

Most Would Pay Less Taxes Next Year Tax-Cut Extension Is Advanced

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers with annual income in the $10,000 to $30,000 range would get most of the added benefits next year under a taxcut extension plan moving ahead in Congress. And most people would end up paying less taxes next year than this year, if the Ways and Means Committee's plan is eventually signed into law. For example, a single person earning $15,000 and paying $2,559 this year would pay $2,315 next year, while a married couple with two children and taxes this year of $2,590 on their $20,000 income would pay $2,420 next year.

The committee's package includes $12.7 billion in individual tax cuts compared to 1974 levels, or about $2.6 billion more than the tax cut in effect this year.

President Ford's proposals call for $20.7 billion in personal tax cuts compared with 1974, plus a spending ceiling. He suffered a defeat Thursday when the panel voted against linking the cuts to a ceiling.

Ford has vowed to veto any tax cut that is not accompanied by a spending ceiling. But committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., told reporters, "I just don't see how the President can veto it."

Next week, the committee takes up business tax cuts. The goal is to get a bill to the full House for a vote next month.

By 21 to 16, with all 12 of the panel's Republicans and four Democrats in dissent, including former Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., the committee approved the plan for 1976 individual tax cuts.

On Oct. 6, Ford proposed sweeping away that temporary law and replacing it starting Jan. 1, 1976, with a permanent series of tax cuts linked to a matching reduction in federal spending. He called for a $395-billion lid on such spending for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1.

For 1976, Ford's total general tax cut package was $27.7 billion — $20.7 billion for individuals, $7 billion for business. The committee's is $15 billion — $12.7 billion for individuals, the rest for business.

Both the committee's and Ford's tax-cut proposals would distribute the tax reduction roughly the same way among various income groups.

The committee's plan would: —Make permanent the 1975 law's temporary hikes in the minimum and maximum standard deductions. The minimum one is called a low-income allowance, the maximum one is used by taxpayers who do not itemize deductions on their tax returns.

—Only for 1976, create a new tax-credit system to replace this year's $30 across-the-board 1975 tax credit for every taxpayer or dependent for whom the taxpayer claims the current $750 personal exemptions.

That $30 credit would be replaced by a credit of 2 per cent of the first $12,000 of a taxpayer's taxable annual income. Taxable income is the amount left after a taxpayer claims all deductions and exemptions.

Under the new system, for most taxpayers there would be a maximum tax credit of $240 per return.

Franco Again Has Relapse

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco, Spain's iron-fisted 82-year-old leader, is fighting back after two heart attacks and has improved slightly after suffering a relapse, his doctors said today.

The 11 physicians attending Western Europe's last dictator said signs of heart failure noted 24 hours earlier had been reduced, and that "progress from his coronary illness continues its normal course."

Premier Carlos Arias Navarro canceled a cabinet session today that had been expected to start the legal process to retire Franco and install Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon as chief of state and Spain's first king in 44 years.

Juan Carlos paid a 23-minute visit to Franco's palace just ahead of today's medical bulletin.

A government source said Premier Arias' decision to cancel the scheduled cabinet meeting indicated the ministers had agreed at a marathon session Thursday to be ready for the end of Franco's rule and a transition of power to Juan Carlos, Franco's designated heir.

Earlier reports had said Arias would convene the cabinet meeting in Franco's absence. Following the medical bulletin late Thursday, Juan Carlos and Arias rushed to their leader's Pardo Palace 10 miles north of Madrid along with the president of the Cortes, the Spanish parliament, and a group of ministers. Later, they went home to bed, and there was no death watch in evidence at the palace.

Portugal's Military Go On Full Nationwide Alert

By WILLIAM LYON
Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's armed forces were put on full nationwide alert today and armored cars took up strategic positions in Oporto, 180 miles north of Lisbon, where far-left military officers scheduled a meeting despite a government ban.

The moves followed a series of bombings in Lisbon aimed at moderate left-wing officers and civilians and because of "increasing reports of planned sabotage within the barracks," a spokesman for the military security forces said.

There were no injuries in the bombings.

Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, chief of the Continental Operational Command — COPCON — and head of public security forces, conferred in emergency session with other military commanders.

The alert order was given by Carvalho's office as was a warning that right-wing forces may "possibly" be planning a nationwide terror wave. That warning was greeted with some skepticism by civilian politicians, however.

Scheduled for later in the day in the northern city of Oporto was a meeting of representatives of the radical left military movement "United Soldiers Victorious" — SUV — which seeks a reformation of the armed forces and an alliance with the working classes.

It was to be held at the same artillery barracks where earlier this month SUV members mutinied against the regional military commander.

The army chief of staff arrapped a compromise to end the mutiny but it was seen by many officers as a sellout to the rebels.

The alert and the urgent meeting at COPCON followed the explosion of six small bombs in different parts of Lisbon early today, three in the cars of naval officers.

A seventh bomb went off at about the same time at the Bureau of Agrarian Reform in Alcaicer do Sal, in the Alentejo region southeast of the capital, a Communist stronghold and recently the scene of agitation by Communist-led farmers anxious over the slow pace of agrarian reform.

Another Record In Bloodgiving Set Yesterday

The Bloodmobile closed out a record shattering three-day visit to East Carolina University on Thursday with an unprecedented last day collection of 384 pints of blood.

Termed by Pitt Blood chairman Billy Ross a "dream visit," the Air Force ROTC sponsored effort finished with an eye-catching total of 907 pints of blood, some 157 pints over the sponsor's own goal of 750 pints. Thursday's 384 pints easily topped the record breaking total of 345 pints recorded in Wednesday's segment of the blood drive. Wednesday's collection total was the best single-day figure in the history of the county's blood effort and yesterday was even better.

Ross noted that there was 38 rejects yesterday to bring the total rejections for the three days to 92.

Recapping the successful campus drive, Ross said that 178 pints were collected in only three hours on Tuesday and 345 were donated on Wednesday.

The chairman said that the fine effort by the AFROTC and Angel Flight at East Carolina has given the county a "good cushion" to work with in its overall blood program.

He expressed special thanks to AFROTC cadets Jerry Fonke and Mike Wright who coordinated the drive as co-chairman. Ross said that Bloodmobile nurses from Norfolk told local officials that the campus visit was one of the best organized blood drives they had ever attended.

Campus sororities and fraternities made up a large percentage of the donating segment, it was pointed out, and their efforts helped to push the total over the goal.

Appreciation was extended to all of the student nurses who assisted in the program and to the women of the Service League who again offered their help. Ross also thanked the university for making Wright Auditorium available for the visit.

"Everyone involved in the campus visit did an outstanding job and those students deserve a whole lot of credit," Ross commented.

Angola At War

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported across much of Angola today, after the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola — MPLA — called a general mobilization and said "there will be bloodshed and misery for the people on the eve of independence."

The MPLA claimed troops from South Africa and Zaire have invaded Angola in an attempt to prevent the Portuguese colony from attaining independence as scheduled Nov. 11.

The MPLA, backed by the Soviet Union, is fighting for control of the African nation-to-be with two other factions — the National Front for the Liberation of Angola — FNLA — supported by China, and the less militant National Union for the Total Liberation of Angola — UNITA.

Heavy mortar fire heard in Luanda Thursday apparently from an MPLA counter-attack against FNLA forces north of the capital, observers said.

Took A Cab To Do Robberies

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—Police say that William Carpenter took a cab to commit robberies.

Five times during the first week in October he worked like this, they say:

He told taxi drivers he had just broken up with his wife and wanted to get some of his belongings. Keep the meter running; he'd be right back.

He would return with his arms loaded. Carpenter, 32, was arrested after a suspicious cab driver went to police.

He has been charged with breaking into three houses, a chicken farm, and trying to break into another house. Jewelry, a stereo set, a shotgun, a camera, and about $2,500 was stolen, police said.

Judge R.L. Warren of state District Court sent Carpenter to a hospital this week for psychiatric examination.

Second Diplomat Is Slain

PARIS (AP)—The Turkish ambassador to Paris and the chauffeur of his car were killed today by gunmen on a Paris street, an embassy officer said.

The embassy said that Ambassador Ismail Erez was riding in the car on Quai Kennedy near the Turkish Embassy when the shots were fired.

The ambush killed two days after gunmen called the Turkish ambassador to Vienna in his embassy.

Police have been unable to find the assailants or determine the motives in the slaying of the Vienna ambassador, Danis Tunali.

Paris police quoted witnesses as saying that two or three men opened fire on the Turkish envoy's car in the French capital as it neared the Bir Hakeim Bridge over the Seine River. The men escaped, apparently on foot.

The ambassador died while being taken to a hospital, police said.

Conflicting reports at the time of the Vienna assassination indicated the gunmen could be Greeks, Greek Cypriots or Armenians.

Greece and Turkey have long been at odds over the Mediterranean island of Cyprus, which has a minority population of Turkish ancestry and a Greek majority. Turkish forces have occupied the northern part of Cyprus since July 1974.

However, a man claiming to represent the "Armenian Liberation Organization" telephoned The Associated Press in New York on Wednesday and said, "I wish to inform you that we take credit for the Vienna action." Police and a number of Armenian groups in New York said they had never heard of the organization.

The Armenian region formed a large part of the old Ottoman Empire and is now divided among Turkey, Iran and the Soviet Union. Armenians were subject to widespread persecution at Turkish hands early in this century.

cheaper than under insurance programs.

And since a family's HMO fee allows unlimited medical attention and no deductible expenses, the programs encourage preventive medicine.

Effective Thanksgiving Day, all firms which employ 25 or more persons and provide a health benefits plan will be required to offer an HMO alternative, if there is a qualified HMO in the area.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which issued the directive, said about 52 million workers and their families — 80 per cent of the U.S. work force — potentially would be eligible for HMO coverage.

As a concession to organized labor, HEW decided that a union's bargaining team could have the power to veto the HMO option, in which case it would not be offered to union members.

Dr. Robert van Hoek of HEW's Health Services Administration said it is conceivable that if a company's employees split between an HMO and a traditional Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan, for example, the favorable group premium offered by the Blues in the past would go up.

Congress passed the HMO Act in 1973 in the hope that mandatory "dual option" HMO coverage would stimulate development of more prepaid group practices and hold down the rise in health care costs, which have been going up 50 per cent faster than the overall cost of living.

Van Hoek said the requirement imposed on 400,000 employers represents "a significant leverage enabling consumers to make an informed choice in alternative forms of health care" and give them a greater voice in determining health expenditures.

General Motors Corp., which has offered HMO coverage for 22 years and now has more than 17,000 employees enrolled, has noted a substantial reduction in health care costs for workers in the Kaiser Permanente HMO in California but not in other parts of the country, according to Robert A. Lennox, assistant director for benefits.

Illinois Bell Co., part of the AT&T system, said its HMO enrollees are hospitalized only half as long as insurance plan members. The firm said inpatient hospital care accounts for 61 per cent of Illinois' Bell employee health costs, which have risen 21 per cent over the last year.

Seek To Keep DST Schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — An effort to retain the current eight-month Daylight Saving Time schedule for two more years is under way in the Senate, just days before regular time resumes on Sunday.

DST is to expire Sunday morning at 2 a.m. Unless Congress passes the bill introduced Thursday, it will resume on the traditional six-month schedule next April.

Daylight time was extended from six months to a full year in early 1974 in an effort to conserve energy, and last October Congress approved an eight-month experiment for 1975.

The Transportation Department has recommended that the eight-month plan be approved again. Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., introduced the bill to retain such a schedule for two more years.

