

Public Works Confrontation Seen

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With support from a delegation of mayors, congressional Democrats who overrode President Ford's veto of a $45-billion spending bill are moving toward a new confrontation over a $6.1-billion public works measure that backers claim would create some 800,000 jobs.

Besides authorizing money for projects designed to create jobs, the public works bill before the House today would grant federal funds during times of high unemployment to state and local governments faced with the alternatives of firing employees or raising taxes.

The Ford administration opposes the measure and House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona described it as a prime target for a veto, if it is passed.

About 125 members of the U.S. Conference of Mayors conferred with the Democratic leadership before buttonholing House members in a drive for passage with enough votes to override a veto.

"There is no question in my mind that we are going to pass this legislation," Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts told the mayors. "But it is the overwhelming majority we need."

Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson said the delegation would "make sure we talk to the President this afternoon in an appropriate fashion, giving due respect to the office and making sure we get that bill signed."

The measure was up for floor action a day after the Democratic-controlled Congress overrode Ford's veto of a bill funding politically popular health, welfare and job programs at a level almost $1 billion above the President's budget.

Ford lost his first spending battle of the election-year session Wednesday when the Senate voted 70 to 24 to override the veto. The margin was seven more than the two-thirds vote needed to override. The House voted Tuesday to override, 310 to 113.

Ford, in vetoing the measure, said it would "contribute to excessive deficits and needless inflationary pressures." He said the measure would add 8,000 people to the federal payroll, saying, "I find it difficult to believe the majority of the American people favor increasing the number of employees on the federal payroll."

But Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., GOP manager of the bill, declared that the measure was only 2.6 per cent over Ford's budget, "which was woefully inadequate to begin with."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine., said the bill did not exceed Congress' own budget, although it was over Ford's budget. He said the legislators, in adopting their own budget, decided more funds should go into programs of the Health, Education and Welfare Department and Labor Department and less into programs such as the military.

Brooke said if Congress had not overridden the veto there would not have been adequate personnel to enforce industrial health and safety laws, important medical research programs would have been impeded and funds for training of mental health professionals would have been cut along with budgets for maternal and child health programs.

The biggest increase in the bill was a raise in Ford's proposed spending for research programs of the National Institutes of Health, with cancer and heart, lung and stroke research getting the largest hikes.

Democratic leaders originated the public works bill and gave it top priority.

Planning Bodies Get Flood Hazard Report

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Flood Hazard Information report, prepared by the Wilmington District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at the request of the city, was presented last night during the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Meeting.

The report, presented by Col. Homer Johnstone and Bernard Ingram, covers the area locally that is subject to flooding from the Tar River and its tributaries, Hardee Creek, Green Mill Run, and Parkers Creek.

The tributaries to Hardee Creek, namely Bells Branch and Meetinghouse Branch, and the tributaries to Green Mill Run, its north Fork, Fornes Run and Reedy Branch are also included.

Johnstone, noting that the city's request for the study was channeled through the N.C. Office of Water and Air Resources, stressed the importance of the flood planning effort on the part of the city and pointed out that flood plain management activities are part of a broad program aimed at preventing losses from floods.

The spokesman said that it is the purpose of the Corps to present factual data based on its studies and to promote the wise use of property along the flood plain. What degree of risk the city accepts in regard to the flood data is entirely up to the city, he added.

The study, in addition to providing a history of past flooding, offers predictions of future flooding on the area streams and presents data through maps and profiles.

The report points out that the Tar River study includes the "entire reach within Greenville's extraterritorial jurisdiction, beginning approximately one-tenth of a mile downstream from the confluence of Hardee Creek, and extending upstream 7.4 miles to the confluence of an unnamed tributary about 2.3 miles upstream of the U.S. 13 bridge . . ."

The study indicates that "The most significant flood plain development is north of the river where industrial, commercial, and residential development has occurred in the Tar River-Parkers Creek complex. Considerable development is also located in the Green Mill Run flood plain, particularly between Tenth Street and Memorial Drive."

According to the report, flood forecasting on streams covered in the Corps study is

"difficult because of the small drainage areas and steep slopes which produce floods within a few hours after heavy rainfall."

Johnstone reported that the area could experience floods as bad or worse than those that occurred in the past here and he discussed the possibility of future floods designated as 100-year-frequency floods and 500-year-frequency floods.

He explained that the 100-year-frequency flood is one that could occur once in 100 years on the average while the 500-year flood is one that could be expected to occur on the average of once every 500 years. These floods could occur at any time, he stressed.

The report contains a series of drawings which indicate areas that would be flooded by the 100-year and 500-year floods. In a 100-year flood, some 1,250 structures and 5,490 acres would be expected to flood while in a 500-year situation, 1,814 structures would flood in an affected area of 7,474 acres, according to the report.

Floodways for local streams are indicated in the report. It was explained that the floodways were based on criteria established by the N.C. Floodway Regulation Law which prohibits increases of more than one foot in the stage of the 100-year-frequency flood.

Concerning construction in the flood plain, the Corps study relates, "Stream studies show that the channel and certain portions of the flood plain convey most of the floodflow, while the remaining portion of the flood plain primarily provides storage for floodwaters. Furthermore, it is found that Electricity Rates Up, Up And Away!

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

The old riddle, "What goes up and never comes down?" is no longer applied to age. A lot of Greenville citizens believe that utility rates could also be an answer for the riddle.

In a recent man on the street interview with citizens and telephone interviews with businesses and institutions the general opinion of the utility rates was that they are too high.

Personal Opinions

"Outrageous, unbelievably outrageous is the best way to describe the utility rates," said Beverly Dickens. "I don't understand how our bill can double in one month. It just fluctuates so much. "We moved here from Charlotte and would you believe, the electricity was much much cheaper there."

"They were awfully high," one unnamed woman said. "The rates dropped a little after the summer and the air conditioner was turned off, but the rate is right back up there now."

"The rates are extremely high," said Jay Garris. "I think it's really unreasonable for the bill to jump $30 in one month."

A Washington Citizen, Max Chesnut, also commented on utility rates. "My bill was twice as high this month," he said. "The fossil fuel rate is also high. This month the fossil fuel rate was $22 and the other rate was $30. "The fossil fuel rate is rising all the time."

On the other hand, one citizen was fairly pleased. "I was pleased with my bill," said Pam Keel. "I live in a trailer and I felt that my bill was really reasonable."

Businesses' Bills

Perhaps the most outstanding of all electric bills is the one that Greenville Utilities pays to VEPCO. According to Curtis Howell, of the Utilities Department, Greenville Utilities paid VEPCO $1,201,584.44 in the month of December.

Howell also commented on several individual outstanding bills. "We had a few individual residents with bills which exceeded $300," Howell said. James Lowry, director of the physical plant at ECU reported the utilities bill for ECU for the month of December was $54,862.95.

Mrs. Naomi Edwards, Business Manager for the Greenville City Schools said that Greenville City Schools paid $13,135.81 for the month of January as compared to last January's bill of $7,322.41. Mrs. Edwards explained that of the $13,135.81, paid this January, $4,549.46 of the bill was from Aycock Junior High.

Other institutions and businesses were contacted about their bills but most had not received all tabulations for the January bill.

Reduction Suggestions

Mrs. Grace Carraway, Home Economics teacher of Rose High School, suggested that being aware of electrical usage and breaking the habit of using so much electricity is the best way to reduce the consumption and to reduce the utility bills.

The Federal Energy Office lists the following 10 hints as major energy saving ideas:

- 1) Use cold water instead of hot water for laundering.
- 2) Lower temperatures in the home to a daytime average of 68 degrees; lower at night.
- 3) Install storm windows and doors where possible; caulk cracks, or weatherstrip doors.
- 4) Open draperies and blinds on sunny days; close them at night to block out drafts.
- 5) Check and maintain your heating system for the most efficient performance.
- 6) Reduce the use of lighting in the home. Use low-power light bulbs and lower wattage where strong light is not necessary. Don't leave lights on in unoccupied rooms.
- 7) Don't use the dishwasher or sink or less than a full load of dishes.
- 8) Turn off the heat in unoccupied rooms and close those doors.
- 9) Don't let hot water run-for washing, shaving or doing dishes. Fill basin or sink with only as much as needed.
- 10) Don't block heat outlets, such as radiators or registers, with furniture, carpets or draperies.

WHY SO LONG?

On the news they have carried a lot about a crackdown on illegal Citizen's Band operators by the Federal Communications Commission. Quite a few of my friends and I have applied for licenses. We have received cancelled checks within a week or two. They say it takes 10-12 weeks to get our licenses to us. Why do they make us wait so long, especially after they already have our money. J.H.

Hotline has received numerous calls similar to yours. We called the Gettysburg office to which most people in this area apply for licenses, but could get no information about what kind of backlog the office has. They suggested we call the FCC Public Information office in Washington, D.C., but again, we could get no information.

So we finally got a local answer. Stuart Jones at Pair Electronics, a store which sells CB radios, said that, according to a recent bulletin from the FCC, the CB mania that apparently has seized the whole country, including Pitt County, has increased the work load at the Gettysburg office from the processing of about 60,000 applications a month to 360,000 a month. He said the application form stresses, "Do not operate until license is received from the FCC," and in the light of recent fines imposed in this area, this advice seems wise, if hard to take, he said.

A UPI release from the FCC says inquiries about delaying are compounding the backlog problem. To speed the application process, they recommend: Enclose check or money order for the correct fee, $4. Be sure your address is complete, including ZIP code; sign and date your application, and enclose the application in a business-size envelope.

The FCC reminds would-be applicants that they must be at least 18 years old to get a license.

Selecting Jury 'Behind Doors'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's trial for bank robbery, described by the judge at the start as the "most fully covered case in the country," has gone behind closed doors while the jury is picked.

A critical preliminary phase — the questioning of prospective jurors about the effects of massive publicity given Miss Hearst between her 1974 kidnaping and her arrest last Sept. 18 — is being conducted in private.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter left more than 100 reporters representing newspapers from many parts of the world outside in a corridor Wednesday as he questioned prospective jurors.

Four women were tentatively seated on the panel and three dismissed. Carter, who had hoped to seat a jury Wednesday, told attorneys he anticipates completing the selection by Friday.

The four tentative jurors selected Wednesday, subject to peremptory challenge later, were Carol Waller of San Francisco, wife of a loan officer at the Wells Fargo Bank; Barbara Lawson, an employee of the San Mateo Heart Association; Jean Witte, a Danville housewife and mother of three; and Marilyn Wentz of Hayward, a dental assistant with four children.

It appeared likely the defense would challenge the seating of Mrs. Waller because of her husband's employment in a bank.

Twelve jurors and four alternates will be seated to hear the case.

The bank robbery took place two months after Miss Hearst was kidnaped by the tiny terrorist group.

Rescued In Trunk Of Car

RALEIGH (AP)—A young Henderson woman officers said was kidnaped at gunpoint Wednesday evening was found locked in the trunk of a car in Raleigh today.

The young woman, who officers would not identify, was in good condition despite the fact she apparently had been left in the trunk overnight when the temperature went down to 30. She was taken to the Wake Medical Center for treatment.

Detective M.W. Brown said the 26-year-old woman was abducted at gun point from a Henderson grocery store about 6 p.m. Wednesday and forced to lie on the floor of a car while she was driven to Raleigh. Brown said she was sexually assaulted and placed in the trunk of the car.

She was found about 8 a.m. today by Raleigh police Dennis Ford and J.M. Farmer who were flagged down by a man who directed them to a child talking to someone in a parking lot. "He must have been about six years old," Ford said of the child. "He told us, 'There's a woman in the trunk over there, and she's calling for help.'"

The officers broke into the trunk and summoned an ambulance which took the woman to the hospital.

by one company would cut allowable use by the other company by about half.

Unless there's an objection before Feb. 4, North Carolina Phosphate Co. will have a permit to draw millions of gallons of water a day from the Castle Hayne aquifer. It will be about two years before the company starts mining phosphate and using the water, an NER spokesman said. Only those with water use permits may object to the request by N.C. Phosphate.

A spokesman for Texasgulf Inc., the other company, said that firm is now using about 60 million gallons of water a day and couldn't operate with the reduction to about 33 million gallons a day as predicted by NER. Consequently, Texasgulf is likely to object which would require a hearing on the N.C. Phosphate permit.

Also holding a permit to draw from the aquifer and qualified to object is the town of Aurora, situated about eight miles from where Texasgulf is now mining phosphate.

A hearing on a Texasgulf or Aurora objection would be aimed at finding a compromise suitable to all without allowing an excessive draw from the aquifer, an NER spokesman said.

There are about 100,000 mineable acres of phosphate in the Aurora area. Texasgulf has been mining there since 1975. Phosphate is primarily used in fertilizer production.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Abby Would Like To Hear From Losers

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't help but smile when I read your comment about people who run ads in the classified section to meet a partner. Agreed, they must be desperately lonely, and they do run the risk of meeting some creepy characters that way, but did you know that this practice is entirely accepted in Europe, specifically in Germany?

Believe me, I have run into creepy characters in the U.S.A. and Canada in distinguished public places where a lady would think she is safe from creeps. I also know that many Europeans have found decent companions by placing ads in newspapers or going through a marriage agency.

The adage "different countries, different customs" still holds true, so please don't condemn that custom altogether. For some, it works.

T.L.K.

DEAR T.L.K.: Many wrote to defend the practice of advertising in a newspaper for companionship, and even marriage. But those who wrote were invariably winners. I'd like to hear from some losers.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14. Almost 15. My parents won't let me smoke. My brother got to smoke when he was 15, but when I ask my parents if I can smoke, they say, "No, it's not feminine."

Abby, I milk cows, bale hay and even clean cow gutters, and you sure can't say THAT'S feminine. All my girl friends get to smoke in front of their parents, so why don't they let me run my own life?

MYSELF

DEAR MYSELF: Because they don't want you to run it in a way that may be damaging to your health. I'm with them. The best advice I can give to nonsmokers is—DON'T START!

Mrs. Venters Gives Program

The dinner meeting of the Greenville Credit Women's International was held Tuesday night. Angelene Venters, of the Small Business Administration, presented the program. She told of the purpose and history of CW-I, the advantages of CW-I memberships and various things that should appeal to a prospective member. The Career Club purpose was presented to members. To be a member of the club, members must have 25 or more years devoted to credit work. State organizations, the history and meaning of the CW-I shield were also discussed.

A new club member, Barbara Boyd of Morgan Printers, was recognized. A guest for the meeting was Ruth Haymore.

