Utilities Hope For Reduction In Rates

Greenville Utilities is hoping for a substantial reduction in the wholesale rates it pays for electricity as the result of an agreement reached between Virginia Electric and Power Co. and the municipally-owned electric systems.

GUC Director Charles Horne reported to the commission Tuesday night that the agreement will mean a refund of a portion of the funds paid to VEPCO since last February, and also a reduction in wholesale rates of an estimated 13 percent.

However, the agreement won't be final until sometime next year—perhaps April. The reduction won't mean reduced rates for the consumer since GUC uses the Virginia Electric retail rate schedule.

But if the rate decrease and rebate doesn't come through, it would almost surely mean that GUC would have to depart from the VEPCO schedule and set higher local rates.

Horne said that at present GUC has to sell some electricity at below cost in the lowest industrial blocs. This money will be replaced through the rebate, and also the utilities could possibly resume its turn-over to the city—something that has not been paid for the first six months of the fiscal year.

The squeeze between the high wholesale rates and the VEPCO retail rates resulted in GUC showing an income loss of $19,404.14 in the electric operations for the month of November, the financial report showed. The failure of GUC to make monthly turn-over of funds to the city brought a new protest from Council member Millie McGrath. She acknowledged, however, that the city had agreed to find other funds to assist the Utilities in some of its projects.

Business Manager Curtis Howell reported that a bookkeeping error has finally been located. The error has thrown the Utilities books out of balance and there had been an extensive search to locate it.

Director Charles Horne said approval had been received to proceed on the West Greenville sewer project which will serve the new hospital. A federal grant has not yet been approved, however.

Approval for application for a state grant to help finance a water treatment plant was approved. Also approved was acceptance of a $8,125 state grant for facilities planning.

Commissioners approved a new billing plan which will mean that customers will have the same date due for their utilities bills each month. The date due has varied and sometimes a customer might have two bills due the same month.

Commissioners approved a new policy for bulk tobacco curing barns. It requires that a delay device be installed so that the motors will not come on instantly when a service outage is restored. Assistant Director Malcolm Green said the motors coming on at one time along a circuit puts a heavy load on the line. Commissioners were told that 1,510 refunds have been made to customers for deposits made to 1956. There are still approximately 5,000 deposits to be refunded.

The commission approved the purchase of a tree trimmer Bucket Truck from UDI, based on a low bid of $31,758.

Also approved was the purchase of a new truck chassis for a line truck. A boom will be transferred from the old chassis to the new. A price of $16,360.50 was offered by Utilities Service Inc. for the new chassis and the boom transfer. No bids were taken on the job.

A vehicle safety program for utilities drivers was approved.

Pike Will Abandon Contempt Action Against Kissinger

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House intelligence committee chairman Otis G. Pike said today he will drop contempt of Congress action against Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The move came after the White House briefed a committee delegation on State Department requests for covert U.S. operations abroad. Kissinger had refused to give the panel documents covering the covert activities.

Pike said information produced at the briefing substantially complied with a committee subpoena.

Asked as he walked into the committee room this morning if he would drop the contempt vote, Pike replied, "Yeah." Minutes later, Pike told the committee he planned to go to the House floor later in the day and "state that we have substantial compliance on this subpoena and the issue is moot."

Pike made the announcement after committee counsel A. Searle Field said the delegation received a "very good assurance" at the White House on Tuesday that the subpoenaed State Department documents, covering covert activities dating back to 1961, will be turned over.

Field said William Hyland, director of the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence, briefed the delegation in detail on 20 such State Department requests.

Hyland read directly from the State Department recommendations and from minutes on highly sensitive National Security Council 40 Committee consideration of the requests, Field said.

Pike said earlier if the delegation reported reaching a satisfactory compromise, "obviously that ends the matter."

Fracas After Ruling

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Fights between white and black pupils broke out inside South Boston High today less than 24 hours after a federal judge took over administration of the school, saying black pupils had been denied a peaceful, desegregated education.

Three black pupils were arrested, police said, and two other black pupils who suffered minor injuries in the fracas were taken to Boston Hospital. School officials said windows inside the school were broken.

Antibusing leaders warned the decision could spark new troubles, and within hours the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People — NAACP — office was fire bombed.

The fire bombing took place early today. Fire officials said damage amounted to $500, but the NAACP put damages at $25,000.

A Fire Department spokesman said damage to the NAACP office included a burned metal cabinet containing papers and pamphlets, a scorched window sill and two charred floor tiles. Firemen were back in quarters 21 minutes after the alarm, he said.

An NAACP spokesman said, "We've been getting threats all day" following the court decision, which came as a result of an NAACP motion.

U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity ordered the federal takeover Tuesday from the control of the Boston School Committee and its appointed headmaster and administrators.

Buildup Concern Voiced

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and defense ministers from 11 allied countries expressed "grave concern" today at what they called the increasing military strength of the Soviet Union and its allies by comparison with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

They said the firepower, mobility and armored strength of the Warsaw Pact countries are increasing and that they have a "formidable capability" in tactical nuclear weapons, chemical and electronic warfare. The Soviets, they added, are putting into service large numbers of submarines, both the missile-carrying type and attack submarines powered by nuclear engines.

Most recently, the ministers said, the Soviets have changed their emphasis in the air from defense to offensive operations.

Lebanon Commando Unit Intervenes In Beirut War

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese army troops captured much of Beirut's seaside hotel district from leftist Moslem militiamen during the night but were still battling today for the St. Georges Hotel.

It was the army's first major intervention in the eight-month-old civil war. The Moslems charged army troops had been sent in to rescue the Christians.

Woman Mayor For Grimesland

GRIMESLAND—The Grimesland Board of Aldermen last night elected Mrs. Ruby Hodges to serve as mayor for the next two years.

The selection of Mrs. Hodges, who led the balloting for the board seats in the November elections, took place during the board's first meeting since the municipal elections.

Paul Majette, who served as mayor for the past two years, was elected by the board as mayor pro-tem.

Both Mrs. Hodges and Majette, as well as Aldermen Gary Gibson, Lee Perry and Eugene Buck, were installed for two-year terms by Elmore Hodges, Pitt Magistrate and husband of the new mayor.

Mayor Hodges, a Grimesland native, served six consecutive years on the town board, before her election as mayor.

She is a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and also Proctor Memorial Christian Church here. She and her husband have two sons.

The election of Mrs. Hodges as mayor marked the first time a woman has been named to head the town government.

ECU SGA Votes Down Earlier Boycott Decision

The East Carolina University Student Government Association Monday night voted down an earlier decision to boycott stores in downtown Greenville, beginning Tuesday.

The student legislature on November 17 gave approval to a boycott plan to protest actions of Greenville police in their handling of a Halloween night disturbance in which 56 persons, including 30 ECU students, were arrested.

The legislature Monday voted not to give final approval to the boycott after Tim Sullivan, chairman of an SGA committee established to investigate the Halloween night incident recommended that the boycott not be approved.

Sullivan said his recommendation was based on the fact that Greenville city manager Harry Hagerty has been cooperative with the committee and that charges against 47 of those arrested October 31 were dismissed by the court.

Sullivan noted that "a city ordinance has been changed to allow beer on campus," and said "we are presently working with the City Council for student representation in local government."

Sullivan emphasized, "Things like Halloween should not happen, and if we students have more input, maybe they won't."

Although the SGA cannot fund a class action suit against the police—a possibility that has been discussed by the student legislature—or appropriate money for individual legal expenses, Sullivan said the SGA would give moral support to students seeking legal recourse for damages incurred during the riot and aid students in contacting lawyers to handle their cases.

Sullivan noted that SGA officials have talked with Jerry Paul of Durham—a former Greenville lawyer who gained national prominence as attorney for Joan Little—about the possibility of handing cases for ECU students.

Sullivan said the SGA and city officials will continue to work on projects to open lines of communication between the city and university students. He said there is also the possibility that the city will set aside certain streets areas if large crowds are anticipated and if plans can be formulated in advance.

Verbal agreements have also been made with acting city manager Harry Hagerty, according to Sullivan, to change police tactics in the event of future disturbances.

He said they include notification of university officials—in the attempt to avert confrontations—if trouble is anticipated; warnings to disperse will be given by officers, using megaphones, walking through the crowd; use of water as a forceful means of dispersing a crowd; and if tear gas is used, it should be contained in disintegrating containers and under strict supervision.

Top French Woman Auto Racer Wonders Why No U.S. Competition

By TIM WHITE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Marie-Claude Beaumont, internationally known French automobile racer, has a simple, smiling reply for those who express skeptical bemusement when they see a woman behind the wheel of a professional racing machine.

"Auto racing is a matter of mathematics — timing," says the blonde Miss Beaumont. "Sex has nothing to do with winning a race."

"You see," she points out wryly, "the timekeeper's clock ticks at the same speed for a man or a woman."

In the 10 years she has been active in professional European rally and circuit racing, the sport's nonpartisan timepieces have repeatedly been kind to her.

Marie-Claude's recent successes include being top woman finisher at Monte Carlo in 1974 and 1975 and a victory this year in the 2-litre competition at Monza, Italy, an honor she shared with Italian teammate Lella Lombardi, codriver of their Renault Alpine.

From the beginning, the attractive and brainy Miss Beaumont seemed a natural as a driver. Descended from two generations of male French automobile dealers, she entered her first rally in 1965 when she won the women's division of the Criterium des Cevennes and that same year captured the Coupe des Dames. In 1966, she finished first in the women's division of both the Alpine Cup and the Corsican Tour and has been turning in one stunning performance after another ever since. Indeed, she was named French Woman Rally Champion in both 1969 and 1970.

One would never guess that auto racing was a regretful second choice.

"When I was a young girl growing up in Grenoble, France," she explains, "I made up my mind that I wanted to be a championship skier. Grenoble is a sports-minded place and I have always been active in all kinds of sports, even teaching a few, like ice skating."

"But skiing was my favorite. I liked the speed and the balance it demands, but unfortunately I was not good enough to reach the top. I believe I started too late. If I had begun practicing as a little girl I might have excelled, but I did not and am sorry."

"Skiing was my first love, and I guess that auto racing is a replacement for it, but it's something I got involved in on my own. I come from a large family and neither my father nor my mother encouraged me to drive. In fact, I never even asked their opinion."

In 1953, Marie-Claude, then 12, was introduced to British racing great Stirling Moss and his sister, Pat, a rally driver. The encounter had a lasting impression on the energetic, fiercely independent girl and in later years she and Pat met again professionally and became close friends.

Miss Beaumont says there is much respect and good fellowship among the world's drivers, both male and female. She also asserts that any initial sexual prejudice against women drivers in the male-dominated sport usually stems from pragmatic concerns.

"I had a lot of problems when I began competing against men," she recalls, "but they came mostly from their worrying whether they could trust me as a driver. They wondered why I had taken up the sport. Was it because I wanted more color and fun in my life? Was it because I wanted to be around a lot of men, or make some sort of political point? Or was it because I was a serious driver, committed to being the best that I could be?"

"Auto racing is dangerous," she continues. "Drivers must be able to trust each other to behave responsibly before the competition begins. Now the men trust me — they see this is my life."

Miss Beaumont says, "When I was younger, I felt I had to prove everything to everybody. I did a lot of things just to get some sort of reaction from people. I know I was wrong. What I do now, I do for myself, to please myself."

"I am committed to racing, to learning as much as I can about all its aspects. I have a team of mechanics who work on my cars, but my job is to know the machinery and be diagnostic. I can't stop in the pit during the race and say to the crew, 'There's a funny noise somewhere. I wonder what it is?'"

Miss Beaumont's most recent visit to the States was to give a driving demonstration of a new car. When she returns in 1976 it will be to compete along with teammate Lella Lombardi.

MARIE-CLAUDE BEAUMONT

"We will probably drive in such events as the U.S. Grand Prix at Watkins Glen and Road America, but it will be for the right reasons," she emphasizes, "not for photographers."

"I am also very curious why there are no American women on top in rally and track racing," she confesses. "For instance, there are American girls that are top champions in tennis and golf. I know there is at least one good American woman drag racer, Shirley Muldowney, but that's very different from what I do."

Though in her 30s, Marie-Claude feels she has a long career of successful driving ahead of her. She admits, however, that she is "closer to the end than I am to the beginning," and when she gives an example of an athlete who retired with grace and dignity, she chooses a male rather than a female. Ironically, he is a skier.

"When I think of someone who bowed out in the best way," she says, "I think of Jean-Claude Killy. He was such a great athlete and always will be known that way, because he left when he was at his peak. He didn't keep competing until he embarrassed his own accomplishments."

"For me, there are so many cars yet to drive; I am still making much progress. But I hope I will know the day when I'm taking risks I can't afford. I also wish to retire with dignity."

Women Will Be Recognized At Saturday Lunch

Lynn Gant, of Rose High School, and Lou Anne Baldree, of Ayden-Gritton High School, the first girls to be nominated for Morehead Scholarships, will be special guests at the International Women's Year luncheon to be held at noon Saturday at the Ramada Inn.

These two young women, along with a dozen other Pitt County women, will be recognized for their achievement in areas which have formerly been reserved for men.

Dr. Sandra Thomas, vice president of Meredith College and a delegate to the IWY Conference held in Mexico City in June, will be the speaker.

Reservations will be accepted until Thursday and may be made with Judith Donnalley, 756-0561, or Sally Howard, 756-4486.

Bridal Couple Entertained

A floating miscellaneous shower held Saturday night honored Ellen Coburn and Gene Peaden. The shower, given by friends and relatives of the bridal couple, was held at the Falkland Community Building.

The bride-elect was remembered with a white mum corsage, which complemented her light green dress. Guests were greeted by the honorees. The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a Christmas arrangement flanked by lighted red tapers. Mrs. Alice Baker, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Katie Peaden, mother of the bridegroom-elect, assisted in serving.

Guests were received by Miss Edith Trotman and displayed on gift tables covered with white cloths and decorated with a red poinsettia.

Holiday Party Held Sunday

A Christmas dinner party honoring members of the Opti-Mrs. Club of Greenville was held Sunday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Stephenson.

Members and their husbands were greeted by the host and hostess. The house was decorated throughout with a Christmas motif.

Mrs. Curtis Howell, president, conducted a gift exchange and Mrs. Charles Ross briefly told of the family that the club will aid during Christmas holidays.

How To Spot A Married Man

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee of almost two years. I'm constantly meeting guys who swear they're not married, but later I find out that they are and they usually have children.

What is it with these dingalings, anyway? Don't they know they just might hurt innocent girls who might fall in love with them because they think they're available?

I want nothing to do with a married man. I wish these creeps would stay home with their wives and leave us single women alone!

I just got a phone call from some guy's wife who threatened me if I didn't leave her husband alone. Abby, so help me, I didn't know the man was married.

How about a few suggestions on how to spot these creeps?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: A married man will not give you his home telephone number and address. He will be very short of friends to whom he can introduce you—and will almost always have no relatives for you to meet. He'll be unavailable for weekends and holidays, and when he's with you, he'll look at his watch a lot.

If a man tells you he's "going through a divorce," tell him you'll see him when his divorce is final. (Maybe!)

DEAR ABBY: What is a healthy, 34-year-old married man supposed to do when he has become physically handicapped but his sexual feelings continue to function the same as before? Because of my physical limitations, I am partially paralyzed. I am unable to walk or use my legs, but my sexual desires are in no way impaired.

I don't know anyone else I can ask, so please don't throw

Most card publishers produce Christmas post cards. Some reflect the holiday season only on the picture side, using religious, winter, Santa or comic scenes. Others have a brief "greeting" on the message side, in addition to a holiday picture.

Almost 43 per cent of all women in the U.S. are employed outside the home and this figure is expected to rise.

Approximately half of the U.S. families with heads over 65 years of age had incomes of less than $5,000 in 1971.

this letter into the wastebasket. You may print it if you think it will help others in my plight, but please don't use my name.

HANDICAPPED IN FLORIDA

DEAR HANDICAPPED: Your local Easter Seal Society (listed in your telephone book under Florida Society for Crippled Children and Adults) can provide you with information and instruction. Those in other states should contact their state societies. Also, most universities have Human Sexuality programs that offer instruction for people with your problem.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of men who run ads in the classified section of a newspaper, reading: "Lonely gent (age, weight, height) wants to meet woman (age range usually much younger) for companionship, marriage or ..."? And what do you think of women who answer such ads?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: I think such men must be desperately lonely as well as incredibly foolish to risk possible involvement with some very creepy characters. And the same goes for women who would answer such ads.

Averett-Branch Vows Said Sunday Afternoon

ORRUM—A double ring ceremony Sunday united Linda Sue Branch of Orrum and Eugene Warren Averett Jr. of Winterville in marriage.

