Fifty-Six Arrested Following Friday Night Disturbance

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor
Taverns, clubs and other entertainment establishments in downtown Greenville were closed Saturday night following a Halloween disturbance Friday night that resulted in 56 arrests and $3,700 in property damages.

"This was a voluntary decision on the part of the owners and operators of these establishments," Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon stated Saturday afternoon. "It was their consensus this would be the best action to take. The decision was entirely theirs."

Chief Cannon met for more than two hours Saturday afternoon with local downtown businessmen, including owners of nonentertainment establishments, several of whose businesses were also damaged on Friday night.

Shortly after midnight Friday, police moved into the Cotanche-Fifth Street area to disperse a gathering estimated at about 500 people.

Cannon said police records show a total of 56 persons were arrested. Of this number, 27 were charged with failure to follow police orders to disperse.

The other 29 were charged with inciting a riot. One of the 29 was additionally charged with damage to personal property.

Of the 56 arrested, all young people, Cannon said 30 were identified as East Carolina University students. The remaining 26 included local youths and a small number of military personnel on week-end passes.

All those arrested were white, with the exception of one black male.

Total property damage was estimated at approximately $3,700. Most of the damage resulted from broken windows.

Eight stores had windows broken, with one jewelry store reportedly looted after a window was broken.

Injuries sustained by three policemen, Cannon noted, were slight. They were treated at Pitt Memorial and released. The police chief added that "to the best of my knowledge there was only slight injuries suffered by any of the young people involved in the disturbance."

Some of the celebrating youths were dressed in Halloween, Indian and other festive costumes. Police moved into the area with loudspeaker equipment ordering the estimated crowd of 500 to disperse within five minutes. After five minutes had elapsed and the gathering had not reacted to the order to disperse, police were ordered to use tear gas to break up the gathering. Police were in helmets with visors and carried billy clubs.

According to a United International Press (UPI) report, a television crew member at the scene said he did not hear the order to disperse nor did he see a loudspeaker. The newsman reportedly making the statement, from WITN-TV, could not be reached for verification of the UPI statement.

George Threewitts, assistant information director at East Carolina University, said that ECU students involved might face disciplinary action, even though the incident did not occur on university property.

Any action, Threewitts said, "depends on what the city does." He indicated that university action could range from probation to suspension.

SAMPLES OF ARCHAEOLOGICAL FINDS—These are close-ups of nine of 15,000 clay tablets, discovered recently by an Italian archaeological team, to show the cuneiform characters in Sumerian language and an unknown Semitic tongue extinct since the 3rd century B.C. The tablets belong to the archives of the ancient city-state of Eiba, known today as Tall Mardih, south of Aleppo, Syria, which flourished 2300 years before the birth of Christ. The tablets include military and diplomatic correspondence, commercial transactions, and Sumerian vocabularies for schoolchildren. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Military Court

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The powerful Revolutionary Council announced Saturday it will set up a special military court to try secret police and officials of the rightist government toppled in a leftist coup 18 months ago.

Most Portuguese, however, took a breather from politics and took advantage of the national religious holiday of All Saints' Day to empty the streets of Lisbon and fill the avenues of nearby seaside resorts.

The military's 19-man Revolutionary Council issued a statement announcing creation of the military court and saying a different "revolutionary tribunal" will try military officers and civilians charged with complicity in an abortive right-wing coup attempt last March.

Moslems Assault Christian Forces

By MICHAEL KEATS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Leftist Moslems launched a massive assault on right-wing Christian forces around the Beirut Holiday Inn, setting the hotel ablaze with rockets, mortars and shells from recoilless rifles in a new drive for control of the city's seafront.

Fighting also flared in the suburbs and police reports said at least 100 persons had been killed in the past 24 hours with another 200 wounded. Total casualties in the seven-week-long round of civil war numbered about 1,100 dead and nearly 3,000 wounded.

A rocket slammed into the 20th floor of the 26-story Holiday Inn starting a big fire, witnesses said.

A right-wing Phalangist party spokesman said the rocket was fired from the Murr tower, an unfinished skyscraper occupied by leftist forces in eastern Beirut.

Daylong clashes centered on the Holiday Inn and the nearby Phoenicia and St. Georges Hotel area where Phalangists were holed up to protect the last access route from the west to their headquarters in the east at the top of the Beirut port.

The steady boom from shellfire thundered across Beirut as soon as darkness fell, with shells dropping on the Holiday Inn at the rate of two a minute in a concentrated barrage that lasted 75 minutes.

One rocket burst in the air over Hamra street, sending the few citizens on the street racing for cover. Tracer bullets arced across the skyline from leftist positions at the top of the Kantari sector which they took in bitter fighting during the week.

A Phalangist party spokesman said the Holiday Inn and the nearby Phoenicia and St. Georges hotels were under intensive bombardment.

He said the leftist forces had been trying to advance on the seafront since noon and the type of weaponry used could only have been supplied by Palestinian guerrilla units.

The leftists "officers and cadres are all Palestinian," he said. "This is why we are fighting them."

Witnesses said armored cars of the internal security forces, which had been stationed outside the Holiday Inn, withdrew as leftists poured steady machine gun and rocket fire onto Phalangist positions around the hotel.

Behind the front-line of the Nasserites, Communists and other left-wing and Palestinian forces which swept into the Phalangist area a week ago, a few householders ventured back to remove their belongings from their shattered homes. Some found looters had been there before them.

Rockets and mortar bombs rained all night on the suburbs of Chiah and Ain Rummaneh — one of the worst affected battlegrounds.

Before the fighting subsided one terrified housewife said in a telephone call to UPI: "We can't take much more of this."

Being Withdrawn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Saturday Americans are still being withdrawn from Beirut because of the heavy fighting that has flared up there again.

An official said that the U.S. Embassy in Beirut "still is in the process of withdrawing non-essential Americans."

Report On Franco

By THOMAS CHEATHAM
MADRID (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco suffered renewed internal bleeding Saturday but mustered the strength to summon his family and aides for communion from the Roman Catholic priest who gave him the Sacrament of the Sick a week ago.

The 82-year-old Spanish leader, his 37 years of strongman rule at an end, was battling complications from a series of heart attacks that began Oct. 2. His condition remained grave.

Chinese Shoot Indian Soldiers

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Four Indian soldiers were shot and killed in a skirmish with Chinese troops along India's northern border with China Oct. 20, an Indian government spokesman said Saturday.

He said that 40 Chinese soldiers fired on a patrol party of six Indian troops killing four of them. He would not comment on whether Indian troops returned the fire.

Economic Recovery Slowed?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional study said Saturday New York City's default — inevitable without federal help — will slow the nation's economic recovery, add $4 billion to the federal deficit and throw 300,000 people out of work.

The analysis by the Joint Economic Committee said New York City has done more than any large city except Detroit and St. Louis to cut expenses and increase taxes to combat the effects of the recession on its finances.

Ford Gave Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today became the first president ever to give testimony in a criminal trial as he made a videotape statement on what he saw and heard during the alleged assassination attempt against him in Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 5.

Ford was questioned in a conference room of the Executive Office Building next door to the White House by an attorney for 27-year-old Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, who is accused of pointing a loaded .45-caliber pistol at the President.

White House aides said the session got under way at 10 a.m. Strict courtroom rules were in effect and the press was barred.

Best Thing For South

ATLANTA (UPI) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, campaigning for president, said Saturday the civil rights legislation of the 1960s was "the best thing that ever happened to the South," and that women now face "gross discrimination" socially and economically.

Vetoes Storming Kidnapers

MONASTEREVIN, Ireland (UPI) — Justice Minister Patrick Cooney Saturday vetoed plans to storm the two-story house where kidnapers are holding Dutch businessman Tiede Herrema and rescue him by force.

"Our policy is to continue the patient dialogue with the kidnapers in an effort to reestablish a relationship with them," Cooney told reporters.

Cooney admitted Friday's shooting of a detective sergeant was a "setback" to government plans to persuade the kidnap pair, Eddie Gallagher, 27, and Marian Coyle, 19, to release their hostage unharmed.

Blacks In Stable Condition

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) — Four blacks were reported in stable condition Saturday at a local hospital after being cut down by rifle fire Friday night from whites in a moving car. Three white men were arrested but no charges had been filed late Saturday.

The National Guard, a riot squad from the South Carolina Highway Patrol in Columbia, and numerous other law enforcement agencies were sent to the predominantly black neighborhood to seal it off.

Calm prevailed Saturday, a spokesman for the State Law Enforcement Division (SLED) said.

Turned Down Arab Offer

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City officials said Saturday they turned down a clandestine $2.8 billion loan offer from an Arab country.

The loan was disclosed Saturday in Jack Anderson's syndicated column, who said the offer was traced by his staff from the Persian Gulf to London and New York. He said the initial offer was made about two months ago and withdrawn Oct. 20 after the city failed to meet with an agent for the lender.

Funeral For Six Students

UNION, S.C. (AP) — More than 1,000 Union County residents packed the First Baptist Church here Saturday for funeral services for six Union Academy students killed in an automobile accident.

"Life is as a vapor. It appeareth and passeth away," said the Rev. R. Hayne Rivers, quoting James 4.

While man measures life by its longevity, "God looks at life in terms of its fullness and meaningfulness," he told the visibly shaken congregation.

"I have seen children who were able to pack as much meaningfulness into a brief life span as adults who lived their lives with very little meaningfulness in life," he said.

The six caskets rested at the front of the sanctuary located in downtown Union. They contained the bodies of Cynthia Kay Wentz, 14, Catherine Ann Gault, 10, Melinda Kay Heatherly, 14, Susan Elizabeth Genoble, 12, Donald Robertson II, 13 and Jeffrey Greet, 13.

The youths were killed when their car collided Thursday with a cement truck at an intersection near Union. The truck driver has been charged with murder. A seventh student was injured in the collision.

Vets To Get Questionnaire

Annual Income Questionnaires for all veterans, widows, and parents drawing pension from the Veterans Administration will be enclosed with the checks due them November 1, 1975.

It is important that these questionnaires be completed and returned to the Veterans Administration before January 1, 1976, in order to prevent interruption of payments. The local office of the North Carolina Division of Veterans Affairs has urged that all persons receiving these Income Questionnaires to keep them in a safe place until they can be brought to the Service Office for completion. All forms should be completed and returned before January 1, 1976.

The local office of the North Carolina Division of Veterans Affairs was moved some months ago to Suite 1 in the Tipton Annex at 232 Greenville Boulevard and veterans and their dependents should bring these questionnaires to the new office location. Walter L. Tucker and Oscar L. Moore, District Officers, will assist veterans and their dependents in completing these forms as has been their custom in the past.

Student Holiday

Superintendent of Greenville City Schools Glenn Cox has reminded parents and students there will be no school in Greenville on Monday.

Marines Wig Suit

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ten reservists have filed suit in U.S. District Court here charging that Marine Corps hair style regulations violate their constitutional rights.

But the suit isn't over hair, it's over wigs.

The reservists said they wore the wigs without any problems during several drills until their old commander was replaced by Maj. Glendon C. Flemming.

Flemming said he interprets the Marine Corps' regulations for wigs as being the same for real hair — "neatly tapered in the back, no longer than three inches on top and without eccentric sideburns."

"It's not my responsibility to go out and find a wig for them to wear," Flemming said. "This is their choice, just like joining the Marine Corps was their choice."

Lions Launch Annual Sale Of Brooms

The Greenville Host Lions Club will conduct its annual household broom sale on behalf of the blind this week, beginning Monday night and continuing through Friday night.

Bob Boudreau, club president, and J. D. Wilson, broom sales chairman, announced that the fund raising effort will be conducted each night from 6-9 p.m.

This year a majority of the broom sale campaign will be handled by participating Lions working out of the club's bus which will be going into the various neighborhoods around Greenville.

Some 45 members of the Host Lions Club are expected to take part in the sale with this year's goal set at 1,200 brooms. In addition to the brooms, members also have a limited number of whisk brooms and sponge bath sets to sell.

The club president and sales chairman pointed out that members will make an effort to cover as much of the city as possible this week but they asked that persons who wish to make a purchase to help the blind who are not reached in the residential drive to contact any member of the Lions Club for a broom, whisk broom or sponge set.

Proceeds from the annual sale go primarily to help blind citizens, many of them in the county, with much of the money channeled each year into the Pitt County Association for the Blind.

The Lions Club also conducts each year a Blind Products Store around Christmas to raise additional funds for the blind.

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser has announced the appointment of Assistant Dist. Atty. William H. Andrews as fourth district attorney.

Commission Questions Use Of Funds

RALEIGH (AP)—Operations of the State Offices of Manpower Services which oversees the spending of over $80 million in federal funds brought sharp questioning from members of a legislative study commission Friday.

Members of the Governmental Operations Commission touched lightly on several aspects of the Manpower Services agency and then concentrated on a $25,000 grant made last summer to the owner of a Winston-Salem night spot.

The commission was told most of the $25,000 was used to hire 20 youths between the ages of 14 and 20 who wound up spending a good part of their time publicizing social events, including movies and concerts, at the night spot.

Members of the commission reacted angrily to some of the information presented. Then they indicated they would continue a review of the manpower offices' operation at a future meeting.

"There is $80 million pouring in here nobody seems to be keeping track of," said Rep. Marilyn Bissell, R-Mecklenburg, after listening to the director of the office, Joseph M. Balak Jr., answer questions for more than an hour.

Balak, a former aide to Human Resources Secretary David Flaherty and a veteran of Gov. Jim Holshouser's 1973 gubernatorial campaign, defended his office.

"There are a lot of things we are doing...We'll show you where the money is going," Balak said. "It's not all negative."

He became director three months ago following the resignation of James Daniel.

Balak noted he was not director of the office when the $25,000 grant was awarded to Rodney Sumler, owner of the Dungen Club in Winston-Salem. He said those who worked the grant are no longer with the agency. Sumler obtained the grant in mid-June to run a summer youth employment program.

Sumler was a Democrat who changed his registration to Republican six weeks before the 1974 general election and worked during those six weeks for the election of state Rep. Fred Hutchins, R-Forsyth.

The commission was told the grant was awarded without the knowledge or approval of the North Carolina Manpower Services Council, a body appointed by the governor to set overall manpower policy and to oversee the entire manpower program.

Balak had trouble answering some questions posed by commission members and he attributed it to his newness at the Police Slowdown Continues

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (UPD) — Patrolmen, disgruntled with the city's response over demands for a 15 per cent pay hike, carried their work slowdown into its second day Saturday.

The 100 patrolmen reported for duty but handled only emergency calls and ignored routine traffic violations. Dispatchers screened calls for police assistance.

"We're still slowing down," said dispatcher Lynn LaMore. "We haven't done very much today," she said. "We're answering emergency calls only."

Too Much Involvement

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., explaining why he voted against federal aid to New York City, warned Friday that such action could lead to too much federal involvement in municipal affairs.

Morgan was the only Democrat on the Senate Banking Committee to oppose the measure Thursday; the committee has eight Democrats.

Sanford Says Will Lose Billions

RALEIGH (AP)—Taxpayers will lose billions of dollars because of political games in President Ford's handling of New York City's financial troubles, Democratic presidential hopeful Terry Sanford says.

"He could help New York City avoid default without spending a penny of federal funds, yet he is playing a political game for his own political personal gain," former North Carolina Gov. Sanford said in a statement released Friday by his Raleigh campaign organization.

Will Answer Questions

RALEIGH (AP)—Labor Commissioner T. Avery Nye Jr. told retired textile mill workers that next week, after his staff researches, he will answer their questions concerning cotton dust levels in mills.

The Greensboro chapter of the Carolina Brown Lung Association called Friday for stringent state control in North Carolina on how much cotton dust is allowed in textile mills.

Nye listed the questions but gave no answers and made no promises for action.

Ski Resort Will Operate

BANNER ELK, N. C. (AP) — Beech Mountain ski facilities will operate this winter, despite the financial difficulties of the Carolina Caribbean Corp., developer of the resort.

Robert Yelton of Shelby, president of the Beech Mountain Property Owners Association, said Friday his group will lease the ski slopes, Beech Mountain village, club facilities, ice skating rink and other facilities.

Yelton said the facilities, which will be open to the public, are expected to be operational by Dec. 15, or earlier, if weather permits.

Youth Found Hanged

LITTLE VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — Anthony Barabaro, the 18-year-old youth on trial here for last year's sniper killings of three persons at Olean High School, was found hanged in his jail cell early today, the county coroner reported.

Dr. Harry C. Law, Cattaraugus County coroner, pronounced the youth dead at the jail shortly after 6 a.m. Law later said that young Barabaro had died of strangulation by hanging.

Law said that Barabaro was found hanging by a bedsheet

Women Council Steps Down

EXLINE, Iowa (AP) — Mayor Jessmaria Steele and members of her all-women city council are stepping down and leaving the government of this town of 225 to the men.

Cuban Exile Assassinated

MIAMI (UPD) — Cuban exile leader Rolando Masferrer, the former "Tiger of Havana" who was assassinated by a bomb blast Friday, had recently recommended dynamite as a political weapon, authorities disclosed Saturday.

He was killed when he turned on the ignition switch of his car in front of his home and was blown to bits. Police said several sticks of high yield dynamite had been used in the blast.

Greenville Masons Honored By Supreme Council In D.C.

Two of Greenville's prominent citizens were honored by the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite Masonic Bodies meeting in Washington, D.C. last week. These two men are Leslie Holland Garner, co-owner of Garner-Wynne-Manning, Inc. and Jesse Richard Laughinghouse, owner of Bostic-Sugg Furniture Company.

Garner was elevated to the highest honor that the Scottish Rite can bestow, that of the thirty-third degree. It is an honor that is bestowed upon those Scottish Rite members who have rendered distinguished service to Freemasonry and who because of their efforts have been responsible for the growth of the Scottish Rite. The ceremony of the thirty-third degree was conducted in the Scottish Rite Temple in Washington last Thursday, afternoon, a ceremony in which the General Frederick Weyand, the Army Chief of Staff, was the active candidate representing the group of men selected all over the country for the bestowal of this honor. These designated thirty-third degree members, together with the visiting thirty-third degree membership, were honored in a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel that evening. Garner was one of four thirty-second degree Masons in the 29 counties in Eastern North Carolina which constitute the Scottish Rite Bodies with headquarters in New Bern.

Garner became a Mason in 1946 and immediately began a career of intense activity in the Fraternity. So much so, in fact, that he was appointed to the Grand Lodge of Masonry in North Carolina and has risen since his initial appointment to the current rank of Senior Grand Warden. This means that two years from now he will be occupying the position of Grand Master of Masons in North Carolina. He has been active in all branches of Masonry as well as in the Shrine. He became a member of the Scottish Rite Bodies of New Bern in 1948 and because of his service in this organization he was elevated two years ago by the Supreme Council to receive an honor which ranks as one step above the thirty-second degree and one step below the thirty-third degree, the honor is generally entitled "Knight Commander of the Court of Honour". It likewise is bestowed only upon those thirty-second degree Masons who have rendered distinctive service to the Fraternity.

Jesse Richard Laughinghouse, the other Scottish Rite member from Greenville who was likewise honored by the Supreme Council last week was elevated from the thirty-second degree to receive the next highest honor "Knight Commander of the Court of Honour". This honor is bestowed upon those thirty-second degree Masons whose efforts have been recognized as worthy of acknowledgement. Laughinghouse has been active in all phases of Masonry from the moment he became a Master Mason in 1945. He became a Scottish Rite thirty-second degree Mason in 1946 and began immediately a career of activities in behalf of this organization.

Laughinghouse also has been active in many of Greenville's most influential and serviceable organizations. In addition to his service in the Shrine of Sudan Temple in which he became Captain of the Provost Guard and served in that position from 1959 until 1963, but he has also served in a recognized manner on the building committee of the Masonic Temple in Greenville and also as an active member and chairman of the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army.

The ceremony of recognition which will confer the recognition upon Mr. Laughinghouse will be conducted in Greensboro, at 2 o'clock, December 6.

Two Hacked To Death

BELMONT, N. C. (AP) — Two persons were hacked to death with an axe early Saturday, according to police who said they arrested a man who said he had been planning for nearly three years to kill one of the victims.

Sgt. Charlie Flowers of the Belmont Police Department said he found the bodies after being called to the residence of George Allen Biggers, 59, who sat in his home awaiting the arrival of police.

Biggers was lodged in the Gaston County jail in Gastonia on charges of first degree murder. He was held without bond.

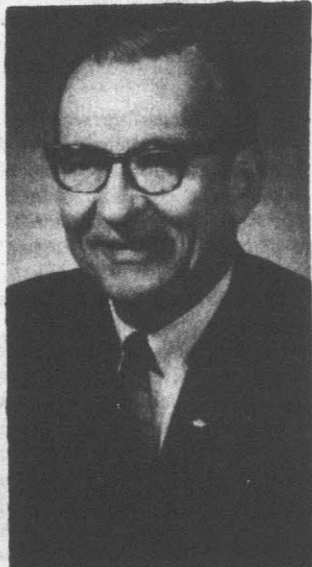

Flowers said when he walked into the house shortly after midnight, Biggers was sitting on a couch in his living room smoking a cigarette with the bodies at his feet. The officer said Biggers had asked a neighbor to call police.

The victims were identified as Lester Lindsay, 43, and Jenny Workman. They had been invited to the Biggers house for a drink, an investigator said.

Doug Stamey, Gaston Rural Police detective who also was called to the scene, said Biggers told him he had been planning for about three years to kill Lindsay.

Let's Put United Fund Over

The United Fund campaign took a jump last week with the turning over of Procter and Gamble employees' contribution of $27,000.

Some 200 of Procter and Gamble's employees contributed one per cent of their annual wages to the drive.

This and many other contributions to the United Fund drive are gratifying and weave now midway to the $222,044 goal which has been set for United Fund.

While it is encouraging that we have come half way toward meeting the United Fund goal, it is also well to remember that we have half-way to go.

We are now in the month of November and it would certainly be a credit to our county if the goal could be reached in a short time.

We would urge everyone to give or pledge promptly when they are approached by a United Fund solicitor. We must meet the goal, because there are so many organizations that provide much needed services in the county that are depending on United Fund.

There is still much to be done to meet the United Fund goal in Pitt County. If everyone cooperates and pledges a fair share to the campaign, this year's drive can be wrapped up shortly.

Nixon Explanation Is Still Needed

Even as former President Nixon is reported ready to go public and attempt to rebuild his image, North Carolina's former senator Sam Ervin is calling for all the facts of the Watergate tragedy.

"I'd like to have Nixon tell the truth about Watergate," Ervin said at Clayton Junior College last week.

Ervin was chairman of the Senate Watergate Investigation Committee and he feels President Ford's pardon of Nixon was a mistake.

"He should've waited until the law had taken its course," Ervin said. He also pointed out that only the guilty need pardons.

Sen. Ervin showed much wisdom during the Watergate inquiry and he continues to do so. The nation deserves a full explanation of Watergate from former President Nixon.

THIS AFTERNOON Began With People's Day

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—When about 150 housewives in Gastonia visited Gov. James E. Holshouser last year demanding stricter courts and stronger prisons, little did they know their would soon become a movement of national interest.

Out of that People's Day visit by the governor was created Gastonia's Concerned Citizens for Justice—a group with wide interests, whose principal activity is to keep a watch on courts to monitor the handling of criminal cases.

Recently, in Orlando, Florida, Mrs. Helen J. Bess, president of Concerned Citizens for Justice, and citizenship chairman of the Gaston County Extension Homemakers Conference, was called upon to describe the program before the annual national conference of extension homemakers.

National Award

The occasion was presentation to the Gaston club the national award in citizenship and safety.

"We learned that women the nation over are greatly disturbed by the crime situation and lack of safety for their families," Mrs. Bess reports, and said 1,250 packets describing the Gaston court watch program were distributed to delegates.

The program is spreading in North Carolina where local extension homemaker groups are showing interest and setting up local court watch programs, Mrs. Bess said.

The governor told the ladies, when they met with him in Gastonia, that "if improvements are to be made, it is up to you, the people, to make them happen."

The Gaston response, Mrs. Bess said, was to become "the eyes and ears of the citizens seeking justice for all people and a better, safer community."

Audit Completed

An audit of a new state personnel management training center described in a recent column turned up "nothing technically nor legally wrong in what they did in switching funds for the project," State Auditor Henry L. Bridges has concluded.

The state personnel division spent some $60,000 to refurbish, and equip with furniture, television, and other audio visual equipment, a state-owned building in which management level bureaucrats could be trained in management techniques.

Bridges said the total cost, including purchase price of the building, was $378,967.46.

Roundabout

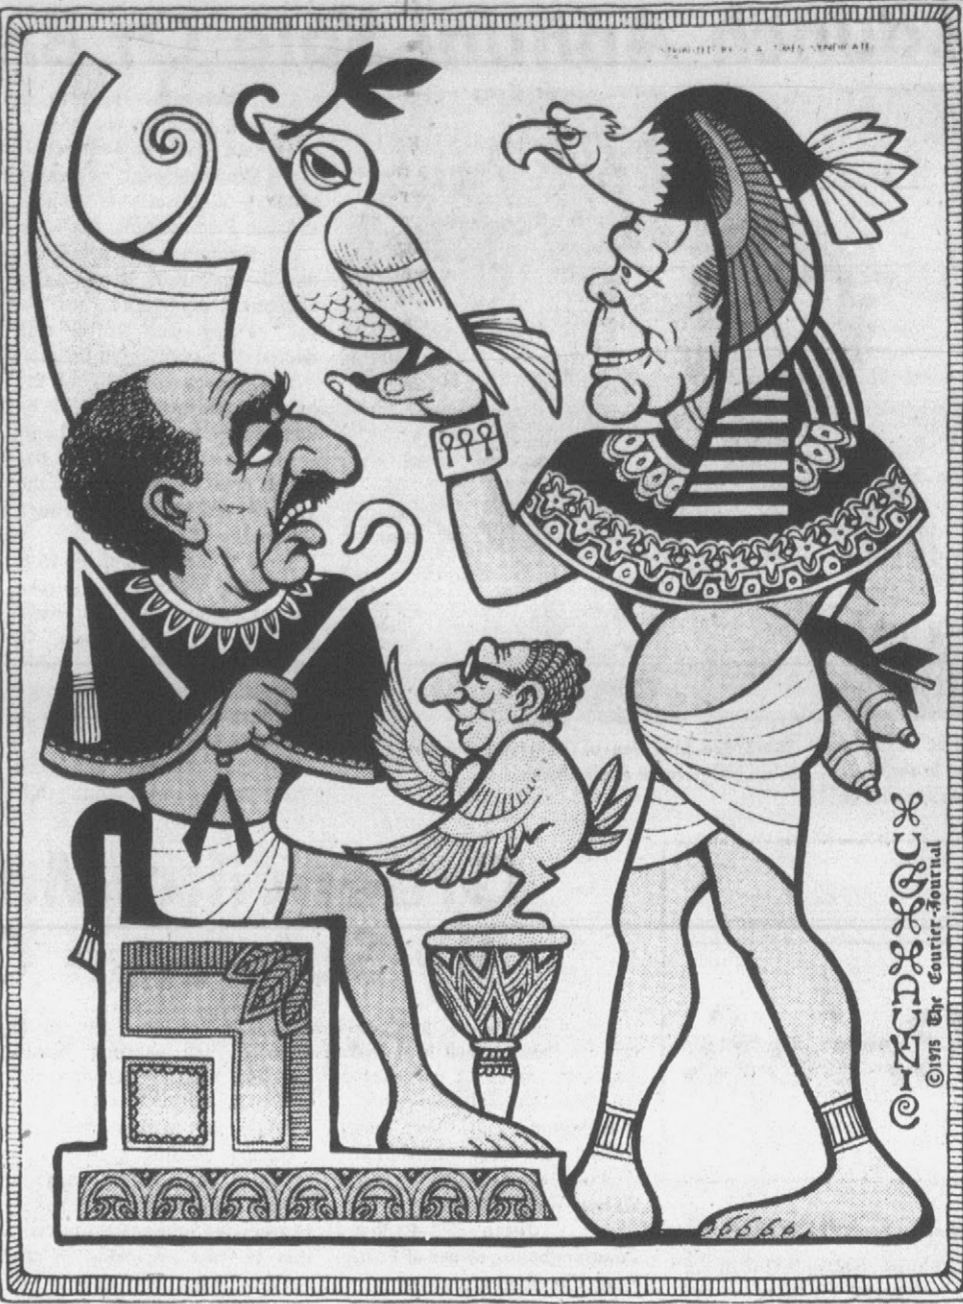

State Personnel Director Al Boyles admitted earlier that he had pulled the funds together from various sources without getting legislative approval—a step he said would have been difficult during recessionary times.

State Senator I.C. Crawford, D-Buncombe, who chairs the legislative commission on governmental operations, ordered the audit after reading the newspaper column detailing the operation.

After hearing the audit report, Crawford concluded that while the transfers of money were not improper, he still worries about such major state spending without legislative approval.

"And I wonder if we need so much training for state employees... we have trainers training trainees all over the place... we have more trainers than we do workers," Crawford complained.

"Birds? Just birds? What about ARMS, for the love of Allah?"

When it comes to the welfare and happiness of this nation, these qualities belong to no political party, no clique, and no generation.

They are qualities which belong to every American regardless of his or her station in life. And doing right, acting wisely, and in protecting and defending this nation, we ask not a man's political party, religious faith, color, creed, or economic status.

And when the president of the United States makes a statement, whether we agree or disagree, we must examine his proposal to see what it is.

President Ford has proposed that in these United States we adopt a program of cutting down on spending to match the program of reduced taxation. To our way of thinking on this one proposal, President Ford is exactly right.

If we reduce our taxes without reducing our spending, then we must increase our national debt. And we increase interest, and we merely fool ourselves in a brutal system of serving those today and letting those of tomorrow shift for themselves.

Yet, the liberals of the nation talk on the one hand about cutting taxes and on the other hand of even increasing the spending. It can be done, but we will pay a terrible price for our folly.

President Ford might have a tough time getting congress to agree both to cut taxes and spending. The majority there will be quick to say "let us cut taxes," but when it comes to spending, the very same ones who criticize the loudest will so often call for spending the most.

It has seemingly been made clear that in calling for a cutback of expenditures, the president is not talking about essential programs in school lunches, veterans, social security, and old age programs.

While he has not come out definitely yet and pinpointed just where he wants spending cut back, if we eliminate the above areas, then surely we could do away with some programs which represent give-aways.

It is so easy and so tempting to engage in partisan political criticism at a time such as this. But partisan political criticism without regard to what is right, what is wise, and what is sound would represent hypocritical politics and irrational economics.

In his Tuesday column, Phillips wrote, "A Carolina fan, completely distraught over the shellacking his team had just taken from upstart East Carolina, and slightly in his cups, was seen beating his head against an automobile in front of the UNC fieldhouse Saturday saying, 'Lose to Them! INSIDE REPORT Illinois Democrats' War

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

CHICAGO — Having lost his opening battle to send Gov. Dan Walker into retirement, Mayor Richard J. Daley is now trying to use the state's two most popular Democrats — Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III and Secretary of State Michael Howlett — in a war to the death with grave national implications for the Democratic party.

Daley's invasion of the state capital in Springfield last week, commanding legions of his Chicago aldermen and party stalwarts, failed to override Walker's veto of an education bill. But defeat only sharpened the mayor's determination to politically destroy maverick Democrat Walker by running Howlett against him for the Democratic nomination for governor and a slate of national convention delegates pledged to Stevenson for President against Walker's slate of uncommitted delegates.

At stake here is not only control of the Illinois Democratic party by the last of the big city bosses but whether the bloody war between Daley and Walker will tear the party apart in the March 16 primary and deliver the fourth state to the Republicans in November 1976.

Yet, so unpopular has the dynamic, dictatorial Walker become among liberal Democrats — never allies of Boss Daley — that Daley now counts as supporters the same liberals who helped Walker win the 1972 nomination for governor against the mayor's opposition and helped blackball Daley from the Miami Beach convention.

The day after Daley's jamboree in Springfield (during which, in a typical malapropism, he referred to "these hollowed halls") one liberal told us: "If Daley can find the right Democrat to run against Walker, I'll vote for him."

The "right Democrat" is Mike Howlett, whom Daley now wants to endorse as the party's regular candidate for governor. Immensely popular with both the Daley and anti-Daley wings of the party, Howlett publicly professes no interest in running for governor. Nevertheless, key party leaders have just come to believe Daley will change Howlett's mind before the party slates its candidates late this year.

That would set up a titanic Walker-Howlett primary battle and pave the way for Daley's second move: declaring Illinois off-bounds to Democratic presidential candidates and running slates of delegates in each congressional district committed to Sen. Stevenson (with 169 delegates to the New York City convention at stake).

Daley lieutenants count on this maneuver blocking all but three Democratic candidates from the primary: former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia (committed to enter all the primaries), possibly the uncontrollable Gov. George Wallace of Alabama — and Dan Walker himself.

Never close to the 73-year-old mayor, Stevenson ended all pretense of cleavage between them with an effusive introduction Oct. 20 when the mayor testified before a special session of the Joint Economic Committee in Chicago.

