Committee Votes Cite Kissinger For Contempt

By JIM ADAMS Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The House intelligence committee voted today to cite

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for contempt of Congress for refusing to turn over subpoenaed documents on eight covert intelligence operations.

"He assured me the president (involved) had personally approved each of these operations," McClory said.

counsel, A. Searle Field, said that three of the eight requests by the State Department had been made directly to presidents and five had not.

Heart Stopped

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco's heart stopped beating early today but was revived by massage, sources close to his medical team reported.

The contempt citation was approved 10 to 2.

The committee's senior Republican, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, quoted White House counsel Philip Buchen as saying President Ford intends to cite executive privilege in refusing to turn over the documents.

The five presumably were made to the National Security Council's 40 Committee, which is designated to consider requests for covert operations before passing recommendations on to the president.

ABA Screening List Potential Court Nominees

By MARGARET GENTRY Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Bar Association is screening a list of fewer than 12 potential Supreme Court nominees submitted by the Ford administration, but the President's spokesman indicated today Ford will not be bound by its recommendations.

The bar association expects to report on the qualifications of those on the list early next week. Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi sent the list to the ABA on Thursday.

A high-ranking official called it "a very small list" of fewer than a dozen persons under consideration for President Ford's nomination to succeed retired Justice William O. Douglas.

Abroad Air Force One enroute to a presidential appearance at North Carolina Central University, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said "members of the bar" were being consulted about the appointment, but that this "is only a part of the President's whole process."

The report, confirmed by two independent sources, was not mentioned in a brief early morning statement by Franco's palace. The statement said only that the general had passed a quiet night, "without incident."

"I for one am weary of this whole business of waiting and delaying, waiting and delaying on the information the committee is entitled to and needs to conduct its business," Pike said.

Nessen also indicated there will be no haste in sending a nomination to the Senate.

"The President realizes the importance of having a full court," Nessen said. "But balanced against that is the fact that he considers it to be one of the most important decisions any president has to make. Any timetable must depend on that."

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

QUESTIONS 95 PER CENT ACCURACY Coincidentally, I took a job-screening lie detector test the same day your item on polygraph testing was published. It's a bad experience, I can tell you. I question the figure you quoted saying that it's about 95 per cent accurate. I wish you'd go to another source with the same question. A. M.

Hotline directed your question to Steve Davenport, Polygraph Coordinator of the State Bureau of Investigation. "The polygraph is like your typewriter," he said. "How accurate is it? It depends entirely on the operator, doesn't it, and on the material with which you're working? The quality of training of the operator, how well the person is prepared for the questioning, the wording of the questioning, and the interpretation of the answers all would enter in."

"Anyone operating a polygraph in North Carolina has to be licensed and must be a graduate of the American Polygraph Association," he said. "Of course, the morals of the person or the organization he represents cannot be but so much regulated by any kind of licensing."

The SBI policy, he said, is to question only on the case in point, not to go into a person's background.

Latest studies have shown, he said, that when it is used correctly polygraph testing can be as high as 97 per cent accurate. Two per cent of those tested have inconclusive results and there's a one per cent margin of error, he said.

REPORT WHERE?

To whom do you report blind corners in Greenville? This town's full of them. One that's especially bad is the corner of Forrest Hill Drive and Greenville Boulevard. You have to get 'way out on that busy boulevard to see anything. Mrs. S.T.

One used to report blind corners to the Greenville Police Department, but according to Ptl. Doug Jackson, Crime Prevention Officer, the place to report them now is the City Inspections Department, 752-4137. He promised to pass on your complaint about Forrest Hill and Greenville Boulevard.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — President Ford visited the nation's first state supported liberal arts college for blacks today and indicated he would consider a black running mate in 1976.

During a private meeting with student leaders at North Carolina Central University, Ford mentioned Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., as a possible replacement for Vice President Nelson Rockefeller.

"Certainly by his record, Sen. Ed Brooke should be considered," Ford said.

Brooke, who is black, is the senior senator from Massachusetts and a former state attorney general.

Before the meeting, Ford told some 4,500 persons at the university's gymnasium that "I hope and work for the day when the human mind and spirit are no longer shackled by ignorance and prejudice."

The remarks were made at a convocation marking the university's 50th anniversary. Following his appearance at the campus, Ford traveled to Raleigh for a GOP fund-raising event and on to Atlanta for another party gathering.

At the gymnasium, a small group of hecklers interrupted Gov. Jim Holshouser's introduction of President Ford with catcalls about the more than 90 prisoners awaiting execution on North Carolina's death row, the most crowded in the nation.

RALEIGH (AP)—Executive Vice President J.T. Outlaw of the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association says "economic chaos" would result if Congress approves a proposal to deregulate the trucking industry.

Outlaw said that deregulation would "result in economic chaos to transportation and ultimately to the consumer who pays."

Premier's Siege Ends As Portugal Unrest Rises

Expect Little From China Trip

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's trip to China next month isn't expected to produce any dramatic developments and probably no tangible ones.

The journey will be mostly for the sake of appearances, but that does not diminish its importance. At this stage of U.S.-China relations, appearances substitute for the traditional components of policy.

A diplomatic relationship normally is built on trade, economic aid, political and military alliances, even potential conflict.

In the case of Washington and Peking, none of these factors exist in any meaningful way. But both capitals feel that if the first four of these elements are ever to become reality and the fifth avoided, some sort of contact must be maintained, even if it is essentially a facade.

Because of the fragile nature of the relationship that developed in 1971 following the end of a quarter-century of near and sometimes real conflict, it was decided to keep any meaningful contacts on a high level. It was agreed that the secretary of state would visit Peking yearly and see Chinese leaders at the United Nations on the same basis.

Periodically, the American president would go to China, the leaders agreed, and former President Richard M. Nixon did so in 1972.

High U.S. officials say Ford needs to go now because after four years there should be a review of the relationship on the highest level.

Ford will serve as a symbol of the intent to develop a real relationship, the officials said, emphasizing a desire to improve contacts.

Because Ford is new to the Chinese, they want to deal with him personally. And U.S. officials feel it is important that he have a chance to size up the emerging leaders who will be taking over in Peking for the aging and ailing Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai.

This will be done in talks Ford will have with Mao and deputy prime minister Teng Hsiao-ping, the man in day-today control of China.

The talks themselves will deal primarily with the global situation and particularly will focus on Chinese concern that the United States may be appeasing the Soviet Union under the guise of detente.

When Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger went to Peking last month to test the waters for Ford's trip, he was lectured publicly about the alleged dangers of detente.

Still, the secretary denies he was given a chilly reception and claimed that his visit went exactly as he expected.

Nonetheless, reports have continued that relations were strained, reports fueled by some curious developments concerning plans for Ford's trip.

These involved a delay in the announcement of the presidential visit and a sudden cancellation of an American advance trip just as the team was boarding a plane for Peking.

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer
LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Shouting "Victory! Victory!" thousands of striking construction workers lifted their siege of Premier Jose Pinheiro Azevedo early today after keeping him a prisoner in his official residence for 37 hours. The capital was reported calm.

But 175 miles north in Oporto, 12 men were wounded by gunfire in a wave of mob attacks on Communist-run installations. Demonstrators from several non-Communist parties sacked the Communist-run Trade Union Federation offices and had running gun battles at two other sites.

About 5,000 demonstrators were chased away from the Inter-sindical union offices by police and soldiers using teargas after union files were burned in a bonfire and furnishings and windows were wrecked.

The mob then attacked the Communist student office where it started fires with fire-bombs. Defenders inside the building opened fire with shot-guns and the attackers returned the fire. Four persons were wounded, including one man in critical condition, before troops restored order.

Another crowd took over a radio station run by Communists, then set up barricades in the street to repel an armed Communist relief force. Eight were wounded in that confrontation.

Full details of the Lisbon agreement ending the siege were not immediately divulged.

Azevedo's office and the strike committee announced jointly that the wage schedule "proposed" by the workers would be put into effect by Nov. 27. The joint statement also promised an inquiry into the Ministry of Labor.

The demonstrators demanded wage increases ranging from 18 to 44 per cent, which officials said would total $480 million a year. They also demanded the dismissal of the minister of labor and his chief aide.

Meanwhile, another throng of 20,000 people — including Socialists, Popular Democrats and Social Democratic Centrists — demonstrated Thursday night in support of Azevedo in Oporto, Portugal's second largest city, 175 miles north of Lisbon.

"Long live the north of Portugal," the Oporto crowd chanted. Informed sources said leaders of the government had discussed moving the government to Oporto.

The siege in Lisbon began Wednesday afternoon when 20,000 construction workers marched to the parliament building and the premier's official residence next door. They were joined Thursday by more thousands of workers demanding the return of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves, who was ousted two months ago.

About 250 members of the elected assembly trying to write a new constitution were meeting in the parliament building. The crowd did not allow them to leave until Thursday afternoon and then shouted "Fascists! Fascists!" as they filed out.

President Francisco da Costa Gomes tried to calm the situation with a broadcast speech in which he said the armed forces had to defend democratic order. There was no sign of unusual military activity, however.

The Socialists and the Popular Democrats, the two largest political parties, called on their followers to mobilize to counter the siege. The parties' leaders moved out of their downtown headquarters and met at a secret location.

For rural communities of less than 60 families, Leggett community in Edgecombe County took the top award, followed by Swift Creek, Nash County, and Mary's Chapel, Halifax County. Lewiston in Hertford County and Oak City in Martin County received honorable mentions.

A new slate of officers elected for the coming year, consist of Charles Harvey of Rocky Mount, president; Arthur Lee Wiggins, Ahsokie, first vice-president; Mrs. M. C. Gautier, second vice-president; and Mrs. Verla Vick, secretary. Tom Gregory of Halifax remains treasurer. J. B. Barnhill, of Hobgood, the outgoing president, becomes an ex-officio member of the board of officers as past president.

Guest speaker for the 12th annual award dinner was John Sledge, president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau.

"Growth is the most important thing in life," Sledge told his audience, "and community development is what it's all about. When we are harnessed together as we are in the coastal plain area we can do just about anything we want to do."

Sledge, taking note of historical changes in the form of mushrooming movements marking the 1970's, said movements have a significant impact calling for solutions. "We are all philanthropists of the highest order when we give ourselves to the solution of all these problems," he added.

The 4-H Youth Singers of Pitt County entertained the audience with a group of patriotic songs, including an audience participation singing of "God Bless American." Barry Robinson conducted the group.

Services Disrupted By Snake-Handling Visitors

CARTERSVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A minister has testified that he was slapped in the face with a snake, his sister was bitten and the church service disrupted when an argument arose with seven visiting members of a snake-handling cult.

Each of the seven defendants, charged with disturbing public worship, admitted they brought snakes into the Calvary Holiness Church on Aug. 17 but denied guilt to criminal charges.

