JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government approved Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's Sinai agreement with Egypt today, Cabinet ministers reported. It was a diplomatic triumph for Kissinger and a step toward peace in the Middle East.

today. "The Israeli government accepts the agreement," Health Minister Victor Shemtov said as government leaders emerged from a meeting that lasted almost seven hours. Kissinger reported at dawn that both Israel and Egypt had agreed to the text of the new Sinai agreement. "We have substantially concluded our negotiations," he said after an all-night meeting with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and his two chief aides. Egyptian agreement was obtained Sunday before Kissinger returned to Jerusalem from Alexandria, completing his sixth round trip between the two cities in the 12-day diplomatic shuttle. Kissinger added that Egypt and Israel would sign the agreement together in Geneva in a few days, possibly next Sunday.

Although Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and others have criticized the U.S. role, Kissinger expects Congress to give its consent after some difficult debate. civilian technicians to man electronic warning posts between the two armies, opening the Suez canal to Israeli cargoes and American promises of military and financial aid to Israel. The agreement is conditional on congressional approval of the U.S. peacekeeping role. Also, the pact will not go into effect until military and technical protocols are negotiated between Israel and Egypt.

Assistant DA Sworn In Today

In a ceremony this morning in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court in the Pitt County Courthouse, attorney Donald (Don) C. Hicks, III, was sworn in as an assistant district attorney to District Attorney Eli Bloom. Hicks, a native of Raleigh now practicing with the Greenville firm of Mattox and Reid, P.A., is the fifth district attorney appointed to serve in the Third Solicitor's District composed of Pitt, Carteret, Craven and Pamlico Counties. He will be assigned to the New Bern

District Court office. The new assistant district attorney, a young bachelor, is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. He holds an AB degree in economics and the Doctor of Jurisprudence degree. He is a member of the Marine Corps Reserve and is a sailing and tennis enthusiast. H.L. Lewis, Jr., Pitt County Clerk of Superior Court, performed the swearing in ceremony in the presence of Bloom, District Court Judge J.W.H. Roberts and others.

General Changes Sides

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Air force commander Gen. Jose Morais da Silva has changed sides in the quarrel among Portugal's military leaders and has repudiated the authority of the Communist-backed chief of staff, Gen. Vasco Goncalves, reliable sources said today.

The air force, with some 130 combat aircraft and 18,000 men, was hitherto regarded as firmly behind the controversial Goncalves whose appointment as chief of staff has been challenged by a majority of the nation's military leaders. The sources said Morais da Silva called on President Francisco da Costa Gomes late Sunday and formally notified him that the air force will not take orders from Goncalves.

The air force defection from Goncalves left only the navy, the marines and northern regional commander Eurico Corvacho in Goncalves' camp. Despite the protests, Costa Gomes was expected to swear in Goncalves as chief of staff later in the day, while also swearing in Vice Adm. Jose Pinheiro Azevedo as Goncalves' successor in the premiership.

Pro-Communist newspapers tipped a Goncalves man, Adm. Antonio Rosa Coutinho, to be Pinheiro Azevedo's successor as chief of naval staff. Rosa Coutinho told the nonaligned nations conference in Lima, Peru, last week that Portugal may quit NATO.

Uplift Of 'Third World' Target As UN Convenes

By WILLIAM N. OATIS Associated Press Writer UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly opens a 12-day special session today aimed at the economic uplift of the Third World.

A conciliatory approach to the problems of the have-not nations was expected from the United States following overtures by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger last month. But except for a promise of 6 million tons of food aid in the 1976 fiscal year, there has been no advance indication of what Washington will propose.

The American position was to be outlined this afternoon in a speech prepared for Kissinger. Because the secretary of state is still tied up in the Middle East, it will be delivered by the new chief American delegate, Daniel Patrick Moynihan.

Kissinger in a speech in Milwaukee on July 14 told the developing countries the United States was prepared to undertake joint efforts to alleviate their economic problems. He also said the industrial nations should "show understanding for the concerns" of the nations whose economies are dependent on raw materials that are subject to radical price fluctuations.

In June, however, the United States took exception to two proposals the Third World delegates will be pushing at the special session.

—"Indexation," meaning tying the prices of things countries buy to those they sell so the two rise and fall together. —"Integrated approach," the creation of buffer stocks of basic foodstuffs and raw materials so that prices can be regulated by buying a commodity when the price is too cheap to suit the producers and selling when it gets too high for the consumers. The Third World nations are also seeking more aid from the industrialized world and the rich members of the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said he thought the special session would "go well." "I think there's a constructive spirit on both sides and an interest to cooperate and avoid a confrontation," he said.

Retail Sales Up

Gross retail sales in Greenville during May reflected an increase of 15 per cent over sales recorded for the same month in 1974, according to figures reported by the N.C. Department of Revenue Statistics.

Greenville sales totaled $17,089,421 for May, compared with last year's $14,856,622. Other eastern cities and their 1974 and 1975 totals and percentage increases included: Washington, $8,286,480, 9.9, 13.1, 16.5, 12.4 per cent; Wilson, $13,054,321, $14,629,385, 12 per cent; Jacksonville, $12,624,949, $13,873,009, 9.8 per cent; Kingston, $13,869,988, $14,554,079, 4.9 per cent; Rocky Mount, $20,283,804, $21,221,600, 4.6 per cent; New Bern, $13,534,187, $13,930,252, 2.9 per cent; and Goldsboro, $17,782,725, $18,142,742, two per cent increase.

WORK PERMITS Where can a 15-and-a-half-year-old get a worker's permit? Can they work? S.S.

Worker's permits for minors can be obtained at the Pitt County Social Services office on Johnson Street. Four forms, two for the parents and two for the employer, must be filled out and taken to the office. Then, the child must present a birth certificate to get the permit. The forms are available at the Social Services office.

BOAT STORAGE Are there any boat storage places in Greenville? How much will it cost to store an 18-foot boat? D.P.

Allen Stanford of Allen Dean's Sports Center said they will offer open, fence-secured storage starting Tuesday. They presently have storage protected by a night-watchman. He says this is the only boat storage in Greenville that he knows of. The cost is $15 a month, Stanford said.

Powers Of N.C. Police Become Broader Today

By The Associated Press The investigative and arrest powers of policemen in North Carolina are broadened under new laws which went into effect today. They enhance the powers of all law-enforcement municipal and rural policemen, sheriffs and deputies. The laws were passed by the 1974 General Assembly. Most of them were recommended several years ago by a criminal code study commission. Most of the broadened power is contained in the new Pretrial Criminal Procedure Act. Police now will be able to arrest persons charged with a misdemeanor even if they don't have the warrant in hand. Before, police could make an arrest without the warrant only in a felony case. To arrest for a misdemeanor in the past, the officer had to have a warrant or he had to see the crime. Now he can arrest for a misdemeanor not committed in his presence if he has cause to believe it was committed, and that the perpetrator might escape and do harm to another person or to property unless he is immediately arrested. It is now made against the law to threaten a person verbally or in writing when that person believes the threat will be carried out. In the past, some overt action had to be involved to constitute a threat. Communicating a threat now is made a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $500 and/or six months in jail.

A policeman now will be able to give tickets or citations for such misdemeanors as damaging property, trespassing or shiplifting when he believes this may be safely done instead of jailing the alleged offender. The citation gives the person a set time to appear in court. Police now will have the authority to take a suspect's picture, blood and hair samples and fingerprints, after they obtain a court order while investigating a crime. Less evidence would be needed for such a court order, or testimonial identification, than for a search warrant. However, no questioning of the suspect could be allowed under this provision. Individuals convicted of armed robbery for the second time are not eligible for probation, parole or suspended sentence from now on. They will have to serve whatever jail sentence is imposed. Armed robbery is punishable by a prison term of five years to life. An officer now will be able to enter buildings or vehicles, limit the presence of persons, and to evacuate property if he believes it is urgently necessary to do so to save life, prevent serious bodily harm, or to avert or control a public catastrophe. Also, a policeman now doesn't have to give notice of his authority of purpose when he has reasonable grounds to believe that to do so would prevent a clear and present danger to human life. This might be used in hostage situations. There was no previous statute giving policemen such authority.

Hundreds Forced Evacuate As Storms Hit Ohio, Michigan

By The Associated Press
Storms over the Great Lakes forced the evacuation of hundreds of people in Ohio and Michigan as flood waters swirled around their homes, while tornadoes roared over Minnesota and killed an elderly farm couple whose car was flung a quarter-mile through the air.

In Cleveland, a downpour accompanied by flooding plunged the city into a pool of debris and forced evacuation of homes for the second time in a week. About 50 persons were evacuated from three apartment buildings and a motel when a swollen creek poured over its banks. Rescuers used boats and helicopters to pull people out of the waist-deep water in the half-mile-wide strip on Cleveland's east side. Flooded east-side streets brought traffic to a standstill; electric power to 16,000 customers was interrupted during the day Sunday. No one was hurt in the latest flood, in contrast to the previous Sunday's deluge which claimed four lives and caused an estimated $10 million damage.

The National Weather Service said a total of 1.68 inches of rain had fallen since midnight Saturday. In Michigan, 276 persons were evacuated from the town of Hersey as rising waters threatened an upstream dam Sunday, but state police said early today the flood danger had passed.

Army Launches Inquiry Into WAC's Dismissal

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading advocate of women's rights in the military says she was relieved of her WAC reserve command because of her outspokenness. But the colonel who fired her says she was "defiant and would not follow orders."

Rumsey accused Col. King in her final fitness report of "maintaining the respect of her people through sensationalism concerning women in the Army doing many jobs." He pointed out in an interview that his wife was a member of NOW. Col. King said the immediate reason for her dismissal was her refusal to falsify reports which she said were designed to help promote Rumsey's career. Rumsey denied this, saying, "I have never asked her to do anything with a report."

He added: "She has been defiant; she would not follow orders. She wanted her own way. She complained all the time. She could not accept command decisions. She name-dropped ... She just was not going to let this black commander tell her what to do." Col. King said her disagreements with Rumsey "became a political power struggle" and that the reserve program is riddled with "a bunch of politicians fighting for position." She added: "My whole thing has been to try and open up every single job in the military to women that they're capable of doing — and they're capable of doing all of them."

The Army has launched an investigation of the dismissal of Lt. Col. Grace King, removed Aug. 6 as commander of a women's Army reserve battalion based in Alexandria, Va., by her brigade commander, Col. William Rumsey. Col. King, 50, said in a telephone interview from her Carlisle, Pa., home that her outspoken advocacy of women's rights helped lead to her dismissal. A top adviser on the military for the National Organization for Women (NOW), Col. King has testified before congressional committees in behalf of women's rights and in favor of the admission of women to the service academies. "I made lots of enemies over that," she said. "But I have no intention of not being outspoken."

Sanford, president of Duke University, made the comments in a telegram to the Asheville, N.C. Council of the AFL-CIO in which he said he appreciated and sympathized with the council for its cancellation of a Labor Day parade because of high unemployment. "The President's proposition for curing unemployment was to prod business to expand production and to create new job opportunities," Sanford said, then adding "the President failed to confess that his policies have cut off jobs and made expansion of business almost impossible."

Ford Rapped By Sanford

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford charged Sunday that President Ford during the weekend was "blatantly fooling the people in the same old political style in his Maine speech."

"His pious comments show he is either callous or that he doesn't care about the people and their jobs or that he just does not understand," said Sanford, a competitor for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

After being downgraded to a tropical storm, Caroline poured heavy rain on Mexico's Sierra Madre Mountains. Doris, packing winds of about 85 miles an hour, was about 1,200 miles east-northeast of Bermuda and was moving slowly eastward.

The evacuees went to a motel in nearby Reed City and to the homes of relatives. Reports from Miller Dam, which feeds the Hersey River, said the threatening waters receded 6 inches after heavy rains stopped late Sunday.

In several other rain-soaked western Michigan towns, people were told to get ready to leave their homes on short notice if a flood threat worsened, but raging rivers crested before reaching danger points.

A National Weather Service official said more than six inches of rain fell in the 24-hour period ending Sunday afternoons around Hesperia, about 25 miles north of Muskegon, Mich.

In Minnesota, a farmer and his wife were killed Sunday when a tornado snatched up their car and hurled it several hundred feet.

Ole Ronningen, about 72, and his wife Agnes, about 65, of Climax died when the twister smashed their car into the ground near Crookston in northwestern Minnesota.

Tornadoes and golf-ball-sized hail damaged several buildings in the rural area. Meanwhile, Hurricane Doris churned through the Atlantic Ocean far from land today, and Hurricane Caroline was downgraded to a tropical storm after hitting the northeast coast of Mexico.

Floods churned up by Caroline's 115-mile-an-hour winds drove 1,000 persons from their homes, but no injuries were reported. Emergency centers were set up in San Fernando, 85 miles south of Brownsville, Tex.

