

Summiteers Pledge Economic Security

By FRANK CORMIER

Associated Press Writer
RAMBOUILLET, France (AP) — Leaders of the world's six major industrial nations including President Ford today ended three-day talks with a promise of more jobs, lower prices and greater economic security for their people.

A declaration in the names of the leaders of the United States, West Germany, Italy, France, Britain and Japan said: "The industrial democracies have decided to resolve the high rate of unemployment, continuing inflation and the grave problems of energy."

The leaders, who met at a 14th century chateau 28 miles southwest of Paris, said they had set out to identify the problems besetting their countries and to chart the course they must follow in the future toward prosperity.

On the shared goal to end the world recession, the six national leaders said: "We will not allow the recovery to fail. We will not accept a new upsurge of inflation."

The six defined their most urgent task as being the achievement of "stable and durable growth which will re-establish business and consumer confidence" and cut back employment with its waste of human resources.

On the key issue of wildly fluctuating exchange rates that threatened the collapse of the world money system the declaration made these points:

—Monetary authorities, presumably meaning central banks, will act to counter disorder in the money markets caused by speculation and other factors.

—The conference as a whole hailed the apparent conciliation of American and French views on the need for stability and on ways of achieving it.

William E. Simon, U.S.

secretary of the Treasury, told reporters however "no agreement of any kind on fixed exchange systems or controls" had been reached. He added: "There was a recognition of the existing symptoms of floating exchange rates — an the freedom of individual countries to adopt flexible exchange rates within the general international guidelines."

It was plain Simon was trying to stress that no "zones or bands" of fluctuations had been agreed and that the U.S. dollar will remain free to float as it has been doing for years.

Ford, meantime, issued a statement of his own hailing the outcome of the talks as "successful in all respects" and saluting the "new spirit" of Rambouillet.

"Perhaps our most important accomplishment over the past several days has been our recognition that the objective of sustained and stable economic growth will be facilitated by our common efforts," he said. "We reached substantial agreement on a number of issues concerning monetary policy, trade, energy and our relations with the developing world."

The "new spirit" of Rambouillet, Ford said, stems from a shared conviction that "we can master our future."

The President continued: "As the result of the work we have started, the people of our countries can look forward to more jobs, less inflation and a greater sense of economic security."

The six-nation declaration contained a lengthy passage relating to a combined approach to the international energy crisis. Its main points:

—The world's economic expansion is directly linked to the availability of increasing supplies of energy.

—The industrialized nations resolved to make these resources available for the growth of their economies.

—Common interests demand that "we continue to cooperate to reduce our dependence on imported energy" through conservation and through building up alternative sources.

—Consumer countries remain ready to cooperate with the oil producing states to achieve a balanced and steadily developing world energy market. The government leaders offered both a warning and a promise in squaring up to their "most urgent task" of translating the world slump into a world boom.

The warning: "In consolidating the recovery it is essential to avoid unleashing additional inflationary forces which would threaten its success."

The promise: "We are confident that recovery is under way. Nevertheless we recognize the need for vigilance and adaptability in our policies. We will not allow the recovery to falter. We will not accept another outburst of inflation."

Crime Rose 18 Per Cent Last Year, Reports FBI

By MARGARET GENTRY

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminals killed more than 20,000 people and stole property worth $2.6 billion as crime in the United States increased 18 per cent last year, the FBI said today in its final 1974 report on crime.

Thieves made off with loot valued at more than the Justice Department's annual budget and more than twice what it takes to run the city of Chicago for a year.

Teen-agers were arrested for nearly one-third of the 10 million crimes reported to police, although persons from 10 to 17 account for only 16 per cent of the nation's population.

About half of all those arrested for burglaries, motor vehicle thefts and larcenies were teen-agers, the report said. Firearms were used in 68 per cent of all murders, 44 per cent of the robberies, and 25 per cent of the serious assaults, the report said.

The grim statistics emerged from the FBI's annual report and analysis of the number of offenses and arrests reported to virtually all state and local law enforcement agencies. The FBI and other experts say many more crimes are never reported to police.

The FBI earlier had estimated there were 17 per cent more crimes committed in 1974 than a year earlier. The final report showed the increase actually was 18 per cent.

The crime rate is the number of offenses per 100,000 citizens. "These final figures merely underscore what we already know. The problem of serious crime is immense," said Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi. "A coordinated national response by all segments of the criminal justice system and at all levels of society is vital if we are to bring this problem under control."

There were 4,821 crimes per 100,000 citizens in 1974, the report said.

Increases were recorded for all sections of the country and for all seven crime categories measured — murder, rape, robbery, assault, burglary, larceny and vehicle theft.

The violent crimes of murder, rape and assault account for hardly more than a half-million of all reported offenses.

The far more numerous cases of robbery, burglary, larceny and vehicle theft cost the nation an estimated $2.6 billion. The report said police recovered loot valued at $821 million, about 31 per cent of the total.

The statistics showed a marked increase in the number of teen-agers arrested for murder as well as for robbing and stealing. Ten per cent of the 16,000 persons charged with homicide were under 18.

During the past five years, the report said, "there was a 51 per cent increase in the number of persons under 18 years of age arrested for murder." By contrast, the number of adults arrested for murder increased only 29 per cent during the same period.

"In the suburban areas," the report said, "the involvement of the young age groups in police arrests is markedly higher than the national figures. In the rural areas the distributions were lower for the younger age groups."

OPEC Talks Burden

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Central bankers and finance ministers from the major oil exporting countries met today to discuss ways to ease the burden for poor nations resulting from the five-fold rise in oil prices in the past two years.

A split on the issue reportedly has developed between Saudi Arabia and others in the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

Sources said Saudi Arabia maintains that OPEC's "moderate" 10 per cent price rise Oct. 1 was enough aid to the poor. In fact, most oil prices rose less than 10 per cent.

Iran and Venezuela are pushing a plan to levy an oil production tax — Iran has suggested 10 cents a barrel — to be distributed through such agencies as the World Bank and the U.N. International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD), one source said. Such a levy would yield almost a billion dollars a year.

Algeria, backed by Nigeria, reportedly wants to set up a program run entirely by OPEC to counteract some of the poor nations' anger over the fast run-up in oil prices.

Kuwaiti Oil Minister Abdul Muttaleb al-Kazimi has been talking about a proposal to cut oil prices for poor countries, but OPEC has always turned down such suggestions in the past.

OPEC members are already involved in extensive aid efforts, but Arab and other Moslem countries are the chief beneficiaries. Black African countries in particular are angry because they supported the Arabs against Israel after the 1973 war and have gotten nothing in return but higher oil prices.

QUESTIONS DEPOSITS

I question why utilities companies and telephone companies should be allowed to charge deposits. Other businesses which offer credit stand to lose on certain customers, too, but they don't take our money and keep it forever, or at least for years. W.P.

Greenville Utilities Public Relations Officer George Reel could offer no explanation, except to say that the deposits that have been required for years by the Commission is "security toward a delinquent bill if it would ever occur." The Commission has just begun a deposit refund program and is currently refunding deposits made in 1956 and before, with two per cent interest. They will go up as quickly as possible through whatever year is decided upon as the upper limit for keeping a deposit. Reel believes this limit will be five years.

Don Collier, area manager of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, said only customers who might be considered poor credit risks because they are completely unknown to the phone company or because they are known to have a bad credit record are asked for a deposit. When a deposit is taken, it is returned as quickly as possible and with six per cent interest after the first 90 days, Collier said.

RECEIVED REPLACEMENT

I bought a $60 Commodore calculator in January. In June, I sent it by registered mail to the Commodore Business Machines, Inc. in Palo Alto, Calif. to be repaired. In July I received a card saying it would be shipped on July 12. I sent inquiries on Aug. 5 and Aug. 30, but have had no answer nor acknowledgement whatever. It's now mid-September. T.C.

Hotline wrote to the Commodore Company Customer Service Department Sept. 18. You received a letter dated Oct. 2 saying your calculator was shipped back to you via United Parcel Service July 25, that it had not been sent back, and that a tracer would have to be placed. We don't know whether the original machine was found, but you report you received a replacement calculator from the company Nov. 12.

Dr. Wilkerson Heard In Trial

Back In Hospital

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Former U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas is in Portland's Good Samaritan Hospital for what his doctor described as rehabilitation and treatment of discomfort.

Douglas' physician, Dr. Joseph Paquet, said he was in "good condition and good spirits" after admission to the hospital Sunday. A hospital spokeswoman said it was not an emergency admission.

The 77-year-old former justice, who resigned from the court last Wednesday, arrived by airplane from Washington, D.C., with his son, William Jr. He has a home in Goose Prairie, Wash., northeast of Portland.

February and March.

Dr. Wilkerson said, when presented with a series of hypothetical questions which paralleled testimony by both defense and prosecution witnesses, that in his opinion, the acts were within the normal practice of medicine in North Carolina.

When asked if he ever signed blank prescription forms to be filled out later by others for controlled drugs, Dr. Wilkerson replied "never." Later, he testified that the signing of a blank prescription for the drug Ritalin by the physician in one of the hypothetical cases presented by State was not within the normal course of practice in the state, saying "the doctor should not have signed the prescription before it was completed."

He added, however, that in his opinion, the prescription was written for a legitimate medical purpose.

Testifying that some doctors do sign blank prescriptions for controlled drugs, Dr. Wilkerson said "it should not be."

He explained that in the case of Martha Owens, who obtained prescriptions for Ritalin from Dr. Best, that in his opinion, the drug was prescribed for a legitimate medical purpose; to keep her awake in order to be able to maintain her job.

Testimony in the week-long trial was expected to continue this afternoon.

Contrary To Popular Belief, Tax Returns Are Not 'Confidential'

By MARGARET SCHERF

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Contrary to popular belief, tax returns aren't kept confidential from other government agencies, says the head of a federal task force that studied the Internal Revenue Service.

"While you may not be able to get your neighbor's tax return, any government agency in town can," Charles Davenport, assistant director for tax policy of the Congressional Budget Committee, said in an interview Sunday night.

"Contrary to what most people believe, their tax returns aren't confidential documents," he said. "It's a generalized government asset."

Davenport headed a study group of the Administrative Conference of the United States which conducted what he said was the most extensive outside investigation of IRS operations in the last 30 years.

The conference was set up by Congress in 1964 to study how government agencies work and to make recommendations to improve efficiency.

An important recommendation in the 1,000-page report produced by the group's year-long study is that tax returns not be given to other government agencies except for statistical purposes, Davenport said.

Under present law, federal tax returns can be disclosed on the order of the President under whatever terms he and the secretary of the treasury agree upon, Davenport said. "No president can long resist all the agencies that come to him for tax returns," he said. "Since 1920 more and more agencies have been getting them."

For instance, he said, "20,000 or 30,000 tax returns are used legally each year (by other government agencies), and half to put the filer in jail."

Davenport explained that thousands of tax returns are turned over to the Justice Department each year to aid in possible prosecutions on charges not related to tax matters.

In effect, people are being forced to give incriminating evidence against themselves, which is unconstitutional.

Report Russia Will Send MIG25s To Syria

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has agreed to send a squadron of supersonic MIG25 warplanes to Syria where they apparently will be manned by Russian pilots, according to U.S. intelligence reports.

Sources said the planes are probably reconnaissance versions of the MIG25 "Foxbat." Intelligence analysts said the squadron would be a token Russian presence demonstrating Moscow's backing for Syria against Israel.

The Soviet Union stationed four MIG25s in Egypt from the 1973 Yom Kippur war until the planes were pulled out in September. Withdrawal of the MIG25s was another indication of the estrangement of Russia and Egypt.

During the 1973 war, Soviet-piloted MIG25s reportedly made high-flying reconnaissance passes over the Sinai desert area. The Israeli air force was said to have tried unsuccessfully to intercept a MIG25 on at least one occasion.

The appearance of MIG25s in Syria, particularly if flown by Russian pilots, likely would deepen tensions at a time when the United Nations observer force mandate is due to run out on Nov. 30.

U.S. intelligence also is warning that tensions could be aggravated by unprecedented maneuvers reportedly planned by Saudi Arabian troops in Syria.

According to intelligence sources, elements of a Saudi Arabian brigade stationed southeast of Damascus are due to engage in such maneuvers next week, only a few days before expiration of the authority for keeping the U.N. observer force on the Golan Heights.

A Saudi Arabian air force squadron equipped with U.S.-supplied F5 jet fighter planes is scheduled to join the maneuvers, the sources say.

Adding to the rising tension, the Syrian army recently has been conducting live-fire exercises with its Soviet-made FROG7 missile units near Damascus. These FROG7s have a range of about 40 miles.

Meanwhile, U.S. intelligence reports that Syria has concentrated four divisions along the Golan Heights facing Israel after bringing back two of the divisions from positions near Iraq.

The two Syrian tank divisions had been sent to the region near Iraq last summer during a dispute between Damascus and Baghdad over river waters. That dispute has since been settled.

Out-Of-Staters Helped To Pay Campaign Debts

WASHINGTON — Special interest groups and benefactors from out-of-state have helped North Carolina's senators erase their debts, and have given several South Carolina congressmen help in paying off their debts from past elections.

A professionally-run out-of-state mail campaign was the big factor in eliminating North Carolina Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' debts.

Reports from most lawmakers in the Carolinas showed that they got the greater part of their money from small donations from state residents.

Helms, and Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., have paid back their debts, and North Carolina Reps. James Martin, James Broyhill, Bill Hefner and Stephen Neal had surpluses this year.

But South Carolina Representatives John Jenrette and Ken Holland still owe thousands of dollars.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., has a $65,000 surplus, despite a reelection campaign last year, and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who is not up for reelection until 1978, is $13,000 in the black.

Records filed with the Federal Election Commission show that Jenrette, a Democrat, owed $65,000 as of last month, despite two major gifts of $5,000 apiece from pro-dairy organizations.

Holland, also a Democrat, owed $13,700, although records show that he has received $10,000 this year.

Records show that the campaign committee for Helms has raised $182,000 from supporters in 26 states. The committee had nearly $6,000 in the bank when it filed its report last month.

