Greenville Schools Enjoy Good Start On New Term

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The general consensus among principals of Greenville City Schools on the first full day of the 1975-76 school year is that all is going well as students reluctantly say farewell to summer and hello to school days.

At Agnes Fullilove School on Myrtle Street where seventh graders from all over the city are in attendance, principal Charles Dickens spoke happily about conditions there. "It's beautiful," he said, "the way things are going today. The making out of schedules and class placements are all right on time. The morale of the faculty is high, and the spirit of the children is unbelievable. It's simply one of those days that elate an educator.

"This year," Dickens noted, "we had the opportunity to plan ahead to minimize the kind of problems we had last year. All down the line from the simplest problem to the tougher ones, things are falling into place. If this day is any indication, we're going to have an unbelievably good school year."

Rose High principal Robert Alligood is "extremely pleased with developments at Rose, including the weather." Alligood said "one thing that has surprised us is the much larger number of new students enrolled, about 70 to 75 of them. That's quite a few more than we had anticipated.

"I'd say generally that all of us here are pleased with the smooth operation so far. Even the cooler weather has helped, because it is hot in rooms that are not air-conditioned. It looks like we've got a good start to a good school year."

In the same vein, J.E. Spruill, principal of Sadie Sautler Elementary School predicts "this year has the promise of being our most productive year to date. Teachers and students all seem happy, ready to go to work. It's been a calm day, with no complications."

Spruill said developments in expanding playground area for the children "is good news to us, and we hope to have some additional usable play space before the school year is out.

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP)—Two men and a woman captured near Williamston have been charged with the murder Tuesday of a veteran state Highway Patrolman and with the bank robbery he was investigating. The Federal Bureau of Investigation said today it was charging the trio with the robbery of a Jamesville bank. Trooper G. T. "Tom" Davis, 49, was killed by a shotgun blast an hour after the robbery when he attempted to stop an auto in Williamston. City police obtained murder warrants in Davis' death Tuesday after the men and the woman were flushed out of a soybean field near Williamston.

Arraignments on the murder charge were scheduled this afternoon. Davis, who had been with the patrol for 28 years, was the first trooper to be fatally shot in the line of duty in

Appointments

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday made appointments to two agencies, including the Pitt County Development Commission and the Greenville Board of Adjustments.

Curtis Hendrix of Greenville was named to the Development Commission to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Joe Pou who resigned recently.

Willie Pate, Morris Brody and Elvy Forrest were appointed to the Greenville Board of Adjustments to represent areas outside the city in extra-territorial jurisdiction matters.

Commissioners yesterday also authorized the signing of an agreement with the Village of Simpson under which the county tax department will bill and collect municipal taxes for the village.

The board also accepted the resignation of Steve C. Riddick as assistant agricultural extension agent.

Rabin Denies Comparison To Vietnam

By The Associated Press
Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin today rejected any comparison between Vietnam and the Middle East, saying Israel would not expect the United States to be dragged into the conflict through the presence of American-manned surveillance posts in the Sinai Desert.

Rabin gave the assurance as he presented the accord negotiated with Egypt to the Knesset — parliament — for its approval. Support from the ruling Labor party and three coalition partners has assured its passage.

In other developments: —Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger went to Syria after gaining Jordanian King Hussein's qualified endorsement of the agreement, which has been criticized by some Arab states. He told Hussein he hoped Congress would approve the sale to Jordan of 14 Hawk missile batteries.

—Israeli planes blasted a Palestinian refugee camp and other targets north of the Lebanese port of Tyre. A Lebanese Defense Ministry communique said seven persons were wounded and five houses destroyed, while Israeli artillery shelled border villages in the second straight day of attacks on southern Lebanon. The Israelis said the air raid lasted only a few minutes and all planes returned safely.

Rabin told the Knesset in Jerusalem that during the recent negotiations, the United States, Israel and Egypt all agreed that "no one is aspiring to American military involvement."

"Israel did not ask—and is not asking — that American troops fight in its defense against Egypt or any other Arab country," he said.

McGrath Files For Council Reelection

Mrs. Mildred T. McGrath filed Tuesday afternoon for reelection to her second full term as a member of the City Council.

Mrs. McGrath, who paid her filing fee at the Pitt County Board of Elections, will seek one of the six council seats in the upcoming Oct. 7 elections.

The incumbent, who was appointed to fill the unexpired term of retiring Johnny Edwards in September of 1971, was first elected to the Council for a full term in 1973. Her appointment to the board in 1971 marked the first time in recent history that a woman had served on the city governing board.

Mrs. McGrath, who came to Greenville in 1957 from Greeley, Colo., earned her degree in accounting from East Carolina University and her master's degree from Colorado State University.

She is currently chairman of the Computer Programming Department at Pitt Technical Institute and is active in the Eastern N.C. Data Processing Management Association. She is a member of Holy Trinity United

Pitt Education Bd. OKs Projects At Four Schools

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday approved a plan for the Mid-East RC & D called Pitt County Schools Critical Area Treatment.

The project, expected to be funded in October, includes seeding, drainage, regrading, and mulching at the four Pitt County high schools.

Work scheduled to be completed includes: —North Pitt, 23.1 acres of seeding; 6.1 acres regrading, seeding and mulching; 1 stabilization structure; —Farmville Central, 3.9 acres seeding; 1.2 acres grading; and 125 feet paved waterway;

—Ayden-Grifton, 7.9 acres seeding; 5.1 acres regrading, seeding and mulching; 750 feet grassed waterway; 1 grade stabilization structure; 600 feet diversion;

—D.H. Conley, 11.4 acres seeding; 4.2 acres regrading, seeding and mulching; 80 ft. grassed waterway; and 750 feet diversion.

Estimated cost of the project is $51,806 with $29,820 being paid from Mid-East RC & D funds and the remaining $21,986 coming from school funds.

William Spencer of the Mid-East RC & D told board members yesterday that if the local board uses its maintenance crew and equipment that very little money will have to be spent by the county board of education. The county's share includes mostly maintenance and labor.

Dainty Maid Bread Co., Inc., of Kinston, was named low bidder in the bread bids opened July 23. The firm will supply bread and bread products to all the Pitt County schools.

Carolina Dairies was given the milk bid for all the county schools except for two schools in the Farmville area which will be served by Sealtest.

Milk, both plain and chocolate, will cost the county 11 cents per half pint.

Board members authorized Associate Supt. Tom Craft to have the old Grifton Elementary School property

Supt. Alford Pleased By Smooth Opening Day At County Schools

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The first full day of the 1975-76 school year for the Pitt County Schools was "as smooth as silk" according to Supt. Ott Alford.

"Six teacher workdays prior to the opening of school were primarily responsible for the smooth reporting we had yesterday (orientation) and today," Alford said. "Teachers and principals use these days to develop bulletin boards, prepare reading groups, ready textbooks for distribution and to generally, have all the necessary details out of the way in order that the first full day of school might be an instructional day."

Alford said it was not an uncommon sight to see teachers painting bookcases, desks and other classroom furniture just as a matter of personal pride. "We recognize the fact that some students will be late in starting school this year because of the late tobacco harvesting. Teachers and principals will work with these students in making up classroom work they have missed."

The lunchroom began operating today and about 10,000 students were expected to eat lunch in the Pitt County cafeterias today.

The individual schools reported very smooth, uneventful openings today.

Russ Cotton, principal at Farmville Central, said everything was going along as planned but that it would probably be next week before the full enrollment will be reached.

Cotton said that out of a freshman registration of 310, only 214 students attended orientation today.

"That shows that a lot of students are still involved in tobacco harvesting," Cotton said. "We have had numerous calls from parents saying their children would be late starting school because they had to work on the farm until the crops were harvested."

Cotton said an anticipated enrollment of 976 has been set for Farmville Central.

Principal J. R. Carraway said everything was going fine at Conley High School this morning. He explained there had been some problems with bus routing but that things were in good shape.

"We were short about 51 freshmen for orientation yesterday," Carraway explained.

Out of an anticipated enrollment of 1,004 students, a total of 883 students were in school this morning.

No problems were seen at either Ayden-Grifton or North Pitt High Schools this morning. A number of students were out because of the late harvesting of crops but school officials feel most students will be in school by the first of next week.

everything was fine. There were no problems whatsoever. Belvoir Primary reported an excellent opening with things running according to schedule. Pactolus School Principal Bryant Tripp reported everything was fine. There were no problems whatsoever.

Ayden Elementary Principal Stuart Tripp said things were a little bit hectic, as they always are on the first day of school, but that there had been no problems.

Councilman Fuller Filing For 5th Term

Incumbent City Councilman Dr. Frank Fuller announced Tuesday that he will seek reelection to his fifth term on the city board in the October municipal elections.

Fuller is completing his eighth year on the Council.

The veteran councilman is chairman of the Department of Counselor Education in the School of Education at East Carolina University. He moved to Greenville in 1949 and joined the staff at ECU at that time.

"Once again I am asking for the voters of Greenville to return me to the City Council for a two year term," Fuller commented. "During the past eight years I have participated actively in the orderly growth and development of Greenville."

The incumbent asserted, "We have made real progress in the renewal of the downtown area, in the development of public housing, in the provision of needed recreational facilities,

Old-Timer Wants Camp To Save 'Endangered Children'

To Go Dancing Without Wife

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 62 and the wife is 59. I like old-time dancing, polkas, schottisches and square dancing. My wife never did care much for dancing so she quit going with me about 15 years ago. She is not handicapped in any way and could dance if she wanted to.

My problem: I would like to go stag to a public dance once a week. It's great fun and good exercise. My wife is very much opposed to my going to a dance without her—yet she refuses to go. Is that fair?

To me, going to a dance once a week is no more wrong than playing poker or bowling. Old-time dancing is not the romantic kind where partners hang on each other in close embrace. I maintain that it's healthier to dance than sit around playing cards.

I do not intend to get involved with other women. Am I being unreasonable?

C. IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR C.: No! I'm convinced. Now all you have to do is convince your wife.

DEAR ABBY: I agree—one is as old as he feels. But at 69, not many people are feeling me lately. What an age in life to be called a "sexagenarian"!!!

DON IN PASADENA

DEAR ABBY: I'm another college graduate who would feel like an idiot asking this question of anyone else, so I'm asking you.

When a person has his eyes examined and is told that he has 20/20 vision, what do the numbers signify?

ANOTHER DUMMY

DEAR ANOTHER: You're no dummy. Very few people who are not in the profession of prescribing eye glasses know the answer. (I didn't, so I asked.)

20/20 vision means that what you see at a distance of 20 feet, a person with normal vision sees at 20 feet.

20/40 vision means that what you can see at 20 feet, a person with normal vision sees at 40 feet.

This method of expressing visual perception does not relate to the eye's need for eyeglasses. The degree of sharpness WITHOUT eyeglasses describes the ability of the unaided eye; while the degree WITH CORRECTION (wearing glasses) states the best vision obtainable.

An eye without corrective glasses could be 20/100, but with glasses, 20/20. However, even with the best corrective glasses another eye may be capable of seeing only 20/60. Is that clear?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

By HELEN PALMER
For AP Newsfeatures
PORT JERVIS, N.Y. (AP) — What is a napkin?

What is a bed you sleep in alone?

Children — labeled "disadvantaged and endangered" — aged 8 through 16 have these and other questions answered for them at Trail Blazer Camps, 1,000 rocky and wooded acres 15 miles south of here in New Jersey.

To be "disadvantaged" means in their parlance that you've got nothing going for you. To be "endangered" means things could get worse. Things could get worse because some older siblings have been in trouble with the law, because some of these children may never have known a father. Some have been victims of almost total neglect and often child abuse. They are children who aren't yet in bad trouble, but by following-the-leader in a family unit or neighborhood, could be. That's what Trail Blazer Camps is all about. It aims to save such children.

The campers are selected with the help of 29 social service agencies in New York City and Sussex County, New Jersey. The 80 girls and 48 boys — in separate camps — spend four weeks at a time living as "families" with eight children to two well-trained counselors, a high ratio on the campfire circuit. Approximately 400 children attend the camp each summer. They also come back for winter reunions and Old Grads bring their families to visit. One Old Grad is Eli Wallach, the actor. Another is Vincent Loscalzo, staff artist for Fortune magazine. Both serve on the camp's board of directors.

Established in 1887, Trail Blazer Camps was formerly Life Camps. Its 1,000 acres was donated by Doris Duke, the tobacco heiress, in the 1930s, but it exists solely on private donations. Lois Goodrich, camp director since 1934, says: "It's harder and harder to get money for children these days. Everything is geared to geriatrics. I know they need it, but so do we."

The case histories of the campers are similar:

Florence P., 10, one of five children. Separated from natural family since babyhood on neglect petition. Placed in a home along with brain-injured sister, 11½. Constantly defending and protecting older sister. Needs chance to establish separate identity.

Danny K., 11. Sells newspapers in bars and restaurants late at night. Lives with maternal grandmother. Mother ill. No known father. Bright, quick but overly aggressive.

Rachel F., 11, one of three children born out of wedlock to three different fathers. Mother finally married an alcoholic. Rachel very active and outgoing but no club organizations available, had to drop out of Girl Scouts because too costly. Agency felt should have opportunity to be away from home.

Clara H., 10½, parents constantly fighting until father left home. Mother used to work, now waits for welfare. Clara a good student until this year, now says she doesn't care any more. Teachers very concerned. Say she seems no longer active or interested in life at all.

Each social service agency is given a quota of campers and each child assigned to Trail

Blazer Camps is given two weeks of sessions explaining what he or she can expect. They are told they will live like pioneers, in tepees and covered wagons, build their own outdoor fireplaces, cut their firewood, plant and harvest their own vegetables, construct and clean their own latrines. In other words, start with nothing in the wilderness and work their way up.

Basketball on school playgrounds and stickball on the streets were all Peter K. had ever known as recreation.

