Work On Downtown Mall Is Progressing

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Barring bad weather or unforeseen delays, the downtown Evans Street Mall should be basically completed by Thanksgiving, according to Central Business District project manager T. I. Wagner.

Wagner, in a mall progress report Monday night to the Redevelopment Commission, said that the construction contractor should have the important brick paving segment of the mall finished in five to six weeks or right around the target date of Nov. 26.

The project manager, estimating that the mall work is roughly 60 per cent complete, told commissioners that since the work began on July 31, only six days have been lost due to rainy weather. Most aspects of the overall mall project have gone pretty much according to schedule, he added.

Reviewing the mall work, Wagner said that actual demolition work in the two-block area between Third and Fifth Streets began on July 31 and was completed on schedule by Aug. 15.

Installation of primary storm drains, auxiliary water lines for fire protection and other water needs, and lines for plumbing were also completed by Aug. 29, he reported.

Work involving the brick planter foundations began on Aug. 25, it was noted, and took longer than the three weeks designated on the work progress chart. The "laying out" of the foundations was (Continued on page 8)

Share Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — An Dutch-born American and a Russian were named joint winners today of the 1975 Nobel Prize in Economic Science.

The Swedish Royal Academy of Science made the award to Tjalling C. Koopmans of Yale University and Leonid Kantorovich of the Soviet Union "for their contributions to the theory of optimum allocation of resources."

It was the second of the 1975 Nobel awards. The Peace Prize was awarded last Thursday to another Soviet citizen, Andrei Sakharov, the nuclear physicist and leader of the fight for civil rights in the Soviet Union.

Other Nobel awards for science will be announced later this week, but the date for the literary award has not been set.

The prize this year is worth 630,000 Swedish kronor ($143,000) and will be divided equally between Kantorovich and Koopmans.

Because of the peace award to Sakharov, the award to the Russian economist poses a dilemma for the Soviet government. Sakharov was honored for his militant opposition to official Soviet policy, and spokesmen for the Soviet regime have condemned the award, just as they did when the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature was awarded to Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

By contrast, the Kremlin has welcomed previous noncontroversial Nobel awards to Soviet scientists, but they have never before coincided with one that constituted an implied condemnation of the Soviet government.

The citation for the two economists said that "largely independent of one another, (they) have renewed, generalized and developed methods for the analysis of the classical problem of economics as regards the optimum allocation of scarce resources."

Their field of work embraces the fundamental economic problem of how available productive resources should be used to the greatest advantage in the production of goods and services.

Duke Power Will Offer Its Nuclear Plant For Sale

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Duke Power Co. will offer to sell its nuclear power plant under construction in York County, S.C. to a group of rural electric cooperatives and municipal power companies, it was confirmed today.

The proposal will be made formally at a meeting here Oct. 21 and 22. Another meeting will be called after Nov. 15 and if the sale appears likely, negotiations could start by early December, sources said.

"This was a financing alternative," said Duke Power spokesman Arnold Kirk. "Over the long haul the whole question of providing electricity is going to be a matter of money."

The facility, known as the Catawba Nuclear Station, is scheduled to begin generating electricity in 1981. Duke Power estimated the cost of construction and initial fueling at some $1.2 billion.

Kirk said the company's wholesale electricity customers had approached the Charlotte-based utility "some time ago" about purchasing the generating facility.

After a feasibility study, the company decided to make an offer.

Ray Muench, director of the Fayetteville Public Works Commission and member of the board of ElectriCities, said many problems, including terms for transmission of electric power, would have to be negotiated.

The Catawba station was approved by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in August over the objections of environmentalists.

The site is located on Lake Wylie between Rock Hill, S.C. and Charlotte.

The Catawba facility was among several Duke Power planned to build in North Carolina and South Carolina as part of a shift from coal to nuclear plants.

The North Carolina Utilities Commission began hearings about two weeks ago on Duke Power's request to build a nuclear generating plant on the Yadkin River near Mocksville.

The company said the Yadkin River plant was necessary to supplement the capacity of its other plants, including the Catawba station.

Muench said one method of financing the purchase might be to establish a separate legal entity with authority to issue bonds. The new corporation would then use long-term purchase contracts from the various coops and municipal companies as collateral for the bonds.

He said the cost of power from such a facility would be higher than the wholesale rate for the first few years but would decrease as the plant depreciated.

Duke Power has insisted for the last three years that its financial position had been weakened by inflation and the high cost of fuel. The North Carolina Utilities Commission acknowledged the company's financial pressures earlier this month when it granted a 21 per cent rate increase.

In recent rate cases, Duke Power has argued that its low rate of earnings had made it difficult to attract investment capital to finance its costly nuclear construction program.

The company said, however, that once its nuclear stations were operational, the cost of producing electricity would decrease sharply because of the cheaper nuclear fuel.

"I'm not necessarily taking about the Catawba station, but we have done what we could recently to raise money, including the sale of $20 million worth of nuclear fuel."

Claims Saving Of Millions In N.C. Efficiency Study

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser says 56 per cent of the recommendations of his government efficiency study have been carried out at a savings of $60.5 million.

The governor said Monday he hoped that would lessen the impact of recent economic hard times on the government.

The efficiency practices lets the state government keep essential operations going with serious curtailments avoided, he said.

Holshouser's comments came as he reported to a gathering of state and business officials who took part in the study.

The study, initiated by Holshouser 11 days after he took office, listed 676 suggested changes in government operations. Holshouser said 379 have been carried out so far.

Holshouser said the savings thus far amount to 76 per cent of the estimated savings the eficiency measures would bring. The other 127 recommendations, in the process of being carried out, will save the state $22.5 million, he said. That would mean the total would be about $83 million greater than the $60 million first predicted.

"Maybe that's a sign we used good conservative estimates, so we didn't overdo it too much," Holshouser said.

Among the efficiency moves: —A 15 per cent reduction in Highway Department equipment inventory which will save $15.1 million yearly.

—A change to multi-year license plates is expected to save about $500,000 yearly. —A new postage machine in the Division of Motor Vehicles should save $200,000.

—Building state office space in five major cities to replace rented space is expected to save $452,000 yearly. —Establishment of a Government Printing Office to give the state a central duplicating center rather than separate facilities for each department reportedly will save $315,000 annually when in full operation next July.

—Reorganization in Department of Prisons saved $1.2 million.

UTILITIES MEETING
Greenville Utilities Commission will meet tonight at 7:30. The meeting will be held in the board room of the Utilities building.

Auto Sales Up

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. said today its car sales in early October rose 16 per cent from last year, and American Motors Corp. reported a 25 per cent sales hike from the same 1974 period, when its deliveries were depressed by a nationwide strike.

Industry analysts predicted that over-all domestic car sales would post a 10 to 15 per cent gain over last year's levels — only the second time in 1975 that deliveries have outpaced those of the same 1974 period.

The four major U.S. auto producers were to report their Oct. 1-10 sales today. Analysts estimated sales at 240,000 to 250,000 in nine selling days, compared with 216,110 in the same number of selling days last year.

The daily selling rate was expected to be the highest for the first 10 days of a month in nearly two years. Ford said its sold 82,476 cars in the latest period, compared with 71,263 last year. It was Ford's strongest performance for the first 10-day period of a month since July 1973, the company said.

For the year, Ford has sold 1,470,601 cars, down 19 per cent from 1974.

AMC said it sold 7,711 cars in the period, compared with 6,155 last year. For the year-to-date, AMC has sold 253,798 cars, down 13 per cent from 1974.

HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

GRAPEFRUIT SPOONS

I ordered four sets of stainless steel grapefruit spoons from a firm in Wakeland, Fla. One of the sets arrived in about two and half weeks. I noticed that it had Greenville, S. C. on it, but had the right zip code. The other three never got here. Could you check on this? D. B.

Hotline wrote to the company, explaining the situation. They immediately sent you three more sets. Eventually, though, you say you received the first ones, rerouted from Greenville, S. C. You liked them so much, you said, that you sent the company a check for the additional sets.

SCRATCHED RECORD

I ordered an album called Solid Gold through WCTI-TV. It came quickly, but was scratched. I returned it, explaining the reason, and asking for another one. It doesn't look like they're going to send me a replacement. L. L.

You report that about two weeks after Hotline wrote to Adam VIII, Ltd. in New York, you received a replacement record that is unscratched and completely satisfactory to you.

T. M. HERE?

Is there a Transcendental Meditation instructor in Greenville? J. R.

There have been T. M. classes here in the past, but Hotline could learn of none at present. During our checking, we were told there is or has been a Students' International Meditation Society here, but no one seemed able to provide us with a name of someone from whom to get more information. If anyone can provide us with some leads, we would appreciate their calling 752-6166 any day between 8:30 and 4:30.

Plan To Revitalize Downtown Farmville Drawn

A RENDERING . . . showing a portion of improvements suggested for downtown Farmville by Griffin-Flynn Architects Ltd. of Goldsboro. As a point of reference, the building with the iron balcony is the Rouse Printery, located at 126 N. Main Street.

FARMVILLE—Griffin-Flynn Architects Ltd. architects and planners of Goldsboro, have completed a downtown revitalization study for the Town of Farmville according to the firm's vice-president, Henry M. Flynn, Jr.

Flynn made a final presentation of the study to the downtown merchants and property owners of Farmville recently. "The object of the study," said Flynn, "was to find ways to renovate the downtown structures in such a way as to recapture some of the '1900' flavor of the town."

Flynn said that the majority of the commercial structures in the town's central business district were constructed during the period 1890-1914, although many had been remodeled and modernized over the years. "The real challenge of the study," said Flynn, "lay in finding ways to recapture this flavor which would be both effective and inexpensive." Flynn went on to describe some of the methods suggested, which included use of canvas awnings, period street furniture and lamps, brick pavers for sidewalks, planting of trees and shrubs, and creation of "microminiparks in the downtown—small islands of greenery with a bench or two.

The study also recommended the creation of a town common, or central park, with a pavilion-bandstand, which would serve as a focal point for community activities.

Legal recommendations included suggested forms for an ordinance setting up a tax district to finance town improvements, a tree ordinance, and a sign ordinance.

"We're grateful to the Goldsboro planning department for their assistance with the tree ordinance and sign ordinance," said Flynn. "We modeled these two ordinances, to a certain extent, after those of Goldsboro."

Flynn added, "The people of Farmville are to be commended for their foresight and civic spirit. When this project is carried through to completion downtown Farmville will be an outstanding example of a small-town revitalization effort."

The report was accepted on behalf of the Town by T. Eli Joyner, chairman of the Downtown Farmville Improvement Committee.

Year's Best In Country Music Field Are Honored

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — John Denver says he really does thank God he's a country boy.

"I grew up listening to Hank Williams," Denver said from Perth, Australia, after being voted the country music industry's entertainer of the year and also winning its award for the best song of 1975, "Back Home Again."

A few months ago, Denver's "Thank God I'm a Country Boy" was on top of the charts and was among the songs nominated for single of the year.

Denver, touring in Australia, was the only person to win two awards at the Country Music Association's ninth annual presentation Monday night at the Grand Ole Opry House. Altogether, he had been nominated for five of the group's ten awards, including best single of the year, best album and best male vocalist.

The best single award went to Freddy Fender for "Before the Next Teardrop Falls" and the album award went to Ronnie Milsap for "A Legend in My Time."

Waylon Jennings was named the best male vocalist with the best female vocalist award going to Dolly Parton, and veteran Grand Ole Opry star Minnie Pearl was inducted as the newest member of the Country Music Hall of Fame.

"I really think of myself as a country entertainer," Denver, who lives in Aspen, Colo., said in a telephone interview following the ceremonies. "I think I'm a really good example of the evolution that going on in country music.

Denver, in his mid 30s, was the biggest selling popular artist in the United States last year. His last two albums have sold more than three million copies each.

It was in 1971 that Denver had his first million selling record with "Take Me Home Country Roads." Prior to that he was best known for writing "Leaving on a Jet Plane," a song that Peter, Paul and Mary made famous in 1969.

Denver said he was well aware of the controversy that erupted after last year's awards presentation when Australian Olivia Newton-John was named the top female vocalist. Miss Newton-John earlier had said she didn't want to be thought of as a country singer.

"That's kind of the reason I didn't expect to win any of these," Denver said after beating out Jennings, Milsap, Conway Twitty and Loretta Lynn for the top entertainer award.

"I can relate to those people and sympathize with their feelings in wanting to hold onto their roots," he said. "And yet, I don't think it's necessary to disallow the evolution that's going on."

"I don't think it's possible that country music will ever lose its identity," he said.

