Deaths, Injuries, Smashed Dikes Reported

Severe Windstorm Hits West Europe

By JOHN JONES

LONDON (UPI) — Hurricane-force winds gusting over 100 miles an hour battered Western Europe Saturday, killing a score of Britons, smashing dikes in West Germany and driving 20,000 persons from their homes in Denmark.

At least 34 persons died in the storm, 25 of them in Britain.

At the height of the storm, the roof of an orphanage dormitory collapsed in the English Midlands town of Leamington Spa, narrowly missing 10 sleeping children.

In addition to the deaths in Britain, five persons were reported killed in West Germany, two in the Netherlands and one each in France and Belgium.

Several motorists died when cars struck fallen trees. One couple died when gusts overturned their trailer and others were killed in roof collapses.

In West Germany, wind-whipped seas punched through dikes protecting low-lying farmlands and off-shore islands in the north. Officials reported five persons killed in what they said was the worst storm in 14 years.

In the Netherlands, a 67-year-old woman was killed by a savage gust that hammered her against the wall of her Numansdorp home as she stood on a balcony.

In Armantieres, France, a 66-year-old man died of fright at the height of the storm. Police said Marc Duval suffered a heart attack when electrical cables toppled outside his home and burst into flames.

The storm struck Britain late Friday night and early Saturday. It moved into Scandinavia and across Western Europe as far south as Austria, leaving a trail of roofless houses, uprooted trees and downed power lines.

Winds of up to 105 miles an hour whipped across Britain. In Holland, they were clocked at up to 80 miles an hour. Winds ripped across West Germany at up to 75 miles an hour.

Officials in the southern Denmark towns of Tonder and Ribe, worried about the possibility of severe floods, evacuated some 20,000 persons from their homes until the threat passed.

The storm paralyzed shipping, sinking commercial and pleasure boats at moorings along the French coast and forcing officials to suspend English Channel ferry crossings.

At the world's busiest port, Rotterdam, the 19,000-ton freighter Nopalsel broke loose from its moorings and seamen used 12 trucks with steel cables to keep it from crashing into the port's main bridge.

The 72,350-ton Italian tanker Brasilia ran adrift and blocked the exit from the port of Amsterdam for eight hours. In a pasture at Schoorl, 50 miles north of the Hague, a windmill collapsed when gusts sent its blades spinning wildly.

Ford Signs Proclamation

Lifts Imported Oil Tariff

By RICHARD LERNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford signed a proclamation Saturday to lift the $2-a-barrel tariff on imported crude oil that he imposed last year, saying the extra fee no longer was needed for national security because of the new energy conservation bill.

Ford's action was retroactive to Dec. 22, the date he signed the energy bill, and he said its provisions — designed to lower U.S. consumption by allowing domestic prices to rise over 40 months — would have the same effect as the tariff.

Ford laid on fees of $1 a barrel in February and June as a double-edged effort to discourage oil imports and to pressure Congress to pass a national energy program. A smaller levy on foreign petroleum products was lifted earlier and he had promised to remove the tariff on crude oil if he got an acceptable energy bill from Congress.

The lifting of the tariff and his signing of three other bills were announced as Ford began what was expected to be a quiet weekend at the White House before his first out-of-town trip in 1976 — to St. Louis on Monday to address the National Farm Bureau convention and meet with regional news media executives.

Ford conferred Saturday with aides on a variety of subjects, and took time out to discuss foreign policy with two NBC reporters for a program to be telecast Monday evening.

In his proclamation, Ford said he ordered the tariff on foreign crude oil because it and related products "were being imported in such quantities and under such circumstances as to threaten to impair the national security."

The new energy bill would "reduce the vulnerability of the United States to interruptions in the importation of petroleum," he said.

Because Ford's plans were announced when he signed the bill, the proclamation was largely a formality, and in it he said he would retain the "base fees" imposed on imported oil in 1973 by President Nixon to replace a quota program.

The new bill also includes authority for emergency gasoline rationing, sets gasoline mileage standards for automobiles and contains conservation initiatives in government and industry.

Ford Says United States Not Training Mercenaries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Saturday, "The United States is not training foreign mercenaries" to back pro-Western factions in Angola's civil war but is spending money "in trying to be helpful" against Soviet-backed forces there.

Ford also left open a possibility American money is used to train foreign mercenaries: "We are working with other countries that feel they have an interest in giving the Angolans an opportunity to make the decision for themselves and I think that is a proper responsibility of the federal government."

But the President gave no firm details when questioned about Angola in an interview that will be televised Monday night during an NBC program on foreign policy.

Ford also predicted that "in time, the American people will support what we have been trying to do in Angola" and "it would be very unwise for a president ... to abandon detente" merely because of the military aid the Soviet Union has been providing for guerrilla forces in the West African nation.

Moreover, Ford said, "If the American people will take a good calculated look at the benefits from detente, I think they will support it rather than oppose it, and politically I think any candidate who says (to) abandon detente will be the loser in the long run."

But Ford repeated his belief Soviet and Cuban involvement in Angola were not healthy for detente and he gave no indication a solution was near, despite an article Saturday by Tass, the Soviet news agency, calling for withdrawal of all major powers.

"I don't believe we can say categorically that is their intention," Ford said. "We are simply working with them (the Russians) because a continuation of that confrontation is destabilizing."

Ford was asked if he had any private communications from the Kremlin to relate to the article. "We are working with all powers, including the Soviet Union" to try to end the conflict in Angola, he said.

Although Ford shed little new light on the U.S. role in Angola, he went a step further than his press secretary, Ron Nessen, who denied a report Friday that Americans were being recruited to fight there but would not say if Washington was recruiting foreign mercenaries.

Ford said, "We do expend some federal funds ... in trying to be helpful, but we are not training foreign mercenaries."

The Senate voted last month to stop all U.S. spending for military aid in Angola and Ford denounced the action then. But he said Saturday that the vote "may at this time" reflect the will of the majority of citizens because "I don't believe that enough Americans understand the great responsibilities we have" as a nation.

"What we really want ... in Angola is to get an African solution to an African problem and through bilateral negotiations, through working with the Organization of African Unity, through relations with the Soviet Union and others, we are trying to achieve that," he said.

50 Vehicle Pile-up

By United Press International

A truck trying to avoid two disabled cars skidded across the ice-slick highway, triggering a pile-up of more than 50 vehicles on Interstate 81 near Syracuse, N.Y.

Fortunately, no one was killed in the mass accident Friday night, biggest of the four-day New Year's holiday period. But 65 persons were treated for injuries including one man who lost a leg. Police said they had to tow 52 cars away.

The National Safety Council predicted between 350 and 400 persons would die during the holiday period from 6 p.m. Wednesday through midnight Sunday. Fatalities were running about even with the NSC forecast at the end of the first 60 hours of the 102-hour weekend.

A United Press International count at 6:30 p.m. EST showed that at least 277 persons had been killed in traffic accidents.

The breakdown:

Traffic	277
Fire	76
Planes	3
Others	25
Total	380

California led in traffic deaths with 26, followed by Florida with 23, Texas 19, Michigan 16 and Illinois and Indiana with 12.

Trial Begins Monday

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (UPI) — The trial of three persons charged with armed robbery and the slaying of a North Carolina Highway Patrolman here in September begins Monday in Martin County Superior Court.

A Chowan County jury will try Frankie Jerome Squire, 24, of Roanoke Rapids, Joseph Seaborn, 21, of Weldon and Faye Beatrice Brown, 22, of Garysburg.

The three are charged with robbing the Branch Banking and Trust Co. of Jamesville on Sept. 2 and the shotgun slaying of Trooper Guy Thomas Davis Jr. in their getaway attempt.

Davis, a 28-year veteran of the force, was gunned down when he stopped a car in Williamston shortly after the bank robbery.

$5.7 Million FCX Refund

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Farmers in both Carolinas have received a record refund of $5.7 million from FCX, Inc., a two-state agricultural cooperative, officials of the group announced Saturday.

The rebates went to 35,232 farmers in the two states, said Marvin McClam, president and general manager of the group.

McClam said the return was the largest in the history of the organization and was computed on a rate of return of 6.8914 per cent on member purchases from July 1, 1974 through June 30, 1975.

Vaccine For Alcoholism?

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A pill or a vaccine to prevent alcoholism may be close at hand, according to scientists at the Center for Alcohol Studies of the University of North Carolina.

Researchers say they have gathered evidence in the past year that a biochemical problem causes alcoholism.

Sheriffs Meeting Set

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Legislative proposals to "combat a premissive society and a growing laxness in the judicial system" will be discussed Jan. 9 at a special meeting for sheriffs from eastern North Carolina.

Cumberland County Sheriff O. F. Jones said 58 sheriffs had been invited. He said that the meeting is a result of increasing crime rates and an apparent growing laxity of the courts.

Privette To Assess Chances

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP)— The Rev. Coy Privette, North Carolina dry leader, will send out 10,000 letters next week to assess his chances for seeking Republican nomination for governor.

Privette, 42, pastor of the North Kannapolis Baptist Church, stepped down last year after five years as president of the Christian Action League. He became known statewide for his opposition to sale of mixed drinks, and to pornography and message parlors. Opposition of the league was a significant force in the defeat a state mixed drinks referendum in 1973.

Confidential Interviews

RALEIGH (AP) — State representatives assigned to investigate reports of low morale and political interference in the Highway Patrol are being asked to interview troopers confidentially in their home areas.

Rep. Ed Holmes of Pittsboro says he wants members of his committee to meet one-on-one with troopers in their districts before the first meeting of the committee next Tuesday. It is the Professional Law Enforcement Personnel and Practice Committee.

$50 Million USSR Bribe

LONDON (AP) — The Russians paid a $50-million bride to a West African leader to recognize the Communist-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, British liberal leader Jeremy Thorpe charged today.

Speaking in a New Year's message to his supporters Thorpe, a member of the House of Commons, said his source for the report was "a senior figure involved in the transaction" and "impeccable."

Thorpe said his source also gave the details to the British Foreign Office and they also were passed on to three African leaders "to raise it if they want to" at next week's meeting of the Organization of African Unity in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. Thorpe said he spent four or five days going into the details.

A Foreign Office spokesman said today, "I am afraid we know nothing about this."

Lectures, Equipment Featured In Tobacco Day

By JAMES KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer

Around 150 area tobacco farmers viewed displays of tobacco equipment and listened to tobacco experts from North Carolina State University (NCSU) and the Agricultural Extension Agency (AES) Friday at Tobacco Day held at the Farm Bureau.

AES agent Ken Bateman directed the program, which covered all aspects of tobacco production, and told the farmers the program was designed to "present helpful hints to help you have a more productive year in 1976 than you had in 1975."

Recapping 1975, Bateman said there was a shortage of tobacco plants for transplanting, the weather was wet and then dry and "a lot of us were just a little bit disappointed in the market."

He said the market had changed from a seller's market in 1974 to a buyer's market in 1975 and it will probably be a buyers market again this year.

"Quality and efficiency," Bateman said, are two key words to a successful 1976 season.

The first section of the program dealt with plant bed management. Dr. W. A. Collins tobacco specialist from NCSU advised farmers to have their own plant beds. "I believe you are taking an undue risk — a real risk — to depend on someone else for your plants," Collins said, "when you can grow them for the same price right here."

Collins presented a "recipe" for growing plants under a perforated plastic cover, the type of cover he recommends.

Plant pathologist F.A. Todd from NCSU told the farmers that a shortage of bed plants, as was experienced last year, can facilitate disease by farmers having to go over a plant bed many times or having to bring in plants from far away.

He advised farmers to check beds frequently — every day — for disease. He presented plans to prevent or treat several tobacco diseases.

Bateman talked about fertilization and the use of herbicides. He said farmers in this area "might not be as efficient using fertilizer as we should be. We probably use twice as much phosphorous and potash as we need." He told about different herbicides, noting that increased mechinization has made herbicide use more important.

Following a short break, Collins talked about prolonging the harvest period, a practice he said is just the opposite from a few years ago, when farmers were anxious to finish harvesting quickly.

Collins said there are different ways to prolong the harvest period and the one best way has not been determined. But, he said, prolonging the harvest period is important because it lets the farmer get the most use out of his most expensive piece of equipment, the bulk curing barn.

Collins said this creates management, disease and other problems, but they can be overcome to the profit of the farmer. He cited the case of one farmer who cured 90 acres of tobacco with five bulk barns by prolonging his harvest period.

Moving to the curing procedure, Collins said, "The most important thing about curing tobacco is growing it right." He presented a formula for curing designed to save fuel consumption and to simplify curing.

Todd then told the group how to prevent disease by designing a disease-control program to fight their particular disease problem. He said disease losses in 1975 were $9 million more than the previous year and "right much of the increase is due to actual increase in disease," not just price increases.

Bateman told the group that early topping is "a real key to maximizing production" and also advised the farmers on sucker control.

Awards were given for participation in the Extension Research On Wheels program and the On-farm Testing program. The speakers also made requests for on-farm sights that can be used for testing in the coming year.

Approved By Convener Group

A 47-Member Panel

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The convener group appointed last month by Gov. James Holshouser to establish a board for the Health Service Agency in area six met here Friday night, rescinded action taken at a December 17 meeting setting a 30-member board, then approved a 47 member panel to be named primarily by county commissioners and the lead regional organizations (LRO) within the 29-county area.

The agency, when established, will serve as the chief planning and coordinating agency for the development of health services — facilities and programs — in the area which stretches from Elizabeth City to Jacksonville and from Rocky Mount and Wilson and Goldsboro to the coast.

Friday's action by the convener group was considered a compromise between its earlier decision to form a 30-member HSA board and action taken by an earlier convener group dismissed in late November by Holshouser, after planning to form a 66-member board for the health agency.

State guidelines had recommended a 30 to 45 member governing panel.

First action by the conveners last was to vote to rescind their earlier decision to form the 30-member board from one appointee from each of the 29 counties and one representative of the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

Following a lengthy discussion period, the conveners voted unanimously to establish a 47 member HSA governing body.

Then, after another period of duscussion, the conveners approved the method of appointment of the 47 persons to the HSA. Each of the 29 counties in the area will name one member to the board. The other 18 members will include one representative from the ECU School of Medicine; a representative of Blue Cross-Blue Shield—the major health insurer in the 29 counties—who resides in area; and 16 persons appointed by the LROs, based on population.

By population, the LROs allocation would include three from State Planning Region Q — the Mid-East Commission are — while seven would come from Region P. Four persons would be named by the LRO in Region L while two persons would come from Region R.

The conveners urged that county commissioners and LRO boards in the area hold public hearings before making their appointments to the HSA board.

Once the HSA board is named, the convener group will go out of existence.

Two Wrecks Friday

Two wrecks investigated by Greenville Police Friday resulted in an estimated $775 in total damages and one driver being charged, according to police reports.

A Friday morning wreck at the intersection of N. Sylvan Road and May Street involved cars driven by Rebecca Mobley Brown of 207 N. Sylvan Dr. and Steve Preston Vick of Rt. 3, Box 108. No charges were made in the wreck which caused an estimated $150 damage to the Brown vehicle and $200 damage to the Vick auto.

Cars driven by Douglas John Nicol of 206 Westwood and Charlie Winstead Whaley of 2710 Shawnee Pl. collided Friday afternoon on Pine Street near the Memorial Drive intersection. Nicol was charged with driving without an operator's license and failing to keep a proper lookout. Damage was estimated at $375 to the Whaley car and $50 to the Nicol car, according to police reports.

Man Drowns

CLOVER, S.C. (UPI) — A Gastonia, N.C. man drowned and his brother and a friend were injured Saturday in a boating accident on Lake Wylie, authorities said.

The victim was identified as Roger Kelly Williams, 23.

Officials said Steve Kenneth Williams, 29, and Larry Bradley, 22, both of Gastonia, were treated for shock and exposure at local hospitals and then released.

Rescue workers said the three were in a 14-foot fiberglass fishing boat and the boat quickly filled with water about 1:30 p.m., tossing the three men into the choppy and cold waters of the lake. The boat went down about 75 yards from the South Carolina shore

Hiker Dies

NEWLAND, N.C. (UPI) — The body of a Charlotte man, who got seperated from his hiking companion in the rough North Carolina mountains and apparently succumbed to the cold, was found near here Saturday, officials said.

Avery County Sheriff Howard B. Daniels said rescue workers found the body of Thomas Alva Loftis Jr., 23, west of Callaway Peak in the area of Grandfather Mountain late Saturday afternoon.

His companion, John Kiker of Charlotte, in his early 20s, came out of the rough area in adjacent Watauga County and summoned rescuers earlier in the day. He was unhurt, said Daniels.

Hearing Set

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A preliminary hearing was set for Monday for a North Carolina man wanted in Colorado on murder, kidnap, rape and robbery charges.

Wake County deputies said Saturday Eric Jerome McLeod, 20, of Holly Springs, was jailed without bond on warrants issued by the Colorado Springs, Colo., Sheriff's Department Dec. 31.

KKK Sets Trial

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina Ku Klux Klansman George Dorsett, recently identified as an FBI informant against the United Klans of America UKA, will be tried by his peers Jan. 11 on charges he violated the klan's oath of allegiance.

According to Ed Dawson, titan for the 16th congressional district of the North Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Dorsett will be tried in Graham by the group's state board and if found guilty will be banished from the Tar Heel group.

Dorsett, whose work for the FBI was revealed by the Senate Intelligence Committee, said he's not worried about the charges since he claims his allegiance to the Confedrate Knights of the Ku Klux Klan "and my members are proud of me."

Two Arrested In Charlotte

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Delta Airlines stewardess and an unemployed salesman have been arrested by Charlotte police on various drug charges including possession of marijuana and coacine and possession of amphetamines with intent to sell.

Police said the arrests of Jana Hollfield, 23, and Jospeh Stanley Davis, 28, both of Charlotte, Thursday night were related to a major drug arrest. Fenton Morris Cowley Jr., 34, was apprehended by police earlier that day.

Eastward Ho!

By KEN PETERS
Associated Press Writer

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP)—With a hearty "Wagons Ho!" 70 latter-day pioneers, including a man in a horse-drawn wheelchair, spurned Horace Greeley's advice, loaded their covered wagons and embarked on a 2,600-mile eastward journey.

The travelers, members of the Hawaii and California Bicentennial wagon train, said Friday they hope to meet caravans from the other 48 states July 4 in Valley Forge, Pa., to celebrate the Bicentennial. The group heeded the "Wagons Ho" in Pomona, and circled its wagons for the first night of the six-month trek on a baseball field in Riverside, some 30 miles away.

The travelers were reported weary and cold after the first stage of their journey, and one horse had broken down. But spirits were high.

Among the pioneers is Norman Butler, 50, of Orland, Calif. who plans to go all the way in his wheelchair. A paraplegic disabled in World War II, Butler has used a horse to pull him around for some time.

"He was in a parade on the Fourth of July last year, and some of the people from the wagon train were there," Butler's wife, Velma, said from her home. "They asked him to join them because they thought what he was doing took a lot of guts."

Mrs. Butler is staying home with a 9-year-old son while Butler and their 12-year-old son, Mike, make the trip.

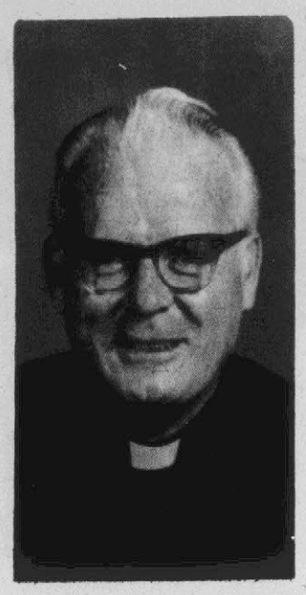
Butler's wheelchair is being pulled by a horse named Jigger, a Scotch-Welsh miniature. He is sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and VFW members along the route have promised to drive his specially equipped camper ahead each night so Butler and Mike can spend the night in it.

Some of the participants plan to drop out part way, but others, like Ron and Marie Scufiel and their 7-year-old son, Tom, will make the entire trip.

"We sold our ranch to finance the trip," Mrs. Scufiel said. "My husband is a Western artist. He'll be working and doing research. I'm going to take a lot of notes and hope to write a book when we get back."

Local Pastor To New Church

After almost 14 years as pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church in Greenville, the Rev. Maurice Spillane has been assigned to serve as pastor to St. Paul's Church in New Bern.



FR. MAURICE SPILLANE

He will leave Greenville January 6 for his new post.

A farewell reception has been arranged by the women of St. Peter's parish for tonight at 8:00 o'clock at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Father Spillane was assigned to the Greenville parish in February, 1962, and was formally installed as pastor on March 8 of that year.

Born in County Kerry, Ireland, he studied for the priesthood at Lateren University in Rome and was ordained April 4, 1942. His departure from Rome was delayed when the German army took over the city in World War II.

After post-graduate studies in Ireland and a period of parish work, Father Spillane (at his request) came to the Diocese of Raleigh in 1947 and was named assistant pastor in Whiteville for a year, and spent another three years in that role at Goldsboro.

His first pastorate was at Elizabethtown, followed by 8 years as pastor in Mount Airy before coming to Greenville.

Holshouser Pressed For Report On Spending Cuts

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—The Democratic leadership of the North Carolina General Assembly is pressing Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser for a report within 30 days on what he has done to cut state spending.

Virtually the entire membership of the General Assembly were present as the Joint Committee on the Economy agreed to seek the information.

The action came after economists and fiscal exports had forecast that (1) the state's economic picture could be expected to continue to improve but at a slower rate of gain than during the past few months and (2) they can expect the state's general fund revenue short fall next June 30 to total about $40 million even if the economic forecasts are borne out.

It was the first meeting of the committee since it voted Nov. 7 to ask Holshouser to take immediate steps to reduce state spending. Some legislative leaders hoped reduced spending would provide enough revenue to give teachers and state employes a pay boost this fiscal year. If enough revenue for a pay hike were not found, the Democrats could blame Holshouser for not cutting spending enough.

Holshouser shrugged off the November recommendation and said it was not binding on him. He has contended that the budget will stay in the black without spending cuts.

Following the Friday session, House Speaker James C. Green said in answer to questions that the only way the pay increase can be provided without a tax increase is for "the governor to cut spending some and we've got to find where we can cut some."

Action of the economy committee came after Lloyd O'Carroll, a fiscal analyst for the Fiscal Research Division, told the legislators to expect a general fund revenue shortfall next June 30 ranging from $18 to $58 million depending on whether an optimistic or pessimistic view of the economic situation is taken. He said that more likely the shortfall would be around $40 million.

O'Carroll said even if revenues fell short of estimates by $40 million, the state would still have a balanced budget and $19.4 million to start the second year of the biennium. O'Carroll explained this would happen if reversions—appropriations authorized but not spent—amount to 3½ per cent, or about $61.5 million.

When pressed by members of the committee for a report on what the Holshouser administration had done to reduce spending, Kenneth Howard, state budget officer, said that allotments to state agencies for spending during the next few months will be much smaller than state officials had expected.

He said a number of small savings had been realized "but $20 to $25 million at a swoop we don't have."

Howard told the legislators he would "not change the problems we have with any state except the oil producing states." He said some states are having difficulty in meeting their payrolls.

"What we are discussing is the size of the credit balance" the state will have June 30, Howard said.

Howard later explained he meant that, "We don't have to make any significant cutbacks to pay all our bills this fiscal year. We can make it without making a lot of curtailments."

Frank Justice, a special counsel to the chairmen of the legislature's appropriations and finance committees, told the legislators that unless state tax collections rise faster during the next six months than they have in the past six, "the revenue shortfall for 1975-76 will be $108.8 million."

Kenneth Steele, an economist for the American Bank & Trust Co. in Monroe, told the legislators that while most economists are expecting the recovery from the recession to be relatively slow "the chances for a very strong recovery are very possible."

Alfred Smith III, senior vice president for the North Carolina National Bank, said he feels the state can expect the recovery by its manufacturing industries to continue to improve but not as rapidly as in the last few months. He said he expects the revenue shortfall to be around $50 million.

Proposals Would Give Data On Used Cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — People who want a used car will have a chance to learn its defects before they buy it, under proposed new federal regulations.

The Federal Trade Commission proposed regulations on Friday to prohibit "any false, misleading or deceptive representation, directly or by implication, of the quality, performance, reliability or lack of mechanical defects of any used motor vehicle."

The commission said the proposed rules are necessary because "a substantial number of used motor vehicles ... are offered for sale ... with mechanical defects.

The regulations would require dealers to disclose in advance what they know about such things as actual mileage, the nature of prior use and any major repairs performed in reconditioning.

Dealers would be required to disclose on a window sticker the make, model and year of the car, its mileage and any repairs which "affect the performance or useful life of the vehicle."

The disclosure sticker also would have to say whether the car was used previously as a taxi, police car, rental or other fleet vehicle, and, if so, by whom.

Another key proposal would require dealers to spell out in advance exactly what service or repairs, if any, would be covered under warranty. If a car is offered for sale without warranty, that too would have to be disclosed before sale.

"Potential purchasers are not in a position to determine the mechanical condition of the vehicles under consideration and dealers, who know or should know of the defects, do not inform the prospective purchaser of such defects," the FTC said.

Violations could bring fines of up to $10,000 per day. The rules would apply only to dealers, not individual sellers.

The FTC said dealers frequently recondition the appearance of a car, while ignoring serious mechanical defects.

Implementation of the regulations, pending final approval, could take up to 18 months.

In announcing the proposed rules, the commission tentatively rejected a related staff recommendation that would give consumers the right to have any used car inspected by an outside mechanic before the sale.

But the commission did officially open that recommendation, along with the formal list of proposed rules, to public and industry comment. That means it is possible for the pre-inspection idea to be incorporated ultimately in the final version after public hearings.

The staff suggested allowing any prospective purchaser at least eight hours to have a car inspected before sale, while giving dealers the right to have an employe or agent accompany the vehicle. But the commissioners indicated fears that this could prove unwieldy and, in the end, costly to consumers because of lost time and effort by dealers who might compensate through price increases.

Moslems Storm Lebanese Jail

By MICHAEL ROSS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)— Hundreds of Moslem militiamen stormed the largest jail in northern Lebanon Saturday and freed dozens of prisoners in a fierce three-hour battle with guards.

A terse communique from the Internal Security Command said the gunmen captured the Sir Dinniyyeh Prison on the outskirts of Tripoli, 50 miles north of Beirut.

"Attempts to defend the jail failed," the communique said. "Attempts to block the prisoners from escaping also failed."

Witnesses said more than 400 Moslems assaulted the prison. Officials said all but one of the 35 prisoners escaped during the rocket and machine gun battle.

It was the third time in two days that Moslem fighters freed prisoners at gunpoint, raising fears of a new flareup of Lebanon's nine-month-old civil war.

Earlier Saturday, about 100 Moslem gunmen stormed the Alley Prison near President Suleiman Franjieh's Baabda residence outside Beirut and freed one inmate.

On Friday, about 70 Moslem militiamen overcame a security force escorting a prisoner suspected of killing two Christians in Baabda. The gunmen wounded two guards and freed the man.

The attack against Sir Dinniyyeh Prison touched off fears that Beirut and Tripoli—relatively calm Saturday — might erupt in a new round of full-scale civil war.

Police said at least five persons were killed and seven wounded in clashes in the north, raising the toll since April to more than 8,000 dead and 17,000 wounded.

Defective Tags

RALEIGH (AP)—Some North Carolina auto owners are getting defective 1976 license tag stickers in the mail from the Division of Motor Vehicles, commissioner Edward Powell says.

Powell said people who receive defective stickers should return them to the division. They will receive new ones at no cost.

This is the first year that North Carolina has issued stickers instead of new plates. The stickers are roughly an inch square and are to be placed on the upper right hand corner of the tag.

Veto Override Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — An override of President Ford's veto of a bill to expand picketing rights for construction unions is considered unlikely.

Ford vetoed the bill Friday, as he had said he would do, saying it would cause "greater, not lesser, conflict in the construction industry."

The bill, sought by labor leaders for 25 years, passed Congress this year for the first time. However, neither the House nor the Senate came close to the two-thirds majority needed to override a veto.

It was his 44th veto since he took office in August 1974 and Congress has been able to override only seven of the previous vetos.

Kennedy For VN Aid

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Hanoi Radio says Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has written North Vietnam's deputy prime minister a letter expressing hope that the United States would "contribute meaningfully toward healing the wounds of war in Vietnam."

The letter, quoted in a Hanoi Radio broadcast Friday night, said a policy of U.S. reconstruction aid to Vietnam "would reflect the feelings of many Americans."

Denies Gain Seeking

MOSCOW (AP) — In a major defense of its Angola policy, the Soviet Union today denied it was seeking military or economic gain in that African country and called for the end of foreign armed intervention there.

The vigorous defense was carried in Pravda, the official newspaper of the Communist party, and was published in its entirety by the Soviet news agency Tass, reflecting the importance party leaders apparently have given it.

"The Soviet Union does not seek anything in Angola — either economic, military or other gain," Pravda declared.

Cold Hits Citrus Crops

Citrus growers in California, motorists in New York, and just people fron northern Minnesota to southern New Mexico felt the bite of winter Saturday.

Temperatures in the nation's richest farm region, the central San Joaquin Valley of California, dipped into the 20s for the fourth consecutive night, threatening its multimillion dollar citrus crop.

Airport Security Tightened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airport security across the nation has been tightened since Monday night's bombing at La Guardia Airport in New York, according to a report to President Ford by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr.

Coleman was among federal officials who participated in a 40-minute White House meeting with Ford on Friday to review steps being taken to improve security in the wake of the La Guardia explosion, which left 11 persons dead and some 75 injured.

60 Hours, 31 Minutes Sermon

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (UPI) — The Rev. Robert Marshall set a record for nonstop preaching Saturday but stopped 29 minutes short of his 61-hour goal and said he was too "pooped" to go on.

The 55-year-old minister of the Birmingham Unitarian Church stopped speaking at 12:32 p.m. EST amid cheers and applause from a jammed congregation im this Detroit suburb. He had preached for 60 hours, 31 minutes.

Rembrandt Painting Recovered

BOSTON (UPI) — A stolen Rembrandt painting valued as high as $5 million was secretly returned to state and federal authorities late Friday, the U.S. attorney's office announced Saturday.

The portrait of the Dutch master's sister, Elizabeth Van Rijn, stolen in a daytime robbery from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts nearly nine months ago, appeared to be only slightly damaged, a museum official said.

Departing After Eight Terms

In what is the first major surprise of the political year, Rep. David N. Henderson of the Third Congressional District announced Monday that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Rep. Henderson is completing his eighth term as a member of Congress and he is chairman of the House Postal and Civil Service Committee. He has been representing the counties of Bladen, Duplin, Harnett, Johnson, Lee, Onslow, Pender, Sampson and Wayne.

The congressman cited family responsibilities and the strenuous duties connected with the committee chairmanship as the reasons for his decision.

"The main consideration is I hope for a less strenuous and more relaxing way of life at the end of next year," the congressman said.

"I felt the proper time to make the announcement was during the Christmas break—just after the end of the current session and before the new session starts.

"It was not an easy decision, but it is final and irrevocable," he said.

The congressman's decision not to run came as a surprise to political observers because he had worked his way up in seniority and served as chairman of a powerful committee.

Apparently, though, Rep. Henderson felt the time had come to give up the demanding duties of a congressman. And so he made his decision and announced it.

The announcement is sure to bring on a political flurry in the Third District. Rep. Henderson's aide Charles O. Whitley said he will seek the nomination and State Rep. Jimmy Love and Joseph Overby had been cited as opposition for Rep. Henderson if he had chosen to run.

There probably will be others who will quickly express interest in the race. It is going to make an interesting situation in the Third Congressional District.

Draft Board Gone; An Era Has Ended

An era ended for Pitt County on Dec. 29.

The Pitt County Selective Service System Local Board No. 75 closed its doors here and moved to a consolidated office.

The office had processed thousands of young men in war and in peace dating back to before the beginning of World War II. During most of that time Selma Rogers was the executive secretary. While young men are still required to register, there is no draft going on at present. Those who need to contact the Selective Service office may do so at Rosemary Office Center, 1025 Jackson St., Roanoke Rapids.

The office is as far removed as the draft for today's 18-year-olds.

Sediment Control Effort

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Officials of local government in North Carolina, concerned about the threat of sediment pollution in streams and rivers, are moving ahead on their own programs to curb erosion.

They are accomplishing the job without having to "call the law" on violators, as they find that cooperation works, says Taylor Currin, a soil conservation service civil engineer on loan from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to the N.C. Sedimentation Control Commission of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Since the General Assembly passed the Sedimentation Pollution Control Act in 1973—effective in 1974—a total of 15 counties and 19 cities have developed local ordinances governing erosion of soil into streams.

State Model

Currin, who is conservation engineer for the commission, said the local ordinances put local governments "in business for themselves . . . but to ensure an equitable program statewide, each local ordinance must be patterned after a state model, and have state approval after local enactment."

When no local regulation is in force, construction activity is regulated by the Department of Natural and Economic Resources through a permit program. Since July, 1974, sediment and erosion control plans have been reviewed and approved for 1,100 projects.

Most people, Currin said, are willing to cooperate when made aware of the state, or local, law. "Virtually all are willing to take necessary steps to control erosion on their sites," he said.

In fact, many contractors report use of an erosion and sediment control plan has meant savings in construction costs and later cleanup, particularly on cut-and-fill slopes which are vegetated immediately after grading is completed.

Stabilizing the soil immediately saves future cost of refilling eroded gullies, and hauling out mud washed into lowlands below the fill areas, he said.

Control of sediment was initially pushed by conservation groups who pointed out the problems. It has since become clear that sediment washing into streams from construction sites was a wide community concern: mud, silt, and loose soil fouled natural waterways, blocked culverts, narrowed channels to cause flooding, and filled in ponds downstream.

Heavy Wash

Soil Conservation officials estimate that the combined state and local regulation has prevented at least 400,000 tons of sediment from washing into rivers and streams in North Carolina.

For example, one relatively small site (9½ acres) was graded in 1965 and left bare for several years. From that single site, an estimated 3,000 tons of sediment washed, Currin said.

Regulations require sites bulldozed for construction be covered with vegetation unless built upon within a short time, that steeply sloped land be stabilized, and in some cases sediment traps be installed to catch and hold runoff from entering streams or ponds.

Currin says the widespread cooperation has been attained "without blowing the whistle of punitive action against land disturbers who have created erosion and sediment, even though the enforcement power is there."

One of the elements making that cooperative approach work is the availability of technical advice and planning assistance from the federal Soil Conservation Service and local conservationists. Those officials do not perform "police" duties, leaving that to local or state agencies.

But the conservationists do assist both private developers and governmental officials in developing effective erosion control plans for individual sites to be graded.

Sunday Morning Notes

The boy on a bike rolled down the incline from one of the gazebas in the downtown mall. The bike entered one of the mazes which provide walkways through brick planters along the mall.

But the boy took a wrong turn. Instead of following the walk which led out of the planters, he turned in the opposite direction and directly into one of the built-in benches.

The youngster saw his mistake in time and skidded to a halt with the front wheel touching the bench.

He heaved a sign of relief. "I went the wrong way," he laughed.

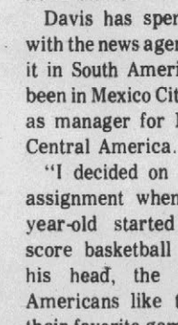
Could've been a disaster!

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Worthington of Winterville hung 23 stockings on their mantle for Christmas, which may be some sort of record.

There were so many stockings that Worthington had to put a board extension on the mantle with hooks to hold the stockings.

There were the Worthingtons' four children home for Christmas, their spouses and 13 grandchildren. The families came from Wyoming, Bowling Green, Ky., Atlanta and Raleigh.

Your columnist hiked through the deserted university campus on Sunday. Most of the campus streets had been blocked to keep traffic away from the buildings closed for the holidays.



ALVIN TAYLOR

"I'm glad to see someone over here," he said. He explained that there had been no vehicular traffic except on one drive which was left open and very few pedestrians walking through the campus.

It was a dead area, but starting today a city of nearly 12,000 will once again come to life.

The UPI North Carolina Reporters tell us that H. Denny Davis has become the regional marketing executive in North Carolina for the news service.

Davis has spent 22 years with the news agency, most of it in South America. He has been in Mexico City since 1968 as manager for Mexico and Central America.

Well, that maneuver might improve the game of basketball.

A Flat Tax Is Simpler

By JAMES J. DOYLE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The president of the nation's second largest tax preparing firm says the the whole income tax process could be considerably simplified and almost everyone's taxes would be cut by a straight percentage tax.

And, said Robert Dulsky, president of Tax Corporation of America, it would save the government millions of dollars of taxpayers' money.

"The idea is simple," Dulsky said. "You have to understand that the cornerstone of our tax system is the imdividual tax return.

"As it turns out, corporate income taxes are only one-third of personal taxes. And in collections, individual taxes account for one third of our national budget.

"The rest comes from other sources. And another thing is, ours is a self-assessing system, which makes it unique in the whole world.

"We report to the government what we earn, and in reality, we're pretty honest about it."

Dulsky's idea is for everyone to pay 12 per cent of their income in federal taxes.

"To give you an idea from some numbers," he said, "in 1972, there were 77.5 million returns filed, and 80 per cent showed taxable income — the rest no taxable income.

"The tax due before adjustments, deductions and so on, averaged 12 per cent for individuals.

"The interesting thing is that after all the adjustments and deductions were in place, what was left was 57 per cent of the pre-adjustment total. The actual taxes paid of the total taxable income reported was about 21 per cent."

Dulsky said a straight percentage tax would be more equitable because those who escape entirely through loopholes would have to pay the same percentage as those in median income groups who are hit the hardest.

And persons who make very large incomes and are taxed accordingly would pay 12 per

INSIDE REPORT

Maxi vs. Mini Revisions

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The assassination last week in Athens of Richard S. Welch, the CIA chief in Greece, has strengthed the case of administration officials now lobbying hard for major restructuring of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), but President Ford has not yet made any decision.

Mr. Ford's own feelings about the CIA are to move cautiously, not rapidly, in any invention of new organizational structures for an agency that has been under constant and ruthless attack for more than one year.

He wants to point the direction of his plans for changing the CIA in his Jan. 19 State of the Union message, but the details of any reorganization, major or minor, will come in a later and separate message to Congress. But while the studies a volumnious briefing book outlining the problems (which he took with him on his vacation in Vail), the political and bureaucrats debate is growing more heated around him, with major differences in approach that he must contend with.

The debate breaks down to a position for maximum change in the present CIA structure vs. a position for minimum change, with Mr. Ford predictably leaning toward a middle position.

The maxi-change position: The fact that Welch, one of the CIA's most respected intelligence analysts, had little if anything to do with covert operations but still was murdered in Athens as "a CIA man" has strengthed the maxi-change advocates who want the name itself of the 27-year-old agency changed.

"We have to get rid of those three little letters, C-I-A," one long-time intelligence expert told us. "Sure, it's a cosmetic change, but the CIA won't ever overcome its totally unfair stigma as a government-sanctioned international murder organization until it gets a new name."

Along with name-changing, this maxi-change position would split the agency into three more or less independent parts: intelligence collection and analysis, operating out of CIA headquarters in suburban Langley; covert operations (sometimes called the "department of dirty tricks"), removed from Langley to a new bureaucratic home that could give it genuine cover; and national estimates, which would provide the administration with regular estimates — based on the independent findings of both the analysts and the covert operations — of how other countries, particularly adversaries, may be expected to move.

Presiding over this new setup, according to the maxi-changers, would be George Bush, the CIA director-designate, working not out of CIA headquarters in Langley but in new offices, possibly the White House itself, with cabinet rank.

One high official intimately connected with the manifold and still-worsening intelligence nightmare this country faces has now reluctantly come to favor a new organizational role for the new intelligence chief.

