

Schlesinger, Colby Lose Jobs In Major Reshuffle

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)— Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William E. Colby are being ousted in a reshuffle of U.S. national security posts, according to top Pentagon officials.

At the same time, Henry A. Kissinger will relinquish his job as chairman of the National Security Council while remaining secretary of state, the officials said.

A high-ranking Republican source said Schlesinger will be replaced by Donald Rumsfeld, White House chief of staff; Colby by George Bush, now U.S. representative to China, and that Kissinger will be replaced as NSC chairman by Air Force Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, Kissinger's deputy and protégé.

President Ford cancelled all of his previously announced appointments today, and the White House gave no immediate explanation.

Ford and top White House officials declined Sunday night to confirm or deny the shuffle. When newsmen inquired about the reported changes, Ford coyly replied: "I love you all." Kissinger responded with small jokes, and White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen shrugged and declined to say when he might have something to say.

There have been longstanding differences between Schlesinger and Kissinger over detente. Kissinger has designed and supported detente with the Soviet Union while Schlesinger often has expressed a more skeptical attitude toward that policy.

Democratic critics indicated that Schlesinger's dismissal resulted from this friction between him and Kissinger and that Kissinger has emerged the winner in a power struggle.

Colby's replacement as CIA chief has been predicted for some time. He has been criticized for his stewardship at the CIA, although many of the misdeeds the agency has been accused of occurred before he became its head.

The Pentagon officials said Schlesinger was surprised to learn Sunday morning at a White House meeting with Ford that he was being fired.

Schlesinger had spent 90 minutes with Ford on Saturday in a wide-ranging policy discussion described as "cordial" by Pentagon officials and there was no hint that his ouster was imminent, the sources said.

When he was asked to return Sunday morning, Schlesinger assumed it was for a continuation of those policy talks, they said.

Both Schlesinger and Colby turned down offers of other government jobs, the sources said. In Schlesinger's case, the offer included an ambassadorship.

One Pentagon official said, "No matter how sugarcoated by the White House, Schlesinger will take the position he was fired. But he also will take the high road," meaning that Schlesinger is unlikely to vent his anger in public.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., criticized Schlesinger's ouster, saying it represented the end of the "last vestige of dissent" to Kissinger's policies. Jackson said Kissinger's move from the NSC post was a "sop." Kissinger has been criticized for holding both that job and the secretary of state's post on the ground that it concentrates too much power in the hands of a single person.

N.C. Cities And Counties Had 'Default' Experience

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)— What chance is there for a North Carolina city or county getting itself into a financial squeeze like New York City?

Very little now, said Harlan E. Boyles, deputy state treasury in a recent interview.

Yet Boyles recalled that during the great depression of the 1930s, 62 of North Carolina's counties and 152 municipalities were actually in default — their revenues were inadequate to meet normal operating expenses as well as payments on their outstanding debt.

Boyles also recalled that the state itself came close to having to default. There was a time when state revenues were not sufficient to meet expenses and the governor had to reduce the expenses of all state agencies by reducing salaries.

Boyles pointed out that North Carolina probably was saved from default by the Executive Budget Act, passed in 1925, which requires the state to keep its budget balanced and requires the governor to cut appropriations when the state's revenues drop into a deficit situation.

The state, Boyles said, took steps to get the cities and counties out of their default situation and to prevent them from getting into that position in the future.

In doing this, the state required the cities and counties to operate with balanced budgets. It forbade the local units from borrowing more than 8 per cent of their property values. It forbade them from borrowing to pay operating expenses, and it forbade them from borrowing without a vote of the people more than two-thirds of the amount that debt had been retired during the previous year. It also created the Local Government Commission which helps the local units manage their borrowing.

With the assistance of this commission, Boyles said, the bonded debt of many counties and cities was refinanced with the repayment time in some cases spread out to as many as 40 years, bringing their debt payments within their ability to pay.

In addition, the state took some of the burdens of government off the local units. With the help of the sales tax, the state took over most of the cost of operating the public schools and with the help of the gasoline tax it assumed the burden of building roads.

Now, Boyles noted North Carolina's bonds are rated AAA, the highest rating obtainable by a state, and the bonds of Raleigh and Wake County and Charlotte and Mecklenburg County have the same rating. In addition, a multitude of the local units have ratings of AA and A on their securities.

Boyles added that New York's financial squeeze has had an effect on bond sales by North Carolina counties and municipalities. He said interest rates on their securities have gone up about 10 per cent while nationwide the increase "has been estimated as up to 15 per cent."

Steps Aside

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller stepped aside today as President Ford's 1976 running mate, saying he does not want to be considered for the Republican ticket next year.

He did so in a letter to Ford, saying: "After much thought, I have decided ... that I do not wish my name to enter into your consideration for the upcoming Republican vice presidential nominee. "I wish you to know this now for your own planning," Rockefeller said.

Multiple Charges Are Lodged In Auto Chase

Multiple charges were lodged against the driver of a car that wrecked here Saturday afternoon while being chased by a Highway Patrolman following a shooting incident on East Fifth Street.

Patrol officials identified the man charged as Dwight Eugene Tyner of Route 1, Goldsboro.

Troop Donnie R. Taylor charged Tyner with driving under the influence, careless and reckless driving, speeding 90 miles per hour in a 45 mph zone, failing to stop for a blue light and siren and speeding in excess of 15 miles per hour over the speed limit while fleeing to avoid apprehension.

Tyner, according to Trooper Taylor, lost control of his car on Tenth Street 63 feet West of the Washington Street intersection and collided with a utility pole. Damage to the car was estimated at $1,750, while damage to the pole was estimated at $500.

The chase began at Highway Patrol Troop A headquarters when the driver of a car wheeled into the patrol station parking lot and reported to Trooper Taylor that shots fired from the Tyner car moments before struck his

The collision occurred about 4:20 p.m., and one passenger in the Tyner car was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries received in the collision.

Patrol officials said the victim of the shooting incident did not press charges in connection with that case.

The charges against Tyner are scheduled to be heard in District Court here November 19.

NEWS CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford, who has decided on a major top-level shake-up in administration ranks, will hold a news conference at 7:30 p.m. EST today, Press Secretary Ron Nessen announced.

Hospital Accord Is Expected Today

Pitt Memorial Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson told the Board of County Commissioners this morning that the committee on Educational Planning, Policies and Programs of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors was expected to approve an affiliation agreement this afternoon that would result in the hospital becoming the prime clinical teaching facility for the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

Richardson said a meeting last week between top UNC administration officials and Pitt representatives resulted in the affiliation document to be reviewed by the Board of Governors committee today.

If the agreement wins committee approval, a recommendation will be made to the full Board of Governors that the affiliation agreement be adopted.

Roy Beck of the Pitt Soil Conservation Service reviewed a recent publication, "An Appraisal of North Carolina's Potential for Outdoor Recreation Development", as it affects Pitt County, for the board.

He noted that the county ranks medium in most areas covered by the report—(vacation homesites, vacation and transient camping, fishing and standard golf— while ranking high in other areas of potential (bicycling, picnicking, play and target areas, and hunting).

In other business, commissioners approved a $6,150 request from Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner to provide a building and emergency power generator for a radio base station to be located at the new Pitt hospital site to provide communications between the hospital and area rescue squad and ambulance vehicles.

Morocco Ignores Risk Of War In The Sahara

By The Associated Press
Morocco says it is going ahead with its march of 350,000 unarmed civilians into the disputed Spanish Sahara despite threats of war from Spain and Algeria and an appeal from the United Nations Security Council to call off the invasion.

Spanish sources reported that Moroccan troops crossed the frontier Sunday and clashed with Saharans belonging to the anti-Moroccan Polisario Front.

The Moroccan government denied that its troops were involved, but Information Minister Ahmed Taibi Benhima said, "Sahara residents seeking reunification with ... Morocco may have raised the Moroccan flag at certain points that may have been evacuated by the Spanish Army."

Prince Juan Carlos, in his first venture into foreign policy since becoming Spain's acting chief of state, flew to the Spanish Sahara Sunday and told the Spanish army and local officials in El Aaiun, the capital, that "Spain will fulfill its promises."

The 37-year-old prince pledged to "preserve intact the prestige and honor" of the Spanish army. Then he flew back to Madrid and called a meeting of top government ministers and military chiefs to discuss the deepening crisis.

Morocco claims the northern part of the Colorado-size territory on its southern border, which includes some of the world's richest phosphate deposits, while Mauritania claims the rest. Algeria, which has an 18-mile border with the territory, is backing the Polisario Front's demand for a self-determination referendum for the colony's 80,000 people, most of them nomadic tribespeople.

Algeria wants to build a railroad across the territory from its large iron deposits near the border to the Atlantic.

Spain, preparing to give up the territory if it can continue sharing in the phosphate industry there, at first was in favor of the referendum proposal. When its 15,000-man Saharan army was threatened with invasion by a horde of Moroccans, it negotiated to transfer the area to Morocco and Mauritania but returned to the self-determination proposal under pressure from Algeria.

The Security Council unanimously adopted a resolution Sunday urging all four nations "to avoid any unilateral or other action which might further escalate the tension in the area." But representatives of the four said their governments would not back down.

The council asked Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to continue the consultations he began last week during a trip to the four countries. Waldheim, who is reported proposing that the United Nations take over the territory for a six-month cooling-off period, canceled a trip to Cuba and met with the Moroccan and Spanish representatives.

Meanwhile, the slow decline of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain's 82-year-old dictator, continued at his Pardo Palace north of Madrid. His doctors said he slept peacefully through the night and there was no change in his grave heart condition. But they said intestinal hemorrhaging was continuing and abdominal dropsy was worsening.

Senate Likely To Uphold New York City Aid Veto

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation aimed at averting a financial default by New York City faces an uphill battle in the Senate where there is little likelihood that President Ford's promised veto could be overridden, an Associated Press poll showed today.

Senate Democratic leaders were to decide Tuesday when to begin floor debate on a complex loan guarantee approved last week by the Senate Banking Committee. Some opponents of the aid are vowing a filibuster to prevent the bill from coming to a vote.

It takes 60 votes to shut off a filibuster, and the poll showed that Senate leaders were within reach of being able to muster those votes but only after the legislation is fully debated.

A total of 53 senators favor or are leaning toward limiting debate, including seven opponents of the bill, with another 10 considered definite possibilities.

But the survey also showed that the known and likely opponents of the legislation outnumber its probable backers by a 45-28 margin at present. This means the sponsors would need to add virtually all of the 19 Democrats and six Republicans now listed as undecided in order to secure Senate passage.

The bill's chances may be slightly better than the numbers indicate. Most of those undecided have generally backed federal programs to meet domestic problems and a number of senators appear unaware of the stiff requirements the pending bill would impose on New York.

However, if the legislation passes both houses, the solid opposition of 35 senators would appear to doom it on the final showdown on whether to override Ford's promised veto. Furthermore, House leaders do not yet see a majority in that chamber in favor of initial passage.

There were these other items on the congressional calendar: —Senate-House conferees hope for final action this week on a comprehensive energy bill.

—The Senate plans to debate economic aid legislation today and a measure to limit secret government meetings starting Tuesday.

—On Tuesday, the Senate takes up a bill that would require open meetings by most federal regulatory organizations.

—The House is scheduled to vote Wednesday on a bill to create an Agency for Consumer Protection.

—And the House Ways and Means Committee is hoping to finish work by the end of the week on its tax revision program.

The New York City debate flourished over the weekend. Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., who has threatened a Senate filibuster on the aid issue, said Sunday that giving the city loan guarantees would be like giving a drink to an alcoholic.

"I believe that voluntary bankruptcy is the solution," he said on CBS's "Face the Nation."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a supporter of federal aid, said on the same program that if the city fails, New York State also is likely to be in financial trouble.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., also supported aid for New York, saying the city will get help if it needs it, the question being when. He appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Sloop Towed Into Port

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Three Canadians were taken from their sloop to the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Reliance early today after drifting for several days in the Atlantic some 240 miles off North Carolina.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the three were taken from their vessel "Klu Ann" after rescuers determined they were "too physically and emotionally drained to continue sailing."

There was no indication why their 31-foot sloop had lost power.

A Coast Guard crew was aboard the sloop.

Earlier today, the Coast Guard said the vessel had been towed into Morehead City but later a spokesman said the announcement was an error.

The vessel was not expected into Wrightsville Beach until after noon Tuesday, the Coast Guard said.

The sloop was sighted by a Coast Guard aircraft Sunday 240 miles southeast of North Carolina's Cape Fear River.

The cutter reached the drifting craft Sunday night after an amateur radio operator picked up a distress signal earlier in the day, the Coast Guard said.

The ship's owner, who was identified as Pierre Accelin of Ontario, told the ham operator the vessel had been drifting for several days and he and his two passengers were very tired.

The two passengers were listed as Dave McNaught of Whitehorse, Yukon; and Reginald Stock of Quebec.

Ford Strategists Say He Can Absorb Early Primary Losses

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's campaign strategists contend he can absorb defeats in two of the first three presidential primary elections of 1976 and still beat Ronald Reagan for the Republican nomination.

They say they do not expect Ford to lose in New Hampshire on Feb. 24 or in Florida on March 9, but that it won't be politically fatal if he does. There is concern and some pessimism in the Ford camp about those two states because Reagan has special advantages in both.

In part, these assessments may be an exercise in campaign gamesmanship, since it is to a candidate's advantage to start with low expectations and exceed them rather than to promote optimistic forecasts that don't pan out.

As the incumbent, although by appointment rather than election, Ford goes into the campaign as the favorite, and any defeat by Reagan will therefore be magnified.