Asked if he would like to appear on the Grand Ole Opry, Denver replied, "I've wanted to do that all my life." He also said he plans to attend next year's CMA awards ceremony whether he is nominated or not.

Waylon Jennings almost did not show up to accept his award as best male vocalist. Considered one of county music's "renegades," Jennings had refused to perform on the show last year after its producers cut his time on stage.

"I went there tonight to be with Jessi (his wife, songstress Jessi Colter, who had been nominated for two awards) because I thought she stood a good chance of winning something," Jennings said. "I didn't expect to win anything."

"They told me to be nice," Jennings said in accepting the award. At 38, Jennings has been a part of the Nashville music scene since 1965. He had three No. 1 songs on the country charts this year with some of them also crossing over into the popular field.

Dolly Parton had waited through six previous years of being nominated for awards before finally getting her first one as best female vocalist.

Last year she was one of the entertainers who watched as Miss Newton-John took the award. "I hope she enjoyed hers as much as I do mine," said Miss Parton, who had a No. 1 song with "The Seeker" and is now on the charts with a song titled "We Used To."

Minnie Pearl broke into tears when it was announced that she had been voted into the hall of fame by the association's approximately 4,600 members.

"The main thing I could think of was that it happened in my lifetime," the comedienne said. Minnie, known for her old-style dress, her straw hat with a price tag hanging from it and her shrill "Howdee," is famous for immortalizing country folk as the lady from Grinders Switch.

She won the award over such country music legends as Vernon Dalhart, Hank Snow, Merle Travis and Kitty Wells.

Fender's award for best single marked a 20-year struggle to win country music stardom. The 38-year-old Mexican, whose real name is Balde-mar Huerta, had first come to the United States as a migrant laborer in Texas.

He had served three years in prison in Louisiana on a marijuana conviction and had worked as a mechanic in between shows for several years before getting a No. 1 single with "Before a Next Teardrop Falls" and then following it with "Wasted Days and Wasted Nights."

Milsap picked up his album of the year award after winning the best male vocalist title in 1974, only two years after the blind entertainer had entered the country music field.

Both the Statler Brothers and Conway Twitty and Loretta Lynn won the vocal group and vocal duo awards, respectively, for the fourth year in a row.

The banjo-guitar team of Buck Trent and Roy Clark won the best instrumental group award, breaking a six-year victory chain by Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass.

Veteran studio fiddler Johnny Gimble was named best instrumentalist, winning over harmonica player Charlie McCoy and guitarists Chet Atkins, Roy Clark and Jerry Reed.

Edmisten Urges Review Of N.C. Utilities Laws

RALEIGH (AP)—State Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten has called for a review of North Carolina's utilities laws.

Edmisten said Monday some changes in the laws could ease energy shortages. But he cautioned that he believed the final solution would have to come from a firm national commitment.

The attorney general told a civic club that many of the laws regarding utilities were written decades ago and that unforeseeable problems have arisen that the laws don't cover.

Edmisten said money and rate hearing time could be saved if laws awarding rate increases on the basis of complicated formulas determining fair market value of company equity were changed.

He said that law setting that system up was passed during the Depression, when fair market value was less than the original value of company capital. He said the situation is now reversed.

Edmisten also suggested the General Assembly consider defining rates and procedures of rate cases more thoroughly, to reduce the latitude given the State Utilities Commission on granting interim rate hikes.

Other methods available to North Carolinians to affect the energy situation, Edmisten said, are voluntary energy conservation efforts, sound management by the utility companies and a more efficient State Utilities Commission.

Edmisten also called for more personnel and funding for the Justice Department's Utilities Division, saying it was needed to fight utilities in rate cases.

When making that appeal to a legislative committee earlier, Edmisten had said his staff was being "outfoxed and outgunned" by utility company lawyers in rate cases.

The head of the division, Deputy Atty. Gen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., publicly took exception to that comment. Monday, Edmisten's toned down his evaluation: "We have an able and aggressive utilities section staff which does an incredible job of advocating the public interest against overwhelming odds."

"However, at present, that staff consists of only four attorneys and a part-time economist who must take on the much more numerous forces the utilities bring into each rate case," Edmisten continued.

Edmisten also said more experimentation should be conducted by utility companies to see if peak-load pricing can reduce energy consumption.

Say Embargo More Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Continuing a trade embargo against Cuba is becoming more costly for the United States and the effectiveness of the action has been dwindling, the government reports.

Opens Door, Shot Down

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—The father of six children was killed by a shotgun blast Monday night when he opened his front door to investigate noises.

He was 37-year-old James C. Cecil, a construction worker who had not worked in more than a year because he had hurt his back.

Deputies found him lying on the sidewalk in front of his home just outside the Winston-Salem city limits.

They said Mrs. Cecil told them she and her husband had gone to bed about 11 o'clock. A few minutes later they heard a noise outside. He got up and went to the door. She heard him say, "Oh, My God," and then one or two shots were fired. She said she may have heard a car drive away, but she was not sure.

Their children range in age from 2 to 8.

The Commerce Department released Monday a 67-page analysis of the 13-year embargo against Cuba. The analysis said the embargo is less effective primarily because increased sugar prices have given the Caribbean nation more money to spend.

"Unilateral continuation of the Cuba embargo becomes a bit more costly to the United States, though that economic cost is still relatively small," the report said.

The embargo has been in effect since 1962, about three years after Fidel Castro assumed power. The United States recently eased the embargo by allowing foreign affiliates of U.S. companies to do business with Cuba, although special licenses for such trade are required.

The report noted that the embargo could be lifted by presidential directive but said a major impediment to that is the estimated $1.8 billion in claims against Cuba by Americans whose interests were expropriated there when Castro took over.

"As long as these claims are outstanding, normal banking and shipping relationships cannot be restored, since Cuban assets in the United States would be subject to possible attachment," the report said.

Taken Back To Prison For Care, Then Release

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Robert Ransom, a free man except that he couldn't care for himself, leaves prison today.

The lung cancer victim given six months to live will go to a rest home in Greensboro. He will be leaving Central Prison, where he obtained refuge after health problems forced him to change from the model parolee he had been for three years to a model inmate.

Ransom, who records say is either 64 or 65, departs after a hurriedly called meeting of state corrections department and social services officials who learned Monday that the terminally ill man was in prison because he could not obtain aid on the outside.

Corrections Secretary David Jones said Ransom was to be taken this morning to Star Mount Rest Home by Charles Mann, a parole officer from Sanford who told state officials of the Ransom's plight Monday.

Ransom was imprisoned originally for manslaughter in the death of a girlfriend in 1969. He served three years of an eight-to-12 year sentence before his parole three years ago.

He then supported himself working at various laborer's jobs. Failing health last year left Ransom without money and living on $46 worth of food stamps a month in a Lee County hotel that had no indoor plumbing.

Prison was turned to only after efforts to obtain Social Security and welfare benefits were unsuccessful. Ransom's parole officer decided that the small black man with the large hands could at least obtain food, shelter and clothing if he went back to prison.

That was three weeks ago. Doctors discovered last week that the pneumonia Ransom was supposed to have had was lung cancer; it is believed that Ransom's doctors expect him to live six months more.

Ransom is to begin receiving Social Security benefits next month, thanks to the work of Holder and a lawyer who donated her services, Jean Wilson of Durham. Welfare officials also say they will help.

Earlier efforts by Holder to get Ransom in every welfare program he could think of didn't work. It was only when his cancer was discovered did he qualify.

"They ran into a stone wall. Everywhere we turned, there was a regulation or rule against him," Jack Scism, chairman of the North Carolina Parole Commission said.

Ransom can't see or hear well now. His black skin has shriveled over the years and doctors say past diseases may have caused brain damage.

He signed an "X" in agreement to being photographed in the prison hospital Monday, but he refused an interview. What he calls "that cold in here" hurts his chest too much to talk comfortably.

Scism said efforts to contact Ransom's only known living relative, a brother in Miami, Fla., were unsuccessful.

"It's a sad thing to bring him back to prison to help him. But it's the best treatment he's had in a year," Scism said. "It's a shame when someone does so well and obeys the law, and prison is the only place that can help him."

Jones agrees. Though praising efforts of those involved, he said he will meet with other officials today to try to set policies to keep this sort of thing from happening again.

"We did what's best for the man. My conscience is clear," Scism said.

Regulation Can Be Fatal

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Government regulations sometimes kill instead of cure says the president of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, John M. Hamrick.

"The fatal cure is one in which damage done by the regulation is more harmful than the condition which brought about the regulation in the first place," he told the Charlotte Textile Club Monday.

Hamrick, president of Hamrick Mills of Gaffney, S.C., singled out proposed regulations to reduce noise levels in textile plants and to preserve water quality.

"The textile industry doesn't oppose either of these goals in principle; where we part company is on the means, the time table and the costs," he said.

There is no machinery available to reduce plant noise to proposed levels, and even if there were, the cost would come to $1 billion for the industry, Hamrick said.

The textile industry can live with the Environmental Protection Agency's water guidelines which are to be in force by 1977 and which would cost $252.6 million for new equipment in 1975-76, he said.

But the 1983 water plan would cost $1.74 billion, he added.

Corrections Secretary David Jones said Ransom was to be taken this morning to Star Mount Rest Home by Charles Mann, a parole officer from Sanford who told state officials of the Ransom's plight Monday.

Ransom was imprisoned originally for manslaughter in the death of a girlfriend in 1969. He served three years of an eight-to-12 year sentence before his parole three years ago.

Research Shows Babies Can See Soon After Birth

By DAVID KINNEY
UNC-G News Bureau
GREENSBORO—It's long been thought that newborn babies, like kittens who haven't opened their eyes yet, can't see. Not so, according to data compiled by a psychologist at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. In fact, babies can see soon after birth—at least their brains register visual stimuli.

young infants had better acuity than the 45-day-old infants, say about 20-100," Harter noted.

But why should a baby's sight start off relatively good, get worse, then gradually improve to the point where he has normal vision?

The answer, Harter believes, lies in the fact there are two very different parts of the brain which may contribute to the infants' brain responses and how well they can see.

One is the cerebral cortex, which is the highest level of the brain and believed to be the seat of voluntary behavior and consciousness. Beneath this are the subcortical structures, which control reflexes and other involuntary actions.

During the early part of infancy, the baby's vision possibly is controlled at the subcortical level. The cerebral cortex is not working yet, and most of what infants do is done reflexively. "The brain responses evoked by the patterned light flashes indicate that there is 'vision' at birth, but it is of a reflexive nature," Harter said. "Newborn infants are not able to voluntarily respond to what they 'see'."

Seeing on a conscious level most likely doesn't occur until the cerebral cortex becomes more active at about 45 days of age. But even when this happens, it is less developed than the subcortical structures, and this may account for the apparent decline in vision from birth to 45 days of age.

The psychologist noted that vision is unique among the senses because it is the only one that comes into play after babies are born. They can touch, taste, hear and even smell while still in the womb. But in the womb there is only darkness.

"When the baby is born and opens his eyes, it must be an incredible experience," Harter stated.

So vision is one sense that can be traced in terms of the effects of experience almost from the beginning. Although an infant can't tell scientists what he is seeing, equipment like that used by Harter and his colleagues lets them have a peek at the process.

"If our hypothesis is correct, the next question is what if a baby shows late development of the cortex response? This could indicate other neurological problems. Furthermore, if a baby can't see and interpret pattern correctly, this would lead to a distorted impression of the visual world and result in future problems," Harter explained.

By testing brain responses to visual stimuli, some children could have their visual disorders detected and early corrective steps could be taken to avoid permanent blindness. That in itself could make the work worthwhile.

"The general on-going project here is to relate what people see to the electrical activity of their brain," Harter explained.

A native of Honolulu, Hawaii, Harter earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from San Diego State College and his Ph.D. from the University of Arizona.

He came to UNC-G from the University of Miami in 1968. A physiological psychologist, Harter has worked on related vision projects, such as how to test eyesight by brain impulses so that a person could be fitted for eye glasses without having to utter a word.

He has been invited to report on his on-going research at the International Workshop on Contrast Vision, sponsored by the Netherlands Royal Academy of Sciences' Committee for Biochemistry and Biophysics in Amsterdam.

Redwood Fence Solved Problem

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: SEEN IT ALL complained about a 68-year-old neighbor lady who bent over to plant pansies in a short dress and exposed her uncovered behind.

Another reader suggested SEEN IT take a picture of the pansy planter in living color, enlarged it and send it to her so she could see herself as others see her.

