

West Meadowbrook Plans Are Discussed

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The City Council held a public hearing last night to discuss the possible implementation of the West Meadowbrook Redevelopment Project as a means of resolving the critical problems of that area.

The public hearing was the first in a required series necessary in order to include the project in the overall Community Development Program through a budget amendment.

At the direction of the Council to investigate possibilities for meeting the problems of the West Meadowbrook neighborhood, the city staff prepared a report based on a field investigation of the area and its physical and social characteristics.

City Planner John Schofield, in discussing the study, said the purpose of the investigation was to determine several feasible alternative development strategies for the area. He pointed out that the area is deteriorating both physically and socially with residents primarily of lower income with few salable job skills. He explained that most of the area is situated in what has been designated as flood plain and, in fact, flooding that occurred twice during the past year.

Flooding in the study area, which includes some 33.4 acres situated between one-half and one mile north of the Tar River between Greene Street and Memorial Drive, has caused some health and safety problems, it was noted. The area is primarily residential oriented, Schofield said.

There are 52 existing structures within the project area and only four of the 52 meet minimum code standards, it was explained. Of the 52 structures, 17 could be rehabilitated while 31 are deteriorated and recommended for demolition. All but one structure involves residential property.

A possible development strategy, the city planner continued, would involve the city's purchasing of land in West Meadowbrook which lies within the flood plain. The city would assist tenants and homeowners in finding suitable housing outside the flood plain section.

"There are many favorable aspects of this strategy," the study points out. "First, the city would negate future personal and property damages resulting from floods. Also, since many of the people currently living in the flood plain live in deteriorating or dilapidated structures, the city would be helping to upgrade these residents' living environment by relocating them in structures which meet minimum housing code standards," it states.

The study continues, "Finally, the city would have the ability of using the flood plain area in a more compatible use, i.e., neighborhood park or a natural area."

On the negative side of the strategy, is the relocation of families which have lived in the area for many years, Schofield said.

The second development strategy proposed would involve removing the area from the flood plain by constructing an earth dam or dike from Memorial Drive (N.C. 11) to Greene Street. After construction of the dike, the city would then assist in rehabilitating all habitable units and acquiring and tearing down of all deteriorated structures, the study relates.

The dike strategy would provide additional land for future residential uses and would not involve the social costs related to relocation, Schofield explained. In addition, he contended the move would help stabilize the area and attract conforming residential development.

There would be possible environmental questions relating to the dike construction, it was asserted, and the downstream effects of the dike on the flood plain would have to be determined. Schofield said that the dike method would probably cost twice as much as the purchase-relocation alternative.

Energy Corp. Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford sent to Congress today a proposal for a $100 billion government corporation to help finance energy projects that Ford said could replace 10 to 15 million barrels of imported oil daily by 1985.

Sent to the House and Senate was a 54-page draft bill to establish an Energy Independence Authority (EIA) that would be designed to help pay for projects beyond the scope of private efforts.

The President unveiled his controversial plan in broad outline in a speech last month in San Francisco. The legislation spells out the fine print of the proposal, which has been pushed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller despite reservations by some administration officials.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen's office distributed a fact sheet to go with the legislation that said:

"The $100 billion for energy projects could help assure that the equivalent of up to 10-15 million barrels of oil per day of new energy production is realized by 1985."

Under the legislation, EIA would support only those projects that would "contribute directly and significantly to energy independence" and projects "that would not be financed without government assistance."

To be headed by a five-member board of directors, appointed by the President and subject to Senate confirmation, EIA would sell $25 billion of capital stock to the Treasury and raise the remaining $75 billion in normal capital markets through the issuance of notes, debentures and bonds.

In a letter of transmittal to Congress, Ford said capital requirements for energy projects would total about $600 billion over the next 10 years.

Drill Looked 'Real'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Very few people knew that it was a fire drill . . . the people walking along downtown streets . . . shoppers and employees in downtown businesses . . . occupants of the Pitt County Court House . . . at least of all, employees in the Federal Building at the intersection of Evans and Third Streets.

The Federal Building workers were startled when they heard the building's fire alarm system blare out. Some evacuated the building immediately. Others stood in hallways until they heard the fire trucks, their sirens blaring, pull up outside, before they left.

And most of the firemen themselves thought the 2 p.m. alarm was the real thing. Only a handful of older firefighters knew that the call was a drill.

Fire combat officers and officers of the fire prevention bureau wanted it that way. It was a test of the department's response capability; a rest of office workers reaction to a fire situation; and a promotion of Fire Prevention Week.

The drill did draw attention. When the three fire engines, the department's 85-foot snorkel and a rescue truck that responded to the call pulled up to the Federal Building, people spilled from near-by offices and business firms to watch as firemen pulled hoses from the trucks into the building and raised the snorkel high overhead.

Bystanders also saw rescue squad members bring a "victim" that had been injured in a fall on a stairway from the "burning" building. Officers said the drill went off well. They seemed pleased with the response of firefighters and rescue men; of the way Federal Building employees responded; and the drill did focus attention on the Fire Department during Fire Prevention Week.

Meet Monday

The Redevelopment Commission will hold its regular October meeting on Monday at 7:30 p.m. at 319 S. Evans Street.

Agenda items include a discussion of the status of current projects; qualification of bidders; and a report on the status of the downtown mall construction.

The Commission meetings are held in the Central Business District project office.

Israel Signed Sinai Accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel today signed the final document of the Israeli-Egyptian Sinai accord, just seven hours after the Senate approved a provision of the pact that calls for 200 American technicians to monitor the peace.

Israel's formal approval, which was delayed pending final congressional approval of the monitorship, clears the way for a pullback of Israeli troops in the Sinai Desert and the return of captured Abu Rudeis oilfields to Egypt.

The Senate approved the use of U.S. civilians in the Sinai on a vote of 70 to 18. The House approved the arrangement 341 to 69 on Wednesday.

The civilian technicians will be stationed between Israeli and Egyptian forces in a demilitarized buffer zone.

President Ford, who had sought approval of the peace pact provision last week, was expected to act quickly to establish the small force at electronic monitoring stations in the buffer zone. Israel's signature came today in Jerusalem. The pact was initiated by Israel and Egypt on Sept. 1. Egypt fully signed the pact on Sept. 22, but Israel refused to sign it until after Congress had acted.

Both Israel and Egypt conditioned their pact on approval by Congress of the use of Americans to monitor surveillance stations in the Sinai passes to give early warning of any military movements to both sides and to the 5,000-man United Nations peacekeeping force stationed there.

Final congressional action also cleared the way for signing of four additional United States agreements, three with Israel and one with Egypt.

They pledge continued U.S. diplomatic efforts to settle Middle East differences.

Subject to congressional appropriations, the United States also promised consideration of stepped up military and economic aid to Israel, economic aid to Egypt and aid to help Israel obtain oil in the event of an Arab boycott after the return of the Abu Rudeis oil field to Egypt.

Senate backers of the Sinai resolution hailed its passage as the opening of the road to peace in the Middle East.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., was among those with misgivings about the first direct American involvement in the Middle East.

Mansfield said it increases chances for U.S. involvement in Middle East fighting, should it occur again, and the danger of confrontation with the Soviet Union.

He said he saw "ominous parallels" between the Sinai resolution and the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin resolution which led to U.S. participation in the Vietnam war.

The Sinai resolution requires that the American technicians be withdrawn immediately if hostilities break out again between Israel and Egypt or if Congress determines that their safety is jeopardized.

It also disclaims giving the President any additional authority to introduce armed forces of the United States into Middle East hostilities.

Strickland Making Governorship Bid

RALEIGH (AP)—State Sen. Thomas E. Strickland, D-Wayne, became the first official candidate for the 1976 Democratic nomination for governor today.

The 45-year-old Goldsboro attorney said during a morning news conference that he would run on his record of public service. Strickland, elected to the state House in 1967, has also served three terms in the state Senate.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and drug store executive Ed O'Herron of Charlotte have not officially announced but are among those expected to enter the Democratic gubernatorial contest.

Saying he does not offer North Carolinians politics as usual, Strickland said he believes each citizen can contribute to improving his community or state.

"By the same token, each business, occupation and profession is a special interest which should be promoted as long as that interest corresponds to the best interest of all the people," Strickland said in a prepared statement. "We should provide aid to the teacher who wants to teach, research and encouragement to the farmer and fishermen and all others who want to produce."

Strickland, generally considered a conservative, says he favors capital punishment, decentralization of the state's prison system and highway labor by prison inmates. He has supported establishment of a four-year medical school at East Carolina University and a veterinary medicine school at North Carolina State University.

THOMAS E. STRICKLAND

Scott Opposes A Wallace Win

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Former Gov. Bob Scott said Thursday night he didn't want Alabama Gov. George Wallace to win in the North Carolina presidential preference primary again.

Addressing the Durham County Democratic Women, Scott urged voters to support the presidential candidacy of former governor Terry Sanford, now president of Duke University.

"We want this state to support Terry Sanford," Scott said. In 1972 Scott committed himself to the presidential candidacy of Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine before Sanford decided to enter the race. Scott was governor then.

Wallace, who is expected to enter the Democratic presidential race, defeated Sanford in the state's first presidential primary in 1972.

During the 1975 session of the General Assembly, Strickland led a successful fight to retain North Carolina's presidential primary. He persuaded Alabama Gov. George Wallace to make a key appearance before the legislature in favor of the primary.

Wallace won North Carolina's first presidential primary in 1972, defeating Terry Sanford. Strickland sponsored legislation establishing that primary in 1971.

The Wayne County legislator lost a battle, though, when the General Assembly separated the presidential voting from the regular primary.

Strickland says he opposes repealing the state sales tax on food unless the overall tax base is broadened. He argues that getting rid of that tax would result in the revenue being made up by higher taxes in the middle income tax bracket, which he says is already the most heavily taxed.

Kremlin Frowns On Nobel Peace Prize Award

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin today blasted Andrei Sakharov as an "anti-patriot" and described the award of the Nobel Peace Prize to him as a political ploy.

The official news agency Tass, reporting news of the award after ignoring it for nearly a day, said:

"It is no secret that the award of 'peace prizes' has become in recent years an object of frank political speculations, which, by the way, was admitted also by the Norwegian press. One cannot escape the impression that here is also an instance of such speculations that are prompted by consideration which, far from meeting the interests of peace, are running counter to such interests."

The comment came as Sakharov in effect challenged Soviet authorities to let him go to Oslo in December to receive the award and to return home.

The 54-year-old scientist-turned-dissident told a news conference in his small Moscow apartment that his desire to go to Oslo "is not unknown to Soviet authorities and if they find it worthwhile, they'll also find a way to inform me regarding whether I'm allowed to go."

