Ford Begins Mission To Asia

By RICHARD H. GROWALD

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI) — En route to China, President Ford Saturday assured a cheering, flag-waving crowd of Eskimos, oil workers and military personnel that U.S. peace diplomacy requires "military power second to none."

About 5,000 Alaskans and several brass bands greeted Ford in 8 degree temperatures when he arrived aboard Air Force One at Eielson Air Force Base on the first leg of a 10-day, 24,000 mile trip to Peking, Indonesia, the Philippines and Hawaii.

Parka-clad Eskimos bounced 30 and 40 feet in the air off canvas sheets in a joyous "Eskimo Blanket Toss" as Ford walked across the tarmac, waving. The crowd set up a roar of "Hi, Jerry" and many waved tiny American flags distributed for the occasion.

The President wore a heavy lined raincoat and Betty Ford a mink coat as proof against the Arctic winter temperatures.

Out in the crowd, one group waved a banner reading "Please Save Us From the Pipeline" — a reference to the environmental damage conservationists' fear from the Alaskan oil pipeline which Ford was inspecting during the overnight Alaska stopover.

Enroute to a four-day Peking visit that begins Monday morning EST, Ford set aside a day to visit the Alaskan military bases facing Asia on America's northern frontier and to inspect construction of the Alaskan oil pipeline.

He was accompanied by Mrs. Ford, daughter Susan, 18, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and a team of advisers on a trip that will introduce him as President to the Chinese leadership and expose him personally to their fears that the United States is becoming too friendly with the Soviet Union.

Arriving in Arctic winter temperatures at Eielson AFB, Ford assured his greeting party —and skeptical critics of his China visit back home as well— that his efforts to strengthen American ties with China and the Soviet Union will not weaken its nuclear-era defense posture.

"Let me reassure you today that my administration, while striving to preserve world peace, remains aware that the best insurance for peace is U.S. military power second to none," Ford said.

"There will be no slackening in my administration of support for a first-rate Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard . . . Worldwide diplomacy would not be credible without a credible military force, both in substance and perception.

"It is appropriate to stop here enroute to China ...," Ford said. "You know and I know that we must keep the Pacific peaceful."

According to high-level diplomatic assessments of the Peking visit, this message would likely be as well received in China as in the United States.

The Chinese have made clear they fear the United States may withdraw completely from Asia in the post-Vietnam War era and leave a power vacuum to be exploited by Peking's arch-enemy, the Soviet Union.

After the Peking visit which ends Friday, Ford flies to Indonesia for talks with President Suharto and then to the Phillipines, where the status of U.S. naval and air bases is in question. He completes his tour Dec. 7—Pearl Harbor Day—in Hawaii, where he has scheduled a major speech.

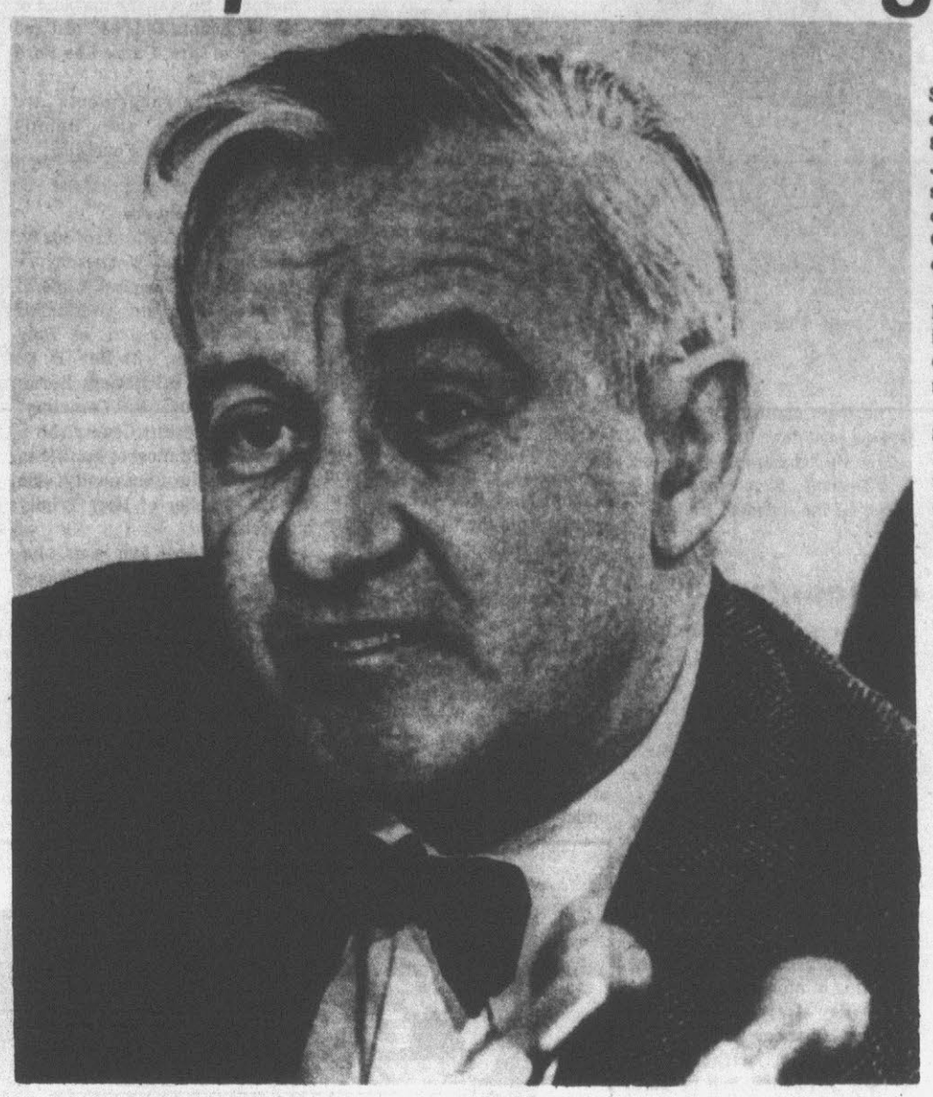
Senate Hearings On Stevens Expected To Begin Dec. 8



SUPREME COURT APPOINTEE—U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge John Paul Stevens, above, 55, reads statement in Chicago, Friday, after President Ford announced in Washington that Stevens was his appointment to the United States Supreme Court. Stevens, a native of Chicago, is the first appointment to the highest court by President Ford. If approved, Judge Stevens would fill the vacancy of Justice William O. Douglas. (AP Wirephoto)

By CYNTHIA MILLS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee is expected to begin hearings Dec. 8 on Supreme Court nominee John Paul Stevens, but Senate sources said Saturday that confirmation before the pre-Christmas adjournment is in doubt Judiciary Chairman James O. Eastland said "I don't think it'll take long" for the committee to act on the nomination.

In a telephone interview Saturday from his Doddsville, Miss., home, Eastland noted that Stevens "was confirmed once before" when named to the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals by Richard M. Nixon in 1970.

Asked if he would comply with the President's request for speedy action on the appointment, Eastland replied: "That's right. I hope we can."

He said he will schedule committee hearings one week after the nomination is formally received, probably Monday. But he said he "couldn't guess" whether the Senate could complete action before the Christmas recess, now scheduled to begin Dec. 19.

Stevens gets high marks from the American Bar Association and other leaders of the legal profession, but is a virtual unknown to most senators who will have to vote on his appointment.

It is for this reason, some Senate sources said, that it is impossible to judge the length of the confirmation process. If any opposition develops either to Stevens or to a quick confirmation, the tightness of the Congressional schedule for the remainder of this session indicates the vote could go over until next year.

The ABA committee which investigated candidates for the court welcomed the appointment and said Stevens "meets high standards of professional competence, judicial temperament and integrity—the committee's highest evaluation."

$4 Billion For Military Construction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — THE White House said Saturday President Ford has signed a $4 billion military construction bill and a $71.5 million bill extending — but limiting — the Environmental Protection Agency's regulation of insect, fungus and rodent poisons.

The military bill appropriates $3.944 billion for Defense Department construction activities in Fiscal Year 1976 and the transition quarter-year.

The EPA bill extends appropriations authorization through March 31, 1977, for work conducted under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act. It gives the EPA $47.9 million for this work between Oct. 1, 1975, and Sept. 30, 1976, and an additional $23.6 million for the following six months.

In addition, the bill extends for one year the deadline for some actions required by the pesticide control bill and forces the EPA to assess the impact of any proposed pesticide reclassification or cancellations.

The act says EPA assessments of the impact on production and prices of agricultural commodities, retail food prices and other effects on the farm economy must be provided to the Secretary of Agriculture, as must EPA notices of any proposed pesticide rules changes.

Dedicates Highway

HICKORY, N.C. (UPI) — Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr. Saturday dedicated a link of Interstate-40 between Conover and Hildebrand that has been missing for 14 years.

Holshouser cut the red ribbon opening the 11.7-mile, $31.9 million highway section, saying his seven-year road plan for the state should stop the "piecemeal" construction of highways in the state.

Under A Single Agency

BOONE, N.C.(AP)—Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten says North Carolina should consider placing the State Highway Patrol, the State Bureau of Investigation, state ABC officers and the Enforcement and Theft Division under a single agency.

Edmisten said that under the consolidation, the state could save money and get better law enforcement. He made his comments in an interview with radio station WATA in Boone.

Patrolman Reprimanded

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A reprimand has gone to a North Carolina highway patrolman who handed his gun to a volunteer civilian while he frisked three suspects during a hit-and-run investigation.

Trooper Arnold B. Coley, 28, who has been a trooper for 3½ years, "violated patrol policy by giving his weapon to another individual" when the situation did not warrant it, according to Charlotte Patrol Commander H. B. McKee.

Unarmed Man Robs Bank

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A bank in downtown Charlotte was robbed by an unarmed man Friday and moments later police arrested a man at a bus station a couple of blocks away.

The FBI identified the man as Coleman Woodrow Laughter, 38, originally of Asheville but more recently of Seattle, Wash.

Greenville Fatality

A Greenville resident died yesterday morning in Pitt County Memorial Hospital operating room due to severe internal injuries resulting from an automobile accident.

Phillip Lyle Williamson, 38, Carriage House Apt. No. 7, died about 11 a.m. Saturday after his car collided with another at W. Fifth St. and Pitt St. He was taken to Pitt Memorial by members of the Greenville Rescue Squad and died in the operating room.

Also injured and taken to Pitt Memorial was Linwood Smallwood, 1907-B McClellan St., a passenger in the other car.

The second car was driven by Horance Lee Smallwood, 1907-B McClellan St.

Damages were reported at $1500 to the Williamson car and $700 to the Smallwood car. A drink machine at the George Pugh Service Station, Fifth and Greene Streets, received about $400 damage.

Holiday Toll

A United Press International count at 9 p.m. EST showed 244 persons had died in traffic since the beginning of the Thanksgiving weekend at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday.

A breakdown of accidental deaths showed:

| | |
|---|---|
| Traffic | 244 |
| Fires | 27 |
| Planes | 9 |
| Other | 17 |
| Total | 298 |

Texas had the highest traffic toll— 17, followed by California and North Carolina with 15. New York and Georgia each had 13 and Ohio and Pennsylvania each had 12.

Strong Quake Rocks Island Of Hawaii

By ROBERT C. MILLER

HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — Two strong earthquakes, the second the most powerful to hit Hawaii in more than a century, Saturday triggered an eruption in the Kilauea volcano, touched off landslides and swirled five-foot waves into the big island.

One camper was drowned and another disappeared when they were washed out to sea. Nineteen others were injured and taken to a hospital.

Beaches around the island were evacuated, and there was a tidal alert.

Lava shot 100 feet into the air from the Kilauea volcano. Later there was still lava spattering along the east wall of the volcano's Halemaumau firepit.

Vehicles were ruined by landslides and waves but no motorists were reported to have suffered serious injuries. Nineteen boats in harbors were damaged by the increased wave activity.

Police said a preliminary survey indicated property damage was $500,000.

Boy Scouts, fishermen and others had been camping overnight at Halape, 12 miles from the Kilauea crater. Waves washed over them, the earth opened up and rocks fell from above.

A spokesman at a military camp at Lilauea said that after the quakes the waves were so strong several persons were washed out to sea. They were washed back by follow-up waves. He said three persons suffered serious injuries.

Dr. Robert Tilling, scientist in charge of the Volcanoes National Park observatory, said many aftershocks were recorded. He said the first tremblor occurred at 3:36 a.m. HST and it measured 5.2 on the Richter scale.

The second came at 4:20 a.m. HST and it measured 7.3.

Tilling said the aftershocks indicated molten lave was moving under the earth. He added he was unable to predict whether there would be any more powerful jolts.

Police said the plate glass windows in stores were shattered and plaster fell from ceilings. Officers said one house in Hilo was leveled and two park pavilions in Punaluu were wiped out.

Civil defense spokesman Fred Pugarelli said initially there were no known deaths or injuries in the quake that struck early Saturday. The park spokesman said he did not have immediate details on how the campers eluded further fatalities.

Spectacular fountains of lava shot from Kilauea volcano in Hawaii National Park before fizzling out two hours after the eruptions.

The five-foot wave, described by an official as "sloshing," banged up boats in Hilo Bay. There were two-foot waves at the island of Maui and smaller ones on Oahu, where Honolulu is located.

Seismologist Brian Stump of the University of California Seismological Station in Berkeley said the earthquake was "definitely powerful."

According to the Richter scale, which measures earthquake energy, the 7 to 8 range is a major tremblor. Anything above 8 is a great earthquake, he said. A tremor in the 5 to 6 range is "strong."

Santa Parade

FARMVILLE — Farmville's annual Christmas parade will be held Monday at 4:30 p.m.

The parade will form on Horne Avenue and follow a route down Main Street to Cotton Street, west to George Street, north on George to Wilson Street, and east on Wilson to Contentnea, and north on Contentnea to Grimmersburg and back to the athletic field on Horne Avenue. About 30 units are expected to participate, according to Louis Williams, secretary of the Farmville Chamber of Commerce, which organizes and sponsors the event, usually held on the first Monday of each December.

Goat Gets Their Goat

CARY, N.C. (AP)—A fleet-footed goat has gotten the goat of Cary officials.

The goat decided Monday that it would live at the new town hall. Cary officials had other plans and went out to catch the nimble beast, but couldn't.

"We tried to catch the damn thing for an hour (Saturday morning)," Police Chief J.W. Boles said, adding that the goat's owner was called in to take the animal home.

Town Manager Charles W. Williams gave up: "I don't see any reason for him to leave. There's plenty of grass for him to eat. I can't run the goat down. He jumps up on the walls. He can be on the ledge in one easy spring."

50,000 Laying Hens Featured In Farm-City Open House

AUTOMATED HANDLING . . . of eggs still needs the human check, which is provided here by Rod Shellnut. The scene is at the Joe Wilson Poultry Farm where open house is being held from 2 to 5 today as part of Pitt County's Farm-City Week activities.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

From 2 to 5 p.m. this afternoon, the public will have an opportunity to see at first hand what a large, modern egg producing plant with 50,000 laying hens in residence looks like.

For this three hour period, Joe Wilson is holding an open-house at his egg producing plant on N.C. 43, seven miles southeast of Greenville. The plant is about a mile beyond the crossroads on 43 where D.H. Conley High School is located. The open house is part of the National Farm-City Week being observed in Pitt County.

Joe Wilson is owner-operator of the facility that is part of a larger network of Pitt County egg producers, Sunnyside Eggs, Inc.

Ed Yancey, Pitt County Agriculture Extension Agent, explained that Wilson owns the farm, the poultry building and equipment and provides the labor, with Sunnyside Eggs, Inc. owning the chickens. Sunnyside also provides the feed, as well as egg grading and marketing services.

"This type of business arrangement," Yancey said, "is generally called 'contract farming.'"

Wilson's 50,000 layers, Yancey noted, are part of a total Sunnyside laying hen population of 477,013 producing hens. "Sunnyside also keeps 220,000 young hens growing to replace older hens who no longer produce at a peak level," Yancey added. "In addition to the Sunnyside firm, there's seven independent commercial poultry producers active in Pitt County."

The big majority of the nearly half a million hard working hens are White Leghorns, a hen that has been bred specifically for it's high productivity of eggs. Yancey admitted that among all those hens, there's not a single rooster in the fowl census.

Visitors attending the open house today will see a completely modern facility designed to produce eggs for the marketplace.

"Rod Shellnut, who is manager at the Wilson farm, is the only human worker in this amazing operation," Yancey explained. "He sees to it that the hens are fed, watered, and comfortable. He also packs the eggs and rushes them into a cooler."

Unlike the common barnyard hens of many colors and breeds that populated local farms in past decades and were considered good laying hens if they turned out an individual output of about 100 eggs per year, today's slender White Leghorns average laying about 250 eggs per year. "This in itself is a considerable improvement over the 240 average of just a few years ago," Yancey remarked. "A well-cared for healthy hen will lay an egg every 26 hours."

Yancey said this tremendous increase in laying power is "principally due to the use of artificial light furnished for the hens." Research has confirmed the fact that a hen's laying pattern is significantly conditioned by the length of light hours.

"Because light is important and since hens do not lay in the dark," Yancey said, "new laying hens brought into the plant are subjected to artificial light beginning at 13 hours a day. This is stepped up every two weeks until a maximum of 18 hours of light is reached."

Chickens have a high body temperature—105 degrees. This makes heat control an important part of operating an egg plant. "For example," Yancey said, "these 50,000 hens generate so much body heat that the temperature of the facility inside will be 65 degrees when it's only 18 degrees outside. And that's without any other source of heat."

This powerhouse of natural heat means that there must be a constant supply of cool air to keep the hens healthy and the heat at the proper level. "The Wilson plant has 48 fans constantly operating," Yancey said,

Two Injured In Wreck

BETHEL—Two people were seriously injured Saturday morning when a car driven by Willie Mack Little of Bethel struck a train, overturned and burned.

The accident occurred at approximately 11:30 Saturday morning. The Little vehicle, a 1974 Chevrolet, was traveling west on rural paved road 1500, Flat Swamp Rd., when it struck a Seaboard Coast Line train which was traveling south.

According to State Highway Patrolman A.G. Wright, the Little car was knocked 75 feet into a ditch where it overturned and caught fire. Little's daughter, Sandra Joyce Little, 9, was pulled from the car. She sustained a severe laceration of the leg and other injuries. Little also suffered several lacerations and both were taken to the Robersonville Clinic for treatment.

The train came to a stop 750 feet further down the tracks.

The Bethel Fire Department and Rescue Squad assisted in handling the accident.

Charged In Accidents

Four accidents Friday and Saturday resulted in damages estimated at $1465 and six charges against persons involved, according to the Greenville Police Department.

A rear-end collision Saturday morning on Memorial Dr., north of Third St., did $300 estimated damage to the car driven by Merritt West, Jr., P.O. Box 216, and $500 to the car driven by Clinton Ray Person of Winterville. Person was cited for a safe movement violation.

Cars driven by Carl E. Nischan, of Clinton, Conn., and Ruby Wiggins Jones, 405 Greenview Dr., collided Saturday morning at Greenville Blvd. and Arlington Blvd. Damages were $150 to the Nischan car and $140 to the Jones car. Nischan was charged with failure to stop for a stop light.

A two-car collision Saturday morning at Evans St. and Reade Circle involved cars driven by Linda Ann Barrett, Rt. 8, Greenville, and Connie Mack Hardee, 1506 Myrtle Ave. Miss Barrett was charged with failure to see before turning from a direct line. Damages were $150 to the Barrett car and $75 to the Hardee car.

A collision on Reade St., north of Fifth St., occurred Friday morning between cars driven by Lou Ann Minton, of Plymouth, and Wiley Ray Chancey, of Simpson. Chancey was charged with driving without an operator's license and a safe movement violation. James Arthur Telflair, of Simpson, was charged with allowing an unlicensed person to drive his car. Damages were $75 each to both cars.

Teen-Agers Missing

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — Ten teen-aged high school students were missing Saturday in the San Francisco Peaks north of here.

Coconino County sheriff's deputies and search and rescue units used four-wheel drive vehicles and snowmobiles to search the rugged, pine-covered terrain where nearly two feet of snow fell Friday.

The youths, ages 17 to 19, failed to return as scheduled Friday after going to the Bismark Lake area in two vehicles Thursday night. One of the vehicles was found early Saturday stuck in the snow and abandoned.

Fire Damages Mobile Home

A fire early yesterday morning did an estimated $2500 damage to a mobile home on Stantonsburg Rd., according to reports from the Greenville Fire and Police Departments.

The home was occupied by Bert Speight, Jr., 48, of Elm City.

The cause of the fire has not been officially determined, but it apparently started on or near a couch, according to Fire Department reports.

Firemen arrived at the scene about 3 a.m. and had the blaze under control by 4:45.

Couple Advertises For Grandparents

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Ronald Davis family is advertising for grandparents. Not real ones, but ones they can adopt.

"We're just looking for someone to share our love with and someone who wants to share their love with us," said Mrs. Davis, 33.

"We'd like to find an older married couple who enjoy children and families and like to stay active."

Mrs. Davis, a mother of three children, said she and her husband decided to place an advertisement in a local newspaper after searching without success for an older couple at their church to befriend.

She said her own mother, the family's only living grandparent, lives in San Antonio, Texas, which is too far away for frequent contact.

"We would like to find a couple with no children of their own," she said. "We wouldn't want to create any jealous feelings, either with their children or ours.

"If we get any calls we can just invite them over and we can sit down and get to know each other."

"I'm sure there must be some people out there who want to be a part of a family again," she said. "You know, good people who enjoy love and being loved."

Arrested On Murder Charge

JACKSONVILLE, N. C. (AP) — A recently discharged Marine was arrested on a charge of murdering a Marine and jailed without bond, the Onslow County sheriff's office said Friday.

A spokesman said James Eric Spearman, 20, was charged in the death of a Camp Lejeune Marine, Andrew J. Walker, whose body was found at night a week ago on a dirt road about 15 miles from Jacksonville.

Sheriff Thomas Marshall said others are being sought in the slaying, and that he has established a motive in the case, but he declined to elaborate until the investigation is completed.

Sheriff's department detectives said the dead Marine had been stabbed and cut 17 times.

New Zealand Elections

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) — The conservative National party ousted the Labor party from power Saturday in one of the biggest election upsets in New Zealand history.

Nearly complete results gave the National party an overwhelming 53-seat majority in New Zealand's 87-member House of Representatives, a gain of 21 seats.

The nationwide election, a nearly complete turnabout from Labor's 1972 landslide parliamentary victory, brought the business-farmer Nationals to power for three years.

"I am very humble in victory tonight, I can tell you that,"

Plans Hunger Strike

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — Filipinos detained in the Manila area under the martial law decree plan to stage a hunger strike during President Ford's visit here next weekend, according to a statement brought out of a detention camp today.

The statement called the planned strike "a concerted move timed during Ford's visit in the Phillippines . . . to bring to the attention not only of the Filipino people but of all the peoples of the world the plight of political prisoners under the repressive . . . martial law regime."

Ship Fire Put Out

NEW YORK (UPI) — A fire broke out in a luxury liner carrying an estimated 800 American passengers in the Caribbean Sea but crewmen put out the blaze and the vessel headed back toward Florida, the Coast Guard said Saturday.

There were no injuries reported.

No Outright Violations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arms control experts say there have been some "ambiguities" but no outright violations by the Soviet Union in executing the SALT 1 strategic arms agreement of 1972.

But they say if the administration opens up the record to prove that the Russians have not cheated it will itself violate a key clause protecting the confidentiality of the U.S.Soviet Standing Consultative Commission.

Search For Missing Plane

ROME, Ga. (UPI) — Civil Air Patrol units hunted Saturday for a single-engine airplane missing on a flight from Milwaukee to Miami and said they would move their search area eastward Sunday.

A CAP spokesman said a search of this northwest Georgia area with several airplanes, ground vehicles and some 55 patrol members and 20 volunteers failed to turn up any traces of the plane or its four passengers.

Two Bombs Explode

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Two bombs exploded at Dublin's International Airport Saturday in what police sources said might be a reprisal strike by Protestant extremists for recent Irish Republican Army bombings in London.

Willing To Campaign

PARIS (AP) — Elliot L. Richardson, President Ford's nominee for secretary of commerce, indicated today he would be willing to go on the campaign trail for Ford.

"I don't think there is any overriding reason why the secretary of commerce should stay out of political compaigning, the way I think (it) is appropriate for the secretary of state or the secretary of defense," the 55-year-old ambassador to Britain told newsmen.

Attacks S. African Policies

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A veteran U.S. civil rights leader has leveled a stinging attack against South Africa and its racial segregation, accusing the South African regime of barbarism.

Clarence M. Mitchell Jr., in a speech Friday to the U.N. General Assembly, claimed that South Africa maintained "a system of political laws which are designed to stifle and intimidate the political opposition."

No Earthquake Danger

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Officials of Duke Power Co. said Saturday they have concluded that two of the four geologic fault zones unearthed at the company's Lake Wylie nuclear plant site present no earthquake danger and may be 150 million years old.

The company said also that it told the U. S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission in a report mailed Saturday that two other fault zones, one discovered last month, will be investigated further.

The first three fault zones were discovered between June 17 and July 25. They were reported to the commission early in September, a few weeks after the company had received a construction permit for the site from a commission licensing board.

The fourth zone was discovered Oct. 30 and reported to commission officials Oct. 31, said Dick Pierce, public relations spokesman for Duke.

Hopping Mad

HICKORY CORNERS, Mich. (UPI) — Residents of this tiny central Michigan town are hopping mad with their telephone company.

So much so that most of them want their telephones removed.

About 400 persons met in the American Legion Hall Friday night to plan a demonstration protesting a recent 54 per cent rate hike which makes Hickory Telephone Co. service the most expensive in the state.

Under a rate increase approved last Tuesday by the state Public Service Commission, Hickory subscribers will pay a $16.25 basic service charge each month.

The 400 or so customers voted without dissent to march on the company's offices Monday morning and demand that their telephones be removed.

The Hickory Telephone Co. is a subsidiary of a Chicago communications firm.

TWA Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signed legislation increasing the Tennessee Valley Authority's borrowing authority from $5 billion to $15 billion, the White House announced Saturday.

The new law provides for annual instead of semi-annual TVA payments to the Treasury.

Four Political Factions

Proclaim Timor As Part Of Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Four political factions in war-torn Timor Saturday jointly proclaimed the tiny Portuguese colony part of Indonesia, according to the Indonesian Foreign Ministry.

The Foreign Ministry said the four groups issued a proclamation condemning the unilateral declaration of independence Friday by the left-wing Revolutionary Front for an Independent East Timor.

The proclamation, released to the press by the Foreign Ministry, said four centuries of "colonial subjugation" by Portugal had disrupted Timor's "strong ties" with the people of Indonesia.

"For the sake of the safety and well-being of our people, we declare our Portuguese territory part of the territory of Indonesia," the declaration said.

The statement said the declaration of independence by the left-wing group had freed the four factions of a promise to seek a negotiated settlement of the three-month-old civil war.

"We now consider there to be no legal government exercising its authority over Portuguese Timor," the document said.

The left-wing group has had the upper hand in the current fighting, but recent reports said troops supporting the four pro-Indonesian factions have been regaining lost territory.

Timor, about the size of Connecticut, lies in the Indonesian archipelago east of Darwin, Australia. The western half of the island is part of Indonesian territory.

The Foreign Ministry said the proclamation to merge the colony's 600,000 residents with Indonesia was signed by leaders of the Democratic Union of Timor, the Apodeti party, the Trabalhista party and the Kota party.

Concerned Over Fees For N.C. Art Museum

RALEIGH (AP)—Several North Carolina legislators are concerned over the high architectural fees connected with the state art museum building.

The General Assembly's Governmental Operations commission quizzed members of the Art Museum Building commission Friday in search of explanations for the high fees. After an hour and a half of questioning, the commission agreed to continue the inquiry at its next meeting.

Sen. I. C. Crawford, D-Buncombe, chairman of the legislative comission, termed as "excessive" the 6.5 per cent fee the art museum commission awarded architects Edward Durell Stone of New York and Holloway-Reeves of Raleigh for their joint work on the museum. The structure will be built west of Raleigh near the state fairgrounds.

"I think it's beyond reason," said Crawford.

Other commission members also were disturbed by the amount paid out for redesigning the museum after the project was trimmed from an estimated $28 million job to its present cost of $9.6 million.

Because of the special nature of the museum, Crawford admitted that a higher fee than the normal rate should be awarded the museum architects. But he suggested it should be more in the lines of half to 1 per cent.

Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, said the money paid out for the design of a building that will not be used brings the architect's fees to about 10 per cent of the building's cost. He added, "I don't see where you can justify a cost of 10 per cent."

The architects were paid $276,150 for the schematic design phase of the original building, and received $91,218 for reworking that design to fit the current plans. Architect Ralph Reeves estimated that with the sums already paid, his firm and the stone firm together would receive about $900,000 for the job.

Former state Sen. Thomas White, chairman of the building commission, said the legislative body's fears will be put to rest "when this commission sees what has been done and realizes that it's not a matter of the percentage, but of getting the job done."

U.S. 264 Executive Board Announced

A Highway 264 Association Executive Advisory Board, made up of leading business and industrial officials along the East-West highway which runs through mid-Eastern North Carolina, was announced today.

Thomas F. Taft, Greenville attorney and president of the highway group which is working to get 264 transformed into a four-lane limited access highway from Zebulon to Swanquarter, announced the appointments.

Named to the group were W.T. Lamm, Jr., Wilson, chairman of the board of First Union National Bank in Wilson; Thorne Gregory, president, Branch Banking and Trust Copmpany, Wilson; Thomas J. Hackney, Jr., president, Hackney Bros. Body Company, Wilson; Robert B. Frantz, Senior Vice-President, First Union National Bank, Wilson; Robert T. Monk, vice-president, A.C. Monk and Company, Inc., Farmville; Ed Davenport, businessman, Farmville; William W. Speight, Pitt County attorney, Greenville; W.B. Glenn, president, Carolina Leaf Tobacco Company, Greenville; and G. Henry Leslie, Plant Manager, Burroughs Wellcome and Company, Inc.

Others named to the Executive Advisory Board are W.R. Roberson, president, Roberson Enterprises, Washington; Keith L. Lamb, vice-president, Weyerhauser Corporation, New Bern; R. Ward Grosz, president, North Carolina Phosphate Corporation, Washington; Henry C. Humphreys, executive vice-president, National Spinning Company, Washington; James A. Paden, general manager, Texas Gulf Inc., Aurora; and Linley H. Gibbs, Jr., vice-president manufacturing, Hamilton Beach Division, Scovill Manufacturing Company.

Taft said the new Executive Advisory Board will work actively to help the Association complete its objective.

"Highway 264 has not received the improvements required for the heavy traffic volume that has been built up along the route and we are growing weary of promises," Taft said today. "We are demanding action and we are going to demand it at the highest political and professional levels," he said.

50,000 Hens ...

"and it also has a standby generator in case of power failure. Without fans circulating the air, the hens would begin to die within two hours during hot weather."

Getting the young hens, or pullets, ready for the laying stage is an expensive proposition—estimated at a cost of $2.25 per young hen.

"Feeding the laying hens requires enormous amount of food," Yancey commented. "Sunnyside purchases some one-half million bushels of corn from local sources annually. Feed for the laying hens is 65 per cent corn and 34 per cent soybean meal."

Eggs are an important part of the Pitt County economy, Yancey points out. "Pitt is the third highest egg producing county in North Carolina, and North Carolina is about the third highest producer of eggs in the nation, so you see it's a big industry."

Pitt County produced eggs are sold mostly in North Carolina and Virginia, but are also sold as far away as Florida and New York.

Wilson, a native of Alabama and his wife, Sally, have two children, Lisa and Jeff. "Joe Wilson learned the egg business from the ground up," Yancey said.

Phone Patrol

By PETER B. SEYMOUR
Associated Press Writer

JANESVILLE, Wis. (AP) — Mrs. Benjamin Rauworth shudders at the memory of an elderly neighbor who lay helplessly on a floor of her home after suffering a stroke.

"She was there for five days," said Mrs. Rauworth. "She tried throwing everything at a window to attract attention, even her false teeth."

The woman was rescued, by chance, when someone at last knocked at her door.

But chance isn't good enough, said Mrs. Rauworth. As a safeguard against such incidents, she and about 20 other volunteers have organized a telephone patrol to make contact each day with elderly and handicapped persons in their neighborhoods.

"We let the phone ring 10 times," she explained. "If there is no answer, we call someone to go to the home and inquire."

The service is called Telephone Life Line and is part of a program that supporters hope to spread nationwide. Janesville is the only Wisconsin community in which the project is currently operating.

Mrs. Fred Sweeney, who spends most of her waking hours in a wheelchair, said the daily telephone calls have become a welcome way of life.

"My husband and I are both visually handicapped, and it is nice to have someone interested in us," she said.

Despite its benefits, Mrs. Rauworth said, many shut-ins are reluctant to admit they should be on the call list.

"It is a problem to get people who are alone to get confident enough to call us in the first place," she said. "Some folks like to think they are independent."

Can Minimize Hypertension

Some risk factors associated with heredity cannot be eliminated, but their effects can be minimized by adopting a lifestyle designed to forestall hypertension, a local internist says.

Dr. Eric Fearrington, who is a member of the Board of Directors of the Pitt County Heart Association, said "You can keep your weight in bounds by maintaining a sensible diet and remaining active. " The American Heart Association has developed what it calls its 'prudent diet.' This includes fortified skim milk, less beef, pork, and lamb, more fish and chicken, margarine instead of butter, and few egg yolks.

"Walking is a good way to keep your body in tone," he said. "You need to start gradually, working your way up to a fast clip. Do not be discouraged if you do not get much beyond the end of your driveway the first day. By going a little farther each day you will build up your stamina—and improve both your circulation and the health of your heart.

"Almost any exercise will serve the same purpose—whether it's swimming, bicycling, tennis, or whatever you enjoy. Your skill does not matter; your persistence does. The important thing to remember is that if you are not used to a particular kind of exercise, you must start slowly and gradually increase your endurance. Overexercising can lead to a set of problems on its own."

Dr. Fearrington suggested maintaining a reasonably serene home atmosphere. "Job satisfaction should be considered, too," he said, "since your work occupies about a third of your life.

"Everyone is subject to some kind of tension virtually every day. The object is to keep it to—literally—a livable minimum."

Terrorists, Agents, Criminals

Nuclear Attack Capability

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terrorists, foreign agents and organized crime figures theoretically are capable of attacking nuclear power plants and releasing deadly radioactivity or stealing weapon components, according to a report prepared for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Publicity about U.S. intelligence operations has enhanced the capability of the Soviet bloc "to conduct sabotage operations against licensed nuclear facilities ...," the report warned.

It was prepared by a panel of 10 persons familiar with terrorism or nuclear activity and assembled by the Mitre Corp., a research organization with offices near Washington.

The report recommends that the commission, which licenses atomic operations, take steps to increase the security of nuclear facilities.

It said such groups as the Irish Republican Army, Palestinian guerrillas, or Latin American revolutionaries might sabotage a nuclear plant as vengeance or take control of a plant, holding it "hostage to destruction unless certain demands were met."

"The acquisition of special nuclear materials by a terrorist group would give it a power of blackmail over the world at large, and the United States in particular, without precedent," the report said.

It said that members of organized crime groups also have shown the ability to carry out the "patient, methodical work" needed to penetrate seemingly secure facilities. Terrorists, foreign nations and organized crime elements might work together to sabotage a nuclear operation, it said.

The study also warned that the intelligence network of China should not be underestimated regarding nuclear plants. "It is possible that China will become a much more serious threat to licensed nuclear facilities within the next 5 or 10 years," it said.

Listing points in the nuclear chain that are susceptible to sabotage, the report said "significant radioactivity" could be released during fuel reprocessing, waste storage or transportation of nuclear wastes.

It said plutonium could be stolen, diverted or released during transport, storage, reprocessing or while in use at nuclear plants.

It warned the commission that would-be saboteurs would attempt to learn as much as possible about a plant's engineering and security details; would attempt to recruit an accomplice on the security force, and might attempt to kidnap an employe or a member of an employe's family to force cooperation.

Work By A 'Practical Dreamer'

Without a doubt, if it hadn't been for the hard work of Miss Gertrude Carraway of New Bern, the restored Tryon Palace wouldn't stand today.

Miss Carraway spent years tracing the original plans for the colonial palace of the royal governor. Then she spent more years pursuading groups and individuals and the state government that the dream could be realized.

Miss Carraway is one of those rare people who can dream things, and then do practical things which bring the dreams about. In the case of Tryon Palace she showed the doubters that the restored structure could be a major attraction.

As she pointed out in an interview with Daily Reflector Sunday Editor Jerry Raynor, the money left for the Tryon Palace restoration by Mrs. Maude Moore Latham has actually grown. The funds amounted to around $1.5 million in 1951. Since then over $5 million has been spent and there is still more money left than the commission started with.

Miss Carraway, even today, points to the practical side of tourist attractions.

"Already, tourists, constitute the third largest industry in North Carolina, next to textiles and tobacco," she said in the interview. "There's almost every evidence tourism will become the most lucrative industry in this area. It augers well for business, as well as for good citizenship.

"Money is important to our people and the economic values of tourism are hard to beat," she said, "But the more intrinsic values of good citizenship, the study of history, the inspiration, and encouragement to be better citizens, all these things are a great deal more important than economic values alone.

"One good thing," she added, "Tourism has no environmental problems."

If North Carolina had a few more practical-dreamers like Miss Gertrude Carraway, it wouldn't be long before we would solve many of our economic problems.

Farmers And Others Recognized Value

Users of feeds and fertilizers in North Carolina showed they are aware of the importance of the "Nickels For Know-How" program with a overwhelming vote last week.

Users were voting on continuing the program for six more years. Involved is a nickel per ton assessment on fertilizer and feed. The funds support a research program at N.C. State.

The program has been a great asset to our state. It is good that farmers and other users recognize this.

"Well, at least it may give those stupid cartoonists something to draw besides 'Jaws' . . ."

Told To 'Stay Off Grass'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Highway patrolmen have been cautioned by their commanders to stay off the median grass strips unless they just must turn around there.

Reacting to pressure brought by a group of legislators, Patrol Commander E. W. Jones has notified his men that unnecessary crossing in the grass is causing damage to the grass, the roadway shoulders, and to drainage ditches. Such a practice "also creates traffic hazards," Col. Jones reminded the troopers.

Some legislators complained that the practice of some patrolmen in whipping the cars off one lane, across the median, and back onto the highway going the other direction, has caused near collisions.

State Rep. John Ed Davenport, D-Nash, said he called on the patrol commander personally to discuss the problem and found him "as always most cooperative in responding to the situation."

New Rules

Jones told the troopers they are not to cross the grass median for their own personal convenience or to apprehend drivers for minor infractions.

Crossing the grass will be permitted to catch a driver traveling at "extremely high rates of speed," or engaged in "extremely dangerous violations." The grass can also be crossed to render assistance in an emergency.

The measure is necessary to eliminate danger and avoid creating higher maintenance costs, Jones has told his men.

Storm Brewing

Powerful members of the General Assembly are now involved in the storm brewing around the state's community college system.

Members of the Legislative Services Commission, chaired by the speaker of the House and the president pro tempore of the Senate, held a session recently behind closed doors with State Board of Education Chairman Dallas Herring.

Legislators have ordered an audit of various community college activities, and commissioned staff members to prepare a thoroughoing study with recommendations for change.

As a first step in that direction, a staffer prepared a review of policy and planning, with a look ahead which met severe criticism in the community college offices. The legislative staff member was invited not to come back to investigate the system further.

"Dr. Herring now understands, and will relay to the proper officials, the fact that legislative investigators are welcome at any time," a member of the Services Commission said following the three-hour session.

Herring as chairman of the State Board of Education is the official who presides over the policy-making and supervisory body which directs the separate departments of community colleges and public schools.

Study Panel

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., has called for a study panel to set out goals and directions for the community colleges, while a legislative study commission in probing problems in the administrative setup of the system.

Most of the debate centers around administrative and legal problems, involving considerable political maneuvering and budget control questions.

"We are just having growing pains, and there is a lot of politics at work," says a community college spokesman. The criticism is not directed at programs and activities at the community college and technical institute campuses, he said.

Brains, Energy Pay Off

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The President of the United States made his way back to the Press enclave aboard Air Force One and looked at an unfamiliar face in the seat always occupied by United Press International.

"Where's Helen?" asked President Ford with concern.

The unfamiliar face told the President that UPI White House Reporter Helen Thomas had been forced to go to New York to sign contracts for a book about chief executives she has known. Ford — in a sort of what are-the-Democrats-and-Ronald Reagan-up-to-now tone — asked what Helen was writing about him.

The unfamiliar face told the President he did not know, but that one suggested title for the book had been, "No Thank You, Mr. President."

Ford threw his head back in laughter.

Helen, whose book is being published by Macmillan this month, rejected the suggested title and instead chose "Dateline: White House." The Presidential mansion has been her professional home for 15 years and her book is the stuff of John F. and Jacqueline Kennedy, Lyndon B. and Ladybird Johnson, Richard M. and Pat Nixon and Gerald R. and Betty Ford with the cast including the Henry A. Kissingers and Martha Mitchells; but she says little about Helen Thomas.

She's been at the White House longer than Franklin D. Roosevelt. She became the first woman president of the White House Correspondents Association. She became the first woman member of the Gridiron Club. She is probably more in demand as a speaker than any other Washington reporter.

But that's the glamour part. Helen's success is not due to the charms of the 18 golden Middle East bracelets that jingle and herald her arrival. Her colleagues cite her inte-

Sunday Morning Notes

The 1965 ECU Tangerine Bowl football team was being honored at halftime ceremonies of the ECU-VMI game last weekend.

The men, ten years older than when they played, gathered at the fence at the southwestern corner of the stadium awaiting their time to go on the field.

Someone in charge told them they could walk along the fence and enter through a gate. ". . . unless you want to jump over the fence," he chuckled.

"No, no, no," one of the former players said. "My jumping days are over."

Well, that Tangerine Bowl game was ten years ago.

As it turned out there will be no Tangerine Bowl for the Pirates this year, but Dr. Leo Jenkins does have visions of future appearances in the Peach or Gator Bowls. That's what he told the Wake County Alumni Association in a talk there last week.

And, why not? At the beginning of the football season no one would have dared predict victories over UNC and Virginia, with a Tangerine Bowl bid even being considered.

Think big.

---

Fred Mattox suggested to your columnist in Biggs Drug Store that we check with Agnes Fullilove School one day last week to see why the flag was flying upside down.

ALVIN TAYLOR

That, of course, is the signal for distress, so your columnist rode by the school to see what it was all about.

The flag looked rightside up to me, and everything seemed quiet. Oh well . . .

The comment served to bring a story to mind for J.B. Smith, a local realtor.

He said that a few years back, he received a call from the police station.

"Mr. Smith," a voice asked. "How much is the price for Rose High School?"

J.B. was puzzled until the officer explained that one of the Smith "For Sale" signs had been run up the flag pole in front of the school.

So far as I know, no one actually purchased the facility.

The Tar Heels, under the tutelage of Coach Carl Snavely for the second straight year, started the season with a bang, rolling through seven straight wins. Wake Forest, Tennessee, Maryland, Davidson, Georgia Tech, North Carolina State and Virginia Military Institute all fell in order.

After Duke halted the winning streak with a 25-0 victory over the Tar Heels, they came back to administer to Virginia its worst beating in history by a Southern Conference team.

INSIDE REPORT

McGovern's Wayward Bus

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Long before Sen. George McGovern arrived here Sunday to exploit polarization of the Democratic party on forced school busing, it was unmistakably clear that even among advanced liberals the mood was surprisingly hostile to any such confrontation.

Consequently, the most powerful political operatives at the three-day "issues conference" put on by liberal Democrats (many of whom backed McGovern in 1972) felt betrayed by McGovern's ideological foray. If, as most Democrats here assumed, McGovern was trying to recapture the party's left in preparation for another presidential campaign, his busing speech set off a harsh backlash that is having the opposite effect.

Indeed, meticulous efforts have been made by organizers of the issues conference to avoid just the sort of party quarrel that McGovern set off with his emotional appeal for his party not to "sell its soul" on busing. "The one thing we didn't want were political harangues from either presidential candidates or activists on the floor," one conference sponsor told us before McGovern's inflammatory busing speech.

Moreover, McGovern had been specifically asked not to raise the busing issue, both by Democratic politicians here in Louisville, now being tortured by a busing crisis, and by politicians sponsoring the conference—including at least one official of the left-oriented United Auto Workers (UAW).

"He was forewarned," a top UAW political operative told us. "What he did was totally and completely irresponsible. He did a disservice to the Democratic party, and if he really intends to make an effort for the nomination next year he will never get any support from anyone in this union."

But McGovern was not here for the first two days of what—before his onslaught—had been developing into a low-key, almost soporific liberal talkfest. He did not know, or did not care, that liberal union activists—mostly from the UAW and the machinists union—were anything but enthusiastic about an issues conference that risked opening the bloody wounds of 1972.

Nor was such moderation limited to delegates on the floor at the Louisville Gardens. Signs of change within the Democratic party were also unmistakable from the speaker's platform, where liberal Democratic officeholders, past and present, gingerly stepped around ideological potholes.

An example was Mayor Kenneth Gibson of Newark, black leader of a city where 90 per cent of school children are black. Gibson appealed not for busing (saying Newark's blacks are against it), but for a return to basic education "so that our children can go forward to where this country used to be in education techniques."

Similarly, on another issue sacred to Democratic liberals—national health insurance—a certified liberal, former Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio, stunned his audience by coming out against any nationwide health insurance program.

"In the decade since medicare and medicaid appeared, we have poured billions into the health care delivery systems of this country" without much result, Gilligan said.

Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, a liberal who took office last January, lamented "the failing Great Society programs" built on the presumed power of Washington to solve all problems. To the contrary, Dukakis said, the place for

Other Editors Say Running Scared

(Henderson Dispatch)

A pollster says President Ford is running scared. Scared, that is, of Ronald Reagan. The President didn't say it; it was the pollster's opinion.

Actually, most candidates for office must have a feeling of uneasiness as the campaign wears on. However onesided it may appear, there is always the uncertainty until the votes are counted. No one really knows until that. Then the surprises, the disappointments, and forsooth the celebration for the winner.

Harry Truman, you may remember, ran scared in 1948. He said he didn't know if he would win or not, but he was running. His opposition was former Governor Tom Dewey of New York. All the polls said Dewey was a shoo-in. He was making plans for taking over from Truman at inauguration.

On election night, the conservative Chicago Tribune issued an extra blaring across the top of page one that "Dewey Defeats Truman." But the votes had not all been counted, and when they were in, Truman had been reelected by a very substantial majority. A copy of that extra by the Tribune was a prized possession of Truman to the end of his days.

Watergate testified to the fact that Nixon was running scared in 1972, but he carried all but one of the fifty States—the State of the Kennedys. Massachusetts. It would have been a record triumph for Nixon except for the scandal that followed which shocked the country.

Maybe it's just as well for a candidate to run scared. If he didn't put everything possible into his appeal, his fright may have been justified. Nobody knows today whether Ford will win next November, or even whether he will get his party's nomination in the first place. After the confrontation with Reagan, if it goes that far, he will know he has been in a battle. After all, Reagan is only the first challenge. After that would be the liberal, leftist opposition. Scared? Who wouldn't be?

Strength For Today

NOT ON SPEAKING TERMS

The French philosopher Voltaire was perhaps the best-known religious skeptic of eighteenth century France, yet on one occasion when a religious procession passed him in the street, he raised his hat in a salute. A friend of Voltaire's, standing nearby, was surprised. "What?" he asked the great philosopher. "Do you believe in God?" Voltaire's ironic reply was, "We salute but we do not speak."

We do not have to go back to Voltaire and the eighteenth century to encounter this attitude. Many people today salute God but never speak to Him. The salute may take the form of an occasional visit to a church, or perhaps even regularity in church attendance. Or perhaps it may be a random gift to charity or some other worthy cause. But the person doing the saluting does not ponder the revelation of God in the Bible, nor does he try to communicate with God in prayer.

When men salute God but do not speak, they know nothing of the comfort and blessing of a simple religious faith.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bankers might understand finance but in the opinion of many they don't know a great deal about real estate. Otherwise, their critics say, they wouldn't be in the mess in which they find themselves.

That mess includes billions of dollars in loans to developers and real estate investment trusts that aren't paying off, and in repossession of properties they really don't know how to operate.

The problem began when, during the optimism of those prerecession days, they were sold on the idea that real estate offered great possibilities.

"Today, some banks in major cities have between 20 and 60 per cent of their investment portfolios tied up in real estate," said Benjamin Lambert, president of Eastdil Realty, Inc.

The loans were easily made but not easily collected. "A developer trying to pay back his loan at 16 per cent interest just couldn't stand it," said Lambert, whose company is an affiliate of Blythe Eastman Dillon & Co., the investment banker.

He expects it will take three to five years for many of these banks to resolve their real estate problems and some may sustain heavy losses in the process.

But he added that future economic expansion and opportunities should enable banks to correct their errors.

Eastdil has been called in as consultant and sometimes manager on billions of dollars of troubled real estate, much of which it has salvaged at profit. It was a forerunner, and probably is the biggest now, of what have come to be called "real estate doctors."

"The typical consultant gives you a fancy report that tells you you're sick," says Lambert. "We tell him 'this is how you get well,' and then we go out and do it."

Refinancing is often the first step out of the predicament. Lambert, an art major in college, considers it an art, "a complex combination of sources and systems of providing capital, coupled with surprising variations in capital market response to real estate."

With time on his side, Lambert and his crews can correct major deficiencies, such as structural defects, marketing errors, bad image, inadequate personnel and perhaps even poor location, which often is considered fatal.

If the problems can't be resolved, Eastdil has advised banks to take their losses.

