Juan Carlos de Borbon Crowned King Of Spain

By THOMAS CHEATHAM
MADRID, Spain (UPI)—Juan Carlos de Borbon became Spain's first king in 44 years Saturday and promised far-reaching changes in the authoritarian regime he inherited from Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

"Today represents the beginning of a new era in the history of Spain," the king told his 35 million subjects in an inaugural address that held out hopes for widespread democratic reforms.

Juan Carlos, sworn on the third day of mourning for Franco said "A free and modern society requires the participation of all in the decision-making bodies."

"Long live Spain," the 37-year-old monarch shouted, his symbolic crown and scepter beside him, at the end of his 13-minute speech in the tapestried hall of Spain's Cortes parliament.

The chamber, crowded with hundreds of Spanish and foreign dignitaries, responded with cries of "Long Live the King!"

"Juan Carlos, Juan Carlos long live the King!" echoed thousands of Spaniards from sidewalks, balconies and tree-tops as he emerged from the Cortes as King Juan Carlos I.

But the dictator that ruled Spain for 36 years and clung stubbornly to life for 34 days, made his presence felt even in death.

As foreign dignitaries, including Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, listened in tense silence, the king began his speech by promising to follow Franco's "example of conduct and loyalty."

The 600-strong audience broke into a 30-second standing ovation with shouts of "Franco, Franco!" At the end of the speech, right-wing legislators pushed and shoved to kiss the hand of Franco's only child, Carmen.

In contrast, the king's calls for change passed in silence, indicating the opposition he will face from Spain's deeply entrenched conservatives if he tries to meet even a few of the increasing demands for reforms.

"I am fully conscious that a great people, such as ours, in full spate of cultural development, changing generations and substantial growth, calls for far-reaching improvements," he said.

"To listen to, to guide and to encourage these demands is a duty which I wholeheartedly accept."

Police, in dress white berets, were out in force, with security helicopters buzzing overhead and plainclothesmen drifting through the crowds at the Cortes, but there was no sign of discord.

Most opposition groups, including the Basque separatists, have called a moratorium on terrorist activity until they have a clearer idea of where Juan Carlos is heading.

Portuguese Situation Called "Dangerous" Gomes Calls Off Carvalho Ouster

By DAVID D. PEARCE
LISBON, Portugal (UPI)—Rebellious troops forced President Francisco Da Costa Gomes to call off the ouster of their left-wing commander Saturday. Politicians warned of the possibility of civil war.

Costa Gomes overruled the Revolutionary Council's decision to strip Gen. Otelo Sarajva de Carvalho, the military security chief, of a second post as commander of troops in the Lisbon area.

The decision left Portugal leaderless with the cabinet striking to protest widespread lawlessness and the Communists demanding the creation of a Soviet-style "people's" government.

The president announced the decision to bow to the rebel demands after night-long talks with left-wing officers and members of the Revolutionary Council.

The Socialists then called a mass rally in northern Oporto to demonstrate their support for Prime Minister Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo's striking government.

The cabinet ministers walked off their jobs Thursday to protest the failure of the military leadership to put down widespread left-wing unrest in the Portuguese capital.

The Communists urged followers to mount "popular vigilance" operations in Lisbon. Eleven left-wing military units in the capital went on a "revolutionary alert."

Communist and anti-Communist forces mobilized supporters in the streets of Lisbon and Oporto in rival displays of political power.

Non-Communist politicians viewed the developments with alarm.

"The situation is very dangerous now," one politician said. "We could easily end up in a civil war. All it would take is a spark."

The 19-member council, the military top policy-making body, ousted Carvalho Friday in a move to get Portugal's striking cabinet ministers to return to their jobs.

But leftist troops loyal to Carvalho put themselves on an unauthorized red alert and threatened to move against the government unless he was restored to the post.

In The Mediterranean U.S. Aircraft, Cruiser Collide

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy and the cruiser Belknap collided during maneuvers in the Mediterranean Sea Saturday, and unknown number of crewmen were presumed injured, the Pentagon said.

A Pentagon spokesman said the Kennedy, with a crew of 4,500, and the Belknap, with a crew of 350, collided during night flight operations about 70 miles east of Sicily about 4 p.m. EST.

"It appears there is substantial damage to the Belknap," the spokesman said. He also said there was no report of casualties although "I'm sure there are some."

Other ships in the 6th Fleet were sent to the scene for rescue and fire fighting operations, he said.

The spokesman identified the skipper of the Kennedy, a 77,000-ton carrier, as Capt.

William Gureck. The captain of the Belknap is Walter R. Shafer. Both ships are homeported in Norfolk, Va..

The spokesman declined to say whether there were nuclear weapons aboard the ships.

The Kennedy, christened May 27, 1967, by Caroline Kennedy, was commissioned Sept. 7, 1968. The accident occurred on the 12th anniversary of its namesake's assassination.

It is propelled by oil, measures more than 1,000 feet in length, and carries 32 F14 fighters and eight S3 antisubmarine planes, in addition to the 4,500-man crew.

The Belknap was launched in 1963 at Bath, Maine, as a guided missile frigate, comparable to a large destroyer. But the spokesman said its designation was changed July 1 of this year to guided missile cruiser.

On Missing Americans US-VN Meeting Is Postponed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Paris meeting between Vietnamese officials and members of a House subcommittee seeking to learn the fate of hundreds of Americans still missing in Southeast Asia has been postponed until December, it was announced Saturday.

The meeting had been scheduled Monday with officials of North and South Vietnam but the delay was requested by the Vietnamese, according to Rep. G.V. Sonny Montgomery, D-Miss.

The chairman of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons said the North Vietnamese requested the delay until later so that their ambassador to France, Vo Van Sung, could meet with the American lawmakers.

Although a definite new date was not set in the cabled delay request, one committee source said the attendance of Vo could "upgrade" the efforts to learn the fate of hundreds of American servicemen still unaccounted in the wake of a bloody war won by the communists.

Montgomery said he had been advised that Vo is currently in Vietnam. It is expected that the meeting will be scheduled in December.

Montgomery and seven other lawmakers had been scheduled to fly to Paris today for the Monday meeting with representatives of both North Vietnam and the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam.

In $205 Million Package Revolt Hits NYC Tax Plan

By CLARENCE D. BASSETT
ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Gov. Hugh L. Carey and Democratic legislative leaders Saturday applied all available political pressure to line up rebellious party members behind a $205 million New York City tax package that would help keep the city from default.

Republican lawmakers were uneasy about the wording of the tax resolution passed by the New York City Council, fearing the new levies, if approved by the legislature, would be labeled "Ford taxes."

Major elements of the package were a $75 million increase in the city income tax, $30-$4 million in business levies, plus a handful of "nuisance taxes" ranging from a 4 per cent levy on massages' haircuts and other personal services to a $25 auto registration fee.

Expected approval of the controversial tax plan by the emergency session of the legislature was held up for several hours as lawmakers, including several Democrats on the key Assembly Ways and Means Committee, refused to get aboard.

The revolt began when Democratic leaders of the New York City Council fought back a revolt by reform Democrats as the council met into the early morning hours to approve a resolution permitting the legislature to go ahead with the tax laws.

When the measure reached Albany, liberal city Democrats refused to back the plan.

"Fine-I vote for this, and next year I face one of these guys in a primary," one lawmaker said. The phrase in the council resolution that raised GOP hackles said that indications of federal assistance "have been conditioned upon the enactment of state legislation raising additional revenues through taxation."

Some Republicans, aware of the political implications of making the taxes "Ford taxes" or "Republican-imposed taxes," demanded the council approve new language before they would vote for the measure.

Assaulted With Money

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A Raleigh woman charged the manager of a local department store with assault Friday. She said he hit her on the chest with two nickels.

In a complaint filed with the Raleigh Police Department, Vanessa Flora Smith said the store was advertising a 25 per cent discount for all purchases. She said she bought a 10-cent candy bar and demanded the discount.

A clerk sent her to Charles Fultz, manager of the store, who became irritated and threw two nickels at her, striking her on the chest, she said in the complaint.

Court Continues Hearings On Halloween Cases

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Three Halloween night revelers were sentenced and one found not guilty by District Court Judge Charles H. Whedbee Friday afternoon as the court continued to dispose of cases against some 57 defendants charged in connection with the October 31 disturbance in downtown Greenville.

Before noon Friday the State took a voluntary dismissal in 47 of the pending cases, including 23 inciting a riot charges and 24 cases involving charges of failing to disperse.

Johnny Douglas Carter, charged with inciting a riot, and Willie Hollis both pled guilty to failing to disperse.

Judge Whedbee sentenced both men to 10 days jail and suspended the sentence on payment of court costs.

Hollis, of Greenville, told the court he did not leave the area after hearing the order to disperse because "I didn't know the meaning of 'disperse'."

David Howard Blakewood, initially charged with inciting a riot, was tried on the charge of failing to disperse, found guilty, and handed a 10-day jail term which was suspended on payment of costs of court.

Blakewood testified he was dressed as an Indian, and was in the process of leaving the area when he was ushered into a waiting Police Department bus.

He said he was the first person placed in custody in the bus that night.

William Walker Calvin, being tried on charges of failing to disperse, was found not guilty by Judge Whedbee.

Calvin said he and his date, Sarah Andrews, were taken into custody shortly after they left the 420 Club on Cotanche Street—as they were attempting to leave the area.

Votes For Change

RALEIGH (AP)—For the second day in a row, a special legislative study commission voted to support a change in state law that would allow less time for medical malpractice suits to be filed.

In its vote Friday, the panel recommended that children and teenagers be allowed four years to file such a claim if the child is seven or older and until the child is 10 if younger than seven.

Under the current law, a malpractice suit may be filed until the child reaches 21, even if the alleged malpractice occurred at birth.

Wants Open Competition

RALEIGH (AP)—Open competition on insurance rates with little or no control by the state insurance commissioner was called for Friday by insurance companies.

But representatives of insurance agents opposed that idea and told a legislative study commission that the state should have a panel to set uniform rates so they wouldn't have to offer consumer identical insurance at different rates from different companies.

Both the companies and the agents agreed on one point—they want Insurance Commissioner John Ingram—a critic of the industry—to have less control over rates.

Dedication Set For Downtown Mall

Mayor S. Eugene West and Redevelopment Commission chairman Billy B. Laughinghouse announced today that the Downtown Greenville Mall will be dedicated at 11 a.m. on Friday, Nov. 28.

The officials said that the public is invited and encouraged to attend the dedication, which will be held in the south block of the mall between Fourth and Fifth Streets on Evans.

Special guests for the function will be First District Congressmen Walter B. Jones and North Carolina area director for the U.S.

Department of Housing and Urban Development, Richard B. Barnwell.

The two-block pedestrian mall is the main feature of the downtown redevelopment program, funded in part through a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The objective of the program is to completely revitalize the 72-acre downtown by improving traffic flow, providing adequate parking and beautifying the area.

The pedestrian mall, it was noted, is a first of its kind in the state.

In keeping with a traditional architectural theme, the entire surface of the two-block area is covered with hexagon shaped brick pavers complemented by brick planters and decorative lighting.

Mayor West commented that the local program is an "excellent" example of the success that can be achieved through the cooperation of the federal government, local government and private enterprise.

The mayor noted that the "private sector has responded enthusiastically as evidenced by over $2 million in new construction already completed and the renovation of over 30 major downtown buildings."

Prominent citizens appearing on the platform Friday with the special guests include Mayor Percy Cox; Hoover Taft, chairman of the Central Business District Project Advisory Committee; Curtis Hendrix, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association; Morris Brody, president of the Downtown Greenville Association; Gene Skinner, chairman of the Parking Authority; and George Coffman, chairman of the Greenville Utilities Commission.

In addition, members of the Redevelopment Commission and City Council and board members of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, the Downtown Greenville Association, Parking Authority and Utilities Commission will be in attendance.

The ceremony will be concluded with a ribbon cutting at the Fifth Street entrance to the mall to officially open the facility to the 1975 Christmas season.

Mother Of Five Found Guilty

MARION, N.C. (AP)—Edith Shoemaker Philyaw, a 42-year-old mother of five who was accused of hiring three men to kill her husband, was found guilty Friday of a lesser charge, accessory before the fact of murder.

She had been charged with first-degree murder in the May 7 slaying of Herman Lee Philyaw at their Collettsville home near Lenoir.

A McDowell County Superior Court jury of seven women and five men deliberated for an hour before finding Mrs. Philyaw guilty.

A life sentence is mandatory. Mrs. Philyaw, displayed no emotion as the sentence was pronounced, filed notice of appeal. Bond was set at $25,000 by Judge William T. Grist.

Grist ruled Thursday that the prosecution presented insufficient evidence for a conviction on the original charge.

Earlier, two state witnesses testified that they had been approached by Mrs. Philyaw and offered money for killing her husband.

The men, Bobby Joe Burns, 26, and Isaiah Hood, 29, agreed to testify against Mrs. Philyaw when they were allowed to plead guilty to second degree murder at another trial. They had been charged with first-degree murder.

Bobby Ervin Hood, 28, alleged by the state to be the triggerman, also was charged in the murder and will be tried later.

Burns testified that Mrs. Philyaw gave him two envelopes, each containing $500, to be given to Isaiah Hood, who in turn was supposed to deliver them to Bobby Hood.

Marriage Foiled, Youths Bomb Home

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP)—A 14-year boy and an 18-year old girl have been charged with the dynamite bombing of the boy's home in North Carolina after being arrested in Dillon, S.C., where they had gone to be married.

The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Doby of Rt. 2, Mebane, in Orange County, N.C., who escaped injury in the bombing Tuesday evening. Dynamite wired to the furnace in the basement exploded after Mrs. Doby turned up the heat, authorities said. No motive for the bombing has been given.

Young Doby and Miss Donna Lynn Cheek of Burlington were apprehended Thursday before they were married, Sheriff C. D. Knight of Orange County said. Knight said the boy was carrying identification which falsified his name and age, and the two were in a car belonging to Miss Cheek's mother.

The sheriff said they were arrested by agents of the Federal Alcohol, Tax and Firearms Division and returned to Orange County. He said boy had been turned over to probation officers and Miss Cheek was being held in the county jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Erroneous Drug Raid Said Like The Gestapo

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Six plainclothes police officers on a drug raid of the home of a couple here Friday kicked in the front door, ransacked the couple's belongings and then admitted they had the wrong apartment.

"It's like the Gestapo," said Mrs. John M. Reynolds Friday.

The Charleston Police Department later apologized for the incident.

Mrs. John M. Reynolds, 22, said she awoke early Friday when she heard someone knocking at their door. "I looked out and saw one guy with long hair and a mustache. I figured he had the wrong apartment. It's happened before," she said.

She said she cracked the door, which had a chain latch. "This is the police," she quoted the officer as saying as he jammed his foot against the door and shoved a piece of paper at her. "I've got a search warrant."

"My first thought was, 'Oh my God, we're going to be killed,'" she said.

Reynolds went to the door and was about to reach for the handle when the officer kicked the door in, cutting Reynolds' hand.

Six officers burst into the small apartment and ordered the Reynolds to sit on the couch. Reynolds said his wife was wearing a short, sheer nightgown. He was in his underwear.

"They had a fit because I was going to put on my bathrobe," she said in an interview. "I wasn't going to just stand there." She said they watched as she put on the bathrobe.

"Then my husband demanded to see a badge," she said. "The guy who kicked in the door flipped his badge open. Then they proceeded to tear our apartment upside down."

The officers apparently realized their error and left, Reynolds said. They did not apologize for the damages and claimed the city was not liable, since the raid was legally conducted, he added. Higher officials later said the city would arrange for the damages to be repaired and apologized for the raid.

"What upsets me is that the police were able to get a warrant to search my apartment when 90 per cent of their information was wrong," Reynolds said. He said the warrant said that a police informant had been in the apartment within the last 72 hours, and had seen "the occupant of the apartment" smoking marijuana.

Reynolds said no one other than he and his wife had been in the apartment, and that he does not smoke marijuana.

He said the warrant had his name and the correct address on it.

Police Chief John Conroy acknowledged the officers had blundered. "They just goofed," he said.

The New and Courier quoted police as saying the warrant was based on a bad tip from an informer and poor surveillance by officers.

The magistrate who signed the warrant, Aaron Harvey, said Saturday he had not seen the document since he signed it and could not comment on it. He said he normally relies on police information when signing such warrants.

No Charges In Wreck

An early Friday afternoon wreck investigated by Greenville Police resulted in an estimated $1150 in total damages, according to police reports.

Cars driven by Julian Randolph Norvell of Winterville and Jennings Lee Pulley of Goldsboro collided at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Columbia Avenue. Police estimated damage at $650 to the Pulley auto and $500 to Norvell's car. No charges were filed.

Death Row Numbers 98

North Carolina's death row population swelled to 98 Friday when three persons were sentenced to die in the gas chamber in two separate trials.

Donald Stanfield, 25, a Marine stationed at the New River Marine Air Station near Jacksonville, N.C., and Purnell Ham, 26, of Jacksonville, were found guilty of first-degree murder in the July 7 shotgun slaying of Scott Weber, another Marine stationed at North Carolina base.

In Wilmington, a New Haver County Superior Court found Willie Lee Williams, 27, guilty of first-degree murder in the shooting death of Thurston Smith, 30, during the robbery of a grocery store.

Fatally Injured

A Walstonburg man was fatally injured Friday afternoon when he lost control of his car on U. S. 264A, two miles east of Farmville.

The man was identified as Paul Beamon Jr., 28, of Rt. 2 Walstonburg, according to Highway Patrolman K. R. Ross. Ross said Beamon was travelling west on 264A when his car ran off the right shoulder and he lost control. Ross said the car then crossed to the left side of the road, hit a culvert, and overturned twice. Beamon was thrown from the car.

A passenger in the car, Helen Diane Barnes, 20, of Rt. 1, Farmville, was injured in the accident and admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital. Ross said two other passengers escaped injury.

Med. Society Elects Officers

The Pitt County Medical Society has elected officers for the following year. Dr. Donald Tucker was voted president-elect and will serve as president in 1977. Dr. Charles Gilbert will be president for 1976. Completing his term this year as president is Dr. William McConnell.

Dr. John Hendrix was elected secretary-treasurer. State Medical Society delegates will be Dr. McConnell, Dr. John Wooten and Dr. Tucker. Alternate delegates are Dr. Bob Deyton, Dr. Elliot Dixon and Dr. Billy Jones.

Members of the executive committee will be Dr. Gilbert, Dr. James Carter, Dr. Tucker, Dr. John Hendrix and Dr. C. H. Rand.

Dr. Al Woodworth, Dr. Dick Douglas and Dr. Emmett Walsh will be on the board of censors.

Not Leaving Right Away

WASHINGTON (AP)—Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who was on the verge of quitting as the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, will see President Ford early next week as the administration seeks to reassure him of its support.

Stung by criticism from foreign diplomats, the outspoken Moynihan called a news conference Friday "to make an important announcement" and then abruptly canceled it saying: "I am not leaving right away."

A telephone conversation between Moynihan and the White House elicited a statement that Ford has "full confidence" in Moynihan and "fully approves of what he is doing at the United Nations."

CIA Probe Being Hampered

WASHINGTON (AP)—Justice Department officials complain their probe of the CIA is being hampered by the Senate intelligence committee's refusal to turn over evidence to back up its findings of agency misdeeds.

But Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi says he's convinced the panel eventually will provide its evidence dealing with U.S. involvement in assassination plots and other alleged CIA wrongdoing.

Levi told reporters Friday that the committee so far has turned over none of the material requested by the department for use in determining whether to bring federal charges against anyone involved in the plots.

But he said, "I expect that we will receive it."

Protestors Mob Convention

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Some 1,500 school busing protesters broke away from their parade route Saturday and mobbed the outside of a convention hall where a number of Democratic presidential candidates gathered for the party's first national issues forum.

A wall of riot-gear police surrounded the building and kept the demonstrators outside in a tense but brief confrontation. The protest was loud and mostly orderly, although one or two were taken away by police.

NC Unemployment Drops

RALEIGH (AP)—The lowest rate of unemployment for North Carolina this year was recorded in October, the Employment Security Commission reported.

During the month, unemployment dropped from September's 7.3 per cent to 7.1 per cent. Most of the decline was attributed to seasonal factors, but the higher employment rate continued a positive trend that began last March, the agency said.

Unemployment reached 11.7 per cent before the state began recovering from the severe economic recession.

In numbers there were 177,200 persons looking for work in October compared with 183,800 in September and 298,800 last March. The figures do not include persons who are not actively seeking work.

Wants To Work In Center

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Marion Concannon, daughter of Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, says she wants to work in a local drug-treatment center as part of her sentence on drug charges.

Mrs. Concannon, a 41-year-old divorcee and mother of eight, was sentenced Friday by Bucks County Judge Edmund Ludwig of possessing and selling hashish, a concentrated derivative of marijuana.

Plea To Second Court

CINCINNATI (AP)—James Earl Ray has taken his plea for a trial in the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. to a second federal court.

In a legal brief asking the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals to hear Ray's claims, three attorneys contend Ray's former attorneys violated his rights in an unprecedented manner and "sodomized" the U.S. Constitution.

Ray pleaded guilty to killing King and is serving a 99-year sentence at the Tennessee State Prison in Nashville.

Court Cases...

The arresting officer identified Calvin as the man he arrested, but said he was standing alone near the 420 Club when he approached, told the man to leave, then arrested him when he refused.

Before handing down his verdict in the Calvin case, Judge Whedbee told the court, "people have a right to assemble . . . as long as it doesn't interfere with the rights of others."

"It was not lawful to throw bricks or stones at a police car . . . at windows of stores. And it is unlawful not to disperse . . . when a lawful order is given."

Speaking of both the prosecuting and defense witnesses in the Calvin case, the Judge said "I don't believe any of these people are telling lies." The question, he indicated, is, "Is there a reasonable doubt in my mind . . . is this the man," that the officer arrested, or a case of mistaken identity.

Indicating that there was a reasonable doubt, he then entered the verdict of not guilty.

Earlier, police testified that orders to disperse were given two times over a public address system on one of the patrol cars. They noted that a third warning was interrupted and never completed after a barrage of bottles, bricks and stones were hurled at the vehicle.

Scheduled for trial at later dates are two failing to disperse cases, four inciting a riot charges, as well as an assault on a public officer case and a damage to personal property charge.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Army and the Marine Corps said Saturday they spent a combined total of about $100,000 this year to get recruiting slogans painted on professional race cars.

Army and Marine officials said they view the cars as highly visible billboards putting the name of the service before young, mechanically inclined people who are good recruiting prospects. The Navy also uses race car recruiting signs, but only when drivers volunteer space on their cars at no cost to the taxpayer.

Air Force officials alone refuse to follow suit, discouraging even the use of donated space, because the risks of looking bad after a wreck or a lost race are too great.

"What would happen if the Air Force car, say, came in second to a Navy car?" a spokesman asked. "Does that mean the Navy's better?"

The International Hot Rod Association has complained about the paid recruiting signs.

Young Man Found Dead

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (UPI)—Onslow County authorities continued their efforts Saturday to identify the body of a young man found stabbed to death in a western portion of the county early in the day.

A spokesman for the Sheriff's Department said the man was carrying identification that belonged someone else and authorities were still puzzled as to his identity.

Officers said the body was found by Durald Gourganus of Maple Hill about 12:15 a.m. lying on a rural road near the Pender County line. The victim, who had been dead about two hours, had been stabbed in the throat.

$2500 Reward

RALEIGH (AP)—The governor's office is offering a $2,500 reward for information leading to an arrest and conviction in the June 16 murder of Donna Marie Emmel of Newport.

Miss Emmel, 15, was killed after she left a restaurant and was headed to her nearby home. Her body was found submerged in a drainage ditch in a wooded area she had to pass through.

Board Of Adjustments Denied Permit Request

The Board of Adjustments followed the recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Commission Friday night in denying a request by Sobalco Inc. for a special use permit.

The board held a public hearing on the request and heard from several residents of the Eastwood Subdivision who objected to Sobalco's proposal to build condominiums on the vacant lot adjacent to University Condominiums between Cedar Lane and John Avenue.

Most of the residents cited potential increases in traffic in the area as their chief objections to the request.

Sobalco Inc., which has met with negative reaction to its proposal to construct multi-family dwellings on the 3.6 acre tract, was represented by David Sledge. The property in question is zoned for R-10 usage.

The board ruled, as a finding of fact, that the apartments would not meet most of the requirements for a special use permit and voted unanimously against approval of the request.

In other business, board members granted Mrs. Violet Stocks an indefinite extension on a special use permit in order to operate a flea market in the structure located at the Pitt Fairgrounds on the southeast corner of Airport Road and Memorial Drive.

The extension was granted with the stipulation that she follow all rules and regulations of the building inspector and that the inspector has the power to recall the permit if he deems it necessary.

A request by Smith-Waldrop Motors for a special use permit in order to operate an automobile sales and service at West End Circle was also granted with the stipulation that a line be painted to show right of way regarding vehicle parking and if all requirements are not met the permit may be revoked by the building inspector.

The City-County Board of Adjustments granted a request for a special use permit by Jonathan W. Overton and Daniel P. Powers Sr.

Overton and Powers sought the permit in order to utilize the structure located .6 of a mile from the intersection of Tenth Street and 264 Bypass on the north side of the Washington Highway as a real estate office.

Both the city and joint boards voted to dispense with the December meeting unless a situation arises that requires board action.

Wallace And Sanford On Campaign Trail

By D.J. HILL
WILMINGTON, N.C. (UPI)—Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, campaigning on Terry Sanford's home ground, predicted Saturday he will win the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination because he has the backing of the "middle class, average man."

"The textile worker, the tobacco worker, the average man will have their day in 1976," Wallace told an enthusiastic crowd of about 500 who showed up to greet him at the New Hanover County airport.

Wallace's trip, paid for by his campaign organization, preceded a meeting with his North Carolina campaign leaders and an address to a state Jaycee function at Wilmington's Hogard High School Saturday night.

Sanford, who lost by 107,000 votes to Wallace in the 1972 North Carolina primary, is scheduled to address a Jaycee group this morning in this seaport town of 60,000. Sanford, one of 10 declared candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination, was governor of North Carolina before becoming president of Duke University.

As Wallace began a 14-minute address in a brisk airport wind, 10 protesters booted and held aloft signs reading "We say no to Wallace" and "Go away Wallace." They were shouted down by the crowd, many of whom wore imitation straw hats with Wallace stickers on them.

Wallace looked at one of the signs and said, "Go away Wallace. I'm going to go away, but I'm gonna take some of them with me — I mean politically of course."

Wallace, paralyzed from the waist down in an assassination attempt in May, 1972, spoke from his wheelchair to the crowd that was kept back about 20 feet behind sawhorses guarded by Secret Service agents. He made only a veiled reference to Sanford in his remarks.

"I've been elected for three terms in my state and my wife was elected once in my state and there's no one running in North Carolina that can say the same thing," said Wallace.

The federal government owns 87 per cent of the land in the state of Nevada.

Continues Search

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (UPI)—Prison officials continued their search Saturday afternoon for three felons who fled from the Columbus County prison unit after stabbing a guard.

The guard, Sgt. Edward Gedraytis, was listed in fair condition at a local hospital with stab wounds to his back, side and elbow.

The three escapees were identified as John Dixon, 22, of Tabor City; Hal R. Simmons, 21, of Conway, S.C.; and Donnie R. Hall, 24, of Roseboro.

Officers said Gedraytis was attacked as he led one of the prisoners to see a nurse in a building adjacent to the medium security prison that holds 175 inmates. The other two inmates, said officers, were in the prison yard for an exercise period.

Wants Black Candidate

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (UPI)—Civil Rights leader Ralph D. Abernathy Saturday called on blacks to refuse to support either major political party next year unless a black person is placed on the ticket.

"In 1976 we can elect a black man or a black woman as vice president of the United States," said Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, in a speech to the Alabama Conference of Black Mayors.

"If the Republicans don't do it, we have to turn to the Democrats. If the Democrats don't do it, we've got to move on out and start our own thing," Abernathy said.

Christmas Music At Downtown Mall

The Greenville Downtown Merchant's Association will be sponsoring performances of Christmas music by area singing groups on the Downtown Mall each day, except Sunday, December 12-24.

Programs will be held in the afternoon and evening at the raised gazebo on the south end of the mall. Two afternoon dates, December 16 and 18, have not been filled and interested singing groups should contact Anne Guerrant for information. She can be reached at NCNB, 758-3471.

Each program will last about one hour. Afternoon programs will begin at 12:45 and evening programs will begin at 7:00.

The schedule is as follows:

—December 12: afternoon, University Chorale; evening, Greenville Bicentennial Singers.

—December 13: afternoon, Immanuel Baptist Church Youth; evening, Phillipi Church of Christ.

—December 15: afternoon, Wahl Coates Elementary School; evening, First Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The New King Needs Strength

The long battle with death waged by the aged Generalissimo Francisco Franco has ended. Franco died Wednesday after a critical illness of a month. He had ruled Spain with an iron hand for 36 years with as strong a hold on his people as Hitler and Mussolini had during the 1930s. The difference was that the German and Italian dictators led their countries into world war which eventually brought about the virtual destruction of Italy and Germany and the deaths of the two dictators. Franco avoided this and survived with iron control over the Spanish state which only ended as his death neared.

Francisco many years ago began training Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon to return to the throne of Spain as head of state. He designated Juan Carlos as his successor in 1969. The 37-year-old prince is the grandson of King Alfonso XIII, and he is the first king in 44 years.

With years of dictatorship, Spain has a sound economy, but the civil liberties which democracies hold so dear have been suppressed in Spain until now they will have to be rebuilt if Spain is to be a free society.

Observers hold out hope that King Juan Carlos I will move in that direction. He will face the ire of the powerful right of Spain if he moves in a direction of liberalizing civil rights, however. Already rightists are demanding that the authoritarian Franco system not be changed.

We can expect perilous times in Spain as King Juan Carlos I attempts to consolidate his hold on governmental affairs. We can only hope that he will be inclined, and have the strength to, move Spain in a more democratic direction.

"I can't see you, but I know you're back there, Ronald Reagan!"

Nickles For Know-How Served Us Well

Farmers and others who purchase feed or fertilizer will have the opportunity to vote on the "Nickles for Know-How" program on Tuesday.

They will be deciding whether or not to continue a five-cents per ton assessment on feed and fertilizer for agricultural research and education in the state.

The program was begun in 1951 and is voted on every six years. It provides about $170,000 per year to N.C. State University for the research and education program.

We think the program has served the state well. We urge those eligible to cast favorable votes for "Nickles for Know-How."

Agencies Slow Bill-Payers

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — An auditor's investigation of several state agencies confirms what many people doing business with the state have suspected: the state is slow in paying its bills.

That is not true across the board, says State Auditor Henry L. Bridges, but it is widespread as a number of agencies and institutions are generally slow in paying up.

Without naming the specific locations Bridges listed three university campuses, a state hospital, a community technical institute, and two state agencies on the generally delinquent list.

The practice causes the state to lose cash discounts for prompt payment, strains relations with private firms doing business with the state, and may cause some to raise prices in anticipation of delayed payment, Bridges said. He is suggesting changes in procedure to speed the process.

Gill In Or Out? Considerable confusion continues to surround the office of State Treasurer.

Edwin Gill, the dean of North Carolina statesmen, is in poor health, misses days at work and at meetings he is supposed to attend.

But when it was publicly reported from sources at the Vance-Aycock gathering of Democrats in Asheville recently that he would step down at the end of his term next year, that report was vigorously denied.

Meanwhile, Gill's chief aide, Harlan E. Boyles, is planning to run for the top post, if his boss does retire, and State Rep. Lane Brown, D-Stanly, is planning to enter the race.

A Brown associate says they are going ahead with plans to run for the treasury

Sunday Morning Notes

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Dr. Ray Minges testified in Superior Court last week. He was asked by an attorney if he had ever prescribed Preludin, a drug used for weight reduction. Minges said he had not, but several members of his family had used the drug so he was familiar with it.

There was a pause as those in the court room studied the ample frame of Dr. Minges.

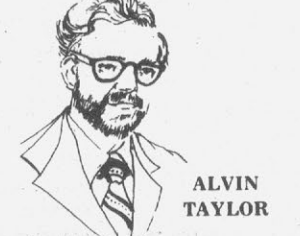

"I'm not one of them," he hastily assured the court.

While the construction on the Evans Street Mall has been underway, tracking of dirt and tar into the buildings has been a problem.

Interstate Securities had installed new carpeting about the time the work started.

Soon a sign appeared on the door: "Before entering, please carefully wipe off shoes, or kindly use the aesthetically landscaped rear entrance."

Across the street at Coffman's the management believes in more direct language. "Please clean off shoes before entering building," their sign reads.

Revolt In San Francisco

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
SAN FRANCISCO—The unexpected presence in the Dec. 11 mayoral runoff election here of a conservative Republican businessman — lacking organization, funds and even campaigning ability — is the latest evidence of spontaneous voters' revolt, this time in the most liberal of American cities.

Conservative city supervisor John Barbagelata seemingly needs a miracle to win on his anti-labor union platform in this traditionally union town against liberal Democratic state Sen. George Moscone. But discontent over strikes by police and firemen here and fear of going the way of New York are strong enough to provide the ingredients of that miracle.

There is no need for a victory by Barbagelata, however, to show that San Francisco is deeply influenced by the harsh new realities in big city politics. While unmistakably the candidate of labor and the left, Moscone is gingerly edging away from them and, if he gets to city hall, almost surely will disappoint them. Here, as elsewhere, the twin menaces of municipal bankruptcy and deepening crime are revolutionizing politics.

These trends had to be intense to reach San Francisco, easily carried by Sen. George McGovern in 1972. With a national reputation for permissiveness, it is the only city where homosexual support is openly courted by candidates. Moscone is the archetypal San Francisco liberal of the 1970s — an early McGovern booster, foe of capital punishment and the Vietnam war, reflexively identified with all liberal causes.

In this environment, Barbagelata was expected to run fifth in a five-man field in the Nov. 4 non-partisan election. While often described as a Reagan Republican, he has met Ronald Reagan only twice in his life and is really a non-political businessman who first entered politics with his

Public Forum

To the editor:

It is with some trepidation that I enter the arena of controversy which recently emerged in the Public Forum. I refer to the letters from Professors Shea and Lawler, Dr. Persall, and Ms. Sherlock arguing about the state of literacy in North Carolina. In my opinion none of the letters makes the impression intended by the author (s). The subject is too important to be discussed in such a sarcastic and divisive manner.

Regarding the original letter from Professors Shea and Lawler, I felt that it made some valid points. I have often experienced the state of dismay for the written word expressed by my colleagues at ECU. The P.T.A. announcement to which they refer is not the first to be found wanting in impeccable grammar and clarity. However, while sarcasm in one way to make a point, it is not the most effective one, especially in a public forum. Witness the letters in response—sarcasm begets sarcasm. Both Dr. Persall and Ms. Sherlock cloud the issue and avoid the point by rushing, swords drawn, to defend mediocrity.

What is the point? A true democracy can exist only in a literate society. Furthermore, literacy enhances the quality of life for everyone who possesses it.

Let us not abuse the language but learn it well so that truth and beauty may be enjoyed by all.

Robert Haise

To the editor:

There is a much simpler way of solving the conflict between the authorities and the students in downtown Greenville at night than closing down the "beer joints" as Mayor Pro Tem Cox so inanely suggested. Why not simply cordon off the immediate area of the downtown clubs on holiday weekends? Since the only businesses that are open after the downtown stores close are the ones that would benefit from my suggestion, and there are many alternate routes for through traffic, this seems to be a most logical solution. Anyone actually caught vandalizing should definitely be punished and banned from Greenville, but why try to punish everyone? I urge the Council to adopt this suggestion.

40 Years Ago Today

November 23, 1935

Snow fell in Greenville and other sections of Eastern North Carolina during a large part of today, but in most places it failed to stick to the ground.

The steady snowfall began here about 10:00 this morning; some places reported it started about 6:00.

It was the first snowfall of the year for Greenville as well as for most sections of the state where it snowed. A few scattering falls in the eastern section of the state had been reported before today, however.

John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America resigned today as vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

His resignation came as a surprise and brought forward again the long-standing conflict between Lewis and William Green, Federation president, over two opposing theories of labor organization.

IF CHRIST RETURNED TODAY

What a comment on the human heart and mind that only once in history did a perfect man appear, and that perfect man was done to death.

'Moped' Finding Big Market

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer
It looks like a fat bicycle or an undernourished motorcycle, but it's really the motorized bicycle or "moped," a machine fast becoming the newest American transportation rage.

One must pedal the moped in order to get it started, but once in action, it can obtain speeds as high as 30 miles per hour with the aid of a small one- to two-horsepower engine.

Long a practical and popular method of transit in parts of Europe, Bermuda and the Caribbean, the motorized bike only became legal for sale in this country last year when the federal government issued safety standards. So far 10 states have legalized the moped for use on their highways.

Enthusiasts say the federal move was triggered by the national energy crunch, the faltering economy and concerns for cleaner air.

"Fifty per cent of working people in America live within five miles of work. The motorized bicycle is the most feasible, cheapest way of motorized transportation known to humanity," said J. David Jones.

Jones is a somewhat prejudiced source (he's president of American Garelli East, an Italian bike manufacturer), but if the booming motorcycle industry is any indicator, mopeds should have plenty of market appeal.

Mopeds weigh between 56 and 100 pounds, get up to 220 miles per gallon and cost between $300 and $499. They're also quieter than motorcycles and automobiles, supporters say.

"Every time I ride a motorized bike I smile," said

Mark Rosenker of the Motorized Bicycle Association, an industry trade group. "I never met anyone who didn't giggle a little bit and smile. It's fun to ride and I can fill up my gas tank for 37 cents."

There are 50 million mopeds in use all over the world, according to Serge Sequin, chairman of the association and vice president of Motobecane, another manufacturer. In the United States, some 50,000 people ride the machines.

So far, the only states to pass measures in their legislatures legalizing the machine are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, Ohio, Michigan, Nevada, California, Hawaii and New Jersey.

Speed limits and engine capacity differ from state to state. In California, the speed limit is 30 m.p.h., while in

Slippage In Ford Survey

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—In a nationwide survey conducted after President Ford's initial refusal to help New York City in its fiscal troubles, but before the recent cabinet shakeup, 44 per cent of Americans registered approval of Ford's performance in office, while an equal percentage expressed disapproval.

These findings, based on an early November survey, represent a slight slip in the President's popularity from the previous survey, taken in mid-October, when 47 per cent approved and 40 per cent disapproved. Upcoming Gallup surveys will report the impact of the cabinet shakeup on Ford's standing with the public.

Ford's ratings have shown remarkably little change during the summer months. An early August survey, for example, showed 45 per cent expressing approval and 37 per cent saying they disapprove.

Off Pace Of Predecessors

Ford is currently running behind President Nixon's pace at a comparable point, one year before the presidential election. In November 1971—one year before the 1972 election—Nixon received the approval of 49 per cent of the public compared to 37 per cent who disapproved of his performance in office. Nixon, of course, went on to claim a smashing victory in the 1972 election.

Following is the question asked to determine presidential popularity since Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidency:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way (name of incumbent) is handling his job as President?"

Here is the trend since early August:

Ford Popularity

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opinion
Nov. 1-3	44%	44%	12%
Oct. 17-20	47	40	13
Oct. 3-6	47	37	16
Sept. 5-8, 12-15	47	36	17
Aug. 15-18	46	37	17
Aug. 1-4	45	37	18

Ford Popularity (Per cent who approve)

Current	44%
Average in current year	43%
Average since taking office	47%
High while in office (recorded August 1974)	71%
Low while in office (recorded January, April 1975)	37%

Other Presidents

	High	Low	Average
Nixon	68%	24%	48%
Johnson	80	35	54
Kennedy	83	57	70
Eisenhower	79	49	66
Truman	87	23	46
Roosevelt	84	54	68

The latest results reported today are based on 1,515 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Oct. 31-Nov. 3.