Tass, in an article by political commentator Yuri Kornilov, said Sakharov "has long since put himself in the position of an anti-patriot" and had "taken a stand against his own country."

Tass said Sakharov's statements repeat "what is said by anti-Communist propaganda" and by opponents to peaceful coexistence between Communist and non-Communist states.

"The bourgeois press," Tass said, "has immediately raised a racket over this move and its pronouncements on this matter have a clearly anti-Soviet slant." Tass also quoted French Communist comment on the award as anti-Soviet and antidemocratic.

Sakharov insisted his winning of the prize should not be considered by Soviet officials as an affront to them but instead as a victory for detente.

"There is no ground to think, that my speeches, my actions and the award of the prize are a challenge to official ideology," he said.

Tass, which often gives foreign views to indicate the Kremlin's position prior to taking a stand on its own, quoted the French Communist newspaper l'Humanite as saying the award is "undoubtedly a political gesture testifying to the clear wish to kindle the anti-Soviet campaign and impede the process of easing of international tension."

The paper accused Sakharov of giving up his scientific research to devote himself to "drawing up and circulating 'manifestos' hostile to the Soviet system."

It charged he supported reactionary American positions and spoke out in favor of the current regime in Chile, which "launched a wide repression campaign... victims of which were tens of thousands of people." Sakharov, 54, once a leading Soviet nuclear physicist who helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb, was barred from secret work in 1968 and has not worked in a laboratory since then. The wispy, stooped scientist told the news conference he had been reading research studies of Western physicists and added:

"I would like very much to spend part of my time from now on in scientific work, sitting behind a desk with a pencil in my hand, in peaceful conditions where nothing can distract me."

Sakharov said he accepted the prize with "genuine pleasure."

Holshouser Considers Summoning Legislature In Malpractice Crisis

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser today said he was considering calling a special session of the North Carolina legislature to deal with the medical malpractice insurance crisis.

Holshouser's statement came as a special legislative committee was convening to study the malpractice situation.

All voluntary private insurance companies have pulled out of the state, leaving doctors and hospitals desperately searching for ways to protect themselves from malpractice suits.

Hospitals are still negotiating with Lloyd's of London to get permanent backing for the stopgap self-insurance plan they hastily developed last week when their normal insurance policies expired, the committee was told by Marion Foster, president of the North Carolina Hospital Association.

Dr. James E. Davis of Durham said he did not know exactly how many doctors have had to curtail or discontinue their practices because they have lost their insurance. He estimated that 250-300 will be in that situation by the end of this month unless insurance becomes available. Davis, president of the North Carolina Medical Society, also said he did not know how soon the Society's proposed mutual insurance company will be able to issue policies.

The society has received about half of the $500,000 it needs as a capital fund from the state's doctors before it can go into the insurance business, Davis said.

Holshouser indicated that he would wait to evaluate the doctors' and hospitals' efforts at insuring themselves before deciding whether to call a special session.

The legislative committee which met today was established earlier this year as the regular legislative session ended to study the long-term problems of limiting the growth of malpractice claims and the size of the settlements awarded by juries. The committee will be under strong pressure from doctors, insurers, and hospitals to recommend laws which will make it more difficult for patients to successfully sue their doctors.

Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, was elected chairman. He said the committee would concentrate first on finding ways to make malpractice insurance available and then on long-range recommendations to limit the number of successful suits.

The regular session of the legislature passed a malpractice insurance pool law which it anticipated would prevent a crisis by forcing all the insurance companies in the state to handle malpractice insurance business.

The companies, however, are challenging the law's constitutionality and they have won temporary restraining orders that exempt them from its provisions.

Tally Correct

Thursday's official canvass, conducted by the Pitt Board of Elections of voting returns from the Greenville and Farmville municipal elections confirmed the vote totals published by The Daily Reflector on Wednesday.

Elections Board chairman James C. Lanier Jr. said that the canvass revealed no discrepancies from the unofficial returns compiled by The Reflector on election night.

The canvass makes the election here of Percy Cox as mayor and Mildred McGrath, Joe Taft Jr., Dr. Frank Fuller, John Howard, Clarence Gray and the Rev. William Hadden as members of the City Council official.

In Farmville, the official count confirmed the election of incumbent Mayor Will Joyner and Commissioners Wilton R. Duke, Jack Farrior and John Turner Walston.

According to the vote count in the mayor's race, approximately 4,100 citizens voted on Tuesday out of a total city registration of 12,000 or roughly 34 per cent.

If Wife Works At Job, Does Marriage Suffer?

By NANCY VON HERRMAN
UNC-G News Bureau
GREENSBORO — Should wives work outside the home? Recent research by a family relations specialist at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro indicates that, at certain times in a marriage, it may be a good idea for wives to seek outside employment. At other times, he suggests, it may be better for the wife to be at home.

The specialist, Dr. Dennis K. Orthner, first became interested in the subject of wives working outside the home when he looked at existing research on the subject. "One of the most shocking things to me is that there is such a negative stereotype of the working wife," he observed. Orthner told of a study made once regarding the story material used in soap operas. "In the stories it was consistently found that the working woman had all the problems," he revealed.

For his study, he used a randomly selected group of 220 upper-middle-class wives in a medium-sized Southern city. Orthner decided to concentrate on two variables about the family. These were the type of occupation in which the wife engaged and the state of the family life cycle.

The employment groups that he used were professional-managerial clerical-sales and home-working wives. The stages of the life cycle were these: childless wives, wives with young children, wives with older children and post-parental wives (after children were grown and left home).

The assistant professor explained that there are two theories with regard to the working wife. The first is the theory of role strain. This suggestion implies that the more roles the wife acquires, the less competently she will be able to handle any one of them and therefore will be frustrated, anxious and upset.

The second theory is one of role accumulation which states that people can adequately assume more roles and responsibilities. "In other words, the wife who works may have a greater sense of satisfaction and more worth," said Orthner. "In which case the added roles do not necessarily create strain."

With these theories in mind, Orthner decided that one determination of the effect of the wife's working would be in the use of leisure time. "When the wife adds outside employment to the duties at home, one of the first things that she cuts out is discretionary or free time," he remarked. "A wife can't cut out washing clothes, cooking or doing the dishes, but she can diminish the amount of time spent in husband-wife companionship."

Orthner added that most husbands of working wives contribute little more to responsibilities at home than husbands of housewives. Therefore, the workweek of employed wives is much longer than for housewives, he notes.

Then, what did he find? "Basically, when wives don't have children, being employed did tend to enhance the relationship with the husband," Orthner reported. "This demonstrates that the role accumulation perspective is working. The wives are more satisfied, busy, productive, contributing, and are more and better companions and spouses."

Orthner found this to be especially true if the woman was employed in a professional-managerial position rather than a clerical-sales one. "The clerical-sales job still helped, but not as much in this study," he said. But he noted that this could be true because of the sample population studied. "Many of these wives in clerical-sales positions had college degrees and therefore, may have had conflict within themselves."

Studying the family's life cycle, Orthner noted that the presence of children creates a totally different picture and tends to support the theory of role strain. "Children add an immense number of roles for the parents so the working mother had to add employment on top of the role as mother. Thus, we find that mothers who worked outside the home exhibited lower companionship experiences than mothers who were not employed."

Orthner thinks this creates a higher potential for strain on the marriage. He qualified his findings by saying that this does not mean that all mothers should not work, but that if they do, the husband-wife relationship may not be as companionate and both husband and wife should realize this. "They will not be able to spend as much time in activities in which they interact with each other such as game playing, visiting friends or engaging in sexual or affectional activity," he stressed.

One interesting finding was a lower companionship among wives who worked part-time in professional-managerial positions. "This seems to run counter to the idea that the ideal work situation for the wife is one in which she is able to meet employment needs part-time in a professional capacity yet still meet obligations at home," remarked Orthner. He suggested that these findings may indicate that this particular situation needs to be studied further.

"These findings indicate what might be best in most situations, but there are always exceptions," said Orthner. "There are some mothers who are really better off working outside and home and employing someone else to care for the children. And the children probably benefit also," he stated.

Gals Forced To Do 'Look-Busy' Work

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem is probably a common one, but I haven't yet seen a solution to it in your column, so I thought I'd write.

There are four girls in our office. (It's an insurance agency.) At times we are very busy, but there are times when there is absolutely nothing to do.

In the past, when we had nothing else to do, we just sat around and talked, did needlework or read magazines—anything to keep from pulling our hair out from sheer boredom. Now our bosses have instructed us to "look" busy with "insurance business," even though we aren't. In other words, we have to be typing something—even if it's personal correspondence. We can't read books or magazines, do needlepoint or manicure our nails.

I know this doesn't make one bit of sense, but those are our orders. Do you have any suggestions about how we can make our bosses see how ridiculous their orders are?
BORED FOURSOME

DEAR BORED: Better follow instructions or else your bosses might wise up to the probable fact that they've got more help than they really need.

DEAR ABBY: Add this one to your list of how a husband can tell if his wife is fooling around: if she suddenly starts to get pedicures and shaves her legs every day.
CAUGHT ON IN COLORADO

DEAR CAUGHT ON: And here's another tip for the wives on how to tell if hubby is fooling around: if he starts shaving twice a day and suddenly makes constant use of those breath-sweeteners. Also, if he "loses" more than two handkerchiefs a week, follow him!

DEAR ABBY: I own a nice little two-bedroom cottage, which I advertised for rent. A nice-looking young fellow answered the ad, saying he planned to be married soon. He liked the house and said he wanted his fiancée to look at it. (She lived in another town.) She arrived the next day, saw the house and liked it, and he signed a year's lease.

The next day, they bought some furniture and moved right in—together! Abby, they've been living there in my house for two months now, just like husband and wife, I presume.

This is a small town, and I have my reputation to think of. I go to church and am an Eastern Star, and I don't approve of couples living together before marriage.

Yesterday, I asked her if they had set their wedding date, and she said, "Not yet."

What do I tell the neighbors when they ask me who the new couple is? And should I tell this young man and his fiancée that if they don't get married, they'll have to move?
OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR OLD: You'd better not tell them to move until you know what the law (and their lease) reads. There ARE two bedrooms in the house, so as long as they pay the rent on time, don't damage the property and don't disturb the neighbors, how can their personal sleeping arrangements harm you or anyone else?

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Welcome back the Spanish onion! In the early fall that sweet and late-maturing vegetable returns to markets and stays with us until early spring. During this time you can use it to make some delicious dishes that just do not taste as good when other onions are used.