The ceremony took place at 4:00 p.m. at the Bloomingdale Baptist Church performed by the Rev. Jimmy Webster. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Sarah Jones, organist, and Wayne Coates, soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carlton Branch Sr. of Orrum, and Mrs. Alma Averett of Winterville, and the late Mr. Eugene Averett.

The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Johnny Branch. She wore an Alfred Angelo original, styled by Edythe Vincent, of white dacron organza. Re-embroidered lace and seed pearls accented the scalloped neckline. A wide ruffle of lace trimmed the fitted sleeves, the full skirt and the chapel length train.

She wore a Juliet styled headpiece of re-embroidered lace. Its full length mantilla was accented with re-embroidered lace to complement the headpiece and gown. The bride carried a double bouquet composed of a white orchid, red rosebuds and holly, with red and white streamers.

Ann Branch of Greenville served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Nancy Kay Branch, sister of the bride, and Cynthia Brown Floyd, both of Orrum, Debbie Hardin of Thomasville, cousin of the bride, Stephanie Gaskins of Manteo, Kay Stephenson of Clayton, and Martha Ellen Brown of Raleigh.

The maid of honor wore a green crepe A-line dress with open sleeves, trimmed in red and green. She carried a nosegay of red carnations and greenery.

The bridesmaids wore red crepe A-line dresses with open sleeves and red and green trim. They carried nosegays to match the maid of honor's.

Teresa Webster of Beulahville, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Her dress was green crepe with a square neckline, puffed sleeves, pleated bodice and a full skirt, with red and green trim. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Best man was David Hooks of Winterville, cousin of the bridegroom. Serving as ushers were Cleve Averett and Jeff Tucker of Winterville, J. M. Boyd and Phil Nichols of Greenville, Andy Leggett and Tyrone Leggett of Proctorville, Edward Carlton Branch III of Orrum, brother of the bride, and Troy Webster of Beulahville, nephew of the bridegroom. Ring bearer was Russ Thornadyke of Orrum.

Following a wedding trip to the North Carolina coast, the couple will reside in Winterville. The bridegroom is a technician at Procter and Gamble. He attended East Carolina University and Pitt Technical Institute.

The bride has a BS degree in nursing from ECU.

A cake-cutting ceremony was held in the church fellowship hall immediately following the rehearsal. Mr. and Mrs. William Hardin, aunt and uncle of the bride, greeted guests at the door.

Miss Quintalyn Branch, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Bill Sealey poured punch. Mrs. Lenox Rhodes and Mrs. Romulus Hedgpeth cut the three-tiered, red and green cake.

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn Spangler
Pitt Home Agent

You give but little when you give of your possessions. It is when you give of yourself that you truly give.—Kahlil Gibran. The Prophet

Why not this holiday season produce more gifts at home, invest more of the family's personal resources—time, talent, and creativity, put to effective use. Idle items in and around the home, minimize the money invested for gifts, give recipients more meaningful or useful gifts, reduce the worry and stress of searching the marketplace for the "right" gifts, enhance your family's job of giving through greater involvement of each family member?

Home produced gifts require a substitution of personal time and talents for money as compared to gifts that are purchased. Therefore, a definite plan of action and an early start in production are the keys to success.

Suggestions for Home Produced Gifts

1. Make a gift list: identify the gift recipients (family, friends, neighbors) and the types of gifts appropriate for each.

—Consider gifts that are wanted, needed, or will be used and enjoyed by the recipients. Often gifts are nice but don't fit the person's life style or habits and get packed back (ex. small appliances or grooming aids, clothing items, bric-a-brac, etc.)

Consider giving gifts for services (repairs, errands, etc.) that are difficult for the recipient to obtain. For these, design an attractive "I-PROMISE" or "I-O-U" Certificate and present as a gift.

—Consider gifts that can be enjoyed and used up during the holiday season (ex. decorations, holiday foods, etc.). Give these gifts or a certificate announcing when they will arrive early enough for the recipient to plan for their use.

2. Take inventory of available resources for home produced gifts.

—Identify special skills and abilities and the amount of time that family members can contribute (such as preparation of special foods, handicraft skills, errand running and entertainment skills).

—Identify items on hand that can be used for gifts—fabric, furniture, household gadgets, greenery, berries, nuts, and conserved products.

3. Plan what gifts can be made, for which persons, by whom, and when. Some gifts can be promised and delivered when needed by the recipient and convenient for the giver. Remember, do not attempt to produce gifts that are too difficult; they will only result in waste. Ideas include:

—Teaching someone a special craft, skill, or hobby.

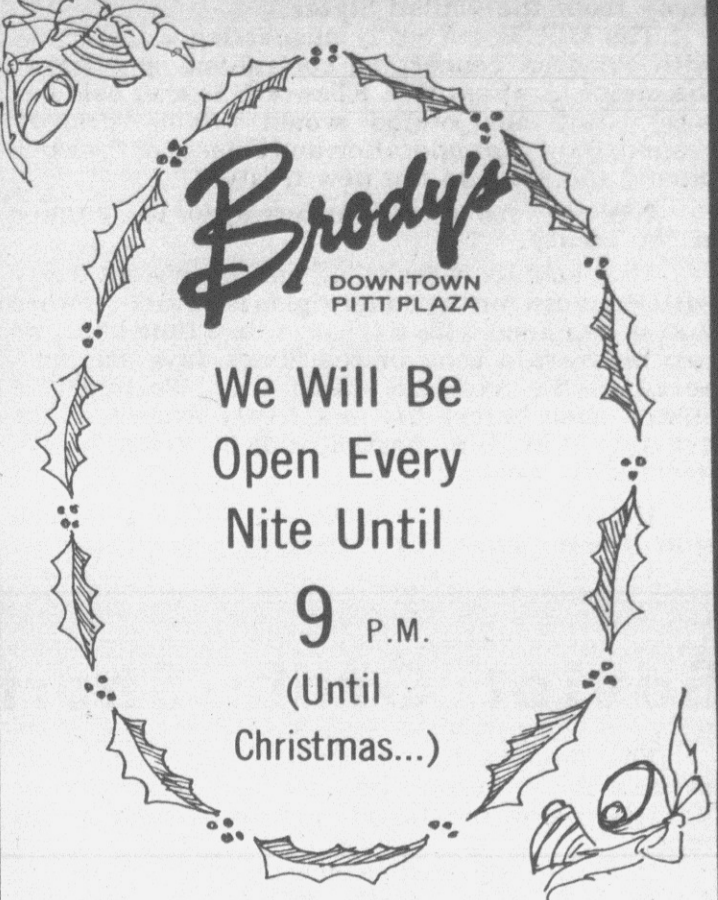

—Performing special services—transportation, serving as sitter, hair care, household jobs, home repairs, care services for the ill, and fellowship or entertainment services.

—Handmade items such as toys, table linens (varied placemats from the scrap bag or colorful napkins for bedtrays), chef aprons, or decorations for special occasions.

—Food items for special occasions, (ex. a dessert that serves as centerpiece—Santa-face cake or basket of fruit.)

Giving Away The Panama Canal

Just as surely as the sun rises, we are paving the way for control of the Panama Canal to slip away from the United States.

The U.S. is currently negotiating a new treaty with Panama concerning control and operation of the canal. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker said last week that our nation would retain "primary responsibility for operation and defense of the canal during the span of the new treaty."

Negotiations are still underway for the duration of the treaty.

That sounds reassuring, but our present treaty with Panama for the canal rights is unending. When that is replaced with a treaty with a time limit, we can be certain that United States days are numbered in the Panama Canal zone. We might be ousted even before the new treaty expires on the grounds that U.S. participation is going to end eventually anyway.

Bunker, speaking to the World Affairs Council said there would be "growing participation of Panamanian nationals at all levels in day-to-day operations" of the canal.

We have to grant that the canal is constructed on Panamanian territory, and we can understand the nationalistic spirit in Panama. At the same time it must be recognized that the canal is of enormous benefit to the United States, and is even essential to our security and our economy. It is also of great importance to all of the western nations as a trade route.

Panama, a tiny country, will be vulnerable to take-over by any aggressive nation in the world once it gains full control of the canal. Then it is possible for the Panama canal to be closed to western nations sea traffic. No one would have thought at one time it would have been possible for the Suez Canal to be closed as long as it was.

We should maintain our control of the Panama Canal, but if it is determined that we are going to give up control by degrees, we had better begin planning for alternate routes between the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Soviet Grain Shortage Will Affect All

The Soviets are predicting that their grain harvest for 1975 may be only 140 million tons or less—far below the 215 million tons planned for this year.

It is already well known that the Soviets are buying U.S. grain, but the poor harvest there will send them to other grain markets around the world.

The result will almost surely be higher grain prices, which will be reflected in higher food prices worldwide.

Correction

A Monday editorial stated that firemen laid hose 1,200 feet to a hydrant to fight the McDonald's fire last week.

This was incorrect. The hydrant used was 300 feet away. The next nearest hydrant, if it had been needed, was 1,200 feet away.

Coastal Lands Scrutinized

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Coastal North Carolina is undergoing the most intensive scrutiny ever as dozens of state employees spend long hours reading the first batch of Land Use Plans produced by 20 coastal counties and 33 municipalities in those counties.

A Civil Defense bomb shelter room, two floors below the ground underneath the Administration Building, has been turned into the nerve center for the massive review operation.

Walls are lined with blown-up maps of towns and counties showing existing land uses, and those proposed in the new plans required by the Coastal Area Management Act.

Row after row of tables are piled high with the draft Land Use Plans from each local government—most containing more than 100 pages, and accompanied by detailed maps. A massive wall chart at one side contains slots for the state's experts to check off completion of their review on each plan.

19 Agencies
A total of 19 state agencies are represented as the plans pass from hand to hand, and notes jotted down for possible expansion, omissions, ideas.

A representative from Archives and History wants to make certain that plans are included for protecting historical sites, and that known historical sites are identified; a highway expert checks to see if known future main corridors are identified, and adjacent land uses considered; state planners look for adequate identification of existing land uses, and attention to the required land classifications in the new law.

And so on down the line, the plans are studied by forestry agents, economic developers, recreation experts, parks people, the Agriculture Department.

The object, says Albert H. Calloway, assistant director of the division of community assistance of the State Department of Natural and Economic Resources, is to give local governments a head start in making sure the plans are adequate.

"This is not a review to meet any state requirements... but is to assist the Coastal Resources Commission in its review," Calloway said. The commission will go through the plans later this month.

Before that process, though, the local officials who drew up the plans will meet with the state reviewers to go over the suggestions resulting from the current process.

This review was not originally included in plans for implementing the Coastal Areas Management Act, but when the General Assembly last spring extended the date for submission to May 21, 1976, most local governments were already well along toward a November, 1975, deadline.

Better Product

So, the plans were submitted ahead of time and Calloway thinks the review process will result in much more thorough work.

Then, next May the final plans will be turned over to the Coastal Resources Commission for adoption, "and we anticipate them being in pretty good shape," says Billy Ray Hall, chief of the local planning section of the community assistance agency.

Hall has been sitting in on the daily review procedure and is impressed with the degree of local participation in the plans produced. Critics of the coastal land use proposal resisted too much state domination, and the law contains specific guarantees of local public hearings, and production of the plan by either local advisory councils or local planning commissions.

In addition to the detailed plan submitted by each local unit, a shorter synopsis is required, and after the plan is adopted by the Coastal Resources Commission, the state intends to print and mail a copy to every household in the 20-county region. Some 240,000 copies will be distributed at a cost of $50,000, with each household receiving the plan for the area in which he lives.

State officials hope the present review process will serve as a guideline for statewide land use planning anticipated in years to come.

The FBI Undercovered

WASHINGTON — I couldn't believe the story last week in the newspaper when an FBI informer revealed that he had infiltrated the Ku Klux Klan with orders to sleep with the wives of Klansmen to get information and sow dissension in the Klan's Klaverns.

But it was confirmed to me by another informer who came by my office with a paper bag over his head. "I'm glad it's all out in the open," he said as I helped him sit down in the chair. "I've done terrible things in my time, and now I no longer have to keep it myself."

"Let's start at the beginning," I said. "You worked as a Klan informer for the FBI?"

"That's right. You could say I moonlighted for them."

"And what exactly were your duties?"

"My orders were to sleep with the wives of Klansmen and get information and also sow dissension."

"You're not the same person who testified on The Hill the other day?"

"No, that was Gary Rowe. He worked in Alabama. My territory was Georgia, from Savannah to Stone Mountain."

"That's a lot of territory to cover."

"You can say that again. I was really dragging at the end of a week. After about two months I asked to be transferred to the U.S. Communist Party instead."

"Why?"

"It was less physical, if you know what I mean. The Commies don't believe in marriage, so the FBI doesn't care about us making it with their wives."

"I hate to pry, but how did you meet the wives of the Klansmen?"

"Mostly at cross burnings. We'd all have our sheets on, and I'd go up to one and say, 'Hey, don't I know you from somewhere?'"

"But if you had your sheets on, how would you know it was a woman?"

"From the shoes. The FBI taught us to always look at the shoes at a Klan meeting. If the person with the sheet is wearing high heels, seven out of 10 chances it's a woman."

"So then what would you do?"

"You'd get to talk to her, you know. You'd ask her if she'd like to have a beer after the effigy hanging."

"What about her husband?"

"Well, that's just it. Ku Klux Klan members are usually out all night, riding around threatening blacks and burning down barns, and their wives get pretty lonely. So when a guy comes up to them warning a sheet and invites them out for a beer, they're pretty flattered."

"And then what?"

"Well, you have a few beers and one thing leads to another and before you know it she's telling you what a drag it is to be married to a member of the Ku Klux Klan, because he's always out somewhere trying to scare the hell out of somebody."

"I guess being a Ku Klux Klanner's wife isn't what it's cracked up to be."

"You can say that again," my informant muttered through his paper bag. "If you knew how many of them hunger for just a little love and affection."

"How do you know how lonely they are?"

"You can see it in their eyes, which incidentally is the only thing you can see when they're in uniform."

"So playing on this weakness, you were able to get information and create chaos in the Klan?"

"They didn't pull the wool over my eyes," he said proudly.

"Let me ask you one more question. Did you ever get emotionally involved with any Klansman's wife?"

"Nah, when you see one Kluxer's wife, you've seen 'em all."

Israel Selling Arms

By STEPHEN GOLDSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel has become a major exporter of arms, ranking itself with Switzerland, Italy and Sweden in the sale of weapons to foreign governments, a senior defense official says.

The arms industry is one of Israel's largest employers, with tens of thousands of workers manufacturing everything from small ammunition to jet fighters.

The locally made Uzi sub-machine gun, for example, is sold to more than 60 countries. One of the customers is the United States Secret Service which guards President Ford.

According to the Defense Department official, who asked not to be identified, Israel "exports arms to every continent" and helps equip 19 foreign armies.

Officials, however, say that U.S. military aid, such as the $1.8 billion which Israel expects this year, could never be replaced by local production.

With sophisticated weapons systems being supplied to the Arab states by the big powers, Israel can't hope to become self-sufficient in its defense needs, the officials say.

"In talking about the arms industry there is a built-in contradiction," says one official. "On the one hand we must be discreet and on the other we have to promote exports."

Statistics in the industry are a military secret, so there are no official production or export figures. But some sources say Israel will wind up selling about $200 million worth of arms to foreign countries this year and future orders on the books amount to more than $500 million.

"We only sell arms to governments," one official says. "Every transaction must be approved politically and from a security point of view."

Most weapons manufactured in Israel have some American components, says an official and "we only sell these items to countries that have been approved of by the United States."

Other Editors Say Death And Taxes

(Greensboro Daily News)

Archaeologists, we are told, are looking for the Tower of Babel. We suggest they begin their search in the U.S. Congress, where speaking in unintelligible tongues is a practiced art. Last week, for example, the House approved a tax reform measure few congressmen, much less archaeologists, are destined to decipher.

The proposed law, which now goes to the Senate, is designed to close a number of tax loopholes which allow businesses and wealthy individuals to write off their losses as tax gains. The House Ways and Means Committee, which authored the legislation, got so tangled in the bills' technicalities at one point that it wrote in a provision that would have given Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot an estimated $15 million tax deduction. That, the red-faced committee members explained, wasn't what they had in mind at all, so the amendment was hastily dropped.

That snafu is only a minor illustration of the Page 2 mess the American tax system has become. There are so many loopholes, deductions and write-offs that millions of Americans each year hire professional firms to fill out the forms for them, rather than submit to the mid-April agony.

This latest congressional tax revision is apparently to be welcomed, in that it does promise to bring in extra revenues and eliminate some of the system's most glaring omissions of privilege. But it was still refreshing, if foolishly naive, to hear Treasury Secretary William Simon say the other day that the whole tax system ought to be tossed on the junk heap and replaced by a simple sliding scale that keys income tax to individual or family income, and nothing else.

