

Pres. Ford Plunges Into N.H. Campaign

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

KEENE, N.H. (AP) — President Ford, beginning a Republican vote-hunting mission, plunged into crowds lining the streets of this New Hampshire hamlet today in a hand-to-hand campaign on behalf of GOP Senate candidate Louis C. Wyman.

On his first political outing since a woman in Sacramento, Calif., pointed a pistol at him last Friday, Ford worked his way along the town square in Keene, shaking hands and greeting well-wishers.

The President rode a presidential limousine with the roof hatch pulled back so that he could stand and wave along the way.

He told a crowd of several thousand people in Keene that Wyman will make New Hampshire proud if the voters send him to the Senate in next Tuesday's special election against Democrat John A. Durkin.

Secret Service agent Larry Buendorf, who grabbed away the gun wielded by a follower of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson in the Sacramento incident, was on duty, often at the President's elbow.

There were no signs of unusual security precautions, although police and federal agents carefully scouted the route of the motorcade, which covered more than 120 miles and 14 communities, from Keene in the west to Portsmouth on the seacoast.

The President took over the New Hampshire campaign from former California Gov. Ronald Reagan. Their appearances could turn out to be an audition for a New Hampshire presidential primary contest between them next year.

Ford said he was glad that Reagan, a potential GOP White House challenger in 1976, had come to the state Wednesday in Wyman's behalf.

"I'm here because I want to show a common front and a united party," Ford said in Keene.

Ford's was a hectic, day-long schedule of small town campaigning. No President in recent times has undertaken so intensive a round of campaigning when he wasn't running in his own right.

The President's motorcade had barely begun when he made his first brief stop to shake hands and chat with a crowd of perhaps 100 people at a local Wyman headquarters.

The crowds grew heavier as the Ford entourage moved to the center of Keene, a city of 21,000. On the broad sidewalk circling the grassy town square, people were packed row upon row.

Ford walked along a rope barrier to shake hands, then addressed what he called "this wonderful turnout" from a loud-speaker set up beside his limousine.

He said the Senate, which deadlocked in efforts to decide whether Wyman or Durkin had won last November's disputed Senate election, had been forced by public pressure to let New Hampshire voters stage a rerun "rather than have the politicians make that choice."

In that situation, he said the voters have a special responsibility to go to the polls Tuesday. "Make it a big election," Ford said.

Although security was a concern of New Hampshire and federal authorities it didn't inhibit Ford's campaign style. Wyman said in a Keene radio interview that he was sure the President would be safe in New Hampshire.

Prepare New Grain Report

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is preparing to announce new grain harvest estimates that will provide a better idea of how much additional U.S. wheat and corn can be sold to the Russians without causing food prices to soar.

In advance of today's crop estimates a major American farm organization denounced President Ford's decision to suspend further sales until mid-October. The President hopes to reach some long-term accord with Moscow on grain purchases.

The American Farm Bureau Federation said the moratorium, partly to appease AFL-CIO President George Meany and maritime unions, was "capitulation to political blackmail" and is "potentially a bitter pill" for farmers.

Ford announced the suspension this week, saying more information would be available in a month about world grain supplies and needs, including another estimate of U.S. grain production. Meany and the maritime leaders, who earlier vowed to have longshoremen refuse to load grain ships, said after meeting with Ford that they would wait 30 days to see what developed.

Ford dispatched a team of specialists to Moscow in hopes of working out long-term grain sales arrangements in view of the huge, sporadic purchases Russia has made in the past.

The latest sales by U.S. firms, disclosed in July, included 177 million bushels of corn, 154 million of wheat and 51 million of barley. And because of drought damage to their own crops, the Russians want to buy more to maintain their food supply and reserves for live-stock.

According to Agriculture Department economists, the sales thus far will add 1.5 per cent to consumer food costs by the end of 1976. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and others consider this "minimal" because they say unrestricted exports are the key to farm prosperity and the U.S. trade balance.

WHY TRAFFIC LIGHTS?

What is the purpose of the traffic lights on Evans Street downtown? With no traffic on Evans Street now, it seems to me they should be removed and traffic should be allowed to continue through the intersection without having red lights stopping the flow. K.B.

City Engineer Charlie Holliday said the traffic lights are being retained to protect pedestrians. Some form of traffic signals will be provided even after the mall is completed, he indicated.

Waverly Akins Is Campaigning

By STUART SAVAGE

At present, Waverly Akins is an unannounced candidate for lieutenant governor of North Carolina, but there is no doubt the Fuquay-Varina man is running.

Yesterday, Akins met here over lunch with a handful of local supporters and members of the press. Newspapersmen were handed a printed folder headed "Press Information Kit: Waverly Akins for Lieutenant Governor."

Akins indicated that the official announcement of his candidacy would come in mid-October.

The candidate is aggressive, forceful, 43-years-old, and an East Carolina University graduate. After receiving the undergraduate degree from ECU in 1955, Akins served two years in the U.S. Army. He then entered the University of North Carolina Law School and received his law degree in 1961.

He's had an active career since that time. The tall, trim candidate was a special agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation from 1961 to 1964, is owner and manager of Akins Farms where he raises cattle and 130 acres of tobacco, and is a partner in a Raleigh law firm as well as having a private law practice in Fuquay-Varina.

He is founder and board chairman of Carolina Savings and Loan in Raleigh, has been a member of the Wake County Board of Commissioners since 1969 (serving as chairman from 1971 until 1974), and for the past year served as chairman of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners.

According to Akins, the issues of the campaign may vary from region to region across the state, but for Eastern North Carolina, the candidate sees crime and tobacco as two important topics.

A rising crime rate and "prices as well as allotments" of tobacco, Akins emphasized, need attention.

"I've advocated a 25 per cent cut" in tobacco allotments, Akins said, in an effort to help farmers get more for their tobacco on the auction floor.

Education is another issue he projects for the East as well for the entire state. "We should have equal opportunities in education," Akins said, explaining that 25 per cent of the state's young men taking exams for entrance into the military are failing it. North Carolina (continued on page 10)

THE PONDS AREA . . . of Greenville's North of the River Park is shown in this detail from the map of the 346 acre tract. 346-Acre Park Area Set For Recreation Project

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The time has come to move ahead on the development of Greenville's newest park area, the 346 acre North of the River tract of land, Boyd Lee, Director of the Greenville Recreation Department has reported.

Lee, in a report made Wednesday night at the September meeting of the Greenville Recreation Commission, said all transaction has finally been completed and that the land has been purchased. The $75,000 cost for the 346 acres was paid for by $37,500 in Community Development (federal) funds, with state funds paying for the additional $37,500.

Also, planned use for the land has met full approval of the Environmental Review Board. "In fact," Lee said, "the use we have in mind for the land is exactly what these people want, so they were happy about our plans."

The 346 acre park has a one mile frontage on the Tar River, beginning at a point a few hundred yards downstream from the Greene Street bridge over the Tar. Roughly triangular in shape, the area includes three ponds formed from sand pits located east of Meadowbrook Drive-In Theater. The land extends to Mumford Road. The only access point now is the road near the drive-in theater.

"Approximately 60 acres of the total is high land, including the ponds area," Lee said. "The remaining acreage is lowland or wetland that is most suitable for leaving in its wild state with possibly the lay out of nature trails."

Lee said "it will take considerable cleaning up to remove stuff dumped in part of the area. Our first thought for the three ponds is to use the largest, which has 8.87 acres, for a public boat paddling and fishing area. The State Wildlife people will stock it free of charge. We might also include SCUBA diving, something the ECU people have expressed an interest in."

In a second report, Lee revealed that studies of the operation of the city municipal pool, though not yet entirely complete, indicates that revenue received will pay for about 60 per cent of the operating costs of the pool. "This is encouraging," Lee added, "as estimates were the city would have to subsidize about 80 per cent of the operating costs."

In the first operational season, which ran from June 21 to late August, $5,598 were paid out in salaries for 11 personnel (some part time). Receipts amounted to $5,097.50. Not yet completely tabulated are costs of chemicals and other upkeep costs.

Lee praised the work of the pool's first director, John Gillette, who has left Greenville to accept full time work in South Carolina. He also announced that James (Jim) Parker, the assistant manager this year, has been hired for the pool's director next year.

In a report of overall operations and evaluation prepared by Gillette, suggestions were made for some changes in admission fees and hours. The commission will be studying these and other suggestions in the coming months.

On the matter of action to alleviate noise and excess light at the Jaycee Park which has been a matter of protest by a few nearby residents, Lee reported that he had submitted cost estimates of $2,500 to the City Council to cover corrective measures recommended by a Recreation Commission study.

Relative to plans for additional work to be carried out in the city's recreation facilities with the assistance of Community Development funds, Lee said: "Hopefully, the money will be available by late October."

renovation of the South Greenville Recreation Center; renovation of all existing recreation facilities to meet needs of the handicapped and the elderly; landscaping recreation parks; architecture fees for the proposed joint library-recreation facility; and lighting of Evans Park parking lot.

Now, Commercials To Spur 'Unhustle'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Finally, there's a commercial for the man who has less and wants to keep it that way. A sort of fast unhustle.

In fact, some 150 television stations and 800 radio stations have signed up to carry a whole series of such spots. Like the one with mythical baseball players Riordan and Daley.

Riordan: "Last year, me and ol' Daley made a deal. No more keepin' up with the Joneses. We were reminiscing about the good old days."

Daley: "Yea. Back in '56 I got me this beat-up '47 Chevy. So Riordan here gets a cherry '51 Olds with glasspacks."

Riordan: "The race was one, lemme tell ya."

Daley: "New cars every three years, campers, snowmobiles, electric hot lather...the latest model everything."

Riordan: "Seemed like fun, but we got to thinking. We didn't need all that stuff. Worked so hard paying for it, we hardly had time to use it."

Daley: "See, we figure, you keep on using resources like there's no tomorrow, there may be no tomorrow."

Another commercial has Gov. Richard D. Lamm strolling through a ghost town in Colorado, noting that "all of a sudden, the silver was gone, and the town closed up overnight. Our earth could have the same problem. We've got only so many natural resources."

The public service spots were formally unveiled at a press briefing Wednesday by the Center for Growth Alternatives, an environmental group. Several stations already are airing the messages. Broadcast personality Edward P. Morgan, who narrates several of the commercials, told reporters that "I and many of you were brought up by the Chamber of Commerce—to believe that bigger is better. "Hopefully, these spots will encourage people to question that idea."

Boston Relaxing

BOSTON (AP) — School attendance was rising as court-ordered desegregation continued, but many white children were staying home. And for the first time daily attendance figures showed blacks and other minority children outnumbering whites in Boston public schools.

Students reported for classes this morning, many of them arriving on buses to schools where now-relaxed police officers and U.S. marshals were still stationed. There were no crowds on the streets, and the entrance to school buildings was orderly.

The bus route into South Boston High School was changed this morning because of an oil slick. There was no indication of the cause of the slick, and city street crews were called in to sand it.

Guide Jobs Are Still Popular

STURBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Carol Adams used to dispense birth control information. Now she dresses up in old-fashioned clothes and does out historical facts to visitors at Old Sturbridge Village.

"It's not so different. It's still working with people," 26-year-old Mrs. Adams said.

She and her husband Jay, 30, were such frequent visitors to the recreated 19th century village they decided to stay.

This summer they have been among the 200 people who wear early American costumes and answer questions from the steady flow of tourists that sometimes reaches 5,000 on a busy summer day.

"You learn to say 'I don't know' a lot," Mrs. Adams said. But then she and her husband, like many Sturbridge employees, tend to use their free time reading and studying early American history so they'll be better able to answer questions next time.

Twenty years ago most of the help were retired people.

"A lot of young people want to work here now. It's all part of the interest in crafts and getting back to nature," said a spokeswoman for the nonprofit historical village.

She also said an increasing number of college graduates are applying for the jobs, which pay the minimum wage of $2.10 an hour to start.

Adams, formerly of New Britain, Conn., was a researcher for the Connecticut Public Expenditure Council before he began working at the village.

In Sturbridge Village people assume the simpler life of the early 19th century, a life of spinning yarn and slopping the hogs, without the attendant inconveniences. Employees in costumes are not allowed to wear wristwatches because, of course, there were none. But on a blistering summer day an electric fan can be used if it's under a counter and out of sight.

It is still an ideal job for local retired people, who can work two or three days a week. To 75-year-old Hilda Ferguson, who didn't work until her husband died several years ago, her job as "a 19th century woman" gets her out of the house in nearby Southbridge and allows her to meet people from all over the country.

Sturbridge Village officials expect to top their year-round average of 1,000 visitors daily this year and next because of interest piqued by the nation's bicentennial celebration.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A woman in Texas wrote that she stopped reading the column for awhile because frankly she was worried about me.

Not only was I whimpering about washers that ate one out of each pair of socks, but I had publicly stated there was a Loch Ness washer monster that scrambled everyone's laundry and you often ended up with a pair of shorts you had never seen before in your life.

Last week she wrote, "For several weeks my husband has been forced to wear a pair of women's support pantyhose, size medium although he is six feet tall and weighs 175 pounds. They were with my panthose I had washed on gentle cycle, but THEY WERE NOT MINE AND WHO ELSE'S COULD THEY BE?"

Good grief, woman, get hold of yourself.

I could take the easy way out and put you in touch with a reader in Portland who, last December, lost a pair of women's support pantyhose and in its place got a maternity top (she's 73) and contact the woman in Palo Alto who lost her maternity top and ended up with a Marine jumpsuit, but it's time consuming and it's futile. The plain and simple truth is washers were never meant to be domesticated.

I never see a Frankenstein movie but that I don't visualize a washer on a table in a laboratory... with lights flashing, test tubes bubbling and slowly the washer begins to pulsate and the dial turns slowly to pre-soak, the lid begins to jiggle, and a monster is born.

A monster with a mind of its own who can fade things pink in an all white load, put lint on socks that are washed alone, and know the exact day when the warranty expires.