Banks will be able to turn a profit on real estate in the future, Lambert states, "if and when their investments are more carefully underwritten and managed."

Observations From Editorial Columns

Crime Out Of Hand

The rise in numbers of crimes of all kinds reflects clearly that a great many people have little or no respect for the law or for the rights of others.

Selfishness and greed influence their activities more than whatever training and discipline they may have received in homes, schools and churches.

When a substantial proportion of the population does not choose to observe our laws and another sizable segment is indifferent to law enforcement, the remainder may have trouble getting up courage and momentum needed to combat the criminal element . . .

Many people are convinced that the crime wave is largely a result of declines in morality, church attendance and home discipline that have been visible on the American scene since World War II. Greater individual freedom and informal patterns of living have often been interpreted to mean that a person need have little concern as to how others may be affected by overt acts.

This attitude has spawned campaigns to outlaw capital punishment, imprisonment and any punishment for so-called "victimless" crimes, such as use of drugs, drunkenness and some sex offenses . . .

Youngsters follow ethical patterns of their parents and teachers, or those revealed in what they read and see. They do not always have high ideals to observe. Without strong character-building instruction, many children turn readily to crime . . .

"Operation ID," a program to encourage citizens to mark their property for identification, if stolen, is one way. Another is for citizens to keep watch on neighbors' homes, reporting crimes or suspicious activities and persons.

Citizens also should raise their voices whenever courts or other public officials display laxity in law enforcement duties.

Neurotic Dogs

A psychiatric clinic in Europe is treating 5,000 mentally ill dogs a year, according to Dr. L. L. Vine, a Chapel Hill author and veterinarian. Dogs, he says, reflect the neuroses of their owners; so for successful treatment, owners must have counseling, too.

If the owner can't afford psychiatry, particularly if it involves a trip to Europe, the neurotic dog may be treated on the cheap with tranquilizers. But use caution, Dr. Vine advises. Tranquilizers will help a dog with his abnormal behavior problems, but they may turn him into a junkie.

What the doctor is saying, we're afraid, is that while a dog may be man's best friend, the arrangement doesn't seem to be reciprocal.

Where The Trouble Lies

Just in case there is any question as to where the trouble lies in meeting this country's energy needs, hark to the words of Dr. V.E. McKelvey.

Dr. McKelvey is director of the U.S. Geological Survey. Speaking in Houston, Dr. McKelvey said the hope for the immediate future lies in development of the energy resources of the outer continental shelf. And he gave four problems standing in the way of tapping that resource to the fullest:

Gaining public consent, the technology and cost, the landlord-tenant relationship of the federal government and private industry, and the defining of the proper roles for government and the private sector in connection with exploration and development.

Four problems, and three of them have nothing whatsoever to do with the essential business of getting oil and gas out of the ground. Three out of four problems in our energy-scarce future are of our own making.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, November 30th, the 334th day of 1975. There are 31 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1782, the United States and Britain signed preliminary peace articles in Paris ending the Revolutionary War.

On this date:

In 1864, one of the bloodiet conflicts of the Civil War, the Battle of Franklin, Tennessee, was fought.

In 1874, the British statesman, Sir Winston Churchill, was born.

In 1939, the Soviet Union attacked Finland.

In 1942, during World War II, U.S. bombers struck at Japanese forces holding Rangoon, Burma.

In 1949, the Chinese Communists captured Chungking, China.

In 1962, General U Thant of Burma was elected Secretary General of the United Nations.

Ten years ago: Two American soldiers released after two years in Vietcong captivity arrived in Cambodia and said they wanted to quit the Army to conduct a campaign to get the U.S. out of Vietnam.

Five years ago: Official census figures were released showing that the U.S. population had increased by 24 million between 1960 and 1970.

One year ago: The U.S. Pioneer 2 spacecraft, on a mission to photograph Jupiter, neared the planet after a journey of almost two years.

Today's birthdays: Actor Efrem Zimbalist Jr. is 52 years old. Comedian Allen Sherman is 51.

Thought for today: Experience is the only thing most people get out of life — anonymous.

A Conservative View

Some Reflection On That 'Interim' CIA Report

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Now that the dust has settled from the great CIA report, perhaps a couple of sober questions may be asked. Was this particular report in the national interest? Is tyrannicide ever morally justified?

I would answer the first question, no, and the second question, uncertainly, yes; but on these issues there is abundant room for reasonably minded men to disagree. The questions defy easy answers.

Consider, first, the report itself. It is described by the Senate Intelligence Committee, with emphasis, as an interim report. The implication is that other findings on other attempted assassinations are yet to come. The committee's conclusions, tentative as they are, are something less than final. What compelling necessity, we may inquire, demanded release of such an interim report? I know of none.

Even as an interim report, the committee's conclusions are remarkably inconclusive. Descriptive words recur: uncertain, incomplete, insufficient, doubtful, speculative, unclear, conflicting. The committee sutdied our government's role as to five men: Lumumba in the Congo, Castro in Cuba, Diem in Vietnam, Schneider in Chile, and Trujillo in the Dominican Republic.

The findings boil down to this: In two of the cases (Lumumba and Castro), assassination proposals went beyond mere discussion and reached a stage of specific planning. In the other three cases, there was talk only. In none of the five cases did CIA agents make an actual attempt. There is a "reasonable inference" that Eisenhower authorized an assassination effort as to Lumumba, but the inference is offset by evidence to the contrary. Other presidents are cleared.

That is the sum total of 8,000 pages of testimony, thousands of hours of work by staff members, and 347 pages of an interim report. What a mountain of labor, one is minded to observe, to produce so small a churchmouse. For these uncertain, incomplete, and inconclusive conclusions, what price must be paid?

The committee report provides a rich meal for America's detractors to feed on. By reason of this publication, the CIA's vital task will be made more difficult; the intelligence services of friendly nations will think twice about cooperating in the future. A mass of highly sensitive material has now been compiled in written form; it will be a miracle if this material is not leaked or stolen. It is a strange exercise in national masochism, thus to flagellate ourselves before the world.

The committee, of course, feels otherwise. "The committee believes the truth about the assassination allegations should be told because democracy depends upon a well-informed electorate. We reject any contention that the facts disclosed in this report should be kept secret because they are embarrassing to the United States." No one can quarrel with the committee's abstract defense of the people's right to know. But do the people have a right to know everything? Do the people have a right to know the intimate, sordid details spelled out in this interim report? For my own part, I deny it.

The plot against Lumumba evolved from an apprehension, soundly based at the time, that the Soviet Union, through Lumumba, was about to take over the Congo. Look at a map of Africa; contemplate the consequences. The plot against Castro evolved from the actual, physical presence of Soviet missiles in Cuba—the first such Communist penetration in the Western Hemisphere.

The civilized mind recoils from any thought of murder in cold blood. In the two cases, this was what the CIA was plotting. The specific schemes—deadly, bizarre and ludicrous—both repel and fascinate the reader. Each of us may form his own judgment on presidential involvement. "It is my personal view," says Sen. Howard Baker, "that on balance the likelihood that presidents knew of the assassination plots is greater than the likelihood that they did not." This is a chilling business to brood on.

But is there no case—no case whatever—in which tyrannicide could be justified? If it had been possible to arrange the murder of Hitler in, say, 1938, and thus to have averted the fearful consequences of his madness, would this have been a moral act? My own feeling is that in the dangerous world we live in, our leaders must occasionally think unthinkable thoughts; and in the overriding necessity, must not flinch from doing the unthinkable deed.

Economic Agreement Shows Signs Of Accord On Moderate Approach

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

To a world accustomed to international spectaculars, it is not surprising that the recent "economic summit" outside Paris was treated in the press as something of a dud.

Much has been made of the fact that the U. S., France, West Germany, Britain, Italy and Japan, the big-six of free industrial nations, failed to come up with a scheme for a quick and painless end to their common economic woes, to say nothing to those of the so-called Third World.

Certainly, the closing Declaration of Rambouillet offered no grand design for a sudden end to unemployment and inflation and a return of living standards to a shyward course. Instead, it spoke, rather modestly, of not allowing recovery to falter, of not accepting another outburst of inflation, and of promoting stable money, all with the objective of "steady and lasting" growth.

This is conservative language. It is completely lacking of the pie-in-the-sky ideology which has characterized policies of these nations for the past 20-years and brought on double digit inflation, with its resulting recession. It should be noted that the language used in such documents is chosen with great care. Thus, the conservative tone is not something that "just happened".

This raises a basic question, with broad implications for the future: Have the leaders of the big-six agreed to settle for a relatively slow growth rate for the next few years, rather than risk still worse inflation which could well grow out of over-stimulation?

Any hard and fast answer will be slow in coming. Certainly, in each of the six nations there are powerful political forces urging that policy be geared to a rapid return to "growth-at-any-cost". And leaders who come right out and say they are willing to accept high unemployment as a trade off against inflation would find it risky.

But the language of the Declaration certainly points this direction. You don't need to stretch meanings to equate such words as "steady and lasting", efforts to "restore greater stability" to underlying "economic and financial conditions" and refusal to accept "additional inflationary forces" with "slow growth".

In fact, this is a widely accepted part of President Ford's economic policy here in the U.S. It has brought him into constant conflict with the Democratic-run Congress on spending and credit policies for most of this year. Congress fumes that Ford has been unwilling to accept the tremendous deficits which would be required to make any quick dent in the level of unemployment. Ford sees this as the route to a quick boom, with runaway inflation, and an even more serious recession.

Under the Ford timetable, it will take five or more years of better than average growth to absorb the unemployed and bring the unemployment rate down from near 8.5 percent to say 5 percent. In the meantime, the hope is that inflation will shrink to an annual rate of 4 percent to 5 percent, which is still high by any standard except that of the past few years.

Ford, of course, is under constant political criticism here at home for the slow pace of recovery. And, from time to time, foreign political leaders have commented to the effect they would like to see more aggressive action by the U.S. to lead the industrial nations out of recession.

But it may be that at Paris Ford persuaded leaders of the other five nations that prudent policies are the soundest way back. He could point to some fairly solid gains in this country for the past six months, since recession hit bottom, and to signs that gains are continuing along a widening front.

The automobile industry, now that it has more efficient cars to offer consumers, has scored sizeable sales gains in recent weeks. And housing, one of the first industries to be hit by the slump, has shown slow gains. It has a severe price problem to fight against.

But for many months, these key industries were severe drags on the entire economy. As they improve, they will pull a wide range of suppliers up with them.

Inflation still is the major threat to recovery. While it has dropped substantially from last year's chilling heights, it is still a burden on consumers—depresses buying power. And recent jumps at the wholesale level have yet to be fully reflected in consumer prices.

It will be reassuring if the Declaration of Rambouillet is, in fact, evidence of an agreement on moderation.

more government lies in the town, county and state, not in the nation's capital with its remote, all-powerful bureaucracy.

Perhaps the most down-to-earth change in liberal Democratic politics of 1976 as contrasted to McGovernite confrontation politics of 1972 came from a UAW official in regular and intimate touch with political sentiments in his union, whose rank-and-file is considerably less liberal than its leadership. He swept his arm over the conference and spat out an expletive to us: "We don't need an issues conference today because every good Democrat knows there is only one issue, and that is jobs, jobs and jobs."

One after another, each of the presidential candidates who showed up here said the same thing in his own way, steering away from the ideological masochism that wrecked their party in 1972.

But George McGovern tried to change the mood, thundering his demand for ideological purity on busing as an overture for offering himself once again as a sacrificial nominee to assure that purity is achieved. There were few takers here in Louisville. Even this liberal conference wanted to get out from under the long, self-destructive shadow of 1972.

A Baby Adds To Reasons For Saying 'Thank You'

Well, Thanksgiving season is here once again, and once again I have a great deal for which to be thankful. I'm thankful that not once during my pregnancy did I get wedged in a doorway. I'm thankful that, when Phillip and I moved, the house didn't fall apart as often as we did. I'm thankful that the telephone company has finally found us — although I wish that an encyclopedia salesman and a Jehovah's Witness hadn't. But most of all I'm thankful that Phillip and I now have a beautiful new daughter.

Of course, having a new baby in the house has caused some major changes in our lifestyle. Maybe it's because babies can get away with almost anything. For instance, who else but a new baby can go to the bathroom in your picket—and you think it's cute?

And who else but a new baby can win over a stranger just by making faces in her sleep?

And who else but a new baby can get you up at 3:00 a.m. just because she's lonely — and you readily climb out of bed without once using profanity (well, at least not once you're fully awake)?

And who else but a new baby can convince her father that changing her dirty diapers is a privilege?

And who else but a new baby can howl for three hours straight — and the only one who wants to shut her up forceably is the cat?

And who else but a new baby gets applauded for a burp?

GAIL MICHAELS

And who else but a new baby can come for a lengthy visit that requires nine month's preparation — and you never look at it as an imposition?

And who else but a new baby can teach two adults that the true meaning of life lies in the miracle of life itself?

Nearly 3 In 10 Americans Do Not Know Significance Of 1776

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—With the nation about to celebrate its 200th anniversary, nearly three Americans in 10 are unable to say what important event occurred in the year 1776.

Furthermore, only 5 per cent of the British attach any significance to this date, which represents the year the Declaration of Independence was signed and the 13 colonies broke off from England.

These findings emerge from the Gallup Poll's "Cultural Olympics," a contest recently conducted by the Gallup Poll in the U.S. and Great Britain. The survey was designed to compare the levels of cultural information in the two nations and to determine what change has occurred in these levels in each nation since 1955.

A representative sample of adults in each country was first asked about four important dates in the development and history of the United States and Great Britain and also asked to identify famous historical figures.

The latest "Cultural Olympics" offers these two key findings:

1. The British achieve a somewhat better average score on the 10 names tested than do the Americans, even though a lower proportion of people in Great Britain than in the U.S. have attained a high level of formal education. The average correct score in Great Britain is 64 per cent, while the average for the U.S. is 54 per cent.

2. The levels of cultural information, in terms of the names tested, have increased since 1955 among both the British and American publics. The average test score for the British has increased from 55 per cent in 1955 to 64 per cent in 1975. The average test score for the Americans has increased from 46 per cent in 1955 to 54 per cent in the current survey.

In assessing the significance of these increases, however, it should be borne in mind that the level of formal education in both countries has grown markedly since 1955, particularly in the United States. In this country, the proportion today who attended college is double the proportion recorded in 1955.

Year 1492 Has Meaning For Most Americans

Those surveyed in each nation were first asked: "Can you tell me what important event occurred in the following years?"

Americans do better with 1492 (81 per cent are correct) than with 1776 (as indicated, 72 per cent are correct, 28 per cent incorrect). When it comes to two important British dates, however most Americans draw a blank. Only 10 per cent know what important event happened in 1066 (the Battle of Hastings) and only 7 per cent attach any significance to the year 1215 (the signing of the Magna Carta by King John).

The British return the compliment. Only 5 per cent of the British attach any significance to the year 1776 and only 10 per cent associate 1492 with Columbus's voyage. The British are not much better than Americans when it comes to their own history. While nearly seven in 10 (68 per cent) name the Battle of Hastings for 1066, only 16 per cent name 1215 as the year in which the Magna Carta was signed.

Following are the national results for each country on the dates tested:

Results of 'Cultural Olympics'—Dates
—Per Cent Correctly Identifying—

| | United States | Great Britain |
|---|---|---|
| 1776 | 72% | 5% |
| 1492 | 81 | 10 |
| 1066 | 10 | 68 |
| 1215 | 7 | 16 |

All persons in the sample in each country were also asked to identify the following persons:

Results of 'Cultural Olympics' Historical Figures
—Per Cent Correctly Identifying—

| | United States | Great Britain |
|---|---|---|
| Columbus | 92% | 87% |
| Shakespeare | 89 | 92 |
| Beethoven | 84 | 91 |
| Napoleon | 58 | 86 |
| Freud | 47 | 54 |
| Aristotle | 44 | 33 |
| Marx | 41 | 59 |
| Raphael | 34 | 41 |
| Tolstoy | 29 | 45 |
| Rubens | 24 | 56 |
| Average | 54 | 61 |

The following table shows the change between 1955 and 1975 in the proportion of Americans able to identify each name. An increase is recorded for each, with the exception of Napoleon. The greatest increase is recorded in the proportions able to correctly identify Beethoven and Freud.

Per Cent Of Americans Able To Identify 10 Historical Figures

| | 1955 | 1975 |
|---|---|---|
| Columbus | 90% | 92% |
| Shakespeare | 79 | 89 |
| Napoleon | 67 | 58 |
| Beethoven | 64 | 84 |
| Marx | 33 | 41 |
| Aristotle | 34 | 44 |
| Raphael | 31 | 34 |
| Tolstoy | 24 | 29 |
| Freud | 22 | 47 |
| Rubens | 15 | 24 |
| | 46% | 54% |

Men Score Higher Than Women

Men achieve slightly higher average scores on the dates and historical figures tested than do women in both the United States and Britain. This was also the case in the 1955 "Cultural Olympics" contest.

The results reported today are based on full-scale national surveys conducted in October in the United States and Great Britain by Gallup-affiliated organizations in each nation. In the U.S., a total of 1,553 adults, 18 and older, were interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Oct. 17-20.

Feud Along Paths To Washington

By KENDAL WEAVER
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Both came from farming communities. Both were bright with aspirations in the field of law. In time, they were colleagues in school together, and they became friends.

And they prospered. Professionally. Politically.

But not in peace.

Their script turned into a drama of conflict. They finally became rivals in the South's divided house. In the racial struggles that forged a new identity across the Southland--and across the nation-they were time and again the key characters in the landmark drama.

The intensity of their roles has carried them more than once to the threshholds of American power.

For Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, the goal was the White House itself.

For U.S. District Court Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., the U.S. Supreme Court beckoned.

Frank Johnson and George Wallace--once friends, once foes--now live in a different era, markedly less discordant than the 1960s. But their paths still cross the divisions of the South . . . still diverge philosphically . . . and still bend toward Washington.

The 56-year-old Wallace, from his campaign headquarters in downtown Montgomery, is making his fourth run for the presidency.

The 57-year-old Johnson, from his federal courtroom three blocks away, is quietly mentioned as a possible nominee for the U.S. Supreme Court.

The judge, along with numerous other potential nominees for the seat left vacant by Justice William Douglas, dined Monday night with President Ford. The dinner was for more than 100 persons associated with the federal judiciary, but it enhanced speculation that Johnson was in the running.

A Republican, Johnson was recommended by GOP leaders as a possible nominee in 1969 when President Nixon nominated--with disastrous results--two other Southern judges, Harrold Carswell and Clement Haynesworth.

Meanwhile, Wallace predicted in 1970, when the Carswell nomination was defeated, that Johnson would make it to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The prediction was anything but laudatory. It was typical of Wallace's verbal attacks on Johnson when they clashed.

Wallace said, "I want the newsmen to know this. There is a federal judge in Alabama who has destroyed more schools and more institutions than I know of, and if he doesn't get the nomination now that Mr. Carswell is defeated, he will get the next one."

Wallace was talking about Johnson. Years before, the governor described the judge as "an integrating, scalawaging liar."

That blast came in 1959 after the first crucial confrontation between Wallace and Johnson--their first real feud since they were friends and colleagues at the University of Alabama Law School in Tuscaloosa.

Wallace, a state circuit judge at the time, had refused Johnson's order to produce county voting records for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. In the end, Johnson said Wallace produced the records "by devious methods."

But Wallace's defiance of the federal judge propelled him into the political spotlight and indelibly marked his victorious campaign for governor in 1962 and his brief bid for the White House in 1964.

The judge, suddenly a fixture himself in the growing conflict, commented, "This court refuses to allow its authority and dignity to be bent or swayed by such politcally generated whirlwinds."

With that confrontation, the two one-time pals split irrevocably. The whirlwinds whipped even stronger.

At a time when Wallace was proclaiming "segregation forever" in his first inaugural address as Alabama's governor, Johnson's court was making unforgettable proclamations of its own. A few of the high points:

—He ruled Montgomery bus segregation unconstitutional in a case stemming from the 1955 bus boycott which vaulted Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. into the forefront of the civil rights movement.

—He issued rulings that hastened the desegregation of Alabama's school systems in the 1960s.

—He cleared the way for the Selma-to-Montgomery voting rights march to proceed in 1965 after it was crippled once by violence and later blocked by state officials.

—He ordered the reapportionment of the state legislature under a "one man, one vote" concept. The order brought 13 blacks into the House and two into the Senate; the legislature had had no more than three blacks among its members since Reconstruction.

Wallace repeatedly accused the federal bench of destroying the sovereignty of the states, and on that theme he cemented his power base in Alabama and vaulted into the 1968 race for the White House

In 1971, Wallace laid the groundwork for his 1972 race for the presidency by once again assailing federal judges. This time it was over busing schoolchildren to achieve integration.

It turned out to be one of the few controversial issues where Johnson and Wallace were in agreement.

Johnson, in a rare public comment about Wallace, told The Associated Press in 1972 that his court had ruled against forced busing before Wallace had taken up the cause.

"I have always thought, and held in several cases, that busing for the purpose of achieving racial balance is not authorized by the 14th Amendment," Johnson said.

He said he reached that opinion "long before busing got to be a political issue . . . and before Gov. Wallace or Vice President Agnew or others--I might add Muskie, Humphrey, Jackson and Lindsay--became concerned with the busing of students."

On another, grimer level, Johnson and Wallace have led similar lives. They were both targets of violence.

Wallace was shot by a would-be assassin; Johnson has been repeatedly threatend and his mother's home once was bombed. A heavy security detail follows Wallace; until recently, federal agents guarded Johnson round-the-clock.

In the past five years, the confrontations between Johnson and Wallace have had little to do with racial turmoil. Johnson ordered the integration of the all-white state trooper force in 1972, but his most dramatic orders concerned reforms in the state's handling of its mental health institutions and prisons.

They were orders that cast doubts on the administration of a governor who aspires to be president. At the same time, Wallace's long-time conflict with Johnson has made any ascendancy to the U.S. Supreme Court a politically difficult proposition.

'Patriarch' Develops New Wine Grape For California Vineyards

By ROBERT D. LURATI

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Antonio Perelli-Minetti, 95, the dean of California winemakers, has developed a grape that will add a new dimension to enology.

The patented varietal grape is known as Perelli 101. It is being used to produce a full-bodied red wine that Don Antonio calls "equal or better than the Napa Valley or Sonoma County wines I knew so well in my earlier years."

Don Antonio is the patriarch of a family that operates the 1,200-acre California Wine Association vineyard near Delano in the state's central valley. The winery crushes more than 100,000 tons of grapes a year. Three hundred and forty are planted with Perelli 101.

The experimental wines made from the grape have a strong raspberry flavor. Others call the taste rather like fresh ginger. Connoisseurs say it is a gutsy wine with high tannin and fine balance.

Don Antonio has not yet introduced Perelli 101 for general consumption. He uses it in blending instead. He feels that the 101 grapes crushed in the past couple of years need further fermentation.

Don Antonio developed the variety after a long, careful program based on the growth of sports on plants and trees.

The red apple is a sport that first appeared on a tree bearing yellow apples. It netted the owner $5,000. He sold it to a seedsman, who placed an iron case around it.

From that little sport came the Red Delicious apple now produced commercially by many nations.

Don Antonio said sports occur in vines, also, whether by different berries on a given bunch or by different bunches. They are so well marked and so different from their fellows that anyone interested would easily notice.

He gathered his sports by walking through vineyard rows looking for different berries.

After many years of trial and many different berries, Perelli 101 came into being.

Don Antonio said 101 is a prolific bearer and at harvest time "a beautiful sight ... with its long, slate-blue berry clusters cascading downward from supporting trellises.

"We believe there is at present no other wine like Perelli 101. Of course, whether the public will accept 101 is something we will have to wait to see."

Don Antonio is the oldest pre-Prohibition vintner still active in California's wine business.

Born in 1880 in Barletta, Italy, he came to California in 1902. He had learned the art of winemaking in his homeland.

He began his American career at Italian-Swiss Colony in Asti. He then worked in the business in Livermore, Lodi, San Francisco and Ukiah.

He also spent six years in the 1900s in Mexico, where he developed the largest vineyard in that country near Torreon.

When the Mexican Revolution erupted, he returned to California.

In 1924 he acquired the land in Delano.

CWA is a family operation with an annual payroll of $2.5 million and 200 year-round employes. Don Antonio's sons and grandchildren are active in the operation that produces wines under several labels including Vino Fino, Eleven Cellars and Ambassador.

CWA is also among the world's largest brandy producers.

Elected To Fellowship

Dr. C. Michael Ramsdell, a local internist and rheumatologist, was recently honored by election to Fellowship in the American College of Physicians. The honor will officially be conferred (in Philadelphis) in April, 1976 when the college holds its annual session.

The American College of Physicians was organized in 1915 to maintain and advance the highest possible standards in medical education, medical practice, and clinical research. For election to Fellowship, a physician must be certified by his Specialty Board of Certification; he shall have published scientific articles, and must present evidence of scientific achievement since the end of his post-graduate training.

Dr. Ramsdell is a diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine and was recently declared a diplomate certified to practice the sub-specialty of Rheumatology. He is associated with Dr. Donald H. Tucker, Dr. William W. Fore, and Dr. Douglas F. Newton of Quadrangle Internal Medicine, P.A. at 1705 West Sixth Street.

Chitlin Fragrance Wafted Over South Carolina Town

COOLING OFF—While freezing temperatures prevail over the northwestern part of the country, Donna Bishop cools off in the balmy Miami Beach, Fla. surf. Donna has aspirations to become a Jockey. (AP Wirephoto)

SALLEY, S.C. (AP) — The odor of chitlins wafted over Salley Saturday as residents prepared to serve 20,000 to 25,000 visitors expected to show up for the 10th annual Chitlin Strut.

What do chitlins smell like? "They smell like they sound — kind of rough," says Terry McMillan, who is responsible for preparation of 6,000 pounds of the hog intestines.

Does that mean bad? "If you can think of anything that smells so bad that it would take about a week for it to wear away, then it's that bad," he said.

That bad, huh? "It's a good thing you can't smell over the telephone," he told an interviewer.

The first time Salley, population 570, held the Chitlin Strut, only about 500 persons turned out. Last year more than 20,000 came. Proceeds from the strut benefit fire fighting and other town activities.

The Chitlin Strut includes a parade with U.S. Rep. Butler Derrick, D-S.C., as grand marshal; a speech by Thomas Kline of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and a night of country music.

McMillan says he doesn't remember how long he has been cooking the chitlins. The recipe, he says, calls for boiling hog intestines until they are tender, slicing them into strips three or four inches long, and then frying them in flour. Toss in a little salt and pepper.

The taste must be worth putting up with the odor because McMillan says folks come from all over.

McMillan, who began the cooking Thursday, is chef for the annual event because "I just sorta enjoy cooking." Others direct the parade or the musical entertainment, but he'd rather cook the chitlins, odor or not.

He regrets he could only get 6,000 pounds this year. "I had hoped we would have at least 10,000 pounds, but we couldn't quite get them.

"In other years we just boiled 'em on Friday, but with this amount we had to start early."

A caterer will bring 4,000 pounds of fried chicken and about the same amount of barbecued pork. Despite all the food, Mayor Jack Able says the Chitlin Strut always sells out.

If you can't get here on time to get something to eat, drive through anyway. McMillan says the odor lingers around Salley for a week or so after the strut.

Puts The Torch To Rock And Roll Music

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Damning rock music for its "appeal to the flesh," a Baptist church in Tallahassee has begun a campaign to put the torch to records by Elton John, the Rolling Stones and other rock stars.

Some $2,200 worth of records were tossed into a bonfire this week after church officials labeled the music immoral.

The Rev. Charles Boykin, associate pastor and youth director at the Lakewood Baptist Church, said he had seen statistics which showed "of 1,000 girls who became pregnant out of wedlock, 984 committed fornication while rock music was being played."

He said he could not remember the source of the statistics. Boykin said Friday the main thing wrong with rock music is its sensual beat.

"There's a rhythm to our bodies and when we hear music with a similar rhythm we respond to that beat. Too much of this can affect you in the wrong way," he said, adding that even some gospel music can lead youths astray.

"There's bad music all around us. It's not only rock music. Even gospel rock has that beat," he said.

At a Wednesday night bonfire, conducted after prayer services at the independent Baptist church, teen-age members of the church were asked to bring Top 40 records which they felt unleashed unrestrained carnal appetites.

"Teen-agers in the church felt they couldn't give the records away," Boykin said. "As one of them put it, 'That would be like giving dope away.'"

Boykin, who had preached a 1½-hour sermon on the topic, said he was gratified by the response of the church's young members.

"I've asked young people what they like about that type of music and they always tell me the same thing: 'Because it feels good.' That's all they will say," he said.

Boykin hopes to expand the crusade to other churches. "During the days ahead, we Americans need to be listening to more patriotic music," he said.

Arrested For Cutting 3,000 Trees

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Five men and a juvenile were arrested for cutting down, without the required permits, at least 3,000 Christmas trees in Rocky Mountain National Park, Roosevelt National Forest and on private land.

The arrested men came from Ohio, Alabama, New York and California. Officials said they were using snowmobiles to haul the trees, some 50 feet tall, out of the woods and had a flatbed semitrailer truck to transport them.

Boulder County Sheriff Brad Leach said it was "an outward, well-planned, illegal, commercial type of tree-cutting activity."

Boulder County authorities arrested the five men and the juvenile Friday for investigation of illegal harvesting of Christmas trees. Each of the men was ordered held on $50,000 bond.

The sheriff's department identified the five men as Mick Sterling, 20, Lima, Ohio; Duke Baird, 24, Florence, Ala.; Thomas Fichtel, 28, Syracuse, N.Y., who also has a home in Lyons, Colo.; Steven Ostermann, 22, and Ray Henry Ostermann, 49, both Santa Monica, Calif.

Under Colorado law the name of the juvenile was not disclosed. The 17-year-old youth, who lives in Denver, was handed over to juvenile authorities.

Do's And Don'ts For Santa Clauses

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty Santa Clauses lined up in Times Square for final inspection. They will man cardboard chimneys at department stores and busy street corners for the next month collecting money to provide holiday dinners for needy families.

Before dispatching the Santas on Friday to their posts throughout the city, the Volunteers of America, which sponsors the annual effort, offered a list of do's and don'ts for Santa:

—Don't promise children they'll get all the gifts they ask for. Send them away hopeful.

—Don't lean on your chimney.

—Don't eat garlic, onions or heavily spiced food.

—Don't smoke, eat or drink on duty.

—Don't obstruct traffic in any way.

—Don't get into arguments or disputes with passersby.

—Don't visit with friends or other Santa Clauses while on duty.

—Don't become over-familiar with people — children or adults.

—Don't leave your chimney. Wait for your relief man to take over.

—Don't overdo the "Ho,ho,ho!" bit. Be jolly with taste.

"Enjoy, enjoy," says the list. "think jolly."

The do's on the list:

—Call attention to yourself. Wave to passersby. Wish everyone a "Merry Christmas!" Mean it!

—Be pleasant and courteous at all times. Enjoy, Enjoy. Think jolly.

—Ring your bell so it can be heard. A free-swinging up and down stroke adds a little zest.

—Keep close to your chimney but don't stand in front of it.

—Keep your Santa uniform neat, your whiskers clean, your boots shiny.

—Be patient with litle children. Be courteous with adults.

—When asked by children why there are so many other Santas around, explain that you are all Santa's helpers.

—Refer all questions you can't answer to the headquarters officer of the Volunteers of America.

Slightly Less Gas For N.C.

RALEIGH (AP)—The Federal Power Commission Friday approved a plan for parceling out the short supplies of natural gas along the Eastern Seaboard.

Experts said the ruling would mean North Carolina's shortage this winter would be no more critical than it was a year ago.

Under the FPC ruling, the state will receive slightly less gas than last winter. But North Carolina's homes and businesses should get all the gas they need.

Simons said North Carolina's high priority factories which need natural gas as a port of their manufacturing process and cannot substitute other fuels should also receive enough gas, or nearly enough.

The state's supplies were cut back by an average of about 40 per cent last winter.

The FPC plan allocates the following amounts for the state's three major distribution companies:

——13.8 billion cubic feet (bcf) for Public Service Co. of North Carolina, compared with last year's original allocation of 16 bfc.

——11.4 bcf for North Carolina Natural Gas Corp. compared with last winter's original allotment of 16 bcf.

——15.7 bcf for Piedmont Natural Gas Co., compared with last winter's original allotment of 20.1 bcf.

FOR RELEASE MONDAY, December 1, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Plan how to use advantages and wind up obligations to end the year. Outline a plan of action for the coming year. Evening is fine for personal matters.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ideal day to contact those who can help you have a larger income in the future. Keep promise you made to loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good day to communicate with associates and establish greater rapport. A civic matter arises that can be handled well. A fine social p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Tackle work with vim and vigor and listen to suggestions of wise co-workers. Work at a steady but sensible pace.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Start on plans made over the weekend which can prove profitable; do the necessary work. Evening brings opportunity.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A fine day for handling any problems connected with home, family. Be careful of one who may want to put a fly in the ointment.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make better plans with an associate for the future. Once your work is done, enjoy that hobby. Be content with mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be most careful handling finances to avoid some big mistakes. Cut down on expenses, too. Avoid limelight in p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle personal affairs in an intelligent way and your business becomes more successful, also. Be with good friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get duties done to free time for investigating new projects. An intelligent conversation with mate later improves things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study well what you desire of a personal nature and go after your aims in a positive fashion. Gad about socially.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle outside duties in connection with your career and improve your standing professionally. Entertain good friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A new attitude toward your principal interests will make them more successful now. Make new contacts of worth.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will want to work early and get much done, provided you teach the value of the work and give remuneration. There is much idealism and the ability to plan a campaign of action and carry through with it, provided religion and ethics are not neglected early in life. Give the opportunity to participate in sports to build up the body.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Mao's Possible Successor Builds Base

TENG HSIAO-PING reportedly is building his power base as a possible successor to Mao Tse-tung. (AP Wirephoto)

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teng Hsiao-Ping, who may succeed Mao Tse-Tung, reportedly is strengthening his power base; and U.S. intelligence officials say President Ford should pay close attention to him during his trip next week to the People's Republic of China.

Teng is considered by many analysts to be the most powerful leader in China, second only to Mao.

Now vice premier and nominally subordinate to ailing Premier Chou en-Lai, Teng has been slowly building his power base.

For example, U.S. intelligence sources say Teng recently was instrumental in moving Chen Hsi-Lien, the Peking region military commander and a Teng ally, into position to become defense minister.

Also, Teng has been shifting certain provincial leaders around to prevent them from establishing their own power bases, analysts say.

The current reading by U.S. intelligence is that Teng at the least will become the top figure in a collective leadership after the deaths of Mao, 82, and Chou, 77.

However, the analysts believe Teng is likely to emerge as dominant if he is able to consolidate his power base enough to repel challenges, principally from the radical wing of the Chinese Communist party.

Based on his past performance, it appears that Teng would continue China's estrangement from the Soviet Union.

In the early years of the Chinese-Soviet split, Teng publicly accused the Soviet Union of weakening the international communist movement. One U.S. intelligence appraisal of Teng said that by the early 1960s he "had earned the reputation of being a man able to stand up to and infuriate the Soviet leaders."

In the early years of the Chinese-Soviet split, Teng publicly accused the Soviet Union of weakening the international communist movement. One U.S. intelligence appraisal of Teng said that by the early 1960s he "had earned the reputation of being one able to stand up to and infuriate the Soviet leaders."

Teng was in disgrace for about six years after falling victim to the "cultural revolution" engineered by the radicals. But he was restored to power near the top in 1973.

Last year, Teng became the first high-level Chinese Communist official to visit the United States when he led his country's delegation to a special United Nations General Assembly meeting on world resources.

At 71, Teng is hardly a "young Turk." He was one of the early activists in the Chinese Communist party about 50 years ago and joined Mao in the "long march" of the 1930s.

Springs Looked On As Energy Source

By TONY COZIER

CASTRIES, St. Lucia (AP) — Underground sulphur springs just outside St. Lucia's third town, previously regarded solely as a tourist attraction and health spa, could well provide the Caribbean island with all its electricity in a few years.

Investigations into whether the springs could produce geothermal energy in commercial quantities have been followed by drilling for steam. The results have been extremely encouraging and St. Lucia's Premier John Compton has predicted, in the House of Assembly, that if his government can obtain the money for its development, the island's energy requirements will be supplied "primarily from its geothermal resources" by late 1978 or early 1979.

The project has been financed by the British government through its development division headquarters in Bridgetown, Barbados. A British firm of consultants, the British Institute of Geological Science and the seismic unit of the University of the West Indies cooperated in the initial probe.

After nine months, they were satisfied that it was worthwhile drilling for steam. The Trinidad and Tobago Company, Well Services Ltd., hit a good yield of steam at a depth of 1,100 feet with the fourth hole it drilled and has piped it to the surface. Pressures of up to 360 pounds per square inch have been recorded.

According to Premier Compton, the next stage is to turn from exploration to actual production. Since the British government's financial obligation is now over, capital sources have to be found to make full use of the new discovery.

Compton calls the prospects "exciting."

"This means that we will be self sufficient in electricity and there will be great new horizons open to us," he says.

It could also mean that new industries will be attracted to St. Lucia because of a comparatively cheap source of energy. This will help further to expand the island's economy and raise living standards for its 100,000 people who now depend heavily on tourism and bananas for their livelihood.

Similar geothermal stations have been working for several years in New Zealand, Italy and the United States.

Offer Class In Basic First Aid

Pitt Technical Institute will conduct a 12 hour course in basic first aid, beginning at 7 p.m. Monday in room 113 at Pitt Technical Institute.

Satisfactory completion of the course meets the First Aid requirements of the Pitt County American Red Cross and the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Due to the short duration of the course, one should plan to attend the first and all other sessions.

Tuition is $3 for the course. Books may be purchased at the first session at a cost of $4.60.

For additional information, persons may call or visit Pitt Tech.

Victims Told Don't Resist

"Do not resist," Pitt County Crime Prevention Officer Gordon Edwards says, "when you're being held up. In most cases, violence occurs when a robber is challenged. Prevention's good, but once a robbery's underway, the important thing to do is be calm, offer no resistance, and observe every detail you can about the robber and his vehicle if there is one.

He and his partner in Crime Prevention, Larry Parker, will provide a robbery checklist to anyone who asks for it. They encourage that a victim write down as quickly as he can exactly what he saw. He can, if he is calm, have a description ready to be broadcast as soon as a law enforcement officer arrives.

Included on the form are the following items: weapon involved, if any; whether this was a robbery or attempted robbery; injury, if any; time; type of business; location; number of persons involved; and on each, color of skin, approximate age, sex, height, weight, hair color and description (curly or straight, style, etc.), color and types of hat, jacket, pants, shoes, skirt, or other clothing, glasses, mustache or other distinguishing features or marks like scars or tattoos; how escaped (on foot or in vehicle); if in vehicle, a description and a license number, if possible; and direction of travel.

'Harvey' To Inaugurate Local Community Theater

DISCUSSING A SCENE . . . in the forthcoming three performances of "Harvey" as Greenville Community Theater's first production are, (left to right), Dr, David White, who plays Elwood Dowd; the play's director, Stuart Aronson; Mike Peters, who has the role of Mr. Wilson; and Bernelle Raynor, who will appear as Mrs. Chauvenent.

On Thursday night at 8:15 p.m. in the Elm Street Gymnasium, Mary Chase's play Harvey, a modern American classic about a man whose best friend is a six-foot rabbit, will inaugurate the Greenville Community Theater season. Harvey will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday night at 8:15.

Funded by a grant from the North Carolina Council of the Arts and a matching grant from the City of Greenville (in amounts of $2,500 each) for a period of one-year, the newly organized community theater is directed by Stuart Aronson under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation Department.

This is the first community-wide theater group to be operative in Greenville for a number of years, and supplements the popular annual "Sunday In The Park" series which are also under Aronson's direction.

First produced in the fall of 1944 at the 48th Street Theater in New York City, Harvey had Frank Fay in the original lead role of Elwood Dowd, the man befriended by and who becomes a friend of the oversize rabbit, a pooka. The play had a record breaking run, and was later made into a movie with Jimmy Stewart in the lead role.

In the Greenville production, Dr. David White is portraying the gentle, misunderstood Elwood Dowd, with Anita Brehm in the role of his sister, Veta Louise Simmons.

Others appearing in the 11 member cast are Jane Feary as Myrtle Mae Simmons; Dottie Johnson as Ruth Kelly, Steve Geiger in the role of Dr. Sanderson; Clyde Simmons as Dr. Chumley; Ed Nowak in the role of Judge Omar Gaffney; Bernelle Raynor as Mrs. Ethel Chauvenet; and Ed Morgan, Jr., as E. J. Lofgren.

Morgan is also assistant director and is designer of the set.

The stage used for "Sunday in the Park" will be transported to Elm Street Gym and used as a stage there.

"I hope the public will take the opportunity to support the Greenville Community Theater," Aronson commented. "It has been a number of years, I understand, since Greenville has had a community theater open to all the people to take part in, and I feel it's something that has long been needed. Aside from that," Aronson added, "I think people will enjoy seeing Harvey again. It's an excellent play for sheer entertainment and it's certainly one that parents can bring their children to without worrying about the contents."

Tickets are priced at $2.00 for adults and at $1.00 for children under 12. They may be purchased in advance at Elm Street Recreation Center or at the door prior to performance time on each of the three evenings the play is scheduled.

Fort Bragg Pageant

FT. BRASS, N.C.—The United States Forces Command (FORSCOM) will present a Bicentennial Pageant on Sunday and Monday, December 9 and 10.

Entitled, "200 Years of Readiness, the pageant is a combination of hand and choral music sung and played by the 62-member cast. The music is supplemented by a slide and movie presentation.

The Sunday performance will be presented at Ft. Bragg. The Monday performance will be at the Cumberland County Memorial Auditorium.

Band and choral members will be costumed in authentic American uniforms dating back to 1775.

The music of America's military history is represented in such tunes as the march Chester (1775), the Civil War favorite Dixie, World War I's Over There, World War II's Bless Them All, and the finale, which features the Battle Hymn of the Republic and America the Beautiful.

These are but a sampling of the numerous songs to be played and sung.

Carolina Today

Christmas music is beginning to come into prominence in the scheduling for the "Carolina Today" early morning show over WNCT-TV, Channel 9, Greenville. For the coming week, the line-up is:

—Monday, December 1, 7:30 a.m. Gordon Edwards and Larry Parker will talk about crime prevention and juvenile crime, respectively.

—Tuesday, December 2, 7:15 a.m., a representative from Atlantic Christian College will be the day's guest.

—Wednesday, December 3, 7:30 a.m., A choral group from Willard Grove Elementary School in Edgecombe County in a program of Christmas music.

—Thursday, December 4, 7:10 a.m., Christmas music again, with members of the Wahl-Coates Elementary School performing; and 7:30 a.m., the guest is Warren Wheeler of Wheeler Air Lines.

—Friday, December 5, 7:10 a.m. Young singers of Edgecombe County's Roberson Elementary School in a festival of Christmas music.

Hospitality House

Dog handling is the featured entertainment on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" today as Greenville's Ed Perry appears in a demonstration of this animal training art. Ed will show how to handle an obedience trained dog, in this case a German Shepherd.

Also on today's show, over WITN-TV, Channel 7, from 11:30 a.m. til noon, a husband and wife author team, Irene Harrell and her husband, Judge Allen Harrell of Wilson, will talk about recent books.

A special attraction will be views of Washington's Christmas Shopping for Children—complete with a parent-sitting service. The event is sponsored by Beta Sigma Phi.

Comedy Next At Lenoir

The Department of Performing Arts at Lenoir Community College will offer Neil Simon's adult comedy, The Last of the Red Hot Lovers, as its Winter Quarter feature at the college, Director C. Jay Burton has announced.

The Last of the Red Hot Lovers, will feature Johnny Griffin as Barney Cashman, in the male lead, Beth Burton as Elaine Navazio, Karen Brooks as Bobbi Michele and Sue Fletcher as Jeanette Fisher. Productions will be given on January 30 and 31.

North Carolina Music At Kennedy Center

Music of North Carolina will be honored by the Bicentennial Parade of American Music on Monday, at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Washington, D.C.

The Bicentennial Parade is a series of free concerts jointly sponsored by The National Music Council and Exxon. It celebrates music written by composers from each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia — and is performed at the Kennedy Center Concert Hall by solo artists and musical groups from each state.

The Old North State will be represented at the December 1 concert by musical organizations from two of the 16 campuses of the University of North Carolina. They will perform the works and arragements of eight native-son composers.

The Symphony Orchestra from the North Carolina School of the Arts will travel to Washington from its Winston-Salem base, which was established in 1963 as the first state-supported conservatory in the nation. Nicholas Harsanyi, conductor, is Dean of Music at the school, music director and conductor of the Piedmont Chamber Orchestra.

The University Chorale from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, tours extensively under the baton of Richard Cox and has received numerous honors and performance invitations.

Cox was born in Raleigh and studied at Chapel Hill, the Conservatoire National de la Musique in Paris and Northwestern University.

The Symphony Orchestra will open the "North Carolina Day" program with Jubilation Overture, by Pulitzer prize-winning Robert Ward. Ward came to North Carolina in 1967 as president of the North Carolina School of the Arts and now serves that institution as composer-in-residence and teacher of compsotion.

The centerpiece of the Symphony's portion of the program is Sonorous Image, by Roger Hannay of Chapel Hill. Hannay joined the faculty of the University of North Carolina there in 1966 as resident-composer and now serves as a professor of compsotion and the theory. He is founder of the electronic studio on the campus and director of its new musical ensemble.

Closing the orchestra portion of the program is Letter to the World (settings to poems by Emily Dickinson) by Hunter Johnson. The work was written as a ballet for Martha Graham by the Benson-born Hunter who has recently returned to his home state to continue composing.

The University Chorale will open their half of the program with Go, Pretty Child by Jack Jarrett. Jarrett, born in Asheville and formerly a professor at UNC, is a composer, pianist, singer, and opera conductor.

The Chorale will then perform O Come, O Come, Emmanuel by Arthur Hunkins, an active composer in both experiemental and conventional styles. Hunkins is director of the electronic studio at the UNC Greensboro campus and the developer of a program for computer music there.

The next selection will be Chansonette, by Hermene Warlick Eichhorn. Ms. Eichhorn, of Greensboro.

"The Lord's Prayer" from American Jazz Mass follows. The composer, Frank Pascale Tirro, joined the faculty, of Duke University in 1973 and has since served as chairman of the music department there.

Closing the Chorale's portion of the program is Sinnuh, Please Don't Let Dis Harves' Pass, a traditional spiritual arranged by Eugene T. Simpson.

As a grand finale, the combined groups will perform Choral Symphony on American Poems by Jack Jarrett. The work, based on "Concord Hymn" (Ralph Waldo Emerson) and "The Statue of Old Andrew Jackson" (Vachel Lindsay), was written during Jarrett's appointment as a Ford Foundation composer-in-residence.

States are performing at the Kennedy Center in the order in which they joined the Union, as part of their State Day celebration organized by the Washington Mayor's Office of Bicentennial Programming. North Carolina was the 12th state, having ratified the new Constitution on November 21, 1789.

Overall musical programming for the Bicentennial Parade is being coordinated by Dr. Merle Montgomery of New York City, President of the National Music Council and Chairman of its Bicentennial Committee.

NCMA Planning To Purchase A Monet Painting

Hanging in the lobby of the N. C. Musem of Art is a dreamlike painting in soft, hazy blues and grays that gently resolve into a water-reflected dawn landscape.

The museum, hampered by limited purchase funds, doesn't own the painting yet. But museum visitors have begun contributing to the $275,000 needed to purchase this 1897 painting by Claude Monet, "Morning Mists."

"We receive calls and letters about it almost daily," said Moussa Domit, director of the museum. "They say 'Get the Monet and here's my contribution.' And they enclose money—sometimes as little as $1.25.

"Small contributions like this are important, because they show that people care about the painting," Domit said.

The museum doesn't have to count entirely on dollar-twenty-five contributions to purchase the Monet, however. The N. C. Art Society, as the museum's membership arm, has pledged to raise half the cost of the painting.

"We're going to be raising money from art society members," said Mrs. Issac V. Manly, art society president. "This will be our specific project for 1976. That year the society will be celebrating its 50th anniversary, and in honor of the occasion we would like to help present the museum with this important gift."

Monet was a French impressionist, and impressionism has long been a popular style of painting among visitors to the N. C. Museum of Art. An exhibit of American impressionist works in 1973 drew more visitors than has any other single museum show.

"Morning Mists" is one of a series of more than 18 views of the River Seine near Giverny, France, that Monet painted in the 1890's. He painted the scene many times to show not only the landscape, but the effect on it of light, time and circumstance.

"A landscape, for me, does not exist at all," the artist said in 1890, "because the aspect changes at every moment . . . Light and air vary continually . . . One has to know how to seize the moment at the right time, because this moment will never return."

"Morning Mists" is almost abstract; its painted trees are no more solid than their reflections in the water. Coolly still and vaporous, the canvas is so symmetrical that you could turn it upside-down without spoiling the effect.

Domit calls the painting's price tag a "bargain," especially since it will be cut by $10,000 if the money is raised by mid-1976. Works by Monet have sold to other museums for as much as $1 million.

Although the museum's purchase funds appropriated by the General Assembly are almost exhausted for this year, Domit is encouraged by the efforts of the Art Society and by the spontaneous contributions the museum has received to buy the painting.

MORNING MISTS . . . by the noted French impressionist painter (1840-1926), is being considered for purchase by the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh. Visitors have been contributing to the $275,000 purchase price for the about three by three feet oil.

—A Review—

A Much Needed History Of Carolina's Indians

First on the land: The North Carolina Indians. By Ruth Y. Wetmore. Winston-Salem, N.C. John F. Blair, Publisher. 1975. 196 pps, illustrated, $8.95.