But Ford's managers say the race shouldn't be read that way because the President has not been the electoral route before. They also say that as a challenger, Reagan can pick his spots and run in states where he is strongest, while the Ford campaign will be active in every state, spreading its resources thinner.

Reagan has not yet declared his presidential candidacy yet, but sources familiar with his plans say he will do so in Washington the week of Nov. 17.

Stuart Spencer, director of political operations for the President Ford Committee, said he is satisfied with progress in organizing for the President in New Hampshire and Florida, with chairmen and campaign professionals at work and a direct-mail appeal for Republican support due to go out in November.

Howard H. "Bo" Callaway, the Ford campaign manager, has said he is confident the President will win both primaries.

Spencer said Reagan's advantages in the two states include the support of New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson and the Manchester Union-Leader, that state's largest newspaper, and the strength of GOP conservatives in Florida.

"If we can beat him in New Hampshire and Florida, I think he's dead," Spencer said. "If he beats us in New Hampshire and Florida, I don't think we're dead. It's just a long, hard winter — or spring."

He acknowledged that he can't measure the psychological impact the Ford campaign would suffer if Reagan won in those early tests.

Spencer also said the President's forces are confident they can beat Reagan in the Massachusetts primary on March 2, in Illinois on March 16 — although some other Republicans say Ford could have trouble there — and will win in Wisconsin and New York on April 6.

Along with the questions of strategy, there is the problem of internal discord at the Ford campaign committee. It surfaced again with the resignation of David Packard as finance chairman, following the departure of Lee Nunn as director of operations.

In both cases, the resignations stemmed from differences with Callaway. A spokesman said Ford still has total confidence in Callaway's management. And a campaign official said that with those resignations, the in-house problems at Ford headquarters should be over.

No Treat

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Debbie Gentry, 13, of Asheville received a half-inch laceration of her lower lip Saturday after biting into a Halloween apple containing a razor blade, police reports showed today.

She got the apple during a trick or treat excursion Friday night, but she didn't eat it until the following morning, the report said.

Police said because it was one of six she had received in the Knollwood development it was difficult to determine which home it came from.

Fled Fire In Apartment

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A two-alarm fire at the Vista Villa apartments on Charlotte's northeast side sent several residents scurrying into the street this morning.

No one was injured. Two garden-type apartment units were gutted and about 10 others were damaged by fire and smoke, firemen said.

Firemen said the blaze, reported shortly after 2 a.m., was believed to have been started by a charcoal grill on the upper level of the two story apartment building.

Many of the residents saved only the pajamas they were wearing. Flames spouted high into the air.

"We were asleep and I heard a young man yelling 'fire,'" said Mike Crowell, one of the residents. "I got up and it looked like daylight. The fire was spreading too fast. It was just like a matchbox going up," he said.

Joseph Cusano, another resident, said, "The only thing I know is someone banged on the door hollering 'fire, fire'. I put on my coat and on my wife — you see, she has a walker — and we managed to get out. We saved not a thing."

Arrest Man For Theft Of Cash

Pitt County deputies arrested a Washington man Sunday and charged him with the theft of some $680 in cash from a Rt. 3, Washington home.

Arrested was Albert Leonard Turnage 30, of Ashbury Church Road, Washington, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

Sheriff Tyson said that Turnage is charged with taking the money from the home of Ruth Ward of Rt. 3, Box 562, Washington on Saturday night. The money included three $100 bills and 19 $20 bills, it was noted.

According to the sheriff, none of the money was recovered.

Bond for Turnage was set at $500 with a hearing scheduled for Nov. 26 in District Court here.

Omitted From Board Listing

The name of Kenneth Dews of Winterville was inadvertently omitted from a list of members of the Board of Directors of the Eastern Area Health Education Center Program in yesterday's Daily Reflector.

Dews, a member of the executive committee of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees, has been on the EAHEC Board since its beginning and is a valued member who was recently reelected, according to Dr. F.M. Simmons Patterson, executive director of the EAHEC Program.

Fired Twice At Lawmen

LOUISBURG, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Highway Patrol says a Henderson man was wounded Sunday afternoon after he fired twice at four patrolmen in northern Franklin County.

Patrol Lt. T.W. Fearing said 33-year-old John Henry Alston was charged with assault with a deadly weapon and released under $2,000 bond after being treated and released by Louisburg Hospital.

Fearing said none of the patrolmen was hit.

He said Sgt. J.C. Minton and three troopers were in the area investigating reports of car racing on a rural paved road when the two rifle shots were fired. One of the shots hit the dirt between Minton and a trooper.

Fearing said Alston was not in a car at the time of the shootings.

Other patrolmen involved in the incident were Troopers A.Z. Wright, R.L. Murray and R. H. Shaw.

Three highway patrolmen have been shot in the line of duty in recent weeks and two of them were killed. These shootings have prompted requests from state officials for greater protection of patrolmen.

The Rev. Paul C. Jackson officiated at the double ring ceremony. The Rev. Henry A. Jones assisted Rev. Jackson.

A program of nuptial wedding music was presented by Mrs. Judy Harding, pianist, and Mrs. Paul Jackson, soloist, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," "More," "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Lord's Prayer" as the benediction.

The church was centered with a fifteen branch brass crescent candelabra holding a massive arrangement of gladioli, chrysanthemums and pom poms in autumn shades, flanked by a nine branch candelabra holding matching floral arrangements. Palms of emerald greenery were used throughout the scene. The couple knelt on a brass profile prie-dieu for the benediction. Behind this was a three branched candelabra, the bridal couple lighted the center candle together signifying their union. Family pews were marked with autumn ribbons.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white formal gown of bridal satin and peau d' ange lace. The gown was fashioned with an empire waistline, an imported English net bodice and reembroidered alencon lace, overlaid in a V'd effect enhancing the gown. A colonial neckline and slim fitted sleeves cuffed with lace accented the gown. The slightly gathered skirt was edged with peau d' ange lace ruffled and bordered with Venise braid.

She wore a chapel length mantilla, bordered with a wide border of matching peau d' ange lace, attached to a Camelot cap of lace and pearls. She carried a nosegay of white pom poms and carnations with touches of orange and yellow featuring white lace streamers.

Miss Betty Lou Miller of Hookerton was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of mango knit styled with a high neckline and a gathered skirt. A belt of soft-fabric encircled the waistline. The hemline was edged in a deep ruffle flounce in the knit fabric. The sleeveless gown was complemented by a removable capelet in matching mango edged in the ruffled knit. She carried two long-stemmed bronze mums with variegated gold streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Treva Boyd, sister-in-law of the bride, of Simpson, Mrs. Vicki McGlohon, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Ava Baker, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Loretta Adams, all of Greenville. They wore gowns identical to that of the honor attendant and carried one long-stemmed bronze mum with gold streamers.

Mrs. Brenda Hall of Farmville presided at the guest register. Wayne Baker of Greenville was best man. Ushers were Hyman Boyd Jr., brother of the bride, D. J. Boyd of Simpson, Earl Everette and Grove McGlohon, both of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Boyd chose a burgundy tweed two-piece ensemble and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother selected a light beige knit ensemble and matching accessories. The mothers each wore a corsage of white carnations with white ribbons.

The grandmothers of the couple were remembered with corsages of white carnations. For traveling, the bride changed into a rust and white pants ensemble with matching accessories.

The bride is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is presently working at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is employed by East Carolina Maintenance Co.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

It looks pretty, it tastes good and it's filling. We're talking about a Crab Pie that's a worthwhile choice when you want to serve a meatless lunch or supper. A tossed salad of crisp greens, sliced cucumber and a vinaigrette dressing will taste delicious with it.

CRAB PIE

Cornmeal Pastry, see below
1/2 cup chopped scallion
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

7 1/2-ounce can or 6-ounce package thawed frozen Alaska king crab
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 cup grated Swiss cheese mixed with 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan

2 raw eggs
1 cup commercial sour cream
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon white pepper
1 tomato, halved and sliced
Roll Cornmeal Pastry 1/8-inch thick; fit into a 9-inch pie plate, fluting edge; pierce pastry with a fork over entire bottom surface; bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 8 to 10 minutes; cool. Lightly cook scallion in the butter. Drain crab and slice large pieces; arrange with scallion and egg slices in the pie shell. Sprinkle with the cheese, reserving 2 tablespoons of it. Beat raw eggs, sour cream, milk, salt and pepper until blended; pour into pie shell. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for 35 minutes. Arrange tomato slices around edge of pie filling; sprinkle them with the reserved cheese. Continue baking pie until filling is set — about 10 minutes more. Makes 6 servings.

CORNMEAL PASTRY
Combine 1 cup flour, 1/4 cup yellow corn meal, 1/4 teaspoon salt. Cut in 1/2 cup shortening, sprinkle with 3 to 4 tablespoons ice water, tossing until ball forms.

DEAR ABBY: Do you believe that dogs can understand human language? My sister, Carol, insists that they can. At least she says her poodle can.

Carol went on a three-week vacation and left "Pisher" in a kennel. When she returned she said Pisher was so furious with her that he wouldn't look her in the face for five days. Carol took the dog in her arms, and he turned his head away. Then she said, "If I promise never to put you in a kennel again, will you forgive me?"

She claims the poodle looked at her with love and understanding and actually nodded his head as if to say, "Yes, I forgive you." Then he nuzzled her and started to lick her hand to show his appreciation and affection.

Carol says she knows that Pisher understood every word she said, and she'll never put him in a kennel again because she promised she wouldn't.

Can you believe this? Or do you think my sister is a nut? ESTHER IN HARTFORD

DEAR Esther: When it comes to dog lovers, I can believe anything.

DEAR ABBY: Rick and I were both underage and needed our parents' signatures to get married. (I was pregnant at the time, but after we got married I lost the baby.)

We couldn't afford a place of our own, so we lived with my parents. It was okay for about three months, then Rick decided it was too crowded at my folks' house, and he thought it would be better if I lived with my parents and he went back and lived with his.

Abby, I don't like this arrangement at all. Rick has started to run around with his friends like he did before we were married. I'm afraid he's got another girl.

He keeps telling me that as soon as he can afford it we will get a place of our own, but I don't believe he really wants one.

He comes to see me maybe once a week for an hour, and then he takes off. I just sit and cry. Please help me. I don't feel married anymore. MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: Married people belong together. If you can't afford a place of your own, you should live with your parents or Rick's. This way, you have no marriage, dear. Tell Rick it's either—or. His answer will tell you what to do.

DEAR ABBY: I identified with the fellow who preferred not to broadcast the line of work he was in.

I am a Roman Catholic priest, and every time I get to a town where I'm not known, I take off my collar and put on a sport shirt.

I'm not trying to get away with anything, but the minute people (especially Catholics) spot me in my Roman collar, they corner me and start to tell me their troubles.

Most people are much more relaxed and comfortable around me if they don't know I'm a priest.

INCÓGNITO IN MASS.

DEAR ABBY: The man who lied about his job because he didn't want people to know that he was a garbage collector caught my eye because I lie about my job, too.

I'm a police officer, and when I'm off duty, I tell strangers (when they ask) that I work for the city.

If they inquire further, I tell them that I'm a garbage collector. In a way, I sometimes am.

Household Hints

Screw-top glass containers are better than metal kitchen canisters for storing foods such as flour and cereals that tend to develop insects. Canisters are not tight enough to exclude them.

You can extend the life of unlined rubber gloves if you turn them inside out each time you strip them from your hands. Leave them reversed for the next wearing, to divide stress equally.

No Place For The Disorderly

The events which took place in downtown Greenville Friday night can only be described as shocking and disturbing.

Some 56 arrests were made in the night club district on Cotanche and Fifth Streets as police attempted to break up a crowd of Halloween night revelers in a celebration which got out of hand.

The police efforts finally culminated in the use of tear gas. At some point in it all some in the crowd went wild to the point of smashing plate glass windows in business houses in the area.

Saturday morning the glass firms of the city were kept busy replacing the show windows in a number of downtown stores. The tear gas odor was still prevalent and it was strong enough to burn the eyes at mid-day Saturday. Hardly the kind of thing to encourage shopping.

We don't know exactly why things got so wild Friday night. We have had students tell us that they were in one club or another at the time things got out of hand. They were indignant that tear gas was used and individually they felt that they had done nothing to deserve such treatment. Individually we completely believe them, but for the general situation the argument that police used too much force has to be balanced against the fact there have been a series of troublesome evenings downtown over the past year or so.

We have no doubt that there were hundreds of young people downtown who wanted no trouble and wouldn't have gotten involved in window breaking or police taunting for anything. As always, however, the relatively few troublemakers were there. They did their thing and everyone shares the shame.

Many young people blame the city administration and the police for using tear gas and making mass arrests Friday night. They should remember, though, the city has been extremely tolerant in allowing the night club district to develop, hopefully as a place where young people could go for entertainment in relative safety. The result has been some wild nights both downtown and on the 'hill' on the campus.

We can only hope that somehow dialogue will develop so that the trouble makers will be neutralized. We don't think the city administration will bend on maintaining reasonable order downtown. Unless responsible leadership emerges among the young people to change things the night life will not continue in the downtown area. That will happen if for no other reason but because the student who doesn't want to get tear gassed, doesn't want to risk getting swept up in an arrest, and particularly doesn't want to be kicked out of school will simply not chance going to the area anymore.

We hope that the bottom was reached last Friday night and that this appalling situation can be gotten under control.

Real Fight Is Still Ahead

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Recent developments in the state's medical malpractice situation have bought some time, but have not resolved the dilemma.

Eventually, most authorities agree, there will be more bickering, likely another crisis, and some major reforms.

