Cruel Night Of Beirut Fighting

By NICK LUDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian gunmen with their backs to the Mediterranean held out against a fierce encircling assault by Moslem forces in Beirut's downtown hotel and commercial district today.

A police spokesman said more than 50 persons were killed and hundreds were wounded during the night. The government radio said it was "the worst and cruelest night of fighting" in the eight-month-old civil war for control of the country.

Police said at least 125 persons have been killed in the latest round of fighting. It began Saturday night after a massacre by both sides in which police said 128 persons were murdered.

The heaviest fighting was in the seaside area that includes the major tourist hotels, the main commercial district and the banking district, once the financial heart of the Middle East.

An estimated 700 Moslems pushed ahead in a pincer movement that virtually surrounded the Christians, cutting them off from the Ashrafieh, their stronghold inside the city.

Half a dozen big fires burned out of control after fierce rocket and mortar exchanges. They included one in the 500-room Phoenicia Hotel complex where Christian militiamen were besieged.

The Moslems apparently were trying to push to the sea near the port of Beirut, which adjoins Ashrafieh, and cut off the Christian fighters in the hotel and commercial district.

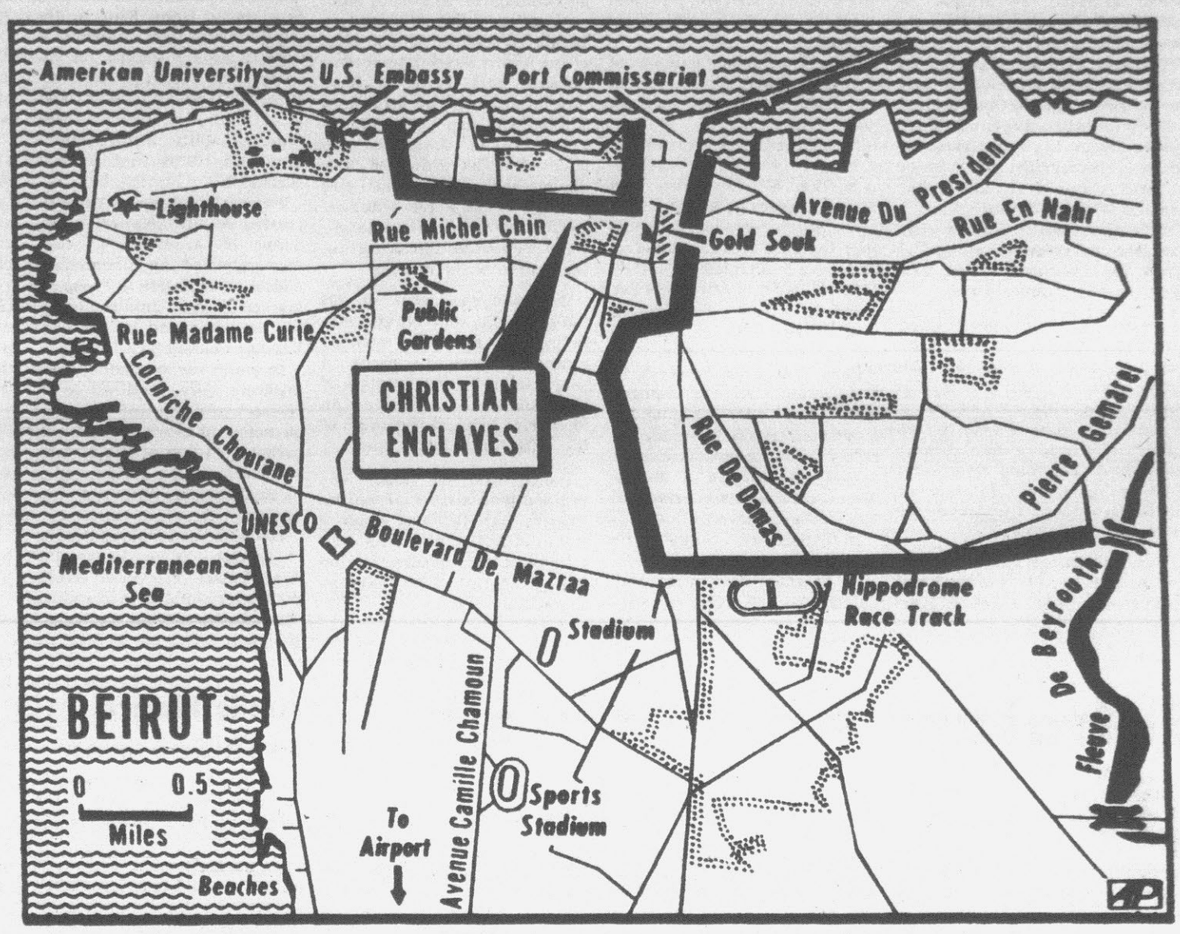

The Christians were holding out in several tall buildings in the area including the Holiday Inn, the Phoenicia, the unfinished Hilton Hotel and the Starco office complex.

The government radio told all residents to stay indoors for the third straight day.

Christian and Moslem militias also traded mortar barrages in suburban battle areas on the northern and eastern sides of the city.

A meeting of 24 religious and political leaders called by Christian President Suleiman Franjieh was cancelled after Moslem leaders refused to attend until Franjieh announces a program of political reforms.

The Moslems want to wrest political control from the Christian minority, which holds the presidency, the armed forces command and the majority of the seats in parliament under a 1943 agreement drawn up when the Christians were in the majority.

Five More Working Days Should Wind Up Mall Job

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Five more working days under favorable weather should wrap up most of the remaining items in the downtown mall project, it was reported at last night's Redevelopment Commission meeting.

T. I. Wagner, Central Business District project manager, told the commissioners that final inspection of the brick paver work is scheduled for Wednesday in the two-block section of Evans Street.

Wagner, noting that landscape work has been completed in both blocks now, said that the inspections should leave only a couple of matters to be taken care of prior to close out.

Commission Real Estate Officer Kirby Boyd told the board that the Texaco Station property on Evans Street in CBD was acquired from the Hooker heirs since the last meeting. No demolition took place in the project area since the November session, he added.

According to Boyd, three acquisitions were made in the N.C. R-134 Southside Project during the period and two demolition cases were handled in the project area.

Three relocations were handled in the CBD project, according to assistant project manager Dan Sullivan. The relocations involved the Slack Shop and Bill Williams Real Estate, both from Dickinson Avenue and North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Co. from the Pollard Building at the intersection of Third and Cotanche Streets.

One relocation was handled in the Southside Project, it was reported by Faye Brewington, project manager.

Joe Laney, executive director, reported on the status of the Shore Drive and Newtown urban renewal programs and indicated that both projects are essentially complete.

He pointed out that in the Shore Drive Project, the last acquisition parcel, owned by UNCO Inc. and in litigation for several years, is being purchased with the settling of the matter in court. The parcel is the main factor that has held up project close out, it was explained.

In addition, final work by the city involving improvements to the Town Common area in Shore Drive have now been completed.

In the Newtown area, all city street improvements are complete and those improvements mark the final work in the project area, he said.

The Commission will now send a letter to the Department of Housing and Urban Development and request a close out audit on both projects. HUD will review the project accounts and make sure the local share of the funding has been provided before closing out the programs. The federal share of the funding will close out the project debt.

Back Before Jurors

DETROIT (AP) — A New Jersey Teamster who last week refused to testify before a Detroit grand jury probing the disappearance of former Teamsters union president James R. Hoffa will be back before the grand jury Wednesday, his attorney says.

William E. Bufalino, who represented Stephen Andretta during his last grand jury appearance, said Monday he expected a court hearing to precede Andretta's grand jury testimony.

Robert C. Ozer, chief of the U.S. Organized Crime Strike force, said last week that the government would seek to offer Andretta immunity for his testimony.

Bufalino said he would oppose the move.

Hoffa vanished July 30. There has been speculation that Hoffa was slain, possibly by opponents within the Teamsters union.

The FBI on Monday dropped obstruction charges it filed Saturday against Andretta's brother and two other New Jersey Teamsters. The trio had been accused of refusing to appear in a federal court-ordered lineup of possible principals in the Hoffa case.

Held In Slaying Of Girl

AYDEN — An 18-year-old Rt. 2, Ayden man is in Pitt County Jail today without privilege of bond after being charged with murder in the shooting death here last evening of a 16-year-old girl.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Wardell Bostic of Rt. 2, Box 173, Ayden, is charged with the murder of Carolyn Crandall of Rt. 1, Box 266, Ayden, on Monday between 7:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Sheriff Tyson, who reported that Miss Crandall was allegedly riding in a car with Bostic and two others when the shooting took place, said that the girl was shot just above the right eye with a small caliber weapon.

The sheriff said that both Miss Crandall and Bostic were students at Ayden-Grifton High School.

He reported that the incident occurred on Snow Hill Street near the Ayden city limits. Bostic was arrested late Monday night and charged in connection with the shooting.

Sheriff Tyson, who said that investigation of the incident is continuing, reported that a hearing will be scheduled for Bostic in Superior Court here.

Tax Bill Stumbling Block

Concern In Senate Over Missing Holiday Recess

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Senate hearings on extension of this year's tax cuts began, Senate leaders expressed hope today of a compromise with President Ford that would permit Congress to recess for Christmas as planned.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Hugh Scott said they hope that Ford could be prompt with any veto so that an override vote could be scheduled immediately.

The President is planning to tell Congress again that he will stand by his vow to veto any extension of the 1975 tax cuts if they are unaccompanied by spending reductions.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford instructed Treasury Secretary William E. Simon to convey that word to the Senate Finance Committee at today's hearing on a House-passed bill calling for tax cuts of about $13 billion in 1976 for individual taxpayers.

The bill, for example, would cut the tax burden for a married couple with $17,500 of adjusted gross income to $2,276. Such a couple paid $2,456 under the temporary 1975 tax cut law and $2,516 under the permanent 1974 tax law.

There has been speculation that a veto on extending the cuts, now due to expire Dec. 31, would be overriden in both houses, and Scott said today that "it is always difficult to sustain" veto of a tax cut.

Assistant GOP Leader Robert P. Griffin declined to say whether he thought a veto on the tax bill could be sustained, telling reporters, "Id have to do some nose-counting."

Ford's instructions were given Monday at an economic policy board meeting in the Cabinet Room, Nessen said.

At the same time, Ford asked his chief congressional liaison aide Max Friedersdorf to study and report on the possibility of keeping Congress in session or calling them back from a year-end recess to enact the bill he wants, Nessen said.

Ford told Simon he would veto any legislation, including proposals for a three-to four-month extension of the tax cuts, unless they are coupled with spending curbs.

Nessen said that Ford met with the policy board, including Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns, Simon, Commerce Secretrary Rogers C. B. Morton, Labor Secretary John Dunlop and Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb, to make his position on taxation clear and to discuss the timetable for the legislation.

Ford's program calls for a $28-billion tax cut program coupled with a $395-billion ceiling on government spending. A budget kept at $395 billion would be an increase over the 1976 fiscal budget — estimated at $370 billion — but would cut the rate of increase in federal spending.

If no tax bill has been signed into law by Jan. 1, tax rates automatically would revert to 1974 levels, resulting in increased withholding from workers' paychecks.

PLACE TO STAY

I am a runaway and need a place to stay. I heard of this place on TV for runaways who need a place to stay. I got down the toll-free number: 800-621-4000, but don't know where this place is at. I'm wondering if you could tell me what state this place is in or how or who I could contact to find out. P.S.

Just call the number, as we did, and ask a lot of questions, as we did. The persons who answered told us that the National Runaway Service is located in Chicago, Ill., and that it's a referral and message service for all areas of the country. Their main concern is to send messages between parents and children, with location omitted if the parties wish. It's a way of saying, "Hey, Mom and Dad, I'm all right," without telling them where you are if you'd rather not.

The REAL Crisis Intervention Center here is listed with this service. The person who answered the REAL phone when we called suggested that you call them. They probably will encourage you to go home or at least contact your family. If you do not, however, they'll help you find a place to stay at least temporarily. The REAL phone number is 758-HELP (4357).

YARD SALE SECTION?

Why doesn't The Daily Reflector have a special section in the Classified Ads for yard sales? This is getting to be a year-round thing in Greenville and yard sale-goers like to clip the ads to use as an address guide to find the Saturday sales. B.R.

Classified Advertising Manager Nelson Adams said a special Garage and Yard Sale Section will be started immediately. He thanks you for your suggestion.

Arms Deadlock Delaying Final Decision Of Trip To Moscow

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is holding up a final decision on a trip to Moscow until he has assurances from the Soviet Union that it is ready to break the nuclear arms deadlock.

President Ford called Kissinger to the White House today to discuss prospects for a breakthrough. Kissinger planned a news conference later in the day.

In Warsaw, attending a Communist Party conference, Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev said his country will do everything it can to ensure that "our planet is never to be engulfed in the flame of nuclear conflagration."

U.S. officials said Kissinger made his point about assurances to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin after summoning him to the State Department Monday evening.

Kissinger still intends to fly to Moscow to confer with Brezhnev before Christmas, the officials said.

But he has yet to make a decision between two options: tacking Moscow on the end of a trip to Western Europe he begins Wednesday or returning home and then setting out separately to see Brezhnev.

These well-placed officials, who barred use of their names, emphasized that Kissinger is keeping these options open until he is assured that the Soviets are prepared to make a deal.

He remains convinced that only Brezhnev has the authority to break the deadlock over a new 10-year treaty to limit offensive nuclear weapons.

At one point, the administration considered a meeting between Brezhnev and Kissinger or possibly President Ford in conjunction with the Soviet leader's particiption in a Communist world conference in Cuba. But Brezhnev's uncertain health at 69 may keep him from traveling to Havana this month.

Opening Bridge

GRIFTON — The new bridge over Contentnea Creek, which has been under construction for more than a year, will be opened to traffic on Dec. 15 at 10:30 a.m.

A ribbon cutting ceremony has been planned to officially open the bridge. Jacob F. Alexander, North Carolina Secretary of Transportation, will be on hand to participate in the program. Also participating will be the Junior ROTC from Ayden-Grifton High School, the drill team, color guard and color bearers for A-G. Grifton Mayor Dave Bosley will serve as the master of ceremonies.

The new bridge is 40 feet wide and includes a walkway for pedestrians and ample space for cars to travel. The old bridge was 25 feet wide and had no walkway for pedestrians.

Implications Of School Redistricting Discussed

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

At the fourth workshop on elementary school redistricting held to date by members of the Greenville City School Board of Education, the session last night at Sadie Saulter School was devoted to discussing input from the school staff.

Input and discussions were centered on six possible alternatives to be considered for working out a better racial balance in Greenville elementary schools— (2) One grade per school; (3) kindergarten through grade three in four schools and grades four through six in two schools; (4) kindergarten through grade two in three schools and grades three through six in three schools; (5) kindergarten through three in four schools and grades four, five and six each in a separate school) and (6) kindergarten through grades one in two schools, grades two and three in two schools; and grades four, five and six in two schools.

Supt. Glenn Cox explained that the school staff input listed on a prepared sheet of the six alternative plans was predicated on seven major considerations related to specific areas of planning. These are: the student; the school staff; transportation; materials and equipment; the instructional program; special services and support services; and school facilities.

In developing criteria applicable to each alternative, the school staff evaluated developments that would likely take place for each of the six alternatives and listed these on a pro and con factor.

Predominant factors that would be involved touched on student changes from present school attendnace; shifting of staff personnel; requirements for additional space; requirements for additional transporation and re-making bus schedules; need for additional classroom space, particularly at Third Street School; and continuity of student contacts with other students and teachers.

Series Of 7 Accidents Investigated Monday

More than $6,800 property damage resulted from a series of seven traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 7:40 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Third Streets involving cars driven by Samuel Stafford Jr. of 302 Paige Dr. and Couy Hartman Tucker of near Winterville.

Officers, who reported no charges, estimated damage at $1,500 to the Stafford car and $1,000 to the Tucker auto.

Again no charges were reported following investigation of a 7:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Meade Streets involving cars operated by Jimmie Lee Jones of 907 Taylor St. and Susan Elaine Jackson of 905 East Fourth St.

Police estimted damage at $100 to the Jones car and $1,000 to the Jackson auto.

Cars operated by Charlotte Nixon Baker of Shady Knoll Trailer Pk. and Edward Earl Bass Jr. of Goldsboro were involved in a 9:32 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 120 feet West of the Hooker Road intersection.

Officers estimated damage at $500 to the Baker car and $300 to the Bass vehicle. No charges were made.

No charges were reported in a 2:35 p.m. mishap at the intersection of 14th Street and West Rocksprings Road.

A school bus driven by Wayne Ray Taylor of 1106 Fairfax Ave. and a car operated by Mary Mitchell Hardy of 1721 Circle Dr. collided, causing an estimated $100 damage to the bus and $600 damage to the Hardy car.

Carla Hartsfield Edwards of 208 Kirkland Dr. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 6:04 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Kirkland Drive and Greenville Boulevard.

Investigators said the Edwards car collided with an auto operated by Charles Ray Saleeby of 1903 Fairview Way causing an estimated $100 damage to the Edwards car and $600 damage to the Saleeby auto.

A 12:10 p.m. collision on Dickinson Avenue, 40 feet West of the Tenth Street intersection involved cars driven by Rose Singleton Britt of Highland Trailer Ct. and John James Forell Jr. of Greenville and resulted in an estimated $300 damage to the Britt car and $400 damage to the Forell auto, according to police. No charges were reported following investigation of the mishap.

Wanda Tyson Jones of 305 Clairmont Dr. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4:10 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive 25 feet south of the Fifth Street intersection.

Police said the Jones car collided with a truck driven by Charles Earl Briley of Route 2 Robersonville, causing an estimated $125 damage to the Briley vehicle and $225 damage to the Jones car.

Troop 398 Wins Badge

The American Heritage Merit Badge was awarded to Boy Scout Troop 398 of Red Oak Christian Church on Monday by Scoutmaster Gene King at the troop's family night meeting.