Let me tell you how WE cured a similar problem. Several years ago, we moved into a really nice section of town. Imagine my surprise when my two boys (ages 10 and 12) came running into the house to tell me there were naked people next door!

I couldn't believe it, so I went outside to see for myself. It was true. There were three children running around completely naked. Their mothers were sitting at a nearby picnic table, naked from the waist up and nursing their babies out in the open yard.

I was speechless! I gave my boys firm instructions to play in their own front yard until the situation improved. My husband and I discussed it, immediately bought a six-foot-high redwood fence and put it up.

When I ran into this neighbor on the street, I told her WHY we had put up the fence, and she said, "The human body is beautiful and should be on display like Greek statues."

After I gave her a piece of my mind, she added, "I notice that you hang your wash outside, which makes the whole neighborhood look like Dogpatch!"

How's that for nerve? Anyway, a fence is the answer to improve the view—not a picture.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and my boyfriend is 18. We've been going steady for two years and hope to marry some day.

Here's the problem: I used to take birth control pills, but my boyfriend made me stop because he said he heard they could cause blood clots, make my hair fall out and cause lots of other terrible side-effects.

We've continued to have sex relations, but nothing has happened. He thinks maybe I am sterile from the Pill. Is that possible?

We want children some day, and now I am worried that there is something wrong with me and that if I ever do have a child, it will be deformed.

I am terribly worried about myself, Abby. Please help me. I have no mother to ask, and I don't know any doctors.

DEAR HUNGRY: When the time for "making love" depends upon when your wife has her hair appointment, it's time to make an appointment with a marriage counselor!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Workman Is Popular For School
NEW YORK (UPI) — Half a million high school girls in the United States do more mass fashion buying during August and September than at any other time of the school year, says Art Gross, marketing director for a variety store chain.

Gross added that nearly two million college-bound female freshmen do more clothes buying between high school graduation and college entrance than at any other time during their college days.

Both groups' shopping preferences differ from those of earlier generations, he said. They forego formal wardrobes in school colors and other signs of uniformity for prewashed jeans and a variety of topplings.

Gross said work clothes currently are the major category for purchases, particularly denim and other variations on the jeans theme. He said young girls are continuing to shop mens' and boys' departments for coveralls, lumberjack-type shirts and jackets and masculine hiking boots.

Both male and female students also are shopping home sewing and notions departments for embroidery, studs, sequins, patches and other trims to decorate workshirts, jeans, t-shirts, old army fatigue jackets and painters' overalls.

Carlotto Gonzales, a village carpenter, will frame the completed panels with yucca wood.

Most of the women engaged in the project are descendants of the early Spanish settlers who founded this village in 1808 and who built the handsome church in the 1830s.

Villanueva, known originally as Puertocito and later as La Cuesta, began life as a fortified village where settlers gathered to protect themselves from Indian war parties.

There are about 50 families in the village today, living a quiet and rather isolated existence among rich remnants and reminders of the past.

Fall Hats Are Small, Foldable

YOUR FACE IS IN THE FASHION PICTURE—Hat news for fall is the "small-head look." Hats are small, faces are framed and all three of these hats can be folded small for putting in a suitcase or drawer. At left, youthful swagger abounds in a modified French beret of felt. Center, a crocheted Juliet cap is overlaid with silver sequins for glamor evening wear. At right, the new larger, side-tilt beret is made of knit yarn. Each of the models wears eyelash color of her hat, another fashion idea shown for fall. (The felt and knit berets are by Betmar; the Juliet cap by Veumont.)

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

In cleaning out one of the boys' closets the other day I was knocked senseless by a coconut with an Indian face painted on it.

This was followed by an avalanche which included an alligator dressed up like a grand parade marshal, a human skull with a raven perched on top that said, "Have a Good Day," a snow and water paperweight showing the New York skyline in which the water had evaporated, a beer stein that splayed "White Christmas" when you lifted the lid, and a funky light that flickered on and off and said, "Lite Up Las Vegas."

As I sifted through the rest — backscratchers, totem poles, key rings and a blowfish (that brought me into my first contact with acupuncture) — I tried to imagine how many man hours went into acquiring, transporting, and maintaining all of these souvenirs. Then I saw it: the Robin Hood hat with a feather from the Ionia State Fair.

It was 10 years ago. The family was en route to a camping trip when we were attracted by the Ionia State Fair. As we started to leave the grounds, my son said, "Could I buy this hat where they sew your name on it?"

I shrugged, "Why not?" My husband said, "you don't need it."

I said it was only $1.39. My husband said it was logic like mine that drove the European nations into bankruptcy and besides the kid would forget about the dumb hat in 10 minutes.

The kid cried all night long keeping everyone awake. I awoke the next morning with enough wrinkles to plant crops. The kids were surly and my husband had a flat tire. (I told him he'd be punished for his cheapness.)

Finally, he gave in and said, "okay, we'll go back and get the hat."

The first officer cited us for an illegal left turn into the Fairgrounds. The next officer at the gate said the fair wasn't open until noon and suggested we turn around and go out the same way we had come in. In turning the trailer, my husband scraped a tree that punctured our water tank in the trailer and eventually cost $53 to weld.

We forced to go into a nearby trailer camp, pay the fees, wait until 11, pay admittance for the family to the grounds, have lunch and get the hat. The other kids complained that since he got the hat, they should get the cane with the bird on the end that chirped when you waved it around the car.

The $1.39 hat cost a total of $112.00.

They misspelled his name.

Manufacturers of children's clothes obviously think you're never too young to copy grown-ups' styles. The layered look will be seen this fall on daughter as well as mother. One outfit combines a polyester cotton knit top with a pullover and bib-front coverall with white eyelet lace trim.

Easiest, Most Logical Answer

The City Council is looking seriously now at doing something about the problems in the West Meadowbrook area.

A public hearing was held on the matter last week.

City planner John Schofield reported that a study of the 33.4 acre area between N. Greene and Memorial Drive was made. There are 52 structures in the area but only four meet the minimum code standards. Of those only 17 could be rehabilitated and the others would be recommended for demolition.

The city could purchase the property which lies within the flood plain and relocate the families elsewhere. Another alternative would be to build a dike around the area and then rehabilitate the housing units where possible, and acquire and remove the units which could not be rehabilitated.

The study saw favorable aspects to simply acquiring all of the flood plain property.

"First, the city would negate future personal and property damages resulting from floods. Also, since many of the people currently living in the flood plain live in deteriorating or delapidated structures, the city would be helping to upgrade these residents' living environment by relocating them in structures which meet minimum codes standards," the study says.

The flood plain area could be used for a neighborhood park or left as a natural area, the study indicated.

While we can understand why the people who have lived in this area would not want to leave it, it appears very doubtful to us that a dike or dam would be feasible.

The dike would be expensive to build and also expensive to maintain in future years. A flood such as we occasionally have on the Tar would erode the dike quite rapidly and a record flood might bring on a disaster for the people living behind the dike.

Since so few houses can be brought up to standard in the area there would still be a considerable relocation problem.

It seems to us that acquiring the property might be the best approach for the city. Most of the land is obviously flood plain for the Tar River, and the river will claim what belongs to it.

White Collar Crime

By MIKE MOORE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi says the documentation of white-collar crime has undergone a "disturbing increase" in the past year but that the Justice Department doesn't need a special unit to prosecute corporate crimes.

Levi announced his decision against forming a permanent division within the department in a letter to four members of Congress and consumer advocate Ralph Nader. The letter was released Monday.

"It may be debated, of course, whether the increase in documented white-collar crime reflects a deterioration in standards of corporate conduct or an increase in the reporting of violations or more strenuous efforts to ferret out and prosecute violations," Levi wrote to Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., a cosigner of the original request.

Levi went on to say the department's existing criminal, tax and antitrust divisions are adequate to cope with white-collar crime. He said a special advisory committee within the department "currently is reviewing existing programs and efforts in this complex field and is making recommendations for some procedural changes."

The attorney general said the committee, created earlier this year, includes 11 top department officials, including the director of the FBI and the U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York.

To demonstrate what he said was the Justice Department's concern about white-collar crime, Levi pointed to recent convictions of a corporation and its two top officers on tax fraud charges, and he wrote that "at least 11 other major corporations are currently under investigation for similar offenses."

Levi also said "in excess of 50 investigations in the area of illegal political contributions" are currently pending at Justice. Levi did not name any of the corporations or officers.

Nader later issued a statement saying Levi's "response does not reflect a sense of urgency over our corporate crime wave."

"A crescendo of illegal business disclosures since the beginning of the year should lead Mr. Levi to let us know his own views on this epidemic..."

In their Aug. 22 letter to Levi, Nader and the lawmakers wrote, "An unprecedented wave of corporate illegality has been sweeping the business

40 Years Ago Today

October 14, 1935

Nearly a score of alleged liquor violators were arrested over the weekend by Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst and his deputies and held under $300 bond for trial in county court tomorrow.

The arrests were made after the Pitt County sheriff had accumulated evidence over a period of weeks.

Charges ranged from selling bootleg whiskey to operating a public nuisance.

H.R. 4222 will cost. The best estimate is $2.7 billion in the current fiscal year, roughly $1.2 billion above what the White House had recommended for such programs. Those who recall the startling growth of the food stamp program will recognize a mushroom spore.

The question ought to have been asked years ago, and it should have been asked last week: How in the name of the Founding Fathers did the Federal government get into the breakfast business? Does the Constitution impose no limits upon the legislative powers of Congress? Has the general welfare clause become a boundless reservoir in which the Tenth Amendment drowns?

That is what this liberal Congress seems to be saying. The vote to override was 397-18 in the House, 79-13 in the Senate. Dozens of members, usually thought to be conservative, voted to override.

Politically speaking, they felt they could not do otherwise. The same sentiments that propelled H.R. 4222 to enactment will provide fuel for S. 626, the new child development act sponsored chiefly by Minnesota's Senator Walter Mondale. (A companion bill, H.R. 2966, sponsored chiefly by John Brademas of Indiana, is pending in the House.)

Hearings on this dangerous measure were completed in July. The bill has been napping quietly in subcommittee ever since.

Senator Mondale doubtless will wake it up. If "child development" sounds familiar, it is familiar. Four years ago Congress adopted such a program as Title V of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1971. On December 10, President Nixon imposed a resounding veto.

It is useful to recall what Nixon said about the 1971 bill. Its laudable intent, he said, "is overshadowed by fiscal irresponsibility, administrative unworkability, and family-weakening implications." Nixon termed the bill "a long leap into the dark for the United States Government and the American people." To adopt the bill, he said, "would commit the vast moral authority of the national government to the side of communal approaches

SBI To Get Major Crimes

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten intends to re-direct the State Bureau of Investigation into an agency concerned with major crimes; away from penny-ante stuff.

"I have met with all the supervisors and told them I want us to start concentrating on serious crime—rapes, murder, robberies—as opposed to penny-ante gambling or some kid out there in an isolated marijuana smoking incident. "So long as we have unsolved rapes, murders, robberies... people out there stealing us blind at the rate of $50 million a year, I can not justify spending so much time out there on small cases," Edmisten said.

The transition time between the departure of SBI Chief Charles Dunn and appointment of a new chief, Edmisten said, is a good time to talk about the philosophy and direction of the SBI. The agency is, after all, an arm of the Justice Department which he heads, and comes under his direct supervision, Edmisten noted.

New Director

The SBI "has the potential for doing more to cut down on serious crime, and I will pick the person to head the agency who adheres to this philosophy," he said. "I cannot justify the SBI spending its time on minor cases when people are having their lives, their liberty, and their property taken away. The people of North Carolina are not getting their moneys worth if we are out her raiding Moose lodges and arresting some kid smoking marijuana. I want to get the hard cases off the streets."

Already, Edmisten has ordered daily reports on all crime activities across the state, and considers those rundowns priority reading each morning. He has also called for a complete survey of all unsolved murders in the state with an eye to reopening the investigations and assigning specialized teams to pursue the cases.

Cautioning that the SBI is not a must not become the state police force, Edmisten said effective use depends on local cooperation. Local law officers remain the prime investigators, but he is urging police chiefs, sheriffs, and district attorneys to call their SBI agents at once to make full use of the seven mobile crime labs and the expertise of SBI people in roping off a crime scene and properly gathering evidence.

Give Priority

The only way to cut crime is to give top priority to revamping the criminal justice system, Edmisten said: better equipped law enforcement officers, better prepared courts cases, speedy trials which means more judges and prosecutors, and sentences which deter criminals.

