HUD Okays Building Of 117 New Housing Units

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Approval has been given by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the construction of 117 units of new housing on a site located in the Southside area of Greenville.

with property owners in Southside, it was pointed out. In addition, the necessary bid contract documents can now be prepared by the architect. Commissioners discussed preliminary drawings of the proposed units to be located west of Evans Street between 18th and Deck Streets. A density of approximately eight units per acre is planned.

proposed site to be 38 feet. HUD concurred with the setting of 38 feet for the first floor elevation after the flood frequency figures were pointed out, the director added. Site appraisals and field work were completed by HUD in November, it was noted.

Authority's admission regulations, should help to reduce some of the time involved in occupancy reexaminations, Laney said. Laney, who attended a legislative seminar sponsored by the Southeast Region of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials recently in Washington, D.C., reported on the session and noted that the process involving housing and urban renewal legislation was explained.

matters involving public information. The assistant urged local officials to contact him if they have questions, Laney added. Section Eight housing was discussed during the seminar, according to the director, and it was pointed out that only 1,300 units of housing under the program is now under occupancy in the United States, compared with a target goal set by HUD for 400,000 units.

50-Foot Wave Hit Vessel Off N.C.

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) - Seven Navy crewmen of an amphibious transport ship on its way back from the Mediterranean were injured Monday when a 50-foot wave struck their vessel some 100 miles off North Carolina, the Navy said today.

One crewman of the 570-foot USS Shreveport, an amphibious transport dock, was reported in serious condition with fractured ribs and a broken leg, the Navy said.

The crewman, identified only as a staff officer of the vessel's parent command Amphibious Squadron Two, was evacuated by helicopter today.

"The wave was in excess of 50 feet and apparently just caught the ship," said a Navy spokesman. "The injured were inside the ship when the water hit."

He said most of the injured were on the flag bridge and were cut by flying glass.

The Shreveport and four other vessels of Amphibious Squadron Two - the USS El Paso, USS Inchon, USS Hermitage and USS

Fairfax County - were steaming for Morehead City with some 2,000 Marines of the 32nd Marine Amphibious Unit when the storm struck.

The Marines are based at Camp Lejeune and the vessels are stationed at Norfolk, Va., the spokesman said.

The Navy said the Inchon, an amphibious assault ship, may have suffered some minor structural damage.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the storm packed winds of 36 knots and churned up 30-foot seas "and that's pretty rough."

He said the El Paso, an amphibious cargo ship, and the Hermitage, a landing ship, managed to reach port but the other vessels spent the night "undergoing storm evasive measures" off the coast. They were due in port here today.

The storm was part of the same weather system that swept up the Atlantic Coast, dumping snow in the Northeast and raking the North Carolina coast with winds up to 83 miles per hour.

'Consensus' Is Attained For Redistricting Plan

By JERRY RAYNOR

Chances are that Alternative Number 1 will have clear sailing when official adoption time comes up Monday, February 16, the date the Greenville City School Board will take formal action to approve a redistricting plan to achieve racial balance in the city elementary schools for school years 1976-77 and 1977-78.

concensus favoring the recommendation presented by Supt. Glenn Cox for Alternative Number 1. "This recommendation is on behalf of myself and reflects the majority opinion of the school staff and faculty," Cox noted.

five. The sixth grade at that time is scheduled to be located in the currently projected new middle school. As a basic guideline factor to be considered in efforts to maintain a continuing racial balance, board members also reached a concensus to use a seven per cent variation figure as a permissible working arrangement. Current ratio figures, based on a recent (February 2) tabulation, shows the city wide racial ratio in the elementary level at 47.5 per cent black and 52.5 per cent white. Thus, in any individual school, percentages could range from 44 percent to 51 per cent black; and 49 per cent to 56 per cent white.

shifts of population or other factors that may create significant potential shifts in racial ratios. What this will actually entail will be reassignment for the school year 1976-77 of an estimated 303 black students and 382 white students, for a total of 685 projected reassignments. This figure represents about 25 per cent of Greenville's total elementary student body for the coming school year. Alternative Number 1, Cox stressed, will create the smallest number of student and teacher assignment of any of the alternatives under which a racial ratio could be achieved. He also noted that in making reassignments, every effort would be made to transfer on a neighborhood basis. "For example," Cox said, as of now black students from Moyewood are going to Eastern. We'd try not to split Moyewood in half to get quotas for reassignments."

Children Held As Hostages

DJIBOUTI, Afars and Issas Territory (AP) - An armed band hijacked a school bus today and took 21 children of French military families and the driver hostage, demanding unconditional independence for this strategic East African territory, French authorities said. The hijackers tried to take the bus into neighboring Somalia, but it was reported stopped in no man's land between the French and Somali border posts eight miles south of Djibouti, capital of the territory at the southern entry to the Red Sea.

Pessimism As North Ireland Seeks Formula

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Northern Ireland's constitutional convention began another attempt today to chart the strife-ridden province's political future, but nobody expected it to produce an agreement that will bring peace. Chairman Sir Robert Lowry, Ulster's lord chief justice, reflected the pessimism by saying the 78-member assembly in Stormont Castle was meeting "with more hope than confidence."

Catholic leader of the Social Democratic and Labor party. Protestant militants have repeatedly vowed they will not share power with the Catholic minority. They brought down a coalition of moderate Protestants and Catholics in the summer of 1974 after it had been in office only five months.

The British created the convention last May in the hope it would work out a compromise formula for power-sharing. But Protestant militants dominated it and last November rammed through a resolution recommending that the British government restore local majority rule, meaning Protestant rule, which London suspended in March 1972.

The British, as expected, refused and told the convention to try again. It gave it a month from today.

Moynihan Quits To 'Resume Teaching'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Daniel Patrick Moynihan will resume teaching at Harvard but will keep an eye on a Senate seat from New York when he leaves his post as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations at the end of this month.

The flamboyant, blunt-spoken diplomat made no mention of any friction between himself and President Ford or Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger when his resignation was announced Monday.

But there were reports that Moynihan blamed Kissinger for his departure, saying Kissinger undercut him in private while supporting him in public. And top U.S. officials, speaking privately, made it clear they considered Moynihan a cross to bear because of his outspoken and occasionally caustic statements about world affairs during his 6 1/2 months at the United Nations.

Moynihan said today that he carried out his U.N. duties in a manner prescribed by Ford and that his successor would do the same.

"We have been taking a somewhat more responsive position," Moynihan said on the CBS-TV "Morning News." He added: "The next man or woman will do the same."

Moynihan said Ford already has one person in mind for the U.N. post, and added that he thought Ford had approached the candidate. Moynihan declined to identify his potential successor.

When he was asked Monday about his relationship with Kissinger, Moynihan said, "We are old friends. I have been his ambassador as well as the President's in carrying out his policies." One reporter asked if he had jumped or was pushed. He replied, "I didn't necessarily jump. I certainly wasn't pushed."

Moynihan's departure had been long-rumored but its timing came as a mild surprise because his latest flap over alleged lack of support from the Ford administration came only last week and ended with a White House meeting between Moynihan and the President and public statements of support and confidence from Ford and Kissinger.

At Harvard University, Harvey Mansfield, chairman of the government department, said Moynihan, 49, will teach two seminars on Thursdays and Fridays, starting next week.

NEED SEEN

Do you know of any possibilities for day care for Black children in Farmville? I am a working mother and am lucky enough to have a mother-in-law to keep my child. I know people, though, who are taking their children all the way to Greenville to be cared for each day, when they live and work in Farmville. M. P.

We checked with Pitt County Social Services and with several individuals in the Farmville area and found only that you know whereof you speak. There appear to be no day care for Black children other than in private homes in Farmville and no real prospects that we could find. This and other areas of the county outside Greenville seem to be wonderful free enterprise opportunities for this kind of service.

Angeline Venters of the Small Business Administration Office here said she would be happy to try to help anyone seeking a loan to start this kind of business, though, of course, the SBA policy is that other sources of loans be tried first. SBA has no special day care loan programs, she said, but would treat this kind of business possibility like any other.

A person with a world of experience in this field is Mrs. F. P. Jackson who founded and operates Meadowbrook Day Care Center in Greenville. She has graciously agreed to allow us to suggest that anyone who would like to call her for advice on this subject do so.

KARATE SUITS

My friend and I both ordered karate suits from Professional Karate in Woodland Hills, Calif. Aug. 1. His cost $28; mine cost $32. We each would like a refund. It's been months, and we've already written them, but have had no word. J. D.

Hotline contacted your friend directly and confirmed with him what you told us. We then wrote to P. K. on behalf of you both. You report that you got your refunds with no more delay, and your friend told us the same.

Avers Drug Smuggling Today Is 'Avalanche'

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Pointing to record seizures of smuggled drugs in January, the U.S. commissioner of customs says such smuggling into the United States has reached "avalanche proportions."

Acree said Monday that agents seized 96 tons of illegal narcotics and drugs in January with a street value of nearly $97 million. Seized were 128 pounds of cocaine, 40 pounds of heroin, 172,000 pounds of marijuana and 40 pounds of hashish.

Acree said in a statement that such smuggling "has reached avalanche proportions."

proportions and . . . brings enormous pressure on the Customs Service, which is being pushed beyond the limits of its resources to try to stem the tide."

The total drugs seized in January eclipsed the previous monthly record of 68 tons, valued at $81 million, in August of last year. The amounts of cocaine and heroin also eclipsed previous monthly totals, an agency spokesman said.

The January haul also was equal to more than one-third of the total seizures during all of last year, the spokesman said.

Total seizures in 1975 were 253.3 tons, with an estimated value of $401.4 million. It included 187 pounds of heroin valued at $63 million; 735 pounds of cocaine, valued at $163 million; 495,000 pounds of marijuana valued at $128 million, and 10,000 pounds of hashish valued at $27 million.

A spokesman for the agency said that in a normal month agents estimate they manage to catch only about 10 per cent of the drugs being smuggled into the United States. But he said the seizures in January probably were much more than 10 per cent and "represented quite a substantial percentage of the potential smuggling." He attributed the big monthly catch to about "50 per cent luck" with the remainder resulting from investigative work.

Career Consultant Says: 'We Can Have It All'

Editor's Note: More and more people are making major changes in the way they live. These lifestyle switches, sometimes abrupt, often create turmoil within their families. Here is the second of four portraits of people who made such moves.

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "I went through anguish. I knew I was talented, but I didn't know where or how," says Marjorie Ruback, a mother of eight who became a successful career consultant.

"I vacillated between thinking 'I'm fantastic' and 'I'm nothing. I don't know anything,'" says the 46-year-old wife of an orthopedic surgeon in Montclair, N.J.

"I knew I wanted a professional-level job, and I wanted my family, too. I didn't want to choose, and I haven't."

Marjorie began her career three years ago as a consumer affairs director for a bank. She was promoted to products manager in the marketing division.

Tall, graceful and poised, she currently is senior associate here for Career Management Associates, where she counsels people seeking professional jobs and making career changes.

Marjorie had her bachelor's degree in English and half the credits toward a master's in theology. She never had a career and worked briefly as a congressional aide before her marriage 23 years ago.

She did extensive volunteer work, ranging from organizing charity balls to teaching high school sex education and developing curriculum for religious studies.

"I had really wanted to raise a family," she says, "and I have no regrets. I'm deeply in love with my husband."

"But four years ago my last child was four or five, and I began to feel a growing need to feel more enthusiastic. I knew I wanted a job but didn't have the vaguest idea what."

She took a career planning course at the company where she now works. She realized she had skills in research, analysis, organization and communication.

Many women acquire skills in their volunteer work but don't give themselves credit because they didn't get paid, she says.

When she first talked about going back to work, her husband, Gerald, 48, encouraged her but didn't think she was ambitious for a career.

"It wasn't easy," Marjorie says. "The first time I came home later than he did, he said we couldn't have this, that the home came first."

"At first it was difficult to grasp. After all, I didn't have to work. I had a nice life. He may have wondered, 'What more do you want? Isn't this enough?'"

