Tucker Elected New Pitt Bd. Chairman

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Burney L. Tucker of Winterville, vice-chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners for the past year, was elected chairman during the Board's annual reorganizational meeting today.

Tucker, a member of the board since February 1972, replaces Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur as chairman. Strickland was first elected to the board in 1960. Replacing Tucker as vice-chairman is Charles Gaskins of Greenville, a county commissioner since 1967.

Following the election of officers, the newly organized board reappointed Reginald Gray as county manager and auditor, W.W. Speight as county attorney and Mrs. Margaret Roberts as clerk to the board.

In other business this morning, commissioners approved a contract for the operation of the Eastern Area Health Education Center, and a capital contract leading to the construction of a new $1.6 million building to house the AHEC.

The operation contract calls for the AHEC's Family Practice Center to be operated by the School of Medicine at East Carolina University at no cost to the county, while the capital contract calls for the county to hire an architect for the design and to take bids for construction of the AHEC building to be located between the new hospital building and the proposed ECU medical school building. Under the contract, the State of North Carolina will be responsible for any financial liability incurred in the planning and construction of the building.

Ralph Hall, construction manager for the new Pitt Memorial hospital facility reported this morning that the new building is about 60 per cent complete, with ceiling and cabinet work now being installed in the north wing. He noted, too, that the stucco siding on the primary care portion of the building is almost complete and that work should begin in the new future on installing the stucco surface on the rehabilitation portion of the building.

The board also approved the county's continued participation in the Older Adult Nutrition Program. Under the program, which will cost the county $2,647 in matching funds for the next year, older adults are provided lunches, as well as educational and recreational programs.

A committee was named, too, this morning to recommend the number of trustees for Pitt Memorial Hospital under the reorganization in connection with the affiliation of the medical school with the medical facility.

Under the agreement that will make Pitt Memorial the prime clinical training facility for the medical school, 60 per cent of the trustees will be local appointees while 40 per cent will be named from a list of persons recommended by the University of North Carolina's Board of Governors.

Restrained Welcome Is Given President In China

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) — Implicitly acknowledging their differences over detente with the Soviet Union, President Ford and Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiaoping today pledged to continue working for better Chinese-American relations.

Ford got a restrained but correct welcome on his arrival for a five-day visit he said is aimed at fostering mutual understanding between the Chinese and American peoples. The atmosphere improved perceptibly after the airport ceremonies.

Speaking at a banquet in the Great Hall of the People six hours after landing in the Chinese capital, Ford said: "The moves that were taken in 1971 and 1972 by the leaders of China and the United States were of historic significance. I take this occasion to reaffirm my commitment to the objectives and the principles which emerged from those first steps and specificallly to the normalization of our relations."

Teng described the Soviet Union, without naming it, as "the country which most zealously preaches peace and is the most dangerous source of war," and added that "rhetoric about detente cannot cover up the stark reality of the growing danger of war." Ford chose to emphasize the things which bring China and the United States together.

He said that China and the United States have a mutual interest in seeing that the world is not deominated by force or pressure. He said that the currrent situation requires "strength, vigilance and firmness," but he rejected the idea that China might dictate how the United States should approach the problem of detente.

"In pursuing our objectives," Ford said, "each of us will of course determine our policies and methods according to our differing positions in the world and our perceptions of our respective national interests."

The toast by Teng — pronounced Dung — was a reiteration of anti-Soviet themes expressed here for months, and often repeated for the benefit of a variety of visiting heads of state.

He hailed the results of Nixon's 1972 visit and said that China welomed Ford's statements since then that he will work to promote Chinese-U.S. relations.

"To realize the normalization of relations between our two countries conforms to the common desire of the Chinese and American peoples," he said.

Neither he nor Ford held out any prospect that full recognition was in the offing. Teng used the word "eventually."

The diminative 71-year-old vice premier — acting premier during Chou's illness, repeated Chinese warnings that a world war is bound to occur unless "hegemonism" — domination of the superpowers over smaller countries — is not halted.

Ford, apparently enjoying himself, shared the head table with Teng, Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien, Mrs. Ford, Susan, Kissinger, Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, and George Bush, head of the U.S. mission in Peking and Bush's wife.

Ford wielded chopsticks expertly on a meal which included six kinds of hors d'oeuvres, a consomme, fragrant chicken, Chinese cabbage and chestnuts, and white fish. The piece de resistance was an unusual shark fin soup laced with crab and served from a tureen.

During the meal, attended by 600 Chinese and American guests, a military band played American melodies, including "America the Beautiful," and the theme from "Billy the Kid."

With the speeches out of the way, Ford and Teng get down Tuesday to substantive talks on a variety of issues.

Israel To Observe Decision On Golan

By The Associated Press

Israel said today it will observe the Golan disengagement pact with Syria but will boycott the United Nations debate on the Mideast next January to which the Palestine Liberation Organization has been invited.

The Israeli announcement followed Sunday's 11th-hour compromise decision by the Security Council to extend the life of the U.N. buffer force on the Golan Heights for six months, but to link the extension with a Middle East debate Jan. 12 and to invite the PLO to attend.

Following a six-hour special cabinet meeting in Jerusalem, the Israeli government indicated it would also build more Jewish settlements on the Golan Heights, a move that would defy efforts to negotiate a return of the territory to Syria.

"The government of Israel rejects the move by the Security Council ... which surrendered to Syrian extortion and which linked a renewal of the U.N. Disengagement Observer Force mandate with foreign elements that have nothing to do with the disengagement agreement" worked out in May last year by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, said a communique.

"...The government resolves not to cooperate in any manner whatsoever with the Security Council resolution regarding the proposed debate on the Middle East and the Palestinian issue."

Cabinet sources said fellings ran high at the cabinet meeting that the United States had let Israel down by its voting for the resolution.

In Damascus, the Syrian government declared it was "very satisfied with the successful diplomacy adopted by Syria." A spokesman for the PLO applauded Syria's insistence before the Security Council to include the guerrillas in the January debate.

Egypt called the U.N. decision "a step forward in escalating the momentum of peacemaking that Egypt has called for." The Cairo government has been criticized by Syria and other militant Arab governments for signing a second-stage Sinai accord with Israel without demanding guarantees for an over-all Middle East settlement.

"Despite the abuse, the Syrians have come around to what (President Anwar) Sadat has advocated all along — taking whatever step best served their interests," said presidential spokesman Tahseen Bashir.

Running Out Of Benefits

By The Associated Press

More than 8,000 Carolinians have used up their unemployment benefits.

Forty-nine hundred in North Carolina and 3,400 in South Carolina have done so.

The numbers could swell this winter and spring unless the economy produces more jobs.

A government survey of 18 states, including the Carolinas, shows that half the persons running out of benefits are men in their prime working years, between 22 and 44 years old.

'Re-Assessing' Busing Stand

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers Vice President Douglas Fraser says school busing for integration may actually be causing "re-segregration" by prompting whites to leave central cities for the suburbs.

And Fraser said Sunday that the union's political leadership is "reassessing" its stand in favor of busing. He said busing is "a losing issue politically" and "a major political problem" for the union.

Rob't Williams Extradition To N.C. Is Upheld

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Supreme Court has upheld the extradition of black activist Robert F. Williams to North Carolina to face a charge of kidnaping.

On a divided 3-3 vote, the court upheld a Court of Appeals decision to reject Williams' challenge of North Carolina indictments while remaining in Michigan. The Supreme Court decision caps a six-year attempt by Williams to avoid facing the North Carolina charges.

Williams, a black separatist and head of the "Republic of New Africa," was indicted with four other persons in 1961 on charges of kidnaping. In 1964 the four were found guilty, but Williams had fled the state.

In 1965, the North Carolina Supreme Court quashed the 1961 indictments, and new indictments were issued.

Williams claimed in extradition hearings, and before state courts in attempting to obtain a writ of habeas corpus to remain in Michigan, that the second group indictments were forgeries and invalid.

The governor of North Carolina requested Williams' extradition, and in 1969, Gov. William Milliken of Michigan issued the extradition warrant — touching off Williams' court fight.

Williams maintained he should be permitted to prove the second indictment against him was a forgery. He argued before the Supreme Court that he should be permitted to argue the case in Michigan, and not in North Carolina, where, he said, he would not be given a fair hearing.

Three justices of the high court — Mary Coleman, John Fitzgerald and Lawrence Lindemer — voted to reject Williams' argument and affirm the extradition.

The court cannot "look behind the face of an indictment" in considering extradition, it said. In other words, the fact the indictment exists is reason enough to grant extradition and deny habeas corpus.

"The indictment need only substantially charge a crime," the three justices wrote, "and a bad indictment may support extradition. The hearing on the valid issuance of the indictment" should be held in North Carolina, they said.

'Crisis' Status Reduced

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina still faces a hardship situation, but the state won't have a natural gas crisis this winter, Gov. Jim Holshouser said.

In a statement issued Sunday, the governor said a new allocation plan approved Friday by the Federal Power Commission (FPC) should prevent massive layoffs in industry and will stimulate the state's economic recovery.

Under the earlier FPC plan, the state would have received only 4 per cent of the natural gas needed for industrial use and could have resulted in more than 50,000 industrial workers being laid off this winter because of plant shutdowns, the governor's office said.

Friday, the FPC approved a program to share natural gas shortages along the Eastern Seaboard. North Carolina's shortage this winter may be no worse than last winter. State officials said the plan will ensure natural gas to industries that are unable to substitute other forms of fuel.

Household use of natural gas has the FPC's highest priority so residential users have no reason to fear being cut off.

The FPC will also allow, in some cases, Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Co.—the state's only supplier—to buy gas at unregulated in state prices where it is produced and pipe it to areas of gas shortages. But, customers will have to pay the higher unregulated price. The FPC regulates interstate gas prices.

SHERIFF DEPARTMENT ENGRAVES

The Pitt County Sheriff Department has recently begun offering to engrave articles of value and register them with the Department for any Pitt County citizens.

They will either loan an engraver or send a crime prevention officer to one's home to do the job for you, Crime Prevention Officer Gordon Edwards said.

Hotline has done in the past an item about the need for engraving valuables as a means of helping law enforcement agencies identify recovered articles. We later did a followup on the advisability of using a driver's license number as the identifying number because of the ease with which law enforcement agencies can identify owners. It was stressed that much of the value of this practice is that it can be noted on the entrances to a home or business that valuables inside have been marked, thus discouraging potential burglaries.

The Greenville Police Department also offers this service, and the Pitt County Farm Bureau loans engravers and gives free door decals to its members.

Officer Edwards said engraving are especially useful on color television sets and any kind of firearms, the items that are the most popular with burglars in Pitt County at present.

REAGAN

Hotline called Sen. Jesse Helms' office in Raleigh. Someone there gave us the phone number of the Citizens for Reagan for President Committee office in Raleigh. Cheryl Barbour in the Reagan office told us that Paul Reynolds is the Eastern Coordinator of the state campaign. He is now working out of the Raleigh office, for which the address is Box 19433, Raleigh, N.C. 27609; and the phone number, 781-5220. Carter Wrenn is the state campaign chairman.

Massive Shelling Tactics

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Soviet-backed Angolan forces defending Luanda are firing massive artillery barrages of as much as 1,000 rounds an hour, the Rand Daily Mail reported today.