His priorities, Edmisten explained in a private interview in his office, will go toward keeping the SBI force of some 160 agents "in the field assisting local law officers. Some locals fail to use the resources of the SBI. We are not there to grab headlines, but to assist... not to usurp authority, but to provide the expertise often lacking in some areas."

Concentration of the SBI will be on the serious crimes: murder, rape, robberies, thefts, hard-drug trafficking, and professional gambling, Edmisten said.

"I would love to see the SBI have enough manpower to set up special squads in each district (there are seven), which would take a case and work it till it is solved. "We need specialized murder squads, arson squads. We know this approach works because the drug squads in the field are effective—we are averaging 10 to 15 hard drug busts every day in the state."

But Edmisten also recognized that law enforcement is only half the job in fighting crime. The rest is up to the courts. "I'm gonna work my people harder... and some prosecutors and judges must work harder, too. We can make some strides if the judicial does its job."

Kissinger's Strong Hand

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON

President Ford's refusal to name a Pentagon representative on the new government board created by Congress to monitor trade with Communist nations reflects Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's continuing power to avoid policy moves that might offend the Kremlin.

When congressional demands that Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger be named to the East-West Trade Board were raised at a board meeting, objections were quickly voiced by Kissinger's man in attendance: Deputy Secretary of State Robert Ingersoll. Inserting the Pentagon into non-military matters, Ingersoll asserted, would be inappropriate and could be resented by Soviet leaders at a time of U.S.-Soviet negotiations on many delicate matters.

Kissinger has successfully kept Schlesinger off the board so far, pointing to two power realities: first, though his prestige in Congress has fallen drastically and his national popularity is slipping, Kissinger keeps the upper hand over Schlesinger in their continuous struggle over global strategy; second, Kissinger still dictates international economic policy despite challenges from Treasury Secretary William Simon.

But Kissinger may have to back down on East-West trade thanks to an outside force: Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, the lambaynt chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Such a retreat on an obscure issue would be seen by Kissinger's rivals as a first step in stripping international economics from his empire.

The East-West Trade Board was created by Congress as an amendment to the 1974 trade act pushed by Long, who feared dangerous Communist gains (especially in transferring technology) resulting from U.S. businessmen being outfoxed by Soviet bureaucrats. A sharp eye for the national interest in these deals would be kept by a board, as outlined by Long, consisting of several cabinet members — definitely including the Secretary of Defense.

On April 8, Mr. Ford named a board including nearly all of Long's nominations — but excluding the Secretary of Defense. On June 5, Long wrote Secretary Simon, the board's chairman, protesting Schlesinger's omission as a violation of congressional intent. In monitoring "transfer of technology vital to the national interest," wrote Long, "... it is extremely important that the Department of Defense advise the East-West Trade Board on the national security aspects of transactions."

Long got no argument from Simon, who would take a much harder international economic policy line than Kissinger. On July 2, Simon wrote Long supporting Schlesinger's membership. But when Simon brought it up at a board meeting, he ran into Ingersoll's objection — strongly seconded by Secretary of Commerce Rogers Morton, also a board member.

That was enough to blackball Schlesinger. Mr. Ford's closest aides cannot remember ever seeing anything about the East-West Trade Board, and it is extremely doubtful the President himself knew about the controversy. On such matters, Dr. Kissinger's writ goes unchallenged within the White House.

But not necessarily on Capitol Hill. Clearly nettled, Sen. Long on Sept. 18 wrote Simon, again insisting Schlesinger be named to the board. "I understand that you agree with this view," said Long, "but that State and Commerce are obdurate in their desire to exclude the Defense Department from participating on the board."

Considering Long's key committee chairmanship and frequent support of administration positions, his wishes may not be defied a third time. For its part, the Pentagon is eager to move deeper into East-West trade questions.

But more than trade is at stake. Simon is unhappy about the State Department keeping him away from U.S.-Soviet grain talks and would like to restore the Treasury to its pre-Kissinger eminence in international economic policymaking. Lining up against Kissinger on the trade board is, therefore, a symbolic shot across the State Department's bow.

Moreover, excluding Schlesinger from the trade board fits a larger pattern. Kissinger wants the Pentagon confined to strictly military pursuits and has

The Sleeping Partner

The Congress blundered once more last week, when both chambers voted to override the President's veto of the School Lunch and Child Nutrition Act. The veto should have been sustained. Both financially and philosophically, one more bottomless pit has just been dug.

The vetoed bill (H.R. 4222) was bad enough in itself. The measure is still more ominous for what its enactment portends. Last week's decisive vote surely will encourage sponsors of the languishing "Child and Family Services Act" to seek action on their bill. In the name of little children, we are about to be led over one more watershed toward the total welfare state.

Under H.R. 4222, which now becomes law, the old familiar school lunch program will become bloated beyond recognition. The act deals with non-school food programs, with feeding programs for mothers, and with summer feeding programs. The act will make the school breakfast program permanent. Under this measure, children from families of four with incomes up to $9,770 will be eligible for subsidized meals.

Other Editors Say Russian Dissidents

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

There is a touch of irony in the awarding of the 1975 Nobel peace prize to Russian physicist Andrei Sakharov last Thursday. Sakharov helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb.

But the coveted prize was not awarded to the scientist for making a bomb; it was presented because of his unbending efforts in unmasking Communist tyranny in his own country.

Like two Russians before him, Boris Pasternak who won a Nobel prize in 1958 and Alexander Solzhenitsyn who won it in 1970, Sakharov has been a source of continuous embarrassment to the Soviet regime.

These three men are among a handful in Russia who have dared to speak out against the manner in which the Communists trample human and civil rights. They have exhibited a brand of courage rarely seen in these perilous times.

Sakharov's fight for civil rights in the Soviet Union and opposition to tight Communist party control cost him the rewards and position as a leader in the Soviet scientific community.

In recent years he has repeatedly spoken out in favor of other Soviet dissidents and appealed for amnesty for political prisoners. In a recent book he also criticized Western nations for failing to prevent Communist takeovers in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Although he came late to the human rights movement, Sakharov found himself in an often lonely and dangerous battle for human freedom. In a series of books, papers, letters and statements he sought basic changes in Soviet society, freedom of thought, and an end to censorship.

Ironically, Sakharov in a 1968 book entitled "Progress, Coexistence and Intellectual Freedom," called for detente and cooperation between the Soviet Union and the United States. But that was long before Communist party boss Leonid Brezhnev, the present leader, made coexistence a cornerstone of the Soviet's "peace program."

For Sakharov, reconciliation between Russia and the U.S. also required "democratization of Soviet society." That position brought him into increasing conflict with Soviet leaders. While Sakharov, Solzhenitsyn and other courageous Russian dissidents have been praised and lionized in the United States and other Western countries, it is ironic that Americans who have preached for years against the same dangers of Communism have invariably been branded as "Kooks."

Yet, these Americans welcome the outspoken criticism of the Russians who have dared speak out against Communism and its trannies. It matters not who gets out the message; what matters is that people are now listening.

Strength For Today

CHRISTIANITY AND RENEWAL
The word "new" occupies a very important place in the Christian religion.

When Jesus began to preach, people spoke of his teaching as a new doctrine. That portion of the Bible which tells about him is called the New Testament. In one of his parables he said that new wine must be put into new bottles. When he gave his disciples the commandment that they love one another, he called it a new commandment.

In the Gentile world the gospel of Christ was called a new teaching. St. Paul declares that if any man is in Christ, he is a new creature. In the last chapter of the Book of Revelation, John sees Christ sitting on a throne saying, "Behold, I make all things new."

In other words, Christianity comes with a promise of renewal. Christian faith makes people over. The promise of our Lord is nothing less than this: that if men and women will accept him in faith, their lives will not merely be improved, but transformed and made new.

The Professionals Saw Losses

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — You might believe that the professional managers of big money pools would, on average, be able to obtain a superior return for their investment dollar, but a recent compilation doesn't show it.

Instead, it demonstrates that over an extended period, 10 years, for example, the combined average return on stock investments by banks, insurers and mutual funds was inferior to the gains in stock market averages.

The survey, by Wertheim & Co., N.Y. Stock Exchange broker and investment performance analyst, is conducted regularly among 92 institutions that manage more than $300 billion in trust assets, mainly pension funds.

In the 10 years to Aug. 31, its "equity yardstick," which combines the performance of money managers, averaged an annual gain of 2.6 per cent. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 3.3 per cent.

has not been so in the past decade.

The biggest return of all, an average annual growth of 5.8 per cent, was in U.S. Treasury bills, which entails almost no risk at all. To some extent a statistical imperative forecloses the possibility of any index of hundreds of billions of dollars substantially outperforming the stock market, simply because it represents so much of the market.

But by the same reasoning, it may be argued, there is little or no justification either for it to consistently underperform, especially since performance is what customers are paying for, and sometimes dearly. It is significant that the inability of the three components of the equity index — insurance companies, mutual funds, banks — to achieve even average results is demonstrated over both short and long terms, and when the market is strong or weak.

Over the past year — to August 31 — for example, the index of bank equities rose 23.6 per cent, of insurance funds 22 per cent and of mutual funds 27.8 per cent. But the Dow Jones industrial average rose 29.8 per cent.

Over the past three years all indices show losses. For insurers, bankers and mutual funds combined the decline amounts to 8 per cent. But in the same time the Dow Jones average declined only 0.3 per cent.

NSA Intercepted On Big Scale

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Security Agency intercepted more than 1,000 telephone and telegraph communications involving antiwar activists and other dissidents and reported on them to the CIA and the FBI, according to informed sources.

The NSA intercepts began in 1969 and continued for "a two- or three-year period," detailing the foreign travels and organizing efforts of various American radicals whose names had been provided to NSA by CIA, the sources said.

Summaries of the intercepted communications were transmitted via courier from NSA headquarters at Ft. Meade, Md., to CIA offices in Langley, to child-rearing."

The same objections apply to the sleeping Senate bill. True, a token effort has been made to paper over the most sinister implications of the 1971 proposal. The revised bill is replete with fulsome gestures toward parent participation. Indeed, the sponsors would be pleased to see parents become "partners" with government in the raising of their children. A more presumptuous "partnership" could not be devised.

No one should be fooled by a paint job. The sleeping Mondale-Brademas bill is the same bold, far-reaching scheme advanced in 1971 for the essential Sovietization of the American family. For all its deceptive trimmings, this bill proposes to make the government the prime parent of millions of children. In the formative years of early childhood, under this massive program, the role of natural parents would become merely advisory. A legion of teachers, psychologists, and behavior specialists would shape the infant clay.

Compared to Mondale-Brademas, the just-enacted school lunch bill is chickenfeed. If "child development" becomes law, the cost swiftly will escalate into multiple billions. Longfellow once remarked on nature's plan: The child should grow into the man. Keep an eye on the Mondale-Brademas baby: It will one day become a monster.

Va., where they became part of the files of Operation CHAOS, which monitored the activities of domestic dissidents, sources said.

Similar summaries went to other government agencies, including the FBI and Defense Intelligence Agency, a separate source said.

The same source confirmed that Dr. Benjamin Spock, actress Jane Fonda, Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver and Chicago Seven defendants Abbie Hoffman and David Dellinger were targets of NSA intercepts. However, the source would not say whether those names had been supplied to the NSA by the CIA or some other agency.

Spock, author of a best-selling book on child care and a third-party presidential candidate in 1972, said later, "If our government would put its efforts and our tax money into creating a more just society rather than snooping on citizens who differ with them, America would be impregnable."

A source who had seen the NSA summaries provided to the CIA said they were derived from intercepts of cable and telephone traffic between the U.S. and foreign countries or between two points overseas.

None of the sources could give a reliable estimate of the number of persons whose communications were intercepted. However, comments of several sources indicated the CIA gave at least 40 names to the NSA.

In another development, a former Pentagon investigator said Monday he was told by the White House to develop evidence that syndicated columnist Jack Anderson had a homosexual relationship with a suspected news source, Navy Yeoman Charles Radford.

W. Donald Stewart, who was in charge of the investigation into news leaks, said the demand was made on Dec. 23, 1971, by David Young, then the Nixon administration official in charge of the White House "plumbers" unit.

Stewart stressed that Young did not suggest to him that he fabricate a homosexual relationship between Anderson and Radford.

"They didn't want me to go trump up anything," Stewart said. "They wanted me to go interview (Radford) and ask him, 'Do you have any homosexual relationship with Jack Anderson?'"

Stewart said he refused Young's demand, telling him it "was not germane to the investigation." According to Stewart, Young responded, "Well, the President wants this done, the President wants this done."