"I think it may have brought up some resentment and fear in asking: 'Is she going to let a career come between us and our marriage?'"

They are adjusting, and Marjorie thinks their marriage is stronger for it.

"I feel for the first time in years that I am a peer. I absolutely glory in knowing that I am an independent person," she says.

"If I want to walk out, I can walk out. I think that's something every woman should feel. You wake up and you're suddenly financially independent. You don't need a husband to survive. I think our marriage is better."

Marjorie is usually up by 6 a.m., works long hours and occasional nights and weekends. She doesn't have much vacation. Gone are the days, she says, "when I was home at 6 p.m., perfumed and waiting."

Gone, also, are the days when her husband got out early from surgery and both went to New York for lunch and movies.

They don't have an active social life, maybe dinner out once a week and a rare dinner with friends.

Her eight children are used to looking after each other, and the six now at home, aged nine to 18, make a greater effort to make the household run.

But Marjorie worried at first whether she should leave them for work. At first, they greeted her plans with disbelief, she says. Now, they joke with her, saying, "Gee, Mom, nice of you to stop by. Nice to see you."

Her husband spends more time with the children and attends their school conferences.

He takes an interest in the house and new carpeting and makes sure he has clean socks.

"After all," Marjorie says, "this house isn't mine. It's ours. I'm not the chief of laundry services."

Even with a maid, Marjorie says, "the house is a mess. I've lost track of who owns what clothes."

"I'm just beginning my career. I feel ambitious," she says. "I don't know where I'll end up, but I know it will be a steady upward march. I thrive on the business world."

"My intention from the beginning was to have a career and not to give up anything, not my husband or my family life. I think we can have it all."

Her Marriage Is A Dead Connection: Husband Needs Help

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune. N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man who, in his youth, was in love with a girl who died very young. Billy's mother was a spiritualist, and she told him that his dead girl's spirit had communicated with her and declared that she and Billy would be soul mates eternally.

Billy now communicates directly with this girl. He has taken me to seances in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Florida, where he goes into a trance, talking to his "soul mate" in words of love and passion. He calls her "my wonderful angel girl" and "eternal love." I cry all night after these meetings.

Billy carries her picture over his heart and had a life-sized oil painting made from the snapshot. He keeps the painting in his bedroom with a candle burning near it night and day. I can't take much more of this. I feel like his housekeeper. Please tell me what to do.

JEALOUS OF A SPIRIT

DEAR JEALOUS: Billy's disturbed. If he doesn't see a doctor, see a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: I am frankly surprised and outraged that you would advise a woman to ask her doctor to prescribe a tranquilizer so she wouldn't break down and cry at her daughter's wedding.

What's wrong with crying at a wedding? Your message implies that rather than give vent to an honest emotion and learn to cope with it, one should take a pill.

Which is worse, a tear-stained face at a wedding or the risk of over-sedation, possible side effects and a future dependency upon tranquilizers?

"D" IN PORTLAND

DEAR "D": On the remote chance that over-sedation, possible side effects and future dependency upon tranquilizers could result, I would certainly agree with you that the mother should skip the tranquilizer and have a good cry. You could be right!

DEAR ABBY: The letter from CRUSHED IN COLORADO could have been written by me five years ago. My situation was identical to hers. I pray that the mother takes your advice and accepts her son's pregnant girl friend as a daughter. Here's my story:

Five years ago, my brilliant, gentle son came to me in his third year of college and said he was dropping out to marry a girl he had gotten pregnant.

I cried. That girl was a nurse! How could she do this? I believed she became pregnant intentionally to trap my son. I asked her, and she answered honestly, "Yes, I planned it because I wanted a home of my own."

My son asked me to sign for him because he wasn't yet 21. I signed and decided to accept this girl as my daughter. Last April my son died. Our family was and still is saddened, but we are blessed with an adorable grandchild and a devoted daughter-in-law who lets us keep the child whenever we desire.

Our brilliant, gentle son is gone, but thank God he left us a part of him in that precious grandchild.

Vanilla Marrons Feature Fresh Chestnuts And Syrup

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: A friend brought me a large jar of whole Vanilla Marrons in Syrup imported from France. As you'll see from the label I enclose, these are made with chestnuts, vanilla, sugar and corn syrup. We became "addicted" to serving them on ice cream, so now I would like to try making them — CONNOISSEUR.

DEAR CONNOISSEUR: You can duplicate the Vanilla Marrons with one exception — a good many of the chestnuts will probably break up. But this doesn't matter because as a sauce for ice cream or other desserts, they taste good this way. I tried a few recipes for Marrons in Syrup but had no success until I thought of employing the method I use for preserving fresh ginger root in syrup. It worked beautifully and here's the recipe. — C.B.

VANILLA MARRONS
1 pound (about 32) fresh chestnuts
2 cups sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla

On the rounded side of each chestnut with the tip of a small sharp knife, make two shallow cuts in the shape of a cross through both the outer shell and the inner brown skin.

Into a large heavy saucepot turn the chestnuts; cover with water. Over medium heat bring to a boil; boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. While still hot, remove one chestnut at a time and with the help of the small sharp knife, peel off the shell and inner brown skin. If skins become hard to remove, bring water in the saucepan back to a boil to heat the nuts.

Turn the peeled chestnuts into the clean empty saucepot; cover with fresh water. Cook over medium heat, covered, just until tender — 15 to 20 minutes. With a large slotted spoon, remove carefully to drain.

In the clean empty saucepot stir together 1 cup of the sugar, the corn syrup and 6 cups water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. With the large slotted spoon, gradually add the chestnuts so the syrup does not stop boiling. Boil gently, without stirring, for 1 hour. Let stand, covered, at room temperature for 24 to 48 hours.

Bring the chestnuts in their syrup to a boil. Add the remaining 1 cup sugar and gently stir it in. Cook, without stirring, over medium heat for 30 minutes. Reduce heat to low and cook 30 minutes longer — temperature on candy thermometer will reach 220 degrees. Remove from heat. Gently stir in vanilla. Ladle hot mixture into hot sterilized jars; seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Makes four ½-pint jars. For a stronger vanilla flavor, on opening a jar, add a little vanilla.

Note: Although the chestnuts should be cooked through before they are added to the syrup, they should not be overcooked — this way they have the best chance of staying whole. They will toughen slightly during the times they are cooked in the syrup.

Pate Helps Dress Up Meal

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer
Most Frenchmen feel that a meal is not complete unless it includes a pate. They would probably prefer truffled goose, but lacking the means for such fancy fare, they will usually make do with pate of woodcock, duck, pork, veal or any of a dozen other varieties.

Actually, pate is no more than a luxurious cold loaf of meat, fish or fowl dressed up with herbs and assorted good things. The pate maison featured on the menus of most French restaurants or available at the nearest delicacy shop can make a luncheon in itself when eaten with a chunk of crisp, French bread and washed down with a goblet of Beaujolais, dry white or rose wine. But generally pate is regarded as an appetizer, designed to awaken the taste buds and whet the appetite.

Most pates will keep for 10 days under refrigeration and are good to have on hand for lunch, snack or cocktail appetizer.

Pates are improved with the addition of truffles, olives or pistachio nuts, plus a dram of brandy, port or madeira wine. So famous has the pate de foie gras of Strasbourg become that many farmers in Alsace-Lorraine have made a lucrative career of raising geese and force-feeding them to obtain the desired fat livers. Since this practice is illegal in America, foie gras must be imported and the price has reached astronomical levels. With truffles selling for more than $100 a pound, the cost has gone still higher.

Here is an economical substitute for foie gras dressed up with that shimmering coating of jelly known as aspic.

½ pack plain gelatin
2 ounces brandy
1 can chicken consommé
Garnish of pitted black olives, sliced
3 ounces cream cheese
8 ounces liver pate
1 clove garlic
Salt and pepper
Sprinkle gelatin on consommé to dissolve. Add ½ ounce brandy. Pour mixture into a bread pan to thickness of about ¼ inch and let jelly to consistency of raw egg white. Put in refrigerator till firm. Mix softened cream cheese with liver pate. Add remaining brandy and season with minced garlic, salt and pepper to taste. Spread evenly in pan over jelled surface leaving at least ¼ inch on sides of pan. Decorate with sliced olives and pour remaining consommé over top of pate. Leave in icebox till firm.

At Wit's End

Like most mothers, I have a horror of my daughter getting married, inviting me to dinner and serving her specialty: a bowl of undercooked popcorn. At our house, cooking is a spectator sport with steady attendance despite a 0-15,683 record.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doyle of Greenville celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at a party given in their honor Saturday night.

The party was given in the couples' home by their three daughters. Forty-four friends and relatives attended the party.

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Worthington request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Donna Denise, to Joseph Gordon Cash on Friday, Feb. 6, at 7:30 p.m. at the Salvation Army Citadel. No invitations were mailed in town.

Toasting almonds, filberts and walnuts really brings out their flavor. Spread them in a single layer in a very shallow pan and use a moderate or a hot oven — but watch carefully so they do not scorch.

asked her. "Nope," she said. "Don't you have dreams of one day owning your own garlic press?"

"Nope."

"Could you find tumeric in your local grocery store?"

"Why, is one missing?"

Granted, I'm not the greatest cook in the world (you have to have a prescription for my pot roast), but at least I recognize fire when I see it.

"Everyone should have at least one specialty," I grumbled. "Let me show you how to make breakfast biscuits from a recipe handed down by your grandmother. First, you throw a dab of flour into a bowl and . . ."

"How much is a dab?" she interrupted.

"A dab is about a handful or two."

"My hand is bigger than yours."

"Okay, a dab minus a pinch!"

"What's a pinch?"

"Here, let me put in the flour. You add a smidgen of shortening."

"Give me a hint. Is a smidgen bigger than a bread box?"

"A smidgen is a smidgen," I said, plopping in a lump. "Get the salt."

"A pinch?" she asked.

"No, no, just a dash. Now a speck of baking powder, a hint of parsley and a speck of Parmesan before you dot each one with a sliver of butter."

"How much water did you add?" she asked.

"Only a particle . . . if you put in a morsel, it'll be too sticky to roll out. Got it?"

She nodded her head slowly and said it had all been very interesting.

She didn't fool me for a minute. That kid didn't write down one ingredient I told her.

Officers Of Young Democrats Installed; Candidate Speaks

Waverly Aikens, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, told Pitt County and ECU Young Democrats 1976 "is going to be a Democratic year" at their annual installation banquet last night.

"I think the Democrats are going to win big this fall," Aikens told the crowd of around 150. "I think the people are ready for a change."

Aikens listed a number of "problem areas" in North Carolina, such as low industrial wages, high crime rate and high unemployment. "Is this where we want to be?" he asked.

"I'm not here to downgrade North Carolina," Aikens said, "But, we do have these problems." He said too many people choose to ignore the problems of the state and just talk about what a great state North Carolina is.

Aikens called on "good leadership" to help the state "develop with dignity."

"When you look at the many areas of North Carolina, we do have some good things going for us," Aikens told the group, "but we also have some problems. Young leadership must recognize these problems.

"You must evaluate how you want North Carolina to develop."

Numerous area and state political figures attended last night's banquet, including state Senator Vernon White, state Representatives Sam Bundy and Horton Rountree, Pitt County Democratic chairman Henry Oglesby and Democratic candidate for state auditor Lillian Woo.

Spokesmen said Congressman Walter Jones and ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins had planned to attend the meeting, but were prevented from doing so by pressing business.

New officers for both the East Carolina University and Pitt County Young Democrats groups were installed last night. ECU officers included Pam Marks, president; Cathy McRorie, vice-president; Mary Carter, secretary and Mary Burnette, treasurer.

In the Pitt County group, John Prevette was installed as president, Noel Robbins as vice-president, Houston Tucker as secretary and Sam Manning as treasurer.

changes that will be required school by school to give the desired racial ratio, Cox and his staff provided the following projected figures:

—Eastern — 34 black students to be reassigned in; and 30 white students to be reassigned out;

—Elmhurst — 19 black students to be reassigned out; and 31 white students to be reassigned out. (These figures do not reflect present special classes at Elmhurst);

—Sadie Sautler — 134 black students to be reassigned out; and 104 white students to be reassigned in;

—South Greenville — Five black students to be reassigned in) and 61 white students to be reassigned out;

—Third Street — 41 black students to be reassigned in; and 106 white students to be reassigned in.