Day by day I see the washers of this country getting smarter and smarter. I saw one the other day that is programmed to pre-soak, release the bleach, add the soap, and cut loose the softener. The only thing it needs a human for is to tear the machine apart looking for the mates to all the socks.

I haven't told this to a living soul, but a friend of mine who always enjoyed a wonderful relationship with her washer, dropped in a cross-your-heart garment last week that came out with only one side left.

Her husband (a practical man) suggested if half of it was missing, that's all she put in. Her washer repairman didn't want to talk about it.

Moral of the story: Never turn your back on your washer. You never know when they'll go native!

Pilot Club To Publish 1976 Birthday Listing

The Pilot Club of Greenville is now conducting its third annual Community Birthday Calendar campaign, "An Adventure in Community Friendship." This is for publication of the 1976 calendar.

The birthday calendar will list schedules of school activities, meeting dates of organizations in town, and names and birthdays or anniversaries on the dates they take place.

There will be advertisements of local business firms on the calendar for reference each day of the year. In the two years previous, over 2,000 listings have been published.

Proceeds from the sales go to the club's charitable outlets and community service projects.

Each listing is 25 cents and calendars are $1.00. Persons interested in listing birthdays and anniversaries, or the birthday and anniversary of a friend should call Mrs. John McCarthy, Chairman, or any Pilot Club member. Final date for acceptance of listings is Sept. 22.

Don't Be Too Critical Of Young Couple

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem concerns a young couple who lives near us. I'll call them Joyce and Bill. He's 20 and she's 19, and they've been married for 10 months.

We could be a happy foursome but they overdo the lovey dovey bit. They're always cuddling, kissing and fondling each other. It really gets embarrassing.

I suggested having them over for bridge last night because they really are good company otherwise, but my husband said the way they carry on is too sickening.

Is it possible for a couple to be TOO married? How can we let Joyce and Bill know that we would see more of them if they would save that love stuff for their own bedroom? We hate to hurt their feelings.

ANOTHER COUPLE

DEAR COUPLE: It's not possible to be TOO married, but it is possible to carry the lovey dovey bit beyond the limits of good taste in public.

Technically, Joyce and Bill are still honeymooning, so don't be too critical. In time they'll cool off. (But frankly, isn't their behavior preferable to that of couples who put down, needle and belittle each other?)

DEAR ABBY: My girl friend is a rather kooky, unconventional but lovable gal. We plan to marry soon.

I told her I wanted to buy her a diamond ring, and she said she didn't want a ring—she wanted a diamond for her navel instead!

I thought she was putting me on, but she wasn't. She says belly dancers wear them. She is not a belly dancer; she's a receptionist at a recording studio.

Can you please tell me where a navel diamond can be purchased? (How would it stay in?) Have you ever seen one? I don't mean a fake one. I mean a real one. Thank you.

SERIOUS IN L.A.

DEAR SERIOUS: I've never seen a navel diamond and haven't the foggiest notion how one would "stay in." But if you have the money, I am sure one of many creative jewelry designers will be able to come up with something to fill the bill—and your girl friend's navel.

DEAR ABBY: I'll soon be having my first baby, and I plan to breast-feed it.

I'd like to know how you and others feel about seeing a mother nursing her baby in doctors' offices, waiting rooms, shopping-center malls, restaurants, etc.?

With the increased popularity of breast-feeding, plus Women's Lib, I have seen more and more public breast-feeding.

Does it make some people uncomfortable to witness it? Should I hide from house guests and visitors?

MOTHER-TO-BE

DEAR M-T-B: Breast-feeding a baby is natural and beautiful, but if you have a choice, do it privately. If you do nurse your baby in public, wear a shawl that can be lightly tossed over your bosom while baby nurses and be as inconspicuous as possible.

DEAR ABBY: Stick to your guns. You are right.

Nowhere in the Bible does it say that Jesus had long hair. However, your correspondent referred to Jesus as a Nazirite! He is wrong. A Nazirite was a member of a sect whose male members took a vow never to cut their hair, shave their beards, drink wine or touch a dead body.

Jesus was NOT a Nazirite—he was a Nazarene, which means he came from the city of Nazareth. Jesus drank wine, touched the dead, cut his hair and shaved his face. Just keeping the record straight in...

Ballerina Alicia Alonso Says Cuba Won't Drop The Ballet

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Cuban ballerina Alicia Alonso, the first prominent Cuban artist to appear in the United States since the early days of Fidel Castro's regime when she danced at American Ballet Theater's fund-raising "gala" this summer, says that ballet is part of the cultural life of Cuba.

Summer Reports Given At Meet

Reports of summer activities highlighted the fall meeting of the Greenville Service League held Monday morning at Elm Street Recreation Center.

Mrs. John Biggs, president, welcomed members and recognized new officers, Mrs. William Sneed, corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. C. Taylor Jr., treasurer, and Mrs. Bernard Vick, recording secretary.

Reports were given by the following committee chairmen: Mrs. Robert Van Veld, chairman of the Laughinghouse Hospital Fund, reported disbursements made for patient care; Mrs. Robert Abbott said that 10 calls for layettes had been answered; Mrs. Charles Gilbert, Lending Chest, announced the loan of a hospital bed and a walker;

Mrs. Norman Bennett, Emergency Charities, reported a call for utilities had been answered; Mrs. Tom Haigwood, Hospital Activities, said that 140 July 4 favors had been made the hospital and an arrangement for the Pediatric Ward was provided by Mrs. Cecil Bilbro.

Mrs. Donald Cherry, chairman of the 1976 Charity Ball, announced her ball committees.

Mrs. Donald Bailey, Bloodmobile, reported that during the summer, 118 league members worked 486 hours and helped collect 655 pints of blood. The next visit of the Bloodmobile in Pitt County will be Sept. 30 at the Moose Lodge. A letter of appreciation from Billy Ross Jr., chairman of the Pitt County Bloodmobile Association, was read.

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 cup milk
6½- or 7-ounce can tuna, drained (if solid pack, break up)
Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, salt, pepper, paprika and milk; if it is thicker than you like, stir in a little more milk. Add tuna and reheat. Serve over split, buttered, hot baking powder biscuits. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

Asked whether Cuba might go the way of the People's Republic of China and dance only peans to revolutionary governments and no more "Swan Lake," Miss Alonso says, "You see, in Cuba they have liked ballet for many years. Since the late 17th century, we've been having ballet dancers and since the middle of the 18th century we've had companies. We have ballets based on every theme that is worth it to see."

Miss Alonso started Ballet Alicia Alonso in 1948, which has been totally supported by the government since 1959 as the National Ballet of Cuba, with her as director.

"The government tries to advance everything that has cultural value for our people and it considers that ballet has great value for our people. Art is a necessity of a human being. If you go far back to ancient caves and see paintings on the walls, you will realize it. Art is so beautiful that people invented it for themselves."

Her company sends small troupes around to schools, military installations and places of work like factories. They show how ballet was taken originally from natural movements of people, then developed, and how ballet costumes started as street dress, then evolved into something especially to express the ballet dance. Later, she said, the schoolchildren, military group or factory workers attend a special performance in the theater and see what ballet is now, in performance. "Parents are pleased to have their children learn about it. And ballet dancing has become an important career in Cuba, a respected career."

Miss Alonso studied ballet in her native Cuba and in New York and London. She started her career in the late 1930s in Broadway shows and joined Ballet Theater in the corps de ballet at its beginning, in 1940. For some years she was its leading classical ballerina.

More recently, she has been running her company and dancing in Cuba, with guest appearances in many parts of the world, although near-blind for about the last 10 years. She had her first detached retina in 1941, while with Ballet Theater, and learned the steps of "Giselle" by dancing them with her fingers while lying flat in bed. She has had three retina operations, and a cataract operation on both eyes, the latter in Barcelona two and a half years ago.

From being able to see only a light as strong as a spotlight, she opened her eyes after that operation and said, "Doctor, you didn't shave today!"

"They told me I'd have to get used to seeing again. I didn't believe it, but now I know. Lights had too much color and there was too much movement and too many things to see. At first, to be able to balance, dancing, I had to close my eyes."

Miss Alonso now practices ballet two and a half hours a day, every day. Before her cataract operation, she practiced twice a day, a couple of hours each time.

Her dancing looked wonderful, in the white swan pas de deux from "Swan Lake," at the American Ballet Theater gala performance, the kind of ballet security and lyricism seldom attained at her age of 53. She is at a loss to explain how she does it. As to whether she'll undertake the entire, demanding "Swan Lake" again, she says she hasn't thought about it. "I would like to do new ballets. I may dance 'Carmen' and a new ballet that is going to be done for me in October."

About whether she'll dance again in the United States, she laughs heartily and says she hasn't brought along a crystal ball, but she probably will. The brief summer visit was arranged with the cooperation of both American and Cuban governments.

Dance Club To Meet Friday

The Greenville Cotillion Dance Club will be meet Friday evening at the Moose Lodge.

Signal For Big Political Year

It's obvious that there's a big year ahead in politics when the director of the State Bureau of Investigation resigns to head up a campaign.

Charles Dunn did just that this week, after several days of published speculation that he would do so. Dunn resigned to become associated with the campaign of Edward O'Herron, who is still an unannounced candidate for governor. The reports are that Dunn will be O'Herron's campaign manager.

O'Herron, chairman of the board of Eckerd's drug stores, is already making swings about the state in an effort to gain support for a gubernatorial run next year, and gaining the services of Dunn in his campaign should be a big plus for him.

Dunn served briefly under a Republican attorney general following the resignation of Robert Morgan to run for U.S. Senate. Dunn survived that and it had been assumed that he was safe in the office of SBI director once another Democrat, Rufus Edmisten, was elected attorney general.

Edmisten had nothing but praise for Dunn as he announced he would leave the office. "Good law enforcement and the name of Charlie Dunn are synonymous in North Carolina," Edmisten said. "It would make my life a lot easier if he would stay."

Dunn wasn't entirely clear as to why he would give up an apparently secure position in which he is acknowledged to have done a good job, except to say that "to a degree, we've gone just about as far as we can go with the bureau" at the present time.

He reported that he had first met O'Herron in August and was soon offered a position in O'Herron's campaign organization.

Apparently the call back to the political wars was strong for Dunn and he decided to accept O'Herron's offer.

At any rate, it is obvious that Charles Dunn will leave a far stronger State Bureau than he found when he originally accepted the job. There was some concern at the time that he didn't have the law enforcement background, but he proved to be an able administrator and that has paid off in a more efficient organization.

There is little doubt that Dunn will be helpful to O'Herron, who is not as well known throughout the state as some of the other candidates for governor. Charles Dunn will bring his own hard won prestige to the O'Herron campaign.

Model Guns Deadly

By NAOAKI USUI
TOKYO (AP) — Japanese gangsters are converting toy and model guns into deadly weapons to arm themselves in this country where controls are so strict a "Saturday Night Special" means only a weekend TV show.

The National Police Agency reported that authorities seized 1,117 pistols and revolvers in 1974, of which 823 were model guns converted to fire actual bullets. In the first four months of 1975, police seized 380 handguns, 299 of them remodeled to make them shoot.

"Gangsters must have many more converted guns. Some say they have 6,000-7,000 in total, others say more than 11,000," a spokesman for the National Police Agency reported. "They are trying to train skillful gunsmiths to produce these guns."

There were 1,707 murder cases reported in 1973 in Japan, but only 0.4 per cent were committed with firearms. Among the 1,022 robbery cases, only 1.5 per cent were carried out at gunpoint, a National Police Agency report said. Knives, clubs and even the traditional Japanese sword are the more popular weapons.

Among the 37 murder cases with guns reported in 1974, gangsters committed 34 of them, mostly in their power struggles, police said. Overall, nearly 90 per cent of all crimes with guns involved such crime organizations, the agency reported.

Japan's extremely strict gun control laws are credited with keeping the rate of crime with guns so low. Nobody in Japan is permitted to own pistols and revolvers except law enforcement officials, self defense forces and a small number of sports shooters.

One must get permission from local authorities to own hunting rifles, shotguns and air rifles. They are subject to an annual renewal and official inspection. Authorities refuse permission to own weapons to gangsters, ex-convicts and those with a history of mental illness.

Japanese police carry revolvers but rarely fire them. When they do, police chiefs promptly explain to the public how and why it was considered proper and necessary to use guns in each case.

Water Is Becoming Scarce

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—That plentiful supply of cheap water available at the touch of a tap is likely to be the next victim of spiraling inflation, and certain to become more scarce in North Carolina.

That is the central message carried to representatives of local water systems and big industrial users at a recent Raleigh seminar.

Second only to electric utilities, water is the biggest public utility system in existence. The price of water has not kept up with the sharp hikes in electricity, but some changes are in store.

For one, the shape of things to come might include a "peak-pricing" system for water. That is something Fred Griffith, chief of the Fairfax County, Va., water system can talk about firsthand, having just finished a summer of experience in this experimental field.

Summer Rates
In the summertime, when water use increases tremendously, customers in that Washington, D.C., suburb face a surcharge on any water used which is above that normally used in cooler months.

If water use remains constant, the customer actually has gotten a rate reduction: down from 68 cents per thousand gallons to 60 cents per thousand.

But for those who water their lawns and gardens regularly, own swimming pools, operate golf courses, or such heavy summertime water guzzlers, the cost is increased four times.

The system adds $2 per thousand gallons; a total of $2.60 per thousand, and the standard $12 or $15 household bill skyrockets to $60 or more.

The theory is simple: "If you water your lawn all day and I don't, then I am subsidizing you," Griffith explains. The industrial user who regularly draws out lots of water isn't affected, since it uses a steady amount the year around.

Griffith has an explanation for this system similar to that offered by power companies: a water system must have plant and reservoir capacity to meet peak demand, a capacity fully used perhaps only a few days each summer. The rest of the time the expensive facility just sits there waiting to meet the next demand.