The Rev. Doyle Hatfield, pastor of the Holiness Church, told a Superior Court jury that defendant Carl Porter Jr. "hit me in the face with the snakes."

He also testified he saw the Rev. Clyde Ricker, pastor of a nearby church which uses snakes in worship, and another defendant, Gene Sherbert, holding snakes during the Sunday night incident at Holiness Church.

Ricker said he was attempting to address the Holiness congregation when he was drowned out by singing. He said he then put down his Bible, went out to his car and brought back a box of "serpents."

Ricker and Carl Porter Jr. both face additional charges of assault with a deadly weapon. Facing only the worship disturbance charges are Carl Porter Sr., Sherbert, Billy Lemming, Robert Amos and Barney Morrow.

The young Porter testified that when Hatfield "got to pushing on me" that he reached to get one of the snakes.

"I might have hit him," Porter said. "I won't say I didn't."

Porter's father testified, "I did not see nobody hit nobody with no serpent."

The defendants said they brought two Copperhead snakes into the service.

Mrs. Jo Anne Dye, Hatfield's sister, testified that she saw one of the men pick up "a mass of snakes" and that he then "flung them in my brother's face."

When she saw her mother rush to Hatfield's aid, she said, she rushed to grab for her mother and was bitten on the arm.

Testimony indicated that the incident stemmed from a theological debate between the Holiness congregation and the church attended by the seven defendants.

Mrs. Mayor 'Tamed' Politics

By STEVEN M. EAMES
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Mayor Lila Cockrell, her expression perpetually somber, says it is her knowledge of parliamentary rules — not her sex — which has helped her tame politics in this South Texas metropolis.

"I think a person participates on the basis of total personality, and part of my personality is that I'm female," she said in a recent interview.

But she added quickly: "My knowledge and use of Roberts Rules of Order, rather than my being a woman is, in my opinion, what has helped quiet down City Council meetings."

San Antonio is the largest city in the nation to elect a woman chief executive. Mrs. Cockrell took the reins of city government some seven months ago.

Past mayors have used their largely ceremonial position on the City Council here as a soap box from which to initiate change. Often it has sparked controversy.

One of Mrs. Cockrell's strongest tests came after she presented an honorary mayorship to Gloria Steinem when the feminist spoke at a local Women's Political Caucus meeting.

At the next City Council session, a group of irate housewives and others in this city of 750,000 howled that the honorary mayorship "gave respectability" to Ms. Steinem. But the council refused to withdraw the award.

Mrs. Cockrell defended the Steinem presentation as an official welcome to the city to a prominent person, as had been done hundreds of times by the mayor's male predecessors.

"I may have been identified more with her (Ms. Steinem) because I am a woman," the mayor said.

"Actually, although I recognize her as one of the leaders of the women's movement, there are a number of issues where I cannot personally agree with Ms. Steinem," she added.

Despite such problems, Mrs.

Cockrell, talking in the manner of a prim school teacher, said she doesn't mind being known as the woman mayor.

"The way I approach issues certainly is influenced by many factors, including whatever viewpoints might be attributed to my being a woman," she said.

She added that her views have changed little since she parlayed her nine years on the council into the $50 per month mayor's chair.

Mrs. Cockrell said she might have run for mayor sooner had she been a man. "I think perhaps out of recognition that it was a little bit more unusual for a woman to seek elective office in a city of this size, I held out longer," she said.

"As a woman, I am very much interested in seeing that the opportunity is given to more women for full participation in political affairs, in leadership roles in particular," she added.

Mrs. Cockrell headed the establishment-oriented Good Government League slate during the April campaigns. She defeated nine men for the mayor's slot, but only two GGL running mates made it onto the council.

It was the first time since 1955 that the GGL missed dominating the council.

Her chief competitor was John Monfrey, a local beer distributor who headed the Independent Team. He forced a runoff but Mrs. Cockrell won easily.

Helping with the campaign was the mayor's husband, Sid Cockrell, executive director of the Bexar County Medical Society.

The mayor's husband, now the city's "first gentleman," said that during the campaign. "She would say, 'This is my husband, Sid. He tells me what to do.'"

"Of course, I don't, but she has always been smart enough to keep me from being left out," Cockrell said.

The mayor said of her husband of 33 years: "I think he's very much used to having a wife who's involved, by this point."

Dear Abby

Husband Backs Off On Anniversary Bash Without A Reason

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We will have been married 10 years next January. Since we didn't have any fanfare when we were married, my husband promised that we would have a big blow-out on our 10th wedding anniversary.

I booked a band and hired a hall and made deposits on both. Now out of the blue, my husband says, "Cancel everything!" I asked him why, and he said, "I just don't want it."

I know it's not the money. Even if it were, I'm able to pay for it myself, as I have a good job.

I know there's no other woman. So what should I do? I don't want to make him angry, but I really want this anniversary party, and I don't think he should go back on his word. Please guide me.

WANTS TO CELEBRATE

DEAR WANTS: Cool it for a while. He may have had a bad day. Don't mention the celebration until a month before the date. Then when he's in a good mood, hit him with your guest list and ask for his approval and suggestions.

If he still balks, you'll have to cancel the band and hall and probably take a loss on the deposits. You can't very well have an anniversary party without him.

Good luck. I'm in your corner.

DEAR ABBY: I am 21-years-old and my boyfriend is 20. We've been going steady for a year and three months. Being a very up-front gal, I told my boyfriend all about my past, and it just so happens that I have gone to bed with more guys than he has gone to bed with girls.

He wants to marry me, but he says first he wants to even the score.

Should I just sit around and wait for him to catch up with me?

DEAR J: If you do, you are even more immature than he is, which in my opinion is far too immature for marriage!

DEAR ABBY: We have a boss in our office who has got to be the world's most conservative man.

Although he has a car, he won't buy a second car for his wife. Instead, he has her drive him to work every morning, and every evening around quitting time, it's like Russian roulette to see who he asks to drive him home.

Since we all need our jobs, we never turn him down, but after two years of this, it's really an imposition. (Some of us have taken to hiding around quitting time so we won't be asked.)

We are all tired of driving out of our way to accommodate him, but nobody has the nerve to tell him how we feel about it.

Can you help us?

UNPAID CHAUFFEURS

DEAR CHAUFFEURS: Compose a letter advising the boss that the office crew has just gone out of the taxi business—and have everyone in the office sign it. I doubt that he'll fire the entire office force en masse. (P.S. If that doesn't work, put in an expense account for mileage.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: What are you doing Saturday night? If you want to see me, I'll be on the Miss Teenage America telecast on NBC.

Pears Gaining In Popularity In U.S.

By TOM HOGGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Before World War I, more than 85 per cent of the fruit sold in America was fresh. Today it totals less than 50 per cent but that still makes a lot of fresh fruit and there are signs it will increase.

Pears, for instance, have been gaining in popularity until the U.S. crop at latest reports totals about 25 million bushels a year.

Our most available pear is the Bartlett, which represents about 70 per cent of the American crop. It was first introduced in this country by Enoch Bartlett of Dorchester, Mass., who brought some seeds over from England more than a century ago and planted them on his estate. Bartletts are best picked while still hard but mature, and allowed to ripen to a golden hue in a fruit bowl. They should be available well into November. And after that you can get imports from Argentina and Chile and as far off as Australia.

Another popular pear is the little Seckel which flourishes from September on into November. It is named after a farmer who grew the fruit near Philadelphia after the Revolutionary War. Small and sweet, this yellow-brown pear is very popular in the United States.

Pears that are good but less well known include the Comice, grown mainly in Oregon's Hood River Valley from November till May. Also the chunky yellowish-green Anjou, which is in season at about the same time.

Another winter pear is the Bosc which, like the Anjou, has a rough or "russeted" skin and a delicious flavor.

And lastly there is the fancy Ferelle, which is freckled with red spots. This attractive pear is often used to dress up bon voyage baskets.

One of the most glamorous pear recipes I have come across was created by Simone Beck, the noted food book writer. It is called Biscuit Glace au Sorbet Rose.

4 egg whites
Salt
1 1/4 cups sugar

2 ripe pears
Juice one lemon
One pound fresh raspberries
(or frozen ones thawed and drained)
1/2 cup heavy cream
4 tablespoons Kirsch
Lady fingers
Powdered sugar

Beat egg whites with pinch of salt to soft peaks. Gradually beat in one cup sugar. Set over simmering water and beat six minutes till meringue is firm. Set over ice water and beat till cool. Divide mixture in half; chill one half. Peel and core pears and puree the fruit to measure one cup. Stir in lemon juice. Fold in second half of meringue and place in freezer.

Puree enough raspberries, removing seeds, to measure 1 1/2 cups. Beat cream with pinch of salt till it begins to thicken. Add three tablespoons Kirsch and remaining 1/4 cup sugar and beat stiff. Beat cream into chilled meringue. Reserve a little raspberry puree to decorate dessert and fold remainder into cream mixture. Line a nine-cup rectangular mold with wax paper. Sprinkle lady fingers with few drops Kirsch. Make layer of lady fingers in bottom of mold and cover with half of pear ice. Arrange more lady fingers over ice and top with half raspberry cream. Repeat layers and top with more lady fingers. Freeze firm. To serve run knife around edge of mold and turn out onto serving platter. Decorate with reserved raspberry puree and remaining whole raspberries. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Cut into slices. Serves 8 to 10.

Ballet Pupils Shouldn't Go On Toe Too Soon

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — "A parent who insists on having her child 'on toe' before age 10 can do permanent damage to the child's feet," says DeeDee Arnone, Marin County ballet and jazz dance teacher.

"I showed X-rays of a child's foot to a mother who insisted her 8-year-old learn to dance on toe. I explained that the joints could be damaged by the pressure, ending her child's dancing hopes permanently."

She said she also warned the mother of many stresses in the graceful art of ballet.

Nevertheless, the mother decided to enroll the child in another school.

"We call them 'stage mothers,'" said Mrs. Arnone, herself mother of two.

Mrs. Arnone's approach to the 5 and 8-year-olds in her classes is to smile a lot and restrict the lesson to pre-ballet — simple positions, correct posture and turns with no dancing "on toe."

Household Hints

The risk of food poisoning is reduced at a buffet if you replace food when it runs low by bringing a fresh dish of it instead of transferring fresh food to a server that has been at room temperature for an hour or more.

An inventory of home furnishings and personal property should be kept up-to-date, in case of loss by fire or other accidents. It helps expedite insurance reimbursement.

Wood instead of aluminum casements on storm windows and doors can reduce heating requirements by as much as two and a half per cent, says the National LP-Gas Association.

Remove your jewelry before bathing babies to avoid scratching their tender skin.

Never use abrasives, scouring pads or oven cleaners on chrome trim on appliances. They scratch. Nylon pads or plastic scrubbers are safe for removing stubborn spots.

