Teachers Call For Salary Supplements

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer
Approximately 300 teachers and community people attended the Pitt County Board of Education meeting yesterday afternoon at Bethel Elementary School to request salary supplements for Pitt County teachers.

Information presented at yesterday's meeting was compiled by the following members of Pitt County Association of Classroom Teachers: Jackie Staley, Myriam Harris, Arlene Hoot, Helen Johnson, Isabelle Wicker and Sharon Clayton. Mrs. Harris read and explained 10 reasons why the teachers should receive salary supplements. "Since the ultimate goal of the Pitt County Board of Education and all educators is to provide children of Pitt County with the best possible education, a competitive salary will provide more experienced and qualified applicants and maintain quality teachers," Mrs. Harris said. "The Endicott Report reveals that teachers start out lower than most other college graduates and fall steadily further behind." She stated that teachers have now received their first paycheck of the year and the lack of a salary increase for 1975-76 has been driven home. Given the increased deductions which applied this year, many NCAE members have found themselves with fewer actual dollars, even before inflation is counted in. "It is not surprising, then, that teacher unrest is on the rise," Mrs. Harris stated. "Public school educators have had no general salary increase since the fall of 1974, and that increase was only five percent in a year when inflation ate up more than 10 percent of the dollar's purchasing power." According to the report presented by Mrs. Harris, the educator's salary has stood still while prices have continued to rocket upward. "The paycheck cannot be stretched much thinner. "Can Pitt County teachers feel an interest in their welfare from the superintendent, from the Pitt County Board of Education, from the county commissioners, or from their respective communities when faced with such statements as: "If you are not satisfied with the system, East Carolina provides replacements?" Another reason given for the need for supplements was the fact that teachers work long hours during evenings and weekends, and many extra hours have been added as a result of the accreditation process outlined by the state and Southern Association.

ACT conducted a survey among Pitt County teachers asking the number of hours spent working on school-related materials after the regular school day ends. The results showed an average of 734 hours spent for this purpose. It was also pointed out that teachers do not receive travel expenses or supplements for attending workshops, meetings and extra-curricular activities.

Teachers estimated that a total of 4,160 miles are driven each year to and from work to workshops, professional meetings and other school functions. ACT also stated that teachers spent their own money to provide materials to enhance learning for the Pitt County students. An ACT poll reported that an average expenditure of $111.82 per year was made by (Continued on page 7)

Good Voter Turnout In Most Of Pitt Communities

By TOM BAINES

Interesting races developed in several of the county municipalities holding elections Tuesday as a high percentage of the registered voters in most of the eight towns visited the polls. According to unofficial tabulations pending Thursday's canvass, the following results were recorded in yesterday's balloting: Ayden Ayden voters returned the entire city governing slate to office yesterday, including the mayor and the five members of the Board of Commissioners. With 412 of the 1,689 registered voters exercising their polling privileges, Ayden citizens reelected Ross Persinger to another term as mayor, giving him a decisive 352 to 57 margin over challenger Renee Roberson. Four of the town's five ward seats involved no opposition as Carl Speight (329 votes), Robert G. Harris (356), J. Elliott Dixon (348) and J. J. Brown (341) were all returned. Incumbent Harry

Mumford was also reelected as he defeated Kermit Dixon Jr. 332 to 67. Grifton With Grifton voting 497 out of a registration of 922, voters chose Jimmie Lewis (329), C. Steven Rogers (253), and John Coward Jr. (229) to fill the three commissioner seats. Coward was the only incumbent to gain reelection as the other two members of the board, Catherine Condon and Ed Haseley, failed in their election bids with 121 and 120 votes, respectively. William Bollinger received 188 votes and Ray Craft polled 196 to round out the Grifton voting. Simpson The three incumbent members of the town council of the Village of Simpson were all reelected yesterday with Junior Lee Dail leading the way with 11 votes and followed by John T. McDonald Jr. and Leonard J. Hardee with 102 votes each. A mayor will be chosen from among the three to head the council. McDonald currently holds that post. Challengers Jasper R. Hodges and Hyman Earl Boyd received 40 and 38 votes, respectively, in the Simpson balloting which recorded a good turnout of 149 voters out of a registration of 198.

Winterville Winterville, voting less than half of its registration, returned one incumbent and unelected another in balloting for the two seats on the Board of Aldermen. Incumbent E. C. Hones was reelected with 204 votes while newcomer Daniel C. (Danny) Martin Jr. received 199 votes to gain the second seat. Martin ousted incumbent Calvin C. Henderson who received only 133 votes in his bid for reelection. With 703 persons on the books in Winterville, 321 voted in the municipal election.

Fountain Unopposed mayoral candidate Carter C. Smith received 54 votes in Fountain to win election as 75 out of 214 registered voters visited the polls. Elected to the five commissioners seats were Scott Peele with 72 votes, N. A. Gardner with 70, William W. Walker with 67, Hilton Owens with 66, and Bruce Beasley with 64 votes. Lucille Lamm trailed with 22 votes.

Canvass Thursday

The official canvass of votes polled in yesterday's municipal elections in Bethel, Falkland, Fountain, Simpson and Winterville will be conducted on Thursday, Nov. 6 at 11 a.m. at the office of the Pitt Board of Elections on Second Street. The elections in those five municipalities were conducted by the Pitt Board of Elections and the canvass will involve the named towns. The voting canvass in Ayden, Grimesland and Grifton will also be conducted at 11 a.m. Thursday but in the three towns independently since they conducted their own elections.

ECU SGA Votes Inquiry Into Riot

East Carolina University's Student Government Association has passed a resolution establishing a special committee to investigate the October 31 riot in downtown Greenville that resulted in 56 persons being arrested and a number of business firms being vandalized. In addition SGA president Jimmy Honeycutt and Mike Taylor, editor of the student newspaper "Fountainhead" have both called for an investigation of the incident by the Greenville City Council or the State Bureau of Investigation. The SGA resolution said "The police-student confrontation in downtown Greenville on the night of October 31... showed a lack of good judgment and responsibility on the part of many involved, both police and students," and noted "a degree of hostility does exist now between the students of this campus and the civil authorities of Greenville." The resolution continued,

"Many questions remain pertaining to the use of force shown by the civil authorities of Greenville on the night of October 31. "This Student Government has a responsibility to the student body to find out what did happen on the night of October 31... and to decide on some course of action, including the options of a possible lawsuit or boycott if the facts warrant that course." The resolution called for a report from the special committee — including "recommendation or recommendations of action by this SGA on behalf of the students of East Carolina University" — by November 10. SGA executive assistant Tim Sullivan was named chairman of the investigating committee, which met last night and will hold meetings both tonight and Thursday night at 6:30 in the Mendenhall Student Center. "If any student has something to say, get a written statement to us at SGA between now and Thursday. We want your name, dates, facts. We mean business," Sullivan said. "If we have adequate facts to back us up," Sullivan continued, "I believe..." the SGA will go along with the committee's recommendations. However, Sullivan said of a possible boycott of downtown merchants or a lawsuit, "that's the last thing we'd want." Thirty of the 56 persons charged in connection with the Halloween incident were ECU students. In calling for an investigation of the incident by the city council or the SBI, Taylor said "there are dozens of stories concerning the Friday night incident. The versions of these differ greatly and a thorough investigation is needed." The newspaper editor emphasized, "This investigation should not be done by the police, but by the council or SBI. Thirty ECU students were among the 56 persons arrested in connection with the incident."

Falkland Oscar Lee Norville was elected mayor of Falkland yesterday as voters gave him a write-in victory over announced mayoral candidates James R. Norville and Adele Stocks. The write-in count gave Oscar Norville 22 votes while James Norville polled 18 and Adele Stocks received 12. Mayor Bill Jones did not seek reelection. Charles E. Mayor Jr. led the Council balloting with 49 votes and was elected along with W. W. Wooten who received 31 write-in votes, and Elmer C. Harrell with 25 votes. Martin Dunn polled 15 votes and J. P. Stancill received ten as announced candidates while Julia Lawrence tallied 17 votes as a write-in choice. Falkland voters polled roughly 90 per cent as 55 out of 62 registered visited the balloting site. Grimesland Grimesland also had a good

Tax Reduction Is Extended By Ullman's Panel

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee expects to give final approval Thursday to legislation that extends this year's income tax reductions but that liberals claim fails to make enough tax revisions. A major item in the bill is a $12.7 billion plan to continue some 1975 personal income tax cuts into 1976. This amounts to an added $2.6 billion tax cut next year compared with the tax cuts already in effect this year. The current tax cuts expire at the end of 1975. The committee is scheduled to give its formal approval to the bill Thursday with the goal of getting the legislation to the full House later this month. President Ford has proposed a larger tax cut tied to a spending ceiling for the fiscal year starting next Oct. 1, and he has threatened to veto any tax cut that lacks a ceiling.

Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., defended the measure against liberal Democrats who claimed the panel watered down major tax revisions. Ullman said it is "still the most comprehensive tax reform bill we've had in a long time." Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-Ill., one of the critics, complained that the committee "cut out a whole of a lot of revenue" during a marathon session late Tuesday. He contended that "the over-all impact of this bill is less than reform." Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., told Ullman, "It may be reform in your book, Mr. Chairman, but it is not reform in my book." When the committee began work Tuesday, the tax-revision features would have gained for the Treasury a net $1.3 billion for 1976, rising to $2.8 billion for 1981. When work ended Tuesday night, the gain was down to $700 million for 1976.

BLUE LAW

I'd like to know how particular items are classified in relation to Greenville's blue law. My wife went to Eckerd's Sunday and they refused to sell her a personal hygiene item saying it was wearing apparel. I just can't understand denying people the right to buy things I would consider necessary and then allowing alcoholic beverages to be sold on Sunday. W. H.

Yours is a difficult question, Greenville City Manager Harry Hagerty said, as was that of the man who kept him from seeing the last half of the Dallas-Washington football game Sunday afternoon. The blue law have become quite an emotional issue in Greenville, he said, and it's going to be reviewed at tomorrow night's City Council meeting.

Greenville's Ordinance for the Proper Observance of Sunday does include clothing and wearing apparel in items not to be sold, and, though he does question the interpretation of wearing apparel used by the clerk who waited on your wife, it is left up to the stores to do their own interpretation, and is no doubt not always pleasant for them either. Furniture, housewares, appliances, and hardware are also among the prohibited items.

The selling of beer and wine on Sundays is allowed by State Law, he pointed out.

MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS

Someone called me and asked that I collect on my block for the Multiple Sclerosis Drive. I did two Saturdays ago. When I took the money to Wachovia Bank, though, the teller I talked to wouldn't take the money. I wish I knew who to contact to ask what to do about it. Mrs. E. G.

Mrs. Gail Meeks in the Greenville City Manager's Office told us Smith Kirkland of Southeastern Cash Register Company is the local M. D. Drive chairman.

Kirkland said you must have gone to the bank so early that all the tellers had not been informed of the arrangement to have Wachovia accept contributions from the block chairmen. This is the designated week of the drive, he said, and he promised to check with his bank man again and make sure all Wachovia personnel at all its Greenville branches are aware of the plan. He said he was glad you brought the potential problem to his attention.

Advisory Council Role Is Honored At Dinner

BETHEL—Approximately 125 persons attended a dinner honoring advisory council members from the various schools in the Pitt County system last night at Bethel Elementary School. Gene Causby, assistant state superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction, was the guest speaker, at the meeting, which was sponsored by the Pitt County Board of Education. Causby commended the advisory council members for their involvement in the important work of educating the children in our schools. "We are working to get other people involved in the schools," Causby said. "We understand the issues and problems better when we are involved than when we are bystanders." Causby, emphasizing that work is neither simple nor easy, stated that much progress has been made in education in North Carolina during the past few years. "One of the areas that much progress can be seen in is the area of programs for exceptional children, children with special needs. Today, the education system is meeting the needs of 60 percent of the exceptional children as compared to only 18 percent within the past five years. "I hope we use good judgment in our decision making," Causby said. "There is a lot of criticism" (Continued on Page 12)

Lengthy Agenda Awaits City Council Thursday

A lengthy 28-item agenda is scheduled for consideration on Thursday at the City Council's 8 p.m. session at city hall.

The meeting will mark the closing session of the current city governing board as the newly elected mayor and council will take office at the December meeting.

Items to be considered include: (old business), appointments to boards and commissions; public hearing on a mobile home permit; public hearing on annexation of Windy Ridge Subdivision; public hearing on rezoning Camelot Subdivision from RA-20 to R-15; public hearing on an amendment to the zoning ordinance; Consideration of an ordinance amending the fire district in the Central Business District Project; applications for renewal of mobile home permits; a request by the Recreation Commission for an appropriation to carry out improvements at Jaycee Park; and public hearing to discuss proposed amendments to the 1975-76 Community Development Budget.

Items under new business include: consideration of bids on aerial surveys and topographic mapping; review of the city's Blue Law ordinance; consideration of a request by Greenville 200 for payment of its outstanding bank notes; Requests by Greenville Art Center for funds to make repairs and improvements to the Art Center building; request by the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association for allocation for Christmas decorations; Agreement with the North Carolina Department of Transportation; sale of disposal parcels in the CBD;

resolution authorizing the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority to enter into an agreement with the state on the SDF-Localizer Approach System to be installed at the airport;

Requests for taxicab operator's permits; request for rezoning property on Fornes Road from R-9 to R-6; request for rezoning property on N.C. 30 from RA-20 to Unoffensive Industry;

Proposed amendments to the zoning ordinance; recommended revisions to the city code relative to public works; request for waiver of privilege license; request for release of paving assessment;

Consideration of releases and refunds of taxes and penalties; bids on Utilities insurance and construction; bids on fire hose; bids on a welder for the Public Works Department; and bids on city vehicles.

Wig Maker Edith Imre Tells Of Hair Weaving

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

It's wonderful to see yourself without a bald spot when you wake in the morning and look in the mirror, says Edith Imre, well-known wig maker.

She was talking about the little hairpiece she wears, one that covers a spot of thinning hair and is woven right into her own hair.

"We've had hairpieces for a long time, of course, but at night they had to be removed. In the morning the image wasn't so pretty. Hair weaving solves that blight on the mirror. The hairpiece is woven right into the hair and is permanent until it grows out and must be retightened."

It is a different technique from the hair weaving that is done onto one's scalp. In this newer method nothing goes through the scalp and it is a shorter process.

There is a base which is put over the spot and acts like a bridge. Then it is woven into the true hair "sewn like the finest buttonhole," explains Mrs. Imre, illustrating by showing a snap opening which permits the hair to be washed.

Although Mrs. Imre looked into this method of hair weaving 25 or so years ago, the wig business was moving so swiftly she put the idea aside as being too time consuming to work out. About a year and a half ago she opened a small men's department in her salon to begin the weaving in a serious way.

"Ninety per cent of men's wigs are badly done, the main reason we started the wig department and weaving. Even on television you will see performers whose hairpieces can be spotted instantly. With hair weaving you don't have that telltale line."

More women seem to be having bald spots, particularly young people, even some in their 20s, she says.

Actually she learned the weaving technique long ago by observing black hairdressers in Harlem who were "using the kind of equipment shoemakers use to do the job."

She considered that a little time consuming and finally hit on a method using other tools and surgical glue and has had "a very positive reaction."

There is a tremendous necessity for the undetectable coverage, she insists. A woman can wear a wig and let the whole world know it but somehow she doesn't like to see those bald spots.

For 32 years Mrs. Imre has been a leading maker of wigs, a trend setter. She has designed them for big stores and little shops, and they've been available in her own salon. Nowadays the wig business is off in some areas, but she is still making wigs, particularly upon referrals from hospitals and doctors. As the result of some treatments — cobalt, for example — some patients lose their hair, she explains, and there is a big need for hairpieces and wigs.

Title IX Plan Discussed At NOW Meeting

Plans for eliminating sex discrimination at East Carolina University were outlined at a recent meeting of the Eastern Carolina Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) by the director of ECU's Equal Opportunity Programs Office.

Dr. David B. Stevens and Richard Farris reported recent steps taken at ECU to initiate changes in response to Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972. Title IX regulations, prohibiting sex bias in all aspects of public education, were published this past summer.

"Title IX provides that no educational institution which receives federal financial assistance can use sex alone as a basis for how it treats its students or employees," said Dr. Stevens.

The speakers summarized the structure of a campus-wide committee, composed of ECU students, faculty and staff members, who will oversee reforms in the functional areas of admissions policies, housing, academic programs, counseling services, financial aid, athletics, student affairs and employment.

ECU's Title IX reform in every area except athletics must be reported and initiated by July 22, 1976.

Residence Hall Elects Officers

Residents of East Carolina University's Mary Hemphill Greene Dormitory have elected new officers for the 1975-76 academic year.

Elizabeth Renee Wilson of Havelock was elected residence hall coordinator. Assistant coordinator is Toni Eleanor Britt of Goldsboro.

New secretary-treasurer is Merrily Sue Standley of Havelock.

The three new officers will plan evening programs and other activities for the 402-resident dormitory, and assist Greene Dormitory's residence administrator, Sara C. Lee.

Parents Have Right To Limit Gifts

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: With Christmas approaching, my in-laws have already started to buy presents for our son (their only grandchild), which presents a problem.

Even though they know that we bought him a small tricycle for his third birthday last month, they have already bought him a racing car and a fire truck to drive. In addition to that, they've bought him a sled, a desk and chair set, an elaborate aquarium and a cowboy outfit, complete with a wooden "horse" to ride. And they are still buying!

We know they enjoy shopping for their only grandson, but showering him with presents creates problems. Our gifts and the gifts of the other grandparents who can't afford much will look like nothing. Also, our son will not be able to appreciate anything.

Abby, do we have the right to limit the amount of gifts my husband's parents give our child?

My husband says we shouldn't deprive them of this pleasure. I disagree.

AWAITING YOUR WORD

DEAR ABBY: I vote with you. If your parents want to indulge the child, suggest that they buy him one gift and start a savings account for him. The boy may not appreciate it now, but he will when it's time to go to college.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are senior citizens. We live in the suburbs and do not drive.

