Angela Davis Vows Build 'Mass Movement' In N.C.

RALEIGH (AP)—Angela Davis and North Carolina Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten don't smoke the same pipe tobacco. Nor do they agree about the future of the Wilmington 10.

The two discovered their differences during a day of speaking and marching in support of the 10 Monday.

Ms. Davis led a group of about 50 people into Edmisten's office to press their request that bail be continued for the 10 while new appeals are lodged in federal courts.

Both Edmisten and Ms. Davis are pipe smokers, and he offered her some of his tobacco. She declined, saying she preferred to puff on her own mixture.

Edmisten, in turn, declined to commit himself to support the 10's request for bail when it is made with the state Supreme Court.

With that, Miss Davis and her group went across the street to a church for several hours of speeches to a crowd of about 500 people.

"We are going to build a mass movement the likes of which North Carolina has never seen. It will be so massive and powerful that the state of North Carolina will wish it had never laid its hands on the Wilmington 10," Ms. Davis said.

After the speeches, the crowd left the church with a police escort. It marched once around Capitol Square, chanting its demands for bail for the ten defendants while their appeal goes on.

"We want Rufus," they yelled underneath Edmisten's empty office. He had left several hours before, and only aides and secretaries were left to stare at the marchers from overhead windows.

"His answer was not forthright. He used his charm but he gave us no definitive answer," said Dr. Charles Cobb, leader of the United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice.

An Edmisten aide, Charlie Smith, said Edmisten could not say anything on the bail question until he sees the ten's appeal writ.

Attorneys for the ten have filed a writ of habeas corpus in U.S. District Court here and asked for a stay of execution of their sentence.

Their appeals thus far have gone through the North Carolina courts to the U.S. Supreme Court. The court refused to hear the appeal last week. The writ filed in U.S. District Court is a last ditch effort to keep the 10 from starting their long jail sentences.

The leader of the 10, the Rev. Ben Chavis, said he did not plan to surrender to authorities until the official order for his arrest comes from the state Supreme Court.

Then, he said, he will consider his response to that order with his attorney.

Chavis and his nine followers were convicted in 1972 of charges which stemmed from several nights of violence in Wilmington during a school integration crisis in 1971.

They were convicted of burning a white-owned grocery store and conspiring to shoot at firemen who came to out the fire out.

They have complained that the chief prosecution witnesses were all men in jail or reform schools who were in a position to the cajoled into perjury by politically motivated prosecutors.

Veto-Override Vote Set For House Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats will try to override President Ford's veto of a $45-billion labor-health, education and welfare bill that would provide funds to numerous social programs, including the remnants of President Lyndon Johnson's war on poverty program.

Ford vetoed the bill on Dec. 19, saying it would exceed his budget by nearly $1 billion and claiming the measure would "add significantly to the already burdensome federal deficits."

The House override vote today was regarded as a major test of Democratic ability to overcome Ford's insistence on tighter budgets.

Democratic strategists predicted Monday they would need 30 Republican votes in order to get the two-thirds needed to override the veto.

Rep. John Brademas of Indiana, a Democratic deputy whip and an education subcommittee chairman, said overriding Ford's veto on the bill was "critical."

As approved by Congress, the bill contains increases over Ford's budget of $496 million for the National Institutes of Health, $112 million for human development programs and $131.7 million for the Community Services Administration, which administers much of what is left of the federal antipoverty programs passed during the Johnson administration.

The bill, which funds a variety of programs for children, the elderly and the handicapped as well as health research, would cover a 15-month period that began last July 1.

"The bill provides little more than the amounts needed to keep pace with inflation," Brademas said, contending the measure is only 2.6 per cent above the Ford budget recommendations.

Democrats have contended the total spending in the bill is in line with budget guidelines Congress adopted under its new spending control procedures.

But Ford, in vetoing the bill, said, "What this argument does not say is that the resolution, which expresses the Congress' view of appropriate budget restraint, expresses a $50-billion or 15 per cent, increase in federal spending in one year. Such an increase is not appropriate budget restraint."

Charlotte Bank Branch Robbed

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A branch of the City National Bank was robbed by an armed man this morning.

He made off on foot with an undetermined amount of money from the Queens Road trailer office of the bank.

No injuries were reported.

Final Hearing

The City Council will conduct its second and final public hearing on the 1976-77 phase of the Community Development Program for Greenville on Thursday at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The first hearing, during which a variety of request for funds through the CDP were aired, was conducted on Jan. 15.

The Hearings are required as part of the city's application process in qualifying for some $1.9 million in second year funds.

Patty Apprehensive As Her Trial Begins

By TONY LEDWELL

Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's long-awaited trial for bank robbery was to begin today under tight security, with jury selection likely to focus on attitudes toward kidnap victims, radicals and the wealthy.

Miss Hearst, meanwhile, was described by one of her attorneys, Albert Johnson, as "apprehensive as anyone in her position would be" as the trial approached.

Authorities said all spectators would be required to pass through a metal detector similar to those used at airports. As in all pretrial hearings, federal marshals were ordered stationed at every entrance to the 19th floor courtroom and to patrol the aisles inside.

The stage was set Monday when opposing attorneys submitted lengthy lists of proposed questions for prospective jurors to U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter. Following standard federal procedure, Carter, instead of the lawyers, will question potential jurors.

Miss Hearst, 21-year-old daughter of newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army Feb. 4, 1974, and later proclaimed allegiance to the tiny band of terrorists. She was charged with helping the SLA rob a bank here in April 1974.

She was arrested here last Sept. 18 after a nationwide hunt.

The defense contends she was forced to make a tape saying she had joined the SLA and another recording admitting she robbed the bank of her own free will. Her lawyers say she participated in the robbery out of fear that the SLA would kill her if she failed to cooperate.

The defense said it wanted jurors asked how they would feel if their own daughters were converted to radical militancy. They indicated they also wanted to uncover hidden prejudices against wealthy or financially secure people.

Defense attorneys have said part of their strategy will be to show Miss Hearst was brainwashed into joining the SLA. Along this theme, they wanted jurors asked: "Do you have any concern or worry that your daughter could be influenced to join a militant group?"

The government indicated that it would attempt to eliminate jurors who may regard the defendant with sympathy because she was kidnapped.

One question proposed by the prosecution reads: "Do you believe that if a person is kidnapped, he is, for that reason, not responsible for any crimes he may later commit in the company of his kidnapers?"

A panel of 250 prospective jurors was called, and many were expected to be dismissed for having fixed opinions about the celebrated case.

The jury will be sequestered during the entire trial, which court officials predict will last six to eight weeks.

Miss Hearst appeared pale but alert at a pretrial hearing Monday. Clad in a new navy blue pants suit, she chatted with her family and smiled several times.

JUDGE O. J. CARTER

Congress Warned Of Shift In Power

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld told Congress today "we must begin to act now" to reverse a dangerous military power shift toward Russia.

Rumsfeld indicated the Pentagon may move to build a bigger fleet of missile-firing Trident supersubmarines. The additional Tridents, which cost about $1.5 billion each, might replace some older submarines and land-based Minuteman missiles which may become vulnerable to Soviet attack in the future.

In his first formal report to Congress as secretary of defense, Rumsfeld said current U.S. forces are adequate to balance Russia's present arms strength. But, he said, "confidence in the future adequacy of our force structure is gradually declining."

"Because of the trends — reductions on our part and Soviet military expansion — there has been a gradual shift in the power balance over the past 15 years," Rumsfeld said.

"In light of the momentum of Soviet military programs of all kinds, it will continue to shift unless U.S. defense outlays are increased in real terms."

Rumsfeld's report, prepared for his appearance before the House Armed Services Committee, was the opening gun of the Ford administration's battle for its record $100.1 billion defense spending budget.

"Security is not available at bargain basement rates," Rumsfeld said.

The fiscal 1977 defense budgets calls for a spending boost of $8.9 billion.

But construction of a fleet of giant new Trident missile-firing submarines, plus decisions yet to come on producing the advanced B1 bomber and more powerful land-based missiles, could cost the United States at least $65 billion over the next 10 years, according to current Pentagon estimates.

The new defense secretary's positions on major weapons programs and other key defense policies coincided generally with those held by James R. Schlesinger, whom he replaced last November after Schlesinger was fired by President Ford.

Among other things, Rumsfeld embraced

Schlesinger's controversial policy designed to give the president options to retaliate with nuclear weapons against limited military and other targets rather than wiping out Soviet cities. Critics have argued this policy might

Disengagement In Beirut Sees No Opposition

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem and Christian militiamen evacuated Beirut's fire-blackened hotel district today as the Syrian-sponsored disengagement program "progressed without serious hitch," police reported.

And Palestinian guerrillas pledged to respect the Lebanese government's sovereignty "on every part of its soil without exception. Our revolutionary presence in this Arab country is certainly temporary," said Falastin Al Thawra, the official PLO newspaper.

Christian leaders remained cautious.

"The Syrians and Palestinians are our brothers, but they aren't us," said Pierre Gemayel, head of the right-wing Christian Phalange party. "We will feel confident only when the Lebanese army and other law-enforcing agencies take complete charge of running the country."

The Palestinian pledge was interpreted as a conciliatory move to allay Christian fears.

It was the first time that such a guerrilla pledge had been given publicly. Informed sources said the Syrians brought pressure on the guerrilla leaders to make such a commitment and to accept a measure of Lebanese control over the Palestinian refugee camps in and around Beirut.

Meanwhile, a guerrilla spokesman reported that firing squads of the Palestine Liberation Army publicly executed two Lebanese Moslems in eastern Lebanon after a PLA court-martial found them guilty of looting state property.

Syrian mediators began negotiating details of a political settlement that would reapportion powers between Moslems and Christians evenly, a "second Lebanese Republic" with Syria and France as coguarantors, officials reported.

Agreement was reported reached on a process for electing the president from the Maronite Christian sect: a two-thirds majority in Parliament would be required for election the first ballot; a 55 per cent majority would be required on subsequent ballots.

The membership of Parliament would be increased from 99 to 108 or 120 members, and the seats would be evenly divided between the Christians and Moslems, the sources said. At present, the division is 6 to 5 in favor of the Christians.

The premier would continue to be named from the Sunni Moslem sect, but he would be elected by Parliament instead of appointed by the president.

Unemployment Up In December Detroit School System Quiet

RALEIGH (AP)—Breaking a six-month pattern of decline, unemployment in North Carolina increased during December to 7.5 per cent, the highest since August.

The Employment Security Commission reported Monday that unemployment during 1975 peaked in March when 11.7 per cent of the state's labor force was jobless. During December, 184,700 North Carolinians were listed as unemployed, compared to 212,900 one year ago.

During the first quarter of 1975, an average of 278,000 wage earners in North Carolina were without jobs. The ESC said that during 1975, more than $404 million in state and federal unemployment insurance benefits were paid to eligible claimants.

DETROIT (AP) — Peace prevailed at city schools today as a court-ordered integration plan was fully implemented with the resumption of secondary school classes.

"Everything seems to be going smoothly. Everything's nice and slow," said a police spokesman.

In northeast Detroit, many white pupils again failed to show up for buses to schools in black neighborhoods as a boycott continued in opposition to the desegregation program.

At formerly all-white schools, however, there appeared to be a larger turnout of black pupils than on Monday, when busing began for elementary pupils.

A total of 21,800 pupils in kindergarten through eighth grade are being bused under the court order.

Child's 'Leash' May Be Lifesaver

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: May I please respond to INDIGNANT MOTHER, who tried to justify placing her child in a harness to save him from being lost or run over, or falling down a flight of stairs?

A child should be taught—not leashed! To defend using a harness by saying it's for the child's protection is a cop-out used by parents who are too lazy or busy to look after their own children. There is no substitute for a mother's personal attention.

Of course, unkind remarks from strangers are out of place, but someone should open the eyes of mothers who put leashes on children. Maybe the mothers should put leashes on THEMSELVES and be walked through stores and airports for their "protection." Adults also get lost, run over and fall down stairs.

I say, God giveth and God taketh away, harness or no harness.

UNLEASHED IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR UNLEASHED: Please read on for another point of view.

DEAR ABBY: This is for INDIGNANT MOTHER, who was frequently subjected to insults from strangers because she used a harness on her 2-year-old child.

I, too, used a harness, and a plain, old-fashioned dog leash on my two children when they were toddlers. They were only 11 months apart in age and quite a handful. While I worked in the yard or hung my clothes outside, I'd clip their harnesses to the clothes line so they could run and play within safe limits.

While shopping with my harnessed youngsters, I collected many cold stares from strangers. Some even reminded me that I was raising children—not dogs.

Then, something happened that made it easier for me to bear those insults. A beautiful, 2-year-old neighbor girl was killed. Two minutes earlier, she was beside her mother in the kitchen. There was one broken-hearted mother, one dead child and one unsuspecting driver who didn't see the wee curly head dart from between two parked cars until he felt the thump of a wheel go over her little body.

That was 25 years ago. Today I am the mother of two living children and six grandchildren, and I thank God that He gave me the intelligence to value the lives of my children above the criticism of a few "know-it-alls."