A Helms aide, Charles Black, said the bulk of the senator's money was received from small donations below $100. The mail solicitation campaign netted 10,000 contributions, averaging $15 each. Sixty-one donors, all but two from outside the state, donated about $100.

Morgan received the bulk of his money—$110,000—from fundraising events. He reported 149 donations of over $100, with 98 coming from North Carolinians.

Holland took in $5,410 from a reception at the Washington National Democratic Club, and a $600 contribution from Louis Reames of Camden. He also received gifts ranging from $200 to $800 from laborers, textile workers, railway clerks, mortgage bankers, truck operators, and podiatrists.

Jenrette has received $42,000 this year, including $5,300 at a Florence luncheon and $5,000 contributions from Special Political Agricultural Community Education of Louisville, Ky., and the Agricultural and Dairy Education Trust Fund of Springfield, Mo.

Farm-City Week Begins Friday

National Farm-City Week beginning Friday and continuing through November 27 will be the occasion for considerable activity in Pitt County as plans are being shaped up for local observances of a varied nature, according to Curtis Hendrix, Pitt County Chairman for the event.

In fact, the local celebration will get underway in advance with an afternoon Pitt County Farm-City Tour slated for a four-hour plus period on Tuesday, November 18.

The tour will assemble at 1:30 p.m. at the Pitt County Farm Bureau Building at 402 Greenville Boulevard. The tour is expected to end by 5:30 p.m. Hendrix invites interested persons to call the Pitt County Agriculture Extension Office, to reserve a place on the tour.

On the Tuesday tour, visits will be made to the A.C. Monk Tobacco Company in Farmville; to the Farmville Implement Company for a display of mechanized equipment typical of equipment that has helped to continue to improve the productive capacity of Pitt County farm; and the final visit will be to Worthington Farms, Inc., a family owned farm that produces tobacco, corn, soy beans, peanuts, hogs and eggs.

Refreshments during the tour will be provided by the Pitt County Extension Homemakers Clubs, with the Pitt County Farm Bureau, Greenville Lions Club and the Ayden Community providing bus transportation.

A number of other activities will also be held for Farm-City Week, Hendrix said. These include special programs with farm guests in attendance, and are sponsored by the Greenville Kiwanis Club, the Greenville Rotary Club and the Farmville Kiwanis Clubs. Also, plans are to have an open house at the Joe Wilson Poultry Farm on Sunday afternoon, November 30.

Extending the observance of the national week into December will be an open house event at a local industry where farm people will be issued a special invitation.

All these activities, Hendrix notes, are designed to bring about better understanding between rural and urban peoples, and to increase the knowledge and appreciation of each for the American way of life.

The national annual observance of Farm-City Week is directed by a National Farm-City Council made up of representatives of more than 150 businesses, industries, farm, professional, trade, church, youth and service groups, as well as educational institutions, governmental agencies, publishers and broadcasters.

Kiwanis International is serving as coordinating agency and headquarters for this, the 21st consecutive year of national observances.

The 1975 theme of National Farm-City Week is "A Declaration of Interdependence."

Bishops Urged Fight Abortion

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's Roman Catholic bishops were told today that "the will of God and the law of reason" demands an unrelenting fight against abortion.

"We know well that we are today witnessing a growing, frightening callousness toward the sanctity of unborn human life," Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin told the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

The address by Archbishop Bernardin, president of the conference, opened a four-day annual meeting attended by 250 bishops, the overseers of the 48.5 million American Catholics.

The bishops were presented with a plan for a concerted attack on legalized abortion and mercy killing, aiming eventually for a constitutional amendment to bar the practice in America.

"We do not seek to impose our moral teaching on American society," said the introduction of the plan. "But as citizens of this nation we find it entirely appropriate to ask that the government and the law be faithful to its own principle — that the right to life is an inalienable right given to every-one by the Creator."

Archbishop Bernardin, who is from Cincinnati, spoke in a similar vein. "It is essential that we continue to express and act upon our commitment to the defense of all human rights, particularly those most threatened in our society and our world today," he said.

"In this connection we must and will affirm in season and out our determination to speak and act in defense of those who are perhaps the most defenseless, the most voiceless among us: the unborn."

He also called on the bishops to address themselves on the role of women in the church, but said any action on the ordination of women must be "consistent with the teaching of the church and the will of Christ."

Archbishop Bernardin said the Catholic leaders must be realistic and acknowledge there are problems for which there are no solutions that will accommodate all views.

An 11-item agenda awaited the bishops, including the anti-abortion drive, a statement on Catholic-Jewish relations, a statement on better housing for the poor and a major revision of the training program for future priests.

Cold weather brings out the firewood. An ideal fuelwood is one that has a relatively high amount of heat, is easy to burn, is easy to split, does not make a heavy smoke nor pop or throw sparks. Ash, red Oak, white oak, beech, hickory, birch, hard maple, pecan and dogwood all rate excellent in these categories. Oak gives the most uniform and shortest flames and produces steady, glowing coals. Southern yellow pines, because of their high resinous content, are easily ignited and burn rapidly with a hot flame which may result in a little more smoke than is desirable. To achieve an ideal fire, it is beneficial to mix the heavier hardwoods with the lighter yellow pines. One cord of oak wood can produce the heat equivalent of 200 gallons of oil or one ton of coal.

Twig Girdlers Busy: Twig girdlers have been extremely active in most areas of the state this fall and their activities have been most noticeable on pecan trees. In late summer these insects deposit their eggs in slits they make in the bark near the tips of twigs and small branches. They then neatly girdle the twig to a point where it falls to the ground or is left hanging until a strong wind blows it off. Other host trees for the twig girdler are hickory, oak, elm, persimmon, honey locust, hackberry, basswood and various fruit trees. The best control is to collect and burn the girdled twigs in the fall while the eggs and grubs are still in them.

The Way It Was In The Woods 200 Years Ago: Sassafras tea was considered a panacea for all ailments. Its wood was used for bedsteads and flooring to keep bedbugs away. A buckeye carried in the pocket warded off rheumatism. Bark from the willow tree yielded a substance which relieved stiff joints, rheumatic pain and other aches. Years later, it was an experimentation with this substance which led to the development of the world's leading pain killer, aspirin. Green, black walnuts were boiled to make a dye to "color back" gray hair. Paw-paws and persimmons were made into puddings and pies. Ground persimmon seeds were roasted and made into coffee. Acorns were roasted or boiled and eaten or made into flour. Man had to get to the acorns before the turkeys, ducks, squirrels, deer and wild and domestic hogs. Early writers reported flocks of as many as 500 turkeys in the oak forests with some weighing as much as 40 pounds which the writer stated would feed eight people for two days.

Your Electric Fence May Start Forest Fire: An increased percentage of forest fires are caused by certain electric fence chargers or controllers. These fence controllers are designed to kill back vegetation and both their amperage and the duration of charge may exceed "UL" safety standards. The General Statutes of North Carolina places the responsibility or liability on the owners of any electric equipment that might cause any damage to persons or property. Use only controllers or fences that have the Underwriters Laboratory (UL), seal displayed on the equipment. Where fence is used in a wooded pasture, or adjacent to a wooded area, there should be maintained a disced area at least two feet wide on each side of the fence to prevent grass, weeds and brush from contacting the charged fence. Contact your local N.C. Forest Service Representative for additional information.

Eight Dead In Traffic

By The Associated Press

The Highway Patrol says eight persons died in weekend traffic accidents, bringing the state's toll for the year to 1,277 as compared to 1,394 in the corresponding period of last year.

Three of the victims died in three single-car accidents.

Thomas Jefferson Revels of Rt. 3, Dallas, was killed Sunday night when his car crossed the center line of rural paved road 1802 seventh-tenths of a mile north of Dallas in Gaston County and hit an oncoming car.

Two persons were killed Saturday when their cars collided head-on on U.S. 601 five miles north of Monroe. The highway patrol identified the victims as Geraldine Wren Farrow, 58, of Reidsville and Lee W. Freeman, 29, of Fuquay-Varina.

Charles Ronald Howell, 45, of Andrews was killed on U.S. 19 four miles east of Murphy Sunday. The patrol said his car crossed the center line and struck a bridge.

The patrol said 36-year-old Joseph Darrell Freeman of Asheboro was killed Saturday when the car he was driving struck a tree off N.C. 42 two miles east of Asheboro.

James Isiah Banks, 23, of Rt. 2, Fremont, died in an accident on N.C. 222, two miles east of Kenly. According to the patrol, his car hit another car in the rear.

A Haw River man, Roy Clarence Warren, 58, died in an accident six miles south of Swepsonville Friday. The car in which he was a passenger overturned in a pond after leaving a rural road and going down an embankment.

James Elvin Payne of Cherryville died when the car he was driving hit a ditch and overturned after leaving N.C. 274 three miles south of Cherryville Friday night.

Miss Mary Kay Gooding Weds Donald L. Avery

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Missionary Baptist Church here was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding of Mary Kay Gooding and Donald Lee Avery.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Horace G. Thompson. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Paul Braxton, organist, and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Miller, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," "Walk Hand In Hand" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Daniel Gooding of Winterville, and Mrs. Bonnie Baldree Avery of Greenville, and the late Mr. Eldredge (Pete) Avery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of ivory maracaine and Venise lace fashioned with a natural waistline, Queen Anne Collar and long fitted sleeves ending in calla points. Appliques of Venise lace were featured on the bodice and sleeves. Venise braid was used at the waist and neckline and bordered the circular skirt and chapel length train.

She wore an ivory fingertip mantilla edged with matching lace attached to a Venise lace covered Camelot cap with layers of illusion and wore a strand of pearls belonging to her mother. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and tropicana roses centered with a white cattleya orchid interspersed with blue baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Carol Gooding of Winterville, sister of the bride. She was dressed in a formal length gown of silver blue maracaine designed with a gathered Bianchi neckline complemented by a natural inset waistband. The gown back featured a self-belt centered with a tailored bow. The gown had long fitted sleeves and a full flared skirt. She wore a sprig of blue baby's breath in her hair and carried a hand nosegay of gold and blue daisy pom poms interspersed with baby's breath tied with gold ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Patsy Kitrell of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom, and Carolyn Hadnot of Farmville, aunt of the bridegroom. The junior bridesmaid was Cheryl Catlette of Farmville, cousin of the bride. Their gowns were identical to that of the honor attendant and they each carried hand nosegays of gold and blue daisy pom poms interspersed with blue ribbon. They wore a spring of blue baby's breath in their hair.

The best man was Kenneth Hadnot of Farmville and ushers were Michael Gooding of Winterville, brother of the bride, Chris Sumrell of Simpson, and Troy Kitrell of Greenville.

The church was centered with a fifteen branch brass candelabra holding an arrangement of gladioli, chrysanthemums and pom poms in shades of pastel blue and gold flanked by nine branch tree candelabra holding matching arrangements. Nine branch spiral candelabra entwined with greenery were used on each side. The couple knelt on a brass profile prie-dieu and family pews were marked with blue satin ribbons.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Vernon Cox.

The mother of the bride selected a formal length mint green gown of maracaine with a fitted bodice with an overlay of matching chantilly lace. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal length ensemble of ice blue lace and knit. Both mothers wore white georgiana orchids. The grandmothers were remembered with white carnation corsages.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a beige and brown pants suit and wore the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The couple will reside in Winterville.

The bride is a graduate of Winterville High School and East Carolina University, where she is now an instructor. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School and is employed by Hallow Distributing Co., Greenville.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Sam R. Gooding of Wilmington.

The serving table was centered with a five branch silver candelabra with an arrangement of carnations, pom poms and baby's breath in blue with touches of gold.

Miss Frances Taylor of Goldsboro, aunt of the bride, served cake and Mrs. David Jones of Grifton and Mrs. James Higginbotham of Kinston, cousin of the bride, presided at the register and poured punch.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Marion Gooding of New Bern. Others assisting were Miss Darla Turner, Miss Marian Glynn Gooding and Miss Ruth Gooding.

An after-rehearsal party was given in honor of the bridal couple in the fellowship hall of the church by Miss Frances Taylor, Mrs. David Jones and Mrs. James Higginbotham. A pre-rehearsal dinner was held Saturday night at the Three Steers by the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Hilda Avery, Mr. and Mrs. Laddie Avery, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Avery, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLawhorn, aunts and uncles of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Nobles.

After 22 Years, She's Finally Doing 'Her Own Thing'

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for years, and around holiday time someone always asks, "Should we go to HIS mother's or to MY mother's for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner?" And your answer is always, "Why not alternate?"

Abby, my husband and I struggled with that problem for years, and we resolved it according to your suggestion. Both sets of parents lived nearby, and it seemed the only fair thing to do. So for 22 years, we spent Thanksgiving and Christmas in parents' homes instead of our own.

It never dawned on us until this year—as our children are ready to strike out on their own—that we never developed our own holiday traditions. We always went to Grandma's for the holidays. She insisted on doing all the cooking herself—and then she complained for months about how much work it was and how tired she got. When we, her daughters and daughters-in-law, asked if we could bring something for the dinner, she wouldn't hear of it. When we brought food without asking her, she refused to serve it, so we finally gave up.

I realize now what a high price I've paid over the years for peace in the family. I wish I hadn't. Abby, please urge young marrieds to dare to have their own holiday celebrations in their own homes. Suggest that they invite their parents and grandparents, who might even be relieved to be finally free of the burden of entertaining three generations.

DOING MY OWN THING

DEAR DOING: Thank you for an excellent letter. Perhaps it will inspire others to "do their own thing," too. It makes a lot of sense.

DEAR ABBY: Where can a person buy salt peter? Do I need a doctor's prescription to get it? Is it tasteless? And does it do what they say it does to a man's sex urge?

You can't send me a personal reply because my husband opens all the mail. Please answer in your column as soon as possible as I don't know how much longer I can put up with this. Thank you.

ALL WORE OUT IN L.A.