By moving out of the Langley headquarters, this official believes, Bush would be able to strengthen his oversight of beleaguered covert operations. Likewise, he could provide far more "riggorous and skeptical" questioning of the intelligence stimators than if

An Archaic Law

(Greensboro Daily News)

The American Civil Liberties Union has decided North Carolina's outlaw statue is unconstitutional and has asked a federal court to strike it down. We are willing to let the court settle the issue of its constitutionality, but the law is certainly dangerous and unnecessary.

That law, enacted by the General Assembly 109 years ago, allows a judge to declare a criminal suspect an outlaw at the request of a prosecutor. Thereafter the declared outlaw is without legal rights and protection. Any civilian may kill him on sight if he refuses to surrender. North Carolina is the only state in the Union with such a law still in effect.

Last spring Democratic State Sen. Willis Whichard of Durham introduced a bill to repeal the outlaw statute. In the course of the debate on the bill, he argued that the law was unconstitutional because its effect is to deny the accused the right of due process — which is also the basis for the ACLU's suit. Sen. Whichard pointed out further that a "well-intentioned citizen" could maistake an innocent person for an outlaw, or could be killed himself if he tried to capture an armed suspect.

But the Senate shot down the repeal bill by a vote of 35-10. Judging from the arguments of those opposed to repeal, the majority position was that the law was necessary to bring pressure on suspects to surrender, that summary execution of suspected felons was an acceptable rough and ready method of dispensing justice — or injustice — in an emergency, and that the voters liked the law.

If it is indeed true that a majority of North Carolinians approve of the outlaw statue, it suggests to us that they haven't considered all its implications or its potential dangers. It is a barbaric law and inconsistent with the revised 1971 State Constitution. Furthermore, aside from the legal and moral questions about the law, modern police techniques and apparatus make it unnecessary. About all this antiquated law promises to produce is more gunfire and more corpses.

Bombardment of the American field hospital at Daggah Bur in southwest Ethiopia war reported to the Ethiopian Red Cross today.

Dr. T.A. Lambie, head of the Ethiopian Red Cross, received word of the reported bombing but details were lacking. The hospital was formerly directed by Dr. Robert Hockman of Weston, Ill., who was killed recently when a "dud" bomb exploded.

While most other towns in the state are reporting large numbers of arrests for motorists operating with old license plates, Greenville has had only two such arrests, according to the Highway Patrol.

The Charles A. Lindberghs arrived tonight at the home of J.L. Morgan, father of Mrs. Lindbergh's brother-in-law, in Wales.

A spokesman for the Morgan family announced the visit would be only temporary and that the Lindberghs plan to return to America before April.

FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH

During the Civil War a certain Confederate cavalry officer had a Negro boy assigned to him as a personal servant. The officer one day received a new pair of boots, and on the afternoon of the same day, being called suddenly into action, he commanded the young servant, to be, to watch these boots carefully.

The camp was attacked by Union Soldiers, and one of these, unable to wrest the boots from the Negro boy, ran him through with a bayonet and left him dying. In a short time the Confederate officer and his troop returned.

When he heard the story of Tobe's resolute refusal to give up the boots and his subsequent death, he placed them in a glass case which bore the inscription, "Tobe's Boots—'Be ye faithful unto death and I will give you the crown of life.'"

The New Testament has a great deal to say about fidelity. To be faithful to one's tasks, to do one's duty even at the cost of one's life blood—this marks a person who is precious to the Lord.

Thousands Of Officers Fired

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

CHEVY CHASE, Md. (AP) — After 17 years and two months in the Army, Maj. Jerry Brown, a highly-rated career officer, has been fired; forced at age 39 to enter a civilian job market shrunken by the recession.

A college graduate who served three tours in Vietnam, Brown believes that he and thousands of other Army officers are being forced to retire without pensions because the Pentagon wants to economize on retirement pay, now costing $5.4 billion annually.

Had Brown achieved 18 years of service, he would have qualified for a pension. But he was passed over twice for promotion and Army regulations required his dismissal.

"I am not really bitter about the situation," says Brown, "because that would only be self-defeating." Many others are.

Brown did receive $15,000 in taxable severance pay when he was mustered out last month, but he has two teen-age daughters, a mortgaged house in this Washington suburb, and no job, so far.

Aside from officers forced out because they were not promoted, the armed forces also have released since 1971 more than 12,000 career officers no longer needed in the post Vietnam era. All left without pensions. By next summer, the figure will reach nearly 16,000, the Pentagon says.

The Pentagon acknowledges that it is under pressure to reduce the officer corps of a peacetime military. The same pressure existed after World War II and the Korean War.

While the thousands of former officers without pensions struggle to make a living, another former officer, living in Florida, supplements his $1,551 monthly Army pension with state unemployment benefits of $296 a month.

The former lieutenant colonel, who retired eight months ago after 29 years' service, uses the unemployment checks to help pay the maintenance costs for his $70,000 split-level home, with a swimming pool in the rear. He is 47 and he insisted on anonymity, in part out of fear that his acceptance of unemployment benefits — while legal in Florida — might prove embarrassing, or might damage future job opportunities.

Jerry Brown and his anonymous Florida counterpart represent extremes among 37,-000 Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine officers who have left the service this year through retirement, denial of promotion or outright firings.

For the first time since World War II, the Army has been dropping regular officers, not just career reservists, including some West Point graduates.

By next June, the Defense Department expects to have 281,000 officers on active duty in a peacetime military force of 2.1 million. This compares with 419,000 officers in 1969, just before military manpower began to decline. The number of retired officers has risen from just over

Plain Words From Paine

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

By January 1776, Americans had decided that British tyranny no longer could be endured. But they didn't quite know what to do about it. Thomas Paine told them.

Blood had been shed. An American army beseiged the British at Boston. There could be no submission. Rights once claimed must be held. But need there be a long and grisly war? Couldn't things be worked out?

Paine's answer, in his famous pamphlet "Common Sense," was simple and direct: Independence, a new nation, was the only solution for America and the world.

There could be no friendly compromise, he reasoned, no matter how much desired. Either England or the colonists must triumph. It had to be one or the other.

"Every quiet method for peace hath been ineffectual. Our prayers have been rejected with disdain," he wrote.

And the reader decided he was right; the record backed him up.

"Why is it that we hesitate?" he asked. "From Britain we can expect nothing but ruin. If she is once admitted to the government of America again, this continent will not be worth living in."

Such a choice was no choice at all, Paine pleaded. America must be free, and to be free, she must be independent. It was only common sense.

"Everything that is right or natural pleads for separation," he said. "The blood of the slain, the weeping voice of nature cries, 'Tis time to part.'

"It is repugnant to reason, to the universal order of things, to all examples from former ages, to suppose that this continent can longer remain subject to any external power."

Paine alone did not drive America to independence with his 47 page pamphlet. But he made independence possible, by making it plausable.

Paine's thin little volume was published in Philadelphia on Jan. 10, 1776. Selling for a modest two shillings, it could be afforded by the average reader, and unlike the usual political treatise of the day, it was aimed at the common people. In three months it sold 120,000 copies and eventually 500,000, which would make it a hit even in today's market.

Its impact on American thought was stunning. Six months later the Continental Congress did just what Paine suggested: declare the colonies to be the free and independent United States of America.

Paine argued that logic demanded no less than independence. Many thoughtful Americas were coming to the same conclusion. But it was still a frightening prospect to people who thought of themselves as Englishmen, revered English institutions and shrank from disrespect for King and Empire, no matter what the provocation.

Paine attacked their doubts.

"Government even in its best state is but a necessary evil, in its worst an intolerable one," he contended, attacking the British.

Government came into being because man is imperfect and needs some facility for keeping order and protecting him from his fellow man, Paine argued. If he could create government, he could change one that no longer served its function. In this, the British government had failed in America, Paine said.

Then he turned to the majesty of the British crown. This was doubly difficult since all British subjects had been reared to respect their king and the American rebels themselves had made a hero of George III by posing him as their champion in the fight with Parliament.

George had helped reduce his own standing in the colonies by rebuffing a peace overture from Congress and formally declaring the rebellious Americans a pack of traitors.

Paine proceeded to rip away the awe in which the people held the crown as an institution. If men created government, he posed, they also created kings, and there was no divine right in it.

As for the English kings in particular, their authority traced to William the Conquerer, who stole it from the people in the first place.

"A French bastard landing with an armed banditti and establishing himself king of England against the consent of the natives, is in plain terms a very paltry rascally original," he said. "It certainly hath no divinity in it."

For an English immigrant who had been in America only a few months, Paine certainly knew his audience.

"The exalting one man so greatly over the rest cannot be justified on the equal rights of nature," he declared.

"Of more worth is one honest man to society and in the sight of God than all the crowned ruffians that ever lived," he closed.

And he had them, those selfmade children of the American wilderness.

And then Paine asked the crucial question: "whether you can hereafter love, honor, and faithfully serve the power that hath carried fire and sword into your land?

"If you cannot do all these, then are you only deceiving yourselves, and by your delay bringing ruin upon posterity. Your future connection with Britain, whom you can neither love nor honor, will be forced and unnatural, and being formed only on the plan of present convenience, will in a little time fall into a relapse more wretched than the first."

Most Americans felt he was right. The logic of what he said was undeniable. And it led to but one conclusion.

"The time hath found us," he said. "Nothing can settle our affairs so expeditiously as an open and determined declaration of independence."

A Conservative View

Rhetoric Aside, The Main Point Is Still There

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Senator William Proxmire, the nation's pre-eminent penny-pincher, a few days ago announced his "Golden Fleece of the Year Award." The uncoveted and unwelcome honor went to the Air Force, which may not have wholly deserved it. The senator himself merits a more serious award for reminding us of a virtue almost forgotten in government halls.

The virtue is frugality. George Mason, the great Virginian, ranked it with justice, moderation and temperance. Without these virtues, he said, no free government or the blessings of liberty can be preserved.

To be frugal, says the dictionary, is to be "economical in the use of resources; saving; provident." The principal resources of the federal government are the taxes exacted from the people. When these taxes are wasted, or improvidently spent, the people have a right to be outraged.

The waste is appalling. Everybody in Washington knows it; everybody talks about it. Proxmire is among the relatively few who seek actively to do something about it. His monthly "awards" may amount to no more than flea bites on the bureaucratic hide, but they serve a useful purpose. He is exposing a state of mind.

This state of mind is not easily described. It is an attitude that subtly develops even in good men when they gain positions of power and eminence in government. They may start as public servants; they tend to become public masters. A sea change occurs; little by little, "taxes taken from the people" turn into "federal funds." It claws at the conscience to spend the people's taxes; it is no trick at all to spend federal funds.

One of Proxmire's mock awards last year went to the National Science Foundation for authorizing a grant of $84,000 to study why people fall in love. The NSF has defended the grant, but the defense is feeble. It is highly doubtful—it is well-nigh incredible—that the scholars, consultants and administrators who approved this outlay were thinking in terms of taxes paid by the people. Theirs was the exhilarating privilege of spending millions of dollars in federal funds. Frugality? A frugal thought never entered their minds.

The syndrome pervades government. The Arts and Humanities people are ladies bountiful; their altogether delightful occupation is gracefully to give away other people's money. Congress itself is perhaps the worst offender; over the bitter opposition of a conscientious minority, members of the House and Senate have slipped themselves the privileges, perquisites and "free" travel of a new aristocracy. Of course the travel is not "free." It is paid for by the sweat of men and women who labor and pay taxes.

Proxmire's "Fleece of the Year" reflects the state of mind. Twenty-odd years ago, through Public Law 207 of the 83rd Congress, the Air Force was directed to provide special service for certain Very Important People. Obedient to this congressional mandate, the Air Force created a fleet that now includes 23 jets that cost the people $66 million. The fleet is on call night and day. A certified VIP has only to say the word. Off he goes, airborne in the kind of luxury denied to all but a tiny fraction of the faceless taxpayers down below.

To be sure, some of the cost of the VIP fleet can be justified. Proxmire regrettably loses track of the line that divides satire from demagoguery; thus he unfairly attacks Treasury Secretary William Simon for using the VIP service. (Simon has to have Secret Service protection, which makes commercial travel impractical.) Neither does Proxmire acknowledge that often it would be a false economy—no economy at all—to insist that top government officials waste their time cooling their heels in airport waiting rooms.

But when the senator's rhetorical extravagances are put to one side, his main point remains. Tremendous sums of the people's money are wasted every day—wasted in the most callous fashion—by persons in high office who forget that public office is a public trust. Proxmire is not merely pinching pennies or picking nits. He is raising a cricket voice of right conscience. In this city, heaven knows it needs to be heard.

SOME HEAVYWEIGHT KIBITZERS!

Eye-Popping Conclusion In Study Of Living In Nation's Yesteryears

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

A little digging into the Nation's yesteryears, prompted by the Bicentennial Celebration, can produce some eye-popping results. Take this bit, for example:

In terms of living standards of that time, the turn of the century dime was much more "solid" than today's inflation-cheapened dollar. One reason, of course, is that the old ten cent piece wasn't exactly easy to come by—took some work. Also, its value was tied to gold, which gave protection from political manipulation. So, it commanded respect in the marketplace.

This is no picture put together from computer digested government statistics. It emerges from hours spent leafing thru old mail order catalogues. Such "wish books" are a graphic reflection of a young nation, still rural, but destined to experience vast industrial, technological, social and political revolution, all within the span of a single lifetime.

Both Montgomery Ward and Co. and Sears, Roebuck and Co. were well established before the end of the 1800s. In fact, their names already were household words. Families on farms and in small towns looked to them for the latest in just about everything, from tools to fashions and drugs, which, included a "sure cure" for the "tobacco habit".

Both these firms keyed their sales to the wide selection of merchandise offered and to "bargain prices". And just reading their old prices puts a hurting on recent Christmas shopping.

For instance, a 1902 catalogue lists the latest in cook stoves, the "Regal Range", which burned either wood or coal, for $24.85. A medium size refrigerator, of "solid quarter sawed oak, white porcelain enameled steel lined", was tagged $36.30.

Modern replacements for these old home appliances cost just about 10-times as much—the dime to the dollar relationship. Of course, the difference is not just a matter of price inflation. The modern cook stove offers many advantages—clean, efficient and much easier to cook with. And much the same can be said for refrigerators. There's no comparison in foodsaving abilities.

The up-grading of product accounts for many of the price changes since those old horse and buggy days. For most of the past 75-years, price levels have been what economists call "stable", while maintaining a constant upward tilt. Real productivity gains helped give the customer a price bargain on a better product.

But in recent years this has been changing. As deficit federal spending pumped out money without a corresponding increase in output of goods and services, prices have been pushed up. Labor has demanded tremendous wage raises, with the result that productivity gains have suffered. The spiral has resulted in ballooning prices for the same old product.

For example, a lady could outfit herself from head to heels from the old catalogue for less than $25. What's more she would have a choice of silks, satins, shantungs or good woolens. And her shoes and gloves would be of the finest leather.

Try that today and see where you come out. Even if you skip the "bust forms" and "bustles" you couldn't match it for $250, unless you settled for the plastics. And its the same story with men's clothing. Go into a store and ask for a $6, or even $160, blue serge suit and somebody will drop a net over you.

Of course, the prices in the old mail order books were not such bargains, in fact. They merely seem that way by comparison. Making the dime then was just as hard as making the dollar today. That's why the catalogues were known as "wish books" then and are so known today.

But leafing back through them kindles a special nostalgia, especially for those of us who have lived much of this century and remember its earlier years. It brings a longing for that quieter time, when there was no worry of an A-bomb in our minds and little concern that this experiment in Democracy might wreck on the rocks of socialism and dictatorship. This is the way of inflation.

Going back to those horse and buggy days might be nice, if you could pick and choose the parts you like. But if the deal is to take it all, count me out. I had it all on a red clay road over in Mecklenburg County, miles from any power or phone line. Those cotton rows were endless under the summer sun. And that woodpile, waiting to be chopped and split, was just as endless as the winter.

I'll stand with the hand I drew, trusting that one of these days we will accept the fact there's no such thing as a free lunch.

cent instead of 70 per cent or more.

"The proposition is that to collect an equal amount of tax we would develop a flat tax system of 12 per cent.

"It's fair and super simple. Everyone can understand it. It would certainly cost the government less. As much as 86 per cent of the income tax could be checked automatically because it already is being reported to the government on computers. We would have fewer Internal Revenue Service agents checking for compliance."

"One of the things that is unique about our tax system," Dulsky said, "is that we use our income tax system for social and economic direction, so tax laws are very important instruments of national policy.

"They are designed to funnel money into certain industries and programs, such as tax breaks for energy exploration and housing. Charities, foundations and education get tax breaks."

The problem with his plan is that new legislation would be needed.

"Congress never acts in a rational way," he said. "We don't have to wipe out tax shelters which are there because they do a national good.

"Did you know there were 366 days in 1976?" Curtis Hendrix of First State Bank asked your columnist the other day.

It hadn't even occurred to me.

"You wrote in your column last week that there were 365 days in the new year," Curtis continued.

I looked back to last week's column and, that's right, I did say there were 365 days in next year; and it is leap year, so it will be 366 days.

Maybe that was my last mistake for 1975.

they were at his elbow.

As it is today, CIA director William Colby — just as his predecessors — is tied into every intimate detail of the planning and carrying out of covert operations, and therefore has a natural stake in defending them from outside criticism. The only exception to this in past CIA directors was John McCone, who intentionally divorced himself from most covert operations (but even so did virtually nothing to police or oversee the dirty tricks department).

Admittedly, the future of covert operations such as the CIA's once-secret help for anti-Soviet factions in Angola, now hangs on a thin congressional thread. Nevertheless, if the decline of detente with the Soviet Union should continue, Congress might take a quite different view of covert operations in the future.

One other advantage of the maxi-change position, say advocates, is that it would free the intelligence chief for closer, overall supervision and involvement with the government's entire intelligence community, including the Defense Intelligence Agency, separate service intelligence units and the huge, super-secret National Security Agency (NSA), the nation's magic electronic eyes and ears.

To some old hands in the CIA, this maxi-change position goes much too far and night add a new, heavy layer of demoralization to the thoroughly demoralized CIA. They favor the mini-change position, leaving the CIA pretty much as is but accepting and even courting better oversight provisions both inside the CIA, through a strengthened inspector general, and in Congress.

Choosing the proper course for this country's vital intelligence service won't be easy for Gerald R. Ford, but few decisions he makes as President carry so high a responsibility for the country's future.

Santa Always Included An Unfinished Product

Either the elves go on strike every Christmas before they get around to my presents, or Santa Claus is a sadist. Because Christmas never goes by without my getting at least one present that was never finished. For instance, this year, instead of getting a ready-to-use plant stand, I got a plastic jigsaw puzzle with a set of instructions that any imbecile could follow—that is, if he graduated from MIT with a degree in mechanical engineering.

And what's worse is that Phillip always insists on putting the unfinished product together himself.

"Why can't we send it back to the factory, and let them finish what they began?" I asked him as he took the pieces of the plant stand from the box and began spreading them over the floor.

"Don't be silly," he said firmly. "I don't know what you're worried about—don't I put these things together every year?"

"Yes, eventually," I replied with a grimace. "Last year it only took you three weeks to get the pieces of that newspaper rack put together. And the only reason you did it then was that I kept stabbing myself in the foot with that screwdriver you always left in front of the door."

GAIL MICHAELS

"At least let me move the box," I pleaded. "It's just sitting there looking ugly."

"Don't touch anything," my mechanical genius hissed threateningly. "I might need that box. Just think, there might be a screw hiding in that box, and, if you throw it away, the pieces of this plant stand will become a permanent part of your living room decor."

"You're nuts," I sighed.

"Nuts and bolts may break my bones, but words will never hurt me," he recited. "Besides, I'm going to put it together right."

It might have been my imagination, but the next day the pieces of the plant stand looked as though they had begun to burrow into my rug.

"Please let me put all these pieces into a box and put them out of the way," I begged. "I can't stand this mess any longer."

"I've got everything laid out the way I need it," he insisted. "I have to study these things and build up my energies, and if you go moving things around now, you'll break my creative flow, and I may never get the job done. Besides," he added, waving his screwdriver for emphasis, I'm going to put it together right now."

The next day he came storming in and screamed, "Someone moved my bolt! I warned you that my creative energies are delicate!"

"Well, I didn't move it," I screamed back. "The cat saw it lying on the floor, and she thought it was a raisin. She ate it."

That evening when I came in from shopping, the living room was clean. Every nut, bolt and screwdriver was off the floor, and in the corner of the living room stood a beautiful plant stand. I was beside myself with joy. "Phillip," I cried, running into the den, "Phillip, thank you! It's . . . What's this?" I ended in dismay. The den floor was covered with a million metal pieces.

"Oh, I volunteered to put my sister's exercise machine together," he answered, looking up from the paper. "But don't worry. I'm going to put it together right now."

Dozens Of New Laws Became Effective Jan. 1

By The Associated Press

'Twas the season for legislators to meet,
To debate and to argue as to what to defeat.
Then 'twas the season when bills turned to law,

Dozens of state laws passed by legislatures in recent months became effective on Jan. 1.

Among the more progressive: Colorado became the 10th state with a law requiring insurance companies to sell alcoholism insurance. A Coloradan now can purchase coverage for treatment of alcoholism and of complications resulting from alcoholism.

On the lighter side: the Florida legislature decided there was something not quite right about notary publics notarizing their own signatures. So as of last Thursday, a notary must have another notary notarize his signature.

There was a noticeable movement for the rights of women. In Hawaii, lawmakers ruled that a woman is no longer required to take her husband's name as a legal surname. In Florida, state licensed hospitals with emergency rooms must now provide gynecological, psychological and other services for rape victims. The law was sponsored by Florida's only woman senator, Lori Wilson of Cocoa Beach.

Colorado also passed a bill requiring nonprofit hospitals, health service organizations and health maintenance organizations to offer the same maternity care coverage at the same costs to all women, whether they are married or single.

The New York State legislature voted to allow banks to open branches across the state. The issue was a controversial one. Opponents of the bill said the giant New York City banks would swallow up small banks across the state. Others said the big Manhattan banks would open only a few upstate branches and thus the law would have little effect.

Montana has nine new laws, including one restricting campaign contributions. For all offices other than governor or lieutenant governor, an individual may contribute no more than $750 per candidate, an independent political committee no more than $2,000, and the candidate and his immediate family no more than $6,000. For governor and lieutenant governor, the comparable figures are $1,500, $8,000 and $9,000 per candidate. Ceilings also were placed on total contributions.

California liberalized its marijuana law, following the lead of Oregon and Alaska, which previously had reduced penalties for marijuana convictions. Now marijuana possession in California is a misdemeanor at worst, punishable by fine. Under the old law, the judge decided whether a possession case was a misdemeanor, or a felony punishable by prison.

The California lawmakers took a less sympathetic view of stronger drugs. Under another Jan. 1 law, prison is mandatory for persons convicted of selling a half ounce or more of a substance containing heroin.

The most populous state in the union also cracked down on persons convicted of using a gun during robberies and other major felonies. That, too, is automatic jail.

As for minors, the California legislature decided that they can buy contraceptives now without consulting mom and dad.

Kansas passed a law that tenants across the nation would like their states to enact. As of Jan. 1, rents fall under the state's Homestead Property Tax Relief Act. It gives Kansans state tax credit for 12 per cent of the rent they pay.

Variety Of New Courses Will Start At Pitt Tech

A variety of new courses will start this week at Pitt Technical Institute. Some of these courses are being offered in cooperation with other groups and some are being offered by PTI. A run-down of the new courses follows.

A 60-hour course in Home Handyman Bricklaying is being offered in cooperation with Rose High School. The class will meet each Monday and Thursday from 7-10 p.m. in Rm. 140 at Rose High School. Registration fee is $3 and adults are expected to furnish their own supplies.

A 12-hour course on Basic First Aid will begin Monday, January 5, at 7 p.m. in Rm. 111 at PTI. There is no pre-registration, but tuition is $3. Books, which can be purchased at the first session, cost $4.60. Completion of the course meets First Aid requirements of Pitt County Red Cross and the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA).

In cooperation with the Coast Guard Auxiliary, a course in Boating Safety and Seamanship is being offered beginning Wednesday, January 7, at 7:00 p.m. in Rm. 209 of PTI.

A course in the Fundamentals of Real Estate will begin Monday, January 5, at 7:00 p.m. Cost for the 45-hour course, including books, should not exceed $20. Course completion is a prerequisite for the State Salesman's or Broker's Examination.

A course in Basic Piano will begin Monday, January 5 in Rm. 220 at PTI. The class will meet from 8:30 to 10:00 each Monday and tuition will be $3.

A course in Crewel Embroidery will meet in Rm. 160 at Rose High School each Monday from 7-10 p.m. Registration fee is $3 per person.

A 21-hour class in Macrame will be taught each Monday from 7-10 in Rm. 151 of Rose High School. This room is located in the Vocational Building at the rear of the main building. Registration fee is $3 per person.

An Interior Decorating course will begin Monday, January 5, at 7:00 p.m. It will meet at Rose High School, Rm. 163 from 7-10 p.m. Registration is $3.

A course in Canvas Embroidery (needlepoint) will meet each Wednesday evening from 7-10. Registration is $3 and the class will meet in Rm. 162 at Rose High School. This room is located in the Home Economics building behind the main classroom building.

A Baking and Decorating course will begin Wednesday, January 7, in Rm 104 of PTI. The class will meet each Wednesday and the registration fee is $3.

A Pottery class will begin Thursday, January 8, meet each Thursday from 7-10 p.m. The class will be taught in Rm. 125 of Rose High School, located in the Art Building behind the main classroom building. Registration fee is $3.

Further information on all of these courses, including specific content, can be obtained by calling Pitt Technical Institute at 756-3130, ext. 38.

Officers...

690,000 in 1969 to 1.1 million last June. And many of those 1.1 million say they're bitter about what has happened to them.

An indication of the depth of that bitterness is court action by Jerry Brown and 500 other ex-officers who say the Army ignored federal laws governing the way promotion boards should be convened; boards that passed over the 500 for promotion. An estimated 2,300 former career men could be affected by cases pending before three different federal judges.

The court suits represent the first serious challenge to the military "up or out" promotion system, used since World War II.

The Army says it "regrets the loss of the officers, most of whom have fine records of military service." But in a time of retrenchment, an Army statement said, "it is necessary to retain on active duty only those officers who are best qualified ..."

Interviews with two dozen former officers of various services show wide variations in how they are faring.

Professor Stanley Hyman of Catholic University in Washington teaches a course accredited by three colleges designed to help career military men adapt to what is for many an alien civilian environment.

Over the last eight years, Hyman has taught 2,200 military people about to leave the service. He has sought to persuade them that the civilian community won't necessarily welcome them with open arms.

A former test pilot who retired in 1966 after 20 years in the Air Force, Hyman tells his students that many employers won't even consider applications from former military officers.

"If they think you were in the military," he says, "it is an automatic garbage can item."

"Civilians out there are convinced you are high-priced incompetent help," Hyman says in lectures at the Pentagon. "They are convinced that as career military officers you haven't worked in years, that you have just been sitting around passing papers back and forth."

Lou Kish, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, now a successful stockbroker in Clearwater, Fla., agrees there is an anti-military bias among businessmen, but says it is frequently justified.

"Military people become complacent once they get out," he says. He argues that with military retirement benefits tied to the cost of living, some ex-officers want little more than a safe nine-to-five desk job free from real competition. Often, he says, "The employer is getting a 40 to 45-year-old guy with no useful experience."

Watch 'Worth' $15 He Paid

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Lonnie Granger of Reno was water skiing at the Lahontan Reservoir when he lost his wrist watch in 15 or 20 feet of water. He gave it up as lost because "I bought the thing from a friend for 15 bucks."

Two months passed before Granger made another trip to the reservoir and found the water level had dropped. He said just out of curiosity he went to the spot where he had lost the watch.

"There was the watch," he said, "barely sticking up out of the sand. But the shocker was the fact the watch was still running and was off only a minute. Even the date was right."

A Brown Bag Is Welcome

CLEVELAND HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI) — Brown baggers are welcome in 11 school lunch cafeterias in this Cleveland suburb, and their parents pay for the privilege.

Belva Singer, district director of elementary education for curriculum instruction, said an $18 per semester fee was established, starting in September, 1974, because of a budgetary necessity to provide supervision in the lunchrooms.

The fees pay paraprofessional aides, one for each 25 students. Their negotiated contract forbids the assignment of certificated teachers to lunchroom duty.

Mrs. Singer said the fee is adjusted if more than one child in a family uses the supervised lunch period and for students who are in school only part of the week. Nonpayment is permitted for those whose parents cannot afford the fee.

No cooking facilities are available in the the Cleveland Heights, University Heights elementary schools, added the article in "School Foodservice Journal."

Radar Unit Is On Motor Cycle

RENO, Nev. (AP) — There's an electronic genius in the Reno Police Department. He's motorcycle policeman Ken Tuffo, who figured out how to equip his motor bike with a radar unit.

Tuffo thinks it's the only radar-equipped police motorcycle in the country.

He says the device has doubled his ticket writing. He says some 250 motorists have "met" him since he turned the radar on.

Sunk The Shaft From Cellar

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The old saying was "Gold is where you find it."

No matter where it was, old-time miners claimed the ground immediately. When it was discovered that the Como Brewery was built directly over a bluish lead deposit, the company sank a shaft in the cellar immediately. Miners staked claims in all directions.

The entire outcropping was called the Lager Beer Ledge.

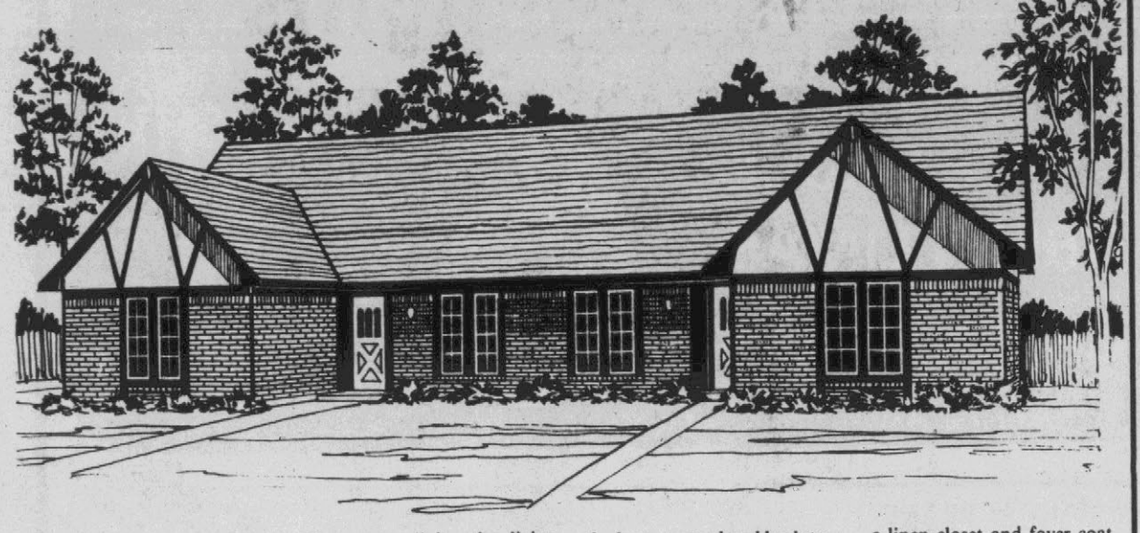
TUDOR STYLING DISTINGUISHES DUPLEX

By Jerry Bishop

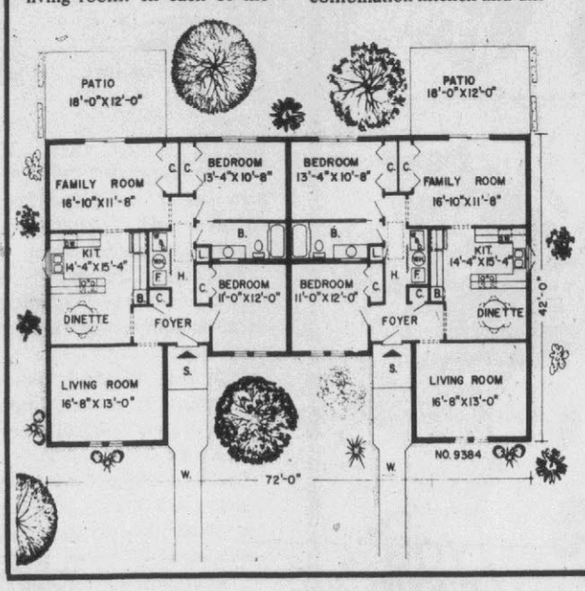
Rustic brick and half timbers sheath the exterior of this unusual Tudor-inspired duplex design for a dwelling that is highly attractive to tenants and a charming addition to any residential neighborhood.

With a facade faithful to its heritage, the Cheshire joins identical two bedroom units and adopts an up-to-date floor plan that incorporates a foyer, family room, formal living room, eat-in kitchen, and patio.



For maximum privacy, the design places main entrances about 22 feet apart. Visitors enter the gracious foyer which, with a connecting hallway, permits access to every room of the unit.

Isolated and provided with only one entry to prohibit cross-traffic is the formal living room. In each of the units, the living room is set just off the foyer, readily accessible to guests but removed from the family's normal traffic pattern. A combination kitchen and dining area adjoins the living room and boasts abundant counter space and a broom closet.



For relaxing or entertaining family and friends, the plan calls for a sizable family room, set at the rear of the design and furnished with a welcome storage closet. Sliding glass doors invite sunshine and scenery and extend the family room outdoors. While the patio is fairly large, the arrangement leaves room for including a garden or grassy play area in back of each unit.

To help buffer noise, activity areas are located on the outside of each unit and bedrooms are placed back-to-back. Two well-proportioned bedrooms are favored with adequate closet space and separated by a large bath with built-in vanity. Hallway closets enclose the furnace and water heater, and include a linen closet and foyer coat closet.

An investment unit that would be an asset to any neighborhood, the Cheshire deftly combines the charm of Old English styling with a floor plan for today.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

One of the most basic of all hand tools is the hammer — so apparently simple to use that few persons ever feel the need to learn how to do it properly.

The thousands of injuries that occur to handymen while using the hammer each year are nearly always caused by misuse. Entirely aside from that, countless projects are delayed or spoiled by the improper use of hammers. Even further, many cases of arm fatigue can be traced to the use of hammers that don't "fit" the persons or the jobs, as well as to the simple failure to wield the tool in the right manner.

The following tips apply to the types of hammers generally used around the house:

1 — Be sure the handle is neither loose nor damaged.

2 — Use safety glasses when practical, but especially when driving hardened masonry nails into concrete. In the latter case, use a heavy ball pein hammer with a large striking force or a hand drilling hammer rather than the old, ordinary claw or nail hammer.

3 — The hammer blow should always be struck with the hammer face parallel with the surface being struck.

4 — Hold the hammer handle at the end without any of your hand overhanding.

5 — Rest the face of the hammer on the nail, draw the hammer back and give a light tap as you hold the nail in place with the thumb and first two fingers of one hand.

6 — The wrist, the elbow and the shoulder handle hammer blows. For a light tap, use only the wrist. For a moderate blow, use the wrist and the elbow. For heavy whacks, use the wrist, elbow and shoulder.

7 — When a nail bends, it is generally better to remove it and start a new one than attempt to straighten it out with compensating blows. The exception is in very rough work, where striking the nail at a slant to straighten it out is occasionally all right if you are very careful.

8 — Whether you hit a nail straight or on a slant, always strike it with the center of the hammer face.

Gardening Questions

Q. Should plants be watered in winter? (W. S., Greensboro)

A. Yes, especially if they are newly set plants. Just because the sky is overcast and the temperature is low doesn't mean that plants can't dry out. A cold, dry wind removes moisture from both the soil and plant tissue. When in doubt about watering, scrape a few inches of topsoil from around your plants. If the soil is dry, water. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. What kind of container is best for keeping insects out of meal and other cereals? (Mrs. L. G., Wadesboro)

A. Metal, stiff plastic and wood if it is tight. Paper and cardboard are not satisfactory. (Rudy Hillman, extension entomologist)

Q. The pecan trees that I have planted here in Hillsborough have never done as well as the trees at my parents' home in Pender County. Why? (Mrs. D. G., Hillsborough)

A. The northernmost limit for pecans runs from Raleigh east. And even in the Raleigh area a person can expect only two good crops out of five. Weak buds, poor foliage, frost and other weather conditions conspire against consistently good pecan crops in the state. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

Q. I've heard that it harms a peach tree to prune it in midwinter. Is this true? (L. L., Goldsboro)

A. Yes. A lot of injury can occur to peach trees when pruning cuts are made during November, December, January and early February. This is caused by the sap freezing and thawing, the spread of diseases and some reasons still unknown. Wait until early spring to prune peach trees. You can even wait until they are in fullbloom. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

Better Heat Pump Developed

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

On the prairies of Nebraska is an experimental home equipped with the best that a University of Nebraska professor, a waterbed manufacturer and a heating-cooling company can come up with in the way of an answer to fuel shortages.

Heart of the home's heating-cooling system is the heat pump, developed by Lord Kelvin for just that purpose but most widely known for its use in the reverse refrigeration and air-conditioning application.

The refrigerator is a good example of the principle. The heat removed from the interior of the box in order to provide cooling is exhausted into the room where it can be felt. The heat pump in other uses similarly takes heat from water or the atmosphere, and discharges it in a desired location.

Improved to extract the sun's heat from even the Nebraska winter cold without freezing up, a problem in the past, the pump as used in the Nebraska house offers a system which anyone can afford, according to its sponsors.

A major problem with existing solar systems is cost. Electronic collector components alone can run as much as $120,000 and, although one researcher thinks he can reduce that to $1,200, the cost of sunpower at this point is beyond the reach of most.

The Nebraska system is a combination of heating-cooling equipment and the latest in home insulation.

Tom Arkfeld, a Lincoln Electric System engineer, said, "We have high hopes for this and interest is beginning to build." Lincoln Electric is a municipal utility which put up the money and located the experimental home on land that also is the site for an emergency generation plant reserved for peak-operating days.

The system still uses electricity, although not very much. Its principal designer estimates the annual bill, based on prairie prices, at $100 for heating and cooling the two-bedroom, single story house.

The home, built over the summer, is being lived in by a young Lincoln Electric engineer, Jerry Ellis, his wife and theic 9-month-old son. Ellis says even though they have lived in the house only a short while, he is sold on it.

"We've been extremely comfortable," he said. "For one thing, it's not a dry heat (a big problem in Nebraska)."

The best thing about the experimental home, Ellis said, is that he could own one just like it. Richard Osbourne, a Nebraska assistant professor in the architecture and engineering college and principal designer, said a family of moderate means was just what he and his students had in mind when they started.

If Ellis wanted to, he could take the plans to any builder, the sponsors said. The builder would not need special technicians and, once built, maintenance could be handled locally.

Lincoln Electric put up the $28,000 needed to build the home while Carrier Corp., of Syracuse, N. Y. wanted $2,000 in equipment. The American Public Power Association has put up another $12,500 to collect technical data on the system.

Although improved technically so they would work in cold climates, the heat pump still used electricity at all the wrong hours from the standpoint of supply — during the day when it is hot and at night when it is cold.

Osbourne and his students attacked that problem and found a solution in the waterbed.

Water can be used to store heat and cold by raising or lowering its temperature. The home that was finally built has a 1,680 gallon, bigger than king-sized, waterbed beneath it. Thus, the heat pump, located in the attic, can operate during nonpeak hours, gleaning heat during daytime hours for night use in winter and storing cold during the night for use during the day in the summer.

The attic has a glass fiber panel which faces to the south to concentrate heat during the winter and vents which open in the summer to help collect the cold.

The storage water is run through a set of coils. A conventional fan, kicked on and off by a conventional thermostat, pushes air over the coils and through conventional forced air system ductwork.