To the editor:

I would like to express my opinion on the recent cases concerning ending one's life who is beyond medical help (for example the Quinlan case in Denville, N.J.)

I think it is degrading for our society to go but one way in such cases. A graceful and dignified death is the only solution in such cases. There is no way that anyone in such a "chronic vegetative state" should be kept alive. I have heard many people say that no one should be given up for dead until they are medically pronounced dead. But if the people who think like this would place themselves in the place of the families of such victims, I am sure they would change their minds. Think of the medical bills and the prolonged family misery that is endured. Take for instance the Quinlan case. Karen Quinlan has been in a coma for six long months. She has gone from 120 pounds to 60 pounds. Her eyes are open but she sees nothing. She has been given zero per cent chance of survival. What do you, the public, think her parents are mentally going through? Do you think that they enjoy seeing their daughter in such a state? I think it is very cruel and very degrading for Karen. So what if she lives for three years. She is just a "vegetable" no matter how long she lives.

I say pull the plug on these machines and let these people in such cases die a graceful and dignified death.

of the policemen was not necessary and appropriate in the instruction to inquirers as to where they should go to get away from the area. It was certainly not appropriate for police to spray mace at already-apprehended people on the bus. A warning unheard by people could have been heard if done in an appropriate manner.

Many Greenvilleans say, "They wouldn't have been arrested in the first place if they had not been there." I expect these people have never indulged in partying on a Friday night. I certainly would not expect to be overcome by tear gas for just being at a place at the right time, much less arrested. I am sure that there are many people from Greenville that do not believe that any of this could possibly be fact. I suggest that there be an investigation of the matter to find out just what went on. It is certainly unfair to innocent parties arrested to have to hear a statement from the Greenville City Council declaring, "There will be no statement, see you in court on the 21st". I must say it shows a lacking in the judgment of the Greenville City Council.

I am a citizen from Greenville and have been for most of my life. I am not a "radical student" or a "hoodlum" as a well-known city authority has stated. I am concerned, along with thousands of other people, as to the details of this matter. I have always backed the police of Greenville and wish to continue if only an investigation or at least a little concern would be considered and the truths brought out in the open where they belong.

A Conservative View Consumerism: Congress May Be Almost Cured

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Political movements are like bad summer colds. Some are more serious than others; some linger on and on; but they all go away in time. Congress, if I am not mistaken, is getting down to its last snuffles of consumerism. The virus has almost run its course.

This has been a long one. Those of us who chart congressional chills and fevers can recall few viruses as stubborn. Foreign aid hung on like a smoker's cough. After the Russian Sputnik, Congress came down with a terrible case of scientificism; while the affliction persisted, any bill that wore a white coat was sure to pass. After scientificism came egalitarianism—civil rights, equal opportunity, all of that. Environmentalism was next.

In each case, Congress recovered slowly. If a vote that was taken in the House on November 6 is as significant as I think it is, recovery from the excesses of consumerism is now proceeding apace. A few more sneezes and the worst will be over.

Drop the metaphor. The bill before the House that Thursday afternoon was the Consumer Protection Act of 1975. This was the House version of a measure ringerly passed in the Senate some months ago. In either version, the purpose was the same—to create a new federal agency with power to act as advocate for whatever the administrator conceived to be "the interests of consumers." The bill was also known as the Ralph Nader Bill.

Before the afternoon was over, the House passed the bill. If that fact alone were all that counted, Mr. Nader could claim a victory. But the vote on passage was only 208 to 199. A switch of five votes would have killed the measure then and there. No matter. The bill is dead anyhow. President Ford promised a veto, and proponents could not possibly win on a vote to override.

Take a look again at that vote of 208 to 199. A year ago, when a much tougher bill came to the floor, the House favored it by 293 to 94. What a sea change! This time around, only 188 Democrats and 20 Republicans could be found in favor. Eighty Democrats and 119 Republicans voted no. And among those 80 Democrats who voted no were 20 of those famous 75 freshmen elected to the House in the Republican debacle of November, 1974.

What goes on here? The consumerism movement had been breezing along under full canvas. Mr. Nader could point to a string of victories: food labeling, cigarette warnings, flammable fabrics, safe toys, all-meat hotdogs, the Consumer Product Safety Commission. The Consumer Protection Act of 1975 was to provide the ultimate trophy. Now the wind has leaked out of his sails and his boat lies dead in the water.

What happened, I suspect, is that Congress wet its finger to a different wind. Congress heard from the folks back home. The message was unmistakable: Get Big Government off our backs! The people are fed to their ears with bureaucracy in every form. In small towns and large, newspaper editorials accurately reflected the voters' rebellion. The Consumer Protection Act is dead because consumers do not want to be "protected"—not in the meddlesome ways this bill proposed.

The Nader Bill, in my own view at least, was a very bad bill. Proponents struggled desperately to make it more palatable in the final hours of debate. Amendments were added to eliminate duplicated efforts on the consumers' behalf, to relieve small business of new burdens, to protect farmers from harassment, and to put nuclear licensing off limits. Proponents even accepted a "self-destruct" amendment, to abolish the new agency altogether in 1983. The changes improved the bill, but they didn't improve it enough.

These of us on the conservative side who seldom have much to write home about, are bound to be encouraged. Our worst record is worse than the New York Jets'. But business interests will blunder badly if they read the House vote as an invitation to treat consumers with benign neglect. Consumerism—the feverish kind of consumerism—may be fading, but like a summer cold, it can return in the form of pneumonia.

Congressional Record To Date Can't Please Constituents At Home

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

An old Washington saw has it that a member of Congress is his or her, own most favored constituent. And the record of the 94th, now only weeks short of the halfway mark, does nothing to impair the saying's validity.

Congress has labored long and loud, too, on such national interest issues as energy, inflation, recession, recovery and budget with so little achievement that critics have slapped it with a "do-nothing" label. But when it comes to matters of self interest, Congress has been on the ball.

The prime example, of course, is the pay increase Congress voted itself. Members of the House and Senate voted to put themselves under the same living coat formula earlier voted the general government. This would have meant a rise of 8.6 percent in their annual pay of $42,500. When President Ford frowned upon this as excessive in these inflationary times the legislators agreed to accept 5 percent.

But members haven't overlooked other, less obvious ways to protect their living standards. For one thing they have been lavish in taking vacations' recesses and holidays. And junkets at Treasury expense have not been neglected, despite the fact that much major legislation has languished. Also, there have been maneuvers to free congressmen of some of the spending restraints placed on candidates for federal office by the post-Watergate reforms. Members running for reelection will be able to send out "free" two news letters to their constituents. And this is no small matter when you consider today's cost of printing and mailing.

A compilation by The Washington Star this week gives some idea of how the cost of maintaining Congressional offices has outstripped rising living costs. Since 1970, consumer prices have gone up some 39 percent. According to The Star's figures legislators have raised allowances for staff salaries by 71 percent, allowances for stationary supplies 116 percent, postage by 63 percent and rents for district offices by 275 percent.

While members have not been exactly bashful in adding to the benefits of office their list of "wants" still isn't satisfied, not by a longshot. The 5 percent pay raise was the first since Nixon moved into the White House in 1969. Members would like to play "catch up" with inflation but they are afraid to tackle it ahead of next year's general elections.

But there's a new tax loophole, designed for Congressmen, pending in the House Ways and Means Committee, which bears watching. It would allow members to deduct from taxable income up to $3000 per year as "Washington expenses." The plan had been to bury this in the bill extending this year's tax cuts but it was spotted by an alert reporter.

There can be no question but what inflation hits members of Congress in much the same way as it hits others in the population. And picking off little benefits here and there is not going to solve the problem. This will only contribute to political criticism of the House and Senate.

Politically, the inflation chickens hatched by Congress through years of voting deficits as a cure for whatever "ill" happened to be fashionable are coming home to roost. Polls indicate that the public is more and more inclined to blame Congress for the inflation havoc which produced the recession and still threatens recovery.

Obviously, members seeking reelection next year are going to be hard put to defend Congress' record. And with so little in the way of major accomplishments, the benefits they picked off for themselves, while actually small will loom large.

Voters will not forget that after last year's smashing Congressional victory, which gave the Democrats a two-thirds majority in the House, the session has amounted to little more than a stalemate with the White House. In fact, Ford has been able to make some key vetoes stick.

The session started with a high Democratic zeal to take over and direct government from Capitol Hill. Some old committee chairmen were dumped and key committees were reorganized—packed with the newcomers to Congress. But effective leadership failed to develop.

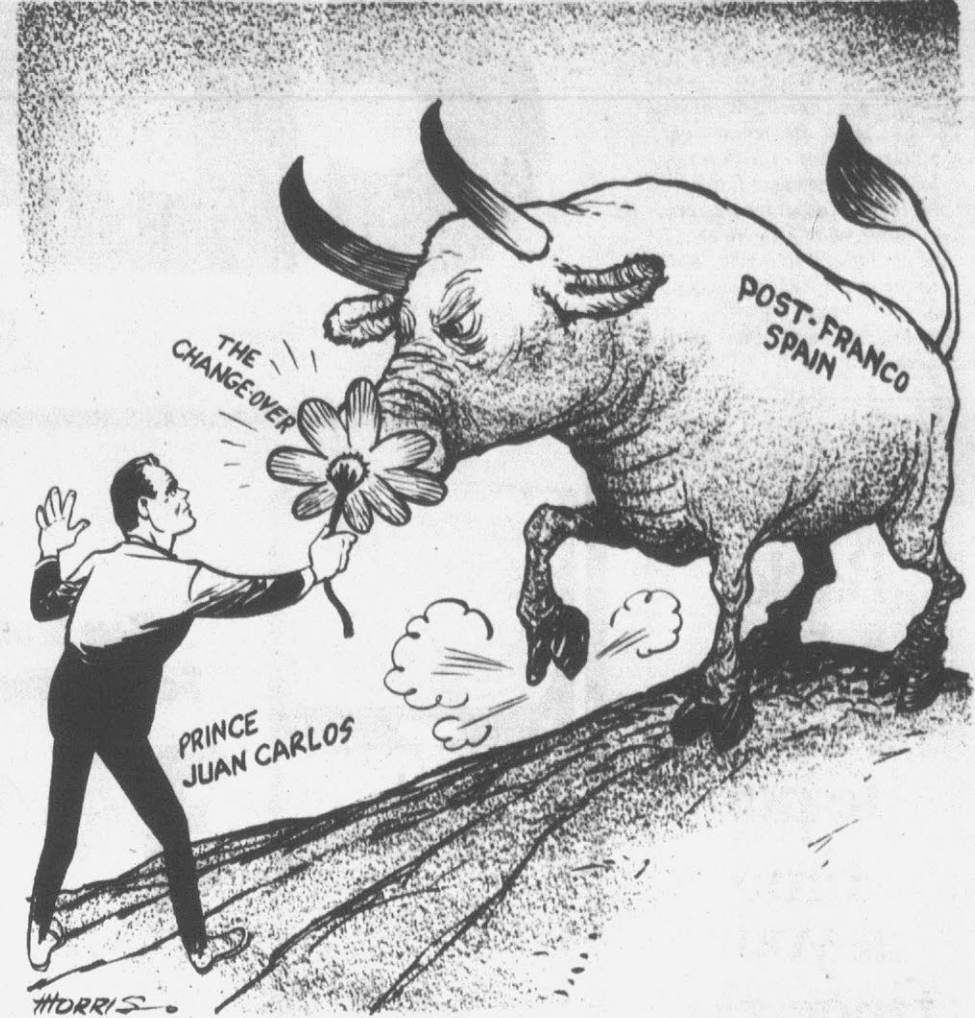

The Ways and Means Committee is a good example. With Chairman Wilbur Mills replaced by Al Ullman, California, and its membership expanded, things were going to happen. Except for a tax cut bill, which surprised no one, the committee has been bogged down. Nothing came of the legislation to close so-called tax shelters, but when the chips were down, the committee reversed itself time after time.

And so it has gone on other fronts. The energy bill which finally reached Ford's desk has been called a legislative monstrosity. Even some of its ardent backers are unsure just what it does. The measure is an awkward effort to control prices when the basic problem is how to assure future supplies without so much dependence on the oil countries.

Of course, it's just the first session of the 94th Congress which is coming to a close a few weeks hence. Starting in January, Congress will have another shot — another chance at spending deficits, inflation and other national interest issues.

Unless it turns in a better performance, casualties are apt to be heavy next November.

Shop Early — And Don't Forget To Buy Gumballs

By GAIL MICHAELS

There's only one thing more frustrating than trying to blow your nose while holding a screaming baby in one hand and a wet diaper in the other. That's Christmas shopping for my family. It's not that I don't want to buy presents for my family. But what do you buy for a family the size of an African wildebeest herd with a budget that consists of minus $300 in Ready Reserve?

Until this year I've always tried to solve this problem by waiting until the last minute to do my shopping. I figured that if I waited till then, my gift selection would be fairly easy because there'd be fewer items to choose from in my price range. But unfortunately, by Christmas Eve the gumball machine is invariably empty.

What's worse, those last minute shopping trips were hazardous to my health. I found that the meekest, most amiable people in the world could get one whiff of the Christmas spirit and become so ferocious that they made Attila the Hun look like a Sunday School teacher. For example, last Christmas I made the mistake of grabbing the last mariboutrimmed undershirt off a display table, and, before I could get checked out, one woman was holding me down, threatening to shave my head with an on-special, three-speed electric razor while her companion snatched the undershirt from my cart. And they were just salesladies. So this Christmas I decided to avoid the hassle as much as possible by doing my shopping early and by ordering everything out of catalogues. I was already near hysteria from trying to coordinate the price lists with my list when Phillip looked over my shoulder at my list and said "You forgot Gregory."

"I did not forget Gregory," I sighed. "It's just that your brother is impossible to buy for."

"Well, why don't you get him a shirt or something?" he asked. I gasped in disbelief. "That would be like getting Liz Taylor a 12-karat gold-filled bracelet. Don't you know? Gregory is very particular about his clothes. He insists on cultivating one particular look — Early Depression."

"There must be something you can get him," Phillip mused.

"It's certainly not clothes. Not unless you offered to clean out your closet and give him all your hand-me-downs."

GAIL MICHAELS

"There's nothing in my closet that I don't wear. Now what else is he interested in?"

"That's just it," I said miserably. "Everything that he's interested in is just too expensive. According to my calculations we can afford to give him a roll of film for his camera. And it's the same with everybody's present. I have ten presents left to buy and approximately five dollars left in the bank account. I'm beginning to realize how Congress feels."

"It's not so bad," said Phillip. "Just buy what you can, and buy yourself something nice with what's left over."

Oh well — another Christmas, another gumball.

New Faces Will Greet Pres. Ford In China

By JOHN W. ENGLISH

PEKING (UPD) — When President Ford arrives in Peking, he will not only meet with some different Chinese officials than greeted former President Richard M. Nixon in 1972, but he also will find the Chinese capital has undergone some notable changes since the last American presidential visit. Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, who has been running the government in place of ailing Chou En-lai, will probably greet Ford and be the principal in most of the talks.

Chou, who has been hospitalized for more than a year, has not seen any foreign visitors since Sept. 7. He reportedly suffers from heart trouble and stomach cancer.

Chairman Mao Tse-tung, nearly 82 and in fragile health, will undoubtedly meet briefly with Ford, but such talks will probably be more ceremonial than substantive.

The presidential party also will find Peking itself is somewhat different.

Near the city's center — Tiananmen Square — a 17-story addition to the Peking Hotel was opened last year. From the upper floors of Peking's tallest building, visitors have an unparalleled view of the nearby Forbidden

City and much of the central district.

The eastern wing of the hotel, originally set to be 25 stories, was limited to 17 when a senior official decided guests might be able to peer into the garden of Mao's nearby villa.

In several other portions of the city, traffic is being rerouted around construction of the second phase of Peking's new subway system. The new route will circle the city, while the first section — in operation since 1969 — cuts through its center.

In the Wang-fu-jing department store, Peking's largest, shelves are amply supplied with all kinds of basic consumer goods. The European resident of Peking observed that the amount of products available now is not only greater than a few years ago but also the quality has improved.

"Shoes, for example, are much better made than before. And there are more different styles now," one correspondent said.

In the sporting goods department, baseball equipment is now being sold. Within the last year, about ten teams have sprung up in major cities and friendship games have been held with visiting Japanese teams.

Two foodstuffs — eggs and sugar — are now being rationed in the markets in addition to rice and cooking oil, which were also rationed in 1972. Fresh vegetables, fruit and pork are plentiful, though customers often still have to wait an hour to purchase their daily needs.

Despite the uniform drabness of Mao-styled fashion, the Chinese penchant for bright colors is evident at fabric shops where customers can buy brilliantly designed synthetic cloth. And at long underwear departments, hot pink, yellow and turquoise undergarments are on display.

This past summer, a few young women in Peking and Shanghai began wearing Western-style dresses, with hemlines modestly cut at the knee. A few women have spurned the common bobbed hair style or short pigtails in favor of other hair styles.

In a city with few diversions, Peking movie houses are packed these days. Seven new feature films premiered on October 1st national day. Two films deal with China's "barefoot doctor" network, two are shipbuilding dramas, two chronicle military struggles and one is a revolutionary Peking opera.

Groundbreaking For Contentnea Plant

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Friday for the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District plant and distribution lines which will serve the towns of Winterville, Ayden and Grifton.

Contracts for the project were let in September and construction on the project is expected to get underway early next week.

Contractors who were awarded contracts were: Peabody Southeast, Inc., Orlando, Fla., $1,866,000, sewer plant construction; Winston Construction, Winston-Salem, installation of sewer pipe, $1,511,653.48; Central Builders, Rocky Mount, $693,330, pumping stations; Modern Electric Co., Statesville, $334,939, electrical work; Smith Plumbing and Heating, Raleigh, $11,140, plumbing; Peele Mechanical Co., Raleigh, $11,800, heating, ventilation and air conditioning.

The plant will be located near Grifton and the lines will begin at Winterville and end at the plant in Grifton.

The lines will consist of four main and gravity flow lines and will follow the highway rights-of-way from Winterville to Grifton. Ayden will have a line running into the main line.

According to Don Russell, Ayden town manager and secretary-treasurer of CMSD, funding for the project will come from federal, state and local funds. A total of 75 percent of the funding will come from the Environmental Protection Agency, 12.5 percent for the State Department of Environmental Management (Clean Water Bond Act); and 12.5 percent from a local bond referendum which was approved by citizens in Winterville, Ayden and Grifton, last December.

The CMSD will be responsible for the plant, outfall lines and the pumping station.

"The district will have no responsibility to any interceptor lines or collection lines that are inside the town limits," Russell explained. "They will remain the responsibility of the municipalities."

During the same time that plant construction and line installation is being done, the three towns will be involved in projects to eliminate the infiltration and inflow within the present sewer lines in the towns.

The district plant will be a two million gallon per day facility and pipe lines will be various sizes, including 14-inch, 18-inch, 24-inch and 30-inch. Completion date for the project has been set for Dec. 19, 1976.

Members of the CMSD board are: Dr. J. Elliott Dixon, chairman, and Ralph Hardee, Ayden representatives; Calvin Henderson and Bobby Crawford, Winterville; John Coward and John Groet, Grifton; Don Russell, secretary-treasurer and member-at-large.

Varied Program In Book Week

Many interesting and varied activities were carried out during Children's Book Week at Sadie Sautter School, Librarian Mrs. Lillian Scott said.

Fifth grade classes viewed the movie, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," and then wrote and illustrated their own fairy tales. A prize was given for the best one.

Sixth grade students studied mythology in conjunction with their social studies of Greece and drew scenes from various myths. Fourth graders read "The Little House" books by Laura Ingalls Wilder and learned about the author's life. Primary pupils wrote paragraphs about their favorite books and designed book jackets. Other activities included the viewing of film strips and movies in the media center and classrooms, the release of 100 new books into circulation, and the use of book displays and bulletin boards in the classrooms and the media center.

Local Labor Force Drop Is Registered Since Mid-Summer

The civilian labor force in the Greenville area during mid-September was estimated at 39,250, a drop of 2,830 since mid-July.

According to Jim Hannan, manager of the local Employment Security Commission, the decrease was due primarily to the withdrawal of unemployed summer job seekers from the labor force for the return to school and to a drop in agricultural employment.

"The civilian labor force has grown by 1,610 since September, 1974, as increases have been noted in employment and unemployment," Hannan said.

Total employment in September, placed at 37,600, has decreased 1,120 over the past two months. A seasonal agricultural work loss of 2,930 was partially offset by gains of 1,490 in manufacturing and 290 in nonmanufacturing.

The seasonal tobacco industry accounted for most of the factory worker gain since July. The nonfactory worker gains were noted in trade and government. Since September, 1974, employment has increased in all three major sectors. By place of work, nonmanufacturing employment has increased 490 over the past year.

"Substantial worker gains were recorded in trade and government. These gains were partially offset by employment declines in construction and service," Hannan said.

Total unemployment in September was estimated at 1,650 or 4.2 percent of the total civilian labor force. This showed a marked decrease of 1,710 persons since July, 1975. The unemployment rate decreased by 3.8 percentage points from the July rate of 8.0. The unemployment rate was at 3.8 in September, 1974.

"Total employment in the next three months is expected to decline, according to data provided by a sample of employers in Pitt County," Hannan stated. "Manufacturing, influenced by the seasonal tobacco industry, is expected to have a large decline of 1,160 with nonmanufacturing showing an increase of 520. Some adverse effect from the natural gas problem could be felt in this area. Most employers, however, have alternate sources available at this time if it becomes necessary."

Hannan said there is a large supply of qualified applicants registered for work with the Greenville Employment Security Commission office.

"Employers are encouraged to list job openings with the local office by calling 752-6146.

"The Greenville ESC office now has a representative on WNCT-TV each Thursday morning at 6:30 a.m. discussing the local job situation in Pitt County. Many jobs within the area are listed on the program," Hannan said.

Epilepsy Month

November is National Epilepsy Month and the North Carolina Jaycees have launched a drive to inform the public about the disorder, according to Hal Smith, president of the Greenville Jaycees.

"Epilepsy is probably the most misunderstood physical order affecting residents of our community and state," Smith said. He noted that Jaycees across the state voted to make epilepsy a major emphasis project.

Smith pointed out that nationally, about four million people have the neurological disorder, which can result from head injuries of various kinds as well as other known and unknown causes.

In the Greenville-Pitt County area, Smith said, about 1,800 persons are believed to have epilepsy. He observed, "Like epilepsy victims everywhere, they face tremendous problems in dealing with the rest of society. These problems are the prime targets of Epilepsy Month."

Because of medical and social advances, more epilepsy victims than ever can lead normal, active lives, he added.

"We want the people to know that their fellow citizens with epilepsy have a contribution to make to Greenville," the president said. "We look to the day when the man with epilepsy is hired or released on merit, and nothing else. We look to the time when the child with epilepsy is fully accepted at school and in the neighborhood. And that's the basic aim of Epilepsy Month."

Smith said that information about epilepsy may be obtained by writing the Greenville Jaycees at P.O. Box 258, Greenville.

Mayor Eugene West proclaimed the month of November as National Epilepsy Month in Greenville.

Stan Brock's 'The Forgotten Wilderness'

Wildlife TV Star Produces An Adventure Film

WILDLIFE TV STAR . . . Stan Brock, co-host of "Wild Kingdom," has just released his first independent film, "The Forgotten Wilderness," which opens in Greenville this week. Brock is shown here during a brief stop-over on Thursday at the Greenville Airport.

Ruggedly built Stan Brock has for years been a familiar figure to television audiences in his role as co-host with Marlin Perkins on the popular Wild Kingdom series.

Stopping over at the Greenville airport for a brief time on Thursday afternoon enroute from Charlotte to Wilmington on a promotional tour of The Forgotten Wilderness, his first independent film, Brock talked about his fabulous career as an outdoorsman. His life story is the kind many young boys dream about—and one that older yearners for masculine adventures will surely envy.

The Forgotten Wilderness, which principally stars animals of the Amazon, the world's largest remaining virgin area, will open in Greenville next Wednesday as a Thanksgiving film special.

And most of the film was photographed on location in the general area where Brock's contact with primitive nature began.

A Visit At 16

"When I was 16 I had an opportunity to go to South America to visit my father," he said. "He had a job in British Guyana." British Guyana is located at the extreme northern tip of Brazil.

The young native of Preston, England, found the new scene much to his liking. So much so that he remained there 17 years, living and working on a large ranch in the Savannahs of Brazil.

The Dadanawa Ranch, Brock said, "is tremendous, some 3,000 square miles of land with no fences. It stocks 40,000 head of Longhorn cattle, and has several hundred horses.

35 Day Walk

"When we wanted to go to the nearest town," Brock explained, "it was a 35 day, 400 mile walk." These "walks" were taken at the season of rounding up cattle to drive to market. "We would round up the cattle on horseback and drive them to the edge of the forest," he said. "From there it was on foot, the horses could not be trusted inside the jungle. They became frightened of wild animals. The cattle were funneled into a trail cut through the jungle.

"Advance guys went ahead. They'd take up a vantage point on the top of a hill to direct the cattle's movement. By this time the cattle would usually be a little tired."

Brock began life on the huge ranch as a vaquero, a South American cowboy. Before he left he had become manager of Dadanawa, reputedly the world's largest ranch.

Other Achievements

Vaquero Stan Brock did not, however, limit his development during those years to physical brawn. He learned to speak the language of the Wapishani Indian tribe, with whom he worked closely. He also learned to fly, which proved to be beneficial. As a bush pilot, he was able to bring in needed supplies and take injured Indians to Georgetown, the capital city of British Guyana.

"I raised a mountain lion, or puma," he said. "His name was Leebo." Other animals in his circle of friends were an ocelot named Beano, a ferocious harpy eagle, Jezebel, and many other adopted wild animals.

Brock also turned to writing, and was a regular contributor to magazines such as Life, Reader's Digest, and Outdoor Life.

"I've written three books," he said. "Leemo, about my experiences with my pet mountain lion, a sequel, More About Leemo, and Jungle Cowboy, written for Reader's Digest."

He mentioned these have been published in hardback by Taplinger Publishers of New York.

New Career

As a result of his articles and books about life on the wild, remote ranch, the producers of Wild Kingdom in 1966 asked if he'd be interested in filming episodes for the television series.

Following the acclaim received for the first three episodes, he was offered a position on the wildlife television show as co-host with Marlin Perkins.

"So I came to the U.S. in 1968 and have been here, or worked from here, since that time," he said.

"The Wild Kingdom show has tremendous popularity," Brock said. "It has an estimated audience of 33 million viewers and has been on the air for 12 years, which I believe is a record for a documentary show.

"It's now showing in 64 different countries, and has been translated into many languages. All the film sequences," Brock added, "have been filmed on location. We've filmed in all part of the world," including Alaska." Brock stated a definite preference for the warmer climates of the world.

Brock has also filmed TV series for the British Broadcasting Company and the Japanese national television. The Japanese series is named The Adventurers.

Grave Concern

Asked what his feelings are on the current controversial Brazilian project of cutting a modern highway through the Amazon wilderness, Brock expressed emphatic opinions about the program.

"Basically, I think it'd be bad, for two major ecological reasons," he said. "First, the Amazon River today provides man with one-fifth of the world's supply of fresh water. If the area is opened up and is industrialized and polluted, then one-fifth of the world's fresh water supply will be polluted.

"The other reason, and perhaps the most important, is that many scientists have pointed out that changing the ecology of the Amazon basin would eliminate the major source of the supply of oxygen for this planet. The Amazon is a tremendous source of plant life that produces oxygen. It might take 500 years to reach the point of exhausting the oxygen, but still it's not a very comforting thought."

Florida Zoo

Several years ago Brock became associated with a group of other wildlife advocates in establishing an animal preserve in Florida.

"The preserve is now named the Central Florida Zoo," Brock said. "It's a non-profit organization built largely by public donation. The zoo is at Sanford, fairly close to Orlando.

"This summer, on July 4th, the zoo was opened to the public."

He talked about some of the problems encountered in raising wild animals in captivity. "One problem," he explained, "is that for a lot of animals in captivity, the mothers do not take care of their young.

"In many cases we've had to take a baby away and raise it, feed it a special formula. Fortunately, almost 100 per cent survive."

People like Brock develop a special relationship with animals. One example is that of a big bear at the Florida preserve.

"Pokey is a big bear, weighs about 400 pounds," he commented. "He loves to wrestle. The problem is that he always wins. He easily lifts me off the ground." Asked what he does if the animal becomes too roughly loving in his playful bouts, Brock said, "If you want him to stop, all you need do is give him a bottle of beer. He'll turn you loose. He loves beer."

Brock's Film

The Florida animal preserve, Brock said, is the location for the opening sequences of The Forgotten Wilderness. "Before getting into the South American location, there's several scenes filmed in Florida which I believe adds excitement that most viewers will like.

"The opening sequence shows us preparing ourselves physically for the expedition through the use of karate." Brock holds a black belt in the Korean class of karate, Tae Kwon Do.

"Another sequence shows my good friend Herman Brocks engaged in his unique way of catching rattlesnakes alive. Herman holds the brim of his straw hat over the snake's head, which makes the snake strike, sinking his fangs into the hat. Herman then lowers the brim even closer over the snake's head, then reaches around behind and catches the snake back of the head.

"This is definitely not recommended for novices to attempt," Brock cautioned.

A highlight of the film's action, Brock explained, "is concerned with a search for a giant anaconda snake. We finally located a big one, weighing in at 308 pounds, about 26 or 27 feet long.

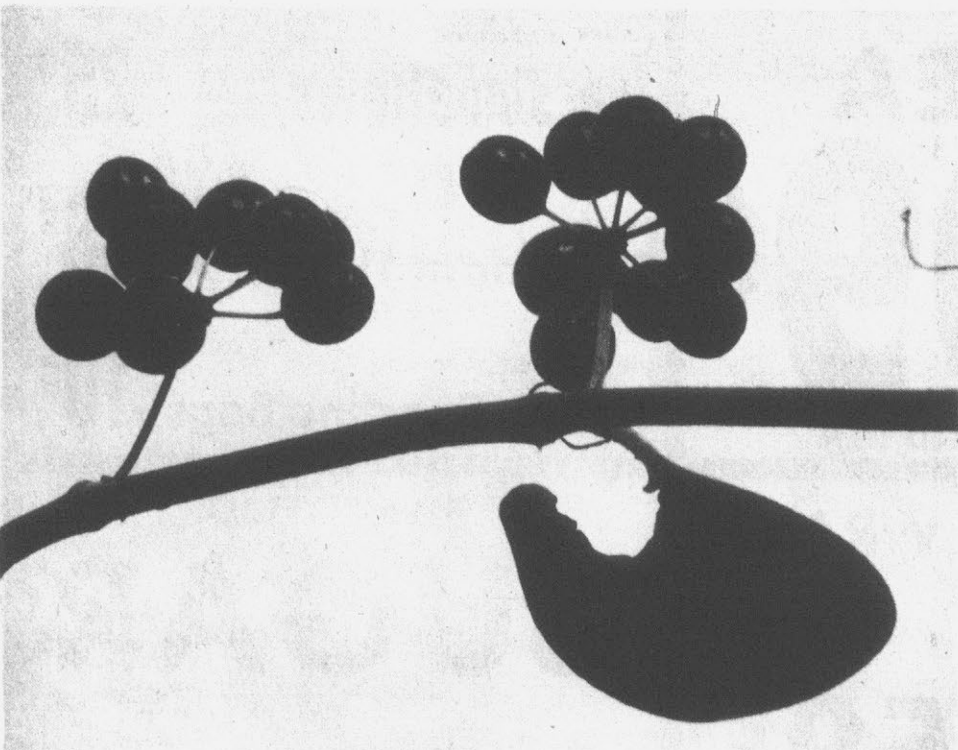

"The scene was filmed at night in a small tributary of the Amazon. The look of terror you see on my face with that giant coiled around me is not make-believe," Brock laughed, "it's real."

While The Forgotten Wilderness incorporates scenes of bird and flower life of the Amazon, Brock said. The main focus "is on wild animals. The other is all there for viewers to see, but the animals provide the excitement and thrills in our adventure expedition," he remarked.

"If you're one who enjoys wild life films, I think you'll like The Forgotten Wilderness."

The Beauty Of A Common Briar

STRENGTH AND DELICACY . . . in nature's plant life is exemplified in slender stems supporting clusters of heavy blue-black berries which reach their finest color in late autumn months.

Text And Photos By Jerry Raynor

The fading and falling of autumn leaves signals the onset of the dormant season, when nature takes it's annual rest.

This time of dormancy following the awakening of spring, summer's lavish splendor, and autumn's shimmering glory, does not, however, usher in a season void of beauty that delights the human sensibility.

It is instead a season when nature challenges man to be even more observant, to discover the less spectacular offerings of her incredible bounty.

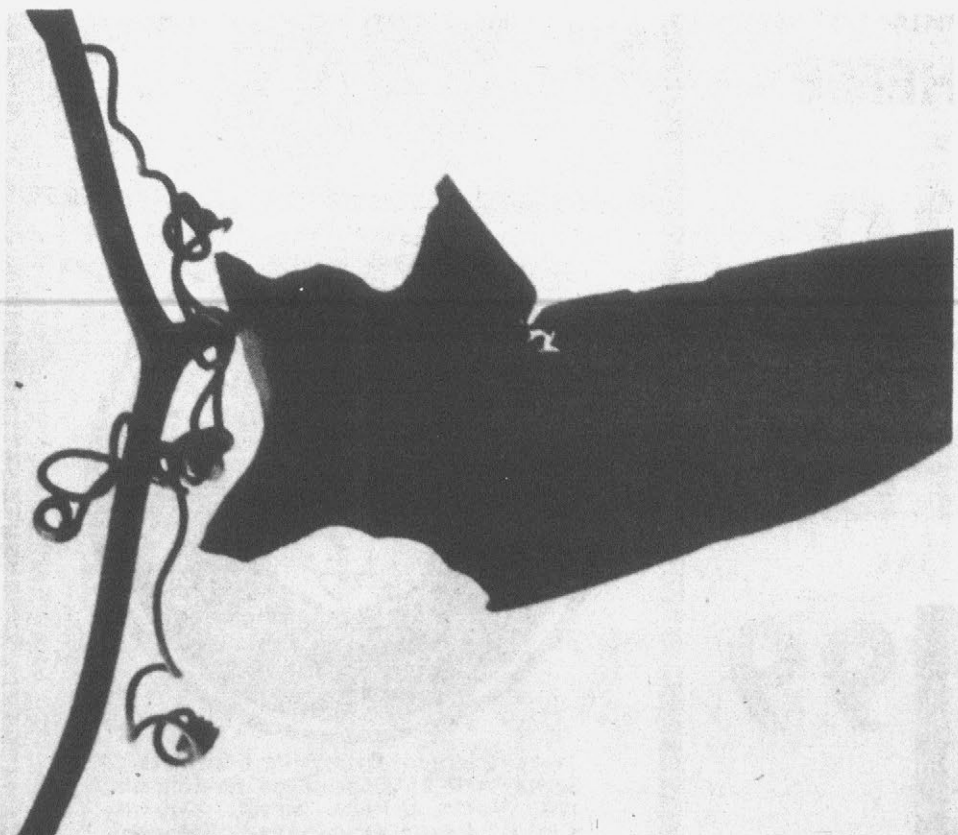

In these months when nature temporarily sheds it's more colorful attractions, it compensates this absence in the display of intricately patterned gray and silver seed pods, in tan and gold grasses and straws, in tree borne pearls of mistletoe, and revealed tendrils that spiral in the air like flute notes held in suspension.

And nature holds a few surprises in reserve for the careful seeker—things like velvety mounds of emerald mosses and a dash of holly berry scarlet.

Another winter beauty is the common saw greenbriar. This strong, slender vine keeps it elongated heart-shaped leaves well into the winter. Clusters of lustrous blue-black berries and bronze tendrils, half hidden by the vine's rich green leaves, are miniature beauties as lovely as the finest jewelry ever crafted by man.

CONTRAST IN SHAPES . . . The briar's elongated heart shaped leaf is a striking contrast to the arabesque of tendrils growing from the strong main stem of the running briar.

Brooklynite Wonders: 'How Could They Hate Us?'

By DENIS G. GULINO
BROOKLYN, N.Y. (UPI) — Sebastian "Sam" Leone is certain Brooklyn will survive whatever happens to New York City.

And he is first to remind what New York has done for other cities and towns.

"I really feel sorry for the people who have been sheltered all of their lives in small communities who don't know what tough going is," the 50-year-old Leone said in an interview at Borough Hall.

Leone, a Democrat and ally of New York Mayor Abraham Beame, has been Brooklyn Borough president for five years, filling a job that does not offer the power of a mayor or the clout of a congressman, but serves as the elected leader of a community of more than two and a half million persons.

Leone also vents his anger in a Brooklyn accent on those who seem content to let New York go down the financial drain and is quick to remind them what the Big Apple has done for the rest of the nation.

"We've taken the poor, the illiterate, the sick. They've put them on buses and sent them into this city and we've accepted them as our duty. We've cleaned up their towns, they've taken our industry in exchange, and now they ridicule and scoff at us. It's a rude awakening.

"Immigrants come here without knowledge of the language and without a dollar in their pockets. My own people, every one of us who amount to anything in this city, that's our story. This city has taken them, we've clothed and housed them. It hasn't been by dole as they'd like to believe.

"There's been opportunity in this city for those kind of people. Their children have been educated, they've left here, they've become the leaders in every jerkwater town in this country...the judges, the doctors, the surgeons, the authors, the publishers. And how could they hate us for it?"

Leone sees banks in many parts of the country folding, and the ripple effects of default as devastating.

"If what some of us think will happen as a result of a default in New York City happens I feel sorrier for those people who have never had to face adversity," he said.

"They won't be able to make it. The people of this city, one way or another, we'll survive because we face every difficulty and privation and have been able to come out of it."

Difficulties are not hard to come by in Brooklyn these days. Nineteen blocks from Borough Hall, at Public School 20, principal Richard Alexander says he is losing 25 paid school positions. That leaves 38 teachers and supervisors left to instruct the 1,100 children from grades kindergarten to six.

"When I see my babies — that's what I call some of my young teachers — when I see what the school board is doing to some of these people I could cry," Alexander said.

Between PS 20 and Borough Hall, on Brooklyn's South Portland Avenue, a block association has authorized the purchase of plastic garbage bags in which to store the block's refuse if sanitation workers strike because pay-checks stop.

Brooklyn has already lost two firehouses, two police precinct stations, and city officials are considering closing a large municipal hospital. But Leone knows that default or not, it is only the beginning. And if there is default, he fears it could be the end of much of Brooklyn redevelopment.

"The cuts would have to be catastrophic. If there isn't some federal assistance I see every capital project, without exception, being terminated."

Included would be more than $100 million in projects, some 80 per cent completed. Brooklyn's wholesale meat markets would not be moved, despite the $24 million already spent on the new facilities.

Renovation of the Northeast Waterfront Terminal, part of the most prosperous northeast port facilities, is stopping, despite the $30 million dollars of work in progress. Workers have already left the site of a new elementary school, where only finishing work remains.

Already there have been organized demonstrations against cuts in police and fire service. Leone was asked how he will explain all this to his constituents when the cutbacks really begin to sink in.

"I'm going to tell the people of Brooklyn that we can make it through this crisis. And in the areas where the suggestions for cuts are reasonable and where they don't imperil safety and lives we're going to ask our people to make the sacrifices that are necessary to see it through.

"But when the suggestion is one which I believe actually imperils the health and lives of the people, I'll lead the rebellion. If we have to march to Washington to demonstrate then I'll do it."