Stevenson said approval of the bill, which would cause Daylight Saving Time to resume next February, would allow the department to continue to study the impact of the eight-hour schedule.

The full year of Daylight Time drew criticism from parents who complained "fast time" was forcing their children to leave for school during hours of darkness.

Americans in most of the nation will have to turn back their clocks one hour to resume regular time on Sunday.

The change will occur in all states and U.S. possessions except Hawaii, Arizona, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and a portion of Indiana which is on Eastern Time. Those areas do not observe Daylight Time.

Another bill introduced in the Senate would stretch Daylight Time next year to nine months.

Belt-Tightening Urged For University System

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—The University of North Carolina system was urged by Gov. Jim Holshouser Thursday night to make an "ongoing effort to eliminate the waste and the duplication."

Holshouser also told the university Board of Governors the people want and have a right to know "that their tax dollars are being spent wisely and efficiently."

In calling for belt tightening, the governor said that with the uncertain economic situation "the flow of money that seemed to increase endlessly and that we had come to expect simply isn't there anymore." He said in this situation the people "are going to be balancing the needs of higher education against all the other needs of our state."

Holshouser urged the board of governors to provide long-range planning for higher education in the state.

"Along with long-range planning, there is a need for a continuing study and review of the programs that exist on the various campuses," the governor added. "We have to recognize that there may be some programs that are sparsely used or that duplicate and overlap each other. This means we probably will have to face some tough questions as to whether we are putting our resources in the right place. Some painful decisions may have to be made and explained."

"In some cases, we may have to face the fact that the best course is for one institution to abandon a field of study entirely, recognizing that opportunities for such study are easily available on another campus," Holshouser added.

WHO'S RESPONSIBLE

We were in the Greenville Town Common Park last weekend and noticed a lot of dead trees and bushes. How much is this costing the city? Is the nursery which put them out responsible for them? M. R.

The first growing season for the trees and shrubs planted in the Town Common area was an extremely difficult one, as it was for all the crops in this area. Boyd Lee, director of the Greenville Recreation Department, which is charged with the maintenance of the area, said the contract with the nurseries which furnished the plants has not been terminated. "We will be meeting to make the necessary arrangements and agreements soon," he said. "They probably will want to stand behind the plants, but this was an unusual year and the soil down there's not the best around, so we will just have to do what seems fair for all."

GOT PICTURES

A friend and I shot two 12-rolls of film at Disneyworld and consider their value far above the money value involved. I sent the film to Filmway Company in Raleigh during the summer and haven't received it or any answer to my inquiries, though I've dealt with this company successfully before. S. S.

Hotline wrote giving the date of the order and as accurate a description as possible of the rolls and what was on each. You report that you received the prints within a few days and that they had been sent to Greenville once before. The sender by the Post Office. You're thrilled with your pictures, you tell us.

State To Fight Patrol Charges

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser denies North Carolina has discriminated against women and blacks in hiring members of the State Highway Patrol and says the state will fight a suit brought against the patrol by the Justice Department.

The suit was filed after the breakdown of negotiations between state and federal officials.

Holshouser said that to avoid the suit, the state would have had to admit there had been discrimination.

"I wasn't about to be admitting there has been discrimination in the administration," Holshouser said. "And I wasn't going to sign a judgment to that effect. I don't think this suit can be justified. We will fight it."

In the suit, the government pointed out that the patrol has about 30 blacks and no women among its 1,150 troopers. It asked the U.S. District Court in Raleigh to impose "recruitment goals to overcome the effects of past discrimination."

Transportation Secretary Jacob Alexander and Col. E.W. Jones, patrol commander, denied discrimination against blacks since the state hired its first black trooper in 1967.

Jones pointed out that the patrol used a black trooper, Isaiah Green, to recruit blacks for 10 months in 1974 and 1975. "He did a fine job, but he only recruited a few," Jones said. "His people are just not interested in filing applications."

Jones and Alexander were not as certain there had been no discrimination against women in the patrol's recruiting practices.

Jones said one woman applied for a job as trooper and was assigned to a training school. However, he said she worked against it and is now working for the patrol as a stenographer.

Jones added that other women simply have not applied for jobs as troopers. He noted that patrol candidates must be at least 5-foot-8 and weight 150 pounds. The recruiting brochure says they must possess physical ability and the ability to perform strenuous exercise. It does not specify that they must be male.

Jones said the patrol recently decided it would not enforce the weight requirement against an otherwise qualified woman.

Alexander, whose department includes the patrol, said he would not refuse to hire a qualified female. However, he said he would try to discourage her from becoming a trooper.

ECU Hosts Fall Meeting

About 80 members of the N.C. Industrial Arts Association were at East Carolina University Oct. 24-25 for the organization's Fall meeting.

The meeting, coordinated by the ECU Department of Industrial and Technical Education, included scheduled addresses, industrial exhibits and business and professional sessions.

Exhibitors from several industrial supply firms displayed representative items in Flangan Building and Mendenhall Student Center.

Speakers included Ralph Johnston, state consultant for industrial arts; Debbie Patterson, doctoral candidate at N.C. State University; and Brooks Whitehurst, superintendent of technical services for Texasgulf Corp.

The meeting also involved a special gathering for industrial teachers educators and a business session.

About 50 NCAIA members were present, with about half bringing guests.

ECU Hosted Regional Meeting Of Educators

Approximately 50 persons attended the annual fall meeting of the South Atlantic Philosophy of Education Society at East Carolina University Oct. 24-25.

They included representatives of college and university education faculties from five states and the District of Columbia.

Theme of the meeting, "Values: Affective and Cognitive," was carried out by a series of addresses by members. Keynote speaker was Thomas F. Green of Syracuse University whose topic was "Language of Values in Policy Making."

Dr. Joseph Congleton of the ECU School of Education served as a member of the conference planning committee, with Robert J. Mulvaney of the University of South Carolina and Beatrice E. Sarlos of Loyola College, Baltimore.

SAPES president is Michael B. McMahon of the University of Virginia, and J. Don Reeves of Wake Forest University is secretary and treasurer.

Speakers included Professors Mulvaney, Sarlos, McMahon and Reeves and the following other members:

Alfred O. Schmitz and Frederick F. Ritsch, Converse College; Roger Sullivan and Thomas Hawkins, University of South Carolina; William F. Losito, College of William and Mary;

John R. Scudder, Lynchburg College; Stanley Ivie and Bruce Beezer, N.C. State University; Wayne Wiley and John B. Haynes, Madison College, D. J. Self, Carol Helwig and Franklin Ross Jones, Old Dominion University;

Samuel M. Holton, UNC-Chapel Hill; Herbert R. Paschal, ECU; Tom Buford, Furman University; Paul H. Sartori, Virginia Council of Higher Education;

Sam Craver, Virginia Commonwealth University; Frank H. Howard, Randolph-Macon College; Edith Daubner, Longwood College and W. Thomas Jamison, Appalachian State University.

Dr. Paschal's address, "A Major Society of the Colonial South: the Sound and River Society of N. C.," was a special presentation at the Friday evening banquet.

A specialist in North Carolina history, Dr. Paschal is chairman of the ECU Department of History.

The conference was hosted by the ECU Department of Secondary Education and School of Education in cooperation with the ECU Division of Continuing Education.

Pharmacists Attend Seminar

John Stallings of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Pharmacy, Annie Harris of Pavilion Pharmacy here, and Bob Bowers and Frank Hemingway of Bethel Pharmacy Inc. are attending a five week Pharmacy Seminar on Selected Subjects at the East Carolina University School of Nursing.

The course is co-sponsored by the UNC School of Pharmacy, the Eastern Area Health Education Center (AHEC), Northeastern Carolina Pharmaceutical Society and the Lenoir County Pharmaceutical Society. Instructors are faculty members of the UNC School of Pharmacy.

Local WOTM Will Go To Burlington

Representatives from Greenville Chapter No. 1308 will attend a state-wide convocation of the Women of the Moose at the Burlington Moose Lodge Sunday, according to Mrs. Wilma Turner, senior regent.

Mrs. Peggy Jamieson, junior graduate regent, will be among those receiving her Green Banie, signifying that the chapter attained membership goals and met other national standards during the year she served as senior regent of the Greenville Chapter.

Mrs. Jamieson will be capped by Mrs. Betty Diehl, chairman of the Chapter's College of Regents, the highest WOTM honor. Mrs. Earline Coghill, chapter recorder and a member of the College of Regents, will serve as capping officer for Mrs. Ronnie Williams, junior graduate regent of the Washington WOTM Chapter, who will also receive her Green Banie at the Sunday ceremony.

There will be a homecoming at the Shermerdine Pentecostal Holiness Church on Sunday. Singing will begin at 2:00 p.m. The Rev. Roy Williams, pastor invites everyone to attend.

Two Injured In Six Collisions

A series of six traffic collisions here yesterday resulted in two persons being injured and an estimated $7,000 property damage, investigators reported.

Peggy Ebron Gatlin of 603 McKinley Ave. and John Henry Corey of 1101 Colonial Ave. were reported injured when the cars they were driving collided about 7:45 a.m. at the intersection of Tyson and Davenport Streets.

Officers, who charged Corey with failing to yield the right of way, set damage at $1,000 to the Gatlin car and $500 to the Corey vehicle.

An estimated $1,500 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 9:30 a.m. mishap at the intersection of 14th and Chestnut Streets.

Drivers involved were identified by police as Robert Charles Joyner of 205 North Eastern St. and Barrett Hughes Sumrell Jr. of Route 1, Ayden.

Joyner was charged with failing to stop for a red light.

No charges were reported following investigation of a mishap about 3:10 p.m. on Memorial Drive near the Tar River Bridge involving a car driven by Ray O. Williams of Route 3, Greenville and a truck driven by Billy Ray Peaden of Route 6, Greenville.

Damage was set at $1,200 to the Williams car and $40 to the truck.

Another afternoon mishap on Memorial Drive near the river bridge involved cars operated by Marjorie Minton.

No charges were listed by police who set damage to the Roebuck car at $350 and damage to the Holiday vehicle at $120.

OPERATED UPON LOS ANGELES (AP) — Composer Johnny Mercer, 66, underwent an operation at Huntington Memorial Hospital Thursday. Hospital spokesmen declined to reveal the nature of the operation.

Miss Allyson Lang Duke Weds Saturday Evening

MRS. GARY GEORGE NEWMAN

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Miss Allyson Lang Duke and Gary George Newman were married Saturday evening at six o'clock in the National Methodist Church here. The Rev. William Holmes officiated at the double ring ceremony set against a background of palms and white altar flowers.

Music was rendered by James McLain, organist, of Bethesda, Md.

The bride is the daughter of Maj. Gen. (USA-Retired) and Mrs. Charles Marsden Duke of Fairfax, Va., and the granddaughter of Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville, N. C. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Newman of Silver Spring, Md.

Given in marriage by her brother, Charles Marsden Duke Jr., of Harleysville, Pa., the bride wore a gown of white qiana jersey by Bianchi. It was fashioned empire style with a scoop neckline, long sleeves and a wateau train. The neckline and wrists were trimmed in an bead detail.

The bride's headpiece was a chiffon turban wrap effect with pearl accenting. The chiffon flowed chapel length from the back of the headpiece. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of white orchids and stephanotis.

Bridal attendants were matron of honor Joan Smith of McLean, Va., Patricia Nussbaum, sister of the bridegroom, of McLean, Va., Barbara Duke, the bride's sister-in-law, of Harleysville, Pa., Marie Ham, of Raleigh, Phyllis Sperling of Philadelphia, Pa., and Judy Armstrong of Arlington, Va. The bridesmaids' gowns, also by Bianchi, were of red qiana with long full sleeves, a V-neckline and a side-tie neck band.