The leading Johannesburg newspaper said its information came from members of the Western-backed Total Liberation Movement, or UNITA, which with the National Front, or FNLA, is battling the Soviet-backed Popular Movement, or MPLA.

The sources said the saturation shelling of single targets has been mainly responsible for halting the advance on Luanda of joint UNITA and FNLA forces.

The sources said the MPLA artillery fire increased following the unloading of 13 Soviet cargo ships in Luanda in the past week.

A Tass report from Luanda said that in "fierce fighting ... the national army ... stopped the advance of South African and Portuguese mercenaries that invaded Angola from the south and seized the ports of Benguela and Lobito."

Many Laotians Fleeing Red Rule In Homeland

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The half-brother of King Savang Vathana of Laos crossed the Mekong River to seek refuge in Thailand, and other Laotians are fleeing the country daily in the face of a drive by the Communist Pathet Lao to consolidate its control, Thai government sources said today.

Prince Mangkala Manivongse, his wife and 10 children crossed the border river in a longboat Sunday and landed in Nong Khai province, about 325 miles northeast of Bangkok, the Interior Ministry said.

About 50,000 Laotians have fled from their country since the Communists took over last spring. The Interior Ministry said an average of about 12 persons a day are escaping now.

Several of them have swum the Mekong, including the second son of Premier Souvanna Phouma, Prince Panya, who is now preparing to leave Thailand for France, where his French mother lives.

Last Friday, thousands of demonstrators apparently organized by the Pathet Lao marched through the streets of Vientiane, the Laotian capital, calling for an end to the coalition government and the ouster of Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Diplomats in Vientiane said the 74-year-old premier, a neutralist who has headed the government for 13 years, would resign "very soon" and go to France.

Souvanna Phouma has been virtually powerless since the Pathet Lao took over. The diplomats said he attended a meeting with Pathet Lao leaders Saturday in Luang Prabang, the royal capital 155 miles north of Vientiane, and returned to Vientiane Sunday with his half-brother Prince Souphanouvong, the titular head of the Pathet Lao.

Another refugee from communism in Indochina, former Premier In Tam of Cambodia, applied today for asylum in the United States for himself and his family, Thai officials reported. He speaks fluent French but no English and has also applied for asylum in France.

The Thai government, which recently established relations with the Cambodian Communist government, last week ordered In Tam to leave the country. It considers him an embarrassment because he is the only high-ranking member of the Lon Nol regime still in Thailand and because he is suspected of directing guerrilla activity inside Cambodia.

Commissioner Ingram Often In Court, Rarely Wins

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — With dozens of insurance industry attorneys crowded before his bench in Wake County Superior Court recently, Judge James H. Pou Bailey could not resist a joke.

"I hope you gentlemen have taken out business interruption insurance in the event Mr. Ingram is defeated for reelection," Bailey said.

With that, Bailey plunged into hearings on yet another industry appeal of an order by Insurance Commissioner John R. Ingram. He was eventually to rule that both the law in question and Ingram's enforcement of it were unconstitutional.

Ingram's office lists 29 orders issued since he took office in January, 1973. Of those, nine have been accepted without appeal by the industry. Of the 20 which have been appealed, Ingram has lost 10. The other 10 have yet to be decided.

In addition to providing a lucrative income for the Raleigh bar, the succession of appeals has kept a number of major insurance in legal limbo.

Medical malpractice insurance, auto liability insurance, and homeowners insurance are among the major cases in the courts.

All of Ingram's orders may be appealed by the industry to the state Court of Appeals. That court has not been hesitant to say what it has thought of Ingram's decisions.

The commissioner's 1973 order promulgating a merit classification plan for auto liability insurance was "unsupported by material and substantial evidence," the court said. His order abolishing age discrimination in auto rates "exceeded the authority delegated to him by the legislature," the court decided.

Despite the record, Ingram said in an interview, "the idea that I've been losing so many cases is a myth."

He noted that several of his major reversals in court have been corrected by the legislature.

One reversal came on Ingram's effort to abolish the assigned risk plan. The courts ruled he acted without authority. The legislature then passed a new law implementing essentially what Ingram had tried to do.

Another reversal came when Ingram tried twice to ban age as a classification in auto liability rates. Both times, the courts turned him down.

Earlier this year, the legislature passed a law, again giving Ingram essentially what he wanted. But the industry has appealed Ingram's order implementing the law, effectively delaying the reform.

Ingram does not consider those cases defeats, despite the adverse rulings. "The people wanted those changes and they got them," he said. Ingram added that he had complied with the law as he interpreted it.

The question of law has been raised frequently in connection with some of Ingram's cases.

Judge Bailey, in reversing Ingram's orders on the malpractice insurance pool, added that the law was written too vaguely; it did not specify how Ingram was to use the authority given him by the legislature.

Some insurance industry officials have said they intend to press the legislature to clarify the procedures Ingram must use. Others have talked about giving his authority to a commission like the State Utilities Commission.

Ingram said he does not agree. "Most of our insurance laws were enacted as a result of recommendations by the industry. It's ironic that now they've raised the question of the legislature delegating too much authority. It's my contention that the ratemaking laws are sufficiently explicit, with standards for the commissioner to follow in setting rates," he said.

The attorney who represents insurance companies mentioned another factor that leads to legal battles, asking that he not be quoted by name. "I think Ingram just hates the industry," he said.

Ingram denied that. "I've said that the casualty segment of the industry was insensitive to the needs of the people in matters of policy like the assigned risk plan.

"Even though they lost in my campaign and lost in the legislature, they still contest the will of the people," he said.

Ingram said he has not given any thought to the possibility of running for reelection in 1976 and does not know whether an industry-backed opponent will challenge him.

Gold Rush For Cubs, Webelos

Some 250 Cub Scouts and Webelos participated in the Pitt District's annual Gold Rush on Saturday morning at Green Springs Park on E. Fifth Street.

Pack 571 earned the first place attendance award with 58 members while Pack 200 received second place with 38 pack members in attendance. Packs 330 and 421 tied for third place with an attendance of 14 each.

First place in the costume awards went to Will Webb while Bill Farrior won second place and Albert Tin received the third place citation.

Cubs and Webelos used the "gold" they found to buy goodies from stores operated by Nellie Harris, Eddie Stallings and Patricia Haddock.

Indians, miners or cowboys breaking the "law" by having more than three pieces of "gold" in their possession were hunted and arrested by "High Sheriff" Earl Stocks and deputies Pete Fagan, Rick Pike, Durwood Bullock, Butch Wall and David Stocks.

Penalties for the offenses were handed out by "Judge" Amos Harris Sr. and district judges J. T. Manning, Libby Wall, Charles Wall and Alton Warren.

The District represented at the event by Packs 593, 24, 401, 528, 571, 421, 282, 699, 33, 200, 330, 131, and 385.

Investigating Death Of Trees

The city's Environmental Advisory Commission is investigating the problem of trees dying on E. Fifth Street in front of East Carolina University.

The Commission has asked William Stanton, urban forester of the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, to help it investigate what could be done to preserve the present trees on all of the city's streets.

Stanton will attend the Commission's Dec. 3 meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. in the first floor conference room at city hall, and outline what the Extension Service can do to help the city. Possible assistance could include a tree survey, a remedial care program and a replacement program.

According to Dr. Vince Bellis, a botanist at East Carolina, the oaks along Fifth Street may have reached their growing maturity. Bellis said the normal growing span for these oaks in a forest would be about 150 years, but in their present location, might only be 50 years.

The Commission will also review the environmental assessments for the following Community Development Program projects: street resurfacing in West Greenville; Moyewood Park improvements; and the purchase of a site for an elderly housing center.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Starting Week Of Services

Evangelist Roy A. Williams of Amityville, N.Y. will conduct a week of services at New Hope House of Prayer on Brown Street here.

These will be healing services and Rev. Williams will also sing and play his electric guitar. Elder Northern Lanier is sharing in the services. The services begin at 8 o'clock each evening and the public is invited, according to the pastor, the Rev. Eddie Davis.

LWV Meet On Tuesday

The League of Women Voters (LWV) of Greenville-Pitt County will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the First Presbyterian Church for consideration of several North Carolina criminal justice issues.

Dr. William Smith, Associate Professor in the SSchool of Allied Health, Department of Social Work and Correctional Services, will lead the discussion.

The purpose of this discussion will be to reach consensus, or "member agreement," on whether or not the following reforms should be made in the N.C. criminal justice system: making pre-sentencing investigations mandatory; requiring N. C. judges to state in writing the reasons for a sentence in every criminal case; narrowing the limits of judicial discretion by more narrowly defining the range of criminal penalties; and instituting a system of appellate review of sentences.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Watching Their Holiday Lights

By The Associated Press

Street decorations won't burn as long in most Carolina cities this Christmas as before the 1973 energy crunch.

Many cities, like Hickory, N.C., and Columbia, S.C., used to keep theirs on until dawn. But this Christmas season, Hickory will turn them off at 10 p.m. and Columbia at about midnight.

In downtown Charlotte, there won't be any decorations on light poles for the second year in a row.

MEET TONIGHT

Concerned Women for Justice will meet tonight at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Angel Phillips, 603 Bancroft Street.

Mrs. Latham Traveled To New York As 'Surprise'

GREENVILLE WOMAN SPEAKS . . . Mrs. Lavinia Latham recently traveled to New York City as guest speaker at the 1975 American Jewish Society for Service reunion.

"I have never had a better trip in all my life," said Mrs. Lavinia Latham after she returned from New York City.

Mrs. Latham, a Greenville resident, traveled there a few weeks ago as guest speaker at the reunion for the work campers of the American Jewish Society for Service (AJSS). She returned home full of joy and praise.

She was the "surprise" speaker at the reunion, which included the AJSS campers who renovated her home at 1310 S. Pitt St. this past summer. The group of Jewish teenagers, sponsored by the Greenville Ministerial Association, lived in Greenville while working on 15 homes.

Mrs. Latham arrived in New York City without knowing she was to be the honored guest speaker. She said she was greatly surprised when she was asked to address the group so she spoke mainly on two subjects very close to her heart — religion and education. She also praised the group for its work.

She is an 82-year-old, black, retired teacher who is currently involved in establishing an integrated church in Greenville. She has spent 52 years teaching language arts in North Carolina schools.

"God is the intelligence of intelligence," she told the AJSS group. "You know that God didn't have to go to an institution to get His intelligence. When He made man, He made him independent; man needs no buttons to make him move."

She sees actions as the basis of her religious beliefs. "I show people that I love people," she said.

She told the Greenville group of workers, "Some of the residents of Greenville called you hippies and you were criticized. But you did good work. Christ too was criticized but he didn't stop and neither should you."

Henry Kohn, chairman of the AJSS, said she "has the unique gift of taking her religious convictions and finding tranquility, stability and inner peace through her words and acts of love. She is truly Greenville's gift to New York."

While in New York, she spent Sunday with the AJSS workers, who met at the Temple Emanu-El.Monday was the "height" of her trip, she said, when she visited the United Nations in session, and went to. St. Patrick's Cathedral and Central Park.

She was accompanied on the trip by Linda Williams, a VISTA volunteer who was in charge of the AJSS workers in Greenville.

Since her return home, her experience has been broadened further by numerous letters.

She encourages everyone to visit New York City if possible.