Retraining Classes Set

Retraining classes for currently authorized water safety instructors who need to be retrained under new materials will be taught Dec. 4, 5 and 6 at Memorial Gym at East Carolina University.

The first meeting on Dec. 4 will be taught from 7:30 p.m. until 10 p.m. while the second on Dec. 5 will involve a 4-6 p.m. and 7-10 p.m. session. The Dec. 6 class will be from 8:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

The opening meeting will be held in Room 104 at Memorial Gym, it was announced, and participants should bring pencils, paper and funds for books and other supplies.

Instructor for the retraining sessions will be Miss Nell Stallings, water safety advisor, for the Pitt County Red Cross.

Rose Students To Present "Ten Little Indians"

Agatha Christie's chillingly entertaining play, Ten Little Indians, is having a two-time performance on Monday and Tuesday at Rose High School. Performances will be at 8 p.m. on Monday and again on Tuesday in the cafeteria at Rose High. Admission price is $1.00 in advance and $1.50 at the door, for adults and children.

This favorite mystery entertainment shows the fate of eight guests their host and a servant, all unknown to each other, who gather for a rendezvous at a run-down beach house off the Devon coast of England.

Above the mantle of the cabin are statuettes of Indians, with a nursery rhyme embossed on them. A voice from an unseen presence during cocktails accuses each of the guests, in turn, of murder.

Soon, one of the statuettes topples and breaks, and the first victim is scored. One down—nine to go. This exciting process of elimination continues until the nursery rhyme's prophecy is fulfilled—"then there were none."

Lead roles in the Rose High production are played by Ray Alexander as Sir Lawrence Wargrave; Mike Erway as Captain Lombard; Cindy Browning as Vera Claythorne; Hank Dunbar as Mr. Blore; Lauren Brehm as Emily Brent; Joyce Sanburg as Dr. Armstrong; Paul Windsor, General McKenzie; Mike Dixon, Mr. Rogers; Mark Daugherty, Fred Narracott; Lori Lieko as Mrs. Rogers; and Doug Coggins as Anthony Marston.

Mrs. Melody Cannon is directing. She is being assisted by Claude West. Ron Williams has done the artwork and background details.

'Star Of Bethlehem' To Open Nov. 25

CHAPEL HILL—In these weeks before Christmas, all through the Planetarium, researchers, script writers and technicians are busily preparing for the University of North Carolina's 27th annual indoor Christmas pageant, "Star of Bethlehem".

According to officials of the public service facility, astronomers believe that astrology had much to do with the saga of the Magi and the "Star" which guided them on their journey westward to Jerusalem in search of the Messiah.

The Magi were priests of the Zoroastrian religion, which combined the teachings of Zoroaster with the tenets of Babylonian astrology. Zoroastrian astrologers believed that the gods revealed their future plans through planetary movements in the heavens, and spent much time watching and charting these movements. Ancient Jews, on the other hand, were not believers in astrology, and did not accept the movements and configurations of planets as signs and portents of future happenings. The phenomenon in the sky which impressed the Magi might therefore have been completely overlooked by the Jews; which could account for their King Herod's total ignorance of the "Star". "Star of Bethlehem" goes on to explore the cultural overlap between the Jews and the descendants of Babylon — their shared history, writings, and prophecies. The 1975 version will be offered in the Morehead Planetarium star chamber, every day and evening of the week, beginning November 25th. Regular admission rates will apply and individuals or groups may attend evenings and weekends without advance reservations. School groups can arrange to see "Star of Bethlehem" at 10:00 a.m. or 12:00 noon, and-or graded programs at other times on Mondays through Fridays. Clergymen are admitted free at all times.

ACC Concert Tomorrow

The Atlantic Christian College Vocal Ensemble, under the direction of Robert Daniel, will present its fall concert Monday at 8 p.m. in Howard Chapel, on the college campus.

The program on the ACC campus will include selected movements from the Missa Brevis, of Palestrina and three Latin Motets, by Maurice Durufle. Also included will be The Art of the Ground Round, by Peter Schickele (P.D.Q. Bach) and selected Christmas carols of Alfred Burt.

In addition to its campus performances, the group is scheduled to appear at the Rocky Mount Arts Center sponsored by the Rocky Mount Arts Council. The ensemble will also present a taping over WITN-TV for its annual "Christmas Carousell" presentation. The concert is open to the public with no admission charge.

THE VOCAL ENSEMBLE... of Atlantic Christian College will appear in a free concert on Monday in Howard Chapel on the ACC campus. The public is invited to attend.

New Art Organization

A Winston-Salem businessman has been appointed the head of a newly-formed organization to support and promote the arts in nine southern states. Howard R. Hall, former partner in a Winston-Salem consulting firm who has long been active in the arts, has been named director of the Southern Federation of State Arts Agencies (SFSAA). Halsey North, director of the N.C. Arts Council, made the announcement in Raleigh. North said the North Carolina council will join similar agencies in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, South Carolina and Tennessee in the new federation. The federation will be based, at least for its first year, in Winston-Salem.

Craft Of Thomas Day In Permanent Exhibit

By BEVERLY WOLTER
Dept. Of Cultural Resources

Thomas Day was designing and building furniture in Milton, N.C., as a free black at a time when almost all blacks were slaves.

Day himself was so successful that he also owned slaves—blacks, like himself, although the records on this are as faulty in some respects as his vital statistics—Where was he born? When did he come to North Carolina? When did he die? Whatever the personal facts were, the physical facts remain, the ones brought together in the exhibit made possible through the purchase of Day's furniture by Delta Sigma Theta, Inc., a national public service sorority.

The Winston-Salem Alumnae Chapter of the sorority spearheaded the fundraising effort to buy an 18-piece collection of Day's furniture. The furniture came from the collection of Gov. David S. Reid, one of many prominent North Carolinians who turned to Day for high quality household furniture.

Grace J. Rohrer, Secretary of the Department of Cultural Resources, said, "We are thrilled to have this exhibit both as an extension of our collections and as an expression of interest in the cultural heritage of North Carolina."

"While we try in the History Museum, which is part of this department, to serve our state's varied background, we often need help, and so we are particularly grateful to the members of Sigma Delta Theta for providing this permanent exhibit for our museum and the thousands of school children and adults who will be visiting it."

Day did not confine his efforts to household furnishings.

Day also did the flooring, furnishings, including seating, rostrums, curtains and blinds, for debating halls at the University of North Carolina in 1847.

Because of the excellence of his work, Day was selected to do this work although his bid was one-third higher than that of his nearest competitor.

This work, as has much of his work, has disappeared, except for four rostrums still being used by a university society.

Some of his work has vanished in the natural course of time. Some has disappeared because Day did not sign his pieces.

Remaining items are identified now primarily by his style, the age and kind of wood, and the quality of his workmanship.

The facts of his life seem to be these:

—He was active as an artisan in Milton, a town along the Dan River near the Virginia line, from the 1820s to about 1859.

—During these years he established a reputation as an outstanding craftsman whose furniture was widely sought and as a prominent and respected citizen of the town.

—The exact date and place of his birth are not known, but census figures indicate he was born in Virginia around 1801.

—Correspondence to his daughter has indicated that he came to Milton in 1823.

How, where and why he became a free man is not known.

That he was, indeed, a free and well-accepted working man is shown not only by the purchase of his furnishings, but also by an act of the state legislature.

In January, 1830, Thomas Day married Aquilla Wilson, a free black woman of Halifax County, Virginia.

State law being what it was at that time, a petition from the citizens of Milton to the General Assembly was necessary to allow Day to bring his wife to Milton.

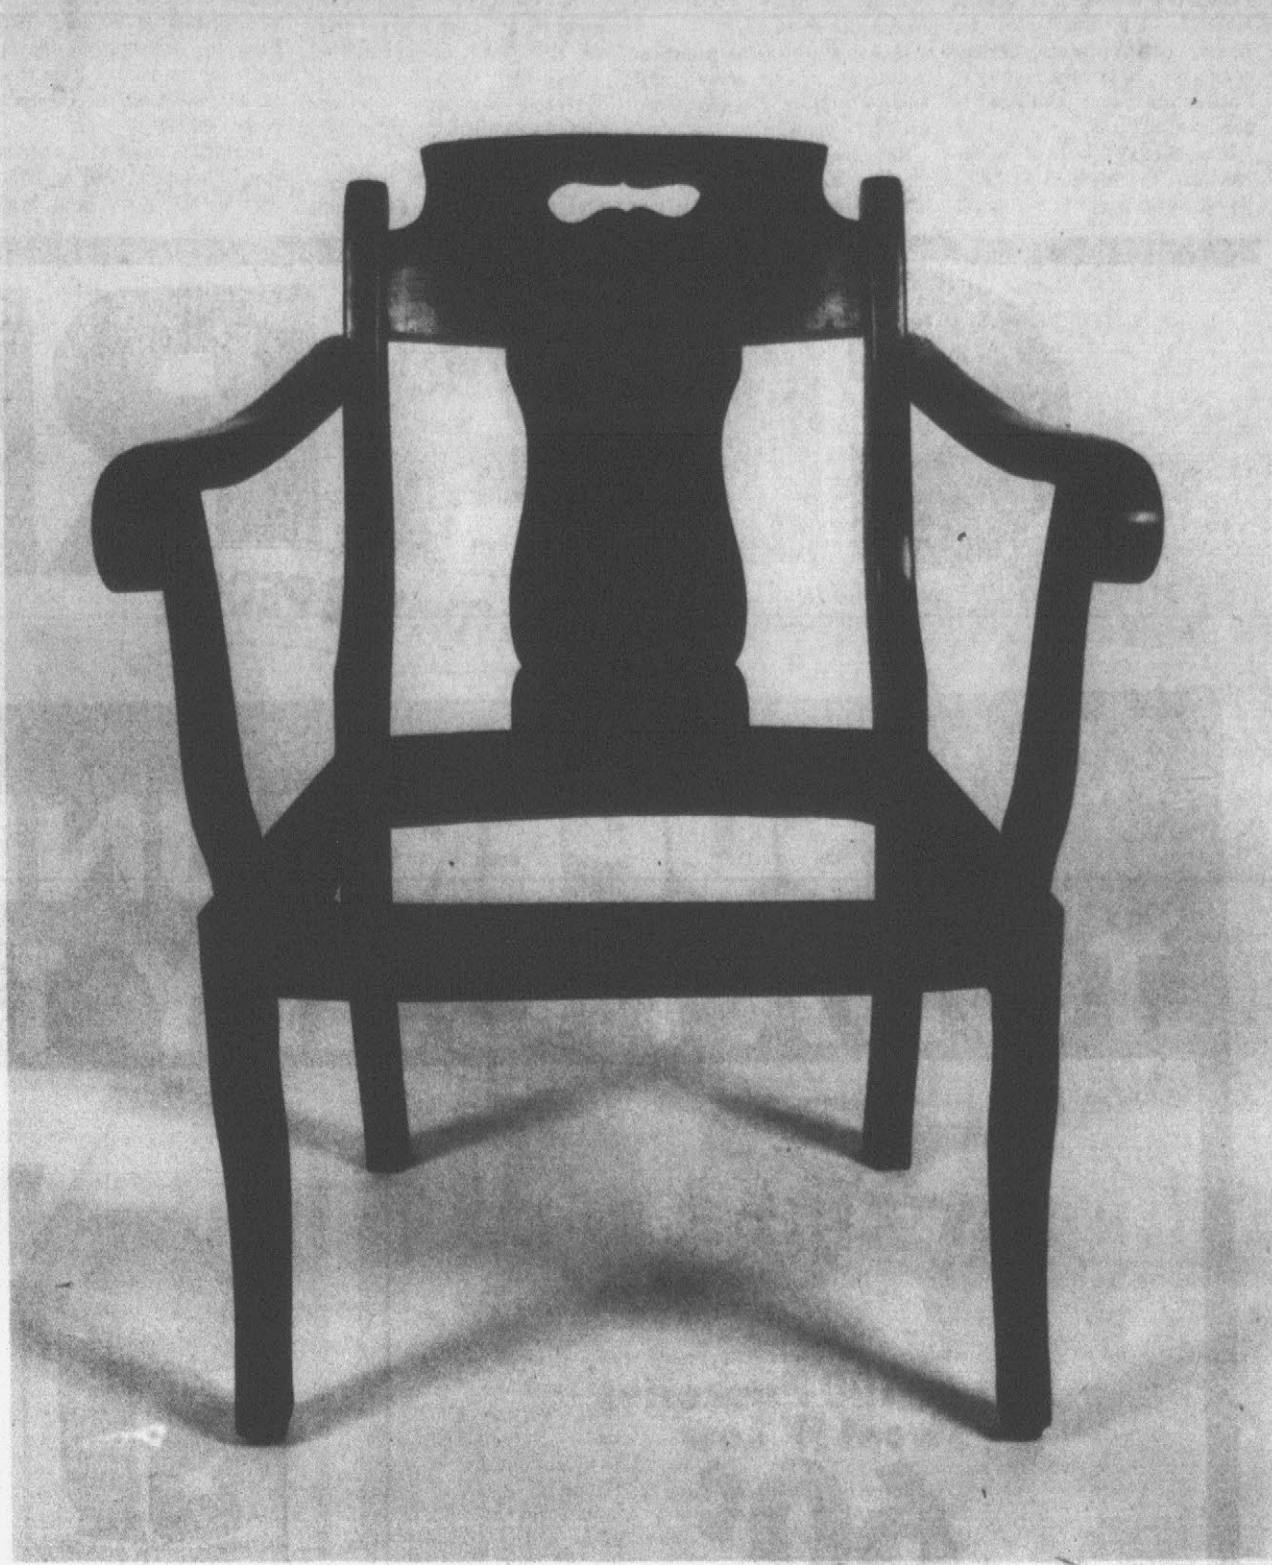

State law prohibited "free persons of color from migrating into this state."

The petition that came from "sundry citizens" of Milton was of such strength in its characterization of Day and his worth to the community that an exception to the law was made and he was allowed to have his wife come into the state.

Day was active as a citizen of Milton. Besides being a property owner, he and his wife were members of the Milton Presbyterian Church. Records show that two church sessions were held at their home.

Just as the date of Day's birth is uncertain, so is the date of his death. He is believed to have died in 1861. The exact date of his birth or death does not matter.

Tom Day's importance lies in the enduring contribution his skills and talents made to the life of people of his time and of today.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By WILLIE MAE GIBBS

Writing to all people who are involved in the important job of helping black children grow up healthy, self confident and secure, Drs. James P. Comer and Alvin Poussaint blend their professional insights as psychiatrists with warm practical advice in BLACK CHILD CARE. These authors believe that growing up black in America where policy making and attitudes are largely controlled by whites who are often antagonistic or indifferent to the needs of blacks, poses many special problems for black parents and their children. BLACK CHILD CARE discusses in clear question and answer format the important problems that parents face with their children at school and at home. White racism in America is dealt with as a fact of life. The authors hold that while black parents should not cooperate in raising another generation of victims, neither should they maintain an attitude of constant hostility to whites. Rather, they suggest that there are better ways to deal with the issue, thus helping the black child grow up proud and secure in his racial identity, confident and open in his relationships with others, and successful in his family life, his community, and his career.

Grace W. Weinstein, the author of many magazine articles on money management and child development, has used the personal experiences of numerous parents and children, and the opinions of experts, to write a book called CHILDREN & MONEY. In her book she indicates that from infancy through adolescence America's children are responsible for the spending of enormous amounts of money, even though they do not necessarily spend it themselves. Food, clothing, shelter, bubble gum and baseball cards, piano lessons and summer camp, bicycles and guitars, bowling and a weekly movie—are just a sampling of the many ways that money is spent on children. "Do children learn anything about the value and function of money because of, or despite, all the money dispersed in their behalf? Do they learn anything about managing it themselves? About budgeting? About setting priorities? How can parents teach the uses of money—and convey the fundamental message that it is a useful tool—nothing more, nothing less?" These are just some of the questions that Grace Weinstein answers in CHILDREN & MONEY.

In ESCAPE FROM CHILDHOOD, a book about young people and their place, or lack of place, in society today, John Holt calls attention to the attitudes, customs, and laws that define and locate children in life and determine to a large degree what their lives are like and how we, their elders treat them. He says in his book that the institution of modern childhood is in many ways insufficient and inadequate—that the fact of being a "child", of being wholly subservient and dependent does young people more harm than good. His proposal in ESCAPE FROM CHILDHOOD is that the rights, privileges, duties, responsibilities of adult citizens be made available to any young person, of whatever age, who wants to make use of them.

Asolo Season

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — The Asolo Theater has chosen nine American plays, including three world premieres, for its 17th season Feb. 19 through Sept. 5, 1976. The new plays are "Going Ape," a farce by Nick Hall, "The Quibletown Recruits" by Eberle Thomas, based on George Farquhar's comic "The Recruiting Officer," and a third play celebrating the American theater past and future. Other productions include Langdon Mitchell's "The New York Idea," William Alfred's "Hogan's Goat," Bella and Samuel Spewack's "Boy Meets Girl," Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," Meredith Willson's "The Music Man," and Ketti Frings' "Look Homeward, Angel," based on the Thomas Wolfe novel.

JEWISH ART NEW YORK (UPI) — The Jewish Museum has opened a permanent exhibition entitled "Celebration of Jewish Life — of Days and Seasons, of Time and its Passage," as the first stage in its new installation of its extensive Judaica collection. The exhibition displays articles in the context of their role in Jewish life, including categories such as Sabbath, Passover, Hanukkah, birth, marriage and death.

Eight American presidents died while still in office

By NANCY SZOKAN
An exhibit of about 100 of the newest, most significant additions to the N.C. Museum of Art collections will open today on the museum's third floor.

The "Recent Acquisitions" exhibition will open with a 3 p.m. lecture by museum director Moussa Domit and will remain on display through Feb. 2.

The works exhibited are as old as a Bronze Age figure of a Canaanite mother-goddess and as new as a chromed sculpture from the 1974 N.C. Artists Exhibition. They range from African religious masks to ceramics by Picasso.

Writers To Meet

The second writers meeting of the Greenville Writers Club will take place on Tuesday beginning at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Raynor, 2106 Pendleton Street.

Persons interested in writing (other than poetry) are invited to attend these twice monthly meetings, held each second and fourth Tuesday evenings at various homes in the Greenville area.

More than 2,000 persons died in 79 A.D. when Mount Vesuvius erupted near Naples and destroyed the cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum.

N.C. Museum Of Art Showing Group Of Recent Acquisitions

The pieces on display were selected from a total of 293 items acquired by the museum between mid-1974 and mid-1975. The total value of these items is estimated at more than $1.5 million.

Only $200,000 worth, however, was bought by the state of North Carolina with funds appropriated by the General Assembly.

The rest came from gifts and donations to the museum," director Domit said. "This means that the state's commitment to and support of the museum is inspiring private individuals and corporations to contribute as well."

The exhibition is divided into two roughly equal parts. Western art and art of ancient cultures make up about half the show, and includes some of the most popular pieces in the museum: a gilded Egyptian mummy covering, Andrew Wyeth's "Sea Dog," and a series of 17 limited edition ceramics by Picasso.

The other half of the exhibition consists of art from African and Pacific Ocean island cultures and from South and Central American civilizations that flourished long before Columbus came to the New World.

Tribal masks and idols, pottery many centuries old, and remarkably sophisticated metal castings are among the works in this section.

Important museum purchases of the past year, Domit said, include "Indian Fantasy," a 1914 American painting by Marsden Hartley, and several classical Greek and Italian vases.

One of the most interesting exhibits in the show came to the museum from the N.C. Library. A collection of 434 hand-colored Audubon engravings of American birds, stored in the library since the 1840's, was transferred to the museum where more North Carolinians could see and appreciate them.

Called the "elephant" folios because of their size—each of the four volumes on display measures 40" by 26" and weighs 80 pounds—the prints are in almost perfect condition, having been stored away from light and use for more than a century.

The rest of "Recent Acquisitions" includes a great variety of objects: a bronze left hand of Abraham Lincoln, done from life; a pair of wooden leopards from the Benin civilization of Nigeria; Mayan pottery; and colorful modern abstract paintings.

A catalog will be published in conjunction with the exhibition, listing all acquisitions for the year.

Dr. Romita Is Leaving ECU

Dr. Joseph W. Romita, associate professor of economics at ECU, left last week for Bakersfield, California where he is expected to join the faculty of California State College in January.

Romita has 27 years of college teaching, including 11 at ECU. He has also taught at St. John's University and in Florida at Rollins College, and the University of Florida.

He has served as an American diplomat at American embassies in Spain, Paraguay, and the Philippines.

Representing private enterprise, and the U.S. Government, Romita has traveled in over 30 countries.

His latest publication sponsored by a research grant from the ECU Business Foundation, was entitled "A Bibliography of Selected Readings for the Chartered Life Underwriters designation (CLU)."

He received a General Electric Corporation Fellowship in economics, and one from the Republic Steel Corporation. He was presented a gold medal from the Paraguayan government for his contribution to the advancement of free enterprise in that country.

Romita is listed in "American Men of Science," and in "Who's Who in the South and Southwest". He is a life-time member of the American Economic Association, the Western Economic Association, Beta Gamma Sigma, and the Lions International.

Dr. Romita and his wife, Irene, will make their home at 5417 Demaret Avenue, (Kern City), Bakersfield, Ca. 93309.

Chaired Talk On Sci-Fi

Dr. Donald Lawler, professor of English at East Carolina University, chaired a discussion of science fiction at the annual convention of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association (SAMLMA) in Atlanta last week.

He also presented a paper, "A Study of Structuring and Teaching Science Fiction Courses," which was based on his experiences in teaching courses in fantasy and science fiction at ECU.

Prof. Lawler organized the SAMLMA Discussion Circle in Fantasy and Science Fiction and now edits the SAMLMA Science Fiction and Fantasy Newsletter.

He is also sponsor of a Curriculum Study Forum which will provide information on science fiction and fantasy curricula and pedagogy for secondary school teachers and college instructors in the South Atlantic region.

Pirates Close Season With 28-12 Win

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

Willie Hawkins scored two touchdowns to spark an exam-weary East Carolina football team to a 28-12 victory over Virginia Military Institute last night in the final game of the season for the Pirates.

The Bucs, who came off an open date and finished up after going through a week of quarter exams, lacked their usual luster both offensively and defensively, although they generally did the job when it counted. Twice they stopped the Keydets inside the five-yard line on downs, saving touchdowns.

The Bucs picked off two interceptions, one each by national leader Jim Bolding and Harold Randolph, the latter returned 33 yards for a touchdown. Bolding's return of 46 yards fell only a few yards short of a touchdown return. The pickoffs brought to 24 the year's total for the team; breaking by one the school record. Bolding's tenth almost assured him of the national title in interceptions, and tied the single season Southern Conference mark. He already holds school and conference career marks and the single season school mark.

Hawkins' scores came on an eight-yard run and a 16-yard pass reception of a Mike Weaver aerial. Tom Daub got the other Pirate score, a four-yard run. Pete Conaty kicked four extra points.

Rick Tufaro kicked two VMI field goals, both of 32 yards, while Kim Glidewell got their lone touchdown, a fourth-quarter one-yard plunge.

"This was probably our worst game since the Richmond game," Coach Pat Dye said afterwards. "It was easy to see that we weren't performing as we are capable of. I think exams took a lot of us."

Dye added that he didn't think that the game helped the Bucs in their quest for a bowl bid. Told South Carolina, the leading candidate for the Tangerine Bowl bid, had voted to accept the bid if it was offered, he said, "I guess they would. So would we."

East Carolina did much of their scoring after VMI made mistakes. Their first score came early in the first period after a VMI fumble. After VMI held at midfield, the Bucs punted. On the first play for the Keydets, freshman quarterback Robby Clark, a surprise starter, fumbled and Nick Bullock recovered on the VMI 21.

Hawkins took a pitchout around the right to the 12, then Strayhorn went up the middle for eight more to the four. Daub cracked up the middle on the next play for the score, and Conaty's kick with 10:45 left made it 7-0.

VMI came back to drive down the field for its first score. Driving from the 19, Clark hit Ray Brooks for a gain to the 40. After a yard gain, he hit Tom Ferguson for 49 more, all the way to the Buc 10.

But there, the Pirates dug in, with Cary Godette making a key nine-yard sack of Clark on third down, and Tufaro kicked the field goal from the 22 cutting it to 7-3 with 6:54 to go in the period.

The Bucs then controlled the ball the rest of the period, but despite 13 plays, got nowhere, mainly due to penalties. After advancing to the VMI 40 in five plays from their own 26, the Bucs bogged down. A 47-yard pass from Weaver to Eddie Hicks for an apparent touchdown was rubbed out by a back in motion. Another big gain by Ken Strayhorn was partially lost due to a clip. Finally, the Bucs punted it away.

Early in the second period, another Buc drive, from their own 42, got to the VMI 43 before bogging down again.

Midway through the period, Raymond Jones fumbled and Glen Jones recovered at the Buc 39, setting up Tufaro's second field goal.

Clark guided the Keydets from there to the 11, but another loss, followed by an incomplete pass forced another 32-yarder by the kicker. That cut it to 7-6 with 4:55 left.

That seemed to fire the Pirates and they drove following the kickoff for their second touchdown. Starting from the 43, the Buc drove in six plays to the Keydet 30. Weaver added 13 yards from there, but two plays netted just a yard. Weaver then hit Hawkins along the left side on a 16-yard aerial for the score. Conaty upped it to 14-6 with 1:27 left.

Three plays after the kickoff, Bolding snapped off a Clark pass at the Keydet 49 and returned it to the three, but three plays failed to put it in, and a play off the "water bucket" line was stopped a yard short on fourth down.

Early in the second half, VMI got another scoring opportunity, taking over on a fumble at the Buc 18. They got a first down at the eight, and Glidewell put the ball on the one in two plays. But third and fourth downs both saw the Keydets hauled for losses as Ernest Madison and Jake Dove stopped Glidewell on third and then Harold Fort hit Clark on a keeper on fourth.

After forcing a punt, another VMI penetration that reached the 24 ended in a fumble.

The Bucs then moved from their own 25 for the clincher. Strayhorn ripped off 18 yards on the first play, and shorter yardage runs continually moved it goalward. Finally, from the eight, Hawkins sprinted around the right side for the score. Conaty's boot upped it to 21-6 with 1:35 left in the quarter.

On the third play after the kickoff, Randolph got his first interception of the year, pulling the ball in at the 33, and cutting through the VMI defenders to go all the way for the score. Conaty again kicked for a 28-6 lead with 40 seconds left in the quarter. VMI again drove, following the kickoff, moving to the 10 on a 14-yard scramble by Mark Lambert that put it on the ECU 43, and a 33-yard dash by Steve Oddi which moved it to the 10. There, the Pirate defense dug in again, holding on downs at the four.

The Keydets got it back minutes later, and this time finally took it in. Starting from their own 49, it took nine plays, but key among them was a 10-yard pass interference penalty against the Bucs on a third down play at the ECU 28. Then, on third and 11 from the 19, Lambert hit Ronnie Moore at the two. Glidewell gained a yard then got the next yard for the score with 6:57 left. A two-point pass try failed.

Late in the game, the Bucs got it back on downs at the VMI 33, and Weaver scrambled all the way to the seven, only to have a clipping penalty run it back to the 22. After that, the Bucs just ran out the clock.

Now, it is a question of waiting. Monday, the Bucs should learn whether they will pack up their gear for another year, or if they start practicing for a December date with Miami of Ohio in Florida.

Furman Ties

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP)—A 49-yard field goal attempt by Furman's Andy Goss hit the crossbar and bounced back for a failure with eight seconds left and Wofford held off Furman for a 14-14 football tie Saturday night.

Henkel Leads Gold In Win

Wade Henkle dropped in the first six Gold points and led the Gold to an 82-72 win over the Purple in another scrimmage game last night, in Minges Coliseum.

Henkle finished with 21 points. Eight other players were in double figures. Reggie Lee poured in 18, Earl Garner 17, Larry Hunt 16, Al Edwards 15, Billy Dineen 14, Tyrone Edwards and Louis Crosby 12 each and Clay Windley 10.

The game was closer than the score would indicate with both teams having the advantage several times in the contest. Henkle and Garner traded baskets until the Gold took an 8-4 lead on a bucket by Crosby. They held it until Garner sank a field goal with 13:03 left in the first half tying the game, 19-19.

The score remained close until Lee and Windley gave the Purple its first solid lead of the game. The Gold battled back on top and led at halftime, 56-50.

The Gold remained in control in the shortened second half and won the game.

Indians Ambush Spiders With Upset Victory

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Keith Fimian plunged two yards for the winning touchdown early in the fourth quarter and Tom Rozantz fired a pair of first period scoring passes as William and Mary upset Richmond 31-21 Saturday in a season-ending Southern Conference football game.

The Indians clinched the victory with 45 seconds remaining on Jim Ryan's 21-yard field goal.

The Indians finished 2-9 overall and 2-3 in the conference, while Richmond, which earlier had clinched the league title, ended at 5-6 over-all and 5-1 in the conference.

Fimian's touchdown, with 13:13 remaining in the game, broke a 21-21 tie. It capped a 49-yard drive that was aided by a personal foul penalty against the Spiders.

William and Mary jumped to a 14-0 lead with less than five minutes gone on Rozantz' 32-yard pass to Joe Manderfield and Scott Hays' 68-yard punt return.

The Spiders then scored twice within a minute. The touchdowns were set up by safety Jeff Nixon's fumble recovery and pass interception.

Larry Shaw hit John Call with a 46-yard scoring pass on the first play after the fumble and Ed Kreilis ran 27 yards three plays after Nixon picked off a Rozantz pass on the W&M 36.

The Indians took a 21-14 lead nine seconds before intermission on Rozantz' 22-yard scoring toss to Manderfield. Richmond tied it with 4:57 left in the third period on Shaw's 47-yard touchdown pass to Call.

Manderfield's first touchdown came on an acrobatic catch after Richmond cornerback Dave Sylvester had tipped the ball.

Hays' scoring punt return came after he fielded Bruce Allen's 53-yard kick on his own 32, ran right where he picked up blockers and went down the sideline for the touchdown.

Rozantz completed 13 of 25 passes for 208 yards with Manderfield catching six for 134. William and Mary piled up 421 yards in total offense, 213 on the ground and 208 through the air.

Richmond had a total offense of 254 yards, 96 rushing and 158 passing.

Fimian gained 55 yards on 11 carries while Jim Kruis led the Indians' ground attack with 62 yards on 12 carries. Shaw completed six of 15 passes for 158 yards.

Richmond tied it with 4:57 left in the third period on Shaw's 47-yard touchdown pass to Call.

Atkins Aids In Romp

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Freshman Steve Atkins scored two touchdowns, one on a 60-yard dash, to cap a 27-point third-quarter outburst, helping Gator Bowl-bound Maryland, the nation's 20th ranked team, to a 62-24 rout over Virginia Saturday.

The victory for the Terps, 8-2-1 for the season, gave them a second consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference championship and extended their league winning streak to a record-tying 15 in a row dating back to 1973. Senior John Schultz also scored twice for Maryland, which took a 21-10 halftime lead as quarterback Larry Dick passed for 209 yards. Dick did not see any action in the second half.

The Terps rolled up a school-record 802 yards, including 582 on 67 rushes, against the Virginia team which had allowed over 600 yards in each of its past two games. The Cavaliers finished the season with a 1-10 record, losing their last nine in

Grantz Drives USC To Win

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—Senior quarterback Jeff Grantz passed for five touchdowns and ran for a sixth Saturday to lead South Carolina to a 56-20 victory over archrival Clemson.

Grantz set South Carolina season records with 16 touchdown passes and 2,071 yards in total offense, while tailback Clarence Williams became the second Gamecock rusher to go over 1,000 yards this season. Fullback Kevin Long passed the 1,000-yard mark last week.

The victory gave South Carolina a 7-4 record under first-year Coach Jim Carlen. South Carolina is one of several teams being considered for the Tangerine Bowl.

South Carolina dominated the entire game and rolled up a 35-6 halftime lead. Williams got the scoring under way in the first quarter when he scampered 36 yards off left tackle. Grantz followed with his first TD pass of the day later in the period, a 34-yarder to flanker Randy Chastain.

Clemson marched 80 yards in 14 plays for its first touchdown with 12:38 to go in the half, with quarterback Mike O' Cain plunging one yard up the middle. Willie Jordan's kick was wide.

Price, the Mountaineer signal-caller who began the game as the league's leader in total offense with an average 161 yards, played sparingly in the game. He picked up 16 yards rushing and 12 passing.

Calvin Simon, second only to Hamilton in rushing in the league with a 69-yard average, ran five times for 46 yards.

Davidson quarterback Osborne completed five of 11 passes for 111 yards, including the Wildcat's only touchdown, which came after Davidson blocked a punt on the ASU nine.

Duke appeared to be headed for a certain touchdown late in the fourth period as it drove to the Tar Heel 12. As Dunn circled left end on a keeper, he fumbled and Bobby Trotter recovered for the Tar Heels on the nine.

Duke had another chance after the Tar Heels were forced to kick a few plays later. The Blue Devils had reached the Tar Heel 47 when fullback Tony Benjamin fumbled and Rod Broadway recovered on the North Carolina 44.

Senior quarterback Billy Paschall then led the Tar Heels on a drive to the Duke 14. On the next play, Loomis fumbled and Rod May recovered for Duke on its 12 with only seconds left.

After trailing 10-3 at the half, North Carolina tied the score in the third period when Paschall circled right end for nine yards and a touchdown, his first since his sophomore year and the fourth of his college career.

Apps Close Season On 52-7 Rout Of Wildcats

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—The league's rushing leader, Emmitt Hamilton, jaunted for touchdown runs of 75 and 10 yards Saturday as Appalachian State University topped lowly Davidson College 52-7 in the final Southern Conference football game of the season for two schools.

Hamilton, who had a 74-yard rushing average going into the game, put the Mountaineers on the scoreboard three plays after the opening kickoff. His 10-yard run capped a 36-yard drive that came after Devon Ford returned the opening kickoff of 59 yards.

Appalachian, which finished the season 8-3 and 3-2 in the league, quickly added two more touchdowns runs in the first quarter—John Craig went over from one and quarterback Robbie Price ran eight yards.

Davidson's Wildcats held ASU to only a 35-yard field goal in the second stanza while making their only touchdown of the day. Terrell Rhyme scored a nine-yard pass play from Sid Osborne, leaving the score 24-7 at the half.

Davidson fell to 1-8 and 0-3 in the conference. Hamilton, who carried for eight times for 103 yards, ran 75 yards for his second TD after the second half opened.

With most of the reserves playing the last three quarters, the Mountaineers went on to add three more touchdowns to their 52-point scoring spree. The reserves were sent in after ASU took a 21-0 lead in the first quarter.

Tom Gary, Randy Merrit and Jim Dobbins scored on respective runs of seven, 12, and three yards for the final three TDs. Only Hamilton made more than one touchdown while Gary Davis kicked the extra points on all seven TDs and added three more on his 35-yard field goal.

Coles Sets Record In VPI's 40-10 Win

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—Sophomore halfback Roscoe Coles set a school record for season rushing yardage when he led Virginia Tech to a 40-10 college football victory over Wake Forest on Saturday.

Coles scored three touchdowns and gained 143 yards rushing on 24 carries to give him 1,045 yards for the season, nine more than the school mark set by Phil Rogers two years ago.

Coles gained 107 yards and scored two touchdowns in the first half when Tech rallied from a 10-0 deficit.

His four-yard touchdown run with 1:23 left in the half, followed by Wayne Latimer's extra point, tied the game at 10-10. He scored again on a 12-yard run up the middle with 29 seconds left in the half to put Tech ahead for good.

His third touchdown run was from eight yards early in the fourth quarter, when Tech scored 23 points.

The victory gave the independent Gobblers an 8-3 record, their best since 1966. It also kept alive Tech's hope for a bid to the Tangerine Bowl on Dec. 20 in Orlando, Fla. The other leading contender, South Carolina, was equally impressive in beating Clemson.

Wake Forest wound up with a 3-8 season, the Atlantic Coast Conference team's best record under third-year Coach Chuck Mills.

The game, played in chilly weather, started on a sour note for the Gobblers. Just 14 seconds had elapsed when fullback Paul Adams fumbled a handoff from Rogers on the first play. Wake safety Phil Armstrong caught the ball in midair and ran 29 yards to score.

Wake scored again early in the second quarter on a 21-yard field goal by Joe Bunch to lead 10-0. At that point, Tech

Buckeyes Bounce Back And Into Rose Bowl

OHIO STATE GETS FIRST TD—Ohio State quarterback Cornelius Greene (7) watches his full back, Pete Johnson gather in a pass for Ohio State's first touchdown in their game with Michigan in Ann Arbor Saturday. By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — For an unprecedented fourth straight time, his Ohio State Buckeyes are going to the Rose Bowl.

But to hear irascible Coach Woody Hayes talk, Saturday's stunning 21-14 Big Ten football championship victory over arch-rival Michigan was the biggest game in his 25-year Ohio State career.

"It's the greatest comeback I've ever had," said Hayes after holding deadline-frenzied reporters out of the locker room for 30 minutes after the game, in which the Buckeyes scored twice in the final four minutes to overcome a 14-7 Michigan lead.

"We were outplayed until they scored in the second half. It's amazing how the game turned around...once we changed our pass protection, we were all right."

While Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin had his 100-yard-a-game streak snapped at 31 with a 46-yard rushing performance, it was quarterback Cornelius Greene who marched the Buckeyes to the tying score and Griffin's younger brother Ray who made the game's biggest play.

The younger Griffin, a sophomore safety, picked off a pass from Michigan freshman Rick Leach and returned it 30 yards to the Wolverine three yard line with just 2:23 remaining. Pete Johnson—who scored all three Buckeye touchdowns—bolted on the next play to snap a 14-14 tie and doom Michigan to defeat.

However, the Wolverines' consolation is a berth in the Orange Bowl against Big Eight champion Oklahoma, a 35-10 victor over Nebraska on Saturday.

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, often criticized for running a conservative offense, had his Wolverines take to the air 21 times, only to see young Griffin's interception destroy hopes of a triumph.

"When the score is 14-14, you've got two choices to make," he said. "You either play conservatively or you play to win. We decided before the game not to play for a tie, so we had to gamble late in the game and you all know what happened when we had to go to the air."

Michigan bolted ahead 14-7 with less than six minutes remaining on a 43-yard march. That's when Greene, mixing passes with a few runs, marched the Buckeyes to their second touchdown. Hayes didn't bother to go for a two-point conversion after Johnson's second touchdown, with 3:18 remaining.

Tom Klaban's conversion kick tied the game. The Buckeyes' better over-all record would have sent them to the Rose Bowl regardless of a tie, and the younger Griffin took care of that three plays later.

The Buckeyes stopped Michigan on the game's first series and then drove 63 yards in 15 plays on their first possession to score on a seven-yard Cornelius Greene-to-Johnson pass. It was only Johnson's second catch of the year and this was to be Ohio State's last major offensive thrust until the final minutes of the game.

Turnovers marred the rest of the first half, but Michigan did drive 80 yards in 11 plays to score on an 11-yard pass from tailback Gordon Bell to wingback Jim Smith 24 seconds before intermission.

On the ensuing kickoff, with a record, regular-season college crowd of 105,543 howling, the Wolverines recovered Archie Griffin's fumble and were poised to take the lead. But Bob Wood missed on a 37-yard field goal attempt on the last play of the half.

At one point, there were six turnovers in eight series in the first half, three by each side.

The Wolverines' punter, John Anderson, whose short kicks had been hurting Michigan all afternoon, managed a 33-yarder early in the fourth period that put the Buckeyes on their own six. It was the first time Ohio State was deep in its own territory.