Griffith's rate system sparked a lot of interest among Tar Heel water experts at a seminar, even though he admits candidly it is hard to evaluate the results. "Reduction is marked, but it will take five years of experience to produce solid figures."

Benefits are twofold: fairer rates with increased income; and forced conservation of water by dollar-conscious buyers.

Critical Supply
The dilemma has two horns; the need for increased income, and the need to conserve.

James E. Harrington, secretary of the State Department of Natural and Economic Resources, has just completed a computer survey of North Carolina aimed at pinpointing just when communities across the state would run out of water if they had to depend on existing water supply.

One hundred systems would be in a critical water situation within 25 years; 8 are in critical shape right now, and 29 face severe trouble in the next 10 years.

Harrington is urging steps now to plan for trouble ahead. "During the rainy season, or when you drive across the multitude of rivers and streams... it may be difficult to believe that N. C. communities can run out of water. But... they can, they nearly have, and they will continue to do so if we proceed on our present course," Harrington says.

The INSIDE REPORT

West German's Nightmare

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
BONN—A private letter from Gerald R. Ford to Helmut Schmidt last May politely informed the West German chancellor that the U.S. wants to renew the expired "offset" agreement under which the Germans help defray the cost of American troops here in Germany.

What is odd about that letter is not Mr. Ford's request, because an offset agreement in one form or another has been part of the Washington-Bonn household arrangements for years. What is odd is that, four months later, Chancellor Schmidt has not yet answered the President's letter.

The case of the unanswered letter points up the single most dangerous set of problems confronting Schmidt and West Germany today.

Problem No. 1: Schmidt's new economic program concentrates far more heavily on reducing the record $17 billion budget deficit than on stimulating the country's worsening economy. By severely limiting government spending, pruning government payrolls and raising taxes (including employe contributions to social security) the chancellor's economic program leaves little room for a new offset agreement.

Indeed, Schmidt's economic advisers are indignant that the U.S. is even pushing for one, since the original offset was designed to help solve the U.S. balance of payments deficit, now a non-problem for the U.S. but a growing problem for West Germany.

Problem No. 2: Schmidt wants the U.S. to help handle the recession-ending part of his economic crisis by reviving Germany's flattened export trade. That means injecting new cash into U.S. consumer pockets to be spent on West German automobiles and other production, no matter what the inflationary impact on the U.S.

Problem No. 3: Dwarfling both these questions is Schmidt's nightmare that conflicting and contradictory economic strategies of the Western democracies, all staggering under recession and inflation, threaten the capitalist West with disaster and feed Moscow's line that capitalism is marked for extinction.

Thus, the true explanation of Schmidt's long delay in answering Mr. Ford's letter is political pressure on the U.S. to take a much stronger lead in coordinating and strengthening Western economic strategy before it is too late. Although the high unemployment here has not yet led to any form of political extremism, officials point with alarm to left-wing student activists now asking such questions as this: "Why is there no unemployment in the Soviet Union?"

The Schmidt government is terrified of getting caught in the kind of runaway inflation that savaged the last Social Democratic government and led to Adolf Hitler. That explains the heavy emphasis in Schmidt's new four-year program on budget-cutting, tax-raising, anti-inflation measures and its lack of anti-recession stimulants. ("This head of the Christian Democrats, exclaimed to us.")

Schmidt is accordingly taking a large gamble on rescure from an unlikely pair of anti-inflationist rescuers—Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and Federal Reserve chairman Arthur Burns. He wants them to do in the U.S. what he is unwilling to do in West Germany: hypo the U.S. economy enough to fully restore U.S. purchasing power in the German export market.

One of every four workers here is directly working for that market, the most dynamic engine of the faltering West German economy. The U.S. share of German exports was about 11 per cent until the U.S. recession. It is now only little more than half that much.

Schmidt, the shrewdest of today's European leaders, understands well enough that Simon and Burns worry as deeply about U.S. inflation as he worries about his own. Nevertheless, he feels more stimulus can be applied to U.S. recovery without risking runaway inflation.

To ease the Simon-Burns orthodoxy, West German officials are quietly talking about the resurrection of former Treasury Secretary George Shultz, highly regarded here, to deal directly in Washington with the critical problems of interdependence of Western economies.

Beyond that, Schmidt has become Mr. Ford's most persistent gadfly, lobbying him relentlessly to lead the West out of its economic crisis. Some critics see him simply trying to ride Uncle Sam's shoulders to victory in next year's election here. But in fact Schmidt's nobler concern is collapse of the West not growing out of Soviet power but from political erosion growing out of economic disorder.

Education Disaster Area

The College Entrance Examination Board released its analysis of 1975 test results a few days ago. The figures were shocking, dismaying, disturbing—pick your adjective—but they were not surprising.

Any experienced educator, any newspaper editor, any personnel director could have predicted the dismal report: Test scores last spring dropped for the 12th consecutive year. The Class of '75 scored ten points lower in verbal skills and eight points lower in mathematical skills than the high school graduates of the preceding year. The average scores were the lowest in two decades.

There is a defensive tendency, in certain liberal circles, to explain the decline in terms of the increasing number of "culturally disadvantaged" students who take the tests every year. The theory holds that the tests are "culturally biased," but the theory is specious. The standardized tests are based upon verbal and mathematical skills that should be within the grasp of any high school graduate applying for college entrance. In any event, the increasing numbers of such disadvantaged pupils are not significant in a test group of nearly a million students.

What we have here is disaster. Perhaps the most disheartening figures have to do with the 20 percent decline in the number of students scoring at superior levels on the verbal test. This test measures simple literacy—the ability to read, to write, to understand, and to communicate. These are fundamental skills, on which all else depends. It is bad enough that mathematical skills are dropping; we are raising children who cannot make change, double a recipe, measure board-feet, or calculate miles-per-gallon. It is worse to raise a generation unable to read and to follow the instructions on a box.

The melancholy situation, to repeat, is familiar to every person whose work brings him close to high school graduates. There are exceptions, of course—brilliant exceptions—but today's typical graduate is in deep trouble. After 12 years of schooling, he misspells even the easy words; he cannot read fluently aloud; he makes a mere stab at punctuation; he stumbles over the elementary questions of an application form.

At the University of Wisconsin not long ago, they gave a test on English usage to students intending to take up journalism. Of 200 who took the test, 125 flunked. The failure rate was double the 30 percent of a year ago. And these were students who want to be writers!

Over this past weekend, various observers fumbled to explain the college entrance scores. Technology was to blame: We no longer write letters, we talk on the telephone instead; we no longer read newspapers so attentively, we rely on TV. Some observers mentioned the disruptions of school desegregation. Between 1955 and 1975, we were reminded high school students lived through a time of disenchantment, tension, and national unease; they could not concentrate.

Well, maybe. It occurs to me that the primary blame for this colossal failure should be placed squarely upon the educational establishment. Our schools have been afflicted with teachers more interested in fads than in fundamentals. The textbook publishing houses, obsessed with form instead of substance, bear a terrible burden of guilt. The taxpayers have invested a fortune in their schools—no other field of public expenditure approaches the growth of educational

Other Editors Say Metrics Gain

(Wilson Times)

Legislation to place the nation "predominantly" on the metric system is well on the way, and there is a good chance of passage this year or the next.

The House approved the bill by a vote of 300 to 63 setting up a federal mechanism for voluntary metric conversion without any target date. The bill goes to the Senate, where the Commerce Committee plans hearings in October. The Senate approved a metric bill in 1972, but it died in the House.

Last year a bill providing for a 10-year metric conversion period came to a vote in the House and was badly beaten. The key to the striking turnaround Friday was the removal of any fixed national timetable from the new bill. Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., a strong metric advocate, complained that this weakened the measure's impact but he went along with the change as necessary to defuse opposition from some labor unions and small business groups.

Anticipating eventual conversion, local school officials are gradually introducing students to the metric system, which will move the United States into weighing and measuring in kilograms, meters and liters.

Complete conversion was toned down at the request of labor. The bill's formal title originally was "A National Policy of Converting to the Metric System in the United States." This was altered to read: "National Policy of Coordinating the Increasing Use of the Metric System in the United States."

Rep. James Symington, the bill's main sponsor, told the House a national 10-year conversion goal "actually might be too long for certain sectors of the economy." Conversion is running ahead of schedule in Australia and some parts of the U.S. economy might need longer than 10 years.

Time schedules for conversion in each economic sector are supposed to be coordinated by a U.S. Metric Board that would be created by the House bill. The board would have 21 presidentially appointed members plus four members of Congress. It would have the job of calling industry groups together to discuss timetables and other details of conversion but it would not have any enforcement powers.

The goal for the conversion should be a nation predominantly, although not exclusively, metric. Advocates of the bill say that the nation gradually is converting to metric measurement anyway as export-oriented industries try to compete in foreign markets and that a planned conversion will cut confusion and costs.

Strength For Today

THE SAME LANGUAGE
In a Connecticut suburb of New York City a retired businessman recently employed a gardener who had just emigrated from Puerto Rico to the United States. The gardener knows practically no English; the retired businessman knows practically no Spanish. But they both love flowers, and each has a high regard for the other.

But the businessman says that over a period of time he learned to understand a great deal of what the Puerto Rican gardener said to him. He thinks that it is because they both think in terms of flowers and beauty. Their minds run along the same channels.

God is always speaking to these hearts of ours. It is very hard for finite beings like ourselves to understand the communication which the gracious Father continually sends to his children. But if we love the same things God does, then it happens with us as with these two men, that we begin to understand what God is saying to us.

First Lady Trying To Explain

By ANN BACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford's comments on premarital sex generated nearly 28,000 letters and telegrams, more than two-thirds of which were critical of her remarks.

Sheila Weidenfeld, Mrs. Ford's press secretary, said Wednesday that the first lady is answering this mail which, to date, includes "8,000 pros and 19,500 cons."

Mrs. Ford's letter to her critics explains that she does not believe in premarital sex, but that she realizes that many in today's generation do not share her views.

Answering an interviewer's question last month in which her 18-year-old daughter, Susan, was used as a hypothetical example, Mrs. Ford said she would not be surprised if Susan were to tell her at some point that she was having an affair.

She added, "...I would certainly counsel and advise her on the subject."

Mrs. Weidenfeld said the first lady will answer all of her mail and believes her original remarks were misunderstood. Although Mrs. Weidenfeld declined to make the letter public because "this is a response to those who have written," she confirmed that Mrs. Ford is answering many of the letters this way:

"I wish it were possible for us to sit down and talk with one another. I consider myself a responsible parent. I know I am a loving one. We have raised our four children in a home that believes in and practices the enduring values of morality and personal integrity.

"I want my children to know that their concerns, their doubts and their difficulties, whatever they may be, can be discussed with the two people in this world who care most—their mother and father."

Mrs. Ford said that during the television interview, she spoke "to the need of this communication—rather than the specific issues we discussed."

"My husband and I have lived 26 years of faithfulness in marriage," Mrs. Ford wrote. "I do not believe in premarital relationships, but I realize that many in today's generation do not share my views. However, this must never cause us to withdraw the love, the counseling and the understanding that they may need now more than ever before. This is the essence of responsible parenthood."

40 Years Ago Today

September 11, 1935

After enjoying their usual summer vacation, Pitt County school children will make their annual pilgrimage back to the schoolroom tomorrow morning to take up where they left off last year the arduous duties of obtaining an education.

Donald Conley, director of public instruction in the county, who announced the list of teachers in the various schools last Monday, said today everything was in shape for each school to move off smoothly on its annual grind.

The Pitt County ABC board today was considering plans for establishing a second liquor store in Greenville, but negotiations had temporarily been stalled today by the inability to obtain a suitable location. C. Horne, chairman of the board, said.

The county's fifth store was opened at Bethel last Saturday and reports today indicated good business was experienced during the three days the store has been open.

Scores Said Marked For Death

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Sandra Good, a disciple of mass murderer Charles Manson, said today that an "International People's Court of Retribution" has marked for assassination scores of business executives whose firms damage the environment.

Miss Good, 30, is the roommate of Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, another Manson follower, who was indicted by a federal grand jury here Wednesday for the attempted assassination of President Ford.

In an interview in her apartment, Miss Good gave The Associated Press a list of about 75 names of persons she said were marked for death. She identified them as executives primarily in the power, lumber, oil, food and chemical industries.

Miss Good gave the AP a statement saying, "the International Peoples' Court of Retribution is a wave of assassins. It is made up of several thousand people throughout the world who love the earth, the children and their own lives. They have been silently watching executives and chairmen of boards—and their wives—of companies and industries that in any way harm the air, water, earth and wildlife."

She declined to say where the names came from. She said the wives of executives who are marked for death are being watched as they keep social dates.

Asked who the assassins are, she said "they're underground."

Asked who would order the killings, she said, "They move of their own accord—necessity dictates policy."

The names on the list ranged from some in Sacramento with home addresses to single entries such as "all automobile companies" and "General Electric—nuclear plants."

In an interview with AP Radio, Miss Good said that executives of any company which destroys the earth, water, trees, air or wildlife are potential targets of assassination.

She said executives of "Exxon, ITT, Standard Oil, Union Oil, lumber company executives, Gulf Oil, must get out of the country or you'll be killed... We want to live, you maggots, you monsters. Get out of the country or you'll be killed."

The six businessmen Miss Good named in her interview were:

Floyd Lewis of New Orleans, president of Middle South Utilities, Inc., which the woman said threatened the people by planning to build nuclear reactors; Gordon Ryan of New Orleans, an attorney and executive with Starr Broadcasting Co.; Fred Kaiser of Atlanta, a candy manufacturer; Herbert Grey of Atlanta; William Berlin of Atlanta; and Richard Davis of Houston, Tex., an oilman.

Kilpatrick. . .

(Continued from page 4) outlays—and the investment has been frittered away. The teachers' unions are striking for more, more, more. When we look at their end products, the graduates of '75, let us ask why, why, why?