When we are invited out, is it proper to ask the hostess if she has invited someone who lives near us and drives and if he wouldn't mind meeting us at a convenient bus stop or picking us up? And if it's proper to ask, who should call these people to make the arrangements? The hostess or us?

If we could get there by a simple bus ride there would be no problem. But the places we're usually invited to require two or three bus transfers or are places that can't be reached by bus at all.

We realize that taxis are available, but they're too expensive for us.

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: It is not improper to inquire. However, the thoughtful hostess who is aware of your circumstances will make appropriate suggestions when possible. (P.S. Chronic ride-alongs should remember to reward the driver with a modest gift.)

'Baking' Beans In Slow Cooker

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When an electric slow cooker came into our kitchen, the first dish we wanted to use it for was "baked" beans. A glance over slow cooker cookbooks suggested several methods. The following recipe gives one we found successful. Here the beans are rinsed, turned into the slow cooker and precooked in water for eight hours; other ingredients are added and the cooking is finished in another 10 to 12 hours.

"Baked" beans cooked this way are tender throughout but still have a little bite — a dente as Italians say. We served half the beans right after cooking; the rest were refrigerated for several days and quickly but thoroughly reheated in our countertop microwave oven — a plus for eaters who want their beans on the really soft side.

It's only fair to say that several factors influence the results. "A Teaching Manual on Slow Cooking" published by the manufacturers of the slow cooker we used sums these up in the wisest words we have yet seen on the subject. Their home economist writes: "In long-time, low-temperature cooking, the proper softening of beans depends on the age and moisture content of the package when purchased, and the hardness of water." She also warns that in preparing "baked" beans in the slow cooker it is necessary to precook the beans in water first because when sweetening or acids are added before this precooking they cause the beans to harden "so that no degree of cooking will provide proper softening."

The apples in this recipe are an interesting addition. The idea hails from Michigan and is said to be popular in families of bean and apple growers in that state. It's easy to understand why!

SLOW COOKER "BAKED" BEANS (Michigan Style)
1 pound (2 to 2½ cups) dry red kidney or pea (navy) beans
3 cups water
4 slices bacon, cut into ½-inch crosswise pieces
3 cups chopped pared tart apple
2 cups chopped onion
½ cup dark corn syrup
½ cup catchup
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon pepper

Rinse and pick over beans; turn into an electric slow cooker with water; cover and set control at low. Cook 8 hours. Meanwhile stir together bacon, apple, onion, corn syrup, catchup, salt, mustard and pepper; cover tightly and refrigerate — as long as 8 hours if you like. After beans have cooked with the water for the required time, stir in the apple mixture. Keep covered, with control set at low, and continue cooking until beans are tender throughout but still firm enough to have some bite — 10 to 12 hours. Makes about 2 quarts.

Note: If you work away from home, you can cook the beans in the water overnight and prepare and then refrigerate the apple mixture overnight. The next morning, add the apple mixture to the beans and let cook while you are away during the day. The dish will be ready to serve for supper.

Couple Weds Friday In Double Ring Ceremony

The marriage of Betty Ann Burroughs and Jamie Mixon Bonner Jr. was solemnized Friday at 8:00 p.m. at the home of the brother-in-law and sister of the bride, the Rev. and Mrs. Ray Webb of Rt. 1, Greenville.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Quincy Burroughs of Rt. 9, Greenville, and Mrs. Sadie Bonner of Bonnerton, and the late Mr. Jamie Bonner Sr.

The double ring, candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. Webb.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white dotted swiss fashioned with an empire gathered waistline, butterfly sleeves and square neckline trimmed in lace. The gown was made by her grandmother. Her elbow length veil of illusion was attached to a lace bow beaded with pearls.

After a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, the couple will reside in Bonnerton.

The bride attended D.H. Conley High School and Pitt Technical Institute. The bridegroom attended Aurora High School and Atlantic Christian College and is employed at Texas Gulf Sulfur.

A reception was held following the ceremony.

Miss Cathy Burroughs, sister of the bride, poured punch and Mrs. Ray Webb, sister of the bride, served wedding cake.

Keeping It Safe On The Wild Side
Who gets the prized catch when your great hunter returns from the fields and woods?
Why, you—the cook, of course.
But be it a large deer or the smallest wild turkey, you also get the responsibility of keeping it safe for your family's holiday feast or meals. And a little extra care can go a long way toward preventing an aftermath of food poisoning.
Salmonellosis is the poisoning most likely to develop from improperly handled wild game. It resembles the flu in its symptoms: headache, vomiting, cramps, nausea, fever and diarrhea. The symptoms usually occur within 12 to 35 hours after eating contaminated food and last from two to seven days. It is seldom fatal, but can be extremely dangerous for infants or older people.

Bacteria grow best between 40 degrees F. and 140 degrees F. So the faster you get your game on one side or the other of these limits, the better your chance of avoiding spoilage.
We'll assume your great hunter took preliminary sanitary steps before presenting his catch to you. He killed his prey quickly and cleanly, washed and chilled it properly and got it home as soon as possible.
You, the cook, can guard against further danger of bacterial contamination by taking these few precautions in the care and handling of your wild game containers. Meat from wild birds, as with domesticated poultry, should be removed from the bone before you put it away. Use leftovers kept in the refrigerator within 1 or 2 days. Or freeze any intended for later use.

After you have thoroughly cleaned your game, treat it just as you would any meat or poultry you buy from the supermarket—wrap meat loosely for later use and store it quickly in the refrigerator. Or for storage longer than 1 or 2 days, wrap it securely in airtight freezer bags or foils and store it immediately in the freezer (below 0 degrees F.).
Once meat is thawed, cook it right away—and always cook it thoroughly! Remember that wild game has a greater chance of bacterial contamination than that bought from your neighborhood supermarket due to the unsanitary conditions in the field.
Remove all stuffing and store meat, stuffing and gravy in separate, covered air-tight prize:

To begin with, be sure your kitchen, hands, cutting board, knife and other utensils are clean as possible while you're preparing game for storing or cooking. And wash hands and kitchenware again in between handling raw and cooked meat to avoid cross contamination. Use plenty of soap and water.
If you like to soak the meat to remove some of the wild taste, use plain water. Salt tends to toughen meat; vinegar will tenderize it. If you add vinegar to the water, follow it with a plain-water soak.

Your proper handling of food at home—cooking, storing, and serving—is the best protection against foodborne illness you can give your family. So keep the food for your holiday season as safe as possible by following these simple rules.

Household Hints

It pays to know the difference between irregulars and seconds when you shop sales. Irregulars can have minor defects, as in size, but cannot be sold as such if they have holes, weak spots, cuts or other defects that affect durability. Seconds can have all sorts of defects or damage.

Beating or shaking a rug can damage its backing.

Save money when you recarpet stairs by tucking two or three inches of carpeting neatly beneath the riser on the bottom step. The extra inches allows for moving the carpet slightly each year to spread wear.

Plymouth's Thanksgiving Day Dinner Will Be Approximation

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor
Hundreds of Americans who make a pilgrimage to Plymouth, Mass., this Thanksgiving will eat an approximation of the first Thanksgiving dinner and visit historic sites and reproductions of historic buildings.
Approximation is the key word. The Pilgrims brewed their own beer, and some historians think it was the beverage they drank at their annual festival at the end of the growing season, usually in October.

Visitors to Plymouth's annual Thanksgiving buffet in Memorial Hall these days must settle for coffee, milk, apple cider and cranberry juice with their meal, because state law prohibits the serving of alcoholic beverages in public buildings.
Director Allan Stapleton said the moderately priced meal was established on an annual basis as a service to visitors who could not be accommodated in restaurants in the historic town. It is served from noon until 5 p.m.
"We go to great lengths to plan a celebration for families, and preserve the spiritual tradition of the holiday," he said in a telephone interview. "The town is pretty well hopping then. We've been getting inquiries since last June."

He added that the city gets about 10,000 visitors on Thanksgiving day.
He estimated that some restaurants serve 500 to 800 holiday meals in two or three sittings, and advises table reservations for them no later than Nov. 1.
Last year, an additional 900 to 1,100 persons attended the buffet, available on a first-come, first served basis. The same policy continues, but children under 6 years of age will eat free, while the charges for older children and adults have risen 25 cents each, to $3.50 for six to 12-year-olds, and $5.25 per person for everyone else. In 1974, the meal was $1.50 for the younger children.

Stapleton said the 1975 menu will consist of roast turkey with stuffing and gravy, mashed potatoes, buttered squash, green peas, rolls and butter, cranberry sauce, Indian pudding, yellow cake, fruit, nuts, regular or decaffeinated coffee, tea or milk.
Nobody knows for sure what the Pilgrims ate and drank during their celebrations. Stapleton quotes a letter by Edward Winslow, who later became governor of Plymouth colony, as proof that the Pilgrims really observed the first Thanksgiving there.
In his letter to a friend in England, Winslow said the colony's current governor sent four men fowling. In one day, they killed enough feathered game, to feed the colony for almost a week. Their bag was augmented by five deer killed by Indian chief Massasoit's men, 90 of whom were guests of the Pilgrims for three days.
Much has been written about the deprivations the Pilgrims suffered, but at that first Thanksgiving they had ample supplies of two foods in short supply today: venison and lobsters. Fresh cod and wild turkey are thought to be the other main courses that were plentiful.

HomeEconomics Agents Attend National Meet

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—"Spirit of '76—Spotlight on Professionalism" was the theme for the 41st annual meeting of the National Association of Extension Home Economists held Oct. 27-31 here.
Addie R. Gore and Sue B. May, Pitt County home economics extension agents, were among the 110 North Carolina Extension Home Economists in attendance. All the states and Puerto Rico were represented at the annual meeting which included over 2,000 home economists.
The meeting was designed to help extension home economists: perceive one's heritage; promote professional excellence and accountability.
The keynote address was given by Virginia Y. Trotter, assistant secretary for education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Other speakers included Mary Allen Jolley, director of public affairs, American Home Economics Association, and Nancy Steorts, special assistant for Consumer Affairs.
A recognition dinner featured Opal H. Mann, deputy assistant administrator of home economics who spoke on "Heritage For The Future." Dr. Andy Holt, president emeritus, University of Tennessee, addressed the group at the closing session on "How To Be A Professional."
A variety of workshops and seminars were held throughout the four-day conference.

The Problem: Finding Money

Corrections Secretary David Jones last week unveiled plans for a $35 million three-stage Central Prison construction program.

The prison is located in Raleigh and is old and overcrowded. It now has 1,251 inmates.

The first phase of the construction program would cost $14.7 million, the second $13.8 million and the third $5.9 million. Plans call for tearing down most of the old structure which is nearly 100 years old.

Corrections officials said the new prison would provide more services, programs and privacy for the inmates.

Hardly anyone would deny that new prison facilities are needed at Central Prison. The problem is going to be where to find the money for the project. There was a request for $38 million from the Legislature this year and only $9 million was granted. Cuts were made in the recommended budget after it became apparent that tax collections would not be up to expectations this year.

The new fiscal year started July 1 and since then state revenues have not even been up to what had been projected by the budget makers earlier in the year.

There is every reason to feel that revenues will increase in the months ahead, however and the corrections secretary has set out a program that could be stretched out over several budgets.

So we can assume that the state's finances will be better in future years and there will be at least some additional funds for improving services.

The Corrections Department will be competing with many other divisions of state government for its share of the money, though, and it's not going to be as easy to come up with the needed funds as in the past.

Regardless, North Carolina should make every effort to provide decent facilities for the prisons. It makes sense both from a security standpoint and from the standpoint of carrying out a decent rehabilitation program.

THIS AFTERNOON Showdown On State Budget

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Events are developing this week which should bring into sharp focus a crisis in North Carolina's state government.

According to the best sources of information, the state is spending more money than it will take in from slack revenue sources.

Despite the rosy picture being painted by Gov. James E. Holshouser as he has barnstormed the state lately predicting sharply improved economic conditions which will bring the budget back into balance in the last half of the year, most experts disagree.

Legislative leaders have been warned by fiscal advisors to be on guard for a shortfall in the range of $30 million to $60 million.

Legislature Warned

On Friday, the General Assembly Committee on the Economy will be told, bluntly, that there does not appear to be any way for state income to recover enough in the remaining months to produce the amount of money budgeted.

Also on Friday, the Advisory Budget Commission will meet with the governor in a regularly scheduled session. But several members of that body are also key legislators who are now in possession of the gloomy—some even consider them disastrous—forecasts coming from several key sources, including some in the governor's own budget office.

In sum, the situation is this: the $50 million surplus which legislators were banking on to provide salary hikes for state employees and teachers in next fiscal year will not materialize, and there is the real possibility of a shortage beyond that. If, in truth, the shortfall comes on the high side of the $30 million to $60 million range, then not only will pay raises be wiped out, but some drastic spending cuts must come in the final months of the present fiscal year in order to balance the state budget as required by law.

Gov. Holshouser has been scolded by almost every other state leader for his position that present extremely low income figures will be offset by sharply higher ones later.

He has made no move to curtail state spending. In fact, budgeted funds were dispersed for the first quarter of this fiscal year with no restraint warnings, and again for the second quarter just now starting.

That means six months of this year will go by before state agencies are told to hold the line. Spending is now going on as though all the money budgeted will come in.

Frank Justice, the General Assembly budget analyst, is among the experts who say the state is walking a tightrope.

In Jeopardy

He finds revenues down, as others have, but also warns that the anticipated surplus of $50 million may be in jeopardy.

The cushion is money budgeted but not spent, thus reverted to the general fund. Much of that money came from jobs left vacant, but Justice notes that there is less job-hopping by state employees due to the recession; fewer new jobs were funded for this year; and a "tendency on the part of state operations to build inventories in anticipation of future budget reductions" leading toward less money to be reverted.

As to income, Justice has told legislative leaders that, "one of the most alarming trends is the declining rate of increase in taxes paid by consumers. . . . Most serious of all is the declining rate of increase in sales tax collections.

Sales Taxes, a major part of the state income, are already down so far that it would take a rate of increase of 17 per cent to reach estimates by the end of the fiscal year. The rate of increase for the first two months of the fiscal year was 1.39 per cent.

"One further speculation is pertinent," Justice reports. "If sales of consumer goods are down, it is logical to assume that the incomes of the providers of those goods will also be down and that there will be a corresponding downward effect on income tax collections."

Claim Rocky Fed Up

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An increasingly frustrated Nelson A. Rockefeller, his advice on programs ignored and his political future in doubt, decided to withdraw as President Ford's possible 1976 running mate because of widening disagreements on policy, Republican sources say.

"He just got fed up," one source said. "He finally got to the point where he couldn't take it any more."

Meanwhile, there were these other developments following the personnel shuffle in the Ford administration:

—Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., says Rockefeller's withdrawal should lead Ronald Reagan to "reassess" his plans to challenge Ford. Goldwater said the withdrawal makes a dent in Reagan's prospects of mounting a successful campaign against Ford.

—Some past and present intelligence officials expressed disappointment with Ford's choice of George Bush to succeed William E. Colby as head of the CIA.

Their objections centered on Bush's political background as a former Republican national chairman and the speculation that Bush might be in the running for the Republican vice presidential nomination.

Others, including former CIA director John A. McCone, praised the Bush appointment. McCone, who headed the agency in the early 1960s, predicted Bush would "do a good job and get the full support of the organization."

—Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham said he is retiring as head of the Defense Intelligence Agency because Ford fired Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger. "I'm a Schlesinger man," Graham said.

There were unconfirmed reports of other high-level Pentagon resignations.

—House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona said the GOP could be further divided, rather than unified, by Rockefeller's decision to withdraw. He said it isn't apparent that Ford made any friends on the conservative side of the party and he may have lost some of the moderate and liberal side.

—A source close to the White House said Schlesinger's firing was prompted by his outspoken criticism of a House panel that slashed his defense budget. The source also confirmed that Ford's advisers told the President there was a personality conflict between Schlesinger and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and that concern was expressed that the administration was not speaking with one voice.

Explanations of the Vice President's unexpected move began to surface Tuesday though Rockefeller and his top aides maintained a stony silence, saying they were standing behind the letter he delivered Monday to Ford at the White House.

Some sources noted that Rockefeller's letter was far more restrained than the Vice President's often effusive statements about Ford. They noted that the President, when asked if he had tried to talk Rockefeller out of withdrawing, merely said he "accepted" the decision.

Others pointed out that Rockefeller, already out of the mainstream of foreign policy decisions in the Ford administration, also was being ignored on domestic policy, particularly in the case of New York's financial difficulties.

By ART BUCHWALD 'Must Punish New York'

WASHINGTON—There is almost unanimous agreement throughout the land that New York City must be punished for its fiscal crimes. Everyone agrees New Yorkers have to be made to realize they cannot start a default without paying for it.

The big question is what kind of punishment should be meted out to 7 million reckless spenders who almost brought the world to the brink of total bankruptcy?

At this moment a Presidential Commission on Fiscal Crimes is meeting in Washington to discuss methods of punishment for New York.

Larrimore Creditor, the chairman, told me the commission was working on many alternatives.

"We have the precedent of the Nuremberg trials to work with," he said.

"But those people were tried for war crimes," I said.

"Economic crimes are much more serious than war crimes," Larrimore said.

"The men who were responsible for starting a bond default must be brought to the bar of justice. Otherwise every municipality in the country will think they can get away with it."

"Who would you try?"

"Mayor Wagner, Mayor Lindsay, Mayor Beame and the two Rockefeller brothers, David and Nelson. We want them all in the dock, so the American people can see for themselves what kind of men started the greatest default in our history."

"Are you going to ask for the death penalty?"

"No, but we're going to demand that they be locked up in the Chase Manhattan Bank vaults for the rest of their natural lives."

"That's worse than Spandau," I said. "Won't it be expensive?"

"It will be worth it. The whole world is watching and if we mete out harsh punishment to these economic outlaws, every mayor and governor will think twice before he decides to default on his bonds."

"Are you going to let the other 6,999,995 New Yorkers off the hook? After all they followed their leaders and they are just as responsible for the chaos that has taken place."