With no Democratic liberal yet emerging from the crowded presidential field, the mayor sees Stevenson as a passport to power at the New York convention and as a certain way to block Walker's ambitions for control of the Illinois delegation. While publicly in a holding position, Stevenson privately sees Illinois as part of a national campaign, with probably plans to enter California and other presidential primaries. Thus, Daley's Stevenson scheme transcends a mere favorite-son strategy.

Daley had been moving toward this showdown for months, but the full measure of his venom was not exposed until his visit to Springfield last week when he told the Democratic-controlled legislature that Walker should have been defeated in 1972 by the then-incumbent Republican governor, Richard Ogilvie.

Shortly after that apostasy, Daley's emotional appeal for the state legislature to override Walker's education veto was rejected on a tie vote. That defeat, unthinkable in bygone days when the mayor was at his peak, escalated the civil war. Three days later Democratic state chairman John Touhy refused to commit himself to support Walker if he wins the primary for governor.

The sudden fury of the Daley-organization's attack on Walker has astonished

IT'S FIDELITY THAT COUNTS

"John did no miracle, but..."

He did something that was just as useful as making the lame walk and the blind see. He bore witness to Jesus Christ. He was a voice crying in the wilderness of sin and skepticism. He was a light shining in the darkness. He was a witness when men needed to have their faith in the Messiah supported and confirmed.

A person doesn't need to be able to do miracles in order to be useful. What he needs is, fidelity. If day by day he will stand for the truth as he understands the truth, he will not have to perform miracles to call forth the "Well done, good and faithful servant."

God is often served very well by people who have no capacity whatever to do brilliant and spectacular things. Like John, they perform no miracles but—they do many other things which cause people to love them and bless them.

Power Is Held By Palestinians

By HOLGER JENSEN

Associated Press Writer BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Increased support from the Palestinian guerrillas has given Lebanon's Moslems the upper hand in their war with the Christians, proving once again that the Palestinians hold the decisive military power in this small divided nation on Israel's northern border.

Guerrilla units are now leading Moslem militias with new offensive tactics and heavy weapons that include batteries of Soviet Katyusha rockets.

As a result, the Moslems have advanced into several districts of Beirut formerly controlled by the Christians of the right-wing Phalange and National Liberal parties.

Zuhair Mohsen, leader of the Syrian-backed Saïqa guerrillas, claimed the Palestinians were defending their Moslem brothers from Phalangist incursions. But Bassam Abu Sharif of the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed the much larger guerrilla role had resulted in clearcut defeat for the Phalange.

"They just couldn't take it," he bragged. "They suffered heavy losses when we changed the battle tactics of our nationalist forces. Instead of firing mortars from fixed positions we advanced into their areas and took them."

Small radical Palestinian groups had been fighting on the side of the Lebanese Moslems since the beginning of the civil war last April. But this is the first time in seven months that the larger, more "respectable" groups like Yasar Arafat's Al Fatah and Mohsen's Saïqa are admitting that they are taking part.

Previously, they professed neutrality and tried unsuccessfully to enforce the repeated cease-fires in joint patrols with Lebanese security forces. Some Saïqa and Fatah men still participate in the joint patrols, but largely in quiet areas where they are not really needed.

Except for Lebanon's 18,000-man army, which the Moslem politicians have kept out of the fighting because most of its officers are Christians, some 12,000 Palestinian guerrillas constitute the largest single military force in this country of 3 million people. They control refugee camps housing 250,000 Palestinian aliens and many areas of Lebanese Moslems around the camps.

The camps have become arsenals and guerrilla training bases immune from government authority. That is the main complaint of Lebanon's wealthy Christian minority, which supports several private armies of right-wing militiamen.

The Christians accuse the Palestinians of maintaining a "state within a state" and threatening to embroil Lebanon in war with Israel. They say their militias are fighting to reestablish government control over the camps and curtail the guerrilla activity that attracts Israeli reprisals.

The guerrillas believe the Christians are trying to evict them from Lebanon, which has become their last base of unrestricted operations against Israel since their ouster from Jordan in 1970.

The Popular Front and other left-wing Palestinian groups also charge that the Phalange is in league with the United States and Israel to wage a "war of attrition" against the guerrillas.

Irish Dream Of Unification Appears Far Away

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

DUBLIN — The Irish rain sifts slowly down, soft as slipper, and over in County Clare the morning rainbows flower. The mid-day sun breaks through, sparkling the wet green land; but soon or late, it rains anew. The character of the country lies in its weather; tears and smiles; and after a bit, more tears.

These are not especially happy times in Ireland, but when, one asks, has Ireland known especially happy times? The history of this lovely land is singularly a history of passions and misfortunes, of castles sacked and farms abandoned, fertility and famine, hot blood and cold steel. The Irish love and the Irish hate, and next to talking, which remains their greatest skill, loving and hating are the things they do best.

More than fifty years have passed since the Republic won its independence from Great Britain, but this was a sticky divorce. The final decree left the partners separated, but gave custody of the six northern counties to the United Kingdom. The arrangement has satisfied no one. The six counties are torn asunder. Economically the islands of Britain and Ireland dwell beneath the same roof; they are stuck with one another. No one can let go.

Family quarrels are the worst quarrels. They go on forever; there is no ending them and no escaping them. In such an intimate hostility, old grievances never die. They languish for a time, only to rise again. The bitterness in Northern Ireland is now so deep that no satisfactory solution seems likely any time soon.

In the popular view, the warfare in the northern counties is seen as a power struggle between the Protestant majority on one side and the Catholic minority on the other. This is the essence, but there is more to it. The situation is complicated by economic issues and by old loyalties and new aspirations. Over the past six years ancient antagonisms have been made worse by fresh blood. More than 1,300 persons have died in the savage and often senseless fighting. London is weary of the whole wretched mess, but if London abruptly withdrew the British troops full-scale civil war would almost surely follow.

Here in Dublin, the government treads a delicate path. The dream, as always, is a dream of one united Ireland, but these days the dream seems farther than ever from reality. Unification would require a favorable vote in both the Republic and the six counties, but not even the wildest optimist imagines that Ulster would agree on any acceptable terms. Meanwhile, the best the Republic's government can do is to deplore the terrorism and to plea for reconciliation.

Within the next few weeks a report is expected from a constitutional convention that has been meeting off and on for months. The convention is composed of 45 Protestants, representing the United Ulster Unionist Coalition; 30 Catholics, representing the Social Democratic Labour Party, and 13 moderate Protestants whose views are more or less in the middle. The dominant UUUC faction was shaken last week when the leader of the "Vanguard" group, William Craig, began to wobble toward compromise. The coalition promptly expelled him.

None of the alternatives appears to command great support. In theory, Ulster might go the way of Rhodesia, with a unilateral declaration of independence, but such a course is regarded as economic nonsense. In theory, Ulster might agree to unification, but this course instantly would convert the Protestant majority to a Protestant minority. In theory, London might abolish every form of self-government in the six counties, but this would unite Catholics and Protestants alike in dissatisfaction.

So the war, like the rain, seeps on. The senseless violence continues. The Irish Republican Army, embarrassed by its own extremists, can neither control them nor disown them. A brutal kidnapping case, involving a Dutch industrialist in Limerick who was seized by a pair of IRA terrorists, has made the IRA's image still more unpopular. The constitutional convention's report, presumably recommending a return to simple majority rule in Ulster, will find no acceptance in Parliament. The troops will stay, and the ugliness will not abate.

There is an Irish saying: When God made time, He made a vast deal of it. Eventually, by all-out civil war, or by sheer fatigue, the exhausted antagonists will lay down their arms and find some not intolerable compromise. But barring some miracle of inspired leadership, it will be no more than mid-day sunshine, a rainbow truce before the slow grey rain resumes.

Mounting Evidence Of A Base To Sustain The Economy's Recovery

By GEORGE BRYANT

Evidence mounts that recovery is establishing a base which will sustain the uptrend well into next year and probably through the year.

Statistics gathered by the government show that the weak gains noted in the spring, when the recession hit bottom, have gained steadily and broadened out. And with this has come a significant change in "mood", which reflects greater confidence on the part of consumers, both individual and business. They are spending more freely.

The much headlined jump in third quarter gross national product (GNP) probably will not be repeated this quarter, or even in 1976. The record gain of 11.2 percent in the annual rate, after adjustment for price inflation, was something of a fluke. Nearly half the decline was accounted for in a sharp decline in the reduction of inventories, compared with the second quarter.

Still, the gain was impressive and surprising, too. It has gone far to quiet fears that we were heading for a short rise, just a few months, and then another decline—a double dip recession. The performance brought from one New York analyst this comment: "The economy is doing" better than the economists."

But of more significance than the gain itself is the fact that it was widely based. The improvement showed in all major private sectors, except foreign trade, and was registered at a time when spending for goods and services by government, federal, state and local, was slowing. Continuing gains of 4 percent to 6 percent are forecast.

The big gain for the third quarter came in the area of personal consumption expenditures. It accounted for $31.4-billion of the total rise of $57-billion. It was fed by a $34.5-billion increase in personal income. The spending gave a lift to sales of both hard and soft goods. The portion of the increase that went into services was eaten up by higher prices.

This gives a picture of a consumer who looks to the future with more confidence, especially in his job, and a feeling that the slower rate of inflation may not prove a mirage. He is inclined to spend more freely and save at a slower rate.

A future rise at an annual rate of 4 percent to 6 percent might seem disappointingly slow, following such a severe recession. But it is well to remember what happened a few years back. When recovery from the 1969-70 recession got going, it quickly hit a boom pace, with the result that inflation soared to double digit rates and recession resurged.

A slow comeback this time might well avoid that sort of situation. It seems generally agreed that the bigger danger to continue recovery is the threat that prices will again head skyward once it is clear that the economy is on a continuing uptrend. Such a development would again drive consumers to shelter.

For the time being, at any rate, official concern in Washington over the immediate inflation danger seems to have eased a bit. This shows in moves by the Federal Reserve to boost the money supply and thus depress interest rates, especially on short term credit. The easing impact on long term borrowing is expected to be moderate, at most.

Another factor which will tend to work against price inflation, at least for a while, is that two big industries — autos and home building — still lag. In normal recoveries, they usually are among the pace setters. But each is up against the problem of sharply increased prices which demand a greater proportion of the buyer's dollar than in the past. But even these industries have shed a bit of their gloom.

Another factor contributing to a slow, sustainable recovery may be President Ford's decision to sit tight when it comes to a bailout of New York City. Allowing the "Big Apple" to fall into the hands of a federal bankruptcy referee may put something of a restraining chill on state and municipal spending. But this is unlikely to change the economy's direction.

Also, it may well curb the habits of some big-lending banks. Getting stuck with municipal paper will be a new experience since the Great Depression. And it may be one which will discourage banks from financing excesses, whether by public or private borrowers.

But the minuses in the overall picture no longer cancel out the pluses. The prospect is that the economy will trend moderately upward for the foreseeable future.

politicians here, and none more than Walker. His lieutenants are now plotting a major counteroffensive against Daley as a "party-breaker." Walker's powerful lieutenant, Victor Degrazia, plans to leave the governor's office in early December and take personal charge of Walker's two primary battles: for governor—and for delegates (who are pledged not directly to Walker but to "an unbossed, anti-Daley candidate" — that is, Walker).

Walker plans to boycott Daley's candidate-slating session as "illegal" and he will campaign this state as a charismatic incumbent, exploiting the governor's patronage resources and portraying himself as the only Democrat able to save Illinois from Daley bossism. Walker won that opening battle in Springfield last week. But if a resurgent Daley can produce Mike Howlett and Adlai Stevenson on the battlefield, winning a civil war with ominous overtones for Democrats may be far beyond his capacity.

This year, the Rev. Mr. Bennett arranged for a full sized cake and some friends to be at Biggs Drug Store at the time Jack usually visits for coffee.

Alas, Jack got tied up at the office and the birthday party waited in vain. The celebration was put off until the next morning.

And this is positively the final word on the ECU-UNC game.

A Losing Battle Waged By 'The Great Pumpkin'

Halloween night has never been a good time for me. The first Halloween I ever went trick-or-treating, I inadvertently held my goody bag over a jack-o-lantern, and all my candy melted into one gooey blob. Then there was the year when everybody was on a health kick, and all I got were apples, oranges, and grapefruit-flavored sugarless gum. The last year I went trick-or-treating, some fat kid with big feet stepped on my sheet and ripped it off, and I was left standing in the middle of the road in a training bra and Winnie-the-Pooh panties.

But, despite all those childhood traumas, this Halloween had to be the worst ever. It all started when a little girl about six years old came to the door, took one look at me in my orange maternity dress, and asked in an awed voice, "Are you the Great Pumpkin?"

From there it was all downhill. The next kid that came to the door gave me a hostile once-over and said, "That's a DUMB costume. You grown-ups can't do anything right."

"I'm closing down shop for the night," I said to Phillip, stuffing three miniature Mars bars in my cheeks. "I'm not giving away perfectly good food to monsters like that."

GAIL MICHAELS

"Where's your sense of humor?" he asked, grabbing the candy bowl before I decided to further console myself.

"I lost it along with my waistline," I moaned. "Oh, for the days when I was to skinny for my skeleton suit." "Would you quit moaning like that?" Phillip sighed. "You sound like a werewolf with sinusitis."

I could hardly contain myself from throwing a sour ball at him as he went to answer the doorbell. "Trick or treat!" a small voice sang out. Pretty soon the goblin head that went with it peeped around the door. "Oh, so your mommy's having a baby, too," he said to Phillip. "My mommy just had one." He got his candy, tugged Phillip's arm and whispered confidentially, "Just don't let her give you any of that stuff about it being a bundle from heaven. The only thing they know how to do is spit milk all over your best toys."

"Just what we needed," I groaned as the goblin left. "A midget Ann Landers."

"I'm surprised at you, Gail," Phillip said. "I thought you loved children."

"Well, I do," I answered. "But there's something about Halloween night that transforms them into Little League beasts."

"I think the strain of this pregnancy is getting to you. It's sure not those kids who've been transformed."

"What do you mean by that?" I asked suspiciously. "What I mean is that I'm going out and let you cool down." He answered, handing me a broom. "What's this for?" Phillip gave me a sly look and headed quickly for the door. "Well, I certainly don't want to leave you without transportation while I'm gone."

Presidents Revealed Many Sidelights On Job

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Harry Truman expressed what many American presidents often practiced, or tried to practice, when he stuck a sign on his desk reading: "The buck stops here."

Variations of that belief appear in some of the original manuscripts of 33 former presidents on display at the Lyndon B. Johnson Library here. The exhibit is described by library officials as the first to include, under one roof, documents from so many of the nation's presidents.

Without exception the letters, speeches and notes show that each man believed he had been chosen by the people for the most important job in the world.

"All seemed to feel the same way, to have the same experiences," said Mike Gillette, an archivist at the LBJ Library who helped to prepare the exhibit. "Another theme that is obvious throughout is the belief on the part of each occupant (of the White House) that he tried as hard as he could, although maybe he did not accomplish what he wanted to."

Only Chester Arthur and James Buchanan are missing from the list of former presidents from George Washington to Lyndon Johnson. Many documents came from the Library of Congress and others from other presidential libraries and private collections. Richard Nixon has not been included because his papers are not yet available to researchers.

"The greatest part of the president's job is to make decisions—bit ones and small ones, dozens of them almost every day." Truman said in the exhibited text of his last fireside chat before leaving office in 1953. "The papers may circulate around the government for a while but they finally arrive at this desk. And there is no place else for them to go. He can't pass that buck to anybody. No one else can do the deciding for him. That's his job."

George Washington, as the first president, wrote in a letter to Alexander Hamilton that he had trouble finding time to do everything that should be done. "It is my wish to act right; if I err, the head not the heart, shall with justice, be chargeable," he said.

"How inadequate any man is to step into the office of the American presidency," said Lyndon B. Johnson in his memoirs. "It is not a question of wanting to do the right thing. The American people in their wisdom have never yet elected an evil man to lead them. No man ever runs for the presidency on a platform of doing wrong. Every one wants to do what is right. The big challenge he faces, as he looks out on his country and the world from the observation post of the White House, is to know what the right thing is."

In 1900, three years after retirement, Grover Cleveland wrote, "This is especially the people's office. Its incumbent, by reason of the theory of his selection and the nature of his duties, is more directly related to the

Discovers Pamela Bath 2nd Time String Competition Winner Galaxy

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—A University of Maryland astronomer has accidentally discovered what appears to be the nearest galaxy to the Milky Way—a cluster of about 200 million stars some 55,000 light years from the sun. Dr. S. Christian Simonson III announced his discovery today in the Astrophysical Journal Letters. He said the galaxy, dubbed Snickers, had previously gone unnoticed because it is hidden by dense star fields and cosmic dust clouds. The galaxy is about one-tenth of 1 per cent the size of the Milky Way, which contains 200 billion stars. It is about 55,000 light years from the sun, a light year being the distance light travels in a year at a speed of 186,000 miles per second. Simonson said he discovered the body purely by accident: "As part of a course I was teaching in the spring, we were looking at maps of hydrogen gas in the sky.

Pamela Bath

Pamela Bath, violinist, and a junior at Rose High School, has won the prestigious North Carolina Music Teachers Association competition in stringed instruments on the high school level for the second consecutive year.

The auditions, advanced and talented music students in the state, were held in Greensboro recently as part of the North Carolina Music Teachers Association State Convention. Pamela's program included the first movements of the Concerto for Violin by the contemporary American composer, Samuel Barber; Six Rumanian Dances by Bela Bartok; and the first movement of the Concerto in A Minor by Antonio Vivaldi. As the North Carolina representative, Pamela will compete in the Southern regional auditions in Jackson, Mississippi, in February 1976.

Pamela is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bath. She has studied the violin for twelve of her sixteen years. Her teacher is her mother. She studies piano with her father, who is also her piano accompanist. She has played in the East Carolina Symphony for three years and is also a member of the Greenville Youth Symphony and the Rose High Orchestra and Madrigal Ensemble. In addition she studies ballet with Christina Williams, and danced the title role in the Ballet Arts Workshop presentation of "Sleeping Beauty" in 1974. She appeared as Eliza Doolittle in the Rose High School production of My Fair Lady last Spring.

Pitt Church Tour

As a part of the observance of the Bicentennial of American Independence, the Pitt County Historical Society is sponsoring a tour this afternoon to five of the very old churches in the county.

The tour will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church here.

Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, president of the Society and chairman of the N.C. United Methodist Conference Commission on Archives and History, will preside and greetings will be brought by the Rev. James H. Bailey, pastor, and Marvin K. Blount Sr., chairman of the committee charged with preparing a history of Jarvis Memorial in the near future.

Jarvis is the oldest Methodist church in Pitt County, dating from 1782, Rives pointed out. He said that the church has been instrumental in establishing even new churches, thought to be a record in Methodism.

The motor cavalcade of tour members will depart from Jarvis Church at approximately 2 p.m. for visits to the Red Banks Primitive Baptist Church on the southern edge of Greenville, the Roundtree Christian Church near Ayden, and St. John's Episcopal Church near Grifton. The final stop will be at Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church near Winterville where members are observing the 75 anniversary of the church.

'Seminars' Re-Educate Laotian People

By MATT FRANJOLA
Associated Press Writer
VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—
"Seminar" is the newest word in the Lao language.
Pronounced se-min-nah, it is a study session held at every level of society to explain Pathet Lao political ideology, teach a Marxist interpretation of Lao history and prepare everyone for a new lifestyle.

Massive re-education is also taking place in South Vietnam, but Western observers say the Khmer Rouge of Cambodia — far less organized than their counterparts in Laos and Vietnam — have adopted more brutal methods to build a revolutionary society.

In Laos, denunciations of French "colonialism" and American "imperialism" and alleged evils these countries brought to the country highlight the courses, which can last days, weeks or months depending on one's background, education or occupation.

Over the past two months, 200,000 people in Vietnam and the surrounding countryside have been organized into groups, associations and committees based on living units or work locations. The pattern is the same in the provinces.

Through a framework of revolutionary committees under guidance of Lao

People's Revolutionary party officials, people learn that the Marxist view of Lao society is that the country has evolved through four stages:
feudalism, capitalism, socialism, and the culminating stage of communism.

The most common seminars are held in village temples and government offices. Civil servants study every afternoon or do manual labor like cleaning the street or cultivating office vegetable gardens.

A European organization employee said, "Nobody works in the afternoon.
Responsible people in the Finance Ministry are not available to sign checks.

Some things are at a standstill."

Temple seminars for peasants often involve singing and dancing to revolutionary tunes as a way to get the political messages across.
Skits and variety shows during recent independence day celebrations had a political message: the Lao victory over foreign intervention and corruption of former Vientiane-side officials.

Depending on the individual instructors the seminars can be informative or boring, according to some accounts. Some people are reported indifferent to them altogether.

While the inner workings of re-education can be observed by the interested visitor to Vientiane, the details of similar seminars in South Vietnam are more difficult to come by and are gleaned chiefly through radio broadcasts from Vietnam or Westerners leaving the country.

According to these sources, most low-ranking soldiers are re-educated in a week or so, officers up to rank of colonel receive about a three-month course, while some generals of the former regime are still attending seminars with high Communist party officials.

The Saigon generals discuss international events, read American weekly news-magazines, give the pros and cons of Western education and, according to a source from a Socialist country, are giving the former jungle fighters a certain brand of education as well.

County School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week in the Pitt County schools have been announced as follow:

Monday—pizza, barbecue
beans, carrot sticks, fruit cup, cookie, milk;

Tuesday—hamburger steak, mashed potatoes with gravy, peas and carrots, pudding with topping, milk;

Wednesday—chicken and pastry, buttered corn, lima beans, hush puppies, sliced peaches, milk;

Thursday—barbecue on bun, french fries, cole slaw, Jello with topping, milk;

Friday—vegetable-beef soup and crackers, meat sandwich, orange, milk.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGNER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's solar eclipse is an excellent time to wind up whatever has been left undone of a detailed nature and to avoid putting in action an important new plan. Delve into all phases of whatever you do not understand. Be most considerate.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be conscientious in handling business matters, payments, collections. Await a better day for discussions with mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Not the right day to try to make new arrangements with a partner. Avoid one who opposes you. Greater success can be yours later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle routine work, so you free time for more lucrative enterprises. Take the right treatments to restore energies which are lagging.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Expensive and complicated amusements could give you a big headache, so be happy with simple pleasures. Iron out wrinkles in creative work.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use more than average care handling problems at home or confusion could result.
Don't raise any moot points that could start a fuss.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Particular care is needed in making any changes, or where travel is concerned to avoid difficulties. Check statements for accuracy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use much care in handling finances, or you could get into serious trouble.
Elevate consciousness for greater abundance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't permit some bothersome matter to keep you from handling practical affairs wisely. Follow advice of clever financier.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Meditating upon best way to handle any personal problem brings the right answers. Assist those having rough sledding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Relegating duties to others could bring real big trouble, so handle yourself.
Avoid the social now, or arguments could develop.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Refrain from doing anything now that would get you in dutch with others.
Show more respect for bigwigs and gain their favor.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't try to force your way out of any problems you have, or you only make them worse. Sit tight and think. Postpone trip for best results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will think that he or she can do anything better than anyone else and is quick to jump into situations without sufficient thought or preparation, so teach early the importance of caution and knowledge. Give education that will fit this brilliant progeny for the big success that is desired here. Give duties to perform early in life. Sports and religious training are a must.

Smog Control Danger Is Tested By Auto Industry

By EDWARD S. LECHTIN
UPI Auto Writer
MILFORD, Mich. (UPI) — In the gently rolling hills 50 miles northwest of Detroit, a California-style freeway has been built to learn how much sulfuric acid is being pumped out of the catalytic smog-control systems found on most new cars.

Each day, 350 cars travel the three-mile stretch of test road at the General Motors Proving Ground. All are equipped with the muffler-like device that some researchers warn may create as much of a hazard as it was designed to correct.

The first catalytic converters were installed on a large majority of the 1975-model cars to meet government clean air standards. An even greater number of 1976 models will be equipped with the system.

By the mid-'80s, when most cars would have the catalytic mufflers, researchers claim a freeway full of cars would produce dangerous quantities of sulfates which combine with moisture in the exhaust or air to form sulfuric acid mists.

The "sulfuric acid" question is just one of several problems the catalytic converter has had to face since its introduction as a clean air system. There have been reports of fires caused by overheating converters and a number of owners have claimed better fuel economy by "poisoning" the systems with leaded gasoline.

The bumper-to-bumper traffic on the test "freeway" will determine just what concentrations of sulfates are pouring out of the exhaust pipes of the new cars. It's an unusual project because it's a cooperative effort of the four U.S. auto companies and the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The tests are only half completed, but both GM and the EPA agree there is no danger now from the converters. GM cars alone have logged more than 30 billion miles with the muffler-like devices.

"The level of sulfate emissions from many cars without catalysts approaches the level from cars with catalysts," said Ernest S. Starkman, GM's environmental vice president. "It was thought before these studies were begun that non-catalyst systems emitted no sulfates, but we know now that is not the case."

The only cars now equipped with converters that might pose any problem are those sold in California because they are equipped with an air pump to meet that state's stricter air quality standards.

But, since the rest of the nation will reach California's standards in the next two years, the sulfate problem could grow nationwide. Fewer than six million of the nation's 100 million cars are equipped with catalytic mufflers.

"None of the presently available information shows any potential danger to persons from individual catalyst-equipped cars, nor to their occupants," Starkman says. "The quantity of sulfur compounds emitted by any single car is extremely small — detectable only by highly sophisticated instrumentation."

"We all seem to agree that it is only after several years, and then only under the very worst possible combination of conditions, that any adverse health effects might catch up to the health benefits."

Most researchers agree that the "adverse health effects" could cause problems for elderly persons or those with respiratory problems who live near some of the heavily congested freeways in the nation's urban areas. They just don't know yet how large the sulfuric acid mists might become.

The catalytic converter uses platinum and palladium to aid in the change of exhaust hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide into harmless carbon dioxide and water. At least that was the intention when GM and other automakers began working on the device in the early '70s.

In the presence of a great deal of oxygen and heat — two prime ingredients to make the converters work — sulfur in gasoline is converted into sulfuric acid mists or sulfates.

Eric O. Stork, a deputy assistant administrator of the EPA, says the greatest problem posed by the catalytic converter "is that we really don't know if there is a problem." "There's absolutely no reason to even consider taking off the converters because those in the 49 states pose no more hazard than a non-catalyst car," Stork says. "One solution to the problem, if we find from these tests that there is a problem, would be to remove sulfur from the gasoline — a $3 billion to $4 billion undertaking."

GM, the prime developer of the catalytic converter, is sensitive about the clean air device because of the sulfuric acid mist and overheating questions.

Howard Kehrl, a GM executive vice president, admits the converters have been controversial but said that known converter problems of all kinds represented only a minute fraction of 1 per cent of GM's converter car production.

"The problems are no greater than the warranty rate for mufflers and regular exhaust system components," Kehrl says. "It would be unfortunate if untrue and unreasonable criticism would succeed in undermining the public's confidence in the catalytic converter which is a significant step forward in emission control technology."

But another GM executive at the news conference in mid-October to discuss the testing project wryly admitted: "Once these stories of fires, rotten egg smells and sulfuric acid mists begin circulating, they're hard to put down."

Calculators For Food Shoppers

NEW YORK (UPI) — A supermarket industry magazine that tracked shoppers' movements in stores on weekends says about five and a half per cent were using a calculator to keep running totals of their purchases. "Progressive Grocer" said most calculators were plastic hand types, but a few were compact electronic models. The magazine theorized that usage of calculators reflect the shoppers' needs to watch their spending more closely.

One In Ten Has Changed Mind

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey commissioned for a national magazine indicates that one out of 10 American parents would not have children again if they were starting over.

In a copyrighted article, McCall's Magazine said the Gallup poll showed that about 5.5 million parents of children under 18 wouldn't want children again. The magazine said a similar survey 10 years ago at Princeton University showed only one out of 100 mothers regretted having children.

Plan Return Of Walnuts

DUNCAN, Okla. (UPI)—Organizers hope Operation Squirrel followed by Operation George Washington will bring a return of groves of black walnut trees to Oklahoma.

In Operation Squirrel young people across Oklahoma will be invited to bury 50,000 walnuts before Thanksgiving to keep the walnuts moist and unfrozen.

In Operation George Washington in February they will dig up the walnuts and replant them.

"Our biggest problem right now is finding the trees to get the walnuts from so that we can plant them," said Don Moody, president-elect of the sponsoring Oklahoma Association of Realtors. "We've found out how to do the planting and coordinated the people and now we've got to find out where we can get the walnuts."

"The trees are very scarce in Oklahoma which is why we're planting them, but it's making it hard on us."

The tree takes about 70 years to fully mature and grows well in Oklahoma, but has been exploited, he said.

"Black walnut trees are excellent shade trees and highly resistant to every disease except woodcutters," Moody said. "We think maybe if we do this now our grandchildren will get the benefits."

N.C. Dance Theatre To Give Two Performances

The North Carolina Dance Theatre will appear in concert at McGinnis Auditorium on two occasions this week: at a matinee performance on Wednesday at 1:30 and at an evening performance on Thursday at 8:00 p.m. The Company will be in residency at the East Carolina Drama Department as part of the dance program. The residency is being sponsored by the Student Union Artists Series Committee and is made possible by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the North Carolina Arts Council.

The North Carolina Dance Theatre is a professional touring company of fifteen dancers which has achieved a reputation throughout the country as a major dance company. Renowned choreographers have created works especially for the North Carolina Dance Theatre. The works reflect the versatility of the Company ranging in mood from the subtle humor of Charles Czarny's "Bach" to the deeply moving "Myth" by Alvin Ailey.

Gwen Spear, a native of Greenville, is a featured dancer in the Company. Miss Spear was a student of Mavis Ray who is a member of the East Carolina University dance faculty, and she graduated from the North Carolina School of the Arts.

Tickets for the performances are being sold at the Central Ticket Office at Mendenhall Student Center. Call 758-6611 for reservations.

Sculpture Show By Indian Blinded In Vietnam

By NANCY SZOKAN
The one-artist show opening Nov. 1 at the N.C. Museum of Art's gallery for the blind will have an unusual significance.

The bronze sculptures that make up the exhibit — sculptures of Indian dancers and Warriors, rhythmically in motion — were created by a man who is himself sightless.

Sculptor Michael Naranjo, 31, is a Tewa Indian of the Santa Clara Pueblo now living in Santa Fe, N.M. His sculpture — all of it created since he lost his sight — has won him the Catlin Peace Pipe Award, the P. Tarmigan Saga Company Grand Award, first place in the Scottsdale National Indian Arts Exhibition and a citation for "excellence" from the state of New Mexico.

In addition, he had a one-artist show at the Library of the Veterans Administration in Washington, D.C. in 1971, and his work is exhibited in museums and private collections throughout the country.

"He is impressive not only because he has 'made it' as an artist in a very competitive field," said Maya Reid, associate curator of the museum's Mary Duke Biddle Gallery for the Blind. "He has also 'made it' as a handicapped person."

Many of Naranjo's figures are out of his childhood in Taos, a New Mexico artists' community. There his father was a Baptist minister, his mother a potter. "My two brothers and seven sisters were all artists," he says now. "Art came naturally to me."

But it was primarily sketching that he studied at New Mexico Highlands University in the sixties. He dropped out and was drafted in 1967.

A few months later, Naranjo was sent to Vietnam, where in a Mekong Delta skirmish he was hit by a grenade. It blinded him and mangled his right arm, which is still useless.

"Fortunately," he said later, "I'm left-handed."

Asking for clay, he began to sculpt even before he left the Japanese hospital where he spent 10 months recuperating. He returned to New Mexico in 1969, set up a studio, and began to sculpt in earnest.

He works in wax for the most part, and then his figures are cast in bronze in limited editions. Selling for from a few hundred to several thousand dollars, his works are quite popular, and he has been able to support himself completely by his art.

Gentle-voiced and long-haired, Naranjo now wears blue glass eyes to replace the brown ones he lost in Vietnam. He could not come to Raleigh for the show — which will run through the end of November — but he talked about his work in a telephone interview from Santa Fe.

"A sculpture starts with an idea," he said. "but it takes months of actually thinking, months to get it straight in my mind's eye. Since I can't sketch, I can't work out the details on paper... It all has to be in my mind."

Most of his figures are about 20 inches tall, but he is working now on a 12-foot-tall copy of one of his most popular pieces, "Taos War Dancer."

"The hardest part is getting the proportions right," he said. "Most of the time I can feel the size of the limbs, you know. But now I can stretch both my arms as wide as they'll go and it's not as big as one of the arms of the dancer."

The huge statue is being molded over steel beams and a wire frame.

"It's exhausting," he said. "I climb all over the structure. It's really demanding. I always work alone."

