

Number Of Jobholders Increasing August Unemployment Rate Unchanged

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 8.4 per cent unemployment rate held steady in August accompanied by an increase in the number of Americans with jobs, the government said today.

The Labor Department said many factories recalled workers laid off during the depths of the recession, and that total employment rose for the fifth straight month.

But the department also said wholesale prices rose .8 per cent — a 4 per cent drop from their increase in July but still a historically large jump.

August figures showed an increase in employment of 275,000, meaning that 85.4 million Americans held jobs. Along with employment, the size of the labor force increased in August to 93.1 million, up by 230,000 following a rise of more than 500,000 in July.

The increase in employment occurred mostly among adult men, household heads and blue-collar workers, segments of the labor force hardest hit by the recession.

Since reaching a recession low of $3.8 million last March, employment has risen by 1.5 million, the department said.

The encouraging news in the job picture was somewhat offset by another sharp increase in wholesale prices last month.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said wholesale prices rose .8 per cent, a slower pace than the July increase of 1.2 per cent, but still high by historical standards.

The continuing surge in prices at both the wholesale and retail levels over the last two months has renewed fears of resurging inflation. However, administration economists insist that while the next few months will continue to bring high prices, the inflation rate will soon moderate.

The number of Americans without jobs in August numbered 7.8 million, unchanged from July but down 410,000 from the peak level reached in the second quarter.

Both the jobless rate and the actual number of unemployed were unchanged from July, a surprise to administration economists who were expecting a slight increase in unemployment.

Government analysts said the jobless rate would have declined last month had the drop in joblessness of adult men not been offset by an increase in teen-age unemployment.

Mobile Homes In Residential Area Given Council OK

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council wasted little time in disposing of a 27-item agenda Thursday night that included few controversial items but several important matters involving rezoning.

Acting on business in efficient fashion, the Council handled the lengthy agenda in just two hours.

The Council, after holding a public hearing during which no one from the audience voiced objections, voted to rezone a 38-acre tract in West Meadowbrook from R-6 (residential) to R6-MH to permit mobile home usage in the residential area.

The matter was considered by the Planning and Zoning Commission in July and the planning board recommended at that time that the request initiated by the Inspections Department, be denied.

The Council, however, felt that the planning board did not fully understand the request and agreed last month to set the matter for a public hearing for last night's session.

The tract is bounded on the east by Seaboard Coast Line Railroad, on the west by U.S. Highway 13, on the south by the existing Flood Plain zone line, and on the north by Dudley Street.

The area rezoned for residential-mobile home does not include any of the section in West Meadowbrook designated as Flood Plain, it was emphasized.

The Council also held a public hearing on a request by J. B. Kittrell for rezoning some 1.18 acres on the west side of Clark Street from R-6 to Unoffensive Industry and voted to approve the request after no objections were heard.

Councilman John Howard said that the section was probably inadvertently zoned for residential usage back in 1969 when the zones were designated. No residential development is located in the area, it was noted.

Public hearings were scheduled for the Oct. 9 meeting on four rezoning requests. They include: request by Hackett-Tripp Realty for rezoning from R-6 to Highway Commercial of property located at 2717 and 2721 Memorial Drive; request by Hoke Contracting Co. for rezoning from Flood Plain to Unoffensive Industry of approximately one acre at the northwest corner of Memorial Drive and Langley Drive;

Request by the Redevelopment Commission for rezoning of the Central Business District to conform to the proposed land use in the CBD Urban Renewal Plan (from Office and Institutional and Downtown Commercial Fringe to R-6, O & I and CDF); and a Request by Ed Tipton for rezoning from R-6 to Office and Institutional of approximately 3.6 acres on the west side of Tar Road, across from Pinewood Forest Subdivision.

The Planning and Zoning Commission, meeting in August, recommended approval of the Hackett-Tripp, Redevelopment Commission and Tipton requests but recommended that the Hoke Contracting rezoning proposal be denied.

A resolution was adopted confirming the assessment roll and levying assessments on street improvements in Pinewood Forest Subdivision. The assessments involved: Pinewood Road from Evans Street extended to Lamont Road, 1,663 feet, $4,574; Lamont Road from Pinewood to Dupont Circle, 1,024 feet, $2,816; and Dupont Circle from Pinewood Road to Lamont Road, 1,864 feet, $5,126.

Ford Points To Required Investments By Industry

By HOWARD BENEDICT Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — President Ford today declared the American economy is "on the straightaway and beginning to climb," but to maintain the momentum he said U.S. industry must invest $4 trillion to create 11 million new jobs by 1980.

To help industry raise this enormous sum, the President urged Congress to adopt his policies to provide tax incentives and drastically reduce federal business regulations.

"They will give United States business and industry some of the incentive our economic expansion requires. They will give job-seekers a paycheck instead of a raincheck," Ford said in remarks prepared for a meeting of California business leaders.

The speech began another busy presidential day as Ford winds up a two-day official and political journey to the West Coast.

Ford also arranged today to discuss offshore oil drilling and energy problems with California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and to address a joint session of the California legislature.

He returns to Washington tonight.

On Thursday, Ford, with a seemingly inexhaustible supply of energy, made six speaking appearances in Seattle and Portland, Ore., three of them Republican fund-raising affairs. His efforts added about $325,000 to the party's treasury during the day.

In his speech to the California businessmen, Ford said, "One of the prime goals of my administration is to get America out of neutral and moving ahead in a pattern of sustained

"If we are to meet the employment requirements of our expanding population, by the year 1980 we must create over 11 million new jobs. Estimates have placed America's total investment requirement in the coming years at the astonishing figure of $4 trillion. Even the figure is imposing. It's four — followed by 12 zeros!"

Cox Is Out

Noticeably missing from the candidates' ranks is Percy Cox, who has served on the Council for 12 consecutive years.

Contacted just after the filing deadline, Cox said, "I felt that 12 years on the Council is long enough."

"I contemplated long and hard about running for Mayor, but felt I just could not run against Mayor West, a long-time friend with whom I've worked for so long. I took a good look at the candidates and felt we could come up with a very effective Council, so I'm not worried about the welfare of our City. I'm going to miss it, though."

JOHN TAYLOR, a former City Councilman, filed late this morning for one of the six seats on the city governing board. Taylor served a two-year term on the Council from 1971-73 and was defeated in his 1973 reelection bid. Taylor is a Greenville native.

Hadden Files Today

The Rev. William J. Hadden Jr. filed this morning as a candidate for the Greenville City Council.

REV. W.J. HADDEN JR.

He is Episcopal campus chaplain at East Carolina University. A resident of Greenville for 16 years, he was the first chairman of the Greenville Good Neighbor Council, chairman of the Greenville Citizens Advisory Committee for two years, and a member of the Board of Directors of the REAL Crisis Intervention Center, the Pitt County Mental Health Association, and the Family Life Commission of North Carolina. He is a past president of the Greenville Ministerial Association.

He and his wife, the former Margaret Shumate of Martinsville, Va., have three sons and a daughter. He got his B.A. degree at Lynchburg College, his B.D. from Vanderbilt University, an M.A. from Austin Peay State University, and did special study at Edinburgh University in Edinburgh, Scotland.

"I would like to serve on the Greenville City Council to try to help make a great city an even better one," he said.

Greenville's Candidates

The complete slate of council and mayoral candidates who filed for election prior to the 12 noon deadline today are:

- Mayor S. Eugene West (incumbent) Willis J. Stancill City Council Dr. Frank Fuller (incumbent) Joe Taft Jr. (incumbent) Mildred T. McGrath (incumbent) John Howard (incumbent) Clarence Gray (incumbent) Thomas M. Anthony Ada Jones Ed Stallings Donovan Phillips Dr. James Hix Jr. Rev. William J. Hadden Jr. John Taylor

For Mayor

Greenville native Willis J. Stancill filed this morning for the office of mayor in the Oct. 7 municipal elections.

Stancill is an East Carolina University graduate and operator of Stancill Investment Services here.

The candidate just beat the filing deadline as he entered his name on the books shortly before noon at the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Unanimous

Congressman Walter B. Jones, chairman of the House Tobacco Subcommittee, announced today that the full agriculture committee voted unanimous approval of H.R. 9000. "This is the bill," Jones said, "which will change the formula under which the Secretary of Agriculture computes the support price for tobacco by changing from the preceding three calendar years to the preceding marketing years."

The chairman further stated that had this bill be in effect this year, the support price would have been 99.9 cents per pound rather than the prevailing 92.5 cents.

The bill will still have to be approved by the full House and the Senate.

James Hix Files As Council Candidate

An associate professor in the Department of Chemistry at a University filed this morning as a candidate for the Greenville City Council.

Atlanta native James (Jim) E. Hix, Jr., in his early thirties, has been a resident of Greenville since 1968 when he moved here to join the ECU faculty.

A specialist in Coordination Chemistry and computerization of chemical instrumentation, Hix grew up in Owensboro, Ky. and attended Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. where he received a BA degree in 1963 and a Ph.D. in Chemistry in 1967. He has published a number of articles in professional journals.

Cites Basis For Higher Education Unionization

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

Lloyd W. Benjamin, head of the Faculty Senate at East Carolina University suggested yesterday that it is only a matter of time before "unionization becomes a reality in higher education in North Carolina," unless inequities in pay — both in relation to schools within the state and in comparison with other states — are remedied.

Benjamin's comments were made after ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, speaking at an assembly of faculty members Wednesday, told the gathering "salaries have improved... but we are still too low on the totem pole as compared to our counterparts on some other campuses."

Jenkins, as he has done in the past, pledged to "continue... to fight for appropriate standardization of salaries throughout the university (of North Carolina) system. Put more simply," he said, "people within the same discipline with similar training, experience and responsibility should have comparable salaries."

Benjamin said "other faculty members at East Carolina with whom I have talked expressed unanimous concern... over the salary situation.

He explained that the Faculty Assembly of the University of North Carolina passed a resolution prior to the meeting of the 1975 General Assembly, requesting a 15 per cent pay hike, including a 12 per cent across the board boost in pay and a three per cent merit raise for the 1975-76 fiscal year. The assembly requested an 11 per cent hike, including eight per cent across the board and a three per cent merit increase for the 1976-77 period.

The state Advisory Budget Commission. Benjamin explained, recommended only a five per cent increase across the board with no merit boost for the two-year period. But raises at ECU this year "are less than one per cent."

"In the most recent bulletin of the American Association of University Professors, a comparison of salaries of university faculty from throughout the United States indicates a worsening economic condition for professors in general," Benjamin noted, "and an exceedingly poor situation in North Carolina."

Benjamin said too, "a comparison of salaries of the different faculties of the University of North Carolina system also shows unequal salary compensation.

"Chancellor Jenkins has on many occasions stated that he is committed to the proposition that faculty with equal training and similar teaching loads deserve equal pay.

"Inequities, however, continue both on the state and local levels.

"In simple terms," according to Benjamin, "the faculty at East Carolina has seen its purchasing power diminish over 15 per cent in the past two years, due to the increased cost of living.

Saying "the effects of this are many," Benjamin explained that "it affects the attitude of the faculty in the classrooms; it means a loss of gifted and productive faculty to better paying institutions; and it has a discernible economic impact on the local community."

He emphasized, "If the faculty... continue to be treated in this manner, it is only a short time before unionization becomes a reality in higher education in North Carolina.

"I don't feel the Legislature has treated higher education properly in this state."

Widespread Interest In Plan For Regional Primary Voting

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A survey of Southern legislative leaders shows widespread interest in a regional presidential primary to force White House contenders to court Dixie.

Interviews by Associated Press reporters in 10 states showed interest in the idea in most, strong support in some and an apparent rejection only in Virginia.

Legislative leaders from 14 states have been invited to Atlanta next Wednesday and Thursday to discuss the idea.

The organizer of the meeting, Georgia House Speaker Tom Murphy, says he doubts there is time to arrange more than a three or four state regional primary for 1976.

But he says the groundwork can be laid for an 8, 9 or 10-state primary in 1980.

Leaders in Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, Kentucky, North Carolina and Mississippi expressed support for the concept or a willingness to discuss it further.

Officials in Florida, which holds an important early primary, had no strong feelings and reservations were expressed by leading politicians in Virginia, South Carolina and Louisiana.

Legislatures set the primary date in many states and several leaders expressed doubts their dates could be changed in time for 1976.

The best bet for a regional primary involves Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia.

Alabama's primary is set for May 4. Wallace says he favors sectional primaries, but doubts the legislature could act quickly enough to change that date, said press secretary Billy Joe Camp.