The original inhabitants of what is now North Carolina were in their own way as concerned with treating disease as we are today. Their approach to this problem was of course different, as Ruth Wetmore shows in her admirable book on Indians who formerly populated the rich Carolina forest.

". . .the practice of medicine was closely linked to priestly crafts," she writes. "Treatment was not only a physical but a spiritual matter.

A Cherokee belief about the origin of disease has it that . . . "At one time, the legend goes, the animals and mankind lived as brothers. As man increased in numbers and invented weapons, he became a menace to his animal kin. The animals met in council, and beginning with the deer, who chose rhemuatism, each selected an aliment to be visited upon hunters who killed them without observing proper rituals."

Rituals played a continuously vital role in all phases of daily living among the diverse tribes of the North Carolina area.

Much of the pleasure afforded in First on the land: The North Carolina Indians is Mrs. Wetmore's ability to convey a feeling of intimacy and a clear perception of values when dealing with the known facts about the tribes and sub-tribes formerly inhabiting the area that is now North Carolina.

At the same time, the author never loses sight of the fact her book is basically a broad study on more than two dozen North Carolina tribes. The three major tribal groups as determined by linguistic family divisions — Algonquian, Iroquoian and Siouan, which included tribes with names like Cherokee, Catawba, Saponi, Tuscarora and Wateree, to mention only the ones with larger populations based on estimates of the year 1600.

Characteristics, locations, populations of individual tribes and the network of trails they used in their nomadic life-style are clearly outlined in the forthright text and effectively simple maps and charts.

A brief, valuable survey of the pre-history of Carolina's Indian tribes covers the Paleo-Indian Period (10,000-8,000 B.C.); the Archaic Period (8,000-1 B.C.); and the Woodland Period (A.D. 1 to about 1600 A.D.).

Wars since the arrival of the white man in the area of North Carolina is an important part of modern local Indian history and is adequately treated in a chapter, "The War Years," with a compacted history of early clashes; the Tuscarora War; the Yamassee War; and the final tragic Cherokee War.

But it is when Mrs. Wetmore delves into the daily life of North Carolina Indians — their customs, festivals, spiritual beliefs, artifacts, games, dance and myths — that her deep affinity with her subject is most evident.

Within the limited framework of short, precise descriptions she consistently provides informative, exciting glimpses such as:

—"Tobacco was often mixed with sumac leaves or the inner bark of dogwood trees. This was done partly to make supplies of tobacco go further, partly to dilute the tobacco's strength and improve the flavor. . ."

—"Women or children captured by war parties were usually adopted into the tribe or retained as slaves. Among some Carolina tribes a woman could claim a male captive to replace a relative lost in war. . ."

—"The Algonquian tribes and the Catawba believed that the sun was female and the moon male. Many tribes considered these two heavenly bodies to be brother and sister. . ."

—"Among the Cherokee, yellow puccoon or golden seal was mixed with bear grease and used as an insect repellent. . ."

—"Some tribes had little and big corn festivals, but the Green Corn Festival was the most important, combining elements of harvest, Thanksgiving, and New Year observances."

First on the land: The North Carolina Indians is a beautiful book that deserves tto be read by every North Carolinian — white, black or Indian.

At this Thanksgiving period, it's appropriate to note that North Carolinian readers can be grateful that two Tar Heel publishers, Blair in Winston-Salem and The Times Publishing Company on the coast in Manteo, are increasingly making available to Tar Heels quality regional books covering many areas of interest in non-fiction, fiction and poetry.

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET CLARK

For all those drawn by the continuing fascination of the occult, URI GELLER: MY STORY, is the autobiography and the first book, by the famous and controversial Israeli psychic. He is known to millions as the man, apparently by force of will, bends keys and spoons, who fixes stopped watches and broken radios, and who has demonstrated at Stanford Research Institute and elsewhere, mind-boggling extrasensory powers. Uri's story, in his own words, tells of his experiments with noted scientists—tests that verify beyond a doubt the existence of his powers. It describes the series of broadcasts in Europe, when psychic energies were transferred from Uri to viewers and listeners in their own homes. Finally, it reports the strange, and apparently interrelated, phenomena that began in Israel and ends with the strangest event of all, one never revealed before. Uri Geller's autobiography is a story that staggers the mind.

Next in THE INTRUDERS, Pat Montandon tells her harrowing story of a near fatal encounter with the forces of darkness and malevolence. This well-known West Coast TV show hostess had no reason to believe in the power of the supernatural when she moved into a spacious apartment overlooking San Francisco Bay. But over the next two years, she suffered an uncanny sequence of misfortunes. Her apartment was repeatedly vandalized and fire-ravaged, her car smashed several times, her career disrupted, her romances blighted. A biting chill pierced her apartment, despite repeated attempts to repair the heating-system, and casement windows, locked within, suddenly stood opened. Psychic investigators who have studied the house as well as Pat Montandon's own aura, have found inexplicable phenomena. THE INSTRUDERS is an eerie true-life account of the supernatural, a story told by a doubter who now can't not believe.

A gentle woman with a deadly power becomes the quarry of a detective obsessed with solving the most bizarre murder case of his career in Bari Wood's THE KILLING GIFT. All the evidence points to Jennifer List Gilbert, yet how could this fragile woman sever a man's spinal cord without even touching him? Stravisky's compulsion to unravel Jennifer's dangerous secret brings hunter and hunted together as lover-antagonists in one of the most shocking endings in recent fiction. This electrifying psychic suspense novel has the hypnotic fascination of LAURA and the chilling horror of THE OTHER.

'Indian Images' Show At Student Center

Beginning tomorrow and continuing through December 19, Indian Images, a photographic exhibition of authentic traditional life and culture of North American Indians, will be on view in the Mendenhall Student Center Gallery.

Sponsored by the East Carolina University Student Union Art Exhibition Committee, the exhibit is the first selected exclusively from American Indian photographs of the National Anthropological Archives. These were shown at the National Museum of Natural History in conjunction with the 1970 Festival of American Folklife. The exhibit is now on national tour under the aegis of the Smithsonian Institute.

Portraits of individuals and groups, and pictures showing clothing, ceremonies and Indian crafts are included in this December Mendenhall attraction.

In the introduction to the exhibit's catalog, Joanna Scherer points to the value of these photographs in conveying a truthful image of the American Indian in constrast to the stereotype and distortions perpetrated by the popular illustrators. The photographs cover the period from 1847 to 1928.

Smithsonian personnel are now selecting a larger group of photos from the Indian Archives for a book to be published by the Smithsonian Institute Press.

There is no admission charge for viewing the selection of Indian photographs to be shown at Mendenhall, and the public is invited to see them any time during regular hours of the Student Union Center, from about 9 a.m. until about 10 p.m. each day.

Raleigh Guide

The Raleigh Fine Arts Society announces the publication on Monday of Raleigh, A Guide to North Carolina's Capital. This art oriented guidebook is a nonprofit project financed by the Raleigh Fine Arts Society with the assistance of a grant from the North Carolina Arts Council. The book has been designated an official bicentennial project by the North Carolina Bicentennial.

Raleigh, A Guide to North Carolina's Capital is a paperback of 100 pages with a composite drawing of old and new Raleigh by Joe Cox on the cover. Although designed to serve as a guide for visitors to Raleigh, its focus is on areas of artistic, cultural and historical interest. Drawings and photographs by North Carolina artists, stories and features by North Carolina writers, and a wealth of historical information make this a book of interest to all North Carolinians.

Contributors are: artists; Joe Cox, Annette Marsland, Edwin F. Harris, Jr., Pete Turner, Betty Eichenberger and Walt Obman; authors; Ardis Kimzey, A.C. Snow, Leonidas Betts, Charlotte Vestal Brown, Sam Ragan, Dick Herbert, Mike Reynolds, Linda Grimsley and Nell Hirchberg; and photographer: Gordon H. Schenck, Jr.

The Raleigh Fine Arts Society contributors are: Ann Brower Turner, president; Ann Vallentyne Walker, chairman; and Alexa Carroll Williams, editor.

This book will be available on December 1, 1975 at $2.95 in retail stores and by mail order from the Raleigh Fine Arts Society, P. O. Box 19515, Raleigh, North Carolina 27609.

Traveling Show For The Blind

The N. C. Museum of Art is sending a "touchable" sculpture exhibit to art galleries around the state in an attempt to bring to blind and handicapped people who might never make the trip to Raleigh.

Seventeen bronze sculptures from the museum's Mary Duke Biddle Gallery for the Blind make up the exhibit, which is at the Statesville Art and Science museum through the end of December.

Later the exhibit will travel to Greensboro's Weatherspoon Gallery, the Northwest Gallery in North Wilkesboro, St. John's Gallery in Wilmington, and Fayetteville Art Museum and the Greenville Art Center.

The gallery for the blind is designed primarily for the visually impaired, with Braille titles to identify each work and a guiderail to lead visitors around the rooms.

But it is also popular with those who can see. Children enjoy art they can touch as well as look at.

The Bronzes on this special touring exhibit are from the gallery's permanent collection. They include busts of Abraham Lincoln, John F. Kennedy, Winston Churchill,

Information on when the exhibit will reach various cities will be available later this year.

Annual Craft Show

GREENSBORO—The second annual Carolina Craftsmen's Christmas Classic arts and crafts show will feature the work of approximately 1,000 artists and craftsmen from all over the nation.

The two day show will take place on Saturday and Sunday in the Greensboro Coliseum. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday and noon til 9 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $2 for adults and 75 cents for children.

Among eastern North Carolina artists and craftsmen to be represented are Jack Taylor, Rocky Mount, paintings; Curtis Waterfield, Knotts Island, bird carver; Ray Flowers, Mt. Olive, banjomaker; J. E. B. Stuart, Elizabeth City, wild bird carver; and three Wilmington painters, C. Wayne Murray, Susan Lee and J. Hillary Worthington.

Invitational Craft Show

WINSTON-SALEM—The Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art will present its Annual Craftsmen Invitational exhibition during December. In its seventh year, this major regional exhibition will present a sampling of the finest crafts being produced in the Southeastern United States. On exhibition will be the work of over 50 regional craftsmen.

Each artist-craftsman will have six to eight works in the show; executed in clay, metal, fiber, glass, and wood. The exhibition will open with a reception honoring the exhibitors on Saturday from noon to 5 p.m.

The Annual Craftsmen Invitational will remain on display through December 23 at the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art, located in Old Salem at 500 South Main Street. The Center is open to the public free of charge. Center hours are: Monday-Saturday, 10:00 to 4:30, and Sunday, 2:00 to 4:30.

'Homespun Christmas'

A Homespun Christmas Show is the name given to the Washington Recreation Center craft show to be held Wednesday and Thursday at Charlotte Street Recreation Center.

Sponsored by the Beaufort County Arts Council, the Washington Recreation Department, the Home Economics Extension Clubs, and the Washington Garden Clubs Council, hours are from 1 to 9 p.m. on Wednesday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday.

In addition, carolers and choirs will be on hand from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday to present Christmas songs.

Craftsmen will be demonstrating crafts such as rug hooking, needlework, quilting, bread dough art, and Christmas foods.

The public is invited to attend.

Bring And Show Event

A share your own Craft Fair has been announced for East Branch Library on Monday from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

During those hours, all persons interested in showing Christmas ornaments of any type they themselves have made are asked to bring them to the library for the two hour event.

Story Hour Registration

A series of by registration only story hours will be held at Sheppard Memorial Library. Registration will be limited to 18 children between the ages of 30 months and five years. This can be done in person or by phone.

The special story hours will be held each Thursday at 11 a.m. Parents of children registered will be responsible for transportation to and from the library.

Science Gradually Conquering Dreaded Leprosy

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A Mexican-American laborer, wearing rough khaki and carrying a plaid cloth suitcase, waits on a Brownsville street for a state-owned station wagon to take him to his annual hospital checkup. He'll be back at work in a week.

A man wheels his sleek station wagon up to his Louisiana home and waves to a couple next door. They smile and walk over. They're accustomed to the bluish-black stain of his skin and take no notice.

In San Francisco, a lawyer pauses in his fashionable home to swallow a capsule of medication. Then he rushes to his busy day.

The three, widely separated by geography, life-style and economics, are among the 3,000 American victims of an ancient disease that still haunts mankind. The disease is leprosy, whose mysteries medical science is just beginning to unravel.

New drugs can control leprosy in most cases and research is moving slowly toward a cure. Last month, Olaf A. Skinsnes of the University of Hawaii Medical School, reported that leprosy bacteria had been grown in a laboratory culture for the first time. His accomplishment, if confirmed, would make it easier to develop a vaccine.

Leprosy's stigma is less than it once was because drugs now can prevent leprosy's ravages in most new cases. But the disease still arouses fear, and thousands of its 15 million victims worldwide still suffer social rejection.

Texas' Rio Grande Valley north of here is the "hottest" endemic area in the U.S. for leprosy, or Hansen's Disease. Experts say a native-born focus of the disease here can be traced back four or five generations. Thirty or more cases a year are found in Texas.

Leprosy also is disagnosed regularly in Hawaii, Florida, Louisiana, California and New York, although many of those cases are immigrants who acquired the disease from other endemic areas of the world.

Leprosy has resisted medical research as has no other infectious disease. The villain is Mycobacterium Lepra, a rod-shaped bacteria closely resembling tuberculosis that was first identified in 1874 by Dr. Gerhard A. Hansen, a Norwegian who gave his name to the disease.

Until last month, Mycobacterium Lepra was the one known disease bacteria that had not been cultured in a laboratory. Its life cycle — knowledge essential to its control — remains unknown.

The bacteria reproduces so slowly that research procedures requiring only hours or days with other diseases can take months with leprosy. Until recent years, humans were the only known creatures able to contract the disease. The traditional "guinea pig" had been man.

"Leprosy research could not possibly keep pace with the achievements against other infectious diseases because there exists this conpisracy of obstacles," said Dr. Wallemar Kirchheimer, a U.S. Public Health Service scientist and leading leprosy researcher.

The leprosy bacteria is thought to be spread by close contact, such as among family members. Symptoms may not appear for three to 10 years, the longest incubation period of any known disease.

Experts believe 95 per cent of people are naturally immune to leprosy. Of the other five per cent, many who contract it develop mild forms. Symptoms are similar to dozens of other skin diseases and patients often undergo treatment for the wrong affliction.

Unchecked, leprosy attacks small nerves, causing the skin nearby to become anesthetized. Hands and feet can become numb. Nodules form on the external ears and in the nose. Eyebrows and lashes fall off.

With no sensitivity in hands and feet, patients can hurt themselves and never feel it. Bones and tissue seem to melt away, not from leprosy but from injury and infection. Finally, there is blindness.

For generations, isolation was the only treatment. Leprosy colonies were established; some still exist. The U.S. Public Health Hospital in Carville, La., is the main U.S. treatment center for leprosy, and some patients still recall being prisoners than patients.

Louis Boudreaux, 60, has spent more than 40 years at the hospital, on the Mississippi River 78 miles up from New Orleans. He came as a frightened 19-year-old and was locked behind a high fence.

In the decades since, he's seen a sweeping revolution in the care and treatment of Hansen's Disease. "Carville was a place of no hope," when he first came, said Boudreaux.

Doctors tested experimental drugs on patients. Once, said Boudreaux, "a diptheria toxoid was tried and most of us suffered greatly from that."

A tuberculosis drug called diamino-diphenyl-sulfone (DDS) was tried in the early 1940s and the so-called "miracle at Carville" began. Patients improved rapidly. Suddenly there was hope.

Other breakthroughs have followed. In 1960, researchers developed a way to artifically infect the footpads of laboratory mice with leprosy. This "experimental disease" enables doctors to test antileprosy drugs.

Some experts believe that leprosy takes advantage of a flaw in the immunity system of its victims. Carville experimenters are conducting tests to find a way to awaken or repair that immunity and thus control the disease.

Powerful new synthetic antibiotics, used with DDS, now control leprosy for 90 per cent of its victims. They have created a new life for many patients who once were the most shunned of humans.

Until recent years, patients sent to Carville often remained there for years, even after their disease was arrested, because laws in their home states prohibited their return.

In 1961, health officials in Texas, which has the most new cases, moved against the "send 'em away and forget 'em" school of patient care.

Led by Dr. M.S. Dickerson, chief of the communicable disease services in Texas, officials developed an out-patient program. It was the first major move against the public health hysteria toward leprosy and "a revolutionary concept" at the time.

"We said let them come home," said Dr. Dickerson. "We feel that after two months of treatment, (a patient) ... is no longer a menace to his community and should be welcomed back with open arms."

Texas now provides free transportation to Carville — both ways.

Social attitudes, however, lag behind medical progress.

In many towns and cities in the Rio Grande Valley, it is still a common belief that leprosy is a curse from an outraged God against those guilty of monstrous sin.

Around Carville and nearby Baton Rouge, La., where the true nature of the illness is generally understood, patients are accepted as part of the community.

There are about 250 patients at the hospital who have developed a resistance to the drugs and are receiving daily care. Some of these attend college in Baton Rouge and hold down outside jobs.

Some patients at Carville live there by choice.

For Boudreaux, the drug therapy came almost too late. His life was saved, but he is blind and crippled. He married another Carville patient and they spent their married life in a cottage on the hospital grounds. His brother also was a Carville patient.

He works as editor of the Carville Star, a bimonthly dedicated to battling the myths about leprosy.

Boudreaux could leave if he wanted to, but he chooses to stay at the hospital that shaped his life, his marriage and even gave him his name.

"Louis Boudreaux is an alias," he says. "We once all took different names when we came here. I've lived under the alias for more years than I used my real name."

Then he adds: "My wife and I lived together here 25 years. I lost a brother and a wife here. This is my home."

Fund Appeal Goal Is Set

The annual Little Red Stocking appeal of Children's Home Society of North Carolina during the Thanksgiving and Christmas season has a 1975 goal of $125,000 according to Mrs. J.H. Froelich, President.

Mrs. Froelich said that the goal, set by the Executive Committee of the Society's Board of Directors, is necessary to the continuing services of the statewide agency. Children's Home Society is North Carolina's only statewide, nonsectarian, voluntarily-supported adoption agency. The Society receives approximately 39.5 percent of its annual operating budget from the United Way, 9.4 percent from the Duke Endowment and 7.8 percent from a grant-in-aid from the North Carolina General Assembly. The major portion of the remaining 45 percent of the budget has traditionally derived from the annual Little Red Stocking appeal.

Through its seven district offices, located across the state, the Society provides problem pregnancy counseling services, temporary care for infants, and adoption services to residents in all 100 counties. Little Red Stocking gifts may be mailed to the Children's Home Society of North Carolina, Box 6587, Greensboro, N.C. 27405.

Bucs Crushed By Maryland In Opener

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—The number three ranked Maryland Terapins sputtered through the first 14 minutes of the first half, then caught fire and demolished the East Carolina University Pirates last night, 127-84.

Powered by the scoring of Steve Sheppard and John Lucas, the Terps turned a tight game into a runaway in the final six minutes of the first half, and kept the pressure on during the opening 10 minutes of the second half.

The Terps, who burned the nets for a fine 57.9 percentage, had little trouble, after the first 14 minutes, as they controlled the boards, and had the Bucs eating out of their hands.

Sheppard finished the evening with 28 points, while Lucas popped in 24.

East Carolina suffered through a cold shooting opening game, hitting just 39.1 per cent. The Bucs also were unable to do one thing that Coach Dave Patton said they would have to do—control the boards. Maryland out rebounded them, 68-38.

A number of times, the Pirates had trouble getting the ball up the court against the more experienced, quicker Maryland team.

And Terapin Coach Lefty Driesell didn't call off the dogs until quite late in the game, pouring it on in an apparent effort to impress the poll voters.

The Pirates kept it close throughout much of the first half. They grabbed the initial lead on a jumper by Wade Henkel, but Sheppard hit to tie it up. The Bucs continued to hold the lead until Larry Gibson scored to put the Terapins on top for the first time, 8-6.

. The Bucs tied it up twice more, at 8-8 and 10-10, but Lucas hit off the fast break for a 12-10 lead and the Bucs never caught up again.

Mo Howard followed with a jumper, and Sheppard hit twice more to run the lead out to 18-10.

Al Edwards hit twice and Buzzy Braman once to cut it back to 18-16, but a three-point play by Lawrence Boston, followed by a three-pointer by Sheppard ran it back to 24-16. East Carolina kept up, however, cutting it to 30-27 on a three-point play by Larry Hunt.

Leading 34-29, the Terapins finally put it all together, and during the next few minutes, outhit the Pirates 25-6. Sheppard hit five points during the binge, while Lucas had six. Gibson also hit six. That pushed the lead out to 59-35 with 1:21 left in the half.

The Bucs cut one off that and trailed. 64-41 at halftime.

But in the second half, the Terapins kept up their hot shooting hands, while the Bucs continued to have trouble just getting the ball down the court. And when they did get it down for a shot, that was what they got—just one shot.

During the first eight minutes of the second half, Maryland pushed through 29 more points, while East Carolina managed just eight. Sheppard and Lucas again led the way. Lucas hit 13 during the string, while Sheppard added eight. That ran it to 93-49.

The Pirates finally began to find the range and hit 13 straight, trimming it back to 93-62, but it was just a token comeback. Maryland inched away again, slowly building back to as much as a 47-point bulge at 116-69.

It was only then, with less than three minutes left that Driesell went to his bench extensively. But as far as the Bucs were concerned, it was too late then.

"They played like the number three team," Patton said afterwards. "We ran into a buzz saw out there and got chewed up. I knew we'd find out what we had to do, and we found out. We played with no intensity."

Patton said he would have to take the blame for the lack of intensity on defense. "We started too passively," he said. "We weren't active enough. But it won't happen again. We spent too much time watching them, both offensively and defensively, on the boards and on the loose balls. Everybody was playing on their own, not as a team."

But with his usual optimism, Patton added that he wasn't worried. "We're a young team, really, and we'll come around."

Besides the scoring of Lucas and Sheppard, Maryland got 17 from Boston, 16 from Howard, 14 from Gibson and 10 from James Tillman.

Boston led the rebounding with 17, while Gibson grabbed off 14.

For the Pirates, Reggie Lee was high with 22. Earl Garner had 16, while Al Edwards, and Tyron Edwards each had 10.

Henkel led the rebounding with nine, while Hunt had six.

Rampants Stun Richmond County, 31-14

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

ROCKINGHAM—Rose High School took full advantage of every mistake made by Richmond County Friday night and romped to a 31-14 victory over the top-ranked 4-A team in the state.

The win moved the Greenville club into the State 4-A finals next Friday night in Charlotte against East Mecklenburg, a 14-7 winner over East Forsyth.

Richmond County, looking unbeatable in the first half, jumped out to a 14-0 lead before Rose converted two fumbles into a 14-14 haltime deadlock.

The Rampants then drove for a field goal to open the second half, taking a 17-14 lead, and came back after another Raider fumble to slam the door with another touchdown.

Doug Paschal raced 64 yards in the final munute of the game to put the iceing on the cake.

Paschal scored the first Rose touchdown, on a one-yard plunge, and Mike Brewington got another, with a 28-yard fumble return. Quarterback Henry Trevathan scored the other, on a five-yard keeper.

Derek Brewington booted four extra points and a booming 35-yard field goal.

While Richmond County moved the ball almost at will in the first half, the aroused Rampant defense shut them down in the second half, giving up only 45 ground yards and 28 through the air.

Vander Thomas scored both on the Richmond County touchdowns, on runs of 18 and 13 yards. Charlie Davis booted both PATs.

The Raiders opened up strong, driving down the field to a near score on their first possession. From their own 36, they moved to the seven. But a delay of game call on third and goal from there, followed by an overthrown halfback pass forced a field goal attempt of 29 yards that was just wide of the mark.

After forcing Rose to punt, the Raiders moved again, this time from their own 32. Picking up 11 yards on third and seven, Davis hit Jeff Thomas for a first down at the Rose 43. Vander Thomas picked up eight, and Davis got a first down at the 43. He then hit Jeff Thomas at the 18, and on the next play, Vander burst up the middle to go the final 18 for the score. Davis kicked with 1:51 left in the period for a 7-0 lead.

Rose turned it back on a fumble at the 39 and it took just four plays. The first, which lost six yards on a fumble, moved it back to the 45. But three straight runs by Vander Thomas moved it in from there. He ran for 19, then added 13. The final 13 came around the left side and he went over with 10:31 left, Davis' kick upped the lead to 14-0.

Rose got a drive going after that, moving from the 10 to the 24 of the Raiders before three straight losses forced a punt. Paschal raced for 19 yards on one play, while Trevathan picked up 17 on another, and a facemasking call added 15 more yards to the total.

Three plays after the punt, Thomas fumbled and Howard Hill recovered for Rose on the seven. William Joyner took a pitchout around the right side for six yards, and Paschal punched up the middle for the final yard on the next play. Derek Brewington's kick cut it to 14-7 with 5:33 left in the half.

Two plays after the kickoff, Adams fumbled the ball at 35, and Mike Brewington scooped it up at the 28, racing untouched into the end zone. Brother Derek's PAT tied it up, 14-14, with 4:31 to go.

Rose took the opening kickoff on the second half, and drove for the lead. From the 26, the Rampants punched it down the field. Paschal raced for 22 yards, then added nine for long gains, while Joyner got away for eight.

But after a first down at the 21, the drive stalled, and on fourth down, Brewington booted the 35-yarder with 7:40 left for a 17-14 Rampant lead. His kick probably would have been good from neatly 50 yards.

Three plays after the kick, Rose was back in control. Thomas bobbled the ball again and Tyrone Perkins was on it in a flash at the Richmond 37.

Rose got five yards on a first down penalty, then Joyner raced for 11 more. After six more yards, another facemasking penalty put the ball on the eight. Three plays later, Trevathan followed Paschal over right tackle and squeezed into the end zone. Brewington's kick upped it to 24-14 with 4:54 left.

Rose again drove late in the period, moving from the 24 to the Raider 40 before penalties helped dull the drive. Late in the game, Richmond County finally got its offense to click again, running it from the four out to the Rose 39 before Mike Brewington picked off a Davis' pass.

From the 21, Rose failed to make a first down, and punted. But the Raiders roughed Trevathan after the punt, and the penalty gave Rose a first down at the 36.

Paschal failed to gain ground on the first play, but on the second, he broke over right tackle, pushed off the linebacker, and then outraced the safety as he went 64 yards to top off the evening. Brewington's final boot came with just 44 seconds left.

"We came back out and did the job," Coach Dave Bumgarner said afterwards. "But somebody stole our plaque and that really got us fired up."

The Rampants, for several years, have carried a small Rampant plaque with them, hanging it up in their dressing room. But when they returned to the dressing room at halftime, it was gone. "It may sound like a small thing, but it really fired the guys up," the coach said.

Bumgarner added that there was no doubt that the two fumbles that Rose turned into touchdowns helped to swing the momentum. "They were way ahead in the first half. We knew that we had to avoid mistakes to win, and we did. They made several, and we capitalized on every one of them.

"Paschal really had a night, too. He was really determined. He ran like crazy." The big back ended up with 170 yards on 26 carries.

"They had a good offensive team," the coach said of Richmond County. "Their quarterback did an outstanding job passing. But I think our defense did a super job."

Trevathan also got praise for his punting, several times getting off kicks under great pressure. "And our coverage was terrific. We didn't let them have a thing." Rose held Richmond to minus five yards in punt returns, bringing their total punt return defense to just three yards for the 13 games thus far.

Now 11-2, Rose goes for the state title Friday at Charlotte's East Mecklenburg.

Veterans Spark State To Win

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Senior Phil Spence scored 21 points and Al Green and Kenny Carr 19 each to lead North Carolina State's Wolfpack to a 103-75 victory over The Citadel in the basketball season opener Saturday night.

A crowd of 6,800 saw N. C. State coach Norm Sloan use all 13 players, with 11 seeing action in the first half. Three sophomores and a freshman were in the starting lineup with Spence.

Ahead by 52-35 at the half, N.C. State outscored The Citadel 23-10 in the first 10 minutes of the second half in rolling to victory. The Wolfpack never trailed. Spence pulled down 15 rebounds.

Rodney McKeever scored 15 points and Richard Johnson 14 to lead the visiting Bulldogs.

The Wolfpack had a shooting percentage of 56.5, hitting on 39 of 69 shots. The Citadel connected on 31 of 70 for 44.3 per cent.

N.C. State freshman center Glenn Sudhop, in a starting role, had 14 points and sophomore guard Craig Davis 10.

Sports Club Is Starting

A meeting will be held Tuesday at 12:30 p.m. to check interest in the formation of a Greenville Sports Club.

The meeting will be held at a buffet luncheon at the Ramada Inn. All interested persons are invited to attend the $3 dutch meal.

The club, if formed, would meet either weekly or monthly to hear area sports personalities in high school, college and the professional ranks.

The idea for the organization grew out of the East Carolina University's Pirate Club, which wanted to try and have a periodical meeting to hear the various coaches of the university. Talks with people in the area toward forming the club expanded it into a non-university function which would cover both the university and other programs in the area.

"We felt that it would be of more interest to be able to bring in people from the area high school and other organized programs to talk, show films, answer questions, and the like," Charles Vincent of the Recreation Department said. Vincent is heading up the group trying to found the club.

"We not only want to know about these area programs, but to try and bring in some professional personalities like Catfish Hunter and Gaylord Perry," he added.

A second meeting will be held on the following Tuesday, Dec. 9, at the Ramada. If enough interest is shown, a regular schedule of meetings will be set up, along with officers and the necessary program committees.

Rose Cagers Slower In Coming Around Due To Late Football

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Rose High School's basketball team, minus five of its players, is scheduled to open the 1975-76 season Friday night against Goldsboro, but don't bet on it.

Coach Wilson McDowell is hoping to postpone the game. He's rather be in Charlotte, cheering those five players, along with the rest of the Rampant football team to a State 4-A Championship.

After that, it'll be business as usual—well, almost.

It's going to take a little while for those five players, four of them potential starters, to come around and get their "basketball" legs.

In the meanwhile, McDowell is working with 11 other candidates for the team, hoping to get them rounded into shape to open the season. Only three who have varsity experience are back this year—so far. They include Randy Pellisero, who spent the latter half of the year with the JV; Eddean Smith, and Jeff Barber.

"We have one transfer student, Greg Stokes, but most of our real varsity experience is still with the football team," McDowell said.

Those five include Derek and Mike Brewington, Harry Pair, Joe Godette and Keith James. "I think Keith is coming out," McDowell said. "But he didn't show up at our picture session, so I'm not sure."

Of these five, all but James are potential starters by January. Mike Brewington was one of the team leaders last year when the Rampants turned in a winning season and gained a State Playoff berth. Derek played with the JV, while both Pair and Godette played with the varsity and saw plenty of action.

"I'd like to think that the enthusiasm of football, plus that from last year's season, will carry over into this year's group," McDowell said. "In fact, with the spirit they now have, it's going to be advantagous for us just to have them on the bench."

While the rest are expected to join the team shortly after the conclusion of the football season this Friday night, Mike will not be available for another week at least. He'll be playing in the Shrine Bowl next week.

"I'm hoping that they make the transition as quickly as possible," McDowell said.

Meantime, McDowell will go with the players he now has.

"We have some quick guards, but our ball handling is not quite as good as it was last year," he said. "We may be stronger on defense, however. Our outside shooting is having some problems, especially with the guards, but I hope by the time conference play rolls around we'll be improved. We have a lot of potential, but it depends on how soon we get it together."

Height, overall, will be extremely good, but there is not real big man. "We could start a 6-5, 6-4, 6-4 front line," the coach said. "Herb Oliver has shown a lot of improvement, and he'll help a lot. A sophomore, William Barnes, has also shown a lot of improvement, but he still has a ways to go."

These two, both 6-4, and along with the two Brewingtons, give good front line height. Godette, 6-2, and Donnie Shields, 6-2, add to the situation.

"We're not playing real tough defense right now, but I think it will come. At times we're real good, but we're not consistant."

In the conference race, McDowell feels that Northeastern has to get the nod due to its experience and the fact that it is the defending champion. "Bertie showed a lot of improvement last year, and could be a challenger. And I expect the other teams to be improved too, and we are going to be competitve."

Actually, McDowell feels it could be an advantage for Rose to have to use its less experienced players early. "This will give us greater depth later in the year, when we really need it."

McDowell said he would probably start Pellisero and either Curtis Keyes or Smith at the guards, with Barnes, Shields and Stokes up front right now. Others on the team who will see a lot of action include Oliver, Barber, Mike McLawhorn, Jackie Payton and Billy Williams.

The season is supposed to start Friday, but don't be surprised if that game is postponed.

Duke Runs Past Johns Hopkins

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — Senior captain Willie Hodge scored 18 points to lead a balanced offense as Duke crushed an outclassed Johns Hopkins team, 103-72, Saturday night in the basketball season opener for both teams.

The Blue Devils scored the first eight points of the game and raced to a 36-8 lead in the first 10 minutes before Coach Bill Foster made wholesale substitutions.

From that point on, the game was a run and gun affair as both teams dropped their patterned offenses in favor of a wide open style.

Terry Chili added 16 points for Duke while Drew Fender and Dean Uhler led the Blue Jays with 13 points each.

The visitors never got closer than 18 points after Duke's early spurt despite the fact that none of the Blue Devil starters played more than half the game.

As a result, the second half became something of a guessing game for those interested in how many points Duke would end up with after leading 56-37 at halftime.

Tar Heels Open With Big Win

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Fifth-ranked North Carolina, with six players scoring in double figures, crushed Howard University 115-75 Saturday night in the basketball season opener before a crowd of 8,800.

Coach Dean Smith's Tar Heels outrebounded Howard 54-21 as Mitch Kupchak got 14 and led his team in scoring with 24 points. At the half North Carolina was ahead 54-33.

"I thought our squad had a very spirited opener," said Smith. "We played very unselfish."

Howard took a brief 2-0 lead, but from then on the Tar Heels were in command as they had a shooting percentage of 62 per cent.

The game's high scorer was Howard's Ellsworth Hart with 30 points. But the Bison shot only 41 per cent.

North Carolina's Phil Ford, who tallied 15 points, set a UNC single game assist record with 14.

Rutgers Wins

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—Fullback Curt Edwards rolled for 149 yards and Rutgers' nationally ranked defense picked off three last period passes Saturday as the Scarlet Knights overcame Syracuse, 21-10, for their seventh consecutive victory.

Deacons Ease Past Richmond

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — Guard Skip Brown scored 26 points, including eight for eight at the free throw line, to pace Wake Forest to a 94-90 victory over Richmond Saturday night in the basketball season opener for both clubs.

Richmond, favored to win the Southern Conference race, was led by 6-9 center John Brown who scored 24 points, followed by Kevin Eastman with 23.

The Atlantic Coast Conference Deacons built an 11 point lead over the Spiders in the game's first five minutes but barely held on for the four-point victory in the closing minute.

With five seconds left in the game Richmond's Brown hit a 10-foot jump shot to cut Wake Forest's lead to 92-90. Skip Brown was fouled on a long inbounds pass and hit both of his free throws for the final margin.

Wake Forest led 45-38 at halftime.

Navy Pounds Cadets, 30-6

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Special team players Jeff Hoobler and Bob DeStafney set up first half touchdowns Saturday that fired Navy to its third straight victory over Army, a 30-6 thumping before 81,576, the smallest crowd ever to see the service classic at 100,000-seat John F. Kennedy Stadium.

Navy's seventh triumph of the season, the most for the Middies since the 1963 Cotton Bowl team won nine games, never was in doubt after senior Larry Muczynski's 27-yard field goal gave them a 3-0 lead midway through the first period.

Coach George Welsh's future Naval officers got 17 points in the second quarter on the first of Bob Jackson's two short touchdown runs, DeStafney's 42-yard run with a blocked punt and Muczynski's 31-yard field goal. Johnson finished with 133 yards on 25 carries.

Welsh went to his bench early in the second half in an apparent effort not to embarass the outclassed Cadets, who lost their ninth straight game of the season after winning the first two. Army's lead in the 76-game series melted to 36-34, with six ties.

Even with the second and third unit players on the field much of the final two periods, Navy added to its total on a 28-yard field goal by Muczynski, and Jackson's two-yard touchdown.

Army's deepest penetration in the first half carried the Cadets to the Navy 16 and 27 yard lines. They missed a field goal on the first drive and lost the ball on downs on the second. Army finally scored with 8:30 remaining in the fourth quarter on a one-yard quarterback sneak by Leamon Hall.

That was the first Army touchdown against Navy since the fourth quarter of the Cadets' 1972 victory. Navy won the last two years 51-0 and 19-0, and has now outscored Army 100-6 the last three years.

Jackson, the 6-foot-4 senior fullback from Lindenwold, N.J., boosted his three-year career rushing total to 1,669, second on the all-time Navy ground gaining list. The 216-pound Jackson passed Joe Bellino Saturday and finished his career behind Cleveland Cooper, who gained 2,582 yards in his Navy career from 1972-74.

Navy took a 3-0 lead with 7:01 left in the first period on Mucynski's 27-yard field goal. The score was set up with the help of 35 yards by Jackson on three carries. Gerry Goodwin contributed a 23-yard run.

Then Hoobler and DeStafney went into their act.

Navy's Steve Dykes punted and Hoobler charged downfield and hit the Army receiver, Phil Macklin, who fumbled at the Army 17 where DeStafney recovered. In four plays, Navy scored with Jackson banging across from the two. Muczynski kicked the point and it was 10-0 with 2:32 gone in the second quarter.

Later in the second period, Hoobler charged through the Army defense to block Dave Hoopengardner's punt. DeStafney picked up the loose ball and ran 42 yards into the end zone for another Navy TD. Muczynski converted to make it 17-0.

After Army's Hall missed a first down by a yard on a fourth down run to the Navy 19, the Middies drove for their final score of the first half.

Goodwin ran 20 yards for a first down at the Cadets' 48 and a pass interference penalty set the Middies up at the 26. Goodwin and Jackson hammered out another first down at 15 and when three plays netted only two yards, Muczynski kicked a 31-yard field goal for a 20-0 halftime lead.

In the third period, Navy defensive back John Sturges intercepted an Army pass and returned it 12 yards to the Middies' 46. Navy then moved 54 yards on nine plays including a 12-yard sprint by Jackson and a 14-yard pass completion to set up Muczynski's third field goal, a 28-yarder that boosted the lead to 23-0.

Navy's final drive started late in the third quarter from the Middies' 46 and wound up with Jackson scoring from the two early in the final period to boost the score to 30-0.

Army's only touchdown was a 12-play, 58-yard drive climaxed by Hall's one-yard score. The Cadets pass attempt for a two-point conversion failed.

Todd Leads Alabama Past Auburn, 28-0

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)— Richard Todd accounted for four touchdowns, three in the second half, as fourth ranked Alabama smashed Auburn 28-0 Saturday, spoiling the coaching finale of Ralph "Shug" Jordan.

Todd brought his team's lethargic attack to life in the second half with three long scoring drives as the Sugar Bowl-bound Crimson Tide won easily after a poor start.

Todd scored on runs of 33 and 14 yards in the third quarter, fired a 17-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Brown in the first period and closed the scoring with a 24-yard toss to Ozzie Newsome in the final quarter.

The victory in the nationally-televised game was the tenth straight for Alabama since an opening 20-7 loss to Missouri. It gave the Tide an unprecedented fifth straight undisputed Southeastern Conference title and tied a record of 20 straight conference victories set by Tennessee 35 years ago.

Jordan, who announced before the season started that his 25th year would be his last, ended with one of the poorest seasons of his career, 3-6-2.

The Tigers played inspired defensive ball during the first half when they held Alabama to a 7-0 lead, but simply did not have the strength to stay with the four-touchdown favorites for 60 minutes.

Alabama had a second quarter scoring opportunity killed by a clipping penalty after the Tide had reached the Auburn 10.

Auburn's deepest penetration in the game was to the Alabama 23 early in the fourth quarter where Neil O'Donoghue had a 44-yard field goal try fall short.

Sophomore fullback Johnny Davis was the workhorse for Alabama in the game which started in windy, 70-degree weather and ended in a chilly night air.

Davis, the games' leading rusher with 98 yards on 18 carries, hammered out 37 yards in Alabama's first scoring drive which covered 84 yards and then added 32 more on a 77-yard march that opened the second half.

Todd, who rushed for 90 yards and passed for another 54, virtually put the game on ice five minutes into the third quarter when he kept over right guard, cut back to the left and maneuvered through traffic on his 33-yard touchdown run.

Davis also was the workhorse on Alabama's third march that came after Tyrone King returned an interception 10 yards to the Crimson Tide 44.

Claiborne Is Top ACC Coach

RALEIGH (AP)—Maryland football Coach Jerry Claiborne was chosen the Atlantic Coast Conference coach of the year by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

He was cited for his leadership in Maryland's winning its second consecutive ACC championship despite losing 16 starters from last season. The Terps ended the season with a 8-2-1 record and were 5-0 in the conference, the team's best record since 1955.

Maryland was selected to play Florida in the Gator Bowl, the third straight bowl team for Claiborne.

In his four years at Maryland, Claiborne has compiled a 29-15-2 record. His record against ACC opponents is now 19-3-1.

In 1973, his second at Maryland, Claiborne was named ACC coach of the year when his team ended the season 8-3 and went to the Peach Bowl were it

During this season, the Terps led the conference in both offense and defense statistics. Maryland lost to Penn State and Tennessee and tied Kentucy.

Of the 104 votes cast, Claiborne received 51. Chuck Mills of Wake Forest drew 28 votes for second place. The Demon Deacons, ACC doormats for the last two seasons, defeated North Carolina, N.C. State and Virginia for their 3-3 conference record.

Lou Holtz of N.C. State, whose team will play West Virginia in the Peach Bowl, drew 22 votes while four votes went to Mike McGee of Duke.

Claiborne, a Kentucky native, was a defensive back under Paul "Bear" Bryant at the University of Kentucky and served as an assistant coach under Bryant at Kentucky, Texas A&M and Alabama. He was head coach at Virginia Tech for 10 seasons where he compiled a 61-39-2 record.

He spent a season as defensive coordinator at Colorado before going to College Park to build Maryland's winning teams. The Terps had eight straight losing seasons but came up with a 5-5-1 record in Claiborne's first year. In each of the three following years, Maryland won eight games.

Vandy In Upset Win

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— An 18-yard field goal by Mark Adams, his 12th of the season, gave underdog Vanderbilt a 17-14 victory over Tennessee Saturday in a Southeastern Conference football game.

Adams' game-winning boot came midway the fourth period after safety Ed Oaks intercepted a pass by Vols quarterback Randy Wallace and lugged the ball 26 yards to the Tennessee 6.

The victory was Vanderbilt's first over archrival Tennessee since 1964 and gave Commodore Coach Fred Pancoast a 7-4 record in his first season. The loss left Tennessee with a 6-5 mark and one game remaining with Hawaii at Honolulu next Saturday.

Vanderbilt marched 80 yards for its two touchdowns with tailback Lonnie Sadler plunging from the 1 for the first in opening period.

Speedster Adolph Grove raced in from the 9 for the Commodores' game tying touchdown early in the fourth quarter.

Two Eagles Reported

A couple of eagles have been recorded recently at Brook Valley Golf and Country Club.

Les Turnage made an eagle two on the fifth hole while playing with Harry Wilson, Don Hayes and Bill Goodwin.

The other eagle was also a two, recorded by Jim Rodgers on the seventh hole. He was playing with Charlie Odum, Joe Dudley and Boley Farley. It was his first eagle.

Driver Graham Hill Dies In Plane Crash

LONDON (AP) — British race car driver Graham Hill, the 1966 winner of the Indianapolis 500 and a two-time world champion on the European Grand Prix circuit, was believed killed Saturday night in the crash of a small airplane near here.

Police said all six persons aboard the plane were killed. Hill was listed as being on the plane, and his driver's license and one of his credit cards were found in the burnt-out wreckage.

But police said they could not absolutely confirm that Hill was among the dead because the bodies were burned beyond immediate recognitition. Officials at the airport in Marseilles, France, said the plane left there at 12:50 p.m. EST, but they could not confirm that Hill was aboard it.

Police officials said Hill, 46, a top driver for a decade in Formula I cars, owned the Piper Aztec which was making an instrument approach to a small airfield near London.

They said the plane was on a flight across the English Channel from Marseilles. It broke through heavy fog above a golf course near Barnet, north of London and about 10 miles from its intended destination. Police said the plane smashed into the ground near the first tee of the golf course, bursting into flames.

The American-registered plane was "just a burnt-out wreck," police said, adding that all the bodies were believed to be those of men.

Hill was a frequent passenger on flights making short hops across the English Channel, and associates said he often piloted his planes.

Hill retired as a driver in 1974 and had been working as team manager with Embassy Hill Cars, a company that was working on development of a new Formula I car for the 1976 season.

Hill, a dapper Englishman who was quick with a quip, burst onto the auto racing scene 13 years ago when he won the world driving championship, nailing down the title by capturing the Italian Grand Prix.

A year later, he won the Aintree 200 at Aintree, England and followed that with victories in the Monaco Grand Prix and the Grand Prix of the United States at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

He repeated the Monaco and U.S Grand Prix victories in 1964 and 1965 and also captured two New Zealand Grand Prix races in 1965 and 1966.He was runnerup for world racing championship honors in 1963, 1964 and 1965.

That set the stage for Hill's most memorable victory, the Memorial Day Indianapolis 500 in 1966. He earned $156,197 for that victory, the first one for an Indy rookie in 39 years.

Hill's Indy triumph which was marred by a flaming pile-up on the first turn and the claims of Jim Clark's backers that the Scotch racer had beaten Hill across the finish line. Hill, who weaved his way through the first lap mishap, averaged 144.317 miles per hour in winning the Indy race—the World Series of auto racing.

The crash left Hill shaken. "We generally do not have these chain reaction type accidents on the Grand Prix circuit, where we begin from a standing start," he said.

So Hill, a man who sported a handlebar mustache and who acted like the typical Englishman seen in the movies, returned to the Grand Prix races, winning the Spanish Grand Prix and taking his fourth Grand Prix of Monaco in 1968. When he added the Mexican Grand Prix later that year, it gave him another world driving championship for Formula One cars.

In 1969, he took his fifth Monte Carlo Grand Prix crown, driving the same Lotus Ford that had won the race the year before. Then he was nearly killed in a crash in the United States Grand Prix. Both of his legs were shattered in the crash and it was nearly two years before he returned to the top ranks of auto racers by winning the Daily Express International Trophy race in Silverstone, England.

Glidewell Leads VMI To Victory

STORRS, Conn., (AP) — Kim Glidewell put Virginia Military in front with a 21-yard touchdown run early in the third quarter and VMI went on to a 13-3 college football victory over Connecticut Saturday, ending a six-game losing streak.

Glidewell, who rushed for 182 yards in 25 carries, became the school's only runner to rush more than 100 yards in a game this year.

Connecticut took a 3-0 lead in the second quarter after a VMI kicking strategy failed on the first play of the second quarter. The Keydets tried a quick kick from their own 20 on a third-down play but the ball went only eight yards, going out of bounds on the 28.

Four plays later, Gerhard Mayer gave Connecticut its only seore, a 39-yard field goal.

After Glidewell's TD, VMI scored on another long play with 7:22 left in the game when quarterback Robbie Clark found fullback Steve Oddi alone in the end zone and hit him with a 27-yard pass. Rick Tufaro's kick for the extra point went wide.

VMI closed out the season with a 3-8 record while Connecticut, which had a four-game home victory streak broken, wound up 4-7.

Clark completed nine of 16 passes for 151 yards and a touchdown and his top receiver was Ronnie Moore who caught six aerials for 105 yards.

Connecticut, losing the ball of three of four fumbles, managed only 129 yards rushing and 57 more in the air. Halfback Nick Giaquinto, who fumbled three times rushing, was credited with 46 yards in 10 attempts to lead his team in rushing.

Except for those two scoring plays, Connecticut defense performed admirably, causing five VMI fumbles and intercepting three passes. Also, VMI gave up the ball on down twice and was forced to punt from its own side of the field seven times.

Purvis's Score Lifts 'Skins To Victory

FOLLOWING THE BOUNCING BALL—UCLA and USC players chase the ball following a fumble by UCLA during the action in Friday night's game. UCLA fumbled eight times but managed to scrape out a 25-22 victory. Going after the ball are USC's Kevin Bruce (50) and Gary Jeter (79) and UCLA's Eddie Ayers (30) and Mitch Kahn (62). AP Wirephoto)

CREEDMOOR—Ricky Purvis broke loose on a 55-yard run in the third period to score the game-winning touchdown as the Roanoke Redskins edged South Granville, 13-10, in the 2-A football semi-finals Friday night.

Purvis's score came after South Granville had inched in front, 8-7 on a pass. The Redskins had to stop a last period drive to preserve the win.

The 'Skins scored first getting seven on a run by Charlie Smith. South Granville countered with a four-yard pass from Ricky Brummitt to Ben Farabow in the third quarter but Roanoke won it on Purvis's run. Ricky Spruill was tackled in the end zone for a safety cutting the 'Skins' lead to 13-10, the final margin.

The Redskins will return home this week to host West Montgomery in the state championship, Friday night. West Montgomery beat Sun Valley, 14-7 Friday night.

The game was close right down to the end. Roanoke had the edge in rushing, 188-163, but the Vikings had more passing yardage, 59-52. The Redskins picked up 37 return yards, South Granville 36. The Vikes completed five passes, the 'Skins six.

Roanoke took the initial kickoff and began to drive but the march was short lived. From his 24, Ricky Spruill picked up eight in two plays and on third down, he got away for 34 to the Viking 34. Ricky Purvis ran once but failed to gain and on second down, he lost seven yards. Charlie Smith passed to Purvis for 11 but it was not enough.

The teams exchanged punts for the next several minutes. In the second period South Granville managed to drive to the Roanoke 38 but was finally stopped. Roanoke failed to move and kicked back to the Vikings.

But on second down, the Vikes fumbled and Carl Whitley recovered for the 'Skins.