Serving as best man was James Fox of San Jose, Calif. Ushers were Wayne Newman, the bridegroom's brother, Jay Nussbaum, the groom's brother-in-law, and Michael Florence, all of McLean, Va., Albert Wergley of Columbia, S. C., Eugene Quintano of Arlington, Va., and Joseph McDonald of Aaronsburg, Pa. The junior groomsmen was Drew Nussbaum, nephew of the bridegroom, of McLean, Va.

The mother of the bride wore a long formal gown of cafe-au-lait chiffon accented with a yellow cymbidium orchid. The mother of the groom wore a long gown of pink crepe with a rhinestone belt and a white orchid corsage.

The bride was graduated from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro in 1971, with a B.A. degree in sociology. She is presently employed by Xerox Corp. as a market support specialist. The bridegroom is a 1970 graduate of William and Mary College with a B.A. degree in business management. He holds the position of sales manager with Xerox Corp.

Following a reception at the Fort Myer Officers' Club, Arlington, Va., the couple left on a wedding trip to Hawaii, after which they will make their home in McLean, Va.

Parents Using Sales Approach To Place Children

By MICHAEL R. FRANCO
ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UPI) — Paul is "a friendly and affectionate 16-year-old deaf child with emotional problems" who "needs a family that can offer him extra doses of love and understanding."

Darlene is described as "neat as a pin and quick as a whip, an outgoing, exceptionally gifted, verbal black child of 12." She recently asked her social worker to "get me a new family."

Paul and Darlene desperately want to be adopted, but their chances are slim. Only healthy, white infants can find new homes easily.

Paul, Darlene and thousands more like them are either too old, too dark or too sickly to be wanted. Now a group of Rochester parents is using a sales approach in an effort to place such children.

The Rochester Council of Adoptive Parents publishes a list of hard-to-place children living in New York. The "CAP Book" also contains pictures of the children and a brief summary of each child's personality, physical and emotional health and interests.

The book goes to about 180 adoption agencies, pediatricians and obstetricians in 20 states and Canada. CAP says the book makes couples interested in adoption realize that many older, physically handicapped or minority children also need their love and attention.

"Adoption agencies often don't bother telling prospective adoptive parents about them because they figure the couple won't be interested," said Carol Ann Seaple, president of the "CAP Book" board of directors. Mrs. Seaple produced the first edition of the book in June, 1972, in her own home.

About 230 children listed since then now live in permanent adoptive homes, said executive director Peggy Dawson.

"When a child is adopted, the couple fills out a form saying how they came to choose their particular child," she added. "We've had 142 couples attribute their adoptions directly to the 'CAP Book.'"

The current edition lists more than 200 children. Every other week, Mrs. Dawson and an assistant remove the names of those who have been placed and add others.

Mrs. Dawson said more than 60 adoption agencies in upstate New York voluntarily supply names. Several Pennsylvania agencies and one from Nova Scotia also participate.

"The child's own case worker writes the summary used in the book, since they usually have the best understanding of the child's particular needs and problems," Mrs. Dawson said. Although the book began as a volunteer effort, it has been funded by the State Department of Social Services for the past two years.

"We originally got the idea from similar books published in Massachusetts and Illinois," said Mrs. Seaple, who has two adopted children herself.

"Our book is the first anywhere started by a parent group and the only such listing serving upstate New York, although there is now a similar book for the New York City area."

The publication was pretty controversial when it first came out because many adoption agencies objected to the sales approach used for placement, said Mrs. Dawson.

"CAP members had to do a lot of selling ourselves, going to various agencies and selling the idea of the book," she added. "But once its effectiveness was shown, the book sold itself."

A state law scheduled to take effect next April requires that all legally adoptable children in New York be listed in a similar state-authorized book. CAP members feel their efforts were instrumental in its passage.

"We've offered to put together that list for the state, but we haven't heard their decision yet," said Mrs. Dawson, who has a 13-year-old adopted daughter.

Meanwhile, CAP continues to provide its own help to the often-forgotten Pauls and Darlenes of the world, waiting impatiently in foster homes and institutions for real homes of their own.

Dried Beans Are Still Popular For Basic Diet

By TOM HOGGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Dried beans were among the first foods cultivated by man and today, several thousand years later, they are by far the most popular of the dried legumes sold in the United States.

Americans produce dried beans in a variety of forms, from Boston baked to the red beans and rice popular in the Deep South. We produce all sorts of beans in all sorts of colors; black eyes, white and red kidney and Mexican pinks, to name a few.

Natives of both North and South America have been growing lima, pinto and navy beans for centuries, not to mention the black beans so popular in Brazil.

The people of New England have immortalized the lowly white bean by baking it in a pot, seasoned with sugar and molasses, a seasoning that the cooks of the American Southwest scorn, preferring to dress up their beans with tomatoes, garlic and chilies the way they do it in Mexico.

Mexicans have been cooking dried beans for as long as they can remember, and have won fame with their frijoles refritos or refried beans. To make it you gently fry red or white kidney beans in bacon fat, then gently mash and fry again after spicing them up with salt, pepper and chili powder.

Half a world away the Chinese have been performing wonders with the versatile soybean for more than 2,000 years. They transform them into that salty concentrate known as soy sauce, or ferment them into a paste or use the curd derived from a liquid called soy milk. The Chinese cuisine also features preserved black beans and a salty paste made from yellow beans.

In West Africa, the dried bean has been described as the "poor man's meat." The dwellers on the dark continent devour vast amounts of white, brown and red beans either alone or mixed with yams. They also use dried beans mashed up to thicken gravies or turn the mix into doughs to be refried or steamed.

Dried beans are actually the dried seed of the bean plant. To prepare them you should let the beans soak overnight in water then cook them upwards of three hours.

Here is a recipe for a salad of kidney beans and lentils that goes well in warm weather.

- 2 cups cooked, drained kidney beans
- 1 cup cooked, drained lentils
- One medium onion chopped
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 stalk celery chopped
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon catsup
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1/2 teaspoon mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Mix kidney beans and lentils with onions, peppers and celery and toss well with mayonnaise and catsup, adding salt, pepper, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Serve on lettuce garnished with pickles and hard-boiled eggs.

Compares Cost Of Operating Appliances

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Edison Co. finds itself publisher of a free "best-seller" in the booklet world.

The pamphlet is "The Electric Decision Maker." It lists the most popular electric appliances and the average cost of running each.

A spokesman says it has gone through two printings totaling 100,000 copies and the firm is thinking about printing more.

"It's been a phenomenal response," he says. "I guess our consumers have wanted something like this." The booklet points out that it offers averages. For example, it says the electricity for a 1,200-watt dishwasher costs 3 cents for an average cycle. It figures the monthly cost of operating a frostless, 15-cubic foot, 440-watt freezer at $6.32.

"Today the consumer wants to know what he or she is spending for anything — and electric power is no exception," he adds. "We could not attempt to sit down and calculate the different rates for each appliance for different-size homes, but this booklet does attempt to show a fair comparison, and that's the whole idea."

Household Hint

Never defrost foods on top of, or on the shelf above, other foods in the refrigerator. Moisture dripping from them can contaminate other food.

Substitute Sweet Talk For Some Plain Talk

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother used to nag my father all the time, so I made up my mind that no matter what the circumstances were, I would never nag my husband.

Well, Ted and I have been married for seven months, and if ever a wife had reasons to nag her husband, I had plenty, but I kept my mouth shut.

The biggest problem is that Ted doesn't come right home after work, and he never calls to tell me he'll be late.

Even when he comes home at 4:00 in the morning with liquor on his breath, I greet him with a smile and a sexy nightie and say, "Hi, Darling, can I fix you something to eat?"

Last Friday, he went to work and I didn't see him again until Monday evening. I was worried sick, but when he showed up, all I said was, "Gee, hon, I sure missed you." I'm afraid he's got another girl. I can't understand him. He was so crazy about me when we first met, he made me break my engagement to another guy to marry him.

What am I doing wrong?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: You are letting Ted get away with murder. I don't recommend nagging a man, but I do think you should cut out the phony sweet talk and substitute some PLAIN talk. Your marriage is headed for the rocks. Get some counseling!

DEAR ABBY: When kids marry and have babies, and their marriages fail, they call on Grandma to look after their children while they work, date and so forth.

All Grandma gets for raising someone else's child is the remark, "My mother spoils my child, but what can I do?" Most grandmothers, weary from having raised their own children, would appreciate a little peace and quiet in their later years, but they fall into the trap of having to raise their grandchildren, too.

Abby, please try to free the grandmothers!
WEARY AND TRAPPED

DEAR W AND T: Sorry, but every grandmother who wants to be "free" will have to free herself. When she is asked to look after her grandchildren and she doesn't really WANT to, she should say so.

DEAR ABBY: I am the 49-year-old mother of an 18-year-old daughter.

We were both quite a bit overweight, and I would like to tell you how we accidentally discovered how to lose a lot of weight.

We were watching a wrestling match on TV, and much to my surprise, my daughter suggested that we wrestle with each other! At first I couldn't see it, but I finally consented.

We laid an old mattress down in the basement, put on our bathing suits and squared off like we had seen professional wrestlers do. My daughter found an opening, and rushed me. Next thing I knew, we both were down on the mattress rolling over and over.

The first time we wrestled, we were exhausted in 10 minutes. The next time, we wrestled a little longer. Now, we can wrestle for half an hour.

We both cut out bread, butter, potatoes and desserts, and between that and the wrestling matches nearly every day, we have trimmed down a lot. Everybody has noticed it. Suggest this to other women. It's a great way to work off excessive pounds.

TRIM MOM

DEAR MOM: And it's a good way to work off one's hostilities, too!

A 'Friendly' Gesture By Mao

Sec. of State Henry Kissinger on his recent visit to China was summoned for a meeting with Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Kissinger reportedly spent 40 minutes with the chairman, which was described as an unusually long meeting for the 82-year-old Mao.

There was little indication as to what the two world figures discussed. The Chinese said only that they "had a conversation in a friendly atmosphere." The Chinese statement said the talks covered a number of questions.

Kissinger's office said that the secretary found the meeting "very useful."

The meeting, however, was viewed as a friendly gesture on the part of the Chinese. It apparently was not arranged ahead of time and Kissinger was forced to miss a reception in his honor because of it.

Kissinger's mission to China has been to assure that country that the United States has not teamed up with the Soviet Union in a plot against the Chinese. Given the poor relations between China and the Soviets, this is very important to the Chinese now. The secretary is also making arrangements for a visit by President Ford to China next month, and the Mao meeting is a signal that Ford will be well received.

A few years back the United States didn't even formally recognize the Red Chinese government on the mainland. The strong differences which developed between the Communist giants of China and the Soviet Union changed all that, however. Our country has charted a careful course of developing proper relations between both the Soviets and the Chinese. It is a path where we could easily go astray, but so far the strategy seems to be working.

That China is anxious for the United States' friendship, as China faces its mounting problems with its Soviet neighbors, is obvious. The Mao meeting with Kissinger was a clear gesture of friendliness. We shall have to continue to be careful in our relations with both China and the Soviet Union but there is nothing wrong with our exploiting their differences.

THIS AFTERNOON Embattled Hillsborough

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The people who live in Historic Hillsborough liken their community — with some justification — to the more famous restored Colonial town of Williamsburg.