Worthy Advisor To Be Installed

Miss Tammy Levey will be installed as worthy advisor of Greenville Assembly No. 67, order of The Rainbow for girls, Sunday at 3 p.m. in ceremonies at the Masonic Temple, at Twelfth and Charles Streets. The families and friends of The Rainbow girls are invited to attend.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A while back, my son did an essay on "Things My Mother Taught Me."

Of all the wonderful, profound bits of wisdom I have passed on to him, he preferred to dwell on my logic: "If you fall off that swing and break your neck, you are not going to the store with me," etc.

A group of kids in a mass media class were enchanted with the column and sent me more "Momisms" as they remembered them.

You're welcome to read them . . . if you can bear the pain of seeing yourself in print.

"If you don't stop crying, I'll give you something to cry about."

"People who talk don't know what they're talking about."

"If you cut off your finger with that knife, no one is going to put it back on for you."

"If you don't stop watching all that violence on television, I'm going to put a dent in your behind." (?)

"If you go to the movies tonight, you can't go tomorrow night."

"You have a good time at your aunt's house . . . or else!"

"Clean your plate. Half of the world wants your leftovers."

"Shut the door! Are you part Eskimo?" (YOU don't know?)

"Don't you think I know when you have to go to the bathroom?"

"Never put your hand in the broiler unless you want broiled hands for dinner."

"Go to your room this instant . . . DON'T TURN YOUR BACK ON ME WHILE I AM TALKING TO YOU."

"If Mommy didn't love you, she'd never smack you."

Maybe it's the association with parents, but kids have also been known to come up with a peculiar kind of logic. How about "Anyone who says I'm not mature is a dumb, old, stupid sweatpog, and I'd like to punch in their face."

"I love you . . . just don't speak to me in public."

"I have to be free, independent, stand on my own two feet. You got a buck for gas?"

I am not saying there is anything wrong with parents' logic or with children's logic. It is only when we start to understand one another's logic that we are all in trouble.

Young Farmers Receive Wallace Blames 'Pointy-Heads' Pitt Bank Scholarships

Two young Pitt County farmers have been awarded scholarships from the banks of Pitt County to attend a short course in modern farming at North Carolina State University February 2-13.

Receiving scholarships are Michael Peaden of Rt. 4, Greenville, of the Belvoir Community. Peaden is a full time farmer with 70 acres of tobacco, 16 acres of peanuts, corn and beans. He is a member of North Pitt FFA Club.

Also receiving scholarship is Michael Gordon Clark of Rt. 2, Greenville, of the Black Jack Community. While in high school

Jackson In N.C. Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—A candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson of Washington state, will make his first North Carolina campaign appearance in Raleigh on Monday.

Jackson said today he is delighted with the announcement of former North Carolina Sen. Sam Ervin that Ervin will vote for him in North Carolina's March 23rd Democratic presidential primary. Jackson said Ervin's "support and friendship are a matter of both considerable personal pride and political significance in North Carolina and throughout America."

Jackson will open his North Carolina campaign with a news conference at the Hilton Inn in Raleigh at 11 a.m. Monday.

His state campaign chairman, and state steering committee, will be announced at that time.

He will stay for lunch with the steering committee, and then return to Washington D.C. On Wednesday he will campaign in Pennsylvania.

HENDERSON DIES

ATLANTA (AP) — Clark College President Dr. Vivian Henderson, 52, a director of the Ford Foundation and president of the Southern Regional Council, died Wednesday at an Atlanta hospital while undergoing heart surgery.

By THOMAS S. BROWN
Associated Press Writer
CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP) — Democratic presidential hopeful George C. Wallace told a rally Wednesday night that "pointy-head" bureaucrats have been too busy writing busing guidelines to protect Massachusetts jobs against foreign industry.

Wallace attracted an overflow crowd of nearly 3,000 — the largest audience yet drawn in western Massachusetts by any of the current presidential contenders.

The Alabama governor presented himself as a champion of the middle class, saying the "great issue" of the campaign. He asserted other candidates were finally starting to say the same things he has been advocating for years. Wallace said his influence over his rivals would be multiplied if he receives a large vote in the March 2 Massachusetts primary.

"If you give George Wallace a good vote in Massachusetts, you're going to have midnight oil burning in the White House, and you're going to have all-night sessions in the offices of the other candidates," he said.

Wallace directed most of his attack at federal judges and administrators. He said they have "never sweated an ounce of honest sweat," but have spent all their careers working on social experiments like busing.

He suggested that some of the bureaucrats should have devoted their efforts to working on trade quotas to protect industries like the shoe business against foreign competition. If they had, he said, there would be more jobs for both whites and blacks in Massachusetts.

Wallace also blamed bureaucrats for a decline in law and order. He said policemen were being forced to patrol classrooms instead of streets and subways.

And, he added, "a person who knocks you on the head will get out of jail before you can get to the hospital."

Wallace tossed several barbs at the media, chiding them for underestimating his support, a complaint that drew a standing ovation.

"Newspapers are not always right," he said. "I can remember when the New York Times wrote Castro was the Robin Hood of the Caribbean."

Turning to foreign policy issues, Wallace said U.S. aid should be channeled to countries that support America, not to nations like India that cheered the U.S. defeat in Vietnam.

At an earlier news conference, Wallace said he would support giving money and weapons, but not troops, to pro-Western forces in Angola. But he said it was apparently too late to intervene in that country because Marxists have gained the upper hand.

Wallace tossed several barbs at the media, chiding them for underestimating his support, a complaint that drew a standing ovation.

"Newspapers are not always right," he said. "I can remember when the New York Times wrote Castro was the Robin Hood of the Caribbean."

No One Injured In 3 Collisions Here

Three collisions here yesterday resulted in an estimated $2,585 property damage, however no injuries were reported and no charges made by Greenville Police investigators.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 4:08 p.m. collision at the intersection of Charles Street and Greenville Boulevard involving a car driven by Rosalee Brown Taff of 119 Trent Cir.

Officers said the Taff vehicle, traveling North on Charles Street, swerved to miss cars stopped for a traffic light when the brakes on her car failed. Her car then struck a pole at Jimmy's Arco Station at the intersection and a parked car on the service station lot owned by Mary Eason Worthington of 2608 Calvin Way.

The collision with the pole caused a light fixture to break loose, dropping on a parked car owned by John Earl Purvis of Route 3, Tarboro. Damage was estimated at $600 to the Taff car, $600 to the Worthington auto and $150 to the Purvis vehicle. Damage to the pole and light fixture was set at $250.

Cars driven by Nila Bruno Carraway of 106 Fairwood La. and Michel Irving Obriant of Glendale Ct. collided about 2:57 p.m. on Evans Street, 55 feet North of the 14th Street intersection causing an estimated $450 damage to the Carraway car and $200 damage to the Obriant vehicle.

The third collision occurred about 4:30 p.m. on Washington Street, 20 feet North of the Third Street intersection and involved cars operated by Williams Horace Lewis Jr. of Farmville and Laddie Powell Jr. of 606B Sheppard St.

Damage was estimated by investigators at $35 to the Lewis car and $300 to the Powell auto.

Rumsfeld Spoke: Who Heard?

Pity The Defense Secretary, Donald Rumsfeld. His duty is to convince any congressman who will listen that money spent on national defense is just as important (and maybe more so, these days) than spending for purely domestic programs. It isn't easy. A lawmaker is apt to see budget-planning in terms of re-election: something for the homefolks is a guideline for many of them. Yet, with all the importance attached to creating a better life, and the multiple facets that implies, it becomes rather academic should the country become vulnerable to the forces of intimidation and blackmail and terror that is freely anticipated should our military capability be overshadowed by "the other side." In his warning to Congress, Sec. Rumsfeld repeated that the tide of military superiority is turning against the U.S. To counter what he knows to be a dangerous trend the secretary asks more strategic weaponry as well as the basic hardware (ships, tanks, planes and missiles for the battlefield) for tactical use. Together they add up a lot of money that could go into research grants, highways, public housing, etc. For a lot of years Congress has been hearing Dept. of Defense appeals, and when budget-writing times comes the first to feel the ax is the Dept. of Defense. If this was a peaceful world, we'd rest easy with no military establishment. But it is not a peace-loving world; there is no let-up in the arming and maneuvering of the communist power that sees "security" only when all other governments are subject to their wishes. We hope Congress takes Mr. Rumsfeld seriously.

Little Relief If FEA Refund Stands

Virginia Electric and Power customers will get a little relief from high bills, if a Federal Energy Administration ruling stands. The FEA ruled that Gulf Oil Co. must repay $2.2 million to Vepco for overcharges on fuel oil over a 19 month period. Vepco officials said if the refund stands, it will be passed on to the customers as an adjustment in the monthly fuel charge. Greenville, Winterville and Ayden electric systems are supplied by Vepco and the private firm has retail customers in north Pitt and Martin counties. The Federal Energy Commission's ruling, if it is not overturned, is one small break for the consumer in these times of skyrocketing energy costs.

THIS AFTERNOON

Employees Demanding Voice

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Governmental officials across North Carolina would do well to keep a close watch on developments in the Raleigh Police Department. This is no isolated occurrence, but rather one likely to repeat itself in some shape or another in other communities; with other groups of people. Much the same process has already been seen in many local schools, and with some major issues still to be resolved. Complex though the situation may be, it comes down to one central issue: the old ways versus the new. Conflict of increasingly bitter proportions may be expected in a lot of areas, and consultants called in to analyze police department troubles in Raleigh put the situation well into focus in one little-noted section of their report to the city. A New Breed Today's generation has been taught differently, both at home and in school, and in practical experience by what they have observed of institutions at work in their own communities.

It once was enough if "authority" said it was so. Authority may have been parent, teacher, policeman, practically any adult or government official. Schools felt the pressure to change first, and the average Tar Heel parent accustomed to the rigid rules and structured learning of just a few short years ago would be well advised to visit the local school and see just how much change has taken place. Change has affected teachers as well as students. Teachers are demanding professional status. They are well paid, well educated, certified people willing and able to make judgments, set goals, and carry out their decisions, teachers insist. Gradually the system is yielding to that insistence. Policemen today are entering a similar conflict situation. They are better paid, many are degreed in various fields including police science, and younger officers have been raised in the new generation which questions and wonders and wants a voice in basic decisions affecting their lives, jobs, families, and communities. Para-military though police forces may be, officers are saying it is no longer sufficient that an older, experienced man is boss, and he says do things his way. Salary is a highly visible, volatile issue easily focused on as the central one in such confrontations. Experience in schools, and in other agencies, prove that money will not solve the problems, and the real issues are deeper than that. Professional Status Teachers, in seeking rights to professional negotiation, and policemen (and others currently or in the future), seeking recognition are really saying we want to be treated as skilled, committed, knowledgeable individuals who have something to contribute. Industry is facing the same conflict, and both government and industry in some scattered places are finding keys to success. The central ingredient is active involvement of individuals in day-to-day decision-making affecting their jobs. Teachers want to help set curricula, select teaching materials, pick programs, establish goals and monitor progress, even have a hand in who will pull bus duty or chaperone the dance. It isn't enough for the boss to tell them how to do their jobs, nor for extra-curricular duties to be heaped on some and not others. Policemen, then, are crying out for somebody to involve them—their newly acquired education and skills—in analyzing community crime problems, devising schemes to fight the unique crime conditions in each community, coming together to set goals and priorities and to select the best men jointly to carry out particular assignments. Policemen are even saying they should be involved in budget decisions. They want a raise. What would happen if the men were given the budget to study with the opportunity to suggest change which could save dollars and provide money for the raise? Change can be upsetting, but recognizing the nature of change taking place might help smooth the transition.

INSIDE REPORT

Woes Of An Arms Trader

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A tongue-lashing applied by a bumptious Iranian general to a startled U.S. cabinet member over lunch Jan. 19 in a private Pentagon dining room reveals the woes and suggests the folly of this country's present posture as the world's greatest arms merchant. Gen. Hassan Toufanian, Iran's vice minister of war for armament, was hopping mad over the rising cost of U.S. weapons and the low production in Iran by the international consortium of oil companies. In rough language, he told Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld to lower arms prices and pressure American members of the consortium to step up oil production, thereby generating more dollars to buy weapons. Otherwise, Toufanian warned, Iran might seek new arms suppliers and new allies. Attempting to bully Washington's most cold-blooded fighters, was a colossal tactical error. While contenting himself at lunch with a cool rejection of the Iranian's demands, Rumsfeld may now align himself with the minority of administration officials long skeptical about Uncle Sam as arms merchant for the Shah of Iran. What also remains to be seen is whether Rumsfeld might join Treasury Secretary William Simon in renewing an old policy dispute inside the Ford administration. Simon still wants confrontation against the international oil cartel (OPEC) in general and Iran in particular to break world oil prices. Until now, President Ford has rejected Simon's advice and accepted Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's policy of aiding OPEC members — including heavy arms aid for Iran. That aid can be traced to President Richard M. Nixon's travels in May 1972 at the peak of his power and popularity. Arriving in Tehran May 30 after signing the SALT agreement in Moscow, Nixon promised heavy U.S. arms sales to Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi. (Continued on page 5)

The Shah, intent on countering Soviet power, thereupon escalated his weapons purchases. From $113 million in 1970 and $524 million in 1972 (the year of Nixon's Teheran visit), Iranian orders of U.S. arms climbed to $2.1 billion in 1973, $3.9 billion in 1974 and $2.6 billion in 1975. These purchases certainly did not trigger the Shah's big push inside OPEC for high oil prices; basically, he needed dollars for ambitious internal improvements. Nevertheless, Gen. Toufanian's demands at the Pentagon last week reflect a vicious cycle between oil and weapons. Disastrous worldwide inflation, caused mainly by expensive oil, creates the rise in U.S. arms costs which aggravated the Iranian general. But the depressing effect of OPEC prices has reduced Western oil demand, leading to Iran's slack (Continued on page 5)

RETRIBUTION OR LOVE?
The great American evangelist, Dwight Moody, used to preach that God stood behind the sinner with a double-edged sword, ready to hew him down. One day, while on a speaking tour in Dublin, Moody met a young English evangelist named Henry Moorhouse. Moody was not particularly impressed by the young Moorhouse, who was many years his junior, but agreed that when the Englishman came to America he should preach in Moody's church. To Moody's amazement, Moorhouse made a great impression, and he did it not by picturing God as an avenger with a sword but as transcendent love which the sinner was running away from. After listening to Moorhouse a few evenings in an evangelical crusade, Moody gave up his former ideas and from that time forward preached as the young Englishman did that God is love. Too often we cringe in fear before God. Certainly the Most High does not want this. The great truth that God is love should fill us with assurance. —by Elisha Douglass