Osbourne said the system can store enough heat in one day to last 24 winter hours. During the summer, he said, "The heat pump will operate for eight hours during the night to chill the storage water sufficiently for 24 hours' cooling on the worst summer day."

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I have been reading a lot about variable interest rates on home mortgages and thought I understood something about them, but in a story the other day there was reference to a floating interest ceiling for home mortgages. What I read didn't seem to jibe with what I previously understood. Are these two things the same and, if not, what's the difference?

A. — In an ordinary mortgage, the rate of interest is set at a certain figure at the time of closing and does not vary for the length of the loan. In the type of variable mortgage under consideration by financial institutions and regulatory agencies, the interest rate could vary during the term of the loan. It would be tied to some economic index, but the change would be limited.

In the case of a plan proposed by the Home Loan Bank, the interest rate could not change more than ½ of 1 per cent in any six-month period and not more than 2½ per cent over the course of the loan. A floating interest ceiling for home mortgages refers to the maximum amount of interest a lender can charge, with a provision for the rate to fluctuate at specified periods under an economic formula. However, the interest would not fluctuate over the term of the mortgage as with a variable mortgage.

Q. — Can you please tell me how to silver a mirror?

A. — I never recommend that this be done as a do-it-yourself project because it involves the use of extremely strong chemicals. Besides, it's a somewhat involved process that requires more than you can learn from a few sentences in this type of question-and-answer column. If you merely want to silver a single mirror, forget about it. If you wish to make it a hobby or a spare-time occupation and you are the kind of person who can handle chemicals very carefully, study the subject thoroughly, reading one or more of the books available on the subject. Better yet, have a professional teach you how to do it.

Q. — The attic in our house was finished by a contractor, but to save money, I told them not to do the floor, which I intend to do myself. I want to use vinyl asbestos tiles. My brother used vinyl tiles a couple of years ago and, when he had finished the installation, he used a roller to smooth everything down. Will this same procedure be necessary with the kind of tiles I will be using?

A. — No. There is no need to use a roller with vinyl asbestos tiles since a different type of adhesive is used than for solid vinyl tiles. Because of this, purchase the adhesive where you buy the tiles so the dealer will know exactly what to give you.

(For either of Andy Lang's booklets, "Installing Floor Tiles" or "Wood Finishing in the Home," send 30 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions can not be answered personally.)

PTI Class For Adults

Pitt Technical Institute will be offering a program for adults who wish to complete high school beginning Monday, at the Newtown Housing Project in the community building.

The class meets from 8:30-12:30 each morning Monday through Friday. Students may study to complete the requirements for a Pitt County Diploma or to pass the state high school equivalency exam (GED).

Persons interested in enrolling should visit the Newtown Community Building at the corner of Center and Broad Streets. Individuals desiring further information should call Pitt Tech at 756-3130, Ext. 53 or Mrs. Louise Hill at 756-2860 or 758-2780. Tuition for the class is $3 per quarter.

FUTURE JOBS

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Social change is so rapid that of a group of 100 children alive today 50 will eventually work at jobs that do not yet exist, says Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

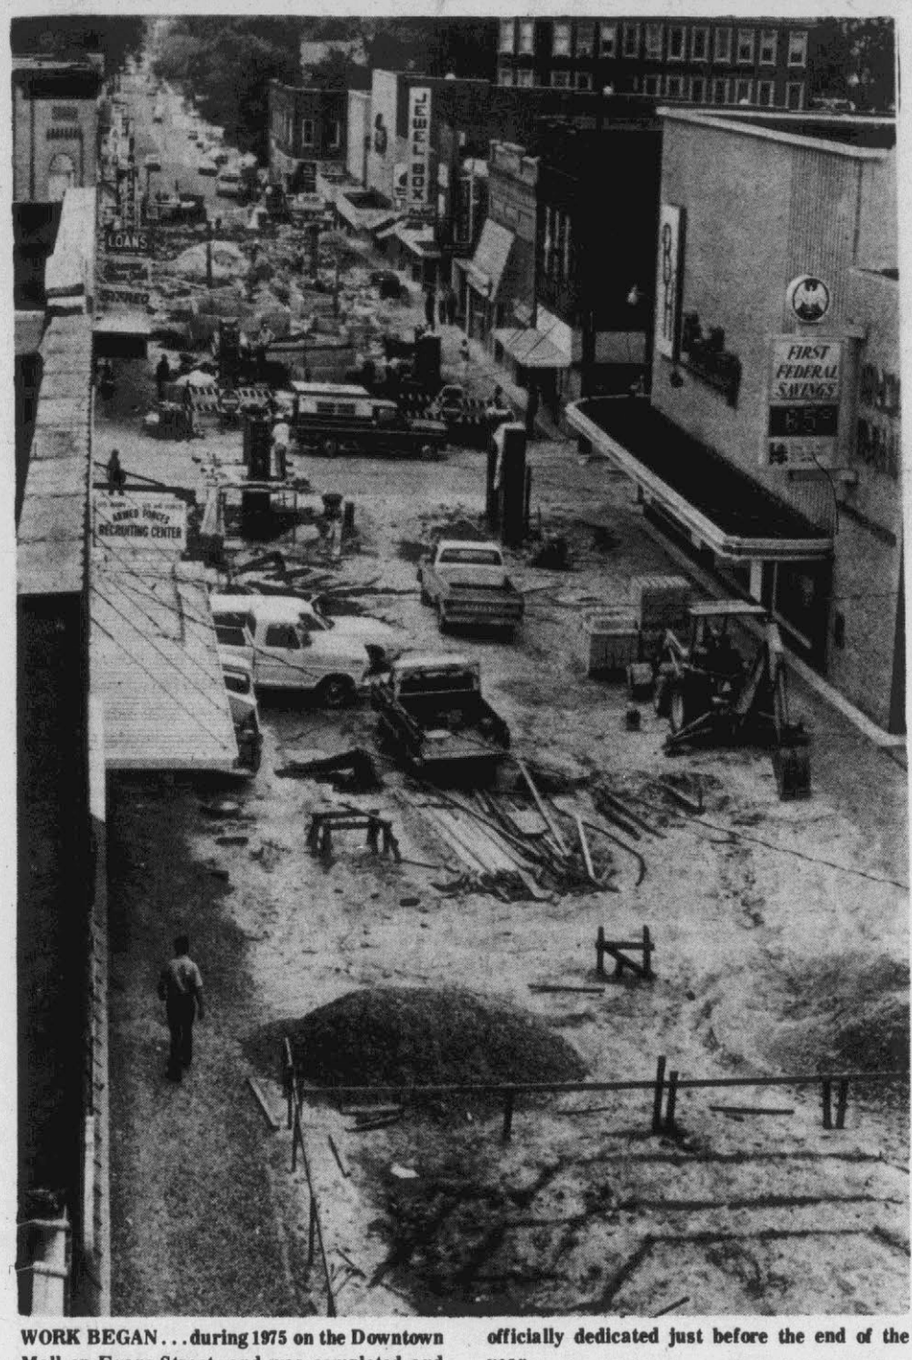
Year's Headlines Reflectea Considerable Good News

A Look At The Local News Highlights Of 1975



WORK BEGAN . . . during 1975 on the Downtown Mall on Evans Street, and was completed and officially dedicated just before the end of the year.

A CROWD GATHERS . . . for the opening ceremony of Greenville's municipal swimming pool.

Text By Tom Baines—Reflector Staff Photos

The year 1975 produced its share of important news events in Pitt County and neighboring areas and although the number of major happenings might not have been as high as in recent years, there was no shortage of headline highlights.

And although tragic news found its way onto the Reflector pages far too frequently, the balance in 1975 seemed to be weighted more in favor of good news and things that people like to read about.

Each news happening touched different people in different ways, however, and gave every event major importance in its own way.

Medical School Funded

One of the major stories of 1974 became one of the major items of 1975, as well, as the drama of the debated medical school expansion at East Carolina University continued and finally concluded with a long-awaited victory for expansion supporters.

With authorization secured from the University of North Carolina Board of Governors in 1974, the program looked to 1975 with hopes of funding approval in the state Leislature.

In January, ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins announced that the university would purchase 50 acres adjacent to the site of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital for the medical school building program. Later in January, University of North Carolina President William Friday announced that ECU would close its one-year medical program and delay by one year expansion into a four-year school in order to gain additional time to build a facility and prepare for expansion.

In late January, full funding for the ECU School of Medicine was recommended in the biennial budget presented to the 1975 Legislature. Budget recommendations called for total spending of $54.4 million, with funds to be appropriated over a two-year period to develop and operate a full four-year degree granting school.

Medical school news continued in the first month of the year when the medical staff of Pitt Memorial Hospital reaffirmed its desire to affiliate with the ECU medical school. In March, the staff approved an affiliation agreement which would make the hospital the prime clinical training facility for the school.

In June, legislation calling for a statewide vote on the question of issuing $32 million in bonds for the expansion of the medical school headed for the floor of the House where heated debate was expected.

On June 13, officials of ECU reached an agreement with the hospital to allow the medical school to use the new hospital facility for teaching purposes. The agreement was said to represent a potential savings of about $8 million by eliminating the need for building a separate teaching hospital for the medical school.

With medical school news breaking in bunches, the House on June 13 gave overwhelming endorsement to school expansion by defeating an amendment proposal by Rep. Ben Tison of Mecklenburg County that would have stricken $28 million from the medical school appropriations. The vote to defeat the amendment gained 70-42 backing.

The Senate then wasted little time in endorsing the appropriation of $32 million for the medical school as part of a $6.5 billion state budget.

Finally, on June 25, the N.C. General Assembly gave official approval to funding of the controversial medical school expansion. The action that earmarked roughly $32 million for the program ended a ten-year effort to establish a four-year degree-granting medical education program in the east.

In a related development, Dr. William Edward Laupus was appointed Dean of the ECU School of Medicine after a search was conducted by a 12-member committee to find a suitable head for the new program. Laupus had served as professor and chairman of the Department of Pediatrics at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

Hospital Construction

As medical school developments unfolded, work on the county's new hospital west of the city continued and reached 70 per cent completion by the end of the year. A target completion date in 1976 drew closer as the vast medical complex continued to take shape.

Accreditation Problems

In a shocking report on June 17, trustees of Pitt Memorial learned that the administration had been notified by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals that Pitt had received a decision of non-accreditation from the commission's board.

The news was softened in July when the hospital gained accreditation. Representatives of Pitt Memorial traveled to Chicago to argue the initial decision of non-accreditation and to document material in favor of full accreditation.

New Mayor

The 1975 municipal elections in Greenville gained added flavor with the announcement that City Councilman Percy Cox would oppose long time Mayor S. Eugene West. Cox, however, would not be on the ballot as he failed to file for the mayor's post but would seek the position as a write-in candidate.

Cox defeated West by over 800 votes in the Oct. 7 mayoral balloting and joined incumbent Council members Mrs. Mildred McGrath, Joe Taft Jr., John Howard, Clarence Gray and Dr. Frank Fuller, as well as a newcomer, the Rev. William Hadden, on the city governing board.

The new Council, meeting for the first time in December, elected Mrs. McGrath as mayor pro-tem, succeeding Cox who had held the post for several years under West.

With the swearing in of the new administration, West closed out his tenure in office and turned over the gavel to Cox. The former mayor had served in city government for all but a few years since 1953.

In another elections matter, Greenville attorney Clifton Everett Jr. was appointed to the Pitt County Board of Elections as the Democratic representative, succeeding J. B. Spilman Jr. who had served for several years. James C. Lanier Jr. and Thomas C. Herndon were reappointed as Republican members of the three-man board.

Flooding

The elements played a big part in the news picture of Pitt County during the year and although the area escaped heavy snow or freezing rain to any extent, more than an ample supply of rain fell in the early months. Flooding resulted as the Tar River overflowed its banks and placed much of the area immediately north of the river underwater.

March rains dumped more water into the river than it could hold and by the time the Tar crested late in the month, the level had risen to almost 19 feet. Sewer problems resulted from the high water and residents living in low lying areas were advised to boil their drinking water.

Almost by prediction, the heavy rains of March gave way to the dry spells of June and July and farmers looked to the sky for the rain that many had cursed during the flooding. The needed rain fell on July 6 but it was accompanied by unwanted hail which joined heavy winds to inflict scattered damages.

The rains returned in heavy fashion in July and flooding occurred once again on the Tar River. This time, the river crested below the 18.9 foot level of March but still caused renewed problems in the northern sections of the city, particularly in Meadowbrook. The July flooding resulted in the evacuation of from 15-20 families from the Meadowbrook area.

High tornado-like winds in March damaged farm buildings, homes, trees and power lines in widely scattered areas with the heaviest and most concentrated damage occurring on the western edge of the city. There, two tobacco warehouses and a block-long storage shed at a building supply firm received heavy damage.

The Pitt County winds followed an earlier tornado that cut a 19-mile path through Beaufort County, injuring more than a score of persons and inflicting property damages estimated at some $800,000.

High winds in July demolished a mobile home and damaged two others on Rt. 1, Bethel.

And, only hours before 1976 arrived high winds again inflicted damages in several sections of the city and county, knocking out power on the Greenville Utilities system. Heaviest property damage occurred when a tree fell on a house and automobile at 308 Elizabeth Street. Damage was estimated at $2,500 to the house and $500 to the car.

Groundbreakings

Groundbreakings and dedications marking new construction and completion of new structures dotted the news during the year as Pitt County enjoyed a banner construction year.

Groundbreaking for a new post office in Simpson got the year started in mid-January, followed by earth-turning ceremonies for the new Boise Cascade plant north of Greenville in late January. The firm will produce composite cans for Procter & Gamble's Pringle Potato Chips.

East Carolina's new $2.7 million Mendenhall Student Center was dedicated in February and the board of directors of the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop & Vocational Rehabilitation Center awarded contracts in March totaling $306,680 for a 12,000 square foot addition to the present facility north of the city.

Ground was broken in April for a new Home Savings & Loan Association branch office at the corner of Arlington Boulevard and Commerce Street. Container Corp. announced in May that it would open a plant here to produce cans for Pringle's at its N. Greene Street-Industrial Boulevard site.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held in May for the new Pitt County Mental Health Center on a site adjacent to the new hospital. Dedication of the new multi-million dollar Eaton Plant was also held in May and North Carolina National Bank's brand new facility at the corner of First and Greene Streets was opened in October.

Work began in October on a new boat works plant north of Greenville. North American Fiberglass Corp. announced that it would produce open fiberglass fishing boats at the 12,500 square foot facility.

November saw the opening of Atlantic Credit Corporation's new office here as well as the dedication of Sonoco Products Company's Composite Can Division plant at Winterville. In December, the new John E. Cameron Bridge on NC 118 over Contentnea Creek at Grifton was dedicated.

Mall-Pool Opened

The year also saw the culmination of two long-awaited projects here as the city's new $257,000 swimming pool at Guy Smith Stadium was finally completed and opened for summer traffic and the much-discussed downtown mall on Evans Street was constructed.

A large crowd of swimmers and onlookers was on hand on June 27 as city officials officially opened the municipal pool to the public. Greenville had been without a pool for years and determined efforts finally saw the awarding of pool contracts and construction.

Work on the two-block open mall began in July as physical results of a struggle that began years ago for construction of the new facility finally surfaced. The facility was officially opened in November in dedication ceremonies. Taking part in the opening was Mayor Eugene West who had led the fight to gain approval of the mall program.

Fire Station Approval

The acceptance of bids totaling $242,209 for the construction of a new fire station on Memorial Drive ended another heated issue that had drawn considerable interest on the part of local citizens who questioned the station's proposed location.

A series of City Council discussions with residents during public meetings followed the initial announcement that the city planned to build a new station. A court suit was also initiated to prevent the city from building the station on the 2405-2407 site but the matter was resolved.

Disturbance

Another controversy involving the city arose following a Halloween night disturbance in downtown Greenville that resulted in some 57 persons mostly ECU students, being arrested on charges stemming from their alleged failure to disperse.

The melee, which resulted in damages downtown estimated at some $3,700, set off a chain of protest actions from the university student body, mostly questioning police measures used in breaking up the Halloween night gathering. Local tavern owners and entertainment facility proprietors decided to close their establishments on Saturday night following the disturbance.

The City Council held an open meeting to hear the student side of the issue on Nov. 11 and less than a week later the ECU Student Government Association voted to boycott downtown businesses in protest of the police action. The boycott was later cancelled and all but ten or so of the charges stemming from the disturbance were dismissed.

The Halloween night clash was not the first between students and police as seven persons had been arrested in July on charges of failing to disperse following a disturbance involving 250-300 persons who blocked Fifth Street between Cotanche and Reade. Tear gas was used by police in both the July and Halloween night incidents.

City-Population Grows

The first local annexation of property under the new state Satellite Annexation Law took place in January as Lake Ellsworth, a 209-acre subdivision, became a part of the city. Local officials took part in ceremonies that included the placement of a new city limit sign at the subdivision.

As the city grew, so did its population. Greenville's population figure was revised in January to 33,052 as a result of the submission of additional data by the city to the State Department of Administration.

Fires

Fires, while not as prevalent in 1975 as in recent years, did result in high property damage in several instances. Even worse, several lives were lost in county blazes.

In March, a fire of undetermined origin occurred at the Procter & Gamble plant construction site north of Greenville. No estimates of damages were made available.

An April 23 blaze heavily damaged an apartment at the Village Green Apartment complex off Tenth Street.

Four children, ranging in age from four to eight, died on the same night when fire swept through their wood frame home on Elkstown Road east of Grimesland.

A late night fire on May 10 destroyed a tin-covered storage building at the corner of 12th and Pitt Streets, resulting in more than $40,000 in damages.

On May 20, a pre-dawn fire caused extensive damage to Greenville Furniture and Appliance Co. on Dickinson Avenue and heavy water damage resulted from efforts to fight a fire at Fred Webb Inc. grain elevators on N. Greene Street on Dec. 10.

In addition to the major blazes, many Pitt County residents were affected by fires which either destroyed or damaged their homes. Few days passed during the year without such a blaze occurring.

New City Manager

City Manager William H. Carstarphen resigned in February in order to accept the city manager's post in Spartanburg, S.C. Carstarphen had served as city manager here since October of 1972.

Soon after Carstarphen's resignation, the City Council named former city manager Harry Hagerty to man the position on an interim basis while a search was conducted for a full-time manager.

The search was concluded with an announcement in September that Eden City Manager James E. Caldwell had accepted the Greenville job, effective around the first of the new year.

Deaths

Greenville lost several of its finest citizens during the year. Greenville attorney and former mayor J. Con Lanier died in February at the age of 84 while Charles White, 75, president of White's Stores, died in March.

Retired Greenville postmaster J. Knott Proctor, 79, died in May and former mayor and Greenville tobacco warehouseman B. B. Sugg Sr. died on June 12 at the age of 91.

Retired North Carolina National Bank executive John T. Marston Jr. died in October at the age of 62. East Carolina University Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich died on Oct. 24, also at the age of 62.

Doctors Arrested

Two prominent Greenville physicians, Dr. Andrew Best and Dr. W. S. Dawson, were arrested during 1975 and charged on several counts each of illegally dispensing drugs. The arrests followed

Ronnie Milsap Heads Cast Of January 10 Country Show

Ronnie Milsap, Dolly Parton, the Osborne Brothers and O.B. McClinton are the entertainers to be featured in Country Spotlight Number 17, sponsored by the Kinston Police Department, to be held at the North Lenoir High School Gym in Kinston.

Two concerts will be given in this first 1976 Country Spotlight presentation, at 6 p.m. and again at 10 p.m. on Saturday, January 10. Reserved seat tickets are available at $6, $5 and $4.

A native of the mountain village of Robbinsville, N.C., Milsap is a virtuoso of keyboard, stringed and percussion instruments. Blind since birth, he attended the State School for the Blind in Raleigh. During his 12 years in school there, he became thoroughly familiar with the music of classical composers and names Mozart and Bach as his favorites.

Nevertheless, he never lost interest in the country music he heard in early boyhood, and eventually won out over reluctant teachers who let him form a rock group with three other blind boys from the school. As the "Apparitions," they performed frequently at around Raleigh and Chapel Hill.

Progressing from one group to another—playing various styles of music—country, rock, jazz and experimental music with films and lights, Milsap continued his recording career, with hits like Denver and Loving You Is A Natural Thing.

Then, Milsap and his wife Joyce made a decision to go all-out for country music, and moved to Nashville. Hits the blind musician has chalked up since that decision include songs like All Together Now; That Girl Who Waits on Tables, Pure Love and Please Don't Tell Me How The Story Ends. He received the 1974 CMA Male Vocalist of the Year Award and a Grammy from the Recording Academy.

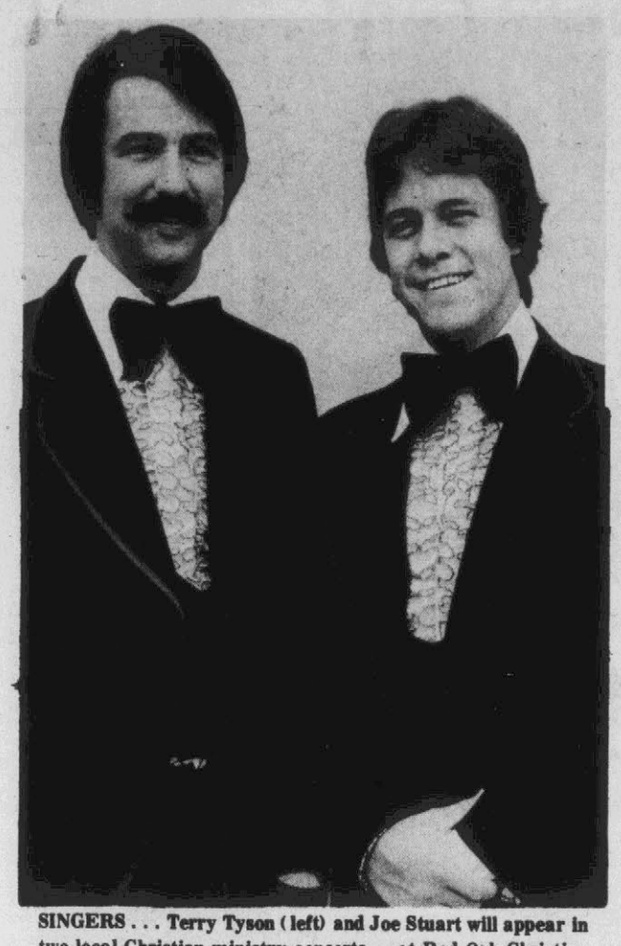
Well known blond star Dolly Parton, current holder of "female vocalist of the year" award, is appearing with The Traveling Family Band. The Tennessee born singer has dozens of big hit records, including I Will Always Love You, The Seeker, Kentucky Gambler, and In The Good Old Days (When Times Were Bad).

From Kentucky comes the Osborne Brothers, Sonny and Bobby, voted for five consecutive years as the nation's Best Bluegrass Group. Regular members of the Grand Ole Opry for several years, the Osborne Brothers have recorded big winners like Ruby, Rocky Top, and Take Me Home, Country Roads.

Special guest star O.B. McClinton, who refers to himself as "The Black Irishman," hails from the farming fields of Mississippi. An entertainer acclaimed for his music and his sunny style of entertaining, McClinton is a veteran of four years service in the Air Force and has recorded numerous singles and an album, O.B. From Senatobia.

RONNIE MILSAP . . . a blind musician from western North Carolina, leads the parade of talent coming to Kinston on January 10 in Country Spotlight No. 17, sponsored by the Kinston Police Department.

Terry Tyson, Joe Stuart In Ministry Concerts



SINGERS . . . Terry Tyson (left) and Joe Stuart will appear in two local Christian ministry concerts — at Red Oak Christian Church on Thursday and at Winterville Missionary Baptist Church on Friday. Both performances are set for 7:30 p.m. and the public is invited.

Baritone Terry Tyson and tenor Joe Stuart will appear at the Red Oak Christian Church on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in a concert of Christian ministry music, and again at the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Tyson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tyson of Henderson, is also the grandson of Mrs. Leota Tyson of Greenville.

Both musicians are graduates of Ohio State University, Columbus and are recipients of honors from the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Tyson performed the lead role in the premiere of Szololay's Blood Wedding and has also performed in Kurt Weil's Das Kleine Mahogany.

Stuart has been accepted into the Metropolitan Opera Studio in New York.

The two have performed separately and together with the Mansfield Opera Company, the Columbus and Cincinnati Symphony Orchestras, the Robert Shaw Chorale, Kenley Players and the Miami Opera Company.

Since September, along with their accompanist, Bruce Linquist, they have been on a singing tour at churches throughout ten states.

The two will sing traditional hymns, gospel songs, show tunes and operatic arias. The public is invited to attend.

Three With Greenville Ties Taking Part

Final Auditions Set For Today

Final auditions for the 1976 Young Artist Competition sponsored annually by the North Carolina Symphony will take place tonight at 7:30 in Memorial Auditorium in Raleigh.

This free performance will feature three finalists in both the string and vocal categories performing with the North Carolina Symphony under the baton of Assistant Conductor James E. Ogle, Jr.

Among the approximately 75 entries in this year's contest are three musicians with Greenville ties. Betty Aldridge, a Raleigh native who now resides in Greenville, is among the mezzo-soprano entries. Ms. Aldridge studied music at East Carolina University and recently performed as soloist at two performances of the "Messiah" presented by the North Carolina Symphony.

William K. Davis, a baritone, received his bachelor of music degree from East Carolina University. A recipient of the A.J. Fletcher Music Scholarship for two years, he won the 1974 ECU Concerto Competition.

Donna Stephenson, a soprano who now resides in New York City, has performed as soloist with the ECU Orchestra under Maestro Robert Hause. She also has appeared with the Birmingham and Jacksonville Symphonies.

These individuals, along with other musicians under the age of 30, are competing for a first prize of $800 in each category and the opportunity to perform with the North Carolina Symphony during the 1976-77 season.

Total cash prizes, awarded in the names of Kathleen and Joseph M. Bryan of Greensboro, to $2500. A panel of musicians, headed by John Gosling who is Artistic Director and Conductor of the North Carolina Symphony, will determine the winners.

In addition to top awards, special Bryan prizes will be given to outstanding entries from North Carolina and two $500 scholarships to the North Carolina School of the Arts will be awarded to entries in grades 9 through 12.

N.C. Composers To Appear In Symposium

Twenty North Carolina composers and musicians will participate in a January symposium to be co-sponsored by Salem College and the North Carolina School of the Arts and funded by a $2,500 grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation.

The public will be invited to attend, free, all events — performances and reading sessions of new music, lectures, and demonstrations by composers — to be held January 27, 28, and 29 at the Salem Fine Arts Center. A premiere of two new chamber operas will be held at the Reynolda House the last evening of the symposium.

Organizers of the innovative conference are Mrs. Margaret Sandresky, of the Salem College School of Music, and Mrs. Ann Listokin, who teaches piano at Salem and N.C.S.A.

"Our basic idea is to provide a way to put the community in touch with the contemporary musical scene in our state, as well as to have a forum where composers and performers can share musical ideas," they explained.

In addition to Mrs. Sandresky and Mrs. Listokin, artists who will donate their time and talent will include: Dan Foley, Sherwood Shaffer, and Jay Williams, N.C.S.A.; Barbara Rowan, Roger Hannay, and Thomas Brosh, UNC-Chapel Hill; Arthur Hunkins, Roy Prendergast, Eddie Bass and Roman Lavore, UNC-Greensboro; Frederick Byers, Greensboro College; Donna Robertson, Mars Hill College; Marvin Lamb and Ross Albert, Atlantic Christian College; Otto Henry, East Carolina University; Annette Leseige, Wake Forest University; Thomas Turner, UNC-Charlotte, and Hunter Johnson, of Benson.

Daytime programming will include talks by former chancellor of N.C.S.A. and now a member of its faculty, Robert Ward, and Robert Suderburg, chancellor; also, electronic demonstrations by Williams and Hunkins, readings of music by selected composition students, open rehearsals of the two operas, and discussions.

Evening programs will be music by North Carolina composers in Shirley Recital Hall of the Fine Arts Center and the performance of the two one-act operas, "Erydice" by Fussell and "The Death of Mozart" by Willey at Reynolda House January 29.

WITN Features Opera

WITN-AM Radio of Washington that recently changed its format and calls it "Easy Listening" music has added something new, a real treat for lovers of opera music. The new series of programs started this month and are to continue until April 17, 1976.

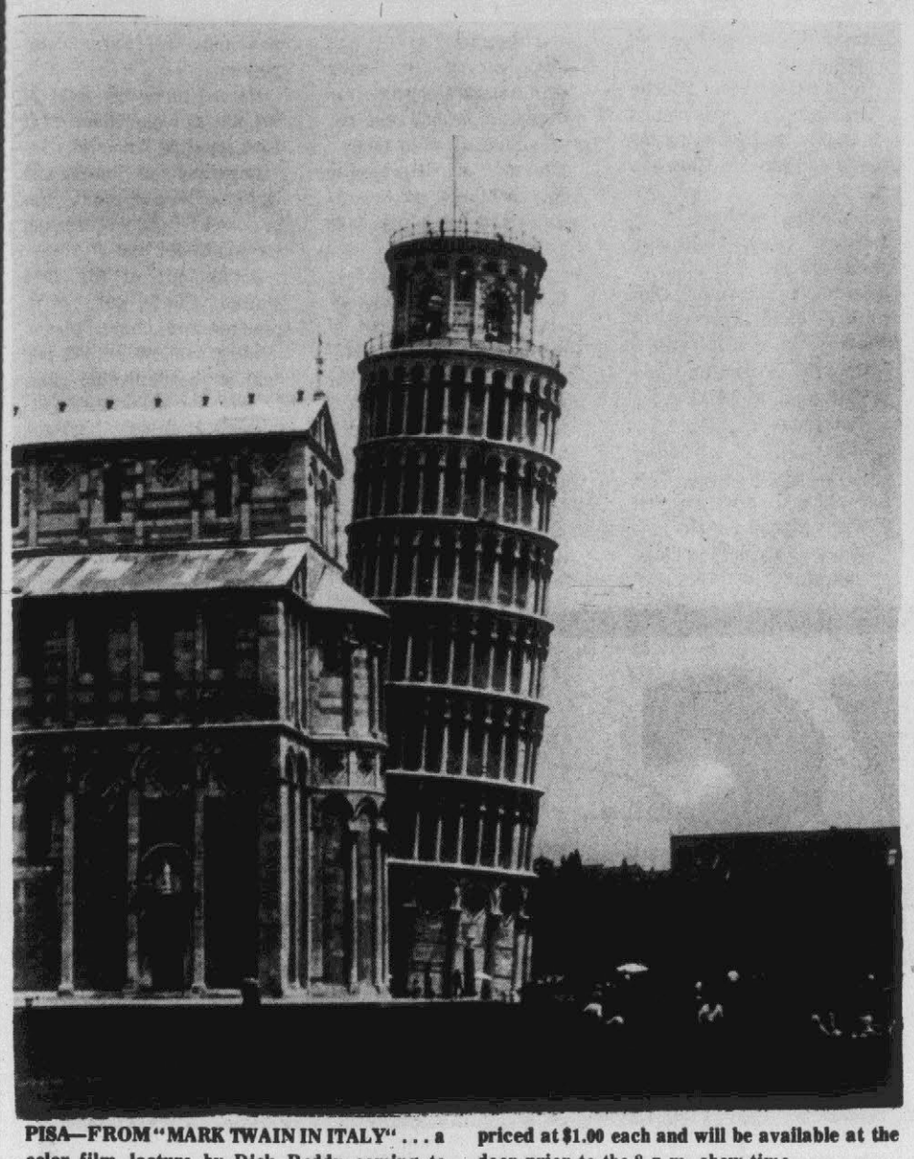
Mark Twain Subject Of Next ECU Lecture



PISA—FROM "MARK TWAIN IN ITALY" . . . a color film lecture by Dick Reddy coming to Mendenhall on January 8. Public tickets are priced at $1.00 each and will be available at the door prior to the 8 p.m. show time.

"Mark Twain in Italy", a color film depicting Twain's comical adventures in Italy will come to Mendenhall Student Center Theatre on January 8, under the sponsorship of the Student Union Lecture Committee.

Produced and personally narrated by Dick Reddy, this film traces Mark's journeys to Italy; from his 1867 Innocents Abroad sojourn aboard the steamer, Quaker City, to his last tragic day in 1905 in Florence where he lost his wife of 33 years.

Beginning in 1867, Mark was to traverse that incredible Italian landscape countless times—writing in detail of his every experience.

Although Reddy holds both a Bachelor's and Master's degree in Journalism, his intense interest in travel and photography resulted from his studies of Cinematography at the University of Southern California. Since entering the lecture field, Reddy has been warmly received by audiences across the country. He brings a fresh, unique approach to his films both in his informative and entertaining narration and in his artistic photography.

Admission is by season ticket or by individual tickets priced at $1.00 per person.

British Hit Song Is Over 1,000 Years Old

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — One of the hits on a new British list of top ten tunes is a thousand years old.

Johann Sebastian Bach wrote another of them, and two come from Handel's "Messiah."

These are "The Top Ten Religious Tunes," compiled on a new BBC record after a vote by thousands of television viewers. Most are tunes — not all of them hymns — which have kept their popularity through long reaches of time.

The idea of religious "top ten" originated with the BBC television program "Anno Domini," said Sylvia Cartner, a BBC religious music producer.

The program's producers decided to establish which tunes were most loved by the most people. They asked viewers for their votes.

"The response was overwhelming," Miss Cartner said. "People wrote in in droves." Some voters backed just one song, but others submitted complete "top ten" lists of their own.

BBC officials were forced to devise a points system to score the poll results. But from the earliest counting there was no doubt about the eventual winner.

That old favorite hymn, "The Old Rugged Cross," was number one "by a very large majority," the BBC said. Its research also uncovered the fact that this is the tune most requested of Salvation Army bands when they play in British pubs.

Some of the other "top ten" were almost as predictable — Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for example, or the "Hallelujah Chorus" and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" from Handel's "Messiah."

The most ancient of the "Top Ten's" words are those of the 23rd Psalm, set to music by David Grant as "The Lord's My Shepherd."

Almost as old — it's the 1,000-year-old song — is "Veni Creator Spiritus," whose words and music are attributed to Rabanus Maurus, a Bishop of Mainz who died in the year 856.

For contrast there is Sir Arthur Sullivan, of Gilbert & Sullivan fame. He wrote the music for the standard hymn, "Onward! Christian Soldiers."

The BBC record — its sleeve adorned with NASA photographs of the earth taken on Apollo flights — enlists such top musical names as Soprano Joan Sutherland, the London Symphony Orchestra and Chorus under Sir Adrian Boult and the London Emmanuel Choir.

But the Manchester Grammar School's teenagers are the performers of a hymn tune which climbed into regular pop music charts when it was recorded by a bagpipe band. In the BBC poll "Amazing Grace" placed no higher than No. 9.

The full "Top Ten Religious Tunes" list on the record, distributed by Polydor, is:

1. The Old Rugged Cross
2. The Lord's My Shepherd
3. The Hallelujah Chorus
4. I Know That My Redeemer Liveth
5. Veni Creator Spiritus
6. Onward! Christian Soldiers
7. O, Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go
8. Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring
9. Amazing Grace

Bicentennial Portrait Show

It was Martha Washington who convinced her 40-year-old husband George to sit for a portrait by Charles Willson Peale in 1772.

That early portrait of Washington — the first of about 70 portraits Peale painted of the first president — will come to the N. C. Museum of Art in January as part of a bicentennial exhibition. The exhibition will close February 1.

Entitled "18th and 19th Century Portraits of the Washington, Custis and Lee Families," the show consists of portraits of six generations of three families that profoundly influenced the development of the United States.

The paintings were subsequently given by family descendants to Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., which has lent them for this exhibition.

One of the North Carolina museum's own paintings will be shown with the Washington and Lee group. It is the "porthole" portrait of George Washington painted by Rembrandt Peale, a son of Charles Willson Peale. A painting by another member of the Peale family, James, is also in the show.

Also in the show is a portrait of Lafeyette by Charles Willson Peale, commissioned by Washington in 1779 as a companion piece to his own portrait. Other artists represented are John Wollaston, William Edward West, Robert Edge Pine, Theodore Pine, Benjamin West, Clindinst and Junius Brutus Stearns.

—A Review—

A Valuable Survey On Art In Public Places

Art in Public Places in the United States. Compiled by Dr. Emma Lila Fundaburk and Thomas G. Davenport. Bowling Green, Ohio. Bowling Green University Popular Press. 1975. Large format, 384 pps, illustrated. $20.00

A book such as Art in Public Places in the United States must be evaluated on the basic intent of the book—it's approach and scope—how well it meets a rather broad, inclusive criteria.

In effect, the volume under review is a cross between a catalog, a textbook and a general guide to every imaginable type of public art. As such, it works well. In the absence of a truly comprehensive survey of art to be seen and enjoyed in public places (which would probably entail several regional volumes), Art in Public Places in the United States is a commendable step in the right direction.

Dr. Emma Lila Fundaburk and Thomas G. Davenport, who jointly compiled the text and selected representative photographs for the volume, have candidly pointed out a number of limitations. For example, in the preface they note: "No attempt is made in this book to describe or discuss the intrinsic artistic values or inadequacies of artworks shown; and, at another point . . . "It was not possible to include all materials sent to the compilers, because of the practical limitations on the size of the book."

Taking into account these acknowledged drawbacks, there's still a substantial body of material, textually and photographically, to qualify this book as an excellent reference tool as well as one to be enjoyed by art enthusiasts.

Part I. Artists and Architects, encompassing some 130 pages, is devoted to a wide range of topics with excellent articles drawn from art, craft, architectural magazines, from books and pamphlets, from studies and seminars, and other sources. A number of photographs are included in this section to illustrate the text.

Part II. Photographs, over 220 pages, shows hundreds of paintings, sculptures, architectural details, prints, murals etc, in adequately reproduced black and white photographs. There is a minimum of text, just what's needed to identify the work and its location. One particular plus is the inclusion of a number of photographs showing artists at work, individually and in group community projects.

Perhaps the most useful aspect of Art in Public Places in the United States is that of making the public more conscious of significant peripheral factors that directly and indirectly influence the success (or lack of it) in fostering a program of collecting and maintaining public art.

Public art cannot exist in an isolated atmosphere, and this book rightly indicates and confirms the necessity for public awareness, participation, funding and sustaining interest within a community.

Due emphasis on practical considerations is a factor that writers on art often tend to shun. It's good, as in this volume, to be reminded that art, like any other worthwhile undertaking, will never be able to fulfill its highest public function unless and until it can be accorded its proper framework within a community's total life.

"It is hoped . . ." the compilers note . . . "the public will, through its ability of collective funding, provide laws and ordinances to guarantee in architecture . . . and provide other funds for programs in which the visual arts together with other arts can continue their momentum of development, so that original works of art will be included in more public places in the United States."

In this context, Art in Public Places in the United States is a valuable survey of what has already been done. Even for the layman or student fairly well abreast of recent trends, the full scope of public art now in existence will come as something of a pleasant surprise.

Public art, and the places where it's found are equally varied—decorative, mechanical, religious, mural, fine arts and commercial art; in museums, libraries, parks, on buildings, public schools and universities, etc.

For a means of discovering important trends and attitudes in the mainstream on public art in America, Art in Public Places in the United States is perhaps the single best book on the subject now available.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By LINDA M. STANCILL

There are many people nowadays who would no more think of being without house plants than they would be without curtains at the windows. If house plants have become a part of your way of life, ALL ABOUT HOUSE PLANTS is your kind of book. William Davidson draws on unrivalled knowledge not only to describe and tell you how to grow the pick of house plants, but also to explain how you can use them to best advantage. He points out that they key to success is to follow a few simple rules. The heart of this illustrated guide is the alphabetical list of good plants—concise, highly informative, and something you will turn to again and again for advice.