"I told him no, I wouldn't do it," Stewart said. "If he wanted it done get somebody else."

kept it out of strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) and military aid negotiations with Israel and Egypt. Backing down on trade board membership would be a small retreat from overall policy.

Even if such a retreat is ultimately forced, however, Kissinger performed remarkably in this backstage Washington scuffle. For nearly a year, while the President apparently stayed aloof, Kissinger has ignored a congressional mandate, defied a senior Senator, and staved off the Defense and Treasury Secretaries to make sure his own power and his own concept of detente were not diluted even in a tangential bureaucratic dispute.

Fellowship Recipients Named By Math Dept.

The Mathematics Department of East Carolina University has announced the Graduate Teaching Fellowship Recipients for the 1975-76 academic year.

Three of Greenville's residents are among those honored. Mrs. Pell Fulp of 103 Placid Way received two teaching fellowships. Mrs. Fulp did her undergraduate studies at Converse College, Spartanburg, S.C., and is pursuing studies towards an MA in Math. She is married to Gordon D. Fulp.

Marcia K. James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred James, 1500 E. 14th St., is teaching on a fellowship award. Completing her undergraduate studies at ECU, she too is working towards an MA in Math.

Debbie Stocks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Stocks, received three teaching fellowship awards this quarter. She graduated summa cum laude from ECU and will complete her MA in Math during the upcoming year.

Charlotte M. Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Melton of Bethel, is among the recipients who graduated from ECU. She is married to Dan Pierce and they have a two-year old son. She is in her second year of graduate study towards an MA in Math.

Also of Pitt County is Mrs. Grace Peterson Foster of Ayden. She is married to Dwight B. Foster and they have two children. Mrs. Foster graduated for three years at Ayden-Grifton High School. She has also taught mathematics courses at Pitt Technical Institute. She is working towards an MAEd.

Other ECU Junior Instructors include Deborah Dalton Bethesda, Matthew S. Crovitz, Pamela Gray, Larry Truman Greene, Ray Lawrence Harkey, Jr., Nelson A. Jennings, Carol M. Karstead, Mary Goins Klutz, Barbara Jean White and Randy Earl Wiggins.

New Officers For Pitt Heart Ass'n Are Named

William S. Corbitt Jr., of Smith Electric Co., has been named president of the Pitt County Heart Association announced Dr. Thomas B. Nolan, M. D. of Greensboro, president of the North Carolina Heart Association.

As president, Corbitt will be the official spokesman for the Pitt County Association and will offer leadership to the group's Board of Directors, the chairman and other volunteer workers.

In announcing the appointment of Corbitt, Dr. Nolan said, "It is anticipated that under the leadership of Corbitt and the Board of Directors, the Pitt County Heart Association will continue its efforts on behalf of the people of Pitt County to reduce premature death and disability from cardiovascular diseases."

Officers for the Pitt Association for 1975-76 were named at the recent meeting of the Board of Directors. The officers chosen in addition to Corbitt include: Fund Raising Chairman—Dr. Dan Warren; Secretary—Mrs. Sara Jenkins; Treasurer—Miles Frost;

Assistant Treasurer and Member Gifts Chairman—Mrs. Nancy Warren; and Public Information Chairman—Mrs. K. R. Bradbury.

The Directors will be: Dr. Robert Thurber; Dean Evelyn Perry; Buff Chalk; Robert Bordreau; Dr. Frank Saunders; Cleve Whatley; Jack Tyson; Mrs. Clyde Owens; W. K. Whichard; Curtis Hendrix; Mrs. S. E. West; Mrs. Barney Barrett; Mrs. Mildred Thompson; Dr. Eric Farrington; Mrs. Wandra Petree; Bill Mitchum; Dr. Al Woodworth; Mrs. Janice Buck; Mrs. Ola Jean Stroud; Mrs. Louise McCotter; Mrs. Nancy Smith; Wilson McDowell; and W. D. Casey.

At the same meeting, the organization reviewed the results of the 1975 Heart Fund campaign for Pitt County.

Area residents are reminded that memorial gifts may be sent at any time to Mrs. Nancy Warren at North Carolina National Bank, Greenville.

Inducted Into Honor Society

Miss Joan Spain and Miss Linda Sasser of Greenville, were inducted into the National Honor Society at the Bethel Christian Academy, Kinston, recently.

They were chosen on basis of scholarship, leadership, character and service, and maintaining a "B" average. Miss Spain is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Spain, and Miss Sasser is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Sasser.

Sees Continuing Steel Demand

PITTSBURGH (AP) — George A. Stinson, chairman of National Steel Corp., has been named chairman of the International Iron and Steel Institute.

Stinson, 60, who is only the second American to head the institute since it was founded in the early 1960s, replaces Jacques Ferrer of the French Steel Federation.

In his inaugural address Monday to the institute's annual conference in Mexico City, Stinson told 300 steel industry representatives from 31 countries that worldwide demand for steel is growing at a rate which makes expansion mandatory.

"Even when certain important markets were below normal, we were hard pressed to meet world demand for steel," he said.

Cabbies Asking Govm't Help

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Argentina's taxi drivers, caught in the squeeze between soaring fuel costs and dwindling clientele due to the economic crisis, are looking to the government for help.

A delegation of drivers asked the economy minister to authorize loans for the purchase of new cabs at low prices to help them stay in business.

Reports On Research Work

Susanna Thompson of Asheville, 1975 graduate of the East Carolina University Department of Physical Therapy, reported results of her research at the recent semi-annual meeting of the N.C. Physical Therapy Association in Gastonia.

Her report, "A Comparison of a Laboratory and Clinical Model for Assessment of Hamstring Muscle Tension" was derived from a study she conducted as a senior student at ECU. She appeared on the program during an educational session.

Patty Hearst Proves Costly Prisoner

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer
REDWOOD CITY, Calif.
(AP) — Patricia Hearst is now allowed to eat meals with other prisoners at the San Mateo County jail, but beefed-up security because of her presence in the jail is costing up to $200 a day, says the sheriff.

maximum security institution," McDonald said. "We've got six murder trials going on here now, in addition to Patty Hearst."

Parents Deny Giving Hospital Permission To Let Youth Die

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The parents of a youth who died after his life-support system was shut off say they did not give doctors permission to unhook a respirator that kept their son alive for 18 days after his brain was destroyed through medical error.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Uribes said they did not know how their 19-year-old son, Sammy, died until they read in the newspapers that the hospital had disconnected the respirator that had kept him breathing.

Sammy's brain died during surgery when an anesthetist placed an oxygen tube in his esophagus instead of his trachea, cutting off the oxygen supply to his brain for about five minutes.

parents say they did not ask doctors to let their son die.

Sammy was taken to the hospital on Aug. 10 for treatment of a stab wound in the abdomen. It was when surgeons were trying to repair his punctured stomach that the mistake was made by the anesthetist.

Sheriff John R. McDonald Jr. said in an interview Monday that the decision to increase security was made in part because Patricia Tobin, an old friend of Miss Hearst's, smuggled a tape recorder into the jail during one of her visits.

Except for meals, Miss Hearst's routine has changed little in her 3½ weeks in jail. Wakeup at 6 a.m., breakfast at 6:30, followed later in the morning by an hour or so of "exercise" when she is allowed out of her eight-by-ten foot cell to shower and perhaps mingle with other maximum security prisoners in the corridor.

"I don't know what she did with the tape recorder. She got in and out with it. We didn't find out about it until afterwards," McDonald said. Visitors are prohibited from taking such devices into the jail.

Another exercise session is held in the afternoon. Some days are broken up by visits from her lawyers or from a member of the psychiatric panel appointed by U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to examine her.

New Law Adds To Paperwork

RALEIGH (AP)—A new law is resulting in tremendous amounts of paperwork, says State House Speaker James Green, D-Bladen.

not certain," Green said in a statement released Monday.

He said he had received a number of complaints from law enforcement officers, magistrates and clerks of court who say they are being made by the administrative offices of the court to do much added paperwork in connection with the new Criminal Code revision.

"I am certain, however, that something must be done to eliminate the unnecessary administrative work load that is connected with this new Criminal Code."

He called Monday for an end to the "bureaucratic, job-creating paperwork."

Green said he has asked Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, to convene a committee he chairs which is studying magistrates' office and position. He wants it to find an answer to the burgeoning paperwork.

The hospital said the mistake made by the anesthetist, who has since been fired, was "contributory" to Sammy's death.

He was placed on a mechanical respirator to keep him alive until Aug. 28, when a medical center doctor shut the machine off and Sammy died, according to Freeman's report.

McDonald said the incident occurred a few days after Miss Hearst's arrest Sept. 18. The newspaper heiress is being held on federal bank robbery charges after she allegedly joined her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers.

Her parents, Randolph and Catherine Hearst, visit most days when visiting hours are scheduled. She also receives frequent visits from her sisters, Vicki and Anne, and from Miss Tobin.

That law became effective Sept. 1. It revised investigative and arrest procedures and was designed to broaden law enforcement powers.

In similar cases in Ohio and New Jersey, parents initiated requests to unhook life-support systems from their comatose children, only to be refused by doctors who maintain they have no legal right to do so.

George Carter, attorney for the Uribes, said the couple "never consented to taking him off (the respirator). They were told that the hospital had decided after a staff meeting to turn off the respirator."

"It's a unique situation when it's the hospital's negligence that causes the boy to be in the position he's in, then they make the decision to take him off the respirator."

Miss Tobin, whose earlier jail conversation with Miss Hearst was recorded by deputies and then made public as part of a court record, refused to comment on the sheriff's statement.

McDonald said as far as jail personnel have noticed, Miss Hearst hasn't formed any close friendships with other prisoners at the jail, but he added, "She talks with anybody that is around her."

Convicts Teach Nursery School

By WENDY WALKER
Associated Press Writer
PURDY, Wash. (AP) — The teachers at 4-year-old Raymond Cantwell's nursery school are convicts, and the classroom is behind locked prison doors.

the preschool program, but prison officials say they expect about 24 others to be ready next year.

Raymond tells his mother that school is "terrific," and she says, "If it's good for Raymond, that's all that matters."

None of the women was immediately available for interviews, but Mrs. Chapman said the experience has made many of them re-evaluate their roles as mothers.

Raymond is one of 12 youngsters, aged 3 to 5, in a preschool program that is part of an experimental prisoner rehabilitation project at the Women's Treatment Center, a minimum security prison in this community near Tacoma.

"I see a lot of women here whose children have been taken from them," she said. "They see themselves as pretty poor mothers, but this class gives them an opportunity to improve their image."

Mrs. Cantwell says, "Other people sort of give me weird looks when I tell them about the school, but it doesn't bother me."

The nursery school is operating on a one-year federal grant of $19,522, and future funding will depend on the success of the program this year. Prison officials say the project was in the development stage for three years.

The program started last week. Two inmates serve as daily supervisors for the playing children, and a professional teacher, Bobbie Chapman, oversees their activities.

Laurie Kennedy says she had some second thoughts about sending her daughter to the school.

Most of the women in the program have been convicted on drug charges or drug-related robbery or forgery charges.

"But after seeing how well the women work with the children, I feel comfortable with it now," Mrs. Kennedy said.

All are members of a child development class. So far, four women have completed the six months training required for

Music Auditions Scheduled Friday

Two prestigious music award auditions are to be held at Greensboro on Friday in conjunction with the joint state convention of the Music Teachers Association and the National Association of Teachers of Singing.

Sheila Marlowe, a student of Gladys White, and Kenneth Davis, a student of Dr. Clyde Hiss, will participate in the Regional Young Artist Awards.

The MTA auditions are designed for soloists on any instrument or voice, and audition winners at the state level will progress to regional and finally the national level. There are two divisions, a high school level administered by Helen Smith of Winston-Salem, and a college division administered by Dr. Clemens Sandresky of Salem College.

Women Named Fill Vacancies

RALEIGH (AP)—Vacancies in the General Assembly will be filled by two women.

Two ECU graduate students, Debra Stokes and Sherry R. Miller, will compete in the MTA auditions. Both are students of Gladys White.

Secretary of State Thad Eure said Monday Betty Thomas of Cabarrus County was appointed to replace her husband, the late Rep. Art Thomas. The legislator was killed in a recent automobile accident after apparently falling asleep at the wheel.

The Regional Young Artist Award is a new program initiated by the Southeastern Region of the National Association of Teachers of Singing. Dr. Joel Carter of Chapel Hill is coordinator for these auditions. ECU graduates

Bertha Holt of Alamance County was appointed, also by a committee of Democrats, to replace James E. Long, who resigned to become an aide to Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

"Everybody's happy," he added. "Broadway without musicals is like a garden without flowers."