Tennessee's primary is set for May 6. The chairman of the Senate Democratic Caucus, Sen. James Roberson, D-Nashville, commented, "I think a regional primary would be more meaningful than all these state primaries. We've got three or four states with primaries all within two or three days of each other and I think it would be more meaningful to get them together."

Georgia's primary date will be picked on Sept. 18 by a committee of state leaders and Busbee has been among the leaders of the regional primary idea.

"It's the only way to attract candidates and make them sell themselves to us," Busbee said. "They would know that the South exists and come down to politick in the South."

The most negative response to the idea came from Virginia House Speaker John Warren Cooke who said he takes "a rather dim view of it" and said it would be "another unnecessary part of the election process."

Louisiana Lt. Gov. James Fitzmorris said the legislature's defeat of a primary bill in the last session appears to kill any chance of his state taking part in a regional primary. "I haven't seen any interest generated on it and I don't see how Louisiana can participate," he said.

The speaker of the South Carolina House, Rex L. Carter, could not be reached for comment but was reported unenthusiastic about the regional primary proposal.

A regional primary "probably makes more sense than individual state primaries," commented Sen. William Sullivan, D-Henderson, president pro tem of the Kentucky Senate.

But he said a primary for the entire South would be too broad. He proposed instead separate primaries for the Southeast, Southwest and Mid-South.

North Carolina Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt was described by an aide as "receptive" to the proposal.

And an influential state representative, Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, said he would like to see all southern states have the same primary date and common rules for who gets on the ballot.

"In theory it is a good concept," Stewart said. "The multiplicity of presidential primaries ... is causing real problems and becoming a financial drain on presidential candidates."

Mississippi has no primary now but would "be happy to cooperate with other Southern states" on a regional primary if its legislature decides to hold primary, said House Speaker John Junkin of Natchez. Florida's primary is scheduled for March 9, and Gov. Reubin Askew said he had no objection to a regional primary "if all the other states want to change to March 9."

'Someone With Intent'

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — In these bright and sterile halls dedicated to the preservation of life, death is often a visitor.

But that bitter realization does not placate the doctors at the Veterans Administration Hospital here where in the past two months, somehow, "someone with intent," opened the door to let death in.

That someone, as yet unknown, administered a powerful muscle relaxant to a number of patients, who fell into respiratory arrest as a result. The FBI is still investigating.

Only quick work by the VA hospital staff stopped the toll from being worse than it was. "As nearly as we can tell, there was only one death that appears to be related to respiratory arrest that was suspicious," says Dr. S. Martin Lindenauer, chief of staff.

Hospitals like the VA, which receive a high load of critically ill patients, are geared up to expect a higher than normal number of patients who stop breathing and must be resuscitated.

In fact, the hospital has averaged six respiratory arrests a month for the first six months of 1975.

But suddenly, in July and August, there was a rash of respiratory arrests.

"There were 15 cases that had no adequate explanation and were suspicious," Dr. Lindenauer says. "These were guys who stopped breathing for no apparent reason and were flaccid.

"It was exceedingly suspicious." The symptoms indicated that the muscle relaxant Pavulon was involved, even though there were no instructions to give these patients that drug. The fact that some of those patients recovered when given the antidotes for Pavulon—atropine and neostigmine—all but convinced doctors that Pavulon was the guilty agent.

But how? At first they thought that an error had been made, that somehow there might have been Pavulon contamination of some other medication. But those possibilities did not check out.

That's when they realized. "When there is no other explanation, then someone must be doing it, and that someone must be mentally damaged," Dr. Lindenauer says.

Doctors wonder what could possibly lead a person to deal out deadly doses of the drug in an apparently random fashion. And what motive would target patients of a VA hospital where many come because they cannot afford high quality care close to home?

The hospital has returned to its normal routine except for the presence of some 15 FBI agents reviewing records and interviewing staff.

The difficulty is that the drug could have been administered by anyone of average intelligence who had picked up some medical knowledge while working in the hospital. That leaves almost no one out, from the orderly or maintenance level up.

Threat Of All-Out Civil War In Northern Ireland Stirs Meeting

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Shaken by the threat of all-out civil war in Northern Ireland, Irish Protestant and Roman Catholic political leaders are near agreement on the formation of an emergency coalition government for the blood-soaked province, an informed source reported today.

Meeting for the past five months in Belfast's Stormont Castle, a 78-member constitutional convention has made little headway toward permanent arrangements for the sharing of power between Northern Ireland's Protestant majority and Roman Catholic minority.

But some other members of the Protestant faction thought he was trying to strengthen his position in the bargaining for allotment of cabinet posts in the government.

The constitutional convention expires in early November, after six months, unless the British government renews its life. Prime Minister Harold Wilson said when it was authorized that it was virtually the last chance for Northern Ireland to work out its own destiny.

In recent weeks, the killing in Northern Ireland has increased despite a cease-fire declared last February by the Irish Republican Army, the Catholic guerrilla movement fighting to reunify Ireland. Prior to their cease-fire, the IRA attacked British troops as well as Protestants, but lately the pattern has changed to largely sectarian action and counter-action, with tit-for-tat killing by Protestant and Catholic gunmen.

The confirmed death toll in the province for the six-year war exceeded 1,300 this week, including 11 killed this week. And once again the war is spilling over into Britain. There have been four bombings in and around London in the past week.

If the politicians agree on a coalition government, the IRA is not likely to oppose it. It will be threatened by Protestant diehards who believe that sharing of power with the Catholics is the prelude to British abandonment of Northern Ireland, its union with the Irish Republic and the end of Protestant power in the six Ulster counties.

Legal Advisor To City Police Dept. Is Sought

The city is currently accepting applications for the position of a full time attorney to serve as legal advisor to the Police Department.

City Manager Harry Hagerty said that the new position requires the services of an attorney who will devote his full time to the assistance and guidance of the Police Department in its legal functions.

According to Hagerty, applicants for the position, which is funded through a three-year depreciating-participation grant, must be a law school graduate and a member of the N.C. Bar Association.

In assisting the police in legal matters, the advisor will be involved in the preparation of court cases and in the presentation of evidence, in addition to legal situations involving appeals, warrants and other matters, it was explained.

The city manager said that the city has qualified for a grant from the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources, Division of Law and Order, under the Law Enforcement Assistance Act, providing for 90 per cent federal funding of the position for the first year. Five per cent shares will be funded by the state and the city during the first year.

The first-year grant totals $26,350 with $23,714 provided by the federal government and $1,318 contributed by the state and $1,318 by the city. Participation by the federal government depreciates each year, if the program is renewed by the city at the end of the first period, until the federal share is 25 per cent for the third year.

Hagerty said that the city has the option of dropping the trial program at the end of the first year and if the program is carried beyond the three-year period, the city would be responsible for total funding.

The grant applies to office rental, travel, library facilities, secretarial help and other expenses for the first year, he added.

Hagerty said that $20,000 has been budgeted for the salary and fringe benefits for the attorney and a secretary.

PUMP MOTOR REPAIRS—Workmen at the Trenton City Filtration Plant work on electric motors that were damaged when the plant was flooded Sunday, causing a citywide water shortage. The motors operate the high level pumps that send water into the system. # Couple Weds Sunday Afternoon FARMVILLE—Phyllis Annette Lewis and Samuel Bruce Blalock were united in marriage Sunday at 2:00 p.m. at the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Bruce Barrow officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Susan Beamon of Rt. 1, Farmville, organist, and Susan Parker of Rt. 1, Farmville, who sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "Wedding Prayer."

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Lewis of Farmville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white formal gown of dacron and polyester organza trimmed with cotton Venise lace fashioned with a high see-through neckline and double rows of ruffling which formed the short sleeves. The empire bodice featured covered buttons down the back and the lace detail was repeated on the A-line skirt and deep flounce which formed the hemline and flowed into a chapel length train.

Her Camelot cap of veil and pearls was attached to a lace of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations interspersed with gypsophila.

Parents of the bridegroom are the late Mrs. Reba B. Carraway and the late Mr. James G. Blalock.

The matron of honor was Darlene Starcher of Rockingham, cousin of the bride. Bridesmaids were Jenny and JoAnn Lewis, sisters-in-law of the bride, Jean Blalock, sister of the bridegroom, and Donna Lehmann, all of Farmville.

They wore gowns of rose chiffon over taffeta fashioned with a fitted empire bodice and portrait neckline with a bertha collar which formed capelet sleeves. They each carried a long-stemmed rose.

The flower girl was Dena Lewis, sister of the bride. She was dressed like the other attendants and carried a white basket of roses and gypsophila.

The brother of the bridegroom, Buddy Blalock, of Farmville was best man. Ushers were Jimmy, Phil, and Johnny Lewis, brothers of the bride, Wyatt Parker and Terry Blalock, brothers of the bridegroom, all of Farmville.

The church was decorated with an arched and two seven branch candelabra with lighted white cathedral tapers enhanced by standards of greenery.

The mother of the bride selected a pink street length polyester crepe dress with a pink lace jacket. She wore a white glamellia corsage. The grandmother of the bridegroom, Alice C. Parker, wore a dress of green polyester with a lace yoke and a corsage of white carnations.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Farmville.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and is attending ECU. She works part-time at J. C. Penney's. The bridegroom graduated from Farmville Central High School, attended Lenoir Community College and is now engaged in farming.

Mrs. Faye Lindsay of Kinston, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding.

Running Hotel For Uninvited Guests

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Help! I am suffering from acute and chronic "Houseguestitis."

Tomorrow morning I will place an ad in our local newspaper to sell my lovely guest-room furniture. It's only one year old, looks like new, but I have aged a lot since installing it.

I've had wave after wave of houseguests for the past seven weeks—albeit either uninvited or self-invited—and the end isn't in sight.

My nerves are shot, my cuticles are bleeding, my purse and gas tank are empty, my yard, house, children and pets are somewhat neglected, and I'm exhausted.

One more call from friends asking me to please pick them up at the airport (85 miles round trip) will send me to the funny farm.

Most of my friends in this area have the same problem. Our husbands escape to their offices and try to ignore the mess.

I wish that people could understand that a casual, "We'd like to see you if you visit in this area," is not an invitation to move in with us.

So, tomorrow, the furniture goes on sale and the hotel closes.

ALWAYS A HOSTESS, NEVER A GUEST

DEAR ALWAYS: Why give up your guest facilities? All you have to do is say, "I'm sorry, but we can't accommodate guests now," when unwanted guests invite themselves.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a polite way to tell people that you don't want their old hand-me-down clothes? I am three months pregnant, and no sooner did I announce it at the office when almost every old lady present volunteered to lend me her old maternity clothes!

Abby, some of those clothes are five and six years old! Also, don't they realize that maybe I would like the pleasure of selecting the styles and colors that look best on me? Please print this as I know there are other young pregnant girls who have been stuck in this situation.

NO HAND-ME-DOWNS

DEAR NO: All you need do is say, "No, thank you, when you're offered something you don't want. Some pregnant girls appreciate hand-me-downs."

DEAR ABBY: My problem is undoubtedly shared by many other senior citizens. I have arthritis in my hands, and many of my friends insist on shaking hands with me every time we meet. These thoughtless handshakers grab my hand and squeeze my poor aching fingers, which is very painful.

How can I avoid this painful experience? Maybe if you print this letter it will help.

SORE IN OKMULGEE, OKLA.

DEAR SORE: Here's your letter. In the meantime, before shaking hands, say, "Gently, please. I have arthritis."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Zarina held Sunday soirees. "Everybody came," she says. "Even my husband. Bringing his friends."

Zarina tried tapestry design. People and institutions bought her large tapestries. She tried sculpture. A pipe company put Zarina's waving forest of flexible metal in the middle of its exposition pavilion.

And Zarina never stopped making prints.

Some in a New Delhi gallery caught the eye of Joan P. Miller of Los Angeles. She was in India on a buying trip for her gallery. She demanded to meet the artist.

India Ink Gallery held Zarina shows in 1973 and 1974, her first in this country. It will hold another in October. This summer, galleries in New York City and San Francisco showed Zarina's newest work.

She calls it "white-on-white." Remote, ironic, it shows some symbols of some women's lives. A baby bottle. A spool of thread.

Indian Woman Chooses Role Of Career Artist

By LUISE PUTCAMP JR.

NEW YORK (AP) — Zarina is packing again. She stuffs papers into a striped, woven bag. "My filing cabinet," says the Indian artist wryly. Into her new Honda, Zarina will put this and a portfolio of prints and her print-making tools. And a few saris.

Then she'll head once more into strange country.

Zarina will be leaving behind a posh Manhattan apartment with many rooms, two house-boys and a view of the East River.

In Los Angeles, she'll live in one room on a modest street. (Nearby is India Ink Gallery, first to show Zarina's work in this country. She has friends there.)