The Buckeyes were forced to punt and Michigan then drove 43 yards in nine plays to get the one-yard TD plunge by freshman Leach midway through the period that gave the Wolverines a 14-7 lead.

Behind for the first time all day, Ohio State suddenly snapped out of its offensive lethargy to come back on Johnson's two late touchdowns.

The Buckeyes' initial first down in the march that tied the game at 14-14 was only their second in 35 minutes in which they had the ball.

In the second half, Michigan's defense stymied the Buckeyes at virtually every turn. Archie Griffin was unable to break through the Wolverines' hard-charging defense which frustrated the option-type plays Ohio State has been so renowned for with Greene and Griffin.

The victory raised Ohio State's record to 11-0 and 8-0 in the conference. Michigan is 8-1-2 overall and 7-1 in the Big Ten.

Harvard Wins First Title

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Harvard won its first outright Ivy League title ever Saturday when Mike Lynch kicked a 26-yard field goal with 33 seconds left to give the Crimson a 10-7 victory over arch-rival Yale.

With less than two minutes remaining and faced with a fourth-and-12 situation, Harvard quarterback Jim Kubacki rifled a pass over the middle to Bob McDermott. The play carried to Yale's 14-yard line and set up Lynch's game-winning kick in the 100th anniversary of this rivalry.

Harvard completed its season with a 7-2 record and 6-1 in the Ivy League. Harvard has tied for the league title four times, twice with Yale, since the Ivy League was formed in 1956. Yale wound up 7-2 overall and 5-2 in Ivy play.

Kansas Stuns Tigers

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Laverne Smith broke loose on touchdown runs of 67 and 56 yards in a three-minute of the third quarter Saturday to bring upset Kansas from behind to a 42-24 victory over 18th-ranked Missouri and into the Sun Bowl.

Smith put on his biggest football show ever Saturday and it was sweet music for the Jayhawks, predicted by many at the season's start to be incapable of winning a single game. Kansas, the team which stunned Oklahoma 23-3 two weeks ago, finished the regular season with a 7-4 overall record and a 4-3 record in the Big Eight.

Kansas, hurt by early fumbles, had to overcome a 10-point Missouri lead. But Smith saw to that personally in a game from which the winner knew it would be in the Sun Bowl.

On the third play of the second half, Smith broke loose behind a wave of blockers and stormed 67 yards. Two and one-half minutes later, he was gone again on a 56-yard jaunt, lifting the Jayhawks to a 21-10 advantage.

And after Tony Galbreath ran nine yards for a Missouri touchdown, Smith galloped 41 yards to set up another one for Kansas. It was scored by Dennis Wright on a 20-yard burst up the middle.

Rose Crushes Garner, 37-6, To Advance

A TOUCHDOWN FOR BLOUNT—Rose High School's Mac Blount streaks through a big hole in the Garner line to score the final offensive touchdown for the Rampants in their 4-A State Playoff game with the Trojans Friday night. Blount's touchdown made it 31-

6, and a final defensive score made it 37-6, as the Rampants advanced to the Eastern finals next week against Richmond County. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

GARNER—Rose High School put together its best effort of the season Friday night and crushed Garner High School's previously undefeated Trojans, 37-6.

Doug Paschal and John Mallow each scored two touchdowns for the Rampants in leading the rout. Paschal scored on runs of 78 and 1 yard, while Mallow returned a blocked punt 21 yards and a fumble 10 yards to spark the defense.

Mac Blount scored the other Rampant touchdown on an eight yard run, while Derek Brewington kicked a 25-yard field goal and four extra points.

The victory advanced Rose to the Eastern finals of the 4-A State Playoffs, their furthest advance since becoming a member of the 4-A ranks. Their last previous movement this far was back when the 3-A Phantoms moved into the Eastern finals, bowing to Tarboro back in 1965.

The Rampants will meet Richmond County, a 40-0 winner over Jacksonville, in Rockingham next Friday. The winner meets the winner of the East Forsyth-East Mecklenburg game for the state title the following week.

The first half was an odd one. Despite Rose rushing out to a 17-6 lead, the Rampants had only a slight advantage in yardage, and ran only 14 plays during the half. Garner controlled the ball most of the time, but aside from one scoring drive, couldn't move it when it counted.

The Rampant offensive line came off the ball with its best timing of the year, constantly opening holes for Paschal and the other backs. The senior fullback ended the game with 135 yards in just 15 carries.

The defense constantly harassed Garner, throwing them for a total of 58 yards in losses during the game. They forced a total of eight fumbles, but was able to recover only two of them themselves.

Garner came out fired up and headed into Rose territory on their first possession, moving from their own 33 to the Rose 36 before the Rose defense, coupled with a 15-yard clipping penalty dulled the thrust and forced a punt.

Garner briefly crossed the 50 on their second possession, getting to the Rose 49 before a third down play resulted in a five-yard loss on a fumble, and a punt on the next play.

Rose took over the ball on the 22 after the kick, and on the first play, broke it open. Paschal got the ball on a handoff off right tackle. After breaking through the line, he cut to the right sideline and raced all the way, going 78 yards for the score. Brewington's kick made it 7-0 with 2:27 left in the period.

Garner, getting good field position after the kickoff at its own 46, used just four plays to get back into the game. Ronnie Lee took a pitchout for 13 yards to the Rose 41, then added eight more on the second play. Mike Newkirk went around the right side for 11 yards to the 22, then streaked right through the middle of the Rampant line on the next play, going untouched into the end zone. Just 38 seconds remained in the period.

Rocky Butler broke through on the conversion attempt to block the kick, however, leaving Rose ahead, 7-6.

Early in the second period, Garner was halted at its own 38, and punter Chris Moore got a hard rush. Leonard Sheppard shoved one of the kick protectors back into the ball as it was booted, blocking the kick, and Mallow scooped it up on the 21, racing alone into the end zone. Brewington kicked to raise it to 14-6 with 7:12 to go in the half.

In the closing minute of the half, Rose got good field position after a short punt to the Garner 28. Henry Trevathan hit William Joyner for nine yards, then Paschal hit for a first down at the 13 with 19 seconds left. Three plays, however, accomplished only five yards, however, and with three seconds showing, Brewington kicked over a 25-yard field goal, raising it to 17-6 at halftime.

The drive covered 62 yards in just 11 plays. After a four-yard gain, Paschal added 13 more to the Garner 45. Joyner picked up 13 more to the 32, and he and Paschal continued to carry down to the 16. Trevathan added five from there, and Joyner put it on the two on the next play. Paschal was halted inches from the goal on first down, but cracked over easily on second. Brewington again hit on the PAT, making it 24-6 with 7:38 to go in the period.

Garner stopped the next Rose drive at the Trojan 48, but on the following one, the Rampants went in again. This one was set up when Howard Hill intercepted a pass at the Garner 31. Two plays netted just two yards, but Trevathan hit Brewington for 12 and a first down at the 17. Paschal hit for six and Joyner for four for a first down at the seven. After a yard loss, Blount went over left tackle for the score, and Brewington's kick made it 31-6 with 40 seconds left in the period.

It took just 26 seconds for Rose to add another touchdown. On the first play from scrimmage after the punt, the Garner quarterback tried a pitchout, but was off target. Mallow, again Johnny-on-the-spot, picked it up on the 10 and just got into the end zone for his second score. Brewington's kick was blocked this time, leaving it at 37-6 with 14 seconds to go.

Mallow suffered an ankle injury on the following kickoff, but fears of a broken ankle were somewhat dispelled later in a checkup, but a further examination was scheduled for Saturday afternoon. Mallow's status for next week is thus in doubt at this time.

Both teams had minor threats in the final period of the game, but with Rose using its second unit, nothing serious developed the rest of the way.

Oklahoma Rallies Twice For Win

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma's season-long plague of fumbles finally rubbed off on someone else, and the Sooners rubbed it in with a shocking 35-10 victory over second-ranked Nebraska Saturday.

Oklahoma, ranked No. 7, lost three fumbles, but Nebraska wound up with a terminal case of turnovers. The previously-unbeaten Cornhuskers lost four of five fumbles and had two passes intercepted and Oklahoma turned the miscues into five touchdowns.

"Nebraska is a great team, but today they made some of the mistakes and turnovers that have hurt us in the past," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer, soaking wet after his players tossed him in the showers.

"We were lucky. If Nebraska hadn't made some of those mistakes, we would have had a hard time winning. We made a lot of mistakes in the first half, but we were a good enough football team to come back and capitalize on Nebraska's mistakes in the second half."

While the victory earned Oklahoma a trip to the Orange Bowl and a share of the Big Eight championship, Nebraska may stay home over the holidays, a bitter come down for a team that was shooting for the national championship until Saturday.

"We knew that turnovers would be the most important part of the ball game," said Coach Tom Osborne. "But that's football. Sometimes it bounces your way, sometimes it doesn't. As long as we were hanging on to the ball, I thought we were playing pretty well. It was the same thing that happened to Oklahoma against Kansas."

Nebraska threatened three times in the first quarter, but the Cornhuskers could manage only a lone field goal from opportunities that could have produced three touchdowns.

The Sooners came from behind twice, on Steve Davis' fourth down, one-yard run in the second period and Horace Ivory's second chance, five-yard dash in the third quarter. It came two plays after a touchdown run by Elvis Peacock was nullified by a penalty. Peacock added an insurance touchdown, scoring from three yards out with 10 minutes left. The Sooners then added insult to injury, scoring twice in the final three minutes on runs of eight yards by Davis and four yards by freshman Billy Sims.

The final game erased the last shred of Oklahoma's NCAA probation. And college football's defending national champions will meet Michigan in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night, their first bowl appearance in three years. Fourth-ranked Michigan lost to No. 1 Ohio State 21-14 Saturday and the Buckeyes are headed for the Rose Bowl.

Nebraska, which finished in the regular season with a 10-1 record like Oklahoma, had earlier turned down a bid from the Fiesta Bowl.

Roanoke Vaults Past Fairmont As Purvis Leads The Way, 23-0

FAIRMONT—Ricky Purvis scored twice and Danny Rollins added a touchdown and a field goal to give the Redskins a 23-0 win over Fairmont sending the Redskins into the Eastern Division 2-A football championships.

The Redskins will play South Granville at Creamore next Friday for the right to move into the finals of the playoffs against the Western winner.

Purvis rushed for 52 yards and caught four passes for 41. He scored on runs of 11 and 17 yards. He scored three times last week against Pamlico. Ricky Spruill led the rushing with 161 yards in 14 carries.

Coach Nolan Respess said earlier in the week he thought Fairmont would be the toughest team the Redskins had played all year. Fairmont had slipped past Hallsboro last week, 19-18, but were hobbled this week.

Roanoke had a slight edge in first downs, 15-14, but rolled up 276 yards rushing. They passed for 41 while holding Fairmont to 155 on the ground and 37 in the air.

The Redskins special teams did another good job as they amassed 104 yards in returns and punted twice for a 35.5 average. They could not seem to shake the fumbles, however, losing the ball three times.

The 'Skins got on the boards in the first quarter on their first possession of the game. They started on their own 29 and drove to the Fairmont 15 where they ran out of steam. Bullock kicked a 25-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead.

The Redskins got the ball back in the second quarter on a punt starting the drive from their 27. Spruill carried 19 yards and Larry Williams got one but on the third play of the drive, Williams lost five. Spruill got it back on a gain of 13. Purvis added four and another big gain by Spruill, of 20 yards, put the ball on the 11. From there Purvis danced in for the score.

Lions Pull Out Close 7-6 Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Penn State's Steve Geise ran 29 yards for the winning touchdown with 8:18 left in the game and Pitt's Carson Long missed three field goal tries in the last five minutes as the Sugar Bowl-bound Nittany Lions scored a 7-6 college football victory here Saturday.

Chris Bahr's extra-point kick gave 10th-ranked Penn State, 9-2, the margin of victory, while Long had a point-after try blocked and missed field goal tries of 51, 23 and 45 yards down the stretch.

His 51-yard miss came with 4:41 left and his 45-yarder fell just wide and short with only nine seconds left on the clock in the clash for the unofficial Eastern title.

Sun Bowl-bound Pitt fell to 7-4 despite 125 yards rushing by Tony Dorsett, who had his first 100-yard game in three meetings with Penn State.

The 17th-ranked Panthers, who haven't beaten Penn State since 1965, took a 6-0 lead midway of the second quarter when Elliott Walker burst 37 yards for a touchdown.

However Long's extra-point kick was blocked by Penn State defensive back Tom Odell, snapping a string of 60 straight conversions.

Penn State, which didn't cross midfield the entire first half, drove 67 yards for the winning touchdown, led by Fusina, who replaced starter John Andress in the second half.

The score came when Geise, a sophomore halfback, bounced outside on a third-down, short yardage play and ran 29 yards untouched to the end zone.

Chowan Halts Bear Grass

EDENTON—Chowan took both ends of a doubleheader from Bear Grass Friday night handing both the Lady Bears and the Bears their second straight losses.

The Bear Grass girls lost, 41-27. Two Chowan players equalled the Bear Grass output. Rosa Cofield had 15 points while Mary Holly had 12.

Chowan jumped off to a 12-4 lead in the first period but Bear Grass caught up in the second to trail by four, 20-16, at halftime. Chowan added two points to its lead in the third period and took the final frame, 15-7, to win it.

The Chowan boys poured it on in the third period to come from two points down at halftime and take a 57-46 win. Bear Grass had gone on top, 9-6, in the first period and led at halftime, 21-19. Chowan rallied in the third period, 18-8, and took the final

Opposes New Race Shrine

By RICHARD WATERS
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The president of the National Motorsports Press Association (NMPA) says his group strongly opposes locating a stock car hall of fame in Alabama. But a supporters calls this "sour grapes."

Bob Moore, in letters to Alabama International Motor Speedway, National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) officials and Gov. George Wallace, said members and directors of his group feel the NASCAR Hall of Fame will be confusing and take away from the NMPA Hall of Fame in the Joe Weatherly Stock Car Museum at Darlington, S.C.

But speedway General Manager Don Naman said Friday that, "Bob Moore apparently does not know enough about this project to even comment on it."

"In the first place, this is a State of Alabama project and they (the Alabama Legislature) have only requested advice and support from Alabama International Motor Speedway and NASCAR," Naman said in a telephone interview.

Moore said, "every driver, promoter and mechanic so far inducted in the NMPA Hall of Fame has been from NASCAR; therefore, we do not see how another hall of fame can do anything but take away from the one we have."

Naman said that as a member of NMPA he objected to Moore speaking for the whole body. "I have personally spoken to many members of the NMPA in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and North and South Carolina and they are all elated about the sport of motor racing finally coming up with a national hall of fame."

"The State of Alabama does not plan to take anything away from the NMPA Hall of Fame," he said, adding the two shrines would compliment each other.

On Jan. 13, Alabama voters will be asked to approve a $3.3 bond issue for what Naman affectionately calls "the Smithsonian Institute of the Automobile" to be located in Talladega County, Ala., on one of three sites — one near the track, the other in the town of Lincoln and a third in the city of Talladega.

The referendum also would empower Gov. Wallace to name an 18-member commission to oversee facility. The site would be donated, and admission fees would be used to repay the bond issue, planners say.

The museum itself will consist of three major parts. The hall of fame is one part that Naman calls "a small aspect."

There will be a display of the history of the automobile from the Stanley Steamer through passenger automobiles of tomorrow.

The third part would be an educational center, with driving simulators and similar devices. Films on safe driving, narrated by racing drivers, would be shown.

Unfamiliar Role For Paladins This Year

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)
GREENVILLE, S.C.—The 1975-76 basketball season may turn out to be a strange one for Furman's Joe Williams. Since coming to Furman as basketball coach, Williams has failed to win the conference championship only once, his second year.

This year could turn out to be the second time Williams has failed to make it to the title.

The principal reasons for this is the loss of two All-Conference players, 7-2 Moose Leonard, and Southern Conference Player of the Year Clyde Mayes.

Returning however are some good players, and the Paladins, if not favored to win the title, will certainly be a factor in the outcome.

To a certain extent, Williams is glad to be in this position. "It's going to be a more interesting year since we're not picked to win," he said. "We don't have any pressure on us. It's going to be a fun-type year. We can go out and prove ourselves."

"Having three straight 20-game winners will help motivate us," the coach continued. "We've got a tradition to keep going."

Williams said one of the team goals is to try and see how well the team can actually perform. "I don't think you can really measure success by wins and losses. We want to get ready for the tournament. We face a tough schedule, but I feel that it helps us get ready for conference play. After we play some of our outside competition, we don't fear conference teams. I don't think we'll be nervous by tournament time."

Aside from the lack of the two big superstars, Furman may find some improvements on the team. "Last year, we had no second guard. The wing men had to pass, move and get the ball back. I think we'll have better ball-handling. We'll be quicker, and have better outside shooting."

Currently, 5-10 sophomore Ronnie Smith is set to start at the point. "He was extremely valuable to us last year. He gave us consistency," Williams said.

At the second guard spot, sophomore Steve Whittington, 6-3, looks like the best shot for a starting role. "He's excellent on the fast break, a good passer. He doesn't force his shots, but he is a good shooter. He's a good team player."

Ray Miller, 6-4 junior, is filling one of the wing spots. "He's an excellent scorer, rebounder and ballhandler. He has what it takes to help us."

Craig Lynch, who will probably take over the starring role on the team, will move to the high post position. At 6-7, he's one of the taller players on the team.

Jim Strickland, a 6-10 freshman, will probably handle the low post. "Rebounding is a key to successful basketball," Williams said. "Right now, it's our weakest spot. Strickland has a lot of talent, but I'm sure he's going to be under a lot of pressure. We hope to be able to take some of this off him. He shouldn't be under it as a freshman."

Gowdy Is Out Of Baseball

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A question of power arose after it was learned that the National Broadcasting Company was dropping announcer Curt Gowdy on its network baseball and college basketball telecasts.

Gowdy, one Associated Press source reported Friday, was offered the job on NBC's backup baseball Game of the Week in an apparent effort to ease him out of the spotlight he has held since the 1960s. He has handled play-by-play on five of the nine Super Bowls, covered the World Series since 1964 and the Rose Bowl since 1966—making him the voice of several of the most-watched sportscasts—along with the baseball and football Game of the Week shows.

Gowdy refused the graceful step to the background in the two sports, it was learned, although neither he nor NBC officials was available for comment. The network's only statement was that "NBC's long association with Curt Gowdy will continue under our existing agreement and details of his 1976 assignments are yet to be determined."

NBC Sports boss Carl Lindemann Jr. went to Gowdy's Florida home to advise him of the network's decision.

His place on the network's baseball coverage, limited to Saturday games now by the sport's contractual agreement with ABC beginning next season, will be taken by Joe Garagiola. Garagiola, the former pro catcher, game show host, Today show contributor and baseball analyst, is under contract for commercials to a car company which heavily sponsors the baseball telecasts.

When Garagiola joined Tony Kubek and Gowdy on the telecasts this season, sources said the auto company was partially responsible. NBC reportedly is negotiating with Kubek to do the color and commentary with Garagiola.

Garagiola, according to one source, has established himself as a power with the network. He reportedly vetoed a prospective home run contest between various baseball sluggers last season because it would have taken the slot filled by his "Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" program. Further, Garagiola has been reported sought by NBC competitors for broadcasting duties other than sports.

Others expected to see a lot of duty include 5-10 senior Steve Green, who will alternate with Whittington; 6-3 John Cottingham, who'll see inside action, and 6-7 senior Jeff Deal, who will work behind Strickland.

"We will press against this year," Williams said, "trying to force turnovers. We'll be a little better ball handling. The only problem will be getting it off the boards. We will be better shooters."

If Williams does what he usually does with the Paladins, the Furman team will probably be on the floor when the tournament rolls into Greenville for the last two rounds in early March.

Wooden: Hard To Watch Now

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twenty-seven years after he coached his first game at UCLA, John Wooden viewed his first game as a spectator from a seat 15 rows directly behind the chair he made famous.

The 65-year-old Wooden, who officially retired after winning his 10th National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball title last year, applauded politely when the 1975-76 Bruins of new Coach Gene Bartow were announced.

However, Wooden was on the edge of his seat for the entire first half Friday night and admitted later, "Yes, it's a little difficult to be here. But it's great to be here watching these fellows."

"I became very attached to this particular group and I'm a little anxious about them."

Wooden was given a gala testimonial at Pauley Pavilion on his birthday Oct. 14 and the following day "we left on a Caribbean cruise. It was something my wife Nellie wanted to do for a long time and we left the day practice started. I really wanted to get away."

Wooden and his wife sat in comfortable seats presented to them at the testimonial and Wooden said he would probably attend all Bruins home games. But he also has plans to act as color announcer on a number of televised basketball games this season.

He said CBS wanted him to do some National Basketball Association games this season, but, "I didn't want to tie myself down for an entire season, so I decided against that. But I may do some of the NBC 'Games of the Week.'"

Wooden said he long had felt that upon his retirement he leaves a decent team for his successor and after the Bruins had demolished the Australian Olympic team 88-56 with an awesome display, Wooden said: "I didn't think I left the cupboard bare."

He said UCLA would be one of the nation's finest teams again this year and as for the Pacific-8 Conference, "I pick them over any team in the conference."

Wooden has been spending his time since returning from the cruise on a series of lectures at college campuses such as Kearney State, Weber State and Portland State. He said he has many other speaking engagements. But with a wistful sigh, glanced down at the court and said, "Yes, it is a little hard being up here instead of down there."

By The Associated Press
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Dick Kravitz, 34, of Philadelphia, has been named general manager of the Wichita Aeros, the Chicago Cubs' farm club in the American Association.

He had been general manager of the Jacksonville Express of the World Football League. In 1973, when he was general manager of the Jacksonville Suns, he was named general manager of the year in AA baseball.

Kravitz was a pitcher and an assistant baseball coach at Temple University. He holds a master's in sports administration from Ohio University.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A memorial service will be held at the Swan Point Cemetery chapel Monday for John R. Aborn, a member of the Providence Journal-Bulletin sports staff for 50 years until his retirement last year.

Aborn, 74, died Friday at a nursing home in nearby Pawtucket. A 1922 Dartmouth College graduate, he worked briefly for the Manchester, N.H., Union-Leader before moving to Providence.

He became the Journal-Bulletin's first horse racing editor in 1934, also covering hockey in the winter. He served as secretary-treasurer of the New England Turf Writers Association for nearly 20 years.

VAL d'ISERE, France (AP) — Kim Mumford, 20, of Putney, Vt., is believed sidelined for the winter after fracturing her left leg in a fall while training with the U.S. Ski team.

Miss Mumford, America's third-ranked woman downhill skier and a favorite to be named to the 1976 U.S. Olympic team, was injured Thursday while training on the World Cup trail.

Rich Jones Does Job On Thompson For Nets

By The Associated Press
RICH JONES not only did everything possible on offense, he took care of David Thompson too.

That's what New York Nets Coach Kevin Loughery calls a night's work.

"He played his best game since he became a Net," Loughery said Friday night after Jones led his team to a 128-116 American Basketball Association victory over the Denver Nuggets.

Jones, acquired from the San Antonio Spurs during the off-season, scored 21 points, handed out four assists, collected eight rebounds, blocked a shot and made a steal.

All that, and he held one of the best shooters in the ABA to just 14 points.

"I played him tough," Jones said of his superlative defensive job on Thompson, who had a 25.1 scoring average going into the game. "He's quick, but I used my experience on him, nudged him here and there, and tried to keep him from the free throw line. He gets inside there on a jumper and we're in trouble. He's a great shooter."

In the night's only other ABA game, the Virginia Squires thumped the Utah Stars 106-98.

Nets 128, Nuggets 116

Jones was assisted by John Williamson and Julius Erving in New York's runaway victory over Denver. Williamson, who scored eight points in the second period to help the Nets take a 66-58 lead at the half, contributed 11 more as the hot-shooting Nets shot in front of the Nuggets 101-84 going into the last period.

The Nuggets, losing for the second straight time after a six-game winning streak, never got closer than 10 points the rest of the way. Both teams cleared their benches with 3:11 to go and the Nets holding a 124-100 lead.

During the Nets' big third quarter, they shot 17-of-25 from the floor and outbounded the Nuggets 14-4.

Sven Nater collected 14 rebounds for the Nets to lead both sides while Tim Bassett added 10 for the winners.

The game was watched by the largest crowd of the season at the Nets' arena, 10,723.

Squires 106, Stars 98

Rookie Ticky Burden and veteran Willie Wise combined for 62 points as Virginia pulled away in the third quarter and beat Utah. The Squires broke a 53-53 tie early in the third quarter on a layup by Fatty Taylor, then used 10 points each from Burden and Wise and eight from Jan van Breda Kolff to take a 12-point lead into the final period.

The victory was Virginia's second straight since Bill Musselman took over as head coach Wednesday. The Squires have only three victories in 15 games.

Burden finished with 34 points and Wise 28.

Virginia won the game at the free throw line, connecting on 39 of 44 attempts with Wise hitting 14 of 15 and van Breda Kolff, who finished with 24 points, 12 of 12.

Ron Boone led the Stars with 25 points and John Roche had 21.

Edwards Tops Bucs

GOLDSBORO—Al Edwards paced the scoring Friday night as The Purple beat the Gold, 85-72 in a scrimmage game held in Rosewood High School.

Edwards pumped in 26 and Earl Garner added 20. Also in double figures were Reggie Lee with 19, Wade Hinkle and Louis Crosby with 15 each, Buzzy Braman with 14 and Dean Hartley with 10.

Larry Hunt score nine, Clay Windley eight, Tyrone Edwards, six, Henry Lewis six, Billy Dineen five and Tommy Williams two.

The Pirates were to hold a scrimmage in Minges Coliseum last night and finish their exhibition schedule at New Bern Monday night.

The NFL rulebook says any forward pass which strikes the goalposts of either team is automatically incomplete.

Smedsmo Puts Action In Game

By The Associated Press
Dale Smedsmo is a disturber. When the Cincinnati Stingers are playing listless hockey, Coach Terry Slater sends the 205-pound left wing into action.

"I'll get him out there and he'll disturb people and frustrate them and then he or somebody else will put the puck in the net," says Slater.

That's exactly what happened Friday night, when Slater's trick almost worked for the first-year World Hockey Association club. With the Stingers trailing Toronto 7-2 entering the third period, Smedsmo went out and took a spearing penalty, left the penalty box and scored a goal six minutes later.

He scored a second goal and assisted on another in the session as Cincinnati pulled to a 7-7 tie. Only Mark Napier's goal for Toronto, with just 16 seconds left, salvaged the Toros' 8-7 victory.

But that wasn't Smedsmo's fault. It was that of goalie Rich Coutu, according to his coach.

"He was shaky tonight," said Slater. "There were four little goals that beat us tonight. Four little goals that even I could have stopped. Hockey's a game where the momentum changes when your goaltender lets in a bad goal, and we gave up too many easy ones tonight."

In the other WHA games it was Calgary 6, Denver 2 and Houston 4, Edmonton 2. In the National Hockey League, it was Pittsburgh 4, Atlanta 1, and California 2, Washington 0.

Toros 8, Stingers 7
Gene Sobchuk also had two goals for Cincinnati, which also got scores from Claude Larose, Mike Pelyk and Steve Andrascik. Defenseman Jim Turkiewicz had scored twice with single goals coming from Peter Marin, Gavin Kirk, Frank Mahovich, Vaclav Nedomansky and Jerry Rollins as the Toros built their 7-2 margin.

Cowboys 6, Spurs 2

Ron Chipperfield scored two goals, the second of which turned out to be the game-winner, to spark Calgary over Denver.

Steve Hull, George Morrison, Peter Driscoll and Francois Lacombe had the other Cowboys tallies. Gary MacGregor and Rick Morris hit for Denver.

Aeros 4, Oilers 2

First-period goals by John Shella, Larry Lund and rookie John Tonelli carried Houston past Edmonton for its fifth straight home victory. The Oilers have lost eight straight on the road.

Don Larraway also tallied for the Aeros, Bruce MacGregor and Norm Ullman scored for the Oilers.

Seals 2, Capitals 0

Penguins 4, Flames 1

Rick Kehoe and Pierre Larouche scored first-period goals to propel Pittsburgh over Atlanta. Other Penguins scorers were Vic Hadfield and Lowell MacDonald, while Curt Bennett netted the Flames' goal.

OFF AGAIN—Rose High School's Doug Paschal gets the ball on a handoff from quarterback Henry Trevathan as he starts another carry in Friday night's game with Garner. Paschal scored two touchdowns, carrying 15 times for 135 yards. The Ram-pants, with their 37-6 win over the previously un-beaten Trojans, move into the third round of the State 4-A Playoffs against Richmond County. (Reflector Photo)

Jet Coaching Change Could Be Dangerous To St. Louis Cardinals

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Sometimes the best thing a head coach can do for his team is to leave...and that's what's got Don Coryell worried.

Coryell takes his high-flying St. Louis Cardinals into New York Sunday to face the grounded Jets in a National Football League game. But New York has a new pilot at the controls in Ken Shipp. He replaced Charley Winner, fired on Wednesday.

When a coach gets fired, it sometimes serves to fire up the players, even if only temporarily. Therein lies Coryell's concern.

"There's been a real shake-up on the Jets," he says, "and anytime there's a shake-up like that, history shows the team always plays very well."

Well, not exactly. Last year, when Atlanta fired Norm Van Brocklin, Los Angeles smothered the Falcons 21-0 in Marion Campbell's debut. And when Joe Thomas took over for Howard Schnellenberger in Baltimore, the Colts were stymied 42-3 by New England.

Granted, when New Orleans canned Coach John North three games ago, the Saints presented Ernie Hefferle with a 23-7 victory over Atlanta...but since then, they've been beaten badly twice.

Nevertheless, there is something to be said for intangibles. "The players and coaches are fighting for their jobs," Coryell notes. "It's a desperate situation for some of them. And with pro football being such an emotional game, we know we're in for a real battle."

Adds Cards' defensive line coach Jim Champion: "Sometimes, in the chaos of a thing like this, you'll see a team spring out and maybe win a game or two. And the Jets aren't all that bad."

They sure are on defense. The Jets have allowed more points and more yards than any team in the league. But offensively, they still have plenty of firepower, with quarterback Joe Namath, receivers Richard Caster, Jerome Barkum and Eddie Bell, and runners John Riggins, Emerson Boozer and Carl Garrett.

"Their offense is really awesome," Coryell says. "Namath is the best passer in football and, with the ability of the receivers like Caster, Bell and Barkum, they have a very explosive offense."

Champion adds that Namath "frightens you to death every time he gets the ball. With the receivers he has, every play is a potential touchdown."

In Sunday's other NFL game it's Oakland at Washington, Philadelphia at Dallas, Cincinnati at Cleveland, San Diego at Minnesota, New England at Buffalo, Baltimore at Miami, Chicago at Los Angeles, Denver at Atlanta, the New York Giants at Green Bay, Detroit at Kansas City and San Francisco at New Orleans.

Monday night's game is Pittsburgh at Houston. Washington and Dallas each trail the Cards by one game in the National Conference East. Defense has both teams worried this weekend. In the Redskins' case, it's Oakland's defense. In the Cowboys' case, it's their own.

"Oakland probably has the best personnel of any team in football," Washington Coach George Allen says of the American Conference's Western leaders. "They have great speed, they have experience, they have a splendid defense. There is no pressure on them. They practically have their division won."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry points out that the Cowboys have "given up 95 points in three games. That's too much to get to the playoffs. Something has to happen. We know from experience that it's the strong defensive teams you see in the playoffs."

And although the Cowboys host Philadelphia, 2-7, which hasn't won in Dallas since 1965,

Landry notes: "The only difference between us and the Eagles is that we've won the close ones."

Cincinnati, tied with Pittsburgh for first in the AFC Central, one game ahead of Houston, can take at least a temporary divisional lead. And even though the Bengals are facing winless Cleveland, they'll have to work hard to beat the Browns, who nearly upset them early this year. It's an intense rivalry between Coach Paul Brown of the Bengals and his former club.

San Diego also is winless and has the unenviable task of trying to stop runaway Minnesota, gunning for a 10th straight victory this year and a club-record 13th straight regular-season triumph over two seasons. Vikings' quarterback Fran Tarkenton needs only 14 completions to surpass Johnny Unitas and become the NFL's all-time pass-completion record holder.

O.J. Simpson, with 197 yards gained last Monday night, has 1,325 for the year and is well within reach of the record 2,003 he set in 1973. But the rest of the Buffalo Bills are doing much worse. They've lost four of their last five games and are two games back of first-place Miami in the AFC East.

Chicago Bulls Not Panicking

By The Associated Press
Even though the Chicago Bulls have lost eight games in a row, forward Bob Love is confident—not depressed.

"This is the longest losing streak I've ever had in my life, but we can laugh at it," said Love after Kansas City got 27 points from Nate Archibald and 23 rebounds from Sam Lacey in recording a 107-98 triumph over the Bulls Friday night.

"Nobody is tight. We can talk about it," he said. "It'd be a mistake to write us off. Each game we try to eliminate what we did wrong the last time. Tonight the forwards all played a good game—except me," he said.

Love scored 15 points but insisted, "I know I didn't do what I'm capable of doing."

Norm Van Lier played capably, contributing 27 points while Mickey Johnson added 24. But, for the eighth time in a row, it wasn't enough.

It's still no reason to panic, says Love. "I know we have a good team. We always hustle and never give up and we're capable of winning 12 or 13 in a row."

In the other National Basketball Association games, it was Boston 110, New York 101; Philadelphia 131, Portland 111; Detroit 104, Buffalo 94; Phoenix 107, Houston 92, and Los Angeles 116, Milwaukee 104.

Kings 107, Bulls 98
Archibald ignited a spree near the end of the third quarter with six straight points that broke a 67-67 deadlock and put the Kings in front to stay.

Celtics 110, Knicks 101
John Havlicek scored 28 points and Charlie Scott added 23 as Boston held off a New York comeback. Earl Monroe had 28 points and Walt Frazier had 27, but New York remained winless in its eight road games this season.

New York came within 88-87 in the third period before the Celtics pulled away. Boston's Dave Cowens, hospitalized with sciatica trouble earlier in the week, returned to action and scored 17 points.

76ers 131, Trail Blazers 111
Billy Cunningham totaled 26 points as Philadelphia recorded its fourth straight victory. George McGinnis had 23 for the winners, Lloyd Neal had 20 for the losers.

Lakers 116, Bucks 104
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 30 points and pulled down 19 rebounds to carry Los Angeles past Milwaukee. Laker guards Lucius Allen and Donnie Freeman each pumped in 25 points as LA took its eighth consecutive game at home without a loss this season.

Milwaukee's scoring was led by Bob Dandridge with 28 points, ex-Laker Jimmy Price with 21 and rookie Dave Meyers with 18.

Pistons 104, Braves 94
Guar Kevin Porter whipped in 10 of his team-leading 17 points in the last period to pace Detroit over Buffalo. Porter also had 17 assists for a league high this season.

Bob McAdoo had 23 points for the Braves.

Suns 107, Rockets 92
Paul Westphal, with 22 points, and Keith Erickson, with 21, propelled Phoenix over Houston.

High scorer for the Rockets was Mike Newlin with 24, followed by Rudy Tomjanovich with 22.

Q. How do you keep cactails from "fuzzing" out after they are cut and carried into the house for winter display? (Mrs. W.C. Jr., Statesville)

A. Cut after the "tails" are fully mature and dry. With a small paint brush, coat the brown "tails" with shellac or varnish. After the first application dries, paint again. When the second application "hardens," give cactails a third and final coating of shellac or varnish. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist) and have asked for seed to plant but we cannot seem to find any. (L.L., Pendleton)

A. You are about six months too late or too early for collecting red maple seed. Red maple seeds are usually mature in Eastern North Carolina by the first two weeks in May. They may be collected and planted at that time without any treatment. Sugar maple seed can be collected now for spring planting. First, allow the winged seed a period for drying and then place in a sealed container in a refrigerated unit where the temperature may range from 33 to 41 degrees. (William M. Stanton, extension forest resources specialist)

Q. Please give me the name of a chemical that will control mites on orchids. (G.P., Charlotte)

A. Kelthane will control mites on orchids if it is applied at least three times at five to seven day intervals. Thoroughness is absolutely necessary. Either the wettable powder or the liquid formulation may be used. (J.R. Baker, extension entomologist)

Too Warm To Store Medicine

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Bathroom medicine cabinets are too warm and steamy for storing some medicines. Prescription and over-the-counter drugs labeled for cool, dry storage usually contain special storage instructions, which should be followed for safety's sake. To maintain medicinal strength, pills such as nitroglycerine never should be carried in pill boxes. Many other medicines stored in pill boxes for long periods either lose strength or become too strong.

A. Yes. Most small grain straw has both weed and grain seeds which naturally come up in early spring. One good way to beat this problem is to wet the bales of straw, cover them with an airtight plastic cover and fumigate with methyl bromide. Use one pound of methyl bromide per 10 bales. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Will Retiring Mean New Home?

By DOROTHEA BROOKS United Press International

If you're 50 or over, you're one of 53 million Americans in a group that makes up 27 percent of the population and chances are good you're at least starting to think about retirement.

While for some people, retirement will mean just a more relaxed lifestyle at the same old stand, for many it will mean a new home.

For them, the first consideration usually is "where," followed in rapid succession by thought for the economics, the kind of house they'll live in, the kind of life they'll lead.

Statistically, most people live in their own single-family home, and many want to continue doing so. Most who think of moving when they retire are anxious to resettle in warm climates and many of them think in terms of retirement communities.

Retirement is a major step; moving to a new part of the country an even bigger one. It should not be undertaken lightly, and the earlier you begin planning the better.

Bryant Prentice III, president of Universal Development Corp., Chicago, developers of a new retirement community in Mesa, Ariz., a Phoenix suburb, has some observations based on research done in planning for the community and contacts with buyers of retirement homes.

Going beyond just housing, he said, developers must ask themselves, as retirees must, "What is retirement?"

Some people, he said, think of it as the time to quit work and do nothing. Most consider it as the time to quit work and do those things which they enjoy; things they've always done but never really had enough time to do in quantity; to spend time creatively.

This means a retirement community developer must provide — and a retiree look for — a lifestyle that includes golf, swimming, fishing, crafts and other recreation and entertainment as well as shopping and other services.

Retirement to a community, Prentice noted, involves uprooting in which people not only are separated from home and family but placed in an alien atmosphere to which they can't always relate or adapt. For that reason, he said, developers must try to ease people into their new way of life through booklets, newcomer parties and meetings. And retirees, ideally, will plan so they can make the transition easily.

Factors to be considered, Prentice said, include: Health. Climate to suit individual preferences and medical facilities are important.

Finances. Most retirees must get along on reduced income. Early planning is important here, and housing decisions should take into account costs of food, clothing and transportation as well.

Activities. Few people thrive on inactivity. Even the most adaptable person may find the new leisure status difficult. It is easier for the person who always has had outside interests which they can expand. Early planning helps here, too.

Travel. This is governed by personal choice, and budget.

Housing, too, is a personal choice — the dedicated gardener would not of choice live in an apartment; the retiree who travels six or eight months of the year probably would not want a big house. For most, reasonable cost and easy maintenance are desirable.

Moving to an unfamiliar location is a big step and one that can be planned long in advance. A retiree can spend vacations beforehand exploring various areas, becoming familiar in advance with the one where he plans to settle. Never should a move be made, property purchased, sight unseen.

Prentice says United Development determined a community in which retirees would feel most at home should, as closely as possible, resemble the city or town from which they came. And it should have a variety of housing styles similar to cities across the country. For this reason it has included conventional single-family housing, townhouses and apartments in its 582-acre development. Modular homes, built by UDC at its own factory in Chandler, Ariz., are customized by on-site room additions. Costs are kept moderate, Prentice said.