Indignant mother, forget your indignation and rock your living baby to sleep. Keep him harnessed until he's old enough to understand simple danger. It's much better than carrying flowers to a small grave.

MRS. O.K. IN VA.

DEAR ABBY: Bravo to the mother who uses a harness on her small child! Many mothers don't use one because they are afraid of appearing "cruel."

As a physical therapist, I have treated many small children for dislocated shoulders caused by impatient parents who have literally pulled their children's arms out of their sockets holding onto their hands in traffic.

A dislocated shoulder can go undetected for a long time while causing much damage and discomfort.

ALL FOR HARNESSSES

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle an argument my husband and I have frequently?

He is quick to accept invitations but slow to return them. He says if we accept an invitation to a huge cocktail party, we are not obligated to reciprocate. He also insists that if we are entertained by someone from his place of employment who is on a higher level than he is, we aren't expected to return the invitation.

I say, if you accept an invitation, you must reciprocate—no matter what.

MRS. W.

DEAR MRS. W.: You are right. If you go, you owe!

Reagan Undertakes Third N.C. Tour

By MICHAEL J. HALL
Associated Press Writer
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Ronald Reagan was to begin a three-city swing through North Carolina today in his quest for the Republican presidential nomination.

The visit, beginning in Asheville, is Reagan's third to the state in his campaign for a majority of the 54 delegate votes the North Carolina delegates will cast at the Republican National Convention. That represents about three per cent of the 2,259 convention votes.

The state's March 23 primary comes two weeks after the Florida primary — the first head-to-head test in Reagan's attempt to unseat President Ford.

An indication of the importance to which the national Reagan campaign is attaching to the state primary is the fact that Roger Stauter, national advance man, has been coordinating arrangements in Asheville for the last three days.

Reagan's visit to Asheville, Charlotte and Gastonia today may be designed to maximize the television exposure many Reagan supporters say they expect him to use in the campaign.

The three cities are among the state's center for Republican votes, and could have a decisive impact on the primary.

Observers feel that former California governor will need heavy support in the populous Charlotte-Gastonia area to beat Ford.

Reagan's strength in western North Carolina is uncertain at this time, although the area votes Republican more than other sections of the state.

Chairman Curtis Ratcliff of the Buncombe County Board of Commissioners, a key western Reagan supporter, predicted more than 500 Reagan followers would attend a $5-a-plate luncheon here. But some local observers said Monday they hadn't seen much evidence of a Reagan campaign in the Asheville area.

While no formal press conferences were planned during the 22-hour state visit, Reagan national campaign workers said Monday night that there would be no attempt to bar the press from any functions during his visit.

Earlier, state Campaign Chairman Carter Wrenn and Ratcliff both said Reagan supporters plan a private, by-invitation only reception for key campaign workers and potential financial backers prior to the Asheville luncheon.

But those orders appear to have been countermanded by Reagan's national staff.

During his two previous visits, Reagan has been more open to the press and his national staff apparently has decided to keep it so.

Whether he holds a formal press conference or not, Reagan is certain to be questioned about his controversial $90 billion federal budget cut proposal. That plan has drawn criticism almost everywhere Reagan has appeared in recent weeks.

Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser, Ford's Southeastern campaign manager, said earlier this month that the Reagan program could cost North Carolina taxpayers an extra $1.5 billion or more in funds annually. But Holshouser and Reagan backers like Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., say the plan will reduce taxes by doing away with costly federal bureaucracy.

Reagan backers say any increase in state taxes would be more than offset by reductions in federal taxes.

Italians Urge U.S. Tell All On Political Money

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Italy's ruling Christian Democratic party, the U.S. government's Italian ally and protege since World War II, is asking President Ford to make public all information about the reported $6-million CIA fund to aid anti-Communist parties and politicians in Italy, the Christian Democratic newspaper Il Popolo reported today.

The paper's editor-in-chief, Franco Franchini, reported that the party's directorate voted unanimously Monday night to instruct caretaker Premier Aldo Moro and Foreign Minister Mariano Rumor, both Christian Democrats, to "ask the President of the United States that facts and names be made public regarding the presumed, asserted and much publicized financing of our nation's parties and politicians on the part of the CIA."

An authoritative source in Washington reported on Jan. 7 that because of the growing threat of a Communist victory in the next Italian elections, the U.S. government was resuming undercover financial support of Italian anti-Communists and would funnel $6 million via the CIA to the Christian Democrats and the Democratic Socialist party.

Both parties denied the report, but the coincidental collapse of Moro's government and his inability to form a new cabinet pushed it into the background until Monday. Then the Turin newspaper Stampa Sera, published by automobile magnate Gianni Agnelli, touched off a nationwide furor by naming four Christian Democrats and Democratic Socialists as recipients of CIA funds. The paper said its information came from sources close to the U.S. Senate and House investigations into the intelligence agency.

The four politicians denied receiving such American funds, and several of them threatened to sue the paper for libel. The Communist party said the alleged CIA funding infringes on "national independence" and denied that it got similar financing from the Kremlin.

Although such secret American payments are not illegal under either American or Italian law, the controversy threatens to become an issue in elections for a new parliament which are expected this spring or summer. The Communists ran only two percentage points behind the Christian Democrats in nationwide local and regional elections last June, and evidence of CIA financing for the Christian Democrats would undoubtedly improve Communist chances of leading the voting.

No Damage In Area's Wind And Rainfall

There has been a lot of rain, some wind and a few thunderstorms since about noon yesterday, but no damage has been reported.

The rain started about midday Monday. According to the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station, .54 inches of rain fell up until midnight last night.

The high temperature yesterday was 68 degrees, while the low for the 24-hour period ending at midnight last night was 57. At 8 a.m. today, the mercury stood at 63 degrees and it was still raining.

The Tar River level at 8 a.m. was 2.8 feet. Yesterday the river stood at 2.6 feet.

Severe thunder storms, with the possibility of hail, were forecast yesterday by the National Weather Bureau, but no hail and no damage were reported.

allies. However, he said Soviet land, sea and air forces have grown by about 30 per cent over the last 10 years, including addition of nearly 2,000 tactical fighters and attack planes, large numbers of tanks, artillery and armored personnel carriers, and bigger missile-armed Navy.

While much of the increase in Russia's ground and air forces has gone to face Communist China in the Far East, Rumsfeld said that Soviet forces pointed toward Western Europe have improved in numbers and quality, while its navy has become increasing a worldwide presence.

No Comment By Chairman

RALEIGH (AP)—State Republican Chairman Robert Shaw declined to comment today on published reports that William Russo had been fired as the party's executive director.

"My only comment is that Bill resigned Sunday and that I am looking for a new director," Shaw said.

Published reports said Russo had submitted his resignation when requested to do so by the Republican Central Committee. These reports also said there were strained relations between committee members and Russo over a recent salary hike and amount of control from party headquarters over district Republican affairs.

According to the report the salary dispute centered around whether Russo had received a $5,000 increase without prior approval as Shaw contended or whether it had been agreed upon in advance as Russo claimed.

Single Parent Family Needs Understanding

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

The single parent family and the single adult are growing problems in Jewish life in America, says Gerald B. Bubis, director of the School of Jewish Communal Service of Hebrew Union College — Jewish Institute of Religion, in Los Angeles. Bubis said part of the dilemma stems from the traditional organization of the synagogue as a family-based institution. Synagogues and temples and their congregations will have to adjust, he said, to serve the needs of these singles as well as the traditional family unit of mother, father and children.

Some widows need to be taught how to become heads of households, to manage money, he said.

"There's very little child care service. Often it is sectarian, not the community itself and not a public function.

"A single parent feels left out. That parent may be a widow unprepared to become head of her household, or a widower who feels he is overlooked because temple or synagogue affairs focus on father-son and mother-daughter programs. We need parent-child activities.

"It's a new phenomena, saying I want to be a parent, but I don't want a spouse, I will just breed. It has got to be tremendously tough for the grandparents.

"I know of one case, a woman who was divorced, but who wanted another child and told her parents she was pregnant. She had the child, but no wedding. It was very painful for the parents, who are supporting the daughter and the two children in a second household.

"The parents have not confronted it publicly. They live in separate communities and pretend it never happened.

"I also know of a case where a single parent sent out birth announcements, who bragged about it.

"We must sensitize ourselves much more to the variance. Single parent families won't go away; they will grow in numbers."

Bubis said single parents are not just adults who never married. They may be widows, widowers or divorced.

"Some men tend to deny that any problem exists. They are so busy trying to be late teenagers that they can't be serious adults."

This rubs off on children because "I don't think kids listen to parents, they watch them and establish an imitative pattern."

Some single parents develop self-image problems, as in the case of a professional man's middle-aged wife who sought a divorce. She had not worked for 25 years.

"She asked herself, 'What did I do wrong, how should I have dealt with the problem, can I make it by myself?'"

"How does she update herself in a market where youth is at a premium? Even her kids are angry; they live with her, and their stability has gone."

He said divorce is not as damaging psychologically as a younger marriage where the wife initiated the action.

"It calls for team action, counseling, vocational rehabilitation, child care services."

Bubis said preliminary work has been done in the Chicago area to create a network of Jewish agencies for this purpose. Counseling groups are going to be needed in synagogues, he added.

The problem is partly financial. Membership, which is the economic base of synagogues, can be expensive. Some single parents drop out because they cannot afford the fees.

"I have a hunch they don't want to leave," Bubis said. Many synagogues sponsor summer day camps. More and more single parents want to use these services for their children, but cannot pay the fees.

He said some cities and many synagogues have a sliding scale of dues, and YM and YWHAs tend to follow suit.

"I have a hunch that a voucher system might be the wave of the future for those who cannot afford a Jewish education at school. Vouchers paid for by the community have been touched on very gingerly in some places."

Although doctors are the current group bearing the brunt of malpractice insurance, life insurance executives are being told to look for new trends and a new day.

It seems everyone wants assurance of what's coming to him or her and they want to insure their rights against risks. It is not inconceivable that in the not too distant future all of us will be carrying liability insurance.

The other night at a party I approached a man who seemed rather depressed. "Cheer up!" I said. "Things aren't that bad."

He grunted and went back to his drink.

"Let me tell you a joke," I giggled.

"It'll make me laugh?" he asked.

"It will make you hysterical," I promised. "It seems President Ford, Pope Paul and Mayor Daley were aboard a boat that would only hold one person. As it began to sink they held a discussion about who should be saved."

"A boat capsizing is not funny," said the man.

"Wait a minute. I'm not finished. President Ford said, 'There is no question that I should be saved because I am responsible for the destiny of over 200 million people. I should be the one to survive.' The Pope interrupted and said, 'I can appreciate your importance, but I provide spiritual leadership for the entire world. My absence would throw civilization into turmoil.' At this point Mayor Daley spoke up and said, 'Look, we live in a democratic society. Let's put it to a vote.' Mayor Daley won 7-2."

"You call yourself a humorist?" asked the man unsmiling.

"I've done that joke a million times and it's always worked before," I said.

The next morning I heard from the man's lawyer, who said his client had lain awake all night long worrying about Jerry Ford and Pope Paul bobbing around in the water. "He suffered mental anguish, insomnia, and an emotional whiplash. He is suing you for $500,000."

"Five hundred thousand dollars!"

"Right. He said you promised to make him laugh and he didn't."

"But . . ."

"There are witnesses."

"But . . ."

"You should have spelled out the options: (1) He may not get the joke; (2) He's heard the joke before; (3) He is related to Mayor Daley and did not see the humor in it. If I've told you humorists once, I've told you a million times. When you see a person depressed — don't get involved!"

Child's 'Leash' May Be Lifesaver

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: May I please respond to INDIGNANT MOTHER, who tried to justify placing her child in a harness to save him from being lost or run over, or falling down a flight of stairs?

A child should be taught—not leashed! To defend using a harness by saying it's for the child's protection is a cop-out used by parents who are too lazy or busy to look after their own children. There is no substitute for a mother's personal attention.

Of course, unkind remarks from strangers are out of place, but someone should open the eyes of mothers who put leashes on children. Maybe the mothers should put leashes on THEMSELVES and be walked through stores and airports for their "protection." Adults also get lost, run over and fall down stairs.

I say, God giveth and God taketh away, harness or no harness.

UNLEASHED IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR UNLEASHED: Please read on for another point of view.

DEAR ABBY: This is for INDIGNANT MOTHER, who was frequently subjected to insults from strangers because she used a harness on her 2-year-old child.

I, too, used a harness, and a plain, old-fashioned dog leash on my two children when they were toddlers. They were only 11 months apart in age and quite a handful. While I worked in the yard or hung my clothes outside, I'd clip their harnesses to the clothes line so they could run and play within safe limits.

While shopping with my harnessed youngsters, I collected many cold stares from strangers. Some even reminded me that I was raising children—not dogs.