Forgive a personal recollection. I was reared in the public schools of Oklahoma City. As children, we had spelling bees; we wrote weekly themes; we diagrammed sentences; we were made to memorize great chunks of Longfellow, Poe, Wordsworth and Shakespeare. If I mistake not, Latin was then required of those who intended to go on to college. We were blessed with teachers who maintained discipline—teachers who loved to teach, teachers who were not preoccupied with the check-off, the union shop, fringe benefits, and rigid enforcement of the seven-hour day.

The situation will not improve. Millions of school children are today being cheated out of a solid, substantive, basic education, but the pity is that they only dimly perceive what they are missing. As their own children grow up, and new teachers come along, standards will steadily diminish. Let us look at these test scores and weep for the "culturally disadvantaged": We are raising a whole nation of them.

Big Voting Wallop

WASHINGTON (AP)—The South will pack the biggest regional voting wallop at the 1976 Republican national convention, under a new delegate distribution plan just approved by the Republican National Committee.

South Carolina is allotted 96 delegates, up from the 22 voting representatives the Palmetto State sent to the 1972 convention. Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Texas delegations will almost double in size in 1976.

The southern gains are due to a controversial rule of the 1972 convention — pushed by GOP conservatives — which allots delegates based on the percentage of votes cast in each state for the Republican ticket in the previous Presidential election.

The South went most heavily for Nixon-Agnew in 1972, explaining the region's major convention gains in 1976.

Three professors suing the Western Carolina University board of trustees and an academic dean for $600,000 have defended their academic credentials.

The plaintiffs, Drs. D. Newton Smith, Allan D. Grant and James E. Kasprzak, allege that they were denied renewed teaching contracts and permanent tenure at WCU last year in retaliation for their teacher union activities.

In addition to the plaintiffs, four other witnesses were heard in the second day of the trial Wednesday. Included were the three members of a dean's advisory committee on tenure and reappointment. The committee members denied any consideration of union activities in recommending against tenure for the plaintiffs, who were professors of English.

The seventh witness, Dr. Ralph S. Eberly, who was granted tenure in 1974, testified that he was discouraged from listing union activities on his tenure application.

Police have been cracking down on gun smuggling operations by gangsters since the end of World War II, a chaotic era in which gangsters obtained guns stolen from U.S. armed forces depots or from the defunct Imperial Japanese Army. Now smuggling has been cut to a negligible level, police believe.

As a result, the nation's estimated 110,000 active gang members have sought any firearm available, ranging from antique, muzzle-loading, flintlock pistols to the converted model or toy guns. Many of the latter are relatively elaborate, precision products aimed more at the market of the gun hobbyist rather than the usual children's toy.

Regulations provide that barrels of model guns be filled to make them more difficult to change into a weapon that will fire.

"But we used materials too soft to resist drilling, which the gangsters are doing," one police spokesman said. "Now we are going to change the rules on this, and from this fall barrels must be stuffed with a special, extra-hard metal."

A National Police Agency spokesman noted that the gun — introduced into Japan by a shipwrecked Portuguese in 1543 — never has been a popular weapon for the civilian population in this country. He contrasted the situation with that in the United States and some other countries.

"It is entirely different here," he said. "We rarely get a complaint along the line that it is a citizen's right to arm himself."

Mini-Skool is fun School.

Children laughing. It's such a great sound. And at Mini-Skool, you hear a lot of laughter. You see Mini-Skool is, among other things, a fun place for pre-school aged children, 3 months old to school age. In fact, we say it's the finest day care center available. Because besides having fun, children benefit from our imaginative and stimulating learning programs; they exercise on our modern play equipment; they're cared for and well-looked after by a staff of qualified child care experts; and each day they're fed a delicious, well-balanced meal.

There's so much more we can tell you about Mini-Skool. But we'd like to do it in person. That way you can really see for yourself why Mini-Skool is the finest day care center. And bring your children.

There's a Mini-Skool near you.

Congress Wins Education Test

Money-Lack Is Hurting Sanford

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Terry Sanford said Wednesday that money is his campaign's biggest problem and asked a group of potential supporters to "take a risk" and donate to his campaign for Democratic presidential nomination.

The former North Carolina governor who is now president of Duke University, said those who are holding back contributions until later are hurting his efforts. "We just can't wait until Christmas or next year. I'm going to get ahead of the rest of the candidates if I can convince you that it is worth the risk...If we'll take this gamble together, we might do it," he said.

About $11,000 was raised in Sanford's appeal to about 60 Durham businessmen. He has been trying to drum up money throughout the state for his national campaign.

Nationally, Sanford spokesmen said, about $240,000 has been raised so far. Sanford said money is also the big problem in campaigns other candidates are waging.

Sanford has said frequently that one of his major goals next year is to defeat Alabama Gov. George Wallace in the North Carolina presidential preference primary. In 1972, Sanford entered the primary late and won second place with Wallace taking first place.

But, the candidate said beating Wallace is only part of the total scheme, that his race is national and is primarily aimed at winning the nomination.

Beating Wallace would be a "side benefit," he said.

Sanford also said Wednesday he plans an "all out" effort to win the Massachusetts presidential primary which takes place a week after the New Hampshire balloting and before the North Carolina vote.

All Depends On Autopsy

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is awaiting the results of an autopsy that was performed to determine the exact cause of death Wednesday night of a Rt. 1, Ayden man.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Julius Staton, 81, of Rt. 3, Box 22, Ayden, is being held in Pitt County Jail on an assault charge pending the outcome of the autopsy on Charlie Edwards, 72, of Rt. 1, Box 22, Ayden.

According to Sheriff Tyson, Edwards was apparently called to the Staton home to help with a plumbing chore and an argument and struggle followed during which Edwards was shot in the leg with a small caliber pistol.

Sheriff Tyson said, however, that Edwards apparently died in the struggle and an autopsy was called to determine the exact cause of death.

The bizarre incident, which was reported at 7:23 p.m., took place in the back yard of the Staton residence, it was noted. Staton is being held on a $10,000 bond pending the autopsy ruling.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress is the hands-down winner of its first test with President Ford over a spending measure affecting the current fiscal year budget.

The Senate, by an 88-12 vote Wednesday, completed the moves necessary to reject Ford's veto of a $7.9-billion education appropriations bill.

The House vote to override on Tuesday was 379 to 41. A two-thirds margin was required in each branch.

The President, in vetoing the bill, had said it was a budget-busting issue and that it presented a test of whether Congress would accept any spending discipline in dealing with the fiscal 1976 budget.

However, administration officials had conceded in advance they had no chance to sustain the veto.

Both Democratic and Republican legislators said that, while the bill was larger than Ford's budget called for, it was inadequate to meet the nation's education needs.

They declared that the measure did not exceed the allowance for education in the congressional budget adopted last May.

Under this budget, they said, they will make up their overruns on education, health and other social programs through cuts in military and foreign aid outlays.

The $7.9 billion of spending authority in the bill was $1.5 billion more than the President requested.

However, under both the enacted bill and the $6.4-billion version sent up by Ford, most of the funds would be spent in years after the current fiscal period.

Public Instruction officials said the appropriations is $13 to $15 million more than the state would have received if Congress had followed Ford's recommendation that $1.5 billion be cut from the bill.

Felix Joyner, University of North Carolina vice president for business and finance, said the bill also contains the bulk of the $80 million to $100 million in federal funds the 16-campus university system receives each year.

Officials of the State Department of Community Colleges estimated the bill would increase federal funds to the state's 57 community colleges and technical institutes by 5 to 10 per cent. The system received about $4.9 million in federal funds last year, and the bill includes more than 75 per cent of the federal funds the system will receive.

Joseph B. Webb, assistant state superintendent of public instruction for federal-state relations, said that $71.2 million of the money for the state's public schools is for the 1976-77 fiscal year because Elementary and Secondary Education Act programs are funded a year in advance.

The estimated $32 million in North Carolina school funds for this fiscal year includes: —$7.7 million under the Emergency School Assistance Act to help solve problems relating to school desegregation. —$8.5 million in "impact aid" to go to school systems near large federal installations such as military bases. —$15.8 million for vocational education.

Constructing Another Auditorium For Films

Charles B. Trexler, president, and Roy Griffin, city manager for Stewart and Everett Theatres, Inc., have announced that an additional auditorium is being added to the present Plaza Cinema, Pitt Plaza Shopping Center.

Construction began last week and is expected to be completed in December. The new facility will be open to the public in mid-December.

George W. Kane, Inc., is contractor for the project, which is costing approximately $165,000.

The additional auditorium will be located immediately to the right of the existing facility and will be connected by a standee area. Additional restroom facilities will be included in the new area.

The new auditorium will have a seating capacity of 330 and will be equipped with modern Polaris seating created by Massey Seating Co. of Nashville, Tenn. An added feature will be special seating spaces for the handicapped.

The projection equipment will be semi-automatic consisting of the latest design available for projection and sound purposes.

"The film carriage system will be of the platter design and will be fully automatic except for re-threading of projector at the end of each show," Griffin explained.

"New xenon lighting will be provided for use with a Technikote Pearlescent screen which provides a good picture image," Griffin added.

Upon completion of the auditorium, the theatre will be designated as Plaza Cinema 1 and 2.

Deny Knowledge Of Poison Cache

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Central Intelligence Director Richard M. Helms and a former top CIA scientist both deny any knowledge of a secret cache of deadly poisons, kept by the agency in violation of a presidential order, informed sources say.

Helms, now ambassador to Iran, denied any involvement in the agency's unauthorized retention of cobra venom and a deadly shellfish toxin when he testified under oath Wednesday before a closed session of the Senate intelligence committee, a source familiar with his testimony said.

Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, former head of the CIA's Technical Services Division, plans to appear on Friday. But sources said he already has told staff investigators through his lawyer that he knew nothing about the venom or toxins recently found in a CIA laboratory, five years after then-President Richard M. Nixon ordered such substances destroyed.

A committee source said investigators have determined that someone on Gottlieb's staff was responsible for keeping the poison. The source would not identify the individual or suggest a motive.

Intelligence committee Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, has said he knows of no evidence that the poison was used to kill anyone. But a source familiar with the probe said certain other operational uses, including the disabling of guard dogs, may have been contemplated.

And a former high-ranking intelligence official not connected with the investigation said the CIA often supplied poison suicide capsules to agents for use in the event of capture. Francis Gary Powers, the U-2 pilot shot down while on a spying mission over the Soviet Union in 1960, was said to have carried such a device.

Accused Of Extortion

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A man has been arrested on a charge of trying to extort $50,000 from a mother on the claim he could provide information about her missing daughter, the manager of an apartment complex in Charlotte.

The FBI announced the arrest Wednesday night of Edsel Howard Brown, 51, on a charge of demanding the money from Mrs. Joyce Newsom, of Denton. Her daughter, Mrs. Denise Newsom Porch, 21, has been missing from her Charlotte residence since July 31.

The U. S. mails were used in connection with the alleged extortion demand and the safe release of Mrs. Porch was promised if the demand was met, the FBI said.

Brown was arrested in the vicinity of the Tamarac Marina in the High Rock section of Rowan County and a shotgun was found in his nearby truck, but he made no effort to resist, the FBI said.

He was jailed in High Point pending a hearing today before a U. S. magistrate in Salisbury. The FBI said a cash bond of $20,000 was recommended.

The FBI said Salisbury police and the Charlotte Police Department assisted in the investigation that led to Brown's arrest.

The federal agency said there was no indication at this time that Brown was in any way connected with the disappearance of Mrs. Porch. The case is still under investigation.

British Army Still In The Middle In Ulster Strife

By DONAL O'HIGGINS
BELFAST (UPI) — On a bomb-burnt gable in Londonderry's Roman Catholic Bogside, an unknown hand once scrawled this message: "Thank God for the troops." It was written in August 1969, shortly after the British army was ordered into the city to end four days of rioting and fights between Protestants and Roman Catholics.

The army operation was swift and dramatic. Catholics had thrown up makeshift barricades around their neighborhoods. Hundreds of Protestant youths milled about, billy clubs and bicycle chains in their hands. Suddenly, the city went silent. An army landrover had appeared in the center of Guildhall Square. In it was a lone soldier, motionless, his rifle pointing to the sky — the symbol of British military power. Passersby stared in disbelief, then clutched each other excitedly. "The troops are here...the troops are here..." The message raced through the city. A ragged cheer began. There was dancing in the streets. Soon, soldiers seemed to be everywhere. Eager hands reached out to welcome them. Cups of tea were thrust upon them. In the bars of the Bogside the Catholics raised their glasses in a toast to the British army. Today, a new message has been daubed on Londonderry walls: "British pigs go home." Army commanders were not surprised the euphoria did not last. "The military can only provide a breathing space," said Lt. Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, the British army commander at the time. "The politicians must find the answers."

For six years, politicians have been seeking a solution with no evident measure of success. At first, the problem was one of civil rights for the Roman Catholic minority. The clamor in the streets was for votes, for houses, for jobs. Today, the slogans are different. "Fight for Irish unity — join the IRA," is the shout. When the first civil rights demonstrators took to the streets demanding equal citizenship with their Protestant neighbors, the Irish Republican Army was just a shadow, with few members and fewer weapons.

But it fed eagerly on the bitter backlash of sectarian violence which engulfed the north. Its ranks swelled. Money poured across the Atlantic from the United States. Money bought guns.

Soon the civil rights campaign became a fullscale urban guerrilla war against the British army. Instead of demands for equal opportunity, many Catholics began shouting for an end to British rule and the reunification of Northern Ireland with the Irish Republic in the south. The Republic itself played it cool, not wanting to harness itself with the unemployment and expensive welfare problems of the north.

The politicians, after six years of violence and more than 1,300 deaths, are still seeking answers. But solutions do not come easy in the teeming ghettos of Belfast or Londonderry. Social workers believe there is no single explanation for the conflict, that it lies in many things — in twisted religious attitudes, in depressed living standards, in squalid environment, in fear, in jealousy, in the power of ancient slogans of bigotry and political jingoism. The two communities are separated in some areas by the width of a street and the British army, but the divisions are as deep as 300 years can make them.