—Wahl-Coates — 70 black students to be reassigned in; and 20 white students to be reassigned out.

district students currently attending Greenville City Schools do not figure into the tabulations and projected reassignment figures. Determination of where and how to assign this group of students, a predominantly white group, is one of the problems that will have to be solved following the adoption of an official redistricting plan for school year 1976-77.

In this latest as well as in earlier workshops, public sentiment as expressed by interested persons in attendance has indicated public preference for Alternative Number 1. During the time allotted for public expressions at last night's workshop, a remark made by Jim R. Galloway is typical. "I see no other choice but the adoption of the first alternative," Galloway said. "It's the only fair and just course to take."

Seeks 3rd Term

RALEIGH (AP)—To no one's surprise, U.S. Rep. Ike Andrews, D-N.C., has announced he will seek a third term from North Carolina's Fourth Congressional District.

The surprising aspect of Andrews' candidacy is that he might not face a tough fight to win.

In 1972 and 1974 he mastered stiff challenges in both the primaries and general elections to take and keep his seat.

The Siler City attorney said he has not heard of anyone planning to challenge him, but he added he will form a campaign organization anyway. "We hope we won't have to use it," he said.

Andrews told reporters he probably would vote for some increase in the Social Security tax and for phased deregulation of natural gas prices during the coming session of Congress.

Forming Motor Repair Class

Pitt Technical Institute will hold an organizational meeting Tuesday February 3, at 7 p.m. in room 113 at Pitt Technical Institute for individuals interested in a course in Outboard Motor Repair. Provided there is sufficient interest the course will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. for a total of 6 hours.

There will be a $3.00 registration fee and each student will be expected to furnish their own supplies. For further information call Pitt Tech 756-3130, ext. 38.

Egil Krogh Has Found A Job

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Egil "Bud" Krogh Jr., head of the so-called White House "plumber's unit" during the Watergate scandal, has joined the staff of an ice cream store chain.

Swensen's Ice Cream Co. announced Monday that Krogh will be coordinating home office administration and franchise store services for the San Francisco-based company.

William A. Meyer, president and chairman of Swensen's, said, "Everything I saw or read about him led me to believe he was an unfortunate victim of the terrible circumstances surrounding the downfall of the Nixon administration."

Maybe They'd Listen To Ally

Maybe a U.S. Congress which seems totally unconcerned about the nation's declining international role should listen to a Belgium official. Paul Vanden Boeynants, Belgium's defense minister, says, "Europe can no longer satisfy itself by trusting the Americans. Today we are eating out of the Americans' hand. What will become of us if the United States' nuclear umbrella were to disappear tomorrow? We'd be in real trouble. "Europe must unite, not only politically, but also militarily," he continued. "It is a necessity for our security. "People say that if something goes wrong, the Americans will help us. But let us be cautious. Although it is clear that America's interests, not American's duty, prevent Europe from falling under Soviet domination, it is also clear that the Americans will leave us to our fate if they realize that the Europeans are not prepared to defend themselves or contribute to the necessary effort." Vanden Boeynants sees clearly the Soviet threat to the western world, something that our Congressmen seem unwilling to face. As Congress ignores Soviet expansionism, we can fully expect our staunchest allies to become more and more concerned about United States military support.

A Case Of Do What We Say, Or Else

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., have come up with a bright idea. They want to put a whopping new tax on cigarettes, according to tar and nicotine content. It would range from one to 20 cents the first year and would increase to as high as 96 cents per pack by 1980.

The idea is if individual citizens in a free land won't do as the senators say and stop smoking, then Sens. Hart and Kennedy would punish them with an exorbitant tax.

It's just another case of requiring the citizens doing what the senators say—or else.

THIS AFTERNOON

Critics Take Aim At Tube

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — What comes into North Carolina homes on television contains a large portion of trash, and is having a large impact on young lives, a group of citizens called together to consider the problem think. But ideas take different directions when it comes to what, if anything, can or should be done about that. Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt got less than 100 per cent endorsement for the proposition that North Carolina can somehow take the national lead in battling sex, crime, and violence on the home screen. Hunt hosted a meeting recently of some 50 people, mostly church leaders and largely women, to explore television problems and to propose a statewide conference in the spring.

been no concern with a medium which has profound impact on young, developing lives," Hunt said in welcoming the panelists. Darrell Monroe, a Presbyterian minister with experience in television production, zeroed in on the problem: "No matter how good a program is and how positive the affect it may have on the quality of life... if it doesn't sell cars or deodorant, it doesn't stay on TV. "What sells is what is on the tube," he explained. Still, Monroe noted that television uses airwaves which belong to the public and as such should be subject to change if people dislike what is being broadcast. The spring conference will attempt to bring together in Raleigh some TV network types, federal specialists, local broadcaster, and advertisers along with several hundred concerned Tar Heels to explore the problem and seek some ways it can be attacked. Numerous participants in the planning session expressed alarm at the content of television programming. Soap operas were roundly scored as "sin in the afternoon," the early evening family viewing time was denounced as a failure, and both commercials and programs were criticized for emphasis on crime, violence, sex, drinking of alcoholic beverages, bad language, and general overall lack of quality. New Leader As some early childhood experts complained, television is supplanting the school, church, even the family in shaping values, and most parents respond with frustration and the sense that nothing can be done. Still, some of those present wondered how far citizens can go in pushing for reform without facing the question of censorship. Is such action seeking to impose the standards of one segment of society upon society at large? T. Avery Upchurch, executive director of the N. C.

Service Station Association and present at the session representing the state's Rotary clubs, fairly well summed up the feeling of some: "Television programming is symptomatic of widespread moral degeneration in society... you can see it in porno shops, bookstores, at the movies, even in newspapers... what can we tell television? "We may be moving too rapidly, and need to give more thought to this before we start telling businesses what they ought to do," Upchurch protested. Represented at the planning session were Baptist, Presbyterian, Methodist, Friends, and Church of Christ groups, Churchwomen United, United Methodist Women, N. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, the state Dietetic and Homemakers associations, the Jaycettes, the Negro Women's Club, senior citizens groups, Kiwanis, Rotary, and American Legion Auxiliary.

INSIDE REPORT

Reagan Slays A Monster

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
CONCORD, N.H. — After spending over a month freeing himself from a monster of his own creation, Ronald Reagan appears to have finally succeeded on his second fulltime campaign swing — only to face a more difficult though less urgent problem. The self-destructive monster, Reagan's poorly prepared program for transferring $90 billion in federal spending to state and local government, seems to have been finished off at his news conference Wednesday noon at the New Hampshire Highway Hotel here. The new problem: how to run against an incumbent President in a modest but undeniable resurgence. That resurgence, helped by Reagan's $90 billion blooper, makes clear that President Ford is not the terminal case he seemed to many two months ago. However, Reagan also is showing he is no Barry Goldwater bent on self-destruction but a disciplined candidate posing a deadly serious challenge to the President. Wishful thinkers at the White House had come to doubt Reagan's menace partly because of the Reagan campaign's slipshod handling of the $90 billion transfer plan. Stuck with the scheme so blithely lofted by Reagan as a non-candidate last September, Reagan's high command tried to clean it up in pre-campaign strategy sessions at Los Angeles late in December. With Reagan balking at working that hard during the Christmas holidays, they never really came to grips with the puzzle. The result was near disaster when Reagan's first campaign swing opened in New Hampshire Jan. 5. "We never dreamed it would come at us that heavy," one

Reagan insider now admits. Reagan bombed out in Florida and North Carolina press conferences, displaying political rust developed since his last campaign in 1970. When Reagan began his second swing Jan. 25, the $90 billion monster was a shadow of its former self. Gone were specifically transferred programs; gone were $23 billion in federal tax reductions; gone, indeed, was any talk of $90 billion. All that remained was a politically defensible promise to transfer welfare grants, food stamps and other unnamed programs — plus federal revenues to pay for them — back to state and local authorities. While radically diminishing the program's pretensions, Reagan decided to switch to the offensive. Flying home Jan. 16 from his first swing, Reagan began drafting a new campaign speech indicting the federal government's incompetency as justification for transferring programs. The finished product was unveiled this week: Reagan's most coherent, best delivered and probably hardest-hitting speech since 1966. Although Reagan rosters cheered his Florida and North Carolina speeches Jan. 26 and 27, his advisers were uneasy about the press conference here Wednesday, Jan. 28 — his first since Jan. 12 and the first in New Hampshire as an announced candidate. Eight questions were asked before anybody mentioned the transfer program, and only seven out of 25 total questions touched on it. Most important, Reagan was no longer providing colorful front page stories by constantly shifting his ground. With no major unanswered questions remaining, the monster seems dead. But in its wake are enduring effects. A new bitterness has developed among Reagan insiders against the Ford campaign's orchestration of press attention to the $90 billion scheme. They see — and deeply resent — the fingerprints of Stu Spencer, the 1966 Reagan campaign manager running the 1976 Ford campaign. That Reagan himself is not immune from this bitterness is suggested by some reflexive responses this week flitting with violation of his 11th commandment prohibiting criticism of a fellow Republican. Asked at Asheville, N.C., who he would prefer as Democratic presidential nominee, Reagan snapped: "Bo (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

INSTINCTIVE LONGING FOR GOD
There is something in us which constantly draws us toward God. We may wander far, but in the day of trouble, in the hour of indecision, in the moment of poignant distress, we reach out for something higher than ourselves. Arctic birds in captivity are said at certain times of the year to gather at the north side of their cages. Instinct seems to draw them in this direction. Man is made in the image of God, and in times of great stress, if at no other time, there is something in him which seems to draw him toward his divine origin. This divine force will affect people differently, and on many diverse occasions. With some it comes as a great burst of light; with others as a still, small voice. Our duty, or rather, our privilege, is to be ready for it in whatever manifestation it comes. And when that happens, we can be sure it will be the greatest experience of our lives. —by Elisha Douglass

King John Isn't Amused

The old rule prevails: When man bites dog, that's news. Former Senator Eugene McCarthy, may the saints preserve him, is thereby making a little news. He has his teeth into Common Cause. In case the matter has slipped your mind, McCarthy is a candidate for president of the United States. He is the most refreshing candidate in years. He is the candidate of No Party. His nomination is therefore assured. While the more conventional candidates are skittering across the land, desperately wooing the voters, McCarthy is at home, finishing a book on the ideas of Alexis de Tocqueville. Seriously speaking, the two of them deserve each other. Back in November, McCarthy received a letter from John Gardner, chairman, and David Cohen, president, of Common Cause. These two eminences, in their high and mighty way, wished to remind McCarthy that many political campaigns had become mere exercises in "image manipulation and issue evasion." Their supremacies told McCarthy that new standards of integrity, responsiveness and accountability must be introduced. Messrs. Gardner and Cohen had prepared such a list of standards. Copy enclosed.