Receiving the award for the troop were Timmy Branch, Kincey Worthington, John Daley Jr., Ray Branch, George Bateman, Billy White, Butch King, Joey Ellis and Stephen Blackwell.

The merit badge was recently created by the National Boy Scouts of America in commemoration of the Bicentennial and the presentation to Troop 398 marked the first time the badge has been awarded in the East Carolina Council.

To qualify for the badge, troop members were required to do research projects and to report on some phase of American heritage, on one of the historic statesmen of the nation, on a national agency, and on a state agency.

Troop studies involved the city of Raleigh, Duke University, Tryon Palace, the Outer Banks, the libraries of North Carolina, The Lost Colony and the Wright Brothers.

Redistricting...

Dr. Richard S. Schumacher, a consultant in Elementary Guidance from the State Department of Public Instruction, and Dr. Frank Arwood, chairman of the Department of Elementary Education, School of Education, East Carolina University, were on hand at Monday night's workshop session.

Asked for an opinion on the six alternatives presented, Dr. Schumacher noted that "children appear to need some grass roots, a given place, continuity of contact with other children and teachers.

"A continuous upheaval in a child's life, in my opinion, can cause some damage. I feel that what a child's going to get out of this, any programs you have, is the most important thing."

Because of this, Dr. Schumacher said he personally would not favor a plan that would result in a child's changing to a new school each year.

Dr. Arwood said staff members of the ECU Department of Elementary Education were "concerned about the education of children in Greenville.

"At a staff meeting we held, the 12 members of the Elementary Education staff expressed unanimous agreement of preference for a plan for kindergarten through grade six or at least kindergarten through grade five for the city schools.

"From a professional standpoint," he added, "we need above all to keep in mind the children's needs."

For the first time in the workshops, one factor mentioned consistently in the pro and con evaluation of various alternatives was that of compatibility or non-compatability of alternatives in relation to the ECU-Greenville City School agreement applicable to the social special situation at Wahl-Coates Elementary School.

Cox mentioned that "the basic organization of the program at Wahl-Coates was the responsibility of the Greenville City Schools, but it certainly does include cooperative working with ECU."

Saying he did not believe the agreement between ECU and Greenville City Schools would be jeopardized, Cox added, 'there is an option, of course, for ECU to pull out of the program with proper notice given."

Another factor on which considerable attention was focused is that of out-of-district students (students attending Greenville City schools who do not live within the school district and who pay a $60 annual fee to attend a city school).

Cox explained that under state mandates, the approximately 100 elementary out-of-district students now attending the city schools cannot be included in any figure studies on which racial ratios are based. It is the concensus of the board to give due consideration to placement of out-of-district students once a basic formula has been adopted for solving the racial ratio balance.

Since workshop sessions are limited to discussions without any official action allowed to take place, there were no decisions made last night on a formula for a redistributing plan.

However, board chairman Henry Dunn solicited unofficial expressions of preference from school board members. The result of expressions made point to a preference by board members for a basic plan that most likely would be formulated on either alternative number one or number three.

Board member Dr. James Bearden asked Cox to have the school staff prepare another plan on the same six alternatives in which specific weight would be given to the seven major factors listed by Cox earlier as the primary criteria for evaluation of each alternative.

Two more workshop sessions on redistricting are scheduled—the fifth one on the second Monday in January and the sixth one on the second Monday in February.

The regular school board meeting on the third Monday in for Feburary has been set for the date on which the school board will officially adopt a plan to put in effect to achieve a more balanced racial ratio in all of the elementary schools.

Scholars Are Initiated Into Nat'l Honor Soc.

In ceremonies at the University today six seniors, 15 juniors, and five graduate students in East Carolina's School of Business initiated into Beta Gamma Sigma in recognition of their academic excellence in their business studies.

Also, Luther A. Bailey, executive vice-president of Belk-Tyler and member of the board of directors of Belk Stores Services, initiated as an honorary member of the national business honor society. He joins Max Ray Joyner of Greenville as the second person to be so honored in the history of the organization.

Bailey has been a member of the governing boards of many organizations in North Carolina and has been active in business and community affairs. He has been president of the East Carolina Business Foundation, and participant for three years in the Annual Business Career Symposium sponsored by Phi Beta Lambda business fraternity at ECU.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor, is hosting a reception for Bailey, new student initiates and current members of Beta Gamma Sigma.

Dean James H. Bearden of the School of Business pointed out that Beta Gamma Sigma chapters are limited to those schools of business which are accredited by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business and that it is a signal honor to those inducted. Only two chapters are active in North Carolina—at East Carolina University and at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The president of the Beta Gamma Sigma chapter at East Carolina University is Dr. R. B. Keusch.

The new members are: Larry G. Baker, Tom Ivey Davis II, Bobby M. Harris, Keith G. Huskins, Robert H. Newburn, Margaret L. Stevens, Marlene W. Dunbar, Barbara L. Ela, Marian A. Ensor, Patricia Ann Fetner, Ellen M. Heath, Gary Leland Keech, Larry Delma Keech, Kathy J. Lowry, James Dwight Miller, Jan Louise Morgan, Susan J. Murray, Nancy Jean Packer, Martha M. Proctor, Lynn Marie Schubert, Gail H. Weaver, J. Hilton Barrett II, Frederick M. Furland, Dorothy J. Gleason, Frederick M. Richardson, and Hal Duane Tolan.

Bridge Winners

Mrs. Walter Harbin and Mrs. B. V. Payne were first place winners in the Wednesday morning duplicate bridge game at Planters Bank.

Others who placed were Mrs. Ralph Sullivan and Mrs. Jean Cox Jones, second; tied for third were Mrs. William McConnell and Mrs. David Stevens with Mrs. E. L. Baker and Mrs. Stuart Page.

Wednesday afternoon winners included North-South: Mrs. J. S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr., first; Mrs. L. D. Harris and Mrs. Clifton Toler, second; Mrs. William Parvin and Claude Goodman, third.

East-West: Joe Hatch and Dave Proctor, first; Neil Bellinger and Wade Dudley, second; Mrs. S. M. Woolfolk and Mrs. Cora Powell, third.

Saturday afternoon winners at First Federal included:

North-South: Mrs. Dorothy Ritchy and Miss Mildred Harker, first; Mrs. Effie Williams and Mrs. George Martin, second; Mrs. J. M. Horton and Mrs. W. R. Harris, third.

East-West: Mrs. Clifton Toler and Mrs. H. T. Swindell, first; Mrs. Eloise Owens and Mrs. Francina Owens, second; Mr. and Mrs. Greg Williams, third.

P.A.G.E. Will Meet Thursday

P.A.G.E. (Parents for the Advancement of Gifted Education) will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Social Security Building on Plaza Drive. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Glenn Cox, Superintendent of the Greenville City School System, will discuss the Greenville City Schools' enrichment program for gifted and talented children.

The purpose of P.A.G.E. is to promote the creation and expansion of programs for gifted and talented children. For more information call the Membership Chairperson, Kay Davis, at 756-6966.

Pupils Heard Ass'n Speaker

Mrs. Connie Landen spoke to the first, second and third grades at Pace Academy on Friday.

The program was sponsored by the Eastern Lung Association and featured the film "Octapuff in Kunquat." Mrs. Landen discussed the dangers of smoking and pollution with the students.

Mrs. Landen also spoke to the fourth, fifth and sixth grades on how the respiratory system works. This presentation featured the film "Breathing Easy" which showed a set of real lungs and the effects of smoking and pollution on the lungs.

There's Silver Glimmer In The Housing Cloud

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
United Press International

Headlines on the housing industry range from lukewarm to bleak.

The Commerce Department reported a 15 per cent increase in October housing starts, but industry specialists doubted the rise signalled the long-awaited housing recovery.

Advance Mortgage Corporation's third quarter survey of housing activity concluded "this year's housing recovery has been disappointingly weak — and now it's losing whatever steam it had."

A House and Home forecast for 1976 sees a "measured recovery," the most difficult of the postwar era, marked by a tightening money market squeeze, with mortgage rates hovering a little below — if not at — historic highs, new housing disconcertingly expensive and the consumer still trying to get over the worst scare he's had since the 1930s.

But there is a glimmer of silver in the housing cloud: some evidence of a pick-up in single family home activity.

The market for existing homes remains strong — at a record level, according to Advance Mortgage, Detroit subsidiary of Citicorp, New York.

"The real estate picture may not be as bleak as housing statistics imply, at least in some sections of the country," says Ticor Relocation Management Co.

Ticor, polling its regional offices and real estate brokers throughout the United States, found "Homes and mortgage money are available and buyers are back in force.

"Although activity varies considerably by region," Ticor reported, "the general tenor is cautiously optimistic for a strengthening recovery.

"With few exceptions, sales in most real estate markets are up considerably, although not to the level of the boom years of 1972 and 1973."

Ticor said housing prices generally are up more for new homes than for resales, reflecting increased production costs. It found that in 1975, appreciation for resale dwellings slowed to almost half the rate of 1972-73; and values in some areas actually have declined.

Many buyers, it reported, are opting for new homes anyway, in part because of the five per cent tax credit.

A major factor in the resurgence of real estate activity, Ticor said, is the availability of mortgage money. "Except for Minneapolis, which currently has no active market for loans, and Metropolitan New York, Buffalo, Atlanta and Philadelphia, where funds are limited and selective lending is prevalent, all major areas have an ample supply of funds," Ticor said. Although the rates for these mortgage funds have begun to inch up again, they are generally lower than a year ago, the company noted.

There is no lack of consumer interest in housing. Along with the normal factors influencing home buying, demand is generated currently by consumers seeking protection from inflation. Many of these are willing to spend at a rate far above the ordinary rules of thumb in order to secure a house.

However, George Sternlieb, director of the Center for Urban Policy Research at Rutger's University, writing in House and Home, points out the resources of the potential buyer — or renter, for that matter — do not match the new realities of costs. Along with the increased costs of buying and maintaining a home the other costs of everyday living have soared. There has been a decline in real housing buying power among the American public.

Ticor reported the greatest housing demand is for low-priced ($20,000 to $35,000) and moderate ($35,000 to $55,000) housing in suburban and urban areas. "Large, expensive homes and those far from city centers are, for the most part, difficult to sell," it found.

Builders, a House and Home survey found, recognize these realities. Most still favor the single family detached house because they follow the market and, given a choice, that is what the home buyer still wants. Many, however, are looking for ways to cut costs.

As Frank Mackle, president of Miami's big Deltona Corp., put it, "We're back to our original drawing board, back to the basic house that people could afford right after the war and the only house that most people can afford today.

"It was when we pushed our homes to the $50,000 level that we got into trouble," he said. "Deltona will concentrate on homes as low as $18,000 and usually under $30,000."

The American Whom French Cooks Revere

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

He came, he cooked and he conquered. Late last year Richard Olney, an elusive man with celestial taste buds, came from his hillside home in France's Provence to visit the United States. His two-month stay was occasioned by the publication of "Simple French Food," the cookbook he wrote and illustrated. During his tour of the country you may have seen him on television, heard him on radio or taken some of his cooking classes. When he returned to France he left behind a loyal following. Now as another holiday season approaches and a rash of new cookbooks appears, we are concerned that "Simple French Food" continue to be recognized as a culinary classic.

With its help, cooks can cultivate their gastronomic sensibility and produce many French dishes in purest form. One example of the way professional food people regard Richard Olney's work: "Simple French Food" is the only cookbook sold at "A La Bonne Cocotte," the cookware shop that Lydie Pinoy Marshall runs in connection with her New York cooking school. Because MRS. Marshall is known for teaching la vraie cuisine francaise, her allegiance to the Olney book is not to be taken lightly.

I attended one of Richard Olney's fascinating New York cooking demonstrations and tasted the fabuluous food he prepared (zucchini omelet, sorrel tart, herb-stuffed bass in lettuce casing) and the delightful wines he brought from France. Although we met several more times, I found him hard to interview. He was obviously tired of detailing his life as a painter (his principal vocation), cook, wine connoisseur and author. I concluded that he hoped his book would speak for him.

After reading it I was so impressed with his acute sensitivity that I was wary about feeding him. Then, too, I had heard tales of his temper at a mutual friend's home when he met with a dish that wasn't up to his standard and of the tart remarks he had on occasion doled out at cooking sessions. I needn't have been so cautious. At a late evening meeting at my house, when neither of us had had time to eat dinner, Richard was suddenly and ravenously hungry. To meet the emergency without interrupting our conversation, I phoned for the speediest nearby possibility — second-rate Chinese food. He downed it with the utmost amiability. I suspect Richard's temper waxes and wanes with the company he keeps.

Another evening at my house, this time at a proper dinner hour, Lydie Marshall's husband, Wayne, grilled steaks in my kitchen fireplace. Richard was appropriately grateful that the meat was the rich-flavored but chewy skirt cut rather than more pallid but tenderer beef. And his savoring of a succulent Poireaux au Gratin (brought by Lydie) as he reached into the gratinsdush to lap up the last spoonful, endeared him to the rest of us around the table.

The extraordinary aspect of this man, born and bred in the United States, is that the highly nationalistic French recognize him as a rare culinary talent and true oenophile. Restaurateurs, chefs and vintners all over France consult him.

Now in his 40s, he has lived in France about half his life — ever since his art student days — with few trips back to this country. He hasn't needed to stir from his beloved Provencial olive groves and terraces of thyme because his brothers and sisters and friends often visit him.

Richard learned to cook when he was quite young. Of the provincial kitchen he knew in his family's home in Iowa he has written, " — not too bad a background, inasmuch as I grew up at a time when eggs were still fresh, Jersey milk was unpasteurized and half cream, chickens were from the backyard, packaged cake mixes and frozen foods were unknown, and garden fruits and vegetables were eaten in their proper seasons.

("Simple French Food" by Richard Olney is published by Atheneum.)

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The great Minnesota Fats, for over 50 years a legend at the pool table, was defeated recently in two straight games by a fourth-grader from Houston who had to stand on tiptoes to reach the table.

As the child leaned over the table, exposing the price tag on a new pair of yellow jeans, the old pro was heard to plead, "Hey, kid, play me one more so I can get even."

Poor Mr. Fats. He was ripped off by one of the oldest con games going in the country today . . . the old demoralize-the-over-30-group-with-the-innocent-kid-routine.

I figured out a long time ago that this country is being infiltrated by beings from another planet . . . small children who are really 149 years old and have the body of a six million dollar man. They're everywhere.

They sit around swanky tennis courts in a pair of $1.98 tennis shoes with the strings knotted, holding a tennis racket made in Nogales and sucking on an ice cube. When they are invited to play they squint and ask, "What do you call this thing again?"

The pros are amused and explain, "A tennis racket. And you take it out of the press before you play."

The kid's performance is stunning. He giggles as his pudgy little hands cannot hold two tennis balls at the same time, so he places one on the base line. He has to be told where to stand and his form is somewhere between Buchwald and a bullfighter with bad eyes.

After the warm-up, the personality of the kid changes. He scoops up the ball with the back of his foot, aces his opponent on every serve, runs around the court like a wood nymph and jumps the net to offer his condolences and asks for a towel.

It is roughly estimated that there are 275,000 of these sports midgets running around the country today. On ski slopes they challenge, "Bet you a dollar I can race you to the ambulance at the bottom of the saloon."

"That's slalom," grins the pigeon, shaking his head. "You're on."

There are no laws on the books to protect the unsuspecting over-30s. Those of you who have ever been hustled by a kid two feet tall into playing them at anything are asked to band together and keep them out of bowling alleys, pool halls, tennis courts, and ski slopes. If we need a reason, how about the profane language they hear . . . by the adults they beat?

Should Engagement Ring Be Returned?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I are having a disagreement. I am 19 and was engaged for six months. I recently broke up with my boyfriend and can't decide what to do with my beautiful (and quite expensive) engagement ring.

I think I should keep it because it was given to me as a gift. My mother and my boyfriend think I should give it back because the ring was given as a promise of marriage, and since I broke that promise, I should return it.

I don't care what the etiquette books or the lawyers say, I want to know how you feel about it.

KEEP ME ANONYMOUS

DEAR KEEP: I think that when a engagement is broken—regardless of who broke it—the ring should be returned.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you out of desperation. After nine years of marriage that I thought was good, I have to face the fact that my husband is a "peeping Tom."

Three years ago he watched my sister take a bath. She caught him. There was an ugly scene. I made excuses for him—"It was an accident, etc."—and he really seemed sorry for having done it. I finally got over it.

Well, last night he did it again. This time it was another sister. He knew she would be trying on some clothes, so he arranged the curtains for a peep hole, then sneaked outside to watch. He hadn't planned on my needing him for something at that time. When I couldn't find him in the house, I went outside and caught him looking in the window at my sister. I didn't want anyone to know what was going on, so I didn't make a scene.

Abby, I am heartsick. I love him so much, and he is such a good man in every other way. I've never said no to any of his sexual demands, yet I feel that it must be my fault.

Could he become dangerous? I don't know how many other windows he's looked into. Please help me.

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: The chances for your husband being "dangerous" are very small. Most voyeurs (people who like to look) are usually harmless, but on the chance that he is not, talk to him about it and insist that he phone the local Mental Health Association for an appointment to discuss his problem with a professional. He can overcome it if he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: There are a lot of dogs in my neighborhood, and I will tell you right now that I am no dog lover. I don't like their yapping when I'm trying to sleep, but worse yet, I don't like what they do to my lawn and bushes—if you know what I mean.

There must be something a tax-paying citizen can do about this problem. Whom should I call? And where can I go?

HATES DOGS

DEAR HATES: You don't say where you live, but you can call your police or sheriff. And if you ask some of your dog-owning neighbors, they will be glad to tell you where to go.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column where to send for a form to donate my eyes after death. Then I heard that they don't want anyone's eyes unless they have perfect vision, which I do not have. Is that true?

