

Advisory Group On Medical Education Gets Briefing

The Chancellor's Advisory Committee on Medical Education met here yesterday for a briefing on the progress of the East Carolina University School of Medicine and a first-hand look at the health-care training facilities in Greenville.

ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins, told the committee members "The main point I want to make to you is the great importance we place on this committee. You represent the leading professions in North Carolina and you come from 61 communities, including Asheville, the Sandhills and the Coast."

Noting that the existence of the advisory group "is well known by political structure, government agencies and organizations having influence on our program and by the big city newspapers," Jenkins said "there is no doubt that, being an issue for almost 10 years, the medical school support has been greatly strengthened at a very critical period by the formation of this group."

The chancellor urged "continued vigilance during the next eight to ten months" by advisory committee members, saying "we don't want our... very tight... schedule to be slipped for any reason. This is particularly crucial in light of the economic situation — when there is a strong chance that some may take this opportunity to trim the budget at the expense of our program."

Jenkins told the committee members, "We are shooting for September '76 as the date for our first students to enter. We know this is a fast track, but we also know that this schedule is realistic — if things fall in place without undue delays." But Jenkins said "We must realize that the history of our work for the medical school teaches us that anything can happen along the way."

He emphasized that an important factor in securing accreditation in time for students to begin their studies next fall is that "we have to work with such a great number of bodies and agencies which make our time table even tighter. Most of the actions by these groups are tied in tandem and a delay by one agency can affect the work of several others."

Jenkins mentioned more than a half-dozen major groups involved, including the Liaison Committee on Medical Education which makes recommendations regarding our program and must approve accreditation; the University of North Carolina Board of Governors; and the staff and board of trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital as well as the Board of County Commissioners.

"And we have our own ECU Board of Trustees to coordinate with and ask for guidance and approval when appropriate," as well as various state agencies such as the Office of Property and Construction.

"I wanted to point a few of these items out to you so you would more clearly envision the complexity of the process over the next several months and see how tenuous our schedule will be," Jenkins said. He emphasized, however, "we are fully confident that we will meet our objective of opening the medical school next year — if the wheels of state bureaucracy can be greased."

Medical School Dean William Laupus outlined the steps that face the school if the Fall, 1976 opening date is to be reached and how they will be dealt with.

Both Laupus and Dr. Ed Monroe, vice-chancellor for health affairs at ECU indicated that the timetable for accreditation is tight and to accomplish the 1976 goal will require the help and support of every agency and body involved, especially the full understanding and cooperation of state agencies that any state supported program must go through.

The advisory committee members stated their willingness to help and indicated that planning might begin in the near future on a comprehensive fund raising effort to assist the school over and beyond resources available from state appropriated funds.

Prior to the supper meeting, a number of advisory group members toured the ECU campus, viewing buildings housing health-care-related training programs and the new Pitt Memorial Hospital construction site.

Trio Arraigned

WASHINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Two of three persons accused of robbing a bank and killing a highway patrolman last month have asked the court for separate trials by juries outside Martin County.

Faye Beatrice Brown, Frankie Jerome Squire and Joseph Seaborn were arraigned in federal court Wednesday.

Lawyers for Miss Brown and Squire have filed motions in Martin County Superior Court in Williamston for change of venue or special jury selection. The attorneys contend that pre-trial publicity has prejudiced potential Martin County jurors.

That court was also asked that each defendant be tried individually.

The trio is charged with armed robbery of the Jamesville Branch Banking and Trust Co. of Jamesville Sept. 2 and with first degree murder of in the death of trooper Guy Thomas Davis Jr.

The indictment charges that they robbed the Jamesville bank, assaulted two bank employees and then killed Davis during an escape attempt.

All three have pleaded innocent.

Suspect Engine Failed

CHERRY POINT, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say an engine malfunction may have caused a military plane to crash and burn shortly after takeoff Wednesday, killing all nine Marines aboard.

The $1.7 million TC-4C Gulfstream, a propeller driven aircraft that measures 67 feet in length and has a wingspan of 78 feet, took off in clear weather on a routine training mission from the Cherry Point Marine Air Station.

It apparently lost power after making a right turn. It clipped off several trees as it plunged to the ground and burned on impact in a wooded area about two miles north of the runway, authorities said.

The Marine Corps today released the names of eight of the nine victims.

The crew was listed as Capt. Joseph M. Finke, Pasadena, Md., pilot; Capt. Wayne A. Patton, Columbus, Ga., copilot; SSGT Rayne B. Cooper, Deer Lodge, Mont., instructor; and Sgt. Gerald R. Young, Indianapolis, Ind., a crew member.

The students were listed as 1st Lt. Thomas E. Becker, Glen Fall, N.Y.; 2nd Lt. Robert R. Vincent, Midwest City, Okla.; and Capt. Edwin A. Allan, Madison, N.J.

The name of a fourth student was still being withheld until relatives could be notified.

The plane was attached to the All Weather Attack Training Squadron 202 of the 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing at Cherry Point.

Arrested 4 In Campus Disorder

Four East Carolina University students were arrested early this morning—two on charges of indecent exposure and two for failing to disperse — during a panty raid on the campus.

Dean of Men James Mallory said the disturbance began about midnight Wednesday and lasted until about 2 a.m. He said male students first went to the high rise section at the eastern end of the campus to raid girls' dorms. He said the men then returned to "the hill" and were in turn raided by women students.

Mallory described the occurrence as a "a group of students letting off steam," but emphasized that it was "an unauthorized mass demonstration" and said "we will take stern disciplinary action... we won't become a party to any unauthorized mass demonstration."

Michael Allen Coats, 19, of Raleigh and Joseph Carl Ward, 18, of Lumberton were charged with indecent exposure after allegedly streaking through the area — Ward in the high rise section and Coats on "the hill" — while John Thomas Morgan of Belk Dorm and Edward Winter of Annandale, Va., was charged with failing to disperse after being told to clear the area near College Hill Drive.

Malolory said the crowd participating in the raids "became fairly disorderly" and noted that a window of a university police car was broken out during the demonstrations.

Guardian Of Woman In Coma Defends Her Life

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Karen Anne Quinlan, who lies unconscious in a coma while others decide whether to disconnect her life support equipment, isn't completely oblivious to the outside world, a prosecutor says.

Miss Quinlan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Quinlan, have asked the courts for permission to turn off the equipment helping keep her alive so that she can die with dignity. They say her brain has been damaged and there is no hope for recovery.

In a court brief filed Tuesday, Morris County

Prosecutor Donald G. Colleston said, "She reacts to externally applied stimuli; she has spontaneous respiration and muscular movement; she reacts to pain; she has nalex movements such as swallowing and blinking; and she does not now nor has she ever had a flat EEG brainwave pattern."

Colleston said that if the respirator were removed and the woman died, it would constitute homicide under New Jersey law. Saying he sympathized for the family and the girl, the prosecutor said, however, that "if the facts establish that the killing was done willfully, the crime of murder exists irrespective of the motive."

The court-appointed guardian for the 21-year-old woman filed a 59-page brief in Superior Court on Tuesday saying that disconnecting the equipment could quicken her death.

But the brief filed by Daniel R. Coburn said Miss Quinlan, who has been in a coma for six months, could probably breathe on her own and survive without the use of a respirator.

He was named guardian for her in the court case dealing with her parents' request to disconnect the equipment.

Miss Quinlan slipped into a coma April 15, apparently after injecting a dangerous combination of alcohol and sleeping pills.

The Quinlans said doctors have shown their daughter is "just a vegetable" and would die "within minutes" if removed from the mechanical breathing device.

of government, the public and the press.

"Democracies do not survive unless elected officials do what they are supposed to do and citizens maintain vigilance to see that they do," the report said.

Ruth's recommendation for a Constitutional amendment drew mixed reviews from congressmen who had investigated the scandal. Rep. William Hungate, D-Mo., said the proposal "sounds sticky to me."

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., agreed with Ruth, saying "I do not feel... that a president cannot commit a crime.... That is not the American system of justice." Former Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina said no amendment is needed because a president has "always been subject to indictment."

At its height, in mid-summer 1973, 42 lawyers and 44 other staff members worked for the special prosecutor. Only three lawyers will work under Charles Ruff, the fourth special prosecutor, to clean up remaining business after Ruth leaves today.

The report dwells on the investigations conducted by five task forces set up by the first prosecutor, Archibald Cox, who was fired in the "Saturday Night Massacre" Oct. 20, 1973.

Under prosecution guidance, a grand jury probed the 18½-minute gap in a White House tape of a Nixon conversation with chief of staff H. R. Halde-man on June 20, 1972 — three days after the Watergate break-in.

Miss Rhonda Joy Clark Weds

The marriage of Miss Rhonda Joy Clark and John Dunton Strickland was solemnized Sunday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. in the Memorial Baptist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thomas Clark and the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Strickland of Louisburg.

The Rev. Norman Bennett of Greenville officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The vows were exchanged in a candlelight setting. The church was decorated with a background of emerald leaf palms in a variety of heights complimented by candelabra with tall cathedral candles. The candelabra were enhanced with huckleberry and smilax.

At the altar was placed a brass prie dieu on which the couple knelt for the benediction. It was decorated with smilax and flanked by brass single candleholders. Pews were also marked by brass single candleholders.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Joe Goodwin of Greenville, organist, and Mrs. Norman Wilkerson of Greenville, soloist. "The Lord's Prayer" was sung as the benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of candlelight delustered satin featuring an open portrait neckline applied in ivory re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls. The clipped lace centered the bodice front and accentuated the modified empire waistline. The long, fitted sleeves were capped at the shoulder with the imported lace. Lace also enhanced the fitted cuff. The full flared skirt extended to an attached chapel length train.

Her veil of cathedral length imported silk illusion and reembroidered alencon lace ascended from a lace covered Camelot headpiece, accented with pearls. She carried a tapered cascade bouquet of yellow roses and English ivy.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Charles H. Allen of Greenville as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jacqueline Baker and Mrs. Randy Collier of Greenville, cousins of the bride, Mrs. Donnie W. Brewer, Mrs. George Alton Gurganus Jr. of Greenville and Miss Susan Manning of Eden.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of gold knit designed with an open V-neckline accentuated by a flared ruffle collar in the knit fabric. Short flared ruffled sleeves fell from beneath the wide collar. A matching silk rose centered the gathered panel that extended down the gown front. They wore loop bow headpieces with streamers in matching goldsatin ribbon. They carried tapered cascade bouquets of yellow and gold mums with English ivy and matching ribbon.

Miss Ashley Best of Rocky Mount, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a yellow formal dress accented by lace and gold ribbon. She carried a basket of yellow and gold flowers.

William D. Hunnings Jr. of Beaufort was the best man. Ushers were Elvy Kittrell Forrest, Sr. of Greenville, uncle of the bride, Thomas Morris Cozart and Donald Wade Todd of Raleigh and George Alton Gurganus Jr. of Greenville. Elvy Kittrell Forrest Jr. of Greenville, cousin of the bride, served as junior usher and Edward Hugh Clark of Greenville, brother of the bride, was acolyte.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Clark wore a formal length gown of organza in a floral print featuring shades of yellow and green complemented by a jacket. She chose matching accessories and wore a corsage of green cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. Hugh Pereane Tyson and Mrs. Leland Mizelle of Greenville, grandmothers of the bride, wore formal length gowns. Both grandmothers wore corsages of yellow cymbidium orchids.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University, and received her M.A. degree in May. The bridegroom attended East Carolina University and is presently associated with

MRS. JOHN DUNTON STRICKLAND

Mallinckrodt, Inc., Raleigh. Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall.

For her wedding trip, the bride changed to a green pantsuit and wore a corsage lifted from her bouquet.

After their wedding trip the couple will reside in Raleigh.

An after-rehearsal party honoring the bridal couple was given Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elvy Kittrell Forrest Sr. of Greenville.

The members of the wedding party, family and out-of-guests were entertained at a wedding breakfast Sunday at the Holiday Inn. Hosts and hostesses were Mrs. Hugh Pereane Tyson, Mrs. Hubert Ray Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Smith Sr., Mr.

and Mrs. James Thomas Manning Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Meredith E. Cavendish of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Jordan B. Best of Rocky Mount.

Saturday at noon, Mrs. Charles Allen and Mrs. George Alton Gurganus Jr. of Greenville entertained Miss Clark with a bridesmaid luncheon at the home of Mrs. Allen.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There is one negative aspect of being a housewife that no one has ever touched upon.

We get all the diseases last. Not only that, we have to take what everyone in the family brings us. It's like being a social director in a house of pestilence.

A couple of weeks ago, my husband dragged home in the middle of the day and said, "I don't want to panic you, but I may be going to that big car pool in the sky."

"What's the matter?" "My head aches. My body is burning up. I am nauseated. My chest is tight and I can't make a fist. Call a specialist and bring me the TV Guide."