One of these is a German creation — Zwiebelkuchen. Zwiebel means onion. Kuchen means cake. But the savory dish we call Onion Kuchen is a far cry from the dessert Americans regularly call cake. The biscuitlike or breadlike base for Onion Kuchen may be made with a "quick" leavening or with yeast. Its topping is a delectable combination of Spanish onion gently cooked in butter, eggs and sour cream — and sometimes caraway seed. The following recipe is a shortcut version because it calls for buttermilk baking mix for the base.

When we tested this recipe we served the Onion Kuchen with fried chicken and snap beans for a main course our tasters found tempting. But the Onion Kuchen is equally good with German or Polish-style sausage and red cabbage.

ONION KUCHEN
(Zwiebelkuchen)
1 large (about 1 pound) sweet Spanish onion
6 tablespoons butter or margarine

4 eggs
1 1/2 cups commercial sour cream
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon caraway seed
1/2 cup milk
1 3/4-cups buttermilk baking mix
Peel and quarter onion; slice into thin strips — there should be about 3 1/2 cups not packed down. In a 10-inch skillet in 4 tablespoons of the butter, gently cook the onion, stirring often, until wilted and yellowed — 20 to 30 minutes.

In a medium mixing bowl beat 3 of the eggs until yolks and whites are combined; gradually stir in the sour cream, keeping smooth. Stir in the salt, caraway seed and cooked onion; set aside.

In a 6-inch skillet melt the remaining 2 tablespoons butter; set aside. In a medium mixing bowl beat remaining egg with milk to combine; add the melted butter and the baking mix; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened — dough will not be smooth. Turn into a buttered glass baking dish (11 3/4 by 7 1/2 by 1 3/4 inches) or similar utensil and spread evenly. Spread onion mixture over dough. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until dough is browned and topping is set — 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve at once.

Makes 8 servings.

question concerning relocation, that home owners would be offered the fair market value for their homes and also relocation assistance funding. Joe Laney, executive director of the Redevelopment Commission, said that homeowners could also qualify for replacement housing payments to help buy new homes. In addition, tenants could be given allowances toward purchase of a home.

Councilman Clarence Gray said that he liked the preliminary dike construction proposal and he contended that people in the neighborhood would be happier with the results of that program.

Schofield said that 31 of the structures in the section would not be eligible for rehabilitation so relocation would still be involved under either proposal.

He said that more definitive proposals would be made at the next Council meeting in November.

Funding of the West Meadowbrook Redevelopment Project would be accomplished by amending the CDP budget to transfer funds originally designated for the South Evans Redevelopment Project to the new program. Under the current time schedule, money designated for South Evans could not be utilized and would be available for West Meadowbrook.

City Manager Harry Hagerty said that while the dike proposal was being considered, he doubted it would prove feasible.

Councilman Percy Cox indicated that he would like to have the opportunity to meet with residents of the West Meadowbrook section to discuss informally the neighborhood problems and possible solutions. He said more could probably be accomplished by meeting outside the Council chambers.

In another item on a lengthy business agenda, the Council voted to deny a request by Ed Tipton for rezoning from R-9 to Office and Institutional of approximately 3.6 acres on the west side of Tar Road, across from Pinewood Forest Subdivision.

Several residents of Pinewood Forest voiced their opposition to the rezoning request with most of them citing potential traffic problems created by an Office and Institutional development.

Bill Whitehurst of Pinewood Forest said that he understood the developers planned to construct a medical complex on the site but he pointed out that 21 uses are allowed under O&I, including a drive-in movie.

Other residents said they would like to see the property remain residential and the gathering indicated their feelings about the request with a standing show of opposition.

Mark Tipton, representing the developer, said that he felt the proposed professional office complex would not increase the traffic in the area and he noted that the value of the property would discourage any lesser use of the tract. The office complex would be built in phases, it was explained.

Following discussion, the Council voted unanimously to deny the rezoning request.

The board also voted to deny a request by Mrs. John Collins to rezone property at the northwest corner of E. Fifth Street and Harding Streets from R-6 to Office and Institutional in order to utilize the present structure as an office building. The Planning and Zoning Commission, meeting last month, recommended that the request be denied.

Mrs. Collins, who requested that a public hearing be scheduled on the request, said that what she is planning is the least offensive use of the property that she could think of. She said that "if you turn me down, then I'll have to operate my filling station" on the site.

Cox, noting that the property had been leased to Perkins Oil Co. for a filling station, questioned whether the six months limitation period ended at the close of the lease period or at the time the service station ceased to be operated.

Mrs. Collins said she wanted to go along with the neighborhood and she asserted that some people are opposed to the request because they are afraid that if the property is rezoned O&I, other uses might be made of the structure.

Jack Spain of 407 Rotary Avenue said that the request constituted spot zoning and he said that residents of the neighborhood are against changing the status of the area.

Gray offered the motion to deny the request without having a public hearing. Councilman John Howard abstained from voting due to family property interests in the area.

The Council tabled action on a request by Hoke Contracting Co. for rezoning of approximately one acre located at the northwest corner of Memorial Drive and Langley Drive from Flood Plain to Unoffensive Industry.

The Planning and Zoning Commission recommended denial of the request on the grounds that the proposed use of the property would not be compatible with the neighborhood.

A request by Hackett-Tripp Realty for rezoning from R-6 to Highway Commercial of property located at 2717 and 2721 Memorial Drive was unanimously approved.

The Council also gave its approval to a request by the Redevelopment Commission for rezoning of the Central Business District to conform to the proposed land use in the CBD Urban Renewal Plan.

Rezoning was approved in the district from Office and Institutional and Downtown Commercial Fringe to R-6, Office and Institutional and Downtown Commercial Fringe. The rezoning involves five segments of the CBD renewal plan, it was explained.

Approval was given, following a public hearing, on a request by Alfa Aviation Inc. for a permit to place a mobile home at the Pitt-Greenville Airport for use as an office for instruction and aircraft sales.

A letter from J. T. Little Jr. of the Airport Authority was read which indicated that the mobile structure would be a temporary facility that would permit the Alfa Aviation firm to operate until a permanent facility can be constructed.

Requests by Pitt Memorial Hospital for renewal of the permit for the mobile home located at the hospital and used as a physician quarter at night and by the Pitt Health Department for renewal of the permit for the mobile structure located at the department and used as an office were approved for one-year periods.

Council members voted to table a matter involving a request by Robert E. Laughter for rezoning of approximately 68.8 acres from R-6 to R-9. By tabling the request and sending it back to the Planning and Zoning Commission, the parties involved in the neighborhood will have time to work out an arrangement concerning the property development.

The property is bounded on the south by E. Fifth Street and on the west by Ash Street. Much of the property is owned by the Brown heirs and residents living in the section requested that the tract be rezoned in order to avoid conflicts in zoning and to preserve the residential nature of the neighborhood.

The request was unique in that a group of persons other than the sole property owners were seeking a change in zoning. The Planning and Zoning Commission failed to reach an agreement on the request and sent it to the Council with no recommendations.

Public hearings were set for Nov. 6 on a request by Mrs. Nettie Lassiter for a permit to utilize a mobile home at 310 Hooker Road as a personal residence; on a request by Camelot Inc. for rezoning from RA-20 to R-15 of approximately 102 acres on State Road 1725; on a request by the owners of Windy Ridge Townhouse Subdivision for satellite annexation (located on 14th Street Extension); and on an amendment to the City Code relating to who may petition for an amendment to the zoning ordinance or zoning map.

The Council also followed a request by the Redevelopment Commission in scheduling a public hearing for Dec. 4 to close and abandon Seventh Street across Disposal Parcel D-2 in the Central Business District.

Other action taken by the Council included: approval of applications for taxicab operator's permits by Eddie Lee Artis and Murray Spain; approval of a resolution providing a local cash matching contribution of $200 for the purchase of two mobile radios for use by the Police Department under a regional communications project;

Adoption of a resolution declaring two items of accounting equipment surplus and authorizing the city manager to dispose of the property by negotiated sale; amendment of the fire district by deleting Disposal Parcel D-2 in the CBD project; acceptance of portions of Deerwood Drive, Kingsbrook Drive, and Tyler Drive for maintenance by the city; waiver for the Greenville-Martinborough Lions Club of the privilege license requirements for the Jay-Bell Rides held on Sept. 8-13 at the corner of Greenville Boulevard and Bismark Street; and

Adoption of two recommendations by the Traffic Commission involving amending the ordinance by deleting unnecessary "Right Turn on Red Signs" at various city intersections and establishment of a loading zone on Cotanche Street in front of the Elbow Room for trucks to unload.

Approval was also given to the release or refunding of six items involving taxes; approval of two discovered 1975 tax assessments; and acceptance of the annual report of the Joint City-County Board of Adjustments.

Several appointments were made by the Council to local boards and commissions, including: Charles M. Vincent to the Board of Adjustments as an alternate with a term expiring in June of 1978; Gene Darden for his second three-year term on the Human Relations Council; the Rev. Dan Earnhardt, Mrs. Rosa Brewington John Bizell and Carl Darden to their first three-year terms on the Planning and Zoning Commission; and Carlton Cozart to the Public Transportation Commission.

The Council also requested that Rose High School and East Carolina University student government associations name two representatives to serve on the HRC.

Concurrence was also given to the appointment by the County Commissioners of Thomas Rivers, Sidney Dunn Jr. and Charlie Hardee to the Tar River Ports Commission. Rivers and Dunn are from Greenville while Hardee resides in Grifton.

Hagerty introduced Jim Hoover who has been employed as legal advisor to the Police Department.

Sanford Campaign Looks Shaky

Are there cracks in the Terry Sanford presidential campaign?

The former North Carolina governor's campaign manager resigned this week.

Philip Hoff, former Vermont governor, who was heading the Sanford campaign, said he was quitting to return to the practice of law because his funds had run out. Hoff will continue to campaign for Sanford, but not in an official capacity.

Sanford, who is now president of Duke University, as quick to issue a statement that his campaign was not shaky. "The campaign is not going under and will not go under," he said. "The organizational and financial structure looks the most promising it has looked since my announcement."

The candidate said he plans to name a finance chairman and discuss efforts to qualify for federal campaign funds.

Sanford said plans are "broadening and new people are coming aboard."

Nevertheless there were some questions raised about the Sanford campaign when his campaign manager resigned. Running a presidential campaign is quite expensive and there have been those who have wondered if Sanford could raise the money to carry it on.

There may be indications that the money is not coming in as well as it should, even though Sanford has gained some attention outside the state as a man capable of making a race for the presidency.

Certainly Sanford has obtained considerable administrative training while serving as governor and as president of Duke University. But it takes more than that to convince the people who will contribute the money to keep his campaign going. They must be made to believe that he does have a chance to win.