DEAR ALL: Salt peter can be purchased at a pharmacy. It is technically termed "potassium nitrate," and I am informed that no prescription is required. But because it's used in making explosives, some pharmacists refuse to sell it to minors.

It tastes like table salt, but if you expect it to reduce a man's sexual appetite, you could be disappointed.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is 20. Roger attends a local college but doesn't live at home. The problem is the hair hassle.

Last summer my husband asked Roger several times to please get a haircut. Let me stress that we don't object to long hair if it's kept neat, but it seems that every time Roger came home he needed a haircut. His excuse last time was, "Haircuts are too expensive." So his father gave him $100 and said, "That should take care of your haircuts for a year!"

Roger accepted the money. Well, Roger was home last weekend and nothing had changed. He still needed a haircut! My husband says if that kid shows up for Thanksgiving needing a haircut he is going to demand the return of $100. Would this be fair?
ROGER'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If Roger accepted the money with the understanding that he'd keep his hair cut, he should either uphold his end of the bargain or return the money.

We'll Eat More Magic Soybeans

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ
Associated Press Writer
DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Soybeans, this year being harvested in near-record amounts throughout the nation's farm belt, could soon be replacing meat on many American tables.

That's the aim of food scientists in laboratories not far from the dusty brown fields where plump, protein-packed beans await the tractors and combines.

One soybean expert predicts a revolution in American eating habits similar to the one which saw margarine conquer butter in many households.

"The period is not too far in the future when many people will prefer soybean products to meat," says William T. Atkinson, 64, senior research chemist for Archer Daniels Midland Co. of Decatur, one of the world's largest soybean processors.

Nutritionists consider soybeans an almost perfect food, free of fat and starch and packed with twice as much crude protein as beef or fish, three times as much as eggs and 11 times as much as milk.

The U.S. Agriculture Department predicts this year's harvest, extending from mid-September to mid-November, will produce nearly 1.5 billion bushels of soybeans, very close to the record 1.547 billion bushels harvested in 1973.

This amount is more than three-quarters of the world's supply. Soybeans are this nation's biggest agricultural export.

But nearly all of the crop will be fed to animals, soybean processors say. Less than 5 per cent will be used in such things as margarine, cooking oil and other soybean products for people.

Increasing direct human consumption of soybeans could be of tremendous significance in helping to solve the world's growing food shortage, scientists agree.

It takes several pounds of vegetable protein, fed to livestock, to produce a single pound of animal protein. Yet in all but the poorest nations most of the population gets most of its protein from meat.

The problem is that straight out of the pod soybeans have what many consider to be a bitter, unpleasant taste. Few but vegetarians eat them plain.

The solution is to make soybeans taste — and even look and feel — like something else.

In this effort, the pliable nature of the soybean itself is a help. Atkinson said chemists consider soybeans the next best thing to magic beans because of the seemingly endless list of products which can be made from them.

A 60-pound bushel of soybeans, when processed in huge plants like ADM's in Decatur or Cargill's in Minnesota, yields about 48 pounds of meal and 11 pounds of oil. The rest is waste.

The oil has been used commercially since the 1930s as an ingredient for paint and plastic. Henry Ford, an early soybean enthusiast, built an experimental car out of soybean plastic in 1941, but the idea failed to catch on.

Soybean meal was thrown away or used as fertilizer until the early 1950s.

"We were just submerged in the stuff. No one knew what to do with it," said Atkinson, who has been seeking new uses for the soybean through his 40-year career as a chemist.

In the 1950s, however, soybean meal began to be used as a protein supplement in feed for cattle, hogs and chickens, helping them grow bigger, faster and more cheaply.

A protein supplement for human consumption was also developed around 1950, Atkinson said. It was in the form of a relatively tasteless powder, more than 90 per cent pure protein, which could be mixed with virtually any food to boost its nutritive value.

"We thought, 'Everybody is going to grab this stuff.' Boy, were we wrong," said Atkinson. "People won't eat food just because it's good for them. People eat things because they're fun to eat, and you couldn't have much fun eating a powder."

The real breakthrough, in terms of increasing human consumption of soybeans, came in 1970, when processors invented a way of cooking the powder into a plastic-like liquid and forcing it through small holes to make Texturized Vegetable Protein (TVP).

In one form TVP can be shaped, colored and flavored to resemble hamburger. But treated in different ways it can be made to look, taste and chew like stew meat, and scientists like Atkinson at ADM and other research centers are working on ways to imitate shrimp, mushrooms and other delicacies.

Development of TVP in 1970 coincided with a decision by federal officials to allow the use of soybeans as a meat supplement in the government-supported school lunch program.

Soaring meat prices in 1973 sparked the appearance in many areas of ground beef, mixed with TVP. Priced 10 to 20 per cent below the cost of pure ground beef it is still available in some stores. One major Midwestern supermarket chain, which calls its version of this product "Tend-R-Blend," said sales dropped off slightly when meat prices declined, but have remained steady since.

"Now that we've got a way to give soybeans texture, there's no limit to what we'll be able to do with them," said Atkinson, who thinks young people will acquire a taste for soybeans by eating them in school.

Many of their mothers and grandmothers, he argues, grew to like nylons better than silk stockings and to prefer margarine to butter, although both new products were originally considered inferior.

"These beans are a wonder," Atkinson says. "You're going to be eating a lot more of them in the future."

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor.

Noodle Pudding, from Jewish cuisine, can be prepared in dozens of ways. Last spring we used a recipe for it, concocted by a friend's mother, that included medium-wide egg noodles, apples and raisins. Recently another friend gave us her cousin's recipe for a noodle pudding that features fine egg noodles, canned apricots and peaches. Now that we seem to be in the business of cadging noodle pudding recipes from friends' relatives, who knows what will turn up next?

NOODLE PUDDING,
BARBARA'S VERSION

- 1/2 pound (about 4 cups) fine egg noodles
  - 1 cup commercial sour cream
  - 1/2 cup small-curd creamstyle cottage cheese
  - 1/4 cup sugar
  - 2 tablespoons salad oil
  - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
  - 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1-3rd cup apricot syrup, from a 16-ounce can
  - 1-3rd cup peach syrup, from a 16-ounce can
  - 2 eggs, slightly beaten
  - 1 cup apricot halves, from a 16-ounce can
  - 1/2 cup peach slices, from a 16-ounce can
- Cook the noodles according to package directions; turn into a colander to drain.
Stir together the sour cream, cottage cheese, sugar, oil, cinnamon, vanilla, salt, apricot syrup and peach syrup. Add noodles and eggs and stir until well mixed.

In a 1-quart round casserole layer 1/2 the noodle mixture. Arrange the apricot halves and peach slices over the noodles; spread the remaining noodle mixture over the fruit.

Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 350-degree oven until center is hot — about 1 hour. Garnish with extra apricot and peach slices. Serve hot or warm as an accompaniment to meat or poultry or as a dessert.
Makes 8 servings.

Could Be Year For A Woman

Supreme Court-watchers, and their numbers have proliferated these last few days, can be excused for thinking this might be the year a woman is named to that august body. Few would be surprised.

There are reasons. One would be that there are more women today who are qualified for the appointment. Another: it would be a politically advantageous move for the President who is looking for nomination and election in 1976 (and Gerald Ford is a political animal of the first degree). Thirdly, Betty Ford has let it be known she'd like to see a woman on that bench. As a husband and a father, President Ford can't afford to completely ignore that kind of advocacy.

This kind of speculation has crossed minds of many, as evidenced by the Associated Press pictorial lay-out Thursday, of possible successors to Justice William Douglas. Of the eight personalities the AP chose to picture as potential nominees, five were women whose backgrounds made them eminently suitable.

Other than the novelty of a woman on the Supreme Court it is unlikely her presence would make any difference in the work of the court, so in our view it is not a life-and-death matter whether a woman is appointed or not appointed.

Much has been made of the importance attached to the choice for filling the shoes of Justice Douglas. The Supreme Court is described as being delicately balanced between what is called the "liberal" and "conservative" viewpoints which are seen as a near-tangible factor in interpretation of the Constitution.

Certain it is that a number of difficult and sensitive questions await review by the Justices, and it is a lamentable fact-of-life the course of government can be so affected by such innermost feelings when all the majority of American citizenry really want is objective and impartial findings.

In that respect, we suspect we are better served than most are willing to admit. History gives very good marks to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Brooke's Name Thrust Into The 1976 Lists

Pres. Ford left no doubt that he was talking about Sen. Edward Brooke R-Mass., when he said he would consider a black running mate next year.

The president discussed vice presidential candidate possibilities on a visit to N.C. Central University in Durham.

"Certainly by his record, Sen. Ed Brooke should be considered," the president said.

Although a final choice of running mates for the President has not been made, it is clear that Ford has put Sen. Brooke in the running.

Sees No Welfare Changes

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There are apparently no real steps underway in Washington to change the overall welfare system which North Carolina Human Resources Secretary David T. Flaherty has labeled unworkable.

A series of public hearings around the country by the White House Domestic Council are now being wrapped up. Flaherty attended one in Tampa, Florida, recently.

It was, he said following the event, pure window-dressing for public relations purposes. Chaired by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, the Domestic Council was named by President Ford as his planning tool for national policies. It replaced a similar agency under President Nixon chaired by John Ehrlichman.

The recent withdrawal of Rockefeller from the 1976 election only underscores the futility of the Domestic Council exercise in gathering welfare information around the country.

Just For Show

"They have no intention to change anything...it was just for show," Flaherty now says of the conference at which he outlined steps for reform of welfare.

"We are spending billions of dollars to help millions of people. The problem is that too many people have developed a dependency on these programs and we have been unable...to significantly reduce this dependency," Flaherty told the Domestic Council.

As an illustration, the Work Incentive Program was designed to remove people from welfare rolls and put them to work. In North Carolina, there were 115,000 people receiving money from the aid to families with dependent children fund when Work Incentive took effect. Today, there are more than 190,000 recipients.

"More and more parents in our society are abdicating their responsibility for support of their children and the government continues assuming more of this responsibility," Flaherty says.

There are three main problems with the system, Flaherty believes:

—Established as an anti-Depression program 40 years ago, the system has never been overhauled to meet modern demands;

—Numerous categorical programs are set up to meet specified needs of individuals, while those individuals most often have a complexity of problems;

—The administrative bureaucracy in Washington is "ripping off the money" rather than leaving it in North Carolina to be spent directly on the problems.

Keep In State

"I believe that states are in a better position to determine the needs of their people and to develop programs to meet their needs than the federal government," Flaherty told the Domestic Council.

As an example of how a federal government program takes over and makes unworkable a reasonably simple thing, Flaherty points to day care for children. Restrictive federal rules are "forcing private day care operators out of business

...the private sector can and will provide the needed day care if we give them the opportunity.

"We are currently providing a better quality of day care for our welfare recipients than the parents who pay for day care can afford for their children," Flaherty said. "This is not right..."

Meanwhile, back in North Carolina, Flaherty is coming under fire from some of his own people for his continued insistence on pointing up the millions of dollars lost through welfare errors, his demands for reform, and his repeated refusal to temper his criticisms—or even to stop using the term welfare rather than the euphemistic "social services" preferred by many of his colleagues.

Scolded by social workers at a statewide meeting in Raleigh recently, Flaherty refused to back down, saying he calls it welfare because that is what people understand it to be, and he must criticize the system because he believes it to be wrong and in need of reform.

A Slogan For The U.S.

WASHINGTON—My colleague Jack Anderson has been running a slogan contest for the Bicentennial. He is offering all sorts of prizes to the person who will come up with the words that will describe this country the best.

I was thinking of entering the contest, but I knew I couldn't win because people would think it was a put-up job. Since I hate to see my slogan go to waste I have decided to use my own column to publicize it.

I believe the slogan that describes this country the best is "The check is in the mail."

My reason for selecting it as the best one is that it is easy to remember, it fits on automobile bumper stickers and millions of Americans have been using it for years. I must admit the slogan isn't original with me. I first heard my father use it 40 years ago. In fact, every time the phone rang at our house he would say it to the caller on the other end.

One time I asked him after a call from the electric company if the check was really in the mail and he said,

"Don't ask such dumb questions. If the check was in the mail you wouldn't be eating meatballs and spaghetti tonight."

My father must have told other people about it because in no time at all I kept hearing the phrase being repeated wherever I went.

Most companies would blow their minds when they were told by a customer that "The check was in the mail." But there was little they could do about it.

Then one day a comptroller of a large corporation got a brainstorm. Why couldn't his company tell another company the same thing? In that way his company could slow up payments on its bills and use the money itself. He tried it and improved the cash position of his company by 100 per cent.

Pretty soon everyone doing business was assuring everyone else that "the check was in the mail," and it took weeks, even months before anyone was paid.

The practice might have been stopped except that the people telling the tale got help from an unexpected source—the U.S. Post Office.

As time went on postal service got so bad in the country that no one could tell if the person who said the check was in the mail was lying or not. Today it's impossible for anyone to know if the debtor is telling an untruth or if the check is really lost somewhere in a mailbox between St. Louis, Mo., and Butte, Mont.

This has encouraged almost everyone in the country to blame the mails for the lack of payment of a bill.

For a long time only individuals and private enterprise used the ploy. But recently the government has gotten into the act. Now, whether you're waiting for a Social Security check or Judge Robert Muir, Jr., in New Jersey refused wisely Monday to attempt to play God by ordering the death of a 21-year-old girl in a coma for seven months, with no visible signs of ever snapping out of it. His ruling will be commended by millions of Americans.

The court did not enter into the divinity phase of life and death, saying only that it is for the physician to decide whether the respirator which is keeping the girl alive should be disconnected so that she could "die with dignity." The parents had asked that that be done, even said they had prayed that the court would decide for them.

It is not for the courts to say whether God-given life shall continue or end. In their honorable profession, doctors for their part are obligated to prolong life as long as possible.

Common sense in this country is not prepared to accept the euthanasia theory, which is a concept whereby elderly or helpless people should be administered a lethal drug to end life. In other words, get them out of the way; they are no longer useful or of any good to anybody.