No doubt it would be a grossly unfair system, but the thought of being able to fill out a post card-like tax form in about 15 minutes is positively blissful. Then, too, such a change would be convincing proof to future archaeologists digging in the rubble of American civilization centuries hence that taxes didn't prove to be the death of us after all.

INSIDE REPORT

Palestinian Issue Action

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—In the face of Israel's predictable fury and charges of sellout, the Ford administration is intensifying its policy of forcing the Palestinian issue to the forefront of the Arab-Israeli dispute in an effort to end 25 years of warfare.

The latest evidence of President Ford's intention to roll over bitter opposition from the Israeli government was his flat order to United Nations Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan on Nov. 30. Delivered from Air Force

One in Alaska, the order instructed Moynihan not to veto the Security Council resolution extending the UN peacekeeping force for six months on the Golan Heights. Even though the resolution was linked to a full-scale debate next month on the Palestinian question with the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) present, Mr. Ford wanted it supported.

Moynihan, whose highly acclaimed defense of Zionism during the acrimonious Zionism-racism debate in the UN made him the idol of American Jews, wanted the U.S. to take a firmer stand on the peacekeeping force. The President personally overruled him.

This disagreement between Moynihan and the White House over the best political tactics for U.S. handling of the Palestinian issue, still largely under cover, is troubling Mideast experts inside the administration and a few highly placed Jewish leaders outside it. One of Moynihan's most trusted advisers and occasional speechwriter for him is the distinguished Jewish intellectual, Norman Podhoretz, editor of Commentary magazine. Podhoretz is regarded by some other Jewish leaders as "absolutely intransigent" on the Palestinian question.

Non-intransigent American Jews, although still in a distinct minority, are convinced that a strong American lead toward eventual establishment of a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan is necessary for Israel itself to face the Palestinian question squarely and unemotionally.

This is at the heart of Mr. Ford's difficult decision to go along with the Arab-backed Golan Heights peacekeeping resolution. Moreover, his position has growing bipartisan support in the U.S. Congress.

The reasons: first, subtle signals that the controlling centrists of the PLO are moving away from their outrageous and ridiculous demand that Israel terminate its existence as a sovereign state; second, a feeling that the U.S., strongly oriented toward Israel's interest, has

Strength For Today

DEVELOPMENT THROUGH OPPOSITION

The tighter one pulls a kite string, the higher the kite soars. Loosen the string, and the kite immediately begins to waver and fall because there is not enough force of the wind against it to keep it in the air. A kite scars against the wind, and the more we tug at it, the more does it tug back and attempt to rise in consequence.

The confrontation of people and temptation is much the same as the encounter of the kite with the wind. We can hardly be said to be virtuous until we have found ourselves face to face with the enticement of something which is not virtuous. When there is nothing to strive against, day by day, the moral forces within us become relaxed and we fall prey to temptation. It takes real opposition to draw real, vital force out of our souls.

We may wonder why we have to face these temptations. A loving, heavenly father permits us to be subjected to their power because he has given us inner strength sufficient to overcome them.

Stock Market Seems Tethered

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You can analyze all the statistics the computers can provide and you probably won't be able to tell with certainty what it is that keeps the stock market from breaking out of its chains.

No, the market isn't entirely immobilized, but it seems that all the rallies in recent years end up in the same range of 850 to just above 900, as measured by the Dow Jones industrial average.

The market is tethered there, able to sense freedom but not attain it. Like a dog that forgets it is tied to the clothespole, it gets tossed on its butt when it seeks the great beyond, which in its case is 1,000 points plus.

You can show that stocks just don't sell at the same price-earnings ratios that have prevailed historically. People aren't willing to pay as much for a dollar of earnings. The 45-year price-earnings ratio is 14. This year it's 11.5.

But that still leaves you asking why.

One sweeping generalization attributes the problems of the 1970s to the behavioral extremes of the 1960s. The stock market today, it is said, is relatively stagnant because the market of the 1960s was so explosive.

That, at least, is the observation, which increasingly seems to be applied to a wide realm of activities, including the behavior of youth and the behavior of the national and international economies too. It's a big range.

The early 1960s, if you recall, were energized by that recurring faith in the invincibility of America. No challenge need be feared, including 1,000 on the industrial average, and it was forecast almost daily.

Millions of Americans became, for the first time, owners of American industry. People's capitalism was proclaimed. A new plateau of wealth was declared within the reach of every American, and the stock market would be the transporter.

By the end of the decade the shareowner population was approaching 30 million. The decade had begun with 12.5 million Americans owning shares directly—that is, by their own active investing rather than through pension funds.

Wall Street grew accordingly. Ground-floor office space was sought on the main streets of America because the walk-in trade, the impulse buyer, was so very important. Speculators, hucksters and prophets were everywhere.

Most people can be spared the details; they know them too well and they aren't forgetting them. It's sufficient to say that it all collapsed—the theories, the promises, the prices.

The shareowner population did manage to reach somewhere around 32 million people, but during the past two years it has been falling, and the rate of descent may be increasing. There are probably only 25 million now.

Those ground-floor brokers' offices are closed now. Their staffs have been laid off. Scores of brokerage houses have either merged, collapsed or simply withdrawn silently.

Age Plays Small Part In School Bus Safety

RALEIGH (AP)—Age of school bus drivers statistically plays a small part in the probability of accidents, a University of North Carolina researcher said.

Patricia Waller of the Highway Safety Research Center at UNC said research indicates 16-year-old bus drivers have a worse accident record than other drivers, apparently as a result of inexperience. But, she said, the records drivers who are 17, 18 and 19 years old are no different from the records of drivers aged 25 to 54.

Some North Carolina parents, particularly in Charlotte, Cary and Chapel Hill, have complained that North Carolina has the nation's highest rate of school bus accidents and have called for changes. Committees have been formed in those towns seeking change.

But, state officials dispute the claim that North Carolina has a worse record than other states. "We don't consider the figures conclusive, not at all," said Dr. Albert M. Fountain of the Traffic Safety Education section of the Motor Vehicles Department.

One major factor, Fountain said, is that North Carolina reports every school bus accident regardless of extent of damage or seriousness of injuries. Reporting apparently is less thorough in many other states, he said.

Also, only 14 per cent of the state's school bus drivers are 16 years old while the majority are 17, he said, adding that about 80 per cent of the drivers are students as compared with a few years ago when they were all students.

National Safety Council figures show that 10,813 North Carolina school buses drove 83 million miles in 1973-74, transported 726,158 pupils daily, and had a total of 1,885 accidents in said.

Widow Gets Gas Chamber

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP)—Marge Boykin, 44, of Kenly has been sentenced to death in the gas chamber in the Aug. 14 rifle slaying of her husband, Daniel.

The jury decided she was guilty of first degree murder after deliberating 2½ hours. Her sentence was scheduled for Jan. 2 but an appeal is automatic in a death sentence.

Two men who pleaded guilty to lesser charges then turned state's evidence were given lighter sentences. Garland Sanders, 26, of Selma was sentenced to life imprisonment and Johnny Edmundson, 17, of Micro was sentenced to 20-30 years in prison.

Mrs. Boykins had told investigators the night her husband was killed that he had been shot when he answered a late night knock on the door of their home. An unspecified amount of money was reportedly stolen from the victim's car the night of the shooting.

Mrs. Boykins and the two men were charged with the crime in September.

Homemaker's...

(Continued From Page 3) time, consider the amount of wages you could have earned with your time). Add these together for the grand total financial value of the gift. Compare this value with the actual out-of-pocket cost. The difference is the value of your home production.

Evans-Novak...

These subtle signals include a little-noticed statement by Tahsin Bashir, official spokesman for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. In an interview published in Beirut Nov. 17, Bashir admitted that "in the past" the only solution proposed by the Palestinians "was the destruction of Israel."

"That is nonsense," he said. "We are now proposing the creation of an independent Palestinian state coexisting in peace with a Jewish state." That language was regarded as so significant by U.S. Ambassador G. McMurtrie Godley in Lebanon that he cabled it to the State Department.

Similarly, the communique at the end of PLO leader Yassir Arafat's three-day visit to Moscow two weeks ago failed to include the usual PLO demand for a non-sectarian, Arab-Jewish state in Palestine. Instead, it said a settlement "could be reached if Israel withdrew from all occupied Arab territories" captured in the 1967 war, and if "the Palestinians were allowed to establish their own national state on Palestinian territory."

To Israeli hawks—which means a majority of the cabinet of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the nation as well—these are blatant lies from an organization (the PLO) which the Israeli parliament officially calls "a group of murder organizations" still pledged to the destruction of Israel.

Indeed, bloody PLO terrorist raids will continue while Israel still occupies Arab territory conquered in 1967. President Ford, supported by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, disagrees with the Israeli position on the PLO and does so with far more vehemence in private than he has ever shown publicly. The President has steadily been moving away from the Israeli perception of the PLO as "murder organizations" to viewing it as one possible instrument for establishing a Palestinian state.

To publicize this administration position, which was first revealed in testimony to the House International Relations Committee last month by a middle-level official, Democratic Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana has written a private letter to Kissinger. Hamilton wants Kissinger to say publicly whether that testimony stated the Ford administration's policy. Kissinger is certain to reply that it did, an affirmation Hamilton will then use to answer Israeli claims that neither the President nor Kissinger agreed with the policy statement given the committee.

The fact that such circuitous, shrouded maneuvers are needed in the unfolding of American Middle East policy shows how hard it is for the U.S. to move to a truly even-handed policy. What's important, however, is that President Ford is trying.

Rob't Lee Vann 'Accidentally' A Publisher

By Dr. H. G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Born in obscurity in Hertford County in 1879, the man wrote sixty years later, "I have never forgotten my lowly birth nor the lessons taught me by my bitter experiences."

When Robert Lee Vann wrote these words, he was owner and publisher of the world's largest weekly Negro newspaper, an influential spokesman for his race, and a former assistant attorney general of the United States. His success story has been equaled by few North Carolinians, white or black.

Lee Vann's birth was, in fact, so lowly that he never knew his father and was unable precisely to locate his birthplace. His mother struggled to provide for herself and her child, working as a field hand and domestic in the Ahoisie area.

Not until his mother became a maid for the John Askew family near Harrellsville was the child assured of regular meals. Lee got along well with children of his age, and a number of local whites befriended him. Decades later he would still remember his warm relationships at Harrellsville.

His relatively happy childhood was suddenly interrupted when he was ten years old. His mother married a man who carried them off into the swamp where Lee was virtually isolated from his earlier playmates. He was forced to hire himself out for odd jobs but his stepfather pocketed all the earnings.

Eventually, though, young Vann went back to Harrellsville where a black man, A. C. Boothe, had been appointed postmaster by the McKinley administration. Lee, hired as a clerk in the post office, also attended a little country school near Harrellsville Chapel. When he learned to write, he taught his mother to do the same.

From his clerking job, Lee Vann saved sixteen dollars. He heard that there was a boarding school in Winton—Waters' Normal Institute—that charged only four dollars a month provided the student went home each week end. Lee enrolled, walking the ten miles to and from Winton each week. By working at odd jobs in the summer, he stayed in school until he graduated in 1901.

The youth attended Virginia Union at Richmond for a while, but then he enrolled in the Western University of Pennsylvania (now University of Pittsburgh). There he integrated several campus organizations and became editor-in-chief of the campus newspaper, winner of the prize for oratory, and president of the Tri-State Debating League. By then he knew what he wanted to do: become a lawyer.

While in law school at Pittsburgh, Vann held a job as waiter on a Pullman train. He left school in the afternoon, served a meal aboard the train as it made its way to Connellsville, spent the night in that town, and then served breakfast on the returning train to Pittsburgh the next morning.

After graduation and admission to the bar, Vann became associated with a pitiful little newspaper called the Courier. Over a period of years he almost unintentionally acquired ownership of the paper which by 1915 had a circulation of only 2,700.

A reluctant newspaperman, Vann gave more attention to the paper, and less to his law practice. During World War I the Courier became outspoken in support of Negro rights. Its criticism of racial injustices in the armed forces increased its readership, and its growth was phenomenal. By the end of the twenties the paper was publishing four separate editions—one for each section of the country.

During the 1920s Vann supported Republican candidates for office, but in 1932 he campaigned for Franklin D. Roosevelt. His reward was appointment as assistant attorney general of the United States, one of the highest offices ever held by a black up to that time. Vann resigned after two years, however, and opposed Roosevelt's election to a third term.

When Robert Lee Vann died in 1940, his paper had reached a circulation of more than 150,000 and was considered the leading black paper in the world. He himself had been given the title of "Dean of Negro Journalism."

A year earlier, Vann wrote an interesting account of his childhood for the Hertford County Herald's special historical edition. In it he expressed great warmth for the people of Harrellsville. It was appropriate, therefore, for his funeral in Oakmont, Pennsylvania, to be conducted by his old teacher from Hertford County, the Reverend C. E. Askew.

Miss Goodson On Dean's List

Miss Sharon Goodson has been named to the dean's list for the fall quarter at Bauder Fashion College in Atlanta, Ga.

She is a 1975 graduate of Rose High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Goodson Jr. She is majoring in fashion merchandising and modeling.

To be eligible for the dean's list, a student must have a 3.2 average.

Check Up On Wattage Load

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christmas lights won't overload your house circuits and blow fuses if you figure your lighting load in advance. Most home circuits carry 1,800 watts each, but some newer ones can carry 2,400 watts each. To determine the total wattage for Christmas lights, multiply the wattage shown on each type of bulb by the number of bulbs per chain.

Shadow Of Old 'Legion'

By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer
CALVI, Corsica (AP) — They stand at rigid attention to the soaring notes of L'Marseilles, these motley refugees from assorted lands pledged to the service of France.

Yet today, as past glories fade, the French Foreign Legion is in a kind of exile on this island where Napoleon was born and on a few other French possessions. An instrument of colonialism and empire when neither exists, the legion still hones its fighting edge.

But as individuals, the legionnaires languish here, often targets of women who flock from all Europe to court the soldiers of fortune.

"A young legionnaire's lot on Corsica is like being banned to paradise," a young woman said.

But the legionnaires grumble. The only real break is parachute jumping and, on occasion, six months' duty in Djibuti, French Somaliland. For the duty they get paid four times the normal salary of $600 a month, hazard pay for maintaining a French presence between rival Ethiopian and Somali tribes.

Discipline, not patriotism, is the cement that binds the 8,000 legionnaires. Many are here, at the legion's largest base, under false names. Some would leave if they could.

"We are here for five years minimum enlistment before we can leave the island, except on duty," one said. "The military training we get is the best in the world. But we have no real chance to use it ... We are taught to be professionals in the use of weapons, but what good is that on the outside."

"You get drunk, you get homesick," his friend said. "You want to take off. It's as simple as that."

There are a few legion regiments in France, integrated with the French Army. There are two regiments here and detachments in Tahiti, the Comoro Islands off East Africa, and in French Guiana.

After World War II, the legion swelled its ranks with Germans, but legionnaires estimate Germans now number no more than 30 per cent. Spaniards are the next largest group; there are a few Americans.

Legionnaires still wear the traditional white Kepi, but in the field they wear green berets and their training is in the manner of the U.S. Army's Special Forces.

The legion's tough training here contrasts with tourists sunbathing along the beaches. But for the locals the legion is a financial factor of year-round potential.

"In the winter when the tourists are gone and jobs are scarce, the legion is here," one man said.

A woman says the legion is preferred to the French paratroopers here before. "Then, there was trouble," she says. "Now there is no trouble. The Legion is disciplined. They are an elite."

Legionnaires wear their hair almost shaved and have no mustaches or beards. The by-word is discipline, the demand is training.

"We have to do eight kilometers (five miles) in less than sixty minutes, carrying a full web belt, 16½-pound pack, helmet, rifle," one legionnaire explained. "The first half is straight up a mountain in blazing heat. The second half is downhill."

"If you make the first half, you can make it all the way. But some don't. They collapse. But they try and they again. Your pride drives you on."

An ex-legionnaire, now living on Corsica, sees the change from the legion he knew: "I spoke no French. So they kicked it into me. If a man decided he no longer wanted to jump and stayed in the plane, they would give him a head 'this big' when he landed. No more."

"Now they just transfer him to a non-jumping unit. The legion has gone modern."

And for the present legionnaire, like anyone else, the dream was better than the reality.

"I was in France with a buddy," recalls one, "broke, hungry and no place to sleep. The legion gave us a place to sleep and fed us very good food. We thought 'not bad,' but the first thing they did, after we signed up, was shave my head."

"I had hair down to here — below my shoulders. And I thought to myself, 'Oh-oh. What have you done?' But then it was too late."

For those, too old now for the legion, who remember the days when empire was more than a high feminine waistline, those words may ring sadly. They remember instead when Hollywood brought empire to a glory it perhaps never deserved.