To the editor:
As a bus driver for the Greenville City Schools, I am concerned about the safety of students who board buses. I wish to remind parents and students that when students are waiting to board buses, they should stand out of the highway. Property owners should be willing to allow students to wait on their property for the arrival of buses not only due to the fact that the state has a right of way of 50 feet in each direction of the center line of the highway, but also out of concern for the safety of the city's students. If a property owner is unwilling to allow students to board buses on his property because of destructive tendencies on the part of any students, the principal and the driver will arrange another bus stop. Since a bus driver cannot be responsible for where students stand before they board a bus, the assistance of parents and citizens in observing this safety requirement will be greatly appreciated. Unfortunately, bus accidents do occur; however, keeping this safety requirement in mind can serve both to reduce the number of serious accidents and to save lives. Gordon Sutton

The identical letter went to other avowed candidates for the presidency. Their flatulent responses soon came pouring in. Birch Bayh wrote that he had no hesitancy in subscribing in full to the Common Cause checklist. Lloyd Bentsen assured their nobilities that his conduct would be consistent with their goals. Jimmy Carter delivered his wholehearted endorsement. Fred Harris sent three single-spaced pages of agreeable response. Henry M. Jackson said he had directed his staff to see that the goals were achieved. Governor Milton Shapp declared his strong endorsement and delivered his pledge of adherence. Sargent Shriver sent two pages of fulsome allegiance. Mo Udall sent three. Alas, the royal highnesses of Common Cause got no such response from McCarthy. Clean Gene turned the letter over to his campaign chairman, Ronald Cocomo, who responded to John Gardner by return mail as follows: "I find this communication (Continued on page 5)

To the editor:
Your January 29, 1976, issue reported that the League of Women Voters was studying figures which indicated that low income families in North Carolina pay a higher percentage of their income in state and local taxes than do the families with larger incomes. Some of the figures contained in the article are a little hard to reconcile with the North Carolina tax laws. The statement was made that a "family whose income is $1,150 or less pays 4.9 percent of its income in food tax," but under the maximum rate, the total food tax would be only 4 percent if the family spent all of its income on food and nothing on clothing, shelter, transportation, education, or even other taxes. And if the family spent nothing on other taxes, how could its total taxes be 19.7 percent as the report indicated? No doubt there is an explanation to this apparent discrepancy. Perhaps the $1,150 income was net taxable income out of a total income several times that amount. Or perhaps the $1,150 did not count welfare, social security, food stamps, unemployment payments, etc. The League of Women Voters has a long record of providing the public with valuable information. I hope that their future meetings will answer some of the questions posed by the figures cited in the article. Richard K. Worsley

Iran's Energy Deal

By MICHAEL O'REGAN
BONN, West Germany (UPI) — A European consortium has clinched the biggest natural gas deal on record — a $15.3 billion project under which a pipeline from Iran will supply Europe with energy into the next century. Iran, which has been supplying the Soviet Union with 350 billion cubic feet of natural gas a year since 1971 through a 930-mile pipeline, will sell another 460 billion cubic feet a year to West Germany and Austria, part of which will be resold to Belgium, France and Switzerland.

To do this, a 3,800-mile pipeline will be constructed from Kangan on the Persian Gulf via Astara on the Soviet border, across the Ukraine and Czechoslovakia to the Bavarian forest town of Waidhaus at a total cost of more than $4 billion. Of the 460 billion cubic feet of gas put into the pipeline by the Iranians, only 390 billion cubic feet will come out at the other end. The balance will be burned en route to supply energy for the pumps pushing the gas through to Europe. The deal was worked out last November after almost two years of negotiations among the consortium led by West Germany's Ruhrgas, Soyuzgas of the Soviet Union, and Iran's National Gas Company.

A Ruhrgas spokesman said the 20-year contract is worth $15.3 billion. Contracts to build the Soviet and Czechoslovak sections of the pipeline are being negotiated with the Soviet Union by the West German companies of Mannesmann, the Rhein-stahltechnik subsidiary of Thyssen and the Deutsche Bank, West Germany's largest commercial bank. Despite the heavy investment, the price of the gas when it starts flowing in 1981, will make it competitive with heavy heating oil, the consortium says. Ruhrgas will distribute half the gas, Gas de France one third and Austria's Mineraloelversorgungs-Gesellschaft one sixth. Once the pipeline is in operation, it does not mean Iranian gas will become the (Continued on page 5)

40 Years Ago Today

February 3, 1936
New Jersey Governor Harold G. Hoffman was reported today ready to identify the mysterious "man with the handkerchief" in the Lindbergh kidnapping and possibly order his arrest. Sources close to the Governor indicated he would ask the state police either to arrest the man or to clear him of any suspicion in the crime. The mysterious man was seen by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh outside St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx the night Dr. John F. Condon paid the futile $50,000 ransom for the return of Lindbergh's infant son. At the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the man was set down as a mere passerby. —James Kyle

Fuel For Soaring Stock Prices

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Boosted by falling interest rates, the stock market is now at a rarefied height where so many rocket-like surges of the past 10 years have run out of fuel and fallen back to earth. This one could very well keep rising, but a lot of investors had the same ideas about the many other ascensions since the mid-1960s. They were wrong then. Could they be correct now? The first consideration is whether the market can be assured of a continued supply of fuel in the form of falling interest rates. It is this situation, many market analysts agree, that produced the initial momentum. That is, as interest rates fell from their record-high levels, their attraction as investments fell too. Billion of dollars that had gone into the debt markets now became potential fuel for the stock market. The rise and fall of the prime interest rate is a mirror image of the fall and rise of the stock market. The two fit, tongue and groove. There are now suggestions that the decline of interest rates may be slowing. The lowest prime rate by a major bank is 6.5 per cent, by First National City Bank, but that was posted reluctantly. As the week began, First City's leadership had drawn few followers, a contrast to the manner in which banks fell into line when the declining prime rate was still around 7.5 or 8 per cent. There is also a detectable firming of some short-term interest rates that bears watching as perhaps the first signal that a general stabilization of rates is being achieved. If the fuel is shut off from this source, is there another mixture that might provide further thrust? In all probability, the second stage will depend on broader factors involving the entire economy. Stock analysts and portfolio managers offer many reasons for believing there is indeed an economic base to support higher prices. To cite two, individuals are becoming more liquid, and corporate profits are expected to continue to improve. But the tendency to see nothing but strength in such developments could cloud the reality, which is that while conditions are improving, they're improving from a very depressed base. After-tax corporate profits, for example, do indeed continue to improve, but the rate of improvement is likely to slow. And how can we ignore the continued high inflation and unemployment? The latter, don't forget, represents the underutilization of a precious asset — the human skills needed to support any economy. Burned by their past excesses, individuals and businesses both remain somewhat hesitant. Consumer sales, though vastly improved, still aren't showing signs of enthusiasm. And there has been little expression of confidence from business in the form of capital spending plans. Throughout the economy, public and private, there is a tendency on the part of individuals and institutions to hold back. The question arises then of where the thrust will come from — individuals, business, government? Somehow out of those three ingredients must come the energy for the market's second stage.

For Some, 14 Inches Of Snow

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer
Mother Nature turned tables on the Atlantic Coast, dumping 14 inches of snow as far south as North Carolina while heavy rain fell on Maine. Several deaths were blamed on the storm.

The storm Monday was accompanied by strong winds, gusting up to 70 miles per hour in many parts of the Northeast, turning roads into something akin to carnival bumper-car rides, closing schools and bringing power outages throughout the region from downed power lines.

The National Weather Service said late Monday that the storm was moving into Canada but was still being felt in New York and New England. Travel advisories remained in effect for Vermont and northeast New York.

Temperatures were expected to approach zero overnight in the Northeast — or 40 to 50 below when the chill factor from the strong winds are taken into account.

A separate storm spread snow from Missouri into Kentucky and Tennessee overnight, and travelers' advisories were out for Kentucky, Tennessee and the southern portions of Illinois and Indiana. Some snow accumulations also were expected in southern Ohio. Still farther west, a winter storm threatened to bring snow to Montana, the Dakotas and northern Minnesota.

The rain in Maine, made worse by wind-driven high tides, brought floodwaters into downtown Bangor — forcing several motorists to swim to safety from their cars.

Temperatures dropped sharply later in the day, bringing on some light snow. And authorities said the waters of the Penobscot and Kennebec rivers in Maine began receding, but not before causing damage that would run into the millions.

In Westmoreland, N.Y., two firemen suffered heart attacks while battling a fire. One, Leonard Brown, 60, died before snowbound ambulances — traveling on a path dug out by snowplows — could reach him. The other fireman was reported in serious condition.

In Brewster, N.Y., Steven Blaney, 43, foreman of the village public works department, died of a heart attack while driving a snow plow.

Police also blamed the weather for the death of a mailman, Wallace Evans, 53, killed in a collision on slippery roads in Milford, Conn.

The storm's strong winds swept the 362-foot Japanese freighter Musashina Maru hard aground on a rocky beach near Searsport, Maine. Officials said the ship was taking on water but that its crew of 22 was in no immediate danger.

Efforts to remove the ship weren't immediately successful. A Coast Guard spokesman said, "She's a good ship, and both bottoms weren't pierced. We hope to get her off in the end." The ship had arrived in Searsport to take on a cargo of frozen french fried potatoes from northern Maine. Meanwhile, in the Midwest, temperatures in Northern Illinois plunged to the coldest they've been this winter, dropping to 22 below in Rockford. Chicago registered 1 below. Warmer weather was expected today, but possibly with new stand the pressure." Punxsutawney Phil, the weatherman-ground hog of that Pennsylvania town, promised more of the same. Peeking out of his burrow Monday, he reportedly saw his shadow, which legend says means six more weeks of winter.

AN ILL WIND—Yonkers (N.Y.) motorists shunned their cars on Orchard Street Monday after Old Man Winter changed his fickle mind Monday, dropping temperatures suddenly and dumping inches of snow onto roads already slick with rain. Motorists slogging along icy and snow-covered roads were joined by youngsters who came out to play. (AP Wirephoto)

Defense Contractors Oppose Sales Controls

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense contractors are waging an intensive lobbying campaign to defeat an effort to impose government controls over the foreign sale of weapons by U.S. arms dealers.

A $3-billion military aid bill, set for Senate debate this week, would require public disclosure of fees paid to agents who negotiate weapons sales abroad and would ban sales to countries practicing racial or religious discrimination against U.S. contractors.

The measure also would give Congress veto power over major arms deals negotiated by U.S. companies.

The defense industry has "organized a very formidable lobbying effort," one congressional aide said Monday. He said the effort is being headed by Karl Harr, president of the Aerospace Industries Association, and Clark MacGregor, former GOP congressman and one time head of Richard M. Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign committee, who is now chief lobbyist for United Technologies, Inc.

In an interview, Marshall Garrett, head of international operations for the aerospace industries group, called the bill "a pretty horrendous piece of legislation" that would put American firms "at a decided competitive disadvantage."

AIA represents the 43 leading defense contractors, including United Technologies, Garrett said. V.J. Adduci, president of Electronic Industries Association, which represents some 270 firms including ITT, Boeing, General Electric and RCA, said he wrote Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, chairman of the panel that drafted the bill, taking "strong exception" to its provisions.

Adduci's letter says the bill would mean the loss of billions of dollars in export sales. For every billion dollars in lower sales, at least 70,000 American jobs would be lost, Adduci argued. Because of this, the effort has support of some aerospace unions, Garrett said.

The Ford administration also has expressed opposition to the bill but has indicated it will not fight the measure in the Senate. In addition to requiring disclosure of "political contributions, payments in excess of $100,000 and gifts of greater than minimal value," the legislation would give Congress 30 days to reject any proposed sale of "major defense equipment" to a foreign country.

Callaway." Mistakenly addressed as "Gov. Ford" at Charlotte, N.C., Reagan shot back: "I didn't stumble when I came in."

A more meaningful legacy of the past month is the unintended help given Mr. Ford. When Reagan met his backers at Pensacola, Fla., Panama City, Fla., and Asheville, N.C., this week, the first questioner in each place had a worried query about the transfer. This preoccupation has taken Mr. Ford off the defensive and, combined with his new posture of staying home to mind the presidential store, has built his resurgence.

What Reagan must do now, many advisers feel, is shift attention to what may be the most vulnerable policy and personality in the Ford administration: detente and Henry Kissinger.

In his basic new speech lasting 35 minutes, Reagan devotes 30 seconds to foreign policy — rejecting detente as "a one-way street" for the Soviet Union. Invariably, it gets more applause than anything else. If the $90 billion monster is truly vanquished, Reagan's focus may soon switch from governmental accounting to global strategy.

CHINA GROVE, N.C. (AP) — John Scott says that during his 20 years in the Marines, he was never "too big" to get a physical every year. But when he retired in 1958 and then became a high school principal, he found there were students who hadn't seen a doctor in a couple of years.