Now he will tell you how they dug an Indian well, how they erected tepees, set up a kitchen unit by lashing poles they cut themselves to boards sawed in the camp sawmill, dug a latrine and made a "Big-V" seat out of a forked log, plus a "urinal" out of a hollowed-out sassafras limb. He'll tell you about the 13 fish they caught yesterday in 55-acre Lake Mashipacong, which is part of the camp site, about the snakes he has seen, the berries he has picked and eaten, the garden he and the other boys are trying to start, the raccoon and deer they see and the fried chicken and biscuits they have every weekend. Somehow he never gets back to talking about basketball.

Sammy S. isn't quite so happy or well-adjusted. When something upset him, he picked up a rock and hit another boy with it. He was put in solitary confinement in the infirmary (there is one for boys and one for girls, a nurse assigned to each), partly for his own protection. Other boys in his "family" group wrote notes saying they missed him and to please come back. He is a lonely, almost nonverbal, sad boy, and when he came back something happened that made him pick up another rock. Paula Feddersen, known as "Ferdie," in charge of the Boys Camp, hopes he can be helped.

Family chores at the camps rotate with two children as cooks: two as firemakers, who also chop wood; two as dishwashers and sterilizers of utensils; a handyman who fills lanterns, cleans the latrine and carries water, and a waiter or waitress, who sets the table, brings the food to be served by the counselor, and clears away. Many of the children had never used silverware and had never known what a napkin was.

A shopping list is made up with a guide from the camp dieticians and with a posted list of food prices from the camp store. Each unit — 10 for the girls and eight for the boys — makes up its own shopping list and, while no money is exchanged and no budget is set, the campers learn the cost of each food item and how to calculate cost of food per person.

"They become competitive," Miss Goodrich said. "That is our hope. That they will learn to feed as many people as possible as cheaply and as nutritiously as possible. Budget, think, conserve, but still eat well is the message we try to get across."

"Hope" is a word the camp staff uses often. They hope these children, who come from unfortunate backgrounds and who have built-in problems, will learn. They will grow as individuals. They hope they will not get into trouble. They hope they may eventually help others. They hope there will be enough donations to keep the camp going.

The lace detail was repeated down the sleeves and on the cuffs. The semi A-line skirt was encircled with a row of Nottingham lace topping a deep ruffle.

Her headpiece was a chapel length mantilla edged in matching lace. The bride carried a nosegay of miniature carnations and baby's breath.

DANCE ACADEMY

NEW YORK (UPI) — After 40 years and with some of the best figures in the world of dance among its grads, the School of American Ballet is acknowledged as the country's national classical ballet academy.

It also is generally considered one of the world's three great contemporary ballet schools, along with Moscow's Bolshoi and the Royal Ballet School in London.

For the last five years the school has been located in the Juilliard School in the Lincoln Center cultural complex in New York. It was started in 1934 after choreographer George Balanchine was invited to America by Lincoln Kirstein to help form a national academy.

By AHMED SHAWKI
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Al Azhar University, a 1,000-year-old center of Islamic learning, has banned Western dress for its faculty and soon may order its women students to cover up.

"Moslem scholars have lost their religious dignity by wearing shirts and trousers," said Al Azhar Rector Abdel Halim Mahmoud, 65.

"I wonder why we imitate the West blindly with modern dress."

In June Mahmoud ordered the all-male faculty to wear a turban and galabiya, a floor-length garment that looks like a night shirt. Both garments have been associated with Islam since the days of the Prophet Mohammed, its founder, Mahmoud said.

Those who do not abide by the new rule will not be promoted.

Sheikh Ahmed Badran, a professor of religious law who already wore traditional dress, supported the decision.

"I would not be respected by my students if I wore modern clothes," he said. "Shirts and trousers are the dress of non-believers."

Another professor, Sheikh Ahmed Shehata, disagreed. He said "there is nothing in the Koran (the religion's holy book) or the Prophet Mohammed's words that described a special dress for Moslems. It is deeds that determine the good Moslem from the bad."

The rector is also studying proposals for women students to wear a special dress that would cover their heads, arms and legs, he said.

Most of these students were not happy.

Fatima Ibrahim, a medical student, said "we belong to a society where women wear Western dress. We are not going to go against this. I would look awkward all wrapped up in conservative dress."

Naval Hassan, a commerce

Last year 85 per cent of powder bottles were plastic, up from 75 per cent in 1970.

student, said "the sheikhs' suggestions are silly. They argue that girls wearing skirts that show their legs embarrass them. Well, they should not look at our legs and concentrate on their lectures."

Some girls quickly adopted the long floor-length skirts that were popular in the West a year ago and added a head-dress but not a veil to get around any new regulations.

This is not the first time there has been a conflict over how Moslems should dress in Egypt, among the most liberal Arab states where the religion is practiced.

In the 19th century an Egyptian religious leader issued a fatwa, or legal decision, that Moslems could adopt Western dress provided men kept their heads covered and women covered their heads and faces with a veil.

A reformer, Kassem Amin, started a campaign in 1891 against the veil, saying it was Turkish dress and not Islamic. Egypt was part of the Ottoman Empire at the time.

Moslem scholars could not find arguments to dispute him and after demonstrations in the street by women, the veil was dropped in 1901.

A U.S. Court of Appeals has ruled that the use of the National Teacher Examination by North Carolina is discriminatory and therefore unconstitutional.

The suit was brought on the basis of the minimum test score for teacher certification required by North Carolina.

The Court of Appeals ordered North Carolina to issue licenses to those who are otherwise qualified but fail to achieve the required 950 score on the test. The ruling was a victory for the N.C. Association of Educators which brought the suit.

The federal court saw the fact that North Carolina began requiring the minimum score in the early 1960s as more than coincidental with the beginning of integration of faculties at that time. It said the teacher test has a "disparate impact" on blacks.

Even as it ruled against the test, the court recognized that the state has a right to set academic requirements, and also require written achievement tests for prospective teachers.

As far as we are concerned, the state should exercise that right. The search should go on for a written test which will meet court guidelines. Under the guidelines, and also in fairness, the tests should not be discriminatory against blacks or any other minority, but the state should not have to hire anyone to teach merely because they are holding a degree.

We don't know why there is such a high failure rate among blacks on the test. If the fault is in the colleges which trained them then we should do all we can to upgrade the teacher training program in all state controlled schools. If, as the courts have held, the tests are discriminatory, then there must be a way to devise a test that will be fair to all. The taxpayers are paying for the teachers and they are sending their children to be entrusted to teachers which the state certifies. Our citizens have a right to expect some measure of the competence of those who will teach our young people.

SORT OF A HANDICAP AFFAIR

Stakes In Pay Boost

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — One question before Congress members on their return today from a month's recess is whether they and other federal employees should get pay raises costing the taxpayers $2 billion or $3.5 billion.

President Ford urged last week that the salary increase be held to 5 per cent, instead of the 8.66 per cent his advisers said would make federal pay scales comparable with those in private industry.

If either the Senate or the House votes against his recommendation, the government's white collar employees and military personnel will receive the 8.66 per cent increase beginning next month.

This mechanism for annual adjustment of federal pay scales, in effect since passage of the Pay Comparability Act in 1969, now has a new twist that gives Senate and House members a personal stake in it.

Just before recessing Aug. 1, Congress whisked through a bill putting the salaries of its own members and those of Cabinet officers, federal judges and other high-level government officials under this procedure for the first time.

None of these top officials has had a salary increase since 1969, but now they will get the same raises as the 3.4 million lower-ranking federal employees and members of the armed services.

For Congress members, acceptance of Ford's 5 per cent proposal would mean an increase of $2,125 in their present salaries of $42,500 a year. An increase of 8.66 per cent would Crippled almost beyond hope of victory because of injuries and players being called back to college for football practice, Greenville was barred from participation in the championship series by Ayden yesterday, dropping the playoff game, 7-0.

The leaders displayed little of the fire and determination that enabled them to finish the regular season at the top of the standing of clubs with several games to spare, and fell victim to the pitching of Lefty Upchurch, Ayden's premier hitter.

The Greenies were minus Ace Parker, star outfielder who had to leave to report to football drills at Duke, and also Max Stine, the team's regular shortstop.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, England's man of super speed, bettered his world's record for land speed today on the salt beds of Utah with an average of 299.77 miles an hour.

Campbell sent his mighty Bluebird thundering through the measured mile in slightly lower time than his first trial. On the opening dash he made the mile in 11.83 seconds for a speed of 304.331 miles an hour.

His average time for the measured mile was 12.005, compared to his former record set last February at Daytona Beach, Fla. at 13.005.

School Problems Looming

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—North Carolina parents today feel their children are gaining a significantly better education than they did, and that schools are improving right along.

But some red flags of warning are also raised over some current school problems, particularly busing, and the fear that attempts by public school to teach all children will cause a lowered achievement level and more dropouts.

And Tar Heel parents overwhelmingly endorse the idea of more public school involvement in career education—a favorite theme which has been pushed by State Superintendent of Public Instruction A. Craig Phillips.

State Survey

These and a host of other ideas and attitudes are spelled out in detail in a survey report handed members of the State Board of Education today in Raleigh.

Conducted by Dr. Walter D. Vries and his North

Carolina Opinion Research organization, the survey was carried out between June 16 and July 7, with interviews conducted in the homes of North Carolinians from the mountains to the coast. A total of 700 people participated, all over 18 years of age.

The survey questions ranged across the subjects of issues causing most concern today, where people get information and which do they consider most reliable, concerns over public education, and discussion of financing improved education.

Across the state, the survey shows most people (72 per cent) think, "Children in public schools today receive a better education than I did," but with the strongest agreement on that premise coming from mountain and Piedmont sections while Coastal Plains residents felt less certain.

North Carolinians also agree (55.7 per cent) that, "The attempt by public schools to educate all children regardless of physical or mental handicaps will cause lower average achievement and more dropouts."

A large majority (78 per cent) agree that, "Busing to achieve integration in the public schools should be stopped," and almost as many (69.6 per cent) think that, "The most important thing in public education today is to provide a highly disciplined atmosphere."

Three questions were directed to the prospect of more intensive career education in public schools, with the result that Tar Heels apparently strongly endorse that idea.

Career Education

Should community citizens teach courses like auto mechanics, government, etc., without regard to college degrees or teaching certificates? A large number (69.5 per cent) think so.

Should schools give more emphasis to trades, professions and business to "help students decide on their careers?" Almost all (93.9 per cent) think so.

Should school credit be given for experience gained out of the classroom—working, for instance? Again, a majority (70.7 per cent) think so.

On a variety of other school-related subjects, respondents believe students should be allowed to work at their own pace and interest level (65.3 per cent); that parents should share in decisions about schools finances, curriculum, choice of teachers and selection of textbooks (62 per cent), but that students should not. A majority (52.9 per cent) disagree that schools should be kept open on a year-round basis; but favor (55.8 per cent) keeping classes open at night.

Participants rated very important in school reading, mathematics and occupational education—in that order—followed by English, health and safety, personal and social adjustment, and driver education. Rated lowest were foreign language, arts and crafts, and music.

Susan Is The Big Issue

MARTHA'S VINEYARD, Mass.—The difference between this year and last year on Martha's Vineyard was that last year we were all talking about Nixon's resignation and this year we were talking about whether Susan Ford should have an affair or not.

The island is about equally divided on the issue. The Up-Islanders believe Mrs. Ford did the right thing when she said on television that premarital relations with the right person might help lower the divorce rate.

The Down-Islanders were shocked and felt that, as First Lady, it was Mrs. Ford's duty to speak out against pillowing before one got married.

MacIntosh, my tennis partner, thought Mrs. Ford purposely said what she did to guarantee that Susan would not have an affair.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"Well, after this publicity, Susan Ford is the only girl in America who doesn't have a chance of having an affair with anybody. The whole world is watching her now and she can't make a false move."

"My gosh," I said, "I never thought of that. Mrs. Ford knew exactly what she was doing when she spoke out for premarital relations. Poor Susan. No guy will make a move."

"I wish I had thought of it," MacIntosh said. "I've got an 18-year-old daughter and the public couldn't care less what she does."

"The same with my daughter," I said. "I don't have one Secret Service man to watch her when she goes out on a date. Susan has at least a dozen."

"If Ford gets elected in '76," MacIntosh said, "Susan won't be able to go to a drive-in movie with a guy alone until she's 21."

"And if Ford gets re-elected in '80, Susan will be watched night and day until she's 24," I said.

"Then it really doesn't matter whether she has an affair or not," MacIntosh said. "If she isn't married by then, most people will feel she's entitled."

"Why do you think people got so mad at Mrs. Ford for saying she wouldn't be upset if Susan told her she was having an affair?"

"Most of the people who got angry know they have no control over what their kids do and they were mad that the wife of the President said it out loud."

"I'm glad she said it," I admitted. "I knew where Gerry Ford stood on oil, the Middle East and New York City, but there was always that lingering doubt in my mind about where Mrs. Ford stood on premarital bundling. It's healthy to have a First Lady who tells it as it is."

"I wish Mrs. MacIntosh saw it that way," MacIntosh said. "Whenever my daughter goes out with one of the great unwashed, my wife goes up the wall."

"Is she afraid your daughter is going to have sex?"

"No," said MacIntosh. "She's afraid our kid is going to get cholera."

"I dig," I said.

"I wonder if it will hurt Ford's chances in the election?"

"Your daughter getting cholera?"

"No," said MacIntosh. "Mrs. Ford saying she wouldn't kick Susan out of the White House if she admitted to having an affair."

"It won't unless the Democrats make something of it."

"How could they do that?" MacIntosh asked.

"They could put out bumper stickers which read, 'Can Susan Ford chew gum and smooch at the same time?'"

Other Editors Say A Buoyant Dollar

(F. Myers, Fla. News-Press)

When currencies are allowed to float, they tend to bob up and down, although not in unison. Only recently, for example, it was feared that the U.S. dollar had lost its buoyancy and was sinking fast. European bankers braced themselves for a new world monetary crisis.

