Advancing MPLA Is Unchecked

By The Associated Press

The Soviet-backed forces in Angola today reported the capture of Silva Porto, their Western-supported foes' military headquarters, and a spectacular 175-mile advance southward to take the southern towns of Mocamedes and Sa da Bandeira.

If confirmed, the advance would put the Angolan and Cuban forces of the Popular Movement (MPLA) less than 100 miles from a South African defensive line and about 125 miles north of the border between Angola and South-West Africa (Namibia), Nicholas Ashford of the Times of London reported from Johannesburg.

The MPLA's capture of Silva Porto, extending its hold on the Benguela railroad across central Angola, was confirmed by a spokesman for the rival Western-backed National Union (UNITA) in Kinshasa, Zaire. Some hours later, Radio Luanda announced the capture of the two southern towns. There was no confirmation from other sources.

Jane Bergerol of the London Financial Times reported from Luanda, the MPLA capital, that South Africa was estimated to have 20,000 troops in southern Angola, about four times previous estimates.

The South African government claims its forces are there to protect a dam on the border which supplies electricity to South-West Africa. Miss Bergerol said Luanda Radio called on guerrillas around Mocamedes and N'Giva to make contact with MPLA officials. She said some of the tribes fought for the MPLA against the Portuguese colonial government in the 1960s and 1970s.

Portugal granted independence to Angola, the last of its African colonies, on Nov. 11, 1975, and turned over Luanda to the MPLA.

In northern Angola, forces of the third Angolan faction, the Western-supported National Front (FNLA), were reported holding out with a handful of British mercenaries in Sao Salvador. It is the last Angolan town of any significance still held by the FNLA.

United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim denied a South African request for U.N. aid to some 11,000 Angolans in South African refugee camps on Angolan territory.

Waldheim said U.N. relief for refugees is limited to persons outside their own countries. But he said he learned the International Red Cross Committee was making arrangements to send "urgently needed humanitarian supplies" to the area.

The Organization of African Unity, which on Wednesday recognized the MPLA as the legitimate government of Angola, charged the U.S. Congress of Racial Equality with anti-African subversion because it was recruiting black American medical personnel for UNITA.

"The executive secretariat of the OAU to the United Nations strongly denounces the reported recruiting by Roy Innis and his covert mentors of so-called combat medics to go fight a battle which is happily ending," said the statement from OAU's New York office.

Innis, CORE's national director, returned this week from a visit with UNITA leaders during which he appealed for black Americans to fight against the MPLA.

CEMETERY MOVING COMPLICATED

There is a graveyard that takes up considerable space in one of my fields. Long ago it belonged to a family not my own. I'd like to know the procedure for moving the graves and markers to a public or private cemetery, already established, or moving it to an area of my farm that I do not care to cultivate. H. T.

N. C. General Statute 65, Article 13 deals with the disinterment and reinterment of deceased persons. Your first effort, according to this statute would be to get written approval from any heir or heirs of persons buried on your land. If heirs cannot be located, you must run a legal notice to the next of kin in a newspaper of general distribution in the county stating your intentions. Then, after more than 30 days, you may seek a permit from the County Health Department to make the move to either an established cemetery or to one which you establish. Every effort to move remains and markers must be made. You must then file with the Register of Deeds certificates of removal, with all the names that you can determine and exact information as to the old location and the new location of each grave moved.

For all the details and the proper forms, you should contact Alice Coburn, Deputy Register of the N. C. Bureau of Vital Statistics at the Pitt County Health Department.

Biographer Says Abe Was Glamorized

By THOMAS S. BROWN
Associated Press Writer

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Abraham Lincoln hated to be called "Abe," was embarrassed by his log cabin origins and asserted in campaign speeches that blacks should not be treated as well as whites, says one of his biographers.

Stephen B. Oates, a University of Massachusetts historian, said the 16th president was a great man, but not the homespun folk hero imagined by most Americans.

Oates has spent seven years researching Lincoln's life for a new biography. Today is the 167th anniversary of Lincoln's birth.

Said Oates, Lincoln was glamorized after his assassination in a fanciful biography written by a law associate, William Herndon. Oates said scholars dismissed the biography years ago, but its image of Lincoln as a commoner lives on.

"Contrary to legend, Lincoln was anything but a common man," Oates said. Instead, he was an ambitious lawyer who preferred not to discuss his log cabin childhood and disparaged his nearly illiterate father, refusing to attend the man's funeral.

The professor said that by middle age, Lincoln was considered a wealthy man with large investments in finance and real estate.

His acquaintances called him "Mr. Lincoln," Oates said. No one dared call him "Abe" to his face.

"He loathed the nickname," Oates said. "It did not baffle a respected professional who had struggled hard to overcome the limitations of his frontier background."

Oates said another mistaken notion is that Lincoln's speechmaking consisted of simple, often humorous statements offered in deep, rich tones. In reality, he said, Lincoln had a shrill, high-pitched voice and was much more effective delivering elaborate orations than off-the-cuff quips and anecdotes.

Lincoln, he said, ought to be seen as an intense, brooding man, a cautious politician who took a long time to declare publicly that slavery was wrong.

The professor said Lincoln personally disliked slavery but that as a politician from Southern-orientated Illinois he kept those views to himself for years. When campaign opponent Stephen Douglas accused him of favoring racial intermarriage, Lincoln emphatically denied he believed in social equality for blacks but was only trying to defend their rights to life, liberty and a fair livelihood.

Oates acknowledged there was one part of the Lincoln legend that stands up — his reputation for honesty. Even Lincoln's enemies conceded he was incorruptible.

Retail Gasoline Prices Sag; Industry Worried

CHICAGO (AP) — Gasoline wholesalers at some stations in the Midwest are in "a state of near panic" because retail prices have fallen below the 50-cent mark for regular brands, says a prominent oil industry analyst.

Herb Hugo, senior editor of Platt's Oilgram, revealed Wednesday that retail gasoline prices at some stations have dipped to their lowest level in nearly four years.

Hugo added that the trend appears to be nationwide and that there is little immediate prospect that gas prices will rise much.

The oil analyst said the Oilgram, an industry publication, will report today that a price of 47.9 cents a gallon for regular plus 2 cents tax is common at independent stations in the Chicago area — a price "awfully close to cost."

While Hugo called the lower retail prices "a great piece of news for those of us who drive a car," he said the lower prices are a problem for the industry.

He said the average price for major brands has declined steadily since Labor Day, when it peaked at 65 cents a gallon.

At that time, said the editor, almost everybody associated with the oil industry expected the price to keep rising. Hugo said he predicted that it would go to 70 or 75 cents a gallon, while others predicted $1 to $1.25.

"Nobody thought it would go down," he said.

Hugo said the current major brand price in the Chicago area is 58 to 59.9 cents a gallon, including tax. However, he said, that price is under great pressure to come down.

Lower prices being offered by some dealers are having a "snowballing effect. Nobody knows where it's going to end," he added.

Stadium Needs Supplant Swim Pool's Parking Lot

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Because of a roof gone bad, plans for a paved parking lot at the Greenville Municipal Pool will have to be postponed until a new source of money becomes available.

In a report to Greenville Recreation Commissioners Wednesday night, Recreation Director Boyd Lee said that the City Council had been asked to switch the $20,000 earmarked in the recreation budget for paving the swimming pool parking lot for use in putting a new roof on the grandstand-bleacher structure at Guy Smith Stadium.

"We thought the roof could be patched," Lee said, "but found out it was rotted and needs to be replaced before the baseball season begins in mid-March."

"The low bid on the job is $13,710. Replacement of the roof needs to be done due to safety factors."

Lee said he has asked the council to put the remaining $6,290 of the $20,000 parking lot funds into the budget for the Parks Division of the Recreation Department.

According to Lee, 69.58 per cent of the 1975-76 fiscal year funds for that division have already been used. The break-even point at this time in the fiscal year is 58 per cent. Lee explained that this is the first year a separate budget allocation has been set up for the Parks Division, and it is the division of the department that has been expanded most.

Operations under the Parks Division include maintenance, building upkeep, repairs, utilities, painting buildings, landscaping, and vehicle maintenance including gas and oil. "Anything relating to the physical plants now falls under Parks Division," Lee said, "whereas anything in programming falls under the Recreation Division."

At this point expenditure of allocated funds in the Recreation Division of the department program amounts to 52.98 per cent, about five per cent less than the break-even 58 per cent figure.

On the matter of firming up a policy on waiver of user fees for recreation facilities, commission members unanimously approved a motion recommending that Lee no longer consider waiver of user fees for any request.

Under the user fee policy established for non-recreation use of any of the physical facilities of the Greenville Recreation Department, the policy previously permitted waiver of the standard user fee as exceptions for non-profit charity usage.

However, Lee pointed out that because of the tight budget, the rising costs of utilities, and the escalation of the number of requests for waiver of fee being received, it is his opinion that the only fair policy to all concerned, that the fee be charged to any group regardless of the purpose for which use was being allowed.

Fees for use by any private group of a recreation facility are established at a break-even price with the fee determined by the amount of money required to pay utilities, for the services of a supervising person, and for necessary clean-up.

Lee noted that since the fees were established some years ago, he and his staff would be taking a look into the cost factor to determine if the established fees are sufficient to pay for actual expenses. Lee reiterated, and board members concurred, that fees at all times will be kept to the minimum required to cover expenses so that the fee program will not be a money earning activity for the Recreation Department.

In another periodic report on the long standing unresolved issue of participation by non-Greenville residents in the city's recreation program, Lee reported that figures maintained during January on out-of-city participants showed a participation rate ranging from 15 to 35 per cent of total participation for seven programs that were monitored.

The programs monitored and the percentage of out-of-city (or county residents) participation shows: Adult basketball program, 35 per cent; youth basketball program, 15 per cent; ladies bowling, 22 per cent; ladies exercise, morning, 26 per cent; ladies exercise, afternoon, 24 per cent; senior citizens programs, 22 per cent; Elm Street crafts program, 27 per cent; and special populations, 19

Body Recovered

The body of Karie Buck, 60, of Simpson, was recovered from the waters of the Tar River yesterday, some five miles downriver from where searchers began looking for him eight days before.

Buck was reported missing February 3. His car was found parked at a river-landing about three miles downriver from Greenville. It was feared he had walked into the rain-swollen river and members of the Greenville Rescue Squad, along with Simpson-area residents, began probing the waters of the Tar in an effort to locate his body.

That search ended about 1:30 p.m. yesterday when Foster Reed and Worth Hardee, both of Route 3, Greenville, discovered Buck's body floating near the bank about a half-mile below Yankee Hall — an old landing on the north bank of the Tar, near Pactolus.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey said this morning that his investigation of the death is continuing.

LOOK INTO MY EYES — Vincent Price lectured at ECU Wednesday night. This is just one of the expression of Price's many faces. (Reflector Photo by Susan Quinn)

Vincent Price: Man Of Many Roles, Faces

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

Vincent Price—He has played a doctor, scientist, good-guy, bad-guy, movie producer, Shakespearean character, vampire, and many assorted villains.

