Weighing Possible Assassination Plot Charges

By DAVID C. MARTIN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department officials are still weighing whether to bring charges against those involved in the assassination plots described by the Senate intelligence committee.

In its 346-page report made public Thursday, the committee said U.S. officials had investigated at least eight assassination plots against Cuba's Fidel Castro and had launched another scheme to kill Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba. The panel also described the U.S. government as implicated in the killing of Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo. Of the nine foreign leaders mentioned in the report, only Fidel Castro and his brother Raul are still alive. But the committee said, "No foreign leaders were killed as a result of assassination plots initiated by officials of the United States."

The panel noted with surprise that "there is presently no statute making it a crime to assassinate a foreign official outside the United States" and urged Congress to enact such a law. Its report told of a CIA official at the agency's old Washington headquarters who was asked to develop plans to kill Lumumba in 1960 and raised the prospect "that conspiracy to commit murder being done in the District of Columbia might be in violation of federal law." A second official, Richard Bissell, then head of the agency's clandestine services, "airily dismissed" the prospect, according to evidence submitted to the committee. Justice Department officials say they are examining the possibility of prosecutions based on any cover-up of the assassination plots. To bring such a charge they would first have to decide that a crime had been committed. In considering that decision, the law which Justice Department officials are examining most closely makes it a felony to instigate, support or take part in "any military or naval expedition or enterprise" against leaders of a foreign country with which the United States is at peace. Department officials say the key legal question in determining whether that law was violated is the definition of a military enterprise. Prosecution directly under this law would be limited to those acts committed within the last five years, and only one incident in the committee report falls in that time period. But a cover-up can extend long beyond the original crime. The department's investigators also are studying the federal conspiracy laws and the possibility of referring the whole matter for prosecution under state laws on which the time-limit for prosecution may not have run out, such as conspiracy to commit murder. Levi himself said last June, "If we were talking about assassinations, I guess we really don't have a statute of limitations." He added that the complex question depended on what federal laws were deemed applicable. In its principal recommendation, the panel headed by Sen. (Continued on page 2)

Communists Push Lisbon Pressure

nounced his center-left, military-civilian coalition cabinet was in effect going on strike until the president obtained the full support of the armed forces for it.

The cabinet announced Thursday that it was "suspending the exercise of its governing activities." But it did not resign.

The Communists, seeking the return of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves, who was ousted two months ago, called a general strike in the Lisbon area. An estimated 50,000 workers marched to the presidential palace Thursday afternoon, chanting revolutionary slogans and yelling "Fascists!"

Costa Gomes, a 61-year-old army general, was a mile away presiding over a meeting of the ruling military Revolutionary Council. It was reported considering a shakeup in the commanders of military units in an effort to restore discipline in the armed forces.

Various military units in which the majority of the men are sympathetic to the Communists have repeatedly refused to carry out the orders of the cabinet, which is dominated by the Socialists and Popular Democrats, the two largest political parties.

The last straw for the government was a siege of the premier's official residence last week by 20,000 striking workers demanding big pay raises. The army's pro-Communist Lisbon commander, Gen. Otelo Carvalho, refused to send troops to rescue Azevedo, and the government had to agree to the wage demands to end the siege.

Reagan Will Run In N.C.

By ROBERT H. REID Associated Press Writer CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—Ronald Reagan announced today he would enter the North Carolina presidential primary, but called for Republicans to look beyond a divisive fight for party leadership to the presidential election next November.

"There can't be any argument between Republicans, any difference that should blind us to the goal ahead, and a crusade should culminate next November," Reagan told about 100 persons gathered at an airport rally in Charlotte. "I will do nothing divisive or nothing that will contribute to dividing us in this cause today," he asserted.

Reagan, who announced for the GOP presidential nomination in Washington Thursday, arrived in Charlotte about 11:25 a.m., EST. from Manchester, N. H.

From here he planned to fly to Chicago and then on to Los Angeles.

Reagan was introduced by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who will head Reagan's North Carolina campaign.

Before Reagan arrived, Helms told the crowd, "I support Ronald Reagan for the presidency because of my firm belief that dynamic conservative leadership is needed in the White House if our basic liberties are to survive."

Before Reagan's arrival, a young man who identified himself as Andy Untener passed around what was purported to be a statement by North Carolina Gov. Jim Holshouser, southern coordinator for President Ford's campaign.

The statement said, in part, "We fully expect President Ford to carry North Carolina because most Republicans in our state as well as in other southern states, share our view that the President offers the best hope of keeping the White House from falling into the hands of the liberals."

There was no confirmation from Holshouser as to whether he authorized the statement.

Reagan delivered the same address that he made Thursday in Washington and is delivering in scheduled stops. During the speech, he said he was running because the public wanted leaders "who are independent of the forces that have brought us our problems—the Congress, the bureaucracy, the lobbyists, big business and labor."

Growth Rate Soars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economic output recorded the largest quarterly increase in 25 years during the three months ending in September, revised government figures show.

The Gross National Product, total output of goods and services, recorded a 13.2 per cent annual rate of growth in the third quarter, the government reported Thursday.

Earlier, an 11.2 per cent increase had been estimated. Corporate profits after taxes also showed the biggest quarterly increase in 25 years for the quarter. The government reported that the increase was $11.9 billion, or 16.9 per cent over the previous quarter.

In the housing industry, Donald M. Kaplan, director of the office of economic research of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, reported a consensus of experts that housing starts will range from 1.40 million to 1.65 million units in 1976.

There were 1.15 million starts in 1975. Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported that consumer prices rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent in October, the third sharpest monthly increase this year.

However, the inflation rate remains substantially below levels of a year ago. Retail prices for the past 12 months were up 7.6 per cent, compared to 12.2 per cent for 1974.

An Upswing, Says Coble State Revenues Are Sharply Up

RALEIGH (AP)—Although North Carolina's general fund tax collections were up 18.95 per cent last month, Revenue Commissioner Howard Coble said today the expected revenue this fiscal year will fall short of estimates.

"We will have a shortfall, but no one knows how much it will be," Coble told a news conference. However, he said he feels "any shortage can be covered by reversions" of unspent money.

"I think the economy is on the upswing," Coble said.

The revenue report showed general fund collections in October totaled $121.2 million, an increase of $19.3 million over October last year.

Coble said some people may say, "My gosh, we're out of the woods. But the report is not that good."

"I am very encouraged by the sales tax collections. This is the most accurate and realistic barometer of business conditions we have," Coble said.

The sales tax took in more than $37.2 million during October, an increase of more than $2.1 million over the same month last year.

"The sales tax has been sluggish for several months," Coble explained. He said that by mid-January the state will know how well the economy is doing since it will reflect sales tax collections for November and December, the big sales period before Christmas.

"I'm cautiously optimistic" over the monthly report, Coble stated.

It had been estimated earlier this year when the state budget was approved by the General Assembly that revenue collections this fiscal year would bring in about $1.6 billion.

The big increases last month were 9 1/2 million in income tax collections and $7 million from the insurance tax.

Dismiss 47 Cases

The State took a voluntary dismissal in 47 cases scheduled for trial today in connection with the Halloween night disturbance in Downtown Greenville which resulted in 57 persons being arrested.

Included in the cases dismissed were 23 cases involving charges of inciting a riot, and 24 cases involving charges of failing to disperse.

Remaining on the District Court calendar for trial were four failing to disperse cases and six cases involving inciting a riot counts as well as an assault on a public officer case and a damage to personal property charge.

Before noon today, Judge Charles H. Whedbee began hearing evidence in the case of William Walker Calvin, charged with failing to disperse in connection with the incident.

Interrupted A Break-In Try

Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning that thieves failed to make good their attempts to steal merchandise from the Bilbro Wholesale Co. at 1013 Dickinson Ave. because they were surprised by officers responding to a burglar alarm at the firm.

Cannon said the alarm came at 2:05 a.m. He explained that responding officers found the would-be thieves had entered the building by cutting a hole in the roof of the structure.

Attempts had been made to open the company safe, according to Cannon, and 12 cases of cigarettes had been moved from their normal storage area to a position near the rear door of the wholesale firm.

Investigation of the incident is continuing.

RICHMOND, VA. (AP) —

A federal appeals court has denied the claim of a black teacher that she was dismissed by the Pitt County, N.C., school system because of her race.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decided 2-1

Thursday to uphold a ruling by U.S. District Court Judge John D. Larkins of New Bern, N.C., which said "clear and convincing evidence" justified the county board of education's refusal to rehire Miss Mary E. Jones. However, Judge J. Braxton

Dismissed Pitt Teacher Loses Court Appeal

Craven Jr. issued a lengthy dissent. He contended Larkins "was clearly erroneous" in approving the board's action. "It seems to me," Craven wrote, "that the board's decision not to retain the plaintiff was largely subjective and wholly unsupported by the underlying documentation." Records in the case showed Miss Jones was held to be a "weak" teacher and wasn't rehired after her first year of teaching at a previously all-white school. Prior to her reassignment to the school, Miss Jones had taught seventh and eighth grades for 10 years at a previously all-black school, where she had received good performance ratings. The Pitt County Board of Education claimed her dismissal was based on an evaluation that she was a poor teacher at the previously all-white school, especially in teaching methods and discipline. Judge John A. Field Jr. and Judge Herbert S. Boreman issued the appeals court's majority opinion.

Snow, High Winds Continue Batter Central Plains

By The Associated Press
Snow and high winds continued to batter the upper Midwest today as the Central Plains states dug out from the season's first blizzard.

Up to 16 inches of heavy, wet snow covered sections of Minnesota. The Nebraska State Patrol urged motorists to stay off Interstate Highway 80. The jail in Springfield, Colo., housed stranded motorists for the second night.

The storm swept out of eastern Colorado on Thursday into Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa. It spread blizzard conditions into the Dakotas, Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin before days end.

Schools were closed, highways blocked, airline flights canceled and power outages were reported throughout the region.

The Kansas Highway Patrol reported that a farmer trapped in a field in his tractor for 10 hours was rescued unharmed.

At least three deaths were attributed to the storm. A truck driver was killed when his tractor-trailer jackknifed on a Nebraska highway. Two men in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area died, apparently of heart attacks, while shoveling snow. South Dakota authorities were still searching for an Ethan, S.D., woman, Joyce Negebauer, whose abandoned truck was found on U.S. Highway 289. One man was also reported missing in Colorado.

The National Weather Service said a deep low pressure area over southwestern Iowa caused the storm that ended an extra-long Indian summer in the Midwest.

Heavy snow was still falling today in Minnesota, Wisconsin and upper Michigan. The weather service said there were flurries as far south to northern Arkansas and east to the eastern end of Lake Erie.

Drifts up to 13 feet were reported on Interstate 90 in Nebraska as snow plows resumed digging out today. Winds up to 70 miles per hour raked the state Thursday.

Most sections of Interstate Highway 70 in Kansas were opened today, despite subfreezing overnight temperatures. In South Dakota, however, there was still no travel on Interstate Highway 90.

Although the storm blasted the eastern slope of the Rockies, little snow fell further into the mountains. A spokesman in Vail, Colo., said the famous ski resort received little snow from the storm and ski facility operators were worried about a lack of snow.

Snow and strong winds continue today over the upper Mississippi Valley and northern Great Lakes as the storm drifted slowly northeastward.

Some rain occurred over parts of lower Michigan and showers were scattered from the eastern Great Lakes region to northwest Florida, but rainfall amounts have been light. There were showers along the Atlantic coastal states from North Carolina through New England.

Cooler weather covered the Appalachians while mild weather continued over the mid and north Atlantic Coast states and Florida.

The strong circulation around the storm has pulled cold air southward to the western Gulf Coast.

Clear, cold weather continued over the Rockies and in the western and southern Plains. Temperatures were below zero in parts of Montana again early today and readings in the teens have penetrated into the Texas Panhandle.

It remained cold from the north and central Plains and Rockies to the Pacific Coast and turned colder in the southern Plains and Mississippi Valley.

Plan Longest, Richest Bike Race For Summer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina travel promoters are planning the nation's longest and richest bicycle race next summer.

"The Great North Carolina Bicycle Race" will be run over 10 days and 870 miles from Murphy in the western North Carolina mountains to Manteo on the Outer Banks coastline. The promoters said Thursday they hope to attract an international field of 200-300 Olympic calibre cyclists.

The proposed dates of the race, June 10-20, put it about a month before the Olympic cycling competition begins.

Proposed prize money is $50,000. In New York, secretary William Lambert Jr. of the U.S. Cycling Federation said the federation will sanction the race. He added that Olympic cyclists may participate.

Lambert said international rules of amateurism in cycling permit competitors to receive savings bonds and merchandise certificates, up to certain limits. He said $50,000 may be difficult to distribute to the winners without exceeding the limits.

North Carolina's state travel director, William Arnold, said the sponsors would take care "not to be involved in another Jim Thorpe situation where someone has to give back an Olympic medal because of the prizes he won in our race."

Another state government official, George Little, said the race would be the largest of its type ever attempted in the United States. He said communities along the race route have agreed to participate and to make the race an annual event for at least five years.

The racers would travel from 60 to 120 miles per day, depending on the difficulty of the terrain covered. They would rest overnight and be restarted each morning in the same order they finished the previous day. The time gap between each racer would be maintained.

Intermediate stops will include Bryson City or Cherokee, Asheville, Boone, Winston-Salem, Pinehurst, Wilmington, and the Greenville-New Bern-Washington area, Little said.