With preparation, he said, one doesn't have to be fearful at the prospect of retirement moving, nor does the prospect have to be financially upsetting.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — The windows in our living room sweat profusely at certain times. When it is especially bad, the water runs down the glass to the window sills. Would storm windows help? Also, I have been told that keeping the drapes closed would keep the warm air from reaching the window panes and thus prevent the condensation. Is this so?

A. — Would storm windows help? Yes! Would closed drapes help? No! But there have been such an unusual number of questions recently about condensation on the interior surfaces of windows that some further explanation is in order so that readers will better understand the whys and wherefores of the subject. Condensation is caused when warm, moist air settles on a cool surface. Thus, it occurs in a house where there is an excessive amount of humidity and one or more cool surfaces on which to settle.

Visible condensation is usually first noticed on window glass but may also be discovered on cold surfaces of closets, unheated bedroom walls and ceilings and in attic spaces on rafters or cold boards near the cornice area. The principle is always the same: warm, moisture-laden air condenses on a cool surface; that is, it turns from a vapor into a liquid.

When there is a storm window or one of the many types of double glass with a space between, the inside window does not become as cold, always providing that the storm window or double glass is working the way it should. Unfortunately, while condensation on the inside window does not take place, the problem of the excessive humidity remains. Often it works its way through the walls and gets behind the exterior siding, causing stains or peeling paint. Therefore, when you eliminate condensation on an inside window, you should also take some action to cut down on the excessive humidity, either by permitting it to escape in some way (open windows, exhaust fans and vents are the usual solutions) or by trapping it (in a dehumidifier).

Why won't drapes help? Because the moisture will get around them and get to the cool window panes and then condense just as if the drapes weren't there. In fact, the drapes may make the situation worse, since they prevent the air movement that would warm the glass surfaces somewhat and aid in dispersing the moisture.

Q. — I stained the top of a table with what is called on the can a "pigmented wiping" stain. It came out darker than I planned. Is there anything that can be done about this?

A. — The chances are the label on the container tells you to use a paint thinner of a particular kind for that grain. Rubbing the surface with a cloth moistened in the thinner will lighten the wood. You may have to repeat the operation several times.

State And Local Taxes Disliked

CHICAGO (UPI)—Taxes never have been popular, but state and local levies are even less popular than before, according to Commerce Clearing House. Quoting a federal government survey, the organization says the percentage of taxpayers who feel state governments use tax dollars as wisely as they should dropped four points between April, 1974, and May, 1975, while there was a three point slippage in taxpayer attitudes on local government taxes. Popularity of federal government taxes rose slightly.

Wives Bringing Early Affluence

NEW YORK (UPI)—Almost 20 per cent of U. S. families in the upper-income brackets are headed by persons 35 years or younger, reflecting an increase in working wives in the labor force.

In the mid-1950s, only 10 per cent of American families earning $20,000 or more a year were in the 35-and-under category, according to The Conference Board. The percentage of working wives climbed from 30 per cent in the mid-50s to 55 per cent in 1974.

Three-quarters of the U.S. families in the upper-income bracket have two or more wage earners, the board reports.

Fight inflation with a Toro® Shredder

A Toro Vacuum/Blower handles outdoor cleanup three ways

Make quick work of leaves, twigs, prunings and other dry lawn debris with this 3 1/2 hp Shredder from Toro. And you'll save money as you keep your yard in tip-top shape.

Mulch maker

The Shredder's air-cooled four-cycle engine drives two heat-treated steel blades to convert lawn debris into valuable mulch for gardens or compost heaps.

Save on leaf bags

After leaves and other debris have passed through the Toro Shredder, they are reduced in bulk by up to 90 percent. So you spend less money on leaf bags.

Fight inflation with a Toro Shredder. Only at your Toro Dealer. He's in the Yellow Pages.

A Lady Who Worked Hard For A Dream

If North Carolina, like Japan, designated persons of exceptional achievement as "living treasures," New Bern's Miss Gertrude Carraway would certainly be one of the Tar Heels who would rightly deserve a place on such a list.

She'd be there not only for what she has accomplished in long years of dedicated, diligent work, but for charm as well. Silver-haired, vivacious, forthright, her blue eyes register quickly changing moods of subtle humor and seriousness when she talks about different phases of an active life.

Firm Roots
"I still sleep in the same bed I was born in," Miss Carraway said, "it's in a different room, but in this same house. I grew up here, and though I've been away a great deal, traveled far and wide, I always come back. New Bern has always been my home."

Of changes in the historic town that have taken place since she was a girl, Miss Carraway said "Of all the changes, the saddest thing perhaps is Broad Street. It used to be a beautiful street, lined with elm trees and lots of sidewalks. There were homes and children. Now the traffic is so heavy it's hard to get on the highway. They can never put those trees back."

Some changes have pleased her. "New Bern has prospered, has grown. People are much more interested in the past than they used to be. There's hopes for restoring the downtown area."

Early Interest
As a young girl living in a New Bern that was a quiet, tree-filled, river-front town, Miss Carraway at that time had no particular aspirations to champion the cause of historic New Bern. "As a girl," she said, "I never dreamed I'd be involved. In high school a teacher asked me to write an article on the historic sites of New Bern for a national magazine."

"I told her I'd never heard of historic sites in New Bern. She showed me some, and from then on I've tried to learn more."

Later on, she noted, the years she spent teaching English and history, and her career as a journalist all contributed to her interest in expanding her knowledge of one of North Carolina's oldest towns.

In the same manner, Miss Carraway's involvement in the restoration of Tryon Palace has no precisely definable beginning date. "A long time ago," Miss Carraway explained, "I was asked to make a talk to the Rotary Club at one of their meetings here about historic New Bern. Instead of talking, I took them on a tour."

"It went over well. Frank Challen at the Sun Journal said the information ought to be published. So with his help I got out this little book. That was the first of about 11 guidebooks I've compiled on New Bern listing historic sites to visit in sequence without doubling back."

Miss Carraway added she's not been involved in preparing a guidebook in recent years. She did, however, contribute a lead article to the 1975 bicentennial guidebook to New Bern.

Historic Markers
As part of the tour guide to New Bern, Miss Carraway had numbered markers placed in numerical sequence for each building on the tour.

"That actually started the State Highway historical markers we have in North Carolina today," she said. "Mr.

Josh Horne, editor of the Rocky Mount Evening Telegram, gave credit whenever he could to these little markers."

Several times the name of Mr. Horne came up in her conversations as a North Carolinian who did much to help establish a climate favorable to fostering interest in historic and touristic North Carolina.

"At that time Mr. Horne was on the North Carolina Board of Conservation and Development," Miss Carraway noted. "He was interested in what New Bern was doing and thought that the state ought to have the same kind of thing. He knew me well, as we were fellow journalists and I covered the state meetings of the board. He was vice-chairman of the board during the depression years, and he'd come here and we'd talk. He told me our system of markers here was what started the program for all North Carolina."

Journalist Years
Most people associate Miss Carraway somewhat exclusively with her roles in the Tryon Palace restoration and as a prominent member-past president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR). Nevertheless, a significant part of her life work has been the years she spent as a working journalist.

"I worked for the Sun Journal for many years until I decided to stop. I just decided I didn't want to give it my full time, I had more work other work I wanted to do, freelancing for all the state papers, the metropolitan papers, for some magazines and trade journals."

"So I stopped," she said. "Everybody, my friends, all thought I was crazy, giving up a steady job," she smiled. "But I had my reasons. Tryon Palace was one thing I was getting interested in. There were other things too. I couldn't go to conventions any time I wanted to. We had two newspapers then and I worked day and night."

"Really," she added, "I did much better financially in leaving the Sun Journal."

Tryon Planning
The first suggestions for the possible restoration of Tryon Palace, it was soon discovered, did not have everyone in New Bern in accord with the idea. In fact, few had faith in such a project.

"When the Tryon Palace idea came along, nearly everybody said it couldn't be done," Miss Carraway recalled. "That was in 1940. We had a meeting here, a committee of the National Parks Service."

"There was a Mr. R.B. Lattimore, their spokesman. He looked the site over. We were trying to get a WPA or ERA project, you know, to excavate. Mr. Lattimore said 'such a restoration program would be impossible, impractical and undesirable.'"

"So of course," Miss Carraway stated in her forthright way, "the National Park Service did nothing about it. But anyway, World War II came along the next year, so the idea of excavating was gone. But we were still interested in doing something."

"In 1941," Miss Carraway continued, "just two days before Pearl Harbor we were in Raleigh at a meeting of the Society for the Preservation of Antiquities. Mrs. Broughton, the wife of the then governor, had us for dinner."

"The chief speaker was Mr. Kenneth Charley, who was the president of the Williamsburg Mount Evening Telegram, gave credit whenever he could to these little markers."

Several times the name of Mr. Horne came up in her conversations as a North Carolinian who did much to help establish a climate favorable to fostering interest in historic and touristic North Carolina.

"At that time Mr. Horne was on the North Carolina Board of Conservation and Development," Miss Carraway noted. "He was interested in what New Bern was doing and thought that the state ought to have the same kind of thing. He knew me well, as we were fellow journalists and I covered the state meetings of the board. He was vice-chairman of the board during the depression years, and he'd come here and we'd talk. He told me our system of markers here was what started the program for all North Carolina."

Intriguing Search
Finding the original plans drawn up by architect John Hawks is a fascinating tale in itself—a story of enduring determination on Miss Carraway's part that finally paid dividends.

"There were lots of difficulties in locating the plans," Miss Carraway related. "I finally did, just by accident, really. I wrote to the only museum I'd ever heard much about in those days, the Metropolitan in New York and asked them if they knew where the plans were."

"Mr. Joseph Downs, the very renowned head of the museum at that time, told me to write to Dr. Fisk Kimball, Director of the Philadelphia Museum of Art, that Dr. Kimball had been looking for them for 50 years and hadn't found them, but he might tell what he'd found out."

Miss Carraway said Dr. Kimball informed he'd traced the plans until 1865. At that time they were in the papers of General Hawks, the architect's grandson.

Dr. Kimball suggested that Miss Carraway get names and addresses of descendants, write to them and that maybe one of them could give her a lead.

"Getting the names and addresses was easy," Miss Carraway explained, "But not one of them could tell me where their grandfather's papers were."

"About this time, a friend of mine in Raleigh sent me a postcard. It was one I'd written to my friend and he in turn had sent it to a friend in China. When I saw who his friend in China was, I said 'that's funny, I just wrote to that man, Dr. Potts in China, to ask if he knew where his grandfather's papers were.'"

Alec Andrews, got interested in my search for the original Hawks plans for Tryon Palace. He said 'I don't know where they are, but I know an Episcopal minister in New York State who might know.'"

Miss Carraway related that that particular minister had no idea of the location of the Hawks papers, but furnished the name of another Episcopal minister who might furnish a lead.

The second minister replied right away. "They're in the New York State Historical Society," he wrote me, "they've been there since 1865."

"I wrote immediately to Miss Dorothy Faulk, who was curator or in some other position there. Sure enough, she wrote back and said, 'Yes, they're here.'"

With the search ending in success, an important link in any future plans had been established. The first thing Miss Carraway did was to make a trip to New York.

"I got photostat copies of the plans," she said, "We couldn't have restored the palace without them. In the meantime, there had been a lot in interest expressed in restoring the palace, but naturally we couldn't do anything without architect's drawings."

Plans Shape Up
It was in 1944, with World War II still going on, that Mrs. Latham reached a decision to put up a first trust fund. A few years later she set up a second trust fund.

"The first trust fund was contingent on the state's buying the property with Mrs. Latham promising to restore the building," Miss Carraway said. "Of course, that meant if she put the building on state property the state would own it."

"But we had to raise $150,000 from the state and nothing had ever been done like that before. That was before the time of the funding for the North Carolina Museum of Art. Everybody said it just couldn't be done."

The pessimists, however, didn't daunt Miss Carraway, Mrs. Latham and others who had their heart set on giving the Tryon Palace restoration a fighting chance.

Local Opposition
"We did work awfully hard," she admitted. "Much of the trouble was that we had a lot of opposition right here in New Bern. That whole block (where the palace is now located) came together and hired a lawyer."

"There were houses there, and businesses. They didn't want to move. And I don't blame them," she added. "I can understand their feelings. One of the finest citizens in New Bern asked me, 'Why build an old building? It wouldn't draw ten people a month.'"

"Which goes to show," she added, "you really never know. Well anyway, he ought to eat his words now! But in those days it was hard to see in advance. It was, after all, right in the middle of World War II."

As things happened, the annual summer board meeting of the Board of Conservation and Development was held at Asheville instead of at Morehead City, the traditional meeting place. "That was because of the submarine danger around Morehead," Miss Carraway explained. "As I mentioned, that was in 1944, and Mrs. Latham had put up her first trust fund. We went to the Advisory Budget Committee that year. My same friend I talked about earlier, Mr. Josh Horne, was very helpful and agreed for the Board of Conservation and Development to sponsor it." (The bill for state money to purchase land for the palace).

"Mr. Horne even let Mrs. Latham, Mrs. Richard Duffy and me go to Asheville in a State Forester's car, you remember the gas rationing, to tell the members of the State Board of Conservation and Development about this thing. I knew they were influential men from all over the state with the authority to condemn property and I was afraid we'd have to condemn some of it."

"Then too," she added, "the idea was to make it a state park, and they had the authority to create state parks." At Asheville, Miss Carraway recalled, "they got interested and went with us to the Board of the Advisory Budget Commission to see about this appropriation of $150,000. The DAR chapter had raised money and had employed Mr. Potter, a civil engineer, to survey the sites and get some idea how much it would cost." She said also that real estate men were hired to furnish some approximate costs.

Costs and Arguments
The estimates, she said, were made on a high, a middle, and a low cost. "We took the middle one, the $150,000 estimate. So we asked the state for that amount. We didn't get any encouragement from the Advisory Budget Commission. They argued they couldn't afford to do it. It was war time, they didn't have much money in the treasury, and besides, a thing of that kind had never been done before."

"But we argued right back," Miss Carraway smiled in reflection of those developments 30 years ago. "We argued they couldn't afford not to, that they'd get a wonderful building if they just bought the ground. So, they approved it, and it was recommended to the legislature in 1945."

With success as a prospect, objections back in New Bern accelerated following the news that funds to buy the block would be considered by the legislature at the 1945 assembly.

"This lawyer here and other men in New Bern objected strenuously," Miss Carraway said. "They tried to get the aldermen to vote against the appropriation. They demanded a public hearing. We had it. It was a battle of arguments. They argued against it, we argued for it. We did everything we could. We gave out briefs, everything."

It Helped
On the day after the joint appropriations committee of both houses of Legislature met in 1945, Miss Carraway (along with Mrs. Latham and Mrs. Charles Cannon) spoke to a gathering at the Sir Walter Cabinet.

"I remember asking them to please persuade their husbands to vote for it," she said. "And you know," she gave a big smile, "I think that did help an awful lot. The thing went through in a couple of weeks, they voted it. I got a telegram saying it was voted unanimously. So we got that money. That didn't stop all the hardships," (she gestured expansively) "I could tell you many more things, but anyway, it did come about."

Commission Established
"They not only voted approval," Miss Carraway explained, "but they established a Tryon Palace Commission to supervise the restoration. That's what this commission is all about."

Mrs. Latham was appointed chairman of the commission and when she died, Mrs. John A.

Kellenberger, Mrs. Latham's only daughter, became and still is the chairman of the Tryon Palace Commission.

"I was the secretary from the beginning in 1945 until I resigned in 1956. That was after I got through with the DAR work in Washington," Miss Carraway noted. "They wanted me to be the director and waited for me to make a trip around the world before taking the job. I couldn't be a paid director and the commission secretary too, so I resigned as secretary."

Praises Handling
"Let me tell you a fabulous story," Miss Carraway changed the subject of her role on the commission. "When Mrs. Latham died she left the residue of her estate to the Tryon Palace Commission. With the two trust funds she'd already given, it amounted to about a million and a half dollars. Since then, in 1951, the commission has spent over $5 million and still has more money left than it started with."

"Now that's due to Mr. and Mrs. Kellenberger. They invested Mrs. Latham's bequest so wisely that it grew and grew and grew. I never went to meetings like these," she emphasized. "Every meeting they'd report more money left than the last time no matter how much they'd spent."

"They've handled the money very economically, just as Mrs. Latham would have wished. They've done all that work and you might even say it hasn't cost a cent because they've got more than they started with, even now."

"I don't know of a story to beat that. Do you?" Miss Carraway asked.

The Big Event
From the time the legislature approved the $150,000 appropriation for purchase of the land until the eventual date the meticulously restored royal palace was ready for opening, almost 14 years elapsed.

"The formal opening was on April 8, 1959," Miss Carraway quoted the exact date without a moment's hesitation. "It was a big celebration. We had the legislature, the governor and all the officials here on that date, which incidentally was the anniversary date of Mrs. Latham's death."

"The next day, April 9, we had professional experts from all over to come for a visit, and on April 10 the palace was opened to the public."

"A week later," Miss Carraway added, "we had another celebration, with the Swiss Ambassador and the English Ambassador here. Lots of visitors came on the opening dates. It all went off very well. Attendance has increased every year, and I feel it should continue to increase."

"Incidentally," she added, her eyes sparkling with amusement, "the same Mr. Lattimore who had reported that restoration would be impossible, impractical and undesirable came here. When he saw what had been done, he told me he'd like to eat those words, that he'd never seen such a miraculous thing. He also said he had surely underestimated the power of women."

DAR Role
After World War II and following the groundwork for restoration of Tryon Palace, Miss Carraway became more active in the work of the Daughters of the American Revolution. For three years in the early 1950's she was editor of the DAR magazine. "Then from 1953 to 1956 I was president-general," she said. "The DAR is interested in history, education and patriotism just as I've been."

She mentioned "it was awfully nice in Washington in those years, but I kept coming back to New Bern, actually I commuted a lot during those six years."

Many Interests
With her dream for the restoration of Tryon Palace now a reality, and a highly successful one, Miss Carraway said "I'm just doing as I please now. I've gotten so I work at night when I get ready. I stay up late, I'm a night hawk."

She laughed when asked if she resorted to the proverbial rounds of coffee to stay awake. "Oh no, I don't drink coffee. I could live forever without it. I don't have to be stimulated to stay awake."

Her chief work now is centered around writing talks. "I'm writing half a dozen now that to my own surprise I promised to make. When someone phones," she smiled, "I find it difficult to say no. When they write, I find it easier to say no."

"I'm still very much interested in archives and history, and I meet with the people there quite often. There's more interest today than ever before in genealogy, they're really going to town on it."

Advocates Tourism
Eastern North Carolina, as well as New Bern, Miss Carraway feels, has great potential for development in tourism. "Already, tourists constitute the third largest industry in North Carolina, next to textiles and tobacco," she pointed out. "There's almost every evidence tourism will become the most lucrative industry in this area. It augers well for business as well as for good citizenship."

"Money is important to our people and the economic values of tourism are hard to beat," she affirmed, "but the more intrinsic values of good citizenship, the study of history, the inspiration, and encouragement to be better citizens, all these things are a great deal more important than economic values alone."

"One good thing," she added, "tourism has no environmental problems."

Pleased
Miss Carraway is delighted with what she terms "a regular cultural explosion all through the country. It used to be considered sissy for men to be interested in art, the dance, or music. But not now, and that's good."

"Actually," she reflected, "our nation wasn't very old until just now. We've been so busy making history we've had no time to study it."

"I believe that Tryon Palace has been very influential in spreading interest in North Carolina in local history. The state now has 21 restoration sites and that doesn't count Tryon Palace—that's sort of special, as it's state owned and operated by the commission. But I'm speaking of 21 sites that are owned, maintained and operated exclusively by the state. Did you realize that every one of them has come about since the restoration of Tryon Palace?"

She mentioned also that "another wonderful thing that is happening is that so many historical organizations doing things for themselves, like the Murfreesboro association and I Hope House in Bertie County. They do have state grants at times and federal help sometimes, but mostly it is people doing things themselves, like the fine work at Liberty Hall down in Kenansville."

"I like this idea. I don't think people ought to depend too much on governmental help."

Reflections
Though she admits she'll never be able to get the literary ink entirely out of her veins, Miss Carraway made it known she has no intention of writing a book about her life or her life work. "No, not fiction either," she smiled. "I wrote fiction long years ago, mostly for children in magazines under assumed names. I did some writing for Good Housekeeping that wasn't fiction."

"But right now," she said, "I don't want to get back into any of that. And I don't want to be educated any more. I want to be entertained now. It's time for me just to relax."

Miss Pamela Johnson Is Bride

FARMVILLE—The marriage of Miss Pamela Gaye Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Claude Johnson of Rt. 1, Farmville, and George Stephen Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hill of Beaufort, took place here Saturday at 5:00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles Paul, uncle of the bridegroom, assisted by the Rev. Bob Parvin in the First Christian Church. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. James Craft Jr. of Farmville, organist, and Mrs. Everett Wells of Louisburg, and Mitchell Johnson of Raleigh, cousin of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of silk maracaine knit over peau de soie. The molded bodice was fashioned with a scoop neckline extending to a lowered oval back bordered with scallop Venice lace re-embroidered with pearls and the long fitted sleeves were cuffed with lace. The A-silhouette skirt stemmed from the lifted waist curved with a band of scallop lace and complemented with a built-in wateau train, attached under scallops of lace.

Her cathedral length veil of French silk illusion with a pouf back was framed with matching lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white roses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Larry Glenn Johnston of Farmville. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Alec Kent Adams, Miss Rachel Lea Patterson, and Miss Donna Elizabeth McDonald, all of Greenville, Miss Emily Sue Hood of Atlanta, Ga. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Harriett Lang Joyner of Farmville and Miss Melissa Lee Johnson of Raleigh, cousin of the bride.

The honor attendant wore a sleeveless formal dress in gold floral print organza designed with a high neckline and bertha cape collar, edged with ruffles and draped into a point in the back. The skirt was enhanced with a deep ruffled hem. She wore a brown velvet bow with streamers and carried a lighted chamberstick. The bridesmaids and junior bridesmaids were dressed like the honor attendant and also carried lighted chambersticks.

Acolyte was James Bryan Joyner Jr. of Farmville. The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Stephen Claude Johnson of New Orleans, La., brother of the bride, Henry Jerome Stockard III of Durham, Thomas Hollister Potter Jr. of Beaufort, cousin of the bridegroom, and Joseph Swindell Garner Jr. of Newport. After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Atlantic Beach.

The bride is a senior at ECU and will graduate in March. The bridegroom is a graduate of Lenoir Community College and is employed at Cherry Point.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. James Hubert Joyner and parents of the bride and bridegroom.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace trimmed cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow and white mums flanked by silver candelabra. Mrs. Rand Wade, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Bryan Pippin poured punch.

A white covered table held the three tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Louis Willoughby Sr. and Mrs. Edward Johnson, aunt of the bride, served the cake after the bridal couple cut the traditional first slice.

Greenery and candles were used throughout the fellowship hall in decorating. The bride's registry held a globe candle and the bride's portrait. Presiding at the registry and saying good-byes were Mr. and Mrs. William Walston, aunt and uncle of the bride.

Assisting in serving were Martha Satterthwaite, Lisa Satterthwaite, Debbie Lee, Carol Lynn Allen, Jan Tugwell and Courtney Lancaster.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A young student wrote me this week, "Thank you very much for your biography which I was going to use for a term paper on persons I most admire.

However, it arrived too late, so I did one on Fidel Castro."

There isn't a parent reading this column who will not understand that letter.

A "paper" at our house isn't just an assignment from a teacher, it's a "sentence" for the entire family.

The drama usually unfolds on a Sunday evening when, right in the middle of "Kojak," our son will ask out of left field, "Dad, who invented peanuts?"

"Planters. And turn the TV set up if you're going to carry on a conversation."

"What influence would you say peanuts had on the western world?" he pursues.

The entire family gives him their attention. "Why do you want to know?"

"I am doing a paper on the physical and psychological significance of peanuts on western civilization."

"What have you got so far?"

"Planters. Source of Red: Dad, 1975."

"Get those reference books off the shelf," says his father, swinging into action. "Let's see now, peanuts... see Goober."

"I remember him from 'Mayberry, RFD.'" said our daughter.

"That has nothing to do with peanuts."

"Maybe Charlie Schulz..."

"Aha! Carver. Did he discover peanuts or was it soy beans?"

"Call the Bruners. They have a dictionary."

"Did you taste that meat loaf where Pat put in soy beans? It was delicious."

"Mom! Forget the meat loaf."

Prepare Nut Bread For Calorie Counters

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — This orange nut bread recipe is suggested for holiday feasting for the calorie conscious. It was developed for the Los Angeles Affiliate of the American Heart Association.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Sift together two and a quarter cups of sifted all-purpose flour, two and a half teaspoons of regular baking powder or three and a quarter teaspoons of low sodium baking powder, half a teaspoon of baking soda, three-quarters teaspoon of salt (optional) and one cup of sugar. Stir in nuts. Combine one beaten egg with two tablespoons of vegetable oil (preferably polyunsaturated), three-fourths cup of orange juice and one tablespoon of grated orange rind. Pour liquid ingredients into dry mixture and stir only until smooth. Pour batter into an oiled nine and a half by five and a quarter by two and three-quarter inch loaf pan and cover with aluminum foil for the first 20 minutes of baking to retard cracking on top. Then, remove foil and bake for a total of 60 to 65 minutes. Remove from pan and cool on rack.

Global Equality Still A Dream

By JOHN NEEHAM
 UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Sex equality still is a pipe dream for many of the world's nations because efforts to raise the status of women often threaten a society's cherished values, says a major United Nations report.

The report by the U.S. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization on "Women, Education and Equality" was based on a 10-year field study in three widely dissimilar countries, Chile, Upper Volta and Nepal.

The project tried to promote equal educational opportunities for young girls and women on the assumption that better education would serve as the best means to promote sex equality in the test countries.

In Upper Volta, a poverty-stricken North African country on the edge of the Sahara Desert, UNESCO experts tried to create conditions allowing women in isolated rural areas to obtain educations.

In Nepal, an isolated mountain kingdom in South Asia, the project tried to train women teachers for rural primary schools as a means of increasing girls' school enrollment.

In Chile, a more developed country on South America's west coast, UNESCO attempted to recruit secondary school women for chemistry, computer programming and other technical courses, then help them find jobs.

Analyzing the results, the report concluded that "efforts to change the situation of women in any society touch upon a very sensitive domain concerning the cherished values of that society and, in consequence, elicit deep-rooted opposition."

For example, most village families in Nepal consider primary education useless for girls, the study indicated. In 1971, 96 per cent of Nepalese women were illiterate.

Nepalese expect women to help with household chores from which their brothers are exempt, said the report.

UNESCO workers in Chile found that the technical education available to schoolgirls centered on the so-called feminine trades and professions such as hairdressing, secretarial work, dressmaking, social work.

The project integrated an all-girls' technical high school and an all-boys' industrial high school. It added chemistry, computer programming, textiles and bilingual secretarial training to the curricula.

In the Upper Volta, UNESCO workers found that women are the backbone of the economy, with much more than education to think about.

"They cultivate the fields ... produce goods necessary for the family, sell any excess produce or wares in the local markets and are, of course, responsible for all domestic work — the care and raising of children, milling grain, food preparation, water carrying and wood gathering."

The report said 95 per cent of all Upper Volta citizens live in isolated rural areas and have sheer survival as their primary concern.

It added that all three projects ran into so much difficulty that their outstanding achievements probably were "creation of a favorable climate of opinion towards new educational opportunities for women."

Women who took part in the projects became more conscious of their potential and more confident of fulfilling it, the study said. Their husbands and fathers were encouraged to change their own previously held views.

The report concluded that worldwide sex equality would become reality only when the positive attitudes of both men and women become the generally held values of the societies in which they live and work.

A WILLIAMSBURG THANKSGIVING FEAST ... was displayed in Mrs. Hardy's activity room. The meal consisted of country ham, hoppin john, cranberry sauce, eggs, corn sticks, pumpkin pie, mince meat pie, nuts and bread.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

The Dig 'N Delve Garden Club home tour featuring "holiday table settings" was held Tuesday at the homes of Mrs. Ira Hardy on Circle Drive and Mrs. Roger Mann on Country Club Drive.

The pine cone wreath on Mrs. Hardy's front door and the fall arrangement of fruit and vegetables in the foyer set the theme for the colonial home decorated for autumn.

The living room was the setting for a ladies stitchery luncheon with individual tables for wine and coffee. The round luncheon table, skirted in a lime green cloth bordered in deep blue braid, had blue napkins tucked in green goblets. The centerpiece was a mahogany tea caddy spilling skeins of brightly colored yarn and yellow mums accenting the china. Place cards, held in miniature embroidery hoops, had each person's name embroidered on luncheon napkins. A large wicker basket was filled with handmade pillows in the color scheme of the room.

The sideboard in the dining room was decorated with two large hurricane globes filled with fruits, nuts and pine cones and encircled with wreaths of cones and greenery. An assortment of candles in brass candlesticks was burning between the globes.

Prior to an ECU football game, box lunches were served in the den. Decorated in purple and gold, the boxes featured clusters of mums, ribbons and pennants. Of special interest was a football helmet with an arrangement of fruit and vegetables and fall leaves. On the coffee table, a miniature football field was displayed showing the goal posts entwined with yellow mums and purple streamers. Pom poms, trophies and megaphones added to the room setting.

The breakfast room featured a round table with a centerpiece of baker's clay cornucopia filled with fruit, nuts, ivy and daisy mums. Displays of cornhusk pilgrims and bread dough bowls filled with baked loaves of bread and wheat were used on the sideboard.

Mrs. Mann's New England country home was decorated for Christmas from the outside lamppost to the master bedroom. As one entered the house, baskets and boxes of pine and holly led the way. The stairway held a swag of white pine and red bows and a pine bench featured Christmas gifts and hand-stitched Christmas pillows. On the doughboy was an open Bible and a Madonna and child adorned by yew and white camellias.

In the living room, the colonial mantel and woodbox held an arrangement of brass candlesticks and red candles based with holly and berries. A brass bucket filled with pine cones and holly sat on the hearth and the coffee table was set with a Christmas coffee service and an Augland china music box.

Christmas Noel china was used on imported organdy placemats and matching napkins to set the table in the dining room. The centerpiece was made of fruit, berries, holly, fir and boxwood in an old white ironstone soup tureen. The sideboard was decorated with a roping of cedar, boxwood and pine forming a background for a large porcelain punch bowl filled with pears, pineapple, lemons and grapes.

As guests stepped into Mrs. Mann's den, it was easy to imagine what the children must have felt on Christmas morning. The table was made to resemble an enormous drum with oversize drumsticks set for a child's party. White Christmas china, cookies, napkins and hand-stitched background on a tray carried out the holiday theme. The musical idea was carried further by using arrangements made of holly on brass instruments on the piano and a side table. Handmade patchwork wreaths and needlepoint Christmas pillows were displayed and handmade ornaments were shown on a live Norfolk Island pine placed in the bay window.

The natural pine Christmas tree in the master bedroom was trimmed with small baskets of natural straw holding dried flowers arrangements and velvet bows with long streamers in bright colors. A collection of cornhusk dolls were placed on top of an antique New England pine chest and a white bisque Madonna and child accented with natural holly berries was shown on an antique pine desk.

Money received from the tour will be used to purchase and maintain the shrubbery and plants at the Dig 'N Delve garden in front of the Elm Street Gymnasium and the shrubbery planted near the building.

Get Organized Before Having Job Interview

NEW YORK (AP) — There are techniques for getting a job, as well as techniques in doing a job well.

First, if you're preparing for a job interview, says Helen Cris, president of a placement agency here, Cris Associates Inc., you need to concentrate on the techniques for getting a job. She has prepared a checklist of these.

The person interviewing you for a job will already have your written resume when you arrive for the interview. In addition, says Mrs. Cris, you should be set to answer queries on personal skills and training, details of companies you've worked for, the reasons for previous job termination. There may also be such off-beat questions as what publications and books you read and where do you see yourself in five years.

When you arrive for the interview, be as calm, confident and assured as possible. Be properly dressed for a business situation, be prepared to present your history in an orderly and organized manner and — above all — be affable and gracious about answering the same questions several times.

Miss Pamela Coe Weds In High Noon Ceremony

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The wedding of Miss Pamela Susan Coe, daughter of Mrs. Dell Coe of Robersonville, N.C., and Robert Coe of New York City, and Richard S. Reynolds III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Reynolds Jr. of Richmond, Va., took place at noon here Saturday at Saint Mary's Chapel of the Washington Cathedral.

The Rev. William L. Dols, Jr., of Immanuel Church-on-the-Hill, Alexandria, Va., officiated.

Mrs. Duncan Burt of McLean was her sister's matron of honor. Ms. Tania Hendrick of Washington served as bridesmaid.

Mr. Reynolds was his son's best man. Ushers were William D. Ruckelshaus of Washington, William G. Reynolds Jr. and Andrew H. McCutcheon Jr. of Richmond.

The bride wore a three-piece satin suit of midi length and a white mink turban.

A luncheon was held at the Chevy Chase Club, Bethesda, Md., following the wedding.

Miss Coe formerly served as assistant to the Secretary of the Interior for the Arts and Director of Cultural Affairs. She has been serving as a consultant for the Office of Marketing and Education for the Federal Energy Administration and came to Washington from the position of director of Radio and Television Publicity for the J. Walter Thompson Co., N.Y.

Mr. Reynolds is a vice president of Robertshaw Controls, Inc., Richmond, and was elected earlier this month to the Virginia House of Delegates from the city of Richmond.

The couple will make their home in Richmond, Va.

Magazine Food Editor Still Visits Supermarkets To Talk

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

Jeanne Voltz remembers the beef boycott of 1973 vividly. It was the day she began her new job as food editor for a major magazine.

Shoppers still beef about high prices on all kinds of food, and particularly meat, Mrs. Voltz said in an interview in New York City and a speech prepared for delivery at the annual meeting of the American Meat Institute in Chicago.

"I'm a great supermarket visitor," she said. "You can't run a magazine for the rest of the country from Times Square. I talk to all the people I can."

Some are shoppers in supermarkets; others are members of special discussion groups formed by "Woman's Day" for survey purposes, she said.

"Men and women have traded down from standing rib roast to chuck, from steak to chicken," she added. "A lot are serving macaroni and cheese as a main dish instead of a side dish."

Mrs. Voltz described the average consumer as economically naive.

"She thinks if she buys less beef, the price will go down. It never occurs to her that the farmer and feedlot cannot stay in business without a profit."

She told of a young friend who admired fresh snap beans in a supermarket, but bought a package of frozen beans instead. When asked why, the young woman said:

"The frozen bean package tells you how to cook them." Shoppers scrimp one minute and spurge the next.

"Most surprising of all, women who are frightened and frustrated by rising prices say they shop specialty markets, even when they are more expensive," she said. "One woman in our Hicksville, Long Island, group said she went to her neighborhood butcher for prime meat, since the price of meat was so high anyway."

To offset this, they buy less total meat, make servings smaller and space out treats more.

She said many also buy fruit and vegetables at small independent shops where they can handpick produce and weigh out just as much as they want.

"An elderly woman in my (neighborhood) market asked the meat man to divide a package of drumsticks into just two instead of six. He said he was too busy."

"People are buying hot dogs because their families like them, and buying sandwich meats a lot. But a woman in our Long Island focus group said she switched to bigger pot roasts and slices them cold for sandwiches."

"A woman in Minneapolis told us she roasts turkey for 'a neat turkey dinner.' She then serves turkey a la king, turkey hash, turkey sandwiches and makes chicken soup out of the carcass."

"A lot of sandwich eaters are trading down from meat to peanut butter."

"Many shoppers talk in terms of price per serving," an attitude Mrs. Voltz admires. But she also cautions that lamb shanks for more than one or two persons become more expensive than half of a small leg of lamb.

"Turkey and chicken wings used to be considerably less per pound than legs, but no more. Backs and necks have as good a flavor for soup as wings, and they are cheaper."

She said turkey tails also make wonderful flavored soup, stew or fricassee, if you can find them. They are a byproduct of America's appetite for boneless turkey, and sold in one New York City supermarket recently for only 55 cents a pound.

Couple Weds In Ceremony On Saturday

Miss Charlotte Linda Moseley of Kinston and Stephen Huntington Dunn of Greenville spoke their wedding vows Saturday at Vernon Hall Mission. The Rev. David L. Alexander, of Gordon Street Christian Church, officiated at the double ring ceremony and Tommy Lewis assisted.

A program of wedding music was presented by Haywood Smith, guitarist and soloist, who sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Prayer of St. Francis."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zebulon Vance Moseley of Kinston. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Worth Dunn of Greenville.

The bridegroom's father served as best man.

After a reception at the fellowship hall of Gordon Street Christian Church, the couple left on a wedding trip.

They will make their home in Wilmington where they will attend the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Give Of Your Time On Thanksgiving

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Thinking about Thanksgiving? If you are planning a holiday dinner, why not make it a true time of giving thanks and share it with someone who might otherwise be forgotten?

Is there an elderly person down the block who lives alone? Why not call the nursing home nearest you and ask them to select a resident who would enjoy Thanksgiving with a family. Then provide transportation.

I promise you, your own Thanksgiving will be enriched. And think of the joy you will be giving a lonely, elderly person!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for 38 years. My husband has been reading very dirty pocketbooks and magazines that dirty men he works with give him. He's been reading them for many years.

I have always claimed that this excessive arousal would make him impotent. He never believed me.

Now at age 60, he no longer gets aroused from these dirty pictures—or even from me! He has gone completely impotent.

Please tell me, Abby, can a man become impotent from looking at too many dirty pictures over the years?

If he can, please write a whole column on it so men won't be so dumb.

CHIC. TRIB. READER

DEAR READER: It won't require a whole column to advise you that a man cannot become impotent from looking at too many "dirty" pictures. He may become bored with them, but impotent—no way!

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him "Bud") and I have been married for three years and were thinking about starting a family until this came up. (I'm 26 and Bud is 28).

Five months ago, my sister, who just got divorced, moved in with us until she could get herself together. She's 29 and the "beauty" of the family, but she's always after somebody's man.

Bud never paid her any attention in front of me, so I wasn't worried. Then this terrible thing happened. Sis called me at work and told me Bud tried to rape her! I was so stunned I nearly fainted.

I got home as soon as possible, and all Bud could say was, "I thought that's what she wanted the way she always paraded around in a see-through nightgown." Sis said she didn't even own one, but I knew she was lying because I'd seen it when I did the laundry.

Sis said this was the second time he tried it, but she didn't tell me because she didn't want to make trouble.

Abby, explain the difference between "rape" and "molest." Sis told the family it was "rape," but Bud didn't tear her clothes off or even touch her. All he did was proposition her. Also, wasn't it partly her fault for enticing him? I still love my husband, but I don't trust him.

Whose fault was all this? Shouldn't my sis move? Answer soon.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: There was no rape involved. Apparently, your sister tantalized your husband and he propositioned her, and that's all there was to it. Yes, your sis should move. Buy her a flannel nightgown as a farewell present and get yourself a see-through nightie.

WEDDING CHAPELS CAUSED COMPLAINTS

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The Reno city council has voted an ordinance providing for stricter regulations for Reno's wedding chapels.

The ordinance basically provides for adequate posting of fees and control of outdoor advertising.

According to Don Cralle, Reno Better Business Bureau, deceptive price quoting and misleading advertising have been the two major complaints received by his office about wedding chapels.

Women Profs 'Inch' Upward

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A national survey, by Profs. Everett C. Ladd Jr. of the University of Connecticut-Storrs and Seymour Martin Lipset of Stanford University, shows the proportion of women among American college and university professors has inched upward to 21 per cent.

The survey disclosed women composed 19 per cent of the professoriate in 1969 and 20 per cent in 1973.