He is a man of many characters, many faces, and many talents. The character he is best known for is his own personable attitude, his ready handshake and his ever changing smiles and expressions.

Perhaps he summed the success of his 40 year acting career when he said, "Acting is a kookie kind of life, but I love it, and I love meeting the people."

Price, a guest lecturer at ECU Wednesday night explained that he loves traveling on his lecture series. "I just love to meet the people and to entertain them," he said. "I have been lecturing for 18 years. I have lecture series on the History of the Villain, Van Gogh and Art, American Poetry and others."

He was asked if he has any present or future plans for movies. "The movies of today are filled with youth and violence, and I am neither young or violent," he snarled at the crowd.

Price loves art and archaeology. "When I was 12, art was very cheap, and I bought a Rembrandt for $37.50. I paid the man $5 for it and sold newspapers for a year to make the rest of the money to buy it. Today the picture would sell for about $1,500."

Asked about celebrities campaigning in politics Price said, "We've all done it in some way or another. I see no reason why we shouldn't have a voice in politics. We're citizens too."

An enthusiast of American history, Price was a member of the national bicentennial committee in Washington.

"The committee had a wonderful time discussing all the activities that could commemorate the bicentennial, but the board was dismissed. I think that the bicentennial has become too commercialized. I would like to see the bicentennial celebrated as a spirit of revolution, studying the ethnic influences that were combined to become American."

Price's hobbies are fishing and cooking. As a note to Southern cooks, Price said "I've mastered cooking grits and love them, but my wife despises them."

Future plans for Price include a tour of plays this summer including "Oliver" and "Damn Yankees."

Reports 'Best Year' At First State Bank Meet

WINTERVILLE—C. D. Langston, president of First State Bank, reported to stockholders here Wednesday night that 1975 was the best year the bank had ever experienced.

Langston reported that 98.69 per cent of shareholder's interest was represented at the 70th annual stockholders meeting by proxy and in person.

The president informed the stockholders that total resources, as of Dec. 31, 1975, were $18,940,941, an increase of $4,630,939 over the previous year-end resources of $14,310,002.

He attributed the growth of the locally-owned bank to its acceptance by individuals and businesses in Pitt County.

Langston pointed out that during 1975, a new office was opened at the corner of Farmville Boulevard and Memorial Drive and stockholders were advised of the progress of the new office.

The official informed stockholders that an application has been submitted to regulatory authorities for permission to open another branch in Greenville in the remodeled Proctor Hotel building on the downtown Evans Street Mall. With the opening of the new downtown branch, the bank will have three offices in Greenville and one in Winterville, he reported.

Total income for 1975 increased to $1,219,829, Langston said, from $738,083 in 1974.

Langston noted a significant contribution to the community in interest paid to depositors, salary and employee benefits, and other expenditures and contributions made within the community.

Net earnings for 1975 were $2.10 per share after taxes, compared with $1.41 per share in 1974, he reported. First State Bank's annual dividend increased from 30 cents per share to 40 cents per share in 1975.

Directors elected to serve during 1975 are Langston, Sen. Vernon White, W. A. Weathering Sr., John Milton May, W. M. Scales Jr., J. Curtis Hendrix, Clinton R. Prewett, Syd W. Dunn, John F. Minges, Kenneth K. Dews, John R. Farley, William C. Glidewell Jr., and director emeritus W. J.

Bullock.

Officers of the bank are: Langston, president and chairman of the board; White, vice president; Glidewell, executive vice president; Hendrix, executive vice president; Pam Kachmer, assistant vice president; Tommy Langston, cashier; Richard Pike, operations officer; and Marie Mills, assistant cashier.

Return Bracelet To Old Boyfriend

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, a guy I went with gave me a gold charm bracelet. (I'll call him "Pete.") Pete and I broke up, and I married a good friend of his. My husband and I see Pete about once a week. I haven't worn the bracelet for two years, and I probably won't ever wear it again. It's very pretty, but it doesn't mean anything to me now.

I was wondering if it would be tacky of me to pawn the bracelet. We could use the money. What would you do? UNDECIDED

DEAR UN: I'd return the bracelet to Pete.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband's parents who live far away insist upon sending my son Christmas and birthday gifts, and I wish they wouldn't.

Jimmy is 6 now and old enough to question where these gifts come from. So far I've been saying, "they're from some friends of Mommy's," but I don't know how much longer that will suffice.

I divorced Jimmy's father and married again when Jimmy was 2. My husband adopted Jimmy, so he's the only father the boy has ever known, but I would rather not tell him about his "real" father until he's older and better able to handle it.

I suppose I'm not being realistic because so many people know about my first marriage that someone is sure to tell him. However, I don't want Jimmy to know just yet.

When the time comes, should I tell Jimmy, or should my husband? I want it to be an O.K. experience, not a traumatic one. Can you or your readers who have been through this help me?

A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The time to tell Jimmy is right now! Say, "Before I married your father, I was married to another man, and HE is your natural Daddy. We decided it would be better for both of us if we ended our marriage, so we got a divorce. Then I fell in love with your father and he adopted you, making you his LEGAL son."

Then tell him about the set of grandparents you've been unfairly hiding all these years. The sooner you tell Jimmy, the easier it will be. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: I have a relative who cannot make a statement without using vulgar or profane language. He says he has the right to use any kind of language he feels like using. I am sick and tired of it. What should I do? And how do you feel about vulgar language, Abby? OFFENDED

DEAR OFFENDED: If you have told his person that his language offends you and he makes no effort to clean up his act, you have the right to absent yourself from his company. I don't appreciate vulgar language, either, but the more I like the person, the less I'm offended by his language.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26¢) envelope.

New Soy Product Used In Baking

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — Sandwiches made from a new bread laced with soy concentrate have as much protein in the slices as they do in their meat ingredients.

The protein-packed bread contains xanthomonas campestris, a bacteria which grows on corn sugar and is made into a food gum called xanthan gum.

The gum is put into a dry mix to make bread and other bakery products. Biochemist Donald Christianson said "22 per cent of the total mix is protein, which is comparable to most lunch meats and weiners."

Researchers feel the bread has a big future. It can provide protein to vegetarians, such as the millions in India, and serve as a substitute for persons with bread gluten allergies.

Xanthan gum was discovered in 1956 at the Northern Regional Research Center of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Peoria. In 1969 the federal Food and Drug Administration approved its use in foods.

Christianson said he and other researchers wanted to "produce some type of product that we can put fairly large amounts of vegetable protein in." The three major vegetable proteins are peanuts, soybeans and cottonseed.

He said bread was chosen because it usually is the staple in every meal.

"This baked product could serve as a protein extender in the diet, so you could have meatless nights and still have enough protein in the diet to satisfy the requirements."

"Everyone knows that meat is going to get uneconomical, and we all know that we have to have more protein in our diet. So here is a means to have a good protein in a baked product that will be suitable to eat," he said.

The dry mix contains xanthan gum, starch, yeast, protein, and salt for flavoring. "Then just add the water and mix it up like a cake," Christianson said, adding, "it tastes good."

"It has a texture like a pound cake right now, but we are trying to vary the textures at the present time," Christianson said. Other ingredients such as dry eggs and sugar can be added to the mix to make cakes, donuts, pancakes and sweet rolls.

Xanthan gum is presently used as a thickener in salad dressings, bakery fillings, canned goods, milk shakes, sauces, gravies, frozen foods, pourable dressings, syrups, puddings and dairy product spreads.

Christianson said the gum is advantageous to fast-food services because it causes some foods to rise in half the time.

Christianson said he hopes the gum will be on the market within a year. Patents are held by Kelco of San Diego, Calif., the main manufacturer who is building another plant in Okmulgee, Okla., and General Mills, which is opening a plant in Keokuk, Iowa.

Wool was one of the first products traded internationally. Marketing took place as early as 4,000 B.C.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Women who work outside the home have just suffered another major setback.

It seems major advertisers have overwhelmingly rejected them for their ads in favor of the stereotyped housewife.

Frankly, I believe bad breath, perspiration, dingy laundry, embarrassing itching, and dandruff should be shared. Why should women who stay at home reap all the benefits of their misery?

I just don't understand advertising. It has only been within the last 15 years that black people have enjoyed nagging backaches and been allowed to squeeze toilet tissue. (They still don't ride on the bus with Fred MacMurray or get to coat their stomachs with an antacid.)

Some of my best friends are career women. I even took one to lunch the other week on her day off and discovered some real revelations.

Other than the fact she goes to the office each day, she is like a real person. She cooks, cleans, does the laundry, and entertains.

She has colds, trouble sleeping, iron-starved blood, and occasional irregularities. She wants a bank she can trust, a wax that "wakes up your wood," a coffee that her husband doesn't smart off about and the best peanut butter for her kids.

"You know something, Wanda," I said, "if you had dry skin you'd be just like one of the girls."

"But I do," she said. "I also have chapped lips, oily hair and use a soap that doesn't get me clean."

"Don't lie to me, Wanda," I charged. "If that's true how come I never see you on TV dipping little plastic dolls in residue to see how your soap leaves a film on your entire body?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "No one ever asked."

Later, in the laundromat, Wanda and I were folding clothes when we were approached by a man who said to Wanda, "I'll give you $50 for that raggy T-shirt."

Wanda looked at him directly in the eye and asked, "Why?" "Because I want it," he said, "to prove something."

"You've already proved it," said Wanda. "You're not playing with a full deck, and if you don't take your little scissors and split, I'm going to call the home."

Maybe the advertisers were right. Wanda just doesn't fit the image they're looking for.

Garden Club Holds Meet

The Lakewood Pines Garden Club met at the home of the President, Mrs. H. R. Billica, Tuesday morning.

Mrs. J. H. Harrel, the horticultural chairman of the club, reminded members of the care necessary for gardens at this time of the year. Plans for the annual Spring Fair of the club were discussed and committees appointed. The fair will be held April 15 this year.

The program consisted of the members exchanging plant cuttings, each member identifying and explaining the care of the plants which she had brought.

The next meeting of the club will be held March 9 at the home of Mrs. Joseph M. Laney Jr.

CROP LOSS

SONOMA, Calif. (UPI) — Starlings and linnets are blamed for the loss of $3 million worth of wine grapes annually, says a Sonoma Valley winegrower. Starlings eat the whole berry, but linnets (the common name for finches) peck at the fruit. Juice flowing from the damaged grapes causes mold, which ruins whole bunches.

The per capita consumption of food additives in the United States was estimated at more than eight pounds last year, compared with about six pounds in 1965 and about seven and a half pounds in 1970.

These figures are not as alarming as they appear at first glance. John F. Angeline, senior consultant for Arthur D. Little, Inc., a Boston research organization, says they include nutrient supplements such as the soy protein products whose use has risen sharply in recent years.

By Angeline's definition, additives also include preservatives, stabilizers and thickeners, leavening agents, flavorings, food colors, flavor enhancers, anticaking agents and antioxidants that keep food from darkening when exposed to air. Some are used to save money, both for manufacturers and ultimately for consumers.

