to GOP unity.

Around $2,700 Raised In Fund-Raising Walk

The Walk For Development fund raising benefit project held late this past spring has resulted in a collection of approximately $2,700, according to Rev. Robert E. Clyde, former chaplain of the Baptist Student Center. Clyde, who has been coordinator of the event for the past four years, is leaving this week for a one year study-leave in California.

This year, Clyde pointed out, about two-thirds of the proceeds went to support of local projects, with about one-third earmarked for foreign needs designated through the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board. In previous years, 42.5 per cent was turned over to local needs, 42.5 per cent went to foreign assistance programs, and 15 per cent was earmarked for administration. Beginning this year, none of the funds collected in this national fund raising program are used for administrative costs.

"We are pleased with the successful results of this year's walk and with proceeds collected from previous walks," Clyde said. "In four years, Greenville residents have raised a little more than $10,000 through Walk For Humanity. I feel this is something for the people of Greenville to be proud of."

Local groups and agencies receiving funds this year are: Volunteer Greenville, $700; Boys' Club Summer Day Camp Program, $500; Meadowbrook Day Care Center, $250; and "The Paper," a local information publication, $250.

Some $1,000 of the funds collected this year were assigned for hunger relief programs in Bangladesh and Vietnam.

John Miller, Sr., Presbyterian chaplain for East Carolina University (Westminster Fellowship) was 1975's top earner for pledges, bringing in a total of $620 to the Walk For Development Fund. Father Charles Mulholland was the oldest walker taking part this year.

Two walkers, Leah Long and Barbara Turner, were recognized by Clyde for having walked a total of 100 miles during the past four years.

Miss Barbara Grimsley Weds Joseph Ray Briley

The chapel of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church was the scene of the Thursday evening ceremony of Barbara Helen Grimsley and Joseph Ray Briley.

The Rev. James H. Bailey performed the double ring ceremony at 7:00 p.m. A program of organ music was presented by Dr. David Foster.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Marcus L. Grimsley of Rt. 1, Winterville, and Mrs. Herman R. Briley of Maury, and the late Mr. Briley.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a princess style gown in champagne satin designed with a high neckline and long sleeves. She wore a matching Juliet cap in satin attached to a finetip veil of illusion. The bride carried a Victorian bouquet of white roses embedded in baby's breath trimmed with satin streamers of white bridal ribbon.

Mrs. Denise Mills of Greenville, sister of the bride, was the honor attendant. She was dressed in a blue floral formal gown of organza fashioned with a V-neckline accented with a ruffle and three-quarter length sleeves finished with a flowing cuff. The gown was finished at the waistline with a blue ribbon belt and the skirt was highlighted with a ruffle hem. Her matching headpiece was attached to illusion and she carried a lavender cattleya orchid laced with variegated greenery tied with lavender satin streamers.

The best man was Neil White of Suffolk, Va., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and the usher was Jerry Grimsley of Winterville, brother of the bride.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and attended ECU, where she is employed in the personnel department. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School and Pitt Technical Institute. He is now an instrumentation technician with Procter and Gamble.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor.

The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of mixed summer flowers. Mrs. Margaret Grimsley, sister-in-law of the bride, served wedding cake.

If Hair's Unwelcome Daughter May Split

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 21, and she's a very good girl who's never given us a moment's worry.

The trouble is her steady boyfriend, who is 23. I don't doubt that he is a very nice person, but he looks like a wild man from prehistoric times. He has a big bushy Afro and a beard to match. Only his eyes and nose show.

I asked my daughter once, "How do you kiss him goodnight? Isn't it hard to find his lips?"

Abby, I'm just about ready to tell her that either her boyfriend has to get rid of all that hair, or I don't want her to bring him around me.

She is our only child and we don't want to lose her love. Please advise.

ALLENTOWN, PA.

DEAR ALLENTOWN: Accept the young man as he is. And if you don't quit hassling your daughter about her boyfriend's hair, you won't see hide nor hair of either of 'em.

DEAR ABBY: We have four grown children. Three are married, and the fourth is leaving for college soon. We are faced with an important decision. Should we sell our big home? Or should we keep it so the children can come and visit us and bring their families? (Two live out of town.)

Our home is very saleable, and we could realize a nice profit. It's awfully big for Dad and me to rattle around in, plus the yard is a lot to take care of.

Dad and I are thinking we might enjoy an apartment, so that if we feel like taking off for a little vacation, we can just turn the key and leave. Also, perhaps later on, we might want to retire to a warmer climate.

Are we selfish for thinking of giving up our house? Perhaps some readers who have experienced this predicament will write in and give us the pros and cons. "TO SELL OR NOT TO SELL"

DEAR TO: I'll ask. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I are to be married in eight weeks. We've been engaged for two years. We've made all the arrangements, reserved the church, talked to the minister, bought my gown and addressed the invitations. The only thing we haven't done yet is mail them.

My question is: Should we mail the invitations? The fact is that my fiance is still seeing the girl he went with before we became engaged.

He says he loves me, and wants to marry me, but he wants to keep seeing this other girl a little while longer. I tried to explain that if he wants to keep seeing her, she must be very important to him, in which case we should call off our wedding.

He tells me I'm wrong—that I'm the one he loves, but my heart tells me he is only going through with the wedding because he doesn't want to hurt me.

I am too much in love to think straight. Please help me. I asked my mother, and she says I should go through with the wedding. Should I?

TORN

DEAR TORN: No! Better a broken engagement than a broken marriage later. Your fiance is conning you.

Fewer Abortions Are Performed In Japan

By KATHRYN TOLBERT TOKYO (AP) — Thousands of foreign women used to come to Japan for abortions.

Most of them came from the United States for the operation that was safe, relatively cheap and permitted by Japanese law. One maternity clinic in Tokyo did abortions for nearly 3,000 American women in 1971.

After abortions became legal in the United States, the number of patients coming to Japan dropped nearly to zero and Dr. Yoichiro Yanagita, head of the clinic, said it caused some gynecological clinics in Tokyo to close.

"Before abortion became legal in the United States, it was like a conveyor belt system," he said. "Patients were met at the airport and escorted directly to the clinic. Those in the early stages of pregnancy stayed one night or two nights at most."

American women pay a little more for the operation than Japanese women do. Ten years ago it cost them about $60 while Japanese women paid $30 to $45. Now, an early stage abortion for a Japanese woman costs about $170, although a women's liberation counseling group said one can be had for as little as $100. For the foreign patients it may run 20 per cent higher, because of the extra time and care extended them, a doctor said.

The few foreigners who come to Japan for abortions now are either in relatively late stages of pregnancy or are from the wealthy of foreign communities in Southeast Asian nations where abortion methods are not considered advanced.

While the number of Japanese women having abortions is going down as the use and knowledge of contraceptives spreads, an estimated one out of three married women under age 50 has had at least one abortion.

This high proportion resulted in part from the low number of women previously practicing contraception. One newspaper survey said only 19.5 per cent of Japan's women used various contraceptive methods in 1950, with the percentage exceeding 60 for the first time this year.

In Japan an estimated 13,000 doctors are licensed to perform abortions.

In 1960, doctors reported 1,063,000 abortions, and in 1973 the number had dropped to 700,000. Feminist groups say the actual numbers for those years were twice as large, with doctors submitting lower figures to avoid reporting their true incomes to tax authorities. Since most abortions are done in small clinics with only one doctor and a nurse, false figures can go undetected.

Indian Jewelry Often Imitated

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Writer

Many people "are being ripped off" by the Indian jewelry craze, says Diane Schulz. "Few people know what it is all about and it makes it easier to be cheated."

The jewelry is now being made in Japan, Mexico and even in factories in our own Southwest, she insists.

Mrs. Schulz, who shows her jewelry collection at antiques shows, has been involved with Indian jewelry since early girlhood. Her father, William Kruzman, a trader in the Southwest for the last 20 years, has taken her with him on buying trips.

"In some instances the intent is not to cheat people," she says of people who sell the jewelry. "They usually don't know enough about the jewelry to answer questions. Then, too, most buyers don't know enough about it to ask the right questions."

She specializes in Zuni jewelry because she considers it the best investment. The Zunis are a small tribe and the art is really dying — younger people don't want to do the handwork it requires because it is too time-consuming. In addition, Zuni designs require great expertise. And there is much less Zuni work available.

There are "some out-of-this-world Navajo artisans, but much Navajo is copied," she claims. "Zuni is more difficult to copy and would need to be expensive."

A Harvard business school graduate, for seven years Mrs. Schulz has been a Certified Public Accountant and manager with Coopers and Lybrand, an international public accounting firm. She exhibits at the National Arts and Antiques Festival in New York and has a small exhibit at the Montclair Art Museum in New Jersey.

"Many people think only old pieces are good, but you may pay the same price for a good new piece and it will be equally good in terms of investment," she explains.

One style of jewelry that has taken hold in New York, she contends, is silver that looks like aluminum foil with turquoise or coral crushed and set inside the silver. "Years ago one Indian family made this jewelry in excellent heavy silver, but now it looks like foil and most of it is not made by Indians," she says.