Then, something happened that made it easier for me to bear those insults. A beautiful, 2-year-old neighbor girl was killed. Two minutes earlier, she was beside her mother in the kitchen. There was one broken-hearted mother, one dead child and one unsuspecting driver who didn't see the weedy curly head dart from between two parked cars until he felt the thump of a wheel go over her little body.

That was 25 years ago. Today I am the mother of two living children and six grandchildren, and I thank God that He gave me the intelligence to value the lives of my children above the criticism of a few "know-it-alls."

Indignant mother, forget your indignation and rock your living baby to sleep. Keep him harnessed until he's old enough to understand simple danger. It's much better than carrying flowers to a small grave.

MRS. O.K. IN VA.

DEAR ABBY: Bravo to the mother who uses a harness on her small child! Many mothers don't use one because they are afraid of appearing "cruel."

As a physical therapist, I have treated many small children for dislocated shoulders caused by impatient parents who have literally pulled their children's arms out of their sockets holding onto their hands in traffic.

A dislocated shoulder can go undetected for a long time while causing much damage and discomfort.

ALL FOR HARNESSSES

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle an argument my husband and I have frequently?

He is quick to accept invitations but slow to return them. He says if we accept an invitation to a huge cocktail party, we are not obligated to reciprocate. He also insists that if we are entertained by someone from his place of employment who is on a higher level than he is, we aren't expected to return the invitation.

I say, if you accept an invitation, you must reciprocate—no matter what.

Please settle this.

MRS. W.

Reagan Undertakes Third N.C. Tour

By MICHAEL J. HALL
Associated Press Writer
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Ronald Reagan was to begin a three-city swing through North Carolina today in his quest for the Republican presidential nomination.

The visit, beginning in Asheville, is Reagan's third to the state in his campaign for a majority of the 54 delegate votes the North Carolina delegates will cast at the Republican National Convention. That represents about three per cent of the 2,259 convention votes.

The state's March 23 primary comes two weeks after the Florida primary — the first head-to-head test in Reagan's attempt to unseat President Ford.

An indication of the importance to which the national Reagan campaign is attaching to the state primary is the fact that Roger Stauter, national advance man, has been coordinating arrangements in Asheville for the last three days.

Reagan's visit to Asheville, Charlotte and Gastonia today may be designed to maximize the television exposure many Reagan supporters say they expect him to use in the campaign.

The three cities are among the state's center for Republican votes, and could have a decisive impact on the primary.

Observers feel that former California governor will need heavy support in the populous Charlotte-Gastonia area to beat Ford.

Reagan's strength in western North Carolina is uncertain at this time, although the area votes Republican more than other sections of the state.

Chairman Curtis Ratcliff of the Buncombe County Board of Commissioners, a key western Reagan supporter, predicted more than 500 Reagan followers would attend a $5-a-plate luncheon here. But some local observers said Monday they hadn't seen much evidence of a Reagan campaign in the Asheville area.

While no formal press conferences were planned during the 22-hour state visit, Reagan national campaign workers said Monday night that there would be no attempt to bar the press from any functions during his visit.

Earlier, state Campaign Chairman Carter Wrenn and Ratcliff both said Reagan supporters plan a private, by-invitation only reception for key campaign workers and potential financial backers prior to the Asheville luncheon.

But those orders appear to have been countermanded by Reagan's national staff.

During his two previous visits, Reagan has been more open to the press and his national staff apparently has decided to keep it so.

Whether he holds a formal press conference or not, Reagan is certain to be questioned about his controversial $90 billion federal budget cut proposal. That plan has drawn criticism almost everywhere Reagan has appeared in recent weeks.

Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser, Ford's Southeastern campaign manager, said earlier this month that the Reagan program could cost North Carolina taxpayers an extra $1.5 billion or more in funds annually. But Holshouser and Reagan backers like Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., say the plan will reduce taxes by doing away with costly federal bureaucracy.

Reagan backers say any increase in state taxes would be more than offset by reductions in federal taxes.

Italians Urge U.S. Tell All On Political Money

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — Italy's ruling Christian Democratic party, the U.S. government's Italian ally and protege since World War II, is asking President Ford to make public all information about the reported $6-million CIA fund to aid anti-Communist parties and politicians in Italy, the Christian Democratic newspaper Il Popolo reported today.

The paper's editor-in-chief, Franco Franchini, reported that the party's directorate voted unanimously Monday night to instruct caretaker Premier Aldo Moro and Foreign Minister Mariano Rumor, both Christian Democrats, to "ask the President of the United States that facts and names be made public regarding the presumed, asserted and much publicized financing of our nation's parties and politicians on the part of the CIA."

An authoritative source in Washington reported on Jan. 7 that because of the growing threat of a Communist victory in the next Italian elections, the U.S. government was resuming undercover financial support of Italian anti-Communists and would funnel $6 million via the CIA to the Christian Democrats and the Democratic Socialist party.

Both parties denied the report, but the coincidental collapse of Moro's government and his inability to form a new cabinet pushed it into the background until Monday. Then the Turin newspaper Stampa Sera, published by automobile magnate Gianni Agnelli, touched off a nationwide furor by naming four Christian Democrats and Democratic Socialists as recipients of CIA funds. The paper said its information came from sources close to the U.S. Senate and House investigations into the intelligence agency.

The four politicians denied receiving such American funds, and several of them threatened to sue the paper for libel. The Communist party said the alleged CIA funding infringes on "national independence" and denied that it got similar financing from the Kremlin.

Although such secret American payments are not illegal under either American or Italian law, the controversy threatens to become an issue in elections for a new parliament which are expected this spring or summer. The Communists ran only two percentage points behind the Christian Democrats in nationwide local and regional elections last June, and evidence of CIA financing for the Christian Democrats would undoubtedly improve Communist chances of leading the voting.

No Damage In Area's Wind And Rainfall

There has been a lot of rain, some wind and a few thunderstorms since about noon yesterday, but no damage has been reported.

The rain started about midday Monday. According to the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station, .54 inches of rain fell up until midnight last night.

The high temperature yesterday was 68 degrees, while the low for the 24-hour period ending at midnight last night was 57. At 8 a.m. today, the mercury stood at 63 degrees ... and it was still raining.

The Tar River level at 8 a.m. was 2.8 feet. Yesterday the river stood at 2.6 feet.

Severe thunder storms, with the possibility of hail, were forecast yesterday by the National Weather Bureau, but no hail and no damage were reported.

Four Collisions In Greenville Monday

An estimated $2,525 property damage resulted yesterday from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 6:30 a.m. mishap on 14th Street, 60 feet west of the Pennsylvania Avenue intersection.

Officers reported a car driven by Ralph Clifton Goff of 1210 Dickinson Ave. collided with a sign post, fence and utility pole, causing an estimated $800 damage to his car, $200 damage to the pole, $100 damage to the fence and $50 damage to the sign post. No charges were reported by investigators who made no charges in connection with the three other collisions either.

Officers said a 3:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Gum Road involved cars driven by John Thomas Avery Jr. of Farmville and Corrina Howard of 2119 South Village Dr.

Damage in that mishap was set at $200 to the Avery car and $300 to the Howard auto.

Vehicles operated by Ann Taylor Moseley of Ayden and Janie Carson Etheridge of 1506 East Fourth St. were involved in a 6:20 mishap on Memorial Drive, 75 feet North of the Trade Street intersection.

Police estimated damage in that mishap at $175 to the Moseley car and $300 to the Etheridge car.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 3:45 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Myrtle and Manhattan Avenues.

Drivers involved in that collision were identified as Cynthia Miller McAllister of 103 Terry St. and Ruby Mae Barnes of Route 1, Stokes.

Corn Workshop Slated Thursday

A Corn Workshop, sponsored by the Pitt County Extension Service, will be held Thursday, January 29, at the Pitt County Farm Bureau Building on Greenville Boulevard at 2 p.m.

Speakers for the program will be Dr. Eugene Krenzer, corn specialist at North Carolina State University; Dr. John Van Dyne, entomology specialist at the Tidewater Research Station, Plymouth; and Henry Riddick Agricultural Extension Agent.

Topics to be discussed include: fertility, insect and nematode control, weed control, morning glory, and increasing pollination period through variety mixture.

Legend Filmed By Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — The legend of "La Difunta Correa"—literally, the deceased Correa woman — has been made into a Argentine film.

The legend tells of Deolinda Correa de Bustos, a young mother in western San Juan province during the 19th century who is revered by many Argentines who believe offerings to her memory bring answered prayers.

According to the legend, the woman set out on foot with a newborn baby to find her husband, who was fighting in one of the internal battles then wracking the country. She died while crossing the desert, but her baby was found alive — maintained by the milk it was still sucking from the dead woman's breast.

Congress Warned... Gag Argued In High Court

make nuclear war more "thinkable."

Schlesinger wanted a bigger budget for fiscal 1977 to overcome the effects of money cuts made by Congress in past years.

Rumsfeld said improvements in U.S. military forces — including a variety of sophisticated new fighter planes, tanks, warships and other conventional weapons, as well as new strategic missiles and bombers — "are essential if we are to have continued deterrence, stability and detente."

Without such improvements, he warned, the United States and its allies will become vulnerable because of Soviet momentum in deploying huge new missiles, a big and modern navy, a heavily armored and mobile army, and a hard-hitting air force equipped with faster, more agile jets.

"To reduce the danger, we must begin to act now," Rumsfeld said.

The Pentagon chief contended that detente is "a hope and an experiment" so far. He said "it makes sense to seek a reasonable accommodation of our differences" with Russia.

The Defense Department "would be agreeable to lower levels" of strategic nuclear striking forces than are provided in the Vladivostok understanding, provided Russian offensive capability were to decline, he said. "To have any prospect of such a result, however, we have to recognize that the Soviets negotiate seriously ... only when they face real (not paper) programs with significant military capabilities and congressional support," Rumsfeld said.

In the past 10 years, Rumsfeld's report said, the Russians have come from far back to outnumber U.S. land-based missile forces by 1,500 to 1,054 ICBMs and submarine-launched missiles by 850 to 656.

The Soviets still trail the United States by 8,900 to 3,500 in strategic nuclear warheads, but Rumsfeld said they are closing the gap with the deployment of multiple warheads.

The United States leads in strategic bombers with 421 aircraft, mostly aging B52s, to 180 Soviet bombers. But the Russians have started deploying their new super-sonic Backfire bomber, which Rumsfeld said "has the capability to strike the United States." The Backfire is one of the issues that has been holding up a new U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms limitation pact.

Rumsfeld was not as specific in comparing Soviet conventional military strength with that of the United States and NATO allies.

However, he said Soviet land, sea and air forces have grown by about 30 per cent over the last 10 years, including addition of nearly 2,000 tactical fighters and attack planes, large numbers of tanks, artillery and armored personnel carriers, and bigger missile-armed Navy.

While much of the increase in Russia's ground and air forces has gone to face Communist China in the Far East, Rumsfeld said that Soviet forces pointed toward Western Europe have improved in numbers and quality, while its navy has become increasing a worldwide presence.

No Comment By Chairman

RALEIGH (AP)—State Republican Chairman Robert Shaw declined to comment today on published reports that William Russo had been fired as the party's executive director.

"My only comment is that Bill resigned Sunday and that I am looking for a new director," Shaw said.

Published reports said Russo had submitted his resignation when requested to do so by the Republican Central Committee. These reports also said there were strained relations between committee members and Russo over a recent salary hike and amount of control from party headquarters over district Republican affairs.

According to the report the salary dispute centered around whether Russo had received a $5,000 increase without prior approval as Shaw contended or whether it had been agreed upon in advance as Russo claimed.

In High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is weighing a Nebraska "gag order" which lawyers for several news organizations are saying could be "the fatal first step in the ... destruction of a free press."

The gag was imposed against reporters covering a mass murder trial.

An array of news organizations joined together to tell the court that "suppression, censorship and governmental control in various forms are not the sole province of countries which have traditionally regarded the press as an arm of government."

"Once a branch of government — in this case, the judiciary — has found reasons for telling the press, on pain of criminal contempt, what it can and cannot publish, we have started down that long and dismal road where it becomes easier and easier to discover reasons why news should not reach the public — at least for a while."

"Today it is a confession. Tomorrow it is the indictment of a public official just prior to an election. And soon the whole concept has changed, and the people learn what government wants them to learn."

The arguments were contained in a brief filed by the Nebraska Press Association and a number of news outlets in Nebraska opposing restrictions on coverage of a murder trial held there this month.

Separate briefs against the "gag order" were filed by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, The Washington Post and others. Other newspapers and broadcasting networks previously filed similar briefs.

The Nebraska case arose out of the arrest of Erwin Charles Simants on charges of murdering six members of a Sutherland, Neb., family.

Single Parent Family Needs Understanding

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

The single parent family and the single adult are growing problems in Jewish life in America, says Gerald B. Bubis, director of the School of Jewish Communal Service of Hebrew Union College — Jewish Institute of Religion, in Los Angeles. Bubis said part of the dilemma stems from the traditional organization of the synagogue as a family-based institution. Synagogues and temples and their congregations will have to adjust, he said, to serve the needs of these singles as well as the traditional family unit of mother, father and children.