The Manhattan pad is home for Zarina's husband, who is a career diplomat.

Zarina has no home, she says. She's a career artist. She has been an artist almost as long as she's been a wife. Her woodprints and silk screen prints have hung in India, Greece, Norway, Japan, Poland, West Germany — and here. Her art has won Zarina awards and brought her (some) money.

Zarina is a small, dark woman who likes French movies, often wears blue jeans and sometimes practices yoga. She can converse in five languages and cook in several.

Her problems are not exotic. Women and artists who aren't Indian will recognize many of them.

As a little girl in Aligarh, India, Zarina was determined "to be my own person, and to be an artist."

But the stern-visaged Moslem professor, her father, suffered her to study mathematics, instead. Then Zarina's marriage was arranged — to a boy she'd known most of her life.

"I thought marriage would be like one long date," mused Zarina, 17 years later. "I didn't realize it would mean always doing what the other person wanted, thinking what he thought, seeing people he wanted to see."

Zarina's Indian husband was "posted" to Bangkok. There, in 1958, she made her first print, from a laboriously carved linoleum block, under the dining room table.

Zarina's husband was sent next to Paris. There, in 1964, at the atelier of S.W. Hayter, printmakers' printmaker, she began learning — and unlearning.

And her husband's indulgences had turned to disapproval.

One day Zarina told her husband: "I'm leaving."

The darkly handsome diplomat was reasonable. "But how can you?" he said. "We're having a dinner party tonight!"

Zarina flew off to London. She wore a Courreges coat — with no money in the pockets. She was hungry. She was cold. But she told herself: "No man will ever again interfere with my life and tell me what to do!"

It was in New Delhi, in 1968, Zarina says, that "my life as an artist really began."

She rented a studio. This was not something a proper Indian wife does. (Unbidden, a solicitous concierge screened her callers.)

2 medium (1 pound) yellow squash
1/2 of a small onion
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut a thin slice from both ends of each squash and discard. Rinse and dry. Grate coarsely. Peel onion and grate finely. (Tightly wrap the other half of the onion in plastic film and refrigerate in vegetable "keeper" for use another time.) In a 10-inch skillet melt the butter; add the squash and onion. Stir constantly over high heat until squash begins to emit its liquid; cover and simmer, stirring a few times, until squash is cooked through — 5 minutes or so. Stir in salt and pepper. Makes 4 small servings.

Two Important Items Moving

There were two matters in the development of the huge medical complex that is to be the new Pitt Memorial Hospital reported at this week's County Commissioner's meeting. The project engineer, Ralph Hall, reported that the project is half completed with more than $7.5 million paid out for work so far.

Hall said the North wing, which includes emergency, rooms, operating rooms and other facilities for the operation of the hospital, is in the finishing stages. He said he is pleased with the progress at this point.

It is anticipated that the north wing and the bed towers will be completed first with work moving on around to the rehabilitation center in the west wing.

The other development at the commissioner's meeting was the approval of the sale of 40 acres of land to the state for construction of the ECU medical school building. The land will be sold for $195,000, but will revert back to the county in three years if construction has not begun on the medical school or medical facility.

Both of the matters are significant as the process of building a major medical facility around Pitt Memorial Hospital proceeds. It is good news, of course, that the basic county hospital is over half through. It is needed badly to serve county hospital patients and the new building is also necessary if the medical school is to open on schedule next fall.

The land transfer is important because the medical school is slated to be constructed adjacent to the hospital. Work on that building will have to get underway relatively soon, also.

It makes sense to us to insert the clause requiring that the property be used for the medical school, since the entire tract of land was acquired by the county for medical purposes.

All-in-all it is heartening that the construction of the new hospital is moving along so well, and it is also encouraging to see that things are moving on the medical school. These two projects together promise greatly improved medical care for all of Eastern North Carolina.

THIS AFTERNOON

Up To The Local Schools

By BILL NOBLITT
ROANOKE RAPIDS—Politics, personality conflicts, and bureaucratic wrangling in Raleigh aside, it's up to local schools across North Carolina to teach children.

"I haven't been hampered one whit by the state. What has the state or Craig Phillips ever done to hamper or curtail the teaching of basics?" wonders Joseph W. Talley, superintendent of the 3,000-student Roanoke Rapids schools system.

A torrent of news reports of late have kept track of the running battle between Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, and State Board of Education Chairman Dallas Herring; all complicated by charges and countercharges before various committees of the General Assembly, and by haggling over school budgets during the recent session of the legislature.

Teach Basics
There has been much discussion as well over whether or not schools are doing an adequate job of teaching children the basics—reading, writing, and arithmetic.

Another side issue has been Phillips' insistence on career education in public schools, resisted by those who favor the liberal arts.

"But local schools are getting along a lot better than all that stuff you read about out of Raleigh would have you believe—that's so much personalities and politics.

"Teaching the basics or providing vocational education is a local school board job. You take all the resources you can find, and you control the program and develop it.

"We are going to run a good program in spite of both the General Assembly and the State Board of Education," says the outspoken veteran educator whose system, by all measurements, is one of the state's best.

There are, Talley said, basic guidelines that have to be followed. "But if any local school system says that the state won't let us run our schools, then maybe they just don't want to run them."

The Roanoke Rapids school system lists a number of firsts in North Carolina education: the first systemwide kindergarten for all children eight years ago; the first system (1907) to have school for eight months when other schools were operating four months. In 1933 the state moved to eight months of school; Roanoke Rapids used that opportunity to add the ninth month, and the 12th year of school (both now standard statewide).

Build Houses
Career education is nothing controversial or new in Roanoke Rapids: vocational classes began in 1911, and in 1956 a building trades class built and sold a house, something it has done every two years since, and something just now catching on across the nation.

Contrary to educators and some legislators who argue that the small school system deprives children of broad educational experiences, Talley thinks his system provides a diversity and quality which would not be possible in a larger system. He vigorously resists merger with the Halifax County and nearby Weldon City systems.

It is not size that's important, but local effort, interest, and commitment, he feels.

What lies ahead for such a pioneering school system? Talley thinks Roanoke Rapids is doing a good job for the "average" student, and moving well in special programs for the disadvantaged.

But we have done very little for the gifted child—not just the academically gifted, but the talented... the high IQ students who do poorly in the classroom and sometimes disrupt things.

Now developing is a resource center with materials, personnel, and a setting in which children of "like interests, intelligence, creativity, and motivation can come together to explore their gifts."

IF WE DIDN'T SEE IT WITH OUR OWN EYES...

This August's Briefing

WASHINGTON—Whenever I go away on vacation I have to get briefed when I get back to Washington on what I missed. The man I depend on to catch me up on things is Doc Dalinsky, my pharmacist, who keeps up on the news when he unstacks the papers every morning.

"What happened while I was gone?" I asked him. "We sold 10 million tons of grain to the Russians which means the price of bread is going up in this country this year."

"Oh!" I exclaimed. "It was a big mistake," Dalinsky told me. "How's that?"

"Well, the original idea was to sell the Soviets 10 million tons of New York City bonds. But somebody in Washington got his signals mixed and sold them the grain instead."

"Why would the Soviets want New York City bonds?"

"Because several of the banks in New York said that if the city couldn't sell them someone would have to eat them. It was Mayor Beame's hope that the Russians would rather eat his bonds than somebody else's wheat."

"But it didn't work out that way?"

"No. The Soviets insisted they wanted grain so New Yorkers have to eat their own bonds for breakfast."

"What else happened?" I asked Dalinsky. "Let's see. Oh, yes. The United States is ending its trade curbs against Castro, and we'll probably recognize Cuba soon."

"That's a switch," I said. "Well, the thinking is that, after trying to knock Castro off 24 times and failing, the only thing left to do was open diplomatic relations with him."

"How does the Mafia feel about it?" I asked Dalinsky.

"They were kind of hurt that they weren't consulted, but I must say they were magnanimous about it. One of the heads of the families said, 'We have a saying in the Cosa Nostra: If you can't kill 'em, join 'em.'"

"No. The Soviets insisted they wanted grain so New Yorkers have to eat their own bonds for breakfast."

"What else is going on?" "Kissinger's in the Middle East," Dalinsky said. "That's not news," I said. "The price of gasoline is going up."

"That's not news." "We're going back to double-digit inflation." "That's not news."

"Nixon said he did nothing wrong." "That's not news." "Liz Taylor and Richard Burton are back together again."

"That's not news," I said. "Yes it is. Because this time they say it's forever." "Forever?"

"That's what their press spokesman said." "What a story! They really said forever?"

"I'm not making it up," Dalinsky said. "Is there anything else I should know?"

"Well, are you sitting down?" "How can I be sitting down? I'm standing here talking to you."

"All right. Betty Ford revealed to Myra McPherson in McCall's magazine that she and her husband have given up the White House tradition of separate bedrooms for the President and his wife."

I whistled. "That's news." "And she also said if anyone ever asked her how often she slept with her husband she would say 'as

Crime Agency Tie-Up

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The outcome of a bureaucratic power struggle may determine whether the Ford administration's solution to rising crime rates will be sought in futuristic police gadgetry.

At odds are Richard W. Velde, chief of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and key members of the agency's staff.

Sources close to agency operations say Velde is using an investigation of possible violations of Civil Service regulations to solidify his control over LEAA, which has distributed nearly $4 billion in crime fighting grants since it was established in 1969. They said Velde may use the probe to push dissident staff members to resign.

Velde was named head of LEAA by Richard M. Nixon in the last days of his presidency. Velde's predecessor, Donald Santarelli, resigned after saying he thought Nixon should quit for the good of the country.

Sources in the law enforcement community say a key factor in the intra-agency struggle is Velde's preference for technological assistance to police rather than grants geared to increasing citizen involvement in criminal justice.

Velde, a 43-year-old avid jogger, also has approved a $541,000 grant for a study of police physical fitness.

Velde's opponents within the agency declined to be interviewed during the current high-

Florida counted its dead and rushed relief work today as the tropical hurricane, its devastating power diminishing, moved north through Georgia.

W. P. Moody, personal representative of Governor Dave Scholtz, in the hurricane area, advised the chief executive today fatalities from the storm "may reach 1,000."

Weather bureau officials said the Carolinas could expect rain today and tomorrow in the interior and "rain and high winds" on the coast as the tropical hurricane swept upward from Florida.

Meteorologist said they saw no reason for more than ordinary precautions and that while high winds were expected on the coast, they were not expected to be serious.

In spite of intermittent showers which have fallen for the past few days tobacco sales showed a pronounced pickup on the Greenville market today with an indicated strengthening of prices.

Rain, continuing most of yesterday, cut sharply into the offerings, and the official report showed that the market handled 556,176 pounds. Farmers were paid $104,000.88 and the general average was $18.70 per hundred pounds.

The INSIDE REPORT

Doubts About Washington

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ATHENS—Anti-Americanism from U.S. support of the former dictatorship has declined in newly democratic Greece, only to be replaced with an equally alarming virus: growing distrust at highest levels here of U.S. political capacity to lead the West.

That concern, cloaked by diplomatic restraint, was evidenced between the lines of a somber, private talk by Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis at the North Atlantic Treaty (NATO) summit in Brussels last spring, warning against "psychological disarmament" under detente euphoria.

Indeed, this is the dominant concern throughout non-Communist Europe today. It has special point here where Greece will start negotiations soon (which it hopes will never be consummated) to withdraw Greece from NATO's military organization.

Nothing is more repellent to the Karamanlis government than pulling out of NATO, whose southern command in Izmir, Turkey, depends heavily on Greek and Turkish forces to hold the southern flank of the alliance against the Soviet Union.

Yet, chauvinistic emotions unleashed by failure of the U.S. to deal swiftly with Turkey's invasion of Cyprus, on top of long resentment against Washington's codding of the military junta, left Karamanlis no alternative.

The sweetheart contract during the junta's rule giving the U.S. homeporting rights near Athens, including agreement to berth an aircraft carrier, was torn up by the elected Karamanlis government after the junta crumpled last summer. No vestige is left of the "Little America" for families of U.S. Sixth Fleet destroyer crews at Eleusis. Eleusis was the symbol of Washington's crudity in treating Greece as a military base, not a flesh-and-blood nation. The destroyers are now homeported in Norfolk, Va.

The frayed U.S.-Greek connection, together with the arms embargo against Turkey voted by the U.S. Congress, has made NATO a grotesquerie. Greek army units assigned to the northern border opposite Communist Bulgaria have been moved east to the Thracian heights overlooking Turkey and the Greeks have pulled out of all bilateral defense relations with Turkey.