Today the dollar looks considerably stronger. Its value in international money markets is now just below that of February 1973, when the dollar was devalued for the second time in 14 months. Otmar Emminger, vice president of the West German central bank, recently told the Foreign Press Association in London that the dollar "has already entered the league of relatively strong currencies," including the German mark, Swiss franc and French franc.

The dollar's recovery is attributable in part to the recent reduction in the rate of inflation. In May the Consumer Price Index rose by 0.4 per cent, as against 1 per cent in May 1974. That is a compound annual rate of 5.3 per cent, high by historical standards. But it is a marked improvement over the 12.2 per cent rise in consumer prices last year.

The fate of the dollar and other major currencies will depend on how successfully the industrialized, oil-importing nations handle the problem of petrodollars—the immense surplus revenues of the oil exporting nations. So far the emphasis has been on short-term measures for recycling petrodollars. But Felix G. Rohatyn, a general partner in the investment house of Lazard Freres and Co., feels this approach will yield only short-term gain and probably cannot last more than 12 to 24 months without causing economic and social chaos.

Chaos has not yet arrived—but neither has a lasting solution to the interrelated problems of energy supplies and monetary values.

The INSIDE REPORT

Overriding The Oil Veto

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—President Ford's unexpected delay of his oil price control veto must be read against the background of a grassroots debacle for him during the August congressional recess: key Senators defecting on oil price decontrol after talking to angry, inflation-conscious constituents.

Calls from congressional head-counters at the White House and the Federal Energy Administration placed last week to Senators across the country obliterated previous blind optimism about sustaining Mr. Ford's veto of continued domestic controls.

Those calls drastically diminished hope that the veto will be sustained in the Senate (with the House a lost cause). The reason: Senators were inundated by constituent complaints about any new gasoline price hikes—particularly among farmers. The impact was intensified by gloomy inflation figures and Gulf Oil's defection from decontrol.

The first bad news came early last week when the administration learned a swing Democrat, conservative Sen. John McClellan of Arkansas, probably would vote to override after listening to angry rural constituents. Next came word that Republican Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio, previously considered a sure decontrol vote but facing a tough reelection race, was wavering badly. So, too, was Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, another supposedly sure Republican now heavily lobbied by independent oil companies who fear domination by decontrolled major producers.

The most stunning defection was conservative Republican Sen. Norris Cotton, who came out of retirement to temporarily fill the vacancy created by New Hampshire's contested election. The White House considered Cotton a windfall vote for decontrol. But he intends to vote for override to help Republican chances in the Sept. 16 special election.

Private, realistic assessments within the administration range between poor and hopeless. The veto override not only would be a humiliating defeat for Mr. Ford but would bury the last of his energy program.

That was the situation when Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield pleaded with the President Friday to hold off vetoing the bill in hopes of getting a congressional compromise. Mansfield told the President he felt the "old ways" might be returning, with rank-and-file Democrats responding to leadership. Though skeptical, Mr. Ford agreed to delay the veto. In effect, he chose one last attempt at compromise rather than a near certain veto override that would be his biggest political defeat since becoming President.

Betty Ford's Bloopers

The political earthquake of Betty Ford's CBS interview Aug. 13 is reflected in tabulated results of Albert Sindlinger's authoritative nationwide poll: a spectacular drop of 16.5 percentage points in the President's approval rating from 55.3 per cent Aug. 10 to 38.8 per cent Aug. 24.

That is Mr. Ford's lowest rating since 38.5 per cent just before the Mayaguez incident. Although Sindlinger attributes Mr. Ford's current slump partly to bad economic news, his interviewers recorded voter after voter complaining about Mrs. Ford's comments on morality.

Sindlinger's data is supported by non-scientific evidence:

Item: One of the Republican party's shrewdest national operatives, driving across country on vacation, was stunned to find the whole nation talking about Mrs. Ford's interview with an overwhelmingly negative effect against her husband.

Item: When Ford campaign manager Howard (Bo) Callaway and Rep. Louis Frey of Florida travelled through rural Florida, Mrs. Ford's comments ranked with Vice President Rockefeller and high gasoline prices as the major Republican grievances.

Item: When Ford campaign operatives asked Republican state chairman Richard Richards of Utah to suggest a state fundraiser, he replied that his conservative state was not Ford country in the wake of the First Lady's remarks.

Rudeness & Politics

Needless discourtesy by Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., of California toward a fellow governor may have decided last Wednesday's 11 to 9 vote by the site selection committee backing New York over Los Angeles for the 1976 Democratic national convention.

Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic governors, last spring sent each of his colleagues a thin but handsome history of the Rhode Island state police, retailing at $8 and published by his state's bicentennial commission. Brown returned his copy to Noel, accompanied by a form letter signed by an aide explaining Brown's policy of rejecting all gifts.

Noel, who has never met Brown, has been burning ever since. "Brown doesn't play with a full seabag upstairs," he snapped when Brown did not show up for the party's national telethon in Los Angeles. As a member of the site selection committee, Noel has argued that Brown's lukewarm attitude toward having the convention in Los Angeles was an argument for New York—forcefully repeating that position just before last Wednesday's vote.

Consumer Has Basis For Doubt

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The consumer has good reason to rely on his own observations about the economy instead of listening to the politically tainted pronouncements of some government officials.

In recent weeks the views out of Washington have sometimes been a bit contradictory, as if whoever was supposed to be orchestrating the administration view was off on vacation.

Or probably it is because some officials have doubts about the long proclaimed emergence from recession, or doubts at least regarding the strength of the recovery that has been so widely forecast.

When jobless figures for July showed a drop from those of June the administration was quick to point out that this was further evidence that its policy was working. Now it has a different interpretation.

Reporting on the views of Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Ron Nessen said those July figures might have overstated things, that they might have been a "statistical quirk."

Americans shouldn't be surprised, the President's press secretary seemed to suggest, if the August jobless rate rose above July's 8.4 per cent level. Americans might not be surprised about a rise, but they are becoming dismayed by the changing views.

The government relies on its index of leading indicators to peer into the future, and it suggests that the public rely on it also. That index rose in July for the fifth straight month, indicating economic recovery.

However, Rogers C.B.

Morton, the commerce secretary, seems to have said that we shouldn't rely too heavily on that official government index. "We cannot expect that every month will show such a dramatic increase," he said.

Who and what do you believe — the administration's semiofficial line that the economy is recovering? Or the view of Asst. Treasury Secretary Sidney Jones that the economy over the next few months could be turbulent?

Is Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz correct in saying that the sale of grains to the Soviets will raise domestic food prices 1.5 per cent? Or is Arthur F. Burns, Federal Reserve chairman, who expects a rise of at least 2 per cent?

What is the public supposed to think when Housing Secretary Carla Hills tells the Congressional Joint Economic Committee that in the seriously depressed housing industry "all sectors seem to be rebounding."

The rebound that Mrs. Hills alluded to remained undiscovered by industry officials. Builders were as mystified as they were surprised by her statement.

Consumers are forced by this confusing news to make their own assessments.

Interviews by consumer researchers show that ordinary families discount much of what they hear out of Washington. They rely on their own studies, conducted in a market place where pennies count and hoopla doesn't.

Those same interviews show conclusively that the public won't be propagandized. They refuse to fool themselves when their own security is at stake and they resist attempts by others to do so.

Local Man Elected To Post In Rescue, First Aid Ass'n

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Wilburn E. Small Jr. of Greenville was elected vice-president for Region 4 at the annual conference of the International Rescue and First Aid Association held here last week.

Small replaces Lynn Harkins, Chief, Field Operations, Office of Emergency Medical Services, Raleigh, as vice-president for the region which includes North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida.

A Greenville native, Small graduated from Rose High School in 1964 and attended East Carolina University. He was employed by The Daily Reflector from 1966 until 1969 when he joined the Greenville Fire Department where he was assigned to the department's rescue unit for three years before being promoted to the rank of lieutenant and reassigned as fire department training officer.

For the past year, Small has been a fire and rescue training specialist with the North Carolina Department of Insurance's Fire and Rescue Services Division.

Austin Beard of London, Ontario, Canada was elected president of the IRFAA during the Saturday balloting. Beard replaces James B. Finison of Greensboro, as head of the international organization.

Finison, who has served two terms as president, is director of Emergency Transportation Services for Guilford County and a member of the State's Emergency Medical Services advisory board.

A former Department of Insurance fire and rescue training specialist, Finison, in the past, has publicly recognized the Greenville Rescue Squad for its assistance to him when he first entered the rescue service and for its continuing support.

Dawson Nethercutt of Greenville, a former Greenville Fire Department employee also attended the Minneapolis conference.

Nethercutt, a former Region 4 vice-president, has been with the Insurance Department's Fire and Rescue Services Division as a fire and rescue training specialist since 1963. He is the author of "The International Manual of Basic Rescue Methods," a training manual for heavy duty rescue methods adopted by the IRFAA as the international standard earlier this year.

Both Small and Nethercutt are volunteer members of the Greenville Rescue Squad.

AT MINNEAPOLIS CONFERENCE . . . of the International Rescue and First Aid Association, newly elected Region 4 vice-president Wilburn give them a pay boost of $3,680. Last year Ford tried to defer a 5.5 per cent civilian and military pay raise from Oct. 1 until January, but the Senate overwhelmingly rejected the delay. Federal employ unions and members of the armed services swamped Congress with protests and the same forces are expected to be at work against the President's effort to hold down this year's pay raise to 5 per cent.

Small of Greenville and outgoing IRFAA president James Finison of Greensboro.

"The size of the proposed pay raise must be temporarily restrained for the economic well-being of the nation as a whole," Ford said last week in his message to Congress.

However, staff aides said they have no doubt a resolution of disapproval will be introduced in the Senate or the House, or both.

Congress has 30 days in which to act. If it does nothing, the President's 5 per cent proposal will go into effect.

Sees Difficult Winter For Most Of People

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The coming winter will be a difficult one for most of the world's population, said British Finance Minister Denis W. Healy.

He said only the United States of all the major industrial powers has succeeded in beginning a recovery from recession and added that most nations may have to wait until mid-1976 to begin economic recovery.

Healy also indicated he agrees with IMF officials and some other nations that the major industrial powers should do more to stimulate their economies to help end the world recession.

Such suggestions did not meet with approval from either President Ford or U.S. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, both of whom addressed the IMF meeting Tuesday.

Ford told the delegates that while the United States will work with other nations in seeking to improve the world economy, "No country can expect the actions of others to resolve its problems."

Ford said, "A sound, healthy and growing U.S. economy is the best lasting contribution this nation can make to other nations."

Simon told delegates he believes it is "unrealistic" to expect that one country can lead the rest of the world out of recession.

"Indeed, let us recognize that the process of solving our economic troubles must begin at home with each country acting on its own to make the tough decisions that are essential for sound, durable growth," Simon said.

He warned that attempts by the United States to overstimulate its economy will bring on new inflation and another recession even worse than the one the world is now experiencing.

'Motivated' By $100 Bills

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A federal jury has been told that investors in one of promoter Glenn Turner's firms were taught to flash $100 bills and ask strangers on the street if they'd like to make more money.

James Elrod testified Tuesday that he attended Dare To Be Great self-motivation schools in Orlando and Oklahoma City, and was told to "go into a grocery store and buy a candy bar or something with a $100 bill and ask the man if he'd like to make a few of these."

Elrod appeared as a government witness in the mail-fraud conspiracy retrial of Turner and four of Turner's former business associates. They are accused of using the mail in conspiring to defraud thousands of investors through a pyramid sales scheme involving Dare To Be Great and another Turner firm.

Elrod said the Turner-taught sales methods he used included a "very casual" approach — walking up to a stranger on the street and asking, "How'd you like to double your income?"

The retrial of the government's case began its fifth week Tuesday. The first trial, at Jacksonville, lasted nearly nine months and ended in a hung jury.

On trial with Turner are Ben Bunting of Williamston, N.C., Jess Hickman of Pineville, La., Clyde C. Cobb of Lakewood, Colo., and Hobart Wilder of Altamonte Springs, Fla.

You'll be paying the bill, so let Congress know your choice!

Congress is about to make an important decision that could affect the cost and gas mileage of your car for years to come.

Since you will be paying the bill, we thought you should be aware of two major alternatives being considered by Congress right now. They concern the control of emissions from cars. Should the standards governing automotive emissions be made even stricter than they are today? Or are they strict enough now? Take your choice.

Choice 1

The President and his Administration have evaluated the pros and cons of current law governing emissions and recommend that the standards for today's cars be extended for five years.

Results

- There will be continued improvement of air quality as new cars replace old cars. (Compared to pre-controlled cars, today's standards result in reductions of over 80% for hydrocarbons and for carbon monoxide and about 40% for oxides of nitrogen according to industry data.)
- Working with current standards, automakers can meet their individual commitments to the President and improve industry-wide gas mileage between 1974 and 1980 by an average of at least 40%.

Choice 2

Present Federal Law calls for even stricter emissions standards for 1977-1978 model cars than those required today. Some members of Congress favor these stricter standards.

Results

- Stricter standards would add only marginal improvement to air quality. (California is an exception. It has a special air quality problem and has its own special standards.)
- To our knowledge no auto manufacturer yet knows how to meet the 1978 standards on a mass production basis. Current "best effort" experimental systems however indicate the following fuel economy and cost penalties:
  - your gas mileage could be reduced by 5% to as much as 30% according to publicly stated company estimates
  - the cost of your car could increase by an estimated $150 to $400 according to company estimates in statements to Congress.

Where do you stand?

These are the choices. We thought you ought to know what they are, and what they will mean to you as a customer. Your United States Senators and Representative should know what you think. Write to them.

WILLIAMSTON—The commercial zone of downtown Williamston has been extended east by a block and a half through action taken by members of the Williamston Town Board Tuesday.