Politics And The Mail

More than four years have gone by since the old U.S. Post Office Department became the new U.S. Postal Service. The idea at the time—and it seemed such a good idea at the time!—was to get the mail out of politics. A dismal conclusion has to be voiced: We had better get the mail back into politics again. That conclusion comes hard. The concept of a kind of private postal service was first advanced seriously by an old-line liberal, Lawrence O'Brien, but conservatives embraced it with whoops and hollers. Down with politicians! Up with businessmen instead! Three premises supported the new Postal Service: (1) Postal volume would keep rising, (2) mechanization would answer problems, and (3) business management would be successful. None of the premises has proved valid. Except for second class (publications), mail is declining in volume. Mechanization has increased, from 25 percent of volume in 1971 to 60 percent in 1975, but the expected economics have not materialized. Without getting into personalities, it has to be said that business management has not been remarkably brilliant. The new managers of the Postal Service got suckered into labor contracts of a lushness (Continued on page 5)

To the editor:
Greenville's blue law should be repealed. The only normal value that I can see in being able to buy shot gun shells, but no diapers, on Sunday is a perversion one. However, mere revision of the blue law is not the answer. People who must work Monday through Saturday are hard-pressed to get needed shopping done when most of it must be done on their workdays. Because of the time involved, they often have no choice but to shop mostly in stores nearest their homes. As I see it, the only fair course of action would be to ease their lives a bit by repealing the blue law. Observing the Biblical "day of rest" has been cited as support for the blue law. However, several Christian denominations and Jews observe some day other than Sunday as their "day of rest." Obviously, having the whole community observe all "days of rest" would be extremely impractical. And yet, the law should not single out any one "day of rest" and force it on the entire community. Merchants with whom I have talked who would like to open on Sunday maintain that they would open no earlier than 1 p.m. Employees would either be given the choice as to whether or not they will work on Sunday or they would be told when interviewed for the job that they will be required to work on some Sundays. Therefore, repeal of the blue law would not interfere in any significant way (if at all) with church activities. Although I rarely shop on Sundays, I feel that logically and in all fairness Greenville's blue law should be repealed. Such an action will not corrupt the morals of Greenville's citizens in any way. Robbie Piper

Public Forum

To the editor:
I am in favor of the Blue Law because people do not have to shop on Sunday. We have six days in a week to do our shopping. There's no reason whatsoever to have to shop on Sunday. The drug stores surely can rotate a few hours for medicines only. Sunday is supposed to be the Lord's day. He didn't intend for us to use his day to buy and sell on Sunday. We are to keep his day holy. I do not intend to go shopping on Sunday. Mrs. Roozie Williams Greenville

Acquire Africa Bases

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has naval and air access to 16 ports and airfields around the rim of Africa, the Pentagon says. Most of these sites are strategically located in relation to shipping lanes between the United States and the Persian Gulf oil lands, as well as those running through the Mediterranean.

These locations in nine countries, including Angola, appear on a map distributed Wednesday after Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld displayed it to the House Armed Services Committee. The map did not identify those ports and airfields that the United States and other NATO members have access to.

In testimony a day earlier, Rumsfeld had expressed concern about Soviet activities in Africa and had suggested that victory by Russian-backed forces in the Angola civil war would encourage the Soviets to widen their efforts on that continent.

The Pentagon also listed nearly $3 billion in Soviet military and economic aid over the past five years to 11 African countries, four of them usually identified with the Arab bloc and seven south of the Sahara. About two-thirds was in military assistance.

The biggest single recipient was Egypt which, according to the Pentagon, got nearly $1.7 billion in arms and economic help from the Soviet Union in the 1971-1975 period. Much of that was provided during and soon after Egypt's 1973 war with Israel.

Since then, Soviet arms shipments to Egypt have been cut to a trickle because of policy differences between Cairo and Moscow.

Angola has received $108 million in Soviet military aid, the Pentagon map showed. This is less than the $200 million figure used recently by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. However, Kissinger could have been counting $70 million in military assistance which the Pentagon credits to Cuba.

Other countries listed as Soviet aid recipients are Algeria, Libya, Sudan, Somalia, Guinea, Mali, Nigeria, Uganda and Mo (Continued on page 5)

The Savings Rate Rose In '75

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — An economy in disequilibrium, as that of 1975 certainly was, leads to some results and assumptions that require a second look. For example: —Many people have the notion that 1975 was a very bad year for savers. In some ways it was, of course, because people were without jobs and others were hard pressed to make ends meet because of inflation. Moreover, inflation erodes the value of savings. The savings rate, however, actually rose, and quite sharply. Whereas a range of 6 per cent to 6.5 per cent is considered average, the rate in 1975 ranged from just under 8 per cent to more than 10 per cent. The savings rate is generally guided by the degree of consumer confidence, and last year that confidence was very low. As confidence is revived, the savings rate will tend to drop, perhaps very slowly. A very important factor in the degree of confidence will be the unemployment rate, which remains high and is expected to fall only slowly, even by federal government officials. The jobless rate is viewed by many workers as a barometer of their own job security. When the rate is high, they postpone purchases and put their money in the bank instead. —Last year was a very poor year for new home construction. You might therefore believe it was a very poor year for the savings and loan associations that lend money for home purchases. You are wrong if you believe that Home lenders had a pretty good year. In fact, the U.S. League of Savings Associations reported its members closed $54.8 billion of loans, the highest on record. Three factors help explain what at first glance appears to be a mystery: Inflation, which pushed up prices; a healthy business in existing homes; and the availability of money to lend. Whereas in 1974 the average price of an existing single-family house averaged $32,040, in 1975 it came to $35,180. While not always the case, higher prices generally require bigger loans. While new home construction was off badly in 1975, the demand for existing homes rose. In 1974, the association members made mortgage loans on only 554,000 existing homes, but last year the total leaped to 1,220,000. —Total cash sales of U.S. Savings Bonds hit a record high of more than $7 billion in 1975, the Department of the Treasury announced. Well, that record, like some others, should have an asterisk beside it. The 1975 figure was 2.6 per cent above that of the 1974. But hold on — we used different measurements in each year. The dollar used to measure the 1975 "record" was worth a lot less than the 1974 dollar. Depending on how you calculate it, the Consumer Price Index rose either 9.1 per cent or 7 per cent in 1975, which is a lot higher than the 2.6 per cent increase in the dollar value of bonds sold.

Chavis & Co. Seeking Remain Free On Bond

RALEIGH (AP)—A petition asking that the so-called Wilmington 10 remain free on bond pending possible federal review of their convictions is scheduled for 11 a.m. Friday before U.S. Magistrate Logan D. Howell in Raleigh.

If that request is denied or not acted upon swiftly, the group must surrender to Pender County officials Monday at 10 a.m. to begin serving sentences ranging from 10 to 31 years. That order would be cancelled if bond is granted after Friday's hearing.

Also pending before Howell is a petition for habeas corpus which asks the federal courts to review the case on constitutional grounds. No hearing has been scheduled on that petition, but Howell could decide on both petitions after Friday's bond hearing.

The group was convicted of burning a white-owned grocery store and conspiring to shoot at firemen who came to fight the flames during a period of racial unrest in Wilmington in 1971. The unrest was over Wilmington's school integration and most of the 10 were in high school at the time.

The group has been free on bonds totaling about $400,000 while appealing the convictions. On Jan. 19, The U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear the appeal and suggested the matter be taken to federal district court.

State Atty. Gen. Rufus L. Edmisten has been asked by Wilmington 10 supporters to not oppose bond for the group. An Edmisten spokesman said a decision hadn't been made on that request by late Wednesday because that office had not studied the petitions.

An estimated 500 persons attended a rally in Raleigh Monday to express support for the Wilmington 10. Before the rally, about 50 supporters met with Edmisten to ask that the state not oppose bond. A letter requesting that position was sent to Edmisten Wednesday by the Rev. Leon White, director of the North Carolina-Virginia Commission for Racial Justice of the United Church of Christ.

Evans-Novak...

Actually, heavier arms sales were opposed unsuccessfully upon Nixon's return from Tehran in 1972 by his then-Secretary of Defense, Melvin R. Laird. Improvements in the U.S. balance of payments, Laird argued, would be outweighed by the threat to world peace by fueling the Mideast arms race. His argument, both at the Pentagon and since leaving it: the U.S. should try to negotiate limits on the arms trade rather than becoming its leading practitioner.

The successful State Department riposte cited not only the balance of payments but the likelihood that the Shah would find other suppliers — probably Great Britain and France — if turned down by Washington. But military experts here contend no Western European nation can match the U.S. in quality, amounts and technical assistance. For Iran, they say, it boils down to U.S. arms or nothing.

These same experts, moreover, believe the Shah's lavish expenditures have produced a military establishment less fit than before to cope with the Soviets. Some equipment has been oversupplied; helicopters purchased from the U.S. are being cocooned in Iran, according to reliable Western sources. Although the Iranian air force with U.S. F-4's is one of the world's best, experts here say the army cannot handle its sophisticated new weaponry.

These critics, until now silenced by transcendent considerations of Nixon-Kissinger geopolitics, may have gained an invaluable ally in Rumsfeld. At the least, he is not about to capitulate to the Iranian general's demands for lower arms and more oil.

Considerably less certain but vastly more important is what side, if any, Rumsfeld takes when Simon renews efforts for a new U.S. offensive pitting Saudi Arabia against Iran to break OPEC prices. If Rumsfeld intervenes against Kissinger's policy of exchanging inflated arms for inflated oil, that Jan. 19 luncheon at the Pentagon may prove fateful indeed.

The Postal Service could reduce profitless services. Abandonment of Saturday deliveries would save an estimated $350 million. Closing 12,000 small post offices could save $100 million more. But the Postal Service was created to make mail-handling better, not worse.

The Libertarian solution is for the government to give up a postal service altogether, and to let genuinely private enterprise tackle the job. The idea has appeal, but it is wildly improbable that a predominantly Democratic Congress would go along. A more realistic answer lies in reassignment of postal services, deficits and all, by the Federal government. The dream of a mail system that pays its own way might as well be abandoned in favor of a system routinely financed in part by postal revenues and in part from the general fund.

This is not a happy prospect. Certainly it is not a happy prospect for those of us who believe, as an article of faith, that the role of the national government is too large as it is. But the fiction of a break-even quasi-private postal service has gotten us nowhere. It is like Gunga Din's uniform, which was nothin' much before, an' rather less than 'arf o' that be'ind. The sooner we face a policy decision on postal service, the better it will be.

The Rev. Mr. White said the rally was aimed at convincing state officials that the group is not trying to avoid surrender and wants to use the courts to fight the convictions rather than flee when ordered to surrender.

In Wednesday's letter to Edmisten he said, "The incarceration of the Wilmington 10 will cause undue hardship and have a chilling effect on their individual family members. Coupled with this is the disruption it would cause in their educational pursuits."

Those making up the Wilmington 10 are the Rev. Ben Chavis, Ann Shepard, Connie Tindall, Marvin Patrick, Jerry Jacobs, Willie Earl Vereen, James McCoy, Rinaldo Epps, Wayne Moore and Joe Wright.

Uncle Sam Has Shed Weight
FORT DODGE, Iowa (AP) — That venerable symbol of patriotism, Uncle Sam, has shed the weight of years for Bicentennial 1976 and looks like a teenager. Actually, this Uncle Sam is only 17 years old.

Tim Larson, a high school senior, has taken to wearing an Uncle Sam costume to high school sporting events, elementary schools and appearances before civic groups. As he makes his rounds, Larson distributes red, white and blue badges, with the message: "1776-1976: The First 200 Years Are Always The Hardest."

People are at first surprised at the sight of Uncle Sam, Larson said. "I walk around, crack jokes and listen to them complain about the government — mostly taxes."

Vets Being Signed For Angola

WASHINGTON (AP)—Black American veterans are being recruited here to fight in Angola, and organizers say several hundred ex-military men are ready to join in the civil war there alongside Western-backed forces next month.

Organizer Larry Mitchell, a 34-year-old Vietnam veteran who works as a technician in Washington-area hospital, refused to say who is footing the bill for his mercenary expedition, but he would not rule out the CIA.

On Wednesday, Mitchell said his phone was ringing off the hook — the result of a weekend advertisement he placed in several newspapers: "Veterans Wanted—Medical and technical skills and willing to travel."

Meanwhile, dozens of British mercenaries flew out of London on Wednesday, bound for Africa and the Angola fighting.

The men generally were silent and many tried to hide their faces from photographers as they boarded planes. But some said they had been recruited by Security Advisory Services, a firm in Surrey, a county southwest of London, and were to be paid $300 a week, tax free, by the government of Zaire, an African neighbor of embattled Angola.

Between 40 and 50 men left London on one flight and about 100 others reportedly followed later in the day.

In Zambia, Roy Innis of the New York-based Congress for Racial Equality said he would seek black Americans to fight in Angola.

Innis said CORE cannot legally recruit U.S. volunteers, but he said CORE legally can sign up medical technicians to serve in Angola.

"If a combat veteran puts a medical badge on his arm and fools me, if someone says to me he's going there to stick needles in arms and then he picks up a rifle, I can't help that," Innis said.

More than 200 men have been enrolled in the private combat corps being formed in Washington, Mitchell said, including black Army, Navy and Marine veterans, ranging from the unemployed to a Washington policeman and a law firm messenger.

They plan to leave for Africa on Feb. 15, and say they will fight with the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA), one of two factions backed by Western powers. Mitchell says the black veterans will be fighting against the estimated 10,000 Cuban support troops in Angola, rather than against troops from the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) itself.

Mitchell said the recruits would be paid $500 a month for expenses, plus $1,000 a month which would probably be held for them in a Swiss bank account. He said his group has ties to CORE.

Mitchell would not discuss the source of his recruiting funds, but did tell one reporter he "wouldn't be surprised" if the money was coming from the CIA.

"Who else could afford something this large?" he said.

He said the group he is working with is also trying to recruit veterans from Philadelphia, New York and Los Angeles. He said the group's official name is Afro-American Technical Assistance to Angola.

(Continued from page 4) almost beyond belief. The Postal Service has 595,000 employees; the median salary for clerks and carriers is $14,200, and the starting salary is $11,444. The contract prohibits lay-offs and provides an annual cost-of-living increase.

The Postal Service lost roughly $13 million in fiscal 1973 and $438 million in 1974. The deficit in the 1975 fiscal year came to nearly $989 million. The current year's deficit, despite rate increases, will be over a billion. Next year's deficit, under the best circumstances, will be at least a billion again.

Brace yourself, now, for this melancholy forecast: If present trends continue—that is, if mail volume keeps declining, if the number of delivery points keeps rising, if inflation continues, and if present postal rates are maintained—the deficit will climb to $8 billion by fiscal 1981. Eight billion dollars!