Today, the IRA maintains a cease-fire that is becoming less of a reality as each day passes, especially with non-IRA violence continuing. On the political front 78 members of the Northern Ireland Convention, elected last May, are striving toward an agreement that will breach the walls of distrust between the two communities. They are meeting this month to try to hammer out a constitution acceptable to all. The Catholics want a real partnership in the running of the state at executive level. The Protestants want majority rule once again, with Catholics participating at committee level. Both sides are probing to see if there is some middle ground in which they could shape their apparently irreconcilable positions.

In the wings stand the IRA and the Protestant paramilitary groups, armed and ready, awaiting the seemingly inevitable failure. In the middle stands the British army.

CAMP IN THE WOODS—The Tonsina pipeline construction camp, about 70 miles north of Valdez, is cut into a forest as work continues on the trans-Alaska oil pipeline. The occupancy of this camp is about 1,100 workers. Oil from Prudhoe Bay is expected to flow next year. (AP Wirephoto)

High School Journalism Workshop Set At ECU

A workshop for high school journalists will be offered at East Carolina University Saturday, Oct. 4.

The "High School Publications" workshop is sponsored by ECU's Delta Nu Chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma journalism honor society, the ECU journalism program and the ECU Division of Continuing Education.

The event is designed for high school sophomores, juniors and seniors who are involved in school literary and journalistic productions, including school magazines, newspapers and yearbooks.

A special feature of the program will be sessions on electronic media for students interested in radio or television work, and a session for teachers who serve as advisors to high school publications.

Workshop topics and leaders follow:

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground again today amid concern over the prospective impact of increased federal borrowing needs on interest rates.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 3.83 at 813.83 after a net decline of 22.45 points in the two previous sessions.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 5-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was relatively quiet. After the close Wednesday, the Treasury announced it was increasing its estimate of the money it would need to borrow through the end of the year by $3 billion to $6 billion.

Brokers said it was feared the resulting increased demands on the money markets would put new upward pressure on interest rates.

De Soto, Inc., was the most active issue on the Big Board, down 1/4 at 8 in a 137,400-share block trade.

Among blue chip issues, Sears, Roebuck dropped 1 1/2 to 60 3/4; U.S. Steel was down 1 at 67 1/4; International Paper lost 1/4 to 56 3/4, and American Telephone & Telegraph slipped 1/4 to 45 1/4.

General Motors eased off 1/4 to 47 1/2 despite the company's bullish forecast of auto sales next year.

Second RIF Session Sunday

The local RIF (Reading Is Fundamental) program sponsored by the Greenville Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority will have its second "Reading Is Fun Day" at Carver Library, 618 W. 14th St. Sunday from 2-4 P.M.

Children registered for this program will have a chance to choose from a wide variety of paperback books on many subjects and then to keep the books selected at no cost to them. A total of 327 children are registered for this program. An additional 73 children may register and select books on Sunday.

Parents are urged to come with their children and take an interest in the books they choose.

Six Enter Guilty Pleas In Grain Export Scandal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Six riverfront workers have pleaded guilty to charges related to the grain export scandal in the Port of New Orleans.

"I falsified records, knowing they were untrue," Clark D. Smith, a federally licensed grain inspector at the Mississippi River Grain Elevator at Myrtle Grove, La., told U.S. District Court Judge Alvin B. Rubin Wednesday.

Smith entered guilty pleas to charges of conspiracy to issue a false grain certificate and issuing a false grain certificate.

He and the others were asked to tell Rubin, in their own words, what they had done—a safeguard to insure that they understood their guilty pleas.

Sentencing of the six men was deferred, pending reports from probation officers.

In return for their guilty pleas to one or two charges, other accusations leveled by a federal grand jury will be dismissed, said U.S. Atty Cornelius Heusel.

The men are expected to be called to testify in the trials of others indicted in the intensive federal inquiry which has led to indictments against 48 individuals and four firms.

Heusel called the plea bargaining "a major step" in the probe, which has exposed in alleged pattern of bribery, short weighting, misgrading, theft and fraud running into millions of dollars.

Top Fund Goal For Wesleyan

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—A fund-raising drive has raised enough money to ease the financial problems of North Carolina Wesleyan College for a while.

The chairman of the college board of trustees, J. Phil Carlton, said yesterday the drive had raised $1,332,800, well over the goal of $1,250,000.

The school has about $3.5 million in long-term debts, and Carlton said the fund-raising drive would continue. He said the Methodist Church raised $468,000 and another $864,000 was raised in the Rocky Mount area.

A record number of students enrolled for the summer term and the fall enrollment was 450 students.

Three Terms

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — W. A. "Tony" Boyle was sentenced today to three consecutive life terms in prison for ordering the assassinations of United Mine Workers rival Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

"All I can say is I'm innocent," the frail, former UMW president told Judge Francis J. Catania in Delaware County Court just before the sentencing.

Reports Successful Activity Programs

Reporting on special activities sponsored by the Greenville Recreation Department during the month of August, director Boyd Lee noted three activities had been particularly successful.

"To date, the amount realized from the 26 hours softball marathon is up to almost $1,200 with more pledges still coming in," Lee said. Money from this benefit event will be used for programs for handicapped persons of all ages.

Another special activity was the "Discover North Carolina" travels made possible by a North Carolina Arts Council grant of $1,850. This program was one designed to take handicapped and underprivileged persons, mostly young people, to various places in North Carolina.

"About 40 people went on each trip," Lee said, "Many of those going had never before seen the ocean or been to our state capital." Trips by bus were made to Atlantic Beach, Raleigh, Goldsboro and Wilmington.

The third special activity Lee reported on was the synchronized swimming event for girls held at the new municipal pool. "This was well attended and the girls were really outstanding," Lee noted.

Bob Scott, The New Professor Examination

GREENSBORO (AP)—There was a new "professor" on the Greensboro College campus Wednesday.

He appeared to be a typical professor, with coat and tie and scribbled notes. And he knew a lot about his subject—state government. In fact, he knew more about the goings on inside the governor's office than most political science lecturers.

The new "professor" was former Gov. Bob Scott and he was teaching his first class as a visiting lecturer.

In Washington State, about 500 veterans attending vocational classes are in danger of losing veterans education benefits if the 6-day-old Clover Park strike lasts another 5 days. The strike at Clover Park, near Tacoma, has kept 15,000 other students out of class.

In Pennsylvania, more than 31 school districts were hit by strikes or lock-outs. A total of 145,000 pupils were affected.

Striking teachers reached settlements with school officials in two Rhode Island districts Wednesday, but walkouts continued in eight other Rhode Island communities; Berkeley and San Jose, Calif.; Wilmington, Del.; Milan and Brecksville, Ohio; Hoboken, N.J.; Lynn and New Bedford, Mass.

Strikes also have hit some institutions of higher education. Chicago's eight city colleges, with 90,000 students, remained closed as the president of the teachers union began serving a five-month sentence for contempt of court.

Norman Swenson, president of the striking Cook County College Teachers Union, said he believes his jailing will lengthen the 12-day-old strike by 1,400 college teachers.

Professors at the University of Bridgeport in Connecticut ended their strike after three days when they ratified a new three-year contract Wednesday.

Negotiations continue in both cities.

Rose Tests New Bern Without Paschal

Rose High School's defense had to do the job for the Rampants last week as their offense sputtered without All-State nominee Doug Paschal. The Rampants got past tough Goldsboro, 13-7 however, and anticipated their next game—with Paschal.

John Mallow

But yesterday, word came that Paschal, suffering from a bruised knee, would not be allowed to play in this Friday night's game in New Bern.

For this reason, Coach Dave Bumgarner will again be depending on his defense to be the key to the game. Bumgarner is not giving up on the offense, however, and intends to try and get it jacked up for the meeting with New Bern.

Kickoff Friday night in New Bern is 8 p.m.

Bumgarner was both pleased and displeased with the opener against Goldsboro. And apparently Bumgarner was not the only one pleased—the Greensboro Daily News listed Rose as the No. 1 4-A team in the state this week.

The coach doesn't put much stock in the ranking however. "I've always wanted to have the number one team in the state, but so far it hasn't phased me. If it was our tenth game and the conference title was riding on the game, it might be different. We've got a lot of games to play. I'd like to be number one at the end of the year, not at the beginning."

Bumgarner said he didn't feel the rankings would affect the players either. "The only thing I can see is that it might have New Bern fired up," he added.

Referring to Friday's game with Goldsboro, Bumgarner said that when the mistakes were considered, it wasn't that bad of a game. "The penalties hurt both teams. We missed some blocking assignments, and they came at us tougher than we thought. Goldsboro has a darn good team, and they are always up for us."

Bumgarner admitted that had Paschal been healthy, it might have been different. "We might have been able to open up the outside and passing games more. The fumbles hurt us, but you have to realize that we were starting two sophomores in the backfield. With all that inexperience, we did pretty good."

The coach praised the defensive effort in the game. "Our secondary did an outstanding job, better than we had anticipated. They knocked down several key passes. Both (Harry) Pair and (Jay) Chenier did a fine job. And the play Goldsboro scored on was illegal. They blocked our halfback, and you can't block a secondary player until the ball has been caught."

To try and remedy the offensive backfield, Bumgarner is going to try several people at the fullback slot, and hope Paschal is ready for next week's Kinston game. "We'd rather have him get fully well than take any chances," Bumgarner said. "There is no damage to the knee, and we want to make sure there is none in the future."

Among those who might start for Rose are Mike Brown, who did not carry the ball last week, Robert Williams, who did most of the running there against Goldsboro, and several others. "Nobody has much experience if any," Bumgarner said. "It's going to be a struggle for us, but I feel that we'll work harder to get things ironed out."

New Bern opened the season with a 21-6 loss to Havelock the first week of the year, then beat West Cartaret, 31-6, in the second game. "The win did them a lot of good," Bumgarner said. "They found out that they can move the ball, but I look for a very close score."

New Bern lines up in the wish-bone, but doesn't run it, the coach noted. "It's more like a power offense." Their quarterback, Ronnie Guion, is the main runner. Although just 5-5, 148-pounds, Guion is a speedster who can get outside and has fine moves. James Fields is the next ranking runner. "Guion is not as good a passer as a runner, and I feel they'll try to set up their ground game first," Bumgarner said.

Defensively, the coach isn't sure what to expect from New Bern. "Havelock told us that they were not impressed with New Bern's defense, and West Cartaret had only 22 people dressed an just 15 of them played, so they didn't really test them."

The Rampants will probably start Mark Conway and Kent Phillips at the ends, Max Joyner and Ronnie Goodall at the tackles, Joe Godette and B. G. Clark at guards, Eddy Connolly at center; Henry Trevathen at quarterback, and William and Mike Joyner at the halfback slots. Bumgarner is uncertain who will start at fullback.

Defensively, Rose will have John Mallow and Howard Hill at ends, Gary Porter and Leonard Sheppard at tackles, Mike Brewington and Rocky Butler at middle linebackers, Ron Morehead and Tyrone Perkins at outside linebackers, Pair and Chenier at halfbacks and Greg Sasser at safety.

NFL Players May Call Strike

By TOM SEPPY AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wary truce between the National Football League owners and players union could soon break out into open warfare again.

The membership of the NFL Players Association, by a wide margin, has rejected management's proposal for a new contract to replace the one that expired March 31, 1974 and will vote within a week on whether to go on strike.

When the negotiations collapsed last year, the players struck for 62 days during the exhibition season, but returned in time to play the regular 1974 season although they did not have a contract.

However, with the 1975 season scheduled to open in two weeks and rosters expected to be set at 43 players, the owners will not be in the same position they were a year ago—that of playing games with the many rookies and free agents still in camp.

In announcing the vote on the contract as 743 against, 6 for and six teams still to be counted, Ed Garvey, union executive director, declined Wednesday to discuss the possibility of a strike.

"We'll have to see what the players say about it," he said. "The comments in so far as a strike have varied team from team. Some are militant, while others are conservative."

Garvey said he hoped the vote, which he predicted would reach over 800 against the contract offer when the counting is finished, would convince the 26 owners to return to the bargaining table "and give us an offer we can't refuse."

The major stumbling block to any negotiated contract appears to be the Rozelle compensation rule which the union opposes and has been fighting in the courts, where it has won some preliminary battles.

Garvey said at the news conference that 17 teams voted unanimously against the contract, with dissenting votes coming from Buffalo and Detroit, two each, and Atlanta and Green Bay, one apiece. He said the teams that had not transmitted their votes to headquarters were Chicago, Houston, Minnesota, Philadelphia and the New York Giants.

Defensive Back Harry Pair

Pair's Play Sparked Defensive Secondary

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Editor

When Rose High School opened its season last Friday night against Goldsboro, Coach Dave Bumgarner was most worried about his defensive secondary. It turned out to be an unfounded worry.

The secondary came through with flying colors. Despite 12 pass completions for 95 yards in 26 attempts, the secondary more than did its job. Most of the completions were swing passes that are easiest to complete.

One of the chief reasons for the success of the secondary was the play of halfback Harry Pair, a senior, playing his second year at the position.

"He's a super-nice athlete," Coach Dave Bumgarner said. "I'd love to have 11 like him if I could get 'em. He had a good test last week and he came through with flying colors."

Pair, too, felt that he had a good opening game. "We were told that Goldsboro had some fine receivers and we worked hard all week to get ready for them. I think we did a pretty good job."

One of the unhappier moments came when Pair was called for pass interference on a fourth down play late in the game that gave Goldsboro a first down. They just failed to get the ball over in the closing minutes, preserving the 13-7 Rose lead.

On the play, Pair and the intended receiver were both facing the line of scrimmage, with Pair in front of the receiver. Both went up for the ball, which was knocked out of Pair's hands by the Goldsboro player.

"At the time, I didn't think anything about it. I figured I must have done something, but I didn't know what and I didn't question the referee. But after seeing the films of the play, I think I got a bad call. I'm glad it didn't hurt us. But it was the first game, and I guess referees make first game mistakes too."