By R. GREGORY NOKES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The World Bank proposes to lend $7 billion to the world's poor and developing nations this year and $40 billion in five years, World Bank President Robert S. McNamara announced today.

Although it would be a record lending program for any agency for undeveloped countries, McNamara said it would not begin to meet the dire needs of the one billion people living in the poorest countries.

"Some 900 million of these individuals subsist on incomes of less than $75 a year in an environment of squalor, hunger and hopelessness," he said. "They are the absolute poor, living in situations so deprived as to be below any rational definition of human decency," he added.

McNamara also told the opening session of a week-long meeting of the 127-member International Monetary Fund and the World Bank that the bank plans a new aid program to help the world's poor cities.

"If cities do not begin deal more constructively with poverty, poverty may well begin to deal more destructively with cities," he said in his prepared remarks.

He added that "frustrations that fester among the urban poor are more readily exploited by political extremists."

He also said the stepped-up World Bank lending this year, which compares with 1974 loans totaling $4.5 billion, looks less significant when it is realized that it will require $2 in lending by 1980 to accomplish what $1 did in 1970.

World Bank loans are made to help countries with their internal development plans, with the interest rates pegged according to the state of the country's economy.

On Sunday, the United States and other industrialized countries agreed to give up some of their power in the IMF. However, the United States will retain 20 per cent of the total vote, more than enough to exercise veto power over important decisions.

"Our right to veto ... was important to us," Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said after the voting realignment was decided on by the powerful 20-member Interim Committee.

The full IMF begins its week-long annual meeting today with speeches by IMF director Johannes Witteveen and Robert McNamara, president of the World Bank, which is meeting jointly with the IMF.

Gaining from the realignment would be the oil-producing nations, whose voting shares would increase from about 5 per cent to 10 per cent, sources said. A total of 13 industrialized nations agreed to reduce their voting shares.

Formal approval of the new voting system won't come until a January meeting of the committee at the earliest and then it will need approval of the U.S. Congress and legislative bodies of the other IMF nations.

In addition to the voting arrangement, the Interim Committee also agreed, as expected, to establish a financial assistance fund for the world's poor nations to be financed from the sale of 25 tons of IMF gold, about one-sixth of the agency's total gold holdings.

Committee chairman John N. Turner, the Canadian Finance Minister, also told a news briefing that representatives from some industrialized nations agreed to take further steps to stimulate their economies, taken he did not name them.

The committee said in a statement following its nearly eight hours of deliberations behind closed doors that industrialized nations should do more to help end the worldwide recession. But Simon said the statement was not aimed at the United States and that he doesn't think there is need for additional steps to stimulate the U.S. economy.

He said delegates were "clearly satisfied with fiscal and monetary policies" taken in the last year by the United States.

Japanese In State Visit

GREENSBORO (AP) — Six Japanese educators are scheduled to arrive in Greensboro Wednesday to start a 13-day visit in North Carolina.

The Japanese are spending seven weeks in this country, visiting several states and the District of Columbia as part of an effort to update the social studies curriculum in Japan's elementary and secondary schools.

Dr. Roland Nelson and Dr. Lois Edinger, professors of education at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, will coordinate the visiting group's tour of North Carolina.

"This is part of a joint curriculum project between the United States and Japan, and is funded at the national level," Nelson said in a weekend announcement.

He said a team of six North Carolina educators currently is touring Japan.

While in this state, the Japanese educators will tour various businesses and industries. They will see several public schools, a tobacco farm and a warehouse, tour several universities, and see how North Carolinians live.

On Sept. 10, the group is to meet in Raleigh with Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction.

Nelson added, "I think the important thing to remember is that what they see in North Carolina during these 13 days is likely to have considerable impact on what Japanese children study about the U. S. over the next 10 years."

Her bouffant veil of French silk illusion was attached to a back bow of hand rolled organza which held a profile circlet of clustered Venise lace petals enhanced with pearls and crystal stones. She carried a cascade bouquet of white pompons and carnations interspersed with baby's breath. Miss Rosalee Marriner of Greenville was maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of mint green floral voile designed with a square neckline, empire waist and puffed sleeves. She carried a long stemmed red rose accented with greenery and long streamers. Bridesmaids were Miss Rhonda Gail Hokum of Swansboro, Mrs. Vicki Maxwell, Greenville, and Mrs. Sharon Colley of Richmond, Va. They wore gowns styled identical to that of the honor attendant and carried long stemmed red roses. The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Frank Meacham, Julius Kachmer and Bill Quiggins, all of Greenville. The bride's mother wore a formal length gown of light blue polyester knit. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of rose double knit polyester. Both mothers wore corsages of white pompons and baby's breath. Mrs. Bullock, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a corsage of white pompons and baby's breath.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Wilmington. The bride is a graduate of Pitt Technical Institute. The bridegroom is a graduate of Pitt Technical Institute and is presented employed by the State Department of Natural and Economic Resources. Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall.

Mrs. Ruth Hokum, Mrs. Louise Paul and Miss Elsie Hokum entertained the bride, mothers of the bridal couple and the bridesmaids with a wedding breakfast Sunday morning. Women Are Urged To Lead, Not Dominate In Business

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In business some women are so flushed with victory, they haven't learned self-control and may find it impossible to work with anybody if they project a dominating personality. So says petite Margery Hurst, often called Britain's most successful businesswoman. Hitching her enormous energies 30 years ago to an employment agency for typists and others, she parlayed her tiny Brook Street Business Bureau in London into a public company of 220 branches over the world with a value of several million pounds on the London Stock Exchange. In the last 12 years she has opened six branches in the United States, and in addition to secretarial, catering, banking and retailing jobs has installed an area for executive women in the $9,000-plus bracket.

An indefatigable businesswoman — she travels more than 100,000 miles a year — she feels her own experience proves women, too, can become millionaires in business. But they must learn the difference between leadership and dominance, she insists. Showing how much you know can get you thoroughly disliked in any job, she cautions women executives and others. If you are good, your work will show it. "Why keep swanking about how much more you know than others. Learn to listen. Others may have a viewpoint," she advises. "Everybody likes a quiet worker with a lot of strength behind her."

Women should be ready for all the challenges now opening up for them but they shouldn't be tempted to waste their talents and abilities by rising above levels at which they can perform best, she says. Experience helps provide competence that results in steadiness, capability and common sense in management. Then, too, any failure by a woman is likely to be chronicled as a consequence of being a woman, she cautions. Women should be guarded, too, in employing "womanly traits," using passionate arguments, rather than logical ones. If a woman is rejected for some reason, she must make an effort to establish why, not attribute it to mere male chauvinism. If it is chauvinism, the challenge of communication comes in. She must use her abilities to open the door to a mind that is closed, insists Mrs. Hurst, who passes on such advice in her many speeches to business groups. In business the tide is turning even for older women, she explains. "The dollies are going out of fashion because older women are likely to make a job their life — especially if they are single. The labor turnover is less" — the older woman will stay five years to the younger person's one. Then, too, a young person is likely to divide her time — she has too many things on her mind."

Shouting loudly in a business office may get attention — the wrong kind, says this former British army welfare officer, who learned how to cope even as she wriggled in red tape during World War II. Office dissension can cut business profits as much as 70 per cent, she has found in her own offices. Employers muddle, frighten and confuse workers by shouting at them and they invite their loathing, she says. As for English secretaries, who are often in demand in the United States, it is because "the best come here, it isn't because they are better," she contends. "For example, I think the American secretary leads the world in tact. She will always protect her boss, no matter what, and you will always get the impression that he would really have liked to have talked to you or seen you, if only he were available, and not far away or dying or whatever you might be told." She is not always rewarded in kind, however. A boss will say "I want a secretary who is good at shorthand and typing, but she doesn't need brains." It invites Mrs. Hurst's wrath. Bosses could improve their role by beginning the day with pleasantries to their secretaries, inquiring about their mothers, boyfriends or whatever before turning to them with the inevitable "take a letter."

Climbing up the ladder begins on the first job, she tells her new employees. The first step is letting the employer know you want the job. "I like this job. I can work well for you," is a good way to approach it. The first woman underwriter to step on the floor of Lloyds of London, the famed insurance group, Mrs. Hurst began her agency after leaving the army and finding herself — separated from her husband — with a baby three weeks old. She began typing at home, opened a public typing office and then got a license to conduct an employment agency. Her second husband, Eric, handles the finances of the company. Leather is at its peak in the fashion cycle for teen-aged boys.

Show Equal Rights! Give Groom Shower

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This might sound crazy, but how come people don't give showers for men who are getting married? Brides get linen showers, kitchen showers, lingerie showers, and all kinds of showers. But grooms never get anything. Women are now screaming for equal rights, so how about giving men equal rights? A man who's about to be married could use some new pajamas, shirts, underwear, and even spark plugs and fan belts. Well, Abby, what do you say?

FOR EQUAL RIGHTS

DEAR FOR: I'm all for it. But where have you been? Not long ago I published a letter from a man whose wife left him and took everything; so his pals at work gave him a shower to help set him up in housekeeping. Bravo!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 39-year-old woman who is engaged to a wonderful man, age 40. He has three fine children and has been a widower for two years. He is very clean cut, considerate, and I think I'm the luckiest woman in the world.

Now, my problem: He frequently says, "my wife," when referring to his deceased wife. I think he should call her his late wife. Also, he is very close to his late wife's parents and he refers to them as his "in-laws." Are they not his "former in-laws"? Am I being small-minded, jealous and unreasonable to feel as I do, or am I justified? I want to be fair. I certainly don't want to damage our relationship, but this one habit of his is driving me up a wall. Is this worth mentioning?

NEEDS SOME WISDOM

DEAR NEEDS: Anything that drives you up a wall is well worth mentioning. But first you must realize that his former in-laws will always be a part of his family because they are his children's grandparents; so don't demand that he refer to them as "my former in-laws." But do tell him that he'd better start referring to his late wife as just that because you will be his wife soon.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a grandmother has to babysit with grandchildren who are disobedient and disrespectful?

I have two married sons who each have two little boys—all under 10. The sons of one family are a pleasure to be with. They are well-mannered and obedient, and I love sitting with them either at my own home or at theirs. The sons of the other family are just the opposite. The boys are mouthy, rude, and they actually abuse me. I don't even want them in my home because they are so wild and destructive.

I have flatly refused to babysit for the boys who give me a hard time, and now I am being criticized by the whole family.

Do you think I should treat ALL my grandchildren alike when they behave differently? And am I wrong to favor those who are mannerly and cooperative?

CRITICIZED

DEAR CRITICIZED: Turn a deaf ear to the criticism. I'm with you.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Municipal Election Deadlines

Municipal elections are coming up in Pitt County Towns during October and November. Citizens of these municipalities should be aware of some important deadlines, however.

In Greenville and Farmville those who want to seek office as mayor, or on the governing board must file by Friday. Thus the slate of candidates in these two cities will be set by the time this week is out.

In addition citizens who are registering to vote for the first time should bear in mind that they must get their names on the books by 5 p.m. on Sept. 8—next Monday. Registration is done in Greenville at the Pitt Elections office at Cotanche and Second Streets or with registrars in Ayden, Bethel, Falkland, Farmville, Fountain, Grifton, Grimesland and Winterville. New voters who register for the municipal elections will be eligible for all future elections.

In Greenville voters will go to their regular precinct polling places on election day, but voters in the old precincts of 2 and 8 should keep in mind that the precincts have been merged and now vote at the Willis building located at Reade Circle and First Street.

Both Greenville and Farmville will hold their non-partisan municipal elections on Oct. 7. If a second primary is necessary it will be held on Nov. 4.

Pitt County's other eight municipalities will all hold non-partisan elections on Nov. 4 with no provision for a run-off election.

The non-partisan aspect of the municipal election refers to the fact that candidates do not file according to party affiliation. Potential candidates in municipalities other than Greenville and Farmville have until noon Oct. 3 to file. New voters have until 5 p.m. Oct. 6 to register in order to be eligible to vote in the upcoming elections.

Both potential candidates and new voters should keep the various deadlines in mind. It is important that all elections have the fullest participation possible. That means we need qualified candidates seeking the office and we need every citizen who is qualified to vote eligible to cast a ballot on election day. Those who don't register don't vote, and thus they do not participate in the process of choosing the leaders who will determine their future.

Driver Ed In Classroom?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Age 16 is of prime importance to most kids: that's when the driving license and accompanying freedom of movement and place at the wheel of a status symbol occur.

Playing on that motivation to achieve, North Carolina educators are working on a program to introduce driver training techniques into the regular classroom.