The legislative committee on medical malpractice will continue to work ahead toward that time. State Rep. Ernest B. Messer, D-Buncombe, chairman of that group, says the agreement by the St. Paul Company to write policies "only removes some of the urgency," but does not settle the issue.

That committee still plans to put before the General Assembly at its next meeting a package of reform measures hopefully designed to relieve the public pressures at work in the recent crisis which saw some doctors and some hospitals curtailing services because malpractice insurance lapsed.

Some Background
What are some of those pressures? Not all have surfaced publicly, and some are wrapped up in personalities and politics and attitudes about which few will talk openly.

Why, for instance, has the law in Arkansas copied almost word-for-word from North Carolina's insurance pool law, which is being challenged in court, working well, with even St. Paul participating cooperatively.

Why did North Carolina physicians delay chartering the cooperative insurance company of their own? Why has every move the insurance commissioner made come under fire from various quarters of the insurance industry, and why has that industry organized a public relations commission, and hired a Charlotte-based public relations firm to boost its campaign?

Why did St. Paul pull out of this state when the profit picture here is healthy and the real problem with hefty jury awards and need for sharply increased premiums seem focused in California, New York, and Texas, not North Carolina?

Here are some brief looks at this tremendously complex and confusing situation; based on a variety of sources, all of which do not agree to all of the conclusions:

Legislators held off turning the heat under Ingram as long as possible in order to encourage doctors to form their own insurance pool, an idea which many see as the best protection against future crises caused by another pullout by St. Paul.

Ingram held off a compromise as long as possible in hopes the doctors would set up their own insurance program, making the rate hike and claims-made change for St. Paul unnecessary; he still hopes the courts will uphold the re-insurance pool, and warns there is nothing to keep St. Paul or others from pulling out again.

Open Challenge
The insurance industry aims to get rid of Ingram, and is openly challenging him in every way it can; it dislikes his strong consumer orientation.

Some, including Ingram critics, are beginning to warn that public sympathy will swing toward the commissioner if the industry "keeps hitting him in the head with a hammer."

The doctors held off forming their own insurance agency in the belief that the malpractice crisis would force a special session of the General Assembly in which a variety of law changes favorable to physicians could be secured, including dollar limitations on awards, sharply limited times in which malpractice claims could be brought, and others which in effect would have curtailed the numbers of malpractice suits, amounts paid, and the liabilities of the physicians and other medical practitioners.

Some close observers see a particularly interesting confrontation developing. Physicians want to be protected by law from suits brought by lawyers, largely blamed for the dramatic increase in numbers of suits and in jury awards.

Such laws would have to be written by a General Assembly dominated by lawyers. It could be a most interesting battle. It is likely that the public would be used, again, to create the pressures to resolve the fight one way or the other.

INSIDE REPORT

Ford Peeling 'Big Apple'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—President Ford, astonished by fierce antagonism throughout the nation against any federal bail-out of New York City, has passed this private word to top officials: no federal help until after the city defaults.

Such hard-nosed obduracy may cast Jerry Ford in the role of Ebenezer Scrooge. But from the standpoint of practical politics, it puts him four-square both with his own party and the vast majority of American voters.

Indeed, Mr. Ford took pains to telephone Vice President Nelson Rockefeller ten days ago with friendly advice. Reading in Hobart Rowan's interview with Rockefeller in the Washington Post that the Vice President predicted "catastrophe" if the Big Apple had to default, the President gently admonished Rockefeller not to make things "more confusing."

Some high administration officials say that Rockefeller has pulled back from his electrifying break with the President. In his speech in Indianapolis last week, Rockefeller appeared to Rockefeller (saying he "completely agreed" with Mr. Ford that the city has to put its financial house in order before it gets help).

But that leaves unchanged the fundamental difference between President and Vice President.

Rockefeller wants the city to prove its future solvency by budget cuts before the December bond default deadline, then receive massive federal aid in the form of bond guarantees to avoid default.

The President's hardened position is exactly the opposite: only default can make federal aid politically saleable. Any federal lifesaving operations before default, he now feels, would be perceived across the country as a bail-out for rich bankers who hold almost 50 per cent of all tax-exempt municipal securities in the nation and, hence, would be the first to reap the harvest of federal intervention.

Evidence to support this is flowing into the White House. For example:

A poll of 1972 Republican national convention delegates from Western states, commissioned by the Western Conference of Republican Governors, came out 255 to 12 against federal aid to New York City.

Item: The bail-out issue has begun to dominate the regular nightly telephone polls taken by Albert Sindlinger's polling organization. At this writing, Sindlinger shows national anti-bail-out sentiment of more than 4 to 1 (and even in New York state, a pro-bail-out ratio of only 3 to 1).

Item: An offhand remark leaning toward federal bail-out by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, running both for the Democratic presidential nomination and Senate reelection from Texas, unleashed withering anti-Bentsen political fire at home. The strong pro-bail-out statements of the most popular politician in Texas, John B. Connally, have subjected him to hostile editorial attack. One well-informed Texas politician tells us: "New York bail-out is now the hottest single issue in this state."

Perhaps most telling is the way an anguished Congress, almost 2-to-1 Democratic, is pulling back from the sulfurous bail-out question. The President's legislative experts a month ago were worrying over what Mr. Ford should do not if but when Congress sent him a bail-out bill. Today, thanks to the natural force of politics, pre-default aid in any form looks unlikely with only five weeks (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

ROUGH TABLE. FINE FEAST

A great banquet has been prepared at a large city hotel, and as the guests come into the dining room they see tables with immaculate linen, finely wrought silver, and beautiful china. A few hours later when the banquet is finished and the guests have gone the waiters remove the dishes and tablecloths, and it suddenly appears that the tables are made of rough boards.

Human life is somewhat like this banquet table, very often beautiful without but rough, coarse, and primitive within. The most saintly characters sometimes have savage impulses of heart. It is not the original nature of man which counts, but what man has done with it to cover its primitive instincts and impulses with things that are beautiful and kind. It takes just as much effort and dedication to do this as to plan and create the graceful appurtenances of a banquet table.

Other Editors Say Rising Terrorism

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Assassination, kidnaping and other terrorist violence, for ransom or for political blackmail, have mushroomed into today's most pernicious "growth industry," according to two recognized authorities on terrorism.

The factors contributing to the recent global rampage are ably outlined in an article in the November Reader's Digest by Robert Strother and Eugene Methvin.

The chief factor is new technology in both weaponry and communications. Tiny groups now wield unprecedented weapons of destruction, as when five Arabs were arrested preparing to shoot down an Israeli airliner at the Rome airport with shoulder-launched Soviet heat-seeking missiles. And television not only provides a tempting instantaneous global audience for terrorists; it advertises their tactical methods and fosters imitation.

In addition, as the article notes, the post-World War II population explosion is now dumping millions of youths ready to blame "the system" for their rootless, unused lives on the international economy.

"Whether they come from the United States, Quebec, Japan, Latin America, Europe or the Middle East, these rebels invariably bear the "true believer" stamp," says the Digest authors. "Theirs is a fairy-tale ideological world of good guys versus bad guys."

Soviet terror schools teach their agents to exploit such social and economic dropouts.

One instructor quoted in the article told recruiters: "Go search for people who are hurt by fate or nature—the ugly, those suffering from an inferiority complex, carving power and influence but defeated by unfavorable circumstances. For the first time in their lives, they will experience a sense of importance."

Terrorism has had a shocking growth in the United States. In the last four and a half years the FBI has recorded 688 incidents of terrorist violence, ranging from bombings and ambush-murders to bank robberies, arson and sniping. In these crimes, 83 police and civilians died. The FBI has identified 21 terrorist violence, ranging from bombings, and ambush-murders to bank robberies, arson and sniping. In these crimes, 83 police and civilians died. The FBI has identified 21 terrorist groups, embracing an estimated 5,000 members, who are building clandestine networks to attack our society.

Ultimately, the only truly effective defense against terrorism must be intelligence, say Strother and Methvin. "Any effective counter-action must not only catch bombers and kidnapers but uncover and smash their elaborate support auxiliaries as well."

A Decline In N.C. Gold Fever

By MARY L. MYERS
Associated Press Writer
Gold fever seems on the decline in North Carolina.

Most banks report a decrease in their gold sales. "Our gold sales were fantastic when the program first started, but for the past two months they have dwindled," said Mickey Toutman, operations officer at Metrolina National Bank in Charlotte.

After 41 years of prohibition, Americans were free to buy, hold and sell gold as of last Dec. 31.

At that time, experts predicted the public would become entranced by the precious yellow bars gleaming from dealers, department stores and specialty shops. Authorities said people would rush to buy it—some anxious to get a piece in their hands; others for an investment or hedge against inflation.

But North Carolina doesn't seem to have borne out those predictions.

Although noting his bank has sold enough gold for it to be a profitable investment, William Crews, assistant vice president at Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. in Winston-

Salem, said, "At present, our sales are going slow to moderate." However, he declined to give the dollar amount of his sales.

Troutman said Metrolina, the first bank in the Charlotte area to announce it would sell gold, "didn't make a lot of money off it."

"But the publicity we gained from it was completely priceless," he added. "We made a lot of friends."

While noting that his bank didn't solicit gold buyers or advertise their service, Troutman said Metrolina used the program as a "public relations type of thing."

He said since Jan. 1 his bank has sold about 100 ounces which would result at most in sales of $1,500 for Metrolina. And that amount, he added, is believed to be the largest sold by any bank in the southeast.

Northwestern Bank of North Wilkesboro was the only bank contacted that did not report a current decline in gold sales.

"Our sales started out slow, but then picked up for the last three or four months," said Jim Redman, vice president of Northwestern's international department.

He added that his bank is now getting from five to seven gold requests per week, and about one or two of the requests usually result in sales.

"We have covered expenses and made money," Redman said. But he added that the program also brings indirect benefits to North-western another service to its customers.

But a spokesman for North Carolina National Bank in Charlotte said NCNB didn't go into gold sales because "we thought it was too speculative."

The recent fluctuations in the price of gold have proved to be speculative.

From 1934, a year after President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued the Presidential Order forbidding private buying of gold within the nation, gold remained at $35 an ounce until 1968.

But gold prices reached a record high of $197.50 last Dec. 30, while Friday morning's price on the London market was $143.50.

When asked if he thought gold sales will increase soon,

Entry Needed 'Soon'

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—The sudden and surprising departure of Secretary of Corrections David L. Jones from the Republican gubernatorial race underscores one of the more important facts of political life in North Carolina today.

The Republicans still have not come up with a candidate. With about a year left before the general election, time is running short. But many party regulars are still looking for the man on the white horse to come riding onto the scene and create order where now there is chaos.

Currently, the GOP has three or four potential candidates, but each has some distinct liabilities.

Secretary of Human Resources David Flaherty is considered an able administrator and personable man. But he was born in Massachusetts and he is closely tied through his job to the welfare programs that Republicans love to blame for the ills of the nation.

Secretary of Revenue Howard Coble has done little to attract attention during his three years in office except to sloppily fire some Democratic holdovers and become embroiled in a political controversy regarding Democrat Rufus Edmisten's tax reforms.

Secretary of Transportation Jacob Alexander began his government career as a member of the Board of Transportation. He hasn't had enough time in office to make much of a mark.

The Rev. Coy Privette of the Christian Action League has been meeting with some people who remember how he led one of the state's more smashing political victories of recent years when liquor-by-the drink was defeated in 1973.

But Privette's most recent political activity was working for Democrat Bill Hefner in the Eighth Congressional District in 1974. He has also endorsed some tax reform measures that probably would not help his appeal in a party primary.

Jones also had his liabilities, such as his fractured grammar and occasionally bizarre proposals like public executions. He was too much like the man in a plaid sportcoat at a formal dinner party to suit some influential Republicans.

And there were those who thought that lay behind his announcement last week. "He went to the county and district (Republican) meetings and nobody would talk to him. He saw the handwriting on the wall," said one party observer, a Flaherty supporter who asked not to be identified.

But another party man, who keeps in close touch with all sections of the state, said that wasn't so. "He had more grass roots support than anyone. I think it was just a personal decision." That observer's opinion is given credence by the fact that his preferred candidate has also dropped out of the race, leaving him neutral.

As was the case with the U.S. Senate race in 1974, the Republicans have found that many of their strongest potential candidates have decided not to run. Secretary of Natural

Nearly 200 Blacks On Ballots In Southland

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Nearly 200 black candidates are on southern ballots this week, seeking offices ranging from 14 county supervisor posts in Virginia to the governorship of Mississippi.

The Voter Education Project (VEP), an Atlanta-based group that works to assist minority political participation, says more than 400 candidates have campaigned for November's off-year elections in the South.

Louisiana led the way in total numbers with 180 blacks campaigning for offices including two state Senate seats and 36 House posts in last Saturday's primary election.

No racial breakdown was immediately available on that balloting.

The project says 156 blacks are seeking office in Mississippi, and 35 in Virginia in Tuesday elections.

The rest of the black candidates are running in scattered municipal elections throughout the South, the project said.

VEP Executive Director John

Lewis said, "There will be significant and long-overdue increases in southern black representation as a result of these elections, but the size of the increase will correspond to the rate of minority voter turnout."

"We have supported local voter registration and citizenship education drives" in Louisiana, Mississippi and Virginia, he said.

Many of the candidates are running for local-level offices — for example, 102 black candidates sought police juror seats in 39 Louisiana parishes.

However, besides the Louisiana Legislature candidates, the VEP said blacks are seeking 23 state House seats in Mississippi as well as 22 sheriff's offices, and the positions of state highway commissioner, state superintendent of education and governor.