The prognosis for 1985 is that West Germany will consume just over 2.7 trillion cubic feet of natural gas, with Iran covering one fourth. Natural gas will cover 18 per cent of the energy needs to replace coal as the dominant fuel.

Coal currently providing 22.6 per cent of West Germany's energy, will only provide for 14 per cent of the total in 1985.

insulting. I don't mind telling you that if any citizen controls are needed, they are controls over your arrogance. I don't know who the blazes you think you are. As a campaign we are responsible to the voters directly. We will let them interpret our actions and motives. We do not need you to do so, and we do not believe the people of this country do.

"In short, you can take your enclosed standards and stuff them in your ear!"

Well! Lese majeste! King John was not amused. Gardner delivered himself of a portentous conclusion: McCarthy "must disagree with the standards or he cannot live with them politically." No other possibilities had occurred to El Supremo.

Said McCarthy: "John Gardner has the distinction of being the first person in 25 years of public life to question my honesty." And he challenged Gardner to meet him "in any public forum to discuss Common Cause's campaign standards, his record and my record — and my standards." There, for the moment, the matter stands.

Clean Gene has taken the same blunt approach to demands from other quarters that he make public his income tax returns for the past six years, along with his medical reports. He proposes to be the judge of his own integrity. If John Gardner is so hipped on reports, disclosures and standards, let him inspect his own; or shove them in his ear.

It is high time, it seems to me, that a few men and women in public life stood up to the arrogant demands of the new inquisitors — including the inquisitors of the press. The only other political figure to do so, at least in recent memory, was Senator James L. Buckley of New York. He once told The New York Times where it could go with its impudent interrogatories.

Right on, McCarthy! There are some of us who doubt that it is truly necessary to know all about the bladder of Senator Humphrey or the lower bowels of President Ford. Even presidential candidates are entitled to some privacy. McCarthy's tax returns may be of interest; it's more interesting to know that he's deep in Tocqueville's ideas.

Baffled By Heating Oil Price Trend In Winter

CHICAGO (AP) — An industry observer says he's baffled by the apparent downward trend of home heating oil prices in the face of cold weather and comparatively low supplies.

"It almost defies analysis," Herb Hugo said Monday. Hugo, senior editor of Platt's Oilgram, said oil prices usually don't come down until spring. He also pointed out there is 10 per cent less heating oil in storage now than a year ago and that much of the nation is experiencing the coldest weather of the year — two factors which normally drive the price up.

He said ARCO, Inc., one of the 10 largest oil companies in the nation, reduced gasoline and heating oil prices by 2 cents a gallon Sunday.

In addition, several large Midwestern independent oil companies reduced prices by 1 cent in recent days. These include Clark Oil & Refining Corp.; Total Leonard, which operates mostly in Michigan; and the Rock Island Oil Co., which operates mostly in Indiana.

"This is heavy downward pressure on the market," Hugo said. "I don't see how the other companies will be able to withstand the pressure."

As a reason for the downward trend, Hugo said his best guess was that it might reflect industry reaction to the Omnibus Energy Bill which went into effect Sunday. The bill requires sharply lower prices on domestic crude oil.

Hugo said heating oil prices vary greatly across the nation but on the average they were about 38 cents a gallon on Jan. 1.

In the last 10 days many oil companies have come down a penny on gasoline, "but that's not surprising," Hugo said. "That's definitely competition — the result of heavy supplies and less demand."

Gasoline prices average about 57 cents a gallon now, down by about a penny from the first of the year and about 6 cents lower than last August.

Student Chapter Is Commended

The student affiliate chapter of the American Chemical Society (ACS) at East Carolina University has been selected for special commendation by ACS's committee on chemical education.

The ECU chapter is one of only 92 of the 609 affiliate chapters in the nation to be rated "above average" for the 1974-75 academic year, according to committee officials.

Among activities for which the commendation was made is a free tutoring service provided by the local chapter for any student enrolled in chemistry courses at ECU. The local student chapter has approximately 25 members and has been active at ECU for 11 years.

Wallace's Paralyzed Right Leg Injured In Mishap

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, his paralyzed right leg injured in an accident aboard his campaign plane, left a hospital here early today with a cast on the leg to protect what was described as a strained ligament.

Wallace arrived in Montgomery shortly before midnight, his leg in a plastic inflatable cast put on late Monday in Panama City, Fla. After the examination here, Wallace was driven to the Governor's Mansion for a night's rest. He planned to return to Florida later today to continue his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. The injury occurred Monday afternoon after a campaign stop in Pensacola, west of Panama City in the Florida Panhandle. An Alabama state trooper stumbled while carrying Wallace down the aisle of the aircraft and dropped him.

Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary, had said that the governor would make "a quick trip home" to consult with his personal physician today.

Camp said the decision was later made to take the governor straight to the hospital because Wallace "just wanted to get it over with." He said Wallace was examined by Dr. Mervel V. Parker, an orthopedic surgeon, who confirmed the diagnosis of a strained ligament in the governor's knee.

Wallace told news reporters on arriving in Montgomery that the accident was a "disappointment." But he said he planned to continue the campaign today in Florida.

"I want to explain that the people who put me on the plane dropped me," Wallace said late Monday at a Panama City rally he attended after the plastic cast was put on. "I pulled a ligament. I'm all right though and I hope you know that."

Dr. W. Roland McArthur, an orthopedic surgeon who put the plastic cast on in Panama City, said the leg would have to remain immobile for at least a month.

"It normally takes four weeks for an injury of this type to heal," McArthur said.

Wallace — who is paralyzed from the waist down from injuries suffered when he was shot while campaigning in Maryland in 1972 — suffered a broken leg last year during a physical therapy session.

His opponents have made his health an issue in the campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. But Wallace insists he is in good physical condition and able to carry on an active campaign.

"I'm as healthy as I ever was except that I can't walk," Wallace repeatedly says.

The accident occurred after a stop Monday in Pensacola as two Alabama state troopers were carrying Wallace in a portable chair up the aisle to his seat in the private airplane, he said.

"One of the troopers caught his toe under the runner and went down on one knee," Snider said.

Meanwhile, there were these political developments Monday: —Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., branded as "obviously ridiculous" claims that he would be out of the Democratic presidential race before the Texas primary May 1. "I think I will be at the convention with a substantial number of votes," he said in San Antonio, Tex.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said last weekend that by May 1 Bentsen would "no longer be a viable candidate." But Bentsen said Carter's "problem is winning in his own state," and cited reports that Wallace is leading in Georgia.

—San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, campaigning in New Hampshire for President Ford, accused Ronald Reagan of failing to keep campaign promises when he was governor of California. During Reagan's eight-year administration, Wilson said, the California budget increased from $4.6 billion to $10.2 billion; there were three "massive tax increases," including a 500 per cent hike in the personal income tax; and an increase in the number of state workers from 113,000 to 128,000.

However, Wilson failed to note that much of the budget increase was returned to local governments so they could lower property taxes. The state's per capita tax bill increased from $427 to $760 during the Reagan years. He inherited a $200-million deficit and left a $500-million surplus in California.

Reagan is challenging Ford for the Republican nomination.

—The Federal Election Commission said it would speed distribution of federal funds to presidential candidates while Congress decides what to do about the agency. The Supreme Court last week told Congress it has a month to restructure the FEC or its powers will be ended.

—White House officials announced that Ford will travel to New Hampshire next weekend but will make only one avowed political appearance. Spokesman Ron Nessen said Ford plans to meet with campaign workers and their families in Concord.

—Carter was reported holding a large lead in the second day of a month-long series of Democratic party precinct caucuses in Maine. Carter got 44 per cent of the delegates picked at eight caucuses over the weekend, with 41 per cent uncommitted. The No. 2 contender, according to party officials, was former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris, who got 9 per cent.

Coffers Empty But NCAE Eyes Pay Hike

RALEIGH (AP)—Despite a legislative committee which says the state's coffers will be nearly empty, North Carolina's 48,000 school teachers want a 16-19 per cent pay raise from the 1976 General Assembly.

Dr. A.C. Dawson said Monday the pay raise would keep teachers abreast of the increase in the cost of living since their last raise in July, 1974.

A 16-19 per cent raise for teachers and state employes would cost the state $192 million-$228 million at a time when legislators fear they will have to cut back on expenditures to balance the budget.

Dawson, executive secretary of the North Carolina Association of Educators, said the association has not taken a formal position on where the money for the higher salaries should come from.

An editorial in the association magazine recently suggested that liquor and cigarette taxes should be raised to provide the additional revenues. The state currently receives about $20 million per year from its two-cent cigarette tax and $60 million from all levies on liquor.

Dawson, presenting a paper to a legislative commission, also said the teachers will challenge in court any effort to provide state aid to private primary and secondary schools. Only private colleges now get state aid. The teachers consider such aid unconstitutional.

Dawson also said additional appropriations are needed to meet the class size limits enacted by the legislature in 1973.

He said the teachers would support a constitutional amendment allowing the State Board of Education to appoint the state Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Greenville police are continuing their investigation into the theft of a tape player from a car here yesterday afternoon.

Charge Six In Assault

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Six teen-agers, including four girls, have been arrested on charges they beat, whipped, stabbed and stripped a 17-year-old boy, then set him afire, police say.

Michael Mader was listed in satisfactory condition at St. Mary's Hospital Monday. He suffered bruises, burns, kidney injuries, stab wounds, was missing several teeth and had parts of his scalp chopped off, police said.

"He was hit over the head repeatedly with a broom handle and I don't think he knew what was happening through most of it," one policeman said.

Police said the incident followed an argument Sunday afternoon. They said Mader was whipped with belts, forced to remove his clothing, doused with lighter fluid and set afire. Police said he put out the flames by rolling on a sofa.

The six charged with first-degree assault included two 14-year-old girls and four others identified by police as Kitty Hazlett, 16, Durant Drew, 19, George Ryder, 17, and a woman listed only as Florence, 19, who police said lived with Ryder.

Recovery For GM Earnings

By OWEN ULLMANN

Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — General Motors, crippled by a severe recession throughout much of 1975, staged a swift recovery in the fourth quarter with record sales and near-record earnings of $618 million to end the year with profits up 32 per cent from 1974.

The world's largest manufacturing concern reported Monday it earned $1.25 billion in 1975, up from an anemic $950 million the year before.

Despite the sharp improvement from 1974, when the auto industry was battered by fuel shortages and a growing recession, GM's 1975 profits still trailed its record performance of 1973 by 48 per cent. GM earned $2.4 billion in that year.

Nevertheless, industry analysts hailed GM's bullish performance in the last three months of 1975 as a "remarkable turnaround" and the strongest indication yet that the industry's worst slump since the Great Depression had come to an end.

"The company's performance certainly documents the recovery of the automobile industry," commented an analyst in Detroit. "GM's cup was empty at the start of the year and overflowing at the end."

The auto giant's fourth-quarter profits were up 22 per cent from $508 million in the same 1974 period and 20 per cent better than in the fourth quarter of 1973, when the Mideast oil embargo soured the industry's record-setting sales pace.

GM's performance in the last three months of the year was its second best for the quarter in history. It earned a fourth-quarter record $667 million in 1972.

Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp., which also suffered sharp earnings declines during the past two years, are slated to release their 1975 financial reports later in February.

Shad On Their Way To Grifton Waters

GRIFTON—The weather in Eastern North Carolina has been chill lately, but the Grifton fishermen don't mind because the shad are on the way to Grifton through the winter waters.

Shad have been caught in nets in Pamlico Sound, and will soon be caught on hook and line in the Eastern Carolina coastal creeks and rivers. A few early ones have no doubt already escaped Grifton-area fishermen who have been trying to catch that first shad to enter in the Sixth Annual Grifton Shad Festival fishing contest. The first fish entered each year is usually caught about February 2.

The Shad lives most of its life in the ocean, and returns each year to spawn in the same creeks where they were born. In Grifton, the shad run begins in January and peaks in March, with some still being caught in April. The Grifton Shad Festival celebrates this annual event by offering prizes of fishing equipment to catchers of hickory shad in Contentnea Creek and other streams in a 15 or 20 mile area which flow into the Neuse River.