Betty Massingham's GARDEN FLOWERS FOR THE HOUSE is a comprehensive guide not only to flower arrangement but to the growth of flowers and shrubs that will provide variety of shape and colouring for flower decoration throughout the year. She describes flower arrangements for the various seasons, beginning with spring bulbs, blossom and flowering shrubs, and goes on to summer where she concentrates on colour, the contrast of foliage and flowers, the fragrance of wild flowers. The autumn chapter shows how one can achieve dramatic efforts by the use of foliage with flowers, or if dried flowers, berries and foliage are used.

PLANTS AND FLOWERS IN THE HOME by Violet Stevenson offers complete success in keeping and arranging your house plants and flowers. She describes in detail how to choose and look after the right plants for your home, whether foliage or flowering, or cacti and bulbs. Arrangements of all kinds are illustrated and instructions given on how to create beautiful groupings of plants. She gives advice on making attractive mixed arrangements of plants and cut flowers with jardinieres, bottle and dish gardens, to give spectacular effects.

GARDENING WEEK BY WEEK by Xenia Field offers useful tips and friendly advice on how to get the most from your garden all the year round. Specific hints are given for different zones. The superb illustrations show the magnificent range of flowers and plants that you can enjoy in your garden by careful planning, week by week, throughout the year.

In PLANTS FOR CONNOISSEURS, Peter Coats, a leading expert on modern gardening, presents his choices of the very best varieties of the most popular plant families. Chosen for more than their beauty, all are easily available, suited to American soil and climate, the best plants for every use—for architectural form, naturalizing, foliage and ground cover; for waterside, colour and scent, sun and shade.

Gingold In Children's Film

Noted Irish actress Hermione Gingold stars in Winter Of The Witch, a modern fairy tale about a young boy's encounter with a 300 year old witch. The boy and his mother discover that the witch has first claim to the house they have moved to in the country.

Also showing in the children's film series are three other films, The Fox and the Jug, Phillip and the White Colt, and Bozo's Adventure in Ecuador.

Show times are: Carver Library, 4 p.m. Tuesday; Sheppard Memorial Library, 7:30 p.m. Thursday; and East Branch Library, 4 p.m. Friday.

an undercover investigation conducted by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Dr. Best, charged on six counts, was tried in Superior Court here and found guilty in November on two of the drug-related charges. The physician was sentenced to two 12-month consecutive terms, suspended on payment of a $1,000 fine and court costs in each case.

Awards-New Positions

A variety of key appointments were made during the year, as well as the presentation of a number of awards.

They included: appointment of Dr. F. Simmons Patterson as executive director of the Eastern Area Health Education Center with 24-county responsibility; election of Don Parrott as president of the Pitt County Boys' Club executive board; naming of Chet Emerson as the new executive director of the Boys' Club;

Awarding of Outstanding Young Educator citation to Mrs. Betsy Warren, reading resource teacher at Agnes Fullilove School; presenation of the Jaycees' Distinguised Service Award to Bill McDonald; selection of Clyde Owens as recipient of the Jaycees' first Boss of the Year Award; selection of McDonald by the North Carolina Jaycees as one of the top five Outstanding Young Men in the state;

Awarding of Southern Conference Coach of the Year honors to ECU basketball head coach Dave Patton; election of Karl Faser as president of the Pitt County United Fund; naming of Curtis Hendrix as president of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association; selection of Janice Buck as Citizen of the Year;

Election of George Coffman as chairman of Greenville Utilities Commission; appointment of Tom Taft as campaign chairman for the 1975 Pitt United Fund; selection of painter Francis Speight as co-recipient of the O. Max Gardner Award for sustained contributions in the field of creative work in the state;

Installation of Hal Smith and Linda Asbell as presidents of the Jaycees and Jaycettes, respectively; election of Sen. Vernon White as chairman of the Pitt Technical Institute Board of Trustees; naming of Julian Vainwright as business manager at ECU and Alex White as comptroller;

Election of Burney Tucker as chairman of the Pitt Board of County Commissioners; presentation of the Jaycees' Outstanding Young Layman Award to Bruce Jackson; and election of B. B. Sugg Jr. as chairman of the Greenville board of NCNB.

Dr. Joe Pou, who was associated with Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. here for over 14 years, resigned in June to accept a position with the University of Georgia at Athens.

Action by the Council

The city had more than its share of controversial matters during the year and the City Council was called onto make decisions that sometimes drew criticism.

In March, following weeks of debate over the city's Animal Control Ordinance, the Council adopted an amendment to the ordinance calling for a 24-hour leash law for dogs. A large gathering was on hand for the Council meeting and everyone was not pleased at the new restriction.

Heated debate was the order again during the summer when the issue of curfew and general use of the new Jaycee Park near Eastern Elementary School surfaced.

A motion to have the Recreation Commission handle the park operation schedule resulted in a tie vote and the result of that non-action left the park under a 10:30 p.m. curfew.

All decisions by the Council were not unpopular, however, as March action by the governing board saw the approval of an application by the city for some $1.9 million in federal Community Development Program funds for the year.

In addition to the $1.9 million in first year funds, which were authorized in July, the city found itself in a position to qualify for $2 million per year for two additional years. A variety of projects were authorized under the new program and hope was fostered for work in critical areas of the city, especially in Meadowbrook

Sports

Area sports gained its share of the headlines in 1975 with Rose High School accomplishments topping the list. Rose captured its first 4-A championship in the spring by taking all the honors in baseball and then defied the odds in the fall by winning all four of its playoff games on the road to take the state 4-A football title.

The high school also enjoyed a banner year in basketball, making the playoffs for the time since becoming a 4-A school. The conference wrestling trophy also went to Rose as the school closed out its best year ever in sports.

ECU captured conference crowns in swimming and wrestling while Roanoke High School in Martin County took the State 2-A football title. Williamston won the State 3-A baseball championship and its girl's basketball team gained the state finals. D. H. Conley High School placed third in the State 3-A basketball playoffs and also placed in the top five in the state in wrestling. Bear Grass was runner-up in the 1-A baseball race.

East Carolina's Pirates also earned a berth in the Commissioners National Invitational Basketball Tournament in March at Louisville, Ky., but lost to Arizona 94-78.

Bill Cain, assistant athletic director at ECU, was named to the top post following the death of Clarence Stasavich in October.

Other Highlights

Other news highlights included:

Grifton's successful fifth annual Shad Festival in April;

Record collection and pledge total of $207,204 for United Fund;

Approval of Medical District Development Plan for medical area on the western edge of the city;

Incorporation of the Village of Simpson;

Adoption by City Council of property tax rate of 60 cents per $100 valuation, a figure that was some four cents lower than in 1974;

Approval by Pitt County Commissioners of same tax rate, 62 and one-half cents per $100 valuation, as in 1974;

Refusal of University of North Carolina Board of Governors to reelect ECU Trustees chairman Roddy Jones to the board;

Completion of transaction involving purchase for city of 346-acre park area north of the river with state and federal funds;

Ayden's first Collard Festival;

Achievement of the Greenville Rescue Squad's heavy duty rescue team in finishing second in state competition and setting precedent by having two female members take part in previous all-male competition;

Department of Housing and Urban Development approval of 117 units of housing for Southside; and Attainment of the 1975 United Fund goal with pledges and contributions totaling $230,208 or 103 per cent of the campaign goal.

The Highway Patrol reported that 17 traffic deaths were recorded in the county during the year. That figure did not include the three fatalities that occurred in Greenville during 1975.

Frescoes Unearthed

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Workmen doing restoration work on the ancient San Lorenzo basilica here have found what art experts believe to be previously unknown frescoes by Michelangelo.

If the discovery in the new sacristy is confirmed, it would be the second find of a work attributed to the great Renaissance master in two years. The new sacristy was used as a chapel for the Medici family and it contains their tombs.

Workmen found the frescoes when they broke through a trapdoor that led to a basement in the sacristy. When experts chipped off the lime covering the walls, they found magnificent murals showing two angels, a cloaked man and a figure that possibly represents Christ.

Luciano Berti, the superintendent of galleries and chapels in Florence, announced the news of the discovery over the national television network. Another expert involved in the restoration project is Prof. Paolo del Pogetto, an expert on Medici chapels.

The original basilica of San Lorenzo, on the piazza carrying the same name, predates Michelangelo, who was born in 1475 and died in 1564. However, it was destroyed by fire in 1423 and rebuilt over the years. Michelangelo began working on the sacristy in 1521.

He worked on the project for 16 years and some art critics speculated he did the basement frescoes on his own initiative and kept them secret in his passion for privacy.

The sacristy contains the figures Day and Night, the latter being the last known work of Michelangelo in Florence before he left the area in anger at the abolition of the republic.

Restoration work in the basilica is still underway and is not expected to be completed before March or April.

In July 1974, the first discovery of a new work attributed to Michelangelo was found. The ruins of a demolished house in the ancient Trastevere section of Rome yielded what art experts called the original head of Michelagelo's Pieta Rondanini. They said the artist was probably dissatisfied with his carving and tossed it away.

Deacons Do It Again, Downing State

GREENSBORO, N.C (UPI) — Junior Jerry Schellenberg scored 31 points including 18 in the second half Saturday night to lead Wake Forest to a 93-78 championship victory over eight-ranked North Carolina State in the big Four basketball Tournament.

The win virtually assured the Deacons of a spot in the national rankings. Friday night they upset third-ranked North Carolima 95-83. North Carolina, behind Walter Duvis' 20 points, beat Duke 77-74 in the earlier consolation round.

Schellenberg was named the tourney's Most Valuable Player in Wake Forest's successful defense of the tournament title.

Wake Forest held a 46-38 halftime lead and led by as many as 10 before the Wolfpack went ahead 53-52 on a basket by Kenny Carr with 14:56 remaining.

North Carolina State, paced by Carr who had 20 points, led 64-62 before Larry Harrison sank a basket and two free throws to put the Deacons on top for good.

Schellenberg, who had 24 points in the Deacons' victory over North Carolina Friday night, was 13-17 from the floor and hit five of nine shots from the free throw line to keep the Deacons out front.

North Carolina State, pulled to within five points with 5:30 to play but the Wolfpack scored only one basket in the final two and one-half minutes while Wake Forest reeled off 11 points.

Carr, who had a career-high 45 Friday night, fouled out with 1:30 to play. Freshman Steve Walker added 14 and sophomore Al Green tossed in 13 for North Carolina State, now 8-1 for the year.

Wake Forest led 14-7 in the opening five minutes of play before the Wolfpack outscored the Deacons 10-0 to take a three-point advantage. But Wake Forest moved back ahead with 11 minutes to go and upped the lead to eight before intermission.

With Duke leading 66-64, sophomore Phil Ford guided the Tar Heels to eight consecutive points and a 72-66 lead, the largest of the night for either team.

After the two teams traded baskets, Duke moved back to within four points at 74-70 with Jim Spanarkel, who led Duke with 20 points, hitting two free throws with 29 seconds to play. North Carolina's John Kuester then sank two free throws to increase North Carolina's lead to six points.

Paul Fox, who came in after Duke guard Tate Armstrong fouled out, hit one basket with 14 seconds remaining and sank another with nine seconds to play following a North Carolina turnover. Tommy LaGarde, who finished with 19, for North Carolina, then hit the front of a one-and-one situation to seal the win.

Spanarkel went to the line with one second remaining, but missed the free throw and the clock expired before another shot was made.

Davis, who had only six points in North Carolina's loss to Wake Forest Friday night, picked up three quick baskets in a one-minute period early in the game and finished the first half with 12 points.

Ford finished with 14 points and Kuester added 12 for North Carolina, now 7-1 on the season.

Willie Hodge and Mark Crow added 14 points each for the Blue Devils, now 6-3 for the year.

Duke held a 40-38 halftime edge and led in the opening minutes of the second half before North Carolina took the lead at 56-54 with 12:40 to play.

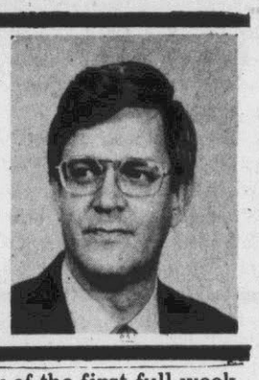
Woody's Ramblin's



BY WOODY PEELE

Today marks the first day of the first full week of the new year. Some 51 weeks from now, when we look back on it, it could be one of the most momentous weeks of the year — or it could be a completely dud week.

A couple of weeks ago, the report came out that the faculty athletic committee of East Carolina University had unanimously voted to recommend that the university drop out of the Southern Conference.

That report was denied by ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins. But other observers were candidly admitting that it just might be true.

Wednesday, the university's board of trustees is scheduled to meet. At that time, if such a proposal was made, it is likely to be brought up, since trustee approval would be the final step for such action.

A number of officials at the university are believed to favor withdrawal at this time, but none of them are admitting it — at least right now.

So Wednesday is going to be watched quite closely to see what happens — if anything.

The pros and cons, of course, are many. We'll try and look at a few of them.

First, the biggest reason for remaining in the Southern is to have a chance at the automatic berths the league receives in the baseball and basketball tournaments of the NCAA. The league champion in the two sports receives a berth in the playoff — now. But there has been some talk about the league losing its automatic spot. It happened a few years ago in baseball, but it was reinstated.

Even if the proposed Division I and I-A within the NCAA is set up, it will affect only football. This could cause some scheduling problems for the Pirates, but this is not certain, pending the final approval of the guidelines for the Division I and I-A classes. Basketball and baseball and the other sports will retain their current status.

Being in a conference also makes it easier in some ways to schedule. Under current Southern Conference rules, however, some schools do not want to play others, so this is really minimal.

As far as getting out is concerned, going independent is always a hard road. A number of schools have traveled it and come out well, while others generally have had it tough. The chances of getting post-season playoff berths are much harder, unless the school has an outstanding program in the particular sport.

And building up a sport to that level isn't easy. It takes money. And it takes a lot more than East Carolina currently has. Whether more people would contribute to the university if it were independent — and therefore playing on a higher level-is questionable.

The Bucs might hope to be included in the Division I setup for football, but this is also questionable.

Perhaps the biggest reason for withdrawing from the league is the fact that it is going downhill fast. Richmond, one of the strongest members, is getting out at the end of this year. Western Carolina is expected to be brought in this spring to replace them.

Comparing the two is needless. If East Carolina leaves too, we can see the conference crumbling shortly.

Perhaps a new, stronger league can be born out of the ashes. The strongest schools of the league can play on a level with the Virginia Techs and the South Carolinas. Both of these schools, along with East Carolina, have expressed interest in joining the Atlantic Coast Conference, and membership in this league has long been a goal of East Carolina. However, it is doubtful that East Carolina would be admitted in the foreseeable future.

So the formation of a new league seems the most likely step if conference membership is to be strived for in the near future.

It will not be an easy step for the university to take. It will involve some difficult days, but in the long run, it could help the university move along.

What is going to happen? We can only make a guess, based on what we've heard from people who don't want to be quoted.

Unless someone changes his mind, there will be a vote come Wednesday on the future of the Pirates and the Southern.

UCLA Defeats Irish By 86-70

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Forward Richard Washington, a 6-foot-10½ junior, and freshman Ray Townsend led UCLA to an 86-70 victory over traditional rival Notre Dame in a nationally-televised basketball game Saturday. The victory was UCLA's 91st straight at Pauley Pavilion.

Washington gunned in 24 points, mostly from the inside, while Townsend, a 6-foot-3 guard from San Jose, popped from the outside for a career high 19 points to shatter the well-conceived zone defenses of Irish Coach Digger Phelps.

Burly forward Marques Johnson added 16 points to the Bruin cause and held Notre Dame's high-scoring forward Adrian Dantley in check most of the afternoon.

Averaging 28.9 points a game, Dantley scored 25 against the Bruins, but Johnson held him without a field goal for the first 10½ minutes of the second half.

UCLA stretched its record to 10-1 after an opening game loss to top-ranked Indiana. Notre Dame, playing one of the toughest schedules in the nation, fell to 5-3, with prior losses to Indiana by three points and Kentucky by two.

The game slowed to a crawl in the first half when UCLA went into a 2-3 zone defense with 5:13 remaining and holding a 34-29 lead.

Notre Dame was obligated to penetrate the zone but Phelps refused to have his players attack the basket, passing around the perimeter. Notre Dame tried to score with just seconds left, but they were unable to hit as the second half went scoreless for the last five minutes.

Dantley led an eight-point Notre Dame blitz to narrow the gap to 64-54, but the Bruins came back to win comfortably.

No Joe

Drivers along Greenville Boulevard did a double take when they went by the Ramada Inn. The sign announced "Welcome Joe Namath."

Unfortunately it was all a hoax.

A spokesman for the motel said that the sign had been put up as a joke on the Inn, and the management chose to let it remain up for a while.

It was a possibility, however since Namath, quarterback of the New York Jets, once played for Alabama, where East Carolina University Coach Pat Dye coached prior to coming here.

Substitute Back Lusk Leads As West Wins Shrine Contest, 21-14

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Craig Penrose of San Diego State gave the West an edge in passing and California All-American Chuck Muncie rushed for 106 yards Saturday in a 21-14 victory over the East in the 51st Shrine East-West game.

Herb Lusk of Long Beach State scored touchdowns on a pair of two-yard runs and Wyoming's Lawrence Gaines ran five yards for the other West touchdown before a Stanford Stadium crowd of 75,000, biggest in the history of the college football all-star game.

The West led 21-7 late in the third period and was in position to score again, but Muncie fumbled and Wisconsin's Steve Wagner recovered at the East eight-yard line.

Following another fumble recovery, the East drove 31 yards and scored on a quarterback sneak by Jeff Grantz of South Carolina in the opening minutes of the final period. Grantz threw a nine-yard touchdown pass to Gary Fencik of Yale in the third quarter to cut a West lead to 14-7.

The West broke a three-game losing streak and has a 25-21-5 lead in the series.

Shortly after Grantz' touchdown sneak, Duke linebacker Dave Meier intercepted a pass by Penrose and returned the ball 17 yards to the West 27. But the West defense held, and Lonnie Perrin missed his fourth field goal attempt of the game, from 50 yards away.

Penrose completed 16 of 28 passes for 187 yards and New Mexico quarterback Steve Myer added six completions and 62 yards to the West passing attack. Tight end David Hill from Texas A&I caught seven passes, with two receptions setting up touchdowns, and Steve Rivera of Cal snared six passes.

The East relied more on rushing until late in the game, but Sonny Collins of Kentucky had only 46 yards as the team rushing leader. Grantz and Gene Swick of Toledo combined for 11 completions in 31 pass attempts for 144 yards.

Muncie, who also caught three passes for 37 yards, was voted the game's top offensive player. Defensive lineman Kim Bokamper of San Jose State won the defensive award.

Viking Aide To Seattle Post

SEATTLE (AP) — Jack Patera, defensive line coach of the Minnesota Vikings the past seven years, was named head coach of the expansion Seattle Seahawks of the National Football League Saturday.

Patera, 42, also had served as defensive line coach with the Los Angeles Rams and New York Giants.

Seahawks General Manager John Thompson said a major factor in choosing Patera was that "he has been associated with winning football teams.

"Many times we were impressed by coaches not associated with winning teams, but we were more or less stuck to the original plan (to pick a coach with a winning background)," Thompson told a news conference.

Thompson said the fact that Patera was a defensive specialist was another factor in his selection.

"Every serious contender with whom we spoke agreed that you built a team first with defense," Thompson said.

Patera, who didn't talk much during the news conference called to announce his selection, said he had not "given one moment of consideration" to choosing assistant coaches.

Thompson said he talked to Patera the day Minnesota was eliminated from the playoffs by Dallas last week and was impressed with his self control in spite of the disappointment.

Patera said his immediate task is "to get ready for the expansion and college draft.

"We're not going to do too much else for the next several weeks," he said.

Patera, a native of Bismarck, N.D., graduated from the University of Oregon, where he played under Len Casanova from 1951 through 1954.

The new coach played professionally with the Baltimore Colts for three years starting in 1955, then the Chicago Cardinals for two years, and the Dallas Cowboys for two years. He retired in 1961.

Patera returned to football in 1963 as defensive line coach with the Rams. He held that position for four years before moving to the Giants for the 1967-68 season. He joined the Vikings in 1969.

Spiders Lose Another Starter

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)— Richmond's Spiders have suffered yet another grievous blow to their once-bright hopes of winning the Southern Conference basketball championship in their last year in the league.

The latest bad news for Coach Carl Slone came Friday night when the Spiders' top scorer and leading rebounder, 6-foot-9 John Brown, announced he won't return for the second semester starting Jan. 12.

Brown became the third key player to defect since Richmond began practice last fall with what appeared to be the brightest prospects of any Spider team in recent memory.

One transfer player who figured strongly in Slone's plan to build "a team that can play with anybody," guard Paul Webb of Englewood, Tenn., quit Nov. 15 — two weeks before the season began.

The loss of Webb, national junior college scoring leader last year, cost the Spiders scoring punch. But even without him, they were impressive early on.

Richmond barely lost its opener at potent Wake Forest, 94-90, then whipped Southern Conference foes Appalachian State 53-52 and Davidson 75-62.

But on Dec. 5, starting forward Tony Marshall was charged by police with breaking and entering and possession of stolen credit cards — and since then, the Spiders haven't been the same team.

Marshall played in a 98-71 loss to second-ranked Maryland Dec. 6 and in a narrow 60-58 setback Dec. 10 at Duquesne, but on announced Dec. 12 he'd play no more until he was cleared of the charges against him.

What followed were a 65-60 conference defeat at Virginia Military and an 84-77 home loss to George Washington. So Richmond, once so promising, now has lost its last four games and is 2-5 overall.

The defection of Brown, who had averaged 19.2 points a game and grabbed more rebounds than any other Spider, would appear to deliver the knockout blow to Richmond's conference championship ambitions.

"Obviously, it's a major blow," Slone conceded. "But we can't just fold the tent. We have to work harder. The rest of the squad will have to pick up the slack."

Brown said in a statement issued by the university that he quit the team because he needed "some time to think about the future," but said he planned to return to UR in September.

From his home in Henderson, N.C., the star center declined to elaborate on the statement.

But Slone said the unhappy situation involving Marshall had "upset" Brown and that he also was disturbed that "some of our fans booed him at our last home game" — the loss to GW.

WVa Beats Syracuse

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Fast-breaking West Virginia University, sparked by 23 points from senior forward Stan Boskovich, shot a torrid 62.3 per cent Saturday in claiming a surprising 97-75 basketball victory over Syracuse in a regionally televised game.

The Mountaineers put the game out of reach early in the second half when Boskovich hit three straight West Virginia baskets to raise the lead to 56-42 with 17:16 remaining.

West Virginia, upsetting the Orangemen for the second straight season, had earlier pulled into a 50-41 halftime lead as Syracuse led only twice in the first half.

Junior college transfer Tony Robertson added 20 points for West Virginia, which raised its record to 4-3. Syracuse, dropping to 7-3 in ending a four game winning streak, was led by Dale Shackleford with 17 points.

Dye Speaks On Tuesday

Pat Dye, head football coach at East Carolina University, will be the featured speaker at this Tuesday's meeting of the Greenville Sports Club.

Dinner will start being served at 12 noon, with Dye scheduled to speak at 12:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn.

A question and answer period is planned for the coach, following his general remarks.

Marquette Halts Gamecock Rally

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sixth-ranked Marquette, behind 24 points by Lloyd Walton and 22 by Earl Tatum, opened a 20-point lead with 7:52 to play and held off a South Carolina comeback for an 82-70 college basketball victory Saturday.

Tatum fired in eight baskets in 10 attempts from medium to long range over South Carolina's zone defense in the first 15 minutes as the Warriors mounted a 38-23 lead.

South Carolina switched to a man-to-man defense three minutes before halftime, but Bo Ellis shook free along the baseline for his first six points and the Warriors increased their margin to 47-31 at the intermission.

The Gamecocks, starting three guards in the second half to counteract Marquette's speed, scored eight consecutive points to close to within 10 at 53-43.

However, Ellis and Walton sank layups and Tatum hit from the top of the key as the Warriors regained momentum and opened a 72-52 spread.

Nate Davis and Mike Dunleavy, who scored 22 and 20 points, respectively, led a South Carolina rally in the closing minutes. But Marquette went into delay patterns and the Gamecocks ran out of time.

Big Orange Not Running Smooth

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
(One of a series)

BETHEL—That last oil change and lube job the Big Orange Machine got doesn't seem to be helping it run smoothly these days. Maybe some new spark plugs could help.

North Pitt's girls basketball team, once the terror of the Eastern Carolina Conference and the East, has slowed down. In its first five games this year, the Big Orange has won just two games. And the engine's performance has not been what Coach P.J. Taylor would like.

"We played Williamston twice and the other games we didn't play well," she said. "We're making too many turnovers, we're not thinking. Some of it is lack of experience, some of it, not thinking."

The coach said the biggest problem the Pant-HERS have is turnovers. Ms. Taylor said her girls can score but only if they keep the ball.

"We're averaging 25 to 30 turnovers a game. We have a lot of room for improvement." She also added that the team is quick this year but the girls have a tendancy to leave the ball with the opposition while they cut out on a 25-yard dash.

"We're fast if we can keep the ball," Ms. Taylor said. "Ellen Dixon is fast and her sister Geraldine will fall in behind. Kathi (Manning) can be if she stays low to the ball. They are at one end the ball's at the other."

The Pant-HERS are sort-of in a rebuilding year. They lost only one senior last year but the Machine is built of mostly young or inexperienced girls. And the Pant-HERS do not have the height they have been accustomed to in past seasons.

"We have to play the short game," the coach said. "I have five freshman and two sophomores and that makes up half the squad."

The six girls seeing the most action so far have been Kathi Manning and Joy Forbes, the two best shooters on the team, percentage wise, Ellen Dixon, Mabel James and Donna Parker. Brenda Sneed has seen duty coming off the bench and she has started occasionally.

Offensively, the girls have not been doing that well. They are averaging 36.6 points a game but are giving up 45.4 ppg. Dixon and Manning are leading the team in shooting with Forbes third. "This is Forbes's second year but she's timid, she doesn't take shots when she has them. The others try but don't have it yet."

While not pleased with the offense, Ms. Taylor is happy with the defense. "I'm kinda pleased with it," She said. "People have been scoring alot on us, though. I was pleased with it at Williamston. They had to pass a lot before they got one in." But, she added, that one shot was all Williamston needed.

The girls have not been getting the second and third shots other teams have because they don't block out. "The girls have not realized that you have to get position. Position is important," And she has tried to stress that even more with the Pant-HERS' lack of height. "North Pitt hasn't had to worry about height before," Ms. Taylor said.

Looking at the conference race, the coach said she would have tp pick North Lenoir but the eventual champ could be just about anybody.

Farmville Central, she said, could be a challenger, "if (Julia) Moye comes around. It will take more than one person. North Lenoir hit a slump and you can't put out Southern Nash, they're quick. There's no telling what Jan (Claiborne) is going to do at Conley."

The coach has also had trouble getting the girls to aquire the killer instincts that marked the teams of several years ago.

"The attitude is not what it was," she said. "The girls don't have any incentive to want to walk over other teams. The kids don't have the killer instinct and they have got to have some of it.

"The kids are finding a lot of things to do other than basketball. Athletics are changing that way," Ms. Taylor said.

But she thinks the Big Orange Machine can be tuned up to run smoothly with quick addition of some experience and more self-control. If not, it will be a long season.

Rice Looking For New Coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Names began popping up Saturday as possible candidates for the vacant Rice University head football coaching job but Rice officials said it would be the middle of January before a successor to Al Conover is named.

The colorful Conover, head coach the past four seasons, resigned Friday to enter private business. He had two years remaining on a five-year contract.

Rice Athletic Director A.M. "Red" Bale said the university had rather hire a coach with head coaching experience but that all applications would be welcome.

One name that has been mentioned is Hayden Fry, head coach at North Texas State University and a former head coach at Southern Methodist.

The Dallas Times Herald quoted Dick Maegle, a Houston businessman and former Rice halfback, as saying he would recommend Fry for the job.

Contacted by the newspaper Fry said he was happy at NTSU but did not rule out the Rice job.

"The head coaching job at Rice would be most attractive," Fry said. "I have not talked to anyone at Rice but reports that some people with authority (Maegle) wanting to discuss the situation with me is most flattering and I appreciate their thoughts of my coaching successes and style.

"I have always held Rice in high regard as a school with great academic standards and a fine athletic program. The head coaching job at Rice would be most attractive."

Maegle called Fry "an exciting coach and the type of man we need for the Rice program."

"I am not sure yet who will be in charge of the search but I plan to recommend him for the job," Maegle said.

Other names mentioned are Gil Bartosh at UTEP, Jim Hess at Angelo State and John Linville at Cameron, Okla., all head coaches and all former Rice assistants; and Lance Van Zandt, an assistant at Kansas, and Charlie Bailey, an assistant at Kentucky, also former rice assistant coaches.

In his resignation statement, Conover said he had a great opportunity in private business that "I cannot afford to pass up." He declined to identify the business opportunity and refused to expand on his statement.

Oklahoma Coach Switzer Doubts That 'Dynasty' Is Established

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Like most "dynasties," Oklahoma's might turn out to be a short-lived one.

And the Sooners' rabid, point-hungry fans may just have to be patient for awhile—like the one who called an Oklahoma City newspaper to gripe that "I told you when they hired that guy Switzer they'd lose a game ever two or three years."

"I can't visualize Oklahoma doing in the next three years what we've done in the last three," Barry Switzer said Saturday, savoring a second consecutive national college football championship and an incredible three-year head coaching record of 32-1-1.

There will be those who say Switzer was fortunate to have inherited a talented horde of players when Chuck Fairbanks left for the pros following the 1972 season. In fact, Switzer is among them.

"I've got to be the luckiest son-of-a-gun in the world," he said. "We had some of the greatest players ever to play at Oklahoma all at one time."

True, but the Sooners prevailed despite having to sweat out two years of National Collegiate Athletic Association probation for pre-1972 recruiting violations.

And while Switzer & Co. couldn't, as Casey Stengel used to say, "have done it without the players," it's doubtful if the players could have gotten this far without the outgoing Switzer and his happy-go-lucky staff.

In 1974, a Detroit sports editors attended Woody Hayes' news conference the week of the Ohio State-Michigan game.

Last month, the same writer visited Oklahoma to do some Orange Bowl previews. Switzer, whom he never met before, took him to dinner and to his house for drinks and gave him the run of the practice field, the coaches' offices and the training table.

"The Oklahoma staff was so loose you thought they were getting ready for an office picnic instead of taking on Michigan in the Orange Bowl," the gentleman from Detroit wrote.

"I could go anywhere I wanted, talk to whomever I pleased and ask whatever was on my mind. I wandered into the coaches' offices where they were watching game films. Normally that's a no-no. They all but invited me to sit down and watch.

"You could eat breakfast, lunch and dinner with the team and you could sit among the players or down at the end with the coach. And anyone could get into practice. You, me, the people off the street."

"We don't have anything to hide," said Switzer. "All we do is run the wishbone over and over and over. And we believe in having fun. We work hard, but we play hard too."

The Sooners may work even harder next season as they try for an unprecedented third straight national championship. They lose 10 starters, including All-Americans Leroy and Dewey Selmon and Jimbo Elrod from the defensive line, plus ace runner Joe Washington, a 1974 All-American, and slick quarterback Steve Davis.

"I think we have a chance to compete for the Big Eight title next year but I don't think we'll be favored," Switzer said. "We'll have to do some things differently. We'll have to do things tougher both mentally and physically because we won't have the type of talent that can win no matter how you coach or what you do.

"The difference between our team and others the last three years was that they didn't have the edge in talent that we did. We don't have anyone like the Selmons waiting in the wings. We have good football players, but they're the kind that other teams are playing with, too.

"We're going to fall off quite a bit and we're only going to be ordinary, next year. The coaches and fans will have to make an adjustment.

But before the tears began falling, remember that Oklahoma returns runners like Elvis Peacock, Billy Sims and Jimmy Culbreath plus the entire secondary, perhaps the most physical in the country.

And, said Switzer, "the national championship has got to help. The first one really enhanced our out-of-state recruiting. We had the best recruiting year we ever had in Texas and that had to be the reason."

Sooners Win Bowl

NEW YORK (AP) — The University of Oklahoma, winner over Michigan in the Orange Bowl, has been named winner of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame's 1975 MacArthur Bowl, it was announced Saturday.

The selection was made by the foundation's awards committee following the post-season bowl competition.

Arizona State, Alabama, and Ohio State were other teams under consideration, the foundation said.

Oklahoma, unbeaten and untied a year ago but ineligible for MacArthur Bowl consideration because of being on NCAA probation, finished with an 11-1 record this season, losing only to Kansas.

Oklahoma clinched a tie for the Big Eight title with a victory over arch-rival Nebraska to gain the Orange Bowl berth.

The MacArthur Bowl is awarded each year by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame to "the most outstanding college football team of the year." The presentation will be made at a later date at Oklahoma's campus in Norman.

Would Play Americans

By The Associated Press

Cuba is not interested in playing against professional baseball teams, but would consider meeting an American team that has international federation approval, says Napoleon Quevedo, Cuban baseball commissioner.

According to a Canadian Press dispatch from Havana, Quevedo said Friday there has been no formal invitation or request from the United States for games or tours in Cuba involving major league professional teams.

Although Cuban-Canadian relations are strong, the Montreal Expos would be treated the same as any other professional team seeking a series with Cuba, he said.

Quevedo said there is a strong possibility of an exchange of amateur teams between Cuba and Canada, and the Cuban national team may even go to Canada for a tour.

Steelers Uncertain

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The health statuses of Joe Greene and Terry Bradshaw remained uncertain on the eve of the American Football Conference title game.

Greene, the Pittsburgh Steeler's All-Pro defensive tackle, has been sidelined since midseason because of a groin muscle pull and a pinched nerve in his neck.

He has practiced steadily the past two weeks after playing briefly in Pittsburgh's last regular season game, and Coach Chuck Noll said there was a chance he might play Sunday against the Oakland Raiders.

Noll declined to make a definite committment on whether Greene might alternate with his replacement, fourth-year pro Steve Furness.

Bradshaw was slated to play despite a knee strain and thigh bruise sustained the week before against Baltimore.

Virginia Tops VMI Keydets

ROANOKE, Va. (AP)—Wally Walker and Marc Iavaroni led a 10-2 spree early in the second half that gave Virginia's Cavaliers a 74-63 victory Saturday night over Virginia Military's Keydets in the first half of a basketball twin bill at the Roanoke Civic Center.

Virginia Tech met St. Bonaventure in the second game before a sellout crowd of 10,069.

Walker had six points and Iavaroni four in the streak that gave Virginia a 53-38 lead over VMI in the first game after the Cavaliers had seen an early 10-0 lead cut to 41-36 by a Keydet streak ending the first half.

The Cavaliers were in front 33-18 with 2:26 left before intermission when VMI went on a 10-2 run that cut the gap to seven points. Twice VMI got within five points early in the second half before the Cavaliers put it out of reach with the spurt of their own.

Walker and Billy Langloh, each hitting seven of eight from the floor, had 22 and 18 points, respectively, for Virginia, which shot 65.9 per cent for the game after hitting 70 per cent from the floor in the first 20 minutes.

Iavaroni had 14 points and Otis Fulton pulled down 10 rebounds for the Cavaliers, now 5-2.

The Keydets, who fell to 7-3, were led by Will Bynum with 19 points and Curt Reppart with 17.

Seek To Buy Mudra's Pact

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Wealthy alumni of Florida State University have raised at least $80,000 to buy out the contract of head football Coach Darrell Mudra or donate to the football program if Mudra is replaced, the Lakeland Ledger reported Saturday.

The Ledger quoted informed sources close to the university as saying the sum was "reported to be above $80,000 or perhaps up to $110,000."

In addition, the Ledger said, the influential group of alumni has extended unofficial feelers to at least five coaches at major universities in the search for someone to replace Mudra this year.

University officials recently repeated their support of Mudra, who has been at Florida State for two seasons and has two years remaining on his contract. His teams won one game the first season and three the second.

The Ledger said feelers went out to Texas Tech's Steve Sloan, Pittsburgh's Johnny Majors, West Virginia's Bobby Bowden, North Carolina State's Lou Holtz, and Maryland's Jerry Claiborne.

Sloan, Majors, Bowden and Holtz have not expressed interest in the job, while Claiborne was only contacted recently, the Ledger said.

Sloan, contacted by phone in Lubbock, Tex., told the Ledger he had been approached by FSU people.

"The thing is, it's hard to define what a feeler is. You just never know, you see, who a man may be speaking for when he calls you," Sloan said.

"It could be he's just speaking for himself. Of course I do know a lot of Florida people from having coached down there before," said Sloan.

Sports Briefs

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Golfer Al Geiberger will be honored as Comeback Player of the Year on Jan. 12 by West Coast sports writers and sportscasters.

The former PGA champion will play a round of golf with the media representatives and then will be honored at a dinner at the La Costa Resort Hotel.

After a long slump, Geiberger had his finest year in 16 on the Professional Golfers Association tour in 1975, winning two events and earning $175,693 for No. 6 on the official money winning list.

BUFFALO (AP) — An agreement to lower the rent at the Cape Cod Coliseum has revived the Cape Codders of the North American Hockey League and put them back in business after a brief demise.

The team folded Tuesday because of money problems but a 17-member group of businessmen headed by Jack Goff announced Friday the biggest financial hurdle had been passed with a new lease arrangement at the Coliseum in South Yarmouth, Mass.

NAHL owners Friday voted unanimously to readmit the team to the league.

PHOENIX (AP) — A University of Hawaii athletic department spoksman said Friday the school plans to seek NCAA clarification of a television commercial involving four Rainbows basketball players.

Ed Inouye said the university officials will place the request early Monday morning, but added he does not believe the commercial violates NCAA rules.

Inouye said the university has agreed to discontinue the advertisement pending NCAA clarification.