Back To Basics On Economics

Luther Hodges, Jr. chairman of the board of North Carolina National Bank got down to basics as how to keep the south's economy growing.

Southern businesses must improve both productivity and wages of the workers if steady economic growth is to continue.

Hodges was speaking to the annual meeting of the Southern Growth Policies Board.

Southern industries have to recognize that "we've outlived the day when we could recruit cheap labor from the farms and ghettos," Hodges said.

The answer is heavy capital investment by labor-heavy industries. This will allow more productivity from fewer workers, which, in turn, will allow the industries to pay higher wages and remain profitable.

Hodges recognized the strong work ethic which has always been predominant in the southern regions.

"Productivity is the key to the South's economic future," Hodges declared.

Hodges saw the southern states as coming through the recession in better financial shape than other regions. He said the southern states are capable of resuming the economic growth that has taken place for the past 20 years.

Most of the southern states, including North Carolina, still have some catching up to do with other areas of the nation in terms of economic strength. As Hodges pointed out, it is going to take heavy capital investment by industries to bring us up to a level with more prosperous areas. That, coupled with the willingness of our people to do a full day's work, can keep the southern area growing economically.

Nations Require Mechanism For Change-Over

When leaders of powerful countries become old and disabled a dangerous world situation develops.

There was concern when Stalin became the aged ruler of the Soviet Union and was making decisions arbitrarily.

Spanish international policy has been in a vacuum as Franco lay near death's door.

Frequently reports surface about the frail health of Mao Tse-tung of China, with the latest being that his speech is impaired.

It serves to remind us again that every nation needs some mechanism for shifting power in the event an aged leader becomes totally disabled.

THIS AFTERNOON

Fear Of Prison Dwindling

By BILL NOTLITT

RALEIGH—If the fear of going to prison is supposed to keep people from breaking the law, no wonder the crime rate is rising so fast in North Carolina.

Even if caught, a substantial number of suspects in burglary, breaking and entering, and larceny cases never come to trial. And even if convicted, few go to prison.

The result, suggested by a study of statistics in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County courts, is that, "If one assumes that probation or a fine is not an especially unpleasant sentence and that imprisonment is the only punishment available that substantially intimidates potential offenders, then the criminal court is providing a rather weak deterrent to crime at present."

Koch, associate professor of biostatistics in the School of Public Health at the University of North Carolina—Chapel Hill.

The two studied police and court records of all those arrested and charged with burglary, breaking and entering, and larceny in Mecklenburg County in 1971. Car thefts were not included.

Expecting the results to prove controversial, the published report notes that, "Although drawn from Mecklenburg County, (data) are probably generally representative of other North Carolina cities at the present time."

"We feel that when important variables are controlled for, these data still essentially describe what is now going on in the criminal courts of the state's urban areas," the report notes.

What is going on?

Out of 798 burglary and larceny defendants, 301 (38 per cent) had charges dropped by the prosecutor at or before trial.

Another 13 per cent (101 people) had other court action leading to dropping of the charges, such as dismissal by the judge.

Less than half were convicted: 319 of them (38 per cent) entered guilty pleas.

Out of 798 burglary and larceny charges, 77 went through a trial: 33 were found not guilty; 44 were convicted.

Few Imprisoned

"Few defendants received prison sentences as a result of their brush with the law," the report continues: only 147 out of the 798 defendants drew active prison sentences.

Thirty per cent of those got one year or less; the median prison sentence was between one and two years "and this was... the sentence most commonly received."

The statistics show some other interesting facts: age or race of the defendant had little bearing on sentence; defendants who either had a steady job or were students were less likely to go to prison; and those with low incomes were twice as likely to go to prison as those from high income sections of the city.

Looking more closely at those charged with breaking into homes or business establishments, the study found only 20 per cent of those charged in home break-ins went to prison; while 36 per cent charged with nonresidential burglary went to prison.

Thus, the researchers conclude, "it would seem that a burglar or thief is far from certain to go to prison even if arrested."

The study concludes that allowing judges wide discretion in sentencing is at the heart of the problem as, "Present sentencing practices do not seem to provide a strong deterrent to crime. The probability of avoiding any active prison time was quite high." Details of the study are contained in the fall issue of Popular Government magazine, published by the Institute of Government.

Records Studied

This startling conclusion is reached by Stevens H. Clarke, criminal justice expert with the Institute of Government, and Gary G.

The GALLUP POLL

Relocate Welfare People?

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—The financial burden of New York City and other major U.S. cities could be significantly relieved if a plan to relocate welfare families were put into effect.

This plan, which has received surprisingly little attention, would move welfare families on a voluntary basis out of ghetto areas of large cities into other areas of the nation where living conditions and job opportunities are better. The government would pay the costs of moving as well as living costs until these families found jobs.

For such a plan to work it must of course have the support of those families who would be involved. The current survey gives evidence of this support and shows approval to be more than 2-to-1 among persons whose family income falls below $5,000 and to be 5-to-1 among blacks.

While non-whites and lower income groups give solid majority approval to such a plan, opinion is closely divided among whites and upper income groups, with disapproval outweighing approval.

Proponents claim that such a plan would not only bring new hope to families now trapped in poverty, but would save taxpayers of the nation many billions of dollars. It has been estimated that the cost to society of a child who is born in a ghetto and who lives his entire life there, as opposed to the same child brought up in a non-metropolitan area, is more than $100,000. This figure is based upon added educational costs, city service costs (including police, sanitation, health, fire protection, welfare, etc.).

While one solution to the problem of ghettos is to bring new businesses into center city areas, most urban specialists have reached the conclusion that most businesses are not likely to do so because of heavy taxes and other problems in these areas.

The plan was presented as follows:

"A plan has been proposed to invite welfare families now living in ghetto areas of large cities to move to areas of the nation where living conditions and job opportunities are better. The government would pay the costs of moving as well as living costs until these families found jobs. Would you favor or oppose such a plan?"

Following are the latest findings, closely paralleling those recorded in a previous survey in 1974:

Voluntary Relocation Plan

	Favor	Oppose	No Opinion
NATIONAL	47%	46%	7%
Non-whites	75	15	10
Whites	43	50	7
Income:
Under $5,000	62	25	13
$5,000-9,999	50	41	9
$10,000 & over	41	54	5

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,558 adults, 18 and older, living in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period Oct. 3-6.

Strength For Today

OVERCOME EVIL WITH GOOD

There is a Greek myth which tells how Odysseus on his return from Troy got his crew past the isle of the Sirens by filling the ears of his sailors with wax. The Sirens played sweet music that so entranced passing sailors that they allowed their boats to be smashed against the rocks which surrounded the island.

There is another myth which tells how Orpheus handled the same situation when the Argonauts sailed past the dwelling place of the Sirens. Orpheus picked up his lyre and himself played so sweetly that he got the attention of every member of the crew, and the isle was passed in safety.

The Sirens' call is just as potent today as it was said to have been in the days of old. We can either stop our ears to tempting sounds, or we can fill our ears with a sweeter music which will drown out the Sirens' call.

There is no doubt which is the better method. "Be ye not overcome with evil," said St. Paul. "But overcome evil with good."

Henry Might Resign

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sometimes with wit, sometimes in subtle comments, Henry A. Kissinger is beginning to send out signals that he may quit as secretary of state somewhere down the road.

Although President Ford might successfully try to dissuade him, a combination of circumstances could prompt Kissinger to step aside, especially if his foreign policy is undercut in the 1976 election campaign.

At this point, Ford appears to value Kissinger's expertise. But at lower White House levels Kissinger is the target of considerable back-biting that seems to be dampening his spirits.

Like the Shakespearean figure who protested too much, Kissinger insists the Cabinet shakeup, which cost him the job of national security adviser, has not diminished his influence with or access to Ford.

"I feel that there is too much concern with abstract bureaucratic structure," Kissinger told a dinner audience in Pittsburgh Tuesday night.

Actually, Kissinger prized the hour he had every morning with Ford, and before him with President Richard M. Nixon.

Now Kissinger will have to give up his corner office in the White House and his seat on some half-dozen security panels.

So far, he still gets to see Ford every day, and there is no reason to imagine his not commanding an audience with the President in a crisis.

But also there is no reason to doubt Ford's word at a post-shakeup news conference that he expects Kissinger to work as part of a foreign policy "team" with Donald H. Rumsfeld, the new Pentagon chief, and Lt. Gen. Brent D. Scowcroft, the new security adviser.

What Kissinger seems most concerned about is that foreign policy will be caught up in a factious election campaign, and before that in the primaries. He plans to cut his appearances across the country after possibly one more stop in California.

But there seems to be no way to stifle strident debate over detente, the policy of reaching an accommodation with the Soviet Union.

WASHINGTON—People take power very seriously in Washington, and when there is a major reshuffle in government it really plays havoc with the social life of the town.

My wife and I were talking about it the other night.

"Well, I guess we don't have to worry about inviting the James Schlesingers to dinner any more," I said.

"That's a pity," my wife said. "He seemed like such a nice, intelligent man."

"Don't go sentimental on me now," I warned. "This is a cruel town. He just isn't one of Gerry Ford's guys."

"I guess you're right. I also hated to cut the William Colbys off our list."

"Well, we don't have to until Dec. 18. President Ford asked him to stay on at the CIA until then, so I can't see what harm it would be to have them over before Christmas," I told her.

"What are we going to do about the Henry Kissingers?"

I read in one of the columns that he had his wings clipped," she asked.

"Henry does present a problem," I admitted. "He's still secretary of state, so we can't cut him off completely. Besides he has great survival powers. Probably the best thing to do, until the dust settles, is invite him for cocktails and buffet. But let's wait awhile before we consider him for a sit-down dinner."

Other Editors Say Aid To Insects

(Amarillo Daily News)

The subject of grain exports to other countries and what effect they will have on the price of foods is much in discussion right now.

But the fact is, unless the Environmental Protection Agency stops meddling around banning one insecticide after another, in a few years we won't have to concern ourselves about grain to export—there won't be enough anyhow.

As to the prices—they'll leap! One reason food prices are so high now is the awesome cost of farming these days. Labor, soil preparation and the same old gamble with the weather each year add great expense to each crop. Among the most important is the pretreatment of seed to help fight off insect invasions.

Russell Train, EPA director, made a dramatic plea for the benefit of the media recently, demanding that chlordane and heptachlor be banned from the consumer market—"because it might cause cancer."

"That same old 'might'." The same old half-cocked opinions as in so many previous "bans."

What did the learned Mr. Train suggest be done with all the chlordane and heptachlor now on the market? "Well, it ought to be used up in the normal way, not poured into the garbage or flushed down the sewer."

In other words, the EPA believes these pesticides might cause cancer but they don't believe it strongly enough that there is any danger from current usage. Makes about as much sense as the usual federal jargon.