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Floor-length drapes help prevent heat loss indoors if they are drawn about sunset, says Norm Teter, Extension agricultural engineer at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Teter said the drapes help keep a convection current from being set up behind them to carry heat from the house through the windows after dark.

at the retail level.

The safety of additives in general is debated daily by consumers, consumer activists, the food and chemical industries, scientists and physicians and the government. Opponents blame them for a wide variety of ills ranging from hives and headache to high blood pressure, cancer and birth defects.

One researcher sees the emotional response, not additives per se, as the real public health threat.

In Washington, D.C., Ruth Beeler White, director of consumer inquiry for the Food and Drug Administration, said the agency's volume of mail from consumers has about doubled in the past six months. It now runs between 350-450 letters a month. Additives are far and away the most popular topic, she said. Among the questions raised are safety, function (what do specific additives do?), how can a consumer tell if an additive is in a food or beverage? Ms. White added that antagonists are more motivated to write than consumers who approve of the use of additives.

Under present law, manufacturers are not always required to identify additives on labels. Persons with allergic or genetic problems have no way of knowing whether certain foods are safe for them to eat. As an example, current standards for 42 different kinds of cheese permit the use of added color without declaring it on the label.

Shortly after March 1, the Senate is expected to consider the Consumer Food Act of 1975, which is designed to protect consumers through labeling changes and establishment of surveillance regulations to detect and prevent food adulteration.

Dr. Alexander Schmidt, FDA commissioner, has testified in favor of the Consumer Food

Act in general. Among the changes he advocates are access to manufacturers' records for FDA plant inspectors, who under current law cannot be denied entry to factories, but who can be barred from files.

For several years, the Food and Drug Administration has been revising and updating its rules on food formulation and labeling. Since the 1940s, the FDA's recipe-type standards have required identification on labels of certain ingredients: artificial colors, flavors and preservatives, among others. But butter, cheese and ice cream were exempt. Artificial colors can be used in them without saying so on the labels. The Consumer Food Act would reverse that ruling.

In Washington, a staff member of the Senate Commerce Committee said the chances are fairly good that the labeling provisions will remain in the bill in the Senate.

The scientific community is split on the effects of long-term ingestion of very, very low levels of additives and food toxins.

"Like it or not, chemical preservatives are a very effective means of guaranteeing a safe food supply," says Angeline. Without them, we're going to have more spoilage, or have to pay more money for food, he said. Angeline is senior project leader for the ADL food and agribusiness section.

"If we are going to live intently urban lives, we need foods that can tolerate handling and various storage problems, foods that are disease resistant," he said. To him, and to some university scientists and researchers, banning of certain additives is simply swapping one hazard for another. Nitrates and nitrites in cured meats have caused cancer in laboratory animals, but they came into use to prevent an even greater threat, botulism poisoning, said Angeline.

He estimated that the dollar value of additives in America's domestic food supply has more than doubled since 1967, from about $472.4 million that year to an estimated $1 billion last year. He said the latter figure reflects both increased usage and inflationary increases.

Monosodium glutamate, a flavor enhancer, is among the controversial additives widely used in common foods such as canned and dried soups, frozen prepared foods, packaged mixes and bottled salad dressings. A St. Louis physician, Dr. John W. Olney, wants it banned. Olney, a faculty member at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, says it can destroy brain cells by overstimulating them. He claims MSG damages the hypothalamus, affecting metabolism.

He says studies show some children have shudder attacks and epileptic-like seizures in reaction to foods containing MSG. The symptoms end when the additive is removed, he added.

Olney disagrees with those who defend its use with the argument that it occurs naturally in many foods:

"That's one of those partial truths that is so misleading." He said glutamate found in foods is bound up in protein and is converted in the stomach so that little reaches the brain in pure form.

"Free glutamate is found almost not at all in nature," he said, "and that's what they're adding to food."

The International Glutamate Technical Committee, Washington, D.C., estimates that fresh foods lose much of their natural free glutamate content within 24 hours after harvesting. The committee consists of physicians and other scientists who work for manufacturers and researchers of glutamic acid and its derivatives such as MSG. It says glutamate is classified as nonessential to the human diet, but adds that it is an important source of nitrogen and helps supplement or conserve essential amino acids.

Most additives, including MSG, must by law be listed on product labels. But Prince Harrill, deputy director of the FDA's division of food technology, says current law still permits the use of MSG in salad dressing, mayonnaise and French dressing without declaring it on the label. An FDA proposal published last July eventually will reverse the ruling, leaving chocolate and macaroni products among the few remaining basic foods that permit unidentified ingredients. He said projects now underway will make full disclosure of those obligatory, probably within another couple of years.

While the safety debate continues, consumers have cut purchases of additive-free foods and beverages.

"Progressive Grocer," a supermarket industry magazine, recently reported many shoppers buying fewer natural cereals, apparently because of high prices and adverse publicity questioning the products' nutritional value and labeling them high in fat, carbohydrates and calories.

In Portland, Ore., the health food business in general is way down, a food chain executive told the magazine: "Prices are higher; demand is off."

In Indianapolis, a buyer-merchandise for a large cooperative said his company had discontinued about 85 per cent of its health items.

At the same time, supermarket spokesmen say diet food sales are booming. Many such products rely heavily on additives as substitutes for fattening ingredients.

One First Lady Has No Picture

NEW YORK (AP) — The wife of the 12th President of the United States is a faceless woman today.

No one knows what Margaret Taylor, wife of Zachary Taylor, looked like because no portrait or likeness of her exists, according to Peter G. Todd, senior exhibit specialist for the Kodak Photo Gallery here. When he began to assemble a display of 33 portrait photographs of presidential wives who resided in the White House, he could find no authentic likeness of Mrs. Taylor in any archive.

Legend has it that when General Taylor fought in the Mexican War, his devout wife vowed that if her husband returned home safely she would forewear society. She kept her word until her death in 1852. During her White House residency she welcomed friends and kinfolk in the upstairs sitting rooms, presided at the family table and attended church regularly. She took no part in formal social functions, leaving all duties of official hostess to her youngest daughter.

She never sat for a formal portrait. For this reason, she is represented at the gallery with an empty picture frame among the other portraits of presidential wives.

It's Going To Require Money

Secretary of Corrections David L. Jones paints the bleakest of pictures concerning the state of the prison systems.

"We've got two choices," he said recently. "We can build adequate prisons or we can let the criminals walk the streets."

Experts say that the prison system is badly overcrowded and understaffed. In addition there is a wide variance in the sentences that two law breakers get for the same crime, which is undermining confidence in the whole system of justice.

There is some talk of doing away with paroles and setting definite lengths of sentences which the inmates must serve.

But in the meantime the prisons must cope with tremendous overcrowding. In Central Prison there are now 1,300 inmates. Ninety men sleep in the old prison gym and others are in halls and former hospital wards. There are only 128 single cells, and the experts believe that the accommodations should be mostly single cells.

The dormitory areas are described as no man's land at night with the guards afraid to go in except in force.

With all these problems the prison system got little in capital improvement funds this year as the recession cut into the state revenue estimates.

It is estimated now that $100 million is needed to bring the prison system up to a decent standard.

Somehow we are going to have to find a way to improve the prison system. Convicted criminals should go to jail, but once there, they deserve humane treatment. There should be decent food for them and reasonable facilities, and there should be work or other activities to keep them busy.

Maybe some money could be raised for prison improvements through addition to court costs, or a higher tax on liquor. Perhaps some prison labor could be used on a contract basis and in this way provide funds for improving the facilities.

It is certain, though, that the prison situation is bleak and it's going to take considerable money to improve things.

Agribusiness Ass'n Should Be Helpful

Organization of a Pitt County Agribusiness Association should be helpful to our area.

The organization held its third meeting this week. It is a non-profit organization designed to promote agricultural interests. It will also educate the public on the economic contributions which agriculture makes in Pitt County.

Commissioner of Agriculture James Graham told the group that he believed in what they were trying to do. "Finance and energy" are of prime importance to agriculture, he said.

The Pitt County Agribusiness Association can do a great deal of good in the county. We are glad to see it off to a good start.

The Same For All Of N.C.

RALEIGH — Any idea that 80 Piedmont and Mountain counties would be treated differently than the 20 Coastal counties when it comes to land management has been pretty well rejected.

The North Carolina Land Policy Council, in work sessions recently nearing conclusion of suggested land management programs, has determined that the proposals must "closely track" the Coastal Area Management Act provisions.

As one put it, all of North Carolina must be fed from the same spoon. Another, who sees things from a different perspective, suggested "beat with the same stick" might be a more appropriate term.

Hearings Planned
Nearing the conclusion of study on proposals which will make up the statewide land management program to be recommended to the 1977 General Assembly, the Land Policy Council is preparing now for a series of public hearings across the state beginning in March.

Resulting from those hearings and further study by the council will be the proposed Mountain Area Management Bill and the Piedmont Area Management Bill.

Earlier discussions on the Policy Council saw some sentiment for less stringent measures than those now required of coastal counties. The rationale was that most Piedmont sections already have some effective land use management programs, with more in the works; and that Mountain counties do not have the fragile environmental concerns found in Coastal sections.

The most significant departure would have been elimination of Areas of Environmental Concern from the regulations for the remainder of the state. Further discussion has shown, however, that while not as fragile as marshlands or beaches, other areas of North Carolina such as mountain peaks and unique natural areas do need protection.

The council also explored the possibility of changing the basic land classification system in the statewide proposal, but now appears agreed to keep the same five classifications in use in the Coastal counties: developed, transition, community, rural, and conservation.

Thinking at this time on the Land Policy Council — and reflected in the material to go to public hearings—is to follow this basic outline:

Plans Required

Each county and municipality would be required to prepare land classification plans, mapping present uses and designating land in the five classifications.

The state would set up an agency similar to the Coastal Resources Commission to monitor activities, review and approve plans, and establish Areas of Environmental Concern.

Development within Areas of Environmental Concern would require special permits, either from local government or the state depending on size of the proposed development.

Local governments would be "encouraged" to apply the land use plan to the ground through zoning ordinances, etc., but not required to do so.

Plans would be updated every five years, with changes possible in the interim through a hearing process. State and federal development would be subject to the same regulations.

The key to the system, says State Senator Willis P. Whichard, D-Durham, is local authority and participation. He stressed the importance of having a state commission either for each of the three geographical areas, or statewide but with guaranteed representation of residents of each of the three areas.

Another element still unresolved is whether a state commission would review "key facility" plans such as airports, power plants, shopping centers, retirement villages, recreation centers, when such have impact beyond the local area.

The Sky Is Not Falling

Columnist and congressmen have this much in common: When they change their minds on an issue, they owe it to their constituents to say why. I have changed my mind on the matter of landing rights for the Concorde supersonic plane. Let me say why.

A couple of words first. Where matters of high political principle are involved, we opinion makers, in the overblown phrase, ought to exhibit a reasonable consistency. The question put to Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman did not involve issues of principle; in the end, the question turned on a homely rule of human relationships.