After calling his office, his sister, setting up the card table for his reading material, cancelling his dental appointment and lugging trays to his bed, I heard another call for help.

It was my son who complained, "I'm hot, feel like throwing up and am wobbly. Can I have ice cream for dessert?"

I put him to bed, called the pediatrician, took his mit over to the alternate first baseman, went to school for his homework assignment, bought a coloring book, played 30 games of Old Maid and picked up a prescription at the drugstore.

By the next morning, his brother complained his nose was stuffed up, his head hurt and could I get the electric football game out of the attic.

The traffic at the front door was like freeway. My husband received a planter from the secretary pool, Miss Wartz brought over 30 get-well wishes from the class, and Grandma dropped by with a light pudding and molding clay.

The morning they all went back to their respective jobs, I awoke feeling lousy. "I don't want to panic you," I said to my husband, "But if I were on my Marcus Welby, M.D., I could only be a one-part episode." "Nonsense," he said. "You've just got what the rest of us had, and we lived."

It wasn't fair. Everyone else had a cold that was the "real thing." My cold had no status, no respect . . . and could well have been stamped, "Made in Japan."

My good friend called me up and said, "Didn't I tell you? Someday, they will make one tombstone for housewives everywhere with a standard inscription. It will read, 'I TOLD YOU I WAS SICK.'"

DEAR ABBY: Last week, I went to a luncheon at a neighbor's home. She kept chasing her 5-year-old son outside. Once, when he refused to leave, she picked up the telephone and dialed, whereupon the child took off, running in fear.

I laughed and asked, "Are you pretending to call his father?"
"No," she replied, "I'm calling the witch!" She explained that she calls the witch to "come and get him" when he's "bad." Then, she asked me not to tell him there was no such thing as a witch.

I was appalled and told her that when her son gets older and realizes that she's been lying to him, he won't trust her anymore. She then commented that she didn't care what he thought in the future because it worked for now!

Abby, how do you feel about using these scare tactics to discipline children?
STUNNED

DEAR STUNNED: I'm with you. The truth is always best. And that goes for Santa Claus, the tooth fairy and the stork.

DEAR ABBY: I am 42 and was seriously dating Ernie, a very eligible 60-year-old widower, when the following rift developed in our relationship:

One day Ernie suddenly turned to me and said, "You look like your father."

I immediately countered with, "You look like Sylvia Singer." (Sylvia Singer is a mutual friend who, like Ernie, has light blue eyes and is prematurely gray.)

At this point, Ernie became so infuriated he cursed, which he seldom does.

I then said, "You don't mind telling me that I look like a man, but you become infuriated when I tell you that you look like a woman. Why?"

He said, "It's different when you tell a woman she looks like her father."

I said, "There is no difference. You are still telling a woman that she looks like a man!"

He never called me again, and all my efforts to re-establish communication by phone and mail have failed.

Do you think I was wrong? And how can I patch things up?
SORRY IN D.C.

DEAR SORRY: Yes, you were wrong. When he said you looked like your father, he was merely commenting on a family resemblance. But you retaliated in anger with a castrating comeback in a deliberate attempt to belittle his male ego.

Face it, dear. You blew it.

DEAR ABBY: Lately, everything I've been doing comes out all wrong. I'm 17 and have this reputation of being an easy pick-up. Things couldn't be worse. All the guys treat me like some kind of tramp. Sure, I've made a few mistakes, but nobody lets me forget them.

There are about 20 guys I hand around with who put me down because I have let them use me, thinking that was the way to be popular.

How do I shake this reputation of being a tramp? It makes me feel so low and cheap.

To make matters worse, I really like one of the guys a lot but he won't even look at me.
EASY PICK-UP

DEAR EASY: If you sincerely want to improve your image, you can. First, stay away from the 20 guys you mentioned. And the next time you are with a fellow, make it plain that you will NOT permit him to use you. He may not believe it at first, but consistent ladylike behavior on your part will convince him that you've reformed.

Patient Circle Members Hear Guest Speaker

The Patient Circle of the King's Daughters had its meeting in the ladies parlor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church Tuesday night.

Mrs. Delphia Corbett and Miss Nancy Fritz were welcomed as new members.

Mrs. Clara Shackell introduced Curtis Hendrix, executive vice president of First State Bank, who gave a talk on "Banking." He stated that even though 1974 was a very traumatic year in banking there were no bank failures in North Carolina and only four in the entire United States. He explained how rapidly changes have taken place in the past five years and how persons can expect more and more changes in the future because of automation and volume in the banking business.

Members of the circle contributed toward the United Fund.

Mrs. Cora Powell distributed a list of clothing needed at Murrow Indian Children's Home, Muskogee, Okla., and urged the members to bring to the November meeting clothing to be sent to the home.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Cora Powell and Mrs. Roy Lokken.

Mrs. Polly Dail, president, conducted the meeting.

Spinning Wheel Given To DAR Chapter Saturday

FARMVILLE—The Benjamin May Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution were presented a spinning wheel to grace its Chapter House here at a meeting of the group Saturday afternoon.

Dr. H.A.I. Sugg of Greenville presented the gift in memory of his wife and the Chapter's immediate past regent, Mrs. Suzanne Decker Sugg. "This is a charming addition to the House and a most cherished gift," Dr. Emily Farnham, Regent, said. and life in England.

Mrs. F. McCoy Tripp presented an article by Col. G.I. Epperson on activities of the People's Bicentennial Commission. He said "the prime purpose of the organization is to build a revolutionary movement in America, using the nation's 200th birthday theme as a cover for Marxist ideology."

Reports were given by Miss Tabitha M. DeVisconti of the Constitution Week committee; by Mrs. Kernan of the public relations committee and the press book committee; by Mrs. Thomas Hales of the insignia committee and the Dar Magazine Committee; and by Mrs. Arch Flanagan of the membership committee.

Mrs. Flanagan announced the names of two new members, Mrs. Margaret Lewis Speight of Farmville and Mrs. Madge Jenkins McLawhorn of Winterville. Mrs. Edward Lee Hill reported on "The Bill of Rights." Mrs. Allen Darden told about Operation Santa Claus of the Pitt County Mental Health Association and it was decided that the DAR participate in the project.

Fresh Mushrooms

Served as a hot vegetable or as a complement to a variety of other dishes—fresh mushrooms are nutritious and mighty tasty.

And since fresh mushrooms are grown in houses, cellars or caves, they are available in varying amounts all year round.

But there is a caution. If you do want some fresh mushrooms—let an expert do the picking. It's dangerous to pick wild mushrooms because there are some poisonous ones that so closely resemble edible types—that even experts have a hard time distinguishing them.

At the grocery store—you're safe. But you'll still want to select mushrooms carefully. So first—look for small to medium-size mushrooms. The caps—that's the wide portion on top—should be either closed around the stem or moderately open with pink or light tan gills.

Buy one pound for four to six servings. And select mushrooms that are clean, firm and moist with white to creamy-colored caps.

To prepare fresh mushrooms, clean them by brushing well. Do not wash unless loam clings to them. When necessary, wash quickly but do not soak. You can leave mushrooms whole or remove the stems.

And here's a cooking tip. For sauteed mushrooms, cook in a covered skillet in one-fourth cup butter or margarine for eight to ten minutes. Season with salt and pepper.

Fresh Pineapple

It costs more than five hundred dollars to fly to Hawaii first class, but it costs about fifty cents to bring a first class Hawaiian product—pineapple—to your dining room table.

When choosing pineapple, you'll want to select on that looks fresh—clean—and is heavy for its size. That will be one that is full of juice. Then check to see that it's free from bruises.

And you might look for a yellow. The shell is green when the fruit is picked and may stay that way until the pineapple is purchased. There may be a yellow tinge starting at the bottom of the fruit—but this doesn't affect ripeness either.

There are a couple of other tests you can try to determine whether or not the pineapple is ripe. But I recommend you try them after you get your purchase home.

One is the thump test. Tap the fruit. If you hear a dull thud—you can figure the fruit is ripe and full of juice.

Here's a second test you can do at home. Try pulling a green leaf from the crown of the pineapple. If it comes out easily—chances are the pineapple is ripe.

If you try these tests and find the pineapple you bought isn't quite ripe, don't be concerned. It will ripen at room temperature.

I immediately countered with, "You look like Sylvia Singer." (Sylvia Singer is a mutual friend who, like Ernie, has light blue eyes and is prematurely gray.)
At this point, Ernie became so infuriated he cursed, which he seldom does.
I then said, "You don't mind telling me that I look like a man, but you become infuriated when I tell you that you look like a woman. Why?"
He said, "It's different when you tell a woman she looks like her father."
I said, "There is no difference. You are still telling a woman that she looks like a man!"
He never called me again, and all my efforts to re-establish communication by phone and mail have failed.
Do you think I was wrong? And how can I patch things up?
SORRY IN D.C.
DEAR SORRY: Yes, you were wrong. When he said you looked like your father, he was merely commenting on a family resemblance. But you retaliated in anger with a castrating comeback in a deliberate attempt to belittle his male ego.
Face it, dear. You blew it.
DEAR ABBY: Lately, everything I've been doing comes out all wrong. I'm 17 and have this reputation of being an easy pick-up. Things couldn't be worse. All the guys treat me like some kind of tramp. Sure, I've made a few mistakes, but nobody lets me forget them.
There are about 20 guys I hand around with who put me down because I have let them use me, thinking that was the way to be popular.
How do I shake this reputation of being a tramp? It makes me feel so low and cheap.
To make matters worse, I really like one of the guys a lot but he won't even look at me.
EASY PICK-UP
DEAR EASY: If you sincerely want to improve your image, you can. First, stay away from the 20 guys you mentioned. And the next time you are with a fellow, make it plain that you will NOT permit him to use you. He may not believe it at first, but consistent ladylike behavior on your part will convince him that you've reformed.

May Benefit In Faster Action

The State Utilities Commission is moving more rapidly in hearing rate cases, the Associated Press reported this week.

The speed-up has come about because of some actions by the General Assembly at its last session. The membership of the commission was increased from five to seven and the body can split into two groups of three in order to hear two cases at the same time. In addition $1.2 million was appropriated for expansion of the Utilities Commission staff. Utilities are also now required to submit their evidence at the time they make an application.

Two major cases were recently heard by the commission, one involved Southern Bell Telephone Co.'s request for an increase and another Duke Power Co.'s request for permission to build a new nuclear power station. In the past the full commission would have heard only one case at a time.

Another case involving Carolina Power and Light is expected to be completed in less than six months because of the new evidence rule. In the past the case could have consumed nine months.

Speeding up the hearing of rate increases might not seem beneficial to the consumer, who feels that rate increases in effect under bond while the cases are being heard. When the cases drag out the increase is almost forgotten by the consumer by the time they are finally decided. Then frequently there has been a new rate increase hanging as the Utilities try to justify it because of steadily increasing costs.

If the Utilities Commission can move more rapidly to hear these cases after application for an increase is made, then the state agency will be closer to the facts and hopefully the commission will be able to do more to hold down the increases.

The regulatory processes are at least moving more quickly, and we would like to think that in the long run the consumer will benefit.

Promises Exert Authority

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Ed O'Herron thinks North Carolina needs a governor who will exert authority and use the power of the office to solve some of the state's problems.

The failure to lead, he says, particularly prominent with a Republican governor in office facing a Democratic General Assembly and several key state agencies headed by elected Democrats, is something which a governor could do something about.

First, the governor has control of the budget. Even more importantly, he could "sit down with the people involved and tell them to get on with it."

"It's a case of saying that as a party, we are supposed to provide leadership for the good of the people of North Carolina... and the governor should exert leadership and influence," O'Herron believes.

On The Trail

The Charlotte drugstore executive is on the campaign trail lining up support for his bid to win the Democratic nomination in next August's gubernatorial primary. He is trading in his jet plane, which he pilots himself, for a twin-engine prop craft so he can get around North Carolina's rural airstrips better.

And while he declines to detail specific problems and suggest solutions at this early time—he promises to do that when he formalizes his bid early next year—there comes through loud and clear in his comments the belief that a governor ought to be more assertive and demanding of state government.

Agencies, he said, are showing a tendency to fly off in contrasting directions rather than working together to solve problems.

The state should be run as a team effort with competent, honest leadership, not a one-man show, and O'Herron is convinced that early signs of a runaway win by Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., are premature. "The man in the street hasn't been heard from."

He does confess a name recognition problem, and laughs at the suggestion that his success in that area would be largely solved if his drugstores bore his own name—or if he were Ed Eckerd. O'Herron's father launched the chain in 1921 with a single shop in Charlotte. It was named for O'Herron's grandfather. The corporation now has 228 drugstores in eight Southern states, and two clothing operations as well: Wrangler Wranches and Deb Shoppes, both specializing in female ready-to-wear. O'Herron is chairman of the board, relinquishing his role as chief executive about a year and a half ago, to devote more time to politics and civic activities.

