The Nose Knows

SEATTLE (AP) — Dick Throm is no ordinary federal employe. He collects $24,000 a year for pushing his perceptive proboscis over a plethora of perished piscatorial pickings. In other words, he smells dead fish. Throm, 46, is a Seattle-based chemist for the Food and Drug Administration. And he's a master at tuna, shrimp, salmon and other kinds of olfactory assessment. "The procedure has been going on for a long, long time," he says. "I've been at it for about 15 years. Like anything else, it is a matter of experience and training. Almost anyone can tell the difference between a really good-smelling fish and a really bad one."

See Tax-And-Spending Reduction Plan's Defeat

By MIKE MOORE Associated Press Writer. WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's proposal to link a $28 billion tax cut to a matching cut in federal spending will die in the Congress, two Democratic economic leaders predict. Meanwhile, Democrats in Congress are pushing several alternatives to the Ford plan, which they charge was politically motivated. Ford has called for an extension of last year's $22.9-billion tax cut and additional reductions that would allow a family of four making $15,000 a year to reduce its taxes by $287 over 1975. While all sides apparently want to extend in some form the 1975 tax reduction, a showdown may come over how it is to be accomplished. Ford has demanded any tax cut be matched with reduced federal spending, while some Democrats have said this approach is unrealistic. The issue will intensify when Congress returns from its Columbus Day recess next week, but leading congressional Democrats already predict Ford will be turned back on his proposal to tie the tax cut and spending reduction. Sen. William Proxmire, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, and Rep. George H. Mahon, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said Sunday that the 1975 tax cut should not be made permanent and predicted that Ford's proposal will not be passed by Congress. Proxmire, D-Wis., said that Ford's plan would cut taxes before the 1976 presidential election, but would not cut back spending until after election day. He added Ford's strategy was apparently to give the economy "a hypo and then let it go right down the drain after the election." Mahon, D-Texas, said he opposes the tax cut because it is too large. They appeared on ABC's "Issues and Answers." In other action on the tax reduction: —Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, in a letter circulated on Capitol Hill, has labeled the President's proposal "a political trap" and is offering instead a tax credit plan of up to 3 per cent of taxable income, with a maximum of $360 per return and minimums of $65 for individuals and $130 for couples filing jointly. —A staff report of the Senate Budget Committee has recommended a $20 billion personal income tax cut in addition to an extension of the $17 billion 1975 reduction. This, the report says, would lower unemployment from its current 7.6 per cent rate to 5.1 per cent by 1980. —A spokesman for the House Republican Policy Committee says it will publish no material on the tax proposal, relying instead on the President's statements and Treasury Department explanations. As for the contention that the timing of the program is political, he said, "as the President told us, if they want to start the spending cuts earlier, he will be glad to cooperate."

Haves, Have-Nots Meeting In Paris

By ELIAS ANTAR Associated Press Writer. PARIS (AP) — Delegates from 18 industrial and developing nations are meeting in Paris today to make arrangements for the long dialogue on changes in international economic arrangements that they failed to agree on last April. The meeting is expected to formalize an understanding worked out during the summer for foreign ministers of 27 nations to meet in December. They would appoint four commissions — on energy, raw materials, development and financial matters — which would work for at least a year. Then the foreign ministers would meet again to see where things stood. "The four commissions will have to work in parallel and with a degree of coordination," said Louis de Guiringaud, France's chief delegate at the United Nations and the president of the preparatory meeting. French sources said a hitch could still develop if Third World delegates insist that the financial commission discuss the reform of the international monetary system. They said this is a concept opposed by the United States. The preparatory meeting is being attended by the United States, the nine-nation European Common Market, Japan, Saudi Arabia, Algeria, Iran, Venezuela, India, Brazil and Zaire. Their first preparatory meeting six months ago collapsed when the Third World nations led by Algeria demanded that other raw materials produced by them be discussed on an equal footing with oil. The United States, dragging Japan and the Common Market in its wake, insisted that oil be given priority. The compromise worked out during the summer was made possible mainly by a 180-degree change in the U.S. position. De Guiringaud said. "The U.S. was isolated at the last meeting, but now it has understood that it cannot refuse to discuss raw materials and all these other issues of interest to the Third World," he told newsmen. Officials said the effort to forge new international economic relationships will be long and arduous because all countries now recognize that the issues are linked. In particular, no quick action is expected on oil prices and supplies, he most urgent issue for the industrial nations. U.S. Undersecretary of State Charles Robinson interrupted negotiations in Moscow for a Soviet-American grain agreement to head the American delegation. Following his arrival Sunday, he met with officials from Venezuela, Iran, India, Japan and the Common Market. He also scheduled a meeting today with Ait Chhalla of Algeria, his chief adversary at the April meeting.

Refinery Fire Is Surrounded, Still Burning

By ELLIOTT MINOR Associated Press Writer. PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A nine-alarm oil refinery fire which sent Mayor Frank L. Rizzo to the hospital with a broken thigh was confined to an area near one of the storage tanks this morning, fire officials said. "We have it surrounded," Fire Commissioner Joseph R. Rizzo, the mayor's brother, told reporters early today outside the Atlantic Refinery Co. (ARCO) oil refinery on the Schuylkill River. "We're keeping the area cool. We're in a lot better shape than we were seven hours ago. We're just plain pouring water on it." More than 350 firemen and 150 ARCO employes worked in gusting winds to subdue the inferno, which was described as "stabilized" but not under control. The fire broke out Sunday afternoon in an eight-foot trench containing a dozen pipes, setting off a series of explosions and sending plumes of flames hundreds of feet into the air. The cause was not known. The giant 800-acre refinery is up river from the Gulf Oil Co. plant in south Philadelphia where eight firemen suffered fatal burns fighting a blaze Aug. 17 at a Gulf Oil Co. refinery. The ARCO blaze sent seven persons to the hospital, but the only serious injury was to Rizzo, who suffered a broken right thigh when he was knocked down during a rush to escape an explosion. Rizzo was operated on this morning and had a stainless steel pin inserted in his right leg just below his pelvis. He is expected to recuperate at Hahnemann Hospital for at least 10 days, doctors said. The 54-year-old mayor, who is campaigning for re-election, will have to use crutches for about two months, according to the doctors. The 6-foot-2, 250-pound former police commissioner broke his thigh when he collided with either a fireman or one of his bodyguards and fell on a concrete strip, according to preliminary reports. "There was a big flash of light," said Anthony Fulwood, one of the mayor's bodyguards. "We ran. We had no idea how big it (the explosion) was going to be and how far it was going to reach. So we just ran." Rizzo arrived at the refinery shortly after 7:30 p.m. after he decided to cut short his evening campaigning and inspect the blaze, a campaign aide said. Asked this morning about the chance of further explosions, Fire Commissioner Rizzo said: "At this point, I would say there isn't any chance of the tank blowing up. "We've been holding our own all night and now we will confine our efforts to close in on the center of the fire. Now that daylight has come, maybe we'll develop more ways to put more lines on it." Rizzo said the fire was confined to south Philadelphia area around a tank containing about 35,000 barrels of oil used in blending gasoline. He said the blaze was fed by fuel from an adjacent tank, but flames prevented firemen from getting to valves to shut off the fuel flow. At an earlier press conference, plant manager M.J. Volandt said the plant had received a safety inspection last month from an ARCO consultant.

Waverly Akins In Bid For Lt. Gov.

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer. RALEIGH — Waverly Akins, in an unusual news conference here this morning, announced as a candidate for lieutenant governor. Akins' announcement, a move expected for some time, was made from the steps of the Wake County Court House where the candidate has served for five years as chairman of the Board of County Commissioners. In addition to the newsmen present at the 9 a.m. conference, a dozen more reporters from across the state were linked to the site by way of a telephone conference hookup. After Akins' formal announcement, newsmen from Greenville, Asheville, Hickory, Gastonia, Wilmington, Elizabeth City, Fayetteville, Burlington, Statesville, Kannapolis, Goldsboro and Lexington — all linked to Raleigh by a telephone conference line — asked questions of the political hopeful. In announcing his candidacy, Akins said, "This is not a trial balloon. It is not an announcement of a coming announcement. It is a declaration of my candidacy for the nomination and election as Lieutenant Governor of North Carolina." The Fuquay-Varina native who once served as a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and who has been a member of the Wake County Commissioners since 1969, said "I am a candidate because I have heard the people and they are desperately calling for leadership, the kind of leader-

Koreans To Talk

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea agreed today to meet with North Korea on Oct. 23 to try to arrange a resumption of Red Cross talks to reunite separated families. South Korea also proposed that political talks between the two governments be resumed. Red Cross representatives from the two Koreas held seven plenary meetings in 1972-73 to seek ways to reunite families separated by the division of the Korean peninsula. North Korea has boycotted the talks since August, 1973, because of the South Korean government's stringent anti-Communist policies. The South Korean Red Cross proposed a meeting Sept. 12 to discuss resumption of the talks, but the North Korean Red Cross suggested that the meeting be held Oct. 23 in Panmunjom, the truce village in the demilitarized zone between the two countries. The Red Cross talks in 1972-73 were accompanied by political talks between the two governments to arrange peaceful coexistence between them, and they, too, were suspended by the North because of the southern government's militant anti-Communism. Resumption of these talks was proposed by Chang Key-young, acting co-chairman of the North-South coordinating committee, in a message sent over the hot line between Seoul and Pyongyang, the North Korean capital. He proposed that representatives of the two governments meet in Panmunjom on Oct. 20 to discuss arrangements for the resumption of the talks. North Korea's reaction was not known.

Disperse Crowds

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Police used tear gas to disperse anti-busing demonstrators who started fires and hurled rocks and bottles, while pro-busing forces staged a peaceful demonstration in a weekend of public debate over school desegregation. A police officer and a Kentucky state trooper were slightly injured by rocks Sunday night as about 500 anti-busing demonstrators gathered at a shopping center in the southeastern Jefferson County community of Jeffersonstown. No arrests were made. Jeffersonstown Mayor Herbert S. Meyer and police spokesmen gave the crowd five minutes to disperse after the mayor said the crowd became "just generally disorderly, burning tires, starting fires, setting off fire crackers, running into the street and blocking traffic."

CHECK CONSUMER REPORT

My husband and I need a washing machine, but because of our limited space we think we will have to get a compact one. I have found one with a capacity of 14 pounds and the same wash cycles as a normal-sized washer. Would the performance of this compact be about the same as the regular-sized washer? B.W.

Hotline does not feel qualified to offer consumer advice on particular products. However, we would suggest that you check Consumer Report at Sheppard Library. There is an index for the 1974 and 1975 issues in the current issue, and if you need to go further back the librarian can help you. There also is a Consumer's Guide, which offers a similar service. Both are in the periodical section of the Sheppard Reference Room.

ROSETTE MOLD

I ordered a rosette mold for frying cookie batter from McCall's Magazine. My order was sent in June 22 and my check was cashed July 16. I haven't received the mold yet. I have written, but heard nothing. N.G.

After writing on your behalf Sept. 3, Hotline first received a copy of a letter sent to you apologizing for the delay. Northland Aluminum Products Inc. in Minneapolis, Minn., which was filling the orders for McCall's, said they had had a breakdown in their die equipment, but that it had then been rectified and that all orders were being shipped. You report that you received the merchandise within only a few days after this letter arrived.

Jurisdiction In Mutiny Puzzles Authorities

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A question of jurisdiction over a high seas mutiny puzzled three nations today as a Panamanian freighter's five crewmen sat in a city jail after reportedly admitting they killed their four officers and scuttled the ship. "We are continuing to interrogate them," said Louis Gidel, deputy regional director for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. "We will try to ascertain the facts of the sinking of the ship Mimi and the circumstances surrounding the disappearance of the ship's four officers." Manfred Oppermann, captain of the freighter Lalli, said, "From what they said, it certainly looks like a mutiny at sea. They admit they killed the officers." "Whatever the dispute was, it was not spontaneous," Gidel said. "It apparently had been going on for some time." Gidel said that if charges were to be brought against the five crewmen, four Indonesian seamen and a Filipino cook, "there's the question of who has jurisdiction ... I honestly don't know who would." He said representatives from Panama and West Germany have been in touch with the U.S. government about the incident. Reports out of Bonn today said the West German government was studying the jurisdictional question to determine if it should seek the extradition of the five survivors. Representatives of the U.S. Coast Guard and the FBI, lawyers for the Mimi's Panamanian owners and its insurance company and officials of the Norfolk, Va., firm that managed the ship were with immigration authorities when the Lalli pulled into this southeastern Florida port with the five crewmen. Walter Strube, chief engineer aboard the Lalli, said he became suspicious when he discovered that the five rescued men "all had their papers with them. It looked like they knew the boat would sink."

