

New Ford Team To Keep Old Policies

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is changing personnel but not policy, declaring a new team of "my guys" will continue on a course of peace and prosperity into the 1976 campaign.

Ford announced the biggest shakeup of his administration Monday night in the top levels of defense and foreign policy. He also said that while Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller is dropping off the election team, Rockefeller has promised to support his election bid. Ford told a nationally broadcast news conference that he isn't worried about Ronald Reagan or any other challenger and that he is optimistic about the election one year away.

"I am not worried about any competitor, Democratic or Republican," he said. "I am convinced the American people feel that we have been successful in foreign policy, the Middle East, Europe, et cetera.

"I am convinced that we are well on the road to a good economic situation in 1976. So, when you combine peace and prosperity, any incumbent president ought to be very happy."

The personnel changes included:

—James R. Schlesinger, who has frequently disagreed openly with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger over detente with the Soviet Union, is out as secretary of defense. He will be replaced by Donald Rumsfeld, now White House staff chief. Sources close to Ford say Rumsfeld will balance Kissinger's influence and that both will have equal access to Ford, though Pentagon officials say Rumsfeld will have to assert himself early to avoid being dominated by Kissinger.

—William E. Colby is fired as head of the CIA, to be replaced by George Bush, former Texas congressman, Republican national chairman, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and now U.S. representative in Peking. Ford said Colby has done

Old Hospital To Be Used For County Office Space

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners yesterday voted to turn the present Pitt Memorial Hospital building into county office space when the new hospital facility now under construction is occupied in late 1976 or early 1977.

Commissioners have for some time been considering what use to make of the building when it is vacated. Yesterday they authorized a space study by ECU's Regional Development Institute to determine the needs of the various county departments and agencies. From that information the board will plan which governmental agencies will occupy the old hospital facility.

Commissioners also authorized the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority to enter into a contract for a study to formulate long range development plans for the airfield, and instructed county manager Reginald Gray to secure quotes on the costs of professional liability insurance for board members and county employees.

The board appointed commissioner Ed Warren as the county's representative on the area health systems agency and named Richard Johnson and Ruth Staton as the county's minority representatives to the Mid-East Commission, as recommended by minority organizations.

Commissioners, after reviewing bids from several banks, accepted a proposal from Wachovia Bank and Trust company to handle the county's accounts for a one-year period.

Under the agreement—designed to produce the highest yield (interest) on idle checking account funds—all funds in excess of $25,000 in the county's checking account will be invested in a savings account each day at 5 per cent interest. In addition, money deposited in the county's checking account will be invested from 12 noon each Friday until 12 noon on Monday.

Wachovia—free of charge—will provide all county checks, reconcile all accounts, store excess food stamps, furnish a safety deposit box, provide night depository service, and insert county tax notices and place postage on county tax notices

(with the county paying for postage), as well as provide other free services.

Gray told commissioners that according to the Local Government Commission, Pitt's interest earned on investments is currently the highest in North Carolina when compared on a tax-rate basis.

In other action yesterday, the board adopted a resolution that will lead to a new communications center for the sheriff's department, county fire departments and rescue squads.

Funds for the two-position radio console which will serve as the nucleus for the system will include 95 per cent federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration money and 5 per cent county matching dollars.

The center will provide a central dispatch facility for

Recommending Hospital, Med School Tie-In

The Educational Planning, Policies and Programs committee of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors yesterday voted to recommend to the full board an affiliation agreement under which Pitt Memorial Hospital will become the prime clinical teaching facility for the ECU School of Medicine.

UNC president William Friday said this morning that the proposed agreement will be submitted to the full board for action when it meets in Greensboro on November 14.

The affiliation agreement, finalized last week, was worked out during a series of meetings that involved the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, hospital trustees, practicing physicians in the Greenville area, ECU medical school officials, UNC administration staff officials and members of the Board of Governors' planning committee, according to Friday.

Pitt hospital administrator Jack Richardson said this morning that approval by the Board of Governors will mean

"all of our work has come to fruition. As best as we can determine from this agreement and the spirit of cooperation, this gives us a document so we can go forward and provide the services needed by the medical school."

Richardson said five basic principles are guaranteed by the affiliation agreement, including "local administrative control of the hospital; an open medical staff; it guarantees the rights and privileges of physicians; provides for the state to assume educational, staff and construction costs . . ." involved in the teaching program; "and non-duplication of expensive health care facilities."

Richardson noted too, that medical school officials "feel the document will meet the requirements for accreditation," and will enable the school to move forward.

The agreement, according to Richardson, provides that three of the seven-member executive committee of the hospital's board of trustees be from the

Southside Housing Units Construction Is Okayed

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved the construction by the Housing Authority of 117 units in the Southside urban renewal area.

The executive director of the Authority, Joe Laney, told commissioners Monday night that HUD had reconsidered its earlier directive to have the local Authority build half of the units in Southside and the other half on a site in the Meadowbrook area.

The Authority, after getting the approval to put half of the units in Southside, requested HUD to take another look at the project and pointed out the advantages of building all 117 of the housing units in the Southside area.

Laney said that the Authority explained to HUD that utilization of only half of the Southside site would increase acquisition costs and result in increased maintenance and administrative costs with the operation of two separate housing sites. In addition, it was pointed out that Southside is within walking distance of Pitt Plaza and Evans Park. The new middle school is also planned within walking distance of the site.

The site in Southside is located on the extreme eastern boundary of the renewal area and is situated between Evans and Greene Streets and 16th and Elk Streets. Some 20 acres are contained in the proposed site.

Laney explained that HUD asked that the Authority indicate its intention to achieve a good racial balance in the new project and he noted that the Authority had planned to work towards that goal from the beginning.

Commissioners approved a resolution stating the intent of the Authority to take affirmative action to achieve a reasonable racial mix in the new housing development.

In other business last night, commissioners gave their approval to the new amended

Little Change Offered In New VEPCO Retail Rates

At its next meeting on November 11, the Greenville Utilities Commission will give consideration to adoption of retail electric rates recently adopted by the North Carolina Utilities Commission for Vepeco's retail customers, according to Director Charles Horne.

The new retail rate schedules, effective for Vepeco retail customers beginning October 22, 1975, are only slightly different from the temporary Vepeco rates approved in January, Horne said. The structure of the rates is consistent with the most recent rulings adopted by the state General Assembly.

Horne said the adoption of the new rates would not appreciably increase or decrease revenues to GUC. In March, GUC adopted the tentatively approved Vepeco rates. Because of the change in computing the fossil fuel charge, there is no exact way to compare the two rates, however, except on a month to month basis.

Horne said, "It appears that retail rates, for the average user, may increase in the order of five per cent, or less, depending on the time of year and fossil fuel charge used to calculate the comparison. For commercial and industrial customers, the rates would be almost the same, but in some cases, three to five per cent less, depending on the comparative fossil fuel charge and load factor.

The new rates are different from the previous rates in several ways, according to Horne:

—The new residential rates will have a $5.25 "basic facilities charge," which is the minimum monthly bill;

—The steps in each rate schedule for energy will include fuel cost, nuclear as well as fossil fuel, based on a much higher level of cost than the old schedule;

—The new unit costs for energy will be reviewed by the N. C. Utilities Commission each month. If Vepeco's total cost of fuel declines or increases, the rates will be adjusted up or down;

—The automatic fuel adjustment feature has been eliminated;

—The Commission also approved for Vepeco a temporary 12-month adjusting fuel charge of 0.224 cents per kilowatt-hour, which would provide for adjustment of Vepeco's old fossil fuel charge to the new charge formula required by the Commission.

"The GUC has, since 1971, endeavored to maintain retail electric rates competitive with those of the private power company serving this area," Horne said, "Continuing this practice, and at the same time paying the extremely high wholesale cost imposed upon GUC since February, 1975, may reduce the amount of dollars needed by GUC to operate, maintain and extend electric facilities in its area.

"However, negotiations are being conducted and there is some hope that the wholesale power rate, approved by the Federal Power Commission, will be something less than is currently being paid," according to Horne.

"GUC is faced with a major expansion program to convert from 34,000 volt

WHERE'S CANNON?

Henry King's "Sketches of Pitt County," published in 1911, has a picture on Page 105 of the Old Brickell Cannon, said to be one of the cannons with which Joseph Brickell armed his trading vessels about 1797 for defense against French encroachments on American commerce. At the time the book was written, the cannon was in "the cemetery." Does this cannon still exist, and if so, in which cemetery? I would like very much to see it. And it would be nice if the city or some historically minded group could move it to the Greenville Town Common for our Bicentennial celebration in 1976. W. N.

Mayo Allen, Director of the Greenville Public Works Department, which is responsible for the upkeep of Greenville cemeteries, says the only cannon he knows about in any Greenville Cemetery is one in Cherry Hill, on S. Pitt Street which is said to be of the Civil War era. If any of our readers has any further information about the Brickell cannon, we would be happy to pass it on.

Light Turnout

Voter turnout in the seven municipalities in Pitt County that are electing their town officials today was relatively light this morning in relation to the number of registered voters.

By 10 a. m. today, only 146 voters had visited the polls in Bethel out of a registration of 760 while Winterville had voted 50 out of a registration of 703.

Simpson, with a registration of 198, had voted nearly a third of its potential with 60 reported at 10 a. m. Grifton had voted 114 out of 922 on the books and only 13 out of a potential 62 voters in Falkland had cast their ballots when contacted.

In Ayden, voting activity was also light with approximately 100 persons, a fragment of the 1,689 registered voters, visiting the polls by 10:30 a. m.

Grimesland had voted slight registration by 10:30 as 60 persons were recorded out of 178 potential voters.

Patricia Hearst Hearing Today

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A hearing on the mental competence of Patricia Hearst could spur a swift trial date or delay proceedings indefinitely for the newspaper heiress.

Miss Hearst was scheduled to appear at the hearing today before U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter, who will issue the ruling on her competence to stand trial on charges of taking part in a bank robbery while she was a fugitive with the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Attorneys for Miss Hearst, who has not yet entered a plea, said she would not take the witness stand.

Carter said in recent out-of-court comments that Miss Hearst probably was competent to proceed. His final ruling will be based on reports from three psychiatrists and a psychologist who examined her at the San Mateo County Jail.

It was uncertain whether a final ruling on her mental condition would be made at today's hearing. Defense and prosecution attorneys, who have read Miss Hearst's psychiatric reports, are expected to argue their views on her mental competence. The judge could then take the matter under study or could issue an immediate decision.

A ruling that Miss Hearst is mentally competent could mean the swift setting of a trial date, perhaps this year. She also would be required to enter a plea.

A decision that she is incompetent could delay proceedings indefinitely while she received treatment in a mental hospital.

Carter spent two hours meeting privately with defense and prosecution attorneys Monday to set "ground rules" for today's hearing. He reportedly requested legal arguments not only on Miss Hearst's mental state but also on how soon her trial must begin in order to fulfill provisions of the new Federal Speedy Trial Act.

The 21-year-old Miss Hearst last appeared before Carter on Sept. 23 with a different team of attorneys representing her. They sought her release on bail and said she had been brainwashed and tortured by the SLA. Carter revoked bail for Miss Hearst until he decided on her mental condition.

Asked about Miss Hearst's condition Monday, her new attorney, F. Lee Bailey, said she was in "good" spirits, "improved" from his previous visits with her.

But Bailey predicted that her trial on federal bank robbery charges would not begin until 1976. The government was pressing for the trial to begin by Dec. 27.

"If the judge told me to start the trial tomorrow, I could do it," Bailey said. "But I wouldn't like it."

Bailey's partner, Albert Johnson, has said the defense team devoted so much of its time to the psychiatric question that there hasn't been time to prepare Miss Hearst's defense case.

Miss Hearst was kidnapped by the SLA on Feb. 4, 1974, but she later professed allegiance to the SLA and allegedly took part in an SLA robbery of the Hi-Bernia Bank branch here in April 1974 and other crimes. She was captured Sept. 18.

City Counts Business Manager And 3 Accidents ECU Comptroller Named

An estimated $2,775 property damage resulted from three collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported $1,000 damage resulted from a 3:56 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive 75 feet South of the Pine Street intersection involving a car driven by Michael Glenn Pollard of Route 6, Greenville and a parked auto owned by James William Tadlock of Greenville.

No charges were made by police who estimated damage at $500 to each of the cars.

Again no charges were reported following investigation of a 7:37 a.m. mishap on Third Street, 500 feet West of the Beach Street intersection.

Police reported a car driven by Rebecca Wagner Ward of 207 North Elm St. collided with a parked car owned by Joseph P. Gano of Edenton.

Damage was estimated at $950 to the Ward car and $350 to the Gano vehicle.

Robert Lynn Spivey of Route 1, New Bern was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 9:15 a.m. mishap on Memorial Drive 172 feet South of the Fifth Street intersection.

Police identified the driver of the other car as Arthur Clayton Daniels of Route 5, Greenville, and estimated damage at $300 to the Daniels auto and $175 to the Spivey car.