Nearly one-third of all full-time faculty under age 30 are women, but as a group women occupy very much the same status as they did in 1969.

Cairo Campaigns To Rid City Of Wild Dog Packs

By MICHAEL S. BARRETT
CAIRO (UPI) — Five quick rifle shots echoed in the dead of night across an expanse of flat Cairo. Two cracks followed, then three and five more.

Egypt had entered another shooting war. But this time it was against another enemy.

"It's the dogs," said a black-uniformed policeman squatting around a flaming smudgepot behind the National Bank building. "They're killing the dogs."

This city of 8.5 million persons has begun an intensive campaign to rid the streets of an estimated 20,000 wild and mangy mongrels who have roamed in from the surrounding desert in search of food and warmth.

Dr. Alia Ammar, director of the Institute of Dogs, one of four government-run treatment centers for rabies bites, said about 10 per cent of the wild animals — cats, wolves and jackals included — are disease carriers.

"All these animals are potential carriers," she said. "Therefore, they all must be destroyed."

Dr. Ammar said the shooting of stray dogs has gone on for years, but the city only recently launched a large-scale campaign to destroy as many as possible "because lately we've received so many complaints."

The Institute handles "more than 25 persons every day, seven days a week, and the other centers give serum to even more," she said. The often painful rabies shots must be administered in the patient's stomach for up to 28 consecutive days, and many victims are children.

The dogs, although wild, make friends easily among street people — the soldiers and policemen who guard the banks and communications centers at night and the building doormen who keep them around as watchdogs.

They know the animals are dangerous but still try to pet them, Dr. Ammar said. So the city's infantry police have orders to shoot to kill any stray animal seen roaming the streets at night, the time they usually forage for food.

"The dogs and cats reproduce like rabbits," Dr. Ammar said. "It will be very difficult to destroy them all."

While the wholesale slaughter of dogs sicken many animal lovers, some say it is even sadder to see the poor hound nearly starved, scratched almost hairless because of fleas and other parasites and crippled time and again by missteps in the traffic choked streets of Cairo.

Still others, such as Dr. Ammar, who sees hundreds of patients suffering each week because of a nip on the hand or ankle, show little mercy at all.

"Rabies is a killer disease, and it must be treated quickly," she said. "No, the animals must be destroyed. The people suffer enough."

The midnight sounds of rifle reports carry easily in the cool Autumn air of Cairo. One, three, six o'clock in the morning the shots reverberate in concrete wells of high-rise terraces and along pitch-black streets from the Mokattam Hills on the east to the Nile River five miles away and beyond.

And one can see the city slowly winning its canine war, by the fewer and fewer marauding hounds one notices in the back alleyways and side streets as the days go by.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES You can forward basic plans early in the day. Later you feel tied down to some situation you can't seem to get moving and want to make some drastic change which would not be wise just now. Delay while thinking things out.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can take care of family matters in a most cooperative and satisfying way, so don't go out early for pleasure.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact allies early and work out a better arrangement. Later, improve conditions at home. Do shopping errands during daytime.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You understand how to make necessary financial changes during daytime. Avoid arguments with friends in p.m. Study statements, reports. Improve budget.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get yourself spruced up physically and mentally, then get into more economical financial matters. Enjoy p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan private activities early for the evening and all's fun. Don't confide in others. Consult expert for needed advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Good day to be with good friends at activities mutually enjoyable. Go after your finest personal aims intelligently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Contact persons socially who can help you in business, personal life. Plan to relax and restore energies tonight. Avoid gossip.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Philosophical studies in a.m. help you get ahead faster in the future. Make new contacts, but steer clear of angry bagwigs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your hunches are fine so be sure to follow them during day, but take no chances whatever tonight. Work out better business system.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Spend a social day with partners and discuss the future together leisurely, get much arranged. You can benefit from today's activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show appreciation to those who have done you many favors in the past, but avoid the social in p.m. Get some important work done.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Daytime favors amusement, but spend evening quietly at home. Fine day for showing off any special talents. Don'tirk loved one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a delightful person who understands the feelings of others and almost can read their thoughts, but is apt to withdraw within self early in life and not use this gift, so be sure to give the right kind of education that will help your progeny become a great benefactor to mankind in general and live a fuller life. Teach to be objective early, since the sensitivity here is pronounced. Sports are a fine outlet.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOV. 24, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to let others know of your capabilities and to get their support. Also a fine day for letting others know of your desire for their friendship and entertaining others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Bring your finest talents to the attention of those who can help you capitalize on them. Show more affection for mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A kind act to a family member will add to the harmony at home. Engage in a new project that will add to your abundance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan a better way to have improved relations with allies. Obtain the assistance of persons who can help you solve a problem.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to have more abundance in the future and use ethical methods for best results. Make the evening a happy one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are highly magnetic today and can get others to go along with your ideas. But be sure to use tact and avoid unexpected trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Figure out a way to gain your finest aims. An expert can give the advice you need. Be careful of one who is jealous of you.

Fewer Jobs For Moonlighters

NEW YORK (UPI) — Since the mid-60s a growing number of Americans have moonlighted in an effort to battle inflation, but the steep increases in food and fuel costs over the last year have swelled the ranks of those looking for second jobs.

The Labor Department reported last May that 3.9 million employed persons, or 4.7 per cent of the work force, held two or more jobs, according to the Newspaper Advertising Bureau. The recession, however, dramatically reduced the number of part-time jobs, with 9.6 per cent of would-be moonlighters unemployed in September compared with 8.7 per cent a year earlier.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Dress elegantly and attend social activities that are worthwhile. Don't neglect important business matters. Handle money wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to impress higher-ups with your talents and to get the backing you need to advance in your career. Use common sense.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Engage in new activities in which you can make contacts that are helpful. Sidestep gossip who want to waste your time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Begin new week properly by handling your responsibilities in an intelligent fashion. Show increased devotion to loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Talking with associates and putting your points across is best way to start this day. Express happiness at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take steps to improve your surroundings. Look around for new items to add to your wardrobe and make yourself more charming.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a radiant smile and should be taught to use it at the right times to get what is desired. Direct education along governmental lines. There is a good chance your progeny could become famous later in life.

Japanese Top Shipbuilders

NEW YORK (AP) — Last year, the Japanese built more than half of the world's volume of new ship tonnage, reports "The Compass," a publication of MOAC, marine insurance underwriter.

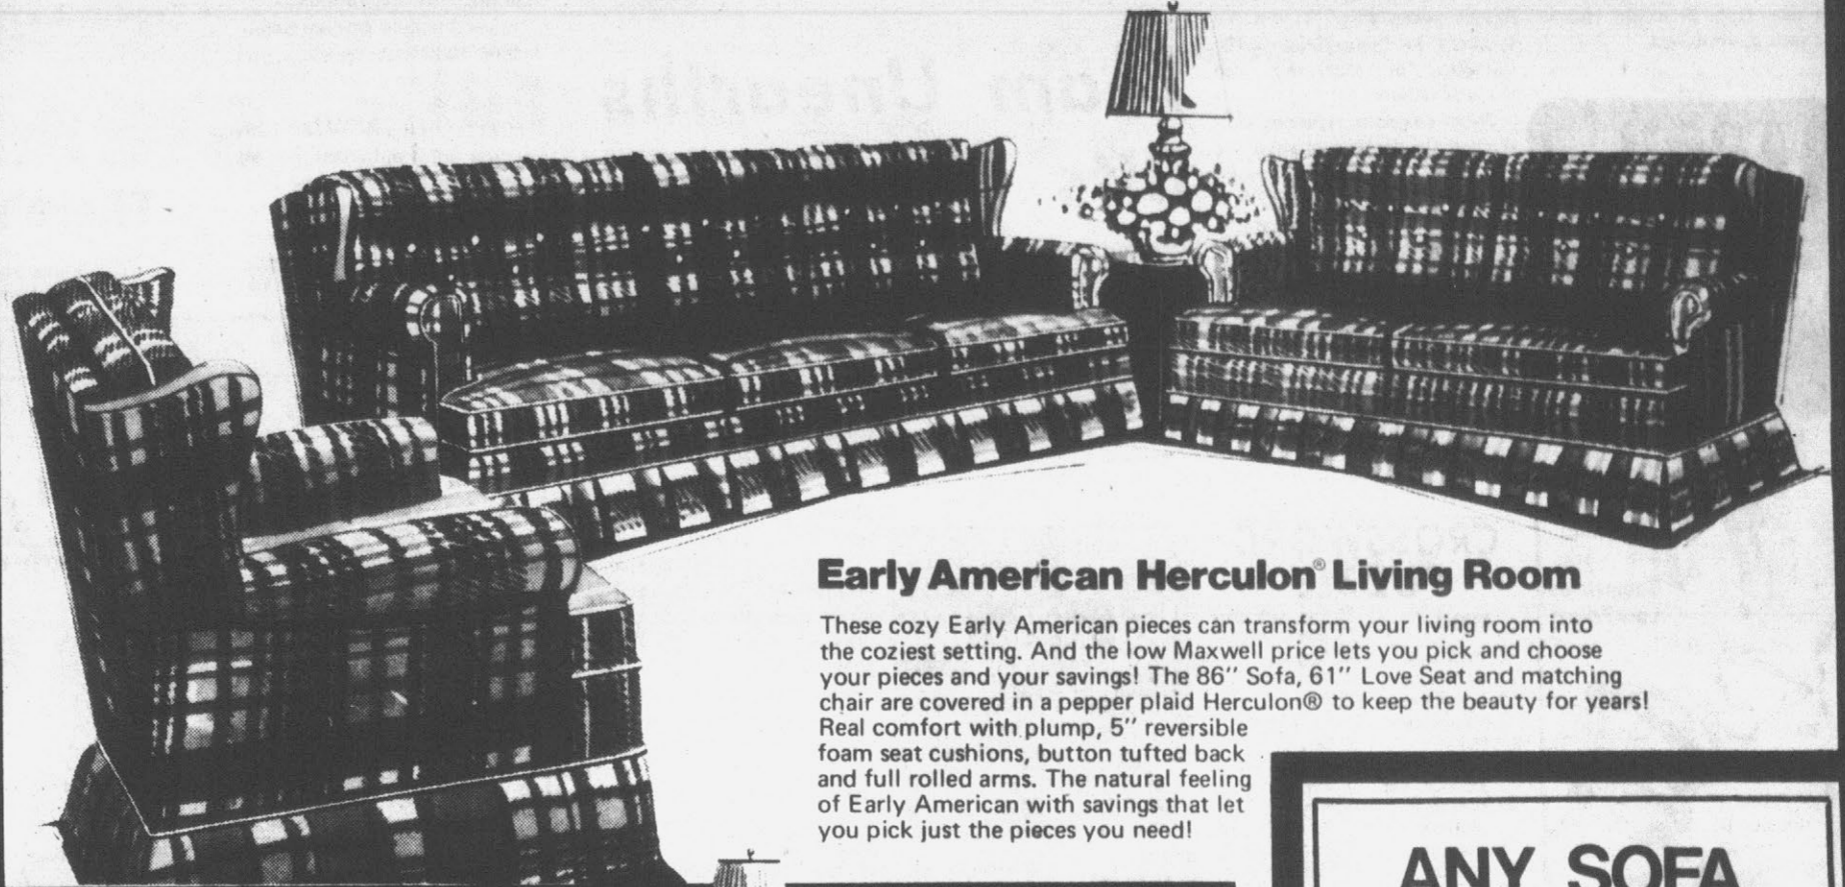

Japan launched 17.5 million gross tons of ships in 1974 which constituted 51.6 per cent of the ship tonnage world-wide, according to "The Compass."

The publication notes that Sweden was second in ship production with 2.2 million tons, or 6.4 per cent of world ship tonnage, and West Germany was third with 2.1 million tons, or 6.1 per cent.

Early Thanksgiving Heritage

EDITOR'S NOTE — From the Pilgrim fathers and their first Thanksgiving to the fiery preacher warriors of the Revolution, religion was one of the key forces in forging the nation.

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

Religious faith, and the desire to exercise that faith freely, is the foundation of American democracy. It brought the founding fathers here on a holy mission, and it was in their search for God that they found liberty.

"We came hither because we would have our posterity settled under pure and full dispensation of the gospel, defended by rulers that should be ourselves," declared Cotton Mather three centuries ago.

To the men and women who built America, religious and political liberty were inseparable. And even if governments did rule by divine right, as some claimed, if a man could choose his own God, he could choose his own government.

It was on this rock, long before politicians got into the act, that old world tyranny shattered and new world freedom, equality and democratic government were forged.

"The Revolution was in the minds and hearts of the people," said John Adams, "a change in their religious sentiments of their duties and obligations."

That is why we call ourselves one nation "under God" and our money says "In God We Trust." And that is why each year at the time of harvest we pause in national thanksgiving. The country was born of religious fervor. Columbus sailed, he said, because God "placed in me a burning desire to carry out this plan."

Europe was urged to colonize because "it is necessary, for the salvation of those poor people ... that preachers should be sent unto them."

The Pilgrims of Plymouth and the Puritans of Boston came seeking freedom from religious persecution. So did the Quakers in Pennsylvania, the Catholics in Maryland and hosts of others.

These religious refugees considered themselves blessed for all their travail, a chosen people with the opportunity and duty to build in the new world God's kingdom on earth.

For the most part these new Americans were the most radical converts of the Protestant Reformation. And their most radical tenet was that each man was responsible for his own salvation.

It placed a frightening burden on the individual — the necessity to seek God with his own mind and heart. He was then, understandably, angry at any attempt to interfere with his freedom to use these God-given instruments.

Just as there was the spiritual covenant between God and man, there were covenants among men. In the middle of the Atlantic, John Winthrop reminded his Puritans that to survive "we must be knit together in this work as one man."

To govern this covenant, Winthrop said that God had "given us leave to draw our own articles." The test of the government would be God's approval.

There was a divine law, they felt, a higher authority to which all manmade law must conform.

"It is therefore fit for every man to be studious of the bounds which the Lord hath set," John Cotton warned more than a century before Thomas Jefferson used the same argument in rebellion against a king.

The Puritans were firm constitutionalists. Government was not a casual contract but a necessity imposed by God to prevent anarchy.

However, it belonged, as Cotton said, to "the people, in whom fundamentally all power lies."

And the best form of government for such people was democracy.

"A democracy," exclaimed the Rev. John Wise in 1717, "this is a form of government which the light of nature does highly value and often directs to as the most agreeable to the just and natural prerogatives of human beings."

One of the most important contributions to independence was a revival which swept the land in the 1740s.

The "Great Awakening" was an evangelical movement based on the "experience of conversion." It was not a new concept, but its revival shattered upper class control of the religious establishment.

Dependence once again was on individual choice. People questioned authority and the leaders who wielded it.

To justify this the evangelists, many of them persecuted by the established church for preaching without license, revived the idea of a divine law superior to man's statute.

The fundamental philosophies upon which the coming American Revolution rested were formulated and impressed on the public conscience during this religious revival.

After the Revolution, religious freedom was made a firm part of the new nation's charter. It was written into the first article of the Bill of Rights and into the state constitutions.

In the Virginia Bill for Establishing Religious Freedom, the pride of his life's work, Thomas Jefferson declared:

"That almighty God hath created the mind free; that all attempts to influence it by temporal punishments or burdens, or by civil incapacitations, tend only to beget habits of hypocrisy and meanness, and are a departure from the plan of the Holy Author of our religion ...

Team Unearths Bits Of History

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — On a spring day in 1836, Mexican General Santa Anna, the man who stormed the Alamo, stood before a firing squad under the command of General Sam Houston. But the triggers were never pulled.

The reason? Santa Anna gave a little sign, and Sam Houston's eyes fairly popped out.

Santa Anna was a Mason, and he had given a secret distress signal to Houston — a brother Mason.

The Mexican general was allowed his freedom after signing a peace treaty.

"You have to get into secret archives to get this kind of history," says Perry Van Arsdale, historian, linguist and cartographer.

Van Arsdale and his geologist wife, Mildred, have been delving into secret archives, dusty court records, and old memories the past 20 years to collect a comprehensive history of Pioneer America — the mainland of the United States before 1900.

The research is over, an intricate set of hand drawn maps of the entire mainland has been completed by Van Arsdale, but the job is not yet done.

The maps, as detailed as they are with finely penned notations of early incidents, trails, origins, killings, discoveries, and forgotten towns, contain less than one per cent of the actual historical records the Van Arsdales have assembled over the past two decades.

The next move, they hope, is to begin to put all of their research into a computer system somewhere, so scholars, teachers, historians, writers or anyone in need of early history of any part of the country could get it instantly.

SHOWTIME

For The Week Of November 23-29, 1975

Let's Have A Parade

IN THE BIG PARADE— Ed McMahon (left) will be the roving man-on-the-streets and Helen Reddy and Peter Marshall will be co-hosts of the NBC-TV's live colorcast of the 49th annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade Thursday, Nov. 27 (10 a.m. to 12 noon). Linus, one of the huge Goodyear balloons, also will participate in the New York City parade.

What's a parade all about?

It's thrilled throngs of kids crowded at curbside, cheering ebullient, giant balloons or crazy cartoon characters; its batches of blaring marching bands and beves of beauteous baton girls twirling; it's flotillas of flowered, fantastic floats bearing poised princesses; it's clutches of clowns on pogo sticks and in funny cars; it's Santa Claus sleighing down the avenue; it's a joyous noise and a rousing ruckus.

What's a parade all about?

It's about three hours of non-stop gaiety and music, and it's yours for the viewing on NBC and CBS. Both networks will air the parades Thanksgiving Day from 9 to 12 noon. (NBC on Channel 6-7, and CBS, Channel 9-11.)

Filling the host spot for CBS is William Conrad, star of "Canon." This is Conrad's third consecutive year to host the festivities. Assisting him in New York will be Lee Meriwether. Sherman Hemsley and Isabel Sanford will report on the 56th annual Philadelphia Gimbels Parade, and parade-side commentators for the Eaton's Santa Claus Parade in Toronto will be Michael Learned and David Groh.

And once again, the host of Honolulu's Aloha Floral Parade will be "Mr. Hawaii" himself, Jack Lord. Special guest at this parade will be television star Brian Keith. With Polynesian perfection, the parade promises the ceremonial Pa'u Riders, representing each island in the state; Santa Claus skiing down Mauna Kea; the "King" and "Queen" of Hawaii and their royal court; the U.S. Navy Pacific Fleet band; Tahitian canoeists; and that everlasting symbol of Hawaiian hospitality, a host of hula dancers.

Peter Marshall, as the host, and Ed McMahon, as the roving man-on-the-street, will team up to describe the holiday pageantry for NBC. Award-winning singer Helen Reddy will co-host with Marshall.

With Marshall and Ms. Reddy in the anchor position, advantageously located to observe the 49th annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade participants, and McMahon in closeup interviews, home viewers will have a full view of one of the world's outstanding events.

The Macy parade will feature stars of television, the recording industry and the Broadway theatre performing on board distinctively styled floats. The Goodyear balloon behemoths, in their only public appearance of the year, will soar high above Manhattan during the parade. Also appearing will be award-winning bands from various parts of the United States.

Love Is Here To Stay

For Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme, the chance to perform Gershwin music in front of millions of viewers is something very near to their hearts. The couple have been paying their own tribute to the composer-lyricist team of George and Ira Gershwin in front of hundreds on their successful nightclub circuit.

"Anybody who has ever been exposed to Gershwin music has to relate to it immediately," Lawrence says, explaining the fascination the music holds for him. "It's among the finest popular music ever written. It's 40 years old, but it sounds like it was set down on paper yesterday."

Lawrence and Miss Gorme bring the incomparable Gershwin to the television audience in "Steve and Eydie: 'Our Love Is Here to Stay,'" an hour-long special featuring guest star Gene Kelly, to be broadcast Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 27, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 11.

"American music has been copied by every nation throughout the entire world," Miss Gorme says. "It has an originality, a newness. The great American composers in the group headed by Gershwin, Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern and others will be considered the classic American composers in future years."

Their music comes into particular focus in this bicentennial year, she notes.

"Gershwin considered that music is always a part of the country and a part of the times encompassed by a composer's life," Miss Gorme says. "I'm paraphrasing him, but George basically said, 'I am an American and my music reflects the American spirit.'"

Ira Gershwin's testament to his late brother was to tell him in song that what set them apart was how much they cared. Lawrence's and Miss Gorme's caring for this music is reflected in their professionalism.

"Eydie and I are not what you'd call a fad," Lawrence says. "Our performances are consistent and of a standard nature. We're professionals at what we do."

"We want to give out good music, but not the kind that deadens the mind and ears and isolates people from their problems," Eydie adds. "We're dealing with music that is classy and has its own, long-earned prestige. But we hope we put it across with electricity and humor."

Gershwin music, echoing the love referred to in the show's title, is very much here to stay.

Chauffeur Is 'Music Man'

Although acting is his first love, music plays a very important part in the life of Ralph Manza, who portrays chauffeur Jay Drury on the "Banacek" movie which will air Tuesday, Nov. 25, on the "CBS Late Movie," at 11:30 p.m.

Like most actors with a family to support, Manza must earn a living during production breaks. So he plays piano at the Friars Club in Beverly Hills on Sunday and Thursday evenings.

Manza has been working at the Friars Club for 18 years in various capacities, helping out where he can when his acting schedule permits.

"I've been playing piano for 42 years now, since I was 9 years old," Manza says. "I consider myself a good amateur piano player. The chords are correct and the harmony is interesting."

It was in college that Manza reached the crossroad of his life and had to decide between acting and music. He chose acting.

The affable actor also puts his talents to songwriting and has composed a "Banacek Rhapsody" which takes elements from "Banacek" plots.

Zero Mostel On TV

Samuel Joel Mostel, known as Zero, started out as a standup comic impersonating a coffee percolator. Now he is in a lush studio dressing room in Birmingham, England, having just finished rehearsing the formidable lead role in Puccini's comic opera "Gianni Schicchi," which will be broadcast on "The CBS Festival of Lively Arts for Young People" series Friday, Nov. 28, 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The man who could be described as a living schmoo, or an IRT subway train with a sense of humor, was sweating profusely, beads of perspiration blossoming through his makeup. He bums an American cigarette ("These English ones choke you!") and massages the painful left leg which doctors wanted to amputate several years ago after he had been sideswiped by a bus in New York City.

Mostel, at age 60, is a major star with a shelf-full of awards for such Broadway shows as "Fiddler on the Roof," "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and "Rhinceros." One question why Mostel is now breaking his back in grand opera, a medium he has never touched before.

Mostel mops his wet face and erupts into conversation. "Singing opera was like going someplace I've never been before. It's marvelous doing that." His face bunches into a ferocious scowl, then quivers into a fat, frozen grin. "And I didn't even have apprehensions about doing it. FEAR, yes!"

With reason. Mostel doesn't read a note of music. Nonetheless, he learned, in an incredible two weeks time, the entire score by rote, working day and night with a vocal coach at his summer home in Maine. "The first time my coach heard me bellow, he wanted to put me out to pasture. He thought that's where I belonged."

Not that opera's all that new to Mostel. "I'm a buff," he says. "I've seen opera at London's Covent Garden, in Paris, in Florence, Rome. I don't want to know the librettos. I make up my own. It's the music I love. And there are wonderful acting parts. Like 'Gianni Schicchi.'" With Puccini, you don't have to make up your own jokes. He's done it for you."

It's time to rest his leg. He heads for a couch, a walrus ensconcing himself like a dainty seashell (yet, for a huge man he can move with amazing grace) upon the upholstery.

A few departing words: "For me the act of anything creative is liberation. I feel I'm very lucky to be able to do what I want to do this way." Then, with a mock courtly wave, he adds, "But maybe I deserve it, because it's only once in a while that I'm corrupt."

Wilder Admits He Was Skeptical

Gene Wilder, who stars in the title role in the musical fantasy "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory" almost didn't take the part. "I was skeptical," he admits. "The Dahl script was charming and beautiful but I didn't see myself doing a children's story."

Wilder was talking about the script by British author Roald Dahl, based on his children's book, "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory." In the film, to be colorcast Sunday, Nov. 23, 7 to 9 p.m. on NBC Channel 6-7, Wilder portrays Willy Wonka, the world's most famous confectioner who offers to five children holding lucky candy bars a grand prize, with surprising results.

After talking with the filmmakers, however, Wilder was favorably impressed and decided to take the role. "I could see that the film was going to be made on the highest satirical level for children and adults," Wilder recalls, "and gradually it started to come into focus."

"It became clear to me that Wonka had to be a series of brilliant ideas which would light up like a match. I would have to have imaginative and physical ideas for every scene. It meant day after day of practice on the trampoline. I also worked constantly with a magician learning all sorts of sleight-of-hand tricks."

'Valentino' Airs Sunday

He was the most magnetic personality and the most talked about star of the silent movies. Men around the world sought to emulate him. Women simply swooned. His career lasted only six years and when he died he was $500,000 in debt. He was Rudolph Valentino.

The myth that was Valentino is explored in "The Legend of Valentino," a romantic drama airing on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Nov. 23, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12. However, the film's writer-director, Melville Shavelson, believes that we will never really know the man.

"There is just no way to separate myth from the reality," Shavelson said. "In my research I found four or five different men, all called Rudolph Valentino. Some records showed him to be a loner, others said he was a great lover of night life. He was called a homosexual by some and by others he was thought to be Hollywood's most sought-after and successful lover. I found that the easiest way to write the script was to work from his image and not from reality. There is no reality to be found."

Shavelson and producer Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg hired Franco Nero, a major star in Europe, to play the title role. "I was not so concerned with finding an actor who looked like Valentino," Shavelson indicated, "but I insisted that he be Italian. Valentino never lost his Italian heritage and spoke with a thick accent up to the day he died. I felt that only an Italian could really do justice to the part."

"In many ways Franco Nero and Valentino are very much alike. Both come from small towns in Italy and struggled before they made it big. I think Franco will become a big star here, too."

Since Valentino was only 31 when he died, much has been written about what really killed him. The official report stated that he died of peritonitis resulting from perforated ulcers. Shavelson believes that it was the image that killed Valentino.

"There was no way that he could live up to his image, and he suffered because of it. People wanted him to be things that he couldn't be and he never found a woman with whom he could have a lasting relationship. We will probably never see anyone like him in our lifetime. He will continue to be a myth forever."

Cher's Guest

Cher has the cream of both the comedy and musical crops in Emmy Award-winner Tony Randal and special guest star David Bowie, rock music's cult hero, on "Cher," Sunday, Nov. 23, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

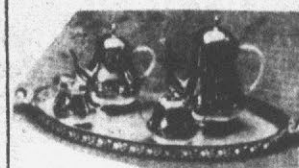

Britain's David Bowie joins Cher for a duet of "Can You Hear Me?" and sings his latest hit, "Fame." Cher and Bowie also perform a concert medley, including "Young Americans," "One Is the Loneliest Number," "Maybe," "Day Tripper" and "Youngblood."

In comedy sketches, Randall, as a bank loan officer, runs into a language barrier when he interviews a young applicant (Cher); and Cher plays a woman whose daily routine seems to be a living commercial.

Vivian Vance Returns To TV

Vivian Vance returns to television situation comedy for the first time in six years on "Rhoda," Monday, Nov. 24, on CBS Channel 9-11.

"When I quit television comedy, I really quit," she says. "I wanted to have a home life with my husband in Connecticut." Miss Vance is married to publishing executive John Dodds who will now be a West Coast editor for a book firm, giving her the chance to go back to her real love.

"Back East, I did a lot of stock and dinner theaters, but now, since we will be living on the West Coast, I can do television comedies again. I'm at home on a television set where I spent many years doing the Lucille Ball shows."

The veteran comedienne and Miss Ball's old sidekick says that when she made her return to television she really came back on top.

"Doing 'Rhoda' was a joyous surprise," she says. "I was tickled to death because when I returned to California, I didn't know what I really wanted to do." Beaming, she added, "When I was called for this guest appearance, I thought with such a hit show, what better way to make a comeback."

Besides being happily married to a wonderful man, Miss Vance says her added bonus is having a husband involved with books.

"I love books and respect writers highly. You can be an excellent actress, but without good material, you can't win."

"I am working on my first book, an autobiography entitled, 'Go Home, Your Eyes Are Too Close Together,'" she reveals. The book was titled in line with advice given her by a Hollywood agent after she left her New York home to pursue her career as an actress.

"He said that I couldn't possibly be photographed, and for years that complex stayed with me."

"Despite my complex and his horrible insult, I stayed with my desire to become an actress, which led to my long run with Lucy," says Miss Vance.

As a part-time lecturer to college dramatic classes, Miss Vance emphasizes to her students that stumbling blocks, such as her incident with the Hollywood agent, can hurt a good actor if he doesn't have determination and confidence in himself.

"For years I've heard from my family and friends, 'Don't make a fool of yourself, Vivian.'" She concludes, with a chuckle, "And, look how rich I got making a fool of myself!"

GUEST STARS— Vivian Vance guest stars as a new neighbor who seems ready to become a new surrogate mother for Rhoda and Brenda, in "Rhoda," Monday, Nov. 24 (8-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

Comedy-Variety Special Airs

"America, You're On," a topical comedy-variety special on which a group of players portraying a cross section of Americans will air their views, will be telecast Monday, Nov. 24, 8 to 9 p.m., on ABC Channels 3, 5, 12.

The recognizable and more or less responsible citizens portrayed will include a factory worker, a civil servant, a salesman, a waitress, a shopkeeper, a farmer, a promoter, a school-teacher, a law student, a career girl, a housewife and a teenager.

Trying to maintain a semblance of control over the zany goings-on will be a man who combines the qualities of host, master of ceremonies and den mother.

One feature will see the cast putting a real or imaginary guest celebrity, played by an actor, on "The Hot Seat," where he will be grilled to a turn.

In another segment, the 12 men and women will take a comedic look at group therapy by participating in a mass section on a giant-sized couch.

A staff of writers, including producers Bernard Rothman and Jack Wohl and Bill Dana will scan a dozen publications (daily papers, weekly news magazines and monthly periodicals) for items that will be grist for their typewriters. The results may emerge as a sketch or a musical number.

Deaths Are Studied

Twelve years ago President John F. Kennedy was murdered in Dallas, Texas. A majority of Americans still question the official accounts of what happened in Dallas in November, 1963. They are not convinced that what the Warren Report told them was the complete and accurate story. They believe that explanations of John Kennedy's death, as well as the later assassinations of Sen. Robert Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and the attempt on the life of Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, are somehow incomplete—and that there may well be some bizarre link between these bloody marks on America's history.

Because of this increased and continuing interest in assassinations, and because of the proliferation of conspiracy and coverup theories, CBS News is devoting four hours to a special four-part CBS Reports Inquiry: "The American Assassins," reported by CBS News Correspondent Dan Rather. On Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 25 and 26, (10 to 11 p.m.) on CBS Channel 3N-9-11, Parts I and II of CBS Reports Inquiry: "The American Assassins—Lee Harvey Oswald and John F. Kennedy" will investigate the event still raising the most nagging doubts in Americans' minds—the assassination of President Kennedy.

The first hour of 'Inquiry' (Tuesday, Nov. 25) will examine the questions: Was Oswald the assassin? Was he the sole assassin? Where did the shots that killed the President come from? Did a single bullet strike both Kennedy and Texas Gov. John Connally? Could someone have fired those shots from the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository with such accuracy and in that short a time?

In connection with this investigation, CBS News has obtained from the Abraham Zapruder family exclusive rights to show the original Zapruder film of the assassination for the first time on network television.

The second hour of 'Inquiry' (Wednesday, Nov. 26, will examine the role of the CIA and the FBI and provide new information about these agencies' relationships to Lee Harvey Oswald.

All of the above are interviewed on CBS REPORTS INQUIRY: "The Assassins," an examination of the facts and theories on the killing of Pres. John F. Kennedy, on Tuesday, Nov. 25 and Wednesday, Nov. 26 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

"Welby" Stories Are Healthy

Robert Young takes it one day at a time.

"I'm not one to drag things out of the past. Today it's Dr. Welby. That's demanding enough and I give it my 100 percent," said America's foremost television doctor when asked to comment on the success his series is enjoying in its seventh year. ("Marcus Welby, M.D." is seen Tuesdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on ABC Chs. 3, 5 & 12.)

"It could be," he continued, "that people may be getting tired and bored of a negative, downbeat look at life. We've been accused of not stressing realism in our stories. I prefer to call them uplifting stories. To do a story for shock value alone—that's easy. I'd prefer to be associated with something that endeavors to encourage rather than discourage. People still kid me about 'Father Knows Best.' 'Too idealistic,' they say, 'no family could ever be like that.' I simply say: 'Of course not, but wouldn't it be nice if such a family existed.'"

Young paused for a moment, "I'm not out to cure the ills of the world nor am I on a crusade to upgrade society," he said. "But I believe people respond to encouragement."

Young confides that he has had a great deal of fun just living day-to-day in his chosen profession since he left his job as a bank teller 48 years ago. "Of course," he says, "there are plans we will try to work on during our hiatus. Contractually, there are some television movie projects on the drawing board in association with my Bobetty Productions (named after Bob and his wife, Betty). I would like that name one day to be associated with a certain type of production. Call them 'inspiration' stories— even though it sounds saccharine—but the fact that they will be taken from true life will refute such labels. There are great human dramas to be told. Walt Disney did a pretty fair job of telling such stories. I'd like to produce stories that I enjoy and hopefully that other people will enjoy as well.

"But for now it's Welby! I don't believe in splitting myself. But whatever comes tomorrow, it will still get Bob Young's 100 percent."

ROYAL GREETING — Robert Shaw (left), as King Henry VIII of England, greets the wife (Wendy Hiller, kneeling) and daughter (Susannah York) of Sir Thomas More, the Lord

Chancellor of England (Paul Scofield), in "A Man for All Seasons," the Academy Award-winning film to be colorcast on Thanksgiving afternoon, Nov. 27 (12:30-3 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

"A Man For All Seasons" Is NBC-TV Special

"A Man For All Seasons," winner of six Academy Awards including Best Picture (1966), will be colorcast as a Thanksgiving Day special Thursday, Nov. 27, 12:30 to 3 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Based on playwright Robert Bolt's London and Broadway stage success, "A Man For All Seasons" stars Paul Scofield, in his Oscar-winning performance, as Lord Chancellor, Sir Thomas More. Also starring are Wendy Hiller, Leo McKern, Robert Shaw, Orson Welles and Susannah York.

Shaw portrays the ruthless King Henry VIII, who is determined to divorce Queen Catherine, because she is unable to bear a male heir to the English throne, and marry Anne Boleyn. But the Pope refuses to sanction the act.

The powerful Cardinal Wolsey is anxious for the divorce, fearing that a dynastic war would break out if there was no legitimate heir.

The only person close to the King who refuses to condone the plan is More, a highly esteemed member of the Council of England. To More, the question of divorce is a matter of conscience and the King repeatedly seeks his approval on the matter.

The two men grow farther and farther apart and in the end, More's life is literally at stake.

Paul Scofield, a distinguished British actor, first studied for the role of More in 1960 when he prepared to star in the stage play by Bolt. Primarily a stage actor, he did not change his characterization for the film, except where technical differences made change a necessity. "I was so new to films," he remarked, "that I enjoyed learning what the differences were. Playing in brief scenes out of sequence and with long gaps in-between was something I had to adjust to.

"I found it fascinating though," he adds, "and I recognize that film is a director's medium. Fred Zinnemann (also an Oscar winner for Best Direction) was so wonderful because he not only told me what he was doing, but why. He never left me in the dark which is something to be thankful for.

"More was a happy family man — a lawyer busy with his work," Scofield explained. "He was not ascetic and was even convivial. Yet he was trapped by his friend, the King, in a moral dilemma from which there was no escape."

The Serious Side Of Milton Berle

One of television's pioneers will be portraying a man who was in the forefront of the development of the movie industry when Milton Berle stars as Jess Lasky in "The Legend Of Valentino," a romantic drama airing on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Nov. 23, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12. Today, Lasky is perhaps the least known of the great screen moguls, but he ranks among names such as DeMille, Goldwyn and Zukor as one of the founders of the film industry.

"I don't know why people have forgotten him," Berle said. "In the 1920's he was the number one man in Hollywood. He created more stars than just about anyone. The only real reminder that is left is a street which is named after him in Beverly Hills."

Lasky was one of the top producers in Hollywood when he signed on a young actor named Rudolph Valentino. They fought constantly, but under Lasky, Valentino made some of his most famous films.

"I was just a kid back in those days, but I remember Lasky and I remember Valentino," Berle said. "Just about every girl I knew at the time wanted to meet him or wanted me to be like him. I was 18 when he died and I recall that everything seemed to stop on that day. It was as if a great international figure had passed away."

Dramatic acting is not anything new for Berle. He has been at it on and off for years and won an Emmy nomination for his performance in "Doyle Against the House" in 1961.

Brynner In Tense Drama

Yul Brynner and Henry Fonda co-star in "Night Flight From Moscow," a tense drama set in the aftermath of a Soviet Secret agent's defection, to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Nov. 29, 9 to 11 p.m., on Ch. 6-7.

Brynner stars as Colonel Vlassov, a senior official of the Soviet KGB who volunteers a list of all the Kremlin's double agents operating in all countries of Western Europe, except England.

RELAXES— Dick Gautier, who stars as Robin Hood in the new Mel Brooks comedy series, "When Things Were Rotten," on ABC-TV, is seen here relaxing with family among the cherished objects d'art which furnish his North Hollywood home. Series can be seen on Wednesdays from 8 to 8:30 p.m.

Dick Gautier Has An Abundantly Rich Life

Away from the set of "When Things Were Rotten," series star Dick Gautier doffs his Robin Hood persona and relaxes in his North Hollywood home surrounded by his family and the objects d'art he creates to add fulfillment to an abundantly rich life. Dick's new comedy series, created by Mel Brooks, is seen Wednesdays, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on Channel 3-5.

An artist who creates in multiple media, Dick's oil paintings of Charles Chaplin, Buster Keaton, Ed Wynn, and W.C. Fields reflect an admiration akin to idolatry of the great comedians. The pictures occupy a prominent place in the living room.

Dick, who is married to actress Barbara Stuart, shares his interest in art with his attractive wife, who admits to being awed by the virtuosity of her talented husband. "Dick," she says, "can do everything - like paint, act, write scripts, compose music, rattle off stories in four languages, and play the piano. It's enough to give a wife a lifelong inferiority complex."

Randy, the actor's 16-year-old son by a former marriage, helps his dad in their home workshop, where their most recent joint project was a scaled-down home complete with hand-crafted people, furniture, a piano and even a commode.

Rug, the family poodle, is one of his master's most demonstrative admirers and goes absolutely ape (or dog) over the Z-type trains and miniature tracks designed by Dick to fit into a recessed coffee table in the den. A glass top protects the tableau from dust and the poodle.

Dick was born into show business. His father was affiliated with MGM and his mother a studio wardrobe mistress. By the time he was seven, Dick was already writing poetry and drawing. In Hamilton High he was a member of the drama club whose high jinks earned him a suspension from school. Undaunted, he became a comic in a San Diego nightclub and branched out as a singer with local bands. Next, he joined the Navy and spent four years in special services performing, booking, directing and writing shows for the boys in blue. Following his discharge, he was booked into the famed 'Hungry i' and took off from there to the top of the ladder. He's remained aloft ever since.

MAE'S APPEARANCE

In all her years in the entertainment industry, the only appearance by Mae West was on an Oscar telecast in 1958. She appeared with Rock Hudson in a duet.

Roy Clark

Joins Orlando

Country music favorite Roy Clark and comedienne Ruth Buzzi join Tony Orlando to show what happened when the Old West got its first woman sheriff, as guest stars on "Tony Orlando and Dawn," Wednesday, Nov. 26, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

In a comedy highlight, Miss Buzzi plays the sheriff, Clark portrays a corrupt land baron, and Orlando is a lighthearted Puerto Rican cowboy, El Dorado, who comes to the sheriff's aid, only to be sidetracked in unusual fashion by that modern device, the game show.