Eure said the General Assembly will now have 17 women, one Indian, six blacks and six members under 30.

Curtain Is Back Up On Broadway Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — The curtain is back up on Broadway musicals and enthusiastic theatergoers hailed the end of a 25-day-long musicians strike by streaming into theater lobbies along the glittering Great White Way.

All nine musicals shut by the strike are reopening. "Candide," "The Wiz," "Grease," and "Raisin" go back on stage tonight and "The Magic Show" picks up with a matinee Wednesday.

Four musicals — "Chicago," "A Chorus Line," "Shenandoah," and "Pippin" — reopened Monday night to sold-out or near capacity audiences.

In addition, Scott Joplin's opera "Treemonisha" will begin previews Wednesday. It was one of three incoming shows forced to postpone opening here because of the strike.

"Things look marvelous," said Gerald Schoenfeld, head of the League of New York Theater and Producers, as he surveyed the festive hubbub in Shubert Alley. "Look at all the people lined up for tickets."

The musicians, members of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians, Sunday ratified a new contract that will raise salaries from $290 to $380 over the three-year life of the pact.

The musicians' walkout, the longest ever to hit Broadway, shut 12 theaters and cost $3.5 million in lost ticket sales in addition to multi-million dollar losses in related industries such as restaurants and the taxi business.

PTI Trustees To Participate Spray-Sniffing Fatal To Youth

Pitt Technical Institute trustees will participate in the annual meeting of the trustees of technical institutes and community colleges in a 20-county area Oct. 16 in Tarboro.

HOLLY RIDGE, N.C. (AP)—An autopsy has disclosed that a 15-year-old youth died from sniffing an antiperspirant, authorities report.

The Tarboro meeting will be the fourth in a series of regional meetings being held across the state to emphasize the role of the local trustee as it relates to the statewide system of community colleges and technical institutes.

The youth, Wayne Pope, was found Saturday night on the bathroom floor of his home at Holly Ridge in southeastern North Carolina. A spray can of underarm deodorant was nearby, officials said.

Even if you didn't know it was 10 years old, you'd be able to taste the difference.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg market prices were steady Monday. Supplies were moderate and the demand good. Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby retail stores were 64.69 cents per dozen for a large white; 61.11 cents for medium and 45.63 cents for small.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Corn and soybeans were sharply weaker on North Carolina grain markets Monday. No. 2 yellow shelled corn was 2.65—2.70, mostly 2.65 on the east and 2.75—2.85 in the Piedmont. No. 1 yellow soybeans were 4.83—5.03; No. 2 red winter wheat 3.16—3.50 and No. 2 red oats 1.30—1.50.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Trading on the North Carolina FOB dock broilers market was moderately active today. The market was steady, supplies were moderate, demand moderate, weights desirable.

The North Carolina dock-weighted average price is 49.28 cents per pound this week, for small purchases of sized plant grade broilers picked up processing plants. Estimated slaughter 1,069,000.

The North Carolina hen market was slightly higher today, supplies light, demand light. Prices per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm, 26-.27; FOB plants, too few.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—The North Carolina hog market was mostly .50 lower today. Wilson 60.00-61.00; High Falls 59.00-60.00; Rocky Mount 60.50-61.00; Clinton 62.00, Salisbury 59.50.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market gained more ground today on hopes for an improved financial outlook for New York City.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 5.11 at 842.88, and gainers outpaced losers by more than a 3-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was fairly active. Adding to the momentum of Monday's 13.86 rise in the Dow was a New York State Supreme Court judge's decision in favor of a plan for investment of $250 million of state pension funds in debt securities issued to provide New York City with cash.

The judge's action was seen as an important step in efforts to avert a default by the city on any of its obligations.

Ford administration officials continued to assert the President's opposition to federal help for the city. But Treasury Secretary William E. Simon conceded in a television interview this morning that "emotional sentiment" was swinging toward favoring the idea of such aid.

Sedco climbed 2 1/2 to 26, opening late. The company announced Monday that a subsidiary had received a $108.3 million contract from the National Iranian Oil Co. for construction of a pipeline system.

Philip Morris, which said its third quarter and nine months earnings reached record levels, gained 7/8 to 52 1/4 in active trading.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks rose .33 to 47.66 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .24 at 84.70.

much more complicated and time consuming than had been anticipated, he said.

According to Wagner, the planter concrete block work should be finished by Oct. 15 and the brick work on the entrance pillars and around the planters should be wrapped up by Oct. 18.

Curb and gutter along Fifth, Fourth and Third Streets was completed on schedule by Aug. 31 and the electrical contractor should be finished with conduit work by Oct. 18.

The landscape contractor is scheduled to plant his larger trees in the planter areas beginning Wednesday and this phase actually is being done ahead of schedule in order to be able to utilize cranes for transporting the trees. After the cast concrete is placed over the mall entrances, Wagner noted, access will not be available for the cranes. Small trees and shrubs will be planted later as scheduled.

Wagner said that with the completion of the brick paving work around Thanksgiving, the basic mall construction will be finished although some touch-up work, including painting and cleanup, might take just a little longer.

Alcoholism Preventive Seen By Bowles

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Former gubernatorial candidate Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles came to Greenville yesterday enthusing about a new discovery which he believes will be a breakthrough leading to the prevention of alcoholism.

In speaking to the Kiwanis Club University City yesterday afternoon, he asked for a show of hands of those who had in no way been affected by the abuse of alcohol—by a parent, a child, a brother or sister, a good friend, an employee, or whomever. There were no hands raised.

"One out of 10 of the 95 million Americans who drink is now either a full-fledged alcoholic or at least a problem drinker," he said. He also cited figures like half the murders committed in the U.S. involve alcohol, one fourth the suicides; half the mental hospital admissions, and half the automobile deaths and injuries.

"In the 1950's," he said, "one of every five or six alcoholics was a woman. Now in some places the ratio is about 50-50. An alcoholic's life span is thought to be shortened by 10 to 12 years."

"We're on the brink," he said, "of a major breakthrough that will make it possible to prevent all this heartbreak, and I'm excited. Never before in my life have I been as excited—as excited about anything else that I've been involved in."

He explained that scientists led by Dr. John Ewing at the Center for Alcohol Studies at the University of North Carolina have found that the answer to why one person can take a few drinks and stop and another, once he takes the first, cannot stop, lies in blood chemistry.

Dr. Ewing, the medical director of the Center, of which Bowles is president, has found an enzyme in the brains of certain persons which predispose them to alcoholic abuse. He believes that with more research, he and his colleagues can find a way of giving this enzyme to those who lack it. "Whether the method, be a shot or a pill or whatever, it could very well eliminate alcoholism as a problem for society," Bowles said.

The fact that pointed the way to this important discovery, he said, was that you just don't see many Oriental drunks. It's long been known that the Chinese and Japanese and other Orientals have a very, very small incidence of alcoholic abuse, as compared with Occidentals.

"It is now clear," he went on, "that some of us inherit a genetic component that would cause us to be alcoholics, once we've taken that first drink. He said Dr. Ewing advises those who know there is a high incidence of alcoholism in their family background not to take the risk—Taking a drink, for them, is about like playing Russian roulette," he quoted Ewing as saying.

As president of the Center for which he and Rep. Sam Johnson sponsored the legislation in the 1969 N.C. General Assembly, Bowles says he has pledged himself to raise $1 million to finance five years of research on the project to isolate and develop this preventive measure.

"What we need," he said, "is a psychobiologic research team of four professionals—a neuropharmacologist, a biochemist, a neurophysiologist, an endocrinologist or an endocrine pharmacologist, along with some research technicians and secretaries. Since just a hint of what we're doing has been told in scientific circles, the Center has heard from several outstanding scientists who would like to join the team. But we must have the money."

He appealed to anyone who has had any bad experience with alcohol abuse or concern for the problem to give whatever they can to this project. Checks may be made out to the Center for Alcohol Studies, University of N.C., Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514, he said.

Obituaries

Ellenberg
NINETY-SIX, S.C. — Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Smith Ellenberg, 88, widow of William Thomas Ellenberg, were conducted today at 3 o'clock at Ninety-Six Pentecostal Holiness Church here. Burial was in the Siloam Baptist Church Cemetery, with Blyth Funeral Home of Greenwood, S.C. in charge.

A native of Edgefield County, S.C., she was a member of Ninety-Six Pentecostal Church. Surviving her are three sons, the Rev. F. Vernon Ellenberg of Danville, Va., the Rev. J. Vincent Ellenberg of Burlington, and the Rev. William G. Ellenberg of Clinton, S.C.; six daughters, Mrs. Mary Mayo of Falkland, Miss Grace Ellenberg of Greenville, Mrs. Lucille Simmons of Ninety-Six; Mrs. Anne Oliver of Abbeville, S.C.; Mrs. Lois Price of Raleigh, and Mrs. Jo Chair of Gray Court, S.C.; three foster sons, the Rev. Oliver Hance of Conroe, Tex., Janice Hance of Aiken, S.C., and Holly Hance of Ohio; 26 grandchildren; and 23 great grandchildren.

Street that is included in the Pitt-Greene Street connector for Reade Circle. The acquisition leaves two more parcels necessary for purchase in the Pitt-Greene segment.

According to Boyd, no demolition work took place in the CBD or Southside project areas. No acquisitions were made in Southside, he said.

Commissioners accepted bids from Sam Worthington Jr. ($1,081.60) for Disposal Parcel D-2a involving a small tract on Eighth and Cotanche and from W. O. Moore ($5,464.84) for Disposal Parcel U-2a at Tenth and Evans Street.

Both sales are subject to approval by the City Council. Attendance by Boyd at an upcoming residential real estate appraisal seminar at East Carolina University was authorized by commissioners.

An amendment was also approved in the reuse appraisal contract with Francis Scott Key of Atlanta to accommodate updates on several parcels in the CBD project.

Ohio State Holds To Poll Lead Spiders, Keydets Meet In Battle Of Leaders

By The Associated Press
The Buckeyes of Ohio State, who routed Big Ten rival Iowa 49-0 over the weekend, have held onto the top spot in The Associated Press college football ratings for the second week in a row.

AP's ratings, announced Monday, remained the same, with deposed leader Oklahoma second, followed by Southern California and Nebraska. But there was a new school in the fifth spot. Texas A&M, on the strength of a 38-9 drubbing of Texas Tech, climbed from sixth to fifth, replacing the Texas Longhorns, who dropped to eighth after a 24-17 loss to Oklahoma. The Buckeyes received 42 first-place votes and 1,066 of a possible 1,100 points from a nationwide panel of 55 sports writers and broadcasters.

Oklahoma received 12 first-place votes and 982 points. Last week, with 62 board members casting ballots, Ohio State received 47 first-place votes to 14 for Oklahoma and outpointed the Sooners 1,178-1,072. Southern Cal was the only other team receiving a first-place ballot after a 28-10 Pacific-8 Conference victory over Washington State. The Trojans received 844 points. Nebraska blanked Kansas 16-0 and got 649 points.

In other changes in the poll, Alabama moved up from seventh to sixth by trouncing Washington 52-0, and Michigan rose from eighth to seventh with a 16-6 triumph over Michigan State. After eighth-place Texas, Penn State and Missouri rounded out the Top Ten. Penn State thrashed previously unbeaten West Virginia 39-0 over the weekend, dropping the Mountaineers, who had been No. 10, completely out of the ratings. Missouri, No. 12 a week ago, made it back into the Top Ten by routing previously undefeated Oklahoma State 41-14.

By The Associated Press
Coach Jim Tait of Richmond's Spiders has said several times he doesn't expect any team to go undefeated in the Southern Conference football race, but his own players will do their best to continue proving him wrong Saturday. The Spiders take on Virginia Military's defending champion Keydets in the Tobacco Festival game at Richmond City Stadium and, unless there's a tie, the encounter will reduce the number of teams unbeaten in league play to one.

But for an ill-fated pass late in the final period against Richmond last year, VMI would have been unbeaten in league play. But the Spiders came up with an interception while trailing 14-10 and turned it into a 17-14 victory. A defeat wouldn't necessarily eliminate either team from contention, for each plays six conference opponents to just five for Appalachian State's Mountaineers, who stand 1-1 in league play along with The Citadel. East Carolina, William and Mary and Furman have lost twice. The Citadel plays all seven other conference members, but the Bulldogs now are at a disadvantage since they must face both Richmond and VMI away from home. "VMI has a fine football team," says Tait of the Saturday clash. "I'm sure we'll play a good, solid football game. I know we'll be competitive and I hope we're going to win it."