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Pair, Harry's football career started in the ninth grade at E. B. Aycock Junior High, where he played defensive back and tight end. On the junior varsity, he played the same positions. "I played a little quarterback too, but not much. . . not enough to hurt. . . They put me in when they were running low."

After moving to the varsity, Pair became a permanent member of the secondary. "If I had started on offense, I might enjoy playing there. But I've been a defensive player all the time, and I like the hitting. I also enjoy interception." Pair picked off two as a junior, and just missed on several occasions last week.

The 5-11, 160-pounder says his main goal for the year is a team goal. "We want to win the state championship. My own personal goal is just to play well and do my job, in other words, help the team get there."

When not playing football, Pair enjoys going to the river, where he water skis. "I do a little hunting and fishing, but I prefer to ski," he added.

Pair looks for the defense to have to shoulder a lot of load this weekend with Doug Paschal again sidelined. "We have to accept that he won't be with us and try to get the job done without him. On defense, we just try to get the ball away from the offense. We'll just have to try a little harder this week, I guess."

Club Schedules Net Tournaments

The Greenville Tennis Club opens its fall schedule of tournaments today, as the Men's Open Singles gets underway. The first of the nine events is slated to wind up on Sunday.

The tournament schedule has open singles and open doubles for both men and women, along with 35 and over singles and doubles for each sex. There is also an open mixed doubles tournament.

While entries for the Men's open singles have closed, they are open in the remaining events, although the men's open doubles entries will close tonight at 7 p.m.

The complete schedule of events has the men's open doubles set for September 18-21. That will be followed on September 25-28 by the men's 35 and over singles and doubles and the women's 35 and over singles and doubles. The women's open singles will be Oct. 2-5, and the women's open doubles on Oct 9-12. The mixed doubles is scheduled for Oct. 23-26.

The entry deadline for each event is one week prior to the play date at 7 p.m. Draws and the posting of pairings will be made two days prior to the start of play.

Men's entries must be turned in to Mike Bowman, 202 N. Oak St., Apt. 1, 752-3725. Women's entries should be turned in to Margaret Bowles, 108-8, N. Oak St., 752-4921.

Juniors are eligible for all open events with the exception of those who are playing on an organized high school or junior high school team. Participation in the tournament will cause loss of eligibility on the interscholastic teams.

No Place Like Home For Bosox Football Is A Snap To Pirates' Grinnell

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Fenway Park was just what the doctor ordered. Take one 315-foot wall every inning and the pain in your bats will go away.

hitting again," said Boston Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson. "I felt sure it was only a temporary thing. I think we'll be all right now. They hit the heck out of the ball tonight."

home from a 4-4 road trip and were concerned about an anemic offense. But 21 hits in a doubleheader split with the Detroit Tigers had Johnson saying the Red Sox' prognosis was good. "I'm happy with this split," said Johnson, whose team won the first game 7-4 before losing the second 5-3.

The Baltimore Orioles also had a victory and a loss to show for their work, losing the opener to the Cleveland Indians 9-1 but fighting back for a 6-5, 13-inning decision in the second game. The split kept the Orioles five games back of the Red Sox in the American League East, with both teams having 17 games left.

Being a snapper on an NCAA Division I football team is like being an NCAA Division I referee:

Few (if any) people know your name outside of your immediate family. You are expected to do a perfect job on your first try, then improve with each additional effort. And though you labor in obscurity for the most part, make a mistake and your name will, with spicy, descriptive adjectives attached, become a household word.

1975 was overshadowed by NCAA rulings and federal court counter-rulings that affect the size of travel squads. As strictly a specialist, Grinnell said the thought of not making the road trips briefly passed through his mind, but he also said he figured he would "just do what I could to help the team."

Pirates Treat Seaver With No Respect, 8-4

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
You can fool some of the time—but you can't fool them all of the time.

Tom Seaver learned this lesson Wednesday night. The New York Met star pitched a brilliant four-hitter the last time they met on Sept. 1 in New York. But in their most recent meeting in Pittsburgh, Seaver was treated with little respect, 8-4.

"We have the capability to light anybody up," said Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh after the victory kept the Pirates' lead at six games in the National League East.

Richie Zisk, who watched from the sidelines last week while Seaver overpowered the Pirates 3-0 with a 10-strikeout performance, knocked in four runs Wednesday night with a homer and single.

The runnerup Philadelphia Phillies kept pace with the Pirates by beating the Montreal Expos 5-1. The St. Louis Cardinals, meanwhile, dropped further out of the pennant chase by losing a 7-5 decision to the Chicago Cubs.

Elsewhere in the National League, the San Diego Padres edged the Atlanta Braves 2-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers nipped the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 and the Houston Astros defeated the San Francisco Giants 6-3.

Phillies 5, Expos 1
Greg Luzinski slammed his first home run since Aug. 17 to lead Philadelphia over Montreal. Luzinski's homer, his 32nd of the year, came in the first inning after Garry Maddox had singled.

Wayne Simpson posted his first victory since being purchased from the International League at the beginning of September.

Cubs 7, Cardinals 5
Rookie Joe Wallis hit a pair of triples and Andy Thornton slugged a two-run homer to lead Chicago past St. Louis. The Cubs sprinted into a 6-1 lead in the first three innings before the Cardinals got back into the game with four runs in the top of the fourth—three on a pinch homer by Keith Hernandez. Ken Reitz also homered for the Cardinals.

Padres 2, Braves 1
Randy Jones pitched a two-hitter and San Diego scored two runs in the eighth inning on an infield error to beat Atlanta. Jones, 19-9, had a no-hitter until Dusty Baker opened the Atlanta seventh with a sharp single.

Dodgers 3, Reds 2
Pinch-hitter Leron Lee smacked a run-scoring double with one out in the ninth inning to give Los Angeles and Burt Hooton, 16-9, his 10th straight victory, a 3-2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

Astros 6, Giants 3
Left-hander Mike Cosgrove, making his second start of the season, pitched a five-hitter and the Houston Astros took a 6-3 decision over the San Francisco Giants.

Miller Feels He Is Ready

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Johnny Miller was rested, refreshed and exhibiting more enthusiasm than at any time since his record-setting exploits of the early season going into today's first round of the $200,000 World Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm playing good enough to win," Miller said. "I'm not saying I will win, but I sure could. I'm playing good and I'm feeling good."

"My swing has gone from straight to fade to straight to hook. Now it's reverted to what it was at the start of the season. I'm hitting it good and I'm hitting it straight."

"There's no reason I shouldn't win." Miller has been in something of a tailspin since winning three of his first four starts this season. "I haven't exactly been a spastic, but I haven't won," he said.

Much of the trouble, he said, was the change he made in his swing to accommodate the right-to-left demands of Augusta National, the site of the annual Masters tournament. He started hooking the ball and couldn't stop it.

"Now it's kind of reverted back to what it was," he repeated. "I'm hitting it high and soft and straight. My game is more where I want it to be. It's not perfect, but it's a lot better.

"I'm hitting the ball good enough to win." "At least," he said, "I'm not going into the start of a tournament saying, kind of, 'well, we'll go out and go through the motions and finish 15th or something and get down the road.'"

A three-week break from action, necessitated by a chronic wrist ailment that cropped up, is a major factor in his change of attitude, he said.

"I wasn't playing too good and my swing was bad and my wrist was hurting and I was getting tired," Miller said. "The whole summer was just kind of messed up. I had a lot on my mind, a lot of things going on."

"Now I have nothing to complain about. My life is good. Physically, I'm fine. I still wear a bandage on my left wrist, but it doesn't pain me any more. Everything is fine. I feel good and I'm ready to go. I'm anxious to get back to playing golf again."

Miller numbered this title among his eight victories last season, beating Jack Nicklaus and two others in a dramatic sudden-death playoff. But he hasn't finished ahead of Nicklaus at any time since then.

His renewed rivalry with the Masters and PGA champion is one of the highlights of the tournament.

Among the other standouts in the 156 man field are two-time 1975 winners Hale Irwin, Tom Weiskopf and Roger Maltbie, career $1 million winners Lee Trevino, Billy Casper, Arnold Palmer and Australian Bruce Crampton, U.S. Open champion Lou Graham and Hubert Green, who ended a long slump with a victory in the Southern Open last week.

BAEZA REACHES 3,000
SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Veteran jockey Braulio Baeza of Panama received congratulations when he rode Dottie's Doll into the winner's circle at Saratoga. It was his 3,000th victory in the United States. Before he came here 15 years ago, the 35-year-old Baeza had won 900 races in Panama.

Seeks To Rejoin

COLUMBIA (AP)—Although no decision has been reached, University of South Carolina officials have met with Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Robert James in Raleigh to discuss USC's readmission.

Earlier this year, South Carolina trustees authorized the administration to inquire about possible readmission. A spokesman for the Wednesday session, which also included conference member schools, said the meeting was one of a continuing series on the subject. He said the school's delegation found the others friendly and the talks informative.

USC, a charter member of the organization, withdrew in 1971.

Frazier Says Ready To Fight

By JACK STEVENSON
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Frazier intensely dislikes the wagging tongue of Muhammad Ali, yet the former heavyweight boxing champion meets it now with a word or two of his own.

"I'm going out there and put the press on," he declared after a Los Angeles workout prior to departing for Manila in the Philippines for his Sept. 30 title shot against Ali.

"I'm ready and I'm in shape. We've got something for that rope-a-dope. Take the rope and put it around the dope's neck." Ali has bragged of his rope-a-dope style of backing into the ropes and letting foes wear themselves out trying to hit him effectively.

"I'm in condition to go the distance," declared the 31-year-old Frazier. "I want to whip him for the 15 full rounds. On the ropes is where I expect to find him."

Frazier cut loose his big left hook against sparring partners Scrap Iron Johnson, Duane Bobick and Joe Goldston as he worked four rounds before a crowd of about 2,500 at Century Plaza where Ali will work out on Friday.

"He's hitting hard...hard," commented Bobick after absorbing a few of the hooks. Frazier showed his usual style of boring in and belting. There had been reports he might dance a little more this time than in the two previous meetings with Ali where Joe won the first and lost the second.

"In covering kicks, there has been improvement from individual team members," said Grinnell. "The punting team is thinking more while on the run and the results, at least like Saturday night against State, were better overall. But this will definitely be a big challenge for us and I hope we can respond."

Football for the first week of

"I am kind of light," said Grinnell. "But Jimbo and Wayne line up behind me and help me keep from getting beat up, so they have to be credited with a part of the snapping success."

Grinnell said that along with Bolt and Walker, the punting team is a multi-talented group. "Take guys like Bobby Myrick, Mike Dross, Steve Hale, John Schaeffer and Harold Ford," said Grinnell. "They are, except for Myrick being a senior, young players with a lot of talent who are getting game experience. Greg Pingleton is experienced and we also get help from Paul Bolin, Larry Paul, Tom Daub and Alexander French in coverage because everybody has speed and can hit."

"It takes a group of chosen people to run the punting team, because you have to give 110 percent for a short time, but when it is crucial."

As for his own success, Grinnell has two reasons for it: mental concentration and Jesus Christ.

"Since I became a Christian last year, it has helped me gain the concentration I haven't had in the past," said Grinnell. "That has been a big part of the snapping success."

Whither George Dickel?

With or without the rocks? Either way it's superb Tennessee Sour Mash Whisky.

Why? It's mellowed through charcoal. For a smooth, expensive taste.

What? The thought that quality always takes a little longer.

How? Tennessee Coffee. Add one jigger George Dickel to hot coffee. Sweeten to taste. Top with generous dollop of whipped cream and enjoy.

There's a little bit of Tennessee in every sip.

Ice-Making Is Unchanged But Now It's Delivered By Truck

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP)—The mode of delivery has changed but ice is made exactly the same way and with the same equipment installed 52 years ago in Wrights Ice & Fuel Co.

Trucks have replaced the horse-drawn ice wagons and there is no opportunity for youngsters to run for the wagon and get a free chip of ice on a hot summer afternoon. But there is still a demand for chipped ice.

Wright provides bags of chipped party ice to stores throughout the city in 10, 15 and 25 pound bags, all delivered by trucks. Biggest demand for ice in this area is to refrigerate corn and cabbage being shipped to northern markets. Ice is sent to Wanchese for shipping fish commercially and calls come in from Virginia Beach, Va., frequently to send a load there for fish.

The plant opened June 1, 1923, with Mack Wright as owner and three sons assisting. Roland Wright is the only surviving member of the original group. The business is now managed by Eugene Sawyer, a nephew. The facility originally was designed to provide 70 tons of ice each day. It now has a capacity of only 35 tons daily. Half of the plant was dismantled in 1956 when demand diminished, although home deliveries continued until 1970.

Ice is made in 55-gallon cans, providing a 300-pound rectangular block when frozen.

The heavy steel containers are filled with water and then moved into a freezing area with the help of an overhead pulley. The containers then are lowered into a steel tank lined with refrigerator coils.

The tank is filled with brine and cooled to 8 to 15 degrees. It takes about 36 hours to freeze.

When the ice is ready, the cans are lifted out of the tank and trundled to another tank filled with water. They are sloshed in the water for a few seconds to loosen the ice, then tipped over on their sides to let the ice slide out.

The process is slow and antiquated, but no party or picnic in the Albemarle would be complete without the product.

Why there's a shortage of Miller High Life.

We're brewing more Miller High Life® Beer than ever. But Americans are also drinking more Miller High Life than ever. In each of the last two years, we've experienced greater sales percentage increases than any other major brewer in the industry. And this overwhelming demand has created shortages in some areas.

If you're having a problem finding enough of our beer, please accept our apologies. We're working around the clock to bring you an adequate supply as quickly as possible.

We're even building another brewery, our fourth, which will be in operation early next year. There's only one thing we refuse to do. And that's rush our brewing process.

Because it's the quality of our beer that has made us a success in the first place.

America's quality beer. Since 1855.