No Labels

At 59 years of age, O'Herron is robust and relaxed, with a mane of silver hair and conservative dress of a corporation executive. While largely considered the candidate of the conservative business community, O'Herron refuses to attach labels to himself: "Labels and Libel," he says, and adds that he would be conservative in fiscal matters, liberal in others.

He is also treading with reluctance in making political promises to win support—they don't mean anything, he says. "If they did, U.S. 17 (Ocean Highway) would be 16 lanes 'cause four governors have promised to four-lane it." Why face the rigors of a political campaign, instead of enjoying the fruits of his years and work? "As Ben Franklin said... they gave us a Republic, if we can keep it. Getting involved is part of that."

Like other gubernatorial candidates before him, O'Herron zeroes in on the state's low per-capita income (about $3,700) as a prime problem needing the combined efforts of trade and vocational schools, other educators, industry hunters, and community leaders.

A former Marine captain who saw battle in the Pacific—including Iwo Jimi—O'Herron won the Silver Star, and while widely traveled, he "wouldn't live any place besides North Carolina. It's a great state... but I'm not saying it can't be improved."

Best 'Watergate Book'

WASHINGTON — Of the writing of Watergate books there will be no end. At least forty such works have appeared thus far. But if you're interested in one Watergate book only, to keep for permanent reference on your library shelf, this is your book: "Washington Journal," by Elizabeth Drew.

Most of the Watergate books that have crossed my desk are characterized by a combination liability and asset: They are the work not of observers, but of participants.

Even Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the Gold Dust twins of the Washington Post, wound up with active roles in the drama.

This observation also comes to mind: Most of the Watergate books have been written by persons who are not writers. The authors are lawyers, most of them, whose pens are filled with library paste. Mrs. Drew, by contrast, came to Watergate as a good sports writer comes to a baseball season. She is a spectator, and experienced observer, a superlative reporter. She turns her level brown eyes on the unfolding history of an incredible year. She looked intently—that is her secret—and then she ran the photo-images through a disciplined mind. This is the reporter's art. She is among the best in town.

The idea for "Washington Journal" developed in August of 1973, in a conversation with William Shawn, editor of The New Yorker. "The rumors about Agnew were slowly seeping," she recalls. "It was like the smell of leaking gas. Both of us had the feeling that something was going to explode. He suggested that I watch it day by day."

She laid in a stock of 5 x 7 notebooks, large enough for copious notes, small enough to fit in her purse; and day by day for a solid year, from White House to Capitol Hill to U.S. District Court, she was a one-woman press gallery. Hers is not the work of scholar or historian, written from the long view of hindsight. It is rather a distillation, drop by drop, from the alembic of each day's events.

Good reporting demands something more than the camera eye and the tape-recording ear. Good reporters react. They question, they doubt, they wonder. In early March of 1974, Mrs. Drew penciled into her notebook a passage that might be assigned to a Greek chorus:

"The question persists: What manner of men were these who once ran the Nixon administration and the country? Of course, we do not yet know whether they are guilty as charged, but we already know much of what (Continued on page 8)

INSIDE REPORT

Mississippi New Politics

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
JACKSON, Miss.—Fueled by an unprecedented issue campaign with aggressive television exposure in this poorest of all states, Republican Gil Carmichael has tossed conventional orthodox overboard in his underdog race to become Mississippi's first Republican governor since carpetbagger Reconstruction days.

Carmichael's self-professed "new politics" is a breathtaking departure for a state long torn apart by the bloody race issue. That corrosive, overwhelming factor in the past century of Deep South politics here seems all but dead and buried. "That's not even a Mickey Mouse issue anymore," conservative Republican state chairman Clarke Reed told us.

Thus, with both Carmichael and Democrat Cliff Finch, his bland, shadowy opponent, courting black voters on newspaper front pages and television screens, Carmichael has zeroed in with courageous abandon on explosively controversial issues no Mississippi politician has dared confront—including Carmichael himself when he captured 40 per cent of the vote against Sen. James O. Eastland in the 1972 senatorial election.

Gun control, for example, Carmichael began airing a television spot three weeks ago calling for registration and licensing of all handguns. While Reed and other political pros in the Carmichael camp blanched, Carmichael insisted voters here are ready for state action in the face of an alarming Mississippi kill-rate from illegal Saturday night specials. In one small Delta town in the first half of 1975, 1,200 handguns were sold by a single pawnshop.

Statewide polls updated each week for Carmichael by Mississippi Opinion Research, founded and headed by Walter DeVries (a skilled political technician who once worked for former Michigan Gov. George Romney), indicate Carmichael's judgment about Mississippi voters may be right. The latest DeVries sample shows an astonishing 71 per cent statewide support for the registration-and-licensing demand.

Or consider Carmichael's call for a new state constitution. To Eastland's Democratic party establishment, this has galvanized Democratic courthouse politicians, whose sinecures and perquisites would be threatened by a new constitution streamlining a state government that has 60 separate agencies dealing with health. Yet, DeVries' polls show 75 per cent voter approval today for Carmichael's new constitution, up from 10 per cent in March.

Fading away of racial politics has created the political change that underpins Carmichael's hard-sell issue campaign. For example, his plan for compulsory education through the eighth grade (in the only state still without compulsory education) would have been suicidal ten years ago.

While racial politics dominated Mississippi, compulsory education raised this spectre: educating blacks for heightened political action. But Carmichael and some other politicians now see a different Mississippi: a state rich in agriculture and raw materials—oil, gas, cotton, rice—and abysmally poor in skilled labor. Thus, educating black youth becomes essential for Mississippi to develop a skilled labor pool and build its own domestic industries to process its raw material.

While Carmichael preaches the new Mississippi in tones not heard before, the Finch campaign is still in neutral, almost invisible to the voter.

A huge and surprise winner of last summer's Democratic primary, Finch is protecting the 58 per cent of the vote he won then by avoiding all controversy, kissing babies and plugging the worker's lunch pail which symbolized his successful primary election theme as "the friend of the workingman."

Finch announces no campaign schedule, holds no press conferences and ignores Carmichael. His big money backers in the Democratic establishment here think that is just the right strategy and are quietly pressing him not to change. But DeVries' polls are painting a different picture: a huge undecided vote (over 30 per cent) that is beginning to break toward Carmichael.

Whether it breaks sharply and soon enough for the Nov. 4 election depends on the black minority, Republican-haters since the New Deal. If the new Mississippi preached by Carmichael can penetrate and change black voting habits of four decades, Mississippi could find itself with a progressive Republican governor—a momentous development in the swiftly changing South.

Other Editors Say Goodbye To WWII

(The Wilson Times)

The visit of his Majesty, the Emperor of Japan, and the Empress has been much more personal than anyone expected. The Emperor and Empress of Japan stay almost in seclusion, they do not mingle with the people as he did on his trip to the United States.

His interest in farming carried him through the dusty furrows on the farms as he inspected the soybeans and other crops. Through his interpreter, Emperor Hirohito asked if "the department stores in Chicago sell insects in bottles."

Mayor Richard J. Daley answered saying the children had plenty of insects at home. The Emperor and Empress came to see. They attended state dinners and every type of entertainment to be offered. But last week in a toast in Chicago he called this the land of Lincoln and the heartland of the North American continent. And after luncheon he was on his way to inspect the livestock and ride a soybean combine and throw a switch on a grain dryer on a 2,300-acre farm.

Before starting west, he visited the colonial restoration at Williamsburg, Va., the nation's Capitol, the Weeds Hole Oceanographic Institute on Cape Cod in Massachusetts, and the United Nations in New York City. In New York he watched a professional football game. When he left Chicago he stopped by Disneyland, San Diego and San Francisco, then flew to Honolulu on the way home to Tokyo.

The Emperor's visit is called the "realization of a long-held dream." There is little doubt that the trip was planned as a last good-bye to World War II, and all it stood for.

The 74-year-old Emperor, stripped of real power by the 1947 Japanese constitution, which was written by the Americans, made references to the war without flinching. In Norfolk, Va., he sent but did not take a wreath to be placed on the tomb of General Douglas MacArthur, the man who saved him from a war criminal's trial in 1946 and who is regarded as a conquering hero in Japan today.

When the Emperor and his party were entertained at the White House, no mention was made of the war, which he later called a "tragic and deplorable war." The Emperor personally placed a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldiers.

Officials disclosed today that France and Great Britain are asking Washington if the United States is willing to restrict imports from Italy in case a sanction is placed on Mussolini's fascist government by the League of Nations.

The same question is also being asked other powers, including Germany, Japan and Brazil.

Emperor Haile Selassie complained today at reports that Ethiopia had suffered some defeats on battle fronts. Italian occupation of Aduwa and Aksum, he said, was without military significance.

Default Can't Make It Worse

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Some highly regarded authorities on municipal bonds say financial default by New York City isn't likely to have further serious impact on the already inflated borrowing costs of other cities.

Their reason for the relatively optimistic view, if that is what it may be called, is based primarily on the assumption that so much damage to confidence already has occurred that a default could hardly make it worse.

Borrowing through the issuance of bonds has been made literally impossible for many local and state governments and their agencies. Even those with the highest ratings are forced to pay record high rates.

"What do you mean 'ripple effect,'" said a Kansas City dealer about the widespread loss of confidence and resulting higher borrowing costs. "It's been a tidal wave here." Some dealers believe it can't get worse.

"I don't think that in or out of New York municipal bonds will be discounted much more," said Siegel E. Canady Jr., of John Nuveen & Co., a 77-year-old house that specializes in tax-exempt municipal bonds.

"An actual default will be no catastrophe," he said. "There will be an initial drop in the market for certain, but a rebound will follow and in a few weeks the market will be where it was before."

Canady doesn't eliminate the possibility of damage to confidence that might take years to overcome. Nor does he ignore the chance that "social and other problems might follow in New York City." But he does feel the impact on the structure of the market, and trading, will be relatively slight.

A return to existing conditions however can hardly be construed as completely encouraging, because the market today is so badly depressed. Roughly $20 billion has been erased from the value of municipal securities in just one year.

The Standard & Poor's municipal bond index shows average borrowing costs now are at 7.32 per cent, after reaching an all-time high of 7.40 a week ago. A year ago the index was about 6.6 per cent.

Dow Jones showed municipal bonds yielding investors 7.63 per cent last week, more than a full percentage point over rates of just one year ago.

"The market is in a psychic panic," said Brenton Harries, president of Standard & Poor's Corp., which assigns credit ratings to about 95 per cent of the more than $200 billion worth of municipal bonds outstanding.

Potential investors in municipal securities, he said, have reacted "totally out of proportion to the risk." In other words, he indicated, the worst might already have been taken into account.

People Love Poetry

By LYNNE OLSON

Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP)—The crowd pushed hard to get close to Sergei Yessenin's grave.

Teen-age boys perched in trees to get a better look, and old women listened raptly as a young man recited from memory the verses of Yessenin, a young lyric poet who killed himself in 1925.

It was the 80th anniversary of Yessenin's birth, and hundreds of people streamed to Moscow's Vagankovskoye Cemetery throughout the day to lay fresh flowers, recite his poetry or simply stand silently in tribute before his simple grave.

When Yessenin, the former husband of the late American dancer, Isadora Duncan, slashed his wrists, dozens of grief-stricken admirers across the country followed his example. A young woman named Galya hanged herself on a tree near his grave. The tree still stands.

The Soviets' love of poetry and the men and women who write it is a striking phenomenon in a country which was largely illiterate less than 60 years ago.

New editions of poems by Yessenin, Alexander Pushkin, Vladimir Mayakovsky and Mikhail Lermontov — the most popular of the older Russian poets — are sold out within hours after they're put on bookstore shelves.

Those poets, particularly Pushkin, who died in a duel in 1837, are idolized by young and old alike, and practically every educated Russian can recite some of their poetry by heart.

The best-known contemporary poets, such as Yevgeny Yevtushenko and Andrei Voznesensky, are treated like rock music stars by the young, and swarms of high school and college students flock to their infrequent poetry readings.

The Soviets are also fond of a wide range of Western poetry, from Sir Walter Scott to Robert Burns to the U.S. black poet Langston Hughes. They patiently stand in line whenever works by these poets become available — a rare event.

For the Soviet people, poetry "is not entertainment but a living necessity," says Vasily Bekki, a Leningrad poet who emigrated to the West in 1973. "Poetry is read, learned by heart and sung to guitars."

Strength For Today

BOOMERANG
Whatever we do of good eventually comes back to us again to do us good. Similarly, whatever we do of evil comes back to injure us. The Bible expresses it by saying, "Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days."