Various options are available. The Postal Service could apply to the Rate Commission for further dramatic increases in postage rates, but it is apparent that the law of diminishing returns already is taking its toll. Private citizens are writing fewer letters; business houses are turning to other means of communication and delivery. The predictable growth of electronic banking will accelerate the decline in first-class mail.

The Postal Service could reduce profitless services. Abandonment of Saturday deliveries would save an estimated $350 million. Closing 12,000 small post offices could save $100 million more. But the Postal Service was created to make mail-handling better, not worse.

The Libertarian solution is for the government to give up a postal service altogether, and to let genuinely private enterprise tackle the job. The idea has appeal, but it is wildly improbable that a predominantly Democratic Congress would go along. A more realistic answer lies in reassignment of postal services, deficits and all, by the Federal government. The dream of a mail system that pays its own way might as well be abandoned in favor of a system routinely financed in part by postal revenues and in part from the general fund.

This is not a happy prospect. Certainly it is not a happy prospect for those of us who believe, as an article of faith, that the role of the national government is too large as it is. But the fiction of a break-even quasi-private postal service has gotten us nowhere. It is like Gunga Din's uniform, which was nothin' much before, an' rather less than 'arf o' that be'ind. The sooner we face a policy decision on postal service, the better it will be.

Flaherty Says GOP Unity Needed

By JAMES KYLE
Reflector Staff Writer

David T. Flaherty, secretary of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, told a gathering of Republicans last night that, with unity, they will be able to elect another Republican governor.

An unannounced gubernatorial candidate himself, Flaherty told the group, "Working together is important. Work for your candidate in the primary, but after that we have to work together. Being the minority party in this state, we can't afford the luxury of being split."

Flaherty was speaking at a joint meeting of the Pitt County Young Republican Club and the College Republican Club of East Carolina University.

He said that despite the fact that many Republicans are discouraged about the possibility of electing another GOP administration in the state, he feels Republicans have a good chance at the polls.

The party has a popular governor and a popular Senator that they didn't have in the last election, he said. "With the good economy, popular people and everything else in our favor, we can elect the governor and every council of state possible if we work together."

Flaherty indicated he feels Lt. Governor Jim Hunt will be the Democratic candidate in the upcoming general election. "The Democrats won't be able to carry all factions," Flaherty said, "because if (the Democratic candidate) is who I think it'll be, there's a lot of anti-Hunt feeling."

Flaherty also said he feels voters will be judging candidates and parties on performance at the polls this year. The fact that the Republicans have "practiced conservatism" will help them, Flaherty said.

Turning to his own campaign, Flaherty stressed his performance as Human Resources secretary. He outlined a program he initiated to help handicapped children in the state and gave a general outline of his campaign platform.

"I won't support any tax increases," Flaherty said. He called for a reestablishment of spending priorities instead.

Flaherty also stressed the importance of education and speeding up the judicial process in the state.

The fact that he is a Boston native "will be an issue," according to Flaherty. "I had no control over where I was born,"

Flaherty said, "But, having come from another state, I can appreciate the things that we have. And my wife and I are glad we are here."

Fielding a question on phosphate mining in eastern North Carolina, Flaherty said, "We need to take advantage of our natural resources, but make sure they provide jobs." He also said he has not studied the phosphate issue.

Flaherty said he opposes gun control and the state should "go after the guy who uses a gun to commit a crime."

He said he is not going to let liquor-by-the-drink become an issue in the campaign which would "cloud the real issues."

Flaherty said he favors higher salaries and more advancement steps for teachers and state employees. Asked about his platform on improving education at lower levels, he said, "I don't want to show my whole hand at this stage," but it will come out in the campaign.

Won't Disclose Extent Of Role

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro has refused to say how many Cuban troops are fighting in the Angolan civil war.

"That is reserved information," he told reporters who crowded around him Wednesday night at a reception given by visiting Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau at the Canadian Embassy here.

"We have to use discretion," Castro said when asked to be specific. "Do not consider it a lack of courtesy on my part."

A Canadian government spokesman said Trudeau and Castro "agreed to disagree" on Angola. Canada considers Castro's sending an estimated 10,000 soldiers to Angola inconsistent with his policy of urging outsiders to keep their hands out of Latin American affairs. The Cuban premier said the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), supported in Angola by the Soviet Union and Cuba, now has the means to fight any volunteer force from outside, no matter how strong. Asked whether Cuba will send more soldiers to Angola, Castro replied, "It all depends. We wish there was no necessity."

Leaf Hearings February 4, 5

House Tobacco Subcommittee chairman, Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., announced that sub-committee hearings are to be held at 2 p.m. February 4 and 5 in room 1301 Longworth Building, Washington, D.C.

Jones said the hearings would be to consider an allotment leasing bill passed by the senate on Monday, January 26. Anyone planning to testify should notify the House Committee on Agriculture, Longworth Building, Washington, D.C. 20505, or phone (202) 225-2171.

Ford Supports Moynihan Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says he "completely approves" of the way United Nations Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan is conducting his office, the second presidential vote of confidence given the fiery diplomat in as many months.

Ford issued a statement Wednesday endorsing Moynihan, who last week sent a classified cable to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger complaining that elements in the State Department were undermining his work at the United Nations.

Kissinger also expressed on Wednesday his feeling that Moynihan is "doing an outstanding job" and said Moynihan has "the full support" of the department.

At the U.N., Moynihan issued a statement that said Ford had telephoned him at midday to give him the go-ahead to continue "committed but candid" U.S. participation in the U.N.

Moynihan's cable described as successful his controversial confrontation methods in the U.N. aimed, he said, at "breaking up the massive blocs of nations, which for so long have been arrayed against us in international forums and in diplomatic encounters generally."

Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, said of the complaint against State, "It's a routine exercise in Washington bureaucracy that not everybody always agrees with what someone else might be doing."

A State Department spokesman read a statement, approved by Kissinger, to reporters, saying, "Newspapers must ask themselves what their responsibility is when they consider publication of such documents."

A text of the cable was carried by The New York Times Wednesday.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressman Jack Kemp of New York introduced a bill, called Capital Formation Act, which gave incentives to industry to increase output and provide more jobs. The bill was ignored. Kemp then reintroduced the proposal with the name, Jobs Creation Act, and got more than 100 co-sponsors of the measure and an interested Senator who introduced it in his chamber.

Advise Consulting

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House Investigations subcommittee says that 2.4 million unnecessary surgeries were performed by American doctors in 1974 at a cost of nearly $4 billion and about 11,900 deaths.

The House Oversight and Investigations subcommittee recommended that second consultations be required before nonemergency surgery.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. John F. Moss, D-Calif., said it received testimony from medical experts and others that second consultations by doctors can lower surgical abuses as well as the accompanying costs.

The study showed that the most prevalent unnecessary surgeries were tonsilectomies, hysterectomies and appendectomies, in that order.

The subcommittee also suggested that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare initiate experimental programs to provide salaries instead of fees for doctors in Medicaid and Medicare cases.

The report said that fees may provide financial incentives for surgeons to perform operations in questionable circumstances, while salaried doctors would get a set amount regardless of how many operations they perform.

Do-Or-Die Race For Bentsen In Oklahoma Caucuses

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's Democratic presidential campaign is facing a crucial test in Oklahoma in nine days and a poor showing there could force him out of the national race, according to sources close to the senator.

The Texas Democrat was fourth in a field of five candidates in the Mississippi caucuses last week with less than 2 percent of the delegates. He needs a respectable finish in Oklahoma's Feb. 7 caucuses to prove he has support in his own region of the country.

One source close to Bentsen said if the senator comes in a weak third in Oklahoma, trailing former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and the state's former senator, Fred Harris, he may have to drop out.

"It would be pretty tough" to overcome such a poor showing, the source said. "He'd have to slide out or say it ain't positive. That's his neighboring state so he's got to run strong."

Meanwhile, busing to achieve school desegregation was brought up as an issue in campaigning Wednesday. Republican challenger Ronald Reagan, campaigning in New Hampshire, said he opposes busing but "the law is the law." And Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, a Democratic candidate touring Massachusetts, called for a constitutional amendment that would make busing voluntary.

The Bentsen source said that after talking with Oklahoma politicians he believes that in a statewide, popular ballot "Bentsen would win hands down." But in party caucuses, moderate candidates have difficulty persuading supporters to participate.

Campaign director Robert Healy refused to predict how Bentsen would finish in Oklahoma, saying only, "I think Oklahoma is going to be important for us."

Until the poor showing in Mississippi, Oklahoma was important to the Bentsen campaign, but it was just one in a series of states where Bentsen hoped to show he could attract support while some of his competition was eliminated in the early primaries.

The loss in Mississippi, where he finished behind Wallace, Carter and former Ambassador Sargent Shriver, forced him to view Oklahoma as a crucial contest before any of his oppo-ponents had suffered damage in the first primaries.

There were these other political developments on Wednesday:

—Reagan, trying to wrest the GOP nomination from President Ford, said in New Hampshire he would enforce court busing orders because "the law is the law." But he opposed busing "as a social experiment" and "would do everything in my power as president to eliminate and make unlawful the forced busing of school children."

He said he prefers alternatives to busing and suggested reorganizing local school districts to make them racially balanced, allowing open enrollment in all schools.

—Wallace said at Chicopee, Mass., that he favors a "freedom of choice" amendment to the Constitution that would make busing voluntary. Wallace said busing causes too much social ferment and is making policemen patrol schools instead of streets and subways.

—Former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said in Oklahoma

City he supports Arizona Rep. Morris Udall over Harris for the Democratic nomination because "Ford has been more remote recently from the mainstream of political power." He said Udall "has voted the public interest consistently."

—Bentsen said in Washington that Ford's proposal to cut business taxes to encourage new investment in high unemployment areas would be ineffective and would cost $300 million next year. "Long-term certainty in the tax law is what businesses need to plan investments," he said. "A much more effective and less expensive way of creating new jobs would be to enact an employment tax credit."

He has proposed giving a 20 per cent credit of up to $800 per worker on the wages of new employees hired this year and next year. He says this would create up to one million jobs by the end of 1977.

—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said the country needs a Democratic president "to manage the economy to benefit all Americans." Humphrey, D-Minn., who is not an announced presidential candidate, told a Washington meeting of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers that Ford has "proposed policies that will keep over 20 million people out of work this year ... which will hold down industrial output again this year. ... He proposed still higher energy prices."

—Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., campaigned for the Democratic nomination in Columbia, Md., where he was confronted by a group of abortion opponents who chided him for not enacting a constitutional amendment against legal abortion. Bayh said he is "personally opposed to abortion" but that individuals should have the right to make their own decisions.

"I don't want the federal government coming into the lives of 10 million women who use birth control devices saying 'you are committing abortion' It's an invasion of privacy," he declared.

Chairman Of Girl Scouts

Mrs. Linda Seykora is the new Neighborhood Girl Scout Chairman of Greenville. Mrs. Seykora is succeeding Ms. Susan Pittman.

MRS. LINDA SEYKORA

Mrs. Seykora in serving as the Neighborhood Chairman, will coordinate activities of all Brownies, Girl Scouts, Cadets, and Senior Girl Scouts in Greenville. She will coordinate all sales activities; schedule Greenville camping dates at Camp Hardee; recruit new leaders; and act as a liaison between area troops and the Coastal Carolina Council in Goldsboro.

Mrs. Seykora explained that the Greenville Girl Scouts are grouped according to school districts and includes 21 troops, with 10 Brownie troops, nine girl scout troops, one cadet troop, and one senior group.

In addition to her Girl Scout position, Mrs. Seykora is a volunteer teacher and substitute teacher. Her husband, Edward Seykora is a physics professor at ECU and is also a registered girl scout. She has two daughters.

Mrs. Seykora hopes to instigate more inner-troop activities in Greenville and to encourage community togetherness.

Guest Clinician At Tenn. Course

Dr. Michael Schweisthal professor of anatomy in the East Carolina University School of Medicine, will be one of two guest clinicians at the fifth annual practical anatomy course for oral surgeons at the University of Tennessee this week.

Dr. Schweisthal and Dr. Calvin W. Thompson, noted expert in the treatment of maxillofacial war injuries, will assist Dr. Wayne R. Witt, course director, in the program, which is scheduled for the University's Memorial Research Center and Hospital in Knoxville.

Approximately 35 oral surgeons are expected to participate in the course, which will consist of lectures and laboratory demonstrations.

Dr. Schweisthal, author and co-author of many publications on his research and teaching methods, has made special studies in the field of head and neck anatomy.

Rocky Mount Is Again Told Pay Fish Kill Fine

RALEIGH (AP)—The city of Rocky Mount must pay the state $6,595 in actual damages from a fish kill last year, but no civil penalty will be assessed, the state Environmental Management Commission decided Wednesday.

It was the second time the panel made the same decision. The state attorney general's office said an identical finding in December was invalid because the commission didn't have a quorum at the meeting.

The city was assessed the damage for a fish killed last June caused by city sewage flowing into the Tar River. In November, the city was assessed an additional $1,500 civil penalty for the fish kill, but the commission reversed that decision in the meetings in December and Wednesday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rebounded from two sessions of profit taking to post a moderate advance in continued active trading today. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, off a little more than 10 points Tuesday and Wednesday, was up 4.88 at 956.23 by 11:30 a.m. today.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Analysts noted that the balance had begun to shift away from profit taking back to buying late in Wednesday's session, when the Dow reduced a 10-point deficit to 6.46 points by the close.

They said the market was helped by further signs of a downtrend in interest rates.

Citicorp was the most active Big Board issue, up 1/4 to 30 3/4, a 100,000-share block traded on the NYSE at 30 1/4.

Getty oil climbed 5 1/2 to 16 3/4 on top of a 5 1/2-point jump Wednesday, when the company raised its estimate of uranium reserves at an Australian site in which it has an interest.

Philip Morris, up 1 Wednesday, gained another 1 1/2 to 55 1/4 in a continued response to record 1975 profits.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks rose .30 to 52.58 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .32 to 94.98.

these storage areas can be filled or occupied without significantly increasing that flood heights. Recognition of this phenomenon and consideration of the need to avoid unnecessary restrictions on filling and building has prompted the regulatory floodway concept wherein the floodway is established by ordinance for maintaining the required flood discharge capacity.

The report further states, "The remaining portion of the flood plain (floodway fringe) can be filled in or built on, provided the regulatory flood is property recognized."