WANTS TO DONATE

DEAR WANTS: Not true.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MR. J.:

1. When was the last time you told you wife you loved her?

2. When was the last time you paid her a compliment about the way she looked (or cooked)?

3. When was the last time you gave her a kiss. (Not a peck, but a real honest-to-goodness, toe-curling kiss?)

4. When was the last time you surprised her with a little gift—flowers, a silly card or something you knew she wanted?

If the answer to three out of these four questions is "over six months," your marriage could be in trouble.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Protecting The Downtown Mall

As the city's Downtown Mall nears completion, the City Council has approved a special mall zoning district.

The ordinance provides for more restrictive zoning of property in the area of the mall which is being constructed on the old Evans Street right-of-way from Fifth to Third Streets.

The ordinance is designed to "protect and encourage compatible development of high intensity uses located adjacent to the CBD downtown mall.

"The special nature and purpose of the mall is to attract people into the Central Business District and to provide harmonium working and shopping-leisure time and activities," the ordinance said. "The downtown mall district is designed to accommodate pedestrian activities for all age groups in a healthy and safe environment."

The zoning allows various retail stores, restaurants, professional offices, public buildings and other compatible uses. The list generally includes the various businesses which are currently in operation along the mall, but does not allow such enterprises and beer halls or dance halls.

We think it is wise indeed to place zoning restrictions on the downtown mall area. The city has spent considerable money developing the mall into an attractive area where pedestrians can stroll without being concerned with auto traffic. It only makes sense that businesses compatible with the mall atmosphere should be allowed to develop along the mall.

The idea of constructing the mall was to rejuvenate the general area. Now that the mall is near completion we are glad to see that there will be zoning restrictions on the property which fronts on the mall.

A Custom Of Living Within Our Means

State Board of Education Controller A.C. Davis has said the public school budget is shaky.

"It scares me to death," he said.

He reported that a balance at the end of the fiscal year of only $48,409 was anticipated. But, he continued. "We're going to operate within the money available. We always have and we always will."

It's been a tight year for all the state agencies, given the state of the economy.

It's the North Carolina way, though, to live within our means, and that's what all state divisions should do.

"You wouldn't dare!" "He wouldn't dare!" "Dare me!"

THIS AFTERNOON

Does A Backlash Await?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The admirable strides taken by women in North Carolina politics in the past five years could be placed in jeopardy by two developing situations.

First, the doors have swung open so far and so rapidly that the time may be not too far distant when men see women taking majority control of numerous political processes; a backlash can be safely predicted.

Secondly, some leaders of the feminist movement are into some highly controversial areas in which public reaction could damage the entire approach.

Earlier this month, North Carolina joined the other states in pushing to public attention the U.S. National Women's Agenda. That agenda, representing the goals of women, was presented to Gov. James E. Holshouser, mayors of several large cities in North Carolina, and to other governors and mayors simultaneously in other areas.

Seek Help

"We are doing this to seek executive help and support in the legislative activities which must come . . . we are not seeking promises," said State Senator Katherine H. Sebo, D-Guilford.

Some 30 women's organizations in North Carolina are included among the 90 American women's groups which set up the priorities on the National Women's Agenda.

The priorities developed from the 1975 International Women's Year convocation in Mexico City. The agenda, Senator Sebo said, has "seeped down to the state level in the last two weeks."

But can all the women in North Carolina—even the women who are leaders or members of the organizations named as supportive—enthusiastically endorse the priorities in that Agenda?

Among dozens calling for equal treatment for women are some which carry the women's movement far afield:

A national health insurance plan, or other form of social medicine, is endorsed in urging "Support for and expansion of convenient and responsive medical and mental health services available without regard to ability to pay."

Homosexuality is accepted in two statements: "Protection of the right to privacy of relationships between consenting adults," and "Extension of all civil rights legislation to prohibit discrimination based on affectional or sexual preference."

Abortion is endorsed with the priority statement that "Implementation of the legal right of women to control their own reproductive systems," is a goal.

Far Left

Likewise, statements call for equality in athletic program funding and facilities, establishment of a "minimum standard of income and other social benefits for low income and disadvantaged persons," and several steps toward open housing. All, on the face, priorities which reach far to the liberal side of political decision-making, and some with questionable attachment to the rights of women.

Senator Sebo and State Rep. Marilyn Bissell, R-Mecklenburg, both were prompt to note that holding meetings and press conferences to promote the National Agenda does not necessarily mean 100 per cent endorsement when the various controversial statements were pointed out to them.

"These are some of our aims . . . objections to some specifics do not over-ride the overall goals," Rep. Bissell said.

The first priority on the agenda, however, calls for, "Election of legislators who support the principles set forth in (this) agenda," and the preamble to the agenda says, "Although our programs and goals may vary, still we have agreed upon issues which must be addressed as national priorities so that women will play a full and equal role in this country."

Meanwhile, the leaders of women's organizations in town for Agenda Day, agreed that the doors to political office are opening in North Carolina, and predicted that in five more years women will be able to win election to any office.

But, warned Representative Bissell, there will be a backlash when it becomes evident that women are capturing control.

Adding To The Controls Burden

WASHINGTON—This is a piece about power mowers and political philosophy. The philosophy may seem a little on the abstract side, but everybody knows about power mowers. In a matter now pending before the Consumer Product Safety Commission, everything comes together.

The commission is about to fix a safety standard for the design and manufacture of power mowers, riding mowers, and garden tractors. This is a serious business. Once the commission makes a standard final, after preliminary proposals and public hearings, that's it: The standard has the force and effect of law. Manufacturers in violation of the standard can be fined or sent to prison.

About 40 million power mowers are now in use. Some 7.6 million units are sold each year. The 70 suppliers employ thousands of persons to build the machines; other thousands, of course, are employed in repair work and retail sales. This is a $1.2 billion business.

It is also a dangerous business. No one knows precisely how many persons are injured each year in accidents related to power mowers. The best estimates are not much good. One guess is that 58,500 persons are treated annually in hospital emergency rooms for mower injuries; another guess indicates that twice that many may be treated in physicians' offices. Many of these accidents are tragic: A child loses a leg, a bystander loses an eye, a careless homeowner may cripple himself for life. Thirty persons are thought to die every year from mower injuries.

Considering these dangers, the Consumer Product Safety Commission some months ago contracted with Consumers Union to develop safety standards. This was like asking Zsa Zsa Gabor to fix standards for a stenographer's wardrobe. The Consumers Union people dwell in a dream world; no product ever is safe enough, pure enough, or strong enough to satisfy their hearts' desire. Nevertheless, CU set to work and in time produced 250 pages of recommendations and supporting data. The study cost $190,000.

The proposed new standard would require, among other design features, a "dead-man's control" and improved shielding. Once an operataor took his hands off the handlebars, the blades would stop in three seconds, though the engine would keep running. Heavier shielding would reduce the risk from burns, blade contact, and hurled objects.

The typical walk-behind power mower now costs about $110. The CU package if adopted, would add an estimated $44 to the price. New standards for riding mowers and garden tractors would increase their prices also, but not by as great a percentage.

To the editor:

Shock, surprise, sadness and shame partially describe the feeling which was prevalent among those who heard the verdict at the end of the eight-day trial of Dr. Andrew A. Best. We, too, had heard the evidence which appeared to be oeverwhelming against any possible guilt on the charges that he willfully prescribed certain drugs without justifiable medical purpose. The evidence for Dr. Best included the testimony of seven doctors who agreed that he acted in keeping with good medical practice.

Even without this massive professional evidence, a simple consideration of the fees which were charged would raise a very important question. What was the motive? The total fees for a total of six office visits by three different people was only thirty-five dollars ($35.00). A comparison can be made between the basic five-dollar ($5.00) office fee of Dr. Best and the eight-dollar ($8.00) minimum fee of the doctor who testified for the state. It can clearly be seen that the "money motive" as implied by the prosecution was not there at all.

A conviction on just one count (even though it involves only five dollars) forever places the tag of "felon" on the individual, and threatens to destroy his professional life. Is it reasonable to think that any physician would take such a risk for five dollars? I agree with Dr. Boyette of Belhaven. This case "represents neither justice nor good sense."

To the editor:

In the case of Dr. Andrew A. Best, the jury agreed that the original prescription for Ritalin to the under cover agent had a legitimate medical purpose. In other words, he was found not guilty on that charge. Despite this, he was found guilty on the two counts involving the refills of the same prescription. How could this be? If the original prescription had an acceptable medical purpose, it seems to me that the refills had the same purpose. I am completely confused. This inconsistency suggests that the jury was probably confused also.

It distresses me to no end that the results of this apparent confusion or misunderstanding by the jury could have such far reaching and damaging effects on the life of Dr. Best, as well as, on the entire system of medicine.

40 Years Ago Today

December 9, 1935

The United States took the lead in the international naval conference today, advocating a 20 per cent reduction in existing naval treaty tonnage.

Before diplomats and admirals of five sea powers with 1,450 warships, Norman H. Davis presented President Roosevelt's opinions for progressive reductions of sea armaments.

If no reduction was possible, President Roosevelt recommended continuance of present fleet limitations.

Failing all else, Davis, chief of the American delegation, advocated a frank and friendly exchange of views to discover other plans of mutual understanding to avoid a naval arms race.

France Knows Pierre

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — The best-known American living in France is no ambassador or film star but a bulky cigar-chomping journalist.

Pierre Salinger has become "Mr. America" in France.

Thanks to his perfect French and the aura that still clings to him as the press spokesman in the John F. Kennedy administration, Salinger is the "house American" frequently called upon to explain the United States to the French.

The beetle-browed, fast-talking Salinger is a steady fixture on television shows. He hurries from one lecture to another, the instant authority on things American.

His book, "Je suis un Americain" (I am an American) is what the French call "le best-seller."

As a journalist for the news weekly l'Express, Salinger nails scoops with U.S. politicians, thanks to his previous forays into the political world.

A recent front-page story in the prestigious Paris newspaper Le Monde reviewed Salinger's book along with a book about Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. The headline proclaimed "Kissinger and Salinger: Two Americans out of 213 Million."

Le Monde lumped the two men together as "being or having been in the heart of political action of their country and having come from abroad."

Kissinger came to the United States as a German immigrant. Salinger, born in San Francis-

U.S. Concessions Urged

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—While President Ford prepared to be lectured in China on the dangers of detente, his National Security bureaucracy was drafting top secret proposals for major concessions to Moscow in order to save a SALT II agreement at almost any cost.

"I think it's a disaster," said one outraged administration official in describing the unexpected developments. He and other hard-liners waged a furious rearguard action the past week to assure that Mr. Ford will get a full scale of options when he returns from the Orient. Nevertheless, some officials deeply worry that he will be given only a stacked deck from which to choose a course bearing unalterable consequences for this country's future.

The accompanying papers will be weighted in favor of further concessions on two deadlocked issues in the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT): whether to limit the Soviet Backfire bomber and the U.S. cruise missile. More important, hard-liners believe Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will support further concessions (although he has not yet shown his hand during the current in-fighting). Finally, of course, the balance will be tipped by the President himself at a time of maximum impact for an election-year SALT agreement.

Such an agreement seemed dead a month ago when the Kremlin summarily rejected U.S. proposals on the Backfire and cruise missile. On Nov. 10, Dr. Kissinger declared he would not meet with the Russians again until they came up with a "reasoned response" (although well-informed officials predicted even then that Kissinger would go to Moscow in December, claiming the meeting had been secretly set during the Helsinki conference Aug. 1).

Indeed, the climate soon changed without any "reasoned response." On Nov. 25, Kissinger revealed the "possibility exists" for a Moscow meeting. Actually, it is tentatively set to follow Kissinger's Dec. 11 visit to Brussels. After Kissinger's Nov. 25 statement, two of his trusted associates—William G. Hyland of the National Security Council (NCS) staff and State Department counselor Helmut Sonnenfeldt—began lobbying through the bureaucracy in behalf of revised SALT options.

Meanwhile, papers were prepared by lower-level staffers fulfilling this syndrome of U.S.-Soviet negotiations: rewarding Kremlin intransigence with further U.S. concessions.

Coincidentally on Nov. 25, members of the Verification Panel, which makes U.S. SALT policy, received a letter from NSC Director Brent Scowcroft classified secret: "The President . . . wishes that the Secretary of State chair the Verification Panel."

That Kissinger should keep that job while stepping aside in Gen. Scowcroft's favor as

Strength For Today

THE OBJECT OF LIFE

The Transcendentalist writer of the early nineteenth century, Margaret Fuller, once made the remark that she "accepted the universe." When the famous English man of letters, Thomas Carlyle, heard this, he responded with a snort, "Gad, she'd better!" Margaret Fuller is more widely known for this somewhat silly remark of hers and for Carlyle's rejoinder than for almost any other thing in her life.

But Margaret Fuller was a very wise woman, and would be better remembered for another, more perceptive remark. "Very early," she once wrote, "I perceived that the object of life is to grow." And, acting on that principle, she turned her energies to the living of a fine and purposeful life.

Some people live their lives as if the only objective is to get as much of this world's goods and enjoyments as possible. They lack Margaret Fuller's realization that the full and meaningful life is a pilgrimage toward eternity.

Resilience In Fast Food Biz

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The devil in his kitchen hardly could have cooked up a more diabolical economic recipe for the fast food chains than that which was served up by a combination of events beginning in 1973.

Disposable income failed to advance and sometimes declined during a more than two-year period. While workers may have received raises, prices in general rose at a faster rate. Consumers were left with less spending power.

There was a gasoline shortage, and a lot of people stayed home, leaving many chain outlets somewhat lonely, although briefly, on their once frantically busy highway and shopping center sites. The emergency faded, the cost of auto travel didn't.

Operating costs rose sharply. Commodity prices surged, especially for meats, fats and oils, which are used in large quantities by restaurants. Wage costs rose; in one eight-month period the minimum wage jumped 25 per cent.

Interest rates rose too, and capital became more difficult to obtain. Because of the energy shortage, expenses for heat, light and power also surged. It was enough to ruin anyone's appetite for business.

Investors were repelled by events. Shares of many well-known chains plummeted. So hard and straight did they fall that it appeared they would bury themselves. That they could bounce seemed almost inconceivable.

But the worst didn't happen. The food chains more than survived; many of them prospered. In an industry notable for its failures, the sophisticated systems and efficiencies of chain operations helped them dodge the blows.

Even though most chain food stocks aren't back to where they were in 1972 and early 1973, so far this year the prices of some issues have more than doubled. Some analysts look for further improvement.

Most of the foregoing is from a commentary on restaurant chain stocks by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, which concludes that selected issues within the industry are among the better buys on the market today.

Merrill Lynch suggests the industry has demonstrated its resilience. While real income was declining, it notes, consumers actually increased their purchases of restaurant meals, despite the gasoline shortage.

There was a reason, as there is for most pronounced movements by consumers en masse: In 1973, while prices at grocery stores rose 16 per cent, prices for food consumed away from home increased by only 8 per cent.

The chains, it seems, are here to stay; some $9.8 billion in sales last year attest to their appeal. Of the 369,000 commercial restaurants in the United States at midyear, about 40,000 were operated by franchise chains.

Evans-Novak...

National Security adviser is defended as maintaining policy continuity. But Kissinger's enemies claim he has a conflict of interest in leading policy formation in an area where he hopes to assure his place in history.

However, Kissinger's own views were not evident as he chaired Verification Panel meetings Nov. 26 and 28, during which staff papers were unveiled with concessions that stunned hard-liners.

One proposed option would exclude the Backfire bomber from strategic weapons if permanent Soviet Arctic bases and mid-air tankers were prohibited. Although those caveats are considered meaningless at the Pentagon, there is disagreement there over the Backfire's real importance. Even the skeptics, however, believe the U.S. should hold out on Backfire as a bargaining chip to safeguard the cruise missile

But the new options would also retreat on cruise missiles: submarine-based cruise missiles would come under the 2,400 ceiling on offensive delivery vehicles as Moscow desires, but each bomber carrying one or more cruise missiles would come under the 1,320 limit on multiple independently targetable warheads (MIRVs). To critics, this wipes out the cruise missile program, where the U.S. is some ten years ahead of Russia.

The new options triggered meetings of a working group starting Nov. 29-30, with hard-line staffers seeking to broaden the options to be given Mr. Ford. The result is two schools of thought—pessimistic and optimistic—among hard-liners.

Optimistic: While lower-level staffers will draft papers "totally biased" for concessions, says one official, Mr. Ford will see all options—including those from "hang tough" hard-liners. Moreover, Hyland and Sonnenfeldt, plus Kissinger himself, are playing fair with all sides, including the no-retreat Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Pessimistic: The rearguard action to broaden the options involves a handful of outgunned staffers fighting Hyland and Sonnenfeldt, and presumably their boss, Dr. Kissinger. With the Joint Chiefs of Staff buckling, all hope is gone.

Pessimism is built by the absence of Dr. James Schlesinger, whose sacking as Secretary of Defense eliminated an informed critic. Donald Rumsfeld, Schlesinger's successor, was the silent new boy Nov. 28 on the Verification Panel and, even when settled in his new job, will surely reserve his advice for the President's ears only. The advice, if any, Rumsfeld gives may decide the fate of SALT II and influence the future of this country.

co, is as American as any other but, since his mother was French, in Le Monde's eyes he's French.

"All of this attention has surprised me in a way," admitted the jovial Salinger in his luxurious antique-filled apartment across the street from the Louvre.

"In the beginning I was a public personality in the States because of Kennedy. Today I walk through the streets of New York or Los Angeles and very few people recognize me. That's not true in France. The whole thing was transferred across the Atlantic.

"French people always admired President Kennedy and the fact I was associated with Kennedy was my original entree into France. But if I had come here and not spoken French it never would have happened. French was my first language when I was a kid in San Francisco."

Salinger first lived in France in 1968. He was asked to be "anchor man" for the U.S. elections on a Paris radio station. By telephoning political pals in the United States he predicted Richard M. Nixon's win before the U.S. networks did.

After working for Democratic candidate George McGovern in the 1972 elections, Salinger moved back to Paris in 1973 as a journalist for l'Express.