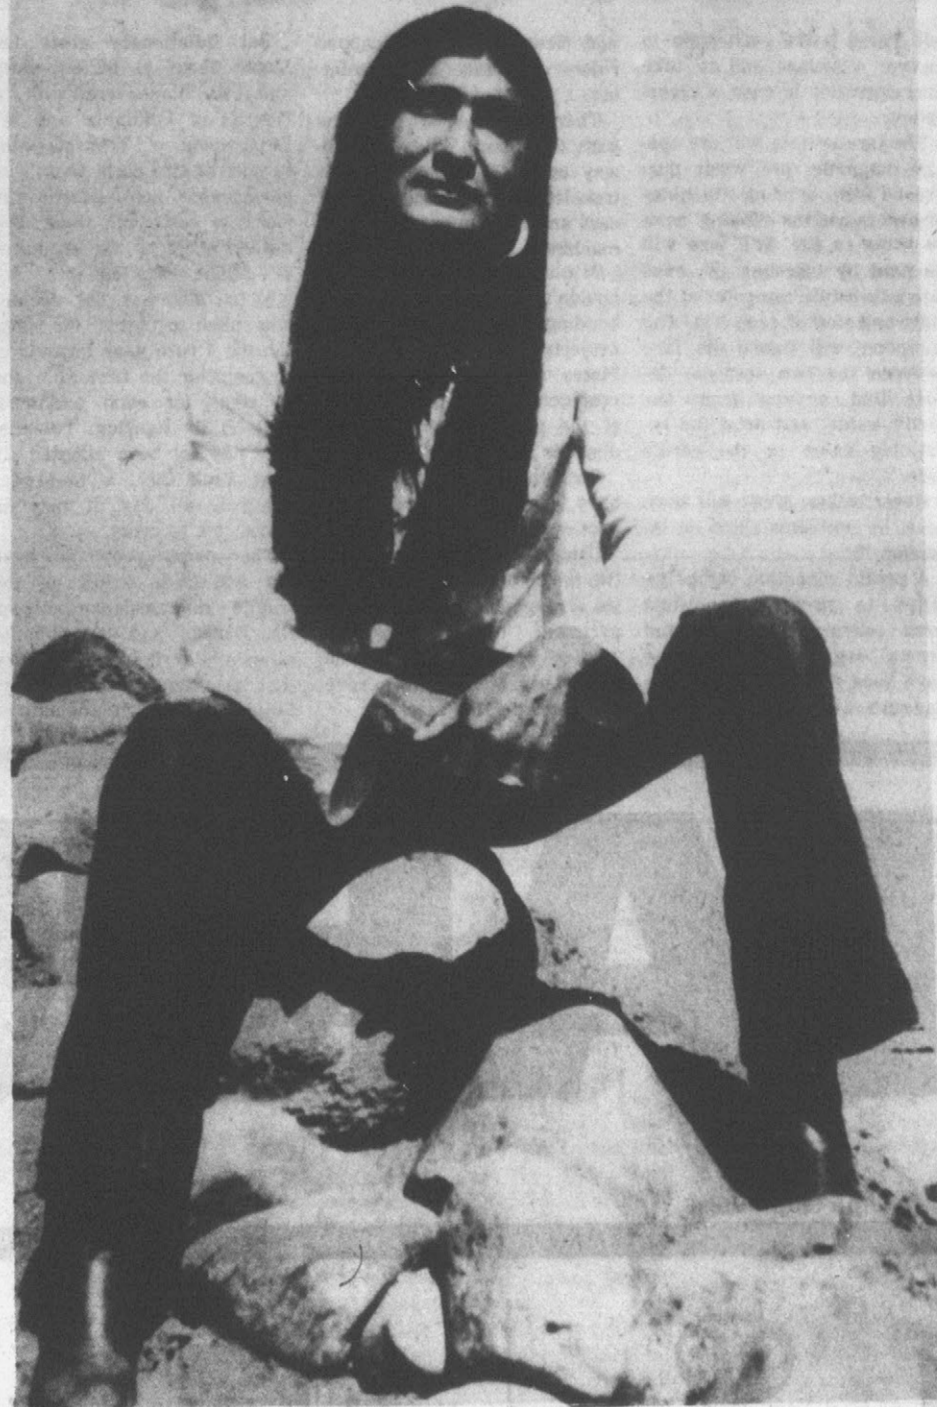

Different works take a different amount of time, Naranjo said.

"The Native" — a 17-inch statue of an Indian who has caught a fish, hair blowing fiercely in his face — took a year and a half to make.

But the popular "Taos War Dancer," with its rhythmically poised legs, dancing war bells, feathered ornaments, was finished in a week.

"I had to work 18, 20 hours a day all that week," he said.

Naranjo has received much national attention, largely because of his work despite his handicaps. But he feels that they have been overemphasized. "I'm a sculptor first," he said. "Not a blind man."

MICHAEL NARANJO... a 31 year old Tewa Indian, has an exhibit of sculpture that opened yesterday in Raleigh's Museum of Art gallery for the blind. While serving in Vietnam, Naranjo lost his eyesight and the use of one arm.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library
By ANN NOBLE

Sheppard's Young Adult corner has several enticing new additions. In STRANGE COMPANION by Dayton O. Hyde, thirteen year old David runs away from his stepfather's farm and heads for the nearest airport. There he stows away on a flight bound to Canada's northwest territories. The pilot, a crusty old-timer named Archie, discovers David just before they are hurled into a storm. The plane crashes, but David and Archie survive. They find a large, dead bird nearby with an egg still warm. Their attempt to hatch the egg results in a strange companion who helps David in his struggle to survive the barren wilderness.

A different kind of struggle for survival took place in 1776. THE WAR WE COULD HAVE LOST is an account of the American Revolution. Clifford L. Alderman tells how easy a victory should have been for the British. They had vast numbers of well-trained, experienced troops. Ample supplies, weapons, and money were their advantages. They why did America win? The author investigates British blunders and examines important battles. He introduces personalities such as William Howe, "Gentleman Johnny" Burgoyne, King George III, and Ethan Allan (leader of the Green Mountain Boys). Read how the action—and sometimes inaction—of these leaders led to an America victory.

Strange mental occurrences are the subject of another new YA book. Once regarded as "superstitious nonsense," they are now being seriously studied by Duke University's parapsychology lab. PSYCHIC PHENOMENA includes strange accounts of telepathy and clairvoyance. In one account, a man on a visit to a city two hundred miles from home "sees" a fire sweep through his town. Two days later, the vision is confirmed. Read of precognition, mental healing, and other mysterious happenings in PSYCHIC PHENOMENA by Willard A. Heaps.

Against the background of a small Southern town, two sensitive girls make great plans for the future. In SYCAMORE YEAR, Mildred Lee tells the story of Wren Fairchild and Anna Lewis—their friendship, their talents, and their adventures in a hectic year of growing up.

Hospitality House

Kay Currie's Hospitality House, from 11 noon on Channel 7 (WITN-TV), today features a sneak preview of "Camelot," a musical production to be presented by the Gold Wayne Community Theatre Nov. 7-8 and 14-15 at the Goldsboro High School.

David Dannehl, as Sir Lancelot, and Donna Jones, as Lady Guinevere, will sing several songs.

Kay discusses the production with Bill Rogers, director of Information Services at Wayne Community College, and Fred Mauk, musical director of "Camelot."

Also featured on the show are Mireille Paige, a makeup and skin care expert, and Paul Hitchcock, who will discuss "energy Conservation Week" with Kay.

Washington's New Subway Can Be Money-Loser

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's capital. The subway of the future. The right place. The wrong time.

This town, strangled by vehicular traffic and growing car by car, set about to build itself a subway — the most advanced subway ever — a way to untie the streets.

But today, with soaring costs, labor disputes and minority hiring practices, design and environmental problems, some officials are suggesting that the already delayed opening of the first line be delayed again.

They call the subway the Metro in Paris, and they call it the same thing in this city, originally designed by a Frenchman. It is to be an ultramodern 98-mile network that someday will connect the hub of this city with the suburban and urban people who make the city work.

But for the moment, that day is at least 8 to 10 years off; nearly a decade of messy construction work and closed streets in the city and suburbs. About half the line will be underground; the rest surface or elevated track.

The troubles of Metro not only spell problems for residents of the already congested Washington metropolitan area, but also for the visitors expected to tour the nation's capital next summer to celebrate the country's Bicentennial. The subway was to have hauled a lot of tourists.

The problems of Metro also point out possible pitfalls for other cities currently building or considering subways of their own. Atlanta and Baltimore recently broke ground. Buffalo and Miami both have requested federal funds. Los Angeles, St. Louis and Houston all have considered subway systems as part of their transportation plans.

Once estimated to cost about $2.5 billion, Metro's price tag now is estimated at nearly $4.6 billion and even more cost overruns could occur before the system is finished in the mid-1980s.

When construction began in 1968, the goal was to complete the subway by 1980. For the Bicentennial, 22.6 miles were to have opened next year, but because of the delays only a 4.6 mile segment in downtown Washington is completed. It's now being tested and will open in February. The remaining 18 miles are to be ready early in 1977.

Officials of the Metropolitan Area Transit Authority predict the authority will lose $100 million a year during the first five years of subway operation. Much of the loss, however, will be from the authority's bus operation, which has a $52 million deficit this fiscal year and is expected to lose $64 million next year.

Metro is the second high speed subway system built since World War II. Its designers claim it is superior in engineering and design to the first post-war system, the Bay Area Rapid Transit system, or BART, linking San Francisco and Oakland.

Resembling a giant eight-legged spider, with its body straddling the District of Columbia, Metro's routes stretch 12 miles into Virginia and nine miles into Maryland, a series of loops in and out of towns.

The trains will be fully automatic, with computers regulating speed, spacing of trains, starts and stops. An engineer will be on board each train to answer questions and to take over operation in case of emergency.

The fare system will use special magnetic fare cards purchased from vending machines in denominations ranging from 20 cents to $20. The fare will be paid by inserting the card into a turnstyle computer at the start and stop of each trip. The computer will figure the fare between the two stations, deduct that amount from the card's value, and print the remaining value on the card's face.

Nevertheless, Metro has been beset by problems since its inception.

A public education campaign failed to prevent opposition from environmentalists and several segments of the line have been tied up by lawsuits. Lawsuits also forced Metro to add elevators for handicapped riders who cannot ride escalators.

There have been problems with the flammability of subway seating materials, design troubles with the first batch of cars and the computerized fare machines.

Minority owned firms couldn't meet the financial bonding requirements for large projects and demanded that Metro further subdivide the contracts to give them a piece of the pie. In addition, labor disputes slowed work.

But the biggest problems have been inflation and its impact on financing.

Congress voted the funds on a two-thirds federal, one-third local arrangement. The usual Department of Transportation funding provides four-to-one federal aid. Metro went to revenue bonds for the rest.

But inflationary costs left Metro about $1 billion short, and it has maneuvered with the District of Columbia and the Department of Transportation to raise needed cash. Even with government help, Metro still looks to come up about $800 million short of the estimated $4.6 billion price tag.

Metro also has not decided how much to charge for rides. It used a rush hour formula of 30 cents for the first mile and 10 cents for each additional mile in its figuring, but that fare has not been adopted. In New York City, a passenger can ride all day, if he's inclined, for 50 cents.

The money problems have put additional strain on the fragile relationships between the District and the communities in Maryland and Virginia that are sharing the subway. Several have threatened to withhold local funds until Metro can assure them that the lines in their areas will be built as planned.

Meanwhile the digging below and the planked streets, the trucks full of dirt and the rerouted traffic continue to tie up the capital, and some skeptics growl that Washingtonians will never abandon their cars anyway.

Electronic Table Tennis

LOS GATOS, Calif. (UPI) — An electronic table tennis game that can be played on a home television set has been developed by a manufacturer here.

The original version has been distracting people in taverns and amusement centers for several years. It resembles table tennis, using hand-controlled paddles on the screen and a dot of light to represent the ball.

The new game created by Atari Inc. uses a battery-operated small black box that the manufacturer says can be attached easily to any size color or black and white television set.

Its features include built-in digital scoring.

The company said the speed of the ball increases as volleys increase, and players can put "English" on return shots by hitting the ball at specified angles.

The original coin-operated version was introduced in 1972. Since then, the manufacturer has sold about $40 million dollars worth of video games for public use.

The device retails for about $100.

More Flying, Fewer Mishaps

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP) — American pilots are flying longer and farther these days but with fewer accidents, reports Piper Aircraft Corp. here. While the number of hours flown by general aviation aircraft — all business and pleasure planes, not commercial airliners — has increased nearly 100 per cent in the last 10 years, the number of fatal accidents per 100,000 flight hours decreased by 16 per cent.

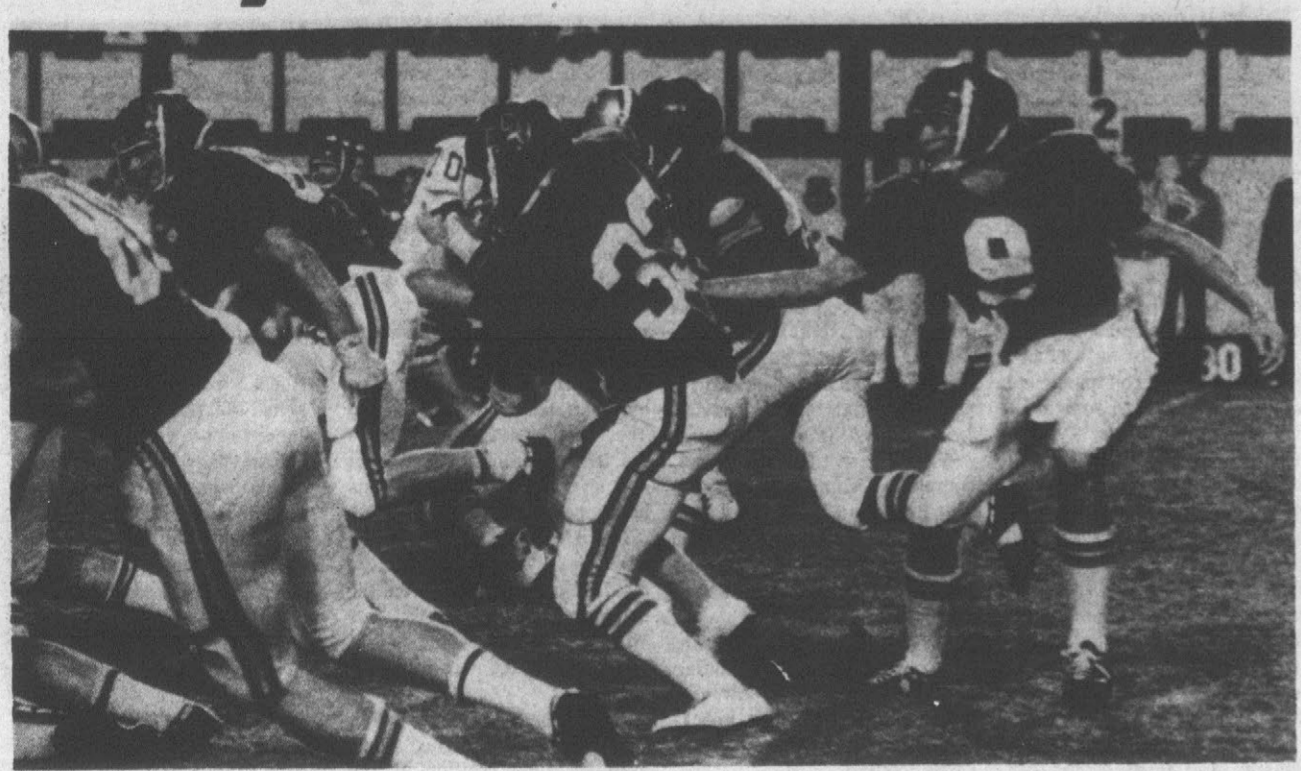

Airplane miles traveled were also up by 78 per cent, and fatal accidents per million miles down by 8 per cent.

Strayhorn Leads Bucs To Win Over Furman

PIRATE CONVOY MOVES OUT—East Carolina running back Willie Hawkins (33) takes a handoff from quarterback Mike Weaver (9) and heads downfield behind a flotilla of Pirate blockers. Kenny Strayhorn clicked off two long runs, one a 62-yard touchdown dash the first time the Pirates got the ball, and led the East Carolina Pirates to a tough 21-10 victory over Furman's Paladins.

Strayhorn, who ran 26 yards to set up another score, also picked up another touchdown on an eight yard run. Mike Weaver picked up the other Pirates score on a two-yard dive. Larry Paul kicked all three extra points.

Furman, always tough when going against the Pirates, tied the game at one time, 7-7, on a 31-yard pass from David Whitehurst to Tommy Southard, and an Andy Goss PAT kick. Goss later kicked a 32-yard field goal.

The contest was much closer than the score would indicate. Furman's punting game kept the Pirates in the hole, and the Paladins put up threat after threat that the Buc defenders had to beat back.

Jimmy Bolding picked off a key pass late in the game after the Buc had picked up their final score following Furman's closing the gap to 14-10. The interception was Bolding's eighth of the year, setting a new single game record, and his 17th career one, tying the Southern Conference record.

Defensively, Harold Fort, Harold Randolph, Jake Dove and Willie Bryant were the standouts for the Bucs. Fort recorded 19 tackles, 10 of them unassisted, while Randolph and Dove both had 14, including 10 unassisted by Dove. Bryant added 11 tackles.

East Carolina's wishbone offense cranked up in the final period and that helped to break the game open. During that period, the Bucs rushed 25 times for 125 yards. Overall they had 321 rushing.

Furman got 137 on the ground, and 122 through the air. Strayhorn finished the game with 105 yards rushing, while Mike Weaver, who stayed at the helm of the Buc offense until it was decided, had 81 rushing and 52 passing. He hit three of four passes, all in the second period.

Tom Daub, who went most of the way at fullback, added 48 yards on 11 carries.

After holding the Paladins on their first possession, the Bucs astounded the 15,424 fans by scoring on the first play from scrimmage. Weaver faked an inside handoff to Daub, and handed off instead to Strayhorn, who went over left tackle, sped by the Furman linebackers and broke into the clear. He then outraced the Furman secondary down the sidelines to go 62 yards for a touchdown.

Paul added the PAT, and after owning the ball just 11 seconds, the Bucs led 7-0 with 12:56 left.

Furman wasn't about to give up however, and struggled back to tie it up. The Paladins couldn't do it right away, but they gave it a try, moving from their 20 to the Pirate 30 before losing it on downs.

After an exchanged of punts, Furman got it back on their own 30, and drove for the tying score. Whitehurst, facing third and two at the 38, hit Southard for nine yards and a first down at the 47, then on third and 11, hit David Kelly for 14 at the Pirate 40. Ike Simpson carried twice for seven yards and Larry Robinson got a first down at the 29. Whitehurst lost two yards on the final play of the quarter, but on the next play, he found Southard in the end zone for a 31-yard touchdown pass just six seconds into the second period. Goss kicked the PAT to knot it at 7-7.

Furman then recovered an onside kick at the Buc 38, and threatened again, but an interception by Fort at the eight killed it.

Eort's return to the 19 set up the second scoring drive of the Pirates. Weaver made 19 yards in two carries, sweeping the left side of the line. Two runs by Willie Hawkins got three yards, and Weaver picked up nine for another first down at the 48. He then passed to Hawkins for 29 yards to the Paladin 21. Three plays, including 11 yards by Strayhorn in two lugs, got a first down at the eight. Weaver hit Strayhorn on a forward lateral (behind the line) for three yards, then Hawkins added three more to the two. Weaver went through the left side, cut back and went into the end zone on the next play, and Paul's kick upped it to 14-7 with 6:32 left.

The Pirates had another brief threat, moving to the 38, where a 12-yard gain on a Weaver to Terry Gallaher pass was wiped out by a penalty, and the drive killed.

Furman's field goal came midway through the third period. The Paladins got the ball at the Pirate 49 after a punt. Whitehurst got a first down on third and six at the 39, then Harry King added 16 yards to the 23. The drive finally bogged at the 15, and Goss kicked a 32-yarder to cut the lead to 14-10 with 5:57 to go in the period.

East Carolina missed out on a chance after Furman fumbled a punt and Terry Brayboy recovered for the Bucs on the 24. The Bucs got to the six, but on fourth and four, a field goal attempt from 33 yards out was just off target.

The Bucs held and forced a punt, and this time drove for the killing score. They took over on their own 41, and Weaver kept for five yards. Strayhorn got four and Daub added seven, then nine more.

Strayhorn broke away for 26 to the eight, nearly getting in and on the next play, he skirted the left side to score with 6:29 left in the game. Paul's kick made it 21-10.

Twice more, the Pirates got the ball into deep Furman territory as the second unit moved the ball. They moved once from the Buc 40 to the Furman 26 before a fumble cost them the ball. But Furman fumbled it back just a few seconds before the end of the game, and the Bucs moved from the 38 of the Paladins to the 22 before it ended.

The win assured the Pirates of their fourth straight winning season, the second longest string of good years in Pirate history. Now 6-3, the Pirates travel to Charlottesville, Va., next Saturday afternoon to face the University of Virginia, coached by former Pirate coach, Sonny Randle.

Johnson's Score Caps State Rally As 'Pack Wins

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Running back Timmy Johnson plunged over from the one with nine seconds left to give North Carolina State a 28-21 victory over South Carolina in a regionally televised college football game Saturday night.

To minimize the threat of a loss, N.C. State took a two-point conversion on a sprint around left end by running back Ted Brown, who led a Wolfpack attack by romping for 164 yards in 23 carries and snaring eight passes for 97 yards.

N.C. State's winning drive covered 65 yards in just six plays and was highlighted by a 20-yard pass play from Dave Buckley to Johnson and a 21-yard scamper by Brown which put the Wolfpack on South Carolina's two-yard line.

That explosive effort nullified an equally dramatic drive by the Gamecocks, which was capped by a five-yard sweep around right end by Clarence Williams for the score and a two-point conversion pass from quarterback Jeff Grantz to Brian Nemeth. That gave the Gamecocks a 21-20 lead with 1:29 remaining.

A near capacity crowd of 48,500 watched South Carolina dominate the first half of the game and take a 10-0 lead to the dressing room at halftime.

The Wolfpack, now 6-3 for the season, exploded as the third period opened, scoring a pair of field goals in less than four minutes. Jay Sherrill split the uprights from 31 yards and 37 yards.

The second field goal was set up when Randy Chastain fumbled and gave the Wolfpack possession on the Gamecock 20.

South Carolina is now 5-3 for the season.

Cain To Take Over As East Carolina AD

William Earl (Bill) Cain, for the past three years, assistant athletic director at East Carolina University, was named Saturday afternoon to succeed the late Clarence Stasavich as athletic director at the school.

Stasavich died 10 days ago, and Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor of the university, appointed Cain acting athletic director last Saturday.

Monday, Dr. Jenkins named a committee to "advise him on what course to follow" in finding a new athletic director. That committee met on Tuesday, and again Saturday morning.

"After the tragic death of Coach Stasavich," Dr. Jenkins said yesterday, "it became our responsibility to find a successor. We appointed a committee to recommend what procedure to follow, whether to promote from within or to search the country for a new man."

"The committee met this morning and unanimously recommended that we promote from within, and I think they have made an excellent choice in recommending Bill Cain."

The new athletic director expressed his appreciation to the committee and promised a vigorous action in building the East Carolina athletics.

"Coach Stas laid the foundations for us to build on," he said. "I will carry on this tradition and continue to build. I will do all I possibly can to build for our students, alumni and the university in general."

Cain, 42, has deep roots with East Carolina, having received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from the school. He played football with East Carolina, and has served on the coaching staff, as business manager and assistant athletic director.

Born in Rockingham, N.C., he was a three-sport athlete at Rockingham High School in football, basketball and track, winning many honors, including All-State selection.

He attended East Carolina starting in 1955, where as a freshman, he was named to the Carolinas Conference Rookie Team. He also participated in track.

Cain entered the U.S. Army in 1956, playing on the All-Army team at Fort Meade, Md. Following his discharge, he returned to East Carolina to finish his undergraduate work, where he was twice named All-Conference, and was co-captain of the team in 1959.

He received a B.S. degree in physical education in 1959, and a

M.S. in education in 1961. From 1960 to 1965, Cain served as head football and track coach and athletic director at Suffolk, Va., where he won one track title and two football titles.

In 1965, he moved to Albemarle High School in Albemarle, N.C., with the same positions, winning a conference football title in 1966.

Cain was tapped by Stasavich to be freshman coach at East Carolina in 1968, guiding the team to a 4-1 record, and the first win over N.C. State by a Pirate team.

In 1970, he was named Business Manager of the athletic department, where he was in charge of budgeting, ticket sales, Pirate Club ticket promotions, sales, stadium operations, and the like.

In 1973, he took over the duties of assistant athletic director, handling stadium and coliseum operations, all "non-revenue" sports serving two years as golf coach, guiding the team to two second-place finishes in the Southern Conference. He was named tennis coach this fall.

Cain is married to the former Frances Johnson, and they have two sons, Lance, 14, and Tracy, 10. He is a member of St. James Methodist Church.

Vandy Slips Past Cavs, 17-14

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Lonnie Salder rushed for 147 yards and scored twice—and teammate Steve Curnutte intercepted a pass at his 2-yard line with 1:23 left as Vanderbilt trimmed Virginia 17-14 Saturday afternoon in a non-conference college football game.

Vanderbilt broke a 3-game losing streak and evened its record as Sadler scored on runs of 1 and 2 yards.

But Virginia quarterback Scott Gardner marched the oft-beaten Cavaliers to the Commodore 7-yard line in the last four minutes before Curnutte picked off a pass.

The loss was the Cavaliers' sixth straight defeat and left them with a 1-7 record.

After a scoreless first quarter, Sadler scored from 2 yards out in the second period, but Virginia tied it on a 1-yard run by Gardner later in the quarter and then went ahead on a 12-yard pass from Gardner to David Sloan just before half time.

Vandy narrowed it to 14-10 on a 44-yard field goal by Mark Adams in the fourth quarter and scored the deciding touchdown on a Sadler's second touchdown with 10:15 left.

Veteran Vandy quarterback Fred Fisher, injured much of this season, came off the bench and engineered the final two scoring drives.

Virginia, which lost to Wake Forest 66-21 last week, and was giving up an average 36 points a game, played without six injured starters.

Giants Whip Chargers, 35-24

NEW YORK (AP)—Craig Morton passed for two touchdowns and Joe Dawkins ran for two others as the New York Giants defeated the winless San Diego Chargers 35-24 in a National Football League game Saturday.

The defeat was the seventh in a row for the Chargers, who had averaged only six points per game before Saturday. The Giants are 3-4.

Morton's second touchdown pass, a 47-yard play to tight end Bob Tucker, broke a 21-21 tie in the third period.

Then the Giants defense halted a fourth-quarter San Diego drive inside their 10-yard line and the Chargers had to settle for a 26-yard field goal by Ray Wersching that kept New York ahead in this see-saw game.

Morton's winning touchdown pass to Tucker was a short squareout pattern that went all the way when the tight end picked up key blocks from John Hicks and Don Clune.

The teams traded touchdowns throughout the game, with the Giants scoring first and leading 21-14 at the half.

The Giants opened the scoring with just under 10 minutes gone in the game when Dawkins barreled over from the four-yard line on a draw play behind Hicks' block.

The scoring drive included a fourth-and-one play from the Chargers' 11 when Larry Watkins went three yards for the first down that kept the Giants moving.

San Diego came right back and tied the score when rookie Rickey Young broke over right tackle and dashed 48 yards for a touchdown.

Doug Kotar returned the ensuing kickoff 64 yards and two plays later, the Giants were ahead again when Dawkins dashed 14 yards for another score.

But the Chargers launched a 90-yard drive that included a 17-yard scramble by quarterback Dan Fouts on a third-down play. Fouts scored the touchdown on a one-yard run.

Again, the Giants came right back and regained the lead. This time on Morton's 24-yard pass to wide receiver Ray Rhodes.

Wake Forest Hands Heels Another Loss

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Shifty John Zeglinski scored the first three Wake Forest touchdowns against North Carolina since 1970 and sparked the upstart Deacons to a 21-9 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over the Tar Heels Saturday.

Zeglinski provided the only flashes of excitement in a game that saw both teams try to grind out yardage with basic power plays.

The Deacons set the tone on the opening possession. With Clark Gaines doing most of the heavy work, they marched 87 yards in 13 plays. The only pass was on the final play, a 5-yard toss from Jerry McManus to Zeglinski.

North Carolina tied it up in the second period with another drive. Starting from their own eight, the Tar Heels took 16 plays to set up a 15-yard burst over right tackle by tailback Mike Voight. He was the game's leading rusher with 148 yards on 33 carries.

The Deacons took the lead in the third period after the Tar Heels had stopped them with a goal-line stand. North Carolina couldn't move and Johnny Elam punted to Zeglinski at the North Carolina 45.

The sophomore from Philadelphia spun from the grasp of two tacklers, picked up some blocks and streaked down the left sideline for the decisive touchdown.

Wake Forest added the clincher by opening up its offense a trifle in the fourth period. After Gaines successfully converted a fourth down situation at the UNC 22, Zeglinski drifted in to the left flat for a pass from McManus.

He took it and veered free over the middle, scoring his third touchdown of the day.

The Deacons now are 3-5 overall and 3-2 in the ACC. North Carolina dropped to 2-6 overall and 1-3 in the league.

Wake Forest gave North Carolina its only points of the second half by snapping the ball intentionally out of the end zone when the Deacons were bottled up and afraid that a punt might be blocked. A safety, however, was not enough to put UNC back into the game.

It wasn't long before Coach Bill Dooley must have been wondering if Williams could throw a pass. The Tar Heels needed someone who could.

The student body sang good-by to Dooley as the game ended, but there was no indication from North Carolina athletic officials that the coach's job was in jeopardy.

Georgia Tech Rambles To 21-6 Win Over Duke

ATLANTA (AP)—Danny Myers raced 40 yards for a fourth period touchdown Saturday, sparking Georgia Tech to a 21-6 college football victory over the Duke Blue Devils.

Myers' run with just over 11 minutes remaining broke the back of the Blue Devils, who in the third quarter had staged a goal line stand at their one and later prevented Tech from scoring after losing a fumble at the Duke 21.

Myers' run gave the Jackets an 18-6 advantage and Don Besillieu added a 24-yard field goal with less than five minutes remaining.

Tech, 6-2, had nursed a 12-6 lead at halftime produced on a one-yard run by Adrian Rucker and a 37-yard pass from Rudy Allen to Steve Raible.

Rucker's touchdown came on Tech's first possession, a time-consuming, 20-play, 80-yard drive on which seven Jackets carried the ball. That drive required nine minutes, 13 seconds.

Duke's scoring came in the second quarter on field goals of 27 and 36 yards by Vince Fusco, giving him a school record eight for the season. The defeat left Duke with a 3-5 record.

Tech had trouble with extra points during the game as E. O. Wheeler missed kicks after the first two touchdowns and then the Jackets botched a two-point attempt after the third score when Myers made a bad pitchout.

Freshman Bucky Shamburger was the top runner for the Jackets, reeling off 124 yards on 12 carries, most of it on a 62-yard run to the Duke 18 on the first play of the second half. He was slowed by Bob

Wilson Defense Knocks Rose Off Top, 7-0

THERE IT GOES—AGAIN—Players dive after another loose ball in Friday night's game between Division I rivals Rose and Wilson. The Rampants, plagued by four lose fumbles, couldn't get their offense in gear as the Titans upset them, 7-0, and moved

WILSON — Prior to meeting Wilson's Titans Friday night, Rose High School Football Coach Dave Bumgarner said he didn't want to get into a defensive struggle with his opponent.

"I don't think we can win in a defensive game. We have to control the ball and move it to beat them," he said.

It turned out to be sort of a prophecy. The Rampants not only were unable to control the ball, they had quite a bit of trouble moving it, and that, coupled with several key fumbles cost them a 7-0 defeat.

With the victory, Wilson moved past the Rampants into first place in Division I with a 3-0-1 record. They have one game left, with Rocky Mount, and a victory would give them the title and the first place berth in the State Playoffs.

Rose falls off to 3-1 in the league, and must defeat Northeastern next Friday night to claim the number two playoff berth—clearly the less favorable position. Because of the playoff setups, from that position, Rose could not play any home games during the four-week countdown to the title.

A loss, however, could cut the Rampants out of the scene entirely, sending Northern Nash in their stead.

The Rampants fumbled the ball away four times—the last time with one minute to go in the game inside the 10-yard line of the Titans. Early in the game they fumbled it away after moving to the 14. Another fumble set up the lone Wilson touchdown, a 45-yard sprint by Randy Edwards in the second period.

Going into that final drive, the Rampants had barely passed 100 yards in total offense, having just 71 at halftime.

Wilson, in the meantime, completely dominated play in the first half of the game, driving the ball down the field several times behind the hard running of Edwards and Ted Bissette.

Except for the touchdown run, there was little spectacular running by the Titans, however. It was simply hard-nose, knock-the-opponent-down-or-three-yards football.

And the Titans just outplayed the Rampants and deserved to win it.

The final drive, however, nearly turned it around. Rose got the ball on their own 44 with just over four minutes to play. Henry Trevathan guided the attack around the left side of the Titans, which suddenly proved vulnerable. Of the 10 plays Rose ran before turning the ball over, nearly all went to the left.

Trevathan tried to pass on the first play, found no one open and scrambled for five yards. He then kept the ball around the left side for nine more to the Wilson 42. He kept it again up the middle for five more, then went to the left for six more. After a yard gain, Doug Paschal hit up the middle for six and Trevathan again kept around the left side for six more. Paschal banged over left tackle to the 12, and Trevathan went out of bounds on the left side at the seven with 1:14 left, and the Rampant fans had hopes of at least a tie.