"We fully expect the Great North Carolina Bicycle Race to become an event of international importance and one which will bring many benefits to the state," Little said.

Assassination...

Frank Church, D-Idaho, called for legislation making it a crime for any U.S. official or citizen to conspire, attempt or engage in the assassination of a foreign leader.

The Senate committee report, fruit of a still-incomplete, six-month investigation, was released by the panel after the Senate spurned appeals by the President to keep it secret. Ford wrote Senate leaders Thursday that publication would not be in the national interest.

In a closed session of nearly four hours, the Senate debated how to handle the report, but ultimately took no votes, either to block or endorse the document.

In addition to the Castro and Lumumba plots and the Trujillo affair, government officials also were aware of plots against South Vietnamese president Ngo Dinh Diem and Chilean army chief Rene Schneider where "the risk of death" existed, the committee said.

The 11-member panel also said it came across "evidence of CIA involvement in plans to assassinate President Sukarno of Indonesia and 'Papa Doc' Duvalier of Haiti." Assassination plots against Castro "sometimes contemplated action against Raul Castro and Che Guevara" as well, the committee found.

According to the report, there was enough evidence "to permit a reasonable inference that the plot to assassinate Lumumba was authorized by President Eisenhower" but stopped short of a finding that "the President intended an assassination effort."

The committee also said "there was insufficient evidence" that Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy or Johnson or any of their close advisers authorized the assassination of Castro.

However, the committee held out the possibility that various presidents may have purposely obscured their role in assassination and added that "each must bear the ultimate responsibility for the activities of his subordinates."

The committee "found concrete evidence of at least eight plots involving the CIA to assassinate Fidel Castro from 1960 to 1965" using a variety of devices which "ran the gamut from high-powered rifles to poison pills, poison pens, deadly bacterial powders and other devices which strain the imagination." On at least two occasions the plots "progressed to the point of sending poison pills to Cuba and dispatching teams to commit the deed," the report said.

"The most ironic of these plots took place on Nov. 22, 1963—the very day that President Kennedy was shot in Dallas — when a CIA official offered a poison pen to a Cuban for use against Castro while at the same time an emissary from President Kennedy was meeting with Castro to explore the possibility of improved relations," it said.

One of the more bizarre plans against Castro involved attempts "to determine whether an exotic seashell rigged to explode could be deposited in an area where Castro commonly went skin diving." That plan and another scheme to present Castro with a contaminated diving suit were both abandoned, the report said.

Perhaps the most bizarre plot of all involved a scheme to simply embarrass Castro publicly by sprinkling his shoes with a powder that would make his beard fall out.

The committee's outline of the plot to poison Lumumba states that "it is likely that President Eisenhower's expression of strong concern about the man at a meeting of the National Security Council on Aug. 9, 1960, was taken by (then CIA director) Allen Dulles as authority to assassinate Lumumba."

Poison was transferred to the CIA station chief in Leopoldville, but never used, the committee said, concluding there was no connection between the plot and the events that led to Lumumba's death.

In 1961, the CIA supplied weapons to local dissidents in the Dominican Republic, knowing "that the dissidents intended to overthrow Trujillo probably by assassination," according to the report. However, "there is no direct evidence that the weapons which were passed were used" when Trujillo was gunned down by those dissidents, the report said.

With respect to South Vietnamese president Diem, the committee said that although it found evidence that the United States encouraged the coup which toppled him in November, 1963, the U.S. government "neither desired nor was involved in the assassinations" of Diem and his brother Ngo Dinh Nhu.

In 1970, President Nixon instructed the CIA "to play a direct role in organizing a military coup d'etat in Chile to prevent" Marxist Salvador Allende from coming to power. During October, the CIA contacted military conspirators in Chile, all of whom regarded removal of Gen. Schneider, who strongly opposed a coup, as a necessary ingredient to their plans. On Oct. 22, the CIA passed machine guns and ammunition to a group that al-

Retain Lawyer For Legal Work

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: At the time of our marriage (three years ago) I took my husband's name to be my legal name.

I am an artist and feel that my husband has done nothing to merit having his name on my work. It is awkward for me to have to sign my first, maiden and married name on my paintings now when I formerly used only my first and maiden name. How do I get my name legally changed back to my maiden name? My husband knows I love him, and he doesn't object.

I don't know what lawyers charge, but I'm betting it's an arm and a leg. Is there some do-it-yourself book I can get?
FATHER'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Do-it-yourself legal work can be the most expensive money-saving gimmick around. Find a lawyer and pay him an honest fee.

DEAR ABBY: I am married and have a lovely set of rings, but I am not sure which ring I should put on my finger first, my wedding band or my engagement ring. Please tell me the proper way to wear my rings. And I hope you print this because I am sure other wives would like to know, too. Thank you.

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: The wedding band goes on the finger first—then the engagement ring. It's said that the wedding ring should be worn closest to the heart.

DEAR ABBY: I am presently dating a divorced woman who has a small child. When we go out, am I expected to pay the babysitter?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: If she "expects" you to pay the sitter, she's presumptuous. But if you can afford it, it would be generous to offer.

A 'No-Win' Crime Campaign?

The soaring crime rate in the United States is just a matter of concern for us all. When criminals kill more than 20,000 Americans in one year (1974) . . . more than many years of war against the communists in Vietnam; and steal property in the same year valued at more than $2.6 billion; it should impress society that they have a war on their hands that rivals many wars against enemies outside our borders.

The annual FBI report lists only the known crimes; the unlisted crimes, the unknown crimes, can be assumed to be comparatively awesome.

Philosophically, we share the belief of those who look to rehabilitation and re-training of criminals as the ultimate answer. But neither governments nor voters will provide the trained personnel or programs required for such an idealistic countermeasure.

The alternative, punishment to fit the crime or fear of such punishment, obviously isn't working either. Only a small percentage of criminals serve time in prison and as was discussed by columnist William Noblitt, the fear of certain imprisonment is a dwindling factor in commission of crime. This deterrent to our criminal element appears a failure for many reasons which space does not permit to explore.

The point is, American society is at war with an anti-social element in our midst, and fighting another "no-win" war.

Poverty is not a cause. Our poorest are rich beyond belief in comparison with the poor in other lands . . . and poverty is, in any case, the poorest of excuses for us to explain away our crime rate.

In any event, government and society is most certainly following a no-win policy against crime. Something must change, or just as 1975's crime record will surpass 1974; so will we see further "records" in succeeding years.

Eventually things will have to change. Why must society "wait"?

King-Size Alcoholic Problem Indicated

A Research Triangle Institute study shows that 28 percent of the nation's teen-agers are problem drinkers.

The survey done for the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, included 13,000 young people in 450 schools. It showed that 28 percent reported they were drunk at least four times in the past year, or got into trouble with peers or superiors at least twice during the year because of drinking.

The survey shows that a fourth of the 13 year olds were moderate drinkers.

We can talk about all the problems the nation has, but if this survey is even near correct, we are in for some king-sized alcoholic problems in the years ahead.

THIS AFTERNOON Drug-Fighters Shaken Up

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Without fanfare, Gov. James E. Holshouser has given a sharp whack to the top leadership of the state's anti-drug program.

State Rep. Chris S. Barker, Jr., D-Craven, has been booted as chairman of the North Carolina Drug Commission, and replaced by Charlottean Dr. Jonnie McLeod.

Dr. McLeod, a pediatrician who headed the Drug Education Center in Charlotte for four years is now an associate professor in human development at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Barker is fuming over his ouster. He was chairman of the initial Drug Authority since its formation four years ago, and candidly confesses that he let slip by him a loophole in the law which changed the Drug Authority to the Drug Commission—that loophole gives the governor power to name the chairman.

Legislative Action
Barker threatened to take legislative action at a recent meeting of the commission, warning that the drug agency could be moved to some other state department and from control of the governor.

Those close to the commission consider Barker's bluster mostly for show at his removal, and the skids were well greased for Barker not only by the governor's office, but by the Mental Health division of the Department of Human Resources. A key appointee from that agency resigned from the Drug Commission to open a vacancy for Dr. McLeod's appointment, and ultimate promotion to chairman.

The move was carefully worked out in an effort to eliminate what most sources consider the major irritant to local drug agency people: Barker's outspoken conservatism and general antagonism toward the hip, young people who work the streets and deal directly with the drug scene locally.

At her first session of the commission as chairman, Dr. McLeod passed to commission members a list of goals and objectives "as viewed by Chairperson Jonnie McLeod."

One of her key points was to "develop meaningful evaluation methods with and for programs that will foster honesty and not paranoia."

Paranoia
The word "paranoia" has cropped up frequently in recent months in conversations with drug agency people—they do not trust the state agency, and complain that communication has broken down.

Dr. McLeod's guidelines speak to that as well, calling for staff members to be on duty with committees, and commission members to be on call for members of the staff—to "respond to grievances in such a way that program persons feel heard," she listed in her report.

Dr. McLeod also is calling for "a clearer voice to the commission from the minority community which represents a sizable part of our drug abuse population."

Following the first meeting which she chaired, Dr. McLeod commented that she was appalled at the near-absence of blacks from a program in which many should be involved.

Boiled down, her approach is to "get more commission participation in the overall drug program . . . we have not had the mechanism for good communications between local agencies, programs, and the advisory council and this commission."

A first step in that direction is under preparation now: a thorough report on state guidelines and standards, funding rules, etc, for distribution to all concerned.

The Drug Commission was established in an effort to provide central direction and coordination to drug abuse education and treatment activities across the state.

Women Of Watergate

WASHINGTON—Two new books have come out concerning Watergate. One is titled "The Women of Watergate" by Madeleine Edmondson and Alden Duer Cohen and the other is "Mo" by Maureen Dean and Hays Gorey. The thrust of both books is that if the wives of the conspirators had only known what their husbands were doing, Watergate may never have gotten out of hand.

Anyone who believes that doesn't know how people live in Washington. This is what would and probably did happen.

"Hello, dear. Wow, what a day at the White House. I just had to persuade three people to lie to the FBI."

"The toilet's broken again. Every time I call the plumber he doesn't pay any attention to me. If you would call just once maybe we'd get some action around here."

ART BUCHWALD

Other Editors Say Shadow Of Doubt

(Greensboro Daily News)

Half a dozen eminent professional pollsters told a congressional committee the other day that Americans in general are becoming pessimistic about their personal lives and their economic prospects. Public confidence in the government and in the country's economic future, they said, is probably lower than it ever has been since poll takers began measuring public opinion in what they believe to be a scientific way.

"The public does not expect any substantial improvement in economic conditions in the foreseeable future," Peter D. Hart of Peter Hart Associates in Washington was quoted as saying. "All the President's statistics and all the President's men cannot put confidence back together again."

The other survey takers who gave their views to the Joint Economic Committee said much the same thing. Irving Crespi of the Gallup organization said that although Americans' confidence in the government had been dropping sometime, until recently they remained optimistic about their own personal prospects. But now, he said, "it is within the realm of possibility that the United States will in the near future experience its greatest crisis in confidence since 1933" in the Great Depression.

Everything the pollsters say may be true. But it also is true that Americans have mistrusted the government ever since the days of the Founding Fathers—who didn't have much confidence in it themselves.

Another thing that may be pertinent here is the public's growing mistrust of professional oracles. The pollsters have been complaining lately that people just aren't cooperating with them the way they used to. Mr. Crespi himself was recently quoted as saying that "it (the public's) waning confidence in pollsters) is a very serious problem that threatens the viability of the survey profession."

In part that mistrust is based on the fact that survey takers are fallible and often guess wrong. Maybe the members of the Joint Economic Committee should pay less attention to the views of the opinion takers and more to formulating government policies designed to reduce inflation and unemployment.

Unsung Irish Patriot

By PETER HERNON
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — George Washington may have fought the battles but Oliver Pollock paid the bills — at least many of them.

Pollock is credited with raising $300,000 for the American Revolution, most of it out of his own pocket. Only France, Spain and Holland gave more.

For his concern he landed in a debtor's prison and is hardly a footnote in most history books.

The barrel-chested Irish immigrant was much more than a footnote in the wartime journals of George Rogers Clark. He referred almost daily to Pollock's financial assistance during his campaign against the British on the young nation's western frontier.

The battles eventually led to American control of the land between the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Clark, then a general, said Pollock put up almost every penny his 200-man army needed.

Pollock also bankrolled an expedition against the British in western Florida, which at that time included a good slice of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

He begged, borrowed and bartered the money and funneled most of it straight to the Continental Congress.

Why all this patriotic benevolence?

"He was an Irishman and that was reason enough to hate the British," says John Chase, a local historian. "He also was worried that if England won, the trading empire he had carved out west of the Mississippi would be in jeopardy."

Pollock arrived in Pennsylvania in 1760 virtually penniless at the age of 23. By 1762 he was

INSIDE REPORT Will Ford Flunk Florida?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ORLANDO, Fla.—Even before his announcement of candidacy, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan has built up a chilling margin over President Ford among Republican party activists and leaders in the crucial Florida presidential primary.

Indeed, if the March 9 primary (third in the nation following New Hampshire and Massachusetts) were to pit Reagan against plain Jerry Ford, with Mr. Ford magically stripped of his presidential incumbency, the outcome would be a smashing Reagan victory.

The fact that Mr. Ford is President is his only political asset in a conservative state whose Republican delegation almost went for Reagan over Richard Nixon at the 1968 presidential convention. The state party has continued to move right since then.