WAVERLY AKINS

The former chairman of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners called for a return of governmental power to the local level, saying the people of the state "want leaders who can bring to government more than just promises of what might be, but positive programs of what will be... leadership to forge a new and lasting bond between the people and their government." He cited higher standards for industries entering the state, the need to stem the increasing crime rate, and the problems facing agriculture as "the problems the people find most pressing." Akins said "Right now," the people of North Carolina "see government as a distant, unfeeling, vague bureaucracy that collects taxes and issues regulations and spend millions of dollars without regard for the needs of the ordinary, law abiding people who pay taxes. "We have to regain that confidence and return government to the local level where it can respond to real needs and real people." During the press conference that followed Akins' announcement, the candidate said he will discuss specific issues and proposed programs as the campaign moves along. He did say, however, that he favors a reduction in the tobacco acreage-poundage allotments for the coming year, a better industrial mix for the state, and improved schools, as well as "stiffer penalties" for persons who use firearms in the commission of crimes. About 200 people were on hand in Raleigh when Akins made his announcement. Akins told reporters he has spent about $25,000 in the past three months on his campaign and said this morning's conference call linking the dozen cities with Raleigh cost $8 a minute... about $250.

Horatio Alger Award For Young Executive

RALEIGH (AP)—A 34-year-old Raleigh business executive will be presented with Horatio Alger Award Friday. George Shinn went from accepting free lunches at school as a youth in Kannapolis to heading a company which owns four business schools. He will be the youngest person to receive award in its 28 years. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, president of the awards committee, will present to Shinn the medallion given persons who "typify the results of individual initiative, hard work, honesty and adherence to traditional ideals." Shinn now heads George Shinn and Associates, which also serves as consultant to more than 40 schools in 22 states. It also sells insurance, operates a personnel placement service and leases automobiles and furniture. A back injury forced Shinn to quit a laborer's job in a Kannapolis textile mill. Shinn then took a business course, became a recruiter for a Concord business school and later was a partner in that school. Shinn says he obtained several business colleges and almost went bankrupt before finding success. He says he told God "If you'll do the thinking and planning, I'll do the work." The George Shinn Foundation has given nearly $150,000 to religious causes, Shinn says. Twelve persons are to receive Horatio Alger Awards this year. Alger was a minister and teacher who in the 19th century wrote more than 100 rags-to-riches stories.

HOUSE LOST TO FLAMES — A fire Saturday night destroyed a house near Shelmardine on rural road 1795. The house, according to Pitt County Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner, was used for storage of tobacco and was housing approximately 75 sheets at the time of the fire. The house was reportedly owned by Esther Venters of Ayden. The dwelling was completely destroyed. Fire departments from Ayden and Gardnersville responded to the 8:30 alarm. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Had District FBLA Meet

A Bicentennial emphasis was felt as the Future Business Leaders of America members from District 1 met at the D.H. Conley High School last Tuesday. Their theme for the year—"Forward in the Spirit of '76"—was used throughout the meeting in both program and decor.

Rep. Sam D. Bundy, who was introduced by State FBLA Vice President, Carol Gooding, did a monologue on "I Am Your Flag" and offered a challenge to the audience to appreciate and respect their country and flag. Miss Linda Mills, district chairman, presided at the meeting and Kathy Gaskins acted as recorder. Jeff Bundy, Farmville Central member, offered the invocation.

D.H. Conley's JROTC color guard posted the colors followed by the Pledge of Allegiance led by Tim McClanahan. Mary Jane Tyson spoke words of welcome and Diane Williams led in the recitation of the FBLA Creed.

Group sessions were held concerning contests that will be held at the State Leadership Conference in Charlotte in April. Leaders for the groups were Miss Katherine Brown, State FBLA Chairwoman and Consultant in Business with the State Department of Public Instruction, Miss Mavis Brown, Mrs. Annie Chappell, and Lester Cobb.

Others participating in the activities of the day were Connie Garris, Kathy Gaskins, Jo Ann Hines and Lynn Hudson who led in the singing of the FBLA Song. Mrs. Janet Knox was in charge of registration; Mrs. Barbara McLawhorn, in charge of refreshments; and Mrs. Mary Thompson, district adviser.

Extortionists Said He Had Bomb Strapped On

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — Herbert and Garnet Rasmussen were sound asleep in their bedroom when the lights blazed on. Two masked intruders were pointing rifles at their heads.

It was 2 a.m. Sunday, the beginning of 14 terrifying hours that ended Sunday afternoon when authorities removed a "bomb" that had been strapped to Rasmussen's back. The intruders forced Rasmussen, president of the Bank of Leleta in nearby Fortuna, to empty a bank vault and turn the money over to them under a death threat.

Rasmussen's attorney, John Gromala, said it would not be known until later today exactly how much money was involved, but he said Friday is pay day for many people and "there obviously was a substantial amount of money in that vault."

FBI agent Richard Miller declined to say whether the agency had any leads, saying the extortionists "were completely covered up with masks, gloves and clothes. It's a difficult case."

Rasmussen, reached at home by telephone, said he was not ready to talk about his experience. Gromala said the Rasmussens were unhurt but were "still quite shook up over the whole thing."

Gromala said the Rasmussens were separated after the intruders broke in. Mrs. Rasmussen was tied to a tree outside the house for 8½ hours.

The FBI and Gromala gave this account of the Rasmussen's ordeal:

About 4:30 a.m. Mrs. Rasmussen was taken outside, made to lie down on the ground and was gagged and tied to a tree. Rasmussen was told his wife had been taken to another house and would be released after he turned over money from the bank vault to the extortionists.

A metal box was strapped to Rasmussen's back and he was told it was a remote-controlled bomb. A microphone was taped to his chest, and the pair told him they would be listening in to make sure he followed their instructions when he left for the bank. If he did not, he was told, his wife would be killed and the bomb would be detonated.

At 9:15 a.m., Rasmussen went to the bank and cleaned out the vault. He then went to a nearby parking lot and left the money as he had been told. He found his wife's car with a note instructing him to drive to the south jetty of Humboldt Bay for a reunion with her.

At 11 a.m., he called the bank.

Mrs. Rasmussen was found two hours later, still bound and gagged, behind the Rasmussen home.

Rasmussen was taken to General Hospital as bomb experts attempted to determine whether the device taped to his back was a live explosive. He was later moved to another less-populated area for further examination, where the device was removed and dismantled about 4 p.m.

Area Survey Is Scheduled

Mrs. Jean C. Wilson of Rt. 1, Grimesland, will be conducting a U.S. Bureau of the Census survey on education in this area the week of Oct. 20-25.

Joseph Norwood, director of the Bureau's regional office in Charlotte, said Mrs. Wilson will seek to obtain information about the number of school years completed by members of households she surveys. There will also be questions about the number of children attending nursery school or kindergarten, he said.

Questions on education will be in addition to those asked regularly in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor. The August survey showed the unemployment rate was 8.4 percent, reflecting a decline from the second quarter recession peak of 8.9 percent.

All information provided the Bureau is confidential by law and can be published only as statistical totals in which no individual or household can be identified.

DU Dinner On Thursday

Greenville area Ducks Unlimited chairman Eddie Smith Jr. reminded area DU members of Thursday night's annual dinner meeting at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Smith urged members and other sportsman who have not purchased their tickets to get them as soon as possible from Dr. Ed Clement, Roger Collins III, Coffman's Men's Wear, John Farley, H. L. Hodges Hardware, W. C. King, Dr. Ray Minges, Tom Taft, Pat Thomas and Jack Whitchard. The chairman said that he also has tickets on hand for the meeting.

Plans are being made for an auction this year to raise funds towards the national DU organization's work in waterfowl conservation. Some $16,000 was raised for the DU program at last year's meeting which was attended by some 210 members. The evening will begin with a 6:30 p.m. social hour, followed by dinner and the DU program. A wildlife film will be shown at the close of the meeting.

Judge Dismisses Leaf Suit Against Sec. Butz

By Thomas C. Cothran Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz had not been "arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable" in limiting selling time on South Carolina tobacco markets.

U.S. District Judge Robert W. Chapman Friday dismissed a motion to force the Department of Agriculture to permit more buying time on the state's flue-cured markets.

The motion had been made by six farmers who are suing Butz and 14 tobacco buying companies for $335 million. The suit accuses the secretary and the companies of conspiring to fix prices and restrain tobacco trade in South Carolina.

Chapman said he did not think the court had the authority to order Butz to increase the amount of buying time in one state when the secretary had other states to think about as well.

He said a ruling for Butz to increase buying time in one state "will in all probability result in similar suits in North Carolina and Virginia...."

Attorneys for the government and the tobacco growers debated a decision by the federal Flue-cured Tobacco Advisory Committee to allow South Carolina 14 extra days selling time.

Frank Bryant, the committee's chairman, testified that the tobacco companies originally had proposed that South Carolina be allowed 28 days of additional sales. But later the committee voted to allow only 14, he said.

"What I want to show is that even the tobacco companies wanted more sales time," said

E. N. "Nick" Ziegler, attorney for the farmers.

He said the committee had voted "along strictly geographical boundaries" and that members who opposed the 28 days of extra selling time were from outside the North Carolina-

South Carolina flue-cured tobacco belt.

U.S. Atty. Edward H. Silversstein argued that the situation had changed between the time the proposal was originally made and the time the committee voted.

Four Collisions In Greenville Sunday

Four traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police resulted in an estimated $1,690 property damage and injured one person.

Officers said heaviest damage occurred when a car driven by Francisco Sanchez of Aurora collided with a mobile home on Greenville Boulevard a quarter-mile West of the Memorial Drive intersection about 9:08 p.m.

Damage to the Sanchez car was set at $350 while damage to the mobile home, property of Mobile Home Brokers, was set at $375.

Sanchez was charged with driving under the influence and carrying a concealed weapon. Kerri Jo Wilkins of 1406 Eden Pl. was injured when the bicycle she was riding collided with a car driven by Jeffery Paul Tugwell of Route 1, Farmville about 5:27 p.m. on Belvedere Drive 530 feet South of the Placid Way intersection.

Officers, who made no charges, estimated damage at $5 to the bicycle. No damage resulted to the car.

Alma Karen Atwood of Thomasville was charged with failing to yield the right of way following investigation of a 7:20 p.m. collision at the intersection of First and Pitt Streets.

Officers reported a truck driven by Robert Philip Lorentz of 209 North Oak St. collided with the Atwood car causing an estimated $500 damage to the Atwood vehicle and $125 damage to the Lorentz vehicle.

Stephen Ray Ellerbe of Ft. Bragg was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 6:57 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive 105 feet South of the Dickinson Avenue intersection.

Investigators said the Ellerbe car collided with a sign pole causing an estimated $300 damage to his car and $35 damage to the pole.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Ceremony On Sunday

In a double ring ceremony Sunday at 2:00 p.m. on the Greenville Town Common, Gail Clements Wyche became the bride of James Edward Bostian. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ben E. Gurley of Florence, S.C. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Lee Hendricks of Norfolk, Va., and vocalists, Miss Kerr Stewart, Mrs. Nancy Pezdek and Miss Karen Cammack. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Clements of Raleigh, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor length gown of pale aqua fashioned with a floral bodice. The neckline and sleeve cuffs were accented by an aqua ruffle. She wore a matching garden hat and carried a cascade bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses, baby's breath, cymbidium orchids and greenery.

Workshops And Lectures Featured At Seminar 75

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. — Needlecrafters from across the nation are meeting at Callaway Gardens here through Saturday for the National Embroiders' Guild of America "Seminar 75." Approximately 500, representing 37 states, Mexico, Canada and England, were expected to attend. The eight-day program sponsored by the Georgia Chapter of the Embroiders' Guild of America includes a variety of workshops for guild members, and a series of lectures on many phases of needlework. In connection with the annual meeting will be the display of petit point wall hanging of "Spring Wildflowers in Tennessee," created by the Memphis Garden Club and on loan from the Memphis Garden Art Museum. The hanging will be on exhibit at the Gardens' Greenhouse Conservatory Complex. Callaway Gardens will also be the site of the 1976 Needlecraft School and Exhibit, Jan. 18-22. Openings in both the school and the exhibit, co-sponsored by the Gardens and the Georgia chapter of the Embroiders' Guild, are still available. For information, call or write Director of Programs, Callaway Gardens, Pine Mountain, Ga. 31822.

The lectures, on such topics as "What's Happening in Needlework in America Today," and "Ecclesiastical Canvaswork," are scheduled October 15, beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the Convention Center at the Holiday Inn of Callaway Gardens. The lectures are open to the public on a space-available basis. Open only to guild members are 33 workshops on several topics of needlework. Instructors include a number of nationally prominent needlecraft instructors, including Mrs. Muriel Baker, Southbury, Conn., author of A Handbook of American Crewel Embroidery; Mrs. Joyce Bucher, Boonton, N.J., author of Complete Guide To Creative Needlepoint; and Mrs. Marion Scouler, Clemson, S.C., a graduate of the Royal School of Needlework in her native London, England. Also on tap are sessions for needlecraft shopowners and teachers.