The benefits would be mutual, educators feel: the highly motivated student anxious for his license would study harder and learn better; the future driver would be a safer one because of a wider understanding of safety factors, the role of attitudes on the driver, and the laws of speed and motion which control a car under way.

The approach now under study involves incorporating safety education in the regular English, science, social studies, mathematics, economics and other subjects in grades 10 through 12.

Pilot Project

A pilot project costing $50,000 (half from the federal Department of Transportation, half from the state Governor's Highway Safety Program) will be carried out in schools of the Southern Piedmont Education Consortium. That organization includes Cabarrus, Rowan, Stanly, and Union County School Districts, and the city systems of Albemarle, Concord, Kannapolis, Monroe, and Salisbury within those counties.

Thirty driver education teachers from those districts will take part in the program, and each will be expected to involve at least three additional teachers of classroom studies in developing study materials for young drivers.

The Safety and Driver Education Center at Greensboro's A&T State University will direct the project.

The object is to add to the "vast pool of knowledge" needed by young drivers in making better and safer traffic decisions.

Norman E. Leafe, director of health, safety, and physical education for the State Department of Public Instruction says use of regular classroom work to help make better drivers is something which can be done in almost any setting—even physical education classes for junior high schoolers or elementary students.

"That is one of the side benefits of having the children run about a gymnasium in a circular pattern without bumping into a classmate—they can begin to see the rapidly changing patterns of traffic."

Rapid Change

"And when you're on the road, everything is changing constantly and you must constantly be alert," Leafe explains.

The pilot project goes far beyond that, with the idea of using safety as the theme for written reports in English classes, the study of motion and mass in physics, discussions of motivations for safe driving and understanding attitudes which make bad drivers in social studies classes.

Part of the project will include funds to follow up on students participating in the special program for a period of three years, to compare their driving records with those of students elsewhere in the state.

School officials think the results may prove important both in North Carolina and nationally.

As the project summary puts it: "Driver education needs to provide pupils with wider and deeper educational experiences that are attitudinally oriented... a new dimension of relevance may emerge... important in helping pupils transfer the products of their school learning experiences into their life styles."

Future plans are to expand the new approach to other sections of the state if it is successful in the pilot program.

"Gosh! They really know how to make you feel at home here."

Why Fathers Go Broke

(Mr. Buchwald has taken a short respite without our permission. He left behind what he claims is one of his favorite columns.)

WASHINGTON—We have nothing against toy companies. They have a right to live just like everybody else. In their own way they bring happiness to the hearts of our young ones, and they give employment to thousands of people all over the country. It is only when they try to bankrupt us that we feel we should speak out. If our situation is duplicated around the country, every father who has a daughter between the ages of 4 and 12 is going to have to apply for relief.

This is what happened. Our 7-year-old daughter requested, four months ago, a Barbie doll. Now, as far as we're concerned, one doll is just like another, and since the Barbie doll cost only $3 we were happy to oblige.

We brought the doll home and thought nothing more of it until a week later our daughter came in said, "Barbie needs a negligee."

"So does your mother," we replied.

"But there is one in the catalogue for only $3," she cried.

"What catalogue?"

"The one that came with the doll."

We grabbed the catalogue and much to our horror discovered what the sellers of Barbie were up to. They let you have the doll for $3, but you have to buy clothes for her at an average of $3 a crack. They have about 200 outfits, from iceskating skirts to mink jackets, and a girl's status in the community is based on how many Barbie clothes she has for her doll.

The first time we took our daughter to the store we spent $30 on a dress for her and $25 to outfit her Barbie doll.

A week later our daughter came in and said, "Barbie wants to be an airline stewardess."

"So let her be an airline stewardess," we said.

"She needs a uniform. It's only $3.50."

We gave her $3.50. Barbie didn't stay a stewardess long. She decided she wanted to be a nurse ($3), then a singer in a nightclub ($3), then a professional dancer ($3).

One day our daughter walked in and said, "Barbie's lonely."

"Let her join a sorority," we said.

"Who is Ken?"

"She wants Ken."

"Who is Ken?"

She showed us the catalogue. Sure enough, there was a doll named Ken, the same size as Barbie, with crew-cut hair, a vinyl plastic chest and movable arms and legs.

"If you don't get Ken," our daughter cried, "Barbie will grow up to be an old maid."

So we went out and bought Ken ($3.50). Ken needed a tuxedo ($5), a raincoat ($2.50), a terry-cloth robe and an electric razor ($2), tennis togs ($3), pajamas ($1.50) and several single-breasted suits ($27).

Pretty soon we had put up $400 to protect our original $3 investment.

Then one evening our daughter came in with a shocker: "Barbie and Ken are getting married."

"Who's paying for the wedding?"

"They'll need a house to live in. Here's Barbie's Dream House."

"Seven ninety-five?" we shouted. "Why can't they live on a shelf like the rest of your dolls?"

Writer Of The Laws

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—The dol-drum of late summer hit state employes as much or more than normal folks. More often than usual, the typical bureaucrat is "out to lunch," "in a meeting," or has "just stepped away from his desk."

But Milton Heath was behind his desk as usual late one afternoon last week. That was not surprising, because Heath is one state employe who gives the taxpayers their money's worth, and then some.

Heath, 47, who has worked for the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill since 1967. He is not the type of person to call attention to himself, but those who work with him use phrases like "mature judgment... available when we need him... instrumental" when they talk about him. They mean it sincerely.

He is a lawyer, and a smart one. He went to Harvard as an undergraduate and to Columbia University's law school. He worked for a time in the office of New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, but eventually decided to head back to the good life in his native Chapel Hill.

What Milton Heath does is write laws. They are not your common, pedestrian laws. They are the hard ones.

Every year when the legislature meets, the leadership takes stock of what is coming up and determines what area is likely to produce the most important and complicated legislation. Then they assign Heath to work on it.

In the past few years, North Carolina's statute books have been improved by numerous examples of his handiwork. The coastal zoning act of 1973, the utilities laws passed this year and a host of others are his legacy.

Heath, by nature, is quick to disclaim any credit. "Most of what I work with is legislators' ideas. Sometimes they come from the Administration or from a university source. Bills are most successful when they embody a legislator's idea."

What happens is that a legislative committee chairman will turn to Heath and say, "We want a bill that does such and such."

Heath always nods pleasantly. The next morning the bill is ready. Quite frequently, Heath winds up explaining to a sponsor what his bill means.

Sometimes, he sees a piece of work hacked apart on the floor. "It frustrates everybody to see something chopped apart. If you're got as much business to worry about as I do, you don't have much time to think about it."

Heath has seen some interesting things during his years in government. A few years ago, he watched two burly legislators stand up, square off, and nearly come to blows in an argument over a major bill.

But, in his understated style, he won't mention their names for fear of embarrassing them.

When the legislature is over, Heath goes back to Chapel Hill, subject to recall by state officials who need his counsel. He works on projects like the water resources study he was making last week. He teaches a course in environmental law.

Few people would notice that the smiling, nondescript man in the slacks and

The INSIDE REPORT

Turkey's Uncertain Future

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

ANKARA—Two weeks ago, windows of an American bank in Istanbul were broken by students demonstrating against the congressional embargo on U.S. weapons, including spare parts, for Turkey.

At about the same time, an American flag was burned in front of an American embassy building.

Last week, when Ambassador William Butts Macomber made a three-day tour to buck up Americans stationed on now-inactive U.S. bases (flying only the Turkish flag today), the Turkish government doubled normal security. The reason: rising fear that anti-American sentiment aroused by the arms embargo (a result of Turkey's invasion of Cyprus) might endanger the ambassador's party. In fact, it did not.

Skeptics wonder whether all this is not simply Turkish mood music to dramatize the crisis in U.S.-Turkish relations and influence the embargo-repeal vote to be taken next month in Washington. But there is no evidence to support such Machiavellian suspicions.

To the contrary, the highest officials in the government, joined by responsible opposition leaders, seem unanimous in wanting to minimize the long-range impact of what Turkey regards as a humiliating and discriminating injury.

A symbol of this perceived injury was the highly-publicized trip of Democratic Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri to Athens last week. Eagleton, a minor hero in Greece as Senate leader of the pro-embargo forces, did not fit Ankara into his schedule. It was an omission that the Turks regard as typical of the rising, often contemptuous congressional power over U.S. foreign policy.

Indeed, the shortest chat with Turkish leaders invariably and quickly turns to the growing ambivalence of American policy as seen here.

"If the Soviet Union attacked us," an influential legislator who is one of this country's leading Europeanists told us, "your President would order retaliation. But within 48 hours, your Congress would veto the President."

That crystallizes the American problem here: credibility of policy deriving from a government torn by assassination, political scandal and divided powers. Now capped by the stark conflict between the anti-embargo President and the pro-embargo Congress, this has left the Turks not only bewildered but actually willing to discuss a highly improbable new source of arms: the Soviet Union.

The issue of the moment is air power. With its NATO ally Greece, not the Soviet Union, its main adversary, the government worries that denial of spare parts could give Greece air-power equality within two months. Greece now has some 39 F-4 Phantoms and has received the first three of some 60 attack bombers from the U.S. Turkey has 16 Phantoms, of which only six are operational—because of the lack of spare parts.

Overall, Turkey has more fighter aircraft than Greece, but according to informed officials here, the gap is fast closing.

What worries Turkey is not that if Greece achieves air equality or superiority it will attack, but rather Turkey's responsibility to assure its safety at the level it sees fit. That cannot be fulfilled from the West today.

It is hard to take seriously the oblique references to Moscow by Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel and other top Turks—including the politically-powerful military. Turkey and Czarist-Communist Russia have warred a dozen times, breeding Slavic-Anatolian hatred centuries old.

Even with detente enshrined, with the North Atlantic Alliance eroded from Portugal to Greece and with repeated inconsistencies in U.S. policy, a Turkish turn to Moscow appears preposterous.

Yet, deputy prime minister Necmettin Erbakan, leader of the Moslem-Nationalist Salvation party, told us, "The world's major mistakes are mistakes in judgment. Your Congress thinks we are tied to the U.S. That is a judgment and it might be a grave mistake."

From Demirel on down, we heard no criticism of Moscow. Soviet restraint in steering clear of Turkey's problems with the U.S. was widely noted. So were new commercial agreements with Moscow, under which the Russians are helping to quadruple the size of the Soviet-built steel mill and triple an aluminum plant.

When we asked Demirel whether Turkey would consider buying weapons from Moscow, he said there may be "other places," but

Other Editors Say This We Don't Need

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The "Balanced Growth and Economic Planning Act of 1975" is a piece of legislation which, if enacted, would sound the death knell of economic freedom in this country. Anytime you face bureaucratic planning in the economic sector, you face trouble.

The bill was introduced by liberal Sens. Hubert Humphrey and Jacob Javits. Among other things, the bill provides for "equitable distribution of income." That's what the socialists have been after for years: take all the wealth and divide it equally. The idea being that it's the only fair way to do things, that those who have through work and ingenuity acquired worldly goods are somehow committing a crime, and must pay for it by sharing their goods with those who won't work.

In an effort to forestall the torrent of criticism certain to be directed at this bureaucratic nightmare, Javits has soothingly assured us that there would be "no coercion" involved under such a system. Hogwash. If the proposal is enacted into law by Congress it carries coercion by its very nature.

Javits claims that the assumption that planning will dictate economic activity and supplant the free market is "highly erroneous."

Nevertheless, at a time when government disposes of approximately 40 per cent of the national income, and is steadily increasing its control over the economy, such airy pronouncements are anything but reassuring.

Historically, the inevitable result of planning has been the loss of freedom, as perceptive individuals have long understood.

The object lessons of Fascist Italy, Nazi Germany and Communist Russia have long been lost on American advocates of planning. It has been said that our own "creepers toward socialism" often don't even know where they are creeping.

But then again, they just might know exactly where they are going. And wherever that is, it bodes no good for the American people.

Strength For Today

THE GOLDEN RULE

The Golden Rule—Do unto others as you would have them do unto you—teaches that we should put ourselves in the place of others. It is the principle underlying the Biblical injunction, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

If we will but put ourselves in the place of others and feel another's pain, we will do something about it, and that something we do will be what we would like to have someone do for us, if we were in a like predicament. If we can take the anxiety of a brother into our hearts, it will bestir us as nothing else will to remove that anxiety. Every hospital that was ever built and endowed was created because some individual or a group of individuals put themselves in the place of sick and suffering humanity and did something about it.

We never follow Jesus Christ in the truest sense of the term until we put ourselves in the place of others and with earnestness and sacrifice begin to do something to meet their needs.

Boosting The Metrics Switch

By JIM ADAMS

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. conversion to the metric system, authorized by Congress in 1866, is expected to get a boost soon from a government committee created to coordinate the switch from pounds to grams.