Few doctors, if any, would ever assume the responsibility of deliberately ending a life. It is not for man to say, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away," as Job in the Old Testament expressed it. It is the prerogative of the Almighty, not that of mere finite man.

It will be a tragic era if ever the time comes when the courts are allowed to decide whether a sick person shall be allowed to live or die. Judges do not desire the responsibility, and in this particular instance the judge said, in effect, that he wanted no part of it. He set an example, which all courts should accept as judicial policy.

Mental torture of the grieving parents is understandable. But even they need to know that their daughter's destiny is in the hands of a higher power. Finite man cannot assume the role of the Almighty.

Wage Rates Blamed

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — "The New South" is a term that has been used and abused so much that it means very little anymore, if indeed it ever meant anything at all.

Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida, a politician of the New South if ever there was one, doesn't even like the term. He prefers to characterize the South as an adolescent, freed of its childish preoccupation with race, still suffering from growing pains and skin blemishes, but standing on the future of a solid, vital maturity.

Askew, new chairman of the Southern Growth Policies Board, believes the South will soon supplant the North as the dominant region in this half of the country. Many of those at the board's annual meeting agreed with him.

There was, of course, much discussion of the problems that still plague the adolescent — hunger, poverty, illiteracy.

There were fears that the South might not learn from the North's mistakes and become, in Askew's vivid phrasing, a new wasteland of "bleak cities and sterile suburbs, dirty air and murky water, asphalt horizons and neon jungles."

That is what the board, a group of business and political leaders from 15 states, is designed to help prevent. But while there was much talk of land use management and attraction of foreign capital, there was little overt discussion of an aspect of Southern growth that has recently become an issue in North Carolinas.

The issue was raised by University of North Carolina Professor Emil Malizia in a study recently completed for state planners. Malizia examined the economy of North Carolina and concluded that its work force does not get paid what it is worth.

North Carolina workers, he said, are about as productive as workers in other states. But they get paid less. And factories here make higher profits than similar factories in other states.

Malizia said it doesn't seem to make much difference (Continued on page 5)

To the editor:

I am a concerned parent who wants to see Santa Claus back on afternoon television. My own children and other children with whom I've talked really miss hearing their letters read by Santa. For some, this is the only time they get to see Santa and it excites them to sit and listen for their letters.

I called the television station, WNCT—Channel 9, and they said if enough letters were received asking to see Santa back on the air, they would try to put him on for the kids.

Would other interested parents please write and ask for Santa Clause. Write to WNCT, Channel 9, Box 898, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

We need Santa.

Return Of Scoop Jackson

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A Sunday morning meeting around a homely kitchen table in South Boston signifies a development of potentially profound importance in 1976 presidential politics: Sen Henry M. Jackson turning back the clock four years to woo chronically ignored conservative Democrats.

Jackson met last Sunday at the South Boston home of State Sen. William Bulger, a shrewd and influential young political leader of his neighborhood's desperate fight against compulsory racial busing. Jackson and Bulger totally agreed on the evils of busing; now they were searching for legislative remedies.

That Jackson should return to the busing issue after years of ignoring it (though not changing positions on it) reflects the outcome of a strategic debate waged for months within his campaign. Having failed over three years to make himself acceptable to the party's dominant liberal wing, Jackson will now reemphasize his essentially conservative positions on many social questions. That may win over enough of the party's conservative minority while the liberal majority is split among myriad candidates—the only way Jackson's oldest supporters have always felt he could ever be nominated.

This promises at least a partial reprise of Jackson's 1972 campaign, when he declared to audiences, "I'm a liberal but not a damn fool," and then attacked busing, abortion, permissiveness and reckless defense spending cuts. Such rhetoric was abandoned for his 1976 campaign — particularly after Robert Keefe, a widely sought-after political organizer, was hired away from the Democratic National Committee to become Jackson's campaign manager.

Feeling the Democratic nomination would be worthless if liberals did not concur, Keefe began wooing the party's left. While not actually changing positions (save for his shoddy eleven-hour abandonment of Vietnam), Jackson softened his tone. He emphasized economic liberalism (oil price controls, anti-recession programs) and deemphasized social conservatism (busing, abortion).

It failed. Liberals were unappeased, unable to forgive his past support for Vietnam and present backing of adequate defense spending. Key figures on the party's left — including at least one serious presidential hopeful — privately say they can never support Jackson as nominee. Simultaneously, he lost substantial backing among businessmen, labor leaders and Southerners. With only his Jewish support undiluted thanks to an uncompromising pro-Israel position, Jackson today lacks a viable base for presidential primary campaigning.

This crisis became obvious months ago to S. Sterling Munro, Jackson's longtime assistant who began urging strategy changes — leading to overblown reports that Munro was pushing out Keefe as campaign manager. In any event, Keefe now feels a change in strategy is imperative.

That change was signaled at 10 a.m. last Sunday when Jackson and Keefe turned up in Bill Bulger's kitchen to drink hot tea and eat Mrs. Bulger's home-cooked Irish bread. Boston is finished as a city, said Bulger, unless (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

ZACCHAEUS

"I must needs abide in this house this day." Thus did our Lord address Zacchaeus, the little publican, who, when he heard of Jesus's approach to Jericho, ran ahead and climbed into a tree to witness the entry into the city.

It was a good day for that wretched little cheat who had so long lived comfortably in his sin. When Jesus came into his home he inculcated in Zacchaeus a poignant sense of the extent to which he had victimized his fellow Jews by acting as tax collector for Rome. According to the custom of that day, tax collectors made a lump sum payment to the government of the total taxes in advance of collection. Then they recouped their outlay and much more by squeezing every penny out of people they could. Jesus left his home, Zacchaeus promised to restore to any he had defrauded four-fold, and to give one half of his goods to the poor.

Zacchaeus had taken Jesus into his home, and by doing so had also taken him into his heart.

N.C. GOP Elects Leadership; Party Out Of Debt

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—With selection of a new party chairman a foregone conclusion, Tar Heel Republicans focused on presidential and gubernatorial politics at their biennial convention last weekend.

Robert Shaw, a 51-year-old Greensboro business who was unopposed, was elected to lead the party for the next two years. Mary Alice Warren was reelected vice chairman.

The meeting ended on a happy note as the party, for the first time in years, was out of debt and about $2,500 in the black. President Ford's appearance at a $50-a-ticket fund raising luncheon gave the party about $70,000 profit and ended the deficit that at one time was above $100,000.

More than 1,200 persons attended the luncheon but ticket sales were more than 1,500 with nine of them being sponsor tickets going for $1,000 each.

Keynote speaker for the two-day meeting was former Texas Gov. John Connally who called on the party faithful to expand the GOP horizons and appeal. Though he sounded like a candidate, Connally said at a news conference following his address Saturday that he's not running for anything and won't change his mind.

Connally said the party should maintain its conservative stance and promote changes such as constitutional amendments to ban school busing to achieve racial balance and to forbid deficit spending except in times of war or national emergency.

North Carolina's top GOP officials—Gov. Jim Holshouser, Sen. Jesse Helms and Reps. Jim Martin and Jim Broyhill—also addressed the 1,200 delegates.

While most of the talk was on party unity and winning in 1976, Helms pulled a surprise and gave the delegates a recruiting talk, urging them to support former California Gov. Ronald Reagan. Helms is heading Reagan's likely challenge of Ford in North Carolina's March 23 presidential primary.

Gov. Jim Holshouser, taken by surprise, was next to speak. He also delivered a recruiting talk, but in favor of Ford. He is Ford's southern campaign chairman.

The race issue was raised twice during the convention, both times by black delegates. On Friday, Floyd McKissick of Warren County objected to an antibusing resolution and tried to have it changed. His effort was soundly defeated.

Saturday, Alexander Barnes of Durham tried to get the party to create a second vice chairman's position and reserve it for a minority person. That effort was also defeated by a wide margin.

"It looks like black Republicans have no rights white Republicans, as a whole, are going to respect," Barnes told the convention later.

Evenings during the convention were dominated by parties and politics in hospitality suites in three Raleigh motels.

Reagan supporters served liquor, campaign literature and snacks in the Hilton Inn. It was a popular watering hole and conversation was lively, though not always devoted to presidential politics.

Ford backers had no suite. One GOP official said that was because the President still has no opposition—officially.

Shaw served liquor in his suite in the Royal Villa and the party served such beverages in its hospitality room on the top floor of the downtown Holiday Inn, where most of the delegates were housed.

Aside from Ford's visit, gubernatorial politics drew the spotlight. Signs promoting candidates were plastered around Memorial Auditorium, where the meetings were held, and nearly everywhere else frequented by delegates.

David Flaherty, appointed human resources secretary by Holshouser, drew the largest crowds to his liquor-serving suit on the 18th floor of the Holiday Inn. His effort appeared the best funded and organized with abundant supporters.

On the same floor, Jake Alexander, appointed transportation secretary by Holshouser, served coffee in his suite which was well attended and sometimes packed.

A third Holshouser appointee, Revenue Secretary Howard Coble, served soft drinks in his "Coble for Governor" suite. It, too, was well attended and usually packed.

One floor above the Reagan suite at the Hilton, former Christian Action League head Coy Privette was serving punch and ham biscuits with populist talk of running for governor. Privette, a minister who was recently elected head of the Baptist State Convention, said religion wouldn't dictate his actions as governor.

On the other hand, Wallace McCall, 33, who had no suite, is seeking GOP gubernatorial nomination on a campaign of putting prayer and trust in government. He's running as "Reverend (sic) McCall," according to his literature.

Two new possible gubernatorial hopefuls popped up during the convention.

Thomas Bennett, outgoing GOP chairman, said he plans to announce by Jan. 15 whether he's able to gain enough support and money to make the race. He said he couldn't campaign actively or have a hospitality suite because his job as chairman required impartiality.

The name of John W. Thomas Jr. of High Point unexpectedly emerged Saturday. Thomas, who owns a school bus assembly plant, said friends are pushing his candidacy and "I'm going to leave it up to the folks who are promoting it."

For the most part, party officials said Ford's candidacy was aided by his visit to the state Friday. They said, though, it probably will be a close race if Reagan enters the primary, but—at this point—Ford would likely win.

whether the state recruits different "higher wage" industries to compete with textile mills and other labor intensive, low-wage industries. They still pay less than they would in other states.

His conclusion was that state policy is at least partly to blame, particularly insofar as it discourages unionization.

Malizia's report has never been released by the Holshouser administration, which paid taxpayers' money for it. (Copies are available, particularly if you know a union organizer with access to a photocopier.) It was not a scheduled topic of debate at the board meeting.

But it was discussed in the halls. Banker Luther Hodges Jr. acknowledged, in a talk with reporters, that there are still mill towns in North Carolina paying their workers barely enough to live on. There are businessmen who will resist the coming of a high-wage unionized industry.

But Hodges said that low wage rates in North Carolina are the inevitable result of industrial immaturity. As industry evolves and capital machines replace unskilled labor, wages will rise, he said. If they do not, then the mill owners will deserve the union that their workers will organize.

The Hodges argument is the accepted policy in estate government and has been for some time. Malizia's thesis, whether right or wrong, may provoke a fruitful discussion of its validity in the upcoming gubernatorial campaign.

payment for a highway contract, there is someone in Washington who will tell you in a friendly voice that "the check is in the mail." It wouldn't be so bad if it was a real person, but most government departments are now using taped recordings.

A recent Gallup Poll showed that more people in the United States say "The check is in the mail" than "Have a nice day."

It has become so much a part of our culture that it should become the national slogan replacing "In God We Trust." The American people have discovered that putting their trust in God is no assurance that anyone is going to get paid.

I want no prizes for my slogan. But if we adopt it officially I hope my father will get the credit in our history books as being the first American ever to use it. Little did he know in those dark days of the Depression that someday his words would be on the lips of every man, woman and college student in this country.

something is done about busing now. While reiterating opposition to busing, Jackson made clear the difficulties in passing legislative remedies.

Only one other major Democratic presidential contender could have carried on such an anti-busing discussion with Bulger: Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama. But Bulger, like other anti-busing Democratic politicians in the North, wants no part of Wallace and fears his campaign appeal in South Boston. Thus, if Bulger lends his prestige to any presidential candidate it surely would be Jackson.

Jackson's uniqueness as a respectable alternative to Wallace for conservative Democrats extends beyond busing to abortion, defense, detente and general attitudes about welfare, crime and permissiveness. Now Jackson plans to showcase his uniqueness for the first time since 1972.

This strategy is buttressed by a largely overlooked trend in the Nov. 4 municipal elections where candidates taking socially conservative positions ran surprisingly well among Democratic voters in Houston, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Minneapolis and even super-liberal San Francisco. Here is a conservative Democratic constituency waiting for a presidential candidate.

While laying claim to this constituency, Jackson may also correct a glaring defect of his campaign. Fearful of defeat, Jackson's lavishly financed, heavily staffed campaign organization intended to skip the early primaries until New York on April 6 — recalling Chiang Kai-shek's best Chinese divisions withheld from World War II combat to avoid casualties.

Now, however, emphasis is being put on a strong primary election run in anti-busing Massachusetts March 2, where liberal candidates could knock each other out. In a change of plans, Jackson may enter New Hampshire Feb. 24 (where Wallace will not enter and all the liberals will). Before that, Jackson will try mobilizing Iowa's conservative Democratic minority in precinct caucuses Jan. 19.

Whether Jackson is a good enough campaigner to travel this right-handed route to the nomination is doubtful. But by no longer masquerading as just another liberal, he again exposes the gap between the way most leaders of the Democratic party and much of its rank-and-file perceive the world.

No Charges In Sunday Wreck

No charges were reported following investigation of a 12:24 a.m. collision, Sunday on Fairfax Avenue a tenth of a mile West of the White Street intersection.

Police reported cars driven by Wayne Ray Taylor of 1106 Fairfax Ave. and Dwight Romeyo Clemons of Glendale Court were involved in the mishap which resulted in an estimated $150 damage to the Taylor car and $250 damage to the Clemons vehicle.