"We would like to lock them up, but unfortunately there aren't enough bank vaults in New York City to handle all of them. So we have decided that rather than incarcerate them, they will be required to do alternate service in a hospital cleaning bedpans for a minimum of

INSIDE REPORT

Nixon Picks Sen. Kennedy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Richard M. Nixon has privately told friends the winner of the 1976 presidential election will not be his handpicked successor, Gerald R. Ford, but instead that habitual non-candidate, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Nixon, who never could resist the temptation to forecast elections, is passing on his eyebrow-raising forecast to close friends — including Pepsi-Cola magnate Donald Kendall, who has widely relayed Nixon's words in Washington and New York.

Nixon flatly predicts President Ford will not be elected in 1976. That may indicate lack of gratitude for the President whose blanket pardon protected Nixon from criminal charges, but it certainly shows his longtime low esteem for Mr. Ford's political talents.

More surprising is Nixon's prediction of Kennedy, whose disclaimer of candidacy is now widely accepted by Democrats. That guess, however, may reflect the political awe in which Nixon has held the Kennedys since losing to John F. Kennedy in 1960. He was apprehensive in 1968 that Robert F. Kennedy might be nominated and worried about Teddy Kennedy being drafted in 1972.

Beame's Sadat

Twist

Contrary to claims that New York Mayor Abe Beame was pressured into greeting President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, the mayor sought the meeting and then reneged under political pressure.

Apart from reflecting the maelstrom of pressures afflicting the hapless Beame, the incident shows improvement in Israeli-Egyptian relations has not been matched by cooling of domestic political controversy stemming from Mideastern rivalries.

On Oct. 14, almost two weeks before Sadat arrived for his state visit, Beame's protocol chief, Angier Biddle Duke, telephoned the Egyptian consul general in Manhattan. What the mayor wanted, said Duke, was either a reception for Sadat at Gracie Mansion or a meeting at Sadat's Waldorf suite. No

State Department "pressure" preceded this first contact.

Indeed, Egyptian consul general Abdelhadi Makhlof informed the Egyptian embassy here that Duke specifically told him the mayor's office had "cleared" the meeting with leaders of the American-Jewish community. It was set for the morning of Oct. 30.

The "clearance," however, disintegrated after passage by a United Nations committee of an anti-Zionist resolution with Egyptian support. Even more influential was Sadat's speech to the National Press Club Oct. 28 in which he said, "We are not against Jews but we are against Zionism."

That aroused New York's Jewish leadership and Beame (followed by Gov. Hugh Carey) quickly caved in. Next came published reports that Beame had changed his mind despite "heavy pressure" from the State Department.

Yet the State Department did not enter the picture until long after Duke, speaking for the mayor, sought the meeting with Sadat. Beame's office did not get any word from Washington — and certainly no "heavy pressure" — until Oct. 21. On that day, State Department protocol chief Henry Catto, Jr., wrote routinely to Beame that the State Department would "greatly" appreciate any courtesies from Beame.

Ford Flubs in Florida

President Ford's prospects in a potentially tough Florida primary March 9 against Ronald Reagan were not helped when he bowed out of a choice political speaking date and sent a non-politician, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, as his substitute.

The President's Florida supporters were overjoyed when he was scheduled to address the Blue Key banquet Oct. 24 at the University of Florida's annual homecoming in Gainesville, the state's most prestigious political dinner. Mr. Ford was only the second Republican ever invited to the banquet (usually addressed by a nationally renowned Democrat).

Although the President cancelled because of a heavy cold, many Florida Republicans suspected diplomatic illness to reduce his overextended speaking schedule. Even those who believed real illness was the cause grumbled over the choice of Dr. Schlesinger (picked as a substitute by the Florida students).

Actually, Mr. Ford's campaign committee recommended, first, Rogers Morton, Secretary of the Interior, and William Simon, Secretary of the Treasury, to substitute.

Other Editors Say Takes Another Dig

(Henderson Dispatch)

No one knows better than the honorables on Capitol Hill that another election year is all but upon us. If any one did not know otherwise, he need only be reminded that Social Security benefits were raised a few months ago and taxes to help pay the bill will zoom again come the new year.

Beneficiaries of this form of aid have learned to expect it at every even numbered year, which, of course, is an election year, and upcoming 1976 is no exception.

When this brainchild of FDR was born in 1937, or 38 years ago, it was intended as a supplement to living costs, not to pay everything. But that's a theory in this era of generous gratuities.

Beginning in January, salaries up to $15,300 will feel an increase of $70.20 a year, and top bracket earners will take $895 of calendar year income for this cause, and that will have to be matched by employers. It is in addition to general income taxes.

Is there no end? At the present rate of increases, the time could come when more people will be on Social Security than those who are supporting it, assuming that this and other free wheeling outlays do not bankrupt the country. Already there is speculation in some quarters that young workers now paying might never benefit from this dream of politicians.

When Washington once starts a stream of benefits, it usually goes overboard. Witness the mushrooming food stamp operation, for example, unemployed benefits and general welfare.

Social Security has been so loosely administered, reports say, that it has gotten out of hand. The former rate of taxing is insufficient to keep up with increased benefits, hence this new higher bracket of taxes.

No one wishes to see deserving people suffer, and every one would be willing to help toward relief, but government cannot support a large element of citizens, with one half of the population living off the other half. That is neither fair nor possible.

It is not an unreasonable question as to whether or how long it will be until everybody will be working for the government in the total welfare state. The thought is not as fantastic as it may seem.

Strength For Today

OPPORTUNITY IN A NEW DAY

Every morning is a new opportunity—an opportunity to live, to learn, to love, to hate, to fail, to sin. The day brings tears or rejoicing, anger or loving service, discouragement or triumph. Most people look on the coming of a new day as just another sunrise, but it is God's new offer to repair the injury of yesterday, heal the wounds, correct the mistakes, consummate the triumph. A new day is a new chance.

"He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and the good." The opportunity is given to everyone. Some have greater privileges with which to begin the day than others, but a new day is a new chance for every man and woman, boy or girl in the world.

Think about it if you have lost hope, say it over and over again to yourself if you have met defeat all along the way. Be assured that no matter how much pain sorrow brings, there is an end even to such as this, and each passing day will accord added relief.

Basic Research Into Economy

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — America seems to be doing some very basic research into, among other things, the nature of its business, financial and political institutions, and appears to be in a mood to redefine and reconstruct them.

The process already is under way and, if you believe that pollsters accurately reveal the mind of the people, that process is likely to continue, painful though it sometimes is.

We are seeking to clarify the duties of city, state and federal governments, asking ourselves if business should assume added social responsibilities, wondering if we should dissolve the big stock exchange and, in the interests of fairness, replace them with electronic computers.

These are only a few of the issues. We are asking some similar questions about our personal finances. We made great material advances during the 1960s, but we got inflation and pollution. "Is this the good life?" we ask.

Following a huge increase in debt during the past decade or so, fiscal integrity is now much on the minds of people.

One pollster reports that many interviews last week were volunteering that "we have to practice financial common sense in our family, so let the governments practice it too."

You can always spot cycle and trends and trends within trends if you look long enough at charts or statistics or other masses of evidence. Analysts do it all the time in the stock market and make a good living at it.

You must be careful, however, that you aren't just spotting chance designs, as many a stock analyst does, but instead, something of significance. It may take the perspective of history to reveal the pattern of the 1970s, but this much now seems certain:

Like it or not, a time of reckoning seems to have been resented. It isn't so much that the tough questions were asked but that events left little choice but to come up with answers to questions we have hidden from.

Perhaps most pressing at the moment is the question of determining the responsibilities to each other of city, state and federal governments, a consideration presented in acute dimensions by the New York City financial mess.

Involved in this argument are many other issues— who says for welfare, an economic society continue to satisfy the rising aspirations of people, should bondholders continue to have primary right to repayment?

We are also asking ourselves about what role business and financial institutions must play, not just in relation to New York City but in regard to the entire American society.

All these matters now are being considered. We didn't seek them out — in fact, we even tried to deny their existence. But procrastination inevitably leads to a day of reckoning, and with luck insight and determination, to solutions.

Buchwald . . .

two years."

"That's not unreasonable for what they did," I said. "Suppose they refuse?"

"Then they will be sent to re-education camps where they will be shown tapes of President Ford's fund-raising speeches explaining why he can't bail New York out of its troubles."

"But that's a violation of the Geneva Convention," I protested. "You can't make people listen to President Ford's speeches about New York City, no matter what crimes they have committed."

"Don't worry about it," said Larrimore. "When we give New Yorkers the choice of listening to Ford or doing two years' alternate service cleaning bedpans, they'll take the bedpans."

"I guess you're right. Do you think someday the rest of the country will be able to forget the fiscal crimes committed by New Yorkers and the federal government will give them amnesty?"

"I don't think the rest of the country is ready to discuss amnesty at this time. President Ford is not a punitive man, but you can't forget what 7 million people did to this country overnight."

Evans-Novak...

Oct. 24. Morton had a full schedule that day but told the White House he would go to Florida if the President desired. Don't bother, White House aides replied. Morton, consequently, spent the night at his home on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

The White House did twist Schlesinger's arm to get him to Gainesville. Maintaining the Pentagon's traditional avoidance of overt partisan politics, Schlesinger did not mention Mr. Ford's candidacy but gave an impressive appraisal of rising Soviet military might and declining U.S. preparedness — scarcely what Mr. Ford's Florida campaign managers wanted.

Death Penalty For Killing Four

RALEIGH (AP)—Joe Louis Harris has been sentenced to death for killing four women, one of whom he said blinded him in one eye by throwing lye at him.

A Wake County Superior Court jury deliberated for more than an hour Tuesday before rejecting Harris' plea of insanity as a result of the blinding.

Harris was convicted of murdering Gertrude C. Harmon, a one-time girl friend who allegedly threw the lye in his face several weeks before the killings; her two sisters, Azalee C. Jackson and Bernice C. Harrington; and a the post-mistress at the Method postal station, Mrs. Harveleigh White. Mrs. White was a friend of Mrs. Harmon.

Judge Hamilton Hobgood rejected several defense motions to dismiss the charges because of Harris' mental condition.

Record Welfare

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's welfare rolls have reached a record high level, with almost 200,000 persons receiving assistance.

The Department of Human Resources said Tuesday that the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program paid benefits to 192,000 recipients in September. That was an increase of 3,650 from August and 37,600 from September, 1974.

It said that North Carolina's rate of welfare growth was 23 per cent in the year ending in June. That was the highest growth rate in the country.

Department officials said the growth was caused by the high unemployment rate.

AFDC payments go to children who have been deprived of support by their parents through death, disability, or desertion. Support payments are also made to single adults who must care for children.

The maximum payment for a family of four under the program is $200 per month.

While in Lexington, he learned the sign language of the deaf and used this skill in teaching and counseling with this special group. He was a member of the Advisory Council at the Davidson County Unit of the N.C. Department of Corrections and, also served as an inmate FARMVILLE—Prices yesterday continued steady, with top prices paid for wrapper grades at $1.45 per pound. Volume of primings, lugs, non-descript grades and damaged tobacco accounted for approximately 70 per cent of volume. Quality grade leaf was a little stronger than any previous day in some time.

Demand continued strong for all qualities of good tobacco. Stabilization receipts accounted for 39,182 pounds or 5.16 per cent of gross sales.

The market sold 759,460 pounds for $25,107.46 for an average of $108.64 per 100 pounds.

To date the market has sold 35,244,103 pounds for a total of $36,188,882 for a season average of $102.68 per 100 pounds.

School Bd...

the teachers to improve their programs.
"For instructional supplies, the county budget shows a total of $106,000. This sounds large, but when broken down in allotments to 21 schools, the amounts are inadequate to meet the purchasing needs for teachers to the jobs they purport to do in their classrooms," Mrs. Harris emphasized.

A vast majority of teachers support professional organizations through paid memberships. Some of these include: ACT, NCAE, and NEA, dues which total $65; International Reading Association, $50 and $25; Trades and Industries, $25; Music Educators, $24; Guidance, $42; North Carolina Vocational Association, $29; and American Home Economics Association, $10.

A seventh reason given was the fact that beginning teacher's salaries are not comparable to the salaries of other professional people with a four year degree.
"Many units in the eastern part of North Carolina receive a supplement, including Goldsboro city and Wayne County; New Bern city and Craven County; Edenton-Chowan; Elizabeth City-Pasquotank; and Greenville city.

"Besides the cities and counties mentioned, many other units pay supplements to their school employees. The average supplement across the state is $627.00.
"ACT is aware that in 1937 the citizens of Greenville voted to tax themselves 25 cents per $100 to be used for teacher supplement. The supplement received by Greenville teachers ranges from $180 to $200," Mrs. Harris said.

"Is there not enough per capita income in Pitt County to supplement the classroom teachers in the county unit?" the ACT spokesman asked.
"The decision to grant a supplement will be a boost to the Pitt County economy in that the money will revert to the county," Mrs. Harris said.

Mrs. Hoot explained that ACT is going about the matter in a positive manner with a positive attitude.
"We need the support of the Pitt County Board of Education and ask that the Board put the supplement in their budget. The Pitt County teachers will go with you to the county commissioners to ask for such a supplement."

Mark Owens, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Education, explained to the gathering that the money spent by the board of education comes from the Pitt County Commissioners.
"We do submit a budget but some items are stricken and cut from the budget.

"The interest expressed here today shows you are sincere and I believe that with efforts that have been shown here you will accomplish your goals," Owens told the teachers.
The Pitt County Board of Education took no action in the matter of salary supplement for teachers.

In other business yesterday, the board heard a report from Tom Craft, associate superintendent, that nine modular classroom units have been placed on the Stokes Elementary School site. The new units will replace several frame buildings on the site now being used as classroom buildings. Craft said two frame buildings will be left on the school campus for storage purposes. The classroom units are costing the county board approximately $115,000.

Craft reported that work on the Farmville Middle School project and the Belvoir-Pactolus-Stokes Middle School project is progressing well.

Assistant Sup. J. L. Keeter presented a summary report of the status immunization of kindergarten and first grade children.

Keeter said that the county schools now have 100 percent compliance with the immunization requirements among the kindergarten students. He explained there were about 60 more students in kindergarten this year than last year and that on Oct. 10 there were 20 more students this year than last year who had not completed the necessary immunization requirements.

Board members accepted the audit report from John C. Proctor Co. for Title I, II and VI programs.

A revised TMR budget was accepted. A budget totaling $138,618 to serve 102 students was approved. The project is funded through state money and is 100 percent reimbursable.

The program provides salaries for eight instructors 11 aides, in addition to instructional supplies, hospitalization, retirement and social security.

The board approved the following appropriations to the 1975-76 budget: telephone tolls to five schools in the amount of $666.35; maintenance, $3,341.27 (including $3,150.27 for wind damage at Conley High School); garage, $750; and assessment, State of North Carolina, $2,032.

Bobbe Rouse, school psychologist, was given permission to take one required course for Level II certification that is being taught from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday during winter quarter at ECU provided she make up the missed time.

Three persons were approved for employment and three teachers were granted maternity leave.

Duffy Lincoln, president of the Pitt County Unit of NCAE, asked that the board consider changing its regular meeting time from 2 p.m. to the evening. Lincoln asked for the time change so that more parents, teachers, students and other educators in the county could attend the meetings.

"We feel there would be a better exchange of ideas if the meetings were held at night instead of in the afternoons," Lincoln said.

Alford explained that when parents, teachers or other groups wanted to meet with the board that the item was placed on the agenda so that the people could be present.

Board members agreed to take the matter under advisement.

Alford was given permission to alternate the attendance schedule of the kindergarten students slightly from school to school to eliminate the overcrowding of classrooms. Alford explained several schools had already experienced overcrowding in the kindergarten classes.

Altering the attendance schedule will allow all eligible children to participate in the kindergarten program.

Board members adopted a proposed policy dealing with the assignment of children to special education programs in keeping with Senate bill 1238.

Police Matters Dominate Farmville Bd. Meeting

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE—Paid holidays for Farmville Policemen and promotions and pay raises for some of the department members took up most of the time of Farmville commissioners last night.

It was pointed out that town employees in all other departments are paid for six holidays a year they do not work. The policemen, of course, have to work on holidays and the Commissioners agreed last night that they should be given extra pay when they do have to work on holidays. The increased cost to the town will be approximately $2,200 annually.

Lt. Carl Tanner and Ptl. Larry Mulkey have recently left the Police Department. Chief Marsdon Cannady recommended that Sgt. W. G. Barber be promoted to lieutenant, raising his pay from $5,566.22 to $8,800 a year; Ptl. W. E. Waters to sergeant, increasing his pay from $8,100 to $8,339; Ptl. W. R. Stokes private first class, raising his pay from $7,200 to $7,526.26; and Sgt. Jenny Childers from $7,200 to $7,526.26. The Commissioners discussed at length whether the raises could be allowed, based on their earlier decision not to give across the board raises except at budget time. They decided, however, that all of these were promotions filling vacancies created by the loss of the two officers and the subsequent promotions. The exception seemed to be Sgt. Childers, who was promoted two months ago on the recommendation of the Chief that she be promoted without pay. Commissioner W. R. Duke argued, that while he has nothing against the lady officer and thinks she does a superb job, he believes the Commissioners were breaking their own rule. Commissioner Sarah Albritton said she felt that if raises went with any of the promotions Sgt. Childers should be entitled to one, indeed more so because she had served two months at her new rank without an increase in pay. Commissioner Durwood Little said he felt Sgt. Childers' raise would be in order, that it is based on merit, and that if any of the other department heads feel certain of their employees should be given merit raises, they should speak up for them, provided it can be done within the budget. He pointed out that the Police Department is one of the few town departments that did not exceed its budget last year, and that these raises should not cause the payroll to exceed the amount paid while Tanner and Mulkey were on the force.

The vote was four in favor and one against, with Commissioner Duke voting nay. He reiterated that his vote was cast in the negative based on his feeling that the Commissioners were violating the policy set at its budget meeting in the summer.