In one year, 1939, Americans saw at least three films from the realm of empire: "Four Feathers," in which a British officer accused of cowardice rescued his good name in the sands of Egypt; "Gunga Din," in which Cary Grant, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Victor McLaglen thwarted a rebellion in India, and "Beau Geste," in which legionnaires Gary Cooper, Ray Milland and Brian Donlevy displayed bravery, self sacrifice and fanaticism in the face of Africa desert rebels.

Time fades so many things.

Tiny Nuclear Explosions

NEW YORK (AP) — Miniature nuclear explosions may be used to kill cancer cells in three to five years, reports Medical World News.

The explosions will be triggered by subatomic particles called pions, explains Dr. Malcolm Bagshaw, head of a team of Stanford University researchers. Directed at the cancerous cells, the pions are captured by cell nuclei causing the explosions.

The medical pion generator, the tool that provides the particles, will soon be tested at Stanford.

EXECUTIVE INDUCTED — Luther A. Bailey (2nd from left) has been inducted as only the second honorary member of the East Carolina University Beta Gamma Sigma honor society in business. Bailey, executive vice president of Belk-Tyler stores, is currently president of the ECU Business Foundation. He was honored last night at a reception given by ECU Chancellor and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins. Pictured with Bailey are Dr. James Bearden (1) Dean of the School of Business, Dr. Jenkins and Max R. FBI Stepping Into Campaign Against N.C. Porn Business

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The FBI is stepping into the fight against distribution of pornography, which has become a big business in North Carolina.

A few years ago, pornographic literature could be bought openly at only a few places in the state's largest cities. Now the cities, and many towns, have adult book stores and theaters which show X-rated movies.

Up to now, most anti-pornography efforts have been on local levels. And they have often failed because of legal complications.

"We're going to see if we can't do something about the widespread use of pornography in the state," says Louis A. Giovannetti, special agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina. He said in an interview that the planned crackdown on pornography was part of a nationwide redirection of FBI anti-crime efforts against victimless and white-collar crimes.

"We looked at our particular situation (in North Carolina) and we saw areas where we need to bring manpower to bear," Giovannetti said.

Among those areas are white-collar crimes such as fraud and embezzlement, and interstate transportation of pornography, he said.

Theater and store operators say most of their "adult" wares come from outside North Carolina, usually from New York, California or Florida.

No figures are available on the amount or value of pornography sold in North Carolina. But authorities say it runs into the hundreds of thousands of dollars annually with a high profit margin for the distributor.

Giovannetti said the FBI plans to curtail distribution of pornography by enforcing federal laws on interstate transportation of obscene material. But he said agents might run into problems with vague state and local obscenity laws, which have facilitated the spread of pornography in the state.

State laws on obscenity were rewritten in 1973 to conform with U.S. Supreme Court decisions. The old laws limited their definition of obscenity to a vague "without redeeming social value."

But even new laws, with more complicated definitions of obscenity, have brought different results in different areas.

The movie "Memories Within Miss Aggie" was declared obscene in Guilford County last year, but a judge in neighboring Forsyth County ruled the same movie was not obscene.

The state's laws also provide for some complicated prose-ed to a single book or movie. It's not so bad with a movie but with a book, they can just change the cover, some authorities say.

Butz Warns Of Further Increase In Food Costs

CHICAGO (AP) — Food prices will increase 4 to 5 percent in the coming year, Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz predicts.

Butz told a news conference Tuesday that the reason for continuing complaints about food prices is that "food is the only thing left that you pay cash for."

Butz also repeated early criticism of George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO. He said Meany and some other top labor leaders are "more powerful than the president of the United States."

Butz noted that when longshoremen last summer refused to load grain destined for the Soviet Union, Meany met with federal officials to obtain a suspension of grain sales to Russia.

"Foreign policy is too important to be left to Mr. Meany," Butz said. "It's just as wrong for him to take foreign policy into his hands as ... the PTA or anyone else."

Butz said that because of last summer's moratorium on grain sales U.S. farmers were denied incentive to investments, expansion and success.

In addressing 1,000 persons at the Economic Club of Chicago, he said the earth's food production must be doubled to face the "world's No. 1 problem" in the next 25 years — feeding 7 billion persons.

He said increased production must come at a time when highway construction, urban sprawl and recreation are eating up arable land in most nations.

"The United States alone cannot feed the world — no matter how productive we are," said Butz. "It's possible to expand our farm production by a goodly degree, but not enough to serve the explosive food needs of all the world."

School Unrest

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Asheville High School closed about noon Tuesday after a disturbance involving black students broke out.

School officials said blacks were protesting the selection of students for the honor society and refused to go to class or to cooperate with the principal.

A basketball game scheduled for Tuesday night was also postponed.

No fighting took place, officials said, but two non-students were charged with trespassing.

The protest began when only one black student was chosen for the honor society.

The school opened without incident today.

Getting Less, Paying More

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House post office subcommittee predicts Americans will have to pay higher postal rates for reduced service.

Rep. James M. Hanley said postal rates, already scheduled to go up Dec. 28, "will have to be further increased in all likelihood."

The cost of mailing a first class letter is scheduled to increase this month from 10 cents to 13 cents.

Hanley, D-N.Y., made the comments in a statement in advance of testimony by Postmaster Gen. Benjamin F. Bailar before the subcommittee today.

"During the past several months, the Postal Service has more than once flirted with virtual bankruptcy. Unless something is done quickly, more stringent steps will have to be taken than any of us can imagine now," Hanley said.

Hanley berated his House colleagues for refusing to vote extra subsidies for the Postal Service. In October, the House deleted from a bill written by Hanley an extra $1.7 billion subsidy in addition to the $900 million fixed by existing law.

"Those who have opposed or not worked for increased appropriations must frankly accept the consequences — either increased postal rates or reductions in service," Hanley said. "We probably will have to accept both."

The Postal Service now is losing nearly $7 million per day. The Postal Service estimates that despite the Dec. 28 increase it will lose $1.4 billion in the fiscal year ending June 30.

Hanley for several years has urged abandonment of the "break even concept" embodied in the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970. Under this concept, the Postal Service would be financed by the fees it charges without extra funds from Congress.

Firm Marking Its 30th Year

Hendrix-Barnhill Co., Memorial Drive, is celebrating its 30th anniversary of operation on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Kelly Barnhill, president of the firm, said that during the two-days, representatives of the various manufacturers and suppliers for Hendrix-Barnhill will be on hand to assist in the showing of merchandise.

Barnhill said that the merchandise showing will be held from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. both days.

The president pointed out that the firm began in 1945 when John T. Barnhill and Floyd F. Hendrix formed a partnership to start Hendrix-Barnhill Equipment Co. The partners, at that time, signed a contract with Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. and engaged in the retail farm equipment business, it was noted.

In 1954, the business was incorporated and changed to Hendrix-Barnhill Co. Inc., Barnhill said.

He said that over the years, the business has diversified into farm and commercial-residential irrigation, including both portable and underground permanent systems, and also expanded its lines to other types of farm equipment and supplies.

Water and sanitary sewer systems services are offered at the firm as well as industrial equipment for light construction work, he added. The firm also represents J. I. Case Co.

Barnhill has been involved in the business since 1966 and Norman Worthington, the first person hired by the firm in 1945, serves today as vice president. J. B. Spilman is secretary-treasurer.

Other members of the Hendrix-Barnhill board of directors include M. B. Hodges of Grifton and Sen. Vernon White of Winterville.

Sakharov's Wife Accepts Peace Prize For Him

By HELGE KONGSHAUG JR. OSLO, Norway (AP) — Andrei Sakharov's wife accepted the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize for her husband today and read a message from him saying he shared the honor with "all prisoners of conscience in the Soviet Union and in other Eastern European countries as well as with all those who fight for their liberation."

King Olav and other members of the Norwegian royal family watched as Yelena Sakharov received the prize check, gold medal and diploma from Aase Lionaes, the chairwoman of the Norwegian parliamentary committee which nominated the Soviet nuclear physicist for his fight for human rights in the Soviet Union. Later today, at companion 75th anniversary ceremonies in Stockholm, Sweden, the other five 1975 Nobel Prizes were to be presented to 10 scientists and Italian poet Eugenio Montale, the winner of the Prize for Literature. Special guests there were 70 previous laureates, including 30 Americans, and all of last year's science prizewinners.

Sakharov, the first Russian to win the Peace Prize, was unable to receive it in person because the Soviet government refused to let him leave the country. His wife was able to attend because she was in Italy for medical treatment.

The statement she read was in addition to her 54-year-old husband's Nobel address, which she will read for him at another ceremony Thursday night.

"For all those who went through the experience of the most terrible war in history, World War II," Sakharov's statement said, "the conception of war as the worst catastrophe and evil for all mankind has become not only an abstract idea but a deep personal feeling, the basis for one's entire outlook on the world. To keep one's self respect one must therefore act in accordance with the general human longing for peace, for true detente, for genuine disarmament. This is the reason why I am so deeply moved by your appreciation of my activity as a contribution to peace."

Sakharov said the Nobel Committee had performed "an act of intellectual courage and great equity" by granting the prize to "a man whose ideas do not coincide with official concepts of the leadership of a big and powerful state...."

Sakharov expressed hope for "a final victory of the principles of peace and human rights" and added, "The best sign that such hopes can come true would be a general political amnesty in all the world, the liberation of all prisoners of conscience everywhere."

Sakharov, meanwhile, was in Vilnius, the capital of Soviet Lithuania, trying without success to attend the trial of another dissident Soviet scientist, 43-year-old Sergei Kovalev, on charges of anti-Soviet activity. Sakharov was barred from the courtroom on Tuesday.

Youths of all political parties except the Communists planned a torchlight procession through downtown Oslo tonight to express support of the absent Sakharov.

Attenposten, Norway's biggest newspaper, commented: "At a time when the world is searching for signs of reduced tension, it is depressing that the superpower which talks most about peace and understanding has turned the solemn ceremony ... into a demonstration of unfreedom."

Mrs. Sakharov will read her husband's acceptance speech at another ceremony Thursday night. She was in Italy for medical treatment when he was denied permission to leave the Soviet Union, but she has not revealed how she received his manuscript.

The other Nobel prizes were to be presented in Stockholm by Sweden's 29-year-old king, Carl Gustaf. For the first time a foreign monarch — Queen Margrethe of Denmark — was attending. Two of the three prizewinners in physics are Danes, Aage Bohr and Ben Motelson.

The celebrations mark the 75th anniversary of the Nobel Foundation, set up in 1900 to administer the fortune left by the Swedish inventor of dynamite, Alfred Nobel. He willed that his money should be used "to benefit annually those who have conferred the most benefit to mankind."

Each of the prizes this year is worth the equivalent of $143,000, divided equally if there is more than one prizewinner in a category.

Five Americans are among the winners, including David Baltimore, 37, Howard Temin, 42, and Renato Dulbecco, 61, sharing the Prize for Medicine; James Rainwater, 58, the third winner of the Physics Prize; and Tjalling C. Koopmans, co-winner of the Prize for Economics with Leonid Kantorovich of the Soviet Union.

Although it refused an exit visa to Sakharov, the Soviet government allowed the non-controversial economist to come to Stockholm.

The cointerwinners of the Chemistry Prize are John Warcup Cornforth, 58, of Britain and Vladimir Prelog, 69, of Switzerland.

Has Praise For Farmers

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Farmers have played a major role in expanding North Carolina industry, Gov. Jim Holshouser said.

In a speech to a meeting of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation Tuesday, Holshouser said the state's output of farm products has helped attract industry, particularly food processing companies.

Recent figures show North Carolina a leading farm state with cash crops reaching a value of $1.6 billion, 11th in the nation, he said.

While predicting that farm productivity will continue to help the state grow, Holshouser cautioned that but care must be taken to ensure that growth doesn't destroy the state's quality of life.

He praised farmers and said they play a vital role in the state and national economy. "As we count our many blessings, America should start at the very top by paying tribute to the American farmer and to the American system of agriculture," he said.

In 1940, he said, the average farmer produced enough to feed 10.7 persons but in 1969 that figure had reached 44.3 persons. The supply of farm products "has played a crucial role not only in feeding our own people, but in helping the United States to be a major force in world trade," he said.

Radar Checking Speed Of Trains

BRENTWOOD, Tenn. (AP)—Had Casey Jones run his "Cannonball Express" through here, he may have gotten a speeding ticket.

City police in this suburb of Nashville are using a radar gun to check if Louisville and Nashville Railroad trains are violating a 15 m.p.h. speed limit on locomotives.

The city commission set the speed limit a few months ago in a long standing feud with L&N officials over the installation of safety warning devices at railroad crossings.

Police Chief Howard Buttrey said one freight train was clocked at 66 m.p.h. Tuesday.

"Technically, I guess we could bring them into City Court," he said.

Revised Schedule

A revised schedule of holiday events to be performed at The Downtown Mall has been issued.

Afternoon programs shown will begin approximately 12:45 p.m. and continue until about 1:45 p.m. Evening performances listed will be from about 7 to 8 p.m.

Performing location for all events will be the raised gazebo in front of Atlantic Credit Company on Evans Street.

There is no admission fee for any of the events, and the public is invited to attend.

Probe Staffers Must Swear They Did Not 'Leak'

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Staff members of the Senate intelligence committee have been ordered to swear in affidavits that they were not the source for news stories linking President John F. Kennedy, a female friend and organized crime, committee sources say.

The sources say staff members were asked to reaffirm their loyalty oaths and that senators on the panel also were asked to sign affidavits saying they had not leaked information from committee files.

A committee spokesman denied reports that staff members have been asked to take lie detector tests as part of an effort to identify the source of the apparent leak. He refused to comment on what other steps may have been taken.

Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, was not immediately available for comment but was said by friends to have been "mad as hell" about the news stories last month which represent the first major leak in the committee's 10-month history.

Vice Chairman John Tower, R-Tex., refused to comment when asked whether lie detector tests have been ordered, saying the matter is "internal committee business."

The news stories stated that while in the White House, Kennedy received 70 or 80 telephone calls from a California woman who had served as a volunteer in his 1960 campaign.

The number of calls was tabulated from Kennedy's office records, the report said.

The articles identified the woman as Judith Campbell and said some of her calls were made from the Oak Park, Ill., home of Chicago crime boss Sam "Momo" Giancana. The articles called her a friend of California gambling figure John Rosselli, a Giancana associate.

And they said her association with Kennedy in the early 1960s coincided with the period when Giancana and Rosselli were assisting the CIA with plots to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

The Kennedy-Campbell situation was detailed in the Senate panel's Nov. 20 report on official U.S. government involvement in plots to assassinate foreign leaders. However, the report referred to the woman only as "Kennedy's friend" and did not identify her by name or sex.

The episode was included in a section of the report entitled,

"Did President Kennedy learn anything about assassination plots as a result of the FBI investigation of Giancana and Rosselli?"

The report concluded it was impossible to say for sure whether Kennedy knew of the plots against Castro but that he could have.

The news accounts were published last month by the Washington Post and the Scripps-Howard newspapers before the committee's report was released. The articles were attributed to the committee's staff logs and to sources on the staff.

Giancana's testimony on the matter was not available to the committee because he was murdered in his home last June 19, shortly before he was to appear before the panel. His murder is unsolved.

ECU Chorale Offering Its Christmas Concert

The East Carolina University Chorale is presenting a program of Christmas choral music on Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in the Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

The program is free and open to the public, and will include several well-known selections to be sung by both Chorale and audience. Chorale conductor is Dr. Charles W. Moore of the ECU faculty.

A special feature of the program will be Shepherds! Rejoice, for men's voices and brass ensemble, a composition by American composer Arthur Frackenpohl. William White will be tenor soloist.

Guitarist Michael Thompson will perform with the Chorale in What Sweeter Music Can We Sing, by American composer Michael Fink.

Assisting the Chorale in Calypso Noel will be instrumentalists Drew Cooke, piano; Bob Hedrick, string bass; and Edward Astin and Charles Darden, percussion.

The Chorale will also perform Christmas music in the season series at Greenville's new downtown mall at 12:15 p.m. Friday. They will be assisted by a student-faculty brass ensemble.

In addition, they will appear on the program at the annual ECU Christmas assembly at 11 a.m. Friday, Dec. 19, in Wright Auditorium and on the Chancellor's Christmas program on WITN-TV, Washington.

The taped television program will be broadcast on Christmas Day.

The University Chorale is a non-audition group open to all students at ECU. Officers for 1975-76 are Barry Robinson, president; Beverly Hoffines, vice president; and Paul Slovinsky, librarian.

Returns His Perot 'Gift'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Saying he wanted to remove any hint of corruption, Rep. James G. Martin, R-N.C., has returned a $500 campaign contribution made by Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot.

Martin said published reports made it appear as though there had been an improper connection between the contribution and his support of a tax law change that would have allowed Perot to collect as much as $15 million in tax refunds. There was no connection, he said, adding that he at first didn't know the measure would benefit Perot and he supported it in committee and on the House floor because he believed it was fair.