Sanford might do well to reveal the financial status of his campaign and without a doubt he needs a live wire fund raiser to keep the needed contributions coming in.

No Answer To Crime Rate?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Despite the best efforts of better trained, better educated, more highly paid law officers, and the attention of state and national leaders, crime continues to run rampant.

Statistics released last week prove no slowdown in crime; only more of it, almost everywhere in North Carolina.

There is, surely, no single solution to such a complex problem, but at least some of the experts in a position to influence things are beginning to talk sense.

They are turning away from the popular themes of recent years—that society and deprivation forced people into criminal acts, and that diagnosis of the ill, treatment, and understanding will bring about a cure.

New Theme

In two words, Severity and Certainty are becoming the theme in fighting crime. A criminal certain of being caught, convicted and sentenced to a severe prison term has only himself to blame.

Popular today are such things as indeterminate sentences in which the criminal is jailed until "rehabilitated," plea bargaining between defense and prosecution to clear dockets, psychological programs to cure the criminal, early releases and paroles from prison for behaving well and taking part in educational or vocational training programs.

Justification for such approaches, says Stevens H. Clarke, correctional law faculty member of the Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, has been that "we know how to treat the subject. That has had the props kicked out from under it."

Clarke can cite study after study—California, Illinois, New York, national ones—which show that some individuals are helped and reformed by the prison experience, some are harmed by prison and the contact with other criminals, some are hurt by the "deprivation of love and affection... but as a group, these conclusions do not hold true.

"Rehabilitation is only one way of reducing crime, and it has been proven to be a not very effective way at that... but research shows that as the possibility of being caught and punished increases, the crime rate goes down."

Prison, in sum, can serve three purposes, Clarke explained to the Legislative Commission on Correctional Programs at a recent session: it can rehabilitate; it can deter from crime by punishing; it can separate the criminal from society and keep him from doing harm.

No Fairness

"Length of time spent in prison and rehabilitation programs have little effect on recidivism," Clarke says. He thinks the basic philosophy of parole needs re-examination, and flexible sentencing has led to abuse by both judges and prison officials to the degree that there is no longer fairness to the criminal.

Clarke stopped short of giving the commission his own ideas for a solution, but suggests, that, "Old-fashioned deterrence does have an effect on the crime rate."

As the commission, chaired by Charlotte Attorney Eddie Knox, held its organizational meeting, State Rep. Herbert L. Hyde briefly presented "for argument" the proposition that four steps would go a long way toward reducing crime and setting the right direction for courts and prisons: Put the judge in charge of plea-bargaining and make it part of the regular court process; place a 30-day sentence limit on victimless crimes such as bad checks, non-support; drunkenness; revise all criminal sentences to establish certain punishment of set lengths; and abolish the entire parole system, but keep the work release program.

The Commission on Correctional Programs replaces an earlier commission on Sentencing, Criminal Punishment, and Rehabilitation.

The General Assembly established the commission to develop a longrange policy on the state's prison system which could effectively revamp sentencing procedures, prison programs, and the philosophy of the state's prison system down to architectural plans for prisons.

No Defense For Beame

WASHINGTON — "Mr. President, are you ready for this morning's briefing?"

"Yes, Henry, go ahead."

"Congress has just passed a bill making it possible for us to give arms to Turkey."

"Good. How much do you think we should give them?"

"Maybe $500 million to start with. Those bases mean a lot to us."

"It's a steal."

"We've just made a deal with Spain for air and naval bases over the next five years."

"That's nice. What will it cost us?"

"I would say between six and seven-hundred and fifty million dollars over the next five years. They wanted $2 billion in military aid, but we put our foot down."

"I'm glad you did. We can't throw money around."

"We hope to get the $2 billion for Israel and the $750 million for Egypt before the end of the congressional session."

"I should think so."

"We're getting a little resistance on the defense budget from Congress. We asked for $120 billion, but the House only wants to give us $111 billion."

"Dammit, don't they realize such reductions are a sure way to make us No. 2 in a world where only No. 1 counts?"

"I warned them about that, sir, but you know how they are on The Hill. They never think about being No. 1."

"I'm going to have to go out to some more Republican fund-raising dinners and warn the American people that Congress is playing fast and loose with national security."

"I think you should, sir. The people want to see you, and they want to hear what you're up against."

"What else do you have to tell me?"

"The Treasury revised the U.S. deficit figures from $60 billion to $70 billion and possibly $90 billion at the rate we're borrowing money."

"Well, it can't be helped. We need a strong economy, and we can't do it with a balanced budget."

"There's one more thing. Mayor Beame is in the outer office to see you about a loan for New York City."

"That's ridiculous! How does he expect the United States to loan him any money?"

"He's offering you U.S. air and naval bases. He claims his are better than the ones we have in Turkey and Spain. He says he'll give you the Brooklyn Navy Yard, La Guardia Field and Staten Island on a long-term lease."

"That's outrageous! We're not going to finance Beame just because he has military bases we need."

"He also said he is willing to pull his troops back from the George Washington Bridge and out of the Lincoln Tunnel in exchange for $2 billion in aid."

"Beame thinks he can get out of his fiscal problems by scaring us with war with New Jersey. But it isn't going to work. If he gets away with it, we'll be blackmailed by every mayor in America."

"Exactly my feelings, sir. We can't play sugar daddy for every bankrupt city in the

Other Editors Say Punishment Best

(The Wilson Times)

Because of the growing crime rate there is also increasing concern as to the most effective way to handle those who get caught and who are sent to prison.

There was a time when the rehabilitation of prisoners, through parole and other so-called soft measures, was tried and these programs have failed, for it is now admitted that you cannot force psychological change on a man who doesn't want to change.

So you are back to the real issue and this is that the fear of punishment is the best deterrent to crime. If a man goes into prison he will think twice, if and when he gets out of prison, before he commits another crime, that is unless he is a hardened criminal who knows no other life.

Yes, prisons are for punishment, and coming under attack are the courts, the sentencing procedures, plea-bargaining sessions, behind closed doors, and judges who have the discretion to let one man off while jailing another.

Superior Court Judge Frank W. Sneed thinks there are two major areas of concern in the courts and these are plea-bargaining and discretionary sentences. In plea bargaining the defense attorney and the district attorney privately agree to a guilty plea, generally to a charge less than the one faced by the defendant. The purpose is to speed the system and clear the docket.

Judge Sneed does not approve of giving judges the power to choose sentences. Some men go free from the same crime that others get 20 years in prison for committing. He says there is no justice in a system based upon the personalities and prejudices of judges and other court officials.

On the other side of the question, he thinks length of terms should not be subject to the whims and dislikes of supervisors and participation in rehabilitation programs should be voluntary.

In other words, the prisons are for punishment and when this is realized and a man sentenced, and he knows there is no way to reduce the sentence, he may consider if the crime is worth the punishment.

It is time to try a different method in the fight to reduce crime, for it is growing all the while and increasing rapidly in the South where many of our young people are involved.

The Ship With Tradition

EDITOR'S NOTE — Today she lives out her long life at the Boston Navy Yard, still in commission; a permanent exhibit for the people of the United States and a reminder of the nation's rich naval heritage.

By EDMUND PINTO

Associated Press Writer

The stories they tell about "Old Ironsides" still stir the imagination with visions of a young nation struggling to survive.

The pirates of Algiers, Tunis and Tripoli, and the ships of the great British navy — these were the adversaries of the USS Constitution.

Her men were jaunty, bold sailors who engaged the 49-gun frigate, HMS Guerriere, in the War of 1812 and, after a 30-minute battle, forced their British adversaries to surrender.

For a sea battle, it was one of the shortest in history, but its results have lingered on for 200 years: the Constitution earned its famous nickname, "Old Ironsides," in this battle and the United States won a reputation as a first-class naval power.

She wasn't around at the birth of the nation. She joined the family more than 21 years after independence was declared, but in American folklore the name USS Constitution is firmly implanted in the exploits of those early years.

Construction was authorized by Congress in 1794 after an outbreak of war between England and France that saw both interfere with neutral U.S. shipping. To fashion her into the biggest frigate of her time, the craftsmen who built her had her timbers cut from live oak, red cedar, white oak, pitch pine and locust taken from forests from Maine to Georgia.

They laid her keel at Hart's shipyard in Boston, near where she is tied up today at Constitution Wharf. The Constitution was held together with spokes and copper bolts supplied by Paul Revere.

Truly she was a national ship.

She was launched 178 years ago this fall and while she won her fame as "Old Ironsides" in her victory over the Guerriere, it was her successes over the Barbary pirates that began her reputation as a fighting ship.

The Constitution was not yet four years old, untested in major combat, when the Bashaw of Tripoli cut down the flagstaff at the American consulate on May 10, 1801, declaring war on America. He hoped to increase the tribute America was paying him, but the infant nation sent warships instead.

The Constitution sailed from Boston as the flagship of Commodore Edward Preble's Mediterranean fleet. The American warships arrived in Gibraltar on Sept. 12, 1803, and almost immediately disaster struck. The frigate Philadelphia went aground and was captured by enemy gunboats.

The story of the daring raid, planned aboard the Constitution, to wrest this prize from pirate grasp is well known in U.S. history. It is the story of the bravery of Lt. Steven Decatur and 74 officers and men who slipped into Tripoli harbor at night aboard a captured enemy ketch, the Mastico, renamed Intrepid.

Through a ruse, the American seamen gained the decks of the Philadelphia with cutlasses flashing before the pirates could organize resistance. Decatur completed his mission in 15 minutes, recapturing the ship and setting it afire, for there was no way to sail it from the enemy harbor.

With the ship ablaze and the entire harbor and its defenses alerted, Decatur regained Intrepid and somehow sailed from the grasp of the angry pirates. Not a single American life was lost.

From Tripoli to Tunis to Algiers, the events set in motion by Decatur's raid and carried out by naval battle and blockade led by the Constitution freed America from the shackles of corsair extortion and planted the tradition of freedom of the seas for American merchant vessels.

That tradition was to be tested in the last great war with England, the War of 1812, where the Constitution again proved her mettle, to the surprise of English naval officers. They had believed that the Constitution and others of her class were too heavy and too clumsily constructed to outmaneuver British men of war.

In the beginning, the United States outfitted 17 warships, including the Constitution, against more than 1,000 British ships.

Before her pivotal battle with the Guerriere, the Constitution was forced to prove herself over and over. The two frigates finally met off the Nova Scotia coast on Aug. 19, 1812. An artist's rendition of the fight, done from eyewitness accounts, shows the American seamen

Indians Worst Victims

By DAN HALL

WINDSOR LOCKS, Conn. (AP) — In the past, smallpox nearly wiped out the American Indian, now alcoholism is threatening to do what smallpox couldn't, says Al Pooley.