"Don't stop 'til you go to New York City and visit the UN, Central Park and St. Patrick's Cathedral."

Reserve Your Mother's Right

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14-years-old and need your help. My girl friend's mother lets her kids call her "Rosemary." I think that's neat.

I tried calling my mom "Shirley," and I nearly got a hit in the head.

How can I get my mom to get with it like my girl friend's mother?

SANDY

DEAR SANDY: If by "getting with it," you mean she should allow you to call her by her first name, I can't help you. Respect your mother's right to be addressed according to her wishes. If you have children and want them to call you "Sandy," that's your privilege.

DEAR ABBY: I send this letter out of gratitude for recommending Overeaters Anonymous. It saved my life.

In December 1973 I weighed 326 pounds. If my high blood pressure or heart trouble wouldn't eventually have killed me, I'd have done it myself. I lived with loneliness, depression and despair.

I was a heroin addict and a 23-year-old divorced mother of three on welfare. I hated myself enough to prostitute my body to get money for dope. I suffered humiliation after humiliation. (A 300-pound prostitute gets all the sadists and perverts no other hooker will take.) I had no self-respect, no hope, no God—no nothing.

I wrote to you, never expecting an answer. Your letter was the first word of encouragement I had had in years. I took your advice and went to an O.A. meeting in June of '74. I believed none of it. "These people are crazy," I thought, "I'm a fat, ugly junkie, and they're telling me I can get thin and regain my self-respect if I want to!"

"No way," I told them right out loud. No one threw me out. A beautiful, middle-aged man put his arm around my shoulder and said, "Come back and listen. Try us for 30 days. What can you lose?"

I didn't believe him, but I went back, and back and back.

Today I've lost 121 pounds, and I'm still losing. I'm drug-free, and I'm learning to like myself. I have a responsible job, a belief in a power greater than myself, and the love and respect of my children and people who believe in me when I didn't believe in myself.

There is no scale at O.A. They don't shame you if you backslide. They are a group of loving, caring, supportive people who are there to help you because they have been helped themselves.

After sinking so low, O.A. gave me a chance to be what I've always wanted to be: a lady.

How can I thank you for sending me there?

"BORN AGAIN" IN GROTON, CONN.

DEAR BORN AGAIN: You owe me no thanks. I merely threw you a lifeline. You caught it.

DEAR ABBY: I was a happily married woman until my husband came home and calmly asked me if he could bring another woman into our home to have sex with us.

He told me that other couples do this sort of thing all the time. He said it helps them improve their sexual relationship in marriage.

When I absolutely refused, he became angry and called me a "square."

Abby, if that's the kind of sex he wants, I don't think I should be married to him. So what's your answer?

SQUARE IN INDIANAPOLIS

DEAR SQUARE: If you're a "square," I want to be in all four of your corners. Your husband's attitude about sex is sick. He needs help on the couch—with a doctor!

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Despotism Is Still The 'Norm'

Americans have lived with the assumption that theirs was a system of government other peoples admired, perhaps envied, and many have certainly tried to emulate.

The freedoms and safeguards to freedoms in the American constitution we've treasured for almost 200 years are looked upon as the epitome of human endeavour toward protecting individual rights within a framework of republican government.

Actually, in the milleniums leading to 1776, authoritarian rule was the norm. Governments and nations and states differed chiefly in the degree of oppression endured by their people. And when it came to pass that in The New World an assemblage of elected representatives of North American colonists adopted for themselves and their posterity a governmental system based on theories and philosophies of individual rights, it was truly a Revolution (with a capital "R") in government.

It seemed to all that with evidence the system was working, others would try it; and many did. New constitutions based on that of the United States were adopted; but over the years those attempts at republican government have not had a lot of success. Our own history has shown occasional instances of leaning toward despotism.

These and other reflections crossed our mind on reading and re-reading words of U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Daniel Moynihan. He noted that of the 143 member states in the UN, only about two dozen can be called democracies; perhaps another 30 are not quite despotisms and "the rest are out and out despotisms."

It is sobering to reflect too that most of the new governments appearing among former colonies and possessions have accepted despotic systems of rule; and the unrest and turmoil existing in several countries today is a contest between democracy and the forces of individual oppression.

It seems as though the tide of history runs against the philosophy of individual freedoms. Most of today's democracies (with the major exception of Japan) are Western nations with traditions of human liberties. The rest lean away from that concept. Have we ever before thought of democracy as an endangered species?

A Twisted Way Of Getting Your Kicks

Lynette (Squeaky) Fromme is a nobody who has been basking in the reflected glory of having pointed a gun at the president of the United States.

To us, that's a twisted way of getting your kicks. There comes a time, however, when such people have to pay the price for their comparatively brief moments in the public eye.

For Squeaky Fromme it came last week. A jury, after 19½ hours of deliberations, found her guilty of the attempted assassination of a president.

Unless a higher court intervenes, it could mean many years in jail and a lapse back into obscurity for Squeaky Fromme. Maybe for a nobody, it's worth it. To us, it's not comprehensible.

Terry's Uphill Fight

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—The major problem facing Terry Sanford in his uphill presidential campaign was plainly evident last week in Wilmington, where both Sanford and Wallace addressed a convention of Jaycees.

Wallace plainly turned on his audience much more than Sanford did his. Some of that may be attributable to scheduling. Sanford addressed a breakfast meeting held the morning after a party that culminated with firetrucks being summoned (as a "joke") to the Jaycees' hotel in the wee hours.

Wallace addressed the convention the evening before. He gave his standard, rambling talk.

It is easy to laugh at a presidential candidate who takes positions like "I have nothing against the environment. I was raised in the environment. I just think we need to take a middle course."

Or one who says that the United States would not be facing the foreign difficulties it does if foreign policy had been made by the members of his World War II bomber crew. Wallace's speech was laced with such observations.

Sanford countered with an idealistic appeal. "I will not campaign by talking of an America where everything is backward. America needs someone who will speak for positive approaches, who will talk about the qualities that will unite us and who calls on the best that is in us," he said.

That was the approach Sanford took 15 years ago, when he last successfully campaigned for the votes of North Carolinians. It worked then, but there is reason to doubt it will work now.

In the intervening years, Americans have been called to greatness and sacrifice many times. Where has it led them?.

They have seen three of the leaders who called them assasinated. They have seen the idealistic optimism of President Johnson's call to Vietnam degenerate into the tunnel without end. They have seen the civil rights era evolve into the era of forced busing. They have been betrayed by Watergate.

They have been left a residue of frustration, mistrust and bitterness. George Wallace is uniquely capable of playing on those frustrations.

Terry Sanford's challenge, then, is to make the people respond to his positive approach. It will not be easy.

Ethics Law Is Confusing

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The hotly debated, much amended, and hastily adopted Legislative Ethics Law takes effect this week—amid much confusion.

The disarray of the law which was supposed to guarantee financial disclosure and ethical conduct among members of the North Carolina General Assembly is further proof that actions taken in closing days of legislative sessions often miss the mark.

The Legislative Ethics Committee established under the law will hold its first formal meeting this week, immediately faced with a host of brain-twisting problems:

—Since the law becomes effective December 1, are current members of the General Assembly subject to it?

No System

—A complex procedure for notifying those who are supposed to file, the forms to be used, and the method of filing and keeping open for public inspection those reports is spelled out in the law—without any money to carry out all that.

—Supplemental reports from those already in office are required, and forms called for to meet that purpose, again without funds.

—The chairman who is convening the first meeting will fill that post for just 31 days, because the law calls for a senator to serve as chairman in odd-numbered years, a representative in even-numbered years.

State Senator J. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, is the 1975 chairman, and in his letter calling members for the first meeting this week, he refers to those problems which make the law "ambiguous in several areas," and says the committee needs to determine the intent of the law.

Adopted in mid-June, just before adjournment, the law was hotly debated in both chambers of the General Assembly. Arguments ranged from those who felt legislators are indeed ethical people and need no rules in writing; to those who wanted strict disclosure of every business dealing by a legislator or his family.

Pushed strongly by Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., the ethics legislation finally passed with rules for some financial disclosure by candidates and those already in office, but bowing to the demands of lawyers, specific identification of clients is generally not required.

The financial disclosure statement is supposed to identify any business of which the candidate or legislator is an employee or officer, or in which he owns at least $5,000 worth of stock.

Real Estate

Any real estate owned, under option, or leased worth more than $5,000 must be listed (excluding the homeplace), and each creditor to whom he owes over $5,000 must be identified (again, excluding the home mortgage).

For legislators who deal with clients, any from whom he gets at least $2,500 per year must be identified as to type of business — but not their names.

The same information is required for members of the immediate household of the candidate or legislator, and must be filed with local election boards in the case of candidates, or with the legislative services officer for those serving in the assembly. Copies are open for public inspection.

The law also prohibits taking anything of value in return for a vote in the legislature, or using for personal gain any information gained as a member of the assembly.

Rules are also drawn for determining whether a legislator has a conflict of interest in any matter on which he works as a committee member or on floor votes.

The Ethics Committee is to design the forms and notifications, set up the reporting and filing system, hear complaints and hold hearings on them, and generally supervise the system.

The first economic interest statements are due January 15, 1976, but the big question now is whether this General Assembly will have to report, and if so where will the forms come from.

The Tennis Love Story

WASHINGTON—This is a tennis love story. I wouldn't write about it, but it is typical of so many that I have heard lately.

Bob saw Patty for the first time at the Meadow Lane Racquet Club when she was sitting in a chair watching him play. Patty was wearing a one-piece Oleg Cassini white-on-white tennis dress with blue lace on her panties. Her rich blonde hair was tied back with a blue ribbon and she had blue tassels on the back of each tennis sock.

Bob sauntered up and said, "Care to hit a few?"

Patty lifted her sunglasses and her face reddened. "I'm not very good."

"Nonsense," Bob laughed, "you look like a natural." His strong arms lifted her out of her chair. "The thing you have to remember is to keep your eye on the ball and get your racquet back."

"I feel so silly," Patty said. "I'll never remember to do both things at the same time."

They started to rally. Patty missed 7 out of 10 balls.

"I'm sorry," Patty apologized.

Bob said, "You look so cute when you miss, it doesn't matter."

Every day they met on the court and Bob, with great patience, showed Patty the rudiments of the game.

Then one afternoon another couple asked them if they would like to play a game of mixed doubles.

"Oh, I couldn't," Patty said.

"Of course you can," Bob told her. "Come on, we'll beat their pants off."

Bob played his heart out and, while Patty didn't help much, they won two sets.

"Oh, Bob," cried Patty, "I never thought it would be like this."

"I love you," Bob said. "Will you marry me?"

"Yes, Bob, yes," Patty said as their lips met.

They would have probably remained there is that position except someone had reserved the court for 3 o'clock.

The next month they were

Other Editors Say
Paper Purgers

(Greensboro Daily News)

Most Americans are all too familiar with the annual tax returns supplied by the Internal Revenue Service, and some may have had to deal with a whole range of other government forms, reports, and documents which must be filled out periodically and in triplicate, if one is lucky.

But imagine what it must be like on the other end, in those little cubicles in Washington, where government employes by the thousands spend their days processing all that paper-checking it, stamping it, verifying it, passing it along, and filing it away. Pushing paper from one desk to another must consume a vast portion of the federal work day; considering the nation's employment situation, we're almost afraid to ask exactly how vast a portion it is.