Evil men may flourish for a time, but at the end God will put something on the other side of the scales which will make them balance. God has made this world in such a way that although men may seem to be able to do evil with impunity, retribution always takes place. Of course, the good or evil that we may do might not bring its reward or punishment quickly. Sometimes one or both may be delayed for a generation or more; occasionally for centuries. There are some situations in which full justice will only be done in the eternity of God.

Therefore we should be careful of our thoughts, more careful of our words, and most careful of our acts. These last two are boomerangs which will come back to bless or punish us.

Step Toward Artificial Heart

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In a major step toward the use of artificial hearts, the government has approved the first human experiments using a mechanical device to help out the heart's main pumping chamber.

The National Heart and Lung Institute (NHLI) said approval of human clinical trials marks a significant milestone toward the goal of artificial heart implants, since the sophisticated pumps operate on the same principle to circulate the blood.

The experiments are aimed at fighting heart disease, the nation's No. 1 killer. If successful, the pumps could be life savers for many patients entering the critical recovery period after surgery, and perhaps for high-risk coronary occlusion patients before permanent damage is inflicted, specialists said.

The Texas Heart Institute in Houston and the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston have been given approval to implant the blood pumps, called left ventricular assist devices (LVAD), in selected patients who have difficulty in being weaned from heart and lung machines after cardiac surgery.

About 50,000 open-heart operations were performed last year, half of them coronary artery bypass procedures with a mortality rate of between 2 and 8 per cent. Many others involved heart valve replacements with an even higher risk factor.

Two types of LVADs made by Thermo Electron Corp. of Waltham, Mass., will be used in the tests. They are stainless steel cylinders about four inches long with a polyurethane bladder inside. One contains an inner surface with polyester fibers which react with blood to form fibrous or scar tissue compatible with blood flowing through it.

The device is implanted in the abdominal cavity and connects the heart's left ventricular chamber to the descending aorta, the body's largest artery, which supplies fresh oxygen-rich blood.

Under the federal guidelines, the device is to be implanted for a matter of weeks, at most, in selected patients whose weakened hearts need help in recovering from the stress of open-heart surgery. Development of a reliable long-term LVAD is two years away.

"This is an assist device. It does not replace the heart," said Dr. Peter L. Frommer, the NHLI official who heads the cardiovascular devices branch. "It is designed to take over a fraction of the main pumping chamber of the heart for periods up to several weeks."

When the patient no longer needs the boost, the pump's external power supply will be removed. The device will remain in the abdominal cavity but will cease functioning as the heart's natural pumping takes over.

Dr. Treffert To Be Speaking Oct. 22

Dr. Darold A. Treffert of Fond Du Lac, Wis., director of the Winnebago Mental Health Institute and chief executive officer for 11 years of a psychiatric institute at Winnebago, Wis., will be the featured speaker at the special Pitt County Mental Health Association and ECU Allied Health Affairs Day Wednesday, Oct. 22, at 12:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

DR. D. A. TREFFERT

The noon and evening meetings, open to the public without charge, are designed to unfold facts about the sharp increase in teen-age suicides in the United States, the drug abuse epidemic and the drop-outs among the young and old as Treffert places part of the blame on what he calls "The American Fairy Tale."

The meetings will be held in ECU's Allied Health Building Auditorium located at South Charles Street. Dr. Clinton Prewett, program chairman of Pitt County's Mental Health Association and former chairman of ECU's Department of Psychology, will introduce the speaker.

Treffert will discuss "Oval Souls on a Round Planet" at the noon meeting and the "Fairy Tale" at the evening session. A question-and-answer period will follow each.

Treffert was awarded his Bachelor of Arts and Doctor of Medicine degrees from the University of Wisconsin. In 1965 he received his diplomate certification from the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology as a specialist in psychiatry.

(Continued from page 4) happened. If they are found not guilty in strictly legal terms, they nevertheless chose strangely conspiratorial subordinates and created an atmosphere of punitiveness wherein they tolerated or encouraged an array of misdeeds which is still hard to comprehend."

That is as far an analysis, as dispassionate a diagnosis, as you could ask. Again and again, musing upon the drama, Mrs. Drew returns to the abiding question: How can flawed leaders be detected? How can they be restrained? "Given that we entrust power to fallible human beings, how can we prevent things like this from happening again?"

Sometimes her detachment is Machiavellian. The House Judiciary Committee, hot on Nixon's trail, kept leaping from blunder to blunder on the scent of tapes and transcripts. Eventually the committee ran the President to earth. The committee's search, says Mrs. Drew wryly, "may be quite instructive to future leaders, who could perhaps conclude from all this not that these things should not be done, but that they should be done more skillfully."

This is a painful book. Mrs. Drew felt the pain. She watched Nixon's farewell speech through a mist of tears: "And so the grief that one feels at the moment is for him, this man whose character was his fate, and for us, that we went through so much with him and because of him. He did make his ordeal ours." Whole libraries will be written on Watergate, but I doubt you will find a better epitaph anywhere.

City Counts 2 Accidents

An estimated $875 property damage resulted yesterday from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted when a car driven by Walter May Harris of Route 6, Greenville collided with a truck operated by Richard Elliot Capehart Jr. of 606 Hudson St. about 9:15 a.m. on Memorial Drive south of the Farnville Boulevard intersection.

Police who charged Capehart with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $500 to the Harris car. No damage resulted to the Capehart car officers said.

No charges were reported following investigation of an 8:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Chestnut Street and Manhattan Avenue.

Officers reported cars driven by Samuel Lee Dixon of Route 1, Ayden and Anna Marie Payne of 2606 South Evans St. were involved in the mishap which resulted in an estimated $100 damage to the Dixon car and $275 damage to the Payne auto.

Mandelstam points up the irony of the fact that throughout the nation's history, the poets most loved by the people generally have been disliked and feared by the authorities.

Mandelstam himself died in a Stalinist labor camp in the late 1930s. Last year, a limited edition of his collected poems, which appeared without advance word, was gone within hours.

More modern poets like Alexander Tvardovsky, Anna Akhmatova and Nobel Prize winner Boris Pasternak, author of "Dr. Zhivago," also suffered ostracism and oppression, although their poetry is much sought after by young Soviets.

New York City Layoffs Loom

By SUSAN EVERLY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — As many as 8,000 municipal employees, including 900 policemen, may have to be fired as a result of the latest state-mandated $200-million cut of New York City's budget, City Hall sources say.

The exact number of layoffs will be determined in the next week, but Mayor Abraham D. Beame said Wednesday that it would be "in the thousands." The city's fiscal crisis has already resulted in the layoff of 21,000 workers.

The news of the layoffs came as the mayor presented his plan for the $200 million in budget cuts to Gov. Hugh Carey and other members of the state's Emergency Financial Control Board, which has taken control of the debt-ridden city's fiscal affairs.

"We can take no pride in the plan because it places a higher priority on the economic realities confronting the city rather than upon the needs of our citizens," Beame told newsmen.

The board gave preliminary approval to the plan, but Carey withheld full endorsement pending further study. The board has until Monday to accept the plan or impose one of its own.

Victor Gotbaum, head of a coalition of municipal union leaders, called the proposal unconscionable. He has already warned that the city and its 250,000 public employees were on a "collision course that is leading to a general strike."

City commissioners left City Hall glum-faced after attending a briefing on the cuts which range from 3 per cent in the budget of the police, fire and sanitation departments to 4 and 5 per cent for education and health and up to 8 per cent for some other agencies.

Disagreed Over Prime School Teaching Role

At a public forum entitled "What Should the Schools Teach?" held Tuesday night, participants disagreed on what the most important overall goal of public education should be.

Dr. Carl Dolce, Dean of the School of Education at North Carolina State University said the main responsibility of the school is "to the child's intellectual and academic development."

George Kahdy, Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services, State Department of Public Instruction, maintained that schools should help each child toward the goal of leading a good life, to teach the child "to live and let live."

Dr. Dolce and Kahdy both spoke at a public meeting sponsored by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters (LWV). The meeting was held at the Allied Health Building.

Dr. Dolce charged that the schools are failing too many of our children, that too many graduates can neither read, write or compute well enough to function most effectively as members of society.

He pointed out that Scholastic Aptitude Test (S.A.T.) scores have declined steadily over the past 12 years and that the more capable students are showing less academic achievement than comparable students were showing 12 years ago. He said that we must not use the alibi that tests don't show what progress has been made because, though not infallible, tests definitely are indicators of how much progress has been made.

"Basic education must be taught first and foremost," stated Dr. Dolce, "not just conventional skills, but also those matters which, once learned, help a person to learn even more." Dr. Dolce believes a humane but rigorous approach to teaching is needed, utilizing different teaching techniques according to what works best with each individual child.

George Kahdy feels that the schools, with help from the community, should help young people negotiate with the world by teaching fair play and the skill of interacting with one another.

"Schools should teach basic learning," said Kahdy. According to him, this includes reading and writing, computation, mental and physical health and fitness, science, occupational opportunities, and cultural arts.

"We should find fault with our schools," said Kahdy, "so we won't rest on our laurels. But we should also recognize our progress. There are now fewer drop-outs and failures, and more graduating with job skills. But there are still too many drop-outs and failures. Maybe we should examine what and how we are teaching these students to see if we are doing our best for them."

Panel members then gave brief comments. Dr. Thomas Williams of the Modern Language Department at ECU charged that education has "sloppy licensing techniques for teachers." He said that these should be changed to get the most qualified people.

Ms. Myree Hayes of the Psychology Department at ECU stressed the importance of the parents' responsibility in the education of the child in the first five years of life, preparing him or her for a successful school experience.

Dr. Buford Rhea of the Sociology Department at ECU wondered if we know what we are really teaching. "Sometimes," said Dr. Rhea, "those things taught in the informal or hidden curriculum interfere with what we are trying to teach in our formal curriculum. For example, some children learn not to achieve."

Following the presentations an audience question and discussion period was moderated by Rhea Resnik, president of the local LWV.

This meeting was the first in a series of three education forums being held on consecutive Tuesday nights in October.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered to nearby retail stores were 64.69 cents for A large white; 61.41 for medium and 47.51 for small.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)— Grain prices were weaker Wednesday on North Carolina markets. No. 2 yellow shelled corn was quoted at 2.65-2.70, mostly 2.67 in the east and 2.75-2.85 in the Piedmont. No. 1 yellow soybeans were 4.90-4.99; No. 2 red oats 1.30-1.50; No. 2 red winter wheat 3.25-3.50.

NEW YORK (AP) The stock market staged a broad advance today, reacting to a new economic stimulus from the Federal Reserve.

Late Wednesday the Fed announced it was lowering the amount of reserves member banks must hold against time deposits from 3 to 1 per cent.

Such a move in theory means downward pressure on interest rates as well as an injection of additional money into the banking system to fuel a recovery from the recession.

Interest rates in both the bond and short term money markets fell substantially this morning in response to the news.

After climbing nearly 10 points in the early going, the Dow settled back a bit as some traders took profits.

Westinghouse Electric was the volume leader on the Big Board, down 3/4 at 13. A 268,000-share block traded at that price.

Eastman Kodak climbed 1 1/2 to 102 1/2 on the company's report of a 14 per cent gain in third quarter earnings.

The NYSE's composite index picked up .46 to 47.70 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .43 to 84.40.

IN MEMORIAM

It is with sorrow that we record the passing of Jack Marston, Chairman of our Greenville Board. Jack Marston came to Greenville twenty years ago with the simple philosophy that banking facilities were for the masses with character as the basic loan collateral. In the years that followed the people in the community found a helping hand offered to them during the boom of the 60's many a small business man found the capital he needed to share in the economic upturn.

It was characteristic of the man to find him in the lobby talking with customers, at a tobacco barn in the country in the summer, or at a fish fry, wherever the people were.

In a world of turmoil, it is comforting to recall the dedication of this man to the service of mankind, for in its noblest sense operating a bank, as Jack Marston knew, is a privilege to serve, granted by the people.

Jack Marston's legacy is written in the hearts of many people.

Robbed At Gun Point

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating an armed robbery that occurred Wednesday afternoon west of Bethel that resulted in the theft of some $200 in cash and $750 in checks.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Daniel J. Hopkins, 27, of Rt. 1, Nashville, a truck driver for Pamlico Distributing Co. of Washington, reported he was robbed at gun point by two men as he was making a beer delivery at Hyman's Store on Highway 64 around 3:25 p.m.

Hopkins told deputies that he stopped in front of the store and two men pulled up behind him in a car. One of the men got out of the car, pointed a pistol at him and hit him in the face with the other hand, the victim reported.

According to Sheriff Tyson, a wallet that had been chained to Hopkins' belt was taken in the incident and the men fled towards Belvoir on the Porter Road.

Hopkins was not injured, it was noted.

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Southern National Corp., parent of the Southern National Bank, reports a 2 per cent drop in third-quarter earnings, but a net operating profit for the first nine months of 1975.