Charlie Smith passed to Lee Smith for 17 yards to the 18 and Purvis ran for three. Spruill moved the team to the four gaining ten but the Redskins lost it at the four on a fumble. The ball was recovered on the 20 by Benny Johnson.

Roanoke pushed South Granville back and forced another punt. This time, the 'Skins didn't stop until they were on the boards.

From their 31, Lee Smith caught a pass for 14 yards and Spruill ran for four. A pass fell incomplete but Charlie Smith came back to June Griggin for seven yards and a first down. Spruill put the ball on the one and Charlie Smith took it in. Reid Bullock added the PAT.

The Vikings held the 'Skins on fourth down at the SG 30 in the third period and that gave them a lift that carried them into the end zone. From their 27, the Vikings picked up 16 on a pass to Ben Farabow and Ricky Brummitt added five on the ground, Sandy Williams picked up four and two plays later, Johnson got a first down gaining ten. Farabow got another on a 12 yard pass and three plays later Blacknell ran to the eight picking up 11.

The Redskins were penalized four yards and from the four Brummitt passed to Farabow for the TD. Williams took the conversion pass as the Vikes went into the lead, 8-7.

Roanoke took the kick on its 28. Purvis ran for six and Spruill twice for ten. On second and four at the 45, Purvis escaped for his touchdown run.

Late in the game, South Granville dropped Spruill for a safety. They took the kick on the 'Skin's 44 and drove to the Roanoke seven. The drive almost ended at the 43 but Brummitt completed a fourth down pass to Farabow for 17 yards. Another pass to Farabow later put the ball on the seven. Brummitt lost five on the next play giving the ball to Roanoke.

Purvis carried six times and gained 63 yards. He caught two passes for 16. Spruill picked up 96 in 14 carries and Lee Smith caught three passes from brother Charlie Smith for 31 yards.

Back-up Plans Coming Into Play In Sunday's NFL Games

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

With the National Football League season reaching its showdown stage, the success or failure of two playoff-hopeful clubs may depend on the ability of a pair of little-used backup quarterbacks.

In the American Conference East, Miami holds a one-half game lead over Buffalo and is just one game ahead of Baltimore. The Dolphins also must face the remainder of the season with 41-year-old Earl Morrall at quarterback, replacing injured Bob Griese.

And in the AFC Central, Cincinnati has slipped one game behind Pittsburgh and may have to use backup John Reaves at quarterback if Ken Anderson does not recover from the bruised chest he suffered in last week's stunning loss against Cleveland.

The NFL's 11th weekend got an early start on Thanksgiving Day when Buffalo stung St. Louis 32-14 and Los Angeles shut out Detroit 20-0.

The Rams' victory clinched their third straight NFC West title and also wrapped up Minnesota's NFC Central crown. Buffalo's triumph tightened both the AFC and NFC East races, putting pressure on Miami in the AFC East and cutting the Cardinals' NFC East edge to just one-half game over Dallas and 1½ over Washington.

Sunday's schedule has Dallas hosting the New York Giants, Minnesota at Washington, Pittsburgh at the New York Jets, Houston at Cincinnati, Atlanta at Oakland, Kansas City at Baltimore, San Francisco at Philadelphia, San Diego at Denver, Chicago at Green Bay and New Orleans at Cleveland.

New England plays the Dolphins at Miami in Monday night's game.

Morrall will be calling the plays for Miami in that one. It's not exactly an unfamiliar role for the veteran quarterback, who came off the bench to steer Baltimore to the Super Bowl in 1970 and then did the same thing for the Dolphins in 1972.

But he had a dreadful time last Sunday, completing only one of nine passes after Griese was injured in the loss to Baltimore. That gave him six completions in 15 attempts this season.

Still, that's a better percentage than Cincinnati's Reaves, who has connected on just four of 16 this year as Anderson's backup but could find himself in the driver's seat against Houston.

Anderson was listed as questionable because of his chest injury suffered against the Browns last week. After he left the game, Cleveland came on to score 20 points in the fourth quarter and win its first game of the year.

That loss, combined with Pittsburgh's Monday night trouncing of Houston left the defending champion Steelers one game in front of Cincinnati and two up on Houston in the AFC Central. Pittsburgh has won eight straight games and carries the streak against the Jets, who've lost seven in a row.

The Oakland Raiders can join Los Angeles and Minnesota as a division champion by beating Atlanta this week and hoping that Kansas City loses to Baltimore. The Raiders, who've won five straight games, are after their fourth consecutive AFC West crown.

Meanwhile, Buffalo's Thanksgiving Day victory over St. Louis not only put the heat on Miami in the AFC East but also produced pressure for the Cards in the NFC East. The loss trimmed St. Louis' lead to just one-half game over Dallas and 1½ over Washington.

Dallas can tie for the top spot by beating the Giants and if Washington can halt Minnesota's 10-game winning streak, it would tighten things even more, leaving the Redskins only one game behind.

Kansas City's game at Baltimore is vital to the Colts, whose five-game winning streak has them hot on Miami's tail in the AFC East. The Chiefs, have turned their season around, winning five of seven games since an 0-3 start.

Sunday's other games have no bearing on the remaining races.

Texas Is Run Through Grinder By Aggies, 20-10

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — At sundown, the Texas coaching staff and players were agreed on one thing: they had been mangled and mauled by the most awesome defense they've encountered in recent years.

"They are for sure the most impressive defensive team I've seen in the conference in some time," said Texas Coach Darrell Royal.

"Their defense is about as good as I've been around," echoed Longhorn defensive coordinator Mike Campbell.

The defense belonged to second-ranked Texas A&M, and it helped the Aggies to a 20-10 victory in their annual Southwest Conference showdown Friday with fifth-ranked Texas.

Led by linebackers Ed Simonini and Garth Ten Napel, the No. 1 defense in the land held the nation's highest-scoring offense to only six first downs and 113 yards rushing. The Aggies intercepted three passes, recovered two fumbles and stopped Texas two times on crucial fourth downs.

Texas offensive tackle Bob Simmons lamented, "They are as good as they are supposed to be...They just have so many people that can go get the ball that you can't get all of them."

The 179 total yards was the lowest offensive production for a Texas team in three years. The victory—Aggie Coach Emory Bellard's first over former boss Royal—clinched a conference co-championshipfor A&M.

It also set up a shootout Dec. 6 in Little Rock, Ark., with once-beaten (in SWC play) Arkansas for the privilege of playing in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day against Georgia. The loser plays in the Liberty Bowl Dec. 22 against Southern California.

Texas, losing its first game to A&M since 1967, got a consolation prize at the end of its regular season 9-2 ledger, a meeing with Colorado Dec. 27 in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Royal said freshman quarterback Ted Constanzo faced severe pressure after senior quarterback Marty Akins reinjured his knee in the second period. "It wasn't as much Ted's fault as it was the A&M defense," Royal said.

Akins, who had injured the knee two weeks ago against Texas Christian, said, "I just went out and figured to play as long as I could. It just didn't hold up."

The Aggies, who had lost 17 of 18 previous games against Royal-coached teams, went to a razzle-dazzle play on their first possession. Bellard did this in spite of the fact that the Aggies had fumbled away the ball to Texas on their first possession in the last three years.

UCLA Edges USC By Three Points

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA has given Ohio State something to think about. Now all Woody Hayes has to do is figure out what it is.

The 14th-ranked Bruins earned a place in the Rose Bowl for the first time in a decade and a rematch with Ohio State with a tense 25-22 victory over Southern California despite an incredible 11 fumbles.

"I don't care about the fumbles, I don't care how bad we played," said UCLA quarterback John Sciarra emphatically.

"We're going to the Rose Bowl and that's all that matters."

When the Bruins weren't letting loose of the ball they were letting go an overwhelming offensive show that ran up 414 yards against USC's respected defense with Sciarra throwing two touchdown passes to tight end Don Pederson. Wendell Tyler, who had four fumbles, ran for 130 yards including a 57 yard touchdown punt.

But it was the Bruin defense, a subject of derision much of the year, that saved the day, stopping Southern Cal drives four times in the fourth quarter. The Bruins gave up the ball eight times on fumbles, twice in the final five minutes, but the UCLA defense came through both times.

Ohio State, top ranked and unbeaten, is coming to Pasadena as the Big Ten champions.

UCLA, 8-2-1 overall, won the Pacific—8 Conference spot in the Rose Bowl with a 6-1 conference record, the same league mark as California. But the Bruins defeated Cal earlier and earned their first appearance in the New Year's Day Classic since Jan. 1, 1966 by winning their last three games of the season.

The Buckeyes whipped UCLA 41-20 earlier this season although there were some bright spots for the Bruins. For example, no one else has scored three touchdowns against the Buckeyes this fall.

Southern Cal, bound for the Liberty Bowl with a 7-4 mark, got 286 yards total offense against the Bruins — 136 of it on the ground by Ricky Bell, who finished the regular season with 1,875 yards — six short of Ed Marinaro's NCAA single season record.

"I really thought we played our best game of the season," said Bell. "It wasn't good enough, though, was it?"

It was John McKay's final Los Angeles game as USC coach, and his fourth consecutive defeat since announcing he would join Tampa in the National Football League. In his 16th season at Southern Cal, McKay had never before lost four in a row at the school.

"A lot has been made of our losing streak since I announced I was going into professional football," McKay said. "I don't think it was such a big deal. I just thought this team was better than it is; I guess it isn't."

McKay shook his head about all the UCLA mistakes and the Trojans' inability to take advantage of them, then concluded:

"UCLA must be awfully good if they can beat us fumbling 11 times."

Sciarra, who ran for 85 yards and passed for 86, said the Bruins seemed to become more tense in the second half, when eight fumbles occurred, even though they led 18-14 at halftime.

Bulls Roar Out With 89-69 Win

By The Associated Press

The Chicago Bulls finally came up for air and Coach Dick Motta was extremely happy to get a fresh breath.

Choking on a nine-game losing streak, the Bulls broke out of their depressing rut with an 89-69 National Basketball Association victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Friday night.

"I am certainly not beating the drums about winning any title," said Motta. "Right now all I want to do is make the playoffs since we are in a hole so far.

"For us it's got to be the same old story—getting inside, grabbing the offensive board and playing tough defense. I am very agreeable to letting the other team shoot from the outside because we'll win more than we'll lose."

Chicago center Tom Boerwinkle also was happy to see a little sunshine in Chicago.

"This is the best game we've played because everyone was moving," he said. "I know there's been a lot of pressure on me because I'm supposed to be a good passer and not a good scorer. But maybe we'll get rolling now."

In the other NBA games, the Boston Celtics whipped the Atlanta Hawks 114-107, the Philadelphia 76ers blasted the Seattle SuperSonics 113-94, the Kansas City Kings nipped the New Orleans Jazz 98-97, the Los Angeles Lakers turned back the Buffalo Braves 126-105 and the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Portland Trail Blazers 110-101.

Mickey Johnson grabbed a career high of 19 rebounds and Matt Goukas and Bob Love contributed clutch fourth-quarter shooting to blow open a tight game and give Chicago its triumph over Milwaukee. It also marked the fewest points ever scored against Chicago in 10 NBA seasons.

Celtics 114, Hawks 107

John Havlicek, playing after getting five stitches in a cut over his right eye, scored 20 of his 26 points in the second half to lead Boston over Atlanta. Havlicek took an elbow in the eye early in the first period, but returned to rally the Celtics with eight points in the third quarter and 12 in the final period.

76ers 113, SuperSonics 94

George McGinnis scored 26 points as Philadelphia surged back from a 16-point, second-quarter deficit to defeat Seattle. McGinnis' basket at 7:12 of the third quarter pushed the 76ers ahead for good at 59-57. The Sixers took 12 of the next 14 points to stretch the lead to 71-59, then salted it away with an 83-68 lead at the end of the period.

Kings 98, Jazz 97

Nate Archibald tossed in 31 points, but it took a basket by Sam Lacey and a pair of free throws by Jimmy Walker in the final 14 seconds to give Kansas City its victory over New Orleans.

Lakers 126, Braves 105

Lucius Allen scored 22 points to lead Los Angeles in a blistering offensive show that buried Buffalo.

Suns 110, Trail Blazers 101

Paul Westphal scored 17 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter to lift Phoenix over Portland.

String Ends On 6-3 Victory

By The Associated Press

Atlanta Coach Fred Creighton saved his thanksgiving for Friday night, after his Flames ended a week-long losing string with a 6-3 triumph over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

"This sure was a long time coming and I just hope it's the start of a trend," said Creighton after Larry Romanchych scored twice to help his Flames to victory after losses to Montreal and Philadelphia.

Romanchych opened the scoring, then Toronto pulled ahead on a pair of power play goals by Errol Thompson within 22 seconds. Thompson's first goal came with two Flames in the penalty box.

Tom Lysiak tied it for Atlanta, Hilliard Graves made it 3-2 and Romanchych put it away before Rey Comeau and Dave Kryskow—on an assist from goalie Dan Bouchard—made it 6-2. Jim McKenny closed out the scoring.

In the National Hockey League's other game Friday night, Buffalo topped California 4-2. In the World Hockey Association, it was Houston 7, Edmonton 4; Indianapolis 3, Cleveland 1; New England 7, Denver 3, and Winnipeg 5, Toronto 3.

Sabres 4, Seals 2

Buffalo's Danny Gare scored twice, giving him seven goals in his last six games, as the Sabres rallied for three goals in the final period and skated past California.

Aeros 7, Oilers 4

Houston's Frank Hughes, who scored three goals in the first period, said, "Good things come in bunches." His first tally came at 11:37 of the session, his second at 17:46 and his third just 30 seconds later as the Aeros tied a WHA record with their 14th consecutive home triumph.

Ken Baird, Norm Ullman, Rusty Patenaude and Tim Sheehy hit for Edmonton. Larry Lund scored twice while Don Larway and Andre Hinse had the others.

Jets 5, Toros 3

Anders Hedberg scored two goals to lift Winnipeg over Toronto.

Bill Lesuk, Norm Beaudin and Mats Lindh had the other Winnipeg goals. Vaclav Nedomansky, with two goals, and Richard Farda scored for Toronto.

Whalers 7, Spurs 3

Ron Climie scored three goals and Larry Pleau—a 30-goal scorer last season—broke a 20-game scoring drought with his first goal of the season to lead New England over Denver.

Climie, Rosaire Paiement, Climie and Tom Webster made it 4-0 early in the second period before center Ralph Backstrom scored for the Spurs.

Racers 3, Crusaders 1

Cleveland took a 1-0 first-period lead on Russ Walker's power play goal but the Racers' Bob Sicinski scored twice and Dick Proceviat once to give Indianapolis the victory.

Voight Named Player Of Year

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina tailback Mike Voight, who led the Atlantic Coast Conference in rushing this season with 125 yards a game, has been chosen the ACC football player of the year.

Voight, 201-pound junior from Chesapeake, Va., received 33 of the 104 votes cast by members of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

Tom Higgins, North Carolina State's outstanding middle guard, was only three votes behind Voight. N. C. State quarterback Dave Buckey trailed by five votes.

Voight, described by his coach, Bill Dooley, as "one of the great backs in college football," twice gained more than 200 yards a game this season. He is only the second player in the ACC to have two consecutive seasons with more than 1,000 yards. The other was Don McCauley, former North Carolina star.

With another season ahead of him, Voight has an excellent chance to succeed McCauley as the all-time ground gainer for the Tar Heels. He has 2,564 yards to rank third behind McCauley, with 3,172, and Charlie Justice, with 2,634.

Voight scored 11 touchdowns and averaged 4.8 yards per carry this season.

Bill Armstrong, Wake Forest safety, was named on nine ballots. Others receiving votes were Ted Brown, N.C. State freshman running back; and Bill Bryan, center, and Troy Slade, wide receiver, for Duke.

Wildlife Afield: Prize Is Small , But Rewards Big

By JIM DEAN

Time, which deals so harshly with the human animal, seems to be especially kind to quail hunters. It is as though the psyche is buffed by the years in the same way that a favorite pair of hunting pants is brought to mellow fulfillment in countless patches of briers and rattling soybeans. Coarse greed is polished away, exposing the bedrock qualities of patience and humility.

These qualities are especially visible in quail hunters who have walked the fields, woodlots and thickets for 20 or more years. It is apparent in the way they approach each season, each hunt, each covey. It can be seen in the way the dogs are handled and the way they react. It can be seen, or rather sensed, in the comfortable silences shared by old friends. It can be found in the manifest respect and love for the quarry that serves as the catalyst for these things.

I was reminded of this during the opening day of the new quail season Saturday. It was as nearly a perfect bird hunt as I have ever experienced.

The dog work was adequate, but hardly impressive by most standards. It was slightly warmer than we would have liked. Our wing shooting was, as usual, atrocious. Only one covey was pointed. And yet . . .

We began hunting shortly after lunch, and the early part of the afternoon was spent watching the unleased energies of dogs that have realized that summer, is, at last, over. We watched them run the edges of the wide, golden fields, and we listened to the tinkle of their bells as they worked the thick bottoms.

We smelled the crushed pine and wood smoke. There was, even this early, the faint scent of Christmas in the air.

Once, we thought the dogs had delivered us a classic bit of calendar art when they fetched up alongside a corn patch and stood quivering while we closed in. But there were no quail, only ghost.

Just before twilight, the dogs again locked up on point. This time it was no idle gesture. The birds blew out of a hedgerow and Dad dropped one in the middle of it. Buck banked his actions against past experiences and refused to look. Dad tried to reach the bird, but couldn't. It was too thick. Finally, I decided to try and 15 minutes later, I may have moved a dozen feet.

I was about to give up when I spotted the bird in the midst of an impenetrable tangle of briers and honeysuckle.

Buck, who has never come to me in his life, responded to my call immediately. When he reached me, I pointed to the bird. With much wriggling and few yelps, Buck managed to get to the spot. Moments later, he delivered a handsome cock bobwhite to Dad.

"That was worth the whole season and a summer of waiting," said Dad. "I wouldn't take a thousand dollars for it."

When Buck retrieved a single for us in the next field, we sealed the day with a handshake and walked back to the farmhouse.

On the way home that night, I promised myself never again to forget that the juice from small fruits is always sweetest.

Nets Wrap Up Burden, Come Away With Win

By The Associated Press

The last time the New York Nets met the Virginia Squires, Ticky Burden had a field day.

The Nets made sure that wouldn't happen again Friday night. Specifically, Brian Taylor made sure.

"Taylor really did an outstanding job on Burden, didn't he?" asked New York Nets Coach Kevin Loughery after his guard held the Squires' high scorer to merely six points.

The result was a 116-97 Nets victory.

"That hurt them," Loughery acknowledged. "Ticky's got to score for them or they're in trouble."

Last week, Burden did his thing, netting 32 points—and as a result, the Squires took a 110-100 decision from the Nets.

"Our defense kept us together in the game, especially in the second and last quarters," Loughery said. "We held them to four points in the last few minutes. That was the key. Our defense just carried the whole show."

In the night's other ABA games, the Denver Nuggets whipped the San Antonio Spurs 140-136 in overtime and the Spirits of St. Louis trimmed the Indiana Pacers 113-112.

Julius Erving scored 31 points and keyed a last-quarter rally to lead the Nets' offense. The Nets and Squires were never more than seven points apart throughout the first three quarters and it wasn't until late in the game that New York broke it open.

A layup by Taylor finally put New York ahead 84-82 and the Nets, led by Erving's eight points, outscored Virginia 17-5 in the last four minutes to pull away.

Johnny Neumann helped the Squires take a 33-32 edge in the first quarter, when the lead changed hands 14 times. Virginia had a 54-53 advantage at the half and 82-78 at the end of the third period before the Nets took charge. Swen Nater added 19 points for New York while Neumann led the Squires with 24.

Nuggets 140, Spurs 136

Rookie David Thompson scored six of Denver's 12 overtime points to lead the Nuggets over San Antonio. The regulation game ended with the teams tied at 128 as Denver's Byron Beck hit a three-point shot with two seconds remaining in the fourth quarter.

Spirits 113, Pacers 112

Freddie Lewis led a second-half charge that carried the Spirits of St. Louis past Indiana. Lewis scored 19 of his 32 points in the second half, including a key basket with 2½ minutes to go that gave St. Louis a 113-107 lead.

Darnell Hillman scored for Indiana with 2:08 left to move Indiana within four points, but then the Pacers went cold and didn't score again until Don Buse's three-pointer at the final buzzer.

Final Showdowns Set For Friday

By The Associated Press

With two North Carolina High School football championships decided Friday, teams at six other schools are girding for next week's final gridiron playoffs.

Next Friday's 4-A finals will put winners Greenville Rose and East Mecklenburg against each other, while in 3-A competition the championship will have Havelock going against Canton Pisgah.

In the 2-A title match it will be Roanoke-Robersonville playing West Montgomery.

Friday night's games saw James McDougald score four touchdowns and rush for a total of 322 yards as he paced Maxton to an overwhelming 86-8 victory over North Duplin to take the 1-A title.

In the other championship contest North Davidson appeared to have the Western North Carolina High School Athletic Association title sewn up in the fourth quarter, but Shelby turned two fumbles into touchdowns to tie the game at 21-21.

The two teams were declared co-champions after the game in Lexington. Shelby finished the season with a 9-3-1 record, while North Davidson wound up 11-1-1 for the year.

In the Maxton-North Duplin game McDougald's 322 yards rushing made up the bulk of the 597 yards Maxton gained on the ground, and the Golden Eagles added 161 yards in the air for total yardage of 758.

North Duplin's Rebels could only come up with 180 yards on the ground.

Clemson, In IPTAY Finals

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Clemson and Austin Peay, easy winners Friday night over Harvard and Syracuse, met Saturday night in the championship game of the third annual IPTAY Invitational Basketball Classic.

Clemson, led by 7-foot-1 center Wayne "Tree" Rollins, bounced Harvard 78-64 in the opener Friday night, while Austin Peay coasted to a 93-83 victory over Syracuse.

Playing their first game under new Coach Bill Foster, Clemson's Tigers moved to a 36-30 haltime lead and then outscored Harvard 15-6 in the first six minutes of the second half for a 15-point advantage at 51-36. They coasted the rest of the way.

Rollins finished with 14 points, 22 rebounds and four blocked shots, while David Brown pumped in 16 and freshman Greg Coles had 12.

Bill Carey scored 22 points for Harvard, followed by Joe Leondis with 12 and Doc Hines with 10.

Freshman Sam Drummer had 25 points, two more than Otis Howard, to lead Austin Peay's scoring.

Austin Peay jumped to a 46-38 halftime lead and increased it to 70-53 with 10 minutes remaining in the game.

Marty Byrnes led Syracuse with 19 points, while teammate Chris Sease scored 14.

LONDON, Ont. (AP) — The heavily guarded penalty box at London Gardens was the scene of a crime just prior to Friday's Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A game between the London Knights and Kingston Canadians.

Concerned league officials have insisted on extra police protection in the penalty box area since fighting erupted between fans and visiting players at games earlier in the season.

But unnoticed by police, someone managed to steal a pail of pucks from the penalty box, delaying the game for several minutes while officials looked for a new supply.

---

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Union conducts the first of three development track meets next Friday night, opening New York's indoor track and field season.

Three meets are scheduled in Madison Square Garden with the first one the Wanamaker Millrose Games Jan. 30. The others are the U.S. Olympic Invitational on Feb. 20 and the AAU national championships Feb. 27.

---

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave McAvoy and Ed Backus have been elected co-captains of the 1976 Columbia University football team, it was announced today.

McAvoy is a wide receiver and Backus a defensive back. Both are juniors.

---

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Mike Byers, a veteran World Hockey Association right wing, was given his unconditional release Friday night by the New England Whalers.

Byers had four goals and three assists in 17 games this season and General Manager-Coach Jack Kelley said he was unhappy with his performance.

Byers, 29, had been placed on waivers but was not claimed by any WHA team for the $100 waiver price.

---

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — A heart attack has claimed the life of Louis A. "Lou" Onesty, 67, track and cross country coach the last 22 years at the University of Virginia.

Onesty, survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Mitchell Onesty, and a son, Louis A. Onesty Jr., collapsed and died Friday while working at his home.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

A 1931 graduate of the University of Richmond, Onesty was a three-year letterman in track and basketball and was captain of the track team.

Prince Hired By Houston Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Prince, fired a month ago as play-by-play announcer for the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been hired by the Houston Astros.

Astros Vice President Dean Borda said Friday Prince will join the Astros' regular broadcasting team of Gene Elston and Loel Passe.

Prince said he may also be broadcasting Monday night baseball next season for the ABC television network if the Houston ball club approves.

The firing of Prince and Nellie King Oct. 30 in Pittsburgh set off a wave of resentment among Pirate fans. Prince had been with the Pirates for 28 years.

However, he also had critics who thought he should pay more attention to what was going on the field and spend less time sending greetings to listeners on their birthdays.

King, meanwhile, has been hired as director of sports information by Duquesne University in Pittsburgh.

INCREASED DIVIDEND

The board of directors of Servomation Corp., national food and refreshment service organization, increased its regular quarterly cash dividend by one and one-half cents to 16 and one-half cents per share.

The dividend is payable March 10 to shareholders of record Feb. 10, 1976, it was reported.

MANAGER APPOINTED

MacKenzie Security Inc. with home offices in Greenville, announced the recent appointment of William C. Stanley as manager of its Investigative and Polygraphy Division.

Stanley, a graduate of the Keeler Institute of Polygraphy, Chicago, Ill., has conducted over 20,000 polygraphic examinations in his 25 years as a qualified examiner, it was noted. He is licensed by the N.C. State Bureau of Investigation for use of "detection of deception" techniques (lie detection tests).

For 14 years, Stanley worked for and managed offices in Baltimore, Richmond, Miami and Los Angelee for the William J. Burns International Detective Agency, Washington, D.C.

ELECTED TO BOARD

Hamilton M. Redman, retired vice president-finance and a present director of the Norfolk and Western Railway Co., has been elected to the board of directors of Fieldcrest Mills Inc.

The announcement was made by William C. Battle, president and chief executive officer of the Eden based textile company.

Little Market Reaction

By SAM BOYLE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—President Ford injected the federal government into the New York City fiscal crisis this past week, but the nation's financial markets showed little reaction.

After weeks of moving with the ebb and flow of news about the city's financial picture, the stock market registered only a narrow gain on Wednesday. By then it was apparent that the President was going to announce an aid program that night.

But advance buying on the belief that aid would come did bring the market to its highest levels in four months.

The municipal bond market also registered gains in anticipation of Ford's announcement that he would support federal loans to the city.

Otherwise, the Washington scene produced a good news-bad news situation.

Trade surplus figures were up to $1.08 billion for October, but the index of leading economic indicators was down.

The index is designed to give advance word on economic trend and the second monthly decline in a row could foreshadow some rough spots ahead.

New car sales during mid-November showed another advance from last year's depressed levels.

The automakers registered a 33 per cent increase in sales, but that was still below the levels of some earlier years.

Another sign that the car companies aren't out of the woods yet was the production schedules announced for next month.

While they intend to produce 54 per cent more cars than in the month last year, the companies are still below earlier production levels.

The top executives of Chrysler Corp., which has seen the most trouble in the auto slump, were back in Britain this past week to try and work out the future of its money losing British subsidiary.

A company spokesman said an announcement from the British government could be expected shortly. Among the options for the subsidiary is a government takeover.

SOMBER SCENE—Robert Bray sits amid the charred rubble of his Glendale home of 18 years after it was destroyed by a brush fire earlier in the week. Two large brush fires in the Los Angeles area blackened over 100 square miles and 40 structures were damaged. (AP Wirephoto)

Price Drop Noted For Grain, Soybeans And Livestock Last Month

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sagging prices for grain, soybeans and livestock triggered a 4 per cent drop last month in the prices farmers get for their raw agricultural products, says the Agriculture Department.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said Friday that between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15 its meat animal price index dropped 8 per cent while prices paid to farmers for wheat and other food grains, including rye and rice, declined 10 per cent.

Officials said the drop left the over-all farm price index 2 per cent above Nov. 15 of last year. Prices farmers had to pay to meet expenses held steady during the month but were 6 per cent above a year earlier.

Dairy prices, however, were up 5 per cent last month. That included another record-high price paid to farmers for milk, which averaged $10 per 100 pounds on a "blended" basis, an increase of 34 cents from Oct. 15. The dairy index was up 19 per cent from a year earlier.

Soybeans averaged $4.45 a bushel, down 47 cents from Oct. 15 and $2.99 below Nov. 15 of last year, the report said.

The Nov. 15 feed grain index was down 8 per cent and was 25 per cent below mid-November of last year. Corn, at $2.33 a bushel, was down 29 cents from October and averaged 99 cents below a year earlier.

Wheat prices paid to farmers averaged $3.58 per bushel, down 44 cents from Oct. 15 and $1.29 below a year earlier, officials said.

The grain price declines have occurred in the wake of record wheat and corn crops this year. Although exports also are shaping up as new records, including the big sales to the Soviet Union, the huge harvests have put severe pressure on grain markets.

Beef cattle, which includes all kinds sold for slaughter, averaged $33.20 per 100 pounds on the hoof, down $1.20 from Oct. 15 but still above the average of $28.20 at mid-November of last year.

Hogs, which had set price records earlier this fall, dropped $9 from October to $49 per 100 pounds. They still averaged well above the Nov. 15, 1974, mark of $36.80 per hundredweight.

Poultry and egg prices rose 5 per cent from Oct. 15 despite a decline for broilers. Eggs were up 4.9 cents to 57.7 cents a dozen.

Burley Growers Holding Tobacco

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Many Kentucky burley growers seem to have held tobacco off the auction floors during the first week of sales while sizing up the market.

Kentucky farmers sold a total of 51,318,232 pounds of burley in the first week for an average of $107.52 per hundred pounds, compared with a first-week volume of 82,718,683 pounds last year and an average of $112.00.

Burley markets are usually closed Friday, but opened this week to make up for Thanksgiving Day off.

Growers across the state sold 11,687,089 pounds of burley for an average of 108.67 per hundred pounds Friday. Volume was down from 12,997,271 on Wednesday, but the price was up from Wednesday's average of $107.47.

The highest volume Friday, 1,424,276 pounds, was reported at Maysville, where farmers received an average of $110.66 per hundred pounds.

Lexington, the largest burley market, sold only 521,720 pounds for an average of $109.52 per hundred pounds.

Covington reported the day's lowest volume, 73,956 pounds. The average price at Covington was $103.32.

Farmers at Mount Sterling received the best prices, an average of $112.02 per hundred pounds for a total of 653,009 pounds of burley.

Mayfield was the only market where the average failed to top the $100 mark. A total of 104,932 pounds brought an average of $99.98 per hundred at Mayfield.

The Federal-State Market News Service said burley prices across the eight-state belt were steady to slightly higher Friday.

207 Doctors Received Over $100,000 In Fees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The names of 207 doctors who received $100,000 or more for treating Medicaid patients in 1974 have been released by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Twenty-eight physicians received more than $200,000, four of them taking in more than $300,000, according to the HEW list released Friday.

Dr. William A. Treibel of New York was reported by HEW to have received $451,156. Last month he denied receiving that amount, but he would offer no figure of his own.

It was the first public disclosure of just who was reaping windfall receipts from the public health care program. Altogether, $29.8 million was paid out in state, federal and local funds to the 207 physicians.

The HEW, which revealed the names in response to a Freedom of Information inquiry, said last month the list comprised about two-tenths of 1 per cent of the 99,117 physicians who charged the Medicaid program an average $13,320 each in 1974 for a total $1.32 billion.

"The fact that these physicians received the stated amounts from the Medicaid program should not be construed as any evidence of wrongdoing, nor do the amounts listed necessarily represent 'earnings' or 'profits'," said acting Medicaid administrator John A. Svahn.

He said HEW "has no information as to the size of staffs employed by the individual doctors or the number of separate offices they maintain."

Staff Resigns

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The entire staff of the state's lottery system has been disbanded in the wake of a report citing "needless opportunites for fraud," tax security and a variety of serious problems.

Gov. Hugh Carey, who suspended lottery operations Oct. 22, said he will replace the current lottery staff with new people. He said a special team headed by outside experts will revamp the lottery, but he gave no date as to when it would resume.

The lottery had generated about $20 million in revenues for the state this fiscal year before Carey suspended operations

SIMPLE DESIGN ZONES ACTIVITY AREAS

McKendree

By Jerry Bishop

Clean, simple exterior lines characterize the McKendree, a split level design that creates four separate areas for family living. Set on designated levels are the sleeping quarters, the recreation room, the garage and hobby shop, and the kitchen-dining-living areas.

An entry foyer is placed between the two main living levels of the home. Down a few steps, the recreation room sets the pace for informal entertaining in an area than can tolerate and buffer noise. The 26-ft. room is amply supplied with natural light and features a storage closet. Only steps away is the half bath and combination utility/laundry room.

Up from the foyer is the living-dining-kitchen level, the focal point for family living. A coat closet is well-placed at the top of the stairs, and the substantial living room is situated at left and bordered by a formal dining room and kitchen beyond. For sunbathing or cookouts, a raised terrace is conveniently close to the U-shaped kitchen and joined to the dining room via sliding glass doors.

Isolated on the upper level for maximum quiet and privacy, the sleeping section is perched a few steps up from the living room. Three bedrooms make up the sleeping quarters, highlighted by the sizable master bedroom with double closets and private bath. Another full bath, by a linen closet, serve two large hall bedrooms.

Below the sleeping level is the double garage, directly accessible to the entry foyer and edged by a hobby room. Stretching over 20 feet in length, the hobby room has potential for use as a workshop, sewing room, or perhaps a quiet den, and it offers plenty of room for customizing and adding shelves and cabinets.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

There probably isn't one person in 10 who begins a home workshop specifically with that idea in mind. It's something that grows over the years, both in the selection of the work area and the choice of tools.

There's something to be said for this method of acquiring a workshop. You then purchase the tools you need for specific jobs rather than setting out to buy what somebody tells you is necessary. On the other hand, there's the probability that you will spend more than you need in the long run, since you will discover after a while that some of the tools you buy are not of good quality. If your workshop is evolving in that manner, you are well advised to select a quality tool each time you need one rather than a cheap one.

Having, over the course of many years, used both the instant and the gradual systems of putting together workshops, this writer has compiled a list of observations that may help you in getting the workshop you want.

1 — Choose each tool as though it were a collector's item. Even a basic tool, such as a hammer, should be chosen with care. Entirely aside from the quality of the material, it should have good balance, which can be determined only by taking it up in your hand and manipulating it up and down several times. If it feels awkward, it's not for you. The same principle holds for nearly all tools.

2 — If you have a choice of a location, the largest one is always better. Since that's an ideal usually not possible to achieve, select an area where there is plenty of headroom, good light and ventilation, storage facilities and ease of maintenance.

3 — Will you be able to get large pieces of material in and out of the work area with reasonable ease?

4 — Is there an adequate wiring system which extends to the shop so that you can safely operate the power tools that these days are necessary for most projects?

5 — Will the noise from the workshop annoy other members of the household? If so, consider soundproofing the floor and ceiling and possibly the walls. And make plans to mount the stationary power tools on rubber.

6 — When you get down to working in the shop and you spill or drop anything on the floor, stop immediately and wipe or pick it up. Falls on liquids, pencils, even a piece of paper, are common.

7 — When examining an electric tool or changing a bit or accessory or making any adjustment, don't just turn off the machine. Take the plug out of the wall.

8 — If someone talks to you while you're working, stop what you're doing and reply. If you don't, you may take your eyes away from the work and damage it or yourself.

9 — When using any product with a chemical in it, which covers almost everything, reread the directions on the label even if you did it the first time. There may be something you forget.

10 — The principal enemy of the handyman is impatience. Don't be in such a hurry to finish the project that you take short cuts.

(Thirty-five do-it-yourself problems are discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — My father is scornful of most of the modern adhesives. He says there is nothing that works as well as the old-fashioned animal glues. Is he right?

A. — Animal glues are probably the oldest types of wood glues. They are still used widely and most can be applied either hot or cold. They have great strength, but are not as moisture resistant as most of the modern adhesives. Although many adhesives are advertised as all-purpose products, experience with them shows that each is best for a certain purpose, although it must be admitted that some of the new, fairly expensive adhesives come fairly close to having all-purpose characteristics.

As adhesive manufacturers insist, failures with glues and other binding agents occur mostly because they are not used exactly according to the directions. The best advice that can be given to anyone purchasing an adhesive for a particular purpose is to read the label before buying. Not only should you pay attention to its specific uses, you should heed the instructions as to the manner of use. Some adhesives are troublesome to prepare and apply, while others require a long time to set and cure. Select an adhesive which fits your intended time and patience. And be especially careful that, if an adhesive is flammable, volatile or toxic, you are prepared to take the necessary precautions.

Q. — We have a U-shape kitchen which we plan to have remodeled. My wife wants to have an "island" center. Is this practical?

A. — An island in a kitchen adds extra counter and storage space. There should be a fairly large kitchen area so that it won't restrict traffic. If your wife handles the cooking chores, why not give her what she wants?

Q. — We are covering our den walls with knotty pine plywood. We expect to stain it a very light tone, then put on varnish. Should this be done before the walls are put up or after?

A. — While it can be done before or after, the preference is before. Since you are looking for a specific tone, better do a little testing first. It may be that the varnish itself will darken the wood sufficiently to meet your wishes. If not, put a little of the stain on a small area and wipe it off quickly. If it's still too light, allow the stain to remain a little longer, then wipe it. You will soon discover the amount of time necessary to achieve the shade you desire.

OIL AND CARIBOU—In an early morning light veil of ground mist, part of the 110,000-member Porcupine Caribou herd begins to group up near an oil well at Prudhoe Bay in northern Alaska. The herd was forming to start the annual move to winter range. Caribou migration routes came under intense study by Arctic Gas Pipeline as part of its proposal to build a 2600-mile natural gas pipeline to tap Prudhoe Bay and Canadian Mackenzie River Delta area gas reserves. # Satellite Has 24,000 Circuits

By WILLIAM J. STANFIELD

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — RCA Corporation, which has been the long distance telephone carrier for Alaska since 1973, goes nationwide next month when it launches its own communications satellite.

The satellite, RCA Satcom, weighing 2,000 pounds and capable of handling as many 24,000 one-way voice circuits or 24 simultaneous television circuits, will be launched into orbit from Cape Canaveral, Fla., Dec. 11 aboard a modified Thor-Delta rocket.

When it settles into a stationary orbit 22,500 miles above the equator directly south of Los Angeles, Satcom will be able to relay communications through an eliptical beam from any point in the United States to any other, including Hawaii and Alaska.

"It will be just as easy to transmit messages from Los Angeles to New York as it is from San Francisco to Los Angeles," according to Philip Schneider, Satcom System's executive vice president.

Since December, 1973, RCA Global Communications and RCA Alaska Communications have been leasing limited channels from Western Union's Westar and Canada's Telesat for its Alaska communication system. Ground stations at Anchorage, Juneau, Nome, Bethel, Prudhoe Bay and Valdez pick up the signals from the satellite and feed them into local telephone company circuits.

Other ground stations are already in operation at Valley Forge, Pa., and Point Reyes, Calif., and new stations are planned at Los Angeles, Chicago, Houston Washington, D.C., Seattle and in Hawaii.

"With Satcom, we are at the beginning of a new era of communications capability in the United States," Schneider said.

For instance, he said, Satcom will allow instant communications between oil drilling platforms or ships far at sea and their home office, allow schools and universities to establish two-way communications with a centrally-located data bank, or library, and permit low-cost transmission of data between bank branches and the home office.

"Through satellites, drilling ships hundreds of miles offshore can stay in constant communications with shore-based headquarters," Schneider said. "Even when these ships move from site to site, the link remains unbroken.

"The driller's access to expert advice will not be delayed by congestion on a circuit, interference from weather or waiting for the establishment of a circuit.

"Graphics, such as well charts, are now transfered by boat or helicopter. The same charts could be relayed by facsimile in a matter of minutes, instead of days," he said.

With the future development of small roof-top antennas, Schneider said, Satcom could also lower costs of transmitting news from wire services to newspapers and broadcast stations.

A second Satcom will be launched into orbit next March and a third can be launched on six months notice if demand requires it, Schneider said.

Q. The trunk of my white oak tree is 11 feet, two inches in circumference four feet above the ground. Could you give me the approximate age of this tree? (G.P., Monroe)

A. It would be difficult to guess the age of the white oak without boring the tree, extracting a core and counting the growth rings. An open grown tree with a large top would have a much larger trunk than one which had grown in a crowded forest environment. White oaks have been recorded as old as 800 years. Assuming that the oak grew at an average of one fourth inch in diameter per year the tree in question would be over 110 years of age. It could be much older than this or possibly a few years less. (William M. Stanton, extension forest resources specialist)

Q. When and how should I go about planting garlic? (T.C., Durham)

A. Treat garlic about the same as onions. Separate the cloves and plant about one-and-one half to two inches deep in very early spring. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. Chickweek in winter and crabgrass in summer seems to be the story of my lawn (fescue). How can I get rid of these pests and stay rid of them? (T.G., Raleigh)

A. Chickweek and other winter weeds can be controlled with Silvex. Apply three tablespoons of Silvex in a gallon of water per 1,000 square feet when the weeds are actively growing. Crabgrass may be controlled with a pre-emergent checmical treatment in very early spring before the crabgrass germinates. Use bensulide (sold as Pre-San or Betasan) according to label directions. If any crabgrass gets by this chemical, it may be killed by a selective chemical such as DSMA, MSMA or MAMA. You'll need more than one application. Also, and probably more importantly than the above, try to determine why the fescue has thinned so these weeds can come in. Then, correct these faults and start a program to thicken the stand of fescue. A 100 per cent stand of desirable plants is the very best weed control. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. Under our shrubs, the soil is covered in moss, and the soil underneath is sticky and packy. What can we do? (M.R., Belmont)

A. Moss usually indicates poor drainage and poor soil. If possible, work a two-inch layer of humus or compost along with a two-inch layer of coarse sand into the shrub bed. Lime is needed after a soil test shows the amount to apply (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

PATRON SAINT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thousands of European churches are dedicated to St. Nicholas, a fourth century bishop, who was the forerunner of the figure American children know as Santa Claus.

St. Nicholas was chosen as the patron saint of Russia and Greece, charitable fraternities and guilds, children and sailors. He was a bishop of Myra, near the country known now as Turkey. His role as a Christmas figure began in Germany, then spread to France and Germany, where his feast day is celebrated on Dec. 25.

MILE WARRANTY

Michael Hellier,
Service Manager
Probably is the best informed and most competent service manager in the area. He doesn't believe "it can't be fixed."

Bill Draper,
Owner
He started it all with an idea. He believes his customers deserve something extra — the longest warranty in the business.

Steve Grant,
Parts Manager
This man is amazing. He can get parts for any Toyota on the road.

THE LIGHTS ARE BURNING BRIGHT ONCE AGAIN SO YOU CAN SEE OUR

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

This guarantee applies to cars selling for $1000.00 and up. On a 50-50 basis. All work must be done in our shop. This warranty does not apply to any sport cars, high performance or air cooled engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). Most good used cars (even if they look like new) are only guaranteed for a month. Or for a thousand miles. No more. And some are not guaranteed at all. But at Tarheel when we say a used car is in excellent condition, we're willing to stand behind it. We're willing to do something a little extra for it. So we guarantee its motor, its rear end, and its transmission for twelve months or twelve thousand miles. If you're in the market for a better used car, come out to Tarheel and look at ours. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. Asterisk denotes warranted car.

Miss Lois Jean Brown Weds Saturday Afternoon

Hooker Memorial Christian Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Lois Jean Brown and James Lee Barrett Saturday at three o'clock.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. J.S.W. Brown of Rt. 9, Greenville, and the Rev. and Mrs. Troy J. Barrett of Durham.

The Rev. Ralph G. Messick and the Rev. Barrett, father of the bridegroom, officiated at the candlelight double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white satapeau over taffeta designed with a portrait neckline outlined in floral Venise lace beaded with pearls. A double ruffle of satapeau, edged in daisy patterned lace, complemented the neckline. A tucked sash of the gown fabric appliqued in the beaded lace accentuated the modified empire waistline. The long, fitted sleeves with flared cuffs bordered in lace were trimmed in appliques of lace. The full A-line skirt extended to a chapel length train with a deep ruffle flounce trimmed in lace edging the hemling.

She wore a formal length illusion mantilla edged in lace to complement her gown. She carried a full cascading bouquet of white tea roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath, accented by Sonya roses, English ivy and white bridal ribbon.

The maid of honor was Miss Nancy Kathryn Brown of Greenville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Linda Ann Fleming of Greenville, Miss Sue Nash Nicholson of Henderson, Miss Teresa Lynn Bolick of Winston-Salem, and Miss Mary Lewis Woolen of Charlotte.

They wore sleeveless formal length gowns of shrimp knit designed with a scooped neckline and modified empire bodice with Venise lace flowers. Their gowns were complemented by bolero style jackets with long fitted sleeves and white Venise lace daisies edged the jacket and attached hood. The bridesmaids carried cascading bouquets of Sonya roses, bronze pom pons and baby's breath, tapered with fall oak leaves and ribbon.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. William H. Brown, sister-in-law of the bride, Miss Sally Boyette and Miss Anna Carson, all of Greenville, Mrs. J. Richard White of Belvidere, and Miss Ellen Presnell of Greensboro.

They each carried a single yellow rose embedded in baby's breath and foliage, tied with yellow satin streamers.

Miss Karen Edwards of Greenville was flower girl. She wore a formal length gown of shrimp knit designed with long sleeves, a high neckline and an empire bodice appliqued with Venise lace flowers. She wore a white satin loop bow with streamers in her hair and carried a white basket of autumn flowers tied with fall colored streamers.

Robert T. Barrett served his brother as best man. Ushers were William Henry Brown, John Ivey Brown, and David Gregory Brown, brothers of the bride, all of Greenville, William R. Barrett, brother of the bridegroom, of Durham, David Smoak, cousin of the bridegroom of Greensboro, and Larry Bailey of Gatesville.

Eric Nixon, cousin of the bride, of Maitland, Fla., was ring bearer.

A program of nuptial music was presented by David Winstead, organist, and Miss Cathy Wilson, who sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "Wedding Prayer," and Bob Forbes, who sang "My Cup Runneth Over" and "The Wedding Song."

Following a wedding trip to Jamaica, the couple will be at home in Hertford.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Cary High School, Cary, and N.C. State University, Raleigh. He is employed as a therapeutic counselor and director at Camp Chowanoc, Gatesville.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School, Greenville, and graduated from UNC-Chapel Hill, where she was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. She is employed by Peoples Bank and Trust Co., Hertford.

The mother of the bride chose a floor length dress of blue knit with a matching lace jacket and the mother of the bridegroom wore a floor length dress of orchid chiffon with chantilly lace. Both wore white rose corsages.

The grandmothers, Mrs. Eli Williams and Mrs. Viola Brown, wore white rose corsages.

The ceremony was directed by Mrs. Ralph C. Tucker. Mr. and Mrs. Larry Smart presided at the guest register and Miss Marjorie Paramore presented guests with wedding scrolls.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall following the wedding.

Pre-nuptial events honoring the bridal couple included a wedding breakfast Saturday given by Mr. and Mrs. S.A. Paramore Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Larry Smart, Mr. and Mrs. R.G. Page and Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Tew.

An after-rehearsal party was held at the home of the bride's parents Friday night given by Miss Nancy Brown, John and Greg Brown and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Brown.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a pre-rehearsal dinner Friday evening.

A batchelor party was held Friday at noon and an informal party honoring the bride was held Friday given by Miss Linda Fleming and Miss Anna Carson.

Couple Speaks Vows Friday In Candlelight Ceremony

In a candlelight double ring ceremony Friday at 7:30 p.m., Miss Mary Ellen Carawan and Donald Lee Howard were united in marriage at the Saint James United Methodist Church.

The Rev. James C. Lee officiated at the ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Dr. Robert Irwin of Greenville, organist, and Mrs. Rachel Sturz of Greenville, vocalist, who sang "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee," "The Greatest Of These Is Love" and "Wedding Prayer."

At the beginning of the ceremony, a long-stemmed red rose was presented by the bridal couple to their mothers. At the close of the ceremony, the couple extinguished the two single candles that had been lighted during the ceremony and lighted one candle together signifying their union. The couple knelt for prayer on a kneeling bench. The church was decorated for the ceremony with candelabra, greenery and floral arrangements.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. C. Eugene Carawan and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Ray Howard Sr., all of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of candlelight chiffon designed with a high neckline encircled with ivory floral Venise lace threaded with pink satin ribbon. Matching lace and ribbon accentuated the bodice which featured tucked chiffon centered with tiny covered buttons. The full bishop sleeves were styled with deep fitted cuffs trimmed in the lace and ribbon. A gathered skirt fell from the modified empire waistline.

She wore a fingertip silk illusion veil complemented by ivory silk flowers and an ivory satin bow with long streamers. The bride wore pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, white carnations and stephanotis centered with an orchid.

Miss Sarah Ellen Roberts of Greenville was the honor attendant. She was dressed in a formal length gown of pink knit designed with long sleeves and an empire waistline. The high neckline was accented by a floral lace insert in the bodice. Her bouquet and headpiece were of miniature pink and white carnations.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length sleeveless gown of blue knit designed with a bodice of Raschel lace. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal length gown of textured rose knit designed with a V-neckline. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

The grandmothers, Mrs. G.C. Carawan, Mrs. A.C. Howard and Mrs. E.J. Smith, were remembered with corsages.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers were Jesse Ray Howard Jr. and David Judd Howard, brothers of the bridegroom, of Greenville, Charles Jeffrey Carawan of Greenville, and Roy Eugene Carawan of Cary, brothers of the bride.

The couple will reside in Wallace, after a wedding trip to unannounced points. For traveling, the bride changed into a beige suit and orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of Rose High School. She is a graduate of ECU and is a teacher in Pender County. The bridegroom is a junior at ECU and is a licensed real estate broker.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony given by the bride's parents. The bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. A.C. Howard, greeted guests at the register.