The Commissioner voted, based on the recommendation of Commissioner Leroy Redden and Police Chief Cannady, to hire a school crossing guard for the intersection of South Main Street and Anderson Avenue, adjacent to Bennett Park. The town has tried to prevail upon the state to install a signal or other safety device here to no avail. Traffic studies do not show the need for any measure at this time; yet it is a major crossing for school children. The crossing guard would be paid minimum wage $2.20 an hour and work five days a week from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. and from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

A contract with attorneys Lewis, Lewis, and Lewis for their work on the contract for the waste treatment sewage disposal plant was approved. It was agreed that they should be paid $40 per hour, not to exceed $12,000.

The Lewis firm was also asked to send letters to all those who owe the town for delinquent taxes and paving assessments. The lawyers are to get 20 per cent of what they collect.

Town Administrator W.A. Martin was asked to write a letter of appreciation to Mrs. Bert Warren, president of the Lawn and Garden Club, which has transformed some local fire hydrants into colorful little soldiers.

Some $375 was voted as a contribution to the Chamber of Commerce advertising program and to finance the Christmas parade Santa Claus float.

Election returns from the County Board of Elections were accepted and the public was invited to the swearing-in of Mayor and new commissioners Monday, Dec. 1, at noon.

The Commissioners tabled consideration of whether to install a sprinkler system in the shrubbery to be placed in the parking lot at the corner of Wilson and Contentnea Street. They asked that the Downtown Improvement Committee provide cost figures to them.

Town Administrator Martin discussed the disapproval of the town's Title 10 Water Project by the Economic Development Administration in Washington. "We have been assured that it went to Washington from Atlanta with a No. 1 rating, but was disapproved because of lack of funds," he said. The Commissioners have appealed to Congressman Walter Jones, Senators Robert Morgan and Jesse Helms and Congressman Ben Mizell to seek reconsideration of the project when funds are available.

Elijah Harris appeared asking why he could not allow teenagers in his pool room. He was told that this is a state statute that cannot be changed by the town unless it is made more stringent.

On the recommendation of Mayor Will Joyner, the Commissioners voted to ask the police to give warning parking violation tickets only to out-of-town shoppers from now until Jan. 1.

Chief Cannady reported that many speeding tickets have been given here in an effort to crack down on speeders since the serious accident in which a boy was seriously injured here last Sunday morning when he was hit by a car allegedly exceeding the speed limit.

See Reduction In N.C. Crops

RALEIGH (AP)—No record crop yields are expected by agricultural scientists this year in North Carolina.

Alternate periods of dry weather and wet weather in many areas during the growing season affected per-acre output of most major Tar Heel crops, scientists at North Carolina State University said.

Control of insects and diseases was more difficult because of weather variations. During periods of heavy rains farmers were unable to stay on schedule with their spray programs.

This year by one to three bushels per acre compared with the 1974 harvest.

Cotton picked per acre is expected to average 444 pounds, up slightly from last year's 440 pounds. Sweet potato yields also are expected to rise, from 135 hundredweight in 1974 to 145 this year. Hay and grain sorghum yields also will be up slightly.

R.L. Robertson, an entomologist, said insects were more numerous this year than they have been in some time.

Based on latest forecasts by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service, pre-acre yields of most crops will be down from last year.

The statewide corn yield is expected to be 67 bushels compared with 74 last year and 82 in 1973. In terms of acreage planted, corn is the state's leading crop.

The average yield for all flue-cured tobacco farms is set at 1,947 pounds, down 28 pounds from last year and well below the 1973 yield of 2,111 pounds.

Burley tobacco is expected to show a yield increase, from last year's 2,230 pounds to an estimated 2,350 this year. Burley is grown in the western part of the state. About 9,500 acres are expected to be harvested.

Soybean yield is set at 22 bushels, down by half a bushel from last year's crop and two bushels below the 1973 yield. Soybeans are the state's second largest crop in terms of acreage planted.

Peanuts are expected to show a yield increase, from last year's 2,315 pounds to 2,400 pounds this year. That would still be short of the record of 2,810 set in 1973.

Small grain yields were down

Expects To Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today he has had no discussion with President Ford or anyone in the administration about giving up his job as Secretary of State.

Asked to respond to reports that Ambassador Elliot Richardson is being groomed to succeed him, Kissinger said with a chuckle: "Certainly, nobody has told me."

Growing serious, Kissinger added: "I have had no discussion of any kind about leaving, with the President or with anyone in the administration. I can't answer for anyone else, but at least I can assure you that certainly nobody has told me that."

"I have had no discussions of any kind with the President or anyone."

At the White House, Deputy Press Secretary William Greener denied the reports that Richardson was being brought back to the United States in a move that eventually would put him in the State Department job.

"There isn't any opening and there isn't any anticipated," Greener declared.

Fayetteville Elects Woman Mayor By Big Margin

By The Associated Press
Beth Finch, a 54-year-old Fayetteville oil distributor, has become the first woman mayor of a major North Carolina city.

The two-term city councilwoman was elected mayor of Fayetteville Tuesday by a 6-1 margin over Larry Buie in one of more than 400 municipal elections held across the state. Mrs. Finch, who won 90 per cent of the vote in the primary, garnered 6,784 votes to 1,049 for Buie.

Elsewhere, Councilman Wade Cavin upset Durham's two-term mayor James Hawkins and Charlotte voters returned department store millionaire John Belk to a fourth term as mayor.

Raleigh voters elected former state legislator Jyles J. Coggins mayor over councilman J. Oliver Williams. He succeeds Clarence Lightner, the first black mayor of a major southern city.

Cavin, who won a last-minute endorsement from the Durham Committee on the Affairs of Black people Tuesday morning, received 9,257 votes to 4,286 for Hawkins. Cavin, a vocal opponent of downtown redevelopment, was considered the underdog until the endorsement. Both Cavin and Hawkins are white, and the city's population is 40 per cent black.

Belk, a Democrat, defeated Henry "Hank" Wilmer, former Mecklenburg County Republican chairman, and U.S. Labor Party Candidate Mark Englander in the city's first partisan election in modern times.

Belk got 19,940 votes, Wilmer 16,906, and Englander 916.

Charlotte voters also approved partisan municipal elections in a referendum by a 11,445-9,997 vote margin.

In the Raleigh vote-count, Coggins, a wealthy developer who was endorsed by the city's black caucuses, received 13,705 votes to 10,874 for Williams, a professor at North Carolina State University.

Greensboro voters reelected Jim Melvin as mayor. The voters also rejected a modified district or ward plan for future elections.

Melvin soundly defeated Mary Seymour, piling up a better than 3-1 margin. Mrs. Seymour, mayor pro tempore of the present city council, garnered 4,431 votes while Melvin, a banker, amassed 14,634.

A black Republican was elected to the Asheville city council, making the only dent in the seven-member white democratic governing board.

And Asheville voters also picked up a woman to serve on the council, 35-year-old Joann Morgan Swilling, a housewife.

Dr. Otis Bentley Michael, an Asheville physician, ran fifth in the 11-candidate mayoral race. He was the only black in the contest, which was won by councilman Eugene Ochsenrieter Jr.

In Jacksonville, car dealer W. Bruce Teachey Jr. was re-elected to a sixth term as mayor, defeating a woman and a black businessman. Teachey received 1,847 votes, Jacksonville restaurant operator Elizabeth "Betty" Marino 235, Vincent U. McLeod 129.

In other municipal elections Tuesday:

Incumbent mayors Jack Underdown of Elkin, Harry Stanley of Arlington and Carter Jones of Winton were unopposed, and were returned to office.

Former mayor Robert Cowd was elected to the post he resigned several years ago in Williamston. He received 802 votes to win easily in a four-man field.

Bill Upchurch was elected mayor of Cherryville in a four-man race.

Incumbent Mayor Delos Martin defeated Bob Hauser 162-99 in Jonesville.

In Chapel Hill, conservationist James Wallace easily defeated Gerry Cohen, 3,922-2,249. Wallace succeeds Howard Lee, who did not seek reelection so he could run for lieutenant governor.

A.C. Hendricks, 81, mayor of Ronda from 1949-69, defeated Bobby Gene Bauguess 93-50.

In Swansboro, incumbent Mayor Linwood D. Williams received 194 votes to 82 for James Hurdle Jr.

Roy M. Stewart was reelected mayor of Sanford. In nearby Broadway, voters elected Ralph Hunter as mayor over Garland Smith.

Mrs. Mattie "Pete" Broughton became the first woman in the history of Perquimans County to be elected to local government. She defeated four men, two of which were incumbents, in a nonpartisan race for a council seat.

Cumberland County voters approved a controversial $5.6 million bond referendum to build a new county court house in Fayetteville. The measure passed 6,972-5,650 after several local judges threatened to indict county commissioners if they did not provide funds for a new courthouse.

In another referendum, Salisbury voters approved the city takeover of a private bus line, which had threatened to close-down because of a lack of revenues. The city was authorized to levy a 5 cents per $100 tax valuation by a vote of 2,672-2,224.

City Counts 2 Collisions

More than $1,000 damage was reported by police following investigation of two traffic collisions here yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted when a car driven by Isaac Bruce Koonce of 609 North Eleventh St. and a truck operated by Frank Edward Northern of 106 Contentnea St. collided about 12:35 p.m. at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Memorial Drive.

Police, who estimated damage at $400 to the Koonce car and $350 to the truck, charged Northern with failing to yield the right of way and leaving the scene of an accident.

Ronald E. Cordle of Rocky Face, Ga., was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 10:40 a.m. mishap on Greene Street, 39 feet South of the Tenth Street intersection.

Police reported a truck driven by Cordle collided with a parked car owned by Bonnie Jeanette Briley of Tice Trailer Pk. causing an estimated $300 damage to the Briley car. No damage resulted to the Cordle truck.

Field Day For Write-In Votes

BOONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Supporters of write-in candidates had a field day Tuesday in the Yadkin County towns of Boonville and East Bend.

No one filed for the Boonville mayor's race, but incumbent Harvey Smith, also the town's fire chief and a local grocer, was reelected over seven other write-in candidates.

Smith received 109 votes. Runnerup was Lindsey Hall who received 8 votes.

Two persons also were elected by write-in ballot to the five-member Boonville town board.

In East Bend, incumbent Kent Huff was the only candidate on the mayor's ballot, but voters wrote in the names of two other candidates.

In the town board election, candidates filed for four of the five seats, but only one was elected.

Voters penciled in the names of 15 candidates, four of which were elected.

Asheville Police Decide End Slowdown

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Police in this mountains city voted Tuesday night to end their five-day old work slowdown.

The vote, which took effect at 11 p.m., came at a meeting of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP). Sgt. W.L. Dillingham, FOP president, declined to disclose the vote count, but did say it was not unanimous.

However, Dillingham said the vote did not indicate a breakdown of the morale of FOP members. "The men are still together," he said.

The policemen had sought a 15 per cent pay raise and decided on a work slowdown Friday after the city council granted them a 10 per cent pay boost on Thursday.

"We're not doing this because we think this is an adequate pay raise," Dillingham said. "We're doing it because of our obligation to the community."

City patrolmen reported to work as usual during the slowdown, but responded only to calls which were considered serious and necessary.

Meanwhile, Asheville firemen indicated Tuesday they may call a work slowdown if the public doesn't respond to their need for more money and a paycheck that is equal to that of police officers.

Firemen received a 10 per cent pay hike along with police, but claim they are still behind in the salary scale by at least five per cent.

The firemen indicated that the slowdown is only a possibility at the present.

A spokesman for the Fraternal Order of Firefighters said a slowdown would mean that fire calls would be answered, but that they would do no maintenance work at the fire stations.

Award Clinic To Goldston

RALEIGH (AP)—The 13th of the Holshouser administration's rural health care centers has been awarded to Goldston, a town of 400 people in Chatham County.

Gov. Jim Holshouser announced the location of the clinic, which is scheduled to begin operating in one year. The town has been without a doctor since Dr. M.W. Gibson died 10 years ago.

The community has recruited a nurse, Barbara Shaver, to act as the chief staff person of the clinic. Dr. John Dykers of Siler City will be the backup physician. It had tried for 10 years without success to recruit a doctor.

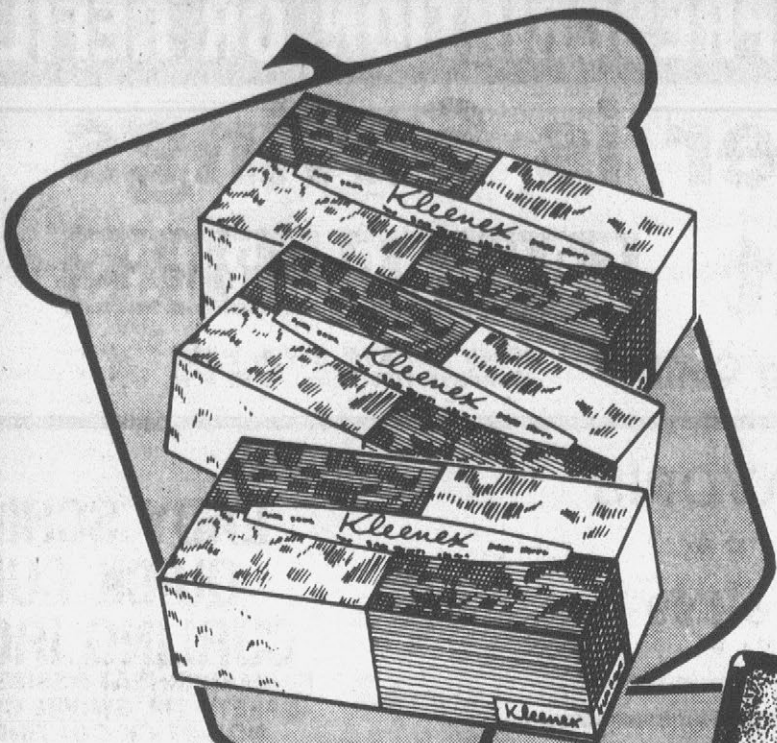

More than 1,000 persons in the area signed petitions, signifying their willingness to support and use the clinic. "Creating a successful, self-supporting primary care center takes a lot of effort by community leadership. The people of Goldston have demonstrated their willingness to make such an effort," the governor said.

Holshouser said the rural clinics established thus far have brought primary health care to 60,000 rural residents.

FBI Concentrates On Serious Crimes

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is launching a crackdown on more serious federal crimes in North Carolina, according to FBI officials.

Louis A. Giovanetti, special agent in charge of the Charlotte office of the FBI, said the new attack will focus on crimes ranging from pornography to illegal cigarette sales.

Among the other federal crimes to be involved in the crackdown are the thefts of furniture and tobacco products, illegal gambling, and white collar crimes such as embezzlement.

The change will amount to realigning priorities set for agents. "We're minimizing, to an extent, the amount of attention given to more minor violations," Giovanetti said.

The new "quality case concept" within the FBI allows special agents in charge of FBI offices around the country to set their own priorities.

He said he based the decision about the concentration on particular crimes on the frequency of the crime, its impact on the public and whether violence was involved.

He stressed, however, that other federal crimes will not be ignored, but would be given a lower priority.

No Frills In China Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — China has sent word to President Ford that his four-day visit next month will be without frills and will be conducted in a businesslike manner, sources say.

Ford's four-day stay in Peking will start Dec. 1. He plans stops in The Philippines and Indonesia on the way home.

The straight-laced nature of the Ford trip underscores Chinese apprehensions that U.S. detente with the Soviet Union poses dangers to Chinese security. This Chinese concern is known to have deepened with the ouster of James R. Schlesinger as secretary of defense.

At the same time, U.S. officials say only technical problems have kept a White House advance team from a planned flight to Peking to prepare for Ford's visit.

The team had been scheduled to leave Monday, but was called back from the airport when Ford decided to announce a series of personnel changes that included a decision to name George Bush, head of the U.S. liaison office in Peking, as director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, November 2, 1974
Now, officials say, the team will be on its way by early next week when the two governments are likely to announce formally the details of the Ford trip.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, during his visit to Peking this month, found the Chinese apprehensive that the U.S. commitment to detente with the Soviet Union would allow the Russians to relax their defenses against the West.

NEW YORK (AP) — (AP) — The stock market, encouraged by forecasts of another prime rate cut and an improving economy, jumped ahead in accelerated trading today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 6.61 at 836.74. Gainers outpaced losers by close to a 3-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Predictions made the rounds in Wall Street of a further decline soon in the prime lending rate to 7 1/2 per cent, while a quarter-point cut to 7 1/4 was continuing its spread in the banking industry.

Sidney Jones, assistant Treasury secretary for economic policy, meanwhile projected growth of the economy at a 7 per cent annual rate, after adjustment for inflation, over the next several quarters.

Analysts noted that apprehension over New York City's financial problems seemed to have eased, at least for the moment.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey said enough funds had been gathered to meet city obligations that come due next week. He added, however, that "Dec. 1 is the date beyond which we cannot stretch at this time."

Glamor issues posting point-plus gains included McDonald's, up 1 1/4 at 53 1/4; IBM, ahead 2 1/4 at 214 1/4; Digital Equipment, 1 1/2 higher at 128 1/2, and Johnson & Johnson, up 1 1/4 at 90 1/4.

Warner-Lambert, the Big Board volume leader, picked up 1/4 to 35 1/4.

Find 2 Lion Cubs Taken

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Two lion cubs weighing between 60 and 65 pounds each were stolen from the North Carolina Museum of Life and Science sometime before the facility opened this morning.

Museum Director Richard Wescott said he believes the theft was a prank and the thief probably has no idea what he has. The cubs are friendly, he said, adding that anyone seeing them should call the museum, collect if from out-of-town, and the staff will pick them up.

The cubs, Buffy and her brother Benji, are about six months old. Wescott said the thief broke two locks to get into the cage.

The museum staff also discovered that locks to the monkey and bear cages had also been tampered with, Wescott said. Had the thief gotten into the bear cage, he could have been killed as the black bears weigh 175 pounds each and probably would have been frightened by the nocturnal activity.