Dr. L.W. Pope of the Texas A&M University system says a ban on the use of chlordane and heptachlor could cause a sharper rise in consumer food prices than any wheat sales overseas, and could also affect cost of exterminating termites and garden pests at home.

If the insects are to take over the world, they will get regular assistance from the Environmental Protection Agency.

Public Forum

To the editor:

It seems to me that persons who ride bikes should be subject to the same rules and regulations as individuals who drive cars and motorcycles. Cars and motorcycles have mirrors, reflectors, and light. Why can't bike riders display the same equipment?

On many occasions, when driving my car, I have almost run over a bike rider. These riders weren't children, for whom some allowance can be made, but adults, both young and old. I am aware that many bike manufacturers do not equip bikes with lights, horns, or mirrors, but isn't it safer to invest a few dollars rather than be injured by a motorist who can't see you. I suggest the police department patrol frequently travelled bike routes, particularly at night and pull any cyclist who lacks a back reflector or a bright front light just as he would a car driver who lacked them. After pulling them, I suggest they be fined. Being safe helps prevent accidents.

40 Years Ago Today

November 14, 1935

President Roosevelt signed a proclamation today which created the new commonwealth of the Philippines and sent a message of congratulations to its first president, Manuel L. Quezon.

The proclamation is to be effective upon its promulgation at Manila tomorrow by Secretary Dern, whom the President designated as his personal representative.

"Upon such promulgation of this proclamation," Roosevelt said, "the existing Philippine government shall terminate and the government of the commonwealth of the Philippines shall enter upon its right, privilege, power and duties as provided under the said condition of the commonwealth of the Philippine Islands."

Lenders Avoid Areas Of Risk

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When you speak of redlining, a consumer activist probably thinks of greenlining and a home mortgage lender sees—well, he sees red.

Redlining, as you probably have heard, occurs when a lender marks off a certain geographical territory, most likely in the blight area, and declines to lend any money there.

This often provokes the greenlining reaction, in which depositors remove their savings, their greenbacks, from the offending institution and place them with one they conclude is more cooperative.

To those attending the annual meeting of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, whose membership includes institutions that make the majority of home loans, the issue is simple but complex.

In a narrow business sense, lenders say, investments in certain areas cannot be justified. "We say we have to protect the funds of our savers," said Robert Hazen, of Portland, Ore., who assumed the league presidency at the convention. "We just cannot take the risk," he said.

Few people here deny that they avoid doing business in the inner city. They argue that they aren't the only ones, either, that a variety of business and even governmental enterprises do the same thing.

The "redlining" term irritates them. The practice it describes, they repeat, is merely the exercise of sound business decisions. Chartered as business institutions, they say they cannot be asked to solve sociological problems.

Congress seems not willing to agree. A bill calling for disclosure of big city areas in which loans are offered or denied is likely to pass both houses. It could be an irritant, but more likely, say lenders here, it won't prove a thing.

"Those figures will be expensive to come up with," said Barry Tate, director of urban affairs for the league, "and the interpretation of what the numbers mean will be difficult to determine."

Some lenders already proclaim that they aren't the only reason so little financial business is conducted in the blighted, inner city core. They insist the record will show loans weren't made there because nobody asked for them.

While they don't try to conceal their belief that the very innermost residential areas are beyond their ability to save, the lenders now have a program they feel could save what they call the "middle ring."

This is an area of "mature communities" lying between the innermost circle and a ring of stable neighborhoods. It is an area in transition. It can go either way, but lenders say that at least they will have a chance to succeed.

Under a proposal already introduced by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., some of these middle rings would be designated Community Reinvestment Areas, in which private lenders and the federal government would share the risk.

Adopting New Definition Of Farmer

"That's a pity," she said, "because Henry is a lot of fun at a sit-down dinner."

"He was a lot of fun when he was both secretary of state and the head of the National Security Council. But I don't know how much fun he'll be now that he has only one job. Why don't we leave it like this? We'll invite him for cocktails and buffet; and if people don't seem to object, then we can put him back on our sit-down dinner list."

"That's a good solution," my wife said happily. "We'll let Washington decide for us. Now what do we do about the Rumsfelds?"

"From all reports they're coming up fast. I think we should have a black-tie party for them," I said.

"Do you think they'll come? We never paid much attention to Rumsfeld when he was working in the White House," my wife said.

"It wasn't our fault. At the time we didn't know how important he was. I thought he was just another pretty face in the White House."

"Well, you should have been more aware of what he was up to," my wife said accusingly. "We look awfully silly calling them now after they've been in Washington for more than a year."

"It was a mistake, but we'll make it up to them. We'll invite Barbara Walters to the same dinner."

"That could do it," my wife said.

"Should we invite George Bush to dinner?"

"Of course. What a stupid question to ask."

"It's not that stupid," she said. "When he was posted to China you said he was going nowhere and we could forget about him."

"How did I know he was one of Gerry Ford's guys? Send the invitation to Peking so we get in ahead of all the social climbers in this town."

"I think I ought to write to the Elliot Richardsons in London, too," she said. "They'll probably be in demand as well."

"That's a good idea," I replied. "Particularly since he's one of the people they're talking about for Vice President."

"Which brings us to the Rockefeller. What do we do about them?"

"I was afraid you'd ask me that. I'll tell you how I feel about it. Rocky can't do us any good now, but a lot of people are going to cut him off. And even though we'll be open to criticism from certain conservative quarters, I think we should still let him come for lunch."

My wife kissed me on the forehead. "You're all heart."

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Agricultural technology, the Civil War, the demand forces in the world market and just simple mechanization have created an image of Southern farming as small, poor farms that overshadow the plantation image of King Cotton days.

Because of this, a new definition of farming has been adopted by government agencies, a change which turned more than one-fifth of the nation's farmers into "rural nonfarm residents" overnight.

The USDA said these owners of land producing less than $1,000 a year in crop or livestock sales account for only 4.2 per cent of the acreage and one-half of 1 per cent of the nation's sales of farm products.

But Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., former aide to the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., told a House subcommittee this week that there is more to it.

Maybe those small farms don't produce much, he said, but "their production helps them to be self-reliant ... (And) their products are a source of nutritious food for others — food which sometimes is less expensive to the consumer than the mass-produced foods we find at the supermarket."

"Another reason why small farms — and even the smallest of them — are important has to do with the quality of life. I do not think that small farmers and their families should be viewed as statistics or definitions by the Agriculture Department. "They should be seen as people who are proud of working the land and raising animals, dedicated to producing food and determined to preserve the rich rural heritage of this nation," Young added.

Later, he noted that the government agencies making the change were not hesitant in explaining that giant farms and agribusiness generally needed to be more accurately recognized in the statistics, which are used for primarily economic analysis.

According to the Census Bureau analyses this fall, the declassified farmers are predominantly Southern blacks. Both Young and the officials said they mostly will just shift their place in the world of government statistics: from the USDA to welfare rolls.

For example, the total of black farm residents — whose numbers shrank by 254,000 from 1970 to 1973 — was cut 46 per cent by the definition change, dropping the total of their farms from 79,000 in 1967 to less than 40,000.

More than 40 per cent of the farms in Mississippi and Alabama and 36 per cent of them in Georgia became rural residences overnight.

In the states of the Old South, and its borders, farms with 1969 sales of less than $1,000 made up between 28.5 per cent and 45.5 per cent (West Virginia) of all the farms.

In an ironic twist, the Census Bureau says that because Americans are returning to the land, there had been no "statistically significant" change in the farm population this decade.

Air Quality Standards Relaxed By Commission

RALEIGH (AP)—The state's Environmental Management Commission (EMC) officially relaxed North Carolina's air quality standards somewhat Thursday and voiced opposition to stricter federal standards.

The commission voted to ask North Carolina's congressional delegation to oppose efforts to severely stiffen air quality standards throughout the country. It said enacting these new national standards would hamper North Carolina's ability to plan its own economic future.

Under the commission action, the state will tolerate more sulphur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide in the air as measured by its general atmospheric monitoring stations throughout the state.

The relaxation came last spring after the textile industry brought pressure under an amendment passed by the General Assembly under the sponsorship of Sen. Harold W. Hardison, D-Lenoir. The amendment forbids the state from having stricter air standards than the federal government.

State standards for sulphur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide were slightly more stringent than those enforced by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

State officials have insisted that making the state's standards consistent with those of EPA will not harm the health and welfare of North Carolinians. Environmentalists have opposed the relaxation.

"I have no arguments with the intent of the (Hardison) amendment," said James Harrington, secretary of natural and economic resources. "I don't want laws that are excessively stringent. But I don't like the idea of being locked into federal standards."

Harrington and other officials said they may try to change the wording of the Hardison amendment when the General Assembly meets in May.

come so charged that Kissinger is trying to avoid it. He now uses "coexistence" or some other equivalent.

Nevertheless, Kissinger is bracing for a stepped-up attack on detente by the forces of Ronald Reagan, as the ex-California governor tries to wrest the GOP nomination from Ford, and by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and other Democratic presidential aspirants.

This does not mean Ford or anyone else has talked to Kissinger about quitting as secretary of state.

"I have had no discussions of any kind with the President or anyone," he told The Associated Press last week against the backdrop of reports that Elliot L. Richardson would be groomed to succeed him.

This week, asked if he expected to last out Ford's term, Kissinger's wit — and wariness — showed through. "I don't answer my telephone on Sunday," he said, alluding to the day of the recent dismissals.

Handful Of Old Men Waiting In Mexico For Franco To Succumb

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — "Spanish Embassy" says the small sign on the crumbling stone wall in the heart of Mexico City. Inside, a handful of old men wait for Generalissimo Francisco Franco to die.
The ivy-encrusted building is the only Embassy in the Western Hemisphere representing Republican Spain, the loser in the bloody Spanish Civil War that brought Franco to power in 1939.

Inside the gate, everything speaks of age, from the two giant cedars in the courtyard, the oil heater in the corner of the reception room, the stiff leather chairs in the hallway right on up to the second-floor office of the 74-year-old charge d'affaires, Manuel Martinez Feduchy.

"Mexico never broke relations with Spain," he says. "It just never recognized Franco."
President Luis Echeverria

says Mexico will consider recognizing the government that succeeds Franco. That could mean Feduchy and his two attaches would be unemployed.
"I'm four years past normal retirement age in the Spanish diplomatic service and they'll want someone new," said Feduchy with a smile.
He added that the old Embassy building is beyond repair, even though the Mexican government has provided for basic maintenance. Probably the Madrid government, when and if Mexico recognizes it, will tear it down and build another one.
Feduchy said no one can predict what will happen in Spain until after Franco dies and Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, now the acting chief of state, becomes king.
"It will take a month to know where Juan Carlos stands," he predicted.
He referred questions about Republican intentions to the headquarters of the exile government in Paris.
The Republicans also occupy the Spanish Embassy in Yugoslavia, the only other member of the United Nations that has not recognized Franco's regime.
An estimated 15,000 to 40,000 Spaniards fled to Mexico after Franco took over. Most of them became naturalized citizens, and it is doubtful that many will return to their homeland even if Juan Carlos puts across the democratic reforms that many expect from him.
"It's been too long," said one woman. "Here, I've got children and grandchildren, all of them Mexican citizens. In Spain? One brother whom I haven't since since 1940. My mother died years ago."