A person buying Indian jewelry should go to a reputable store and ask whether the turquoise is natural or treated — much of it is being treated by various processes — what kind of turquoise it is and what grade it is. He should obtain a guarantee in writing, especially if the piece is expensive. Turquoise should be dark with good matrix, she says, but "you must almost be expert to tell." People are not demanding enough information so shops are not bothering to educate sales people, she adds.

At one auction a Zuni fire dancer bracelet, a mother of pearl disk with a dancer inlay, was marked down from $550 to $350, but the price was identical to one she had observed in a good retail store. It is often difficult to ascertain the retail value of a one-of-a-kind piece.

Buyers should not be concerned that a piece is unsigned. Unless it is signed by one of the few well-known Indian artisans — Charles Loloma, who works in many styles, or Portfelia Shaka, a Zuni artisan — the signature may be meaningless, she says. But some traders encourage Indians to sign as they consider it a good selling point.

Indian jewelry is not a fad, in her opinion. With some women who must have everything it might be, but the jewelry "has reawakened a whole new market."

Zuni jewelry is popular because the various motifs — road runners, hummingbirds, sun gods, butterflies, bees and the like — make it so collectible.

The Zuni ceremonial necklace Mrs. Schulz was wearing — mother-of-pearl, coral and turquoise inlay — should sell for about $2,000, she said, but it would be about twice that in some stores.

THE REAL THING—This turquoise ceremonial bracelet, fetich necklace and eagle dancer on bolo tie are authentic Indian designs made by Zuni artisans.

Layered Look Is Preferred For Back-To-School Clothes

By GAY PAULEY UPI Women's Editor NEW YORK (UPI) — The first lesson for back to school dressing is easy. Spell layer.

Then work your way through rugged, worker-type clothes, bulky looks, pants, big tops, sweaters, jumpsuits, t-shirts, stripes, denims, patchworks and corduroys, and you have passed the fashion test.

Mark an A-plus for girls with tunics; also, scarves, rope belts, jumpers and pinafores.

For boys, credit the classics, the mix and match coordinates, the just-like-Dad looks and superheroes like Batman. The key to the whole thing, however, is layering. Pile on the garments or subtract them as the weather dictates. Clothes meant for layering usually are nonbulky lightweights.

Start with a skirt and turtle neck sweater, add a plaid shirtdress that is shorter than the first skirt, and top off with the a coatdress worn open.

The same idea goes for boys: pants in solids, turtleneck sweaters in bold horizontal stripes, shirts topped with wide-necked sweaters, and everywhere the blazers.

A check with major fiber manufacturers, mail order firms and stores showed the Chinese influence seeping down to the smallest ones.

Montgomery Ward's Frank Hinds reported a Chinese influence in high collars, frog closings, braid trims. Look also for copies of the worker jacket, quilted, and done in denims.

J.C. Penney fashion coordinator Lois Ziegler spelled fall and winter classics as "pieces to build a wardrobe from and add to in seasons to come ... a pulled together look we haven't seen in a long time."

Softness is the message with both fabric and shape, the silhouette under control with fullness coming from yokes, gathers, tucks or belting.

Length no longer is an issue, but skirts and dresses are longer. So are the coats that go over them.

Colors are earthy, or soft and dusty. Solid fabrics take a strong stand, alongside patchworks, paisleys, and plaids.

With solids come little details: pockets, top stitching, self ruffles, big zippers, and toggle closings.

Accessorize with boots, scarves of every variety, stoles, cinch belts, berets, natural jewelry and the ubiquitous shoulder bags.

Sweaters are big and bulky, or else they're skinny body huggers. Blouses are soft with little details such as cuffs, ruffles and lace.

Smocks look great alone or layered, belted or loose.

Monsanto, a fibers house, says a major departure from pants is in big dressing, close to the body at the top, with shaped seamings at bodice, tucking and top stitching. Many dresses have short sleeves to permit layering over turtle-necks.

Jumpers, once as much a part of back to school as lunch pails and reluctant scholars, are again in the foreground because of their versatility.

With overall bib tops or copies of workmen's aprons, they can be layered over turtle-necks or shirts and look new with embroidery trims — moons, apples, mushrooms and animals.

The rage for pinafores goes on. You'll see variations of bib with skirt or bib with pants.

Knits and faded denims continue the leading fabrics in children's wear. Solids are jazzed up with embroidery and appliques. Patterns run from ethnic styling to Western with nail studding.

Girls' shoes come with flatter soles and a softer look. For sportswear, choose from crepe-soled ghillies and boots to classic kiltie loafers. Dressier shoes are feminine t-strap on low wedges or the flat black ballet slipper look.

The outerwear industry, reporting an increase in both production and sales, said it would hold the line on prices. The overall increase would be fractional: nine tenths.

A report prepared for the National Outerwear and Sportswear Association highlighted the growing importance of leather. It said leather garment production in 1974 represented 17.1 per cent of all units produced, and that the current year would be another strong one.

But the big three of outerwear fabrics also increased their share of yardage. They are 100 per cent cotton, 100 per cent nylon, and the polyester blends.

Prolonged Process Faces HEW

A showdown with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare over North Carolina's higher education system might not be as eminent as it seems.

The Greensboro Daily News reports that, if HEW follows up on a threat to cut off federal funds, the administrative procedures could take three to four years. And during that time it is entirely possible that the issues could be resolved and the cutoff never carried out.

In the meantime the fund cutoff would wind through the administrative procedures of HEW, and then possibly the federal courts. There would be hearings before an administrative law judge, a review by a HEW-appointed board and final approval by the secretary of HEW. Finally the matter would go to Congress for 30 days before an actual funds cut off.

North Carolina could also call on the federal courts to review the HEW proceedings at anytime in the process.

Nor is North Carolina the only state facing HEW's ire. Complaints have been sent to Virginia, Maryland, Florida, Arkansas, Pennsylvania and Oklahoma, and two other states, Mississippi and Louisiana, have been referred to the Department of Justice for enforcement.

Maryland's Governor Marvin Mandel was agitated by the action and challenged HEW to begin cutoff proceedings.

Mandel saw "abusive tactics and harrassments" on the part of HEW in its threat to cutoff about $50 millions in federal funds for higher education in Maryland.

Based on all that we can see that North Carolina is not alone among the states in having problems with HEW; and also hopefully a lengthy process will be required before an actual funds cutoff takes place.

If HEW sincerely wants to see an overall plan implemented in North Carolina, we think it is likely that adequate positive results will be seen long before federal funds are cut off. If, however, the placement of a veterinary school is the sole basis of the HEW argument, then a long drawn out battle may lie ahead.

Bonn In Tight Squeeze

By ROON LEWALD
Associated Press Writer
BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany's worst post-war recession has put the Bonn government on a tightrope between the devil of unemployment and the deep blue sea of a record budget deficit.

In a move coordinated with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's cabinet this week approved a $2.3 billion stopgap spending program to provide jobs for hard-hit construction workers this winter.

The French government also announced a heavy spending program, especially in public works, that is expected to pump an extra $6 billion into the economy.

The Danish government, a third member of the European Economic Community, announced Thursday that it planned to spend $240 million on public works and job training, cut retail prices 5 per cent by reducing the value added tax and repay almost $175 million in compulsory savings.

Schmidt and Giscard coordinated their programs at a meeting last month after German unemployment hit over one million, or 4.5 per cent of the work force, and French jobless totaled nearly 900,000, or 4 per cent.

Schmidt's government does not pretend it can do more than help the hard-hit construction industry through the winter season, when some experts believe unemployment could hit a record 1.5 million.

Officials say government spending cannot hope to plug the estimated $11 billion export slump this year caused by the world trade recession.

This is regarded as the chief cause of West Germany's economic woes, but the government expects the U.S. and Japanese economies to lead a worldwide recovery wave late this year.

Reversions Avoid Red Ink

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—North Carolina's built-in dollar cushion—reversions—kept state government from going into the red ink for the past fiscal year.

It was, budget officials concede, touch and go for awhile.

Early returns on the past fiscal year (1974-75) showed revenue drops due to the recession which would put the state $54.8 million in the hole. That drop was supposed to be covered by the built-in cushion, projected by the experts at $52.4 million; still shy of the total needed.

"That we were close is technically correct... but reversions have changed that," says budget administrator James W. Piner.

Those reversions totaled $70.7 million—far exceeding the most ambitious projections previously mentioned.

The net result is that North Carolina can pay all the bills for the past fiscal year, and bank $54.9 million for use in the current (1975-76) fiscal year budget.

Already Committed
Of course all but $2 million of that surplus has already been committed in the new budget approved by the recently adjourned General Assembly. Reversions result from the simple fact that state agencies don't spend all the money they get from the budget actions of the General Assembly. Left over dollars go back to the treasury.