Mrs. Ray Howard, Mrs. Roy Carawan, Mrs. Iwan Stein and Mrs. Lee R. Carawan served.

The wedding party and guests were entertained at an after-rehearsal party Thursday by the parents of the bridegroom at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Howard.

International Women's Year Luncheon Planned

A luncheon to commemorate the International Women's Year has been planned by a group of local women for Saturday, Dec. 13, at noon at the Ramada Inn.

Luncheon speaker will be Dr. Sandra C. Thomas, first woman vice president of Meredith College and a delegate to the recent International Women's Year conference in Mexico City.

In 1974 Dr. Thomas received the First Research Award from the Inter-American Commission of Women of the Organization of American States for her study, "Women of the Americas: Ways to Broaden the Political Participation of Women in the Americas."

A native of Texas, Dr. Thomas has studies and traveled widely in Europe, India, and Central and South America. She attended the United Nations World Conference on International Women's Year as a non-governmental organization delegate representing the World Education Fellowship.

Tickets for the roast turkey luncheon are $5 each and are available on a first come, first served basis. Reservations may be made with Judith Donnalley, 756-0561, or Sally Howard, 756-4486, by Dec. 5.

Luncheon coordinator Tennala Gross said persons of both sexes, particularly students, are welcome to attend the luncheon. Among the guests will be local residents, who are natives of foreign nations.

Several awards will be given to women in the Pitt County area who have achieved in areas of employment formerly reserved for men.

Persons who wish to make nominations for these awards may telephone Ms. Gross, 752-2679, and suggest their candidates.

The Mexico City conference drew delegations from throughout the world and emphasized equality, development and peace in every nation.

International Women's Year has been the subject of more than a hundred commemorative postage stamps issued by nearly 50 nations during 1975, many of which were designed by women.

A number of IWY items and publications will be on display at the luncheon.

On The Local Scene

This year will mark the 50th Christmas season for Chinqua-Penn Plantation House, a scenic old mansion located near Reidsville, which is open for public tours.

The plantation house was started in 1923 by the late Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Penn and completed in time for the Penns to move in for Christmas in 1925.

"In recognition of this special anniversary, more than 700 poinsettias have been grown in the plantation greenhouses for use in the mansion between Dec. 3-21," stated George W. Hamer, executive director at Chinqua-Penn. "Poinsettias were Mrs. Penn's favorite flowers for Christmas and she always used quantities of them to decorate the house."

In addition to the poinsettias, Hamer noted that there will be other floral decorations including snapdragons, chrysanthemums and rieger begonias, all grown at Chinqua-Penn. Included in the yuletide decorations will be a large Christmas tree with lights in front of a picture window in the front hall and two large wreaths on the main gates leading to the house. Additional wreaths will be placed on the doors at the front entrance of the house along with other seasonal trimmings.

A figurine of the Holy Family will be on display inside the house along with several Madonnas.

The mansion contains many treasurers and furnishings which were collected by the Penns in their travels all over the world. On Oct. 20, 1959, Mrs. Penn gave the plantation to the University of North Carolina. UNC-G has charge of the operation of the mansion and 36 acres of surrounding grounds.

Beginning Dec. 3, the house is open to the public Wednesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sundays from 1-4 p.m. After Dec. 21, the mansion will be closed for the winter.

The 22nd annual Betty Crocker Search for Leadership in family living will be held Tuesday. High school seniors throughout the country will join in a written knowledge and attitude examination.

On April 25-28 of next year, the 51 state family leaders of tomorrow will gather in Washington, D.C., for an educational tour of the capital city.

Schools here where the test will be given include D.H. Conley and J.H. Rose High Schools.

Meacham-Phelps Vows Solemnized On Saturday

Saint Paul's Episcopal Church was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding of Cathryn Charlene Phelps and Frank Richard Meacham. The double ring ceremony at 3:00 p.m. was conducted by the Rev. Lawrence Patrick Houston Jr.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Robert D. Phelps of Greenville, and the late Mr. Phelps, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parker Meacham of Greenville.

A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Robert Irwin.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Jay Duling. The bridegroom's father, Frank P. Meacham was best man.

The bride wore a formal length gown of white organza designed with a high neckline encircled with ruffled organza and re-embroidered lace. Re-embroidered lace also accentuated the sheer yoke of the bodice. The modified empire waistline was encircled with a wide band of matching lace. The long sheer sleeves were trimmed in alternating bands of re-embroidered lace and tiny floral Venise lace. The lace-trimmed cuffs were edged in ruffled organza and Venise lace. A deep ruffle flounce of organza trimmed in lace edged the hemline, which extended to a chapel train.

She wore a fingertip illusion veil edged in Venise lace, attached to a profile headpiece of white satin featuring petals of Venise lace appliques. Her flowers were white carnations, with streamers.

Miss Beverly Little of Rt. 1, Winterville was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Cindy Phelps, sister of the bride; Miss Julie Meacham, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Karen Presson of Charlotte, and Miss Sandra Cortez of Clinton.

Each attendant was attired in a semi-fitted floor length-line dress of burgundy velvet with antique beige lace bodice and long sleeves with ruffled cuffs. Each carried pink carnations with pink streamers.

Ushers were Bobby Phelps, brother of the bride, Bill Meacham, brother of the bridegroom, Jim Kleinert of Greenville, and Ralph Bailey of Wilmington.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length green dress and the bridegroom's mother, a formal length aqua dress. Both carried yellow daisies. Grandmothers of the bride and bridegroom wore white daisy corsages.

After a wedding trip to the Caribbean, the couple will live at Pamlico Beach. Both are students at East Carolina University. The bride is a recreation therapy major and the bridegroom, an environmental health major.

The bride's mother entertained at a reception at the church following the ceremony.

A cocktail buffet after-rehearsal party was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents Friday.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held Friday given by Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts, Mrs. George Martin and Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday Afternoon In Kinston Ceremony

KINSTON—The marriage of Vicki Jenn Harrison and Danny A. Murray was solemnized in the Northwest Christian Church Saturday at 2:00 p.m. in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Dexter Wasson.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Harrison of Kinston, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of maracaine fashioned with a setin empire waistline enhanced with pearls and iridescents, high neckline and fitted sleeves. The bodice featured a sheer inset designed with bridal pearls. The circular skirt flowed into a chapel length train. She carried a cascade of white roses, miniature pom pons and baby's breath with ivy leaves.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Murray of Greenville.

Miss Jimi Beth Harrison of Kinston, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Michael Levan of Roanoke, Va., Mrs. Allan W. Turner of Lexington, Mrs. Jake Garris of Ayden and Miss Brenda Murray of Greenville, both sisters of the bridegroom.

The best man was Larry Taylor of Eustis, Fla, and ushers were Danny Keel of Fayetteville, Jimmy Russell and Gordy Lucas, both of Kinston, and Allan Turner of Lexington.

The bride is a graduate of Grainger High School, Kinston, and of UNC-CH. She is employed as choir director of the Northwest Christian Church, Kinston. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School, Greenville, and is employed by Massey Motor Co., Kinston.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Kinston.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception at the church following the ceremony.

A rehearsal party was held Friday at King's Restaurant given by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Levan and Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Murray.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It could be one of the best kept secrets in the retailing business, but my suspicions have finally been confirmed.

There is a class in which a group of handpicked personnel is trained how to hide price tags from the customer.

The course lasts for six weeks and runs the gamut from "Illegibility: The Salesman's Friend" to "Booby—Trapping a Blouse Sleeve With Open Pins."

Retailers realized years ago that hiding price tags is not a job for amateurs. There is too much at stake. It could mean the difference between a customer not buying or making a purchase to avoid humiliation ("Advanced Lettering: How to Make a 9 Look Like a Dollar Sign").

A friend of mine sneaked me into a seminar one day last week while a lecture was in progress.

"Do you see what Dorothy had just done?" asked the instructor. "She had made one of the classic boo-boos in ticketing a dress. Does anyone see it?"

A hand waved. "She put the ticket in the exact same spot as she put the tickets on the other dresses."

"Exactly," said the instructor. "Let me repeat. Never put the price tag in the same place of any garment twice. Now, you've hidden the tag well. You see, a woman would have to set down her packages and examine every single opening in the dress. This is great, Dorothy."

The hem would be the last spot she'd look for a price tag. Can't you just see her on her knees becoming paranoid? I love it! Does anyone have any more suggestions as to how she can confuse the customer?"

A hand raise, "You can keep marking over a price like it has been marked down and each time smear it."

"I'm a lining man myself," said the instructor, but that's a good one. Once that little baby is sewed in the lining, they never find it . . . even with glasses.

"Moving right along, I've got some visuals here that might interest you. Get the lights, Bufford. Here are some new price tags that put a hole in the material to get them out. Don't you love it! And here are some new tags for jewelry that you have to submerge in water to get a reading. However, if your department doesn't carry them, just remember, the price faces downward. ALWAYS.

"Now, who has a new place to put a price tag on an automatic washer? Next to the serial number on the bottom of the machine? I LOVE IT!"

Couple Weds In Ceremony On Saturday

WINTERVILLE — Miss Sandra Lynn McLawhorn became the bride of Patrick Mayo Tripp in a candlelight ceremony Saturday at 8:00 p.m. at the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Willis Wilson. A program of nuptial music was presented by Don Waters, organist, and Jan Murray, soloist, who sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gentry McLawhorn of Rt. 2, Ayden, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tripp of Rt. 1, Winterville.

The church was decorated with a fifteen branched candelabra in the chancel of the church. A twenty branched candelabra was used on each side, flanked with a fifteen branched candelabra. Standards of jade greenery were used for accent and hurricane pew markers marked the honor pews. The couple knelt for the benediction on a white prie-dieu.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of miramist fabric with border and applique trim of Raschel lace. The gown featured a high neckline, tucked bodice with scattered seed pearls. The sheer bishop sleeves were bordered with matching lace and ruffled cuffs.

Her veil was Juliet capulet from which flowed a chapel length veil bordered in matching Raschel lace. She carried a cascade of miniature carnations, baby's breath, and English ivy, with white satin streamers.

Miss Patricia Bright, of Ayden, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of royal blue velvet and light blue polyester crepe. She carried a colonial bouquet of white pom pon chrysanthemums with royal blue velvet streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Pattie Hall and Miss Jackie McLawhorn of Ayden, and Miss Teresa Tripp and Miss Joni McLawhorn of Greenville. They wore dresses and carried bouquets identical to those of the honor attendant.

Fred Tripp, father of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Bobby Stocks of Newport News, Va., A. J. McLawhorn Jr. and Dennis Tripp of Greenville, and Ted Tripp of Tarboro.

The flower girl was Melody Whaley of Winterville. She wore a long dress similar to the honor attendant's and carried a small nosegay of chrysanthemums with royal blue velvet streamers.

Ring bearer was Gary Whaley of Winterville.

The mother of the bride wore a long mint green polyester gown with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore a long pink polyester gown with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of miniature carnations.

Mrs. J. B. Hardee of Newport News, Va., Mrs. A. J. McLawhorn Sr., of Ayden, and Mrs. Dessie Tripp of Farmville, grandmothers of the bride and bridegroom, were remembered with carnation corsages.

After a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will reside at Rt. 2, Ayden.

A reception given by the bride's parents was held following the wedding in the church fellowship hall.

Mrs. Margaret Walston, Mrs. Ruth Cannon and Mrs. Stella McLawhorn poured punch and served cake, after the bridal couple cut the first slice. Others assisting were Mrs. Bobby Stocks and Mrs. A. J. McLawhorn, Jr.

An after-rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's parents Friday for the wedding party and other guests.

The attendants were remembered with gifts from the bridal couple.

Mrs. Marie Robinson directed the wedding.

Gradparents' Trip Was To Babysit

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.,

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I made a long trip to another city to visit my son and his family.

The first evening, our son came home so late for dinner that we had to eat without him.

The second night, my husband and I dined alone since my son and his wife had a previous invitation for dinner.

The third night, they asked us if we minded babysitting again while they called on friends.

The fourth night, we were asked if we'd stay with the children again while they went to a party.

The next day, we said we had to go home, and they acted very hurt because they hadn't seen hardly enough of us!

Abby, when parents visit their married children whom they do not see for months at a time, should they be expected to be unpaid babysitters?

USED IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR USED: No. And if it happens to you again, you asked for it.

DEAR ABBY: Joe and I have been married for five months, and our problem is Joe's old buddy, Le Roy. He's 23 and single, and he can't seem to get it through his head that Joe and I are married now and would like to be alone.

Le Roy makes a date with a girl, stands her up and sits at our place all evening, just watching TV or playing cards with us.

He'll come to our place right after work, just like he lives here. I've been setting the supper table for three almost every night since I've been married, and I'm tired of it.

Joe says he wishes Le Roy would bug off, but he doesn't want to hurt his feelings. I hate to say anything because Joe and Le Roy have been like brothers since they were kids, and I don't think it's my place to do the talking.

So what do you say?

FED UP

DEAR FED UP: It's your husband's place to tell his old buddy that newlyweds need a little privacy. And if he doesn't tell him, it means that he isn't as fed up with him as you are—in which case, you should tell Le Roy as nicely as possible not to come around so often.

DEAR ABBY: I am 27 and my wife is 24. It's Eldora's second marriage. She was married for eight years to a man who was 15 years older than she was, and they had one child.

Abby, I really love Eldora and her son, but we've been married only four months and she's left me five times! She stays away about a week each time. She packs up and says she's going to her mother's.

The last time she left, I found out she went back to her ex-husband.

When she came home, she told me they had lived as man and wife again, and she thinks she loves him more than me because he is the father of her child. Also, she says he is a much better lover than I am. (How is that for an insult?) On the other hand, she says he is a jealous man who treats her rough and likes to run with other women.

I love Eldora and would do anything to keep her home, but how can I arrange it? This running back and forth is no good. Please help me. Maybe I need someone to tell me to kick her fanny out for good.

TROUBLED IN N.J.

DEAR TROUBLED: Tell Eldora exactly how you feel about her off-again-on-again relationship with her "ex." Insist on an "all-or-nothing" marriage. And if Eldora isn't willing to be a faithful wife to you, kick her fanny back to her "ex" with no regrets.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Bundy Talks To Credit Women

The Greenville Credit Women-International held their regular meeting Tuesday at the Olde Towne Inn. Sam Bundy was the speaker for the evening. He spoke on "Public Relations".

Bundy asked the question, "What is Public Relations?" Well, it's both a profession and an applied science. It is also a very personal art. As a profession, public relations functions primarily to gain public favor for an organization or individual. Putting it another way, its goal is "good performance publicly appreciated." As an applied science, public relations utilizes many tools to inform, educate and influence.

Publicity, with which public relations is often mistakenly equated, is just one of those tools. It is in the application of various tools that public relations as a personal art comes into play. Some of the guidelines for public relations professionals in dealing with the media are: (1) Build mutual confidence, (2) be cooperative, (3) give service by providing newsworthy, accurate information, (4) never beg for attention, (5) don't exaggerate; "tell it like it is", (6) never deceive the media and (7) if you can't answer a question, don't invent one, he said.

Bundy closed with, "continue to make improvement because it counts. Get a little bigger and a little better through public relations. Accept the responsibility and carry your load. One word more of advice was to use the talents that God has blessed us with."

President Mary Roberson welcomed guest, Barbara Boyd of Morgan Printers.

A report was given on the Fall Board meeting by Mrs. Sallie Broughton. She announced that the Greenville club won first place for the scrapbook that was done by Angelene Venters. At this time, President Roberson showed the club the plaque that was given for this award and stated that the book would be entered in Dixie Council competition in April.

It was announced that the club year books were done by Hazel Rumley and they were distributed to all members.

President Roberson made the following announcements: State Convention will be held June 13-15 at the Great Smokey Hilton, Asheville; the Dixie Council Conference will be held in Biloxi, Miss., at the Sheraton-Biloxi hotel April 10-14.

President Roberson urged all members to make plans to attend the Christmas gathering on Dec. 8 at the home of Jo Dees.

Starting Class In Bricklaying

Pitt Technical Institute in cooperation with Rose High School will begin a 60 hour course in home handyman bricklaying beginning Monday.

The course will meet each Monday and Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in room 140 at Rose High.

The course is designed for persons who wish to do small bricklaying jobs around the house.

The registration fee is $3. Adults are expected to furnish their own supplies. For further information, interested persons may call Pitt Tech, 756-3130, ext. 38.

Lower Speeds Benefit Deer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Conservation Commission says lower speed limits have been a blessing to deer.

Highway deer deaths in 1974 declined nine per cent, to 2,313, from 2,529 in 1973.

Christmas spirit spreads joy and good cheer

HEY, DAD, WANNA TRADE? Junior's giving his father's new movie camera a trial run by zeroing in on Dad, who's busy laying tracks for a new train around the living room. Camera by Kodak.

At holiday time, it's the thought that counts as you choose those special gifts

Here comes Santa Claus . . . bushy-browed and rosy! All ready for another holiday of merry-making and cheer.

Let's herald him with light hearts, kind thoughts and joyous greetings. Let's follow his example and spread good tidings all around so everyone can enjoy this special time of year to the fullest.

So begins the season of glowing candles, home-baked cookies and family reunions. The season when streets across the country light up with festive decorations and beaming faces. Santa himself appears in Toylands everywhere, and carolers fill the air with their joyous refrains.

At home, families make ready for visiting friends and relatives. Greeting cards are displayed. Christmas trees are set up and colorfully trimmed, an event the whole family looks forward to. On the outside, houses are gaily decorated with bright lights, frosted windows and wreaths of holly.

Merry mood

The festive mood prevails in anticipation of the coming of Christmas day, when gifts are exchanged and families get together for that long-awaited holiday feast.

This tradition is observed in countries all around the world. And for Americans, Christmas, 1975, approaches the start of our Bicentennial year as well.

This will give many a new theme for the holidays. Tree decorations, table settings and menus can all take on an Americana flavor. The spirit of '76 can show in red, white and blue decorations, a festive addition to the traditional red and green at Christmas time. Stars and stripes, American eagle motifs and three-cornered hats are all another way of saying, "Merry Christmas, America!"

For shoppers, Santa says, "start early!" Prepare gift lists well in advance. Put thought into every present and know just what you're shopping for before you begin. Delaying Christmas shopping till the last minute can prove to be more irritating than fun. Avoid the last minute rushes by making up gift lists before Thanksgiving. It's never too early to start.

Putting thought into gifts, and knowing just the right gift for the right person is the best way to ease the chore of holiday shopping.

Use imagination

Christmas gifting doesn't have to put a strain on the budget. The smart shopper can take advantage of early store promotions and sales to save money. With a little imagination, one can come up with many inexpensive gift ideas.

It's wise to pick up hints throughout the year as to what each person would like. Keep a notebook, and whenever you hear of a good gift idea, or see the perfect present, write it down for future reference and where to find it. It's a practical way to save steps, and sometimes money. Many times you'll find the perfect gift for someone on sale in July!

Mail in advance

It's also wise to mail greeting cards and packages early. This is an extra busy time of year for the post office, and by mailing well in advance you can be assured cards and gifts will reach their destination right on time.

To be safe, print all addresses in clear block letters. And don't forget to include the ZIP code. A letter or package without a ZIP must be individually routed, causing certain delay, especially during this busiest of all seasons.

As far as the post office is concerned it's best to put yourself in the Christmas spirit as early as mid-November.

Simplicity is key

Organize your time and thoughts this holiday season to use them to their best advantage. The fun and excitement of preparing for Christmas is best achieved with simplicity in everything you do.

The easier you make your tasks, the better able you and your family will be to appreciate all things, big and small, that have so much to do with the meaning of Christmas.

Colorful enchantment surrounds a Swiss Yule

If the idea of Christmas in Switzerland conjures up visions of enchanted, colorfully quaint towns decked for the holidays and incredibly beautiful snow-covered mountains glistening in the sun, you're not dreaming; you've either been there or seen pictures of the country many people consider one of the most beautiful in the world.

With 650 years of history, four national languages and embracing three major European cultures, Switzerland is a haven of traditions and customs, particularly during the Christmas season.

The events celebrated in Switzerland in December and January are among the most picturesque in Europe and vary from area to area. The best-known ones are the Nicholas Chase at Kuessnacht on Lake Lucerne, the star-singing (caroling) in many parts of the country, the New Year Clauses at Urnaesch and the sledge parties in the Engadine.

On St. Nicholas Day, December 6th, the country glows with colorful night processions of children wearing lighted mitre headdresses. Made of cardboard and cut into ornamental patterns, these impressive headpieces often measure more than three feet high. With the interior of the mitres covered with colored transparent paper and illuminated by candles the total effect is delightfully eerie.

The youngsters, dressed in white gowns, perform a ritual dance as they march, giving the entire procession a ghostlike quality. To rid the region of the demons who might haunt the winter nights, are the "Nicholas Chasers," a contingent of youngsters who create a monstrous racket ringing large cowbells, blowing horns and cracking long whips.

Accompanying the noise makers is the Swiss Santa Clause, who is not the jolly "ho, ho, ho" figure familiar to North America, but a replica of St. Nicholas. This "Klaus" with his sidekick "Schmutzli," who resembles a chimney sweep, visits homes and farms in the neighborhood distributing candy and other delights to the children.

On the Sunday before Christmas, also called Golden Sunday, star-singers march through the streets. This colorful procession is usually preceded by a star-bearer surrounded by white-clad angels. They are followed by Mary and Joseph with the little donkey, the shepherds and the three Wise Men.

In large public squares the group stops and plays some scenes from the Christmas story, with the spectators joining in song.

In recent times the festive note of Christmas has increasingly been carried into the streets of towns and villages where glittering lights spread an atmosphere of expectation.

Of course Christmas in Switzerland wouldn't be complete without the veil of glistening white covering the roofs of houses and the expanse of the countryside.

In fact, snow in Switzerland, instead of being a slushy nuisance, creates a playground for dozens of sports activities in addition to providing an enchanted Christmas.

Music has charms... for all the family

Question: What do you give the family that can be used by every member and enjoyed year round?

For more and more Americans this Christmas the answer will be — a musical instrument.

From grand pianos, to organs and home synthesizers, the family gift that can be enjoyed by all ages is music. And making your own music is proving ever more popular.

Nearly 38 million Americans are amateur musicians and millions more would like to be, says the American Music Conference. This Christmas is a good time to get them started.

If the piano or organ is too advanced or costly, there are hundreds of other items that can be found in retail stores suitable for all ages and ability levels.

For the youngster, there are plastic melody instruments such as tonettes, flutophones and song flutes, dozens of percussion instruments from sticks and claves to small xylophones, tambourines, triangles and drums.

Teens might like a guitar, jazz harmonica, drums or one of the brass or wind instruments.

The adult has the whole gamut of instruments from which to choose; keyboards to frets, winds to strings.

And, of course, there are original scores, special arrangements and self-instruction aids.

For the individual who is already an amateur musician, you can select accessories, scores and new instruments.

If money is no object, consider something really unique — a handcrafted banjo, gold guitar, one of the newer inventions such as a keyboard computer with the sounds of a synthesizer, a folding guitar, or a "stick," which is a slender guitar with a unique electric sound.

For the keyboard player who already owns a piano or organ, there are synthesizer attachments to enhance and expand traditional sounds.

Sparkling ideas for spirited holiday gifts

The egg and you

IT'S EASY to make attractive ornaments to brighten the Christmas scene. Just decorate the tree with baubles made from empty egg-shaped L'eggs hosiery packages. Eggs are trimmed with scraps of lace, ribbon and rick rack, and with winter scenes cut from magazines and greeting cards. To hang "recycled" ornaments, make a loop of yarn or thread and glue to one end of the egg. Hosiery egg baubles are a gay, economical way to add a touch of holiday cheer to your home and make lovely gifts for holiday visiting.

Tree decorations... a family project

Of the many holidays Americans observe, Christmas is the most family-oriented. And the joyful task of decorating the Christmas tree is one that everyone enjoys especially when each one can make a personal contribution.

From simple paper chains which the youngest member of the family can make to the more intricate ornaments, hand-made decorations add a special mood to your tree that are a true reflection of your family and the holiday's celebration.

To get your imagination going, here are several suggestions from designers at the American Greetings Corp. for easy to make ornaments.

Personalize ornaments by using photos of your family and friends. Start with a styrofoam ball. Cut out the portion of the picture you plan to use. Since torn edges fit the ball better, tear ragged edges around the photo before gluing to ball. Cover the rest of the ornament with torn bits of tissue, foil or colorful wrapping paper. Brush with clear plastic to coat the decoration.

Trim with velvet ribbon, chubby yarns or gold braid and bows. Attach a loop for the hanger with a straight pin, imbedded below the surface of the ball.

You might want to vary these ornaments with scenes from Christmas cards or holiday wrapping paper.

Another attractive decoration is a cone ball. You can use one color, several colors, patterned papers or two tones of paper glued together to give a multi-color effect.

To make this ornament, cut out about 16 circles. Cut them in half. Using the straight edge as the base, form a cone. Secure the ends with double-faced tape or glue. Take a piece of string and make a knot in one end. Draw the string through the center of one cone to form the hanger.

Complete the rest of the cones and with glue or double-faced tape, join them, row upon row, until a layered ball is formed.

Hang the ornament as is or add sparkle by covering the edges lightly with white glue and dipping into glitter.

The size of the circles will determine the size of your ornaments. Mix colors, sizes and patterns for a colorful look for your tree.

You might also want to combine the balls with other ornaments shaped like candy canes, angels, snowflakes, candles, partridges or other birds, poinsettias or even your own pets.

Cut the desired shapes from cardboard, outline the shapes with ribbons and yarns. Add detailing with bits of colorful wrapping papers, glitter or sequins.

Add a hanger and place on the tree. Mix with strings of popcorn, cranberries, paper chains or tinsel.

You can probably think of additional variations of these basic ornaments, involve the whole family in the tree trimming and create a tree that will be a truly unique family expression for this year's Christmas observance.

Easy camera captures treasured memories...

If good King Wenceslaus had had a camera when he looked out, he might have preserved Christmas in snapshots as well as in song.

Today we can save the holiday in crisp, lively pictures to help memories rest merry in our minds for years to come. With a camera, we can picture trees with lights twinkling over brightly wrapped packages, carolers heralding the season with song, and get-togethers that share the season's glad tidings with family and friends.

Electronic shutter

One camera that will help preserve this happiness is the new pocket-size Kodak Trimlite Instamatic 38 camera. This camera has an electronic shutter that automatically times each exposure.

Its lens has already been focused to take clear, sharp snapshots of subjects from six feet and beyond, and by flicking its two-position focus switch, from three to six feet. Other features include drop-in film cartridge loading and prevention against double exposures.

When the light level is too low for picture-taking, a warning light in the viewfinder signals it's time for a flipflash (an eight-bulb flash array) or a new Kodak Ektron electronic flash unit.

Easy operation

The camera's a snap to operate. Kodak photo experts suggest just about anyone can take good pictures with the new Trimlite Instamatic 38 camera if the person remembers to:

- Compose the picture by peering through the viewfinder and eliminating objects in the background that might draw attention away from the subject.
- Stand as close as the camera allows so the subject fills the picture.
- Photograph people in action.
- Hold the camera rock-steady and squeeze the shutter button gently.
- Include a center of interest, such as the Christmas tree with the family grouped about.
- Vary the shooting angle to add variety and drama to the snapshots.
- Keep the camera handy for the unexpected picture opportunities that always pop up.

The Kodak Trimlite Instamatic 38 camera, weighing a little over six ounces, is slim enough to slip into pockets and purses or hang from the wrist with its own strap.

It is available with press-on monogram decals that pep up its brown-and-black pebble-grain exterior.

The camera is available by itself or in a complete picture-taking outfit from local photo dealers.

THE NEW FIRE TRUCK which might well replace her doll as a favorite plaything is about to be captured in a crisp, lively snapshot by another Christmas delight, the new Trimlite Instamatic 38 camera. This pocket-size camera accepts an eight-bulb flipflash for picture-taking indoors or in not-so-bright light. The new Kodak Trimlite Instamatic 38 camera is less than $76 as a separate item or less than $80 in a complete picture-taking outfit.

Avoid holiday disappointments with earlier mailing schedules

Fun and games for boys and girls at Yuletide

'And please bring me a new doll...' her sweetest dream crawls, sneezes, feels soft

DOLLS FOR CHRISTMAS . . . Mattel's "Baby Thataway" is an impish action doll who crawls all over the place! Just one example of the large variety of dolls available for Christmas 1975, from simple baby dolls to action dolls to family dolls and "Barbie" dolls!

If there's a little girl in your house, a new doll is as much a part of Christmas as Santa Claus and stockings over the fireplace, and, more and more, little boys, too, are being allowed a doll to love for Christmas. Lovable, huggable soft dolls, fun-for-all action dolls, or posable, playable miniature dolls — a wide variety is available in time for Christmas from Mattel Toys, world's largest toymaker.

"Baby Thataway" is a pert baby doll who crawls all by herself, realistically "fusses," or toddles with a helping hand. An inquisitive doll constantly on the move and always needing looking after!

Tender sneezer

For the child who really loves to look after a pretend baby, "Bless You Baby Tender Love" will be a delight. This endearing doll, with soft, touchable skin, actually "sneezes" when you squeeze her tummy and comes with a package of "Kleenex" tissues to gently dry her nose.

A simple baby doll which provides quiet activities is "Sweet Nature Tender Love." The doll has the soft "Tender Love" skin and comes with an "Idea Book" with instructions for making accessories for the doll, beginning with a cradle made from the doll's package!

Musical dolls

Soft, huggable take-to-bed dolls are a must for both girls and boys, and "Love Notes" are a brand new idea in soft dolls because youngsters can play songs on them! Five different musical notes inside each hand, foot and the tummy, and color-keyed on the doll's soft cloth body, can be squeezed to play a tune by following color notes in the song book which accompanies each doll.

Four different "Love Notes" dolls are available for Christmas: "Melody," blond, blue-eyed charmer; "Nellie," red-headed country girl; "Lilty," curly-haired black doll; and "Buck," the cowboy.

With a continuing emphasis on economy and ecology during 1975, "The Sunshine Family" dolls and their black doll friends, "The Happy Family," provide a use for household discards! Youngsters can make accessories for the 9-inch posable dolls out of such things as empty tissue boxes and strawberry baskets, as suggested in the "Idea Books" included with each doll family.

New accessories for the "Barbie" doll are always welcomed by "Barbie" owners and, for Christmas 1975, it's "Barbie's Dream Boat," a four-foot long "Chris Craft" cabin cruiser which folds into a compact carrying case for the popular doll and her friends.

More than dolls are needed for the active preschool youngster, and rainy spring days will be no problem if Christmas brings "Putt-Putt" toys! The durable wood and plastic cars, trucks, boats and planes are inexpensive stocking stuffers individually, and are also available in a variety of play-situation sets.

"Putt-Putt" 'n People sets depict a firehouse, construction yard, vacation spot, picnic, farmyard and playground. Larger sets include the Motor "Putt-Putt" Speedway with two wind-up race cars and drivers, two spectators, grandstand, bridge overpass, garage and start gate for exciting race action, and the Motor "Putt-Putt Frontier Junction," a western setting with train, stagecoach, covered wagon, log cabin, covered bridge and people.

Talking fun

Ever-popular talking toys are always welcome under the Christmas tree! The "Sing-Along" play phonograph lets the child select a song from a picture, then pull the string and sing along as the tune plays, with no batteries to wear out. The talking "Fun Phones" Pay Phone Bank encourages saving by talking to the youngster when he or she inserts a coin and pulls the string.

Little ones love to play "grown-up" and durable "Tuff Stuff" play tools and appliances let them do just that! New for Christmas 1975 are the "Tuff Stuff" play vacuum and mower. Lots of fun, and they'll really pick up small toys and things and toss them into the vacuum bag or grass catcher.

Safe to love

Best of all, this Christmas 1975, whether you choose a doll to love or an engrossing plaything, all these toys have been safety tested and carry warranties — for a satisfying, happy 1976!

Working replica tractor

THIS BIG, RUGGED IH TRACTOR/LOADER/BACKHOE is a new addition to The Ertl Company's "Blueprint Replica" versions of famous-name farm and construction toys, designed from manufacturer's blueprints in 1/16th scale. Massive in appearance and in its die-cast metal construction, this toy is 19½ inches long and is loaded with operating features. The front-end loader scoops, raises, lowers, dumps and locks in position. The back-hoe works in six directions, just like real equipment. Working stabilizers hold the machine steady for digging and the driver's seat swivels.

Girls love 'dress-up'

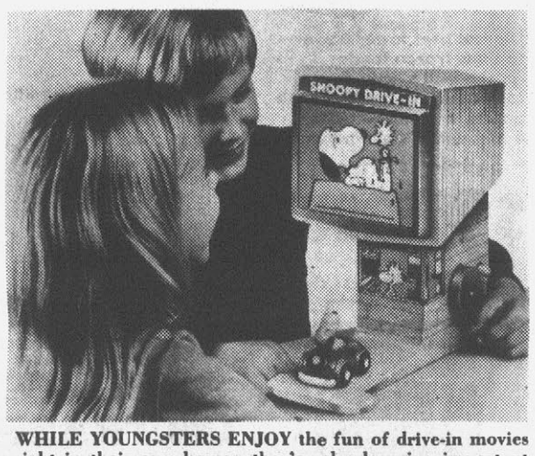
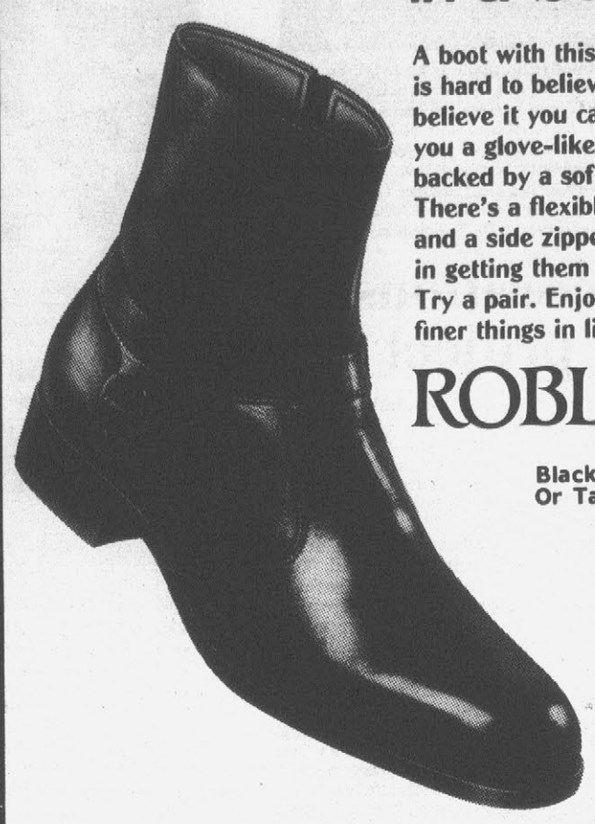
A NEW DOLL FOR YOUNGSTERS who love to play "grown up," Polly Pretend has a trunk full of accessories that are specially designed for pretending in hilarious style. Included are a big floppy hat, oversized shoes, simulated leather handbag, fun fur stole, jewelry, large hair styling aids and cosmetics made washable and safe by Amsco.



WHILE YOUNGSTERS ENJOY the fun of drive-in movies right in their own homes, they're also learning important values through Snoopy's adventures, projected onto the screen of the Snoopy Drive-In Theatre, made by Kenner Products. A child can easily operate it without ever tangling the film: it comes with fool-proof, snap-in cassettes which need no threading or rewinding, a task that might possibly be beyond his abilities.

The luxury of comfort in a boot.



A boot with this much comfort is hard to believe . . . but believe it you can! Roblee gives you a glove-like leather upper backed by a soft leather lining. There's a flexible leather sole, and a side zipper — for ease in getting them on and off. Try a pair. Enjoy one of the finer things in life.

A BUILT-IN DOLL HOUSE under the eaves could make a little girl's Christmas the best ever. When you tackle the house's decor, use leftover remnants of fabric, wallpaper and floor covering from the bedroom so the house will be a miniature version of your daughter's private retreat. The nicest feature of all is a GAFSTAR cushioned sheet vinyl by GAF Corporation that stays shiny merely by wiping clean and feels warm and comfy even under bare feet.

Easy—make a doll house for a little girl you love

What little girl wouldn't thrill to wake up Christmas morning to discover her very own doll house at the foot of her bed?

If you've priced ready-mades recently, you'll be appalled at the high cost of doll houses. One fun solution for both you and your little girl is to build a house out of plywood, leftover swatches of wallpaper, fabric and resilient flooring and paint. Assemble all the parts and nail into place at the last minute.

Some helpful hints as you initiate your holiday building project: if you build the house atop a large drawer as base, you'll create a giant tidy-upper. And, by positioning the house underneath an eave, nook or cranny, you're making imaginative use of otherwise wasted floor space. Keep the house open, without walls, because much of the fun derived from a doll house is to be able to peek inside.

Finishing touches need not be expensive. Paste up pieces of old wallpaper on walls; fabric swatches look cute at windows, around lampshades and wrapped around seats.

A neat wall-to-wall covering is leftover cushioned sheet vinyl which may be cut to size with scissors before cementing into place for a cheerful, shiny effect.

This same type of "no-wax" cushioned vinyl makes a perfect floor covering for your daughter's bedroom, too. The fine GAFSTAR family of floors in any of its bright, youth-oriented collection would suit your daughter's life-style to a tee. Since the floor is wipe-cleanable, it's a breeze to clean and feels warm and comfortable whether barefoot, kneeling or sitting directly on it.

Think how pleased your girl will be to have a hand-crafted doll house decorated to match her own private, cherished bedroom retreat . . . this could be her best Christmas ever!

Guitar ideal for young and young at heart

People of all ages will celebrate Christmas this year with a resounding strum.

They'll be among those whose gifts include a guitar—and they'll be joining the 10 million Americans of all ages who already play for personal expression, challenge, relaxation, sharing music with friends or just plain fun.

The guitar, an ideal gift for a family member, relative or close friend, is a good choice for a beginner, or for someone who already plays another instrument. It's one of the easiest instruments to learn to play; it's adaptable to almost any musical form or fest; and its versatility is almost sure to bridge a generation gap.

The Guitar and Accessory Manufacturers Assn. has some plucky advice for guitar-hunting Christmas shoppers, along with a rundown of the many models available to suit almost any taste, ability and budget.

Prices for quality guitars range from about $90 up to several thousand dollars, although less expensive models can be bought for as little as $50.

Shop around. No two instruments are alike. Make sure you're comfortable with the "feel" as well as the sound of your new guitar.

The classic guitar's mellow sound lends itself to soft ballads, stirring classical arrangements and lively Flamenco music. It can be used both for vocal accompaniment and solos. Nylon strings, lightness and a relatively small size make it a good choice for beginners and youngsters.

The standard steel stringer is a natural for country-western, bluegrass, blues, folksy ballads and rock. Also good for beginners, the steel-stringer is heavier, stronger and has a louder, twangier sound than the classic, although it requires slightly more fingering effort. It's at its best during social gatherings and jam sessions.

For the jazz-oriented person, consider the arched-top steel stringer. It lends itself to complex jazz progressions and enables the player to form chords faster since lighter string action can be used.

More experienced players may enjoy a 12-string steel guitar. With a larger body, a stronger, wider neck than its six-string counterpart, it can produce a greater range of sounds, although it's not as technically versatile.

Electric guitars, which have become almost synonymous with rock, make ideal choices for potential Eric Clapton emulators. Solid body electrics are used almost exclusively in rock bands and can't function well without an amplifier. The hollow-body "F"-hole model fits in well with jazz groups, where a turn of a knob changes it from a rhythm instrument into an amplified solo instrument.

Note: some solid and hollow-body electrics are made especially for left-handers, with the controls on the reverse side.

After you've decided which guitar to buy, why not supplement your purchase with a basic illustrated chord book or a simple tune book with songs that can be played using only two or three chords? Play-along records also make good choices for the beginner.

Ask your local music dealer about further suggestions on choosing self-instruction aids.

You may also want to introduce the new guitar player to group lessons. Modern group instruction techniques make learning to play easier and much more fun than it was as recently as five years ago.

And fun is what guitar playing is all about.

Some tips to help select toys with care

When you choose toys for your favorite children for Christmas, you're really selecting gifts that do more than amuse or entertain. Remember that toys influence young lives in both subtle and direct ways.

While children have fun playing with toys, they're also learning: aside from stimulating their curiosity and creativity, toys also help prepare them for their future roles in adult life by introducing them to the real world around them. So, put some careful thought into toy selection. Here are some guidelines:

• Consider the child's interests, social involvement, as well as his physical capabilities. An audio/visual toy, such as the Snoopy Drive-In Theatre, can encourage a child to be a good host by inviting friends to see special movies in his own little drive-in.

This toy has snap-in cassettes which children find easy to operate, backwards or forwards, without ever tangling the film. A dozen different great Snoopy stories are available to stir the child's imagination and teach him good moral values.

• Consider the child's age. It's a good idea to check the recommended age range suggested by the manufacturer on the package, but know your own child's stage of development. For example, for pre-schoolers, the Talking Blocks, featuring stories from television's popular New Zoo Review, are excellent: the little ones merely push the block down in its holder to hear the story.

For children from age five and up, the SSP's and TTP's — gleaming ultra-chrome racing cars made by Kenner Products — would be more appropriate. With the streamlined racers, stunt cars and cycles, the older children can hold competitions of their own, learning how to win and lose with good sportsmanship.

• Consider the toy's safety. You'll find that most American manufacturers adhere to strict safety standards. So do pay attention when they do not recommend a toy for children under a certain age, and be sure your children use the toys as the manufacturers direct. Teach your children also to properly care for their toys and to put them safely away when playtime is over.

Lastly, don't make the common mistake of choosing toys that please you. Select toys that please the children and are meaningful to them.

Be alert, be safe, be secure!

When decorating your Christmas tree, remember that children and pets will naturally be drawn to the colorful decorations.

Glass and plastic ornaments may be bitten by little ones, cords pulled and tinsel ingested by curious cats — all with less than festive results. So make sure that your Christmas tree is thoroughly balanced.

As a safety precaution, secure the tree with invisible wires to be sure that it is held firmly. All possibly harmful objects should be placed high enough to be out of the reach of tots. The little bit of bare space that you leave at the bottom will never be noticed, and all will have a happier holiday.

Another potential hazard around the house at Christmas time is the commonly used decoration of mistletoe. In the language of flowers mistletoe means "give me a kiss." Romantic though it might be, it is classified as "non-edible" and as such should be kept safely away from children.

It is also a good idea to check the wiring on tree lights, and be alert to the fact that empty light bulb sockets seem to have a fascination for young tots with exploring fingers.

BATTERY BLUES

Avoid disappointments on Christmas morning and stock up on batteries for those toys that require them and are not included in the packaging.

Brighten the holidays with special ornaments

The Christmas ornament is probably the most used — and the least used — of all Christmas decorations.

Most ornaments are probably used only on Christmas trees. But they lend themselves to other purposes, and today many imaginative people have found numbers of uses for the colorful Christmas balls.

Many ornaments on the market this year have such unusual and attractive designs that they are likely to become collector's items. For example, one of the world's largest producers of glass Christmas ornaments, Corning Glass Works, has ornaments depicting famous American birds like the cardinal or nuthatch.

Other new ornaments have bicentennial themes and feature reproductions of paintings like "Betsy Ross" or "The Drafting of the Declaration of Independence."

Corning also has recognized that individual ornaments can be meaningful and inexpensive gifts. In fact, some ornaments, like Corning's Currier and Ives series, are packaged in handy self-mailer boxes that can be simply addressed and dropped in the mail to a friend or relative. Some people use the ornaments in place of conventional Christmas cards.

Some folks with attractive evergreen trees around their homes use ornaments tied with a brightly colored ribbon as a low-cost alternative to strings of electric lights.

Indoors, ornaments can serve in a number of decorative ways. In fact, their use is limited only by imagination. For example, a glass hurricane candle shade filled with small ornaments of various colors makes a striking centerpiece.

A SHADOW BOX is a convenient and attractive way to display your favorite collectible Christmas ornaments such as this new series from Corning Glass Works.

Or with just dabs of glue, ornaments can be stacked together into a table-top Christmas tree arrangement. A combination of small and large ornaments will make a delightful ceiling-hung mobile. And Christmas gift packages are easily dressed up by tying an ornament or two to ribbons and bows.

And ornaments of just one color placed on a shiny aluminum tree will create a unique Christmas display. The custom of decorating Christmas trees began many years ago in Germany. It is a custom that has changed little in the intervening years with the exception that ornaments have become more versatile decorating items.

That's why today, some ornaments hang from places other than trees . . . and some ornaments don't hang at all.

Easy does it as new pet meets old

Your son has a dog, so now your daughter says she'd like one, too. And you think it would be a nice Christmas gift for her.

The first rule is not to wait for Christmas Day to present her with a new pet, be it dog, cat or hamster. That festive day is no time to bring any new animal into a household.

The second rule is careful preparation. An established animal has certain territorial rights that he is not about to give up easily or quickly to a newcomer.

The easiest way to get the two animals to a friendly position is to keep the new one in a room to itself while the older pet has the run of the house. Give them time to get accustomed to each other's smell.

If possible, place their feeding bowls on opposite sides of the closed door.

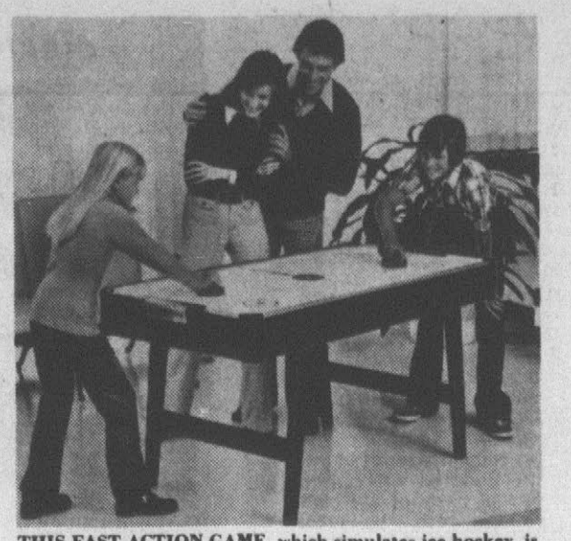
After a few days, let the two animals meet. Don't scold the older one if he shows a tendency to fight; it's his right to protect himself and his hearth. Play with them both for a few minutes and then separate them again.

Lengthen the "togetherness" time daily and soon you'll have two happy pets playing together and providing happiness for the whole household.

During the "isolation" period it is important that both animals be petted and played with so that neither feels neglected.

If the newcomer is a puppy, you'll be housebreaking him during this period. If the new pet is a kitten, you'll be feeding at frequent intervals.

And don't be put off by that old wives' tale that cats and dogs don't get along with each other. They do and they provide excellent company for each other, particularly in a household where both parents may work and the children are in school all day.



THIS FAST-ACTION GAME, which simulates ice hockey, is fun for the entire family. Brunswick® popular Air-Hockey® game is now available in a five-foot Bantam™ table model as shown. It sells for about $100. Also available in six-foot Professional Style model.

Home-style hockey for entire family

The American family, according to a recent study, spends almost as much money on leisure activities each year as on rent or home loans. That's about $100 billion annually.

During the past year, as a result of double digit inflation and spiraling fuel prices, many Americans have begun to look for leisure activities at home.

In part, the rising cost of living may account for the increasing popularity of such games as backgammon and chess and renewed interest in contract bridge.

During the past two years another game has developed an avid coterie of fans. It's Brunswick's® Air-Hockey® game. Brunswick, the originator of the game, introduced a coin-operated model in 1972. It rapidly became a favorite in college unions, taverns and free-standing game parlors. Before the game was a year old, inter-state tournaments were held with the finals of one shown on CBS-TV.

The popularity of the game prompted Brunswick to introduce a home model Air-Hockey game in 1973. It inspired Aurora Products, under license from Brunswick, to manufacture and sell a table-top version of the game in 1974.

The game's popularity is easy to explain. It is easy to learn and it offers the speed and action of ice hockey. Players stationed at each end of the table, utilizing hand-held goalies, attempt to defend their goals from a careening puck, while at the same time trv to knock the flying puck into their opponent's goal.

The puck flies at almost blinding speeds across the table on a cushion of forced air. A blower motor located underneath the table forces air through thousands of minute holes in the surface of the table creating the air cushion. As a result, the puck flies across the table almost friction-free.

Larger versions

This year Brunswick is introducing two new home models of its Air-Hockey game — a 5-foot Bantam™ model and a 6-foot Professional Style table.

Model car business booms for Christmas

Gloomy it is indeed! So say the spokesmen from Detroit and Milan and other car-making capitals throughout the world.

But despite these dour reports, there is at least one manufacturer reporting record sales with factories working three shifts a day and a consuming public ready to gobble up its products just about as fast as they can be turned out.

The company, Corgi, is an English one with main plants in Swansea, Wales. And at this writing, it is turning out more cars than all of Detroit combined.

Collectors growing

The cars are small ones, three to four inches long, and they are being bought by a growing army of collectors mainly in the five to twelve year age bracket. They are pouring into the United States at the rate of tens of millions annually.

A famous New York toy store calls them "incredible" in detail and authenticity, "Like looking at the real thing through the wrong end of a telescope."

Research by Corgi puts the average owner's collection at 17 with the more serious buffs going into the hundreds and even thousands scaling upward according to the degree of his seriousness.

Popular models

Classy and sleek Formula 1 racing cars top the popularity lists. Next comes foreign Rally and Grand Turisma types such as Porsches, Ferraris, Lambrettas, then on to the family bus, military and emergency vehicles, farm equipment, and then Fords, Chryslers, Chevrolets and the like.