Restoration moves carefully forward along the shady streets and around the serene Capitol Square. Residents leap at any chance to don Colonial garb and demonstrate fondness for the days of old. And the Revolutionary spirit dwelling within those costumed Tar Heels is about to flare up anew.

Hillsborough is on a collision course with the State Department of Corrections, and Secretary David L. Jones.

For while the town is studying historic scraps of information to restore to original grace and beauty the many centuries-old structures, prison officials are directing test borings and site surveys preliminary to building a high-rise prison on the outskirts of town.

"It's a high-profile issue," says State Senator Charles E. Vickery, D-Orange County, who lives in nearby Chapel Hill, but visits Hillsborough often.

Great Pride

"Hillsborough people think of themselves as the Williamsburg of North Carolina, and conduct themselves with justifiably great pride in their history and traditions," Vickery said.

The town council has unanimously voted opposition to the prison, and Mayor Fred Cates has notified Secretary Jones that if the prison is built despite local objection, the city will cut off water and sewer lines and refuse to provide city services.

"I'm satisfied that Mayor Cates will do just that if the Corrections people go ahead with this," Vickery said.

While Hillsborough residents can come up with a variety of objections, the most compelling one is that restored Colonial buildings, costumed parades and programs, and candlelight dinners hardly seem appropriate in the shadow of a high-rise prison, Vickery feels.

The 10-story unit-costing in the neighborhood of $12 million—would house 427 youthful offenders in single-cell accommodations. The prison site is alongside Interstate-85 just across from the Daniel Boone amusement complex and the town's largest housing development—Valley Forge Apartments.

At first, Vickery and his constituents believed the project had been scrapped as the General Assembly sharply trimmed state funds for prison construction. Legislators not only cut the money, but insisted on having a long-range plan for prison construction, and prison philosophy, drawn up by Corrections officials.

Had The Money

But Corrections already had $15 million, largely in federal funds, and the legislature appropriated another $11 million, giving the agency $26 million for new prison construction.

Corrections officials got approval from the Advisory Budget Commission to use that money in building a high-rise prison at Salisbury, and adapting the plans for the Salisbury unit to fit the Hillsborough site as well.

Challenged at the time as to long-range plans, prison officials responded that building those two units is "the plan."

Objections are coming from many quarters: the cost of about $22,000 per one-man cell is being challenged by legislators who see plush motels built for $10,000 per unit; the high-rise concept is questioned by many who believe smaller, campus-style prisons would be better; the concentration of 400-plus inmates in one facility curtails job and study opportunities in a community, some say; and many contend that moving full-bore ahead on high-rise prisons commits North Carolina to a philosophy of imprisonment without public or legislative debate.

Those arguments also are important to the people in Hillsborough, but beyond that is the unrest over intrusion of a massive prison on the atmosphere and community orientation, Senator Vickery says.

Hillsborough, like many small towns across the state, has become a magnet for people fleeing the dangers and congestion of urban life. Then along comes the state to impose traffic problems, sprawling parking lots, and a prison tower looking down on the quiet town—but Vickery suggests the town won't be so quiet as residents learn of the engineering studies underway on the prison site.

Really Nice Ole Boys

WASHINGTON—Coach Bob Strauss of the Democratic Party Football Team met last week with his assistants to discuss strategy for the All Star game in New York City next year which has been advertised as a benefit for the United States of America.

"All right," said Coach Strauss as he stood in front of the blackboard. "We don't have full squad yet, but we should have in a few weeks. Let's see. We have Bentsen of Texas."

"Noboby knows who he is," one of his assistants said.

"He's a nice ole boy," Strauss said. "Besides, I knew his daddy. Now we have Shriver of Maryland."

"Wasn't he McGovern's halfback in '72?" someone asked.

"Yeh," said Strauss. "He's a real nice ole boy. He's been suited up for three years, but he said he wouldn't play if Teddy was on the team."

"Is Teddy going to play or not?" an assistant coach asked.

"He's a nice ole boy," Strauss replied. "But he says he isn't going to play in the All Star game. All he wants to do is run for Massachusetts."

"How can we be sure of that?"

"Can't be. But he's still the No. 1 draft choice for a lot of the fans. I've got a suit for him, a helmet and a locker in case he changes his mind."

"What about Jackson of Washington?"

"He's a nice ole boy and he wants to play in the worst way. He's been practicing every day. Trouble is the fans still don't know who he is. Now there's Jimmy Carter."

"Who's Jimmy Carter?" another assistant asked.

"He's a nice ole boy from Georgia. My wife knows his wife. He wants to play with Terry Sanford, a nice ole boy from North Carolina."

"We seem to have a lot of players from the South."

"They're all nice ole boys and they want to beat out Wallace of Alabama."

"Wallace of Alabama? How can he play in a wheel chair?"

"Don't worry about ole George," Strauss said. "He hopes to make first string. If he doesn't he says he's going to have his own All Star game without us. That could cut into the gate something awful."

"I say he's a troublemaker and we should drop him," one of the coaches said.

"Aw, come on," said Strauss. "He's a nice ole boy if you don't take him seriously. Now let's go down the roster. I've got Harris of Oklahoma."

"Who?"

"Shapp of Pennsylvania."

"Who?"

"Udall of Arizona."

"Who?"

"Bayh of Indiana."

"I thought Birch didn't want to play next year."

"You have to be kidding," Strauss said. "He thinks if he had McGovern's position in '72 we would have won the Super Bowl."

"What about McGovern?"

"He's a nice boy and besides we don't have to buy him a new uniform."

"Is Muskie going to play?"

"You better believe it. He thinks he should have got the

Doctor Union Forms

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Stephen M. Stowe, secretary of the newly organized union for hospital interns and residents, said unionization may raise the cost of health care but that the increase would be "minuscule."

"It would be passed on to the public, as all costs are, but the improvements in health care would be worth it," Stowe said.

About 100 delegates of the Physicians' National Housestaff Association, representing 18,000 hospital interns and residents, met in Washington last week and voted overwhelmingly to turn their organization into a labor union.

The association represents about one-third of the 60,000 interns and residents in the United States.

In an interview, Stowe and Dr. Ralph M. Stanifer, the union's treasurer, discussed the reasons for organizing interns and residents and the impact it will have on the patient.

"The total cost of physician services represents 11 per cent of the health care dollar," said Stowe, 34, a resident in radiation therapy at New York Medical College, Metropolitan Hospital Center. "The cost of resident-physician services is approximately 1 to 2 per cent of the health care dollar. Even the cost of resident-physician services were to double, it would have a minuscule effect."

Stowe estimated that if a person spends $100 a year for health care services, he would spend $101 if the cost of intern and resident services doubled, assuming other hospital costs remained the same.

Stowe said also that he does not see the union as a step toward organizing private practitioners, but that it may influence doctors who are hospital or medical school employees and not in private practice.

The American Hospital Association reports that most of the nation's physicians are in private practice and affiliated with hospitals and that only a relatively low number are hospital employees. No figures were immediately available.

Stanifer, 28, an ophthalmology resident at the University of Michigan Medical Center in Ann Arbor, said that working conditions, not money, are the

The Politics Of Busing

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

BOSTON — The reason Kevin White has irrevocably abandoned all plans to campaign for President of the United States and instead has to fight for a third term as mayor of Boston was made clear one night last week as he concluded a hard day's campaigning.

About 40 neighbors ("95 per cent for you," the mayor was assured) crowded into the modest home of his ward coordinator in the lower-middle class Hyde Park section. Noting that the World Series game was about to start, White made a few brief, bland remarks and asked for questions.

The first question — how are you going to stop the flight of whites from the city because of court-ordered racial busing? — set off an emotional hour-long exchange between the mayor and his anguished constituents. A mother told of her 15-year-old son afraid to enter the men's room at racially integrated Hyde Park High School; a teacher declared discipline after school was dead; a housewife promised that, if busing continued, "I've got to get out."

White, articulate and voluble, fenced with the complaints but finally replied to the original question about flight from the city with this blunt admission: "It can't be answered."

Were it not for such unanswerable questions posed by busing, White would be a landslide favorite against his young and not particularly distinguished opponent in the Nov. 4 election, State Sen. Joseph Timilty. Indeed, were White facing a more formidable foe, he might well be doomed as a sacrificial offering on busing's altar.

White provides a classic case of the liberal

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

I read an Associated Press article in Sunday's Daily Reflector which said that the Edgecombe-Nash Mental Health Clinic has removed the book, Our Bodies, Ourselves from their library on the advice of a Rocky Mount doctor.

A Mental Health Clinic, in order to provide information towards balancing a young woman's education, thereby leading her to a stable and healthy mind, should not allow the opinion of one doctor (or even several) to alter its library of books available to the people who request its services. Especially books on sex, and especially one as forthright and beautiful as Our Bodies, Ourselves.

Even if the book does, in fact, defy "moral and religious teachings," it abounds with facts and overflows with "revelations" that demolish old beliefs, (and thereby ancient standards) and sheds an "angelic light" into the dark and mysterious abyss of sexual superstition, which, in this age of technology there is no excuse for.

In a very personal and sensitive way, this book answers any and all questions a young (or old) woman might ask. Perhaps this is why the doctor objected so. This is a free country, to coin an old phrase, and as one person may express an opinion, so can I, and so can the woman who was scorned in print.

I am 23 years old, a graduate student in college, and married; this book not only answered questions for me but replaced some faulty information, and serves to educate a woman about her body, her sexuality, and the world she must deal with as a member of the feminine persuasion. She (doctor), are not a woman, you do not deal with the problems we face, you do not breathe, feel, think or live as we do, nor have you the right to interfere with a young woman, or any woman, who wants to learn the truth about anything. You've never had to visit the gynecologist (and hope that the instruments aren't cold) nor feared rape nor feared pregnancy nor a hundred other things. Your hormones never make you perceive reality differently from day to day. You also overlooked the sub-title to the book—"A BOOK BY AND FOR WOMEN."

This book need not be limited to prostitutes, but to every woman from nine to 90.

40 Years Ago Today

October 24, 1935

Violent gang warfare in New York City which struck down Authur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer and four of his henchmen, spent police today on a frantic search for a 21-year-old gunman accused of wholesale hoodlum slaying.

Schultz was reported in a critical condition with three bullet wounds today.

One of the most influential members of the Republican National Committee today said the 1936 GOP convention "unquestionably will be held in Chicago."

The comparatively central location of the city, along with the availability of Chicago Stadium were instrumental in its selection. Both the Democrats and the Republicans held their 1932 convention in the stadium.

overwhelming support from blacks and upper-income liberals.

It would seem, then, that this election might result in a blue-collar revolt against the Democratic establishment. White, 46, is a product of prep school and the Ivy League who resides on fashionable Beacon Hill. Timilty, 37, spent four years in the Marine Corps and lacks a college degree. Last week, Timilty, was making attacks against "the liberals on Beacon Hill," the Boston Globe and "persons outside the city, who control our destiny."

But these attacks may lack authenticity. "It's too late for Joe to try that," one Savvy Democratic politician told us. Timilty's current anti-establishment tack came only after unsuccessful efforts to cut into White's liberal and black support. At a coffee hour in conservative West Roxbury last week, the first questioner was an attractive young matron strenuously objecting to his decisive vote in the state senate against capital punishment.

Most important, while Timilty opposes busing, he shies away from an unrestrained assault on it and

Strength For Today

THE VITAL MISSIONARY IMPULSE

Today, because of the rise of communism and military dictatorships in parts of the world which in the past were fertile areas for missionary endeavor, many people are disillusioned about the effectiveness of foreign missions in general. These people feel that the money and effort which goes into missions could be put to much better use at home.