Piner said it is difficult to pinpoint specific places where dollar savings made the big difference, but two do stand out: the state mental hospitals started collecting Medicaid payments for patients in their care; and salary funds for state employees are usually set up for 12 months, but jobs often remain vacant for months and those amounts revert.

Budget officials are elated at the size of the cushion, and credit it with keeping North Carolina out of the monetary problems confronting some other states where employees have been fired or loans secured to pay current bills.

This state is forbidden by the Constitution to overspend the budget. If it appears such is happening, immediate steps including a special session of the General Assembly are indicated.

Not A Worry
Because of those factors, Piner says, there was "never a matter of worry... not a dreadful situation as far as balancing the budget. It was a matter of going ahead and gathering reversions to meet the credit balance needs."

Piner says the state will stay out of financial trouble as long as the mechanics for doing so remain intact.

Next year will prove that contention, the experts say. This year, reversions proved bigger than normal. Reversions for the current fiscal year are already budgeted for spending. Will they prove more, or less, than projected?

Legislators have pledged early attention to a salary raise for state employees next year. They were bypassed this year.

The cost of an across-the-board five per cent hike is about $68 million for one year. This year's $54.9 million is already committed otherwise—which leaves about $2 million surplus, plus current reversions as the cushion for next year.

Thus, legislators who have promised pay raises, promised to continue financing medical and veterinarian schools, promised continued expansion of public school kindergarten and early childhood screening will return to Raleigh next May to be greeted by estimates of less than enough money.

The options? New revenues, which mean raised taxes—an unlikely prospect in an election year; cutting programs; or trimming back on those stated intentions to spend more next year.

Insiders say bluntly the assembly "will be in a cutting posture in 1976."

The INSIDE REPORT

The Alliance Has Soured

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ANKARA—Even if the U.S. Congress repeals its embargo on U.S. or U.S.-made military equipment for once-praised Turkey, the alliance between Washington and Ankara which has survived a quarter-century of American twists and turns seems beyond total repair.

"Can it really be true that 3 million Greek-Americans tell 220 million other Americans how to run their country?" Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel asked rhetorically in an exclusive interview with us.

"You Congress must know that denying us even spare parts to keep our planes flying and our tanks running, while selling hundreds of millions worth of new equipment to Greece, will seriously affect our safety. Let me assure you, we shall not wait until Greece has a stronger air force than Turkey."

Strip away the rhetoric of hyperbole from such pronouncements and this bareboned political fact remains: Turkey, whose soldiers died for the U.S. in Korea and which (unlike Norway and Denmark) has accepted U.S.-controlled "special ammunition sites" (a euphemism for nuclear ordnance), is quietly speculating about new foreign and military approaches that would permanently downgrade the U.S.

Demirel, who heads a jerry-built, multi-party coalition, speaks with more restraint than his political adversaries. Indeed, he has been attacked by the chief opposition leader, Bulent Ecevit, a leftist who heads the largest party, for no retaliating harshly enough against the congressional ban on all military shipments.

"We have to rethink our whole national defense concepts and our contributions to the North Atlantic Alliance," Ecevit told us. "Even if the ban is lifted, we know now that we have been left alone once. It could happen again."

The congressional rationale for shutting off every avenue to U.S.-made American weapons—barring trans-shipment from other NATO countries—was based on a never-used proviso in the law designed to punish the use of U.S. weapons for offensive warfare (Turkey's invasion of Cyprus). Turkish officials insist there are many examples of U.S. allies violating this proviso with impunity (most particularly Israel).

Indeed, support for the embargo by many pro-Israel Congressmen shocked and saddened politicians in this Moslem nation of 40 million which has risked Arab wrath by maintaining diplomatic relations with Israel. The loss to the U.S. of intelligence from some of the most sensitive listen-and-look systems the U.S. has anywhere in the world could directly affect Israel.

It was these systems, for example, that informed the U.S. about a suspected major Soviet troop airlift at the most dangerous point in the October 1973 Arab-Israeli war. They were also important, if not essential, in proving to Turkey that Moscow was massively violating Turkish air space flying equipment to Syria during that conflict. Turkey demanded the overflights stop and they did.

More important from Washington's vantage point is loss of the primary source of intelligence data on Soviet missile performance. All this is now a casualty of Turkey's immobilization of U.S. bases here in retaliation for the arms embargo.

Turkey's first invasion of Cyprus last summer was inevitable, particularly in view of failure of the collapsing Nixon administration to react decisively against Greece for Specifically, he returned to our household a wallet which had been lost by a member of the family and which he, Bobby Carmon, found on the street. Furthermore, he refused any financial reward for performing this favor. This letter is simply another way of expressing my appreciation to Bobby Carmon for being the honest man he is and to the Street Maintenance Division for hiring such people as Mr. Carmon. The Missile Explained

(We are now talking about fourth-generation missiles. Despite their sophistication, the method of development seems to be the same as the first, second and third generations as proved by this article, written when President Kennedy was in the White House.)

WASHINGTON—In the now famous Air Force manual, withdrawn temporarily but not forgotten, one of the paragraphs aimed at Air Force Reservists said, "The idea that Americans have a right to know what is going on is foolish."

We poor, ignorant civilians can't be blamed then if we have to resort to conjecture about what is going on with such things as our missile program, which is no longer known as a missile program, but a missile gap.

I was as confused about our missiles as anyone else until I had lunch the other day with an industrialist who explained it to me. He asked that his name not be mentioned, and since the Air Force won't tell me their secrets I won't tell them mine.

"The trouble with most Americans," he said, "is that they think ideas for a new missile come from the top. On the contrary, most ideas for missiles are thought up by some $10,000-a-year civilian engineer in some tiny office thousands of miles from the Pentagon."

"Let me give you an example of how a missile is born. One day a civilian engineer has to think of something new, so he writes a paper suggesting we develop an anti-anti-missile missile.

"The civilian, after developing the paper at length, turns it over to a second lieutenant, just out of ROTC, who, knowing less than anyone, immediately signs it and passes it on. The captain over him adds his signature because he also doesn't understand it and doesn't have enough reasons for rejecting it. The paper continues on up through channels with more and more signatures, each officer signing it on the assumption that the guys down below know what they're doing. This is what is known in government circles as 'management from the bottom up.'

"Finally, it goes to the Pentagon who assumes the problem, on the basis of all the signatures, has been thoroughly studied, and they take it over to the Appropriations Committee who appropriate the money because they don't understand it either and, therefore, can't say it won't work.

"Besides, all they need to get the missile started is $10 million and, as long as it's such a reasonable request, no one wants to argue about it.

"As soon as the money is appropriated, the public relations people put out a release announcing their branch of the service will soon have an anti-anti-missile missile that, although not the final deterrent, will be the gap-filler which everyone has been waiting for 'until we catch up with the Russians.'

"The program is under way now and in no time at all the appropriations are used up. Nothing has come of the missile, but this is an advantage, not a disadvantage. The people in charge believe it is really an advanced idea, otherwise it would be working already. The reason it couldn't be done, according to the people in charge, is that there wasn't enough money. So appropriations are in-

To the editor:

Next week the school systems throughout this state initiate their programs for the 1975-1976 academic year. However, I wager anyone that one of the school's goals omitted is that of a major educational crisis which supersedes both our energy crisis and our economy decline. I have reference to the language crisis in our schools everywhere.

It is my belief that every product of the educational system should be able to express himself concisely, precisely, intelligently. Yet, from my observation, youngsters who graduate from high school and many of those who pass from one grade to another lack the basic tools of commanding the King's Language. What a handicapped individual is produced when the schools allow these unfortunate orphans to graduate from their institutions!

Too often students use cliches to express themselves; too often they use popular phrases and too often they use "uhms", "yea" and even vulgarity in their language. I hope it is the intention of all instructors, from Physical Education and Industrial Arts to Home Economics and English, to teach the pupils to use proper grammar and use the English language correctly. Personally, it is not surprising that foreigners speak English as well, if not better, than we Americans do.

Most Americans dislike the roles traditions, and values which Lenin and Stalin brought to Russia, which Mao brought to China, which Castro brought to Cuba, and which Elijah Muhammed taught the Black Muslims. Yet, these men of infinite knowledge and keen insight realized something in their teachings which American education has been oblivious to and still has not recognized. The moral which American education has failed to understand and which these men have mastered is that "too much freedom is as bad as too little freedom."

40 Years Ago Today

In a statement issued today, J.C. Lanier, formerly Tobacco Specialist with the AAA, urged flue-cured growers not to sell any tobacco at a price of less than 6 cents per pound.

He stated that a farmer having a poundage production in excess of his allotment actually loses money whenever he sells tobacco at a price less than 6 cents. In Lanier's opinion, the marketing of this low-grade tobacco tends to depress the price of the better grades.

Falls Far Short Of The Goals

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If you measure the federal government's performance by the Employment Act of 1946 you might be inclined to give it poor marks — in fact you might be incensed enough to flunk it.

That act committed government to promoting maximum employment, production and purchasing power. But, the achievement falls far short of the goals.

—More than eight million workers are jobless.