Break-In At Service Station

Greenville police are continuing their investigation today into an early morning break-in at the Etna Service Station at 210 West Tenth St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said thieves broke open a window to gain entrance to the building and reportedly took a chain saw valued at $200.

The break-in was reported at 12:19 a.m.

Card Sender Is Demo Candidates See Political Strife Concerned Over Future Postage

FRIEDA HERRMANN sends around 2,500 greeting cards every year, but now she's worried that higher postage will force her to trim her mailings. (AP Wirephoto)

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frieda Herrmann sends around 2,500 greeting cards every year, mostly to people she never met. But the 55-year-old restaurant organist (currently unemployed) is worried that inflation in the form of higher postage will force her to trim the mailings which now average seven cards daily. She's asked President Ford to do what he can "to keep the price of stamps reasonable."

"I'm sure you will do the right thing," she wrote the White House in a letter that hasn't yet been answered.

First class postage is scheduled to jump from its present dime to 13 cents after Christmas, and Miss Herrmann insists "it will be a hardship."

"Unemployment doesn't pay me enough," she says. "When the price goes up I'll have to cut my mailing list, which means some shut-ins won't be receiving a note every week and to some it's the only mail they receive."

Miss Herrmann, born in Trenton, N.J., is an only child who says the only known relative she has is a second cousin

"somewhere in California." Her family is the folks she sends cards to, all over the world.

"I have a lot of friends, and that is more important than family," she says. "You are stuck with your relatives, but friends you can pick."

And she keeps in touch, for birthdays, anniversaries, holidays.

"I love people, and I like to make them happy," she says.

Most of the names on Miss Herrmann's list she obtained when she worked during the past three decades as an organist in various clubs and restaurants, pounding out organ music during and after dinner. She's handed out cards to the patrons, asking for names, addresses, birth and wedding dates.

"If anyone mentions an ill relative I get the name and send a card," she says. "You never realize how much it means to receive cards when you are sick at home or in a hospital. It brings a little bit of joy into people's lives."

Strangers, or not, they love to be remembered.

"I received a letter recently from a woman in South Carolina about cards I had sent to her mother over the years," Miss Herrmann says. "She said her mother keeps all the cards in a box."

Sometimes, of course, there's sadness, like the letter from Wilmington, Del., expressing thanks for a card for a 41st anniversary.

"The woman wrote that her husband had died a month before the anniversary," Miss Herrmann says.

Accountants To Hold Meeting On Wednesday

The Eastern Carolina Chapter of the National Association of Accountants will hold its regular technical meeting on Wednesday at the Candlewick Inn.

Speaker for the meeting will be William C. Ferguson, partner with A. M. Pullen & Co., Certified Public Accountants of Greensboro. Ferguson will discuss "SEC Matters of Current Interest."

The speaker, a native of Kentucky, holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Austin Peay State University and Master of Science degree from the University of Tennessee. He has been in public accounting since 1959.

A social hour will begin at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m. and the meeting at 8 p.m.

4-H Horse Pony Club To Meet

The 4-H Horse-Pony Club will have its first meeting on Tuesday from 7-8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Diane Krage on Pitt County Road 1726, Box 288.

Mrs. Krage pointed out, "Response has been very enthusiastic from young horse owners, prospective owners and those taking instruction."

She said the "club looks forward to many enjoyable learning experiences which will ultimately lead to more skillful horsemanship and management, and to the development of qualities including responsibility and good sportsmanship."

Persons seeking more information about the meeting should contact Mrs. Krage at 752-2584, Mrs. Ilse Hendrix at 756-7941, or Mike Davis at 758-1196.

By The Associated Press
The political infighting among Democratic presidential candidates continues with former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona emerging as liberal favorites and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter beating Alabama Gov. George Wallace in a straw vote in Florida.

The first phase of the struggle within the party's liberal wing ended Sunday with Harris and Udall receiving the most favorable responses at the last of five regional conferences.

The two men received the most public applause and considerable private favorable reaction from 1,000 party activists representing seven Middle Atlantic states and the District of Columbia. Similar patterns had appeared at earlier sessions in Minneapolis, Springfield, Mass., Atlanta and Los Angeles.

Wallace supporters dismissed Carter's runaway victory in a straw vote at a state Democratic meeting in Florida as merely "something for Jimmy to talk about."

But Carter, who captured 67 per cent of the vote of state party leaders Sunday, is confident that it gives him the inside track in Florida's March 9 presidential preference primary.

Carter had 697 votes of the 1,035 total; Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp ran second with 60; Wallace had 57.

Staunch Wallace supporters immediately labeled the poll meaningless.

"It won't change the mind of the mechanic, the farmer, the worker — the Wallace supporters," said Norman Bie of Clearwater, co-chairman of Wallace's Florida campaign.

But Carter, 51, said the outcome shows people are "looking for a fresh face and new ideas and proven executive ability."

Wallace, meanwhile, said Sunday that as President he would push for a Constitutional amendment to stop forced integration of schools.

"I believe, as far as integration is concerned, we shouldn't have forced integration; we shouldn't have forced segregation," Wallace said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"We should have freedom of choice and if I were the President, I would recommend a freedom of choice amendment to the Constitution ... that lets people in Boston and Alabama choose what school they wanted to go to, whether they were black or white," said Wallace, who announced his candidacy last week.

In Washington, labor leader George Meany said Sunday he is not sure President Ford will still be a candidate for election to the presidency after next year's primary elections.

Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, would not elaborate, except to say during an appearance of ABC-TV's "Issue and Answers" that he is not convinced Ford will do well in the primaries.

On the other side of the political fence, Ronald Reagan, who is expected to formally announce this week that he will challenge Ford for the Republican nomination, said Sunday he would not be a third-party candidate if he fails to get his GOP bid.

Third parties "have a way of dividing people of like opinions," the former California governor said during an address Sunday to the International Sanitary Supply Association.

Communists OK 'Rights'

ROME (AP)—The Italian and French Communist parties, Western Europe's two largest Communist organizations, declared in a joint communique today that every country has the right to choose its own political and social system without foreign interference.

In what was billed as a major strategy statement for Western European communism, the two parties also pledged themselves to multiparty politics, the right to vote and "the guarantee and development of democratic institutions fully representative of popular sovereignty."

The joint communique was issued following two days of talks between Georges Marchais and Enrico Berlinguer, respectively leaders of the French and Italian Communist parties.

Calling themselves "the Communist parties of capitalist Europe," the two parties said in their statement they "hold that in relations among all states the right of all people to decide in sovereign manner their own political and social regimes must be guaranteed."

"They underlined therefore the necessity of fighting against the demand of American imperialism to insert itself in the life of people and pronounce themselves against all foreign interference."

District IA of the North Carolina Association of Senior Citizens recently held its executive meeting at the Elm St. Recreation Center.

By-laws were discussed and amendments were made.

Final plans were made for the District Christmas party, to be held at the American Legion Building Dec. 11.

Dates for the 1976 Fun Festival will be May 11-13 at the Ramada Inn in Nags Head.

Reports were given on the delegates Convention in Asheville last month. It was announced that District IA has 26 clubs with a membership of 1,333. District advisors attending were Mrs. Jo Story, Roanoke Rapids; Miss Linda Bolick, Tarboro; and Miss Alice Keene, Elm St. club advisor.

Head Hunting Grows Intense

CHICAGO (UPI) — An international executive search company says that demand for top personnel officers is rising among corporations, with promised salary levels also rising.

Frank R. Beaudine, president of Eastman & Beaudine, says the personnel executive must not only function within increasingly restrictive government regulations but must develop programs to "energize" the work force, including employees at all levels.

Sanford Suggests Full-Employment Is Prime Role

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Government should subordinate all other economic considerations to the goal of full employment, Democratic presidential aspirant Terry Sanford believes.

Sanford in recent days has developed the full employment goal as the major economic policy plank of his campaign. "If there is any tradeoff between forced unemployment and some other factor, we simply have to trade in favor of jobs," he said in a recent paper and interview.

"Full employment promotes human dignity and helps create a more civilized society. It will be a tremendous influence in solving some of our other problems, including drugs, crime, housing, welfare and discrimination."

The Duke University president and former North Carolina governor said providing jobs is the one cause for which he would tolerate federal budget deficits. Government, through state and local agencies, would be the guaranteed employer of last resort in a Sanford administration.

Sanford said Ford administration Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns and Secretary of the Treasury William Simon are fighting inflation improperly by squeezing people out of their jobs. He said the policy was both wrong and immoral.

"There is disturbing evidence that the present unemployment, with resulting record deficits, is breeding additional inflation," he said.

The cost of providing jobs for all who need them is impossible to estimate, Sanford said. "It would be relatively small, depending on the way the economy is managed."

His economic management plan includes several major changes from current policy, including White House control of the Federal Reserve Board, a ceiling on interest rates, standby presidential taxing power, and possibly price controls.

Sanford said he would take the control of money supply and interest rates away from the Federal Reserve's autonomous grasp and vest it in a White House council. He would limit interest rates so that the prime rate would never go above 6 per cent.

"High interest is inflationary and distorts savings and investment patterns to the detriment of full production. Lower interest rates will encourage capital formation," he said.

Instead of using high interest rates to control inflation, Sanford said he would ask for voluntary restraint by business and labor.

He would also ask Congress for the authority to temporarily raise or lower taxes by as much as 10 per cent to adjust for impending deficits or to stimulate the economy.

He said such authority would avoid lengthy debates in Congress over tax cuts and enable the taxing power to be used more precisely and effectively as an economic control.

Sanford said he did not like price controls but would ask for the right to impose them on basic commodities when inflation reached an unacceptable level.

He will be promoting his ideas in next month's "Valley Conference" on the economy, so-called to distinguish it from President Ford's summit conference.

Teens Slip In Writing Skills

DENVER (AP) — A study released today indicates American teen-agers are losing their ability to communicate clearly through written English.

Compared with students tested in 1970, students 13 and 17 years old tested last year wrote a greater number of incoherent paragraphs and wrote in a shorter, "primer-like" style, said a report from the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP).

But 9-year-olds tested in similar fashion wrote better in 1974 than their counterparts four years earlier, the NAEP said. Females wrote better essays than males at all three ages, the study found.

The NAEP is a project of the Education Commission of the States, an organization to which 45 states belong. Based in Denver, it conducts periodic tests in various subject fields to measure the relative skills of students from year to year. It is funded by the National Center for Education Statistics, a federal agency.

In a survey of writing skills taken first in 1970 and repeated in 1974, the NAEP tested 80,000 students in three age groups — 9-year-olds, 13-year-olds and 17-year-olds who were still in school. The test involved writing essays to answer questions.

The survey showed the writing of 17-year-olds declined in quality between the two assessments. The 1974 students showed an increase in awkwardness and run-on sentences and a tendency to write as they would speak, the report said.

Writing performance for the 13-year-olds also declined. On the average, the NAEP found the 1974 essays shorter, less sophisticated in expression and more awkwardly written than the 1970 essays.

Only the papers from the 9-year-olds showed an improvement, with the proportion of good writers rising in 1974, the report said.

Only a few 9-year-olds in either year wrote fully developed paragraphs, the report said. But 9-year-olds surveyed in 1974 attempted more complex sentences and appeared to be moving toward more sophisticated writing.

The NAEP offered no explanation for the decline in writing skills, but did offer some recommendations for them.

Neatness Doesn't Count If You Win

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Any football coach worth his whistle knows that the only place the game pays off is in the won-loss column. So what if it wasn't neat? It's whether you win or lose, not how you play the game that counts.

That's why Minnesota didn't worry about six fumbles, two interceptions and 50 yards in penalties. What counts is that the Vikings beat New Orleans 20-7 Sunday, extending their National Football League winning streak to nine consecutive games.

And St. Louis doesn't care that its tying touchdown with 20 seconds left against Washington needed a huddle by the officials before it was approved. Seven points is seven points, and that TD forced the overtime that saw the Cardinals kyo the Redskins 20-17 on Jim Bakken's 37-yard field goal. The game's nine turnovers? So what?

Neatness counts in the fourth grade but in the NFL, all that matters is putting more points on the scoreboard than the other guys.

Baltimore, for example, neatly demolished the New York Jets 52-19 for Sunday's one-sided award but Houston got the same effect, nipping Miami 20-19 on a touchdown by Ronnie Coleman with 71 seconds left.

Elsewhere, it was Pittsburgh 28, Kansas City 3; Los Angeles 16, Atlanta 7; Detroit 13, Green Bay 10; San Francisco 31, Chicago 3; Philadelphia 13, New York Giants 10; Dallas 34, New England 31; Oakland 38, Cleveland 17, and Denver 27, San Diego 17.

Buffalo plays at Cincinnati tonight, completing the NFL's ninth week of action.

Vikings 20, Saints 7
"We made an awful lot of mistakes," noticed Minnesota Coach Bud Grant. "I don't know why, I don't think it was the caliber of the opposition."

The 2-7 Saints didn't turn the ball over once but couldn't take advantage of Minnesota's sloppy play.

Despite his two interceptions, Fran Tarkenton pitched three touchdown passes to keep the Vikings' winning streak going.

Cardinals 20, Redskins 17
Jim Hart's second TD pass of the game to Mel Gray with 20 seconds left tied the game and then Bakken's sure foot won it after seven minutes of overtime for St. Louis. The victory moved the Cards into first place in the NFC East, one game ahead of Washington and Dallas.

Gray caught the tying TD at the goal line and then was stripped of the ball by cornerback Pat Fischer. At first, the play was ruled incomplete but after a lengthy huddle, the officials reversed themselves and allowed the touchdown.

Colts 52, Jets 19
Bert Jones hurled three touchdown passes including a club record 90-yarder to Roger Carr, leading Baltimore to its romp over New York. Jones passed for 277 yards before leaving the game with a rib injury.

Oilers 20, Dolphins 19
Coleman broke five tackles and went seven yards for Houston's winning TD against Miami.

Bubba Smith blocked two extra point attempts by the Dolphins' Gary Yepremian, setting the stage for Coleman's winning score.