COLLEGE COSTS
NEW YORK (UPI) — Costs of sending a child to college this fall are up from 5 to 7 per cent from last year, the Life Insurance Marketing and Research Association says. The cost at a private institution rose $280 to an average $3,432, and at a state college, $107 to $1,587.

Julian R. Vainwright has been appointed business manager of ECU and Alex White named comptroller of the university.

Both Vainwright and White are veteran officials of the ECU business office.

Their appointments were announced by C.G. Moore, Vice Chancellor for Business Affairs.

Vainwright, 43, has been assistant to the business manager since July 1, 1970, and White, 53, has been director of accounting and budget since the same date. Vice Chancellor Moore said the new positions will reflect the broader scope of duties and responsibilities of the two officials.

Vainwright, a native of Farmville, received the A.B. and MA degrees in business administration from ECU and has been on the staff of the ECU business office since 1959.

White, a native of Edenton, has been on the ECU business staff since 1949. He holds the B.S. degree in commerce, with a major in accounting, from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

Both Vainwright and White are veterans of service in the U.S. Air Force.

Ordered End Animal Welfare Violations

ATLANTA, Ga. — A Fayetteville, N.C., animal dealer has been ordered by a federal administrative law judge to "cease and desist" from violations of the Animal Welfare Act.

J. L. Joyner, owner of Twin Oaks Kennels in Fayetteville, had been charged by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) with shipping puppies in poor health without proper forms and identification — a three-count violation. The charges concerned his former business, Pitco Kennels, Greenville, N.C., but the judge's order also applies to his present operation at Fayetteville.

An official with USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service said the agency and Joyner reached an agreement, endorsed by the judge, which does not require the dealer to admit or deny the charges and bypasses the need for a formal hearing. Violation of the order carries a maximum penalty of $500 for each day the violation continues.

Report Stronger Tobacco Prices

FARMVILLE—Grade for grade prices were stronger yesterday than last Thursday, according to Louis Williams, Sales Supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Quality grades of leaf and smoking leaf accounted for most of the increases, he said. Lemon wrappers continue to account for top price. Some of the best grades of smoking leaf were marketed yesterday. Quality as a whole was the best since last Monday. Leaf and smoking leaf grades accounted for most of volume. Volume of nondescript and damaged tobacco was much less than on the last sale day. Stabilization receipts amounted to 29,131 pounds or 3.78 per cent of gross sales.

The market sold 771,322 pounds for $847,515.29, for an average of $109.88 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold $34,484,643 pounds for $35,363,774, averaging $102.55 for the season.

ACLU Meeting On Wednesday

The Eastern Carolina chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union will meet here at 8 p.m. on Wednesday at the Methodist Student Center.

Law student Robert White is scheduled to discuss the possibility of bias in the state bar examination. In addition, people who were involved in the Halloween disturbance downtown have asked to be heard during the meeting and the Greenville Police Department has been asked to send a representative.

Prior to the regular meeting, a board of directors session will be held at which time a chairman and secretary for the next two years will be elected.

COMFORTABLE AND CLASSIC is in for fall in blouses. At left is a polyester and cotton twill workshirt, featuring two double flap pleated pockets and epaulets, styled for the worker—or for the dasher about town or relaxer with friends. Zoo Couple's Hospitality Extends Over Wide Range

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jan and Jack Armstrong were evicted from their apartment when their landlady could no longer tolerate the wild company the couple regularly entertained there.

She had put up with a hyena, polar bear, rhinoceros, three jaguars and even a mountain lion. But when she caught the two modern-day Noahs smuggling in a gorilla — she said "out!"

Today the professional zoologists and their "friends" have found a haven in a house on the spacious grounds of Swope Park, site of what is considered to be one of America's finest zoos. Armstrong is head zookeeper and Mrs. Armstrong is Curator of Animal Health at the Swope Park Zoo.

And except for an occasional carton of worms in the mailbox and gorilla teeth marks on the dining room furniture, things are as normal as they can be around such a lively household.

The two still care for baby animals when the mother can't or won't raise them. Mrs. Armstrong is mothering two young polar bear cubs, which are extremely susceptible to disease.

"It's a bold attempt," admits her husband. "There are only four polar bears in the United States who have lived beyond the age of one year after being hand reared."

The polar bears moved into the Armstrong home when a baby sea lion left the friendly surroundings of a lawn chair in the family kitchen and traded daily romps in the upstairs bathtub for splashes in the zoo pool.

The Armstrongs hope to use the knowledge they've gained to help raise polar bear cubs that belong to other zoos. Like all proud parents, the couple have also shown an interest in the age-old tradition of matchmaking.

"We sent a crane to Omaha and a capybara to Lincoln," says Armstrong. "The Kansas City zoo has a hyena on loan from Jacksonville, Fla., and two wombats from San Francisco."

But perhaps the most ambitious arranged "marriage" took place when the Armstrongs accompanied their two heavily sedated female gorillas on a no-frills charter flight from Kansas City to San Diego Wild Animal Park for a tryst with a male who was about to lose his female companion to the Phoenix Zoo.

"Breeding loans," explains Armstrong, "have become absolutely essential to the survival of endangered species in the zoos because of governmental bans on animal exports."

The San Diego affair was a success in the case of one gorilla, who is back at Swope Park awaiting an offspring early next year.

The Armstrongs are prepared to hand-raise it if necessary.

From: Bill Bombeck
Re: New York City's Financial Plight

God knows my wife has done what she could to help you people get on your feet again.

She did for you what she has done for slumping economies in Miami, San Francisco, Boston, Dallas, Freeport, and Disneyworld... spent more money than I am making.

Last week as she sat reading the newspaper, she looked up, her eyes misting, and said, "New York needs me."

With that, she packed a few things in a large bag (an old Save-the-Economy trick) and headed for Fun-dress City.

It is not easy living with a crusader who is single-handedly fighting the battle of supply and demand.

She has a credit card for Al's Bail Shop.

She goes to a hospital to have surgery and brings home presents for everyone.

She checks out $50 worth of stuff at the supermarkets and does not have one edible item in the cart.

She carries a "deferred account" at the bakery.

For the last five years, she has been going to garage sales. We own four garages — one of them in New Jersey.

She can buy for her entire Christmas list in a tool & die shop.

She is the first woman ever to suffer finger burns from a smoking American Express card.

The other night in a restaurant she said, "Give me $5. I am going to the restroom."

"What do you need with $5 in a restroom?"

"I might see something I want to buy."

"There is nothing to buy in a restroom."

"You said that at the mortuary."

As a man with deep feelings of gratitude, you are, I suspect, thrashing about for some way of repaying my wife for her services to New York City. May I suggest when you make out the fiscal budget in two weeks... you go without her support.

She is in deep depression over the W. T. Grant Company and cries constantly, "Where was I when they needed me?"

The Struggle To Make Autistic Children Human

By FRANK T. COOK
DENTON, Tex. (UPI) — With knees together and feet pointed in, she sits in a position only a 9-year-old could find comfortable. Dressed cheerfully in a blue stripe dress with red ribbons in her hair, she gives the appearance of a child lost in a day dream.

But Dawn's eyes bore undistracted at the floor, leaving her brown pigtail to frame an emotionless face. She can't giggle or smile. She won't cry.

Dawn is not retarded. She is autistic, which means she has severe learning disabilities and bizarre behavioral problems.

Not long ago, Dawn was like a deaf mute.

Her only outward response came in a tantrum in which she threw every object within reach. But recently she began to learn and speak in sign language. She'll even hug her mother.

Progress Dawn and other autistic children in her program made is not due to conventional treatment. Rather, it is one which includes slappings, placing children in a dark closet and in severe cases giving electric shocks with a cattle prod.

After a year in the program Dawn can speak five monosyllabic sounds and her sign vocabulary is significantly larger.

In treating autistic children, Whaley and his small staff must first stop the deviant behavior.

"We punish them to reduce the rate of response we're trying to eliminate," he says. "Then we go in and try to teach them something. An alternative."

Whaley says a normal child will try various methods to get the affection of its parents, including self-destructive behavior.

"A child might hit itself on the chin," he says. "But after a while, the parent will get mad and tell it to stop. Since the hitting didn't get the attention the child was seeking, the normal child will stop it and do something else — like arithmetic — which will get a favorable response from the parent."

"But the autistic child can't do that. It doesn't know an alternative. So it will just keep hitting itself harder and harder until the parent physically stops it. And then, the next time the child isn't being watched, it will start hitting itself again and again."

"It could literally beat itself to death."

For milder behavioral problems the center's punishment could be a slap on the arm or "time out" — being put in a dark closet.

Whaley said if the child continually exhibits harmful behavior, its arm or hand may be slapped hard enough and often enough to get it to stop. After a time, the child connects the slap with the behavior that prompted it, and will stop the behavior. He says in some cases the child makes the same response when put in a dark closet.

When the behavior is slowed sufficiently, the child is taught something elementary, such as identifying a doll as a doll or a book as a book. The child is then rewarded, thus gaining the attention and affection it was initially seeking.

Whaley says although the original deviant behavior is probably never completely erased from the child's mind, the newly learned, rewarded behavior usually becomes dominant.

In the most extreme cases of self-destructive behavior, Whaley says cattle prods have been used to deliver a painful, electric jolt which stops self-abuse. The only case that severe at the center is Tony, a 26-year-old whose arms are covered with the fleshy scars of his own bites.

Institutionalized or left alone, Tony probably would eventually have killed himself. Under the center's care, he no longer bites himself, he can carry on a moderately casual conversation and he has worked to support himself.

In the six, financially stormy years of its existence, Whaley says the center has treated more than 200 children who had been in and out of institutions most of their lives.

Since 1972, 48 children between two and 28 years of age have been treated at the NTSU clinic and another 95 have been involved in a home service program. Of that total, Whaley says only one child has had to be put in a state hospital.

More than 100 have been discharged either because of parent re-location or because the child no longer had an acute problem. Nineteen have been able to return to public schools.

Despite the center's successful record, Whaley still wonders if the other problem can be treated — the absence of emotion.

Not long ago, Dawn seemed to recognize her mother only as someone she knew, not as someone to regard with an emotion such as love. Now, for some reason, when she sees her mother she'll greet her with a kiss. And sometimes she hugs an instructor.

"We can teach them almost anything," Whaley says. "But can't make them human."

Highway Patrol To Study Field Work

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — During their first six weeks as officers with the California Highway Patrol, women graduates of the CHP training school performed at "comparable and generally acceptable levels," but it will take a year of field experience before the patrol will consider hiring women permanently, according to findings of a report on the two-year Woman Traffic Officer Project.

The final report to the state legislature will contain the CHP's recommendations on how well women officers perform the tasks facing a highway patrol officer.

The 16-week academy course for women was initiated as a pilot project after a federal civil rights suit in 1973. There were 24 graduates from the first class.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sprained ankles and damaged knees are the most common injuries to female athletes, reports the Physician and Sports-medicine magazine.

Data the magazine collected from 361 colleges and universities shows basketball, volleyball, field hockey and gymnastics are the riskiest of 19 women's intercollegiate sports.

Injuries to the breast were said to be the least likely, followed by head and neck injuries and shoulder separations.

Tell 'Gentleman' You're Ready To Collect Clock

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Five years ago our daughter was hostess to her high school club, and the parents were invited, too. She entertained them in our home on a Sunday afternoon. One of the fathers was fascinated by a cuckoo clock an aunt had brought me from Switzerland. He said the cuckoo was not emerging properly from the cage for its periodic cuckooing, and since clocks were his hobby, he insisted on taking it home for repairs.

This gentleman lives across town, our paths never cross, and I haven't seen him or the cuckoo clock since.

Perhaps the repairs were more time-consuming than expected, but I'm getting concerned. What should I do? TIMELESS

DEAR TIMELESS: The "gentleman" who took your clock home is obviously for the birds. Contact him and tell him you're coming by to pick it up—if he hasn't already flown the coop, that is.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is either the world's biggest liar, or he must have something I'm not aware of. George said he was through driving sitters home because they just won't leave him alone. He claimed the last one—a 16-year-old girl—practically attacked him in the car. (She's a Junior Achiever. Can you believe this?)

Another time, the minister's wife called and offered me some home-grown cucumbers. She said she had more than she knew what to do with, so I sent George over to get some.

When he came back he said the minister's wife tried to get him to "relax" on a mattress in her basement. Then she "begged" him to try some of her pineapple upside-down cake. He also claimed that to prolong his stay, she handed him one cucumber at a time!

He's always telling me how women can't resist him. Believe me, Abby, he's nothing special. Should I pretend to believe him, call him a liar or what? GEORGE'S WIFE?

DEAR WIFE: If George is making up these stories, he must feel the need to convince you (and perhaps himself) that he's desirable. If you call him a liar, you'll castrate him. Give his ego a boost instead, and he won't have to lie.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy, and I'm in the 10th grade. I gave my girl friend a wrist watch for her birthday, which caused her parents and mine (especially hers) to become very upset.