Some widows need to be taught how to become heads of households, to manage money, he said.

"There's very little child care service. Often it is sectarian, not the community itself and not a public function.

"A single parent feels left out. That parent may be a widow unprepared to become head of her household, or a widower who feels he is overlooked because temple or synagogue affairs focus on father-son and mother-daughter programs. We need parent-child activities.

"It's a new phenomena, saying I want to be a parent, but I don't want a spouse, I will just breed." It has got to be tremendously tough for the grandparents.

"I know of one case, a woman who was divorced, but who wanted another child and told her parents she was pregnant. She had the child, but no wedding. It was very painful for the parents, who are supporting the daughter and the two children in a second household.

"The parents have not confronted it publicly. They live in separate communities and pretend it never happened.

"I also know of a case where a single parent sent out birth announcements, who bragged about it.

"We must sensitize ourselves much more to the variance. Single parent families won't go away; they will grow in numbers."

Bubis said single parents are not just adults who never married. They may be widows, widowers or divorced.

"Some men tend to deny that any problem exists. They are so busy trying to be late teenagers that they can't be serious adults."

This rubs off on children because "I don't think kids listen to parents, they watch them and establish an imitative pattern."

Some single parents develop self-image problems, as in the case of a professional man's middle-aged wife who sought a divorce. She had not worked for 25 years.

"She asked herself, 'What did I do wrong, how should I have dealt with the problem, can I make it by myself?'"

"How does she update herself in a market where youth is at a premium? Even her kids are angry; they live with her, and their stability has gone."

He said divorce is not as damaging psychologically in a younger marriage where the wife initiated the action.

"It calls for team action, counseling, vocational rehabilitation, child care services."

Bubis said preliminary work has been done in the Chicago area to create a network of Jewish agencies for this purpose. Counseling groups are going to be needed in synagogues, he added.

The problem is partly financial. Membership, which is the economic base of synagogues, can be expensive. Some single parents drop out because they cannot afford the fees.

"I have a hunch they don't want to leave," Bubis said. Many synagogues sponsor summer day camps. More and more single parents want to use these services for their children, but cannot pay the fees.

He said some cities and many synagogues have a sliding scale of dues, and YM and YWHAs tend to follow suit.

"I have a hunch that a voucher system might be the wave of the future for those who cannot afford a Jewish education at school. Vouchers paid for by the community have been touched on very gingerly in some places."

Celebrating Birthday Today

Samuel R. Cherry Sr., of Beaufort County and a resident of Greenville for the past 45 years, will celebrate his 91st birthday today at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Eugene Evans, 302 N. Sylvan Dr.

Cherry's wife, Mrs. Claudie Crisp Cherry, died in 1940.

Members of the family attending the celebration will be four daughters, five sons, 16 grandchildren, and 17 great grandchildren.

Friends of Cherry are invited to attend the celebration which will be greeted by the family from 7-9 p.m.

Although doctors are the current group bearing the brunt of malpractice insurance, life insurance executives are being told to look for new trends and a new day.

It seems everyone wants assurance of what's coming to him or her and they want to insure their rights against risks. It is not inconceivable that in the not too distant future all of us will be carrying liability insurance.

The other night at a party I approached a man who seemed rather depressed. "Cheer up!" I said. "Things aren't that bad."

He grunted and went back to his drink.

"Let me tell you a joke," I giggled.

"It'll make me laugh!" he asked.

"It will make you hysterical," I promised. "It seems President Ford, Pope Paul and Mayor Daley were aboard a boat that would only hold one person. As it began to sink they held a discussion about who should be saved."

"A boat capsizing is not funny," said the man.

"Wait a minute. I'm not finished. President Ford said, 'There is no question that I should be saved because I am responsible for the destiny of over 200 million people. I should

At this point Mayor Daley spoke up and said, 'Look, we live in a democratic society. Let's put it to a vote.' Mayor Daley won 7-2."

"You call yourself a humorist?" asked the man unsmiling.

"I've done that joke a million times and it's always worked before," I said.

The next morning I heard from the man's lawyer, who said his client had lain awake all night long worrying about Jerry Ford and Pope Paul bobbing around in the water. "He suffered mental anguish, insomnia, and an emotional whiplash. He is suing you for $500,000."

"Five hundred thousand dollars!"

"Right. He said you promised to make him laugh and he didn't."

"But . . ."

"There are witnesses."

"But . . ."

"You should have spelled out the options: (1) He may not get the joke; (2) He's heard the joke before; (3) He is related to Mayor Daley and did not see the humor in it. If I've told you humorists once, I've told you a million times. When you see a person depressed — don't get involved!"

A layer cake covered with a fluffy white frosting looks particularly inviting when chocolate shot is sprinkled over the icing.

For a meatless supper, serve a mixture of cooked vegetables in a curry sauce over cooked rice. Pass peanuts (whole or ground) and fruit chutney.

Terry's Best Wasn't Enough

It must have been a sad day for Terry Sanford Friday when he announced that he would withdraw from the presidential race.

Sanford, who has been around politics a long time, said he was withdrawing because of difficulties in raising funds and calling attention to his stands on issues.

It was well known that he was having trouble attracting coverage from the national news media. In fact an article which was done on him in The Wall Street Journal pointed to this as a major problem.

"I made my honest effort and now I am content to close the books," Sanford said. "Therefore, I have decided to put down the ordeal of the presidential campaign and pick up again the challenges of Duke University (where he is president)."

Sanford gave it his best. It was obvious his campaign was not gaining momentum, so he made the proper decision.

Something We Can Do For Our State

Is there anyone who has not at least one time said "Gee, I'd like to do something for North Carolina"?

Well it just so happens that opportunity is knocking. The knocking (presumably in Morse) is saying that individuals can share in saving Jockey's Ridge from the bulldozers of land developers, and preserve that famous sand dune at Nags Head as a state park.

Proponents of the ambitious step say $180,000 is still required, and they tell us if a lot of individuals contribute not less than $5 each, they shall overcome, overwhelm and prevail against forces which would otherwise despoil a Tar Heel treasure.

There must be more than $180,000 waiting for a cause right here in eastern North Carolina, and we'd call it to your attention.

Contributions may be made to the Save-Jockey's-Ridge fund at any Planters National Bank office. Isn't this a cause that should be one of yours?

THIS AFTERNOON

Changes In Youth System

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There is ample documentation of children in the state's training school system who have been subjected to isolation, naked, in unheated cells without bed or blanket; beatings; blackmarket activity in cigarettes and drug contraband; and occasional ugly stories of prostitution and sex.

The horrors have surfaced from time to time, and the lid generally was clamped back on. Previous directors have promised to try to keep such activity under control.

"It has been due to the attitudes of a small minority of staff people that such physical and verbal abuse has occurred," says Ray Shurling, new director of the Youth Services Division of the Department of Human Resources.

"I will do all that is possible within my power not to minimize such occurrences, but to eliminate them completely," Shurling said.

Book Him Out

"If any person subjects a child to inhumane treatment... I will act within every Constitutional and statutory authority to publicly eliminate that person from the system," Shurling says, and in a moment of dramatic license recalls visions of watching a serious offender being stripped of his buttons and badges and publicly drummed out of the Marine Corps.

Taking charge of the training school system, Shurling inherits some 800 kids and seven state institutions. The staff numbers almost 800, and the annual budget runs between $8 and $9 million. Resources, used properly, are sufficient to get the job done, Shurling believes.

In a wide-ranging interview, he mentioned several major points for future work:

Several institutions can be closed and the buildings turned over to some other state agency; "We've got kids in one place, staff in another, and there's been no effort to bring them together," Shurling said.

Community treatment will be his "personal commitment and primary thrust... and I do not mean state operated mini-institutions scattered widely in place of the big central institutions. It has been shown that group homes work, and at from half to two-thirds of the cost."

The goal will be to place group homes "in those communities which are willing to work for them and commit resources both financial and social... to bringing these children into the mainstream of community life."

Tell Story

Shurling will travel extensively and urge his key staff to do likewise in keeping tabs on developments, and telling the public about problems and efforts to solve them. "North Carolina appears to have made an intellectual commitment (to change), but I am not sure of the emotional commitment," he says of the need to provide group homes in communities, other new experiences for the children, and get away from the jail atmosphere of the system.

The nut of the problem is that the system has run too long as a way to remove the bothersome kid from society for a period of time, Shurling thinks.

"The child has been unsure why he was coming to the system, and the staff has been unsure why he was sent, and even more unsure what they were gonna do with him. We must change that."

He says there is no conclusive evidence that the system has actually helped one child, and the state has done no research work to find where the kids come from the circumstances which produce problem children, and the kinds of educational, counseling, and rehabilitation programs needed to counteract the problems.

Constant evaluation to, document successes, pinpoint failures, and provide cost-benefit data will be a major part of his work, Shurling says, as he attempts to pull staff, children, and facilities together; eliminate state institutions except for the hard-core criminal element; recruit communities which want to build community services; and build a new image within the system.

A child, like any animal chained, fed poorly, kicked or hit regularly, will one day snap back. Should he then be punished for that?

Urging Postal Funds

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service says it will have to cut back on some services, including Saturday mail delivery, unless Congress is willing to back the mails with the taxpayers' cash.

"We cannot continue to operate as now structured without additional appropriations from Congress," Richard F. Gould, the service's top financial officer, said Monday.

Gould commented before the Senate Post Office Committee opened hearings today on the financial situation of the Postal Service.

Postal Service officials are expected to warn the committee that failure to offer new subsidies will force an end of Saturday delivery and other service such as special delivery.

The committee is taking up a bill by Chairman Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., to double the Postal Service's $1.5-billion annual subsidy over the next three years.

When Congress reorganized the old Post Office Department into the Postal Service in 1971, one of the goals for the new agency was financial self-sufficiency. The law provided for phasing out of subsidies and empowered the Postal Service to manage its own finances independently of Congress.

But the Postal Service has lost money every year since then. Last fiscal year, the deficit was a record $989 million and the Postal Service expects to lose $1.5 billion in the current fiscal year that ends June 30.

Despite some economic measures already taken, "we face the prospect of never having revenues in balance with our costs," said Gould, senior assistant postmaster general for finance.

Although the Postal Service increased the cost of mailing a first-class letter from 10 to 13 cents last month, the extra revenue is not enough to cover steadily increasing costs, Gould said.

Congressional sources said it would be difficult to get higher postal subsidies approved by Congress. The House twice voted down increases last fall, and President Ford opposes any increase.

As major reasons for the Postal Service's financial condition, Gould cited general inflation.

A Small Town's Hospital

MILO, MAINE — The little town of Milo (pop. 2,600) lies in north central Maine, somewhere south of Millinocket and somewhere north of Bangor. The casual traveler is not likely ever to get to Milo, Me., unless he has some particular business to attend to, but there's a story in Milo worth a moment of your time.

Unless some new money is found by early February, the town will lose its hospital. All the old money has been exhausted; the bake sale money, the bean supper money, the town tax money — it's all run out. After a small-town struggle that would break your heart, the "big guys" may win after all.

In the context of Milo's troubles, the "big guys" are all those powerful people behind big desks somewhere else — at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington, at state agencies down in Augusta, wherever it is the Blue Cross and Blue Shield administrators sit. The "big guys" are the planners and policy-makers. They are big partly because they rarely think small.

And Milo is pretty small. Its hospital has nine beds.

One is reminded of Daniel Webster's argument in behalf of Dartmouth College — a small institution, but there are those who love it. The hospital in Milo has no such glorious history; it dates only to 1928, when it was established privately in a comfortable old three-story house on a hill in the west end of town. In 1960, the town formed a non-profit corporation and took it over. Certain X-ray and laboratory facilities were added, and the hospital tended to its job of providing community care.

In the course of time came the big guys with the big programs and the big ideas and the big books of rules and regulations. These factotums, dignitaries and policy-makers are not to be regarded as black-hatted villains; they have not acted as dictators, tyrants or despots. Obviously, there are a few hard feelings among the Friends of Milo Community Hospital, but the record suggests that the big guys have acted out of a sincere concern for greater efficiency and better medical care.

In any event, the past few years have been a chronicle of one discouraging hassle after another. The hospital trustees were put on notice that the building failed to comply with certain safety standards. Teams of inspectors came and went. Reports were filed, certificates were denied. Finally, in May of last year, it looked as if $100,000 to $150,000 would have to be spent if the hospital were to survive.

Such a sum is pocket change in Washington; it is the kind of trivial item that gets rounded off in a decimal point. In Milo, Me., it looked like the national debt. Then the big guys relented: If the

INSIDE REPORT

Behind Simon's Tax Ideas

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The most politically revealing fact about Treasury Secretary William Simon's audacious tax reform proposal is that it evinced a private telephone call of congratulations from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy but none from President Ford.

There was no such call from the Oval Office because encouraging Simon's scheme — eliminating all personal income tax deductions in return for dramatically lowered rates — is today the last thing Mr. Ford wants. Instead of mentioning it in his State of the Union message, the President urged that still more tax preferences (for laudable social purposes, to be sure) be jammed into the chaotic Internal Revenue code. So far, the White House won't even flash a green light for Treasury studies on Simon's ideas.