—Some industries are operating at less than 70 per cent of their production capacity.

—Real spendable earnings, that is, weekly pay adjusted for increases in prices and taxes, fell in six of the first seven months of the year.

What's to blame? Some grumblings among campus economists put the blame on the Ford administration for seeming to be content to accept a relatively high jobless rate.

A great many more analysts blame "conditions." No government has complete control over economic events, they explain. Instead, any government can only work with the conditions presented to it.

They suggest that when the law was written we were in a euphoric mood. We had just won the war; now we would win the peace, economic and otherwise. We wouldn't just shoot for goals; we would establish standards.

Some critics blame the law itself. It is almost contradictory, they say. It commits governments to pushing their resources to the limit, to always flirt with inflation, to take dangerous risks with economic stability.

To achieve maximum production and employment, they point out, is to court inflation. You cannot run your factories to the limit and force unemployment toward zero without simultaneously lighting the price fires.

In the effort to achieve the maximum, marginal production units are employed and inefficient labor is employed. This shows up in costs of production. And those costs are passed on in the form of higher prices.

Furthermore, goes the argument, no government can be so sensitive and skillful that it can know precisely when the maximum total benefits are being achieved. The statistical evidence on which an administration must rely is often too inconclusive and generally received too late.

In any event, this is a world economy. No trading nation has sufficient control of events to dictate what it is going to do. The business cycle can be exported from one country to another, like it or not.

While the law remains on the books, and most likely will continue to remain there, our interpretation of it is bound to change.

During the 1960s it was confidently believed that a jobless rate as low as 4 per cent could be attained without pushing inflation to more than 1 or 2 per cent. Few economists now accept that goal without reservations.

Among other things, events demonstrated that pure economics never can be practiced in a political world. At some point it is almost inevitable that a decision will be made to sacrifice jobs for prices or vice versa.

As a goal, the act still is valid. But the standards aren't what they used to be. Four per cent unemployment, at least, looks a long way off.

mont Baptist Church and entered Southeastern Seminary in the fall. In May, 1975, he was extended a call from the Fairview Baptist Church, West End, and at the request of the church, the South Roanoke Association Council on Ordination met in Greenville in July and recommended Jansen for ordination.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—One Birmingham resident said the area's strongest earthquake since 1957 shook him out of bed late Thursday, but a spokeswoman for the Jefferson County sheriff's office said all she felt was "just a little jiggle."

A spokesman for Birmingham police said a few callers reported rattling windows, dancing dishes and even one walking bed, but the tremor which struck shortly before midnight apparently inflicted no significant damage or injuries.

The quake, which struck at 11:22 p.m. CDT, was centered in the northern part of Birmingham and was felt as far away as 100 miles in north Alabama.

The National Earthquake Center in Golden, Colo., said the tremor registered 4.4 on the Richter Scale, the highest in the area since April 23, 1957.

A reading of 4 on the scale can cause moderate damage. The San Francisco quake of 1906 was 8.25.

Alabama residents just knew it was an unusual feeling for the deep South, and they lit up weather service and police switchboards.

"A few thousand of them," said the Birmingham police spokeswoman. "They just wanted to know what was going on."

In Haleyville, about 85 miles northwest of Birmingham, John Slatton, the owner of radio station WJBB, said the tremor lasted about 35 seconds and was stronger than three he'd felt previously in California.

A spokesman for the state patrol near Birmingham said he hadn't felt the tremor, but added that a friend did, "and he was scared to death."

Law enforcement authorities in Birmingham and throughout north Alabama said they had received no reports of damage or injuries and doubted they would.

A scare and some excitement but no harm was the verdict of a deputy with the Madison County sheriff's department near Huntsville 65 miles north of Birmingham.

"Just a lot of people up in the middle of the night," he said.

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT

AUGUST 19, 1975
City of Greenville
P. O. Box 1905
Greenville, North Carolina 27834
Telephone: (919) 752-4137
TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:
The City of Greenville proposes to request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) to be used for the following five projects:

- Project 1
A) Purchase of parcel of land at Eighth and Washington Streets
B) To be used as a parking lot in support of the Central Business District Renewal Project
C) To be located on Eighth and Washington Streets near the Central Business District
D) $24,000 - Project Costs
- Project 2
A) Architectural site plan for a proposed joint Recreation - Library facility
B) To locate a site and develop an architectural plan for the proposed facility
C) To be located in Census Enumeration District 21 in East Greenville
D) $20,000 - Project Costs
- Project 3
A) Landscaping of recreational facilities
B) To landscape and beautify the existing recreational facilities
C) These facilities are located on Elm Street, Howell Street, West Fifth Street, Line Avenue and First Street in Greenville
D) $25,000 - Project Costs
- Project 4
A) Renovation of the South Greenville Recreation Center
B) This project will provide needed structural repair to the existing facility and to upgrade part of the building to meet State day care licensing requirements
C) The project is located on Howell Street
D) $45,000 - Project Costs

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, the City of Greenville has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

The reasons for such a decision not to prepare such statements were as follows:

- Project 1
The proposed site is currently being used as a parking lot. There are no plans for improvements in the near future. The on-and-off-site environmental conditions of the site will remain as they now are. The Environmental Advisory Commission and the Mayor have determined that the current environmental conditions do not adversely affect the surrounding neighborhood.
- Project 2
The proposed site plan will examine all possible locations for the proposed joint Recreation - Library Center. This plan will take into consideration all the environmental factors of each site and, once a location has been selected, the site plan will insure that the proposed center will have no adverse impact on the environment. The site plan will provide for an aesthetically and environmentally pleasing center.
- Project 3
This project is designed to correct some existing adverse, environmental impacts. By landscaping the recreational centers, this project will halt much of the existing off-site erosion and decrease the amount of storm water runoff. It is also intended to provide for more aesthetically pleasing recreational facilities.
- Project 4
The renovation of the South Greenville Recreation Center is composed of interior improvements. No exterior additions are contemplated. The Environmental Advisory Commission and the Mayor have determined that this proposed renovation will have no impact on the environment inasmuch as only interior improvements are planned.

Project 5
The removal of architectural barriers at recreational centers for the elderly and handicapped will not involve any alteration of the existing environmental conditions. These improvements, which will expand recreational opportunities, will consist of minor structural alteration to existing walkways, entrance and exit ways and restrooms.

Environmental Review Records respecting the within projects have been made by the City of Greenville which document the environmental review of the projects and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. These Environmental Review Records are on file at the City Hall and are available for public examination and copying, upon request, at the City Planner's office, between the hours of 8:00 am and 5:00 pm during weekdays.

No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City of Greenville to the office of the Mayor. Such written comments should be received at the City Hall on or before September 22, 1975. All such comments so received will be considered and the City of Greenville will not request the release of Federal funds or take any administrative action on the written project prior to September 22, 1975.

Drowned In Flash Flood

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) Flash flooding from nearly three inches of rain took the life of a Charlotte teenager who was helping rescue stranded neighbors and knocked out electric power to several thousand homes Wednesday night and early Thursday.

Lyndon Maurice White, 16, rescued a neighbor's wife and baby and was headed back to help other stranded neighbors when he slipped into a rain-swollen creek.

His body, still clad in bright yellow wading trousers, was found hours later tangled in tree roots near a culvert.

"He rescued my baby," neighbor Michael Daniel said. "He was going back to help others when he fell."

Daniel said he was away from home when the flooding erupted late Wednesday night, shortly after Charlotte recorded more than two inches of rain within an hour.

He said young White went to his home, taking to safety Daniel's 5-month-old daughter and then returning to help Mrs. Daniel through the water.

"If it hadn't been for him, my baby might have drowned," Daniel said.

HOME

What is home? A blend of memories and mortar... walls and roof and smells of breakfast cooking... a place of rest at the end of the day... a feeling of possession, of belonging... a place of hates, loves, anger... center of things living.

Home may be a mansion on a hill, a cramped apartment, a farmhouse, a hotel, a new suburban split-level, the house Father built... but only to you and your family is it home. No one else may call it that. For home is a part of you!

Centuries ago a shepherd-poet felt this. Lonely seasons on the grazing slopes had taught him to love... to long for... HOME.

But he realized that, through this life and beyond, the nearness of God is part of the sense of home. Goodness and mercy would follow him all the days of his life. And he would dwell in the house of the Lord forever!

Experience-Loaded Ayden-Grifton Expects To Return To Loop's Top

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
(One of a series)

LITTLEFIELD—Last year about this time, Ayden-Grifton Football Coach Mike Overton was looking at his upcoming season with a few "if's," "and's" and "maybe's."

"If—we can find some people to do the job; 'and—if we can stay healthy and get some experience; then 'maybe—we will have a good year."

Overton had lost almost 20 players, 18 to be precise, off the previous year's Eastern Carolina Conference chamampionship team and as it turned out, the Chargers fell to their worst record in four years, 5-5.

Overton found the people to do the job but lost three key players to injuries that kept the Chargers out of the thick of things in the last of the season. But this year is a different story. Overton has nearly everybody back off that team that had 28 rookies. And his three injured players are all back at full strength.