Commissioner Ingram Again Taken To Court

RALEIGH (AP)—The insurance industry is taking state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram to court again. This time the industry is appealing Ingram's disapproval of increases in homeowners and auto collision rates.
Charles B. Aycock, general manager of the N.C. Fire Insurance Rating Bureau, said Thursday his organization has decided to appeal Ingram's decisions to the State Court of Appeals. The bureau's lawyer is preparing the appeal and it will be filed later, he said.

"Our position is that both increases were substantiated by the evidence we presented at the hearing," Aycock said.
In orders last week, Ingram denied the increases for several technical reasons. They included the contention that the data wasn't complete enough and wasn't for a long enough period.

While Aycock wouldn't discuss the appeal in detail, one feature of Ingram's order that is likely to be challenged is his rejection of the 5 per cent profit margin that the bureau says has been used as a matter of custom in North Carolina in determining how high rates should be.
"The Fire Bureau failed to produce sufficient evidence to support a conclusion that 5 per cent is a fair and reasonable profit for automobile physical damage insurance in North Carolina at this time," Ingram wrote in his order.
Another bone of contention may be over the fact that the industry implemented the 15.2 per cent increase in homeowners insurance last month without Ingram's approval under a provision of state law saying it could do that if Ingram had not acted on the request within 60 days.
But Ingram said that increase was "illegally" implemented, since he scheduled a hearing before the 60 days was over.

Aycock said that, regardless of Ingram's decision, the industry plans to keep the increase in effect.

New Smoking Law Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to ban smoking in elevators, hallways and meeting rooms of all federal buildings was introduced Thursday by Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass.

"More than two-thirds of all Americans are nonsmokers who find ourselves breathing air contaminated by the smoking of others," said Drinan, who told a news conference he quit smoking "years ago."

The bill would limit smoking in federal buildings to specially designated areas. It also would ban smoking in waiting lines, passageways and boarding areas of airports, train depots and bus stations, Drinan said.

The Tobacco Institute, representing major cigarette manufacturers, issued a statement saying Drinan's "allegations against smoking are unsupported by scientific evidence."

"It is regrettable that Drinan has become the handmaiden of the antitobacco lobby," the association said.
Drinan said government statistics show that so-called involuntary smoking is dangerous to the health of some 40 million Americans who suffer from heart and respiratory diseases.
The measure also would increase the federal excise tax on cigarettes by one cent a pack and require a stern health warning on the outside of each pack.
Asked if he expected Congress, where the smoke-filled room has become a cliché, to enact such legislation, Drinan said he was confident that "in the relatively near future all or parts of the bill could become law."

Nightingale of the playroom

Less than a century and a quarter have passed since that terrible winter when Florence Nightingale ministered to suffering British soldiers. Until then there had been no place for women nurses in military hospitals, and not many women nurses anywhere.

Ever notice how often it is the occupations or professions of SERVICE TO OTHERS that excite the imagination of our children? We should learn something from that!
Boys and girls see themselves as amateur adults. Through their imagination they often show us the world they would like to live in.
Their hopes can become a reality if we support our churches with our faith and our families. After all, it was the Founder of Christianity who insisted that He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister.

Mostly Token Compliance On Order To Provide Attorneys

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of the nation's courts have achieved only token compliance with a 1972 Supreme Court decision requiring that lawyers be provided all criminal defendants who face possible prison terms, according to a new federally funded study.

"Alarming little has happened," said the report prepared by the Center for Criminal Justice at the Boston University Law School.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which provided $257,786 for the 18-month research project, released the five-volume report today.

The researchers studied methods of providing lawyers for defendants charged with misdemeanors carrying possible prison sentences of less than one year.

Such offenses vary from city to city but, usually include public drunkenness, disorderly conduct, petty theft, and larceny.

The researchers also reviewed the court practices in Boston; Cleveland; Des Moines; Houston; Birmingham; Belle Glade, Fla.; Rocky River, Ohio; Saco, Maine, and San Jose, Calif.

"Although most jurisdictions have begun to appoint counsel in nonfelony cases where imprisonment may be imposed, compliance has generally been token in nature," the report said.

Judges often encourage defendants to waive their right to an attorney, and in Houston and Belle Glade, "it is assumed that a defendant has waived counsel unless he aggressively asserts this right," the report said. The researchers said that in Des Moines poor defendants are left with the mistaken impression they must pay for their own attorney.

In Saco, however, the researchers found that judges take pains to make sure a defendant understands his right to a free attorney before he is permitted to waive it.

The researchers also commended the San Jose public defender office for providing "counsel for all financially eligible felony and misdemeanor defendants."

The report said many court-appointed attorneys are poorly prepared and "the resulting service of counsel is largely dispirited, haphazard and inadequate."

The 1972 ruling was the first major expansion of the Sixth Amendment right to counsel since the landmark 1963 Gideon decision which assured free court-appointed attorneys for indigent defendants in felony cases.

Tried Together

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP)— Superior Court Judge Robert D. Rouse Jr. has ruled that three persons accused of the shotgun slaying of a state highway patrolman will be tried together in Williamston by a jury from either Chowan or Edgecombe counties.

Rouse refused to dismiss the charges against the three— Faye Beatrice Brown, Frankie Jerome Squire and Joseph Seaborn— because of pretrial publicity given the slaying of Patrolman Guy Thomas Davis Jr. of Windsor. Davis was shot to death in Williamston shortly after the robbery of a Branch Banking and Trust Co. branch in Jamesville on Sept. 2.

The judge granted a motion by Dist. Atty. William C. Griffin Jr. that the three be tried together. The defense had asked that they be tried separately.

Introducing the 1976 rolled Corolla.

Just good gas mileage and a low price aren't enough anymore. You want a car that lasts, too.

Low priced Toyota Corollas have always done better than most other small cars when it comes to good gas mileage. And the 1976 Corolla SR-5 (pictured here) got 39 MPG on the highway and 24 MPG in the city according to EPA figures.

But there has to be more to a car than that. Because what if every penny you save on gas, you lose in repair bills? What if the car just doesn't last?

Then, where are you? Where you ought to be, we think, is in a 1976 Toyota Corolla.

Tested upside down, inside out.

It's a car tested to last. Upside down and inside out.

Test Corollas get rolled on their roofs, rammed on their sides and run smack into a brick wall.

Then, when we're satisfied with the way they stood up to all that hell, every single Corolla Hardtop, Wagon, Sedan and SR-5 we build is run through the mill.

Drowned with 3 tons of water

You get a Corolla that's already been drenched with over 3 tons of water outside to help make sure it stays dry inside.

You get a Corolla that's already been checked to make sure its rear window defogger defogs, the synchromesh transmission meshes, the power front disc brakes brake.

We build six Corollas. All different and all right. Because, just like people, it takes all kinds.

There's the all-business 2-Door Standard. The spiffier Corollas are the 2-Door Deluxe, the roomy 4-Door Deluxe and the sleek Hardtop.

For room, move into the 5-Door Wagon. For sporting around, there's the SR-5.

That's it. A full line of Corollas designed to go the distance.

You save gas and wear and tear on the engine with Toyota's 5-speed overdrive transmission.

medical justifiable reason to prescribe for Mr. Bolus," and denied that Bolus was treated differently because he is white. The doctor and the three agents who did secure prescriptions during February and March are black.

Dr. Best is a member of the executive committee of the Old North State Medical Society and chairman of the Family Practice Division of the National Medical Association, charged with "programming continuing medical education for family practitioners throughout the United States," he said.

Edenton physician Dr. Edward Bond earlier testified — when presented six hypothetical situations, each paralling accounts of visits to Dr. Best's office by the three SBI agents — that in his opinion, the prescriptions given by Dr. Best were "outside the usual customary practice" of physicians in the state and that the prescriptions "were not written for a legitimate medical purpose."

Under cross examination this morning by Assistant Attorney General Sidney Eagles, Dr. Best said "in general, Dr. Bond's questions agree with my answers, but nothing else added or taken away."

Dr. Best also said this morning that Mrs. Owens did not tell him she was a prostitute, only that she was working at two jobs.

Court Says U.S. Must Keep Wartime Promise

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The United States must grant 61 aging Filipinos the citizenship promised them while they fought in the jungle for the Stars and Stripes in World War II, a federal judge has ordered.

The decision of U.S. District Court Judge Charles B. Renfrew on Thursday cited the men for their "heroic sacrifices, their courage and valor at Corregidor, during the Bataan death march"

The jurist found the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service had failed to meet "its burden of justifying the discriminatory executive conduct" in denying the naturalization petitions of the men, who have been living in this country under threat of deportation.

INS District Director David Iichert said the service was considering an appeal. The INS has 90 days to appeal.

After the decision, an exultant former Col. Mostavo Felicitimo, who comes under the judicial order, said, "At last we have a triumph. It was the height of unfairness.... Instead of being heroes we were thrown away."

Felicitimo, 60, told of fighting "through thick and thin" under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whom he described on the beach urging his beleaguered troops to "maintain the line. I shall return."

Finally, said the colonel, "We were annihilated... captured by the Japanese in the front line. A third of us died on the death march, another third in the prison camps."

The suit for citizenship was filed by 68 Filipinos claiming citizenship under the Second War Powers Act of 1942. The seven other plaintiffs, whose applications were denied, were told to provide proof of military service within 90 days.

The act, which expired in 1946, waived usual naturalization requirements for alien soldiers who fought in the U.S. armed forces overseas.

Attorney Don Ungar, who represented about half the men in the lawsuit, said the veterans came to this country within the last five years on visitor visas and are employed. They had been threatened with deportation, he said.

Without a doubt, there has been a turnaround in the East Carolina University football fortunes during the second half of the 1975 football season.

At the start, the Pirates lost three of their first five games. It looked then like there would be more losses, many more in fact.

But suddenly, the Bucs decided that they wanted to play ball, and since then, that's exactly what they've done. There will be no Southern Conference title this year, but winning next Saturday against VMI to post six straight victories might save the hurt a little.

One of the key reasons for the turnaround has been the play of the offensive line. At the start of the season, it was felt this was one of the strong points of the Pirate team since so many veterans returned. But for some reason it didn't click.

"The first five games, we were just not playing together," tackle Ricky Bennett said. "The last five we just decided that we were going to get together and win. We were all going our own way at the start of the year, now we play as a unit."