Because of their Aegean air-space dispute, air travel from Istanbul to Athens requires detouring far north over Bulgaria. A related dispute rages over ownership of undersea oil sites between the Turkish mainland and close-in Greek isles (on some of which the Greeks have now completed defenses which Turkey claims violate treaty commitments).

Last May the Turks came dangerously close to an amphibious attack on one of those Greek isles. High officials here and in NATO have no illusions about the possibility of a future attack if Congress maintains the embargo, which would immediately engage the growing power of the Greek air force and start an intra-NATO tragedy dwarfing the Cyprus affair. That would open the door to subtle machinations by the Soviet Union, now an exultant but inactive witness to the collapse of NATO's southern flank.

The grievance against the U.S. at highest levels here may be marginally self-serving, but it is real enough.

It goes to the heart of the American government's vacillating conduct every step of the way since the colonels seized power here in 1967: the initial cut-off of military aid, inexplicably followed by its restoration early in the Nixon administration; Washington's failure to move decisively against Turkey for its invasion of Cyprus, followed once again by a sudden reversal of policy in the congressional arms embargo.

Although no Greek politician would publicly question that embargo, the fact that it has placed Turkey in a political straitjacket seems understood by long-headed Greeks. They want a Cyprus settlement, not revenge on Turkey. Accordingly, a possible Cyprus solution as seen here would accept a secret pledge by Turkey to the U.S. for major Turkish troop withdrawals from Cyprus, plus the substantial return of Greek-Cypriot refugees to their homes, as a fair exchange for repealing the arms embargo.

Karamanlis has already made important concessions: implied acceptance of a two-state federation with weak central government; and a Turkish share of territory larger than its population warrants.

As for Aegean air space and underwater oil rights, quiet progress is now being made.

But even though Karamanlis has displayed remarkable skill in leading Greece from seven years of totalitarianism to scrupulous democracy without a false step, it could all vanish in the flashpoint of his crisis with Turkey.

To prevent that from happening—to keep both Greece and Turkey locked into NATO—the Karamanlis government looks to the U.S. for the kind of political leadership they feel has been conspicuous by its absence. As one top Greek policymaker told us: "The West is showing it cannot solve problems as they arise. That is a mark of decline."

To the editor:

Regarding the statement in the September 1 edition of The Daily Reflector by Joseph Calder, Director of Traffic and Security at ECU, "We've got a number of faculty and staff and students that wait to come on campus at five or 10 minutes to 10 and when they don't find a place to park right in front of the building they get upset... I say there's no parking..." I can only say that had Mr. Calder walked through our parking lots even as early as 9:10 on my mornings, and especially on Mondays and Wednesdays, he might have noticed that there was virtually no faculty parking available anywhere. There was reason to be upset.

To the editor:

Recently there has been a lot of rain in our area. An excessive amount of rain can cause flooding in low areas.

I have lived in the low land of West Meadowbrook for more than 20 years, and by the help of God, who sends the rain as well as the windstorms and tornadoes, I have survived.

The City Council adopted a resolution, according to my understanding, that no building or mobile home permits be granted to the residents of that area nor any further city service be extended.

I made application to the Board of Adjustment for a special use permit to place a mobile home on my property in order to have my aged mother near so I could see after her.

Due to the actions of the City Council, certain members, along with certain city officials, felt they could not grant the request.

In the State of Michigan, a group of neighbors got together and built a dam. Well, this is out for us, for we have neither the money nor the know-how. Why can't a dam be built?

Why can't the lowlands be built up as easily as progress is being made on the new highway in the flooded area?

If the City acquires the land, what will they use it for? Would the City invest in property that would serve no useful purpose? Why so much emphasis on relocation and so little on elevation? These are questions that are in the mind of the residents of the lowlands of West Meadowbrook.

China's Boom To Benefit U.S.

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—An oil boom is developing on mainland China that not only could give the United States an alternate energy source but might provide billions of dollars in trade and jobs for thousands of Americans.

These are among the chief effects of the boom, which might vastly change oil markets and the international power balance over the next decade.

"The Chinese oil boom will not resound suddenly and sharply like a sonic boom," said Harned P. Hoose, an authority on the People's Republic. "It will be more enduring."

"It will rise steadily across Asian and Pacific horizons in the next five years like an advancing thunderstorm," stirring everything it encounters. It could reduce Soviet power in the Far East. Almost certainly it will be felt here. The U.S. impact is likely to be mainly for the good. Between his ninth and 10th visits to the People's Republic since 1972, Hoose, who is the China representative for a number of U.S. companies, observed:

"If just some of the specific projects now being studied by Chinese and Western representatives are consummated, billions of dollars will pour into the U.S. economy and hundreds of thousands of man-years of domestic employment will be provided for American labor in the next few years."

Bilingual and bicultural, being a native of China and a resident there for 23 years before the People's Republic was formed in 1949, Hoose not only represents U.S. companies but is a voluntary adviser to Washington.

In fact, he helped brief President Richard M. Nixon before his visit to the People's Republic in 1972. An attorney, Hoose is based in Los Angeles, where he is also a consulting professor of international business at the University of Southern California.

"Heavy preparations now are going on inside China as vast reserves increasingly are being confirmed," he said. Proved and probable reserves might even exceed those for the entire Mideast, he believes.

"Equipment and machinery are being assembled; refining, petrochemical and distributions systems are being expanded; and the Chinese are preparing great petroleum and petrochemical programs."

For the United States this means opportunity, he believes. "Two-way trade can be expected to rise steeply in the next four years on a floodtide of oil."

Will China cooperate with the United States? For all nations, says Hoose, cooperation will be only to the degree that China's own national interests are served. But American and Chinese interests may to some degree detail.

"Bearing in mind the geopolitical aspects, such as China's claim to large Russian land areas, the hostile border, the China-Soviet rivalry for Communist world leadership, and the economic factors," Hoose said, "most national interests of China and the United States coincide in Asia and in Eastern Europe."

A substantial number of U.S. oil-related companies already have sent representatives to a series of Canton trade fairs and to Peking, where wide ranges of machinery and technology—even entire plants—have been discussed.

"In all discussions and as to all projects," he found, "the Chinese stress their self-reliance and the absolute requirement that China must own and control its own oil."

Hoose stresses "There will be no joint ventures, as such, and we will not be invited to invest in China's oil," but otherwise, he believes, (Continued on page 5)

Wife-Hunter Losing Sleep

ROBERTA, Ga. (AP) — It wasn't so bad when Henry Moncrief first put the sign in front of his trailer home on a rural central Georgia highway: "Good Wife Wanted New or Used. 836-3653."

The calls continued late into the night, but he was just trying to alleviate his loneliness. "There's not what you might call much of your dating material here in Roberta," he told a visiting reporter this week.

The telephone would ring: "Uh, hello, are you the one with the sign?" a woman would ask. "That's me," Moncrief would reply.

He took down their names, ages, height, weight, color of eyes, address, telephone number and number of children, if any. In return, he would say he was 6 feet tall, dark-complexioned, dark-eyed and in no hurry to make up his mind.

Moncrief, 34, wasn't getting much sleep, particularly since he had to rise at 5 a.m. to drive 102 miles to his job as a heavy equipment driver and wouldn't return home to the ringing telephone until after 8 p.m. But it didn't get out of hand until fame descended.

The local newspapers took pictures of his sign and soon news services had circulated photos throughout the United States and Canada.

Where before the phone calls were from Fitzgerald, Macon, Vienna and Ashburn — all in Georgia — now the calls started coming in from Oregon, California, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma and Canada.

The photograph had given Honcrief's address on Georgia highway 128 and each night when he returned home he would find the mailbox full of perfumed envelopes. And always the telephone rang.

"Nobody really knows what hell and torment I've been going through," Moncrief moaned.

He said he has narrowed the field to three, and after Sept. 10 he will accept no more letters or phone calls.

WASHINGTON AP) — Israel, Egypt and some other Arab countries would get at least $9 billion in American aid over the next three years as part of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's bargaining for the new Middle East agreement.

The administration, congressional and diplomatic sources who provided the figure emphasized that this is a minimum sum and that it could run much higher as time passes.

Both Israel and Egypt demanded large amounts of assistance before agreeing to the interim settlement, under which the Jewish state surrendered some land on the Sinai Peninsula in exchange for political concessions by Cairo.

Kissinger has already begun lobbying for congressional approval of his economic promises, which break down this way: —Israel will get about $2.5 billion the first year, Egypt between $600 million and $800 million.

—The second and third years will see Israel receiving a total of $3 billion. Aid to Egypt will be about $2 billion during the two remaining years.

Grants and loans to Syria and perhaps other Arab nations also will be included in the aid package. Only rough estimates have been made for this pending negotiations between Israel and Syria, but they are in the area of $100 million.

Sources said these working figures are minimums and additional costs will increase the total to at least $9 billion during the expected life of the agreement.

Under the program worked out for this year, Israel will receive about $1.6 billion in grants and loans to modernize and expand its armed forces and to build a new defense line in the Sinai.

The other $900 million, including $350 million to replace oil from fields returned to Egypt, will be for economic matters.

Egypt's share for this year will be entirely economic at this stage, with about two-thirds devoted to development assistance and the rest in wheat and other agricultural grants.

In the remaining two years, Israel's aid will be reduced to a total of $3 billion and with an increased share devoted to stabilizing the inflation-ridden Israeli economy.

On the other hand, the $2 billion allotted for Egypt in the last two years of the agreement will show a major share in military aid.

The exact financial arrangements have not been worked out for the 150 Americans who will man electronic spy bases in the Sinai demilitarized zone. However, the sources say the United States will assume most of the costs.

Survivors Of EAL Crash Are Rebuilding Lives A Year Later

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Survivors of the Eastern Airlines' plane crash at Charlotte are still rebuilding their lives a year later.

Some of the 10 persons who lived after Flight 212 crashed into a wooded area near Douglas Airport on Sept. 11, 1974, have found the going rough.

Seventy-two persons were killed or subsequently died from injuries after the jet, en route from Charleston, S.C., to Chicago, fell out of the sky just short of a runway.

Richard Arnold, 32, of Charleston, was hospitalized for more than three months while his burned body recovered. The experience, he says, has made him learn "to laugh a lot more."

Arnold, an employe of IBM in Charleston, has been divorced since the crash. He has learned to dress himself again, using one hand whose fingers were fused together by the fire of the crash, the other whose fingertips were seared off.

A major accomplishment, Arnold says, was when he used his hands to slice an onion.

Scott Johnson, 21, a Navy enlisted man, came out of the crash alive, but with burns on his hands and arms. The physical injuries weren't as bad as those suffered by others, but the mental scar remains.

"My psychiatrist said I've got a traumatic neurosis because of the crash," said Johnson. "The plane crash just changed my attitude toward the Navy."

Since the crash, Johnson has been absent without leave four times, for a total of 100 days, from his assignment at Newport, R. I. He now awaits the finding of a review board that will examine his medical status.

Another survivor, Charles Weaver, 44, of Charleston, says he has come to realize that major things in life aren't the only ones that are important.

"The little things that once were a problem are no longer a problem. If it rains, it doesn't bother me as much as it did a year ago," Weaver said.

Weaver, an employe of Amstar Corp., has five children.

John A. Toohey, a Navy hospital corpsman, said he has had "vivid nightmares" of the crash, which left him with second- and third-degree burns on his ankles and feet and a dislocated shoulder.

"My wife said I was yelling and hollering while I was asleep," he said.

Now, Toohey and his family like to go camping near Buffalo, N.Y., where he is attached to a Marine Corps officer recruiting station.

Stewardess Colette Watson returned to her home at College Park, Ga. After five years of marriage, she has become, after the crash, a mother for the first time.

Copilot James Daniel, 37, of Roswell, Ga., still has injured legs, but is able to walk. His pilot's license has been revoked, subject to appeal.

Lt. James L. Schulze, 27, went back to the Navy after the crash. He is now at the Naval Nuclear Power School at Mare Island, Calif. He first went to sea aboard the submarine Lewis and Clark with another survivor, Navy Lt. Royal Hendrix.

Still another survivor, Francis Mihalek, and Weaver have met since the crash.

Navy Lt. Robert Burham, 27, also has returned to sea duty. He spent more than three months in physical therapy after the crash. His wife, Carole, lives in Charleston. "We try to forget it," she says. Her husband's hands are still scarred and stiff.

Jones Seeks Amend EPA Farmer Test

WASHINGTON, D.C.—First District Congressman Walter B. Jones successfully offered an amendment on Thursday before the House Agriculture Committee which, if passed by the full House, would effectively block a proposal by the Environmental Protection Agency that a private applicator, meaning a farmer who administers chemicals or pesticides on his own farm or one under his supervision, pass a written test before being allowed to administer insecticides.