Squash Makes Fine Dishes

By TOM HOGGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
For vegetable lovers, one of the most versatile is the squash, a gourd type, native to the Western Hemisphere, which comes in a wide variety of sizes, shapes and colors. The Indians called it askutasquash, meaning "green thing eaten green" and were growing squash in Peru as long as 2,000 years ago. Squash is usually classified broadly as "winter" and "summer." This does not refer to the season but rather the stage of maturity when harvested. Summer squash is immature, soft-skinned and generally small; winter squash is mature, hard-shelled and comes in many sizes. The hard-shelled variety like Hubbard, butternut, sugar pumpkin and acorn have richer, meatier flesh than the summer, such as zucchini and yellow straightneck or crookneck. The acorn squash makes a delicious dish baked with a stuffing or sausage and cabbage. Apples can also be used in the filling. Butternut squash has a fine flavor, too, and is good cut in cubes after paring and sprinkled with spices and brown sugar. Drizzle melted butter over it and add a touch of fresh lemon juice for extra tang. Then bake in the oven. Hubbard squash is good in many ways. It is especially tasty mashed and seasoned with maple syrup. You can sprinkle it with chopped toasted pecans before serving for added flavor. The orange-hued sugar pumpkin, which usually weighs from 10 to 20 pounds and is associated with Halloween, is famous as a pie filling. Summer squashes of all types are best cooked young. The small ones do not require peeling and the seeds are hardly noticeable, or tender enough to eat when cooked. The high water content of summer squashes makes it preferable to fry, bake or steam them rather than cook them in water. Best-known member of the summer squash family is the zucchini, which makes a delicious casserole mixed with the yellow straightneck or its cousin in the crookneck. Here is a recipe I like.

Scholarship Awarded To Area Student

CHAPEL HILL—Dianne Lynne Cherry, a third-year student from Robersonville, is the winner of the WBT-WBTV Jefferson Standard Scholarship at the University of North Carolina here. This scholarship is awarded by the Jefferson Pilot Broadcasting Co. of Charlotte. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Cherry, Cherry received an initial scholarship of $4,000 from Jefferson Pilot while still a senior at Robersonville High School. She is preparing herself for a career in broadcasting in the UNC department of radio, television and motion pictures. Since coming to UNC, she has been an officer in Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and the Black Student Movement. She is a student advisor to minority students in the School of Arts and Sciences and a member of the Undergraduate Court. Presently, Cherry is on the Chancellor's Committee on Minority Students. Cherry also has served as a news correspondent for Channel 9, Greenville.

Household Hint

Small children may not be as upset by moving if they are allowed to pack some of their favorite toys and take them along by car. Having familiar things handy makes a new home less frightening. For a long-distance move that includes even kitchen appliances, pack large stuffed toys in range ovens or refrigerators to take advantage of unused space.

Abby Advises Reader To Forget 'Blooming' Problem

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Something that happened last Mother's Day is still on my mind, and I want to know if you think I'm justified in feeling hurt. My husband and I took a lovely corsage to his mother on Mother's Day. She thanked us for it and immediately put it in her refrigerator. She never wore the corsage once during the whole day! Exactly five days later, my sister-in-law (her daughter) showed up at a high school graduation wearing the same corsage we had given my mother-in-law! I was so angry and hurt I nearly cried. It wouldn't have bothered me at all to have seen my sister-in-law wearing the corsage if my mother-in-law had worn it for only an hour. I would like your opinion of this.

HURT IN UTAH
DEAR HURT: If this is your biggest problem, dear, you are indeed a very lucky lady. Some women (including myself) love flowers but do not enjoy wearing them. In any case, I think you have blown up a few blooms way out of proportion. Please forget it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm nobody's fool, but this is going to sound like a foolish letter. I'm 31, have two sons and have been divorced twice. I am a beautiful woman with a home in the country and many friends, and everybody thinks I've got the world by the tail. They should only know how miserable I am. I recently met a man who seems interested in me, but he's very bashful. He stops by, eats and plays with my boys, but he never stays long. He's married but says he wishes he weren't. No children. He's a big, rugged cowboy and looks like George Montgomery—Dinah Shore's "ex." Abby, I've dated lots of men in my life, but this is the only one I really want. I have never messed with a married man and vowed I wouldn't, but he isn't happy, there are no children involved and I truly think he cares for me. Should I go after him, throw my body at him, or forget it and keep daydreaming? I've never felt like this about a man with whom I've never even been intimate. What I want from you is a yes or "go-ahead sign" to clear my conscience. I really want this man.

NAMELESS IN TEXAS
DEAR NAMELESS: If he wanted you as much as you want him, he'd do something about it. He's married and strictly off limits. With all you have going for you, you should be able to rope a nice single man.

DEAR ABBY: I am a fisherman by trade and own a medium-sized fishing boat. The engine of my boat burned out two days before my daughter's graduation from high school, so I didn't attend her graduation because I had to work on the boat. She is mad at me now and said she hopes my boat burns, the engine burns and the whole thing sinks! I said since she feels that way, I am not going to pay her college tuition. She says if I don't pay her tuition, she will sit home for the rest of her life and I will have to support her. What do you suggest I do?
J. IN GLOUCESTER, MASS.

DEAR J: By now, both your daughter and you have no doubt cooled off. Tell her that you realize she spoke in anger and haste, and admit that you did, too. Extend the olive branch, and you'll no longer be out on a limb.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
If pork chops are a favorite in your family, better serve them now. Pork production is the lowest it has been in almost a decade and we'll probably be well along in our bicentennial year before supplies improve. Because the price of pork is high, in the following recipe we've used just one chop for each serving and amplified the meat with frozen hash-brown potatoes and sauerkraut to make a savory casserole.
SAVORY CASSEROLE
4 slices bacon, diced
1 cup chopped onion
Salt and pepper
1 1/2 pounds frozen southern-style hash-brown potatoes
1-pound can sauerkraut, drained
1 tablespoon instant chicken bouillon
1 1/2 cups water
4 pork chops, each about 1/2-inch thick
In a large skillet slowly cook the bacon until lightly browned. Add onion and continue cooking until bacon is crisp and onion is tender. Stir in 1 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper, then potatoes (thawed enough to separate) and kraut. Stir together the bouillon and water; pour over mixture in skillet and toss. Turn into a greased 2-quart baking dish.
Cut away excess fat from around chops. Render a little of it in the large skillet. Add chops and brown on both sides — about 15 minutes in all. Sprinkle chops with salt and pepper to taste. Arrange chops over mixture in baking dish. Bake, covered, in a preheated 350-degree oven for 45 minutes. Uncover and continue baking about 10 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings.

Girls On Edge Of Success

By TIM WHITE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — As childhood chums growing up in suburban Montclair, N. J., Darcy Miller and Gail Boggs each had highly personalized visions of "success."

Gail, daughter of a tree surgeon and his dietician wife, wanted to be a dancer-singer, while Darcy, whose father is a college vice president and whose mother is a guidance counselor, aspired to bio-psychology. "When I was in high school," Gail exclaims, "I used to warn my mother, 'I'm gonna be a Broadway star some day!'" "Sure, sure," she'd say. "Just get home tonight by 11 o'clock!" "I won the biology award in my senior year," Darcy says wistfully. "I was sure I'd end up as a scientist, making great discoveries about the electrochemical functions of the brain..."

Five years later, Miss Boggs has begun to realize her dream, while Miss Miller has traded a test tube for a typewriter as a budding songwriter. Both "couldn't be happier." Gail and Darcy, now in their mid-20s, are "on the edge of success," creating and crooning hit songs for some of today's top rock singers. After high school and an ill-fated brush with higher education, Miss Boggs headed for New York in quest of fame.

Mrs. Harrell Is BPW Club Speaker At Meet

Continuing with its Bicentennial: Perspective for Women theme, the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club had as their guest speaker Thursday night, Mrs. Hazel Harrell, the state foundation chairman, who spoke on "How to Grow."

Mrs. Harrell spoke of the work of the 20-year-old foundation, which provides scholarships, sponsors management seminars for both men and women, and does research in areas of interest to working women.

Of particular interest to women in this area is the Sears-Roebuck Foundation Loan Fund for women in graduate business studies. Noting that only 10 percent of the graduate students in the field of business and management were women, Sears-Roebuck Co. provides approximately $70,000 a year in loans to women graduate students in these fields. This program is administered by the BPW Foundation.

Mrs. Lucille Moore presided at the meeting and Mrs. Arlene Mallison announced plans for the celebration of Business Women's Week. Guests at the meeting were Lillian Rath and Anna Pittman of Greenville.

Ruth Scott gave a report on the Eastern Area meeting held last week at Nags Head. Lucille Moore, Gladys Stokes, Ruth Scott, Doris Marlowe and Judy Osborn of the Greenville Club were among 170 at the meeting.

Today's female students spend 113 per cent more on clothes than collegians did in January, 1974, according to PRADS Statistical Department. They spend 18.8 per cent of their clothes budget on sports wear, 15.1 per cent on dresses and 14 per cent on shoes.

etc., while Miss Miller became a nomadic bio-science major, moving from college to college in quest of a program that suited her scholarly designs. Gail was the first to gain a taste of her heart's desire. "After months of casting calls, I landed a part in an off-Broadway revue-rock opera called 'Mother Earth,'" she says. "It was a fun play, composed of skits, with most of the action taking place on a jungle gym the cast climbed around on. I played a robot and a monkey, and even had my own song, which I belted out until the show closed 14 days later."

Gail's life then became an endless audition for countless plays, and even the panels of quiz shows, before she was chosen as an understudy for Joseph Papp's production of "Iphigenia" and later the chorus of the musical "Candide," which became a hit on Broadway. Her first big break, however, came when she landed the female lead of Silvia in the Australian road company of "Two Gentlemen of Verona."

"The part called for a black woman," says Gail. "There aren't many black actresses in Australia, so they had to import one — me. It was a learning experience, but it ended so quickly, and I was back in New York again, pounding the pavement." A chance encounter on a street corner, aided by Gail's ebullient nature, proved the turning point for Darcy and her.

Gail recalls: "I was standing on the intersection of Broadway and 48th watching this nut who was yelling 'Quota! Anybody got a quota!' at passersby." "Suddenly I realized that Todd Rundgren, the rock musician, was standing next to me also watching. I just began talking to him, saying rock 'n' rollers should pay more attention to what's going on in the legitimate theater. My boldness shocked him, but he ended up introducing me to his friends. Next thing I knew, I was singing backup in his band and on the albums of

Deserves Support Of Public

President Ford has threatened to veto a tax cut bill if it is not accompanied by a corresponding cut in federal spending.

"I absolutely without any equivocation say that if the Congress plays politics by sending a tax reduction to my desk without any responsible restraint in federal spending, I won't hesitate to veto it," Ford said.

That, of course, doesn't mean that the president is not for a tax cut. He is, but he wants the budget brought down by a corresponding amount.

We think the president deserves public support for his stand on this matter. The federal deficit is horrendous and we don't need to compound that by running up future deficits which will have to be met out of federally borrowed funds.

There are still those who feel that the nation is not coming out of its economic slump as rapidly as it should, and perhaps it isn't. Still the long term outlook is for more inflation, and it is inflation which shrinks our savings and destroys the buying power of the working person. Federal borrowing also tightens the money market and causes higher interest rates which cost the salaried person who purchases a house or an auto.

Thus it is obvious that we need to curb federal spending. If we can cut taxes, we have to find some way to bring about a corresponding reduction in the budget.

It might not be considered popular at first glance for the president to threaten a veto of a tax cut bill. It is, however, the only weapon President Ford has to hold a spending minded Democratic Congress in line on ambitious federal budget plan.

It is ridiculous to argue that the federal budget can't be cut. The cuts can be made and the government can still furnish its present level of services. It's up to Congress to find ways to see that this is done, and if it doesn't then we are glad that the president holds the veto threat over the Congress.

"Hey! Reagan says he might accept the number two spot. after all!"

Other Editors Say One Last Hope

(Henderson Dispatch)

Death sentences of several occupants of Death Row in State Prison have been upheld by the State Supreme Court. That's the last legal authority except the U. S. Supreme Court. One last hope for these condemned men now rests with Governor Holshouser, who has not confronted such a decision during his tenure.

Pending in the U.S. Supreme Court is the case of another man on Death Row. The appeal is being made on the ground that the death penalty is unconstitutional. If that be true, many persons have gone to their deaths illegally across the years. The high court could hand down its decision during the term now getting under way.

It is a fearful thought that there are some 80-odd men on Death Row in State Prison, awaiting commutation or a final rendezvous in the gas chamber. Almost certainly they will not all be executed. Will any indeed? And if some are and others spared, how will the selection be made?

There can but be the memory of the victims of these men, for whom no mercy was shown as they were done to death; or helpless women who were molested. The condemned men had no pity for their victims. They are now hoping for a quality of mercy which they themselves did not show.

One of the lingering chances is the fact that there has been no legal execution in North Carolina since 1961. That's fourteen years ago. It is of itself an indication of sentiment against the ultimate penalty.

For the 80-odd cooped up in a tiny cell, even that may be something akin to a living hell. They wait and wait, hoping and hoping, never knowing whether eventually they will walk the last short mile into eternity.

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — The economies of the United States and Canada are so intricately linked that trends in one country freely migrate across the border and soon are reflected in the economy of the other.