Martin is a member of the Ways and Means Committee. A dozen members of the committee received a total of $27,400 from Perot. Ten of them, including Martin, later supported the tax law change.

Under the proposal, persons with large losses last year would be allowed to get refunds from taxes they paid the previous three years. Perot reportedly lost some $50 million in the stock market last year. Also, The Wall Street Journal reported that the legislation was drafted by a Perot lawyer.

When the matter was before the House last week, Martin was among only 27 lawmakers to favor the legislation which failed.

Deaths Said Due Hog In Road

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP)—A hog in the road caused an accident which killed four persons Tuesday night, Robeson County deputies report.

A compact car hit the hog near Pembroke and then collided with a pickup truck. Two men and two boys were killed.

The victims were identified Earl Gregory Sheppard, 28, of Rt. 1, Maxton, and his sons, aged 2 and 5, who were in the car; and Curt Patrick Locklear, 28, of Rt. 3, Maxton, driver of the truck.

A passenger in the truck, Edward Archie Locklear, also of Rt. 3, Maxton, was admitted to Southeastern General Hospital in Lumberton.

The sheriff's department investigated the accident under an arrangement so troopers in Robeson County could attend their annual Christmas party.

Recalls of motor vehicles for safety defects dropped dramatically in late 1973 and 1974, coincidentally with big cuts in the highway death toll.

Tax Bill Writers Anticipating A Veto

By JIM LUTHER
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee is racing to write a bill continuing $13 billion in individual income tax cuts for another six months, even though members are convinced President Ford will veto any measure they approve.

Congressional leaders want to get the bill to Ford as quickly as possible so the Senate and House can attempt to override his expected veto before adjourning Dec. 19 for the holidays.

If Congress is unable to override Ford's veto, American wage earners would begin feeling the bite of higher taxes in January.

Ford and the Democratic-controlled Congress agree on the need to continue this year's tax cut, but Ford wants to impose a $395-billion ceiling on federal spending for 1977.

Democrats generally contend such a ceiling is not possible so far in advance of the start of the fiscal year under new congressional budget procedures. But those procedures require that a spending limit for fiscal 1977, which begins next Oct. 1, be set by May 15.

Therefore, the Finance Committee will attempt to extend this year's tax cuts through June 30. At that time, the cut could be renewed for the remainder of 1976 and a spending bill imposed for 1977.

The six-month tax cut extension is aimed not only at appeasing those conservatives who want to cut federal spending but at drawing support from a liberal bloc, led by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that seeks to close loopholes that allow the wealthy to avoid a large share of their taxes.

Kennedy told the Finance Committee he would be willing to delay consideration of most of the tax-revision proposals approved by the House if the Senate were allowed to vote this year on tightening two such loopholes: the minimum tax on the wealthy and a section that allows owners of some property to escape estate taxation.

Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., insists there is no way the Senate can vote on such tax revisions until hearings are held. But he has promised his committee will consider such action before next July.

Surviving are her husband, William Wooten of Vanceboro; three sons, Willie Lloyd, Harvey Columbus and Ben Junior, all of Vanceboro; five daughters, Mrs. Effie Mae Hardy of Grimesland, Mrs. Lucille Williams of Portsmouth, Va., Mrs. Maggie White, Mrs. Sula Adams of Vanceboro and Mrs. Alice Roundtree of Louisville; one brother, Alfred Barrett of Rt. 1, Bethel; six sisters, Mrs. Hattie Williams of Rocky Mount, Mrs. Sula Bumpers of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Pearl Edwards of Norfolk, Conn., Mrs. Retha Stratton of New Haven, Conn., Mrs. Gatsy Wilkes of Farmville.

Grimesland — Mrs. Lillian Thompson Gatlin died Tuesday at her home near here. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Phillips Brothers Mortuary.

Smith
 Mr. Garland V. Smith, 49, died suddenly at his home in Greensboro Tuesday.

Funeral services will be conducted at two o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Jack Mayo and the Rev. Willis Wilson. Burial will be in the Winterville Cemetery.

Retail issues outpaced declines by about a 5-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was moderate. Brokers described the early buying as another of the periodic bursts of bargain hunting that have appeared since Monday following last week's sharp decline.

They noted some encouragement over indications that Christmas-season sales at retail stores were off to a strong start.

Consumer spending is widely seen as a key element in determining the strength and durability of the economic recovery.

Despite that favorable influence, however, investors still seemed cautious over the chances for agreement between the White House and Congress on legislation that would extend this year's tax cuts into 1976.

Retail issues were steady to slightly higher, with Sears Roebuck ahead 1/4 at 67; S.S. Kresge up 1/4 at 32 1/2; Woolworth 3/4 higher at 21 1/2, and Federated Department Stores unchanged at 51 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index rose .11 to 46.09 in the first hour. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .31 at 81.50.

Rampants Ease By Jacksonville, 63-55

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 Rose High School's Rampant won their first game of the season last night, easing past winless Jacksonville, 63-55, in a game typical of the early season. With turnovers keeping both teams from scoring a lot more, the two battles on nearly even terms most of the way. Jacksonville never led, however, although they had several chances to grab the lead. The contest was tied on seven occasions, the last time in the third period before Rose opened up an eight-point lead in the final two minutes of the quarter. Rose upped its lead to as much as 11 later in the game, getting hot in the second half in its shooting. The Rampants ended up shooting a fine 52.2 per cent from the floor, making good on 24 of 46 shots. Jacksonville was much colder, making just 18 of 53 for 34.0 per cent. Both teams were poor at the foul line. Rose hit just 15 of 33,

45.5 per cent, while the Cardinals dropped in just 19 of 33, 57.6 per cent. The battled on almost even terms of the boards, with the Cards holding a slim 45-44 edge. Rose had two more turnovers, 29 to 27. Most significant in the game was the play of Derek Brewington, coming in after just three days break since the end of football season. He led the Rose scoring with 17 points, was a key man in the rebounding, and blocked several shots by the Cardinals. Only one other Rampant hit double figures, as Curtis Keys hit 15. Jacksonville was led by Ken Deal with 15, while Kim Vikara and Tony Marshburn each had 10. Rose got the opening lead on a free throw by Donnie Shields, and Keys opened that to 3-0 off a fast break. Jacksonville finally got on the boards off a jumper by Marshburn after over two minutes of play. Following a free throw by Keys, Marshburn tied it up for the first time, but Jeff Barber hit from the corner to keep Rose ahead. It was tied again at 6-6 and at 8-8 before Herb Oliver hit from underneath with seven seconds left for a 10-8 lead. Brewington, who entered the game at the start of the second period, hit after just nine seconds on a turnaround jumper for a 12-8 lead. The Cards fought back on a jumper by Creo McIver and two free throws by Marshburn to tie it at 12-12. Brewington's drive put Rose back out and then William Barnes upped the lead to 16-12. Rose held that margin until Keys hit with 1:50 left to inch the margin out to five, 23-18. In the final minute, Harry Pair's long jumper ran the lead to seven, 27-20, but two free throws by Deal and a drive by Mike Jones cut it back to 27-24 at the half.

The Rampants held the lead until Marshburn's jumper tied it at 33-33. Rose regained the lead, but it was knotted again at 35-37 and 37-37. Keys hit on a drive with 2:12 left, and Joe Godette hit from the baseline. Godette added two free throws and Keys got a basket in the final 10 seconds to rip off eight in a row and give the Rampants a 45-37 edge at the horn. Rose turned in a five-point play early in the final period to run the lead to nine. Brewington hit two free throws, and on the inbounds play, a technical was called on the Jacksonville bench. Barber made that free throw and 11 seconds later, Brewington was fouled while shooting and made both gift shots. That ran it to 50-41. It inched out to 54-44 on a shot by Shields, and then to 11 at 57-46, as Brewington scored off a steal. Jacksonville rallied to dominated the second half and won." Rose, who never played football, and never coached it prior to coming to Robertsonville, told the club that "I can't coach. I start a riot among our players." He said that there is a lot of pride in the program at Roanoke. "Last year we got beat way at the other end of the state, and we wanted revenge this year. The team responded and did an excellent job." Respass took issue with the fact that few 2-A and 1-A players are selected for All-Star teams. "It's harsh to penalize a boy from a small school. Some of these players deserve post-season honors." Respass said that he teaches hard-nosed football. "We are known as a hard-hitting team. We get off the ball quick and some people think we're a dirty team. But we're not. We're just hard-nosed. It's the way we win." The coach added that last week, trailing 9-0 at halftime, he knew he had the best team on the field. "I told them so and they responded. I wouldn't trade the opportunity I've had. I used to be a basketball man, but football is my first love now. It teaches a young man more about life than anything I know."

outfit the Cards again, 17-11, in the final period. Gregg Guthrie led Rose with 20, while James Hawkins had 12 and Larry Speight and Anthony Bryant each had 12. Sam Jackson had 14 and Butch Humphrey had 11 for Jacksonville. The varsity victory evened the Rampant record at 1-1, while Jacksonville is now 0-3. Rose will host Kinston on Friday.

North Pitt Continues To Roar, Dumps Tigers

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
 BETHEL—Donnie Perkins and Jesse Harris combined for 38 points to lead the North Pitt Panthers to their third straight basketball victory last night, dumping Williamston, 64-52. The victory gained a measure of revenge for an earlier loss suffered by the North Pitt girls as they fell to the Tigerettes, 51-34. Perkins led the Panthers with 25 while Harris scored 13. Twenty-four of Perkins' points came from the floor. He missed his first couple of shots then got hot hitting four of the last six Panther field goals in the first period. The two teams battled back and forth in the opening minutes, unable to score. Perkins finally broke the ice with just over six minutes to go hitting on an "Alley Oop" but the Tigers tied it, 2-2 on a jumper by John Mason. Kenneth Roberson put the Panthers back in the lead, 4-2, but the Tigers again tied it as Ronald Brown scored. The Panthers went ahead for good as Harris sank a free shot with 3:32 left. Harris scored on a fast break, Perkins on a lay-up and another fast break to send the Panthers shooting out to an 11-4 lead. A tap by Virgil Pilgreen and a bucket on a steal by Harris made it 15-4. Williamston cut the lead by two, 19-10 by the end of the period. Perkins scored on a feed from Harris to open the second frame but the Panthers were not able to increase their lead by more than two points in the period. They took a 33-16 advantage at halftime. North Pitt blew in nine quick points to open the second half and run the margin to 20, 42-22 with just under two minutes gone. Roberson had six points and Perkins three in the span. Williamston finally broke the drought with 6:06 left in the period when Butch David scored a lay-up. The Panthers increased their lead to 22, 50-28 on a lay-up by Perkins and from there on out the win was pretty much in the bag. North Pitt outhit Williamston, 23-16, in the third period but Williamston took the final period, 13-8.

Wallace, Davis and Deno Lloyd each scored ten for the Tigers while Roberson added 11 for North Pitt. The Williamston girls got the lead on their game's first bucket and never lost it. Two baskets by Nancy Sharpe and one each by Paula Bennett and Bet Brandon gave the Tigerettes an 8-0 lead with just over two minutes gone. Two tallies by Pant-HER Kathi Manning cut the lead to 8-4 but the Lady Tigers pulled away and led at the end of the period, 14-8. Both teams doubled their scores in the second period. After trading baskets for the first six minutes, Williamston put together a brief rally scoring six points to take a 28-16 halftime lead. North Pitt knocked two points off the gap in the third period but a 15-8 fourth quarter helped Williamston move out to the final total. The Tigerettes got a three point play by Bennet with 3:42 left to take a 20-point lead, 49-29. Cissy Taylor led the Tigerettes with 16 and Bennet had 11.

Sports Club Hears State Champ Coaches

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 Three championship football coaches were featured at the second meeting of the Greenville Sports Club yesterday. Jack Edwards, Greenville businessman, was elected president of the organization, and plans were made for future meetings. Nearly 100 people attended the meeting held at the Ramada Inn. In addition to Edwards, two other officers were elected. Phil Dixon, attorney, was elected secretary-treasurer, and Charles Vincent, assistant recreation director, was named program chairman. A questionnaire was circulated among those attending as to how often meetings should be held, what type programs were of interest, and if meetings should continue to be on a luncheon basis. A third meeting has been scheduled for January 6. Special guests, in addition to the speakers, were Jim Bolding, recently selected to the second team All-America (AP), and Jimbo Walker, given honorable mention on the team. Both are players at East Carolina. Speakers were Dave Bumgarner, whose Rose High School football team won the 4-A state title; Frank Ciamillo, Havelock coach whose team was the Eastern champion; and Noland Respass of Roanoke, the 2-A state champ. Bumgarner introduced two of his assistants, and thanked one, Jim Brewington, for having a son on the team, Mike, who stopped the two-point conversion try by East Mecklenburg. "The best is still to come, because Jim's second son, Derek, is just a junior, and he's going to be as good as Mike." The coach noted that a coach throughout his career tries to be a winner. "Not just to win, but to come out in first place. It was a tremendous feeling to see the number of people who climbed a five-foot fence Friday night to carry me off the field." "But the biggest thing Saturday was to see the welcome

Ayden-Grifton Tops Warriors

LITTLEFIELD—Ayden-Grifton took its second straight victory of the year last night, downing Eastern Wayne, 55-46. The Chargerettes also came away with a 41-19 win, their first. Ayden-Grifton took the junior varsity contest too, 28-25, which was shortened to just three quarters. That was done due to the late arrival of Eastern Wayne. Ayden-Grifton's girls, which lost their first outing, had little trouble in downing the Lady Warriors. They built up an 8-2 lead after one period and ballooned that to 20-6 at the half. The Chargerettes kept pulling away, and held a 30-14 margin after three periods. They finished Eastern off, 11-5, to cap off the victory. Audrey McCarter led the Chargerette scoring with 15 points. Ayden-Grifton's boys built up a seven point lead, 17-10 at the end of the first period, then had to fight off a Warrior rally. Eastern cut it back to 26-24 by intermission. But A-G pulled away again in the third period, upping the lead to 38-32. They outhit the Warriors, 17-14, to wind it up, going into a stall in the final four minutes to run out the clock.

Willie Forbes led the A-G scoring with 17 points, while Dennis Moore had 10. Cedric Jackson led Eastern with 14 and Charles Lewis added 12. The Chargers hit on 44 per cent of their shots from the floor, while Eastern made just 34 per cent. Ayden-Grifton held a 30-22 rebound advantage, with Forbes leading with nine. The Chargers host West Craven on Friday.

Lady Jaguars Defeat Conley

HOLLYWOOD—Farmville Central's girls rolled to a 57-38 victory over D. H. Conley last night. There was no varsity boys game. Farmville Central shot away to a 16-6 lead in the first period and were never in trouble after that. They upped their lead to 25-10 at the half. Conley put on a small rally in the third period, outhitting the Lady Jaguars, 14-8. That cut the lead to 33-24. But Farmville outhit the Valkyries, 24-14, in the final period to win going away. Julia Moye led Farmville with 21 points, while Mary McCracken had 15 to pace Conley. Conley hosts Jones Senior on Friday, while Farmville will play host to Saratoga.

Getting Together 'Skins Job

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
(One of a series)

ROBERSONVILLE — Like Rose High's Wilson McDowell, Roanoke basketball coach Henry Land is in a hot spot.

Both are following a state-championship-winning football team with basketball. But like McDowell, Land says there is no pressure on him to continue the infant tradition.

"It's no pressure on me," he said. "It gives the basketball players a little more to fight for. It has helped the basketball players coming from football because of the pressure."

The 'Skins return seven players from teams at Oak City and Robersonville, four of which were starters. They are still having problems adjusting even after two games.

"Well, right now we're still touch and go," said Land. "because of the personality clash. They seem to be coming along."

Land quickly pointed out that the clash was not from personal conflicts between the team members but because of the mixture of the two systems. Since the players are from Oak City and Robersonville, they aren't used to each other and this will take a few games to overcome, says the coach.

At Oak City, Land's team used 2-3, double-post offense whereas at Robersonville, a single post offense was used. This season, Land is trying to hybridize the two. "It all goes into the same system. Both teams were well drilled in (them)."

This year's team is composed of mostly juniors which will help the team next year. "The juniors are playing important roles," said Land. This will give them plenty of time to learn Land's floating offense system of shifting from a 1-2-2 to a 1-3-1.

Now that football season is finally over, Land will try to work the four football players into the team as fast as possible. "In the first two games, the only two experienced players were from Oak City. Once we get the football players into it the team will gel," Land said.

Land also noted that the team is lacking in floor leadership. "It's going to come from our experienced players. We have outstanding players. Paul Jones has done for bulk of the scoring and Love Williams who came up from the J.V. has been doing very well playing center. We will be powerful on the boards but we're making too many turnovers."