"They're normally not dangerous unless provoked, but they have a very sharp set of claws," Wescott said. "They're just like kittens, but they're pretty damn big kittens," he said.

Because it probably was a prank, Wescott said he fears the thief will turn the cubs loose when he gets tired of them. If that happens, the cubs may be killed if someone with a gun panics, he said.

First Dean For New Law School

BUIES CREEK, N.C. (AP)—F. Leary Davis Jr. of Zebulon was named today the first dean of the planned law school at Campbell College.

Campbell, a religious college affiliated with the North Carolina Baptist State Convention, plans to open the school next August.

Davis, 33, is to hire three full-time faculty members as one of his first duties.

The new dean is a graduate of Wake Forest University law school. He was assistant prosecutor of the Wake County District Court in 1968 and 1969 and has been Zebulon's town attorney. He is a Zebulon native.

Believe Jail Massacre Behind Dacca's Unrest

By MYRON L. BELKIND

Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India (AP) —

Four close associates of Bangladesh's murdered President Mujibur Rahman today were reported killed in a jail massacre in Dacca that apparently touched off the power struggle this week in the young nation's army.

Radio Bangladesh announced the deaths of former Vice President Nazrul Islam, former Prime Ministers Masoor Ali and Tajuddin Ahmed and former Home Minister A.H.M. Kamaruzzam.

Once among the most powerful men in Bangladesh, they were jailed on corruption charges after Sheikh Mujib was overthrown and killed in a coup last Aug. 15.

Commercial communications with Dacca, the capital of Bangladesh, were cut early Monday, and Dacca airport since then has been closed to incoming planes.

The government radio announced on Tuesday that Brig. Khalid Musharraf had replaced Maj. Gen. Ziaur Rahman as the army chief of staff, that four junior cabinet ministers had resigned, and that two of them had been arrested on charges of corruption and misuse of power.

Reports from Bangkok today said junior officers who led the coup in August had fled to Thailand.

The Dacca broadcast today did not disclose the details of the killings, but an earlier broadcast government announcement said a three-member judicial commission had been set up to investigate the murder of four prominent men in the Dacca jail.

Authoritative sources said the four prominent men were Islam, Ali, Ahmed and Kamaruzzam.

A broadcast today said the judicial commission would also investigate "how some miscreants were given safe passage out of the country," a reference apparently to the escape of the officers responsible for the killing of Sheikh Mujib and more than a dozen relatives, including his wife and several members of his immediate family.

There was no mention of President Khondakar Mush-taque Ahmed, a close associate of Mujib who gave the leaders of the coup refuge in the presidential palace after their installation as Mujib's successors.

Earlier diplomatic reports from Dacca said Ahmed would continue as president. Radio Bangladesh today broadcast of a series of "presidential announcements" without naming Ahmed, but this is customary.

Titles Ride On Final Game Outcomes

D.H. Conley's Mike McClanahan

For two Eastern Carolina Conference teams and one Eastern Plains team, the whole football season boils down to Friday night.

Greene Central could wrap up the ECC title this week with a win even though they are tied with Ayden-Grifton. All the Rams have to do is win.

Over in the Eastern Plains, Roanoke can win its first conference title with a win over North Johnston which was a tough team for Noland Respass's charges when the Redskins went by the name of Eagles at Robersonville High School.

In last Friday's next-to last games, Ayden-Grifton stayed alive with 13-6 win over D.H. Conley. Farmville Central thrashed North Pitt 59-12; Greene Central beat North Lenoir 29-6; Williamston surprised Plymouth 20-6. Jamesville fell to Creswell. Roanoke was idle.

This Friday Greene Central go against Southern Nash, a team that has had great success as long as it stayed within the 20's. Once the Firebirds began smelling the end zone they fized. The Firebirds have rushed for 210 against Farmville Central, 205 against North Pitt and 152 against Conley, all in losing efforts.

The Ram defense will have to be on its toes this week to stop the Firebirds who would like to close the year on a win and deny Greene Central the title.

Ayden-Grifton will be pulling for Southern Nash, too. A-G's Mike Overton pointed out that there was a much pressure on the Chargers as on the Rams. "Regardless of what they do, we still have to win. If we lose and they lose it will be a three-way tie and we will have to flip for it."

Overton said he expects another tough game this week from C.B. Aycock. Aycock was knocked out of the top by Conley and would like to keep A-G from a shot at it.

D.H. Conley had almost all the breaks a team could ask for against the Chargers in three pass interceptions and two fumble recoveries but the A-G defense kept the Vikings from capitalizing on them.

The Vikings host North Pitt this week as both those teams close the year. North Pitt, reeling from the blasting it got at Farmville last week can finish with its best record ever with a victory. Conley will be trying to preserve a 5-5 season.

Farmville Central got off to a big start as Jeff Wilkes scored four times against the Panthers keying the rout. His 175 yards pushed him over the 1,000 mark for the season. Conley's Curtis Clemons needs five yards to get over 1,000 also.

Farmville Central will end its season on the road as the Jaguars visit North Lenoir. North Lenoir gave up 345 yards rushing to Greene Central. The Hawks only gained 76 on the ground and 40 passing.

Williamston won its biggest game of the year Friday closing its season with 20-6 win over Plymouth. Plymouth had rolled up 52 points the previous week against Tarboro but the Tigers held Plymouth to 101 yards on the ground and 83 in the air. Williamston had the game practically given to them as Plymouth fumbled six times and the Tigers picked off two passes.

Jamesville also winds up its season this week but a day earlier than the other teams. They meet the Roanoke junior Varsity on Thursday.

Cristiano Has Been Leader Of Chargers

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

GRIFTON—Early in the season, there was a change of quarterbacks for the Ayden-Grifton Chargers and Dennis Cristiano, who started the season number two, was given the starting job. It proved to be a good move for the Chargers.

"Rag" as he is called by his teammates, is the area's leading passer with a 56.6 per cent completion average. He is also one of the leaders in fewest interceptions having thrown just three. Cristiano's 55 yards rushing ranks him sixth on the team.

Dennis, a senior, is finishing his sixth year of football having started in the Greenville Recreation leagues in seventh grade. "In the beginning of seventh grade I moved (to Greenville) and I played for Aycock in eighth grade," he said.

"I played end in seventh and eighth. When I came to Ayden-Grifton I played quarterback."

One of the hardest things he says he has had to do is overcome the urge to throw every play. "I liked to throw but nothing else. I have the plays down pat and it's the most fun. I like to run the team; you're in the middle of it."

Another thing he worked on was building his confidence. "I've been trying to stay away from throwing an interception. I'm one of 11 guys and if I let myself get down it's not fair to the other guys. If I throw an interception, I just forget about it."

"My worst habit was when I dropped back I was having trouble finding my secondary receiver or finding another guy. Trying to hold back or throw it away is the biggest problem." It can't be too big, he's only been picked off three times.

Cristiano attributed his high completion percentage to his ends. "A lot of passes I've thrown they have helped out on and made me look better." Two his receivers, Paul Ricciarelli and Vern Davenport are among the Eastern Carolina Conference leaders in receptions with 17 and 13 respectively.

Cristiano feels that the tempo of the game can be determined in the first two series of downs. "After the first two series of downs you know what you have to do. What worries me is getting stopped on the first series. If you move the ball, you get more confidence."

The Chargers still have a distant shot at a playoff berth this Friday night. Greene Central would have to lose and the Chargers would have to win for that to happen. Dennis is hoping it will.

"I think we have as good a chance of Greene Central (if they get to the playoffs). Some might say they are stronger but I think we could represent the league better. They don't deserve it any more than us because we have a better overall record."

Cristiano is probably more famous around A-G for his baseball talents. Last season, Dennis was the Chargers ace pitcher and played outfield. He compiled an 11-3 record and recorded 112 strikeouts. He said he decided to skip basketball to get ready for baseball. "I had a good year in baseball. I think we should go to the state this year."

Last year we came pretty close, the last game decided it." Rag pitched 95 and two thirds innings last year.

He has not had any offers from colleges in either baseball or football but did have some encouragement in baseball last season. "I went to a tryout camp for the Cincinnati Reds and there were all these old guys still trying out. Bill Jameson told me he would keep in touch. I thought it was a joke when he wrote me I was so excited. I hope I can have a better year this year."

Cristiano said he would like to play college baseball at either ECU, Louisburg or South Carolina.

But before he can full concentrate on baseball, the Chargers have at least one more football game left to play.

Lady Pirates Capture Match

East Carolina University's women's tennis team rolled to a 6-3 victory over Atlantic Christian College yesterday.

The Bucettes dropped Atlantic Christian in five of the six singles matches to sew up the victory. Atlantic Christian came back with two of the doubles events, but it was too late to make any difference in the outcome.

The victory evened the Pirate record at 3-3. East Carolina travels to Raleigh on Tuesday to meet St. Mary's in the final match of the year.

In an exhibition singles match, East Carolina's Jenny Gainey downed Cynthia Overman, 6-1, 6-1.

Summary:

Joan Adams (AC) defeated Kathy Portwood, 6-4, 2-6, 6-0.

Vickie Loose (EC) defeated Mary Beth Bottoms, 6-0, 6-0.

Susan Helmer (EC) defeated Phyllis Parish, 6-2, 6-2.

Marie Stewart (EC) defeated Susan Cherry, 6-4, 6-3.

Joyce Johnson (EC) defeated Patty Denkins, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Tisa Curtis (EC) defeated Kathy Pfeiffer, 6-1, 6-0.

Adams-Parish (AC) defeated Portwood-Loose, 8-4.

Curtis-Dorcas Sunkel (EC) defeated Bottoms-Denkins, 8-0.

Cherry-Overman (AC) defeated Gainey-Deloris Ryan, 8-3.

Oklahoma, Nebraska Not Looking Ahead

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — All eyes in the Big Eight are beginning to look ahead to Nov. 8 when Nebraska invades Norman, Okla., for its annual showdown with Oklahoma. This one likely will determine the conference champion and contender for the national championship.

The only folks not looking ahead are Oklahoma and Nebraska. They're more concerned with Nov. 8 when Oklahoma entertains Kansas and Nebraska visits Kansas State.

"I hope our football team won't be looking past Kansas ... and Missouri ... to the Nebraska game," says Switzer. "I think the Kansas game will be a tough one. They played Kansas State better than we did. Quarterback Nolan Cromwell presents a problem and Mike Butler is the most talented defensive lineman in the league other than our Dewey and LeRoy Selmon."

Osborne says he's "concerned that our players stay sharp and don't look ahead. I think Kansas State has a better team than Indiana, and Indiana came awfully close to beating supposedly the No. 1 team in the country, Ohio State."

Looking ahead to Saturday ... Oklahoma 38-14, Nebraska 42-7.

Last week's score was 53 right, 16 wrong for a .768 percentage. For the year, 387-135-10—.714.

Ohio State at Illinois: Can the Illini do what Indiana almost did? Uh-Uh ... Ohio State 34-14.

Baseball For Cuba

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — Plans are nearing completion for a major league all-star baseball team to travel to Havana next spring to play a Cuban team, the Long Island newspaper Newsday reported today.

Newsday said in today's editions that negotiations for the game began last year and apparently have continued with the knowledge of both Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

One phase of the negotiations involved a secret meeting in Mexico City, just before the World Series, between baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and his two Cuban counterparts, the newspaper said.

It is not known at this time when an official announcement will be made, Newsday said. A spokesman for Kuhn's office, Robert Wirz, said: "There's just not anything that can be said at this time. There just isn't going to be any comment from this office."

The game is seen both as a diplomatic tool and a television spectacular that will bring de- tention between the two nations into the living rooms of America, Newsday said, adding that ABC is negotiating for the rights to broadcast the game live from Havana.

"It's no secret in baseball circles that since Sen. (George) McGovern's trip to Cuba, baseball people have been interested in Cuba," a State Department official said. "The baseball commissioner has been talking to (Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs William D.) Rogers about it for a long time."

Money Wasn't McKay's Reason

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — John McKay says money wasn't the main reason he decided to leave the University of Southern California for the new Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League.

And McKay said he won't be making as much as he has been reported.

McKay announced last week that he was leaving as the university's football coach and athletic director. Newspaper reports said he would earn nearly $2 million on a five-year contract.

"Those figures are so ridiculously out of line it makes my job five times as difficult. A lot of pro coaches will read that and go to their owners and try to get $2 million. I wouldn't pay that kind of money for five football coaches with Jim Brown thrown in."

McKay said he had made no recommendations to school officials on who should replace him but added, "I would think they'll add two jobs. With more women becoming involved in sports and the outdow on spending, the athletic director is busy. It's only about a 99-hour a day job."

McKay chided one reporter who printed the "details" of McKay's contract, which in-

Oilers Break Old Tradition

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — According to tradition, by mid-season the Houston Oilers have found a comfortable seat for themselves in the cellar of the American Football Conference's Central Division.

This year, they seem quite comfortable right at the top of the division with a 6-1 record and tied with defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh and Cincinnati for first place.

There are several explanations for Houston's sudden, undeniable status as a contender.

—Noseguard Curley Culp, whose acquisition from Kansas City signaled the start of Houston's defense-oriented rise to NFL respectability.

—Kick returner Billy Johnson, a 15th-round draft choice whose mercurial returns have played key roles in virtually every Oilers victory this season.

—A dynamite touchdown bomb crew of quarterback Dan Pastorini and wide receiver Kenny Burrough, who have highlighted a still improving Oilers offense.

—O.A. "Bum" Phillips, the tobacco-chewing, country-talking head coach who helped start the turnaround last year with his befuddling three-man front defense.

The Oilers defense has been the backbone of Houston's rise. The Oilers have lost only three times in 15 games since Culp joined the team during last sea-

Dotson Is Lost

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—The loss of starting quarterback Gene Dotson to a knee injury leaves The Citadel without two of its starting backfield when the Bulldogs face Richmond this Saturday.

A spokesman said Tuesday Dotson would undergo immediate knee surgery and will be out for the remainder of the football season.

Dotson had been plagued with injuries this year. He suffered the knee injury in last Saturday's 22-17 loss to Appalachian State.

The 5-foot-11, 175-pound senior is the school's No. 3 all-time offense leader with 2,556 yards.

Earlier this year the team lost fullback Andrew Johnson, last year's Southern Conference Player of the Year, when he suffered a knee injury.

A spokesman said Dotson's slot will be filled by senior Rod Lanning when the Bulldogs

Spirits Take Fifth In Row

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Spirits of St. Louis made it five straight Tuesday night with Don Adams, Freddie Lewis and Marvin Barnes combining for 76 points in a 115-110 American Basketball Association victory over the Utah Stars.

There were no other ABA games scheduled.

Spirits' Coach Rod Thorn credited, in part, Adams with his consistent game performance for the victory but called Barnes' play late in the fourth quarter the turning point.

"We were up by only a couple of points and Barnes came through with a three-point play. I knew we could do it from then on," Thorn said.

St. Louis had won three of the four previous games without Barnes, who had suffered a pulled muscle.

At game's end, Adams and Lewis each had 27 points, tying Utah's John Roche for game scoring honors. Barnes added 22 for the Spirits and Ron Boone aided the Utah cause with 25 points.

St. Louis held a 22-20 lead after one quarter, but Roche started driving to the basket in the second period. The spunky little guard put in 14 points in the quarter and the Stars moved to a five-point lead before Adams rallied the Spirits to a 53-52 halftime edge.

Boone and Roche sparked Utah to a 72-63 lead in the third period, but Barnes and Lewis brought the Spirits right back so they led 83-78 going into the final stretch.

Baltimore's Palmer Is Cy Young Winner

By LARRY SIDONS
Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — A warm, sunny day in the off season usually finds Jim Palmer on the golf course.

But while the skies were bright and temperatures reached the mid 70s Tuesday, the Baltimore Orioles' right-hander stayed in his backyard garden, waiting for the telephone to ring.

The choice paid off. Late in the day, Palmer received a call telling him he had been named winner of the Cy Young Award as the American League's top pitcher.

"I was out in the garden spreading mulch when I found out," said Palmer, a Cy Young winner for the second time in three years. "Normally on a day like this I would have been playing golf, but I knew the

Ted Brown Is Top ACC Rookie

By The Associated Press
Ted Brown is a boyish-looking youth who looks like he should be in high school in his hometown of High Point, N.C.

Instead, Brown is a freshman at North Carolina State University, where his football skills are coming into full bloom.

Tuesday, the 5-11, 180-pound running back was named named rookie of the week in the Atlantic Coast Conference for the second straight week.

Brown, who has put together five outstanding performances in a row, piled up a total of 307 yards in State's 28-21 win over South Carolina last Saturday.

He scored one touchdown, and is the ACC's leading scorer with 64 points and the No. 3 rusher with 698 yards for an average of 87.2 yards per game.

His talents make him a prime contender as an All-ACC running back.

With veteran quarterback Dave Buckley providing the air strikes and the leadership, Brown provided the footwork as the Wolfpack staged a comeback triumph.

Brown was promoted from the junior varsity five weeks ago after coach Lou Holtz decided he needed some changes in his offense. In the five ensuing games, four of them victories, he has rushed for 698 yards — 401 in the last two games.

Life has changed little for Brown in this period of brilliance, he said.

"It hasn't changed anything yet," he commented after Saturday's game. "I've gotten a lot of good publicity out of this but it can't change me. I'm still going to be Ted. People don't know me on campus. I can walk up and talk to them and they don't know I play football. They just know my number. So

Bucettes Take Game

MURFREESBORO — East Carolina took a pair of volleyball matches from Chowan yesterday, winning varsity and junior varsity matches.

In the varsity event, East Carolina took a 2-0 victory. The Bucettes won the first match, 15-10, then overwhelmed the Squaws, 15-5, in the second for a sweep.

The junior varsity also recorded a 2-0 win. They romped past Chowan, 15-4 in the opening game, then came back with a 15-2 rout in the second.

The victory moved the varsity record to 7-11 on the season. The Bucettes travel to UNC-Charlotte on Friday, where the North Carolina Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women will hold its state tournament. East Carolina is slated to meet N.C. State at 10:15 a.m. Friday in the first round of the single elimination tournament.