Each is the leading trading partner of the other. Each owns huge industrial assets in the other. In response to interest rates, investment funds flow across the border in either direction, almost as if it didn't exist.

Still, there are contrasts, and none appears more obvious right now than differences in the techniques used by government officials to handle the recession-inflation pressures of the past two years.

A study by Chase Manhattan Bank suggests Canadian officials were more effective in obtaining good results than were American, perhaps because they took more aggressive, direct action. And they are planning more.

Later today the Canadian government is scheduled to announce a program of action against inflation and other economic problems that Finance Minister Donald MacDonald already has termed "unprecedented in peacetime."

As the Chase study notes, consumer inflation in the two countries was precisely the same in the period from the end of 1973 to early 1975, rising by the identical 11.3 per cent average annual rate.

However, the divergence between industrial output in Canada and the United States was substantial. In the same period Canadian output rose at a 9.6 per cent rate, but U.S. production declined at a 6.5 per cent rate.

"Clearly, the U.S. industrial slowdown set in earlier and has been more intense than the drop in Canadian industrial production," Chase observes, documenting the statement further with comparisons of Gross National Product.

Canadian GNP, adjusted for inflation during the same time period, fell at an annual rate of 0.9 per cent, while the decline in the United States amount to 6.3 per cent on an annual basis.

A noteworthy difference also occurred in real disposable income, with Canadians enjoying a 17 per cent increase last year while in the United States such income actually fell.

Canadian unemployment was less severe. It reached a peak of 7.2 per cent in June 1975, but in the same month the U.S. jobless rate rose to 9.1 per cent. Throughout this year, the jobless rate in Canada has been lower than in the United States.

Says Chase: "The statistics examined suggest that the popular belief that Canada is at the mercy of U.S. trends is not true despite the close economic ties between the two countries."

Why was Canada more effective, at least during the short period examined? The full story still demands the perspective of time, but some hints might be obtained in these difference of technique between the two countries:

—Canada has floated its dollar since 1970. A major benefit of this is to permit a country to pursue a monetary policy geared more to domestic objectives than to international, balance of payments, requirements.

—Canada leaned toward fiscal stimulus at a time when the United States was attempting to practice restraint.

—Canada has used indexing to soften the impact of tax payments on individuals' real incomes by increasing exemptions as prices rise.

—It instituted personal income tax cuts several months before the United States.

Field Taking Shape

By ROBERT B. CULLEN Associated Press Writer RALEIGH (AP)—The Democratic gubernatorial field for 1976 has begun to take firmer shape with the emergence of two contenders for the conservative vote.

Both Edward O'Herron of Charlotte and State Sen. Thomas Strickland of Goldsboro have opened campaign headquarters in Raleigh. Both held press conferences to begin getting the exposure they will need to mount viable candidacies.

Strickland, always a man who disdains indirection, simply announced his candidacy and stated some of the issues he will campaign on.

They include his opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment, his support for capital punishment, and a generally hard line on crime.

A major theme of his campaign, he said, will be a pledge that state government cannot and will not attempt to do for the people what the people can do for themselves.

Strickland's political career has led him into alliances with some segments of the far right. He addressed a John Birch Society meeting last year, speaking against government control of land development and said later that he had many ideas in common with the people he found there.

His support for the presidential primary drew him into an alliance with Alabama Gov. George Wallace during the legislative session. He paved the way for Wallace's appearance at the General Assembly and says he hopes to attract the support of the Wallace voters, if not the governor himself.

One of Strickland's major problems may be financial. He is not a wealthy man and plans to continue practicing law until the final stages of the primary campaign.

He said he has raised only about $8,000 to date for campaign expenses and anticipates getting only about $200,000 in contributions. That may not be enough to spread his reputation statewide.

O'Herron is also a man with recognition problems. But if money can solve them, he may well be the candidate best equipped to get it.

Speaking of his business career, O'Herron told reporters they might think of him as "sort of a small storekeeper." In doing so, he showed a talent for wry understatement.

He is the chairman of the board of the Eckerd's drugstore chain, which his father founded. It has 94 stores in North Carolina alone and annual sales of about $200 million.

O'Herron, unlike Strickland, has not announced his candidacy. He will probably not do so until next year, although he is definitely running.

Also unlike Strickland, he does not yet have specific positions on issues. Some men see things they want to do and become candidates for governor to accomplish them. O'Herron has turned that around. He first decided he wanted to become governor.

Now, he says, he is communing with the people to find out which issues they think are important. When that is done, he will announce his platform.

THIS AFTERNOON

Public Good Is Overlooked

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH — Every day, a new dilemma.

Special interests seem to have lost sight of the greater goal: the community good.

Special interests affect every one of us in a lot of ways as they create pressure to gain their own ends, with little regard for the individual, or the community. Witness such recent events as insurance firms pulling out of the medical malpractice field; energy and electricity prices soaring beyond reason; federal government agencies encroaching in private lives; firemen, policemen, teachers, garbage men striking.

It is, as State Senator Tom Strickland, D-Goldsboro believes, a time when each day brings one face-to-face with some new crisis.

Continuing Crisis "We are in a continuing crisis situation," Strickland said in a private interview last week as he prepared to make formal his intentions to run for governor on the Democratic tickets come next August's primaries. He was set to make that announcement October 10.

Strickland confesses he faces an uphill battle against the well-organized campaign of Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., and the well-financed campaign of Charlotte drugstore millionaire Ed O'Herron. And Strickland still counts Greensboro businessman Hargrove A. (Skipper) Bowles, defeated in 1972 by Gov. James E. Holshouser, as a likely candidate. There will be, he figures, four main contenders in the primary.

Running as a self-proclaimed conservative, Strickland is counting on grassroots demand for a return to traditional values of home, family, church, and community to carry him through the race.

He promises no new programs to combat the daily crisis condition: "The real solution is in the hearts and minds of the people... people who are ready and willing to go to work and will make themselves available in the home, the church, the community, and the schools to bring us back to putting our state and our fellow man first."

It is, Strickland says, time to "subjugate special interests to the greater needs of North Carolina... It is time that we no longer view issues on the way they will affect special interests, but as to how they will affect North Carolina."

No Special Interests Special interests, unions, associations, groups, have managed to gain the upper hand, and they should be promoted "only so long as their interests correspond to the best interests of the state." Surprisingly, Strickland has carried that message before some powerful special interest groups of late, to be greeted by enthusiastic and encouraging response.

Strickland has long sought ways to fight the state's spiraling crime rate, and is no little peeved with Hunt's late entry into that field. As principal sponsor in his past senate service of the state's minimum standards and minimum pay laws for policemen, and an early booster of the Criminal Justice Academy, Strickland says Hunt often has had the chance to crack down on crime, but failed.

The key, he says, is to make the system work fairly and effectively: "Most of us want justice, as far as the other fellow is concerned. But for ourselves, our friends, relatives, neighbors who come in touch with the law, we want mercy... not justice."

Strickland favors capital punishment as a deterrent, and says if he were governor he would take the cases as they come for review, and if all legal requirements are satisfied, would order the execution... not of all 85 people at once, but each in turn. "You would do it with trembling hands... but it is a duty," he says.

The crime fight, he believes, must be geared to a "return to the idea of stiff punishment for crime committed, and the individual—not society—held responsible."

INSIDE REPORT

Pres. Ford's Tax Gamble

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—When Republican leaders of Congress breakfasted with President Ford Tuesday to be briefed on his new tax-budget program, their questions revealed a common doubt about their old comrade: would he be tough enough to carry out his audacious strategy?

Mr. Ford's new fiscal package, in fact, is strategy rather than substance. With the President facing the need to veto an election year tax cut anyway, he and his advisers took a bold gamble: up the ante, tripling the tax cut but tying it to a dollar-for-dollar cut in spending. When the Democratic Congress inevitably rejected spending cuts, the President would veto tax cuts — after the public had been conditioned by Ford anti-spending rhetoric.

This strategy has been applauded by those congressional Republicans who appreciate it. But they wonder whether easy-going Jerry Ford can handle a hard-nosed strategy better suited for Richard Nixon. Even if Mr. Ford keeps his resolve to veto the tax cut, old friends on Capitol Hill doubt he will adequately harangue the public about fiscal profligacy to politically survive that veto.

Actually, the President's tax problems stem partly from his own weakness. Had he vetoed the $8 billion cut in individual taxes for the last eight months of 1975, Congress surely would have sustained him. Instead, Mr. Ford signed it March 29, heading advice by economists who wanted an anti-recession stimulus but incurring the wrath of fiscal conservatives.

Congressional Democrats have been determined to make the tax cut permanent (costing $12 billion for all of 1976). Most presidential advisers felt enlarging the tax cut while the economy improves would be dangerously inflationary. But how can a tax cut be vetoed less than a year from election day?

An answer came from William Simon, the tough-minded Secretary of the Treasury who has been under cover lately. After unsuccessfully pushing a tighter budget, Simon also failed to keep Mr. Ford from signing the temporary tax cut. More recently, he was miffed by the President approving Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's $100 billion energy scheme. Now a frustrated Simon feared the President would approve a permanent tax cut.

But Simon polished up his idea presented to — and rejected by — Mr. Ford during his first month as President: high, dollar-for-dollar tax and spending cuts. This time the President bought it, at a $28 billion level. But Simon pressed Mr. Ford for assurance that, if Congress balked at spending cuts, he definitely would veto the tax cut. The President agreed.

Rep. Barber Conable of New York, chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee, was shown the package a day in advance. Good idea, said Conable. But he predicted Congress would swallow much of the tax cut while rejecting nearly all the budget cut. Would the President then veto the tax cut? Conable too was assured.

The Ford tax shock generated immediately favorable response. Maverick Gov. James Longley of Maine, elected on an independent anti-government platform, telephoned Simon Tuesday with praise. Longley, his state's most popular politician, added he would urge Maine's liberal Democratic Sen. Edmund Muskie to support the Ford plan as Senate Budget Committee Chairman. Since Muskie faces a tough reelection campaign, such grassroots pressure is exactly what the White House wants.

At a House Ways and Means Committee meeting Tuesday morning, Rep. Phil Landrum — a conservative Democrat and reliable political weathervane — declared his Monday night TV football watching had been interrupted by repeated calls from constituents in the Georgia mountains praising the Ford plan. Liberal Democrats on the committee were temporarily subdued. "I'm afraid," one key Democrat confided to us, "we're on the wrong side of this spending issue and Ford's on the right side."

But Republican leaders were far from confident at the White House breakfast Tuesday. Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, House minority leader, told the President his plan would be hard to sell. Conable chimed in that Mr. Ford must take his message to the people three times a day. In short, they were telling the President to reach down for more than his normal bland presentation.

Mr. Ford responded with uncharacteristic bombast, pounding the cabinet table with his fist and declaring that raids on the Treasury must cease. Still, old colleagues wonder whether Mr. Ford can muster the evangelical intensity of Maine's Longley or California's Jerry Brown to capitalize on the public's anti-government mood.

Strength For Today

ELEVENTH HOUR INDIFFERENCE

Someone once remarked to the famous English man of letters, Dr. Samuel Johnson, "One would think that sickness and the approach of death would make men more religious." "Sir," replied Johnson, "they do not know how to go about it. A man who has never had religion before no more grows religious when he is sick than a man who has never learned figures can count when he is in need of calculation."

The older one grows the more does one become confirmed in a way of life. If he has been indifferent to God in youth and middle age, he will find when old age comes upon him that the comfort that comes with religion eludes him, and he is left with an overpowering sense of meaninglessness and uselessness.

The time to make the acquaintance of God and learn to love Him is now—not later in the day or tomorrow. We are told that our Lord began to preach saying, "The Kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye, and believe in the gospel."

Government Gobbledygook Isn't Meant That Way

By ED ROGERS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you read something with words like "finalize," "interface" or "policywise," the odds are a federal bureaucrat wrote it.
It's called gobbledygook.

Buchwald...

branch of government there are now people on the lower levels who have been leaking classified documents to the press. They are trying to make their superiors look stupid," Melbrow said fiercely.
"But that's treason!" I exclaimed.

"Of course it is. A classified document is a Holy Writ that must be guarded with a bureaucrat's life. Once it is made public our enemies, domestic and foreign, can make hay with it.

"But there is a new breed of employee who believes everything the government does is the public's business. If we have a billion-dollar overrun on an airplane, he thinks the American people should know about it. If the Administration is keeping a secret list of political enemies, he'll pass it on to Jack Anderson. He has no loyalty to the people who pay his salary."

"The finks," I said. "What can be done about these people?"

"There is now a bill in Congress called S-1 which will take care of these rats. The bill provides for a prison term and fine for any government employee who hands over a classified document to an unauthorized person. If I give you a paper that reveals a government secret I can go to jail. Even if I give it to a congressman I can go to jail."

"That's fantastic. You mean Congress is considering a bill to keep the public from finding out what their government is up to?"

"Correct," said Melbrow. "With S-1 you will never have another Watergate scandal, a Lockheed overrun hearing, a Pentagon Papers revelation or an IRS investigation. We'll have clean government for the first time in our history."