"It's at epidemic levels," said Pooley, training coordinator for the American Indian Commission on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse in Arvada, Colo.

"Alcoholism is the No. 1 problem among Indians in both urban areas and reservations," said John Ginnish, a recovering alcoholic from Boston who will head a new regional alcoholism council for Indians.

The council was organized at a meeting on Indian alcoholism that Pooley, Ginnish and about 30 other authorities on Indian alcoholism attended this week.

Those at the meeting said the problem of alcoholism is five times worse among Indians than non-Indians in this country. Nearly all Indians are affected directly or indirectly by alcoholism, compared with one of every four non-Indians, they say.

Pooley said the Indian's problems with liquor began when greedy white people gave it to Indians to weaken them and make it easy to get Indian land cheaply. In the process, Indians got the reputation of not being able to hold their liquor.

"I think that's been a tactic to keep someone down," Pooley said, adding that he had not been able to find scientific proof to support the claim that Indians are any less able than whites to hold their liquor.

Not everyone at the workshop was in full agreement with the consensus that alcoholism is the American Indian's chief problem.

"It's just a symptom," said Larry Green, another Six Nations Indian now attending the University of Buffalo.

He said the high rate of alcoholism throughout North America reflects a social imbalance caused by people's disrespect for "mother earth" and family relationships, which the Indian culture cherishes.

Wrenching the Indian from his or her culture further encourages alcoholism among that group, he added.

"It's always been a problem for us," he said. "Now it's a problem for you, too."

40 Years Ago Today

October 10, 1935

The price situation on the Greenville tobacco market was better yesterday, though the offerings were much lighter. The day's total sale ran less than half a million pounds.

The day's average price was $23.51 per hundred pounds or 60 cents above the day before.

Offerings were light again today with early sales indicating a continued rise in prices. Heavier sales were looked for again tomorrow, as well as better prices. In past years, October has always been considered the best month to market tobacco and warehousemen and growers expressed hope that this month's activities on the market would bring the season's price average close to the parity figure of 21 to 22 cents a pound.

Decide Regulation Hiked Price

By G. DAVID WALLACE

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's anti-inflation agency is studying dairy industry prices after an economic analysis concluded that government regulation boosts milk prices by about 10 cents a half gallon.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability hasn't made up its mind yet about the validity of the analysis, which started as an economist's doctoral dissertation. Indeed, the Agriculture Department, which the analysis blamed primarily for the higher prices, has attacked the conclusions as based on false premises.

But Michael H. Moskow, the new director of the inflation-monitoring wage and price council, said in an interview Wednesday the agency has initiated a review of milk prices because milk is such an important product for American consumers.

The economic analysis found that the actual price for a half-gallon of milk in 38 of the 56 federal marketing areas during 1960 was 42.8 cents. The study estimated that with no regulation at all the price would have been 39.4 cents.

In those areas in 1970, milk cost 57.8 cents a half-gallon, but would have been 47.4 cents without price regulations, the analysis said.

Moskow said, "It is a very controversial issue. Once we have a better idea what the evidence shows, then I think we can see whether any policy action is appropriate."

The council can hold hearings on subjects and subpoena evidence. It has no power to order price rollbacks or changes in regulation, although its composition of top economic specialists gives it considerable political influence.

Moskow-said the council is looking at federal and state regulations dealing with milk prices as well as the entire dairy industry.

One of the recent studies which attracted the council's interest was by John E. Kwoka Jr. He studied federal milk marketing orders while working toward his doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania and refined the study while assistant professor of economics at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He recently went to work in the Bureau of Economics at the Federal Trade Commission.

Under federal milk marketing orders, the Department of Agriculture sets the minimum prices which farmers must receive for the milk they produce, according to whether it's finally used as table milk, cheese or dried milk.

The federal regulations, which amount to a floor under prices, now cover the 56 marketing areas around major metropolitan centers. Those marketing areas cover about 70 per cent of the nation's population.

Kwoka's analysis attempted to construct a price for milk assuming there was no regulation. Although his study did not specifically deal with retail price regulations in the 17 states with the authority to set such prices, Kwoka said in an interview his findings could fairly be applied to both state and federal regulations.

Kwoka said the effect of the federal regulation is to preserve inefficient milk producers while blocking expansion of market power by the most efficient milk producers, primarily those in the Minnesota-Wisconsin area.

Strength For Today

DEBT

In these days when we are told by economists that "over-saving" leads to depression, when we are urged to spend by government and by business handing out rebates and credits, it is easy to forget that debt can become a very unpleasant master. The British statesman Disraeli once said that debt has a small beginning but a giant's growth and strength.

Debt can be a special type of poverty. We buy with borrowed money things which we really do not need.

Then when the realization comes upon us that we must pay for something we no longer take satisfaction in owning, we are more poverty-stricken than if we had never made the purchase.

The Greeks used to say that debt turned free men into slaves. Every person who goes into debt to buy things he or she does not need has incarcerated himself in a prison like the debtor's prisons of old. "It is better to go to bed without supper," said Benjamin Franklin, "than to rise in debt."

Thirty minutes later, British casualties were 79 men killed or wounded; the Americans had 14 casualties, of which seven died. The Guerriere was crippled and so was set afire and sunk.

It was during this battle, legend has it, that an American sailor, noticing that shots from the Guerriere were making no impression on the Constitution's outside planking, but were bounding off into the sea, shouted, "Huzza, her sides are made of iron!"

Thus, "Old Ironsides," one of the most famous names in American history, was linked to the Constitution, which is today the oldest U.S. Navy ship still in commission.

A total of 359 public utility and industrial projects were put into operation in North Vietnam during the first half of 1975, according to a Hanoi Radio report.

YESTERDAY TODAY and FOREVER

Christopher Columbus had trouble recruiting sailors for his early voyages. Men were afraid, but the bravest enlisted and sailed off to the wonders of a new world.

Most of us are afraid of the unknown. We have our qualms and doubts about a new job, moving to a strange city, beginning a marriage, or simply facing the uncertainties of tomorrow. We do not know what lies ahead, and we worry about being able to cope with it. In this ever-changing world, we instinctively yearn for that which does not change.

Whatever tomorrow brings, we can have the peaceful conviction that the love of God for His children is trustworthy and everlasting.

Discover an abiding security. Worship this Sunday.

Open House At Rose High On Monday Evening

The annual Open House at Rose High School has been announced by Rose principal Robert Alligood.

The event will take place beginning at 8 p.m. Monday with parents of all students urged to attend. The open house will begin with a short group session in the gymnasium, to be followed by visits to each classroom of the student with an opportunity for parents to meet the teachers of their children.

"It would be most helpful," Alligood said, "if each parent planning to attend would get from their child a complete schedule of their classes and room numbers."

A Violation Of Policies

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—It was improper for Sen. Robert Morgan's daughter to collect lunch money in her class, local school officials said Thursday.

Allowing children to collect lunch money violated school and federal policy because the child would learn which classmates get free or reduced price lunches, Harnett County School Superintendent R.A. Gray said.

In a speech before the Senate Tuesday, the North Carolina Democrat said his 12-year-old daughter, Mary, told him that one of his hometown's wealthiest families qualified its children for reduced lunch prices. Morgan related the incident and said he was reluctantly voting to override President Ford's veto of the school lunch program.

"One of the larger landowners in my town, one who lives in one of the finest homes in my town, is receiving reduced price lunches for his children," Morgan told the Senate.

The program is aimed at guaranteeing lunches for low income children. Morgan said he preferred to have all children receive free lunches.

Firm Surprised Illegal Aliens Among Employees

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—A spokesman for the Dan Rivers textile corporation says the firm was surprised to learn that alleged illegal aliens were working in two of its plants.

Fifteen workers were arrested by agents of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service on Thursday at Dan Rivers' Woodside division mills in Greenville and Easley.

"We are surprised to learn that the immigration service has found persons alleged to be illegal aliens," the Dan Rivers spokesman said.

"Although we have neither the responsibility nor the means of validating the legal status of any alien, each of these persons employed by Woodside presented a work permit prior to employment," he said.

James R. Coplen, investigator for the immigration and naturalization service, said none of the aliens had work permits of any type when arrested.

It is possible they had presented work permits when they applied for jobs, but "They did not show them to us," said Coplen. "We searched them, their premises and effects and did not find any work permits."

Fred McClesky, regional director of the immigration and naturalization service, said the list of employees was matched with those in a South Carolina Labor Department computer last month.

He said five were allowed to purchase plane tickets home and the others were jailed under bonds up to $2,500.

All 15 were from South America, McClesky said, and all had tourist visas.

Coplen said the investigation would continue, since there are still a number of leads to be checked out. Other arrests are possible, he said.

McClesky said his agency may prosecute a local man who helped some of the aliens elude arrest, but that no action is planned against the mills.

He said mills can be prosecuted only if they attempt to hide aliens from investigators.

'Looked Like The Old Nixon' Says Spectator

LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — "It looked like the old Nixon," declared an eyewitness after former President Richard Nixon swung into rare public view for a charity golf game with Teamster chief Frank Fitzsimmons. Nixon took full cuts at the ball and strode without a limp as he spent five hours Thursday on the 18-hole La Costa golf course on the Teamster-owned resort 30 miles south of his San Clemente estate.

"The first thing I noticed was that his eyebrows are turning gray," one spectator said.

The event was a fund-raiser for the Little City for Retarded Children of Palatine, Ill. Nixon gave a brief talk to about 50 amateur golfers at the event — stressing a need for citizens to help the retarded children's cause.

"You won't believe this but his thoughts were of the shots he should have made and the putts he missed," said Robert Dachman of Chicago, director of the tournament.

"He was in a good mood," said one of the photographers present. "He smiled a lot and he was talking all the time. He would talk to anybody who would come near him. He was very personal with people. He put his arm around people."

However, at one point Fitzsimmons — whose union had endorsed Nixon's successful reelection bid — strode over to the Secret Service and asked them to escort the press off the course. A longtime aide, Marine Col. Jack Brennan, accompanied Nixon.

Nixon greeted a question on his health with a simple answer, "Fine." His face had normal color, neither pale nor tanned. A heavier appearance around the waistline contrasted with his thinness when he left a Long Beach hospital about a year ago after nearly dying from phlebitis of the leg.

It marked perhaps Nixon's longest public appearance since he resigned as president in August of 1974 in the Watergate scandal.

"It looked like the old Nixon," declared Dachman. "He walked like a typical golfer — when he made a good shot he walked proudly, and when he made a bad shot he kind of hunched over. He looked great and he shot fairly well — a 92."