American shad are not eligible in Grifton's contest, nor are fish caught in nets.

This year's festival is April 9, 10, 11 with the fishing contest closing at noon April 9. Fish must be recorded at the Sport Shop in Grifton. The fish must also have been caught on a hook and line.

"Over $25 million will be saved on electric bills this year, because we've switched two of these generating units from oil to coal!"

"We save on electricity at home by keeping the thermostat at 68 degrees during the day...and turning it back further at night."

The increase in fuel prices is the biggest reason for the increase in your electric bill. The oil we use to generate electricity costs four times what it did in mid-1973. Coal prices have increased too, but not as drastically. That's why we've switched the two largest generating units at Chesterfield Power Station from oil to coal. It isn't economical, or in some cases environmentally sound, to change all our oil burning plants to coal. But where we can switch and save money, the savings show up on your bill.

Savings like these not only help you today... they will reduce our consumption of foreign oil by more than 9 million barrels per year. And that's another step toward America's energy independence.

We're planning for a better future. A future that will come to rely more heavily on electricity. You can save at home, too. Use electricity wisely and conserve energy.

Solving today's energy problems is a responsibility we all share.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market put together a gradual advance today with the help of encouragement over signs of improving corporate earnings. Trading remained fairly active.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.04 at 973.39, and gainers outpaced losers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said the generally bright picture presented by companies' fourth quarter profits was emphasized by General Motors' report late Monday of a 22 per cent earnings gain for the quarter.

A Wall Street Journal survey published this morning found that corporate earnings posted their first year-to-year quarterly gain of 1975 in the last three months of the year.

The newspaper said that better-than-expected showing raised hopes for a strong advance this year in business earnings.

GM shares, which had gained 3/4 Monday, eased off 1/4 to 62 1/2 today in profit taking.

'Shriver Teas' Help Campaign

By MAUREEN SANTINI Associated Press Writer

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—They used to be known as "Kennedy teas," mainly female reception-line events credited with helping to elect John F. Kennedy to the Senate and Edward, a first cousin of Rose Kennedy.

But now they're "Shriver teas," and neither the turnout nor the enthusiasm of the women in fur coats and suede boots seem to have diminished.

Recently, about 420 women paid $10 each to meet Eunice Kennedy Shriver in the family home in the Kennedy compound.

Many, who were not supporters of Democratic presidential contender R. Sargent Shriver when they alighted from the buses that brought them to the Cape Cod residence, were seriously thinking about supporting the candidate when they left.

Why did they come? "Nosey," said Lorraine Dufault of Spencer. "I never got this close to the compound before."

"To see the Kennedy compound and wish him good luck," said Pauline Roche of Leicester, who agreed the tea would probably influence votes. "It will probably influence me," she conceded.

"This is the family we know most about," added Margarite Berthiaume of Spencer.

Eight busloads of women came from Worcester, Framingham, Springfield and New Bedford. Some of the women carried cameras and snapped pictures of Mrs. Shriver in her brightly appointed home on the Atlantic Ocean.

Jones today announced the approval by the Farmer's Home Administration of a loan of $376,000 and a grant of $311,000 to the Bell Arthur Water Corporation to extend water lines to serve the vicinity of Ballard's Crossroads. The loan is to be repaid in 40 years at five per cent interest.

This rural area water system consists of water distribution lines, a 100-gallon capacity elevated storage tank, fire hydrants at ends of existing mains, and individual meters. The financing will enable the water corporation to serve a total of 576 water users.

WILLIAMSTON—Across the board pay hikes for town employees and first steps in plans for construction of 50 units of public housing for elderly citizens topped a long agenda handled by the Williamston Town Board Monday night.

The cost of living salary increase approved for all town employees is the first raise approved for town employees in one and one-half years. The pay rate adopted calls for a ten per cent salary increase for the lowest paid employees; a seven per cent increase for the middle level income group; and a five per cent increase for the highest paid employees.

In the matter of possible 50 units of public housing for elderly citizens, HUD has advised the Williamston Housing Authority that the Town is being considered for this number of units under Section 8 of the HUD program, based on plans and spaces submitted earlier by the local housing plans, and HUD is being notified of this action.

A committee report on the study of possible use of the present water plant site on Sycamore Street as the site of a proposed new maintenance garage sets forth several recommendations: disposal of a number of abandoned cars on the site; transfer of gravel and land-fill material from the site to another place; the hiring of a clerk to disperse parts and equipment and to act also as a dispatcher. The board is deferring action pending further study of the recommendations.

Following a report of hazards existing adjacent to the new Williamston Elementary School, town members have resolved to look immediately joint town-state action to construct sidewalks along roads leading to the school and erection of warning signs within the area.

Further study will be undertaken on the town's projected thoroughfare plan. A state review board has called for revisions of the proposed downtown mall and walking area in view of the fact Main Street being part of a major highway artery. The town board will consider state proposed alternates which call for two one-way traffic patterns, east on Main Street and west on Church Street.

Action was also deferred on rental of a five acre plot for use as a recreation area. The site, which has a building, has been used for the past several years as the Williamston Police Club Park with an annual $500 yearly rental paid for by federal funds. The lease expires June 30, and the owner, Dan Bowen, is requesting an amount of $2,493.90 for a two year future lease.

In other actions; the town board approved renting out the town owned farm adjacent to the cemetery for an amount of $925, the same as the current year's rental; approved a contract with Barlow and Sons Tank Service for $5,975 to paint the inside and outside of the 300,000 gallon water tank; approved settlement in the amount of $1,000 to the In-Line Construction Company in lieu of a potential law suit being posed by that company over a contract dispute; and approved the town's participation in the Mid-East Tri-County Legal Advisor program at a cost of $596.40.

One Stray Monkey Returns To His Zoo

MEMPHIS (AP)—One of four rhesus monkeys that have been hanging around an apartment house across from the Overton Park Zoo returned voluntarily to the zoo, an official said Monday.

Dr. Joel Wallach, zoo director, said if the other three monkeys remain at large Wednesday, zoo officials will try again to feed them tranquilizers with their food.

Similar attempts over the weekend were unsuccessful. He said the monkeys ingested fruits and bread with enough drugs to "put away three elephants," but it wasn't enough.

He has asked residents of the apartment house not to feed the monkeys.

Wallach said it appears the female monkey that returned to the zoo Monday was in mating season and looking for a mate.

"When she returned to the home island, the other animals slapped her around a little bit just to let her know that just because she'd been around in the world, she didn't have any new status," Wallach said. "They didn't hurt her, they just pulled her hair."

Meanwhile, not all the apartment residents have been captivated by the monkeys.

Mrs. Lee Owens, apartment manager, said:

"I was in my apartment last night and suddenly I looked at my balcony door and there were four little faces pressed against the window watching me. If they don't get rid of them soon, I'll go nuts."

Levi Would End Parole System

MILWAUKEE (AP)—U.S. Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi has proposed abolishing the federal parole system and jailing criminals for their full sentences, with time off only for good behavior.

The attorney general said the plan is consistent with President Ford's call for legislation to establish mandatory minimum prison sentences for certain violent crimes and for repeat offenders.

Levi said consideration of such a plan "is an important and necessary first step" toward reforms which could deter crime and provide greater fairness in the criminal justice system.

The attorney general discussed the proposal in a speech for a Wisconsin state conference on crime prevention.

Important Game For Pirates, Indians

Susan Manning Plays Vital Role In Fortunes Of Women's Team

By JOHN EVANS
Special to the Reflector

Most every basketball team has a team leader. A player who, although not the leading scorer or leading rebounder, seems to be the central cog in the machine.

In the case of the East Carolina Women's basketball team, that player is Bethel's Susan Manning.

And Manning may be the top defensive player in the state. At least her coach, Catherine Bolton, thinks so.

"Susan is the outstanding defensive player in the State," said Bolton. "She blocks more shots than any player I know. She's only 5-8, but she blocks shots on six footers."

But even more important than her defensive play, is the leadership role which Manning takes.

"Her leadership has been invaluable this year. She pulls the team together and that has really helped to jell the team as a unit. I think her biggest contribution would be as a team player."

To be a team leader, a player has to have an unselfish attitude and the ability to control action on the floor. For Manning, these qualities are easy for her to accept without putting a lot of pressure on herself.

"I don't feel a great deal of pressure and I enjoy being the leader," said Manning. "To me it is part of the responsibility of being a team captain. I really don't try and be a leader that much, I just concentrate on playing the game and try and set the example for others to follow."

Being a leader also requires a winning attitude. Mrs. Manning, who was married on Christmas eve two years ago, has that winning attitude.

Prior to coming to East Carolina four years ago, the Bethel native had played on a team which had never lost a game. During her senior year at North Pitt High School, Manning was an All-Conference selection on the State 3-A champions.

Her freshman year, she was involved in her first loss ever when the ECU women's team lost in the National Women's championships in New York City.

According to Bolton, the success which Manning has experienced derives from an intense desire to win.

"Susan has a tremendous desire to succeed. This desire overflows to the team."

"I don't think we've ever lost a game that Susan hasn't been hurt that we lost, or won a game where she hasn't been the happiest player on the team."

Of this year's team, Susan has seen a lot of improvement. At the same time she can see similarities to the type of team she played on her freshman year, when ECU went to the Nationals.

"The biggest adjustment we have made this year is that we have found out more about each other and the way everyone plays. We still need to work on our defense and we try to control the game with our running. This pays off at the end of the game when we begin to wear out the other teams."

"This year's team reminds me a lot of the team my freshman year. That year we had a lot of young players and a lot of older players. We rely on each other a lot to help our play and that has helped the team come together."

Manning's performance on the floor is spotlighted by her defensive play and rebounding skill. Last year, Susan set a season record for the Lady Pirates with 221 rebounds and scored 8.5 points a game.

Although her individual statistics are not as flashy this year, seven points and eight rebounds a game, she is playing more as a team player.

"I know everyone looks at me as a defensive player, but I just go out there and try and play the best I can in every area."

"Everyone likes to score, but if I see an open teammate I'd rather pass it to her for a score than shoot it myself."

Off the basketball court, Manning is an honor student majoring in Home Economics, as well as a Who's Who selection. So, not only is she a complete basketball player but she is also a complete individual.

With everything considered, the Pirate's captain has one major goal for this year—another State title and another National Appearance.

"Obviously, it would be nice to go to the State and gain revenge over some of the team's which beat us earlier in the year, but for now we are striving to play 40 minutes of good basketball. If we do that, everything else could fall in place."

It only seems appropriate for basketball to mean so much to Susan Manning, because as far as ECU basketball goes, she makes so much of a contribution to it herself.

East Carolina Outswims VMI

LEXINGTON, Va.—The East Carolina University swimming team won its final Southern Conference dual meet of the season yesterday, downing the Keydets of VMI 68-45.

It was another shuffle affair as Coach Ray Scharf had his Pirates swimming out of their normal events. That had little effect, however, as East Carolina took nine of 13 first places.

Billy Thorne set two pool records and had two of his top times this season. Those came in the 200 freestyle, with a 1:46.6, and the 500 freestyle, with a 4:52.16.

John Tudor was the only other double winner for the Pirates, while Lund Sox had his finest point production of the season in the three meter diving with 235 points.

"Overall, we did pretty well against low-key competition," said Scharf. "We only brought about half the team and mixed everyone up pretty well."

The win was the 35th consecutive against Southern Conference competition and leaves ECU with a 7-2 overall mark on the season. The Pirates will swim Virginia Commonwealth University Saturday afternoon in Richmond.

Squire Fate Is On Line Today

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Are the Virginia Squires on the verge of becoming the American Basketball Association's fourth fatality of the season or is this just another management gimmick to pump new blood into what for months has appeared to be a terminally ill patient?

The answer may come late today when management learns whether it has been able to sell 50 of the 100 advertising banners in Norfolk's Scope — at $5,000 a shot — it says must be sold by Friday for the franchise to survive.