Invention By Mad Scientist

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The former owner of a furnace manufacturing business in Charlotte, 69-year-old Charles Besser, calls himself a mad scientist. And he has invented what you might call another type of furnace—a digester that takes garbage and sewage and turns it into gas and liquid fertilizer.

Besser says that with his system any farm or dairy can become independent of outside energy sources. He has formed a firm called Surplus Energy, Inc., to exploit his process.

Tired Of Waiting For Govm't To Build Dike

ATHENS, Pa. (AP) — Businessmen in this small town on the Susquehanna River figured if the federal government couldn't afford more flood protection for Athens, they'd provide it themselves.

Last weekend, 11 contractors and six fuel companies went to work on the 4,100-foot levee along the river near the New York border. During Hurricane Eloise last month, the river just missed overflowing the dike.

When the dust settled Sunday, Athens' 4,000 residents, still recovering from $10 million in damage from 1972 floods, had three extra feet of protection on the 10-to 20-foot-wide dike.

"Everyone sits on their rump and waits for the federal government to do things," said contractor Robert Sullivan, who organized the weekend project. "Well, the government just doesn't have the money anymore. I think every small town should help itself," said the 36-year-old Athens native.

An Army Corps of Engineers report — issued two days before Eloise sent river waters near the top of the dike — spurred the townspeople into action.

The report rejected a $1.5 million project to improve Athens' flood protection, saying the plan — of which the dike was just a small part — far outweighed its benefits. The Corps said the reservoirs upstream would provide adequate flood control for Athens.

Unbeatens Getting Further Grid Tests

North Pitt's James Carr

With the high school football season winding down, a showdown is shaping up in the Eastern Carolina conference and after Friday night's games, there should be some fireworks the following Friday.

First, the scores: Ayden-Grifton 49, North Lenoir 0; Farmville Central 30, D. H. Conley 0; North Pitt 14, Southern Nash 13; Greene Central 22, C. B. Aycock 8; Roanoke 49; South Edgecombe 9; Williamston 23, Tarboro 6; Mattamuskeet 22, Jamesville 12.

Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central, both the leaders in the East Carolina Conference with 3-0 records are scheduled to meet in Farmville a week from Friday night. First, the two teams have to get by this week's opponents.

Ayden-Grifton travels to face an up-and-coming Greene Central team. The Rams have won two loop games in a row since losing their first to Farmville Central. The Rams dropped their first four games while after the first three, A-G was just 1-1. The Chargers have come alive, too, but in a more grandiose style. They have won their last four in a row, their last two by 49-0 scores.

Ned Craft scored three times against North Lenoir to up his season total to seven TD's. Dennis Cristiano threw a touchdown pass, Twendie Simpson scored his first and the defense returned an interception for a score. The Chargers picked up 310 yards total offense while holding North Lenoir to minus 29 yards rushing.

The Rams are coming off a big homecoming win but it will take a herculean effort to stop the Chargers.

Farmville Central recorded a shut out Friday beating Conley. The team had a fine first scoring two times with the offense, once with the defense and once with the special team. But the offense could not get cranked up again in the second half and the only other points came on a safety. Against Aycock, the Jaguars may be able to get away with letting the offense throttle back. But a week from Friday the Jaguars will have to keep the throttle all the way open and keep the offense in high gear against Ayden-Grifton.

The Jaguars picked up 282 yards total offense but were hurt on four Conley pass completions for 94 yards.

Conley will be returning home by only to meet a Southern Nash team that has been kicked around by the other three Pitt County teams. First Ayden-Grifton, then FC and last week North Pitt have all beaten the Firebirds. North Pitt did it in the closing seconds Friday. Southern will be looking for a way out of its slump at the expense of the Vikings and if they play the way they did Friday night, the streak may stop. Southern ran over, around and through North Pitt for 210 yards but when the Firebirds needed the yardage the most, North Pitt would not let them have it. Southern cut the lead to 14-13 with 25 seconds left to play Friday but the three yards they needed for the win, North Pitt kept in its collective pocket.

The win has got to help the Panthers who were kicked around themselves the previous week by Ayden-Grifton. North Pitt's Donnie Perkins hit nine passes Friday for 99 yards and he will be throwing against a North Pitt team that gave up only three competitions to the Chargers.

Roanoke's Ricky Spruill scored five more touchdowns Friday as he led Roanoke to another win, this one over South Edgecombe. Roanoke gets to meet another Edgecombe team this week as the Redskins host the team from the north.

Williamston's Tigers bounced back off a loss to Washington to dump Tarboro, 23-6 for the Tiger's fifth win. Deno Lloyd scored three times for Williamston, two in passes and one on a run as he gained 173 yards in total offense. The Tigers had 292 as a team. Williamston has a tough game this week as the Tigers host Ahoskie.

met Friday night in a battle of the also rans. Both teams came into the game looking for a win and one went away still looking for a win.

Mattamuskeet handed Jamesville its sixth loss, but their was something good about Jamesville's performance. Jerry Ange teamed up with Rufus Simmons 11 times for 134 of the Bullets' 151 passing yards. Jamesville travels to Manteo this week, still trying to get in the win column.

Small Size Was Not Hinderance

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
BETHEL — It goes without saying that North Pitt football has had its problems this season and Panther running back Glen Langley has one possible explanation for the cause.

"We have some big guys (in school) but they won't support the team so the little guys have to come out and work harder." Langley is one of those "little guys" but it would be hard to tell on the field. Langley is the most-used back on the offensive team having carried the ball 58 times for the Panthers. He has only gained 147 yards however proving his point about the big guys. If the Panthers had more big linemen, all the backs might have been able to gain more yardage.

This is Langley's third year of organized football having started playing as a freshman. "I liked football and wanted to be a football player," he said. As a freshman he played a defensive halfback and moved to running back his sophomore year. He feels he has improved more as an offensive player than a defensive player because, "I work at it more and put more time into it."

Things that he says have helped him become better are studying the offenses, hard practices and lifting weights. Langley offered another factor in the Panthers' problems this season. "We are a medium team but we can be strong if we work hard. We don't have a winning spirit. If we play the way we are capable we can be strong."

Even the Panther record is just 2-6, Langley feels the team has improved. "Our offensive line is better, the defensive line is better and we are better conditioned."

"We have the chance to have the best season at North Pitt. We will have to put out more," he said. While there are seemingly few things North Pitt can be happy about, Langley says there are some. "We beat C.B. Aycock there last year," he said, to spoil the Falcon's Homecoming. People had said the Panthers would lose that one. Then last year's win over Ayden-Grifton was also another high spot.

Outside of football, Langley has little time for anything else. He lettered twice in the sport and has lettered twice in basketball. He is also in the junior ROTC.

Langley said that one personal high spot was when he was a freshman. "I was told I was too little. I figured if I was to be anything I would have to work at it."

The Panthers have four games left and Langley says they can still come out ahead. "If we play up to our capabilities, and if we want to win.

The White came back in the fourth period with one score as Grant Stackhouse went over from the one. George Wilson added the PAT. # Tiant Hurls Boston Back Into Series

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — The magic of the Cincinnati Reds at Riverfront Stadium is nothing compared to the magic of Luis Tiant.

The tricky Boston right-hander broke Cincinnati's home field spell with some slight of hand Wednesday night and made the Reds disappear in the fourth game of the World Series.

Squirming out of more jams than a Houdini, Tiant tamed the Reds 5-4 with a remarkably courageous performance and led the buoyant Red Sox into a 2-2 tie in the best-of-seven Series.

"The man has done the job all year long," said Boston Manager Darrell Johnson, who will start Reggie Cleveland against Cincinnati's Don Gullett in Game 5 tonight. "He was out there at the end tonight, and he did the job again."

The Reds have been almost impossible to beat at home this year. They had a 67-17 record before Wednesday night's game. At first, it looked like they were going to continue their dramatic domination at Riverfront against Tiant.

Boston's star pitcher, who had shut out Cincinnati at Fenway Park in the Series opener last Saturday, was obviously not himself with only three days' rest. The Reds gave the roaring Riverfront fans a lift with two quick runs off the chunky right-hander in the first inning.

"My breaking ball was not as good as it was in Boston," Tiant, stroking his famous Fu Manchu mustache, told the press later: "I used my fastball more tonight. Also, the mound is higher here than in Fenway Park. That bothered my control."

But the sudden Cincinnati thunder didn't take the heart out of Tiant. If anything, he pitched with more heart as the pulsating game wore on.

Down 2-0 in the first, Boston didn't stay that way for long. The Sox routed Cincinnati left-hander Fred Norman with a five-run fourth — and suddenly the Red Sox and their ancient right-hander had a 5-2 lead.

Tiant was still struggling, though. In the Reds' half of the fourth, he gave up two runs. Johnson said, however, that he had no intention of taking his best pitcher out of the game.

"Luis did seem to have a breakdown with the mound a couple of times," Johnson said.

"But it took a couple of hitters for him to straighten himself out and he was on his way again."

Magically, Tiant worked out of the jam in the fourth. The right-hander also had nervous times in the fifth, gave up hits in the sixth and eighth and then found himself in big trouble in the ninth.

Tiant gave up a leadoff single to Cesar Geronimo and then a sacrifice bunt to Ed Armbrister that moved the potential tying run into scoring position.

Working with extreme care to the dangerous Pete Rose, Tiant walked him to put men on first and second with one out. Then Ken Griffey hit one of Tiant's pitches way back in center field and sleek Fred Lynn raced back to make a stunning catch over his head.

Then Tiant faced Joe Morgan, the Cincinnati sparkplug who was the Reds' hero Tuesday night, and got him on a harmless popup to Carl Yastrzemski at first. That did it, and Tiant's joyous teammates swamped him, pounding his back and hugging the extraordinary Cuban who made 163 pitches in nine tireless innings.

"It was a great effort on his part," said Fisk. "It was a tough situation to walk out of alive. He was really aggressive out there tonight."

Tiant worked his wonderful magic in a splendid World Series setting. The game had everything. Yastrzemski, the Boston captain, said, "It was one helluva game," the winner's smile painted on his face in broad brush strokes. "You didn't know until the last out who was going to win. And that's the way a World Series game should be played."

Doubles by Griffey and Johnny Bench in the first inning produced two Cincinnati runs before the Red Sox came back with their game-breaking inning in the fourth. Dwight Evans tripled home two runs to tie the game and Rick Burleson, a defensive giant all Series, doubled home another to give the Red Sox their go-ahead run.

Then they wrapped it up as a fourth run scored with the help of an infield error and a fifth on Yastrzemski's single. That made it 5-2 Boston before the never-say-die Reds came back in their half of the inning on run-scoring hits by Dave Concepcion and Geronimo.

The Red Sox victory insured that the series will go back to Boston for at least a sixth game on Saturday.

"We've earned some respect from the Reds, I think," said catcher Carlton Fisk.

And now the Red Sox have a good chance to earn a World Series.

Red Sox Think In Charge Now

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Boston Red Sox, their old confidence restored by the clutch pitching of ageless Luis Tiant, think they're back in the driver's seat in their World Series showdown with the mighty Cincinnati Reds.

Angered and frustrated as the victims of a controversial umpiring call in a 10-inning loss in the third game, the Red Sox bounced back to defeat the Reds 5-4 Wednesday night, evening the best-of-seven Series at two games apiece.

The Red Sox weren't running around making predictions, but they were their old confident selves in the clubhouse. The combination of that, Cincinnati's failure to play up to regular season form and the sixth and seventh games scheduled for Boston could spell big trouble for the Reds.

"This win tonight was a big one, a mighty big one," Manager Darrell Johnson said after Tiant threw 163 pitches in hanging on for the fourth game victory. "It means we'll definitely get a shot at them on our home grounds."

Down 2-1 in the Series, the Red Sox knew they had to win behind Tiant or face the spectre of elimination in the fifth game tonight at Riverfront Stadium.

"We just had to get that one tonight," said Dwight Evans, who had a two-run triple which tied the score 2-2 in Boston's five-run fourth inning.

"We were up," the Boston right fielder said. "We all knew we got beaten by the umpire Tuesday night when he didn't call interference on the bunt in the 10th inning. However, we forgot about that and went out and played hard."

Tiant, an 18-game winner who beat Oakland in the American League playoff and then shut out Cincinnati last Saturday, made the Perils of Pauline look like child's play. He went the route in what Carl Yastrzemski called "one of the most courageous performances I've ever seen."

Johnson had planned to pitch southpaw Bill Lee tonight in the event that Tiant had lost. However, he changed his mind quickly, naming Reggie Cleveland to pitch the final baseball game this year in Cincinnati.

"I have a hunch that Cleveland may do better on this artificial surface," Johnson said. "I don't think Bill Lee is ready to pitch here. As a sinker ball pitcher, I think he will be much more effective in Boston on the natural turf Saturday."