But it was not to be—on the next play, Trevathan tried to hand off to the right side, and the ball came loose, with Wilson's Willie Washington falling on it at the nine, ending the Rampant hopes.

Three plays into the game, Wilson fumbled giving Rose excellent field position—at the Titan 37. Paschal carried twice for 14 yards, and Trevathan picked up nine more to the 14. The next play lost three yards, and a pitchout was bobbled on the next one, with Jessie Montiero getting it for Wilson.

With Edwards and Bissette running the ball, Wilson began a steady drive downfield. From their own 30, they moved in 16 plays to the Rampant nine. The longest run of the drive was a nine-yarder by Bissette, and most of them were three and four-yarders. After getting a first and goal at the nine, however, Bissette fumbled and Jay Chenier recovered for Rose.

Four plays later, however, Rose fumbled it back at the 10, but the defense held and a 32-yard field goal attempt was wide.

Rose drove upfield and reached the 49 in six plays, but another fumble turned it over at the Rose 45, with Mike Underwood recovering for the Titans.

On the first play, Edwards shot through the middle of the line, spun away from several tacklers, and raced downfield, he was finally caught, but managed to put the ball into the end zone as he went down, scoring the key points. Soc Gliarmis kicked the PAT for the 7-0 lead with 9:41 left in the half.

Rose briefly got a penetration into Titan territory on their next possession, but were forced to kick from the Wilson 44. Wilson came back and drove downfield again, going from their 21 to the Rose 20 before being halted on downs.

Rose got another chance midway through the third period when Rocky Butler intercepted a pass to give the Rampants the ball on the Wilson 33. They got a first down at the 30, and again at the seven, with Paschal getting much of the yardage. William Joyner hit to the five, but Paschal was stacked up there on second down. Trevathan was then thrown back on the 13 trying to pass on third down, and a field goal attempt by Wright Hooks was just wide of the mark.

From there on out, until the final drive by the Rampants, it settled down to a punting duel, with neither team able to mount much offense.

Rose is now 7-2 overall. They close out the regular season in a must-win situation against Northeastern's Eagles in Ficklen Stadium next Friday night.

A victory would send them into a playoff spot, probably against Wilmington Hoggard or Seventy-First of Fayetteville—on the road, the following week. A loss would likely eliminate them from post-season play.

Florida St. Rolls To 43-7 Win

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Quarterback Clyde Walker passed for two touchdowns in leading Florida State to a decisive 43-7 victory over Clemson Saturday in a meeting of college football independents.

Walker connected on six and 16 yard touchdown passes to Mike Shuman. Larry Key tallied on a 16-yard sweep and Leon Bright burst over from the two for other first half touchdowns. The game left Florida State 2-6 for the season, and Clemson 1-7.

running attempts to lead Florida State crushing ground game. Bright was staying with him at 75 yards on 15 tries when an apparent ankle injury sidelined the stubby sophomore.

Walker passed to Ed Beckman for a two-point conversion after the kick following the initial touchdown was wide. Another conversion kick was blocked by Clemson.

Clemson had its usual fumble trouble, losing the ball four times and twice having passes intercepted. But reserve William Scott returned the second half kickoff 65 yards to give Clemson one bright spot in the day.

In addition to the running of Key and Bright, Walker completed 10 of 14 passes for 165 yards. His reserve, Mathieson, completed three of eight for 44 yards.

One of the game's biggest plays from scrimmage was Walker's short pass over the line to Bright, who barreled for a 61-yard gain that set up Florida State's third touchdown.

Defense Keys Irish; Hunter Scores Once

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Ross Browner blocked and recovered a Navy punt for one Notre Dame touchdown and pounced on a Navy fumble to set up another score Saturday as the Irish defense led the way to a 31-10 college football victory over the Midshipmen.

The victory was 15th-ranked Notre Dame's 12th straight over Navy in the nation's longest continuous intersectional rivalry, dating to 1927.

Navy's defense was ranked third in the nation going into the game, but it was the Irish defenders who came up with the big plays that reversed a 3-0 Navy lead in the first quarter.

Browner, a 6-foot-3, 235-pound sophomore defensive end, lifted the Irish to a precarious 17-10 lead going into the final quarter. Then, defensive tackle Jeff Weston raced 53 yards with an intercepted pass for one touchdown and linebacker Tom Eastman ran another interception to the Navy four-yard line to set up the final Irish score by Al Hunter.

The victory lifted Notre Dame to a 6-2 record and ended a two-game home losing string. Navy, which upset Pitt 17-0 last week, fell to 5-3.

Navy's scores came on a 33-yard field goal by Larry Muczynski in the first quarter and a three-yard touchdown pass from Bill Poirier to tight end Kevin Sullivan in the third period.

Field Goal Helps Lions Nip Terps, 15-13

FLORIDA STATE added touchdowns in the second half on short bursts by reserves Rudy Thomas and Steve Mathieson. Keith Singletary connected on a 36-yard field goal for the victors just before the half.

Clemson rolled 80 yards for its lone touchdown, Ken Callicut dashing over from the 15. The drive was keyed to a 43-yard keeper by quarterback Mike O'Cain.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — A 40-yard, fourth-quarter field goal by Chris Bahr, the third of the game by the nation's leading field goal kicker, gave ninth-ranked Penn State a 15-13 college football victory over 14th-ranked Maryland Saturday.

It was the 14th consecutive victory by the Nittany Lions over the Terps, who have taken only one of 22 games in the inter-sectional series. Penn State is 8-1 for the season and Maryland is 5-2-1.

Bahr, whose 18 field goals puts him one short of the NCAA season record, connected from 37 and 44 yards early in the game after Penn State recovered fumbles on the first two Maryland possessions.

A 36-yard run by Woody Petchel made it 12-0 for Penn State with 5:54 remaining in the first quarter, and the Nittany Lions were shut off from any further scoring until Bahr's winning kick with 7:24 left to play.

The senior kicker, the 166-pounder, also missed from 37 yards just before the half and from 38 yards early in the final period. He has missed only three times on 15 attempts from inside 40 yards.

A 26-yard field goal by Mike Sochko gave Maryland its first score early in the second quarter.

VPI Hands W&M Its Eighth Loss

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Quarterback Mitchell Barnes and running back Phil Rogers each scored a touchdown, leading Virginia Tech to a 24-7 football victory over William & Mary Saturday in the 29th annual Oyster Bowl game.

Barnes moved into the quarterback slot in the first half and Rogers, who was the starting signal caller, took over at halfback for the injured George Heath.

The switch ultimately spelled defeat for winless William & Mary, now 0-8. The victory upped the Gobblers' record to 5-3.

Trailing 10-0 in the final quarter, William & Mary finally put together an eight-play, 41-yard scoring drive, culminated by Tom Rosantz' two-yard run. The drive was set up when linebacker Mickey Carey recovered a fumble by Tech's Roscoe Coles.

The touchdown was only the sixth of the season for the Indians.

But Tech took the ensuing kickoff and went 78-yards for its second touchdown, with Barnes scoring on a 43-yard run with less than 10 minutes to play.

The Gobblers put the game away moments later when Rogers ran 19 yards for a touchdown, capping an eight-play,

Erving Hits, But Not Enough

By The Associated Press
Marvin Barnes was absent and Maurice Lucas was tardy with an excuse, but St. Louis Coach Rod Thorn had two apt pupils to fall back on—Rudy Hackett and Harry Rogers.

Spirits guard Freddie Lewis was the apparent star of the show, sinking a three-point field in the final seconds to snap a 116-116 tie and then adding two more field goals to give St. Louis a 120-116 American Basketball Association overtime triumph over the New York Nets Friday night.

And Julius Erving was equally active for the opposition, pacing the Nets with 42 points, including 22 in the third period which tied a Nets one-period scoring record set by John Roche in 1973.

Although Thorn was pleased with Lewis and impressed with Erving, he reserved most of his praise for Rogers and Hackett, two rookies who helped hold the line in the absence of an injured Barnes and a late Lucas, who was delayed in Milwaukee with a court case and didn't arrive until nearly halftime.

In other ABA action, Indiana beat Denver 111-99 and Utah defeated Virginia 123-116.

"We hung in there without Barnes and until Lucas got here," said Coach Thorn. "Granted, Freddie Lewis got 32 points, including the last seven of the game, but he wasn't the key—Rudy Hackett and Harry Rogers were the real keys."

Thorn went on to confess he almost made the mistake of cutting either or both players back in training camp.

Hackett, a center from Syracuse who started Friday night, scored 12 points, grabbed five rebounds, had two steals and two assists. In the last minute of regulation play, Hackett tied the score at 109 with a 20-foot jumper and sent the game into overtime. Rogers, a forward, contributed 15 points, nine rebounds, two assists, one steal and a blocked shot.

Pacers 111, Nuggets 99
Billy Knight and Dan Roundfield scored 29 points apiece against previously undefeated Denver. The Pacers grabbed a 48-41 advantage late in the second quarter and led the rest of the way to take first place in the Western Division.

Stars 123, Squires 116
Ron Boone popped in 37 points and Randy Denton added 24 to lead Utah to its first victory this season. "He (Boone) played a routine game...merely sensational," said Utah Coach Tom Nissalke.

Easy Boston Victory Wasn't That Simple

By The Associated Press
The undefeated Boston Celtics overcame the winless Portland Trail Blazers 112-94 for their third victory of the season Friday night, and though it may have looked easy to some, Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn claimed afterward, "It was like pulling teeth."

Jo Jo White garnered Boston scoring honors with 22 points in the National Basketball Association game, but Portland's towering Bill Walton took game honors with 26 points and Sidney Wicks had 23.

In other games, New Orleans beat Milwaukee 100-85, Buffalo defeated Philadelphia 92-87, Detroit topped Houston 131-127 and Los Angeles ripped Seattle 120-104.

While Heinsohn said Boston's defense "worked very well," he added remorsefully, "We could never crack it open."

"We were up by 16 with nine minutes to go," he pointed out, "and they brought it down to 10. We couldn't really crack them."

Portland fell behind 25-22 late in the first period on two baskets by Charlie Scott. The Celtics led 51-43 at the half, during which they blocked six shots, stole the ball a half-dozen times and forced 13 turnovers. It was 79-67 at the end of three quarters.

Meanwhile, Len Wilkins, in his first year as strictly a bench coach after serving as Portland's playing-coach, sounded hopeful in defeat.

"This was our best effort tonight," he insisted. "If we gave the same effort in the other games it would have been a different story."

Jazz 100, Bucks 85
Pete Maravich and Aaron James scored 16 points apiece as New Orleans gained the advantage in the first quarter and never looked back, at times leading the winless Bucks by as much as 23 points. It was the fourth victory against one loss for the Jazz while the Bucks, led by rookie Dave Meyers' 28 points, fell to 0-3.

Braves 92, 76ers 87
"There was a little luck towards the end on a couple of shots that we could have missed," confessed Bob McAdoo, who scored 25 points, including a crucial basket in the final minute, to keep Buffalo even with Boston for first place in the Atlantic Division. McAdoo assured, however that the Braves now are "moving with poise."

Buffalo Coach Jack Ramsay felt the game was up for grabs. "Either team could have won," he said.

Pistons 131, Rockets 127
With the Rockets leading 101-97 shortly after the last period began, the Pistons reeled off four straight baskets, one each by George Trapp, Curtis Rowe, Chris Ford and Archie Clark. The victory was the third straight for the Pistons, 3-1. Detroit center Bob Lanier tied Rowe for team scoring honors with 24 points, while Calvin Murphy had 40 for Houston.

Lakers 120, SuperSonics 104
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar tallied 27 points, grabbed 24 rebounds and blocked seven shots in his home debut for the Lakers. Cazzie Russell and Donnie Freeman each contributed 25 points and Lucius Allen added 22 as Los Angeles led from the opening minute. Fred Brown led Seattle scoring with 33 points and Tom Burleson had 21.

Bengals Fighting For Survival In Central

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
For the Minnesota Vikings, another victory means little more than a better shot at perfection. But for the Cincinnati Bengals, it could mean not only perfection but survival itself.

The Vikings and Bengals take perfect 6-0 records into their National Football League games Sunday, the Vikings visiting the Green Bay Packers and the Bengals hosting the defending champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

But while the Vikings are cruising comfortably along, apparently en route to another title in the National Conference's Central Division, the Bengals are literally fighting for their lives, playoff-wise.

They're only a game ahead of the Steelers and the rejuvenated Houston Oilers in the American Conference's Central Division. So a loss by Cincinnati could leave first place split three ways.

In Sunday's other games, it's Houston at Kansas City, Dallas at Washington, New England at St. Louis, Atlanta at New Orleans, Buffalo at the New York Jets, Cleveland at Baltimore, Miami at Chicago, Oakland at Denver and Detroit at San Francisco. On Monday night it's Los Angeles at Philadelphia.

"It's a lot bigger game for them than it is for us," Cincinnati wide receiver Isaac Curtis says of Pittsburgh. "They can't afford to fall very far behind us." The Steelers are unbeaten in their last eight road games—but they haven't won in Cincinnati since 1971. In fact, that 21-13 victory was the only one in the clubs' 10-game series which the home team has lost.

Pittsburgh linebacker Andy Russell acknowledges the importance of the game, too. "We don't want to get into the position where we're hoping that somebody helps us," he says. "We could have a better record than last year (10-3-1) and still not make the playoffs."

The Bengals, who slipped past Atlanta 21-14 last weekend, will be relying heavily on Ken Anderson's passing mastery—but they'll have to have more. No team in the NFL is better at stopping the pass than Pittsburgh.

The Steelers will have their work cut out for them, too. Cincinnati ranks second only to league-leading Oakland in AFC total defense. They're expected to have quarterback Terry Bradshaw and fullback Franco Harris back at full strength. Bradshaw suffered a strained tendon in his knee last week in a 16-13 squeaker over Green Bay while Harris is nursing a sore toe.

The Packers lost their first four games before upending Dallas and coming close to doing the same to the Steelers. "We'll correct those mistakes we made against Pittsburgh—and then Minnesota had better look out," said Green Bay passer Steve Odom. "We're getting better and better."

Vikings Coach Bud Grant couldn't deny that. "The Packers looked tough against Pittsburgh," he said. "Both the Chicago Bears (Minnesota's victims last Monday night) and the Packers are under new leadership and will keep improving as the season continues."

Coach Bart Starr is encouraged by the Pack's improvement the past two games. "From a psychological standpoint, I think it's helped," he said. "I think our people now recognize the level we have to perform at to win. But the Vikings are playing better now than I've ever seen them play."

The Oilers and Chiefs carry three-game winning streaks into their game at Arrowhead Stadium, where Houston hasn't won since 1967, seven games ago. Kansas City, 3-3, is also nurturing some playoff hopes. The Chiefs and Denver are only a game back of first-place Oakland in the AFC West.

The situation is similarly tangled in the NFC East, with Dallas leading Washington and St. Louis by one game. "This is a championship game," Washington Coach George Allen said of his Redskins' battle with the Cowboys.

"We've got a great rivalry going. The games the last four years have all been critical...That stuff about Dallas rebuilding this year—I never bought it in the first place," Allen added. As far as he's concerned, Dallas is the team to beat whether they're in first place, second place or whatever. We have to play our best game of the year all the way around."

The Cardinals must try to cool off New England rookie quarterback Steve Grogan, who passed for two touchdowns a week ago after replacing injured Jim Plunkett. Atlanta goes with a new quarterback, too. Kim McQuiken, taking over for injured Steve Barkowski, will be aiming to ruin Ernie Hefferle's debut as the Saints' new head coach.

Buffalo's O.J. Simpson, who boomed his way for 173 yards in this year's season opener, a 42-14 thrashing of the Jets, needs a little more than half that against them this time—89 yards, to be exact—to reach 1,000 for the season. The Jets have allowed 88 points in their last two games.

Kuehl Named Expos Manager

MONTREAL (AP) — Karl Kuehl, two-time minor league manager of the year who is reputed to have a Midas touch with young players, gets a crack at the youth-laden Montreal Expos as the team's second manager in its eight-year history.

The 38-year-old Kuehl became the youngest manager in the majors Friday, succeeding Gene Mauch as field boss of the Expos.

While Mauch, who took over the expansion club in 1969, was a rigid disciplinarian, Kuehl said he expects the players to discipline themselves.

"Discipline should come from within," he said, "and you and your players should program your minds accordingly. I like my teams to be as close as a family."

And Kuehl, who got the job over candidates Tom Lasorda, third base coach with Los Angeles; Preston Gomez, former manager of the San Diego Padres and Houston Astros, and Alvin Dark, recently fired by Charles O. Finley of the American League's Oakland A's, has known many of the Expos players from his four years in Montreal's minor league system.

Kuehl coached such current Expos as catchers Gary Carter and Barry Foote during two years as manager of Montreal's Class AA Quebec City Carnivals in 1972 and 1973, and for a time in the Class AAA International League with the Memphis Blues during the next two seasons.

John McHale, president of the Expos, announced Kuehl's appointment, also revealing that the Expos' general manager position was eliminated. Jim Fanning, the man who had held it, was made vice president in charge of player personnel with expanded responsibility for all Expos players and field personnel on both the major and minor league level.

Pilot Rallies To Win Contest

NAGS HEAD, N. C. (AP) — Jack Hains of Rayne, La., a crop duster pilot and a newcomer to pro bass fishing, charged from second place to win the $15,000 winner-take-all BASS Masters Classic on Currituck Sound Friday. There was no runner-up prize.

The 26-year-old angler boated six bass weighing 12 pounds 12 ounces for a three-day total of 45 pounds 4 ounces.

Marvin Baker, a 49-year-old grandfather from Broadus, Tex., finished second with 39 pounds 12 ounces, boating 11 pounds 9 ounces on the final day of the three-day tournament.

Paul Chamblee, a Raleigh insurance agent who led the competition for the first two days, failed to catch a keeper bass Friday. He slipped to third place with 38 pounds 7 ounces.

Tommy Martin of Hemphill, Tex., the Classic winner last year, placed fourth in the 30-man field of top ranked pros on the 1975 tournament trail conducted by the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society (BASS). He caught 33 pounds 1 ounce for the three days.

Counting bonus money, Hains added $15,950 to his season earnings for a new one-year record of $21,086.86.

An Interim Transit System Is Being Considered

City Council members are in concensus in realizing the need for a public transit system for Greenville. They also agree in general that such a system will require some form of subsidy as well as possible cooperation from the East Carolina University transit system.

Text By Betty Hatch

PROVISIONAL BUSING PROGRAM... This city map shows a possible busing program which could be developed into a full-scale mass transit system. The large dots indicate residential, institutional and shopping areas to be served. The two routes are designed to meet basic institutional needs. With a two-bus system, buses would probably run between 15 and 45 minutes apart except perhaps at peak times. (Reflector Photos by Betty Hatch)

A full-scale public mass transit program for Greenville could not go into effect for about two years from the time of its approval by the city Public Transportation Commission (PTC), so plans are being considered for a provisional program to fill in the time gap.

A transit needs study conducted by Alan M. Voorhees and Associates, Inc., of McLean, Va., estimated 18 months as the time required to develop a transit program. The PTC must make its recommendation to the City Council, the Council must adopt a busing program, and a federal capital grant must be approved and utilized before any tangible results can be recognized.

The support of the Council members and the findings of the "Immediate Transit Needs Study" have strengthened the possibility that Greenville may have a public transportation system in the future and may also get an interim program.

According to the study, "the poor and the elderly are the most severely limited groups" in Greenville. "The most critical needs of the transit-dependent groups were in getting those services most directly benefitting them," such as food stamps, social security, health care and other services. The study noted that, besides institutional needs, many persons need access to a variety of shopping locations, particularly food and drug stores.

Council consensus leans toward a full-scale transit program, if it does not cost the city an "unreasonable" amount, and toward a provisional program which would determine public use and support.

"I am strongly in favor of a transportation program," said Dr. Frank Fuller, a Council member who supported the idea when the Council considered it about six years ago.

"It may become more of a necessity for all of us in time," he added, noting that a transit program would help many persons save gas.

Fuller suggested a "reasonable charge" for persons using the bus system, an amount based on the system's operating expenses but kept as low as possible.

Councilwoman Mildred McGrath suggested the possibility of reduced rates for persons over 60 and children, or lower rates for weekly or monthly passes.

"I do think we will need some kind of public transportation and we should view it as a service, but I am realistic enough to realize that it can't be on an unlimited amount of (city) money," she said.

"I am in favor of some type of public transportation," said Councilman Joe Taft, Jr. "It depends on the cost and how much service we would get for that cost."

Council member Clarence Gray endorsed the system wholeheartedly and said he would also support city subsidization.

"It may appear that the city will be taking the full blunt, but I think the businesses will realize a profit," he explained. Taxes paid by local business firms would then be fed back into city funds.

The Rev. William J. Hadden, Jr., Council member-elect, said he sees a need for such a program.

"The real question is how much we are willing to spend," he stated. "No doubt it is going to cost the city of Greenville a good deal of money."

Councilman John Howard said he also sees a need for public transportation and would support a program "within reason."

City manager Harry Hagerly said he has no doubt that Greenville needs some form of public transportation in some areas. He is also sure that such a system would "not break even," no matter how much money the city might put into it.

The city budget this year provides $77,000 for the possible development of a transit system, according to Hagerly.

"Greenville is growing so fast that we must look at it as a big city," said Mayor-elect Percy Cox. "To grow properly, it must have a mass transit system."

Cox said he expects such a program to "cost the taxpayer some money," but he thinks it will be such a small amount that the individual will not suffer.

"I don't envision it being a massive burden for the taxpayers," said the Rev. John H. Taylor, Jr., president of the Citizens for Total Positive Government and a PTC member. "The users will be paying their fair share."

Federal funds for capital expenses would be sought from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, U. S. Department of Transportation, according to Schofield.

The amount of money requested would probably depend on the estimated cost of the program. This will be determined by a study currently being conducted by the Voorhees firm, a five-year estimate expected to cost about $37,000.

The PTC is presently studying the possibilities of interim and full busing programs and will eventually make official recommendations on both to the Council.

"We're committed to look into things as closely as we can," said Mrs. Linda Hix, chairperson of the PTC. "The final factor is how much the people of Greenville want it."

Mrs. Hix said the PTC is currently viewing the transit program in stages, with the idea of using the interim system as a kind of experiment to test public support and the program's feasibility.

Most of the PTC and Council members stressed a need for the cooperation of the East Carolina University (ECU) bus system. Schofield also emphasized the necessity of cooperation to prevent overlapping of services and costs.

Jimmy Honeycutt, Student Government Association (SGA) president, said cooperation would depend on "what the city has to offer ECU."

"We feel we run an excellent transportation program right now as far as the students are concerned," Honeycutt said.

Greg Davis, ECU transportation manager, said cooperation might be possible as long as the SGA keeps perhaps two buses for separate use by student organizations on weekends and at night.

The current operating budget for the ECU system is $30,850, according to Davis. The system has two buses (no back-up bus) and six drivers (with two alternates).

Tentative plans for the interim city bus system include two buses (with a back-up) serving two routes between 15 and 45 minutes apart, according to Schofield. He expects to present final plans to the PTC by December for their recommendation to the Council.

Pending favorable decisions by the PTC and the Council, some type of mass transit system may soon be off and running. At any rate, the first definite step in a complicated series of steps will have been taken, and a public transportation program may be in sight for Greenville.

Driver Teacher Students Learn About The Effects Of Alcohol

Students in three driver education classes at East Carolina University — teaching instructors who will, in turn, teach youngsters how to drive — are getting a first-hand look at the effects of alcohol on individuals and how it affects their actions.

Four students — all volunteers — started drinking about 5:15 p.m. By class-time, at 6:30, they were well on their way toward the .10 per cent blood alcohol level that under North Carolina law qualifies a person as a drunken driver.

Joey, who had 11 ounces of bourbon from 5:15 until 7 p.m., said he felt "high... not drunk. I might be .10, but don't feel it. For the average person, .10 is realistic." But, he said "I'd drive right now."

Bill, who also consumed 11 ounces of bourbon during the period, said he had driven "in this shape..." possibly once or twice a month. He estimated his blood alcohol level at .07 per cent.

Heidi, on the other hand, who had 5½ beers (12 ounce size), was definite. "I don't drive. I wouldn't drive." She added, "I usually don't drink this much."

And according to Libby, "I'm there..." She noted that she has driven in the past after drinking, but emphasized "I came close to having a wreck. She, consumed eight ounces of vodka."

Highway Patrol Sgt. Glenn Swanson was on hand to give the four volunteers Breathalyzer tests... to determine the alcoholic content of their blood just as any law enforcement officer in North Carolina would if the four had been stopped along the road and charged with driving under the influence. All would have "failed" the test.

Bill, Joey and Libby, all three, recorded .13 per cent on their first test. Heidi topped the list with a .15 reading.

some 45 minutes later showed more variation.

Joey was still at .13 per cent, while Bill had dropped to .12 percent and Heidi to .13 per cent. Libby's blood alcohol level, on the other hand, had increased to .15 per cent.

Sgt. Swanson told the students that "some can handle their liquor better than others," but emphasized that a small amount of alcohol can impair a driver's judgment and ability to drive enough to lead to a costly and possibly fatal collision.

"If you drink, don't drive and if you drive, don't drink," the officer cautioned.

Post College, and a member of the National Council of the Arts. Taylor earned his Doctorate of Music in 1975 at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

Among a wide range of achievements, Taylor has served as Musical Director of the television series "Black Journal," and has been active on the Board of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, the Jazzmobile program and the Newport Jazz Festival as well as the New York Jazz Repertory Company.

His songs and instrumentals include I Wish I Knew How It Would Feel to Be Free, Midnight Piano, Cuba, Tune for Tex, Feeling Frisky, Cuban Cutie, Ever So

"Billy Taylor is a gifted, dynamic and practical creator who knows the realities of the contemporary music world," said President Adams, "and we're glad to have a man of his calibre on the ASCAP Board." Speaking of the composer Taylor is replacing, Adam said,

"Harold Arlen is not only one of the giants of popular music, but has also been an outstanding Director and a warm personal friend for many years. All of his admirers and colleagues at ASCAP are grateful for his extraordinary contributions."

BILLY TAYLOR... a native of Greenville, has this week been appointed to the Board of Directors of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP). Taylor will complete the unexpired term of composer Harold Arlen, a member of 45 years who recently resigned.

How to add $50,000 to your retirement savings without even trying Wage earners who are not covered by a pension plan can now save tax-sheltered dollars toward their retirement.

The result? A build-up of your retirement savings by an extra $40,000, $50,000... even more!

The Individual Retirement Account makes it possible... and we make it easy, with our Individual Retirement Savings Account—the IRSA.

You may save up to 15% or 15% of your wages, whichever is less, each year. For Federal income tax purposes, contributions to your IRSA are fully deductible from gross income, and you may make this deduction even though you do not itemize other deductions.

The interest your savings earn is also tax-deferred until retirement, when your exemptions will be higher and your tax bracket lower. Compounding of the interest over the years generates more dollars, to build a retirement fund that is tens of thousands of dollars more than would be possible with taxed dollars. The table shows you just how much more you can accumulate.

Inviting double doors and a gracious foyer spark an initial welcome and combine with a central hallway to channel traffic to all areas of this roomy ranch style. Warmly traditional in its approach, the exterior of the Manorfield sports brick siding, a bay window, and the customary and practical front porch. Four bedrooms, two and one half baths, a breakfast area and family room are among the interior assets of the plan.

Sliding glass doors connect the dining area to the terrace, elegance, but the living-dining room departs from the formal tradition to provide a sizable, central area for family living and entertaining. Its placement assures maximum use and enjoyment. Sliding glass doors connect the dining area to the terrace, ease in unloading groceries. Sandwiched between kitchen and garage is space for a broom closet, storage closet, furnace and water heater, and a convenient half bath. Four bedrooms, two baths, and two hall closets are nestled to the right of the foyer. Besides its generous dimensions, the master bedroom boasts two closets and a private full bath. One of the smaller bedrooms would adapt to use as a den or an office. The large double garage can be customized to include a workbench or additional storage areas.

Gardening Questions

Q. Is there any reason why I cannot grow either type of redwood tree in this area? (T. G., Efland)

A. The two redwood or sequoia species, redwood (Sequoia sempervirens) and big tree (Sequoia gigantea) require abundant moisture, deep, well-drained soils and mild climate. Their native range is pretty much limited to areas where heavy summer fogs provide a humid atmosphere. It isn't likely either of these species would thrive in your area. A tree that closely resembles the redwoods; the dawn redwood, (Metasequoia glyptostroboides) has grown extremely well in a few isolated plantings in North Carolina. Also, the native baldcypress (Taxodium distichum) is fairly similar to the redwoods and grows well when planted out of the swampy areas. (William M. Stanton, extension forest resources specialist)

Q. When is the best time to take cuttings for rooting apple trees? (P. G., Rich Square)

A. It is not a good idea to root cuttings of apples. It is best to graft the apple tree, using a water sprout. Do this during the dormant season just prior to new growth. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

Q. Please give me some suggestions for pruning fig bushes. (C. B., Southern Pines)

A. Prune in late winter, just before growth begins. Make smooth clean cuts, close to the lateral branch and don't leave any stubs. Actually, figs require very little pruning. You control the fig tree's height by opening the bush, removing suckers from the trunk and main branches, and cutting off the drooping branches—that's all. This results in easier picking of larger fruit and better control of the tree. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Q. Why don't you tell people that bay leaves will keep moths and bugs out of corn meal and flour? (Mrs. L. G., Tabor City)

A. For two reasons: First, if hungry enough some pantry pests will feed upon bay leaves. Second, some people object to the taste imparted to flour and meal by bay leaves. Tight sanitary storage containers are all that are necessary to keep insects out of clean dry goods. Insects already present may be killed by placing the food in a warm oven (140 to 150 degrees) for 15 to 30 minutes or in a freezer for a week or two prior to putting in containers. Use metal or hard plastic containers. Insects will go right through plastic bags or cardboard. (R. C. Hillman, extension entomologist)

Another area of safety concern involves burglary — the second-fastest growing crime in the United States, up 14 per cent in the first half of this year, with suburban and rural areas showing increases of 18 and 17 per cent respectively.

Robert J. McDermott, for 20 years the New York Police Department's top burglary expert, now a consultant to Emhart Corp., says October through December historically are the heaviest burglary months.

He recommends safeguarding homes by means of an effective lock system for doors and windows and offers some tips on things that may deter a would-be burglar.

"Time is the big factor; a burglar spends as little of it as he can," McDermott said. "Slow him down, make it difficult and he'll move on to an

Floors Can Take A 'Colonial Look'

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
In trying to do something early American to their homes in time for Bicentennial celebrations, some women have become interested in the treatment of floors in the colonial manner. As one woman put it, "I'm sure my husband will not let me touch the parquet floors in our living room, but I can have a bit of fun in the family room. He doesn't mind what happens there."

It's something to think about before you do anything different to floors. That woman would like to paint the floor in a color and put a rug over it that reflects the American colonial life. She also plans to use quilts (folded and put over a sofa) and candles and one or two early accessories.

Wood floors can be painted and even spattered. In fact old floor boards are vastly improved if they are painted in one of the colors that were popular in the early days. Dark red, even deeper than barn red, and a deep orange-yellow, near to a pumpkin color, can be delightful pick-ups for a room. The floor can be painted in the solid color or in geometrics. Some colonists favored diamond patterns. And there are old records that reveal stenciling was used on floors as well as walls.

Paint colors can be discussed with dealers who can mix the colors easily. Years ago it was difficult to get off-beat colors but now there is a greater selection in paint shops.

Some decorators use multicolors in spattering floors. This is a pretty effect and it makes it easier to tie other colors into the room as time goes on. There are various methods of spattering floors and if one can afford it a professional worker should be able to do a good job. For those who would do it themselves — it is tedious work — patience must be employed. One decorator was observed spattering a table and he advises a floor is done pretty much the same way.

Hold a very stiff brush in one hand and using a wood stick or other object, run it gently over the brush of paint. This should be practiced until you get spatters of the right size. Distance makes a difference — start by holding the brush about four inches from the floor. It's a good idea to wear a smock as the paint can go awry.

Spattering is another way to cover old floors that are beyond smoothing, but decorators have remarked that there should be some pattern in addition, such as squares, as an eye-arresting solution to bad floors. But one must practice, one woman emphasizes. She had made such a batch of spattering — some of the paint came out in big blobs — that she used geometrics to cover her mistakes. But you must measure the distance accurately when you do squares. She had to enlarge some squares because the boards were uneven. A paint outline should be made.

Rag, hooked and canvas rugs were used over early American floors. Hooking is popular right now, and this might be the choice that would be pleasing and currently fashionable. Then, too, a lot of the motif in kits runs to the early American designs. The choice is usually flowers and these are often set within a geometrical pattern of one large or six little squares alternating with a floral square. A 4 by 6 latch hook rug might take about four months.

Painted canvas is another kind of early American rug, but some people do not consider these very satisfactory as they do show wear. Other people like the effect of the worn design just as they might appreciate a worn, faded Oriental rug. A canvas rug may not be a happy solution in a child-oriented home. Unless the rug is lined it is very light weight and might take on the appearance of an old potato sack in a short time. But lining such rugs helps tremendously. If the motif is kept to darker colors — some people have even used house paint in making their designs — the colors may last a long time. Generally, paint used for wall art is more satisfactory and if fixative is applied it can provide wear for a reasonable time.