"Losing to Richmond put our backs to the wall," guard Jimbo Walker said. "Wilbur Williamson called a team meeting after that, and we talked things over. We decided that we wanted to get together and we have."

Together with tight end Clay Burnett, center Tim Hightower, guard Wayne Bolt and tackle Larry Lundy, the other two have come on as a strong offensive line that does the blocking to help spring the Pirate backs on long runs.

"They've worked awfully hard," line coach Dick Kupec said. "They are dedicated people, and they've improved every week. They've worked hard on techniques and they play as a unit."

Bennett, who came to East Carolina when the Information was being used, prefers the blocking in the wishbone. "In the I, you had a lot of one-on-one blocks, a lot of simple dive blocks. But in the wishbone, you do different things. Sometimes you block the tackle and some times you go after a linebacker.

There are a lot more techniques involved and it makes your job a lot more interesting."

"It also gives you an advantage when you do block the tackle, because he never knows whether you're coming or not," he added.

Neither Bennett or Walker are especially jealous of the publicity the backs get. "All I ever played was the line," Walker said. "You get so you don't really expect the headlines. I just enjoy seeing the team scoring, winning and moving the ball."

Both Walker and Bennett were All-Conference last year and are candidates for the team this year. "I was surprised I made it," Walker said. "But I think I'm doing even better this year. Coach Kupec has really done a good job in working with us on techniques."

Both players were also surprised by the margin of victory against Virginia last week. "I thought maybe it would be an offensive struggle," Bennett said. "I figured that we'd have to score at least five times to beat them, but they never stopped us. We didn't fumble and that helped."

As for the Carolina game, Bennett was surprised again. "I thought we could play with them head-to-head, and maybe win. We just had it going good."

The goal of the Pirates now is to wrap up the season with a victory and finish 8-3. "This was the goal we set after the fifth game," Walker said.

Reminded that in the two years of Dye's tenure, East Carolina has lost twice to Richmond, twice to N. C. State and twice to Appalachian, Walker vowed it would not happen in the VMI game. VMI is the only other team to have beaten the Bucs. "They beat us last year, and we want them bad now. I don't know what they'll do when they hit the field, but I know what we can do."

While Walker and Lundy graduate, the rest return to next year, giving the Pirates a solid nucleus in the offensive line again. "This gives us a good start," Kupec said, looking toward next season. "We have some experience behind them, and some good young people."

Bennett, too, is looking forward to next season. "I missed this year's State and Appalachian games (injury) and I wanted to play against them. And I think we can go undefeated next year, too."

Swimmers Have Good Opening

The Gold team captured the final relay of the evening and gained a slim 56-55 victory over the Purple last night in the annual intra-squad meet of the East Carolina University swimming team.

"It looks like we are quite a bit better than we were last year at this time," Coach Ray Scharf said after viewing his team in their first public display.

The Gold team won only four individual events, while the Purple took seven events, but the depth of the Gold team proved to be the difference in the meet.

Five new meet records were set. John Tudor swam home in the 200-yard freestyle in 1:48.91; Stuart Mann won the 200-yard backstroke in 2:03.68; Billy Thorne won the 500-yard freestyle in 5:00.35; and David Kirkman won the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:20.60. The 400-yard medley relay team of David Moodie, Kirkman, Ron Schnell and John McCauley posted a time of 3:44.16.

There were two double winners in the meet. McCauley won both the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard freestyle, while Lundy took both of the diving events.

East Carolina opens its regular season on December 6, traveling to the Penn State Relays.

The summary: 400 medley relay: Purple (Moodie, Kirkman, Schnell, McCauley) 3:44.16. (meet record).

The Citadel Faces Furman For 'Pride'

By The Associated Press

While The Citadel's home game against Furman will have no effect on anything other than who finishes higher in the Southern Conference football race, Coach Bobby Ross of the Bulldogs says, "When you get to this part in a season, pride becomes a factor any time you play."

The Saturday scrap matching the Paladins, 2-3 in the league and 5-4 over-all, and the Bulldogs, 3-3 and 5-4, is the only one on tap matching two league teams.

Five other clubs go against outside foes in a bid to improve their 14-18 nonleague record that has become more imposing in recent weeks with East Carolina beating Atlantic Coast Conference rivals North Carolina and Virginia and Appalachian State beating South Carolina.

The biggest prestige blows can be struck by Richmond's Spiders, who have clinched the conference title, and Virginia Military's Keydets.

Richmond, 5-0 in the league but 0-4 against outside opposition, plays host to West Virginia, 7-2. VMI, 2-6 with an 0-3 record against nonleague teams, goes to Virginia Tech to face the Gobblers, 6-3.

Other action has William and Mary's Indians, 1-8, playing host to Colgate, 5-3; Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 7-2, at Western Carolina, 2-7; and Davidson's Wildcats, 1-6, at Lafayette. East Carolina, 7-3 and winner of five straight, has the weekend off.

"There's not a lot that needs to be said about the game," says Ross of the only league scrap. "It's Furman vs. The Citadel, and that means a lot."

The Bulldogs, second in the conference in defense, may be in trouble offensively with backup quarterback Rod Lanning nursing a shoulder injury. Starter Gene Dotson has been sidelined with an injured knee.

"They have to be one of the outstanding teams in the nation," says Richmond Coach Jim Tait of West Virginia.

The Spiders have beaten the Mountaineers the last two years, and West Virginia Coach Bobby Bowden says, "We don't have to tell our kids anything about Richmond to get them ready. They remember the past two seasons."

Five of VMI's six defeats have been by a total of 16 points, but the Keydets have won upset victories in their last two meetings with Tech. VMI has a four-game losing streak going into the 70th game in the series.

For Tech and Coach Jimmy Sharpe, the game marks an opportunity for the Gobblers—who've won five of their last six starts—to win seven games in a season for the first time since 1968.

The last time William and Mary met Colgate two years ago, the Red Raiders won 49-42. The Indians have scored only seven touchdowns this season, but two came in last week's 13-7 upset over VMI.

Carpenter Has Sparked Browns

CINCINNATI (AP) — Times have changed for Ron Carpenter, long-known as the No. 2 defensive tackle next to Mike Reid on the Cincinnati Bengals defensive line.

Coach Paul Brown selected Reid, who retired this year, as his top draft choice out of Penn State. Carpenter, from North Carolina State, was No. 2. It stayed that way for five seasons, Carpenter No. 2.

"He was never underrated by us," said Brown of Carpenter, whose steady play is partially responsible for Cincinnati's 7-1 record this year.

"Reid did all the talking and made good newspaper copy, but to us, Carpenter was the consistent one," said Brown. "He never seems to have an off-week."

"Reid was an excellent pass rusher, but was very trappable. Ron isn't. He seems to have a knack for coming up with the big play."

"He's one of our leaders," said Brown.

The Bengals and Carpenter face a test Monday night when offensive-minded Buffalo invades Cincinnati.

Carpenter, a gentle, curly-haired 250-pound giant, admits the swirl of publicity is something new.

"It feels good. Everybody has their own ego. I've always felt football is a form of entertainment. We're there to get applause. It's definitely a motivation," said Carpenter, of Thomasville, N.C.

"I never felt like I was in Mike Reid's shadow," he said, however.

"Maybe Mike and Bill Bergery were the biggest names we had. But even if you're on the second team and you don't feel you are as good as the guy ahead of you, then you don't belong in football." Carpenter led the team in quarterback sacks in both 1973 and 1974.

"I have to be very proud of that because my biggest weakness coming out of college was my pass rush. Any lineman can play the run because that's all you see in college. But learning the pass rush isn't something you learn overnight—or even in several seasons," he said.

Carpenter can't conceal his excitement over the Bengals' quick start this year.

"We would have had a darn good record last year if it wasn't for all those injuries. Some people might be surprised that we're 7-1, but we're not."

"There's a real maturity here. We have a confidence that somehow or other, we'll find a way to win."

Rose, 71st Are Seen As Toss-Up

If nothing else, we got the two most important games right last week. And, when you look at it, that's about all we did get right.

With the rash of upsets last weekend, our panel's record generally took a plunge, with a 6-5 record the best that could be put together. Just two people, Tom Baines and George Holland, managed that, while the rest of us suffered through a 5-6 outing.

The high school season, for all practical purposes, is over, with only the playoffs left to be completed. We have three area teams involved in those, however, Rose, Roanoke and Greene Central.

Jack Wichard continues to lead the panel with an 89-28 record. Baines gained on him slightly last week, and is now 86-31.

Joe Jenkins continues to hold down third place with a 82-35 record. George Holland is next at 79-38, followed by yours truly at 77-40. Diane Allen continues to trail with a 74-43 mark.

Not having the Pirates playing this week, we've added the high school games to our panel's choices to let them have a try at solving the playoff situation.

Rose High School travels to Seventy-First of Fayetteville for a first round 4-A game. The Rampants made one other trip to that city and came back red-faced. They are out to prevent another embarrassment. But Seventy-First, coached by Henry Vansant, who was an assistant at East Carolina when Rose Coach Dave Bumgarner, played ball there, has put together a potent team. The Falcons have won nine straight games to give them plenty of momentum.

The panel is well-divided on the issue, and rates the game as a toss-up, with three picking Rose and three going with Seventy-First.

Roanoke plays host to Pamlico in a 2-A game. The Redskins have been rolling all year long, losing only to Williamston. They've been there before, so the 'Skins should be used to the playoff pressures. Our panel goes down the line with Roanoke.

Greene Central plays host to Edenton in a 3-A event. The Rams lost their first four before coming around and putting together six straight victories. Edenton has lost but once, to Williamston in a stunning upset. Our panel, most of them protesting that they know too little about it (one office wag wanted to know what any of us knew about any of the games), have given Greene Central a 4-2 edge.

The top collegiate game around must be the meeting of N. C. State and Duke. The Blue Devils are putting together a good ACC season and still have a shot at a share of the title. The Wolfpack comes into the game fresh from its big upset of Penn State. That seems to have been enough evidence. It's a down-the-line choice for the 'Pack.

Other picks include Citadel over Furman; Virginia Tech over VMI; Maryland over Clemson; Tulane over North Carolina; South Carolina over Wake Forest; Appalachian at Western Carolina; West Virginia over Richmond; William & Mary over Colgate; and Syracuse over Virginia.

The full poll:

Maryland, State Seeking To Stay On Paths To Post-Season Bowls

By The Associated Press
Bowl fever, a highly contagious football malady that strikes every November, is going around these days.

Last year at this time four Atlantic Coast Conference teams were under consideration for bowl bids.

Eventually, three of them — Maryland, North Carolina State and North Carolina — landed invitations to post-season games, while Clemson lost out by an eyelash.

Not bad for a seven-team conference that went through the 1960s with only four bowl invitations among the then eight schools in the league. South Carolina withdrew in 1971.