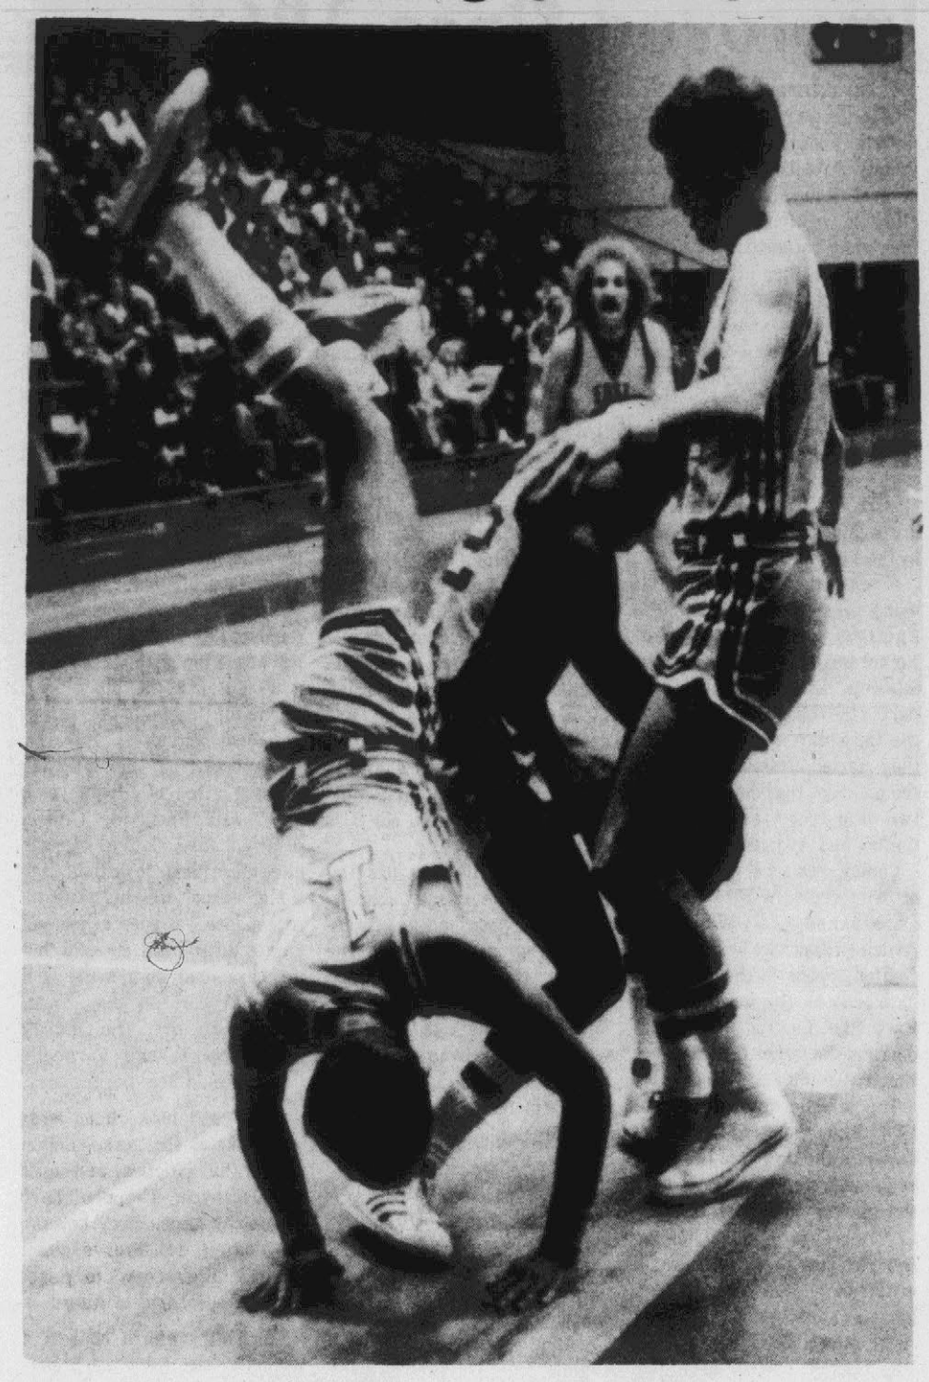
Pirates Hold Off Citadel Rally, 81-76



NEW TYPE OF DEFENSE? — Coaches are always telling players to play defense with their feet, but this is ridiculous. The Citadel's Chris Davis (14) actually tumbled over East Carolina's Al Edwards (center) in an attempt to stop the fast break. Davis was charged with a foul, and Edwards hit two free throws. Also guarding Edwards is Mike Ange, with Buzzy Braman of ECU in the background. East Carolina won, 81-76. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

East Carolina University's Bucs started the new year off right Friday night with an 81-76 victory over The Citadel, but they nearly lost it, blowing a 20-point lead during the final seven minutes of the game.

In complete control during the first 13 minutes of the second half, the Bucs found themselves in quite a jam with just seconds to play as The Citadel had a chance to tie it up with 25 seconds to go at the foul line.

But the shot missed and with 18 seconds left, Al Edwards hit the first of a one-and-one chance to provide a three-point cushion, 79-76. Then, after another Citadel miss, Edwards hit off a fast break with four seconds to go to ice the victory.

The Pirate captain, who hit 17 of his 19 points in the second half, led the Buc scoring, and was the key man in the final minutes, scoring the final eight points for the team.

"It was all my fault," Coach Dave Patton said of the near-collapse. "When we were out by 20 points, I put in some other people. It broke our momentum, and enabled The Citadel to get their defense going again. They have a good defensive team, and they work the trap very well. I just tried to do too much coaching when I should have just let them put it completely out of reach."

Patton added that it wasn't who he put in the game, but when he did it. "The guys out there were hot, and the others had to warm up. By then the momentum had swung."

The Bulldogs went to a full-count pressure defense after the Pirates had gained the 69-49 lead, and it helped them cut into the lead. Many of the Pirates 22 turnovers came during those final seven minutes.

The Bucs did have a fine night shooting, hitting 54.1 per cent of their shots. They got the break going during the second half, and it looked like the Bulldogs were going to be completely crushed before it was over.

East Carolina also completely dominated the backboards, pulling down 48 rebounds to just 28 for The Citadel. Larry Hunt picked off 10, while Al Edwards had eight and Earl Garner got seven. Mike Ange led The Citadel with eight.

The Pirates spotted The Citadel the opening lead on a jumper in the lane by Richard Johnson, then came back to take a 3-2 edge on a three-point play by Reggie Lee. Lee followed with another basket for the three-point lead, and the Bucs held that until Buzzy Braman hit with 11:22 left off the break for a 15-10 edge. The Citadel cut it back to one, but the Bucs again pulled away, this time going out by six, 27-21, on Lee's jumper with 6:02 to play. Again, however, The Citadel rallied behind the scoring of Ange of come back, finally tieing it up at 37-37 on a three-point play by Ange with six seconds left.

Wade Henkel was fouled at the horn, making both free throws for a 39-37 Pirate halftime lead.

With Edwards leading the way, the Pirates pulled steadily away in the second half. Their defense stiffled The Citadel, which made only one basket in the first five minutes of the half, and only eight points in the first 10 minutes. Finally Henkel hit a basket and added two free throws with 7:06 left to run the margin to 69-49.

After a time-out, in which the Pirates made some changes, The Citadel went to a zone press, and it caused the Pirates a great deal of trouble. During the next five minutes, East Carolina got only four points, while The Citadel was scoring 15. That cut the lead back to 73-64.

Edwards hit off a three-point play to up the lead back to 12, but The Citadel marched that with four points. The Bucs got two more free throws with 1:12 left to up it to 10, 78-68, but The Citadel refused to wilt.

Ricky Day hit, and Rodney McKeever followed with a jumper in the lane. He got two free throws with 43 seconds left, and then added a jumper with 37 seconds to go, cutting the lead to 78-76.

Don Server missed with 25 seconds to go at the line, and the Bucs got the rebound. Edwards was then fouled seven seconds later, hitting one, and that was all the Bucs needed.

In addition to Edwards' 19 points, Henkel hit 16, playing only 18 minutes. Lee had 13, all in the first half, while Larry Hunt added 11, and both Garner and Braman had 10, giving the Bucs six players in double figures.

Ange led The Citadel with 22, 16 of them in the first half, while McKeever had 17, 11 in the second half, and Day had 10.

The win boosted the Pirate record to 5-5 over 11 and 3-1 in the Southern Conference. The Citadel dropped to 2-7 overall and 0-3 in the league.

The Bucs return to action Wednesday, hosting Old Dominion University. Tip off will be at 6 p.m. for this game.

Deacons Surprise UNC; State Slips By Duke

GREENSBORO, N.C (AP) — Wake Forest, unbeaten but unranked, made a strong bid to move into the Top Twenty by stunning third-rated North Carolina 95-83 Friday night in a first-round matchup in the Big Four tournament.

But there was not time for pats on the back—the Deacons faced ninth-ranked North Carolina State in the tourney final last night.

"We certainly deserve some attention in the national rankings," said Coach Carl Tacy, coach of Wake Forest, 9-0. A victory over North Carolina State, 8-0 and a 104-95 winner over Duke Friday behind Kenny Carr's career-high 45 points, would undoubtedly persuade many of the voters to agree.

In other games involving nationally ranked teams, No. 4 UCLA ran away from Denver in the second half and posted a 111-79 triumph; No. 14 Rutgers defeated Stetson 91-70, and No. 19 San Francisco edged Texas A&M 77-75 in the opening round of the Bluebonnet Classic at Houston.

In handing North Carolina its first loss after six triumphs, Wake Forest played without junior star Skip Brown, for the final 17 minutes after he injured his thigh.

"Without Brown, and with Daryl Peterson in foul trouble, we showed we were made of stern stuff," said Tacy. "Those two are a good piece of our team, but without them we really pulled ourselves up by our bootstraps. For a while, we forgot we had to have a serious inside threat. But we got Rod Griffin playing like he can, and Lee Foye hit a couple inside. Mark Dale, subbing for Brown, gave us someone to control our offense when we needed it."

Jerry Schellenberg ad 24 points for Wake Forest, Griffin 17 and Brown 16. Phil Ford of North Carolina took game honors with 30.

Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina said, "We fell behind early, when Wake Forest hit everything they threw up. Wake Forest has a very fine team, but we will be back."

N.C. State led Duke 49-48 at halftime, spurted to a 10-point lead shortly after intermission and was never seriously threatened thereafter.

Tate Armstrong led the Blue Devils, 7-2, who will play North Carolina for consoleion honors in tonight's first game, with 24 points.

N.C. State Coach Norm Sloan said he was "surprised Carr was able to score that much against a Duke team which is much better than a year ago."

Duke Coach Bill Foster said, "We got a great effort but not good results. It seemed that every time we lost the ball on a blocked shot or steal, they got an easy basket. My main concern now is getting ready for tomorrow."

Richard Washington scored 30 points and hauled down 12 rebounds and Marques Johnson added 24 points and 10 rebounds for UCLA, 9-1. The Bruins led by just five at the half, but rolled up 66 points in the second period to win easily.

Unbeaten Rutgers stretched its record to 10-0 as six players scored in double figures. Phil Sellers led the way with 19 points, leaving the senior forward just one short of the 2,000 mark for his career.

Sam Williams hit two free throws with 1:30 remaining to put San Francisco in front 74-73 and the Dons went on to beat Texas A&M, raising their record to 11-2. In the other game of the Bluebonnet Classic, Houston trounced Houston Baptist 78-59.

A number of tournaments got under way Friday. In the Lafayette Invitational, Army beat New Hamshire 81-63 and Lafayette whipped Rochester 98-68. In the Presidential Classic in Washington, Penn State topped Harvard 63-55 and George Washington beat Brown 75-59.

Elsewhere, Clemson overwhelmed Biscayne 103-71, East Carolina defeated The Citadel 81-76, Niagara beat Brigham Young 75-60, Seton Hall outscored Southewestern Louisiana 103-84 and Boston College topped Connecticut 94-83.

Terry To Be Ready

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Chuck Noll says Terry Bradshaw "seems to be in top shape" and will be his No. 1 quarterback in Sunday's American Football Conference championship game against Oakland.

"It's no secret," he admitted. "I won't be able to run."

Noll remained mum Friday on why Terry Hanratty would back up Bradshaw when Joe Gilliam has held the second string spot all season. Hanratty has been in for only two plays.

"By decree," Noll said earlier in the week. "By the flip of a coin," he said at a press conference Friday.

What about reports that Gilliam's demotion was the result of disciplinary action?

"If it is anything disciplinary, it's a club matter," Noll said.

Noll remained confident during practice this week that Bradshaw would be "fit as a fiddle" for Sunday's game, making talk of a back-up man irrelevant.

"Bradshaw is our quarterback," said Noll. "He'll get all the work he needs."

Noll has successfully ducked questions about Gilliam, and Jefferson Street Joe himself told reporters he was surprised by his demotion.

But defensive tackle Joe Greene told one out-of-town reporter not to believe that stuff and that Gilliam knows full well why he was demoted, as does the rest of the team. But, Greene added, nobody is going to tell newsmen.

There have been published reports that Gilliam has missed meetings, is having trouble with the coaches and might be on the trading block. It would appear that frustration is the name of the game for the second-string quarterback who struck like lightning during last year's preseason, leading the Steelers to six exhibition victories.

And the frustration should continue as the Steelers put all their chips on Bradshaw.

As Bradshaw was about to be squashed, concerned teammates pulled the heavier Mullins off the quarterback, shouting: "Moon, Moon, that's our money."

As long as Bradshaw remains healthy, there is no real concern about backup quarterbacks, just as Noll has been saying.

Switzer Didn't Feel Sooners Could Repeat

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — In this same city where Barry Switzer saw Oklahoma's title hopes begin to fade more than three months ago, the Sooners made it all the way back and repeated as college football's national champions.

"After we only beat Miami 20-17 back in September, I didn't think we could repeat," Switzer admitted Friday after Oklahoma became the seventh team in history—including Bud Wilkinson's 1955-56 Sooners—to win consecutive national crowns. "I questioned whether we could have three undefeated seasons in a row."

The Sooners didn't, finally tasting defeat in Switzer's third campaign as head coach in a shocking 23-3 loss to Kansas.

But they recovered in the season's final weeks with victories over Missouri and Nebraska and leap-frogged from seventh place following the Missouri game all the way back to the top by downing Michigan 14-6 in the Orange Bowl Thursday night while No. 1-ranked Ohio State bowed to UCLA in the Rose Bowl.

"I've got to be the luckiest son-of-a-gun in the world," Switzer said. "I told the squad after the Kansas game we'd be laughing and giggling when it was all over, and now three games later we're national champions again.

"Whooo-ee! I was trying to sell 'em on that idea, baby, but I had my tongue in my cheek when I said it."

Although they were preseason favorites in The Associated Press poll to repeat as national champs, the Sooners started to slip by narrowly edging Miami after walloping Oregon 62-7 and Pitt 46-10. They fell from the top the next week after squeaking past Colorado 21-20 on a missed extra point, plummeted to sixth upon losing to Kansas and slid to seventh when they had to rally to nip Missouri 28-27.

"The first two games were just the same old hat," Switzer said. "We got half a hundred and it was just like it used to be. But then we struggled. I didn't think we'd go through the season undefeated. I knew it had to happen sooner or later. In fact, we might have come closer to an unbeaten season than we should have."

Oklahoma got back into the voters' good graces by thumping Nebraska, the No. 2 team at the time, 35-10 in the regular-season windup. That lifted the Sooners to No. 3. Second-ranked Texas A&M then obliged by losing to Arkansas and Southern California and Ohio State died on New Year's Day.

"Obviously this team was not as successful as the last two because we lost a game," Switzer said. "But a lot of teams have lost a ball game and won the national championship. We were close to being what we've always been on defense, but offensively, we didn't fit in the same category."

In repeating as national titlists, the Sooners received 54½ first-place votes from a nationwide panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters. Unbeaten Arizona State, 12-0, was second, followed by Alabama, Ohio State and UCLA.

"The first thing I told our coaches after we beat Nebraska was that we were lucky we didn't have to go and play Arizona State in the Fiesta Bowl. Nebraska, however, did—and lost."

Hayes Is Mum About Defeat

The fiery 62-year-old coach slipped away from any post-game interviews Thursday after UCLA upset the Buckeyes 23-10, costing them the national championship.

Hayes was approached at least twice by sports writers traveling with the team Friday and he declined any comment on the defeat that cost Ohio State an undefeated season.

Hayes sat reading a book in the Los Angeles terminal when a writer asked if he felt like talking.

"Nope," responded Hayes, without looking up from the book he was reading, entitled "Magnificent Obsession."

In other words, the writer assummed, Hayes had nothing to say.

"Right," snapped Hayes.

School officials went to the defense of the 25-year Ohio State coach, but Wayne Duke, the Big Ten Conference commissioner, had other thoughts.

"After all, it's just a game," said Harold Enarson, the Ohio State president. Ed Weaver, the Big Ten champions' athletic director, added, "It was one of his keenest defeats."

Duke, who visited the Ohio State dressing room shortly after the defeat, would say nothing publicly, but it was understood he intends to talk to Ohio State officials to see such tactics are not repeated.

An assistant coach, who asked not to be named, blamed the upset on audibles, plays that are called at the line of scrimmage by quarterback Cornelius Greene.

"We automaticed ourselves right out of the game. When you teach your kids to do that (audibles), what can you expect?" the coach said.

"When we got the ball on their 35-yard line with 10 minutes to play," he continued, "we should have run Pete (Johnson) and Archie (Griffin) right into the end zone. We could have used up 4½ minutes and would have won the game."

Instead, Greene called an automatic at the line of scrimmage, tried a long pass and threw an interception. The Buckeyes trailed 16-10 at the time and appeared to have regained the momentum.

Griffin, the two-time Heisman Trophy winner who suffered a broken bone in his left hand on the third play of the game, stay behind. The senior tailback, who will have his hand in a sling for four to five weeks, was to return today with older brother James Griffin Jr.

Defensive back Craig Cassady will have his separated shoulder in a sling for about two weeks. Cassady was hurt after he intercepted a pass in the fourth quarter.

Dallas To Be More Daring

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys says his surprise team will take more chances Sunday than will the Los Angeles Rams, but he still counts on defense to win the game.

Defense has been the forte of the Rams, who were 12-2 in the regular season and then beat St. Louis 35-23 in the opening Super Bowl playoff game.

"I hope it will be a tough defensive game," Landry said on his arrival in Los Angeles, "because then we have a chance. We have players capable of playing great defense."

The National Football Conference championship game is scheduled Sunday at 1:05 p.m. PST with all 91,038 seats in the Los Angeles Coliseum sold out. The game will be televised locally as well as nationally.

Coach Chuck Knox of the Rams announced that his regular quarterback James Harris has recovered from a shoulder injury and will start against the Cowboys.

It could be revenge for Harris, who completed just one pass for five yards against the Cowboys as Dallas won the season opener 18-7.

In practice, reserve Ron Jaworski has been playing the part of the Cowboys' Roger Staubach, who threw the 50-yard pass that beat Minnesota 17-14 last Sunday.

"We played them and we got our butts whipped," said Knox of the first meeting of the regular season with Dallas. "Who's kidding who? We know their type of football."

Knox has lost five regulars via injuries, but he has both Harris and offensive tackle Charlie Cowan back from the injured list for this title game leading to the Super Bowl.

"I don't think anyone really has the field advantage," added Knox with his tongue not visably in his cheek.

However, the natural turf of the Coliseum has aided the Rams and the sellout crowd will be cheering the home town club—and Knox knows it. His clubs are 21-2 at home in the three years he's been coaching in Los Angeles.

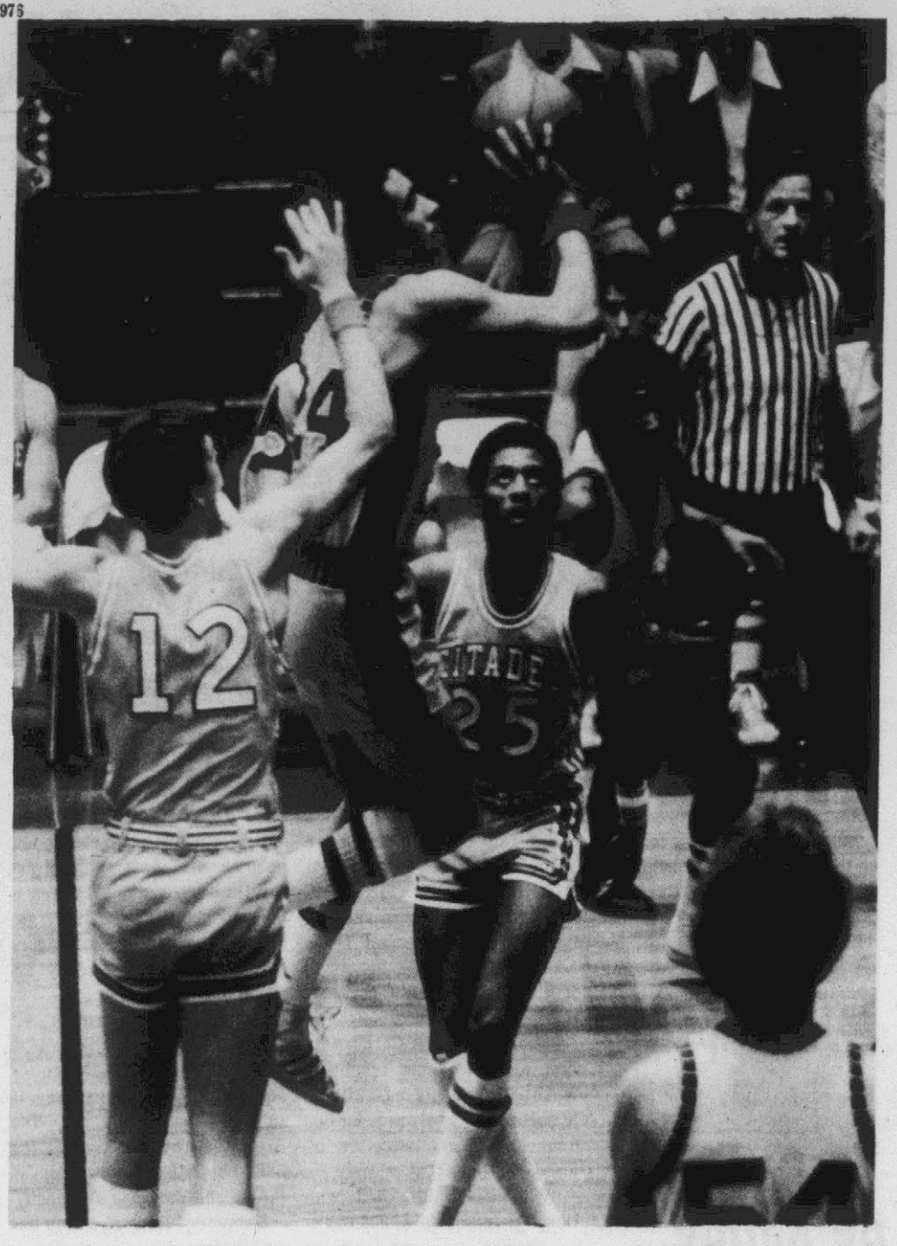
Los Angeles has made it to the playoffs the past two years, losing to Dallas and then to Minnesota.

Dallas, under Landry, has been in the playoffs nine of the past 10 years but stands as a six-point underdog this time.

Still, with Staubach and the pass-oriented shotgun offense the Cowboys are dangerous all the way.

"We put in the shotgun as an obvious pass offense because defenses were coming up with obvious formations against the pass," Landry said.

"The shotgun was no surprise in our first game," Knox said. "They just executed the plays so well. Our team must play the best football since we've been here to win."



LEAP FOR LEE — Reggie Lee of East Carolina goes up for a shot against The Citadel in Friday night's Southern Conference game. Watching are Rick Swing (12) and Rodney McKeever (25) of The Citadel, and Louis Crosby and Wade Henkel (54) of East Carolina. The Bucs held off a Bulldog rally for an 81-76 victory. Athletic Picture Has Improved Since 1969

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Four years ago, the Pitt County School system merged several county high schools in an effort to improve education for the county's students. Rose High and Eppes High in Greenville combined six years ago.

While this has helped stimulate better educational processes, it has also helped the athletic picture in the area. Rose had the jump on the other schools merging with Eppes in 1969. There were problems in the classroom, as most everyone knows, and there were problems in the athletic arenas.

A year later, 1970, North Pitt was formed from Stokes-Pactolus, Belvoir-Falkland, Bethel and Bethel Union schools. Students in the southeastern part of the county left schools for the Christmas break and when they started classes again after the holidays, they entered one of two brand new schools, D.H. Conley and Ayden-Grifton.

Conley was a conglomeration of Winterville, W.H. Robinson, Chicod and G.R. Whitfield. Ayden-Grifton was formed from Grifton, Ayden and South Ayden high schools. The fourth school, Farmville Central opened its doors in the fall of 1971 merging Farmville and H.B. Sugg.

The athletic directors of the five high schools and the superintendants of the two systems were asked how they thought the quality of athletics had improved, if at all, in the five-plus years and each one said athletics had improved measurably in many ways.

Ott Alford, Superintendent of Pitt County Schools gave two reasons for better quality. "I think the quality of play has improved because of better coaching; people can specialize now where before they had to coach all sports. The greatest thing is variety.

"None of the black schools had baseball," Alford said. "They only had basketball. The only white schools that had football were Ayden, Grifton and Farmville. South Ayden and H.B. Sugg were the only two black schools with football." Other schools had basketball.

The addition of several sports for both boys and girls has improved the whole picture, Alford noted. He said that while the numbers of athletes may be the same as before the mergers, they are distributed over a wider range of programs.

Ayden-Grifton's Bob Murphrey said much the same thing. "I think we are getting more people involved than we had before," he said.

North Pitt's A.D. Cobby Deans agreed with Alford. "We're getting a wider selection of athletic programs and there is a trend to get involved and our people have wised up and decided to get involved." Students are not participating in just athletics, he said, but in pep clubs, cheerleading squads and other athletic-oriented activities.

Deans also feels that athletics has palyed a major part in reducing hostilities between people centered around the merged schools. "It's the number one thing," Deans said.

Murphrey said that athletics have served to bring Ayden and Grifton residents together. "Athletics have helped to bring them together quite a lot. It's getting people to work together." The support A-G is getting is not quite what Murphrey says they want but it is getting there.

The quality of play has improved in the county schools, too. While Rose had good well-rounded programs before the merger, the other schools did not. As Alford said, the selection for the student was thin. But with the combination more sports were added as well as more athletes.

Conley's Shelly Marsh said athletics have helped at Conley. "Most definitely. There is more for the student to participate in," he said. "We were able to get football and track. Now we have girls volleyball and we expect to add girls' softball. Also wrestling is a big sport at Conley.

Marsh added that the wider selection has improved the calibre of play because, "A student has a choice and can be dedicated to it." Whereas, if a student chose not to play basketball at one of the old schools he sat idle all winter. Now, a student can wrestle if he does not want to play basketball, for example. "When a student is more dedicated, the quality is better."

In the first year or so, some coaches may have had a "keep-everybody-happy" attitude when it came to choosing the team they coached. This was obvious at Conley. The Vikings had their only losing basketball season under Marsh in that first year because he wanted to get the best players from each school.

Now, he and the other coaches try to get the best players, period. "It helped get support and a lot of excitement was generated and it promoted harmony," Marsh said. Now he and the other area coaches look for the best athletes they can find.

While athletics have helped to overcome some problems there are many still facing the schools. And probably the biggest is money. As most people know, money is in short supply and it is in even shorter supply for the schools.

Farmville Central has had good programs having tied for conference titles in football and baseball and going to state playoffs in both sports. Farmville Central won the girls basketball title last year and the tennis title. The FC wrestlers are at the top of the conference now. But like the other four, Farmville Central is not without its money worries.

"Probably no one has the support of ten of fifteen years ago," said Farmville Central principal Russ Cotten. "People have more things to do than go to a high school athletic contest." Attendance was good at football games this season, he said, but the basketball team's not winning has hurt on that count. Those two are the money making sports and Farmville Central could use more money.

"You can't make it on what you make at the gate," Cotten said. "Our officials cost over $2,000 last year. There will have to be some tax money," he said, "allocated to high school sports." Right now they get nothing, according to Alford.

Farmville Central collects a ten-dollar fee from each participant to help defray expenses and Cotten hopes to have some positive things to report to the School Board on the practice. But despite the participation fee, Cotten says more students are getting involved. "We've had more people show interest than we've had. It hasn't hurt participation."

While athletics keep getting better in Pitt County, as evidenced by state champions in football and baseball at Rose, basketball champions at A-G two years ago, a third place finish in basketball for Conley last year and hopes for another strong year in basketball at North Pitt, there are also new problems that must be overcome.

Cotten spoke for all the schools and the two systems when he said, "You have got to take the good with the bad and do the best you can."

Melchionni Has His Second Wind

By The Associated Press

Bill Melchionni, at 31, is finding his second wind.

"For the past two or three years I didn't really consider myself a pivotal player with this team," said Melchionni, in his seventh season with the New York Nets and now an assistant coach as well as a player with the American Basketball Association team. "But with my added responsibilities, I find myself getting more involved all the time.

"Even if I don't play now, I feel I'm still making a contribution to the club."

Melchionni, the player, made a big contribution to the Nets' cause Friday night when he scored 13 points in 16 minutes of playing time, getting 11 of his points in the fourth period as the Nets held off a San Antonio rally and beat the Spurs 104-96.

Elsewhere, the Kentucky Colonels tripped the Virginia Squires 116-104 and the Denver Nuggets outscored the Indiana Pacers 137-125.

New York led by as many as 20 points in the first half, but saw the Spurs—behind James Silas' game-high 34 points—close to within two at 96-94 with 1:56 to play. The Nets then thwarted that comeback effort by sinking six free throws, two apiece by Melchionni, Brian Taylor and Julius Erving.

Erving was the Nets' high scorer with 33 points as New York posted its seventh consecutive home-court triumph and fourth in a row over the Spurs.

Nets Coach Kevin Loughery, whose club remains three games behind first-place Denver in the ABA race, has been going to Melchionni more and more in tight situations. The nine-year pro veteran, a reliable ball-handler, provides a steadying influence for the otherwise young team.

"To have a guy like Mel coming off the bench, getting 13 points in 16 minutes when your team is floundering, that's really something," praised Loughery, himself a fine backcourtman in his playing days.

Melchionni credits his new coaching duties role with his overall improvement. "I chart all the games," he explained. "I'm preparing more than in the past few years. The average player just can't show up at 8 o'clock and expect to do a job. Maybe the great ones can get away with it, but not guys like myself."

Melchionni says that even though he's now one of the coaches, he hasn't gotten any extra ribbing from the other players whenever he messes up a play.

"There's an old saying: do as I say, not as I do," Melchionni said, twisting the phrase a bit. "I rely on that."

Colonels 116, Squires 104

Maurice Lucas and Bird Averitt led Kentucky to a 40-21 edge in the third period which was enough to stop the Squires. Lucas had 10 of his 14 points and Averitt eight of his game-high 26 in the decisive third quarter.

Nuggets 137, Pacers 125

Denver raised its record to 24-8 on the strength of a 43-point third period in which rookie David Thompson scored 19 of his game-high 30 points. The Nuggets, who never trailed, broke the game open by hitting 14 of their first 15 shots from the field in the third quarter.

Walker Is Missed By Bulls As Mark Slumps

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Another Chicago Bulls loss caused Washington's Elvin Hayes to think for a moment. His Bullets had held Chicago to 11 points in the final quarter, then won in overtime; the Bulls made exactly three of 13 shots in the first seven minutes of that fourth period.

It might have been different, thought Hayes, had Chet Walker been a player instead of a memory at Chicago Stadium.

"The Bulls miss Chet Walker so much that it's hard to believe they're the same team," he said after the 107-99 triumph that dropped Chicago's record to 8-25—worst in the National Basketball Association. "There was nobody in the league who could go one-on-one with him on a crucial play."

And there were a number of crucial plays for the Bulls, who came up short after leading by seven points before that fourth-quarter cold streak.

"It was a case of the Bulls moving the ball for three quarters and then getting into trouble," observed Washington Coach K.C. Jones. It was trouble that might have been avoided with a Chet Walker leading the Bulls' offense instead of sitting out an enforced retirement after off-season money squabbles with the Bulls' management.

"When it came down to the final few minutes, it was experience that paid off," added Hayes, who scored six points in overtime to waste a 29-point performance by Chicago's Bob Love.

It was experience that the Bulls don't seem to have any more. "The Bulls have a lot of good youngsters," said Hayes. "But it takes the veterans time to adjust to them," noted the Bulls' Jerry Sloan. "We have the makings of a heckuva team."

That sentiment was echoed by Bulls Coach Dick Motta, who added, "I just hope our kids can hang on and find out that one of these days they can do it all."

They just might be doing it all right now—except, as Hayes noted, they seem to miss a fellow named Chet Walker.

In other NBA games Friday night, Buffalo edged New York 106-105; Philadelphia topped Cleveland 112-101; New Orleans bested Atlanta 111-95; Milwaukee outscored Detroit 98-83; Golden State held off Los Angeles 113-105, and Boston nipped Seattle 102-98.

Bullets 107, Bulls 99

Wes Unseld made two key steals and grabbed five rebounds to help the Washington overtime effort against Chicago. His layup with 15 seconds remaining tied it 93-93 in regulation play.

Braves 106, Knicks 105

Bob McAdoo hit a jump shot with 23 seconds to go and the Braves withstood two last-ditch New York attempts in ending the Knicks' six-game winning streak.

Buffalo had blown a 14-point fourth-quarter lead, falling behind 105-102 with 1:10 to play. But Jim McMillian closed the deficit to one with 59 seconds to go and McAdoo hit his game-winning shot in traffic from the left baseline.

76ers 112, Cavaliers 101

Doug Collins and George McGinnis each scored 28 points as Philadelphia ended a three-game Cleveland winning streak. Campy Russell was high for the Cavs with 19 points.

Warriors 113, Lakers 105

Rick Barry's 28 points and Jamaal Wilkes' 20 paced Golden State over Los Angeles. The Warriors broke the game open with a blistering third period in which they shot 68 per cent on the way to their 14th triumph in the last 17 games.

Jazz 111, Hawks 95

Guards Pete Maravich scored 26 points and Louie Nelson 24 to lead New Orleans past Atlanta, which got 21 points from John Drew.

The Jazz held a 63-48 rebounding advantage, largely on center Otto Moore's 18 rebounds. "This might surprise a lot of people, but I think Otto Moore is the key to the Jazz," said Hawks Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons.

Celtics 102, SuperSonics 98

Charlie Scott hit two free throws with 12 seconds remaining to help Boston top Seattle. The foul shots, which gave the Boston guard 24 points for the night, boosted the Celtics' lead to 100-96.

Bucks 98, Pistons 83

Bob Dandridge and Jim Price each scored 23 points to help Milwaukee take over first place from Detroit in the Midwest Division with their victory over the cold-shooting Pistons, who dropped their 13th game in the last 16.

Bob Lanier scored 24 points to top Detroit, while Curtis Rowe added 14 and had a season-high 20 rebounds.

CALIFORNIA IS No. 1

SHAWNEE MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Exactly 30 per cent of the country's major college players list home towns in three states — California, Texas and Ohio. California is the leader by nine players over Texas, 1,307 to 1,298. Ohio is right behind at 1,233.

The figures, compiled by an NCAA study, cover 12,792 players on varsity rosters of the nation's 134 major teams, including freshmen.

New York's metropolitan area produced the most major college players this year. Los Angeles ranked second.

In tires, it's not the price you pay. It's how often you pay it.
This steel-belted Radial Tire carries the Michelin Warranty* for 40,000 miles on the original tread. (Many owners get much more.) Puncture resistant Michelins give precise steering, and smooth driving comfort. So stop in and start saving today.
40,000 MILE WARRANTY
*Michelin's Warranty for X Radial Highway Passenger Tire shown here covers tread life, normal road hazards (excluding repairable punctures) and defects in workmanship and materials for 40,000 miles, when tire is used on passenger vehicles in normal service in continental United States, except Alaska. Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to current actual selling price multiplied by percentage of warranted mileage not run on tire.

Counselors Teach How To Be More Assertive

By DALE SINGER

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Have you ever:

— Been reluctant to ask a doctor questions because you didn't want to take up his time?

— Been too timid to ask a mechanic exactly what was wrong with your car because you didn't want to appear stupid?

— Been hesitant to question an error on a restaurant bill because you were afraid of making a scene?

If you have trouble bringing yourself to do these and other things you feel you have the right to do, maybe what you need is assertiveness training.

It can help anyone, according to counselors Joan Pearlman and Karen Coburn, but women need it more because they have been taught for too long that being passive and being feminine are one and the same.

Ms. Coburn and Ms. Pearlman, along with Lynn Z. Bloom, wrote "The New Assertive Woman," a guide whose title may bring visions of a modern day Amazon imposing her will on anyone daring to cross her path.

But the technique isn't as aggressive as it sounds. A basic distinction is made between being assertive and being aggressive.

"It's a matter of what your intent is," Ms. Coburn, a counselor at Fontbonne College, said. "Assertive behavior is a direct, honest expression of ideas, desires and feelings. Aggressive behavior expresses the same things, but without taking into account the rights of others. The intent is to dominate and get your own way no matter what."

"The key to assertive behavior is self-confidence," Ms. Pearlman, a counselor at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, said. "There is a great deal of power in assertion, confidence in what you're doing and being straightforward and honest."

Too often, they said in an interview, someone trying to decide what to do puts the issue in extreme terms: what is the worst thing that could happen if I go ahead and do what I want? But there is no reason to expect the worst, Ms. Pearlman said — too many other options are more likely to occur.

Once one decides what to do, they said, one should act. Men often urge their wives or employes to become more assertive, Ms. Pearlman said, and the relationships usually improve.

"The idea of an assertive woman as an okay thing to be is new," she said. "Being feminine and being assertive used to be almost mutually exclusive.

"Society is still reinforcing passive behavior in women. In a man it's called wishy-washy or milktoast, and a man who acts that way may even be called feminine. In a woman it's called being nice and accommodating.

"If a man suddenly becomes assertive, he gets positive feedback from society. But a woman gets treated differently, like she used to be someone who could be counted on but not any more."

"All the things all of us were brought up to believe — be nice to others, don't rock the boat, if you can't say anything nice don't say anything — these injunctions against saying what you feel keep people non-assertive as much as other people trying to manipulate them," Ms. Coburn said.

"It's not a case where a woman can have two counseling sessions and say to her husband, 'Now I've had assertiveness training and I'm going to tell you what I've wanted to say for all these years.'"

Learning how to be assertive is one thing, they agreed. Learning when to be assertive is another. One may not choose to assert ones self every time. If something at work bothers you, but speaking up might cost you a job you like, you may have to suffer in silence.

When you do choose to assert yourself, Ms. Pearlman added, the training won't always work the way it did in the practice sessions.

"You may not get your request met," she said. "But you feel better about yourself. You have the right to ask, just as the other person has the right to turn you down."

Old Steam Engines Are Being Restored

Hired by the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, he works on most of his projects at his "Whistles in the Woods" museum near here.

The Smithsonian will use several of his steam engines and steam operated machines for its exhibition, among them one believed to be the only existing orchestrion, a musical apparatus resembling the old player piano but more elaborate.

The orchestrion has been chosen to be on exhibit at the Smithsonian and may become a permanent fixture there. The institution has an option to buy it after two years.

The Smithsonian has also commissioned Johnson to help duplieate most of the machinery that was on display at the Philadelphia Centennial exposition in 1876. Johnson already has some of this machinery and is building replicas of many of the machines no longer in existence.

The museum also wants him to construct a 32-foot tower for the original Otis steam-operated elevator. The original Otis car will be installed and made operable by Johnson.

Johnson came to the Smithsonian's attention when it wanted to make the light mechanism and lens from an old lighthouse a part of its Bicentennial display, but couldn't find anyone willing to tackle the project.

The U.S. Coast Guard donated the mechanism and Johnson sailed eight miles into Boston harbor to dismantle and ship it to Washington.

Another project is the restoration of an 1867 rotary press.

Johnson's talents aren't limited to restoration projects. He says he plays every stringed and fretted musical instrument and has worked with singer Johnny Cash on recordings and television.

POOR TOM

He could have gotten the fireplace he wanted at

CAMBRIDGE

Poor Tom:

Somehow marshmallows don't taste the same when they're cooked over an electric burner.

Tom knew that, but he thought fireplaces weren't available in moderately priced houses.

Then he found out about Cambridge where he would have gotten a fireplace and air conditioning and luxurious carpeting throughout.

Not to mention the choice of 3 or 4 bedrooms and a fully modern kitchen with dishwasher and disposal.

And at Cambridge, he'd have been close enough to dash out for those marshmallows on a moment's notice.

No wonder Tom is really burned.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JANUARY 4, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Decide how to attain aims in 1976 and consider what social activities you want to engage in, as well as those persons you desire for close friends, and those you would like to have for acquaintances.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact those you want to make plans with early. Attend services, then be sociable. You can make this a very meaningful time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study ways to make your position in the business world more admired and how to gain a finer reputation. Avoid self-pity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Sit down with experts and plan how to improve projects, or how to start more remunerative ones. You can gain valuable data.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Combine your intuitions with your good judgment so you get fine results in both personal and business matters.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact those with whom you want to set up more sensible arrangements for the future. You can handle well any public matter.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Before you get into work scheduled, show some gratitude to loyal helpers. Plan the new week's activities. Meditate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together with congenials for recreation as you need to relax. Revive some dormant creative talent. Be happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study homelife and do those things to improve it. Some new venture you have in mind requires more study before action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan early how to have more of this world's goods and discuss your ideas with experts. Be careful of newcomers now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Discuss future operations with allies for success, then enjoy desired recreation. Make new contacts of worth, charmingly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Schedule activities wisely for the week ahead and rid yourself of stumbling blocks in the path of progress.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will like others and want to help them, and will be a very popular person and should have the education slanted toward professions of a humanitarian nature, personnel work, government connections, etc. Teach early to live graciously; give as many advantages as you can, music lessons, etc. Sports are fine hers. Religion early is a must.