The offense will be run by either David Pratt or Dennis Cristiano. Pratt was the starting quarterback for most of last season until suffering a shoulder injury against Greene Central. Cristiano started the next week in place of Pratt leading the Chargers to a 36-26 win over Southern Nash passing for 213 yards and a touchdown. Pratt had connected on passes for eight TD's before being injured. He had been intercepted six times, Cristiano three.

Behind the quarterbacks in the A-G power-I will be Ned Craft, Al Butts, Marham Wheatly and William West. All saw action last year. Craft fell victim to a knee injury in the last half of the season eliminating some of the Chargers' offensive running punch. With the addition of first year varsity player, Terry Morris, Overton feels he will have a very well balanced backfield. "Ned is 100 per cent now," said Overton.

The Chargers have another plus going for them in that they have five of six linemen returning. Eddie Taylor is holding the center spot with Gary Jackson and Larry Taft at the guards, Mike Teachy and Bryan Edwards at tackles and Vern Davenport at tight end.

"We have good size," Overton said. "We have real good size for a high school team. Teachy is the biggest starter. He was a freshman last year, Edwards also. Taft will fill the position (vacated by Willie Williams) well.

"Last year quickness was our biggest asset. Now we have some experience, size and coordination too. Davenport is a good tight end when it comes to blocking. He's probably the best tight end I've had."

At split end will be Paul Ricciarelli who also fell to a knee injury last year but Overton feels that he may be a better player now than before the injury. "He's faster than last year. He didn't have that much speed. He runs a 4-4 40. He's got good hands.

Defensively, the Chargers will be going with both a six-and-five-man line. "Last year it was our weakest point. We could score on anybody but the defense hurt. We have six back."

Overton noted that his defense is bigger this year than last. There are also several new faces. "Dennis Moore missed last year because of scholastic reasons but he played the year before. We missed him last year. Terry Maye (6-3, 240) is real quick for a big boy," Overton said.

In the linebacking corps will be Craft, Wheatly and Greg

Dye Unhappy With 'Game'

Yesterday was dress rehearsal day for the East Carolina University Pirate football team, and, according to Coach Pat Dye, if the show isn't any better on opening night, it'll close in Boston.

But then too, there is the superstition that a poor dress rehearsal is a good omen of things to come.

At any rate, Dye was unhappy after watching the Pirates go through the full-speed rehearsal for the N.C. State game. On paper, it may have looked good—ECU 50, N.C. State 7. But it was not quite what the coach wanted.

"After worrying about it all night," Dye said this morning, "I want to look at the films before I make any real judgments on most individuals."

"But there was not much emotion on the part of those who are supposed to be the one to play. There was not one running back who really looked good out there with the ball, with the exception of Charlie Moss. He's earned himself a trip to Raleigh, for sure."

Dye was also disturbed over the dearth of penalties collected by the team, many for piling or personal fouls. "This is ridiculous. It shows a lack of discipline by our players and a lack of coaching. There were also half a dozen holding penalties, and there is no excuse for them. That just shows you can't block."

Adding that he was depressed about the scrimmage, Dye added "We'll just have to accept the fact that we have a lot of work to do, and just hope we can get ready."

Yarborough To Try To Qualify

By RICHARD WATERS
Associated Press Writer
DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP)—Cale Yarborough, the only driver ever to win three Southern 500 stock car races, was expected to lead a dozen second-day qualifiers today for the annual Labor Day classic.

Yarborough was in a rare situation as he watched from the sidelines Thursday as David Pearson pushed his Mercury around the 1.3-mile Darlington Raceway to capture the pole position for Monday's $162,200 race.

Yarborough's Chevrolet blew an engine during Thursday's opening qualifying session and the veteran driver was forced to try again this afternoon.

Pearson wheeled his Wood Brothers machine around the high banked speedway at 153.901 miles per hour, a record for 500 qualifying. The old mark was 152.341, set by Pearson three years ago.

It was the Spartanburg driver's seventh time to win the inside front row starting position at Darlington — three for the Southern 500 and four for the Rebel race in April.

Pearson has won three Rebel races, 1971-73, but has never won the 500, the oldest of all the Grand National races.

As a result of his mechanical problems Yarborough also found himself in the unusual position of having to qualify with a borrowed engine.

"We only brought one engine for qualifying," said crew chief Herb Nabb, "and our race engine isn't ready. We're going to borrow one from Hoss Ellington and put it in to qualify."

Buddy Baker, winner of the recent Talladega 500, gained the other front row starting spot with a speed of 152.663 in his Ford. "I started second at Talladega and won the race," Baker recalled. "But I'll tell you one thing, if David relaxes for one moment on race day, he'll be running second."

Bobby Allison, timed at 152.597 in a Matador, and Richard Petty, who qualified his Dodge at 152.531, won second row starting positions.

Rounding out the first six

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

Next week, in this column, we will be renewing our panel of experts to pick the winners in the collegiate (and Rose High School) football games in the area.

For the first time, our panel will return intact from the previous year, and all five of the runners-up are letting it be known that they intend to knock off last year's winner, Tom Baines.

Baines, however, will be shooting for another title, and is also insisting that he get a better press. Joe Jenkins, who came in last for 1974, suggested that we get him one—at one of the local dry cleaners.

Oh, well, it's fun!

NCAA rules and regulations don't allow haircut money to athletes any more, but East Carolina seems to have solved that problem without any danger of being found illegal.

Running back Kenny Strayhorn cuts hair, among his other talents, and has been shearing some of his fellow players, along with several members of the coaching staff. In addition, Kenny does his own sewing and mending.

And besides that, he's a pretty good running back. Currently Strayhorn has rushed for 1,527 yards in his East Carolina career. He enters his senior year with a shot at the school rushing record of 2,889 yards, and an outside chance at the magic circle of 3,000 yards. He's also just two kickoff returns short of the school career mark of 31, and just 123 yards short of the kickoff yardage mark of 634. However, he hasn't been doing much of this lately, and Reggie Pinkney, with 23 returns for 508 yards might get there first.

Strayhorn will certainly move into the top ten career total offense. He's just over 300 yards short of that group.

In career rushing, Strayhorn stands sixth overall, and the next man he passes will be his brother, Les, now in his third year with the Dallas Cowboys, slightly under 150 yards ahead of him.

Strayhorn is also sixth in career scoring with 110 points, and four touchdowns will move him past former Minnesota Viking Tom Michel into fifth place.

I don't believe anyone will ever call Kenny a "sissy" for enjoying sewing.

Another Pirate, Jim Bolding will advance the career record he already holds for punt returns each time he grabs the ball. Bolding's record currently is 37 returns. He's also drawing close to the yardage mark for punt returns. He has 274 yards, and the record is 382.

Listed in the East Carolina football brochure is a list of "long plays" accomplished by the Bucs. One of them is for the longest punt, and credits former star Claude King, a charter member of the ECU Sports Hall of Fame, with an 88-yarder back in 1954.

Some of the folks have expressed doubt about that one, but we found a write-up of it in our files recently. King got off the boot against Appalachian in Boone. The Pirates had held the Mountaineers at the ECC (yes, it was ECC then) 14, then were penalized five yards back to the nine. Coach Jack Boone opted for a quick kick, and King, who averaged a school record of 45.7 yards, did the job.

The ball rolled dead on the three-yard line—a fantastic 88-yard kick.

The current listed Southern Conference record is 84 yards, by the way. And the record average is 44.3 yards, but current Appalachian State kicker Joe Parker. Of course, East Carolina was not a member of the Southern at the time of King's kick.

Sounds Hustle

BALTIMORE (AP) — The message on the marquee outside the Civic Center said it all: "Baltimore Welcomes ABA Basketball."

After weeks of sometimes bewildering negotiations, the American Basketball Association Thursday awarded a group of Baltimore investors the franchise to the bankrupt Memphis Sounds.

ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere made the announcement during a press conference at the Civic Center with local officials and the owners of the team, who paid an estimated purchase price of $1.5 million.

Tickets Are Sold

No general public tickets remain at the East Carolina University ticket office for the ECU-N.C. State football game next Saturday.

"We only have our allotment of student tickets left," Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich said. "These will be placed on sale Thursday to our students."

Stasavich noted also that all tickets which are being held for pickup must be called for by closing time, 4 p.m., Wednesday or they too would be put back on sale.

"Any tickets still left, if we have any, will be placed back on sale to the general public on next Friday," Stasavich said.

He added that he believed that N.C. State still had some tickets available in Raleigh, but that they were all on the State side of the field. He seemed confident that the game would be a sell-out for the third straight year.

Absent-Minded

NEW YORK (UPI) — Off-track horse players apparently aren't as sophisticated as their counterparts who bet "live" at the track. Directors of New York City's legal Off-Track Betting Corporation said New Yorkers failed to cash $4,389,169 worth of winning tickets in 1974.