The amendment, it was explained, provides that the certification standard for private applicators shall be deemed fulfilled by simply signing a self-certification form at the time of purchase of such insecticides.

In signing the form, the applicant will certify that he has a complete understanding of the danger of the chemical and will conform with the printed instructions for application.

Jones said his primary concern was that EPA's proposed written examination would involve approximately 58,000 farmers in North Carolina, would be time consuming, expensive and in many cases would deprive the farmer of the right to apply pesticides to their own farming operations.

The committee supported the Jones amendment with a 29 to three vote.

ly charged atmosphere. But many are known to feel the Velde projects are a continuation of the emphasis on police equipment criticized in past evaluations of LEAA.

Congressional investigations and nongovernmental evaluations of LEAA have criticized the fact that millions of dollars was used to buy new radios and patrol cars for police departments.

The Civil Service investigation has centered on several LEAA staff members brought into the agency by Santarelli. They include Gerald M. Caplan, director of LEAA's National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, and Charles Work, deputy LEAA administrator.

Consultants allegedly were brought in to perform work that Civil Service regulations require be done by fulltime employes.

The matter has been pending for months with no action by Velde. Some top officials, including Work, reportedly have threatened to resign if Velde took what they considered unduly harsh disciplinary action, particularly suspensions without pay.

It was learned that cases of two of the six officials under investigation were settled with a letter of reprimand being placed in their personnel files. Velde sent his recommendations on two other cases to Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold Tyler.

Farmville Mart Prices Steady

FARMVILLE—Grade for grade prices on the Farmville market continued steady, with top quality grades in demand by all companies. As more quality tobacco is marketed, the average for the year continues to gain over the average a year ago. Sales were heavy at all warehouses Thursday, and consisted mostly of leaf, cutters and smoking leaf. Primings and lugs continue to decline in volume. Stabilization receipts accounted for 10.43 per cent of all sales. Some 424,275 pounds marketed Thursday brought a total of $446,847 for an average of $106.32 per 100 pounds. To date the Farmville market has bought 15,392,216 pounds for a price of $95.05 for the season to date.

Growing up

Look at your lanky, teen-age son! It's hard to believe that he once wore these shoes. It seems only yesterday that he was a baby, yet he himself is the best testimonial that the years have passed. Now he stands almost as tall as you. He is a fascinating maze of contradictions—an eager, lovable youngster one minute, a scowling, angry adolescent the next.

It takes patience to understand a teen-ager—patience, and a lot of love. Though he strives to be adult, he is still a boy. Though he clings to childhood, he is almost "grown-up." You may not always be aware of it, but he still looks to you for many things. And he sees in you an example that he will, almost unconsciously, follow in many ways.

Are you setting a good example? How about church, for instance? If you haven't been going lately, start again next Sunday for your son's sake, as well as your own. And don't forget to take him with you!

A Review Marines, Moroccans In A Throw-Back Movie

The Wind and The Lion, opening last night at the Plaza Cinema, is one of those rare surprises—a film arriving in Greenville with no shouting from the rooftops advance fanfare, but nonetheless it turns out to be simply good old fashioned entertainment.

It's big-scale without being overwhelming; beautifully photographed without being garish; melodramatic without being ridiculous; and witty without being silly. Even the violence is limited to that necessary to telling the tale of intriguing tribes and battling U.S. Marines. In this film, violence is handled in a throw-back to older styles of movie making, off-camera. Seekers of intimate gore will be disappointed about the absence of lingering, pulsating torture.

Which brings to mind this thought—The Wind and The Lion is deserving of the PG (parental guidance) rating it carries. I can't conceive of any parent objecting to a child of ten or older seeing this movie. Factual history forms the basis of the story line. The Wind and The Lion is based on an President Teddy Roosevelt's sending Marines to Morocco in 1904. The film is based on Director John Millus' original screenplay.

History in this case is a convenient framework on which a fast moving tale of intrigue, counter-intrigues, romance and story-book battles is embroidered. There's more than a dash of operatic shenanigans throughout that happily lets make-believe get the upper hand over seriousness.

Filmed on location in Spain, the opulence of Moorish architecture, color drenched hills, cliffs and deserts are matched by the dazzling richness of silks, jeweled sabers and billowing robes.

Indicative of the total visual beauty of The Wind and The Lion is the unforgettable poetic opening scenes . . . blue-green ocean spilling on a sandy shore, a close up of a couple of gulls, the prophetic appearance of a dashing group of Berbers on horseback, fading into the flower filled quiet of a secluded elegant city garden where only the music of insects and the tinkle of animal bells is heard.

The inevitable romance between the kidnapped widow (Candice Bergen) and the dynamic Rif sheik (Sean Connery) develops along lines that are cinematically expected with a few unexpected twists thrown in.

Complex Arabian proverbs and simple homespun American maxims provide a source of humorous interplay between the sheik and his attractive hostage as the nomadic menage journeys over desert and through ancient villages. President Roosevelt (Brian Keith) gets in some refreshingly pointed observations about the human condition.

The Wind and The Lion is a truly enjoyable historical adventure film with a crackling pace, breathtaking scenery, the most beautiful horses I've ever seen in a movie, and one major disappointment. The sheik never kisses the spirited widow—but neither does he even once nuzzle his favorite horse.

Malpractice Coverage In Doubt

RALEIGH (AP)—The prognosis for continued availability of medical malpractice insurance in North Carolina is questionable.

MORE QUESTIONS—Henry Ford II answers questions from reporters during a press conference at Ford model preview in the Ford Motor Co. guest center at Dearborn, Mich. Ford announced it would import a minicar for sale in the United States sometime in the 1977 model year. The car would be built in Europe and be Ford's response to the growing surge of fuel stingy import sales. (AP Wirephoto)

Judge James H. Pou Bailey Thursday dealt a blow to the malpractice insurance pool established by the 1975 General Assembly as an interim means of assuring that doctors and nurses can get the insurance.

Bailey issued an order allowing 17 insurance companies to refuse to sell the coverage. A spokesman for the State Department of Insurance said he believed that the pool may collapse before it gets started if the order is not overturned on appeal.

That would leave most of the state's medical professionals to the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co., which writes more than 90 per cent of the coverage in the state.

The St. Paul has threatened to pull out of the state unless Insurance Commissioner John Ingram allows it to change the terms of its policies.

Policies now insure a doctor against a malpractice suit arising from any task he performs in the year he buys the policy. The company wants to write policies that would insure doctors against judgments rendered against them in the year the policy is purchased.

Doctors oppose that idea. They say it would force them to buy policies well after they retire, since malpractice suits often arise and are settled many years after the treatment occurred.

The insurance company says its proposal would allow it to charge premiums that more accurately reflect the spiraling cost of malpractice judgments.

Ingram and the company have expressed confidence they can arrive at a compromise in meetings that are scheduled to begin soon. That was more than the General Assembly was able to do during its session this year. It put off the question for further study and established the malpractice pool as an interim measure.

The law requires all general liability insurance companies to write malpractice insurance. Bad risks may be ceded to the pool much as they are in auto insurance. As a result some companies are required to write malpractice insurance that do not want to.

An attorney for one of them, The Hartford, told Bailey that his company could lose $400,000 per year. That, he said, would amount to unconstitutional confiscation of property.

Bailey agreed. But Deputy Insurance Commissioner David M. Blackwell warned that the insurance coverage "is critical." He said if the 17 companies got exemptions from the system more companies would seek them and the whole system could collapse because of lack of participation.

Executive Director John Marston of the N.C. Hospital Association fears a crisis may arise. There are 50 hospitals which must renew their malpractice policies on October 1, he said. "We have the potential for 50 hospitals not being able to get insurance."

Quickly Used New Pistol

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—Wilton E. Eskew recently bought a pistol on a downtown Greenville street. He had no idea he would have to use it within an hour.

Eskew, 60, said he was returning to his room at the Hotel Greenville after buying a carton of cigarettes at a Greenville drug store.

On the way back, he bought a .22 caliber pistol for $15 and pocketed the weapon.

When he reached the hotel's parking garage, four men approached him and asked for a cigarette. Seeing that they already had cigarettes, Eskew refused.

According to police reports, Charles Brooks, 54, of Greenville, then pulled a knife, knocked Eskew down, put the knife to his throat and began going through his pockets.

Eskew told police he fought back as best he could until he remembered he had the newly-purchased pistol in his pocket. He pulled the gun and fired once, striking Brooks in the lower abdomen. The other three men fled.

Eskew received several cuts on the arm during the fight and was treated and released from Greenville General Hospital.

Brooks was charged with assault and attempted robbery and remains under guard in the hospital in fair condition.

Officers, who reported the Johnson car collided with a vehicle driven by Joan Leggett Williams of Route 7, Greenville, estimated damage at $400 to the Williams car and $200 to the Johnson vehicle.

Pirates Face Challenge Of Wolfpack

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Coach Pat Dye of East Carolina University will be glad when Saturday gets here. Starting at 7 p.m. in Carter Stadium, he's going to learn a lot about his 1975 edition of the Pirate football team.

The Bucs open the year against 13th ranked North Carolina State, and Dye is hopeful that last year's 24-20 score (won by State) will be reversed this year into a Pirate victory.

There are a lot of things Dye isn't sure about however. This week, practices have been something Dye hasn't enjoyed watching. Whether this is an omen of "bad practice, good game," he's unsure. He's hopeful it is that, and not a case of unpreparedness on the part of the Pirates.

One thing is sure, he doesn't want—nor does he expect a repeat of the game two years ago when the Wolfpack ripped the Bucs to the tune of 57-8—also in a season-opener.

"We're trying to talk in terms of what it takes to play a big game," Dye said. "This is going to be an emotional game, but I'm hoping that it will be controlled emotion. We have to have great, great concentration to win it. There are going to be a lot of people there, maybe close to 50,000. And 35,000 of them will be cheering for State. We can't be intimidated by that."

If the Pirates are intimidated, Dye said, "these are not the folks I thought I had. We need to win a big game. State has the prestige where a victory for us would be great."

Dye isn't going to be happy with playing a good game. "We played a good game last year and lost. To hell with that, I'd rather win. I've got a lot of confidence in our players and coaches. I think we can win it."

Dye feels the Bucs have got to move the football and control it like they did last year. "But right now, I'm not sure we're as good as we were last year offensively. We just haven't shown it in practice. We have to keep the ball away from (Dave) Buckley (State quarterback)."

When State gets the ball Dye feels that what the Wolfpack does will tell a lot. "I think they'll try to run the ball first, then use Buckley's passing if they can run off a couple of quick scores on us—or if they find they can't run it."

"Buckey does so many things well, we can't hope to stop him. We've got to try and control him, however. He's an exceptional quarterback, one of the best in the country. And State's wide open offense is perfect for him," Dye said.

Dye added that he still has a number of question marks about the team. "I've got some ideas, but you never know until you put them under pressure."

Buckey, who hit 105 of 162 passes for 1,481 yards last year, uses twin brother Don as his top target. He hit Don 26 times for 452 yards last year. Buckey can run the ball too, having 1,616 yards in total offense last year.

But State's biggest problem may be on the ground, where Coach Lou Holtz hasn't got anyone who's carried the ball a great deal of times. Johnny Evans, who also punts, rushed 45 times for 227 yards last year, and is slated to start at fullback. Tommy London slated to start at tailback, carried 40 times for 157 yards.

Only one other back, Richard Carter, has carried the ball over 10 times.

State will be tough in the line, and expects to be tough on defense too. Holtz has expressed worry about stopping the wish-bone, but has had several weeks to prepare for it—instead of the single week last year when the Bucs rushed for 319 yards. East Carolina will try to counter the State offense with its own attack, led by quarterback Mike Weaver, who rushed for 565 yards last year. Weaver, too, is expected to show great improvement in his passing game. Last year, he hit just 21 of 81 attempts for 443 yards.

The leading ground-gainer from last year, Ken Strayhorn, returns for his senior year. He picked up 635 yards last year, with a 6.0 yard per carry average. He'll be joined by Willie Hawkins, who saw limited action, and Tom Daub, who picked up 310 yards in 64 lugs last season. Hawkins had 67 yards in 13 trips in 1974.

Anchoring the defense for the Pirates will be end Cary

Godette, who returns following a year away from the game due to a leg injury. The Bucs also return their defensive secondary from last year.

Two freshmen have also broken into the starting lineup for the game, tackle Matt Mulholland and middle guard Wayne Poole.

At least five other freshmen will make the trip.