Get A Glimpse Of Real World

HANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Principal James N. Parks is building an environmental wonderland at his school to insure that students never will say as he does, "I just hated school when I was growing up."

Part of the natural setting at Roosevelt Elementary School here is "Fort Roosevelt," a previously undeveloped acre enclosed by old utility poles making it look like a frontier fortress.

Inside the stockade walls is an environmental study area which, when completed, will duplicate many of California's varied environments.

A design drawn by two U.S. Forest Service architects provides high and low chaparral, foothill, Sierra Nevada and prairie grassland settings.

Parks says the idea began about six years ago when a pond was created to attract dragonflies.

"We didn't get any dragonflies, but we did get about six million mosquitoes," Parks said.

When mosquito abatement officers arrived, they offered to bring in bulldozers to dig a real pond. Later, ducks occupied the pond but were killed by neighborhood dogs.

Volunteers, working with poles donated from utility companies, set up the fort to protect the area, beginning a flood of volunteer labor and expertise.

Those volunteers helped build two ponds complete with dragonflies and ducks, as well as a stream, a bridge, an amphitheater and several pens for rabbits and chickens.

No school money has gone into the project. Parks says the school got a $21,000 grant from the state and laborers paid with federal funds worked on the fort last summer.

But there are other programs to keep the youngsters from being bored with the three Rs.

Half-completed is a rubber-tire playground designed as a small-scale obstacle course. Seabees, the Navy's construction corps, are building the course, also on a volunteer basis.

And the school's multipurpose room is being used as a museum, complete with mounted animals and big-game heads, Indian artifacts, snakes, butterflies and some rare stuffed birds donated by the state.

The pupils have had a chance to study taxidermy.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until midafternoon do not try to impress others by your ability since responses are not likely to be forthcoming. Later you will receive more understanding. Extend your activities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend to necessary chores early in the day so that later you can follow a hunch that's been pecking away at you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't try to mix business with pleasure in the morning if you want good results and maintain important friendships.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Steer clear of an argument between an associate and a higher-up and you come out the winner. You now get inspired ideas.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Complete important work first before you delve into some new interest. Follow your intuition for best results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you follow through on whatever agreement you have made with others. Clear it up without further ado.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Being neutral where an argument is concerned between a close tie and an outsider is best since it will soon right itself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You need to be more understanding of others who are not communicating very well. Tenderness with mate is important.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to separate work and pleasure during the daytime. Show loved one that you are truly devoted and thoughtful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Getting important business out of the way during day hours makes it possible to have a delightful evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't permit a private worry to deter you from handling important business at hand. Evening is fine for recreation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't permit a neighbor to enter into some important financial matter or you could have trouble. Consult an expert.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Morning is not the time to consult a business expert today. Later take time to discuss property matters with mate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she could encounter difficulty in separating personal interests from practical ones. Teach your progeny to handle money well and the life becomes nicely balanced. There can be much success here if given a good education.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

THE BEST OF DEAR ABBY

A vintage selection of letters received during 1975 and a sampling of what's in store for this year.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if the U.S. government has what they call a "conscience place" where a person can go and pay the government what he has cheated them out of. If so, where is it? I want to die clean.

WANTS TO REPENT

DEAR WANTS: There is no one place. If you've cheated on your income tax, write to the Internal Revenue Service, Washington, D.C. with a note of explanation. If you've cheated on something else, send your remittance to any U.S. Treasury office with a note, and they will channel it to the proper place.
(P.S. In the meantime, pray. You know how slow the mails are.)

DEAR READERS: The following letter was sent to me by a reader. I pass it along without comment:

Dear Customer:
We at the_____company wish to express our deep appreciation to all our customers and friends for your kind expressions of sympathy when we lost our beloved wife and mother. Every kind word, every warm handshake and every helpful act was gratefully appreciated.
Therefore, we are having a special "thank you" sale. Special pricing has been made possible for this event through the cooperation of our distributors.
The first 100 customers will receive $10 worth of food coupons.

Sincerely,
(NAME OF STORE WITHHELD)

DEAR ABBY: What one thing most inspires you to write?

NOSY IN N.J.

DEAR NOSY: The Bureau of Internal Revenue.

DEAR ABBY: I am 39 and Len is 42. We've been married less than a year. My first husband died, and so did Len's first wife.
The problem: Len put two pictures in a large double frame—one of me and one of his first wife. He put these pictures in our bedroom on the dresser facing our bed, and he keeps looking at these pictures when we're in bed. (He's slightly cross-eyed so I can't tell whether he's looking at the picture of me or the one of his first wife.)
I feel very self-conscious with his first wife staring at me from the dresser, but I don't know how to tell him. I wouldn't mind so much if Len kept that picture in another room. Am I making myself clear?
How do I handle this?

INHIBITED IN INDIANA

DEAR INHIBITED: Level with Len. Tell him it's difficult to entertain romantic notions with that picture on the dresser. Len will have to make a choice between a dead wife on the dresser and a live one in bed.

DEAR ABBY: You asked if any of your readers had ever witnessed a wedding at which the minister asked, "If there be anyone present who knows any just cause why this couple shall not lawfully be joined together, let him speak now or forever hold his peace," and someone actually spoke up:
Well, I have. It was at my wedding. When the minister spoke those words, my father, who was terribly nervous and is slightly hard of hearing, stepped forward and in a clear, strong voice said, "I DO!"
Poor darling thought the minister had asked, "Who gives this woman in marriage?"
I knew my father had been rehearsing that "I do" for weeks, so I quietly said, "Not now, Daddy..." But it was too late; the church was already rocking with laughter. Sign me...

BLUSHING BRIDE

DEAR ABBY: Because you have always been a good friend to the Como Park Zoo, I am asking a favor of you.
We have a 5-month-old female orangutan named Joy who has been invited to the Los Angeles Zoo on a "breeding loan." They have a male orangutan named Guy whom they would like to mate with Joy.
Do you know anyone who has an air-conditioned automobile who would be willing to drive Joy and her foster parents (Arlene and Joe Scheunemann) to Chicago to board an airplane to transport Joy to L.A.?
Joy is small enough to be held in one's arms, she has good manners, and she would do no damage to the automobile.

JOHN FLETCHER, DIRECTOR
ST. PAUL COMO PARK ZOO

DEAR JOHN: If Joy is a "liberated" orangutan, she may not like the idea of going to L.A. to accommodate the male. If Guy wants a date with a sure thing, why doesn't HE fly to St. Paul?
On the other hand. If Joy WANTS to met Guy in L.A., I will provide the child bride with air-conditioned transportation. And I hope she returns "heir-conditioned."

DEAR ABBY: Nearly a year ago, after 24 years of marriage and four children, my husband asked me for a divorce.
It seems that although we were the same age when we got married, I suddenly got "too old" for him, so he found himself a girl his daughter's age and traded me in for her.
Somehow I survived the blow, but listen to this: Yesterday he phoned and these were his exact words, "Honey, if I sent Marcia (his young wife) over, would you please give her some cooking lessons? She's a great kid, but she never learned how to cook."
I was so shocked at his colossal nerve I didn't know what to say, so after a long pause I said, "I'll think about it and let you know."
Abby, the last thing I want to do is give this girl cooking lessons. Am I wrong? How should I handle this hot potato?

NUMBER ONE

DEAR ONE: With asbestos mittens. Tell your husband that you've thought it over and decided to let him eat crow.

DEAR ABBY: Now that all the excitement has died down over all the Johns who resented the fact that their name is used as a synonym for "toilet," may I have my say?
My parents christened me "Fanny." Now, how did my name ever become a synonym for the part of one's anatomy that one refers to in polite society as a "backside"?

GRIPES MINE

DEAR GRIPES: There are several explanations, but the one that makes the most sense to me is this: During World War I, the members of the First Aid Nurses Yeomanry (or F.A.N.Y.), a British women's ambulance unit, were known as "FANNYS." And they were reputed to have been well-reared.

CONFIDENTIAL TO E. IN CHICAGO: Stay out of the stock market unless you know what you're doing. It's not the bulls and bears you have to worry about. It's the bum steers.

DEAR ABBY: After three generations of Johns, my son prefers a nickname. Anything but "John."
He was named John for his father, grandfather and great-grandfather. Also after Saint John. Not a toilet!
Abby, how did that ridiculous fad ever get started? It has become such an accepted part of our language now that even visiting friends have asked: "May I use your john?" I reply: "Of course not!"
What is wrong with using, "restroom, bathroom, or lavatory"? Please, anything but john.

WIFE AND MOTHER OF A JOHN

DEAR WIFE: My consultant on words, Ted Bernstein, informs me that since the earliest times, there have been countless synonyms for "toilet" because people were reluctant to use that word. He suspects that "john" came from the word "jakes," an old English word which means privy. Jakes is a far cry from John, however. Perhaps someone from Flushing has the answer.

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about nudist colonies?

CURIOUS IN COVINGTON

DEAR CURIOUS: If the good Lord had intended for man to walk around naked, he would have been born that way.

DEAR ABBY: You could perform an even greater service than you do with your advice column if you were to set up a "Dear Abby Swap Shop."
The Dear Abby Swap Shop, which could be called "DASS," could arrange swaps between mates. For example, the wife of Gutless in New York, who complained because she was still a virgin after a year of marriage, could swap mates with one of those gals who is always complaining because her husband won't leave her alone long enough to get her housework done.
And that poor 44-year-old wife who is dead tired from working a 10-hour shift in a laundry could swap her Louie, who acts like he's still a teen-ager, for a man like "Enough is Enough," who's all burned out at the age of 50.
There are lots of couples who need to swap mates, and you and DASS could do it, Abby. What do you say?

ORIGINATOR OF DASS

DEAR ORIGINATOR: Thanks a lot, but there's enough swapping going on without my starting a swap shop. In other words, "DASS" ist nicht fur mich.

DEAR ABBY: I've never written to you before, but there was a letter in your column that really threw me. It was from "Bone Tired," the young mother who wasn't able to get all dolled up in the morning because she'd been up half the night with a sick baby. And when she served her husband his breakfast in her bathrobe, he gave her the dickens because he likes to see his wife all prettied up at breakfast.
Now I've heard everything! I'm a working woman myself, and I say, "Let the guy make his own breakfast." Furthermore, if he expects to look at Elizabeth Taylor in the morning, his wife should lay out a magazine with the food.
I'll bet she never made Richard Burton breakfast!

LINDA

DEAR LINDA: Probably not. Do you suppose if she had, they'd still be together?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old bachelor. For the last year I've been going with a very pretty, 28-year-old school teacher. I have asked her to marry me, but she says she is not in any hurry to get married.
She told me that she has been taking birth control pills for the last four years "in case she gets raped."
We have never been intimate. Don't get me wrong. I'm no angel. I've tried, but she won't let me. She claims she is still a virgin. As far as I know, she doesn't date anyone else.
How do you figure this pill business?

LEARY IN SANTE FE

DEAR LEARY: It's possible, of course. But I find it a little hard to swallow.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know of any organization or medical school that might be interested in buying a person's body?
I have always wanted to donate my body to science since I don't relish the thought of being buried. But with times being so bad right now, I'd like to sell my body to a medical school that would pay me in advance. The money would come in very handy now.
By the way, I sure do enjoy your column. I can't get over some of those kooks who write to you.

A MAINE READER

DEAR READER: I know of no organization or medical school that pays for bodies. People leave their bodies as a "gift" to a medical school.

DEAR ABBY: I have never been a women's libber, but I am now because I am now aware that there is a deplorable conspiracy being perpetrated against women by dentists in my city, and probably throughout the nation.
When a dentist makes dentures for a woman, he purposely makes them so that she can't talk properly! I have yet to see a man with dentures (and I have known several) whose dentures interfere with his speech. But all the women I know who wear dentures have trouble talking because the dentist intentionally made them that way so women will keep their mouths shut.
Don't you think it is time this inequality was brought to light? I certainly do.
I have been to three different dentists, and each one made me a set of dentures I couldn't talk with. They were all adjusted, and two dentists made me a second pair which were no better than the first.
Since I already have enough problems with dentists in this town, please don't use my name. Just sign this . . .

CAN'T TALK IN JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: I can't understand how this happened, but it did, and here are the facts:
My wife and I have been happily married for 27 years. My trouble began a few months ago when our youngest son found a stray dog. The next day I saw an ad in the lost-and-found section of our newspaper describing the dog and offering a reward for his return.
Of course, we contacted the owner who said he'd be right over to pick up the dog.
Well, a knock on the door brought joy to the dog owner, but sorrow to me because my wife, who is almost 50, is now carrying on an affair with the dog owner, who is a 19-year-old boy! She doesn't know that I am on to the whole business.
Rush your advice, please.

GONE WITH THE DOG

DEAR GONE. It's not unusual for a menopause mama to try to recapture a bit of her youth. But it's usually in fantasy—not in fact. Be patient. It will probably pass.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a masseur, and he has his own parlor. Our problem is the growing number of women who find it impossible to come in for massages during Walter's regular working hours. To accommodate them, he stays evenings, which means Walter and his customer are there all alone.
One woman used to come in three times a week—always after hours—so I started going down there when she did, and she finally quit coming in for massages.
Walter became upset and said he doesn't want me coming down to his parlor at all because the word is getting around that he has a jealous wife—which is hurting his business.
I say he does well enough during the day hours and doesn't need to work evenings, too. Also, I've never know him to work overtime on a man or an elderly or obese woman—only young, good-looking ones.
Have I a right to be suspicious?

WALTER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes. But you can't be absolutely sure until you catch Walter rubbing one of his customers the wrong way.

DEAR ABBY: My attention has been called to a recent inquiry in your column by a newly remarried lady in her 80s who wanted to know what the chances of her becoming pregnant were at this time in her life. Your answer, that the probability of conception was very remote, no doubt will ease her mind.
However, there are several cases in the medical records worthy of mention. One was reported by Ripley in BELIEVE IT OR NOT some time in 1945: "An American Indian woman, age 99, married a man, age 37. One year later she gave birth to a son. She died at the age of 119, leaving a 19-year-old-son and a 56-year-old husband."
The second case involved a woman reported to have been 65 years old who married a man about 80. A child was born to this couple. It was reported in several leading American newspapers.
These are rare cases, but they did happen. All women should be made aware that where there is life, there is hope.

MASSACHUSETTS M.D.

DEAR M.D.: If one is to take these "reports" seriously, then the only contraceptive that is 100 per cent reliable is "sulfa denial."

DEAR ABBY: Would you please settle a controversy over pantyhose? Should you wear pantyhose with or without panties?
If you should wear panties with pantyhose, should you wear them UNDER or OVER the pantyhose? (Some people wear them both under and over!)
I have asked half a dozen people this question, and everyone has a different answer.
What do you say?

CURIOUS IN SALEM

DEAR CURIOUS: I say that pantyhose—just as their name suggests—provides both panties and hose, so no panties are necessary. Of course they are worn only once and then laundered (just as panties are), so panties are unnecessary.
(P.S. If this answer doesn't satisfy you, ask Joe Namath.]

DEAR ABBY: There is scuttlebutt among my shipmates that Dear Abby is really a cigar-chewing, bald-headed boiler salesman in Cleveland, Ohio who moonlights by writing a column.
Is there any substance to this accusation?

MERCHANT SEAMAN

DEAR SEAMAN: No way, mate! I'm a non-smoking, genuine female with hair growing on my head and no grass growing under my feet.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful idea, but I need your help. We should go back to God's laws, so I thought up the idea of having the Ten Commandments printed on bedsheets and pillow cases.
If all the people who are shoplifting were to see "Thou shalt not steal" printed on their bedsheets every night, they would quit stealing.
Also, people need to be reminded that it is a sin to kill, and to commit adultery, and to covet another man's wife. They forget that it's God's law to honor their mothers and fathers, and to remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy. If we had the Ten Commandments printed on bedsheets and pillow cases, it could change the world.
I wrote to two manufacturers of bed linen, and even sent them a sample sheet that I made up myself, and they both turned me down flat.
What do you think of my idea?

GREAT IDEA IN WASHINGTON

DEAR GREAT: Send me a sample, and I'll sleep on it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who I like, but his wife can be very obnoxious.
This wife asked me to take a urine sample to the hospital lab for her in the morning because she and her husband leave for work earlier than the lab opens up and I go right by the hospital on my way to work later.
I said no flat out.
The next morning, this woman's mother was there to pick up the little jar to deliver it to the hospital, which is only six blocks away.

IT'S URINE, NOT MINE

DEAR IT'S: I think you were being unduly squeamish. You probably would have taken a blood sample and would not have been shocked by the request—unless, of course, you don't like any part of your neighbor's wife.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JINNIE: Wear pants to the office, only if you are sure that the end justifies the jeans. If you don't have a three-way mirror, ask an honest friend.

DEAR ABBY: I'm getting married in three weeks. My fiance goes for the natural look, and has said many times that he doesn't like anything phony or artificial.
Little does he know that I have had my nose fixed, my teeth capped, and I am not a natural blond.
I have come close to telling him, but I always chickened out.
Should I tell him the truth now, or wait until after the wedding?

FAKE AND FEARFUL

DEAR FAKE: Tell him now. He might be glad he didn't have to pay for all the improvements.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column where someone said gentlemen used to prefer blondes, but today it seems that gentlemen prefer gentlemen. And you said, "No, I think most gentlemen still prefer blondes, brunettes and redheads."
Abby, I am greatly disappointed in you. Don't you realize that you have a lot of black readers who don't happen to be blondes, redheads or brunettes?

LOLLIE IN TULSA

DEAR LOLLIE: The letter to which you refer appeared in Ann Landers' column, not mine.
And Lollie, dear, please don't be too hard on my twin sister because I have seen black women with beautiful red and even blonde hair. Of course, it's not their natural color, but then, neither is mine.

DEAR ABBY: I've heard of golf widows, fishing widows and baseball widows, but would you believe a dog widow? I've been married eight months and every Saturday and Sunday morning, my Harold grabs the morning papers and goes right for the lost and found section looking for lost pets.
He checks off those that offer big rewards, then he jumps into his pickup truck and goes out hunting for the lost pets.
So far he has located four lost dogs and collected $300 in rewards. That's an average of $37.50 a month. We both work, and I would rather have Harold home for some good old-fashioned sleeping in on weekends than scouting for lost dogs.
Any suggestions?

DOG-GONED

DEAR D.G.: Offer Harold $35.00 a month to stay home.

DEAR ABBY: I am a male, age 32. My parents had me circumcised when I was an infant. We are Christians, so there was no religious reason for having maimed me in this manner.
I feel that subjecting a helpless child to such barbaric surgery is an assault on his person and a violation of his rights, and I am seriously considering suing my parents for $100,000 for having permanently disfigured me.
Do you know if such a suit has ever been filed?

SERIOUS IN N.Y.

DEAR SERIOUS: No, I don't. But if you win, you could call it "severance pay."

DEAR ABBY: There are a lot of dogs in my neighborhood, and I will tell you right now that I am no dog lover. I don't like their yapping when I'm trying to sleep, but worse yet, I don't like what they do to my lawn and bushes—if you know what I mean.
There must be something a tax-paying citizen can do about this problem. Whom should I call? And where can I go?

HATES DOGS

DEAR HATES: You don't say where you live, but you can call your police or sheriff. And if you ask some of your dog-owning neighbors, they will be glad to tell you where to go.

Miss Vicky Gail Clark Is Bride

Miss Vicky Gail Clark and Tony Edgar Coggins, both of Rt. 6, Greenville, were united in marriage Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Belvoir Free Will Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Gail Barnhill Clark, of Rt. 6, Greenville, and Mr. Eason Graham Clark of Tarboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Coggins Jr. of Rt. 6, Greenville.

MRS. TONY EDGAR COGGINS

Randy Buck, pianist, provided a program of nuptial music Soloists Bobby Harris and Mrs. Nell Clark sister-in-law of the bride, sang "My Sweet Lady" and "Color My World" and joined in a duet at the end of the ceremony to sing the "Wedding Prayer."

After speaking their vows, the couple removed two outside lighted tapers from a three branch brass candelbra and lighted the middle taper to symbolize the union of their marriage.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, and escorted by her father wore a formal length wedding gown of peau de soie and chantilly lace. The empire bodice and the full length bishop sleeves were of chantilly lace and the Victorian neckline and cuffs were fashioned with a seed pearl design. The bodice was joined with a chapel length train highlighted with lace appliques.

She wore a cathedral length mantilla of illusion with a border of lace matching that of her train. She carried a nosegay of miniature white carnations and blue pom pons trailing with ivy and satin ribbon streamers.

The mother of the bride was the matron of honor and maids of honor were Ann Clark, sister of the bride, and Debra, Everette, both of Rt. 6, Greenville. Bridesmaids were Debbie Morris of Rt. 6, Greenville, Susan Manning of Bethel and Debra Manning of Robersonville.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of light blue knit designed with high necklines and inset bands at the modified waistline. The sleeveless gowns featuring ruffled cuffs in the light blue knit. Matching ruffles edged the open collar and velvet buttons and loops enhanced the fitted waistband of the bolero jacket. The bridesmaids carried a single mum with a blue and white lace dolie. The honor attendants carried bouquets with blue and white ribbon streamers. They wore ribbon streamers of blue and white lace entwined with baby's breath in their hair.

Miss Regina Clark of Rt. 4, Greenville, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a formal length gown of light blue knit with long sleeves and a royal blue velvet vest inset at the waistline. She carried a basket of petals.

The grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. Margaret Barnhill, Mrs. Ryan Pollard and Mrs. Lillian Suggs, were presented corsages of miniture pom pons.

Scott Williams of Rt. 3, Mount Olive, was ring bearer. He carried a heart shaped pillow of satin with lace trim and streamers of ribbons tied in love knots.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were E. G. Clark of Rt. 4, Greenville, and Randy Clark of Tarboro, brothers of the bride, Larry Peaden of Rt. 4, Greenville, Tracy Coggins, brother of the bridegroom, David Morris, Eddie Morris and J. B. Bullock, cousin of the bride, all of Rt. 6, Greenville.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall given by the families of the bridal couple following the ceremony.

The bridal couple cut the traditional first slice of wedding cake and guests were served by friends and relatives.

The couple will reside at Rt. 6, Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of North Pitt High School and ECU with a degree in early childhood education. She is employed by Edgecombe County Schools. The bridegroom is a graduate of North Pitt High School and is employed by M. O. Blount and Sons, Bethel.

The bridal couple was entertained at an after-rehearsal party Thursday night.

On Tuesday evening, the bridal couple was entertained by friends and some of the wedding attendants at a bachelor party and spinster party.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

A lady from South Wales stitched a square about her country's custom of searching for shells on donkeys. The governor's wife in Arizona embroidered a cactus, while the governor's wife in Maine detailed the state's bird and flower.

Each of these squares and dozens more have been submitted to Needlework II, the second biennial needlework show sponsored by Morecai Square Historical Society next March. The squares were being accepted through Dec. 31.

This month, the squares will be stripped together and quilted by volunteers. The quilts will then be displayed and sold at the March 18-21 show as part of the Needlework II benefit—preserving historic sites.

"The history behind each quilt should make then quite a collector's item," said Mrs. George F. Bason, chairman of the show. A diagram showing every contributor of the quilt will sent to each contributor so she will know where her patch is located and who else helped to make up that particular quilt.

The Edgecombe County Historical Society is sponsoring an exhibit of handmade furniture at the Pender Museum, Tarboro, today.

The museum is an 1810 dwelling located at 1000 St. Andrew St., which has been restored by the Edgecombe County Historical Society as a house museum. The exhibit will be open to the public from 2:30 until 5 0'clock.

The museum provides the setting for the furniture of Wright Horne, who specializes in antique reproductions. He made the dining chairs for Hope Plantation, the restored Bertie County home of Governor Stone.

Horne is a designer and inventor as well as an artist of reproduction. Examples of his "copying" of chairs and benches will be on display, as well as some contemporary pieces of his own invention.

COOKBOOK GO-ALONG

We found the following note handwritten on a card in a second-hand cookbook. After trying its suggestion, we are happy to pass it along: "Maybe you know this one already — but the lady in charge of foods at the Georgian Tea Room told me to mix horseradish mustard with crabapple jelly. Beat it well, adding enough mustard to kill the sweet taste. Nice with ham. Bessie." Can anyone tell us where the Georgian Tea Room is, or was, located? — C. B.

Can't Cope With Household Bills

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This problem has bugged me for 25 years. It concerns my husband's inability to cope with anything unpleasant. I would call it his problem, only it doesn't seem to bother him. I'm the one it bothers, so that makes it MY problem, right?

When we receive bills, they could lay six months, and he'd never open them. If he gets a call from someone who wants some information he promised to have ready but didn't get around to, he doesn't return the call.

He puts things off indefinitely. Needless to say, this drives me up a wall.

He is a dear, sweet, loving man, and I love being married to him. He has the disposition of an angel, and he's kind and generous and everything a wife could want in a man, but his irresponsible attitude about matters that I consider important makes me want to scream.

What do you advise me to do, Abby?

"E" IN MO.

DEAR E.: Face it. You'll never change this dear, sweet, loving, generous man, so roll with the punches.

Why not take over the household bills? He may welcome the idea, and you'll know they're paid. Don't nag him. Nobody's perfect, and his faults are minor compared to some he could have.

DEAR ABBY: A high school neighbor girl sits with our children about two nights a week. She is a pleasant, quiet girl and the children love her.

She asked if her boyfriend could keep her company while she sits, and I said it would be all right.

Lately, both my husband and I suspect that they have been using our home as a rendezvous for improper behavior. (We have no proof—just a feeling.)

Should we now tell her that we do not want her to have any male company in our home in our absence?

If something unfortunate were to happen in our home, we would feel responsible. Are we wrong? And how should we handle it?

"THE W'S"

DEAR "W'S": You are not wrong. Tell the girl that you have changed your mind about allowing her to have her boyfriend keep her company while she sits. Because you have no "proof," and are proceeding only from a "feeling," make no accusations.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of people who wear dark glasses indoors? (I don't mean "tinted"—I mean DARK, which makes it impossible to see their eyes.)

I have a friend who comes to visit me, and she never removes her dark glasses the entire time she is here. I like to make eye contact with people I talk with and I find this very frustrating.

Am I being picky? I have never made my feelings known to her.

Should I mention it?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: People wear dark glasses indoors for a variety of reasons. Some do so because they have an eye problem. On the chance that this is the reason, it would be a kindness to refrain from mentioning it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: If you or a relative has spent three months or more in a mental hospital, please tell me what problems were encountered after returning to the community. You need not disclose your identity. Thank you.

Bullock-Tripp Vows Solemnized

Miss Teresa Lynn Tripp became the bride of Carl Alan Bullock Saturday at four o'clock in the afternoon at Faith Baptist Church. Rev. Donald Jones of Ramseur, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Tripp of Robersonville are the parents of the bride. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bullock of Robersonville.

The church was decorated with the traditional rainbow colors. In the background were tiered candelabra with bouquets of white mums, pom pons and emerald greenery. The altar was outlined with single candleholders and a seven branched candelabra. An aisle carpet was rolled out for the bridal party by Gary Jones of Ramseur, and Herbie Tripp, brother of the bride. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white organza gown over taffeta designed with a portrait neckline encircled with latticed Venise lace and trimmed in an organza Bertha collar appliqued with Venise lace flowers centered with pearls. Matching lace appliques were featured on the long sleeves, sash, and the modified A-line skirt. The hemline and attached chapel length train was enhanced with flounces of ruffled organza. Her headpiece was a veil of white illusion attached to a Camelot cap trimmed with lace and a satin bow. She carried a bouquet of assorted rainbow colors of pom pons and daisies nestled in baby's breath, tied with white streamers.

Miss Vickie Tripp, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a gown of floral design and carried a bouquet of white mums trimmed in lavender with matching streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Wendy Tripp, sister of the bride, Miss Sherry Bullock, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Wanda Jones of Ramseur. They wore formal length gowns of green, yellow, and blue with sweetheart necklines trimmed with ruffled lace. They carried long stemmed mums with matching streamers.

Ray Bullock, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Donnie Bullock, brother of the bridegroom, Carl Jackson of Robersonville, and E. J. James of Greenville, uncle of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Tripp choose a pink formal gown with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother choose a blue formal gown with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following a brief wedding trip, the couple will reside in Robersonville.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Carl Jackson and Mrs. Leroy Beach Jr. and both wore formal length aqua gowns.

A cake cutting was held for the wedding party at the home of E. J. James of Greenville. Mrs. E. J. James served cake and Miss Kathy Jackson poured punch.

MISS CYNTHIA JANE FERGUSON . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Linwood Ferguson Jr. of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Ronald Joseph Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Melvin Moore of Greenville. The wedding will take place Feb. 14.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

These insurance charts are beginning to get on my nerves. You know, the ones that list what you should weigh if you have a small, medium or large frame.

I lie about my weight on my driver's license, my passport, and my application for work. What makes them think I don't lie about my weight when I apply for insurance . . . if only to raise the average?

The truth is, I have never found anyone who could explain to me what constitutes a small, medium or large frame. Are we to believe that life stops after a large frame? Is there nothing else beyond large? Not even "I don't want to talk about it"?

When I check the charts, I figure I'd be a fool to admit to a small frame. They're only allowed 108-116 for my height, which is 5-2. (Face it, I weighed 102 at birth and I was premature.) The medium frame gives me a 110-122 leeway. I always opt for the large frame which gives me a break: 121-138 pounds.

One of the biggest jokes is the calorie number, or the little blurb on the chart that asks the musical question, "How many calories do you need?"

To calculate my caloric needs, I had to figure out if I was moderately active (since I sent my oven to be cleaned I answered yes). That meant I needed 15 calories a day per pound to maintain my body weight.

Now the chart said, "Determine how much you want to weigh." That was easy. I always wanted to weigh 102 pounds-or hang a handbag on my hipbone-whichever came first.

Now, multiply this by 15 which gives me 1530. Then subtract 500, the number of calories I want my body to withdraw from my store of fat reserve.

ONE THOUSAND THIRTY CALORIES!

Are they crazy? I could eat more following my son around and eating the dribbles off his chin!

How do I know I have that much of a balance in my fat reserve? Isn't that how New York went broke?

What if I gave up hangnails and liver?

I've been allowing myself 1030 calories a day for two weeks now. By my own calculations (counting my breakfast this morning), I have eaten my allotted calories through March 5.

I'm not worried. The insurance charts just assume that because you're over 25, you have stopped growing. I'm not sure about that at all. With a liar, anything is possible.

Still Honor Stalin In Soviet Georgia

By CHARLES P. WALLACE

GORI, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Neither time nor history seems to tarnish the image of Josef Stalin in Soviet Georgia.

Criticized elsewhere as a tyrant and a dictator, the "man of steel" with the forbidding countenance is still cherished here as the region's most succesful native son.

Trucks cruise the streets of Tbilisi, the capital of this southern republic, with crisp portraits of Stalin affixed proudly to a place of honor on the dashboard.

A meeting room in the ornate Palace of Pioneers, a local version of the Boy Scouts, accords Stalin's mustachioed face more than equal reverence with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and Stalin's own mentor, V.I. Lenin.

It is perhaps here in the town of his birth 96 years ago that the unblemished image of the late Soviet ruler is given more life than any other place in the country.

Unlike other towns that stripped away his name during the period of "de-Stalinization" in the 1960s, Gori makes capital use of its Stalin Street and Stalin Square.

The house where Stalin was purportedly born is preserved for future generations and, if the memory begins to fade, a square block of marble nearby contains what must be the world's largest collection of Stalin memorabilia.

The Stalin house is set in a neatly trimmed grass mall, a fact which lends credence to the theory that Gori was built around the home rather than the other way around.

The modest two-room house where Josef Djugashvili, as he was then known, grew up seems the perfect place for planting the seeds of revolution in a young mind.

The house is oarren to the point of bleakness, containing a simple bed, a samovar for brewing tea, a rough hewn table and four stools.

The only modern addition, the visitor is told, is the massive marble portico that squats down upon the shack and appears as if it might crush it.

One can traverse the entire Stalin museum next door without hearing a single negative word about Stalin, which requires some fancy footwork even by Soviet standards.

Because of the unsavory memory of the mass purges and executions of the 1930s, for example, that epoch is confined to a half room in the many chambered history of Stalin's life.

Authorities do draw a line of acceptability at the museum, which was closed for a short time at the height of de-Stalinization.

The museum is not allowed to indulge the common Soviet desire for souvenirs and lapel buttons, although the Gori hotel unabashedly sells garish three-dimensional pictures of Stalin.

While the average Georgian does not show any embarrassment about the extent of the Stalin idolatry that prevails here, the same is not true of officials.

"Stalin was of course an outstanding state, public and Communist figure and nobody denies this," said Otar Y. Cherkeziya, deputy chairman of the council of ministers in a recent interview.

"Nevertheless, that does not mean we should keep quiet about all the shortcomings and distortions of which we learned," he said.

"It would be wrong to describe his activities only from one side, that he was only good or only bad. We can say we appreciate him and we appreciate his merits."

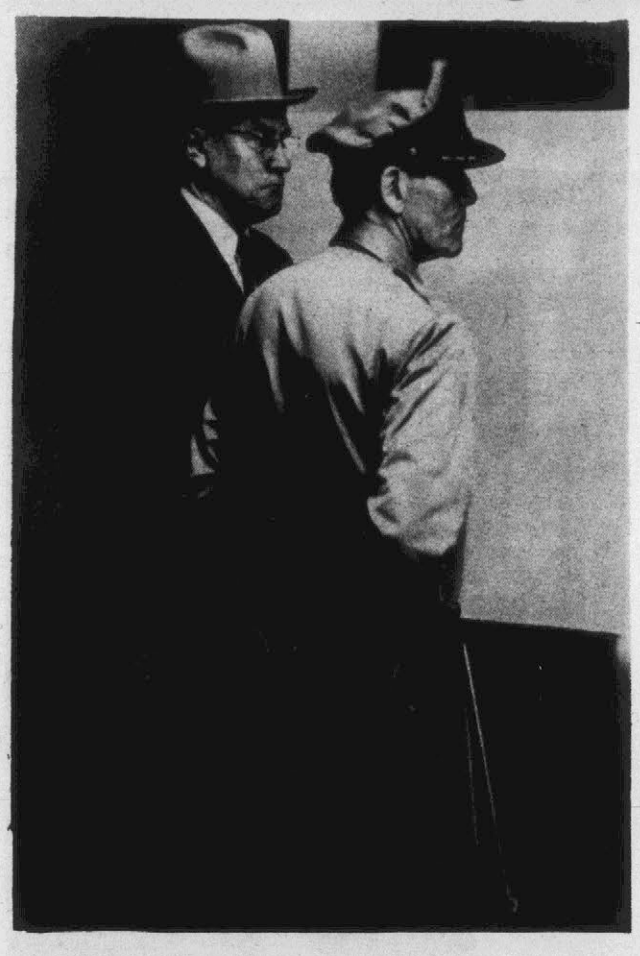
TV SHOWTIME

For The Week Of January 4-10, 1975

"Collision Course" Airs



CONFRONTATION—Henry Fonda and E.G. Marshall, as General Douglas MacArthur and President Harry S. Truman, confront one another skeptically to discuss the Korean War, in the ABC Theatre's presentation "Collision Course" airing Sunday, January 4 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Thirteen NBC News correspondents will join anchorman John Chancellor for an examination of American foreign policy in NBC News' three-hour, prime-time special, "New World — Hard Choices: American Foreign Policy 1976," to be colorcast Monday, Jan. 5, 8 to 11 p.m.

The program, which will preempt an entire evening of prime-time programming for the sixth time since 1963, will conduct a thorough examination of this country's foreign policy and its application in a rapidly changing world.

Appearing with Chancellor, Chief Reporter and Writer for "NBC Nightly News," will be John Hart, Don Oliver, Jack Reynolds, Irvin R. Levine, John Dancy, Garrick Utley, Catherine Mackin, Edwin Newman, Richard Hunt, Douglas Kiker, Tom Brokaw, Richard Valeriani, and Ford Rowan.

Chancellor's introductory remarks will outline and define the program's intent-to show the reasons for optimism or pessimism about the present condition of America's influence in world affaris. Correspondents will evaluate current policy and project the general direction of United States foreign policy in their respective areas.

Among the stories to be covered are the policy of containment and the loss of American influence abroad; the application of United States foreign policy in Asia; and an evaluation of our policy of detente with the Soviet Union.

The special, which is divided into three main sections, will examine America's role in world affairs since the early 1960s, new world problems which have arisen within the past five years, and the domestic debate on how the United States should respond to those problems. The program will prsent many views on what our national interest is and what it should be.

Foreign Policy Report

It is June 24, 1950, and a Chopin waltz drifting serenely through President Harry Truman's Missouri home is as ephemeral as postwar peace. The tune ceases on Secretary of State Dean Acheson's dischordent phone call to the President: North Koreans have struck across the 38th Parallel in an all-out offensive.

From the outset the legendary military commander, General Douglas MacArthur, stationed at the American Embassy in Tokyo, wishes to retaliate in full force. The middle-aged, Middle-American President is adament about containing the conflict. Neither soldier nor politician wants to compromise, and so begins their "Collision Course."

Based on memories of both men and written analyses of friends, family, constituents and historians, dramatization of the conflict unfolds in factual detail when "Collision Course" airs Sunday, Jan. 4, 9 to 11 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Each scene builds to the confrontation between the two leaders on Wake Island and finally to Truman's inevitable decision to fire the revered General.

Two actors of enormous range and versatility were chosen to portray the two memorable men, Henry Fonda enacting the role of MacArthur, and E. G. Marshall portraying President Truman.

Both Fonda and Marshall feel that their roles are among the most fascinating and challenging ones of their brilliant careers.

There will always be the passionate pros and cons concerning Truman's controversial firing of MacArthur, but Truman's actual reasons for his action are stated in a stirring sequence to reporters in the film by Marshall:

"The Constitution of the United States states — the President is the Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces. Now — it is damned important for the President to get forth-right- and frank - and honest advice - all varieties of opinion . . . from every person on his staff. But once policy has been set — the Executive Branch has to be able to trust that that policy will be faithfully executed! A soldier — and I mean any damn soldier — who repeatedly disobeys his superiors must expect to be disciplined. Now when you get right down to it — that's all there is to it."

Special Focuses On The Olympics

ABC Sports will begin its approximately 120 hours of exclusive 1976 Olympic telecasts with a two-hour special on the Olympic experience, airing Monday, Jan. 5, 8 to 10 p.m., Roone Arledge, President of ABC Sports, recently announced.

"We are obviously delighted to be the sole U.S. network televising both the Winter Games from Innsbruck and the Summer Games from Montreal," Mr. Arledge said, "and this special will reflect our commitment to bring American viewers not only the competition but the in-depth story of the Games as well.

"The Jan. 5 special will deal with both the Innsbruck and Montreal Olympics, and, in addition, we will televise a Winter Olympics preview on Feb. 3, the eve of the Games. Additional special programming on the Summer Games will be announced at a later date."

This special will give viewers an overall perspective of the Olympics, with a particular emphasis on the people who participate in amateur sports.

One portion of this two-hour program will cover the history of the Games, including film footage of Jesse Owens' great triumphs in the 1936 Berlin Olympics, plus an interview with Owens today; the cancellation of the Games in the early '40s because of World War II; Dick Button's first Gold Medal for the U.S. in figure skating in 1948; Bob Mathias' incredible back - to - back decathlon victories in 1948 and 1952; the triumphs and trials of such U.S. Olympians as Bill Toomey, Wilma Rudolph, Al Oerter and Jim Ryun in the '60s; and Mark Spitz's unprecedented seven gold medals in swimming as well as Olga Korbut's two golds in gymnastics at the 1972 Games.