This, too. Where a matter of public policy involves only the merits of a particular proposal, we ought to preserve an open mind. This was the case as to Concorde. Until Coleman's reasoned and cogent opinion came down, I had opposed these landing rights. On the merits, he makes a convincing argument in their support.

To listen to the Chicken Little howls that have arisen in the past week, you might suppose that with Coleman's opinion, the skies indeed are falling down. Some of the environmentalists are having hysterics. Spokesman for Pan-Am and TWA are filled with gloomy forebodings. Platoons of lawyers are rushing to and from. On Capitol Hill, there is angry talk of legislation to overturn the Coleman decision.

This is what he decided: As Transportation Secretary, Coleman authorized two Concorde flights a day into Dulles International Airport west of Washington. He said the government would not object to four flights a day into Kennedy International serving New York. For the moment, his action is final as to Dulles; service to Kennedy will depend on further approval by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey.

That is the sum and substance of the Coleman order. These limited operations are authorized for a period of up to 16 months. Meanwhile the environmental impact is to be carefully monitored. The British and French carriers are put on notice that the permission may be suspended at any time the public interest appears to demand cancellation.

Five years ago, when a proposal for supersonic passenger flight first flew into the public realm, the big question had to do with the sonic boom. Opposition was spearheaded, indeed, by a doughty little organization that styled itself the Citizens League Against the Sonic Boom. That objection no longer obtains. Operations over land areas must be at less than supersonic speed. Another major objection has to do with damage to the ozone layer. On careful examination, Coleman found the evidence unconvincing. Maybe a time will come when fleets of supersonic planes constitute a serious peril; but the time is not yet. The ozone layer appears to have remarkable properties of recovery.

A third objection goes to Concorde's noise. As Coleman freely concedes, the Concorde is indeed a noisy aircraft. Especially on takeoff, it makes a terrible racket. But the irritation doesn't last for long, and the inconvenience will affect relatively few persons.

Some of the other objections are irrelevant or demagogic. If the Concorde loses money, which seems likely, this is no concern of ours. If these flights "serve only a very few rich people,"

His Idea Looks Ahead

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — You might call Oliver O. Manning hard-headed although that doesn't seem to describe this kindly, soft-spoken man.

But once Manning gets an idea in his head he doesn't give up until he sees it put into practice. He can point to a number of successful projects that he either developed them or supplied them with valuable support.

He thinks his latest accomplishment — formation of a Future Farmers of America Foundation — may be his most important.

"Present conditions indicate a greater need than ever for closer cooperation between industry, agriculture and education," Manning said. "And an obvious need exists for supplementary backing for local and state FFA activities in North Carolina."

He said this need has been recognized by the national FFA organization for years as a way of coordinating agriculture and other segments of the economy.

Manning began working to organize the foundation three years ago. The North Carolina FFA Foundation was formally chartered last month and already has received some substantial contributions.

Among the principal objectives are the promotion of recreational and educational activities for youth and the promotion of interest in agricultural education.

"It is something North Carolina needs and the people of North Carolina will respond," he said.

Manning says the foundation will contact individuals, business firms and civic clubs in search of support for the organization.

Manning said the initial goal of the organization will be upgrading FFA camps — the Tom Browne FFA Camp near Asheville; the R.J. Peeler Camp at White Lake; and the S. B. Sim-Lincoln's birthday brought much political cannonading as President Roosevelt and the Great Emancipator were compared by the New Deal's friends and contrasted by its foes.

By Secretary Ickes, Mr. Roosevelt was described as "the man who bravely tilts his lance against special privilege and entrenched greed."

To Senator Hastings (R-Dela.), the President appeared as "this prodigal son," who "rushed on in his wild career."

The skirmish within the Republican party livened with the news from Illinois that Senator Borah would compete in the primary there. Supporters of Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, said his candidacy would be announced formally tomorrow.

Coincidentally, Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, another whose name looms large in Republican councils, was described as favored for President by 19 of the 21 Republican county committees in New Jersey.

INSIDE REPORT

Israel Goes To Congress

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A brief telephone call to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger from Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey Jan. 29 suddenly reversed President Ford's careful strategy to keep negotiating pressure on Israel — a reversal with damaging implications.

The call means a higher level of arms for Israel than the President wanted, which poses a dangerous election year problem for him. He now must choose between a correctly balanced Mideast policy or courting the American-Jewish vote as Congress is doing.

Humphrey placed his telephone call to Kissinger from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and posed this question: Would the administration object to continuing all U.S. military aid abroad at the current level during the "transitional quarter"? That period covers the three months between the end of the present fiscal year, June 30, and the start of the new one, under a new accounting system, Oct. 1.

Kissinger, pressed for an answer, said he would have no objection. But aides of the President were amazed and angered. The reason: the chief beneficiary of the military aid is Israel, and Mr.

Ford had personally ordered a major aid cut for Israel starting July 1.

The fast shuffle resulting from Humphrey's chummy call was typical of big-league politics here whenever Israel goes to Congress. None of the usual rules hold, and the best laid presidential plans go glimmering.

Mr. Ford's plan, for example, was soundly based. By agreeing to a Sinai deal with Egypt last year, Israel showed its willingness to negotiate in good faith. As a result, Mr. Ford earmarked arms aid in the budget for fiscal year 1976 (ending June 30) at the very high level of $1.5 billion.

But to warn Israel that no such vast amount of American aid was to be counted on year after year without further evidence of Israel's negotiating flexibility, the $1.5 billion rate was reduced to a $1 billion rate for the "transitional quarter." That reduction, which also fits the somber fiscal mood of budget director James T. Lynn, was personally initiated by the President on the "transitional" budget papers.

No one at the White House was even told of Kissinger's telephone chat with Humphrey. Regarded as one of Israel's greatest champions, Humphrey had been pressed hard to gain Kissinger's assent by other committee members — particularly Republican Sen. Clifford Case of New Jersey, another champion of Israel. Informed that the committee needed a decision at once, Kissinger made it on the spot.

Thus, there are consternation at the White House when it was discovered the $1.5 billion rate had been authorized for another quarter. To longtime watchers of the skilled pro-Israeli lobby here, it indicated a predicate was being laid to support long-range arms aid at the $1.5 billion level with or without further (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

NOT IN ABUNDANCE

Charles Greville, the famous English diarist, once wrote of Thomas Creevey, the English politician, "Old Creevey is a living example of how a man can be perfectly happy and exceedingly poor." With a large family small resources. Creevey, who had once been quite wealthy, accepted his change of fortune cheerfully and lived one of the most useful lives of his day. He possessed an active mind and durable temperament which defied melancholy.

The wise never make the mistake of allowing themselves to be too closely attached to things. They know that material wealth has a way of crumbling under the unfortunate circumstances of life. Our Lord once remarked that man's life consisted not in the abundance of things he possessed. Many a person today in very humble circumstances but possessing a cheerful heart and a contented spirit is living testimony to that truth.

Stocks Specialist Role Argued

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The

stock market specialist persists. Harshly criticized even within the stock exchange community, and a wedge in its credibility gap, he lives on, and so does a unique stock exchange problem.

The specialist stands in a powerful position on the floor of exchanges, a sort of traffic cop at the intersection of buy-sell orders, entrusted with maintaining an orderly flow, perhaps even buying or selling for himself.

Say the critics: a privileged position loaded with potential conflict of interest that is damaging to the public interest.

The New York Stock Exchange argues he is essential to the proper functioning of an auction market, which it is. And that, in effect, is the same conclusion reached by a study committee a few days ago.

"We... found that the specialist is a necessary supplement to the auction market in providing depth and continuity," said the committee, headed by William Batten, an exchange director and former chairman of J. C. Penney Co.

Retain the specialist, it said, but be more observant of him, measure his performance, discipline him, make him work for his money. And most important, raise "quality of market" considerations to the very highest board level.

The role of the specialist, it appears, cannot be removed from the exchange machinery. He is an essential gear, it is said, although one that grinds and throws off sparks. But remove him and the machinery stops.

And so, while credibility and integrity and reliability are essential to the widespread restoration of confidence in securities markets, the specialist seems destined to stay.

The specialist is a market maker. Sixty-seven specialist firms are responsible for keeping an orderly flow of transactions and prices brought to the floor by brokers, even if it means temporary damage to their profits.

That is, if an imbalance exists between buy and sell orders at a certain price, the specialist might have to risk his own capital, even buying against the flow of prices, in order to keep business moving smoothly.

Nevertheless, usually he is in a position to make money.

Usually, say critics, he is also in a position that is enticingly loaded with potential conflict. Often, say the critics, the potential is realized.

What the public finds difficult to accept is that any man, any specialist firm, would intentionally risk his own capital for the greater good. And yet, that is the assigned task of the specialist.

Could he be replaced? Some say he could be — with an electronic computer program, the so-called "black box," a mysterious concoction of the mind that the Batten committee claims is yet to be translated into hardware.

"There is no evidence it can be done," said Batten in an interview. "I'm not for throwing out a workable system until I know a better way to do the job."

IRA Hunger Striker Is Dead

LONDON, England (AP) — Frank Stagg, a member of the Irish Republican Army, died in Wakefield Jail today during the 61st day of a hunger strike, the British Home Office announced.

IRA leaders in Northern Ireland had warned that underground Roman Catholic guerrillas would resume their bombing campaign in Britain if Stagg died.

British authorities said Stagg, 34, serving a 10-year sentence for IRA activity in Britain, began fasting Dec. 13 in an attempt to make the government transfer him to a prison in Northern Ireland.

However, his family and his lawyer said he was seeking the status of a political prisoner, with no solitary confinement and no prison work. No prisoner in a British jail has such status.

The Home Office said Stagg was warned Dec. 15 that the "inevitable deterioration in his health would be allowed to continue without medical intervention unless he specifically requested it."

He was transferred to the prison hospital on Dec. 19, put under medical supervision and food was available to him, the statement said. But he went on with his fast.

Police patrols around the prison 185 miles north of London were stepped up last month as Stagg weakened and the IRA warned of retaliation if he died a "martyr's death."

The Home Office said Stagg's wife was with him when he died.

Since 1972, at least 60 persons have been killed in Britain in violence attributed to the IRA, spilling over from Northern Ireland where the confirmed death toll in the Protestant-Catholic war this week reached 1,442 since August 1969.

The IRA wants to end British rule in Northern Ireland, which has a Protestant majority, and unite it with the Catholic-dominated Irish Republic.

The last act of IRA violence in Britain was the assassination last Nov. 27 of Ross McWhirter, compiler of the Guinness Book of World Records, who had called for capital punishment for terrorists. He was shot to death at his front door in West London.

In previous weeks there had been a spate of bombings of restaurants in London in which eight persons were killed and 187 others injured.

Police stations throughout Britain were informed immediately of Stagg's death, and contingency plans to counter IRA reprisals were put into effect. Guards were strengthened at government offices and public buildings, and extra precautions were taken for political leaders.

Funeral plans were not announced yet, but police feared the IRA planned a demonstration as the body was taken from Wakefield to Ireland. It was believed Stagg would be buried at his birthplace in County Mayo.

Israeli withdrawal from Arab lands.