Chris Evert, After One Match, Is Eager To Win Open Championship

By KAROL STONGER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert's credentials as a clay court player are so convincing after only one match at Forest Hills that even she is confident of capturing her first U.S. Open crown.

"I feel eager," Miss Evert said. "This is the only title I haven't won outside of the Australian Open. I have a pretty good chance."

She won her 76th straight match on clay by a 6-1, 6-0 count at the expense of Australian Lesley Hunt Thursday night. The string, which covers 15 tournaments, stretches back to 1973.

"I'm at home on clay," said the top-seeded Miss Evert, who grew up on the powdery stuff in Florida. "I'm confident on clay. It's easier to run. I'm still not that confident on grass. I'm afraid I'll fall on my face."

She has done well on grass. She won Wimbledon last year after battling Miss Hunt through 46 games in the second round. On the grass that was here last year, and on the lush lawn of Wimbledon this year, she lasted until the semifinals.

Miss Evert and Jimmy Connors led 14 seeded players into the second round after Thursday's day-night action, which drew a total crowd of 20,310.

Connors began defense of his title with a 6-3, 6-3 triumph over Geoff Masters although he blew 3-0 leads in each set.

"The first three games I never played better," Connors said. "Then Geoff started keeping the balls in play."

Connors claimed, however, that Masters' ability to come back didn't bother him. "I stayed pretty calm, didn't I? I have a new motto: 'Stay calm at all costs.'"

Virginia Wade, the No. 2 seed from Britain who was defeated by Miss Evert in the final of a clay court tournament in suburban Harrison, N.Y. on Monday, was the only seeded woman who failed to see action Thursday.

Most of the others moved into the second round with such ease it was almost a yawn.

Evonne Goolagong, the No. 4 seed from Australia, opened the day's play on center court with a 6-0, 6-0 rout of Peggy Michel, her World Team Tennis teammate in Pittsburgh. Margaret Court closed out the afternoon by crushing Nathalie Fuchs of France 6-2, 6-0.

The most startling result of the day was the demise of 26-year-old Rosemary Casals, an institution at Forest Hills along with Billie Jean King and twice a runner-up here to Ms. King.

Ms. Casals, of San Francisco, fell victim to Marina Kroschna. The blue-eyed, 22-year-old wife of a Soviet physician stunned Ms. Casals 6-4, 6-2.

Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, seeded right behind Connors, made quick work of Hans Gil-dermeister of Brazil 6-2, 6-2.

Bjorn Borg of Sweden trounced Sandy Mayer of Wayne, N.J., 6-2, 6-2.

Manuel Orantes of Spain, seeded third; No. 8 Ilie Nastase of Romania, and No. 9 Rod Laver of Australia also advanced in straight sets while No. 11 Raul Ramirez of Mexico was extended to 6-2, 6-7, 7-5 for a victory over Eric Van Dillen of Aptos, Calif.

Bell's Attack Is Improving

ANAHEIM (AP) — "Philadelphia always has a good running game. Now it looks like they are making their passing game go, too."

Thus spoke Southern California Sun Coach Tom Fears as his World Football League team prepared for a game tonight with the Bell and newly found quarterback Bob Davis.

Tonight's game opens the WFL's weekend slate with the rest of the WFL schedule being played Saturday night. Charlotte is at Jacksonville, Shreveport at Birmingham, Chicago at Memphis and Portland at San Antonio.

The Bell, guided now by new coach Willie Wood, brings to Anaheim Stadium a trio of top running backs in J.J. Jennings, John Land and Claude Watts. Southern California retaliates with Anthony Davis, whose 336 yards in five games is 58 per cent of the Sun total.

Pat Haden, the Rhodens Scholar who must leave Sept. 27 for classes at Oxford University, will start at quarterback. But 13-year veteran Darlye Lamonica, who was 34 a month ago, should see action despite a double hernia.

Lamonica missed three games and was supposed to be out another four weeks, but he told Fears he wanted to play. Fears, after checking with doctors, said okay.

"He wanted to play last week, but we wanted to wait until the doctor gave him a complete clean bill of health," said Fears.

Wood, more conservative than the man he replaced, Ron Waller, said earlier in the week that he has revamped the Bell offense — downward. Waller resigned three weeks ago after installing a wild, flashy offense. "He had a wide open offensive theory," Wood said.

"We've turned the philosophy around to reduce the number of formations and add the number of plays we can run from those formations."

The Bell beat Memphis 22-18 last week, knocking the Southmen out of the ranks of the unbeaten. In fact, there are no more unbeaten in the WFL. The Sun's 3-1 mark leads the Western Division. Philadelphia, at 2-2, is second in the East.

The Sun is favored, but if Philadelphia wins, it won't be a surprise, especially to Fears, who is apprehensive regarding the Bell's passing attack.

The quarterback in the victory over Memphis was Davis, who beat out King Corcoran for the job and will start for Philadelphia tonight. Davis completed 19 of 23 passes for 164 yards and was named the WFL Player of the Week.

Davis may not be under as much pressure as the Sun would normally present because Southern Cal defensive stalwart Dave Roller is still suffering from the effects of a concussion sustained last week in Birmingham. He may not play tonight.

GOING WITHOUT THE BALL—San Francisco catcher Dave Rader left the ball behind when he tried to tag Philadelphia's Tommy Hutton out at home during seventh inning action Thursday. Hutton scored from second on a single by teammate Garry Maddox.

Rader did not come up with the throw from right fielder Bobby Murcer and was charged with an error. Watching the play is Phillies John Oates. (AP Wirephoto)

Pitching To Bonds Turns Out To Be No Easy Job For A's Hurlers

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It's a funny thing, this relationship between fastballs and Bobby Bonds.

On Wednesday night, with New York trailing Oakland by a run in the ninth inning and two Yankees on base, Rollie Fingers slipped a pair of fastballs past Bonds for a critical strikeout and the A's won 3-2.

Clearly the way to beat Bonds is to fastball him, right?

Wrong. In the sixth inning Thursday night, with Chris Chambliss aboard with a walk, Ken Holtzman tried to slip a fast one past Bonds. It wound up bouncing off the right-center field fence for a run-scoring double.

Okay, so the way to beat Bonds is not to fastball him, right?

Wrong again. With two outs in the eighth inning, Holtzman hit Ed Brinkman with a pitch. Up came Bonds, and out to the mound went Oakland Manager Alvin Dark. "Don't throw him any fastballs," he told Holtzman.

So Holtzman wound up and threw him a change-up. It wound up far beyond the left-center field wall, Bonds' 25th homer, a two-run shot that catapulted the Yankees to a 3-2 victory.

In the only other American League game Thursday night, Baltimore beat Chicago 2-1. In the National League, Cincinnati topped St. Louis 4-0, Philadelphia downed San Francisco 8-5, New York defeated Los Angeles 4-1 and Montreal outlasted San Diego 10-8.

Orlons 2, White Sox 1
Baltimore's Mike Cuellar,

usually a "junkman" on the mound, discovered his blazer and used it to stymie the White Sox on five hits.

"I found out during my warmups that my fastball was working so I decided to see how far that would take me," said Cuellar, who usually relies on slow-speed and breaking pitches.

Run-scoring singles by Ellie Hendricks in the second inning and Don Baylor in the fifth gave him the runs Baltimore needed to trim Boston's lead in the AL East to 6½ games.

Reds 4, Cardinals 0
Don Gullett's notched his seventh straight victory with a five-hitter and Darrel Chaney cracked a homer to boost Cincinnati past St. Louis, which fell 3½ games behind idle Pittsburgh in the NL East.

Phillies 8, Giants 5
Philadelphia moved into a tie with the Cards by battering four San Francisco pitchers for 17 hits. Garry Maddox' triple and doubles by Mike Schmidt and Johnny Oates were the key hits in the Phils' three-run sixth.

Mets 4, Dodgers 1
The Mets stayed close in the NL East race, moving within 4½ games of the Pirates. Mike Vail's tie-breaking single in a two-run fifth inning, Del Unser's two-run homer in the seventh and Jerry Koosman's eight-hit, 10-strikeout pitching carried them past the Dodgers.

Expos 10, Padres 8
Nate Colbert, Bob Bailey and Gary Carter each drove in two Montreal runs to offset Willie McCovey's three-run homer and Tito Fuentes' two RBI for the Padres.

Contract May Be Approved

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The end may be in sight in the long National Football League dispute over a new players' contract. But then again, it may be just the beginning of another phase.

The NFL Players Association membership will vote next Friday on any management offer presented by Monday under a decision made by the union's executive council and disclosed Thursday.

If the players vote to accept the offer — which has not been announced yet — then the contract dispute is for all intents and purposes resolved.

However, should the players reject the management offer, the executive committee would then return to the bargaining table for further negotiations which have dragged on for 1½ years since the old collective bargaining agreement expired.

Ed Garvey, union executive director, told newsmen Thursday that the vote Friday would not be a "strike vote."

"If they reject it, they are telling management they want a better offer," said Garvey.