Asked who his pitcher would be in the seventh game Sunday, if needed, Johnson broke into a wide grin and quipped: "Guess."

Tiant, winner of seven of his last eight games, asked if he would be ready for Sunday. "Better believe it," was his quick reply.

"Chapman is so quick," said Houston Coach Bill Yeoman. "He destroyed our consistency on offense."

NTSU line coach Bob Lee said "I've seen a lot better athletes but I've never seen a player work harder or be as intense as Walter. He is the most consistent noseguard I've ever seen."

Lee added "He's quick because he wants to be quick. He's the strongest player on the team. He always takes a beating because he gives everything he has. He's a vicious, vicious hitter. He is completely spent at the end of a game — exhausted."

Fry said "You could put Walter Chapman in the Texas-OU game and he would be outstanding."

Chapman doesn't have much to say about himself. "The team is what is important," he said. "People are going to find out we have a good football team."

Lee said coaches could never use Chapman in practice in walk-through dummy drills.

"He'd hurt people because he only has one ear," said Lee. "He only knows one way and that's all out, full speed. He's a great practice player."

And Houston was the victim the very first time Chapman was told he couldn't practice.

Power Shortage Bothering Reds

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati's Big Red Machine is suffering from a power shortage.

"This is not the team I know," lamented Joe Morgan after Luis Tiant short-circuited the National League champions Wednesday night for the second time, evening the World Series at 2-2, with a gutty 4-1 victory.

The Reds, who romped to a 20-game victory margin in the NL West, then stormed past opponent Pittsburgh in three straight playoff games, have an acute case of slumbering bats.

Fearful as one of baseball's most awesome offenses in years, the Big Red Machine has lurched to a slow start, averaging a meek .212 against Boston in World Series play.

"You have to attribute some of it to their pitching staff," said Morgan. He may have meant Tiant, the balding batter who has taunted the Reds with his tantalizing assortment of slow, slow and slower stuff.

"I didn't think he would beat us," said Morgan, whom Tiant coaxed into to a game-ending popup after the Reds mounted a ninth-inning threat, putting runners at second and first.

"Even as the game went on I was waiting for us to explode. He's something when he has to be," said Morgan, who led the Reds during the regular season with a .323 mark but has only three hits in four games for a sickly .214.

"We made mistakes again and you can't make mistakes against a good team," said the fiery all-star second baseman.

The gloomiest of the Reds is slugger Tony Perez, the most prolific run producer in baseball over the past nine years, but a pathetic, slump-ridden figure in Series play.

Perez is 0-for-14, one of the worst slumps of his career.

"I'm trying everything," said Perez, who has suddenly gone cold after batting .417 in the playoff sweep of Pittsburgh.

"Louie's got me on my toes. I can't wait. I can't stay back on the motion," said the disconsolate Cuban, who added to his woes by bobbling a grounder that allowed a Boston run to score during a five-run bombardment in the fourth.

How good was Tiant?

Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson wasted no words. "All I can say is that Luis is doing all the talking for himself."

Duke Holding Anniversary

By The Associated Press
Duke will celebrate its 50th year of football in the home game against Clemson Saturday.

That will be part of the Blue Devil Homecoming activities. The 1925 team, the first one after the school changed its name from Trinity College to Duke University, will be on the campus for a reunion.

Duke is 19th among the winningest major college football teams over the last 50 years. It has a 296-178-21 record. It is the only school in the Atlantic Coast Conference to be ranked in the top 40.

Duke is 2-3 and Clemson 1-4. Each has won its only league game. Maryland, the conference defending champion, is 2-0 in the league.

The Blue Devils and the Clemson Tigers won last week. Duke ran for 309 yards in defeating the Army 21-10 at West Point. Clemson, after losing to four outside opponents, won 16-14 over Wake Forest at home.

Both defenses have been porous. Duke has yielded an average of 357.4 yards a game, and Clemson 350.

Other games for ACC teams Saturday will be Maryland at Wake Forest at night, North Carolina at North Carolina State, and Virginia at Virginia Tech.

Although Wake Forest is only 1-4, the Deacons have lost their last three games by a total of only five points. They are only 12 points from a 5-0 mark. Two of the losses have come by last-second field goals, including last week's Clemson game.

The Maryland Terrapins have won 12 league games in a row, starting with a 37-0 victory over Wake Forest in 1973 in Winston-Salem.

Both North Carolina and N.C. State are coming off defeats. The State Wolfpack lost to Maryland 37-22 and the Tar Heels to Notre Dame, 21-14.

Don Buckley needs only three more catches to become State's all-time reception leader with 84. The record of 83 is held by Gary Rowe, who set it during the 1964-1966 campaigns.

Buckley, a senior, established the State yardage record in the final game last season. His total now is 1,411.

Dino Staton led the offense for Rose with 83 yards.

The Ramblants play host to Northern Nash next week.

Not Hard To Recognize Pan-Am Cubans

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Sports Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United States may not officially recognize Cuba, but it's getting hard not to recognize the Cubans at the VII Pan American games.

They're the ones with all the gold medals.

The insurgent, imperturbable Cubans seem to be one of the few islands of solidarity in an increasingly fouled-up scene here. It could be days before perplexing problems of Wednesday, the third day of competition, are laid to rest.

As a lighter, and hopefully less hectic, schedule began today, the Cubans had added their gold medal total to 22, with 11 silver and eight bronze. The well-financed American effort trailed with 18 golds, but led in over-all medals with 16 silver and 14 bronze, for a 48-41 edge over Cuba. Canada was next at 4-4-10.

Of the events held Wednesday in 15 categories, at least half experienced maddening, sometimes classic, foul-ups.

A mini riot — complete with unruly mobs and armed troops — broke out when Canada's Brad Farrow was declared winner over Cuba's Hector Rodriguez on a disqualification in semi-lightweight judo. The Cuban delegation was so incensed, Rodriguez' silver medal was refused.

Three days of judo competition ended Wednesday, but only after officials found a way for the participants to make it to the arena. The repechages and finals were called off once, early in the day when the athletes' bus broke down.

It was finally decided that perhaps the athletes could merely take another bus, rather than wait for the original carrier to get back from the repair shop.

Not all problems were so sagaciously solved, however.

When a controversy cropped up in one of the shooting events, somebody got the bright idea to count all the bullet holes in the targets.

Whether or not the problem was solved to everyone's satisfaction or not was never revealed. But the printed results gave the United States gold medals in all four categories.

Herschel Anderson, a native Tennessean now an army sergeant at Columbus, Ga., added a gold medal and a silver medal Wednesday, giving him five gold and one silver medals in shooting events. He was easily the top performer for any country in the Games. The United States so far has won golds in 10 of 12 firearms categories.

The Americans, still struggling along in track and field, lodged a protest over the results in the discus, where a Cuban who won the silver medal was accused of using a trick disc.

There was no solution in sight for that knotty problem. Nor was the relief likely for another official faux-pas.

American Bruce Davidson, the current world champion in three-day equestrian competition, was disqualified by officials in the middle of an impressive ride. It turned out though that erstwhile officials had the wrong man.

They wanted to disqualify Canadian Jim Day — not Davidson — for a minor rules infraction earlier.

Even though the right names were eventually matched with the right faces, officials held that Davidson should be disqualified since he quit in the middle of his run. American team members went into an indignant rage, no one would predict if the officials would be willing to lose face, admit their mistake, and let Davidson have another chance.

And finally, even the official total of medals awarded so far came up hopelessly wrong — probably partially due to the mechanical headaches of the sophisticated electronic result service.

The Associated Press and other news media continued to use their own totals, based on actual results, checked repeatedly.

Two of three U.S. golds in track came Wednesday. John Powell, a 28-year-old Cupertino, Calif., policeman, broke the Games' discus record with a toss of 204 feet, 7 inches. And Kathy Weston, a willowy 17-year-old from Reno, Nev., blazed to a Games record of two minutes, 4.95 seconds in the 800-meter run.

Robert Napier achieved a singular distinction in the middweight weightlifting finals. He became the first in 15 chances to beat out a Cuban for a weightlifting gold medal. The Arlington, Tex., strongman did it by hoisting 308 pounds in the opening segment of the competition.

Margaret Murdock, a nursing student from Topeka, Kan., set a Pan Am record of 1,166 of a possible 1,200 points in the individual small bore rifle finals. Her performance helped her team to a gold, and another Pan Am mark, 4,640 of 4,800 possible. Americans were the top five performers in that category.

In center fire pistol shooting, Marvin Black of Columbus,

Ga., and Anderson finished one-two in the individual section and aided the team to another gold medal.

In round-robin team events, the U.S. women downed Puerto Rico 3-0 in volleyball, 5-0, to Argentina, and 3-1 to Mexico in soccer.

men, meanwhile, managed to lose in field hockey, 5-0, to Argentina, and 3-1 to Mexico in soccer.

Wilt, Knicks Are Talking

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer

ENCINO, Calif. (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain and New York Knicks President Michael Burke will meet Friday to discuss a contract for the 7-foot-2 center to again play in the National Basketball Association.

However, Wilt's attorney said Wednesday that "it's now a question of motivating Wilt to play ball again. We never said Wilt was going to play again. What we wanted was the freedom to choose what to do."

The statement by Sy Goldberg was not as optimistic as the statement by NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien, who said Wednesday he expects the Knicks and Los Angeles Lakers to resolve their battle for Chamberlain.

Wilt was to return from a vacation late today, Goldberg said Burke will be here to talk contract Friday.

"Until this time, they (the Knicks) weren't even willing to suggest to pay him. They knew what Wilt was making with the Lakers."

"Frankly, I think it'll take a hell of a lot of money to move him off that beach and off that mountain," Goldberg said. Chamberlain loves to play volleyball at the beach and would rather not leave his $1.5 million house atop a mountain in fashionable Bel Air.

Meanwhile in New York, O'Brien said he doesn't expect the dispute over the 39-year-old center to reach his office.

He said that in the league's 30-year history, all disputes between teams involving players have been resolved by those teams. But he said if the Lakers and Knicks don't agree and one of them brings the dispute to him, he will resolve it.

Chamberlain played the 1972-1973 season with the Lakers. In 1973-74 he jumped to the American Basketball Association's San Diego Conquistadors, signing a three-year multi-million dollar contract to coach and play there. The Lakers won a court battle preventing him from playing and after coaching in 1973, he quit the team.

The Knicks, ailing in the pivot since Willis Reed retired, would like to have Chamberlain, but the Lakers, not prepared to pay another center now that they have Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, want something in return for Wilt. The Knicks haven't said what, if anything, they're willing to give up to get him.

Two Others Try To Follow Lead

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitchers Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Dave McNally of the Montreal Expos want to follow Catfish Hunter's lead and become free agents.

The Major League Baseball Players' Association says a grievance has been filed asking that both Messersmith and McNally be declared free agents because they have played out their option year in their contracts.

Catfish Hunter became a free agent last winter and left the Oakland A's to sign with the New York Yankees. However, the Hunter case was based on a claim of a contract violation, making it different from the Messersmith-McNally case.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, said both players had their contracts renewed unilaterally by their clubs for the 1975 season. According to the suit, now that the season is over, they should be free to make a deal with any team.

Messersmith posted a 19-14 record with the Dodgers last season while compiling an earned run average of 2.29. The righthander, who was traded to the Dodgers from the California Angels, struck out 213 batters.

A lefthander McNally starred for the Baltimore Orioles before being traded to the Expos. He quit the Montreal team midway through the season after winning his first three games, losing his next six and compiling a 5.23 ERA.

Miller said the renewal clause has been in baseball for some time, but that no players had played out their renewal year and then tried to become a free agent. San Diego outfielder Bobby Tolan came close last year, but signed a lucrative retroactive pact with the Padres.

Miller said the grievance was contained in a letter to the Players Relations Committee and that the association would meet with the committee in a few days to discuss the case.

"Under the basic agreement, the club has the right to renew a contract unilaterally for one year," Miller said. "Neither player signed a contract. The club has that right for one year and that year is now over. It is our position that no contractual agreement remains."

Contract Makes Frazier Better

By JOHN SHURR
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A five-year National Basketball Association contract for slightly less than $2 million can do wonders. Just ask Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association.

"I had a bad back until yesterday," Frazier said Wednesday before the Knicks played an exhibition game with the ABA Indiana Pacers. "But the contract made me better. Now I'm ready to play 82 games."

Frazier, a 30-year-old backcourt ace who played his college ball at Southern Illinois, said the new agreement not only helped his back but also his pocketbook.

"It's a lot of money, but I've also had problems of spending a lot," Frazier continued. "It gives me financial security for the rest of my life unless I'm an idiot."

Frazier declined to give the exact salary sum. He said, however, it was between $350,000 and $400,000 annually but slightly less than $2 million over five years.