The House is to take up this month a voluntary metric conversion bill that was snarled last year in controversy over whether federal payments should be made to workers to replace tools. Passage through both chambers is considered certain this year.

The bill would create a 21-member board to coordinate voluntary conversion of U.S.

industry and, therefore the public to the metric system. The board also will be authorized to make recommendations later on such matters as whether federal payments should be made for tool replacements.

A House Science Committee report on the bill says "the choice before the Congress is not whether we should move to the metric system. That conversion is underway."

"The choice is between continuing the conversion process in an entirely uncoordinated fashion, as is the case now, or going forward with the conversion process on a coordinated basis."

It says the U.S. drug industry and medical profession already are using the metric system and major American automobile companies plan to be on the metric system within the next few years.

Further, all 50 states are committed to teaching the metric system, and the school systems of a number of states have announced that textbooks will be changed entirely to the metric system by 1976, the committee said.

Basically, the 21-member United States Metric Board will coordinate metric conversion plans to be developed by every industry in the country and by other groups such as state and local governments.

The board also would be directed to conduct a program of public education—teaching youngsters in school how to use the system and teaching adults through television, newspapers and magazines. Finally, the board would recommend to the President and Congress any legislation needed to move the country to the new way of measuring.

An authorization passed by Congress July 28, 1866, made the metric system legal but not mandatory in the United States. Congress has considered going to the metric system many times since then but international trade with other countries using the metric system now has given the effort new impetus.

Coalfield Meetings Continue Today On Wildcat Strike's End

By JENNIFER KERR
Associated Press Writer
CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Coalfield meetings continued today to discuss a possible end to the wildcat strike that has idled 80,000 United Mine Workers, but no strong back-to-work movement surfaced.

Some union leaders were cautiously optimistic after weekend gatherings that the three-week-old walkout would end at the 12:01 a.m. shift Tuesday, after the Labor Day holiday weekend.

But other miners, mainly in the West Virginia area that spawned the walkout, reiterated their determination to keep two-thirds of the nation's 125,000 soft coal miners off their jobs.

And even if union leaders do obtain a return-to-work consensus, just a few roving pickets could keep the mines closed. Miners traditionally and automatically honor pickets.

Such pickets kept a return movement from working Friday in southwest Virginia, where about half of the 9,000 miners in UMW District 28 have been striking.

"As of Friday there was a movement going on that the men were going back to work," District President Ray Marshall said Sunday. "I feel confident that starting Tuesday the men will be going back to work."

If the miners fail to return to work Tuesday, the national union faces a $500,000 federal civil contempt fine.

The walkout, which has spread to Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois, last week began to affect related industries, with several railroads and steel mills laying off workers as their stockpiles diminished.

In Ohio, two striking locals in Meigs County voted Sunday to return to work, but they represent less than half that state's 2,200 idle miners.

In West Virginia, a group of Logan County locals met Sunday and voted to stay off their jobs until their demands are met.

It was in Logan County that the strike began more than three weeks ago when two miners were suspended.

From a protest of suspensions, the movement spread to include the coal firms' reliance on federal court injunctions and dissatisfaction with the 1974 contract, particularly its elaborate but slow grievance procedure and its lack of a right-to-strike clause.

"The contract will not be reopened," UMW Secretary-Treasurer Harry Patrick said Saturday when he came to Charleston to urge a return to work Tuesday. "The right-to-strike people can strike until hell freezes over and we can't reopen that contract."

Patrick also called on the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the operators' bargaining group, to meet with union officials and a federal mediator this week to talk over differences. He named four rank-and-file members to attend such a meeting.

Ports Step Set By Holshouser

RALEIGH (AP)—Legislation allowing separation of the State Ports Authority from railroad operations will be requested by Gov. Jim Holshouser to cut into union strength in the State Ports Authority.

Such lawmaking "would remove the bulk of the Ports Authority employees from the jurisdiction of the Railway Labor Act and allow them to resume their status as normal state employees," Holshouser told the National Right to Work Committee, a private organization against compulsory unionism.

The committee asked Holshouser last month to act to prohibit nonunion employees from having to pay a "service fee" to the International Longshoremen Association, as is required in an ILA contract with the States Port Authority.

Holshouser responded with a letter that he believes legislation is needed "to protect individual freedom of choice in the state."

North Carolina has a "right to work law" which forbids employers from requiring employees to pay dues, fees or other charges to a labor union as a condition of employment. But the Railway Labor Act supercedes that state law, as well as a state law which says the state may not bargain with unions.

Even an approach to such an unlikely step from one of America's most faithful allies would be momentous. That it is a veiled matter of discussion shows how deeply the arms embargo has shaken its leaders, and what a dangerous brew the U.S. Congress has cooked.

For First Time—Parking Space Awaits ECU Frosh

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
East Carolina University freshmen this year, for the first time will have use of parking facilities provided by the University.

Joseph H. Calder, director of traffic and security at ECU said a temporary parking lot has been established on university property on Reade Street, between the Regional Development Institute building and Third Street. A second lot will be opened in the near future on 14th Street, between Elm Street and Berkley Road, Calder explained, on property leased to the school by the Greenville City Board of Education.

According to the traffic and security chief, "the 1969 student legislature passed a regulation that allowed sophomore students to park their cars on campus, and authorized freshmen to bring their cars to Greenville but banned freshmen cars from campus parking."

This, Calder said, meant first year students had to find parking on city streets or private lots off-campus.

"The city has towed a lot of cars on complaint (police tow illegally parked cars), and the public has been unhappy with the congestion caused in some instances by students parking off-campus," Calder said. "So we're trying to provide parking spaces for at least most of the cars."

He explained that last year, 400 freshmen cars were registered at the university. The temporary lot on Reade Street, Calder explained, will accommodate between 350 and 400 cars, while the facility on 14th Street will provide about 100 parking spaces.

"This is an attempt to provide parking and take all the cars off side streets and out of the public's hair," he said. With the two new lots, according to Calder, "we feel East Carolina will have provided sufficient parking so all university registered vehicles can park on school parking areas."

During the 1974-1975 school year Calder said, there were 9,524 vehicles registered on campus, including some 2,100 staff cars, 3,500 day students, 2,796 dorm residents, 586 freshmen, 400 night students, 112 motor vehicles and 30 vendors. He noted, however, that the total includes cars owned by some individuals who have more than one car registered and several hundred that have been registered and sold by their owners who, in turn, have registered their new car.

Calder said that the university provides some 3,365 parking spaces (not including the two new lots). These include some 2,355 spaces on the main campus, 555 at Minges Coliseum, 766 "on the hill" (around dormitories on College Hill) and 489 on College Hill Drive.

parking provided "might not necessarily be right in front of the building. They may have to walk a block or two blocks."

"We've got a number of faculty and staff and students that wait to come on campus at five or 10 minutes to 10 and when they don't find a place to park right in front of the building they get upset... say there's no parking."

"They shouldn't expect to find a parking place at 10 a.m. They wouldn't expect to find one downtown or in a shopping center right in front of a store."

Traffic and security matters at the university are handled by a force of 22 full-time policemen and two part-time officers, "one of the larger police departments in Eastern North Carolina," according to Calder.

These officers last year, according to their director, issued in the neighborhood of 25,000 parking tickets to improperly parked vehicles.

Calder estimated that only about 10,000 were paid for, the other 15,000 being excused for various reasons.

Fines for parking violations on campus range from $2 to $5, depending on the infraction.

Rescued Kidnap Victim Has Departed Country

By ALFONSO CHARDY
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Charles A. Lockwood said the leftist guerrillas who held him captive for 58 days two years ago told him "they never squeeze the same lemon twice."

"Argentina is my home, and I have no intention of leaving," said the British-born financier after a $2.5 million ransom secured his release then.

But leftist guerrillas kidnaped Lockwood again a month ago. And after the police killed four of his captors Sunday and rescued him, a servant at his home said he left the country with his wife and two daughters.

bushed Lockwood on July 31 as he was being driven to his office with his two daughters and his two bodyguards. The kidnapers wounded the chauffeur and the bodyguards.

No ransom demand was ever made public, and there was no word whether any money was paid.

The police said they found Lockwood in a brick home in the suburban Pilar area near the Campo de Mayo army base. They did not say how they learned about the hideout, but they said there was a gunfight in which four guerrillas guarding Lockwood were killed and a policeman was seriously wounded.

The newspaper Ultima Hora reported a young woman was among the dead terrorists. It said the police found a 9-year-old girl in the house, but she was not hurt.

Police sources said they believed the kidnapers were from the Marxist People's Revolutionary Army, the ERP. It is one of the country's two leading left-wing guerrilla organizations and was responsible for the kidnaping of Lockwood in 1973.

RESCUED—Police rescued twice-kidnaped British businessman Charles Lockwood unharmed Sunday El Pilar, a small town 25 miles west of Buenos Aires, Argentina. A police source said four of his Marxist abductors were killed and one police officer was wounded in the shootout. (AP Wirephoto)

Nat'l Airlines Flight Attendants On Strike

By MARTIN MERZER
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — National Airlines' 1,200 flight attendants began their Labor Day on strike, walking off the job at midnight and forcing thousands of holiday travelers to change their flight plans.

The strike, National's second within a year, was called by the Association of Flight Attendants after the failure in Washington of talks aimed at ending an 19-month deadlock in contract negotiations.

All flights were canceled by the Miami-based carrier, which serves 45 American cities and London with 360 daily flights carrying about 18,000 passengers. Other airlines began setting up extra flights to handle passengers who had been booked by National.

"The company remained adamant in their position and they did not make any movement," union official Mike Garko, a steward, said of the breakdown.

"We went up there to negotiate with hope and good faith. The mediators brought both sides together Sunday and the company just maintained the same adamant position."

Company spokesman Ken Turpin said, "National is disappointed that the talks have broken off without reaching agreement."

Scott Smith, another union spokesman, said his group was asking for a $44 raise for new attendants, bringing their monthly salary to $537. He said National's last offer was a raise of $3 to $496. Under the company's proposal, top pay would go from $733 a month to $768, he said. The union is asking $800.

Garko said attendants' salaries and fringe benefits were well below industry standards.

"We don't even have a retirement program," he said. "We're the only major carrier without retirement benefits." He said there was some progress in negotiations on retirement and insurance benefits.

The negotiations began in January 1974 and were declared deadlocked Feb. 1, 1974. Mediators took jurisdiction Nov. 12, 1974, just 12 days after the end of a 108-day strike by the 1,500 members of the International Association of Machinists.

National employs 7,660 persons, about 1,000 of them non-union.

Garko said talks were tentatively set to resume Wednesday, "but if the company maintains its position, this will be a long strike."

Set Bicentennial Free-Love Play

WALLINGFORD, Conn. (AP) — There's a dark corner of Wallingford history that some townspeople don't like to talk about, much less celebrate in an official bicentennial musical comedy.

But it appears the show will go on, despite criticisms that a 19th Century free-love commune is not a fitting subject for a Bicentennial play.

"From what I've heard, it sounds kind of neat," said the Rev. Michael Jackson, associate pastor of the First Congregational Church, which 200 years ago excommunicated a respected member for embracing the commune.

The play, written by 19-year-old college student James Beloff of Meriden, portrays the church's opposition to the Wallingford Community, a branch of the Oneida, N.Y. commune. What so shocked the church and the town was the commune's rejection of the conventional husband-wife relationship. Instead, members were part of a "complex" marriage in which members could make love to others in the group. They also believed in breeding the "best" males with the "best" females.

Sexual conduct of this sort is still light years ahead of Wallingford's population in 1975, but most residents appear ready at least to see a play that goes beyond George Washington and the Stars and Stripes. The play, "Two Sides of Heaven," will be presented Sept. 12-14.

At its peak, the commune had 80 members in 1876 and sustained itself through a printing business and light manufacturing. It was considered industrious but none-the-less heretical.

The commune died out in the 1880s, partly because of a malaria attack.

Bicentennial Commission chairman Robert Billings, himself a Congregationalist, says the Oneidas deserve recognition as one of the few high points in Wallingford's past.

"To my mind, it was one of the few interesting things to ever happen in Wallingford. This is an ordinary town, let's face it," Billings said.

So far the majority of the commission supports the play, for which it paid Beloff $1,500 to produce.

The church's tie-in to the play has irked some citizens, who take exception to a congregation singing: "We've got a week's worth of sinnin' to wash out of the linen."

NEW SERVICE OFFERED

J. Hugh Bazemore, vice president and Greenville city executive, Planters National Bank and Trust Company (left), assists Miss Velma Lowe in completing U.S. Treasury Standard Form 1199 which will permit the Social Security Administration to automatically deposit her monthly benefit check directly to her checking or savings account. The new service developed cooperatively by the Treasury and Social Security departments will begin throughout North Carolina September 2.