Michael Spell, Murphy and Fred Cherry were the defensive standouts for West Greenville, while Ramon Bynum paced the South Greenville defense.

Notre Dame Tackle Is Player Of The Week

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Jeff Weston, a sophomore defensive tackle, reported for football practice this fall at 263 pounds. "Now he weighs 248," says Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine. "That's the whole story."

Weston, the team's second-leading tackler, made 22 stops and scored a back-breaking 53-yard touchdown on a pass interception in last Saturday's 31-10 victory over Navy. He was named the Associated Press National College Lineman of the Week.

"He had put on a lot of weight over the summer," Devine said, "but I suggested he take off some of the weight. It has made him more maneuverable and less susceptible to injury." Weston, who stands 6-foot-3, missed some preseason drills because of a pulled muscle. "It kept him out of considerable preseason work so he had a lot to overcome," Devine said. "But he has an excellent attitude and he's a real team player. He's a guy who is going to be around here for two more years and make a lot of improvements."

Devine pointed out that Weston speaks proudly himself of the weight loss and that it can serve as an example to others. "It shows that you don't have to be 260-270 pounds to play the line," Devine said.

The Irish coach said Weston started out as an offensive player, as well as defensive. "The offensive coaches would have liked to have him," he chuckled. "But I felt like we had to have a strong defense, so we left him where he played a little bit as a freshman."

Weston, who played both offensive and defensive tackle at Mooney High School in Rochester, N.Y., said Saturday's effort against Navy was "by far the best game I ever played. Everything was happening for me. They were running my way and all I could do was tackle."

His father, Al Weston, graduated from Notre Dame in 1950, and "there was no other choice of a college" for the young Weston. "I always wanted to come here, I always planned to come here," he said.

The 22 tackles against Navy — five solos and 17 assists — pushed Weston to 76 for the season, second only to running mate Steve Niehaus' 90.

"I didn't expect to be doing this well," Weston said. "I have two more years and I didn't figure I'd be doing that much this year. I just play for the team and do my best."

Devine said Weston's interception off a fake punt was "the outstanding play" of the game. "That was a sensational play, but he really played a brilliant game strictly as a defensive tackle."

just not been the way for us," Parker said.

The Tigers face the University of North Carolina this Saturday in Chapel Hill. Despite the Tarheels' 2-4 record this season, Parker said the North Carolina team has "one of the most beautifully conceived offenses that I have ever seen."

"They have the ability to run inside and outside, as well as passing and using the reverse," he said. "And they have a great running back in Mike Voight to make them a threat all of the time."

Parker apologized to Clemson fans for alternating his quarterbacks, Willie Jordan, Mike O'Cain and Steve Fuller. "We just keep hoping that one of the trio will stick his head up above the other two and take the job," he said.

Parker Believes Tigers Can Win

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Coach Red Parker of Clemson University says he believes his team can be instilled with confidence despite its dismal 1-7 record this football season.

"You dadgum right it can," he said at his weekly news conference Tuesday. Parker threatened to quit last Saturday after his Tigers lost to Florida State 43-7.

"We felt when we came here we needed to get the confidence into the players and now we must rededicate ourselves to this goal," he said.

"People have asked me if the team was playing with enthusiasm and I would have to say no, but that all stems from not having had anything good happen to you," he added.

"It is easy to be enthusiastic and play hard when things are going to suit you and this has

Petty May Be Track Builder

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A proposed $3.8 million speedway near here may be partially financed by stock car driver Richard Petty.

Petty, the first NASCAR grand national driver to win over $2 million, expressed enthusiasm for the project Tuesday after inspecting its Rutherford County site.

"This is really a natural location," he said. "There are lots of fans in this area and farther north that would like to see superspeedway racing but don't want to travel all the way to Atlanta."

Petty said his father, Lee, probably would make the final decision on whether their Randleman, N.C. based Petty Enterprises will invest in the track. They reportedly are considering purchasing 12.5 per cent interest in the speedway.

The one-mile tri-oval, to be built as a miniature duplication of the Daytona International Speedway, is scheduled for completion in 1967. The speedway stands will seat 50,000 with room for another 10,000 in the infield.

Promoters said at least two Grand National races are scheduled for the speedway each season in addition to the two Grand National races now held at the five-eighths-mile Nashville Speedway.

Bulls Underestimate The Suns

By TIM WHITE
AP Sports Writer

You can't judge a basketball team's strength simply by its physical sinew, nor gauge its savvy by the sum total of its playing experience.

Rookie center Alvan Adams, dominating both backboards and making six steals, scored 15 points in the second half Tuesday night to lead the youthful Phoenix Suns past the Chicago Bulls 96-80 in a National Basketball Association contest.

Afterward, Bulls' Coach Dick Motta admitted he had underestimated the Suns, most especially their fledgling center, who grabbed 12 rebounds in the final half.

"I was surprised tonight by Adams," he said. "Not because I thought he wasn't good, but I didn't think a rookie could handle us the way he did."

In other NBA action, Philadelphia upended Buffalo 121-114, Milwaukee edged Detroit 103-101, Houston defeated New York 119-106, Washington outlasted Cleveland 113-96, Kansas City beat Los Angeles 116-98 and Atlanta nipped Portland 98-87.

Adams' remarks after Phoenix's triumph seemed to sum up the Sun's spunky philosophy.

"I have to give away a bit of weight and height, which means I can't outmuscle anybody," said the 6-foot-9, 210-pound center, who finished with 18 points. "But I feel I'm quicker and more agile and therefore can outjump either of the Chicago centers (Nate Thurmond and Tom Boerwinkle.)"

76ers 121, Braves 114
Steve Mix scored eight of a string of 12 points as the 76ers broke a 99-all tie in the final period and took the lead for good, helping hand Buffalo its first loss of the season.

Bucks 103, Pistons 101
Bob Dandridge sank two free throws with six seconds left, rallying Milwaukee to its first win of the season. Dandridge had a 26-point night, while Brian Winters led the Bucks with 34.

Rockets 119, Knicks 106
Calvin Murphy kept the home fires burning, hitting New York for 33 points enroute to the Rockets' (2-3) second straight victory in Houston's new Summit Arena.

Bullets 113, Cavaliers 96
Elvin Hayes tossed in 23 points and Mike Riordan added 21 as Washington scored its third victory in four starts. Hayes notched 12 points in the first quarter as the Bullets bolted to a 20-4 lead and were never threatened.

Kings 116, Lakers 98
Kansas City Coach Phil Johnson received two technical fouls — an automatic ejection — in a four-minute span in the third period. His ejection seemed to fire up the Kings as they hit 70 per cent of their fourth-quarter shots for a 35-18 edge.

Hawks 95, Trail Blazers 97
Lloyd Neal's three-point play with 42 seconds to go drew Portland within one point of Atlanta 94-93. John Drew, high man with 34 points, hit a jumper to make it 96-93, but Portland scored again with 32 seconds left. Connie Hawkins got the final two Atlanta points on free throws with four seconds remaining.

More Players May Be Eligible To Stocking Of Tampa, Seattle

NEW YORK (AP) — Seattle and Tampa, the new expansion teams in the National Football League, will get to see pro football's best talent. But most of it will be on the other side of the field, despite a more liberal selection procedure.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, here for the league's three-day meetings, said Tuesday the method of stocking Seattle and Tampa, which both begin play in the 1976 season, has yet to be determined, although he indicated a "more liberal" draft process appears likely.

Rozelle said more players might be eligible for selection than in previous expansion drafts, citing the possibility that players on the injured list, for example, may be available.

But in any event, football's best would line up against the expansionists, since in the clubs' first two years of existence they would meet all the other present NFL teams once, and each other twice.

The plan is to place the Seattle Seahawks in the National Football Conference West Division for the 1976 season and in the American Conference West in 1977. The Tampa Buccaneers would be ticketed for the AFC West in 1976 and the NFC West in 1977.

Both years Tampa and Seattle get to play each other, as well as the other 13 teams in their respective conferences.

"This way, the people in Seattle and Tampa will see, either at home or on TV, all 26 teams in their first two years," Rozelle said.

Rozelle said the NFL is seriously considering adding two more clubs for the 1978 season. He also said he has been in contact with representatives of Memphis and Birmingham from the defunct World Football League, which are both planning to formally request admission to the NFL for the 1976 season.

"There are obvious problems," the commissioner said about the Memphis and Birmingham applications.

Meanwhile, the NFL unanimously approved a two-year extension of the league's contract with the College All-Star Game. The 1976 Game, which will match the 1976 Super Bowl champions against a group of college All-Stars, will be played Friday night, July 23.

Cecil Cooper of the Boston Red Sox led the American League's designated hitters in 1975 with a .318 average.

Bicentennial Committee In Disarray

By DOLLIE L. SMITH
UPI Capitol Reporter
RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — State Auditor Henry L. Bridges has found the North Carolina Revolution Bicentennial Committee in a "state of acute disorganization" because of high turnover in directors.

Bridges, in a Sept. 25 management letter concerning the agency's 1974-75 fiscal year audit report to be released this week, said no evidence of misappropriation of funds or of fraud was found by two auditors who examined the committee records from Aug. 7-18.

"However, the commission is in such a condition, as to organization and objectives, that the auditors consider its potential impact as a state-level program to be minimal," he said.

"This, the auditors feel, is the result of the consistent changing of directors during the period of existence," he said. He said that produced disorganization "both in documentation and accountability as well as failure of major programs."

Richard E. Ellis, a former television newsman who became the committee's fourth director in six years July 9, told UPI last week most of the problems cited by Bridges had been resolved.

But when the audit was conducted, a month after Ellis became its head, Bridges said the agency was "in a state of acute disorganization such that the auditors were required to go through five file cabinets to trace through programs."

The politically sensitive post was first held by historian Richard Gibbs who was named by Democratic Gov. Robert Scott in 1969.

In March 1973, Gibbs, a Democrat who laid most of the groundwork for the 200th year celebration, was replaced by Mrs. Dabney Enderle, a Republican and the first of three appointees newly elected GOP Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. would name to the job.

Mrs. Enderle, who had served as Holshouser's campaign scheduler, resigned, reportedly under pressure, in December 1974, citing the changing role of the director from a promoter to an administrator as the reason. Paperwork and administrative duties, she said, weren't her "bag."

She was succeeded in February this year by Mrs. Francis F. Tomlin of Concord, a former GOP legislator and another Holshouser campaign worker. But five months later, Mrs. Tomlin was abruptly dismissed by the governor, sparking sharp criticism of him in both Republican and Democratic circles.

The official reason given for her removal was failure to live up to Holshouser's expectations, but reports from reliable sources indicated conflicts between Mrs. Tomlin and Holshouser's wife, Pat, as the primary reason.

Since then, Mrs. Enderle also has admitted to having problems with the First Lady, who has taken an active role in Bicentennial activities.

Ellis, however, reports no such problems with Mrs. Holshouser.

"She is a strong personality," he said. "She's a charging horse and a strong-headed woman and if she had problems with Fran Tomlin I can see why. But she's been cooperative with me."

Ellis, a Democrat, doesn't claim to be a businessman but says Holshouser, to whom he reports "directly," brought him in as "a relief pitcher in the ninth inning" to provide "a strong public relations emphasis."

After inheriting nearly four months ago what he described as "a rat's nest," Ellis now contends, "We've got no problems and that's the truth."

Adding to the agency's administrative problems is the fact it is a "temporary organization," Ellis said.

"We've set up for one specific purpose — to put on a big celebration during one specific year and then we're gone," he said.

Liz Fentress, committee press secretary throughout the administrative shuffle, said the agency had experienced "a series of administrators whose emphasis has been mainly on themselves and what the job could lead them to do in the future."

"These people who have had this job have all been difficult, temperamental, arbitrary, egotistical and I could go on," she said. "There's something about this job in the past that has led them to believe that they had a free hand to do anything they damn well pleased."

The major problem area cited by Bridges involved the handling of monies derived from the sale of Bicentennial medallions and souvenirs and deposited with the private North Carolina Bicentennial Foundation, Inc.

The auditors found that the foundation, established by former state Sen. Hector MacLean of Lumberton to supplement the agency's $429,584 budget, had received $65,457 in royalties from the sale of those items during the past two years.

However, there were no accounting procedures for the private foundation, including no budget and no standard business controls over sales of commemorative items at the committee headquarters.

Bob Hostetler, one of the auditors who has since become comptroller for the Department of Cultural Resources, said a private auditing firm had audited the foundation but never prepared a certified report. Ellis said the firm termed the agency's business operations "a horror house" and made recommendations similar to the state auditors.

Building Up In Greenville

September building permits issued in Greenville totaled $1,336,960, according to a report issued by State Labor Commissioner T. Avery Nye Jr.

Nye said that Greenville totals for the first nine months of the year amounted to $9,477,776.

Neighboring city totals for September and the first nine months included: Elizabeth City, $212,400; $3,584,760; Goldsboro, $1,216,265; $8,021,639; Jacksonville, $309,670; $2,467,501; Kinston, $497,700; $3,284,802; New Bern, $54,810; $919,560; Roanoke Rapids, $97,276; $3,594,822; Rocky Mount, $890,090; $9,595,896; and Wilson, $389,772; $5,676,823.

Permits valued at $41,836,345 were issued in 38 North Carolina cities of more than 10,000 population during the month, up 18.1 per cent over last September, Nye reported.

Fungus Tea Is New 'Cure-All' Fad In Japan

By KAY TATEISHI
TOKYO (AP) — Drinking a sweet, sour concoction called "fungus tea" is Japan's latest fad. Thousands claim it is a preventive or cure for physical ills ranging from constipation to cancer. Many doctors dismiss it as a folk remedy. Health authorities are stumped as to how to classify it.

Nevertheless, people from all walks of life, from cabinet ministers to housewives, are drinking kocha kinoko, which translates literally as mushroom tea.

The beverage is made from a mysterious fungus said to have its origin in a Siberian village near Irkutsk on Lake Baikal. It is being brewed in millions of Japanese households and many adherents assert it is effective for chronic headaches, arthritis, high blood pressure, stiff shoulders, pimples, allergies, athlete's foot, cancer — almost every ailment under the sun.

The popularity of the beverage which some skeptics describe as a "witches brew," was touched off by a little 76-year old widow, Mrs. Sumako Nakamitsu, with a book, "How To Keep Healthy with 'Kocha Kinoko.'" The book, which costs less than two dollars, has already sold a half million copies since it appeared last December. Mrs. Nakamitsu, whose husband was managing editor of a major Tokyo newspaper in the mid-1930s, tells her readers, "Ever since I was a child, I was a chronic weakling, bothered by various maladies...after I began drinking 'fungus tea' in 1969 I overcame my illnesses...My old skin defects and spots have disappeared...I no longer suffer from constipation and I no longer have to carry indigestion tablets..."

Mrs. Nakamitsu says she was given a piece of the mysterious white jelly-like fungus by a Japanese Russian language teacher who brought it back from a Siberian village whose inhabitants are said to live to a ripe old age. She says she never learned what it was because the teacher died shortly after he gave it to her.

It was first extolled on a nationwide women's radio program, and later on a television show. The result was about 100,000 letters and postcards asking where the fungus could be obtained. Mrs. Nakamitsu's book and three others, which subsequently hit the bookshops and have had a combined sales of 550,000 copies, include a coupon which offers readers gratis a slice of "kinoko" if they send in the coupon with a return address.

The fungus is an acetic acid bacteria which turns wine into vinegar, says Masayoshi Sakamoto, a professor at Kitasato University in Tokyo. Sakamoto, who has written two books on the drink, predicts its popularity will spread all over Japan.

Anyone can concoct the drink, according to Mrs. Nakamitsu, Prof. Sakamoto and others. The white jelly-like substance is placed in a large jar of cold black tea with brown sugar. The jar is covered with cheesecloth and allowed to ferment in a cool dark place for about one week to 10 days. The substance gradually assumes the shape of a mushroom, hence the name "Mushroom Tea." The fungus must float to the top of the jar where it breathes.

If it settles at the bottom of the jar it is dead. It will also die if the jar cover is tightly sealed or if it is placed in a refrigerator. The brownish colored brew looks and tastes like sweet-sour lemon tea.

Doctors and medical experts are skeptical. Junji Ishigaki, a medical critic, scoffs at reports concerning "fungus tea."

"It is typical Japanese mass hysteria...a Japanese craze for a fad..." he said.

Booms come and go in Japan in health drinks and health foods such as garlic, viper's blood, boxthorn tea, ginseng roots, comfrey leaves, cactus leaves and a long list of other herbs and ingredients. A popular belief is that they are stamina builders and preventives against physical disorders that range from the common cold to fallen arches.

But many prominent political commercial and cultural personalities, including three members of the cabinet, hail the properties of "mushroom tea."

Health and welfare authorities said, however, they cannot sanction fungus tea, nor can they outlaw it. They said they are unsure of its credibility, while reporting that tests so far have produced no signs of ill effects. They added that they could not rule out the possibility of some undesirable effect in the future.

Some 'Skip' Internship

CHICAGO (AP) — Today after a medical student gets his MD degree, he often goes directly into residency instead of being an intern, then a resident. Internship is not required today in some medical specialties.

However, says Joseph Ceithami, dean of students at the University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine, it's a matter of semantics.

"The first post-doctoral clinical appointment year is just that — an apprenticeship in postgraduate medicine, by any name."

This year there are two house staff positions open in the United States for every U.S. medical graduate.

Ceithami says that the Pritzker School this year offers only one internship program — in internal medicine. He said that the emphasis at the school is on turning out specialists and research physicians. However, the tendency is generally away from the traditional rotating internships in which the new doctor rotates through various hospital medical services, doing a little obstetrics, a little surgery, a little pediatrics, etc.

Some Surprises In Widely Scattered Vote Results

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

The strongest Republican challenge for the governorship of Mississippi in this century ended in a photo finish today and Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll survived an antibusing backlash threat in off-year elections. Women were elected lieutenant governors in the two states.