At the present time, Corgi makes about 150 different car models in two scales. One is about fifty times smaller than life, the other is approximately 1/85th scale, the same as the well-known Matchbox cars. Besides the U.S., Corgi sells to 200 countries worldwide.

Authentic miniatures

The demand for authenticity the company imposes on itself sees teams of technicians going out into the field with tape measures and cameras poring over specifications sent to them by manufacturers, often on a confidential basis.

Painstaking drawings are made in the scaling down process. Later wooden patterns are made and resin molds cast. The final mold is cut with the aid of a Pantograph machine which accurately scales down to the finished miniature size from a larger mold.

Precision work

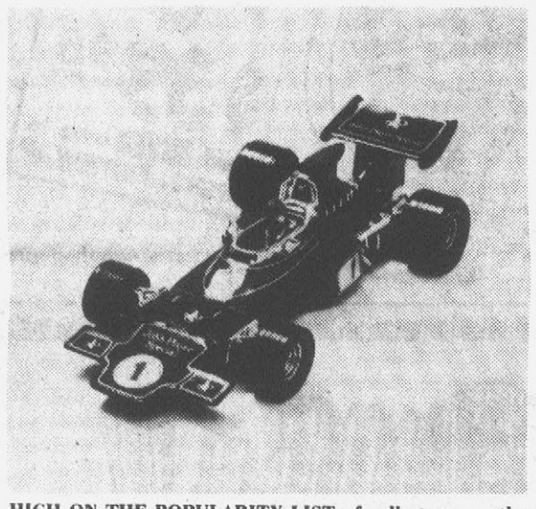
Tools for this exacting work include watchmaker's glasses, micrometers and one as thin as cigarette paper specially designed to make the castings for die-cast spoke wheels.

Dies from which they are cast may cost anywhere from $50,000 to $100,000 apiece. Design takes several months and men working in microscopic tolerances put in upward of 10,000 work hours before their production is started.

Corgi buyers, the company has learned, are sticklers for accuracy and are quick to find mistakes. One time when it made a car with eleven slats on its radiator grill when it should have had twelve, the company received over two hundred letters from various parts of the globe pointing out the error. Corgi responded quickly by making costly changes in the casting die.

At this time, trade estimates say total die-cast volume will be close to 100 million individual pieces sold this year.

INCREDIBLE IN DETAIL and authenticity, the STP Patrick Eagle, winner of the 1973 Indianapolis 500, is one of Corgi's new models. Five inches long, 1/36 scale.



HIGH ON THE POPULARITY LIST of collectors . . . the JPS Lotus 72D or John Player Special, trend-setting Formula I car, driven by Brazilian Emerson Fittipaldi, scored a tremendous win record in international racing. The exquisitely detailed Corgi version is 5⅛ inches long.

DOLL CLOTHES

Before you throw out that blouse, think of it as clothing for a doll. Every girl likes a modern wardrobe for her doll and scraps of material help make that wish come true.

CAREFUL

There's nothing worse than finding a piece of a toy missing. Take care when putting toys away; be sure all pieces are in the box or carton. Good training aid for children.

Magnetized fun

PRE-SCHOOLERS WILL LOVE the Live-In Train, a Think and Learn toy from Ideal, featuring the MacMagnet family, the first family in pre-school toys that actually looks and is able to act similar to real people. The family and its dog are magnetized so they can hold hands with each other, carry luggage and tools, or open their Pullman car, revealing their living quarters. The caboose holds the family car. The two-foot long Live-In Train comes with 13 play accessories all of which store inside the train.

Making beautiful music

CULTIVATE YOUR CHILD'S interest in music by encouraging him to take up a musical instrument this Christmas. According to officials at Bundy Band Instruments, one of the leading manufacturers of quality band instruments for boys and girls, you should let your child choose the instrument he wants to play. If more than one child in the family is learning to make music, a different kind of instrument for each discourages competitive feelings and encourages harmony in the home.

For pleasure they can count on through the years...

Christmas gifts captivate adults, youngsters

INSURING A MERRY CHRISTMAS for pre-schoolers and young grade school children is a cinch with colorful, fast-moving games like "Jack and Jill" from Schaper; "The Cootie Company." Since games like "Jack and Jill" don't require reading skills, they can be played independently, encouraging sharing, turn-taking and group cooperation among youngsters.

Well chosen games add to pre-school development

It's a scene parents like to see on Christmas afternoon — the kids happily playing with the new toys that Santa spent many thoughtful hours selecting. Somehow the weeks of Christmas preparations all seem worthwhile.

How can parents insure this kind of Merry Christmas in '75? Mr. William Garrity, President of Schaper, the company famous for making the "Cootie" game, says, "It's difficult enough selecting gifts for friends of your own age and interests, but children are a completely different story. Perhaps the best advice for parents is to avoid the tendency to buy games and toys they think children should like instead of what the children really seem interested in."

This is especially important, Garrity notes, with pre-school children. Games for this age group, like "Get Off My Back" and "Jack and Jill," should be colorful and fast-moving, with concepts the kids can easily grasp.

Children should be able to enjoy the games without assistance from adults. Games such as "Don't Break the Ice," "Ants in the Pants," Don't Blow Your Top," and "Twizzle" don't require reading skills for proper play so children can play independently.

This category of games provides a kind of activity that is an important part of growing up. Garrity notes that "they teach social disciplines such as sharing, turn-taking, and group cooperation, essentials at this point in child development."

Of course, the main reason that well-chosen gifts for pre-schoolers don't get left sitting under the Christmas tree is that they're fun. In "Jack and Jill," for instance, the players see who can get to the top of the hill without triggering an avalanche of marbles. The suspense mounts as each player adds marbles to the well — the loser is the last player to put a marble in before the well spills, knocking the Jack and Jill figures back down the hill.

"Get Off My Back" features a cantankerous turtle who sits and sits while players load pelicans onto his back. When the turtle has had enough, he signals it by scurrying under a log, knocking the pelicans off. The player who places the pelican which chases the turtle away, is the loser.

Other Schaper games like "Cat in the Bag," "Ants in the Pants," "Don't Blow Your Top" and "Cootie" combine suspense, strong visual appeal and lots of laughs, a formula that adds up to a Merry Christmas for 1975.

Constructive, interesting hobby gifts fill psychological needs of adults, children

"Doing your own thing" is the thing these days. The desire for individuality, nostalgia for the good old days are among the reasons why do-it-yourself hobbies are anticipated to be among the most popular gifts this season. Perhaps, too, because they're thrifty.

But there are also more profound reasons. Psychological. Having a self-involving hobby, in the opinion of Dr. Joyce Brothers, noted psychologist, is an effective means of combating the boredom of idly killing leisure time or the equal deadliness of day-to-day work or household routine. The pride of a mother who makes a decorative craft piece, she says, brings immeasurable psychological rewards.

Relax and enjoy

Dr. Nelson Bradley, Northwestern University authority on the emotional and health problems of "work addicted" business executives, is also an advocate of having a hobby. He especially recommends those that require the use of hands and some concentration to complete; such as building scale models, painting, running a model railroad, or cabinet work.

Activities, far more potent than a pill, for inducing relaxation, restoring a sense of humor—and, most important, improving relationships with their families, their employees, and their employer.

Constructive pursuits

Children are also heeded by the psychologist. A parent is fortunate, according to Dr. Rudolph Brandt, Beverly Hills psychiatrist and educator, whose youngsters enjoy constructive hobbies. They stimulate creativity, often motivate them to pursue careers related to their specific hobby interest, instill a pride of accomplishment, strengthen their confidence, and in most instances encourage them to become better students.

As if responding to these needs, there are hundreds of new hobby gifts, reports the Hobby Industry of America, available at hobby and department stores everywhere, that would be welcomed by most everyone on a Christmas shopping list.

Simple or complex

There are those designed to be easy for beginners,

REVERSE ROLES . . . Those days are past when fathers used the pretense of giving their sons model electric trains, then standing by until they could operate them themselves. Now sons are giving them to their fathers, with the same idea in mind. Model railroading, reports the Hobby Industry of America, is one of the nation's fastest growing adult, youngster, and family hobbies. Model railroad sets and equipment are available in sizes to fit any space, priced for any budget and ranging from those for the young neophyte engineer to those for the most sophisticated railroad tycoon. At hobby and department stores.

who'll be delighted to discover that they are not all thumbs. There are sophisticated projects for the experienced hobbyist. There are materials and kits to convert articles usually thrown away, such as bottles, tin cans, plastic containers, into practical and decorative pieces.

The magic of hobbies is that they seem to fill different needs for different people. A retired man or woman living alone, a tense business executive, an office or production line worker, and a youngster all benefit differently from assembling the same scale model kit of a ship or car, or doing the same craft, collecting stamps or coins, doing needlework or making an exquisite piece of jewelry.

There is an abundance of outdoor hobby kits, too. There are ready-to-fly scale model airplanes, sail and power boats, and finely engineered radio controlled aircraft and seacraft to stir the imagination of any sport-hobbyist.

New toys will help keep pets busy and happy

It's Christmas morning; gifts are being unwrapped; everyone is happy and laughing.

But Bowser has been isolated in the kitchen "to keep him out of trouble," and Kitty has been incarcerated behind closed doors in a bedroom "so she won't get into things."

Your pets should have their fun, too, at this holiday time. And it's so easy to include them in the festivities.

Catnip filled cloth toys are inexpensive and give kitty hours of pleasure. Or make one yourself. Boxes of shredded catnip are available in any pet store. Just sew some into a scrap of clean material roughly shaped into a ball.

It's not a good idea to give a dog Dad's old slipper and say, "Have fun." The dog won't know the difference between the old slipper and the new one. But heavy rubber dog toys will bring a happy bark from your four-footed friend.

In the long run, a cat will be perfectly happy with some of the ribbon from packages, and a dog can spend hours snuffing in the tissue paper.

Lift up spirits as you take down the tree

The Christmas season is the most joyous time of the entire year and it's always a little sad to see it come to an end. All the beautiful decorations are boxed away, favorite carols will not be heard for another year, children return to school and adults to their jobs and gray January sets in.

One way to ease the melancholy of the passing season is to pick up on the words of a favorite Christmas song and reserve the 6th of January for a "Twelfth Day of Christmas" party. The tedious and depressing job of dismantling the tree will seem brighter when shared with relatives and friends in a still-festive style.

Before the work begins, have everyone guess the number of ornaments on the tree, then give a prize to the one who finally comes closest to the exact number. Serve everyone a holiday cupcake with a candle on it for making a New Year's wish. If there's a "psychic" in the crowd gather 'round for some fortune telling.

Remember that the warmth and pleasure of good hospitality is never out of season, and that with your own thought and imagination you can make the end of the Christmas season a special, enjoyable occasion.

Original new wrappings use imaginative Victorian decals

Part of the fun of holidays is preparing for them. At Christmas, that means buying and wrapping gift packages for family, relatives and special friends.

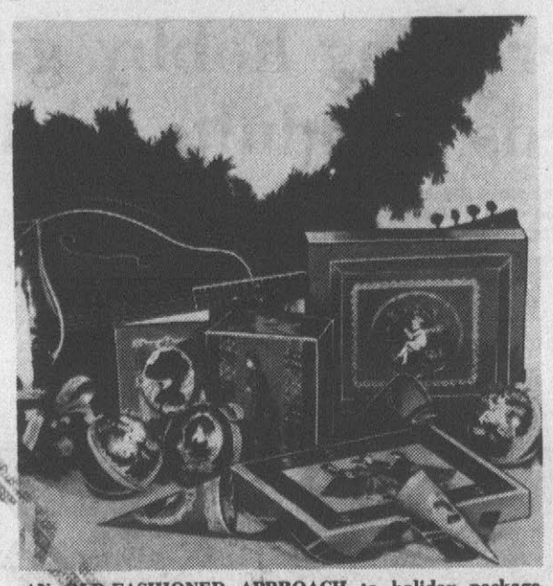
For an artful, new approach to holiday wrapups, to vary the traditional holly and ribbons, try using decal designs in different styles and patterns.

There's a wide variety of designs to choose from, and many have an old-fashioned, Victorian flavor — cherubs, birds, flowers, ladies — that turn out beautiful boxes to place under the holiday tree.

Decals are easy to work with and, most important in today's economy, inexpensive, too. By using them with plain paper and scraps left over from sewing projects, note the stylists at Meyercord, the decal company, it's possible to create elegant-looking wrappings — yet still have money left for other gifts.

Paper-wrap the gift box, then simply add a decal design at a central, focal point. Frame the design with white lace edging, gold braid or other trim, and glue it on in square or diagonal patterns.

For gifts that you make or bake, clever packages can be done up by turning tea or cracker tins into decorative containers. Cover the tin first with fabric or plain paper. Then apply decals strategically and trim with ribbon, lace or braid, which also serves to disguise uneven edges.



AN OLD-FASHIONED APPROACH to holiday package wraps is seen in these beautiful boxes decorated with decals. For a Victorian flavor, Meyercord stylists suggest using cherub, floral and lady figures on packages, then trimming them with ribbon or braid.

Other crafty containers can be made of brightly-colored paper rolled into cone shapes and decorated. Cut paper into half circles; fold into vari-sized cones and glue edges together. Apply designs and edge with braid, lace or beads. Glue or staple on velvet ribbon at either side of the opening and tie in a bow. Or loop into hang-ups, so the package/cones also can be hung on the tree as ornaments.

"Customizing" wrap-ups not only will add to the holiday fun, it will carry a personal, warm message with the gift inside. There are more than 100 Meyercord patterns to be found in paint, hardware and variety stores throughout the country.

STICK 'EM . . . STACK 'EM . . . fit Playskool's Bristle Blocks together in all sorts of shapes and they'll stay together. Their unique interlocking design makes building with them easy and fun.

Exciting new block fun for creative builders

A leading manufacturer of pre-school toys and a pioneer in the field of building blocks for youngsters, has introduced a brand new concept in creative play. They're called Bristle Blocks and they're a unique idea in block building.

What makes Bristle Blocks, manufactured by Playskool, different from ordinary blocks is their soft, safe interlocking bristles.

The bristles allow children to fit the blocks together in a great many shapes and designs, much more so than with ordinary blocks.

And the structure won't fall apart until it's taken apart — no need to worry about it tumbling down at a youngster's slightest nudge.

This means that when children build with Bristle Blocks, they're limited only by their imaginations.

They can create whatever they want, build their own buildings, towers, bridges, animals, designs and more. They need no instructions. Everything they build is their own idea.

Bristle Blocks are an excellent way for children to make full use of their amazing creativity, to design and build, to tear down and build again.

They let youngsters use their imaginations to create all kinds of original structures in their world of make-believe.

Playskool's theme states "our toys make good friends." Playskool's Bristle Blocks prove it.

Colorful Danish tradition

HOLIDAYS ARE "DROP-BY" TIMES, and you can say welcome with a decorative and inviting table of hot glogg and goodies the way the Danes do. Here, Nira Steffensen, wife of a Danish businessman in this country, has brought into special party service her Bing & Grondahl porcelain dinnerware in the Blue Koppel pattern, using a vegetable dish over a candle to keep the glogg at the warming temperature that does most good to chilled guests. Her handsome pitcher doubles here as a tall vase for decorative greenery. Typical Danish Kransekager almond cake is as festive as it is delicious. The deep cobalt blue pattern of the Danish porcelain is the same blue traditionally associated with the Bing & Grondahl Christmas Plates which have been made to commemorate each one of the last 80 years. Three of the most recent Plates hang on Mrs. Steffensen's wall. The brilliant green cloth and the red of the bittersweet branches and other decorations, bring the familiar holiday coloring to the party table.

Durable toy submarine delights young sailors

Toys and trees often have a good deal more in common than their mere proximity under the tree at Christmas time — especially when the toys are constructed of durable cellulosic plastics.

For example, Hasbro Industries, Inc. is one of several leading toy manufacturers who regularly use cellulosics — the rugged plastics derived by a chemical process from the wood of trees.

The "Sea Wolf Submarine," a recent addition to the company's G.I. Joe line of adventure toys, is the latest Hasbro toy to feature an integral component molded of butyrate, one of several types of cellulosic plastics.

Hasbro selected Tenite butyrate, supplied by Eastman Chemical Products, Inc., for the submarine's transparent conning tower. The toy-maker wanted a clear tower that not only added realism to the submarine but one that would stand up to rough treatment. With G.I. Joe observing from within the butyrate conning tower, the Sea Wolf submarine can dive down to four feet, surface and maintain buoyancy through remote control.

A FUTURE SUBMARINE SAILOR prepares to launch the Sea Wolf submarine, a new adventure toy from Hasbro Industries, Inc. The rugged, clear plastic conning tower is made of Tenite butyrate, a cellulosic material supplied by Eastman Chemical Products, Inc.

In addition to their ruggedness and durability, cellulosics exhibit outstanding clarity and excellent colorability, properties that toy-makers find especially attractive.

Designed for children ages four to 12, the Sea Wolf represents the first underwater vehicle to be marketed as part of the G.I. Joe line. The submarine, with its butyrate conning tower, is just another example of how cellulosic plastics — the plastics derived from trees — are put to good use by the nation's leading toy-makers.

Christmas magic

WITH ANY OF THESE CAMERAS you can enjoy your Christmas photos on Christmas day. What's more, you can enjoy them without bending your holiday budget out of shape because, in contrast to most everything else, you can now get more Polaroid camera for less money than ever before. All the teens are talking about the Electric Zip — and no wonder. It comes in three dynamite colors — red, white, and blue and delivers color photos in 60 seconds, black and white in 30 seconds. At an unbelievably low price — only $21.95 suggested list. Mom and dad will love the versatility of the Super Shooter, which uses six film types — only $25. Or add a timer and a case and you have the Super Shooter Plus, which has a suggested list price under $35. Christmas magic isn't just in instant photos — it's in the amazingly low cost of instant picture cameras.

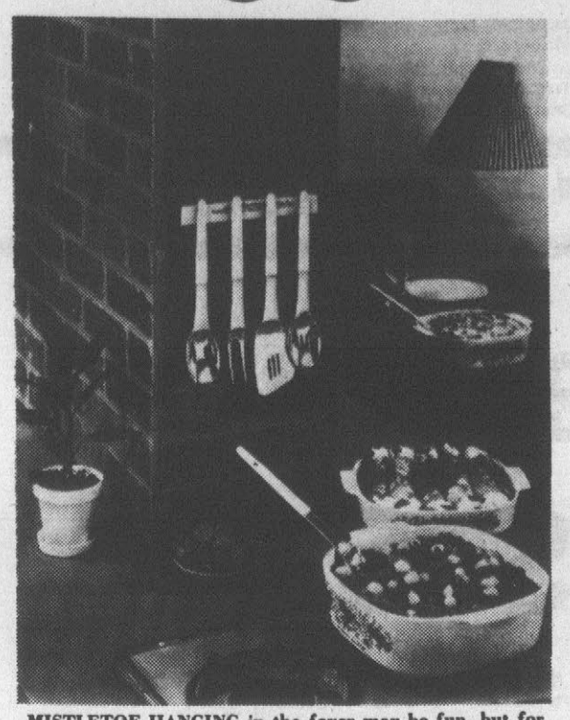
Big gifts. Little gifts. To make their day!



MISTLETOE HANGING in the foyer may be fun, but for longtime pleasure there's nothing like a set of Les Utensiles from Imperial Knife hanging on the kitchen wall. This efficient and sleekly-styled set of cooking and serving accessories and handy decorated wall rack retails for $14.95, and would be a welcome Christmas gift.

Doubly delightful... attractive utensils

Anyone who enjoys cooking will appreciate a gift of Les Utensiles, Imperial Knife Company's beautifully styled set of cooking and serving accessories with handy decorated wall rack.

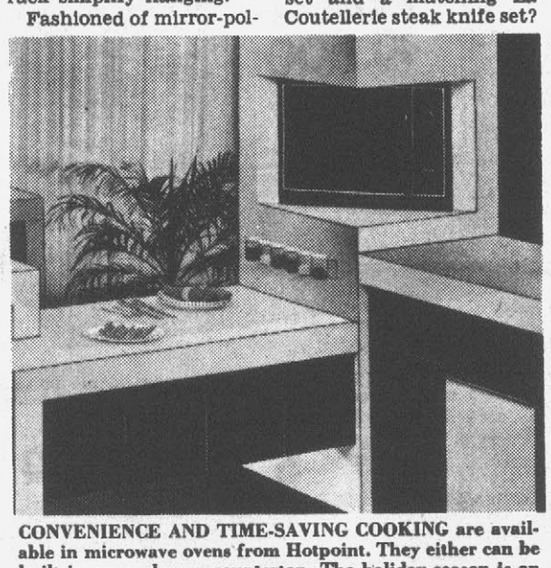
Designed for use with the country's most popular oven-to-table cookware, the quartet boasts striking new shapes smart enough to come to the table, functional enough to perform perfectly in the kitchen. They're a new size, too — large enough for cooking, small enough for serving.

And as a bonus, their good looks make a handsome showing when they're hung on a kitchen wall. Pressure-sensitive strips on the decorated rack simplify hanging.

Fashioned of mirror-polished stainless steel for easy care, the trim utensils have dishwasher-safe, stain-resistant white handle grips with a fine feel in hand, an attractive appearance at table. By fulfilling both the cooking and serving functions, the distinctive set saves storage space, cuts down dishwashing.

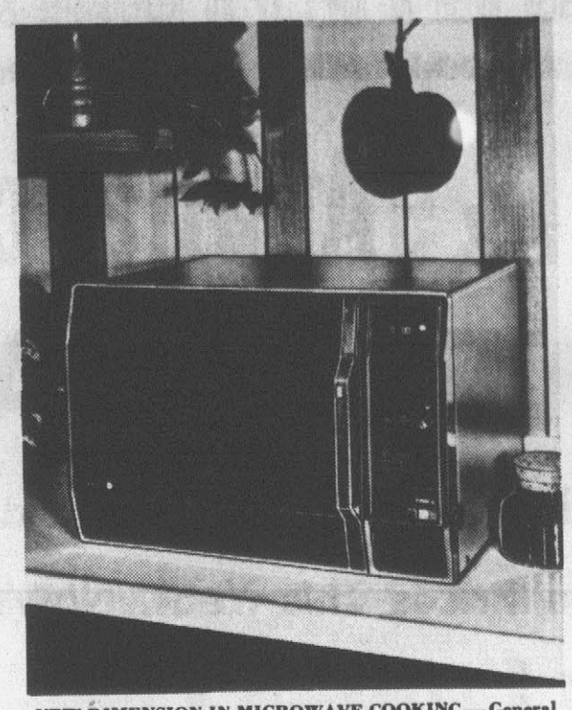
Appropriately packaged for gift-giving, Les Utensiles has a suggested retail price of $14.95.

There are all sorts of possibilities for Christmas gift-giving in Imperial Knife's new Contemporary Collection. For instance, Casualware color-enhanced stainless flatware will bring pleasure for many meals to come. And who wouldn't be pleased with a La Coutellerie cutlery set and a matching La Coutellerie steak knife set?



CONVENIENCE AND TIME-SAVING COOKING are available in microwave ovens from Hotpoint. They either can be built in or used on a countertop. The holiday season is an especially appropriate time to add the versatility of microwave cooking, permitting just about anything from snacks to main dishes to be ready in a matter of minutes.

New major appliances save time, save labor



NEW DIMENSION IN MICROWAVE COOKING—General Electric's new JET90 countertop microwave oven now gives the option of cooking by time or temperature at microwave speeds. An Automatic Cooking Control senses the internal temperature of food as it cooks and turns the oven off automatically when the food is done, eliminating undercooking or overcooking. Combined with High, Medium/Defrost and Low cooking levels, the JET90's Automatic Cooking Control lets the user prepare casseroles, soups, and even large, less tender cuts of meat with carefree ease. There is no need to estimate cooking times, rotate or turn food. The oven turns off automatically when food is ready and sounds a signal. The JET90 has an oven capacity 25% larger than previous GE units.

What's new in major appliances for Christmas gift giving?

Everything!

How about a speedy microwave oven that you can set and forget while it cooks a roast to your order. Or an automatic washer that is so automatic it dispenses bleach, fabric softener and the like for you at exactly the right time in the wash cycle?

Would you consider an electric range with an oven that cleans itself and a cooktop that you wipe clean with a damp sponge? Or maybe a refrigerator that dispenses crushed ice, cubes and ice water without opening the door, is what you need.

And how about a dishwasher that eliminates pre-rinsing, washes pots and pans and can save energy in the bargain?

All these time and labor saving appliances are among the king-sized stocking stuffers from General Electric to help to brighten any kitchen and cheer any homemaker this holiday season.

Cook cool

The newest thing in cooking is microwaves, and a new concept in microwave cooking is the Automatic Chef JET90 countertop oven.

The JET90 has a temperature-sensing probe which inserts into casseroles, soups, meat or other foods and monitors the food's internal temperature. When the food reaches desired serving temperature, the oven automatically turns off and sounds a buzzer.

In addition to Automatic Cooking, the JET90 offers three cooking power levels, including a new Low power setting for "gourmet" slow cooking, but at microwave speeds.

Cook hot

If you prefer conventional cooking, GE offers a new 30-inch free-standing range with a smooth, glass-ceramic cooktop which adds distinction to any kitchen.

The seamless cooktop accepts any flat-bottom cookware and wipes clean with a damp towel. It also features a Self-Cleaning oven with window door. A digital clock, woodgrain trim and infinite heat control on all cooktop units also are featured on the JBP87.

Clean a pot

Freedom from dishwashing is a gift everyone can appreciate. Consider a Potscrubber™ dishwasher you can start using immediately as a portable model and build in later when time and money permit.

For the dried-on or baked-on foods, there is GE's Power Scrub® cycle. Just tip off large scraps. Also Normal and Light Soil selections, as well as a special, extra-gentle cycle for china and crystal. The Rinse & Hold cycle lets you assemble a full load before washing.

To cut operating cost, GE lets you select a "Heat Off" drying cycle when there is no rush for dry dishes. No power drying can reduce operational electrical consumption by up to 40%.

Ice is nice

Instant ice — delivered through the door at the touch of a glass — is welcome anytime. GE's Custom Dispenser models make opening and shutting the freezer to get ice a thing of the past.

And these ice-dispensing refrigerators will even crush the ice for fancy drinks, salads or desserts. GE offers three models which combine capacity with convenience: a 20.6-cubic-foot top-freezer unit, and 21.6-cubic-foot side-by-side.

She's dreaming of a microwave oven

What modern homemaker wouldn't welcome the addition of a time-saving appliance to her kitchen? And especially so during the busy holiday season.

One of the greatest time-savers to come on the kitchen scene in years is the countertop microwave oven. Microwave cooking is fast and convenient, preparing just about anything from snacks to main dishes in only a matter of minutes. This speed is a major plus for working women or for those who would like to spend less time in the kitchen, particularly during the holidays.

An additional plus has resulted from the increased capacity available in some of these ovens. One new model from Hotpoint has 1.3-cubic-feet of interior space — big enough to accommodate the largest commonly made glass roasting dish (13" x 9" x 2"), or even a four-quart casserole.

This larger model (on the inside, not on the outside) also has the convenient "Low/Defrost" setting to thaw solidly frozen foods quickly and evenly.

The low power cycle also cooks certain food items better, such as fish, frozen baked products or frozen dinners, which can dry out if cooked too quickly.

To assure that the precise cooking or defrosting time — so important to proper microwave use — can be selected accurately, Hotpoint models have 25 or 35 minute timers.

Choosing a gift for the liberated man, woman

This Christmas it might be a good idea to reconsider the gifts you're contemplating giving in this age of liberation for both men and women.

Male and female roles are no longer so rigidly defined. Today many men enjoy whipping up a gourmet meal, while there are women happily wielding saws and electric drills around the house.

Appliances from blenders to coffee makers make particularly good gifts that are easy to operate for bachelors who are not very adept at domestic chores.

For the liberated ladies on your list who are single, why not select a gift that once might have been considered "for men only." A basic tool kit or fix-it book will probably be greeted with a hearty "right on!"

Bright holiday ideas that are sure to please

CHRISTMAS COLLECTION OF AMERICAN GLASS — Choose from a wide variety of gifts made of American handcrafted glass, the country's oldest craft. Today, craftsmen at factories in western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia, all members of the Glass Crafts of America Association, are creating today's collectibles including the yard ale, decanter, compote, cheese server, and vase shown here. These designs, ranging in price from $6.00 to $37.00, are available in gift and department stores this Christmas. For information on touring plants in "Glass Country, U.S.A.," write to the Glass Crafts of America Association, Box 103, 1800 Oliver Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222.

Handcrafted glass, American treasures for Christmas giving

For over 360 Christmas seasons, Americans have been exchanging gifts of handcrafted glass, the country's oldest craft. Shoppers this season will find a wide variety of 19th century reproductions and modern designs — decanters, vases, cheese trays, candlesticks, punchbowls, wine glasses — which may one day become collector's items.

In buying today's collectibles, the beauty and functionalism of handcrafted glass make it attractive as a gift and as the perfect accessory for holiday entertaining.

Artisan crafted

The uniqueness of handcrafted ware, according to the Glass Crafts of America Association, means the glassware has been blown or pressed by hand, a skilled art that has been passed down from generation to generation. Discriminating buyers will prize the faint variations in handcrafted glass, a distinction that separates it from machine-made products.

The art of glassmaking has been going strong ever since our forefathers landed at Jamestown and built the first glass factory in 1608 — in fact, the first factory in this country. Today this skilled craft is translated into the clean, crisp lines of handcrafted wine glasses, decanters and cheese servers so much a part of everyday living and entertaining.

Simultaneously, says Glass Crafts, many handcrafted glass pieces available in gift and department stores this Christmas are exact reproductions of shapes and patterns designed in the 1800's. Many milk glass pieces, antique crystal stemware, carnival glass (an iridescent glass), slag glass (made at the end of the day by glassmakers), and pressed-pattern glass in stemware and accessory pieces are created today from molds designed in the 19th century.

Just as wine glasses and decanters are an integral part of today's lifestyle, Early American glass pieces reflect yesteryear. Bottles and flasks, paperweights, tiny salts in a variety of shapes and designs, and cup plates, saucers with turned up rims used to drink coffee and tea, were found in almost all homes.

Traditional skills

Today, craftsmen at factories in western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and West Virginia, an area the Association calls, "Glass Country, U.S.A.," use the same skills of yesteryear — but with access to far better materials than their forefathers — in creating a variety of American handcrafted glass styles, ranging from simple to elaborate.

For information on touring the Glass Country plants to see the magic of glass-making, write to the Glass Crafts of America Association, Box 103, 1800 Oliver Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222.

Classic Americana

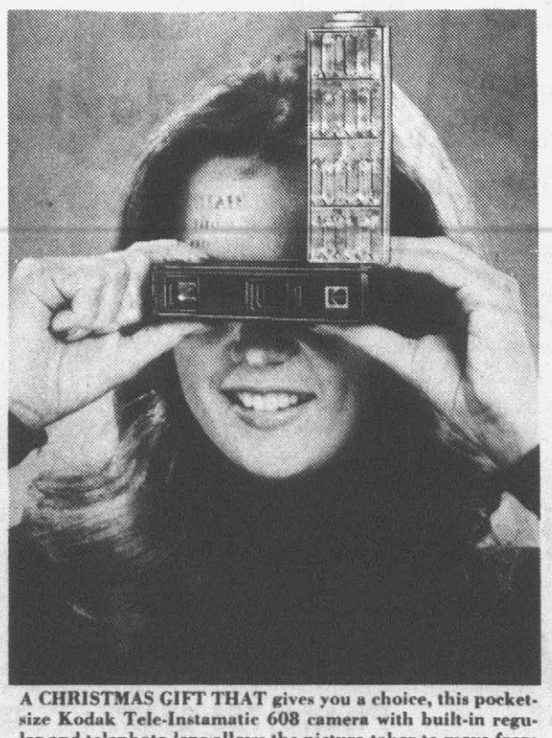
AN AUTHENTIC REPRODUCTION of an American antique, sensibly priced, makes an ideal Christmas gift. There's hidden storage in the hinged case, and curved edging keeps objects in their place — very functional, very pretty. This Hickory Furniture Company cigarette table, from their American Masterpiece Collection, is a unique design that speaks eloquently of its antique heritage.



A CHRISTMAS GIFT THAT gives you a choice, this pocket-size Kodak Tele-Instamatic 608 camera with built-in regular and telephoto lens allows the picture-taker to move from one to the other by flicking a switch. Weighing approximately four ounces, the camera sells for less than $36 as a separate item or for less than $40 in a picture-taking outfit.

Precious gifts add luster to holiday giving

Christmas — the most exciting day of the year for your child — can fade quickly out of memory as the Yuletide toys get broken and the new clothes are outgrown. This year, make the holiday live on by treating your child to a bright new idea. A gift that's fun but functional . . . exciting but enduring.

Sound impossible? Not with hand-painted Originals by Irmi. Any infant or child through age 10 will love one of these beautiful lamps, mobiles or accessories — so will mom and dad.

Every piece made by Irmi is a unique gift because it's truly an original, crafted from the finest hardwoods and then hand-finished with bright non-toxic enamel paints. Each item displays colorful figures that relate closely to your child's world — from Mother Goose characters to trucks and locomotives.

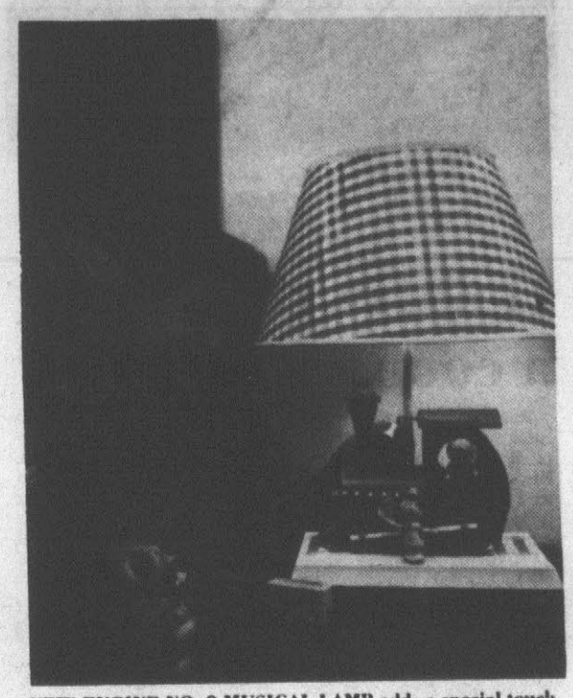
These items have been popular for years because they are functional, decorative . . . and much more. Child specialists say that Irmi mobiles and animated lamps arouse the senses and the imagination, creating a happy and stimulating environment for your child.

Picture your son smiling with gleeful fascination as he watches a bright "transportation" mobile twirling slowly above his crib. Or your daughter drifting into slumber while her favorite musical lamp plays a familiar tune.

There's good news for parents, too. Irmi has more than 100 classic and contemporary items in a wide range of color combinations — so you're sure to find one that fits perfectly into your nursery or child's room. All items are completely non-toxic, safe and durable. And they can be easily cleaned with a damp cloth.

No wonder generations of children (and parents) have treasured these special gifts. Your family will too, for years to come.

Hand painted Originals by Irmi, from Nursery Originals, Inc., are sold in leading department and infant specialty stores everywhere.



NEW ENGINE NO. 9 MUSICAL LAMP adds a special touch to your nursery or child's room. Part of the new transportation line of lamps and mobiles from Originals by Irmi, it relates to the on-going fascination young children have for moving vehicles such as trains and trucks. The lamp features a white base, blue locomotive with real bell, twelve-note musical tune, and an attractive red checkered shade.

Impressive wall clock

DUSK OR DAWN, birthday or Christmas, any time is the right time to give someone a Syroco bamboo-framed wall clock. This clock that combines the sheen of a fine porcelain-like finish with the easy-care, heat-resistant qualities of thermo-plastic, makes it a smart gift for any room!

Cushy comfort for Christmas

A COMFORTABLE "POUF CHAIR" may be an answer to the ideal Christmas gift. Starting out as a chair with a round, tufted pouf, it "flattens out" in no time flat. Remove the pouf for only as long as it takes to flip over the chair's curved back. Then reset it and, voila — an ottoman that's just as poufy! Spherical Furniture Co. is famous for their unique, dual-purpose designs.

VERSATILE GIFTS that serve as a clock, waker-upper alarm, and FM-AM receiver are digital clock radios. This one, by Zenith, also brings continuous government weather broadcasts in many areas of the U.S. Clock has illuminated inch-high numerals for easy identification. Cabinet is simulated wood with grained walnut finish.

Exclusive Hydro Sweep Wash
Soil stripping action of KitchenAid single level wash is so effective, no hand-rinsing is needed. So thorough you get maximum use of both racks since no cut-outs are needed for a wash tube or other washing gimmicks. Superba, Imperial, and Custom built-in models have an overhead Constant Rinse.

Exclusive Flo-Thru Drying
Safe and thorough forced air drying. Fan and air heater are located outside the wash chamber. Sanitized, heated air is gently circulated over, under and around each item. No hot spots as in many dishwashers that have only a heating coil that can bake your dishes.

Exclusive SaniGuard Filtering
The stainless steel fine filter removes food soil from the recirculating water. At drain periods all soft food soil is flushed away. Bones, seeds and other large particles are caught by the coarse filter before they can damage the pump or clog the drain.

Exclusive TriDura® Porcelain-on-steel
KitchenAid wash chamber has 2 coats of premium porcelain enamel plus an overglaze. It stays bright and beautiful. TriDura is extra-tough, immune to hot water, detergents, food acids and odors. Resists abrasion and is scratch, stain and fadeproof.

Merry mélange of bright Christmas ideas

A LOVELY BUFFET TABLE filled with delicious cakes, cookies and the traditional egg nog makes a beautiful centerpiece for your communal feast when enhanced by Dixie's festive red and white plates and matching cups.

Holiday party fun, a cooperative party

Some people call it "pot luck," while others think of it as a gourmet feast. But, whatever you choose to call it, communal entertaining — parties at which each guest brings a favorite culinary dish — is taking the country by storm.

You and your friends might want to try it this holiday season, too. If all of you join forces for the preparations, the holiday party can be bigger and better than ever. Here's how to go about it:

• Decide on your theme. Do you want to serve a complete meal or would you rather just have a variety of desserts and punches?

• Set the date and tell your friends you want to have a communal party to celebrate the holidays. Explain that admission will be a contribution for the table. Encourage them to prepare their specialties, particularly those that have become a tradition in their families!

• Prepare to serve buffet style — it's easier and makes clean-ups less cumbersome. Stock up on pretty Dixie Livingware paper plates and matching cups and bowls. Dixie's cheerful red and white design is a good choice that fits in well with the holiday spirit.

• Get ready to enjoy yourself. The work is minimal and the enjoyment great when every one gets together for a communal feast.

FOR THOSE TROUBLESOME clogged drains that seem to be an inevitable part of holiday entertaining, use Drain Power, the one-second drain opener that contains no lye or acids.

Right on — easier holiday cleanup

Holiday time is traditionally enjoyable, filled with warm memories of old friends and family togetherness. However, it can also be a harrowing period for those responsible for the housekeeping chores . . . from preparing the goodies to cleaning up the mess afterward.

Here are some tips to help make your post-holiday period as pleasurable as your holidays themselves:

• GET ORGANIZED before attempting clean-ups. Do one room at a time, starting with the kitchen and dining room and leaving the bedrooms (the least trafficked area) for last.

• CATCH SPILLS and crumbs immediately. Don't give them a chance to "set" or become ground-in.

• FOR THOSE INEVITABLY CLOGGED DRAINS, use Drain Power, the first pressurized drain opener that does not contain harmful lye or acid. Because it works in about one second, you won't have to put off doing the dishes while you wait for the clog to dissolve. And with all those youngsters around the house, you'll appreciate its safety features.

• HAVE PLENTY of those giant plastic trash bags on hand for the "wet garbage" that never seems to end this time of year.

• ONCE THE MAJOR CLEANUP IS COMPLETED, treat yourself to a vacation from housework — eat dinner out or order lunch in. Pamper yourself when the family routine returns to normal by spending a day at your own private "beauty spa," taking a warm bubble bath, doing your nails and just plain relaxing. After all, you worked hard to make this holiday a special one and now you deserve a "holiday" of your own.

Everybody will want to open this coffee maker

Ever think it will take until "after" Christmas to get your gift list in shape? What will you buy father and Uncle Ned this year. They've both got enough ties and shirts to last forever. Then there's Cousin Julie, mother, your sister and her kids . . .

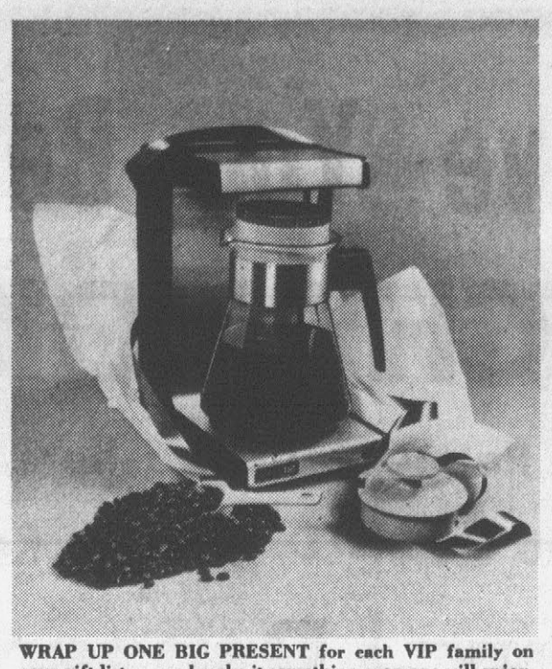
This Christmas, instead of buying lots of little gifts, wrap up a big one for each important family. Make it something everyone will enjoy throughout the year.

Think about putting a drip filter coffeemaker under the tree. The families on your VIP list will love it. Drips are easy to operate — so even a young adult can bring mom and dad coffee on Christmas morning. And they'll be welcome additions to the holiday entertainment scene, when guests drop in for coffee and dessert.

Norelco's 12 cup drip filter coffeemaker brews up 60 ounces in about eight minutes. The unit features a safety glass carafe and comes with 50 standard paper filters. Water temperature and brewing time are regulated to produce consistently good brews.

This coffeemaker is also fine for families who like to enjoy coffee all day long — especially during the chilly winter months. A warming plate keeps the brew at the right serving temperature.

Here's one Christmas present that combines good looks with function. It's styled in black with aluminum and gold trim and fits handsomely on any kitchen counter.



WRAP UP ONE BIG PRESENT for each VIP family on your gift list . . . and make it something everyone will enjoy. Norelco's 12-cup drip filter coffee maker will brew up lots of Christmas cheer as a welcome addition to the holiday entertainment scene.

Tools for Mr. and Mrs. Fix-it

For the do-it-yourself-ers

Hand tools in kit form will simplify the choice of gifts for the home or apartment handyperson. And each time a new project is completed, you'll be remembered as the one who helped make it possible.

Here are some types of kits to look for at your nearby hardware or home supply center. The Weller Mini-Shop, a compact 37-piece toolcase, has a 115-volt powered hand unit and attachments to sand, carve, sharpen or drill wood, metal or plastic.

Crescent has two plastic pouch kits, one with four sure-hold Cushion Grip handle screwdrivers, and a set of three chromium plated adjustable wrenches.

Files are a workbench essential, and Nicholson neatly packages four that can sharpen mower blades, enlarge a hole for a new door lock, smooth a wood or metal edge or surface.

A "piggyback" handle comes with ten Xcelite 3½" long screw and nut drivers in a stand-up plastic case. When the handle is slipped over the end of the handy shorties, they become regular-duty tools.

EVERY HOME HANDYPERSON can become more expert at more repair, maintenance and improvement projects with professional-quality tools like these in handy kit form made by Crescent, Nicholson, Weller and Xcelite.

FRAGRANT IDEA

Bath oil is an excellent Christmas gift for the gals on your list. Aside from its obvious use, it can be for a veil of fragrance sprinkled (sparingly) into a box of loose face powder.

"SCENTSIBLE"

A lovely fragrance is one of the most popular gifts of any season. Christmas is the perfect time to indulge your favorites with any number of heady delights.

HOLIDAY GUIDE

Stop! Christmas cards are always a thrill to receive, but think twice before you rip up and discard those envelopes. They're the best guide you could have to next year's mailing list.

Couples cherish sterling

When a newly engaged or young married couple is involved in furnishing that first tiny apartment, one of the most welcome Christmas gifts of all is something beautiful for their new home.

Sterling silver splendidly qualifies as a much-wanted and appreciated gift, especially these days. For solid silver's not only a cherished possession that lends elegance and a special-occasion quality to entertaining, but a gift of great intrinsic value — value which is likely to increase over the year. This happy fact sets sterling apart from those household possessions which depreciate rapidly, need repairs, or go out of style.

Sterling silver, you know, is solid silver through and through. Use can never "spoil" it, for those tiny lines that gradually appear on the surface of the metal blend together to form a soft, lustrous patina that makes beautiful silver even lovelier.

The extreme durability of sterling not only offers a lifetime of enjoyment, but insures its future as a family heirloom — a precious possession to be handed down to the couple's children, who will use and enjoy it in turn.

One of the nicest things about giving sterling is that it's so easy to choose when you know the girl's pattern, and that it offers such flexibility in size. The gift can range anywhere from a number of place settings down to a single, shining piece.

Even one teaspoon is greatly valued, and precious to the bride-to-be or young hostess who's collecting sterling. "Just one piece" can make a great big difference, for instance, when a young hostess is setting a buffet table. Those extra teaspoons or salad forks make it possible for her to entertain more guests than usual when she's planning a relatively uncomplicated party such as a dessert buffet.

Individual serving pieces are good gifts, too. Indispensable items such as the lemon fork, pickle fork, sugar spoon and bon bon spoon are small, but undeniably elegant, gifts.

Gift-givers who think in terms of several place settings will find the special purchase plans carried by many stores particularly convenient. These plans offer time payments for sterling purchase, often with no interest or carrying charges.

It should be noted, too, that the increasing simplification of menus and recipes has served to reduce the size of sterling place settings today.

PRECIOUS METALS are more precious than ever these days — and sterling gifts such as these promise both a lifetime of enjoyment and value for the future. Individual serving pieces such as the pierced tablespoon and pie or cake server shown, place settings, or individual place pieces are all marvelous gifts for young couples.

Put your foot down for RAND.

Gifts of sight and sound fun to give, to get

Sound gift-ideas from Santa's sleigh

Radio good for giving

In almost the last three decades, Americans have purchased more than 870 million radios.

The favorite in this huge family of receivers is the portable.

Since the tiny transistor made smaller and more specialized radios possible, the "carry-about" has developed great appeal as a personal gift item. It may well be the answer to some of the names on your Christmas gift list.

As a basic, most portables tune the standard AM and FM broadcast bands.

In addition, other receivers, including all of Zenith's multibands, tune the 161.55 to 162.55 MHz section of the Public Service High Band (PSB-HI). These bring the listener around-the-clock broadcasts of weather news at the touch of a button and turn of a knob if the set is within range of any of over 70 National Weather Service Stations in the U.S.

They dot our coastline all the way from Anchorage at the north, Corpus Christi to the south, Miami to the east, and Hyannis and Portland in the northeast, and our inland largewaterways. Mid-America also has a share of these VHF government weather stations.

With such a service at one's fingertips, anyone who is a weekend hiker or cyclist or other outdoor lover can benefit from forecasts of temperature, wind velocity, hazardous weather warnings, and news of various travel conditions. Even the picnicker not too far from home can be helped.

International radio lets you turn world on

A deluxe gift item that opens the door to a big, wide world of entertainment, information, and news is an FM-AM international short wave portable radio.

With such a set, like Zenith's Trans-Oceanic with its 11 tuning ranges, the owner may listen to domestic broadcasts as well as many international broadcasts from the continents of Europe, Africa, Australia and South America, or the Asian subcontinent; play-by-plays or reports of international sports events; the overseas Voice of America; and a wealth of other programs. Reception, of course, will vary by geographic location, atmospheric conditions, and other phenomena affecting short wave reception.

The Trans-Oceanic is ideal for the hobbyist, linguist, journalist, armchair traveler, sportsman or those who enjoy hearing directly what is going on in different parts of the world.

SPARK WITH SPRIGS

To spark up a holiday home, ask your local florist for some sprigs of eucalyptus. These dried branches make an attractive arrangement, and their fresh, almost pine-like fragrance will freshen the rooms for months.

FUN FOR ALL THE FAMILY TO SHARE is a new model big screen color television set like this 25-inch diagonal receiver. Furniture-styled set, from Zenith, provides brilliant pictures, solid state dependability, one-knob electronic VHF, UHF channel selection. Cabinet top and ends of maple veneers and select hardwood solids. Decorative front, base — of matching simulated wood material.

Music soothes . . . seriously

FOR THAT SOMEONE SPECIAL who takes his music seriously, this high-performance modular stereo set by Zenith combines an AM/FM/Stereo FM tuner/amplifier with a record changer, and 8-track tape player/recorder. Two Allegro speaker enclosures complement the Ultramodern style of the wedge-shaped main unit. All cabinets are of simulated wood with a grained walnut finish.

Digital clock radios serve users day and nighttime

Looking for a Christmas gift-idea that offers its user a host of welcome services? Then select a clock radio.

The most modern of these receivers has the digital clock with large easy-to-read numerals as a replacement for the conventional clock face. Most are illuminated for nighttime viewing.

Some of the features to look for when shopping include: AM and virtually drift-free FM reception from a single set; two alarms — a radio alarm and a buzzer alarm. These allow the sleeper a choice of the way he wakes up — to a favorite radio program, or to a favorite program closely followed by an insistent buzzer. Each alarm, of course, goes off at the pre-set time.

Some clock radios from Zenith have what is called target tuning. When the station is tuned for best reception, a tiny red light-emitting diode lights up to "tell" you so.