With no opposition expressed, Property consisting of the First Presbyterian Church, one residential home and the lots containing the county courthouse and an office building were rezoned from R-6 residential to downtown commercial zone.

In another zoning action approved in the absence of opposition, board members rezoned for Bailey Willoughby a lot on North Houghton Street Doodle Hill to highway commercial. Willoughby had requested the rezoning in order to open an automotive repair shop at the site.

An ordinance was passed that prohibits parking in any of the city's parking lots between the hours of 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. Drafting of this ordinance followed a long standing series of complaints about excess noise and use of the lots at all hours of the night.

Following a presentation by Herbert Gay, chairman of the Williamston Recreation Commission and Eddy Beach, recreation director, a metal building behind the Baptist Church near downtown was approved for limited recreation use on a trial basis. Activities will be limited from 4 to 8 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Friday and Saturday evenings, and will be closed on Sundays.

A report of traffic hazards compiled by members of the Williamston Police Explorers Post 648 was heard and is being taken under study. The report contains a listing of hazardous streets needing stop signs and places where shrubbery and trees have obscured traffic signs.

With the idea of being ready to move into action at the earliest possible time, board members authorized development plans, cost estimated and other data to be used when and if a new federal bill, the Public Works Bill, goes into effect. The bill, passed July 29 in the U.S. Senate, would assist the construction industry. Williamston planners are assigning top priority to replacement and rerouting of the Skewarkee Gut area, one that has consistently given problems.

In another planning area, board members authorized the hiring of two independent appraisers to appraise property in the downtown area behind stores just off Grab-All Street. The area is the site of the former Lindsay Implement company, and planning calls for possible acquisition and conversion to off-street parking area.

A public hearing has been set for the regular meeting in October to consider a recommendation to close a proposed street between the BeLo Shopping Center and the newly opened Williamston Elementary School. The recommendation contends the opening of a street at this point would create safety hazards for school children.

In other actions, the town board:

—Approved a grant offer by the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources of $1,875 to assist in engineering costs in preparing 201 facility plans for the sewage treatment plant;

—Approved a planning study to be made by the County Planning Services at a cost of $3,500; and

Airplane Chase Helped Arrest

LENOIR, N.C. (AP)—A 300-mile chase from Raleigh to Caldwell County in western North Carolina, some of it by plane, resulted in the arrest early today of Lawrence "Larry" Ballard, 26, of Rockford, Ill.

Shortly before 2 a.m., deputies in Wake County tried to serve Ballard with warrants from Illinois charging him with the alleged theft of a Piper Cherokee-6 single-engine plane. It was supposed to have been stolen from a Vince Black in Illinois.

Ballard took off from the Raleigh-Durham Airport before he could be served. The Federal Aviation Authority tracked him by radar to near High Point. Through the Police Information Network, all policemen west to Asheville were notified. Policemen stood by at airports west of Raleigh, and on Interstates 85 and 40.

The plane was seen landing at the Morganton-Lenoir Airport in Caldwell County. Deputies were there, but the pilot saw them and took off again.

At this point, the chief pilot at the Morganton-Lenoir Airport, Phil Hurdle, took a Morganton city policeman and a Caldwell County deputy up in a plane, and they followed Ballard's plane.

Ballard tried to land at Marion, about 40 miles away, but

North Carolina this year. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

He was slain less than an hour after a man with a sawedoff shotgun and a woman with a handgun robbed a branch of the Branch Banking & Trust Co. at Jamesville, 10 miles east of Williamston in northeastern North Carolina.

The three who were arrested without resistance after the trooper was slain also live in the same general vicinity. They were identified as Frankie Jerome Squire, 24, of Roanoke Rapids; Joseph Seaborn, 21, of Weldon, and Faye Beatrice Brown, 22, of Garysburg.

They were captured without resistance a mile north of Williamston after bloodhounds led officers to the soybean field following the finding of an abandoned car.

Law enforcement authorities had set up roadblocks throughout Martin County in the search for the slayers, and a state helicopter was flown in to assist them. At least 250 officers were in the search.

The FBI said an undisclosed amount of currency and a .25 caliber pistol were recovered with the arrests.

The bank robbers had forced six customers and a teller to lie on the floor while they fled with an undisclosed amount. It was the 40th bank robbery of the year in North Carolina.

Davis was the first trooper slain in North Carolina since two were fatally shot last October while booking a prisoner the county courthouse at Asheville on a driving charge.

Methodist Church.

Mrs. McGrath and her husband, Harold, have a daughter, Patricia, and a son, Mickey.

In announcing her reelection bid, she said, "I enjoy being involved in all phases of city government as we work to meet the numerous challenges that confront us and to set priorities for new programs for Greenville."

She added, "One of my favorites is to develop an effective crime prevention program. I am concerned about the increasing crime rate and especially the astounding number of youthful offenders that the juvenile division of our police department deal with daily."

According to the Council member, "Broad-based citizen involvement in preventing crime could be one way of reversing this current trend. I believe it is worth a try."

Wilderness Abounds In Backpackers

By LARRY CALLOWAY
Associated Press Writer
COWLES, N.M. (AP) — Two pretty college girls with new backpacks and boots sat cooling their tanned bare feet in a creek in the Pecos Wilderness and asked about the dangers of predatory animals.

Good night, ladies, this is the new wilderness! You need a ticket to enter.

The dominant and often only visible animal species here is homo backpacker, a playful mammal that's probably worth preserving.

In a three-day walk on the two-lane trails around here, I made about 150 sightings of this friendly species and about 30 sightings of its larger cousin, homo horsebacker.

The backpacker is distinguished by its hump of various bright colors and its unique wafflestomper track. Your average male is roughly seven feet tall, measured from the rolled protuberance above the head, which is thought to be a vestigial antler.

The females have the same markings but are generally shorter and have a higher pitched call. They also sit down more frequently.

Their primary food, when fish aren't biting, is store freeze-dried.

The very young backpacker has a complaining whine and can be considered ferocious toward the end of the day.

A tired backpacker has been known to snarl.

But the species is usually friendly, smiling and greeting you on the trails or waving from their habitats at every flat place near water.

Three days' hiking also found 50 curious Hereford cows, 10 pet dogs, one frightened blue grouse and the print of an intrepid mule deer. The pesky Bighorn sheep at Pecos Baldy lake had retreated, or at least took Sunday off.

Most people seem to appreciate the scenery in the wilderness. Even in the lower country they'll mention the shimmering aspen, dark firs, clear creeks, lively trout, meadows dotted with wildflowers and the clean fresh air.

It's relatively cheap recreation. Where else could you spend a few days of vacation without carrying cash or credit cards?

The rising popularity of backpacking worries the U.S. Forest Service, which started an experimental permit system for the Pecos three years ago. Last year, permits were issued for 19,238 persons. Permits are free at any ranger station, and no one is being turned back, yet.

The day might come, said recreation specialist Joe Quade of the Santa Fe National Forest, "when we'll have to run visitation use by computer." That would mean camper quotas and rotating the use of some more trampled meadows and stream banks.

The problem isn't to keep people out of the 167,000-acre wilderness, but to redistribute them, Quade said. Last year, about 60 per cent of the people entered at one area, from Cowles. The popular canyons that fan out from the upper Pecos are simply worn out, he said.

Quade said there are other entries but packers tend to choose the more convenient.

The horsemen who predominated in the early days — the Pecos was first protected as a federal primitive area in 1933 — have given way to backpackers. Last year only nine per cent of the groups entering the wilderness were on horseback.

Bird Allergy Is Potential Risk

WINNIPEG, Canada (UPI) — If the person who likes birds and is around them all the time starts coughing, wheezing, losing weight and not feeling so good, he may be in real danger, indicates an allergy research team at the University of Manitoba Health Sciences Center here.

He may be suffering from "bird fancier's lung," an allergic lung inflammation that eventually results in permanent scarring, or pulmonary fibrosis, and even death.

Dr. Carl J. Zylak and a team of physicians recently completed a study of patients with this allergic reaction and point out that the disease can be cured if detected early. Diagnosis requires X-ray studies of the lungs in addition to the usual laboratory and allergy tests.

Garlic shoved into the ground around the trunks of fruit trees or other plants puts off most climbing insects.

NEW YORK (AP)— Prices drifted lower again in the stock market today amid an atmosphere of caution attributed to New York City's financial troubles.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 2.35 at 821.34 on top of an 11.65 decline Tuesday.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 3-1 margin in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said investors seemed preoccupied with uncertainty over the potential effects of New York City's cash problems on the bond and stock markets.

Gov. Hugh Carey has called a special session of the New York State Legislature for Thursday in an effort to find a means of obtaining the funds the city needs for expenses and for debts that come due on Sept 15.

Texasco was the most active issue on the Big Board, down 1/4 at 24. A 99,000-share block changed hands at 23 1/2.

NL Industries fell 1/4 to 14 in inactive trading. The company said it might have to suspend production at its Utah magnesium plant to correct technical problems.

Gold stocks gained ground, recouping some of their sharp losses Tuesday that followed announcement of an International Monetary Fund group's plans for gold sales to aid developing nations.

ASA Ltd. picked up 1/8 to 16 1/8.

East Carolina University formally began its 68th academic year today with a traditional faculty convocation at which Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins said "we stand on the threshold of a very exciting and challenging future."

Jenkins told the more than 650 assembled faculty that "I have always believed and continue to believe that we must maintain a spirit of creativity and flexibility. As we continue in that spirit, we can adapt to the many problems and new challenges that we face and thereby assure that this university will continue to grow and flourish."

Making his 29th appearance at the traditional, opening-of-school faculty convocation, Dr. Jenkins devoted his address to observations on the philosophy of change and its effect upon society and higher education.

"In 1947," he said, "optimism reigned in our academic community. We knew there would be growth, expansion, new programs, new horizons." In contrast, he said, "today, on many campuses, some even here in North Carolina, there is uncertainty, fear and trembling. Today, as we know, many colleges are bankrupt, going out of business and up for sale."

"There remains a great need in our state for more and better higher education," Jenkins said. "North Carolina still remains fourth from the bottom in the number of college age youth in school. We at East Carolina exist for the reason to serve and improve our ranking."

"To the best of our ability, we have always responded to the urgent need for expanding opportunities in higher education, and we expect to continue to do so."

Jenkins who has served as dean, vice president, president and chancellor of ECU said he is convinced that "there still exists on this campus a sense of university governance, Jenkins said the ECU Faculty Senate is recognized as one of the strongest in the university system. "I am indeed proud of your contributions in the proper area of academic policy-making," he said.

More than 10,000 students are expected to register for Fall Quarter classes. But for the first time since 1972, there will be no medical students attending classes on the campus.

ECU's one-year medical school program, which began three years ago, has been expanded to a four-year degree-granting program by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors and funded by the 1975 General Assembly.

With no medical school students on campus, medical school faculty and staff members will be able to devote full time toward efforts to have the school accredited and ready to enroll the first students in the new four-year program—hopefully by the Fall of 1976.

Bids will be taken next week for proposed renovations to Ragsdale Hall to serve as temporary offices and laboratories for medical school faculty members.

Jenkins, comparing the growth of ECU since 1947 said there were 84 faculty and 96 staff members as compared with 679 members of the faculty and 850 staff members in 1975.

In 1947, he said, there were 1,605 students on-campus as compared with more than 11,000 in 1975, while 1975 saw more than 18,000 extension students registered for classes. The school, he noted, has no extension classes in 1947.

The budget has grown, too, he pointed out. He compared the $1.9 million budget of 1947 with the $30.1 million budget for 1975.

Jenkins told the convocation, "there are among us today only four faculty who were here on my first convocation in 1947."

He then recognized Marguerite Austin Perry, chairman and professor of foreign languages and literatures who has been at ECU for 35 years; Nell Allen Stallings, professor of health and physical education with 32 years service; Elizabeth Drake, associate professor of music and a veteran of 29 years at the university; and professor of music Herbert Leland Carter who has also been at East Carolina for 29 years.

While the budget has grown, too, he pointed out. He compared the $1.9 million budget of 1947 with the $30.1 million budget for 1975.

Berkeley Teachers Walking Out, Too

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)— Firemen put down their hoses, and now teachers are taking up picket signs as residents of this university town face their second public employees strike in less than 10 days.

The district's 980 public school teachers voted 707 to 123 Tuesday to set up picket lines in a contract dispute when school opens today. Firemen walked off their jobs Aug. 26, demanding higher wages.

Julie Kennedy, president of the Berkeley Teachers Association, said the teachers want the school board to stick to terms of an agreement last April 15 which only retained salaries and benefit levels.

Mrs. Kennedy said the board claimed it found unexpected deficits over the summer and reduced salaries and benefits and added to workloads.

School district officials pledged they would open the city's 23 elementary and high schools and provide nonstriking teachers, administrators and substitutes for the city's 14,000 pupils.

Meanwhile, State Conciliator William Hehir said negotiations between Fire Fighters Local 1227 and the city council were stalemated. He said he had abandoned efforts to bring the two sides together "because their positions haven't changed any."

Arrested In Barn-Burning

Two Rt. 2 Ayden men have been arrested by the Pitt Sheriff's Department on charges stemming from the burning of a tobacco barn near Grifton and attempted burning of a store at Stokestown.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, deputies arrested Dieter Shaw, 21, and Bobby Manning, 17, both of Rt. 2, Box 403, Ayden, and charged them with the unlawful burning of a tobacco barn owned by Bruce Garris of Grifton.

The incident, which occurred on Aug. 2, resulted in the loss of the barn and its contents of tobacco, valued at a total of $3,300.

The sheriff said that Shaw is also charged with attempting to burn Hardee's Trading Post at Stokestown on Aug. 23. The facility sustained damages estimated at $300 in that incident, it was noted.