Yet this attitude conflicts directly with the last command which Jesus gave to his disciples: they were to bear witness to him unto the ends of the earth. On this ground alone it is absolutely necessary that the church maintains its missionary thrust.

Furthermore, the church at home always prospers when it becomes interested in the destiny of underprivileged people anywhere, whether they live around the corner or across the seas. Selfishness in individuals is devastating, but selfishness in the church is ruinous.

Wistfully Dream Of The 1960s

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Nostalgia is hardly a profitable pastime for investment managers, whose job is to look into the future instead, but you can't blame some mutual fund officials when they dream wistfully of the 1960s.

Those were the days. The industry had about 4.3 million customer accounts when the decade began and more than 10 million at the end. It began with assets of about $16 billion; it closed the decade with nearly $50 billion.

The investment atmosphere was electric; there just didn't seem to be enough mutual fund shares to satisfy the demand. From about 150 at the beginning of the 1960s, the number of funds reached around 300.

Performance, or quick profits, was the rate. Investors in some funds saw their money double in a year or more, and instead of being satisfied they demanded more. Nothing, they thought, was impossible for a good portfolio manager.

Had the mutual funds discovered the secret of certain profits? The more responsible, conservative fund managers tried to warn the public to look at the long-term record, but some swinging managers didn't mind if they were mistaken for geniuses.

It's a different atmosphere now. Shareholders in many mutual funds appear to be disillusioned, and many of them are selling, despite some enormous individual gains made in the first half of the year.

Assets, which had peaked at close to $60 billion in 1972, fell to only $35 billion in August 1974, and are still only $10 billion higher than that figure. For six straight months redemptions have exceeded sales.

The view of the future, as seen from the 1960s, was one of almost constant ascent. It was like a great elevator ride. From the perspective of the 1970s, we know it's a roller coaster, not an elevator.

A fund that is on the run — one that has misread the market and is suffering big losses — sometimes finds itself nearly unable to defend itself any better than a bank whose financial stability is suspect.

In order to cut its losses, it might have to revise its portfolio, but sometimes it doesn't have complete freedom to do so. Instead, it must keep a supply of cash available for redemptions.

Later, if the fund manages to stop its losses, it may be faced with a related situation, one in which its recovery is impeded by the lost confidence of its remaining shareholders.

Many owners of the fund might, for example, have had their illusions shattered by declines of 40 or 50 per cent a year, which weren't uncommon in 1973 and 1974. When the fund regains some of its losses, they, too, bail out.

A comeback can be very difficult in this industry, as many funds and their shareholders have learned, but apparently it can be done.

One small fund, the 44 Wall Street Fund, declined 5.3 per cent in 1972, 46.8 per cent in 1973 and 52.2 per cent in 1974. But for the first nine months of 1975 it has a gain of 152.9 per cent.

Are you ready, therefore, to jump aboard? Your choice, but note also that it had a 15.4 per cent decline for the third quarter, which suggests the vehicle still is a roller coaster disguised as an elevator.

Stock And Market Reports

Crippled Pup Finds Love

INSTITUTE, W.Va. (AP) — A puppy that lost both front paws under a train has found new owners who believe they know how to love her — the students of the West Virginia Rehabilitation Center.

As Kanga approached the wheelchairs of the school's Student Advisory Council Thursday, rolling along on her set of rollerskate wheels, her tail began wagging. One by one, the wheelchair-confined and blind students stroked Kanga's thick fur and grinned.

The puppy was brought to the Miller Animal Clinic this month by a man who found her lying injured along a railroad track. Rather than putting her to sleep, Dr. Cody Lockhart amputated her legs and outfitted her with a metal brace and two wheels.

"Kanga won't suffer any pain and she'll get around just fine as long as her brace is enlarged as she grows. She has every chance of living a happy life if someone takes her who loves her," he said.

The handicapped students don't think the puppy's life will be unhappy. As the school mascot, she will be the campus big wheel, one student observed.

Urge Pay Cut For Executives

RALEIGH (AP)—Carolina Action, a consumer group, has called on the Utilities Commission to order a cut in salaries of Carolina Power & Light Co. executives. At a news conference held after the Durham-based group opened a Raleigh office, the organization said it is trying to organize a "citizens campaign to pull the plug on CP&L's 22 per cent rate hike." The Utilities Commission will begin hearings on the proposed hike Dec. 2.

Dinner Sales

The Pastor's Aid Club of Mt. Calvary Church is sponsoring a dinner sale of chicken and pastry and fish at Saturday.

The dinners will be sold from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. at 1830 Battle St. Each plate will cost $1.50 and orders may be placed by calling 758-4094.

Board Suspended And Revoked ABC Permits

The North Carolina ABC Board earlier this week ordered permits issued to two Pitt County businesses suspended for 30 days for violations of state ABC regulations.

The board, meeting in Raleigh Monday, ordered permits issued to Dewey R. Gaskins for Gaskins Service Station and Store, Route 1, Grimesland suspended for 30 days effective November 3 for allowing "the possession of alcoholic beverages upon the licensed premises on May 3, 1975 . . . at approximately 12:10 a.m. in violation" of regulations. Permits issued for The Town Tavern on East Queen Street in Grifton were suspended for 30 days, effective November 3, because "permittee did permit the consumption of malt beverages upon the licensed premises on July 20 . . . and did fail to clear tables of malt beverages and containers . . . by 2:30 a.m. on July 30 . . . and fail to give their licenses proper supervision and allowed their premises to be used for unlawful purposes . . ."

In other action Monday, the board, after reviewing court judgements, revoked permits issued to Roscoe Clayton Norfleet of Greenville for the Cavalier Club at 1311 West Fifth St.

The permits were revoked, effective November 3, "due to the convicting of . . . Norfleet on August 5 . . . for possessing tax paid liquor . . . upon the premises of the Cavalier Club . . . without conspicuously displaying a valid permit or notice on said premises from the State Board of Alcoholic Control, possession and allowing to be consumed, taxpaid beer (21 oz. cans) . . . when said premises did not possess or have conspicuously displayed a valid permit . . . (and) refusing to allow State ABC Officer Danny Dilda to enter the premises and telling said officer he refused to allow him to enter (action to quash this warrant allowed)."

Obituaries

Bright

Mr. Daniel Bryant Bright, 76, died Thursday in Halifax County Hospital in Roanoke Rapids.

Graveside services will be conducted Saturday at 3 p.m. at Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church cemetery with the Rev. N. D. Beaman officiating.

Mr. Bright was a lifelong resident of Greenville and was a member of Witchlacochee Tribe of the Improved Order of Red Men in Greenville. He was a former employee of a Greenville tobacco warehouse.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Jean B. Hamm of Greenville and Mrs. Jeanette B. Miller of Warsaw, N.Y.; one brother, Joseph Bright of Greenville; and four grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at Farmer Funeral Home in Ayden tonight from 7-9 p.m.

Dupree

Mr. Robert Dupree, formerly of the Farmville area, died Wednesday in Washington, D. C. Graveside services will be conducted Sunday at 1 p.m. at Sunset Memorial Park near Farmville.

A Pitt County native, he had made his home in Washington since 1958. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Sudie Adams Dupree of the home; three foster children, Willie Foreman, Mrs. Emma Barrett, and Mrs. Mary Phillips, all of Washington, D. C.; a brother, Paul Dupree of Dudley; and several foster grandchildren.

The body will be at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home, where family visitation will be held Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Farmville Mart Prices Hold Up

FARMVILLE — A larger variety of grades of tobacco was on the market yesterday than any previous day this season, Louis Williams, sales supervisor said. Grades of leaf and smoking leaf accounted for most of the volume. Several sheets of wrappers sold for $1.35 to $1.48 a pound.

Notwithstanding the fact that growing conditions were not too favorable for this year's crop, more sheets of tobacco graded wrappers were seen than in several years.

Prices are holding up well considering the large crop, according to Williams. Prices varied very little in the past two weeks. Stabilization receipts accounted for 2.58 per cent of gross sales.

The market sold 667,421 pounds on Thursday for $722,457, for an average of $108.25 per 100 pounds.

To date this season the Farmville market has sold 31,739,519 pounds for $32,384,976, for a season average of $102.03 per 100 pounds.

Anniversary For Senior Choir

The Senior Choir of Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church will observe its anniversary by sponsoring a ministry of music workshop Sunday at 3 p.m.

The Rev. John H. Taylor III will be a special guest. The Rev. O. Kelly Lawson is pastor and Farney Moore Jr. is choir president.

The program will include discussions on:

How can music help to prepare one for prayer, praise, worship and giving? Are choir rehearsals a must? and what are the duties of a choir member once he or she is in the choir stand?

Dr. Fore Named New VP-Elect

Dr. W. W. Fore of Greenville has been elected vice-president-elect of the N. C. Society of Internal Medicine.

The election took place at the fall meeting of the Society in Banner Elk. More than 100 practicing internists attended. Diagnosis and therapy discussion sessions were led by faculty members of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine.

Jordan

Funeral services for Mrs. Frances Ann Jordan of the King's Crossroads community near Falkland will be conducted Sunday at 3 p.m. at St. Peter's Disciples Church at Seven Pines near Farmville by her pastor, the Rev. Fred Williams. Burial will be in the Bullock Cemetery near Fountain.

A lifelong Pitt County resident, she was a member of St. Peter's Church. Surviving her are her mother, Mrs. Sylvia Taylor of Fountain; seven daughters, Mrs. Bettie Prayer and Mrs. Estella Drake, both of Rt. 4, Greenville, Mrs. Esther Gray Worsley of Rt. 1, Fountain, Mrs. Lucille Taylor of Baltimore, Md.; Minister Catherine Taylor of Fountain, and Miss Linda Jordan and Mrs. Carolyn D. Horne of Annapolis, Md.; three sons, Tommy Lee Jordan of the home, Billy Ray, and James C. Jordan, both of Lexington, Ky.; 44 grandchildren; 10 great grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Ella White of Winterville, Mrs. Catherine Moore of Farmville, and Mrs. Hattie Anderson of Rt. 1, Fountain; six brothers, Dave Foreman of Baltimore, Md., Robert, Jesse, and John H. Foreman, all of Fountain, Charlie Foreman of Rt. 5, Greenville, and S. Foreman of Washington, D. C.

The body will be at the Hemby Memorial Funeral Chapel in Fountain after 6 p.m. Saturday and until one hour prior to the funeral. Visitation will be Saturday from 7:30 to 8:30 at the Funeral Chapel.

Knox

Mr. Louis Knox died at his home on Jones Street in Winterville this morning. He was the son of Mrs. Lucy Knox and the late James Knox. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home.

Stocks

Mrs. Mamie Smith Stocks, 80, died in Petersburg General Hospital, Petersburg, Va., Thursday.

Funeral services will be conducted at two o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by Rev. Will Wallace, her pastor. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mrs. Stocks lived in Grifton prior to moving to Greenville about 30 years ago. A resident of 804 Forbes St., she was a member of the First Christian Church. Her husband, Jesse A. Stocks, died June 17, 1970.

She is survived by a son, James Wayland Stocks of Williamsburg, Va., two daughters, Mrs. James W. Bradshaw of Petersburg, Va., and Mrs. A. M. Fravel of Arlington, Va.; a sister, Mrs. Lela Smith of Ft. Barnwell; seven grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from seven to nine o'clock.

Cheaper To Help Moves Police Quit Over Oklahoma City Pay

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Connecticut's Social Services Department saved nearly $3 million in 1974 by paying for the transportation costs of 867 welfare families who wanted to leave the state, a department official said.