In the two games, Land has started four different guards and as yet no one has taken charge. "It's always different. We have experienced guards in Ricky Duggins and Eddy Dean Brown and Alvin Stokes. The last two are more defensive players."

"I can't pinpoint one as a quarterback," Land continued. "We have no organization, no solid leader. It will take two or three more (games) to get it down solid."

The major problem in the two games was turnovers and fouls. "We are averaging 30 turnovers and 20 fouls," the coach said. This will be overcome in time, the coach hopes.

The Redskins have good shooters which is a plus. "Any guy can shoot 20 points a given night. There is a great deal of potential. Both J.V.'s were outstanding last year. They show signs of being very good."

The Redskins also have a good height in Williams (6-4), Sammy Boyd (6-4) and Jones (6-3). Kenneth Howard jumps like a 6-6 man says Land. On defense, the Redskins are trying to mix things up switching from a 1-2-2 to a 1-3-1 to a man-to-man trap and back and forth. "I would say the 1-2-2 zone trap has been the most successful. We go with a multi-zone defense."

Land says he won't have a sixth of seventh starter but instead he'll have 10 or 11 all capable of starting. Land will only have on center in Boyd so he will at times use four guards and a center or other combinations. Of the 15 players, eight are guards.

Land looks for Elm City to return to the top seat of the Eastern Plains Conference this season. "Elm City will be on top, North Edgecombe and West Edgecombe at number two. South Edgecombe is having a rebuilding year, they lost all their players, they will be fourth. We're in a rebuilding stage too and next year will be our best."

Land also expects the Redskins to be up there somewhere. He expects the Redskins will have a good season one way or another.

Roanoke Captures 1st Victory As Bears Fall

ROANOKE — Roanoke's Redskins recorded their first basketball victory last night with a 71-62 win over Bear Grass.

The Roanoke girls also came away with a win, downing the Lady Bears, 44-35.

The win brought the Roanoke record to 1-3 for the boys, while the girls are now 2-1.

Bear Grass inched out into an 11-8 lead in the first period of the boys' game as they threatened to make it two in a row over the 'Skins. But Roanoke came roaring back to burn the nets for 27 points in the second quarter. That enabled them to forge into a 35-29 lead at halftime.

The Bears cut one point off that lead by the end of the third quarter, and trailed, 48-43, but they were unable to put on a decisive rally. Roanoke outthrew them, 23-19, in the final frame to pull out the victory.

St. John's Pulls Off Upset Of Tennessee

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The St. John's Redmen have something to prove, and Tennessee is the latest to see their point.

"Our team doesn't want to lose a game," declared Frank Alagia, the 5-foot-8 senior sparkplug of the Redmen. "We weren't ranked in the pre-season polls. One magazine said we'd be lucky if we made a postseason tournament. Well, we think we're a good team."

They convinced seventh-ranked Tennessee of their talents Tuesday night, beating the visiting Volunteers 79-70. Beaver Smith scored 22 points and Alagia added 15 as the Redmen built an 11-point lead in the second half, then held off a late comeback bid by the Vols.

In the only other game involving a nationally ranked college basketball team, No. 6 Louisville whipped Cal Poly 84-70.

"This rates with the great wins we've had here on our court," raved St. John's Coach

Lou Carnesecca. "I'd love to end a season with a win like this... you wouldn't find me for two months."

"Alagia was perfect running the club. He didn't make a mistake. His play selection was excellent."

Tennessee Coach Ray Mears was also impressed by Alagia's effort. "He runs a team better than anyone in the Southeastern Conference," Mears said.

"That's a nice compliment, because the SEC is as good as any conference in the country," responded Alagia, who also had seven assists and three steals in helping the unbeaten Redmen to their fourth victory.

Smith, meanwhile, did a job at both ends of the court. Besides shooting 10-for-15 from the field, he limited Tennessee ace Ernie Grunfeld to 19 points — four below his average — and more importantly to 6-for-17 shooting.

Grunfeld missed seven of his eight shots in the first half as St. John's built a 45-35 halftime lead.

The loss was Tennessee's first after three victories.

Ricky Gallon scored 20 points in 22 minutes of playing time as Louisville raised its record to 3-0. Louisville built a 34-16 lead, Cal Poly closed to 42-32 at the half but the Cardinals outscored the visitors 10-2 in the first 2:44 of the second half to put the game away.

Rick Wilson added 12 points for Louisville and Wesley Cox and Larry Williams had 10 apiece. Joe Sills led Cal Poly with 26.

In this business of the printed word, there are often errors which either slip by our proof readers or are just plain mistakes.

Sometimes they turn out to be quite funny. Other times, they are just plain embarrassing.

Kenny Strayhorn of East Carolina has seen himself called by his brother Les' name many times in a number of publications. This "brother syndrome" hit us a couple of weeks ago when we called Jeff Aldridge by his brother Mike's name. For this we apologize. Once a name becomes stuck in a writer's memory, sometimes it becomes hard to get rid of.

But the funniest thing about this past football season is the program that was turned out at a couple of the playoff games involving Rose High School. Obviously the roster of the Rampants was given over the telephone, and there was something lost in the translation.

The names of 48 players were listed on the program. Of these, 26 were misspelled, and some are nearly unrecognizable.

Molt Massey became Malt, Henry Trevathan found an extra "a" in his name: Treavathan. Mike and William Joyner became Jorner's.

Harry Pair turned fruity, Pear; and Doug Paschal got the "h" knocked out of him. Clay Shugat became Shugat, and Tyrone Perkins found his name drawled out to Tyronee.

Keith James became Jones, and Eddy Connolly, Eddie Connaly. Gene Pittman found himself transferred to the feminine, Jean. And Wayne Garver turned to Garner.

Mike Murad turned to Morehead, and Neal Flake to Thoke. Freager Sanders became Freagen, and John Mallow is Malloy.

Ricky Cannon turned into a Cameron, and Gary Porter to Jerry. Jim Tauton became Talton and Ray Wilson, Roy. Mac Blount lost his "u."

Perhaps the best ones however, were these: Joe Godette turned into "Cadet." Wright Hooks was okay as Right. But who would recognize Cannon Fleming as Canaernie Flemings.

And can you figure out who Joy Sengz is? Why, Jay Chenier of course.

It all added just one more bright spot to the championship of the Rampants. And I guess that it proves that a Rose (Rampant) by any other name would still play as well.

At any rate, we hope that this came through without any other mistakes, and that no father errors will appear.

If there are any more things rong with this colem, I just don't fhgithenhgutynwkghty nn jduthg.

Dye Says Contacted

East Carolina University football coach Pat Dye confirmed today that he had been contacted by Tulane University, currently seeking a new coach.

Tulane fired Bennie Ellender Friday after the Green Wave finished a disappointing season.

It was reported earlier this week by the New Orleans Times-Picayune that Dye was one of those being considered for the job.

"I've talked with them," Dye said. "Naturally, I was interested in what they had to say."

"But I've got a job, and I'm not looking for one. I don't have any plans to leave East Carolina. I'm busy working on recruiting for next year, and this is where I plan to be."

Leagues Register

Youth basketball programs are continuing registration this week at Elm Street Gym, South Greenville Gym, and West Greenville Gym.

Registration for the Pee Wee Division (age 9 and 10) and Midget Division (age 11 and 12) is from 3:30-5:00 Thursday, and the Junior Division (age 13 and 14) Friday, from 3:30-5:00. The division a participant plays in will be determined by age as of January 1, 1976.

The "30 and over" league participants may register at the Elm Street Gym, Thursday, at 5:30 p.m.

For further information contact the Recreation Department at 752-4137, ext. 220.

DOING NICELY — A female polar bear cub, born Nov. 16, is all stretched out to the length of a 15-inch ruler under the care of Marge Seymour, head of the Lincoln Park Zoo nursery in Chicago. The youngster, as yet unna med, weighed 1 pound

Roman Christmas Is A Mix Of The Old, New

By WILBORN HAMPTON
United Press International
The shepherds are down from the Abruzzi, piping carols in the streets and piazzas for coins. Stalls are going up in the Piazza Navona to sell candy, nuts, toys and manger scenes. Tinsel and trees are appearing on the Via Frattina and Via Condotti.

Christmas is near in Rome. Before World War II, Christmas in Italy was mostly a religious celebration. Christmas Eve midnight mass was followed by a fish dinner. A family dinner was served the next day.

Even to children, gift-giving was reserved for Epiphany (Jan. 6), when the good witch Befana brought a gift and candy modeled like charcoal. There was no Santa Claus.

After the war, Italians began adopting trappings of the American and British Christmas imported by Allied troops. Shops and department stores now compete on lavish Christmas decorations. Whole streets are strung with lights, tinsel and decorations.

Stores even stay open until noon on Christmas Day, but on the following day, St. Stephen's, all Italy is closed.

In recent years, even skinny Santa Clauses, a photographer close at hand, vied with chestnut vendors and shepherd pipers by posing for photographs with children.

Christmas trees, once unknown in Italy, go up early and come down late. Creche scenes often grow far beyond the manger of Wise Men, shepherds, donkeys and the Holy Family. They become whole villages, and Bethlehem more often resembles a southern Italian town than the biblical town of Christ's birth. Television ads cater to the Christmas shopper, pushing everything from gifts for mother, wife, daughter, or mistress to food and drink for Christmas celebrations.

A generous people at heart, Italians give gifts with abandon. Children receive presents at Christmas as well as Epiphany.

Apart from the usual visits from the porter, the mailman and garbage collector, one is expected to remember almost

Planning Ass'n Session Set For Thursday

The Student Planning Association of East Carolina University will hold a min-conference session Thursday at 3 p.m.

Panel of five ECU graduates will discuss what to expect when starting a career in the planning field and the relevancy of the planning education in terms of their present responsibilities.

The panelists will be Tom Richter, Dale Holland, Mike Ruffin, John Schofield and Watt Brown.

The meeting will be held in room 102, B Wing, Brewster Bldg., on the ECU campus. All interested persons are invited to attend.

The ECU program is directed by William H. Hankins of the Dept. of Geography. For additional information, interested persons may call 752-6465 or visit Hankins in his office in the Brewster.

everyone with whom one has dealt during the year. A newsman working in Rome budgets for bottles for the typewriter repairman, the film or paper delivery boy and even various ministries of government.

An American spending Christmas in Rome today will find it little different from home, with one exception: Italian eating habits have not changed in several centuries and are not likely to in the near future. At Christmas, the only variations are regional.

Traditional delicacies are oel or cod for the Christmas Eve fish dinner and, depending on where you are, stuffed pig's feet with lentils or roast lamb or goat on Christmas Day.

Only in the northern industrial city of Milan is roast turkey the main dish. It is cooked with cheese, eggs and truffles.

An Italian table always contains pasta. The traditional one at Christmas is tortellini (meat-filled pasta) in broth in Bologna; pasta col pesto (with garlic, basil and cheese sauce) in Genoa; spaghetti in Naples; orecchiette (ear-shaped pasta) with mussels in Bari; and pasta with sardine sauce in Sicily.

Sweets are main attractions. Milan's dome-shaped panettone cake is sent all over the country. Nougats and marzipan sweets also are traditional.

On Christmas Day in Rome, St. Peter's Square is filled with balloons and laughing children showing off their Christmas presents.

This Holy Year, Christmas will take on the added attraction of Pope Paul VC sealing up the holy door in St. Peter's basilica with a silver trowel, not to be opened for another 25 years.

MACAO — While the ripples caused by the Portuguese revolution spread across much of Lisbon's old empire, its Far Eastern outpost of Macao flourishes in a state of primitive but lively capitalism.

Caught between Maoist China and revolutionary Portugal, this oldest European colony in the East is run by the improbable alliance of a Portuguese revolutionary-turned capitalist and a Chinese gambling tycoon-turned-Maoist. One of their biggest jobs is to keep the radicals in their own camps at bay and so save the six-square-mile territory from economic collapse.

Col. Garcia Leandro, the 34-year-old governor, was sent from Lisbon by the junta a year ago last summer to negotiate the peaceful return of Macao to China. But he found Peking not yet ready to absorb Macao — or Hong Kong — China's two enclaves of "imperialism" whose political status is inextricably linked.

Leandro became Governor instead, with a brief to reform the comic-opera administration and modernize the economy. This role has obliged him to liaise with the local Maoists as well as the local capitalists, and brought him into conflict with his younger officers impatient with compromise and delay.

They are led by Quiterio Brito, a naval officer who once ran the privately owned Macao Power Company and later became Minister for Industry in Lisbon.

But Leandro had his authority reaffirmed by the Supreme Revolutionary Council and is

Organizing A SCUBA Club

There will be an organizational meeting to form a new SCUBA Diving club at King's Barbecue in Kinston, January 5.

A dinner and meeting will follow a 6:30 p.m. happy hour.

The new club is designed to replace a SCUBA club organized several years ago that has become inactive, according to Anita Davis of Greenville.

Miss Davis, who said the meeting is open to the public, indicated she can be contacted at 758-4402 for more information.

Pitt's NAACP Meets Sunday

The Pitt County branch of the NAACP will hold its regular monthly mass meeting on Sunday, Dec. 14, at 7:45 p.m. at St. Stephen AME Zion Church in Farmville. Guest speaker will be C. S. Adcock from the Social Security office in Greenville.

D. D. Garrett, president, invited the public to attend.

being tough with his Portuguese critics in Macao.

The Chinese in Macao, who account for 98 per cent of the population, are all behind him and Leandro claimed "even the Communists gave support, which has never happened before."

There is no indigenous movement for self-rule in Macao. Its people know that China would not allow an independent state to take the place of the European colony.

Portugal and Britain, the surviving colonists, constitute no threat to Peking, and an independent Macao or Hong Kong would set a dangerous precedent for secessionists in Tibet, Taiwan and other regions.

China, moreover, still needs the $1 billion a year which it earns in and through these two anachronistic colonies.

Peking's views are expressed in Macao through Ho Yin, a businessman who is a member of the National People's Congress in Peking and chairman of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce in Macao.

Ho has made it clear that Peking's ambitions for Macao are limited, for the moment, to keeping the Chinese Nationalists and the Russians out. Since Portugal recognized the People's Republic and broke with Taiwan at the beginning of the year, there is no longer any problem about the Nationalists.

But the prospect of pro Soviet Portuguese officers being sent out from Lisbon is most alarming to Peking.

China was greatly encouraged by the Portuguese Socialists' electoral victory over the pro-Moscow Communist Party. Now the Chinese press in Macao has launched a fierce campaign against the "revisionist" Portuguese Communist Party.

Leandro has commended himself to Peking by thwarting the Portuguese Communists' efforts to put Macao on Portugal's decolonization list. Instead he has secured for it a new constitutional status as a special territory under a Portuguese administration.

Meanwhile, earlier hopes of the Portuguese Left for reforms in Macao have withered.

The grand Portuguese plans to boost Macao's economy have been set back as well by the world recession. Leandro wants Macao to become a supplementary financial center in the Hong Kong system, and to boost local manufacturing and tourism so that the subsidy from Lisbon can be done away with.

Macao was exempted from the Portuguese nationalization of banks. But the Macao currency, the pataca, has fallen away from parity with the Hong Kong dollar by 10 per cent, and a $ 6 million loan raised from the banks to support it proved ineffectual.

Hong Kong's and Macao's Chinese businessmen stand ready to invest in tourism — including a $ 20 million horse-racing complex on reclaimed land in the outer harbor — but only when prospects improve.

The recession in Japan and Hong Kong, where most of Macao's tourists come from, has cut hotel occupancy rates by 40 per cent, and the Hong Kong Government recently put a tax on travel to Macao.

Because Macao has cheaper land and labor and is less restricted in export markets, there is a tendency for Hong Kong textile and electronic manufacturers to set up there.

Levi Strauss has a four-story textile plant, and Macao has joined the exclusive club of countries "voluntarily" restraining textile exports to the United States — to 28 million square yards of fabric a year — and to the EEC. Portugal itself, as well as Sweden, now applies quotas to Macao textiles.

But until world trade picks up again, Macao's manufacturing development will have to take a rest.

Even when the recession ends, Leandro will face the same dilemma.

If he pushes economic development he must accommodate the Chinese businessmen's vested interests. This will alienate the radical young technocrats he brought out from Lisbon to help him. If they go, they can only be replaced by local Portuguese identified with the old days or by replacements from Lisbon — most of whom would be Moscow-leaning leftists.

Judge Takes Over Administering Of Boston School

BOSTON (AP) — A federal judge has taken over the administration of South Boston High, saying black students had been denied a peaceful, desegregated education. Antibus-ing leaders warned the decision could spark new troubles, and within hours the NAACP office was firebombed.

The firebombing took place early today. Fire officials said damage amounted to $500, but the NAACP put damages at $25,000. An NAACP spokesman said, "We've been getting threats all day" following the court decision, which came as a result of an NAACP motion.