Shaw was jailed under $2,000 bond on the barn burning charge and $500 on the attempted store burning charge. Manning's bond was set at $2,000 on the barn incident.

Hearings have been scheduled for Sept. 10 in District Court here.

Area Teams Open Grid Season Friday

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
Another high school football season is upon us and while there is the usual note of optimism, there is also an ominous air of pessimism.

The 3-A Eastern Carolina Conference has been trimmed

by two teams, Eastern and Southern Wayne, which have advanced to the 4-A ranks.

Without a doubt, the ECC coaches are glad to see Southern Wayne gone. The Saints ran up a perfect regular season record demolishing everybody in the loop along the way. Last place North Pitt scored the most points on the Saints, 20, the whole season.

Some coaches feel that the smaller conference will help but say only time will tell. Farmville Central's Gene Brewer expressed a wait-and-see attitude. His team finished second behind Southern last year.

Ayden-Grifton's Mike Overton said he would have to wait until the season was over before he could tell. Conley's Chuck Dunn commented that, "I think it will give some teams more flexibility in scheduling. They (Southern Wayne) have been sort of a dominant factor. I think it will be a dogfight." North Pitt's Pat Smith observed, "I don't see how it will hurt. I like it better. It gives everybody a chance to play three non-conference games." Smith expressed some disappointment in the loop's representative selection. "We will only have one representative this year where last year we had two." Green Central's Stewart Smith noted that the competition would get better. "It will be more rival-like," he said. "It gives you more incentive to do better. Southern Wayne was head and shoulders above everybody. It will take us a year to get hold of ourselves and the others will get better, the D.H. Conley's, The North Pitts, the Aycocks, they will get better."

The rest of the loop still has Southern Nash, Greene Central, North Lenoir and C.B. Aycock. The three teams with the best chances at that top spot are Ayden-Grifton, Greene Central and Farmville Central. A-G and GC are favorites because of returning players, Farmville Central because of young players. Dunn's Vikings scrimmaged West Carteret last Thursday and felt it did his team a lot of good butting heads with someone other than themselves. "We're still looking for depth." Greene Central has a large number of seniors and if they are going to take a conference title, this is the year for it. They will not have anybody to do it next year. Ram coach Smith is "highly optimistic."

The searching is going on over at Bethel too. "We will be able to move the ball but we still don't have the defense," said Smith. He started four linebackers in a scrimmage against Washington who had never played football before. "We might surprise a few people."

Northeastern
Dink Mill's problems of finding backup people were heightened last week when his number one candidate for quarterback Tim Hardison underwent surgery to repair a hernia and will be out for six weeks. Many Tigers will play both ways but Mills hopes. They actually opened their season Friday with a 14-0 win over Gates County. This week they get a taste of 3-A play traveling to Farmville Central. In two weeks, the Tigers begin conference play.

Eastern Plains
Robersonville and Oak City have merged to form a new school. Roanoke and a new football team, the Redskins. Coach Nolan Respass brings almost all his championship team with him and added some Oak City players. The former Eagles and Respass won five straight loop titles in 1-A and 2-A play and this year just may be No. 6. They opened Friday against 4-A Bertie winning 7-0. Respass feels his stiffest competition will be from North Johnston which the Redskins meet in the last game of the season.

Tobacco Belt
And finally there's Jamesville. Football, new to the Bullets a few seasons ago has been picking up steadily, and this year may be the best yet. They open on the road Friday against Columbia.

Area scorekeepers are reminded that the Daily Reflector will be open from 10:00 p.m. until 12:00 midnight Friday nights and on Saturday mornings 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. If you have any question or problem about keeping the game statistics, please call us any time.

Jamesville Enters Conference Play With Third Football Team

(One of a series)

JAMESVILLE—While the game of football is still relatively new to Jamesville it has a long way to go yet. But Bullet coach Link Page feels football has also come a long way.

The people are behind the program at Jamesville High School like never before, Page says. "Last year we took four or five to a scrimmage in Saratoga. This year we took 35 or 40. I think it's catching on. It's coming around."

Page feels that a lot of work has yet to be done. "We're trying to get the younger boys in there and have a freshman or a sophomore to take over. We have a good crop of freshmen and sophomores and they have come to play. It is a building year."

Three years ago, when Jamesville fielded its first football team only one freshman came out. The second year a good number of freshmen came out and Page has more out this year. "We have eight lettermen back," he said. "All are young, five are sophomores. We have just enough seniors to carry the weight until the others (sophomores and freshmen) come around."

Page is trying to keep things simple and his offense is built on simple plays. He calls it a "twin-back" offense. "It has worked out well. We don't have a lot of razzle-dazzle," he said.

At quarterback, Page moved Jerry Ange from wide receiver and it has been a good move. "He's got good hands and all the qualities."

Page has a big group of possible running backs. Heading the list is junior Eric Davis. "He was the one freshman we had two years ago. He will carry most of the load. We have four or five that can get the job done."

"Cornell Williams is small and quick. Rob Hardison is good. We have a lot of hope for Stan Lilley. He is built like a fire hydrant."

While the Bullets don't have exceptional size in the offensive line Page thinks their quickness will make up for it. The two tight ends are Rufus Simmons, a 6-5, senior with good hands and a good hitter. At the other end is Bill Barber, a "real good hitter." Page also has Hugh Bennett, 6-1, 180, who he expects to start somewhere during the season.

At the tackles are Jeff Beacham, Randy Simmons and Jeff Davis, all sophomores. At one guard is Keith Long. "He is small and quick and will get the job done for us. The other spot is a toss-up between Joe Gardner and Jim Cooper."

Ramsey Simmons is holding down the center position. "All three Simmons are starters and are brothers. We will depend on Ramsey's blocking," said Page.

"We are very undersized. We will be outmuscled. Our quickness will help us offset it. We found our line is quick and is as quick as we had hoped. We will be able to play with people stronger than us."

At flanker is Glenn Ellis, a sophomore. "He is the best hitter on the team and he has good hands and good speed. I feel Ellis has the speed." Page feels that Ellis will be a good target for Ange who "can thread the needle." The big task in order to have a good passing game is protection. "The job is going to be giving him (Ange) time to throw," said Page.

Some of the starting defensive positions are still up for grabs. In the line Page has Rufus Simmons and Barber at the ends, Randy Simmons at nose guard. At linebackers, Page is high on Eric Davis. "He is 155 pounds and one of the best hitters we've got. He always knows where the ball is. He is our defensive captain."

In the backfield is a crew of sophomores: Beacham, Rob Hardison, Lilly Ange, Ellis and Rick Whitehurst. "They get better every week," Page said. The conference race, Page said, will be between four teams. Bath will be a contender along with Manteo and Belhaven. Aurora may be the one to win it and the others ending up two, three, and four. "We are hoping to have a rewarding year," he added.

Jamesville's schedule: Sept. 5: at Columbia; Sept. 12: Chocowinity; Sept. 19: at Belhaven; Sept. 26: Bath; Oct. 3: at Aurora; Oct. 10: Matamuskeet; Oct. 17: at Manteo; Oct. 23: Roanoke J.V.; Oct. 31: Creswell; Nov. 6: at Roanoke J.V.

Wolfpack Chosen To Top East Carolina

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The first score of the college football is hereby forecast on the nose ... 60-48 in favor of the home team.

That's because the National Collegiate Athletic Association, in an effort to curtail expenses, has decreed that only 48 players may go on road trips while the home side can dress no more than 60.

Wonder how Missouri will like traveling to Alabama knowing the second-ranked Crimson Tide won't even be allowed to dress a full third team? And how about Villanova, coming off a 3-8 season, visiting Maryland's defending Atlantic Coast Conference champs or East Carolina playing at North Carolina State with the same numbers?

And what about the Penn State-Temple game, which has Penn State as the home team—it originally was scheduled for

State College — even though the site has been switched to Philadelphia? Will the Nittany Lions be permitted to bring 60 players more than 150 miles from central Pennsylvania while Temple, located in Philly, can only dress 48? The savings to Temple should be all of $3.60, based on 12 players at 30 cents a head, which is the trolley-bus fare from the campus to Franklin Field.

Last year's crystal ball produced a mark of 519 right, 203 wrong and 18 ties for a .719 percentage.

Missouri vs. Alabama at Birmingham: "I'd rather play the good teams than the average ones," says Missouri's Al Onofrio. "I think you have a better chance to develop into a good team yourself when you play the tough ones." This is the first of two Monday night TV games and the nation will get a chance to see what some say is Bear Bryant's best-ever 'Bama crew. Good luck, Al ... Alabama 35-14.

Penn State vs. Temple at Philadelphia: There's a temptation to pick this as the Upset Special of the Week. Wayne Hardin has Temple among the better teams in the East but Joe Paterno's club is king of the Eastern hill — alias Mt. Nittany — until someone proves otherwise ... Penn State 27-10.

East Carolina at North Carolina State: Wolfpack won't be taking the Pirates lightly after last year's 24-20 squeaker. With Dave Buckley pitching and Don Buckley catching ... N.C. State 28-7.

No. Upset Special this week.

Finley Hasn't Given Up Yet

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

An attorney for Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley says he will try to reclaim former A's pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter, who is now playing for the New York Yankees under a $3.7 million contract.

Neil Papiano, the attorney, said Tuesday he will file an appeal with the California Appellate Court in San Francisco on Thursday or Friday, contending an arbitrator lacked authority to declare Hunter a free agent last year.

The hurler's case went to arbitration after Hunter charged Finley with failing to live up to a contract which guaranteed him deferred payments on his two-year contract at $100,000 a season. After the arbitrator's action, the Yankees won a storied bidding war for Hunter's services and signed him to the five-year pact.

The pitcher is 18-15 for the Yankees in the current season. However, Papiano contends the deferred payments were illegal and that the Internal Revenue Service agrees.

"Our appeal will be on two bases," Papiano said. "First, that it would have been illegal for Finley to comply with the request of Hunter and his attorneys for deferred payments because that would have been a fraud on the Internal Revenue Service."

"Secondly, that the arbitrator was specifically forbidden by the contract between the Players Association and major league baseball to deal with the reserve clause and in fact did just that by declaring Hunter a free agent."

Previously, an Oakland Superior Court judge ruled that courts have no power to overturn the judgment of an arbitrator.

But Papiano said, "We are confident of getting Hunter back."

The pitcher won 20 games or more during four straight seasons with the A's, World Series champions his last three years.

Patton commented, "Dan has really been an assistant coach for the past three years in an unofficial capacity. Now, we make it official. Dan has been our right hand man and we feel he'll be a valuable asset to our program."

Some Tickets Still On Sale

A few tickets from an additional order from Raleigh have been placed on sale at the East Carolina University athletic ticket office, it was announced today.

Student tickets are also on sale, and will continue through Thursday. However, any student who does not get a ticket here will be able to get into the stadium at student rates upon showing his I.D. card at the gate.

Tickets are also available at the ECU ticket office for both of the other ACC games played by the Pirates—North Carolina and Virginia.

The Bucs continued their workouts yesterday as the prepared for Saturday's meeting with the Wolfpack. Coach Pat Dye said that the offense still appears slow, however, and he is not pleased with it at this time. The Bucs begin tapering off tomorrow.

Rick Bennett, offensive tackle, had a cast removed from his leg yesterday, but will not be ready to play in Saturday's contest. There is a possibility that he might be ready to go in time for the Appalachian State game.

Red Sox Plan No Flop In '75

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The Boston Red Sox won't be the Boston Red Faces this year, if they can help it. No embarrassment, a la 1974. "We'll be all right now," Carl Yastzremski said Tuesday night after the Red Sox whipped the New York Yankees 7-4. "We're going to hit and our pitching looks good. All we need is a little pitching, and that's the big part of the game, and we'll do all right."

The Red Sox, mindful of last year's flop when they blew a big lead in September, begin an eight-game road trip tonight against their chief antagonists—the Baltimore Orioles.

The Orioles, the ones who caught the Red Sox in last year's stretch run in the American League East, can cut off some of Boston's six-game lead in their two-game series.

The Orioles beat the Indians 3-2 in the 10th inning of the opener Tuesday before losing the second game, 2-1.

In other American League action, the California Angels defeated the Oakland A's 4-1; the Kansas City Royals trimmed the Chicago White Sox 4-1 in 12 innings; the Minnesota Twins stopped the Texas Rangers 5-3 and the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Detroit Tigers 6-5.

Carlton Fisk, returning to the regular lineup for the first time in 10 days, drove in three runs with a pair of singles to help Boston snap a three-game losing streak.

Fisk, who suffered a split finger when hit by a foul tip on Aug. 23, lined a bases-loaded single to center to cap a four-run third inning. He then provided another run with an RBI single in the fifth.

Boston right-hander Reggie Cleveland, 10-9, allowed the Yankees a 1-0 lead on Chris Chambliss' ninth homer in the second inning. He needed relief help after giving up a three-run homer to Thurman Munson in the eighth inning.

Orioles 3-1, Indians 2-2
Bobby Grich singled home a run with two out in the 10th inning, giving Baltimore its first-game victory over Cleveland. Rico Carty's home run in the eighth inning gave the Indians the second game.

Twenty-game winner Jim Palmer will pitch tonight against Rick Wise, Boston's fine 17-game winner.

Angels 4, A's 1
Frank Tanana struck out 14 batters and pitched a five-hitter, leading California over Oakland. The Angels broke a scoreless tie with a four-run eighth keyed by Mickey Rivers' two-run double.

Tanana, 14-6, outdueled Ken Holtzman, 15-12, with an overpowering performance that included two strikeouts in each of the first six innings.

Royals 4, White Sox 1
George Brett's two-out single in the 12th inning triggered Kansas City over Chicago. Amos Otis doubled and came home with the deciding run as Brett lashed a single to right.

Al Cowens came through with a two-run single to cap the rally. The teams scored unearned runs in the fourth inning to bring about a 1-1 tie.