The official said the department spent $146,865 to transport 1,837 persons out of state and saved $2,929,000 in welfare payments last year.

Vincent Capuano, director of eligibility services, said, "This is strictly voluntary on the part of the families. And they have to present a letter showing that a family or friend is willing to take care of them until they get on their feet."

He said most recipients go to Puerto Rico and the Carolinas where welfare benefits are lower than Connecticut.

Capuano said the state pays transportation costs and does not cover shipment of household belongings or other moving expenses.

He said welfare recipients travel by bus if the trip takes less than a day. The department pays plane fare for trips that take longer by surface transportation, Capuano said.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Increasing cloudiness Sunday with scattered showers spreading across the state during the day. Clearing Monday and fair Tuesday. Much cooler Monday, Tuesday.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Striking police backed down some from their hard-line stand early today and said they were ready to resume negotiations with the city as soon as they receive a 10 per cent pay raise recommended by a board of arbitration.

A spokesman for the Fraternal Order of Police said the FOP had dropped its demand that City Manager Howard McMahan and City Personnel Director David Falk be fired before policemen would consider returning to their jobs in this city of 370,000 persons.

There was no immediate response from the city, but McMahan had said previously city officials were ready to sit down and discuss the issues at any time.

Motorists said traffic was normal during the morning rush hour today, despite the walkout of almost the entire 599-member police force.

What amounted to the first police strike in the city's history began Thursday after the officers had participated in a work slowdown which began Tuesday, just after the council rejected the 10 per cent pay raise and instead offered 7 1/2 per cent.

Barred by state law from striking, all but 16 of the force turned in their badges to McMahan. The nonstriking officers, state troopers and sheriff's deputies were patrolling the city, which is larger in area than Los Angeles and almost twice the size of New York.

Among those who threw their badges onto McMahan's table was Patrolman Byron Wood, who was wounded by a shotgun blast Sept. 20 while trying to make an arrest. Six fellow officers carried his stretcher up several flights of stairs to McMahan's office.

Many Attended Sunday Program

FAYETTEVILLE—Approximately 1,572 persons, including a delegation from the Greenville area, gathered at Memorial Auditorium here Sunday to hear Paul Allen, minister with Jehovah's Witnesses, speak.

His subject was "How The Kingdom of God Affects You." The talk was part of a two-day assembly which Jehovah's Witnesses arrange semi-annually for training in their Bible teaching work.

Anthony Molchan, local minister, participated in the program. Other participants in the program and the assembly departments include Larry Osborne, Milton Metz, Donald Carter, James Thompson, Charles Corey and Douglas Allen.

Meetings of the local congregation will return to normal schedule this week.

Pirates Face Tough Tar Heels Saturday

Two years ago, East Carolina University came within a hair of defeating the University of North Carolina, bowing in a controversial final period, 28-27. It would have been, at the time, the biggest victory in East Carolina history.

Now, this Saturday, the Pirates try to set down the Tar Heels again, with a 1:30 p.m. kickoff in Kenan Stadium. But for the Bucs, there is a different cast and a different set of coaches.

Pat Dye is now the head coach of the Pirates, but he faces the Tar Heels with no fear in his eyes. "We're just gonna try and game a good game plan and execute it as well as we possibly can with a lot of enthusiasm and 'want to' on our part," Dye said.

"If we play that way and win, it will be a great victory. If we don't win, it won't be the end of the world," he added. "But if we play sorry... don't play defense and don't hustle, I'll be very disappointed."

Dye feels that Carolina has the "best people we've played so far. They compare with State in size, but I think they have a little more speed. Their tailbacks are better runners, and their offensive line is a good one. Their defensive line is stronger, and I guess their quarterbacks are about the same. (Billy) Paschall will be harder to contain since he sprints out both to run and pass."

Dye took exception with Coach Bill Dooley of the Heels for the remarks the Carolina coach made in the press following last week's loss to State, 21-20. Dooley claimed the officials missed a call that could have meant the difference on the late two-point play by the Heels.

"The press is no place for blasting officials," Dye said. "I was taught not to raise players up to look for an alibi. I was taught to accept defeat and try to rise to the occasion the next time to prevent another loss."

Maybe the officiating was not good, but there are proper channels, and we've followed these when we had a complaint. For sure, it's not going to change the outcome of the game or help the officials the next time out. Pretty soon you're really got the crowd fired up against them, and you start having trouble like they've had in some of those soccer matches in other countries.

"All the UNC fans are going to be watching the officials, and I'm just hoping that they are not going to have an affect on the officiating."

Dye said the Pirates seem to be working toward the meeting with Carolina with no great awe of their opponent. "I hope our kids feel that they have a chance to play against them. I'm not worried about our offense and defense if we can play our game as hard as we can."

Referring to the Heels, Dye said that they don't try to fool you too much from their information. "They do run some misdirection plays, and they pass that way too. But the big thing is that line just firing out hard and those backs running over you."

"They have a great defense too. Their ranking in the ACC statistics isn't really fair since they've played the teams they have. I'm sure that William & Mary didn't face the same team we're going to meet. They must have played well against Ohio State, and they probably had a little letdown and still won against Virginia. They played hard against both Notre Dame and State and could have won them both.

"They could be higher than ever, but I can't worry about their morale. We have to make sure that we're ready to play."

Dye said the Pirates weren't approaching it as any different from any other game. "But it still has to be. It's not like playing another Southern Conference team or Southern Illinois or whoever. I'm sure that there are many fans of ours who would rather see us beat Carolina than anyone else."

Chief weapon of the Tar Heels is tailback Mike Voight, who has rushed for 526 yards so far this year. James "Boom Boom" Betterson had 282, but he's been injured and may not be ready to play in this game.

Paschall, the quarterback, has hit 51 of 102 passes, exactly half, for 732 yards and seven touchdowns. His chief targets have been Mel Collins (14 for 249, 3 touchdowns) and Charlie Williams (12 for 151, two touchdowns), both wingbacks. Overall, the Tar Heels have rushed for 1,204 yards, and passed for 747. They have allowed 1,528 rushing and 781 passing.

East Carolina's rushing is led by Willie Hawkins with 354 yards, while Ken Strayhorn has 296. Mike Weaver, who probably will get the call at quarterback, has hit eight of 24 passes for 210 yards with Terry Gallaher the chief receiver of the Bucs. He's caught 11 for 405 yards, seven for scores.

The Bucs have rushed for 1,476 yards, and passed for 798. They have allowed 1,177 rushing and 873 passing.

East Carolina, 4-3, has played one more game than the Tar Heels, 2-4.

Crucial Games In Southern

By The Associated Press
Two extremely crucial games are on tap Saturday afternoon for the four teams still in the running for the Southern Conference football championship, and the four coaches are well aware of the fact.

"This is a must game for us if we expect to have any hope at all of staying in the conference race," says Coach Jim Brauefield of Appalachian State's Mountaineers, who play host to Richmond's front-running Spiders.

"I still feel it will be very difficult to be undefeated in the conference, but I think we'll be ready to play if we can get all the boys healthy," says Richmond Coach Jim Tait, whose Spiders are 3-0 in the league to 1-1 for Appalachian.

"Our loss to Richmond threw us a little off schedule. We expected to be 3-0 going into this week, but instead we're 2-1," says Coach Bob Thalman of Virginia Military's defending champion Keydets, who entertain The Citadel's Bulldogs, also 2-1 in the league.

"We want to make them go 80 yards every time they have the football and I'm certain they don't want to give us anything cheap. We'll be ready for them and they'll be ready for us," says The Citadel Coach Bobby Ross, who played at VMI as an undergraduate.

Appalachian has the best over-all record of the four at 5-1, but the Mountaineers play just five league games. The Citadel, 4-2 over-all, plays seven, while Richmond, 3-3, and VMI, 2-4, play six each. Of the four, Richmond is the only team that can afford a defeat now.

A third conference encounter has William and Mary's Indians, off to their worst start since 1915 at 0-2 in the league and 0-6 over-all, at home against Furman's Paladins, 1-2 and 3-3.

East Carolina's Pirates, 4-3, have a date at North Carolina, 2-4, of the Atlantic Coast Conference and Davidson, 0-4, plays at Hampden-Sydney against the Tigers, 3-2, one of the two teams the Wildcats beat in nine over-all starts last year.

Richmond may be missing three injured linebackers at Appalachian, which has the most potent offensive team in the league.

The Mountaineers' Robbie Price, called by Tait "a great quarterback," leads the conference in total offense and Calvin Simon, Emmitt Hamilton and Price are 1-3-5 in the league in rushing.

"Defensively, they've got the No. 1 weapon in America" in the league's league leading punter, Joe Parker, says Tait.

But Brakefield, whose Mountaineers edged Richmond 14-13 last year, says the Spiders "are in the driver's seat in the conference right now and we know they will be tough."

The scrap between The Citadel and VMI could be decided on defense. The Bulldogs have allowed only 32 points, lowest among the nation's major college to s, and held Davidson to a conference record 34 yards in total offense after VMI earlier had limited Davidson to 42.

"Some costly mistakes have given us our poor record, but we will correct those mistakes," says Thalman, who adds "we have great respect" for The Citadel. In turn, Ross says "we know that VMI is a damn good football team."

William and Mary Coach Jim Root says "we are struggling, but by no means have we given up. We are lacking in the big play and the long drive and we are still looking for the answer."

According to Furman Coach Art Baker, "a lot of people aren't going to believe this about an 0-6 football team, but William and Mary is not a bad team. If they get their offense together, they are capable of beating anyone."

Coach Pat Dye of East Carolina says "I'm not awed" at the prospect of playing North Carolina. "We're going to approach this game just like any other game."

Of Davidson, which won last year's meeting 17-16, Hampden-Sydney Coach Stokeley Fulton says "we know they'll be fired up for us because they look on us as a possible victory."

Cubs Drop Nash, 24-18

ROSE HIGH SCHOOL'S junior varsity picked up its second straight victory of the year yesterday, downing Northern Nash, 24-18.

The Rampants spotted Northern a 6-0 lead, then came back to take an 8-6 edge. They fell behind again, 12-8, but pushed ahead again, this time to stay.

Northern started the scoring in the first period with Ricky Smith scoring on a 58-yard run. Rose came back in the second period to score on a two-yard plunge by Dino Staton. Scott Brady passed to Michael Shank for the two-point PAT and the 8-6 lead. The score was set up when Rose recovered a fumble at the Northern Nash six.

In the third period, the Knights regained the lead, 12-8, on a 31-yard run by Greg Mullen.

But in the final period, Rose regained the lead, this time to keep it. Brady hit Richard Nunn for 16 yards on an aerial to put Rose back on top, and Staton ran over the extra points. The Rampants boosted it to 24-12 when Brady scored from the one, then passed to Staton on the conversion.

Northern Nash got one more score on an 80-yard pass from Mullen to Leon Faber.

Rose threatened twice more, in the first period, moving to the 12, and in the final seconds, which saw the Rampant Cubs drive to the three as time ran out.

Rose is now 1-1 in Division I play, and 2-6 overall. They meet Wilson next week.

Northern Nash 6 0 6 6-18
Rose 0 8 0 16-24

Rampants Take Fifth In Row

ELIZABETH CITY—Rose High School's girls' tennis team rolled to its fifth straight victory yesterday, downing Northeastern High School, 8-1.

The lone Eagle victory came in the number three singles. Aside from that, Rose swept the match without having to go an extra set.