There weren't too many accessories around in the early days, but some articles made later can charmingly carry out the early look. Decorative boxes that were used to hold salt, candles, spices and cutlery on walls and tables can be used for the purpose. Sconces and lanterns of tin and pewter can add a touch and of course, if one has a spinning wheel in the barn, it can be put in a corner to collect some dust while you are making early American points.

Blanket chests add a homey touch, too. In a family room, a blanket chest could be a neat solution to the problem of records, magazines and odds and ends, if clutter is a problem.

THE NEW SNAPPERIZER.
A revolutionary new way to bag your leaves.

The leaf and shrunken beds. And when you use the new Snapper Zip Kit the pulverized leaves empty quickly and neatly into standard trash bags. And get more than you were expecting.

Another first from Snapper The new Snapperizer This optional accessory converts a Snapper 21" mower into a new machine. With this easy-to-install attachment, it becomes a leaf vacuum cleaner that cleans the leaves off your lawn in half the time because you empty the catcher half as much. The Snapperizer pulverizes the leaves so the catcher holds at least twice as many leaves because they've been shredded into tiny pieces. These tiny pieces then make a beautiful ground cover for flower

ONLY WITH A SNAPPER
All Snapper mowers meet ANSI safety specifications.

A NEW OWNER! A NEW IDEA!
100,000 MILES OR 3 YEARS NEW CAR WARRANTY

Why Do We Offer A 100,000 Mile Warranty?

Read For Yourself Our Reason

Every car dealer in the country is talking "dependability" these days. At Tarheel Toyota, we've decided to do something about it. A new car warranty that's longer than any other warranty in the world (exclusively for Tarheel Toyota). Bill Draper can tell you why: "Nobody else in the world has a car like this. I've seen how the Toyota is made, the quality of the workmanship, the integrity and the craftsmanship that go into this car. I know the Toyota inside and out."

Until now, most new car warranties haven't been much more than discounts on the car repairs you knew you'd need. Our warranty is our guarantee of faith in Toyota. "Nobody else in the world can put this kind of warranty on their car. My faith and my knowledge and experience with Toyota tell me I can do it. Toyota builds an automobile to last."

Our knowledge of the Toyota comes from research, from first hand information from our service department and from a great number of satisfied Toyota customers. For 100,000 miles or 3 years from the day you purchase your new Toyota, we guarantee to replace or repair your motor, transmission and rear end, if they fail under normal driving conditions. We'll ask you to keep the vehicle properly maintained and we'll ask that you bring it back to Tarheel Toyota for any repairs covered by this warranty. We're offering the 100,000 mile, 3 year warranty in addition to the new car warranty offered by Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A. It's a promise, a guarantee of Toyota quality, Toyota dependability.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

individual citizen than any other public servant." Herbert Hoover complained in his memoirs about the crowds of tourists and visitors at the White House. "From employees who had held over since the Harrison administration I learned that up to the beginning of the World War the president had only about two hours daily of office work. They spent the balance of their time seeing people, in social activities and I suppose in heavy thinking," said Hoover. "I soon found myself wasting a whole hour every day shaking hands with a line of 1,500 to 2,000 people." He added that he soon stopped the hand-shaking. Woodrow Wilson in 1913 broke the precedent that had been set by Jefferson of a president not appearing before Congress in person. Wilson told the assembled congressmen, "I am very glad indeed to have this opportunity to address the two houses directly and to (demonstrate) . . . that the president of the United States is a person, not a mere department of the government hailing Congress from some isolated island of jealous power . . . that he is a human being trying to cooperate with other human beings in a common service." Ulysses S. Grant won the presidency with a promise of honest government. After four years of an administration marked by corruption and scandal he was tired and discouraged. In 1872, he wrote to an old friend saying his retirement day "is near at hand and I live it as the happiest of my life, except possibly the day I left West Point." But Grant changed his mind. He was elected for another term, also marked by scandal. Calvin Coolidge was a believer in economy of words as well as government. The LBJ Library exhibit contains the entire text of his campaign plans for a possible second term. It reads: "I do not choose to run for President in nineteen twenty-eight."

Staple of a St. Louis radiological institute, Bliznak found the average woman's skin was 20 to 25 per cent thinner than the average man's. They also found that skin thickness decreases with age, and that fat people tend to be thicker skinned than thin ones.

I Am Lovable And Capable, Elmhursters Say

FANCY IALAC SIGNS . . . were made in Miss Anna Tillman's first grade. by Michelle Warf and her classmates

Everybody wears an IALAC sign—visible or invisible—Elmhurst Elementary School students have learned.

IALAC, they were told after several days of brain-teasing promotion worthy of Madison Avenue, means I Am Lovable and Capable. This is what every person regardless of age, sex, seeming ability, or station in life feels or wants very much to feel.

Dr. Sidney Simon of the University of Massachusetts Center for Humanistic Education developed as part of his "Values Clarification" concept the IALAC program for helping people observe how their "put downs" and "build ups" affect the self-esteem of the people with whom they come in contact. It's a tool for stressing the importance of cultivating a building-up rather than a putting-down personality and philosophy of life. It's a way of demonstrating that no man is an island—you really do affect positively or negatively the feelings of those around you.

This lesson in human relations was brought to Elmhurst by its guidance counselor, Mrs. Pat Kelly, and implemented by the Principal Mrs. Bettie Forrest, and by each of the classroom teachers in the school. Assistance and materials were provided by Barry Humphreys, Health Coordinator of the Greenville City Schools.

Teasers

Ground work was laid by putting up two teaser bulletin boards—one with a Batman and Robin theme saying, "There Is More To IALAC Than Meets The Eye." Another put up the Friday before IALAC began held self-portrait faces of each student in the school and was captioned "You Are Part of IALAC."

Also on Friday the teachers began to wear IALAC signs and to tear off a snip whenever any of them felt that his or her good feelings about himself or herself were being diminished by the actions of another person or persons. The children began to get the idea, but they still were not told for what the initials stood. The dictionary offered no help their guesses—even rather apt ones like "I Am Loud At Class", suggested by one child were neither confirmed nor denied.

Monday of the big week the upper grades were shown a film explaining the IALAC concept and the primary grades were shown a videotape in which students of Mrs. Joyce Huguélet's Enrichment Class enacted stories they had written themselves to exemplify the kinds of put downs or build ups that would cause an IALAC sign to be either torn or mended or added to.

Ripping Began

Tuesday all the students made their own IALAC signs and were read stories during which they were supposed to rip their signs whenever they heard a put down. At first the kindergartners and first graders made smiling faces that could change to sad faces by turning them upside down. But as the week went on they, too, began to want to get in on the tearing action, so they began making IALAC signs, also.

Wednesday the children began to wear their own signs. Breaking in line, a snide remark, scolding for something not really one's fault—all these and many other negative happenings caused torn signs on the chests of children and teachers alike. Very real discussions of ways to avoid tearing another person's sign began among both students and faculty.

The formal program was not continued beyond IALAC week, but Mrs. Kelly says she believes the good effects are being seen already. "We want our teachers and our children to be free to be human and to express their humanity—mistakes, and faults and fumbings all. And we want them to learn to tolerate these frailties in themselves and others. We think it will make for a more relaxed and like feeling among us all.

"A staff self-esteem committee has been formed to meet once a month to talk about ways that the IALAC idea may be kept alive here and we know it will continue to be referred to by students and teachers alike."

"I'd call IALAC Week a smashing success," Mrs. Forrest said. "We're very happy Elmhurst was chosen as a testing ground for presenting the idea in Greenville. I only hope other schools, and even parents and children in their own homes, will give it a try. It's a real eye-opener about how what you do affect how I feel about myself, and vice-versa, of course."

Text and Photos By Carol Tyer

Tommy's IALAC Sign.

Editor's note: This is one of many stories written by Elmhurst students to illustrate situations which would make a child feel less "lovable and capable."

Tommy

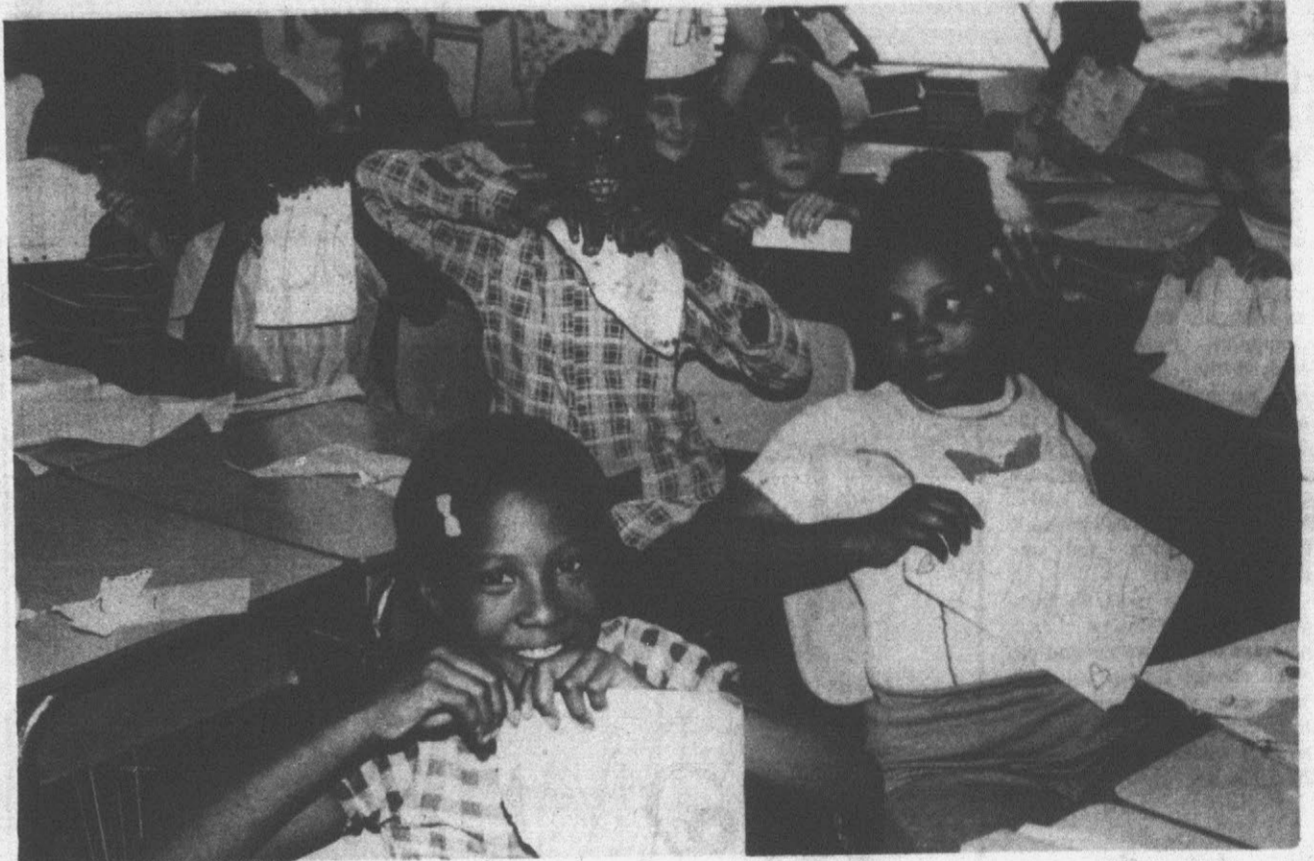

Tommy opened his eyes. He wore a big IALAC sign on his pjs. His sister's voice broke into his room, "Get up, you lazy thing." He got up, put on his clothes and went downstairs. He ate breakfast and got his lunch and hurried down to meet the school bus. The older kids (as usual) gathered around him and began to tease him. RI-I-IP was the only thing they heard. (He was tearing his IALAC sign.)

After he got to school he took his seat. Soon it was play time and they ran outside. As they were swinging Tommy looked for an empty swing but he did not find one. He was not paying attention and he got hit and knocked down and everyone laughed.

When he got home from school, his mother saw how dirty he had gotten his school clothes when he fell down and she sent him to his room without supper and he went to bed with only a small piece of his sign.

Amy Campbell

PROMOTION . . . for IALAC Week began with this bulletin board, admired by Jeff Simpson and Mont Brown of Mrs. Joyce Huguélet's Enrichment Class.

Older Students' Numbers Increasing On Campus

GREENSBORO—The image of today's typical college student is changing. Business shirts and polyester knits mingle with pre-washed jeans and T-shirts.

The "Joe College" and "Betty Co-ed" on today's college scene may well be an experienced data processing manager and a 73-year-old grandmother.

The adult student is becoming more and more prevalent on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, partly through a program being provided by the Office of Adult Students. In fact, there are 568 adults being served in this special admissions program, and many more others in the older student category who were enrolled through normal admission channels.

Mrs. Ruth Alexander, director of the Office of Adult Students, interviews those who apply in the special admissions program, and looks for "that certain something" which might indicate potential success in a university program. "What we're looking for is an adult who has been successful at something," she said. "You know, success breeds success. In the interview, we talk about academic background, and other things in a person's life, such as work experience or time spent in the service."

The special admissions program is aimed at students who wish to gain college credit for undergraduate courses presently available on campus, but who may not meet established admission requirements. Admission under the program, now in its third year, is based more on an individual's motivation and potential for college work rather than on his or her record in previous academic work.

"Our job does not stop with admission to the University," Mrs. Alexander continued. "We look at what are potential academic weaknesses in a student and try to find ways to correct them." The office helps adult students by referring them to the "Special Services Project"—a federally-funded program on campus which offers tutoring for English, reading and math skills.

"I'm constantly amazed," she noted, "to see what a helping campus UNC-G is. Whatever the problem—counseling or academic—there is always someone on campus to help. I know all students don't feel this. But among the adult students, we find that if they need help, they seek it out."

In the area of grades, overall the non-traditional students do very well, and are able to handle their work and school nicely, pointed out Mrs. Alexander.

In the 1974-75 academic year, about 75 percent of them maintained a "C" average or above, with about 16 percent falling into the "B plus" to "A" category. At the end of the spring term, only 7.6 percent were ineligible to return to campus due to poor grades.

After successfully completing 15 hours of undergraduate course work, a student may request reclassification into a degree-seeking program. Or they may choose to remain as special under-graduate students, taking courses of their own choosing.

"Right now, we're heavily male—about 60 percent, but that's changing," Mrs. Alexander added. "I think that was caused by the influx of veterans, but now this fall we had more women enroll—women who desire career changes. Women feel freer than they used to. I think women's lib has relieved them of their guilt."

One of the more than 550 adults admitted under the program is Charlie Barbour, 43-year-old data processing manager of the Administrative Computer Center at UNC-G. He admits to being "one of those souls who bumped around, attended a business college, went into the army, and finally went to work."

Zelda Popkin's Writing Career Spans 60 Years

By JOY STILLEY

AP Newsfeatures Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Zelda Popkin went to work as a newspaper reporter at the age of 16, and more than 60 years later she is still writing. But now, as a novelist, she deals in fiction rather than fact.

In those six decades she drank her first highball during Prohibition, took her first airplane ride in the early 1920s, sold Liberty bonds in World War I, served overseas with the Red Cross in World War II, marched in suffrage parades, took part in pacifist demonstrations, studied law, ran a public relations business with her husband, traveled widely, worked in politics and raised two children.

All those experiences have stood her in good stead during her writing career, says Mrs. Popkin, who at the age of 77 has just published her 14th book, "Dear Once," and is already thinking about No. 15.

"I'm like an old attic trunk; I'm full of stuff I've stored away that is always useful," said the author, wearing a blue and white polka dot dress, her grey hair pulled back, and smoking one cigarette after another during an interview.

"I covered a dozen homicides before I was 18," recalls Mrs. Popkin, who became the first woman reporter in North-eastern Pennsylvania when she went to work for the Wilkes-Barre Times Leader in 1914. "My father was an advertiser and he got me the job; the city editor didn't want me and was sure I couldn't make it and kept giving me the toughest assignments."

Though she doesn't approve of the women's movement's attacks on men and the dropping of family responsibilities "just because you want something else," she admits to being liberated in her own youth. As she put it in her autobiography: "Our marriage began in 1918," she wrote of her husband, Louis Popkin, a lawyer who died in 1943 at the age of 47. "Our wedding took place in the fall of 1919."

"Most of my close friends have been professional women who've raised families; it just takes extra work," explains Mrs. Popkin, who wrote successful murder mysteries while she was busy with her children. "It was the sort of thing you could do with the top of your head and the tips of your fingers. It took up the slack for me, like other women's knitting.

"I could begin to take my writing seriously once I had no family responsibilities and could take all the time I needed to do a novel. Being alone is a coin that has two sides: One is loneliness. The other is independence — you can do what you please about dinner and go off to California or Texas if you want to."

Mrs. Popkin worked for about three years on "Dear Once," a family chronicle that spans 50 years and four generations, as usual doing three complete drafts.

"The first draft contains the basic bones; the story line and all the characters are there. While doing that I make notes for the second draft. The second is a very fat one — every step is built up, the dialogue expanded. The third draft is for style and polish, incorporating the editor's suggestions."

"The great moment for me is when the characters start talking to me and I'm catching the nuances of their speech and their attitudes. They just come alive, and they live in my house and I live with them and I'm involved. I really miss (Continued on page C-3)

Fifty-nine dealers from throughout N. C. and other eastern states from New York to Florida will exhibit. From this area are Jenny's Antiques and Woodside Antiques.

Buffet luncheon and dinner will be available during the show and sale.

Mrs. John C. Rice Jr. is show chairman and Mrs. Rufus C. Allen is co-chairman.

The Albemarle Antiques Show and Sale, sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club of Elizabeth City, opened yesterday and will continue today from noon until 6 p.m. at the National Guard Armory, Elizabeth City.

This year the show was enlarged to include 24 dealers from five states along the Eastern seaboard. Clubwomen, acting as hostesses, and antique dealers are in colonial dress.

A variety of antiques are included, carnival glass, jewelry, copper, brass, pressed glass, china, dolls, old maps, early period and wicker furniture and a collection of more than 300 different patterns in sterling silver flatware.

Mrs. Margo Barath of Edenton Antiques is manager of the show.

Proceeds will be donated to worthwhile projects in the community. In the past, money has been given to Heritage House, a home for delinquent girls, which the juniors helped to get started, a new county library, and money raised last year went to help enlarge the Museum of the Albemarle. Funds donated will go toward the construction of an old barn to house displays.

'Talent Bazaar' Planned By Methodist Women

The United Methodist Women of St. James United Methodist Church plan a major fall project for Nov. 6. The project's name is Talent Bazaar.

According to Mrs. Rhett Honeycutt, projects chairman, the St. James ladies have participated in workshops since early summer developing craft and Christmas ideas. Booth chairmen have urged individual home projects.

Mrs. Honeycutt announces the following chairmen and booths available on bazaar day: the Kitchen Korner; Mrs. J. M. Cullipher, will display baked and canned goods; Mrs. Harry Hastings, Garden and Vegetable Center featuring house plants and fresh vegetables. Mrs. C. W. Moye, Potpourri Room, where visitors can find attic and closet "treasures"; while Miss Deanie B. Haskett, the Pillow Room.

The Craft Cupboard and the Christmas Shop are jointly manned by Mrs. Leslie Turner, Mrs. Kelly Wallace, and Mrs. Honeycutt. Mrs. Lynis Dohm heads the Sandwich Shoppe, which will serve a snack lunch from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Other specialty booths will be offered including thumbprint sketches by Mrs. Joe Sturz. Cook books, Christmas cards, stationary, vanilla flavoring, tupperware, and Stanley Products are other items for sale.

St. James UMW invites the public to attend the bazaar which runs from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. in the fellowship hall. Any unsold items will be displayed at a sidewalk sale at Pitt Plaza Saturday, Nov. 8.

Organizational Meeting Planned

Plans to reorganize the Pitt County Republican Women's Club will be discussed at a meeting scheduled for Tuesday night.

The meeting will be held at 543 Evans St. beginning at 7:30.

Temporary President Edwina Lee said that this will be the charter meeting.

Interested women may telephone 756-5737 or 756-1623 for further information.

them when I'm finished."

Her latest novel deals with the power struggle between children and parents and the loosening of family ties with each succeeding generation, a situation she blames partly on architects, "who have destroyed the old family house and put people into cubicles" and on the mobility of the American people. "It's only because I travel so easily that my grandchildren know me," adds Mrs. Popkin, who has two sons, five grandchildren and one great grandchild.

"We knew our roots, we knew our families, we were close," she says of her own generation. "The change started with our wars when young men went to different parts of the country and met girls and settled down. Families are widely separated and we have lost a lot of warmth and pleasure."

The only concession Mrs. Popkin has made to her age, she says, is to cut her former 9-to-5 working days down by a few hours. "You tear up, crumple up, throw away, but you work every day."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

As I was reading my power saver handbook the other day (well, what did you expect to find in a bathroom library, first editions?) I came across a marvelous plan for saving money and energy.

It's so simple, it's unbelievable that someone hasn't thought about it before. The energy problem stems from the fact that everyone puts a strain on our resources at the same time — usually between the hours of 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., when they are awake.

According to the booklet, all we have to do is "rearrange" our life style to accommodate one another. I tried it the other night.

When my husband came home at six, he felt the cold stove and asked, "What happened?"

"Good night," I said dousing the lights, "and sleep fast. Breakfast is at 11 p.m."

"BREAKFAST AT 11 P.M.! Are you crazy! What happened to dinner?"

"Someone has to balance out the energy consumption so that we're not all using energy at the same time. Pull the button out on the alarm."

At 11 p.m. we all sat numbly over a bowl of cereal having breakfast.

"What am I supposed to do between now and lunch at 3 a.m.?" he grumbled.

"This is the good part," I said excitedly. "Did you know these are the cheapest times to make long-distance phone calls to Alaska and Hawaii, if you dial direct, without directory assistance, from a private phone, for three minutes, providing you know someone in Alaska or Hawaii?"

"Level with me," he said. "Am I or am I not on Candid Camera?"

"You can watch Sermonette on TV," I continued, "read yesterday's paper, visit an all-night car wash, jog with a hamster, or take the children out to play in the traffic . . . watch out for the milkman! As for me, I have turned on the washer, dryer, vacuum sweeper, mixer, over, stove, toaster, crock pot, dishwasher, power tools and electric lawn mower and an at this moment saving a pot full of money. Is someone knocking on our door?"

When my husband returned, he said, "That was Fred from next door. He said if we don't hold it down over here, he's going to bend my face." but we just missed the peak "Hah!" I smiled. "At these period of hospital emergency prices, not only can we afford it, wards."

it," said the slim computer manager. "I wasn't satisfied with sitting in a classroom."

Last year one of his computer operators told him about the adult program. So while continuing his job, Barbour began taking evening business courses, and even took a music appreciation course during his lunch hour.

"I know I've started a little bit late in life," he continued. "But my wife has been wanting me to do something like this for years. After a year of classes, he has noticed a "difference in my attitude and everyday dealings with people. I can be on the same ground with the people I work with. I am lucky to have a home life that would encourage me to do this."

Mrs. Pearl Fesperman of Greensboro, an energetic woman in her 60's, entered UNC-G through the Office of Adult Students after 30 years of working for the federal government, and intends to get a degree in English, "one of these years."

She began auditing a creative writing course in 1972, and through counseling by Mrs. Alexander and Dr. Jean Eason, she began taking courses for credit.

"I try to do the best I can on every course," she said. "I've gone very slowly in the academic world, and I have had to remove myself from a lot of other activities. I like those younger students, and eat lunch with two young people on class days. It seems like in every class I've met one special person."

Mrs. Anne P. Hagedorn, a local 73-year-old student, is taking music theory and group piano at UNC-G, and auditing a clothing construction course. "It certainly makes life more interesting," she exclaimed. "If I live long enough, I'll get my degree."

"I think we're very fortunate that the opportunity is there," she continued. "Mrs. Alexander is very encouraging. I always go to her if there are any problems."

Mrs. Hagedorn has enjoyed the contact with the student friends she has made. "I have some of the girls come over to my house from time to time, and they like the change from the dorm," she noted.

Rose High School was all talk of the big game against rival Wilson, Friday night. The Rampants went away to face Wilson's Fike High School on the opposing team's homecoming. But, football was not all there was to do.

For the first time ever, matmaids were introduced to Rose High School. The girls will aide the wrestling team by making posters, working in the concession stands, and just being ready for general duties at the wrestling matches.

Denise Arnold, Barbara Payton, Sharon Powell, Pam Welborn, and Julie Moore are the matmaids for the 1975-76 season.

The second copy of the Rampant Lines was issued by the school newspaper staff this week. The paper is a monthly edition which is published the last Tuesday.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 84 and my wife is 77. We've been married for six years. It's the second marriage for both of us. First, let me tell you that we're both in excellent health. My problem is my wife. She makes me feel like a dirty old man every time I approach her for sex. She keeps saying, "We're too old for that stuff. You're a sex maniac and ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

Abby, my first wife and I were married for over 40 years, and we enjoyed a fulfilling, active sexual relationship right up until the time she died. She was in her 70s.
At what age are people supposed to quit having sexual relations?

YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: There is no reason why normal, healthy people should not be sexually active as long as they live.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a military man for 12 years. I started snooping through his things when he was home last and found some love letters from three different women. One lives in the Canal Zone, one lives in Virginia and the other lives in Florida.

All three women are under the impression that he is married but separated from me, which is a lie.

Their letters contain some sickening descriptions of their sexual encounters. The woman in the Canal Zone keeps referring to the "day we can be together forever."

Abby, my husband has told me repeatedly that he loves me, and he has never indicated that he wants out of this marriage.

Some of those letters were written within the last three months. I can't understand how a grown man would continue to keep three women on the string while still married.

Right now he is overseas, but when he gets home I am going to let him have it.

I neither love nor trust him anymore, but I have three children who need a father. What do you advise?

FED UP

DEAR FED: I agree, children do need a father, but a woman needs a husband she can trust and depend upon. Confront your husband with the evidence and ask him for an explanation.

It will take a lot of forgiving and forgetting to restore your marriage. If that's what you want, I hope you're up to it.

DEAR ABBY: We recently attended a beautiful outdoor wedding in a park.

The bride and groom made up their own vows and spoke them aloud to each other, but there was no minister present to pronounce them man and wife.

Is it legal in California for a couple to marry themselves?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: No. And it's not legal anywhere else, either.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is with overly protective parents who aren't mine. Joey and I have been going together for a long time, and we are deeply in love. But because neither of us is of legal age, we're both under our parents' domination.

His Turtle Has Two Heads

AVALON, N.J. (AP) — Joseph Bennett is the only kid on his block with a two-headed turtle.

He may be the only kid in the world with one.

The tiny diamond-back terrapin that the boy found in marshes near his home here is "one in a million, a freak of nature," according to an expert at the Philadelphia Zoo.

The baby turtle is undersized with a shell only as big as a 25-cent piece, according to Stockton State College zoologist Roger Wood.

The 8-year-old boy's mother, Viola Dawson, said the turtle's two heads "make him very awkward. He doesn't know which way to go, but he has one dominant head and that head usually wins out."

The turtle currently dwells "in a little bowl with some other baby turtles that are normal," Wood said.

"For the time being it's going to remain a pet," said Wood, a turtle specialist who has asked the family to notify him if they wish to place the turtle in a museum.

Two-headed snakes and lizards occur infrequently in nature, but the turtle is a novelty, both Wood and zoo spokesmen said.

Hilarious Headlines

NEWS TEAM—The news of the day won't look the same when Dan Rowan (left) and Dick Martin take a comedic look at the week's events in a fast-paced, irreverent half-hour special, "The Rowan and Martin Report," on Channel 3W-5 Wednesday, Nov. 5 (8-8:30 p.m.).

Show Marks 15th Year

"Issues and Answers," the award-winning television and radio program seen Sundays from 1:30 to 2 p.m., is now marking its 15th year on ABC-TV. A presentation of ABC News Public Affairs, the program interviews national and international leaders who have a critical role in shaping the news.

The immediacy and depth of information developed on "Issues and Answers" generates worldwide radio, television and wire service news as well as Monday morning headlines in newspapers across the country.

Bob Clark, one of Washington's most respected and experienced reporters, is permanent Chief Correspondent. A second correspondent is chosen weekly on the basis of specialized knowledge in the field of the interview guest. Mr. Clark has covered the national political scene for most of his 27-year career in journalism. As ABC News Capitol Hill Correspondent, he covered the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives on a daily basis and traveled to all sections of the country reporting on political issues. He also has figured prominently in the Network's coverage of national political conventions and Presidential election campaigns.

Based in Washington, D. C., "Issues and Answers" goes on location to the sources of news when circumstances dictate. For the first American television interview with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, "Issues and Answers" went to Israel. Yasir Arafat, leader of the Palestinian Liberation Organization, made his first television network appearance on "Issues and Answers" in a program originating in Lebanon.

"I won't dance, don't ask me," says Dick Martin, arching his eyebrows in that funny familiar style which has become one of the trademarks of his humor.

It's not that anyone has asked him to sing the famous Jerome Kern tune and he is no threat to Fred Astaire. It's just Dick using his zany humor to make a point about his and Dan Rowan's new special, "The Rowan and Martin Report," a fast-paced, irreverent view of the week's news events, which will be seen Wednesday, Nov. 5, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5.

"We don't sing, we don't dance, we don't play instruments," continues Dick in a more serious vein. "We just talk and we hope to make this show the talk of the town the way we did with 'Laugh-In.'"

Rowan and Martin are a bit concerned, however, that viewers will expect a remake of "Laugh-In," which, after its first season on their air in 1968, won more Emmys than any other show in TV history.

"We did 'Laugh-In,' it was great fun and a great success," says Dan Rowan. "But now we want to do something new.

We've kicked the idea for this show around for some time, we think it's new and exciting and the audience is ready for it."

Paul Keyes, their producer, is even more emphatic:

"This can't be compared to any other show. It is not 'The Son of Laugh-In.' But we do want it to create the same excitement that show did, the excitement that made people go around and say, 'Did you see such and such last night?' ... the excitement that made people feel they were really missing something if they didn't watch it."

"The Rowan and Martin

Report" will be taped the night before it airs, giving it the greatest chance for topicality. The stars will comment on the headlines of the day and look at some of the more offbeat stories that may have escaped general attention. It will use up-to-the-minute newspaper, wire and TV news reports as its sources.

"We came out with a new and exciting type of show before, a show that people enjoyed watching and, more important, talked about afterwards," Rowan commented. "We're working to be just as innovative this time. That's a promise."

This Show Came Along

Robert Wagner, starring in "Switch," seen Tuesdays, 9 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11, calls the popular new series 'high-styled comedy.'

"The character of Pete Ryan, who's an ex-con man, is one I feel comfortable with in 'Switch,'" said Wagner. "Eddie Albert plays my partner, an ex-bunco cop, who sent me to jail. We employ our different talents to try to out-swindle swindlers, using our brains, rather than guns, to catch the villains."

Not long before he signed with CBS for "Switch," Wagner had stated that he would not be interested in doing another TV series, even though his last series, "It Takes a Thief," ran for two and one-half seasons and was well received.

"I had given serious thought about not doing another series, but this one came along, and I thought it was an interesting project. Then, when Eddie came into it, I really became interested.

Other foreign leaders, including British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Takeo Miki, Prime Minister of Japan, have been interviewing guests during official visits to this country for White House talks with President Gerald Ford.

Illustrative of the program's flexibility were interviews with Jill Ruckelshaus and actor-producer Alan Alda, officials of President Ford's Commission on the Observance of International Women's year, and Frank Robinson, player-manager of the Cleveland Indians and the first black manager in major league baseball history.

"Issues and Answers" is produced by Peggy Whedon, the first woman producer of a major network news panel program.

"Before this, I had been asked to do many of the big shows, but I'd steered away from them. It's a lot of hard work and, also it's a big gamble.

When asked if his wife, noted actress Natalie Wood, would guest-star in "Switch," he responded with a laugh, "I don't know. It's getting sort of hard for her to get out and go to work! If something came along that she really liked, I think she'd take it.

"I enjoy working with Natalie very much, but I feel that to do a series together would be commercializing our relationship. I really don't think it's a good idea to do this. We've done a couple of things together, and we're looking for other things to do. But a series together? I think it would be wrong."

Robert Wagner has appeared in over 30 motion pictures, most recently in "Towering Inferno" and "Midway." Highlights of his film career include "Banning," "Winning," and "Harper" in which he co-starred with Paul Newman.

A natural athlete and sportsman, the handsome actor also excels in riding, hunting, all water sports and is an excellent golfer. He is also a power boat enthusiast.

The Wagners live in Beverly Hills with their three daughters: Katharine, 11, Natasha, 5, and Courtney Brook, not quite a year old.

Joseph Cotton In Major Role

Joseph Cotton will play a major role in "The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case," a three-hour NBC World Premiere movie to be colorcast during the 1975-76 season.

Production started this month in Colusa, Cal., near Sacramento, but most of the drama will be filmed at southern California locations and at the Burbank Studios.

Cotton, a veteran of radio, the stage, television and films, will portray a professor who acted as an intermediary in delivering ransom money to Bruno Richard Hauptmann, who was executed for the kidnapping and slaying of the infant son of the famed valet, Charles A. Lindbergh.