Twins 5, Rangers 3
Dan Ford, Rod Carew and John Briggs hit home runs as Minnesota defeated Texas. Ford gave winner Jim Hughes a 1-0 lead in the second when he hit his 15th homer of the season against Rangers starter Steve Hargan.

In the Minnesota fourth, Jerry Terrell led off with a walk and Carew walloped his 13th homer to tie the game at 3-3. Briggs followed with a solo shot to sprang the Twins into a 4-3 lead and their eventual winning run.

Brewers 6, Tigers 5
George Scott collected five hits and drove in two runs to lead Milwaukee past Detroit. Scott had two doubles and three singles in a 5-for-5 night and raised his season RBI count to 86 — 19 against Detroit. Jim Colborn, with relief help from Ed Rodriguez, won his 10th game against nine losses.

NICE GOING, TEAMMATE—Chris Evert gives teammate Martina Navratilova a pat with her racket after they defeated Lesley Charles and Sue Mappin in doubles competition at the U.S. Open Tennis Championships in Forrest Hills, N.Y., Tuesday. They won, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4. (AP Wirephoto)

Winds Blown Out Of League

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK AP—Refusing to go along with the kind of financial arrangements that spelled disaster a year ago, the World Football League instead has revoked the Chicago Winds franchise.

The removal of the Winds following withdrawal of two of the club's key investors, leaves 10 WFL teams to carry on through the remainder of the league's second season.

Chicago's mistake was thinking that the new WFL would operate the same way the old one did, said President Chris Hemmeter.

Officially, the reason for revocation was "non-adherence to the Hemmeter Plan policy." Translated, that means that the Winds' financial backing was slipping and the WFL wasn't about to wait around while the club sought to patch it up.

When the Chicago franchise was formed, certain partnership documents and other ownership arrangements were not completed. Two of the club's backers placed their investment totaling $175,000 with the league, pending clarification and finalization of the ownership documents.

But that clarification and finalization never came. One delay led to another and finally, the investors decided to pull out. They withdrew their funds, leaving the Winds below the WFL's minimum capitalization requirements.

At a special board of governors meeting, Chicago requested time to attract new investors. "That was just the kind of request that was granted."

Instead, Chicago was stripped of its franchise. The Winds players were distributed in a dispersal draft and a revised schedule was adopted. The WFL said it would guarantee refunds to all season ticket holders and that all player salaries would be paid.

"The future stability of the league was threatened by non-adherence to the plan," said Hemmeter. "We were not willing to gamble the future of the league. From day one, we agreed that such a violation would not be tolerated."

According to Hemmeter, the Chicago financial situation was unique. "It was singular case," he said. "I see no others. This assures the financial stability of our 10 member clubs. They have adhered to all precepts of the plan, deposited all the required monies and operated in strict accordance with the plan."

As part of the player dispersal, the Philadelphia Bell got wide receiver John Gilliam and quarterback Pete Beathard. San Antonio acquired running back Mark Kellar, defensive end Larry Jameson and wide receiver Margene Adkins.

Leo Cahill, general manager of the Winds, is expected to join the league staff in New York as an assistant to Hemmeter and the WFL also expects to retain Coach Abe Gibron.

Evert Invitational Continues; Wade Feels She Can Top Chris

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The Christine Marie Evert Invitational Tennis Tournament resumes today with Australian Kerry Melville Reid scheduled to make her farewell appearance.

Miss Evert, a cool, emotionless executioner disguised as a pretty, bright-eyed 20-year-old with a movie-star smile, has turned the women's half of the U.S. Open into a series of challenge matches. And none of the challengers have done much challenging.

Miss Evert has disposed of three opponents with a minimum of fuss thus far, losing only five games. The tournament is being contested, if that is the word, on clay and Chris just doesn't lose on clay. Not much anyway.

The last time Miss Evert lost on the soft surface that rewards patience and sound ground strokes was in 1973 at the U.S. Clay Court Championships in Indianapolis. Since then she's run off 16 straight tournaments and an amazing 81 straight matches on clay.

British veteran Virginia Wade, seeded second here, is among those who think Chris can be taken.

"There are at least six players in the tournament who can beat Christie," said the outspoken Miss Wade. "She's not invincible on clay. The trouble is everyone gets psyched out. Out of 64 players in this tournament, 58 are beaten before they take the court."

Miss Wade meets unseeded Katja Ebbinghaus of West Germany today. The other two quarter-final matches have fourth-seeded Evonne Goolagong going against Japan's Kazuko Sawamatsu and third-seeded Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia squaring off with Australian veteran Margaret Court, seeded fifth.

The Navratilova-Court match, potentially the best of the four, will be played at night.

Tuesday's play saw three Latin and a Romanian advance into the quarter-final round in men's singles.

Guillermo Vilas, the 23-year-old Argentine, seeded second, hammered 15th-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia. Kodes, who hasn't won a tournament this year, was never in the match against the quick Vilas who put on an overpowering display before the evening gathering of 7,971 fans. Kodes won only the first and seventh games of the opening set before Vilas ran off the last 13 games of the match.

Vilas' opponent in the quarters will be Jaime Fillol, the 29-year-old Chilean who has been playing marvelous tennis, having won four straight matches without losing a set, despite a threat against his life. Fillol received the warning, apparently from an activist group in Chile about a month ago. He was told not to play in a Davis Cup match against Sweden later this month in Bastad.

Fillol disposed of Karl Meiler, an erratic West German, 61, 6-1, 6-2.

Romanian ace Ilie Nastase, keeping his well-known temper in check, outlasted Mexico's Raul Ramirez 6-4, 5-7, 6-0, 6-6, 6-3 in the tournament's first five-set match.

Manuel Orantes of Spain, 26, outdueled 33-year-old Frenchman Francois Jauffret 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 Tuesday.

NFL Squads Cut To New Limit

By TIM WHITE
AP Sports Writer
Eventually, even The Turk himself will run out of time.

The landscape was littered with battered bodies and broken dreams as 26 National Football League teams hurried Tuesday to meet The Terrible Turk's unsentimental deadline: a limit of 49 players per.

Before pro football's version of the Grim Reaper is done, all NFL teams must further reduce their rosters to 46 players by next Tuesday and a final 43 on Sept. 16.

In the meantime, the litany of the released and the reserved contained the usual assortment of has-beens and also-rans, plus the inconveniently injured and those simply unneeded.

Four players, for instance, were cut from the New York Jets: fourth-year center Warren Koegel, safety Jerry Bond and rookie backs Jon Bradford and Garry Baccus — not exactly household words, and they probably never will be if the NFL has anything to say about it.

The Atlanta Falcons placed veteran tight end Larry Mialik on the injured reserve list and released four other players.

The New York Giants slimmed down to 52 players shedding linebacker Jess Hudson and tight end Elmore Stephens. They were expected to announce their other cuts Wednesday, pending waiver claims.

The Green Bay Packers released veteran wide receiver Jeff Baker and a rookie, and placed end Mike Fanucci on the disabled list with a sore ankle. The Packers also claimed rookie linebacker Ken Bernick on waivers from the San Diego Chargers.

The Cincinnati Bengals reduced their roster to the required amount, plus College All-Stars, by placing veteran defensive end Royce Berry on the injured reserve list and

Sports Briefs

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts of the National Football League cut veteran linebacker Tony Bertuca Tuesday, a Colts spokesman said. Bertuca, a second year player from Chico State, was released on waivers as a free agent.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams have acquired veteran punter Jim McCann from the Kansas City Chiefs, giving up an undisclosed future National Football League draft pick.

Mike Burke, who won the Rams kicking job in 1974 and averaged 36.4 yards a try this fall, was released. McCann, from Arizona State, carries an average of 42.9 yards on eight kicks during the preseason.

He first signed with San Francisco in 1971, kicked for the New York Giants in 1973 and wasn't active for a year until signing with Kansas City this summer.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints cut Morgan Frazier Tuesday, one week after the wide receiver was picked up from Denver.

The Saints are preparing for Saturday night's National Football League preseason game against Pittsburgh.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Paul Stovall, 26, former Arizona State University and National Basketball Association player, has pleaded guilty in federal court to distribution of cocaine.

Stovall, of suburban Tempe, faces a possible 15 years in prison and $25,000 fine when he is sentenced Sept. 22.

A co-defendant, Bennie W. Ceaser, 26, of Phoenix, pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting Stovall in the sale of 1½ ounces of cocaine to undercover federal narcotics agents in March.

Both men were released on bond pending sentencing. Stovall played with the NBA Phoenix Suns in 1972-73.

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and his son, Teddy, were special guests of the Boston Red Sox Tuesday night for a baseball game with the New York Yankees at Fenway Park.

The Kennedys, joined by a couple of the senator's aides, and Red Auerbach, president and general manager of the Boston Celtics, had a pre-game dinner in the rooftop dining room.

Phillies May Be Finished

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Pittsburgh slugger Willie Stargell says consistency will determine the outcome of the four-team pennant scramble in the National League East, but the Philadelphia Phillies are developing the kind of consistency that could take them right out of the race.

Philadelphia suffered its fourth consecutive loss and ninth in the last 12 games Tuesday night, dropping a 4-3 squeaker to the Montreal Expos. First-place Pittsburgh, meanwhile, opened up some breathing room by pounding out an 8-4 triumph over the New York Mets.

"Going down the stretch you need all the consistency you can get," said Stargell, the leader of the Pirates. "The team that is the most consistent this month is going to win it."

But Philadelphia has been displaying the wrong kind of consistency.

"I don't think it's pressure, we just haven't played well," said Philis Manager Danny Ozark after his club's latest loss. "We're not swinging the bats any differently. It beats me what's happening."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3, the Cincinnati Reds whipped the San Diego Padres 10-4, the San Francisco Giants shaded the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3 and the Atlanta Braves defeated the Houston Astros 4-1.

Pirates 8, Mets 4
The Pirates' belted six extra base hits, including home runs by Bill Robinson, Manny Sanguillen and Rennie Stennett, in beating the Mets, sparked by 3-1-3 innings of one-hit relief work by Kent Tekulve. They now lead St. Louis by four games, the Mets and Phils by five.

Alternate Housing Plans Will Be Offered HUD

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Housing Authority, which had hoped to build 117 new housing units in the Southside area, will present an alternate proposal to the Department of Housing and Urban Development calling for construction of part of the units in the Meadowbrook area.

Joe Laney, the Authority's executive director, discussed the matter with the commissioners Tuesday night and reported that a HUD representative was in town recently to view the proposed Southside site. Laney said that the official balked at putting all of the 117 units in that area due to the large number of subsidized housing units already located there.

According to the director, the HUD representative asked the Authority to resubmit the development proposal to call for placement of part of the units in the Meadowbrook area and placement of the remaining units in Southside. Laney said that a site in Meadowbrook that is under consideration would afford the Authority approximately eight acres of usable land on which to place the housing units. He said that he figures it would be possible to build from 65 to 80

Rep. Bundy In Raleigh Friday

State Rep. Sam D. Bundy will be in Raleigh Friday to attend the monthly meeting of the Advisory Budget Commission. He will speak to the annual banquet meeting of the Yadkin County Merchants Association in Yadkinville Tuesday and will return to Raleigh Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of next week for the Carolinas Kiwanis District Convention. Friday he will participate in a meeting of the State Board of Awards.

units on the site and the remaining units could go in Southside.

Originally, the Authority had planned to put all 117 units in Meadowbrook but designation of part of a proposed site as flood plain property prevented the board from pursuing the project further. The 117 units have already been authorized by HUD for construction by the Authority but a suitable site has been difficult to find.

The Authority accepted the landscaping on the southwest portion of the Newtown Project and will arrange a meeting with the landscape contractor in order to discuss the final disposition concerning the payment for landscaping on the northeast portion of the project. Laney said that the landscaping is not satisfactory on the northeast section and he recommended that a meeting be scheduled to discuss the matter.

A new schedule of income limits that regulate admission and continued occupancy procedures for the Authority's housing units was adopted. According to Laney, HUD recommended adoption of the increased income limits in view of the fact that the Authority has

Conference Of Laymen Slated

DUDLEY—The North Carolina Free Will Baptist Layman Board will sponsor a conference Friday and Saturday at Eagles Nest Retreat Center here.

The conference will begin at 5 p.m. Friday and will end Saturday at 5 p.m. with selection layman of the year.

There will be several groups of singers to sing Friday night and educational sessions will be held Saturday morning. Saturday afternoon is for Christian fellowship and other activities.

not raised its schedule since December of 1973.

The new schedule, which will be effective Oct. 1, will allow the Authority to take in families which would be exempt under the present schedule, it was pointed out.

A new lease and grievance guideline will also be adopted by the Authority in order to meet new requirements by HUD. Laney said that he feels the lease provisions stipulated by HUD for adoption will reinforce both tenant rights and rights of the Authority.

A specific aspect of the lease will spell out in detail the damage and repair requirements pertaining to unit occupancy and will emphasize the fact that the tenant must take care of the unit or he will be charged for damages that occur above normal wear and tear.

The Authority has six months to adopt the new lease provisions and 60 days to adopt the grievance procedures.

Commissioners voted to charge off $1,283.80 in uncollected accounts. The action is taken annually on accounts that the board is unable to collect. This year's charge-off total, it was noted, represents less than four-tenths of one per cent of the Authority's total rental income $332,000.

All 531 units operated by the Authority were occupied during August, according to Mrs. Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs. Average monthly rent included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $47.31; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $54.61; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $52.69; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $54.83; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $49.61.

An energy resolution was adopted by the commissioners recognizing the critical shortage of energy as a local and national problem and setting a goal for the coming year to reduce the consumption of natural gas and electricity by five per cent. The reduction effort will be emphasized through an accelerated program of tenant information.

The Authority will readvertise for bids on a compact truck. Bids were sought on a truck earlier but only one offer was received, it was noted. If the Authority only receives one offer at the next bid opening, that bid may be accepted.