The agreement reportedly makes Frazier the highest-paid player in the history of the Knicks.

"There are other guards that make the same that I do, I think," he said. "(Nate) Archibald (of KC-Omaha) and (Phil) Chenier (of Washington) do, supposedly. And I think (Kareem) Abdul-Jabbar is the highest paid."

Two years remained on Frazier's previous contract, which was for a reported $315,000 per year.

Many Big City Mayors Say Services Too Costly

By The Associated Press
The nation's cities say they are struggling with forces beyond their control in trying to balance the urban budget and they argue that solutions will have to come from beyond the municipal boundary lines.

Analysts prescribe large doses of federal and state money for the ailing cities. They urge better fiscal management by big city officials and greater cooperation from suburban authorities.

"There is an ever-widening gap between the cost of operating and the amount of money coming in," said Mayor Moon Landrieu of New Orleans, head of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

suburbs. Most city officials agree, however, that this works only in areas where the suburbs are not firmly established entities.

"Once they're in place, it's like pulling teeth to get them (annexed)," said Shannon.

Landrieu said "there isn't any doubt that ... the broadening of the political boundaries is one way of offsetting costs. And I think it's a fair method."

"But you have some pretty strong disincentives in most cities where minorities have finally gained political clout. They're reluctant to dilute that power. And suburbanites, having fled, are very reluctant to join hands with the communities they've just abandoned."

One alternative to outright annexation is a metropolitan taxing system like the one in Minneapolis.

Under a law that took effect this year, 135 municipalities in the area around Minneapolis and St. Paul split new property tax revenues on a formula basis. Whenever a new industrial or commercial establishment is located in one of the municipalities, 60 per cent of the assessed valuation is added to the property tax rolls of the local community. The rest goes to the other municipalities.

Minneapolis expects $410,000 in extra revenues this year as a result of the plan. "Everybody shares in the growth," said Mayor Albert Hofstede. "It eliminates (tax) disparity and improves planning."

The new law, believed to be the only one of its kind in the country, is the result of planning by the area's metropolitan council, an appointed body which was established almost a decade ago to study regional problems and which has steadily expanded its powers.

Hofstede said that regional taxation is feasible for other areas. "If it can work here, it can work anywhere else," he said.

Nicholas Panuzio, a Republican and former mayor of Bridgeport, Conn., now commissioner of public buildings for the General Services Administration, said the problems of the cities "won't be solved until the Congress changes its thinking and starts cutting out the garbage and stops spending money in ways that damage local governments."

"We spend millions on highways which only encourage people to move out of cities and reduce the tax base. We give tax credits for building new buildings which usually are built out in the suburbs. We should be giving tax incentives to rehabilitate corporate plants where they are in the cities. It comes down to many federal policies pulling people out of cities leaving just the minorities and the elderly who can't afford to pay the taxes."

President Ford and top administration officials have suggested that New York and other cities will simply have to learn to manage their money more wisely.

Robert Reischauer, an urban economist formerly with the Brookings Institution, says city services may have to be cut. People will have to do with less. "We're going to be on a treadmill for three or four years or maybe have a slight decline in real spending," he said.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, in its 1973 report, noted that many expenditures are "mandated by the state and demanded by the people..."

"To define financial emergency mainly in terms of a city's ability to meet its financial obligations is to ignore a city's responsibility to the people who are dependent on the city for services."

Is it possible for the cities to survive? "It's not only possible," said commission fiscal expert Shannon. "They're going to. The prophets of doom notwithstanding."

"That gap can be filled by reducing the services, which is not always possible, or increasing taxes, which has a tendency to drive people out of the center city, or through additional state and federal assistance," he said.

Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit said the federal government is to blame for many of the cities' troubles.

"The federal government refuses to make the kind of dramatic commitment to the cities that it freely made to the countryside 40 years ago when the rural areas were flat on their backs," he said.

"The same quality of commitment could transform the face of urban America in less than a decade."

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations said in 1973 that fiscally troubled cities, most of them in the older, Eastern sections of the country, needed help on several fronts.

The commission called for implementation of revenue sharing, a federal takeover of welfare payments and state financing of education.

The same solutions hold true today, said John Shannon, the commission's assistant director of fiscal research. "Over the long term, the cities are going to have to shove up to the state and national governments some of the responsibilities they've been taking."

The only one of the advisory commission's suggestions that has been enacted is revenue sharing and the U.S. Conference of Mayors has put top priority on making sure it is continued.

The present five-year, $30.2-billion program expires Dec. 31, 1976. Congress is considering a $39.8-billion extension to run for five years and nine months.

"If reenactment of general revenue sharing is delayed or if the program is not continued, actions taken at the local level to adjust budgets would be of such magnitude that this nation's economic recovery would be placed in serious jeopardy," Landrieu, a Democrat, told a House subcommittee.

Welfare reform and state financing of education have run into more trouble. "We're seeing these things taking place slowly," said Shannon, but he added that no quick action is likely.

A Ford administration source who deals regularly with state and local governments said he did not expect any major steps in welfare reform this year or next. Shannon agreed, noting that the administration is trying to cut rather than increase federal spending.

Landrieu indicated he was more hopeful of some sort of reform in the future. "We're certainly arguing very strongly that welfare should be reformed and it should become a federal responsibility," he said. "Irrespective of the relief that it would give to New York City, the nationalization of welfare would establish certain national standards and would reduce the temptation for people to migrate for social benefits."

The most controversial programs for rescuing the cities are those involving some sort of regional government or taxation system.

Southwestern cities like Houston have broad annexation powers, granted by the state, allowing them to simply expand their tax base to surrounding

Ann Posey Will Direct Project

The executive committee of the Pitt County PTA Council has appointed Ann E. Posey as director of the Pitt County PTA Council Reading-Math Tutorial Project. She succeeds Gaynor Mills whose resignation became effective October 10.

This is the second year of operation for the federally-funded tutorial project, which is located in four Pitt County schools—Bethel Elementary, Falkland Elementary, G. R. Whitfield (Grimesland), and A. G. Cox (Winterville).

It is designed to give additional assistance to those students found to be at least one year behind in reading and/or math. Each student who attends a tutorial center is tested and evaluated, so that his particular areas of weakness can be determined. An individual program is then designed for him so that he can begin to strengthen these weak areas.

The tutorial centers operate in the afternoons and at night. Thus, any student registered to attend can also receive help on his homework, help in preparation for a test, or help in anything he did not understand during the school day so that when he returns to the classroom he will be better prepared to go on to the next skill or skill-step.

The new director received her education at Stokes-Pactolus High School and East Carolina University. She has held positions in the Beaufort County Schools, the Learning Center at Pitt Technical Institute, and the PTA Council Tutorial Center at A. G. Cox School. Mrs. Posey, her husband Sidney, and three children reside on Oakdale Road in Greenville.

Another Lull For Beirut's War

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Another lull in the Christian-Moslem war spread across Beirut before dawn today. Officials said the discovery of more bodies raised the casualty toll since dawn Monday to 72 dead and 125 wounded.

Army bulldozers took advantage of the new cease-fire to tear down more barricades thrown up by the rival factions in Lebanon's on-again, off-again political and religious war.

More than 6,000 people have been killed in Beirut and in eastern and northern Lebanon since April. The civil war has paralyzed the economy, and business and property losses to date are estimated at more than $2.5 billion.

This week there was street fighting in Beirut's suburbs on Monday and Monday night, a lull during the day Tuesday, and more fighting from Tuesday night until 5 a.m. today.

Each time the shooting stops, army bulldozers protected by police commandos and Palestinian guerrillas move into the combat zones to remove street barricades and gun positions thrown up by the private armies of leftist Lebanese Moslems and conservative Christians doing the fighting.

When the shooting resumes, the security forces pull back.

An emergency meeting of Arab League foreign ministers in Cairo voted Wednesday to send a fact-finding delegation to Lebanon. But the meeting was boycotted by Syria, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization, and several ministers conceded that this hurt the league's chances of ending the crisis.

Radical Palestinian guerrillas are fighting alongside the Lebanese Moslems. But the PLO and the Syrian and Libyan governments oppose the Arab League's intervention because they fear it will lend credence to the Christians' charge that much of the trouble stems from the fact that the Lebanese government and army have no control over Palestine guerrillas operating against Israel from bases in Lebanon.

The PLO and its chief Yasir Arafat have been trying to enforce the cease-fire because Lebanon is now the only country from which they are allowed to operate against Israel, and they fear they might be driven out. If that happened, Arab public opinion would put pressure on Syria to remove its ban on guerrilla raids from its territory.

Underground Describes U.S. Capitol Bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bernardine Dohrn and four other fugitive leaders of the Weather Underground were filmed and interviewed earlier this year in a documentary, and one of them described the 1971 U.S. Capitol bombing, Rolling Stone magazine reports.

freely, and Miss Dohrn said helping LSD guru Timothy Leary escape from prison was "a lot of fun," according to an interview in the latest issue of Rolling Stone.

The three producers of the documentary, scheduled to be released Nov. 7, told of the cloak-and-dagger-style security surrounding the project in the interview, which includes quotes of the Weather Underground members from the soundtrack.

The director, Emile de Antonio, said in the interview that Miss Dohrn, Jeffrey Carl Jones, Kathie Boudin, William Charles Ayers and Cathlyn Platt Wilkerson gathered in an apartment for the filming.

The radical fugitives have eluded the FBI for years, and the government subpoenaed de Antonio and the other two filmmakers — cameraman Haskell Wexler and Mary Lampson — early last summer but later withdrew the subpoenas. The three had vowed they would not cooperate with any government inquiry.

Jones was quoted in the interview as saying that several Weather Underground members had volunteered to carry out the bombing of the Capitol on March 1, 1971.

The volunteers carried explosive materials on their bodies to get past security, assembled a bomb in a room behind a barber shop inside the building and later returned with a smaller bomb when the first failed to detonate, Jones was quoted as saying.

In another excerpt from the soundtrack, Miss Dohrn said of Leary's escape, "It was a lot of fun. To free anybody from prison is a wonderful experience; it is our intention to have the capability to do that a lot more."

After the 1970 escape, Leary took asylum in Algiers, fled to Europe, was later recaptured and turned government informer.

The Weather Underground, called Weatherman when it broke off from Students for a Democratic Society in 1969, has claimed responsibility for a number of bombings.

two locations on the north side of Ayden.

The other item to be discussed is regarding an amendment to the zoning ordinance to allow a blend fertilizer facility in the I-2 area.

Both items have been given approval by the Ayden Planning Board. The board adopted a retirement plan from Pilot Life Insurance for town employees. The first year cost to the town will be $6,868.28, which is based on five percent contribution of salaries.

The board agreed that contractors, electricians, and property owners should be responsible for providing single phase meter cans instead of the town's electrical department. The meter cans must meet certain specifications. The town agreed to continue to provide all three phase meter cans.

The town rezoned the South Ayden School property from I-2 to RA-8.

The final plot of the Rudy Robinson Subdivision was approved.

The board approved purchasing an ad in the Ayden-Grifton High School yearbook.

TEN THOUSAND BUDDHAS

The 10,000 is a conservative estimate—the Temple of Ten Thousand Buddhas at Shatin, Hong Kong, contains at least 12,800 statues of the venerated sage. And on the same lushly wooded hilltop site there are three ancillary temples, some monumental sculptures and a landmark pagoda in addition to the main temple.

One of the small temples contains a relic that is remarkable even in this singular setting. It's the gilded body of the temples' founder, Abbott Yuet Kai, seated serenely in a glass case. He died at the age of 87 and his body remained intact, one of several mysteries and legends associated with the temples which bring both devout pilgrims and curious tourists to Shatin.

Among all the wonders to behold, the largest concentration of Buddhas is not easily missed. The walls of the main temple from floor to ceiling are lined with 12,800 of them. And no two are exactly alike—each has a distinctive pose and expression.

Nielsen Ratings Bring Surprises

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Last week's Nielsen brought great news to ABC. Not only were seven ABC shows among the nation's 20 highest-rated evening programs, the network also was No. 1 in the week's ratings averages.

It was the first time this had happened in the new television season for ABC, traditionally No. 3 in the weekly ratings averages.

The gospel according to A.C. Nielsen Co., while heartening to ABC, still had some bad news after Nov. 14 and filling his time slot until mid-season with special programs it will announce later.

The cancellation puts yet another hole in the new season's controversial "family viewing" period of little sex and reduced violence.

Of six new shows axed so far this season, five are "family hour" entries — NBC's "Montefusco," "Fay," "Family Holvak" and "Invisible Man" series and now, CBS' "Big Eddie."

The sixth, CBS' "Kate McShane," started well after the family hour.

Whether new family hour shows will continue to lead the cancellation parade in coming weeks, as predicted in some quarters in Hollywood, remains to be seen.