The association's player representatives met in Chicago Monday and voted unanimously to submit to the membership without recommendation any proposal that was on the table as of next Monday.

"This dispute has dragged on for well over a year and a half and the board (player reps) is anxious to have the matter resolved," said Garvey. "Since the owners have been unwilling to come forward with a complete proposal, we felt that by setting the first of September as the deadline for an offer to be submitted to the players, the owners would be encouraged to bargain with the players' negotiating committee. The vote will be taken on the fifth of September."

Garvey said representatives of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, met with union officials after the player rep meeting and "indicated a full proposal would be forthcoming prior to or on the 1st of September."

He said union president Kermit Alexander explained it would be submitted to the membership for a vote and "suggested that they give it their 'best shot.'"

In New York, a management council representative said the owners were still considering what action to take and could make a decision today.

The players have been without a collective bargaining agreement since March 31, 1974, when the old pact expired. The players held a 42-day strike last year but returned to play the season.

Karl To Try To Win Again

ENDICOTT, N.Y. — Anonymity has returned to Richie Karl. Last year, Karl walked across the street from where he grew up and beat some of the best golfers in the world in the second annual B.C. Open.

This year, he'll try to remind them who he is.

Karl, a little-known 30-year-old, surprised everyone last year when he carded an 11-under-par 273 to tie with Bruce Crampton after 72 holes. Then he went out and holed a 35-foot putt on the first extra hole to win.

Just as a reminder, Karl carded a four-under-par 67 in Thursday's pro-am tuneup to the $175,000 tournament which is being played over the 6,815-yard En-Joye Golf Course.

But his task won't be that easy. The field — though lacking such big names as Jack Nicklaus, Hale Irwin and Tom Weiskopf — includes 1973 winner Hubert Green and Dave Stockton, runnerup in last week's Tournament Players Championship.

So did Stan Price of Pittsburgh and Barton Goodwin of Rice, both of whom had gained notoriety Wednesday with major upsets.

Other winners included Roane Puett of Austin, Tex., at 42 now the oldest survivor after he disposed of 59-year-old Bill Hyndman 1 up in 19 holes, and 18-year-old Wayne DeFrancesco of McLean, Va.

In addition to Hyndman, the 1955 runner-up on the same course, the only other former runners-up, John Grace of Fort Worth, Tex., and Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., also were eliminated.

With the only two former champions, Vinny Giles of Richmond and Bill Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., knocked out earlier, the way has been cleared for new faces in the title round.

Strange, 20, from Virginia Beach, Va., who won the NCAA crown as a freshman, remained unsatisfied with his play after ousting John Jacobs IV of Riverside, Calif., 4 and 2.

But Strange, who broke the Eastern Amateur record by four strokes two weeks ago, won five consecutive holes on the back side, aided by a 120-foot eagle on the 13th green.

Byman, also 20, from Raleigh, N.C., routed Brian Shanks of Phoenix with his second straight 8 and 6 score.

Bean, a rugged 22-year-old L'il Abner type from Lakeland, Fla., showed his strength by whacking a seven-iron shot 200 yards to the first green, and went on to whip Gary Jacobson of Minnetonka, Minn., 3 and 2.

ABC Buys Two Private Eye Series For Re-Use

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — This year's Bold, New and Adventurous Programming award goes to ABC-TV, which says

it'll start showing reruns of two hour-long private eye shows late Thursday nights, starting Oct. 2.

The sagas, bought for ABC's late-night "Wide World of Entertainment," are "Mannix," which CBS axed last spring after eight seasons, and "Longstreet," a 1971 ABC series about a blind gumshoe.

ABC isn't the first recipient of the Bold, New and Adventurous Programming award.

The first went to CBS a year ago when CBS said it had bought a batch of "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" episodes for showing late at night after the shows' first and repeat prime-time runs on NBC were over.

ABC's move means that when Oct. 2 rolls around, there'll be a total of six Thursday night shows on that network which deal in one form or another with law and order.

Two are situation comedies, "Barney Miller" and "On the Rocks," a new show about funny convicts. Then come "Streets of San Francisco," "Harry O," "Mannix" and "Longstreet."

Jerome Richardson and pianist Vic Feldman.

Comedian Jerry Lewis' annual Labor Day telethon to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association kicks off from Las Vegas, Nev., this Sunday night at 9 p.m. EDT. It'll appear on 195 stations.

The 2 1/2-hour super-show, which last year raised a record $16,129,213, according to MDA officials, has the proverbial star-studded roster of performers Lewis always gets for the telethon.

This year, Frank Sinatra is on the bill for not one but three appearances, each about 20 minutes, spokesmen for the show say.

The Sinatra shots all will be on Monday, between midnight and 1 a.m. EDT, 10 and 11 a.m., and between 4 and 5 p.m.

Keep an eye out Sunday night for a special prime-time edition of NBC's "Weekend" news-feature program particularly its 10-minute segment on Holland's unusual 70,000-member army.

Not only is the army unionized, its fighting men are allowed to wear their hair long, really long.

As reporter Peter Jeffries says of the hair apparent, "It would cause a Marine top sergeant total apoplexy if he saw it."

And probably even make his white sidewalls curl.

Opening lead: King of ♦.

Like wine, 100 honors can go to a rubber bridge player's head and result in action that is later regretted. West's diamond honors lured him into taking one bid too many on this hand.

We are not thrilled by East's raise to three diamonds. The hand surely does not belong to his side, and a vulnerable sacrifice against non-vulnerable opponents is not the wisest course when playing for a stake. We have even less sympathy for West's raise to four diamonds. Even though the cards are favorably placed, he would only have been down two at that contract, and a double would have cost 500 points and left North-South in position to win a substantial rubber. As it is, West's determination to score his honors drove his opponents to a lucky game that South had the skill to bring home.

West led the king of diamonds, won by dummy's ace. Declarer now made the key play of a low heart from dummy. If East rose with the ace of hearts to lead a trump, the defenders would be able to clear three rounds of trumps, which would prevent South from ruffing a heart in dummy. But then the heart suit could set up without a ruff! So East played low, and the queen of hearts led to the king.

West made a good shift to a trump, but declarer was in command. He won the jack, led a heart to the jack and king, and won the trump return with the ace. A heart was ruffed in dummy, establishing the rest of the suit, and declarer's only other loser was the king of trumps.

Observe that if declarer carelessly leads the jack of hearts from dummy at trick two, he can be defeated. East rises with the ace and returns a trump. Whether or not declarer plays the ace is immaterial. West will win the second heart lead and clear dummy's trumps while declarer still has a heart loser in his hand. In all, the defenders will take three heart tricks and a trump.

File Notice To Foreclose

GREENSBORO (AP) — Two major investors in the development of Balhead Island as a plush restor have filed notices of foreclosure, involving claims totaling almost $7 million. They ask appointment of a receiver.

Tom Hubert, chief executive officer of the Carolina Cape Fear Corp., which has been seeking to develop the $228-million resort and playground, confirmed the filing of the foreclosure notices.

Hubert said the notices were filed by Builders Investment Group and the Waccamaw Bank & Trust Co. But he said he could not discuss the matter further since it obviously involves a form of litigation.

A spokesman at the clerk's office in the Brunswick County courthouse at Southport said the notices were filed Monday.

The notice of the Business Investment Group included a claimed debt from Carolina Cape Fear of $68,288,344.63. Waccamaw Bank & Trust Co.'s claim amounted to $641,621.51, plus interest.

The petition seeking appointment of a receiver for the island property declared that Carolina Cape Fear management has been unable to obtain sufficient capital and has been unable to provide adequate access to the island complex because of litigation filed by environmentalists, which is still in federal court.

A recent ruling in U.S. Eastern District Court that the development corporation could proceed with construction of the island's marina, which would be the major access point, has been appealed.

Food Stamp Conspiracy

LENOIR, N.C. (AP)—A former Caldwell County Social Services Department employee was arrested and charged with embezzlement in a conspiracy to misappropriate food stamps, authorities reported Friday.

Janetta Hood Hagaman, 39, was charged Thursday with five counts of embezzlement and one count of conspiracy to embezzle public funds, Detective Capt. Jim Beane of the Caldwell County Sheriff's Dept. said Friday.

He said Ms. Hagaman, whose job as a clerk with the social services department terminated in April, is accused of falsifying authorization cards and thereby illegally obtaining food stamps worth more than $1,000.

The alleged embezzlement occurred in February and March, Beane said.

Also charged was Lula Soots, 30. She was charged with aiding and abetting the conspiracy.

First the good news: Kings Dominion will be open every weekend until October 26th.

Now the bad news: we'll be closed Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. We've extended our season two more months after Labor Day. Weekends only, until October 26th.

That means you can still enjoy our giant world of fun and make-believe on Saturdays and Sundays from 10 to 8 p.m. You can still ride all our rides, see all our different shows (as often as you like) for the $7.50 admission price you pay at the gate.

If you haven't seen Kings Dominion yet, now is a perfect time to come. It's also a perfect time to come again. Any weekend until we close for the season on October 26th.