This year, Maryland and North Carolina State emerge as likely candidates for an extra game — if they can continue their winning ways.

Maryland, 6-2-1, is prominently mentioned as a possibility for either the Gator Bowl, the Fiesta Bowl or the Sun Bowl, while State, 7-3, appears to have an invitation to the Peach Bowl in Atlanta locked up if it gets by Duke, 4-5, in its regular-season finale this weekend.

Peach Bowl Director George Crumley said Thursday that the selection committee is particularly interested in the State-Duke game and the Florida-Kentucky game. "We don't anticipate having confirmation from more than one team Saturday, but it's possible we could talk to two," he said.

A State-Florida game would be an ideal matchup from a geographical and revenue standpoint, although the Wolfpack upset Florida 8-7 early in the season. Atlanta is about equidistant from Raleigh and Greenville.

Maryland, tied with Duke at 3-0 for the ACC lead, is favored to win Saturday's game at Clemson, 2-2 and 2-7 overall, and should be able to get past Virginia, 0-4 and 1-8, next week.

Two more victories would give the Terps, the defending ACC champions, at least a tie with Duke for first place and 15 consecutive ACC triumphs.

The Blue Devils would need to beat State and North Carolina the following week to create a 5-0 tie with Maryland.

Maryland has compiled a 17-3-1 record and has been to the Peach and Liberty bowls since Jerry Claiborne took over as head coach four years ago. State, on the other hand, has been to the Peach, Liberty and Bluebonnet bowls during the last four years.

But North Carolina, with a dismal 2-7 record this year, has the best ACC bowling mark of the 1970s. The Tar Heels have visited the Peach and Gator bowls and the Sun Bowl twice in the past five seasons.

Meantime, the Tar Heels will meet Tulane Saturday in a non-conference game.

Two other non-league games Saturday will have Syracuse at Virginia and Wake Forest at South Carolina.

Tulane, Heels In Salvage Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Tulane and North Carolina, two teams with blasted hopes, hope to salvage some of the heady feeling of success in the Superdome Saturday.

Tulane has lost its last four games, North Carolina its last five.

Tulane has shown no offense but plenty of defense, North Carolina no defense but plenty of scoring punch.

"We'll have to score to stay in the game with them," said Tulane assistant coach Oscar Lofton.

Scoring hasn't been easy for Tulane so far. The Green Wave has produced 17 points twice this year, 16 on one occasion and 14 on another—all victories. The rest of the time, putting from 13 to 0 on the board, Tulane established the other end of its 4-5 record.

The Tarheels, meanwhile, have been scoring an average of 19 points per game. But a leaky defense leaves North Carolina with a 2-7 season mark.

"Tailback Mike Voight is one of the top ball carriers in the Atlantic Coast Conference," Lofton said. "He gained 228 yards against Clemson last week on 28 carries."

"He broke off runs of 60 and 50 yards against Clemson. He didn't take them all the way, but he did set up two scores."

The Tarheels scored 35 points against Clemson, but the defense gave up 38.

Tulane beat Clemson in the season opener 17-13. Although Voight is North Carolina's prime offensive threat, quarterback Billy Paschal makes sure the Tarheels don't get stuck with a one-dimensional offense.

"He's passed for over 1,000 yards this season," Lofton said. "Last Saturday, he gave Clemson fits. He passed for three touchdowns, completing 12 of 18 passes for 118 yards."

Tulane has surrendered an average of 16 points per game, but many of those points came while the offense was in the game or on short drives following Green Wave turnovers.

Air Force, for example, scored twice in the second half to beat Tulane 13-12 last weekend. One of the touchdowns came on a 23-yard drive following a fumble recovery, the other on a 51-yard drive following a pass interception.

Game Is Postponed

The Flag Football League's championship playoff game yesterday was postponed because of rain.

The game will be played Monday at 3:30 p.m. at Elm Street Park. West Greenville and Elmhurst are meeting for the title.

Bowl Committees Near Tears As Upsets Mar Collegiate Records

By TIM WHITE
AP Sports Writer

Whoops!
It's like that classic old movie scene where the Ming Vase sits on the pedestal in the parlor. After weathering thousands of years of Chinese history and the raucous comings and goings of the neighborhood kids, it finally gets toppled by the proud owner himself as he's trying to swat a fly.

As far as the college football picture is concerned, the clumsy oaf was Old Man Upset, the fly was a team like Kansas, and the vase was really a bowl — in fact a bunch of bowls. Last weekend's upsets of Oklahoma, Penn State, Southern California and Florida have got the various bowl committees near tears. Who to invite?

Ohio State's top-rated Buckeyes seek their 10th consecutive victim this Saturday in Minnesota, en route to a hopefully profitable encounter Nov. 22 with Michigan and then a Rose Bowl invitation.

The Buckeyes, 9-0, have worked overtime against the pass in practice this week.

They hope to remain tied with Michigan for the Big Ten lead and strengthen their chances of battling the Pacific-8 king — probably California, UCLA, or Stanford — for the Roses.

Minnesota, 5-4-0, led by quarterback Tom Dugny, has an upset on its collective mind, however, after a 31-7 triumph over Iowa, a 33-9 win over Northwestern and a 28-21 loss to Michigan. But first it'll have to halt Ohio State's backfield, headed by Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin. Griffin already has passed the 5,000-yard career mark and will be looking to extend his national record of 31 games of more than 100 yards rushing.

Meanwhile, sixth-ranked Oklahoma, still tussling with Nebraska for Big Eight honors and an Orange Bowl bid, is bracing itself for another unique experience — bouncing back after a defeat. The Sooners, who had their 28-game winning streak snapped last week by Kansas, are scheduled to visit No. 18 Missouri this weekend. If Oklahoma expects to make it to Miami, they first will have to end the costly turnover troubles they had with the Jayhawks last week.

The only other relatively sure bowl bet is that the Southwest Conference winner — Texas, Texas A&M or Arkansas, will host the Cotton Bowl.

No. 17 Kansas, the proud conquerors of Oklahoma, will clash with 10th-ranked Colorado Saturday. They enter the battle with a 6-3 record over-all and 3-2 in league play while the Buffs are 7-2 and 3-2.

In other weekend action involving ranked teams, second-ranked Nebraska tackles Iowa; No. 3 Texas A&M visits Rice; No. 4 Michigan squares off against Illinois, and fifth-ranked Alabama hosts Southern Mississippi.

Also: Texas Christian at No. 7 Texas; Pacific at No. 8 Arizona St.; No. 9 Notre Dame at Pitt; No. 11 Penn State at Colorado; No. 12 Arizona at Colorado St.; No. 13 Southern Cal at Air Force; No. 16 Miami, O. at Kent St.; Oregon State at No. 19 UCLA, and Auburn at 20th-ranked Georgia.

Monroe Sparks Knicks As Loss String Ends

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Earl Monroe has a good point: you can't score from the bench.

"I only played five minutes," Monroe said, explaining why he only took two shots from the field and scored three points in the opening half of Thursday night's National Basketball Association game with the Houston Rockets.

"The Pearl" saw quite a bit more action in the final two periods, winding up with 23 points while leading the Knicks to a 108-102 victory, their first after five straight losses.

In other NBA games Thursday, Washington clipped Boston 110-107, Phoenix nipped Seattle 106-103 and Golden State defeated Chicago 98-87.

In the only American Basketball Association game played,

San Antonio crushed Virginia 124-100.

Knicks 108, Rockets 102
"I got three quick fouls in the first period, so I figured I would sit out the rest of the first half," Monroe said. "But in the third period, I could go out and play my game."

Monroe, guarded mostly by Houston's Calvin Murphy, took the 5-foot-10 guard deep inside time and again, scoring on a variety of spinning jump shots.

New York had a balanced attack with Bill Bradley scoring 17 points, Spencer Haywood 16, Walt Frazier 14 and John Gianelli 13. Houston's Mike Newlin took scoring honors with 26 points, while Murphy added 22 and Joe Meriweather and Rudy Tomjanovich had 21 each.

Bullets 110, Celtics 107
Washington's Wes Unseld and Elvin Hayes sank free throws in the final 12 seconds to give the Bullets a narrow victory over Boston. The Celtics rallied in the final period, pulling from an 89-75 deficit going into the quarter to just one point down, 108-107, with 19 seconds remaining before Unseld and Hayes successfully hit from the free throw line. Phil Chenier, who scored 10 points in the final quarter, paced Washington with 24 points and Dave Bing added 22, while Boston's Charlie Scott led all scorers with 29.

Suns 106, SuperSonics 103
With Phoenix leading 104-103, the Suns' Paul Westphal blocked a Slick Watts shot and Phoenix recovered. Keith Erickson was then fouled intentionally, but he sank both free throws to ice the Suns' victory over Seattle. Dick Van Arsdale led Phoenix with 20 points while Bruce Seals and Leonard Gray scored 24 and 23 points, respectively, for the SuperSonics.

Warriors 98, Bulls 87
Held scoreless in the first period, Rick Barry exploded for 38 points to lead Golden State past Chicago. It was the Warriors' five straight victory and their seventh against two losses.

Spurs 124, Squires 100
Scoring 12 straight points late in the first period, San Antonio broke open the game and never trailed in handing Virginia its sixth consecutive defeat and 11th loss in its last 12 games. Billy Paultz led the Spurs with 21 points while James Silas and George Gervin added 20 each as San Antonio posted its fourth win in a row.

'Poor Management' Often Blamed For N.Y. Crisis

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford recently told the nation that New York City would not get federal help in its financial crisis "until they get their management straightened out." Charges of gross mismanagement have bombarded City Hall for years. Politicians and citizen groups have said New York City government is disorganized, wasteful, unproductive and lacking in worker morale. A voluntary business community group called the Economic Development Council of New York City has studied the management of the city's courts, the Human Resources Administration, which handles welfare and other social services, the Board of Education and other agencies. George Champion, former Chase Manhattan Bank chairman who heads the council, says better management in all city agencies could save taxpayers about 5 per cent out of the city's $12.2 billion budget, "and it could be much higher." A study of the Human Resources Administration two years ago proposed a reorganization plan that Champion said would save $300 million each year, or 10.7 per cent of the money spent on social services. He found that worker productivity in the HRA was at "35 per cent to 50 per cent of potential." But he said the current HRA administrator "wasn't interested in implementing our proposals." A productivity study of the HRA conducted by the Citizens Budget Commission in 1974 showed that computerization of the agency's services would cut back on the fraudulent welfare claims that are milking the city of millions annually and the agency itself would save another $58 million in salaries. If the welfare budget holds first place as far as waste and mismanagement are concerned, studies seem to point to the city's education system as a close second. Champion's group claimed to have found ways to shave the city's $2.1 billion education budget by more than 10 per cent, partly by increasing teachers' classroom hours. In two productivity studies by the Citizens Budget Commission, the group found that "a detailed study of a sample of 12 New York City secondary schools indicates that a substantial amount of teachers' time now spent on noninstructional activities could be freed for classroom time" at a saving of $20 million.