Prior to coming to ECU, she attended Atlantic Christian College for one year and was graduated from the N.E.W. Academy in Sharpsburg.

A full time employee of the Pitt County Schools, Miss Cobb will supervise the lunchroom workers, plan meals, work with the salesmen and order food.

She is a member of the Student Dietetic Association at ECU. She did volunteer work with Nash General Hospital last fall in the area of her major.

Miss Cobb replaces Mrs. Edna Whichard who retired last year.

OK Hiring Supervisor

The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday approved the employment of Miss Jan Cobb as supervisor for the School Food Services Program.

A native of Elm City, Miss Cobb is a senior at East Carolina University where she is majoring in food nutrition and institutional management in the Home Economics Department.

Farmville Bd. Agrees To Provide Services To Area

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE—Farmville Commissioners agreed last night to provide water service to residents of an area outside the town limits along Highway 264 to Lewis' Store and from Lewis Store back along 264-A, if the Economic Development Administration will approve the project as part of a larger water project now underway.
The decision followed the presentation of a petition submitted by residents of the area. People outside the city limits will be charged a $250 tap-in fee, twice that of a town resident. The project is expected to cost approximately $29,000. If approved, work could begin within the next three months, Town Engineer Jack McDavid said.
A request by Police Chief Marsdon Cannady to prohibit parking on the north side of Moore Street next to Cobb's Barbecue and to allow parallel parking only on the south side of Moore Street from Main to Contentnea was granted.

Yoga Class To Begin Sept. 9

The Greenville Recreation Department, with Joan Courter directing, will again hold Yoga classes this fall starting Tuesday, September 9. Mrs. Courter is conducting a class for beginners and a class for continuing students. The continuing class will meet each Tuesday at 6:00 p.m. Beginners class will meet each Tuesday at 7:15 p.m. The classes will meet at the Elm Street Gym for six weeks through October 14. Fee for the beginners class is $18.00. Fee for the continuing class is $16. Anyone interested is to meet at the Elm Street Gym at the appropriate time on Tuesday.
For further information call the Recreation Department, 752-4137, Extension 220.

A letter from the Department of Transportation turned down a request by the town to consider installing a traffic light at the intersection of U. S. 258 and Anderson Avenue. The decision was based on a traffic and accident study done in April which was said to show that the light is not needed there.

Four members of the Home and Lawn Garden Club, Mrs. Charles Carr, Mrs. Robert Pierce, Mrs. Bert Warren, and Mrs. Moses Moye, appeared asking permission to paint as many Farmville fire hydrants as possible in Revolutionary War soldier motif as possible to aid in the town's Bicentennial celebration. The Commissioners agreed, and Water and Light Director J.A. Wooten said he would begin immediately to have whichever hydrants the ladies choose flushed and given a base coat of paint, if need be.

Elijah Harris, local pool room operator, appeared asking that the Commissioners amend an ordinance which requires pool rooms to close at 11 p. m. on Saturdays and midnight on weeknights. He asked that the Saturday hours be extended till midnight. The Commissioners complied.

Tom Ryon, representing the A. C. Monk Tobacco Company, asked that the town go on record as agreeing to remove asphalt from around some railroad tracks next to the Monk's old plant on Horne Avenue, which is in the process of being advertised for sale. The Commissioners agreed.

They asked Town Attorney Jack Lewis to draft a resolution voicing their approval of a plan to make Highway 264 the main route east and west from the Piedmont to the coast.

It was reported that Ben Lang's condemned house on Belcher Street has been demolished.

Brand Astrology Pure Nonsense

NEW YORK (AP)—A group of 186 prominent scientists has blasted the "pretentious claims of astrological charlatans," saying there is no scientific basis for widespread belief that the stars foretell events and influence people's lives.

Eighteen Nobel Prize winners and the others said they were prompted to sign the disclaimer because of the continued acceptance of astrology.

"We are especially disturbed by the continued uncritical dissemination of astrological charts, forecasts and horoscopes by the media and by otherwise reputable newspapers, magazine and book publishers," says the statement in a special issue of the Humanists magazine.

"This can only contribute to the growth of irrationalism and obscurantism. We believe the time has come to challenge directly and forcefully, the pretentious claims of astrological charlatans."

The statement was originally drafted by Bart J. Bok, former president of the American Astronomical Society and professor emeritus at the University of Arizona.

"It is deplorable that so many newspapers now print this daily nonsense," Bok wrote in a separate article. "At the start, the regular reading is sort of a fun game, but it often ends up as a mighty serious business. The steady and ready availability of astrological predictions can over many years have insidious influence on a person's personal judgment." But a professional astrologer, R. Donald Papon, dismissed the criticism saying, "This debate has been going on for centuries."

"You can always get a number of scientists to sign a proclamation like this," said Papon, director of the Academy of Mystic Arts in New York. "But there are 50 million Americans very much involved in astrology 1,250 out of 1,500 daily newspapers carry an astrology column, and six universities, including the New School, have had academic courses in astrology."

Papon said he has taught a course in astrology at the New School for Social Research in

New York. The course was given for credit, he said.

"Both astrology and astronomy use the same fundamental data," he said, and to criticize astrology "is no way to prove the invalidity of astrology."

Bok wrote that people believe in astrology because "in these uncertain times many long for the comfort of having guidance in making decisions. They would like to believe in a destiny predetermined by astral forces beyond their control. However, we must all face the world and we must realize that our futures lie in ourselves and not in the stars."

Excavating Great Greek Sanctuary

By KERIN HOPE
 ATHENS (UPI) — Archaeologists from California have embarked on one of the largest excavations in Greece to unearth the sanctuary of Zeus at Nemea, where athletes once competed at festivals that rivaled the ancient Olympic games.

Prof. Stephen Miller of the University of California at Berkeley, with half a dozen student assistants, is directing a team of Greek workers who are gradually uncovering a 30-acre site, including a temple to Zeus and an entire stadium.

"Nemea is the last of the great panhellenic festival sites to be fully excavated," Miller said. "Olympia, Delphi and Isthmia, near Corinth, have all been dug."

Miller said the excavation is not expected to produce any spectacular finds.

"The games were moved to Argos in the mid 3rd Century B.C., and we think much of the sculpture and other treasures disappeared at that time. We don't expect to find the glories of Olympia," he said.

"The artifacts we've been finding are important, not in themselves but for documenting history."

The long narrow valley of Nemea, known nowadays for its vineyards, lies at a crossroads of the northern Peloponnese.

"We think the valley was a kind of international no-man's-land in antiquity, which may partly explain why the games were established there," Miller said.

Three limestone columns, spanned by blocks of entablature, are all that remain standing of the temple to Zeus. Earlier excavators uncovered a hotel building and baths, and located the stadium, but "digging Nemea was such an undertaking that everybody was defeated by it," Miller said.

"The valley already was inhabited in the early Neolithic period (about 5000 B.C.) and the quality of the artifacts from the prehistoric settlement suggests Nemea was important by the 13th Century B.C., as the mythological associations imply."

According to Greek mythology the games were founded in memory of King Lycourgos' son. The baby, Ophletes, was bitten by a serpent when his nurse laid him in a bed of celery, the story went.

In historical times, judges at the Nemean games wore mourning and the victors were crowned with garlands of wild celery, Miller said.

Clearing the horseshoe shaped stadium, partly built into a hillside, will take years of work, he said. Digging through 20 feet of earth in some places, the excavators last year revealed seats for spectators at the contests, roughly hewn out of natural rock.

"Our most exciting discovery this year was a system of piping water into the stadium," Miller said.

"A series of interlocking terracotta pipes carried water from a spring farther up the hill into an arrangement of stone channels and settling basins to provide drinking water for spectators."

The Nemean games were held every two years, a part of the circuit of four ancient athletic festivals.

"The quarrelsome states of ancient Greece would declare a month's truce, and send athletes to compete in horse and chariot races and track and field events," he said.

"From this simple truce grew the theory of panhellenism, an ideal of perpetual truce in Greece, where the individual states would band together against common enemies like the Persians. But the idea was perverted by political leaders who used the festivals to further their own interests."

This season the Berkeley team has uncovered three 4th Century B.C. buildings and a kiln used for making tiles for the temple of Zeus and six other buildings.

"There seems to have been considerable construction activity in the 4th Century. We can't prove it, but our theory is that perhaps the games had got a little rundown by then, and some money for improvements was pumped in by the Macedonians and from Northern Greece for political reasons," Miller said.

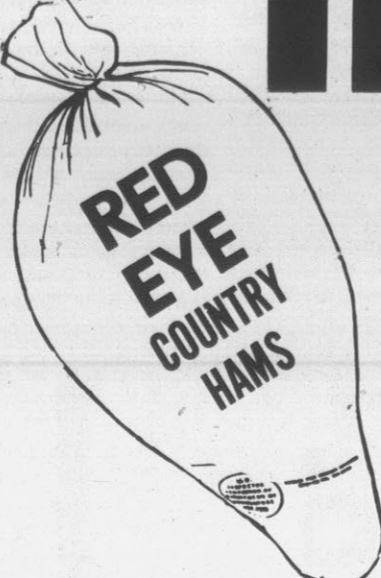

"We have found a considerable number of good quality silver coins on the site, about 20 per cent of them Macedonian. Many of them were minted under Alexander the Great or his father, Philip II of Macedon."

Ancient historians record that the leagues of Corinth, a political alliance founded and promoted by Philip, used to meet at the Nemean festival.

A museum already is under construction at the site, and once the excavation is finished the archaeologists will landscape and replant the area, turning it into an archaeological park.

"After all," Miller said, "we are only the custodians of the antiquities we excavate, and we're obliged to take care of them."

Gary Stewart's Success Doesn't Mean Happiness

SINGER GARY STEWART likes himself less after his top country recordings than when he was playing with a band in his hometown. (AP Wirephoto)

By MATT YANCEY
 Associated Press Writer
 NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—
 Two years ago Gary Stewart was making $90 a week playing with a country-rock band at a old rundown hotel in his hometown.

Now he makes more than $50,000 a year performing at top country music clubs and appearing with Charlie Pride at auditoriums and fairs.

"My bank account has become one of my most prized possessions, and that's not me," he said, plopping down on a couch in the office of one of the executives of his record company.

"I hate myself is what it is," he said. "Being in this business has turned me into a fellow that I don't like."

Asked what it is he doesn't like about himself, he slumps his shoulders, looks up with a touch of pathos and quietly says, "Everything I do."

Stewart has had four top records in the past year, beginning with his first RCA release called "Drinkin' Thing." All of them are the honky-tonking, drinking and cheating type songs that have long been a staple of hard-core country fans.

The second hit was called "Out of Hand" and the third was "She's Acting Single and I'm Drinking Doubles." His fourth, "You're Not the Woman You Used to Be," was recorded for another label six years ago and is now rising on the charts.

That's why he was back in Nashville last week.

"I've got to record while I'm sick and get one out or the other company is going to put one out on me," he said. "They're a bunch of things I did a few years ago and they're no good."

Stewart first came here 12 years ago. He hung around for about 2½ years, wrote a few songs and then went back to Ft. Pierce, Fla., because he was homesick. His recent success has even spoiled his hometown for him.

When he's there, which is about half the time, he locks himself up in his house with his family. He complains that he can't go to the store without someone running up to him.

"It seems like I've lost my friends because I'm gone so much," he said. "I've got a 'deal' now and don't run in the same circles they do anymore."

"One came over that I hadn't seen in a long time and the first thing he said was, 'I haven't seen you since you've become a star.'"

"So, I don't feel like one of the boys no more. They all look at me like I'm something else and it makes me feel like a freak in a carnival show."

He pauses for a while and a slight smile appears on his face.

"Man, I had some great times playing at the hotel," he said. "It was a scroungy place. The curtains on the wall were torn, but there were lots of good people and things were really happening there."

"I was making $90 a week with a group called The Phoenix, and making house payments and buying groceries on it. We could have made more by cutting the band down to four, but it was such a big family type thing — like who was going to buy the wine tonight."

"Hell, none of us had the extra money, but one of us always ended up buying five or six jugs of jug wine, putting it up on the bandstand and getting drunk."

Stewart admits he's the classic example of someone who may have found his fortune too fast and too soon.

"I keep trying to analyze myself and find out why," he said. "It's just like watermelon. I love it, but I ate too much of it one day and now I can't eat it no more."

In a recording studio, Stewart's personality changes there, he is away from the interviews, the color-coordinated suits and the business dealings that he says make him feel like he's selling out for a dollar.

Recording a bluesy-country song he wrote called "I'm an Act Natural-Born Good-Timin' Man," he smiles more while running in and out of the studio to listen to playbacks.

There's more of a sense of purpose in the studio. He asks for advice from his backup group, the Jordanaires, and listens carefully when a studio musician explains how he might hit a lick on the guitar.

"I love music and I really get off on people liking my music," he said. "I was really making better music before I had all these records. I'm really rusty on my guitar because I'm doing the same songs over and over with different bands at different clubs every night."

"I just want to sing," he said. "But, I can't hack doing all the other things that you're supposed to like if you're going to be a country singer. Maybe, I want to be the boy in the back row again."

Bolivian Export Trade Crippled

LA PAZ (UPI) — The recession of the industrialized nations has plunged Bolivia, a landlocked nation that lives by the export of minerals taken from its Andes mountains, into an extreme crisis.

The mining minister, Col. Jose Angonia Zelaya, said recently that 1975 mining exports have suffered a 30 per cent decline. Instead of the $300 million earned in 1974 by the export of tin, copper, lead and other minerals, Bolivia is likely to earn only $200 million this year, the same sum as in 1973, the minister said.

Since 1973, the costs of extracting minerals have tripled, he said.

DUTCH DEBT

THE HAGUE (UPI) — The Ministry of Finance announced the national debt of the Netherlands rose by 2,522 million guilders ($1,009 million) to 41,314 million guilders ($16,526 million) in 1974.