Some other advantages are a lull-you-to-sleep switch; Weather Command, a front-of-the-set button for instant selection of the U.S. Weather Service Band if the government has one of its weather stations in your area; plus a down-firing Circle of Sound speaker. This provides the listener with music radiating 360 degrees around the set.

Be sure the clock radio you select is solid state. The reward: instant play, cool operation, greater reliability, low energy usage and longer life.

Choose a digital clock radio for a gift and chances are you will be getting around-the-clock thank you's for your thoughtfulness.

Brighten Yuletime at your house with a new color TV set

If you would like to do your Christmas gift shopping in practically one-stop style this year, then brighten the holidays at your house with a new, advanced color television set.

When making a selection — and here Zenith has some down-to-earth helps for you — be sure to choose a screen size that is large enough to "fit the family" . . . whether it numbers two or ten.

Be sure that you get a set with an all-solid state chassis. The reasons: it runs cool, lasts longer, conserves energy and so saves money.

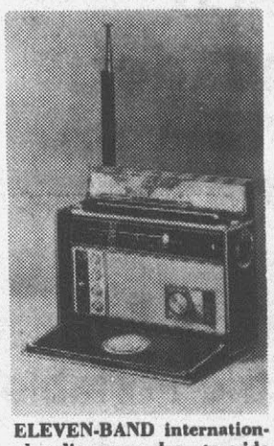
Some color TV sets have gone even one step further. They have a combination: a solid state chassis and what is labeled a Power Sentry. This uses a magnetic voltage regulating system that produces typical energy consumption which is only 130 watts in large screen sets. It also keeps receiver performance uniform and increases reliability under varying household voltage conditions.

Look for one-button color tuning and electronic tuning with a single knob for channel selection of VHF and UHF. These keep knob twisting to a minimum, and make operation of color sets easier than earlier receivers without them. Ask the dealer to demonstrate.

Remote control is another desirable feature. Some systems have a mechanical hand control with pushbuttons. The newest provides an electronic, six-button and six-function unit that introduces a ZOOM close-up picture to home television. Ask the TV salesman to show you how it works. Then, do it yourself.

Since about one-third of industry color set sales this year are expected to be replacements, manufacturers have placed strong emphasis on console receivers and sets to meet virtually every decorative requirement. Furniture styles include: Mediterranean, Early American, Contemporary or Modern, Ultramodern, Transitional, Country English, Country French and French Provincial.

TO PLEASE THAT SPECIAL SOMEONE on your Christmas list, why not give a versatile small screen black-and-white TV portable? This 9-inch diagonal Zenith plays anywhere within signal range — indoors on AC, outdoors on the 12-volt battery of a car, or (shown above left) on an optional, rechargeable battery. Cabinet colors are ebony, white and avocado.



ELEVEN-BAND international radio opens door to wide world of entertainment and information. By Zenith.

Bing's Christmas Special

CHRISTMAS SHOW — Bing Crosby is joined by his family — wife Kathryn, daughter Mary Frances, and sons Harry (left) and Nathaniel — for his Christmas show, which has Fred Astaire as the special guest star, Wednesday, Dec. 3 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire, two men whose literally legendary names identify them around the world with a particular brand or artistry, will appear together for the first time on television in the Bing Crosby Christmas special to be presented Wednesday, Dec. 3, 9 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 9 & 11.

In the musical special, which marks Crosby's 40th consecutive Christmas show since he began the tradition on radio in December 1935, the multi-award-winning title star will be joined by his wife Kathryn and their three children, sons Harry and Nathaniel, and daughter Mary Frances, in addition to special guest star Astaire.

Despite the numerous acclaimed specials they have each done individually, Crosby and Astaire have never before appeared together on television, although they co-starred in two motion pictures, "Blue Skies" and "Holiday Inn." On the special, Crosby will sing a song that he introduced in that latter film in 1942. The ballad "White Christmas," has become the largest selling record in the history of the music business and, as part of Crosby's "Merry Christmas" album, sells more than a quarter-million copies annually.

That and Crosby's other recordings have sold more than 300 million copies to date, another world record, for which the "Groaner" received the American Music Award in 1974, adding it to his numerous other honors, which include an Oscar for the film "Going My Way" and a Peabody Award presented to him in 1970 "for outstanding service to broadcasting."

The Crosby Christmas special will be produced by Gary Smith and dircted by Dwight Hemion from a script by Buzz Kohan.

President's Wife Makes Cameo Appearance

Mrs. Betty Ford, wife of the President of the United States, has been filmed for a special television cameo appearance to be shown after the first of the year on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," seen Saturdays (9 to 9:30 p.m.) on CBS-TV. Producer Ed Weinberger flew to Washington, D.C., for the informal filming, which took place in an off-White House location recently.

Mrs. Ford will be appearing in an episode written by James McDonald and Robert Gerlach. The First Lady was filmed in a tight closeup while on the phone, talking to Mary Richards, played by series star Mary Tyler Moore. The conversation occurs at the end of the 30-minute comedy episode as the tag of the story. The actual dialogue is "privileged" for now as it would give away the comedy surprise of the plot.

Mrs. Ford was filmed by herself for her part in the episode, although Miss Moore was coincidentally present in Washington on personal business.

Salute Comedy And Rock Music

Cher salutes slapstick comedy and rock music with guest stars Jerry Lewis and rock singer - composer David Essex, on "Cher," Sunday, Nov. 30, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Musically, Cher performs solos of "Sing" and "Rhinestone Cowboy," joins Essex for a duet of "The Long and Winding Road," and Essex performs a solo of "Hold Me Close."

In comedy sketches, Lewis plays a beleaguered moviegoer having his first encounter with an all too realistic "feel around" film; Cher as an Indian princess and Lewis as a Jewish sheriff fracture the cowboy genre; and Cher and Lewis pantomime two poor souls who find each other on a park bench.

Valley Forge Inhabited By Chilly Actors

The hardships endured by Washington's troops at Valley Forge in the winter of 1777-78 were partly duplicated by those suffered by the actors in the Hallmark Hall of Fame production of Maxwell Anderson's play, "Valley Forge," in the late winter and spring of 1975—at least as far as being cold was concerned.

Early exteriors were shot while there still was snow on the ground and the troops were authentically dressed in 'ragtag and bobtail.' Their costumes were liberally dotted with rips and holes strategically placed to let in the wind.

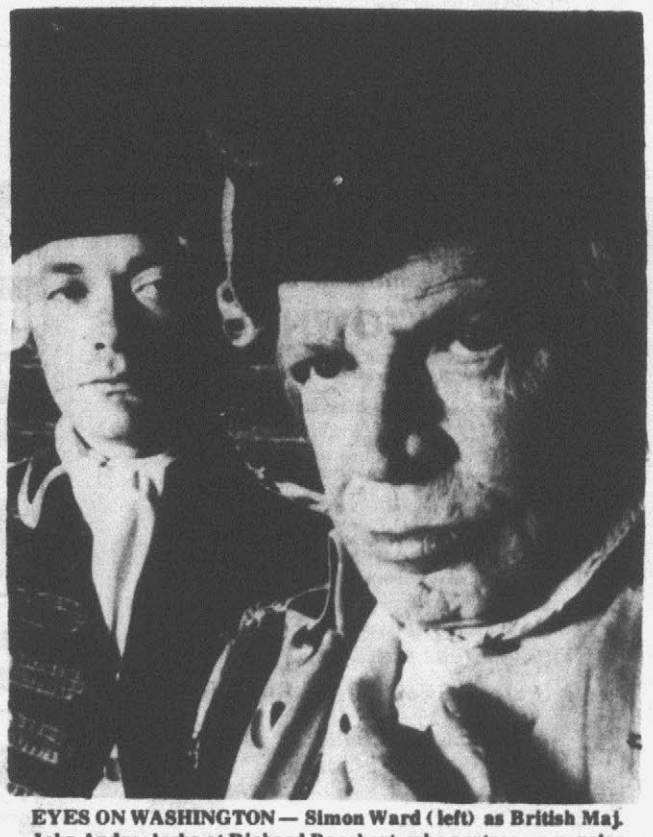
Later shooting in the studio brought little relief since the temperature was kept low enough to produce steaming breath. Real fires burning in the sets' fireplaces did minimal good because heat, along with smoke was whooshed away by an efficient air conditioning system.

Richard Basehart, who stars as George Washington in the teleplay which will be seen Wednesday, Dec. 3, 8 to 9:30 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7, was better clothed but still worse off than the character he portrays because his feet weren't used to the tight boots of the period. "I don't know whether to laugh or cry," he said, "They're killing me."

The last scenes of the special were shot in a drafty barn during one of the coldest Aprils in recent memory. The howling wind on the sound track was the real thing, not special effects. In this location, at least, the chilled actors got some comfort by burrowing into the hay.

Lady Luck apparently was smiling on the production, however, because shortly after the last shot, when everyone was safely back at the studios, a near - tornado complete with golf ball - sized hailstones struck the location.

Co-starring in the special as Washington's British adversary, Gen. William Howe, is Harry Andrews. Simon Ward appears as Howe's aide, Maj. John Andre. The play focuses on events which lead Gen. Washington to hold a fateful meeting with Gen. Howe, who demands the Continental Army to lay down its arms.



EYES ON WASHINGTON — Simon Ward (left) as British Maj. John Andre, looks at Richard Basehart, who portrays a pensive Gen. George Washington, in "Valley Forge," the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" Bicentennial drama special to be colorcast on Wednesday, Dec. 3 (8-9:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Series Moves To ABC

The highly acclaimed series, "The Edge of Night", moves to ABC-TV on Monday, Dec. 1, with a special 90-minute presentation at 3 p.m. Thereafter, it will be seen Monday thru Friday, on ABC.

One of television's top-rated daytime serials since its inception in 1956, "The Edge of Night" has the distinction of winning an Emmy Award in 1973 as the Best Daytime Dramatic Program, the first such award ever made by the Television Academy. In addition, the series' writer, Henry Slesar, won an Emmy Award in 1974 for Best Daytime Writer.

The story is centered in the fictional midwest city of Monticello and revolves around the crime detection work of two attorneys, Mike Karr, and his partner, Adam Drake. Mike is a permanent member of the city's Crime Commission and has a devoted wife, Nancy, and a daughter from a previous marriage, Laurie, Adam, a widower, lost his wife some time ago in an incident where Adam was to be the victim of a "Hit" by the city's mob.

Intertwined within the larger framework of the mystery-crime drama are vital personal conflicts of the people of Monticello.

The special 90-minute episode will present the entire cast of "The Edge of Night" in an expansion of the current storyline and subplots of the series, allowing viewers to become familiar with the characters, background and theme of the suspense drama. The specially written show will also introduce several major dramatic events affecting key characters and the continuing storyline for months to come.

Popular daytime actress Maeve McGuire will return to "The Edge of Night" in her original role of Nicole Travis Drake. Nicole's reappearance, after a mysterious absence of 18 months, will have a profound effect on the life of her husband, Adam. Miss McGuire was most recently seen in the series, "Beacon Hill."

Starring in the series are Forrest Compton (Mike Karr), Donald May (Adam Drake), Ann Flood (Nancy Karr), and Mandel Kramer (Police Chief Bill Marceau).

A Solid Detective Story

FRUSTRATED — Walter Matthau and Bruce Dern (l to r) are police detectives frustrated by a mystifying search for a mass murderer whose victims included a fellow officer in "The Laughing Policeman," a television premiere on the "ABC Sunday Night Movies" Sunday, November 30 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Walter Matthau stars in a taut tale of the senseless slaying of nine people on a San Francisco crosstown bus in "The Laughing Policeman," a television premiere on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Nov. 30, 9 to 11 p.m., Ch. 3-5-12.

Critic Judith Crist said, "those who like the 'old-fashioned' detective film, where the emphasis is on detection rather than on blood and guts and violence, will find satisfaction in this film . . . Matthau gives a beautifully low - keyed validity to the detective whose instinct is his guide . . . . a solid, rewarding detective story."

Co-stars Bruce Dern and Lou Gossett were also applauded by the critic: "Bruce Dern is excellent as his younger, harder partner and Lou Gossett brings admirable cool to another associate."

Police detective Jake Martin (Matthau) is a loner almost totally alienated from his family and friends by his devotion to work. When one of the nine victims on the bus proves to be his longtime police partner he reluctantly accepts the assistance of young Leo Larsen (Dern) in investigating the background of every victim.

A Seal By Any Other Name

As everybody knows, "a rose is a rose is a rose." Or so the story goes.

But a seal is not a seal is not a seal is not a seal. Well, if a seal is not a seal, what is it? A seal is a sea-lion. And a bear. And sometimes named Sammy.

One particular seal, or sea-lion or bear, stars in "Sammy, the Way-Out Seal," a special two-hour comedy presentation airing Sunday, Nov. 30, 7 to 9 p.m., on "The Wonderful World of Disney," NBC Channel 6-7.

Actually, the show is mistitled because Sammy is not a seal. He is a California sea-lion of the type normally seen performing in circuses. These sea-lions are considered to have powers of understanding that far exceed even those of dogs.

Centuries ago, Sammy's descendants were land dwellers and related to the bear family. At one time they were even called sea-bears. They earned the name sea-lion from sailors who thought the bulls, whose shoulder hair stands up like a mane when dry, looked like lions.

And their speed is deceptive. Most people think of sea-lions as fat creatures lumbering around on short, stubby flippers. In truth, sea-lions — given the proper terrain — can cover ground as fast as a running man. And they often climb steep, rugged cliffs to gain heights.

Underwater they are as graceful as ballet dancers and love to play. Few California scuba divers have missed the experience of having one cavort around him. But they flee in a panic whenever their mortal enemy, the killer whale shows up. Once, a pack of the whales appeared off the coast of La Jolla, a famous Southern California resort, and the sea-lions in their frenzy to escape dahsed out of the water, across the beach and ended up dodging traffic in the main street as they continued their frantic flight to freedom.

But usually they lead less hectic lives. And one thing can be said about them, whether they are on land, in water, in circuses or on television — they are fun.

PRESIDENTIAL ODDSMAKERS

Senators George McGovern (D.-S.D.) and Barry Goldwater (R.-Ariz.), both of whom will be guest commentators on ABC-TV's coverage of the national political conventions, made early predictions of the conventions' outcomes recently on "Good Morning America."

Sen. Goldwater stated: "I think that Hubert Humphrey is going to be the nominee of the Democratic party, and it's going to be a real race between Reagan and Ford. I think Ford will probably tip the scale."

"Butterflies Are Free"

Academy Award winner Goldie Hawn stars as a would-be actress, whose friendship with her next-door neighbor turns into romance which leads to increased self-awareness for both, in "Butterflies Are Free," a warm comedy, which is to be rebroadcast Dec. 1, on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies", 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7. Eileen Heckart and Edward Albert also star.

Hawn was named Best Supporting Actress of 1963 for her performance in "Cactus Flower" and Heckart received the Best Supporting Actress Oscar in 1972 for her portrayal of the domineering mother in 'Butterflies.'

The 1972 Columbia release is based on the long-running Broadway play (1,128 performances) of the same name.

Well received by critics, the film was praised by the San Francisco Chronicle as "... a funny, harsh, moving, smart, tender and memorable picture"; Saturday Review? "... a touching and valid experience"; Cue magazine: "... a gentle, genial and entertaining movie."

In the film, young aspiring actress Jill Tanner (Hawn) befriends her next-door neighbor, Don Baker (Albert), who is 20 years old and blind. Impressed by Don's lack of self-pity and sense of humor, Jill offers him moral support when he tells her that he has finally gotten away from his domineering mother and he now hopes to establish a songwriting career.

The rapport between the two is all but shattered when Mrs. Baker (Heckart), breaking a sworn vow not to interfere during Don's first month of independence, invades the apartment and insists that her son return home.

Leonard Gershe wrote the screenplay, based on his stage play. Milton Katselas directed. M. J. Frankovich was producer. The song, "Take Me Home, Country Roads," is by John Denver.

("Butterflies Are Free" is an adaptation of a popular Broadway play. Because it is a sophisticated love story, we suggest you consider whether the program should be viewed by young people or others in your family who might be disturbed by it.)

HELP FROM A FRIEND — An aspiring actress (Goldie Hawn), responding to the wit and independence of a blind youth (Edward Albert), decides to help him gain independence fom his domineering mother in "Butterflies are Free," a comedy on 'NBC Monday Night at the Movies" Dec. 1 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Ed McMahon Discusses A Near-Tragedy

"I decided to save the most valuable thing I could think of — me!" Ed McMahon was sitting in his office above NBC's Studio One in Burbank, Calif., waiting for the taping to begin on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," on which he regularly appears. He was thinking about a near - tragedy which occurred Wednesday, Nov. 5, when his Marina del Ray (Calif.) apartment was gutted by fire.

"Strange," Ed continued, "but in a crisis you think of the oddest things. I had just come out of the shower and I thought I smelled smoke. Then I thought it was something else. As I walked past my study, I heard a crackling sound and when I looked, there were flames all over the room.

"Somehow I thought there was a fire hose in my outside hallway and I went to look for it. Now I had been in that apartment for three - and - a - half years and always thought the hose was there. But it wasn't. I rang the fire alarm and grabbed a bathrobe.

"It's a helpless feeling to see your home go up in flames. It seemed like an eternity until the firemen arrived — actually it was only minutes. Seconds seemed to pass like hours. I wanted to save 'something,' but decided against it."

According to firemen attending the blaze, Ed made the right decision.

NUTRITIOUS COMMERCIALS

Stephanie Braxton, who portrays Tara Tyler on "All My Children," drinks a great deal of milk on her new TV ad, while castmate Matthew Anton (Tad Gardiner) munches away on Fritos in his new commercial.

Rob Reiner Is Experienced

Not many people script their own weddings, but actor-writer Rob Reiner did it twice.

The first time was for his real-life nuptials to actress Penny Marshall and the second time was his television marriage to Gloria Bunker on the popular comedy series "All in the Family," in which Reiner co-stars as Mike Stivic. Reiner and his writing partner, Philip Mishkin, wrote a two-part flash-back story, in which Mike and Gloria get married, to be rebroadcast on Tuesday, Dec. 2, and Tuesday, Dec. 9, 9:30 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 9 & 11.

"Writing my real-life wedding was easier than writing for the number one series on television," says Reiner. "Penny and I could just say what we felt, without being concerned with time limitations or getting laughs. Getting married as Rob Reiner, was much scarier than getting married as Mike Stivic."'

Reiner and Miss Marshall planned their entire wedding ceremony and reception right down to insisting on serving Chinese food at the reception, an affinity Reiner carried over to his fictional character, and one of the few similarities in the two weddings.

Both Reiner and the character Stivic also agreed on the idea that they should have a say in their weddings. This was no problem for Reiner, because the families involved thought it was a splendid idea that the young couple make all the decisions regarding their wedding. For Mike and Gloria, however, the opposite was the case in that their families practically ignored their wishes. As a matter of fact, there was so much consternation in the Bunker house on who should perform the wedding ceremony and where it would take place, that Mike walked out and the wedding almost didn't occur.

But a compromise was found, thanks to writers Reiner and Mishkin, and now Gloria and Mike are happily expecting their first baby.

4077th Unit 'Relocates'

The unbridled 4077th "M-A-S-H" combat surgeons, who recently had a change in command, will now 'relocate' to another night - and will be seen, beginning this week, on Tuesdays from 9 to 9:30 (CBS Channel 9).

Ambivalent Hot Lips Houlihan (Loretta Swit), who is torn between her passion for boy friend Maj. Frank Burns and her desire to be an example of sterile efficiency to her fellow nurses, will make the move along with the other zany characters of the popular series.

Perhaps the zaniest of all is the eccentric, dress-wearing Cpl. Klinger, whose number one concern is to get out of the Army.

Because of his unique role of Cpl. Klinger, Jamie Farr has the dubious distinction of having the most extensive wardrobe of any of the seven "M-A-S-H" regulars. "I have at least 50 dresses to select from.

"Everytime Loretta wears something new, or anything feminine, I'll come by and say, 'Isn't that one of mine?'" Farr laughingly continues, "Everytime I try on something new in Lady's Wardrobe, they all 'oohh and ahhh' and applaud."

How does Farr accept playing a soldier who spends his time wondering whether his seams are straight? Especially after playing King Lear at the Pasadena Playhouse when he was 17?

"With the greatest of pleasure," he says, considering the twenty years it's taken to finally become a name.

"Never in my wildest imagination did I ever think something like this would happen. I remember at one point, I even thought about giving up acting. You know, I figured success just wasn't going to happen to me. It had passed me by."

The years of struggle - as frustrating as some of them were - did do some good, he believes. "For one thing, it gave me the maturity to handle my success when it finally came. And also, because I was around for so long, I didn't have to test for the part or anything. They just said 'get him.'"

In real life, Farr has no interest in changing places with any female. He's happily married and the father of two kids: Jonas, 6, and Yvonne, 3, and they live quietly in their home amid the peaceful California country surroundings.

Would he change this image of a dress-wearing corporal?

"Are you kidding?" he said. "I love it!"

Antique Dealer Changes

The discovery of a body in the back of a pickup truck temporarily turns a Gypsy antique dealer, Roman Grey, into a sleuth in "The Art of Crime," a mystery-adventure drama special to be colorcast Wednesday, Dec. 3, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

Ron Leibman stars as Roman Grey. Jose Ferrer is special guest star; David Hedison, Jill Clayburgh and Eugene Roche are guest stars.

Roman Grey, a sophisticated and respected New York City Gypsy who is an antique dealer, is stunned to learn from Police Det. Sgt. Harry Isadore that fellow Gypsy Nanoosh Pulneshti is wanted for questioning in a homicide case. When Nanoosh is arrested at his niece's wedding, Roman — believing in Nanoosh's innocence — sets out to clear him. He goes to upstate New York to see arrogant antique dealer Beckwith Sloan, his daughter Hillary and her fiance, Parker Sharon. In the course of his stay, Grey comes up with incriminating evidence.

On-location filming for "The Art of Crime" took place in New York City, including sections of the East River Drive, the Rockefeller Center area (for views of St. Patrick's Cathedral), the Lower East Side and Stanten Island, as well as at the Guggenheim estate on Long Island. Interiors were filmed at Universal Studios in California.

Leibman, whose stage credits include "Prometheus Bound," "We Bombed in New Haven" and a recent production of "Room Service," has appeared in such movies as "Slaughterhouse-Five" and "The Super Cops." He made his film debut as George Segal's brother in "Where's Poppa?"

Ferrer, currently before the cameras for the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" dramatization of "Meeting at Potsdam," won two Tony Awards (for "The Shrike," as actor and director), and received the 1950 Best Actor Academy Award for his performance as "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Hedison starred in the TV series, "Five Fingers" and "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea." His film credits include "The Enemy Below" and "Thanks for the Use of the Hall." Clayburgh had a leading role in the Broadway musical, "Pippin."

ON THE TRAIL OF A CRMINAL — Ron Leibman a Gyps. antique dealer, rides around the grounds of a house belonging to an art dealer he spsects of homicide in "The Art of Cime," a special to be colorcast on Wednesday, Dec. 3 (9:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Devon Erickson Is Happy To Be Skating

Devon Ericson believes that the person responsible for casting her in her current television role is a good skate — despite the fact that there are some chilling aspects to the assignment.

To date, the multi - talented, 21-year-old actress has guest starred in seven major television shows. And even though her work included two movies for television and a pilot for a new series, Devon believes that her role as Lilly Degley in the "ABC Afternoon Specials" presentation, "The Skating Rink," is her best part so far. The realistic and moving story of a teenage boy who rises above his handicap of stuttering by developing his skill and talent as an accomplished skater, will air Wednesday, Dec. 3, 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

"It's the only role in which I am able to both act and skate," she said. And those are two pursuits at which Devon excels.

Stephen McHattie To Portray Late Actor

Stephen McHattie, a New York - based actor, stars in the title role of "James Dean, Portrait of a Friend," a two-hour NBC World Premiere movie to be colorcast next year.

"James Dean, Potrait of a Friend" was written by William Best, who was a roommate of Dean before the actor became a star in the early 1950s. Dean was killed 20 years ago in an auto crash. The film is being produced by the Jozak Co. in association with NBC-TV and will be filmed at southern California locations.

On Broadway, McHattie had roles in "The Iceman Cometh" and "Mourning Becomes Electra" and starred in "The American Dream." He also appeared in numerous off-Broadway productions and played the tour - de - force role of Milo Tindle in a production of "Sleuth" in San Francisco last year.

As a member of the Stratford, Ontario, Shakespeare company, he was featured in "Measure for Measure" and "Tarfutte."

Daytime Changes

One of television's all-time popular nighttime comedy series, "All in the Family," will be presented in selected rebroadcasts in the daytime schedule beginning Monday, Dec. 1, on CBS, it was recently announced by B. Donald Grant, Vice President, Daytime Programs. The series will be seen Monday through Friday from 3 to 3:30 p.m.

In making the announcement, Grant pointed out that "All in the Family" will provide a strong lead-in to one-and-a-half hours of comedy entertainment in the afternoon, followed by the popular "Match Game '75" and "Tattletales," both of which fall into the category of comedy entertainment within a game format with celebrity guests. He also said that the addition of the series will help balance the schedule which begins with one-and-a-half hours of game show programs in the morning, followed by three hours of serial fare.

Grant also said that the week of Dec. 1 would mark other significant daytime programming events on the Network.

Lucy's Tough Taskmaster

"Lucy is a tough taskmaster," growled Jackie Gleason as he heaved his somewhat pared-down, but still substantial, bulk out of a creaking canvas chair to answer the summons of his beckoning co-star. "She would have made a terrific top sergeant."

The Great One and Lucy are working together for the first time in "A Lucille Ball Special Starring Lucille Ball and Jackie Gleason," to be presented Wednesday, Dec. 3, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

"I hate rehearsals," boomed Gleason. "That's the only hard part about working with this dame. She rehearses over and over and over again."

Gleason recalled that rehearsals were "very casual" on his own shows. "Carney and I worked together so long that we acted by instinct," he said. "We wouldn't have done a scene the same way twice, anyway."

But lucy is a perfectionist, Gleason admits with unconcealed admiration. Returning to his chair, after running through a scene again — and yet again — he groaned, "She's a nut on rehearsing." With an affectionate glance at his still-working co-star, he added, "That's what makes Lucy such a terrific success."

When asked for an assessment of comedy, Gleason responded with: "When you have a feeling that you want to duck, you know it's wrong."

Actually, he says he has no definition of good comedy. "If you analyze it or define it, it stops being comedy." Characterization, he believes, is a key to comedy. "If you have the character, the comedy will follow naturally."

Whatever the definitions, or lack of them, it was obvious on the set of the special that those two old pros, Lucy and Gleason, have the magic. Their first professional pairing attracted not only the rapt attention of their own crew but visits from other actors and technicians from nearby sets.

Crew laughter through one segment ruined three takes, forcing director Charles Walters to make an unusual request. "Please," he begged, barely stifing his own amusement, "Don't laugh."

COMBINE TALENTS — Lucille Ball and Jackie Gleason combine their comedic talents for the first time when they star together in "A Lucille Ball Special Starring Lucille Ball and Jackie Gleason," a one-hour trilogy of comedy dramas, to be broadcast Wednesday, Dec. 3 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

'That' Reindeer Comes A' Calling Again

Rudolph, the beguiling if rather unusual reindeer with the incandescent nose that lights Santa's way through the bad weather, will again demonstrate his navigational prowess in the traditional Yuletide special, "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," to be rebroadcast Wednesday, Dec. 3, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 3N-9-11. Burl Ives narrates the special and is heard as the voice of Sam the Snowman.

"Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" is a seasonal musical story based on the perennially popular song of the same title by Johnny Marks. It recounts the tale of a shy reindeer whose Christmas spirit is dampened because his shiny nose has made him the laughingstock of all Christmasville. Desperate to escape the ridicule, the little deer runs away in the company of an elf named Hermy.

Pursued by the Abominable Snowmonster, the escapees flee to the island of Misfit Toys in the Arctic wilderness where Yukon Cornelius, a prospector they meet along the way, comes to their rescue. Returning to Christmasville, they learn that bad weather may cause Christmas to be cancelled. But Rudolph's headlight-his illuminated nose-saves the situation and serves as a beacon to guide Santa's sleigh.

The story's action is provided by the use of puppets "brought alive" through the technique of dimensional animation.

Marks composed seven additional songs for the special: "Holly Jolly Christmas," "Silver and Gold," "We Are Santa's Elves," "We're a Couple of Misfits," "Jingle Jingle Jingle," "There's Always Tomorrow" and "The Most Wonderful Day of the Year."

Others providing voices are Billie Richards (Rudolph), Larry Mann (Yukon Cornelius), Alfie Scopp, Stan Francis, Paul Soles, Janet Orenstein, Paul Kligman, Corinne Connely and Peg Dixon.

Promise Is Fulfilled

"I won't dance. Don't ask me."

Those familiar lyrics sung by Fred Astaire in the 1945 hit musical, "Roberta," were prophetic, it turns out — although it took some 40 years for the prophecy to take hold.

Now in his 70's, Astaire — still agile, still spirited, still urbane — has lost none of his enthusiasm for snow business and leads a very busy life for a "semi-retired" performer. But he has put aside strenuous dance routines in favor of straight drama.

New Series Premieres

Premiering Thursday, Dec. 4, from 8:30 to 9 p.m. on NBC Channel 7, is "The Cop and the Kid," co-starring Charles Durning and Tierre Turner.

Durning, who will portray Officer Frank Murphy in the new series, feels that he learned much of what he knows about acting from watching James Cagney movies. "When people ask me, I tell them I din't go to school—I learned directly from Cagney."

He did go to school, but an instructor at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts urged him not to pursue an acting career, because of his height and weight-5-feet-8 and 200 pounds. Discouraged, Durning dropped out of acting for more than a decade and became a jack-of-all-trades. Over the years he worked as a bouncer, boxer, cabbie, elevator operator, waiter, construction worker, night watchman and iron worker—a few of the 67 different jobs he had in that time.

Durning's interest in actor never waned, and in 1962, he auditioned for "The Andersonville Trial," and was hired to join the touring company, which starred Brian Donlevy.

His film credits include, "The Sting," "The Front Page," "Dog Day Afternoon," "The Hindenburg," "Walter and Harry Go to New Yrork" and "Heartbreak Pass."

Durning received an Emmy nomination for his performance in "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom." Other TVcredits include appearances in numerous series and made-for-TV movies.

Tierre Turner, relatively 'young' to the field of acting, received an Emmy nomination in his first co-starring performance in a "McCloud segment. He will portray 'the kid,' Lucas Adams, who is 'adopted' by Officer Murphy.

With the cancellation of "Doctors' Hospital," George Peppard will definately undergo surgery for a deviated septum in his sinuses immediately following the holidays.

Norman Lear, the man behind "All in the Family" and so many other top-rated shows, will have eight series on the air at mid-season, one of which will be syndicated. In addition to 'Family,' Lear is associated with "Maude," "Good Times," "The Jeffersons," and "Sanford & Son," and has as new entries, "One Day at a Time," "The Dumplins," and the syndicated "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

June Pointer, plagued for quite a while by mental and physical exhaustion, has ended her live performances with the Pointer sisters, though she may resume writing and recording if she's well enough. June's been performing only occasionally with sisters Bonnie, Anita and Ruth during the past two years.

Perez's Stint Was A Stepping-Stone

"The role of God was heaven - sent for me," says Jose Perez, who stars as Hector Fuentes, in the comedy series, "On the Rocks," which airs Thursdays, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on ABC Channel 5.

In the series, Perez is playing a role quite different from the one he created as a steambath attendant who happened to be God, in the PBS drama, "Steambath."

An actor since the age of ten, Perez found that his career was going slowly until he was tapped to play the deity in the Bruce Jay Friedman play.

Perez has many stories to tell relating to that portrayal.

"I came to Hollywood from New York to do the production," he relates. "At the time, I did not realize that the jay - walking laws were so stiff in Los Angeles — quite different from those in New York. As I was dodging traffic while crossing Hollywood Boulevard a policeman stopped me and asked me for identification. I explained that I had left my wallet in my hotel room and just had enough cash for dinner expenses. We got to talking and he asked me what I was doing in Hollywood. I said, 'I'm an actor from New York and I'm playing the role of God.' The policeman looked at me and said, 'Oh yeah, and I'm Santa Claus in disguise.'"

LUCILLE NOW CASTBOUND

Lucille Wall (Lucille Weeks on "General Hospital") suffered a bad fall and crushed her kneecap. She is currently in a cast that encases her from hip-to-ankle.

An Editorial For A Little Girl

A particular letter was written shortly before Christmas, 1897. But it could have been written today or just about anytime.

Virginia O'Hanlon's letter to the editor of the New York City Sun newspaper produced one of American journalism's most famous editorials, whose opening lines read: "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus."

That story of the editorial and the girl whose letter prompted it are the subjects of a special animated presentation, "Yes, Virginia, There Is a Santa Claus," Friday, Dec. 5, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on ABC Channel 3W-5-12.

Virginia's quest to learn the truth caused her to write the letter, even after finding herself the object of ridicule from her school chums - non-believers in Santa Claus.

The little girl's search took her to local businessmen, police and her father, who finally told her: "If you see it in The Sun, it's so."

The editor who answered the letter was Francis Church. At first Mr. Church passed up answering, but he later changed his mind. Church wrote:

"Yes, Virginia, There is a Santa Claus. . .he exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there was no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias."

Yes, the story of Virginia O'Hanlon and her famous letter to the editor is true. And not only did she believe in Santa Claus, she later became a teacher and instilled that faith in children for all the years of her life.

In the presentation, nine-year-old Courtney Lemmon, daughter of actor Jack Lemmon, does the voice of Virginia. Also supplying voices are Jim Backus, Louis Nye and Sidney Miller. The title song, "Yes, Virginia, There is a Santa Claus," is done by another nine-year-old, Jimmy Osmond, youngest of the singing Osmond Brothers.

TRUE STORY — The charming cast of the Emmy-winning Christmas special, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus," returns for an encore presentation on ABC-TV, Friday, Dec. 5 (8-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12. Narrated by Jim Backus, the program relates the true story of Virginia O'Hanlon whose unswerving belief in the existence of Santa prompted a warmly moving editorial in 1897 from Frank Church of the New York Sun.

Butler Owes All

Tommy Butler recently had a part in a "Sanford and Son" segment, "Sanford and Rising Sun." On the same night, he opened as the star of a play at Los Angeles' Huntington - Hartford Theatre. He owes it all to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

On the eve of King's assassination, Butler, a professional singer, became ill while appearing at a hotel in Lake Tahoe, Nev. He went to his room, turned on the television and heard King deliver his "I've Been to the Mountaintop" speech. "It haunted me," he said, "so much so that I felt like I had to do something to pay tribute to this great man."

Butler wrote a play about the life of King titled "Selma." In his pitch to get someone to produce it, he read excerpts from the play. Everyone who heard him suggested that he play the part of King.

Finally, the Inner City Repertory Center in Los Angeles, a community theater, produced "Selma" with Butler in the starring role. Redd Foxx, star of "Sanford and Son," saw the play and immediately decided to sponsor it.

Foxx made arrangements to move the play to the larger Huntington - Hartford Theatre and also arranged for Butler to play a role on "Sanford and Son." But Tommy will have to wait for the rerun season to see his television debut — he was busy playing Martin Luther King when the "Sanford and Son" segment was telecast.

A Timely Touch

Three - time winner Chuck Jones couldn't have known, while writing "A Very Merry Cricket," that the animated holiday season special would prove so timely.

A sequel to Jones' widely acclaimed "The Cricket in Times Square," airs Friday, Dec. 5, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Connecticut's tiny genius, Chester C. Cricket, is persuaded to return to New York City to bring peace and good will with his violin - like music in "A Very Merry Cricket." He is completely overlooked by the people of the city who are in a hurry to get Christmas over with, until Manhattan is blacked out by a power failure.

In "A Very Merry Cricket," Chester's city friends, Harry the Cat and a mouse named Tucker, go to Sunnyslope, Conn., to find him. "The winter wonderland of Conn. in the film wasn't really planned that way, it just happened," commented Jones. "We used it to make New York look ratty when the three friends return there - as a contrast. Besides," he added, "I think a red train moving across a white countryside is quite lovely."

Jones insists on believability for his animated characters and views fantasy as involving only a slight variation on reality.

So, it is not surprising to Chuck Jones that "a tiny cricket galvanizes New York City and brings it to its 'senses' with his beautiful music."

Violinist Israel Baker performs as guest artist in "A Very Merry Cricket" as he did in "The Cricket in Times Square."

Polish Rock Star On Show

Poland's biggest rock star, Niemen — who sings, composes, arranges, plays piano, Moog and mellotron and so far has sold 8,000,000 records — will get his first exposure in this country on NBC news' "Weekend" Saturday, Dec. 6, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., on NBC-TV.

SERIES REBROADCAST — Danny Kaye stars in "Danny Kaye's Look-In at the Metropolitan Opera," to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Festival of Lively Arts for Young People" series Saturday, Dec. 6 (5 to 6 p.m.) on CBS-TV. In the "Look-In" Kaye introduces audiences to the myriad elements employed in an operatic production.

Look-In At The Opera

"Danny Kaye's Look-In at the Metropolitan Opera," a 60-minute special starring the world-wide comedian introducing school-children to the myriad technical and artistic elements called upon to produce an opera, will be broadcast on "The CBS Festival of Lively Arts for Young People" series, Saturday, Dec. 6, 5 to 6 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Employing his comedic artistry, Kaye imbues his young audience, composed of schoolchildren from the New York, New Jersey and Connecticut area, with an appreciation of opera. Although Kaye has conducted similar presentations at the Metropolitan since 1972, this special broadcast represents the first time a "Look-In" was presented to a nationwide audience.

Guest starring on the special are Beverly Sills and Robert Merrill. Other Metropolitan artists appearing include Judith Blegen, Adriana Maliponte, Rosalind Elias, Cynthia Munzer, Charles Anthony, Jose Careras, Enrico DiGuiseppe, Robert Goodloe, Richard Best, Edmond Karlsrud and James Morris. James Levine conducts the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra.

With the whole Met as his oil, and his own bottomless bag of comic turns, Kaye will preside over what Metropolitan mezzo-soprano Regina Resnick once called "an operatic laugh-in."

"GO-USA"

Dunston, director of an orphanage, entrusts a traveling medicine pitchman, Joseph Ladieu, with the task of taking a young orphan boy, Marion Fewsmith, to his new foster parents in "Go Away Kid; You Bother Me," a drama set in the 1850s which will be colorcast on NBC - TVs Bicentennial series, "Go - USA" Saturday, Dec. 6, 12:30 to 1 p.m.

During the three - week period in which he travels with Ladieu and the carnival, Fewsmith becomes adept at helping the pitchman and hopes to stay with him.

TO L. MILLER, GREENVILLE, VA.: (Lots of others, too!) Paul Glaser and David Soul ("Starsky and Hutch") are both bachelors who are interested in everything relating to life. They like to strum guitars and enjoy riding their motorcycles. Incidentally, this isn't a new relationship . . . they've been good friends for about 8 years now.

TO B. MCGUIRE, WINSTON-SALEM, N.C.: According to my sources, Jeanne Cooper (Kay Chancellor or "The Young and the Restless") was never a member of the "As the World Turns" cast.

TO D. BIGHAM, ROCK HILL, S.C.: The Lettermen sing the theme song for "The Y & the R." Check with your local record shop to see if their recording is available.

TO M. K., STAUNTON, VA.: There was a 'bit of friction' among "Another World" cast members that eased once Jackie Courtney exited. All is sunshine and roses for the beauteous blonds on the "One Life to Live" set, I'm happy to report.

TO A. MUSE, WAYNESVILLE, N.C: Claude Akins ("Moving' On") was born in Nelson, Ga., and has been acting since his debut in a church play at age 5. A graduate of Northwestern University, Claude's an avid golfer. He, his wife 'Pie,' and their three teen agers live in Northridge, Calif.

Notable Exception

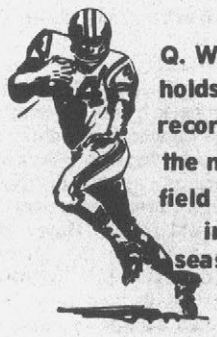
What do Lassie, Rin Tin Tin, Flipper, Flicka, Fury and Gentle Ben have in common besides being animal stars of their own network television series? The answer: extinction. The animal adventure series seems to be an endangered species on television. But there is one notable exception, the only such series on network television today: "Run, Joe, Run" on NBC-TV Saturdays, 10:30 to 11 a.m.

The heyday of the animal adventure series was in the late 1950's and early '60's. In a six-year period, 1955-61, animal lovers could follow the weekly adventures of the three champions of the genre, "Lassie" (on for 16 years), "Fury" (on for 11 years), and "Rin Tin Tin" (on for 7 years), as well as "National Velvet" and "My Friend Flicka." In those days, animals were as popular as doctors and lawyers are on today's television.



Q. Who holds the record for the most field goals in a season?

A. Jim Turner kicked 34 in 1968 with the New York Jets.

POWERFUL FOOT— Garo Yepremian of the Miami Dolphins gets his powerful left foot into gear in order to boom another field goal. Miami meets inter-division rival New England on Monday Night Football, on Dec. 1 at 9 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Yepremian Is Valuable 'Foot'

Field goal kickers in the game of professional football are clearly a different breed, much in the vein of basketball's big men and relief pitchers in baseball. Garo Yepremian doesn't even look like a football player and he didn't even go to college. Yet the 5 foot-6½ inch, 155 pounder frightens the daylights out of opposing teams, and sends chills of delight through the rabid Miami Dolphin fans. The Dolphins go up against inter-division rival New England on Monday Night Football, Dec. 1, 9 p.m. on ABC.

Despite the curious fact that he has never made a touchdown, never made a tackle, and never completed or caught a pass, Yepremian has helped to revolutionize the game. The management of the NFL moved the goal posts 10 yards back to the end line, making it more difficult for Garo and his field-goal kicking cohorts to earn a living.

The Dolphin has made one 'tackle' in his nine-year career, when Reggie Rucker, then of the Patriots, was running back a kickoff and accidentally ran into Garo. "My physique terrified him," he insists.

Another belated effort almost cost Miami a Superbowl, when he threw an end-over-end pass into the waiting arms of Mike Bass of the Washington Redskins, who promptly turned it into a touchdown.

Alex Karras, who will be sharing the mike with Frank Gifford and Howard Cosell, recalls when the native of Cyprus broke in with the Detroit Lions.

"First of all," Alex notes, "they had to tell him which part of the goal posts to kick it through. The rest of us stand out there all afternoon getting multiple contusions and lacerations and then this little character who looks as if he escaped from Disneyland runs out and boots the ball through for the only points and runs off the field yelling, 'I keek a touchdown!' It's enough to make you cry."

Yet, when Yepremian booms those long field goals, few people laugh. After spending his youth playing soccer in his native Cyprus and in England, he enjoyed a spectacular season with the Lions. In one game against Minnesota in 1966, he kicked an NFL record six field goals, including four in one quarter. In 1971, he led the league in scoring with 117 points and made all thirty-three of his extra-point attempts. That same season, he won the longest game in pro history against the Kansas City Chiefs with a 37-yard field goal at 22-40 of overtime.

Garo's most amazing statistics rest in his overall consistency. Before the 1975 season, he had missed only three extra point attempts in almost 230 tries. Add to that his field goal accuracy of better than 65 percent, and you begin to realize just how important the diminutive left-footer is to the Miami Dolphins' cause.

Runners Are Featured

When the University of Arkansas and Texas A & M hit the turf for their annual Southwest Conference battle, all eyes will be turned towards the two respective offensive backfields, because both schools feature two of the most outstanding running backs in the country. Don Forte of the Razorbacks and Bubba Bean of the Aggies will lead their respective teams on the NCAA Game of the Week, to be televised on Saturday, Dec. 6, at 4 p.m. on ABC.

Both backs hail from the state of Texas, and both are rushing at record - setting paces. Bean is attempting to break both the Southwest Conference and A & M records for yardage, an amazing feat considering the fact that he carries the ball about half the number of times of normal super - runners. Last year, Bean traveled for 938 yards in only 158 carries, a whopping 8.6 yard average.

'Ike' Forte is Arkansas' all - purpose back. The Texarkana, Texas native led the team in rushing and total offense last season with 674 yards, ranking second in the conference. He also enjoyed the best individual rushing performance in the Southwest in 1974 when he carried the ball 32 times for 215 yards in a season - ending win against Texas Tech. Forte was second in team scoring with 60 points, and second in team receiving.

Ike is an intense competitor and an excellent blocker, as evidenced when he carried the ball nine straight times for all 65 yards in a final touchdown drive in that memorable effort against Texas Tech. This season, he already has 900 yards and nine touchdowns, leading the Razorbacks in both categories.

Bubba Bean is one of those inspired players who wants to prove himself every time he puts on a uniform.

"What can I say about Bubba?" comments Aggie backfield coach Donnie Wigginton. "You can't ask for more than Bubba gives you."

"Doubles" Matches Super Players

CBS-TV Sports will broadcast live "Love Doubles," a two - of - three set event featuring the pixie of the women's tennis circuit, Chris Evert, and flamboyant Jimmy Connors, teaming up to take the court against out-spoken Billie Jean King and premier doubles play, Marty Riessen, in a special edition of "CBS Sports Spectacular," Saturday, Dec. 6, 3 to 5 p.m.

Pat Summerall, host of "CBS Sports Spectacular," and Tony Trabert, former Wimbledon champion and captain of the U.S. Davis Cup Team, will be the commentators for the match, to be played at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Although he has lost in the finals of this year's Wimbledon and Forest Hills Championship, many still consider Jimmy Connors the top-ranked male tennis player in the world. In 1974, at the age of 22, he won 99 of the 103 matches he played, collecting more than $285,000 for his efforts. Among his victories were Wimbledon and the United States and Australian national championships.

At 5'10" and 150 pounds, he probably has the most consistent, well - rounded game in tennis. Using quickness, superb conditioning and total concentration, Jimmy has helped to revolutionize the sport. He specializes in a two-fisted backhand, which he hits with tremendous force.

"My first instinct is to hit the heck out of the ball," says Connors. "I'm still learning to control that. If you're serving down 30-40, you don't play like it's 40-love. You just try to get the first serve in."

On taking advantage of angles, Connors says, "You've got to use the open court. If my opponent and I are both at the base line, I'm going to hit cross-court to his backhand, and if he hits back to my forehand, I'll go down the line. If he returns that, my next shot might be a short, top-spin drive back across court. That way I've always got him running."

Chris Evert, who is Connors' on - again - off - again companion, is a great player in her own right, perhaps the greatest female player in the world. She won 15 tournaments in 1974, including Wimbledon and the French and Canadian nationals, collected more than $250,000 in prize money and was named Associated Press women athlete of the year.

She has a powerful ground stroke that is exceptionally accurate, and also utilizes a two-fisted backhand and an excellent forehand.

TOM PLAYS TIM & JOCKO

By day Tom Berenger plays Tim Siegel on the daytime series, "One Life to Live." At night he's Jocko de Paris in the New York production of "End as a Man." In 1952, Ben Gazzara starred in the role of Jocko, a performance which brought the actor into great prominence.

NBC To Cover WCT Series

NBC Sports will provide live coverage, beginning February 15, of 10 Sunday matches in the WCT Challenge Cup series, with eight of the world's top - ranked tennis players vying for $320,000 in a true winner - take - all round - robin tournament.

"The WCT Challenge Cup, continuing as it does NBC's long - standing association with World Championship Tennis, will provide viewers with top - flight tennis entertainment in a unique format," said Carl Lindemann Jr., Vice President, Sports, NBC - TV.

Defending WCT and Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe leads the elite eight - player field, which also includes Australians John Newcombe, winner of the 1974 World Championship Tennis singles crown; Ken Rosewall, the 1971 and 1972 WCT titlist; Rod Laver, holder of two Grand Slams; and John Alexander, in the WCT Finals at Dallas two years running.

Bjorn Borg, the talented Swedish youngster; temperamental Ilie Nastase of Rumania; and Mexican Raul Ramirez round out the list of competitors.

Presidential Hopefuls To Guest On Shows

Two presidential candidates, Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, will be guests on TV shows Sunday, Nov. 30.

Carter, Democratic Presidential candidate and former Governor of Georgia, will be the guest on "Face the Nation," which will air from 11:30 a.m. to 12 noon. The interview will originate live in Washington, D.C.

CBS News Correspondent George Herman, moderator of the weekly broadcast, and two other reporters (to be selected) will interview Carter.

Later in the afternoon, Ronald Reagan, who will challenge President Gerald Ford for the 1976 Republican Presidential nomination, will be the guest on the ABC News series, "Issues and Answers," 1:30 to 2 p.m.

Bob Clark, "Issues and Answers" Chief Correspondent, and ABC News Special Correspondent Frank Reynolds will interview Reagan, a conservative and former Governor of California.

Since leaving the Governor's office, Reagan has been criss-crossing the country speaking at Republican fund-raisers on conservative positions. A native of Tampico, Ill., the former film star and sportscaster is a critic of dente with Russia and favors a balanced federal budget, an income tax cut and a transfer of most of the federal welfare programs to the states.

The program will originate live in Los Angeles.

Wants Something More

Dionne Warwicke has a successful career, a happy family and a batch of gold records. But she wants something more.

What she wants is a master's degree in music.

And when she isn't recording, touring in concert or appearing on television, she studies for the degree at the Hartt School of Music at the University of Hartford. When she can be, Miss Warwicke is a student. The rest of the time, she's an entertainer.

And she's an entertainer of the first order when she appears on "In Performance At Wolf Trap" Saturday, Dec. 6, at 9 p.m. on UNC - TV.

The concert, like all of the specials in the "In Performance" series, was taped as it was presented at Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts.

Miss Warwicke's Wolf Trap concert was part of a hectic summer - time cross - country tour.