By flashing a red light instead, Mr. Ford balks at attempting a risky but titillating political coup. As an exercise in laissez faire capitalism, Simon's plan is immune from theoretical conservative attack. But it also wins applause from Teddy Kennedy by simultaneously closing thousands of tax loopholes. Gerald R. Ford could be transformed into the election-year champion of the common man against the special interests.

To embrace Simon's plan, however, would confront the President with mighty interests dependent on tax deductions — housing, the church, charities. Rather than face that confrontation, Mr. Ford delivered an especially soporific State of the Union address which, while avoiding high-risk ventures such as Ronald Reagan's $90 billion fund transfer, did not escape humdrum Main Street Republicanism.

Thus, behind Mr. Ford's flinching from the Simon plan is not ideology but reflexive caution instilled during 35 years in congressional politics.

Ex-financier Bill Simon is certainly no closet liberal. Privately called a "primitive" by administration economists, he is the cabinet's resident troglodyte and unreconstructed champion of the private enterprise system. But as a blooded veteran of Wall Street, Simon believes risk-taking may be needed to save that system.

Without White House approval, he suggested such a risk by unveiling his non-deduction system — long a dream of tax reformers — to the national tax foundation Dec. 3. To Simon, the dead hand of the federal government would be removed from business and personal decision-making in this country.

The congratulatory call from Kennedy was one of many from liberals. Rep. Abner Mikva of Illinois, a liberal Democratic tax reformer and critic of Simon on the Ways and Means Committee, wrote Simon in approval ("The only thing I'm sorry about is that it's called the Simon tax reform plan," Mikva later told us).

Simon's best friends on Capitol Hill were considerably less elated. Support from the likes of Kennedy and Mikva, they warned Simon, meant liberal designs to use his reform for yet higher proportionate taxation on upper brackets and business and further redistribution of income.

Rep. Barber Conable of New York, a top Republican tax strategist and normally a close Simon ally, vigorously opposed the plan. So did Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, now the key tax writer in Congress as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Both predicted ferocious opposition from interest groups.

What's more, enthusiasm for the plan among cautious presidential advisers matched the January weather outside. But Simon was not deterred. On Saturday afternoon, Jan. 17, he again

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

Some of us at Carolina Telephone & Telegraph Company are very disturbed and we would like for the public to know what kind of officials we are working under.

As you know, some years ago we organized into a legal union which is a Constitutional Right of any working American. Some departments did not organize. This is their right to do so and we respect it.

If you will look back to past years and really be honest with yourselves, you know that your telephone service has much improved since the Union has entered the picture.

Some people think the Union is just something to antagonize a company and make them pay higher wages for less work. This is far from the truth. You can see this by the type of service you are getting now.

Most companies reward their employees for a job well done. It might be a large reward or it might just be a well deserved pat on the back. In our case it's a "stab in the back."

We have just been notified by a company bulletin that the company group insurance premiums are going up. We realize this is in line with the cost of medical care going up, but the bulletin reads that organized employees' premiums will increase by $4.10 whereas, the non-organized employees will decrease by forty-five cents.

Now we ask you, is this fair? We feel this is an open and shut case of discrimination. We are being penalized just because we choose (constitutionally) to be members of organized labor.

We all work for the same Company and are covered under the same Group Hospitalization Plan with the very same benefits.

40 Years Ago Today

January 27, 1936

A Democratic group in the House endorsed an attack on Alfred E. Smith by Rep. Woodrum (D-Va.) with a standing ovation.

Woodrum dismissed Smith's threats to "take a walk" if the convention upholds the New Deal.

Woodrum said, "He took his walk in Chicago," referring to the last Democratic convention where Smith walked out before Franklin Roosevelt's acceptance speech.

"Smith says America is being ruined," Woodrum said. "And what does he do? — take a walk. Can you imagine Jackson, Jefferson, Cleveland or Franklin D. Roosevelt taking a walk if the country was in danger?"

Investment Advisers' Dilemma

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The 1974 private pension act makes the future income of workers more secure but it has created a dilemma for some investment advisers, one that some of them feel can be resolved only by the courts.

The confusion centers on the interpretation of prudence, the use of which any fiduciary — that is, a handler of other people's money — must be able to demonstrate. But how do you prove prudence?

You'll find this requirement way back in the common law. For many years it meant simply that the fiduciary must manage other people's affairs in the same way prudent man would handle his own affairs.

It was the golden rule. Then society became institutionalized. The affairs of trusts and pension funds, which hopefully will go on "forever," must be managed differently than the affairs of individuals. The "prudent expert" became the measure.

But even the experts can't figure out how to interpret the introduction of another factor by the Employees Retirement Income Security Act. Prudence, it maintains, dictates that pension funds also must be adequately diversified.

What does adequate diversification mean? Fiduciaries say they are puzzled.

There is "confusion but not exasperation," said Jerome Valentine, president of the Financial Analysts Research Foundation and vice president of Texas Commerce Bank, Houston. While defending the high standards of ERISA, he still believes "everyone will operate in great doubt."

You may say at this point that you'll just let the experts worry about it. But it concerns you more vitally, because it's your money that's involved and it might be your pension funds that brings the clarifying court case.

As often applied, the prudent man rule means that a fiduciary may show prudence by defending the individual companies in a portfolio as having been selected wisely and responsibly.

Now that diversification is called for, that interpretation might change, but nobody knows in what way. "It's good that the law doesn't tie us down, but bad in that we don't know how the courts will interpret it," said Valentine.

Modern portfolio theory, as practiced by many trust departments, pension funds and other fiduciaries, maintains that risk is a factor of the overall character of a portfolio, not simply a characteristic of each company in the portfolio.

Those are the theories, but how would you as the individual whose money is involved, interpret this situation?

The fiduciary believes that pollution control companies have a good future because there's plenty of business out there and the government is requiring compliance. He decides to buy.

Strength For Today

NOT WORDS BUT ACTS
Gladstone, the great English prime minister, once said, "Don't let your religion spoil your morality."

Some people do. This is what the little girl had in mind when she prayed, "God, make all the bad people good and all the good people nice."

Nothing hurts religion so much as to have people of great religious pretensions constantly belie these pretensions by unkindness, ill-temper, and avarice.

But the people who above all allow their religion to spoil their morality are those who emphasize certain aspects of their faith and neglect other aspects. Generally they emphasize creeds, church attendance, devotion to religious customs, and neglect kindness, love, tolerance, understanding, and justice. Worst of all, they consider themselves blameless because they hold fast to the letter of the law.

Our Lord gave his opinion of people of this sort when he said, "Not everyone that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who doeth the will of my Father, who is in heaven."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined moderately today, giving way to profit-taking pressures. Trading remained very active. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 2.60 at 958.91, losers outstripped gainers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that the market had begun to falter a bit late Monday, when the Dow pulled back from a mid-day reading of plus-11 to finish with a 7.56 gain.

They said the decline stemmed not so much from any particular news development as from a natural tendency toward profit taking after a 109-point runup in the Dow from the start of the year through Monday's close.

Among issues which posted strong gains in the early-1976 rally, RCA was off 3/4 at 25; Georgia-Pacific dropped 2 1/2 to 48 1/4, and Honeywell slipped 1/2 to 47 1/4.

Bausch & Lomb bucked the downward current, rising 1 1/2 to 33. The company reported a 54 per cent gain in earnings for last year, and said it was optimistic that it could post a further increase in 1976.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks lost .28 to 52.56 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index slipped .10 to 94.75.

Westates Petroleum, the Amex volume leader, was unchanged at 10 1/4.

Oppose Cut In Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spokesmen for the nation's cities say cutbacks in essential services such as police and fire protection and trash collection are imminent unless Congress increases President Ford's proposed urban assistance budget by at least $8 billion.

John Gunther, executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, warned Monday that "clearly, we are going to have to cut services or increase taxes" if Ford's proposals stand.

Gunther said the property tax on which most municipalities rely for the bulk of their revenues already is at its limit, so "the chances of saving these services are not good."

Cities already have cut back spending on such things as museums and libraries, and future cuts would have to come from spending on services which have been considered essential, such as police, fire and sanitation.

Meanwhile, 16 representatives of the National Association of Counties met with Ford and warned that counties cannot handle any additional social services because inflation and unemployment have placed them in "an explosive fiscal" situation.

Both the mayor's conference and the National League of Cities supported in principle Ford's plan to convert 59 federal spending programs into four broadly drawn programs for distributing federal money to the states for spending on health, education, social services and nutrition.

The conclusions were contained in a joint report by the two organizations and presented at a news conference by Gunther and Alan Beals, executive vice president of the League of Cities.

Sunglasses Work 3 Ways

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sunglasses work on three different principles, says a manufacturer. Some lenses absorb or soak up light. Others use the polarization principle, admitting light in one plane only. The third principle uses coating on lenses to reflect light. Some sunglasses combine two or more of these principles in a single lens.

PLO Threatens Step Up Pressure On Israel

Kilpatrick....

top two floors of the old building were lopped off, and if this were done and that were done, at a cost of maybe $30,000, perhaps a reprieve would be assured.

But the big guys had a bigger and better idea: If Milo would just go along with construction of a 52-bed regional hospital at Dover-Foxcroft, 13 miles away, everything would be solved. The little hospital in Milo could be abandoned. Fine medical care would be assured. It was all friendly, but there was an edge to it: If Milo didn't go along, Milo would lose its Medicare-Medicaid money.

The townspeople held town meetings. Repeatedly they rejected the friendly proposal. Instead, they plunged into renovation with their own hands. Volunteers turned out to paint the walls, sand the floors, make curtains. Last September, they staged a rummage sale, a bean supper and an eight-hour auction. The Fire Department pitched in. They raised $6,000 the old-fashioned way. And in November, spic-and-span, the bobtailed little hospital reopened.

Alas, the effort hasn't impressed the big guys behind the big desks. Medicare and Medicaid funds have been withheld. The Blue Cross-Blue Shield people say their contract lapsed while the hospital was closed for renovation. Pressure continues for the big regional institution at Dover-Foxcroft. The trouble with the stubborn people of Milo, it is said, is that they don't know what's good for them.

Well, maybe not. But here is a small town fighting for what its own townspeople, in their own town meeting, say they want to hold onto. That's a principle worth saving, if it takes a billion baked beans to do it.

GOP Director Resigns Post

RALEIGH (AP)—William A. Russo has resigned as executive director of the North Carolina Republican Party to accept what he termed "a new opportunity for professional advancement."

Russo said Monday he will announce the details of his new job later this week. He has been with the state Republican Party for the past 20 months. Prior to that he was with the National Republican Congressional Campaign Committee and U.S. Rep. James T. Brophy, R-N.C.

TV Set Blast Fatal To Child

RALEIGH (AP)—A 15-month-old child was killed and her five-year-old brother was seriously injured in a fire today which authorities said was caused by an exploding television set.

Firemen said Tonka Dunn was suffocated in the fire and Antonio Dunn was hospitalized after suffering burns and smoke inhalation.

Neighbors said the fire broke out while the children's mother, Vernell Dunn, had left momentarily to go to a nearby store.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

(AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization threatened to intensify its armed struggle against Israel following an American veto of a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for an independent state in Palestine for the Palestinians and Israeli withdrawal from all territory it occupied in the 1967 Six-Day War.

The 15-nation council ended a two-week debate on the Arab-Israeli dispute Monday night with a 9 to 1 vote in favor of the resolution. But the lone negative vote was cast by the United States, as expected, and constituted a veto.

Britain, Sweden and Italy abstained, while China and Libya did not participate in the voting on the ground that the resolution was not hard enough on Israel.

But Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim warned the council that it would soon face "new headlines which, in the absence of progress toward a settlement, can only bring on a new situation of crisis." He was referring to the expiration on May 31 of the authority for the U.N. buffer force between the Syrian and Israeli armies on the Golan Heights. Syria's price last November for extension of the mandate for the force was the council debate and the PLO's participation.

The PLO claimed a political victory on the basis of the support voiced for its cause during the two-week debate. "We shall go back confident, as we have always been, that the Arab masses will further increase their moral and material support to our armed struggle," said Farouk Khadoudi, guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat's chief political aide.

Another PLO spokesman, Basil Aql, told a reporter the organization would now consult friendly countries on the next step to take while intensifying its armed struggle.

The American veto was the 143rd in U.N. history and the 13th by the United States. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan told the council it was cast because the proposed resolution would have altered the framework of Arab-Israeli negotiations "in ways that would have been seriously harmful to the future of the peacemaking process."

The United States — and Israel — opposed the resolution because it would have altered the guidelines for a settlement laid down by council resolutions.

Hookway said the time may be coming when people will not know how to use a book. "The pattern and use of reading is changing," he said. "Books nowadays are packed with illustrations. You see adults reading books of picture strips which 20 years ago were printed only for children. Imagine a situation where the act of opening a book, finding what you want in it and reading it becomes unimaginable."