What is not certain, however, is whether rank-and-file primary election voters—perhaps 400,000 or more of the 900,000 total Republican registration will actually vote—are in lockstep with the party's conservative leadership.

For example, a confidential statewide poll taken for the White House shows Mr. Ford leading by 10 percentage points over Reagan; and a private poll of some 300 members of the Republican county committee of Broward County—the conservative heartland of Ft. Lauderdale—taken three weeks ago gave Mr. Ford a surprising 48 per cent, Reagan 38 per cent, with the balance undecided.

Much of this apparent sentiment derives from a deep-seated aversion (always stronger among Republicans than Democrats) against turning out an incumbent President, even an accidental President. Hence, one basic concept for the all-important Florida primary developed by Reagan's chief national strategist, John Sears, is that Mr. Ford will be overwhelmed here—if the incumbency factor is diminished.

Reagan forces reckon that 70 per cent of the President's strength within his own party derives from incumbency and, further, that a Ford defeat in the Feb. 24 New Hampshire primary would cost him between 7 and 10 percentage points in the two-weeks-later Florida contest. Why? Because a defeat in New Hampshire, and each subsequent defeat, would unravel the protective cloak of incumbency.

In fact, however, incumbency also could turn

Booklet From The Watchdog

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has lots of things to worry about these days, but be reassured it has not overlooked its role as protector of the small investor.

The watchdog of federal securities laws and regulations has just come out with a new edition of "Investigate Before You Invest," a little booklet of basic advice that is now offering free to investors.

"Before buying . . . Think!" advises the SEC. "Don't listen to high-pressure sales talk," it adds. And, "Don't buy on tips and rumors."

If those caveats sound a bit dated for these days of super-cautious if not necessarily more sophisticated investors, there's a reason: Much of the text was written years ago, and a new cover applied this year.

Nevertheless the SEC believes the warnings are worthwhile, just as they were in the 1960s, when millions of new and naive investors flocked into the stock market. It's a bit different today. Brokers' phones don't ring all day long as they used to. Hundreds of them have gone out of business. Institutions often dominate trade, with the small investor more observant than active.

In fact, the number of investors has diminished, after increasing sharply throughout the 1960s and early 1970s. For the first time in more than 20 years, the New York Stock Exchange estimates, the number of shareholders fell in 1974, and maybe again this year.

Regardless, some of the advice seems to have a merit other than that of nostalgia.

Any oldtimer will tell you that the same mistakes are made over and over, especially when people feel they no longer need advice.

With that preface, the SEC's admonitions:

—Before you decide whether to buy securities, check your financial situation. Have you made provisions for a home? Do you have adequate life insurance? A comfortable bank account balance?

—If you decide to go ahead and buy securities, keep in mind that the value of your investment can go down as well as up. No one can guarantee the market price of a security in a month or a year from now.

—Give at least as much consideration to buying securities as you would to buying other valuable property. An engraved stock certificate of a bankrupt company is just as impressive looking as that of a blue chip.

Reliable information is available on all heavily traded securities. Tell the salesperson to put all the information and advice in writing and mail it to you, and then save the information.

—If you're an average investor — the SEC offers no clues to the identity of average — don't speculate. Speculation sometimes may serve a useful purpose, but it is a field for experts. The amateur who "plays the market" is asking for trouble.

If you feel you are one of those who can benefit from a reminder of the basics, you may obtain a free copy of "Investigate Before You Invest" from: Consumer Information, Dept. 70, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Strength For Today

ON BEING BRAVELY REVENGED

Early in the Civil War General Robert E. Lee was frequently criticized by a certain General Whiting, who had stood first in his class at West Point and was regarded by all, including himself, as a most unusual man. One day Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, asked Lee if he thought that Whiting should be appointed to a certain high position that Lee himself was being considered for. Without hesitation Lee replied that Whiting was one of the ablest men in the Confederate army, well qualified to hold any position of high responsibility.

When a fellow officer asked Lee how he could have been so generous to a man who had so often criticized him, Lee replied, "I understood that President Davis desired to know my opinion of Whiting, not Whiting's opinion of me."

Which reminds us of the counsel of Sir Thomas Browne: "Hath any one wronged thee? Be bravely revenged. Slight it, and the work's begun; forgive it, 'tis finished. He is below himself who is not above an injury."

Running Out Of Jobless Funds

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment benefits, often referred to by President Ford as "our first line of defense in a recession," are running out for tens of thousands of jobless Americans. For the most part, they are men in the prime of their working years who were employed in blue-collar jobs. But a disproportionate number are blacks and the elderly — usually the last to be rehired.

Despite the improving economy, unemployment remains at its highest level since the Great Depression of the 1930s, and most economists agree it will remain at high levels through most of the decade.

To soften the impact of the recession, Congress repeatedly extended unemployment benefits to a maximum of 65 weeks for some workers. But for the first victims of the business slump and those caught in the wave of layoffs during the 1973 Arab oil embargo that preceded it, even this economic prop has been exhausted.

Labor Department officials say 287,000 people had used up their eligibility as of last June and were forced to look elsewhere for income. The number is increasing each week, and the department estimates that in 1976 some 2,470,000 Americans will use up their benefits. Some will find jobs. Others have alternative sources of income; some states, for example, permit retirees to draw benefits. But others will be forced to turn to welfare. "As their unemployment compensation terminates," says Senate Labor Committee Chairman Harrison A. Williams Jr., "family savings and other assets are the first to go. Eventually, they can qualify for public assistance on the welfare rolls. The next recourse is bankruptcy. And then there is crime."

The amount and duration of unemployment benefits vary from state to state because of differences in benefit and eligibility regulations. Payments generally range from $65 to $100 a week, although payments run higher in a few states.

Labor Department officials say they are only beginning to compile up-to-date figures on the number of persons who have exhausted their benefits, and data to provide an accurate picture of who they are and where they live.

However, a limited government survey of 10 states showed that half of the people exhausting their benefits were between 22 and 44 years old, and about 60 per cent were men.

A relatively large proportion were over 65, an age group that experiences the most difficulty in finding work. The survey found that 14 per cent were in this group, which accounts for only 2.5 per cent of the unemployed.

Other findings showed that those in the 10-state survey who have exhausted their benefits were employed in blue-collar occupations. Non-whites accounted for nearly 25 per cent of those who have lost benefits, or a considerably larger number than nonwhites' 16 per cent share of the jobs covered by unemployment insurance in the survey area.

The study concluded that the trend to higher welfare applications "will be moderated only by the unwillingness of unemployed workers to exhaust their savings and other assets in order to qualify for public assistance."

A Claim For Home-Buyer

"If you have purchased a new home this year, one that was under construction before March 26, 1975, you may be entitled to claim up to $2,000 credit against your 1975 Federal income tax," reported local H&R Block manager Gary Cooke.

Cooke said that before any taxpayer can claim that credit, he or she must have a statement from the seller certifying that the purchase price of the home is the lowest price at which the residence was offered for sale after Feb. 28, 1975.

The certificate, says the Internal Revenue Service, is to be attached to the home buyer's income tax return to prevent fraudulent transactions affecting the amount of the taxpayer's credit.

Cooke explained that the IRS, however, has not issued an official form for the certification of the price of the home and the responsibility is left to the taxpayer to acquire such a statement.

He said that, as a public service and at no cost to either seller or taxpayer, Block has made available nationwide a new home purchase certificate conforming to IRS requirements. The one-page certificate is available to taxpayers at local Block offices, he noted.

Thanksgiving Service Sunday

There will be a special thanksgiving service at the Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m. The Church is located one mile behind the Ayden-Grifton High School.

The Adult Choir will conduct the service with special songs and testimonies. The congregation and the pastor, the Rev. Gary M. Bailey, invite the public to attend and to join in thanksgiving.

"Of course it's illegal, but it had to be done. In fact I'm going back tonight to burn some more files."

"Then that means you can't go to the Greens' for dinner?"

"No way. The President doesn't want one piece of paper linked to him."

"This is the third time we've canceled on the Greens. You should be ashamed of yourself."

"I can't help it. After I destroy the evidence I have to meet several members of the Committee to Re-Elect the President. They're getting chicken about the investigation and I'm going to have to lean on them pretty hard. I have to make sure they stick to the phony story we made up even if I have to bribe them."

"And what am I supposed to do while you're having a good time? Watch television?"

"Dearest, don't you understand? If this thing doesn't work out the way we want it to, I could go to jail for years."

"That reminds me. Your mother called and wants to know when your Aunt Katherine and Uncle Phil can visit the White House. You promised they wouldn't have to stand in line with the rest of the tourists."

"I have to tell you this in strictest confidence. The President has tape recordings of every conversation he had in his office. We have to listen to these tapes and erase anything that could incriminate him."

"Did you know that Johnny came in at one o'clock last night? If he had a father who kept decent hours he wouldn't try to get away with things like that."

"Will you stop bothering me with all this small talk? There's a smoking pistol out there somewhere and we have to deep-six it."

"Which means you're not going to call the plumber?"

"Let me ask one question. Knowing what you know now about my involvement in this Watergate mess, do you think I've done the right thing?"

"How should I know? I haven't been out of this house in a week."

every new Republican registrant they get will be a vote for Reagan.

As President, Mr. Ford could at any time be forced to make a decision on Cuba costing him heavily in the March 9 primary. The same is true with the Panama Canal, an issue only marginally less explosive than Cuba among Florida's Spanish-speaking population. But far worse for Mr. Ford's Florida managers, headed by the competent Rep. Louis Frey, is the President's seeming unawareness that he is in a battle here that could conceivably cost him his presidency. As one top uncommitted Republican told us: "If the White House has a campaign going on down here, it is a secret."

Local party leaders here in Orange County were flabbergasted when Mr. Ford regretted an invitation to speak to the county's Republican fund-raising dinner during the party's Lincoln Day festivities next February. The substitute: Ronald Reagan.

Likewise, a White House decision canceling a Ford speech at a special Congressional Medal of Honor ceremony in Lakeland Nov. 11 infuriated Republicans. The banner headline in the Lakeland Ledger—"Ford Snubs Lakeland"—ran over a picture of Mr. Ford addressing a West Virginia party fund-raising dinner the same night.

Such cavalier treatment is not advancing Mr. Ford's effort to overcome his party's leaders and activists and persuade rank-and-file Republicans to stay with him next March.

a successful merchant in Havana and six years later he had his own trading business in Spanish controlled New Orleans.

He made a bundle selling flour to the Spanish during one of their miniwars with the French Creoles and by the time the bullets started flying at Lexington and Concord he was one of the city's wealthiest men.

When the Continental Congress had difficulty raising tax money from a population that had been shouting "no taxation without representation" Pollock came to the rescue. He put his considerable fortune on the line and what he couldn't loan personally, he borrowed.

When Washington won at Yorktown, Pollock's creditors began clamoring for their money and he took a quick trip to Philadelphia seeking repayment. Congress, however, was broke.

"He finally got most of his money back but not until years later," Chase said. "He even landed in a debtor's prison in Cuba for a while."

Pollock spent his final years with a daughter on a plantation in western Mississippi and died in 1823.

NEW YORK (AP) — Doubts about the chances for a continued downtrend in interest rates weighed down the stock market today.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.54 at 839.97, and losers held a 6-5 edge on gainers in the over-all count at the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was relatively quiet. As trading began, New York's First National City Bank lowered its prime lending rate from 7 1/4 to 7 per cent, effective Monday.

But the open market money rates which tend to influence future moves in the prime rate were heading higher at the same time.

Rates on 13-week Treasury bills, for example, were quoted at 5.56 per cent, up from 5.44 per cent late Thursday.

The problem, analysts noted, came in Federal Reserve figures issued after the close Thursday, which showed a sharp rise in the nation's money supply for the second straight reporting week.

Credit experts figured that the bulge in the money supply was likely to influence the Fed to take a more restrictive credit policy in order to pursue its stated goal of holding down inflationary pressures.

Investors also were keeping an eye on a special session of the New York State Legislature, where the lawmakers were reported near agreement on new tax measures aimed at persuading President Ford to soften his opposition to federal help for New York City.

Dow Chemical slipped 1 1/4 to 90 1/2 in active trading. The U.S. Council on Wage and Price Stability asked the company to submit data on its plans for an antifreeze price increase.

The NYSE's composite index lost .08 to 47.35 in the first hour.

The American Stock Exchange market value index was down .18 at 84.34.

Speeding Up Rural Post Office Move

By JEFFREY MILLS
 Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service will accelerate its closing of rural post offices in a policy sure to arouse controversy in communities across the nation.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar on Thursday announced the new policy, which also is likely to spark opposition in Congress.

Bailar had continued the Postal Service's policy of slowly reducing the number of small post offices even after a General Accounting Office report in June suggested closing 12,000 offices.

The postmaster general agreed then that the closings would save $100 million without hurting service. But he said he was reluctant to adopt such a policy because of concern by congressmen about such closings.

In announcing Thursday's change, Bailar said, "I cannot emphasize too strongly the severity of our financial situation. It calls for strong measures but ones which must be taken."

The Postal Service is losing nearly $7 million a day. "We will close no office unless we are able to provide service equal to or superior to that formerly available," Bailar pledged.

When rural post offices are closed they usually are replaced by rural delivery.

In congressional hearings on the GAO recommendations, numerous witnesses complained that rural delivery is not equivalent to having a post office in a community.