But a Federal Paperwork Commission, which sounds vaguely like a joke, has been established recently to do just that; fourteen blue-ribbon types (distinguished members of the bureaucracy, the business community, and the Congress) have been empaneled to investigate and root out all the unnecessary paper in government.

Theirs must be a rich subject of contemplation: The co-chairman of the commission, New Hampshire Senator Thomas McIntyre, says that ten billion sheets of paper are shuffled by government employes every year—that's enough to fill New York's Shea Stadium fifty times over with paper, and perhaps no more useful. The whole business is not only cumbersome and wasteful, it's wildly expensive. The cost of shuffling paper, depending on which paper-work panelist you consult, drains anywhere from $18 billion to $40 billion from the U.S. economy, because all of us have to pay, whether in higher prices or heavier taxes, for the federal government's terrible habit—and the state's, for that matter.

We suppose the commission, several hundred shuffles of paper from now, will come up with a call for self-restraint, perhaps by issuing guidelines to each agency, to cut its paper flow by x per cent. The President, in a show of good faith, has already ordered the Office of Management and Budget to cut out 500 of its forms by next year, and that's an excellent example to set. Congress could do its part by rewriting laws that require bureaucratic reporting so frequently, so voluminously, and so repetitively.

The commission's task is a formidable one, and one fraught with all manner of obstacles, not the least of which is the bureaucracy itself, where paper seems to beget paper and its pushers more pushers. But if any less shuffling can be effected by the commission, it will be an accomplishment extraordinary enough to take the giggle out of the commission's name.

The Do-Nothings?

Three-Week Congress Test

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Congress returns today from its Thanksgiving recess, the lawmakers will begin an intense three weeks which could influence the final verdict on this session of Congress before the election year begins.

The final rush before adjournment, tentatively set for Dec. 19, may help decide whether this session of the heavily Democratic 94th Congress was do-nothing, as the Republican President has been saying, or whether the session has been busy and productive, as the Democrats have been contending.

The lawmakers face a formidable pile of unfinished business.

One of the first items on the agenda is President Ford's proposal to grant short-term federal loans to New York City of up to $2.3 billion a year for each of the next three years.

After Ford announced his plan last week, Senate and House leaders said it was possible that Congress would act speedily to approve the plan before Dec. 11, when New York City faces a threat of default. The House was expected to give quick approval to the plan; prospects in the Senate were less certain, with a filibuster promised.

In the first five working days this month, House Democratic leaders also have scheduled work on such legislation as tax cuts and revisions and the energy bill that has been in the works for most of this year.

Hardly anyone expects all this to be done in five days. But the scheduling illustrates the leaders' intention to leave as little as possible for the second session that begins in January and continues into campaign time.

Ford has accused Congress of showing itself unable to agree on a policy to guide the country through the energy crisis and of ignoring, when it did not actually block, his proposals for spending cuts to curbing inflation.

A House Democratic leadership "issue paper" contends that "Congress refused to knuckle under to the President's demands for higher fuel prices as a simplistic solution to the nation's energy problems."

The energy bill would mandate a price rollback and then gradually decontrol petroleum prices. It has provisions intended to encourage energy efficiency in automobiles and other devices, stimulate coal production and use, and provide standby authority for gasoline rationing.

Ford has not said whether he would sign the bill.

House Democratic Whip John J. McFall, D-Calif., however, said in an interview, "It looks like the President is almost going to have to sign it ... He doesn't tell the people he proposed nothing but to raise the price."

A separate bill, now in House-Senate conference, would authorize $5.8 billion for research and development in all forms of energy.

In the battle over government spending, Congress has rejected most of Ford's recommendatins for recession — cancelling or How Rebound If Prices Rising?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If you don't already have enough economic matters to dwell upon, you might consider these:

—If prices are rising, asks the ordinary consumer, who is legion, how can the country rebound strongly from recession?

If you are an habitual reader of scores of economic reports from banks and businesses and business schools and other places on high, you cannot but observe that the professionals really don't come to grips with this question.

For the consumer, it isn't a matter of coming to grips with it; contrarily, he and she are gripped by it. There is no ignoring higher prices or what they do: they turn off spending, whenever it can be turned off.

There is no theory or need for theory to explain what is happening in the pocketbook. It is there that reality exists, and it cannot be ignored. There is no room or time for dreaming, because the dreamer starves.

At the professional level, where almost everyone is caught up in theories and computer models and dogma, this elemental consideration sometimes seems not to fit. There is an awareness perhaps, but not an appreciation.

On the battle front, it is the only consideration.

The battle front, of course, is the market place where the consumer does his spending. Two-thirds of this economy of ours is made up of consumer spending. It is almost impossible, short of war, for the economy to grow if the consumer isn't a strong participant.

The professionals don't deny this; they proclaim it. But then they go on to expect the consumer to win the war, so to speak, while the enemy is advancing. The enemy is inflation, and the consumer retreats from it.

The figures for October show that enemy inflation rose at an 8.4 per cent annual rate, which puts us right back to the identical level that prevailed in the first quarter of the year. No improvement.

Retail sales, meanwhile, are admittedly "less than had been anticipated," as the too-familiar phrase reads. Even the Commerce Department concedes that.

The consumer, however, is a bit baffled by the anticipations of the "experts." He asks: "What did you expect?" To him it is axiomatic: When you raise prices you don't want me to buy."

Why, then, are prices rising? If consumer demand is off, shouldn't prices fall in order to encourage buying? That's the theory — and it's also the problem the experts should be dealing with. Theory is their business, just as the reality of the market place is where the consumer is expert.

The second consideration is, for the mass of people, a far more enjoyable prospect. The age of workers' capitalism has already begun, says a man who should know, he being the portfolio adviser on millions of dollars of investments.

"The time is fast approaching when the workers will own the bulk of America's capital," says John Wright, in an address written for a meeting of the International Longshoremen's Association in Bal Harbour, Fla., Monday.

Wright, who runs an investor's service in Bridgeport, Conn. that numbers scores of banks among its customers, maintains that the new capitalism is resulting from legislation permitting tax-free accumulation of capital for retirement.

"The workers will progressively become the principal owners of American business through the pension and profit-sharing plans of which they are beneficiaries," he said, concluding:

"This is, moreover, the most equitable, most efficient kind of American capitalism because the workers, including the hard-working managements of American corporations, are the people who ought to own America and stand to benefit from its successful growth."

TROUBLE FROM HEAVEN?

"Why has God sent this dreadful thing upon me?" It is with this despairing question that many, if not most people meet their troubles.

But God does not send trouble upon human beings. He made a perfect world at some time long in the past, and man, by his sin, has since that time made it into a place of pain. God is not responsible for this distortion of his purpose. He does not create trouble or send it upon human beings to try them, but he often does take the trouble which men have made and utilizes it to a great end. Instead of engulfing us in our follies, his loving hand comes down and supports both the guilty and the innocent that they may survive and pass onward to better things.

We are never promised security in this world as a reward for goodness. Instead, we are promised that if we obey God, he will give us his support. No matter what happens to us we can be confident that powers vastly beyond our own are being extended to us every minute of our lives.

married at the Racquet Club. Then they went off to John Gardiner's Tennis Camp for their honeymoon.

When they came back Bob returned to his brokerage business, but Patty played tennis every day. Pretty soon she was as good if not better than Bob.

Then one Sunday, a year later, it happened. They were playing in a mixed doubles club tourney. Patty hit a ball into the net.

Bob said bitterly, "Don't hold your racquet down, stupid."

"If you would stop poaching, idiot," Patty shouted at him, "I could see where to hit the ball."

"How can I when you won't even run for a drop shot?"

"Look who's giving lessons," Patty yelled. "Why don't you work on your net game?"

Bob threw his racquet down in disgust and walked off the court.

It went on like this for months. Then rumors started flying. Bob was sneaking off to volley with a Virginia Slims cigarette girl at the McLean Indoor Tennis Courts. Patty took to secretly lobbing in the morning and picking up any strange man to play with her.

It came as no surprise when Patty finally flew off to Wimbledon to get a divorce.

She charged Bob with incompatibility.

He charged her with foot-faulting.

He also said she always called his baseline shots out.

She said he never gave her enough money for new tennis balls.

He said she squandered the household money on gut instead of nylon tennis strings.

The judge decided there were enough grounds for a divorce. He awarded Patty the Gucci tennis bag, but gave Bob visiting right to see his trophies.

Bob and Patty rarely see each other any more, but when they do they walk on opposite sides of the net.

The members of the Racquet Club are split down the middle on the breakup. The wives think Patty was to blame for never developing a spin on her serve. But the husbands all say, "Bob was at fault. He shouldn't have encouraged Patty to play tennis in the first place."

reducing — of appropriations already voted. It has ignored his call for a spending ceiling to be set in advance to reduce outlays by $28 billion in the next fiscal year to offset $28 billion in tax cuts taking effect earlier.

Democrats have argued the contemplated timing was political— tax cuts before the 1976 election, but with reductions in popular government programs to be felt only after the voting.

More broadly, they have accused Ford of a one-sided approach to the frustrating national dilemma of simultaneous inflation and recession. The Democrats say Ford has concentrated on reducing government spending to fight inflation, while proposing little in the direction of stimulating the economy to provide jobs for the unemployed.

The Democrats took the other course, and Ford retaliated, using the veto power more freely than other presidents of recent years.

Congress passed a $5.3 billion bill intended to create jobs. After it was vetoed, a $2.9 billion package was enacted.

A big housing bill was vetoed. Congress responded with one authorizing mortgage subsidies and protection against foreclosure for unemployed homeowners.

Congress overrode three of Ford's 12 vetoes this year, enacting health revenue sharing, education appropriations and school lunch measures he had opposed as too expensive.

Congress also rejected his proposal to limit increases in Social Security, civil service and military retirement payments, allowing a full cost-of-living raise to go into effect.

A bill still in Senate-House conference that may bring on another confrontation would authorize $5 billion for local public works.

The foreign military aid bill, including funds for the Sinai program, is expected to be on the House floor in early December, along with a Senate-House compromise measure on economic foreign aid.

On the tax front, the House Ways and Means Committee sent to the House a two-part revenue bill. It would extend and modify the short-term reductions in effect this year in individual and corporate income taxes. In what the committee has termed the reform area, the bill fell short of reformers' expectations.

It would, however, cut back somewhat on so-called artificial losses used as tax shelters and stiffen the minimum tax assessed on large incomes enjoying preferential tax treatment under the present code.

Several amendments to cut back further on alleged tax preferences will be offered when the House takes up the measure on the floor.

There is no prospect that the whole bill can be finally acted on by both the Senate and House before adjournment. At some stage, the tax cuts probably will be split off and passed as separate legislation.

The alternative would be a jump in tax withholding in January, a development that could impede economic recovery.

Cuban General In Angolan War

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Cuban general close to Prime Minister Fidel Castro reportedly is in Angola to help Soviet-backed forces battling for control of that newly independent African country.

U.S. intelligence sources say Brig. Gen. Julio Casas apparently was sent to Angola to direct the handling of weapons and other military equipment being poured in by the Russians.

Casas until recently was minister of services in the Cuban cabinet. Intelligence sources say he has been with Castro since the 1950s when Castro fought successfully to overthrow the Batista regime.