His l'Express byline made him a national figure and he became a TV personality after five appearances on a popular roundtable program, "Dossiers de l'Ecran" (Files from the Screen) and a stint as a judge on the televised Cannes Film Festival.

"Cab drivers recognize me, people stop me on the street," said Salinger. "Mostly they engage me in political arguments such as one fellow saying, 'Kennedy pushed us out of Algeria.' They talk a lot about Kennedy.

"I lecture a lot now, more and more," continued Salinger, twirling his cigar and a glass of whiskey.

"I was speaking at a debate the other night on what America thinks about Europe's attempts to build Europe. Recently I spoke to 600 lawyers in Belgium on what it's like to be an American. I speak next in Dijon about the American press to a group of publishers and then to 250 French naval officers on American foreign policy.

"I spoke on problems of Western democracies at the NATO meeting in Copenhagen and on the Middle East war in Cairo. Then a speech in Cognac at the Lions Club, in Paris at the Rotary Club..."

"I don't say all American things are good. Some Americans who live abroad never criticize their country. But people will listen to you defending your own country if you admit it is wrong on some other things. I say what I think."

Should the CU standard be written into law? In October the Council on Wage and Price Stability unloaded a devastating criticism of the CU report. The council's answer was a flat "no." In the council's view, the prospective benefit would not approach the prospective cost. Half of the suppliers might well be put out of business. The council found CU's supporting data arbitrary, insufficient, questionable, unrealistic, unreliable, and poorly reasoned.

So much for the proposed power mower standard. What we ought to think about, it seems to me, is not what kind of standard, but whether the government has any proper business fixing such standards at all. In a presumably free society, what is government's proper role? What is the role of the marketplace?

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute says the proposed deadman control would add $33 to the cost of a walk-behind mower. For about $4, manufacturers could provide a much simpler "deadman," stopping both blades and engine. Is the one device $29 better than the other? Must consumers be compelled to buy the former and be denied an option to buy the latter?

The situation cannot be compared to contaminated soup or to dangerous drugs. The hazards of power mowers are known and visible. In a free society, it seems to me, suppliers should be free to build mowers that are reasonably safe, very safe, or as heavy as a Patton tank. Customers should be free to buy as much safety as they want to pay for. It isn't the power in a power mower we ought to worry about; it's the power of government to enlarge its role and to diminish our freedom of choice.

New Election In Aberdeen

ABERDEEN, N.C. (AP)—Voters in Aberdeen will have a rare chance to change their minds about their municipal officials in a new election to be held shortly after the first of the year.

The State Board of Elections Monday ordered the new election after hearing seven witnesses testify that they voted in the November 4 balloting despite having moved from the town.

All seven witnesses said they had previously lived in the town and still worked there; they said they had simply neglected to change their residence with voting registrars.

William Bayliff, a former town commissioner who lost his seat by one vote, instigated the hearing and called the witnesses.

Board chairman Hugh Wilson of Lenoir instructed state elections director Alex Brock to check state and county calendars to set the earliest possible date for the new election. Wilson said it probably would not be held until after the first of the year.

The board also ordered the town commission members who won the November balloting to continue to serve until the new election is held. No new candidates will be allowed on the ballot.

Big 'Price' For Ton Of Catfish

TEXARKANA, Tex. (UPI) — Two northeast Texas fishermen paid $4,110 to haul in a ton of channel catfish only to dump the huge catch back in the water.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens caught the pair near Redwater, Tex., with a pickup full of three-pound catfish. The still-live fish were returned to the water and the fishermen taken before a local justice of the peace, who fined them $4,110 for illegally trapping and netting fish.

Officials said it was one of the largest fines ever paid for game law violation.

Sen. Frank Church Hints Presidential Race Entry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, says he may become the 11th Democrat to seek his party's 1976 presidential nomination.

Church told a news conference here Monday that he planned to form a committee next week to "determine whether it's possible to put together an organization and gather sufficient money to make it possible for so late an entrant to launch a campaign for the presidency."

He attended a party Sunday night for about 135 Democrats and gave "a very strong indication he was going to run," according to one person who was there.

And in Washington, close aides said Church is virtually certain to become a candidate and that he would likely announce his decision soon after the first of the year.

At Monday's news conference, Church answered enthusiastically when asked about what he would do if he were president. Concentrating on the intelligence community, he said he would reduce the Central Intelligence Agency covert operations wing by 90 per cent and put what was left under control of the State Department.

Church, whose committee has been holding hearings on the CIA, said he would not cut out covert operations entirely and added:

"If there's any kind of covert action that could be justified, it would be the kind that when our hand is exposed we could say, 'Yes, we are damn proud of it.'"

When the Idaho Democrat was appointed last March to chair the committee to investigate the intelligence community, he said he expected to gain no political mileage from the job and told reporters he would not become involved in any political campaign "for the full life of this committee."

The committee's "full life" will not end until it issues its final report at the end of February or the beginning of March.

But the spokesman for Church said the senator now feels free to become involved in national politics because the "bonecrushing" work of the panel's investigation into alleged misconduct by the CIA, FBI and other intelligence agencies has been completed.

The Church political committee will be headed by Clark Burke, a Boise attorney who has managed all four of Church's campaigns for the Senate. The committee's finance chairman will be Stanley Kimmelman, who directed the successful fund-raising for the 1972 presidential race of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Bill Hall, Church's Senate press secretary, said that once the committee is formed as required by the election law, attempts will be made to test sentiment for Church among voters and political leaders.

The intelligence committee's last public hearing will be about Dec. 18 or 19. Formation of the Church political committee could be announced shortly before or after those dates.

Church has indicated that because of his late start in the crowded Democratic field he is inclined to skip all early primaries, including those in New Hampshire and Forida.

But Hall said a Church entry in the March 2 Massachusetts primary is being considered seriously because of what Hall said was support there from liberals who applauded Church's leadership of congressional efforts to legislate an end to the war in Vietnam.

Soviet-Backed Angola Faction Is Outgunning Its Opposition

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet-backed faction in the Angola civil war, outgunning its two rivals both militarily and diplomatically, probably will emerge as the dominant political force in that country, U.S. officials say.

The reported gains by the pro-Moscow Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) come at a time when President Ford is under fire from Chinese leaders as well as several Republicans for not taking a tough enough stand against the Soviets.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said last week the United States "cannot remain indifferent" to Soviet activities in Angola. Some U.S. officials say Kissinger is considering a more forceful way of expressing U.S. indignation over Soviet policy.

U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan told the U.N. General Assembly Monday night that Soviet involvement was an "effort to recolonize Africa."

The assembly is debating resolutions on foreign intervention in Angola, and Moynihan urged a condemnation of Soviet involvement.

The official U.S. position is one of complete neutrality in Angola, but it is widely believed that American arms are reaching the two factions arrayed against the MPLA. In addition, there are occasional reports that the United States is involved in covert activity there.

The two anti-Russian factions are the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA), which also has the backing of China, and the Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA), which also has the backing of South Africa. Both factions recently have lost ground in the face of massive Soviet arms aid to the MPLA and a Cuban expeditionary force which is well trained in the use of Soviet weapons. Some 3,500 to 4,000 Cubans are believed to be assisting the MPLA.

The Soviet objectives in Angola are not clear. Most officials believe Moscow has its eye on the deep water ports at Luanda and Lobito and the dozen or so airfields built by Portugal, the former colonial power in Angola. Access to these facilities would strengthen the Soviet hand militarily in the South Atlantic.

The MPLA has been advancing in northern-sector fighting in recent weeks, and the two non-Communist factions also have been on the defensive diplomatically.

The "paper government" established by the National Front and the UNITA groups has not been recognized by a single foreign country since its formation four weeks ago at the time of the Portuguese departure.

Meanwhile, about 30 countries have recognized the MPLA government set up in Luanda. These include about 12 African countries plus a number of Arab and East European countries.

Claim Laxness In Enforcement

RALEIGH (AP)—A public interest research group, citing low fines for safety standards violators, says that the North Carolina Department of Labor is lax in its enforcement of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Act.

The group presented its conclusions in a 38-page study of the OSHA enforcement program Monday. State labor officials said they felt North Carolina has one of the best enforcement programs and industrial safety records in the nation.

The North Carolina Public Interest Research Group, however, said that the average fines for violations by state officials were one third as high as the average fines levied in states where the federal government enforces the law.

NCPIRG thus joined the state AFL-CIO in criticizing enforcement of the act by the state. But they did not, as the union group has, call for a federal takeover of the program.

"We want a change of policies," said Wib Gulley, head of the Durham-based group.

Gulley said the state often allows industries to volunteer to correct violations and gives them excessively long times to do it. He said the state should levy fines wherever it finds violations.

But Labor Commissioner T. Avery Nye said the voluntary compliance program, backed up by inspections, would continue to be the core of the state's program.

A federal OSHA official in Atlanta, Donald McKenzie, said the state has been asked to increase the size of its fines and appears to be doing so. McKenzie said the federal government will probably allow the state to continue enforcing the program.

The state gained control of the program in 1973 when the legislature, at the request of the state department, incorporated the OSHA rules into state law.

Hunt Urges Punishment

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt has proposed a statewide war on crime.

He told the 40th annual meeting of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Monday that he soon will make crime-fighting recommendations which can be used by rural communities.

Hunt is a likely candidate for Democratic nomination for governor in next year's primaries. He said, "The next governor...ought to go to the General Assembly when it first gets to Raleigh with the bills laid out that we need to have enacted in order to fight it (crime) effectively."

He advocated better pay scales for local law enforcement officers, and a reduction in the discretionary powers of judges in setting sentences.

"I happen to personally favor capital punishment, and I respect those who do not," he said. "But I believe that capital punishment results in saving the lives of innocent people."

He said the state must have adequate prison facilities. And he received the heaviest applause from his audience of about 800 when he said: "But we have got to remember that the primary purpose of prison is to punish people who have broken our laws."

Hunt commended the state Farm Bureau for its establishment of a Law and Order Committee. "I am not an alarmist, (but) I believe that unless we act forcibly and together to do something about it, crime and that criminals that commit it threaten toliterally destroy this country," he said.

Two Republicans, Gov. Jim Holshouser and Sen. Jesse Helms, will address the convention today.

Submit High Court Plea

RALEIGH (AP)—Attorneys for Joan Little have asked the North Carolina Supreme Court to allow her to remain free until it reviews her 1974 conviction for breaking and entering and larceny.

The requests were filed Monday after Miss Little and her attorney Jerry Paul got a Beaufort County Superior Court judge to postpone ruling on a motion to send her back to jail to resume serving a 7-10 year sentence.

The motion came from William Griffin, the prosecutor who unsuccessfully handled the murder case that arose after Miss Little was incarcerated on the breaking and entering charge.

She stabbed and killed jailer Clarence Alligood during what she described as a sexual assault. She was acquitted in August after a trial that attracted international attention.

In November, the state Court of Appeals affirmed her conviction on the breaking and entering charge.

Miss Little's attorneys filed two motions in Supreme Court. One asked for review of the case, which is not an automatic right under North Carolina law.

The other asked the court to renew her bond while the appeal is being considered.

In Beaufort County, Judge John Webb agreed to postpone his decision on Griffin's motion for at least a week, giving the Supreme Court time to rule on the request for a renewal of the bond.

Bureaucrats Said Overpaid

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associate Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many federal bureaucrats are overpaid because they are in pay classifications higher than those justified by their jobs, the General Accounting Office says.

This practice accounts for much of the 600 per cent increase in payroll costs since the classification system began in 1949, a GAO report said. A copy of the report was obtained Monday.

"Managers have inflated position descriptions, pressured classifiers to overgrade positions and have been reluctant to downgrade overgraded positions. In addition, some agencies have failed to insure adequate control over classification practices," the GAO says.

The report said that in 1949 the average white-collar government grade was GS5, paying between $3,100 and $4,225, depending on length of service.

The average grade now is GS7, paying from $11,046 to $14,358, the GAO said.

The report made no estimate of how much the practice is costing the taxpayers.

"Although many GS positions are overgraded, the extent of overgrading is not known," the report said.

However, it quoted a 1971 estimate by the Office of Management and Budget that each one-tenth increase in grade average cost $175 million at 1971 pay and benefit levels.

The GAO said it reviewed classification practices in several federal programs and audited 101 positions that appeared to have suspicious classification. Of those 101 positions, "we considered 74 overgraded," GAO said.

The congressional accounting agency also called for "strong, emphatic presidential support" for a drive within federal agencies to reverse the trend toward overclassification.

Security Council Veto By U.S.

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States has cast its 12th veto in the United Nations Security Council to defeat a resolution condemning Israeli air attacks on Palestinian camps in Lebanon.

U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan told the 15-nation council his government, as a principal mediator in the Middle East, could not support the resolution because it did not censure guerrilla violence against Israel and therefore was one-sided.

Thirteen countries voted for the resolution, and Costa Rica abstained. "The condemnation is there," said a spokesman for Lebanon, which had asked the council to take action against Israel.

The resolution condemned the Israeli government for its air attacks last week in which the Lebanese police said more than 100 persons were killed. It called on Israel "to desist forthwith from all military attacks against Lebanon," and it warned that if such attacks are repeated, the council would consider further measures.

Moynihan said the United States strongly deplored the Israeli raids. But he said the council should also condemn the Palestinian guerrilla raids into Israel which the Israelis say their raids are designed to check.

Moynihan submitted amendments to the resolution condemning all acts of violence, "especially those which result in the tragic loss of innocent civilian life," and appealing to all parties to refrain from any action that might endanger Middle East peace talks. But the amendments got only seven of the nine favorable votes needed to add them to the resolution.

The vetoed resolution was sponsored jointly by Cameroon, Tanzania, Iraq, Guyana and Mauritania. The Soviet Union, China, Byelorussia, Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Sweden also voted for it.

The U.S. amendments were supported by Britain, Costa Rica, France, Italy, Japan and Sweden. China and Iraq announced they were not participating, and the other six council members abstained.

It was the third veto cast by the United States to kill an anti-Israeli resolution because it did not also condemn Arab violence.

Israel boycotted the debate because the council invited the Palestine Liberation Organization to take part. Israel has also said it will boycott a council debate on the Arab-Israeli dispute next month because the PLO is to be invited to take part. But diplomatic sources in Washington said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is trying to get Israel to drop its opposition to the PLO participation.

Preparing Defense Bill Below Ford's Request

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conference committee is sending to the House and Senate for final approval a Pentagon appropriations bill more than $8 billion below President Ford's request.

A House vote on the measure may come later this week. On Monday, the conferees finished the package by agreeing to allow some production funds for the controversial B1 bomber.

The conference bill falls somewhere between the $112.6 billion voted earlier by the Senate and the $111.8 billion previously voted by the House. Staff members have yet to work out the exact price tag of the bill approved.

The higher Senate total was $8.2 billion below Ford's budget request for fiscal 1976 and the three-month transition period to the start of the new federal fiscal year Oct. 1, 1976.

Conference Chairman George Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee, said the committee agreed to permit purchasing of items for a production model of the B1 bomber, with the understanding that the bill does not constitute a commitment for subsequent funding.

A Pentagon decision on production of the plane for operational use is not due until next year, after additional prototype flight tests.

Mahon said the conferees agreed to the acquisition of four AWACS (airborne warning and control system) aircraft in place of the two voted by the House and the six agreed to by the Senate.

Conferees of the House, which had voted to require immediate dismantling of the nation's only antiballistic missile installation at Grand Forks, N.D., accepted a Senate amendment permitting continued operation of the system's sophistocated Perimeter Acquisition Radar for early warning detection of attacking missiles.

The conferees rejected a Senate rider requiring a five-year phaseout of federal subsidies to commissaries on military bases.

Wants New City Image

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Beth Finch, the first woman mayor of a major North Carolina, city, has called for "something better for Fayetteville than deterioriation and an undesirable image."

Mrs. Finch, 54, was sworn in Monday night along with the six-member City Council.

She told the audience which packed the City Hall courtroom that the new council should adopt the bicentennial theme of "Horizons."

"It is my belief that the coming decade will be a critical one for Fayetteville," Mayor Finch said. "Decisions--made either by intention or default--will shape our character.

"There is a growing awareness in our city that all is not as we wish it to be. And while we deplore the reality, it is also a healthy sign, for it indicates the kind of concern that can be constructed into constructive action."

Fayetteville had a population of 53,510 in the 1970 census. There has been talk of possible annexation of the Ft. Bragg area.

Vietnamese Are Told Little Chance Of Aid

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnamese officials are pushing for improved relations with the United States, according to congressmen who traveled to Paris for talks with Vietnam representatives.

A dozen House members who met for five hours with the Vietnamese in Paris last week said in a news conference Monday that the Vietnamese feel the next step in improving relations is up to the Ford administration.

The congressmen traveled to Paris to discuss ways of resolving the issue of Americans still listed as missing in Indochina. But the meeting had the broader result of movement on relations between the two countries.

Rep. G. V. Montgomery, D-Miss., chairman of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, said, "The Vietnamese emphasized the importance that the U.S. take positive bridge-building actions now, such as lifting the present trade embargo and helping to heal the wounds of war."

The Vietnamese promised to return the remains of three American airmen and to search for clues to the fate of other Americans listed as missing. They added that any Americans still in Vietnam could leave any time they wish.

Montgomery said the Vietnamese would consider a request for some sort of inspection by U.S. or international teams of 1,000 known American aircraft crash sites.

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y., said the Vietnamese stressed they still insist upon U.S. war reparations as provided for in the Paris accords. The U.S. regards the Paris pact as void, broken by the North Vietnamese.

Ottinger said the congressmen told the Vietnamese it was extremely unlikely Congress would vote any aid to them since "we came within ten votes of turning down aid to one of our own cities (New York)."

Plan Movie For Canned Goods

The Plaza Cinema Theater at Pitt Plaza, in an effort to help the Salvation Army aid needy families during the Christmas season will hold a Kiddie Day in conjunction with the Salvation Army's annual Christmas Appeal—a special showing of "The Reluctant Astronaut"—at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Admission to the movie, starring Don Knotts, will be one can of food. The canned goods collected at the theater will go to the Salvation Army for use in Christmas food baskets.