FOR LADIES ONLY

(only if they want to know what their men really want)

We have a special warm spot in our heart for a girl who is interested in getting him something he wants. When you buy his Christmas shirt or sport jacket, you'd like it to be with-it, in his kind of way. Come chat with us. Tell us what he likes. What he feels good in. What colors he goes for. Maybe we can help you select something he'd choose himself. He'll appreciate it. And he'll appreciate how aware you really are.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR MARILYN McCOO of The Fifth Dimension

Who are your closest show-business friends?—K.B., Lynchburg, Va.

● As a group, and also as individuals, we haven't got many. Our traveling leaves us very little time to make friends. And when we do have some hours to spare, we like to spend it with those who are good buddies. They're the best. Since we became famous, we've found that new friendships tend to be superficial. Quite often they result from your position. If you're successful, everyone wants to be your friend. If you're not, they don't.

FOR MELANIE GRIFFITH

Both you and your mother, Tippi Hedren, are actresses. How well do you get along together?—N.H., Medford, Ore.

● We're definitely good friends. And I think it's because of the way I was raised. My mother never tried to run my life . . . she's never interfered. We've always had a great relationship. I suppose it's something not every mother and daughter have . . . but ours sure is nice!

FOR JEANE DIXON

Do you believe in astrology?—Dr. Finley, Wyckoff, N.J.

● Of course I do! And I am thankful to the Lord of all the stars for the guidance I have found in them. But the stars are only one factor in determining the course of our lives. Each of us has a free will, and so we use astrology best when we learn from it how to shape our own destiny under Divine Guidance.

FOR FRANKIE VALLI

I know you're friendly with Frank Sinatra. How does he rate with you?—M.S., Van Nuys, Calif.

● As far as I'm concerned, for what Frankie's given the world, he can't do wrong. When he walks out on that stage, I'm in "seventh heaven." I wish I knew why so many people want to put him down. Frank's helped so many people, always without publicity. How could such a great performer have reached the point where the public delights in hearing negative things about him? It must be jealousy.

FOR SENATOR WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D.–Wis.)

Does the stock market indicate the real condition of business in this country?—A. Kravitz, New York, N.Y.

● The stock market is too erratic to depend on. It is one of the worst indicators of economic conditions. Forget it. Instead, look at these really indicative figures: Gross National Product, employment and unemployment, industrial production, prices (both wholesale and retail) and farm income.

FOR ANN-MARGRET, star of "Tommy"

Do you have any advice for gals who want to ride a motorcycle but feel too chicken?—Gloria Ward, Mankato, Minn.

● The only way to do something is to go ahead and do it. Most first-times are scary, like plane trips, ski jumps . . . but the second time around is great. The excitement of that first bike ride will overcome your fear of it. It's a terrific way to travel (I should know, I have ten motorcycles); it's exhilarating and works off tension. And it's a marvelous attention-getter.

FOR BISHOP FULTON J. SHEEN

Is today's permissive society responsible for low religious interest and empty churches?—P.H., Asbury Park, N.J.

● Let me answer this way: Do you think a bank robber would want to have the flashlight of a policeman on his face as he was trying to break into a safe? Anyone who is guilty of adultery, immorality, dishonesty, graft and pride does not like to have the white glare of Divinity shining upon him and revealing his defects.

FOR ROY SCHEIDER, star of "Jaws"

You always seem to be in action films. Do you prefer them?—N.S., Albany, N.Y.

● Yes. I've had good training for them. I grew up in a tough neighborhood in Orange, N.J., and found that boxing was a good outlet for my hostilities. I made my stage debut in "Romeo and Juliet" in 1961, and I'll tell you something, Action thrillers are easy compared to Shakespeare. I'd much rather give a punch (or get one) than memorize a long speech from "Hamlet."

FOR BARBARA CARRERA, actress

I just saw you in "The Master Gunfighter." Where have you been all my life?—W.K., Austin, Texas

● Well, I used to be a model. Would you believe how I got the role? Delores Taylor (the movie's executive producer and wife of Tom Laughlin, my co-star) was leafing through a magazine. She saw my picture, and that was it. They located me in Cannes, and I flew back to Hollywood for a screen test. Before that, my only acting experience was as a Chiquita banana in a TV commercial.

Robert Redford

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Why don't you ever write about Robert Redford? After all, he won your popularity survey this year!—B.P., Savannah, Ga.

● Redford doesn't enjoy talking about himself. He feels his movies should stand on their own merit. Jim Spada is writing his biography and told him that everyone he spoke to had nothing but praise for Redford. Replied Redford: "That's because they're afraid some day someone will write a book about them, and the author will come to me for a quote . . ." He can't understand why anyone should devote two years to him as a book subject, and he doubts the end result will be worth it. He's self-deprecating and humble. An all-round athlete, he likes to ski and play tennis and basketball. His wife, Lola, heads a group called Consumer Action Now, and he's involved in that, too.

Five Leading Washington Newswomen Take a Look at The Ford Style of Doing Things

President and Mrs. Ford set the mood: Openness on her part, "easy-does-it" on his.

"I have to smile when I see Susan Ford running around the White House in blue jeans and a jersey pullover. . . . At last we have White House children who act as if the White House is home."—Helen Thomas, U.P.I. Bureau Chief

What is the atmosphere at Ford's White House? Have things changed all that much since the Nixons? The Kennedys? How are the parties? Is the White House really that open to reporters now?

FAMILY WEEKLY went to five top women writers, who have been White House watchers through many administrations, for their view of the First Family. What are the most important or colorful changes you've seen? we asked. This is what they said:

YMELDA DIXON

Columnist, Washington Star.

Not long ago, I was at Betty Ford's White House on the occasion of a state dinner for Walter Scheel, the visiting president of West Germany. Mrs. Ford and her florist had pulled out all the stops. The big planters in the Great Hall were jammed with cauliflowers and grapefruit and Boston lettuce, which wilted by 10 P.M. In the East Room, the mantels sprouted delphinium and asparagus arrangements tied with what looked like a torn pale blue sheet. Said one reporter, "It would be all right in Southampton or Jamaica or Grand Rapids—but in the White House?" And a Congressional wife was overheard to say, "Let's face it, the only one with class was Jackie."

I took exception to this. I said that was true only if your criterion for "class" was decorating the White House for elegant entertainment. I pointed out that Lady Bird Johnson might not embody this type of "class" either, but she will be remembered as long as the flowered parks she created around the country continue to beautify our land.

I think probably the greatest change I've seen under the Fords has been the party-time decorations. Their very first Christmas, the Fords retired the traditional Christmas decorations in favor of lots of trees and plants decorated with plaid ribbons and ornaments with a patchwork quilt design. The Noel party for the press featured two free-flowing bars and lavish buffets, and it went on till all hours. It may not have been a "Kennedy-type" party, but a lot of us appreciated it.

VERA GLASER

Columnist, Knight-Ridder Newspapers.

The greatest change that I see around the White House is in political style. Jerry Ford's old-shoe political style is refreshing for a reporter bruised by Nixon's hobnail boot. Or put another way, Ford's White House is like your friendly neighborhood drive-in. Not as efficient as Nixon's hostile fortress, maybe, but it sure makes points with me.

Shortly after Ford became President, I asked him about 1976. Nixon would have played that one "close to the vest" until the last minute, but Ford said candidly he was in the race. Access to Ford's recently opened campaign office is easy, unlike 1972, when Nixon's receptionist asked for my I.D.

Ford's relaxed political style includes his outspoken, independent family. That means he's living dangerously. Take Jack Ford, who criticized Nixon when it could have hurt Jack's father, then Vice President. When Susan Ford reportedly said she dislikes reading, it caused a flap among the intelligentsia. Most recently, members of the Ford family have commented frankly on abortion, premarital sex and the use of marijuana, and each comment has triggered a national explosion. Compare that with Tricia's maintaining to the end that Nixon was hanging on to the Watergate tapes to "protect" the office of the Presidency!

Ford appears more secretive than Nixon in only one area—religion. For the past seven years, Ford has held weekly prayer sessions with three old friends from Congress. Now they meet in the Oval Office, usually on Wednesdays. So private are these meetings that they never appear on Ford's calendar. They were carefully kept out of print until I recently managed to pry the story loose. Nixon, by contrast, held splashy East Room services, featuring high-powered clergy and musical talent, complete with media coverage.

"Ford's White House is like your friendly neighborhood drive-in. Not as efficient as Nixon's hostile fortress, maybe, but it sure makes points with me."
—Vera Glaser, Columnist

Another thing. Nixon was protected from personal contacts and daily chores by a "gaggle" of aides. Ford is a guy who picks up the phone and calls his tailor when he needs shirts. Old college friends and skiing buddies say Ford is accessible, usually returning their calls within 48 hours. Ford has been criticized by members of both parties for not "igniting" the country as John Kennedy did, but I think an easy-does-it attitude may be what Watergate-weary Americans prefer for a while.

HELEN THOMAS

The first woman manager of U.P.I.'s White House bureau. She is currently writing her memoirs based on her life as White House correspondent from the Kennedy era to the Ford Administration.

The Ford Administration is livelier and more open than its predecessor—but not all that open! It is true that Ford is more accessible than Nixon was (Ford has been averaging about two news conferences a month, plus personal interviews), but he stunned me recently when he laid down a new law excluding reporters from covering social events, with the exception of state dinners. Traditionally, these have been viewed as newsworthy happenings.

The President gives parties every week—in fact, several a week. He mingles with hundreds of guests. I feel that when he gives a reception like the one he gave for 120 mayors or the party he gave for the American Society of Newspaper Editors, we reporters should be there. Anything could happen, and we should be there as witnesses. The President has told me he doesn't like "the inhibiting presence of notebooks and microphones," but I'd hate to see us go back to the Kennedy era when Jackie once had us hiding behind potted plants.

Other than on this point, the President and Mrs. Ford are more gracious in their hospitality than the Nixons. The relaxed attitude is even reflected in the attitude of the Secret Service and other White House assistants. But nowhere is it more obvious than among the Ford children. I have to smile as I see Susan Ford, 18, running around the White House in blue jeans and a jersey pull-

The tough team to join has no second string.

When you're a Marine, you're a starter. And it's not because we're small. It's because we've got a rule: every man as good as the next. It's all Varsity, doing things right the first time. It's an attitude every Marine shows in his training, his job, his skills, his appearance and the pride he takes in wearing the uniform. Officer and enlisted alike. That's how we work. The same goes for the way we play. It means competition. Tough competition in sports like basketball, volleyball, bowling, tennis, golf, softball, wrestling, boxing, judo, track and field, football and fencing. The Marine Corps sports program provides for competition in varsity, interservice, national and international meets like the Pan-American games and the Olympics. And the program helps develop champions like Lieutenant Lloyd Keaser, the 1973 World Wrestling Champion at 149.5 pounds and the 1975 National Greco-Roman Champion. Remember this: we're looking for a few good men. So if you've got what it takes to make our team, we guarantee you won't be a benchwarmer. over, taking pictures with the rest of the White House photographers. Tricia and Julie Nixon would never have let the press see them dressed like that. At last we have White House children who act as if the White House is home.

BETTY BEALE

Columnist for the Washington Star and Field Newspaper Syndicate. (Socialite Betty Beale caused a tizzy among her neighbors recently when the President and Betty Ford popped in for dinner—with Secret Service men, walkie talkies, ambulance-rescue trucks, uniformed policemen at the doors, the works.)

History is being made at the White House and Betty Ford is making it as the First Lady who dared to be herself. For the first time in memory, we have a First Lady who does not bow to political expediency, presidential advisers and people who write letters to the editor.

I recall when Betty Ford first showed her unusual independence by going to Los Angeles to lobby for the Equal Rights Amendment for women. At that time she deplored being automatically linked with "women bra burners."

Even so, I never really thought I would hear a First Lady talk in public so frankly about family life in the White House. The truth is, Betty Ford is addicted to telling the truth, and she will tell it whatever the consequences. To be this kind of woman requires a special kind of husband, and the President is just that—a man who lets each member of his family be an individual.

Jerry Ford is also the kind of husband who enjoys good natural banter with his wife, and even being playfully put down by her in public. Not long ago, when he got up to speak at a party for about 300 people at a private club, Betty jumped ahead of him and grabbed the microphone as if she were going to speak. As he watched, open-mouthed, she said, "Excuse me, didn't you know I was going to make the speech?" Then she laughed and sat down.

Ford, recovering quickly, grinned sheepishly and said, "The way she's been going lately, I really was starting to take her seriously."

As one who has covered the White House through several administrations, the First Lady's frank and effervescent personality is like a fresh breeze. The fact that she answers frankly on any subject and does not run away from a question as past First Ladies did, makes her an exciting person to be around.

There may not seem to be much similarity between a Betty Ford and a Jackie Kennedy, but I can think of one way they're similar. It took a First Lady with Jacqueline Kennedy's confidence to convert the stiff, white-tie affairs of previous administrations into exhilarating gatherings of relaxed people having a good time. Jackie replaced white tie and tails with black tie and dinner jacket; she tossed out the huge formal U-shaped table, and instead placed guests at comfortable round tables.

"Betty Ford is making it as the First Lady who dared to be herself."—Betty Beale, Columnist

President Nixon restored white tie garb and the big cumbersome U-shaped dinner table with the President and First Lady stiffly facing the bulk of the guests from their high-backed chairs.

But now, I'm happy to say, the round tables are back. The Fords have come full circle, back to the relaxed style of the Kennedy era. And Betty has played a big part in that change.

CLARE CRAWFORD

Washington staff correspondent of People magazine and TV talk-show host.

The most refreshing thing I can say about the White House these days is that hardly anyone, except the Fords, knows the names of all the Ford children. In days gone by, people were more familiar with John-John, Caroline, Lynda, Luci, Tricia and Julie than anyone wanted to be. Perhaps the Ford White House reflects the country's attitude toward its President, an attitude of friendly restraint.

Another area in which I have seen great change over the years is in the attitude toward the press. And the attitude of the press. Let me explain. . . .

The media covers two White Houses. There's the West Side where the President's Press Secretary deals with national and international issues, and there's the East Side where the First Lady's staff keeps the press informed about the social side of the First Family. As I see it, the Kennedys were great at exploiting the social power of the White House. So were the Johnsons. In fact, I've often thought that the Johnsons were the most successful "professional peasants" in memory. They served chili-con-queso under the Lincoln portrait and frugged to rock music until 3 A.M.

The Nixons weren't as elegant as the Kennedys or as friendly and folksy as the Johnsons. But they were efficient. They used White House invitations to pay off political debts and managed to get more people in and out of the White House as guests than all the previous administrations combined.

The Ford Administration has not yet developed a distinctive entertainment style. Mrs. Ford's cancer operation grounded her for a time, but now she and the President stay on and dance and mingle with their guests—quite the opposite of the Nixons.

While all this has been happening on the East Side of the White House, the pace of foreign and domestic events has become more intense on the West Side. We've had the Bay of Pigs, the Vietnam War, the Great Society, the Cambodian Bombing, Watergate, the Nixon Pardon. This has caused reporters to become more intense. In the Kennedy years, the press was just another political weapon to be manipulated. In the Johnson era, reporters were also manipulated, but they were also either loved or reviled.

Under Nixon, the media was ignored and scorned like the wolf at the door, until it blew down his house of sticks. Now, under Ford, reporters are regarded as a great force you have to be nice to, but which is probably going to misinterpret what's happening. The Ford White House seems to think it's better to try to influence the press than to follow Nixon's policy of giving them as little information as possible. "Might as well give them all the stuff we can" pretty much sums up the Ford attitude.

Covering the President and his family has gone from being almost a personalized job when I first went to the White House in the '60's, to group journalism and news-by-handout today. Personalized journalism meant reporters were covering supposed friends. Group interviews and handouts mean no one really knows what's going on. It's an imperfect media covering an imperfect President for an imperfect and frequently disinterested electorate!

Try These Fresh Apple Pastry Squares!

FRESH APPLE PASTRY SQUARES

2½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 egg yolk
Milk
1 cup crushed corn flakes
8 cups (2 qts.) peeled, cored, sliced tart apples
⅔ cup sugar
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 egg white, stiffly beaten
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1-2 tablespoons water

1. Preheat oven to 400°F.
2. In large bowl, stir flour and salt together. Cut in butter with pastry blender until crumbly.
3. Beat egg yolk lightly with fork in measuring cup. Add enough milk to egg yolk to make ⅔ cup.
4. Stir milk into flour mixture; mix with fork to blend, stirring until mixture holds together and cleans side of bowl.
5. Divide dough into two parts. Roll half of dough to line a 15½ x 10½ x 1-inch pan. Place dough in pan, pressing down lightly, to form bottom crust.
6. Sprinkle bottom crust with corn flakes.
7. In large bowl combine apples, sugar, ginger and cinnamon; stir to mix. Spread apple mixture over bottom crust.
8. Roll out remaining half of dough and place on top. Pinch edges of dough together to seal. Brush stiffly beaten egg white over top crust.
9. Bake 50 to 60 minutes or until golden brown. Combine confectioners' sugar, vanilla and water smoothly to make frosting. Let pastry cool slightly, then frost while crust is still warm. Cut into squares. Makes 16 servings

*The best apples for our Fresh Apple Pastry Squares would be Cortland, Rhode Island Greening, Baldwin or Northern Spy.

Can You Gauge Your Personality Adjustment?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People with a high I.Q. tend to be better adjusted.
2. If you have a well-adjusted personality, you're seldom likely to feel lonely.
3. There is a physical difference between a normal person and a neurotic person.

True or False? People with a high I.Q. tend to be better adjusted. (See number 1.)

4. The frequency with which you recall your dreams provides an index to how well-adjusted you are.
5. How a person's eyes behave when he sees someone he likes or dislikes provides a clue to his personality adjustment.

ANSWERS

1. True. Many psychological studies show that intelligence and a well-adjusted personality tend to go hand in hand. British studies of a random selection of men and women over 65 years old show that people with above-average mental ability are the least likely to suffer neurosis or deterioration of intellectual powers in old age.

2. True. Studies show that the well-adjusted individual experiences loneliness less frequently. He can feel alone without feeling lonely. People with neurotic tendencies, however, frequently feel lonely, even in a crowd. According to a study in West Germany, neurotic subjects suffer more severely from loneliness and feel lonelier than those who are well-adjusted. This difference is highly significant since, by assessing the loneliness factor in each subject, it was possible to diagnose neurosis with an accuracy rate of 78 percent. The study also revealed that neurotics are less communicative and less willing to attempt to make new contacts.

3. True. Psychological studies show that the neurotic person typically suffers from chronic physical tension, while a normal person does not.

4. True. Studies at Britain's University of Keele, which evaluated the findings of leading investigations, showed that one who recalls dreams often is likely to be more at peace with himself and more sensitive to his own inner feelings. On the other hand, it was found that lack of dream recall strongly suggests "that the individual is experiencing at least a moderate amount of personality conflict."

5. True. It's called "pupillary response." The extent to which a person's pupils enlarge when he sees someone he likes, and grow smaller when he sees someone he dislikes, tells a great deal about his personality. High pupillary activity ("Boy, did his eyes get big when he saw that blonde!") is an indication of good personality adjustment. According to studies, pupillary reactions are much less pronounced in neurotic people.

IMPORTANT

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN TELL YOUR GEMFIRE DIAMONDS ARE NOT CHEAP COSTUME JEWELRY.

A. Count the facets. Gemfire stones all have 58 facets – just like expensive diamonds prepared by diamond cutters.

B. Examine your stone in a dimly lighted room. It should sparkle like in daylight. Gemfire stones sparkle even in the moonlight.

C. Study your ring under a powerful magnifying glass to look for flaws. Gemfire stones have clarity – are flawlessly perfect. No specks! No blemishes! No cracks!

D. Gemfire stones are so hard you can actually scratch your initial in glass with them! Prove it to yourself.

Words And Pictures

Words and pictures don't begin to show the beauty, brilliance, and fire of these magnificent rings. That's why we want you to wear them and judge them on their own merits — not on what we tell you. See if your friends and family can tell them from an expensive "natural" diamond worth 100 times as much. In all probability you can fool them if you want to. Not many people can tell these brilliant simulates from the expensive real ones. Yet now you can own these beautiful rings at amazingly low prices.

Low Price Doesn't

Mean Low Quality. These simulated diamonds are not cheap fakes. In fact, they are carefully cut and polished by skilled craftsmen in the same manner as natural diamonds. They have 58 facets — just like natural diamonds. They are hand set in heavy 18Kt-HGE (heavy gold electroplate), or solid sterling silver by master jewelry craftsmen. They shine like a $1,000 diamond — but cost you less than $20.00.

An Exciting Gift For Someone Special

These exquisite rings make a much appreciated gift for a special someone in your life. They will last a lifetime. Give for birthdays, anniversaries or just as a wonderful surprise. And even if you choose to tell your loved one will be amazed and proud that you were clever enough to find such an expensive-looking ring at these remarkably low prices. The difference between it and a natural diamond could make a down payment on a new car, or home, or even a wonderful vacation for just you two!

Even Millionaires

Wear Simulated Diamonds. Today many wealthy people, TV and movie stars feel unsafe making public appearances wearing expensive jewelry. Oftentimes they keep their diamonds in a safe deposit box and wear simulations. Now you too can wear these master-crafted simulated diamonds and impress your friends!

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

CARAT (CT)—a measure of weight for a diamond—however, Diamonites are given approximate carat values based on size (not weight). A 1-carat Diamonite is approximately the same size as a 1-carat diamond.

HEAVY GOLD ELECTROPLATE (HGE)—this mounting uses karat gold (either white or yellow) that is electrically bonded to the mounting after it is formed and the gold, by government standard, is 14 times thicker than the designated "gold electroplate."

STERLING SILVER (SS)—the mounting is 92.5% pure silver, 7.5% other metals for strength, and to eliminate tarnishing is lightly plated with precious rhodium.

How to Find Your Ring Size

1. Cut a strip of paper 3 inches long and 1/4 inch wide.

2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a dot, on the strip where it meets the end.

3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.

With Our Guarantee You Take No Risks.

If at the end of 30 days you are not completely satisfied, return by INSURED MAIL for purchase price refund. At any time, or for any reason, and in any condition you may return your simulated diamonds by INSURED MAIL for FREE replacement.

Johnny Mathis: Winning Out Over Drugs, Anxiety and "Fear of the Unknown"

"I found I couldn't function . . . I talked constantly, babbling about nothing at all, I didn't even make sense. When I was home, I'd have convulsions—people thought I had epilepsy, but, of course, it was really drug withdrawal."

By Noel Coppage

Johnny Mathis's voice has been one of popular music's golden instruments for nearly two decades. But Mathis had to learn that the practice it takes to smooth out a life can be more tortuous than the exercises needed to develop a smooth vocal style. Here he shares some reflections on this process, on the fear and amphetamines that almost killed him, and his sources of strength.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You certainly are looking relaxed and fit.

MATHIS: Yes, well, I've been singing and playing golf, so all's right with the world.

FW: You're about to record your 48th album for Columbia, and you have also been playing to sell-out audiences in large theaters. Do you ever worry about running out of worlds to conquer?

MATHIS: Those things take care of themselves. About five years ago—when I was getting off amphetamines—I stopped right in the middle of a thought . . . I was so startled by the realization that I really didn't have any goals. And it was O.K. It's still O.K. I don't want to do a Broadway show. I don't particularly want to do movies, or anything like that. I decided what I really wanted to do was what I have been doing, and to keep trying to do it better. By the time I'm 45, when my voice will have reached its full maturity, I may know exactly what's going on up there on stage.

FW: Is stage fright ever a problem for you?

MATHIS: I'm the sort who has anxieties, but I've been doing it so long, I don't worry about it any more. I think the main thing now is that I know what I can do and what I can't do. I've got this framework to operate in, and I've learned how much leeway there is in it. That's a valuable thing to learn.

FW: Your bout with amphetamines a few years ago was actually a struggle with fear, wasn't it?

MATHIS: Yes. I was so shy, so afraid of the audience. The amphetamines took me away from reality. That was back about the mid-60's when not much was generally known about their harmful side effects. I had to do four shows a day at the Copacabana, and I had acute laryngitis. I went to a well known show-business doctor—very reputable at the time—and he gave me massive doses of "vitamins." [Johnny wasn't aware at the time that he was

TRY THIS NEW PIPE FOR 30 DAYS!

..For cigar smokers and cigarette smokers alike a "Carey Pipe" can save hundreds of dollars a year.

..If you are a pipe smoker, a "Carey Pipe" can end forever your constant search for the most enjoyable smoke of your life.

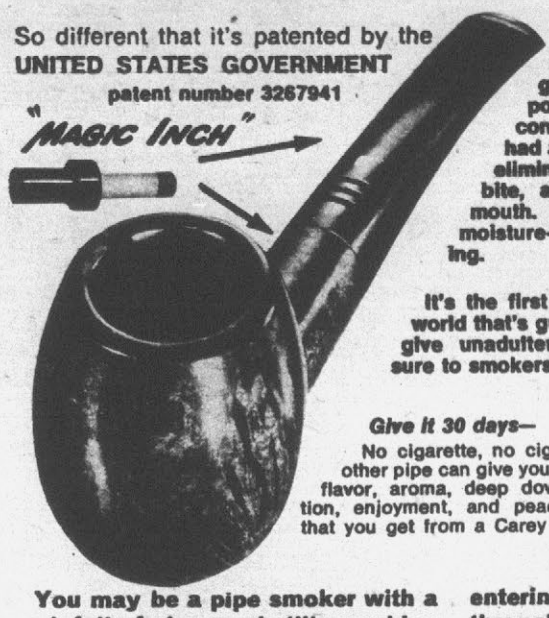
So different that it's patented by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT patent number 3267941



If you don't agree that it's the best smoke you've ever had, it won't cost you a dime. This top grade Mediterranean briar incorporates a sensational invention that contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking. It completely eliminates breaking-in. Tars, sludge, bite, and bitterness never reach your mouth. You get cleaner, cooler, tastier, moisture-free thoroughly enjoyable smoking.

E. A. Carey

It's the first pipe in the world that's guaranteed to give unadulterated pleasure to smokers.

Give it 30 days—

No cigarette, no cigar, nor any other pipe can give you the full rich flavor, aroma, deep down satisfaction, enjoyment, and peace of mind that you get from a Carey Pipe.

You may be a pipe smoker with a rack full of pipes and still searching for the ideal smoke, or perhaps you would like to switch to a pipe to cut down on cigarettes or expensive cigars.

The Carey Pipe may look like any ordinary pipe, but it's a lot different! In fact, there's nothing like it in the whole world. The Carey Pipe is made of the finest aged Mediterranean briar — but, its big secret lies in the exclusive patented "MAGIC INCH," cleverly concealed in a bite proof nylon stem.

It's Not a Filter

The "Magic Inch" is not a filter that gets soggy and loaded with foul smelling goo. A soggy, foul smelling filter transmits its stale foul odor into each successive puff of smoke, creating more problems than it solves.

It's Not a Trap

The "Magic Inch" is not a trap collecting moisture that gurgles with every draw. It is not a trap that must be cleaned after every smoke.

It's Almost Magic

Not my magic but NATURE'S OWN MAGIC. Warm winds pick up moisture by evaporation from the oceans, lakes, rivers, and streams, lift it high into the atmosphere where the cooler upper air squeezes it into drops of water that fall back to earth in its most perfect state of purity. Just as the colder upper air of the atmosphere causes rain, the cool air entering the "Magic Inch" chamber through the special louvers of the patented Carey stem, causes immediate condensation of the moisture in the smoke where it drops to the bottom of the chamber, is absorbed by the natural fiber sleeve of the "Magic Inch," and in turn, is evaporated into the outside air. No accumulation ever remains to form sludge or slugs of bitter tasting goo. The "Magic Inch" also mixes purifying oxygen with the smoke from the tobacco, in perfectly controlled proportions, cooling the smoke, eliminating all tongue bite, and creating MELLOWNESS, MILDNESS, and SWEETNESS that was never before enjoyed in pipe smoking.

Today, over one hundred and fifty thousand pipe smokers smoke Carey Pipes almost exclusively. They all got started by accepting my most unusual offer to test a Carey Pipe for 30 days, without any risk on their part whatsoever.

They were all granted the same option which is yours also. After 30 days, if you agree that the Carey Pipe is the best smoke of your life, you may keep it; if you don't agree, whack it with a hammer and return the broken pieces to me. The trial has cost you nothing! How many businesses are that sure of their product?

Make Your Own 30 Day Test

Clip out the coupon below. Fill in your name and address and send it to me TODAY. I'll send you a full color brochure, absolutely free, so you can select your favorite style and shape for your 30 day trial.

E. A. Carey, Dept. 285 T, 3932 N. Kilpatrick Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60641

Okay Mr. Carey. Send me your full color brochure so I can select a pipe to smoke for 30 days on a free trial basis.

receiving amphetamines—and neither were his doctor's other famous patients, including one president.] He taught me how to give myself injections, and he gave me all sorts of different colored pills to take between injections.

FW: How long did this go on?

MATHIS: For five or six years, although I didn't take them when I wasn't working. I found I couldn't function when I was on them. I talked constantly, babbling about nothing at all. I didn't even make sense. When I was at home and not taking them, I'd have convulsions—people thought I had epilepsy, but, of course, it was really drug withdrawal.

FW: Was it really the audience you feared, or were you afraid you wouldn't be on top of the songs, wouldn't be sharp?

MATHIS: I had terrible anxieties that everything wouldn't go just so, that I'd be up there and it would all fall apart . . . fear of the unknown, I guess. There were so many directions I thought disaster might come from. I'd have to get advice on what to wear, how to stand. I had to have every minute detail planned out beforehand. Eventually, someone said, "Why don't you just wear what you're wearing now? It looks all right." I just hadn't been listening to myself. . . . But mostly, I guess I took those injections because I felt I needed energy and was constantly afraid of being sick.

"There were so many directions I thought disaster might come from. . . . I had to have every detail planned."

FW: Nowadays you seem to have a more realistic picture of what your voice can do, which must help you feel more secure.

MATHIS: Some nights now, you know, it's as smooth as whipped cream. Other nights, there's a little edge that doesn't smooth out. The thing is not to panic. . . . It's like one day you're playing golf and hitting straight and the next day you're hooking, so you play the hook. On pills, I sounded terrible, but I was in this euphoric state. People would tell me what to do and I'd do it, but I couldn't really listen too closely. You have to listen, of course, if you're going to sing. I used to get so involved in the sound I was making at that instant that I didn't think ahead. I had to hear the next note in my head before I could make it. I just couldn't think ahead.

FW: Are you more experimental as a singer now?

MATHIS: I've worked two years on a song before doing it in public. I thought that might be a disgracefully long time, but someone said Lena Horne, my idol, took four years or so on one particular song. The mechanical part of music can be a drag for me, but once I learn it, I remember it. I know every nuance of every song I ever recorded, when the strings are going to come in with a little figure, every bend in the bass line, every single thing my voice does.

FREE! YOUR "$1000.00 HOROSCOPE"

DISCOVER THE OTHER ASTROLOGY!

THE POWERFUL MIND-EXPANDING LIFE-FULFILLING SECRET HOROSCOPE!

MODERN SCIENCE PROVES ASTROLOGY WORKS

BY PHILIP SYDNEY

Correspondent, British Psychic News Service

LONDON—Recently in France a famous scientist named Michel Gauquelin decided to prove that success and happiness in life had nothing to do with Astrology. In fact, that Astrology was a fake. So he attacked it scientifically! In France the time of birth is on every birth certificate, so he was able to hire Astrologers to cast the horoscopes of 576 famous teachers of medicine. He was astonished to discover that most of them had Mars and Saturn heavily influencing their character! These are the signs that show a natural talent for healing. But he refused to believe his own evidence, so he started checking the horoscopes of famous lawyers, soldiers, politicians and artists. He found that in every single instance the people that were successful, were "doing what comes naturally" as shown on their astrological charts. Unfortunately the opposite also holds true. The people who fail at their work and in their lives are the ones who do the wrong things. They are square pegs in round holes! They are plumbers who should be doctors, butchers who should be surgeons, mechanics who should be engineers.

Most people have heard about the rich, famous and successful people who use astrology practically full time, but they still think that astrology is the "fortune cookie" horoscope they read in their daily paper, or the Natal horoscope that they can buy for a few pounds here in England or a few dollars in America. There's nothing wrong with those Natal horoscopes. They analyse your character and give you a general reading. That's like someone describing a country to you in a general way. It would be helpful, yet you would still probably get lost. But Natal Astrology is not what Princess Margaret and Lord Snowden pay for. Or what led Princess Grace and Prince Ranier to happiness. Or what Winston Churchill bought from Lois De Wahl throughout the war. No. Those people and others like them are getting the other astrology. Not a general Natal horoscope but a specific, step by step, day-by-day guide. Natal astrology is like reading a good book about big game hunting and then going to darkest Africa on your own. The other astrology is like having a top professional hunter to help guide you through the jungle.

This other astrology is called Transit astrology and the horoscopes are called Transcopes. A Transcope is as different from a Natal horoscope as a simple road map is from a step-by-step guide book! It deals with love, marriage, finances, health, career—everything! It locates and tells you specifically the good days and the bad days for all aspects of living. It practically takes you by the hand and shows you the right time and the wrong time for specific things. After that it's up to you to take advantage of the good and to avoid the bad!

Transcope Astrology is practically unknown to all but professional astrologers and their rich clients. Why? Because it has to check the planetary positions for every single day and therefore it costs more than most people could afford! But, not any more!

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN NATAL AND TRANSIT HOROSCOPES

Where the sun, moon and planets happen to be at the time of your birth is what makes up your Natal (birthdate) Horoscope and determines your birth sign. (Leo, Taurus, Cancer, etc.) But, the sun, moon and planets keep right on moving. They are in Transit. And day after day they keep forming new angles with your birth chart. And these Transits create a new Horoscope that shows every single important period of your life! We call these Transit horoscopes "Transcopes". They are what Sir Francis Bacon cast for Queen Elizabeth I in the 16th Century (she became England's greatest monarch of all times) right through to Evangeline Adams who did the same for J. Pierpont Morgan in the 20th Century (He became the richest and most powerful financier of all times). The Ford Mustang was the most successful car Ford ever put out. An astrologer picked the date to launch it.! That's what the Ford Edsel needed but didn't have! Vivian Long and the Parkers, who are famous astrologers, advise countless big businesses on all aspects of finance including openings, contracts, investments and mergers. Investment companies and politicians are the biggest users of Transcope astrology. (Why did Ronald Reagan refuse to be sworn in as governor until 10 past midnight?) Transits can be read for a day, a month or even hundreds of years into the future or backward into the past, as long as the stars remain in the sky.

John Hazelrig in 1908 said that every 20 years, when the Transits of Saturn and Jupiter are conjunct (come together) the President who took office that year would die in office. Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Harding, Franklin Roosevelt and Kennedy did exactly that! It's easy to close your mind and say "nonsense". But "Hair" the most successful musical of all times had a full time astrologer. He advised them on every single step. He told them when and where to open. He got top credit right along with the writers and the director!

Carol Righter is astrologer to Hollywood. Hundreds of the famous have used his Transit astrology. People like Marlene Dietrich, Gloria Swanson, Ronald Colman, Tyrone Power, Danny Kaye. Carol Righter became an astrologer because Evangeline Adams, who was astrologer to Kings, Queens and financiers told him it was his vocation according to the stars.

Hitler was conquering Europe as long as he followed his Transcopes as prepared by Karl E. Kraft. But when Kraft's chart told Hitler it was not the time to turn East to Russia, Hitler fired him. That was the beginning of the end for Hitler. (See Wm. Shirers "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich").

Countless brilliant scientists, writers and geniuses through the ages have believed in Astrology. Great men like St. Thomas Aquinus, Sir Roger Bacon (father of modern science), Shakespeare, Sir Isaac Newton, Carl Jung, Einstein and J. P. Morgan have all openly agreed that astrology works!

To make a Natal (birthdate) horoscope an astrologer calculates the positions of the stars at the time of your birth and from them gets the interpretations that make your Natal horoscope. But that's only the beginning for a Transit (Transcope) horoscope. The astrologer then has to take all of those positions and calculate the constantly changing positions of those stars every single day in relation to their positions at the time of your birth. There are literally millions of possible Transits. No wonder only Kings, Queens, Millionaires and Movie Stars could afford Transit astrology!

But the computer can make millions of calculations in seconds. So, after many years of work and a tremendous cash investment, the Institute for Applied Astrology now has those Transits in their giant computer. All the calculations plus 32 million possible combinations of facts! And so, for the very first time, Transcopes are available to everybody! Your Transcope is completely different from that of any other person in the world, because you are like no other person in the world! Your chart is drawn from the 32 million possible combinations of facts that are stored in the giant computer of the Institute of Applied Astrology and are theirs exclusively!

ASTROLOGICAL PREDICTIONS

No critic of Astrology has ever been able to explain predictions. In fact, top Astrologers hardly ever predict. But occasionally the Transit positions of the Planets are so powerful that future events are obvious years before the event!

John F. Kennedy was told by Astrologers that November of 1963 was a period of grave danger. On November 21, Transit Mercury was opposite his Sun in the house of death, and he was warned not to travel. The following tragic day Transit Mars and Transit Venus were opposite his progressed Mars, planet of Violence; and opposite Venus in Jackie's chart, indicating danger to her husband. Transit Pluto was conjunct to her Mars, a heavy aspect of a dangerous situation in public groups.

The new American Bible, in Matthew 2, translates the arrival of the three wise men as, "after his birth Astrologers from the East arrived at Jerusalem saying, 'Where is the child who was born King of the Jews?'" John Hazelrig in 1908 predicted Franklin D. Roosevelt's death in office. The death of Stalin, the 1929 stock market crash, and the street riots of 1964 and 1965 were all predicted. Karl E. Kraft predicted Hitler's rise and fall to a day. In ancient days Nostradamus predicted the rise of Oliver Cromwell and Napoleon and the exact dates of World War II. Wm. Lilly predicted the fire of London with such accuracy that he was accused of starting it. The chance of coincidence or guesswork explaining even a single correct Astrological prediction is billions to one.

Why do we give you "The $1000.00 Horoscope" FREE?

Transit Astrology (Transcope™) is almost unknown except to professional Astrologers and their wealthy clients. Since Transcopes act as a daily guide to living, their incredible accuracy can be tested on a day to day basis. The famous people who were rich enough to afford Transit Horoscopes will not cooperate by telling us their experiences. They want you to believe they got where they did on talent alone! But now the Institute for Applied Astrology has computerized Transcopes, and for the first time they are well within the reach of most people.

A Transcope runs to about 6,000 words or about 18 pages. Because only the Institute For Applied Astrology has these transits stored in their computer, only they can give you your Transcope! To do this we must first cast your Natal Horoscope. Because of the huge amount of material in our computer, your Natal Horoscope will run about 25 pages or 10,000 words! It is equal to a $1,000.00 Horoscope cast by an Astrologer doing hand calculations and using reference books. And it is far superior to computer horoscopes that people pay $20.00 or more for! And since we must cast it anyhow we are willing to give it to you free just for examining your personal Transcope.

We want to send you your own personal Transcope as a sample. We want you to check it for accuracy of information and see how incredibly helpful foreknowledge can be to every aspect of your life. Then when you are sure of these things we want you to do two things for us. First, tell all your friends and neighbors about our unique Transcope Astrology. Second, fill out the questionnaires we will send you concerning the benefits of Transcope Astrology. We want your permission to use the information you give us in our continuing research program. If you will do those two things for us here is what we will do. We will, at no cost to you, feed your birth information into our giant computer. The computer will then calculate your Natal chart including sun, moon, planets, rising sign, and ascendant. Then it will calculate, starting next month, the day-by-day positions of the Heavenly bodies as they move through those positions. Next, it will examine 32,000,000 possibilities in order to create your personal Transcope! We are not going to charge you for what it cost us to get your birth information and get it into the computer! We are not going to charge you for our research and calculation time! In fact all we want from you, as an indication of your sincere interest and your willingness to cooperate in our program, is only our actual cost of creating, and printing your 18 page Transcope and the postage to send it to you! Our actual costs are $3.00 for the printout plus 55¢ first class postage and handling. That's a total of $3.55 and we will not deposit your check or money order for two weeks. If you do not agree that Transcope Astrology can give you day-by-day guidance to a better, fuller more exciting life just drop us a note and we will return your original check or money order uncashed.

THIS 18 PAGE NATAL HOROSCOPE IS ABSOLUTELY FREE...

JUST FOR EXAMINING YOUR TRANSCOPE™!

The Bundler™

...our famous cold-weather fashion for ladies! Now exclusively ours in men's styles, too.

only $15.88 each (Men's or Ladies')

EXTRA SPECIAL: any 2, only $30.00

Reg. $19.95

For the first time ever ...a SALE on the most popular, most imitated gift garment of its type in America today! THOUSANDS sold at higher prices — good value THEN, an even BETTER BUY now!

Yes, from Unique Products, substantial savings on the original — the only — Bundler™. It's our famous grown-up version of the classic favorite for children. The snuggly fashion that will make any "big kid" a beautiful baby all over again! Deliciously sexy on her, and — in our great, new (and exclusive) men's version — ruggedly good-looking on him.

Bundlers are soft and comfortable always. Wonderfully warm. And unlike the light, flimsy "imitations" you may have seen around, our Bundlers are tailored in fuzzy, blanket-weight 100% Acrilan® acrylic (same good fabric as the well-known children's model)... Wear-Dated® by Monsanto for construction, detailing and durability.

The Bundler™ by Unique is made for lounging, for sleeping, for daydreaming, for almost anything in the way of just plain luxury. Ladies' Bundler features a full-torso nylon zipper that matches the color of the garment; Men's Bundler has a full-torso nylon zipper with fly front. There's a rope waistband and ankle rope-ties (for extra warmth) on hers; a sturdy self-fabric belt on his. Both Bundlers have stretch-knit wristlets and anklets, plus detachable slippers. In sum, everything to keep a couple cozier than they've been since who-knows-when.

For ski-goers, college dorms, winter vacationers, low thermostats and warm hearts...for any smart lady or gentleman you may know (including you!)...and for savings of up to five dollars per garment...order The Bundler™ today. Prices will go up again after this sale. Machine washable and dryable — and quality-made in the U.S.A., of course.

What in the World!

KARA AND CUB
New breed of cat?

Kara the lioness is a mother in a million. She's just given birth to a cub with deep black markings on its chest and right leg. "Black-maned lions are rare, but one with these markings is unique," said Richard O'Grady, director of the Calderpark Zoo in Britain, where the lion was born. "With proper breeding, the cub could become the father of the world's first all-black lion. I regard it as a breakthrough in the breeding of wild animals in captivity."

Unsentimental Alice: Alice Roosevelt Longworth, the 90-year-old Washington grande dame and daughter of Teddy Roosevelt, was never interested in romance. "As a young girl, I never bothered with men my own age. One had to go to dances, and when one had to go, one did, but I was much more fascinated with Father's friends. Sort of Rough Riders, you know. Military heroes. I probably had an Oedipus complex. I suppose it would be fair to say that I was never terribly in love. I was totally without sentimentality of any sort. When it came time for me to get married, I got married. Nothing very exciting about it. My expectation of marriage was nothing—just to weather it as long as I wanted to. Just more politics, that's all. I was interested in politics, so I thought marrying a politician would be much better than marrying someone else. And I preferred somebody who was not from the East, not Boston, Philadelphia or New York. That would have been frightfully boring." From "The First Time," by Karl and Anne Taylor Fleming (Simon and Schuster, $7.95).

BROLIN AS GABLE
And Gable as Gable

How to be Gable: When Universal Pictures announced that it would produce the story of Carole Lombard and Clark Gable, all the top Hollywood male actors from Robert Redford to James Caan were considered for the Gable role, but James Brolin of "Marcus Welby" fame landed the part. "Everyone thought it was a big joke," Brolin told FAMILY WEEKLY. "The studio was bombarded with letters asking why Ali MacGraw and Steve McQueen weren't chosen. One letter said the idea of my playing Gable was 'as ridiculous as James Cagney doing pantyhose commercials.'" But Brolin may surprise the hecklers; he prepared well for the role. He screened every Gable movie and read everything in print about the late star. He even went so far as to write a 100-page history of Gable's childhood, then studied it intensely for weeks just to get a full picture of Gable's screen and off-screen image. From a physical standpoint, Brolin shares many of Gable's features: he is 6-foot-4, handsome, rough and has that same tousled, dark-brown hair. Also, like Gable, he's an avid rancher.

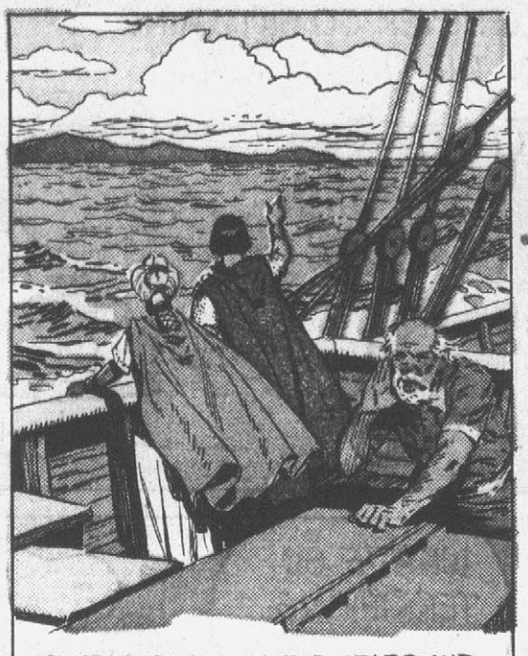
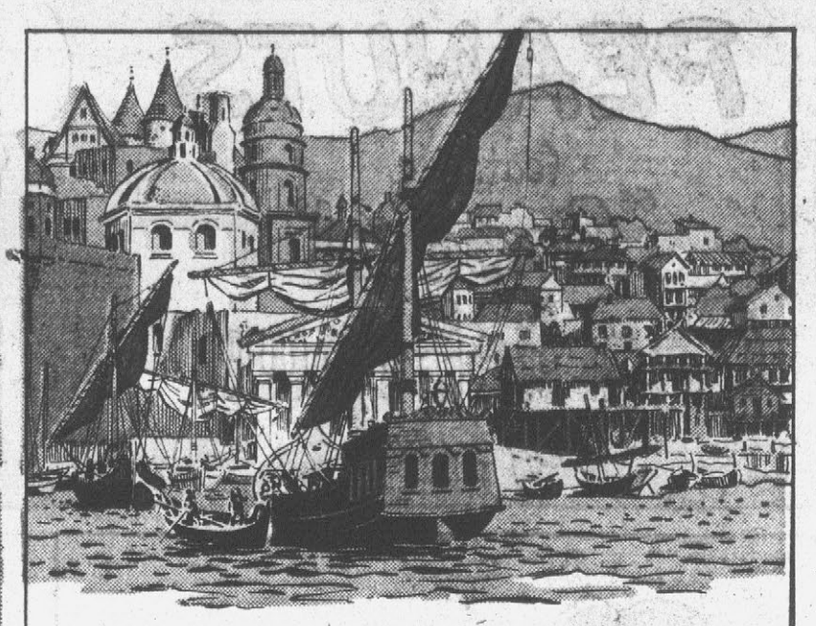
Our Story: AFTER A LONG ABSENCE, QUEEN ALETA IS RETURNING TO THE MISTY ISLES TO PUT HER SMALL KINGDOM IN ORDER. HECTOR IS PUT TO WORK AS HER SECRETARY. THIS TAKES HIS MIND OFF THE TOSSING OF THE SHIP, AND ALSO KEEPS THE TWINS AT BAY.



GUNDAR CONSULTS THE STARS AND TURNS HIS SHIP EASTWARD, AND SOON THE COAST OF SPAIN COMES INTO VIEW.



ENTERING THE NEAREST PORT, THEY PAY THEIR HARBOR DUES AND STATE THEIR BUSINESS. A BERTH IS ASSIGNED THEM AT THE QUAY AND THEN THE HARBOR MASTER HURRIES AWAY, FOR HE HAS GOOD NEWS FOR HIS MASTER, DUKE JULIAN.

NOT LONG AGO THIS PORT CARRIED ON A PROFITABLE TRADE WITH THE MISTY ISLES, BUT THE DUKE HAD BEEN OVERLY AVARICIOUS AND TRADE HAD CEASED. NOW HE SEES A CHANCE TO DELUDE ITS QUEEN INTO RENEWING THAT TRADE.

© King Features Syndicate, Inc., 1975. World rights reserved.

VAL AND ALETA ARE SURPRISED WHEN A DELEGATION OF NOBLES BRINGS AN INVITATION FROM THE DUKE TO SPEND THEIR STAY AT THE PALACE.

THE DUKE HIMSELF CONDUCTS THEM TO HIS PALACE TO THE SOUND OF DRUMS, CYMBALS AND MARCHING FEET. BUT ONE SOUND IS MISSING: THE SHOUTS OF THE CROWD THAT USUALLY ATTEND SO FINE A PARADE. DOWN THE SIDE STREETS PEOPLE STAND IN SILENCE WHILE OTHERS PEEK FROM SHUTTERED WINDOWS. WHY?

GOOD MORNING, SUE!
GOOD MORNING

YAWN
I AM

I HAVE TROUBLE GETTING UP EARLY FOR SCHOOL!
NOT ME! I GET UP EARLY EVERY MORNING!

YOU DO? HOW COME?
WELL, YOU KNOW THE OL' SAYING...

THE EARLY BIRD GETS THE BOY!

AND I DO LIKE BOYS!

HEY, YOU'RE RIGHT!
DON'T BUG ME

THIS IS THE BEST TIME OF THE DAY!

I THINK WE SHOULD PAINT THIS ROOM ...BUT SOMETHING DIFFERENT... I'M SICK OF THIS COLOR... MAYBE A PIGEON BLUE OR A SOFT PUCE OR EVEN A ....

AND I COULD GET THOSE NEW DRAPES THAT WE SAW AT HERRMAN'S, BUT NOT THE FLOOR LENGTH, THERE'S TOO MUCH [illegible]