In addition, a number of members in Congress representing rural constituencies expressed strong opposition to closing the small offices.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Ethel Briley of the home; two daughters, Sharon Alice and Betsy Ella Hope; one sister, Mrs. Willard T. Whitehurst of Bethel; one brother, Dr. Daniel Jordan of Bethel.

Lift Ban On Open Burning

RALEIGH (AP) — A ban on open burning was lifted today in all areas of North Carolina west of Interstate 95 in the eastern part of the state.

State Forester Ralph Winkworth said the mass of stagnant air had moved out of the western and most of the central part of the state. The mass was expected to be away from the east by late today or early tomorrow at which time the ban will be lifted in those areas.

The temporary cancellation of all burning permits had been ordered early Wednesday by Winkworth. The stagnant air mass had prevented smoke and gases from rising and being carried off by upper air currents.

Not Everybody Likes Moynihan Statements

By GENE KRAMER
 Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Daniel Patrick Moynihan is living up to his promise to talk back to America's critics at the United Nations. But some of America's friends as well as its foes don't like it.

After four months as the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, the former Harvard professor, adviser to President Nixon and ambassador to India has become the most controversial American delegate in years as a result of his frequent, outspoken statements.

He has generated more fan mail from Americans than most of his predecessors. He has also generated an undercurrent of criticism that he is violating an old rule that the most effective diplomacy is quiet diplomacy.

It started among delegates usually hostile to the United States. Some West European diplomats joined in during the losing battle to kill the Arab-Communist resolution terming Zionism a form of racism.

One criticism was that Moynihan was both undiplomatic and counter-productive in reminding the General Assembly that most of its member nations are dictatorships and that Congress may retaliate when the United States doesn't get its way.

Whatever else the United Nations is, "it is not the O.K. Corral, and I am hardy Wyatt Earp," British Ambassador Ivor Richard said in a speech this week to the directors of the United Nations Association of the United States.

"My function is to use the United Nations, not to purge it, particularly if ... the chances are I would end up by encouraging my enemies, irritating my friends and isolating my country."

Some West Europeans said Moynihan's strong statements about totalitarian governments were overdue. But one West European said during the Zionism fight, "We might be able to stop the resolution if Moynihan would keep quiet."

Moynihan says diplomacy in the spotlight of the United Nations is unlike behind-scenes, day-to-day diplomacy, and anti-American oratory must be answered. He wrote in a magazine article last March, before his appointment, "It is time ... the American spokesman came to be feared for the truths he might tell."

"If you bite back occasionally, you may get bit less often," he commented last month.

No Charges In Traffic Mishap

No charges were reported following investigation of a 3:25 p.m. Wednesday collision at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Truman Street which resulted in an estimated $450 damage to each of the two cars involved.

Police identified the drivers of the cars as Robert Harold Staton of Bethel and David Richie Melvin of Winston-Salem.

Pirates Close Season Against Keydets

SIGNS FIRST GRANT TO WOMEN — Gail Betton signs East Carolina University's first grant-in-aid to a woman athlete yesterday as Athletic Director Bill Cain looks on. Miss Betton, a junior from Millsboro, Del., is a field hockey player. Later in the day, six others, Clare Albritton and Beverly Osborne, swimming; Debbie Freeman and April Ross, basketball; Frances Swenholt, field hockey; and Donna Williford, track, joined in her in signing grants. (Reflector Photo)

Athletic Grants Go To Seven ECU Women

A new chapter in the East Carolina University athletic program opened yesterday when Gail Betton became the first female athlete to sign a grant-in-aid at the school.

Miss Betton, a junior from Millsboro, Del., was the first of seven girls to sign grants for the 1975-76 school year.

A member of the women's field hockey team, Miss Betton was recently selected to the Deep South field hockey team, which participated in a regional tournament.

During her high school days, Miss Betton participated in field hockey, basketball and tennis, making All-Conference in each of these.

She came to East Carolina University to study music, and plans a career in music therapy. Prior to this year, she has also played basketball at the university, but does not plan to participate in that sport this year.

As a sophomore, she was selected to the Deep South field hockey team also, advancing that year to the National Tournament.

Following graduation next year, she hopes to continue playing the sport on a club basis, and possibly coach in addition to her rehabilitation work.

The other women who received grants include: Clare Albrittain, a sophomore swimmer from Arlington, Va.; Debbie Freeman, a sophomore basketball player from Jacksonville; Beverly Osborne, a senior swimmer from Winston-Salem; April Ross, a freshman basketball player from Bath; Frances Swenholt, a senior field hockey player from Falls Church, Va.; and Donna Williford, a freshman track performer from New Bern.

The 1975 football season draws to a close Saturday night in Ficklen Stadium as Virginia Military Institute comes to visit the East Carolina Pirates. Kickoff is set for 7 p.m.

For the Keydets, the defending Southern Conference champions, it will mean the end of a very disappointing season. There will be no repeat championship. In fact, an upset victory over the Bucs would be one of the few bright spots along the way. The Keydets, struggling home with a 2-7 record, has lost their last five in a row, and have scored just 10 points in their last three outings. All the steam seems to have gone out of their sails after a 24-19 loss to Richmond.

East Carolina, meanwhile, may have a bid to the Tangerine Bowl riding on the outcome. The Bucs, going for their sixth straight win, and an 8-3 finish, are among five or six teams being considered for the December 21 game in Orlando, Fla.

A win for the Bucs would keep them in contention, while a defeat would mean an end to any hopes of a post-season berth.

Coach Pat Dye doesn't think the win, if it comes, will come easy.

"They are big, both offensively and defensively. They have big fullbacks and their line must average 240 or 45 points."

Dye would not speculate on what the problem with the Keydets is. "They've lost some very close games this year. No body has really run right over them."

The coach noted that the Keydet offense seems to be inconsistent. "At times they move the ball very well, both on the ground and through the air. Then something seems to happen to stop them. I know they've played three good defensive teams in their last three games."

Dye isn't sure how the open date will affect his Pirates. "We had a real poor practice on Monday, but they've been working well since then. Of course, we are right in the middle of exams (during practice—they ended yesterday and most of the student body has gone home) and this hurts our concentration. I'm not really thinking about a bowl game. Of course I'm honored that they would consider us."

Dye feels that the possibility of an invitation will be an incentive for both teams Saturday. For VMI, it will be a chance to ruin the Pirates hopes, for the Bucs, a chance to show off their abilities. The coach feels that VMI will try to throw the ball quite a bit. "I hope that we'll be able to force them into the air," he said. "I believe that the easiest way to the end zone is through the handoff."

Dye is not a superstitious man. If he were, he might be worried about the game. Last year, the Bucs dropped four games, to N.C. State, Appalachian State, Richmond and VMI. This year, they've lost three—State, Appalachian and Richmond.

"This is a different team," Dye said. "We have more oneness. We were new last year, and it's taken us a while to get our feet on the ground."

The Bucs really became a team five games ago, when they took a 3-0 win over The Citadel. After that, they have rolled. The next game produced 162 points, while giving up 51, and included victories over North Carolina and Virginia of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The 642 yards rushing and 690 yards in total offense against Virginia is the highest total this year by an NCAA school.

VMI, meanwhile, has had trouble moving the ball on the ground. They've rushed for just 1,163 yards as compared to 2,809 for the Pirates. The longest run from scrimmage for a Keydet is 20 yards, pale by comparison to the long runs ripped off by the Bucs.

VMI, in contrast, has passed for 1,234 yards, hitting 103 of 194, with nine intercepted. East Carolina has thrown 112 times, hitting 51 for 940. Just four have been picked off.

Both teams have good pass defenses. VMI's 52.9 yards allowed per game is tops in the country. They've picked off 10 passes. The Bucs have allowed 132.4 yards a game, but have picked off 22 passes, led by Jim Bolding's nine, best in the nation.

Mark Lambert has handled most of the passing, hitting 93 of 174, a fine 53.4 percent for 1,099 yards. On the ground, Kim Glidewell leads the way with 426 yards in 157 carries.

The biggest threat may be split end Ronnie Moore, who had caught 35 passes for 490 yards. Ken Brooks, the tight end has picked up 332 yards on 24 catches.

East Carolina's multi-manned offense is led by Mike Weaver with 650 total yard, 298 rushing and 352 passing. Ken Strayhorn has rushed for 576 yards, while Willie Hawkins has picked up 506 on the ground.

The top receiver, when Weaver does go to the air, is Terry Gallaher, the split end who has caught 12 passes for 420 yards and seven touchdowns. Hawkins has 11 for 231 yards.

The big chance for the Bucs was going back to the wish-bone—completely—after The Citadel game. "We've gotten some big plays on passes, too," Dye reminded. "We have had good blocking and we're coming off the ball well. We have won on execution, and by doing what the other team has left open for us."

"It takes several things to be a winner. It takes execution; all 11 people doing their jobs to the best of their ability; movement; speed and quickness; contact; hitting people, getting up and hitting them again; and it takes second and third effort."

"We've had this in the last few games," Dye said. "I hope it continues."

Scrimmage Scheduled

East Carolina University's basketball team plays two Purple-Gold games this weekend.

Tonight, the Bucs play their third game on the "road" appearing at Rosewood High School, just outside Goldsboro. That is slated to begin at 8 p.m.

Saturday afternoon, starting at 5 p.m., the final Purple-Gold game will be held in Minges Coliseum, ending prior to the start of the East Carolina-VMI football game in neighboring Ficklen Stadium.

Coach Dave Patton's charges will open the 1975-76 season next Saturday visiting the nationally ranked Maryland Terapins.

Petty Out To Cap Off Year

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Richard Petty tries to cap an incredible season Sunday in the Times 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway, the final National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing Grand National stock car race of 1975.

Petty has won 13 times in 29 races.

And his third place finish in the Dixie 500 two weeks ago at Atlanta pushed him over the $300,000 mark for the second time in his career.

The racer from Randleman, S.C., has driven his Dodge to $307,005 in winnings and has led more laps than any other driver on the stock car circuit this season.

Petty's bid for a sixth Grand National championship will be challenged on the 2.5-mile oval by Buddy Baker, the winner at Atlanta, 1973 NASCAR champion Benny Parsons, defending Times 500 champion Bobby Allison and USAC champion A.J. Foyt.

Other entries for the $150,000 race include Cale Yarborough, Dave Marcis and six-time Grand National West champ Ray Elder.

Petty maintained that although his year might look like a runaway, that hasn't been the case.

"It really has been a competitive season," said Petty. "I've won four or five races and been less than a car length in front when it was over."

NASCAR statistics show how close the racing has been, even though Petty has won far more than anyone else.

Eight different drivers have won, although no one other than Petty has won more than three, and more than 30 drivers have led Grand National Races. Nine different drivers have won pole positions.

Allison is expected to provide major competition to Petty.

That's the way it was when the two met earlier this year at Riverside International Raceway for a 400-mile stock car road race that Petty won.

Allison has had a string of successes in Southern California that started with winning this race last year. He has taken four major races here in 13 months.

"You're always fond of any place where you can win," Allison said.

Allison drives a Matador prepared by the team of Roger Penske and has won three Grand Nationals this year.

"We've had a successful season, but I'd like to have won more," Baker said in preparing to complete the year.

Giants Sale May Be Near

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sale of the San Francisco Giants' National League baseball franchise "very likely could take place at a meeting of owners Dec. 8" in Hollywood, Fla., an executive of the club says.

Jerry Donovan, assistant to owner Horace Stoneham, made the statement Thursday but gave no hint to the identity of a possible purchaser.

The team went up for sale last May, and since then a number of potential buyers have been in and out of the picture.

"We're starting to look at the clock now," said Charles B. Rupert, treasurer and executive vice president of the club.

Both Stoneham and Rupert were optimistic any new owner would keep the Giants in San Francisco. "We've been working toward that in all our efforts," Rupert said.

Manager Wes Westrum and his coaching staff were sent formal dismissal notices Wednesday but were told long ago to expect the move, said Donovan. Terminating the contracts, said Donovan, was done so new owners could install their own men and so Westrum and the four coaches would be free to go after other jobs.

The club's board had a meeting tentatively scheduled for today, but it was canceled late Thursday when Stoneham, here from his home in Scottsdale, Ariz., entered Stanford Medical Center for an operation.

The 72-year-old owner of 51 per cent of the stock in the Giants' parent company needs surgery to correct dilation of an abdominal artery and is expected to be hospitalized about a week, said Dr. Robert Bullingham of Phoenix.

Stoneham's illness is not expected to delay negotiations to sell the club, which lost $1.7 million in 1974 and probably had a higher loss for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31.

"We have plenty of assets, but we're short of cash," said Rupert, explaining why a $125,000 rent bill due the city last February for use of Candlestick Park is still unpaid.

Known to be interested in the club are a Canadian group seeking to move the club to Toronto and a San Francisco group headed by Robert Lurie, a club board member who says his group is interested only if the Giants can stay here.

"As of now, I'm not in it. Nothing's really happening now," said Lurie late Thursday without ruling out the possibility of an offer from his group. "But I understand there's still interest from Toronto."

Labatts Brewery of Toronto reportedly offered $15 million for the team and the parent company's real estate holdings in Arizona and Minnesota.

Rampants, Bucs Are Favorites

We're down to the final week of our panel's picks, and there still can be some changes in the final standings.

Jack Whichard leads the pack going into the last stages. He has a 96-32 record. Tom Baines still has a chance to catch him, holding down a 93-35 record, but his picks don't reflect it. He has only one difference and is doomed to finish second.