Fake Field Goal Aids Washington's Victory

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was like winning one for old Notre Dame. Joe Theismann and John Pergine came in for a lot of ribbing from their Washington teammates Monday night after they connected on a fake field goal to spark the Redskins to a 27-17 National Football League victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a nationally televised game. Washington reserve linebacker Rusty Tillman told newsmen as they crowded around Pergine, who caught the 30-yard touchdown pass from Theismann, that he was the primary receiver on the play. "It was a Notre Dame special," said Tillman. "I was a receiver on the play and he didn't even see me." Theismann, who was a freshman when Pergine, now a reserve linebacker, was playing for the Fighting Irish, said, "We have a very strong Catholic relationship, even though we're not even Catholic." The surprise play by the Redskins came early in the third quarter after Terry Metcalf had stunned Washington with a 93-yard return of the second-half kickoff. "We really caught them with their pants down," said Theismann, third string quarterback and holder on placements. "It was an element-of-surprise play and it worked beautifully. It's an amazing picture when you see your guys down field and nobody around them." The fake field goal and the running of rookie Mike Thomas, who scored touchdowns from the one and the two-yard lines, moved the Redskins, now 3-1, to within one game of the undefeated Dallas Cowboys in the National Football Conference Eastern Division. The Cardinals are now 2-2. Cardinals coach Don Coryell said, "What did I think about the fake punt? I didn't like it. What else can you say."

"There was absolutely no doubt in my mind that they would not come back and get 'em," he said. "They were obviously up for the game." Washington's Mark Moseley and St. Louis' Jim Bakken traded 47-yard field goals before Thomas, from the University of Nevada-Los Vegas, went over from the two for his first touchdown to give the Redskins a 10-3 lead. Metcalf's kickoff return tied the score. After the Pergine score, Jim Hart put the Cardinals back into a tie with a 48-yard touchdown strike to Mel Gray to tie the knot at 17-17. In the fourth quarter, however, Thomas dove one yard for his second touchdown of the night and Moseley booted a 34-yard field goal to put the icing on the victory. And, when the Cardinals appeared to be closing in, linebacker Chris Hanburger picked off a Hart pass to kill a possible score in the fourth quarter. "The interception by Hanburger was a fine defensive play," said Coryell. "We just went to the well once too often on that one and Hanburger is an intelligent, good defensive player and he read it well."

Reds Planning Running Night

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — The track will be fast and the skies clear for tonight's third World Series game, and Cincinnati's thoroughbreds intend to run the Boston Red Sox right out of Riverfront Stadium. "Everything's different now," said Joe Morgan. "Playing at home is going to make all the difference in the world for us." At no time in recent World Series history has the home field advantage or weather conditions meant as much as in this one. The Red Sox, although they split the first two games in Boston over the weekend, had a distinct advantage in their own Fenway Park. Now, they have an obvious disadvantage at Riverfront. "The ball park had a lot to do with our performance," said Morgan, pointing to a meager total of three runs and a .188 team batting average in the two games. "Maybe the Reds don't realize it, but we're a great Astro turf team," said Bill Lee, Boston's fine left-hander. "We play darn good baseball on artificial turf.... Obviously thinking about that fast artificial turf, Boston Manager Darrell Johnson named Rick Wise as his starter to oppose Cincinnati's Gary Nolan. "Rick is basically a highball pitcher and that should be helpful," Johnson said. "A sinkerball pitcher forces men to hit the ball on the ground. A highball pitcher, like Wise, gets many men on pops." The Red Sox, hoping to get the feel of the strange ballpark, worked out Monday night under the lights for Game No. 3. The weather for the third game was expected to be warm and clear.

cause our right-handed hitters were going for that wall. And I think it hurt us because it was always on our minds. Now that we're at Riverfront Stadium, it's going to make a big difference the way our hitters attack the ball. You'll see different hitters here." The Red Sox will also see different runners in Cincinnati, too, because of the sleek playing surface. While the artificial turf was expected to help the Reds' offense, it could also be a crucial factor in the Boston defense. "You need a quicker infielder and outfielder on this surface," Morgan said. "You have to have that extra step to cut off baseballs. The Red Sox better be quick on this surface or it'll hurt them." The American League champions, despite Morgan's warning, feel they'll be ready, willing and able to play in the home park of the National League kings. "The ball park had a lot to do with our performance," said Morgan, pointing to a meager total of three runs and a .188 team batting average in the two games. "Maybe the Reds don't realize it, but we're a great Astro turf team," said Bill Lee, Boston's fine left-hander. "We play darn good baseball on artificial turf.... Ruff Gets S.C. Honor

RESTON, Va. (AP)—Linebacker Brian Ruff of The Citadel today became the first player this season to win Southern Conference defensive football player of the week honors for a second time. The 219-pound junior, an All-Southern Conference selection as a sophomore last year, was accorded the honor even though the Bulldogs dropped a 3-0 decision last Saturday night to East Carolina. Ruff was credited with 15 primary tackles and nine assists for The Citadel. In addition, he intercepted a pass which set up the only genuine scoring threat the Bulldogs had all night. He had been chosen defensive player of the week just two weeks ago for the first time. Named Monday as offensive player of the week was Furman's junior tailback, Larry Robinson, who ran for 147 yards and one touchdown on 20 carries in the Paladins' 35-7 victory over Presbyterian. The big night enabled Robinson to establish a Furman career rushing record of 2,077 yards even though he has 1½ years still to play.

Four Tie In Contest

A four-way tie developed for first place in the weekly Daily Reflector Football Contest. Each of the four came up with 25 correct answers, missing seven games. And each missed the point total by one point. The actual total was 65 points, scored in three different games. Three of those tying guessed 66 points would be scored, while another went low, guessing 64 points. The four are G.W. Wilson of 1610 Oaklawn Dr.; Bob McEvoy of 103 King George Rd.; Steve Clark of 101 Hardee St.; and Clarence Stasavich, Athletic Director at East Carolina University. They will divide the prize money equally. The new contest appears on the following pages.

Tigerettes Claim Win

WASHINGTON—Williamston High School gained a 5-3 victory over Washington High School yesterday in the final regular season match for the Tigerettes. The two teams split the singles, with each winning three matches. But Williamston came back to take both the number one and number two doubles and clinch the win. The number three doubles was called because of darkness. The victory boosted the Williamston record to 5-3 overall and 4-2 in conference play. Williamston will take part in the Northeastern Conference Tournament, which opens Wednesday at Edenton. Summary: Nancy Sharp (Wm) defeated Bernadine Freeman, 6-4, 6-1. Sissy Taylor (Wm) defeated Clair Peele, 6-2, 6-4. Patsy Kelder (Ws) defeated Rachael Roberts, 6-3, 6-4. Wendy Perry (Ws) defeated Amy Hardison, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4. Lisa Robertson (Wm) defeated Lois Moore, 6-1, 6-4. Ann Morton (Ws) defeated Susie Orton, 7-5, 6-2. Sharp-Taylor (Wm) defeated Peele-Freeman, 8-4. Roberts-Hardison (Wm) defeated Kelder-Morton, 8-4. Guerin will continue to exercise horses in morning workouts for Harry Mangurian. A native of Louisiana, Guerin gained fame as the rider for Native Dancer, horse of the year in 1954.

Kirkland Is Winner

TARBORO—John Kennedy (Kenny) Kirkland, 10, of Greenville, won the zone competition of the 1975 Punt, Pass and Kick this weekend. The contest was held at the C.B. Martin Junior High School. Kenny will now travel to Richmond this Saturday to compete in the District finals.

Petty Still In The Lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Despite a last-place finish at Richmond, Richard Petty is rolling on toward an unprecedented sixth championship on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing's grand national circuit. Petty dropped out of Sunday's Capital City 500 after 34 laps and had a last place for the first time in nine years and 361 starts. But he remains far ahead in the 1975 Grand National point chase with 4,245 points heading into Sunday's American 500 race at Rockingham, N.C. James Hylton is second at 3,418, followed by Benny Parsons 3,402, Dave Marcis 3,386, Richard Childress 3,333, Cecil Gordon 3,243, Darrell Waltrip 3,170, Elmo Langley 2,984, Frank Warren 2,730 and David Sisco 2,713.

Rampants Upset New Bern Netters

NEW BERN — Rose High School's tennis team captured a 6-3 victory over previously unbeaten New Bern High School yesterday. The Rampants took five of the six singles matches in the hard-fought event, then came back for one victory in the doubles to wrap up the victory. The lone singles win for the Lady Bears came when Elizabeth Tolson, ranked third in the state, gained a win in the number one event. Miss Tolson and her partner also took the number one doubles, where she is ranked fifth. The victory raised the Rose record to 2-6 on the year. They will play host to Northeastern High School today. In exhibition singles, New Bern captured two wins. Rona Walston downed Sally Augspurger, 10-8; and Donna Mills beat Kathy Murphy, 9-7. Summary: Elizabeth Tolson (NB) defeated Marty East, 6-1, 6-1. Serena Matney (R) defeated Nan Blacklerly, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3. Kitsy Bailey (R) defeated Allison Blizzard, 6-2, 6-8, 6-3. Sheri Augspurger (R) defeated Markita Moore, 7-5, 6-3. Karen Jeffreys (R) defeated Margaret Volney, 6-1, 6-0. Peggy Barber (R) defeated Dail Daly, 6-0, 6-3. Tolson-Mary Register (NB) defeated East-Matney, 8-5. Blacklerly-Blizzard (NB) defeated Bailey-Augspurger, 8-6. Cindy Talbert-Jill Carney (R) defeated Carla Latham-Mamie Jones, 8-3.

Guerin Retires At 51

MIAMI (AP) — Eric Guerin, whose thoroughbred mounts have earned more than $17 million during his 35-year riding career, retired because of age. At 51, Guerin said, "Not many trainers want a rider my age." Guerin will continue to exercise horses in morning workouts for Harry Mangurian. A native of Louisiana, Guerin gained fame as the rider for Native Dancer, horse of the year in 1954.

Teams Capture Recreation Wins

West Greenville gained a 12-0 victory over South Greenville in the Flag Football Program of the Greenville Recreation Department yesterday. West Greenville took the opening kickoff and drove for the initial touchdown. Vincent Murphy scored on a 15-yard sweep for a 6-0 lead. It remained that way until the fourth period when West Greenville scored again. Ronald Worsley got the score for the final 12-0 margin. West Greenville defensive leaders were Fred Cherry, Chris McLawhorn and William Perkins. In the tackle program, the White team gained a 20-13 win over the Blue. White took the opening kickoff and drove for their first score, with Charles Daise taking a 20-yard pass from George Wilson for a 6-0 lead. The next White score came in the third period as Kenny Wilson scored on a 20-yard run. Marshall Heath picked up the conversion for a 14-0 margin. The Blues came up with their first score on the following series, with Patrick Wilson going over from the one. Early in the final period, Wilson intercepted a Blue pass and took it back 60-yards for a score and a 20-6 lead for the White. Blue came back with Kenny Barnes scrambling the final 30 yards after failing to find a receiver open. Blue then got the ball back on an on-sides kick, but couldn't get in before time ran out. David Holley, Fred Matney and Bill Lee was named defensive standouts for the White team, while Calvin Jones, Patrick Wilson, James Brewington and Kenny Barnes were tops for the Blues.

THE NCBNB TRI THE HIGH COST O

If you have regular checking, "free checking" is probably what your bank says you've got.

But you probably couldn't prove it from your bank statement.

Because, at the average bank, "free checking" is only free as long as you keep a $100 balance.

Otherwise, you have to pay a service charge on every check you write.

THE TROUBLE WITH FREE CHECKING.

If you're like the average person, these days, you're operating on a tight enough budget already.

And you almost certainly don't have an extra $100 to leave sitting idle in a checking account.

So you go right on paying service charges. And assuming they're just a fact of life, like death and taxes.

HOW THE TRIPLE OPTION HAPPENED.

Now, we offered "free checking" for a long time ourselves.

It was a step in the right direction. But it just didn't go far enough.

Too many people were still paying service charges. Or sweating out the last four days of the month with a balance of $101.98.

We decided there had to be a better way to give you a no-service-charge checking plan. Without the headaches

"My bank says I should save. They also say I've got to keep $100 in my checking account. Either I'm confused, or they are."

"Our balance dropped to $99.50 for one day, and we got a service charge for the month. That extra 50¢ we spent cost us $4.90."

FREE CHECKING VS. TRIPLE OPTION.

"I figure the service charges on my free checking account came to $17.22 last year. My bank may call that free, but I don't."