Cotton's first screen role was in the classic film, "Citizen Kane." He also starred in such movies as "The Magnificent Ambersons," "Shadow of a Doubt," "Duel in the Sun," "The Third Man," "Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," "Soylent Green" and "A Delicate Balance."

COMEDY STAR—Robert Wagner stars with Eddie Albert as an ex-con man and an ex-cop respectively now partners in a private detective agency in "Switch," on Tuesday evenings on CBS-TV.

Gigantic Game Gala

An array of celebrities and prizes unequaled in daytime television will be featured in the "NBC Daytime Gigantic Game Gala" the week of Nov. 3-7, it was announced recently by Lin Bolen, Vice President, Daytime Programs, NBC-TV.

Over a quarter of a million dollars in merchandise and cash will be given away in the week-long extravaganza.

Bolen said: "We want to give our loyal daytime audience a whole week of extravagant prizes and entertainment. Never before in five days of daytime television have there been this many celebrities and this many prizes plus a chance for home viewers to participate for up to $100,000 cash."

"This should prove to be the most exciting week in the history of daytime television. Aside from the incredible talent lineup and the spectacular prizes, we will be offering the largest cash amount ever awarded to a home viewer from a game show."

Celebrity contestants from NBC daytime shows will match wits with the panel of stars on "Celebrity Sweepstakes," hosted by Jim McKrell. Names of viewers will be selected at random from telephone directories of cities throughout the United States and placed in a drum. Ten names will be drawn and the celebrity contestants will play for these viewers.

The three highest winners for the week will be flown to NBC's studios in Burbank, Calif., where they will receive their winnings on the colorcast of Monday, Nov. 10. In addition to their winnings on the show (up to a possible $25,000), the top winner will receive $75,000; the second, $20,000; the third, $5,000. "Celebrity Sweepstakes" will be colorcast in its regular time period, 10 to 10:30 a.m.

Contestants on "Wheel of Fortune" will be able to win larger amounts of money in this special one-hour edition, and will be going on shopping sprees with merchandise totaling over $100,000. As a pre-holiday season bonus, they will be able to purchase items such as a brand new automobile, a boat and an airplane. Chuck Woolery is host and Susan Stafford is hostess of "Wheel of Fortune," which preempts "High Rollers" this week. ("Wheel of Fortune" will be seen 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.)

"The Hollywood Squares" (11:30 to 12:30 p.m.) celebrates the beginning of its 10th year on television by expanding to a one-hour format for the first time. Host Peter Marshall will welcome over 50 celebrities to the tic-tac-toe board, with new stars being introduced every 15 minutes. Among the stars already scheduled to participate in this anniversary celebration are Redd Foxx, Peter Graves, Mike Connors, Sally Struthers, Michael Landon, Robert Blake, Milton Berle, Ernest Borgnine and Elke Sommer, and series

Russian and American space capsules that simply disappear, a volcano ready to blow with only a little encouragement, an undisciplined school of piranha fish and the arch-villain Blofeld all await Sean Connery when he stars as James Bond in "You Only Live Twice," a television premiere on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Nov. 2, 9 to 11:25 p.m., on Channels 3, 5 & 12.

In this, Bond's fifth fearless adventure, 007 is 'murdered' and buried at sea - or so they'd like people to believe - before he reappears in Tokyo, only to be captured, treated most unpleasantly, and left literally in the air in an airplane without a pilot.

Not so easily undone, Bond manages to land the plane himself and continue his search for the missing American space capsule. When a Russian capsule also vanishes, each side lames the other, and nuclear war seems only a button-push away.

Unwilling to accept universal annihilation as a solution, Bond tracks the missing vessels - and their astronaut passengers - to a volcano which is serving as temporary headquarters for SPECTRE, the international crime syndicate led by the diabolically devious Ernst Stavro Blofeld (Donald Pleasance.)

MUCH ACTION—A little jet-propulsion and a lot of 007 propel Sean Connery through "You Only Live Twice," the ABC-TV's premiere presentation of the James Bond thriller on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Sunday, Nov. 2 (9-11:15 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Two Things Aided Martin Milner

Martin Milner, who stars as Karl Robinson on 'Irvin Allen's Swiss Family Robinson' (Sundays, 7 to 8 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-12), says that two things he learned in school have helped make things a little easier for him when the going gets rough.

"I recall a professor," states Milner, 'who one day gave the class a sage bit of advice. He said, 'when you leave school and go out into the world, you will discover that there are two classes of people - those who do the work and those who get the credit. Try if you can to join the former group. There is far less competition.'

"I didn't realize then how true that was," continued Marty, 'but it wasn't very long after leaving school that I knew how accurate the professor had been with his advice.

'That latter class really does have the monopoly. It never ceases to amaze me how many people make a lot of motions to give the impression that they are knocking themselves out doing something, when in fact they are doing nothing. Then when the project is a great success, they are the first to take the credit. But I believe it's a much more gratifying feeling to know who really did the work.'

The second thing that Marty learned was something that has helped him when he isn't feeling particularly tip-top.

'I heard of another professor,' says Milner, 'who gave the following bit of wisdom to a student who was dawdling over his exam paper because he had a headache. The professor told the young man, 'Son, half the work that's being done in this world is being done by people who have headaches'.

INFORMATIONAL PROGRAM—Actor David Hartman is the host of "Good Morning America," the bright, new informational program premiering Monday, Nov. 3, (7-9 a.m.) on the ABC Television Network. "Good Morning America" will originate daily, Monday-Friday, in New York, Hollywood, Washington and the world.

Miss Wood Doesn't Feel Like A Star

If you're wondering how it feels to be a movie star and are thinking of asking Natalie Wood, forget it. She really doesn't know.

Starring with her husband, Robert Wagner, in "The Affair" on the "CBS Late Movie" Monday, Nov. 3, 11:30 p.m., Channel 3N-9-11, Natalie has been in the big time for more years than most leading ladies would care to admit, but she still can't handle that "how-does-it-feel?" question.

"I've been in pictures for 29 years," the actress admits freely. "I was six years old when I got the child role in 'Tomorrow Is Forever.' Claudette Colbert and Orson Welles were the stars. It was also Richard Long's first picture. He was still in high school."

After "Tomorrow..." Natalie was a co-starring juvenile in a string of major features, including the classic "Miracle on 34th Street" with Maureen O'Hara and John Payne, and "No Sad Songs for Me" starring Margaret Sullivan. In 1955, she suddenly grew up playing a hot-eyed adolescent opposite James Dean in "Rebel Without a Cause."

"Rebel" was the picture that really did it for me," says Natalie. "I had reached the age when I would either become a former child actress or go on as a young adult. At the time, I wasn't aware of this. It seemed as if I had been in pictures all my life, so I couldn't imagine not being in them. I guess that's why I'm stuck when people ask what it's like to be a star. The best person to ask is someone who just become one."

From the mid-'50s to the '60s, Natalie starred in 22 major films, including "Splendor in the Grass," "Love With a Proper Stranger," "Cash McCall," "West Side Story," "Inside Daisy Clover" and "Gypsy."

"Good Morning America" Airs

"Good Morning America," a bright, new, entertaining and informative daily news magazine with David Hartman as host, will premiere on ABC-TV Monday, Nov. 3.

The new program, which will be seen 7 to 9 a.m., will be broadcast from New York, Hollywood, Washington, D. C., and other American locations and wherever in the world news and information originate.

David Hartman, one of television's most versatile and engaging personalities, will be joined on "Good Morning America" by a number of well-known contributors. They include: humorist Jonathan Winters, Hollywood reporter Rona Barrett, investigative Washington reporter Jack Anderson, syndicated columnist Erma Bombeck, people reporter Geraldo Rivera, and political expert John V. Lindsay, former Mayor of New York.

With up-to-the-minute news stories, and human stories behind the news from the world's entertainment and news-making capitals, the two-hour program will focus on people: from the man in the White House to the man in the street, from the star in a Hollywood dressing room to the housewife in the kitchen - anyone, anywhere - who is newsworthy, interesting and entertaining.

The program will feature news on the hour and half-hour, as well as weather reports and sports information.

Every edition of "Good Morning America" will have features of the most immediate personal interest to the viewer, such as: Health (if something ails you, write in and you may find your ailment being discussed by experts), and Finances (how to get the most out of your shrinking dollar in quick, practical terms).

There will be a regular feature on couples, men and women whose experiences the viewer will share. There will be interviews with and stories about famous couples — married, separated or divorced — a study of human relationships.

Across the country, the person-in-the-street will be asked for his views on the news and newsmakers of the day and about anything that might be on his mind, from jokes to gripes.

Viewers can talk back to "Good Morning America" with letters in which they can complain about any subject under the sun, including the program itself. And there will be guest appearances in the studio of entertainers and newsmakers of every kind.

Providing the music and the theme for the new program is Marvin Hamlisch, winner of three Academy Awards and four Grammy Awards. He also wrote the award-winning score for "A Chorus Line," the current Broadway smash musical.

HIS OWN SCHOOL — Ralph Carter, who plays Michael Evans on "Good Times," broadcast Tuesdays (8-8:30 p.m.) on Chanel 9-11, attends his own "Little Red Schoolhouse" — a portable dressing room converted into a classroom for him at Metromedia Studios in Los Angeles, where the comedy series is taped.

Carter Has "Own" "Schoolhouse"

Ralph Carter is the only kid in Hollywood with a little red schoolhouse all his own.
 Ralph co-stars as 12-year-old Michael Evans on the "Good Times" comedy series (Tuesdays, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Channels 9 & 11). When the show recently moved into new facilities at Metromedia Studios, he found the tiny one-room school, which was built especially for him. Nestled between two giant sound stages, it has signs labeling it "Little Red Schoolhouse" and "Ralph's Schoolroom." Inside, there's a chalkboard, bookshelves, a desk and chairs for Ralph and his teacher, Hal Minniear.

The custom-built school was the idea of the show's unit manager, Richard Drummy. Ralph needed a place to study since state law requires three hours of schoolwork a day during the school year. So Drummy decided to make a schoolroom out of a standard portable studio dressing unit.

Painters got the right shade of schoolhouse red and white trim and nailed a wooden cut-out of a shaggy dog beside the door. There's even a bell tower with a (non-ringing) plastic bell.

Ralph was delighted. "And I noticed right away," he said, "that it's just a few steps away from where the show is taped, that's so I don't waste any time getting to class."

Pop Songs On "Beacon Hill"

When the Irish were coming into their own in 1920 Boston, as depicted in "Beacon Hill," seen Tuesdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9 - 11, popular song titles included "The Daughter of Rosie O'Grady" and "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows."

Those undeniable favorites, however, were joined by songs, left over from World War I, like "If He Can Fight Like He Can Love, Good Night Germany!" "We Don't Want the Bacon - What We Want Is a Piece of the Rhine," and "Would You Rather Be a Colonel with an Eagle on Your Shoulder, or a Private with A Chicken on Your Knee?"

There were more sterling titles like, "Oh! How She Could Yacki, Hacki, Wicki, Woo," or "Yacka Hula Hickey Dula," and more traditional songs which spoke of the familiar things in life, like, "Good-Bye, Ma! Good-Bye, Pa! Good-Bye, Mule!"

In preparation for the difficulties expected to be faced in Prohibition, a songsmith turned out "Every Day Will Be Sunday When the Town Goes Dry." But we also got "Ev'rybody Ought to Know How to Do the Tickle Toe" and "Everything Is Peaches Down in Georgia," along with "All the Quakers Are Shoulder Shakers — Down in Quaker Town."

Third Year For "Tomorrow"

NBC-TV's "Tomorrow" (seen Monday through Thursday, following "The Tonight Show," 1 to 2 a.m.) has embarked on its third year of telecasts.

Tom Snyder, who has been the host of "Tomorrow" since its premiere two years ago, was asked about his immediate reaction when he learned he was selected for the show.

"It came as a complete surprise," he says. "I always had done fringe time interview shows in Philadelphia and Los Angeles, and I said, 'Here we go again - in fringe time on the network.'"

His 20 years of experience as an all-around newsman and interviewer made him the logical choice for the "Tomorrow" assignment. But "Tomorrow's" 1-2 a.m. time period four nights a week - the first time any network had scheduled a program that way - made a long run for the series uncertain.

Did he feel at the time that "Tomorrow" would succeed? "Yes," Tom says emphatically. NBC has a history of not giving up - and neither do I."

"Tomorrow" premiered Oct. 15, 1973, in Burbank, Calif., transferred to New York City Dec. 2, 1974, and has presented more than 1,400 guests from all fields of endeavor. The series also has made television history.

"Tomorrow" became network TV's first six-hour entertainment when, on the early morning of July 4, 1975, it provided live programming from the end of the "The Tonight Show" to the start of "Today."

Singer Is Secure

"In my case," says Michelle Phillips, "I believe promptness, self-discipline, cooperation, alertness and a clear understanding of the word professional are particularly important."

Making her TV feature film debut in the Spelling-Goldberg production, "Death Squad," on the "CBS Late Movie" Tuesday, Nov. 4, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11, Michelle feels there is a certain stigma attached to young people associated with so-called rock groups.

Michelle made her show business mark (and a great deal of money) as one of the two female singers in the Mamas and the Papas (the other woman was the late Mama Cass Elliot). The group enjoyed tremendous popularity from 1965 until they split up in 1968. Although it's been several years since The Mamas and the Papas cut a record, their music is still in demand among record buyers and radio listeners. Michelle's daughter, Chymma, was born in 1968, the year before she and 'Papa' John Phillips were divorced.

"Until a few years ago, I lived rather lavishly in Malibu, wasting time and money, she admits candidly. "Then I reached a point when I realized that something had to be done. I needed direction, new goals and a different attitude. In 1970, I began studying with Justin Smith. That was a turning point for me."

Because of her beauty, combined with the publicity accompanying her brief marriage to actor Dennis Hopper and a romance with Jack Nicholson, Michelle was offered roles soon after word got around that she had turned to acting. But on the advice of friends, she politely declined until she felt she was ready. "Dillinger," a feature produced in late 1972 and released in '73, served as her first vehicle.

Critics agreed she was one of the picture's strongest assets.

TWO DIFFERENT WORLDS — An irrepressible and unemployed go-go dancer (Barbra Streisand) and a meek bookstore clerk (George Segal) try to be friends in spite of their differences in "The Owl and the Pussycat," to be colorcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" November 3 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

'Weighty' Role

For two weeks this year, Sally Struthers would put on 45 pounds one day and take it off the next. And that problem was only one of the unrewards of filming the real-life drama of the survivors of a plane crash in the Yukon wilderness in the dead of winter.

"Hey, I'm Alive," starring Miss Struthers and Edward Asner, is the dramatization of the story of Helen Klaben and Ralph Flores, the two people who survived 49 days in spite of great pain from injuries, no food and extreme cold. (The film will air as the concluding feature on "The ABC Friday Night Movie Special Double Feature," Nov. 7, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3W-5-12.)

The weight came and went because the actress, like the woman who lived the ordeal, had to lose more than 40 pounds between the day of the crash and the day of the rescue, and the movie was shot on location in the Yukon. If a scene wasn't completed in one day—and the weather changed the next day—a different scene had to be substituted. And pounds had to be added or taken away.

Producer-director Lawrence Schiller (who photographed the real survivors for Life magazine in 1963) demanded authenticity, even to the point of insisting that Sally Struthers wear the blood-matted clothes worn by the real Helen Klaben. The actress escaped that particular discomfort. Even with the extra 45 pounds added to her slender frame, the clothes didn't fit.

Her joy over this turn of events wore thin quickly. She still had to wear the 'fat suit' made of foam rubber.

"Getting into that rubber prison was ten times as hard as getting into a girdle," she said after the ordeal was over. "And... oh, how uncomfortable!"

"Of course, it was cold," she recalls, "But it was still a great experience in beautiful country... with beautiful people."

Monday Night Movie

The lives of a meek, studious bookworm, played by George Segal, and a brash, unsuccessful go-go dancer, portrayed by Barbra Streisand, cross in "The Owl and the Pussycat," a comedy on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" Nov. 3, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Felix (Segal) works as a bookstore clerk by day and spends his evenings typing away in his apartment. His neighbor, Doris (Streisand), is a strident and often biosterous lady who entertains "gentlemen callers" throughout the evening hours. It doesn't take long for his typing and her open door policy to generate hostility.

When Felix informs the landlord of Doris's activities, she responds by moving, with all of her possessions, into his apartment. The two immediately create enough pandemonium to get evicted.

From there, the couple move into an apartment with Barney, a swinging co-worker of Felix. The new tenants continue their battling and drive Barney out of his own apartment. After a tumultuous night, the two separate and go their own ways.

Doris then plans another meeting and somehow winds up in the bathtub of Felix's prim fiancée.

Only Place He Calls 'Home'

Although "Petrocelli" (Wednesdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 7) is filmed in Tucson, Ariz., the series' star, Barry Newman, has an apartment in New York City. It's only between shooting segments and during the show's hiatus, however, that Barry touches base with the only place he calls home.

Newman originally came to New York as a graduate student in anthropology at Columbia University, but after visiting a friend's drama class, his interests quickly changed.

He's one of the many TV stars who served several years of apprenticeship as an actor on the New York stage. Barry appeared in five Broadway and three off-Broadway plays, and was a 'regular' on daytime TV's "The Edge of Night."

In spite of the fact that he was in four motion pictures—"The Salzburg Connection," "Fear Is The Key," "The Lawyer" and "Vanishing Point"—it took "Petrocelli" to elevate him to star status.

When the series began, the ratings were low at first, but began to climb steadily upward and—to the delight of its many fans—was renewed this year.

"It took viewers time to get into the character of Tony Petrocelli," says Barry. "I knew they were going to resent him at first and say, 'He's too slick, too cocky, he wears a suit and he's a winner.' Which they did."

"Then, we had Petrocelli lose a case and we found out the audience didn't want him to lose. At first they didn't like him because he was a winner, now they don't want him to be a loser. I think he should lose sometimes because it's more realistic, but the audience doesn't!"

Win or lose, Barry Newman is riding the crest of the waves of success.

Music Is His Interest

Tony Orlando has performed such non-musical feats on his show as sawing his partners in half and riding on stage astride a horse. But music is still his major interest.

Orlando, in fact, started as a singer, before becoming a successful record producer, then returned to performing and became a variety-show hit on "Tony Orlando and Dawn," now in its second season (Wednesdays, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 3N-9-11).

"I'm flattered that our producers and writers keep coming up with more and more for me to do that doesn't involve singing," said Orlando. "I egg them on because it's a great way to bring my fantasies to life."

"How else could a New York ghetto kid play cowboy and ride a horse? Or do magic tricks as The Great Orlando? Or dress up like Elvis Presley or do corny impressions of my other heroes—Jimmie Cagney, Humphrey Bogart and Groucho Marx?

"But music is still the first thing we choose for each show. Telma Hopkins and Joyce Vincent Wilson (the show's Dawn) and I spend a big chunk of rehearsal time on our songs." Orlando credits the trio's television series for its record-breaking nightclub appearances, but he knows their singing style and choice of music also has much to do with that popularity.

"Our style is basic, with songs people can identify with and songs with strong melodies. We work hard to entertain, to set a mood and carry it out," he says.

"I like rhythm and blues styles because they're flexible and pleasing to a wide audience. I think there can be too much emphasis on message songs too self-indulgent."

Landon Is Fine Director

Oscar-winning actress Patricia Neal (Best Actress, "Hud," 1963) has worked with some of the world's top directors, and she has just found a new one she places right near the top.

Patricia, who will guest-star on part one of the two part drama, "Remember Me," on "Little House on the Prairie" Wednesday, Nov. 5, 8 to 9, on NBC Ch. 6-7, admits she was a bit concerned when she found out that Michael Landon, who stars in the series, is also the executive producer of the series and writer of the script—and would also direct it.

"I don't know how one man can do all that and do it well," she said, "but he fooled me good. The man is one of the finest directors I have ever worked with."

"I can't tell you exactly what makes a great director, but I know when I'm working with one. Mike is beautiful. He knows how to get right inside my head and help me during a difficult scene. He understands actors and he understands people."

"When you can look past the camera in a sad, touching scene and see that there are tears in the director's eyes, you know you're working with a man of great feeling. I'd rank him along the top four or five directors in the country. I love him."

RECALLS SILENT TREATMENT — Richard Thomas (right) stars as James Pelosi, the West Point cadet who received the notorious "silent treatment" for allegedly violating the military academy's honor code, in "The Silence," a fact-based drama to be presented on "NBC World Premiere Movie" Thursday, Nov. 6 (9:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7. Cliff Gorman co-stars as Stanley Greenberg, the writer who interviewed Pelosi about his ordeal following the cadet's graduation.

Double Feature Movie Thursday

Fred MacMurray stars as a contented, wealthy retiree whose life is suddenly filled with fascination and then grief when personal acquaintances vanish off the Florida coast in "Beyond the Bermuda Triangle," an NBC World Premiere drama to be colorcast as part of a Double Feature Movie Thursday, Nov. 6, 8 to 9:30 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

This special presentation will be followed by another World Premiere feature, "The Silence," from 9:30 to 11 p.m.

MacMurray portrays Harry Ballenger, a man whose life style is reflected in the accommodations of a large, luxurious yacht in a wealthy community in southern Florida.

Ballenger's attention is drawn to an area known as the Bermuda Triangle, legendary for decades as the scene where planes and ships disappeared without a trace of evidence that they ever existed. First, a lone pilot vanishes; then a friend and his new wife disappear on their honeymoon.

When Wendy, the daughter of the newlyweds, pleads for answers and his assistance, Harry visits a previous victim to learn more about the Bermuda Triangle. In the meantime, Jed, a young race boat builder, and Claudia, a temporary step-mother for Wendy, seek their own answers.

Within days, Harry's fiancée, Jill, disappears — shortly after she has accepted his proposal of marriage. While she is never found, her sailboat is. Harry then doggedly sets out to find Jill and penetrate the mystery of the Bermuda Triangle.

In "The Silence," Richard Thomas stars as Cadet James Pelosi, and Cliff Gorman as screenwriter Stanley R.

Greenberg.

The presentation, based on a true incident, reveals the courage of a West Point cadet who refused to conform to tradition and resign from the military academy after he was accused of violating the cadet honor code. Even after his conviction by a student board was overturned by a board of commissioned officers, Pelosi was still 'silenced' by the entire cadet body, a tradition where all social contact and conversation is forbidden.

Pelosi returns as a new lieutenant assigned to an Army unit in German to recount the details of his personal ordeal during four days of interviews with an interested screenwriter, Greenberg.

In a series of flashbacks, Pelosi recalls the specific incident where he was asked to leave the classroom quiz after the instructor discovers what he feels is an infringement of the strict rules. From that point, Pelosi is often alone in his battle to prove his innocence and win back respect he had as an honor cadet.

BOGART'S SON PLANS SPORTSCASTING CAREER

The young Bogart lives with his wife and their six-year-old son in Torrington, Conn., some 30 miles to the northwest of Hartford.

HOLLYWOOD—Rumor has it that NBC might axe its Sunday Night Mystery Movie series, which would include "Columbo," "McMillan & Wife" and the newest entry, "McCoy." Except for Peter Falk's "Columbo," none of the shows have done well in the ratings. The shows already filmed would be presented on a 'special' basis, should the series be cancelled.

Look for Billy and Marilyn Davis to appear on TV's talk and variety shows as a new duet. If you're not familiar with the married couple, they have spent the last ten years as members of The Fifth Dimension, but recently left the group to go out on their own. They'll be replaced on the Fifth.

Rumor has it that Lee Majors of "Six Million Dollar Man" and his model-actress wife, Farah Fawcett, have separated. No one will either deny or confirm the rumors.

Three country-western households are headed for the divorce courts. Glenn Campbell has been sued for divorce by his wife of 16 years, Billie, as has Charlie Rich, and so has Mac Davis. When Sarah Davis left Mac it shocked everyone who knows the couple since their marriage was considered one of Hollywood's best.

On the better side, Freddie Prinze and his new bride Kathy are back in Hollywood, but few people have seen them socially. Freddie and Kathy prefer a quiet homelife than a busy social schedule.

Roles He Can Sink His Gums Into

Pat Cranshaw, seen as Gabby, the elderly, toothless inmate in "On The Rocks," Thursdays, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on ABC Channel 3W-5, claims that his gums are his fortune.

When he was a young man, Pat visited a dentist, an appointment he had avoided for many years. So many, in fact, that each and every tooth in his head had to be pulled and dentures made.

One summer, he worked up a comedy routine in which he appeared without his false teeth. When he removed his dentures, the effect was weird. His jaw collapsed, his nose almost touched his chin, and his eyes looked strange. He tried out the act on an Air Force audience in Texas and they went wild. It was then that Toothless Cranshaw's career fell into place.

A photograph of Cranshaw in a flight helmet several sizes too large appeared in an Air Force magazine, captioned: "Sleep tight, America, your Air Force is awake and alert." The photo became popular with airmen all over the world and was eventually printed as a poster.

"On the Rocks" is one of the most unusual situation comedies to hit TV in many a season. The series' setting is a prison, not one of your very airtight maximum security lockups, but a house of correction peopled by those who got snagged on the thorn while starting down life's primrose path.

It's zany, and the 'shut-ins' find their fun in little victories over the establishment.

Jose Perez stars as Fuentes, with Hal Williams as DeMott, Rick Hurst as Cleaver, and Bobby Sandler as Nicky Palick. Mr. Gibson, a tough, no-nonsense guard is played by Mel Stewart. Gibson's opposite number is the mild-mannered Mr. Sullivan, portrayed by Tom Poston.

Artistry Is Ageless

Helen Hayes, the First Lady of the American Theater ("an overly-enthusiastic writer pinned that label on me years ago, and it still mortifies me," she comments) has just turned 75. She'll be seen as a little old lady Friday, Nov. 7, 9 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 3N-9-11, guest-starring in an "Hawaii Five-O" episode as Five-O agent Danny Williams's aunt. It will be one of her rare professional appearances with her actor-son, James MacArthur, the "Hawaii Five-O" cast regular who plays Williams.

Illustrating how good she has become at the "little-old-lady dodge," a few years back she won an Oscar for her supporting role performance as another little old lady in the motion picture hit "Airport."

Miss Hayes has always been good at it. In fact, 40 years ago, at the tenderish age of 35, she was already doing it well, playing little old ladies.

It was happening on Broadway, where she was holding down the title role of 82-year-old Queen Victoria in the play "Victoria Regina" by Laurence Hausman. Before she was through with it, Miss Hayes had delivered the performance 969 times over a four-year period, and it won her the Drama League of New York Medal. It also won the general recognition of critics as being not only the greatest performance of her life, but one of the all-time great performances by any actress.

Sometime earlier in her career, Miss Hayes played the title role in another Broadway success, "Mary of Scotland," a drama written for her by Maxwell Anderson. The acclaim she earned in this production plus that resulting from "Victoria Regina" equated her name for many years in the public mind with historic, troubled Queens.

Relates Actual Experience

The Life magazine that hit the stands on April 12, 1963, bannered "Lost 49 Days In The Yukon, Helen Klaben's Ordeal!" The cover photo showed a light plane bearing the number N5886, downed in a snowbound forest along with a frost-bitten Helen Klaben.

The picture represented a happy ending to an almost unthinkable ordeal; now the chillingly real survival story of Helen Klaben and the pilot of the plane comes to the television screen in "Hey, I'm Alive," the concluding feature on "The ABC Friday Night Movie special Double Feature," Nov. 7, 9:30 to 11 p.m., Channels 3, 5, 12, starring Ed Asner and Sally Struthers.

The story began when Helen Klaben decided to save $30 by flying from Fairbanks to California with Ralph Flores, a sometime pilot who was going home to visit his family. The plane, carrying the two very different personalities (Klaben 21, fast-talking, Brooklyn-born; Flores, 42, quiet, deeply religious, of Mexican origin), ran out of fuel over the Yukon and crashed into the snow-laden timbers.

Helen Klaben injured her ankle and had possible fractures of her arm; Flores suffered a broken jaw and ribs. There was no first aid equipment. The food supply consisted of one can of sardines, two cans of tuna fish, one can of fruit cocktail, a few protein pills and two pieces of chocolate. These meager rations were gone the first week, after that they subsisted on melted snow and a tube of toothpaste.

Hidden from the air, suffering intense pain and facing almost certain death, they finally dragged themselves through the deep snow until they found a clearing, where Klaben managed to erect a protective lean-to while Flores stamped out a hug SOS in the snow, singing "Granada" at the top of his lungs.

On March 25, 1963, bush pilot Jeff Lawson spotted the hapless twosome, circled the area in recognition, and dropped the only thing he had - a chocolate candy bar. The ordeal was over.

Lawrence Schiller was the photographer who covered the story for Life, and he is the producer-director of "Hey, I'm Alive," a dramatization of the book Miss Klaben wrote about the experience. (When Schiller and his film crew returned to the crash site near the remote Watson Lake area in 1975 they found remnants of the wreckage, some of which now grace the walls of his office.)

Asked for a medical explanation of their survival, Schiller's answer is simple: "They were both overweight. Flores dropped 51 pounds and Klaben lost 45 pounds."

A true crash diet, but not one recommended to even the hardest weight-watcher.

STRANDED— Art and reality mingle in "Hey, I'm Alive," a world premiere presentation which completes the ABC Television Network's "The ABC Friday Night Movie Special Double Feature" Friday, Nov. 7 (9:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12. In these photos Edward Asner (upper left) is seen as Ralph Flores, the pilot of a private plane who was stranded with his passenger Helen Klaben for 49 days in the Yukon. Upper right is the real Ralph Flores. Lower left is Sally Struthers, starred in the movie as Helen Klaben. Lower right is the real Helen Klaben and the rescue team.

The Prinze Takes A Princess

There is a certain bit of irony in the timing of the latest "Ms. Liz" segment of the hit comedy, "Chico and the Man," seen Fridays, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channels 6 & 7.

As the storyline unfolds, Chico (series star Freddie Prinze) returns from his vacation and announces to Ed (co-star Jack Albertson) that he has met the girl he plans to marry.

Ed decides that the young man is wrong and he schemes to cool the romance. On the advice of the Rev. Bemis (Ronny Graham), Ed tried reverse psychology to bring Chico to his senses.

In fact, the show will reach television screens just about three weeks after a big event in Prinze's life: on October 13, 21-year-old Freddie was married to Kathy Cochran, a former travel agent at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas.

Freddie met Kathy, a native of Webster Springs, W. Va., at a resort in Jackson Hole, Wyo., last March just after he had completed the first - and highly successful - season of "Chico and the Man." Both were vacationing at the time and after a growing romance, they decided to marry. The happy event took place three days later.

THE HARMONY WAS GREAT
 Liza Minnelli, who was originally slated to appear only in a cameo appearance on Mac Davis' coming special on NBC must have liked the harmony. She not only performed a duet with Davis, but stayed on to solo in a number from her recent Broadway stint in "Chicago."

A Kitty's Misadventures

"The Secret Lives of Waldo Kitty" is a half-hour series, combining live action and animation, about the misadventures of a wistful, timid and lovelorn cat who daydreams when he becomes involved in real-life difficulties he cannot solve.

The weekly Saturday morning series (9 to 9:30 a.m. on NBC-TV) opens with the live-action sequence in which Waldo Kitty becomes involved in a problem — most always caused by his antagonist Tyrone the bulldog, and concerning the object of his affection, Felicia, a lovely and feminine white, long-hair Persian. Then, it will dissolve into the animated portion of the show in which Waldo fantasizes he is his superhero alter ego: 'Robin Cat!' (Robin Hood); 'The Lone Kitty!' (The Lone Ranger); 'Catzan of the Apes!' (Tarzan); 'Cat-lumbo!' (Columbo); or 'Cat Man!' (Batman); and it will close with the live-action solution of his immediate dilemma.

The unique combination of live action and animation is perhaps television's first series format integrating animation with a live-action storyline on a regular basis.

As the live-action segments of the program will be seen from Waldo's cat's-eye-view-of-the-world, humans will be seen only from the knees down.

FOILED AGAIN — Bully Tyrone and his beechdogs scowl as Waldo, as Catzan, rescues Felicia in an episode of "The Secret Lives of Waldo Kitty," a new animated children's series on Saturdays (9-9:30 a.m.) on NBC-TV.

Poor Pioneer Family Robbed

The members of a poor pioneer family are robbed of all their possessions when they book passage for a river journey, in "River Raft," on NBC-TV's Bicentennial series "GO-USA," in color, Saturday, Nov. 8, 12:30 to 1 p.m.

Widowed Ruth Baxter resolves to take her son and two daughters down the Ohio River to a new life in Kentucky, but on the way the raftsman robs them of all their belongings and leaves them behind.

Film Airs On CBS

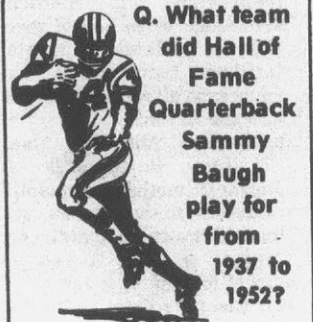

A clever boy named Pero, the son of a farmer, organizes his school friends to work on a secret project, restoring an abandoned water mill to working order and presenting it to their parents on graduation day, in "Pero and His Companions," a film from Yugoslavia that will have its American television premiere on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, Nov. 8, 1 to 2 p.m.