The win boosted the Rampant record to 6-6 on the season. They have two matches remaining, including their final home match against Rocky Mount of Tuesday. They close out on at Wilson on Thursday.

Summary: Marty East (R) defeated Sheri Commander, 6-1, 6-1. Serena Matney (r) defeated

W. Greenville, Whites In Wins

The White team and West Greenville captured victories in recreation football yesterday.

The Whites downed the Blues, 12-8, in a tackle league game.

All of the scoring was in the first half. White scored first, with George Wilson scoring from the three for a 6-0 lead.

Wilson hit Skip Topping for a touchdown pass in the second period to run the lead out to 12-0.

The Blues then came back to drive from their own 35 with Will Barrett scoring on a 12-yard run. Barrett also got the PAT to close the gap to 12-8, but that ended the scoring.

Blair Smith and Clifford Kilpatrick led the White defense, while Scott Galloway and Calvin Jones led the Blue.

In the flag game, West Greenville scored four times in the first half on the way to a 26-12 win over Eastern.

Keith Phillips passed to Christopher McLawhorn for the first score and the two teamed again for the PAT. Tyrone Forbes added the next score on a 15-yard run.

Phillips then passed to Freddie Cherry for the next score to run it out to 19-0.

William Battle ran the final score over from the 10 and Vincent Murphy added the PAT for the 26-0 lead before the half ended. Eastern got two second half scores. One came on a 35-yard interception return by Dwayne Fisher, and the other on a 20-yard run by Sammy Hodges.

Tony Jenkins and Tony Clemmons led the West Greenville defense, with Sammy Hodges and Dwayne Fisher leading Eastern.

Baby Rams Grab Win

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's junior varsity rolled to a 33-0 victory over Saratoga Central yesterday.

Joe Carraway got it started with a 21-yard scoring run, and Keith Belcher followed with a 16-yarder for a 12-0 half time lead. In the second half, Belcher scored again on a three-yarder, and Russell Brann kicked the PAT. Johnny Speight scored the final two touchdowns, on runs of eight and 54 yards. Belcher kicked both PATs.

Greene Central is now 5-1 and will travel to North Lenoir next week.

Jamesville In First Victory

JAMESVILLE—Jamesville High School recorded its first victory of the season last night, downing the Roanoke High School junior varsity, 18-0.

The win was the first in eight games this season for the young Bullets.

Jamesville got one score from its defense in the first period of the game. After holding the Papposes, Jamesville put on a rush on the punt and Jeff Davis blocked the ball, then fell on it in the end zone for the touchdown and a 6-0 lead.

In the second period, the Bullets got their second score. That came on a 20-yard pass from Jerry Ange to Rufus Simmons. It stayed 12-0 until the final period, when Ange and Simmons again connected, this time on a 13-yard scoring play.

Jamesville threatened on two other occasions, driving to the five and then to the seven. Both times, interceptions killed the drive.

Roanoke had three scoring opportunities in the second half, moving each time inside the 10-yard line only to be halted by the Jamesville defense on downs. Jamesville returns to action

Nobody really did a bad job, but Tom Baines gained back what he lost the week before. Tom finished up last week's poll with the best week, an 11-1 slate, while the rest of us were either 10-2 or 9-3. By the time it was over, there had been no real changes in the standings.

Jack Whichard still leads the way with a 64-17 record, while Baines is hot on his heels with a 63-18 mark. Joe Jenkins is still in third at 60-21, followed by George Holland at 57-24. We are still next at 56-25, followed by Diane Allen at 53-28.

Our high school picks turned out on the losing end last time out. With Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central both being upset victims, and North Pitt pulling out their victory, the final record came out at 3-4. That drops the overall mark down to 19-1-1.

We'll try and improve this week. The top game definitely is the clash between Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central. After both were upset last week, they have their backs to the wall as far as the Eastern Carolina crown is concerned. The loser is just about out of it, barring further upsets. It should be quite a game, but we'll have to stick with the Chargers to win it.

Williamston hosts Edenton, and the Aces have just about wrapped up the Northeastern Conference title. A victory here would clinch a tie at least, and possibly bring on outright championship honors. The Tigers will be doing their best, but Edenton should win.

Greene Central goes to North Pitt in another Eastern Carolina battle. The Rams have now faced each of the other three contenders in the league, and are in a position to take the playoff berth regardless of what the others do. North Pitt is in the midst of their best year, and if the Rams are asleep, it could bring on an upset. But we must go with Greene Central to win it.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

Conley goes to C. B. Aycock in the same situation. Aycock still has an outside chance at the title, but again must win the rest and get a few breaks. Conley may give them a fit, but the Falcons look to be the favorite.

Roanoke goes to Lee Woodard, and the results here should be no different than they've been all season—another big win for the Redskins.

Turning to our poll of experts, we find that there's a little disagreement.

Right off the bat, they take a look at the Rose-Northern Nash contest—a key one in the Division I battle. Rose must win if they are to defend their title, and Northern must win to have a shot at it. And our panel looks at it just like everyone else—it's a tossup, three pick the Rampants, three go for the Knights.

East Carolina travels up to Chapel Hill to meet the Tar Heels. The Pirates are coming off a big win, but not against a team like the Tar Heels. North Carolina is coming off two painful losses, but could be overlooking the Pirates.

Loyalty has nothing to do with it, apparently, as our panel gives North Carolina a 6-0 nod.

Other consensus picks see VMI over The Citadel; Furman over William & Mary; Florida over Duke; Southern Cal over Notre Dame; Georgia Tech over Tulane; Appalachian over Richmond; N. C. State over Clemson; Wake Forest over Virginia; Georgia over Kentucky; and Dartmouth-Harvard a tossup.

Player Scramble On To Get Back Into National Football League

By BRUCE LOWITT

AP Sports Writer
While a forlorn secretary at the World Football League's one-time headquarters in New York answered the phone with, "The New League, Inc.," the scramble began to see how many of its former players would make it back into the old league.

The main man in all the speculation, of course, is Larry Csonka, the former bulldozer of the National Football League's Miami Dolphins, whose announced jump to the WFL on March 31, 1974, along with teammates Paul Warfield and Jim Kiick, gave the WFL instant respectability.

That respectability crumbled last year under a landslide of unpaid bills, bankruptcies, phony attendance figures and lawsuits. And Chris Hemmeyer's attempt to financially restructure and save the league crumbled Wednesday under a wave of fan apathy.

The Birmingham and Memphis franchises continued plans to approach the NFL for entrance as expansion franchises—but one NFL owner, who asked not to be identified, said he did not believe the two clubs would be welcomed.

Csonka said Thursday he plans to talk with the Dolphins about a possible return. He and the 379 other players put out of work by the collapse of the WFL have only until 4 p.m. EDT next Tuesday to strike an NFL deal if they want to play any more this season.

Miami Coach Don Shula wants Csonka back. "There's no question of his value to our team and of his contributions in the past," he said.

The Dallas Cowboys admitted they were looking at two players, the Cleveland Browns expressed interest in Csonka and Paul Warfield and the New Orleans Saints said they had eight WFL players on their list.

Some WFL players may take the high road instead, heading north into the Canadian Football League. The CFL is eyeing some WFL players, one of them halfback Anthony Davis.

Davis, the rookie running back from Southern California, led the WFL in rushing and scoring. He was drafted by the New York Jets in the NFL and by the Toronto Argonauts in the CFL.

"We will leave for Toronto tonight," Davis' agent, Mike Trope, said Thursday. "We will meet with the president and general manager of the Argonauts. Then we plan to go to New York."

Tex Schramm, the Cowboys' general manager, said his team was interested in Memphis quarterback Danny White. Dallas also holds the rights to its former running back, Calvin Hill. But Hill went out with a knee injury early this season and is sidelined for the year.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, asked NFL owners to increase squad sizes from 43 to 47 to make room for the WFL players. "We're in a tough spot because we don't want to see our players replaced," he said. "At the same time, we want to see that there is fair treatment for the WFL players...It wouldn't cost that much. For a player making $250 a game in the WFL, the $15,000 NFL minimum would sound like gold."

Spokesman Says Two 'Seriously Considered'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Two prominent National Football League figures say they will seriously consider the franchise applications of two former World Football League teams, Memphis and Birmingham.

Al Davis, managing general partner of the Oakland Raiders, told a Memphis newspaper, The Commercial Appeal, by telephone Thursday night, called John Bassett "an excellent individual."

Bassett, owner of the WFL's Memphis Southmen, has said he is seeking an expansion franchise in the NFL for his team.

Stopping short of saying he will work in Bassett's behalf, Davis said, "John Bassett had a commitment to excellence in the WFL and I admire that quality."

Davis said all 28 NFL owners are meeting in New York on Nov. 24.

"I probably am not the one who should be saying this, but it might be worthwhile to attend that meeting if you're from Memphis or Birmingham," he said.

Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Los Angeles Rams, said from California, "I think that we would consider both these cities seriously. We were at one time, as you know, considering Memphis very strongly. I don't know much about Birmingham."

Former WFL President Chris Hemmeyer recommended Memphis and Birmingham for franchise consideration in a letter to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle on Wednesday, the day the WFL folded.

However, Bassett and Jack Gotta, general manager of the Birmingham Vulcans, said they will file a formal application within days.

In a news conference Thursday night in Memphis, Bassett said he does not anticipate any legal battles over the positions of Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield, the three former Miami Dolphins stars lured to the WFL by Bassett and contracts valued at $3.5 million.

"If it came to that, it would upset me very much," Bassett said, referring to the possibility that the three may be enticed to return to the Dolphins.

At the news conference, Bassett announced the ownership structure his team would assume if granted a franchise.

"There will be a significant contribution besides myself in terms of financing," he said. "Included in the group would be John Bosacco, Sam Battistone, Bill Tatham of Portland and some people who were involved in Charlotte's WFL organization."

Bosacco is former owner of the Philadelphia Bell and Battistone is former owner of the Southern California Sun.

Duke Gets Test Against Gators

By The Associated Press

The two Atlantic Coast Conference football games Saturday won't change the standings significantly since the leaders, Maryland and Duke, are not involved.

The league games are N.C. State at Clemson and Wake Forest at Virginia.

Maryland, 3-0 in the ACC, has an open date and is home to strong Penn State the following week.

Duke, 2-0 in the conference after beating the Clemson Tigers last week, will be at Florida. The Florida Gators have won five games this season and lost only to N.C. State, by 8-7. Duke is 3-3 in all games.

North Carolina will be seeking to snap a two-game losing streak when it is home to East Carolina of the Southern Conference. Those two losses have been tough ones, 21-20 to N.C. State and 21-14 to Notre Dame after leading 14-0.

Maryland, the defending champion, has won its last 13 ACC games, and has only Clemson and Virginia remaining as league foes. If the Terps win these two, only Duke would have a chance to tie for first.

Sven Nater, the ABA's top rebounder as a rookie at San Antonio last year, has been slow recovering from knee surgery and may see only limited action for the Nets. Kim Hughes, a former University of Wisconsin star, will open at center for the New York team.

place. And to do that the Blue Devils would have to sweep their final three games, against Wake Forest, N.C. State and North Carolina.

Maryland and Duke do not play each other this season.

The Clemson Tigers, 1-1 in the league, still have a chance to figure in the championship. But they must beat N.C. State Saturday and Maryland on Nov. 15 to remain in contention.

Virginia is the only team without a league victory. The Cavaliers will have only Maryland remaining after Saturday's game with Wake Forest.