Dye listed his starting offensive lineup as having Wilbur Williamston at split end and Clay Burnett at tight end; Mulholland and Larry Lundy at tackles; Jimbo Walker and Wayne Bolt at guards; Tim Hightower at center; Weaver at quarterback; Strayhorn and Hawkins at halfbacks and Daub at fullback.

Defensively, the Bucs are starting Godette and Mike Cruise at end, Jake Dove and Willie Bryant at tackles, Poole at middle guard, Harold Randolph and Emerson Pickett at linebacker; Reggie Pinkney and Ernest Madison at halfbacks; with Bobby Myrick and Jim Bolding at safeties.

Boston Lead Balloons To Eight Over Birds

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Remember how the Boston Red Sox were supposed to fade in the stretch? As soon as they started to feel the pennant pressure in September, critics claimed, the Sox would fold like an accordion.

Well, consider this: Boston's magic number is 18.

"It'll be tough for them to catch us now," said Boston rookie Fred Lynn, echoing a tone of confidence heard in all corners of the Red Sox' locker-room after they beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-1 Thursday night to complete a sweep of their "crucial" two-game series.

The Red Sox have opened an eight-game bulge over the Orioles in the American League East, and with 25 games left to play, any combination of 18 Boston victories or Baltimore defeats will mean a division flag for Beantown.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Kansas City Royals blanked the Chicago White Sox 7-0, the New York Yankees beat the Detroit Tigers 8-1, the Cleveland Indians outscored the Milwaukee Brewers 10-5 and the California Angels defeated the Texas Rangers 6-4. Oakland and Minnesota were not scheduled.

With Luis Tiant a late scratch because of muscle spasms in his back, Boston Manager Darrell Johnson decided two Red Sox pitchers might do the job of one. So he split the mound time between Dick Pole and Dick Drago, and the result was a five-hitter.

Cubs Bow In Opener

GOLDSBORO—Rose High School's junior varsity football team was crushed by early Goldsboro scores as the Cougar Cubs recorded a 34-0 victory yesterday.

It was the opening game of the year for the Rampant Cubs, who offered only one threat, late in the game. Greenville managed less than 100 yards in total offense.

After scoring once in the first period, Goldsboro added two in the second for a 20-0 halftime lead. They finished up with one score in each of the final two quarters.

Pole, just four days off the injured list after recovering from a line drive to the head June 30, went the first five innings and allowed just two hits and one unearned run. Then Johnson handed the ball to Drago, and he scattered three hits the rest of the way to notch his 10th save and third in the last four games.

Royals 7, White Sox 0
If you're looking for the pennant race in the American League, you might have to take Horace Greeley's advice and head westward.

While the East race has fizzled, the Kansas City Royals are doing their best to heat things up in the West. They posted their fourth consecutive victory as Paul Splittorff blanked Chicago on seven hits to pull to within six games of the first-place Oakland A's.

"It's all very simple now," said Splittorff. "We're six games out and have six more with Oakland. Sure we could use some help from other clubs, but it is still up to us to beat 'em head to head."

Yankees 8, Tigers 1
Thurman Munson drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Rudy May, 12-10, tossed a five-hitter for the Yankees, who broke the game open with five runs in the fifth inning off Ray Bare, 8-10.

Indians 10, Brewers 5
Joe Lis slammed a three-run homer and got another RBI on a sacrifice fly to pace the Cleveland attack. It was only Lis' second game since being promoted from Oklahoma City.

Angels 6, Rangers 4
Lee Stanton belted a two-run homer, his 14th of the season, and then capped a four-run rally in the eighth inning with a three-run double to fuel California's victory. Jeff Burroughs belted his 24th home run and Joe Lovitto his first for Texas.

Top Four Seeds Battle In Open

By KAROL STONGER
AP Sports Writer

MARTA HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Maria Bueno would give her right arm to be playing singles at Forest Hills, scene of her greatest tennis triumphs in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

But that arm, seven times operated on without success, forced her into premature retirement while her peers—Billie Jean King, Margaret Court and Virginia Wade—remained in their prime.

"There are a lot of things I've missed out on," said the dark-haired Brazilian, whose gazelle-like grace made her one of the game's premier attractions. "The publicity, the big money... but I had everything else."

Indeed, she did. There was no money, but a lot of prestige, when she won her four U.S. titles between 1959 and 1966. And the fans haven't forgotten. She's here at Forest Hills, foregoing pain in her arm for the pleasure of at least playing doubles and rubbing elbows with today's youthful, and wealthy, stars.

"This is my favorite tournament, it's nice to be back," she said of her first appearance at the West Side Tennis Club since 1969. "I draw crowds; people still ask for my autograph—they're still interested."

Her only contemporary left in the tournament is Virginia Wade, the No. 2 seed from Great Britain who won here in 1968.

Here's how she assessed the chances in today's women's semifinals.

—Chris Evert, 19, seeking her first United States crown: "She has a pretty good chance. She's been winning every match in the place."

—Martina Navratilova, 18, of Czechoslovakia, also looking for her first title: "Yeah, why not?"

—Evonne Gooolagong, 24, of Australia, twice a runner-up but never a winner: "I like the way Evonne plays, but you never know when she's going to play well."

—Miss Wade, of Great Britain, seeking her second title: "It'll be a close match."

The pairings shaped up with No. 1 Miss Evert vs. No. 3 Miss Navratilova and No. 2 Miss Wade vs. No. 4 Miss Gooolagong.

It is the first time since the tournament became an open event in 1968, and some knowledgeable observers say the first time in memory, that the top four seeds have survived the quarter-finals.

Four of the top-seeded men also are into the semifinals—No. 1 Jimmy Connors, No. 2 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, No. 3 Manuel Orantes of Spain and No. 5 Bjorn Borg of Sweden.

Connors, a whiz on any surface who is seeking his second straight Open title, breezed past Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 in Thursday's shortest match, only 1 hour, 13 minutes.

Vilas, virtually unstoppable of late, took only slightly longer in downing Jaime Fillol of Chile 6-4, 6-0, 6-1.

Orantes needed 2 hours, 11 minutes for a controversial 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 triumph over eighth-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania. Borg, who opened the day's play before a sellout crowd of 15,627, gave them their money's worth for 2 hours, 55 minutes before he downed a tenacious Eddie Dibbs, troubled by leg cramps, 6-4, 7-6, 4-6, 7-6.

'Too Small' Randolph Proved He Could Do It

By WOODY PEELE

"Too small." That's the tag they hung on Harold Randolph when, after being a start linebacker at Rose High School, he expressed a desire to play college ball.

But Saturday at 7 p.m. in Raleigh's Carter Stadium, he'll have the chance to prove them wrong. Randolph is listed as the starting linebacker for the East Carolina Pirates—a role that two years ago seemed a million years distant.

"They told me I was too small

Sports Briefs

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—Georgia has added Furman to its basketball schedule for this season, Georgia Coach John Guthrie says.

Guthrie said Thursday the decision to host Furman in Athens Dec. 15 was made after the National Collegiate Athletic Association recently increased the limit for basketball from 26 to 27 games.

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP)—The New England Patriots are down to the player limit under National Football League rules for their exhibition game with the San Diego Chargers Sunday night at Schaefer Stadium.

The Patriots got down to 51 players Thursday, including two All-Star collegians not counted on the roster until next week, by placing veteran linebacker John Tanner on the injured reserve list and waiving defensive back Donnie Walker.

Tanner has a bad back, while Walker failed to show enough after being acquired on waivers from the New York Giants last week.

to play college ball," Randolph said. "They said that if I wanted to play college ball, I'd have to prove myself first."

Randolph, who was offered a wrestling grant at Elizabeth City State University, was told by the East Carolina coaching staff that if he wanted to walk on last year, they'd give him a chance.

"He's made a great adjustment in one year," Linebacker Coach Frank Orgel said. "He's got a lot of ability and has learned our system well. He knows what we want to do, and we're given him the responsibility of calling the defensive signals on the field. This puts a lot of pressure on him, but I feel that he's going to get better and better every game."

"If he does," Orgel said, "he has the potential to be as good as anyone we've had. Oh, he's a long ways from being another Danny Kelsey, but he has the ability to be as good or better. He's shown he as the leadership qualities that it takes—something a sophomore seldom has."

When Randolph walked on the East Carolina campus a year ago, he weighed a little more than 170 pounds. But a lot of it was heart, and he had the desire to make the grade. By the time he had finished his freshman year, he had convinced the coaches that not only was he not too small, he was deserving of a grant-in-aid, something he was promptly given. He's listed at 190 now.

"The coaches have been good to me," Randolph said. "They've helped me a lot. I'm glad now that I came here instead of taking the Elizabeth City grant."

Asked about the opener with State, Randolph admitted that there was a certain amount of pressure on him. Last year, he played some, but was always in the shadow of Kelsey, and he was a freshman, too. "I'm probably going to make a lot of sophomore mistakes," he admitted. "But I want to play good—starting Saturday. I think we have a pretty good team, and State will be a real test for us."

"I do feel some pressure. Not only do I have to do my job as a linebacker, I'm in the position where I have to make sure everyone else does theirs' too (as defensive signal caller)."

While Randolph feels he's going to make mistakes, he also feels that he's going to improve as time goes by. "Coach Orgel and Coach Dye both have helped me a lot. A lot of the players have helped me too."

Kelsey, now with the Dallas Cowboys, gave him a lot of help last year. "He was my idol when I was in high school, and it was great working with him."

Randolph doesn't feel the Pirate defense is as bad off as much of the preseason talk has made it. "We have more overall speed and a lot more depth. Last year, if Kef or (Gary) Niklason had gotten hurt, we had nobody to back them up. This year, we have good depth."

Randolph acknowledged that the game with State is a "big" one for him. "I try to look at it as just another game, but I know there are going to be a lot of people there," he said. "I just want to do my best."

Rose In Opener

Rose High School's Rampants will open the 1975 football season tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

The Rampants, ranked as one of the top 4-A teams in the state, will be playing host to the Goldsboro Cougars. For the Cougars it will be the second game of the year. They opened with a 35-14 win over Chapel Hill last week.

WILLIAMSTON—While the boys are out huffing and puffing and sweating on the football field, a group of girls are trying to form a competitive tennis team at Williamston High School, but they have a lot of work ahead.

Coach Susan Cox has 14 girls out for the team and five of that group return from last year's team. "I've got a couple that aren't playing because of work conflicts and other things," she said.

The other nine are mostly freshmen and a few sophomores making the team long on numbers but short on experience.

Heading the list of returnees is Nancy Sharpe. "She was number one singles last year and will be number one this year," said Miss Cox. Moving up to the second spot is Cissy Taylor. She was the number 5 player last year and because of the lack of experience she will be elevated.

Amy Hardison will be right behind Taylor moving up from sixth position to probably third. Rachel Roberts did not play singles last year, just doubles, but will have to move into the starting rotation this season. She has plenty of doubles experience but little in singles play.

Sophomore Debbie Mobley will play in the lower spots says Miss Cox. "She has potential." Lucia Peele rounds out the list of returnees but like Roberts has little singles experience. She played doubles last year.

"Most of them are inexperienced and I don't know what to expect," said Cox. She is looking for her younger girls to advance quickly in the next couple of weeks. "I hope we will get better."

Another problem Cox has to cope with is lack of depth. "Last year we had six good singles players that we don't have this year. Hopefully they will develop."

Another problem is lack of practice time. "We really haven't had long enough. Once we got out of the tobacco fields and working it picked up but haven't had two good (consecutive) practices. I didn't have but five or six at a time and a different group every day." Cox is looking to Lisa Roberts to help out on the depth problem. "She has a strong serve and a strong forehand but a weak backhand. She is working on it," the coach said.

Miss Cox looks for Roanoke Rapids to be the team to beat in the Northeastern Conference because of their returning players. "Washington will be strong and Tarboro has one of the better players in Geneel Petterson. The rest just don't have the depth."

Another thing to compound Miss Cox's problems is a match scheduled with Northeastern Monday. In looking ahead to it and the rest of the season she stressed that this is definitely a rebuilding year for the Lady Tiger's tennis team.

Braves Nosedive

ATLANTA (AP)—The Atlanta Braves have taken a nosedive in the National League West Division standings this year which may make losers out of the city's taxpayers, too.

The Braves drew 1,062 to a game with the San Diego Padres Thursday night, setting a record for the fewest fans to see a major league baseball game in Atlanta. The previous record was set Wednesday night when 1,119 showed up.

For the year, the fifth-place Braves are 61-79 and their average attendance is down to fewer than 8,000 per game, compared with 13,081 last year when the team finished a respectable third.