Joe Jenkins is in third with a 90-38 mark, and also could have moved up, but his picks didn't fall in line. He has only two differences, and at best will be third.

George Holland holds to fourth at 86-42, and does have a chance to move up on Joe, having five differences among the 12 picks. However, he's going to have to come through on some upsets.

This writer is next, just one back of Holland with an 85-43 mark, and has five differences, too, with Holland. Finally, Diane Allen is on the bottom with a 78-50 mark, and her picks make it impossible for her to advance.

Three of us missed on last week's Rose-Seventy-First game, but narry a whimper was heard. We did get some static from some of the Rose fans, but not nearly as much as we'll get this week.

Seems they were happy when we picked them to lose—say they do better. Well, we're not trying to jinx them, but five of six pick the Rampants to down Garner tonight—and this writer is not the lone holdout.

The game pits unbeaten Garner against twice beaten Rose for the right to move into the Eastern 4-A finals. Garner is small and quick, but most of us feel that the Trojans haven't played the same brand of competition. Only Holland objects, picking Garner.

In the only other high school action, Roanoke travels to Fairmont. Both teams put 10-1 records on the line for the game, and it should be something. Our panel really can't decide on it. Some feel the Redskins can't be stopped, while others feel that in this situation, the home field could be fatal for them. It's a 3-3 tossup for the contest.

East Carolina University closes out its regular season against Southern Conference foe Virginia Military. The Keydets have had their problems this year, coming off last year's championship season. The Pirates, after a slow start, have ripped off five in a row, and still are shooting for a post-season bowl bid.

Our panel likes the Pirates. It's a 6-0 choice for them.

The rest of the games look like this to our group: Appalachian over Davidson; Richmond over William & Mary; Duke over North Carolina; Virginia Tech over Wake Forest; Citadel over Chattanooga; Furman over Wofford; South Carolina over Clemson; Maryland over Virginia; and Missouri and Kansas a toss-up.

Seniorless William & Mary Is Seen As Challenge For Title

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

WILLIAMSBURG, Va.—There is something about the William & Mary basketball roster that throws a scare into most of the coaches in the Southern Conference. It also puts a big smile onto the face of Indian Coach George Balanis.

Nowhere, from top to bottom, does a senior appear on the team. There just aren't any. There are four juniors, nine sophomores and just two freshmen. It makes a lot of the coaches shudder, knowing that the Indians are going to be better than they were last time out.

There is one man missing from last year's team, Matt Courage, who flunked out of school. He returns to campus in January, but will not be eligible to play during this season.

"This is a problem for us," Balanis said. "We had a lot of fouls in the center last year. We don't have any backup height now." In fact, Dennis Vail, who started last year at center, is the only true big man, at 6-10, on the Indian roster. There are two 6-8 forwards, Rocky Copley and Doug Myers, both sophomores, but neither really qualify as a "big man."

Balanis expects a better team than the one which finished third last year in the league and went on to upset East Carolina in the semi-finals of the tournament.

"Mike Enoch has grown two inches (now 6-6)," Balanis said. "Ron Satterthwaite is back and he's one of the best guards in the South. John Kratzer is playing well. John Lowenhaupt was one of the best freshmen in the league last year, and then Vail is back at center."

But the biggest problem remains the lack of a back-up center. Jim McDonough, a 6-7 junior, or Myers, probably will get the role. Copley might take over, but he won't be able to play until midseason because of ineligibility. "Rod Musselman has returned to school and he's improved," Balanis said. He had dropped out of school due to grades last year.

Both of the freshmen, 6-1 Billy Harrington and 6-7 Mark Risinger are rated by Balanis as outstanding freshmen.

"Skip Parnell, a 6-3 sophomore, has been a big surprise for us. He's very good player." Another sophomore, 6-2 Danny Monckton, is injured now.

"Injuries have been a problem for us. A couple of weeks ago, we had five people miss practice because of freaky little accidents—running into each other and that sort of thing. We had to put a manager out there one time, just to practice."

Balanis looks for a very balanced race in the Southern this year. "Everyone has a shot at the championship. I really hate to see Richmond leaving the conference. Our league may be just a year or two away from being level with the ACC."

Balanis plans on having his Indians continue the same style of play they used last year—pressure defense, and having all five players involved in the offense. "We work 75 per cent of the time in practice on our pressure defense. If we play good defense and we rebound well, we'll win a lot of games. I don't believe we could ever be a running team; we're not that fast. We have to play our style ball, and we have to do it as a team."

The Indians will make good use of the four-corner offense too. "This is a part of our game," the coach said. "Against Virginia Tech, we struggled back and went ahead with 11:40 to go, then went to the four-corners. It gets the other teams out of their patterns. It's our bread-and-butter. When we go to it, our players feel like we've got the other team beaten."

Perhaps the most important factor the Indians must change is their road record. Last year, the team posted a 16-12 mark, the best in 25 years. But only three of those wins came on the road; the other 13 were at home. "We have to learn to win on the road," Balanis said. "It's the sign of a good basketball team to win on the road. When we've learned this, we'll be all right."

Spiders Might Make Coach Liar

By The Associated Press

Richmond's Southern Conference football champion Spiders will be out to make a liar Saturday of Coach Jim Tait, while William and Mary's Indians may be out to save the job of Coach Jim Root.

Tait several times during the season predicted no team would go undefeated in the conference, but his Spiders need only to beat the Indians to finish 6-0 against league opposition and 6-5 over-all.

By contrast, William and Mary has won just once in four league starts and just once in 10 starts against all opposition, and Root knows his position isn't entirely secure.

At the same time, Root says "with the people we've got coming back off this year's team, I know we're going to be a winner in the future." And he's indicated he won't give up the post voluntarily.

The Richmond-William and Mary encounter is one of three conference games on tap Saturday.

The other afternoon scrap has Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 2-2 in the league and 7-3 over-all, at home against Davidson's Wildcats, 0-2 and 1-7.

East Carolina's Pirates, who've won their last five starts to go 3-2 in the league and 7-3 over-all, play host Saturday night to Virginia Military's Keydets, who've lost five in a row to fall to 2-3 and 2-7 after winning the conference title a year ago.

A pair of nonleague night encounters have The Citadel's Bulldogs, 6-4, at Tennessee-Chattanooga and Furman's Paladins, 5-5, at Wofford. Victories by Richmond and Furman would give the league five teams with winning over-all records for the first time since 1960.

Only one game remains for a conference team after this weekend, VMI closing out Nov. 29 at Connecticut.

"The game means a lot to us," says Root in an understatement about the Richmond-William and Mary collision.

Besides the chance to finish a perfect conference season, the Spiders will be looking for revenge for a 54-12 drubbing they took last year from the Indians the day after it was announced William and Mary's administration was backing a big-time football program.

Ohio State And Nebraska Place Rank On Line With Arch-Rivals

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Ohio State and Nebraska, college football's top-ranked teams, put their unbeaten records and national championship hopes on the line Saturday in road games against arch rivals.

The No. 1-ranked Buckeyes, 10-0, face No. 4 Michigan, 8-0-2, at Ann Arbor with the Big Ten title and a Rose Bowl bid at stake. The Cornhuskers, 10-0 and rated No. 2, invade Norman, Okla. to meet No. 7 Oklahoma, 9-1, with the Big Eight crown and an Orange Bowl bid awaiting the winner.

Both games were sold out almost before the ink was dry on the tickets and coaches Woody Hayes of Ohio State and Tom Osborne of Nebraska are beside themselves with anticipation.

"This is the greatest rivalry in college football," declared Hayes. "Our season boils down to this game and that's the way it should be."

"It'll be the best against the best," said Osborne. "I'm not even going to predict victory. I will predict there will be 100 per cent effort on our part."

Ohio State and Michigan figure to wage a land war with Buckeye backs Archie Griffin, last season's Heisman Trophy winner, and Pete Johnson pounding away at the Wolverines' ferocious defense and Gordon Bell and Rob Lytle carrying the mail for Michigan against an equally mighty Ohio State defense.

The last four games in the series all have been low-scoring affairs with Ohio State getting 43 points and Michigan just 41. The loser will get a bid to the Orange Bowl as a consolation prize.

The Nebraska-Oklahoma game matches the Sooners' explosive wishbone attack, keyed by swift halfback Joe Washington and deft quarterback Steve Davis, against a Cornhusker attack that mixes the passing of Vince Ferragamo with the running of power backs Tony Davis and John O'Leary.

Oklahoma, the defending national champion, will be gunning for its fourth straight victory in the series. If the Sooners lose they have agreed to play in the Fiesta Bowl. If the Cornhuskers lose, they have agreed not to play anywhere.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 9 Colorado, headed for the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, hosts Kansas State; No. 10 Penn State, set for the Sugar Bowl, visits No. 17 Pittsburgh, a Sun Bowl invitee, for the "Pennsylvania State Championship" and attendant recruiting benefits; No. 11 Arizona hosts Utah at night; No. 13 California is at Stanford in a key Pac-8 matchup; No. 16 Miami of Ohio, headed for the Tangerine Bowl, entertains Cincinnati; No. 18 Missouri is at Kansas with a Sun Bowl bid awaiting the winner; No. 19 Arkansas, still in the running for the Southwest Conference title, hosts Texas Tech and No. 20 Maryland, a Gator Bowl club, hosts Virginia.

The other ranked teams are idle.

Other key matchups find Harvard at Yale for the Ivy League crown and Clemson at South Carolina, North Carolina at Duke and LSU at Tulane in traditional grudge matches.

McAdoo Likes To Play There

By The Associated Press
The Cleveland Coliseum never is the same after a visit by Bob McAdoo.

The Buffalo Braves' star seems to play some of his best games there. Last year, he had 49 points one night to break the Coliseum scoring record—and Thursday night, he bettered that mark by one.

"I guess it's just playing against Jim Chones. We're real good friends," McAdoo said after his 50 points powered the Braves to a 118-115 overtime National Basketball Association victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

As far as Buffalo was concerned, it was a good night for McAdoo to put on a record-breaking performance. The Braves had to wipe out a 23-point deficit to win the pulsating contest.

In the night's only other NBA game, the Washington Bullets whipped the Atlanta Hawks 105-96. In the American Basketball Association, the Indiana Pacers stopped the Denver Nuggets 117-112.

McAdoo had a chance to win the game in Cleveland with one second left to play in regulation time, but his 22-footer missed, and the game went into overtime. McAdoo, Garfield Heard and Randy Smith contributed four points each to put the Braves safely in front in the overtime period.

Jim Chones dunked a basket midway through the third quarter to boost Cleveland to a 79-56 lead, but the Braves closed to a 14-point margin at 86-72 by the end of the quarter. The Braves' hot streak continued into the fourth, when they outscored the Cavaliers 15-4 in a four-minute span, Dick Gibbs leading the way with six points.

Cleveland's Campy Russell came off the bench in the last six minutes and scored six points to help keep the Cavaliers in the game as Buffalo tied it up in the closing minutes.

Bullets 105, Hawks 96
Phil Chenier scored six of his game-high 22 points in the final three minutes to power Washington past Atlanta, taking first place in the NBA's Central Division from the Hawks.

Chenier sank two long jumpers and then scored on a fast break as the Bullets broke open a tight game in the closing minutes for their seventh victory in 11 starts. Atlanta trailed throughout the contest, but cut a 76-67 deficit to 90-88 with four minutes remaining. The Bullets then regrouped and scored 15 of the game's last 23 points.

Pacers 117, Nuggets 112
Indiana's Billy Knight scored 36 points, including 12 in the fourth quarter, as the Pacers choked off a Denver rally. The victory, Indiana's fifth straight, moved the Pacers one-half game ahead of the Nuggets in first place in the ABA West.

Maryland Seeks Second Title

By The Associated Press
Maryland seeks a victory at home over doormat Virginia Saturday for a record-tying 15th straight Atlantic Coast Conference football triumph.

That also would mean successful defense of its league championship, an 8-2-1 regular season, and getting off on the right foot toward its meeting with Florida in the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville on Dec. 29.

The game will be one of four that will finish the regular season for ACC teams.

Virginia has dropped eight in a row. The Cavaliers haven't won since they edged VMI 22-21 in the second game of the year.

Duke is assured of second place for its best finish since 1970. The Blue Devils, 3-0-1 in the ACC will be home to North Carolina, which needs a victory to avert its poorest overall finish since 1968, when it was 3-7. The Tar Heels are 3-7 now, and have won only one of five league games.

Duke retains a shot at the title should Virginia upset Maryland.

Wake Forest already has its best finish in the league since it won the title on 5-1 in 1970. The Deacons are 3-3 in the league. They are 3-7 in all games, and a victory at Virginia Tech will mean matching the total number of victories of the three previous years.

Clemson has never failed to win three games a season since the ACC was formed 22 years ago. But the Tigers will have to whip arch-rival South Carolina in an away game to prevent a final 2-9 mark.

N.C. State has finished its regular season at 7-3 and will meet West Virginia in the Peach Bowl in Atlanta Dec. 31.

The ACC already is assured of a new average per-game attendance record. Thirty-six home dates so far have attracted 1,265,931 spectators, an average of 35,164. The previous best per-game average was 32,662 a year ago. The ACC will establish a new total attendance mark on the final day of the 1975 season. Only 40,531 fans will have to pass through the turnstiles at Durham (North Carolina at Duke) and College Park (Virginia at Maryland) to surpass the total attendance record of 1,306,461.