Your local Miller High Life Beer and Miller "Lite" Beer Distributor will be closed from September 9th to September 17th. Your patience during this shortage will be greatly appreciated.

Picnic lunch en route for bike hikers.

Ranger Mike Watson calls a halt while he comments on point of interest along Everglades trail.

Observation tower gives wide view over area.

EVERGLADES BIKE HIKE

How about a spin through Everglades National Park for a sunny day's outing? Bike hikes wheel off daily from the entrance to the park at Shark Valley, due west of Miami off the Tamiami Trail.

National Park Service rangers go with the groups as guides, pedaling along the trails at the head of the convoys, stopping here and there to point out features of interest and expounding on aspects of the area's unique natural wealth, its flora and fauna. The group shown here is accompanied by Rangers Mike Watson and Dan Raider.

Hikers can bring bikes if they have them, or call ahead to reserve free of charge one of the park's bikes. There's a midway halt for picnic lunch—you take along your own, since there are no commercial facilities. The park offers its clean air and wide, unspoiled vistas, its saw-grass flats interspersed with pools and hammocks. For company there are flocks of wild birds, including great blue herons and wood storks. And, to be observed at a respectful distance of course, alligators.

During bike tour, riders walk out on observation pier over water to watch wildlife.

Avert Major Warehouse Fire

FIRE DAMAGES LOADING AREA . . . Firemen use a portable saw to cut through the flooring at the rear

Early detection by police and quick response by fire department units prevented what could have been a major fire here last night in an old tobacco warehouse, now used as a chemical manufacturing and storage facility by Unichem Chemical Co. Patrolling police officers saw

smoke coming from Unichem's warehouse — bounded on one side and the rear by Washington Street, and on the front by Ninth Street — and called the fire department. Responding firemen forced open a door near the Washington-Eighth Street intersection and quickly extinguished the small blaze, which produced volumes of acrid smoke and had burned its way through the wooden floor of the old structure.

Fire Department investigators reported the blaze started and was confined to a rear loading ramp. The cause of the fire was listed as "undetermined."

Unichem spokesmen this morning estimated damage to the warehouse and merchandise stored near the loading ramp at $1,500.

Congress Seeks To Insure No New War Involvement

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' commitment of U.S. technicians to monitor the Sinai peace accord appears assured, but leaders are moving cautiously to develop assurances that the Americans won't involve the United States in a Middle East war.

House and Senate staffers continue to work on language to require that the Americans be withdrawn immediately in case of war and to enable Congress to withdraw the technicians at any other time.

But House International Relations Chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., said he will put the commitment of technicians to a House vote as early as next Thursday if head counts confirm his belief that approval is assured.

No Senate action is promised that early, and Senate Foreign Relations Committee members say they want full hearings on all U.S. commitments involved in the Sinai accord before they vote on them.

Sources say the Senate committee, particularly, wants to be certain the resolution approving the technicians cannot turn into anything like the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution that after the fact became congressional approval of U.S. combat forces in Vietnam.

But little opposition has surfaced in either the Senate or the House to stationing the U.S.

technicians to monitor the Israeli-Egyptian peace, even though mail in many offices is running against the accord.

"Many members are saying, 'I don't like it, but what's the alternative? You've got to vote for it,'" Morgan said Wednesday.

The only strong positions against the agreement in the Senate so far have been registered by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sens. James Abourezk, D-S.D., and William Scott, R-Va.

In the House, only Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., has publicly registered "grave reservations" about the accord, although a number of members in both the House and Senate have not yet taken any public position.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told Morgan's committee this week that the U.S. commitment of technicians to monitor warning stations in the Mitla and Gidi passes is analogous to the United Nations peacekeeping force of 5,000 men that will be in the buffer zone below the passes.

Because of the isolation of the warning stations in the passes, Kissinger said, it will not be difficult to protect the Americans from terrorist attacks.

Egypt Denies Sadat An Assassination Target

By The Associated Press

An Egyptian spokesman says an attempt to assassinate President Anwar Sadat is "untrue, a lie and rubbish."

The Voice of Palestine in Baghdad, which the Cairo spokesman described as unreliable, claimed gunmen opened fire on Sadat in the garden of the summer presidential palace in Alexandria a few hours after the signing of the new Egyptian-Israeli agreement.

American officials in Washington also discounted the report and described the Baghdad source as "very unreliable."

The Voice of Palestine is a one-hour daily program prepared by local Palestinians in Baghdad, Cairo and Damascus and broadcast by the government radio stations in those capitals. The broadcasts from Cairo and Damascus are prepared by the local offices of Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, but a PLO spokesman in Cairo said the Baghdad broadcasts are the work of a group of "mercenaries" who have nothing to do with the PLO.

Israel, meanwhile, continued to talk at negotiations with Syria.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, in a statement after the weekly cabinet meeting, said his government is prepared to negotiate a final peace settlement with all its Arab neighbors but has not decided whether to work for an interim agreement for the Golan Heights front with Syria.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy said earlier this week he thought an agreement between Israel and Syria was "imminent," and Syrian President Hafez Assad suggested to a British interviewer that he might agree to demilitarization of the Golan Heights in exchange for the demilitarization of an equal amount of Israeli territory. Rabin said then that the chances of interim agreements with Syria and Jordan were "practically non-existing," but his political position, the right-wing Likud bloc, demanded a special session of parliament to debate the Arab statements.

Assad, visiting Czechoslovakia, said in a banquet speech in Prague Wednesday night: "We shall not give up a single grain of sand from Sinai or the Golan Heights, and we shall not give up a single fraction of the rights of the Palestinian people."

Egyptian and Israeli military representatives continued their meetings in Geneva to work out arrangements for the new Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai Desert.

Boyles To Speak Here In Mid-East Workshop

A one-day workshop on Regional Capital Improvement Programming for local government officials and school board members in the Mid-East region will be held September 25 in the ECU Regional Development Center here.

The Mid-East Commission, in conjunction with East Carolina University, is sponsoring the session.

Harland Boyles, North Carolina Deputy Treasurer and director of the N.C. Local Government Commission, will deliver the keynote address. A veteran of 25 years in state government, Boyles was recently appointed to the national Rules Making Board for the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Workshop coordinator is Dr.

Phillip A. Harris, an ECU business professor.

Regional Capital Improvement Programming is a plan for scheduling, coordinating and financing needed capital improvements by applying proven tools of cooperate finance to the financial problems of local governments. By using RCIP, local governments can provide more public service from limited public dollars.

The Mid-East Region—comprising Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin and Pitt Counties—is the first in North Carolina to pursue the application of RCIP at the regional level.

Workshop topics to be discussed will cover a wide range of subjects including: an overview of Regional Capital Improvement Programming, long range financial planning, sources of revenue for capital improvements, determining of needs and, the implementation process.

HARLAND BOYLES

At the conclusion of the session, a study guide-manual will be provided to assist governmental officials in initiating the RCIP process.

The workshop will run from 8:30 a.m. through 4:00 p.m., and interested persons may complete registration by sending their name and address to Dr. Phillip Harris, c/o Mid-East Commission, Box 1218, Washington, N.C. 27889 or by phoning 919-758-6063. The registration fee will be $5.00 in advance or $6.00 on the day of the workshop.

Farmville Mart Prices Steady

FARMVILLE—Grade for grade prices continued steady on the Farmville tobacco market on Wednesday compared to previous sales days this week. Leaf, cutters and smoking leaf grades accounted for most of the top price averages. Primings and non-descript grades showed a sharp increase in volume on yesterday's sales compared to previous sales days.

Stabilization receipts accounted for 6.2 per cent of the sales volume.

A total of 753,578 pounds of tobacco was sold Wednesday for $805,765 for an average of $106.93 per 100 pounds.

To date, 17,276,600 pounds of tobacco have been sold on the Farmville market this season for $16,663,652, for an average of $96.45 per hundred pounds.

Canning Lid Makers Get FTC Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission staff has rejected virtually all the accusations of unfair practices and collusion leveled against the makers and distributors of home canning lids and jars.

Manufacturers who projected a 30 per cent increase in demand for the one-use-only jar lids this season and have produced 34 per cent more than last year were hit instead with "an astronomical increase" in demand, said Robert E. Liedquist, acting director of the FTC Bureau of Competition.

Rep. Charles J. Carney, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Small Business Committee's panel hearing the FTC report Wednesday, immediately dubbed it a "whitewash" of wholesalers and retailers' roles.

Liedquist told him the five FTC commissioners already had ordered a continued monitoring of the canning-lid industry as it prepares for the 1976 season, as Carney requested.

The FTC staff made a seven-week investigation of the canning lid shortage after some consumers and public interest groups contended the industry was guilty of wrongdoing.

Liedquist said the entry of several new manufacturers into the market—actually major corporations who expanded their product lines at relatively little expense—"should be able to produce enough lids (next year) to accommodate every household in America."

Production capacity of what until two years ago was a declining industry will be up Jan. 1 by 100 per cent over capacity at the start of this year, with more expansion planned during 1976, he said.

Liedquist said the shortage of lids was caused by "unprecedented demand which the industry was unprepared to supply, despite substantial increases in jar-lid production."

Reports Increasing Veterans Services

The fiscal year ending for July, 1975 showed a significant increase in veteran services, according to Kendrick Taylor, Veterans Employment Representative at the office of the Greenville Employment Security Commission.

Taylor stated that 793 new veteran applications were taken in 1975 compared to 665 for the same period in 1974. Job counseling increased from 219 veterans counseled in 1974 to 248 in 1975. Referrals to job openings showed a noticeable increase from 1,207 to 1,453, and placement in jobs climbed from 413 to 436. Also, veterans filling for employment insurance increased from 71 to 109. Veterans, on an average, receive three to five weeks of unemployment insurance before being placed in employment.

In spite of the high unemployment rate during this period, the placement of veterans increased mainly through the cooperation of employers in giving veterans preference, Taylor noted. He said many veterans are anxious to use their VA benefits in on-the-job training. Also, the CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) is still in effect. This program reimburses the employer part of the salary paid to the employee while the employee is in training. Employers are encouraged to contact the Employment Security Commission for information concerning these programs.

Board Acted On Two Items

WILLIAMSTON—In a brief meeting this week, Martin County Commissioners took action on two agenda items.

Approval was given for the organization of an Oak City Fire Tax District. The fire district will extend over a four mile radius from the northeastern Martin County village.

In its second item, commissioners approved Martin County Community Action as the agency to handle Title 10 federal funds. Title 10 funds are earmarked to support programs for senior citizens of the county.

Food Stamp Drive Planned

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina has stepped up its effort to find and feed its poor residents. It has announced plans for a new drive to sign up people for food stamps.

The latest effort is called Project Reach II. It is required by a recent federal court order. But state stamp administrators say they probably would have launched it anyway.

About 500,000 North Carolinians now are getting the stamps. That's only 57 per cent of the people that a 1972 U.S. Senate survey estimated would be eligible in the state.

Nevertheless, more people than ever before are using the stamps in North Carolina. And state food stamp administrators boasted Wednesday that the increase was largely the result of their efforts to publicize the program.

DIVORCE UP CARACAS (UPI) — There were 4,512 divorce applications in Venezuela during the first six months of the year, up 25 per cent from the same period last year.

Ellery Queen A Rehash, But Fun

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's "Ellery Queen" starts crime-solving tonight. And ABC will pour "On the Rocks," a chuckling convict series that tries to be the flip side of the preceding "Barney Miller" cop comedy.

NBC's new entry is old hash but fun to watch. ABC's offering, while funny in spots, starts slowly. Like "Barney Miller," it may need a few shows before the real laughs start rolling.

"Ellery Queen" stars Jim Hutton as the famed, absent-minded mystery writer who is always summoned by his father, the New York police inspector — David Wayne — to solve baffling crimes.

An earlier EQ model was a series in 1950. In tonight's show, matters start four years earlier with a good-natured yarn about the demise of a bad-tempered millionaire on New Year's Eve.

The millionaire has brought his son, his son's fiancée, a nephew, a business associate, a secretary and her fiancé to a gala party at a plush Gotham hotel where Guy Lombardo's band is playing.

The millionaire begins railing at his guests. For starters, he accuses his son's fiancée, a purportedly titled English widow, of being a gold-digger with a promiscuous past.

After denouncing them all as thieves, crooks or disloyal scoundrels, he says he's cutting them all out of his will that night, and departs to call his lawyer from the phone booth at the hotel.

He's found dead, of course, by Inspector Queen, who also is attending the hotel party and has gone to phone Ellery, who was to attend the party but fell asleep at home.

The plot goes round and round, with all the suspects herded into a room for the grand finale you know is coming when Ellery Queen wakes up and solves the crime just as 1947 rolls in.

ABC's "On the Rocks" concerns four inmates at a minimum-security joint featuring two guards, one tough, the other liberal.

The inmates are led by Jose Perez, a gifted Puerto Rican actor, who is in the can "due to tragic circumstances ... I got caught."

Tonight's show is mainly a meet-the-cast bash. It appears in the no-sex, no-violence "family hour" and has a brief segment that may be a test of what can be slipped by the hour's custodians.

It's a medical examination scene in which Perez claims he has bad feet, the M.D., doing a routine checklist, asks him: "Are you now or have you ever been a practicing homosexual?"

"With these feet?" Perez cries. Later, an inmate asks what the doctor means by "practicing homosexual." Replies Perez: "One who ain't got it perfect yet."

Chapter Plans First Meet

The first meeting of CEC-east, eastern North Carolina local chapter of the Council for Exceptional Children, will be held today at 6 p.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant.

The speaker for the meeting, Dr. Rutherford Turnbull of the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill, will discuss the "Rights of Exceptional Children."

Marijuana Sale Interest Denied

SEATTLE (AP) — It's not true that the tobacco industry will have a role in the manufacturing and selling of that leafy green substance—marijuana—a representative of the country's 11 leading tobacco manufacturers claims.

Bill Dwyer, spokesman for the American Tobacco Institute, said Wednesday it's "pop wisdom" that has led to published reports that tobacco manufacturers have reserved land and selected marketing names for the sale of marijuana should it become legalized.