The loss in attendance should mean a "pretty good dip" in revenue from Braves games for the Atlanta-Fulton County Recreation Authority which owns the stadium and is paying off $18 million in stadium bonds.

Rose, State In Favored Roles

Here we go again! It's time for the panel of experts, and we use the term loosely, to pick the winners in the first week of the season.

This week, due to the small number of games, we're picking only nine collegiate games, plus the Rose High School contest with Goldsboro.

In addition, there are seven high school games on tap that we will take a look at individually.

Only two schools in the area clash against each other this week, Williamston and Farmville Central, going on the Jaguar field.

Williamston has the advantage of having played a game—a 14-0 victory over Gates County. Farmville will be breaking their game in, but they have the home field advantage. It's difficult to call, really, as are the rest of the games, but we'll go with the experience already gained by Williamston.

West Edgecombe meets North Pitt. This is the opener for both teams, and that makes it even harder to decide. The Panthers would like nothing better than an opening victory—so we'll try to help them along with a favorable pick.

Conley goes to East Cartaret in another dual opener. Again, we're operating in the dark. Again, we have to rely on a wild guess, and again we'll stick with the home field—East Cartaret here.

Ayden-Grifton goes to Kinston—and here the home field may not be quite as good an advantage. The Chargers have been a thorn in the Vikings' side for several years, and this year should prove no exception.

Rock Ridge travels to Roanoke, where the Redskins have a 7-0 win over 4-A Bertie behind them. That's enough. The Redskins all the way.

Jamesville goes to Columbia to open the Tobacco Belt season. Columbia had its troubles in

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

its opener last week, losing to Knapp, 12-0, while it's the opener for the Bullets. Again, we rely on instinct and hope it's right. We'll pick the Bullets.

Finally, Eastern Wayne is at Greene Central. The Warriors have left the Eastern Carolina Conference for the 4-A Division II league. They should be stronger this year, but Greene Central is seen as a contender in the ECC, and has the home field advantage. We like them.

Goldsboro is at Rose in the opener for the Rampants. The Cougars took a victory over Chapel Hill last week, and are always up for Greenville. It could be a lot tougher than our panel sees it. Right across the board, it's a 6-0 vote in favor of the Rampants.

East Carolina travels to Raleigh to take on the Wolfpack. State has lost only once to the Bucs, and is nationally ranked for this opening game. Both coaches are somewhat worried about their offense, but State has All-America Dave Buckley to guide them. Our panel has just one who doesn't go along with the 'Pack. We're looking for an upset, as it's 5-1 for State.

Other concensus picks: Carolina over William & Mary; Southern Methodist over Wake Forest; Pitt and Georgia, a toss-up; Alabama over Missouri; Maryland over Villanova; Baylor over Mississippi; Western Carolina and Toldeo, a toss-up; and Mississippi State over Memphis State.

The full poll:

East Carolina Given Slight Nod By Southern Coaches Over VMI

By MARSHALL JOHNSON

AP Sports Writer

Southern Conference football coaches, whose prediction accuracy in the past wouldn't have won them any awards, foresee a wide-open scrap for the title this fall among East Carolina's Pirates, Virginia Military's defending champion Keydets and The Citadel's Bulldogs.

On a 7-6-5-4-3-2-1 point basis in a poll in which the coaches did not rate their own teams, 1972-73 champion East Carolina emerged a slim choice with 42 points to 40 for VMI and 39 for The Citadel.

Furman's Paladins were a narrow choice to finish fourth with 31 points to 30 for Appalachian State's Mountaineers, second to VMI last year. Richmond's Spiders received 18 points, William and Mary's Indians 17, Davidson's Wildcats 5.

Three coaches didn't vote for Davidson since the Wildcats play only three league games and aren't eligible for the title.

Two teams open their seasons Saturday against Atlantic Coast Conference foes, William and Mary going to North Carolina in the afternoon and East Carolina to N.C. State at night.

"Right now our team is miles and miles ahead of last year offensively," says second-year East Carolina Coach Pat Dye, but the Pirates suffered grievous losses from their defensive unit.

And Dye says "I'm still from a school that feels you have to win on defense." In that respect, he has regained the services of Cary Godette, a 1973 All-Southern choice who sat out last year with an injury. Godette has been moved from middle guard to end.

Offensively, the Pirates return two All-Southern selections—tackle Rick Bennett and guard Jimbo Walker. But Bennett has a knee injury and has been declared out of action for the opener.

Also returning are three of last year's four top rushers—running back Kenny Strayhorn, quarterback Mike Weaver and running back Bobby Myrick, although Myrick has been moved to the defensive secondary to join All-Southern Jim Bonding.

Sophomore Mark Lambert appears to have won the quarterback job at VMI, whose All-Southern holdovers include wide receiver Ronnie Moore and center Doug Hines. Also back is last year's No. 2 ground-gainer, tailback Kim Glidewell.

But the Keydets' real strength is the defensive unit, where Coach Bob Thalman says "we didn't really lose but two people." The standouts include middle guard Phil Upton and linebackers John Willison and Glen Jones.

After turning VMI's program around in his fourth season, Thalman says he faces "a brand new challenge, and to me it's an exciting challenge—to stay where we are and that's on top."

Bobby Ross returns 15 starters for his third year at The Citadel, including All-Southern running back Andrew Johnson and All-Southern linebacker Brian Ruff. Johnson set a league record when he rushed for 1,373 yards last season and finished sixth in the nation.

"We do think we're gonna have a reasonably good team this year," says Ross, who cites three reasons: "More experience, an attitude of confidence, a return of all of our skilled people on offense."

In the latter category besides Johnson are quarterback Gene Dotson and wide receivers Doug Johnson and Mike Riley.

Third-year Coach Art Baker, whose Furman team surprised the league in 1973 and was a disappointment last year, says "we have experience returning at every position"—20 lettermen each on offense and defense. "We aren't going to change the things we're doing well."

Quarterback David Whitehurst, tackle Jeff Holcomb and running backs Ike Simpson, Larry Robinson and Andy Goss make for a potent attack. End Larry Anderson and tackle Tony Cox anchor a solid defense.

The big name at Appalachian State is Joe Parker, a junior who led the nation in punting last year and was an All-Southern selection. But Coach Jim Brakefield, starting his fifth season, has other standouts.

Among them are defensive back Quinton McKinney, linebacker Julius Thomas, offensive guard Tom Sofield, offensive tackle Andre Staton and wide receiver Devon Ford, the league's top kick returner.

"We didn't have the losses we normally have, but we were an awfully young football team last fall," says Brakefield. "We're still a young team, but we feel pretty good about our boys."

This is Richmond's last season in the league and second-year Coach Jim Tait says "I look for us to be a ball club that will make progress as we go. We'll have to learn as we go."

Gone are seven offensive starters and four on defense, and the Spiders lost defensive back Jeff Satyshur for the season with an injury in practice.

The most skilled people are on offense—tackle Rod Elam, wide receiver Rickey Brown and running backs Bobby Allen, Ed Kreilich and John Palazeti.

Jim Root starts his fourth season at William and Mary with the school's promise of a big-time program but minus all the offensive starts who made the Indians a threat last three years.

"If we have any talent to stay with people, it's gonna have to be on defense," says Root. Linebacker Craig McCurdy and ends Steve Dalton and Bruno Schmalhofer are the main hopes there.

Davidson went 2-7 over-all in Coach Ed Farrell's first season, which saw a football de-emphasized with no guarantee it will be upgraded.

But will Davidson ever be competitive?

"We play VMI, Appalachian and The Citadel," says Farrell. "If we can start to play on that level, we'll find the answer."

Dodgers Have Found A Pitcher

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers may have lost a pennant race, but they've found a pitcher.

"He's shown steady improvement over the year," Los Angeles Manager Walt Alton says of Doug Rau. "He's proven he can go nine innings. His control has been better and his change-up, too. But the big thing has been his control."

The left-hander has become one of the most vital and consistent starters on the Dodger staff and Thursday night, won his 13th game with a 3-2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

"You've got to have pride," said Rau, whose Dodgers are a hopeless 18½ games behind the Reds in the National League West. "It means a lot to me. At this stage of the season, beating a team that's won 92 games is pleasing."

Rau, who equaled his career high of 13 victories, credits his strong showing of late to a restful winter. He stayed out of winter ball for the first time in three years.

"I'm stronger now," says Rau. "My arm's healthy. No doubt about that."

In the only other National League games, the Atlanta Braves whipped the San Diego Padres 2-1 and the San Francisco Giants took a 2-1 decision from the Houston Astros.

Rau pitched a four-hitter and Willie Crawford ripped a two-run homer as the Dodgers stalle the Reds' drive for the West flag. Their "magic" clinching number remained at five.

Crawford's homer keyed a three-run first inning off loser Clay Kirby, 9-5. Dave Lopes opened with a single and moved to third on an errant pickoff attempt by Kirby.

Lee Lacey singled to drive in Lopes and Crawford followed with his eighth homer of the year.

The only hit Rau allowed in the first five innings was George Foster's 22nd homer. The Reds made it 3-2 in the sixth on three straight singles by Pete Rose, Merv Rettenmund and Joe Morgan.

Braves 2, Padres 1

Run-scoring singles by Ed Goodson and Marty Perez in the ninth inning gave Atlanta its victory over San Diego. A crowd of 1,062 watched the game, lowest ever for a major league baseball contest at Atlanta. Only 1,130 turned out for Wednesday night's game between the two clubs.

Giants 2, Astros 1

John Montefusco, 13-7, notched his third straight victory with ninth-inning relief help and Steve Ontiveros and Bobby Murcer each knocked in a run as San Francisco nudged Houston.

College Football Kicks Off Year With Four Of Top Twenty In Play

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

Alabama, Penn State, North Carolina State and Maryland get a jump on the other members of The Associated Press Top Twenty when the college football season gets under way this weekend.

N.C. State, ranked 13th, and No. 17 Maryland, two of the powers in the Atlantic Coast Conference, will be the first of the ranking teams to see action. Both are at home against nonleague opponents — the Wolfpack entertaining East Carolina while Maryland faces Villanova.

Sixth-ranked Penn State is the only Top Ten team scheduled for action Saturday. The Nittany Lions meet upset-minded Temple at the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin Field and the game has been designated an official Bicentennial event for the City of Philadelphia by the board of directors of "Philadelphia '76."

Television viewers will have to wait until Monday night for their first taste of action when ABC-TV airs the intersectional clash between second-ranked Alabama of the Southeastern Conference and Missouri of the Big Eight, from Birmingham, Ala. (9 p.m., EDT).

Four games are on tap in various conferences. Saturday afternoon, Western Michigan visits Central Michigan to help the Chippewas, last year's national College Division champs, make their debut in both the University Division and the Mid-American Conference.

After dark, Drake is at New Mexico State and West Texas State at Wichita State, for Missouri Valley Conference games while Fullerton State makes its Pacific Coast Athletic Association — and Division I — inaugural at Fresno State.

The only other daytime games find Pitt at Georgia, Lamar at Houston, William & Mary at North Carolina and Eastern Michigan at Ball State. The rest of the night schedule has Mississippi at Baylor, Mississippi State at Memphis State, Southern Methodist at Wake Forest, Texas-El Paso at San Diego State, Western Carolina at Toledo, Western Kentucky at Dayton, Southwestern Louisiana at Long Beach State, Pacific at Northeast Louisiana, North Texas State vs. Texas-Arlington at Irving, Tex., Northwestern Louisiana at Arkansas State and Marshall at Akron.

Penn State and Temple met

13 times from 1938-52 with the Lions holding a 9-3-1 lead after losing three of the first four intrastate battles. Coach Joe Paterno wasn't ecstatic when the resumption of the series was announced but has changed his tune.

Jack Favored In Golf Series

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, who came within three or four strokes of destroying this event, occupies his customary position as an overwhelming favorite in the weekend World Series of Golf.

Tom Weiskopf, Tom Watson and Lou Graham offer the opposition in the 36-hole, Saturday and Sunday affair that brings together the winners of all the world's major tests of golfing greatness.

Nicklaus, a four-time winner and a five-time runner-up in this elite event, qualified for a 10th appearance with his victories in the Masters and the PGA. And he almost made this a one-man tournament.

He missed a playoff for the British Open crown, won by Watson, by a single shot. He could have won the U.S. Open with pars on his last three holes but lost to Graham by two shots. And he lost the Canadian Open — the first alternate spot — in a playoff to Weiskopf.

Provision is made for three alternates in the World Series of Golf in the event someone wins more than one of the four qualifying tournaments. But Nicklaus came within four strokes of winning all four, plus the first alternate spot — the Canadian Open.

"If he'd won all of them, plus the Canadian, I don't know what we'd have done," one tournament official said.