Problems Of Super Kids

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Tim's parents realized they had a problem when Tim wrote his second love letter to a pop singer and began reciting the alphabet backwards. He was three at the time.

Barbara's mother was stunned when the family doctor told her, "you should get that young lady into school." Barbara was 18 months old.

London has just finished hosting the first international conference to consider the problems of "super kids" like Tim and Barbara.

Five hundred delegates attended from 55 countries, for super kids are not all that rare, said Henry Collis, director of Britain's National Association for Gifted Children.

"About 2 per cent of the school population is 'gifted' — that is, an IQ of 140 (the "genius" level) to 145 and up," Collis said.

But extreme brilliance is a mixed blessing. "It can bring enormous problems," Collis said.

How can teachers — let alone parents — cope with a girl of eight who can outwit computers, or a nine-year-old who wants to learn Greek?

What's more, too many brilliant brains are never identified and properly trained, thus wasting potential the world sorely needs.

Gradually educators and sociologists are focusing on these twin problems. The London conference which Collis organized in September dramatized a new and quickening interest in gifted children world wide.

For five days its delegates discussed how to identify gifted children, how to educate them to their full potential, how to foster their creative abilities and prevent emotional disturbances.

"The intelligence of some of these children is simply amazing," Collis said in an interview.

"This summer I took some of our children to a computer programming course," one of seven summer schools he supervised for the extra bright. "We went to a film which gives adults this sort of instruction regularly. The children were aged 11 to 14.

"In two days they learned more than adults do in a week. They wanted to work right up to midnight and beyond. The instructors just couldn't keep up."

Delegates at the London conference debated the best way of educating such children — in special classes or in ordinary schools. They discussed where the "gifted" category should begin — at IQ 120 as in the United States or IQ 140 as in Britain.

All 55 nations described what their countries are doing for the gifted and talented. American education methods were outlined by Dr. Harold Lyon, Director of the Gifted and Talented in the U.S. Office of Education. No other government has such a high-level official concerned solely with the problem.

His speech, plus the 55 national papers, will be included in a book called "Looking to Their Future," a volume summing up the London conference. Another conference will be held in California in 1977.

Before then, other nations may organize associations like Collis' nine-year-old one. It works through 36 local branches composed of parents, teachers and outside volunteers. They tackle the problems of Britain's 20,000 gifted children on a local basis, Collis said.

"Some doctors believe they can spot these children at birth," said Collis, a teacher for 33 years.

"Many are walking and talking under a year old. When they talk they begin with sentences, not single words. They have incredible memories. I know several two-year-olds who know the meanings of hundreds of words.

"The gifted child's sleep pattern is often very short, and this can drive a parent wild — especially if the parent needs eight hours and the child three," he said. "The most extreme case I know is one boy who for the first 13 years of his life never slept more than an hour a night."

But Collis insisted that "the vast majority of these children are a joy. They get on so easily."

Even so, it becomes more difficult to identify a gifted child the lower down the social ladder you go, Collis said.

"Having such a child is regarded as a stigma, as something different and therefore to be shunned," he said.

"In these areas, only one gifted child in five is even being identified. That means the tremendous potential of four in five is being totally wasted."

Collis' association and the London conference delegates want to stop such waste. They also want to stop children who are "confined by their brilliance" from going wrong, Collis said.

An Association pamphlet put the alternatives starkly: "Gifted children can be tomorrow's dropouts and delinquents, or they can be tomorrow's leaders, inventors, scientists and artists," it said. "The problem is to help them fulfill their potential."

Committee Citations Against Kissinger Head To House Floor

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House intelligence committee contempt of Congress citations against Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger are headed for the House floor despite President Ford's plea that the panel reconsider.

The committee voted Thursday to report three contempt citations to the House floor for possible action next month.

But Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., said he would not press two of the citations if Ford's advisers turn over all the documents they promised in a compromise.

Pike also raised the possibility of further compromise, telling the committee: "I think we have gained a little ground today. I believe whether we will gain any additional ground remains to be seen."

Ford said he invoked executive privilege against complying with a subpoena for Kissinger to turn over all State Department requests for court intelligence operations because Kissinger was only "acting on my instructions."

The State Department requests involved military and foreign affairs secrets, Ford said. But beyond that, he said, "the documents revealed to an unacceptable degree the consultation process involving advice and recommendations to Presidents Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon."

Ford offered a compromise on two of the contempt citations. Assistant Atty. Gen. Antonin Scalia told the panel that all subpoenaed documents dealing with Soviet compliance with past arms agreements would be turned over as far as he knew.

On another subpoena, Scalia said the White House would not deliver details about all covert operations since 1965, but that committee staff members would be allowed to see them.

The possibility of a compromise on the third was raised when Pike asked if the access to all covert operations could include a designation of which ones had been recommended by the State Department.

Scalia replied that the White House may be willing to fill that gap but said he could not be sure of that.

On the subpoena covering covert operations, the committee voted 10 to 3 to report the citation to the House and 8 to 5 to report the other two contempt citations.

Radioactive Debris In Soviet Nuclear Tests

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of Russia's recent big underground nuclear tests apparently have spewed some radioactive debris into the atmosphere, U.S. intelligence sources report.

Radioactive gaseous debris was collected outside Russia's territory following a 3.8-megaton test on Oct. 18 and a two-megaton blast on Oct. 21, sources said. A megaton is the equivalent of one million tons of TNT.

The tests were conducted on the Soviet island of Novaya Zemlya in the Arctic.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union are pushing underground testing of larger nuclear weapons so they can complete development programs before next April when a new treaty goes into effect.

The U.S.-Soviet treaty limits underground tests to 150 kilotons, or the blast power of 150,000 tons of TNT. An earlier treaty bans nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere, in space and underwater.

Congress voted money for accelerated testing to beat the 1976 deadline and the United States so far has announced 14 underground tests in Nevada this year, with the latest on Thursday.

U.S. officials said there was no radioactive leakage from the blast a half-mile deep in the Nevada desert. The blast had a yield of between 200,000 and one million tons of TNT, caused a shock measured at 6.0 on the Richter scale — the force of a substantial earthquake — and splashed water from Las Vegas hotel swimming pools and swayed chandeliers inside the resort's glittering casinos. The blast site was 110 miles to the north of the city.

The nuclear device was at least 10 times and possibly 50 times as powerful as the atomic bombs which devastated two Japanese cities in the closing days of World War II.

Officials of the Energy Research and Development Administration said that in the past three or four years no U.S. underground nuclear explosion has "vented" or blown radioactive debris into the atmosphere.

Missiles Are Seen By Airliner Pilots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating a report by two airline pilots that they saw missiles near their passenger jet as it flew south of Richmond, Va., an FAA official says.

Raymond G. Belanger, chief of the FAA's air traffic service, said Thursday that an Eastern Airlines pilot reported seeing some missiles a couple of thousand feet above his DC9 plane Wednesday. The co-pilot reportedly also saw them.

Angelo Viselli, chief of the Washington air traffic control center at Leesburg, Va., said computer and sound tapes of air traffic activity were being examined.

"If it was a missile, it just shouldn't be there," Viselli said. "We can't handle rockets, we have enough trouble with airplanes."

The Eastern pilot was identified as Capt. C. S. Wilson of Hollywood, Fla., and the flight as Eastern 852, from West Palm Beach, Fla., to Washington.

The plane was descending from an altitude of 24,000 feet toward an assigned altitude of 15,000 feet as part of its approach to National Airport. The sighting occurred about 60 miles south of Richmond, near Emporia, Va.

FAA officials said military missile firing is restricted to areas over the ocean and is prohibited in regular commercial air corridors.

Water Thrown By Caroline

LONDON (AP) — Caroline Kennedy threw a cup of water at a press photographer who was trailing her, the Daily Express reported today with pictures.

The Express said the "splash and run" encounter occurred when Jacqueline Onassis' 17-year-old daughter popped out of Sotheby's, the London auction house where she is taking an art course, for midmorning coffee Thursday.

Her target was freelance photographer Mike Daines, one of five cameramen who were pursuing the late President Kennedy's long-haired daughter, the paper said.

Caroline left the snack bar with a cup of water, the Express reported, and as she passed Daines in the street, "suddenly wheeled round and dashed the water in his face. It cascaded down his crimson cheeks and over his camera. Then Caroline was scuttling away, back to work."

As he dried off, Daines said: "If I'd been her, I would probably have done the same."

The Express published three pictures of the incident, one showing the girl leaving the snack bar holding the cup; the second of the stream of water heading for Daines, and the third showing Caroline dashing off.

Local gossip columnists reported Thursday that Mrs. Onassis had made her daughter cancel plans for her 18th birthday party next week because of the recent publicity about Caroline's busy social life in London.

Bomb-Mail Intercepted

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — A letter bomb addressed to Governor-General Sir John Kerr was intercepted and defused in the Canberra post office today, authorities reported.

It was the third such device sent to officials who played a part in the ouster last week of Laborite Prime Minister Gough Whitlam. Like the others it was mailed from Sydney.

Kerr fired Whitlam Nov. 11 and ordered an election Dec. 13 to resolve the impasse resulting from the the conservative-controlled Senate's refusal to approve the Labor government's budget and Whitlam's refusal to resign so that an election could be held.

Kerr appointed the leader of the opposition, Malcolm Fraser, caretaker prime minister. Fraser and his political ally, Premier Joh Bjelke-Petersen of Queensland state, were sent letter bombs Wednesday. The one to Bjelke-Petersen exploded, injuring two young clerks in his office.

Whitlam and other Labor party leaders condemned the letter bombs.

Fervent Appeal By Queen's Twin

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Princess Ashraf Pahlavi, twin sister of Shah Reza Pahlavi of Iran, has made a "fervent appeal" for U.N. support of any proposal to integrate women in the process of economic development. She said Thursday that in underdeveloped nations women often find themselves "unequal in the midst of inequality."

No Christmas Mail For Many Canada Families

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — Many Canadians face the prospect of no Christmas mail — and no Christmas bills — as the postal strike goes into its second month with both sides standing firm.

For the businessman, the strike means unpaid customer bills, cash flow problems and forced borrowing to meet expenses.

Toronto city police say the strike is delaying justice. More than 45,000 summonses have been issued since inside postal workers walked out Oct. 21, and most are piling up in police stations. Additional charges for delayed payment have been waived.

The Ottawa police are delivering summonses by courier, but "it's costing us money," one officer said.

Letter carriers, who are not on strike, are delivering pension checks that have been sorted by supervisory staff and the few inside postal workers who have crossed picket lines.

Veterans' and family welfare checks are to be delivered beginning next week.

Sales of Christmas cards are down 50 per cent. Students of correspondence schools can't send in their assignments.

The business community, including such representative organizations as the Retail Merchants' Association and the Halifax Board of Trade, has sent hundreds of telegrams to the federal government demanding an end to the strike. Many demand back-to-work legislation.

But some businessmen have found ways to get their message, and bills, to the consumer.

Ian Tower, owner of a jewelry chain in New Brunswick, said he and two other companies rotate delivery of bills.

"It's surprising how you find ways of getting from one place to another," said Tower.

In Edmunston, N.B., representatives of a finance company are going from door to door like milkmen collecting payments.

The British Columbia Telephone Co. reports a 10 per cent increase in long-distance calls, but bill payments are off 50 per cent. This is causing a daily cash shortage of $750,000, which the company is borrowing at 10 per cent interest, a spokesman said.

Bell Canada is delivering its bills by hand to urban customers.

The strike negotiations are stalemated, with the government offering $1.70 an hour over 30 months, while the union wants $2.73 an hour more than its top current rate of $4.59 in a 27-month contract.

Screening Plan Begun

A Statewide Pre-kindergarten Screening Program (SPSP) has begun operation in Bertie County.

Administered by the N.C. Division of Health Services, Bertie's screening teams are working under the supervision of the regional Developmental Evaluation Clinic at East Carolina University.

Similar programs to be supervised by the ECU clinic will be established in Martin, Hyde, Beaufort, Greene, Pitt and Wayne Counties.

Other programs have been implemented in Watauga, Wake and Durham Counties.

Purpose of the screening program is to provide a profile for each four-year-old, reflecting his or her developmental and physical status before entering kindergarten. Each child is given a standardized test and is examined for possible vision and hearing problems. The screening also includes interviews with parents.

Center Of Gravity For Christianity Changing

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 AP Religion Writer

A changed prospect faces Christianity in the developing shift of its center of gravity from the mostly white, affluent western world to the poorer, dark people of the southern and eastern part of the globe.

That transition is altering the powers and pressures in the World Council of Churches whose governing assembly starts a meeting Sunday in Nairobi, capital of the east African country of Kenya.

A once-every-seven-years affair, the assembly brings together about 2,500 participants, 747 of them voting delegates of 271 member denominations.

They represent about 400 million Christians, Protestants, Anglicans, Eastern Orthodox and old Catholics in 100 countries, an increasing share of them from the "third world" countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

The assembly, the fifth in the 27-year history of the council, will be the first in the southern hemisphere, the first in Africa, and the first in which Americans and Europeans don't predominate.

They inevitably are going to be confronted with "the searching, painful questions from the brethren of the third world,"

State Department of Corrections employees from several Eastern North Carolina counties gathered here yesterday afternoon with the Secretary of their department, David Jones.

Jones and an assistant, Don Torper, went over a survey that was conducted some months ago among the Corrections employees. The survey dealt with the employees' feelings about what they do and how they are paid.