Webb Pierce Is Back To Music

By BILL HANCE Nashville Banner

NASHVILLE (AP)—Fifteen years ago, Webb Pierce decided he had just about had it. Although he sold more than 68 million single recordings, it was time to store the guitar in a closet.

He turned to the business world, investing $12,500 in a small radio station in Georgia and over the years expanded the facility and purchased three more.

Today, Pierce says he has sold out and his initial investment is worth about $4 million.

Pierce says his next move is simple. He's going back into the country music business. "It's no joke. It's a challenge. I've sold all my businesses. I don't want anything to interfere with my music. I want to concentrate on my music, only my music," he said.

Pierce has finished recording a new album and wrote the song, "What the Good Lord Giveth, Uncle Sam Taketh Away."

"It's got a kick to it," Pierce said about his new song. "I think the people are ready for a song like this. It speaks the truth."

Pierce, 51, has recently been in the headlines because of a battle with neighbors over tour buses parking on his property while tourists view his home, including his famous guitar-shaped swimming pool.

"People come from all over the world to see that. Me and that pool have been in every major magazine here and abroad," he said.

The singer said his major goal now is to write a song which will be accepted by the public.

"You know, I don't think I'll have any problem at all," he said. "If you listen closely, you can hear my music today. Take John Denver. He sounds just like me."

He said Denver, who was named entertainer of the year by the Country Music Association this week, met him about 10 years ago.

"He came backstage and told me he liked my songs and that he had a lot of my records," he said.

Pierce is not as flashy as he once was. In the early 1950s, he was known for his flashy western suits and he drove a Cadillac lined with silver dollars.

Meetings Are Rearranged

Meetings of the Greenville congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses are being rearranged this weekend to allow attendance at the group's two-day convention in Fayetteville.

The program of the semi-annual event was developed by the Watchtower Society. The same basic program is being delivered earth-wide.

One of the high points of the assembly will be Sunday when Paul Allen, district minister, gives a talk entitled "How the Kingdom of God Affects You."

There will be a baptismal discourse Sunday at 9 a.m. The courses offered in all assembly sessions are open to the public.

Love a fair NORTH CAROLINA STATE FAIR OCTOBER 17-25 - RALEIGH

Preparing For Wallace Entry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Campaign workers for Alabama Gov. George Wallace are ready for Wallace's expected entry in North Carolina's presidential preference primary.

This week, several hundred persons screened for interest, availability and leadership potential were invited to attend organizational meetings in five North Carolina cities, Jack Hatchett, Wallace's North Carolina coordinator, said Wednesday.

Tonight there will be a meeting in Charlotte, tomorrow one in Asheville. Meetings were held in Greenville Monday, Fayetteville Tuesday and Greensboro Wednesday.

Hatchett said in a telephone interview that after the week's sessions, "We'll be on our way to having the information we need to set up a skeleton organization down to the county level in all 100 counties."

Wallace won North Carolina's first presidential primary, in 1972, as he defeated a former governor of that state, Terry Sanford. Though he has not yet announced his candidacy for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, Wallace is expected to enter the North Carolina primary. That primary is in March.

Hatchett predicted 100 persons would be at each of the last three meetings; 52 were in Greenville and 46 in Fayetteville.

Attending the meetings were "people who we thought we

Three Leave For Seminar

Three Rose High School Anchor Club members, Ann Williams, president, Margie Snell, vice president, and Debbie Warren, left today for Valley Forge, Pa., where they will attend a Youth Leadership Seminar for Anchor Club members at the Freedoms Foundation, meeting, today through Sunday. They were accompanied by Mrs. Lenore Morton, president of the Pilot Club of Greenville.

The seminar will feature addresses by Walter Judd, who will speak on "Responsible Citizenship in a Representative Democracy," and Alan Brownfield, on "Power of Government—Then and Now."

A discussion on "Getting It Together" will be led by Father Gervase Cain; and Ms. Buzz Neiland, in a special session, will summarize the seminar.

An inter-faith vesper service will be held on Sunday at the Faith of Our Fathers Chapel.

Tours are to include Freedoms Foundation, Valley Forge Park, and Colonial Philadelphia.

The Rose High School Anchor Club was organized last year under the sponsorship of the Pilot Club of Greenville. It is composed of high school girls who are interested in service to their school and the community.

But the report said it was decided "the evidence would not support an indictment."

Prosecutors also saw "strong circumstantial evidence that at least some of the lengthy deletions were deliberate" in tape transcripts Nixon released to Congress and the public in a televised speech April 30, 1974, but could find no direct evidence proving criminal intent.

Nor, said the report, was there enough evidence to prosecute dirty tricks allegedly perpetrated by Democrats against the Nixon campaign.

An 18-month probe into administration dealings with International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. showed "ITT had gained access, directly or indirectly to important administration officials who in some instances took some action" favorable to ITT, the report said.

The report said there was insufficient evidence for a criminal case, but two related cases developed. One resulted in a guilty plea by former Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst; the other in conviction of California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke.

Investigators also could not develop evidence sufficient for criminal charges in reports that the White House "plumbers" broke into the Chilean embassy in 1972 or were responsible for numerous other burglaries whose victims "had been persons or organizations that might be deemed hostile to the Nixon administration."

Udall Says Wallace Policies 'Suicidal'

By FREDERICK STANDISH
Associated Press Writer
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The policies advocated by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace are "outside the mainstream" of the Democratic Party, says presidential hopeful Morris K. Udall.

The Arizona congressman told a news conference Wednesday day that Wallace "will not contribute, in most places, to a harmonious party."

And, the 53-year-old presidential aspirant said, it would be "suicidal" for a Democrat on the party's national ticket to select the Alabama governor as a running mate.

Currently, Wallace is in Europe on what's billed as a "goodwill and industry-seeking tour."

Udall said a basic "dis-similarity of views" would prevent him from accepting Wallace as a running mate, running on the governor's ticket or supporting a ticket with Wallace on it.

"It would be foolish to enter all 32 presidential primaries," Udall said as he discounted the possibility of running in primaries in Alabama or Georgia, home of former Gov. Jimmy Carter, another announced presidential hopeful.

Carter, Udall said, "would have to be on anybody's list" as a running mate on the Democratic ticket next year.

Udall added: "It's tough to find a Southern primary to enter because of favorite sons."

When asked of the possible political liability of being a Mormon, a faith that has been accused of barring blacks from the priesthood, Udall said: "My problem is not with the blacks. It is with the orthodox members of the church."

He said there are currently "a number of warring tribes" in the Democratic Party. But he predicted a "first ballot victor" at the Democratic National Convention in New York next July.

At an earlier speech, before students of Samford University's Cumberland School of Law, he proposed sweeping changes in the economy.

"I am a pragmatist," he said, "that believes America is going to have to change."

large "conglomerates" would be broken down. Also, he said, the federal government should urge construction of mass transit systems for major American cities and a revitalization of the nation's rail system along with national health insurance and child development programs.

To pay for the proposals, Udall said, wasteful government spending should be halted. And he emphasized a need for reduced military spending.

Udall said: "The (Ford) administration is headed by a well-meaning man using old economic principles that aren't needed any more."

Power Co. Notice 'Threatens Life'

McCOLL, S.C. (AP)—Windle Johnson says Carolina Power and Light Co. threatened to kill him and he believes there should be a law against it.

The power company, which serves a portion of central South Carolina, admits it made a mistake but says Johnson was in no real danger. And a company spokesman promises it won't happen again.

Johnson has been in an iron lung for 18 of his 30 years, the past five years on an around-the-clock basis.

A victim of polio, he is paralyzed from the waist down and has heart and kidney problems. Without his iron lung, he would die.

Wednesday, the mailman brought a notice from CP&L threatening to cut off his power unless he paid a bill he says has already been paid.

"When they threaten to cut off my power, they are threatening to kill me. I don't like it a little bit. I think there should be a law to prevent something like this," he said.

A spokesman in CP&L's Raleigh, N.C., headquarters says the notice was the result of a clerical error.

"There was an inexperienced clerk in the office who wasn't aware of the situation and she let the notice go out. We made a mistake and we are going to do everything we can to see it doesn't happen again," the spokesman said.

Collectors Club Meeting Held

The Greenville Collectors Club met Tuesday night at the home of Dave and Debbie Pruette.

Reports were given on the Flea Market held Sunday, September 14. It attracted the largest number of dealers ever to the annual flea market.

A discussion was held on ways to make next year's flea market more successful.

A trip was planned for November 16 to the Flea Market at Suffolk, Va.

Francis Belcik presented a program of slides concerning sculptured tombstones done by Howard A. Bridgden found in the Fairview Cemetery in Mesopotamia, Ohio.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, November 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Francis Belcik, 506 E. Ninth St.

Protest Threat Of Foreclosure

GRIFTON — About 30 citizens of the Lenoir County part of Grifton appeared before the Grifton Town Board of Commissioners Tuesday night to protest a threatened foreclosure of their property for unpaid taxes.

Representatives of the citizens told board members that they should be exempt from part of the tax assessment because they did not receive full town services.

Board members were told that unless a settlement could be reached the citizens would obtain a class action suit against the town.

Town Attorney Russell Houston said, in his opinion, there was no way the town could legally remit or excuse the back taxes.

The board agreed that only taxes that had been charged in error could be remitted and that all other taxes would have to be paid.

The matter was tabled until a later date.

Chief of Police Linwood Outlaw reported that 24 arrests were made in September with 46 complaints answered.

The board set Oct. 27 as the date for a meeting between the commissioners and police officers to work out some problems that have developed between the two groups, including hours worked and additional officers.

The board voted to purchase the old Grifton Elementary School property from the Pitt County Schools for $40,000. The money will come from a Community Development Fund. The board of education has agreed to spend money received from the property sale on improvements at the Grifton School and Ayden-Grifton High School.

Elected To Ass'n Post

GREENVILLE, S. C. — Bonnie Hardee, circulation manager for the Daily Reflector, was recently elected convention secretary of the Mid-Atlantic Circulation Managers Association here.

Hardee's election took place during the annual Mid-Atlantic meeting which was attended by approximately 125 circulation managers and their wives from the North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia region.

Primary duties for Hardee as convention secretary for the coming year will involve the recording of minutes of the association's meetings and responsibility for publishing the organization's monthly news bulletin.

Hardee, who has been circulation manager for the Reflector since 1961, completed a three-year term as a director of the association in October and also served as membership chairman for the past year.

Harry Coggins, circulation director of the Piedmont News of Greenville, S. C. was elected president of the MACMA.

Judge Orders Back Pay Action

NEW BERN—Chief U.S. Eastern District Court Judge John D. Larkins has signed an order enjoining a Greenville businessman from violating the minimum-wage, overtime-pay and recordkeeping provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. (FLSA).

The order permanently enjoining William Ipock, doing business as Happy Store 101, from violating FLSA provisions, also includes a provision ordering Ipock not to accept the refund, kickback or return of any portion of the back wages to be paid employees involved in the action.

Ipock has agreed to pay $1,473.64 in back wages due 18 employees, and costs of the action were taxes against him.

Court action against Ipock followed an investigation by the U.S. Department of Labor's Wage-Hour Division in Raleigh.

Grifton Forum On October 27

GRIFTON—The Grifton Times will sponsor a candidate forum on Monday, Oct. 27, for candidates in the Grifton municipal election.

The forum will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Grifton School auditorium.

The candidates will be given four minutes to give their plans if they are elected to office.

Preparing For Talent Show

Plans for a talent show at Nazarene Temple Church, Eighth Street, are underway.

A date for the event will be announced later.

It took Joan and Missy McClellan less than a minute to come up with 68 energy savers for the home.

The way the McClellan's figure, every little bit helps—whether it's something as simple as closing the drapes to keep out the cold or a more involved project like installing new attic insulation. So as a gentle reminder for the whole family, they clipped out the energy conservation guide below.

These days, everybody is concerned about saving energy. On a national level, it helps America reduce her dependence on costly foreign fuels. And on the home front, it means saving on the monthly energy bill.

That's why we've compiled the year-round conservation guide you see here. It's filled with things you yourself can do today, tomorrow, and in the future to help conserve energy.

In turn, we too are doing all we can to help. In our day-to-day operations, we're keeping the cost of producing electricity as low as possible. We're also taking longer range actions to keep electricity prices down. For example, by increasing our use of nuclear generation, we're saving our customers an estimated $100 million this year alone. And for the future, the utility industry is studying other energy sources such as solar power that will stretch our fuel supplies over years to come.

When you think about it, energy conservation is a responsibility we both share. Your efforts to conserve energy and our determination to provide you with this energy, at the lowest possible cost are important commitments not only today, but tomorrow and in the future.

One in a series of messages from Vepco to keep you informed about issues vital to both utilities and their customers.