Eagles 13, Giants 10
Beaten three times on field goals in the final seconds, Philadelphia turned the tables, knocking off the Giants on a 30-yarder by Horst Muhlmann with 28 seconds left to play.

The victory halted a five-game Eagle losing streak.

49ers 31, Bears 3
Del Williams ran for 106 yards and Steve Spurrier passed for 124 more as San Francisco whipped Chicago.

Williams became the first 49er back this season to gain more than 100 yards rushing and it marked the first time San Francisco has won two games in a row this year.

Lions 13, Packers 10
Errol Mann kicked a 23-yard field goal with 13 seconds left, giving Detroit its victory over Green Bay. Joe Reed's 48-yard pass to Ray Jarvis with 54 seconds left set up the winner.

Broncos 27, Chargers 17
Steve Ramsey passed for a pair of touchdowns as Denver extended winless San Diego's losing streak to nine games.

The Chargers came from behind, wiping out a 17-3 Bronco lead to tie the score. But then Denver staged a goalline stand, stopping San Diego one yard short of the TD that would have put the Chargers in front.

The Broncos won the game with 10 points in the final period. Jon Keyworth scored from the one and Jim Turner's 46-yard field goal capped the victory.

Cincinnati Defense Will Put On A Show For O.J., Bills

CINCINNATI (AP) — On the surface it would appear the busiest man in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium for tonight's Cincinnati-Buffalo National Football League matchup might be the scoreboard operator.

But several members of the Bengals' defensive unit beg to differ.

"I don't think there will be that much scoring," says Ron Carpenter, one of the keystones in the Bengals' front four.

"I think the whole game will be a defensive struggle," adds defensive end Sherman White.

Getting O.J. Simpson and Joe Ferguson of Buffalo and Ken Anderson of Cincinnati to stand still for it may be another matter.

But Cincinnati's defense feels it has taken a back seat to the offense for too long now, and Carpenter and Co. see the nationally televised contest as a forum to gain some overdue recognition.

"We realize the other guys in the league will be looking at us on national television, so it will give us extra incentive," says Carpenter, whose performance this season is a big reason the Bengals haven't missed All-Pro tackle Mike Reid, who retired in May.

"The hat will be on us — the defense," says Carpenter.

The Bills and Bengals represent two of the most explosive teams in the NFL. Simpson is working on his second 1,000 yards of the season, and Ferguson is the NFL's leading passer — with Anderson in hot pursuit.

Cincinnati is making its first appearance this season on Monday night TV, hopeful of proving its 7-1 record is no fluke.

The Bills are the highest scoring team in the NFL, averaging almost 32 points per game. Ferguson has tossed a league-leading 17 touchdown passes and Simpson tops the NFL in rushing and scoring.

But Buffalo has had its problems stopping the opposition, evidenced by last Sunday's debacle when Baltimore erased a forum to gain some overdue recognition.

"The hat will be on us — the defense," says Carpenter.

21-0 Bills lead and roared back to win 42-35.

"Cincinnati is hardly the team you choose to play when you're having defensive troubles," said Buffalo Coach Lou Saban, "particularly in the secondary."

Hawks Peck Out A 97-96 Victory

By The Associated Press
The Atlanta Hawks had a game in their pockets and almost threw it away.

Luckily for them, the New York Knicks threw it away first — the ball, that is.

The Knicks wiped out most of a mammoth 17-point deficit in the final seven minutes Sunday night and had the chance to win, but blew three easy close shots in the last two seconds.

As a result, the Hawks escaped with a nerve-jabbing 97-96 National Basketball Association victory.

"The play went the way we planned ... the shot just didn't drop," said Knick Coach Red Holtzman.

Shots by John Gianelli and Phil Jackson hung tantalizingly on the rim, then dropped off to kill the undaunted Knicks once and for all.

"They had three shots and I still can't figure out how the ball didn't go in," said Atlanta's Connie Hawkins. "But it should have never been that close."

In the other NBA games, the Los Angeles Lakers smashed the Chicago Bulls 110-93 and the Seattle SuperSonics trimmed the Golden State Warriors 102-98. In the only American Basketball Association game, the Indiana Pacers turned back the Spirits of St. Louis 136-114.

Lou Hudson's 21 points led six Hawks in double figures as Atlanta led by more than 10 points most of the game, stretching it to 88-71 with 7:20 remaining. Then Spencer Haywood, who finished with 24 points, led the Knicks' comeback, narrowing the margin to 95-94 on a three-point play.

Atlanta's Tom Henderson, who had 12 points for the night, hit two free throws with 17 seconds left, but Haywood's 25-footer quickly made it 97-96. After a time out, Henderson was tied up by Haywood as he tried to get the ball over the 10-second line. Haywood got the tip, and New York called time out with two seconds left, setting up the drama of the last two seconds.

Lakers 110, Bulls 93
Lucius Allen scored 28 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar pulling down 15 rebounds and blocked eight shots to lead Los Angeles over Chicago. Allen made 12 of his 15 field goal attempts and Gail Goodrich pitched in 21 points in the balanced Los Angeles attack.

SuperSonics 102, Warriors 98
Fred Brown scored 30 points as Seattle snapped Golden State's six-game winning streak. The Sonics trailed 81-78 with about nine minutes to go in the fourth quarter. But paced by the shooting of Brown and the overall hustle of reserve guard Herm Gilliam, the Sonics outscored the Warriors 19-3 in a five-minute span.

Pacers 136, Spirits 114
Billy Knight led a balanced Indiana scoring attack with 23 points and sparked a third-quarter barrage in the Pacers' rout of St. Louis.

Wrestlers Win Monarch Open

East Carolina's wrestling team notched its second tournament victory of the season Saturday as the Pirate grapplers smothered all competition to win the Monarch Open held at Old Dominion University.

The Pirates amassed 127 points to easily out distance Southern Conference foe William and Mary, who finished in second place with 83 points.

Pembroke State University was third with 49 points, followed by Old Dominion 33½, George Mason 31½, the East Carolina "B" team 23½, Richmond 21, William and Mary "B" team 19 and VMI 15 points.

The Pirates had five individual champions as well as three runnerup finishes.

Paul Ketcham, Clay Scott, Tom Marriott, Ron Whitcomb and Mike Radford all captured first place in their respective weight classes, while James Kirby, Phil Mueller and John Williams took second place finishes.

Ketcham decisioned teammate James Kirby 8-3 to win the 126 pound weight class. Clay Scott defeated Pat Icula of Old Dominion in the finals of the 142 pound class, while Marriott edged Max Lorenzo of William and Mary 6-5 to win the 150 pound class. Ron Whitcomb stopped Scott Moyer of Old Dominion to win at 177, while Mike Radford took an 8-3 decision over Bill Vizzi of VMI to win the 190 pound class.

East Carolina assistant coach Mike Waller wrestling untouchable and defeated Phil Mueller of East Carolina 8-4 to take the title at 167. Roger Burns of East Carolina placed fourth at 167. John Fray of Pembroke State University upended the Pirates' John Williams to win the heavyweight title.

Paul Osman took third place at 134, while Jud Larrimore also notched a third place finish in the 190 pound class.

"Our three top senior wrestlers, Tom Marriott, Ron Whitcomb and Mike Radford all turned in superb performances," noted East Carolina wrestling coach John Welborn. "I was very pleased to see Paul Ketcham and Clay Scott wrestle so well because we're really expecting big things out of them this year. Paul Osman and Jud Larrimore also wrestled well for us."

East Carolina swings back into action next Friday and Saturday when the Pirates travel to Chapel Hill, N.C., to participate in the Carolina Invitational Tournament.

Smith Wants Best Team, Not Just Best Players

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Dean Smith, who will coach the 1976 U.S. Olympic basketball team, says he doesn't necessarily want the 12 best players available for the Olympics he wants the best team he can bring together.

Smith said Saturday night after his University of North Carolina Tar Heels defeated the Russian national team, 82-78. It was the fourth defeat the Russians have suffered in eight tries against American college teams on their current tour.

Smith blames the Russian defeat of the Americans at Munich in the 1972 Olympics on the way American teams are selected.

"Cohesiveness plays a major part," he said. "On our team, each of the guys knows the role he's supposed to play. On an all-star team, each of the guys is used to having the ball. You take a player like Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame. He's a great player. But I don't think he could fit in as the tenth man on an Olympic team."

Smith explained that he didn't think Dantley would be just the tenth man on an Olympic squad. "I use him as an example because he's a first team All-American.

"But I do think we might be better off if we look at the personalities and styles of the players during the tryouts and try to get the players who will fit into the system and some who will be strong substitutes," he added. "We might not want to take the 12 best players."

Tommy LaGarde of the Tar Heel team played forward on the U.S. team which lost twice to the Russians last summer. "In our international games," he said, "we had camaraderie, but we didn't have that natural feel for each other.

"Tonight, the big difference was playing in front of our fans on our home court," LaGarde added. "But we were playing with team mates. We all share the same philosophy." Smith and LaGarde agreed that theoretically the U.S. might fare better if it sent the NCAA champs to the Olympics, "or perhaps you could take the top six players off the two finalists."

Smith noted that the U.S. is wedded to a national tryout and he will be one of 12 members on a selection committee. Those selected will have about a month to practice before the Olympics.

"I hope that's long enough," he said. "Keep in mind we'll be playing a much more inspired Russian team on a neutral court this time. They're a better team now than they were in 1972."

Southern Teams Went Begging On Saturday

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Just when Southern Conference football teams were beginning to throw out their chests and brag, five went against outside opposition and drew back a nub.

Only The Citadel came up with a victory in Saturday's action, and the Bulldogs' triumph was by 13-9 over Furman's Paladins in the day's only matchup of conference teams.

With the victory, the Bulldogs—6-4 over-all—assured themselves their first winning season since 1971 and gave the league its third team certain to be over the 500 mark.

Appalachian State's Mountaineers are 7-3, even though were they were 20-11 upset victims of Western Carolina, and East Carolina's Pirates—who had the weekend off—also are 7-3.

Two other teams have shots at winning campaigns with 5-5 records. They are Furman and Richmond's league champion Spiders, who dropped their fifth in a row outside the league when they fell to West Virginia 31-14.

The other losers were Virginia Military's Keydets, 2-7, beaten 33-0 by Virginia Tech; William and Mary's Indians, 1-9, who bowed to Colgate 21-17; and Davidson's Wildcats, 1-7, who dropped a 31-3 decision to Lafayette.

"No one knows what this game means to me or our team. We wanted it so badly," said Coach Bobby Ross of The Citadel. "It means so much to be a winner. I'm so proud of this team and the courage they've shown all season long."

The Bulldogs won it with their third-string quarterback, junior Joe Sumrall, going all the way because of injuries to Gene Dotson and Rod Lanning. Sumrall ran a yard for one score and freshman Alvin Perkins 54 yards for the other, giving The Citadel a 13-0 lead.

"The long touchdown run took a lot of steam out of us, but at the half, I still thought we would come back and win," said Furman Coach Art Baker.

But the Paladins, with starting quarterback David Whitehurst hurt in the first half, could only make it close behind freshman Jimmy Kiser, who ran three yards for Furman's lone touchdown.

"I was pleased with Kiser, but any time you lose your No. 1 quarterback, you've lost a lot," said Baker. As for Ross, he said "what can you say about Joe Sumrall, except that he did a super job."

Western Carolina halfback Herb Cole, who ran 23 times for 128 yards, scored twice in the final period as the Catamounts overcame an 11-7 deficit. Appalachian had built the lead on a safety, Emmitt Hamilton's four-yard run and Gar Davis' 37-yard field goal.

But Western Carolina, 3-7, moved 80 yards for one touchdown and set up the other with a pass interception. Mountaineer quarterback Robbie Price, the league's total offense leader, had 128 yards before he was ejected in the final period for fighting.

Joe Duncan's 40-yard field goal gave Davidson a 3-0 lead in the first period, but Lafayette rallied behind tailback Greg De Santy, who ran for 143 yards and three touchdowns.

Alabama Headed To Sugar Bowl Showdown With Penn St.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

As usual, Alabama is in the forefront of the postseason bowl spotlight. And as a result of the Crimson Tide's decision to play in the Sugar Bowl against Penn State, either Nebraska or Oklahoma will be shut out of the five major bowls.

The surprising beneficiary of all the weekend's wheeling and dealing, which saw 20 of the 22 major berths unexpectedly filled, could be the newest of them all, the five-year-old Fiesta Bowl, which might have a Top Ten match-up of unbeaten and eighth-ranked Arizona State — provided the Sun Devils defeat Arizona for the Western Athletic Conference title — against the loser of Saturday's Big Eight Conference showdown between second-ranked Nebraska and No. 6 Oklahoma.

The Alabama-Penn State Sugar Bowl pairing was reported by The Associated Press Sunday night and was to be officially announced in New Orleans at 1 p.m., EST, today.

With one game left for both teams, fifth-ranked Alabama has a 9-1 record following a 27-6 triumph over Southern Mississippi, to 8-2 for 11th-ranked Penn State, idle over the weekend.

The only vacant bowl berths are one in the Tangerine Bowl against 16th-ranked Miami of Ohio and another in the Peach Bowl against North Carolina State. With some pairings still to be announced officially, The AP has come up with the following bowl line-up:

—Rose Bowl: Big Ten champion (Ohio State or Michigan) vs. Pacific-8 champion (UCLA, California or Stanford).

—Orange Bowl: Nebraska-Oklahoma winner vs. Ohio State-Michigan loser.

—Sugar Bowl: Alabama vs. Penn State.

—Cotton Bowl: Southwest Conference champion (Texas A&M, Texas or Arkansas) vs. Georgia.

—Gator Bowl: Florida vs. Maryland.

—Liberty Bowl: Southern California vs. Arkansas, if the Razorbacks don't win the Southwest Conference title and thereby go to the Cotton Bowl, or Texas A&M.

—Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl: Colorado vs. Texas A&M or Texas.

—Fiesta Bowl: Western Athletic Conference champion (Arizona State or Arizona) vs. Nebraska-Oklahoma loser.