Incomplete data also raised the prospect that at least one other Cuban general was in the former Portuguese colony, possibly commanding troops of the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA).

According to recent estimates, there are some 3,000 Cuban troops in Angola. U.S. intelligence has reported at least six shiploads of men and equipment and 19 airlift flights from Cuba to Angola on Africa's west coast.

Defense officials are uncertain why Cuba, which has no evident national interest in Angola, is committing so much to the struggle there. Some officials suggest the Russians have put pressure on Cuba, in effect calling in obligations for the military equipment and other help Russia has supplied to Castro over the years.

The United States has objected strongly to Russian intervention in Angola's civil war, but so far there has been no let-up in Soviet efforts in support of the MPLA, officials say.

Despite Soviet denials, U.S. intelligence sources insist that at least 400 Russian military pilots, tank crewmen and advisers are serving in Angola. The Russians also are reported to be using their jumbo AN22 transport planes to haul arms, ammunition and other gear from Conakry in Guinea to Luanda in Angola.

The Russians have had a foothold in Guinea for several years, basing naval and long-range patrol planes there.

Old Tires Make A Breakwater

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (AP) — Discarded tires have been chained together to form an effective breakwater near the Dunkirk East Coast Marina. Researchers report favorable results breaking wind and wave action.

More than 1,000 worn-out wires will eventually compose the thousand-foot structure. The tires are assembled in bundles of 18 which are laced together by cable and chain and ride vertically through air trapped in their crowns. They are pollution free, do not interfere with marine migration and provide an anchoring reef for marine life.

NEW YORK (AP) — An optimistic turn in investors' view of the interest rate outlook carried the stock market to a modest gain today.

Trading was relatively quiet.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 1.11 at 861.78, and gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the main influence on the market was the dropoff in the nation's money supply that showed up in weekly Federal Reserve figures issued after the close on Friday.

In the previous two reporting weeks the money supply had risen sharply, touching off concern that the Fed might feel it necessary to adopt a more restrictive credit policy in order to stick with its goal of curbing inflationary pressures.

Some key short term money rates responded to the latest statistics by moving downward this morning.

The optimism on interest rates seemed to be tempered, however, by some uneasiness over the progress of the economic recovery. On Friday the government reported that its index of leading economic indicators dropped for the second month in a row in October.

Westinghouse Electric was the most active issue on the Big Board, up ⅛ at 13⅝.

The NYSE's composite index picked up .10 to 48.34 in the first hour.

Raps Roles In Angolan War

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — U.S. Congressman Andrew Young, calling foreign involvement in the Angolan civil war a "very cynical form of racism," called for American pressure on the Soviet Union and South Africa to end their participation.

At a news conference Sunday, the Georgia Democrat said the U.S. should not share food and technology with the Russians "if they are going to cynically exploit the frustrations and tensions of oppressed people around the world."

The Soviet Union is supporting one of three factions fighting for control of the former Portuguese colony in Africa.

Objects To HQ Name

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman says the FBI's new headquarters dedicated in September as the J. Edgar Hoover building should be renamed because of "the abuse of investigative and police powers under" the late FBI director.

Rep. Gilbert Gude, R-Md., said over the weekend he will introduce legislation to change the name of the building. Gude referred to what he said was a "smear campaign" under Hoover's direction against civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. Gude said the building "should not become a permanent reminder of actions taken in bad faith."

The Senate intelligence committee staff disclosed last month that the FBI, under Hoover's direction, waged a campaign during the 1960s to discredit King. A top FBI official later told the committee there was no legal justification for the 25 separate attempts by the bureau to discredit King.

Gude said, "The abuse of investigative and police powers under Hoover represents a low point in FBI activities and an affront to the nation's values, especially with regard to (the) right to privacy. This abuse should not be memorialized."

The sprawling FBI headquarters is the most expensive government office building in history and it is one of the three largest of Washington's government office structures. It was commissioned in 1962 and was dedicated last September.

At the dedication, President Ford said the $126 million headquarters honors the memory of a "pioneering public servant."

Embezzlement Trial Is Awaiting Ex-Principal

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A former junior high school principal who has been charged with embezzling more than $40,000 in school funds faces trial Tuesday on two misdemeanor counts of falsifying school records.

The Davidson County clerk of courts office said Monday that the misdemenaor trial of C. Douglas Elmore is scheduled for Tuesday in district court.

Misdemeanor charges have been seperated from a three-count indictment accusing him of converting to his own use or misusing $30,646 from the school's cafeteria and general fund and $12,218 from the North Davidson Junior High School's candy and soft drink concessions.

No trial date has yet been set on the more serious charges, which will be heard in superior court.

Elmore resigned after eight years as the school's principal in early Summer, and soon after the county school board called for an audit of the school's finances.

At the time Elmore indicated he had just juggled school books to shift the money from one school project to the other, but since charges were filed he has refused any further comment,

Elmore is free on his own recognizance and now works as a salesman-distributor for a company that sells candy to schools for fund-raising purposes.

A county grand jury indicted him this Fall after an audit by local and state school officials indicated that large sums of money were missing from the school's accounts.

Since the indictment Elmore has had some success in rallying local citizens to his cause. A "Help Elmore" committee has raised some of the money going to pay his legal fees.

Several Mobile Homes Robbed

Pitt County deputies are investigating several mobile home break-ins that occurred in the area over the weekend.

Thomas Meffert of 491 Kenland Manor on Rt. 2, Greenville, reported the theft of some $986 worth of property, including a calculator, stereo, record player and records, from his mobile home sometime Sunday, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

Sheriff Tyson, who said that the incident was reported at 3:35 p.m., noted that entrance to the home was gained through the front door.

Another break-in occurred Sunday at the mobile home of Duffy Lincoln, Rt. 8, Box 309 Greenville, it was reported.

Lincoln told deputies that $570 worth of property, involving stereo equipment and tape deck, was taken from his home while he was away on fishing trip. He reported the incident at 7:45 p.m.

The sheriff said that the front door of the home was forced open to gained entrance.

A Saturday break-in at the mobile home of Joyce Harrel at Colonial Park resulted in the theft of $360 worth of property, including records and tapes and a $100 bill, the sheriff said. Vandalism to a stereo was estimated at $100.

Entrance to the mobile home was gained by prying open a backdoor, it was noted.

Police Hunting Stolen Decoys

Chief Glenn Cannon said Paul Donohue reported the decoys missing at 5:43 p.m. Sunday.

Value of the decoys, contained in four burlap bags, was estimated at $175.

Arrest Youths Inside Building

Three 17-year-old local youths were arrested early this morning on charges of breaking, entering and larceny of Nelson's Lounge at 415 South Memorial Drive.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the three—Wayne M. Clemons and Richard Clemons of 304 Darden Dr. and Gary Wooten of 301 Paris Ave.—were taken into custody inside the building about 12:25 a.m.

The chief said an off-duty police officer saw the three near the Nelson building and reported the incident.

By the time a patrol car arrived at the scene several minutes later to check on the incident the three had allegedly broken into a window and were inside the building.

The franchises we're offering are no better than our product. Our product is chicken. And that chicken is good.

Just plain good. No higher accolade is needed. Golden Skillet chicken is prepared by a secret recipe developed by our founder. The cooking is done in a specially designed cooker, unique enough to have been awarded its own patent by the U.S. Government. But the final proof is in the eating. And those who try it, come back for more.

Satisfied customers, that's the way we've built our business. Built it to the point that Golden Skillets are now operating in 16 states, Canada* and Japan. And much of that growth has taken place within the past 3 years.

The cost of our franchise package is less than half that of the leading burger chains.

With financing arrangements the actual cash outlay, including the franchise fee, can be as little as $15,000 to $20,000.

We at Golden Skillet take immense pride in our product. We've come a long way since our beginning in 1963. We got where we are today because our chicken is good and we'll continue to grow because we intend to maintain these high standards.

Jubilation Among 'Spoilers'

REDSKINS UPSET VIKINGS—Frank Grant, 46, and Jerry Smith, 87, of the Washington Redskins, show their jubilation after Grant scored with 40 seconds remaining as the Redskins rallied to beat previously unbeaten Minnesota 31-30. Looking away is Nate Wright of the Vikings. (AP Wirephoto)

Vikings Stumble; Blanda Wins Title For Oakland

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

All good things have to come to an end some time. For the Minnesota Vikings, it was the end of a perfect season. For the American Conference West, it was the end of a race that never really was.

On Thursday, the Vikings enjoyed not only Thanksgiving dinner but also Los Angeles' 20-0 victory over Detroit. That not only gave the Rams the title in the National Conference West but also enabled Minnesota to back into the NFC's Central championship.

But on Sunday, with the pressure of a divisional race off, the Vikings stumbled and fell 31-30 to Washington on Billy Kilmer's third touchdown pass of the game, a 15-yarder to Frank Grant with 40 seconds to play.

Oakland, meanwhile, squeezed into its eighth divisional title in nine years by beating Atlanta 37-34. But getting the AFC West crown wasn't easy. First, George Blanda kicked an 18-yard field goal with three seconds left in regulation play to send the game into overtime. Then, on the last play of the extra period, the Raiders' ageless wonder kicked a 36-yarder.

The Raiders needed some help to lock up their title — and they got it from Baltimore. The Colts knocked off the Western runnerup, Kansas City, by a 28-14 score.

By doing so, Baltimore tightened up its own race. The Colts pulled back into a second-place tie with Buffalo in the AFC East, half a game back of Miami, which hosts New England tonight. The Bills played the National Football League's other Thanksgiving Day game, beating St. Louis 32-14.

In the rest of Sunday's action, Pittsburgh whipped the New York Jets 20-7, Cincinnati edged Houston 23-19, Dallas beat the New York Giants 14-3, Cleveland tripped New Orleans 17-16, Philadelphia defeated San Francisco 27-17, Green Bay dumped Chicago 28-7 and Denver slipped past San Diego 13-10 in overtime.

"It looked like we were going to lose," said Coach George Allen, recalling how his Redskins had blown a 21-0 first-half lead.

Raiders 37, Falcons 34

For the second straight week it was Blanda, Oakland's 48-year-old place-kicker, to the rescue. Last Sunday he'd beaten Washington with a sudden-death field goal.

"That's two in a row like this," said Raiders quarterback Ken Stabler, who threw four touchdown passes against the Falcons. "It sure makes for an exciting game, but I wouldn't want a steady diet of it."

Colts 28, Chiefs 14

Lydell Mitchell ran 70 yards on a handoff for one touchdown and Jackie Wallace ran 42 yards with an interception for another to spearhead Baltimore's sixth straight victory.

Bert Jones also had a hand in the proceedings against Kansas City. He passed 17 yards to Raymond Chester for a TD and set up Bill Olds' one-yard scoring plunge with a 58-yard pass to Glenn Doughty. Len Dawson passed to Doug Dressler and Larry Brunson for the Chiefs' fourth-quarter touchdowns.

Steelers 20, Jets 7

Terry Bradshaw threw touchdown passes of 44 yards to Franco Harris and eight yards to Frank Lewis and Pittsburgh intercepted four Joe Namath passes to beat the Jets and stay one game ahead of Cincinnati in the AFC's Central Division.

Bengals 23, Oilers 19

John Reaves, making his first start since 1972 in place of injured Cincinnati quarterback Ken Anderson, threw second-period touchdown passes of 34 and 18 yards to Chip Myers to beat the Oilers. Reaves, fighting both Houston and a steady downpour, clicked on 13 of 23 passes for 162 yards.