For many years, the mill has had a broken wheel, which has not been fixed because of a disagreement among the farmers who used it. The boys spend every spare minute repairing it until a boy named Savage decides to replace Pero as the leader. This internal dissension threatens to stop the project, but Pero will not allow this to happen. Eventually, Savage and his friends leave the group.

On graduation day, the boys reveal the working water mill to their delighted parents. The adults, however, soon forget the boys and are caught up in their own celebration.

"Pero and His Companions" was written and directed by Vladimir Tadej for Croatia-Film. Pero is played by Mladen Vasari.

Brilliant Beginning

Mike Bass is one member of the Washington Redskin "Over the Hill" Gang who is not yet old enough to collect social security. In fact, he has 'only' been in the NFL for eight seasons, and is still a young thirty years old. That hasn't deterred him from becoming one of the best cornerbacks in the league. The entire Redskin team will have to play well when they clash with the rival Dallas Cowboys for NFC Eastern Division supremacy. The contest will be televised on Sunday, Nov. 2, at 4 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Mike's professional career did not exactly begin with a bang. Although being a star defensive back at the University of Michigan, he was not drafted until the twelfth round of the college draft by the Green Bay Packers. In that 1967 season, he was sold to the Detroit Lions, and was activated from the Lion cab squad and used on the specialty teams the final two games of the year.

He continued to bide his time, slowly gaining the experience that would make him All-Pro. Bass finally got that golden opportunity when he was traded to Washington, and became the first team right cornerback in 1969. No one has moved him out of that position since.

It's no wonder, considering the fact that he has picked off twenty-six passes, scored four touchdowns, and seldom is beaten by an offensive end, especially on long patterns. In 1971, the Michigan graduate led the entire team in interceptions with 8, second best in the NFC, and third best in the NFL.

Mike also inevitably seems to be involved in big plays. In 1972, he returned a blocked field goal 32 yards for a touchdown against St. Louis. He scored the only touchdown against the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl VII when he picked up a fumble by Miami place kicker Garo Yepremian and went 49 yards for the touchdown.

One of the most exciting plays that he ever participated in came last season, when he stripped the ball from Dallas' Drew Pearson near the goal line in the closing minutes of a Redskin victory.

"The ball was on target, and I had him beat," Pearson said,

Being the tallest receiver in the history of the National Football League is not an easy thing to be, especially when you are at the vulnerable position of wide receiver. But Harold Carmichael has done an exceptional job at end for the appreciative Philadelphia Eagles. The 'tallest of the tall' will be on the field when the Eagles meet the Los Angeles Rams on Monday Night Football, to be featured on Nov. 3, at 9 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Harold's tremendous height gives him some tremendous advantages that other wide receivers do not have.

"Harold is a whole new dimension in football," says assistant coach Dick LeBeau, a former great cornerback with the Detroit Lions. "He has great size, strength and speed. One-on-one, a cornerback is helpless against him."

At 6'8", Carmichael was tutored under Coach Boyd Dowler, the pass receiver mentor for Philadelphia. He was the Eagles' seventh round draft choice in 1971, and participated in a reserve role for his first two seasons, playing both wide receiver and tight end. But Dowler worked hard with the youngster, teaching him how to fight off defensive backs.

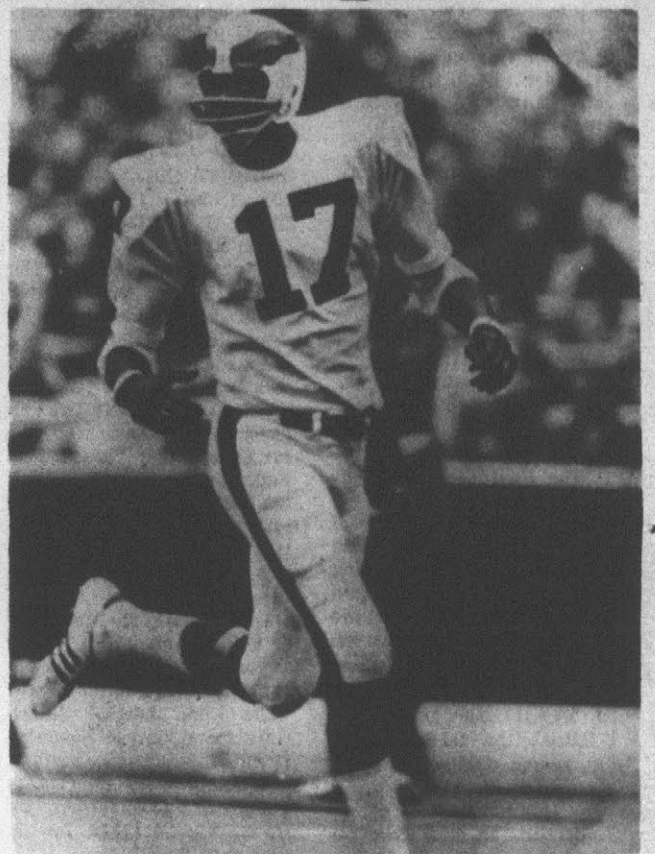

Carmichael opened the 1973

season as split end, paired with veteran flanker Ben Hawkins. When Hawkins suffered a fractured leg in the fourth game, the lanky Southern University graduate began illustrating his greatness.

By the conclusion of the season, he was the league's leading receiver with 87 catches for 1,116 yards and nine touchdowns. Harold is a big, tough zonebreaker whose wide, loping strides can carry him away from defenders on long gainers. Last year, he was the National Football Conference's third leading receiver, and led the conference with eight touchdown catches. He also played in last year's Pro Bowl.

As a collegian at Southern University, Harold totaled 86 receptions and 16 touchdowns, also starring as a center for the basketball team. He excelled as a two-sport star at William M. Raines High School in Jacksonville, Fla.

Teaming with Charlie Smith, Charlie Young and an excellent pass-catching backfield of Tom Sullivan and Norm Bulaich, Harold Carmichael adds to a phenomenal receiver group for the Philadelphia Eagles. But none stands taller than the 6'8" towe who thrills Veteran Stadium crowds: Mr. Carmichael.

TALL MAN — Harold Carmichael, of the Philadelphia Eagles, was the 3rd leading receiver in the NFC last year. Carmichael, the biggest wide receiver in pro football, and his teammates will meet the Los Angeles Rams on Monday, Nov. 3 at 9 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Perseverance Pays Off For Mike Bass

The fourteen-year history of the Denver Broncos is not an illustrious one. The team was one of the original members of the American Football League in 1960, but did not have a winning season until 1973. Yet, they have won more games than they lost until 1973. Yet, they have won more games than they lost the last two seasons, and with players the likes of Otis Armstrong, the future looks exceedingly bright. The Denver Broncos challenge the team that they must defeat in the AFC's Western Division, the Oakland Raiders, in an NFL Contest on Sunday, Nov. 2, at 4 p.m. on NBC.

At the inception of his brilliant professional career, Otis was wondering if he ever would get the opportunity to exhibit the flashy running style that made him a superstar at Purdue University.

"I had to wonder why they drafted me number one," he says. "And I still think about it, because it doesn't add up. I know they want you to learn, but I had always started in high school and college. I'd never been near the bench."

The chief problem was that Armstrong was playing behind a Rocky Mountain legend, Floyd Little. But in the 1974 season, Little was injured, and Coach John Ralston quickly put the Purdue graduate at the fullback position. The rest belongs in Otis' scrapbook.

As a rookie, he carried the ball 25 times for 90 yards. As a second-year veteran, he gained 737 yards in the first nine games of 1974, mainly blocking for Little. As a tailback, he rushed for 670 yards in the final five games, ending with an amazing total of 1,407 that was the ninth highest in NFC history.

During the same period, Mack Herron of the New England Patriots was setting an NFL record for total yards rushing, receiving and returning punts and kickoffs.

It was Mack Herron who was

"but Bass just made a helluva play."

The Washington Redskins continue to display one of the most awesome, fearless pass defenses in the National Football League. One of the keys to that defense is a man who fought hard even to gain a starting berth. Mike Bass stands as a shining example of one who persevered in order to succeed in the tough world of professional football.

Gifford Chosen 'Top Reporter'

ABC Sportscaster Frank Gifford has been named the nation's No. 1 TV sports reporter in a poll taken among readers of The Football News, America's oldest football publication.

The Football News is devoted entirely to the game of football as played on the professional and college levels, and is published weekly throughout the fall season.

In the issue of The Football News for October 14, 1975, the readers' poll named Gifford as favorite telecaster and the newspaper termed ABC's "NFL Monday Night Football," the "biggest success story in sports television for the 1970s."

The football News editor and publisher Roger Stanton noted that the ratings for the Monday night telecasts (to date, the highest in the series' six-year history) constitute "a remarkable feat, when you consider that both other networks . . . have launched an all-out attack to get the Monday night television viewers away from ABC-TV."

"Next To The Underpass" viewed in awe by a young Otis Armstrong, who used to watch Mimi-Mack play in Chicago's Franklin Park.

"He was a few years older," says Armstrong. "And he was so good he made the varsity the first time he went out for the high school team. The word used to spread that Mack Herron was going to play football at the park on Saturday morning. Everybody was there."

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RALPH WAITE, star of "The Waltons"

I understand you used to be a minister. Has your attitude toward money changed now that you are a success?—W.F., Nyack, N.Y.

● I've always had kind of an indifferent attitude about money. As a minister you are somehow taken care of. I was given a house, a car and a salary. There were no doctor bills, no dentist bills. During the early days of acting, I'd do anything to pay the rent and feed the kids. But I still wasn't interested in money beyond making ends meet. I just wanted to act. Today I still don't live extravagantly. For instance, I'd be embarrassed to drive around in a big expensive car. My old Comet suits me just fine.

FOR SENATOR GEORGE McGOVERN

You're best known for opposing our involvement in Vietnam. Is there another issue you feel as strongly about today?—F.B. Richerson, Decatur, Ala.

● I hope to lead a new American battle against poverty, and I feel very strongly about the waste and inefficiencies in our defense spending. I hope we can soon reach the point where we direct our attention to the problems in our own country. As America approaches its 200th birthday, there's still much for us to do to fulfill the promises of our founding fathers.

FOR SAL BANDO, Oakland Athletics Third Baseman

What do you think of the way baseball picks players for the All-Star Game?—Bob Davis, Havelock, N.C.

● Today's system is only for the benefit of the fans. Don't get me wrong. I feel the fans should have a say. But many players are overlooked because they're not well known. I think the players should also have a vote. If they disagree with the fans, then the league presidents should decide.

FOR PETER BENCHLEY, author of "Jaws"

The "Jaws" movie differed from the book. Did you suggest the changes, and do you think they helped the film?—Mark Sexton, San Bruno, Calif.

● The changes were made by lots of people—producer, director, writers. In the end, it's the director who decides what goes in and what stays out. All in all, I think the changes worked quite well for the film.

FOR MARY BROOKS, Director of the Mint

Does working with money the way you do make you more or less extravagant?—S.W., Asbury Park, N.J.

● It has made me appreciate money all the more. Since I've had this job, I can never pass by a penny lying on the ground without stopping to pick it up.

FOR ANNE MEARA, star of "Kate McShane"

Do your children resent your work because it takes you away from them?—A.S., Little Rock, Ark.

● I guess all children resent a working Mom, but our two have accepted it. It's a way of life, and they also know that many of their "extras" are a result of my job. When I left to do "Kate McShane," Benjy asked, "Is the money good?" and, "Will Dad go too?" I said, "The money's good," and, "Dad's staying home." When they know we're going on a talk show, they give us strict instructions: "Don't say anything to embarrass us, and don't do anything silly."

FOR JIMMIE WALKER, star of "Good Times"

Would you rather be rich or famous?—L.P., Santa Monica, Calif.

● I'd rather have talent because, with that, the other two come naturally. People think we become entertainers just for the recognition. That's not true. No one goes into show business for that. I don't like being recognized. I don't go in for signing autographs. I'd rather have people enjoy my work than ask for my signature. On stage the two most important things are having creativity and having people appreciate it.

FOR BOB McALLISTER, host of "Wonderama"

Don't you find it boring to work with kids week after week?—R.J., Boise, Idaho

● My problem is with parents. After Junior comes out of a taping, Mom and Dad ask, "What did you win?" I'll never forget the day we gave away more presents than usual, and a little girl told me, "I'm very lucky." I asked why, and she said, "They're all having such a hard time carrying away everything. I've got nothing to carry." A great big lump came into my throat, and I rushed to get her the biggest doll I could find.

FOR SUMMER BARTHOLOMEW, Miss USA

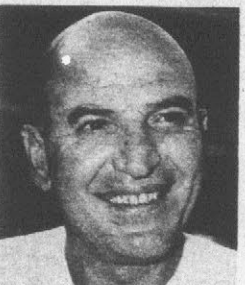

Were you bothered by any of the publicity you got for becoming Miss USA?—B.Q., Orchard Park, N.Y.

● Members of the press kept asking me about subjects I did not pretend to be an expert on—amnesty, foreign policy and such. I could not understand why they felt a person chosen as Miss USA should suddenly be an expert overnight or even why my opinions on these matters should be inflicted on the public.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Can you tell me something about Telly Savalas that I don't already know—after reading FAMILY WEEKLY'S Oct. 12 story?—M.O.S., Albany, N.Y.

● Hugh O'Brian, Telly's co-star in "Diamond Mercenaries," says he's "one of the friendliest men I know. I've never met anyone who enjoys life and stardom as much as he does. He gets bothered if no one bothers him." Telly was recently the center of attention at Grand Central Station's Oyster Bar, because he wore a bright, yellow safari suit, and a 7-carat diamond dangling around his neck. He got it in South Africa while making the movie with Hugh. Telly went back to Columbia University after an Army stint in World War II. He majored in psychology; earned a B.S. degree; and worked for the State Department's Information Service. Then a theatrical agent, looking for an actor with a unique European accent, heard Telly audition (for a joke), and he got the part!

Announcing THE FIRST SCULPTURE COLLECTION EVER ISSUED BY THE HAMILTON MINT
The Bird Sculptures of Corsini

Six original Limited Edition masterpieces by one of America's foremost sculptors—hand cast in solid fine pewter.

Statues are 2 to 4 inches high,
 and weigh 7 to 12 ounces.

With this announcement, The Hamilton Mint presents an exciting new fine art form . . . its first limited edition sculpture collection. This brilliant series, "The Bird Sculptures of Corsini" consists of six original art treasures that were especially created for this first Inaugural Edition by the finest young sculptor in America.

ORIGINAL ART MASTERPIECES

If you appreciate fine art objects, then you will be absolutely delighted with these remarkably life-like portrayals of American birds in solid fine pewter. The world famous sculptor Douglas Corsini has captured the essence of the stately Bald Eagle, our national symbol; the mysterious Great Horned Owl; the raucous Blue Jay; a graceful Blue Heron; a Mallard in flight; and the Carolina Parakeet, now extinct. Each sculpture is truly a work of unsurpassed beauty.

SCULPTURED IN FINE PEWTER

The statues themselves set a new standard of authenticity and excellence. Each bird is depicted with striking realism as it appears in nature. Every minute detail of the original sculpture will be captured through hand casting and finishing, and each piece will be hand antiqued until perfect. The base of each figure will bear the sculptor's personal mark deeply cast in the metal.

A LIMITED FIRST EDITION

"The Bird Sculptures of Corsini" will be issued by The Hamilton Mint as a first edition, limited to just 9,500 sets. Once the edition is fully subscribed the master casts will be destroyed to guarantee the integrity of the edition. Each subscriber will receive a Certificate of Authenticity from The Hamilton Mint, bearing the artist's signature, attesting to the limited edition status of the issue and to the outstanding quality of the sculpture.

THE HAMILTON MINT IS THE WORLD'S SECOND LARGEST PRIVATE MINT.

A CONVENIENT ACQUISITION PLAN

The statues will be issued at the rate of one every other month over a one year period. When you purchase the entire set, each bird will cost just $39.50 payable every other month. If you prefer, you may purchase and receive the entire collection now and save $12.00 in postage and handling charges—all six sculptures, paid in full now, are just $237.00 complete. You may also order individual figures at $42.50 each.

A VALUABLE NEW ART FORM FOR COLLECTORS

In purchasing "The Bird Sculptures of Corsini" collection, you will be acquiring original sculpture in a unique valuable art form. We anticipate that this impressive first edition of art masterpieces will be one of the most important and highly coveted editions we have ever issued. These museum-quality sculptures by an already acknowledged master will be prized by collector and connoisseur alike and will become treasured family heirlooms, to be passed from generation to generation. To insure that you will become one of the very select few collectors to own this prestigious series of fine art treasures, please act now to complete and return the collector's application. Any orders received after the edition limits have been reached must be regrettably returned.

About the Sculptor

Although only 29 years old, Douglas Corsini has already made a great impact in Europe and America.

In one short decade of activity, he has taught, sold and exhibited in Italy and North America. The works of this Rhode Island native grace museums, galleries and collections all over the world. He is regularly commissioned to execute private works for prominent American families and corporations, and some of his originals command prices as high as $30,000.

else, it avoids the roguish idiocy of the Fifties' phrase, "having a thing."

Because it's a term cribbed from the sociology books, "having a relationship" sounds less committed, less involved. It's a hang-loose word, and hanging loose is, to me, the official stance of today's youth culture, where intimacies develop without prelude, and partings are casual, with none of Juliet's "sweet sorrow."

Moralists, if they want to wring their hands and cry "Woe!" can find reason enough in this state of affairs. Divorce is on the rise, young love has become "a relationship," and romance—a vagrant—is on the town.

This discarding of romance is very sad to me. There are, of course, strong social forces shaping this new attitude. One the sexual revolution is not entirely pretty. A proper gentleman of advanced years once confided to me that young girls no longer looked attractive to him because of what he read about their lifestyles. Granted, this is the extreme view of one who remembers when obscene words were never spoken in mixed company and when every bride went to the altar wearing white. How quaint all this must seem to some in our age of eroticism! But it is precisely this eroticism — permeating every aspect of American life—that sets young people on a course that frequently shuns love but finds safe harbor in relationships.

Eroticism has been defined as pleasure without responsibility. The novelist J. B. Priestley called it "concentrating upon a certain kind of excitement and pleasure, to the exclusion of everything else." The films, the fiction, the music favored by the young—all are heavily tinged with this sort of thing. As you might suppose, this viewpoint fears love, sentiment, tender involvement. Love demands a commitment, a mutual concern. It honors the mystery which lies at the heart of loving response. A relationship keeps it cool, skirting the deep pools of feeling where love lies.

With all due respect for the accomplishments of Women's Lib in business and the professions, I have to say that I believe the new female militancy has done little to improve the intimate relations of men and women. In this realm, women may have lost status. And men, some psychiatrists say, have sometimes lost their manhood.

A few years ago, my eye was assaulted by a headline which said, "Link Women's Lib and Impotence." Translated, that meant doctors were reporting an increase in impotency among young men under 35. And the booted, braless girls on the barricades were being blamed.

The new sexual mores, with boys and girls sharing the same college dorms, with teenage girls taking The Pill and reading about "recreational sex" in magazines, have made the word "innocence" seem out of reach to some. I wonder if some of the resulting "relationships" haven't finally debased what used to be called femininity. (It's a word women's libbers abhor.) Women, in consequence, have become alienated from their true selves. They demand their rights, they fear commitment. They revel in the four-letter words, the sexual aggressions that used to be men's prerogatives. And there are psychiatrists who say it's all a terrible mistake.

Where casual relationships ultimately lead is to a race of displaced women who are sexually exploited and deeply resentful. In abrogating the old sexual code, in deforming the basic institutions built upon that code—chiefly home and family—we are rending the whole fabric of society.

"Where casual relationships ultimately lead is to a race of displaced women who are sexually exploited and deeply resentful."

Where will it all end? A psychologist at the University of California at Berkeley sees liaisons—"relationships," in the new down-home sense of the word—as the wave of the future. Old-fashioned romantics can only ask, "How can a relationship be 'open'—meaning infidelity is permitted—and also 'stable'?" Such radical equations overlook fixed, immutable premises—namely, human hunger for roots, human jealousy and the normal, healthy wish to raise young children in a reasonably tranquil, life-enhancing environment.

The ways of the young will always puzzle and dismay the generation that begot them. Social convention is in constant flux. But basic human needs remain fairly constant. This is why the young who focus on "relationships" — shunning love, romance, commitment and all the rest—may be damaging themselves beyond repair.

Ewing Galloway

Harriet Van Horne

"Being in Love" Versus "Having a Relationship"

When Betty Ford said recently that she "wouldn't be surprised" if her daughter Susan was "having an affair," the White House was immediately inundated with letters and telegrams denouncing or supporting the First Lady. Obviously, the morals of today's young are a sensitive issue to many Americans. In this essay, noted newspaper columnist Harriet Van Horne addresses herself to this topic of deep, and often divisive, concern.

Betty Ford

thinks of The Pill, permissive parents, Women's Lib, coed-dormitories, the pornography cult and the communes with their drug rituals and casual approach to group living.

This is not to say that all young people who embark upon a relationship are impelled only by the permissive climate. Some have been made wary by the amorous disasters of their elders. Some may recognize that they are too immature for the responsibilities of marriage.

Having a relationship, some of the young will tell you, makes sense. Either party can walk out when boredom sets in. Jealousy and possessiveness are less apparent (which is not to say that they don't exist). Besides, the young people claim, there is more sharing and giving in an easy, equal relationship because the girl does not expect to be treated as an uncrowned queen.

All the foregoing may be true. But in the eyes of folks over 40, the social fallout from them, all day long. We relate, with varying degrees of warmth, to every man, woman, child, every dog, cat and horse we know by name. We are in constant relationship with all those who share our house, our work, our lives. Not to relate to somebody is to be socially dead.

"Relationship," it seems, is an easier word for young people than "love." It's more hip than "romance." And, if nothing

In reply to a question from her mother, a spirited 20-year-old recently explained, "No, I'm not in love with Mike. But I like him. We're having a relationship."

Having a relationship. It's a fad phrase that sounds, somehow, discreet and meaningful.

But just what, one wonders from the far side of the generation gap, is so special about having a relationship? We all have

Friendships: What Makes Them? (And What Keeps Them Going?)

True or False? Whether a person is hard or easy to make friends with depends on whether the person is fat or thin. (See number 2.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Most friendships grow from a small seed—an act or comment on the part of one person that sparks a strong and positive reaction in the other.
2. Whether a person is hard or easy to make friends with depends on whether the person is fat or thin.
3. The level of friendship we achieve with another depends on the extent to which we “let down our hair” and reveal ourselves to the other person.
4. People who are unfriendly are doing you a favor.
5. If you were smarter, you’d have more friends.
6. When a person asks you to define true friendship, it tells you a lot about him.

ANSWERS

1. True—as evidenced by the findings of a University of North Dakota study of the dynamics of friendship. The study showed that “one person becomes a candidate for friendship with another when he reveals, directly or indirectly, something about himself that the other person regards as nonstereotyped or genuine, and to which he reacts favorably.” In other words, friendships grow out of actions which are not merely role-playing, conforming or phony.
2. True—specifically in the case with women. According to university studies, stocky, heavysset women sometimes have difficulty “in accepting their self-image and in accepting other people.” In other words, they may not make friends as readily.

3. True. Psychological studies at a leading university have shown that “the general level of friendship increases as a function of self-disclosure. . . . There are greater increases in friendship levels after intimate disclosure than after non-intimate disclosure.” This was found particularly true with friendships among women. Among men, however, it was found that in the initial stages of acquaintance, self-disclosure was sometimes threatening.
4. True. Psychological studies show that people whose attitude toward others is unfriendly have a similar attitude toward themselves. They don’t like themselves—usually with good reason. This means that even if you could make friends with them, you would probably regret it because they are incapable of maintaining real friendship.
5. False. Investigators from two universities cite studies showing that “the most competent or superior people are seldom the most popular,” and that the bungling, incompetent person finds it easier to form interpersonal relationships because he presents no threat to another person’s ego. Tests show that the extremely competent person can increase his attractiveness to others by making self-deprecating remarks, or by telling jokes on himself. This will make him seem “more human.”
6. True. In summing up the findings of a study of human relationships, one leading sociologist cites this observation regarding true friendship: “If you need an explanation of this, you have no real friends—and can’t be a real friend to anyone.”

The Lazy Way to Lose Weight Fast

'Most Men and Women Are Too Busy Dieting To Ever Get Slim'

I used to starve myself and exercise to lose weight. Every day — even on weekends.

But I didn't start to lose a lot of weight until I ate more — and stopped exercising.

Quite by accident I stumbled on the real secret of fast and permanent weight loss.

And, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for the secret, even though its only a few minutes worth of reading material. I hope to make it so appealing that you'd be crazy not to do it.

What difference does it make if it takes you only a few minutes to learn the secret — if it works?

And suppose, I'm so sure my Lazy Way to Lose Weight Fast will work for you too — that I'll make you an ironclad, no-risk guarantee? Here it is.

I won't even cash your check for 14 days — until you've lost the weight you want to lose.

If my secret weight loss plan doesn't take off your pounds and inches faster than anything you've ever tried, send the plan back. Your uncashed check will be returned that very day.

Sorry but I can't send the plan and bill you later, or send it C.O.D. That takes too much bookkeeping and it's a bother. And anyway, I'm about to give you what you've wanted all your life — a foolproof method of fast weight loss that's guaranteed to work.

Frankly I'm not sure of the technical reasons that my weight loss plan makes ugly fat disappear into thin air. It just does. It's a simple new way of eating and thinking.

I'm the living, breathing, happy, 100-pounds-lighter proof that my plan really works. It works for women too. A friend of mine who tried my plan lost 17 pounds and 3 dress sizes. She looks terrific . . . and eats more than ever and never exercises either.

Now, that may sound like a boast, but I want to assure you that sending me 10 dollars for my secret . . . which I'll hold until you are slim . . . is the wisest thing you've ever done.

Because, if you are anything like me you've spent half your life starving, the other half feeling guilty about eating. Never again, I promise!

For years I struggled and sweated to lose weight. I tried everything — fad diets — jogging — aerobics — went to diet doctors — took pills — read dozens of so-called miracle-diet books. Nothing worked for me.

Then I discovered the real secret of losing weight and keeping it off — The Lazy Way. I did better in the first two weeks than I had the whole two years before.

It's a pleasure to wake up in the morning and look in the mirror. I've got a whole new wardrobe — my sex life is better than ever — I feel younger than I did at 20.

And I'll show you just how I did it — The Lazy Way — a secret I've shared with my wife and just a few close friends until now.

When you follow my simple, A-B-C weight loss plan, I'll guarantee that . . .

If you're a man you'll never again lack zest and energy to do things and go places . . . never again put extra strain on heart, arteries and lungs . . . never again feel embarrassed when you go swimming because of your spare tire. If you're a woman you'll never again have to avoid looking in the mirror . . . never again look ten years older than you really are . . . never again have to spend extra money for large size clothing never again see that look in your husband's eyes because you are overweight.

And, perhaps most important of all . . . whether you are young or old . . . man or woman . . . 10 pounds overweight or 100 pounds overweight like I was . . . The Lazy Way to Lose Weight Fast MUST work for you or it won't cost you a single penny.

It doesn't take willpower. You never feel hungry because you can eat a great deal of food.

Before it seemed everything I ate turned to fat — now everything I eat turns to energy. The weight comes off so fast you don't have a chance to quit.

It doesn't take exercise. You don't have to move a muscle — your changed metabolism does the work for you.

What does it take to lose all the weight you want to lose? Trust. Just enough trust to read my plan twice and put it into practice. When you do that, nothing more or less, the results will amaze you. I'll guarantee that.

A very smart doctor once told me: "Most men and women are too busy dieting to ever get slim."

Don't waste the best years of your life as a fat person to find out that he was right.

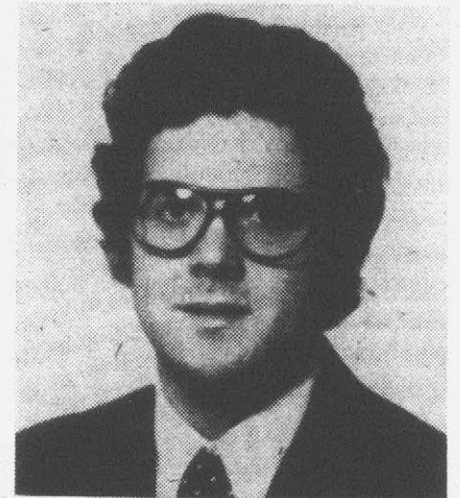

Prove it to yourself when you complete and mail the coupon now. Don't take my word for it, try it. If I'm wrong, you've lost just a few minutes and a 10 cent stamp but what if I'm right?

Smart Cooking Day Before Payday

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen serves a menu with an Indonesian flavor. Marilyn says, "Ready for a change from barbecue sauce? Try this unique apricot glaze on your next spareribs. It's based on an Indonesian recipe—and it's just delicious!"

Sizzling Country-Style Spareribs With an Apricot Glaze

Savory spareribs with an apricot glaze, garnished and served on a platter of steaming hot rice. Perfect for guests!

- hours or overnight.
- When ready to cook, drain ribs and reserve marinade.
 - Place ribs on rack in broiler pan 5 inches from heating element and broil about 20 minutes, turning every 5 minutes to brown on all sides.
 - Heat reserved marinade until bubbly and spoon over ribs. Serve with rice and garnish platter with orange slices.
Makes 6 to 8 servings

Editor's note: For an adventurous alternate, why not use cream-style peanut butter instead of the apricot jam?

PINEAPPLE BREAD PUDDING

- 12 slices white enriched bread
- 1 can (20 ozs.) crushed pineapple, drained
- 5 eggs, separated
- ½ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 2 cups milk
- 4 tablespoons granulated sugar

- Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease a 9-inch x 13-inch pan.
- Place 6 slices of bread in bottom of baking pan. Spoon ½ of crushed pineapple over bread. Top with remaining bread slices and pineapple.
- In medium bowl, beat egg yolks, brown sugar, salt, cinnamon and milk together. Pour over bread and pineapple.
- In clean bowl with clean beater, beat egg whites until stiff peaks form. Gradually add sugar and continue beating until shiny and stiff. Spread meringue mixture over top of the pudding.
- Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until the tip of a knife inserted in center comes out clean.
Makes 8 servings

WHAT'S SMART: Take the blade end of a loin of pork—the last five ribs—cut in slices and then split in half, making "country-style" ribs. Meatier and juicier than regular spareribs, they're usually cheaper, too.

COUNTRY RIBS INDONESIAN

- 6 lbs. country-style pork spareribs, cut in individual ribs
- 4 onions, peeled and quartered
- 2 cloves garlic
- 6 tablespoons soy sauce
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1 tablespoon ground coriander
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 teaspoons ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 teaspoon black pepper, freshly ground
- 1 cup apricot jam
- Hot cooked white rice
- Orange slices

- Preheat oven to 350°F. Place pork ribs in a single layer in a shallow roasting pan. Cover with foil and bake for 1 hour.
- In electric blender container, combine onions, garlic, soy sauce, lemon juice, brown sugar, coriander, salt, cumin, cayenne pepper and black pepper. Blend covered.
- Add apricot jam. Blend again until marinade is fairly smooth.
- Pour marinade into large bowl. Add pork ribs, coating on all sides with marinade. Cover, refrigerate for several

We have been affected, perhaps more than we realize, by certain 20th-century authors. Through their writings—perhaps through only one book they produced—we have gained information and understanding that have somehow shaped our daily lives. Often these are not the people we call our greatest authors. Nor is the list all-inclusive. Sigmund Freud could have been included, for example, but much of his work is rooted in the 19th century—and not many people have really read his books.

The list we end up with is based partly on popularity (all of these books have been or continue to be “best sellers”) and partly on the fact that these books have added different dimensions to many people’s lives. Here is a list of authors who have most markedly affected Americans in the last 50 years:

DALE CARNEGIE

In his “How to Win Friends and Influence People,” published in 1937, Dale Carnegie wrote: “Dealing with people is probably the biggest problem you face.” A simple axiom that thousands of readers seem to accept. Carnegie gave practical pointers in simple, straightforward language, based on reading the biographies of great men and interviewing scores of successful people, from Franklin D. Roosevelt to Mary Pickford. “There is just one way to get anybody to do anything,” he wrote, “and that is by making the other person want to do it.”

Drawing upon a lifetime of experience and a large stock of common sense, he listed the six ways to make people like you, one of which was simply to smile. As for making your home life happier, he had seven rules, including “Don’t nag” and “Give honest appreciation.” Millions of readers have acted upon his advice.

Carnegie would probably strike some readers as being a little “simplistic” now since he wrote for a public less knowledgeable in psychoanalysis, medical jargon, and Eastern philosophies of happiness. But “How to Win Friends” is the granddaddy of self-help books

Authors Who Have Shaped Our Lives

By Richard Armour

Dr. Benjamin Spock

Amy Vanderbilt

Dr. David Reuben

George Orwell

Richard Armour, whose light verse appears regularly in FAMILY WEEKLY’s “Quips & Quotes” department, has a very serious side. A Ph.D. from Harvard, he is dean and professor emeritus of Scripps College in California and has taught English at the University of Texas, Northwestern University, the University of Hawaii, and other schools. He has published more than 50 books on numerous subjects, including literature, history and medicine.

aimed at curing people’s unrest. People who read it in its day may not be so different from the thousands who are reading “I’m OK, You’re OK” today.