Greenville, N.C. September 1 — J. Hugh Bazemore, Vice President and Greenville city executive, Planters National Bank and Trust Company (PNB), today announced that PNB will be among the North Carolina financial organizations offering Social Security recipients the opportunity to have checks automatically deposited to their checking or savings account.

The new service, developed in cooperation with the U.S. Treasury Department and Social Security Administration, will begin September 2. By signing a simple form, recipients authorize the Social Security Administration to send their monthly checks directly to PNB for deposit.

Mr. Bazemore stated, "In addition to being more convenient, the service provides extra security for checks delivered this way. In recent years we've seen an increased number of Social Security checks stolen from mailboxes. This service eliminates that risk."

He said, "For others, particularly the infirmed and handicapped, who have had difficulty getting to a bank, the benefits of this service are obvious and should prove a real advantage."

PNB currently has 31 offices serving 20 North Carolina communities.

Libya Parades Six-Year Gain

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP)—Libya celebrated the sixth anniversary today of Col. Moammar Khadafy's revolution with displays of booming military and economic might accompanied by the threat of a severe crackdown on dissent.

In the last two weeks the nation's leaders have decreed laws diplomats consider the harshest in their six-year rule.

One law prescribes life imprisonment for "any Libyan who conveys worrisome news regarding the internal situation in a manner that will harm Libya's prestige and which will shake confidence in it abroad." Another decrees death for those who form "illegal groups" or oppose "popular unity."

Tripoli, the sunparched capital now in the grip of steaming Sahara winds, is decorated with flags and wooden arches bearing portraits of Khadafy and his mentor, the late Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt. Throughout the week prior to the annual anniversary parade today, the government displayed massive military hardware and crash industrialization it is financing with the $5 billion a year it gets from oil.

It was at dawn on Sept. 1, 1969, that Khadafy, a signal corps captain of 27, led troops to the Benghazi radio station and announced in a style that was to become the trademark of his revolution:

"Your heroic army has toppled the idiots ... As of now Libya shall be free and sovereign ... and thus we shall build glory, revive our heritage and avenge a wounded dignity."

King Idris, vacationing in Turkey, lost his throne. The U.S. Air Force lost its Wheelus Air Base near Tripoli. British military installations in Benghazi were closed, and more than 20,000 Italian settlers were expelled.

Since then the emphasis has been on what Khadafy calls "the third international theory" after capitalism and communism, socialism in economic affairs and pan-Arabism in foreign affairs. However, plans to unite with Egypt and with Tunisia bore no fruit, and now Libya and Egypt frequently exchange insults.

Van Kirk, then a 23-year-old Air Force captain and now a DuPont executive in Charlotte, says, "They were really pretty ordinary civilians who, because of the situation, got caught up in the military. They were assigned a job and they did it. If most of the guys had had their druthers, they wouldn't have been there at all."

That bomb dropped at 2:15 a.m. Aug. 6, 1945, destroyed four square miles of the city, left 40,000 persons dead and another 20,000 mortally wounded, and caused Japan to surrender in World War II.

Van Kirk has commented on the questions that arose later, especially the morality of using an atomic bomb on a city rather than on an uninhabited area to show Japan the strength of the weapon.

"It's easy to criticize a decision after it's been made," he says. "You make a military decision on the basis of what you know then, to what you find out later."

But Van Kirk admits it's still impossible to escape the spectre of Hiroshima. "I've had a kind of fleeting feeling of remorse," he says. "There are times when you wish things had been otherwise."

Recalls Crew As Ordinary

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Ken "Dutch" Van Kirk, navigator on the plane which dropped the atom bomb over Hiroshima 30 years ago, says the men who flew the Enola Gay, a B29 Superfortress, were not war-hardened fellows who enjoyed killing people.

Van Kirk, then a 23-year-old Air Force captain and now a DuPont executive in Charlotte, says, "They were really pretty ordinary civilians who, because of the situation, got caught up in the military. Irish Victim Is Former Visitor

By TERRY M. DeVINE

SOUTH SHORE, S.D. (AP)—Stephen Geddis, a 10-year-old youngster from Northern Ireland who came to this tiny community in northeastern South Dakota to escape the violence for a summer, is dead—a victim of a skirmish between soldiers and demonstrators in Belfast.

He was one of 33 Northern Ireland youngsters who vacationed in the Upper Midwest as part of a program aimed at getting the children away from the daily violence in their homeland.

On Saturday, the Catholic boy became the latest victim of six years of violence between militant Roman Catholics and Protestants when he died in a Belfast hospital of injuries suffered Thursday in a skirmish between demonstrators and British troops in the Falls Road area of Belfast.

According to Sarah Hughes, the Belfast housewife who arranged the boy's visit, he was hit in the head by a rubber or plastic bullet fired by British soldiers trying to quell a disturbance near a Catholic housing project, where the boy lived.

Before returning to Belfast, Geddis learned to love the Manley Owens family and peanut butter and root beer.

"That little fellow melted the hearts of everyone who got to know him," said Manley Owens after being told of the boy's death. "He fit right in and became part of the family."

Geddis spent five weeks this summer with the Owens family under the two-year-old program. He returned to Belfast Aug. 5, less than a month before his death.

"We loved him as one of our own," said Owens, a cattle rancher with three married children in this community of 199 people located on Punished Woman Lake.

Owens recalled the boy's parting words as he boarded a train in Moorhead, Minn., Aug. 5 on the first leg of his homeward journey.

Stephen, wearing the cowboy boots that the Owens had given him, said, "I would like to return one day ... and bring my family with me."

Owens said he was told of the boy's death Saturday by Mrs. Roy Lerud of Twin Valley, Minn. Mrs. Lerud said she learned of it from Mrs. Hughes.

Liz, Richard Might Remarry

GSTAAD, Switzerland (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton are back in Switzerland from a trip together to Israel amid reports that they might remarry.

The Zurich newspaper Blick said Burton and Miss Taylor, who are enjoying a "permanent reconciliation" after 14 months of divorce, will wed again in nearby Saaren. Miss Taylor's secretary denied marriage was in the couple's plans.

Burton and Miss Taylor were in Israel looking at locations for Burton's next film. Miss Taylor, who converted to Judaism, said she hoped to return to Israel "many more times."

Paid To Rope 20 Billy Goats

BELL'S ISLAND, N.C. (AP)—More than 250 lasso-swingers paid $1.25 each for the privilege of chasing 20 billy goats around an island marshland.

The 12 creatures caught during the weekend's fifth annual goat roundup sponsored by a civic club were judged and auctioned.

The goats that escaped the rope will roam free.

A few hundred spectators arrived at Long Point by boat to watch. Bell's Island is located in Currituck Sound and has been called Goat Island because of the roundups.

Prices for the goats at an auction began at $20. Proceeds went to the Crawford Township Volunteer Fire Department.

May Be Canned Without Sugar

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI)—Home canned fruits have better flavor and texture when sugar is added, but they can be packed unsweetened.

Gooseberries, cranberries and rhubarb retain good quality when packed without sugar, Oklahoma State University foods specialist Mary Frances Sowers said.

Unsweetened fruits may be packed with no liquid, with water containing ascorbic acid or in the fruit's own juice.

When using sugar, dissolve it in water in a 40 per cent solution—three cups sugar and four cups water.

Upcoming Season Could Be The Year Of The Ram

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
(One of a series)

SNOW HILL—With the absence of last year's Eastern Carolina Conference champ Southern Wayne, the team most likely to take over the top spot this season is Greene Central. But don't ask Ram Coach Stewart Smith about next year. Of his 28-man squad, Smith has 17 seniors. "We're really going to be hurt," Smith said. "Over 90 percent are seniors. We're going to play the younger boys as much as we possibly can."

So for the time being, he is worrying about the season at hand. And his worries are few. Off last year's third place team that went 8-2 Smith lost only eight seniors. He started the season with 14 but six were lost before play started by injuries. "The balance of the team was of J.V. origin," Smith said. "They had to step right in and they got a year of experience."

The three positions Smith expects to be the hardest to refill will be at quarterback, tight end and wide receiver. Jerry Carraway, started the season as the number one QB but was injured midway through the season. Tim Butts played both ways as tight and defensive end. Butts is a scholarship player for East Carolina now. Wide receiver Donnie Billizzard was one of the team's leading pass catchers last year. "I'd rather have three or four to fill than (the number) a year from now," Smith observed. All three graduated.

At quarterback, Smith had transplanted Jeffery Warren. Warren was a fullback in the team's wishbone offense last season. "They worked him a lot," Smith said of Warren's participation in the ECU Football camp. Behind Warren is Melvin Briggs who filled in for Carraway last season and who doubles as a linebacker. "He played four full games at quarterback and has experience." The Rams have in the third QB slot Torre Albritton. He played J.V. last year but is a senior.

Behind the quarterbacks, Linwood Underhill and Anthony Corbette return to lead the running-back corps. "Underhill started last season as third string fullback and by the second game was number one." Underhill is 5-11 and 190 but he is a senior. Corbett is also a senior.

Behind those two, Smith has Mike Canady a small 5-2, 123 senior who played varsity last season. Claude Lane a junior and Daniel Dean and Carraway both sophomores have looked good.

At center, the Rams have Donald Wooten and last year's center Linwood Rasberry (5-9, 160). At the guards are seniors Robert Cox (5-9, 155) and Terry Strickland (5-10, 175), Harry Holmes (5-6, 205) a junior who played briefly before breaking a wrist, and sophomore Willie Reed, the heaviest man on the team at 227.

Smith has a large group of prospective tackles in Marvin Rouse, Norman Dunn, Owen Waters, Dennis Hedgepeth, Steve Sowers and Frankie Jones. Sowers is a junior and Jones a sophomore.

Ronnie Whitley and Thomas Hooker are working for the starting tight end spot and Floyd Adams and Butch Martin for the wide receiver position.

"The offensive line is our weakness," Smith said. "They have quickness but have to learn to work together. Tight end and wide receiver are spots that will be difficult to fill. Hooker was hurt in the second game last year but he is a real good football player. His talent is just rising to the top."

"Adams has excellent hands but Jones is the better blocker." Smith feels that right now, the defense will be a strong point for the Rams. While the biggest player on the line is nose guard Holmes, the others make up for lack of size with experience. In the defensive backfield, Smith believes he has good speed in Corbett (4.4 in the 40-yard dash) and good hands in Carraway. "Carraway was the best player from our junior high program and he loves to play defense. He's got a real nose for the ball," Smith said.

Smith has reason to be proud of his defense. "It has been first in the conference the last two years in pass and rush defense. Last year, Smith's main problem was depth and not being able to find some. This year he doesn't know what to do with all the depth he has. "I have no idea who I'm going to start," he said before a scrimmage with Richlands last Friday night." He said he would have to let the few underclassmen play to prepare them for next season but at the same time, he will have to rely on his seniors. "I've got to ride with them and their leadership. This team has more playing time any team I've had."

Smith agrees with several other coaches that the conference race will boil down to a battle between GC, Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton. "Farmville Central lost some players but they have enough to build on. A-G has the whole core back. They will really be tough; they have a demanding first three games."

So for the time being, anyway, Smith is not looking at that monster next year. He is going with this year's team as far as he can before he thinks about next season. About this year he said, "I'm highly optimistic."

The Rams' schedule: Sept. 5: Eastern Wayne; Sept. 12: at Washington; Sept. 19: at Southern Wayne; Sept. 26: at Farmville Central; Oct. 3: at D. H. Conley; Oct. 10: C. B. Aycock; Oct. 17: Ayden-Grifton; Oct. 24: at North Pitt; Oct. 31: North Lenoir; Nov. 7: Southern Nash.

Charlotte Works On Corners To Get 33-14 Win

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Charlotte Coach Bob Gibson tried to be magnanimous about his team's 33-14 shellacking of the Jacksonville Express.

"If we hadn't scored before the rain, it might have been a different game," the Hornets' coach said after the Saturday night World Football League game. "We controlled the ball for that first touchdown and any time you do that, it puts you in good position."

The rain started midway in the first quarter and stopped at halftime when Charlotte led 15-0.

Tom Sherman, Hornet quarterback, completed nine of 11 passes for 119 yards.

"We just found we could throw to the left with success and kept continuing that success," he said.

It was obvious that Charlotte worked on cornerback Johnny Osborne's zone. The result was a pass completion or interference penalty almost every time as the Hornets built a 25-0 lead going to the fourth quarter.

It wasn't until the last quarter that Jacksonville mustered an offense and scored two touchdowns.

"We're very disappointed with the way we played," Express Coach Charlie Tate said. "No one can point the finger at anyone else. All of us, coaches included, have to evaluate ourselves individually and bounce back with a good week of work for our trip to Shreveport."

Charlotte not only had Sherman's throwing, but also had strong work from running backs Don Highsmith and Lewis Jolley.