City Planner John Schofield said that the report by the Corps has no relationship to the Flood Insurance Program and he emphasized that the study is designed for use as a general planning guide. In response to a question concerning the effective dates of the maps presented in the report, Ingram acknowledged that since the effective dates would be nearly a year ago, the maps would be out of date in regard to occurrences since that time.

Hubert Roberts, who farms in the area, objected to the study on the basis that it would lead to restrictions on credit to persons who have land designated as being in the flood plain. He noted that he has made a living farming in the 100-year flood plain for 43 years and has never lost any crops due to water damage or suffered due to the high water.

Johnstone said that the Corps did a technical analysis of the local situation and published the results. What the federal government or local government does with the information is not up to the Corps, he added. He said the Corps does not endorse individual flood programs but merely offers the technical data to the city.

Marvin Blount Sr., who reported that he has lived on Green Mill Run for 35 years, told the Corps representatives that he appreciated the report whether it was right or wrong since it offered important information for the city to study and "build on."

Blount said that conditions on Green Mill Run present a serious health problem and he asserted that bad traffic conditions in Greenville are related to problems on the Mill Run. He suggested that a park area along Green Mill Run be developed.

Commission chairman Eddie Howell pointed out that the City Council will receive the report and have a public hearing on the study. He said that the Corps representatives were invited to present the report "so we would have a working knowledge of it."

Johnstone said that the Corps will continue to provide interpretations and technical assistance on the flood matters as requested. In other business last night, the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission heard a brief presentation on the West Meadowbrook Redevelopment Plan and then accepted the proposed plan for presentation to the City Council.

The plan was discussed in detail during a recent hearing conducted by the Redevelopment Commission at city hall. The program, to be funded through Community Development Program money, carries a total estimated cost of $1,356,000, according to Schofield and would be implemented as a three-year project. Other items on the Greenville agenda included: —Approval of revised final plat of Tucker Estates Subdivision to show street name changes from Sanata Street and Sanata Place to Sonata Street and Sonata Place; —Approval of revised preliminary plat of Section I, Professional Center in the medical complex adjacent to the new hospital; and —Denial of request of Kenneth M. Buck to rezone approximately .97 of an acre (42,294 square feet) at the northwest corner of Hooker Road and Pendleton Street from R-6 to Neighborhood Commercial for use as office of South Roanoke Baptist Association. Objections to the rezoning were voiced by several property owners adjoining the site.

Commissioner Karl Faser pointed out that to rezone the site for Neighborhood Commercial use would constitute spot zoning. Property across the street is zoned for commercial use, it was noted.

Howell pointed out that if the church decided to sell the property or move to another office location at a future date, the property would be open for commercial use if the rezoning request was granted.

Buck, pointing to the objections raised concerning the request, withdrew the matter from consideration by the City Council. The Council would have received the request with the Planning and Zoning Commission's recommendation for denial. The Greenville board, acting on an item that was not published as part of the regular agenda, accepted the preliminary plat of Sections I and II of Singletree Farm, located to the south of the Hugh Winslow homeplace, east of Hooker Road and joining Cambridge Subdivision.

Objections were raised by members of the audience to the item being discussed by the Commission since it was not published as part of the agenda. Howell said that the Commission would not have taken the matter up if it had involved a final plat. The zoning board, after hearing a request of Colonial Park Inc. to rezone some 8.76 acres north of Greenville on the west side of US 13-NC 11 from RA-20 to R-6-Mobile Home recommended to the City Council that the request be approved.

The property, according to Ed Rawl, president of Colonial Park Inc., will be developed with a modular home subdivision. He said that 26 lots of 10,000 square feet are planned for the subdivision.

The board tabled for 30 days a request by Wilbur Harris for rezoning of approximately 26 acres on NC 30, some 1.5 miles from the city limits, from RA-20 to R-6-Mobile Home.

Harris said he he planned to develop the tract in mobile homes.

Hearst Jurors Near-Prisoners

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jurors in the Patricia Hearst bank robbery trial will become virtual prisoners in a hotel that will isolate them from publicity about the celebrated case. U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter has told prospective jurors they will be locked in a nearby hotel and remain under the constant watch of U.S. marshals if seated for the trial, which is expected to last at least five weeks.

The jurors can expect to have all telephone calls monitored, reading material screened and the television or radio plug pulled to prevent their being influenced by trial publicity, Carter said.

They may attend church on Sundays but only under escort of a U.S. marshal. Twelve jurors and four alternates will be chosen. All will be sequestered.

When selected, the jurors will be "taken into the custody of the (U.S.) marshal, who will keep them at a convenient and quiet place, free from interference," Carter told the original group of potential jurors Tuesday. They will be free to socialize among themselves, so long as they avoid mention of the case. "There are a lot of things in the world to talk about (aside from this case)," Carter said. "The world is yours."

Reservations for the jurors have been made at an unnamed "nearby hotel," Carter said. While there, jurors will be allowed family visits on weekends but will not be allowed to meet alone with family members.

Jurors will not be permitted to have telephones, radios, or televisions in their own rooms. Phone calls will be made from a single monitored telephone.

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP)—The U.S. Postal Service publicized an address by one of its officials about how the agency is trying to cut costs by sending six pages of news releases special delivery.

In a summary of his comments, John J. Wise, assistant postmaster general for research and development, was quoted as saying, "Since labor costs make up about 85 percent of the postal budget, our cost reduction measures are directed mainly toward more efficient use of our 700,000-member work force."

A three-page news release summarized Wise's prepared comments to a meeting of postal customers. Also in the envelope came a two-page summary of Wise's background and a one-page announcement that Wise would speak here. While virtually all news releases from other sources come first class, the Postal Service had its releases hand delivered by one of the 700,000 employees Wednesday.

ECU Chapter Hosting Meet

Registration for the convention will be $2.50. Registration forms and agenda may be obtained from the Special Education Department office, Speight Building, room 142. All meetings will be in Mendenhall Student Center.

Other schools representing the council at the convention are as follows: Western Carolina University, Appalachian State University, North Carolina Central University, Greensboro College, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. All SCEC members and interested persons are invited to attend.

Demo Dinner
The annual Democratic Dinner, sponsored by Democratic Women will be held Thursday, February 5, at 7:00 p.m. at Greenville Golf and Country Club. Both men and women Democrats are invited. The speaker will be Senator Luther J. Britt Jr., senator from the 12th District and chairman of the judiciary II committee.

The Lumberton native is an attorney and serves on the Board of Governors of the N. C. Bar Association. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. J. B. Spilman Sr. at 752-2389 or Mrs. Betty Speir at 825-5461 before Monday, February 2.

Elect 9 To Honor Club

Nine students at J. H. Rose High School have been honored by election to Mu Alpha Theta, international high school and junior college mathematics club.

The nine elected to the club are: Paige Levey, Debbie Girdharry, Linda Hall, Lisa Zicherman, Suzanne McGee, Janice Johnson, Anita Wichard, Skipper Hardy and Lee Shearin.

The announcement was made by Dr. Harold V. Huneke, national secretary-treasurer, and a professor of mathematics at The University of Oklahoma where the national office is located. Only those schools with excellent mathematics programs can earn membership in the club since all courses in mathematics and the qualifications of the mathematics faculty and students are examined in detail by the club's Governors and National Officers.

"Membership in Mu Alpha Theta is the highest honor possible for a high school or junior college student of mathematics," Dr. Huneke said. "Club activities consist of work in areas of mathematics not usually covered in the classroom."

Mu Alpha Theta was founded in 1957 at The University of Oklahoma and has grown to more than 1,500 clubs in 46 states and Canada, Japan, Puerto Rico, the Canal Zone, Iceland, Turkey, Brazil and Okinawa.

Iredell Seeking Annexation

CHARLOTTE (AP) — It's more convenient for some people who live in Mecklenburg County to do business and go to school in Iredell County.

They live Mecklenburg Neck, an area isolated from the rest of Mecklenburg when Lake Norman was built in 1963. Iredell wants to annex it. The Mecklenburg County manager, Glenn Blaisdell, will ask his county commissioners Monday for permission to let Iredell take it over. An act of the legislature would be necessary, but that is seen as no great hurdle.

The area has about $8 million worth of taxable real and personal property. Mecklenburg County collects about $63,000 dollars a year in taxes from it, but has to provide police and fire protection and other services.

BOARD MEETING
The board of directors of the Eastern Tar River Credit Union will hold its annual meeting Friday, January 30 at 8 p.m. at the Cornerstone Baptist Church.

Maryland Rips State; Heels Ease By Deacs

By The Associated Press The Maryland basketball team has won only two games of five in the Atlantic Coast Conference, both by 18 points over North Carolina State.

The Terps won 87-69 at the home of the Wolfpack two weeks ago and 102-84 on their own court Wednesday night.

John Lucas scored a career-high 34 points and another Maryland senior guard, Mo Howard, scored 26. Lawrence Boston, subbing for injured center Larry Gibson, had 10 points and 12 rebounds in the victory.

Substitute Glen Sudhop led the Wolfpack with 20 points and Kenny Carr, the leading scorer in the ACC, had 19.

Maryland, ranked No. 7 nationally, is 14-3, and N.C. State, No. 8, is 13-3.

Fourth-ranked North Carolina squeezed out an 88-85 overtime victory at Wake Forest. The Deacons have lost five straight and six of their last seven games after winning the first 10.

The Wake Forest coach, Carl Tacy, said, "I think that when you're on a winning streak, rather than on a losing streak like we've been, you have a better chance of pulling out a game like this. I think the team gave it everything they had and played well. Substitutions that we made helped us a lot, and it is certainly something we will continue.

"Right now, we need a victory more than anything else." North Carolina coach Dean Smith said, "Wake Forest was very well prepared, and we were surprised by their press early in the game. That was a very good move on the part of Coach Tacy. I thought the key to our victory was our defense late in the game."

Wake Forest jumped out to a 12-3 lead on its early full court press. In the second half the biggest lead was North Carolina's 60-55. The regulation time ended 77-all as Skip Brown of Wake Forest missed what could have been the winning basket in the last two seconds off the four corners offense. Both teams used the four corners in the last three and one-half minutes.

Mitch Kupshack had 26 points and Tom LaGarde 19 for the Tar Heels, who are 14-2 in all games and lead the conference at 6-1. Rod Griffin had 22 and Jerry Schellenberg 18 for the Deacons.

Seven-foot-1 Wayne "Tree" Rollins led Clemson to an 89-65 victory at home over Furman by scoring 18 points, snaring 16 rebounds and blocking six shots.

It was the fifth victory in their last six games for the Tigers, who are 14-4. Furman of the Southern Conference has lost seven of its last eight and 12 of its 16.

Virginia lost 71-58 at independent West Virginia as its star, Wally Walker, was held to just three points. He had been averaging 22, but Stan Boskovich of the Mountaineers not only contained him, but also scored 19 points himself. Billy Langloh had 22 for the Cavaliers, who now are 11-7. WVU is 9-6.

ACC teams are idle until Saturday, when Maryland will be at Notre Dame, Clemson at North Carolina, N.C. State at Virginia, West Virginia at Duke and Wake Forest home to St. Francis of Pennsylvania. Maryland at Notre Dame will be nationally televised, and N.C. State at Virginia will be on regional TV.

North Pitt Rolls By C.B. Aycock, 82-63

BETHEL—North Pitt swept a three-game set from Charles B. Aycock High School last night in the Eastern Carolina Conference. The Panthers took an 82-63 win in the boys' varsity game, and the girls' rolled up a 52-39 win. The junior varsity finished it off with a 52-45 victory.

In the girls' contest, North Pitt edged out to a 14-10 lead after one period. The Pant-HERS then nearly shut out Aycock in the second, outthumping them, 17-2, for a 31-12 halftime lead.

The Big Orange boosted their lead to 47-23, in the third period, and allowed a 16-5 rally by Aycock in the last. Kathi Manning led Aycock with 20 points, while Mable James added 11 and Joy Forbes had 10. M. Jones led Aycock with 23.

The Panthers jumped away to a 20-12 lead in the first period of the boys' game and were never in trouble after that. They outthumped Aycock in a slugfest, 24-22, in the second period for a 44-34 halftime edge.

The Panthers slowed down somewhat in the third, but still boosted the lead to 61-43. They outthumped Aycock, 21-20, in the final quarter. Donnie Perkins led North Pitt with 25 points, while Virgil Pilgreen had 12 and Jesse Harris had 10. Dunn led Aycock with 20, while Summerlin had 12.

The Panthers travel to North Lenoir on Friday. JV—North Pitt 52, C. B. Aycock 45. Girl's Game C. B. Aycock—Winton 8, Cobb 3, M. Jones 2, Seals 2, Teachy 3, Ballance, Deer, J. Jones, Davis, Grantham, Taylor, Chase, A. Hooks.

Williamston Pins Ahoskie

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston High School used forfeits to help itself to a 43-27 victory over Ahoskie last night in a wrestling match.

The Tigers picked up eight of the 13 weight classes, but four of their victories came on forfeits, giving them 24 points. They added the other four victories on two pins, a regular decision and a major decision. Ahoskie won the remaining five matches, including four by pins.

Williamston's Sam Short lost his first match of the year and is now 9-1, while Greg Peele, Kelvin Horton and Larry Gray all upped their records to 7-2.

Williamston, now 5-4-1, hosts Plymouth tonight. Summary: 100: Tim Warren (W) won by forfeit.

107: Larry Gray (W) won by forfeit.

114: Tim Rose (A) decided Terry Gainer, 10-7.

121: Reginald Speller (W) decided Telfia Williams, 12-4.

128: Joe Powell (A) pinned Carl Slade, 5:45.

Southern Nash Tops Panthers

SPRING HOPE — Southern Nash gained a 35-28 victory over North Pitt High School in an Eastern Carolina Conference wrestling match last night.

The Firebirds took seven weight classes, including four by forfeits, giving them a bonus of 24 points to open with. Their other three wins included one superior decision.

North Pitt took the remaining five weights, winning three on pins, one by forfeit and one by a major decision. One match was a double forfeit.

Aubrey Wynn returned to action following an injury, raising his Panther record to 12-0. Randy Tyler upped his record to 16-2 for the year.

North Pitt hosts Southern Wayne on Friday. Summary: 100: Keith Mann (SN) won by forfeit.

Conley Matmen Down Chargers

LITTLEFIELD—D. H. Conley's Viking wrestlers returned to action last night and romped to a 56-3 decision over Ayden-Grifton.

The Vikes won 10 of the 11 matches, losing only one decision to the Chargers. Two matches ended in double forfeits.

Of Conley's wins, six came on pins, and one via a superior decision.