DR. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Though practical, direct and personal, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale’s “The Power of Positive Thinking,” first published in 1952, has more evident roots in the Christian religion than Carnegie’s book. To the down-to-earth, Dr. Peale adds an up-to-heaven quality. Finding the world sometimes too noisy and tense, he suggests daily periods of silence as well as going for a walk in the woods and relaxing and calming oneself. “Stop fuming and fretting,” he says.

Dr. Peale sees in God the basic source of human energy. “I believe that prayer is a sending out of vibrations to one another and to God,” he says. His book is full of examples of people who have turned from negative to positive thinking by following such advice as “Believe in Yourself” and suggestions on “How to Break the Worry Habit,” both chapters in his book. Dr. Peale says he found his “simple philosophy of life” in the teachings of Jesus Christ.

EMILY POST AND AMY VANDERBILT

These two writers had much the same mission. Amy Vanderbilt puts it well in her “Complete Book of Etiquette,” first published in 1952: “We must all learn the socially acceptable ways of living with others in no matter what society we move. Even in primitive societies there are such rules, some of them as complex and inexplicable as many of our own.”

Both writers tell us what is expected of us, what we should do (whether at a wedding or a funeral) and what we should know about table manners, entertaining guests, writing and addressing letters and all the rest. Emily Post, in “Etiquette,” first published in 1922, has more to say about the proprieties of conversation, but both women urge us to make the effort to have good manners for the sake of others.

The importance of the Post-Vanderbilt books is not merely

How The Beautiful People Get Rid Of Both Cellulite And Ordinary Fat—Without Dieting!

Yes, the Beautiful People cannot afford to be fat! Those stunning, sleekly-slim couples must remain youthful and slim right up to 50...60...70! And yet they eat lavishly, feasting on exotic cuisines as they travel the globe, but always retaining their fantastic figures. And, if you were to ask them what they do to maintain their Beautiful People Bodies, the answer would always be the same: "I don't do ANYTHING!"

That's right! They enjoy the finest food in the world and yet the needle on the scale barely moves! How do they do it?

For the first time, Luciana Avedon (former Princess Pignatelli) reveals the "BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE MIRACLE FORMULA" responsible for all those lusciously svelte figures on the society pages. How they NEVER go on fad diets. NEVER take dangerous amphetamines, diuretics or diet pills, and NEVER give up their favorite foods either! How they simply go right on eating the foods they like—but in a special way that keeps them always fashionably slim.

(In fact, these Beautiful People secrets of delicious figure-maintenance are so powerful that, when one young, overweight model was introduced to just one of them, she lost 22 pounds in one month and stayed at that weight from then on! And another young girl, when shown how, lost 20 "impossible" pounds in two short months, even though not a single meal demanded a special preparation!)

that they are found in so many home libraries. The importance is that they were the first guides to "manners" in a country that no longer looked to Europe for leadership, a country where "upward mobility" seemed within everybody's grasp, and where a public that had previously prided itself on its "uncouthness" suddenly became self-conscious about the "better things in life"—and how to use them.

DR. BENJAMIN SPOCK

Through his "Common Sense Book of Baby and Child Care," published in 1946, Dr. Spock has advised countless mothers on how to enjoy their baby, how to have confidence in their own judgment and how a baby can be spoiled and unspoiled. He has given suggestions, too, to fathers and grandparents. There is nothing he overlooks, from a baby's crying (does it mean hunger? sickness? being wet? tired? stuck with a safety pin?) to problems of feeding and what to do about the too-thin and the too-fat child.

Dr. Spock gives professional counseling to working mothers and to parents of handicapped children. He tells how to get the best from the relationship of brothers and sisters, and what one needs to know about adopting a child. As for illnesses, he separates the trivial from the serious, indicating those you can handle yourself and those that require a doctor. No wonder so many parents, and especially mothers, have turned to "Baby and Child Care" for guidance.

DR. DAVID REUBEN

Published in 1969, Dr. Reuben's "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex but Were Afraid to Ask" is probably the most influential book of the so-called sexual revolution. A psychiatrist who draws upon the sexual experience of thousands of patients, Reuben mentions the previously unmentionable and writes in a clear, lively style that anyone can understand.

Dr. Reuben is startlingly frank about such matters as the male and female sex organs, varieties of intercourse, masturbation, impotence, birth control, prostitution, homosexuality and the sex life of the aged. In some ways the reports of Alfred C. Kinsey and the team of William H. Masters and Virginia Johnson were more "revolutionary." But it was Dr. Reuben who did the most to replace the average person's ignorance with knowledge and fear with confidence on a subject previously suppressed or distorted.

GEORGE ORWELL

George Orwell's "1984," published in 1949, is about what may be ahead: a world dominated by Big Brother, with a special language called Newspeak. In his book, a forced-labor camp is called a joycamp, dissenters vaporize when denounced by Thought Police and minds become jumbled by Doublethink (accepting contradictory beliefs simultaneously).

Frightening and depressing as "1984" is, Orwell meant it not as something we must expect but what we must avoid. Orwell was warning us that unless the course of history changes, men all over the world will lose their most human qualities and become soulless automatons.

Probably no book has had more effect on the world in recent years than "1984." The term 1984 has become synonymous with all the dreadful things that could occur in the near future. Meanings of some of the book's catch-phrases, such as "Big Brother is watching you," are understood by millions of people who have never read the book. Along with the years 1976 and 2000, the year 1984, when it approaches, will probably be one of the most talked about years of the next quarter century—and all because of Orwell's book.

But I have saved for last the book that has shaped more lives than all of the above-mentioned put together. Many would say it has affected our morality more than Doctor Reuben, our children more than Doctor Spock, our politics more than George Orwell, our happiness more than Dale Carnegie or Norman Vincent Peale. I am referring, of course, to the Bible—which is still and always our Number-1 Best Seller.

Why Models Stay Young Till Sixty!

What they really do to:

- add not a single pound to their figures, even though they add five, ten, twenty or thirty candles to their birthday cakes!
- rise so much shine into their hair that it has to be powdered down so it doesn't glare into the TV cameras!
- "pearlize" their skin, so you would never dream that they too suffered from blackheads, enlarged pores or acne!

What we are offering you, in fact, is the world's first "inside" manual on how ordinary women (with perhaps a slightly better face and a slightly better figure than yours) are transformed overnight into stunning beauties! With pounds carved painlessly off their figures! Years smoothed effortlessly off their faces!

And then—when the absolute exquisite face-figure has been created out of the raw girl who first came into the studio—this dazzling physical beauty is then "frozen" against time and weight-gain-of-even-an-ounce for ten...twenty...even forty years!

Tippi And Her Melanie-

Hollywood Has A New Mother-Daughter Act

Ellen Graham

"One day I'd had it, and I sat her down and said, 'What's going on, Melanie? Nothing has changed. I am the same person I was, we are the same family, this is your home, and you know we love you dearly. So what is this?' And that was the end of it."

By Peer Oppenheimer

Mention the name Tippi Hedren and most people will recall the petite blonde who played in Alfred Hitchcock's "The Birds," "Marnie," and in Charlie Chaplin's "The Countess of Hong Kong." But to members of the Elsa Wild Animal Appeal, Tippi and her husband, producer Noel Marshall, are people who believe in the cause of animals enough to maintain an animal farm at their own expense. This involves passing out 600 pounds of meat a day to 75 wild animals.

For the last two years, ever since her 18-year-old daughter launched out on a very promising movie career of her own ("Night Moves," "The Drowning Pool," "Smile"), Tippi has been enjoying new fame as Melanie Griffith's mother. I talked with Tippi in her unpreten-tious, split-level home overlooking the San Fernando Valley, full of furniture that showed the teeth marks of—lions! FAMILY WEEKLY: Are you keeping wild animals here?

TIPPI: Oh, yes. Lions and tigers. It's very important to have the animals with you the first few months so that they learn to love and respect human beings. I feed them from the bottle and cuddle them, and they love it. Lions are especially demonstrative. When we go out to the farm, they come up and hug Noel and tell him all their troubles. It's really something to watch because a male lion can weigh about 500 pounds.

FW: They're defanged and declawed, I hope!

TIPPI: Oh, no. They've never attempted to use their claws on us. I did get bitten on the back of my head once, and Noel's hand was bitten very badly recently. But the animals were only playing. They had no intention of hurting us. They're just so big.

FW: How did you get so involved with raising lions and tigers?

TIPPI: Noel and I decided to make a lion movie when we were in Africa, but using other people's lions got so complicated we decided to raise our own—and tigers! Our cheetah, Pharaoh, just died. She was gorgeous! We even have an elephant—a two-and-a-half-year-old African bull. He's still a kid.

FW: Does Melanie share your enthusiasm for animals?

TIPPI: Oh, yes. She raises little lions for us.

FW: Do you think she will want to settle down and get married?

TIPPI: I hope not. Not for a long time, at least. She and Donny [actor Don Johnson] have been "steadies" for always, but I hope they won't marry now, not while they have their careers ahead of them. They need time to explore, to travel, to go to school. When couples marry too young, they can't cope. Along comes a baby, and then when it doesn't work out, where are they?

FW: Were you young when you married the first time?

TIPPI: Yes, I was about 20. And it didn't work out.

FW: Did your divorce have any effect on Melanie?

TIPPI: Yes, it affected her, but not traumatically because she was only two and really didn't know the difference. But she did miss her father sometimes. I married Noel when Melanie was six, so she's had a father-figure most of her life.

FW: Is Melanie your only child?

TIPPI: Yes, but Noel had three boys—Joey, Johnny and Jerry. They always adored Melanie. Now they're all grown. Johnny and Jerry are working on the animal farm.

FW: You have accepted the fact that your daughter could handle a steady romance at a very young age.

TIPPI: I knew from the beginning that Melanie and Don loved each other. I think they have the kind of love people look for all their lives and few are lucky enough to find. I think her steady romance with Don has made her teenage life easier. There's been no promiscuity, no dating a rash of boys. She fell in love with Don when she was 14.

FW: Has Melanie always been so independent?

TIPPI: She's had a mind of her own from the time she was born, and has always been mature for her age. She also has a very special quality, a sensitivity that I think is unusual and amazing in one so young.

FW: Did you encourage her to be independent?

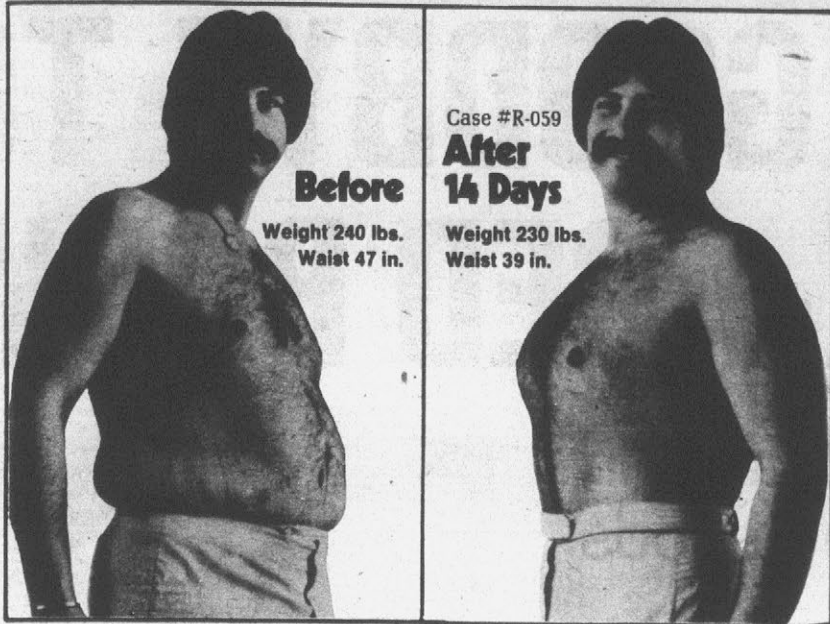

TIPPI: Certainly. I felt if she didn't hurt herself, let her be independent. It allowed her to mature faster. I wanted all of the children to have a sense of independence, to know how to take care of themselves. One year we let all the help go and the children had to take over. One day a week, each one had to do the washing, ironing, cooking and shopping. Life can be really tough if you don't know how to take care of yourself.

FW: Were you independent as a child?

TIPPI: Far from it! If my mother left me, I was in tears! I was always small (Tippi is 5-foot-4 and Melanie is 5-foot-8), so maybe that had something to do with it. But then one day, I was suddenly okay. I remember I was asked to represent my high school as a model in a department store on Saturdays. I was about 13, I guess. I wanted to do it, so I just went off and did it, and loved it. Then when I was about 20,

Because it works most of your muscles gracefully at one time — not body part by body part — the Plan stimulates faster slimming action, to help you start fashioning a more youthful-looking figure in 14 days.
2. Simple to use. No disrobing. Attach it to any door knob, stretch out comfortably on the floor. Do one '5' Minute continuous, rhythmic, enjoyable exercise twice daily, whenever you have the time, even while watching TV.
3. Designed to slim fatty problem areas. Choose from 4 different '5' Minute exercises, each created to help slim down the problem fatty deposit areas of your figure in 14 days.
4. No Rigid Dieting. We suggest you temporarily eat 20% less until you reach your normal weight, without giving up any of the foods you love — eat Ice Cream, Pasta, whatever! (It's all in the guide.)
5. Safer and saves time. No more running to gyms for complicated, exhausting workouts that can strain you. This simple '5' Minute Plan, that you do at home, leaves you refreshed.
6. Weighs only 10 ounces. Fits any wallet-size case. Stores anywhere. Travels with you so you never have to miss a slimming session. Remember, it's the daily sessions that firm, shape, and fashion you a more youthful-looking figure.

IT'S FUN WITH FAST RESULTS... "5" MINUTES & OUT.

THE SECRET WHY IT BEATS FASTING ALONE, MAKING YOUR FIGURE LOOK YEARS YOUNGER.

Fasting programs, when causing weight loss, unlike our plan usually burn off more active tissue (muscles) which can cause your skin to wrinkle, muscles to sag, and create dragging fatigue. Our Plan increases active tissue growth — through the use of the '5' Minute exerciser — while concentrating greater fat loss (by exercise and temporary 20% food reduction), making you look years younger as you slim. Within the first '5' minutes you use the exerciser, you start burning off fat, speeding up your metabolism to help burn up stored calories, releasing excess water. Helps curb your appetite without suppressants. Increases energy and well-being. It's so simple and enjoyable a plan to follow, we guarantee you can stay with it, remaining slim without regaining those inches and pounds. It can put an end to your 'weight-loss-and-gain-cycles.

"YOU WILL LOSE INCHES AND POUNDS, IMPROVE YOUR VITALITY, ENERGY, FITNESS, POSTURE, WORK OFF BODY TENSIONS, FEEL AND LOOK BETTER AND YOUNGER — ALL TO YOUR SATISFACTION WITHIN 14 DAYS, IF YOU FOLLOW OUR INSTRUCTIONS—OR YOUR $9.98 WILL BE REFUNDED."

EXPERTS AND CUSTOMERS AGREE:

It's the no-nonsense way to shape up fast!

Scientific reports and many of our 600,000 customers inform us that sauna wraps, inflated belts, weighted belts, and other 'effortless exercisers' are of little or no value in firming, shaping, and beautifying your figure. "YOU MUST WORK OFF THE INCHES," experts say. We believe, and results prove, ours is the simplest, safest, most enjoyable plan to do it. We guarantee it. Here's a sampling of what our slimming customers tell us has happened to them while using the Plan.

Name	Pounds Lost	Inches Lost (off waistline)	Time
G. C.	25 lbs.	5½ in.	(14 days)
M. F.	32 lbs.	6½ in.	(24 days)
W. E.	15 lbs.	3 in.	(14 days)
M. B.	22 lbs.	8 in.	(21 days)
C. J.	10 lbs.	6½ in.	(14 days)
P. O.	10 lbs.	6½ in.	(14 days)
J. C.	10 lbs.	5 in.	(14 days)

They were measured by experts before and after 14 days. The results verified, some notarized. The results may vary, depending on how overweight you are and how much time you devote to the exerciser. The customers quoted spent 5 to 10 minutes twice daily and reduced their food intake—temporarily—by about 20%, but none gave up the foods they love.

DO IT NOW! It's America's most successful figure shaper. 600,000 customers have purchased our '5' Minute Plan to slim down fast. Results are proven and some notarized. Our guarantee to you is in writing. Experts agree our plan works — and works fast. Now, can you think of any reason for not ordering your '5' Minute Body Shaper Plan and start slimming down today?

For lazy people only!

HOW TO SAY GOODBYE TO YOUR MIDDLE-AGED BODY!

And to your middle-aged face! In as little as two "lazy" exercise periods a week!

Guaranteed To Give You:

- A rock-hard abdomen in just a few weeks!
- If you're a man: arms, hands and shoulders that make you look like Atlas!
- If you're a woman, a more alluring bustline in just 18 seconds a day!
- A 20 per cent increase in metabolism (your ability to turn food into fuel, and not fat), in just one afternoon!
- Weight loss of 31 pounds in a year, without going on any diet at all!
- Or an additional weight loss of 72 more pounds per year (if you want to lose that much), by going on a new kind of diet that lets you eat every single food you're eating today!

And This Is Just The Beginning Of "The Lazy Man's (And Lazy Woman's) Guide To Physical Fitness!"

Once again, the key word here is LAZY! Lazy! Lazy! Lazy! For this is a "total fitness program" about which its doctor-designer says, "I don't want you to exercise every day!" And he goes on to say: "My program allows you to forget about exercising on those days you don't feel like it!" And then he adds: "It outlines the minimum effort you must make to get in shape... easily performed... that benefits you most with least effort!" And finally: "Above all, don't think of exercise as a 'forever' routine or ritual!" "As long as you don't extend your non-exercise periods beyond three days, you remain within the 'circle of conditioning'!"

And Who Promises This To You? No One Less Than The Former Chairman Of The American Medical Association Committee On Exercise And Physical Fitness!

A practicing physician for over thirty years! Now serving as director of the Physical Fitness Laboratory at the University of Nebraska! A member of the board of the American College of Sports Medicine!

And this, again, in his own words, is what he promises you: "A rock-hard abdomen in the course of a few weeks!" "Several years ago, in an experiment, some university-students doubled their daily food intake from 3,000 to 6,000 calories a day, and did not gain weight!" "But just think of it... you could lose 31 pounds a year!" (Without cutting out a single calorie — see page 46.) "Americans as a rule... become progressively less flexible as they age, until their range of motion at all joints is severely restricted. They pay for this in backaches, stiff necks, inability to stoop... and

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

DR. KENNETH D. ROSE, a prominent American authority on physical fitness, is serving as director of the Physical Fitness Research Laboratory at the University of Nebraska and is a former chairman of the American Medical Association Committee on Exercise and Physical Fitness. He currently practices as an emergency physician at Bryan Memorial Hospital in Lincoln, Nebraska and is a member of the board of the American College of Sports Medicine.

JACK DIES MARTIN, co-author, is a seasoned journalist and science writer. He is a former staff member of the Journal of the American Medical Association and is currently midwest editor for Medical Economics magazine.

IF YOU DO NOTHING ELSE, READ THIS:

These are the ugly facts that inspired this "Lazy" way to physical fitness, and to "Weak-Willed" fat loss of up to 100 or more pounds a year:

- 1) Research indicates that the average American has a middle-aged body by 26! (Yes, 26 years of age!) By then, he or she has lost 40 per cent of the circulation he had at 17! And by the time they reach 35, up to 60 per cent has been lost!
- 2) During the last 30 years, the rate of death from coronary heart disease in men has skyrocketed by 2,000 per cent!
- 3) In fact, things are now becoming so bad that one scientist found that the sons of his old patients are developing evidence of coronary heart disease 13 years earlier than their fathers did!

Why not get rid of that middle-aged, sickness-prone body — THE LAZY WAY — today? Read the full facts on this page!

even to tie their shoes without groaning. One simple exercise, although not a panacea... will keep you flexible!"

(For men) "This exercise will develop your arms, hands and shoulders so that within a few months, you will look like Atlas!" "... even improves our ability to think!"

(About the special 'weak-willed' diet described on page 112) "A person doesn't have to give up any special food... (but) in the long haul, over a four-week month, you should knock off 21,000 calories, or six pounds!"

(And it's vital to note that this six-pound diet weight-loss per month is in addition to the 31-pound-per-year weight loss — without any diet whatsoever — mentioned on page 46! Put them together, if you wish, and get the body of your dreams!)

Plus All This — Still The "Lazy" Way:

The "extremely valuable conditioner", that takes just 120 seconds! Two ingenious little exercises that: discourage facial wrinkles... are "a marvelous conditioner" for sagging cheeks... pour vital blood into drying-out tissues... and "help compensate for the forehead wrinkling tendency we all have! (And yet they're so simple and so effortless that your hands never even touch your face!)"

Why keeping yourself in top condition is so easy now that you can do it while watching your favorite TV program! With "no interruption of enjoyment at all!"

For ladies with too small breasts: Before you get in bed each night, give just 6 seconds... then 6 seconds more... and then perhaps just 6 seconds more! And wait till you see what happens!

Again — fat-burning made easy! Proven by the American Heart Association: a 20 per cent increase in the ability to burn everything you eat — that lasts as long as twenty four hours, every time you turn it on!

But Above All, At The Very Heart: A Delightful Way To Stay In Shape (And You Can Get There Far Faster Than You've Ever Dreamed) By Exercising Only Twice A Week!

"My exercise plan is aimed", says Dr. Rose, "at the average man and woman who have no access to expensive facilities, nor much time and opportunity for exercise!"

"People simply hate strenuous exercise and dieting... Who wants to get up every morning, or drag in after a hard day's work, or go through boring and tiring calisthenics? 'I have other things to do', you protest!"

"I know you do. But I also know you want to be in better physical shape. And putting these two things together, I and my collaborator put together this book, to try to make physical fitness as painless as possible!"

Prove Every Word Without Risking A Penny!

Who in the world wants to continue to hide from life behind a pot belly, a big behind, or a sunken chest?

Is it worth a few "lazy" hours of your time to prove — once and for all — that this doesn't have to happen to you, ever again!

This book can do it for you — again, once and for all! Read it from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

Tippi And Melanie

Continued

I went off alone to New York to become a model, with just enough money for one month at the Barbizon Hotel for Women. I got a job modeling right away at $15 an hour.

FW: How did Melanie get started?

TIPPI: Melanie's girl friend got her a movie audition at Warners. Then when she came home that day and told me that they wanted her to come in the next week to read for Arthur Penn, I said "Oh?!" I knew that Penn didn't have someone read for him unless he felt that person had that "something extra" and unless he was really interested. Then the following Thursday I got a call: "Mrs. Marshall, we want your daughter to start work on Monday."

FW: Is there any jealousy between the two of you?

TIPPI: We have a super relationship. We are great friends as well as mother and daughter. The only difficult time was when she was about 13, and I think that was because she saw her friends acting in strange ways. Many of them were having problems at home. But one day I'd had it, and I sat her down and said, "What's going on, Melanie? Nothing has changed. I am the same person I was, we are the same family, this is your home, and you know we love you dearly. So what is this?" And that was the end of it.

FW: Have you given her any advice about her career?

TIPPI: Yes. "Listen to your director—not your mother." If she brought her script home and we talked it over, I might not agree with her director, and he's the one with the say-so. I also showed her how to take care of herself when she was very young: how to eat, exercise, take care of her skin. She's into health food and her skin has never had a blemish. I'm not worried about Melanie. She's always been an absolute joy.

And she has her head on right!

Does Your Antacid Upset Your Low-Salt Diet?

The leading antacid roll tablet may be giving you more than half your daily sodium allowance. Here's what to do!

If you're worried about salt in your diet—a case of heartburn or acid indigestion can present a real problem.

You should know that just five tablets of the leading roll antacid taken during the day would exceed more than half the allowance of sodium many doctors recommend for strict low-salt diets.

That's playing it pretty close. And that's why you ought to know about a tablet that absorbs more excess acid than the leading roll brand—yet contains far less sodium. Its name is Bisodol[®] Tablets. (Bisodol Powder does contain sodium bicarbonate for people not concerned with low-salt diets.)

Bisodol Tablets quickly relieve that miserable heartburn and acid indigestion, and it's good to know you can take them whenever you need them—without worrying about sodium.

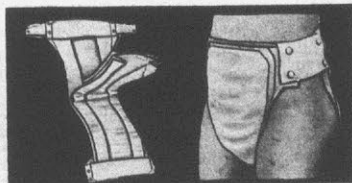

Remember, Bisodol Tablets... are low in sodium—high in antacid power.

Talking 'Patty Prayer' Doll

now I lay me down to sleep...

Kneels and says her bedtime prayer!

Nothing to wind up—no string to pull.
Whenever you want her to she says:

*"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep.
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take.
God bless Mommy . . . and Daddy, and make me a good girl, Amen."*

What a beautiful gift!

Just press her tummy and Patty recites the entire children's bedtime prayer in her precious childlike voice. Almost 20 inches tall, she's soft and lovable and dressed in a silken nylon nightie. Under the nightie her body and arms are cloth covered foam. Hands and head are soft washable vinyl—her beautiful lifelike hair can be combed and styled. Patty's delightful voice comes from a miniature record player in her tummy. Open the zipper on her back to turn the record over and she sings "Brother John"! Operates on a single penlight battery (included). Money back refund if you (and your favorite little girl) are not perfectly delighted.

TRANSPLANT SURVIVOR Mom was the donor

Four years ago, Christopher Davidson was considered a terminal patient. Born with two unformed kidneys, Christopher's doctors believed he would not live out the year. Chris's age (then three) was against him because the doctors were wary of performing such serious surgery on one so young. Said Christopher's mother, "At first I, too, believed that Christopher wasn't going to make it. He was so weak and became ill every time he ate or drank. But somehow he kept going. He fought like crazy against all odds to survive. Finally, as a last resort, the doctors agreed to let me donate one of my kidneys, and the operation was performed. Chris's recovery was miraculous. After two years of being close to death, Chris sprang right back, and within a week of the operation he was running and playing just like any other normal child."

"BATMAN AND ROBIN" Putting the "fix" on crime

Can the U.S. beat the drug problem? Dave Greenberg is the senior half of a dynamic duo nicknamed "Batman and Robin," who are two of New York City's most celebrated Supercops. Greenberg ("Batman") and partner Bob ("Robin") Hantz told FAMILY WEEKLY their plan for getting hard drugs off the city streets: "Don't beef up the police force with more cops. If a junkie needs a fix, he's going to get it no matter how many cops are on the street. If the government simply outbid the syndicate for every ounce of heroin grown throughout the world, it would cost us only one-third of what is now thrown away trying to enforce the drug laws. Ultimately this would drive the price of heroin out of reach. If there were no profit in drugs, organized crime would quickly lose interest." The early exploits of "Batman and Robin" inspired a successful book, "The Super Cops," and a movie of the same name. Now Greenberg has written a book called "Play It to a Bust" (Hawthorn, $7.95), which describes how he and partner Hantz have worked outside the law to bring law and order to New York City.

MARVIN HAMLISCH "Me and fame"

At age 32, composer Marvin Hamlisch has won three Oscars and is a sure bet for a Tony award next spring (he wrote the music for the new Broadway hit, "A Chorus Line"). His latest compositions are the theme for CBS-TV's "Beacon Hill" and an upcoming NBC-TV special, "The Entertainer," starring Jack Lemmon. What has all this fame and success brought him? "It's funny about me and fame," Hamlisch told FAMILY WEEKLY. "I never think I'm famous. I drop dead at Sardi's when a star walks in. I saw Ingrid Bergman there recently and I was speechless. If someone walks up to me and says, 'Hey, you're Marvin Hamlisch,' that's an extra benefit, the icing on the cake. The money doesn't excite me. What do I want with a Rolls-Royce or a yacht? I still drive a '69 Oldsmobile and I just threw away my 12-year-old Timex last week. But fame has brought me other rewards." Is there anything he wants that is out of reach at this point? "I still dream about putting together an album for Barbra Streisand—she gives me goose bumps—and I've always wanted to be a sex symbol. Now, that's another kind of fame."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

SINGSONG

Who says I cannot sing? I've power
To reach high notes at any hour,
And low notes, too, for I've the grace
To be a tenor or a bass.
Of course it's only when I sing
While in the midst of showering.
Then, thanks to resonance and all Within my narrow shower stall,
I somehow have the means to do so
And range from Crosby to Caruso.
I mentioned high notes, did I not?
That's when I switch to Cold from Hot.

Policeman to driver going the wrong way down a one-way street: "Hey, where do you think you're going?"

The wife had suffered mosquito stings and sunburn on fishing trips, shivered on hunting expeditions, had yawned and frozen through football games, and sweltered through baseball games.

My three-year-old granddaughter took her afternoon nap lying on top of a ribbed bedspread. Upon awakening, she glanced in a mirror and caught sight of the imprint left by the bedspread on the side of her face. Alarmed, she ran to her mother and said, "Oh Mommy, look at the nap on my face!"

HI, TURTLE

HEY, I'LL RACE YOU TO THE CORNER

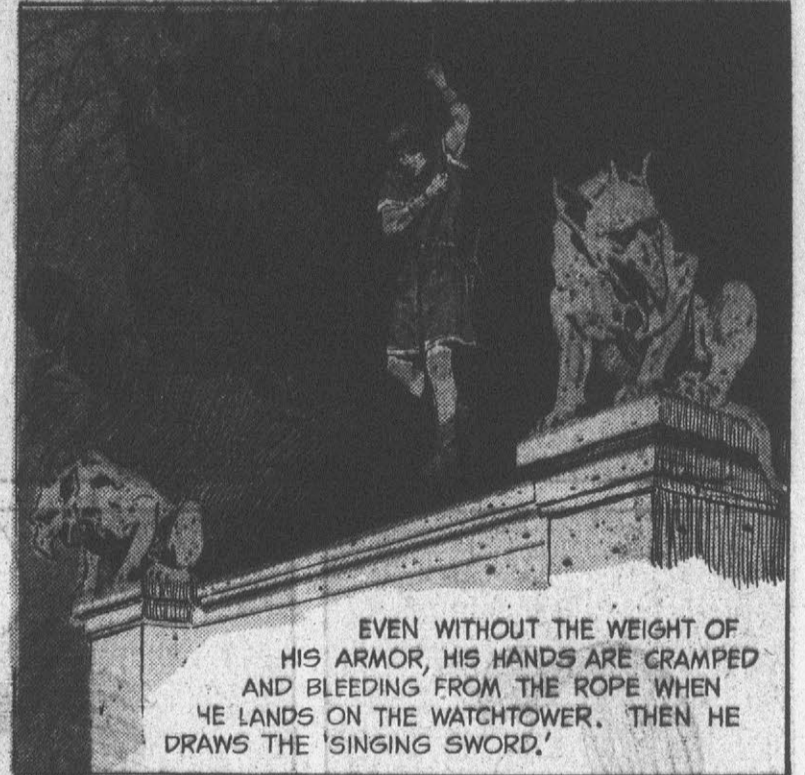

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT FAILS IN THE FIRST ATTEMPT TO ENTER THE OMINOUS ABODE OF HASHIDA THE MAGICIAN. "WE FAILED TO ENTER FROM BELOW, SO WE WILL TRY IT FROM ABOVE."

IT WAS A LONG RIDE BACK TO THE CITY TO OBTAIN ROPE FOR THEIR PURPOSE, AND THE DAY IS ALMOST SPENT AS THEY BEGIN THEIR CLIMB.

IN THE GATHERING DARKNESS THEY REACH A POINT ABOVE THE CAVERN AND VAL BEGINS HIS DESCENT.

EVEN WITHOUT THE WEIGHT OF HIS ARMOR, HIS HANDS ARE CRAMPED AND BLEEDING FROM THE ROPE WHEN HE LANDS ON THE WATCHTOWER. THEN HE DRAWS THE 'SINGING SWORD.'

HASHIDA IS DESPERATE. HE HAD FIRST SEEN HER WHEN HER EYES WERE ALIGHT WITH HAPPINESS, A SMILE ON HER LIPS, AND HE HAD FALLEN IN LOVE. THROUGH TRICKERY HE HAD PUT HER UNDER A HYPNOTIC TRANCE AND NOW SHE STANDS, MUTE, UNHEEDING.

IN DESPERATION HE GRASPS HER SHOULDERS: "LOVE ME!" HE COMMANDS, BUT AT THE TOUCH OF HIS HANDS THE SPELL IS BROKEN. ANGER AND CONTEMPT SHINE IN HER EYES.

STILL TRYING TO DOMINATE HER, HE HOLDS ALETA CLOSE. POOR HASHIDA, NO ONE HAS EVER TOLD HIM NOT TO LAY HANDS ON A QUEEN, ESPECIALLY THIS ONE.

HE YELPS WITH PAIN AS HER KEEN DAGGER SLIDES ALONG HIS RIBS. THEN HE NOTICES THEY ARE NOT ALONE. A FIGURE STANDS IN THE DOORWAY HOLDING A RESTLESS SWORD.