But even that's not bad news because we'll be open again in April with even more rides and different live entertainment. At Kings Dominion, the good news always triumphs over bad.

BankAmericard, Master Charge, Central Charge and American Express accepted. Call (804) 798-4761 for group rates.

TVA To Join Uranium Hunt

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority has agreed to invest $2.2 million in uranium exploration in New Mexico in hopes of finding a supply of fuel for its nuclear power plants.

Under an agreement with Mobil Oil Corp., which holds mineral rights on Navajo Indian land in New Mexico, TVA would pay for the exploration and have an option to buy up to 25 per cent of any uranium reserves found.

A one-quarter interest would cost the agency $3.7 million,

TVA general manager Lynn Seeber said Thursday. A 20 per cent interest would cost $2.4 million.

The agreement between TVA and Mobil also provides that Mobil will retain the right to perform continued exploration and, if warranted, any further development and mining.

TVA would be able to purchase Mobil's share of the uranium production, Seeber said.

An agency spokesman characterized the agreement with Mobil as a "conventional arrangement" between TVA and nuclear fuel firms.

TVA already has similar arrangements with American Nuclear Corp., United Nuclear Corp., American Copper and Nickel Co. and other firms.

Seeber said the New Mexico land covers about 12,000 acres in McKinley County and includes Navajo Indian land. The land is also located adjacent to other properties in which TVA owns interests in uranium production.

The agreement with Mobil was approved Thursday by the TVA's board of directors.

Disclaim Age Discrimination

GREENSBORO (AP)—A lawyer for Duke University says Duke will reply to a suit by a dismissed employe that there is no age discrimination in its employment practices.

The lawyer, Mrs. Patricia Wagner, said in Durham that the university will present statistics in support of this contention.

A suit filed in U.S. District Court Thursday accuses Duke of violating age discrimination provisions of the Employment Act of 1967. The suit was brought in behalf of 56-year-old George B. Kantner. It asks that he be reinstated with full restitution.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market gained ground again today amid hopes for a relaxation of upward pressures on interest rates. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 3.99 at 833.46, and gainers maintained a 4-1 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was fairly active on the eve of the three-day Labor Day weekend. Brokers noted continuing hopes that Federal Reserve policies in the months ahead would exert less of an upward push on interest rates than had earlier been feared.

That optimism seemed to draw additional encouragement from the decision by New York's First National City Bank to hold its prime lending rate unchanged at 7 3/4 per cent for the coming week. But after an early rise of more than 6 points, the Dow slipped back a bit as some profit taking set in.

Several financial issues moved ahead on the interest rate hopes. Lomas & Nettleton Financial, the Big Board volume leader, was up 1/4 at 6 in trading marked by a 77,400-share block at that price.

MGIC Investment rose a point to 12 1/2, and Household Finance added 3/4 to 13 1/2 in active trading.

Golds declined as the London bullion price dipped below $160 at the afternoon fixing for the first time since last October. ASA Ltd. dropped 1/4 to 37 1/2; Homestake Mining was down 1/4 at 41 1/2, and Dome Mines slipped 1/4 to 43 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index gained 29 to 46.28 in the first hour. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 55 to 86.37.

Coal Miners Continue Ignore Courts, Leaders

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)—Two-thirds of the nation's coal miners continued today to ignore federal court orders and union leaders' pleas to end their three weeks of wildcat strikes.

As the strike's power increased in states beyond its West Virginia origin, about 80,000 of 125,000 United Mine Workers bituminous coal miners across Appalachia and the Midwest were idled on overnight shifts by roving pickets.

With the affected states normally accounting for about 9 million tons of coal per week, the strike has put a squeeze on supplies of coal for the nation's steel companies. It has also forced at least two coalfield railroads to lay off workers.

Federal judges in areas recently hit by roving pickets issued injunctions ordering the miners back to work, but those, like the many issued in West Virginia, were not heeded. The only miner thus far jailed in the dispute was released Thursday when he promised to try to persuade his fellow workers to return.

Sim Howze, UMW Local 8454 president in Logan County, told U.S. District Court Judge K.K. Hall here, "I'll do all I can to the best of my ability to obey the court order." He had served six days of a 90-day contempt sentence for failure to return to work.

Howze's miners were among the first to walk out starting Aug. 6 when a miner was suspended and his fellow workers set up picket lines to protest the slow grievance procedure to give him a hearing.

Since then, union members in southern West Virginia, eastern Kentucky, western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Alabama and southwestern Virginia have joined in the walkout, which has been deplored by UMW leaders on the district and national levels.

Some strikers have expanded the West Virginia protest to other touchy issues relating to the 1974 contract, particularly the right to strike over local and safety issues, which the miners do not have. In West Virginia, 43,000 of the state's 50,000 miners stayed home. Kentucky had about 8,000 miners idle and Pennsylvania 7,000. About 1,000 miners striking Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Cambria County mine in Pennsylvania returned to work today under threat of contempt charges.

Illinois union officials said they were trying to persuade 6,500 of the state's 12,000 miners to return, but without success. Indiana coalfields were at a standstill, with 3,000 miners idle. In Ohio, where the dispute centered on safety, 2,200 miners were not working.

In Alabama, 4,000 UMW workers continued to ignore a restraining order issued Tuesday.

Endorses But One Candidate

CHICAGO (AP)—Only one political candidate anywhere has the endorsement of playwright Tennessee Williams: his brother, Dakin.

"There's a certain familial tie," the author of "Streetcar Named Desire" and other plays told a news conference Thursday.

Why is Dakin, a loser in two previous political outings, qualified to be governor of Illinois, the post he now seeks? "I like his attitude toward people, toward life," said Tennessee. "And he's taken excellent care of our mother."

Dakin, 54, is a Collinsville attorney and former law professor at St. Louis University.

Berkeley Firemen See Long Strike Possible

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Striking Berkeley firemen say they've dug in for a long walk-out, while San Joaquin County public employees say their one-day work stoppage was a warning of what could come.

In San Francisco, meanwhile, recriminations mount in the aftermath of last week's police and fire strike, and public school teachers warn they may not be there when school opens next week.

The strike by all but 10 of 160 firemen here marked its third day Thursday with State Conciliator William Hehr reporting he was pessimistic about the chances of an early settlement.

"We're geared up for a long strike," said Jim Brunetti, vice president of Fire Fighters Local 1227. "It looks like it might go more than four or five days."

City Manager John Taylor said supervisory crews had successfully handled the six minor fires reported since firemen struck Tuesday, forcing closure of seven of the city's eight firehouses.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has sent four state fire trucks to protect state-owned property, including the University of California campus.

The strikers seek a 16.5 per cent wage increase this fiscal year to raise salaries to a range of $15,252 to $16,800. The council has offered an 8 per cent hike this year and 7 per cent more next July.

In Stockton, 55 miles to the east, leaders of the San Joaquin County Employees Association urged their members to return to work after a one-day strike that affected all but emergency services.

Some nurses joined the walk-out and nonstriking doctors sent word of support as the association claimed all but 300 of its 2,800 members honored picket lines in this agricultural county of 301,000 persons. County officials estimated 1,310 employees failed to report to work.

In San Francisco, Supervisor Terry A. Francois predicted Thursday yet another lawsuit in a growing list filed in the aftermath of last week's bitter strike by police and firemen.

Two taxpayers' suits already have challenged Mayor Joseph L. Alioto's authority to suspend the charter and approve 13 per cent pay raises after supervisors refused to offer more than 6.5 per cent. The pay hikes will not start until mid-October, making them average out for the year to a 9.7 per cent hike.

Francois said a suit likely would be brought seeking to bar Police Officers Association President Gerald Crowley from conducting union activities while drawing a sergeant's salary.

County music star Roy Clark underwent emergency surgery for removal of his gall bladder and was listed in satisfactory condition, officials said Thursday.

"Apparently there were absolutely no complications," The (Nashville) Tennessean quoted a Clark aide as saying. "The doctor said he would be in the hospital and recuperating for a couple of weeks," the aide said.

Clark became ill early Wednesday morning in Toronto after completing a day of taping for his first Canadian television special, "Fair Weather, Friends."

Tests resulted in a recommendation of immediate surgery, but Clark asked to be flown to Lanham, a suburb of Annapolis, near his home of Davidsonville, the newspaper said. The flight was made later that day and the two-hour operation began at 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

Clark's hospitalization was the second in just over two months. The previous occasion was in Nashville on June 25, the day after the entertainer teamed with Jerry Lewis for a Muscular Dystrophy benefit at Nashville's Municipal Auditorium. At that time, Clark's illness was diagnosed as bronchial pneumonia.

Clark has had a number of bouts with illness in recent years. The Tennessean also reported. In 1970, he suffered what Nashville doctors termed a "coronary insufficiency," a heart condition that came on the heels of several weeks of "Hee Haw" show tapings and seven live performances in three days.

In January, 1974, Clark's hectic schedule landed him in a Las Vegas hospital suffering from exhaustion, the newspaper added.