In Virginia two black incumbents are expected to retain their state Senate and House seats, the VEP said, and black candidates are running for state treasurer and commonwealth attorney.

Suggests Could Enter Conflict

CHICAGO (AP) — Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz says Israel would seriously consider military action should any Arab nation enter the conflict in Lebanon.

At a news conference Sunday, Dinitz said his country is concerned "that our northern border with Lebanon should not become a border of confrontation," but he refused to speculate on what conditions would cause Israel to confront a third party in the conflict.

"A minority, in this case Christian, is being slaughtered by a Moslem majority and the rest of the world is apathetic," said Dinitz, here for the American Jewish Council convention.

and Economic Resources James Harrington is one of that group.

U.S. Rep. Jim Martin could have the nomination virtually for the asking, but isn't interested. The same could probably be said for U.S. Rep. James Broyhill.

In the absence of a recognized heavyweight, Flaherty's star is beginning to rise. But there are many in the Republican camp who are still hoping that someone—such as Charlotte's Charles Jonas Jr.—with a recognizable name will be coaxed into running.

They realize that it must happen soon. A successful gubernatorial campaign, even with the primary scheduled for August, takes a long time to assemble.

Find Rebellion In Skipping Church

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of people who used to go to church regularly now are sleeping through Sunday mornings, particularly among Roman Catholics, and a recently completed study indicates some unexpected reasons for it.

The final analysis of the data, which finds a 21 per cent decline in Catholic Mass attendance in the last decade, says the biggest reason for it is the continuation of the church's prohibition of contraception.

The report, based on information gathered by the National Opinion Research Center in Chicago, blames the maintenance of that ban for 48 per cent of the drop in Catholic church participation.

Another 26 per cent of the drop was blamed on the church's refusal to allow divorce and remarriage, while another 26 per cent was attributed to changing attitudes "toward the Pope as head of the church."

The study involved "full probability samples," says William C. McCready, a research team member who wrote the final report, and is more accurate than methods used by most polling organizations.

He says it also was designed to elicit information to get at underlying reasons why so many have quit attending Mass and behind what he terms the "upfront reasons" that don't reveal the roots of their motivation.

While the expected surface reasons turned up — such as loss of interest or lack of desire or ability to get to church — the report found that other causes lay behind the surface explanations — the birth control, divorce and papacy issues.

"These are not things that people answer in response to questions about why they aren't going to Mass," McCready says, but responses about their attitudes on the church's position on the other matters brought out that they are the underlying cause.

before the city's cash flow makes bond redemption impossible.

If the President sticks to his present course, there will be a clear winner inside his administration: Secretary of the Treasury William Simon, arch-critic of any federal aid before default.

Yet, no mood of triumph dominates the Treasury, where there is understanding of troubling questions that cannot be fully answered until after default. For example: with New York bankers predicting financial chaos if default occurs, would the country react in a psychological frenzy, rushing to redeem gilt-edged municipals in other cities and states and even making runs of local banks?

Simon's economic experts claim the evidence is to the contrary. A Maryland tax-exempt bond issue, for example, sold quickly last week at a comparatively low 5.27 per cent. The market in municipals generally has been good, undercutting the fear campaign of the New York bankers.

Moreover, Treasury men are confident of their post-default plan: a quick cash flow in the form of a federal loan to meet current bills.

Then, with the U.S. Treasury riding herd on the city's return to fiscal solvency and with the default itself acting as the catalyst for essential peeling of runaway costs (including city pensioners), New York City will be forced into a retrenchment that might be impossible under a pre-default bail-out.

Sticking to this plan over the next five weeks will not be easy. But given the hardened new mood in the Oval Office, there is no doubt the effort will be made.

"But, Comrade Teacher, if state planning commission tells Soviet farmers how much wheat they can grow, and they grow enough for everyone, what are we going to do with the American wheat?"

"Eat it, you Trotskyite. We are going to eat the American grain to prove to the United States that communism will get fat on capitalism's mistakes. Can we now discuss Sputnik?"

"Comrade Teacher, would it not be better to refuse to buy American wheat so they will be stuck with it and then they will have a depression and we can bury them?"

"Ivan, you ask stupid questions. If we buy American wheat the price of bread goes up in the United States and then you have depression and finally comes the revolution."

"But you said the United States has surplus of wheat."

"They do unless we buy it. Ivan, I don't want to send you to KGB office, so will you stop asking so many rotten questions."

"I'm sorry, Comrade Teacher. I was only asking for my mother."

"Why were you asking for your mother?"

"Because she said she couldn't give me any bread for lunch."

"Is nonsense that your mother couldn't buy bread when Soviet Union has had another bumper crop of grain. Let me see the hands of anyone else in the class whose mothers couldn't buy bread this morning. . . Put down your hands, you fools: Do you want to get us all arrested?"

"What should I tell my mother, Comrade Teacher?"

"Tell her what our great leader Comrade Lenin's wife said when she was told the people had no bread."

"What was that, Comrade Teacher?"

"Let them eat cake. "

Grocery Bills Steady During October

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Supermarket shoppers found over-all grocery bills stayed fairly steady during October, an Associated Press market-basket survey shows. Increases in the price of chopped chuck, frozen orange juice and butter were balanced by declines in the cost of eggs, hot dogs and sugar.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

During October, the market-basket total at the checklist store increased in six cities, up an average 3 per cent, and decreased in seven cities, down an average 2 per cent. Over-all, the bill at the start of November was about a third of a per cent higher than it was a month earlier.

The situation was similar to that in September when the bill also increased at the checklist store in six cities and declined in seven.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has predicted that food prices will increase about 9 per cent during 1975, compared to a 14-per-cent-boost last year.

The biggest price fluctuation so far this year has been in sugar. At the start of 1975, a five-pound sack cost about $3. Prices have declined steadily since then and now average about $1.40 for a five-pound sack.

If sugar is included in the total, the AP survey shows the marketbasket bill has declined since the start of the year at the checklist store in 11 cities. If sugar is not included, however, the survey shows the marketbasket bill has increased at the checklist store in every city, up an average of 8.5 per cent.

Among other findings in the latest survey:

—The price of chopped chuck increased at the checklist store in nine of the 13 cities surveyed. The biggest boost was in Salt Lake City where the price of a pound of chopped chuck went from 73 cents to 85 cents, an increase of 16 per cent.

The higher prices reflect the grain-fed beef that is coming to market. Earlier this year, much of the meat in the supermarkets — particularly for hamburger — was less expensive grass-fed beef which generally is leaner and, some people believe, less tender than the grain-fed variety.

—Egg prices, which had been rising in recent months, dropped again. The price of a dozen eggs declined at the checklist store in nine of the cities surveyed and increased in only one — Albuquerque, N.M. The price was unchanged in the other three cities.

—The price of a pound of butter increased at the checklist store in eight of the cities surveyed, reflecting higher milk prices.

—Frozen orange juice prices, which have stayed steady for more than two years, increased last month. The price of a six-ounce can of frozen orange juice concentrate went up at the checklist store in seven of the cities surveyed.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

No Negotiation Over Policemen's Slowdown

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Asheville City Attorney William Moore said Sunday night that there had been no new developments in the salary dispute with the Asheville Police Department.

Dissatisfied with the salary increase granted Thursday by the city council, the city patrolmen began a slowdown Friday morning answering only emergency calls and making few arrests.

Asked about the possibility of a compromise in the dispute, Moore said, "There can't be any compromise because there's no negotiation."

The city council has "made what they consider to be the best offer they can make," said Moore. He denied that he said the police would have to back down in their demands.

The city council offered patrolmen raises of five per cent to take effect Jan. 1, 1976.

The Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) is seeking a 10 per cent raise retroactive to Nov. 1 or a 15 per cent raise Jan. 1.

Meanwhile, there was very little activity at the police station — partly because of the slowdown and partly because local residents were making fewer calls than usual to the police.

Detective Sgt. W.L. Dillingham said the Fraternal Order of Police met Sunday "to keep rumors" down, but that there was no progress with the city.

He said additional representatives of the national FOP would arrive in Asheville today and would hold a meeting tonight to further discuss the slowdown.

"They are just going to advise. I don't know how long the slowdown will last — indefinitely, I suppose," Dillingham added.

He also said that only four arrests had been made all weekend in the city of nearly 60,000 and that none of them had been on Sunday.

In another development, the Asheville High School football game, postponed Friday night because of uncertainty about police protection, will be held tonight.

Sgt. Claude Waddell said there will be 18 policemen on duty at the tonight's game.

Held For 2 Ax Murders

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — A 59-year-old caretaker was being held in the Gaston County jail today after police charged him Saturday with the ax murders of a 44-year-old woman and her 42-year-old common law husband.

Charged in the double slaying was George Allen "Dusty" Biggers, who police said was a caretaker at a local textile mill. He is being held without bond on two counts of first-degree murder.

Belmont police Sgt. Charlie Flowers said he discovered the slayings shortly after midnight Friday when he arrived at Biggers' house just outside the Belmont city limits.

"It's the worst I've ever seen," said Flowers. "It looked like they'd been butchering hogs."

Flowers said Biggers greeted officers at his front door while lighting a cigarette and told them, "I chopped them all to hell."

Gaston County detectives investigating the slayings said Biggers told them he lured Jennie Workman, 44, and her common-law husband, Lester Lindsay, 42, to the house for an evening of beer drinking. He told police he began wielding the ax after each of them had consumed a couple of beers.

Carey Denies Favoring Bankruptcy Law Change

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey neither publicly nor privately supports changes in the federal bankruptcy laws along the lines proposed by President Ford to aid New York City in its fiscal crisis, says a spokesman for Carey.

The denial for the Democratic governor came after Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller said Sunday that both Carey and Mayor Abraham D. Beame privately went along with Ford's proposal to change the bankruptcy laws despite their vehement condemnation of his promise to veto any bill proposing a federal bailout to keep the city from default.

"The President is urging that the bankruptcy laws be changed," Rockefeller said on the ABC program "Issues and Answers," and later in an interview. "Gov. Carey and the mayor are urging it privately. Nobody wants to use the word bankruptcy for fear the word itself may bring it about."

A spokesman for the mayor confirmed Rockefeller's statement, but said it was part of a contingency plan to deal with consequences if worse came to worst and the city defaulted.

"We'd be imprudent if we didn't take the possibility into account," the spokesman said. "We're not blind to the possibilities of default."

A mayoral spokesman said later that changes in the bankruptcy laws were necessary and that the city has been providing technical assistance to congressional efforts to rewrite them. However, he contended that it was an overstatement to say that the city was "urging" the changes.

Ford said last Wednesday that he would veto any legislation proposing a federal bailout for the city to prevent default, but would instead introduce his own legislation to enable the city to file for bankruptcy and maintain essential services.

Asked if he thought Ford's tough position would hurt the President politically in 1976, Rockefeller spread his hands and said: "I don't know."

While reiterating that he did not believe that the city would default, Rockefeller said he agreed with his brother, David Rockefeller, chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank, that such a default by New York City "would have an enormous downpull on the economy of the country."

Ford has maintained that such a default would have a minimal effect on the nation.

Hunting Two In Cathedral Theft

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — An international hunt is on for two men who stole two sackloads of priceless church treasures from the Cologne Cathedral.

Police reported no immediate leads on the daring burglars who got into the medieval Roman Catholic cathedral late Saturday night by way of scaffolding for repairmen on the outside of the building, evaded electronic alarms and used nylon mountain climbers' ropes to make their way through air ducts to the locked treasury under the main floor.

They stole 15 church art works, including several golden monstrances, several jeweled crosses, a peace staff and eight bishops' rings. They also used garden shears to cut away gems from other monstrances, the jeweled vessels in which the consecrated Host is displayed.

Police estimated the value of the missing items at "several million marks," or the equivalent of $1 million, but a church official said they were "priceless treasures" hundreds of years old.

"No one can say how much they were worth," he said.

The objects were insured but for how much was not learned. The archbishopric and an insurance company offered rewards of $20,000 for information leading to the return of the missing items.

Passersby said they saw two men, about 30 and 45 years old, climb down the scaffolding from the roof of the twin-spired cathedral shortly before 1 a.m. Sunday. They were carrying bulging sacks.

The two men hurried away in different directions, but the witnesses did not notify the police until hours after the burglary was discovered. They said they hadn't comprehended what was going on.

From Temporary To Permanent

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — What started as a temporary summer job program employing about 30 area students has become an ongoing manufacturing operation.

The program began with the National Alliance of Businessmen-Junior Achievement Salvage Co., which rebuilt and sold wooden pallets to local businesses throughout this past summer.

Because of the operation's success, the Toledo Board of Education has incorporated it into its Jefferson Center for Vocational Rehabilitation — a program for young men and women who have not adjusted completely to a regular school program because of special problems or handicaps.

However, when the school term ends, NAB, in cooperation with Junior Achievement, plans to revive the company and take over the operation for the 10 summer weeks as it did last summer. The company will provide students, aged 15 to 21, with paying jobs and business experience.

"This is an excellent addition to our work-oriented program," says Richard Buchholz, Jefferson Center director. "At present, we have 11 individual training programs involved in more than 100 different manufacturing contracts."

Jefferson Center, which is funded by the federal and state governments "is in the business of creating employable young people who can contribute to the American system," he explains. The center has 45 professional staff members.

"This is no ordinary program," says Tom Rutter, vice-president of Junior Achievement Northwest Ohio, Inc. "These students actually operate electric power tools and heavy manufacturing equipment including air hammers, table saws, a banding machine and a five-ton truck."

The equipment was supplied by Jefferson Center and Junior Achievement.

During the summer program the company sold approximately 10,000 pallets — portable platforms for handling large quantities of goods in shipment or storage.