Clark sings "Heart to Heart" and then joins Orlando in "Thank God I'm a Country Boy."

Disney Mystery

Stolen jewels, a young man's reputation and a tension-filled chase are all elements in Walt Disney Production's first suspense-mystery, "The Moon Spinners," starring Hayley Mills and Peter McEnery, to be colorcast along with a nature short, "Prowlers of The Everglades," on a special "NBC All-Disney Night at the Movies" Wednesday, Nov. 26, 8 to 10 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

Oscar winner Mills (Best Juvenile Performance, "Pollyanna," 1960) stars as Nikky Ferris, a young lady who travels with her aunt (Joan Greenwood) to Crete to record provincial folk tunes. Nikky meets Mike (Peter McEnery), a young Englishman who she feels will make an ideal exploring partner.

RIVER BOAT PERFORMERS — Kathryn Grayson and Howard Keel portray performers on a Mississippi river boat in "Show Boat," a film based on the musical by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein, to be colorcast on "CBS Late Movie" Thursday, Nov. 27 at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 3N-9-11.

"Show-Boat" Returns To TV

Ava Gardner, Howard Keel and Kathryn Grayson star in "Show Boat," a musical drama about members of a Mississippi river boat show, on the "CBS Late Movie," Thursday, Nov. 27, at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 3N-9-11. Magnolia Hawks (Miss Grayson), brought up on the Mississippi show boat owned by her father, Captain Andy Hawks (Brown), and her stern mother Parthy (Miss Moorehead), loses her best friend when Julie LaVerne (Miss Gardner) is forced from the troupe because it is discovered that she is part black and married to Steve Baker (Robert Sterling), who is white. Following an unsuccessful marriage with gambler Gaylord Ravenel (Keel), Magnolia joins a music hall show and again meets Julie, now a cynical alcoholic. Each woman soon finds herself at a turning point in life.

Social Security System Examined

"What we call Social Security seemed like a good idea during the depression. And today, almost everyone agrees that it is better than nothing. But what we have now is a system in deep financial trouble."

Speaking is Robert Rogers, producer of the NBC News special, "Social Security-How Secure?," to be presented Thursday, Nov. 27, 10 to 11 p.m., on Ch. 6-7. The program will examine America's vast and not widely understood Social Security system by studying its philosophy, its purpose, its fairness and financial soundness, and the degree of security it offers to today's and future recipients. NBC News correspondent Ford Rowan reports.

Rogers continues: "It's a system that pays out 67 billion dollars a year in benefits, yet provides many recipients with nothing even close to real security."

Until recently, most Americans assumed that Social Security was not only necessary but adequate, and fair, and financially sound. This program will explore the reasons why many are now having second thoughts about the system."

The program will show there is no guarantee that all people receive a full return on their investment. It will explore the philosophy of a system which transfers income from those working to those not working.

Rogers said: "The program points out that Social Security is like a contract between generations in which younger people continually promise higher benefits to themselves which will have to be paid for by their children, and their children, and their children. And the bill is getting bigger every year."

NBC News found one of the most controversial aspects of the system to be the paradox that not everyone has to pay the tax.

Pike's Peeks

By CHARLIE PIKE
TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD—There's growing speculation that this is the last season of "Kojak." Telly Savalas has purchased a plush home outside of London and reportedly has not renewed the lease on his Bel-Air home, leading to speculation that he'll move abroad at the end of this season's production.

Steve Forrest of "S.W.A.T." suffered a minor head injury when he was struck by a pellet from a special effects rifle after the weapon accidentally discharged on the set of the show at 20th Century-Fox Studios.

Robert Ulrich of that show has tied the marital knot with his long-time girl friend, Heather. It's the second marriage for both.

Though its air-date is not until February 26th, there's a star-studded cast in the "Charles Lindbergh Kidnapping" film now being produced. The director is Buzz Kulik, whose most recent showcase of talent was "Babe." He also directed "Brian's Song," so the Lindbergh movie promises to be something very special. Buzz is a highly respected man behind the scenes who not only admits to being a sensitive person himself, but confides he also cries when watching such films as those mentioned.

The work schedule on George Kennedy's "The Blue Knight" has been gruelling. On two consecutive days, the cast and crew reported for work around noon and quit at 4 a.m.!

An Unusual Couple

In the world of music, where singers are often heard today and gone tomorrow, Steve Lawrence and his wife Eydie Gorme are unusual. They arrived on the singing scene a number of years ago, rose to the top of their profession — and have stayed there.

The two bring their singing skills along with the talents of their guest star Gene Kelly to the television audience in the hour-long special "Steve and Eydie: 'Our Love Is Here to Stay,'" airing Thanksgiving, Thursday, Nov. 27, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 11.

In addition to natural talent, Lawrence and Miss Gorme have veteran track records from the earlier days of television when they both appeared on the "Tonight Show"—live, taking their lessons and learning their trade in front of millions of viewers.

"There is no school that equals those early days for training," Lawrence says. "But we keep building on a lifetime of learning. That has never stopped for us."

"Steve is only just now reaching his peak as a singer," Miss Gorme says, just out of her husband's earshot. "Frankly, he has never sounded better than he does now."

Lawrence returns the compliment, remarking that "Eydie is plain and simple one of the great lyric singers. She is trained, and she sings with emotions that are tuned into what she is saying."

Despite a demanding schedule of nightclub engagements that has seen the couple criss-crossing the nation, the couple has managed to maintain a home, children and a decided appearance of being normal.

All the family business is conducted from the couple's home. Sometimes it seems that hairdressers and agents rule the roost.

WILL DIRECT ATTACK — Texas quarterback, Marty Akins will direct the vaunted wishbone attack against rival Texas A. and M. on NCAA Football, Friday, Nov. 28, at 2:30 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Akins Spearheads The Longhorns

Most college teams would welcome an 8 and 4 record, especially in the tough South-west Conference. But in 1974, the University of Texas failed to represent the conference in the Cotton Bowl for the first time in seven years, and Texas fans expect near-perfection from their Longhorns. This season, they must battle the tough Texas A & M Aggies for the highly coveted Cotton Bowl berth on Friday, Nov. 28, at 2:30 p.m. on ABC.

The Longhorns are led by another of Darrell Royal's super wishbone quarterbacks; senior Marty Akins. Marty is an extremely intelligent signal caller who makes no bones about someday wanting to be President of the United States. He stands out at six feet, 200 pounds, and ripped for 659 yards and ten touchdowns in 1974, finishing the season as the second leading rusher on a team that features great runners. Earl Campbell is a big, strong fullback who returned after a super freshman season in which he led the team in rushing with 928 yards, and he will be joined by Gralyn Wyatt and Raymond Clayborn, both extremely capable.

They will face a veteran Texas A & M team made up of veteran collegians, as witnessed by the fact that there are only two non-seniors starting offensively. One is quarterback David Walker, who is only a junior. The Aggies also feature a powerful runner in Bubba Bean, who gained over 900 yards, and Skip Walker, who collected ten touchdowns.

As usual, this game will feature high-pitched emotion on the hot Aggie turf, but the game will have more than usual meaning because if till determine who will arrive at the famous Dallas Stadium for the annual New Year's Day classic.

Walt Disney Featurette

He wears striped pajamas, bounces a lot and tends to speak in initials.

His name is Tigger, which he spells "Ti-I-double guh-errr," and he is the striped star of Walt Disney's "Winnie the Pooh and Tigger Too," a new animated featurette based on A. A. Milne's beloved children's classics. The half-hour special airs for the first time on television, Friday evening, Nov. 28, on NBC Ch. 6-7.

Tigger began, of course, as one of the lovable characters who live in the Hundred Acre Wood with huggable Edward Bear. He was introduced to the movie going public in "Winnie the Pooh and the Blustery Day," the second featurette created at the Disney Studio and released in 1968. Though Tigger only had a small part, he zoomed to stardom and quickly joined the ranks of favorite Walt Disney animated characters.

With the unique vocal talents of Paul Winchell, Tigger uses a manner of speech which endears him to audiences. In repeated rhyme, he describes himself as "a Bouncy, trouncy, flouncy, pouncy wonderful thing," and says he has "jumpy, bumpy, clumpy, thumpy fun, fun, fun, fun, fun." In his most tactful tones, he opines on Pooh's beloved "hunny" with a simple "yeach!" One of his favorite expressions is "T-T-F-N!" which, he explains, stands for "Ta-Ta For Now!"

With beady eyes and prognathous jawline, Tigger explains the limits to his capabilities in the third person: "Tiggers do not climb trees."

In "Winnie the Pooh and Tigger Too," Pooh Bear, Piglet, Christopher Robin, Kanga, Little Roo and Rabbit try vainly to take the bump out of trigger's bounce.

You see, the inhabitants of the Hundred Acre Wood have a problem. Ebullient Tigger has been getting on everyone's nerves lately with all his bouncing, jouncing and flouncing.

Rabbit, thoroughly irritated, calls a protest meeting. The subject: how to get the bounce out of Tigger. Pooh suggests a splendid "cure": they will take Tigger on an 'Explore' and lost him temporarily in the Hundred Acre Wood. By the time they all find him the next morning, their striped friend will be so happy to see them that he will be a humble Tigger and won't bounce on anyone again.

"Country Music Hit Parade"

Roy Clark, recipient of The Country Music Association's 1973 Entertainer of the Year Award, will host the "Country Music Hit Parade" special to be broadcast Friday, Nov. 28, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 3N. The production, taped before a live audience at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn., is a proposed prototype for a future series. Highlighting the special will be the presentation of three of the 20 top country music recordings charted during the week of the broadcast. Each is to be performed by the actual recording artist. Further, a segment will be devoted to the most promising single recording soon to be released.

Also, Clark, who has steadily been making - and breaking - records, will offer a medley of his biggest hit recordings.

A special feature will comprise 'monster' hit songs drawn from the history of country music. Presented in the form of a production number, the selections are to be performed by major country artists:

MASCOT IS A GOAT— A goat is not always a goat - as in the case of "Billy," the Navy Goat. He is a mascot, a tradition - and a symbol of the Naval Academy's Football team. At one time Billy was kidnapped by West Points Cadets - triggering an intensive search by the midshipmen and officers at Annapolis 8 since then he is carefully guarded. Billy will be in Philadelphia Saturday, Nov. 29 - "Goating" his team to victory against their arch rival Army.

A Goating Tradition

The United States Naval and Military Academies will meet for the 76th time in college football's most colorful classic. In order to achieve clear insight into the tradition and rivalry found in this game, one need not look too far.

Navy's mascot, Bill XXIV represents more than 75 years of Navy tradition and determination to BEAT ARMY.

Just when the Academy first enlisted the goat seems to be uncertain, but the first official record of the tars' mascot was in 1893 - just in time for the heated Army - Navy game. The first Billy's name was El Cid (the chief) who, along with his team, defeated the West Pointers 6 to 4.

During that same year an athletic schism between the two institutions developed and play was not resumed until 1900. El Cid appeared again that year in Philadelphia, and at the opposite end of the field was his rival; a mule adorned in Army colors. This, the last year for El Cid, was also a victorious one for the midshipmen.

There was a rapid turnover of several goats over the next few years with the most memorable one rising to prominence in 1912. His name was "Three - to - Nothing Jack Dalton." This goat did not achieve his fame from his own actions, but because of the team's star kicker - Jack Dalton - who kicked the winning field goals in the Army - Navy games for two consecutive years (1910-11). "Three - to - Nothing Jack Dalton" died suddenly while he was being measured for a new Blue and Gold blanket. Elaborate plans were made for his funeral, but it was decided instead to have his skin mounted. He can be seen today in the foyer of the Academy fieldhouse mounted in a glass case, reared on his hind legs in a fighting pose.

Honor For Joe

Pero Has A Secret Project

A clever boy named Pero, the son of a farmer, organizes his school friends to work on a secret project, restoring an abandoned water mill to working order and presenting it to their parents, in "Pero and His Companions," a film from Yugoslavia that will have its American television premiere on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, Nov. 29, 1 to 2 p.m.

For many years, the mill has had a broken wheel, which has not been fixed because of a disagreement among the farmers who used it. The boys spend every spare minute repairing it, until a boy named Savage decides to replace Pero as the leader. This internal dissension threatens to stop the project, but Pero will not allow this to happen. Eventually, Savage and his friends leave the group.

Finally, the boys reveal the working water mill to their delighted parents. The adults, however, soon forget the boys and are caught up in their own celebration.

"Pero and His Companions" was written and directed by Vladimir Tadej for Croatia -

Film. Pero is played by Mladen Vasari.

'Action Jackson' Coming Aboard

It appears that Navy's football team has wound up that "Action Jackson" fellow once again and perhaps just in time as the Midshipmen come face to face with a host of highly-regarded opponents.

For Bob Jackson, a senior

MILITARY BATTLE — Navy Runner Bob Jackson hurls for yardage, much as he hopes to do against traditional service opponent Army in the annual military battle from Philadelphia on Saturday, Nov. 29 at 12:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

from Lindenwood, N. J., this is the final go-around as a collegiate football player and he's making the best of it, although some of his abilities may not be noticeable to the average fan.

His team will be highlighted against the Army from West Point in what is probably the most celebrated and traditional rivalries in all of college football. The game from Philadelphia, Pa., will be the NCAA College Football Game of the week on Saturday, Nov. 29, at 12:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Jackson's abilities are apparent to Navy coach George Welsh. "I've probably repeated myself on this a few times, but Bob is doing so much for us at the moment," Welsh points out. "The running and pass catching are easy to see but his blocking has been just outstanding."

"I also think he's running better this year," Welsh notes. "This is because he's been healthy for the most part and because he's working harder in practice. I think it's paying off for him."

In Navy's 10-6 win over Syracuse, it was Jackson who provided the Mids with their best offensive spark. He bolted his way to 109 yards and Navy's lone touchdown on 23 carries.

"That was some of the hardest running I've ever seen by a fullback," said Welsh, an assistant for 10 years at Penn State before coming to Navy. "His overall performance this fall makes me more glad than ever I decided to keep him at fullback instead of shifting him to wingback as we did in the spring."

Jackson, a 6-4, 216-pound, is glad he's still a fullback too. "You lose a little in your timing when you have to learn a new position," he says. "Having been a fullback now for three years, I'm able to pick up more quickly the new things we try."

Navy's offense for the most part has been a pleasant surprise this fall, although it still is inconsistent on occasion. Jackson attributes some of his good moments to the "fact we played against our defense all during preseason. And they're proving how good they are by their national ranking. That really helped us, even though we may not have looked good against them."

Most football players will tell you that blocking isn't much fun unless you can see some results. "I see the results of my blocking in Gerry Goodwin's statistics," says Jackson. "My ego is satisfied when I know my blocks are allowing our tailbacks to go."

Considering the fact that the Bicentennial year is fast approaching, the classic meeting between the two major service schools becomes an even more colorful spectacular event.

West Begins Second Season

Jerry West, one of basketball's greatest scorers and all-around players, has been signed for his second season as an analyst for National Basketball Association broadcasts on CBS-TV during the 1975-76 season.

The other broadcasters are Brent Musburger and Don Criqui, play-by-play commentators; Mendy Rudolph, analyst; and Sonny Hill, basketball editor and analyst.

West will again team with Criqui on dates when games will be broadcast regionally. Musburger will work with Rudolph after the conclusion of the football season. Hill will work on the pre-game programs and special feature assignments.

The 37-year-old West spent 14 years in the NBA. During that time, he scored 25,192 points, becoming pro basketball's third leading all-time scorer. He appeared in 12 NBA All-star games. He is the leader in all-time playoff scoring, assists, field goals and free throws, in 12 years of playoff action.

Villapiano Is A Raider 'On The Ball'

For the last twelve years, the Oakland Raiders of the National Football League have had the best record in all of pro football. When one thinks of the heroes of that era, they remember Blanda, Stabler, Davidson, Biletnikoff, Otto, and others.

The list probably would not include Phil Villapiano, but the four-year veteran has made an indelible name for himself with the Raider fans and players. Oakland faces the Washington Redskins on Sunday, Nov. 23, at 4 p.m. on NBC—the second half of a football doubleheader.

Since he broke into the league, Phil has become very noticeable, always around the ball, making key tackles. His hard work has been rewarded, as he has been named to the Pro Bowl for the second straight year. He's also durable, having started in 56 straight games for the Raiders.

Villapiano is also noted for making the super-big play. In 1972, he returned an interception 82 yards against the Los Angeles Rams, the second longest interception return in Oakland history. The Bowling Green graduate recovered two fumbles at Atlanta in 1971, and recovered a fumble against Dallas and rambled 27 yards. He also kidnapped three fumbles during the 1973 season, including a key goal line theft against Houston which he returned 52 yards.

As a sensational rookie, he was named to every Rookie All-Pro team, was runnerup of Associated Press Defensive Rookie of the Year, and one of five finalists for AFC Rookie of the Year.

Superskates II Featured On CBS

Foreign skating champions and Olympic medalists will jump, double spin, perform daring acrobatics and dance when Superskates II, a sparkling color-splashed dramatic production on ice, is presented on "CBS Sports Spectacular," Saturday, Nov. 29, 4:30 to 6 p.m.

Pat Summerall, host of "CBS Sports Spectacular," Saturday, Nov. 29, 4

Pat Summerall, host of "CBS Sports Spectacular," Gordon McKellan, former Olympic gold medalist and 1974-75 National Figure Skating Champion, and Carol Heiss, also a gold medalist, will be the commentators for the CBS-TV Sports presentation from Madison Square Garden in New York City. McKellan will also perform.

"This second annual benefit extravaganza for the United State Olympic Fund is the only ice show in America where the entire cast is studded with champions all performing together in one show for the first time," Edwin H. Mosler, Jr., National Olympic fund-raising chairman, said.

Artistic director Harry Woolever, of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," and "The Sound of Music" fame, will coordinate all of the artistic numbers for the champion skaters, plus the special group and ensemble acts which will round out the program.

Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., 19-year-old Free Style skating champion and current National Women's champion; John Curry, British champion from Birmingham, England, who won the Grand Prix de St. Gervais, and a medalist in the 1975 World Championships; Colleen O'Connor and Jim Millins of Rockford, Ill., 1975 World Medallists and National Dance Champions; Dr. Tenley Albright, 1965 Olympis gold medalist, and five times world champion figure skater (now a surgeon in Brookline, Mass.); Terry Kubicka, 19-year-old second-place U.S. Senior Men's winner, who won a berth on the world team; and Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner of Los Angeles, Calif., 1975 U.S. National Pairs silver medalists, and the only Americans invited to compete in Moscow Skating competition last year.

Festival

Jim Nabors and Ruth Buzzi, who star as the madcap androids, Fi and Fum, on the children's program, "The Lost Saucer," will host the "ABC Thanksgiving Funshine Festival," a special lineup of children's programs airing Thursday, Nov. 27, 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Also featuring cast members of "The Lost Saucer," Alice Playten and Jerrod Johnson, and a new character, Mr. Turkey, the "ABC Thanksgiving Funshine Festival" will include nine of the network's most popular animated and live-action children programs.

Original musical and comedic wraparounds and bridges have been produced for the five-hour children's extravaganza by Sid and Marty Krofft and will be performed by "The Lost Saucer" cast and Mr. Turkey as they introduce each of the programs to be included in the special presentation.

The Saturday and Sunday morning programs which will be featured in the "ABC Thanksgiving Funshine Festival" are "Hong Kong Phooey," "Tom & Jerry - Grape Ape Show," "The Lost Saucer," "The New Adventures of Gilligan," "Groovie Goolies," "Uncle Crook's Block," "The Oddball Couple," "These Are the Days," and "Speedy Buggy."

Can UCLA Keep Tradition?

Tradition is something that reigns high in college sports spurring teams that can be equal only in ability to others to victory. Such may very well be the case for the UCLA Bruins, whose record over the past eleven years has to be considered as the greatest record in collegiate sports history. The historically superb Bruins meet the equally strong Indiana Hoosiers at the St. Louis Arena in Missouri on the premiere contest on NCAA Basketball, to be broadcast Saturday, Nov. 29, at 11:30 p.m. on NBC-TV.

For beginners, the Bruins have won ten out of the last twelve NCAA basketball championships, a fact almost unbelievable itself considering the long road required to reach the top spot. Add to that the overall record of retired head coach John Wooden, the past "Wizard of Westwood," and you understand why the streak must be thought of as simply the best. Wooden won 857 games, while losing 200, and grabbed over 600 wins while losing less than 150 games at UCLA.

COLUMBIA RECORD & TAPE CLUB NOW INVITES YOU TO TAKE

Any 11 records or tapes - $1.86

if you join now and agree to buy 8 more selections (at regular Club prices) during the coming 3 years

Right now, you can take one day in your future and make sure it will be one of the most exciting days you've ever had.

A day that won't be just another day, with the same things to do, to talk about, to listen to.

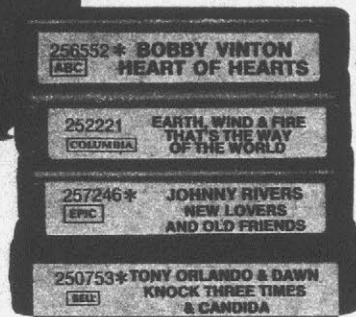

A day when you won't care what the weather is like. When you'll feel good no matter what.

Because it will be the day when the postman brings you music.

Not one album. Or two. Or even three. But eleven.

Not just any music. But the eleven records or tapes you want most.

All for just $1.86. By joining the Columbia Record & Tape Club now, as explained on the following pages.

HOW THE CLUB OPERATES

Simply mail this application, together with your check or money order for $1.86 as payment for your first 11 selections.

Every four weeks (13 times a year) you'll receive the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest . . . plus hundreds of alternates from every field of music. In addition, up to six times a year you may receive offers of Special Selections, usually at a discount off regular prices.

If you wish to receive the Selection of the Month or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped to you automatically. If you prefer an alternate selection, or none at all, just fill in the response card always provided and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make your decision. If you ever receive any Selection without having had at least 10 days in which to decide, you may return it at our expense, for full credit.

Your own charge account will be opened . . . the selections you order will be mailed and billed at regular Club prices, which currently are: 8-track tapes and cassettes, $6.98 or $7.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $5.98 or $6.98 — plus shipping and handling. (Multiple unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.)

After completing your enrollment agreement (by buying 8 selections within 3 years), you may cancel membership at any time. If you decide to continue, you'll be eligible for our generous money-saving bonus plan. Act now.

FOR PAUL "BEAR" BRYANT,
football coach, University of Alabama
College football is the only major sport that doesn't end the season with an undisputed national champion. Would you be in favor of a playoff system, even if it hurt the bowl games?—Gary Ault, Louisville, Ohio

● Not if it hurt the bowl games. The bowls have been mighty good to college football and I would be against any type of program that hurt them. But I would like to see a playoff system if it could be worked out with the academic people and if it didn't hurt the bowl structure. The N.C.A.A. has a special committee studying playoffs now, and we should get a report from them shortly.

FOR LEONARD NIMOY

What did you do to make your ears seem pointed in "Star Trek"?—J.T., Asbury Park, N.J.

● I'd like to shock you and say I sent them out to be sharpened, but I was raised to be honest and truthful. My ears are exactly the same as yours. And probably not as pretty. Whatever you saw was manufactured by the make-up man.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

What makes people burst into song in the shower?—N.S., Green Bay, Wis.

● The need we all have to perform and command attention. Alone, in the bathroom, we're closed off from the rest of the world. We're alone and have our own permission to do anything we might be too embarrassed to do where there's an audience. And in the shower, voices bounce back from the tiles, magnified, rich and resonant. We're doing in private what we want to do in public—not so much the singing as being in the spotlight.

FOR NANCY WALKER, star of "Rhoda"

What does your husband do? Is he in show business?—E.L., Fort Worth, Texas

● David (Craig) is a musical theater coach. That means he has a school where he instructs actors and actresses on how to handle singing and dancing roles. He's taught Rock Hudson, Carol Burnett, Jean Simmons, Roddy McDowall and Anthony Perkins, among others. In fact, that's how we met—26 years ago. I was his student, and became his wife a year later.

FOR ISAAC HAYES, composer-singer

What are the chains you wear supposed to symbolize?—S.A., Albany, N.Y.

● Nothing. I wear them because I want to be different. They're not intended as a subtle reminder of black slavery or chain gangs. We don't look on chains as we did 100 years ago—anyone who does that is living in the past. Nor do my chains have any sexual implication. I like them because they're comfortable, but I must admit I do have a tendency for way-out clothes. I guess it all goes back to my ghetto days when I hardly had any clothes at all.

FOR DR. BENJAMIN SPOCK

What qualities in a physician do you regard as the most important?—Gyula Hoffmann, Waterbury, Conn.

● I want my physician to be thoughtful, understanding, humble about the limits of his knowledge and power, up-to-date, honest with himself and me. But this last doesn't mean that if I have a fatal disease and don't want to recognize it, he should just confront me with it—that wouldn't be understanding.

FOR LORETTA SWIT, star of "M*A*S*H"

What did you do with your first big paycheck?—L.D., Huntington, W. Va.

● The first thing I did was tape it to the wall where I spent a whole week gazing at it lovingly. The next thing I did was to use it for a down payment on a house, which was the best and wisest move I ever made.

FOR ROSEY GRIER of TV's "Movin' On"

We all know your face, but we don't know that much about you. Can you fill in some details?—I.E. Garrick, Forest Hills, N.Y.

● My real name is Roosevelt Grier. I was nicknamed "Rosey" because I am like a peaceful and beautiful flower—with thorns. An audience usually expects to see a gorilla appear when I'm introduced. I was eight pounds when I was born and I've been growing ever since. I played professional football at a weight of 287 pounds and am on a lifetime diet. Enough?

FOR REPRESENTATIVE TOM HARKIN (D-Iowa)

I've heard when Congress recesses, you go back to Iowa and work at various jobs. True?—Mrs. L. Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● Yep. This year, I've spent two days working on farms; one day as a nurse's aide; a day in a furnace factory; a very cold day delivering mail; a very hot day laying railroad tracks; a day on a locomotive. Last year, I spent a full day on 27 different jobs, including one very long day as a "housewife," cooking and caring for children. I've never been paid, but I did get a 50-cent tip once, waiting on tables in Bayard, Iowa.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I remember once reading that Dionne Warwick had a feud with Brigitte Bardot. What was it about?—R.A., Canton, Ohio

● In 1966, when Dionne was appearing at Paris's Olympia Theater, Brigitte Bardot went backstage to visit her—and Brigitte wanted to know if Dionne was going out with a "certain" Frenchman. Dionne replied she knew a lot of Frenchmen. "I mean my Frenchman," answered Brigitte, somewhat heatedly. "If you mean Sacha Distel," Dionne said, "you're right and wrong. Right because he's the one; wrong because right now he's my Frenchman—not yours." A year later Dionne married drummer-actor Bill Elliott, and they have two sons. However, insiders fear they are on the road to divorce.

The Total Woman:

Who She Is— And What They're Saying About Her

By Robin Thrush
FAMILY WEEKLY Associate Editor

MY MARRIAGE PHILOSOPHY

By Marabel Morgan

I believe it is the wife's attitude that sets the tone of marriage and the home. That's why I urge women to follow certain principles that will help them to become "total women" and will make their marriage exciting and fulfilling. . . . First I recommend a plan of organization. Only when she is totally organized does a wife have a zest and purpose for life. It doesn't require more money to make life fun, it only requires a little imagination and a happy attitude. . . . A Total Woman knows who she is and where she's going. She knows her husband needs excitement and high adventure at his own address. Loving her husband is no threat to her—she gives with no thought of what she'll get in return. A Total Woman knows how to revive romance, re-establish communication, break down barriers, keep her children out of the psychiatrist's office and turn the fizzle into sizzle.

How are thousands of women gaining fulfillment these days? Not by leaving home to go to work, but by devoting themselves to their husband's happiness. This may not sound like a new phenomenon, but in this day of "liberation," it's causing quite a rash of controversy. A book titled "The Total Woman," written by a Miami housewife, Marabel Morgan, has sold over half a million copies in hardback and will soon be released in paperback (Pocket Books, $1.95). A corresponding marriage-enrichment course is being offered in more than 20 states. (Recent graduates include singer Anita Bryant, Mrs. Joe Frazier and many wives of football players.) Will the Total Woman save flagging marriages, or is it a program of submission that can actually set women back? FAMILY WEEKLY asked Marabel Morgan to condense her marriage philosophy for us. Then we asked the famous people on these pages to react. And so they did!

godsend. In many ways the kind of subordination Mrs. Morgan is proposing is wonderful and enriching. I wish the day had never come when I wanted to be equal to my husband, when I wanted him to accept me as his intellectual partner. Ignorance was my bliss.

But I do believe that women must learn to overcome all the stereotyped tales: that they can't function without a man; that only men are allowed to be strong and aggressive. Be a Total Woman in that you are understanding and caring, but don't seek your husband's approval on everything before you make decisions. If you build your life around a man, your identity may walk out on you if your marriage falls apart—and who can guarantee that it won't?

LESLIE UGGAMS

Singer Leslie Uggams is married to Grahame Pratt and lives in the Hollywood Hills with daughter Danielle.

● As Mrs. Morgan indicates, a Total Woman who knows who she is, and where she's going can add happiness and joy to a home. But so can a Total Man! Grahame and I know how important we are to each other—that's the key to a successful marriage. When you really know how much you contribute to each other's happiness and realize that nothing is as wonderful or satisfying as a marital relationship, then you can make the marriage work. It is admitting the need and facing the responsibility that matter most:

POLLY BERGEN

Ms. Bergen is president of the Polly Bergen Co., a subsidiary of Fabergé, and author of "Polly's Principles" (Bantam, $1.95). She lives in Manhattan.

● I was a happily married woman for 20 years, or at least I thought so. I was heartbroken when I got divorced recently.

For most women, particularly suburban ones, I think the Total Woman is a

MAUREEN ("MO") DEAN

Maureen ("Mo") Dean, wife of John Dean, Nixon's former counsel, is author of "Mo": A Woman's View of Watergate" (Simon and Schuster, $8.95).

● All I can say is that John is going to tape Marabel Morgan's marriage-philosophy statement to the bathroom mirror for me to read until I get it down pat!

ART BUCHWALD

A humorist and author, Mr. Buchwald lives with his wife, Ann, and their children in Washington, D.C. His latest book is "Irving's Delight: the Story of a Cat" (McKay, $5.95).

● I don't agree that "total women" are bound to be happier than women's libbers. Who's happily married? Marriage is like the stock market—you can't predict anything in advance. I know I should pay more attention and give more consideration to my wife, but I don't. I'm grateful that she works now. I travel a great deal, which is hard on any marriage. Now that she doesn't have all that time on her hands, she doesn't get much chance to feel disappointed or mad at me. That's a relief!

Women's Lib has worked in a way. Most men are taking care to treat women with respect. But there have to be alternatives to any system. Let's face it—the Total Woman philosophy is great for those women who like playing the subservient role and dressing up in wicked nightgowns. The Total Woman is a security for them.

HARRIET VAN HORNE

Ms. Van Horne, a syndicated columnist, lives in Manhattan.

● The Total Woman concept will make its greatest appeal to insecure women who worry about their husband's roving eye and to male chauvinists who haven't the perception or the self-esteem to appreciate a woman as a person. A girl-wife who is primarily a lascivious toy is a fine fantasy for the immature, but Real Life, as we all know, is best when it deals with plain truths.

HELEN THOMAS

Ms. Thomas is chief of UPI's White House bureau and is married to Douglas B. Cornell, a retired newspaperman. She is the author of the brand-new book, "Dateline: White House" (Macmillan, $10.95).

● I've had it a lot easier than most women—I didn't get married until I was 51, and then I had the good sense to marry a man who understood that my job as a reporter often took 24 hours a day. I never have concerned myself with whether it's preferable to be a Liberated Woman or a Total Woman because I've never had to. My marriage operates on a basis of mutual trust and respect. Douglas and I sustain each other's interest and we support each other's intellectual pursuits. That trust has allowed our marriage a great deal of freedom, which is the most important ingredient for any relationship.

I agree with both women's factions because I believe that women can play a variety of roles. I am confident that I could have been a successful career woman if I had married young, too. As long as women continue to use whatever abilities they possess and exhibit a degree of excellence in that function, what difference does it make what that function is?

MORT SAHL

Humorist Mort Sahl and his wife, China, an ex-dancer and Playboy Bunny, live in Los Angeles. Mr. Sahl is working on his autobiography.

● While some of what Marabel Morgan is preaching is a bit dangerous—all this pampering of men at the expense of women's freedom, her Hollywood-inspired ideas that sex is everything—I think she's a highly intuitive lady. She realizes that femininity is the key to marital happiness, and that women generally understand relationships better, so they sometimes have to work harder at the relationship. These are inherent truths, so why not face them and try to follow them?

It doesn't take a lot to make me happy. As long as I can read The New York Times in bed at the crack of dawn every morning and chase down political eyesores that grab my interest, I'm a happy man. I wouldn't want China to go to great lengths to please me, arouse me or lavish me with praise. She doesn't have to. She's smart enough to realize that pleasing men is easy. If a woman is as feminine as she can be and can understand her husband's idiosyncrasies, he'll give her the world and want her to pursue her interests.

The great thing about the Total Woman Movement is that it's an idea whose time has come. We were getting to the point where the line between the sexes was getting faint—and that makes heterosexual appreciation pretty difficult!

JULIE TWILLEY

Julie Twilley is married to the Miami Dolphins' wide receiver Howard Twilley.

● As one who has taken Marabel Morgan's Total Woman course, I want to tell every woman in America today that if she cares about her marriage, her home and her children, the course is worth a million dollars. Howard would be the first to agree with that statement. There's a lot more to it than simply donning exotic costumes to arouse your mate—although what man doesn't like to be surprised every once in a while? I grew as a woman. I haven't sacrificed anything by becoming a Total Woman. Is it really so much to ask a woman to take that first step in breaking down barriers in her home? I think it's easier for women than it is for men to be understanding. I feel I'm a much nicer person because of that course and that book. I didn't have a bad marriage, but Howard and I just couldn't communicate. I used my feminine wiles, but in a destructive way. I played the martyr role, and as a result never got anything I wanted. Now that I'm meeting Howard's needs, he goes overboard trying to meet mine.

Stranger-Than-Fiction Facts

About What We're Like - From Fingerprints to "Déjà Vu"

True or False? Some people actually "see" sounds as colors. (See number 4.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Everyone has experienced what psychologists call déjà vu—the strange and mystifying sensation of experiencing something that hasn't happened.
2. Some people actually get a sense of well-being from "flirting with death."
3. The fingerprints of criminals are different from those of law-abiding citizens.
4. Some people actually "see" sounds as colors.

ANSWERS

1. False. No, not everyone—but a large number of people have. Studies sponsored by the National Science Foundation show that approximately 33 percent of a population sample had experienced this fascinating—and sometimes unnerving—sensation. Typical example: Entering a town or city for the first time, with the positive and unshakable conviction of having been there before. ("I knew that bridge would be around the curve.") Says one authority, "There have been many explanations of the déjà vu phenomenon. They range from the mystical belief that the person lived through the experience in a previous existence to rational explanations, such as a forgotten experience—much like the current one—is being vaguely remembered."
2. True. Psychological studies show that some people derive the greatest pleasure and sense of fulfillment from living close to danger. They deliberately choose hobbies and occupations in which the slightest miscalculation can be fatal. Findings of a California State University study show that while most of us need a certain amount of stimulation and excitement, the "danger-seekers" need a great deal more to keep their existence from seeming unbearably boring and humdrum. As the investigator observes: "For these people, there is a special form of psychic ecstasy found by living on the brink of danger."
3. True. A team of research scientists contrasted the fingerprint patterns and ridge counts of 175 criminals with those of a non-criminal control group. The study showed that the pattern frequencies of the fingerprints of the criminal group differed significantly from those of the noncriminal control group. The investigators concluded: A constitutional predisposition to criminal behavior would seem to be indicated by the results.

4. True. This phenomenon is known as chromesthesia or "colored hearing," and is characterized by the appearance of specific colors whenever certain sounds are heard. This has been found to occur in many persons and has been the subject of numerous researches. As one investigator reports: "For some individuals who experience chromesthesia, a definite color or color pattern regularly appears when they hear a certain sound." And for some persons, each tone in the scale produces its individual color.

James Jones Is Home—With A Rekindled Love for America

Morris Warman

James Jones is author of "From Here to Eternity" and, more recently, "WW II."

By Adair Banks

After 16 years of living in Paris, James Jones, author of the classic World War II novel, "From Here to Eternity," is back living in the U.S. again. At 54, Jones is highly optimistic about our country's future. Puffing on a big cigar, his brow furrowed, his voice hoarse and intense, Jones looks and sounds as much like an Army colonel as he does a writer. He did in fact serve with the Army Air Corps from 1939 through 1944, and was a recipient of the Purple Heart. His impressions of America in wartime are the basis of numerous eloquent novels and, most recently, a pictorial chronicle of soldiery, "WW II" (Grosset, $25).

FAMILY WEEKLY: Are you glad to be living in the states again?

JONES: Yes, I'm glad to be back. I only wish Americans really understood how fortunate they are, how much better their standard of living is, and how much nicer their daily lives are than Europeans'. That's one thing I'm very conscious of now. The rich live pretty much the same all over the world, but the middle and lower classes have much more here. I'm sorry if I sound like a pollyanna. I don't mean to.

FW: What are some of the most important advantages we have over European nations?

JONES: I guess I'm thinking mainly about personal freedoms. There's so much we take for granted! In France, the TV stations and the newspapers are owned by the government. During the '68 student riots, there was never any mention made of the events or the violence. There is also no bail in France or Italy. Americans don't even consider these limitations; they're much too foreign to us. Those kinds of restrictions would have us on a protest march the very next day, and the system would be changed.

FW: Do you think we're a spoiled nation?

JONES: We're definitely spoiled as far as other countries are concerned. I remember several years ago a French film team was sent over here to do a four-part documentary on the "plight of the American worker." Only the first segment was ever shown in France. When the French saw how our workers lived—two cars, three TVs, beautiful homes—they raised such a hullabaloo that the other segments were never shown. They were not exactly sympathetic to our "plight."

FW: So many of your works deal with war experiences. How do you feel about the predominant mood of pacifism in this country today?

JONES: I too grew up believing war was evil. Pacifism was a kind of security. It seemed a sensible philosophy, but hardly realistic in 1939 when Hitler was invading Europe. So we had to do an abrupt about face. Let's face it, there have to be some people who are willing to defend us, to protect those who can't or won't fight.

FW: Why did you enlist in 1939 when we weren't yet at war?

JONES: Mainly because I was 18, I couldn't find a civilian job and was too lazy to work my way through college.

FW: What made you decide to become a writer?

JONES: As a young private, I happened upon a copy of Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward Angel," and after reading that wonderful book, I knew that I would write. At first, I was a writer by nature, now I'm a writer by intent. The latter is a great deal harder.

FW: A number of people are talking about the death of the novel. Do you think this is actually happening?

JONES: Not at all. Everyone talks about how great the 1920's were for fiction. That period was considered a Camelot for American literature. But when you really study those years, you'll see that 75 percent of the books published were terrible. It's just in retrospect, we remember only the Hemingways and the F. Scott Fitzgeralds. Writing is one of the last bastions of individuality and individual viewpoint—it can't disappear. Especially since I'm in the process of completing the final volume of my war trilogy!

Miracle Hybrid Discovery

NOW! GROW ARMFULS OF BIG, JUICY TOMATOES ALL WINTER LONG

in your own home starting just weeks from today!