Her parents seem to think it was an "engagement" present, and they made her give it back to me. My parents weren't quite so harsh, but they think it was a little too much for a boy of our age group to give a girl friend.

Abby, I didn't give her the watch to symbolize anything. I just wanted to give her something nice, and she needed a watch. It was very inexpensive.

My girl friend was heartbroken when her parents made her return it, and my ego was somewhat pounded into the ground. I realize that we are not old enough to become seriously involved, but I do think she should have been able to keep it.

What do you think? Please be open-minded. T.L.

DEAR T.L.: It's not the cost but the kind of gift your parents objected to. Jewelry and personal attire (at any price) are too intimate for 14 year olds.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Watch Big B For Happy Marriage

CHICAGO (AP) — Face up to financial reality if you want a happy marriage.

This is the observation of the financial services division of Esmark Inc.

They recommend that young couples especially should heed this advice. "Newlyweds are often more romantic than factual about such matters as money and budgets — but too often they find they cannot live on love alone."

They hasten to point out that budgeting need not be depressing. "It doesn't even mean that a young couple has to pinch pennies and painstakingly mark down every cent spent."

To the contrary, it can be a "togetherness" endeavor for two.

Esmark offers a few tips for playing the game:

Set up good, honest ground rules — and stick to them.

Put aside a certain time each week — or at least twice a month — for the Big B — "Bank Balance and Bills."

Agree not to disagree. Consider each other's wishes and requests — and respect them.

Problems belong on paper — then evaluate, negotiate and mediate.

Laugh a lot — working out minor problems with a sense of humor is healthy.

Esmark says good mental and marriage health can evolve from facing monetary situations together. If the Big B is not on an even keel — some reductions are in order:

Eliminate some spending items — at least for the time being.

Spend less — there are always some things that can be cut back cost-wise.

A big money saver — do-it-yourself home repairs.

Be knowledgeable in the use of credit.

Take advantage of special sales on essentials.

Plan — plan ahead — plan now — but plan.

Don't let money problems break up an otherwise happy home.

Seems Good Way To Proceed

The new downtown mall on the Evans Street right-of-way between Third and Fifth is rapidly taking shape as workmen push to make the Thanksgiving deadline for completion of the project.

Few construction jobs in Greenville have brought on as much comment or created as much excitement as this one. Through all of the tearing out of old asphalt and paving brick beneath, the pedestrian traffic has continued along Evans. There are some who believe there has been even more walking traffic because of the interest in the mall features taking shape.

At any rate the sidewalk superintendents have come and watched as the work progressed. There has been some praise and much criticism of the various planters, gazebos, gates and other structures as they were constructed, but it has been generally conceded that the finished product, complete with landscaping and lights would have to be seen before the mall can be fully appreciated.

The big question that is often asked among spectators is whether or not the mall construction will help rejuvenate the business area located along the mall.

That, too, will take time to determine. The local Planning and Zoning Commission, however, is doing what it can to see that business in the area develops properly.

The commission last week approved the creation of a Downtown Mall zoning district. It involves the Evans Street blocks from Third to Fifth bounded by the alleyways which have recently been improved. It also includes the Town Common area along First Street.

City Planner John Schofield says present uses would be continued but more selectivity will be encouraged in the future.

Such businesses as antique stores, art studios and galleries, book and stationery stores, department stores, drugstores, furrier shops, florists, music stores, newsstands, professional services, restaurants and theatres would be among the allowable uses.

The Downtown Mall zoning for the area seems like the proper way for the city to proceed. We hope the City Council will accept the Planning and Zoning Commission recommendation in this matter.

What Is Error In Welfare?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — What does it mean to the average North Carolinian when Human Resources Secretary David T. Flaherty says there are mistakes being made in welfare payments, with the "whole system covering up its mistakes... it's rotten"?

Flaherty won't attach a total dollar figure. But in just four months, auditors found $3 million in errors in the Medicaid segment alone. How about food stamps, aid to dependent children, social services, etc. A recent national report said $78 million was misspent on food stamps in just six months.

Some experts figure the total Medicaid errors in North Carolina would run from $10 million to $12 million per year; and when you add on errors in other welfare programs the total could easily reach $20 million — possibly double that.

Look at it this way: The total Internal Revenue Service take from individual tax payments by Tar Heels in 1974 was $593 million; there are about 2.3 million federal taxpayers in the state.

Many Taxpayers Based on that, it took 77,821 North Carolinians paying their average $257 per year in federal income taxes to cover the errors.

"I'm absolutely shocked that we are actually encouraging people to cover up those mistakes. And it's going on in every state, but they may not tell you about it," Flaherty said.

It took the top boss to finally blow the whistle on what most citizens have long suspected, but has been denied by most welfare workers. Flaherty put it bluntly: the mistakes have been going on for a long time, and both state and local officials have been covering them up because to reveal them would mean a loss of federal dollars.

Who is to blame? That, Flaherty argues, is not the question. Fixing blame and prosecuting where fraud might be proved would be difficult and time consuming, providing willful intent, and such. "Our approach must be to stop it," he says.

Not all cases involve fraud, although there is some of that.

In the Medicaid program, it is thought that some providers did in fact send in bills for service not rendered. Most of the errors were in double-billings: a bill not paid by a certain date was sent in again, and two payments made.

Different Ways

As to payments made for ineligible, the reasons were many:

—Eligible people were issued stickers to be attached to doctor or drug bills indicating eligibility; those could be transferred to others, were sometimes issued without authority, and were sometimes handed out by local social service agents without checking eligibility.

—There were "recipient shoppers" who went from doctor to doctor and druggist to druggist getting repeat care for a single ailment.

—There were social workers who, feeling sorry for someone in an emergency or in dire streets, issued eligibility certification without checking the facts, and issued stickers without certifying eligibility.

And the fact was that no effort was made to locate errors, or stop them. Never was the list of people eligible for Medicaid compared to the list of claims made and payments.

Multiply that situation by the numbers of programs in welfare, and it is clear why Flaherty is condemning the whole system and suggesting sweeping revision to return control back to the states rather than the federal government; providing closer local supervision and direction.

INSIDE REPORT

Foreign Policy By Feud

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
EDITOR'S NOTE — This report was prepared several days before Defense Secretary Schlesinger's dismissal. However, the background information herein explains much of the conflict in views over foreign policy.

WASHINGTON—Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger's secret deployment plans for U.S. forces in Europe are being held up by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, an escalation in their deeply personal feud which reveals much of what is wrong in foreign policymaking under President Ford.

The Defense Department weeks ago approved an annual report to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) listing revised naval and air deployment plus force changes for annual maneuvers, all routine matters. But Kissinger, wearing his second hat as the President's national security adviser, has voiced displeasure over these proposals and refused to pass them along to Mr. Ford. Thus, the report is overdue at NATO headquarters in Brussels.

To irritated Pentagon officials, Dr. Kissinger is merely playing games ("Henry's torture treatment," says one) with Dr. Schlesinger and never will carry a fight over humdrum military matters to the President. Not so, say State Department officials. Kissinger is outraged at being outflanked by Schlesinger on questions deeply important to our European allies and will ask the President to overrule the Pentagon with every hope of success.

However the controversy ends, it contributes further evidence that Kissinger's two-hat role as Secretary of State and national security adviser works badly so long as he is feuding with the Secretary of Defense. What's more, in this and other national security disputes, President Ford assumes a curiously passive role with little visible control over tough decisions.

The deployments, contained in U.S. answers to Defense Planning Questions (DPQ) annually sent from Brussels to all NATO members, are as follows:

Naval: Two U.S. aircraft carriers now on station in the Mediterranean will be reduced to 1-1-3 — the second carrier spending two-thirds of the year in the North Atlantic off Norway (an arrangement that critics outside the Pentagon contend amounts to one carrier in the Mediterranean).

Air: The old F-4 aircraft performing both attack and defense functions will be replaced by F-111s and F-16s, a reduction in numbers but improvement in quality.

Maneuvers: Makeup of U.S. ground troops will be changed to provide greater "mobility" in NATO's annual Reforger maneuvers.

None of this seems earth-shattering on its face, and the Pentagon agrees. But Kissinger claims it diminishes the U.S. role in Europe, frightening the Europeans and possibly impelling them toward greater concessions to the Soviet Union in mutual force reductions. Deployment plans, State Department officials say, reveal Schlesinger's insensitivity to Western Europe, particularly in cutting down Reforger maneuvers.

Nonsense, says the Pentagon, which denies with special vehemence that Reforger is being downgraded. Schlesinger collaborated with West German defense minister George Leber on DPQ and conferred with the British as well. Thus, the Pentagon suspects Kissinger of taking a hard-line policy on one issue to counter Schlesinger's tough stand on other issues.

From all this confusion, the following is indisputable: The Pentagon normally would coordinate DPQ answers with the National Security Council (NSC) staff, but the NSC director happens to be the Secretary of State, engaged in monumental struggle with the Secretary of Defense. So, Schlesinger sidestepped Kissinger until he sent his finished product over to the NSC. Kissinger, angry with Schlesinger (and with Leber as well) for not consulting him, is using his authority as NSC director to hold up the DPQ answers.

Where does President Ford stand? "I doubt he has ever heard of the DPQ," one high official told us. If Kissinger actually appeals the Pentagon's military plans to the President, Mr. Ford will be adjudicating an unfamiliar question whose determination will depend largely on palace politics.

Inside the palace, Schlesinger might be aided by his occasional ally, presidential chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld, who as former ambassador to NATO claims expertise on European defense questions. But Kissinger's daily access

Strength For Today

THE SECOND COMING
The second coming of our Lord is taught throughout the New Testament. Yet millions of people never give this teaching the least thought. On the other hand, those who do believe it sometimes allow it to occupy the whole of their horizon and obscure many vital truths of Christianity. The Bible teaches that we can be absolutely sure that our Lord will someday return in glory, that His coming will be preceded by great unrest upon the earth, that it will be a time of great joy to those who are ready to receive Him and great misery for those who have let their opportunity for grace to slip by. What should be our attitude toward this great event? We are to live every day in such a fashion that if the return were suddenly to occur we would be ready for it. We are to watch with our lamps burning with our spiritual lives aglow through constant contact with God and service to man.

'Devolution' In Scotland

EDINBURGH — They are crying "secession!" on the streets of Edinburgh — or at least a few people are. It is enough to warm the cockles of a Southerner's heart.

Actually, the watchword in Scotland these days is "devolution," and a great many Scots are worked up about it. They are demanding what we would call "home rule." They want their own assembly with substantive powers over taxing and spending; they want control over their schools, their industries, and their health services. More especially, they want control over the oil.

Oil mon! That's the golden prospect. No one yet knows how much oil lies off Scotland's rocky shores, but there is thought to be quite a lot of it. Until this prospect began to materialize, actions of home rule or independence were as misty as a Sunday morning in the Hebrides. Scotland's economy, it was felt, never could sustain public services.

Now the Scottish Nationalists have papered the country with billboards. One placard depicts a worn old woman. "It's HER Oil," says the legend. Another depicts a sad-eyed little boy. "It's HIS Oil," the Nationalists declare. To many a passionate Scot, ever ready to seize his claymore and assail his English cousins, the message rekindles old fires.

Within the United Kingdom, the devolution movement has political meaning for the short term and startling implications for the long term. Politicians everywhere can learn some lessons from the row.

As for the short term: During the 1974 election campaign, both Labour and Conservatives appeared suddenly to wake up to the burgeoning cause of home rule. The movement had been stirring in Scotland for ten years and for almost as long in Wales, but London seldom has much concern for Scotland or Wales. When it became evident that the Scotch Nationalists were attracting an increasing relationship while at the same time seeking to balance their teaching between consumerism and capitalism.

There are 122 centers at colleges and universities in 48 states to promote economics education. As students read headlines of joblessness and scarce money, they have begun to scramble for profit-making education. "We could fill our graduate school three times over; our undergraduate at least double," says Dean Harold Williams of the Graduate School of Management at UCLA. People in general do not understand the relationship between economic affairs and their lives, explains the curriculum director of the New Jersey schools.

Educators face the challenge of trying to explain this relationship while at the same time seeking to balance their teaching between consumerism and capitalism.

Other Editors Say A Must Subject

(The Wilson Times)
Education is one topic which will never be exhausted. The majority of the stories recently have centered on "Johnny cannot read" and there are the figures to prove the accusations.

Now, results of a survey made by the Christian Science Monitor indicate American students from grade school to graduate school are "economic illiterates," and need more business basics to help the nation ward off recessions and inflation, educators and business leaders say.

When schools opened this fall the courses offered included consumer, business and economic studies and students responded by signing up in record numbers.

Educators are seeking active collaboration from the business community, which stand to benefit from renewed mixing of curriculum with the marketplace. More business people are being asked to lecture on college campuses. Factories have become instant classrooms.

In many parts of the nation, both business groups and organized labor are subsidizing efforts to beef up teaching of economic and business concepts at elementary and high school levels. They are aware of an antibusiness mood on college campuses, of distrust of business ethics, and a distorted notion that company profits average 45 cents on the dollar when 5 cents is closer to the mark.