"Do you think Congress will vote for S-1?" I asked.
"Why not? If they're dumb enough to propose it, they're dumb enough to pass it."

It doesn't always involve big words. Some of the best examples consist of small words strung together in a fashion that, at first reading, appear to defy reason.

To learn why bureaucrats write that way, UPI tracked down a real, live gobbledygook author.

A directive he wrote recently was quoted in the Washington Star's daily gobbledygook column, and

Held State Meet Here

A two-day statewide meeting of The Concerned Women for Justice took place on Friday and Saturday in Greenville.

The organization's state president, Mrs. Velma Hopkins, was among those in attendance. Coordinators were Rev. Leon White, Mrs. Erma Daniels, Mary Sutton, Mrs. Angella Phillips, Mrs. Christine Jetters, Mrs. Armenta Eatone, Mrs. Rosanell Eatone, Mrs. Fannie Spivey and Mrs. Cleo White.

On Saturday the guest speaker was Mrs. Eve Rogers, Family Court Counselor for Pitt County. She spoke on various programs and services available in Pitt County, and stated they "have decreased the number of juvenile delinquents."

About 200 persons from all areas of North Carolina were present. Senior Citizens from Simpson, Greenville, Raleigh and Winston-Salem were special guests at the meeting.

the state's business establishment going for him in his campaign. He also has many old alliances with the conservative coalition that elected Dan Moore governor in 1964.

He has hinted that the major plank in his platform will be a pledge to try to increase the per capita income of the state through industrial development and education.

These men, combined with Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt and 1972 candidate Skipper Bowles, will probably be the major contenders for the Democratic nomination.

They offer the party, if nothing else, a reasonably wide spectrum in which to choose.

won a $10 award for the reader who sent it in.

The entry concerned "Travel which is incident to travel that involves the performance of work while traveling."

It went like this: "Simply stated, travel which is incident to travel that involves the performance of work while traveling means travel to a point at which an employee begins to perform work while traveling or travel from a point at which an employee ceased performing work while traveling."

Is that clear? Maybe not, says the man who wrote it. Maybe the word 'simply' was his undoing.

Two Injured In Traffic Mishap

Two people were injured and an estimated $1,800 property damage resulted when two cars collided about 8 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of Memorial Drive and West Gum Road.

Police identified drivers involved in the mishap as Emeline Bazemore Manson of Williamston and Phyllis Leona Williams of 2614 Tryon Dr. Both were injured officers reported.

Damage was estimated at $600 to the Manson car and $1,200 to the Williams auto by investigators who charged Mrs. Manson with following too close.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Fair Wednesday. Chance of showers Thursday, becoming fair again Friday. Lows in the 50s; high up to mid-80s on Wednesday followed by cooling.

His resolve will soon be tested. Congress will not endorse the President's budget cuts but will pass a tax cut before year's end, forcing on Mr. Ford what ordinarily would be a politically disastrous veto. Whether it proves disastrous in fact depends on how well President Ford prepares the country the next three months.

He is Ben Wiseman, chief of pay and position management for the Justice Department, a graying, 52-year-old career official who — in an interview — speaks easy, slangy English and can laugh about the item.

"It is a ridiculous statement, I guess, in some ways," he said. "What I tried to do ... was to explain it as clearly as I could. I think even the best writer is going to get squirreled up some time."

Wiseman, who once took a

Accountants To Meet Here

The Eastern Carolina Chapter of the National Association of Accountants will hold its regular technical meeting Wednesday evening at the Candlewick Inn.

Speaker for the meeting will be Earl W. Deal, Internal Revenue agent who will discuss "IRS Agent Audit Process" dealing with the IRS agent preparation for a corporate audit review.

Deal is a 1960 graduate of East Carolina University.

A social hour will begin at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m., and the meeting at 8 p.m.

course in professional report writing, said his "guiding light" is the advice of a former boss who had been an English professor: Avoid big words.

"I'm very sensitive on the subject," said Wiseman. "I don't like to write governmentese but I guess I'm guilty of it sometimes. I try to do something that isn't going to wind up in the funny paper."

Asked why gobbledygook keeps turning up in the federal government, Wiseman said the main reasons are ignorance or vanity. He explained:

"Most frequently, it is a poorly educated person who wants to impress people with his erudition. He uses 50-cent words when he doesn't really know what they mean."

"Then there is the well-educated one who is so proud of his erudition that he wants no doubt in anybody's mind that he's the smartest cookie that ever came down the pike."

Another reason, he said, is the regulation must fit the law, and "there is no way to make a complex subject simple."

As it turns out, the publicized piece of Wiseman's gobbledygook was part of a 5½-page directive he wrote five years ago after Congress changed the law about pay for working after hours and on weekends.

A government worker would get paid for working out of town on Sunday, for example, but with few exceptions got no pay for the time spent traveling. In 1969, Congress added more exceptions. Wiseman's 1970 directive got his superior's approval, went to each of seven Justice Department bureaus for four to six weeks of review and then to former Assistant Attorney General L. M. Pellerzi, who signed it.

After all, Wiseman pointed out, "I am regarded as somewhat an expert in the field or I wouldn't be in my job."

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — The North Carolina hog markets today are mostly .50 to $1 lower. Wilson 60.50-61.50; High Falls 59.50-60.50; Rocky Mount 60.50-61.00; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Elizabethtown, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourne, Ayden, Laurinburg and Benson 62.50; Kinston 60.50-61.50; Salisbury 60.00; Tarboro and Bethel 59.50-60.00

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market has moderately active trading with prices steady and supplies moderate, demand fairly good. The North Carolina dock weighted average price is 49.28 cents per pound this week for small purchases of sized plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed little change in sluggish Columbus Day trading today. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 1.96 at 821.95, but gainers held a slight advantage over losers in the over-all count on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said hopes for eventual federal help for New York City in its financial struggles had been raised over the weekend by Vice President Rockefeller's urging of such an approach once the city comes up with a plan for balancing its budget by 1978.

But they noted that the market was unable to mount much of a response with many investors—including the big banks—taking the day off in observance of the Columbus Day holiday.

Arizona Public Service topped the Big Board's most-active list, down 1/4 at 14 1/4. A 98,900-share block traded at that price.

Union Commerce fell 1 3/4 to 7 1/2. On Friday the company reported a quarterly loss and omitted its dividend.

Baker Industries dropped 1 1/2 to 16 1/2 on sharply lower third quarter profits.

Pittston climbed 2 1/2 to 67 1/2. After the stock fell 5 1/2 Friday, the company denied reports that it was changing prices and quantities of its coal shipments to Japan.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dipped .02 to 46.65 in the first hour.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .11 at 84.02.

JOINT EFFORT BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Joint terms of Lebanese security forces and Palestinian guerrillas hunted snipers in Beirut today as they tried to enforce a fragile cease-fire between Christians and Moslems.

An executive director will be chosen soon, and the corporation should be operational within three months, he said. Private insurance companies may operate similar programs if they wish, James said.

A group member needing legal services for civil cases could go to the attorney of his choice, and the fee would be paid by the corporation. The bar is also setting up a statewide attorney referral service based in Raleigh. Individuals would be able to call a toll-free number for referral to the nearest attorney participating in the program, James said.

The individual could have a 30-minute conference with the attorney for $15. During that conference, the attorney would determine if a lawyer is really needed, the best person to retain as counsel and the prospects for winning the case.

Obituaries

Ellenberg NINETY-SIX, S.C. — Mrs. W. T. Ellenberg, 88, mother of Mrs. Mary Mayo of Falkland and Miss Grace Ellenberg of Greenville, died this morning in a Greenwood, S.C. hospital. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Gardner Funeral services for the Rev. Joe Gardner will be conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. at Bethel Chapel Free Will Baptist Church in Bethel by Elder E. D. Bryant. Burial will be in the Branches Cemetery near Haddock's Crossroads.

The Rev. Gardner lived all his life in Pitt County. An ordained minister, he was pastor of the Bethel Chapel Church for more than 30 years, also pastoring many other churches during his ministry.

Surviving him are six sons, James, Harvey, and the Rev. Clifton Gardner, all of Washington, D.C., and Josephus, Wilbert, and Jesse Ray Gardner, all of New York; three daughters, Mrs. Pearl Brock of Ayden, Mrs. Minnie Sheppard and Mrs. Virginia Mack, both of New York; two brothers, Lumus "Lit" Gardner of Ayden and Eddie Gardner of Washington, D.C.; 32 grandchildren; and 28 great grandchildren.

The body will be at the Norcott Memorial Chapel in Ayden from 6 p.m. Tuesday until an hour before the funeral. Family visitation will be held at the chapel Tuesday from 8 to 9 p.m.

Hooks BELVOIR — Mr. L.D. Hooks died in Martin General Hospital Sunday. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Phillips Brothers Mortuary.

Group Legal Ins. Readied

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Group legal insurance will be available for North Carolinians within three months, according to a spokesman for the state bar association.

The system will be similar to the medical insurance available to groups such as labor union or employees of large firms.

Bobby E. James, secretary of the state bar, said such groups will be eligible for the insurance by paying monthly premiums.

Under authority granted by the legislature earlier this year, the state bar created the State Bar Legal Corp., which will operate the coverage, James said.

An executive director will be chosen soon, and the corporation should be operational within three months, he said.

Private insurance companies may operate similar programs if they wish, James said.

A group member needing legal services for civil cases could go to the attorney of his choice, and the fee would be paid by the corporation.

The bar is also setting up a statewide attorney referral service based in Raleigh. Individuals would be able to call a toll-free number for referral to the nearest attorney participating in the program, James said.

Kirch AYDEN — Mrs. Yolanda Kirch, 87, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital this morning.

A native of Hungary, she had lived in the United States for the past 54 years. Surviving her are two sons, George J. Kirch of Ayden and Andrew Kirch of New York; and a sister, Mrs. Irene Hallas of Miami Beach, Fla. A memorial service will be held at a later date.

Person Mr. David Louis Person of Baltimore, Md., formerly of Winterville, died Sunday in Mercy Hospital in Baltimore, Md. He was the son of Mrs. Cottie Louvenia Person of Winterville. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at the Norcott and Company Funeral Home.

Roach Marvin Earl Roach, 48, died in Martin County Sunday.

Graveside services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Riverside Christian Church Cemetery by the Rev. Chester Phillips, pastor of Grace Free Will Baptist Church.

Mr. Roach was a native of Pitt County attended the Grifton Schools. He farmed in Pitt and Craven Counties, prior to moving to Virginia in 1957. Since that time he had been a truck driver.

He is survived by three daughters, Marlene, Teressa and Michelle Roach, all of Chesapeake, Va.; a son, Timothy Roach of Chesapeake, Va.; two stepdaughters, Brenda and Dorothy Puckett, both of Chesapeake, Va.; a stepson, William Puckett of Chesapeake, Va.; his mother, Mrs. Eula D. Roach of Greenville; three sisters, Miss Edith Joyce Roach of Greenville, Mrs. Robert F. Williams of Venters Cross Roads, and Mrs. Cora Wade of Grifton; two brothers, Claude E. Roach of Greenville and Deane Gray Roach of Los Angeles, Calif.; one grandchild; and four stepgrandchildren.

The family will be at the home of a sister, Mrs. Robert F. Williams, near Venters' Crossroads.

Sherrad Mr. Mack Sherrad of Bethel died Sunday in Edgecombe General Hospital, Tarboro. He is the husband of Mrs. Annie Wilkins Sherrad.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home.

Carla's Name For Subdivision

SEATTLE (AP) — A 5.2-acre subdivision on Finn Hill in suburban Juanita has been named after Carla Hills, secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

The land is being developed by the Stafford Hansell Co. of Kirkland. Last month Pete Hansell was elected a director of the National Association of Home Builders, an organization that has been critical of the secretary's policies in the housing industry.

But Hansell's partner, Brien Stafford, denies any such connection.

"Names are harder to come by in this business than you might think," Stafford said. "People in this industry take themselves and each other too seriously. There has to be a place for a little humor.

"And, besides, we were tired of naming our plats Stafford Hansell five, Stafford Hansell six, Stafford Hansell seven ..."

LONDON (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama began a two-week goodwill tour of Europe today with a briefing at the U.S. Embassy and a meeting with Ambassador Elliot Richardson.

Wallace arrived early this morning after a 10-hour delay in Gander, Nfld., because of technical problems with his chartered aircraft.

But after a few hours' sleep at his hotel, the governor pressed ahead with a hectic schedule in London that was to include meetings with Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Mrs. Margaret Thatcher, leader of the Conservative opposition.

Looking a bit tired, Wallace greeted Richardson from his wheelchair at the U.S. Embassy in London's fashionable Grosvenor Square. Portraits of Britain's great wartime prime minister, Winston Churchill, and the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower looked down from the walls of the anteroom where the men chatted.

Pitt Had 71 Barn Fires

Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner has tallied the number of tobacco barn fires reported in the county during the tobacco curing months of this year.

In July there were 13 fires; in August, 44; and in September, 14, bringing the total to 71.