French Army Capt. Alfred Dreyfus was found guilty of treason in 1894 and sent to Devil's Island. He was acquitted in 1906.

Moonbase Alpha Next Careers 'Required' New Names

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Okay, Trekkies, the relief crew for the Enterprise is checking in, but they're on Moonbase Alpha now and you'll have to study the TV listings to learn if you'll see them in your area.

For civilians, this means a new British-made science fiction series called "Space: 1999" is afoot. Its makers hope it'll capture the rapture viewers have shown for the old "Star Trek" series.

Judging from a look at the first episode of "Space: 1999," this syndicated hour-long series may be a winner, if only for its outstanding outer-space special effects. They are fantastic.

The show stars "Mission Impossible" veterans Martin Landau and Barbara Bain as the commander and chief medical officer, respectively, of an internationally manned space station on the moon.

Barry Morse, best known as the detective who chased the fugitive on "The Fugitive," also is a regular, playing a scientist who helps run the moon base and supply grim looks.

The cause of griminess in the opening show is a mysterious sickness causing horrible deaths to anyone working near or flying over a section of Moonbase Alpha's nuclear waste system.

No, it isn't radiation sickness. We won't reveal what it is, but it is jeopardizing a planned rocket launch from the moon, or what Landau modestly calls "the spaceflight of the century."

The nuclear waste has been shipped up from planet earth — let's hear a big boo, now, for the earth — and you know that sooner or later it's going to blow and cause no end of trouble.

Woe time starts when one waste disposal area, unused since 1994 and presumed dormant, shows a dramatic rise in heat levels.

"It's incomprehensible," Landau says. "Heat without atomic energy."

Yep, the thing goes boom. But it's a burp compared to the blow building up in an active nuclear waste area, which has 140 times the amount of hot trash than area one.

Amid many serious words and superb special effects shots of space shuttles at work and in distress, area two blows, despite frantic efforts to keep the explosion down to poof size.

In what seems an outer-space answer to the big moment in "Earthquake," right down to the basso rumbles, the moon and Moonbase Alpha with it are blown out of earth orbit to Somewhere Out There.

Landau and some of the 310 other staffers at the base are seen grimacing mightily as strong G-forces crush them flat on the floor.

Alas, the dramatic effect is negated as the pilot of a shuttle craft, flying near the moon at blast time, says after hearing Landau's gasping voice on the radio: "Thank God, you're okay."

But no matter. It's fun to watch and if the dialogue improves, "Space: 1999" may have a profitable future in showing that all the universe is a stage.

It was rejected by the networks for various reasons, but its makers say it has begun or will start on 146 TV stations this month and the next. So check your local listings. You too, Capt. Kirk.

'Suspicious' As To Death

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Despite the 11th in a series of deaths related to respiratory failure, the Veteran's Administration Hospital here is moving toward resumption of normal admissions policies, a spokesman says.

The hospital said Robert L. Antil, 41, died Monday after suffering a series of three respiratory arrests, the last on Aug. 6.

Officials called Antil's case "extremely complex" and could not say immediately whether the arrests contributed to his death.

Nevertheless, the FBI, which is probing 10 previous deaths, added Antil's name to its list of deaths to be investigated.

Dr. S. Martin Lindenaier, the hospital's chief of staff, said there were "grave suspicions" attached to Antil's death. Other sources said Antil's death followed discovery of an unidentified blue liquid in his breathing equipment.

Sources said FBI agents believe many of the deaths may have been caused by a mentally deranged hospital employee who injected a paralyzing drug into intravenous feeding tubes.

More than 50 respiratory failures have been reported at the hospital since July 1, and doctors say it is unlikely the paralyzing drug, believed to be Pavulon, could have been administered accidentally.

By RUDY CERNKOVIC
United Press International
Quick now, who are Issur Danielovitch, Tullice Elice Finkle, Bernie Schwartz, Doris Kappelhoff and Aaron Chwatt?

They are, as many movie buffs know, Kirk Douglas, Cyd Charisse, Tony Curtis, Doris Day and Red Buttons.

It long has been a show business tradition to change the names of stars to add charisma, to say nothing of fitting them on theater marquees.

Frederick Austerlitz wouldn't be as light-footed if he hadn't manured his name to Fred Astaire. Archibald Leach doesn't conjure up the romantic appeal of Cary Grant. It would have sounded funny for Frederic Bickel to play Dr. Jekyll, but not so Fredric March.

A one-time show girl in the movies who became a favorite teacher in a television series might have done well as Eunice Quedens, but her chosen name of Eve Arden carried a dramatic lilt.

The star of "The Bridge Over the River Kwai" showed business acumen when he signed for a percentage of the movie's profits instead of a flat salary, but he might never have had a crack at the part if he hadn't changed his name from William Beedle to William Holden.

As Frances Gumm she would have faced some difficulties, but the golden voiced singer took the advice of wily old showman George Jessel, chose the name Judy Garland and became a legend.

Sarah Jane Fuls became Jane Wyman, Zelma Hedrick was a talented soprano who won acclaim as Kathryn Grayson, Arthur Gelien became Tab Hunter.

Leonard Slye scarcely connotes a hard-riding cowboy remembered by two generations of kids as Roy Rogers.

Reginald Truscott-Jones sounds like a member of the British peerage, but as Ray Milland won an Academy Award winner for his performance in "Lost Weekend".

In Filly, Neb., a handsome boy won the hearts of the girls in high school. But when Spangler Arlington Brugh came to Hollywood he became known as Robert Taylor.

Could William Henry Pratt have sent shivers through a movie audience? As Boris Karloff he did. Joe Yule Jr., could recall a season of joy, but he won year-round audiences as Mickey Rooney.

Latin names have charm, but in some instances show business deemed otherwise. Dino Crecetti is billed as Dean Martin, Margarita Cansino became Rita Hayworth, Margarita Italiano is Ann Bancroft.

Anthony Benedetto sang the praises of San Francisco as Tony Bennett, Johnny Desmond started out as Giovanni de Simone and Lolita Dolores Martinez is Dolores Del Rio.

No bad guys would tremble at the mention of Marion Morrison, not unless they knew he became John Wayne.

Not all the stars who changed their names started out with clinkers. What is wrong with Harriette Lake? You'll have to ask Ann Southern.

Ruby Stevens became Barbara Stanwyck, Peggy Middleton thought Yvonne De Carlo carried more mystique, Roy Fitzgerald prefers Rock Hudson, Norma Jean Baker chose Marilyn Monroe.

Boxers took cues from show business. Possibly Arnold Cream wouldn't scare any fighter, but as Jersey Joe Walcott he kayoted Ezzard Charles to the heavyweight title. Joe Louis Barrow dropped the surname. And it was as Cassius Clay that Muhammad Ali won his first heavyweight championship. William Harrison Dempsey traded in his first two names to be known as Jack.

Japanese Are Cooling To Hare Krishna Mission

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Authorities here are quietly cracking down on a group of young foreigners bent on bringing an Asian religion to some reluctant Asians, the Japanese.

After five years in Japan, the saffron-robed members of the Hare Krishna movement admit the Japanese are a hard lot to win over, having converted only five persons among the country's 110 million people.

In their frustration, some Krishna devotees may have acted rashly, said John Williams, 25, of San Francisco, who also is known by his religious name of Karnamritas Das.

"But our intentions are good," he added.

In the past month, five American devotees have been arrested — one youth twice — on charges ranging from assault to intimidation. The incidents have received wide press coverage in Japan and the National Police Agency says it's run out of patience.

One incident involved a 70-year-old woman who was struck in the face by a Krishna missionary she criticized for forcefully selling religious literature to passersby — a major complaint against the group, police said.

Williams, who currently runs the Krishna mission in Tokyo, said the charges are "fringe" or stem from misunderstandings. None of the American devotees speaks Japanese.

He blames racism on the part of the Japanese for some of the troubles.

A National Police Agency spokesman said authorities received numerous complaints about how the Krishna mission operates and decided to take action.

The spokesman said the crackdown is being carried out quietly — no deportations, just the denial of extensions or renewals of visas for the Hare Krishna missionaries. Most are on tourist visas and technically shouldn't be engaged in missionary activities, he added.

Authorities have identified 17 American Krishna members, ranging in age from 19 to 30, and all will have to leave the country once their present visas expire, he said.

Those arrested recently, who arrived in Japan on tourist visas, were allowed to return home to the United States with the charges against them dropped, the spokesman said.

Williams and a half-dozen other American and Canadian devotees live in a spacious, but rundown house in an affluent central Tokyo neighborhood.

One devotee said the mission is supported from funds raised in the United States through the sale of incense and soap, but other members of the mission were reluctant to discuss its finances. Japanese authorities claim the pamphlet sales pay for living expenses.

Only five Japanese have joined as full-fledged devotees, although as many as 20 show up for the mission's Sunday feasts, Williams said.

It is imperative to stay alert when playing a contract. You never know when an unfortunate distribution will wreck a seemingly impregnable contract. Consider this hand from a recent team match.

Despite the fact that he has 11 HCP and his partner opened the bidding, we are not in favor of West's penalty double of four spades, even though it played no part in the final outcome. It is our experience that when a vulnerable opponent jumps to game over an opening bid, he generally expects to make it, and West's hand contains no surprise for declarer. Indeed, his two diamond honors might be duplicating defensive values in his partner's hand.

At both tables, West led the king of diamonds and continued with the queen. At one table, declarer ruffed, crossed to the ace of clubs and took the spade finesse. West won the king and shifted to a heart. East grabbed the ace and returned another diamond, and declarer's goose was cooked. If he ruffed low, West would overruff; if he ruffed with an honor, West's ten of spades would become the setting trick.

At the other table, when West continued with the queen of diamonds and East followed low, declarer discarded his heart loser! Now the contract could not be defeated. West had no way to reach partner's hand for another diamond lead, and declarer lost only two diamond tricks and the king of trumps.

Someone suggested at the table that East could have defeated the hand had he overtaken the queen of diamonds with the ace at trick two. However, declarer can still make the contract, and perhaps, in view of the double, he would have.

Declarer must ruff low, cross to the ace of clubs and lead the ten of diamonds. If East does not cover, declarer discards his heart loser, and the defenders can come to no more than three tricks. If East puts up the jack, declarer must ruff with the ace of spades, cash the king of clubs and enter dummy by ruffing the queen. Now he discards a heart on the nine of diamonds, limiting the defenders to two trump tricks and one diamond.

Auxiliary's Work Talked

Plans for a flag presentation were discussed at the meeting of the Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars held Thursday at the Post Home.

A flag and a book on the flag will be presented to a classroom at Elmhurst Elementary School.

President Carrie West displayed a book "The American Flag," presented in her honor as past state chaplain in memory of Thomas Miller, a past state commander, to be presented to a school library of her choice. This was a gift from Mrs. Belle Boles, state chaplain.

It was announced that a check for $100 was sent to the Veterans Hospital, Fayetteville, to be used for Christmas gifts for the hospitalized veterans. Four thousand and five hundred Bubby Poppies have been ordered to be sold Oct. 19 with proceeds from the sales to go to disabled veterans.

Mrs. Rosa Lee Williams, cancer chairman, reported the 200 per cent requested for the VFW aid and research has been realized. Mrs. Margaret Brown, yearbook chairman, distributed yearbooks.

Tickets were distributed for the annual barbecue dinner sponsored by the VFW and Auxiliary for Saturday, Sept. 6. Serving will take place at the Winterville Fire Department and the VFW Post Home on Mumford Rd., Greenville, beginning at 11 a.m. Plates will be sold at $2.00 each and proceeds will be used for the building fund.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Rubie Upton and Mrs. Margie Squires.

Youth Is Again Facing Charge

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—An 18-year-old youth against whom manslaughter charges were dropped two years ago because he was ruled mentally incompetent has been charged with raping a 7-year-old girl.

Court officials said the young man, Stevie Barnette, would be represented by a public defender.

City police said they arrested him after the girl was assaulted behind a West Gastonia hardware store.

In 1973, Barnette was charged with manslaughter in the shooting of a man who was fighting with Barnette's stepfather.

According to the Missouri Conservation Commission, rabbits often die of ulcers.

August Food Prices Largely Expected

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Americans who have been paying attention to food price predictions found few surprises at the grocery store during August. An Associated Press marketbasket survey showed higher costs for basics like butter and eggs and a new surge in sugar prices.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. The latest check was made just before the Labor Day weekend, but there were few signs of holiday bargains.

The increases had been anticipated: sugar refiners have been slowly upping their prices; dairy products are on the rise as supplies decline; poultry farmers had been arguing that they were losing money because egg prices were too low.

The trends generally reflect prices at the farm level. The Crop Reporting Board of the U.S. Department of Agriculture said that prices paid to farmers for wheat, milk, hogs, corn and eggs, for example, increased during June and July, while prices for beef cattle decreased.

On an over-all basis, the AP survey showed the marketbasket total went up during August at the checklist store in 10 of the 13 cities covered, with an average increase of almost 3 per cent. In the remaining three cities, the marketbasket bill at the checklist store declined by an average of just under 1 per cent.

Comparing prices at the beginning of September with those at the start of the year, the AP found the marketbasket total at the checklist store declined in 10 cities and increased in three.

More Women Freshmen Than Men At UNC-CH

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—Despite a long tradition of male dominance in enrollment, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has more women than men in this year's entering class.

The trend toward increasing enrollment of women is also apparent at North Carolina State University, but not to as great an extent.

Dr. Tom Stafford, director of student affairs research at State, said this year's freshman class of about 3,000 is expected to include 868 women. This would be about 29 per cent as compared with a little over 27 per cent last year.

Smoke Filled A Jumbo Jet

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Officials are trying to determine why an Eastern Airlines jumbo jet filled with smoke and depressurized 17,000 feet above central Florida, forcing an emergency landing and sending 28 passengers to a hospital.