Golfing with Nixon and Fitzsimmons were Teamster Secretary-Treasurer Murry Miller, Teamster International Vice President Joseph Trerotola and John Murphy, president of the board of Gateway Transportation Co. of La Crosse, Wis.

RALEIGH (AP)—While basic medical care was found adequate, a medical committee that studied health care at the Women's Correction Center in Raleigh called for increased psychiatric services for inmates.

A report from the committee, appointed after a riot at the prison in June, was released Thursday by the governor's office. Among complaints inmates cited was what they termed inadequate medical care.

Serving on the committee and writing the overall report were Drs. Philip Nelson, Rose Pully and George Debnam. In a separate report, Debnam said the prison has sufficient facilities and numbers of medical persons at the prison to serve the needs of the 450 inmates.

In the main report, the committee said there is a need for a separate facility to imprison young women. "We question the moral, ethical, and social propriety of submitting a 14- or 16-year-old youngster to the psychic trauma of being a resident at this adult facility," the report said.

In response to the report, Gov. Jim Holshouser said in a statement, "We recognize, as the committee members did, that improvements are needed in psychiatric counseling services for women at the correctional center." Significant improvements have been made in medical care for inmates, but continued improvement was still needed, he said.

The report zeroed in on what the committee said appeared to be a conflict between the state Division of Mental Health Services, corrections officials and the law on what action should be done with an inmate of any prison who needs psychiatric care. "We are not sure we understand this situation, but we are sure that the present arrangement is anything but satisfactory," the report said.

Proper health care is an inmate's right, not a privilege, because the state had deprived the person of his freedom, the physicians said. "We have deep misgivings about the apparent tendency to send patients who are psychotically ill to the penal system..."

In other recommendations, the doctors said:

—An effort should be made to attract women physicians to work at women's prison.

—A full time chaplain should be hired for the prison.

—An area should be set aside where inmates "could enjoy silence and quietude on occasion."

Debnam analyzed the prison's medical facilities and personnel situation. He concluded that better use could be made of the facilities at women's prison, but overall, the facilities and number of medical persons there were adequate to serve the 450 inmates.

Also, he suggested the prison form an affiliation with a medical school so aspiring doctors and nurses could be used to provide better medical care to the inmates.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, wavering between hopes for lower interest rates and concern over New York City's financial plight.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.49 at 823.05, but gainers clung to a slight lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was relatively light. Interest rates continued their week-long decline in the short term money market today, propelled by news of a further drop in the nation's money supply.

With money-supply growth lagging, the reasoning went on Wall Street, the Federal Reserve might soon be prompted to take a more stimulative approach in its monetary policy—with the resulting likelihood of downward pressure on interest rates.

But optimism on that score was largely offset by uneasiness over New York City's financial position. At his press conference Thursday night, President Ford reiterated his opposition to the idea of a financial rescue of the city by the federal government.

Emerson Electric was the most active issue on the Big Board, down 3/4 at 34 1/2. A 74,900-share block traded at 34 1/2.

Burroughs steadied at 88 1/2, unchanged, following a 7 1/2-point drop Thursday on a quarterly earnings report that analysts said showed a smaller-than expected gain.

The NYSE's composite index lost .09 to 46.63 in the first hour. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .04 at 84.28.

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—A policeman was pinned in his car for more than an hour early today after a steel rod went through his left thigh and his pelvic area and out his back. The concrete reinforcing rod was about half an inch in diameter. It had come up through the underside of the police cruiser as Mecklenburg County policeman B.R. Pence was driving on an unfinished section of Interstate 77 in answer to a call.

Mrs. Gladia Davis Grimes of 1919 Kennedy Circle died Tuesday in Pitt Memorial Hospital. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 1:30 P.M. at St. Mary's Missionary Baptist Church by the Rev. John H. Taylor. Burial will be in Brown Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Grimes, the daughter of Mrs. Effie Davis and the late Samuel Davis, spent most of her life in Greenville, where she was a member of St. Mary's Church. Surviving her are five daughters, Misses Deborah, Patricia, and Doris Grimes, all of the home, Mrs. Linda Atkinson of Greenville, and Mrs. Eleanor Howard of New Brunswick, N.J.; six sons, George and Terry Grimes, both of the home, Hugh Morris and Dallas Earl, both of New Brunswick, Samuel of Plainfield, N.J., and Isaiah Grimes Jr. of Trenton, N.J.; her mother; three sisters, Mrs. Inez Wooten and Mrs. Sallie Barnes, both of Greenville, and Mrs. Alice Williams of Norfolk, Va.; two brothers, Richard Davis of Greenville and Oscar Davis of Farmville; and 34 grandchildren.

Policeman Shot, Dies

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A plainclothes vice squad officer with the Fayetteville Police Department was shot and killed accidentally Thursday night by a fellow vice squad officer. R. W. Dahlman, 28, was shot in the neck and died enroute to Cape Fear Valley Hospital.

Sgt. L. D. McNair has been suspended pending the outcome of a probe of the shooting by the State Bureau of Investigation.

Police Chief Hervey Keator told newsmen the shooting—according to evidence gathered so far—occurred as a result of an accident. Keator said Dahlman and McNair were by themselves in the vice squad room of the Cumberland County Law Enforcement Center. McNair reportedly was unloading his 38-caliber service revolver when it suddenly discharged, sending a bullet in Dahlman's direction. McNair, a five-year veteran of the force, lifted the injured officer and carried him to a squad car. Dahlman was rushed to a hospital but did not survive the shooting.

Edmisten Aide Faces Charges

RALEIGH (AP)—A campaign aide to Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten has been charged with violating the state election laws. Wake Dist. Atty. Burley Mitchell Jr. filed the charge Thursday against James L. "Harvey" Stuart who handled Edmisten's scheduling during last year's campaign. Stuart is accused of making a $300 cash contribution to a black political action group in Durham. The law limits such contributions to $100. The charge is a misdemeanor.

Policewomen File Bias Suit
ROCKY MOUNT (AP)—A sex discrimination suit has been filed against Rocky Mount officials by two women police officers. Shirley B. Howell and Lurline Preast, both 15-year veteran officers, said they were not given positions consistent with their training and experience. They also charged that they weren't paid in relation to their services. The women are asking for back pay, different working conditions and seniority. The women had filed similar requests with city officials last May. They were told that seniority and pay rates didn't go into effect until February when they became full police officers.

Bucs Try To Get Back On Winning Track

Bobby Ross of The Citadel calls it "a must." Pat Dye of East Carolina wants it badly. What it is a victory by one over the other Saturday night in Charleston, S.C.

The Pirates bring into the game the number two offense in the Southern Conference, while The Citadel brings in the second best defense. Something has to give, and Dye is hoping that it will be the Citadel's defense.

The Pirates are coming off a poor showing in their 17-14 loss to Richmond last week. The Citadel comes in following a 21-6 win over William & Mary.

The Bucs, who jumped out to a 14-0 lead early in the second period, frittered the rest of the game away, getting off only one more significant drive—and that came to an end on a fourth down that fell just short after the Spiders had taken their final lead.

The Citadel playing its fourth home game will be after its fourth win in five starts. They have beaten Presbyterian (21-0) and Wofford (16-7) along with William & Mary. Their only defeat was on the road against Colgate, 16-0. In that game, their offensive star, Andrew Johnson, suffered a leg injury that will sideline him the rest of the year.

And that injury means a lot to the Bulldogs. "It means that we'll have to stop two good backs instead of one good one and one super one," Dye said. "It brings us back to human terms. You don't lose a super star like Johnson and not suffer."

Clair Albrittan has the Pirates have their game plan ready for The Citadel. "Blocking is going to be somewhat of a problem, since they give us a look we haven't seen (the wide-tackle six). They do a lot of things off it, and we'll have to adjust quickly."

When on defense, the Bucs will have to stop The Citadel's split veer offense. "That will depend a lot on how well we execute," Dye said.

"We have to control the line of scrimmage to stop the handoffs there. Then we've got to stop the pitch and the pass. It's a difficult defensive job. It's a question of doing the right thing at the right time."

Citadel quarterback Rod Lanning, who came off the bench against Wofford to lead the team, then took over for regular Gene Dotson, hurt early in the William & Mary game, ran the offense with precision last week, and Dye warns that either of them can get the job done. "Lanning is an excellent passer."

We have to watch for everything."

Lanning has hit on 15 of 31 passes for 252 yards and four touchdowns. Fullback Alvin Perkins, who came on for Johnson, leads the rushing with 170 yards.

Lanning's chief targets have been Doug Johnson, with nine for 99 yards, Dickie Regan with seven for 100 yards and Mike Riley with four for 117 yards.

Another big factor for The Citadel is its kicking game. The punt returner, Mike Riley, stands ninth in the nation with a 15.5 yard per return average.

And their punting team has done an excellent job of coverage. Their net punt average (kick less return) is fourth best in the country, 42.1 yards.

The kicking game will be an important factor in the game, Dye says. "It always is, especially in close games, and I look for this one to be a close one."

The Pirates will probably be in the best physical condition of the year. While Jim Bolding is still somewhat slowed by an injury to his foot, the rest of the team is in good shape.

Pete Conaty, who will start at quarterback, but alternate with Jimmy Sutherland, leads the Pirate offense with 491 yards total offense. Willie Hawkins, with 282 yards is the school's leading rusher, while Ken Strayhorn has 183 yards.

Hawkins also leads the league in kickoff returns with a 22.8 yard average.

Overall, the Bucs are averaging 330.6 yards a game, second best in the conference. The Citadel is averaging 292.3. On the ground, the Bucs hold a 207.8 to 203.8 average, second and third, respectively, in the conference. The Pirates lead the league in passing with 122.8 per game. The Citadel is eighth at 88.5. East Carolina is scoring 20.6 points a game while Citadel is scoring 14.5.

Then, on the defensive side, The Citadel ranks second in the league with a 251.8 mark. East Carolina is fifth at 312.4. Against the rush, Citadel is allowing 172.7 and East Carolina 207.4. Through the air, Citadel holds a 104.0 to 105.0 edge over the Bucs.

More importantly, The Citadel is allowing only 7.3 points per game, ninth best in the nation. Only three touchdowns have been scored against them. The Bucs are giving up 18.2 per game.

"It's an important game for us, but I don't want us to be tense going into it," Dye said. "I think we'll do better if we're loose. But coming off a loss, it will be tough for us to get into this frame of mind."

The Bucs, 2-3, and 1-2 in the league, will be out to up their records to 500. The Citadel is 1-3 in the league and seeking to stay in at least a tie for first place in the standings.