Although some critics downgraded the success of Israel Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's official visit here, close students of U.S.-Israeli relations thought otherwise. It was Rabin's visit, in itself, that brought speedy action on arms aid.

On another front, Rabin was granted a 90-minute closed-door session with the Senate Appropriations Committee Jan. 29. That marked the first time the committee has gone behind closed doors to hear a foreign leader, according to senior committee aides. One Republican member, Sen. Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma, boycotted the session as "inappropriate" for a congressional committee.

Rabin was superb, according to Senators present. His purpose was to persuade the committee that Israel was right, and the U.S. Defense Department and Central Intelligence Agency were wrong, in their conflicting assessment of Israel's need for U.S. arms.

"He was snapping off the figures left and right," said one admiring Democrat.

It could be one of the most important performances of the Prime Minister's career. For the all-important decision Congress will make about arms aid for Israel in the near future, Rabin's secret rebuttal of top U.S. defense experts could make a multi-million-dollar difference to the American taxpayer.

Rabin also had an impressively large live audience, about half the committee's 25 members. Only four turned out for Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld's Feb. 2 testimony on the new defense budget.

Such an imbalance in favor of a foreign leader points to the heart of the President's political problem as well as Israel's importance in election-year U.S.A.

as Senator Birch Bayh virtuously contends, this is how the world is. When it was earlier proposed that U.S. taxpayers themselves finance development of a Boeing SST, these considerations were fairly arguable. Not now.

This is the main point: Friendship is a two-way street. The British and French have bought American-built airplanes. They have not objected to the noise and pollution that our aircraft have caused over England and France. For the United States now to deny even experimental landing rights to a plane in which our allies have invested so much, in my own view, would be a mean-spirited and selfish act.

Friendship cannot be all take and no give. Friendship often demands some sacrifice of self-interest. If the whole of Coleman's decision should come to pass — two flights a day at Dulles, four a day at Kennedy — we would not have given a great deal or sacrificed very much.

mons Camp near Swansboro. The camps were established more than 40 years ago by the Civilian Conservation Corps and many are in rundown condition.

The foundation reached a milestone recently with the receipt of the first check from a "Silver-Emblem Donor" — $500 from William Teague of Leicester. Teague is an FFA adviser at Clyde Erwin High School near Asheville.

Manning's work with the foundation is the latest in a long list of contributions to North Carolina agricultural education. A native of Clanton, Ala., he came to North Carolina in 1934. After teaching for one year in Union County, he moved to the Dunn area and taught at Plain View High School in Sampson County.

The first agricultural course in the Dunn area was offered in 1938 and Manning was the instructor. He was named Master Teacher of Agricultural Education in North Carolina in 1940.

He served in the U.S. Army Air Corps from 1941 to 1948 and after his discharge spent more than a year as Dunn city manager before returning to teaching. He retired at the first of the year.

Store Robbery

Greenville Police today are seeking two men in connection with a robbery at the Happy Store on Wauauga Avenue early this morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the strong-arm robbery occurred about 4 a.m. He explained that a store employee on his way to his car after closing was knocked to the ground outside the building by two men who grabbed bags containing $1,147 in cash and checks.

Police recovered one bag containing at least part of the stolen checks a short time later on Fleming Street.

Ford Outspent Last Month By Ex-Governor Reagan

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican challenger Ronald Reagan outspent President Ford last month in early primary states and had slightly better luck attracting private political contributions, the latest campaign finance reports show.

The gap was most evident in Florida, site of the nation's third presidential primary on March 9. Reagan spent $152,126 there during January, nearly four times the $42,586 put out by the Ford campaign.

Reports received Wednesday by the Federal Election Commission showed Reagan outspending the incumbent in these other primary states where the two clash in February and March:

New Hampshire, $49,623 for Reagan to $40,585 for Ford; Massachusetts, $58,727 to $14,630; Illinois, $66,012 to $47,327; and North Carolina, $61,342 to $32,574.

In total expenditures for the month, Reagan's campaign spent $1.25 million to $723,512 for Ford, but at month's end Ford's campaign had $692,475 cash on hand to $53,156 for Reagan's.

For all of last year, Reagan raised $1.93 million and spent $1.51 million, while Ford raised $1.69 million and spent $1.47 million.

On the contribution side, Reagan pulled in $786,627 in private funds to $708,274 for Ford. The President's side, however, had more of its contributions qualify for matching fund certification and took in $492,907 in government checks, compared with $100,000 for Reagan.

The reports are the first in a series of monthly disclosures required under the new federal election law.

Not all the Democratic candidates' reports had yet been received by the FEC.

Meanwhile, there were these political developments Wednesday:

—Sen. Henry M. Jackson led other Democratic candidates in Alaska precinct caucuses, although most party members remained uncommitted.

With less than 25 per cent of the results in, Jackson had 35 per cent of the delegates, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter had 10 per cent and 55 per cent were listed as uncommitted.

—Reagan continued his campaign in New Hampshire, where his strategists said they were encouraged after Ford's campaign—swinging through the state last weekend. "Ford did not help himself by coming up here," said Hugh Gregg, Reagan's state chairman. Gregg said he has revised his prediction that Reagan will get 40 per cent of the vote to "something higher than that."

Gregg said Ford "may have even hurt himself" by the visit, citing a Ford aide's comment that campaigning is hard in the state because 40 miles outside a city "there's nothing but trees and bears."

John Michels, Ford's state chairman, said Gregg "is nuts" if he believes that. "The visit was a plus. It's helped us and it's given us a lot of support," Michels said.

—Jackson called for a tougher American foreign policy and said in Springfield, Mass., he will "maintain a voice in the U.N. like that we have had in Daniel Patrick Moynihan."

Moynihan.
The Democratic candidate, launching a three-day swing through Massachusetts, said the United States needed "sensible strength" to back up its diplomatic efforts. He criticized the Ford administration's efforts at detente, terming the policy a "great coverup" that works to the Soviet Union's advantage.

—Unsuccessful 1972 Democratic presidential candidate Sen. George McGovern said in Salt Lake City his supporters have the power to withhold the Democratic nomination from anyone he considers unacceptable.

"No one will win (the nomination) without the support of the McGovern people," the South Dakota Democrat said.

He said his supporters do not have the power to pick the nominee, "but can prevent anyone we consider unacceptable from gaining the nomination. I would not hesitate to use that power."

—Ford counselor Rogers C.B. Morton said in Cincinnati that Reagan's entry in the presidential race is "more showmanship than substance."

Addressing an annual GOP Lincoln Day dinner, Morton said, "His candidacy always seems to me to be not thought out."

—William Clay Ford, owner of the Detroit Lions and a Ford Motor Co. executive, withdrew after a week as the running mate of independent candidate Eugene McCarthy. McCarthy's campaign headquarters said

Ford withdrew following a legal opinion indicating that "in several key states a stand-in candidate must be a resident of those states."

—The housing chairman of the Republican party said the possibility the GOP will move its national convention from Kansas City "has lessened considerably." June Gibbs made the statement after Kansas City officials and hotel and motel executives held a meeting to discuss the possibility the city would not be able to deliver the promised number of rooms for the convention.

—Former Alabama Gov. George Wallace campaigned in Indianapolis where he said other candidates are now embracing the positions he took as a candidate in 1968 and 1972.

Craftsmen Cautioned

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Division of Health Services has warned craftsmen who use coarse yarn of camel hair, goat hair or sheep's wool imported from Pakistan that the yarn may be contaminated.

According to the state agency, two companies, Tahki Imports Ltd. of New York and Creative Handweavers of Los Angeles, have sold yarn in North Carolina that may transmit anthrax, a disease that results in lesions of the skin or ulcers in the stomach.

Dr. J.N. McCormick, head of the Communicable Disease Branch of the Division of Health Services, said that late in January, a weaver in California who used the yarn died of anthrax.

An investigation by the National Center for Disease Control revealed contaminated wool at both companies, and distribution was halted. McCormick said animal hair is usually treated with formaldehyde which kills the bacteria, but this imported yarn was not.

Persons who have some of the yarn should take it to the local health department, McCormick said.

High Court Asked To Rule On 17-Year-Old Voters

RALEIGH (AP)—Changing their minds, lawyers for the North Carolina Civil Liberties Union have asked the state Supreme Court to allow 17-year-olds who will become 18 by the November general election to vote in the March 23 presidential primary.

Norman B. Smith, a Greensboro civil liberties attorney, asked the court Wednesday to direct the state Board of Elections to allow such 17-year-olds to register.

Several days ago Smith and other lawyers in the case decided to drop their efforts to let the 17-year-olds to vote in the March 23 primary. However, Smith said they had reconsidered their position and decided to press on.

"We just feel they (the elections board) are dead wrong, and we hate to see them get away with it," Smith said.

Attorneys for the State Elections Board and the Wake County Board of Elections, another defendant in the suit, are expected to file an answer to the petition today. After that it will be up to the Supreme Court to decide whether to consider the issue.

The Supreme Court was asked to intervene because of a quickly approaching voter registration deadline on Feb. 23.

Last week Smith and Deborah H. Mailman, a Raleigh attorney, were unsuccessful in their efforts to persuade a Superior Court judge to overturn a Dec. 10 ruling by the State Elections Board which would allow only those who become 18 by March 23 to vote in the presidential primary.

Originally the lawyers considered appealing to the State Court of Appeals. However, they decided against it. Besides a lack of time, they were concerned that continued litigation might lead to the overthrow of a state law that allows 17-year-olds to vote in the regular state primary if they are to become 18 by the time of the general election.

In a brief he filed with the Supreme Court along with the petition, Smith cited the state law. He asserted that the law applies to primaries for both state offices and presidential nominations.

The State Board of Elections, in its December ruling, said the state law did not apply to the presidential primary because the electoral contest is only to express voter preference and does not necessarily mean the winner's name will be on the ballot in the general election.

Prohibiting eligible 17-year-olds from voting in the presidential primary would produce an "anomalous and arbitrary result," Smith argued. "Seventeen year-olds who will attain the age of 18 before the general election will be permitted to vote in primaries for the selection of state and local officers, but will not be permitted to participate in the presidential primary; whereas, all other voters will be allowed to vote in all primaries."

Harris Case Is Delayed For A Month

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The judge in the trial of Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris has delayed the case another month, and a defense attorney says a joint trial with Patricia Hearst "is looking probable."

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler continued to March 15 the Harris' trial on 11 felony counts of kidnap, robbery and assault. The motion was granted Wednesday to allow the presentation of several defense motions.

Court-appointed defense counsel Leonard Weinglass, asked if he thought his clients would be tried with Miss Hearst, said, "We're definitely heading toward that. It's looking more probable."

The prosecution also seems to be agreeable to a joint trial with Miss Hearst. Deputy Dist. Atty. Samuel Mayerson told Brandler, "We are quite amenable to making this trial available to a joint proceeding (with Miss Hearst)."

The Harris' asked last week for the delay so they could be tried with Miss Hearst, who is currently on trial on federal bank robbery charges in San Francisco.

Brandler did not rule on the request immediately, saying he would give the matter "some further thought."