With nearly 80 per cent of the Mississippi vote counted, Democrat Cliff Finch had 50.5 per cent of the total, polling 268,300 to 248,490 for Republican Gil Carmichael.

Black independent Henry Jay Kirksey held the balance with 14,392 votes and threatened to throw the race into the state House of Representatives if Finch's lead slipped below an absolute majority in the final returns.

The voters in both Kentucky and Mississippi picked women as lieutenant governors Tuesday. But the women's rights cause suffered a stunning setback when voters in New Jersey and New York rejected state versions of the federal Equal Rights Amendment.

With New York's fiscal problems on the minds of voters, a number of large bond issues lost, including a record $4.5 billion package in Ohio, $922 million in New Jersey and $250 million in New York.

The Democrats kept legislative control in four states: Kentucky, Mississippi, New Jersey and Virginia.

As is usual the year before a presidential election, Tuesday's widely scattered contests produced mixed results. There were no national trends and few surprises.

The Republicans had placed their major emphasis on Mississippi. Carmichael, a 48-year-old Meridian businessman, ran a strong race there against Sen. James O. Eastland in 1972. Finch, a Batesville attorney, had been the surprise winner of two rounds of Democratic primaries.

The state's lieutenant governor contest was more one-sided as Democrat Evelyn Gandy, 55, now insurance commissioner, whipped Republican Mayor Bill Patrick of Laurel.

In Kentucky, Democrat Carroll easily won a full four-year term in the post he inherited when his predecessor, Wendell Ford, went to the U.S. Senate. The 44-year-old Carroll, a Paducah attorney and racial moderate, piled up big margins in predominantly Democratic rural areas and held down Republican Robert Gable's expected big margins in the suburbs surrounding Louisville.

Both candidates had deplored the court-ordered busing that rocked that city this fall. But the anti-incumbent backlash feared by Carroll supporters never materialized.

In the lieutenant governor's race, Thelma Stovall, 56, now secretary of state, defeated her male Republican opponent, businessman Shirley Palmer-Ball.

In the day's major municipal contests, winners included Mayors Kevin H. White of Boston, Ralph Perk of Cleveland, Frank Rizzo of Philadelphia, William Donald Schaefer of Baltimore and Maurice Ferre of Miami.

In the only major surprise, Democratic Mayor Albert Hofstede of Minneapolis was unseated by the man he had beaten two years earlier, policeman and former Mayor Charles Stenvig.

In Boston, the 46-year-old White won a third term over state Sen. Joseph Timilty, 57, by about 7,500 votes out of some 150,000 cast.

As in Kentucky, the two candidates took roughly similar positions on the local busing controversy, criticizing the court-ordered plan while urging that the law be obeyed.

In other large cities, Mayor Fred Hofheinz led four rivals in Houston but failed to get 50 per cent and will vie in a runoff against his closest challenger, former Harris County Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe.

In San Francisco, state Sen. George Moscone led an 11-candidate field, clinching a spot in the Dec. 11 runoff. Pre-election favorite Dianne Feinstein, president of the county board of supervisors, was running slightly behind Supervisor John Bar-bagelata for a spot in the runoff against Moscone.

In Indianapolis, Republican William Hudnut, a former congressman, defeated Democratic businessman Robert Welch for the post now held by retiring GOP Mayor Richard G. Lugar.

In Gary, black mayor Richard G. Hatcher won another term.

Rizzo, Schaefer and Ferre all scored one-sided wins, while Perk, a white Republican, won by more than expected against Arnold Pinkney, a black Democrat, in Cleveland's nonpartisan election.

In Ohio, the $4.5 billion bond package proposed by Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes to revitalize the state's economy lost by a 4 to 1 margin. "The people of Ohio have spoken, and I will abide by their decision," Rhodes said.

In New Jersey, Democratic Gov. Brendan Byrne blamed "President Ford's harsh treatment of the New York problem" for the rejection of $922 million in bond issues.

The New York and New Jersey votes against state equal rights proposals, meanwhile, were seen as a major blow to hopes for ratification of a national equal rights amendment.

Ruth Clusen, national president of the League of Women Voters, said it means "we must redouble our efforts" to get approval in four additional state legislatures. So far, 34 states have approved the amendment; approval by 38 of the 50 states ratifies a constitutional amendment.

New York City Suppliers Are Concerned Over Getting Paid

By STANLEY JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Phones are ringing busily at City Hall with 14,000 suppliers from across the country calling to find out if financially hard-pressed New York will be able to pay for the $500 million worth of goods it has on order.

That doesn't count such capital items as $300 million worth of subway cars being built by the Pullman Co. in St. Louis.

"So far there's no panic, but there's an awful lot of anxiety," said a spokesman for the Municipal Services Administration.

Among the most anxious was Dave Koepfel of Airport Motors in the New York City borough of Queens. Koepfel has 25 Plymouth police cars on his lot waiting for delivery to the city and is unsure what to do since, he says, the city already owes him $1.5 million. The contract is worth $6 million a year.

"If we don't get paid, the car people in Michigan don't get paid and the glass people in Pittsburgh don't get paid and the tire people in Akron don't get paid and so forth," Koepfel said.

"But we got faith. We got faith the money will come from somewhere, because if it doesn't, an awful lot of people in an awful lot of towns are going to suffer."

Koepfel said this shipment at least will go through and added he's already used his own money to pay for them.

Thomas Cecil, president of Swift & Co. in Chicago, telephoned purchasing commissioner Robert I. Cohen the other day dunning him for a $605,000 unpaid food bill. Cohen said Cecil told him if the city doesn't pay the company would have to close a section employing 110 men, the largest single loss in the history of the meat packing firm.

"This thing is national in scope," Cohen said in an interview. "And it works two ways. If we can't pay the bills, they're not going to deliver. What are we going to do for water if we can't pay for the chemicals to purify it?"

The national scope of unpaid New York City bills was a major theme of a speech Mayor Abraham D. Beame prepared for the National Press Club in Washington today.

The city, meanwhile, is entering into no new contracts except short-term ones for such perishable items as fresh foods.

Truck farmers from as far away as Iowa and Florida were reported among the most insistent callers. Some of them grow produce almost exclusively for the city.

"Some of the smaller firms will go bankrupt if New York City goes bankrupt," Cohen said.

City officials said big firms would not be hurt over-all, but sections devoted mostly to supplying New York would be.

For instance, there is a $12.5 million a year contract with International Harvester for Sanitation Department equipment made in Springfield, Ohio, and Fort Wayne, Ind.

IBM supplies $1.5 million a year worth of goods from Boca Raton, Fla.; Rochester, Minn.; Boulder, Colo.; and Raleigh, N.C.

Xerox has another $1.5 million annual contract in which Rochester, N.Y., is interested.

Judge To Speak At Seminar

CHAPEL HILL—"The Judge and the Sensational Trail" will be examined here by Judge Hamilton H. Hobgood, who presided at the Joan Little trial, at 8:30 p.m. Friday, during a seminar for print and electronic media.

Hobgood, resident Superior Court judge of the 9th judicial district at Franklinton, will be the keynote speaker for the 14th annual N.C. Press-Broadcasters Court Reporting Seminar being held Friday and Saturday at the Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Purchase Saves Wilderness

RALEIGH (AP)—A 6,300-acre tract in the mountain wilderness of Burke County has been saved from development by the North Carolina parks program.

The state paid two Florida companies $2,334,000 for the property, said James Harrington, Secretary of Natural and Economic Resources Tuesday. The land had been scheduled for resort development.

Harrington said the land is laced with trout streams and strewn with rhododendron and mountain laurel. It contains High Shoal Waterfalls, a scenic, 60-foot drop.

Harrington said one advantage of the site was its proximity to the Charlotte, Triad, and Asheville areas. "People will be able to leave their driveways and be engulfed by the wonders of a wilderness experience just an hour or so later," he said.

PORTABLE MODEL — Dr. Willem J. Kolff, director of the division of artificial organs at the University of Utah College of Medicine, walks with Kathy Moulton of Ogden, Utah, as she shows how to wear a new artificial kidney that was demonstrated by Dr. Kolff Tuesday. The model, displayed at Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, N.Y., has been tested on four patients so far and doctors said it shows that a truly artificial kidney can be developed in several years. Stardom Messes Up Golf Game

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Mickey Gilley quickly acknowledges he sounds a lot like Jerry Lee Lewis.

As cousins, the two entertainers grew up together and even helped each other learn to play lockably piano in Ferriday, La.

"I'm compared to Jerry Lee all the time," Gilley says. "There's a lot of similarity in our music. We both play a bluesy, honky-tonk piano."

Lewis went on to become an early rock and roll star, developing a reputation as a wild stage performer and for his ability to pound pianos to destruction.

Gilley moved to Houston, got a construction job and began playing at local clubs. His style gradually moved towards western swing and country.

Five years ago, he became a partner in what has become one of the largest country music clubs in the nation. Gilley calls it a beer joint, but on weekends there may be between 2,000 and 3,000 people there.

He got a local TV show and his custom-made records sold well at area stores. Over the years, he gradually accustomed himself to being a local celebrity after several efforts at landing a contract with the big record companies failed.

One of the songs Gilley recorded was an old George Morgan hit, "Room Full of Roses." Radio stations in Houston played it and before long it had sold 7,000 copies.

At the same time, Playboy magazine was about ready to give up on its venture into the music industry after losing several million dollars.

Playboy Records signed Gilley as its first and, at the time, possibly its last country artist. "Room Full of Roses" became the top country song in the nation and Playboy executives, seeing a trend, turned their record company towards country.

With a drop in its magazine and club revenues, the recording arm has become a major profit maker for Playboy.

Gilley takes pride in the turnaround. "Let's face it," he said, "it just doesn't happen unless you're with one of the big companies. And, new companies, they just don't make it."

With two bands — one for the club in Houston and the other for when he's on the road — Gilley's style on stage is similar to Lewis' but a little more subdued.

More than 2,000 people crowded into a small hotel ballroom to see and hear the two of them together at a party. Playboy held her last month. The atmosphere turned to that of the beer joints Gilley is fond of.

"I don't know about the stardom bit," he said. "It's gonna mess up my golf game. But then how can you mess up a 19

Bouton Does Better On TV Than In Baseball

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty-one is an age most baseball pitchers consider another line of work. This occurred five years ago to Jim Bouton, then 31 and at the end of a career spent pitching in leagues major and minor.

So the ex-New York Yankee and "Ball Four" author became a WABC-TV sportscaster here. He now works for WCBS-TV in Fun City and draws a much-better-than-baseball salary. He's done pretty well for himself.

The odd thing is, he was back out there pitching for three weeks last August for the Portland Mavericks, a Northwest League team. He says he recorded four wins, two losses and a 2.16 ERA.

Granted that in his major league days, Bouton was considered a flake. He didn't take things too seriously. He still doesn't.

Last week, for example, during a videotape replay of a fistfight between two hockey players, he compared their styles of fighting as expertly as Howard Cosell might analyze an Ali-Anybody dispute.

But go back into baseball from sportscasting?

Bouton for the defense: "I just suddenly looked as myself and said, 'I'm 36, I've been in television work for five years,' and I just felt I still had some physical stuff left inside me....

"I felt, 'What the hell. I throw a knuckleball. What would happen?'"

"I thought it'd be fun trying, even if I didn't make it. And I just wanted to see if my old girlfriend" — he meant baseball, for he's a happily married man — "looked as pretty as I remembered her. And yeah, she did."

He said he was on vacation when he thought of trying again, and that WCBS was nice enough to give him a leave so he could briefly rejoin the boys of summer for their league's minimum $300-a-month salary.

A few years ago, Bouton and another writer compiled a book of sports stories entitled, "I Managed Good, But Boy Did They Play Bad."

The title came from a claim of ex-major leaguer Rocky Bridges, then managing a California League team and having a fine, if low-paid, time.

Bouton was asked if he had as much fun playing at Portland.

"It was the perfect minor league scene, with the fans right down there being involved in the game, almost a factor in the game," he said. "There was sort of a country-fair kind of feeling before the ball game between the players and the fans."

He said he had so much fun that next season he'll try to hook on with an AA or AAA minor league team, a decided step up from the Northwest League, only one notch above the league for rookie players.

If no offers come? "I'm gonna cry a lot," Bouton laughed.

But should an offer arrive, he said, "I'm going to try to go to spring training with some team next year, and then play a full season."

I hate to be a spoil-sport, but how does he think the authorities at WCBS-TV will view all this?

"Well, we're talking about it," Bouton said. "They're not real, ah, thrilled by the idea. But they've been very good to me and they know I'm crazy. They try to deal within that framework, you know."

Opening lead: Four of ♠.

The time to plan the play of the hand is at the first trick. If you wait longer than that, it may be too late.

After South opened the bidding with one no trump, North employed the Stayman Convention to check on whether his partner held a four-card major suit. When South showed a spade suit, North's hand revealed to 11 points, more than enough to contract for game opposite a no trump opening bid.

West had no desire to lead from his tenaces in hearts and clubs, and since North, by probing for a major suit, had shown a hand that might be unbalanced, West elected to attack with a trump in hope of cutting down dummy's ruffing power. Without even bothering to count his tricks, declarer won the first trick in dummy and led a heart to his king. Had East held the ace of hearts, declarer would have made his contract easily. Unfortunately, West produced that card and he had no hesitation about returning another trump. Now, declarer stopped to count his tricks and found that, barring a miracle, he was going down. Miracles are in short supply this year, and the defenders scored a two-trick set when declarer played on the diamond suit.

Had declarer taken stock before playing to the first trick, he would have realized

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A peculiar day when it would be wise to sidestep any chances with entertainment or romance, but a good time to use an opportunity now present to look into business matters or to get things in good condition.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have a better chance now to gain the information you need to make bigger headway. Avoid one not loyal to you. Be happy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Follow your hunches and don't permit disgruntled friends to get you down. Go through with plans you have made. Be direct with mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Talking over mutually important matters brings fine results. Avoid the limelight now. You are thinking clearly and know what to do.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle business affairs, then you can enjoy amusements. Take the right kind of treatments to improve health, become dynamic.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Instead of spending money foolishly, find better methods of self-expression with the fine talents you possess. Kindness to mate helps.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to what kin desire, instead of wanting your own way so much, and cooperate for fine results. Make your home more smooth-running.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Fine day to contact allies and figure out how to make mutual enterprises more successful. Forget the unimportant now. Be orderly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more businesslike and you can easily improve your financial status now. Stop being taken in by others. Reduce expenses.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid limelight and cooperate with good pals harmoniously to accomplish much. Take health treatments. Evening is fine for reading.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Rid yourself of personal annoyances and get into new outlets more interesting and lucrative. A partner has excellent ideas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Spend time with fine, straight-shooting friends and gain good ideas. Don't worry about some annoyance so much you get nothing done.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't permit others to push you into work you don't like, or you get into trouble. Handle business as you're thinking clearly.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fast acting and blunt young people who must be taught early to think before acting and to use diplomacy when dealing with others, otherwise your progeny will be in hot water most of the time and accomplish little. Give as fine an education as possible and also the opportunity to travel early to broaden the horizons. Religion and sports are a must.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Nuclear Station Now Operating

RALEIGH (AP)—Carolina Power & Light Co.'s Brunswick nuclear reactor has begun generating power on a commercial basis. It marks the first time that North Carolina has been the site of a commercially operative nuclear power station.

CP&L said Tuesday that the first unit of the Brunswick station near Southport began commercial operation Monday. It had been operating on a test basis since April with a generating capacity of 790,000 kilowatts.

Both CP&L and Duke Power Co. have commercially operative nuclear stations in South Carolina.

RADIATOR CAPS NEED CARE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There is a trick to safely removing the radiator cap from an overheated engine. After the engine has cooled off, protect your hands with rags, avert your face and turn the cap just until the steam escapes. When hissing stops, advises the National Automobile Club, you can remove the cap completely, start the engine and very slowly add water.

Greenwich Observatory Marks 300th Anniversary

By GREGORY JENSEN
HERSTMONECEUX, England (UPI) — The Royal Greenwich Observatory, now celebrating its 300th anniversary, is an institution with a split personality, famous not for its achievements but its by-products.

To most people, Greenwich means time. GMT — Greenwich Mean Time — is the standard by which all the world's clocks are set.

To others it means the Greenwich Prime Meridian, an imaginary line of zero degrees longitude which slices through Greenwich's old buildings and is the base line for all the world's maps.

But these are Johnny-come-lately by-products, not adopted world-wide until 1884. They grew from the schizophrenic jobs Greenwich always has done — measuring time and measuring the stars.

In typically split fashion, "the Greenwich observatory" today means two places — a pink brick castle at Herstmonceux and the venerable buildings atop Greenwich hill in a London suburb.

Birthday exhibits and open houses at both places make the point that Greenwich was established originally to keep people from getting lost.

"Navigation at sea out of sight of land is a pretty hazardous business," wrote Prince Philip, the Queen's husband, in the introduction to an anniversary exhibit.

"Three things were necessary," Philip wrote: "accurate predictions of the motions of heavenly bodies, accurate measurement of time and an accurate means of measuring the positions of heavenly bodies from a ship at sea."

Greenwich was founded to produce all three. King Charles II's 1675 charter ordered it "to find out the so much desired longitude at sea, for the perfecting of the art of navigation."

Sir Christopher Wren, architect of the London churches, designed the observatory buildings. King Charles neglected to allocate his project enough money, so the buildings were paid for by the sale of spoiled Navy gunpowder.

Wren's buildings still crown the steep hill at Greenwich, six miles west of central London. They are museums now, ghostly and haunted with instruments which outlived their time.

One of these instruments, a great black telescope in a curious 18th century building, precisely established the prime meridian, base line not only for maps but for the world's time zone system based on GMT. An international conference in Washington adopted both in 1884.

Across the courtyard of this "meridian building" slices a thin brass line exactly at zero degrees longitude. Visitors today love to straddle it, standing with one foot in each hemisphere.

Greenwich's first astronomer royal, John Flamsteed, was happy if he could measure time to an accuracy of a few minutes either way. Today's atomic clocks at Herstmonceux are accurate to one ten-thousandth of a millionth of a second.