With 15 nonconference games remaining, including the two this week, the ACC is 8-17-1 against outsiders. That's 47 per cent success for the ACC and 53 for the nonconference teams. But the 26 outside teams that have been met have a 61.7 winning percentage against their other opponents, with 92 victories, 57 defeats and one tie.

Southern California, Notre Dame Renew Old Rivalry In Top Contest

By JOHN NELSON

AP Sports Writer
John McKay calls it "the greatest intersectional rivalry in the history of football."

team's last-minute, 13-12 victory in the first contest between the two schools in 1926 as "the best game I ever saw."

Notre Dame, 5-1, and No. 3 Southern California, 6-0, meet for the 47th time, on national television, Saturday with the 14th-ranked Irish slight underdogs, even though they play at South Bend, Ind.

What happened last year was one of the biggest surprises of the college football season and began Southern Cal's grinding drive to the national championship.

The Trojans, down 24-6 at halftime, scored seven touchdowns in the second half and humiliated the Irish 55-24.

Last year, it was Anthony Davis' show. This year the Trojans have another powerful runner, tailback Ricky Bell, the nation's leading ground gainer with 1,068 yards and a 6.0 average.

On the other hand, Notre Dame's vaunted defense has allowed just 3.2 yards per carry.

If they go to the air, the Trojans will be face a secondary Devine describes as inexperienced and depleted by injuries. In the past two weeks, against North Carolina and Air Force, the Irish secondary allowed 418 yards passing without an interception.

In Saturday's other major games, it's top-ranked Ohio State at Purdue, Iowa State at No. 2 Oklahoma, No. 10 Colorado at No. 4 Nebraska, Baylor at No. 5 Texas A&M, TCU vs. No. 6 Alabama at Birmingham, Indiana at No. 7 Michigan, and Army at No. 9 Penn State. At night, Rice is at No. 8 Texas.

Purdue Coach Alex Agase is hoping for a little luck of the Irish to rub off on his Boilermakers when they entertain the Buckeyes.

It's not been a season of luck for the 1-5 Boilermakers, their only victory coming in a 26-24 squeaker over Illinois. And this year, Ohio State hasn't allowed a Big Ten opponent to score a single point.

Purdue will be relying on a rushing game that features halfback Mike Pruitt, the league's third leading rusher with an average of 113.3 yards a game.

Ohio State has All-American Archie Griffin, who boasts a 111.7-yard per-game average. Griffin needs only 115 yards to become the all-time major college rush leader.

Iowa State has dubbed its running back duo of Jim Wingender and Mike Williams the "W-W Express." But on Saturday, they'll be facing another "W" — All-American Joe Washington of Oklahoma.

Wingender and Williams are among the top four rushers in the Big Eight — Wingender with 588 yards on 100 attempts and Williams with 566 on 112 carries.

But they're running into an Oklahoma defensive front led by tackle Leroy Selmon, nose-guard Dewey Selmon and end Jimbo Elrod — the backbone of a defense that has limited opponents to 129 yards rushing a game. An opposing back has not gained more than 100 yards against Oklahoma in the last 22 games.

The Sooners, 6-0, who have not lost in 35 consecutive games, have been guided the past three years by quarterback Steve Davis. The senior signal caller is a dangerous running threat and finally got the Sooner passing attack going last week in a 25-3 win over Kansas State. Davis hit on 7 of 14 passes for 117 yards and one touchdown.

Colorado, 5-1, has been surprising the past two weeks, losing to Oklahoma by one point on a missed conversion attempt and last week pounding Missouri 31-20 at Boulder, Colo.

The rest of the day schedule has Duke at No. 12 Florida, Kansas State at No. 15 Missouri, Illinois at No. 16 Michigan State, Navy at No. 17 Pitt, California at No. 19 UCLA, and the No. 1 college division team, Grambling, at Jackson State.

At night, No. 20 South Carolina plays at LSU and Texas-El Paso travels to No. 11 Arizona State.

Thompson Makes His Pro Debut

By BOB GREENE

AP Sports Writer
When the Memphis Pro-Tams-Sounds moved to Baltimore, they became the Huskies, then the Claws ... then gone.

Even without the Claws, the American Basketball Association opens its 1975-76 season with highly touted rookie David Thompson, Kentucky Colonels center Artis Gilmore and the New York Nets' Julius "Dr. J." Erving seeing action.

But a plethora of other stars either will be sitting injured on the sidelines or see limited action.

The defending champion Colonels welcome the San Antonio Spurs into Louisville's Freedom Hall, while the Denver Nuggets travel to San Diego, the New York Nets are at St. Louis and the Indiana Pacers play the Virginia Squires in Norfolk, Va., in opening night games.

However, Kentucky will be missing Dan Issel, who was traded in the off-season to the short-lived Claws. And Travis Grant, the league's No. 4 scorer who was purchased from San Diego to fill Issel's shoes, has been hampered by injury and used sparingly in the pre-season.

Denver has the 6-foot-4 Thompson, college basketball's two-time player of the year at North Carolina State, and Issel, who gets around the league faster than some players get

Jabbar Likes His New Team

By BOB GREENE

AP Sports Writer
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar made his first National Basketball Association regular season appearance with the Los Angeles Lakers, and it was the New York Knicks who had to suffer the consequences.

Traded to Los Angeles from Milwaukee during the off-season, Abdul-Jabbar has found both his new city and new teammates to his liking. And Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman had no complaints after the 7-foot-4 center scored a three-point play to snap a 97-97 deadlock and lead the Lakers to a 104-101 victory over New York.

In other season-opening NBA games Thursday night, Atlanta stopped New Orleans 109-91, Golden State clipped Cleveland 89-83 and Washington defeated Kansas City 107-95.

Lakers 104, Knicks 101
Burdened with five fouls, Kareem sat out most of the third period, but came back in in the final quarter when the Knicks rallied, finally knotted the score at 97-97. But the Lakers got the ball in deep to Abdul-Jabbar, who was fouled while scoring. He sank the free throw and New York never caught up again.

Cazzie Russell led the Lakers with 29 points while Kareem added 27 points and 20 rebounds. High for the Knicks were Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe with 21 and 20 points, respectively.

Frazier now has 12,189 career points, breaking Willis Reed's New York record of 12,183.

Hawks 109, Jazz 91
John Drew's 21 points, aided by six of his Atlanta teammates scoring in double figures, paced the Hawks' rout of New Orleans. The Hawks jumped to a 19-2 lead and never trailed the Jazz, who were playing without injured Pete Maravich.

George Scott of Milwaukee and Reggie Jackson of Oakland shared the 1975 American League home-run crown with 36 points.

100,000 MILES OR 3 YEARS NEW CAR WARRANTY

Corolla 2-Door Hardtop 1976's Lowest Priced Car

ONLY TARHEEL TOYOTA DARES TO MAKE SUCH AN OFFER

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

"HIT PARADE" REVIVED — Three stars of radio and television's "Hit Parade" sing a medley from the '40s and '50s when the show brought listeners and viewers the top tunes of the week. Left to right, Russel Arms, Gisele MacKenzie and Snooky Lanson. The program went off the air about 15 years ago, but will come back as "Best Years of Your Hit Parade," a television special on ABC. It was taped in Los Angeles this week. (AP Wirephoto)

Bob Hope And Friends In 2-Hour TV Special

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — On April 9, 1950, Bob Hope made his NBC-TV debut in a special he began decked out in formal evening wear. "A lotta performers die on television," he quipped, "and I wanna be prepared."
Now 72, Hope seems to have survived the new medium. In fact, tonight he's hosting a two-hour, 25th-year-on-television NBC special which features himself and 97 other stars from his past shows.
The goods, culled from 800 sketches or performances, have been spliced together in no particular sequence in a collection of grainy kinescopes and black and white or living color videotapes.

Sorry to say, the result is not as lively as one might expect. And notably absent from the show are the tapes and humor of the Christmas visits of Hope & Co. to U.S. troops fighting in Vietnam.

The older wares hold up, particularly a brief Yukon saloon skit in which Hope's long-time pal, Jerry Colonna, exhibits the spirit of merriment and deviltry that was television way back when.

But the newer clips exhibit a sad trend that has become all too common in TV variety shows in recent years, mainly in Hope's shows.

This is the damnable practice of staring at cue cards. Performers rarely look at each other now. They look at the cue cards, recite their lines, chuckle nervously, collect their fees and withdraw.

It takes the spark out of a sketch, reduces the odds for a funny ad lib. Sponsors should limit the practice or reduce the fees paid artists who show up to read and pass that off as a performance.

So much for grumbling. The show's highlights, for my dough, come when:

—Sid Caesar, introduced as a diplomat, babbles a farewell in bogus French at Hope, who is leaving for England. Imogene Coca translates, "Mr. Caesar says have a pleasant trip to Mexico, Mr. O'Dwyer."

—Hope and Jimmy Cagney turn in some incredible hoofing, particularly Cagney, in a clip from a Hope film called "Seven Little Foys."

—Robert Goulet and Hope, cast as two Red Chinese, have a Central Park picnic. Hope produces a thousand-year-old egg. Goulet snarls, "You stupid — I tell you three minutes."

—Hope snarls at Danny Thomas, cast as a hood, "I could let you have it between your eyes, but I see you've been punished enough already."

—Frank Sinatra, at peak of his vocal abilities in 1957, belts out "The Lady is a Tramp."
—Hope and 71-year-old Bing Crosby, his bosom pal in so many "Road" pictures, bring down a white-tie-and-tail house with their singing, joshing and attempts to break each other up.

With a tremendous finishing spurt, Israel took second place in the 32nd European Championship behind world champion Italy and so earned the right to represent Europe in the 1977 World Team Championship. This was quite an achievement for a team that first entered the European Championship only eight years ago.

Israel's charge to the front was triggered by a 19-1 defeat of Switzerland, and this hand played a key role in that victory. At both tables, West led a spade against a final contract of six diamonds. Both declarers won dummy's ace and cashed the queen of diamonds, exposing the bad trump break. Here the two declarers parted ways.

The Swiss declarer now cashed the ace of clubs, the standard safety play to try to limit his losers in the suit to one trick. However, this was not a good time to play safe, for declarer now found that he couldn't use dummy's club suit unless the missing clubs evenly divided. If he drew trumps first, East would hold up the king of clubs to the third round, and the defenders scored a club ruff and the king of clubs for down one.

For Israel, Shaya Levit came up with the winning play. He drew trumps, ending in his own hand, and then elected to play West for one of the missing club honors. He led the ten of clubs. West performed played the jack, and the queen was inserted. East realized that, if he won the king, dummy's club suit would be good, so he did the best he could by refusing the trick. However, declarer had an effective counter. He continued with a low club off the board. No matter what East did, declarer was assured of three discards on dummy's clubs, and the slam rolled home with the loss of only one club trick.

Will Attend Area Meet

Five members of East Carolina University's General Chennault Squadron of Arnold Air Society will attend the Area B-2 Commander's Call at Myrtle Beach Air Force Base, S.C. Oct. 25.

Arnold Air Society is an honorary organization for outstanding cadets in ECU's Air Force ROTC Detachment.

The ECU representatives are Eugene Powell of Greenville, squadron commander, and Jerry Fonke of Fayetteville, Lydia Galfo of Oak Ridge, N.J., Kent Hobson of Winston-Salem and Kevin Johnston of Havelock. According to squadron information officer Janice Warren, squadron representatives from the Carolinas will meet at the Commander's Call to discuss problems and new developments during the past year and to plan for the Arnold Air Society Area Conclave to be held in Greensboro early next year at the N.C. A & T campus.

MEET WEDNESDAY
The American Welding Society will meet here Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive.