U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity ordered the federal takeover Tuesday from the control of the Boston School Committee and its appointed headmaster and administrators.

The judge ruled against the NAACP's request to close the school, deciding instead on the transfer of administration. The NAACP claimed black students had been harassed and beaten by white students and denied opportunity in extracurricular activities. The school committee, five whites elected to nonpaying two-year terms, has consistently opposed busing since school integration became a possibility 10 years ago.

"South Boston High is not going to be run by the school committee. It's going to be run by the court under receivership," Garrity said.

The judge accused the committee of failing to take the steps necessary to carry out his integration orders. He said black students had been abused and discriminated against at South Boston High and denied their right to an integrated education.

Garrity named Joseph McDonough, a district school superintendent in South Boston, to take charge of the aging yellow brick school, which has been the focal point of frequent racial disruptions since integration began in September 1974.

The school has a projected enrollment of 1,280 students, 432 of them black. Most black students are bused each day from Roxbury and Dorchester. No whites are bused out of all-white South Boston.

Police escort the buses to school and stand guard in the hallways.

Garrity's original integration order for the fall of 1974 touched off numerous antibusing protests. Fighting in the school has resulted in scores of arrests and suspensions as well as some injuries.

McDonough previously was principal of the Gavin middle school in South Boston and school officials describe him as a firm, hard-working administrator generally respected by teachers. He is a brother of John J. McDonough, Boston School Committee chairman, who has opposed the court-ordered busing plan.

School committee members did not say if they planned to appeal.

Garrity ordered current administrators, including South Boston High Headmaster William Reid, transferred to other schools by the end of the month. He increased the power of Supt. Marion Fahey to appoint staff and run schools and weakened school committee control over integration throughout the 162-school system. Reaction to Garrity's assumption of control of the high school was generally negative in South Boston. Louise Day Hicks, a city councillor and an antibusing leader, said the decision

Joan Little To Keep Freedom

RALEIGH (AP)—Joan Little apparently will remain free on bond, at least until the state Supreme Court decides whether to review her breaking and entering conviction, court officials say.

Supreme Court Clerk Adrian Newton said Tuesday that Chief Justice Susie Sharp indicated has set Miss Little's bond at $15,000, the same figure it is now. Officials were unable to predict when the court will decide whether to hear the appeal.

Miss Sharp reportedly will issue an order granting Miss Little's request that her sentence not begin at least until the court decides whether to hear the case. That order is to come when the bond is set in. If the case is to be heard, Miss Little will remain free on bond until the court rules on her appeal, probably several months. Should the high court refuse to hear the appeal, Miss Little must begin serving her seven-to-10-year sentence unless the matter is appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, the next level of appeal, and she is allowed to remain free on appeals bond.

Her attorneys have said they expect the appeal to be ultimately decided in federal court.

Recently, the North Carolina Court of Appeals ruled that it found no error in the trial last year in Beaufort County in which Miss Little was convicted of breaking into mobile homes in the vicinity of Washington, N.C.

While in the Beaufort County Jail August 1974 awaiting appeal of the breaking and entering verdict when she fatally stabbed jailer Clarence Alligood in what she said was a sexual assault. She was acquitted of murder in the Alligood case last summer in a trial which attracted international attention.

Annual Hope House Event Set Sunday

Glenn W. Woodley, Executive Director of Historic Hope Foundation in Bertie County, has announced plans relative to the third annual Christmas Season Open-House to take place on Sunday at Hope House.

The event begins at 2 p.m. Sunday and will continue until 8 p.m. Admission fee, $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children, is the same as for regular tours, but on Sunday will also include a special treat of hot cider and home made ginger cookies to be served in the kitchen of the historic house.

Yuletide decorations this season will be of the same type used by occupants of the house in the early 19th century—items such as fruits and natural greenery. These decorations will remain up during the holiday season.

Woodley also announced that Hope House will be open on both Mondays between now and Christmas, December 15 and December 22. Regular visiting hours for the house are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, and 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

For groups that may plan to tour Hope House, Woodley has asked that advance notification be given so that arrangements can be made to have sufficient hostesses on hand. Numbers to call are 794-3140 or 794-4368. (This prior arrangement request does not apply to the Sunday open-house).

During the holiday season, Hope House will be closed December 24-26 and again on January 1.

Hope House, which is about 55 miles from Greenville, is located on N.C. 308 four miles west of Windsor.

Man Killed As Truck Hit Train

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — William Phillips, 39, of Lenoir, N.C., was killed and Darrell Parham, 37, of Granite Falls near Lenoir was injured Tuesday when their semitrailer truck collided with a freight train in dense fog.

The highway patrol said Parham, identified as the driver, was taken to LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City, about 80 miles south of Logan.

Trooper Justin Anderson said visibility was 100 feet and the driver apparently failed to see warning lights and flares put out to stop traffic.

He said the semi knocked over a 25-ton boxcar.

The accident occurred two miles south of Logan.

Pamphlet On Child Needs

"Do's and Don'ts for Parents of Pre-School Deaf and Hard of Hearing Children," a pamphlet published by the National Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Chicago, is now available in a new Spanish translation.

The pamphlet lists 26 positive steps for parents of deaf children to follow in understanding and helping their children, and 22 common pitfalls to avoid.

The "do's" and "don'ts" were compiled by an expert in the treatment of hearing-impaired children, Jean Utley Lehman, Ph.D., retired professor of special education at California State University, and translated into Spanish by Roland Hamilton, Ph.D., professor, department of foreign languages, San Jose State University.

The pamphlet, No. A-248, is available from the National Easter Seal Society, 2023 West Ogden Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, 60612, at 15 cents each. The English version is available at the same price.

Will Nelson Today Is 'Progressive' Leader

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Willie Nelson sings the same songs now he did 20 years ago. Then, his reputation mainly was by word-of-mouth among hard-core country fans. Now he is considered the leader of a Texas movement that is taking control of the country radio airwaves away from the bluegrass domination of Nashville and Appalachia. Willie—he refuses to let anyone call him by his last name—is the patron saint of what has become known as "progressive country," a mixture of up-tempo Texas swing and haunting but unsentimental ballads. "Up until now, people hadn't been exposed to my music," he says. "There wasn't a generation gap 20 years ago and there weren't any 43 year-old hippies running around then." One of several country singers who developed reputations in Texas before gaining recognition nationally, Willie now is one of the state's hottest items. "Just catch two Texans in a conversation sometime," says singer Brian Collins. "They'll be talking about Darrel Royal (Texas' football coach), Willie or the present governor, whoever he is."

Disillusioned after spending 11 years in Nashville, Willie moved to Austin, Tex., three years ago. He could have retired, living off the royalties from several songs he penned. Among them were Faron Young's biggest record, "Hello Walls," "Pretty Paper," "Night Life," and "Funny How Time Slips Away," a song Narvel Felts has put on the charts again recently. Having sold vacuum cleaners and Bibles door to door and worked briefly as a disc jockey, he started playing clubs in the Austin area.

"The Texas music scene isn't like Nashville at all," he says. "The geography of the place has a lot to do with it. You can work 365 clubs a year and never play the same place twice. "Nashville has the best recording studios, but none of that equipment can replace the feeling of a live audience. I think part of Nashville's problem is that the executives who make the decisions there aren't seeing how the people feel and what they want." Nelson's last three records have been "concept" albums focusing on ballads that subtly weave stories about love, lost innocence and loneliness. With simple lyrics and soft, low-key instrumentals, they rebound at the end with a philosophical acceptance of life as it is. His stage shows are the opposite. There, more than three-fourths of the songs are loud, fast and foot-stomping. "Willie's appeal is that he never plays the part of the high rolling star," says Paul English, a friend and his drummer most of the time since 1954. "They get the feeling from him that he's a real, normal person up there who is not trying to put on a show."

The club dates and then the Fourth of July picnics he began staging in 1973 have been responsible for the recent upsurge in his record sales. More than 70,000 attended last year's picnic at Liberty Hill, Tex. "It's done what I wanted it to do," he says. "It gave me exposure and it was the first time anyone had seen all types of people together listening to country music. "The cowboy was sitting next to the longhair and they looked at each other and decided they weren't scared of each other any more. The whole generation gap was mainly fear."

Willie says next year's picnic probably will be the last. "I don't want it to become the type of thing that evolves into the 80th annual Willie Nelson Fourth of July Picnic." "He says that every year," English comments, adding there will be more picnics because people will want them. "Willie's too nice, he can't say no to anyone. "He's taken advantage of all the time, but when we jump on him about it, he just says he'd rather be that way than have to deal with the hassle."

until noon. It is to be an informal type program, with students having an opportunity to talk to various representatives about advantages and disadvantages of careers in health professions, and to ask questions about a typical day's work in these jobs. The event is being held in conjunction with the Pitt County Health Department. Representatives from that agency will be Ms. Dorothy Hill, LPN; Ms. Marie Arneaux, School Health Nurse, RN; Ms. Sarah Dixon, Environmental Health; and Ms. Debra Hylemon, a Social Worker. Representatives from the Mental Health Department will be Ms. Linda Warren, a Mental Health teacher; and Ms. Gene Holmes, a psychologist. Dr. Fred Lewis will represent the School of Allied Health, East Carolina University; and the Greenville Rescue Squad will have on hand Captain D. R. Daniels and Bill Bavans.

The military government of Chile this year banned the practice and teaching of karate, judo and jujitsu.

Set Health Careers Days

A "Health Careers in '76" program is scheduled for E. B. Aycock Junior High School on Friday. The event is being coordinated by Mrs. Pam Penland, who teaches Introduction to Vocational Education at Aycock. "Health Careers in '76" will begin at 10 a.m. and continue West led a spade, but his wealth of controls were more oriented to a suit contract, so he opted for game in hearts. West led the king of clubs, and declarer saw that he had two potential losing tricks in spades and a possible loser in each minor suit. Had there been no adverse bidding, declarer might have tried to make his contract by leading toward his king of spades, hoping to find the ace with East. But West's vulnerable takeout double virtually marked him for the only missing ace. After careful study, declarer realized that he could manipulate his combined spade holding for a trick if he could find East with either the queen or jack of spades. He won the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of trumps and led a trump to the nine. Before drawing the last trump, he led a low spade off the board and inserted the eight. West took his queen of spades and queen of clubs, and continued with a third club. Declarer ruffed in dummy and led a spade to the king and ace. West did as best he could by shifting to a diamond, but it did not help. Declarer won in his hand and led a trump to the queen, drawing East's last trump. Now he led the ten of spades and ruffed away East's jack, setting up the nine. The king of diamonds was the entry to dummy, and declarer's diamond loser went away on the good spade. In all, declarer lost only two spades and a club.

The bidding:
South West North East

Opening lead: King of ♠.
The standard finesse positions have been covered fairly comprehensively in most texts on play, but not exhaustively. On this hand, declarer found a finesse which was far from obvious and brought home a touch-and-go contract. North's raise to two hearts over the takeout double receives our endorsement. If nothing else, it has some preemptive value, making it that much more difficult for the opponents to find a fit. South might have tried three no trump, which would have been an unfortunate choice unless Six things you can't find in a paper bag.

(But you can find) at Bonanza.

- 1. Steaks
Bonanza steaks come with baked potatoes, salads and Texas Toast. If you're used to hamburger stands where everything comes in a paper bag, you're in for a real treat at Bonanza.
- 2. Salads
Crisp and fresh, with your choice of dressings and all the delicious little extras like Baco Bits and croutons.
- 3. Great Desserts
Super-creamy cheesecake, strawberry shortcake, cream pies, fruit pies, bread pudding, chocolate pudding, tapioca pudding, chocolate mousse, and jello.
- 4. A Real Dining Room
With hefty furniture, carpets on the floors, plus great service. (And listen! It doesn't sound like a school cafeteria.)
- 5. Free Refills on Soft Drinks
What? Free refills on soft drinks? Yup. Free refills on soft drinks.
- 6. Freedom
No silly little packets to limit how much salt, pepper, ketchup or steak sauce you use. At Bonanza you help yourself, just like at home.

How Tar Heel Senators, Representatives Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Dec. 1, when the Thanksgiving recess ended, through Dec. 3.

House
NEW YORK AID—Passed, 213 for and 203 against, an Administration-backed bill (HR 10481) authorizing short-term federal loans to aid financially-stricken New York City. Through fiscal 1978, New York could borrow up to $2.3 billion per year, to be repaid within the same fiscal year. Any failure to repay would permit the federal government to withhold other appropriations such as revenue-sharing funds. HR 10481 was sent to the Senate.

Supporters said the bill is likely to keep New York from going bankrupt, a predicament that would reverberate harmfully throughout the nation and, in the long run, prove costlier to the federal treasury. On the theory that "half a loan is better than none," Rep. Henry Ruess (D-Wis.) urged acceptance of what he considered to be a "stopgap" measure. However, he added that the staggering problems of New York and other cities "will come back to haunt us."

Opponents generally feared that HR 10481 would set a harmful and possibly unconstitutional precedent of federal aid to cities. Rep. Richard Ichord (D-Mo.) contended that the complexity of New York's fiscal woes is such that "there is no way of accurately predicting the consequences of either a loan or a (loan) guarantee, or a default and ensuing bankruptcy proceedings." He said that this uncertainty dictates allowing "New York state and the city government to straighten out their own financial affairs."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6) Charles Rose (D-7), W.G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9),

Provide 24-Hour Student Service

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The University of Texas provides students a 24-hour counseling and resource information service.

Students can call at any time of the day or night and talk to a telephone counselor or listen to self-help tapes dealing with a variety of day-to-day problems. The tape recordings are five to eight minutes long.

James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay."
Rep. David Henderson (D-3) answered "present."

TAX REFORM—Voted, 219 for and 197 against, to prevent unlimited floor amendment of a major tax reform bill (HR 10612) which plugs loopholes and extends through next year the 1975 corporate and individual income tax cuts. The vote thus prevented introduction of several amendments, including a GOP-backed measure tying the income tax reductions to a $395 billion ceiling on federal spending during fiscal 1977. HR 10612 was headed for passage and consideration by the Senate.

The bill's major reform provisions would, in part: curb the use of tax shelters; restrict benefits gained through "artificial" investment losses; raise the minimum tax paid by the wealthy; limit write-offs taken for working at home and for second or vacation homes; toughen tax treatment of foreign subsidiaries of U.S. companies, and restructure the taxes for capital gains and losses.

Supporters said that opening HR 10612 to unlimited floor amendment—including the controversial GOP spending ceiling—would slow action on the bill, and interfere with the Budget Committee's jurisdiction over aggregate spending ceilings.

Opponents criticized the inclusion of the tax cut provision in a tax reform measure. They said HR 10612 was sure to be vetoed unless it contained a binding ceiling on fiscal 1977 spending to offset the tax reductions.

Neal, Preyer and Rose voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

ART INSURANCE—Passed, 253 for and 116 against, a bill (S 1800) authorizing the federal government to insure exhibits of art objects and other artifacts. It applies to foreign exhibitions in the U.S. and U.S. exhibitions abroad. Exhibits "in the national interest" would be eligible, as determined by the Secretary of State and the Federal Council on the Arts and Humanities. S 1800 was sent to the Senate.

S 1800 would supplant Congress' present practice of passing ad hoc insurance measures on an exhibition-by-exhibition basis. It authorizes up to $50 million per exhibit. Private insurance is expected to pick up at that point.

One supporter, Rep. John Brademas (D-Ind.), said that although international exhibitions are rarely damaged, private insurance generally can be afforded by only the largest U.S. museums. He said S 1800 would thus allow the nation's smaller museums to host foreign exhibits.

Opponents criticized S 1800 as a "backdoor" measure because it could result in federal spending outside of ordinary budget and appropriation channels.

Rep. Robert Bauman (R-Md.) called it "a sort of 'Federal No-Fault Insurance Corporation' for foreign exhibitions."

Jones, Henderson, Preyer, Rose and Hefner voted "yea." Fountain, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

Andrews and Neal did not vote.

Senate
BEEF—Passed, 47 for and 36 against, a bill (HR 7656) providing the legal framework for U.S. beef producers to organize a "beef board" to promote beef consumption. The beef industry sought such federal aid after its private efforts to organize failed.

HR 7656 would authorize a referendum among beef producers on whether to create the board. A positive vote would lead to creation of a 68-member board, three-fourths of which would be producers and one-fourth consumers. The board would be supervised by the Secretary of Agriculture, and would be funded privately by assessments on beef and dairy producers. HR 7656 was sent to conference with the House.

Supporters generally praised the measure as "self-help" aid to the hard-pressed cattle producers, who say they continue to receive low prices despite the high prices paid by consumers in supermarkets. Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kan.) cited other "commodity research and promotion acts" adopted by Congress—such as those for cotton, wool, potatoes and eggs—as precedents for the beef panel.