Highsmith led all runners with 99 yards on 20 carries and sat out the fourth quarter. He scored the first touchdown on a one-yard plunge after setting it up with a 24-yard pass reception. Jolley ran one yard for the second touchdown and caught a nine-yard pass for the third.

Pete Rajczyk chipped in with a 26-yard field goal, and quarterback Brian Dowling capped the victory by running one yard for the final score.

"They caught us a little flat. We know we'll get beat if we don't play a good game," said Jacksonville quarterback George Mira, who completed only six passes and had two interceptions.

Even Tommy Reamon, who led the WFL in rushing last year with 1,576 yards, had a bad night. He gained only 34 yards and fumbled away the ball twice.

"In early season, we can have games like this," Reamon said. "And so will other teams."

Both Charlotte and Jacksonville have 2-2 records. Charlotte takes a two-game winning streak into its home game against Philadelphia Saturday night.

GRAHAM MOVES UP
MEDINAH, Ill. (AP)—Two weeks before the 1975 U.S. Open here, Lou Graham ranked 28th with the year's pro money winners with $45,261. After he won the Open playoff against John Mahaffey, winning $40,000, Graham jumped to 13th on the money list.

Graham, incidentally, tied for third in the 1974 Open at Maroneck, N.Y., when he tallied 290. Mahaffey tied for 12th position last year.

Viridon Tries His Best To Beat His Old Team

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Wouldn't it be ironic if Bill Viridon, wearing a Houston uniform, returned to knock the Pittsburgh Pirates out of a division title?

Viridon and the Astros tried their best over the weekend. They beat the Pirates Saturday and took a 3-0 lead in the first inning of Sunday's scheduled doubleheader opener before succumbing 9-6.

"We scored six runs and had 11 hits and that should be enough to win most games," said Viridon, who managed, the hard-hitting Pirates in 1972 and most of 1973 and therefore wasn't surprised when they replied with nine runs and 14 hits, including a homer by Bob Robertson, a double and triple by Dave Parker and doubles by Richie Zisk, Manny Sanguillen and Al Oliver.

"When you play the Pirates and they are hitting, six runs doesn't seem to be much," Viridon noted.

The nightcap was washed out in the third inning with Houston batting and the score tied 2-2. It will be made up following the end of the regular season only if it will affect the National League's East Division race, which shows the Pirates four games ahead of both the Philadelphia Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals and five up on the New York Mets.

In other NL action, the San Francisco Giants edged the Phillies 5-4, the Cardinals beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-3, the Los Angeles Dodgers tripped the Mets 5-2, the Chicago Cubs nipped Atlanta 9-8 in 10 innings after the Braves took the opener 3-1 and the San Diego Padres blanked the Montreal Expos 6-0.

After Houston jumped to a 3-0 lead, the Pirates retaliated with four in the bottom of the first, two on a single by Parker, who later drove in another run with his triple. Jose Cruz homered in the third and the Astros tied it 5-5 in the fourth, but Pittsburgh took the lead for good with a run in the bottom of the fourth on a single by Frank Taveras, a sacrifice, infield out and Jose Sosa's wild pitch.

The Phillies' John Montefusco fanned 13 to set a season strike-out record for San Francisco rookies with 177. The Count of Montefusco also belted a tie-breaking triple off Steve Carlton in the seventh inning and scored what proved to be the winning run on Von Joshua's single.

Cardinals 5, Reds 3
Harry Rasmussen, who joined the club in mid-July, hurled seven strong innings for his fourth triumph and snapped the Cards' four-game losing streak with eighth-inning help from John Curtis. Rasmussen also scored one run and drove in another while Willie Davis drove in a pair with a homer and single.

Dodgers 5, Mets 2
Ron Cey belted two home runs for the second consecutive game and Steve Yeager also hit one while Doug Rau beat New York for the first time in his career with clutch eighth-inning relief from Charlie Hough after Los Angeles relief ace Mike Marshall injured himself while taking his warm-up pitches on the mound.

Braves 3-8, Cubs 1-9
Jose Cardenal's two-out single in the 10th inning following an intentional walk to Bill Madlock drove home the winning run in the nightcap after Jerry Morales' two-run single in the ninth sent the second game into overtime despite home runs by Atlanta's Mike Lum, Dave May and Darrell Evans.

The Braves won the opener as Phil Niekro scattered eight hits, making Connie Ryan's managerial debut with Atlanta a success. Ryan was named to replace Clyde King Saturday night.

Padres 6, Expos 0
Brent Strom pitched a three-hitter and Dave Roberts drove in four San Diego runs with a single and his first homer of the season. Willie McCovey also homered.

Hill Wins Tourney

Frank Hill won the W.S. Moyer Memorial Golf tournament for the second time in a row Sunday when today's second round of the tournament was rained out.

Hill was leading Vance Taylor by a stroke, 71-72, at the conclusion of Sunday's first round. The tournament rules stated in case of elimination of the second round, the winner would be the leader after the first round.

The first flight was won by Tommy Little with a 75. He beat out Dillon Watson who shot a 79. Mike Aldridge took the second flight with a 78 while Cameron Dudley beat Charlie White in a scorecard playoff with an 80. Dudley had recorded a four on the first hole yesterday, White a five.

Paul Julian was the winner of the third flight with an 82 beating Roy Honeycutt, III, who shot an 86. Tom Scoopmore edged Ken Harris by a stroke with 96 to win the fourth flight.

Jackson's Smashes Beat Bosox, 8-6

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Getting beaten by a Reggie Jackson home run is one thing. But a bases-loaded grounder that ricochets off first base for a double? Or one that dribbles through the middle for a two-run single?

Those were Jackson's big blasts Sunday as he drove in five runs to lead the Oakland A's past the Boston Red Sox 8-6 in a battle of American League division leaders.

"I had a lucky day — what else can I say?" offered the A's slugger with a shrug.

"He's a heck of a hitter and he's going to hurt you sometimes," conceded Boston Manager Darrell Johnson. "But his double hit first base just as Carl Yastrzemski was going to field the ball, and his single needed eyes going through the middle."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Kansas City Royals blanked the New York Yankees 7-0 and the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Texas Rangers 4-1. Minnesota at Cleveland, California at Detroit and Chicago at Baltimore were all rained out.

The Oakland-Boston game lasted three hours, 49 minutes, the longest nine-inning game in the AL this season. The victory kept Oakland 7½ games ahead of Kansas City in the West Division, while Boston's lead over Baltimore in the East was sliced to six games.

In the end the difference was relief pitching: Oakland ace Rolie Fingers stopped the Red Sox, but A's reliever Diego Segui was unable to check the A's. With the score tied 6-6 in the ninth inning, Segui walked the bases loaded before Jackson came up with his game-winning single through the middle.

"We won today because of Fingers," said Jackson, who got his two-run double in the third inning and also had an RBI single in the fifth. "If we can keep it close, Rolie will win it."

Royals 7, Yanks 0
Paul Splittorff blanked New York on five hits and Hal McRae drove in three runs with a double and single for the Royals. McRae doubled home two runs in the third inning and singled home one in the fifth as Kansas City kept pace with Oakland.

Brewers 4, Rangers 1
Pete Broberg stopped Texas on three hits and Robin Yount and Darrell Porter cracked two-run homers for the Brewers. Rookie Dave Moates had two of the Rangers' hits off Broberg, 11-13, who struck out three and walked six. Gaylord Perry tossed a four-hitter for Texas.

Several Faces Missing For Vikings-Dolphins TV Clash

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The Minnesota Vikings and Miami Dolphins, two teams with some notable absences, meet tonight on national television, wrapping up the holiday weekend's National Football League exhibition activity.

The Vikings, 1-2 in preseason, lost wide receiver John Gilliam to the WFL, and Miami, 3-0, lost Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield to the rival league. The game begins at 9 p.m. EDT in Bloomington, Minn.

But while those departures were planned, the weekend produced some notable absences, which weren't expected. There were 11 games on Saturday, none on Sunday with one other contest—Buffalo at Cleveland—scheduled for today.

Equally crippling — but much more sudden — was the announcement on Sunday that defensive end Claude Humphrey would be lost to the Atlanta Falcons for the season, and starting quarterback Archie Manning would be missing from New Orleans' lineup for four to six weeks.

Humphrey, the best quarterback sacker in the NFL last season, underwent knee surgery Sunday. He tore ligaments in his left knee Saturday in a 16-13 loss to the New York Jets. Coach Marion Campbell said: "His greatness will be missed."

Campbell indicated Rosie Manning or Chuck Walker would replace Humphrey.

The Jets also suffered a loss in that game when backup quarterback Al Woodall twisted his knee. He had been seeing quite a bit of preseason duty since a rib injury to Joe Namath. J.J. Jones will pick up the slack for the Jets.

Manning chipped a bone near his left elbow in a 14-6 loss to Los Angeles Sunday. "He will be able to run and throw," a team spokesman said, "but can't take a snap or have any contact." The arm is in a splint.

In other Saturday games, the New York Giants romped over Pittsburgh 24-7; St. Louis beat the San Diego Chargers 14-9; Denver blanked Chicago 13-0; New England got by Green Bay 20-17 in overtime; Dallas picked up its first preseason victory, a 17-14 decision over Houston; New Orleans walloped Baltimore 27-3, and Oakland beat San Francisco 40-21.

Miami Coach Don Shula admits it's impossible to replace the likes of Csonka and Warfield, but "we're fortunate that we still have several runnings backs who have been looking very good—Benny Malone, Don Nottingham, Norman Bulaich and Mercury Morris..."

Sam McCullum, a second-year pro from Montana State, has replaced Gilliam in the Vikings' lineup. "He (Gilliam) knew last year he was going to the WFL," McCullum said. "He tried to teach me as much as he could...There still are some things I don't understand. I'd like to ask John about them, but he's not around to ask."

Buffalo's O.J. Simpson is coming off his best preseason performance — he gained 76 yards rushing last week — when the Bills travel to Cleveland for their afternoon encounter.

Both clubs have 1-2 exhibition records, and Cleveland Coach Forrest Gregg says his defensive backfield is a weak link now. "A defensive backfield needs cohesion and timing and ours really hasn't played together that much yet. We'll need improvement, but it takes time and plenty of work," he said.

Court Going Against Czech

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Margaret Court is 33 years old, a 5-foot-10½, 150-pound right-hander from Australia and a seven-time winner at Forest Hills.

Martina Navratilova, is 18, a 5-7½, 147-pound left-hander from Czechoslovakia, playing in only her second U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Despite the disparities in age and experience, their physical stature and style of play make them nearly a perfect match for the quarter-finals.

This year at Wimbledon, Mrs. Court beat Miss Navratilova 6-3, 6-4, but not without a struggle. In the Australian Open, Martina beat Margaret 6-4, 6-3, also in the quarter-finals.

On the United States women's professional tour, Mrs. Court was extended 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 in the final in Chicago to overcome the Czech.

"We both have the same style of play," said Miss Navratilova after she beat Kathy May of Los Angeles, 6-3, 6-0 in the third round on center court before a crowd of 15,837 Sunday.

"We both like to hit out, come to the net," Martina said. "It should be a good match."

Mrs. Court said she agreed, after an erratic 7-5, 6-3 victory over Janet Newberry of Somerville, Mass., Sunday night before a crowd of 4,209 bundled against the wind and temperatures in the 60s.

Tuesday will tell.

Tonight is an All-American night, with Chris Evert, the heavy favorite, seeking a quarter-finals slot when she meets Wendy Overton; and Jimmy Connors, the defending champanion, taking on Harold Solomon, the No. 13 seed, in a fourth-round match.

Connors led the top three seeded men into the round of 16, where stamina counts as much as prowess since it is the first round of best-of-five set matches for the men.

The defending champion ousted Georges Goven of France 6-3, 6-1 and then started a running commentary on his match tonight with Solomon, the No. 13 seed who beat Wojtek Fibak of Poland 4-6, 6-0, 7-6 Saturday.

Connors' act on center court Sunday was followed by his alter ego, Ilie Nastase, the No. 8 seed from Romania, who swept past Mark Cox of Great Britain 6-0, 6-4.

In the grandstand, Manuel Orantes, the No. 3 seed from Spain, struggled to a 6-2, 3-6, 6-1 triumph over Hans Pohman of West Germany; No. 11 Raul Ramirez of Mexico came from a first-set deficit for a 1-6, 6-3, 6-3 triumph over Onny Parun of New Zealand; No. 15 Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia whipped Syd Ball of Australia 6-2, 6-0, and Guillermo Vilas, the No. 2 seed from Argentina, overpowered Dick Stockton 6-1, 6-4, before a standing-room-only crowd.