"There is a growing awareness on the part of the business community that their credibility has gone down the drain and they are excited about getting in more economics education so that students will understand how business operates," says Prof. John Ashley of the economics department at California State University, Hayward.

Too few teachers understand economics complexities. There are 122 centers at colleges and universities in 48 states to promote economics education. As students read headlines of joblessness and scarce money, they have begun to scramble for profit-making education. "We could fill our graduate school three times over; our undergraduate at least double," says Dean Harold Williams of the Graduate School of Management at UCLA. People in general do not understand the relationship between economic affairs and their lives, explains the curriculum director of the New Jersey schools.

No Worries If Trend Goes On

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Can the sharp improvement in the Gross National Product during the third quarter be continued into this, the final three-month period of the year? If only it could be.

If it could be you would find Wall Street forgetting its worries, workers being added to payrolls at a near-record pace, profits soaring, and consumer buying getting caught up in the enthusiasm.

The third quarter is being viewed, however, as something unique. Seldom can two such powerful quarters follow each other, and business economists don't expect the fourth quarter to be an exception.

Estimates vary, as of course they always do where economists are involved, but the rate of improvement during the final three months of 1975 is expected to range down to zero by some forecasters.

In the third quarter the GNP soared at an annual rate of 11.2 per cent.

A surge of that intensity would appear to contain energy sufficient to keep it going, albeit at a slower pace, for several more months. An important ingredient, however, seems to have been missing.

Surveys show that throughout the advance of the third quarter millions of Americans were almost totally unaware of any improvement. If the surveys are to be believed, consumers remained cautious.

In fact, one survey by a very large commercial bank indicated that at the very time the economy was on its upsurge, most Americans were complaining that it was getting worse. While consumer spending did rise, especially for automobiles, it was inconsistent. Some department stores continued to report unsatisfactory sales. A variety of durable goods retailers were less than satisfied.

Much of the increased production appears to have gone back into inventories rather than to the retail consumer. And some of the goods that did reach the consumer were snapped up in fear of higher prices later.

Industry, while enjoying the sharp upturn, showed little evidence either that it was anticipating a continuation. It contributed little in the way of spending for capital improvement, and isn't expected to do so in this quarter either. Without commitment from

Reagan Isn't Helped

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan says Vice President Rockefeller's departure from the 1976 Republican ticket should help President Ford's candidacy. But the former California governor apparently remains poised to become a presidential candidate before the end of November.

Reagan conceded Monday during his national speaking tour into South Florida that Rockefeller's departure from the ticket will make it harder for him or any other conservative to mount a campaign against Ford.

"A number of conservative Republicans have expressed dissatisfaction with the other half of the ticket (Rockefeller)," Reagan said. "So in that way, it should help President Ford."

But Reagan emphasized that he is "not interested" in the vice presidential spot which Rockefeller is giving up.

"No. The answer is still no," Reagan said when asked if he'd take the nation's No. 2 job. "I have another decision to make."

Reagan stressed that he is concerned with the presidency, not the vice presidency. He told reporters in Boca Raton, Fla., that he "never believed the second spot has great bearing on how people vote. The presidential candidate is the important one."

In September, Reagan said he wouldn't seek the vice presidency, but he would consider he had a duty to accept it if he could be convinced he could help his party as a candidate for vice president.

Reagan has said he is 80 per cent sure he will run for the presidency, and that he will make an announcement sometime between Nov. 19 and Nov. 30.

Some Reagan backers in California said they take his most recent remarks as a signal that Reagan will be a candidate only for president, flatly ruling out a vice presidential role.

Other Reagan backers agreed they expect him to be a presidential candidate, but that they remain convinced Reagan will accept the vice presidential nomination if defeated in his bid for the presidency.

Truman Campbell, president of the conservative 10,000-member California Republican Assembly, a bulwark of Reagan support in California, said of Rockefeller's withdrawal:

"It certainly relieves the Reagan supporters in California, and it gives us the happy prospect that if we can't have No. 1, we can have No. 2. Wouldn't that be the best of two worlds?"

Campbell said he is convinced Reagan will run for president, and that he is equally convinced Reagan will settle for vice president if defeated.

Virginia Hams Can Lose Name

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Producers of Virginia country hams may have to change the name of their celebrated product under a regulation proposed by the federal government, Virginia congressmen claim.

All 10 members of the state's House delegation signed a letter Monday to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz to protest a Department of Agriculture proposal they claim would require Virginia country ham producers to either change their process or call their product "dry cured" hams.

The congressmen said either option would threaten the state's $50-million-a-year ham industry.

"Few would question the ability of a Virginian to produce a country ham," the congressmen told Butz. "Yet, a group of bureaucrats in the Department of Agriculture has presumed to tell Virginians what constitutes a Virginia country ham."

The proposed regulation would define country-style ham as one which has been cured for at least 70 days at temperatures of 95 degrees or lower.

Rep. Robert Daniel, R-Va., the prime author of the letter, said that Virginia hams are traditionally cured in old-fashioned wooden smoke houses with tin roofs. He called this method "a folk tradition that is older than our nation."

"The temperatures in these buildings, almost without exception, go over 95 degrees sometime during the course of the summer," Daniel said. "It is this 'summer heat' that has been relied upon to produce the fine aged flavor for which Virginia country hams are famous."

A USDA official denied that the regulations were intended to penalize Virginia ham producers. "It was actually an attempt to protect the old, slow farm methods," said Mary Galoway of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

She said consumers should know whether the ham they buy is cured through old-fashioned methods or modern methods which entail the use of chemicals and higher temperatures. In any case, she said the proposed regulation is still in the tentative stage and might be modified after the views of the Virginia congressmen are studied.

Virginia ham producers contend the department is formulating the regulations under pressure from ham producers in other states to place Virginia producers at a competitive disadvantage. When the proposed ham regulation was listed in the Federal Register several months ago the department noted it was recommended by North Carolina ham producers.

An aide to Daniel said the Virginia congressmen are equally concerned with protecting the small ham producer who uses ancient methods and larger producers who use more modern techniques.

Actively opposing the regulation is the Virginia Meat Packers Association, which claims its process of higher temperatures and shorter curing periods produces the same ham product as one made with lower temperatures and longer curing periods.

But in their letter to Butz, the Virginia congressmen focused mainly on the old methods. "The sight of smoke curling from rustic wooden ham smoke house is as long enduring a part of the southside Virginia landscape as the peaceful woods or the fields of peanuts and corn," their letter said.

to the President as his national security adviser invariably wins the day.

A classic example occurred when Kissinger was battling the Pentagon over how to treat the Soviet Backfire bomber in the strategic arms talks (SALT). William Clements, Deputy Secretary of Defense, and Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were summoned by the President. Reports throughout the bureaucracy have Mr. Ford "taking them to the woodshed" or "Talking to them like a Dutch uncle." That is vigorously denied by the Pentagon, but in fact agreement on the Backfire was quickly reached.

During 15 months as President, Gerald Ford's position on SALT — as an detente generally, the Mideast and Cyprus — is indistinguishable from Dr. Kissinger's. So, Kissinger's sitting on Schlesinger's European deployment plans seems intended to make sure this Ford-Kissinger identity on policy continues across the board.

Warn Of Impact From Cigarette Tax Boost

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A proposed five-cent increase in the state's cigarette tax would boost illegal cigarette sales and ruin the legitimate tobacco industry in Pennsylvania, a trade association says.

The Pennsylvania Association of Tobacco and Candy Distributors, sent letters to Gov. Milton Shapp and all legislators Monday that the new tax would mean $30 million a year more in profits for organized crime.

The proposed Pennsylvania tax would cost a one-pack-a-day smoker $18 more a year.

The association fears it will lose 20 per cent of its business when people turn to the cheaper, but illegal cigarettes.

One consequence would be loss of jobs, said Bernard Brenner, the association's legislative chairman.

He and other wholesale tobacco officials met Sunday in Harrisburg to discuss plans for a campaign against the five-cent proposal.

"The underworld will destroy our industry," said Morris Weintraub, head of the National Council Against Cigarette Bootlegging who also attended the meeting.

"There is no way for retailers to compete with bootleggers who will be able to offer people cigarettes delivered to their door at $1.50 to $1.75 less a carton. In New York City where the cigarette tax is up to 23 cents a pack, organized crime today supplies half of all cigarettes sold," Weintraub said.

The Shapp administration is pushing for the increased tax, which would add about $50 million to the state treasury, as one way to end a budget deadlock.

Dr. Daniel Todd Is Awarded Promotion

PEMBROKE — Dr. Daniel E. Todd Jr. has been promoted to the position of Dean of Academic Affairs for Programs and Research at Pembroke State University by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors following the recommendation of Chancellor English E. Jones and the approval of the PSU Board of Trustees.

Todd, 49, came to Pembroke in January, 1969, as a professor of education. In January, 1972, he was named assistant to the vice chancellor for academic affairs.

A native of Greenville, he graduated from Bell Arthur High School and attended one year at Atlantic Christian College. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II. Following the war, he completed work on his B.S. in Science and English at East Carolina University and also completed requirements for his M.A. degree in school administration at ECU. He received his doctorate from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1967 in administration and supervision.

He taught at Belvoir-Falkland High School, New Hanover High School, UNC-Wilmington, Ogdon Elementary School, and Bradley Creek Elementary School before going to Pembroke.

He is married to the former Shyla Ruth Allen, also of Greenville, and they have four children.

following, Labour made a reckless commitment: "The next Labour government will create assemblies in Scotland and Wales." The Conservatives made substantially the same promise, in greater detail.

The commitment to devolve power upon the two sub-divisions of the U.K. now promises to create political mischief. The Scottish Nationalists last year won only 15.5 per cent of Scotland's 71 seats in Parliament, but they got 30.4 per cent of the vote. A comparatively small swing obviously could be Labour's undoing. The Labour chieftains cannot prudently renege on their commitment without risking disaster.

Yet the consequences of fulfilling the commitment, over the long term, could be far more important. Pessimistic observers see devolution as the first step toward break-up of the United Kingdom as such. At the very least, substantive devolution could lead to a federal structure, in the American pattern, composed of the separate states of England, Scotland, Ulster, and Wales. In the view of The Times, "that may be the best solution in the end."

Meanwhile, it is apparent that the discomfited Labour leaders are having sober second thoughts. They are pledged to come up this month with a specific plan of devolution, but their hearts are not in it. It seems likely that a working bill will not appear until March, when a spring stall will set in. Such a delay would play directly into the Nationalists' hands. Prime Minister Wilson, whose party holds power by his fingernails, is in a bind. If it weren't for the long-term implications, the whole affair would be funny.

Devolution in Scotland is no isolated phenomenon. Over most of Europe — over most of the world — the cry is heard for home rule, for independence, for an end to colonialism. People everywhere are fed up with remote governments that impose impersonal rule upon their lives. Little serious talk is heard of "world federation," even less of European federation. The trend is not to think large, but to think small instead.

The trend has aspects good and bad. Conservatives generally are strong for government that can be closely restrained by the people governed. We fear power; we love variety. But one looks to a coming quarter-century likely to be dominated by great brooding powers. Political fragmentation has its perils, and separatism holds a deceptive appeal. It is all very well to get into kilts and to whoop it up for the clans of Scotland, but before the politicians begin this Highland fling, they had better consider the state of affairs when it ends.

October Car Sales Strongest In The Last Sixteen Months

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Domestic car sales in October were the strongest in at least 16 months, topping the recession-depressed levels of October 1974 by an estimated 22 per cent, auto industry analysts predict.

Analysts said the renewed sales muscle by the U.S. auto companies would cut the import share of the American new-car market to its smallest monthly penetration this year.

Industry analysts also expected Japan's Toyota to overtake Volkswagen in calendar-year sales, marking the end of VW's 20-year reign as the king of imports.

The domestic and foreign car makers report their October sales today, and analysts say the results will provide continued evidence that the industry's recovery from a two-year slump is accelerating.

Sales of domestic cars were estimated at 768,000, compared with 627,521 a year ago when the recession and record price increases on new models sent sales plummeting to their poorest October levels in a decade.

The sales would give the U.S. companies their best monthly performance since May 1974. It also would mark the first time since September 1973 — when the energy crisis first triggered the industry slump — that sales outpaced those in the same year-ago month.

Sales of imports, which have captured a record 20 per cent of the U.S. market so far this year, were estimated at 135,000, up 5 per cent from 128,400 a year ago. But the sharper gain in domestic sales would shrink the foreign makers' share to a more traditional 15 per cent.

By comparison, imports took a 17 per cent share in October 1974 and a 19 per cent share in Miss Cindy Allen of Greenville, a sophomore at Meredith College in Raleigh, was honored recently by the Kappa Nu Sigma Honor Society of Meredith. Cited for her academic achievement, Miss Allen was the recipient of a scholarship made possible by Meredith Alumnae.

Miss Allen, a 1974 graduate of Rose High School, is the daughter of Mrs. Coleen W. Allen and Jenness S. Allen.