Individually, James Johnson of Conley raised his record to 14-0-1, while Lo Carmon climbed to 14-1, Jesse Davis to 14-2-1, Charles Hanson to 14-2-1, and Floyd Crandell to 13-2-1. Ayden-Grifton's Randy Jones suffered his second loss and is now 7-2. Ayden-Grifton is now 1-4, and travels to Farmville Central on Friday. Conley, now 9-1, entertains Southern Nash on Friday.

Some Facilities Won't Be Ready

MONTREAL (AP) — The main Olympic stadium and swimming hall will be ready for the 1976 Summer Games in July, although some of the facilities will be temporary.

Quebec Municipal Affairs Minister Victor Goldbloom, who is responsible for the Olympics installations board, told a news conference Wednesday the stadium will be completed at a more relaxed pace after the Games are over.

The news conference was billed two weeks ago as the moment for the announcement of a decision on whether the Summer Olympics were to take place.

"It is clear that the facilities will not be complete," Goldbloom said. "But facilities for athletes, officials and spectators will be sufficiently complete for the holding of the Games."

The optimistic prediction by Goldbloom was based on continuing good labor relations on the Olympic site.

"Success is of course conditional on the continued close cooperation of all concerned," he said, adding he hoped the workers' sense of pride would prevent any walkouts in the future.

While he said no specific assurance had been given that further labor disputes would not disrupt the current completion schedule, he said he was heartened by reports from board members concerning their daily meetings with union representatives on the site.

A "disaster plan" was still available, Goldbloom said, in case the stadium could not be finished in time for the opening. He refused to reveal details of this plan.

The minister would not say which facilities would not be completed by the Games' opening July 17 on the grounds that the information is contained in a progress report which will be given to the International Olympic Committee.

This report is to be presented to the IOC Executive Committee on Saturday and to the full committee on Monday in meetings in Innsbruck, Austria, where this year's Winter Olympics are being held.

The Canadian delegation to the IOC meetings is to be headed by Goldbloom and Roger Rousseau, president of the Montreal Olympic Organizing Committee.

The only indication of what facilities would be temporary concerned seating in the stadium which is to hold 65,000 to 70,000 spectators for the opening and closing ceremonies, Goldbloom said.

There may be more than the originally planned 15,000 to 20,000 temporary seats, he said.

Meanwhile in London, IOC President Lord Killanin said he deplored the huge amounts of money being spent on the Montreal Games.

Total Olympic costs are estimated to be a billion dollars with a projected deficit of $600 million.

He said he believed Olympic organizers could have avoided some of the effects of inflation if they had been quicker in getting their construction plans under way.

Pride Continues To Be Big Thing For Boston As They Down Atlanta

By The Associated Press
The Boston Celtics have won 12 National Basketball Association championships with a basketful of talent, but their biggest asset through the years has been something intangible.

It's called "pride" — and that's what the Celtics used to beat the Atlanta Hawks Wednesday night, according to Cotton Fitzsimmons.

"Celtics pride turned it around," said the Atlanta coach after losing a 110-99 decision at the Boston Garden Wednesday night.

"They were ripe for a beating. We had a tough game in New York Tuesday night, but I felt if we could control the tempo we had a good chance. We did — right up to the third period.

"They broke our patterns with their pushing and shoving.

The difference in the game was Celtics' pride. They won. It's no reflection on our team. We are young and don't have a history like the Celtics."

Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn was less romantic in his assessment of the game.

"Paul Silas and John Havlicek turned the rhythm around for us in the third period," he said. "That gave us momentum. After we gained the lead, Steve Kuberski and Glenn McDonald came in and broke it open. They got us running."

In the other NBA games, the Houston Rockets beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 106-83; the Chicago Bulls stopped the Detroit Pistons 87-84; the Buffalo Braves outscored the New Orleans Jazz 126-112; the Los Angeles Lakers trimmed the Phoenix Suns 121-118 and the Portland Trail Blazers whipped the Seattle SuperSonics 124-104. Havlicek and Charlie Scott led a balanced attack with 17 points each and Boston erupted for 69 points in the second half as the Celtics posted their fourth consecutive victory and seventh in the last eight games.

Rockets 108, Cavaliers 93
Houston, led by Calvin Murphy, outscored Cleveland 17-2 in the first five minutes of the third quarter and rallied to beat the Cavaliers. Murphy scored 25 points overall.

Bulls 87, Pistons 84
Jack Marin hit 11 of his 16 points in the fourth quarter to help Chicago beat Detroit. The victory was only the 14th in 45 games for the Bulls, who have the poorest record in the league.

Braves 126, Jazz 112
Randy scored 34 points, Bob McAdoo 31 and Jim McMillian

26 to lead Buffalo past New Orleans.

Lakers 121, Suns 118
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 28 points and blocked several shots in the fourth quarter to lead Los Angeles past Phoenix. Blazers 124, Sonics 104
Geoff Petrie poured in 24 points to pace Portland over Seattle.

Aycock In Mat Victory

E. B. Aycock Junior High School ran its wrestling record to 4-1 with a 33-8 romp past Rocky Mount yesterday.

The Jaguars took all but three of the weights, losing two and drawing one. They also won five of six exhibition matches held. Aycock goes to Kinston next Wednesday.

W&M, Furman Handed Losses

By The Associated Press
William and Mary and Furman of the Southern Conference are licking their wounds today after taking it on the nose from nonleague opponents.

Virginia Tech's Gobblers, ranked 20th in the country, rolled over William and Mary Wednesday night 105-79 while Clemson ripped Furman 89-65.

The Gobblers hit 45 of 57 free throws with Russell Davis converting 19 straight for their 15th victory in 18 starts.

Davis paced the Gobblers with 27 points followed by Larry Cooke with 19 and Dave Sensibaugh with 18.

John Lowenhaupt led William and Mary, now 8-8, with 26 points.

Six Clemson players scored in double figures with Wayne "Tree" Rollins racking up 18 points, 16 rebounds and six blocked shots. The victory was the Tigers 14th in 18 starts.

Stan Rome had 14 points and Greg Coles and David Brown 13 each for the winners.

The Paladins, who have lost seven of their last games and 12 out of 16, were led by Tim Strickland, who scored 22 points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

In tonight's games involving league teams, Davidson hosts Cal-Santa Barbara, Richmond entertains Virginia Commonwealth and Virginia Military hosts Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Rabin Vows Keep PLO Out Of Negotiations

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The focus of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's visit here has shifted momentarily from the issue of American military aid to his determination to keep the question of Palestinian nationalism out of the next round of Middle East negotiations.

Rabin came here with two goals: to restore a $500-million cut in American arms assistance and to stop any erosion of American support for his anti-Palestine plan. Privately, U.S. officials had hoped Rabin might show some flexibility on the questions, particularly on the Palestinian issue. However, his speech Wednesday to a joint meeting of the House and Senate was noteworthy because he gave no sign of flexibility. For instance, he stated he would not deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization, even though every Arab nation and the Soviet Union has designated the PLO as the rightful representative of the Palestinian people.

Rabin said the PLO's charter, written in 1964, is still accepted as policy although it calls for replacing Israel with a nonreligious state.

"No honest being can blame us for refusing to cooperate in our national suicide," Rabin told the less-than-crowded House chamber.

"Peace will come when the Arab leaders finally cross the Rubicon from aggressive confrontation to harmonious reconciliation. Then, there is no problem between us that cannot be solved in negotiation," he said.

Rabin then called for resumption of the Geneva peace conference established in 1973 after the latest Middle East war.

But he made clear such a conference should deal with the Palestinian question only as part of a settlement between Israel and Jordan.

This position has been rejected already by the Arabs and Russia, who say the PLO must be invited to speak for the Palestinians.

Rabin also touched indirectly on the question of arms aid, saying the cuts proposed by Ford will seriously weaken his country.

It must be recognized, he said, that "it will be our future strength that will largely determine the resources of peace in our region. Weakness is no prescription for negotiation."

N.C. Taxation Laws Studied

In 1971, those families with yearly incomes of $1,150 or less paid 19.7 per cent of their incomes in North Carolina state and local taxes, whereas families with yearly incomes of over $7,500 paid only 8.6 per cent of their incomes in state and local taxes.

If you buy a $6,000 car, you must pay $120 in N.C. tax. If you buy a $12,000 car, you still pay only $120 in N.C. tax.

These facts were among those brought out at the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters' (LWV) unit meetings held Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Several league members reported their findings on a continuing study of the taxation system in North Carolina.

Seventy per cent of the total revenue collected in North Carolina is collected by the state and 30 per cent by local governments. North Carolina raises most of its revenue through the sales tax (including the tax on food), property tax, and income tax.

Those families with incomes of $1,150 or less pay a higher percentage of their incomes in sales and property taxes than any other income group. People who rent rather than own property nevertheless pay property tax in their monthly rental payments.

The food tax is particularly hard on the poor. A family whose income is $1,150 or less pays 4.9 per cent of its income in food tax, whereas a family which has an income of over $7,500 pays considerably less than 1 per cent of its income in food taxes.

At subsequent LWV meetings, the tax structure of North Carolina will be studied in more detail in order that the North Carolina LWV can decide on a position regarding the N.C. tax system.

Suit Filed On Commitments

GREENSBORO (AP) — A suit asks that enforcement of North Carolina's involuntary commitment law be prohibited until a person's due process rights are complied with.

The class-action suit has been filed by Legal Aid in U.S. Middle District Court in behalf of Roy Kirk French III of Winston-Salem. He was released Wednesday from Reynolds Health Center on order of a state District Court judge after staying there nine days on petition of his mother.

The suit asks that involuntary commitment "procedures by clerks of Superior Court be enjoined until they notify the federal court in writing that all due process rights have been observed. The suit seeks to declare unconstitutional the present procedure of committing people who are considered imminently dangerous to themselves or others.

At present, clerks of court issue a custody order which requires a law enforcement officer to take a person into custody for examination by a qualified physician. If the doctor determines that the person is imminently dangerous, he can recommend hospitalization against the person's will. The clerk of court then issues a notice of hearing.

The suit alleges that this procedure fails to provide: —A probable cause hearing following the initial commitment. —The right to trial by jury. —Proof beyond reasonable doubt that the person is both mentally ill and dangerous to himself and others.

—Assurance that the person is informed of his rights against self-incrimination. —And fails to provide the person with the right to know the names of examining physicians and others who might testify in favor of continued detention.

New Center At Triangle

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $64 million headquarters for the National Institute of Environmental Health Services at Research Triangle Park, N.C., is virtually certain, Rep. Ike Andrews, D-N.C., said Wednesday. Included in the Labor-Health, Education and Welfare appropriation bill that President Ford vetoed and Congress overrode was some $25 million for the early phases of the project, Andrews said. Also in that bill was almost $43.5 million in operating funds for the agency, he said.

The federal agency conducts research into the effects of potentially toxic agents on human health. Andrews termed that research vital for the national well being. The federal Environmental Protection Agency is also headquartered at Research Triangle Park.

The additional $39 million to complete construction of the headquarters will be appropriated by Congress during the next two fiscal years, Andrews said. By 1980, the agency will employ 1,200 persons, many of them scientists and technicians, he said. Now, the agency employs some 380 persons at its temporary headquarters in Research Triangle Park.

Andrews predicted the President may try to withhold spending of the funds for the project, but added, "I believe the major battle is over. We won it and the permanent facility should be a reality by 1980."

Dog's Life

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A dog in Charlotte drinks beer, has his own bank account and lives in a $650 dog house that has a blue shag rug.

The 3½-year-old boxer, named Judge eats at the table with his master, 40-year-old Homer Myers, bathes in the bathtub, and has a weekly appointment with the veterinarian.

Judge earns his keep by appearing in television commercials and at parades and other functions. The dog wears a helmet and sunglasses when he takes a spin with his master on a motorcycle.

A Wachovia bank in Charlotte honors Judge's signature—made with an inked paw.

The federal judicial system begins with the district court. There are 94 of these courts, at least one in each state.

FFA Foundation Receives Charter

The North Carolina FFA Foundation received its Charter to begin business with the signing of the Charter by Secretary of State Thad Eure in his office in Raleigh January 22. Young FFA members of North Carolina will now have a new arm of support for their leadership training and other worthwhile programs.

This means that funds may be secured to promote the FFA and its many goals. One of the first major goals is to improve the FFA Camps at Asheville, White Lake, and Swansboro. These camps, began about 42 years ago as CCC Camps and have deteriorated. They need considerable rebuilding to upgrade them to their proper condition, safety, and usefulness.

Meeting with Secretary of State Thad Eure at the signing of the charter were: Gerald Hayes, attorney of Dunn, who will lend legal assistance to the foundation; Charles L. Keels, Cary, who is executive secretary of the FFA Association, C. V. Tart, Chief Consultant of Agricultural Education, Raleigh; W. J. Walls, Raleigh, consultant who also helps work with the FFA Leadership Camps; Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of education; and Oliver O. Manning, Dunn, who will direct the FFA Foundation during its initial stages of growth.

Names Fit The Jobs Involved

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — When Dr. Gordon Snow contacts the Office of Emergency Services for a report on drought conditions, he could ask for Everett Blizzard.

Blizzard handles county requests for emergency declarations, and Snow is a special assistant in the state Department of Food and Agriculture. And, in heading a task force studying effects of lack of rain and snow in California this winter, Snow says he confers with a weather forecaster for the state's Department of Water Resources named Rainwater.

Friday Holiday In City Schools

Glenn L. Cox, superintendent of Greenville City Schools reminds school patrons that Friday is a scheduled student holiday.

The holiday is scheduled to allow teachers to have a day at school to participate in scheduled in-service training activities and to have an opportunity to complete necessary administrative and clerical duties without interfering with the instructional program.

Terrorists Raid Offices

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Fifteen terrorists including two women burst into the offices of the local subsidiary of the Bendix Corp. of New York today and shot and killed two Argentine executives, police said.

A provincial policeman was killed when the terrorists exchanged shots with company guards during their escape, police added.

The motive for the attack was not immediately known. In a separate incident, police shot and killed three leftist terrorists trying to avoid a vehicle checkpoint in a Buenos Aires suburb. Two policemen were slightly injured in that incident.

On Wednesday, terrorists shot and killed one policeman and wounded another as the policemen stood on a street. A merchant and his two young sons were wounded by stray bullets.

More than 1,700 persons have died in political violence since Isabel Peron assumed the presidency following the death of her husband, Juan D. Peron 19 months ago.

Wargaming Grips Thousands Of World Hobbyists

HOBBYISTS — Members of the Southwest Ass'n of Tacticians take part in "Wargaming," the fighting of battles in miniature. (UPI Photo)

By E.T. McCLANAHAN
ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Waves of gaunt Confederate infantrymen in shapeseless, brimmed hats and tattered gray blanket rolls surged across the field, picking their way through a maze of corpses, discarded muskets and shattered artillery.