However, 10th-seeded Roscoe Tanner didn't fare so well. He became the sixth-seeded man to fall when Karl Meiler, a 26-year-old West German, surprised him 6-7, 6-4, 6-4.

On Saturday, No. 4 Arthur Ashe, No. 5 Borg of Sweden and No. 9 Rod Laver of Australia were among secondround winners, as unseeded Eddie Dibbs of North Miami Beach, Fla., who eliminated Jose Higuera of Spain 6-3, 6-0.

Reed Returns To Lead Vulcan Win

By The Associated Press

Quarterback Matthew Reed, the big second-year pro from Grambling, appears to be all the Birmingham Vulcans needed to get back on the winning track.

Reed, out for two weeks with a hip pointer while the Vulcans were losing two straight, ran for one touchdown, set up another with a 28-yard pass and threw an action point in the Vulcans' 21-8 World Football League victory Saturday over the Shreveport Steamers, 2-3.

He completed 12 of 28 passes for 213 yards without an interception before an announced crowd of 18,700 at Birmingham.

"It was great to come back and win after losing two in a row," said Coach Marvin Bass of the Vulcans, 3-2, WFL champions last year as the Americans. "I think Matthew Reed did a super job. He's in great shape now and really played like he's capable of playing."

In other WFL games Saturday, the Charlotte Hornets clobbered the Jacksonville Express 33-14, the Memphis Grizzlies walloped the Chicago Winds 31-7, and the San Antonio Wings shut out the Portland Thunder 22-0.

Quarterback Tom Sherman threw for one touchdown and completed 9 of 11 passes for 119 yards in Charlotte's lopsided victory over Jacksonville. Charlotte's first score came on a one-yard first-quarter plunge by Don Highsmith, who gained 99 yards in the game, played before 16,428 fans at Jacksonville.

"We controlled the ball for that first touchdown, and anytime you do that it puts you in good position," said Coach Bob Gibson. "If we hadn't scored before the rain, it might have been a different game."

Wide receiver Ed Marshall caught three touchdown passes and an action point to help Memphis over Chicago, and quarterback Johnny Walton tossed two TD passes in San Antonio's victory over Portland.

Marshall caught four passes in the game, but they were for a total of 115 yards. The contest drew 21,515 fans at Memphis.

Running backs Bill Sadler and Jim Strong each gained more than 100 yards on the ground for San Antonio, racking up its fourth straight victory before 12,197 home fans.

Braves Split Pair In Ryan's Debut

CHICAGO (AP) — "They sure broke me in right," said Connie Ryan Sunday after an up-and-down debut as manager of the Atlanta Braves.

Ryan was named interim manager by Braves Vice President Eddie Robinson Saturday night to succeed Clyde King. The Braves, behind Phil Niekro, awarded him a 3-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs in the first game of a double-header but then they proceeded to blow three leads in the nightcap and finally lost to the Cubs 9-8 in 10 innings on Jose Cardenal's game-winning single with two outs.

"I haven't had much time to think about it," said Ryan when asked about the interim label. "It happened so fast I can't give an honest opinion."

"I don't plan any major changes. We have a decent club and it's unfortunate we got off to such a poor start. If the guys play up to their capabilities — and I'm not talking about unlimited potential — we'll do all right."

They did in the first game as Niekro scattered eight hits for his 14th victory against 12 losses. He lost his bid for a shutout in the ninth on successive doubles by Bill Madlock and Cardenal.

The Braves then took a 2-0 lead in the nightcap behind Mike Thompson, as Ralph Garr tripped and scored in the first inning and Mike Lum hit his sixth homer in the fourth.

Ryan yanked Thompson, 0-5, in the sixth when he walked Madlock with one out because "he hasn't pitched that long that much."

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF © 1975, The Chicago Tribune

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠8 ♠Q1082 ♠Q105 ♠A872

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass 2NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. Your worthless spade doubleton strongly suggests that this hand should be played in hearts, not no trump. You cannot simply bid three hearts, which would indicate that your initial raise was minimum. Your hand revalues to 10 points in support of hearts and partner should have at least 16 for his action.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AJ62 ♠J6 ♠J972 ♠Q87

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 2 ♠ 2 ♠ ?

What action do you take?

A.—Bid three clubs. Slam prospects are bright, so you shouldn't be satisfied with the penalty you can certainly get from doubling two spades. Your first chore is to set the trump suit. Then you can cue-bid the ace of spades at your next turn.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠94 ♠K74 ♠32 ♠AQ9852

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?

What action do you take?

A.—Bid three hearts. You have just enough to make a free bid at the three-level, and it should be in the form of a non-forcing raise. A response of three clubs is nearly certain to catapult your side into game, and your hand is not strong enough to warrant such unilateral action.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠K93 ♠AKQ63 ♠K95 ♠82

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ 2 ♠ ?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Had East not intervened, you would have rebid two no trump. Now, either that bid or three hearts might get you to a less than optimum spot. Partner has responded at the two-level, so he will certainly take some action if you let the decision ride round to him. He might even find a double, which would be greatly to your liking.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K109 ♠A109862 ♠K53 ♠Q

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North 1 ♠ 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Bid two spades. You have sound values for your overall, and partner entered the auction of his own free will. Therefore, he should have a reasonable hand, so a raise is definitely in order. Any further effort towards game should come from him. This department frowns on a rebid of two hearts, which would deny interest in partner's suit.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQ108 ♠AKJ1054 ♠KQJ

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. First fix the trump suit to enable partner to cue-bid his aces. If he has the ace of diamonds, you will make a strenuous effort to reach a grand slam. Blackwood is of no use here, for if partner has one ace you won't be sure which minor suit ace it is.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠3 ♠AQJ76 ♠AK1075 ♠92

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. The hand has all the earmarks of a misfit, so get out of the auction while there is still the chance of a plus score. You have offered partner the choice of two suits, but he has persisted with his own. To make another effort to play the hand in one of your suits courts disaster.

Q.8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AJ83 ♠87 ♠93 ♠K9542

Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—One spade. Obviously, you would prefer to bid your longer club suit first, but your hand is not quite strong enough for a two-over-one response. Besides, you have no reason to be ashamed of your spade suit—it is quite bidable and could be the most likely game contract if partner has a fit.

When should you double—for penalty or for take-out? Charles Goren explains all about doubling in his latest book. For a copy, write to "Goren's Doubles," in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 259, Norwood, New Jersey 07648. Enclose $1.25 in cash or checks, payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

NORTH CAROLINA Farm Tips

From Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

By Dr. J. W. Pou

Prices received by farmers for feed grains have declined 20 per cent or more since last fall. Soybean growers have fared even worse. Their per-bushel price has fallen over 35 per cent since last October.

Producers of soybeans have been hit by a triple whammy — declining use of oil because of the recession, reduced utilization of meal caused by cut-backs in livestock production, and a drop in exports, according to Bill Humphries, Agricultural Information Specialist at North Carolina State University.

The current outlook for soybean prices this fall is not encouraging.

Price prospects could improve drastically, however, if there are indications of a short 1975 crop, an increase in domestic demand, or larger exports.

One glimmer of hope for higher soybean prices is a small increase this spring in the number of cattle placed in feedlots — the first such upturn in eight months.

"Feed prices have been high in relation to livestock and poultry prices," say economists at North Carolina State University. As a result, the domestic livestock and poultry industries have reduced their feeding operations since last fall in order to reduce losses.

There were 31 per cent fewer cattle and calves on feed this spring than a year earlier. The spring pig crop was down about a fifth, and the fall crop may be 17 per cent lower. During the first quarter of 1975, broiler output was 6 per cent below a year earlier.

But in addition to livestock and poultry cut-backs, which have reduced demand for soybean meal, soybean prices have been weakened by other major developments.

The recession and rising unemployment have caused consumers to reduce spending for such soybean-based food products as cooking and salad oil. Consumption of these products may be down by about three pounds per person this year.

Also, exports of soybean oil are down, chiefly as a result of tighter U. S. supplies and increased competition from foreign-grown crops. These include Brazilian soybeans, Philippine copra, palm oil from the tropics, and peanuts from Senegal and Nigeria.

Exports of soybeans and soybean meal also are expected to be lower this year. Our exports will be competing with Brazilian beans, increased supplies of fish meal from Peru, and a larger output of meal from foreign-grown copra and peanuts.

Some U. S. beef and dairy farmers are grazing cattle for longer periods to keep concentrate feeding to a minimum. However, soybean meal prices — which dropped from $168 a ton last October to $116 this spring — are now at levels where increased feeding is profitable for poultry and hog producers.

The weather-reduced 1974 U. S. soybean crop totaled 1.2 billion bushels, down a fifth from the 1973 harvest. Intended plantings for 1975 are up and production could range between 1.45 and 1.55 billion bushels, depending on the weather.

North Carolina farmers expected to plant 1,580,000 acres of soybeans this year, an increase of 105,000 acres from last year.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
Agriculture Extension Agent

Soybean growers are advised to be on the look-out for velvetbean caterpillar infestations this summer.

This pest, according to Soybean Entomologists, is the major insect threat to soybean yields.

There are many pests in the Southeast such as earworm and loopers that usually don't cause major problems, says Clemson Entomologist, Dr. Sam Turnipseed. "But when we get the velvetbean caterpillar early, then look out. It usually requires insecticide treatment."

While growers are encouraged to check fields regularly and thoroughly for velvetbean caterpillar infestations, they also are cautioned against applying high rates of a strong insecticide at the first sign of worms.

Pest management requires an understanding of economic thresholds — when it pays to spray. WHEN TO TREAT? When there are eight worms of any kind one half inch or longer per foot of row, or if there is 30 per cent defoliation through the blooming stage, then treatment is recommended. During pod filling, spraying is justified if there is 15 per cent defoliation.

Hit House

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Two men died when their small plane crashed into a house early today. No one in the house was hurt.

The flight reportedly originated in Myrtle Beach, S.C. The identities of the men aboard the Cessna will be made public after relatives are notified.

The plane crashed about a mile and a half south of Charlotte's Douglas Municipal Airport. That's in the general vicinity of where an Eastern Airlines jet crashed with loss of 72 lives almost a year ago. It's also where two residents of St. George, S.C., an undertaker and his child, died in the crash of their plane three weeks ago.

Gets Views Of Menial Labor

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — "The working people feel the system is unfair and unjust," said Democratic Rep. Ken Hechler as he wound up a month of menial labor during the Congressional recess.

Hechler, 61, got the views of working people in the district he has represented for 16 years as he tackled more than 20 different jobs, including garbage collector, hay baler and hospital orderly.

"You know, when we're sitting up there in Washington, many congressmen get an exaggerated sense of our own importance," Hechler said Sunday, displaying a trimmer waistline and a sore thumb suffered while serving corn in a meal-on-wheels program. "All the functionaries are trained to bow down and scrape, and after you've been there a while you begin to feel you're a cut above everybody else."

SOIL LOSSES

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — The federal Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says 6 million of the state's 8 million acres of raw crops suffered severe erosion during the 1973-74 agricultural year. Soil losses of 40 to 50 tons were not uncommon, and some areas reached 200 tons an acre.

Praises Betty's Parental Role

CHICAGO (AP) — "She has established a high moral standard for the children and they have lived up to those standards."

That was President Ford commenting on the parental ability of his wife, Betty, who recently stirred nationwide debate when she was asked in a television interview whether she would be surprised if her daughter Susan told her she was having an affair.

"Well, I wouldn't be surprised," the First Lady replied. "I think she is a perfectly normal human being like all young girls and I would certainly counsel and advise her on the subject ..."

The President said in a television interview aired here Sunday night that his wife had the main responsibility in raising their children and she "has done a fine job."

Lining Up 'Sacrificial Lambs'

EDITOR'S NOTE — It's that time of year again, when the new TV shows are trotted out ... well, like lambs to slaughter. At least, experience shows, death will be the fate of many of them. And for some, oddly enough, it matters less how good they are than when they're shown.

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Another television season is nearly here and, as always, a few new series seem to have been given the kiss of death by the networks.

Beyond the usual problems that any new series faces in finding the right chemistry of concept, actors and scripts in a relatively short period of time, some new offerings are in a hole even before their wares can be displayed because they are scheduled against some of last season's top hits.

In a sense, these series are sacrificial lambs. Something had to be programmed against the big shows, and they were chosen. It happens every year. Take NBC's "The Montefuscos" and CBS's "Big Eddie" for example. Both half-hour comedies are scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. "The Montefuscos" on Thursdays and "Big Eddie" on Fridays, meaning they are the first network programs of the evening and don't have big draws preceding them.

"The Montefuscos," about a warm and loving family, is up against a well known warm and loving family on CBS, "The Waltons." And "Big Eddie" must take on NBC's powerhouse, "Sanford and Son."

"It can be depressing working 18 hours a day knowing that if you were going in following a big hit you'd have a better shot," says Sam Denoff, who created and is producing both new comedies with partner Bill Persky.