Roy Griffin, manager of the Plaza Cinema said the Saturday morning show will give people an opportunity to "enjoy yourself with a lively comedy and help your underprivileged neighbors at the same time."

Another Judge Will Rule On Contempt Case

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—Superior Court Judge A. Pilston Godwin has refused to drop the contempt of court charge he brought against Dist. Atty. Charles M. White III of Warrenton but agreed to have another judge decide the issue.

Lawyers for White, meanwhile accused Godwin of "personal pique and indignity."

A hearing at which White must show cause why he should not be held in contempt will be held Jan. 12 in Vance Superior Court in Henderson before Judge D. Marsh McLelland. If found in contempt of court, White could be jailed up to six months.

Godwin cited White for contempt for allegedly not prosecuting cases when Godwin was presiding and for statements allegedly made by White.

White, 49, is in charge of criminal prosecutions in the 9th District which includes, Vance, Warren, Franklin, Granville and Person counties.

Give Program At Breakfast Club

Officers Hugh Benson and Jackie Alexander of the Juvenile Services Division presented the program for the weekly Monday morning breakfast meeting of the Greenville-Progressive City Kiwanis Club held at the Ramada Inn.

The officers reviewed the activities of the Juvenile Services Division since its inception approximately two years ago.

Officer Benson explained hwo Juvenile Services was involved not only in the enforcement of the offenses committed by juveniles but also in the protection of juvenile rights, counseling services offered by the Department and the educational and public relations activities his Division undertakes in the public school system of Greenville.

A short and informative question and answer period was held following the presentation.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, repeating Monday's erratic, aimless pattern.

Trading was moderate.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 530 industrial stocks was down 1.42 at 820.21, while gainers clung to a slight lead over losers in the over-all tally at the New York Stock Exchange.

The market had managed a slight gain at the outset on the strength of bargain hunting after the sharp declines of late in many issues.

But brokers said it appeared uncertainty over tax cut prospects was strong enough to keep the market from making any substantial move.

President Ford said Monday he would veto an extension of the 1975 income tax cuts through 1976 if it were sent to him without accompanying reductions in government spending. Senate leaders said today they hoped the legislators and the White House could reach a compromise in time for a planned congressional recess for Christmas.

Texaco was the most active issue on the Big Board, down ½ at 23⅛. A 200,000-share block traded at 23.

Deere & Co., which reported lower earnings for its fiscal quarter ended Oct. 31, fell 1¼ to 46.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was unchanged at 45.91 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dipped .15 to 81.64.

AYDEN—Miss Carolyn Ann Crandell, 16, of Rt. 1, Ayden, an Ayden-Grifton High School student, died Monday at Pitt Memorial Hospital. She was the daughter of Mr. Albert and Mrs. Martha Jane Carmon Crandell. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Norcott and Company Funeral Home here.

Miller

Mr. William T. (Tom) Miller, 38, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Monday.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by his pastor, the Rev. Gordon Conklin. Burial will be in Raleigh Memorial Park at 3 p.m.

Mr. Miller, a native of Santa Monica, Calif., attended Butler University in Indianapolis, Indiana, and served in the United States Air Force from 1956 to 1960. He was employed with United States Department of Agriculture for a year and for the past few years had been a purchasing agent for Central Soya in Robersonville until he retired due to ill health in July, 1975. He was a member of Oakmont Baptist Church and had made his home near Greenville for the past two years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Kitty Rose Miller; a son, William Thomas Miller II of the home; two daughters, Julianne Rose and Melinda Kay Miller, both of the home; his father, Lester E. Miller of Wichita Falls, Tex.; his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Marsden of Seattle, Wash.; a brother, Cap. Michael E. Miller of the United States Army, now stationed in Albuquerque, N.M.; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Marie Miller of Wichita Falls, Tex.; and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Viola Kennedy of Lebanon, Ind.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 to 9 p.m. tonight and from 7 to 9 on Wednesday night.

Tillery

AYDEN—Mr. James Tillery of Rt. 2, Ayden, formerly of Enfield, died Monday in Pitt Memorial Hospital. He was the husband of Mrs. Mollie Mills Tillery. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Norcott and Company Funeral Home here.

Pack 200 Held Yule Breakfast

Cub Scouts of Pack 200 and their families were treated to a breakfast Saturday morning at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

The breakfast was prepared by the Webelos members of the pack. Following the meal, Santa Claus paid a visit, distributing gifts to the Cubs and other youngsters present. Gifts from the Cubs to their parents were also distributed.

Following the breakfast, Pack 200 members participated in the Christmas Parade, marching as a unit.

Agenda Set For Recreation Body

One item of old business and two of new business are on the agenda for the monthly meeting of the Greenville Recreation Commission for December.

The meeting will take place at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the office of Recreation Department Director Boyd Lee.

Items before the commission are: under old business; purchase of West Greenville Recreation Center (the old Eppes School property); and under new business; discussion and recommendations concerning tennis court lights during winter months; and a report on N.C. Recreation and Park Conference to be given by Mrs. John East and Tom Foreman.

None Injured In Bus Accident

WINFALL, N.C. (AP)—No one was injured Monday when a Perquimans County school bus carrying 49 students flipped onto its side.

The Highway Patrol reported that the driver pulled over to the side of the road to stop a disturbance by the passengers. The bus went into a ditch and keeled over.

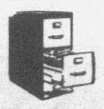

Seven passengers were taken to Albemarle Hospital in Elizabeth City and released after examinations.

ASK GAG ORDER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Prosecutors, accusing Patricia Hearst's lawyers of using the media to create sympathy for the jailed heiress, have asked a judge to issue a gag order barring attorneys from further public comment on the case.

IRA Gunmen Refuse Exchange

By DONALD M. McNICOLL
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Irish Republican Army gunmen holding a man and his wife hostage in the living room of their London apartment for the third day refused today to exchange the woman for food, police reported.

Police offered the three or four gunmen their first meal since the siege began Saturday night in exchange for the release of Sheila Matthews, 53. But the gunmen rejected the proposal in a telephone conversation this morning.

The men also refused to let police talk to Mrs. Matthews or her husband, John, a 54-year-old postal inspector.

"We are absolutely sincere in saying our objective is to save the lives of every person in that room — hostages and kidnapers alike," said Sir Robert Mark, the head of Scotland Yard, in a message he said was aimed at relatives of the gunmen.

But Mark added that the IRA men "are coming out of that room in one way only — as prisoners under arrest. The only place they are going is to Brixton Prison."

The Yard intensified its security measures elsewhere in London following indications that Michael Wilson, Britain's most wanted criminal who was previously believed to be one of the gunmen trapped in the 12-by-14-foot room, may not be among them.

The gunmen fled into the Matthews' apartment Saturday night after escaping a police ambush. The police said then there were four of them and that Wilson, wanted for the slaying of Ross McWhirter, coeditor of the Guinness Book of World Records, was believed among them.

Monday night, Cmdr. Ernest Bond, deputy assistant commissioner of Scotland Yard, told newsmen the kidnapers had asked for food and cigarettes for five people, presumably three gunmen and the two hostages.

"However, it is possible they are trying to make us think there are only three when there are four," said Bond.

The gunmen said they were members of the Provisional wing of the IRA, which has been fighting a guerrilla war to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite the predominantly Protestant province with the Roman Catholic Irish republic.

Bond said they were "a good part of the team" responsible for a series of bombings and shootings in which nine persons have been killed and more than 200 injured since August.

Local Basketballers In Special Olympics

Last Friday through Sunday, 12 Special Olympics Basketball players from Greenville were in Durham to compete in the N.C. State Special Olympics Basketball Tournament.

Five athletes competed in the Run, Dribble and Shoot competition. They placed as follows: Johnnie Barnhill, gold medal; Dana Johnson, silver medal; Flora Smith, bronze medal; Marjorie Williams, bronze medal; and Russell Thomas, gold medal.

The two gold medal winners, Barnhill and Thomas, will advance to the Southeast Regional Tournament to be held early next year.

Athletes playing on the basketball team were Ronnie Holland, Donnie Holland, Tony Farmer, Dale Moore, Ollen Peaden, Raymond Powell, and Ben Moore. The team finished the tournament third in Division I Senior Boys.

The weekend included a Victory Banquet on Saturday night and tickets to the North Carolina Central University—Delaware State Basketball Game. The State Tournament was hosted by N.C. Special Olympics and the Durham Recreation Department.

This is the second year Greenville has participated in the Special Olympics Basketball Program. Participation has more than tripled since last year in the year-round program for special athletes.

Arrest Suspect For Break-In

Charles N. Moore, 29, of 1110 West Fourth St. was arrested early today on breaking and entering charges following investigation of an incident at 1304A South Greene St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers, responding to a prowler complaint, found Moore coming from the rear of the Greene Street dwelling.

Further investigation, Cannon said, revealed that the screen on a door at the rear of the home had been pushed out and the rear door unlocked.

The incident was reported at 12:55 a.m.

Miss Griffin In Dance Concert

Miss Nora Aline Griffin, a freshman at Meredith College and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Griffin of Farmville, performed in the Winter Dance Concert at Meredith yesterday in Jones Auditorium.

The concert was a culmination of the semester's work in the dance classes at the church-related senior liberal arts women's college.

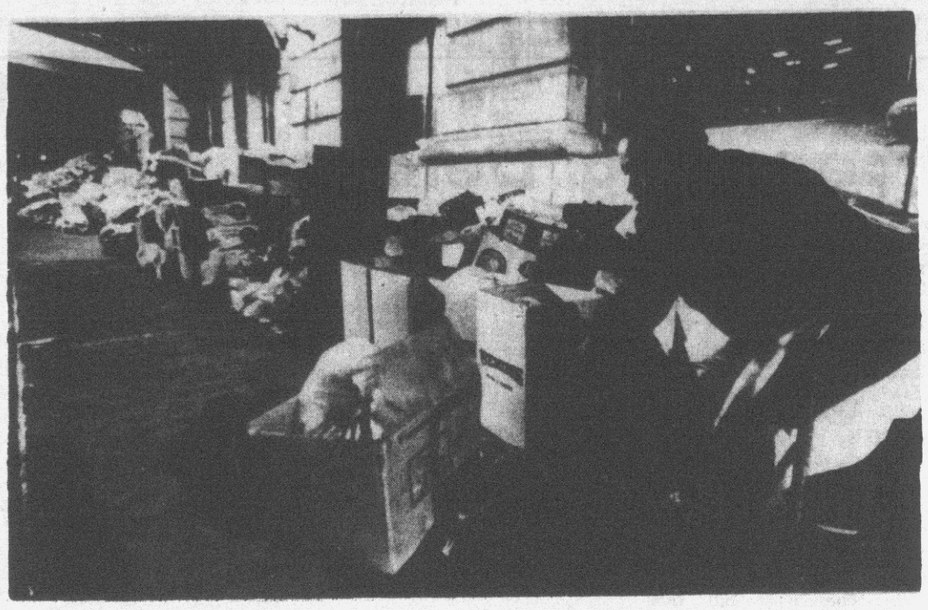

Miss Griffin is a 1975 graduate of Farmville Central High School.

Charged With Embezzlement

Vernal Gaskins, 41, of 301 Church St. has been arrested on charges of embezzlement by Greenville police according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said Gaskins allegedly took $475 from Bob's Mobile Homes on the U.S. 264 By-pass on November 7.

Gaskins, office manager for the mobile home firm, was placed under a $1,000 bond pending hearing of the case in court.

AND NOW A GARBAGE CRISIS— Worker piles more garbage on the trash already lining the sidewalk outside of New York's Plaza Hotel Monday as a Teamsters' Union strike against private garbage collectors entered its second week. Hotels, restaurants and commercial buildings that are served by the private collectors have had to resort to piling their accumulated garbage along the sidewalks. (AP Wirephoto)

Pirates Close Road Trip With Duke

Maryland Strengthens Hold On Second Place

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Indiana remains the overwhelming choice for the top spot in the Associated Press' college basketball poll, while Maryland has solidified its standing as the nation's No. 2 team.

Indiana, idle last week after opening its season with a resounding 84-64 triumph over defending champion UCLA Nov. 29, garnered 57 first place votes from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters participating in this week's poll, announced today. The Hoosiers, rated second to Tennessee on the other two ballots, received 1,176 points out of a possible 1,180.

The next five clubs on the list retained their positions from last week, although Tennessee barely missed climbing into the top five.

Maryland, 3-0 after whipping DePauw 99-42 and Richmond 98-71 last week, was a clear-cut choice for second place with 1,048 points. Marquette, 2-0, with victories over St. Joseph's, Ind. 87-60 and Northern Michigan 56-45, retained third place with 838 points.

But last week Marquette trailed second-place Maryland by just 85 points; this week the gap was 210.

The voting was based on games played through Sunday, Dec. 7. Indiana and Maryland continued their winning ways Monday night, the Hoosiers beating Florida State 83-59 and the Terps defeating Boston U. 122-82.

North Carolina beat Seton Hall 75-63 and Virginia Tech 88-75 last week to raise its record to 3-0 and remain in fourth place with 793 points.

UCLA bounced back from its opening loss to Indiana by defeating San Jose State 90-80 and Southern Illinois 81-60 and received 584 points to keep hold of the No. 5 rating in a three-team dog-fight.

Louisville, 2-0 after a 78-59 triumph over Murray State, polled 576 points and remained in sixth place. Tennessee, 3-0, beat Duke 86-80 and Michigan 82-81 last week and climbed one notch to seventh with 568 points, including the two first-place votes that eluded Indiana.

Completing the Top Ten were Notre Dame, 3-0, 519 points; Cincinnati, 4-0, 355, and Arizona, 4-0, 327. Each climbed one spot from last week's rankings.

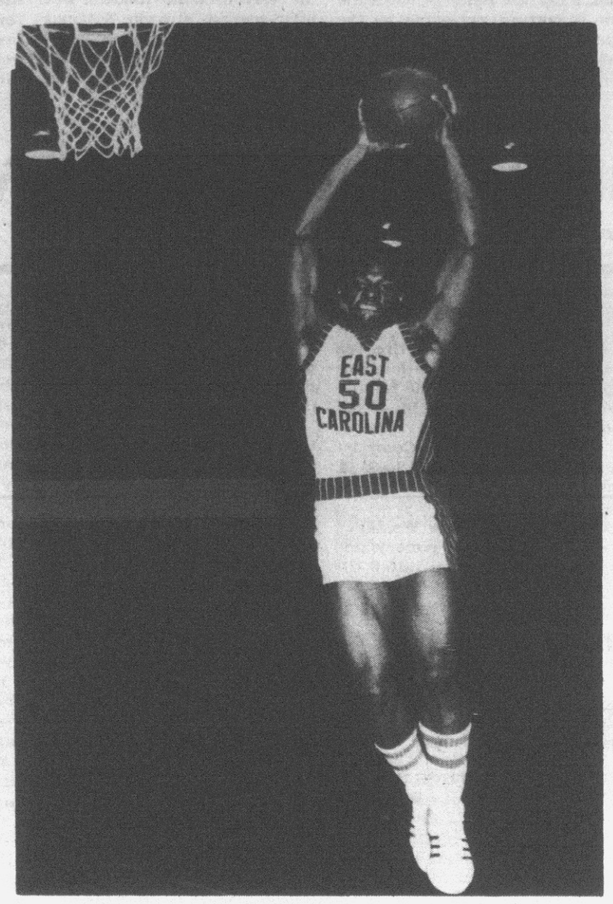

Kentucky, ranked seventh last week, dropped out of the Top Ten after losing to Northwestern 89-77. The Wildcats, 0-1, were rated 14th in the new rankings.

Alabama, 3-0, climbed three rungs on the ladder from last week and headed the Second Ten with 284 points. San Francisco, 3-0, remained No. 12 with 270 points and North Carolina State, 3-0, held onto the 13th spot with 237 points.

Completing the Second Ten were Kentucky, 0-1, 141; Washington, 4-0, 75; Nevada-Las Vegas, 4-0, 66; Auburn, 2-0, 65; Michigan, 1-1, 57; Arizona State, 3-0, 56, and Missouri, 4-0, 42.

Here are the Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press college basketball poll with first-place votes in parentheses, season records through games of Sunday Dec. 7 and total points. Points based on 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

Rampants Top Jaguar Matmen

FARMVILLE—Rose High School recorded its third straight victory of the year last night, easing past Farmville Central, 39-25.

The outcome of the match remained in doubt until the final two events, won by Rose. Farmville Central victories in those two could have reversed the outcome.

Overall, Rose won eight events, while the Jaguars took five. Two of the Rose wins came on forfeits, while each team won three matches on pins.

The victory left Rose with a 3-0 record. Farmville Central, which opened Saturday in a quadrangular meet, is now 3-1.

Rose travels to D. H. Conley on Thursday.

Summary:

98: Clifton Hagan (R) pinned Charles Barfield, 1:15.

105: James Cherry (R) won by forfeit.

112: Willie White (FC) pinned Mike Norfleet, 5:21.

119: Jesse Baker (R) pinned James Murcer, 2:46.

126: Horace Williams (FC) pinned Greg Gambrell, 1:16.

132: Jimmy Davis (R) decisioned Carl Davis. 6-3.

138: Johnny Harris (R) won by forfeit.

145: Robert Williams (FC) decisioned Virgil Tyson, 10-0.

155: Ronnie Reddick (R) decisioned James M. Murcer, 5-2.

167: Aaron Gorham (FC) decisioned Raymond Wooten, 6-1.

185: Timmy Hall (FC) pinned Burnie Fleming, 1:05.

195: Ronnie Goodall (R) pinned Leroy White, 0:59.

Heavyweight: Rocky Butler (R) decisioned Randy Jackson, 10-4.

Lady Bullets Seek Experience

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
(One of a series)

JAMESVILLE—Jamesville High School's girls basketball team lost four starters last year but while this is a problem for Coach Patrice Briton, it could help in the long run.