Then, in a telephone call to U.S. District Court Judge Oliver Carter, presiding judge in the Hearst trial, Brandler was told that the Hearst trial would last about a month and that Miss Hearst would be "available" at that time.

If Carter's calculations are correct, Miss Hearst could be arraigned in Los Angeles by mid-March, in time to be tried with the Harris.

But Miss Hearst's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, has said he's opposed to the joint trial of his client and the Harris. "That's the last thing we'd want," Bailey said.

Symposium Land-Use Planning Is Held Today Discussed By Alford

A symposium on women in international literature has been scheduled by the East Carolina University Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures for today at 4 p.m. in Room 221 of the Mendenhall Student Center.

The program, free and open to the public, will feature five presentations by members of the ECU foreign languages faculty.

Topics and program participants are:

"Not Older but Better, Because I Feel Like It" by Magdalena Mondragon, Helga Hill; "Jacinto Benicente and Women's Rights in Spain," Raquel Manning; "Victorian Feminist: Lucie Duff Gordon, Translator and Transplanter of a German Witch Story," Carolyn Bolt; "A Mexican Feminist of the 17th Century: Sor Juana Ines de la Cruz," Luis Acevez; and "The Creator of Don Juan: Male Chauvinist Pig—or Not?" Nancy Mayberry.

The symposium is sponsored by the department's Research and Publications Committee. Each presentation will be followed by a question and answer session.

WINTERVILLE — Ott Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, was the featured speaker at the Winterville Ruritan Club Tuesday night. He gave an illustrated talk on a proposed state wide system of land use planning and classification.

Alford explained that the 14-member Land Policy Council, established by Gov. Holshouser in 1973, has now become a study commission charged with making proposals to the 1977 General Assembly.

The Land Policy Council, recently proposed five classifications for land use in North Carolina. These are: Developed cities and towns, Transition land bordering on cities and towns, Communities such as the cross-roads type, Rural or farm land, and Conservation areas, including parks, river basins and marshlands.

The famed Waldorf salad is a simple concoction made of diced apples, walnuts and celery with mayonnaise.

H. D. "Buck" Weaver, lieutenant governor of the Greenville-Goldsboro Ruritan District, reported on the National Ruritan Convention, which was held in January in Philadelphia. Weaver said that Ruritan has 1,274 clubs with 37,000 members and is expanding across the country.

President Kay Dunn presented two boys from the local Boy Scout Troop, Warren Franke and Mike Joyner. Franke told the club about an upcoming scout exhibition to be held at the fairgrounds.

Photographer In Court Drew Little Attention

By REX THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A newspaper photographer sat quietly in a courtroom and took pictures of a witness testifying in a robbery trial. It is believed to be the first exercise of a new rule which allows news photographs and radio and television broadcasts while the courts are in session in Alabama.

Roger Wentowski, a photographer for the Montgomery Advertiser-Journal, took the pictures Tuesday while a 10-year-old deaf mute, Karen Vance, was testifying about a drug store robbery in Montgomery.

The child, speaking in sign language which was relayed to the court by one of Karen's teachers at a special education school, identified Elizabeth Hyman as the driver of a getaway car.

The Hyman woman was on trial on a robbery charge.

The presiding judge, Richard P. Emmet, allowed the pictures under a new canon of judicial ethics which went into effect in Alabama Feb. 1. It allows pictures and broadcasts in the courtroom with the consent of the trial judge, defense and prosecution attorneys, the defendant and the witness.

Emmet said he got permission during a recess and then allowed Wentowski to take the pictures after the photographer's city editor, Joe McFadden, sought the court's approval.

The judge said it "went on very well. It was not in any way disruptive."

Emmet disagreed with some judges who contend that picture-taking disrupts the judicial proceedings. "You don't even know the photographer is in the courtroom," the judge said. "The camera doesn't even click."

The judge said he will allow pictures in the future but permission must be obtained in advance each time because the consent of the parties involved is required.

Wentowski said he sat in the spectator's section of the courtroom, about 25 or 30 feet from the witness stand, and took pictures with available light, using no flash bulbs.

It attracted so little attention, the photographer said, that at one point "the judge said he kept watching me and didn't see me taking any pictures. He expressed surprise when I told him I'd been taking them."

Wentowski said after he had been shooting pictures for a while "the judge sent the bailiff over to tell me I could get up and move around and shoot from other angles."

The photographer said he was under the impression that "no one knew I was taking pictures."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials estimate it may cost $250 million to strengthen protection of U.S. nuclear weapons sites around the world against possible raids by terrorists.

The storage sites, containing thousands of nuclear warheads, will be converted into virtual fortresses.

Officials hope much of the cost will be borne by member nations of NATO because many of the sites are located in Western Europe for nuclear defense of that area.

The Pentagon's concern about the security of its nuclear weapons storage sites was triggered by increasing terrorism in recent years.

This led to spot inspections, which one defense official said indicate "an unacceptable degree of vulnerability at certain sites and a need for improvements." A detailed site-by-site survey followed.

The Pentagon then ordered a series of "quick fix" measures until permanent improvements could be made.

Congress was asked to vote

$57.3 million for strengthening actions this year and President Ford's budget for next year contains another $110.4 million to carry the work forward. Officials say a firm cost figure for the entire program is impossible at this time because results of the worldwide study still are being analyzed. But they say $250 million is a reasonable estimate.

Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld has said the Pentagon "places the highest priority possible on protecting nuclear weapons."

He has told Congress there will be "additional guards with more firepower and better communications, quicker reaction capabilities for security forces, plus hardened guard facilities and defensive positions."

Rumsfeld also said "the quality of the security of these sites will be improved by better training of security personnel, improved perimeter sensors and lighting."

There also have been moves to reduce the number of storage sites, which officials believe will simplify the task of protecting them.

Apart from such measures, the Pentagon has a program for assuring security of the weapons themselves.

A key element is a special locking device as part of the weapon, designed to prevent its use.

In his annual report, Rumsfeld said, "Theater nuclear weapons now in production have ... devices which will disable the weapons permanently but non-violently if they are tampered with."

Jessie Rae Will Run For Office

RALEIGH (AP)—Jessie Rae Scott, wife of former Gov. Bob Scott, is making no bones about it. She's going to run for the Democratic nomination for commissioner of labor.

"Yes, I'll be running," Mrs. Scott said in a telephone interview from her home at Hawfields in Alamance County Wednesday.

Mrs. Scott, 46, who was North Carolina's first lady from 1969 to 1973, said she plans to make her official announcement early in March.

She said she has been attending political gatherings since New Year's Day when she disclosed she was considering running for the labor commissioner post. She said Wednesday she had appointed Tim McDowell of Mebane as her state campaign coordinator. She said her husband will lend a helping hand.

Republican T. Avery Nye, now holds the $31,000 a year labor commissioner post. Gov. Jim Holshouser appointed him last September following the death of incumbent W.C. (Billy) Creel, a Democrat. Nye is expected to seek election to a full term in the post.

Urges Locking Doors To Home

Police Chief Glenn Cannon today urged local residents to lock their doors — both when away or at home — in an effort to prevent thefts or assaults such as those that occurred Tuesday night.

The assaults referred to by Cannon took place an hour apart Tuesday night. In one case a woman was raped and in the second incident a young woman was beaten. Both were attacked in their homes and in both instances, their attacker gained entrance through unlocked doors.

According to Cannon, unlocked doors are an "open invitation" to criminals. "Even during the day time," Cannon said, "persons at home alone should keep their doors locked to prevent intruders from gaining ready access. You never know who's going to try to come in."

Uncertainty Beclouds Tranquil Isle's Summit

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD BALL, Indonesia (UPI) — Balinese officials are delighted and surprised that their small island has been picked for the first summit meeting of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

However, it is doubtful that the quiet beaches and majestic mountains that have made Bali the No.1 tourist attraction in the Indonesian archipelago will give the conference, originally scheduled for late February but now likely to be postponed, the atmosphere it needs to reconcile differences in the interests of a more united Southeast Asia.

The meeting of the heads of government of Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia and the Philippines is the first of such political importance to be held in the 2,000-square-mile island east of Java.

ASEAN, as the grouping is known, has survived the test of time since its formation in 1967, but has been unable to overcome internal friction and suspicion. Added to this is the aftermath of the political overhaul in Indochina which put Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos all under Communist regimes.

Indonesian President Suharto, proud that his country is to host the Bali conference, said stability and peace will come to Southeast Asia when all the nations assume their responsibilities.

ASEAN membership has remained the same since its formation and there has been no success in attracting other countries. The association has contended the major powers should consider it a zone of neutrality and peace and that all Southeast Asian countries should join.

Malaysia has been trying to persuade Burma to join and, at the last ministerial meeting in May 1975, a general invitation was extended to the governments of Indochina. There has been no sign of acceptance from any of them.

Based in Jakarta, ASEAN was recently endorsed by China and praised for its economic progress.

This praise came despite Peking's attacks on Indonesia for its actions in East Timor, the neighboring Portuguese colony that has been wracked by civil strife since last summer. China has lashed out at Jakarta for sending in troops, but Indonesia claims the East Timorese want a merger and only "volunteers" have entered the territory.

So far ASEAN has not explicitly defined its political role, its achievements showing largely in economic areas.

Politically, ASEAN still has internal problems. The Philippines has accused Malaysia of support for the rebellion of Filipino Moslems, frictions have developed along the Thailand-Malaysian border, and jealousy has been directed at Indonesia for its increasingly important role and desire to see its government as the focal point of the association.

Indonesian officials hope that leaders attending the Bali summit will put aside past differences and concentrate on establishing a uniform position aimed toward ensuring peace and intensified cooperation in the area.

Rats 'Cope'

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Rats learn to cope with stress by getting drunk, say researchers at the University of North Carolina.

Rats were given electric shocks. Then they chose 5 to 10 per cent alcohol over sweetened water and distilled water.

Under normal conditions, rats will never drink alcohol says Dr. Kenneth C. Mills. He heads the five man research team at the university's Center for Alcohol Studies.

"From nothing, the alcohol consumption goes up to eight or nine grams per kilogram of body weight," says Dr. Mills. "That's like two fifths of bourbon a day for a 160-pound man. But of course a rat metabolizes faster than man," gets drunk sooner and sober faster.

Fewer Fires In County But Losses Increased

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Although the total number of fire alarms reported in Pitt County during 1975 dropped dramatically from the total 1974 number, there was a substantial increase in the total value of property lost in fires during 1975 as compared to 1974.

Statistics in the "1975 Annual Report, Pitt County Fire Marshal's Office," recently released, by Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner, reveal that for the calendar year 1975 a total of 464 fire alarms were reported by the county's 18 fire departments covering a total of 439 actual fires. This is 113 less than the 577 alarms recorded for 1974, and 195 less than the 1973 alarms total of 659, which was a record high year in the number of fires reported.

In 1975, the value of property lost in fires amounted to $790,507, an increase of $168,367 over the $622,140 total value of property lost to fire in 1974.