The commission's study of the City University system has shown that with the open admissions policy begun in 1970, the budget has gone up 135 per cent, the staff has increased 64 per cent, but student enrollment has increased only 45 per cent in the five-year period. The study showed that full-time faculty members spent an average of 8.7 hours of student contact each week, while at the average four-year American college, 72 per cent of teachers spend more than that with students. The commission estimates that "with changes to increase workload, savings of $26 million to $34 million could be achieved." A budget commission study of the city's Health and Hospitals Corp., which runs the city's 19 municipal hospitals, has shown that an average of 25 per cent of hospital beds are empty, and that 10 to 15 per cent of patients occupying hospital beds could be treated by less expensive means. The study recommended "mothballing" one or more city hospitals, a step which Mayor Abraham D. Beame was forced to take a few months ago in the midst of the current fiscal crisis. Champion said that many of the steps recommended for reform of the criminal court system were carried out, resulting in savings of more than $6.7 million, increased worker morale and reduction of a two-year backlog of 59,000 criminal cases to 13,000. One of the more stubborn management problems in city government has been the Department of Highways, according to a 1974 study by the Citizens Budget Commission. "The basic problem is an enormous backlog of needed street improvements. The city's physical stock of streets, highways and structures is old and deteriorated," the study said. "The challenge calls for a conscientious managerial response which has been slow in coming, indicating both a lack of managerial control, and even worse, managerial concern. "No long-range transportation plan exists," the study found. A commission study later in 1974 on the city's Department of Sanitation stated that the practice of having three or four men on garbage trucks is "just another instance of featherbedding," and called for a reduction to two men per truck. The study also called for a pilot experiment using private garbage collection services, which it said would save the city more than $70 million annually.

While few challenge the idea that the city's management could be improved and is at least partly to blame for New York City's crisis, the much tougher problem is why mismanagement exists, who is to blame, and why the problems seem to resist ready solution. "Every government is mismanaged, including the federal government," said Richard R. Aurelio, a close adviser to former Mayor John V. Lindsay. The real problem he and others cite is that "government management tends to be shaped by politics. The problems come from the fact that the city has too few resources and too many desires." Abraham Briloff, a leading New York City accountant who has advised several city administrations, says: "A community is confronted with major demands, whether they be political, economic, humanitarian, or whatever. This is the irresistible force. "But then you have an immovable object: you need a balanced budget under the law. Something has to happen to crawl under this dilemma and so the city hopes against hope that tomorrow will be better, that the economy will recover, or that the state or federal government will help," Briloff says. "What does President Ford do when he sees compelling needs? He increases budgets, raids Social Security funds. We don't call that mismanagement, though," he says. Briloff agrees that management problems arise in the city government and all governments when politics intrudes. Politics, he says, means "not creating a professional morale among the employees. It means I will give to Caesar only what I think he expects."

Appointments to the commissioner level in the city are "politically oriented rather than selecting from the very best. "But who can you select from when good management decisions are vetoed by labor unions, politics, forces beyond your control?" he asks. The private ranks of management when the commissioner is offered only limited tenure, and your control?" he asks.

North Pitt School News

The student body of North Pitt viewed a program entitled "This Atomic World", sponsored by the School of Engineering at North Carolina State University. Presented in cooperation with Oak Ridge Associated Universities, the purpose of the program was to interest students in science and engineering. John Dilday, a faculty member and graduate of NCSU, presented the program. The French and Spanish Clubs met Wednesday to discuss future plans and projects for the remainder of the school year. New officers of the French Club are: Deborah Wynne, president; Barbara Worsely, vice president; Joyce Whisenant, secretary-treasurer; Geneva Holder, reporter; Virginia Harris, publicity manager; Evelyn Griggs, project chairman. Spanish Club officers are Kim Rook, president; Eddy Hemingway, vice president; and Lisa Spain, secretary. The 1975 Pitt County Invitational JROTC Drill Meet will be held Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the Greenville Reserve Armory. The four Pitt County high schools will participate.

The Big Orange Machine will play its first basketball game of the season on Dec. 2 at Roanoke High School Robersonville. The Panther wrestling team will host a meet Saturday, Dec. 6 with the following schools participating: Farmville Central, Ayden-Grifton, East Carteret and North Pitt. Featured this week are junior Eddy Hemingway and senior Lois Peele. Eddy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Hemingway of Rt. 1, Bethel, plays center for the school varsity football team, and left field for the baseball team. He enjoys water skiing, motorcycle riding and dove hunting. Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

Seemingly insignificant cards can play important roles as the play progresses. On this hand, one pip in a side suit was the difference between victory and defeat.

Since he held a low doubleton in spades, South elected to open one heart rather than one no trump with his balanced 16 point hand. When North raised, South became interested in game, and made a try in the suit where he needed help. Despite the fact that North's king of spades rated to be a useless card on the auction, he decided to gamble on four hearts on the strength of his fifth trump and singleton club.

West led his top spade and, when dummy came down, it appeared that declarer had four inescapable losers—two spades and a trick in each minor suit. The ten of spades was allowed to hold the first trick, and East won the continuation with the jack. Declarer ruffed the ace of spades high and drew two rounds of trumps, ending in dummy. Now he called for the seven of clubs and East played the eight.

For a while, declarer toyed with the possibility that East might be ducking the ace, but with three trumps still in dummy that did not seem likely. Declarer's club spots and the fact that East had followed with the eight persuaded him to try another possibility.

He covered the eight with the nine and West won the queen of clubs. The diamond return was won by declarer, who now led the king of clubs. Obviously, declarer intended discarding a diamond from dummy if West played low, so he covered with the ace. Declarer ruffed in dummy, and when East's jack came tumbling down, both of declarer's remaining clubs were established. He returned to his hand with the ace of diamonds, took two diamond discards in dummy on his ten and six of clubs, and he was able to ruff his diamond loser on the table to score a well-played game and rubber.

Note that if the six and five of clubs were interchanged, declarer would have no play for his contract. He can obtain one discard from dummy, but that is all.

Jerry Reed Has Terry Honored By Hometown

BY JAY SHARRUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Last year, singer Jerry Reed hosted a short-lived country music series on NBC. Come Jan. 10, he'll start hosting a weekly Saturday night talk-and-music show taped in Nashville, Tenn.

Unlike the NBC series, the new TV show will be put together entirely by Reed and his Nashville associates, not by a Los Angeles-based producer. And it'll be a syndicated series, not a network offering.

Reed, a fiercely independent man, says he doesn't know if the distributor, Nashville-based Show Biz, Inc., tried to interest a network in his new series, "but I discouraged them from doing that."

"I didn't care for networks because we'd have to turn production over to somebody and that's what I don't want to do. I didn't want somebody from out of town coming in here and telling me how to run my music and present my friends."

The wiry, 35-year-old pop and country music star says his 90-minute show, intended for late-night viewing, will have a format akin to the "Tonight" show, but "not as much chatter and little more music."

And, like "Tonight," it'll have a big band—15 musicians, plus three backup singers, led by veteran arranger-conductor Bill Justis.

While it'll feature country music stars, Reed says "it's not going to be country-oriented."

"It's just going to be a show that's representative, I think, of what the music has been in Nashville all along. I want everyone to know how good our pickers are, how good our singers are, and how great the talent is in this town."

Reed, an excellent guitarist whose skill is admired in jazz as well as country music circles, said he'll be playing guitar from time to time "but I can't do it every week because I'd just blow my fastballs by everybody and I'd be burnt out."

"But about every fifth week I'm going to do a concert portion, about eight minutes long, where I sit down with my guitar and my band."

He chuckled. "The band's going to be the rhythm section and we'll just get down and boogie, do all them down-home rotten things and some soft stuff and really let go."

"The rest of the time I'll just open the show, host it, do one number and then let the other talent shine. Because the one thing I don't want to do is burn myself out on television."

LAURINBURG, N. C. (AP) — It was "Terry Sanford Day" in Scotland County Thursday and the former North Carolina governor was honored by friends, relatives and others in this community where he grew up.

Sanford, now Duke University president and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, started the day by meeting with students and faculty members at Scotland

County High School. Then he met with county Democrats and other party leaders at a luncheon and wound up the evening at a banquet sponsored by the Laurinburg-Scotland County Area Chamber of Commerce.

In the afternoon, he made personal calls around the town, stopping, of course, at his old home where his mother, known to old and young as Miss Betsy, a retired school teacher, still lives.

In the afternoon, he held a news conference at St. Andrews College, fielding questions from newsmen, students and members of the faculty.

Asked if he would consider nomination for vice president if he failed to win the Democratic presidential nomination, Sanford replied, "No. Unequivocally, no. I would rather be president of Duke than vice president running errands for the president of the United States."

He also was asked about his defeat in the 1972 North Carolina primary by Alabama Gov. George Wallace. Referring to nine candidates and one "irritant" in the Democratic presidential race, he said he didn't think Wallace had a chance of winning the Democratic nomination or the North Carolina primary.

He also touched on the resolution passed in the United Nations, labeling Zionism as racism. "I thought the General Assembly tragically discredited the United Nations over the Zionism issue," said Sanford.

He said he felt the United States could not condone passage of such a resolution. On another topic, Sanford said forced busing is not effective. He said it is "disruptive and diminishes the effectiveness of education. We need to find an alternative."

Church Will Show Film

The dramatic motion picture "The Frightening Prophecy of a Doomed America" will be shown Sunday morning at 10 a.m. at People's Baptist Temple, 2020 W. Greenville Blvd., where Dr. Barry Bagwell is pastor.

Three years ago the Estus Pirkle Evangelistic Association and Ro Ormond produced a 55-minute film titled "If Footmen Tire You, What Will Horses Do?" showing what Communists do when they take over a country and what their plans are for America. Over 10,000 professions of faith have been made at the showing of this film.

This full-color film does more than show Communist activities. It shows how this country can be spared by following II Chronicles 7:14.

The congregation and staff of People's Baptist Temple invite the public to see this film Sunday.

TARHEEL TOYOTA

INTRODUCES THE PEOPLE THAT MAKE THE 100,000 MILE WARRANTY POSSIBLE

Bill Draper, Owner
He started it all with an idea. He believes his customers deserve something extra — the longest warranty in the business.

Michael Hellier, Service Manager
Probably is the best informed and most competent service manager in the area. He doesn't believe "it can't be fixed."

Steve Grant, Parts Manager
This man is amazing. He can get parts for any Toyota on the road.

THE LIGHTS ARE BURNING BRIGHT ONCE AGAIN SO YOU CAN SEE OUR 12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.