But it didn't happen. It was close enough to prompt Nicklaus to call this one of his finest seasons ever, but it didn't happen. And, since it didn't happen, he comes into this one with a little something to prove.

And the World Series is being played on his most happy hunting ground, the famed Firestone Country Club course. Nicklaus has collected almost $375,000 in winnings from this course alone. In addition to his four World Series titles, he also won the American Golf Classic here and copped the PGA on this course just a little more than a month ago.

"He is not unbeatable," said Weiskopf, who ranks as his biggest challenger for the $50,000 first prize. "Jack can be beaten."

Weiskopf has won twice this season, as has the 25-year-old Watson, one of golf's most promising young players. Graham's only victory came in his U.S. Open upset. He and Watson are World Series rookies.

The event offers $15,000 to the second place finisher, $7,500 to third and $5,000 to fourth. It is the last time it will be played as a four-man tournament. It's scheduled to go to an expanded format at an unannounced site next season.

NBC-TV will provide national television coverage both days, 5-6:30 p.m., EDT.

Teamster Union Pension Fund Offered 'Bargains'

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer
NAPLES, Fla. (AP)—During the past several years of tight money and record-breaking mortgage interest rates, a huge Teamsters Union pension fund and its friends offered bargain financing for buyers of individual units in a waterside condominium.

For less than 12 per cent down payment, you could, for example, obtain a $22,700 resort unit overlooking a pleasant marina in the harbor of this Florida Gulf Coast community.

The Central States, Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension fund was willing to loan you the $20,000 balance for a modest interest rate of 6 1/2 per cent. That was as much as three points lower than the going rate for conventional home mortgages during the 1972-75 period that units were available here at Cove Inn.

What's more, if you didn't care to come up with the full down payment in cash, some friends and advisers to the fund were willing to lend you most of that amount—again at the bargain 6 1/2 per cent rate.

The pension fund insures the retirement income of truck drivers who contribute to it. How well it does this depends on how successfully the monies are invested.

Low rates on loans as small as $8,800 form a slight to the practices of the $1.4 billion Central States Fund, better known for its multimillion-dollar investments in projects promoted by favored borrowers, some connected with organized crime, than for its beneficence to the average vacation home buyer.

It appears, in fact, to be the first known instance where the fund has accepted large numbers of individual mortgages.

The second-mortgage holders are a group of lawyers who advise the pension fund, plus Alen Dorfman, the wealthy insurance agent whom James R. Hoffa installed to oversee the fund when Hoffa went to jail in 1967. Dorfman himself was convicted in 1972 of accepting a $55,000-kickback to arrange a fund loan.

The fund became involved with Cove Inn in 1964, when it obtained a $1.35-million mortgage on the property then being held by a Miami bank. As with so many other Fund deals, the loan went bad.

At a Collier County foreclosure sale, the Fund bid $1 million and took over the property, then being run as a motel. For more than three years the Fund held the property as it went through a series of three-and-four-figure delinquency tiffs with federal and state tax authorities.

In a series of transactions Jan. 2 and 3, 1969, the property passed through the hands of Dorfman, fund lawyer Alvin Baron, and three men in an outside law firm that advises the Fund, Morton J. Harris, Ira M. Burman and Harvey M. Sillets.

The property wound up in the hands of The Cove of Naples, Inc., which paid $1.9 million.

The Fund financed $1.55 million of that with a 26-year loan at 6 1/2 per cent interest, and the Dorfman group took a second mortgage for $250,000, thus enabling the buyers to take over for a $100,000 investment.

In 1972, Cove of Naples filed a condominium declaration and began to sell its more than 100 units, plus more than 40 boat slips, mostly to buyers using Central States financing.

Now Hunting A New Dean

DURHAM (AP)—North Carolina Central University is looking for a new dean for its law school.

Dean LeMarquis DeJarmon of the North Carolina Central University Law School has resigned his post effective next June 30, Dr. Albert N. Whiting, chancellor of the university, said.

DeJarmon joined the law faculty in 1955 and became dean in 1969. He was not considered a full-time dean because he had both administrative and teaching duties. He plans to resume teaching when his resignation becomes effective.

The NCCU law school has been under criticism from the American Bar Association. An ABA committee had threatened to strip the school of its accreditation unless an improvement plan was submitted by June 1.

Prof. Frank Strong, a consultant who wrote the improvement plan, called for the university to have a full-time dean and two assistant deans. An ABA report last Feb. 11 said the ABA had "great concern" about the quality of the school's management.

The Battle of Bennington took place in Bennington, Vt., on Aug. 16, 1777.

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♥ 2♠
4♥ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♣.

South, declarer at a contract of four hearts, made optimum use of the combined assets available to him to bring home a difficult contract.

North made an intelligent decision when he opted to raise his partner instead of selecting either of the other responses available—one no trump or one spade. Even though he had no ruffing value, he was influenced by the fact that his points consisted of the king of partner's suit and only an outside ace, with nothing resembling a stopper in either black suit.

East took a cheap opportunity to show his long spades, but nothing could stop South from going to game.

West led the jack of spades, declarer won the ace and considered his possibilities. It seemed that the contract depended either on finding West with the king of diamonds or East with the ace of clubs, and in view of the overall, the latter was a strong likelihood. However, a glance at the full layout will make it obvious that both these lines must fail.

Fortunately for South, he saw that the combination of the opening lead and East's overall presented him with an almost sure-fire line. He would build his game-going trick out of dummy's spade spots!

Declarer cashed the ace of trumps, overtook the queen with the king and led the ten of spades. Had East played low to this trick, declarer intended discarding a club. However, East split his honors and declarer ruffed with a high trump. The three of hearts was led to dummy's eight and the nine of spades was fired through East. He covered again. Declarer ruffed, and dummy's eight of spades was now established as a trick. Next came the queen of diamonds, just in case West had the king and could be tempted into covering. When West played low, declarer went up with dummy's ace, took a club discard on the high spade and conceded a trick to the king of diamonds. East shifted to a club, but two club tricks and the king of diamonds were all the defenders could collect.

Dead Pilot Was Drinking

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Charles P. Scarborough, 43, of Wadesboro, a Belk Department Stores executive who died Monday in the crash of a plane he was piloting, "had a lot more to drink than he should have," says the Mecklenburg County medical examiner.

A passenger, Richard Brownlee, 31, an accountant from Sumter, S.C., formerly of Greensboro, also died in the crash near Charlotte's Douglas Municipal Airport on the flight from Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The medical examiner, Dr. Hobart Wood, said Thursday that an autopsy showed an alcohol percentage of .27 in Scarborough's blood. It is generally considered that a level of .10 per cent means an average person is under the influence of alcohol, and .20 per cent is considered intoxicated.

Dr. Wood said that for a man of Scarborough's weight, 167 pounds, a .27 blood alcohol level is equivalent to the consumption of about 11 one-ounce drinks of 100 proof alcohol in 40 minutes.

They're Still Fiddling As Venice Sinks

By PETER J. SHAW
 VENICE, Italy (UPI) — Not only is Venice sinking but efforts to save it are being strangled in red tape.

Scientists are optimistic they can control the gradual sinking of Venice's marble and stone treasures. Despite austerity, Venice lovers around the world still seem willing to finance restoration of crumbling monuments. But action requires national directives and money and Venice has been waiting or both for nearly two years.

In April, 1973, a special law authorized a $450 million international loan to finance a series of preservation and protection measures. Venice still hasn't seen the cash and here is no telling when it will.

Directives from Rome were due in August, 1973. Former Premier Mariano Rumor scheduled a parliamentary vote on them Oct. 8, 1974, but his government fell on Oct. 4.

Embroiled in more urgent economic problems on the national level, the new Aldo Moro government has yet to reconsider the plans.

The directives are not the last hurdle. Final plans must be approved by the Venice regional assembly and municipality and are subject to veto by the Committee to Safeguard Venice, a watchdog body created by the special law.

In the regional body, deputies from Venice are outnumbered and often outvoted by those from Mestre and Marghera, industrial centers on the mainland.

The city itself was practically left without a government when Christian Democratic Mayor Giorgio Longo was forced to resign by national party leaders because he entered into a local coalition with the Communists.

The special law envisions construction of a movable barrier, perhaps of inflatable rubber, on the lagoon to contain the high tides that flood Venice an average of 25 days between October and April.

It also provides for an aqueduct to halt pumping of underground water, partly responsible for Venice sinking one inch every five years.

And it calls for restoration of state-owned landmarks, extensive urban renewal, rigid pollution controls and a proper sewage system because the 177 canals and the tides no longer do an adequate job.

Venice's air pollution has been reduced by restraints on industry, improved weather conditions and higher oil prices that have led to reduced waste in home heating.

But the combination of pollutants and salt-laden air is still hacking away at the facade of Venice. Officials estimate that every year four to six percent of the city's art works are lost or damaged beyond repair.

"Sculptures in marble and stone are the big problems," Venice art superintendent Francesco Valcanover said. "Marble is worst. There aren't enough restoration workers for sculpture but we have enough for pictures and frescoes. Our aim is preventive maintenance."

Scientists say Venice cannot sink forever, and they suspect it can't go much deeper. Dr. Alberto Tomasin, tidal specialist at the National Research Council's Venice laboratory, added:

"There is absolutely no doubt about technical solutions to the high water problem. They are clear and feasible and safe. It is a question of political will."

While that will is lacking, the value of the Save Venice loan dwindles. Foreign Undersecretary Adolfo Battaglia estimates inflation has already sapped one-third of its value and another two or three years would make it useless.

The Moro cabinet has three other champions of Venice: Ministers Bruno Visentini of finance, also chairman of the Save Venice watchdogs; Giovanni Spadolini of culture and environment and Pietro Bucalossi of public works.

"At least now we have people in the government we can talk to," said Joseph Martin, director of the Venice office of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

"The new government looks promising. There is hope. Venice may be sinking slowly but it is still alive."

UNESCO coordinates restoration work by private committees.

"At the moment very little is going on," Martin said. "Momentum has been lost and it could be very difficult to launch it again. Many donors are asking why we have to do more if the Italians themselves don't do much.

"I think if there is a real effort made by the Italians, people will still be willing to help and cooperate."

North Pitt School News

By GENEVA HOLDER
 North Pitt opened its doors for freshman orientation Tuesday morning.

There have been many changes made throughout the school and this year looks to be North Pitt's best all around year.

The Panther varsity football team has the best turnout of players in North Pitt's history. The team lost only five of its senior players and gained many new players this year.

North Pitt's first season game will be Friday night when the Panthers host West Edgecombe.

The annual staff has already begun work on this year's annual. They have been working for several weeks on the bi-centennial issue of the Prelude.

Yearbook sponsors Mrs. Rejeanor Scott, Editor Geneva Holder, and Bently Jones attended a yearbook workshop at Queen's College, Charlotte, Aug. 7-9, to help them with the yearbook work this year.

Every aspect of producing a good yearbook was covered. The workshop, conducted by Delmar Companies, was conducted by photographers, journalists and yearbook coordinators.

Volleyball and softball have been added to girls' sports this year.

Anyone interested in participating in volleyball, should attend a meeting Friday at 3:10 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Miss Jackie Carson of Bethel has joined North Pitt's office staff. She is a graduate of North Pitt and holds a B.S. degree in business education from East Carolina University.

Mrs. Patricia Worthington is a new teacher in the science department. She will teach biology.

A native of San Diego, Calif.,

Mrs. Worthington graduated from Rose High School and ECU. She has a B.S. degree in biology.

Sgt. Maj. Billy Greenwood, a native of Arkansas, joins Lt. Samuel Rucker in JROTC instruction. He served in the armed forces for 23 years.

Steve Miller, band and chorus instructor at North Pitt, says the music program is expanding and offers numerous opportunities for the students. Students receive course credit for participating in the music program.

Invited To See 'Almost Angels'

A sound-color film, Walt Disney's "Almost Angels," will be shown by Dr. David Foster, director of music of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, for children in the Greenville area Saturday, Sept. 6.

The 90-minute film about the Vienna Boys Choir, one of the world's most outstanding youth choirs, will be shown in the Fellowship Hall of Jarvis Church. Children of every church denomination, ranging from 4 to 11 years old, are invited to see the film at 10:30 a.m.

Prior to the film, Dr. Foster will conduct a 30-minute choir registration in the Fellowship Hall of Jarvis at 10 a.m. Children from 4 to 11 years old may register for one of the six choir programs being offered at Jarvis.

Most Alaskans live in one of four cities, with some 145,000 — nearly half the state's population — clustered in greater Anchorage.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. * Asterisk denotes warranted car.