"My bank has completely free checking. But to qualify for it, I think I'd have to be listed in Dun & Bradstreet."

of the $100-minimum-balance account. So we decided to find it.

We came up with the NCNB Triple Option account. Three new ways you can get no-service-charge checking.

THE NCNB TRIPLE OPTION

- OPTION 1
Ask us to set up an NCNB Automatic Savings program for you, with deposits of at least $25 a month.
  - OPTION 2
Maintain a balance of $500 or more in NCNB Regular Savings.
  - OPTION 3
Add NCNB Cash Reserve to your regular checking account.
- The Triple Option is offered in addition to our present checking plans.*

When you set up an automatic savings program, with deposits of at least $25 a month, you don't have to pay a service charge.

When you keep $500 in regular savings, you don't have to pay a service charge.

When you have Cash Reserve, you don't have to pay a service charge.

Pick the option you like, then stop by and open your account. (If you bank with us now, and you want The Triple Option, just ask to have your account switched over.)

NO SERVICE CHARGE. NO MATTER WHAT.

We don't care if you write 60 checks a month. Or keep a balance of $1.59. Just pick your option now, and you may never pay service charges again.

The NCNB Triple Option.

It's probably a lot less expensive than the free checking you've got now.

Fewer Die On N.C. Highways

RALEIGH (AP)—Fewer people are dying on North Carolina highways. Traffic accidents claimed 101 lives in September, 28 per cent fewer than for that month last year when 140 were killed. But the number of injuries in traffic mishaps last month was 2 per cent greater than in September, 1974.

Eight per cent more persons were injured in the eight months ending Sept. 30 than were hurt in the same period last year, the Transportation Department's Division of Motor Vehicles reported Monday.

Fatalities during that eight-month period this year, 1,081 were seven per cent fewer than in that time in 1974 when 1,163 were killed.

"It is evident that selective enforcement, improved communication with the public regarding highway safety, the driver improvement program and the most important change in driver attitudes are producing positive results," said Edward L. Powell, commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Twenty-five pedestrian deaths occurred in September 1974, compared with 14 last month, a drop of 44 per cent. And for the eight months ending Sept. 30, injured pedestrians numbered 183, a decline of 10 per cent from the 204 injured for that period of 1974.

A 75 per cent reduction was noted in the number of bicyclists killed, one in September

PUBLIC NOTICES

RESOLUTION NO. 256
RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING THE DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY SURPLUS TO THE NEEDS OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE BY PRIVATE SALE PURSUANT TO THE PROVISIONS OF G.S. 160-A-267

WHEREAS, it has come to the attention of the City Council of the City of Greenville, North Carolina, that the City now owns one (1) National Cash Register-33 bookkeeping machine, Serial No. 6702771 and, one (1) National Cash Register-395 accounting machine, Serial No. 1-95148 which are surplus to the needs of the City of Greenville; and

WHEREAS, the City of Greenville has had said bookkeeping machine and accounting machine appraised and the appraised value of both machines is less than $5,000 total value for both machines and it is found to be in the best interest of the City of Greenville to dispose of said machines at a private sale pursuant to the provisions of G.S. 160-A-267; and

WHEREAS, at a regular Council Meeting held on October 9, 1975, it is found to be appropriate to name the City Manager of the City of Greenville to dispose of said property by private sale at the highest obtainable negotiated price. That the City Clerk is directed to publish a copy of this resolution in the Daily Reflector and the City Manager is directed not to consummate any sale until ten (10) days after the publication of this notice.

RESOLVED, This the 9th day of October, 1975.

Cukor Disclaims Tales Of Filming In Russia

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "People stare at me and are amazed that I am not a doddering wreck. I feel like Edmund Dantes, just escaped from prison in 'The Count of Monte Cristo.'"

That was George Cukor's wry observation on his return to Hollywood from the already-legendary filming of "The Blue Bird" in Leningrad. So many wild stories came out of the production that Cukor wonders if he was directing the same picture.

"The tales that I read and hear are fantastic," he said. "I was supposed to be directing the picture from a stretcher. Elizabeth (Taylor) was said to dislike the Russian food so much that she dined every night in Helsinki."

Far from being a stretcher case, George Cukor seems un-scarred by the whole experience. At 76 he was doubtless the oldest member of the Russian-American-English movie venture. Yet he seems to have thrived despite the long, troubled production.

"I am certainly not a card-carrying Communist," commented Cukor, whose taste and leanings are decidedly capitalistic. "Nor do I think I am just trying to look on the bright side."

"But really, I found the Russians to be very sweet. They did everything they could to solve our problems, and they were puzzled by the reports that were printed in the Western press. They, of course, are not accustomed to a free press. As far as I could determine, there was no spying, no surveillance. I could even kid with the Russians, asking them not to send me to Siberia if the picture went wrong. They replied, 'Siberia is lovely now.'"

Cukor said the main problem with "The Blue Bird" was that the original coproduction deal arranged by American producer Edward Lewis was under-financed. The company didn't have the right equipment for such a lavish movie; when 20th Century-Fox stepped in with new financing, the situation improved, said the director. He minimized reports that the film had soared over its budget.

"It's impossible to establish a budget when you're working with the Russians," he said. "They simply give you the Kirov Ballet and there's no way of telling what they cost. They don't calculate budgets as we do. We filmed from January to the end of July — seven months. That's not at all unusual for a Russian picture."

Cukor also blew down rumors of personality conflicts on "The Blue Bird."

Mixed Views Needed Sheriff Of Four-Day Of Nottingham School Week

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer
STILLWATER, Minn. (AP) — On a Tuesday while most of her sophomore high school friends were in class, Diane Arndt was home making herself a skirt.

At the same time, her sister Joanne, a senior, was back in school after waiting on tables at a fashionable restaurant Monday to make some spending money.

The two sisters weren't skipping school. They were taking Stillwater High School's new four-day week in stride.

The school operates Monday through Friday, as usual, but each pupil goes only four days. Each day is stretched out an hour to 7½ hours.

It's the latest major experiment in Minnesota schools, brought on by an increasing enrollment coupled with limited classroom space and a lack of money for new construction.

School officials selected the four-day system as the best alternative after voters rejected three bond issues in four years.

Shrewsbury, Mass., resorted to a similar plan earlier.

From contacts with school administrators, teachers, pupils and parents in Stillwater, these observations can be made:

—Administrators find the system is generally working well, although they admit there are some "bugs" and it means more work for them.

—Teachers are more apt to have some classes of 30 to 35 pupils than 15 to 20, and they may "spin their wheels" at some sessions because they can't inject new lessons when some youths are on their day off.

—Pupils count it a mixed blessing. There is more free time for recreation, outside work and special-interest studies. But the four-day operation means less flexibility in scheduling. Pupils are apt to go through the day with the same set of pupils, meaning their social contacts are limited. And they may find the schedule deprives them of an elective course they'd like to take.

Starting this fall, students attend classes on their four days from 7:50 a.m. to 3:50 p.m., with a half hour for lunch. It's enough to meet the state's required minimum of 1,050 hours per school year.

The high school was forced into the innovative program because, while many school districts in the nation report declining enrollments because of a lower birth rate, the enrollment at Stillwater has climbed at all levels.

MISTY ROWE, who plays the role of Maid Marian in the television series "When Things Were Rotten" reacts to a question during an interview in New York. (AP Wirephoto)

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Maid Marian, in civilian life an actress named Misty Rowe, left Sherwood Forest last week to come to Gotham to publicize her new ABC series called "When Things Were Rotten."

Forsyth, she should have brought along the sheriff of Nottingham, no matter how mean he is to Robin Hood & Co. in the new show.

She said a tall, heavy-set lady mugger had stolen her up against a wall and shoven her wallet while she, Miss Rowe, was in the ladies' room of a midtown New York department store putting on fresh makeup.

For Miss Rowe, a blonde, gentle spirit born in San Gabriel, Calif., the incident made her first stay in Fun City memorable in a way she'd just as soon forget.

To top things off, she added somewhat believably, when she told a sales clerk of the theft moments after the mugger fled, the clerk commenced talking to her as if she had no smarts.

"I told her my wallet had been robbed and she said, 'Where was it?'" Miss Rowe recalled. "I said it was in my purse. She says, 'Where was the purse?' I said, 'On the floor, next to my packages.'"

"She says, 'On the floor?' and she starts yelling and screaming at me. She says, 'You ought to know better than to leave your purse on the floor in New York.'"

The young actress shrugged, then laughed infectiously, "What could I say? I just told her this was my first time in New York. I didn't know."

She appeared to have recovered nicely, perhaps because she was headed that evening to

Blacklisted Humorist Planning A Comeback

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—John Henry Faulk, the folksy radio humorist whose career was crushed by the show business blacklists of the 1950s, is planning a comeback.

Faulk, whose book, "Fear on Trial," was the basis of a recent network television program, has signed for 11 Hee Haw syndicated television shows and will begin taping here next week.

The humorist was one of many entertainers accused of having Communist party ties in the late 1950's, which resulted in him being blacklisted from most jobs.

However, Faulk brought successful suit against Aware, Inc., the group that accused Faulk and others of being a Communist.

The case was settled in 1962 when Faulk was awarded an unprecedented $3.5 million in damages. But he was only able to collect about $750,000, most of which he said went to pay his legal debts.

"Still, there is something therapeutic about a jury awarding you $3.5 million...and about $3 million of that was just for the hurt," Faulk said Monday in a telephone interview from his Madisonville, Tex., farm.

Faulk was contacted at his farm by Hee Haw executive producer Frank Peppiatt, after he saw the television drama based on Faulk's book.

"He'll do something for the show, and we'll do something for him, too—this man who was so maligned for so many years," said Peppiatt, who described Faulk as "a Will Rogers kind of humorist."

Peppiatt said Faulk will begin work October 22 and will be cast in his once-familiar role of a front porch philosopher who tells about his hometown friends and neighbors.

He said the format may be extended to include another series of episodes in the spring.

Since the suit, which rocked his career and shattered his marriage, Faulk has been living at his Texas farm with his second wife and 6-year-old son.

"Mostly my claim to fame until now has been this lawsuit," Faulk said. "Now I'd like to see if I can make it on my talent alone."

Production Begins Soon

GRIMESLAND—Corey Stokes, chairman of the Pitt County Development Commission, announced that production will begin soon here at the newly located Quality Fashions Ltd.

Stokes said that the Eastern North Carolina-based company is located in the former Grimesland school facility.

According to John Pressley, manager of operations, the plant will start production by Nov. 1 with 25 employees and progress towards a maximum of 80 employees.

Pressley said that the plant will make "fashion merchandise of all kinds but will generally be in the contract business."

Stokes commented, "We are especially pleased that Quality Fashions is locating in Grimesland since the community recently had a sewing operation and a good supply of recruitable labor was available."

Parent company of Quality Fashions Inc. is Claudius Sportswear Inc. of Smyrna.

GOREN BRIDGE

South made a valiant attempt to bring home his spade slam without resorting to a finesse. Unfortunately, he overlooked a possibility that would have improved his chances considerably.

South visualized a slam as soon as his partner opened one no trump. When North supported spades at his next turn, it only became a question of whether South should probe for a grand slam. However, he wisely decided that, since some of North's values were bound to be in the heart suit, a small slam would suffice.

West led a heart and declarer decided to preserve dummy's ace for later use. He ruffed the opening lead, drew trumps with the king and led a low diamond from dummy. Had East held the ace, the slam would have rolled home. If East rose with the ace, declarer would later discard two clubs on the ace of hearts and queen of diamonds. If East did not go up with the ace, South would win the king, discard a diamond on the ace of hearts and then be in the enviable position of guessing the queen of clubs for an overtrick.

That plan came to naught when West won the king of diamonds with the ace and returned a diamond. Declarer could have landed the contract now by finessing the ten, but he was understandably reluctant to commit himself. He went up with the queen, just in case the jack would drop, discarded a club on the ace of hearts and then misguessed the queen of clubs for down one.

Declarer would have done better to discard a diamond on the ace of hearts at trick one and ruff a heart. A trump to the king followed by another heart ruff prepares the ground for an end-play, and the lead of the king of diamonds completes the job. If East has the ace of diamonds, he is endangered. He must lead into one of declarer's minor suit tenaces or yield a ruff and sluff. When West wins the ace of diamonds and is forced to return that suit as his only safe exit, declarer has a free finesse of the ten. If East produces the jack, declarer ruffs and takes his position in the club suit. But when the ten holds, declarer can discard two clubs on dummy's diamonds.