"We selected wooden pallets as our product for two basic reasons," says Ronald W. "Skip" Allan, Toledo metro-director of NAB on loan from his permanent job as a marketing manager for Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. "Demand for pallets is increasing, and considering that local corporations donate their broken pallets to us, material costs are relatively low."

Florence Peppers, 15, was the vice president of manufacturing and the youngest employee in the original company.

"I loved my job," she says, "and plan on coming back next summer. Being a vice president, responsible for shipping and receiving, quality control and production, was more work than I ever expected. I thought vice presidents just put their feet on the desk and relaxed."

Hershel Peppers, Florence's older brother, worked for the company until Florence fired him for being "too lazy."

NAB had structured the company much like any other, including a board of directors. However, while a part of Jefferson Center, there is no longer a corporate name or executive officers.

"The business experience these students get is fantastic," says William W. Boeschstein, president and chief executive officer of Owens-Corning Fiberglas and chairman of the Toledo area NAB.

"By working in these programs students develop good work habits, responsibility and proficiency which will help them in obtaining a future job."

A Second Life Begins As Retirement Starts

By JOY STILLEY

AP Newsfeatures Writer NEW YORK (AP) — When Alan Olmstead faced retirement three years ago he thought it was going to be "a death sentence." Now, at age 68, he says he has found it was "the start of a second life."

"I was scared to death. I never wanted to retire," the gray-haired, tanned former newspaper editor admitted in an interview. "All my life there were things that had to be done — a cow in the barn that had to be milked or a blank space on an office page that had to be filled."

"I was afraid I might not have the capacity to keep myself fit and active; afraid I might go sloppy in my routines, get lazy, lie abed late mornings."

As an antidote to these fears Olmstead resolved to keep some kind of form in his life, to put on a tie even if he wasn't going to make a public appearance, to spend time in his den in front of a typewriter, "whether I accomplished anything or not."

And what he learned, he reports, is that like many retirees with whom he's talked he is busier than during his working years.

One of the activities that filled up the first days at home was a diary, in which he recorded his daily experiences and sensations and aired "all my own petty affections, grudges and disaffections and things I really believed in." The diary has just been published as a book called "Threshold: The First Days of Retirement."

That threshold is one that leads into, rather than out of, Olmstead explains. "As you cross it you are looking forward to a new experience, though not an endless experience because, after all, the old stop sign is there all the time. But it is a new phase in life, the final phase — which is one reason for having as much fun with it as you can."

Olmstead, vital-looking and neatly dressed in checked jacket and striped tie, is quick to point out that he is not the typical "pensioner," a word he uses to describe his current status only because he dislikes it less than he dislikes golden age, senior citizen and other common terms.

"I am a fortunate instance, not a typical instance, but some of my experiences are typical and ring bells with others," he says. "The only flickering worry I had — which resolved itself — outside of the whole worry of whether I could cope with the state of retirement, was financial."

Not only is Olmstead now "having a ball" in his retirement, but he feels it would be even better if people could retire earlier than 65, to have more time to spend in their "so-called second life."

"It offers options toward completing and rounding out a life, enjoying the things you always wanted to do and never quite did, having time for questionings of yourself and reaching certain conclusions, challenging yourself to see if you have the ingenuity to devise new patterns of interest or extensions of old patterns of interest."

The former editor of the Manchester, Conn., Herald, who still syndicates a thrice-weekly column on state politics, suggests that those nearing retirement should seek possible openings and uses for their proficiencies.

NCCLU Names Award-Winner

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Civil Liberties Union has selected state Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, as the winner of the 1975 Frank Porter Graham Civil Liberties Award.

Smith, an incorporator and one of the original directors of the NCCLU, led a fight in the 1960s to have the controversial Speaker Ban Law declared unconstitutional by a federal court.

Smith is a former chairman of the North Carolina Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Early in NCCLU's history, Smith staunchly supported the organization's work in defense of persons arrested in civil rights demonstrations and the rights of segregationists and desegregationists to speak, associate and petition for redress of grievances.

For those using 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity monthly, the Duke charge would be down $1.99 from the $7.92 fuel charge now paid and the Vepco charge would be down $2.87 from the present payment of $12.90. Duke also asked the commission to include nuclear fuel interest costs in its fuel charge.

Males Won Queen Vote

By The Associated Press Traditional sex roles bit the dust in North Carolina last weekend as three males were honored in what had previously been homecoming queen contests.

In Chapel Hill, 21-year-old Delmar Williams of Huntersville was crowned the homecoming king of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill at the halftime of the Wake Forest-UNC football game Saturday.

Williams defeated 12 women in homecoming queen balloting by the student body. But athletic officials contended that a stipulation had been made that Williams would be homecoming king if elected.

After easily winning a plurality of the votes, the brown-eyed, curly haired senior accepted the traditional bouquet of roses. The first runner up in the voting, a woman, was named homecoming queen.

Meanwhile, in Raleigh, two men were jointly selected "Leader of the Pack" in what had been the homecoming queen contest at North Carolina State University.

William Clark III, a sophomore from Greenville, and Buell Little, a junior from Concord, were disguised as old men as they accepted their honor at the halftime of the football contest between the South Carolina Gamecocks and the N.C. State Wolfpack.

Talk Reducing Fuel Charges

RALEIGH (AP)—Fuel bills for Duke Power Co. and Virginia Power & Electric Co. customers could get a reduction in fuel charges next month.

The two firms asked the North Carolina Utilities Commission for the lower charges. Vepco said it had paid less for coal and oil.

For those using 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity monthly, the Duke charge would be down $1.99 from the $7.92 fuel charge now paid and the Vepco charge would be down $2.87 from the present payment of $12.90. Duke also asked the commission to include nuclear fuel interest costs in its fuel charge.

NEW YORK (AP) — Uncertainty over the potential impact of New York City's money troubles pushed stock market prices lower today.

Trading was light.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 5.83 at 830.21, and losers outnumbered gainers by about a 5-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

The decline came despite continuing favorable signs on the interest rate outlook.

A cut in the prime lending rate from 7 1/2 to 7 per cent spread further through the banking industry this morning.

And forecasts circulated in the investment community that a further drop to 7 1/4 might be in the offing.

But it appeared investors were reluctant to make any moves until they could get a better idea of what a possible financial default by New York City might mean, particularly for the economy's attempt to

Terror Bomb Again Explodes In London

By RICHARD BLYSTONE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — A bomb blast turned a lawyer's Mercedes Benz automobile upside down on its roof this morning, injuring the lawyer and two other persons, Scotland Yard reported. It was the third terror attack in London's fashionable West End in 12 days.

Attorney Richard Charnley, 34, who was just starting the car when the blast went off, was "a fantastically lucky man" to escape with cuts and a broken leg, a police officer said.

"The car was split in two," he added.

Scotland Yard said the other two casualties were not hurt badly.

The bomb squad chief, Cmdr. Roy Habershon, said the bombing at 9:10 a.m. in Connaught Square appeared "almost identical with" the one a mile away in Kensington on Oct. 23 outside the home of a Conservative member of Parliament with whom the late President Kennedy's daughter, Caroline, was staying. That bomb killed a leading cancer specialist who was walking by.

The bomb went off about three-quarters of a mile from an Italian restaurant in Mayfair that was bombed last Wednesday night, injuring 17 persons. There have been 11 such bombs since August, and two persons have been killed and more than 50 injured. The bombings are believed to be the work of Irish extremists who want to get Britain out of Northern Ireland and reunite the province with the rest of Ireland.

Refusal By High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to hear arguments that the murder trial of Dr. Jeffrey R. MacDonald should be held in Los Angeles instead of Raleigh, C.

MacDonald is charged with killing his wife, Colette, and his two daughters, Kristen, 3, and Kimberly, 6, in 1970 while in the Army and stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C. He is currently director of emergency medical services at St. Mary's Hospital in Long Beach, Calif.

U.S. District Judge F.T. Dupree Jr. and the U.S. Circuit Court in Richmond, Va., have both refused to order the trial moved to Los Angeles.

In asking the Supreme Court to review this decision, MacDonald's lawyer, Bernard L. Segal, argued that the doctor would be bankrupted by going through a trial in Raleigh.

Segal also said he would be unable to continue as chief defense attorney if the case is tried in Raleigh because he has moved from Philadelphia to San Francisco.

Ordinarily, the denial of transfer motions in criminal trials may not be appealed until after the trial has been held. Segal argued that this policy "does not require indifference to the interests of justice."

"Americans not only move their residences today more than ever before, but they move about the country on business and pleasure more than any nation at any time in history," he said. "The migration means an ever increasing number of persons who will be charged with crimes which were committed in districts other than those where they reside or will, by the time an indictment is returned, have moved their residence out of the district."

MacDonald was indicted last Jan. 24 by a federal grand jury in North Carolina.

Bangladesh Cuts Outside Contact

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Radio Bangladesh went off the air today, and the airport at Dacca, the capital, was closed, touching off speculation that the group that killed President Mujibur Rahman 10 weeks ago is in trouble.

Calcutta Airport received a message from Dacca early today that the airport was closed indefinitely. Indian news agencies reported that their teleprinter lines to Dacca were also cut this morning.

However, the Bangladesh government's representative in New Delhi, High Commissioner Shamsur Rahman, said the Calcutta branch of his office had received word the airport would reopen Tuesday.

Rahman said he understood that Dacca was calm and that no fighting had been reported. But he said he did not know why communications had been cut and the government radio station had gone off the air.

The last time Dacca airport was closed and communications were severed was on Aug. 15, when a small group of army officers killed Sheikh Mujib and installed Khondakar Mushtaque Ahmed, a longtime political ally of Mujib, as president.

Since the coup, the new government has loosened Bangladesh's close ties with India and the Soviet Union and established diplomatic ties with Pakistan and China.

Ahmed and his cabinet of civilians, most of whom served under Mujib, have been trying to consolidate their political position at home, but reports from Dacca have said there was still dissension in the army. The new president has been trying to improve the civil administration and has been firing government workers accused of corruption and jailing some of Mujib's close political associates on charges of nepotism and misappropriation of funds.

Only Memories Of The Beatles

PERTH, Australia (AP) — "Nothing is left of the Beatles now, only memories," said singer Paul McCartney, a member of the disbanded rock and roll quartet, at his first news conference in three years.

His ambition now is "just to be happy," and he said he is happy with his group "Wings." After a performance Saturday at the Perth Entertainment Center, McCartney said, "The good thing about this group is that it is new."

"It's just at the start of it's life. That's always the best time. The only worry is trying to follow the Beatles. When you're in a group called the Beatles and people see you in another group they say it's not as good. But I think it is. It is a progression. Everything in music is a progression."

The Greensboro area office of the Department of Housing & Urban Development has advertised for preliminary proposals for construction of 125 housing units in Pitt County under the Section Eight Housing Assistance Payments Program.

According to Joe Laney, local Housing Authority executive director, the Greenville Housing Assistance Plan includes 50 units of Section Eight new construction for the elderly and 100 units under the Section Eight Substantial Rehabilitation Program.

Under provisions of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, housing is provided by private owners who are responsible for tenant selection, management, and maintenance of dwelling units for lower income families.

Laney explained that private developers retain ownership in the housing units although management and maintenance can be contracted out to public agencies, such as housing authorities.

Under Section Eight, tenant families pay the owner an amount equal to 15 per cent to 25 per cent of the family monthly income and HUD pays a housing assistance payment to the owner the amount of the difference between the family contribution and a fair market rent.

At initial occupancy, at least 30 per cent of the families assisted shall be defined as "very low income" with income not exceeding 50 per cent of the median income for the area, it was pointed out.

More detailed information, Laney said, is contained in a developers packet which may be obtained from the director, Housing Production and Mortgage Credit Division, 2309 W. Cone Boulevard, Greensboro, N.C. 27408.

He said that builders and developers in this area who might be interested in Section Eight housing can contact him at the Housing Authority for further information.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

With the expected let-down following the East Carolina victory over North Carolina behind him, Coach Pat Dye turned an eye toward Virginia—this weekend's opponent. And he doesn't like what he saw.

"I'm glad to get the Furman game over with," he said Sunday, "but after watching Virginia on film, I might be wishing we were playing Furman again."

Dye had plenty of praise for the Paladins, a 21-10 victim of the Bucs on Saturday night. "They were just as good as we expected them to be. Our defense played well against them. Their losing (Larry) Robinson to an injury hurt them, too. They have a good football team, but I think if they hadn't hit on that 30-yard pass, we might have been able to keep them from scoring a touchdown."

Dye admitted that the Pirates were flat, but not as flat as they could have been. "I think we played with a lot of intensity," he said. "We were not as sharp mentally, however. We had a lot of busted plays."

The coach said he feels that East Carolina is now as good a team as there is in the conference. "And that includes Richmond," he added. "This is a good league this year. There are five good teams who could play with anybody."

"We got some fine defensive play from a lot of people," Dye said. "Harold Randolph and Harold Fort played well, and the entire defensive line did a good job. Cary Godette and Zack Valentine did a good job and Jake Dove was probably the best man we had on defense. Nick Bullock did a real good job at middle guard."

Dye felt that Mike Weaver had "another super game" at quarterback, and that Ken Strayhorn ran the ball well. "Willie Hawkins blocked well and I think our fourth quarter play showed how good we are."

In that quarter, East Carolina had 25 offensive plays, all on the ground, grinding out 125 yards in offense. Furman, in the meanwhile, had just three rushing plays in the quarter.

"I think our kicking game deserves a lot of praise too," Dye said. "Although Tom Daub didn't kick as well as he did against North Carolina, we covered the ball very well, holding Furman to minus six yards in punt returns."