Another portion of the program will deal with the Olympics as a forum for political statement. Although the politics of the modern Games is thought of as a relatively recent phenomenon, the issue goes back at least to 1920, when the U.S. flag-bearer refused to dip his country's flag while passing that of a foreign nation, the Olympic host country, Belgium.

This segment will include a look at the "black power" protests at Mexico City in 1968 and such other issues as the 1972 banning of Rhodesia and the vote by the citizens of Denver, Colorado, not to hold the 1976 Winter Games in their city.

The telecast will also feature a moving retrospective of the tragic events at the 1972 Summer Games in Munich, narrated by ABC Sportscaster Jim McKay, who was accorded an Emmy Award for his excellence in covering the tragic slaying of 11 Israeli athletes by Arab terrorists.

Other elements of the Olympic special will highlight memorable moments of past Olympics including triumphs and failures, controversial decisions, and the evolution of such important events as the decathlon, the marathon, figure skating and boxing.

The program will also give viewers a look at the Olympic venues and the different life styles of Innsbruck and Montreal.

Family Heads West In Movie

Rod Taylor stars as Evan Thorpe, head of a pioneer family who pull up stakes, pack their belongings and head west seeking free land and a better way of life in "The Oregon Trail," a program development project which will have its world premiere on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Jan. 10, 9 to 11 p.m.

The two-hour action adventure drama also stars David Huddleston, Blair Brown, Douglas V. Fowley, G. Spradlin, Andrew Stevens, Tony Becker, Gina Marie Smika, and Linda Purl.

ABC News Programs

"None of the ideas expressed in the Declaration of Independence was really new," says Marc Siegel, who is the writer, director and producer of "The Will to Be Free," the first of several ABC News "Directions" programs which will honor the Bicentennial in 1976. "The Will to Be Free" airs Sunday, Jan. 4, 12 noon to 1 p.m., on ABC-TV.

"Most of them, in fact, were very, very, old ideas - as old as the memory of man," says Siegel. "They are ideas we take for granted, ideas like the worth of individual human beings or equality before the law. We don't think much about where we got them from; they've bred into our bones. But they were essential to the thinking of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and they're essential to how we regard ourselves today."

So when ABC asked Siegel to produce the leadoff show in the Bicentennial series on the roots of democracy, he reached for the sources of the ideas that helped to shape the thinking of the Founding Fathers.

To do that, he and ABC film crews climbed Mount Sinai to "film the sunrise Moses saw," and worked at the Mount of Beatitudes identified with Jesus and the Sermon on the Mount. Then they moved on to the Parthenon in Athens, the Roman Colosseum and Arch of Titus, and to medieval monasteries and English villages - assembling, in short, a mini-history of Western civilization.

"I don't feel there's necessarily a causative relationship between one century and another," Siegel explains, "but there are real values that build, and there could never have been a Declaration of Independence without the whole history of Western civilization."

What is unique to the document, he says, "is the belief that if you go at it rationally you can make a new start - its genius is the pulling together of old ideas in a rational way to arrive at a new beginning. That may be its most valuable meaning in our time.

"The Will to Be Free" is narrated by ABC News Correspondent Frank Reynolds, alternating with the voices of actors Norman Rose, Morris Carnovsky and Louis Jourdan, and actress Marian Seldes. Original music was composed by John Duffy.

PANORAMIC VIEW—"The Will to Be Free," a panoramic view of the rise of Western civilization, is the first of a series of hour-long specials to honor the Bicentennial during 1976 on ABC News' "Directions" series, "Conscience of America." Standing at the U.S. Supreme Court Building, ABC News Correspondent and narrator Frank Reynolds reflects on the truths the Founding Fathers called "self-evident," which—like the architecture of the Court itself—were drawn from classical civilization. "The Will to Be Free" will air Sunday, January 4 (12 noon-1 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Daytime Show Premieres

"Take My Advice," a new concept in daytime programming featuring celebrity couples discussing viewers' letters on a full-range of personal subjects such as jealousy, infidelity, money and child-rearing, will premiere on NBC-TV Monday, Jan. 5, 12:30 to 12:55 p.m., it was recently announced by Lin Bolen, Vice President, Daytime Programs, NBC-TV.

Kelly Lange, who is under exclusive contract to the Network and is a TV personality in Los Angeles, will be the host.

"Take My Advice" is set in a comfortable living room atmosphere.

You Shouldn't Mix Bulls And Tigers

Larry Wilcox really can ride a Braha bull. That's a statement that can't be made about many actors, but the handsome blond and blue-eyed Wilcox is no stranger to the western mode of transportation, having done, his share of riding and roping, including a jaunt or three on the back of a rambunctious critter.

The rising young movie and television star, who portrays the lead role of Andy Holton in The Wonderful World of Disney's "Twister, Bull From The Sky," airing Sunday evening, Jan. 4, on NBC Channel 6-7, from 7 to 8 p.m., was raised in wide open Wyoming, spending a lot of time at his grandparents' ranch.

The experience served him well for his current role, which called for him in several scenes to ride his four-legged co-star, an 1800 pound prize Brahma bull.

In one particular scene, after having skydived from their crippled cargo plane to keep from crashing and certain death, Wilcox and Twister find themselves face to face with three angry tigers in the middle of The Wildlife Safari, an Oregon wildlife park.

For a closeup, the tigers were moved to another area, safely leaving Wilcox on board Twister. The scene called for Wilcox to react to an attacking tiger.

"Well, we did juts that," said Wilcox in his easy-going drawl. "And then I started to yell as if the tiger was attacking. Well, I guess I did a better job than I thought, because Twister believed me. He took off like he was being chased by a dozen tigers and a couple of lions to boot.

"Next thing I knew," Wilcox chuckled, "I was on the ground and Twister was heading down a ravine, kicking his heels behind him."

The bull, by the way, was fine. Wilcox, on the other hand, had a bruuse or two to nurse.

Actor Found Complexities

E. G. Marshall thought at first that there was a great deal of similarity between his own speech and those of President Harry Truman, whom he was cast to portray in the "ABC Theatre" presentation, "Collision Course."

Also starring Henry Fonda as Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the drama will be broadcast Sunday, Jan. 4, 9 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Later, Marshall, as he researched the role extensively, found out just how complex the President's speech really was. "The more I listened to tapes," explained Marshall in a recent interview, "the more I realized that President Truman really had three entirely different ways of speaking. His choice of words and his delivery were varied depending upon to whom he was talking.

"One style was casual and informal. He used it with his family and friends, the latter with whom he was often salty. He had a more reserved manner and way of speech with officials, dignitaries and the like. And he used still a different voice for delivering speeches.

"President Truman had a tendency to clump sentences together," continued Marshall, "and to race when making a speech. We discovered, as a matter of fact, that his speeches were prepared with only a few short sentences to a page in order to slow him down."

Of course, Marshall's characterization of the President utilizes more than his speech patterns: "President Truman had a campaigner's flashing smile and I made use of that typical mannerism." Marshall also took on the steel-rimmed spectacles, a grey hair piece, bow ties and the light-colored felt hat, all familiar characteristics of Truman. The actor paid particular attention to Truman's walk, the briskness that once made newsmen breathless while trying to keep up with him.

An actor whose face and voice have become familiar to audiences in the last 25 years, Marshall was asked if he thought there was one characteristic that seemed an integral part of his own presence. "One thing keeps coming back to me," he said. "That is an intangible called credibility. Not a bad thing for an actor to have."

Then returning to his role in "Collision Course," Marshall said, "You know, that thing called credibility. I think Harry S. Truman had it in great measure."

CONCLUSION—The doubts and discrepancies surrounding the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in 1968, following a speech he made at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles, will be investigated in the concluding part of the series, CBS REPORTS INQUIRY: "The American Assassins," Monday, January 5 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Two Shootings Are Investigated

This country's last two Presidential campaigns have been scarred by the bullets of assassins, bullets which ended the life of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in 1968 and left Alabama Gov. George Wallace paralyzed in 1972. Although in both instances a gunman fired at his target in front of scores of witnesses and was apprehended immediately, many questions continue to be raised.

CBS Reports Inquiry: "The American Assassins" will investigate the doubts and discrepancies surrounding both cases in the last of a four-part series to be presented Monday, Jan. 5, 10 to 11 p.m. CBS News Correspondent Dan Rather is the reporter on the broadcast, the first half of which will be devoted to Sirhan Sirhan and Robert Kennedy; the second portion will focus on Arthur Bremer and George Wallace. Earlier broadcasts in the series investigated the killings of President John F. Kennedy and Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

While no reasonable observer denies that Sirhan Sirhan shot at Senator Kennedy in the pantry of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles, some critics claim that Sirhan's gun was not the only one fired. A major challenge to the single gun theory was the contention that two of the bullets — one taken from the Senator's body and a second taken from a wounded bystander — didn't match and couldn't have come from the same gun.

In separate court petitions, CBS News and a victim of the shooting, Paul Schrade, requested a scientific testing of the bullets. The approval of this request resulted in a thorough and probably unprecedented re-examination of evidence by a panel of seven weapons experts. Their conclusions, made public last October, and the doubts which still remain, are discussed in detail on the broadcast.

Another major dispute examined involves whether Sirhan's gun, which held eight bullets, could have caused at least twelve bullet holes which were found in the hotel pantry.

Rather also reports on a lengthy interview he recently had with Sirhan in which the convicted assassin discusses the shooting of Senator Kennedy and his own response to the conspiracy theories.

Many of the questions which still surround the assassination of Senator Kennedy cause similar skepticism to be raised concerning the shooting of Alabama Governor George Wallace. In the second half of this CBS Reports Inquiry: "The American Assassins - Arthur Bremer and George Wallace," Wallace states on the broadcast that he "does not believe" Arthur Bremer acted alone.

In the six weeks prior to the assassination attempt, Bremer was known to have been in Wisconsin, Canada, Michigan, New York and Maryland following both President Nixon and Wallace. In its investigation of the Wallace shooting, CBS News examined a major question, one often raised by Wallace: how and where a man who worked as a janitor and a busboy could have gotten enough money to travel to all of those locations.

Women's Health Care Examined

Women visit doctors more often than men. Women undergo nearly twice the number of operations. They need a whole range of health care related to their ability to bear children and ABC News looks at the risks and effectiveness of that care in the documentary special, "ABC News Closeup on Women's Health: A Question of Survival," airing Monday, Jan. 5, 10 to 11 p.m.

Av Westin, Executive Producer of ABC News Television Documentaries, explained: "Our report explores a number of controversial issues. Are potentially dangerous drugs dispensed carelessly to pregnant women? Is major surgery performed unnecessarily? Is the health of women endangered by contraceptive methods women have been led to believe are safe?

"This program examines what women can do to help themselves and asks whether others — the medical profession, the Congress, the pharmaceutical industry, government regulatory agencies — should be doing more."

The "Closeup" report is produced, written and directed by Marlene Sanders. Margaret Osmer and Hilary Brown are correspondents and the program is narrated by Ms. Sanders. Most of the production staff, from camera crew members to film editors, are women.

Ms. Sanders said, "As major health care consumers, women are beginning to question the kind of care they receive for conditions related to the reproductive process.

QUIET ON THE SET

Bell ringing, regularly used on a motion picture set, had to be suspended during the production of "Me ? Dad's New Wife," because it disrupted classes at Walter Reed Junior High School in North Hollywood, Calif., where the program was filmed. The school also had to suspend its bell ringing, because the sound resulted in floods of students flowing into the middle of a scene.

Producer Danny Wilson said laughingly, "Next time, we are going to do a show about one child where all the adults sit around and talk about the child."

GREAT DANCERS—Who are these graceful exponents of terpischore? Astaire and Rogers? Fonteyn and Nureyev? No, they are Fonzie (Henry Winkler) and Marion Cunningham (Marion Ross), his pal Richie's mother, who team up to waltz off with first prize in a Harvest Moon dance competition in "Dance Contest," on ABC-TV "Happy Days," Tuesday, January 6 (8-8:30 p.m.)

Can Do Anything

When you are six-foot-five and weight 285 pounds, you do just about anything you want to do. That's Rosey Grier.

Seriously, though, this big 'lug,' who was a pro football star for 13 years, is really a 'pussycat' — so he says — but one is not about to test him in a dark alley. This TV season, he's teamed with Art Metrano to form another truck-driving duo on "Movin' On" (seen Tuesday, 8 to 9 p.m. on NBC-TV).

"I needed a job, so I took this series," Rosey explained. "I did one guest shot on the show last year, liked it very much and decided I'd like to be a part of it. It's a great opportunity for me, as a human being, to work with guys like Claude (Akins), Frank (Converse) and Art.

Did you practice with your rig and learn the gears?

"Oh yeah, and it's not easy. Our rig has 10 gears, and I've learned them all. Art and I are in four of the first 13 shows; one in Washington, D. C., in Baltimore, one in Virginia and another in the Carolinas.

"Art and I do all kinds of things, but mainly just have fun. In one segment, we set up a dice game, then switch dice and leave Sonny and Will (Akins and Converse) after we get them involved, and let them fight it out with the other truckers. We never get involved in the fight — we just get it started.

When he isn't performing, Grier works at Los Angeles City Hall as a consultant to the mayor for youth and senior citizens. He's been at it two years. "I like working with the youth, and I love the senior citizens. We have senior proms all over the city every three months, and I get the stars to come to these dances. Sometimes we have 2,500 shop up."

What about his personal life?

"Well, I have a family, and I want them to be secure. As for me, I'm already secure. My wife wants certain things, like a house. She says we need one for our son. I don't want one. An apartment is fine with me, but I'll see that she gets these things and then I'll be free to do other things like barge in on my friends anytime I want and get a free meal."

Does he think he could do these things if he were only five-foot-seven and weighed 140?

Discusses NBC News 'Theme'

John Chancellor, anchorman of NBC "Nightly News" (6:30 to 7 p.m.), the No. 1 news show according to the ratings, says:

"If there is a theme of the future for news in this country — newspaper news, magazine news, television news — it is that we ought to concern ourselves with what it is that we are concerning ourselves with now:

"The news that touches and affects people. I believe that international news, the news about nuclear weapons, news about international economics — it's all being made clearer now to American people than it has ever been in the past.

"That kind of news has taught us that people who receive the news have something to do with what they get, and we ought to keep them in mind."

As to the life of an anchorman, Chancellor says he doesn't sit at the desk "All the time," as evident by all the places I've been lately. I'm up at 6:45 in the morning, read two or three newspapers and usually get to the office by 10 o'clock. What I'm able to do in terms of reporting is some original stuff.

"When we get stories on the wire which are interesting, I phone some people in Washington, and I'm usually able to finish all of it up on the phone by simply saying: 'I need to know the right facts before I put it on the air tonight.' It always works . . . there's no delay. We have five segments on the show, and on a good day, I write three of them. I'm 47-years-old, have been a newsman most of my life and I'm happy about it."

Is all news bad, and why not more of the good news on "Nightly News"? And is it your perogative as to how you play each story?

"It is not my perogative to play it," he replied. "I belong to a group that decides. Nobody decides alone at NBC. I think, in the main, the news decides for us what we put on the news.

"The news is a chronicle of conflict in change. All of the newspapers are based on those principles, TV news is based on those principles. We cover conflict when we find it, we cover change when we find it.

"What interests me about good news or news that would make people happier with the state of the world or their country, is that no one has ever been able to do it commercially and make it profitable, and when it has been done in non-commercial ways, it has always been done in dictatorship.

"I spent two years in Moscow reading four or five newspapers looking for good news, something others wanted to find, and there wasn't any. It is not that way in this country, alone.

"You're going to have news on the air, and news is generally not good news," Chancellor concluded.

Bell System Family Theatre Production

The acclaimed "Bell System Family Theatre" production of "The Count of Monte Cristo," starring Richard Chamberlain in the title role of the Alexandre Dumas story of adventure, intrigue and revenge, will be rebroadcast on NBC-TV Wednesday, Jan. 7, 9 to 11 p.m.

Chamberlain portrays Edmond Dantes, unjustly imprisoned for 14 years at the infamous Chateau d'If, who escapes and, in the guise of the Count of Monte Cristo, wreaks revenge on those who sought to destroy him.

Starring with Chamberlain are Trevor Howard as the Abbe Faria, Louis Jourdan as deVillefort, Donald Pleasence as Danglars and Tony Curtis as Mondego.

Also featured are two young actresses who made their United States acting debuts in this special: Taryn Power, daughter of Linda Christian and the late Tyrone Power, who portrays Valentine, beautiful daughter of the villianous deVillefort; Kate Nelligan, a Canadian, who appears as Mercedes, Dantes's fiance.

As the special begins, a young Dantes comes ashore after his first command (which he assumed when his captain died). He is happily anticipating his marriage to Mercedes, but his joy turns to fear and anger when he is arrested on the eve of his wedding and unjustly accused as a Bonapartist. He is thrown into the dungeons of Chateau d'If on the orders of deVillefort. Others who plot against Dantes include his jealous shipmate, Danglars, and Mondego, who also wants to marry Mercedes.

In prison Dantes is helped by a fellow prisoner, the ailing Abbe Faria, who tells him where to find a fortune which will change his life. After 14 years in prison, Dantes makes a daring escape and finds the fortune. He assumes the guise of the Count of Monte Cristo and sets out to destroy his enemies.

Joins Carol

Rita Moreno, winner of a Tony Award for her performance in the Broadway hit "The Ritz," sings, dances and clowns with Carol Burnett, Harvey Korman, Vicki Lawrence and Tim Conway, on "The Carol Burnett Show," Saturday, Jan. 3, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Miss Moreno sings and dances to "Some Cats Know," with the male members of the Ernest Flatt Dancers; plays a trained nurse hired by Harvey Korman to baby-sit with his accident-prone wife (Miss Burnett); and joins Miss Burnett, Vicki Lawrence and Korman for a rousing finale, "There's Gotta Be Something Better Than This."

Salesman Is McCoy's Mark

Allen Garfield, Bernadette Peters, Natalie Schafer and Liam Dunn guest-star in "In Again, Out Again," a two-hour comedy about McCoy's (Tony Curtis) efforts to help a scatter-brained widow, the "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" colorcast of January 4, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7. Roscoe Lee Browne stars as Gideon Gibbs.

There's No Gas Shortage

"Welcome aboard bus Number 2032. You'll be our passengers for two days, so sit back and enjoy the trip and leave the directing to me."

Thus did producer-director Dan Curtis welcome cast and crew of "The Great Ice Rip-Off," to be rebroadcast on "Wide World Presents: Wednesday Movie of the Week," Jan. 7, at 11:30 p.m. on ABC-TV, to an unusual two days of filming on a large passenger bus.

The entire concept is in keeping with Curtis' style of all-location filming. In this case, the story deals with separate members of a gang committing a series of diamond robberies that are timed to the arrival and departure of the bus in various cities between Seattle and San Diego, with each culprit boarding the bus after his heist. The gang's leader, played by Gig Young, and a retired police officer, portrayed by Lee J. Cobb, are fellow passengers, each unaware of the other's true calling.

To facilitiate filming on the bus, which Curtis felt would give the squence a feeling of reality, several seats were removed to enable the camera crew to photograph the scenes from different angles.

"We had to remove sections of the roof and windows to put in our lights," said cinematographer Paul Lohman, who says these were the tightest quarters he's ever filmed in — including a submarine. "I also had the driver set some air out of the tires to cut down on the vibration while we were in motion. The batteries for the lights were stored in the baggage compartment."

The actual run of the bus was about four miles north and south of Malibu on the Pacific Coast Highway just north of Los Angeles.

"There is a great variety of scenery within this eight-mile stretch which matches Washington, northern California and points-in-between," says Curtis.

For actor-driver Norman Nonath, a former Greyhound bus jockey, the task was a decliate one. "I had to be very careful with starts and stops so as not to jar the camera," recalls Honath. "I also had the responsibility of a few hundred thousand dollars worth of talent and equipment in the 33,000 pound monster."

Honath also admits that the driving did get a bit boring on occasion. "I'm sure I know every trees, bush and sideroad and chuckhole along the highway in that area." In two days, he put 254 miles on the bus.

HISTORIC SITES—Lee J. Cobb (1) and British actor Kenneth Griffith are filmed at historic sites in the United States and England to help tell the story of why the American Revolution happened for the ABC News documentary special, "Suddenly an Eagle," airing Wednesday, January 7 (8-9 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Danny Thomas Is Tony's Guest

Guest stars Danny Thomas and Georgia Engel, who plays Georgette on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," both making return appearances, find themselves in a wacky bedtime story about the invention of the doorbell, in a comedy highlight of "Tony Orlando and Dawn," Wednesday, Jan. 7, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS-TV.

In a comedy monologue, Thomas talks about his father and young people; and Miss Engel displays her talent as a dancer and singer in a musical number, "I'm the First Girl in the Second row."

In a featured comedy sketch, Joyce Vincent Wilson reads a bedtime story to Telma Hopkins — a story that turns into a fanciful account of how an unsung genius (Orlando) invented the doorbell. Thomas plays the genius' boss, and Miss Engel appears as the boss' warm-hearted daughter.

In another musical highlight, Orlando is the fourth member of The Dapper Dans, a barbershop quarter who try to impress the Misses Hopkins and Wilson (the show's Dawn) with their harmony in a medley of "Harvest Moon" and "By the Light of the Silvery Moon." Orlando and Dawn sing "Never Ending Song of Love," "Lazy River" and "Carolina in the Morning."

The Misses Hopkins and Wilson also appear as working girls Lou Effy and Moreen, who have a shocking encounter with a shady television salesman.

DISCOVERED BY MOORE

Multi-talented Carol Burnett, star of "The Carol Burnett Show," was discovered by Garry Moore.

"We achieved performances from each of the actors — Lee J. Cobb and Kenneth Griffith — that accurately reflect not just the events but the mood of history," said William Peters, producer - director of the upcoming ABC News Bicentennial special, "Suddenly an Eagle."

The innovative documentary, which tells why there was an American Revolution, airs Wednesday, Jan. 7, 8 to 9 p.m., on ABC-TV. Film and stage star Lee J. Cobb and British actor Kenneth Griffith are seen alternately in both America and England as they show — step by step — how key events, ideas and people combined to set the Colonies and the Crown on a collision course.

There are no costumes. The sets are the actual locations on both sides of the Atlantic where pivotal events occurred.

"Lee's performance conveys a feeling that the 13 Colonies were dragged reluctantly into war," commented Peters, who wrote the special with Griffith. "Kenneth, on the other hand, creates a picture of the British bumbling and fumbling their way into a revolution they never expected. And this, according to our own research, is the way it happened."

Peters, who has written, directed and produced documentaries that have won three Peabody Awards among many other honors, explained, "Americans have never been especially interested in history — their own or anyone else's. Our immediate problem was how to evoke and hold the audience's interest."

One of the answers, Peters added, was to tell the story from two different viewpoints creating, in effect, an argument which quickly involves the viewers. Lee J. Cobb tells about events that occurred in America and Griffith about corresponding developments in his own country as well as in America. Both actors slip into various roles with dramatic performances of the speeches of the famous men who helped determine the outcome of those events.

Of Cobb and Griffith, the producer - director commented: "I find it hard to believe any two actors could be more different. Lee is consummately the film actor when he is before the camera. His performance is very much in his eyes, the nuances of his voice, in small gestures. But Kenneth moves and speaks as though he is on stage. He compels you to look at him and to hear what he has to say and he will use humor, irony, surprise — anything he can to command your attention."

Peters concludes with, "You become psychologically, intellectually and emotionally involved. You find yourself in a position of genuine collaboration and the rewards are enormous when the collaboration is successful."

A HAPPY OCCASION

CBS gives Charlie Brown's creator, Charles Schulz, a pat on the back with the special, "Happy Anniversary, Charlie Brown." It seems the 'Peanuts' comic strip started it all back in 1950 when it was carried in eight newspapers. Estimates now are that some 100,000,000 people read it every day. CBS-TV has had a 10-year string of successes with the animated series.

Who Wouldn't Trade Places

There are millions of male TV viewers who wouldn't mind trading places with private investigator Harry Orwell, especially when Harry's next door neighbor, Sue, is around.

Harry Orwell, of course, is David Janssen, star of ABC-TV's "Harry O" series (Thursdays, 10 to 11 p.m.

Sue is a vivacious, beautiful, honey - haired Farrah Fawcett - Majors. Her face and standout figure are familiar to viewers who watch commercials. Farrah is perhaps most vividly imprinted on viewer consciousness as the fearless temptress who snuggles up to a live cougar in an automobile commercial.

The Texas - born beauty is married to Lee Majors, star of "The Six Million Dollar Man" series.

Because of her marriage, Farrah pursues her career more in the field of television commercials than in acting assignments. She avoids a workload that might come in conflict with her concept of her role as a wife. She prefers to work in short spurts and to spend the rest of her time as a wife and companion to her husband. On occasion, however, she will accept film roles, such as her appearance in the ABC movie, "Murder on Flight 502."

Earlier this year, Farrah was the subject of a television news feature in which it was pointed out that she is a member of a select group of performers who earn more money in commercials than do many actresses who regularly work in TV dramas or stories.

Farrah has graced her husband's series on several occasions but for the most part she has stayed clear of series commitments. She did, however, accept the role of Sue, with the understanding she'd have a light work schedule.

One of her more difficult assignments on "Harry O" was to appear relaxed and comfortable in a bikini, while filming a beach scene during an extremely chilly morning. She succeeded admirably, according to one "Harry O" crew member. "On her," he said, "even the goose bumps look sexy!"

HOLLYWOOD—The newest gossip about Cher is that she's expecting a baby! If it's true, that's perhaps the obvious reason she and Gregg Allman reconciled. However, at this writing, no one is making any comment on either matter.

If you want a special treat, don't miss Mary Tyler Moore's variety special on CBS Jan. 22nd. It showcases Mary unlike anything else she's ever done, and to say it's an incredible show is almost an understatement. There's a message in the special if you wish to look for it, but if not, there's a continuing series of musical dance numbers that are so impressive they'll leave you speechless.

Eva Marie Saint plays Kate McCahan with James Arness in the pilot movie for a projected series airing this month. Says Eva, "I wouldn't want to do a 'family hour' show, and this one, while being entertaining for everyone in a family, it depicts, based on fact, how it really was when the West was being explored and settled."

She adds that doing a western is something she's always wanted to do, and further adds that she sees westerns returning to the forefront of TV.

Any rumor you might hear about trouble in the Tony Orlando marriage can be dismissed. In fact, when the first reports were published, the normal friendly and cordial Tony blew his stack!

"The Mickey Mouse Club," still a Walt Disney Productions TV favorite, will re-appear, probably early in 1977, in color, with production scheduled to start this winter. "The New Mickey Mouse Club" will feature new Mousketeers, new serial adventure stories, contemporary themes and modern music.

Watch for Andy Griffith in the new ABC series "The Bionic Woman." He'll be portraying a soldier-of-fortune in an upcoming segment.

Merchandising Effort Launched

In the 14 years it has been on the air, "ABC's Wide World of Sports" has become the most popular regularly scheduled sports program on television. And, it has won a total of eight Emmy Awards, making it the most honored sports program as well.

Now, ABC Merchandising, Inc. has undertaken the most massive merchandising effort in sports history, keyed to the tremendously popular "ABC's Wide World of Sports" series.

Already, licenses have been granted for such diverse (and practical) products as notebooks and pads, picnic coolers, posters, ice buckets, tumblers and drink trays.

And, "ABC's Wide World of Sports" fans will be able to bedeck themselves with items ranging from sneakers to T-Shirts to clothing made from specially designed fabric. They'll also be able to protect themselves from the elements with sports umbrellas and even decorate Junior's room with sports drapes and bedspreads—all bearing colorful scenes from great athletic competitions and the distinctive red, white and black "ABC's Wide World of Sports" crest.

According to Lou Weinberg, Manager of Licensing for ABC Merchandising, Inc., the man responsible for creating this licensing concept, "We are extremely pleased with the licensing agreements we have granted and are very optimistic about the potential for even more projects involving 'ABC's Wide World of Sports.'

"Week in and week out, regardless of the sports covered, the series is immensely popular, and it reaches not only the hard-core sports fans but the casual viewer as well. We fully expect our licensing of the 'ABC's Wide World of Sports' insignia to be the most successful sports tie-in ever."

"ABC's Wide World of Sports" is seen by an estimated 20 million people each week the year round. The audience figures are even higher during the winter months, when the year-round Saturday version of "Wide World" attracts greater viewership and is joined by the extremely popular Sunday "Wide World" telecasts during Jan., Feb. and March. Recently (Oct. 25), the program attracted a series record of 45 million viewers for the Harlem Globetrotters and coverage of Evel Knievel's leap over 14 buses at King's Island, King's Mills, Ohio.

Viewer Percentage Up 12 Percent

Final figures of ABC's coverage of 1975 NCAA football reflected a substantial 12 per cent increase of average homes viewership over last year, it was reported recently by Roone Arledge, President of ABC Sports.

The 9,190,000 average homes which tuned into the NCAA series is the largest number in the history of televised college football, Arledge said. In addition, the figures also revealed a 10 per cent rating increase over last year and more than 33,000,000 viewers on an average turned in to some portion of a game each week.

Charles Durning Likes Self-Expression

"I never wanted to become a star," said Charles Durning, who has become one. He is starring in NBC-TV's "The Cop and the Kid," Thursdays, 8:30 to 9 p.m.

Last spring, Durning received an Emmy nomination for his portrayal of the errant mailman in "The Queen of the Stardust Ballroom."

Explaining his indifference to stardom, Durning said, "There never was anything other than acting that I ever wanted to do. The self-expression in acting is wonderful. It makes people listen to you, which they wouldn't do if you were a dance teacher, or a bouncer, or a cabbie, all of which I've been.

"No, I never wanted to become a star. I just wanted to work, to express myself and have people say, 'Yeah, I know what he's doing.'

"Acting has brought me that. I've become very proud of myself in the past decade. People I respect talk to me. Barry Sullivan once told me, 'I'm a fan of yours.' The late Robert Ryan said to me, 'You're a helluv-an-actor.' I aid. 'So are you.' Then he said, 'You've gotta learn how to take a compliment.' Julie Harris said she wants to do a play with me.

"I never could have met these people, much less have them say these things to me, if I were still a dance teacher.

And What Came After?

What happened to Chief Joseph and his Nez Perce tribe after their surrender to the U.S. cavalry in 1877?

That was the question asked most often after the original showing last spring of "I Will Fight No More Forever," the TV dramatic special about the courageous stand of Joseph and his small band of Indians against overwhelming Army forces.

The two-hour special to be reshown Friday evening, Jan. 9 from 9 to 11 p.m. on ABC-TV, was the second most popular program of the season when first telecast.

Co-starring James Whitmore as Gen. Oliver O. Howard, Joseph's leading adversary, and Ned Romero as the courageous Indian chief, "I Will Fight No More Forever," tells the story of the Nez Perces' historic flight across four northwestern states to avoid confinement to a reservation. The special concludes with Joseph's moving surrender speech, from which the program's title derives.

Here's an answer, meanwhile, to that most-asked question. According to historian Alvin M. Josephy, Jr., Joseph after the war became "the monumental symbol" of his people. "They were terrible days for the defeated, full of dejection and suffering," writes Josephy, "and through the despair and hardship Joseph rose to greatness, never ceasing his efforts to win fair and just treatment for his people."

Joseph and the surviving Nez Perces were shunted first to Fort Lincoln, N. Dak., then to Fort Leavenworth, Kans, where many were stricken with malaria and at least 21 died. In 1879, Joseph took his cause to Washington, D. C., with an impassioned plea for justice before a gathering of cabinet members, Congressmen and diplomats.

The Departments of War and the Interior, however, still refused to let the Nez Perces return to their ancestral home in the Wallowa valley in Oregon. The tribe was moved again, this time to Oklahoma.

Finally, in 1885, about half the tribe agreed to live on the Lapwai reservation in Idaho, but Joseph and the others, still seeking their home in Oregon, were taken to the Colville reservation in the state of Washington. In 1897, when white squatters began encroaching on the reservation, Joseph made his second trip to the nation's capital.

Historian Josephy said that Joseph met with President McKinley and traveled to New York City. There he was honored at dedication ceremonies at Grant's tomb and rode in a procession with Buffalo Bill and Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who had accepted his surrender to end the Indian wars.

Finally, in 1899, the aging Joseph was permitted to visit the Wallowa valley with some of his followers He was received politely but was told that the white settlers would never permit the Indians to live there. Joseph returned to Colville where he died Sept. 21, 1904, while sitting before his tepee fire. An examining physician described the cause of death as "a broken heart."

Today, says Josephy, many Nez Perces still live on the reservations at Lapwai and Colville. In Wallowa, the annual rodeo and accompanying celebration are known as Chief Joseph Days but few among the area's 8,000 residents know why.

EMBROILED IN BATTLE—James Whitmore (1) stars as Gen. Oliver Howard and Ned Romero stars as Chief Joseph, two friends who become embroiled in a battle for freedom when the Nez Perce tribe flee to Canada rather than submit to confinement on a reservation, in "I Will Fight No More Forever," an "ABC Theatre" dramatization which receives an encore presentation Friday, January 9 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Wild Crime Fighters In "Super"

Known throughout the neighborhood by their nicknames — Batman and Robin — two young policemen find their wild exploits lead them into conflict with the criminal world and even with their own department, in "Super Cops," to be shown for the first time on television on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," Jan. 9, 9 to 11 p.m.

Ron Leibman and David Selby star as officers Greenberg and Hantz, respectively. Also starring in the film which is based on a true story, is "Kojak" series co-star Dan Frazer.

Greenberg and Hantz start out normally on their own. In their off-duty hours, they occupy themselves by working against drug traffic as plainclothesmen.

Schulz Says "Losing Is Everything...Too"

Winning, says artist - writer Charles M. Schulz, is not funny, which may be just one of the reasons why Schulz's confessed alter ego, Charlie Brown, has been the cartoon world's favorite anti-hero for the past quarter of a century. Charlie Brown is a loser — a lovable, bumbling, foot - in - the - mouth, no - matter - what loser. And he's funny.

Schulz will elaborate on this and other philosophies during "Happy Anniversary, Charlie Brown," a one-hour special saluting the 25th birthday of his Peanuts comic strip, Friday, Jan. 9, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS-TV.

"Winners don't tell the funny stories," says Schulz. "It's the losers who have the amusing anecdotes, who laugh at themselves and their ill luck and compensate for losing by making a joke of their misfortunes. Charlie Brown is that kind of joke."

Charlie, of course, is everybody who ever ran the wrong way on a football field, put the par - breaking shot in the lake, missed home plate on the winning run, ran out of gas in the home stretch.

Few of us suffer quite the endless string of disasters that plague Charlie Brown, Schulz admits. "That's because Charlie is not only a caricature as a drawing, he is a caricature of everyman, and his life is a broad caricature of life itself," the artist explains.

Schulz points out that most of us are better acquainted with losing than with winning, and he feels that is one of the basic reasons for the popularity of the comic strip and its leading character.

"As a youngster," he recalls, "I didn't realize how many Charlie Browns there are in the world. I thought I was the only one. Now I realize that Charlie's goofs are familiar to everybody, adults and children alike."

Soviet-India Film

"Black Mountain," a joint Soviet Union-India production relating the story of a wild elephant captured by jungle villagers, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, Jan. 3, 1 to 2 p.m.

A terrible drought visits the jungle, and many of the elephants in Black Mountain's herd die. One elephant goes mad and runs wild through the village.

Underwater Work On "Westwind"

Two of the cast members on NBC-TV's Saturday morning children's show, "Westwind to Hawaii" (11:30 a.m. to 12 noon), are right at home in their new roles, the other two are working very hard to catch up.

The episodes center on the adventures of the Andrews family, who live and work aboard a 41-foot ketch in Hawaii. The father is an underwater photo journalist; the mother, a marine biologist. Their teenage son and daughter are learning both occupations.

For Van Williams, who portrays the father, one aspect of the role is very familiar — the Texas-born actor was actually working as an underwater expert in Hawii 20 years ago when he first considered an acting career.

"I was hired to teach the late Mike Todd to be a diver," says Van. "We became friends during the lessons and one day he suggested that I might be able to make it as an actor. A year later, just for the heck of it, I went to Hollywood to give it a try."

Within a month the young diver was under a film contract, and he's been working in front of cameras ever since.

Niki Dantine, the red-haired actress who plays the mother, admits that she knows nothing about life under the sea but is radpily learning.

"I've always been very athletic," she says, "and I'm enjoying learning a new craft. I love to ski and play tennis, so I know I'll love to learn all about sports."

Kimberly Beck, the young blonde actress who appears as the Andrews' daughter Robin, is another cast member who started from the beginning.

"I'm a good swimmer," she says, "but I had never made any dives before. I have to make many during the show, so I'm working on it every spare minute."

Steve Burns, who plays her brother, Tom, has proved to be a good teacher. The native Californian, who grew up in a beach community, has been diving for several years.

Young People's Special

"W.O.G." (which stands for "Way Out Games"), an innovative hour of fun-filled competitive games for young people, will be presented as a Saturday afternoon special on January 10, 1 to 2 p.m., on CBS-TV, Jerry Golod, Vice President, Children's Programs, recently announced.

Comedian Soupy Sales will host the special — a pilot for a possible series.

In making the announcement, Golod said that the special represents the Network's continuing effort to present innovative programming for young people. The program will also have the active participation of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Recreation (AAHPER), a national affiliate of the National Education Association (NEA).

In describing the special, Golod said that four teams, each with three boys and three girls between the ages of 10 and 15, will be competing in exciting and entertaining events, which will require athletic ability, with the emphasis on humor and the unexpected. The teams of youngsters for this broadcast have been selected from school physical education departments in Southern California.

Q. Who led the nation's colleges in scoring during the 1974-75 season?

A. Bob McCurdy of the University of Richmond, 32.9 points per game.

Steelers Going For Two

The National Football League defending World Champion Pittsburgh Steelers have shown time and time again that they aren't fancy or tricky — they are just tough football players that win by physically beating opponents with the basics.

The Steelers overcame the Cinderella challenge of the young Colts and have now set their sights on the AFC title for the second year in a row. Their 12-2 record this year was the best in the American Conference and was matched only by Minnesota and Los Angeles in the NFL. After breaking even in their opening two games, they won their next 11 in a row for the league's longest winning streak of the season before dropping their final game to Los Angeles.

This has been Pittsburgh's best season of all time. They won more games than they ever did before, scored more points than ever, and gave up the least in the AFC and the fewest in their history.

Terry Bradshaw had the best season of his six year career. He set a team record by completing 57.7 per cent of his passes and had career highs of 18 scoring passes and 2,055 yards and a career low of nine interceptions.

All of their key players on offense have all had the best season of their careers. Their defense, playing without defensive tackle Joe Greene for most of the second part of the season, played superb football after the team suffered an early season loss to Buffalo.

Fourth year man Steve Furness stepped in for Greene and the All Pro's absence was barely noticed. The defensive line nearly matched its great post-season performances of last year and received the same support from the linebacker and defensive backs that carried the team to the title. Only two regular season opponents scored more than two touchdowns against the Steelers, and they did not allow a single TD in the first quarter all season.

As the Steelers take another step toward Super Sunday, the AFC title could prove to be a tougher contest than the actual Super Bowl.

Women's Tennis Classic

ABC Sports will televise live coverage of the second annual L'eggs World Series of Women's Tennis from the Lakeway World of Tennis, Austin, Texas, Saturday, Jan. 10, 1 to 2:30 p.m., and Sunday, Jan. 11, 1 to 3 p.m. The inaugural event, held in April of this year, was also televised exclusively on ABC-TV.

For the second year, victory will be worth $50,000 — the largest winner's share in women's sports — of a total $100,000 purse.