Their equipment clinked softly as they ambled toward a fence and took up defensive positions. On the far side of a shallow creek federal regiments massed for an expected attack, and charged.

The Union infantry plunged into a storm of Rebel musket and artillery fire. The charge was a messy, violent swirl of blue uniforms and white water, rearing horses, falling bodies and contorted faces.

The battle happened more than a century ago, but it was being refought by seven would-be generals craning over a 5x10-foot board covered with miniature forests and hills, and hundreds of tiny, hand-painted figures.

Wargaming — the fighting of battles in miniature — is a hobby enjoyed by thousands of British and American enthusiasts who meet regularly to maneuver their troops or bicker about how Napoleon was really defeated at Waterloo or the true number of Greeks who fought the Persians at Thermopylae.

"It's a sophisticated hobby," said Jon Baxley, co-owner of a hobby store which serves as headquarters for the Southwest Association of Tacticians (SWAT).

"It provides the intricacy of an ordered contest and the fun of collecting pieces. It's not like a stamp collection, where you put the stamps away in a book and forget about them."

Baxley, who operates his store with Les Powell, is gamesmaster for the elaborate weekend battles staged by the 60 SWAT members, who include a retired Navy captain, four or five insurance agents, two college professors and several college students.

Baxley said there are more than 450,000 wargamers in the United States.

In Britain, where the youthful Winston Churchill was one of the first wargamers to use the new, highly-detailed, lead figurines, there are more than 35 active groups recreating the scenes of the War of the Roses or the Napoleonic Campaigns.

Although the initial setting of a miniature battle follows history as closely as possible, once the first orders go out to the troops anything can happen. The skill of the generals is pitted against chance and the opposition.

A recent SWAT staging of the Civil War Battle of Antietam progressed under an elaborate set of rules with infantry allowed to move no more than 15 centimeters on one turn and artillery limited in range to 70 centimeters.

The "generals" come equipped with yardsticks and measuring tapes to check distances between formations to see if the enemy is in range.

The deciding factors of a battle — effectiveness of fire, casualties and even morale — are determined by rolls of the dice.

Although the Confederates at the SWAT battle were routed in the end, they scored some early successes.

Tom Glaser, commanding the 4th Georgia and 4th Texas Infantry Regiments, routed the Union's 560-man "Garibaldi Guards" Regiment. It was deemed a notable success, and SWAT members fighting in adjacent rooms came in to see what all the yelling was about.

"Goodbye, Garibaldi!" whooped Glaser, a 23-year-old insurance management trainee. "I lost two caissons and a lot of ammunition, but it was worth it."

"Routed? The Garibaldi?" said one long-haired player fresh from the Napoleonic Wars. "How did that happen? I've never seen the Garibaldi, run. I've seen 'em die to a man, about six times but I've never seen 'em run."

Wargaming is not completely recreational. Baxley said many of the rules in use in today's battles were developed by the Rand Corporation after World War II for training real generals.

During World War II, the Japanese first played out their attack at the Battle of Midway on the game board, an exercise involving thousands of tiny planes, pilots and ships — with distressing results. They went ahead with the same plan for the real battle and ended up losing the same number of aircraft carriers lost on the game board.

Baxley said the popular conception of wargamer as warmonger is unfounded.

"That's one misconception of the hobby that's unfortunate," he said. "But it's something that's beginning to die out and people are realizing it's just a hobby that's pursued for pleasure."

Baxley, returning to action on the board, gave these orders: "Let's go people. I wanna get the troops put away by 11."

Complaints On Mexican Jails Substantiated

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says it has substantiated nearly 250 complaints by Americans who say they have been mistreated, denied access to American officials or subjected to physical abuse while being held in Mexican jails.

national political and military affairs subcommittee that the panel had a difficult time substantiating complaints of physical abuse because allegations were made months after the incidents.

He said problems existed in confirming allegations that personal property was confiscated from prisoners because few receipts were given or records kept.

However, he said, "the panel believes that these complaints and allegations have some merit since they form a credible pattern."

He said reports of physical abuse, often designed to coerce prisoners into signing statements in Spanish without the benefit of a translation, continue to be received by the State Department, and a number of them appear valid.

He said in some cases prisoners have indicated to consular officials that they did not wish U.S. officials to protest the treatment for fear a protest would provoke reprisals by Mexican prison officials.

This Is Anniversary Of State's Voting Haven For Mentally Ill

By Dr. H. G. Jones, Curator North Carolina Collection For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL (AP) — January 29 marks the anniversary of the passage of legislation in 1848 authorizing North Carolina's first state hospital for the mentally ill.

county could reduce its "poor tax" proportionately. Some opponents criticized the legislation as neglecting the poor in favor of the insane.

A rigid procedure for admission was designed to give preference to those dangerous to the safety of the community. An inquest was required to enable the justice of the peace to certify that "I am well satisfied, that his being at large is injurious to himself and disadvantageous, if not dangerous, to the country."

named for her grandfather, Dr. Elijah Dix, in whose home she spent much of her childhood.

It was not until 1959 that the institution was officially named the Dorothea Dix Hospital, thus overriding her objections of a century earlier.

Miss Dix's influence was demonstrated during her survey of facilities for the insane in the United States. She came to North Carolina in 1848 and presented a "Memorial to the General Assembly of North Carolina" which asked for $100,000 for the construction of a hospital.

A bill to carry out her proposal appeared to be doomed. Among the factors that changed the outlook was the interest of the Democratic floor leader, James D. Dobbin of Fayetteville, whose fatally ill wife Miss Dix had befriended and nursed. Tradition credits Dobbin's stirring appeal the additional votes needed to pass the bill on the last day of the legislative session on January 29, 1849.

The act culminated years of effort on the part of humanitarians who were concerned over the absence of a haven for the insane. Most counties had nothing more than the "poor house" or the jail for the mentally ill, and consequently thousands were harbored at home. Some were chained or kept locked up, the objects of scorn or pity, depending upon the gentleness of the family.

The act continued, "In order of admission, the indigent insane of the State shall have precedence of the rich, and recent cases of both classes shall have precedence over those of long standing."

On the same day the General Assembly adopted a supplemental act which directed that the asylum be located "not less than three miles of the City of Raleigh, but not within the City." Obviously such an institution was not considered appropriate for a residential area.

Alexander Jackson Davis, who became recognized as one of the country's most versatile architects, was chosen to design the building, and construction began about 1850 and was completed about 1856. The splendid main building—now drastically remodeled—was sketched in 1857 by Harper's Porte Crayon, thus recording for posterity the proud work for North Carolina's unfortunate.

Most stories on the hospital dwell upon its name. But Miss Dorothea Lynde Dix, a Massachusetts humanitarian who did indeed exert considerable influence in obtaining legislative approval of the institution, declined to allow the state to name it after her. She did, however, consent to its being

The basic act "for the establishment of a State Hospital for the Insane" appointed commissioners to select a site for the hospital and established procedures for admitting up to 250 patients. Commissioners were John M. Morehead of Guilford, Calvin Graves of Caswell, T. N. Cameron of Cumberland, G. W. Mordecai of Wake, C. L. Hinton of Wake, and J. O. Watson of Johnston.

Provision for a "never-failing supply of wholesome water" was specified, and the site was to be "conveniently situated for receiving supplies of fuel, either wood or coal." The building was to be constructed "in the most approved manner, after the most recent and accepted plans, embracing all improvements and necessary accommodations for institutions of this description."

To pay for the land and buildings, the act levied a tax of one and three quarters cents on each hundred dollars worth of land in North Carolina and a poll tax of five and a quarter cents, with provision that each back in that old cavalry uniform after all these years?

"Great," he says, still tall and handsome at 55. "That was my favorite role of them all — that and the first picture I did for Howard Hawks, 'Air Force.'"

Brown's reference to that 1942 film should clear up any confusion you have about his name. This James Brown is neither the football star-turned-actor, Jim Brown, nor the soul singer, James Brown.

But never mind the sentimentality of it. Brown was happy to get any work at all. He'd been attempting an acting comeback for two years, and it was going so poorly that he says he was ready to accept one of several job offers to return to the business world, where he'd labored happily from the late '60s through 1973, first as head of a health product firm and then as customer relations manager for Faberge.

So the folks at SFM Media aren't the only ones hoping that "Rin Tin Tin" still has the old drawing power. James Brown does, too.

Comeback Hope For Rin Tin Tin

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — What can possibly be new about a television series made 20 years ago?

Nothing, as a rule. But the folks who decided to put "Rin Tin Tin" into reruns on independent stations across the country a few weeks ago were looking to do more than simply cash in on the nostalgia boom.

They wanted a quality product that not only would attract big advertising bucks but also a new generation of children — thereby creating a market for merchandising "Rin Tin Tin" toys and games.

So SFM Media Service Group, the company that is syndicating the program, edited a few minutes out of each of the 164 episodes and filmed up Rin Tin Tin VII to round new, color introductions and epilogues to each one. In addition, the black and white film from the original was tinted so there would be some color to it.

And they did one other thing. They found actor James Brown and persuaded him to appear in the new prologues as Lt. Rip Masters — the role he starred in from 1954 to 1959 when the original "Rin Tin Tin" was made for television. Now, with rustic Kanab, Utah, as the setting, Masters acts as a storyteller for visiting children. "Why, I remember the time Rinty and I..."

Solar-Powered Slot Cars Demonstrate System

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) — Watching a solar cell work is about as exciting as watching light go through glass. So some engineers have come up with "solar powered slot cars" to show off their new way of getting energy from the sun.

The comparison is appropriate, because solar cells are basically the same as glass, according to slot car builder William Kurth, senior engineer at Mobil Tyco Solar Energy Corp. Both are made of silicon.

Kurth is pretty excited about a process for making solar cells developed by his company, jointly owned by Mobil Oil and Tyco Labs of Waltham. Right now, it costs a minimum of $10 to buy solar cells that can generate 1,000 watts of power.

His company has a process which, in two years, will generate 1,000 watts with power cells costing $2.

"If a house is not heated with electricity, it would cost $6,000 for 300 square feet of solar cells. Once, after that, the electricity is free," Kurth said. "Most single-family houses are big enough to handle the cells on their roofs."

Still, Kurth found that people couldn't get very excited about the cells. "It's solid state. Nothing moves," he explained.

One day, he had some cells taken from the manufacturing line for testing. Kurth, aided by staff engineer Eric Tornstrom, decided the left over cells could put some action into their demonstrations.

"We took a toy racing car set and powered it with 378 cells, combined into one 3-foot by one-and-a-half-foot panel," Kurth said.

"It is not too useful to humanity, but it does demonstrate the principles," he said. "It has batteries for cloudy days or use at night."

The solar power slot car got its first major tryout in September at a Massachusetts Audubon Society seminar on solar energy. Kurth said it was an unqualified success.

"It was outdoors, a very sunny day. The cells made enough power to run it all day and completely charge the battery besides. It was a very good draw. We thought it would be juvenile, perhaps, the moving cars, the action, the fact you could see it was solid state, attracted everyone's at-ention."

Any doubts about the effectiveness of the demonstration were shattered when Mobil executives came to Waltham for a progress report and spent much of their time on their knees, racing each other's slot cars.

The cells are similar to those used in spacecraft. The difference is in the manufacturing process, Kurth said, the way silicon is grown in sheets.

The process was developed at Tyco for growing Sapphire in 1968 and was first applied to silicon two years ago.

The cells are not much more efficient than what the government calls "space cells." Only about 10 per cent of the energy from the sun which falls on them is converted into electricity.

"I think, actually, a completely self sustaining remote power installation is possible right now, but it would be expensive," Kurth said. "We're planning for about 65 per cent electric supply for a house in the northeast, with perhaps 15 per cent supplied by the electric company.

"They don't like those kinds of figures. There is a problem with the electric companies right now. I think it will be resolved."

The cells last a long time. The first ones, built by Bell Telephone Laboratories 15 years ago, are still in operation. Like glass, they are fragile and must be protected from sharp blows.

There have been predictions of a solar-powered future before, Kurth was reminded. Is he confident of his?

"I was skeptical at first too," he answered. "But after two years I am convinced. I wouldn't be working here if I didn't believe in it."

Minister Has Planning Old Global 'Flock' Time Service

YORK Memorial AME Zion Church will host an "Ole Time Religion" service Sunday at 5 p.m. The service will depict the early Black Folk religious services. Special speaker for the service will be Rev. James E. Vance, singer, evangelist and minister from Kinston. Also Rev. W. C. Dortch of Kinston will sing his version of "Peace Be Still." Other special speakers include Rev. Dave Hammond and Dr. Andrew A. Best.

Music will be by the York Memorial Choirs and volunteer choirs from the Pitt County area. Raymond W. Williams will conduct the old time religion choirs.

Various musical instruments will also be used in the service including the drums, tambourines and guitars. Organists Roger Ingram, Gloria Stevens, Sandra Moore, Shirley Williams, E. M. Porteur, R. B. Williams and Mrs. W. C. Dortch will also perform.

Testimonial services will be led by Mrs. Waddell Brown and Christine Blount at 4:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

TULSA (AP) — The Rev. Wishard Lemons is a modern version of the old-fashioned circuit preacher.

But unlike his counterparts of past years, Lemons' route stretches from the Arctic North Slope to the steaming jungles of Borneo. He makes his rounds by plane and helicopter.

The Rev. Mr. Lemons, an associate minister of Tulsa's First Methodist Church, ministers to crews who work on rigs of the Parker Drilling Co.

The ministry is an idea of Dr. L.D. Thomas, senior minister at the church, and Robert L. Parker, president of the oil and gas drilling company and a member of the church's board of trustees.

Dr. Thomas made the first trip to the North Slope and, after that, decided his associate was the staff member most suited to the unusual function.

The next trip for the Rev. Mr. Lemons will be to the North Slope early in 1976.

"It's their greatest time of activity," he said of the mid-winter date. "The men work in special cocoons to allow them to handle iron and steel without their fingers' sticking to the metal."

He has been to the jungles of Peru and Ecuador twice and plans a return to Borneo because his first mission there was cut short by a ruptured appendix.

Reared in Oklahoma and Texas, he has "known drillers and tool pushers most of my life."

"But, though these fellows in the foreign jobs are Americans, they are a different kind of person from the men I've known who held similar jobs in the United States.

"Many of them have been in those remote areas for long periods of time and gradually they've cut most of their ties with the homeland. That job, that little patch of land where they work, their crew and the places they go for rest and relaxation have become, for most of them, their whole life."