Mrs. Nelson Crisp, a Corrections Board member who attended the meeting said she believed most of those present were "excited and gratified" about being able to participate in and discuss such a survey. She said she believes this is the first time any survey of this nature has been done in a state agency.

Jones promised, she said, to go to bat for Corrections Department employees' raises.

Quartet Singing Saturday Night

The Gethsemane Quartet will appear at Trinity Free Will Baptist Church Saturday night at 7:30 p.m.

The church is located at 264 By-pass and Golden Road. The public is invited to attend.

Music Program On Saturday

A program of gospel music will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Mt. Zion Holiness Church, Bethel.

Featured on the program will be Ernest May and the Sincere Gospel Singers.

There will be no admission fee for the program.

My Susan took part in the Thanksgiving pageant at church school. Of course, I made her pilgrim costume. Later, as I watched her singing, she looked just like the pictures I have seen of pilgrim children. I felt a lump in my throat and had a real sense of identity with those men, women and children who long ago withstood the hardships of life in a new and alien world.

These immigrants weren't superhuman; they were people just like you and me. They had the courage to believe in a new life — a new country. They believed their ultimate struggle would lead to the freedom they so fervently sought.

Over three and a half centuries have passed. The foundation the pilgrim fathers laid for us seems to be shaking beneath our feet, and even our faith wavers.

But, reconsider. We owe it to those pilgrims as well as to ourselves to reaffirm our belief in God and in our country. And what better way than in your church — this Thanksgiving?

Study Time Limit For Malpractice Lawsuits

RALEIGH (AP)—Adult North Carolinians would have four years in which to sue their doctors for an act of medical malpractice under a recommendation approved by a legislative study commission.

Currently, a patient has 10-13 years from the act of malpractice to file his suit, depending on the interpreter of the present law. The commission voted 8-1 Thursday in favor of the change.

Doctors and insurance companies, who are pushing for the lower limits, believe 13 years is allowed by the present statute.

They say that is too long. It prevents insurance companies from closing the books on malpractice policies for 13 years.

Sen. Thomas Suddarth, D-Davidson, opposed the recommendation. Suddarth is a trial lawyer and his position is likely to be shared by members of his profession. Suddarth interprets the present law to place a 10-year limitation on suits.

Lowering the statute of limitations is one of the steps the commission is considering as it devises recommendations for improving the malpractice situation in the state.

Doctors and insurance companies are also advocating limits on the damages that can be awarded an injured patient and a redefinition of the law that would require another local doctor to testify against a colleague for malpractice to be proven.

The recommendations are to be presented to the next session of the legislature in May.

The commission also heard Thursday that the state medical society's mutual insurance company is having difficulty because the malpractice reinsurance exchange has been declared unconstitutional.

Steve Morrisette of the society said the new company is too small to insure doctors for more than $100,000 and had been counting on the exchange to bear risks between $100,000 and $1 million.

Spaniards Mourn Dead Franco

By FENTON WHEELER
MADRID, Spain (AP) — Spaniards began streaming past the body of Generalissimo Francisco Franco today as the police throughout Spain stepped up precautions against terrorist attacks. But the nation was quiet in the wake of the death of the 82-year-old dictator who had ruled it for 36 years.

The open coffin was placed in the Hall of Columns in the 18th century National Palace in Madrid to lie in state for two days. Hundreds were waiting when the doors opened at 8 a.m.

Francisco's body was dressed in his general's uniform. Flanking the bier was an honor guard of 10 national leaders headed by Premier Carlos Arias Navarro.

An elderly widow and her daughter were the first to pass the bier. The mourners moved across a red carpet in rows of four, knelt at the coffin, and made the sign of the cross. A few of the women wept.

Funeral services for Franco will be held Sunday in the plaza outside the palace. Then a motorcade will escort the body for burial in the cathedral Franco had built in the mountainside at the Valley of the Fallen, his monument to the Civil War dead 35 miles from Madrid.

Politicians were reported maneuvering for position before the installation Saturday of Franco's successor, Juan Carlos, as Spain's first king in 44 years.

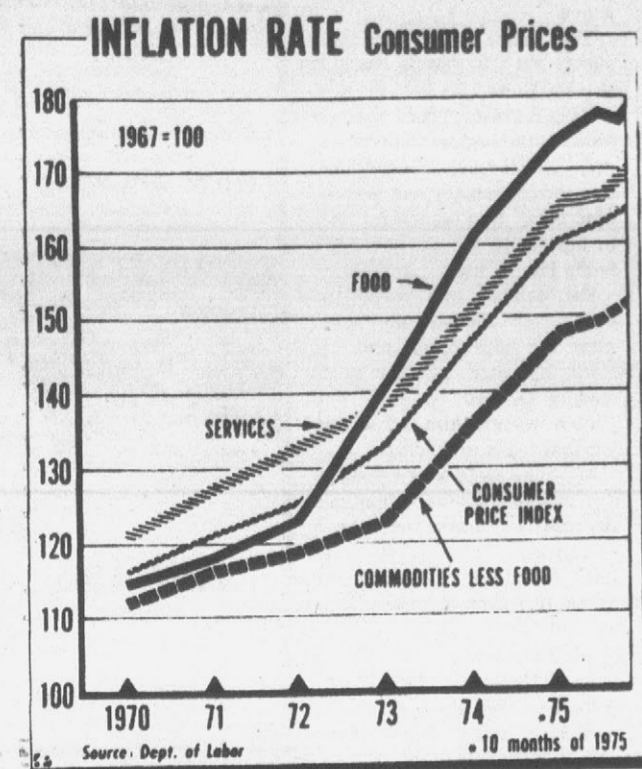

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller was expected to lead the official U.S. delegation to Franco's funeral. President Augusto Pinochet, the head of Chile's military dictatorship, flew from Santiago to attend.

Most West European governments designated a cabinet minister to head their funeral delegations, signifying their distaste toward Franco's authoritarian rule.

"We wish the Spanish people and the government of Spain well in the period ahead," said President Ford in a message of condolence. "The United States for its part will continue to pursue the policy of friendship and cooperation which has formed the touchstone for the excellent relations existing between our two countries."

A heavy police guard was on duty at the National Palace and kept a watchful eye on the crowd of mourners waiting to file past the coffin. Intelligence sources said a Basque commando team armed with rifles mounted with telescopic sights was being sought in the Madrid area.

Extra police also surrounded the Barcelona prison after reports that rightists might attack 200 political prisoners inside. But it was generally believed that the anticipated struggle between the conservative defenders of Franco's authoritarian system and the liberals seeking the return of democracy would wait until after the funeral.

Announce Plans To Step Up N.C. Campaign Against Drug Traffic

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—Plans to intensify the drive against the illegal drug traffic in North Carolina have been announced.

The announcement came Thursday after Lt. Gen. Henry Emerson, commanding general of the 18th Airborne Corps and of Ft. Bragg, conferred with Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten and received assurances that the State Department of Justice and the State Bureau of Investigation would cooperate.

"I firmly believe it's North Carolina's greatest problem," said Edmisten as he said he had directed Haywood Starling, acting SBI director, to confer with authorities at other military bases in the state to enlist them in the intensified war on drugs.

"We have embarked on a new effort of cooperation with the military authorities at Fort Bragg to crack down on the higher ups in the illegal drug trade," said Edmisten at a joint news conference with Emerson.

Emerson said he intended to have "something more aggressive...than what has been tried so far," as he announced plans to assign more military investigators to the war on illegal drugs at Fort Bragg.

The general said illegal drugs had presented him with a "problem" but he emphasized that it has not adversely affected the "combat readiness" of his troops.

"I'm not concerned that it has affected our readiness to fight," he said.

"I want to launch an attack as a precautionary measure" before it does affect combat readiness, he added.

Edmisten said he plans to ask the next General Assembly to provide at least 20 additional SBI agents to beef up the drive on illicit drugs.

"The best information and evidence we have...is that more heroin is coming in and through North Carolina than any state in the Southeast," Starling said.

Edmisten said if the SBI had the manpower it could stage illegal drug roundups almost anywhere in North Carolina as big as a crackdown recently in the Goldsboro-Kinston area.

"It's not concentrated in any one place," he said. "We want to try to make it so difficult and so uncomfortable that drug dealers will know something is going to happen to them," Edmisten stated.

"Now we simply don't have the manpower to keep up with the problem," he added, calling for speedy trial of drug offenders.

"It's not fair..."

Director Is Appointed For Treatment Home

Mrs. Margaret Pritchard has been appointed Director of the Eastern Area Regional Treatment Home (EARTH) for autistic children.

EARTH, located on Memorial Drive in Greenville, is a group home for autistic and emotionally disturbed children and can serve a maximum of five children at any one time.

EARTH is operated by the Pitt County Mental Health Center, but is open for referrals from the 12 other mental health centers in Eastern North Carolina. Some autistic children are occasionally referred from other mental health regions in North Carolina when there are vacancies. The EARTH group home is also supported with a grant from the Department of Human Resources, Division of Mental Health Services, State of North Carolina.

A native of Lewiston, Mrs. Pritchard is a graduate of ECU and did her graduate study at Duke University in the area of teaching disturbed children.

She said, "In this group home for exceptional children, it is our objective to put some order to their lives and reach a point when the child can return to his home and community."

There are six staff persons at EARTH, but other resource persons are available in the treatment and training of the autistic child when necessary.

Mrs. Pritchard is married to Dr. William F. Pritchard, a professor of Education at ECU, Greenville. They have one son, William F. Pritchard, Jr., a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), Cambridge, Mass.

Activist Heard Held In Cuba

CHICAGO (AP) — Mark Rudd, former Weather Underground leader, is reportedly in a special camp for rehabilitation in Cuba.

Attorney Luis Kutner, who specializes in international law, said he was contacted by friends of Rudd who said the former Columbia University student was being held in a camp in Pinar del Rio, a province southwest of Havana, on unspecified charges.

Kutner said he has written to the ministry of prisons in Havana to find out if and why Rudd is being detained.

Rudd of Maplewood, N.J., led a 1968 student revolt at Columbia and played a key role in organizing the Weatherman faction of the SDS.

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A suspect admitted on television that he had just robbed a bank.

WBTV of Charlotte decided after consulting with lawyers that it would be legal to show the film.

It showed a man giving his name as Monte Bridges, and replying "Yes, I did," in answer to a question by TV newsman whether he had robbed the bank. An FBI agent tried to cover Bridges' mouth, and said to him, "Don't say anything else, okay?"

The scene was filmed in the Queensgate branch of the North Carolina National Bank in Charlotte. Bridges had been brought back to be viewed by witnesses after he was captured a mile away shortly after the robbery Thursday.

He was interviewed by TV newsman Bruce Bowers while cameraman Brad Stafford recorded the scene. Bowers said later:

"I've been covering criminal cases since I came to Charlotte in 1971, but I've never seen a reporter ask a suspect whether he had committed crime. So I did."

Bridges, 38, of Charlotte, was taken to the Gaston County Jail, where persons arrested by the FBI in this area are detained.

The FBI said he would be taken before a U.S. magistrate in Asheville today and charged with bank robbery.

It was the 50th bank robbery in North Carolina this year, compared with 73 at the corresponding time last year.

Unconcerned By Phone-Tapping

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard J. Daley says he is convinced his telephone calls have been tapped for many years but he is not bitter because "in public office a lot of things happen to your rights."

"What I do is an open book," the mayor told a news conference Thursday. "I'm no saint and no sinner. Anybody can listen to my conversations."

Daley chuckled several times in telling reporters that his phones have been tapped "by a lot of people for a good many years" and even suggested "maybe it's the newspapermen"

The bidding:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dble. 2 ♦ 4 ♣
Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♠.

Like a master sleuth, a thoughtful declarer gathers clues from the auction before attempting to solve his problem. On today's hand South was able to establish an iron-clad case against the defense by simply listening to the bidding.

After West opened one diamond, North judged that a takeout double would be more appropriate than over-calling in his five-card major. If North's spade and heart holdings were reversed, then a one spade overall would be correct because he could later show his heart suit without getting the auction a level higher. East boosted diamonds one level in an attempt to derail the opponents, but there was no keeping South out of the auction. His hand was just too good for an invitational jump to three hearts, so he went straight to game.

West led the king of diamonds and continued with the ace, which declarer ruffed. Before continuing further, South paused to survey his assets. Obviously, West had to have either the king of clubs or the ace of spades for his opening bid. If the king of clubs were with East or the ace of spades with West, the contract was cold no matter how declarer proceeded—he would lose only one diamond and, at most, two tricks in the black suits. But what if East has the ace of spades and West the king of clubs? Now declarer was in danger of losing two spades and a club in addition to the diamond.

Declarer found a neat solution to his dilemma. He drew two rounds of trumps, ending in his hand and led a low club to the queen! He did not mind if East won this trick, for then West would be marked with the ace of spades and declarer could hold his spade losers to one by leading twice toward the king-queen. As the cards lie, West was forced to win the king of clubs, and now declarer was able to discard two of dummy's spades on the ace and jack of clubs, thus limiting the defenders to one trick in each side suit.