The Pirates now turn their sights to another Atlantic Coast Conference rival in Virginia, and Dye feels that this may be a bigger challenge than North Carolina.

"They have a tremendous offensive football team," Dye said. "They may be better than Carolina. It's also their Homecoming, and of course, the connection between Sonny Randle and East Carolina. So they should be ready to play."

"But I'm not worried about our being ready, either."

"We've got to have a great week of preparation against them. Their quarterback, Scott Gardiner, is the best that we've seen. He's big and strong and has the speed to scramble and make the big play. They've also got two fine running backs and both of them should be ready to play against us. They have an outstanding offensive line, too, probably one of the best in the ACC," Dye said.

"It's not going to be easy, but it gives us another chance to play against a good ACC team."

As a sports writer, we probably have heard bands and recordings and solos of the National Anthem hundreds of times without really noticing. It's not that we are not patriotic, it's just that after so many times, it tends to lose some of its majesty.

But we must give a great deal of credit to East Carolina's fine marching band in its rendition of the anthem. It is one that we've looked forward to each home game as one of the most stirring versions we have heard.

Each time, the building of the music swells us, and we would like to publicly thank the band for making something we hear so many times as commonplace become once more the inspiring piece of music it is intended to be.

We hope they continue to use this version.

Richmond Only One Victory Away

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

Richmond's surprising Spiders are within one victory of the Southern Conference football championship in their final year in the league, but that might not have been the case had East Carolina Coach Pat Dye and his Pirates solved their "communication problems" sooner.

The Pirates were the pre-season choices to win the title, but they quickly fell out of contention in league defeats to Appalachian State's Mountaineers and Richmond.

A 21-10 victory Saturday night, however, boosted East Carolina to 3-2 in the conference and a second-place tie with The Citadel's Bulldogs, who were all but knocked out of the running themselves in a 22-17 afternoon defeat at the hands of Appalachian, 2-2. Richmond, which stands 4-0 with two games left, almost made a name for the conference, meanwhile, by three times taking the lead before dropping a 28-24 decision to Georgia of the Southeastern Conference.

In other nonleague action, Davidson's Wildcats won for the first time in six starts by turning back Kenyon 14-10, but William and Mary's Indians fell to 0-8 in a 24-7 defeat by Virginia Tech's Gobblers in the Oyster Bowl game.

"The team is beginning to understand that I have to coach and communicate in my own way," Dye said after East Carolina, 6-3, a week earlier upset North Carolina of the Atlantic Coast Conference 38-17 for the third of what is now a four-game winning streak.

"This wasn't the case last year. We had communication problems, but they are in the past now," Dye said at that time.

The Pirates, back in their basic wishbone offense, rolled up 321 yards on the ground in beating Furman, 4-4, with Keny Strayhorn leading the way with 105 yards and two touchdowns on 14 carries.

His 62-yard run on East Carolina's first play from scrimmage was equalized when David Whitehurst threw 31 yards to Tommy Southard for the only Furman touchdown.

But quarterback Mike Weaver, who had 81 yards on 16 carries, put the Pirates back in front with a two-yard run and Strayhorn finished off the Paladins with an eight-yarder in the final period.

"East Carolina is to be commended for not having a let-down after the UNC game," said Furman Coach Art Baker. Calling it a typical conference game—"very hard-hitting and very, very close"—Dye said he was relieved the Pirates weren't looking ahead to another ACC opponent this weekend, Virginia.

The Citadel, 5-3 over-all, went against Appalachian, 6-2, leading the nation in scoring defense but gave up 495 yards in total offense. Leading the attack was quarterback Robbie Price, who ran for 98 yards and one score and hit seven of 13 passes for 158 yards and another.

"Price had a super game running our offense," said Appalachian Coach Jim Brakefield. "He is by far the best quarterback in the conference. We made some mistakes but did what we had to do."

Coach Bobby Ross of The Citadel concurred, calling Price "tremendous." But he said "there's no getting around it, they gave us a good old-fashioned whipping. We had some breakdowns in our defensive scheme."

The Citadel had taken a 7-0 lead on Peter Bistran's 46-yard pass to Mike Riley, but Appalachian ended the Bulldogs' string of quarters without having given up a touchdown at 13 on a 76-yard pass play from Price to Emmitt Hamilton.

Gary Davis of Appalachian and Joe Sumrall of the Bulldogs traded field goals before Eavis hit a second to send the Mountaineers ahead for good. Price then ran for a score, and Appalachian added a safety to put the game out of reach.

"They moved the ball better on us than anyone else this year," said Ross, whose chances for a victory at Richmond this week were dampened by a knee injury to starting quarterback Gene Dotson.

Kevin McLee and Matt Robinson scored twice each and McLee's second touchdown with 9:58 left gave Georgia its victory over Richmond, which had held leads of 3-0, 10-7, 17-14 and 24-21.

The Spiders' John Palazeti had 130 yards on 21 carries and scored twice, while Larry Shaw hit 12 of 19 passes for 127 yards and two touchdowns. One was 12 yards to Palazeti, who also had a 27-yard run. The other was 10 yards to John Call.

"I thought our youngsters played better than to lose. We played well enough to win," said Richmond Coach Jim Tait. "If we could have moved it there at the end, we might have pulled it out."

Down 10-0, William and Mary threw a scare into Virginia Tech when quarterback Tom Rosantz scored from two yards out early in the final period, but the Gobblers quickly struck back on a 43-yard run by Michael Barnes and a 19-yard scamper by Phil Rogers.

Rosantz hit 15 of 27 passes for 192 yards with Joe Manderfield grabbing five for 88 yards. Roscoe Coles had 87 yards on 11 carries and Paul Adams 67 on 15 carries for Tech.

"I am proud as hell of this team," said William and Mary Coach Jim Root. "Our offense had a lot of big plays, but we just couldn't put it all together. The defensive unit played its best game of the year. Two big plays in the fourth quarter knocked us out of it."

Senior fullback Steve Stec scored all 14 points as Davidson finally found somebody its size. Stec ran four yards in the opening period, then won it in the last quarter for the Wildcats by scoring from a yard out and catching a two-point conversion pass.

Monday Is Tough Day To Fill For McCormack

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Eagles' Coach Mike McCormack says the toughest day before a Monday night nationally televised National Football League game is Monday.

McCormack's Eagles, 1-5 and in the cellar of the National Football Conference East, meet the Los Angeles Rams in a TV game tonight. The Rams, 5-1 and comfortably in first place in the NFC West, are at least a one-touchdown favorite.

"Monday is an extremely difficult day to fill," McCormack explained. "It's not like a Sunday when you're playing by one o'clock. On Monday, you got to wait until 9 o'clock."

McCormack said he would let his players sleep in, but the coaches would work a little on next week's game against the St. Louis Cardinals. The Eagles stay as a group at a motel near the stadium the night before a game.

"At noon we'll take the team to a movie in the hotel until about 1:30 or so, then let them rest until our pre-game meal at 5 P.M.," McCormack said. The Eagles' coach, despite the change in routine necessitated by a Monday game, likes the idea of playing in the Monday night TV game.

"Some teams are not on (Monday night) so that means somebody thinks you're a good show," McCormack said.

The coach is the first to admit, however, that thus far his team has been far from a good show. He is apprehensive as to how the Eagles will react now to their role of also-ran with a chance only to be a spoiler.

Will this team that McCormack accused of not giving full effort when there was hope, quit now that there is little to look forward to this season?

"I hope that's not true," he said. "I don't think so. I don't think I've got that kind of attitude."

"What it comes down to is pride. I know that's an overworked word, but there is no better term. Any athlete must have a little bit larger ego than other people."

"There will be 65,000 people in the stadium and millions watching on TV. If they don't have pride in themselves and their team, there is no way any amount of money will help."

McCormack is expecting the Rams to try to run the ball.

"They run the ball very well," he said. "They're not very fancy. They have six good running backs and they just take the ball and run, try to pound it in."

"What we have to do is get ahead and force them out of their game plan."

The Eagles are expected to have wide receiver Harold Carmichael back in the starting lineup after a one-game demotion. Carmichael caught two TD passes last Sunday in a 20-17 loss to Dallas. Defensive end Joe Jones, who missed the Dallas game with an injury, is a probable.

Roman Gabriel will quarterback the Eagles in his first regular season shot at the Rams since being traded by Los Angeles to Philadelphia after the 1972 season.

Petty Wins Bristol Run

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP)—Richard Petty has been winning races for years as if he owned the Fairgrounds Raceway in Richmond, Va., and the Martinsville, Va., Speedway, and now it looks as if he intends to take control of Bristol International Speedway, too.

Taking advantage of difficulties by his major rivals and his own skillful driving, the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing's first $1 million winner on the Grand National circuit made it two in row this year Sunday over the Bristol track.

Petty, from Randleman, N. C., took the lead for good on the 436th lap and coasted home a lap ahead of Chevrolet driver Lennie Pond of Petersburg, Va., in the Volunteer 500. Last March, he had won the Southeastern 500 over the same high-banked half-mile oval.

The $6,835 Petty picked up for his first-place finish pushed his earnings this year past the $300,000 mark with two races to go.

When Staubach Lost His Cool The Redskins Found New Drive

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Sometimes there's more to a penalty than just 15 yards. Sometimes it's the difference between winning and losing.

In Washington, it was a 15-yarder slapped on Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach for throwing a punch in frustration. "That's the thing that gave us the impetus," Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer said. "Roger just lost his cool."

And in the heat of sudden-death overtime, Staubach and the Cowboys lost the game, too. Kilmer and the Redskins, aroused by the incident and buoyed by the 15 yards it gave them, marched relentlessly to the Dallas goal line. Then, with 6:34 gone in the extra period, Kilmer himself banged over for the touchdown that gave Washington a 30-24 victory.

In Cincinnati, a desperate Ken Anderson was tearing apart the Pittsburgh defense with his passes, trying to bring the Bengals back from a 23-3 deficit which he had slashed to 23-17.

But with the Bengals on the Pittsburgh 14-yard line and oh, so close to taking the lead with less than five minutes to play, a holding penalty on Cincinnati tight end Bob Trumpy moved the Bengals back to the 35.

One play later, Mike Wagner made his second interception of the game and returned it 65 yards to Cincinnati's 18. That set up another Pittsburgh touchdown and the Steelers prevailed 30-24.

Bengals' Coach Paul Brown saw that holding call as the game's critical play. "There wasn't much difference between the champs and the chumps," he said, "except for that 15-yard penalty."

In Sunday's other National Football League games, St. Louis beat New England 24-17, Houston topped Kansas City 17-13, Minnesota defeated Green Bay 28-17, Buffalo edged the New York Jets 24-23, Miami mauled Chicago 46-13, Oakland crushed Denver 42-17, New Orleans beat Atlanta 23-7, Detroit downed San Francisco 28-17 and Baltimore beat Cleveland 21-7. On Saturday, the New York Giants whipped San Diego 35-24. Los Angeles plays at Philadelphia tonight.

Redskins 30, Cowboys 24
Dallas lost its chance to key Washington when Toni Fritsch missed a 38-yard field goal with 14 seconds to go in regulation play. But the Cowboys seemed ready to overcome that problem when Staubach began passing them into Redskins' territory.

Then came his fatal mistake—the one that dropped Dallas into a three-way tie with the 'Skins and Cardinals in the National Conference East.

He threw a pass just as linebacker Chris Hanburger belted him—and the wobbly ball was picked off by Ken Houston and returned to midfield. Staubach, angered by his error, threw a punch at cornerback Pat Fischer during the runback.

And with the penalty, Washington had the ball at the Dallas 35 instead of at midfield. From there, it was academic. "I just did a stupid thing," Staubach admitted. "The play was over."

Steelers 30, Bengals 24
"This game gave us a big lift," Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw said after he passed to Lynn Swann for touchdowns of 37 and 25 yards, then piled in from the one for what proved to be the deciding touchdown.

Cardinals 24, Patriots 17
Terry Metcalf scored on runs of one and seven yards from scrimmage and on a 69-yard sprint with a punt to carry the Cards past New England. Mel Gray's punt returns of 19 and 27 yards set up Metcalf's two short scoring bursts.

Oilers 17, Chiefs 13
Quarterback Dan Pastorini and wide receiver Ken Burrough hooked up on touchdown pass plays of 71 and 57 yards—but it was Bob Atkins, Houston's second-string free safety, who made the biggest play.

He picked off a Mike Livingston pass at the Houston four-yard line with less than five minutes to play and returned it 70 yards to the Kansas City 26, preserving the triumph.

Vikings 28, Packers 17
Minnesota, trailing 17-14 on two Packer touchdowns by reserve running back Barty Smith, rallied to win on Fran Tarkenton's fourth-quarter touchdown passes of 19 yards to John Gilliam and 10 to Chuck Foreman.

Bills 24, Jets 23
With a 23-17 lead, about five minutes to play and a fourth-and-one on the Buffalo 20-yard line, New York Coach Charley Winner decided to go for the yard instead of the field goal. It didn't work.

The Bills stopped John Riggin at the line, then took over—and less than two minutes later, Joe Ferguson clicked with O.J. Simpson on a 64-yard touchdown pass for the victory. Dolphins 46, Bears 13

Bob Griese passed for 288 yards, including touchdowns of 20 yards to Norm Bulaich, 79 yards to Nat Moore and 58 yards to Fred Solomon in Miami's rout of the Bears.

Raiders 42, Broncos 17
Denver had a 10-7 edge at the half, but was in trouble the rest of the way. Ken Stabler passed for two touchdowns in the third quarter and Pete Banaszak ran for two more in the fourth.