Amazing 'Year-Round Tomato'
Gives You basket after basketful of meaty, mouthwatering, flavor-packed tomatoes . . . not just Fall and Winter — but ALL 52 WEEKS OF THE YEAR!

At last it's here — the miracle breakthrough that's taken the garden world by storm. One of the most spectacular horticultural developments of our time.
Plant scientist's year 'round Wonder Tomatoes that simply refuse to stop producing cluster after cluster of big, juicy tomatoes ALL 12 MONTHS OF THE YEAR — yes, even in winter!

EACH ONE SO BIG YOU GET A WHOLE PLATEFUL OF SLICES FROM EACH SINGLE TOMATO

Just picture this thrilling, yet incredible scene: It's the dead of winter. Outside, even the last blade of grass is buried under a sheer blanket of snow. Your taste buds have long forgotten the mouthwatering goodness of fresh-off-the-vine summer tomatoes.
Yet, inside your home, grows the lushest, "mid-July" tomato garden you've ever seen! So prolific — from a single sunny windowsill you get a year 'round tomato garden.

SO PROLIFIC — FROM A SINGLE WINDOWSILL YOU GET A YEAR 'ROUND TOMATO GARDEN

No doubt about it — it's one of the most remarkable hybridizing achievements of the 20th century. When in your life have you ever seen, heard, or dreamed of a YEAR 'ROUND TOMATO PLANT . . . one that offers you all of these miracle features:

- Produces, produces, and produces all year long as new waves of tomatoes appear CONTINUOUSLY!
- Professionally bred to be super-vigorous. Meaning they require no special care, no special sprays, no special feeding. All you do is water them and pick them — for the most luscious, tasty tomatoes you've ever sunk a tooth into.
- So much meaty goodness from so little space. Just a single windowsill in your home rewards you with baskets of delicious tomatoes . . . all year 'round starting this very Fall or Winter!

It's a living "Tomato Factory" all year 'round. Produces by the basketful all 12 months of the year — and NOT teeny-weeny cherry tomatoes, but juicy, meat-packed beauties so large you can barely squeeze 6 in a pint basket.

NEW BUMPER CROPS ALL YEAR 'ROUND

Yes, be the first in your neighborhood to grow this wondrous living "Tomato Factory" . . . a TRIUMPH of plant scientists in their search for a true all-year, everbearing tomato. Imagine the thrill of picking fresh salads almost daily as wave after wave of these solid, meaty tomatoes pour forth Fall, Winter, Spring, and Summer too! And even more amazing, tomatoes so desperate to produce that for every cluster you pick, a fresh new cluster of meat-packed tomatoes rushes forth to take its place.

And remember rich, thick foliage and profuse golden flowers also make them a wonderful home decoration. So, you get a continuous parade of beauty . . . plus mouthwatering taste-treats by the platterful, when you grow these spectacular all-year, everbearing hybrid Winter-Wonder Tomatoes.

NOW PICK SUMMER-FRESH SALADS IN THE DEAD OF WINTER!

Yes, fresh-off-the-plant salads and sauces week in, week out, all year long. Think of it. The same meat-packed beauties you've seen selling in fancy food stores for up to 75¢ a pound . . . now yours EVEN IN WINTER for mere pennies apiece. And remember — you pick 'em all 52 weeks of the year at the ridiculous cost of about a nickel a basketful of 6 luscious tomatoes!

YEAR 'ROUND TOMATO, Dept. JBA-44
Caroline Rd., Philadelphia, PA 19176

Please rush me the number of everbearing tomatoes I have checked below. I understand that each one comes in its own growing pot, all ready for me to grow either indoors or outdoors.

The Total Woman

SUSAN BLAKELY

A model and actress, Ms. Blakely recently appeared in "The Towering Inferno" and is the star of the ABC-TV 12-hour special, "Rich Man, Poor Man." Susan and writer-husband Todd Merer have been married for six years and live in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Pictorial Parade

● I can't agree with Marabel Morgan that it's the woman who must set the tone of the marriage. No relationship can enjoy any satisfactory permanence if it's one-sided. All you're doing is avoiding confrontation, which is part of life. It's just not realistic. What makes life interesting and enjoyable is effort, effort by both parties. Mrs. Morgan's approach is not only unrealistic, but dishonest. And I feel it's dishonesty that ruins most marriages. If we were more "up front" with our partners, we'd all be a lot happier.

JAMES BRADY

James Brady is author of "Superchic," and former editor of Women's Wear Daily and Harper's Bazaar. Mr. Brady is presently vice-chairman of World News Corp., which publishes the National Star. He is divorced and lives in Manhattan.

● Marabel Morgan's so-called philosophy is the most pathetic, laughable thing I've heard in a long time. She is putting women in a subordinate, embarrassing position. It's a puzzlement to me that her book has sold so many copies. The only way to explain it is to say that there are a certain number of people in this country who will ascribe to any new how-to fad. And I hope it's nothing more than a fad.

KAREN GRASSLE

Karen Grassle stars as the pioneer mother on NBC-TV's "Little House on the Prairie."

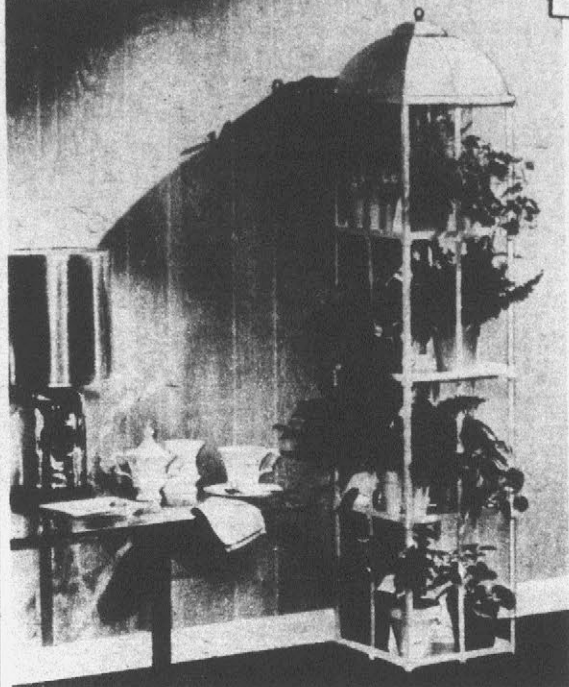

● I think if a sociologist of the future were to dig up Mrs. Morgan's Total Woman philosophy, his report on the subject might read something like this:
"In the Total Woman Age, the male controlled the economic, political and social power. In return, he served society in such unrewarding jobs that the female had to assume total responsibility for keeping him and the family together. One consequence was sexual apathy on the part of the male. The female resorted to blatantly erotic costumes to surprise the male into sex. Courses were de-

MAGNIFICENT AND REGAL Four-Tier PLANT ETAGERE (May Also Be Used As Hanging Garden!)

The ultimate in plant stands with display room for 24 plants or more (depending on size), yet takes less than one foot of floor space. A delightful and enhancing showcase for live or artificial plants. Perhaps it is the commanding, romantic appearance—a glistening oyster white tower, nearly four-and-a-half-feet high, crowned by a decorative finial and exotic cupola roof—but suddenly plants are endowed with a magic-like glamour. Ordinary Philodendron is now gleaming and glamorous . . . a sweet little Coleus becomes regally magnificent . . . a garden-variety Begonia is as lush and rare as an orchid! Meticulously crafted of decorator-quality high impact plastic with our famed protective spillproof tiers. Can't rust and virtually indestructible indoors or out. 10 3/4" square, 53" tall. Assembles in seconds. Holds 48 pounds of wet weight. Lovely with all decor. ONLY $19.99.

believes in "open" marriage, competes with men or joins action groups. The hallmark of liberation is choice. The woman who can thoughtfully choose her options—whatever they happen to be—is the one most likely to make a choice that is compatible with her style and her well-being. If a woman chooses to enhance her position as a wife, that is for her to decide. She is neither better nor worse than anyone else because of her choice.

I hope that women who follow Mrs. Morgan's advice do so because they feel they have found something specifically suited to their needs and not because they have made it into another shibboleth, another "must"—and so imprison themselves once again.

veloped to teach females how to cope with insecure males. Negative emotion was disallowed in public. It was allowed only at home, and only by the male. Females had to meet secretly to vent their feelings, in order not to threaten the male or upset his delicate constitution. This system had much over the Women's Liberation Movement, which occurred simultaneously, because society approved of it; the female was not exposed to the dangers of living alone, making up her own mind, getting a job or competing with the male in any way. Things stayed the same. Boys learned to achieve and girls learned to serve. The sexes felt very different from each other, and everyone was alone."

• Mrs. Morgan seems to be speaking to the kind of woman who wants to remain married traditionally and solidly to the same man. And there are a great many of these women around. They are not panting after so-called "liberation."

But what does liberation really mean? The liberated woman is not necessarily the one who goes to work or school, runs away from home.

Telly's Horoscope predicted decision to shave his head would bring him superstardom

By William Cronkite

Telly Savalas. Three years ago, he was an unknown actor playing Europe's spaghetti western circuit. Today he is rich, famous, enjoys an exciting love life, and is obviously very happy. How did he do it? Is he that much different from you and me, or did he have a secret?

A research group was assembled in Boston, Massachusetts to answer this question. They chose Telly Savalas along with other research subjects who had one thing in common: they all were leading ordinary lives and then suddenly found success and happiness.

Here's Telly's story. After a disastrous business venture, Telly found himself bumping around Hollywood playing bit parts. He landed the role of Pontius Pilate in "The Greatest Story Ever Told" and decided to shave his head for added effect. His horoscope, with Jupiter trine Neptune, attributes his charisma to his head. It predicted that a small change relating to his head would bring him wealth and success. His horoscope was right. Telly's TV stardom in Kojak followed and he makes $800,000 a year.

His horoscope prediction again came to light during the shooting of Kojak. The directors insist that he keep a sucker in his mouth. Why? Because it calls attention to his head. With the sucker in his mouth, his charm is emphasized and the viewers concentrate on his head.

The study of Telly Savalas and other successful people proved to this research group that there is a secret to success and happiness. After years of study, they proved beyond a doubt that there are two simple keys to success and happiness: 1. Making the right little decisions and, 2. Timing. Armed with these findings, these experts set out to develop a new astrological method which would produce a horoscope which would provide these two keys to success and happiness. The development is now complete. They are currently preparing individual horoscopes as part of their continuing research.

Several other examples of successful people will explain further what this horoscope can do. On the Johnny Carson Show, the editor of Cosmopolitan jokingly suggested that Burt Reynolds should pose nude for a Cosmo centerfold. Burt took her up on it. He posed for free, just for the fun of it. On checking back, this research group found that certain aspects in Burt's chart at the time of his decision, predicted that an unorthodox action would trigger his success. Burt's perfectly timed decision has brought him superstardom and millions of dollars to date.

This horoscope can bring love and romance. Several years ago, producer John Foreman unintentionally invited both Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood to his party. They hadn't seen each other since their split nine years before. But in making a comparison of their charts the research group found that an aspect in Natalie's chart, indicated that a chance meeting would renew an old love. Of course, Bob and Natalie were remarried in July of 1972 and have recently been blessed with their first child.

Not all of the successful people studied for this research project are famous. Pat Carnes, a Canton, Ohio housewife, has won over $4,000 by following the advice of her horoscope. How did she do it? She used the Key Numbers (lucky numbers) and Significant Days given in her horoscope to win $1,222 playing Bingo, $2,000 at Waterford Racetrack, and $887 at various contests, raffles, and games of chance. Other members of her family have won over $3,000 by following their horoscopes and she has also won the Ohio State Lottery several times. Pat played only occasionally to win all this money, and she never ventured more than $12!

As you can see from the above examples, it was the little decisions, not the major ones, which led to luck, love, wealth, success and happiness. Each one of us makes many little decisions every day. Now think back to times when a little decision led to a big event in your life. Wasn't it something little that started all your romances and eventually led to your marriage? Or how about when you landed your job, met your best friend, started your favorite hobby, or won a prize or contest? Imagine what it would be like to turn all of your little decisions into joyous events. That's what this new horoscope does. This horoscope acts as a day by day guidance counselor in making sure that the right decisions are made.

But just making the right little decisions isn't enough to bring you success and happiness. You also need the second key to success, timing. You must make your little decisions during your most favorable time periods. These periods are called your Significant Days. Your Significant Days do not follow the days on your calendar. They begin at an exact minute (Example: 10:24 AM) and end at a specific time.

I'll explain why. The sun, moon, and the planets in our solar system move each minute. As they move, they pass through the 12 houses and 12 signs of the zodiac and form angular relationships called aspects. There are many different kinds of aspects (Example: Mars conjunct Venus in House 7). Planetary aspects have a strong influence on all of us here on earth and affect each one of us differently according to our time and place of birth. Each new aspect triggers a new period of Significant Days. Think of your Significant Days as a bus or a plane ride. You have to be on board at the exact minute of departure and get off at the correct time in order to reach your destination. With the Significant Days in your horoscope, your destination is success and happiness.

This recent research project proved that a personal horoscope must pinpoint the beginning and end of a significant time period, in order to bring success and happiness. This is exactly what this new horoscope will do. Here's an example of how a horoscope will read: ("April 1, 1975, beginning at 4:46 PM, the influence of Mercury trine Saturn in house 8 will be in effect for a period of approximately 3 days. You are entering a period of good luck. Your key numbers for this period are 3, 6, 9, etc.") A horoscope that doesn't pinpoint the significant times, doesn't provide the essential keys to success.

The research group has compared applying these two simple keys to success to playing a slot machine. But unlike playing a real slot machine, there is no luck involved. A jackpot is hit every time the advice of this horoscope is followed. By a jackpot, they mean success and happiness in all areas of a person's life: money, love, job, self-understanding and self-confidence.

These professionals in their fields explain that at birth every human being begins with thousands of built-in jackpots, just waiting to be hit. These jackpots are spread out over an entire lifetime, so ages makes no difference. Some jackpots are small others enormous, but all are triggered by making the right little decision at the right time.

There are several reasons why this research group is so positive that a jackpot will be hit each time this horoscope is followed. First, each horoscope is individually prepared based on the exact time and place of birth. No two horoscopes are ever alike. This means that two people born at the exact same time, but in a different town, would receive different horoscopes. Second, this horoscope will be prepared using the new astrological method which has just been perfected after five years and over 5,000 man hours of research.

As the old saying goes, "If you watch your pennies, the dollars will take care of themselves." By making the right little decision at the right time, all the big events in your life will fall into place naturally. Remember, Pat Carnes did nothing out of the ordinary when she won thousands of dollars. You currently have the right friends, live in the right place, and have the right job to cash in on all your remaining jackpots. But, how do you do it?

You could pay hundreds of dollars a year for your own astrologer. You could rely on chance and hope you make the right little decision at the right time. Or, you could read the article below which tells you how you can have your horoscope individually prepared for just a $3.00 copying charge. As each day passes, you lose more of your built-in jackpots which are impossible to recover. Read the article below and start heading for success and happiness today.

New Astrological Method Provides Lucky Numbers

Here's how you can have your Horoscope prepared for only a copying charge

By Robert J. McLachlan

A research group in Boston, Mass. has just completed an astrological study of successful people. Their study proved that there are two keys to success and happiness. (See the article above.) They've used the results of their research to develop a revolutionary new astrological method which enables them to prepare horoscopes which provide these two keys to success and happiness.

For a limited time, they are preparing these horoscopes for the public. If you send them your exact time and place of birth, they will individually prepare your horoscope for only a $3.00 copying charge because they need your birth information to continue their research.

No two horoscopes are ever alike, but your approximately 12 page, 4,000 word horoscope will cover all of the following areas of your life:

- Your horoscope will give you your key numbers (lucky numbers) and tell you the most favorable time to use them for bingo, horse racing, lotteries, drawings, or any games of chance.
- Your personal horoscope will make an indepth analysis of your personality and thus help you utilize your strengths and talents to their fullest.
- Each one of us has hidden talents (sex appeal, artistic, musical or writing ability, etc.) which can surface because of the movements of Jupiter and Uranus. Your horoscope will tell you when to look for these talents and thus set you on a course of self-improvement and self-fulfillment.
- Your horoscope will tell you when to look for romance, point out with whom you're compatible, pinpoint your most sexually potent days and give specific directions on keeping your love life exciting.

- Your personal horoscope will monitor the movements of the planets through your 2nd and 10th houses, the houses of money and career. You'll be told which jobs bring you personal satisfaction and wealth.

- Your relationships with your mate, children and relatives will be discussed according to the movements of the planets in your 4th and 7th houses, the houses of family and marriage.

- Advice on health and dieting tips will be covered in your horoscope.

Don't worry about learning of unpleasant events in the future. This new astrological method is positive. You'll actually be told how to turn shortcomings and setbacks to your advantage.

Your horoscope will be individually prepared according to the exhaustive scientific details required by this revolutionary astrological method. Your exact time of birth will be converted to astrological standard time with World War II time changes considered. The longitude and latitude of your place of birth will be computed to the hundredth degree. And your name will appear on every page of your horoscope. IMPORTANT: No two horoscopes prepared will be exactly alike. So this horoscope will not be the general worthless type found in newspapers and paperbacks.

The cost to individually prepare a similar horoscope could be over $200. But there's no catch to this research project. In fact, this just-developed astrological method produces a horoscope far superior to similar horoscopes because; this method utilizes the recent findings of the research group.

The writings of this research organization have appeared in LADIES HOME JOURNAL, WOMAN'S DAY, FAMILY WEEKLY, BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS and McCALLS.

Due to economic conditions, it is not certain how much longer this research will be continued. So, if you would like to have your horoscope individually prepared for a small $3.00 copying charge, simply do this: Place your name, address, time, day, month, year and place of birth on a piece of paper. Mail this information with your $3.00 copying charge plus 50¢ postage and handling to Planetary Key Research Group, Dept. C-41, 352 Chestnut St., Ashland, Massachusetts 01721.

Your horoscope will give you an almost unfair advantage over others. But, if you feel guilty, you may order horoscopes for your family or friends for the same copying charge. Just remember to include $3.00 plus 50¢ postage and handling and the exact same information you've given for yourself for each additional horoscope you order.

Your horoscope will be covered by a one year - 365 day - full money back guarantee. To avoid disappointment, why not order your horoscope right now, before you forget.

How to Use Leftover Turkey!

TURKEY A LA KING STACK

Pancakes

- 1 1/4 cups whole wheat pancake mix
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon shortening, melted or liquid

1. For pancakes, heat griddle to 400°F. Place mix, milk, egg and shortening in bowl. Stir until batter is fairly smooth. Let stand for 1 to 2 minutes.

2. For each pancake, pour about 1/2 cup batter onto hot, lightly greased griddle or skillet to make 5 pancakes. Turn only once.

Makes 5 pancakes

Turkey à la King

- 1 cup celery, diagonally sliced
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 4 chicken bouillon cubes or 4 teaspoons chicken stock base
- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1 can (4 ozs.) chopped mushrooms, undrained
- 2 cups diced cooked turkey
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 1/4 cup grated cheddar cheese
- 1 tomato, cut in sixths

1. In medium-sized saucepan, sauté celery and onion in melted butter for 5 minutes until tender.

2. Remove from heat, stir in flour. Add bouillon cubes, water, mustard and mushrooms.

3. Cook, stirring constantly until mixture boils. Reduce heat to low, add turkey, parsley and pimiento; return to boiling.

4. To make stack, layer pancakes and turkey filling, spreading about 1/2 cup filling over each pancake. Sprinkle cheddar cheese on top of pancake stack. Top with tomato wedges. To serve, cut into 4 wedges.

Makes 4 servings

WHAT'S SMART: Three more ideas for using up leftover turkey: 1) Turkey and Bacon Club Sandwiches. Serve with cranberry sauce. 2) Turkey Casserole. Line a shallow casserole with a package of stuffing mix, add turkey, gravy, mixed vegetables; top with buttered crumbs and bake. 3) Turkey-Vegetable Soup. Place turkey carcass, a few carrots, onions, celery, parsley and a bay leaf in large kettle. Add water, cook till turkey practically falls apart; remove bones, cut up meat, season to taste and serve.

What in the World!

ANTHONY QUINN
Waiting for the last act

Anthony Quinn on original sin: The burly star of such unforgettable movies as "Zorba the Greek" and "Lust for Life" told FAMILY WEEKLY, "I think the real original sin is to be unable to give or receive love and to be unable to love yourself. It isn't a sign of conceit or inflated ego to love yourself. Until I gained that insight, I was miserable. There were times when I couldn't look at myself in the mirror. Over the years, I have learned that life is like a cup. If you don't like what it holds for you, you empty it and refill it. Mine has been refilled a few times." Quinn grew up in the slums of Los Angeles. "My father kept telling me that there was another, better way of life than he had given me and I'd better go out and find it." Quinn became one of Hollywood's highest-paid actors, and is now pursuing a writing career, but he feels that the "final act" of his life has not yet been written! "Act One was my beginning, the times when I had nothing. Act Two is what I've become as an actor, and what I have to show for it. So there must be an Act Three. It should be the greatest act."

A new idea in organic make-up—white wine? "White wine has been used in complexion care for many centuries, and it is especially useful in controlling oily skin and acne. It has excellent degreasing ability and is a powerful germ killer. A light sauterne or Rhine wine is preferable. When you open a bottle for table use, reserve a quarter of a glass in a small jar which you can keep on your toiletry shelf. This wine is just as useful after it turns into vinegar. If you'd like to sweeten the scent, add some rose water to the wine." From "Organic Make-Up," by Dian Buchman (Ace Books, $1.25).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

HOME, MY SWEET, HOME!

My wife's a great do-gooder,
A joiner, social type.
I guess I should do something,
Not sit around and gripe.

She's either at a luncheon
Or else, from door to door,
She's as she says, "collecting,"
Not telling what it's for.

As Eddie Guest would put it
Of one inclined to roam,
It takes a heap o' lovin'
To keep a spouse at home.

While I was looking at a magazine with my little cousin last weekend, he came across a word he didn't understand. When he asked me what it meant, I hesitated, whereupon he said, "I know, it's one of those 'wait 'til you're older' words."

"How is the new girl in the office doing?"

"Fine, but she is awfully nervous. As soon as she sits down at her desk, she starts to work." —Lucille S. Harper Happy Birthday to you!"

If you aren't getting More, you're getting less.

Does your cigarette measure up?

What's so more about More, the first 120mm cigarette? The cigarette that's more in every way except price.

Long, lean and burnished brown, More has more style. It has more flavor. It has more. Over 50% more puffs than most 100mm cigarettes. Yet More doesn't cost more.

And whether you smoke regular or menthol cigarettes, you can get More going for you. Because both More and More Menthol deliver quality like you've never experienced before.

They smoke slower and draw easy for more enjoyment. They're more flavorful. Yet they're surprisingly mild.

They're More.

More and More Menthol. They sit neat in your hand like they were made for it and fit your face like they found a home.

The first 120mm cigarette.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER, MENTHOL: 21 mg. "tar", 1.6 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette by FTC method.

Our Story: THE TWIN DAUGHTERS OF PRINCE VALIANT AND QUEEN ALETA HAVE EVERYTHING THEY NEED... EXCEPT ROMANCE. THE ONLY ONE ON THE SHIP WHO CAN SUPPLY IT IS HECTOR, A STUDENT.

VALETA UNDULATES GRACEFULLY ACROSS THE DECK, HER LASHES FLUTTERING, DIMPLES SHOWING. "OH, HECTOR, YOU ARE ALWAYS READING! IS IT ABOUT WARRIORS BOLD AND LADIES FAIR?"

"NO, I AM TRYING TO STUDY, SO IF YOU DON'T MIND...!" SHE IGNORES THAT REMARK AND CONTINUES: "YOU MEN GO LAUGHING INTO DANGER WHILE WE TENDERHEARTED MAIDS CAN ONLY WAIT AND HOPE."

KAREN HAS A DIFFERENT APPROACH: "HI, HECK, PUSH OVER, I WANT TO SIT DOWN. HAS YOUR SWORD BEEN BLOODED YET?" "I HAVE NO SWORD. I AM A STUDENT," HE ANSWERS. "THEN GET ONE, FOR HOW ELSE CAN YOU PROVE YOUR WORTH EXCEPT IN BATTLE!"

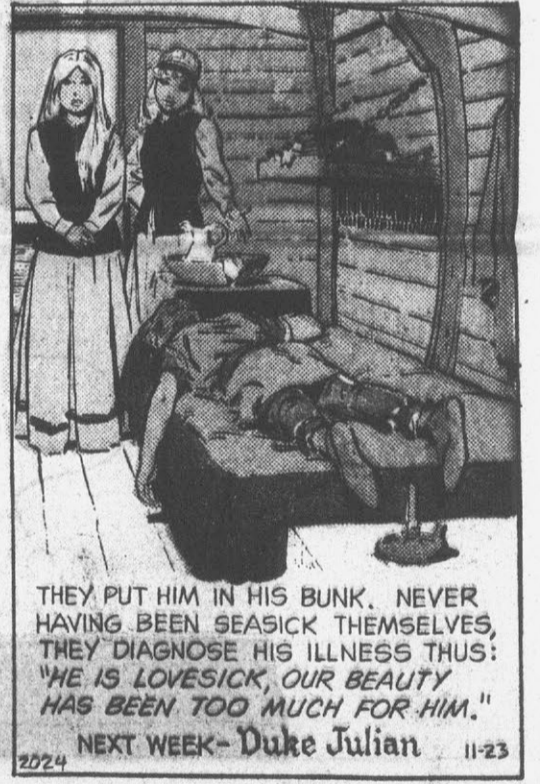

DESPITE THE RISING WIND KAREN TAKES OFF HER HAIR RIBBON. "HERE, HECTOR, IS MY GAGE. WEAR IT ON YOUR SWORD ARM IN BATTLE." "HOW ROMANTIC!" SIGHS VALETA. "AND WE WILL TEND YOUR WOUNDS WHEN YOU RETURN."

"I AM NOT A WARRIOR, BUT A STUDENT!" HE DECLARES ANGRILY. "YOU GIRLS MAKE ME SICK!" HIS WORDS ARE PROPHETIC FOR JUST THEN THE SHIP HEAVES AND SO DOES HECTOR.

"HECTOR IS POOR MATERIAL FOR ROMANCE," GRUMBLES KAREN. "HE DOES NOT HAVE THE SOUL OF A POET," ADMITS VALETA.

THEY PUT HIM IN HIS BUNK. NEVER HAVING BEEN SEASICK THEMSELVES, THEY DIAGNOSE HIS ILLNESS THUS: "HE IS LOVESICK, OUR BEAUTY HAS BEEN TOO MUCH FOR HIM." NEXT WEEK - Duke Julian 11-23

Skeezix couldn't get his TV back from the dump, Nina? No, Walt! So now he's shopping!

That antenna should bring in every football game in the country!

When do they deliver the set?

We live that way! I know, Nina!

Can you give me a hand, Joel? Sure, thin, Mister Skeezix!

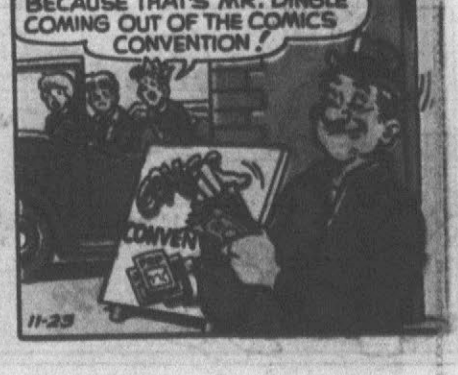

Toby got pride! He won't accept it! What a lovely old can!

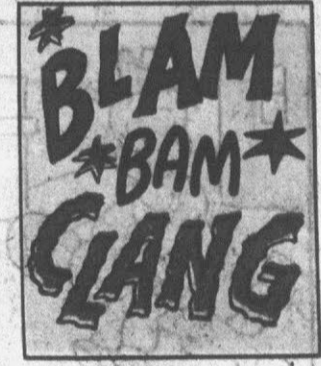

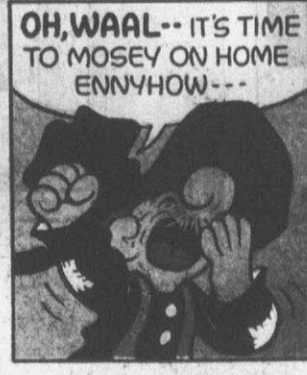

I uses it fer garbage! It's a valuable antique! Look like a fair swap t'me, Toby!

HONEY, I KNOW YOU'RE MAD AT ME

YOU HAVEN'T SAID ONE WORD TO ME ALL EVENING

YOU'VE GOT TO OPEN UP AND TELL ME WHAT'S BOTHERING YOU

IN ORDER FOR A MARRIAGE TO WORK A COUPLE HAS TO COMMUNICATE

ALL RIGHT.. I'LL COMMUNICATE

YOU TOLD ME MY NEW DRESS WAS TACKY AND COST TOO MUCH!

YOU BENT MY TUDSBURY CREDIT CARD!

YOU FELL ASLEEP AT THE DILLWICKS' DINNER PARTY!

YOU DIDN'T EVEN BOTHER TO KISS ME GOOD NIGHT LAST NIGHT!

AND TODAY'S OUR ANNIVERSARY.. WHICH YOU COMPLETELY FORGOT!

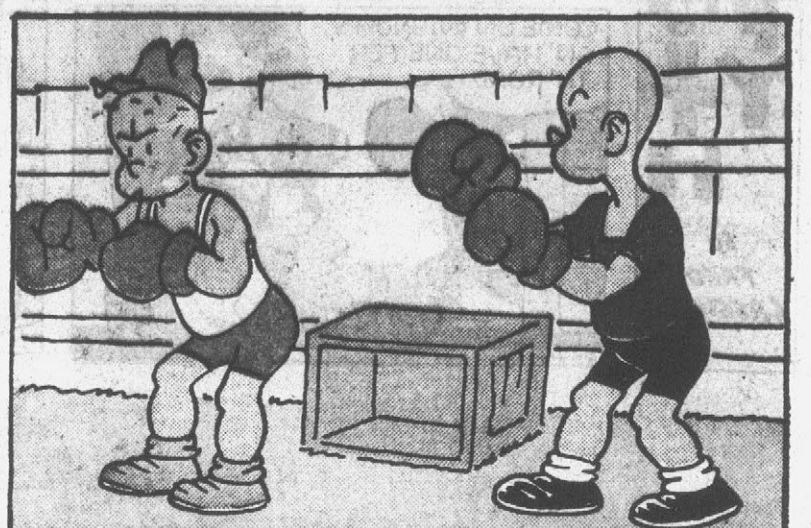

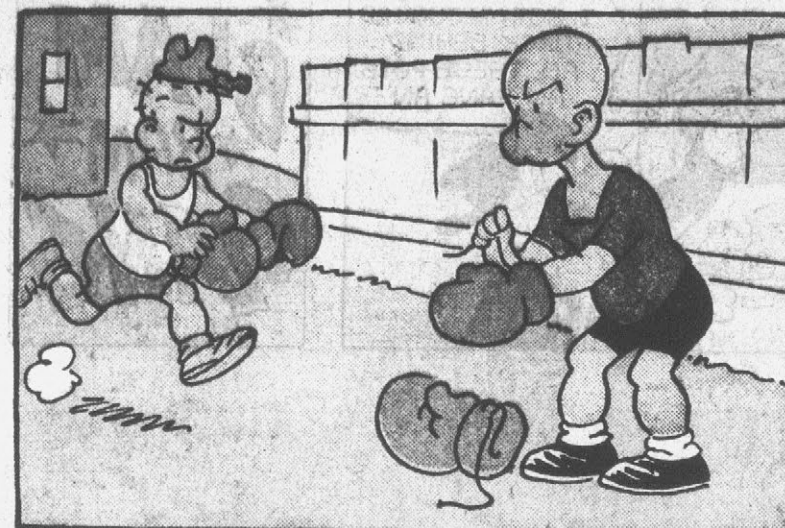

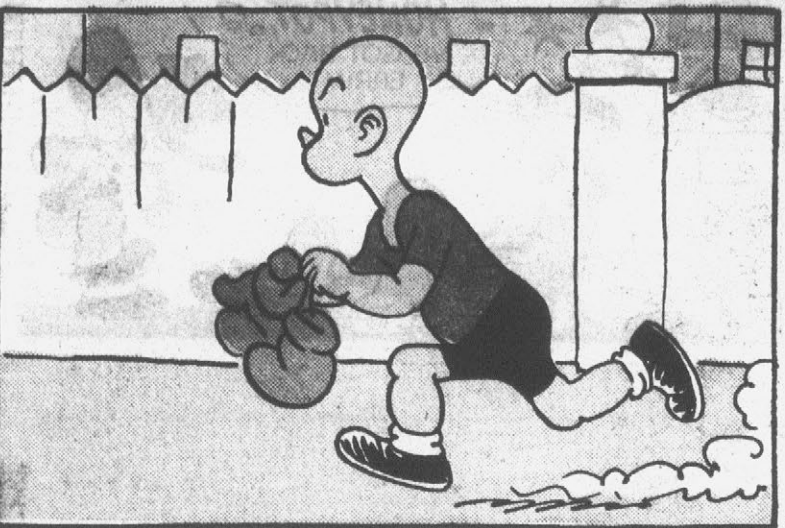

OH, BOO-HOO-HOO

BOY, DID I GET COMMUNICATED!!

I THOUGHT THEY'D SAVE HER FOR SCIOTO STATE!

COACH SAYS TO STAY WITH OUR DISASTER PLAN

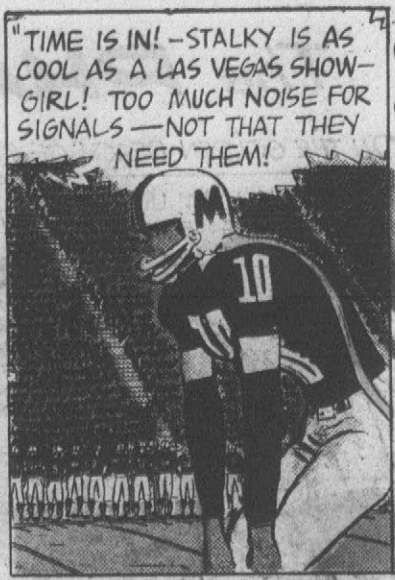

WHEN STALKY GOES INTO THE GAME THERE IS SUCH PANDEMONIUM THAT EVERYONE EXCEPT THE WATER BOY CALLS TIME OUT!...

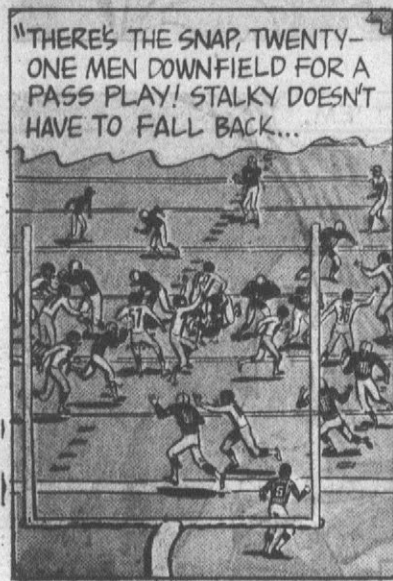

LEGAL OR NOT, ANY CONTACT WITH THE GIRL WILL MEAN A PENALTY HALF WAY TO THE FIELD HOUSE!

DON'T RUSH! ONE-ON-ONE PASS DEFENSE! DOUBLE-TEAM THAT CAT WHO TOOK OLSON'S PLACE!

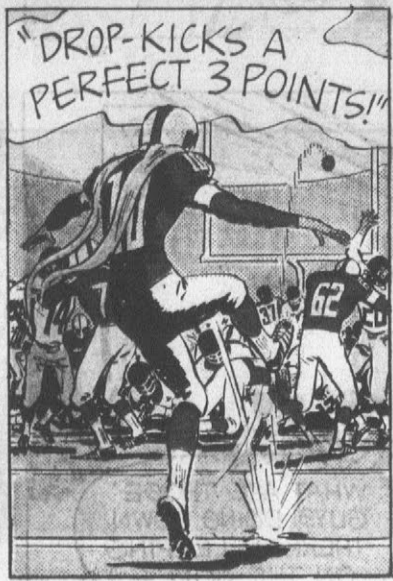

"TIME IS IN! -STALKY IS AS COOL AS A LAS VEGAS SHOW-GIRL! TOO MUCH NOISE FOR SIGNALS -NOT THAT THEY NEED THEM!"

"THERE'S THE SNAP, TWENTY-ONE MEN DOWNFIELD FOR A PASS PLAY! STALKY DOESN'T HAVE TO FALL BACK..."

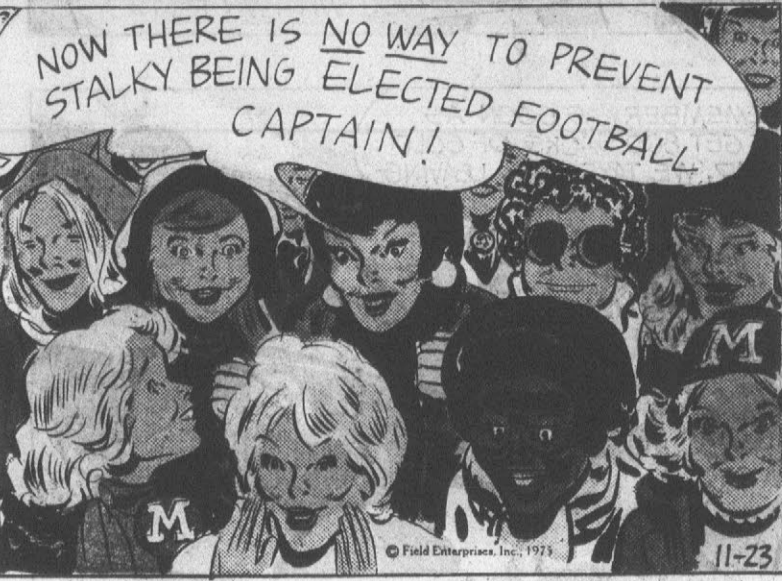

"SHE WAITS UNTIL THE LAST SECOND...LOOKING! LOOKING! - THEN, VERY CALMLY..."

"DROP-KICKS A PERFECT 3 POINTS!"

SHE DID IT TO US JUST THE WAY LUCY MURDERS CHARLIE BROWN EVERY YEAR!

NOW THERE IS NO WAY TO PREVENT STALKY BEING ELECTED FOOTBALL CAPTAIN!

BUT IF WE BREAK UP, WHAT'LL I DO?!

OH, THERE'S PLENTY OF OTHER GIRLS AROUND!

BUT WHO'S GOING TO HELP ME IN THIRD-PERIOD ALGEBRA?!

...OR BUY GAS FOR MY CAR?!

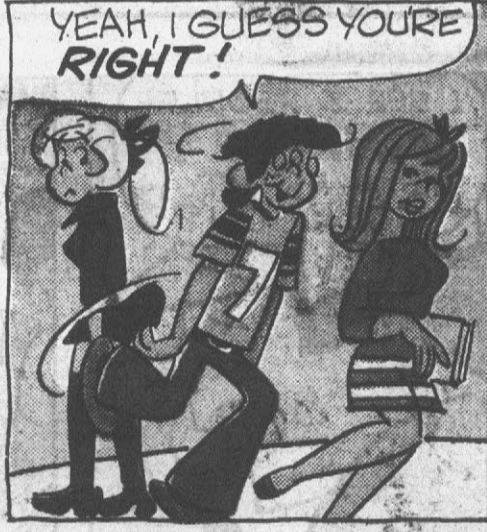

YOU HAVE TO HAVE A BETTER REASON THAN THAT FOR US TO GO STEADY!

IF IT'S NOT A MATTER OF THE HEART, THEN WHAT'S THE POINT?!

YEAH, I GUESS YOU'RE RIGHT!