When should you double—for penalty or for take-out? Charles Goren explains all about doubling in his latest book, "Goren's Doubles," c/o this newspaper, P. O. Box 259, Norwood, New Jersey 07648. Enclose $1.25 in cash or checks, payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It's wise today to engage in the recreations and other pleasurable outlets you like for there is in the air a desire to feel martyrdom and to wear a long face. This is quite unnecessary if one makes the smallest effort to rise above depression and be optimistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Go out for amusement, but do something thoughtful for kin first. Get true facts about a new interest before starting it.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't fall for the bait when others try to egg you on to some needless arguments. Check written material for any errors.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You feel financial lack and could get yourself in a lather. Cool down and think constructively instead. Be thankful and start building.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get into activities that will cheer you. Improve health, dress well, and feel more like yourself. Be happy.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get rid of anxieties and push through on whatever is of a constructive nature. Work like a lion at the tasks at hand for big headway.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't criticize your friends, but gain their goodwill. Avoid social gatherings until you are in a better mood.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure not to act in such a way in public that you would be seriously criticized, get into trouble. Handle credit wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Not a good day to make changes, so stick to tried and true. Don't make new allies who could get you into trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't procrastinate any longer about handling responsibilities. Losing your temper with mate could lead to big trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't fly into a partner because you could easily be misinformed and the trouble not be his or her fault. Sociable p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to rake a co-worker over the coals, but it is best to maintain your cool. Do Saturday tasks and all's well.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Enjoy inexpensive recreation as you'll later regret spending too much. Don't fly off the handle with irritable mate.

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Every now and then I see a TV movie I know is rotten but still find fun to watch because it moves quickly, has much ripe dialogue, is highly sentimental and even funny in spots.

Such was "Love Story" and such is "The Legend of Valentino," a two-hour TV movie ABC is foisting on America Sunday night. It's what you'd call a hoot movie. You'll hoot at it while enjoying it.

ABC describes the flick as "a romantic fiction based on the life and myth of Rudolph Valentino, the screen's first and most famous male sex symbol." If you don't know who he was, ask Grandma.

The film, written by Mel Shavelson, is a well-constructed yarn about the poor, handsome Italian immigrant who rose to fame and funds in silent films only to die at age 31, at the height of his fame and $500,000 in debt.

The acting is first-rate, with Franco Nero in the title role, Suzanne Pleshette as the cynical, heart-of-gold scriptwriter who gets him started, Judd Hirsch as his cynical, wise-cracking publicity man, and Yvette Mimieux as a fiercely ambitious set designer who married him only to further her Hollywood career, then divorced him.

The opening scene is of Valentino's empty mansion, with Pleshette recalling off-camera the dreams that died with Valentino, including his long desire to have his own orange grove.

The grove bore fruit, she sighs, but "he never smelled the blossoms."

Yes, indeed. Then we get down to the beginning of his career, which starts when Valentino, broke, hungry and with no aim other than survival, tries to burglarize the scriptwriter's home late at night.

She catches him, calls the cops, then changes her mind after the cops rough him up. She's intrigued by this good-looking footpad and she and Hirsch wangle him an acting job that leads to stardom.

Amid the ensuing proceedings are references to Valentino's distress at rumors he was a homosexual, plus such great lines as "this is Hollywood. We all eat dirt here because it pays so well."

Another good line comes from Valentino's studio boss, who, upon seeing a rival studio boss at a party, leaves, snarling, "You wanna know how much I hate him? I'm going home to my wife."

Yeah, it sounds pretty bad. But the scenes are so well-crafted and the acting so crisp you'll still have fun watching this tableau of Hollywood flim-flam, sham and bitterness level.

The most abundant of all birds is the chicken.

Not All Britons Feel Pang Of Defeat

By HUGH A. MULLWGAN
AP Special Correspondent
LONDON (AP) — To show there are no hard feelings after 200 years and the loss of an empire:
The chaps whose tea was dumped in Boston harbor are putting out a commemorative tea pot ...

The foundry that cast the Liberty Bell is sending out another one to Philadelphia.
The American flag flies sedately over Sulgrave Manor, near Banbury, the ancestral seat of the Washington family.
The British Museum, in a wing housing George III's library, has put on display the offending stamps from the Stamp Act that began the troubles with the colonies two centuries ago.

His Grace the Duke of Devonshire is requesting the governors of the several states — all 50 in fact — to grant an official pardon for his ancestor, Sir John Cavendish, who financed the war against the American colonies and opposed the final peace treaty.

The Earl of Howe, whose forebears Admiral Sir Richard Howe and General Sir William Howe are generally accused of mucking up the war for the British, has contributed the admiral's sea chest and other heirlooms to an exhibit of Revolutionary memorabilia that will fill 14 galleries in the newly restored west wing of the National Maritime Museum at Greenwich.

And every Monday evening in a South London pub called "The Apples & Pears" a group of latter-day Redcoats known as the "War Lords" gathers to refight the battles of the American Revolution with toy soldiers on a giant game board, hoping things might go better the second time around at Saratoga, Yorktown and Bemis Heights.

The British, then, didn't lose a war and a considerable chunk of American real estate but launched the era of democratic freedoms, which is what the shouting is really all about 200 years later if you're willing to take the optimistic view of history.

It's all part of the British participation in the American Bicentennial celebration, which won't be as big as sliced crumpets or the annual illuminations at Blackpool, but considering how things went back in 1776 for the Mother Country, it's turning out to be a rum go show in the best traditions of Dunkirk, Belaclava and other stiff upper lips pursued from the jaws of defeat.

The capstone of the British participation in the American birthday gala will take place next July 7-11, the Bicentennial year, when her Majesty the Queen and His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh will visit the former colonies. For its part in the festivities, the British Parliament is making a one-year loan to the U.S. Congress of one of the two original copies of the Magna Carta, as a sort of reminder that as far as the Declaration of Independence goes the British more or less had the idea first.

This theme, by the way, of a continuity of thought in defining the rights of man underlies the whole British approach to the Bicentennial and was stressed most recently by Prime Minister Harold Wilson when he joined Vice President Nelson Rockefeller in opening "The World of Franklin and Jefferson" exhibit at the British Museum.

The ideas that Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson wrote into the Declaration of Independence, Wilson noted, "were based on the writings of Locke, Hobbes, Berkeley, Hume and others who first called in question established doctrines and made possible the flowering of a new philosophy of liberty on both sides of the Atlantic."

The British, then, didn't lose a war and a considerable chunk of American real estate but launched the era of democratic freedoms, which is what the shouting is really all about 200 years later if you're willing to take the optimistic view of history.

Still, there are a few sore losers about, as the Marquess of Lothian, chairman of the British Bicentennial Liaison Committee, is willing to concede. "There's always the odd person calling up to ask what's the point of it all and couldn't Parliament find a better use for the people's money than in helping the Yanks gloat? But by and large we've met with considerable enthusiasm." His parliamentary group is behind the new Liberty Bell which will be hung in a special tower in Philadelphia's Independence Park. It was cast by London's Whitechapel Bell Foundry. The firm cast the original Liberty Bell in 1752 and is still doing business at the same old stand.

Also still doing business in the old city is the firm of Davison & Newman, whisky and tea shippers, whose cargo was dumped into Boston Harbor back in the bad old days of the rebellion. Undaunted, the firm still wholesales to America under the brandname "Boston Harbor Tea" and is putting out a special commemorative teapot, presumably unsinkable, to gloss over the old unpleasantness.

Conservationist Urges Voluntary Approach

State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks, who heads the USDA-Soil Conservation Service in North Carolina, today urged "a dedication to the voluntary approach to soil and water conservation, which has worked so well in North Carolina for more than four decades."

He applauded the conservation efforts of farmers, who work through the 92 soil and water conservation districts which serve all 100 Tar Heel counties, and noted that farmland conservation "is doing a job" in every part of North Carolina.

Hicks said that he agrees with the position of the U. S. Department of Agriculture that "if we don't find a way to get the job done on a voluntary basis, somebody is going to try to make soil conservation a mandatory thing. This could turn into a bureaucratic nightmare."

Nationally, soil erosion from wind and water is a threat in many areas as farmers step up production of food. But the conservation measures—cover crops, field borders, grassed waterways, and simple water control structures—are available for a successful voluntary effort, and help is available through employees of the Soil Conservation Service and volunteer leaders of soil and water conservation districts, he added.

"All we are trying to do, in North Carolina and the nation as a whole," the federal conservation official explained, "is to preserve and improve our capacity to produce food and fiber, to keep our lakes and streams clean, and to maintain our vital resources of productive land."

"The personal investment a farmer makes in conservation not only aids production, but usually increases the value of his farm. It's money well spent, and most North Carolina farmers plan conservation work each year, including the financial input needed."

"I hope we can keep our voluntary program working, and feel sure we will in North Carolina. This state was the birthplace of the conservation movement, and I believe it is still growing 40 years later."

Secret Service Spread Thin Guarding Candidates

By MARTIN MERZER
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — The Secret Service, faced with two attacks on President Ford and one on presidential candidate Ronald Reagan within three months, is "over-extended" by the current large field of presidential candidates, says a top service official.

"It's going to get worse, and there are more candidates on the way," said Bob Newbrand, special agent in charge of the Secret Service office in Miami following the attack Thursday on Reagan by a young man wielding a toy gun. Newbrand said that the service was augmented by agents from U.S. customs and other federal agencies, but "we're very thin right now."

"We're over-extended at this stage and we're a couple of months from the first primary," he said.

In Washington, Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said, "I just have to place that as one supervisor's opinion ... I would not say our manpower is over-extended. I would say in this period the Secret Service manpower will be utilized to its utmost capacity."

Warner said the agency had budgeted with the expectation of protecting 10 to 14 candidates. There now are 12 announced presidential candidates, 10 Democrats, Ford and Reagan.

Warner said the agency is now protecting six candidates in addition to Ford and Reagan. They are Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace; R. Sargent Shriver, 1972 Democratic Vice Presidential candidate; Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh; Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter; Arizona Rep. Morris Udall, and Texas Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen.

The young man with the toy pistol Thursday was about a yard from where Reagan was shaking hands with well wishers.

He was identified as Michael Lance Carvin, 20, of Pompano Beach, and was charged with intimidating a presidential candidate and assaulting a federal officer, Newbrand said. Maximum penalties are one year in prison and a $1,000 fine on the intimidation charge and three years in prison and $5,000 fine on the assault charge.

Carvin was to be arraigned today.

Reagan had announced his intentions to challenge President Ford for the GOP nomination in Washington just hours before the incident and Secret Service agents had been guarding him for only half a day when the incident occurred. Reagan said he would not allow the attack to hinder his campaign.

"You have to remember this is not a thing that is limited to presidential candidates," he said at a news conference.

Reagan had just finished a 15-minute outdoor speech to about 400 supporters gathered in front of a motel near Miami's airport. He stepped off the podium and moved along a security rope set up to keep the crowd about 15 yards away.

As he grabbed the third or fourth hand, agents dived atop the young man holding the fake gun. Two bystanders were knocked to the ground, and Reagan, pulled from behind by other agents, appeared to momentarily lose his footing.

"I had gone over to that side of the audience to see an old friend," Reagan said. "I just thought someone had fallen down, and I was persuaded by the Secret Service to leave."

Newbrand said Carvin, a dropout from the University of Denver and the University of Tampa, did not have a criminal record but was believed to have made a threatening call last week from a Pompano Beach pay telephone.

Newbrand said the Secret Service office in Denver received the call Nov. 10 from a man identifying himself only as Michael. The caller threatened to harm Reagan, Ford and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller unless Lynette Fromme was freed.

Miss Fromme, charged with attempting to assassinate Ford in Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 5., is on trial in Sacramento.

Sara Jane Moore has been charged in another alleged attempt on Ford's life, this time in San Francisco Sept. 22. Miss Moore, charged with firing a shot at the President outside a hotel, is awaiting trial.

Tobacco Prices Are Higher On Mondays, Survey Shows

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — In tobacco market areas you can almost tell the day of the week by the trend in leaf prices.

If prices are up, there's a good chance it's Monday. Usually they drift lower the rest of the week.

A survey by the Associated Press showed the trend toward higher prices on Monday was true this year on markets of all flue-cured belts, the Georgia-Florida, the South Carolina-Border North Carolina, Eastern North Carolina, and the Old and Middle belts of Virginia and North Carolina.

And William Michaels of Danville, Va., president and chief operating officer of Dibrrell Brothers Tobacco Co., a major tobacco buyer, said the trend toward higher prices on Monday "is true on the burley belt to some extent but probably not as much as for the flue-cured area."

Michaels had two explanations for the trend. "The best explanation I can give you is that farmers bring in their best tobacco on Monday," he said. The other explanation he gave is that tobacco buying companies "have had the weekend to check up on their needs and this has some effect" as they bid up prices.

John Cyrus, chief of the field crop section of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said that "it seems the better quality of tobacco shows up on the warehouse floors Monday and it gradually deteriorates during the week."

Cyrus said better growers are usually able to get their leaf on warehouse floors for sale early in the week. He said they place their better leaf on the floor and this results in higher prices.

Higher prices on Monday is not new. It's a long-standing tradition in tobacco country.

"I always heard when I was a boy growing up on a tobacco farm that tobacco sold better on Monday," said B. C. Langston, an assistant market news officer with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. "Everybody always said they wanted to get their tobacco on the warehouse floor on Monday."

The figures show both the general price average for tobacco goes up on Monday and that prices by grades tend to be higher.

Lionel Edwards, regional director of the tobacco division for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, explained that grade prices tend higher on Mondays because there is a spread within grades—a high side and a low side and that when better tobacco is put up for sale the tendency is for prices by grades to advance.