At a hastily-called news conference Monday, the Squires announced they would cease operations — and join Baltimore, San Diego and Utah in folding this season — unless $500,000 is raised.

"Unless we can have 100 banners sold by this Friday, the Squires are going down the tubes, it's that simple," said Walter McTague, an insurance man and a minor investor who's spearheading the campaign to sell the banners.

But more imminent is a deadline the Squires have set for today.

Beset by creditors and unable to meet Monday's $60,000 payroll, management said it must have 50 banners sold by the time of a 4:30 p.m. meeting to look at the situation.

East Carolina University's mens and womens varsity basketball teams return to action tonight in Minges Coliseum.

The women will host UNC-Greensboro in at 5 p.m. game, while the men take on William & Mary in a Southern Conference game at 7:30 p.m.

That second game has taken on a lot more importance because of play during the last four days. Saturday, East Carolina downed Davidson, while Richmond was upsetting the Indians, then on top of the league standings. That moved VMI past the Indians into the league's top spot.

The Keydets hold that top spot by only half a game, having a 5-2 conference mark, while William & Mary is 4-2. Right behind them is Richmond, 7-3, followed by Appalachian State, a loser last night to Furman, 5-4.

Percentage points back of the Mountaineers comes the Pirates at 6-5, followed by The Citadel, 3-6, Furman, 2-6, and Davidson, 1-5.

William & Mary thus could climb back into a share of the lead by winning, or drop to third by losing. East Carolina could move past Appalachian into fourth by winning, or drop further behind the Mounties.

The Pirates will be hampered, however, but the loss of another player for the game. Tyrone Edwards, already in the infirmary with pneumonia, will not be ready for duty, and Al Edwards, senior captain, will be out of town due to the death of his grandmother.

"This leaves us with only seven veteran players," Coach Dave Patton said. "I just hope that we can avoid foul troubles."

Following the Pirates' win over Davidson, Patton said that he is reserving any comment on whether the Bucs have finally come out into the light. "I've thought I saw the turning point three other times and it didn't happen," he said. "Now, I'll just have to wait and see if we can put two games together."

Patton added that he was pleased with the way everyone played against Davidson. "We had the pressure on us. We had to have that one. Now we need at least one more to have a shot at getting into the top four. Of course I want them all, and I still think if we win the rest of them and the chips fall right, we can finish on top."

Patton also added that he saw no reason why the Bucs couldn't win their remaining games—all scheduled for Minges Coliseum. "The home court advantage is getting ridiculous, however," he said. "Almost nobody is assured of victory at home any more."

In the contest against Davidson, Patton noted that Earl Garner played "out of sight." He scored 31 points in leading the Bucs, and also was the leading rebounder. "Wade Henkel also played an outstanding game."

The Bucs got into some foul trouble in the Davidson game, but Patton said it didn't worry him too much since no one fouled out until late in the game. "We had the back-up people available."

A key problem came when Larry Hunt picked up for early fouls and sat out most of the game. "We moved both Earl and Wade inside, and they (Davidson) were never able to handle them."

Patton expressed surprise by the rebounding figures in the game, which had Davidson with a 39-30 advantage. "I can't believe they outrebounded us," the coach said. "And if they did, it certainly wasn't by nine."

The coach also was pleased with the fact that the Bucs had just 11 turnovers, and just four of them came in the second half. "We had 16 assists, and that does please me."

The Indians come into the game with a two-game winning streak over the Pirates. They won last year's semifinal meeting in the Southern Conference tournament, and added a win in the first meeting of the two earlier this year.

In the last game, the Indians were without Ron Satterthwaite, who later quit the team, then returned. He saw limited action Saturday against Richmond, playing for the first time in over a month.

The latest available statistics show John Lowenhaupt leading the Indian scoring with a 15.8 average. He is the only Indian in doubles figures except for Satterthwaite, who is hitting around 18 points a game, but lacks enough games for qualification on the Southern Conference list.

Jack Abogast paces the team in shooting, hitting 55.6 per cent from the floor, while Lowenhaupt is the leading charity shot artist with a 78.0 mark. He's also the leading rebounder at 6.0 per game.

Garner leads East Carolina with a 14.4 average, while Reggie Lee is next at 11.9 and Hunt is third at 10.0. Al Edwards is hitting 9.9 per game and Henkel, 8.6.

Hunt leads the rebounding with a 9.1 average.

NBA, Players Group Near Suit Settlement

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Basketball Association and the Players Association appear close to an agreement that would settle the controversial Oscar Robertson case out of court and remove a major obstacle from a possible merger with the American Basketball Association.

The NBA Board of Governors disclosed Monday that substantial progress had been made on the Robertson issues toward a settlement that would end the litigation, scheduled for trial June 1 in the Southern District Court of New York.

"The action today (Monday) is a major, major step," said NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien. "I'm a pessimist by nature, but I'm sitting here today in optimism."

Larry Fleisher, general counsel for the Players Association, said there was a 50-50 chance now that the case would not go to trial.

The Robertson lawsuit, filed in 1970, challenged the NBA option clause and the legality of the college draft.

The key issue is similar to the National Football League's Rozelle Rule, recently ruled illegal by a federal judge in Minneapolis. This involves compensation to a club who loses a player to another league team when the player players out the option year of his contract.

Fleisher said recently, "As long as there is this demand for compensation, the case can't be settled."

O'Brien said the NBA's Advisory Committee worked through Sunday night and almost up to the Board of Governor's 10 a.m. meeting Monday hammering out the compromise that will be submitted to the Players Association Tuesday by Fleisher. He said also that there had been extensive negotiations last week.

Fleisher said Monday night that 10 players hadn't arrived yet for tonight's 26th annual All-Star game, which would preclude an early meeting. He expected to get his group together sometime after noon.

"I think there is enough in this agreement for me to go to the players and say this is what has been agreed upon," Fleisher said.

Neither O'Brien nor Fleisher would disclose the specifics of the compromise, declaring that the information first had to be delivered to Judge Robert Carter, before whom the case was to be tried.

But sources said the agreement would provide for elimination of the option clause from NBA contracts after this season. The compensation clause would remain in effect until 1980, then would be replaced by a clause providing for right of first refusal.

That means when a player's contract runs out, he may negotiate with any team in the league. But his original club has the right to match any offer, in order to keep the player from leaving.

As for the draft, the agreement would provide that if a player is drafted and not signed within one year, he goes back into the pool and is eligible to be drafted again.

This is subject to vote by the Players Association. If they okay it, and Judge Carter approves the agreement, it could open the way to merger discussions between the NBA and the American Basketball Association.

Tarkenton also passed for 1,000 or more yards for the 15th season, breaking the record of 14 held by Bobby Layne.

East Favored In Star Game

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "We're the favored ball club, but at All-Star games, I've seen some strange things happen," said Eastern Conference Coach Tom Heinsohn of Boston prior to tonight's National Basketball Association mid-season match-up at the Spectrum.

Heinsohn, whose East team was the winner last year 108-102 at Phoenix and leads the West in the series 16-9, is making his fourth appearance as the conference's coach. His club won at Chicago in 1973, but lost at Los Angeles in 1972 and at Seattle in 1974.

Perhaps one of the factors in establishing the East as the favorite is that the team has four of the five players who started in last year's victory. That group includes guard Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks, who was the Most Valuable player in the 1975 game after scoring 30 points. The other repeat starters are forwards Elvin Hayes of Washington and John Havlicek of Boston, and center Bob McAdoo of Buffalo, the league's No. 1 scorer. Joining them will be guard Dave Bing of Washington.

Hayes, however, is nursing an injured wrist, and probably will see only limited action. "I just want our guys to go out and try and win the game," said the determined Heinsohn. "We have guys who can run and hit the boards, like McAdoo and (Boston's Dave) Cowens. So we should be able to capitalize on that."

Cowens is the only other East player who has won the MVP award in the All-Star game, gaining the honor in 1973 when he paced the East to a 104-84 romp with 15 points and 13 rebounds.

Gryphons Down Rampant Girls

ROCKY MOUNT—Rocky Mount High School romped to a 41-18 victory over the Rose High School lassies last night. It was the fourth straight defeat for the Rampant girls, newcomers to the basketball world.

Rocky Mount moved out into the early lead and never lost it as the Rose girls' had trouble finding the range. Rocky Mount held a 10-4 lead at the end of the first period of play, and both teams duplicated their scoring in the second frame, giving the Lady Gryphons a 20-8 halftime advantage.

Rocky Mount put its best quarter together in the third frame, scoring 17 points, as Rose also increased to eight. That gave Rocky Mount a 37-16 lead. The Gryphons outthrew Rose, 4-2, in the final period.

Maryland Back Up To Fifth

By The Associated Press
Maryland swept past two rated teams to advance in this week's Associated Press college basketball poll, but still can't dent the "Big Four" — Indiana, Marquette, Nevada-Las Vegas and North Carolina.

The Terps moved up from seventh to fifth after defeating North Carolina State and Notre Dame in balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Indiana, sweeping all but one first-place vote, retained its top spot in the weekly poll with 1,218 points as the Hoosiers increased their record to 18-0. Undefeated Nevada-Las Vegas, 20-0, received the other first-place ballot but retained the No. 3 spot behind second-ranked Marquette, 16-1.

The Marquette Warriors piled up 1,000 points to 878 for the Rebels. North Carolina, 15-2, remained fourth with 731 points.

Rutgers Might Go Undeclared

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The schedule shows nine games left for Rutgers, but Mike Dabney isn't worried about any of them.

ranked Tennessee won 75-66. King got in early foul trouble and sat out nearly 12 minutes in the first half.

"I really can't see us not going undefeated," the 6-foot-4 senior guard predicted after he propelled seventh-ranked Rutgers to its 17th straight victory, 75-62, over 15th-rated Princeton Monday night.

Fourteenth-ranked Alabama needed an overtime to nip Georgia 69-67. Tommy Bonds hit two 18-foot jumpers in the final 19 seconds of regulation to force the game into overtime, then Anthony Murray scored six points in the extra session for the Crimson Tide victory.

The Scarlet Knights overcame a second half stall by the Tigers, who had sliced a 54-44 deficit to 55-53 with 12 minutes left. After a Rutgers turnover, Princeton played keep-away for more than four minutes until Dabney picked off a Frank Sowiński pass and drove for a layup.

No. 19 Virginia Tech had an easier time, rolling over Oklahoma City 87-66 behind Russell Davis' 20 points.

Dabney added four more layups and two free throws to pace the 20-9 spurt that finished off the Tigers, 12-4.

Dabney finished with 18 points, while 6-5 senior forward Phil Sellers led Rutgers with 22.

Center Barnes Hauptfuehrer topped Princeton with 17 points while forwards Sowiński and guard Armond Hill had 14 apiece. The Tigers were the first Top 20 team Rutgers has beaten in its 17-game skein.

Princeton opened up a 6-0 lead as Rutgers missed its first five shots in Jadwin Gym, which was packed with 7,556 fans, including Gov. Brendan T. Byrne. Rutgers took an 11-10 lead, fell behind 20-19 and then ran off a dozen points for a 31-20 bulge. But the Tigers cut the lead to 42-36 at halftime.

After again falling behind by 10, Princeton executed several backdoor plays off its patterned offense, closing the gap to 55-53.

Sellers, who grabbed 16 rebounds, said a 26-0 record was "definitely a possibility," but added, "Defeat may come anywhere from anyone."

Elsewhere, teams in the Top Twenty had to turn back upset-minded foes.

Mississippi State held Bernard King, the Southeastern Conference's leading scorer, to just seven points. But Ernie Grunfeld took up the slack, scoring 22 points as eighth-

Home Court Was Not Safe For Appalachian

By The Associated Press
Almost before Appalachian State learned for the first time how to win Southern Conference basketball games on the road, the Mountaineers forgot how to win at home.

three-time champion Paladins climbed out of the basement to 2-6 in the league and 5-13 against all opposition.

The Mountaineers, two of whom four straight league triumphs that moved them into fourth place were their first away from home in their four years in the conference, returned home Monday night and fell on their faces in a 77-76 defeat by Furman's Paladins.