Falkland has eight; Belvoir, two; Station House, one; Bethel, four; Stokes, two; Pactolus, one; Grimesland, five; Simpson, two; Eastern Pines, one; Black Jack, zero; Winterville, six; Ayden, 14; Grifton, three; Gardnersville, nine; Red Oak, two; Bell Arthur, one; Farmville, nine; and Fountain, one.

The approximate value of the buildings involved in the fires was $255,500, Joyner said; the value of buildings exposed, about $267,700. Losses incurred totaled about $211,225, he said; the value of property saved, about $311,975.

Engineers Will Meet Thursday

The Eastern Carolina Chapter of Professional Engineers of North Carolina will have its monthly meeting at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Beef Barn Restaurant.

B. A. Saholsky, executive secretary of the North Carolina State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors will be the guest speaker. Saholsky will discuss matters concerning operation of the board.

All members and their guests are invited.

Heads Sanford N. H. Effort

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — John C. Driscoll, a Portsmouth attorney and Rockingham County commissioner, has been named chairman of Terry Sanford's Democratic presidential primary campaign in New Hampshire.

The announcement was made in a statement released today saying that Sanford, a former governor of North Carolina, would be in New Hampshire to campaign next Thursday and Friday.

Driscoll is president of the New Hampshire Association of Counties and former chairman of the state board of education. Sanford, one of 10 Democrats seeking the party's nomination for president, is to make appearances this week in Keene, Exeter and Concord, the statement said.

"We're going to tell Gov. Wallace about the political and economic situation in Britain," the ambassador told newsmen. Wallace said, "I have been in many parts of the world, but I have not been to Europe before. I intended to come two years ago, but the visit was postponed. In this condition I just cannot get around as rapidly as I used to."

The governor has been paralyzed from the waist down and confined to a wheelchair since he was wounded in an assassination attempt at a political rally in Laurel, Md., in May 1972.

The governor spoke of the friendship and military ties between the United States and her Western European allies and added:

"Everybody in the U.S. realizes the importance of Britain and the countries on the continent and their relationship with the U.S. I hope there will always be good relations because it is necessary for the whole world."

Wallace was met by Richardson in a small room next to the ambassador's dining room, where he was guest of honor at a luncheon later. But Richardson was unable to attend the luncheon because of a previous appointment with the governor of Arkansas, David Pryor, who is also in London.

Also on Wallace's schedule today was the taping of an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp. to be telecast later in the evening on the BBC news program "Panorama."

His European visit, described by a spokesman as a "goodwill and industry-seeking tour," will also take him to Belgium, France, Italy, West Germany and Scotland.

Three Dead In Gas Blast

GOLDSMITH, Tex. (AP) — Three men were killed and two others were injured early today in an explosion and flash fire at a natural gas processing plant in this West Texas town, authorities said.

Witnesses said the blast occurred in the El Paso Natural Gas Co. plant about 1 a.m., apparently while workmen were trying to keep a smaller fire from spreading.

The dead men were not immediately identified.

Virgil Falkner, 49, of Odessa was reported to be in serious condition and was being treated for burns at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa, Mike Author, 23, of Goldsmith was in less serious condition, suffering smoke inhalation.

"There apparently was one giant flash," said ambulance driver Gary Rowe of Easterling Funeral Home in Odessa. "A pump shack was leveled, and a pickup truck was stripped of even its tires.

"At one time there were fires all over the plant. Shutoffs (of natural gas lines at various points) probably were all that saved the rest."

The cause of the explosion was undetermined.

Wilber Hardee Is Home Again

Wilber Hardee — founder of the Hardee's and Wilber's fast food chains — who was reported missing last week, has returned home.

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said Hardee's wife, who reported last week that he had been missing since September 29, informed officers late Saturday that her husband had returned home.

Appointed ARC Liaison Worker

Mrs. Becki Overton has been named the first full-time alcoholism liaison worker for the Walter B. Jones Alcohol Rehabilitation Center here.

"For the alcoholic person who has been in treatment, aftercare or continuity of care is an important part of his or her recovery and rehabilitation," said WBJARC Director Donald Hayes, who announced Mrs. Overton's appointment.

Mrs. Overton will be working full-time with Wayne, Wilson-

Greene, Southeastern (Wilmington), Onslow, Duplin, and Neuse (New Bern) Mental Health Centers on a regularly scheduled basis. Part-time liaison will be continued in Pitt and a number of other mental health centers in Eastern North Carolina.

Mrs. Overton, a native of Union, S.C., is the wife of Dabney Overton Jr., Eastern Regional Alcoholism Program Coordinator. They live in Greenville.

BY WOODY PEELE

As one observer pointed out, defense doesn't sell tickets, but those who missed Saturday night's 3-0 victory by East Carolina over The Citadel missed an extremely good football game.

The Buc defense held an opponent scoreless for the second time this year. The Citadel, which has allowed only three touchdowns this year, gave up only a short field goal, and that was the difference.

We would venture to guess that not many teams are going to score a lot of points against The Citadel. They may beat them by holding them down, but it'll be another low-scoring game.

Certainly, The Citadel's title hopes were hampered when Andrew Johnson was injured in the second game of the year, ending his play for the year.

I'm extremely proud of our defense," Coach Pat Dye said yesterday. "But I'm proud of our offense too. They (The Citadel) gave us a lot of defensive looks. They are a hell of a team, and they did a great job.

"But we took the ball in the second half and controlled it. Our defense did a tremendous job when it had to. We should have scored a couple of more times, but I've got to give credit to their defense," Dye said.

"It was a real, real physical game, both offensively and defensively. We had the chance to lose it in the fourth quarter, but we stopped them with the big plays—rushing the passer, intercepting and recovering fumbles. We did a lot of things that we had to do. Things that we didn't do against Richmond."

Dye added that had the Bucs played Richmond with the same intensity, they would have come away with a victory.

"We had few breakdowns," he said. "They threw the ball well, but we just shut them off in the second half. We contained their quarterback and shut down their inside game."

The Citadel got only 66 yards in offense in the second half, 41 rushing and 25 passing as the Bucs constantly harassed them. In contrast, while not being able to score, East Carolina rolled up 138 yards in offense during the same period.

"The noise (of the Cadet corps) hurt us some. Several times we checked off at the line, and people couldn't hear."

The game, while one of the hardest hitting of the year for the Bucs, was costly only once—but quite costly then. Quarterback Pete Conaty suffered a shoulder separation, and was slated for surgery this morning. He'll be out the rest of the season.

Jimmy Southerland moved in for him and finished the game, moving the team well. Fortunately Southerland was not injured. The other veteran quarterback, Mike Weaver, had remained in Greenville with the flu. He's expected to return to action this Saturday, sharing the quarterbacking duties with Southerland. "We still have a good offense. Either of these men can do the job," Dye said. "Our fullback game also is looking better and this is a big help to our offense."

Meanwhile, freshman Steve Greer is to be hurried along to be the third string quarterback for the rest of the year. He'll see action as often as possible from here on in.

As to the place kicking chores handled by Conaty, three freshmen walkons will be put to work in earnest this week to see which one will get the call for this weekend.

Losing Conaty will hurt the Pirates, naturally. No one ever loses an experienced quarterback without it hurting. But the Pirate coaching staff fully believes that Weaver and Southerland can do the job. "After all, Weaver did it all last year," Dye reminded.

A Believer In 96-Yard Runback Impact

By The Associated Press
"Any time you run a kickoff back for a touchdown after the other team scores, it does something to them," said running back Rick Jennings after Maryland had defeated N.C. State 37-22 to take the lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings.

The 5-9 senior took the kickoff on the Terps four and ran 96-yards down the left sideline late in the first quarter to put Maryland ahead for good.

Maryland, now 2-0 in the ACC, is 4-1-1 at the halfway mark of the 1975 season. The defeat left State 0-2 in the league and 3-3 in all games.

Elsewhere, Clemson won its first game in five starts by beating Wake Forest 16-14 with a 34-yard field goal with five seconds on the clock; 15th-ranked Notre Dame humbled North Carolina 21-14; Duke defeated Army 21-10; and Virginia lost to South Carolina 41-14.

Jennings' 96-yard jaunt did not destroy the Wolfpack, but a Maryland drive at the beginning of the second half and two State fumbles deep in their own territory did. The second half was a runaway for the Terps, who chalked up their 12th straight ACC victory since losing to the Wolfpack two years ago.

"We were not guessing right on defense in the first half, but we did in the second half," said Terp coach Jerry Claiborne. State outgained Maryland 375-300 yards in total yardage.

"That's the best we've moved the ball against Maryland, but I didn't think they would score 37 points on us," said State coach Lou Holtz.

Freshman quarterback Willie Jordan made a dramatic re-entry into the ACC clash against Wake Forest after being pulled from action. Despite a sprained ankle, he booted the ball straight through the uprights from the 34-yard line just before the final buzzer.

"I just wanted to put everything, including the sprained ankle, out of my mind," said Jordan. "All I wanted to think about was keeping my head down and all the other fundamentals. I guess I did."

North Carolina, now 2-3, led the Fighting Irish 14-0 after three periods, but the Tar Heels were beaten on an 80-yard pass play from Notre Dame's Ted Burgmeier to Joe Montana. Al Hunter scored twice on two-yard runs earlier in the 21-point outburst in the last quarter.

South Carolina quarterback Jeff Grant almost single-handedly led to Virginia's demise. He scored three touchdowns, passed for another and rolled up 278 yards. His performance overshadowed the outstanding performance of Cavalier tailback David Sloan, who ran for 166 yards in 27 carries.

Freshman linebacker Carl McGee raced 68 yards with an intercepted pass to lead Duke to its 11-point margin over Homer Smith's Army. McGee combined with first-year quarterback Mike Cunningham, who directed two scoring strikes.

Three conference games are on next Saturday's schedule.

Passed Seven Touchdowns In Gaining A Tie

INSTITUTE, W. Va. (AP) — Former high school football coach Marty Flannery says he's followed his son's athletic exploits "everywhere" but he was home working in his yard Saturday.

He missed one of the most memorable individual comeback efforts in small college football history.

Substitute sophomore quarterback Mike Flannery, who wants to follow in his father's footsteps and be a coach, threw seven touchdown passes as West Liberty State College rallied to deadlock host West Virginia State College 54-54. West Liberty had trailed by 42-13 in the final 11 minutes of the game before Flannery—who entered the game in place of regular Joe Pepe—threw four straight TD passes to rally the Hilltoppers to a 42-42 regulation standoff.

He then connected for two more touchdown strikes in the three overtime periods dictated by West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference rules to earn his team a 54-54 deadlock. It was the highest score ever recorded in a college football tie, breaking the mark of 43-43 set by Trinity College of Connecticut and RPI of New York in 1969.

"Mike hasn't been playing much, so I decided not to go," Marty Flannery said. The elder Flannery retired from coaching at River (Ohio) High School at Hannibal in 1972 after his son quarterbacked the team to a 10-0 season.

His son admitted that he "was still in shock" after his passing barrage nearly pulled out the come-from-behind victory. "Everybody did great; our line was tremendous in the last quarter. I didn't have time to think about what was going on. We were just out there trying to win a game," the quarterback said. West Liberty Coach Leo Miller, an assistant coach in 1972 when the same two teams locked up in the first overtime game in college grid history, says "I'm just flabbergasted. I've honestly never seen anything like it. Everything just fell into place all at once."

West Virginia State was ranked tenth in the NAIA in pass defense going into the game, but the two West Liberty quarterbacks combined for 376 yards in the air on 17 of 37 attempts. Several more passes were dropped in the open by Hilltopper receivers early in the game.

Patton Says ECU Could Have Even Better Team This Year

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina Coach Dave Patton has a fateful decision to make come the last of November as the Pirates prepare for their opening basketball game of the season.

Unless the NCAA changes its present rules, he'll only be able to take 10 players on the road—and deciding who the two he'll leave at home will be tough.

Even tougher will be trying to decide which of the remaining 10 he'll start.

At any rate, enthusiasm is running high as the Pirates prepare to open practice on Wednesday for Patton's second season at head coach. The Bucs are coming off a 19-8 season that carried them to second place in the Southern Conference and a berth in the Collegiate Commissioners Tournament in Louisville.

Patton, for his efforts, was named the Southern Conference Coach of the Year.

"We could easily have a better team this year," Patton mused, "but our record may not be as good. Of course, we're certainly going to try and improve it, but you don't have years like we had last time every season."

One of the reasons for Patton's worry about the record is the general improvement throughout the Southern Conference. Everyone in the league is boasting of outstanding recruiting years. Richmond is considered the favorite in a poll of Sports Information Directors. Davidson will be stronger with two outstanding recruits. VMI returns its entire starting unit, and William & Mary proved last year that it could be the team of the future.

"The conference is much more balanced. I don't think anyone is going to get through without a loss," Patton said.

"Our non-conference schedule is tougher. We open with Maryland, State and Duke on the road, with VMI sandwiched in there too. And playing at VMI has to be one of the worst places to go into in the country. It's another killer opening."