Annual Crafts Fair Starting

The Tenth Annual Coastal Plain Arts and Crafts Fair is being held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Tarrytown Mall in Rocky Mount.

Sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service, hours will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

A large number of crafts in all media will be on display, with most of it for sale. Crafts will include cornshuck items, crystal engraving, gourds, handpainted china, jewelry, lamps, pewter, quilting, small furniture, and stuffed toys, among many others.

Chairman For Seal Campaign

Dr. Marion Dennis Thorpe, Chancellor of Elizabeth City State University has accepted the chairmanship of the 1975 Christmas Seal Campaign for Eastern Lung Association.

Dr. Thorpe, a graduate of North Carolina Central University with a B.A. and M.A. degree in psychology, received his Ph.D. in Administrative and Educational Services from Michigan State University.

Dr. Thorpe is also the author of various publications on many aspects of the educational processes. Active in civic, fraternal and religious organizations Dr. Thorpe's memberships include Martin Luther King Scholarship Committee of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, Kiwanis International, Human Relations Council, Board of Directors of North Carolina Symphony Society, 32nd Mason and I.B.P.O.E. of Elk.

As chairman of the 1975 Christmas Seal Campaign, Dr. Thorpe will be actively involved in guiding the campaign in the association's area which encompasses 22 Eastern North Carolina counties.

It was in 1907 that the idea was conceived of issuing each year an attractively designed stamp size seal to be used on Christmas cards, letters and packages in the weeks preceding the Christmas season. Mailing of the traditional Christmas Seals, which is the principal means of raising funds for the fight against emphysema, asthma, and other respiratory diseases, will begin going out to the public in the very near future. Dr. Thorpe asks the public's help in making this the most successful campaign ever.

Mall Planning Decisions Are Deferred By Williamston Bd.

WILLIAMSTON—The Williamston Town Board at its November meeting on Monday deferred until November 10 a decision on further considering plans and specifications for a downtown mall section on Main Street.

At the public hearing of plans presented by David Hughes, Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Central Business Development Committee, objection was raised to the possibility of closing alleyways leading from Main Street to parking areas behind the stores on Main Street. The objections voiced at Monday's meeting were the first to be encountered in the continuing series of plans for development of the downtown area.

In another phase of downtown development, the town board approved a reviewer's appraisal of $44,000 for the Lindsay property off Grabbell Street. Two earlier appraisals had resulted in one $38,500 evaluation and a second one of $44,000. The reviewer gave an opinion that the $44,000 figure was a fair and accurate one. The property is earmarked for use as a downtown parking lot.

Approval was also given to hiring professional personnel to test the effectiveness of the sewage treatment plant as a step in meeting Environmental I standards.

Two public hearings have been scheduled for December 1. One is for a hearing on the third year Action Plan for the Williamston Housing Authority project; the second is for action on rezoning in the commercial zoning category for the placement of a used car lot.

Action was taken to do nothing on a bid for city street improvements for a 30-day period and to let bids out again at the end of that date. This came about as the result of one of three bids being blank at the time bids were opened. Since three bids are required to meet legal requirements, the town attorney advised the course of not taking action and resubmitting bids for the project at the end of 30 days.

A decision to consider a State Highway offer to help pay for cost of new town traffic and cautionary signs was tabled to permit further study. The Governor's Highway Safety Committee will pay half the cost for replacement of outdated and obsolete signs now used in Williamston.

The sale of property owned by the Williamston Housing Authority to a private party, Joseph Wilson and wife, was approved following a public hearing on the matter.

In other actions, the town board: Approved the temporary placement of four mobile homes on the vacant Dixie Peanut Company property until they can be moved into place for use by the Neighborhood Development Project; asked the Williamston Planning Board to report on a request by Russell Griffin to construct a cul-de-sac at the end of Price Street; and reported on VEPCO's agreement to let Christmas lights be attached to the company's power poles in the downtown area.

After hearing a complaint from Dr. G.G. Himmelwright that hunters have been shooting in the vicinity of his home on Woodlawn Street near the Roanoke River, the town voted to take action to publicize through radio and newspapers that hunting with firearms is illegal within town limits.

Another action tabled until further study was a request by Tom Skinner for improvement of drainage at the Skinner Tobacco Company site. A representative from the Street Department

Stockholders of a Greenville firm, Home Builders Supply Co., have made an unrestricted gift of $5,000 to the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

"It is our hope that this corporate contribution will inspire others to similarly support the new medical school," said Tom Taft, a Home Builders Supply executive and director.

On hand for presentation of the funds to ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins were H.V. Elks, president of the firm, Marvin K. Blount Sr., former board chairman, and Tom Taft.

Doctors Report Franco Underwent Operation

By LOUIS NEVIN

Associated Press Writer
MADRID, Spain (AP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's doctors reported this afternoon that his pulse, heart beat and temperature were normal after a three-hour operation during the night which halted the abdominal bleeding that had been putting added strain on the 82-year-old dictator's damaged heart.

Sources at Franco's Pardo Palace said he had exchanged a few words this morning with his wife and daughter and other members of the family.

A medical bulletin issued at 1:30 p.m. disclosed that the surgeons drained more than six quarts of excess fluid from his abdomen while he lay on the operating table. The bulletin said there had been no "manifest" new accumulations since then.

Although Franco's heart came through the operation without new damage or danger signs, his general condition continued "grave," the doctors said.

"Only an exceptional physique could have survived such an operation, given his age and physical condition," a member of the family said, according to the Europa Press news agency.

The doctors said they removed three stomach ulcers and repaired a perforated abdominal artery. They reported that both Franco's pulse and heart beat were normal as the anesthetic began wearing off two hours after the operation.

However, the medical bulletin said Franco's condition was still "very grave."

The doctors reported that nearly eight quarts (7½ liters) of blood were given Franco in transfusions during the operation. That was an indication of the large amount of blood lost as the human body normally holds only about five quarts.

Prince Juan Carlos, the acting chief of state, and his wife, Princess Sophie, were called to the generalissimo's Pardo Palace late Monday afternoon when the doctors decided an operation would be necessary to check the hemorrhaging from which Franco had been suffering for a week.

Art Student Is Showing Work

Paintings by Sherry King, a senior student in the East Carolina University School of Art, are on display in the third floor gallery of Rawl Building this week.

The exhibition will include both oil and watercolor paintings.

A candidate for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in painting, Miss King has a minor concentration in design. Upon graduation she plans to pursue her art studies at the master's degree level.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. King of Wilmington.

The old man was brought down from his second-floor bedroom on a rolling table, put into an ambulance and driven 200 yards to the headquarters of the palace guard where an operating room had been improvised.

It was the first time Franco had left the palace since he became ill with influenza 18 days ago.

As the operation began, the generalissimo's wife, Carmen Polo de Franco, prayed in the palace chapel.

Dr. M. Hidalgo Huerta, one of Spain's leading surgeons, performed the operation with the assistance of two other surgeons, heart specialists and anesthetists.

The operation began at 9:30 p.m. and finished three hours later. No medical bulletin was issued, however, until two hours after that, when the anesthetic began wearing off.

The national television network stayed on the air for three hours after its usual closing hour to broadcast the bulletin simultaneously with the national radio service.

PTA Meeting Set Thursday

Bernard Haselrig, president of the Agnes Fullilove School Parent Teach Association, announces its meeting for Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria.

A musical program will be presented by the band and chorus students of the school, under the direction of Johnny Wooten. The public is invited to attend.

Organizing New 4-H Club

GRIFTON — An organization meeting for a new 4-H club in Grifton will be held Wednesday, Nov. 12, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Cecilia Martin, Country Club Road.

Persons between the ages of nine and 14 are invited to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Martin, a former 4-Her from Puerto Rico, has completed the volunteer training series and will be leader of the new club.

Friday Night's Disorders Were Expensive Ordeal For Greenville

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer
City manager Harry Hagerty said this morning that Friday night's riot in downtown Greenville cost the city more than $2,100; injured a half-dozen police officers; and caused an estimated $3,700 property damage to 14 downtown stores.

"I was pleased," Hagerty said, "with the restraint shown by the police and their display of discipline." He emphasized, "Of course, we wholeheartedly regret the necessity to put up a show of force, but I feel the public streets need to be kept open for the public, and that vandalism of the nature that caused this damage is going to have to stop."

Hagerty said more than $1,900 in overtime was paid to police officers as a result of the riot reported and it cost the city $153.65 for Public Works Department employees to clean debris from streets before dawn Saturday.

"We had six officers who were treated at the hospital for various things..." the city manager noted. One policeman was shot in the face two times with a pellet gun, Hagerty said. Other injuries included such things as "a concussion caused when struck by a bottle... one cut in the face..." by broken glass.

In addition to local policemen, Hagerty said, six Pitt Sheriff's Department Deputies, local ABC enforcement agents, Greenville firemen and volunteer rescue squad personnel were called in.

The city manager said, "We are working closely and cooperatively with owners of the many taverns up town..." in an effort to prevent a recurrence of the Halloween riot... and hope we will be able to come up with a satisfactory solution."

Hagerty noted too, "We need to establish a little better liaison with the students at the university in order that they can discipline themselves some and prevent non-students from joining these gatherings."

Of the non-student participants, Hagerty said "these seem to be the people that actually generate these unpleasantnesses. These... camp followers join in these festivities and give students a bad name."

Twenty-six of the 56 persons arrested in connection with the riot were not East Carolina University students.

Hagerty noted too that "my investigation shows no tear gas was released by police inside buildings..." as some persons have charged. His investigation, the city manager said, "indicates the ventilation system bringing fresh air in from the street carried the gas into these establishments."

Winterville's Aldermen Hold Regular Business Session

WINTERVILLE—John Weathington appeared before the Winterville Board of Aldermen Monday night and asked the board to consider paving or patching the alley located behind the stores on North Railroad Street and to consider changing the parking pattern in front of the stores.

Weathington, representing the Winterville Chamber of Commerce, was told the town would obtain a price on the patching and resurfacing of the alley. Chief of Police Bill Whitehurst was appointed to work with the merchants on the parking matter. The merchants have asked that the parking be changed from parallel to angle parking.

Cecil Mizelle of Worsley, Farley, Prescott, Inc., presented the 1974-75 audit report. He explained the town needed to balance each account (electric, water, general fund) separately. He said the town's way of balancing the books was a normal procedure and was not out of line but that the state required each account to be balanced separately instead of together with just one balance.

The town accepted the audit report as presented.

The board approved the final payment to Taylor Iron Works, Inc., in the amount of $22,575. The landfill will be closed Tuesday, Nov. 11, in observance of Veterans Day so the garbage pick up in Winterville will be held on Wednesday instead of Tuesday.

The board agreed to support Mrs. Nina Blount in an effort to have Boyd Street widened. The road is on the state highway system and Mrs. Blount has agreed to petition the property owners for the necessary rights-of-way for the project.

The board was told a new well site will have to be obtained because the present site only produces 250 gallons of water per minute and the contractor said 500 gallons per minute should be gotten. The town contract states the town must secure a new well site and the contractor will dig a new well if the needed amount of water is not obtained from the present site. The town has three prospective sites which have been approved by the North Carolina Health Department.

The tank and distribution lines have been completed so the town plans to select a site as close to the project as possible.

Refugees Return

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—A ship carrying more than 1,500 South Vietnamese refugees who wanted to go home has docked at a port in South Vietnam after a two-week voyage from Guam, Radio Hanoi announced today.

The broadcast did not say at which port the Thuong Tin, a former South Vietnamese merchant ship, docked or what would happen to the refugees, who were evacuated by the United States during the collapse of the anti-Communist South Vietnamese regime.

Provincial authorities boarded the Thuong Tin to "meet the refugees and to take care of the sick and the old," the broadcast said.

The Communist government at first refused to accept the refugees, saying their being sent home was an "American trick" and a violation of South Vietnamese sovereignty. But Saigon changed its position after the ship left Guam on Oct. 16.

"These refugees were forced by the U.S. to leave South Vietnam illegally in late April and now are being sent illegally back to Vietnam," the broadcast today said.

May Rule By Friday On Malpractice Insurance Law

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Judge James H. Pou Bailey says it will probably be Friday before he rules on the constitutionality of North Carolina's malpractice reinsurance pool law. Bailey heard the first three on a list of 14 witnesses in the case Monday. The testimony was dull enough to cause the judge to offer to take over the courtroom concession for No-Doz pills. Most of the state's 350 general liability insurance companies are plaintiffs in the suit seeking to overturn the law. They were represented by more than a dozen Raleigh attorneys who clogged the area in front of Bailey's bench. One of them, W.W. Taylor, said he had no idea how much money the companies were spending to pursue their suit. "But it's not as much as they'd lose on the malpractice pool," he said.

The law being challenged was enacted by the 1975 legislature in an effort to ensure a source of malpractice insurance for the state's doctors and hospitals.

It requires all general liability companies, with a few exceptions, to write malpractice insurance on demand, whether they care to or not. They may share the profits and losses of the coverage in a pool similar to the one used for auto liability insurance.