This year's edition of the Lady Bullets is mostly freshmen and sophomores. Not having four experienced players will give the younger girls a lot of action.

"We should be more of a team," the coach said. "We will have eight or ten that will play a great deal. In the next couple of years they should have some great years."

But the Lady Bullets started their season off on not so great a note losing to Williamston, 59-27. "We couldn't get in the game," said Ms. Briton. "We had a lack of confidence. I hope by the time we get into the conference we will be pretty good. The potential is there."

The only returning starter is Tempie Modlin. The coach is looking for rebounding help from her as she is one of the few tall girls on the team at 5-9. "She is a forward and can work inside."

Rene Martin, a junior, will be at center and Edith James will be the other number one forward. Martin did not start last year but she saw a lot of action substituting. James is recovering from an injury. "She still has trouble with her knee, she is still giving way to it. I think she will come around," the coach said.

At the guards are Joyce Mobley and Betty Lou Davis. Both are quick but this is the first year of basketball for Joyce. She is a senior.

At another forward is Joyce Manning. "If her attitude improves," Ms. Briton said, "She will give us a great deal of help." The coach is also expecting good bench strength from Kim Hardison and Sandy Rodgers.

Offensively, the Lady Bullets will be trying to get the ball inside more. They were uneffective against Williamston in the opener but few teams are able to penetrate the Lady Tigers.

"We're using a 2-1-2 working against what defense we see. We are trying to work the ball fast and inside." The Lady Bullets have good inside shooters in Modlin and James. The coach said her girls allow themselves to be pushed back by the defense out of their range but she hopes they can overcome this.

Despite a lack of height, Ms. Briton expects the team to get more rebounds this year. That will take time, however.

One asset the Lady Bullets have lies in quickness, especially on defense. "I hope they will be able to move it, they've shown it (so far)," the coach said.

The coach expects the team's performance to improve after the first few games. They have to play Williamston again and Chocowinity, which will be tough tests.

Ms. Briton expects the most conference trouble from either Bath, Bear Grass or Belhaven this season. "It could possibly be Bath," she said. "I believe that Bear Grass will be one of the contenders. Chocowinity might fool me." She also expects Pantego to have a good team because of returning height.

She also said her team would be in the thick of things if the Lady Bullets can get eight or ten girls to give good depth. "I hope we can contend with some of the schools," she said. "The talent is there. They have been scrapping and have been more aggressive than Jamesville's had in years."

A good season hinges on finding the players. As Ms. Briton noted, the talent is there. "We're hopeful this week will tell us."

East Carolina's Pirates finish up a four-game road trip Wednesday night when they travel to Durham to meet the surprisingly strong Duke Blue Devils.

Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in Cameron Indoor Stadium.

The Blue Devils bring a 2-1 record into the game, while the struggling Pirates are still looking for their first win after three starts.

The Bucs, of course, haven't exactly had friendly audiences to play in front of. They opened at Maryland, second ranked; then played at 13th-ranked N.C. State. This past Saturday, they played in "The Pit" at Virginia Military Institute.

Despite the dismal start, Coach Dave Patton isn't giving up on his charges. "We're not going to let three of four games ruin our season," he said. "We have a lot more basketball to play. I don't care how bad it may look now, we have the makings of a good team."

Patton expressed some pleasure at the way his team played in the 73-56 loss to Virginia Military. "We kept after it. We didn't quit, and we got good effort."

The coach pointed out that in the first game, the team got no effort and no board work. "But we've outrebounded our last two opponents. That part of the game is coming around. But we're still making mistakes. The guys are aware of it, and they still have a good spirit.

"We have some winners who are going to do what is necessary. It's going to take a little time, but we've got hustle and spirit and the rest will work out. Our defense was improved against VMI, too."

Patton is not pleased with the offense, however. "We're still standing around too much. This is causing us to take poor shots, which result in a low percentage. We looked better today in practice, so I think this will come too."

The coach was disappointed that Tyron Edwards saw so little action against VMI, picking up three fouls in the opening three minutes. "They were silly fouls, freshman fouls, but I guess we have to expect those things." Patton also was pleased with the play of freshman Louis Crosby. "Lou had his best game. He's starting to come now. He's getting more confidence."

Looking toward tomorrow night, Patton rates Duke as one of the best coached teams in the country. "They are getting every bit out of their talent that they can," he said. "Willie Hodge, Tate Armstrong and George Moses are playing out of sight. The whole team is playing with great intensity, what I call playing hard."

Patton feels that the Bucs can play with the Blue Devils. "If we play with the same enthusiasm and confidence and intensity, that they play with, we can win. I don't think that they're going to be taking us light."

Duke comes into the game having downed Johns Hopkins and Virginia. Their lone loss was a close contest with Tennessee.

"We have to keep our poise, go to the boards, play good defense and just generally play hard," Patton said.

"A win would help, but I won't say that we're desperate for a win. If we don't win, it won't kill us."

Reggie Lee leads the Pirates scoring after three games with a 13.0 average. Two other Pirates are in double figures, Larry Hunt at 10.7 and Al Edwards at 10.3.

Hunt leads the rebounding with an 8.3 mark, while Wade Henkel has a 7.0 average.

Following Wednesday's game, the Bucs open their home slate, entertaining Davidson College in a Southern Conference game on Saturday night.

Tarkenton Close To TD Record

By BRENT KALLESTAD
AP Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Professional football's version of the Georgia Peach is packing up all of the game's passing records for shipment to his home state, where many of baseball's hitting records already are enshrined.

Francis Asbury Tarkenton needs only two touchdown passes to surpass the record of 290 held by John Unitas. That record could fall by next Sunday during Minnesota's game at Detroit.

The 35-year-old minister's son from Athens, Ga., throws the way the original Georgia Peach, Ty Cobb, used to hit.

"Francis is going to set some records that never will be broken," says Unitas, who spent 18 years establishing his brilliant totals.

Tarkenton already has surpassed Unitas' completions mark by 58 this season, while establishing a Minnesota record of 230 completions in a season with two games remaining. He has passed for 2,622 yards and 23 touchdowns, while being intercepted 11 times in 355 attempts.

With 32 more passing attempts — a mark he seems certain to reach in the next two games — Tarkenton will have thrown more passes than anyone else. He remains 1,771 yards shy of Unitas' lifetime standard of 40,239 yards passing.

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant says Tarkenton's 15th pro season is his best. "Francis is setting career records while he is at the very top of his profession," he said. "He has all the qualities of greatness and enthusiasm, but most important is his durability. Francis is always ready."

Tarkenton never has missed an NFL game because of an injury. He still plays with the exuberance of a 21-year-old, which he was when he passed for 1,997 yards and 18 touchdowns in his rookie season.

After six stormy years under Coach Norm Van Brocklin at Minnesota, Tarkenton asked to be traded and spent five seasons with the New York Giants before being reacquired by the Vikings in 1972.

"Football is a lot more fun when you're on a winning team," said Tarkenton.

Tarkenton, rapped as a scrambler in his early years, has given respectability to that frenetic activity. Grant likes to say Tarkenton's elusive maneuvers "buy time" for the quarterback and the receivers.

Tarkenton also has rushed for more yards than any other quarterback in the game's history, with 3,627 yards on 608 carries. That averages just less than six yards per run.

Tarkenton still has one year remaining on his present contract with Minnesota.

Banquet For Rose

The annual Rose High School football banquet will be held Sunday at 6:30 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

The banquet will honor the 1975 State 4-A Football Champions. No awards will be presented at the banquet, and there will be no featured speaker. All awards will be during the All-Sports Banquet in the spring.

Tickets are now on sale at $5 each, and must be purchased by Thursday. Tickets are on sale at the high school office, at University Seafood and at Pair Electronics.

Pace In 2nd Win

Pace Academy picked up its second straight victory last night, downing Pungo Academy, 45-44, in overtime.

Both teams put in six points in the opening frame, and Pace inched out to an 18-16 lead at halftime. Pace increased its lead to 29-21 at the end of the third period, but Pungo rallied in the final frame, outscoring the Patriots, 19-11, to tie it up at 40-40 at the horn.

Dennis Ross hit a free throw with 30 seconds left to give Pace a 45-42 lead in the overtime. Kevin Cahoon hit at the buzzer, but it left Pungo one point short.

Peter Pace led the scoring for Pace with 20 points, while Ross added 19. R. Harris led Pungo with 15, while Cahoon added 14.

Pace will play host to Pamlico Academy Saturday at 6 p.m.

Pace—White 2, Ross 19, Pace 20, Brinson 2, Dye 2.

SQUEEZED—Denver Broncos' running back Jon Keyworth (32) finds the end of the line after a two-yard gain during the third period of Monday night's game with Oakland. Raider Defense Puts Win In Sack

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders' defense rose to the occasion by knocking down Denver quarterbacks John Hufnagel and Steve Ramsey all night.

"Ten sacks! That's what makes my job easy — when the line is putting pressure on the quarterbacks," said rookie safety Charles Phillips, who intercepted three passes in the Raiders' 17-10 victory over the Broncos in a nationally televised game.

Otis Sistrunk, from his defensive tackle position, led the charge on the Denver passers. He took part in five of the sacks which took some heat off the Oakland offense and helped the playoff-bound Raiders win their seventh straight National Football League game.

The normally explosive offense run by quarterback Ken Stabler seemed to be working with a silencer. Denver was ahead 3-0 on Jim Turner's 18-yard field goal which followed an Oakland fumble in the first period.

"They took almost everything away from us," admitted Stabler, who completed just two of his first nine passes and suffered two interceptions. Oakland's offensive efforts had accounted for only 30 yards by late in the second quarter.

But Horace Jones then sacked Hufnagel, making his first NFL start, at the Denver 21-yard line and the Raiders drove 44 yards after taking a short punt. Fred Biletnikoff shook loose to catch passes which gained 15 and 16 yards and Harold Hart ran two yard for the touchdown which sent Oakland ahead.

In the third quarter, after Phillips' third interception against Hufnagel, the Raiders drove 48 yards for another touchdown, scored by Pete Banaszak on a one-yard run. That was about it offensively.

Denver outgained Oakland by 76 yards, 254 to 178, despite the 74 yards subtracted from the Broncos' total by the 10 sacks.

"Still, Oakland keeps on winning, and you can't knock success," said Broncos' Coach John Ralston, whose team is 5-7 and aiming only for the runner-up spot behind the Raiders, 10-2, in the American Conference West.

Ramsey threw a 33-yard pass to Haven Moses to set up Fran Lynch's five-yard touchdown run in the final period and Denver cut the Oakland lead to 14-10.

Two killing pass interference calls against cornerback Louis Wright then hit Denver's defense, setting up George Blanda's 18-yard field goal with 2:21 left in the game.

"I thought (Ted) Kwalick grabbed me. When I saw the flag I thought, 'Good, he got caught,' " said Wright, who reacted in disbelief when the first penalty was called against him rather than the Oakland receiver.

The officials moved the ball 61 of the 80 yards on the drive which led to the field goal. When Denver got the ball back for a final time, Ramsey went down under linebacker Gerald Irons and Sistrunk on successive pass attempts.

"They were all over us," said Ralston.

Instant Replays May Get Another NFL Look

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

With referees under fire for controversial, game-deciding calls that dampened one team's playoff hopes and helped kill the chances of another, National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle is looking more seriously at the use of instant replays.

Two weeks ago, the Washington Redskins saw a sure victory over St. Louis turn into a tie — and eventually into a sudden-death overtime loss — when the Cardinals got a disputed touchdown on a fourth-down play in the final seconds of the fourth period.

That play — in which Mel Gray caught the ball but was stripped of it before his feet touched the end zone turf — spurred renewed demands by Washington Coach George Allen that each game have an additional official, one with instant replay facilities to review questionable calls.

On Sunday, Buffalo was knocked out of the playoff picture, losing 31-21 to Miami. The Bills' chances of beating the Dolphins were hurt not only by Don Strock's two touchdown passes and one scoring run but by a call by head linesman Jerry Bergman on an apparent fumble by Miami's Mercury Morris.

The play was ruled no fumble — and when Buffalo's Pat Toomay hit Bergman as he tried to recover the ball, the official hit the Bills' defensive end with a 15-yard penalty.

Rozelle, asked about the possible use of cameras to settle the controversies over such calls as these, said: "If there is a practical way, if the mechanics can be resolved, we are not opposed to it."

He said he will ask the league's Competition Committee to study the feasibility of instant-replay use and report to the league at its annual meeting next March in Coronado, Calif.

Rozelle also said the use of instant replay had never seriously been considered by the NFL, although it has been discussed briefly. Among the problems with using it, he said, are the following:

—"You would have to see the play from many angles, meaning you would need several camera positions."

—"We'd probably have to install our own equipment and we would probably need 10 to 12 cameras in each stadium."

—"We would have to decide how many times the device could be used in a game, whether it would cost a team a time out and who would study the replays and where he would be located."

—"We would have to consider the time element—how long it would take to look at a sufficient number of camera angles to be satisified you had accurately seen play."

And, Rozelle said, cost factors of installing such a system and a study of whether all NFL stadiums would have enough camera positions available would have to be considered.

Injury Might Speed Decision

By DOUG TUCKER
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Len Dawson's long, distinguished career may have ended in the shadow of his own goalposts, in pain and frustration.

If so, it would seem an unfitting way for the American Football League's all-time leading passer to go out.

The 40-year-old Dawson has maintained that this, his 19th season as a professional quarterback, may be his last. But he insists he still has not made a decision and will not do so for several weeks.

In any event, he will play no more this year. Midway in the fourth quarter of the San Diego-Kansas City game Sunday, Dawson fell beneath a Chargers pass rush and broke his right thumb.

The Chiefs went on to lose to lowly San Diego, 28-20, falling to 5-7. An obviously disappointed Dawson said later, "It sure wasn't a very glamorous finish if this is the way I went out. If this is the end, it's been a great experience playing in Kansas City."

From 1957 — Dawson's rookie year at Pittsburgh — through his last play Sunday, he passed for 28,711 yards and 239 touchdowns.

Both figures represent American Conference records. On the all-time NFL quarterback list, the boyishly handsome Dawson ranks fourth behind Johnny Unitas, Fran Tarkenton and Sonny Jurgensen.

Dawson, who played at Purdue and led the Big Ten in passing and total offense for three years, languished for three seasons at Pittsburgh and two at Cleveland before catching on.

In 1962, Hank Stram brought him to the young AFL's struggling Dallas Texans and Dawson promply led them to the AFL championship over the Houston Oilers in pro football's second longest game. The next year, owner Lamar Hunt moved the Texans to Kansas City and renamed them the Chiefs.

For the next seven years, Dawson and the Chiefs hovered near the top. On Jan. 15, 1967, as the AFL champions, they met the Green Bay Packers in the first Super Bowl and were dispatched, 35-10.

Three years later, they extracted their pound of flesh from the rival NFL by upsetting the Minnesota Vikings 23-7 in Super Bowl IV, giving Kansas City its finest hour.

The Kansas City Star ran a front-page story last Thursday saying the Chargers contest might be the home fans' last opportunity to see Dawson and Buck Buchanan, a 12-year veteran of the defensive line.

When Dawson ran onto the field, the crowd jumped to its feet and gave him a standing ovation. Signs reading, "But Lenny, we love you" and "Go, Lenny, Baby" appeared in the crowd.

"I saw all the signs the fans had out there today," Dawson said in the gloom of the Chiefs' dressing room. Asked again about his plans, he said, "I haven't had time to sit down with them (management), but it would have to be a matter of whether or not they need me."

Vikings Romp By Williamston

HOLLYWOOD — D. H. Conley romped to a 52-15 victory over Williamston High School last night in a wrestling match.

Conley spotted Williamston a 9-0 lead, then came back to charge ahead 12-9 by winning the next two. After that, the Vikings never trailed.

The Vikes won nine of the 13 matches, taking one by forfeit and six by pins. Williamston won only one match by a win.

The Vikes, now 3-0, play host to Rose on Thursday. Williamston hosts Washington on Thursday.

Summary:

Knowing How And Doing Two Different Things

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Florida State Coach Hugh Durham thinks he knows how to beat top-ranked Indiana. Getting it done, however, is another matter.

"It's important to get off to a good start," Durham explained. "Then there are two ways to play against Indiana — either run at them or go into a freeze."

So how come Indiana whipped Durham's Seminoles 83-59 Monday night, at one point leading by a whopping 38 points?

"We didn't get that good start," Durham said. "They probably have the best defense in the country. We couldn't attack their set defense, so we tried to run. We had the shots — but didn't hit them."

Eight other members of the AP's Top Twenty also played Monday night, and most of them came up winners.

No. 2 Maryland romped to a 122-82 decision over Boston U., No. 4 North Carolina pulled away in the second half and beat No. 14 Kentucky 90-77, No. 8 Notre Dame outlasted Kansas 72-64, No. 9 Cincinnati tripped Biscayne 74-52, Kansas State upset No. 10 Arizona 71-61, No. 11 Alabama defeated Middle Tennessee 76-62 and No. 20 Missouri beat Rice 94-75.

Scott May scored 24 points and Kent Benson added 22 to lead the Indiana assault. Hoosiers Coach Bobby Knight used reserves for much of the one-sided game.

Indiana, foiling Durham's strategy, outscored the Seminoles 14-2 at the outset. It was 47-20 at the half and then 79-41 before Knight rested his starters for good.

Maryland, 4-0, led by just 52-44 at halftime but buried BU with a second-half blitz. John Lucas' 22 points and Steve Sheppard's 21 were high for the Terps, who had seven players in double figures.

Mitch Kupchak scored 24 points and Walter Davis added 19 to lead North Carolina past Kentucky.

All-American Adrian Dantley' 27 points led Notre Dame past Kansas. The Irish, 4-0, trailed by four at the half but wore down the Jayhawks on the shooting of Dantley and Don Williams, who had 16 points.

Bob Miller, Cincinnati's sophomore center, scored 19 points and took down 10 rebounds as the Bearcats, 5-0, coasted past Biscayne.