—Sun Bowl: Pitt vs. Kansas-Missouri winner.

—Tangerine Bowl: Miami of Ohio vs. opponent to be selected.

—Peach Bowl: North Carolina State vs. opponent to be selected.

The rash of bowl invitations and the cries from the powerful Big Eight Conference that Alabama is ducking a match with a Big Eight opponent overshadowed a weekend in which nine of the Top Ten teams posted victories while the other, ninth-ranked Notre Dame, dropped out of the bowl picture by losing to Pitt 34-20 as Tony Dorsett romped for 303 yards and scored twice.

After Saturday's 52-0 rout of Iowa State, Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne told Sugar Bowl executive secretary John Barr, "Tell that son of a buck (Bear Bryant) not to duck us."

Osborne was alluding to oft-repeated charges that Bryant, who hasn't won in his last eight bowl trips, decides where he wants Alabama to play and also hand-picks the opponent. Bryant has repeatedly said he wanted to play in the first Sugar Bowl in New Orleans' new Superdome, but also said he would rather play for the national championship.

It would take a far-fetched, unlikely series of developments for Alabama to win the national championship by defeating Penn State.

Big Eight Commissioner Charles M. Neinas, confirming the Sugar Bowl had rejected the Nebraska-Oklahoma loser, said, "The only explanation I received was 'local considerations.' I asked for a further explanation and I didn't get one."

Asked why the Sugar Bowl invited Penn State rather than the Nebraska-Oklahoma loser, Clifford H. Kern Jr., president of the sponsoring New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association, said, "If I answer that question I'll be confirming something I don't want to confirm."

In Tuscaloosa, Ala., assistant athletic director Charley Thornton confirmed Alabama had received a bid to the Sugar Bowl, adding: "It's no secret we'd rather go to the Sugar Bowl this year, but it's not true we ducked the Orange Bowl. We never told the Orange Bowl we wouldn't go there. The Orange Bowl passed us by."

Nick Crane, chairman of the Orange Bowl's team selection committee, said Alabama wasn't invited "because both Big Ten teams (Ohio State and Michigan) are ranked higher than Alabama and our tradition is to take the highest-rated teams on the pick 'em date."

On the field, No. 1-ranked Ohio State pounded Minnesota 38-6 and fourth-rated Michigan downed Illinois 21-15, setting up next week's annual showdown.

Nebraska thought it might be to make the Orange Bowl before its meeting with Oklahoma but the Sooners, after blowing a 20-0 halftime lead, rallied to nip No. 18 Missouri 28-27 on Joe Washington's 71-yard fourth-down touchdown dash and two-point conversion run with 4:20 remaining.

Bowl will be decided Nov. 29 when Arizona State, which routed Pacific 55-14, meets No. 12 Arizona, which trimmed Colorado State 31-9. Tenth-ranked Colorado shaded No. 17 Kansas 24-21.

Southern Cal, ranked 13th, lost its third in a row since Coach John McKay announced he was leaving for the pros at the end of the season, bowing to Washington 8-7 on Greg Martin's fourth-quarter 12-yard touchdown run.

No. 19 UCLA remained in the Pacific-8 driver's seat by whipping Oregon State 31-9 as John Sciarras passed for 247 yards. UCLA can clinch the Pac-8 crown by defeating Southern Cal on Nov. 28. No. 15 California, a 31-14 nonleague winner over Air Force, and Stanford, which outlasted Oregon 33-30, also are in the running but next week's loser will be eliminated.

Florida, No. 14, walloped Kentucky 48-7. Miami of Ohio, ranked No. 16, set a record with its 16th consecutive Mid-American Conference triumph, a 27-8 whipping of Kent State. No. 20 Georgia beat Auburn 28-13.

North Carolina State, trailing Duke 21-7 after three periods, rallied to salvage a 21-21 standoff, enough to earn a bid to the Peach Bowl. Maryland virtually nailed down the Atlantic Coast Conference title by defeating Clemson 22-20 on Mike Sochko's 29-yard field goal with eight seconds remaining.

Sullivan's Receivers Drop Two Possible Touchdowns

ATLANTA (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams escaped Atlanta with a 16-7 National Football League victory Sunday as the frustrated Falcons continued their backward slide with a severe case of the drops.

Atlanta quarterback Pat Sullivan, making his first start in 20 contests, threw for the lone Falcon touchdown and had two other sure TD's dropped by wide open receivers Haskel Stanback and Alfred Jenkins.

"They were worth exactly 14 points," said Rams strong safety Dave Elmendorf of the drops. "They were right to them and they just dropped them. We were fortunate. It definitely changed the complexion of the game."

The first opportunity came in the second period of a scoreless contest when Stanback dropped a pass at the Los Angeles 11 which should have been a 55-yard touchdown. Then on Atlanta's next possession, Jenkins dropped a 47-yard bomb at the goal line.

"It was a perfect pass," said Stanback. "I just dropped it. We blew it today."

around. He puts ice on the knee before and after practice. But he's a talent, no doubt about it. He can be great. He's further ahead right now than most seven-footers. (Tommy) Burleson, for example."

Brickles has changed his offense this year, going to a passing type offense. "Most of the time, we don't want the ball to go on the floor. Of course, there are going to be times when a dribble or two will help. Only right now, we're still not sure where we're going. Once we get straight, I think we'll be a team."

"Defensively, we plan to run a pressure type system, but we still are going to have to protect our big men on fouls."

Last year, the 'Cats couldn't get to the boards many times and this helped to kill them. "I think we can get the rebounds this year," Brickles said. "If we can, then we will do some running."

"We may be able to put a big lineup on the floor at times, with both Rixey and Dore out there. We're really small without them," Brickles added.

What happens, however, will largely depend on how quickly the young players come around. One thing is sure, the 'Cats will be tested early. They face the two top favorites, Richmond and East Carolina in their first five games.

Maryland Picked By Writers

GREENSBORO (AP) — A vote of Atlantic Coast Sports Writers has picked Maryland as the best bet to win the 1975-76 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race.

The sports writers and broadcasters voted Sunday as part of the 14th annual Operation Basketball.

The writers picked defending conference champion the University of North Carolina to finish in the second place conference berth.

North Carolina State was chosen to finish third, Wake Forest, fourth; Virginia, fifth; Clemson, sixth, and Duke, seventh, according to Skeeter Francis, ACC service bureau director.

Francis said Maryland and North Carolina got all of the first place votes. Maryland got 50 votes to UNC's 34, and the two teams also received all but one of the second place votes. Maryland received 34 and UNC got 49, with N.C. State getting the other second place vote.

Davidson Is Expected To Be A Lot Stronger

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

DAVIDSON — Last year, starting his first year as the head basketball coach at Davidson College, Bo Brickles thought he might have another team in the tradition of the Wildcats—one that would battle for the Southern Conference championship.

Yet it was all the Wildcats could do to remain out of the cellar in the league with a disappointing 4-7 league record and just a 7-19 overall mark.

So this spring Brickles went out and recruited hard. That may have paid off for him, as this year's Davidson edition is expected to be much stronger—and could even become a conference contender.

For certain, Brickles has the league's biggest man in 7-2 freshman Tom Dore. How quickly Dore becomes a college caliber player is one of the team's biggest question marks.

"I really don't know a lot about this team after three weeks," Brickles moaned. "We've had some injuries that have hurt some key people."

The biggest surprise has been the play of Eppa Rixey, 6-9 senior center. "He's 20 pounds heavier and he's really worked hard this year. He's heard for years how Davidson needs a big man, and this has put a lot of pressure on him."

"This year we have a lot of young players, and they are looking up to Eppa. They think he can do the job inside for us, and he's thinking better because of it."

Another big surprise has been the play of Marvin Lively, a 6-4 swing man. "Last year he was the 13th man on our team—and that's saying something the way we played. But this year, he's a different person. He's sounder defensively and the most consistent player we've had so far.

The other upper classmen, Tom Verlin, 6-3 swing man, has been sick; Kevin Doherty, a 6-3 guard, has a sprained ankle; and Jay Powell, a 6-1 guard, has been suspended from school. He'll return on Nov. 25, however.

Not having Powell, however, has given Brickles more of a chance to look at his younger players. Jim Rice, a 6-5 forward, started in one scrimmage game. "He's not a great talent, but he's sound and is an excellent defender and an excellent passer."

John Gerdy, a 6-4 swing man, is an excellent shooter, hitting 15 of 22 for 30 points against the Athletes in Action. "In high school, he worked with the ball, but we're going to see what he can do without it. We want to make him more than a shooter."

Tom Jorgenson, a 6-0 guard, again is listed by Brickles as no great talent, but a winner. "He has great knowledge of the game and is a leader and a competitor."

Pat Hickert, a 6-7 forward, is the type player who should start, but can't. "He's very nervous, and we need to keep him on the bench, then turn him loose. He has super hands and is an excellent shooter."

Finally, there is Dore, the 7-2 giant. "He's been a little slow. He had knee surgery during the summer and is just coming around. He puts ice on the knee before and after practice. But he's a talent, no doubt about it. He can be great. He's further ahead right now than most seven-footers. (Tommy) Burleson, for example."

Brickles has changed his offense this year, going to a passing type offense. "Most of the time, we don't want the ball to go on the floor. Of course, there are going to be times when a dribble or two will help. Only right now, we're still not sure where we're going. Once we get straight, I think we'll be a team."

"Defensively, we plan to run a pressure type system, but we still are going to have to protect our big men on fouls."

Last year, the 'Cats couldn't get to the boards many times and this helped to kill them. "I think we can get the rebounds this year," Brickles said. "If we can, then we will do some running."

"We may be able to put a big lineup on the floor at times, with both Rixey and Dore out there. We're really small without them," Brickles added.

What happens, however, will largely depend on how quickly the young players come around. One thing is sure, the 'Cats will be tested early. They face the two top favorites, Richmond and East Carolina in their first five games.

Joe Duncan's 40-yard field goal gave Davidson a 3-0 lead in the first period, but Lafayette rallied behind tailback Greg De Santy, who ran for 143 yards and three touchdowns.

Sara Jane's Lawyer May Ask Delay If She's Held Competent

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sara Jane Moore's attorney says he will probably seek a trial delay if she is ruled mentally competent to face charges of attempting to assassinate President Ford.

Miss Moore, 45, returns to court today to hear a judge's ruling on the competence issue. She is charged with attempting to kill Ford by firing a pistol at him as he walked from a hotel in downtown San Francisco on Sept. 22.

Even if judged incompetent to stand trial now, Miss Moore may eventually be brought to trial, said her attorney, James Hewitt, the chief U.S. public defender here.

Hewitt said charges against a person held to be incompetent are considered to be pending while the defendant undergoes treatment. How long the charges can be held in abeyance is unclear, he said.

Hewitt said if U.S. District Court Judge Samuel Conti finds Miss Moore incompetent, the next step would be to decide the circumstances of commitment, including periodic review of her mental state.

Hewitt said that even if Miss Moore is found competent, he probably would seek to delay her scheduled Dec. 15 trial date because of a recent appellate court ruling that opened the door to such a delay.

The U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled on Wednesday that Conti and other federal judges need not include time spent in psychiatric examinations as part of the 90-day requirement of the new federal Speedy Trial Act. Miss Moore underwent about 50 days of testing at a federal facility in San Diego.

The law, which went into effect a week after the assassination attempt, requires that a federal prisoner be brought to trial or freed from custody within 90 days of arraignment. It makes no mention of time spent in determining mental competence.

With that in mind, Conti set the early trial date. The appeals court said that despite Hewitt's objections, the judge had not abused his discretion — but it did loosen up the 90-day provision to allow for a delay in Miss Moore's trial of seven or more weeks.

The ruling also bears on the trial of Patricia Hearst, awaiting trial here on federal bank robbery charges. Miss Hearst has been ruled competent to stand trial and a Dec. 15 trial date has been set, but she underwent 51 days of psychiatric testing after her arrest on Sept. 18. Prosecutors and her defense lawyers were to meet with the judge in the Hearst case this afternoon to determine the effect of the appellate court ruling on her trial.

Miss Moore, a plump divorcee who had served the FBI and other federal agencies as an informer, allegedly fired the shot from a new revolver as Ford departed the Hotel St. Francis after addressing a luncheon. She had bought the gun just hours before from a collector she had been informing about to federal firearms agents.

It was the second attempt on Ford's life in 17 days. On Sept. 5, Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme pointed a loaded automatic at Ford in Sacramento.

The trial of Miss Fromme, a follower of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson, is nearing its final stages in Sacramento.

Suggest Downdraft Caused Jet's Crash

RALEIGH (AP)—The possibility that a sudden downdraft caused last week's crash of an Eastern Airlines 727 jet at the Raleigh-Durham Airport was raised Saturday.

Richard Rodriguez, in charge of a nine-man National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) team investigating the crash, said in an interview. "The pilot has described the downdraft sensation."

"I wouldn't say necessarily he was caught in a downdraft," Rodriguez said. "We're looking into it."

The plane came down short of the runway Wednesday night during a heavy rain. None of the 137 persons aboard was hurt seriously. The disabled aircraft was taken apart Thursday and Friday and moved to a runway which is currently not in use for further inspection.

Rodriguez said the investigating team will probably conclude its "field investigation" Sunday. He said, however, that no conclusions would be reached until all other portions of the investigation have been completed and the NTSB's five-member panel in Washington has reviewed the case—a process that may take months.

The chief investigator said the pilot's statement about the possibility of a downdraft hit the plane is inconclusive because the pilot could have had such a sensation without a downdraft actually occurring.

"It's a human quality to suffer illusions," Rodriguez said.

Meanwhile a Raleigh pilot who witnessed the crash, John T. Hoffman said he believes the plane was caught in a downdraft. He said the pilot obviously added thrust to the jet's engines when he realized the plane was coming down short of the runway.

Lunar Eclipse

CHARLOTTE (AP) — If the weather cooperates, residents of North and South Carolina will be able to view a full eclipse of the moon Tuesday.