Citadel Seeks Share Of Lead

By The Associated Press
The Citadel's Bulldogs go for a share of the Southern Conference football lead this weekend while six other league teams are taking on outside opposition in an effort to improve their image.

The Bulldogs, who made their league debut last weekend with a 21-6 victory over William & Mary's Indians, play host Saturday night to East Carolina's Pirates and can move into a tie for the lead at 2-0 with Virginia Military's Keydets and Richmond's Spiders.

VMI's defending champions and Richmond will be among the teams trying to improve the circuit's 5-10 nonleague record, but this week's schedule doesn't appear tailor-made for many victories.

The Keydets, 2-2 over-all, will be at Georgia Tech and Richmond, 2-2, will be at home against Ball State in two of the four afternoon encounters. William & Mary's Indians, 0-4, entertain Ohio U. and Davidson's Wildcats, 0-2, play host to Lenoir Rhyne in the others.

There could be more success in the two night games, in which Furman's Paladins, 1-3, go to Presbyterian and Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 3-1, to East Tennessee.

"It's a game we've got to win," says The Citadel Coach Bobby Ross of East Carolina, but he warns the Pirates potentially are "a helluva football team. They've been an up and down team. We expect them to be up when they come to our place."

East Carolina is 1-2 in the league and 2-3 over-all, and Pirate Coach Pat Dye says "I'm more worried about our football team right now than I am about The Citadel (3-1 over-all). I'm beginning to wonder just how much our players want to win."

The VMI defense, fifth best over-all in the nation, will get its severest test at Georgia Tech, and Coach Bob Thalman says the Keydets won't be looking ahead to their next conference game.

"It's as important for us to play well against outside opponents as it is to defend the conference championship," says Thalman.

Cubs Score But Lose

ROCKY MOUNT — Rocky Mount's junior varsity squeaked past Rose High School's Rampant Cubs yesterday, 8-6.

Rocky Mount pushed into the lead in the second period as Michael Jones scored on an eight yard run with four minutes left in the half. Freddie Woods passed to Clifton Barnes for the fateful two point conversion, and an 8-0 lead.

Rose fought back, scoring with 8:15 left in the game. The score came on a 22-yard pass from Scott Brady to Dino Staton. The PAT try failed, however.

Late in the game, Greg Lassiter picked off a Rocky Mount pass returning it to the Gryphon four yard line, but a penalty set the Rampants back further from the goal and time ran out on them before they could push it into the end zone.

Rose will travel to Bertie next week.

Little Change In Standings

Not a great deal got accomplished last week, at least as far as the standings in our weekly poll of experts. At the conclusion of the games listed on the slate, everyone but George Holland had turned in a 9-3 record. Holland was one further back with an 8-4 mark.

That left Jack Whichard still up on top with a 42-15 mark. He is followed closely by Tom Baines at 41-16, while Holland is now 39-18. Joe Jenkins is fourth with a 38-19 record, while Diane Allen has a 36-21 mark. This writer is now 35-22.

Of course, all of us were disappointed in our Rose and East Carolina picks last week—except Tom Baines, who sniffed out the Reid Ross upset. And he really didn't want to be right.

On the high school side of the ledger, a 4-2 week has brought our record to 22-13-1 on the year.

Several key games are set for this week in the area's grid battles.

Conley visits Farmville Central in a cross-country battle. The Vikings lost a heart-breaker to Greene Central last week, while Farmville Central rolled over Southern Nash. The Jaguars may have to put two halves together to do it, but we'll pick them to win.

Ayden-Grifton plays host to North Lenoir. The Chargers are rolling now, and unless they beat themselves, they'll chalk up another win.

Tarboro visits Williamston on an important Northeastern battle. The Tigers need to win to keep their hopes alive. Tarboro could be a tough opponent for them, but again, despite last week's loss, we'll go with Williamston.

North Pitt goes to Southern Nash in another East Carolina battle. The Panthers could use a league victory—but they probably won't get it here.

Roanoke will be at South Edgecombe in an Eastern Plains venture. The Redskins, unless they have a letdown, should have no problems between here and their final game of the year. Roanoke to win.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

Mattamuskeet visits Jamesville in a battle of winless teams. By the time the smokes clears, Mattamuskeet will have won its first.

C. B. Aycock visits Greene Central in an Eastern Carolina game. The Rams won their first last week, but is it enough? Aycock comes in with a head of steam and the best overall record in the conference. They'll want to hold onto the lead, and probably will.

Turning to the panel's picks, Rose High School celebrates its Homecoming tonight against Rocky Mount. The Gryphons have been up and down so far, but should provide a good test for the Rampants.

Despite their loss last week, our panel continues to have faith. We look for Rose to win, six votes to none.

The Pirates of East Carolina travel to Charleston to meet The Citadel in another Southern Conference game. The Bucs should have won last week. Whether they can put it all together again remains to be seen. Surprisingly enough, there are no dissenters this week. We all go for the Bucs to win.

Elsewhere, our consensus has Ball State over Richmond; Ohio over William & Mary; Duke over Army; Notre Dame over North Carolina; Appalachian over East Tennessee; Furman over Presbyterian; Georgia Tech over VMI; Clemson over Wake Forest; Maryland over N. C. State; and South Carolina over Virginia.

Cincinnati Reds Get First Look At Big Green Monster Of Fenway

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds get their first look at Fenway Park and its famous — or is that infamous? — left field wall today on the eve of baseball's 1975 World Series.

The best known fence in baseball is 315 feet down the left field line and looms 37 feet high. It makes right-handed hitters positively drool and more than one left-handed pitcher has been swallowed up by it. On Thursday, it even caused a controversy in the camp of the usually placid Reds.

"Sure I'm upset," snapped Norman, who won 12 games during the regular season and also captured the second game of the playoffs against Pittsburgh. "I think I'm one of the guys who got us here."

Anderson explained his choice of Billingham saying, "We want a right-hand pitcher in that ball park."

Norman didn't hide his anger at the decision. "I've been pitching against right-hand hitters all my life and I don't think that's a problem," he said.

The Reds, however, think Gullett, another left-hander, will provide plenty of problems for the Red Sox, the close-in fence notwithstanding.

"We haven't seen their wall and those guys haven't seen something like Don Gullett in a long time," warned Pete Rose, the Reds' peppery leadoff batter.

Gullett will oppose herky-jerky Luis Tiant, the man with a million motions, some of which the Reds think may be balk moves.

Anderson was angry at a report that he had sent films of Tiant's move to the National League offices. "That is a total lie," he said. But Anderson said he would seek a clarification of the balk rule in the preseries meeting with the umpires.

"I want it thoroughly discussed and I want it decided what is a balk and what isn't. I have nothing against Tiant. But I say if he isn't balking, let's forget about balks. You might as well throw the book out."

In question is Tiant's habit of pitching from a stretch position that includes a series of semistops. Anderson said he wants "a legitimate stop."

Fred Fleig, supervisor of National League umpires, said

"we know all about Tiant." He said the umpire would be concerned with three things.

"The first is the slow step-by-step drop of his hands," said Fleig. "He has to throw the ball somewhere after the final set. Once he sets, he can't then drop his hands below the belt."

"Second, his rhythm in the way he drops his hands has to be constant and after everybody in the American League complained, he's been all right there."

"Third, if he throws to first he'd better look like he stepped to first before he threw. The National League calls this very strictly and we'll be watching him like a hawk. I think any trouble will be with the step."

Tiant, however, anticipates no problem.

"He can say what he wants. I don't let it bother me," the veteran right-hander said.

"I'm not going to change, not after all these years. I've been in the major leagues 11 years and I've never had a balk called on me."

Meanwhile, Boston Manager Darrell Johnson pulled a minor surprise, naming left-hander Bill Lee to start the second game against Anderson's surprise starter, Billingham.

Lee has not started since Sept. 19 but won 17 games during the regular season. He was not used in the playoffs against Oakland with Johnson starting Reggie Cleveland and Rick Wise after Tiant.

"For one thing, Lee's left arm is fine again after a little soreness and basically he's a ground-ball pitcher," said Johnson.

Aycock In 14-0 Win

SPRING HOPE—E. B. Aycock's Jaguars evened their record at 2-2 yesterday with a 14-0 victory over Southern Nash.

Aycock scored single touchdowns in the second and fourth periods, as Curtis Little got both of them. The first came on a seven yard run and the second on a three-yarder.

Following the first touchdown, Chris Clemons took a pass from Joey Mattheis for the two-point PAT.

Southern Nash had one touchdown called back by a penalty, and on the next play Quinton Eaton recovered a fumble to end the drive. Eaton sacked the Southern quarterback three times for a total of 24 yards in losses.

Ronnie Chapman led the Aycock rushing with 51 yards. Aycock, now 2-2, will play host to Nash Central next week.

son. "He's also been a consistent winner in our ball park."

Johnson said Wise will start the third game of the series Tuesday night in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium. Cleveland will move to the Boston bullpen for the first three games.

"Wise is a high ball pitcher and should do better in their big ball park and on their artificial turf," said Johnson.

The manager must have been checking the past performance charts on that selection. Wise pitched a no-hitter against the Reds in Riverfront in 1971 and two years later carried another no-hitter into the ninth inning at Riverfront before surrendering Cincinnati's only hit in that game to Joe Morgan.

WILSON — Wilson High School romped to victory in a cross-country meet yesterday against South Lenoir and Rose High School. The Titans finished the meet with 23 points, while South Lenoir was second with 35. Rose High School was a distant third with 77 points.

C. King of Wilson led the runners with a time of 14:37. J. Goforth of Wilson was second in 15:17, followed by S. Fowler of South Lenoir in 15:26.

T. Warren of South Lenoir was fourth in 15:32, trailed by D. Cox of Wilson in 15:55, and E. Hill of South Lenoir at 16:14. Rounding out the top ten were R. Ellis of Wilson, 16:16; S. Stubeville of Wilson, 16:21; C. Zimmerman of South Lenoir, 16:31; and Johnny Evans of Rose, 16:42.

Other Rose finishers included Jimmy Davis, 12th in 16:58; Robert Vick, 17th in 17:07; Mickey Finn, 18th in 17:18; Michael Norfleet, 20th in 17:35; Jeff Barber, 21st in 18:16; Michael Dyer, 22nd in 18:25; John Lawler, 24th in 19:25; and Mike Jeffreys, 26th in 21:02.

Recreation Football

Elmhurst gained a 13-6 victory over South Greenville yesterday in the Flag Football League.

After a scoreless first period, South Greenville pushed into the lead in the second period on a 40-yard run by Paul Taylor, making it 6-0 at halftime.

Elmhurst came back in the third period to take the lead. Gordon Douglas took an eight-yard pass from Billy Stallings and Roger Williams scored the extra point for a 7-0 lead. In the final period, Douglas scored again on an 18-yard run to up it to the final 13-6 edge.