Saints 23, Falcons 7
Archie Manning heaved a 71-yard touchdown pass to Larry Burton to help the Saints give Ernie Hefferle, their new head coach, a victory in his debut against the Falcons.

Lions 28, 49ers 17
Joe Reed, subbing for injured Greg Landry and Bill Munson, threw two touchdown passes in the third period to carry the Lions past his former San Francisco teammates.

Colts 21, Browns 7
Bert Jones threw two touchdowns passes to lead Baltimore's offense and linebacker Stan White intercepted two passes, recorded three quarterback sacks and had 11 individual tackles to slam the door on Cleveland's offense, keeping the Browns winless.

Giants 35, Chargers 24
Craig Morton passed for two touchdowns and Joe Dawkins ran for two in the Giants' Saturday victory that handed the Chargers their seventh loss without a victory.

By The Associated Press
A second football coach in the Atlantic Coast Conference, Clemson's Red Parker, is hinting about quitting at the end of the season and a third, Bill Dooley of North Carolina, says he's not going anywhere.

"When time comes at the end of this football season, if I'm dissatisfied with the job I've done in getting our younger people to show some heart for the future, then I'll tell Dr. (Robert) Edwards (Clemson president) and Bill (Athletic Director Bill McLellan) — who are the greatest people in the world for support — I'll tell them I think we need a new football coach at Clemson," said Parker after the Tigers lost their seventh game in eight outings Saturday.

Clemson was beaten 43-7 by Florida State.

It was an equally dark day for all but two other ACC teams Saturday.

—Fourteenth-ranked Maryland lost to No. 9 Penn State 15-13.

—Georgia Tech trampled Duke 21-6.

—Virginia was beaten by Vanderbilt 17-14.

—North Carolina State nipped South Carolina 28-21 in the thriller of the day.

—And Wake Forest humbled North Carolina 21-9.

After North Carolina's conference loss at home, Tar Heel fans sang goodbye to coach Dooley. "I'm not going anywhere. I've got a good contact," said Dooley after his team fell to 1-3 in the conference and 2-6 in all games.

North Carolina is sixth in the seven-team league and has a season's record slightly better than last-place Virginia, which is 0-3 and 1-7.

Only last week, Cavalier coach Sonny Randle had said he would stay at Virginia until the end of the season unless told otherwise by his bosses. Before the season began, Randle had threatened to quit if he had a losing record. "I'll be glad to at the end of the season to share my feelings with you," when asked if he planned to resign.

A dejected Parker was taking the blame for the poor showing of Clemson, which had been the preseason favorite to win the league championship.

"I have done the worst job coaching our football team this year because I have allowed us to play every phase of the game as bad as I've ever seen," he said. "We have gone steadily downhill because we have no enthusiasm... and because we have not demonstrated enough character, enough fight and enough of everything I've believed in all my life."

Maryland, 5-2-1 in all games, remained atop the ACC with a 3-0 record while Duke, 3-5 overall, moved into second with a 2-0 mark. The Blue Devils, which do not play Maryland this year, can tie the Terps if they win over third-placed Wake Forest, 3-2 and 3-5, next Saturday.

In other games this weekend:

—Fourth-placed N.C. State, 2-2 and 6-3, visits powerful Penn State, 8-1.

—Fifth-placed Clemson goes to North Carolina.

—Virginia entertains East Carolina.

—Maryland will be at Cincinnati.

North Carolina State watched South Carolina, now 5-3, forge ahead 21-20 with 1:29 in the game. Then, with nine seconds remaining, Timmy Johnson piled over from the one-yard line for the Wolfpack's final touchdown. The Gamecocks dominated the first half and had a 10-0 lead at the half.

Maryland held a 13-12 lead with 8:38 in the third period, but Chris Bahr, who leads the nation with 18 field goals booted, a 40-yarder with 7:24 in the game to give the Nittany Lions their 14th straight victory over the Terps.

Clemson and Florida State entered their game 1-6, but the similarity ended there. The Seminoles led 29-7 at the half, and aided by four Tiger fumbles and two interceptions, easily won the contest.

John Zeglinski, who entered the game as the No. 8 all-purpose runner in the nation, scored all three Wake Forest touchdowns, the first tallies against the Tar Heels in five years. The game was 7-7 at the half.

Georgia Tech overpowered Duke by brute-force rushing, piling up 376 yards to the Blue Devils' 131. Although Duke never led the Devils were in contention, behind 12-6, going into the final 13 minutes. Then, Danny Myers burst over the right side, cut to the middle, then back to the outside to reach the endzone untouched on a 40-yard run.

Virginia, without several injured starters, had Vanderbilt worried at the finish. A pass interception at the two-yard line killed the Cavalier's final chance in the closing minutes.

She Wages One-Woman War On Drinking Drivers

By CHARLES C. HILL
Associated Press Writer
ALBEMARLE, N.C. (AP) — Marilyn Sugg is obsessed. She's been that way since her lively 11-year-old son was turned into a mass of broken bones seven years ago by a drinking driver. Now she sits on the front row in Stanly County District Court, watching. The woman who killed her son that hot August afternoon got off easy and she doesn't want that to happen again, she says. So she monitors court, examines documents and digs out information. And she gets results. Her probing was part of the reason the Judicial Standards Commission recommended that the North Carolina Supreme Court censure District Court Judge Edward Crutchfield for improperly approving limited driving privileges for two men who refused to take breathalyzer tests. That was the first time that commission, less than two years old, had so acted. Court officials can't recall a North Carolina judge ever having been censured. A highway patrolman discovered the two men were driving. Mrs. Sugg, 38, was in court when hearings were held; the men's limited permits were lifted but no other action was taken. After Mrs. Sugg complained to the commission, with copies to state court officials, the State Bureau of Investigation and the state Justice Department looked into the matter. The recommendation followed. Some of her actions antagonize. "I'm sorry if I've hurt anyone, but we've been hurt too. I don't have three children to tuck into bed anymore — I only have two," she says softly. Tears come to her eyes as she remembers her Mark D. — that's how the family refers to him — but so does fight and determination which carry her throughout the country. Mrs. Sugg talks to any group that will listen. She lobbies for legislation and writes letters to newspapers and court officials as she tries to satisfy a "horrible need" to get the drunken driver off the road. Her part in toughening drunk-driving laws can't be determined. But the General Assembly has passed, since her son's death, a measure which makes it unlawful to drive with a blood alcohol content of .10 per cent or greater. Her court monitoring and follow-up have resulted in several driving permits being taken away from people who had them wrongfully. And she says there are now more convictions for drinking drivers in Stanly County courts. "Superspy," as the diminutive woman is known to her remaining sons, is greeted frequently on her way to District Court. There she rapidly scribbles copious notes on cases involving drinking drivers. Each judgment and its circumstances are recorded. If she has a question about a point of law or why a certain sentence was given, she will write state or local officials. If she simply thinks something wrong has been done, she fires off letters to newspaper editors, with copies to parties involved. Mrs. Sugg says she attempts to personalize her campaign. "Statistics don't bleed, people do. If I can make them feel some of what I can go through every day..." A highway patrolman in traffic safety says it works. "She uses the tearjerker approach. And boy, can she bring 'em." He praised the international-award winning film she wrote and narrated. That film, produced by the North Carolina Division of Motor Vehicles, has been shown in at least 36 states. Mrs. Sugg takes it with her when she speaks. The film depicts Mark D. and a friend bicycling home after swimming. A careening automobile crashes into the youths, sending them sprawling into a ditch. Five days later, with five major bones broken, 100 stitches in his head and his leg split from the knees down to restore circulation, Mark D. died. His best friend lives, but corrective surgery he periodically undergoes will never eliminate the limp. Fearing that the state prosecutors wouldn't have enough time to devote to prosecuting the woman who killed their son, the Suggs hired private counsel. They were advised to plea bargain, that getting a driving under the influence (DUI) or voluntary manslaughter conviction would not be likely.

"If we had known then what we know now, there would've been no plea bargaining, the DUI charge would not have been dropped and we would've gotten out-of-town lawyers," Mrs. Sugg said, adding that she was so upset at the time that she did not attend the trial. The chronic drinker who had killed their son was convicted of involuntary manslaughter and given a $250 fine and a one-year suspended sentence on the condition that she not drive again for two years. Even though she had failed a .12 blood alcohol content breathalyzer reading, she was not convicted of drunken driving. Mrs. Sugg began her work shortly after that. "I just said 'Please God, help me. Do with me what you will.' He just plain took a hold of me and hasn't let go since," she said, adding that she has become much closer with God since her son died. One of her first efforts, aside from speaking, was when a source tipped her that the woman who had killed her son was driving again, a year after conviction. She reported it to state officials, who said she had been given her license back by error after one year. A hearing was held and the license taken away. Mrs. Sugg complains that the suspended sentence was not made active after the violation of a condition of the suspension. And two years later, when convicted of DUI in a separate incident, the woman was given a suspended sentence and was allowed limited driving privileges. She was able to receive a limited permit because the first conviction had not been for drunken driving. "I wasn't out to get the woman who killed our son, I was out to get the drunken driver off the road," Mrs. Sugg says. Mrs. Sugg says she believes in the system but that it needs cleaning up. "It's a shame that a private citizen has to sit in court to see that the law is being enforced," she says. "There is so much that goes on behind closed doors; so many cases are tried back there...There's a lot of money in drunken driving; the lawyer legislators aren't going to tie their hands in the courtroom with tougher legislation," Mrs. Sugg charges. The judges say they don't object to her presence in the courtroom, that it's a free country and the cases are being tried there for all to see. But that's all they'll say. In addition to tougher laws — "loopholes so big a drunken driver can drive through them" — Mrs. Sugg wants more prosecutors and more court time to handle the cases. Some resident of Albemarle, a town of about 12,000, say Mrs. Sugg whose husband, John, is a high school teacher, is a good woman with a good cause. Others say the issue is getting stale. "A lot of people in this town think that what I'm doing is wrong, but as long as God sees fit to keep on opening doors, I'll continue to go through them," she said.

More Watching On Fewer Sets

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Each year the national television audience increases. But something curious may be happening in viewing patterns this season. It seems that fewer TV sets are on, but more people are watching them. Question: Does this indicate that we've reached the point where television's bubble finally has burst and viewers are turning their sets off more this season than in past years? "I would hesitate to think that anyone could draw that conclusion," says Mike Weinblatt, NBC-TV's executive vice president. "I think it's probably more premature to know exactly what has happened. But I don't think people's tastes and interests change that dramatically." Still, NBC is so puzzled by the paradoxical drop in set usage and the rise in viewing that its top research man, Bill Rubens, is closely examining the audience-sampling methods of the A.C. Nielsen ratings company to see if anything's been changed from past years. Rubens says the number of homes in which TV sets are on during the prime evening hours dropped by four per cent in the first seven weeks of the current season, compared to the same period last year. At the same time, he says, "the proportion of people viewing is up by one per cent" to about 81,470,000 souls watching each night. "So there are more people viewing, according to Nielsen, in fewer homes," he says. Weinblatt frankly admits

"that at the moment we're unable to explain it." He says the number of viewers and sets in use in homes usually "follow the same trends." When one figure goes up or down, so does the other. "So to the research people, this (new development) becomes inexplicable when more people are watching in fewer homes," he says. Rubens says the heaviest drop this season for TV sets-in-use — five per cent — has come during the so-called "family viewing" hour, the heavily-sanitized first hour of network evening programming. Critics of the "family" hour, begun by the networks this season, claim it has caused programming so bland that it is driving viewers away from television during the early evening hours. Weinblatt, asked if the "family" hour actually is causing such viewer turn-offs, said "I think it's too early to know that. My own feeling is that I don't really think so."

Concern Over Competition To Enter Med School

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

Chris is the grandson of a prominent physician and dearly wants to become a doctor himself.

He has applied to 47 American medical schools, at a cost of $25 to $50 per application, but none has yet accepted him, although he scored high undergraduate grades at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Chris is a statistic in the grim annual competition for medical school entrance; a competition that is worrying many educators.

It can become dehumanizing, some warn.

It "may be destroying the idealism in some young men and women, introducing a great deal of cynicism," says Dr. Alfred Gellhorn of the City College of New York.

Whereas five years ago 50 per cent of all applicants were accepted in American medical schools, now the ratio is one in three young men and women applying for the 15,000 openings each year at the nation's 114 medical schools.

Those turned away must give up the dream of becoming doctors, or go to often inferior medical schools abroad. The pre-meds live with this knowledge all through their undergraduate schooling. It has affected the behavior of some to such an extent that some educators are talking about new, less competitive methods of handling medical school entrance.

Because of the fierce competition, some students complain of stomach ulcers, or of too many mornings when they hate to get out of bed to face another day. Scoring high grades in science courses is considered a must, and medical schools place heavy emphasis on a student's grade point average, or GPA. Many students believe they're lost without a GPA of 3.5 or better out of a perfect 4.

This tempts some to cheat on exams, or to sabotage fellow students by destroying an experiment—stealing a notebook or the like.

Dr. Norman Shumway, the renowned heart surgeon at Stanford University, blames "computer selection" of students at numerous medical schools for some rise in pressures, anxieties and potentially harmful competition.

"They feed in the GPA and scores on the medical aptitude or other tests, and the computer rejects everyone below a certain cut-off point. A sag in just one test score could eliminate a potentially fine future physician."

Computer selection "is a widespread practice," Dr. Shumway continues. "The five University of California medical schools do this. If they get 4,000 applications, they consider only 500 to 600, and the rest are automatically dropped. This is just not right. Not every selection is good. Some students in medical school should never be there. They don't understand their responsibility or opportunity.