All of the companies affected have won temporary restraining orders that exempt them from the law until Bailey decides on their suit. However he decides, the outcome is likely to be appealed to the state Supreme Court.

New York City Could Default Some Payments This Monday

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)— Legislation to help New York City out of its financial crisis could reach the House floor early next week, but city officials say New York could default on millions of dollars of debt before then.

The House Banking Committee voted 23 to 16 on Monday to approve a proposal that would supply the financially ailing city with $7 billion in loan guarantees. Backers of the measure said it could be considered by the full House next week.

But figures from the city comptroller's office showed New York could default by next Monday. On that day, the city must redeem $270.7 million in one-year notes, but the comptroller's office said cash flow indicates the treasury will be short $178 million.

Even if the House gives quick approval to a New York aid bill, it still would face a threatened veto from President Ford. Two House Democrats and New York Gov. Hugh L. Carey

Arrest Seven In Busing Disorder

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)— Police used tear gas and made at least seven arrests in breaking up an angry crowd of brick and bottle-throwing protesters after an election eve antibusing rally in southern Jefferson County. Several thousand persons were called upon at the rally Monday night to "vote the ins out" in today's Kentucky general election to show their opposition to court-ordered busing for school integration. The crowd then marched toward Southern High School, and some of the protesters, chanting "We're going to get the buses," became unruly when about 35 Jefferson County policemen in riot gear pre-suggested on Monday that Ford might not follow through on his threatened veto, but Ford gave no indication at his news conference Monday night that he had changed his position since he outlined his opposition to predefault aid last Wednesday. House Banking Committee Chairman Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., and a spokesman for House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts said the aid measure might be considered by the House next week. Reuss predicted it would be approved by a narrow margin. But Ford held to his position that the legislation was unnecessary. "I believe New York City can avoid default," Ford said. "They can take stronger action than they have taken. The state of New York can take stronger action to be of assistance to the city of New York." Ford also attempted to squelch the suggestion that differences over the handling of the New York City crisis led Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller to decide that he would vented them from reaching buses parked at the school. Before the group was dispersed, a number of policemen were hit, but not seriously injured, by bricks and bottles hurled from the crowd, and tires and trash from dumpsters were used to kindle bonfires along the street. St. Joseph's Infirmary reported that one man, Edgar Annibal, 63, was brought in from the protest area with a broken leg. The protestors also roughed up a Louisville Courier-Journal photographer covering the disturbance and damaged equipment and cars of other newsmen. The crowd, estimated at 5,000, had gathered in a Topps Department Store parking lot for an "Election Eve March for Freedom."

not be available as Ford's running mate in the 1976 election. "Our difference over the handling of New York City were minimal," Ford said. "The difference is his interpretation of what might be the money market reaction if we let New York City default. Certainly he did not take the action that he did because of that difference." But in Congress and in New York, where Rockefeller was governor for four terms, there were conflicting reports. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a close political ally of Rockefeller, said the vice president

Says 4-H Role Has Never 'Taken' Time

"Being a volunteer 4-H leader has never taken any of my time. I gave it," said Norfleet Sugg, speaker at the 4-H leaders banquet Thursday night. Sugg, vice president of Planters National Bank, Rocky Mount, gave several examples of how volunteer leaders have helped young people become responsible citizens and future leaders. Debbie Allen, president of the Pitt County 4-H County Council, presided over the meeting. Stella Mitchel, a Grifton 4-Her, welcomed the leaders, Extension agents and guests. Clifton Daniels gave the invocation. The 4-H adult leaders who had attended a special Leadership Training Series for volunteer leaders, conducted by Michael A. Davis, 4-H coordinator and his assistants, were awarded certificates of recognition by Dr. Dalton Proctor, assistant 4-H director at North Carolina State University. Volunteers receiving certificates were: Rose Bell, Mary S. Blount, Clifton Daniels, Hope Davis, Diane Krage, Susan Corda, Joy Grubbs, Bobby Grubbs, Pat Williams, Bruce Williams, Johnny Hutchins, Nancy Allen, Gerry Eubanks, Cecilia Martin, Evelyn Griggs, Barbara Worsley, Jean Bullock, Shirley Whisenant, Joyce Daniels, Danny Dixon, Gladys Avery, Lois Scheller, Brenda Joyce Hawkins, Florence Ann Rodgers, Andy McLawhorn and Rene Thompson.

Will Report On Research

Three East Carolina University biologists will report on their coastal zone research at the meeting of the ECU Sigma Xi science society Thursday. The meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Biology Auditorium, is open to the public. Appearing on the program will be Drs. Graham Davis, Charles O'Rear and Mark Brinson, all of the ECU biology faculty, who will speak on "Swamps, Streams, and Estuaries: Some Current Biological Research." According to Dr. Grover W. Everett of the Sigma Xi society, the three biologists have been active during the past several years in research involving special areas of the ecology of eastern North Carolina. The Thursday lecture, he noted, will be of the nature of a progress report.

Poetry Soc. To Meet Saturday
The get together of the N.C. Poetry Society will take place on Saturday at the Sheraton-Crabtree Motor Inn in Raleigh. The meeting is in conjunction with the annual N.C. Culture Week activities. Registration begins at 9:30 a.m. President Rebecca Rust will conduct a business session at 10 a.m., and Albert W. Mankoff, author, will deliver the main address at 3:30. Poets taking part in sessions are Jean McCamey, Calvin Atwood, and Margaret Boothe. The cost of the session is $5 per person.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, propped up by some bargain hunting after Monday's sharp decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 10.32 on Monday, had rebounded 3.23 to 828.95 in the first half hour today. But losers maintained a moderate lead over gainers in the over-all tally on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was light, with banks in many parts of the nation closed for Election Day.

Brokers found no particular developments in the economic news to explain the market's firming trend.

They said it appeared some investors who had sold short earlier were buying back in to take profits.

Buyers also appeared to be nibbling cautiously at some recently depressed issues. Among New York City bank stocks, for instance, Citicorp was up 1/4 at 27 1/2 in active trading, and J. P. Morgan rose 1/4 to 47 1/2.

Sony was the most active issue on the Big Board, unchanged at 10. A 100,000-share block moved at that price.

White Motor lost 1/2 to 6 1/2 in active trading. On Monday, the company reported a third quarter loss of $46.4 million.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was off .03 at 46.53 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index edged up .02 to 82.67.

Mego International was the Amex volume leader, up 1/4 at 10 1/4.

Lebanese Soldiers Moved Into Beirut

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Army troops under police command moved into nearly deserted downtown Beirut today to enforce the 12th cease-fire in the city's Moslem-Christian street war.

Sniper fire died away in the tourist hotel district, and no serious clashes were reported anywhere in the city. Security forces counted fewer than 10 persons killed or wounded in the previous 24 hours.

Gunmen from both sides were withdrawing from sandbag and hotel positions though unmanned barriers remained up downtown.

Premier Rashid Karami called on government employees to return to work early Wednesday and urged merchants and bankers to reopen for business. He had made a similar, unheeded call for today.

Interior Minister Camille Chamoun sent the estimated 300 army troops into the downtown area to bolster confidence that, this time, the cease-fire would hold. The troops were placed under police command as an apparent compromise between Chamoun, who has long urged army intervention to halt bloodshed, and Karami, who has refused to call in troops because of Moslem fears they are pro-Christian.

The right-wing Christian Phalange party earlier said its militiamen would not withdraw from four confrontation areas in downtown Beirut and the eastern suburbs until the government provided protection for individuals and businesses.

The merchants' association said "trading cannot resume while all roads are unsafe." Financial spokesmen said the 76 banks in the city of 1.8 million would wait until Thursday before deciding whether to reopen.

Also adopted and approved were minor revisions in the county's Student Discipline policy.

Commissioners named a seven-member committee composed of Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner, Sheriff Ralph Tyson, Pitt Fireman's Association president Lyman Hardee, Pitt Rescue Squad Association president Ashley Dail, Pitt Ambulance Service director John Watson, Greenville Rescue Squad Capt. Tony Brannon and Mid-East Emergency Medical Services Council chairman Stuart Savage to study the proposed emergency communications center and make recommendations for its operation.

While Ford was preparing these announcements, Rockefeller was popping one of his own Monday — he does not wish to stay around next year as Ford's running mate. His withdrawal followed months of pressure from GOP conservatives and some Ford supporters to drop Rockefeller because they claimed he was a political liability with an image too liberal for victory in 1976.

However, both Ford and Rockefeller said it was the vice president's own decision, and Ford denied that he had put any pressure on Rockefeller to step aside.

When Ford was asked at the news conference if he had tried to talk Rockefeller into staying, Ford indicated he had not.

Rockefeller's letter lacked any explanation for his decision or any indication of his future plans, including whether he would support Ford or maybe try for a fourth time for the presidency for himself.

lease procedure for the Authority. The lease guidelines, as well as the grievance procedure that was adopted last month, should strengthen both the rights of the tenant as well as the Housing Authority, the director said.

Both the lease and grievance packages were approved according to guidelines recommended by HUD.

Laney said that interest in the new Section Eight housing program has been expressed by three out-of-town developers and two inquiries have come from local developers.

He noted that most of the developers are taking a cautious approach to the new program since there is currently no Section Eight housing in operation in the nation that could be studied as a guide.

All 531 of the Authority's housing units were occupied during October, according to Mrs. Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, who reported that the overall rent average in the five housing developments was $58.03.

Individual project rent averages included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $50.22; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $59.93; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $60.13; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $61.88; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $53.58.

Commissioners authorized the attendance of two staff members at the Nov. 13-14 meeting of the Carolinas Council of Housing, Redevelopment and Code Officials in Greensboro.

Rockefeller's letter lacked any explanation for his decision or any indication of his future plans, including whether he would support Ford or maybe try for a fourth time for the presidency for himself.

While Ford was preparing these announcements, Rockefeller was popping one of his own Monday — he does not wish to stay around next year as Ford's running mate. His withdrawal followed months of pressure from GOP conservatives and some Ford supporters to drop Rockefeller because they claimed he was a political liability

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

At the start of the 1975 football season, Virginia Coach Sonny Randle found one of his statements flung back at him. Sonny, speaking at one of his off-season appearances, said that if Virginia didn't have a winning season this year, he'd quit.

Now the Virginia press jumped all over that. Some of them were still remembering how they had pooh-poohed Randle when he was coaching at East Carolina and the Pirates had not only beaten Virginia's Richmond, but also VMI and William & Mary and, of all things, won the Southern Conference championship. Sonny made them eat a little crow — whoops, pumpkin — then.

That statement had been connected to Randle's coattails ever since, and after the Cavaliers were stomped by Wake Forest, assuring the Cavs of a losing season, the Virginia writers were right there waiting for the resignation statement.

But it didn't come, and probably won't, unless Sonny decides that the Virginia ratrace isn't worth it — as it may not be.

The North Carolina press, including this writer, have heard Sonnyisms before, and come to take them with a grain of salt. Back when Sonny was preparing for his first game as a head coach, he made the statement that he would resign on Monday morning following the Toledo game if the Bucs didn't score. It was 45-0 that Saturday night, but there was no resignation and no body really expected one.

Sonny went on to have two straight winning seasons before heading back to Virginia, his alma mater. And everyone knew all along that he'd be bidding goodbye to Greenville the first chance he got for that Virginia job.

Saturday, the Pirates and Sonny will be together again — but on opposite sides of the field. The Bucs visit Charlottesville — and Sonny — in the midst of two seasons Randle didn't expect to see.

He wasn't expecting to be losing seven of eight games, and he wasn't expecting the Pirates to be the favorite at game time. He was expecting that many of the players who walked out on him to be around, and he wasn't counting on the high tool of injuries. "We may have nine people who were starters out for this Saturday," he said yesterday.

He's trying not to make the game anything special. "It's just another game," he told us yesterday. "Of course, I guess it's special for me, because of my ties with East Carolina. But I don't know if it's anything special for anyone else. We're not going to prepare any different than for anyone else."

"Right now, we just need to beat anybody." Asked if the Pirate win over North Carolina took a little pressure off him and the Cavs, not having to protect the ACC "honor," Sonny said he didn't think so. "It won't be as earthshattering if East Carolina beats us now, of course, as it would have if North Carolina had won."

"I really wasn't surprised that East Carolina won. In fact, I predicted that they would. I have great confidence in East Carolina as a team."

Randle admitted that this has been an awfully rough year for him. "I can't live with this, being a normal human being," he said. "But I haven't gotten any derogatory mail from the alumni, although some people are upset about the way I coach and the fact that we're not winning. I think the administration is behind us. They've given us no indication that they're not."

Randle pointed out that it is not as easy to build a program at Virginia as other places. "I don't know if there's a tougher situation in the country. And you can't solve it overnight. It's been like this for over 20 years."

Turning to Saturday's game, Randle said he hoped his players put together a game like they did at Vanderbilt. "If they do, it should be some kind of a game. I'm most impressed with East Carolina. I really didn't think they were that good until we started looking at films."