Cowboys 14, Giants 3

Dallas rode a pair of Roger Staubach bombs past the Giants and into a first-place tie with St. Louis in the NFC East. Staubach hit Jean Fugett on a 54-yard TD pass play and clicked on a 62-yarder to Golden Richards that set up Doug Dennison's one-yard scoring plunge.

Browns 17, Saints 16

Cleveland spotted New Orleans a 16-3 lead, then charged back with two fourth-quarter touchdowns to squeeze past the Saints. Mike Phipps' 22-yard pass to Reggie Rucker started the comeback and Greg Pruitt's eight-yard run capped it.

Eagles 27, 49ers 17

Mike Boryla threw touchdown passes of five yards to James McAlister, 11 yards to Harold Carmichael and 42 to Charlie Young to carry Philadelphia past San Francisco.

Packers 28, Bears 7

John Brockington rushed for 111 yards and three touchdowns in the Packers' rout of Chicago.

Broncos 13, Chargers 10

Jim Turner, whose 23-yard field goal attempt with four seconds left in regulation play was blocked, made up for it with a 25-yarder in overtime to carry Denver past San Diego and keep the Chargers winless.

Investigators Seek Answers To Graham Hill's Death In Airplane

LONDON (AP) — Investigators probing the air crash which killed former world motor racing champion Graham Hill and five of his team were trying to find answers today to two questions as they examined the burnt-out wreckage of the light airplane he had been piloting.

The first question was why Hill, an experienced pilot, chose in heavy fog to continue to head for an airport with only minimal navigational aids instead of diverting to another nearby airport with full radar landing facilities.

The other question was whether ice forming on the wings of his red and white, twin-engined, six-seat Piper Aztec plane weighed it down and was responsible for sending it crashing into trees near a golf course 10 miles north of London Saturday night.

The plane crashed on the course three miles from Elstree Airport after leaving Marseilles, France, and burst into flames. Hill and his team had been testing a new car on a French Riviera racing circuit.

The bodies of Hill, 46 and his five passengers, who included his protege driver Tony Brise, a 23-year-old Briton, were badly burnt.

Hill was the only man to have won racing's Big Three — the World Championship, which he captured twice, the Indianapolis 500 and the Le Mans 24-hour endurance test. The dapper Englishman retired from Grand Prix racing last July to concentrate on building and sponsoring Formula 1 cars.

Airport authorities at Marseilles listed the other persons aboard the plane as engineer Ray Brimble, who designed Hill's latest racing car, and mechanics Andy Smallman, Terry Richards and Tony Halcock. Brimble, Smallman and Richards were all British, Halcock was Australian.

Britain's official aeronautical information service said Elstree Airport has the minimal of navigational aids.

The airport has no instrument landing system, no radar and no directional beacons. But it was Hill's home airport. His plush home set in 30 acres of countryside was only a few minutes drive away from it and he knew the landing procedure there well.

Twenty miles away Luton Airport has full radar landing facilities.

Hill's widow Bette, mourning his death with their three children, said, "Graham has always managed to get into Elstree before. I didn't realize tht it was as bad as it must have been."

She said Hill had flown for about 10 years, never took chances and was "as safe as houses in the air."

New League Will Meet

NEWBERRY, S.C. (AP)— Athletic and administrative officials of the new South Atlantic Conference will hold their first winter meeting Tuesday.

A highlight of the gathering at Newberry College will be a salute to the league's football coach of the year, Newberry's Fred Herren.

Herren, head coach at Newberry for the last eight seasons, received the honor after his team gave champion Lenoir Rhyne its only run for the title. Newbery had been picked to finish sixth in the eight-team league.

Going into the final two weeks, the Newberry Indians trailed the L-R Bears by only one game. However, Newberry dropped its final two games but Lenoir Rhyne kept on winning.

The Indians ended 5-5 overall and 4-3 in the SAC-8.

Herren's 1974 team finished 3-7 and the Chattanooga graduate was faced with rebuilding his offense after losing a good crop of seniors. This year he landed two players on the SAC-8 offensive team, guard Mike McGroatry and center Det Haislip, and the only freshman on the defensive unit, back D.D. Boyd.

Other business facing the league will include refinement of rules and regulations that were hastily outlined last summer so the league could play for a football championship this fall.

Lenoir Rhyne is expected to be officially declared the champion, and members of the all-conference team will be officially recognized.

Quincy Wins Soccer Title

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)— Emilio John kicked a score with 30 seconds left to give defending champion Quincy College of Illinois a 1-0 victory over Simon Fraser of British Columbia in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics soccer championship Saturday night.

The Hawks ended up with a 19-1-1 record for the season while Simon Fraser finished 18-2. Quincy's victory gave it an unprecedented third straight NAIA championship and its sixth in 12 years.

The tournament's most valuable player was John McGrane of Simon Fraser. Earlier in consolation games, Rockhurst took third place by defeating Western New England 2-0. That victory came after John Malinee scored one point on a penalty kick 15 minutes into the second half. Then 15 minutes later, Denny Lee scored the second point, sealing the win.

Fredonia State slipped by Campbell College 4-3 for fifth place honors and Huntington ended up in seventh place by defeating Houghton 3-0.

FIVE OPEN SITES

FAR HILLS, N. J. (AP) — The U. S. Golf Assn. reports that locations for the next five U. S. Open championships have been set. The 1976 event will be held June 17-20 at the Atlanta Country Club.

The 1977 Open is set for Southern Hills in Tulsa, Okla., while in subsequent years the Open has been set for Cherry Hills in Denver, Inverness in Toledo, Ohio, and Baltusrol in Springfield, N. J.

NEW HOCKEY PLAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Under a new pension plan, players with 10 years' National Hockey League service will receive an annual pension of about $14,000 at age 55.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Appalachian State's third-place Mountaineers earned eight spots today on an All-Southern Conference football team which features five repeaters from last year and only six seniors.

Thirteen juniors and five sophomores were named to the all-star team selected by the Southern Conference Media Association and the league's eight coaches with East Carolina's runner-up Pirates getting six spots.

Richmond's champion Spiders, The Citadel's Bulldogs and Furman's Paladins put three players on the squad, Virginia Military's 1974 champion Keydets one.

Earning honors for a second year on offense were seniors Ronnie Moore of VMI at split end and Jimbo Walker of East Carolina at guard.

The defensive repeaters, all juniors, are linebacker Brian Ruff of The Citadel, back Jim Bolding of East Carolina and punter Joe Parker of Appalachian.

East Carolina's Cary Godette, chosen at middle guard as a sophomore in 1973 but injured all last season, returned to the squad this year at defensive end.

The offensive backfield consists of junior quarterback Robbie Price of Appalachian, the league leader in total offense, and three running backs—senior Ken Strayhorn of East Carolina, junior Larry Robinson of Furman and sophomore Emmitt Hamilton of Appalachian.

Junior Dickie Regan of The Citadel is the tight end and sophomore Gary Davis of Appalachian, who kicked 36 extra points and 15 field goals, the placekicking specialist.

Defensively, the line consists of Godette and sophomore Mike Copley of Richmond at end and senior Willie Bryant of East Carolina and junior Dickie Childress of Richmond at tackle.

The linebackers with Ruff are junior Larry Anderson of Furman and sophomore Harold Randolph of East Carolina. In the secondary with Bolding are juniors Ralph Ferguson of The Citadel, Mark Gordon of Furman and Quinton McKinney of Appalachian.

Two seniors who were all-conference choices as underclassmen last year were beaten out by one vote—offensive tackle Rick Bennett of East Carolina by Staton and center Doug Hines of VMI by Beck.

McKinney earned the last defensive backfield spot by one vote over VMI's Johnny Garnett and by two over Richmond's Jeff Nixon. Anderson and Randolph tied for a second linebacking spot two votes ahead of middle guards Phil Upton of VMI and Tony Sparks of The Citadel.

Price, a 5-foot-9, 165-pounder, averaged 149 yards per game in total offense in leading Appalachian to an 8-3 over-all record. He had 1,639 yards—603 and 10 touchdowns on 168 rushes and 1,036 and six touchdowns on 65 completions in 137 passing attempts.

He was aided by Hamilton, who led the conference in rushing with 844 yards and nine touchdowns on 126 carries. Hamilton averaged 76.7 yards per game, a far cry from last year when Andrew Johnson of The Citadel set a league record with 1,323 yards.

Johnson, an all-conference choice and player of the year, was injured in the second game this season and saw no more action.

Robinson was the No. 2 rusher with 780 yards and five touchdowns on 164 carries, while Strayhorn had 638 yards and six touchdowns on 101 carries in the well-balanced East Carolina backfield.

The diminutive Moore—only 5-10 and 169—finished his career among the all-time NCAA leaders in all-purpose yardage with an average of 14.7 yards per play with 4,692 yards on 392 plays.

This year, Moore caught 47 passes for 662 yards and one touchdown, had 21 yards on 11 carries, returned eight kickoffs for 230 yards and ran back 14 punts for 139 yards.

Regan caught 23 passes for 339 yards and had 20 yards on three carries for The Citadel.

The star of the defensive secondary is Bolding, who tied a league record with 10 interceptions and now is among the NCAA leaders with 19 for his career. Ferguson picked off six, Gordon four.

In addition, Ferguson was second only to Ruff in tackling statistics at the Citadel.

Parker, who led the nation in punting last year, slipped a little this season but still had a league-leading 42.6-yard average.

A 'Must Win' For Dolphins

MIAMI (AP) — Earl Morrall, a 1954 Michigan State teammate of New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks, will lead the Miami Dolphins against Fairbanks' Patriots tonight in a crucial American Football Conference game.

The Dolphins, 7-3 after two consecutive losses, must win to stay in front of Buffalo and Baltimore, both 7-4 in the East Division.

And Morrall, the 41-year-old quarterback, has become the Dolphins' key man for the four-game stretch drive and any playoff games. Bob Griese won't be able to return from a toe injury for at least five more weeks.

Fairbanks said he asked Morrall last summer how much longer he was going to play and the 20-year pro replied, "As long as Bob Griese stays healthy."

Old sentiments will die when the nationally televised game kicks off at 9 p.m. EST. When Fairbanks was asked if he would tell his 3-7 club not to blitz Morrall, he replied, "Sure, I'll be happy to make that arrangement if he agrees not to throw any touchdown passes."

Morrall, who replaced the injured Griese and led the Dolphins to 10 straight victories in 1972, declared himself ready again.

"Three years later, I feel we still have the team and I can do it," said Morrall. "When you feel somebody coming, you've got to be able to move. I can still get outside and buy some time."

This is the third time Don Shula has gone to Morrall to save a season. Shula obtained Morrall for Baltimore in 1968 and after Johnny Unitas was hurt, Morrall led the Colts to the Super Bowl.

For the Dolphins, Shula acquired Morrall for the $100 waiver price in 1972 and Morrall threw for 1,360 passing yards and 11 touchdowns. He was named the National Football League's most valuable player after leading the Dolphins to the Super Bowl.

Open With Three Games

By The Associated Press

Three games tonight open the Carolinas Conference basketball season.

Mars Hill will be at Western Carolina, Campbell at High Point and Belmont Abbey at Atlantic Christian.