"At Stanford, we have at least 5,000 applicants for 85 positions. You would think we could never miss. There isn't a system suitable yet for dealing with so many applicants."

Some medical schools, such as Vanderbilt where Dr. Shumway studied and where his daughter, Sara, is a freshman this year, don't insist on a GPA cut-off point, he says. "They look to see if the person has something interesting about him or her, what else they have done but study. They want the well-rounded person..."

"The GPA is a bad thing. The best information you can get on these kids comes from letters from people who have known them as they grew up. Those are more revealing documents than his having a 3.6 or a 3.8 GPA. Just what does that mean?"

Numerous admissions officers say they attach great importance to personal interviews through which such factors as motivation, compassion and interest in people can be assessed.

Students stressing the high GPA "are being fooled. It is no longer a numbers game to get into medical school," says a spokesman for the Association of American Medical Colleges. "Some who offer up the best grades are not being accepted. You can be a bookworm, but not well-rounded enough to become accepted."

He may be right, but nonetheless many pre-med students interviewed remain convinced that a high GPA is the Open Sesame to medical school.

To relieve the stress and anxiety on pre-med students, some educators favor a pass-fail system rather than numerical grades.

Families could reduce some of the anxiety by not pushing their children so hard to become doctors, and allowing them to make their own career choices, says one pre-med advisor at Yale University.

It has been proposed, seriously, that applicants be selected by some form of lottery or roulette, with the lucky winners getting into medical school, because so many who don't get in are as qualified as those who make it.

Some students hoping to get into medical school pretend they are not "pre-meds." One young man said it was a way to avoid possible sabotage. Another said pre-meds had a reputation for "being grimy" bookworms.

Maureen Reed of Redwood Falls, Minn., attending the University of Minnesota, says "I have a nice cover. I say I'm majoring in speech pathology. If you say you're pre-med, you're like a dime a dozen. Also, speech pathology could be an alternative career if I don't get into med school."

Students are frequently advised to develop an alternative to med school.

At the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, almost all students interested in medicine have an alternative, in chemistry or some form of engineering, says Dr. Bernard S. Gould, professor of biochemistry and an advisor for pre-meds. They have taken the basic science courses and can go in any of several directions.

"Here, the student's life doesn't depend upon getting into medical school," even though the acceptance rate from MIT is very high, Dr. Gould says.

Dr. Joseph Ceithmal of the Pritzker School of Medicine, University of Chicago, thinks the pressures on pre-med students will diminish in time.

Careers in other fields, such as the sciences, may become more attractive again. The number of college students is expected to decline, reflecting a past dip in the birth rate. If the economy improves, more young people may want paying jobs earlier, rather than spending long years in medical school and in training, Dr. Ceithmal says.

As it stands now, though, the admissions committees are more in the business of rejection than acceptance.

At the School of General Studies at Columbia University, New York, Mrs. Sylvia Bassoff is an advisor to pre-med students who are, in general, older than those at most other universities. Some 75 per cent have degrees.

Some are men and women whom she calls "prior rejects," those who missed out in their first applications to medical school. Now they are taking more courses, often including tough science courses, in order to try again.

"They are an amazing group of men and women. Some drive cabs on weekends to support themselves. Some of the women have children. We have three women who got into medical school who already had children," says Mrs. Bassoff, herself a grandmother.

As more mature students, they seem to help one another rather than being fiercely competitive, she adds. And some who try again do get into a U.S. school. Others go to foreign schools.

"If someone really wants to be a doctor, he or she is going to become one, in my experience," says Mrs. Bassoff.

Farm Scene

By KENNETH R. BATEMAN
Assistant Agri. Ext. Agent

Many tobacco farmers have had problems producing high quality tobacco transplants over the past few years. Now is the time to start your plant production program. Far too many growers postpone selecting, preparing and treating beds (methyl bromide) until the spring of the year. Quite often, weather conditions, including rain and temperature, delay activity, or jobs are completed when conditions (moisture and temperature) are not suitable. Many of these problems could be overcome if land preparation and treating were completed in the fall rather than postponed until late winter or early spring.

Good judgment in selecting a plant bed site is needed. Soil type, slope, available water supply, wind breaks and convenience should all be considered when deciding on a location for a tobacco plant bed. Soil type is important. A deep, fertile, well-drained soil that is high in organic matter is preferred. Poorly drained sites quite often drown during periods of heavy rainfall. Disease can be a problem in poorly drained beds.

Flood Alert On 22 Phone Lines

HONOLULU (AP) — Can a telephone call outrace a surging, destructive flash flood? Yes. "Hawaii has recorded an average of five serious flash floods a year since 1965," says Edward M. Carlstead, meteorologist in charge of the National Weather Service's office here.

The Hawaiian Telephone Co. provides 22 special telephone lines to remote rain gauges in the island chain to gather detailed reports on rainfall for the Weather Service. Timely, accurate readings provide warnings of possible dangerous flash floods.

Fire Retardant Sales Booming

NEW YORK (UPI) — The research firm of Frost and Sullivan says the market for fire retardant compounds is expected to more than double by 1983. With sales currently around $225 million a year, the firm says the figure should reach $570 million by 1983 because of consumer fears and a stricter federal crackdown under the Flammable Fabrics Act.

Find More Are Dining Out

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A study shows that more and more people are dining out, with the trend expected to continue in the years ahead. The study by Laventhol and Horwath found that one of every two meals is eaten away from home, with two of every three meals expected to be consumed outside home by 1980.

Nobody Will Get If Nobody Gives

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—"I tell them if nobody gives, nobody gets, and the need is so great there are waiting lists. But you are stopped cold when a woman says she wants to keep her eyes to see God when she gets to heaven." That's how Wesley Dixon, a 35-year-old medical technician, explains his unusual job. He tries to get relatives of dying persons to agree to donate eyes and kidneys for transplants.

WESLEY DIXON transfers human eyes from a donor to waiting recipient. (AP Wirephoto)

"Diplomacy and understanding is the key. Sometimes people yell and pound on the table in anger. I know how they feel," says Dixon, who works for the Illinois Eye Bank and the Illinois Kidney Disease Program. "There are better paying jobs, but few that cry out to be done like this one."

Dixon drives 1,000 miles a week in the Chicago area talking to families of persons about to die from disease or accidents. He has to be on the scene soon after death comes.

He said that at last count there were 102 persons in Illinois waiting for transplants of the cornea—the eye's lens—and 1,200 waiting for new kidneys, some of whom will die without transplants.

"There are 130 hospitals in the Chicago area and I visit all of them," he said. "I am available around the clock for hotline calls from hospital administrators, nurses or doctors. Sometimes I am talking to families in private hospital rooms at 2 a.m. And once there were 50 members of a family listening to me ask for a donation from their beloved one down the hall expected to die before dawn."

Dixon, a former Navy hospital corpsman, removes eyes himself and takes them in a special cooling box to the University of Illinois Hospital's Eye and Ear Infirmary. He may get 10 or 12 pairs a week. Kidneys are removed by surgeons.

"About half of the persons I talk to agree to donations," said Dixon. "Some say they can make no such decision for a dying relative, then turn around and sign a donor's card for themselves."

"I had a call from a nurse who said a woman patient was ready to undergo open heart surgery and wanted to donate any bodily tissue if she did not survive the operation. I went out and had her sign a donor's card. She died."

Dixon calls himself a "transplant coordinator" and has been on the job three years. He said

2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—We suggest a stab at three no trump. Partner must have quite a fair hand to respond two clubs and then support your suit. It looks as if you might be able to run the diamond suit for six tricks, and the lead into one of your major-suit kings is likely to present you with a seventh trick. It is not unreasonable to expect your combined holdings to produce two more tricks.

The bidding has proceeded:

Pass 1 ♦ Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Bid two clubs. Neither your spade holding nor your hand is strong enough to justify converting partner's takeout double to penalties. Just be thankful that you have a suit as good as four to the queen to bid.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—One no trump. You have a dead minimum and a balanced hand, so a rebid in no trump at the lowest level is the most descriptive bid. It is folly to rebid your weak five-card minor suit, and you should avoid raising partner with three trumps if there is a sound alternative available.

What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. You have just run out of bids. Despite your minimum spade rebids, partner steadfastly refused to let you play the hand at a spade contract. You can be sure that his suit is at least as good as yours, probably better, and that his support for spades is nowhere near as good as yours is for hearts.

What do you bid now?
A.—Four spades. It is true that partner's raise wasn't forcing and, in theory, you have about as little as possible for your original response. However, your hand is considerably improved by the fact that you and your partner have a fit in two suits, which increases significantly the playing strength of your holding.

When should you double—for penalty or for take-out? Charles Goren explains all about doubling in his latest book. For a copy, write to "Goren's Doubles," c/o this newspaper, P. O. Box 259, Norwood, New Jersey 07648. Enclose $1.25 in cash or checks, payable to NEWSPAPER-BOOKS.

What do you bid now?
A.—Two diamonds. Your strong intermediate cards and excellent distribution suggest a jump shift, but you should recognize the danger that a substantial part of partner's values might be in clubs, which would be useless to you. If partner cannot move over two diamonds, you are unlikely to have a game.

What do you bid now?
A.—Four diamonds. Partner has made a "reverse" bid, showing a hand worth some 19 points, so you may have slam. A strong bid is in order to advise partner of this, and a mere preference to three diamonds would not do justice to your support for his first-bid suit.

Possible Boon To Consumers

RALEIGH (AP)—A little-noticed ruling by the North Carolina Supreme Court could be a boon to misled consumers.

The decision clearly established consumers' right to collect triple actual damages if they have been hit by unfair and deceptive trade practices.

"It can be a powerful weapon for the consumer," said Don Davis, a former assistant attorney general with the Consumer Protection Division of the state Department of the Justice.

Davis, now in private law practice, filed a friend of the court brief on the case while with the department. He said that while the law providing for triple damages had been on the books since 1969, it had not been supported by North Carolina court decisions.

"The court, essentially, is saying this law, a consumer protection law, is for real, it means what it says it means and it will be enforced," he said. Davis predicted that more cases will be brought under the statute as a result of the decision.

The Supreme Court's decision came in a case in which a Washington, N.C. man bought a used car in 1971 under the impression it had one previous owner and that the warranty was still in effect.

After it was shown that there had been two previous owners, that the warranty was no longer in effect and that the odometer had been turned back, a jury awarded him $600.

Loud Mouth Can Affect Voice

CHICAGO (UPI) — A loud mouth child may end up with a hoarse, raspy voice, says the Journal of the American Medical Association. A child who talks incessantly and shouts people down can develop nodules on his vocal cords. The publication said the screaming child often is more immature and less able than his peers to handle stressful situations.

Savings Rise In China Province

HONG KONG (UPI) — The number of new savings accounts opened at banks in Chengtu, capital of China's Szechuan Province, during the first six months of 1975 totaled 40,000, a Chengtu Radio report said.

Jackie Fights To Save Show

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jackie Cooper was in a fighting mood, aiming his jabs at television critics, the networks and "The Family Hour."

His attitude was natural; he is battling for the survival of his new television series, "Mobile One." The odds seem long, but it's his best bet to beat against Cooper. After spending all but three of his 54 years in show biz world, he is a master of the art of survival.

Last week, ABC moved the series from Friday to Monday nights, which Cooper fears might be shifting from frying pan to fire.

"Our show had an impossible spot on Friday," he said. "We were up against not one, but three shows that have been in the top five — 'Sanford and Son,' 'Chico and the Man' and 'M-A-S-H.'"

"But is Monday going to be any better? We'll be facing the powerhouse of 'Rhoda' and 'Phyllis' in the East and 'All in the Family' on the West Coast. We go on before the football game back there and afterward cut out here. And after three weeks we'll be pre-empted."

"Even with that competition, we managed to get a 20 to 22 per cent share of the audience on Friday. But if we can't start building on Monday, gaining more audience each week, we'll go down the tubes."

Cooper is enough of a realist

Horse, Pony Club Project

Young people ages 9-14 with an interest in learning more about horses and horsemanship have an opportunity to become a member of a horse and pony club. The group will be a project club of Pitt County 4-H and will be led by volunteers, Mrs. Diane Krage and Mrs. Ilse Hendrix.

The club will have their first meeting on Tuesday evening, November 18, 7-8:30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Diane Krage. Mrs. Krage's residence is located on County Road No. 1726, just off the Washington Highway. (1726 intersects U.S. 284 east of Greenville just east of Pinewood Memorial Park Cemetery.) The Krage residence is on the left approximately ¼ miles down 1726.

The club will have regular meetings with the purpose of learning more about horses and the fun of horsemanship. The goals are to train young people in good horsemanship techniques while teaching them responsibility, pride, leadership, and good sportsmanship.

For further information contact Mrs. Krage at 752-2584 or Mike Davis, 4-H Co-ordinator at 758-1196.

Can Learn With Music Makers

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Parents and older brothers and sisters can use music to help younger children learn basic skills, say Extension specialists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

They recommend the sound of bells, voices, hollow blocks, drums and moving wheels as noises that intrigue most children and encourage them to do tricks and move rhythmically while listening.

More Beef In American Diet

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Americans are eating more beef than ever before, says John Hopkin, head of the agricultural economics department at Texas A and M University here. The average consumption in 1974 was 117 pounds per person, a new high, he said. He said a new record of more than 120 pounds per person is predicted for this year.

Gray Flannel Back In Vogue

NEW YORK (AP) — Gray flannel suits are back in vogue as an establishment business uniform, notes men's fashion expert Biwl Galle in the 25th anniversary issue of the Signature magazine, thus completing a full circle that began in 1950 when the "dressed-down" look of gray flannel was first introduced.