"Now it's complete darkness. There's no way of knowing what the audience will do." Another prime example: "Switch!" — an hour-long drama featuring elaborate cons rather than violence to get their job accomplished.

Universal Studios, which is making "Switch," spent more than $250,000 of its own money on the 90-minute pilot film and is bolstering the CBS budget by roughly $50,000 per episode.

The stars and production team have been putting in 15-hour days during the hot summer months to make it go.

Yet the network has set "Switch" for 9 p.m. on Tuesdays, putting the newcomer against two very strong incumbents which also are in the same law-and-order genre — "The Rookies" on ABC and "Police Story" on NBC.

And its "lead-in" — the program immediately preceding it — is not a successful veteran with an established audience but rather another new series, "Joe and Sons," a situation comedy about a blue collar worker raising his two teen-age sons.

This scheduling has prompted at least one New York advertising agency to hedge on its endorsement of "Switch!" for commercial-buying clients.

"If the people find it," the agency report states, "it will work."

They'll find it, maintains Glen A. Larson, creator and executive producer of "Switch!"

He readily admits he would rather see the show in other surroundings but, with typical pre-season enthusiasm, claims it can still pull an upset.

"I'm not that dissatisfied with where we are," says Larson, who also is executive producer of "McCloud." "It's a rough spot, but I think we're riding a good horse."

Larson, Denoff and everyone else in the TV business knows very well that the odds are against any new show surviving. On the average, only one of three new TV series sees more than one year of life.

Thus it is a forgone conclusion that of the 26 series debuting on the three networks in a few weeks, probably no more than 10 of them will be back a year from now, and maybe a lot fewer.

Many will be gone by January. Replacement series already are in development.

What distresses the people involved is the thought that their shows — the result of the efforts of scores of hard working individuals and the investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars — might be canceled without the chance to demonstrate how they'd perform in other, less competitive situations.

Industry Free To Boost Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. oil industry now is free to raise prices at all levels from the well to the gasoline pump, but major oil companies are not expected to impose price hikes immediately.

The government's complex system of price controls and supply allocation expired at midnight Sunday after being in existence for four years and two weeks. Expiration of price controls immediately removed the $5.25-a-barrel lid on more than 60 per cent of U.S.-produced oil, thus allowing the price for that oil to rise to the uncontrolled world market price of around $12.

However, Congress and the Ford administration are involved in a last-ditch attempt to work out a method of gradually ending price controls over a period of time. Any such phase-out plan would be made retroactive to midnight Sunday, a factor that officials say is expected to deter oil companies from raising prices immediately.

Under a compromise proposed last week by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and House Speaker Carl Albert and tentatively accepted by Ford, price controls would be reimposed for a brief time provided the administration receives some sign that Congress will adopt an acceptable gradual decontrol plan within a few weeks.

Both congressional leaders are evaluating their colleagues' sentiment for such a course while Ford has until next week to decide whether to veto a bill extending the old controls for six months. He previously had said he will veto the extension but withheld final action after meeting with Albert and Mansfield.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb said Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation" that any compromise would have to retain the administration's $2-a-barrel special tariff on imports and that Ford will not accept any phase-out plan lasting longer than 39 months.

The administration has predicted the end of price controls would mean an increase of about 6 cents in the cost of a gallon of gasoline if the $2 tariff is retained. Congressional critics, estimate the impact would be at last double that estimate.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., an administration critic who was interviewed with Zarb, said Congress is willing to work with the President on energy policy but added that Americans find it hard to understand why the oil industry needs ever-higher prices.

Zarb said the higher oil prices were brought on by the Middle East oil producers who control the world market. As a result, the average American family now pays $400 a year, to foreign oil producers, he said.

Eskimos Save Crash Victims

ANCHORAGE Alaska (AP) — Quick-thinking residents of an Eskimo village used makeshift stretchers to carry plane crash victims down a steep hill on St. Lawrence Island in the Bering Sea.

They are credited with saving 22 lives after a Wien Air Alaska plane crashed into a fog-shrouded hillside, killing 10 persons Saturday.

A crewman aboard a Coast Guard rescue plane said residents of Gambell village climbed the hill with stretchers "made of cots, blankets, some of poles and chicken wire, anything they could put together to bring down those people."

The injured, including at least five children, were ferried across a lake outside of town in small boats and taken to the school, where medical teams administered emergency treatment.

The crewman said the terrain was very rugged, with sharp rocks and deep holes. "And the fog was so thick they had to call us just to direct us to the wreckage," he said. "I don't know how they did it. They were just very stubborn people."

The twin-engine turbo-prop jet was making an approach to Gambell, a remote St. Lawrence Island community nearly 200 miles off the Alaska mainland, when it crashed near the top of a 600-foot hill.

Survivors were flown to Anchorage hospitals aboard a Coast Guard plane. A spokesman at the Alaska Native Medical Center said 19 persons were admitted to that hospital Sunday, at least five in critical condition. One other was admitted to the Elmendorf Air Force Base Hospital.

Two other passengers were taken to Nome and were in good condition, said Dr. Paul Grief, who was at the scene. He said wreckage was scattered over about a mile in area, and "It's remarkable that anyone survived."

A Wien spokesman said the pilot, copilot and one crewman were killed.

Further Dip In Corn Crop Is Predicted

BOONE, Iowa (AP) — A further decline in the nation's corn crop was predicted Saturday, but the National Corn Growers Association says a record crop is still possible because of increased production in Southern and some Midwestern states.

"Excellent rains did occur in some badly hit drought areas in the past month, but too late to be of much help in bringing back yields," said Walter Goepfinger, chairman of the association.

Surveys show a 177 million bushel reduction in production from the U.S. Agriculture Department's Aug. 1 forecast of 5.85 billion bushels, Goepfinger said.

"Corn's advanced condition makes frost damage remote," he said, noting a large further decline in the corn crop is unlikely.

"A 5.67 billion bushel corn crop would still surpass the previous record of 5.64 billion bushels set in 1973," Goepfinger said.

He said Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, South Dakota, Tennessee and Wisconsin registered declines in corn prospects totaling 237 million bushels in the last month.

But he said the outlook in Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, North Carolina and Texas increased 60 million bushels.

"This now drops the national average yield to 84.8 bushels per acre from our Aug. 1 estimate of 86.4 bushels and USDA's 87.4," Goepfinger said.

The record corn crop will result not because of increased yields throughout the corn belt, but because more acreage has been planted this year after last year's disastrous crop, crop experts say.

Corn crops are reported in excellent shape east of the Mississippi River, but west of the Mississippi a July drought was disastrous to the corn crop.

Mixed Feelings

The soybean and peanut farmers love it, but dove hunters and Labor Day vacationers hate it.

By 8:00 a.m., nearly three-quarters of an inch of rain had fallen in Greenville, with the prospect of more as the day wore on. The Morehead City Police Department reported some rain had fallen there and more was expected.

Although dove season opened at noon today, the rain probably kept many hunters from the fields this afternoon.

However, farm agent Ed Yancey said the soybean crop was "in desperate need" of the rain and the peanut crop will be helped by it also. Yancey said the rain may help fall gardens, too.

The forecast called for showers and scattered thundershowers today and tonight with mostly cloudy skies. Tomorrow, partly cloudy weather is expected with a few scattered showers near the coast.

Dying 'Ham' Is Prepared

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Chuck McCracken has it worked out right down to the pallbearers who talk to him on a ham radio network. Now, he awaits the death doctors have said will come soon.

Blind, diabetic, paralyzed in the legs and suffering from uremic poisoning and a diseased thyroid, the 37-year-old McCracken has given up and set himself on a medical course that means certain death, although his body has yet to agree.

He opted in July to stop the dialysis machine treatments which strained the lethal wastes from his blood and, as he said, placed his life "in the hands of the Lord."

Doctors said he had only a 30 per cent chance of living out the year even if he had remained on machine. Some predicted he would be dead by now.

"Every day he has a big breakfast after getting up at 5:30 a.m.," said Jimmy Conley, a family friend.

Then McCracken gets on his ham radio rig and starts talking to friends who have followed his medical crisis via radio. McCracken has named his ham friends, whom he has never met, as pall bearers, Conley said.

Buoyed in part by his radio pals, McCracken's "morale is holding up very well. He's suffering, but his morale is up," said Conley.

Pitt Boy Struck By Car, Dies

ATLANTIC BEACH—Nine-year-old James Earl Rouse of Rt. 3, Greenville, died last night less than an hour after being struck by a car on the Salter Path Road near here.

Trooper Larry Thames said the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned H. Rouse, was attempting to follow his brother, Holden, across the highway when he was struck by a car driven by David S. Sledge of Atlantic Beach. Investigation is continuing, Trooper Thames said.

Thames quoted the boys' parents as saying they had allowed the boys to cross the road from Bennett's Motel, where they were staying, to buy ice cream at a pier store nearby. The child was struck at 7:40 p.m. and died at 8:25 p.m. in Carteret General Hospital.

Claims Record As Hang Glider

LANCASTER, Calif. (AP) — Steve Hodgson claims a world record after his weekend hang glider flight from a height of 24,600 feet.

Equipped with oxygen for breathing and a parachute in case of trouble, Hodgson made what he said was a record flight Saturday after cutting loose from a hot air balloon over the Southern California desert. He says the old mark was 22,500 feet.

Hodgson says he wants to obtain a larger balloon and glider in an attempt to set yet another mark. But he said he has promised to give up record breaking if his girl friend, Mary Hall, keeps her word and gives up smoking. He is looking for another pilot for the attempt.

Has Option To Buy A Village

COPELAND, Fla. (AP) — Douglas McGoan has an option to buy the tiny village of Copeland, a community of 300 in Southwest Florida.

"There's a freedom here," says McGoan. "I'm thinking very much about buying the town. But one of the first things I'm going to do is give everybody a chance to buy their own place."

Copeland, populated chiefly by farmworkers and laborers, is an isolated settlement of aging cypress shacks and cottages dating back 40 years to when it housed lumber crews for the Lee Tidewater Cypress Co.

Returning To Former Capital

OLDTOWN Ohio (AP) — While other Americans flock to Philadelphia and Washington to celebrate the nation's bicentennial, Indians are returning to this tiny southwestern Ohio village.

The site was once the capital city of a diverse multiracial Indian nation. Its current population now hovers around 50.

It is also the birthplace of one of the Shawnee's most famous war chiefs, Tecumseh.

For more than 195 years now, the descendants of the Shawnee and Cherokee have been returning individually and in families to the land they consider sacred.

For the last five years, the Indians have been organizing a Tecumseh Confederacy of Cherokee, Creek, Shawnee and Choctaw, mirroring what Tecumseh had tried before he was killed in 1813.

Carving Head Of Crazy Horse

SKOKIE, Ill. (UPI) — A man named Korczak-Ziolkowski in Custer, S.D., has been carving a likeness of the Indian leader Crazy Horse since 1948. The 1975 edition of Rand McNally's "Discover Historic America" reports that Ziolkowski is carving the work out of the top of a mountain and that it will stand 563 feet high when it is finished. He expects to complete the sculpture in 1978.

TDR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI says Lee Harvey Oswald threatened an agent in a note he delivered several days before the assassination of John F. Kennedy, but that the visit was not reported and the note was destroyed.

And a former agent in the Dallas office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation theorizes that fear of then-director J. Edgar Hoover was the cause of the destruction of the letter.

Current Director Clarence J. Kelley said in statement Saturday that "inquiries to date establish that the note contained no reference to President Kennedy or in any way would have forewarned of the subsequent assassination."

Kelley said that a preliminary investigation suggests the note was destroyed shortly after the assassination on Nov. 23, 1963, and that previously no FBI records of the note or visit were kept.

The FBI said Oswald delivered the note to an agent in the FBI office in Dallas after the agent had visited Oswald's wife on Nov. 1, 1963, as part of an investigation. An unsuccessful second interview was attempted four days later.

Oswald was not present during the interview, which was reportedly broken off after Mrs. Oswald became frightened and because of her inability to speak English well.

The FBI visit to the Oswald home was described in the Warren Commission Report as part of a routine check on persons who had lived in Communist nations. Oswald, whom the commission cited as the lone assassin of Kennedy, lived in the Soviet Union in the early 1960s; his wife Marina was born there.

The FBI said it learned of the incident as a result of information provided by The Dallas Times Herald. Kelley said the investigation into possible criminal violations involved in the destruction of the note is continuing.

Oswald was not placed under surveillance following the delivery of the note, according to a copyright story by publisher

Tom Johnson in Sunday editions of the Times Herald. The paper said the then director of the Dallas office of the FBI was unaware of the note and that the agent involved, James P. Hosty Jr., refused to comment.