In Tuesday's only game, Mars Hill will be at South Carolina State.

The firt league game will be played Wednesday night. The Catawba Indians of coach Sam Moir will travel to Guilford to take on coach Jack Jensen's Quakers. Lenoir Rhyne also will be at Elon that night.

And everyone plays on Saturday under this schedule:

North Carolina-Asheville at Mars Hill; Atlantic Christian at Guilford; Pfeiffer at Catawba; and Elon at High Point.

Representatives from the seven schools will meet at Guilford Friday for the league's annual winter meeting. A new tournament for basketball is expected to be recommended.

All sports will be discussed. And the coaches of the year in various sports will be honored at a luncheon. They are Ray Alley of Guilford in soccer and tennis, Stuart Maynard of Guilford in baseball, Jack Jensen of Guilford in basketball, Bob Davidson of High Point in track and Ed Cloyd of Atlantic Christian in golf.

Maryland's Claiborne Is ACC Coach Of Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Maryland football coach Jerry Claiborne whose Terps won the Atlantic Coast Conference title for the second straight season, has been chosen ACC coach of the year.

Claiborne received 51 of the 104 votes by members of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. Runner-up was Chuck Mills of Wake Forest with 28 votes. Lou Holtz of N.C. State, whose Wolfpack will play in the Peach Bowl, received 22 votes. Mike McGee of Duke got the other four votes.

Maryland, headed to the Gator Bowl where it will play Florida, had an 8-2-1 record this season, its best since 1955. The only losses were to Penn State and Tennessee, and the tie was with Kentucky. The Terps led the conference in offense and defense.

In his four seasons at Maryland, Claiborne's teams have won 29, lost 15 and tied two. He was voted coach of the year in 1973 when Maryland had an 8-3 record. This is the third straight bowl team for Claiborne.

Despite the loss of 16 starters last season, Maryland came back to finish with a 5-0 conference record. Claiborne's record against ACC opponents is now 19-3-1.

A native of Kentucky, Claiborne was a defensive back under Bear Bryant at Kentucky and served as an assistant coach under Bryant at Kentucky, Texas A&M and Alabama. He was head coach at Virginia Tech for 10 seasons, compiling a 61-39-2 record there.

Sinatra Chose Permit An Hour-Long TV Chat

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Sinatra, who reacts to reporters as the mongoose does the cobra, is interviewed about as often as the sun rises in the West. But he recently sat for an hour-long TV chat.

Alas, for Sinatra fans, it only was shown in New York on Saturday and is being repeated in the same city today on WNEW-TV. He taped the interview, which contains nothing startling, on Sept. 22 while in town on a singing engagement.

But what makes the thing sort of interesting is that instead of going the national TV talk show route, he chose to lay his thoughts on a relatively obscure local lad who'd met him but twice before.

The lad is Bill Boggs, who hosts a midday talk show on WNEW. Boggs said he met the 59-year-old singer last Easter while visiting Las Vegas, Nev., and again in September during a New York telethon.

He said he'd never asked Old Blue Eyes to appear on his show, figuring that'd be presumptuous, but that Sinatra apparently liked him and decided on his own to tape a 60-minute interview with him.

He said Sinatra set no ban against discussing things like his stormy marital life, or his acid from-the-stage comments about various gossip columnists or his fabled rows with the press in general.

But Boggs said he didn't ask about such things "because I know he didn't want to talk about it ... and I don't really see myself as a journalist interviewing Frank Sinatra. I sat down and had a conversation with him from the standpoint of somebody who really cares about him and somebody who knows enough about him to know what not to ask. Hence, if you really want to be logical, that's probably why he came (on the show) in the first place."

For Sinatraologists, here are a few things The Voice told Boggs:

As a youth, he'd planned to study civil engineering, but was trying his hand at singing. His late father "got a little fed up with me because I just wasn't going out, looking for (nonsinging) work."

Whereupon the elder Sinatra, apparently despairing his boy ever would go to college, one morning said. " 'Why don't you just get out of the house and go out on your own?' ... "

On how he felt after ending his "retirement" of less than two years in 1973: " ... I was struggling, I was really fighting my way out of the doldrums, because when I quit, I let everything go."

On the preference of his son, Frank Jr., for singing Cole Porter and Rodgers and Hart songs in his own night club act: " ... I say fine, but there's also (Bert) Bachrach and Jimmy Webb and a whole bunch of other guys that are writing good things.

"And he says, no, he says, 'I want to do this stuff.' I said, 'Yeah, but they're not buying that now, not always buying it. You've got to mix it in some way.' But he's pretty hard-headed about that."

On his own future: "I guess I'll just keep working until I get just weary enough not to work anymore or the minute a vibrato (a reference to vocal shakiness) shows up in my singing.

"That's the time to go home, when it begins to go like that, that's the time to go home."

N.C. Counts 21 Traffic Deaths During Holidays

By The Associated Press

North Carolina had 21 traffic deaths over the Thanksgiving holiday, only one less than the number predicted by the N.C. State Motor Club.

They pushed the year's toll to 1,331. This is still 115 fewer than at the similar time last year.

The count was kept for 4¼ days, from 6 p.m. Wednesday until midnight Sunday.

There were 24 deaths over Thanksgiving of last year.

Dennis Osborne, 19, of High Point, and George W. Armsworth, 69, of Advance, were killed in a three-car pileup in Davidson County.

The highway patrol said six were injured in the accident, which occurred when a car attempting to pass another on a rural road 8.4 miles north of Thomasville ran head on into another.

Wardell Hunt Jr., 22, of Rt. 2, Fairmont, lost his life in a three-car collision nine miles south of Fairmont. Five persons were injured.

Danny Thomas Powell, 20, of Blanch in Caswell County, was killed when his car ran off a rural road 10 miles north of Yanceyville and plowed into a utility pole. Three were injured.

Sarah Elizabeth Mason, 48, of Aberdeen died when she was struck by a car just south of Aberdeen.

Clyde Everett Gosnell, 48, of Marshall, lost his life when his vehicle ran off N.C. 208 16 miles north of Marshall.

Betsy Moretz Pearson, 20, of Watauga County, was the first reported victim of the holiday period. She was killed shortly after 6 p.m. Wednesday when she was struck by a pickup truck as she crossed a highway near Boone.

Ralph George Gardner, 40, of Jacksonville was killed in a collision on a rural road three miles north of Jacksonville.

John B. Martin, 19, a Camp Lejeune Marine, died when the car in which he was a passenger crashed into a utility pole near the base main gate.

Larry Preston Gasperson, 31, of Asheville, was fatally injured in a collision on U. S. 25-A one mile south of Asheville.

Jack Frazier Robinson, 52, of Elkin, was killed when his car collided with a tractor-trailer truck on U. S. 421 two miles west of North Wilkesboro.

John Wayne Stocks, 17, of Rt. 1, Snow Hill, was killed near Ayden. His bicycle was struck by a vehicle on a fog-shrouded road.

Larry Carl Schoen, 19, of Camp Lejeune, died in a wreck four miles east of Jacksonville.

A pedestrian, Sammy Edward Newkirk, 59, of Wilmington, was injured fatally near Burgaw.

A Pitt County wreck killed Esther Gardner, 48, and Russell Haywood, 36, both of Grifton.

Others killed during the holiday period were Rufus Edward Bowling, 51, of Rougemont, in a collision near Durham, and Robert Swain, 52, who was struck by a car near his home in Windsor.

Joseph A. Henson, 13, of Landis, died when the car in which he was riding went out of control on a rural road in Rowan County and struck and embankment.

Ralph George Gardner, 40, of Jacksonville, died in a two-car collision at an intersection in Onslow County.

Teresa Hilton Smith, 50, of Rt. 1, Windsor, was killed in an accident in Bertie County.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Showers expectable Wednesday through Friday with possible snow in the mountains. Highs in the east will be in the 40s gradually warming into the 50s by Friday.

Cold Front Due Tonight

By The Associated Press

A cold front has pushed across western North Carolina. It will reach the coast by early tonight.

Scattered light rain is accompanying the front. Colder air will cover the state through the middle of the week.

Considerable cloudiness and a chance of light rain will prevail today.

Highs today will range from the 40s in the mountains to the 70s along the coast. It will be warmer in in the forenoon than in the afternoon, a reversal of usual conditions.

Under clear skies with diminishing winds, overnight temperatures will rage from the 20 in the mountains to the 40s near the coast.

Partly cloudy skies and rather cold temperatures will prevail Tuesday. Highs will range from the 40s in the west to the 50s in the east.

Considerable cloudiness and mild temperatures prevailed yesterday. Afternoon temperatures east of the mountains were 10 to 15 degrees warmer than those of Saturday. The highs ranged from 57 at Asheville to 74 at Wilmington. Maximums in the low 70s were common across the eastern half of the state.

A few showers spread into the mountains Sunday afternoon and eastward across the Piedmont during the night. Rainfall was light.

Brisk southerly winds will shift to the northwest along the coast late today and early tonight. Small-craft advisories may be needed for the coastal waters and sounds later today.

Churchman Chooses Not To Be A Bishop

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Saying he prefers to be a priest than an administrator, the Rev. Martin R. Tilson of Birmingham, Ala., has declined to become Episcopal Bishop of Louisiana.

The unprecedented announcement sent shock waves through the state's tightly knit Episcopal diocese.

"I have just heard from Father Tilson and he has decided not to accept," acting Bishop R. Heber Gooden said Sunday.

The Rev. Tilson, 53, rector of St. Luke's Church, was elected bishop on Nov. 21 during a special convention in Monroe, La. An earlier convention in New Orleans failed to pick a successor to Bishop Iveson B. Nolan after 12 rounds of balloting ended in stalemate.

Bishop Nolan was killed in a plane crash last summer in New York in one of the nation's worst air disasters.

Father Tilson had until Sunday to tell the diocese whether he would accept the post.

He was not available for comment but Bishop Gooden said Father Tilson told him he had decided he belonged in what he called a "pastoral ministry."

"Although I can not tell you word for word what he said the gist of it was that after much prayer and consultation with his vestry and many others he was led to believe he shouldn't accept — that his ministry is more on a one-to-one basis of pastor-priest rather than administrator," Bishop Gooden said.

Father Tilson had said earlier that "the office of bishop is a large percentage of administration and travel. It removes you from the congregation...that's where the action is."

Bishop Gooden said a new convention to elect a bishop probably will be held in January.

"The convention had previously set a Jan. 6th reconvening date to continue balloting if it had not elected a new bishop at the Monroe meeting," he said.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1975, The Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K7 ♡AQ983 ◇AQ72 ♣83
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—You have not yet bid the full value of your hand. Since partner persisted in spades despite the fact that you have shown a preponderance of cards in the red suits, he probably has at least a six-card suit, and perhaps a decent hand. Your doubleton king is adequate support, and we suggest you make an effort to get to game by raising to three spades.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q765 ♡954 ◇83 ♣AQ107
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. Your hand is worth 10 points at a spade contract and partner has shown better than a minimum opening bid. Though you have a balanced hand, you are too weak in the red suits to risk raising to three no trump, and three spades would show a minimum hand with no interest in game.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠743 ♡10 ◇AJ9 ♣AK8652
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have a difficult bid to make. Neither three clubs nor two spades expresses the value of your hand, but a jump to three spades is unappetizing with three low trumps and a rebid of four clubs bypasses three no trump. A temporizing bid of three diamonds is the solution, for partner's next action should enable you to proceed with more confidence.