"We have some problems with a fully legalized product (cigarettes)...We would not be seen as an intelligent industry if we were looking at a product that's not even legal," he said.

Dwyer, on a publicity swing through the Northwest, cited a study completed by the Harvard School of Public Health and financed by the Massachusetts Lung Association that reported cigarette smoking is not harmful to nonsmokers.

The study's results, Dwyer said, showed that a non-smoker would have to endure 100 hours of being in the vicinity of heavy smoking in order to inhale the equivalent of one cigarette.

Dwyer said he was skeptical of scientific studies in general although he was impressed with the Harvard study in particular.

"As the devil can do with scripture, cigarette adversaries can do with selective review of the material," he said.

Dwyer accused culprits behind the attack on smokers of being "shower adjusters."

"If you didn't lock your bathroom door, they'd be in there to set the temperature of your bathwater," Dwyer said.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Argumentative and accidental aspects function early, so wait until afternoon when planets improve and you can get the goodwill and active assistance of highly placed persons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Know what is expected of you by others and keep any promises. Make new acquaintances of varied backgrounds from whom you can learn much.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use good judgment instead of intuition in a.m. Later, follow intuition. Find a way to reach more accord with the one you love most.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Steer clear of one who is irate in the a.m. Afternoon brings more pleasant results, more affability around you. Don't argue.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Although your work seems difficult in a.m., if you tackle it enthusiastically it gets easy and you enjoy it. Cooperate with co-workers.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Do not spend too much for pleasure; stick to the wholesome, satisfying. Show more love for your closest tie. Put talents to work.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) There are changes to be made at home so conditions are better, but plan them early and well. Don't make changes now in business if uncertain.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be alert to any changes you can make for a brighter future. Drive carefully. Evening can be fine with mate. You gain favor of higher-ups.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study finances to increase income and have freedom from worry. Use good judgment about those who ask for help. Do not be taken in by anyone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle personal affairs in a.m., then you have time for whatever you most like to do. Plan recreation for p.m. Live within budget.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The a.m. is ideal for whatever requires study and careful thought, then you can seek out expert for advice in p.m. Dull work brings fine results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Afternoon is best for meeting with good pals for whatever your purposes. You can enjoy yourself at amusements you like. Be your friendly self.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) By double-checking whatever comes up today you can be informed and things then can be to your advantage. Discuss ideas with those who control matters.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have to be taught early in life to think first and then speak or act, otherwise the impulsiveness here will ruin an otherwise fine chart; then upon maturity your progeny can become quite a success because of the good judgment here and the lessons learned early. Thinking cleverly is the keynote. Teach while young to handle any emergencies that arise in a most wise fashion. Give the benefit of sports and religious training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Calley's Court Martial Conviction Is Reinstated

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP)—William L. Calley Jr. remained free on bail today, awaiting the next legal battle against an Army courtmartial verdict that he murdered 22 civilians in the My Lai Massacre.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reinstated the courtmartial conviction Wednesday in an 8-5 split decision that said a federal judge should not have intervened in the military case.

"We will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court," said J. Houston Gordon of Covington, Tenn., Calley's lawyer. He called the decision an abdication of civilian responsibility.

Gordon said he advised the 32-year-old former lieutenant, now a civilian living in Columbus, Ga., to say nothing about the decision.

Army officials, who have said unofficially that a parole for Calley will take effect as soon as the legal outcome is final, made no comment.

The 5th Circuit said U.S. Dist. Judge J. Robert Elliott of Columbus overstepped his jurisdiction when he ruled on Sept. 25, 1974, that Calley's conviction was unconstitutional.

A federal court may not intervene in a military case except where a substantial constitutional claim is made, or error causes a miscarriage of justice, the 5th said, and no such grounds exist in this case.

The 5th knocked down Judge Elliott's controversial holding that extensive news coverage of My Lai and Calley made it impossible to find unbiased jurors and therefore he could not be tried.

Terming such logic "extremely unsettling," the 5th Circuit majority said:

"If, in this age of instant mass communication, we were to automatically disqualify persons who have heard about an alleged crime from serving as a juror, the inevitable result would be that truly heinous or notorious acts will go unpunished."

In specifically holding that pretrial publicity did not prejudice Calley's courtmartial, the 5th said:

"The effect of the publicity on the American public in general is of course uncertain, but material contained in the record belies the District Court's conclusion that anyone familiar with the news reports surrounding the My Lai massacre would automatically convict Calley."

My Lai is a Vietnam village where, in 1968, "a large number of defenseless old men, women and children were systematically shot and killed by Calley and other soldiers in what must be regarded as one of the most tragic chapters in the history of this nation's armed forces," the 5th said.

Accused of killing 102 persons in the bloody sweep through the hamlet, Calley was convicted of murdering not less than 22 and sentenced to life in prison.

In subsequent appeals, sentence was reduced to 10 years. He was freed on bail last Nov. 8.

In their dissent, five of the judges said they would have simply declined to rule on the publicity issue, holding it an extraordinary event of war.

But they said Calley was due "a new trial or further proceedings in the district court" because the House Armed Services Committee withheld potential defense material.

The committee refused to make available the results of its 16-day My Lai hearings which piled up 3,045 pages of statements from 152 witnesses.

"We believe that the withholding of evidence from Calley by the Congress is an error of constitutional magnitude," the dissenters said.

Citing Supreme Court precedent in which President Nixon lost a challenge to a subpoena served on him during the Watergate investigation, the dissenters said:

"One underlying principle of American jurisprudence is that no man or institution is above the law. Congress is not exempt from this principle."

The majority held, however, that even if the committee should have released its files, the issue was not enough to warrant federal court intervention in the case.

Two Dead In Land Dispute

BRYSAN CITY, N.C. (AP)—A lawyer and one of two brothers he was representing in a land dispute were shot dead Wednesday night. The other brother was wounded.

Stedman Hines, 60, a lawyer who lives in Dillsboro and has his office in Bryson City, and Tommy Wike, died in a hail of gunfire.

Wike's 59-year-old brother, John Wike, was taken to a hospital in Asheville with gunshot wounds.

The Wike brothers live on adjoining mountain land on Conley's Creek in Whittier. The Swain County sheriff's department said they had a dispute over the boundary of their property.

Sheriff Dave Wiggins Jr. of Swain County went to Asheville to interview John Wike.

A spokesman for the sheriff's department said he believed Hines had been a state legislator when he lived in the Greensboro area years ago.

Psychologist Is Investigated

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Dr. Arnold Shapiro has resigned from the state licensing board for psychologists while it investigates complaints that he made sexual advances or remarks to three women.

The 46-year-old Charlotte psychologist says the complaints are not valid. He says the women may have misunderstood remarks he made.

The Charlotte News says it has provided statements to the board from two of Shapiro's former patients and from a third woman who met him in a business capacity.

held exactly three hearts to the king.

That was not a very good chance, but better than no chance at all. For that to succeed, declarer needed three entries to dummy, and the club suit offered the only possibility.

Therefore, declarer cashed the ace of clubs and led the eight of clubs to the jack. When both defenders followed, the three entries had materialized. After a finesse of the heart jack won, declarer overtook the club queen with the king to get to dummy a second time. The heart finesse was repeated, and when the king dropped under the ace, declarer was home.

The three of clubs, which he had so carefully preserved, was led to dummy's four, and dummy's long heart was the game-going trick.

ARE WE CRAZY!!!

100,000 MILE WARRANTY ?
HOW DO WE DO IT?

Every car dealer in the country is talking "dependability" these days. At Tarheel Toyota, we've decided to do something about it. A new car warranty that's longer than any other warranty in the world (exclusively for Tarheel Toyota). Bill Draper can tell you why: "Nobody else in the world has a car like this. I've seen how the Toyota is made, the quality of the workmanship, the integrity and the craftsmanship that go into this car. I know the Toyota inside and out."
Until now, most new car warranties haven't been much more than discounts on the car repairs you knew you'd need. Our warranty is our guarantee of faith in Toyota. "Nobody else in the world can put this kind of warranty on their car. My faith and my knowledge and experience with Toyota tell me I can do it. Toyota builds an automobile to last."
Our knowledge of the Toyota comes from research, from first hand information from our service department and from a great number of satisfied Toyota customers. For 100,000 miles or 3 years from the day you purchase your new Toyota, we guarantee to replace or repair your motor, transmission and rear end, if they fail under normal driving conditions. We'll ask you to keep the vehicle properly maintained and we'll ask that you bring it back to Tarheel Toyota for any repairs covered by this warranty. We're offering the 100,000 mile, 3 year warranty in addition to the new car warranty offered by Toyota Motor Sales, USA. It's a promise, a guarantee of Toyota quality, Toyota dependability.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

John Ehrlichman Finds Some Privacy In Santa Fe

By LARRY CALLOWAY
Associated Press Writer
SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — John Ehrlichman, suntanned and bearded after six months of his new life among the artists along Canyon Road here, might be writing about Watergate. But he's not talking.

His landlady says he's writing a book, and he did not deny a report that he is under contract with Simon and Schuster for a novel said to be autobiographical.

"I just wouldn't comment on it," was his response, made through the cracks in the plank gate of the high adobe wall at his fashionable hilltop cottage.

Unlike other main characters in the nation's Watergate drama, Richard M. Nixon's former chief domestic adviser and long-time political lieutenant has shunned the lecture circuit and refused interviews.

In a grocery store conversation — he does his own shopping — he reasoned that if he grants one interview he'll be hounded. "And I would have broken faith with about 20 others who have asked and have been refused," he said.

Ehrlichman lives alone here; his wife is still in Seattle. Disbarred by the Supreme Court and facing two federal prison terms, he awaits the long process of court appeals. At age 50, he has traces of gray in his black beard and moustache.

He rents from Margaret Twyman, 60, who lives next door. "He strikes me as a very decent fellow. He's a good tenant. He's growing vegetables over there and taking care of the lawn," she said.

"He commented one time he was writing a book, and I guess he is," she said. "I don't hear any typing over there, so maybe he's writing it in long-hand."

Mrs. Twyman, incidentally, lived in the Watergate Apartments in Washington, D.C., before she moved to Santa Fe last October, leaving a job with the State Department for one with the National Park Service here. But she said she never met Ehrlichman in Washington.

Thomas A. Brown, a remodeler and craftsman, said he sold her the houses for about $65,000. The Ehrlichman cottage has one bedroom, corner fireplaces, Mexican tiles and an impressive view, he said.

This area's history dates to Spanish colonists in 1590, and many of the neighborhoods, including Ehrlichman's, are disorderly collections of old adobe houses and dirt roads. The Spanish-speaking neighbors are slowly selling to newcomers, many of them artists or owners of stores specializing in craft items. A 90-unit condominium is planned across the road.

The beard doesn't hide Ehrlichman in Santa Fe, which despite its 40,000 population and cosmopolitan residents, retains a small-town neighborliness.

But there's a tradition of leaving people alone that has let other celebrities, from John Wayne to poet Alan Ginsberg, pass through seemingly without notice.

Ehrlichman plays tennis, goes to quiet parties and frequents the more intimate restaurants. Meanwhile, his wife, Jeanne, has taken a job with the Seattle Symphony. She declines all comment about her relationship with her husband.

At least some of their five children have visited Ehrlichman here, and their youngest son, Robert, played guitar and sang for a while at a casual Canyon Road restaurant called "The Bistro."

William Kirschke, the young conductor of the Orchestra of Santa Fe, says on the basis of a conversation at a social gathering that Ehrlichman's knowledge of music is impressive. They talked about the Santa Fe Opera's production of "Falstaff," which Ehrlichman saw.

The ethic on Canyon Road, expressed time and again, is you don't talk politics with John Ehrlichman or you'll ruin the party.

"He's laid back. He's got some dues to pay," said a bearded musician. "But who am I to say how much?"

A waitress who has served him at a coffee house said, "I don't like him, but that's just politics. Heck, all he does here is eat."

His postman, Johnny Garcia, said, "He's nice to me. We talk about the weather. I think he's had enough problems as it is.

Why try to bring Watergate up?" Perhaps in response to the "live and let live" attitude, the Ehrlichman of the streets of Santa Fe is nothing like the scowling witness of the Senate Watergate hearings two years ago. He has a ready smile and a manner that one lady shopkeeper described as "very charming."

Politics can be serious business in this state capital where 37 per cent of the jobs are with state government. Watergate drew more interest than in some other places since this is the home town of Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., of the Senate Watergate Committee.

Montoya says he hasn't come in contact with Ehrlichman here and, "It hasn't come to my attention that any problems have come up because he's living here. As a private citizen he's entitled to his privacy, and I hope he gets his matters with the courts straightened out."

Ehrlichman's initial explanation of why he moved to Santa Fe was that he wanted to do personal penance by volunteering his legal knowledge of land problems to the Pueblo Indians. But the governing body of the eight northern tribes turned him down.

So did U.S. District Court Judge John Sirica when Ehrlichman attorney Ira M. Lowe proposed the Indian service as an alternative to Ehrlichman's 2½-to 8-year prison sentence.

Study Noted In Nat'l Listing

A study done by Dr. Robert M. Brown of the East Carolina University School of Education is noted in a recent issue of Resources in Education, a monthly journal published by the National Institute of Education.

The 45-page study is entitled "A Survey of Student Teachers' Views on Selected Aspects of the Teacher Education Program in Early Childhood Education, Intermediate Education, and Secondary Education."

The Brown Survey was published by the Institute in February and is available in the NIE Education Resources Information Center in ECU's Joyner Library and in other U.S. research libraries.

Study Grant For Professor

A grant for advanced study in the Romanian language has been awarded Dr. Michael F. Bassman of the East Carolina University foreign language faculty under a nationwide program supported by the Ford Foundation.

Dr. Bassman was one of 26 scholars who received grants for study in East European languages with the sponsorship of the American Council of Learned Societies and the Social Science Research Council.