The minister confesses he was uncertain what he would do the first time he went out.

"I don't go with any hidden agenda or a card up my sleeve," he said. "I was reassured when I learned the guys were just as uncomfortable as I was."

Initiate New Honor Chilly With Society's Chapter Sunshine

Seventy-three students with outstanding academic records during their freshman year at East Carolina University were initiated Wednesday into the newly-established Epsilon chapter of Phi Eta Sigma.

Phi Eta Sigma is a national freshman honor society recognizing academic excellence during a student's first year in college.

Assisting in the initiation ceremonies were charter members of the new ECU chapter of Phi Eta Sigma and Dr. John D. Ebb, Professor of English, who serves as faculty advisor. Charter members are Donna Alligood, Robert Harrell, Robin McKee, Debbie Moore, James Rogers, Connie Rose, Frank Saubers, Renee Sims and Paul Tyndall.

It will become mostly sunny in North Carolina by this afternoon. Highs will range from the 30s in the mountains to the 50s on the coast.

Despite sunshine Wednesday, cold Canadian air hindered any significant rise of temperatures. Highs were mainly in the 40s. The warmest was 59 at Hatteras. On the cold side was 41 at Asheville.

A ridge of high pressure cleared skies nicely Wednesday. But a band of cloudiness moved rapidly across the state early this morning. It was associated with a reinforcement of the cold air from the west. This area of instability even caused a few light snow flurries in the mountains, especially in the Boone area.

The state should be cloud-free by late this afternoon, with fair skies continuing tonight and Friday. A rapidly moving storm system from the Canadian Rockies will move to the Ohio Valley by Friday evening. The presence of this system will cause some increasing cloudiness during the afternoon in the North Carolina mountains. It looks like this new system may cause precipitation over the state Saturday and Sunday. But high pressure scheduled to move in Monday will clear the skies. Temperatures will be on the cool side, since the absence of any strong southerly flow looks likely for the next few days.

Highs today and Friday will be from 30s in the mountains to the 50s on the coast. It will be slightly warmer over the weekend, but cooling again on Monday.

95-Year-Old Is On Dance Floor

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Ervin Stanley has to rest every so often during his twice-weekly evenings of whirling around the dance floor. He's 95 years old.

"I generally dance one or two dances and then I rest a while," Stanley said. "It hurts my knees after awhile. If the floor is slick, I can get around pretty good. If it's sticky, I get awful tired fast."

His partners at the Gay 90s Club on Wednesday and at the Friendship Club on Saturdays say Stanley is a good dancer, spy for his age.

"I like the two-step and waltzes," said Stanley, who began attending weekly dances to stay active after his third wife died 23 years ago.

THE PEARL IN THEIR OYSTER—Braving the winds and ice of Great South Bay, Long Island, these clam diggers join in search for their frozen assets: clams that are as precious to them as pearls in oysters. Self-employed, and armed with a rake or pair of tongs, the diggers usually work in teams to cut through the thick winter ice. (AP Wirephoto)

Deprived Self, Left A Fortune

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A friend of his said: "He washed his own clothes." His doctor said: "He was a crusty old guy."

And the broker who handled his huge stock portfolio said: "He was absolutely niggardly about spending money on himself."

He was Allen W. T. Davis—a thin, white-haired, 94-year-old man who owned only three pairs of $1.98 pants and who left about $1 million to charities in three states.

He died a week ago today in a lonely, 14th-floor downtown hotel room where he had lived since 1927. Davis, a native of Lexington, Ky., asked that he be buried in his pajamas in the cheapest casket available.

Because of the size of his stock portfolio, the executors of his estate say it will take some time to determine just how much money will be available to the charities.

In his latest will, dated last July, Davis gave equal shares of the estate to the Kentucky Lions Eye Foundation in Louisville, Ky.; the Mid-South Lions Sight Service in Memphis, Tenn.; and the Birmingham Eye Foundation and Goodwill Industries here. Another of Davis' friends said, "He denied himself daily for the eye foundation."

The third entry in this year's Bols Bridge Tips competition is by James Jacoby of Richardson, Texas. The son of bridge great Oswald Jacoby, Jim is the eighth-ranked player on the World Bridge Federation list of Grand Masters and the second-ranked American.

He is also the co-author, with his father, of a bridge column and a number of books.

Jacoby writes that it is easy to be lulled into complacency when playing a routine hand, and that could be dangerous. In particular, he warns that you should beware of bridge players bearing gifts. Those little nips of Bols could be poisoned! Consider this hand.

Once North supported his suit, South decided to gamble on a small slam. There was a good chance that North held the king of spades, but if he did not, South hoped he would be able to get to the North hand with a ruff to take a spade finesse.

West led the ace of hearts, and dummy was a great disappointment. Not only was the king of spades conspicuous by its absence, but the fact that dummy had three cards in each minor suit meant that declarer would be unable to get to dummy via a ruff. However, at trick two West continued with the queen of hearts, and dummy's king won.

Holding ten cards in a suit, the percentage play is to take the finesse. Declarer was about to run the jack of spades when a nasty thought struck him. West was not a player known for his charity towards his opponents. Yet, looking at a dummy which was probably entryless, he had obligingly provided declarer with an entry.

South reasoned that there could be only one explanation for West's sudden fit of generosity. West wanted declarer to take the spade finesse. If that were the case, it stood to reason that West did not want declarer to lay down the ace, which he would be forced to do had he been unable to get to dummy. So at trick three declarer led the jack of spades and rose with the ace, felling West's king and making the slam.

After all, charity begins at home

The doctor said Davis had some trouble hearing, but not with his sight. No one knew why he was so generous with the eye foundations.

"If he loved you, he loved you," the physician said. "If he didn't, he'd cuss you. He would deny himself not to run up a bill."

Mrs. Glendolyn Wilson, assistant restaurant manager in the hotel where Davis lived, said she got to know the frail-looking man just a few months ago. "He was brilliant," she said, "so full of wisdom."

Mrs. Wilson said once she learned that Davis fell and suffered a carpet burn on his leg.

When she stopped by to see how he was doing, Mrs. Wilson asked Davis if she could borrow a few dollars. He promptly handed the money to her. But, Mrs. Wilson said, when Davis found out she was going to buy some medicine for his leg, he took the money back.

Davis built his stock portfolio on a $4,000 inheritance in 1942.

As the years went by, he constantly monitored the stock ticker tape in the hotel.

When he wasn't watching the ticker, he would be at the Birmingham Public Library, where he checked out hundreds of books. He always tried to return the books on time to avoid library fines.

Davis ate lightly—mostly boiled eggs and grits. He drank a special concoction of whisky and honey with a touch of lemon juice.

On the door of the now vacant hotel room hung a sign that read: "If you haven't called me from the lobby, don't knock on this door."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JANUARY 30, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An important day to wind up whatever has been started and to refrain from beginning anything new which can be done tomorrow. Clear up kinks in any plans. Get a good night's rest. You really need it.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good pal can assist with annoying tasks, then you can get into some new project with enthusiasm. Forget the social in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Apply yourself and straighten out perplexing problems. Pay pressing bill. Be economical where pressure is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Clear up responsibilities, chores before delving into intriguing new outlet. A new contact could steer you wrong, be on guard.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use judgment about new ideas to avoid grave errors. Show more understanding for mate who may not be feeling well.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Please associates more and come to a far better understanding. Avoid one who opposes you. Keep out of any personal troubles.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Cooperate more with co-workers for more harmony. Fix your wardrobe for the busy times ahead. The new month will be active.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have important work so forget recreation until tomorrow when the planets are more favorable for such. Help younger one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get rid of points of tension at home which may be getting out of hand. Later, handle business affairs briskly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Care in driving avoids trouble and expense. In communicating with others, be on the peaceful side. Guard temper.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't be dismayed if temporarily out of cash, but consider your overall position, which is good. Find helpful new outlet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take the right kind of exercise and treatments to make you feel aces again and stop worrying about money.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You feel limited and want to lash out at others, but instead find a practical solution to your problems. Reap the benefits.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to solve problems by getting right at the root of them, so encourage this. Give as fine an education as possible so your progeny will become a boon to humanity upon reaching maturity. Do not neglect religious training early and give an opportunity to participate in sports. Build up the body here as well as the ego.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

DENIED PAROLE

Gray Steven Krist, convicted in the 1968 kidnaping of Florida land heiress Barbara Jane Mackle, has been denied parole by the Georgia State Board of Pardons and Paroles. Krist was given a life sentence in 1960 for the bizarre kidnaping in which Miss Mackle was buried in a coffin-like box for nearly four days in a pine forest near Atlanta. (AP Wirephoto)

Darting Emerges In Charlotte

By DENNIS ROGERS
 The Charlotte News
 Written for THE AP
 CHARLOTTE (AP) — "Dart shooters are better lovers" reads the sign in Charlie Hafner's Hule tavern.
 "You could turn it around and it would still be true," Hafner says. "And you find that dart shooters never lie."
 And the members of the Queen City Darting Association pause in their afternoon beer drinking — but only briefly — and allow as how that sure is true.
 Darting, long associated with English pubs, has come to Charlotte and the boys at Charlie's place take it very seriously, as seriously as $35 to buy their own tungsten steel, suede — encased, custom-made dart sets imported from England. The darts come three to a set, with plastic feathers, or flights.

 "It just got started at the old place on Tyvola Road when somebody stuck up a dart board one day," Hafner said. "We encouraged it but there was a group of Englishmen who came in here who were responsible for it growing like it has been going."
 "We just picked up the interest they started."
 Interest in dart shooting has grown so much that The Hule has organized a darting league with eight, four-man teams with four substitutes standing by. You don't just walk in and join the league. Rather you must go through a rigorous qualifying period after you have learned how to throw the darts.
 The boards, English-style naturally, are placed a regulation five feet eight inches from the floor and the darter throws from a regulation eight feet away.
 It isn't a matter of aiming for the bulls-eye. With an English board you have to hit various pie-shaped numbered sections of the board in specific order.
 "English boards separate the men from the boys," Charlie says.
 The guys at Charlie's place have gotten so interested in darting, in fact, that they have just finished a two-game battle against a darting team from Chapel Hill. The contest attracted 100 spectators.
 "We went down there and wiped them out," Hafner said. "But then they came up here and killed us. You sure don't have a home board advantage in this game."
 Now the fledgling Queen City Darting Association, affiliated with the American Darting Association, is looking for competition.

 "We're going around to other cities and bars here in Charlotte trying to get them to organize teams and help form their leagues," said Sam Bridgewater, a retired Special Forces soldier.

and it got to them. They played a couple of games and got hooked."
 "It's a relaxing kind of thing," said Jim Black. "You sit around, drink beer and play darts. And it's just as competitive as bowling or golf."

Now Facing Four Counts

LANDRUM, S.C. (AP)—Two additional charges have been placed against Joseph Lee Becknell, the Landrum water superintendent, in connection with pollution found in the Spartanburg County town's water supply.
 Charges of violating the environmental health act by polluting a creek were filed Wednesday in two Greenville County warrants.
 Judge Thomas J. DeZern committed Becknell, 25, to the state mental hospital in Columbia for 15 days' observation.
 The charges, in addition to two others filed earlier this week, make four against Becknell in connection with two incidents earlier this month in which the town's water supply was thought contaminated.
 Actually, a small amount of motor oil was placed in the city's water system and in some samples sent to the state Department of Health and Environmental Control.
 The approximately 1,300 customers of the city water system were without running water for five days the first time and overnight the second.
 Becknell was in charge of the Landrum water system for about a year. He was dismissed at the time of his arrest.
 Mayor Robert Cogdell said the contaminants placed in the Vaughn's Creek were not substances that could harm individuals but were of "sufficient quantity to be detected in our waterworks chemical analysis department."

ALL THIS FOR A DOG SHOW—A poodle, one of more than 2,400 entries for the 66th annual Golden Gate Kennel Club dog show in San Francisco, is all done up in curlers in preparation for the event. The show runs Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 at the Cow Palace in San Francisco. (AP Wirephoto)

In 1975, most North Carolina hog producers had a good year. Although feed costs were high, profits were made as high prices rose. So, what is ahead for the hog producer in 1976?

Information relating to supply and demand must be used to determine how it will affect prices. This information, compared with previous experience and how the future may vary from the past, will give an outlook for the coming year.

Because of stronger market prices, large U.S. feed crops, and lower feed costs, indications are that hog producers, in North Carolina and the rest of the country, are ready to expand their operations. Producers are intending to farrow 8 percent more sows during December, 1975 to May, 1976 than the previous year. If this 8 percent increase occurs, larger numbers of hogs should start reaching the market by the middle of the year, according to Extension swine specialists at North Carolina State University.

During the first quarter of 1976, numbers of hogs slaughtered are expected to be 13-15 percent lower than the first quarter of 1975. Hog slaughter numbers during the second quarter of 1976 may be 4-6 percent or less lower than in the second quarter of 1975. Slaughter numbers may increase by as much as 8-12 percent in the third quarter of 1976 as compared to the 1975 third quarter and increase to 15-20 percent higher in the fourth quarter. The second half of 1976 depends on what producers will do in the first half.

Higher hog prices and lower feed costs may result in an increase of market weights by producers during the first half of 1976. These heavier market weights, possibly 2-3 percent, will offset some of the supply decreases due to smaller numbers.

Demand for pork may increase 1-3 percent in 1976 due to potential increases in consumer incomes. Higher beef prices will add to the demand for pork during the first quarter of 1976 by 2-4 percent but will be less of a factor the rest of the year. Population will increase pork demand approximately one percent and overall inflation will tend to keep pork prices up. Thus, the demand for pork in the first quarter of 1976 will be 5-7 percent greater than the 1975 first quarter and will level off at about 3-5 percent above 1975 for the rest of the year.

The estimates of supply and demand in 1976 would lead to projected slaughter hog prices of $52-54 in the first quarter, $49-51 in the second and third, and $42-44 in the fourth. The fourth quarter of 1976 may give the first indication of the down-cycle as prices may fall quickly with no immediate prospects of recovery.

Feeder pig prices are determined by feed costs and expected prices of slaughter hogs. Current estimates are that corn will cost approximately $2.85-bu. for 1976 and soybean meal about $155-ton. These estimates along with projected slaughter hog prices, lead to price projections for 50 lb. feeder pigs at North Carolina markets to be $94-98-cwt in the first quarter, $80-84-cwt in the second, $78-82-cwt in the third, and $72-76-cwt in the fourth.

The prices of hogs and pigs are influenced by many factors. Some, the producer has no control over, others, he does. The producer can influence the price by using sound judgment and good management practices as North Carolina continues its rapid growth in the pork producing industry.