Q.4—As dealer, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A83 ♡AQ98 ◇AJ1043 ♣8
What is your opening bid?

A.—Tactically, it might be better to open one heart rather than one diamond. The drawback to opening one diamond is that you will be awkwardly placed if partner responds one spade or two clubs—you are not quite strong enough to reverse into hearts, but too good for any simple rebid. By opening one heart, you leave yourself with a convenient rebid, and can bid strongly later if the auction warrants.

Q.5—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK2 ♡K10952 ◇K ♣AQ102
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 NT	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—We won't fault you for bidding four hearts, but our inclination is to pass three no trump. Partner surely has only three hearts, and it's a virtual certainty that he has high-card values in diamonds. Considering the possible duplication of values, nine tricks may be easier to take than ten.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠732 ◇A8743 ♣AK872
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three clubs. Obviously we don't like no trump, so all we can do is try to draw an accurate picture of our distribution. Three spades is a possibility, but we would want better spades to raise a suit that partner has not rebid. Partner would be entitled to expect three to an honor.

Q.7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A76 ♡KQ92 ◇8 ♣K9853
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Two hearts. You opened a near minimum hand, and the fact that you have an excellent fit for partner's suit should not lead you down the primrose path. Your hand has improved significantly but you will have little play for game unless partner can take another bid over two hearts.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ8 ♡10762 ◇K954 ♣62
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Bid four hearts. Your hand is worth 9 points, which is near the maximum you could have for your initial action. Partner is prepared to play at the three-level opposite a possible 6 or 7 points in your hand, so show some confidence in him by accepting his invitation.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1975

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Wind up whatever you've left undone and think out a course of action for the future and ways to acquire the information you need for future success with it.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan ways to achieve greater success through association with those whose backgrounds differ from yours. Communicate with those out of the country.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Keep promises made to the best of your ability. Have a nice talk with your closest tie and reach a better understanding.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make headway on that project you have going with another and complete it, or get it in better condition. Complete other duties, too.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Keep busy at your work instead of being concerned about what others are doing. Take better treatments to improve health.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Although fun is on your mind, first get important duties behind you. Showing more devotion to mate is wise. Have a happy p.m.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Improve conditions at your home before getting into any new projects. Take time for research work. Avoid a troublemaker.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get busy at appointments, shopping, chores and make this a banner day. Study awhile later, then go out for amusement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study ways to better your financial situation. Confer with experts before you get into any new ventures. Relax at home in p.m.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle personal matters wisely before starting new interests and all goes better. Good pals can assist you with something you're not sure of.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new projects before starting them. Get those ornery duties behind quickly. Don't fool around where marriage is concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Go over your list of friends and know which are best to drop at this time so your life becomes more successful, happy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Clear the decks of tasks you've put off, then tomorrow you can get into the new interests that fascinate you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be interested in everything under the sun and should have as fine an education as possible, so plan for it now. Then there can be fame because of the ingenuity in this nature as well as the spirit of adventure. Give good religious training early and teach good manners, thought for others. Sports are a must.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Wooten, Jr., Ned Staton, Administrator, C.T.A. of the Estate of Cherry P. Staton, Respondents," said Order of Court bearing date of November 18, 1975, the undersigned Commissioner will, on the 22nd day of December, 1975, at 12:00 o'clock, Noon, at the Courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina, offer for sale to the highest bidder, for cash, that certain lot of parcel of land lying and being situate in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina, and more particularly described as follows:

Being located in or near the Town of Greenville in the section known as the "Bama," BEGINNING at a point about 95 feet west from a stake on the west side of Pitt Street, 300 feet south of the southwest corner of the intersection of Pitt and Mill Streets; running thence in a westwardly direction about 95 feet to the eastern boundary of McClellan Street; thence in a northwardly direction with the eastern boundary of McClellan Street, 50 feet to a stake; thence in an eastwardly direction at right angles with McClellan Street, about 95 feet to a stake; thence in a southwardly direction parallel with McClellan Street, 50 feet to the point of beginning, the said lot is the western half of Parcel No. 2 described in deed from W. B. Wilson to J. C. Waldrop, recorded in Book T-20, at Page 590 in the Pitt County Registry. The eastern half of said lot having been previously deeded to Mary Brewington, and being also the identical property conveyed to Alma Cox Madison and husband, Edward Madison by J. C. Waldrop and wife, Edna T. Waldrop, deed dated November 24, 1942, recorded in Book D-24, Page 73, Pitt County Registry.

This house and lot is known as 1713 McClellan Street.

The successful bidder at this sale will be required to deposit with the Commissioner ten per cent (10 per cent) of the first $1,000.00 of his bid, and five per cent (5 per cent) on all over $1,000.00 to show his good faith, and will be made subject to 1976 ad valorem taxes, and said sale will be made subject to confirmation of the Court.

This the 20th day of November, 1975.
A. LOUIS SINGLETON,
COMMISSIONER
Nov. 24; Dec. 1, 8, 15, 1975

Most Mayors See No Default

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Virtually without exception, the nation's mayors are confident that no other city will seek the sort of federal aid which President Ford has proposed for New York.

Interviews with more than a dozen mayors at the annual convention of the National League of Cities here showed two reasons for the officials' belief.

First, they say no city would willingly surrender as much control over its finances to state or federal governments as New York has been forced to yield.

Second, in their view, no other city's financial problems are so severe, particularly because other cities have not borrowed to meet operating expenses to the extent that New York has.

The only mayor who did not share the confidence expressed by his colleagues was Democrat Kevin White of Boston, which some observers have listed among the more financially shaky cities.

"I don't know whether other cities will ask for that aid," he said. "We share in common the prospect of falling into the same situation. We are not immune to New York's problems."

The Boston mayor held out some hope, however, that "the bailout of New York might salvage the situation, might save the rest of us."

While of those interviewed only White expressed doubt, mayors traditionally have been reluctant to make public predictions about specific financial problems for their own or other cities for fear of aggravating the problems.

League president Carlos Romero Barcello, Republican mayor of San Juan, Puerto Rico, noted the new state controls on New York finances and said: "Mayor (Abraham) Beame no longer runs New York. And no other city wants to be in that situation."

In remarks prepared for delivery today, Beame himself said, "Our crisis has served to expand the national dialogue about the many problems besetting cities of all sizes and has reawakened a sense of urgency in dealing with them."

"On a national level, perhaps, our problem will inspire progress on measures to relieve some of the financial pressures on all our cities," the Democrat said.

Mayor Ralph Perk of Cleveland, chairman of the National Republican Mayors Conference, put it this way: "I don't know any other city that will come to New York's situation. New York has been borrowing to meet operating expenses for 10 years and I don't know of any other cities that have been allowed to do that by their municipal bond counsels."

Coleman Young, Democratic mayor of Detroit, another city which some viewed as on shaky financial footing, said: "I doubt very seriously that other cities will go that route because it means surrendering substantial amounts of or all your autonomy."

A municipal specialist who has worked with the nation's cities for more than a dozen years listed the following cities as facing the most difficult short-term financial problems: Buffalo and most other New York cities, Boston, Newark, Philadelphia and Detroit.

Farm Scene

By KENNETH R. BATEMAN
Assistant Agri. Ext. Agent

We heard it from the tobacco companies, we felt it on the warehouse floor, and many farmers admit it: the quality of tobacco offered for sale in 1975 was not as good as it had been in the past. One reason for the inferior quality was the weather conditions during the 1975 growing season. Many farmers had problems curing the crop which is another reasons for the lower quality tobacco.

There is little doubt in anyone's opinion that bulk barns are here to stay and that good quality tobacco can be cured in them; however, many farmers will have to choose between the use of racks or boxes in these bulk barns. No matter which container the farmer chooses to use, the end result of preserving the leaf by timely drying, while retaining the potential quality of the cured leaf is still the same. Proper curing is both a biological and drying process which involves chemical and physical changes necessary for high quality tobacco.

As an aid to tobacco farmers using bulk barns, a bulk curing workshop will be held Wednesday, December 3, at 2 p.m. in the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Building, 203 W. Third Street in Greenville. Rupert Watkins, Extension Agricultural Engineering Specialist, will hold the workshop. Mr. Watkins' research and practical experience has provided the basis for many of the modern features in bulk curing. The purpose of the workshop is to help farmers cure quality tobacco without such curing faults as brown scald, green scald sponge, scorch, dead tissue, swell stems, brown rot, etc. He will also give his prediction about the future of bulk curing.

High Risks In Bottled Water

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — That little jug of water you buy at the corner store because it's "more healthful" than tap water could be doing more harm than good, a water quality expert says.

"It's unfortunate. People think they're doing themselves good and they may be doing themselves harm," said Dr. John Christman, director of research at Loyola University.

Christman, who has been studying water quality control for the Environmental Protection Agency, said forthcoming federal regulations may impose the same health standards on both bottled water and municipal water supplies.

"That's a fortunate thing and I hope it happens right away," he said. "Bottled water at this moment is real Russian roulette. You have no idea what's in it, you don't even know if it meets community standards — it may be worse."

The EPA is drawing up new standards for city water, and possibly bottled water, under the Water Quality Act of 1974. The standards are expected to be unveiled about Dec. 15.

The tightened regulations follow the discovery last year that many major cities' water supplies were contaminated by organic chemicals and metals capable of causing cancer in animals.

Those disclosures proved to be a boon for the bottled water industry, as cautious homeowners decided to play it safe and spend a few extra dollars for supposedly pure bottled water.

It may not have been a very good trade-off, Christman said. There are currently no federal regulations governing bottled water which is not sold in interstate commerce.

"Anybody could go out, buy a bunch of bottles and sell tap water," he said. As long as the water doesn't cross state lines, it is of no interest to federal agencies.

Nor is there any requirement that such water be dated.

"You could go to the store and buy a bottle of water that's been sitting on the shelf for seven months or more," Christman said. "That's really dangerous, especially when it's warm," because warm temperatures speed up the growth of bacteria.

After 16 months of study, Christman has concluded that home water purification systems, despite their expense and bother, may be the only feasible way of insuring that water is fit to drink.

To remove all of the germs, chemicals and metals from all of the water pumped through municipal water systems would be a massive undertaking — one that may not be technologically feasible or economically bearable.

Sunday Saw 3 Wrecks

An estimated $2,850 property damage resulted from three collisions investigated here Sunday by local police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 12:31 a.m. Sunday collision on Cotanche Street, 50 feet South of the First Street intersection.

A car driven by Barry William Brown of 907 East Fourth St. collided with a utility pole resulting in an estimated $1,800 damage to the car and $250 damage to the pole, according to police.

Brown was charged with exceeding a safe speed by investigators.

Gertrude Wilson McCoy of Simpson was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 5:10 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard at the Tenth Street intersection.

Officers said the McCoy car collided with an auto operated by Bernice Welton Paramore of 2712 Webb St. causing an estimated $100 damage to the McCoy auto and $200 damage to the Paramore vehicle.

Investigators charged Walter Elbert Norris of 102 South Eastern St. with driving under the influence and driving while his license was revoked following investigation of a one-car mishap at the intersection of First and Greene Streets about 3:45 p.m.