Figures in the report show that for 1975, the total dollar value of property involved in fire amounted to $8,002,175. To this figure is added $2,327,700 in dollar value of property adjacent to and directly exposed to the fires, giving a total potential property loss for the year of $10,329,875.

According to compilations in the report, this means that during 1975 the value of property saved by fire-fighting personnel and equipment in Pitt County amounts to $9,359,368 (the $10,329,875 total potential loss less the $790,507 value of property destroyed by fire).

In the ten categories established by the Pitt County Fire Department for listing types of fires, buildings fires (other than homes and commercial buildings) led in the total number of fires, 105. Since this category covers tobacco barn fires, the big majority occurred within a three month span—13 in July, 47 in August, and 17 in September.

House fires, which accounted for a total of 99 fires during 1975, were more evenly distributed in occurrence during the year, with 19 reported in December. Figures for other months range from a low of four in August to 12 each for the months of March and May.

The 67 automobile fires reported in 1975 reached a high peak of ten fires in November, with the number ranging from three to eight per month for the rest of the year.

November was the critical month for mobile home fires, with seven occurring that month out of a total of 33 for the calendar year. Monthly numbers for other months ranged from none reported in August to five reported each in May and December.

In other categories, there were 33 grass fires; 35 woods fires; no commercial fires reported; and 47 other fires (or miscellaneous fires not fitting other categories).

In addition, the 18 county fire departments engaged in 25 instances of mutual aid fighting of fires—where one or more fire departments go to the aid of another in efforts to contain a fire.

Only one month in 1975, January, went by without at least one instance of a false alarm. The peak in false alarms took place in June when four were turned in. During the other ten months of 1975, the number of false alarms were one each for four months and two each for six months.

Among the county's 18 fire departments, Staton House led by a large margin any other station in the number of alarms received. Staton House responded to a total of 71 alarms in 1975, with Winterville having the second highest number at 45. Figures for the other 16 fire departments (also known as districts) are: Eastern Pines, 43; Ayden and Farmville, each 38; Grimesland, 28; Grifton, 23; Black Jack and Falkland, each 22; Bell Arthur and Bethel, each 21; Gardnersville and Pactolus, each 17; Red Oak, 16; Stokes, 13; Belvoir, 12; Simpson, 9; and Fountain, 8.

One fire resulted in the death of four young children. This tragedy took place on the night of March 23, 1975 in the Grimesland community.

In the section of the report on investigations of suspicious fires, Joyner reports two instances in which investigations resulted in arrests. . . . "There was a series of tobacco barn fires at the beginning of the year and the last part of 1974. There was a total of 11 barns burned and one arrest was made. The subject was indicted on three accounts and was found guilty and is now serving eight to ten years." The second case is one in which "There was a barn fire and an attempted store fire in the south end of the county. This investigation led to two arrests. The two subjects are now awaiting trial."

Fire Chiefs heading the 18 Pitt County Fire Districts are:

Ayden, Robert Lee Tripp; Bell Arthur, Raymond Webb; Belvoir, Ashley Carraway; Bethel, Delton Perry; Black Jack, John Bailey; Eastern Pines, Lyman Hardee; Falkland, Tom Little; Farmville, H. P. Norman; Fountain, Scott Peele; Gardnersville, Robert Halstead; Grifton, Alton Clements; Grimesland, Bobby Dixon; Red Oak, Robert Allen; Pactolus, Sam Bowers, Jr.; Simpson, Hyman Boyd; Stokes, Sam Gray; Staton House, Darrell Williams; and Winterville, Seth Cayton.

Band students from 40 eastern North Carolina high schools will participate in the annual East Carolina University Band Clinic Friday and Saturday.

The young musicians were selected by audition, and will be organized into two bands: the Symphonic Band, conducted by Vaclav Nelhybel, Czech composer and conductor; and the Concert Band, conducted by George Naff of the ECU School of Music faculty.

The ECU Band Clinic is sponsored by the N. C. Music Educators Conference and the ECU School of Music, and is directed by Herbert Carter of ECU and Arnold Adams of Beaufort, chairman of the state's band directors.

Also featured at the Clinic will be Lewis Van Haney, trombone soloist and professor at the University of Indiana School of Music. Van Haney was formerly a trombonist with the New York Philharmonic.

Among the Clinic's scheduled events are a Friday evening concert in Wright Auditorium, performed by the ECU Symphonic Wind Ensemble, conducted by Herbert Carter, and the ECU Jazz Ensemble, conducted by George Broussard. The program will begin at 8:15.

Nelhybel will guest conduct the Wind Ensemble, and ECU faculty musicians John Heard and James Houlik will be featured solo performers. The Jazz Ensemble's performance will be highlighted by solos by ECU music students Joe Kasmak, Nigel Boulton and Phil Thompson.

On Saturday evening at 7:30 in Wright Auditorium, both high school clinic bands will perform. Each program is open to the public free of charge.

Names and schools of the Band Clinic participants include:

Brothers In Same Race

GREENVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Johnny Richards, 36, was surprised when he read that his kid brother Benny had filed as a Republican candidate for Hunt County sheriff.

It's not that he thinks Benny, 33, would make a lousy sheriff. In fact, it's just the contrary. The problem is that Johnny himself had jumped into the same sheriff's race a few days earlier as a Democrat.

"I don't think either one thought the other was serious, but they both were," said an acquaintance of the two candidates.

Since Benny is unopposed in the Republican primary, the two will clash in the general election if Johnny is chosen as the Democratic nominee.

He has six opponents, including the incumbent. "We got our wires crossed," grumbled Johnny, "and it really shocked me. To tell you the truth, I didn't think Benny would run on a Republican ticket. I sure wouldn't."

Responded Benny, "Most of the time I do vote Republican, but I vote for the individual, the man I think can do the best job. And that's the way it should be."

per cent. For several years measures have been considered but never adopted to restrict usage of the recreation facilities to Greenville residents unless county funds were allocated to the city recreation program to assist in operating the programs.

A committee has been making a total study of this situation for the past couple of months. At last night's meeting, vice-chairman Mrs. John East (acting in the absence of Chairman Tom Foreman, Sr.), appointed Rufus Huggins to head the committee formerly headed by Hugh Bazemore. Bazemore resigned from the commission due to a move away from Greenville.

The new commission member replacing Bazemore, Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Jr., was welcomed to the commission by Mrs. East. The City Council announced her appointment to the vacancy earlier this month. Lee also presented and gave a brief resume of the 20 page Greenville Recreation and Parks Department Annual Report for 1975.

Another Woman Reports Assault Last Evening

A woman was assaulted last night, in what was an apparent rape attempt, as she entered her car in a parking lot off Tenth Street near the Dickinson Avenue intersection.

Chief Glenn Cannon quoted the woman as saying she had just entered her car after leaving a Dickinson Avenue drugstore when a black man — armed with a knife — jumped into the rear seat and grabbed her.

She managed to get out of the car, Cannon continued, was chased by the attacker and dragged to the ground behind a radio and television repair shop.

The chief said the attacker fled when the woman's three-year-old daughter ran, screaming, to her.

The incident occurred about 7:30 p.m.

Deputies testified that the partially dismembered body of Effie Artis, 54, was found in a bathtub at her home in Wilson last September.

Daniels, 60, also of Wilson, was convicted Wednesday of second-degree murder.

SQUEEZE PLAY — Maryland's Mo Howard loses the ball as he runs between North Carolina's Tommy Lagarde (45) and Walter Davis during the first half of play in last night's Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game at Cole Field House in College Park, Md. Carolina Nearly Has Bye Secured

By The Associated Press

North Carolina has about wrapped up the regular-season Atlantic Coast Conference basketball title, and the first-round bye in the championship tournament that goes with it, by beating Maryland twice.

The Tar Heels, who had won 95-93 in overtime at home three weeks ago, did it decisively, 81-69, at Maryland Wednesday night.

During a six-minute stretch in the second half North Carolina spurred for 10 points to a 69-56 lead while Maryland made only two points, on a basket by John Lucas.

The taller Tar Heels dominated the backboards, especially in the late stages of the game when they were using a four-corner offense.

Mitch Kupchak, who sustained an eye injury in a game last week, appeared fully recovered and was the high point maker with 21. Two of his North Carolina teammates trailed closely, Phil Ford with 20 and Walter Davis with 19. Lucas had 17 and Mo Howard 15 for Maryland.

Third-ranked North Carolina is 8-1 in the conference and 19-2 in all games. Maryland, fourth-ranked, is 4-4 and 17-4.

The other five ACC teams also played Wednesday night.

Wake Forest won 84-77 at Clemson for its fourth consecutive victory, all against ACC opponents.

Wake Forest, behind 42-40 at the half, outscored the Tigers

FARMVILLE—D. H. Conley eased to another Eastern Carolina Conference wrestling title last night, nipping Farmville Central at the wire for the title.

Both the winning school and the runner-up captured five individual titles, but Conley managed to pile up just a few more points. The Vikings finished the meet with 134 points, while Farmville Central was right behind with 127½.

Southern Nash finished a distant third with 55 points, while North Pitt was fourth with 53½ points. Ayden-Grifton brought up the rear with 29½ points.

Southern Nash's Darryl Emig was named the meet's Outstanding Wrestler. He captured the title in the 129-pound class.

In addition to the five individual titles won by Farmville and Conley each, North Pitt took two and Southern Nash one.

Titles were won by Charles Barfield (101), Horace Williams

American Captures Speed Skate Gold

By WICK TEMPLE
AP Sports Editor
INNSBRUCK (AP) — Peter Mueller, the 21-year-old speed-skating whiz from Mequon, Wis., gave the United States its second gold medal of the 12th Winter Olympic Games today, flashing to victory in the 1,000 meters in course record time.

And, for the second time in these Games, a doping charge surfaced as the Czechoslovakian hockey team saw its victory over Poland erased. Czech team captain Frantisek Pospisil failed a urine test after taking codeine, a forbidden drug, to combat the flu epidemic which has swept through the Olympic Village. Pospisil was allowed to continue in the competition but the Czech team physician was barred from the rest of these Games.

"The flu epidemic cannot be used as an excuse for breaking the rules," said Prince Alexandre de Merode, president of the International Olympic Committee's medical commission. Russia's Galina Kulakova lost her bronze in cross country skiing after taking Ephedrine to combat a cold.

Mueller was delighted with his victory in the 1,000. "Right now, while it's over, I'm pretty happy," said Mueller. "When I was skating, I thought it was too slow, but I gave it everything I had in the last 200 meters. I didn't think I would win but when I saw that the track was so slow I had new hope."

Mueller barreled around the icy speedway in 1 minute 19.32 seconds to beat out Jørn Dideriksen of Norway and Valery Muratov of the Soviet Union. It was the ninth medal for the United States here, surpassing the American total four years ago at Sapporo, and lifted the United States within three medals of its all-time high of 12 collected at Lake Placid, N.Y., in 1932.

And there are more to come. U.S. figure-skating queen Dorothy Hamill of Riverside, Conn., appears to have a lock on the gold in her specialty, to be decided Friday. The American hockey team hoped to close within one game of a bronze with a victory over Poland later today.