"Librarians and architects planning libraries that will stand into the next century have got to think of these things. Already, to retrieve some data, one has to consult a computer and command an image on a screen. Does anyone know where we shall be in 30 years?"

Hookway announced himself an enthusiast for books — "I am still convinced the book has a future," he said. "There is nothing like a book. You can put it in your pocket, read it, browse about in it. You can't do that with microfilm."

The British Library still has no building of its own. Apart from the British Museum its books are scattered all over London.

Russo said Monday he will announce the details of his new job later this week. He has been with the state Republican Party for the past 20 months. Prior to that he was with the National Republican Congressional Campaign Committee and U.S. Rep. James T. Brophy, R-N.C.

tion was not hard enough on Israel. Voting for the resolution were France, Japan, the Soviet Union and the six sponsors: Guyana, Pakistan, Panama, Romania, Tanzania and Benin (Dahomey).

Immediately after the vote, the United States and several other countries issued statements in an attempt to dispel any idea that a new Middle East crisis was imminent. They pledged continuing efforts to achieve an Arab-Israeli settlement.

Appy Defeats Furman, 68-64

By The Associated Press

After Furman's three-time Southern Conference basketball champions fell into the basement last Saturday night in an 80-68 defeat at the hands of William and Mary's Indians, Paladins Coach Joe Williams observed that "we're hurting."

But Williams wasn't hurting then nearly as badly as he was today after the Paladins dropped even deeper into the cellar in a 68-64 defeat Monday night by Appalachian State's Mountaineers on Furman's home court.

Not only was it the first time Appalachian ever had beaten Furman, it was the first time the Mountaineers had won a conference game on the road.

The victory boosted Appalachian to 4-3 in the league and sole possession of fourth place, while Furman fell to 1-6. The Mountaineers are 6-9 overall, the Paladins 4-11.

In Monday night's only other action involving a conference team, The Citadel's Bulldogs fell to 6-12 against all opposition in a 101-85 shellacking at home by Tulane.

A pair of nonleague games are scheduled tonight. Davidson's Wildcats, 4-12, go to Duke of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Carter Is Top Player

RESTON, Va. (AP)—Ron Carter, Virginia Military Institute's "swing man," today was named Southern Conference basketball player of the week.

In two victories last week over conference opponents, 84-78 over William and Mary and 74-60 over East Carolina, Carter scored 49 points. He hit 23 of 43 shots from the floor, 53.4 per cent, and had 18 rebounds, four assists and four steals.

The 6-foot-3 sophomore from Pittsburgh joins two VMI teammates, John Krovic and Dave Montgomery, who previously had been honored.

Carter now ranks third in the conference in scoring with a 17.7-point average and seventh in rebounds with 6.1 per game.

"Carter is an outstanding player and potentially the best ever to play at VMI," said Keydet Coach Bill Blair. Carter also drew praise from the two opposing coaches, George Balanis of William and Mary and Dave Patton of East Carolina.

East Carolina University's Pirates go back on the road for two more games this week, and Coach Dave Patton is almost afraid to try and guess what might happen.

The up-and-down Pirates have been more of a yo-yo team than a basketball team this season, and the second-year coach never knows what to expect from his group.

"We do things like we are supposed to do one game, then we feel like we don't have to do them again the rest of the way," Patton moaned.

This week, starting tonight, he had two games. Tonight, the Pirates are in Jersey City, N.J., to face the Monarchs of St. Peter's, a team whose past glories include an NIT title, and a team which is going through a revival these days.

"They have a very good team," Patton said. "They beat George Washington earlier this year. And George Washington played Maryland to 10 and took Wake Forest right down to the buzzer."

According to Patton, St. Peter's has several outstanding players. "They are led by 6-6 Bob Fazio, who is a real tiger off the boards and around the hoop. They have another strong rebounder in Ken Solomon, 6-9, 230. Their second leading scorer is Ken Slappy, and they have a real good point guard in Steve Richardson."

Slappy, according to Patton, is no kin to Richmond's Larry Slappy.

"This is a very tough week, but then, we make every week a tough one," the coach added.

Last week, following the Pirates' 85-75 victory over the University of Richmond, Patton felt that the Bucs might have turned the corner. "But I'm going to wait and see what happens before I really feel that we've arrived," the coach said after that win.

Saturday night, after VMI finished taking a 74-60 win over the Pirates, Patton's frustrations had returned.

"We are very close to not getting into the top four (in the conference final standings). So we are going to have to win, and we are going to have to get some help. Our chances of winning the title are about shot. I like to win the title; I always do, but the real goal is to get that top four position to get a home court advantage for the first round of the tournament."

Last night, Appalachian State downed Furman and moved past the Pirates, taking over sole possession of fourth, with the Bucs now fifth.

Patton also added that the home court advantage wasn't as great as it used to be. "The ACC home teams are really feeling the pressure this year, and I think the same thing is carrying over to the Southern."

The coach noted that the Bucs are still making the same mistakes they made the first of the season. "We are making them over and over again. It's no sin to make a mistake, but it is when it's the same one. No one is beating us, we are beating ourselves. There is a complete lack of mental concentration. I think we got a pretty good physical effort on Saturday, but the mental work was just not there. We couldn't get motivated."

He added that he felt that the poor start and the difficult opening schedule of the Pirates is will the prime culprit. "We just never got our confidence."

"We haven't played consistently bad all year, so I know that we can do it if we ever want to. We have played very well. The Richmond game is a prime example. Why they don't play every night, I just don't know."

This week, the coach is trying something else, going the psychological route. "We've got someone coming in to talk with on about self-image. I don't know if it will do any good, but I hope it will have an effect."

East Carolina is now 7-10 overall, and cannot have a mark equal to last year's record, where only nine games were lost. They are 5-5 in conference play.

Earl Garner leads the team in scoring with a 13.4 mark, while Reggie Lee is 12.5 and Larry Hunt is at 10.2.

Hunt leads the rebounding with a 9.8 average.

Following tonight's game with St. Peter's, the Bucs travel to Davidson to meet the Wildcats in a Southern Conference game on Saturday.

New Bern Downs Rose

NEW BERN—The New Bern Lady Bears handed the fledgling Rose High School girls' basketball team their second straight lopsided defeat last night, 70-16.

The Rampant lassies lost their opener Saturday night to Northeastern, 59-18. This is the first year Rose has had a girls' basketball team.

New Bern jumped off to an 18-6 lead in the game, and never was in trouble. They outhit Rose, 20-3, in the second period, building up a 38-9 halftime advantage.

The Lady Bears continued to pull away in the third, running the lead out to 50-10. They finished Rose off with a 20-6 final period advantage.

Daisy Morris led New Bern with 24 points, while Ethel Simmons had 18, Marnie Jones had 14 and Marsha Simmons had 10. Karen Jeffreys led Rose with six.

The Rampant girls host Kingston on Thursday.

Maryland Tumbles To Seventh; Heels Fourth

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Indiana continues its domination of The Associated Press Top 20, receiving all but one of the first-place ballots from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcast-casters.

In the shuffle behind the Hoosiers, Marquette, Nevada-Las Vegas and North Carolina moved up one spot each to the Nos. 2, 3 and 4 positions as Maryland, second a week ago, lost to Clemson and North Carolina last week and dropped to seventh.

Also taking a nosedive following losses were UCLA, from sixth to 12th; St. John's, from ninth to 14th, and Wake Forest, from 14th all the way out of the Top 20.

Indiana boosted its record to 16-0 by beating Purdue and Minnesota last week, then notched victory No. 17 Monday night — an 88-73 decision over Iowa. The Hoosiers held a solid lead over Marquette, 119 points to 970.

National Rallies For 23-20 Win In Pro Bowl

By KEVIN McKEAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "It's just go down to the fire hydrant and turn left," laughed Mike Boryla as he described the home recipe pass play that sparked the National Football Conference's 23-20 victory over the American Conference in the Pro Bowl.

Boryla brought the play, known to the huddle only as the "Mike Special," south from Philadelphia where he was a sometime starter for the Eagles.

The "Mike Special" and the "Hart Special," also named for its creator, NFC quarterback Jim Hart of the St. Louis Cardinals, produced the two touchdowns that won the nationally televised game Monday night.

It was the second year in a row that a quarterback who wasn't even supposed to be in the Pro Bowl led the NFC to victory.

Last year it was James Harris of the Los Angeles Rams who entered the game in the final quarter to toss a pair of touchdown passes in a span of 1:24 for a 17-10 triumph.

But this year Harris was suffering from a sore arm.

So were Archie Manning of New Orleans and Steve Bartkowski of Atlanta. Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton — the first choice of conference officials — was scratched for injuries, and Roger Staubach of Dallas was battered out of commission by the Super Bowl.

That left only Boryla to come in during the fourth quarter and throw a pair of touchdown passes in a period that consumed only 2:01 on the clock for the NFC edge.

The substitute was narrowly outvoted for Most Valuable Player in the game over punt return specialist Billy Johnson.

"I hadn't thrown the football for three weeks until practice Tuesday," Boryla said. "I usually like to start throwing three weeks early, so I wasn't in real good shape."

But the shape looked fine as he lofted a 14-yard scoring strike to Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals with 3:10 remaining. That put the underdog NFC within striking distance at 20-16. On the next drive Metcalf's teammate, Mel Gray, elbowed under a Boryla toss in a crowded end zone for the game's final score with just 1:09 left to play.

Boryla describes his special as "kind of a razzle dazzle play" in which two faked hand-offs lure the linebackers up close while Metcalf sneaks into the secondary for a pass.

The "Hart Special" saw Gray's end zone area cleared by a crossing pattern between the split and tight ends.

"It completed the season," was the way Boryla summed up a game in which four Pro Bowl records were shattered.

Johnson broke the marks for longest punt returns and most yards gained in a game, both of which were held since 1971 by Mel Renfro of Dallas.

The 5-foot-9, 170-pound Houston Oilers set up the game's first score as he bobbled a John James punt early in the second quarter, picked it up and raced back the left sideline for a 55-yard gain. Jan Stenerud booted a 20-yard field goal six plays later.

In the fourth quarter, Johnson evaded five would-be tacklers and rambled 90 yards to the end zone to give the AFC a 20-9 lead that seemed insurmountable. That broke Renfro's record of 82 yards.

Johnson said later he owed his success to "the guys on the special team for throwing super blocks and to the Man upstairs — to the Lord."

Also shattered was a 57-yard record for longest pass play, set on a throw from Harris to Gray last year.

Dan Pastorini of Houston broke that mark when he found teammate Ken Burrough for a 64-yard touchdown pass with only 12 seconds left in the half.

Lawrence McCutcheon of Los Angeles snapped the record for the longest run from scrimmage when he dodged 43 yards from his own 29 in the third quarter and fumbled into the arms of Harold Jackson, also of the Rams. The previous record was 30 yards, held since the 1975 Pro Bowl by O.J. Simpson.

Simpson was x-rayed following the game for a hand injured when he tried to protect his chin strap from a souvenir-hungry fan after the game. Doctors gave the Buffalo running back a clean bill of health.

Another record of sorts was set when Ray Guy became the first punter to bounce a kick off the Superdome instant replay screens — 90 feet above the artificial turf.

Guy says he aimed for the 20-by-40 foot color screens "just to see if I could do it."

The NFC seemed unable to move throughout the opening half as an AFC defense stifled the offense led by Hart of St. Louis.

Kansas City's Stenerud followed his opening field goal with a 35-yarder mid-way through the second quarter. The second kick was set up by Pastonini's 35-yard toss to Cliff Branch of Oakland.

The NFC threatened on the next series as Hart hit Detroit's Charlie Sanders for a gain of 38 yards to the AFC 43. But Pittsburgh's Jack Lambert picked off Hart's next toss on the 23 and Pastorini and Burrough connected for their long score on the following play.

Jim Bakken of St. Louis put the NFC on the scoreboard with a 42-yard field goal at 6:59 into the third period.

Then a Ken Anderson passing attack stalled for the AFC, and Hart's squad took over the ball on their own 20 after a Ray Guy punt sailed into the end zone.

Minnesota's Chuck Foreman broke loose for 26 yards on the second play from scrimmage and then snagged a Hart pass for another first down. Four plays later Hart found Foreman in the end zone from four yards out. The extra point was blocked but the score was narrowed to 13-9 with 10 seconds left in the third quarter.

Johnson's record-setting run-back seemed to put the game out of the NFC's reach early in the final period, but Boryla came in to engineer a 64-yard scoring drive.

Spanarkel Leads ACC

By The Associated Press
Freshman Jim Spanarkel of Duke, who scored 47 points in three games last week, has been chosen as the rookie of the week in Atlantic Coast Conference basketball.

It's the second time this season that the 6-foot-5 forward has won the honor.

He had 16 points in each of the victories over Virginia Tech and Wake Forest, and 15 in the 106-101 loss to North Carolina State.

He also had 12 rebounds, eight assists and eight steals in the three games.