And, Patton added, the Bucs lost four of their first six players from last year. "This has to hurt us. These players gave us a lot of intangible stuff—leadership, dedication and desire in wanting to be a good team."

Returning from last year's team are eight players who saw a lot of action, however, and this gives Patton higher hopes. There are three seniors, three juniors, three sophomores, and three incoming freshmen for outstanding class balance.

Al Edwards, Earl Quash and Henry Lewis make up the senior delegation, while Larry Hunt, Buzzy Braman and Reggie Lee are the juniors. Dean Hartley, Wade Henkle and Clay Windley are the sophomores.

Joining them will be three freshmen, two of whom were highly sought after Tar Heels. They are Louis Crosby, Tyron Edwards, and Billy Dineen.

"We have more height, more beef and probably more talent than ever before," Patton said. "But, as I've told the players, talent doesn't always make a good team. It takes a lot of other things like teamwork, dedication, desire and unselfishness."

This year's edition of the Pirates will look a lot like last year's in style. They'll run, hustle and play pressure defense. "Our opponents will be

Gaylord Perry Happy With Texas Rangers; Prospects Optimistic

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

There's a song called "Deep in the Heart of Texas," and folks around Eastern North Carolina shouldn't be surprised if they hear Gaylord Perry humming it to himself.

Midway through the 1975 baseball season, the Williamston native was traded by the Cleveland Indians to the Texas Rangers, and for him, it was a dream come true.

"The trade was no surprise," he told the Daily Reflector during a Greenville visit this week. "I kind of wanted it."

Perry would not elaborate, but he made it clear that he was quite happy to leave the Indians and join the Rangers. "I'm only going to say that I was glad to get to Texas. They've been great to me down there."

Oddly enough, Perry's manager at the time of the trade was fiery Billy Martin, who often-times has had Gaylord's person searched for traces of that slippery stuff he's accused on putting on ball. But at Texas, it was a different story. "He was great to me, and I was sorry to see him go," Perry said that there had been some talk of Martin getting the ax before it fell. "He had front office troubles," Perry said. When he went to Texas, Perry was in the midst of one of his worst slumps during his career, posting only a 6-9 record. But after dropping his first three starts in Texas things changed. From that point, he posted a 12-5 record for the Rangers, and led the team in earned run average.

He also was one of the leaders in league in strikeouts, complete games and shutouts—a spot he usually occupies. "It was just a slump, that's all. It took a little while to get out of it, but there was nothing special I did," he explained.

Perry feels that the Rangers should have an excellent chance to win the Western flag in the American League next year. "We've got some good young players who are going to do a lot for the team. We're in a tough division, though. Oakland is a very good team and Kansas City is good."

"I think one thing that hurt us this year was that we didn't have a set lineup for a long time. We it was a different story. "He was great to me, and I was sorry to see him go," Perry said that there had been some talk of Martin getting the ax before it stronger."

Perry also looks for improved pitching and a deeper Texas staff next year. And since he's already got his contract for next season, that's one hurler the Rangers won't have to worry about.

Single Ticket Won $33,423

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — A single ticket holder won $33,423 when a trifecta combination of 10-4-8 won the ninth race at Finger Lakes Race Track Sunday.

It was the largest trifecta payoff in the history of the up-state track, according to spokesman Bob Wade.

Prissy Pebble, a 70-1, who went off at 70-1, paid $32.60 to place and helped boost the return greatly. Spartan Fury paid $6.60 to show.

A double double of 5-and-5 paid $18. The crowd of 3,878 bet $321,170.

Gaylord is unhappy that he won't be meeting his brother, Jim, any more. Jim was cut loose by the Oakland Athletics near the end of the season. "It was really no big surprise. Nothing Charlie Finley does surprises me any more. I didn't like seeing Jim go out there," Perry added that Jim might try to hook up with some team this spring as a free agent.

Perry also wasn't surprised by the outcome of the pennant series in the two leagues. "Whenever you have a short (best of five) series like that, it's who ever gets hot."

The Farm Life community hurler is hoping to remain hot himself for the next few years, carving out a little slice of that Heart of Texas for himself.

double to left center while the disappointed Boston crowd of 35,205 sat stunned.

The weekend split gives the Reds a distinct advantage in this best-of-seven series because the next three games will be played in Cincinnati. Morgan, for one, isn't planning on coming back to Boston.

"I believe we can beat anybody anytime," said the unflappable second baseman. "And I believe we can win three straight at Riverfront because we'll be able to get our running game going there."

With the help of an artificial surface and a sleek vacuum cleaner machine called a "Zamboni," games are rarely rained out in Cincinnati. So Morgan knows the track will be fast and clear for the Reds' races.

Except for Sunday's ninth inning, neither running or hitting were among the things that the Reds did with any effectiveness in Boston. Checked 6-0 in Saturday's opener by Luis Tiant's baffling series of deliveries, it seemed for eight innings on Sunday that the Reds would be frustrated again in gloomy Fenway.

Lee, usually tough at home, held the Reds to four hits and one run over the first eight innings and led 2-1 going into the ninth. When the southpaw went out to the mound for the tenth inning, he got a roaring ovation from the red-hot Boston fans. But he didn't stay around long enough to enjoy the adulation.

Mindful of the cozy wall in left, Lee kept the ball outside to Bench and the Cincinnati slugger hopped on it. "I was looking for a pitch away," Bench said. "I noticed their shift against me and wanted to hit it through the open spot — and I was fortunate to get it that way."

That was all for Lee, who left amidst a thundering ovation. That brought in Drago to face the dangerous Tony Perez, and Anderson had no intention of having the long-ball hitter bunt Bench to third.

"I had no thought of bunting," Anderson said. "I would never bunt with Perez in that situation. It would be embarrassing to Tony."

It worked out the same way as a bunt, however. Perez hit a grounder to short and Bench moved to third to set up Concepcion's game-tying hit that followed George Foster's short fly to left.

Concepcion, whose error earlier set up Boston's second run in the sixth inning, more than made up for it with the hit and subsequent steal of second. That put him in position to score easily on Griffey's rifle shot to left-center.

Carlton Fisk's single knocked in a run to give Boston a 1-0 lead in the first inning and the Reds tied it on Perez' run-scoring bouncer in the fourth. Carl Yastrzemski, who scored both of Boston's runs, came home on a single by Rico Petrocelli in the sixth.

Tuesday night's third game will feature a duel of right-handers — Boston's Rick Wise against Cincinnati's Gary Nolan.

WFL Owners Convene Today

NEW YORK (AP) — World Football League club owners were to meet here today amid published reports the league may disband — or at least slash two franchises — during the session.

Initially the meeting had been called to discuss new ways to market the WFL and its 10 teams, but reports began circulating during the weekend that a motion would be offered to shut the league down.

"You're damned right it is critical," the Memphis Commercial Appeal quoted Memphis Southern owner John Bassett as saying regarding the meeting.

The newspaper said the possibility of closing down the two-year-old league would be "seriously discussed."

A source was quoted as saying even if the league decides to continue, two franchises will be dropped "for the overall good of the rest of the league."

They were listed as the Portland Thunder, which last week took up a collection of $300,000 from the other nine teams to stay alive, and the Philadelphia Bell, which has been averaging only 3,705 attendance at its home games.

Reportedly, the eight surviving teams would be able to save a large amount of revenue now expended in traveling to the two cities.

"The home teams get 60 per cent, the visitors 40, and 40 per cent at a place where the attendance is in the area of 4,000, well, you lose a ton of money just playing there," one source was quoted as saying by the newspaper.

Chicago was stripped of its franchise by the league early last month and the demise of Philadelphia would leave the WFL in only one major television market — the Los Angeles market with the Southern California Sun.

The Memphis newspaper said there has been some talk about dropping San Antonio, which still needs $450,000 to be able to finish the season, but it is a less likely candidate for disenfranchisement because it is averaging 11,000-plus attendance per game.

"I can't say what will happen," Bassett said. "Anything could happen. I'm going to sit back and listen to everybody. I don't have any grand design."

Everything you need to know. Every month.

At BNC we think that anything that helps make your banking easier and more understandable is worthwhile. That's why we came up with the Consolidated Statement. It won't make you have more money in the bank but it will tell you everything you need to know about the money you have.

IT TELLS ALL.
If you have a checking account and any other accounts at the Bank of North Carolina — savings, loans, or certificates — your consolidated statement gives you all the information on all the accounts at one time. In detail. And in summary form.

SIMPLY.
One of the nicest things about the Consolidated Statement is that it puts a lot of information into an easy-to-understand form. For each of your checking accounts it lists the beginning balance, the amount of your deposits, the total amount of the checks that you wrote, and your ending balance right up where you can see it. Then each deposit and each check is entered individually. For savings you have the balance, deposits and withdrawals, and the interest earned. And your loan balance and payments are individually listed; so you can tell where you are with them. Everything is in one place at one time.

AND WHAT'S IT TO YOU?
A couple of things. The Consolidated Statement helps you to know about all of your accounts every month. And with the savings, it does away with the need for passbooks. Your savings deposits will be just as convenient as your checking deposits, and you can see how much your money is making every month. The whole idea is to keep things simpler. And simpler is easier. Visit your BNC branch and get the details on the Consolidated Statement. And let us show you that you can depend on BNC for help — wherever you need it.

BNC's Consolidated Statement doesn't make my banking fun. But it makes it easier. And that helps.

Studio Security Is Left Behind

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Today is Columbus Day. Appropriately enough, CBS-TV will air a special tonight called "Travels With Flip," starring the wanderings, humor and occasional abrasiveness of comedian Flip Wilson.

Wilson, star of his own NBC variety show for several years before he signed with CBS, is taking a pretty unusual and welcome step tonight by abandoning a studio stage and doing his thing on the road.

He visits Honolulu, San Francisco, Atlanta, Nashville, and the small, predominantly black community of Boley, Okla., using the people he meets as his comic foils instead of the usual variety-show array of guest stars.

Only one professional — country music singer Loretta Lynn — checks in to sing and chat, unless you want to consider Muhammed Ali, who goes through a weak training camp matchup with Wilson, a show biz pro.

The comedian literally starts off on a high point — aboard a Hawaii-bound jumbo jet, where, to the visible delight of the passengers, he comes on the public address system as stewardess Geraldine.

And advises them, "For those of you who are headed for New York, you are on the wrong airplane."

In Hawaii, where he participates in a feast, rides an outrigger canoe and learns to scuba-dive, he becomes the foil for his diving instructor while wading out into the blue Pacific.

"Where is 30 feet?" he asks. "Well," the instructor deadpans, "there are 15 people on the beach."

One of the show's funniest moments comes when he dresses up as his famous character, Geraldine, and commences work as a sales clerk in the millinery department of a large San Francisco department store.

He grouses at one customer: "All that money and she won't even buy a jive hat!" To a young black lady trying on a hat, he says, "When the revolution come, all the women gonna be wearing this ... this'll be nice for Sunday during the revolution."

Another good moment comes as he labors as a conductor on a San Francisco cable car, collecting 75 cents more than the usual two-bits-a-ride fee.

One lady tourist from Ohio is clearly bugged by him. But appearances are deceptive, as you'll find if you watch this show.

Wilson isn't funny all the time. He comes across as a megalomaniac during an Atlanta parade sequence. And his Boley visit, while generally warm and friendly, hits a sour note when, while kidding a black teen-aged lad, he calls the youth "a nigger."

It was in jest and Wilson has heard the word not in jest in his day. But this cut no ice with the kid, who said, "I don't appreciate that." They sort of patched things up with a bicycle race.

But from then on the show got weaker.

Still, what Wilson has done by leaving the safety of the Hollywood studio and visiting the citizenry deserves a cheer. It reminds us — and him — that the sharpest lines in life don't always appear on cue cards.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J7 ♠AQ ♣Q1097 ♣QJ873
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Two no trump. The choice is between this rebid and a jump to three clubs. While your hand is improved by your fitting cards in partner's suits, an eleven-trick contract seems unlikely because your values are "soft"—mostly queens and jacks. In addition, your hand should be led up to, not through, so no trump is the logical spot.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q95 ♠K76 ♠952 ♠AJ98
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1NT Pass
Pass Dble. ?
What action do you take?

A.—Redouble. You have an absolute maximum for your original no trump response, and partner should be apprised of this. Knowing you are at the top of your scale, partner will strive to double the opponents wherever they come to rest, and, since they are vulnerable, you can look forward to a juicy penalty.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KQ985 ♠A ♣KJ ♠J8762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Five clubs. It is tempting to launch into Blackwood, but your side could easily have two unavoidable losers. If partner is looking at good clubs and an outside ace, he will know that he can go on to slam.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K7 ♠J108 ♠AQ1087642
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
3 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3NT Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Bid five diamonds. This certainly does not look like the sort of hand with which you want to play no trump. The only other bid that comes under consideration is four hearts. However, partner did not take the opportunity to rebid his suit, and it might be important to protect the king of spades from being led through. Incidentally, we approve of South's decision to pass originally.