Aside from quarterback Scott Gardiner, one of the best passers in the country, Randle doesn't have too many first class athletes playing football as upperclassmen. He did have a good recruiting year last time out, and is using five freshmen on his defensive unit.

This might be the beginning of something for Virginia, but only time will tell. Sonny may decide to chuck it all come the end of the month.

Rams Show Philadelphia No Respect

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Shades of comedian Rodney Dangerfield.

Philadelphia showed Los Angeles Rams quarterback James Harris and wide receiver Harold Jackson no respect and it cost the Eagles dearly.

Harris explained it after the Rams humiliated the Eagles 42-3 Monday night before 64,601 booning home fans — and millions who must have turned off the nationally televised National Football League game before it was three-quarters over.

"We thought they weren't respecting Harold," Harris said. "They were just squatting on him, letting him go. We tried to earn a little respect by going long."

Boy, did they earn respect. Before Harris stopped his bombing, he had thrown three touchdown passes, 54 and 30 yards to Jackson and 42 yards to Jack Snow. He completed 10 of 20 tosses for 207 yards.

Jackson said he called his first touchdown play.

"On the previous series, Johnny Outlaw (the Eagles' cornerback) just sat there on me. I said to James, 'Look, I can beat my man on straight go patterns,' and I did with a little outside move. Outlaw was looking for me to go deep inside."

Jackson made a joking reference to the Rams' tendency to ram the ball down an opponent's throat rather than pass it over their heads.

"I usually don't see that many passes," said the wide receiver, who was dealt to Los Angeles by the Eagles in the trade for quarterback Roman Gabriel after the 1972 season. "I know I'd better catch them when I do — or I won't see them again." He caught three for 91 yards.

The game was simply a laugher for the Rams, who won their sixth straight since losing their season opener to Dallas. Los Angeles, a pre-season favorite to reach the Super Bowl, now leads the National Conference West by four games with only half the season yet to play.

Defensive end Fred Dryer, who ran 20 yards for a touchdown with a third-quarter Gabriel fumble, put the rout in its proper perspective when, he said: "It wasn't any fun. It was too easy."

Dryer wasn't very kind to the losers. He said some of the Eagles quit. "I empathize with those guys," Dryer began. "But when you lose like they are, obviously something is wrong. They have half the season to correct mistakes. Some quit, some didn't."

Eagles' Coach Mike McCormack, whose job is in jeopardy, was distraught. The tight-lipped McCormack told post game interviewers: "Gentlemen, this is going to be short and sweet. We got our butts kicked by a very good football team. We didn't seem to do anything right. We couldn't execute our offense. It was a total collapse. That's the way it looked to me."

Gabriel was even more broken up than his coach. He usually hangs around and talks in detail with everybody who approaches his locker. He was even shorter than the coach. He could scarcely speak.

"We were humiliated, humiliated, humiliated," the veteran quarterback repeatedly mumbled.

Contest Winners

Fred Taylor of Rt. 4, Box 509, Kinston, is the winner of this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Taylor missed just four of the 32 football games listed in last week's Daily Reflector contest pages to take the top prize.

Second place went to Buddy Overton of 1805 Drewry Lane, Greenville, who correctly picked 27 of the 32 games. Five others also had 27 right, but Overton was closest to the point total with a guess of 63. The actual total was 52, scored in several games.

The next contest appears on the following pages.

Oklahoma Gaining On Top-Ranked Buckeyes

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Second-ranked Oklahoma, the defending national champion, closed in on Ohio State today in The Associated Press college football poll.

Ohio State remained No. 1 for the fifth week in a row but the margin slipped from 106 points to 49 following a hard-fought 24-14 victory over Indiana while Oklahoma was playing one of its better games in trimming Oklahoma State 27-7.

Ohio State's Buckeyes received 38 first-place votes and 1,188 of a possible 1,260 points from a nationwide panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters. The Oklahoma Sooners were No. 1 on 19 ballots and received 1,139 points. Last week's margin was 50-8 in first-place ballots and 1,190-1,084 in total points.

Nebraska, heading toward a Nov. 22 Big Eight showdown against Oklahoma, also gained ground. The third-ranked Cornhuskers received the other six first-place votes and 1,058 points by trouncing Missouri 30-7.

Southern California's 28-14 loss to California dropped the previously unbeaten Trojans from fourth place to ninth. Texas A&M, idle last weekend, moved from fifth to fourth with 802 points.

The next four teams also moved up one position each. Alabama went from sixth to fifth with 665 points following a 21-10 triumph over Mississippi State, Michigan rose from seventh to sixth with 587 points by defeating Minnesota 28-21, Texas climbed from eighth to seventh with 587 points by downing Southern Methodist 30-22 and Penn State moved up from ninth to eighth at 492 points with a 15-13 decision over Maryland.

Southern Cal totaled 426 points with Arizona State once again rounding out the Top Ten with 400 points following a 40-14 drubbing of Utah.

The Second Ten consisted of Florida, Notre Dame, San Diego State, Colorado, Arizona, Maryland, Miami of Ohio, California, Missouri and Pitt.

Last week it was Florida, Missouri, UCLA, Maryland, Notre Dame, Colorado, Arizona, San Diego State and Miami tied for 19th with Oklahoma State.

UCLA dropped out by losing to Washington 17-13 while Oklahoma State's loss to Oklahoma cost the Cowboys their ranking. Meanwhile, California's upset of Southern Cal vaulted the Golden Bears into the Top Twenty for the first time this season. Pitt, which had been ranked three times previously, made it back with a 38-0 rout of Syracuse.

Here are the Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press college football poll, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points based on 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

1.Ohio St. (38)	8-0-0	1,188
2.Oklahoma (19)	8-0-0	1,139
3.Nebraska (6)	8-0-0	1,058

Squires Fire Coach Bianchi

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Al Bianchi, fired as coach of the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association, says his wife "saw the handwriting on the wall when the club changed uniform colors last year."

But the dismissal Monday night of the only coach the Squires had in their five years came more than a year after the team went from red, white and blue to brown, orange and scarlet.

Bianchi, in his 18th season as either a player or coach in the pro ranks, turned down last year a chance to coach the Kentucky Colonels. Virginia wound up with a 15-69 record, worst in ABA history.

Hit by injuries to all-stars Mack Calvin and Mike Green, obtained in a trade with the Denver Nuggets, the Squires began this season by losing six of their first seven starts.

"The owners and management of the club felt a coaching change was necessary," General Manager Jack Ankerson said in announcing the firing. "We will begin a search immediately for a successor."

In the meantime, the Squires will be coached on an interim basis by Calvin, who injured a knee in the third exhibition game and is expected to be out of action at least until December.

"I really wasn't expecting it, but in this business, when things go wrong, they fire the coach and not the players," said Bianchi.

With two years left on a three-year contract reportedly paying him about $60,000 a year, Bianchi said he had no immediate plans.

"I'm going to hang around and see what happens," said Bianchi, who indicated he would decide in the next two months whether he wanted just to sit around or get involved in basketball again.

"I hope they are very successful — the club and whoever takes the job."

But the fiery Bianchi, who probably drew as many technical fouls as any coach in the league, couldn't resist one little dig.

"I hope they sell a lot of sandwiches," Bianchi said. "The Squires' majority owner, Van Cunningham, is owner of a sandwich company."

Despite a five-year 185-235 record with the Squires, Bianchi led Virginia to the regular season Eastern Division championship in 1970-71.

Recreation Football

Wahl-Coates slipped past Eastern, 13-12, yesterday in the Flag Football League.

Rynor Bullock hit James Manning on a 15-yard pass to put Wahl-Coates into the lead in the first period of the game. Kenny Kirkland tied it up, however, intercepting a pass and taking it 50 yards for an Eastern touchdown.

In the second period, Mont Carter scored on a 12-yard sweep to put Eastern into the lead, 12-6, at halftime.

Late in the fourth period, Wahl-Coates drove for the go-ahead score. Bullock hit Steven Holloman for the touchdown, then passed to Holloman again for the conversion that made the difference.

Donald Russell, Steven Holloman and Billy Kittrell led the Wahl-Coates defense, while Kenny Kirkland, Tommy Underwood and Mont Carter starred for Eastern.

Pirates Are Fifth

DURHAM — Atlantic Coast Conference champion Wake Forest gained a slim victory in the Duke Intercollegiate Golf Tournament yesterday, nipping the University of North Carolina.

East Carolinas Pirates finished fifth in the field. Wake finished the 54-hole round with a team score of 1,090. North Carolina was right behind with a score of 1,096. N.C. State finished third with 1,131, while Duke carded a 1,138. East Carolina was fifth with 1,153, followed by Virginia with 1,174.

Scott Hock and Tim Saylor of Wake Forest tied for individual honors with 213's. Bob Caprera of Duke was third with 216, and Mark Andrews of UNC was fourth with a 217.

Mike Heafner led East Carolina with a 227, while Bob Welton carded a 231. Frank Acker had a 232, Mike Buckmaster, 233; Steve Ridge, 234; and Phillip Bell, 241.

Capture Doubles

Frances Cain and Wes Hankins successfully defended their mixed doubles championship in the Greenville Tennis Club's tournament this weekend. The mixed doubles wound up the fall schedule of events for the club.

Mrs. Cain and Hankins downed Nancy Dullard and Gilbert Nensen in the finals, 6-2, 6-2. The champions had beaten Sis East and Jim Bailey in the semi-finals, while the runners-up gained the finals by downing Tom and Ann Sayetta.

Myra and John Hill took a three-set victory over Kathy and Steve Creech for the Flight A title.

Trophies and awards for all of the other championships were presented at the club's annual party, held last week. The club also presented the first annual Ann Aycock Sportsmanship Award, with Myra Hill selected as the first winner.

Captains Are Named

East Carolina University's football team began its preparations for the first meeting ever with the University of Virginia Monday.

Co-captains were named by the coaching staff for the game. They will be Clay Burnett, Skip Russell and Timmy Hightower on offense and Cary Godette and Willie Bryant on defense.

The Bucs, who go into the game with a 6-3 record, will be chasing their fifth straight victory against the Cavaliers, who have won just once in eight starts. Coach Pat Dye, however, warns that the Cavs have a potent offense, and former East Carolina Coach Sonny Randle is sure to have them fired up.

Randle began his preparations for firing the team up yesterday, reporting that Dye and his players had told the Virginia scout at the Furman-ECU game Saturday night that East Carolina planned to "kick Virginia good." The quote was reported during Randle's Monday press conference.

HOW MUCH IS YOUR BANK CHARGING YOU FOR "FREE CHECKING"?

Lately, every bank and its uncle is offering you "free checking."

In fact, if you have regular checking, "free checking" is probably what your bank says you've got.

The problem, of course, is the $100 minimum balance most of those "free" accounts require.

Because, if you're like most people, you can't afford to let $100 lie around the bank doing nothing.

But, if you choose not to keep the $100 balance, you may find yourself paying $40 or $50 a year in service charges.

Either way, it gets very expensive.

FREE CHECKING. IS IT, REALLY?

We did some calculating, not long ago, to see how much "free checking" was costing the average person.

And the answers we came up with certainly didn't look "free" to us.

For one thing, you were losing the interest you could have been earning on that $100 balance.

For another, if your balance fell to $99.99 for one day, you had to pay a service charge for the whole month.

Which, when we looked at it from your point of view and not just from ours, hardly seemed fair.

THE HIGH COST OF FREE CHECKING

These figures are based on statistics which show that the average person writes 16 checks per month and drops below the $100 minimum balance 6 months per year.

96 checks (16 checks x 6 months) at average cost of 13¢ per check $12.48

Interest earned on $100 minimum balance, if deposited in 5% regular savings for one year 5.12

Total annual "free checking" cost. . . . $17.60

"Sure, I've got free checking. I pay for it by the month."

"We don't have free checking. We can't afford it."

OUR BANK REALLY OR FREE CHECKING?

"My free checking account cost me $4.58 last month."

"My bank says I have free checking. I say 'Phooey!'"

So we decided to see if we could find a better way.

We came up with The Triple Option. Three ways to get checking with no service charge. And with no minimum checking balance.

Pick the option you like, then stop by and open your account. (If you bank with us now, and you want The Triple Option, just ask to have your account switched over.)

HOW THE TRIPLE OPTION WORKS.

You get no-service-charge checking if you keep $500 in regular savings.

Or if you start an automatic savings program and make deposits of $25 or more a month.

Or if you have Cash Reserve. Even if you're not using it.

Just choose the one option you think works best for you.

THE NCNB TRIPLE OPTION

OPTION 1

Ask us to set up an NCNB Automatic Savings program for you, with deposits of at least $25 a month.

OPTION 2

Maintain a balance of $500 or more in NCNB Regular Savings.

OPTION 3

Add NCNB Cash Reserve to your regular checking account.

The Triple Option is offered in addition to our present checking plans.

Then you won't ever have to pay service charges again. No matter what your checking balance is. No matter how many checks you write. The NCNB Triple Option.

It's for people who can't afford the high cost of free checking, any more.