Flamsteed's telescopes studied the moon, earth's closest neighbor. Today's Greenwich astronomers peer unfathomable distances to the fringes of the universe.

Gradually London's sprawl created too much pollution and too many city lights for accurate observation from Greenwich. So after the war, the observatory moved 60 miles south of London to the clearer countryside of Sussex.

It is now a space-age laboratory headquartered in a 500-year-old castle, romantic and turreted inside its moat. A dozen observatory buildings are scattered in its vast rolling park. GMT is still measured here, its time signals from Herstmonceux broadcast around the world. The observatory's six atomic clocks are continuously matched against each other for accuracy.

"If they change 200 or 300 millionths of a second, then they're getting a bit useless," an assistant said. All the observatory's fancy technology cannot improve on one of nature's products — spider webs.

Two Herstmonceux engineers prowl the Sussex hedges for spiders and persuade them to spin threads on U-shaped frames. Man has never matched their accuracy as cross-hairs on alignment telescopes.

"Marvelous stuff," said a workshop engineer holding up a criss-crossed frame. "Perfectly uniform. Lasts forever. Can't hardly break it" — he bounced his finger gently on the almost invisible threads. "And it's free."

The biggest of the nine telescope domes dotting Herstmonceux's 368 acres holds Western Europe's largest telescope, a 98-inch reflector. It is named for Sir Isaac Newton, discoverer of the laws of gravity, who made the first compact telescope in 1671.

A tiny model of his first telescope sits today in a glass case under the new Isaac Newton telescope's vast dome. On the case some wag has put a sign saying, "In case main telescope fails, break glass."

SymphonyPlans Sunday Concert

The East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Robert Hause, will present two major works in its fall concert at 3:15 p.m. Sunday in Wright Auditorium.

Rimsky-Korsakoff's Russian Easter Overture and Gustav Mahler's Fourth Symphony will be performed, with Antonia Dalapas as soloist in the song in the final movement of the Mahler symphony.

Tickets are $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for non-university students. These will be available at the door or can be purchased in advance from the ECU Central Ticket Office.

Joint Exhibit Opens Sunday

A joint exhibit of paintings and watercolors by Robert (Bob) Pittman and photographs and collages by Jerry Raynor is opening on Sunday at the Greenville Art Center.

The theme of many of the items being shown is related to Pamlico County.

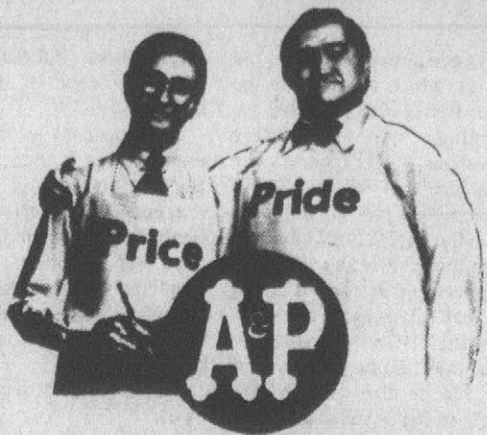

A reception will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. to which the public is invited. There is no admission charge. The joint show will remain on view during November.

How Tar Heel Senators And Congressmen Voted

BY ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Oct. 23 through Oct. 29.

HOUSE
NATIONAL DEBT CEILING—Rejected, 178 for and 217 against, a bill (HR 10049) raising the federal debt ceiling to $597 billion through March 31, 1976. The current "temporary" ceiling of $577 billion will expire Nov. 15 and revert to the "permanent" level of $400 billion, unless Congress reverses this vote.

The Administration-backed measure allows the government borrowing authority needed to pay its bills. Historically, Congress has virtually always passed measures raising the ceiling high enough to accommodate federal spending obligations.

One supporter, Rep. Herman Schneebeli (R-Pa.), said, "... we are once again participating in our semi-annual exercise in frustration and futility. ... nevertheless it is necessary to give the secretary of the treasury the authority to sign paychecks, otherwise we will have fiscal chaos. ..."

One opponent, Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.), said, "Today the bill comes due" for Congress' past "fiscal insanity." He continued, "Let us hope that the rejection of this bill will spur the executive branch and the Congress into cooperative action to reverse this plunge toward national bankruptcy."

Rep. Richard Preyer (D-6) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5),

Charles Rose (D-7), W.G. Hefner (D-8), James Broyhill (R-10), and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay."

Rep. James Martin (R-9) did not vote.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEE RIGHTS—Passed, 217 for and 183 against, a bill (HR 6227) strengthening the rights of federal civilian employees who are being investigated for misconduct on the job. HR 6227 was sent to the Senate.

The bill provides that from the outset of any investigation which could lead to suspension, demotion or dismissal, an employee must be notified by his or her superior that the probe is underway. The employee must also be informed of his or her right to counsel during the investigation.

The rights furthered by HR 6227 are now afforded employees after a formal misconduct charge has been filed. HR 6227 is designed to keep an employee from unwittingly contributing to his or her own demise.

Supporters said the bill would give federal employees the same civil rights protection available in the private sector.

Opponents contended that adequate appellate avenues now exist, and that the measure would create unnecessary friction between workers and their bosses. Rep. Robin Beard (R-Tenn.) said the measure's wording is so vague that a supervisor would have to inform an employee of the right to counsel before asking why he or she was late to work.

Fountain, Henderson, Neal, Preyer and Hefner voted "yea." Jones, Rose, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay." Andrews did not vote.

RAIL JOBS—Passed, 261 for and 129 against, a bill (HR 8672) designed to offset two problems affecting the nation's railroads — deteriorating railbeds and unemployment. HR 8672 would authorize $240 million to fund a year's worth of rail rehabilitation jobs, primarily for unemployed rail workers. Bankrupt railroads in northern states, such as Penn Central, would receive the bulk of the aid. HR 8672 was sent to the Senate.

One supporter, Rep. John Heinz (R-Pa.), emphasized that all of the money authorized by HR 8672 would be spent to re-hire unemployed workers, and thus it is first and foremost a jobs bill. Opponents criticized the bill for narrowly focusing on the northern rail workers and said the approaching winter would foil attempts to repair railbeds. They further said the bill conflicts with a pending bill to reorganize the nation's freight railroad system under the embryonic Conrail organization.

Neal, Preyer and Hefner voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Rose, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

Senate
SLAY PROMOTION—Confirmed, 49 for and 43 against, the nomination of Alton D. Slay to be lieutenant general of the U.S. Air Force. Slay was thus promoted from his present rank of major general.

At issue was Slay's role, as operations officer for then Lt. Gen. John D. Lavelle, in the 1972 unauthorized bombing of North Vietnam. Slay previously testified that Lavelle had ordered him to organize the air strikes and later to falsify reports on the missions.

Supporters said Slay's actions upheld the cardinal military axiom of obeying commands from above. Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) said, "... for us to take out our frustrations on loyal and dedicated military officers is the height of stupidity."

One opponent, Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.), said the confirmation would set a bad precedent for high-ranking military leadership. He said that Slay, though justified in following orders, should have reported suspected violations of civilian and military law to higher authorities.

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea." EXECUTIVE PROTECTION—Rejected, 33 for and 57 against, an amendment to delete a proposed $3.5 million expenditure for reimbursing cities which provide local police protection for foreign diplomats. Cities with at least 20 foreign missions would be eligible for the aid if the secretary of the treasury approved. New York, Houston, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago and New Orleans would qualify at present.

The defeated amendment

Some Smokers Trying To Quit

NEW YORK (AP) — The American woman has doubled her cigarette smoking in the last 10 years, but the producers of public television's "Feeling Good" show feel sure that she's trying to "kick the habit."

More than 20,000 requests for a "Quitter's Kit" for smokers poured in after they were offered free on the program that dealt with the dramatic increase in smoking by women over the past decade. The majority of the requests came within a few days of the broadcast which was titled "You've Come A Long Way ... Maybe," and quickly exhausted the limited supply. The kit includes a self-test for smokers, along with various tips on how to quit.

The Children's TV Workshop, which produced the adult health series for the 250 stations of the Public Broadcasting Service, reports that the requests, mostly from women, came from every state.

would have gutted its parent bill (HR 12), which was sent to the House. HR 12 also provided for enlarging the Executive Protection Service, the uniformed arm of the Secret Service which patrols Embassy Row in the District of Columbia.

Rep. Robert Morgan (D-N.C.), the sponsor, criticized HR 12 as a New York City subsidy measure. He said, "When Krushchev visited the U.S., he went to New York, but he also went to Pittsburgh, to Des Moines, and Coon Rapids, Iowa. But none of these would be covered under this bill."

One opponent of killing the expenditure, Sen. James Buckley (C-N.Y.), said that increased protection is particularly needed in these "sad days" of terrorism, and that municipal police departments should be reimbursed for their special efforts to safeguard diplomats.

Helms and Morgan voted "yea."

Disaster Preparedness Conference On Nov. 12

Robert E. Joyner, Pitt County Civil Preparedness Coordinator, announced today that a 10-county Disaster Preparedness Conference for Business and Industry will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 12 at the Greenville Moose Lodge on the Farmville Highway. Counties participating in the seminar are Beaufort, Bertie, Craven, Edgecombe, Greene, Lenoir, Martin, Pitt, Washington and Wilson. The Training and Education Branch of the Division of Civil Preparedness, N.C. Dept. of Military and Veterans Affairs, in Raleigh, and the Pitt County Civil Preparedness Agency are co-sponsoring the event.

In addition to business and industrial representatives to the ten counties, local and county governmental officials; law enforcement, fire department, rescue squad and ambulance personnel; school officials and others have been invited.

Among the topics to be presented will be plant safety (incorporating general features of OSHA), reacting to bomb threats, protection of vital records, effects of radioactive fallout and preparation of plans to cope with these subjects.

On the program are Robert K. Adams, II of Raleigh, safety director for the N.C. Industrial Commission and P.H. Blettner, Jr. of New Bern, an Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Agent of the U.S. Treasury Dept.

A special feature of the day-long conference will be a telephone hook-up with North American Air Defense Command headquarters in Cheyenne Mountain in Colorado. Those attending will have opportunity to ask questions of the officer on duty at the joint U.S.-Canadian facility.

The conference is open to anyone interested whether they have received an invitation or not. Registration starts at 8:15 a.m. at the Moose Lodge. The program begins at 9 a.m. and will end about 4 p.m. A registration fee of $5 includes a buffet luncheon at the Moose Lodge.

For additional information contact Joyner at 758-2008.

Speaker's Bureau Is Ready To Serve

Civic, professional and social organizations in eastern North Carolina who need well-informed speakers on coastal zone topics are invited to use the resources of East Carolina University's Coastal Environmental Speakers Bureau.

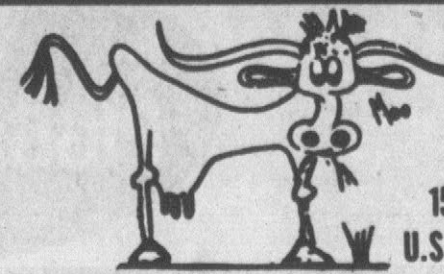

Coordinated by the ECU Environmental Education Program, the Speakers Bureau can arrange for appearances by any of 38 speakers on the natural and economic resources of the North Carolina coastal zone.

Among the presentations available are "Eastern North Carolina: The Year 2000," "Planning and Managing Hazardous Areas in a Coastal Environment," and "The Energy Crisis: It's Here."

Other topics focus on aspects of barrier islands, estuaries, land-use planning, fisheries, population, economics and water quality.

Individual speakers represent ECU, N. C. State University, UNC-Chapel Hill, UNC-Wilmington, Duke University, Elizabeth City State University, Pitt Technical Institute, the N. C. Division of Marine Fisheries, the N. C. Division of Environmental Management and the National Park Service.

Further information and copies of the Speakers Bureau handbook are available from the ECU Environmental Education Program, Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, Greenville, or telephone 758-6138.

Blind Learn And Enjoy Needlework

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Living Editor

Sharon Lash, 23, is going to teach needlepoint to her twin sister, Theresa.

Nothing remarkable about that, except that Sharon has been blind since birth, while Theresa has full vision with the help of ordinary eyeglasses.

Sharon still is learning herself. She attends a weekly needlework class at The Lighthouse for the Blind in New York City. She rides in by subway with her guide dog, Kammie, from the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn. Theresa works in the business department of an insurance company.

Another student, Sylvia, who asked that her last name not be used, is a former sociology teacher at Brooklyn College who lost her job there in a budget cut. Sylvia has been blind for about eight years, but that hasn't stopped her from knitting, crocheting and doing needlepoint.

"I did it while I taught," she said. "I think my pupils thought I was Madame LaFarge."

Sylvia currently is designing and making an underwater scene that combines needlepoint, bargello and textured stitches. (Needlepoint stitches are worked diagonally, bargello, vertically, and textured stitches combine the techniques of weaving and crochet.)

"It's a tactile thing," Sylvia said. "You could ruin your eyesight working on fine things."

The classes were started a year ago as an experiment by Pauline Fischer, a Belgian-born designer and teacher and a director of the Embroiderers' Guild. She said she volunteered for the job, intending to train teachers only. At the suggestion of the Lighthouse art teacher, she began working with students as well.

You need one teacher for every two students, Mrs. Fischer said, because they need more help in the beginning.

She marvels at the speed with which Sharon and Sylvia learned, and the quality of their work. Sharon has made a pillow and a shoulder bag, and is currently working on a sampler wall-hanging.

Mrs. Fischer starts them off with rug wool and large-mesh canvas measuring three stitches to an inch.

"I try to give them projects they can finish by themselves. They get great pleasure from textured stitches," she said.

"The sense of touch is very important when colors can't give you pleasure."

Mrs. Fischer said that she helps her blind students choose colors by talking about them in terms of cool and warm, dark and light.

It was Sharon's own idea to work her needlepoint and bargello from right to left, as if she were writing braille. This writing system for the blind uses characters of raised dots. After they are punched, the paper is reversed and read from the conventional way, from left to right.

When she isn't needlepointing, Sharon keeps busy at the same things that interest other young people her age.

"I used to take piano lessons," she said. "I got tired of one instrument, so I learned to play the guitar, the organ, the autoharp. I like to cook, I'm interested in animals. I've been coming to different classes (at the Lighthouse) involving arts and crafts — jewelry making, ceramics, puppetry. I'm just starting knitting."

"I'm interested in so many things. I'll have to get someone to straighten out my thoughts on what I really want to do."

Story Says The Toad Could Hop

EASTLAND, Tex. (UPI) — One of the more colorful tales of West Texas concerns a horned toad and the county courthouse built in 1897.

According to the tale, many citizens watched a young boy slip the toad into a box which was placed into the corner stone of the courthouse when it was built. In 1928, 31 years later, the building was torn down and the box removed; and allegedly the toad was still alive enough to hop.

The frog became so famous it paid a visit to then President Calvin Coolidge at the White House, but died a few months later of what was diagnosed as pneumonia. Its casket still remains in the new county courthouse.

Linda Took 3 Years To Make Good

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — Linda McCartney raised her arms as though she was holding a machine gun and mowed down an imaginary target.

That, she said, was the way the typewriters of pop music critics had chattered lethal phrases about her keyboard playing on records and tours with her husband, ex-Beatle Paul McCartney.

Three wounding years of that and no one will know what it cost her to read that she was only a well-meaning amateur and her place in the Paul McCartney show due more to an excess of husbandly affection than ability.

But all that was now over, nearly over anyway. A few minutes earlier the excited throng in the Hammersmith Odeon had wildly cheered a performance of McCartney and his group Wings. And for the first time Linda knew some of the cheers were for her too.

She was hanging on to Paul's arm after the show, a blonde, attractive girl looking much younger than 33 with a fine-boned face and a ready smile. Everybody there knew, and she more than most, that McCartney and Wings had given one of the best pop shows since the legendary Beatles themselves.

"It was great up there," she said.

She meant the music but she also might have meant the cheers and wolf-whistles when she stepped out of the band and up front with a tambourine in a dress covered in Venus and Mars symbols (the title of one of the Wings albums).

She came in frequently during the concert on Moog and Mellotron adding the important tonal effects that are an integral part of many McCartney arrangements. And to underline her new assurance she and Paul exchanged smiles during particularly long bursts of applause.

Linda is an American, daughter of Lee Eastman, a well-known New York show business attorney and art collector. He said he warned to McCartney during the courtship after Paul switched quickly from rock and roll to Mozart on the piano of his Park Avenue duplex when he heard Eastman's key in the door.

He need switch no longer. Eastman is now a pop fan as well and he flew over to be in the audience.

"You're finally beginning to get some good notices," Linda was told. "How does it feel?"

"Marvelous," she said. "At last."

Did she ever despair?

"No, I knew I could do it. It just meant forgetting the critics and working harder and harder at it."

You had a lot of difficult timing to cope with, she was told.

"Lots of it. But I was up there doing it and I satisfied myself and Paul and that's what counts."

And she gave her husband's arm another squeeze.

Eastman watched them go, a proud smile on his face.

"It never ceases to surprise me to see Linda up on stage dancing around, playing all those instruments, fitting in as though she had been trained to be a musician," he said.

"She was so carefully brought up. And yet she's really one of them, isn't she?"

Girl Had No Solid Bones

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Anita Dumble, 16-year-old high school girl, was born with a rare disease, Chondrodysplasia Californica Congenita, no solid bones in her body. There is only one other such case on record, a baby girl who died at age 1, in 1901.

But the Dumbles were lucky. "We were living in the San Francisco area at the time and the doctor suggested we call a Shriner and have him sponsor her for the Shriner's Children's Hospital," said Donald Dumble.

Anita was admitted to the hospital. Today after 16 years of care and seven operations, she is leading virtually a normal life.

"The Shriners paid for the whole thing. We figure it would have cost about $150,000. She's very fortunate," her mother said.

Anita has to be careful not to hurt her back and now has one artificial leg. She is no longer under Shriner care; that ends at age 16. But she is a Rainbow girl, a Candy Striper, swimmer and always has projects going in which she has to use her hands.