Kansas State, 3-2, made a bid to climb back into the top 20 by upsetting previously unbeaten Arizona, 4-1. Mike Evans scored 11 consecutive points in a 2½-minute span of the second half to build a nine-point lead for Kansas State, and Arizona never recovered. Evans finished with 25 points, while Arizona center Bob Elliott had 20 points and 17 rebounds.

Giants, Cards Open Trading

By JOHN R. SKINNER
AP Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have turned third base over to hard-hitting minor leaguer Hector Cruz by sending Ken Reitz to the San Francisco Giants for lefty pitcher Pete Falcone.

"He (Cruz) has been the best ballplayer in the minor leagues the past two years," Cardinal Manager Red Schoendienst said Monday in announcing the trade at baseball's winter meetings.

"The Giants have needed a third baseman for a number of years and Reitz is a good ballplayer," Schoendienst added.

The Cardinals are expecting big things from Cruz, based on the opinion of Ken Boyer, manager of their Tulsa farm club.

"Boyer is very high on Cruz," said Bing Devine, general manager of the Cards.

Cruz, who teamed with his brothers, Tommy and Jose, in the St. Louis outfield when called up late in the 1973 season, was named the Most Valuable Player in the American Association last season. He clubbed Class AAA pitching for 29 home runs, 116 runs batted in and a .306 average.

The trade is subject to approval by the National League because of the impending sale of the Giants.

Reitz, 24, gives the Giants the league's Gold Glove winner of 1975. He hit .269 with five home runs and 63 runs batted in last season after a .235 rookie year in 1973 and a .271 campaign in 1974.

"We didn't have any good left-hand pitching prospects in the minor leagues," explained Schoendienst. "We hope to start Falcone, that's what we acquired him for."

Falcone, 22, who was 12-11 with an earned run average of 4.17 as a rookie in 1975, joins right-handers Lynn McGlothen, Bob Forsch, John Denny and Harry Rasmussen as starting candidates along with southpaw John Curtis.

A draft session earlier Monday found only five clubs willing to part with $25,000 to grab minor league talent.

The Detroit Tigers, drafting first, took 22-year-old right-handed pitcher Bruce Taylor from the Cincinnati Reds' Indianapolis farm club of the American Association. Taylor was 8-1 with a 2.22 ERA for Indianapolis last season.

Others picked were right-handed pitcher Gilbert Rondon by the Houston Astros, left-handed pitcher Luis Quintana by the Atlanta Braves, outfielder-first baseman Ed Kurpiel by the California Angels and first baseman-outfielder-designated hitter Tom Robson by the New York Yankees.

Meanwhile, organized baseball's official rules committee made the designated hitter rule an official playing rule Monday, optional for use by all major and minor league clubs.

All three National League committee members voted against the rule.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you can get much of value accomplished by carefully thinking out how you would like conditions to be in the future. Be ready and willing to accept a new relationship.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Consult associates and make long-range plans for the future. A co-worker may want to argue, but don't take the bait.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to what good friends have to suggest regarding a problem you have. You can get ahead now via social functions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Engage in those activities that will add to prestige in public life. Make a change where career matters are concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Obtain all the data you need so you can carry through with a new plan you have in mind. Make the right connections.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try a new approach in handling an important responsibility you have and get excellent results. Show mate you are devoted.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take steps to improve harmony with co-workers. Don't argue with one who opposes you or it could prove disastrous right now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may want to avoid unpleasant duties at hand, but it's best you do them now or you could lose out where it counts most.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Forget daydreaming so much and get out and do the things you should do. Improve your appearance and impress others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can improve home affairs by avoiding an interfering friend. A new venture could be profitable at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Discuss with friends better ways to gain mutual aims. Don't let a stuffy associate interfere with your personal life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Talk with money experts on how you can add to present income, but don't let a newcomer interfere. Strive for happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have a personal aim that can be attained provided you don't get bogged down with unrelated tasks. Relax tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be highly intuitive and should have the finest education possible in order to make the most of this rare quality, which could lead to fame and leadership. Your progeny could become a great benefactor to society.

New Regulations Are Fixed On Food Stamps

ATLANTA, Ga.—The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has adopted new regulations for determining food stamp allotments, and revised coupon allotments, purchase requirements, and maximum income eligibility standards, effective January 1.

On January 1, the amount of coupons allotted for a 4-person household will be increased from $162 to $166 a month, with adjustments for other household sizes in line with revised economies of scale. The maximum income eligibility level for a family of four will be correspondingly increased from $540 to $553 per month.

A total of 1,958 responses was received by USDA's Food and Nutrition (FNS) in response to its invitation for interested parties to comment on three alternative proposals to revise coupon allotments in the food stamp program, all based on USDA's thrifty food plan. Responses received through the end of the comment period, November 13, expressed over 5,200 comments. More than 3,900 of these comments indicated acceptance of Proposal 111 which provides a uniform allotment and eligibility standard schedule, much like the one presently in use.

The uniform allotment is based on the value of food required to feed a family of 4 persons consisting of a man and woman 20 through 54, a child 6 through 8, and a child 9 through 11 years of age. The cost of the diet for this 4-person household is the basis for uniform coupon allotments for all households, except for household size adjustments and adjustments which reflect the economies of scale set forth in the thrifty food plan developed by USDA's Agricultural Research Service (ARS).

The revised economies of scale developed by ARS are more generous for households of 6 or more persons than those used formerly in all the USDA food plans. Economies of scale are unchanged for households of 5 persons and less.

The Food Stamp Act, as amended, directs that coupon allotments be adjusted twice a year to reflect changes in food prices as published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Cost of the thrifty food plan in August 1975—the month which sets the January-June 1976 schedule—was $166 for a family of 4 with school children.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
Dble.	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

One of the secrets of successful declarer play is to recognize which defender constitutes a threat to your contract, then do all you can to keep him off lead. South overlooked this principle and went down in a makable game.

Since South's hand was too strong for an opening bid of one trump, he opened one club, intending to jump to two no trump over any response. When West overcalled and the next two players passed, South chose to reopen the auction with a double. This double was for takeout, since his partner had not yet bid, and was aimed at uncovering a 4-4 heart fit. After North showed a good diamond suit and some values with his jump response, South tried three no trump.

West led his fourth-best spade, and declarer allowed this to run to his jack. When he laid down the ace of diamonds and West discarded a spade, South was booked for defeat, because East was able to gain the lead, allowing the defenders to collect four heart tricks and the jack of diamonds for down one.

Declarer should have realized that there was a danger in hearts. Since the king of hearts was safe from attack as long as West held the lead, all declarer's efforts should have been directed toward preventing East from winning a trick, to shelter the king of hearts from being led through.

Declarer made his cardinal error at the very first trick. In view of West's overcall, it was highly likely that he was leading away from the king of spades. Therefore, declarer should have played the queen of spades from dummy. He couldn't make more than two spade tricks if West had the king, but an early entry to dummy would have permitted him to execute an avoidance play in diamonds.

When the queen of spades wins the first trick, declarer can assure the contract by leading a low diamond and inserting the ten when East follows low. If West wins this trick, declarer will have blown an overtrick, but he will still have nine tricks. As the cards lie, this play would have been amply rewarded because declarer would pick up the diamonds and emerge with at least ten tricks.

HOW MUCH IS YO CHARGING YOU FO

Lately, every bank and its uncle is offering you "free checking."

In fact, if you have regular checking, "free checking" is probably what your bank says you've got.

The problem, of course, is the $100 minimum balance most of those "free" accounts require.

Because, if you're like most people, you can't afford to let $100 lie around the bank doing nothing.

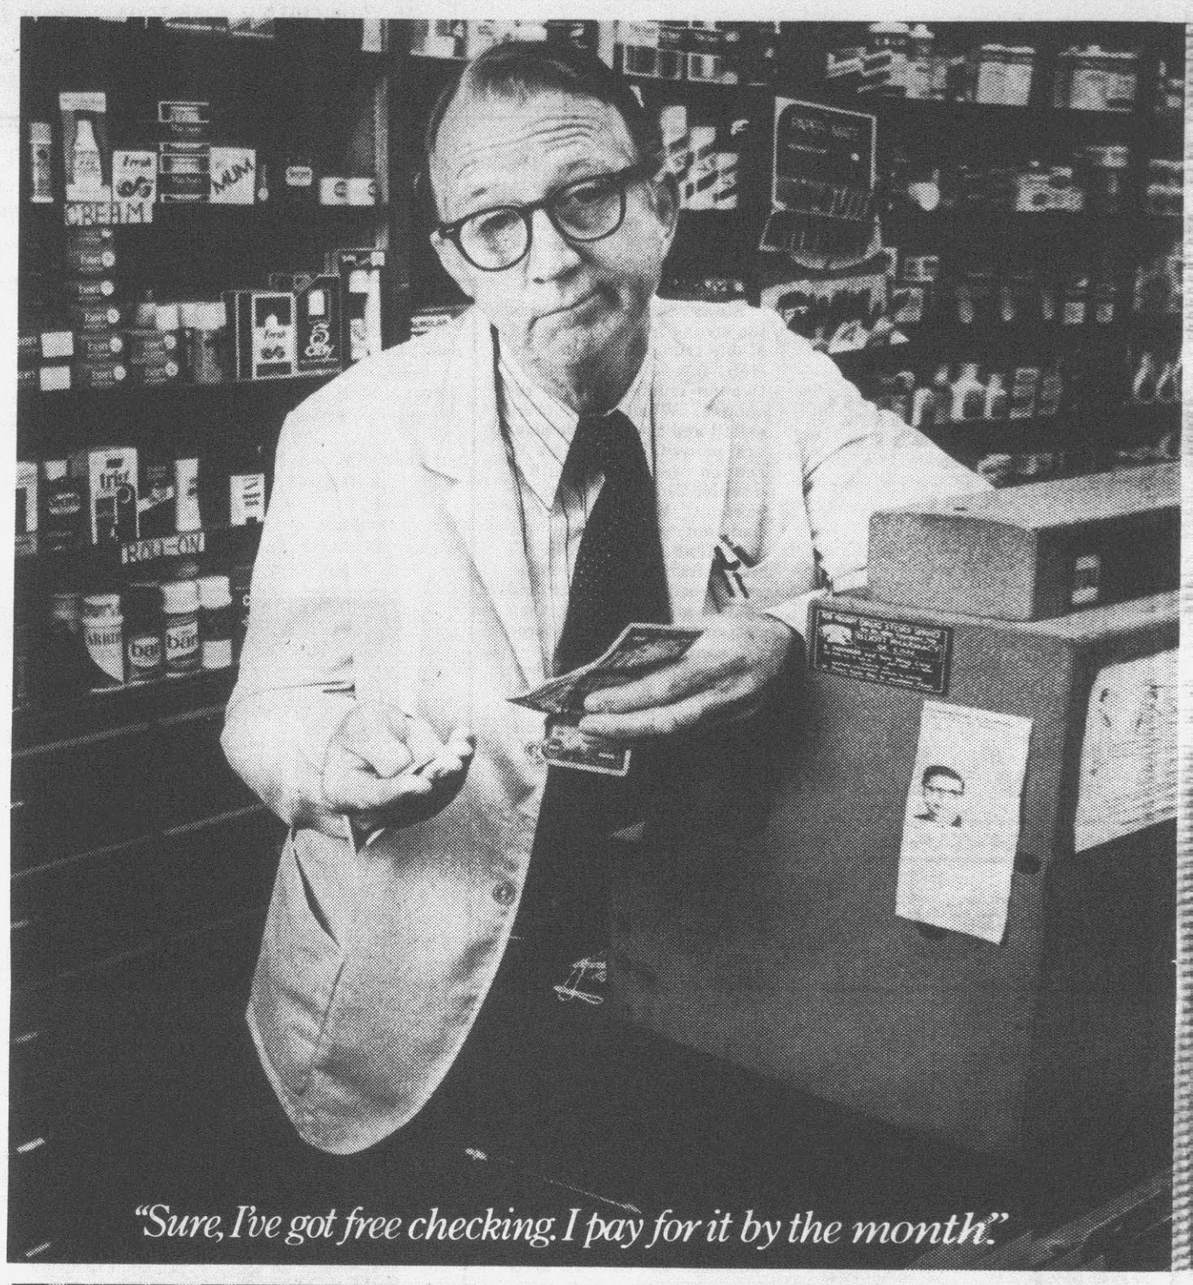

But, if you choose not to keep the $100 balance, you may find yourself paying $40 or $50 a year in service charges.

Either way, it gets very expensive.

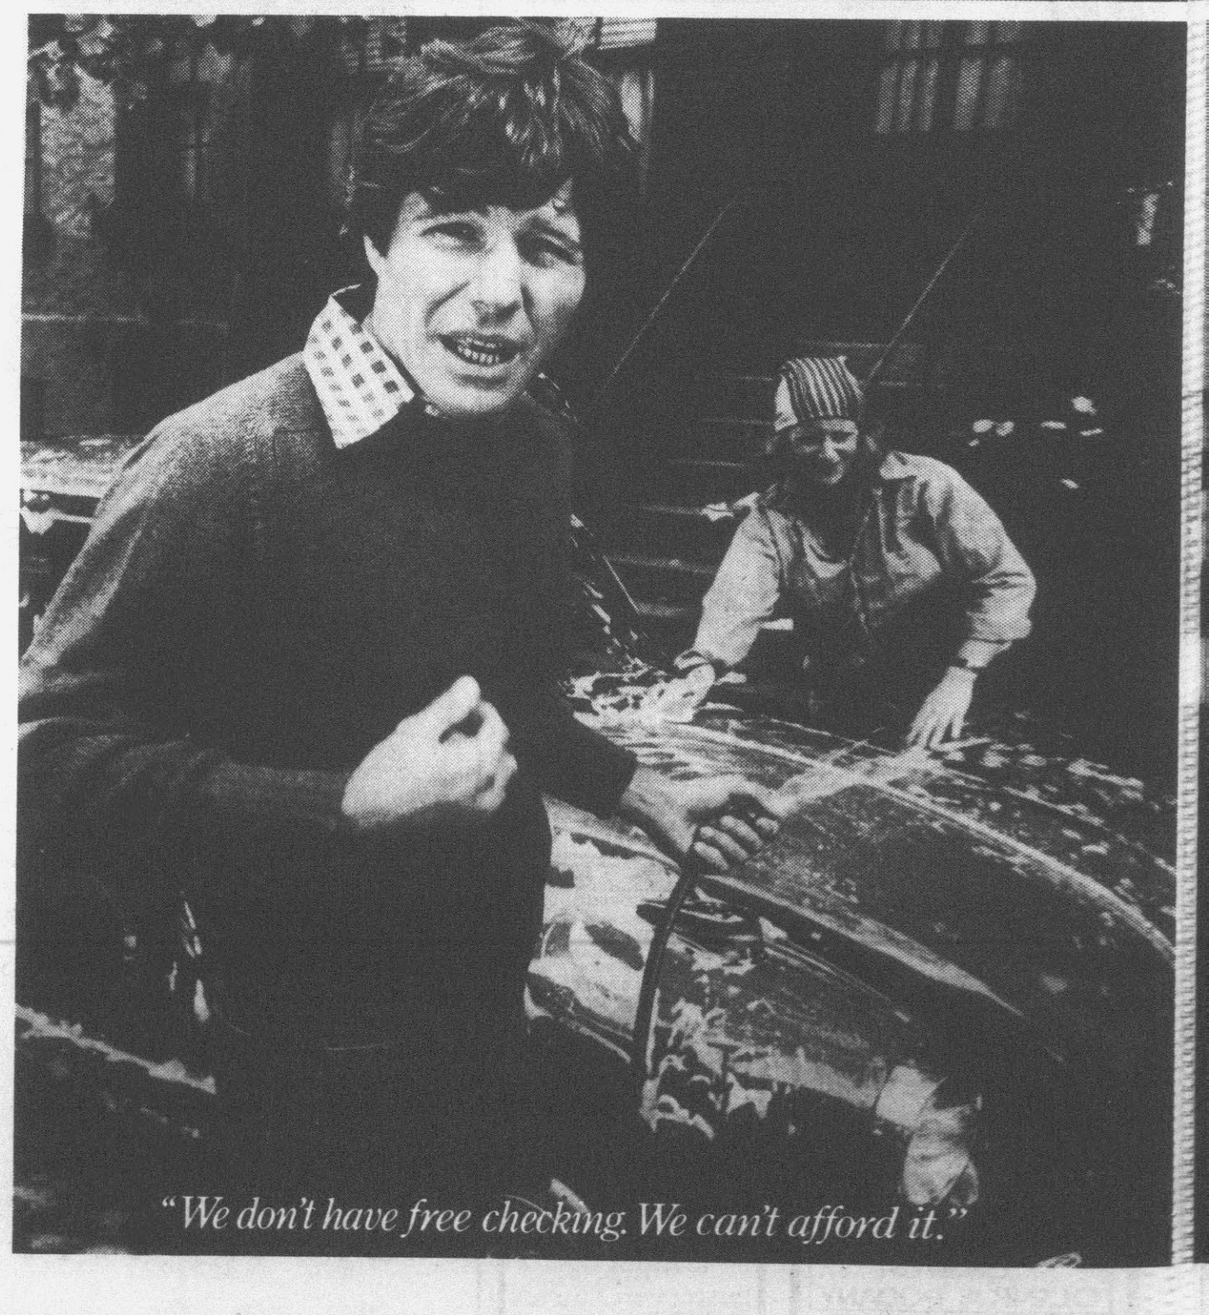

THE HIGH COST OF FREE CHECKING

These figures are based on statistics which show that the average person writes 16 checks per month and drops below the $100 minimum balance 6 months per year.

96 checks (16 checks x 6 months) at average cost of 13¢ per check	$12.48
Interest earned on $100 minimum balance, if deposited in 5% regular savings for one year	5.12
Total annual "free checking" cost	$17.60

"Sure, I've got free checking. I pay for it by the month."

"We don't have free checking. We can't afford it."