The resident of Jersey City, N.J., is Duke's No. 3 scorer, averaging 14.1 points in 15 games.

He edged N.C. State's sophomore guard Al Green, who scored 18 points in the victory over Duke.

Earlier, forward Wally Walker of Virginia, a senior, was chosen as the ACC's player of the week. He scored 68 points in victories over Pitt, Delaware and Clemson.

The selections are by a committee of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

ACC teams were idle Monday night. Only Duke will play tonight, home to Davidson of the Southern Conference.

Maryland says its center, Larry Gibson, will miss Wednesday night's home game against N.C. State because he aggravated an old knee injury in Sunday's 95-93 loss to North Carolina. A decision will be made later in the week on whether he will play Saturday at Notre Dame.

Fears Many To Play Out Option

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY (AP) — An attorney for major league baseball club owners says a large number of players can be expected to play out their options if the courts uphold a federal arbitrator's ruling which owners feel threatens the game's reserve clause.

The reserve clause allows club owners to unilaterally renew a player's contract each year.

Louis L. Hoynes, an attorney for the owners, told U.S. District Court Judge John W. Oliver at Monday's hearing that many players have told their clubs they intend to play out their options.

On the basis of the arbitrator's ruling, if allowed to stand, presumably they could become free agents thereafter, free to sign with other clubs.

Attorneys for the Major League Baseball Players Association argued there was no way of knowing what the players would do, since contracts are not renewed until March 1-10.

The 24 club owners are challenging federal arbitrator Peter Seitz, who last month ruled pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally free agents after they played out their options.

Warren Giles, who served as president of the National League for 18 years before retiring in 1970, told the court the reserve system is so essential to the survival of the game that any move to change it would be disastrous.

The executive director of the association, Marvin Miller, testified Monday that he asked for a side letter from owners during 1973 contract negotiations, promising they would not make unilateral changes in the reserve system.

He said he requested the letter to use as protection "in a possible lawsuit relating to the reserve rule."

Miller said he requested, and obtained, the side letter from owners because, "I have dealt with owners 10 years and have learned to anticipate problems."

Richard Moss, general counsel for the association, said all testimony in the hearing here is irrelevant. He said the only questions were whether Seitz had authority to hear grievances and, if so, did he exceed his authority in declaring Messersmith and McNally free agents.

Three Named To Hall Of Fame

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Jim Taylor, Ray Flaherty and the late Len Ford, integral parts of gridiron dynasties in four different decades, have been elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Flaherty coached the Washington Redskins through their most successful era in the late 1930s and early 1940s. Ford, a bruising 250-pounder who was converted from offensive to defensive end, helped the Cleveland Browns to divisional titles seven times in eight seasons in the 1950s.

The 40-year-old Taylor is the most familiar name to the current generation of pro football fans. The powerful fullback played a key role in transforming the Green Bay Packers from National Football League doormats to champions in the 1960s.

He retired as the No. 2 rusher and touchdown-scorer in National Football League history with 8,597 yards and 83 touchdowns and holds the record of five consecutive 1,000-yard ground-gaining seasons.

Taylor, Flaherty and Ford will be inducted into the Hall of Fame here July 24.

"Being named to the Hall of Fame is the ultimate goal of every professional football player," Taylor said in New Orleans, where he does public relations work for a ship-building firm. "But being named at the age of 40 means I'm young enough so that I, my family and friends can really appreciate the honor and enjoy it for a number of years."

Ford, who died of a heart attack in 1972 at the age of 46, launched his pro career in 1948 as a pass-catching end with the Los Angeles Dons of the old All-America Conference. When the AAC and NFL merged in 1950, he joined the Browns and became an all-pro almost every season until his retirement in 1957.

Marriott Has Proven His Worth On The Mat

Tom Marriott established himself at the top of the Southern Conference during his very first year at East Carolina and has not relinquished that lofty position since then. And, judging from the way he has destroyed competition during his three-year career on the Pirate wrestling team, it's unlikely that anyone will take that title away from him this year either.

Marriott walked away with the Southern Conference title in the 150 weight class during his freshman year and for the past two seasons has taken the championship in the 142 weight class. Add eight tournament championships, a 103-18 overall record, along with three trips to the NCAA Tournament and you have quite an impressive list of wrestling accomplishments.

But then big things were expected from Marriott when he graduated from Herkimer High School in Herkimer, N.Y. During his senior year, he won 25 consecutive matches before losing in the finals of the New York State High School Championships.

"Yes, I was really quite surprised that I came down here and did so well during my first year," said Marriott, "but I've always been a confident wrestler. Confidence has most definitely been a key factor to my success throughout my wrestling career."

Despite Marriott's brilliant heroics for the past three years, he has been somewhat slowed so far this season because of a nagging ankle injury and a bronchial infection. He missed the Neptune Invitational because of the ankle injury, managed to win his third straight Monarch Open title, but then lost in the second round of the N.C. Invitational. And he seemed to be sliding even farther downhill when he was beaten by Oregon State's Dick Knorr and then missed the rest of the quad meet because of the bronchial infection.

"I guess it has been somewhat of a slow start for me as compared to previous years," said Marriott, "but I think in the long run this will benefit me. One problem I have had for the past two years, was peaking too early. By the end of the year I wasn't wrestling nearly as well as I had been at the beginning of the year."

Marriott has bounced back to win three straight matches against West Chester and conference opponents William and Mary and Richmond and is aiming for a fourth consecutive Southern Conference title and trip to the nationals. But first, Marriott wants to settle a little grudge match against Dave Juergens of North Carolina, in Thursday night's battle against the Tar Heels. Juergens knocked Marriott out of the N.C. Invitational in the second round, thus denying Marriott a fourth straight championship title in the tournament.

"I was pretty disappointed that I didn't win the tournament for four straight years," said Marriott, "but I know I can beat him. Our matches against Carolina and N.C. State are always pretty big, especially since their wrestling programs have come such a long way during the past three years." Tom Marriott may be a little behind schedule as compared to previous years, but there's no doubt in his mind that he will be right there at the top of the 142 weight class when the Southern Conference Championships roll around.

Correction

The record of Farmville Central's Horace Williams, given in the list of area wrestling leaders in Sunday's Daily Reflector, was in error.

Williams, who wrestles at the 121-pound level, was listed as having a 10-1 record. His actual record is 11-0 for the season.

Pistons Fire Coach Scott

DETROIT (AP) — Ray Scott, the only Detroit Pistons' coach ever to compile a winning record, was fired Monday because of what management described as a communications breakdown.

The National Basketball Association team's general manager, Oscar Feldman, said that breakdown was the reason Scott was fired as coach, not the team's injury-riddled 17-25 season.

Assistant coach Herb Brown, who joined the Pistons staff last summer, will coach the team for at least the rest of this season.

Scott, who was named NBA Coach of the Year in 1974, was notified of his release by Feldman and the major owners during a Piston practice session at a suburban Detroit high school.

Feldman would not specify the area of the breakdown with Scott. "It was between Ray and the entire organization — management, staff and players ... I don't want to go into specifics. I don't think it would be fair to Ray or the team," Feldman said late Monday.

The other two club owners are Bill Davidson and Herb Tyner.

Feldman said the remaining portions of Scott's contract would be honored. He was in the second year of a three-year pact.

Scott's relationships with the players, once considered a big part of his success, had deteriorated in the last two seasons.

Last year he had disagreements with Don Adams and Dave Bing. Adams later was cut from the team and Bing was traded at the end of the season.

Rumors surfaced of differences with other players, particularly center Bob Lanier. And it was reported that some of the Pistons' owners were ready to fire Scott at the end of last season.

Feldman indicated Scott's firing Monday was not due to the dissatisfaction of the players, specifically Lanier.

"Bob Lanier had nothing to do with the dismissal of Ray Scott. We had no discussions with Bob at all," Feldman said.

Feldman insisted the team's record this season was not the reason for Scott's firing.

"They (the players) showed marvelous spirit out there in light of the many injuries we've had. I think maybe tonight was the first time in weeks we've had 12 players in uniform for a practice."

The Pistons got off to a strong start this season before a string of injuries hit the team. They won 11 of their first 18 contests before Keith Porter and John Mengelt suffered serious knee injuries at Golden State on Dec. 9.

Since then, it has been downhill.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The University of New Hampshire was named Monday to replace the University of Virginia in the 1977 Old Dominion Basketball Classic.

Virginia had asked to be released from the field to take part in a proposed state tournament in Richmond with Virginia Tech, Richmond and Virginia Commonwealth.

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Sounders of the North American Soccer League have announced the signing of veteran midfielder Hank Liotart for the 1976 season.

Liotart is the fifth Sounder signed. The naturalized American was a member of the U.S. National Team last year.

Barry Worried About Scoring

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rick Barry is upset because he's on another scoring spree, which is about the only thing troubling the runaway Golden State Warriors.

"I'm concerned. I shouldn't have to score that much," Barry said after collecting 28 points Tuesday night to help the National Basketball Association's defending champions down Milwaukee 115-104 and open an 11½ game lead in the Pacific Division.

The game was the only one scheduled.

Phil Smith added 25 points and rookie sensation Gus Williams scored 18 of his 20 in the second half for the Warriors, who built a 19-point third-quarter lead and blunted a Bucks' rally by forcing six turnovers in the final period.

"I took 25 shots. That's indicative that we haven't been playing well as a team," said Barry, averaging 21.5 points and 31.5 in the Warriors' last six games.

"I'm shooting 10 or 11 times less per game than a year ago, and that's by design," the brilliant veteran said. "When we play good, I don't have to get involved in the shooting. I don't think I took one shot in the fourth quarter when we put them away."

Will Decide Quinlan Plea

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Supreme Court will decide an appeal by the parents of Karen Anne Quinlan, who want a life-sustaining respirator removed from their 21-year-old daughter so she can "die with dignity" after nine months in a coma.

"The state should not disturb the parents' desires," James Crowley, an attorney for the family, told the state's highest court Monday during 3½ hours of legal argument.

Attorneys for the state and Miss Quinlan's doctors urged the judges to uphold a lower court ruling keeping her alive on grounds that not to do so would constitute murder.

"I hope the justices grant our request," said Miss Quinlan's mother, who watched the proceedings with her husband, Joseph, from the back row of the Supreme Court chamber.

The seven-member court usually takes several weeks before deciding cases. If it grants the request, Miss Quinlan's father will be appointed guardian and be allowed to hire doctors who will remove her from the respirator.

The court also has been asked to declare that anyone who orders or takes part in the procedure would be immune from malpractice suits or homicide charges.

Miss Quinlan has been in a coma since last April 15 after consuming a combination of liquor and tranquilizers. Her parents want to remove what they call "futile life sustaining supports" because doctors say she has no chance of regaining consciousness.

Unaware About Opposition 'Family Time'

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norman Lear didn't buy it when TV Guide magazine reported last December that a nationwide survey it had commissioned found a whopping 82 percent of the adult population in favor of television's controversial "family viewing" policy.

That's the plan that restricts TV programming between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. — 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Central Time Zone — to material that is "inoffensive to a general family audience." The idea is to reduce the amount of sex and violence on the air.

The magazine's findings must have been a blow to the Writers Guild, Directors Guild and Screen Actors Guild, which have filed suit against the policy on grounds it is censorship and violates the First Amendment.

ment. They certainly looked to be in a small minority.

Lear, who brought "All in the Family" to American television and currently supervises production of six other TV comedies as well (including "Maude" and "Good Times"), wasn't convinced. He hired a former MIT and UCLA professor who specializes in testing the validity of other people's surveys to analyze the TV Guide data, which the magazine had sent him as a courtesy.

"The reason I did this was that I looked at the article and laughed at the basic foolishness on which the research was based," Lear was saying the other day after he'd received his man's report.

The conclusion of Lee Christie: "The resounding 'yes' is rather hollow!"

What really got Lear was the finding that 58 per cent of the 1,024 persons interviewed had never heard of Family Viewing Time. It was only after the policy was defined for them that the subjects were asked if they favored or opposed it. Then the pro vote was 82 per cent.

"That's like the other side of the 'Do you still beat your wife?' question," said Lear. "What kind of an individual who doesn't know that much about it is going to say they don't like something called Family Viewing Time?"

"They are the same people who would say that they don't like America, they don't like Mom and they don't like apple pie!"

And true enough, Christie's breakdown does show that about 59 per cent of the people who said they approved of Family Viewing Time had admitted not knowing what it was initially. Only 7 per cent of the interview subjects had said they were very familiar with it. Christie found further evidence of what he said was ignorance and confusion about the policy's impact. For although 82 per cent said they favored the concept as it was defined for them, 69 per cent said they would rather see each family decide for itself what to watch rather than allow someone else to impose stricter control on television content — precisely what Family Viewing Time represents.

'No Contest' To Plot Charges

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — A New Bern man was expected to be sentenced today on charges that he threatened to kill President Ford last October.