Q.5—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K1054 ♠A9 ♠AQ7 ♠KJ93
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Dble. Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Bid two spades. You are strong enough for a move toward game, but not strong enough to jump to three spades. That action requires some 19 points, for you have to allow for the possibility that partner has been forced to respond and might hold next to nothing for his bid.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable with 60 on score, you hold:
♠AQJ7 ♠AKQ954 ♠102 ♣Q
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Five spades. Partner has made a move towards slam by cue-bidding the ace of clubs, so he surely holds the king of spades. The only question is whether he has the diamond suit controlled. Your leap to five spades tells him you have two losers in the unbid suit, and requests partner to bid six with second-round diamond control. If he happens to have the ace of diamonds, he should show it on the way to six spades, and that would enable you to contract for a grand slam that should be lay-down.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠754 ♠Q ♣K8752 ♠10643
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 1 ♠ Pass Pass
Dble. Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2NT Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Bid three no trump. Thus far, you have promised partner nothing other than a few diamonds, yet he has contracted for eight tricks in no trump despite the fact that the opponents have shown some strength. Your king-fifth of diamonds and queen of hearts have become golden values, and represent ample assets to raise to game.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A9862 ♠73 ♠10865 ♣Q7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1NT 3 ♠ ?
What action do you take?

A.—Pass. East is fully aware that he is vulnerable and that your partner opened one no trump, so there is no reason to suppose he has lost his senses. Do not double. The only bid worth considering is three spades, but that bid would be forcing and it is doubtful that you have the values for game.

Wrong Body Is Identified

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Orleans Parish coroner's office today identified the body of a man mistakenly sent last month to Franklinton, N.C., as Peter Mike Boutte of Lafayette, La.

The identification came from a Washington fingerprint computer bank, the coroner's office said.

"The identification of this black male gives two birth dates for the man," said a spokesman. "May 6, 1947, and May 6, 1948. We have asked the Lafayette police to investigate."

The man now identified as Boutte died in front of a downtown shoe store Sept. 16. Police identified as Bennett Abbott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Abbott of Franklinton, N.C., from papers found on the body.

Funeral services were to be held in Franklinton Sept. 23, but the family discovered the body was not that of their son.

Earnings Rose During August

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The average Southeastern factory production worker earned nearly $4 a week more in August than in July, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported.

Most of the gain came from increased hours, as wages remained about the same, according to the bureau's monthly report.

Total nonagricultural employment in the eight-state region increased by 46,000 from July to August, but still was 471,000 lower than in August 1974.

Manufacturing had the greatest monthly gain, 68,000 workers, while the government sector lost 15,400 employees for the biggest reduction.

The report covered Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

The average factory production worker in the region, according to the report, worked 40 hours in August at an hourly rate of $3.81, and earned $152.40 for the week.

Police Unionism Growing In North Carolina

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Police unionism is a growing movement in North Carolina.

In recent weeks, police have organized themselves in many communities across the state to press for higher pay and better working conditions.

Some departments have suffered work slowdowns, in which patrolmen answer only emergency calls. More job actions seem likely unless municipal governments respond favorably to demands that they increase the pay scale for patrolmen, which now runs from $6,597 in some small towns to a high of $12,207 in the state's largest cities.

State law forbids strikes and collective bargaining by municipal employees, including policemen. So none of the police organizations have affiliated with a traditional union and all are searching for effective ways to be heard and heeded within the confines of the law.

In Raleigh, more than two-thirds of the department's 300 members have joined the Raleigh Police Officers' Association. They engaged in a work slowdown in May. In July, they publicly called for the removal of Police Chief Robert Goodwin, who they said had not pushed hard enough for a pay raise with the City Council. Further job actions have been postponed, pending a study of the department by the city government.

Police in Greensboro, High Point, and Reidsville have recently formed associations affiliated with a national group, the International Conference of Police Associations, which represents departments in New York, San Francisco and other large cities.

Asheville's Fraternal Order of Police, once mainly a social group, has grown more militant. Last month, it voted to stage a slowdown to protest the city council voting itself a raise before the police got one. That job action has also been postponed.

The organizing activity has not been confined to metropolitan areas. New Bern police staged a slowdown last month, asking that their pay be increased at least 10 per cent after the city council voted no raise at all.

In Burnsville, the entire three-member force resigned after the city aldermen refused them pay raises of $500 per year each. The aldermen have decided to hire new policemen at the old salary level.

Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten, the state's top law enforcement officer, is not surprised at the organizing activity. Nor does he think there is anything wrong with simply organizing.

"You've got a younger, better educated group of policemen.

They see people making tremendous salaries in private business who do not run the risk of getting their guts blown out every time they turn a corner. They're resentful of the fact that society does not put a high priority on the criminal justice system. They want the same kind of dignity most Americans have," Edmisten said.

Edmisten said he thinks that policemen organizing themselves to make their desires known is in the best American tradition. But he is against collective bargaining, job actions, or strikes.

His views are not shared by Robert Gordon, a retired New York City detective who has been traveling in North Carolina and organizing police departments for the International Conference of Police Associations.

Gordon said he has urged policemen to become active in politics and press the case for a collective bargaining system for police. Both the police and the governments they serve would be bound by arbitration under the type of law Gordon's group seeks.

"We're vehemently opposed to strikes. But we also think policemen should not be placed in the position of having to think about striking," he said in a telephone interview. Gordon has been instrumental in the organizing activities in the Greensboro area and said he expects to become active throughout the state.

As Edmisten said, the policemen who are spearheading the organizational effort tend to be the younger, better educated members of the force. One such is U.R. Knox, 25, a three-year veteran of the Raleigh force.

Knox is one of the leaders of the Raleigh Police Officers Association, although the organization has no titular leaders. They were afraid of reprisals against members who stepped to the fore, he said.

He has a degree in chemistry from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and became a policeman, initially, because he couldn't get into medical school.

Pay is an important issue to the young policemen, Knox said, but there are others.

He described a system in which policemen who stolidly ran radar traps and hand out tickets get good ratings. Those who try to be innovative about cutting down and solving major crimes are given poor ratings.

"I'm a night watchman and a ticket writer and that is all I am," he said. "There is no time to investigate and deter crime. Law enforcement should be a profession now. The days of the redneck who beat people up are over. We should be paid correspondingly and we will not be happy with menial work."

Test Oil From Shale Source

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (UPI) — The first full-scale test of fuels derived from shale oil is under way in joint military-industry research.

About 10,000 barrels of shale oil, the largest single shipment ever processed by a refinery, was produced by the Paraho Oil Shale project from the Naval Oil Shale Reserves at Anvil Points, Colo.

A Navy spokesman says the military and industry are anxious to develop commercially feasible shale oil recovery processes. So far, Paraho has reported high energy yields from mined shale.

Researchers with the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station are testing a new approach to tobacco production that involves growing five times as many plants to the acre as is done normally.

The purpose is to develop a more economical production system to help tobacco compete with substitutes.

Dr. William H. Johnson, Professor of Biological and Agricultural Engineering at North Carolina State University, said the project involves producing 30,000 or more tobacco plants per acre, compared with a normal plant population of about 6,500 to the acre.

Direct seeding or mechanical transplanting is used to establish the high plant population on specially prepared beds—four to five rows narrowly spaced at 12 to 16 inches apart. There is very little cultivation.

The entire plant—including stalks—is harvested, Johnson said. The stalks are chopped for ease in handling.

"This approach also utilizes mechanical handling into large containers for curing, and curing under forced air conditions," the North Carolina State University scientist said.

He said the cured product might be used in homogenized sheet tobacco, or possibly be carried through conventional leaf processing equipment.

"Preliminary results indicate yield per acre may be increased by 100 per cent or more, and the product converted into sheet tobacco may be superior in flavor and aroma to tobacco substitutes," Johnson said.

Americans smoke more cigarettes than anyone else in the world. According to the World Health Organization, the average American smokes 3,812 cigarettes a year.

In recent years, major tobacco companies have shown considerable interest in tobacco substitutes or smoking materials that could potentially replace a portion of tobacco in cigarettes. This interest has been intensified, the North Carolina State researcher said, by increasing shortages and high costs of natural tobacco, and the search for "safer" cigarettes.

Johnson said several years of research will be needed to fully evaluate the potential of close-grown tobacco for use by the industry.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reported that as of last fall an American firm had plans for test marketing a synthetic-tobacco cigarette in the United States.

Agricultural history discloses glaring examples of how "man-made" products have triumphed over natural ones. Margarine has largely displaced butter on U. S. dining room tables, and laboratory-bred fibers have made heavy inroads on markets for cotton. Whether anything similar will occur in the tobacco industry remains to be seen.

One economist told the recent Tobacco Workers Conference in Charleston, South Carolina, that so long as natural tobacco supplies are available and not much more expensive than now, the possibility is "remote" that synthetic tobacco will make inroads into the U. S. market.

North Carolina State University specialists said the two key questions concerning the future of synthetic materials appear to be:

—To what extent will it be profitable—and necessary—for cigarette makers to utilize artificial materials?

—To what extent, and in what proportions, will the new materials be accepted by smokers?

Tobacco used per 1,000 U. S.-made cigarettes already has been reduced from 2.7 pounds in the early 1950s to 1.9 pounds at present, chiefly through use of filters, more complete utilization of leaf including stems or midribs, and use of Freon to produce "puffed" tobacco.

FARM MANAGEMENT FARM SALES APPRAISALS CONSULTANT

Whitehurst Farm Services, Inc.

Specializing in Farm Management

Do you own farm property you are unable to adequately manage because of too many other interests? Maybe Professional Farm Management is your answer. We have recently formed a company for the purpose of managing farms for owners, investors, trusts, estates, widows, and non-resident owners that are unable to give their farm the attention it needs.

Our Farm Manager has had many years of experience in farming, including management, finance, working with tenant operators, etc.

Our program is designed to supervise all farm needs including:

1. Finding good tenant operators,
2. Working with these operators to return maximum profit,
3. Maintaining and improving farms for the future,
4. Building improvements and additions that may be needed,
5. Soil tests for increased soil fertility,
6. Keeping complete farm records and making financial reports showing inventories, disbursements, receipts, etc.

We are a licensed real estate broker and can help you buy or sell farm property. We also do appraisal work.

If this program appeals to you as a farm owner, please contact us for more specific information.

Utilities Commission Moving Faster

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Laws passed by the 1975 General Assembly to speed up work of the state Utilities Commission are already beginning to have that effect.

Commission Chairman Marvin Wooten said he expects the commission to complete action in a Carolina Power & Light Co. rate case in less than six months. Under the old commission format the case would have required at least nine months.

Wooten said that if the commission is able to maintain such a timetable it would eliminate utilities putting rates into effect under bond because of the failure of the Utilities Commission to act in time.

The legislature approved an increase in the membership of the commission from five to seven and provided for it to sit in panels of three members each to hear cases. In the past, all five members heard a case.

The General Assembly also appropriated $1.12 million to expand the Utilities Commission staff and it approved law which permits the commission to require utilities to submit all their evidence at the time they make an application instead of waiting several months after the application to offer the evidence. Wooten said the additional staff made possible by the legislature had been hired and was at work.

He noted that the law allowing the commission to hear cases in panels of three had made it possible for the commission to hear two major cases at the same time this week.

Three members of the commission, headed by Commissioner George Clarke, heard the application of Southern Bell Telephone Co. for a $62.4 million rate increase in the commission hearing room while in the commission library a panel headed by Wooten read application of Duke Power Co. for permission to build its proposed $2.4 billion Perkins Nuclear power station on the Yadkin River.

Wooten said in the past it would have been necessary to put off the Bell case while the commission completed hearing the Duke case.

Wooten said the new law permitting the commission to adopt a rule requiring utilities to furnish their evidence along with their applications helped make it possible for him to set the six-month time schedule for the CP&L case.

He recalled that the company submitted its application on a Friday, the commission passed the rule on Monday and the company filed its date very shortly thereafter.

"Getting the data filed early permitted our staff to get started early," Wooten said.

Vallee Back On Maine Campus

ORONO, Maine (AP)—Rudy Vallee, the 74-year-old crooner, returned to the University of Maine campus for a nostalgia-filled weekend.

He recalled that he transferred to Yale four decades ago because his love for a local girl was unrequited.

"I met her while registering for college and fell deeply in love with her," Vallee said. "We had quite a few dates, but in the spring she jilted me for a baseball player, some guy name Jack who had a raccoon coat and an automobile, and I had neither."

Raccoon coats, antique cars and other symbols of the Roaring 20s were brought out for the return of Vallee, who popularized the school's official song, "The Maine Stein Song,"

Hirohito Forced Trim Schedule

KAILUIA-KONA, Hawaii (AP)—Japanese Emperor Hirohito came down with the sniffles Sunday and had to cut back on his schedule, but he was expected to fly back to Japan today.

Hirohito was not sick enough to be confined to bed and did not have a fever, a spokesman said. Empress Nagako stayed with him as he rested in his room.

The emperor has traveled extensively in the United States during an historic two-week visit.

RACECOURSE

MACAO (UPI)—Construction work on a $20 million racecourse in the Portuguese colony of Macao is expected to start soon. The proposed course is expected to take two years to build and will seat about 20,000 spectators.