With Daryll Robinson and Calvin Bowser leading the way, Appalachian moved to within a point at 75-74 with 28 seconds left before Steve Whittington iced it for Furman with two free throws six seconds later. The Mountaineers' only lead was 33-32 late in the first half.

Ironically, it was just a week ago the Mountaineers made history two ways in a 68-64 decision at Furman—their first victory ever over the Paladins and their first on the road inside the league.

Ron Smith added 16 points and Whittington 10 for Furman, while Bowser had 19, Mel Hubbard 15 and Bob Pace 14 for Appalachian.

The defeat dropped Appalachian to 5-4 in the conference and 7-10 over-all, while the scoring leader Ray Miller threw in 25 points, built a 73-63 lead over Appalachian with 5:14 left and barely withstood a furious Mountaineer finish.

Lucas scored 34 points, tying his single-game high, in leading the Terps to a 102-84 league victory over N.C. State.

RECORD RUN IN TRIALS

Seventeen-year-old Anton Steiner of Austria comes off a bump Monday as he swoops down the terrifying Patscherkofel Mountain course. Steiner broke the course record by more than 6.5 seconds but may not even make the Austrian team for the Winter Olympic games since there are two more trials before the three spots on the team are filled. (AP Wirephoto)

Youth Breaks Record In Downhill Trials

By WICK TEMPLE
AP Sports Editor
INNSBRUCK (AP) — By the time you read this, Anton Steiner may have fallen on his backside and ended his hopes of getting into the Olympics. No matter. He typifies the spirit of the Games that began in ancient Greece and have endured wars and disasters.

Poland and West Germany won preliminary games to qualify for Olympics' medal competition. The United States, Japan and the heavily-favored Russians were expected to do the same today.

Steiner, a well-scrubbed, cherub-faced, 17-year-old Austrian, broke the downhill record on the terrifying Patscherkofel Mountain course Monday by more than 6.5 seconds. That alone might indicate that he is an Olympic gold medal hopeful.

Speed skaters Sheila Young of Detroit, Lean Poulos of Northbrook, Ill., Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis., and Dan Carroll of St. Louis carried high hopes for the United States in their respective races.

They and the remainder of the U.S. speed skating team arrived in Innsbruck Monday from Switzerland where Miss Young, 25, set a world record of 40.91 seconds in the 500-meter race. Miss Poulos, 24, won the 1,500-meter event in a U.S. record time of 2:13.98 minutes and Mueller, 21, won the men's 500 meters.

As a matter of fact, he may not even make the Austrian team. Two more practice runs will decide which three skiers the Austrians select to join Franz Klammer for their highly-rated squad in the Winter Games.

Those results in an international speed skating meet gave the American team more hope than ever for several medals. The other best bet, figure skater Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., was suffering from a cold and sore calf muscles from working out only two hours instead of her usual six.

The East Germans put on a strong bobsled showing in trials Monday, setting a record of 56.28 seconds over the 1,220-meter course. They also eclipsed another record in the 70-meter ski jump on Henry Glass' jump of 83.5 meters — 2.5 meters longer than one set Sunday by Ivo Felix of Czechoslovakia.

The opening ceremony is set for Wednesday afternoon in the stadium into which the 90-meter ski jumpers plummet.

Steiner flashed down the 3,145-meter trail in 1:49.04 minutes Monday to break the record of 1:55.78 set last year by Klammer, who said he took it easy in finishing third and sixth in the two downhill runs.

Mendocino Rose In 'Whale War'

MENDOCINO, Calif. (AP) — The sultry voice of "Mendocino Rose," speaking Russian amid the crackling static of marine radio, is a weapon in a war being waged by this ecology-minded town against Soviet and Japanese whalers.

"Hello, Soviet whalers. This is Octobriana, speaking to you from the former imperial Russian Colony in California."

The Russian-born Californian is known as "Mendocino Rose" — a takeoff on World War II's "Tokyo Rose."

"Mendocino Rose," who declines to be identified because she fears for relatives in Russia, appeals to Soviet sailors to end their slaughter of California gray and sperm whales and defect to the United States. She offers the sailors food, housing and training for other industries in the United States.

Located on wind-carved coastal bluffs about 150 miles north of San Francisco, this town of less than 1,000 residents decided to unleash "Rose" and boycott Japanese-made goods after sighting a Russian whaler off the coast here six months ago.

"We are not against anybody, but we have to save God's whales," said Byrd Baker, 52, a wood sculptor and a warrior in the war.

"And I believe there is a Russian aboard those ships who feels he can't kill another one. The whalers have to feel bad when they see a mother and father dash themselves against a ship after their baby has been harpooned."

The antiwhaling warriors meet weekly. They now plan to emulate the Canadians who maneuvered small boats between whales and Soviet harpoon ships in efforts to halt the killing.

In everyday life we pay protection as a matter of course—taxes, life insurance, social security, etc. We would do well to extend that principle to the bridge table. After all, an overtrick or two is a small price to pay to guarantee a contract.

Three no trump would have been a safer venture, but this is not an easy contract to get to. North had a difficult rebid to make and we, too, would have chosen to raise hearts in view of our weak doubleton spade and three trumps headed by an honor. Once the 5-3 major fit was located, it was almost inevitable that the heart game would be reached.

West led a low spade to the queen and declarer's ace. A trump to the queen won, but East showed out when declarer returned a low trump from dummy. Now there was no way declarer could avoid losing three trump tricks and a spade for down one.

While the 4-1 trump break was distinctly against the odds, declarer had no one but himself to blame for going down. When dummy came down, declarer should have realized that his contract was safe unless he got a bad trump break, for he could afford to lose two trump tricks and a spade.

The safety play to guard against losing three trump tricks is to start by leading the king from the closed hand. As the cards lie, West takes the ace, and might continue by cashing the queen of spades and leading another spade. Declarer wins in his hand and leads a low trump. Since it would not help West to play a high trump, he follows low. Now declarer plays the eight from dummy. When this wins, declarer cashes the queen of hearts and simply concedes a trick to the master trump.

But what if West started with a bare ace of trumps and East held four trumps to the jack-nine? Then, when declarer leads a low trump, West will show out. Declarer puts up dummy's queen and returns a trump, and again the defenders can come to only two trump tricks. And, of course, if trumps are 3-2, the finesse of the eight on the second round won't cost a thing except a possible overtrick.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.25 in cash or check, payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648.

Suspect Soviet Pinch Due Big Grain Imports

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union may be facing a severe financial pinch because of huge grain imports, including about $2 billion worth from the United States, an Agriculture Department specialist said today.

Judith Goldich of the department's Economic Research Service said Russia has sold large quantities of gold during the past two years to help finance imports, including other commodities and products as well as grain, and more recently has been looking for other ways to finance its foreign purchases.

One method for Russia to offset its U.S. grain expenses would be to provide oil for the American market, a proposal which has been under discussion for months. However,

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger placed that prospect in doubt last week when he said the United States will not try for new major economic deals with Moscow because of Russian involvement in Angola.

In the first half of last year, the Soviets ran up an estimated $1.8-billion trade deficit with the United States, West Germany, France, Italy and Japan, Mrs. Goldich said. Grain purchases since mid-1975 have added "considerably" to that deficit, although no estimates are available, she said.

"Although Soviet gold sales could be used to finance the entire payments deficit, the USSR has increasingly turned to the West for credits and loans," Mrs. Goldich said in this week's issue of Foreign Agriculture, published by the Agriculture Department.

Department experts estimated last fall that Russia would buy about $2.1 billion worth of U.S. farm commodities in 1975-76. Imports of agricultural products from the Soviet Union, primarily furs, are not expected to be much more than $10 million.

Thus, Russia's farm trade deficit with the United States alone could easily total $2 billion this year if USDA analysts are correct. A further factor is that no U.S. government credit has been extended to Russia for grain purchases, meaning that it has to raise cash or come up with another way to offset that deficit.

The oil proposal surfaced last fall while negotiators were working out a long-term grain agreement. The grain deal, announced on Oct. 20, calls for Russia to buy six million to eight million tons of wheat and corn annually for five years, with deliveries to begin Oct. 1.

Extended Hours For Tax Help

GREENSBORO — The IRS has announced that its toll-free telephone taxpayer assistance in North Carolina will be available an extra hour each evening. The new hours for telephone assistance are 8 a.m. to 5:45 p.m., Monday through Friday.

North Carolina taxpayers may call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-822-8800. The IRS urges taxpayers with questions to call before 9 a.m. and after 2 p.m. and on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, as these are usually their least busy times.

LWV Will Sponsor Workshop Feb. 24

A Land Classification Workshop, prepared and presented by the North Carolina Land Policy Council, will be held in Greenville in the Willis Building at First and Reade Streets February 24 from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. The Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters will be the sponsoring organization.

The purpose of the workshop is to help realtors, developers, banks, city and county officials, and other interested persons in Eastern North Carolina become knowledgeable about Land Policy and to encourage their participation in the development of policy and a land classification system. Hearings on the Land Classification System will be held in March. Since the Land Classification System will be the basis for Land Use Planning throughout the state, it is important that interested persons in North Carolina understand and participate in its development.

The agenda for the workshop will be:

- 10 a.m. — Introductory comments.
- 10:05 — Slide show titled State Land Policy: New Directions in Planning.
- 10:30 — The Land Policy Act — Visual Presentation.
- 10:50 — The Land Policy

Hopes Hearst Jury Selection Is Completed Today

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —
The judge in Patricia Hearst's trial for bank robbery set his sights today on completing selection of a jury that could begin hearing testimony Wednesday — two years to the day after the heiress was kidnaped by terrorists.

Nine more persons were chosen Monday for the pool of 36 prospects from which the jury will be seated, leaving 11 more to be picked.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter, who suggested last Tuesday as the trial began that a jury could be impaneled within two days, predicted the jury would be seated today.

Defense attorney Albert Johnson quoted Carter as telling attorneys after Monday's closed session, "We will have a jury tomorrow afternoon." He said he agreed with the judge's prediction.

If that goal is achieved, it would clear the way for lawyer challenges to trim the panel to 12 jurors and four alternates.

News reporters were allowed into the courtroom for the first time since last Wednesday when the names of 15 more prospective jurors were chosen from a spinning wooden drum Monday. They were picked to replace persons who were excused.

The brief admission of news media to the courtroom came shortly after Carter issued his promised explanation of why he refused to allow reporters to cover the individual questioning of potential jurors.

In an official memorandum, Carter said "the defendant's rights under the Sixth Amendment must take precedence" over First Amendment guarantees of freedom of press and speech.

He said the absence of reporters insured greater candor on the part of prospective jurors and would lead to a more impartial jury "who will be called to pass judgment upon her."

Miss Hearst, 21-year-old daughter of San Francisco Examiner president Randolph

Hearst, faces a maximum sentence of 35 years in prison if convicted of the armed bank robbery charges.
She was kidnaped by the Symbionese Liberation Army on Feb. 4, 1974, but later declared in tape-recorded messages that she had joined her terrorist captors. She was charged with helping the SLA hold up a San Francisco bank two months after her kidnaping. She was captured here last Sept. 18.
Meanwhile, chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said he will make an opening argument of 30 to 45 minutes and that his first order of business when the defense begins presenting its case will be testimony about Miss Hearst's abduction.

If the government fails to call Miss Hearst's onetime fiancé, Steven Weed, Bailey said, Weed "will be my No. 1 witness."
Weed, who was severely beaten by the kidnapers, will be called to testify about the kidnaping, which Bailey says will be the heart of the defense.

The government will argue at the trial that the former college coed was a convert to revolution and participated freely in the April 15, 1974, robbery of a Hibernia Bank branch.

The defense will counter that she was still a kidnap victim and acted out of fear of death.

Seven In 10 See Generation Gap

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey by the Institute of Life Insurance shows that seven out of 10 young people believe there is a generation gap.

The institute says those "who live with their parents are more likely to hold this opinion than those who do not — 73 per cent as opposed to 66 per cent."