One opponent, Sen. James Abourezk (D-S.D.), said: "Television commercials and fancy ads hanging in stores do not put money in the pockets of beef producers, and they do not do anything about the interest of consumers in price or about their limited spending power."

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

NEW YORK AID—Tabled, 57 for and 23 against, a motion to refer the New York aid bill (HR 10481, above) to the Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs. Tabling the motion cleared the way for direct action by the full Senate. The House had cleared the bill a day before this vote.

Supporters generally favored the bill to loan New York up to $2.3 billion annually in federal money so the city can avert default. They said sending it to committee would prove fatal by New York because, as Sen. William Proxmire put it, "... If this measure does not become law by Dec. 11 or a day or two after that, no legislation will help to prevent a bankruptcy of New York."

One opponent, Sen. Harry Byrd (I-Va.), complained that senators did not have copies of the bill, and that there was a dearth of information on the extent to which taxpayers would be helping the powerful New York banks, which would suffer in a bankruptcy. "I just cannot see the need for all this secrecy," said Byrd.

Helms and Morgan voted "nay."

See Wildlife Habitats Hurt

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The quality of life for the state's wildlife is deteriorating daily, according to the Missouri Conservation Commission.

Conservation officials said wildlife habitats in the state are destroyed or altered daily.

Bemused By Lover Image

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — No matter what the topic of conversation with Marcello Mastroianni, the subject always centers around love.

"The idea of my being a great lover was invented in America. I am not a lover. I work too hard," said the Italian actor who came to fame 15 years ago as the star of "La Dolce Vita."

"But women are still the most important thing for me in life. They are much more important than success or money," said Mastroianni.

He then coyly declined to discuss his much publicized liaisons with Catherine Deneuve, with whom he has a child, and actress Fay Dunaway. He has been married for 25 years to an Italian actress.

"I like romance that is filled with excitement and danger," Mastroianni explained, picking the tobacco of a strong, filterless cigarette from his lips. "If everything is easy, you run the risk of being impotent. I like to be involved in a game."

Mastroianni is 51-years old and not happy about it. "I hate physical destruction. Why does it all have to go? If they can find a way to put men on the moon, why can't they invent something to keep us young?" he asked with only a hint of a smile.

He was elegantly dressed in a confetti-colored tweed suit with a purple mum in his lapel. (He plucked the flower from the dining table centerpiece.) Mastroianni drew stares and stifled shrieks from the crowds on the streets when recently in New York publicizing his latest movie, "Down the Ancient Stairs."

But there is a certain fadedness about him, albeit a charming one. There is, after all, a new Italian star who is being hailed as the Marcello Mastroianni of the '70s. Mastroianni's last few films have not been critically well-received. And his off-hand remarks delivered in difficult English are rueful and self-effacing.

"I have to do these tours every few years just to remind the audience that I am still alive... No, I have never made a film in Hollywood. Before I couldn't speak English and Hollywood was nothing. All the great, interesting films were being made in Europe. Now, Hollywood is very interesting and no one calls me anymore. I am old-fashioned."

"What a cliché that I am a lover. If it works at all, it is a miracle," Mastroianni said while his publicity woman hastened to whisper sotto voce: "Oh, he's always joking like that."

"Why do Americans talk so much?" he asked with a resigned sigh. "Always you want to discuss, talk philosophy, analyze. It is dangerous for lovers to talk too much. One always ends up saying something stupid. It's best if lovers don't speak the same language. ... It is pure and full of fantasy and better that way."

Mastroianni said he was always getting into trouble with his comments about love and women.

Tips On Giving A Pet To Child

If you are planning to give your child a pet for Christmas the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) has a few suggestions that can make the gift a joy for the entire family.

Select a pet that will fit into your family's lifestyle. Decide what size pet you can accommodate in your house or apartment allowing enough room for the animal to sleep, eat, play and exercise.

Exotic animals such as monkeys, skunks, jungle cats and certain reptiles rarely make good pets. They can be expensive, difficult to care for and very dangerous. Their behavior in the home is often unpredictable.

Pets cost money. Be prepared for the day-to-day expenses of food, health care and other essentials. "Free" pets from animal shelters also involve some expense. Any animal you bring into your home should be vaccinated against infectious diseases. Depending upon local laws, your pet may also require a license.

Good health depends on regular medical attention, proper nutrition, and correct treatment and handling. A veterinarian should give your pet regular health checkups. Be sure family members do not mistreat the pet. Very young children may unknowingly injure a young animal, often by "over loving" it.

Have your dog or cat surgically neutered as soon as your veterinarian says the animal is ready. Neutering helps prevent certain health problems, and usually makes pets less likely to roam or "spot" carpets and furniture.

Careful selection, proper planning and responsible care can make pet ownership a wonderful experience for the whole family.

COAL EXPORTS

CARACAS (UPI) — Venezuela, the world's third largest oil exporter, has signed its first agreement for the export of coal.

A West German company has agreed to market 1.5 million tons of Venezuelan coal in the next two years.

Television In France Relies On Old Imports

By ELIAS ANTAR
 Associated Press Writer
 PARIS (AP) — Every Wednesday evening 11 million Frenchmen switch on the tube to watch four-year-old episodes of Mannix, which along with movies and Peyton Place are the current favorites on prime time French television.

The pull of the oldies, many of them U.S. imports, is inexplicable to officials here.

"The success of Mannix is crazy," said Daniel Martinet, of the Center for the Study of Opinion which compiles TV ratings. "People like it more than anything else except films and the news. As for Peyton Place, we're probably the last country in the world to see it, and yet it's climbing rapidly."

The state broadcasting monopoly known as the "ORTF", created by the Gaullists in 1964, was dissolved by the new regime of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing at the end of 1974. It had been plagued by strikes and political interference, and its financial affairs were in such a mess no one could pin down the deficit.

It was replaced by three TV companies and one radio organization, all supposedly financially independent but all still owned by the state. The idea was to free French television from political domination by the government and improve its quality all round.

Government spokesman Andrew Rossi said recently, "The reform of the (broadcasting system) is perhaps the most important one affecting political mores in the past 30 years." But the politicians are still grumbling, and a recent poll showed that half the viewers felt nothing has changed from the days of the ORTF.

An hour of Mannix costs $7-100 to air, including French dubbing. It consistently is watched by twice as many people as an hour of French drama, which officials said costs $114,000.

The system is financed from viewing fees of $32 a year for a black-and-white set and $48 a year for color, plus income from advertising.

Pro- and anti-government forces in the National Assembly recently refused to approve the broadcasting budget for 1976, essentially because each claimed the other was getting more air time. A second debate is scheduled.

There have been innovations since television was decentralized. The Communist and Socialist opposition now gets in the news, with seven hours of combined air time in the first half of the year against nine hours for the president, the premier and their supporters.

There was a successful late night variety program from the top of an alp, and debates on homosexuality. The third channel, which shows the most movies, has broadened its scope to show total nudity "where artistically valid" and will continue doing so despite some protest letters.

Poor Season Of Good Will

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON, Nov. (UPI) — Christmas is coming to London but not the season of good will to all men.

Holiday decorations are going up on the big shopping streets but chicken wire and other protection against the shattering of plate glass windows by terrorist bombs is being put into place even faster.

Just back from home leave in the United States, I find a marked change in the mood and appearance of the city I left basking in Indian summer only a month ago. Four bombings of popular restaurants with weapons deliberately designed to kill and maim ordinary people — and delivered without warning — are one big reason for the change.

Another is that the recession is still biting very hard and is finally being seen to bite. A tour of the West End Kensington-Chelsea area — the heart of the capital — passes empty shops and restaurants like so many broken teeth. One of the highest inflation rates in the western world — nearly 26 per cent — has driven down the indexes of prosperity.

One index is soaring — bankruptcies. Prof. Glyn Davies of the University of Wales cheered nobody when he announced that there has been nothing like it since before the great depression of the 1930s. Last year, he said, there were 5,606 bankruptcies against the previous record of 5,008 in 1923.

And at the present rate this year's may jump to 7,500.

The business bad news worries Britons but not unduly. There is a general belief that all will be well when the North Sea oil fields come into full production in the next two or three years and Britain happily faces the problem of the Arab states — what to do with vast treasury surpluses.

It may never happen but that is the national dream of the future.

The grim reality of the present is the belief of Scotland Yard that Irish gangs have plans for a deadly escalation of the bombing attacks here. The evidence is the seizure of 400 pounds of gelignite in an apartment in Southampton. It is probably not the only cache and one newspaper claims terrorist sources are speaking of a bomb-a-week offensive soon.

So a small army of security men has made its appearance in hotel and apartment lobbies, in restaurants and in public buildings.

There are warnings everywhere: "Do not leave parcels unattended or they will be taken away." My apartment house sent around a notice that rubbish collectors would not touch any box or package. These have to be handed to them personally.

Scott's, one of the restaurants bombed with one dead and 15 injured, has covered its street windows with chicken wire. Many other places are using a plastic laminate which pastes over the window and keeps the glass from splintering. A half-page advertisement in the Evening News under the headline: "Flying Glass Can Kill" urged the use of "shatter-resistant film" on domestic windows as well.

Londoners are becoming accustomed to having handbags and parcels examined — cursorily in some places, thoroughly in others such as the Hilton Hotel which had a bombing in the summer. Ernest Joyce, a spokesman for the Securicor Organization which provides guards to industry said they had some of their men in factories and elsewhere but not as many as one might expect.

"We think its still small scale," he said. "Though many premises, of course, might be taking care of their own security."

Some of London's leading restaurateurs met in the basement of the famous Ecu de France Restaurant the day after a bomb killed two diners and injured 15 others at the exclusive Walton's Restaurant last Tuesday, and were reported to have put up a reward — the figure of $21,000 was mentioned — for information leading to the conviction of the bombers.

They said they would also join government buildings, royal homes, embassies (including the U.S. Embassy) and hundreds of pubs in taking defensive action such as chicken wire or laminate and security checks.

Most Londoners claim the bombings do not deter them from visiting theaters or restaurants but tourists have been staying away, to the detriment of the balance of payments. The producers of two West End hits, Kennedy's Children (which recently opened in New York) and Tarantara Tarantara, announced Wednesday that the closing of the shows because of the recession and bomb scares.

If the bombers are really aiming at restaurants where the well-to-do and famous congregate then certain places better unnamed are obviously more likely to be targets than others. But I've been to most of these since my return and they are packed.

"We've never done better business," said one manager. "But our people don't scare easily. Most of them came through the wartime air raids. What Hitler couldn't do with thousands of tons of high explosives on the city during the war I don't think they're going to be able to do with an occasional bomb."

Not even a bomb packed with ball-bearings so small they can tear through the intestines and set up a fatal infection if the examining surgeon misses the tiny — and often painless — tear.

A Christmas Traditionalist

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Washington was a traditionalist about Christmas. Fox-hunting and feasting were popular. The menu for one of the Washington's Christmas celebrations featured hams from their own smokehouse, oysters from near-by waters, enormous spit-roasted cuts of beef and pork, jams, jellies and condiments, punch, rich, cream-filled desserts and thick pies, says the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

ROOKIE GUARDS

VIENNA (UPI) — Police rookies guard major school crossings in Vienna. They volunteered for the assignment, which is part of a plan by Mayor Leopold Gratz to improve safety for everyone in the Austrian capital.

Seek Riches Of Mongolia

By DAVID LASCELLES (UPI—Financial Times)
ULAN BATOR — Mongolia, one of the loneliest and emptiest countries in the world, could one day be an important raw materials producer.

Officials of Comecon, the East European economic grouping to which Moscow-aligned Mongolia belongs, believe that its rolling steppeland conceals a rich range of minerals. This enormous, uncharted country is known to possess the largest copper deposit in Asia. Comecon therefore decided at its summit meeting this summer to organize a major geological expedition and find out what else Mongolia has.

Work will start next year and take several years, but officials have said that some projects could be started during the 1980-85 planning period.

The large copper deposit at Erdenet, halfway between the capital city of Ulan Bator and the Soviet border is the only major project on which work is known to have started.

Legend had it that when Erdenet released its riches Mongolia would achieve happiness. In 1973 the Soviet Government offered to develop the site in return for 49 per cent of the production. The Mongolians accepted the deal to boost their industrialization drive.

The Mongolian share itself was mostly financed by Soviet credits, so almost all the backing for Erdenet is Russian.

Now the Erdenet site has been opened up with a road and a railway, and part of the processing plant and accommodation has been completed.

Production will start in 1978, but there are still no figures for total reserves or planned output. The only thing that seems certain is that the copper will be sold to Comecon and not to world markets.

Erdenet is expected to be typical of the way other projects will be developed. Since the Mongolians do not have the necessary finance, equipment or expertise, these will all have to come from Comecon.

The East Germans, who are already active in the country building factories and housing, recently reported useful details on other Mongolian resources.

Perhaps the most dramatic is the discovery of gold at two sites in the north of the country. There was an unconfirmed report of uranium, and deposits of tin, wolfram and molybdenum have been located. Non-metallic minerals include phosphorites, china clay, fluor-spar and gypsum.

In the energy field, the only major discoveries have been of coal — but these have been significant. Some 15 coal seams have been located including 10 billion tons of coking coal which, combined with Mongolia's significant iron ore deposits, creates the basis for an iron and steel industry.

A major obstacle to Comecon's plans for Mongolia is its remoteness from industrial centers which could make use of these materials. The Soviet Union has few factories within 600 miles of the border and the other Comecon countries are nearly 3,000 miles away.

The handiest customer for Mongolian minerals, China, is not politically acceptable.

There is, however, a railway linking Mongolia to the Soviet Union, and therefore to the rest of Comecon. Development plans include heavy investment in infrastructure and communications.

Landlocked Mongolia has no seaborne trade. But a fair volume of goods is transported to the Soviet Union via Siberia's large lakes and rivers.

Where Mongolia looks like departing from Comecon practice is on the question of Western participation. The other countries including the Soviet Union have keenly sought Western aid and technology for their development. But there is no sign of this happening in Mongolia.

Businessmen visiting Ulan Bator have detected little or no interest in what they have to offer. Erdenet has conspicuously gone ahead without Western aid even though the Russians are negotiating with several Western companies over their own copper deposits in Siberia.

This is partly due to Mongolia's ignorance of modern trade practice. But Western observers also suspect that Comecon is jealously guarding Mongolia for itself, for several reasons.

First, it is in no hurry to develop Mongolia and will probably pass on Western technology at second hand after using it on other projects. Second, Mongolia has clearly been earmarked as a Comecon treasure house, and any Western participation would have to be repaid with a share in the returns. Finally, Mongolia's crucial location between China and Russia makes strong Western interest undesirable.

So despite the undoubted wealth of Mongolia, little of it is likely to find its way on to world markets.

Indiana Town Is Rich In Firsts

NEW HARMONY, Ind. (AP) — For a place whose population has never exceeded 1,000, this river town has an impressive list of contributions to American history.

Among other things, the 180-year-old town boasts the nation's first kindergarten, first trade school, first free coed public school system, first women's club, first free library and the site of the nation's first geological survey.

New Harmony currently is a sleepy little town along the banks of the Wabash River which seemingly belies its vigorous beginnings.

New Harmonites, however, hope to renovate that historic vitality during an $18-million effort currently under way to emphasize the town's history and contributions to the nation.

"I've seen the whole New Harmony story," said Helen Elliot, "from the time when we were sinking almost to oblivion. After the coming of automobiles, the business life died on the vine. I've hoped for better days and I think they've come. We're concentrating now on a living memorial."

The restoration is jointly funded by the State of Indiana, private philanthropists, and foundations.

If the town changes its character, it will be nothing new.

The town was founded in 1814 as Harmonie by a group of German Lutheran separatists led by a man known as Father Rapp.

The Harmonists, who never exceeded 920, believed that the second coming of Christ would occur within their lifetime. They were celibate, lived under a harsh regime of work and self denial, and subordinated themselves to the command of Father Rapp.

As other-worldly as they were in religion, they were very prosperous in business. They were also fine builders and many of their homes, simplistic in their architecture, are being restored.

In 1825, the Harmonites relocated to a new community in Pennsylvania called Economy, where the sect finally died out in 1906.

The Indiana community was sold to a different type of utopian visionary — Robert Owen, who named it New Harmony. Owen, a Welsh industrialist, believed that religion was an impediment to true happiness and that the key to happiness was education.

While Owen's community had a bumper crop of ideas, its fields withered and within two years Owen had to return to England.

The town continued as a center for experiments for many years before it gradually declined.

The seed for the current full-scale restoration germinated in the 1940s when a descendent of Robert Owen, Jane Owen of Texas, began buying old buildings and restoring them.

"I did this work because I couldn't help it," Mrs. Owen said. "It's an important part of American history and just couldn't go down the Wabash."

"There's an aura," she said of the town. "My emotions and my mind never really came together until I visited New Harmony. 'Long live small towns.'"