Defensive standouts for South Greenville were Michael Davis, Ramone Bynum and Terry Wilks; for Elmhurst, Donald Whitaker, Edward Frizzell and David Sneed.

Notre Dame Still Inspires Awe From Tar Heel Coaching Staff

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Notre Dame may have dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten.

but the Irish still inspire respect in North Carolina football coach Bill Dooley.

SNAPPER
"All Snapper mowers meet A.N.S.I. safety specifications."

"They're big, strong and talented. No one has moved the ball on them with any consistency. Their defense is exceptional," Dooley said as his Tar Heels prepared to host Notre Dame Saturday.

A sellout crowd of close to 50,000 is expected for the game. North Carolina has had to raise the price of tickets from $8 to $10 for the game to insure meeting the financial guarantee the Irish exact before going on the road.

The Irish, currently ranked 15th, dropped their first game of the season last week, a 10-3 decision to Michigan State. North Carolina is 2-2, with wins over William & Mary and Virginia and crushing defeats by Maryland and Ohio State.

The only team the Tar Heels have stopped defensively has been William & Mary. Although Notre Dame has had its offensive problems, Dooley thinks they are solid if they can get consistency from quarterbacks Rick Slager or Joe Montana.

Irish Coach Dan Devine has made seven lineup changes for the game, six because of injuries. Among the wounded are starting running backs Al Hunter and Jim Browner.

Dooley said North Carolina will have to play without errors to have a chance. So far this year, the Tar Heels have been guilty of 44 penalties.

One bright spot, he said, was the improved passing of quarterback Billy Paschall, whose arm was injured during pre-season workouts. Paschall has been getting stronger each week, Dooley said.

The game will be the only one which will not count in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings.

One of the others, Virginia at South Carolina Saturday night, is against a foe no longer in the league. But it has been designated as a conference game for the Virginia Cavaliers, who had only four games scheduled with ACC opponents this season.

Virginia suffered a heart-breaking loss to North Carolina last week when what appeared to be a certain touchdown was snatched away from them by a fumble at the Tar Heel goal line. North Carolina then drove the length of the field for the winning score.

Virginia is 1-3, while South Carolina is 3-1.

Maryland's defending league champion, who have won their last 11 league games, will be home to N.C. State. And Clemson, making its first league appearance, will be home to Wake Forest.

Maryland hasn't lost an ACC game since the N.C. State Wolfpack beat the Terps 24-22 at Raleigh in 1973.

State's offensive unit, fresh from a 27-0 victory over Indiana, will come up against a Maryland defense which is best in the ACC against total yardage, rushing and scoring. In their of their five games the Terps have allowed opponents less than 100 yards on the ground.

The Wolfpack got brilliant running from freshmen Ted Brown, Scott Wade and Ricky Adams against Indiana.

Last Night For A Fine Old Bar

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—In the window of Hurley's, a fine old Sixth Avenue bar frequented by NBC inmates, there is an old photograph of Jack Paar, taken when he was star of the "Tonight" show.

Paar wrote on the photo, "When the boys in the band ask who this is — it's time to send them back upstairs."

This Sunday, Tom Snyder's "Tomorrow" show will come downstairs to record an occasion which already has the troops from NBC and elsewhere in profound grief — Hurley's last night in business.

The show will air Wednesday. By then, workmen already will be taking apart the legendary, 50-year-old saloon for the new owner, David Wolf. He plans to turn it into what he calls "a real old-fashioned 19th century tavern" featuring steaks and seafood.

All the best to him, but I fear the joint will be overrun by pin-striped executives who drink only martinis and think nothing of blowing $50 on a dinner for two.

It'll be a sharp contrast to the current clientele — scruffy journalists, news producers, photographers and other assorted rascals who belly up to the bar each night to sip a beer or two or three.

On some nights, there even is singing, usually Irish songs rendered by the fine tenor voice of Hugh "Rusty" Brown, a former rifle platoon leader in Vietnam who now is a free-lance photographer.

The songfests draw no objections from the night barkeeps, Martin Galligan and Frank Skuse. It's probably because they're both from Ireland, Martin from County Cavan and Frank from County Cork.

The only things they find objectionable are foul language and noisy drunks, such as the tattered, middle-aged man who teetered in last week, bellowing, "I'll give a job at NBC to anyone who wants it!"

Although autographed pictures of such famous citizens as the late Chet Huntley and Brendan Behan hang above the bar at Hurley's, this plain, honest tavern isn't what you'd call a celebrity hangout.

The only star — and he'd wince at the word — who regularly fell by for dinner in recent years was Jim Hartz. That was when he was an anchorman at WNBC-TV here. Now that he's on the "Today" show, you rarely see him at night in Hurley's because his predawn chores require him to call it a night far earlier than in the old days.

The inhabitants of Hurley's have engaged in considerable discussion this week about what is it that makes the place unique, aside from the fact it has no towels in the men's room.

But one story might sum it up. One night, a journalist par-took of more sauce than was good for him. He eventually teetered out into the cold, cruel night, but forgot to take the change, $10 or so, for the drinks he'd bought at Hurley's.

Two nights later, he returned, his eyes clear, his gait steady, and belted up to the bar as always. Barkeep Skuse grinned at him knowingly, then handed him a brandy snifter.

"Here, lad, you forgot this the other night," Frank said. No booze was in the glass. Just ten dollars and 25 cents.

More Firings In Labor Dept.

RALEIGH (AP)—Recent firings in the state Department of Labor reached 13 Thursday as five additional dismissals were revealed.

The firings began after T. Avery Nye took control of the agency after being appointed by Republican Gov. Jim Holsouser. Nye replaced Democrat W.C. "Billy" Creel who died last month.

The dismissals account for about five per cent of the department's work force and Nye's aides confirmed the possibility of additional firings.

Confirmed Thursday was the dismissal of: A.D. Roberts, W.T. Lemley, James W. Quinn and Joseph W. Newton, all field inspectors; and Althea Stone, a safety reward processor.

The commissioner decided Ms. Stone's job duties did not require a full time worker, David Stephenson, an aide to Nye, said. Ms. Stone had earlier been fired from a Department of Transportation job by another Holsouser appointee and was not offered another job, he said.

On the other four firings, Stephenson said, "The division director (Max L. Avery) did not think they were doing a competent job and had not been doing satisfactory work."

Nye had asked all division heads to tell him if they had unsatisfactory employees, Stephenson said.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♥.

More often than not, good defense consists simply of drawing the correct inferences from the auction and the play, and putting that information to use. Faced with alternatives, East unhesitatingly chose the winning defense on today's hand.

North had to choose between a raise to two spades and a response of one no trump. Normally, with a balanced hand and only three trumps you should opt for one no trump when holding a minimum (6-8 points), but select the more encouraging raise with a maximum (9-10). However, North's trump holding was so good that he chose to raise despite the fact that he held only 7 points. South swiftly closed the auction by jumping to game.

West led the king of hearts, and East paused to survey his prospects. Since South rated to have some 20 points for his leap to game, it was obvious that East would find nothing more than the king-queen of hearts in his partner's hand. If West had started with only four hearts, that meant the defenders would be able to cash three heart tricks and the ace of clubs for a one-trick set. But what if West held five hearts, and declarer only two? Where would the setting trick come from then?

Obviously, a club ruff was the only possibility. East's first thought was to follow with a low heart to the first trick, in the hope that his partner would find a club shift. However, there was no guarantee that West would make the right shift, and East had a foolproof line available.

He overtook the king of hearts with the ace, cashed the ace of clubs and shifted back to a low heart. West had no problem. If his partner wanted to ruff a heart, there was no need to cash the ace of clubs first—he could simply have overtaken the king of hearts and returned the suit to score his ruff. Obviously, he was looking for a club ruff, so West dutifully reverted to a club, and that was down one.

All East had to do was use the knowledge gained from the bidding, add to it the fact that West's opening lead of the king promised the queen, and act on the information.

When should you double—for penalty or for take-out? Charles Goren explains all about doubling in his latest book. For a copy, write to "Goren's Doubles," c/o this newspaper, P. O. Box 259, Norwood, New Jersey 07648. Enclose $1.25 in cash or checks, payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

If you have regular checking, "free checking" is probably what your bank says you've got.

But you probably couldn't prove it from your bank statement.

Because, at the average bank, "free checking" is only free as long as you keep a $100 balance.

Otherwise, you have to pay a service charge on every check you write.

THE TROUBLE WITH FREE CHECKING.

If you're like the average person, these days, you're operating on a tight enough budget already.

And you almost certainly don't have an extra $100 to leave sitting idle in a checking account.

So you go right on paying service charges. And assuming they're just a fact of life, like death and taxes.

HOW THE TRIPLE OPTION HAPPENED.

Now, we offered "free checking" for a long time ourselves.

It was a step in the right direction. But it just didn't go far enough.

Too many people were still paying service charges. Or sweating out the last four days of the month with a balance of $101.98.

We decided there had to be a better way to give you a no-service-charge checking plan. Without the headaches

"My bank says I should save. They also say I've got to keep $100 in my checking account. Either I'm confused, or they are."

"Our balance dropped to $99.50 for one day, and we got a service charge for the month. That extra 50¢ we spent cost us $4.90."

PLE OPTION VS. FREE CHECKING.

"I figure the service charges on my free checking account came to $17.22 last year. My bank may call that free, but I don't."

"My bank has completely free checking. But to qualify for it, I think I'd have to be listed in Dun & Bradstreet."

of the $100-minimum-balance account. So we decided to find it.

We came up with the NCNB Triple Option account. Three new ways you can get no-service-charge checking.

THE NCNB TRIPLE OPTION

- OPTION 1
Ask us to set up an NCNB Automatic Savings program for you, with deposits of at least $25 a month.
 - OPTION 2
Maintain a balance of $500 or more in NCNB Regular Savings.
 - OPTION 3
Add NCNB Cash Reserve to your regular checking account.
- The Triple Option is offered in addition to our present checking plans.*

When you set up an automatic savings program, with deposits of at least $25 a month, you don't have to pay a service charge.

When you keep $500 in regular savings, you don't have to pay a service charge.

When you have Cash Reserve, you don't have to pay a service charge.

Pick the option you like, then stop by and open your account. (If you bank with us now, and you want The Triple Option, just ask to have your account switched over.)

NO SERVICE CHARGE. NO MATTER WHAT.

We don't care if you write 60 checks a month. Or keep a balance of $1.59.

Just pick your option now, and you may never pay service charges again.

The NCNB Triple Option.

It's probably a lot less expensive than the free checking you've got now.