The moon will already be in a full eclipse when it rises in the east at 5:13 p.m. Charlotte time. It will rise about five minutes earlier on the coast and about five minutes later in far western points of the two states.

The moon will have already passed into the darkest portion of the earth's shadow when it rises, according to Charlotte Nature Museum planetarium curator Jim Seebach.

The total eclipse will last until 5:44 p.m., at which time the moon will begin to become visible. The eclipse will be over by 8:21 p.m.

Seebach says the moon will rise in the east, and will have a dark orange red color when it becomes visible. The color will be caused by the refraction of the sun's rays as they bend around the earth, and by local smog and haze.

Wide Gyration Of Food Prices Is Anticipated For Many Years

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although food prices have slowed from their rapid climb of the past two years, consumers can expect them to gyrate widely for many years because of weather and Soviet Union grain imports, an Agriculture Department economist said today.

"The events of the last few years emphasize what we have tended to forget, that a major source of price instability is natural disaster — droughts, floods, too much rain, early frosts, insects and diseases," said Kenneth R. Farrell, deputy administrator of USDA's economic research service.

Retail food prices, which rose 4.5 per cent in 1972, soared 14.5 per cent in each of the following two years.

Department experts, including Farrell today, said those will average about 9 per cent for all of 1975 and slow down further to an annual rate of 4 to 5 per cent in the first half of next year.

"Food-price instability will be 'one of the major characteristics of the next decade' and much of the roller-caster effect will be 'tied to weather, both here and abroad,'" Farrell said in remarks prepared for USDA's annual National Agricultural Outlook Conference.

Club To Set '76 Calendar

The North Winterville Community Club, Inc., will meet tomorrow night to discuss plans for the 1976 calendar year.

The newly incorporated, nonprofit club currently meets weekly to address problems in the community such as racial issues, drug problems and school situations. Plans include joining the Pitt County Council on Aging to aid senior citizens.

Willie Elbert, president of the club, asks North Winterville residents to support the club and become members.

Candidate For Lt. Gov. Finds Voters Restless

Democratic lieutenant governor candidate, Waverly Akins, said here today that in campaigning to various sections of the state, he has found voters to be "confused, restless and quietly mistrustful of politics and politicians."

Speaking at the 12:30 p.m. session of the University-City Kiwanis Club, Akins said that rather than people telling him what to do, they are asking him questions about things that concern them.

"By asking these questions," the speaker noted, "much of the voting public is pointing an accusing finger at state government."

Akins said that, "As far as these people can tell, state government is not fulfilling its solemn obligation to serve and help society. This past legislature can say its main accomplishments are reenacting the 'right on red' law and frittering away precious months on a futile attempt to pass the ERA."

He asserted, "The people remember this inactivity. They are disturbed by it. And, I feel, their memories will be fresh and alive when they walk to the polls in 1976."

Akins told the Kiwanis gathering he feels that a candidate's political background and experience may be more of a liability than an asset. He added, "For instance, it may not do a candidate any good to say he will be a fine officeholder because he served in the state Senate or House."

The candidate, who served as chairman of the Wake County Board of Commissioners, said that "people are now weeding the type of government leadership that will assist people in helping themselves."

He cited a need for "reasoned leadership" that is "sensitive to the aspirations and needs of those who are intended to be the masters of our political system—the people."

Akins also appeared this morning at a 7:45 a.m. press conference at the Ramada Inn.

Post Office Said Unfair

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A group of Charlotte postal workers charged Sunday that "threats, intimidation, and unfair treatment" characterize the treatment of workers by supervisors in the Charlotte post office.

The employees said they held a meeting Sunday because they were informed Friday that an evaluation team from the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) would visit the Charlotte post office today.

The group, which calls itself "Concerned Postal Employees" said it would complain to EEOC about treatment of minority workers, mainly at the Charlotte post office's general mail facility.

The group charged that minority employees, especially blacks, are given menial jobs beneath their skills and that foremen and supervisors at the facility intimidate employees by threats and use of profanity.

Charlotte postmaster O.B. Sloan said Sunday he was not aware of any of the workers' grievances, and added, "We'd be more than happy for anybody to look at our EEOC practices."

Sloan said today's visit by the EEOC evaluation team is a routine one.

Arrested Seven In Drug Raids

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Onslow County narcotics agents have reported that seven men were arrested on felony drug charges and more than $40,000 worth of illegal drugs were seized in raids Friday night and Saturday.

In a raid early Saturday officers seized 50 pounds of marijuana, more than half a pound of cocaine, a quantity of powdered LSD and several types of pills.

Farrell said that supermarkets began switching from trading stamps and related selling techniques to price competition in the early 1970s. He said that the shift led to the A&P food chain's "WEO" in 1972 "without which average food prices would have risen another one-half per cent" in that year.

"That emphasis on price competition was largely overridden by the sharp price increases of 1973 and 1974, but it is now back with renewed vigor," Farrell said.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Variable cloudiness Wednesday through Thursday with a chance of showers Thursday night and Friday. Temperatures in the 50s and 60s during period.

"'76" IS COMING!

Other officers of the club are: Mrs. Nina Blount, Calvin Henderson, John Patrick, Jr., Charlie Patrick and William Elbert, Jr.

...It's a Bicentennial book like no other! An entertaining, fact-packed trip back to 1776.

"'76," produced by The Associated Press, tells about the rascals, the blunders, the unsung heroes, the mischief, and the life of the man in the street in America and Europe during that "turning point" year. It's a backstage of history your teacher never told you about.

It is a book about Washington—not the national monument—but the man. About Beaumarchais, the implausible Frenchman who kept the Revolution going when he wasn't writing "The Marriage of Figaro." About John Adams, the Puritan's Puritan, and his cousin, Sam. About the Declaration of Independence and what Ben Franklin whispered to Jefferson.

About America's last King, really not a bad chap. It is a book about 1776 in England as well as America, filled with the raucous life of the city streets, the hilarious hardships of the traveler, the bawdy goings-on of the English manor and the American frontier.

All narrated in lively style and illustrated with hundreds of rare color and black and white pictures.

For a vibrant, vivid voyage to the year it all began, order your copy of "'76" today and celebrate Independence for only $7.95. With this attractive, 300-page book you will receive a large full color wall map of colonial America.

Caught At Scene Of A Break-In Consider Arson In Raleigh Fire

Oscar Lee Wilkes of 510 West 12th St. was arrested by Greenville Police early today on charges of breaking, entering and larceny after he allegedly broke a display window at Harmony House South at 1127 Evans St. and took $300 worth of stereo equipment.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Wilkes was taken into custody about 12:09 a.m. by officers checking buildings along Evans Street.

He said officers heard glass breaking and upon investigating, found Wilkes removing the stereo component equipment from the building.

RALEIGH (AP)—The possibility of burglary or arson in a fire that gutted the second floor of a building in downtown Raleigh early Sunday is being investigated by Raleigh police.

Detective W.E. Ausley said the safe in the Troutman College of Hair Styling, which was extensively damaged by the blaze, was found open. He said this prompted the investigation into the possibility of burglary or arson.

No estimate of the loss was immediately available. There were no injuries.

For 3 Hours, George Peppard Plans Thirty More Novels Reives Sam Sheppard's Story

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — George Peppard, the star and chief neurosurgeon of NBC's "Doctors' Hospital," plays a different kind of medicine man tonight in NBC's "Guilty or Innocent: The Sam Sheppard Murder Case."

He portrays Sheppard, the Ohio osteopath whose famous trial and conviction for the murder of his pregnant wife in 1954 led to a landmark U.S. Supreme Court ruling that "virulent publicity" had denied him a fair trial.

In throwing out the conviction, the high court in 1966 placed the responsibility for preventing "trial by newspaper" on public officials, not the press, and put most of the blame for what it called the "carnival atmosphere" of Sheppard's trial on the presiding judge.

Sheppard, who died in 1970 at age 46, claimed during both the trial and his nine years in prison that he was innocent. A Cleveland jury agreed and acquitted him at his second trial in October 1966.

His case and how it affected his life made for absorbing drama, but tonight's three-hour dramatization is anything but that.

It follows Sheppard's account of the summer night his wife was slain in the upstairs bedroom of their suburban Bay Village home fronting Lake Erie west of Cleveland.

A sequence of blurred still photographs, made for the NBC show, are used to recreate Sheppard's contention that an intruder had knocked him unconscious after having beaten Mrs. Sheppard to death.

Then come various phases of the osteopath's ordeal — the media clamoring for his arrest, the "carnival atmosphere" of his heavily-publicized first trial, his life in prison, the arrival of a young lawyer named F. Lee Bailey to win his acquittal and Sheppard's troubled life as a free man.

To move the show along, actors cast as key figures in Sheppard's life — a newspaperman, Bailey and a wrestling promoter — periodically precede various scenes with comments about what they'd thought and felt.

But the show just doesn't move along. It seems oddly flat, uneven and occasionally mawkish, largely because of the directing and acting.

One of the supporting players is Nina Van Pallandt, whose chief claim to fame is her friendship with Clifford Irving, who got in a lot of trouble a few years back with a book concerning Howard Hughes.

In NBC's show, she's woefully miscast as the German divorcee who became Sheppard's pen pal while he was in prison and his second wife (she later divorced him) when he was freed.

But the biggest disappointment is Peppard, who turned in a brilliant acting job in a 1963 war movie called "The Victors" and hasn't seemed able to rouse himself to that level since.

His effort tonight appears a mixture of ham and Banacek. Save for a prison scene where he belts an inmate who wants him to get drugs from the prison hospital, he just doesn't seem believable.

Which is a pity, not only for Peppard but also for a show that should have proved engrossing, considering the subject matter.

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — He's already got 63 books to his credit, but Louis L'Amour has no intention of putting the fastest typewriter in the West out to pasture. In fact, he's got plans to write at least 30 more novels.

"I'm always working on a book," says the prolific L'Amour, who writes about three a year and prefers to call them "novels of the frontier" rather than Westerns. "I never stop. Sometimes I work on several books at the same time. One in the morning, one in the afternoon — and if an idea for another book comes to me while I'm working I stop and start out on it."

L'Amour, a rugged man who stands 6 feet 1 and weighs 220 pounds ("15 more than I should"), is quick to point out, however, that although he writes quickly, "a lifetime goes into each book. I put a lot into my books; all my knowledge goes into them."

Most of L'Amour's books have been published in paperback, although some have appeared in hard cover. "I started out in hard cover," he recalls with a smile, "but I soon found I could get a better deal in paper, and I like that big audience that paper has." He estimates that close to 55 million copies of his books have been sold in the United States and abroad, where they have been translated into 17 languages.

But, he says, "I'm not too interested in the figures. I'm interested in the books. I read history all the time. I may have a huge audience, but it's a very aware audience. They know a lot of what you are writing about, and if you make a mistake you are in trouble with them. So, if I say a tree or a certain plant grows in some part of the country, it grows there. I write about areas that I've been to, explored and gotten familiar with."

L'Amour, who declines to give his age — "I never tell anyone, just say I was in World War II" — currently is engrossed in a saga that began about three years ago.

"I'd written a number of books that seemed to fit in with a plan to tell the story of the opening of the frontier through the eyes of three families, the Sacketts (originally from Wales and England), the Talons (France) and the Chantrys (Ireland). By the time I explore these families from their beginnings in Europe and their movement to America and their actions there I figure I'll need at least 30 more books."

His latest hardbound novel, "Over on the Dry Side," deals with Owen Chantry. His latest paperback, "The Man from the Broken Hills," deals with Milo Talon, who is half Talon, half Sackett.

L'Amour, a talkative, easygoing man, says he gets much of his information by reading history books — he has a library of 7,000 volumes — as well as from such secondary sources as pamphlets and booklets — "I travel the back alleys of history looking for the things no one seems to remember or know about" — and by traveling.

He has been traveling much of his life, leaving his North Dakota home at 15 to begin a journey that took him to such jobs as lumberjack, longshoreman, sailor, elephant handler, boxer and construction worker ("I wheeled a lot of concrete").

After service in a tank destroyer unit in World War II, L'Amour, who had written and sold adventure and mystery stories before the war, met a publisher who asked him to write the type of novel he now specializes in.

Currently living in Los Angeles with his wife and their two children, although he also has a ranch in Colorado, L'Amour thinks the popularity of his stories — 33 of which have been sold to the movies — is because "everyone likes the man on horseback who can ride off when he wants. The world now is too much with us. In the old days a man could do something about his problems; now they seem out of our grasp. That's probably why so many people like to read about the wide open country, the wind blowing, and the man riding off."

"Over on the Dry Side" is published by Saturday Review-Dutton. "The Man from the Broken Hills" is published by Bantam.

Helms A 'Possible' To American Party

RALEIGH (AP)—An American Party leader lists North Carolina's conservative Republican U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms as a possible American Party candidate for the presidency next year.

In a talk prepared for a political action conference of the North Carolina American Party, Dr. John L. Grady, a Belle Glade, Fla., physician, said Saturday night that "if we get the proper presidential candidate we may well take the presidency in 1976."

"The American Party is growing very rapidly and ultimately we will be the conservative political force in this nation," he said.

Grady, a former mayor of Belle Glade, and an unsuccessful candidate for the U.S. Senate last year, listed some potential candidates for the party's presidential nomination next year.

These include Alabama Gov. George Wallace, New Hampshire Gov. Meldrin Tompson, former Congressman John Rarick of Louisiana, and Tom Anderson of Tennessee, the party's national chairman.

"One held in high esteem by the leadership of the American Party is your own Sen. Jesse Helms who we feel has perhaps the best voting record in the U.S. Senate," Grady said.

He told the North Carolina group the American Party is waging campaigns to get on the ballot in nearly every state. The party is already on the ballot in about 15 states and by 1976 "we anticipate ballot position in at least 40 states and hopefully all 50."

In Florida, he said, "the party is very strong and vigorous and the major news media in Florida described it as a new political force in the state." He said "in some counties in Florida the American Party registration is exceeding that of the Republican Party."

The United Nations officially came into existence on Oct. 24, 1945.