FREE CHECKING. IS IT, REALLY?

We did some calculating, not long ago, to see how much "free checking" was costing the average person.

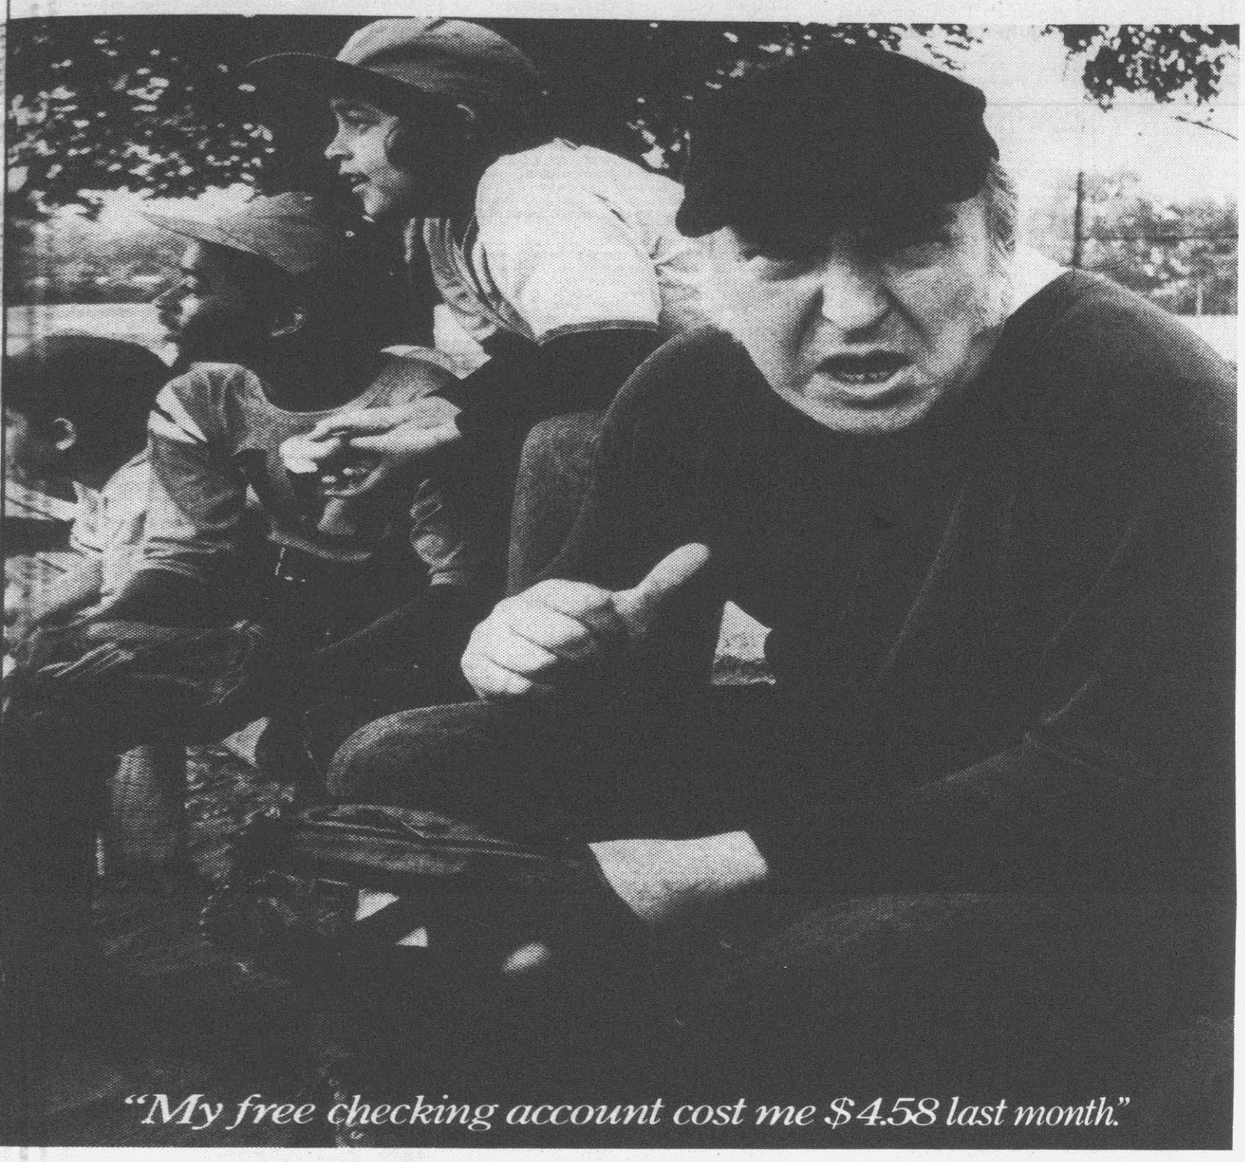

And the answers we came up with certainly didn't look "free" to us.

For one thing, you were losing the interest you could have been earning on that $100 balance.

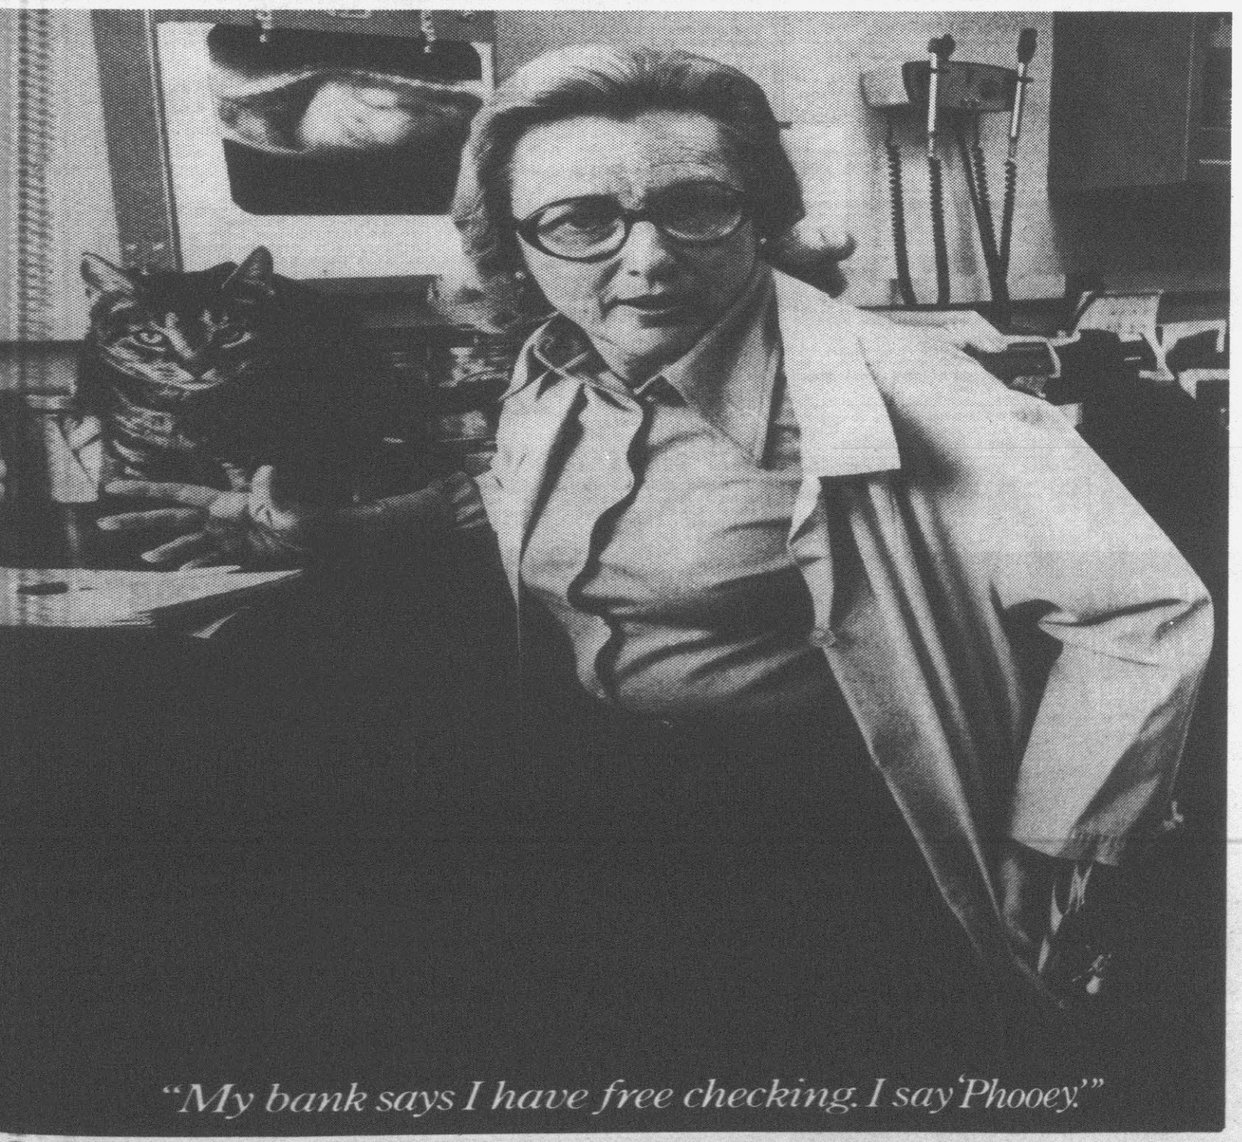

For another, if your balance fell to $99.99 for one day, you had to pay a service charge for the whole month.

Which, when we looked at it from your point of view and not just from ours, hardly seemed fair.

UR BANK REALLY R FREE CHECKING?

"My free checking account cost me $4.58 last month."

"My bank says I have free checking. I say 'Phooey.'"

So we decided to see if we could find a better way.

We came up with The Triple Option. Three ways to get checking with no service charge. And with no minimum checking balance.

Pick the option you like, then stop by and open your account. (If you bank with us now, and you want The Triple Option, just ask to have your account switched over.)

HOW THE TRIPLE OPTION WORKS.

You get no-service-charge checking if you keep $500 in regular savings.

Or if you start an automatic savings program and make deposits of $25 or more a month.

Or if you have Cash Reserve. Even if you're not using it.

Just choose the one option you think works best for you.

Then you won't ever have to pay service charges again. No matter what your checking balance is. No matter how many checks you write.

The NCNB Triple Option.

It's for people who can't afford the high cost of free checking, any more.

THE NCNB TRIPLE OPTION

OPTION 1
Ask us to set up an NCNB Automatic Savings program for you, with deposits of at least $25 a month.

OPTION 2
Maintain a balance of $500 or more in NCNB Regular Savings.

OPTION 3
Add NCNB Cash Reserve to your regular checking account.

The Triple Option is offered in addition to our present checking plans.

Booklets Helps The Handicapped

"View of Life," a 20-page inspirational booklet for handicapped persons of all ages, is available from the National Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, 2023 West Ogden Avenue, Chicago.

Written by Henry Henscheid, a 23-year-old born with cerebral palsy, "View of Life" points out to the handicapped that they can enjoy life more if they will look at themselves and the world around them with a positive attitude and share with others the dignity of their existence. "In many people's eyes," he says, "and maybe your own, you may have been shackled to a wheelchair or condemned to a life fighting a body that just won't cooperate. When you really think of it, though, this very limitation can be your unique opportunity to make a significant contribution to the world . . . you can show the 'normal' people of the world what life is really all about, and doing so, help them in a way in which they can never repay you."

Throughout high school and college in Idaho, Henscheid was active in the student government plus debate and oratorical competition, concert and band activities. Currently, he is studying for his master's degree in rehabilitation counseling at the University of Idaho and is president of National Youth for Easter Seals and an ex officio member of the National Easter Seal Society's board of directors.

Copies of the booklet are available at 25 cents each from the National Easter Seal Society, Chicago.

Two-Headed Snake In Exhibit

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has a two-headed rattlesnake in its traveling exhibit of state wildlife.

The snake was found by Michele Doeppenschmidt in the driveway of her home near New Braunfels and was caught by her science teacher. The reptile has two fully developed heads which seem to operate independently of each other.

ADVERTISEMENTS FOR INSURANCE PROPOSALS

The City of Greenville has decided to consolidate its insurance program (excluding the group life and hospitalization insurance), with a goal of one insurance agency and as few policies as practical. This is being done in an effort to make our total insurance program more manageable and current.

We are inviting established Greenville agencies to prepare a comprehensive insurance program for the City of Greenville. This program, including all coverage and premiums, must be received in the City Manager's office by 10:00 A.M. on January 20, 1976.

Contact Mr. Robert Bird, Personnel Officer, City of Greenville, for any information needed for your program preparation.

Civic Center

RALEIGH (AP)—Construction of Raleigh's new $18 million civic center has begun with a ceremonial groundbreaking by city officials. They turned over a few shovelfuls of muddy red earth Monday to begin an effort they hope will help revitalize the city's downtown area.

The new center will be built a few blocks south of the old State Capitol on Fayetteville Street, the main avenue of a downtown business area which has been losing stores and offices to subruban locations in recent years.

The center will, among other things, be the headquarters for the North Carolina Symphony. It will also be able to house exhibitions, meetings, and indoor sports events.

New Twist In Program-Buying

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For two seasons the Public Broadcasting Service has operated what it calls the Station Program cooperative, in which public TV stations defray the cost of about half the shows they get on the PBS national hookup.

Now, they're also getting a new program-buying system called the Station Acquisition Marketing Plan, or SAM, in which each station can buy programs for a fixed fee based on the size of the station's market.

How do the two systems differ?

John Montgomery, PBS' programs chief, says the cooperative is intended to help stations produce national programming for public TV. SAM, he says, is intended to let station officials look at — and possibly buy — completed programs offered by various sources.

In the cooperative plan, PBS stations each spring are given the opportunity to pledge financial support for proposed public TV series or pay to keep an established series on the air.

Each station is asked to pay a predetermined percentage of the cost of a series being offered. But the per-station price may rise or fall, depending on how many stations do or don't buy the program.

There is no price fluctuation in the SAM system, Montgomery says. Each station is offered a program or series on a fixed-cost basis. It must pay the price it's quoted or it can't air the program.

He says when a program producer or syndicator wants to offer a show via the SAM system, PBS officials first look at it and decide "if it's something we want to offer the (PBS) system."

If it is, he says, PBS sets a minimum national price which is the total of the market-by-market fee worked out in negotiations between PBS officials and those wanting to sell the show to public TV stations.

If not enough stations buy the offering and the minimum national price isn't reached, he adds, the deal is off. If that happens, the program producer or syndicator has to go back to the custom of past years, travelling from city to city and showing the wares to station official in each market.

In the SAM system, begun last August, samples of the wares can be shown simultaneously to station managers on a closed-circuit transmission via PBS' national hookup, thus avoiding those time-consuming personal visits to individual stations.

If enough station officials like what they see and agree to buy it, PBS then feeds the entire offering to the purchasing stations on its national hookup. Each station tapes and airs it when it chooses to.

Tobacco Role Is Broadened

Pitt County native Larry McLawhorn, area leaf manager in Latin America for R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International, has been given responsibility over the firm's tobacco production in Venezuela, Brazil and Ecuador.

McLawhorn, associated with Philip Morris International for 14 years with assignments in various Latin America countries, joined Reynolds in 1974.

He and his family lived in Guatemala City for eight years while he headed tobacco growing activities for Philip Morris in Central America.

Son of R. Alton McLawhorn Sr. of Rt. 1, Greenville, he is married to the former Margaret Andrews of Farmville and they have three children.

Service Award Nomination Forms Ready

The Greenville Jaycees announced today the availability of nomination forms for this year's Distinguished Service Award, scheduled to be presented at the annual DSA banquet January 22.

Mike Peters of the local Jaycee chapter said nomination forms are available from the Greenville Chamber of Commerce office, city hall, the Greenville Utilities Commission building and from various banks in the city.

All nominations must be turned in to Peters before December 29 to be considered in the judging.

The Jaycees each year present the DSA award to a young man who has provided outstanding service to the community.

Awards Day Event For Cub Pack 191

Cub Scouts Pack 191 of Mt. Calvery Free Will Baptist Church had their Awards Day Banquet on Saturday, 5 p.m.

Certificates of Graduation from Cub Scouts to Boy Scouts were presented to Kenneth Daughtry, Timothy Pritchard, and Steven Staton. George Joyner, Assistant Scout Master for Troop 191 administered the Boy Scouts Oath to these three boys.

Bobcat pins were awarded to George Anderson, Derick Dickens, Dana Ellis, Robert Little, Roswell Streeter, Andre Worthington and Keith Worthington.

Wolf pins were awarded to Dana Ellis, Andre Jackson, Julius Joyner, Jr., and Bernard Little.

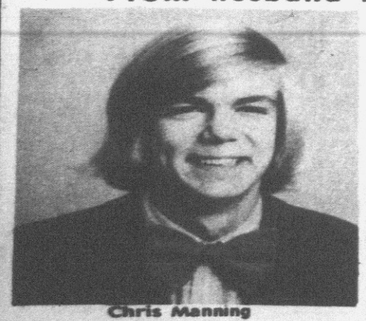

Gold Arrows were awarded to Kenneth Daughtry, Andre Jackson, Julius Joyner, Jr., Bernard Little, Timothy Pritchard, and Steven Staton, while trophies for outstanding performance as Cub Scouts went to Dana Ellis, Andre Jackson, Julius Joyner, Jr., Bernard Little, Robert Little, Timothy Pritchard, Steven Staton and Andre Worthington.

One year Service Pins and certificates of appreciation were awarded to Mrs. Dianne Shambley and Mrs. Jacqueline Jackson, Den Leaders for Pack 191. Also, trophies for outstanding performance as Den Leaders awarded to Mrs. Dianne Shambley and Mrs. Jacqueline Jackson.

Trophies of appreciation were presented to Mr. William E. Jackson and Mr. Aaron Shambley for their work as Cub Master for the pack.