Chris Evert won the L'eggs crown in the first tennis World Series last spring, defeating 1975 Wimbledon champion Billie Jean King, 4-6, 6-3, 7-6, in the final.

Eligibility for the L'eggs World Series of Women's Tennis is based on performance in the Grand Slam events during the previous season. Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong took the Australian Open.

Ken Stabler Leads Raiders

What can you say about a six-year veteran quarterback, who is the defending Most Valuable Player in the National Football League, that hasn't already been said? You can say that the quarterback — and his team — have been a picture of playoff frustration, failing to grab the elusive Super Bowl ring.

Lefty Ken Stabler and the Oakland Raiders want nothing more than to erase the tag of "loser in the big games" this season. The next giant step is the AFC Championship.

Stabler is a prototype of his team — a brilliant professional of the highest ability. This season, he completed over 160 passes for a strong 56 percent completion average for over 2,200 yards. One statistic that must bother Ken is his 24 interceptions, but he has a knack of keeping opposing thefts at a minimum in the big games.

NFL fans will not soon forget the heroics of last year's playoff game against the Miami Dolphins, leading his team to an exciting comeback victory. Such superb efforts are a regular diet for the former University of Alabama star, who seems to throw bulls-eye darts constantly to Fred Biletnikoff or Cliff Branch.

Staubach Seeks Happy Year

When the momentum of their victory over the Minnesota Vikings, the Dallas Cowboys now present not only impressive credentials, but also the confidence that is so necessary for their National Football Conference title match. There is no doubt that Dallas is indeed a formidable contender.

Roger Staubach has been the leader of the Dallas resurgence, a steadying influence on a team that has 12 rookies and 27 players with four years or less experience.

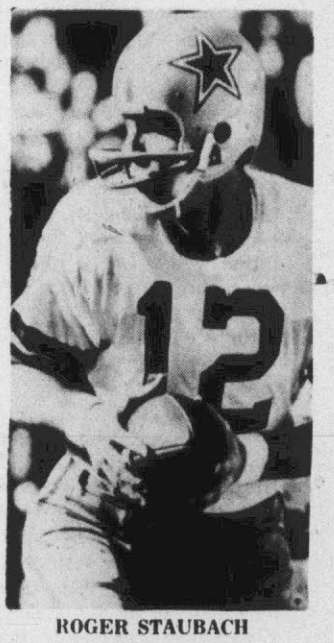
"Roger is playing better than he did the year we won the Super Bowl," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry late in the season. "He's more sure of himself, now, seeing things better and executing better than he used to."

A big part of the Cowboys' success in '75 was the spread formation Landry devised to take advantage of Staubach's mobility and strong passing arm. Used in obvious passing situations, the spread was largely responsible for the Cowboys converting 44.5 percent of their third down plays compared with a 41 per cent third down efficiency reading in 1974.

Staubach broke his own club record for pass copletions, connecting on 198 throws to top the mark of 190 he sent last year. He passed for 2,666 yards and would have had a shot at Don Meedith's Dallas record of 2,805 if bruised ribs hadn't sidelined him for last Sunday's regular season finale against the New York Jets.

Roger continued to scramble when necessary, and wound up with 316 rushing yards, a 5.7 average, and four touchdowns.

All in all, it's been a very successful year for Staubach individually and the Cowboys as a team. They had assured themselves a Merry Christmas by making the playoffs. Now they are working to clinch a Happy New Year.



ROGER STAUBACH

Rams Rely On Harris

They said it couldn't be done. Many people foolishly thought that a black quarterback could never lead an NFL team successfully. James Harris, of the Los Angeles Rams, has conclusively shown those skeptics to be wrong. Now Harris wants to lead his Southern California professional team to victory in the NFC Championship.

Harris was bitterly disappointed in last season's loss to the Minnesota Vikings in the championship, but feels that his team can bounce back in 1975. His excellent leadership for the past two seasons has led to a 24-4 overall regular season mark, clear evidence of his strong signal - calling ability.

Gilda Radner Likes Being Herself

The excitement being created (if the critics are to be believed) by "NBC's Saturday Night" seems to be fully personified in Gilda Radner, one of the show's Not Ready for Prime Time Players. She is nothing short of ecstatic reporting that, "Wonderful things are happening on the street now. People are coming up to me and saying, 'Congratulations! Great show!'"

Such "wonderful things" outside of NBC's New York Studio 8H (where the live, 90-minute show originates) are a bonus, Gilda believes. She is thrilled and feels privileged to simply be a part of what "Saturday Night" is all about.

What, in Gilda's view, the show is all about can be gauged from her comment that, "There have been many times when I have wished I was at home watching the show. I have the ultimate respect for Lorne (Michaels, the producer) putting together such a package."

An alumna of the Second City improvisational group (she also performed in the "National Lampoon Show" off - Broadway and wrote and performed for "The National Lampoon Radio Hour"), Gilda thinks the background in that type of comedy has been a big asset in handling the tough demands of her "Saturday Night" role. "Most of us in the repertory company have had improvisational training or we've been involved in 'writing shows on our feet'," she says. "To do live television, that's invaluable experience. It gives you more confidence — a feeling that if something went wrong, the world wouldn't fall apart."

Nor is the growth pattern that prepared her for "Saturday Night" about to come to a halt now that she is a permanent fixture of the series. "The show is stretching all of us performers, making us do things we had never done before. And I think at the end of doing it for a while, we'll know where our strengths are."

What she calls "the chance to be myself" is one area in which she has been pleasantly surprised to find she could, indeed, deliver before a nationwide audience when called upon. "I had never been a stand-up comedian, but this show has thrown me into a few situations where I suddenly had to perform alone.

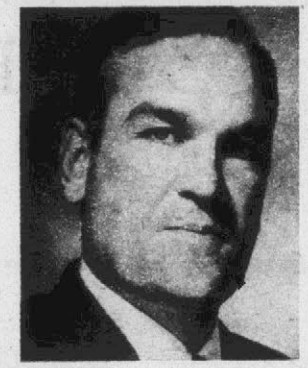
Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.



FOR GEORGE GALLUP, JR.

president of the Gallup Poll

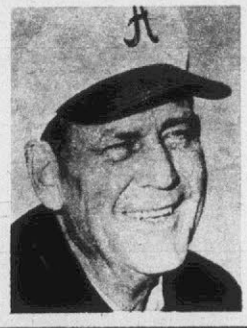
You claim that published results of your surveys don't influence voters. What proof do you have of this?—V.N.G., Merced, Calif.

● Surveys show that voters are not inclined to jump on bandwagons. In past Presidential elections, support for the candidate leading in early September test elections has closely matched his vote in the November election, despite the continuous publication of polls showing him in the lead. Richard Nixon's support in an early September test election in 1972 was 64 percent; his vote in the election was 61.8 percent. Nixon's support in early September, 1968 was 43 percent; his vote in the election that year was 43.5 percent. In 1964, Lyndon Johnson's support in an early September test election was 62 percent; his vote in November was 61.3 percent. And the examples can be carried back to the mid-thirties, when scientific polling was first undertaken.

FOR KAREN VALENTINE, actress

You frequently appear as a beauty pageant co-host. Do you feel these pageants are worthwhile?—M.B., Dubuque, Iowa

● Beauty pageants are mocked by many people—which I think is a shame. At 16 I was a finalist in the Miss Teenage America pageant, and that experience changed my life. Not only did I gain confidence, but I also won a scholarship, allowing me to go to college. Also a talent scout noticed me, and this led to an appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show. Are the contests worthwhile? Positively!



FOR PAUL "BEAR" BRYANT, U. of Alabama coach

How do you feel about the NCAA rule limiting traveling squads to 48 players and limiting the home team to 60 suited-up players?—Jim Carroll, Johnsville, N.Y.

● It is one of the worst rules in the history of football. It gives an additional disadvantage to the visiting team, as if they needed it, and it penalizes a lot of young men by not allowing them to dress at home. They practice every day, work their hearts out, then can't dress. Just putting on that uniform makes it all worthwhile to many players.

FOR ART BUCHWALD, syndicated columnist

Which columns gave you the most and least pleasure to write?—R.A., Washington, D.C.

● Best of all, I liked the one pointing out to my readers that there was no J. Edgar Hoover, and that he had been made up by Reader's Digest. The reaction was unbelievable because so many people thought it was true. The column I enjoyed least was about President Kennedy's assassination. I wrote it right after I'd gotten word he died, and it was the hardest thing I have ever written.

FOR BARBARA WALTERS

With your busy schedule, how do you ever relax?—L.N., Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

● My routine is hectic, it's true, but these days who doesn't lead a busy life? The only difference with my job is that it starts earlier than most people's. Sleeping helps me unwind. I like to take my daughter to the park and meet with friends who aren't in the business. That means we don't talk shop, and I get a break from my work. And I like to read—I find it fun and soothing.

FOR WOODY HAYES, Ohio State football coach

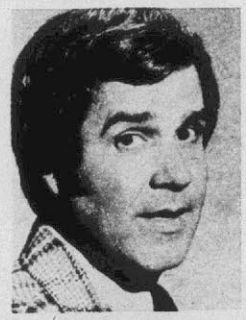
● Archie Griffin of my last three teams. He is also the finest person I've ever coached.

FOR JOSE FELICIANO

Do you have a lot of friends in the music industry?—K.S., Decatur, Ala.

● I don't have any close friends in the music business any more. Constant travel is the nature of the business and that doesn't allow you much time to cement relationships. Also, I don't respect most of today's entertainers. They get a certain act together and keep it too long. There's also an enormous amount of stealing song ideas, which I can't tolerate.



FOR RICH LITTLE

Have you ever made a mistake and used the wrong voice in your impersonations?—B.S., Durham, N.C.

● Once. And I'll never forget it. I told the audience I was going to do President Ford. I don't know what happened—maybe I had a sudden mental blackout or got distracted—but I did Spiro Agnew instead. What was even more extraordinary, no one noticed!

FOR KAYE BALLARD

Is it my imagination, or do you really have dark circles under your eyes?—S.R., Dothan, Ala.

● There's nothing wrong with your eyesight. I'm a registered insomniac, and have been since I was two years old. It seems I've always hated the idea of going to sleep. But I guess it helped my career, because those bags under my eyes have gotten me some pretty good character parts.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Did Liberace have a fight with the British press, and if so, what was it about?—R. Ballon, Miami Beach, Fla.

● When "Cassandra" of the London Daily Mirror said that Liberace's sexual appeal was attractive to "masculine, feminine and neuter," Liberace sued and the jury awarded him $22,400. Liberace summed it up: "Everyone has to expect a certain number of nonbelievers, even enemies. I suppose that's why they shot Lincoln and crucified Jesus." Liberace admits he worked at being a controversial figure because "nothing succeeds like controversy." He's aware he's highly criticized until people meet him: "Then they like me. Because I'm likeable." He's the darling of the over-40 set, and says: "They laugh at me, but all those cracks increased my income from $150 a week to over $1 million a year."

How These Rebellious Royals Look 16 Years Later

Kriby & Marilyn Smith/Sygma

Leonard Burt/Franz Furst

By Graham and Heather Fisher

A prominent British Socialist, in the course of a heated debate over royal pay packets in Britain's House of Commons, once referred to Princess Margaret as "an expensive kept woman." Many Britons are inclined to agree. They grumble that Queen Elizabeth's sister is not only paid too much (currently £35,000—a little over $70,000—a year), but also that she does too little for the money (an average of two public engagements a week); is too "choosy" in the matter of royal chores, plumping mainly for movie premieres and similar fun jobs; and that she lives too ostentatiously and more like an international jet-setter than a royal princess.

But more than anything, many Britons feel that continuing gossip about Margaret's matrimonial ups-and-downs creates a bad image for the Royal Family.

When Margaret married Antony Armstrong-Jones in London's historic Westminster Abbey before a congregation which included both the bride's sister (Queen Elizabeth II) and the bridegroom's favorite photographic model (Jacqui Chan), there were friends on both sides who shook their heads pessimistically and gave the marriage no more than two years.

Time has proved them wrong (next May Margaret and Tony celebrate their 16th wedding anniversary), but the fact remains that theirs has been, and still is, like no other royal union of recent times. If there has been no actual teacup throwing, there have certainly been spats. Moreover, the separate holidays and the friendships on both sides have caused gossip and rumors of divorce so persistent as to necessitate official denials.

Here's a rundown of the "items" England has been buzzing about:

THE CHILDREN

Margaret and Tony have two children—David (just turned 14) and Sarah (who will soon be 12). Margaret insists they be addressed by their formal titles of Viscount Linley and Lady Sarah.

Whatever their matrimonial differences, Margaret and Tony alike are devoted to the children. Rumors of a plot to kidnap the boy had Margaret not only insisting on a special police guard for him but going along to his boarding school herself to check on the security arrangements there. More recently, with Margaret away on an official royal visit to Australia, Tony took time out from his photographic work while the kids were on vacation to take them on a tour of London's museums, winding up with seats for the movie "Earthquake." Each summer the pair seem to sink their differences long enough to take the children on holiday together to either Italy or Sardinia.

In line with both parents' progressive outlooks on life, the two children were recently dispatched to Bedales, one of Britain's most advanced coed schools (fees in excess of $2,700 a year), where students pick their own lessons, slop around in jeans and T-shirts, and are allowed to grow their hair as long as they want. All this may seem very normal to Americans, but it is unusual among Britain's ruling classes. And many Englishmen are criticizing the school's exorbitant expense.

PETER TOWNSEND—AND MONEY

Society blue bloods have been heard to sneer that Margaret married beneath herself—and on the rebound from her unfortunate romance with Peter Townsend. Not so. It was six months after her renunciation of Townsend before Margaret first met Tony, and there was a more-than-two-year courtship to follow before they finally married. No marry-in-haste-repent-at-leisure about that.

Then, too, many people expected Tony to become a junior edition of Prince Philip. He refused. Although he did agree to accept the title Earl of Snowden to please his wife and her sister, in his workaday life he still prefers to be known as Tony—rather than Lord—Snowden. And there's another difference. As the Queen's husband, Philip has his own rather large state allowance. But there is no such allowance for Margaret's husband.

"What do I do for money?" Tony wanted to know.

To overcome the difficulty, Margaret secretly transferred part of her own allowance to Tony's bank account each quarter.

Tony was still not satisfied. He did not want to live on his wife's money. More than anything he wanted to get back to his photographic work. And Margaret—to her credit—helped him win over the rest of the family.

"Theirs has been, and still is, like no other royal union of recent times. If there has been no actual teacup throwing, there have certainly been spats. Moreover, the separate holidays and the friendships on both sides have caused gossip and rumors of divorce so persistent as to necessitate official denials."

By a curious contradiction in terms, Tony, having previously been publicly criticized for not working, now found himself criticized for taking a job with a Sunday newspaper. And that, throughout Margaret and Tony's marriage, has perhaps been the greatest stress of all: the fact that they live in a goldfish bowl, under constant scrutiny, subject always to publicity and criticism.

QUESTIONS OF "IMAGE"

Criticisms have ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous. Margaret has been criticized not only for doing too few royal chores, but for being too arrogant and for using too much make-up. Tony has been sniped at for his mode of dress. If few people saw the velvet evening outfit with its thigh-length jacket and midnight-blue lapels which he wore to the Imperial War Museum, millions saw him on TV when he appeared at Prince Charles's investiture, looking like a cross between Robin Hood and a hotel bellhop in a green uniform he had designed himself.

It has sometimes seemed as though the two of them have gone out of their way to court bad publicity. Take the time Tony purposely backed his car into one owned by a too-persistent photographer (a move which resulted in a court appearance and a $50 fine). Or the time when Margaret, visiting Australia last fall, upset her hosts by abruptly abandoning part of the prearranged schedule and was accused of "disappointing" children by ignoring them.

THOSE SEPARATE VACATIONS

The temperaments of husband and wife sometimes clash, and that is undeniable. Margaret can be shrewish, particularly in the aftermath of a migraine attack. Tony can be boorish towards her. Neither are very good at concealing their feelings, and spats which erupt in private have sometimes continued in the more public atmosphere of a society party.

Fortunately, Tony's photographic assignments afford them periods of separation. Margaret, who makes little secret of her boredom with the royal round, will sometimes fly out to the West Indian island of Mustique (where the couple spent their honeymoon) for a solo holiday while her royal sister looks after the children.

More than once—in 1967, 1970 and again last year—separation has sparked rumors of divorce . . . as did a joking "See you in Reno" remark made by Tony during an overheard telephone conversation with his royal wife. ("No truth in it," said an official royal spokesman of a report that Tony was insisting on divorce and the couple had agreed to separate. To prove it, the Snowdens went on holiday together to the Bahamas the following month.) And more than once, the couple's separations have ended in happy reunions—as when Tony and daughter Sarah pooled their artistic talents to paint a "Welcome Home" poster with which to greet Margaret on her return to Kensington Palace.

A close acquaintance of the couple has called theirs "a sad marriage." But perhaps Margaret and Tony's marriage, though a long way from being the "happily ever after" fairy-tale romance, is just the sort of do-your-own-thing, go-your-own-way union which often develops when two temperamental, highly independent and self-willed people decide to set up house together. It is neither happier nor less happy than a million other marriages in this day and age. FW

"We're looking for people to write children's books."

If you ever wanted to write and be published this is your opportunity.

by Francis Gemme

Francis Gemme, a Founder of the Institute of Children's Literature, is the President and Publisher of Gallery Books and former President of Young Reader's Press.

We need writers. There are over 150 publishers of books for children and more than 250 magazines, all of which have a need for writers.

We know that many people could help fill this need for children's writers if they could only get started. Are you one of those people? Do you have the urge to write and the ambition to work at it but are unable to get professional training? Are you tied to your home or job? Perhaps you lack confidence in your ability?

Have you ever read a children's story and said, "I can do better than that"? Have you ever deplored the lack of good new literature for young readers? Do you love children? Do you want to do something important with your life? Do you want the personal satisfaction and the rewards that come with writing for children? That very attitude may be the clue that you can do it, for the desire to write must come first.

Stories only you can write.

Once you learn to use the basic writing techniques, writing for children may be easier than you think. Your personal experiences, fantasies, personality traits, and hobbies all lend themselves to good subjects. Many of these subjects have been written about—plainly and simply—and have been published. You probably have within yourself many children's stories that only you can write.

A new kind of school.

At the Institute of Children's Literature top writers and publishers have worked together to create a professional course to teach you to write for young children and for teenagers. They include people like Lee Wyndham, a teacher and author of forty-eight books, including Writing for Children and Teenagers, Hardie Gramatky, author and illustrator of many famous children's books like Little Toot, and John Ledes, President of Astor Honor Books and publisher of many award-winning children's books. In total, these professional writers have published hundreds and hundreds of books and magazine articles for young readers. They know how to write—how to teach—and how to help you get your writing published.

Learning to write and to sell.

This course will train you step-by-step from the writing of the opening sentence through the polishing of a finished manuscript. Yes, you will have completed a manuscript suitable for submission to a publisher when you finish this course.

The success of this course has been demonstrated time and again by people who simply knew in their hearts that they could write in a way that would enrich children's reading experiences.

Your own instructor.

Because writing is a very personal experience, we believe that the teaching of writing must also be personalized. That is why, in addition to writing materials, textbooks, instruction, and assignments, you will receive personal guidance on every lesson from your own instructor.

The instructor chosen for you will be a professional writer who will remain with you throughout the course. He will show you how to use your personal feelings, experiences, imagination, and interests to write for children—in your spare time at home.

Work at your own pace.

A writing course is most effective when you can work at the time you feel most like working. With this course, there is no bell to end the class and no interruptions from other students. You and your instructor can work together at the pace most suitable for you. This flexible schedule allows more time for each student than is possible in a classroom situation.

You mail your completed work to your instructor who carefully reads and edits each assignment. He then writes you a long personal letter explaining in detail his corrections and makes specific recommendations. You receive professional advice and guidance while you work where you want—when you want.

The rewards.

Although many writers of children's books earn $10,000 to $15,000 and more a year, the benefits of a career in writing also include the challenge, the excitement, and the great satisfaction of doing something important with your life. When you complete this course, you will be a trained writer with a future. And what a future!

Last year, more than 30 million children's books were published, producing total sales of over 170 million dollars! And over 250 periodicals for children with a combined circulation of over 60,000,000 were published. Books and magazine articles for children are frequently adapted for television and for the movies. In addition, there are twenty-six children's book clubs and a rapidly expanding children's paperback market.

Writing is truly satisfying only when your work is published and, for writers of children's literature, there have never been more publishers.

Will you take the first step?

You may be a teacher, be taking care of a home, or be a concerned grandparent. You may not even believe that you have the necessary background to become a successful writer. But, as an author, you will be judged solely on your ability to write—not on your age, sex, education, or previous writing experience.

For example, female authors appear on the best sellers list as frequently as do male authors and, in the field of children's literature, there are as many female editors as there are male editors.

Free test.

To find qualified men and women with an aptitude for writing, the Faculty and Consultants of the Institute have prepared a special Aptitude Test. It is offered free of charge and will be evaluated at no charge to you by members of our staff.

If you want to be a writer, send in the coupon below for this free test and for a free brochure which fully describes the Institute, our course, our faculty, the current publishing market for children's literature, and your new future. If you demonstrate an aptitude for writing, you will be eligible to enroll. Of course, there is no obligation.

OPINION

"Not All Allies Are Friends, Not All Allies Are Equal"

A year ago this month, South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu reported 400,000 massed North Vietnamese troops were planning a large-scale offensive. We know what happened next. A year later, what lessons remain?

By Warren D. Manshel
Editor, Foreign Policy Magazine

Warren D. Manshel

It is over and done with, our costly adventure in Vietnam. But the lessons endure, and it is doubtful we will forget them soon. We had seen them all before, those scenes in the Far and Middle East: the stream of refugees fleeing out of war's way, trapped, no matter where they fled, in a world of their own, separated from us by space, by color and by indifference. And a few hundred miles nearer, the collapse of patient and reasonable efforts to interpose negotiations between reluctant but historically committed foes. All of it is familiar, including the contingency, always there, of American military intervention. But what is it we have learned?

The ringing phrases of John Kennedy's inaugural message almost 15 years ago could not be spoken today by any American politician: ". . . we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and the success of liberty."

It is not because the years of struggle in Vietnam have knocked the idealism out of us. True, we did not like what we learned about ourselves in the course of that war. But America remains an idealistic nation; indeed, it would no longer be America without its sense of idealism and broadly shared awareness of itself as a beacon to all who strive for liberty.

Nor is it because the implied commitment carries with it limitless social and economic costs that no free nation can underwrite. We have learned, in the interim, that we cannot be omnipotent and should not be omnipresent. And that, in effect, the American people cannot be asked to subscribe to the principle: Give them liberty or give us death.

But, mostly, the Kennedy pledge could not be given today by an American politician because it is simplistic and unreasoned. As there are no men for all seasons, there are few friends and no foes who will faithfully play the roles of friend and foe to the end of time.

What makes 1976 so fatefully different from 1961 is precisely the difficulty we have in determining who are our enemies and who are our friends, how profound and enduring are their enmity and their friendship, how important for us to oppose or to sustain them. In the cold war days of, say, John Foster Dulles, it was all so easy. You could tell the villains from the heroes without a program! How complicated the international scene has become without its clear delineations. Today all allies are not all friends, nor are all allies equal.

Now is a time for requiem and reappraisal. Requiem because of the agony of millions of people for which we share a heavy burden. And reappraisal, not because American foreign policy potential is reduced by the Vietnam collapse, but because balance sheets need to be drawn and lessons need to be learned.

We are entering a new era, free at last of the drain of over-involvement and over-commitment to a cause never winnable (and never worth winning) in an area marginal to the strategic interests of the United States.

Our position in the world remains strong, perhaps stronger than before. Our alliances with Europe and Japan are unimpaired. And we can concentrate on the priorities of the moment, such as energy and the Mideast, and the primary global problems, such as hunger and over-population. We can also stabilize our relations with the Soviet Union and China; develop closer economic and political ties with developing countries; and increase economic, political and strategic cooperation with the industrialized nations of the West and with Japan. The shield of the republic is stronger today than it was when the Vietnam debate began a decade and a half ago.

Europe now moves back to front center of our alliance concerns, after years of relative neglect. The American nuclear umbrella remains firmly

Your "Memory Bank"– How to Gain Control of It!

True or False? If you said to someone, "Your name is familiar, but I don't recognize your face," he'd probably do a double take. Nevertheless, people often do remember a name long after forgetting a face. (See number 4.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you want to remember–or forget–something, there's an easy way to give your mental faculties a "shot in the arm."

2. It's just as important to be able to forget as it is to be able to remember.

3. Quarreling before going to bed makes an unpleasant incident much harder to forget, and much more likely to produce an emotional hangover.

4. If you said to someone, "Your name is familiar, but I don't recognize your face," he'd probably do a double take. Nevertheless, people often do remember a name long after forgetting a face.

ANSWERS

1. True. Research sponsored by the National Science Foundation to determine why we remember some things and forget others has demonstrated that in most cases both our remembering and forgetting processes respond to command. Also, psychological studies at the Australian National University have demonstrated that our memory processes are responsive to command–provided the command is given immediately. So next time you want to remember or forget a fact or incident, give your memory a fast no-nonsense command to "Forget it!" or "You'd better remember this–or else!" You'll be surprised at how effective this method can be.

2. True. Most people possess–to a greater or lesser degree–the capacity for "selective forgetting." They tend to remember and treasure the pleasant, happy experiences in their lives and to gradually forget many of the sad and depressing things which have happened. Some people, unfortunately, do not have this faculty. Psychological studies at the University of California have shown, for example, that alcoholics markedly lack the capacity for "selective forgetting." It's pointed out that "alcoholics are frequently heard to complain that they are unable to forget unpleasant, embarrassing or humiliating experiences. 'I do it to forget,' is a common excuse for their excessive drinking."

3. True. Studies show that sleep immediately following an incident gives the happening a relatively undisturbed time to become etched in one's memory. This does not occur, however, if you dream a great deal. Tests conducted by the University of Colorado revealed that high amounts of REM (dream) sleep facilitate forgetting.

4. True. If your name is unique and your face isn't, the former is likely to be remembered long after the latter is forgotten. Studies show that the hardest-to-remember faces are the everyday, garden-variety type–which may be attractive, but which have no unique or distinguishing feature. In face-recognition tests conducted at the University of Lethbridge (Canada), it was found that "highly unique faces were correctly identified far more often than non-unique faces." A further finding: regardless of uniqueness, women were better at recognizing other women's faces than male faces; while men, on the other hand, recognized male and female faces with equal ability. Woman Can't Sleep Tortured All Night

...Then she found those tiny blue pills that helped her fall asleep more naturally and wake up refreshed.

She can't sleep... it's one of those occasional nights when simple nervous tension keeps her awake tossing and turning. Lack of sleep oftentimes causes irritability and that downright worn-out feeling. Fortunately a little blue pill called Compoz works to help you unwind the minor and temporary up-tight feelings, so sound blissful sleep may be yours. This modern relaxant tablet contains no barbiturates so it helps you sleep more naturally. So don't suffer the agonizing torture of another sleepless night needlessly. Get Compoz today. Follow directions carefully and see if Compoz doesn't help you sleep sound tonight or tomorrow night. Compoz is not intended for serious or chronic conditions that need a doctor's attention, but only when those occasional sleepless nights occur.

stretched over our Japanese allies. Our de facto alliance with Israel, our commitment to her survival, remains solemn and unflagging. And our future relations with major communist adversaries will continue to be determined by such factors as: arms control; possibilities for trade expansion involving access to technology and financial credit; and their own intramural rivalries.

The United States will not now retreat into isolationism, traumatized and exhausted by defeat, but will continue to be a friend and an ally to allies, knowing that not all allies are friends and not all allies are equal.

The soundest lesson we can learn is not to rivet our future to the Vietnam past. Nothing could be more subversive to our role in the world, nor more destructive to our national confidence in the traditional values of our society or our ability to defend them. FW

The Family Weekly Foodshelf

FAMILY WEEKLY'S Foodshelf presents dishes you can make quickly, with a minimum of fuss, using common ingredients found in most kitchen cupboards.

QUICK CHILI CON CARNE

In 2-qt. saucepan, melt 2 tablespoons vegetable oil and brown 1 lb. ground beef, stirring to break up meat as it cooks. Add 1 cup chopped onion and 2 cloves finely chopped garlic. Pour off excess fat if necessary. Add 2 cans (15½-oz. size) kidney beans, undrained, 1 can (10¾ ozs.) tomato soup, ½ cup water, 2 tablespoons chili powder, 1 tablespoon vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt and dash ground black pepper; stir well. Heat to boiling, reduce heat, cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Stir occasionally. Serve with corn bread or rice.

Makes about 6 servings

SOUPERBURGERS

Brown 1 lb. ground beef and 1 onion, sliced lengthwise, in 2 tablespoons vegetable oil in large skillet. Stir mixture with large spoon to break up meat; pour off fat if necessary. Add 1 can (10¾ ozs.) cream of mushroom soup, undiluted, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, ½ teaspoon salt and dash ground black pepper. Cook over low heat for 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Spoon onto 8 toasted hamburger buns. Pickles go just great with these.

Makes 8 servings

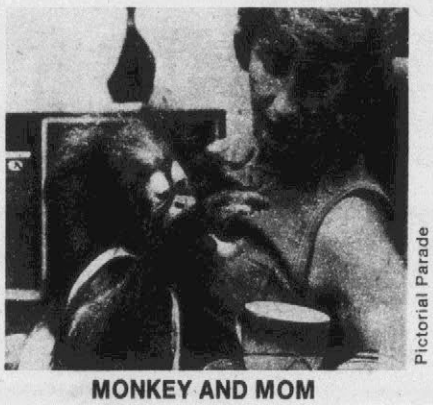
FORD AND D'ESTAING
Tread lightly in '76

Astrologer Linn Vann Cleef reads America's 1976 horoscope (and none too optimistically): "As Capricorn (government) is on the cusp of the fifth house (delusion and deception), in 1976, political leaders will be elected and appointed on the basis of idealism rather than through an accurate consideration of their abilities. There will be renewed prideful hostilities between the U.S. and France as Mars (aggression) is in Leo which rules France in the seventh house (war and peace). The sun's placement in the fifth house (which also rules children's affairs) indicates that children's issues will be of even greater importance than in recent years. The presence of Uranus (the shocker), the Moon (emotion) and Pluto (the intensifier) in the eighth house signifies that the crime rate will continue to rise, with the possibility of a violent sexual revolution closely linked to it." If you plan on enjoying the New Year, one good resolution would be not to read any horoscopes this year!



Pictorial Parade

MONKEY AND MOM
Fed with a silver spoon

How do you survive with a monkey in the house? "Easy," says Mrs. Peter Leflang, "just treat them like you would your own child. Realize that they suffer tantrums and frustrations just like children. Let them imitate your actions, and pray that someday they grow up to be human. If you can live with children, you can tolerate a monkey, and maybe even an elephant!"

Inside advice about getting into college: For "average" students, the competition gets tougher every year. Consider this expert advice from Charles Deacon, director of admissions at Georgetown University: 1) Keep up on your reading! Reading may be very helpful in improving low scores on verbal sections of college-entrance examinations. 2) Keep taking mathematics. It's a proven fact that the student who is taking math courses will test better in math ability while the course is in progress. 3) Save the interview with your "first choice" college for last—by that time you won't be as nervous and will be better prepared to answer intelligently the questions thrown at you by interviewers. 4) On your applications, don't forget to mention any innovative program you received credit for in high school. 5) For personal recommendations, choose people who know you, but not your parents.

Why are doctors the most criticized of all the professionals? "Most people harbor a kind of secret resentment toward physicians in general—though they usually hold their own doctor in high regard. I think this resentment is understandable, though not logical. After all, a physician seemingly has his cake and can eat it, too: He or she lives an apparently exciting life, is well regarded and gets paid well to boot. So the Cadillac with M.D. on the license plate is resented, but other Cadillacs on the road can pass by and not be given a second thought. Or people talk about all the doctors who belong to the country club, forgetting the insurance executives, construction company owners, et al., who belong. Another example: I heard very little criticism of the lawyers who charged former President Nixon hundreds of thousands of dollars for legal fees; it was often described as 'a fact of life.' But, had his doctors submitted a bill for anything near that amount, a large public outcry would have been likely." From "What You Should Know About Health Care Before You Call a Doctor!" by G. Timothy Johnson, M.D. (McGraw-Hill, $6.95).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

CLOCK WISE

I have a clock that doesn't keep time,
Which leads me to write this sad little rhyme.
If it doesn't keep time, then what does it keep?
It keeps me upset, makes it hard to sleep.
It keeps me checking, it keeps me comparing
With another clock, to see how it's faring.
Is the other one fast, or is this one slow,
And how in the world am I going to know?
I'm beginning to think it's ready to hock:
If it doesn't keep time, then why keep the clock?

A small boy approached his father uncertainly and asked, "Dad, what is the difference between an apiary and an aviary?"

The father sighed and turned to the boy's mother. "You were right, dear," he said. "It is time we told Harold about the birds and the bees."

My husband and I heard our nearly-five-year-old Sharon explaining to her friend the reason, as she saw it, for a new year: "It's because they messed up everything this year and used up all the months; they just have to have another year to get all the bills paid. And that's the way it is."

Is there an answer to the smoking question?

Should people smoke? They've been battling that one since the smoking controversy started. Smokers have an answer. Non-smokers have another answer. And the critics of smoking think they have all the answers.

But arguing whether people should or shouldn't smoke isn't going to change anything. The reality is that people do smoke. And they will continue to smoke. No matter what anyone says.

So perhaps a more realistic question would be: what should a smoker smoke?

If some smokers don't want to give up smoking yet find themselves concerned about 'tar' and nicotine, then the critics could well recommend that they switch to a low 'tar' and nicotine cigarette. Like Vantage.

And if some of these smokers prefer a menthol cigarette, then the critics could suggest that they switch to a low 'tar' and nicotine menthol. Like Vantage Menthol.

Vantage Menthol offers smokers all the cool, refreshing flavor they could ever ask for. And at the same time gives them the substantial cut in 'tar' and nicotine they may be looking for.

Now Vantage Menthol isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine menthol around. But anything lower probably compromises the flavor.

So if you smoke a menthol cigarette, we're not going to argue whether you should or you shouldn't. The fact is you do.

And if you want to do something about 'tar' and nicotine, Vantage Menthol could be one answer for you to consider.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER, MENTHOL: 11 mg. "tar", 0.7 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report SEPT. '75.

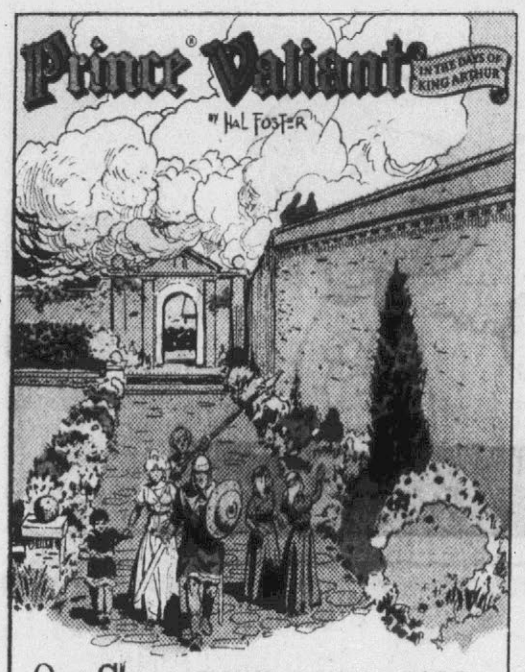
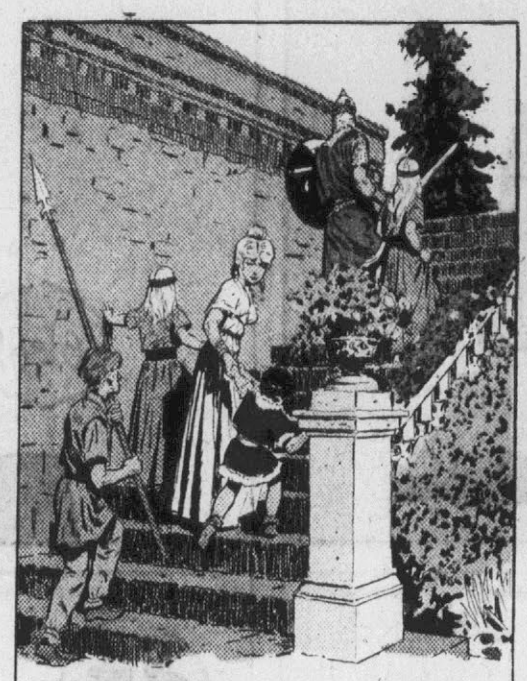
Prince® Valiant® IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

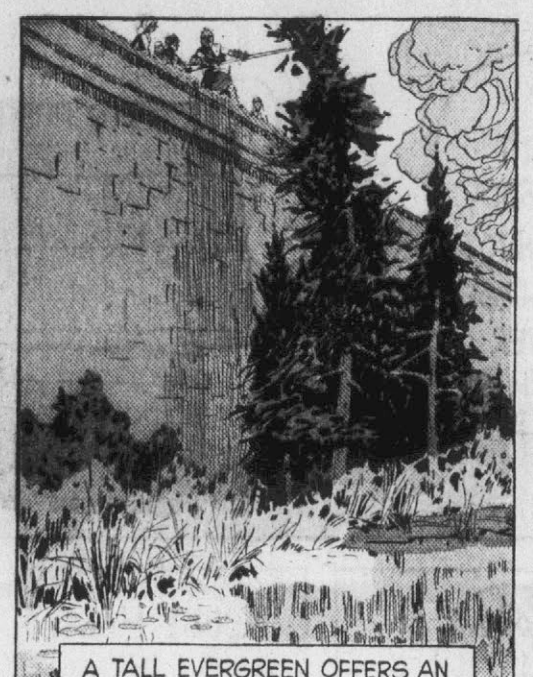
"HAL FOSTER"



Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT LEADS HIS FAMILY OUT OF THE PILLAGED MANSION INTO THE GARDENS. FLAMES FROM THE BURNING CITY ENGULF THE MAIN GATES.



FARTHER ALONG THE WALL A FLIGHT OF STEPS LEADS TO THE TOP OF THE WALL. THE ROAR OF THE MOB DRAWS NEARER. IT IS TIME FOR DESPERATE MEASURES.



A TALL EVERGREEN OFFERS AN ESCAPE. WITH THE AID OF HECTOR'S SPEAR IT IS PULLED TOWARD THE WALL. "ALETA, YOU GO FIRST," VAL ORDERS.

"WHAT ARE YOU DOING, MY DEAR? HOW IMMODEST." "HAVE YOU EVER TRIED TO CLIMB A TREE IN A SKIRT?" SNAPS ALETA, "AND TAKE THAT LOOK OFF YOUR FACE... LECHER!" THEN SHE DISAPPEARS INTO THE FOLIAGE.

NEXT THE TWINS. WITH SUPERB DISREGARD FOR THE OPINIONS OF MRS. GRUNDY, THEY TOSS THEIR DRESSES OVER THE WALL AND DOWN THE ESCAPE ROUTE THEY GO. HECTOR, THE STUDENT WHO HAD NEVER GIVEN A THOUGHT TO THE OPPOSITE SEX, SUDDENLY MATURES.

NOW IT IS GALAN'S TURN. HIS FATHER PICKS HIM UP AND HURLS HIM FAR OUT TOWARD THE DEEPEST PART OF THE POND WHERE HIS MOTHER WAITS TO PULL HIM ASHORE. LOTS OF FUN, REALLY.

IT HAD TAKEN THE WEIGHT OF BOTH TO HOLD THE TREE CLOSE, AND WHEN HECTOR TAKES HIS TURN VAL CANNOT MAINTAIN A HOLD AND IS LEFT ON THE WALL WITH THE TREE OUT OF REACH.