For information about The Triple Option, or any other NCNB service, call us toll-free at 800-822-8855. Member FDIC.

Star-Struck Go To Ad Agencies

By FRED T. FERGUSON
 NEW YORK (UPI) - Many of the star-struck would-be actors and actresses who once scrimped for a bus ticket to Hollywood now go in the opposite direction.

The key to the door of fame and fortune now turns through modeling - television commercials and other ads. And the top ad agencies are in New York.

A majority of models interviewed at one of New York's top agencies said they were modeling their way to an acting career. But the percentage who actually see their names in lights is still small.

Bill Weinberg, executive vice president of the Wilhelmina stable of models, one of the largest, pointed to the more than 100 models posed on a staircase and said, "there is $5 million a year on the hoof in models there but you may be looking at only five or six future motion picture stars."

"A goodly number of today's actors and actresses have been models in the past but the percentage that actually make it from modeling is small," he said.

Two who came directly from California on the reverse stardom route are Dru Wagner, 21, of Thousand Oaks, and Tim McCavitt, 25, of Redwood City.

Dru was an exercise instructor at a health spa and also worked in a bakery.

"The women from the spa would sneak away when they saw me at the bakery," she said.

She spent much of her time at tennis and surfing but says, "I always wanted to act and I'd put my foot in these weird things to be seen."

This included getting on television game shows where she was spotted by Weinberg, who brought her to the agency.

She said her modeling now helps her prepare for television and the stage because "this is the still photography of acting."

"We're both buying ourselves a little time until the right acting job comes through," said Tim, who came east by a circuitous route.

After graduation from the University of Washington, he passed up acceptances to law school "to do things young people do" in Mexico. He returned to Seattle to sell insurance, and went to Alaska as a tour guide and to British Columbia to run a trap line from a mountain cabin.

Again in Seattle, he got "hungry job hunting for six months" and tried a modeling agency where he was hired immediately and subsequently "discovered by friends of Wilhelmina."

"The gods have been smiling since," he said.

Katherine Roberts, 23, found it easy to get on local television in her hometown of Jacksonville, Fla., until "one day I decided this was the day and flew up and walked into Wilhelmina."

It was the first place she tried and in her four months of modeling since she has already done perfume commercials for television and cosmetic ads for magazines.

Intent on becoming "a serious actress", she works with an improvisational theater group and hopes to be accepted for training by Actors Studio.

Pat Webster, who models as "Trisha", is a native of Salina, Kans. as "An Air Force brat" she traveled the world with her pilot father's transfers until she wound up in Mount Holly, N.J., where she was a high school cheerleader and "everyone said I should be a model."

She broke in the hard way, as a $60-a-week booking girl in a New York agency until a photographer friend helped her put together a portfolio with which she got the same agency to let her model at $60-an-hour.

"I'm bored to death but glad I did it," said Pat. "I spend my spare time studying singing and dancing."

A divorcee "living with six dogs and three cats," she has a bit movie part and appeared off Broadway and says her pets also act.

"They do TV commercials and modeling."

But Nancy Dutiell, 22, of Dayton, Ohio, after three years of modeling, likes her work and is one who has put off a decision on the future.

"A disadvantage is that some people think of you as just a pretty face," said Nancy. Will she also try to make it in show business?

"I have a lot of time to decide about that," she said.

But at some point the models reach the "make it or break it" point.

"The modeling career is so short-lived," said Wilhelmina, looking at her models. "They need to make all they can of it - the exposure on television commercials and in ads and the money to prepare themselves."

Written Before Hearst Case

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The beginning of the new film "Abduction" carries the message that it is based on a novel, "Black Abductor," and "any similarity to persons living or dead is coincidental." That may arouse doubt among moviegoers, since the leading character is an heiress named Patricia who is abducted from the campus apartment she shares with a boyfriend and is converted to the violent philosophy of her radical captors.

The parallel to the still unfolding Patricia Hearst drama is uncanny, yet at least part of the similarity seems unwitting. "Abduction," filmed a year ago on a moderate budget of "slightly under $500,000" by independent producer Kent E. Carroll, is based on a novel which was published before the Hearst kidnaping.

"The book was discovered by the New York Post, which did an article about the remarkable similarities with the Hearst case," Carroll said by telephone from New York. "The heroine was named Patricia, her family was a symbol of wealth in her state, she lived at the University of California at Berkeley with her boyfriend, her abductors were men and women, black and white, and it was a political kidnaping." Carroll, 33, said that because the book — written by a California engineer in his mid-40s — was in print before the Hearst kidnaping, the FBI looked into the possibility that the book was a basis for the caper but found no connection with the actual case. At the time, Carroll worked at Grove Press, which published a paperback and considered a film version. Grove dropped the project and Carroll decided to try his hand at independent production.

He raised the financing from private sources, and "Abduction" was filmed in 35 days in Long Island and upstate New York. Documentary filmmaker Joseph Zito, 29, directed from Carroll's script. Judith-Marie Bergan, 24-year-old TV commercial actress from Terre Haute, Ind., plays Patricia, and her parents are Hollywood veterans Dorothy Malone and Leif Erickson.

Variety reported that "Abduction" was originally designed as a hardcore porno film. Carroll hedged: "There was no serious plan to make a hardcore film."

He admitted that some of the sex scenes were explicit "because of the reality that the director required," and it could have been an X-rated movie. Cuts were made, and "Abduction" is rated R, amazingly so, considering the raw sex and terrorist-style language.

Season Has Begun For Those Ginseng Hunters

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer
PRINCETON, W. Va. (AP) — A special breed of hunter is combing Appalachia's hills and hollows again this fall — a breed that carries shovels instead of shotguns.

These hunters are searching for a five-leaved plant with bright, red berries. Some of them may want to eat their quarry, but many would rather sell it.

They're after ginseng, the "magic root."

"Sang is selling for $60 a pound these days, and quite a few people are out digging for it," said S.D. Fuller.

Fuller is one of the biggest ginseng exporters in this part of the country. He has barrels of the pale, gnarled roots in his office here, and he's in the market for more.

"You have to dig about three pounds of it this time of year to get a pound by the time it's dried," he said. "See that root over there on the wall, the big one shaped like a carrot? Well, it weighed 10 ounces when it was brought in and now it goes about two ounces."

Fuller's father, who died last year at the age of 80, began buying ginseng nearly 40 years ago and handled a half a million dollars worth annually at the time of his death.

"He believed in sang, just like the Chinese do," said the son. "He ate a piece of ginseng or drank some ginseng tea every day. He said it kept him young."

Fuller's roots come from various sources but mostly from area dealers who buy from the hundreds of folks who love to traipse through the hills, looking for "sang," as it is known here in Appalachia. The plant is especially sought after in the fall when its telltale berries make it easier to spot.

"Sang don't like the sun," Fuller said. "It grows in shady hollows in acid soil. Usually near oak trees. I buy it from all over this part of the country and find that North Carolina has especially nice roots."

Fuller periodically sends his roots to New York. He says they are invariably purchased by Chinese agents who ship them to Hong Kong. "The Chinese love ginseng. Occasionally, they'll even come down here and get it from me personally. Many Chinese believe it restores the body and the brain and stimulates the sexual organs."

While most of his ginseng comes from the woods, Fuller said he does have a couple of suppliers who cultivate their own crops.

"But cultivated sang brings only about $17 a pound," he added. "It doesn't have the character of wild sang. The Chinese can tell in a minute. Besides, sang takes 10 years to grow and most people don't want to wait that long. They hunt it for a hobby, and they like the thrill of finding a wild bed in the woods."

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Confusing, illusive, or deceptive conditions can be adverse for you now, so stick to what has proved successful, proper and conventional, and you achieve much of value. Think out ways to place your future on a better planned basis, and you make big strides forward.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Concentrate on getting your present aims working more efficiently, instead of jumping into some new venture you know little about.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make plans privately, otherwise others could gain at your expense. Carry through in a methodical manner. Cooperate more with mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Good day to state your own aims with partners, listen to theirs. Then you operate together more ideally. Sociable p.m.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listen to what others have to say about some new venture you have in mind. Profit by their ideas and get needed information.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get into the right kind of amusements if you really want to enjoy yourself today, and steer clear of danger. Avoid cheap thrills.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep any promises you have made and do not go against the wishes of family. Be more affectionate with mate. Take no financial chances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Rely more upon what associates have to say instead of listening so much to outsiders and you have better results. Reach for higher things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Instead of worrying about the monetary side of your job so much, find the right new wrinkle that will make it better paying.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Test your ideas against your best judgment today instead of using intuition. Go for advice to those who have succeeded.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Expand into better paying and more interesting new outlets. You can handle necessary routines later. Enjoy socials in p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day to handle monetary affairs since you could make serious mistakes, but fine for strengthening bonds with valuable friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Important to keep promises made to others, especially higher-ups. Study own ideas to decide whether they're as worthwhile as you think.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a born philosopher and should be given ample religious and ethical training to make the most of this wonderful quality. Give as fine a college training as you can, stressing both logic and reasoning, and then your progeny can reach the pinnacle of success and be a source of great inspiration to others. A fine sport in this chart and lover of humanity.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Opening lead: King of ♥.

Many of us tend to relax when we have a very bad hand, assuming erroneously that we can have no influence on the outcome of a hand. A wide-awake East and a thoughtful West combined to bring South to his knees on this hand from a rubber bridge game aboard a cruise ship.

Take note of South's jump to two spades over his partner's takeout double. Since he was being forced to bid, a response of one spade would promise no particular strength—indeed, the bid could be made with a bust. A jump response to a takeout double is not forcing; it merely shows a hand of some 9-11 points, and the doubler is allowed to pass if he acted originally on minimum values. Here, however, North was considerably stronger than he needed to be for his double, but since South might have only a four-card spade suit, North showed his extra values by bidding a new suit. When South rebid his spades, North was quite happy to go on to game.

West led the king of hearts, and when dummy came down the defensive prospects looked grim. Unless East held a singleton heart, it seemed that the defenders would be limited to two heart tricks and the ace of trumps. However, West realized that his nine of trumps offered some hope. If East held two trumps higher than the six, the defenders could accomplish a trump promotion.

At trick two West led the queen of hearts and, when that held, he continued with a low heart. Had East been lulled into carelessness because of his seemingly hopeless hand, he might have ruffed with the two, and the contract would have been impregnable. But East knew from the play of the first two tricks that West held the ace of hearts. Yet, instead of trying to cash that card, West had deliberately led a low card to dummy's jack. The only reason was that West wanted his partner to trump high, and East obliged with the seven.

Declarer overruffed, crossed to the king of clubs and led a spade to his queen. West won the ace and continued with hearts. Declarer did the best he could by ruffing with dummy's eight, but East overruffed with the ten, forcing declarer's king. The nine of trumps was now established as the setting trick.

How do you choose your best opening lead? Charles Goren provides the answers in his new book, "Winning Opening Leads." For a copy, write to "Goren Leads," c/o this newspaper, P. O. Box 259, Norwood, New Jersey 07048. Enclosed $1.25 in cash or checks, payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

Cub Scouts Get Awards

Awards were presented at a Tuesday night meeting of Cub Scout Pack 330.

Packmaster Jim Whitehurst presented the Bobcat Award to Jeff Breedlove, Scott Pollard, and Tim Perry; Arrow Points to Brian Averett and Doyle Kirkland; a one-year pin to Tony Little. David Jester and Doyle Kirkland were initiated into the Order of Akela by Bob Lang, assisted by Whitehead. Lang inspected uniforms. Den 4 and Webelos Den 1 won first place for inspection; Den 3, second place; and Den 5, third place.

The program was "The World of Sound." The Webelos Den demonstrated two types of sound—conversation and singing. Den 3 did audience participation of the recognizing of familiar sounds. Den 4 sang to the accompaniment of different sound instruments. Den 5 spelled their names using the sign language alphabet and performed a skit with each scout acting out a particular sound.

Den 3 was the winner of the Chubby Cubby Award for Attendance and did the closing ceremony with the Living Circle and the Cub Scout Promise. The November Pack meeting will be held Tuesday, Nov. 25.

Gill Breaks His Collar Bone

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Treasurer Edwin Gill was reported in satisfactory condition after breaking his collarbone Monday at his home.

Gill, state treasurer since 1953, stayed at Rex Hospital after being placed in a cast. He was expected to be "up and around in a few days," a treasurer's office spokesman said.

Gill was injured when he fell in his bedroom shortly after awakening.

"I don't know if he slipped or tripped, but somehow he broke his collarbone," Dennis Ducker, an assistant to Gill, said. He said the injury was painful, though not serious.

Gill has also served as state commissioner of paroles and commissioner of revenue.

Connally Say's He'd Accept

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally says he is not interested in the vice presidency but will accept the post if President Ford asks him to be his running mate next year.

"I am not going to say I would refuse to serve my country," Connally said at a news conference Monday before a $100-a-plate state GOP fundraising dinner.

He said he does not believe he will be offered the position, which Vice President Nelson Rockefeller said Monday he would not seek.