Robert Earl Rolison, 31, pleaded no contest Monday in U.S. Eastern District Court. Judge John D. Larkins Jr., who ordered a mental examination of Rolison last November, accepted a nolo contendere plea after reviewing a psychiatric report which indicated Rolison was competent to stand trial.

Rolison was accused of making the threat in a letter mailed last Oct. 14.

EDEN, N.C. (AP) — The newly formed Rockingham County chapter of the Christian Action League is leading a protest against the possible location of a Miller brewery near their North Carolina-Virginia border textile town of 16,000.

A 1,600-acre farm in the county is among sites in several states that the Miller Brewing Co. is considering. The company says the plant will eventually employ 1,000.

The league, headed by clergymen, opposes a brewery as having "a negative impact on the life of our community, both morally and environmentally."

The Rockingham chapter of the league was formed at a meeting Jan. 18. It was the outgrowth of an earlier meeting of 18 ministers from Eden and Rockingham County. The ministers told advocates of the plant to ask themselves:

"How can a manufacturer of a product, beer, that has caused so much headache and suffering to our fellow men truly be a good neighbor?"

Win Jury Trial In Libel Action

CHICAGO (AP) — The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that "Tonight" show host Johnny Carson and his wife are entitled to a jury trial in their libel suit against a Chicago-based national newspaper. Carson and his present wife, Joanna Holland Carson, filed a $22-million libel suit in 1972 against the National Insider after it reported that Carson moved to the "Tonight" show to California to be closer to Miss Holland, the woman the newspaper said caused the break-up of Carson's former marriage.

The appeals panel said Monday that the story was a "highly defamatory and inflammatory diatribe" and that the Carsons were entitled to a jury trial, denied by a federal judge in 1973.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Carry through with anything started and don't be disagreeable as you can thus alienate others for a while and cause close contacts to feel you don't really appreciate them and they can't rely on you when needed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't make radical changes and study any new project further. Delay until you are more sure of yourself. Avoid confused person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your intuition is not good now so use only your best judgment. Make important payments. Reach better understanding with mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Understand partner's needs for a better rapport. Steer clear of one who has been unfriendly of late and so avoid trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't argue with fellow workers. Schedule work properly to accomplish the maximum. Be happy with mate in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You could regret it if you spend too much. A little gift would be helpful with mate who may be out of sorts. Enjoy inexpensive pleasures.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Please those who live with you and come to a better understanding. Study into new outlets that could bring future benefits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Clear up any problems, especially with associates, and get things rolling nicely again. Do important research.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Cut down on expenses and do something to add to present income to stay above water. A business expert can help.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make changes in personal matters that will improve your status. Then out later to socials that build up popularity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go over any plans you are working on and iron out any possible wrinkles. Get necessary work done. Relax in p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day to see friends though you're thinking of them, for you have much to do to better your lot in life.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Civic affairs are best handled tomorrow, but should be well planned today. Try not to argue with bigwigs. Pay bills.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a born trouble shooter and should have the education slanted along such lines and courses added in psychology and psychiatry. Give opportunity early to participate in sports and to join religious groups that help mould character. There can be a leader in this chart, provided proper ethics are taught early. Some musical talent here, also.

Don't let a bad break in a key suit throw you out of kilter. Instead, see if there is any distribution which will permit you to make the contract, and play the hand as if that lie of the cards exists. Hugh Weber of Tacoma, Wash., did just that in the Swiss Teams event at the recent Fall North American Championships in New Orleans, and emerged successful.

Once North discovered the spade fit, there was no stopping him. He launched into Blackwood, but settled for a small slam after learning that a king was missing. With five good trumps, West is to be congratulated for his restraint in not doubling.

Declarer won the club lead with the ace and ruffed

Genetic Counseling Course Scheduled

RALEIGH—A two-day genetic counseling course on hemoglobinopathies (abnormal hemoglobin) will be taught at East Carolina University in Greenville 9 a.m.-5 p.m. January 30-31, by Robert Fulton Murray, Jr., M.D., professor of pediatrics and medicine and chief of the Division of Medical Genetics at Howard University, Washington, D.C.

DR. R.F. MURRAY, JR.

The continuing education course, sponsored jointly by the Department of Human Resources and the School of Allied Health and Social Professions at East Carolina University, will be held in Belk Auditorium on ECU Campus.

Murray, outstanding teacher and author on medical genetics, will direct his remarks to nurses, social workers, health educators and other health professionals who work with sickle cell disease patients in Eastern North Carolina.

The two-years old Sickle Cell Program was funded by the 1973 Legislature to make an assessment of education, testing, and counseling for sickle

Sanford Denies Staying On Fla. Ballot For Funds

Board Says No To 17-Year-Olds

RALEIGH (AP) — The Board of Elections says 17-year-olds must become 18 on or before the March 23 presidential preference primary to vote in it.

The board reaffirmed Monday a decision it made on Dec. 10. In doing so, it disregarded an opinion by Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten that 17-year-olds could vote in the presidential primary if they are to become 18 by the general election in November.

The Dec. 10, 1975 ruling is endorsed by the State Board of Elections with the firm conviction that the Presidential Preference Primary, by clear statutory provision, is limited to participation by "the voters of this state," the board said in a statement.

In an opinion made public last week, Edmisten held that 17-year-olds who will become 18 by the general election have as much right to vote in the presidential primary as they do in the general primary, a right which is given them by state law.

However, the board indicated it felt that this law isolates two provisions of the state constitution. It asked Edmisten for a formal written opinion on its constitutionality.

The state elections director, Alex Brock, said Edmisten had not ruled on the constitutionality of the law, although he is reported to have said in an interview that he has "serious questions" about its constitutionality.

We have felt that there was a serious constitutional question in allowing persons to vote in an election before they become legally qualified," Brock said.

Traffic Jam By Job Applicants

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Traffic backed up for miles on busy California 101 as 35,000 eager job applicants converged on a new $50 million park to vie for 2,000, low-paying seasonal positions.

The job seekers, most of them in their late teens, included some who began camping out Sunday night in front of Marriott's 200-acre Great America park to get first crack at job applications Monday morning, said Bruce Burch, the park's public affairs manager.

Personnel officials said they expected about 12,500 applicants all week. Instead, they gave out all the applications they had — about 14,000 in the first few hours.

"We were totally overwhelmed," Burch said.

Some of those applicants, such as Mountain View high school coeds Tricia Gonzales, Lisa Kares and Susan Yeung, said they were looking for new "fun" jobs.

Phil Dein, an "over 50" employee at the Lockheed aircraft plant in nearby Sunnyvale, said he was a "jack of all trades" looking for work at the park because he felt insecure about his factory job.

The orderly crowd caused a major tie-up when many abandoned cars on the busy freeway and an offramp after traffic slowed to a crawl for four or five miles around the park, said Sgt. Bob Flores of the California Highway Patrol.

Finally, highway patrol officers in a helicopter circling the growing traffic jam used loudspeakers to advise the crowd that no more applications would be distributed and the tie-up slowly melted away, Flores said.

"They were very orderly," he said, "but for a while there it was a real mess."

About 440 applicants a day will be interviewed until all have been seen. They are competing for jobs including ride operators, laborers, guides and food stand operators that pay $2.20 an hour. The jobs will run from March 20 through October.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Terry Sanford, the first Democratic presidential contender to drop out of the race, Monday night denied that he is remaining on the Florida primary ballot so he can continue to get federal elections funds.

Florida Secretary of State Bruce Smathers said the former North Carolina governor had declined to sign a required non-candidacy affidavit to get off the ballot because Sanford's lawyer had advised him it would "jeopardize his opportunity to continue to receive federal funds."

"That's dumb," Sanford responded. "Smathers apparently does not understand the federal elections law."

Sanford, who withdrew from the presidential race last week, said he declined to sign the affidavit because it might interfere with the orderly windup of his campaign.

"I am entitled to an orderly wind-down of my campaign. I am entitled to remain a certified candidate until all of my bills are paid," he said.

The Duke University presidential candidate also said that he is not accepting any more contributions from supporters or the Federal Elections Commission.

He said some funds should remain after all campaign bills are paid and that the remaining funds will be reverted to the commission.

Sanford said he did not ask to be placed on the March 9 presidential primary ballot in Florida. That decision was made by the Florida Presidential Committee which decides who will be on the ballot, he said.

If a person wants his name removed, he has to submit an affidavit by Feb. 15 stating that he is not now a candidate for president and does not intend to become one.

He said that because he did not ask to be placed on the Florida ballot he sees no reason that he should sign an affidavit to be taken off. "They insist on putting the names on. I simply say that's not my problem," he said.

Signing such an affidavit would be an invitation to the elections commission to immediately conduct a final audit of his campaign, Sanford added.

Sanford has received about $244,000 in federal funds and is due more. But he repeated that he would not accept additional money.

In Tallahassee, Fla., Smathers said Monday that he had contacted the commission about "this loophole in the federal elections law."

"A candidate could get 400 people to give $250 each with a guarantee on a return when he qualifies for federal matching dollars," he said. "The candidate could run, receive matching money and then drop out with complete immunity."

Skirmish In Sahara Cited

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Algeria today accused a Moroccan army unit of attacking Algerian troops carrying medical supplies to refugees in the Sahara. Informal sources reported heavy fighting was believed under way.

The official Algerian news agency, Algerie Presse-Service, said the attack took place this morning in the Amgala region. The statement did not make clear if the skirmish was on Algerian or Spanish Sahara territory and maps of the region did not show Amgala.

The report of the clash was the first involving the armies of the two North African states in their confrontation over the Spanish Sahara. Morocco and Mauritania are to divide the area after the Spanish pullout scheduled for Feb. 28, but Algeria is backing a Sahara independence movement called Polisario.

A commentary by the Algerian news agency referred to "multiplying initiatives on the ground where one has reached a new stage in the escalation of the aggression against the Sahara people and the provocation against the Algerian revolution."

The report followed a Moroccan statement Sunday that one of its U.S.-made F5 fighters was shot down by a surface to air missile while on a mission supporting Mauritanian ground troops at the border between Mauritania and the Spanish Sahara. The Moroccans charged that Polisario would be incapable of using such a missile and that a "foreign power" had intervened in the region.

The missile incident coincided with Spanish news reports that both Cuban and North Vietnamese experts were assisting Polisario.

NCNB Chairman Denies Bank On 'Watch' List

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The North Carolina National Bank reportedly is on the "watch" list of the comptroller of the currency.

However, the chairman of the statewide bank, Luther H. Hodges Jr., said of the report in the Wall Street Journal, "We have been led to believe that we are not on any such list."

He also said he and other officials of the bank had been led to believe the comptroller's office did not have a list, "and if they did, we wouldn't be on it."

The president of the bank, Hugh L. McColl Jr., was quoted by the Journal as saying, the inclusion of NCNB on any such list was "completely inconsistent with our understanding of our position with that regulatory body." He said the bank had been examined in November and had not been advised of any problems.

HEW Fraud Costing Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional subcommittee says taxpayers are charged "many millions of dollars each year" because of fraud and abuses in Department of Health, Education and Welfare programs.

But no one knows the actual amount lost because of weak policing efforts, the panel said in a report issued Monday.

HEW, which operates on a $118-billion budget and has 129,000 full-time employees, is so complex, in fact, that for five months its officials could not even agree on how many programs it has, the report said.

"During this period," it said, "at least four different figures on the number of HEW programs were supplied to congressional committees, ranging from a low of 250 to as many as 320." The final figure HEW agreed on was 289, of which 72 were administered by other agencies.

At least one member of the House government operations subcommittee issuing the report wanted to estimate the fraud and abuse bill in the billions, it was learned, but Chairman L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., argued successfully that such a high figure could not be documented.

The final report said, "HEW officials were unable to provide the subcommittee with meaningful estimates of the extent of losses through fraud and abuse in the programs of the department, advising that no attempt had been made to evaluate the over-all extent of the problem."

"The available statistics left no doubt that fraud and program abuse are causing enormous losses. HEW's tiny investigative unit is handling cases involving total fraud allegations amounting to $20 million.

"Suspected fraud cases reported in the Social Security and public assistance programs alone have totalled more than 40,000 per year. Some states had heavy concentrations of fraud and abuse cases while others with similar operations reported very few, a circumstance which strongly suggests that a great deal of fraud and abuse is not being detected and reported."

The report was sharply critical of HEW's fraud detection and investigation efforts.

Exemption

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina's senators have won approval of an amendment exempting the state from a bill to allow the transfer of flue-cured tobacco allotments from one county to another in the same state.

The Senate passed the bill Monday and sent it to the House. The transfers could be made only if approved by growers in a state.

Sponsors say the bill is necessary to allow producers to take advantage of savings possible through mechanization. That is not possible now because half of all flue-cured allotments are less than two acres.

Purse-Snatching Reported Here

Police are continuing their investigation today into a purse snatching incident about 6:40 p.m. yesterday in the Planters National Bank parking lot near the intersection of Third and Washington Streets.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Betsy Mills Robinson of Riverview Estates reported that a man snatched her purse and ran as she walked through the lot early last night.

She told police the pocketbook contained about $6 in cash, Cannon said.