The strong U.S. speed-skating contingent goes after more glory Friday in the 1,500-meter event. Skier Cindy Nelson, a bronze medalist in the downhill, has a shot for a medal in the giant slalom Friday and Bill Koch, a surprise silver medalist in the 30-kilometer cross-country ski Thursday, is entered in the 50-kilometer event Saturday.

Today's only other final was the women's 20-kilometer (12.4-mile) cross-country ski relay. The Soviet Union won it with Finland second and East Germany third. The United States came in eighth among the nine teams, nosing out Canada by one-hundredth of a second.

The Russians continue to lead the medal standings with 11 golds and 24 total medals out of 27 events. East Germany, with six golds and 14 total, is second and Mueller's victory boosted the United States back into third place with two golds, three silvers and four bronzes. Speed skaters have accounted for six of the nine U.S. medals, including the only other gold — Sheila Young's victory in the 500 meters.

Mueller had his own cheering section at today's race, including his fiancée, Leah Poulos, who won a silver of her own at 1,000 meters, and his parents, Paul and Rita Mueller.

"I knew he could do it if he skated here as he could," said Miss Poulos. "I knew he was ready for the 1,000. From 200 to 600 meters he looked real good. I spent from the 800 to the 1,000 meters biting my nails because he slowed up a bit."

"I'm so glad it's over," added his mother, Rita. "That's all he's ever wanted — the Olympics."

Mueller, a former physical education student at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, finished an unimpressive fifth in Tuesday's 500 meters. "I was disappointed after the 500 but Coach (Peter) Schotting talked to me last night and told me not to worry, just to give it my best."

Schotting said Mueller may have been helped because the ice was resurfaced after he raced and officials left too much water on the track, slowing it down. But both Dideriksen and Muratov raced before the water was applied. Dideriksen was clocked in 1:20.45 and Muratov 1:20.57.

Dan Immerfall, 20, of Madison, Wis., who took a bronze in the 500, finished 12th today in 1:21.74 and Dan Carroll, 31, of St. Louis finished 28th in 1:27.37.

In the 20-kilometer relay, Russians Zinaida Amosova, Nina Baldicheva, Raisa Smetanina and Galina Kulakova combined for a gold with a time of 1 hour seven minutes 49.67 seconds. Finland clocked 1:08:36.57 and East Germany was timed in 1:09:57.95.

The U.S. team of Marta Rockwell, 31, of West Lebanon, N.H., Jana Hlavaty, 34, of Chicago, Terry Porter, 22, of Concord, Mass., and Twila Hinkle, 21, of Frisco, Colo., finished in 1:17:58.17.

Cowens Battles With The Fans

By The Associated Press
The Boston Celtics played in Houston and their center Dave Cowens really made a hit with the fans. In fact, he made several.

Cowens not only took on the Rockets but their backers as well when a fan climbed out of his seat and exchanged punches with the player Wednesday night.

Cowens' teammate Charlie Scott also got into the action and before it was over, the ruffian was double-teamed and thrown out of the arena. After that, the Celtics simply weren't themselves and dropped a 115-103 National Basketball Association decision to the Rockets.

"I'm not going to stand there and watch him beat up a teammate," Scott said, explaining why he jumped into the fray. "The officials didn't get there quick enough ... they weren't going to do anything."

The fans apparently didn't appreciate Scott's noble gesture, razzing the Celts the rest of the way.

"I don't understand it," Scott said. "After that we were the ruffians, the bad guys, and they were the good guys."

The rest of the NBA was relatively tame as the Philadelphia 76ers whipped the Portland Trail Blazers 118-106; the Milwaukee Bucks stopped the New York Nets 109-95; the Seattle SuperSonics trimmed the New Orleans Jazz 93-90 and the Phoenix Suns blasted the Detroit Pistons 123-94.

Calvin Murphy led a fourth-quarter Houston surge that helped the Rockets beat Boston. The Rockets led 101-97 with 1:58 left when the fan rushed out of the stands and pushed Cowens. Cowens traded punches with the fan, but remained in the game.

Murphy scored 31 points and Rudy Tomjanovich added 25 as the Rockets erased a three-point lead in the fourth quarter to win going away.

76ers 118, Trail Blazers 106
George McGinnis scored 23 points to help Philadelphia overcome a 35-point performance by Portland's Sidney Wicks and beat the Trail Blazers. The Trail Blazers, playing without injured center Bill Walton, trailed the entire game.

Bucks 109, Knicks 95
Brian Winters and Junior Bridgeman combined for 53 points in leading Milwaukee over New York. Bridgeman helped the Bucks reel off 12 straight points at the end to put the game away.

SuperSonics 93, Jazz 90
Tom Burleson converted six of 10 free throw attempts in the closing minutes to help Seattle withstand a furious New Orleans rally.

Suns 123, Pistons 94
Alvan Adams' 22 points and Curtis Perry's 20 led Phoenix out of the Pacific Division cellar as the Suns crushed Detroit.

Tigerettes Take 16th

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Williamston High School's powerful girls, hampered by the loss of their leading scorer, didn't show it last night in a 52-22 romp past Roanoke Rapids.

The Tigerettes' Sissy Taylor missed the game with a sprained ankle, and Coach Susan Cox said it was uncertain how long Miss Taylor would be out of action.

Her presence wasn't missed in the game, however, as the Tigerettes had little trouble with Roanoke Rapids. Williamston rushed out to a 16-6 lead in the first period and increased that to 28-10 by the end of the half.

In the third period, the Tigerettes continued to pull away, turning in an 18-4 margin to run their lead to 46-14. They allowed an 8-6 margin by their hosts in the final period.

Paula Bennett led Williamston with 16 points, while Bet Brandon added 12. Ethridge led Roanoke Rapids with eight.

Williamston, now 16-0 overall and 8-0 in Northeastern Conference play, travels to Plymouth on Tuesday.

Williamston—Williams 8, Sharp 4, Bennett 16, Harrison 6, Brandon 12, Cullipier 2, Lilley 2, Watts 2, Roberts, Spruill, Speller.

Erving Sparks New York Win

By The Associated Press
Twenty-five points, 15 rebounds and six assists.

Julius Erving of the New York Nets accomplished all of this in 39 minutes — and he wasn't even trying to be an offensive threat.

"I tried to get more involved in the defense," said Erving after leading the Nets to a 120-110 American Basketball Association victory over the Spirits of St. Louis Wednesday night.

Erving also blocked five shots and made a steal, just to keep his hand in the action at both ends of the court.

"The Spirits slowed down the pace," Erving said, "and they put the crowd to sleep. But they weren't going to do the same thing to me. I didn't want to be flat, so I played a lot of roving defense — you know, tried to block shots and anticipate passes."

The Spirits not only had trouble chasing Erving around the court, but got dizzy watching Kim Hughes' heroics. He scored 21 points and had 19 rebounds in one of his brightest moments as a Net.

In the only other ABA game Wednesday night, the Denver Nuggets whipped the San Antonio Spurs 137-133.

John Williamson led a 16-8 burst in the closing minutes that secured the Nets' victory. The Nets led by 18 points early in the third period but St. Louis, paced by Moses Malone, chopped the margin to 92-88 on Freddie Lewis' basket with 7:16 left in the final period. Williamson scored eight of New York's next 16 points and Erving added four for a safe 108-96 lead.

Nuggets 137, Spurs 133
Dan Issel scored 28 points and David Thompson had 25 to lead Denver over San Antonio. The Nuggets, who won for the ninth time in their last 10 games, scored 38 points in the fourth quarter to overcome a 102-99 spur advantage. James Silas led the Spurs with 38 points and teammate Larry Kennon had 28.

Stott, Ryan Surprisingly Share Limelight At Daytona Speed Week

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Ramo Stott and Terry Ryan, who figured only to be cloaked in relative obscurity this week while preparing for the 18th annual Daytona 500, surprisingly have the limelight as Speed Weeks 1976 reaches its hectic climax the final four days of this week.

Stott, a Keokuk, Iowa corn and bean farmer, and Ryan, a truck driver from nearby Davenport, each led a field of 34 cars to the start of twin 125-mile qualifying races today, and will pace $1.4 million worth of high-speed machinery to the start of Sunday's $350,000 race.

"I've probably had more publicity out of this than anything else that's ever happened to me," said Stott, who won the U.S. Auto Club stock car championship last year. "The newspapers have really played it up here and my wife Judy, who keeps a scrap book of my career, is running all around the place buying up papers for the press clippings."

While much of Stott's racing has been on short tracks in the Midwest, he has an impressive history of finishes in major NASCAR Grand National races, including having never finished out of the top 10 in any year he has competed in the Daytona 500.

Stott, a two-time Automobile Racing Club of America titlist who has been racing at Daytona since 1963, found himself the pole winner at 183.456 miles per hour after the three faster qualifiers—A.J. Foyt, Darrell Waltrip and Dave Marcis—last Sunday had their times disallowed for using "non-approved" equipment.

Having nothing to gain by additional practice, Stott considered parking his car until race time, but his car owner Norris Reed wanted more testing.

"In practice Wednesday, we got up to 186 m.p.h. before discovering that we had a fender rubbing against a tire," Stott explained. "We're glad we found that out in practice. It could have meant a blown tire in the race."

Stott now believes his chances for victory Sunday are excellent, despite the ultra-competitive field of Richard Petty, David Pearson, Cale Yarborough, Buddy Baker, Benny Parsons, Bobby Allison, Foyt, Waltrip and Marcis.

"I don't think I'm better than anyone here, but I've got thousands of miles on this track and I think I have as good a chance to win as anyone," said

Stott, who added he feels relaxed and confident.

Ryan, in his first NASCAR Grand National race, has more homework to do, Stott felt. "The qualifying race should help," he added.

Stott said he has spent time this week coaching Ryan in the fine art of drafting at 200 m.p.h.

Grand National activity is at a standstill until Sunday's race, but the 2½-mile tri-oval and 3.84-mile road course at Daytona International Speedway will be far from quiet the remainder of the week.

On Friday, what promises to be another wild, razor close International Race of Champions finale is scheduled. The 100-mile sprint features Foyt, Allison, Mario Andretti, Bobby and Al Unser, Parsons, Pearson, Emerson Fittipaldi and Brian Redman in identically prepared Camaros.

Foyt, who stands to win more than $41,000 of the $212,000 pot if he finishes no worse than sixth, must hold off only Allison and Andretti to clinch the 1975-76 title.

Later Friday, NASCAR's "Mod Squad," a hair-raising gang of modifieds, takes to the road course for a 200-mile scramble for $66,000 in prize money, easily the biggest modified purse of the season.

A 300-mile NASCAR Late Model Sportsman race, worth $72,000, occupies Saturday's schedule. Jack Ingram, the king of late model racing, overwhelmed his opposition Tuesday in winning the pole position at 184.324 m.p.h. Waltrip was second at 181.951 m.p.h.

More than 120,000 are expected for Sunday's annual running of the most prestigious of stock car races, which caps more than three weeks of racing worth more than $850,000.

QUALITY CONTROL — ONE KEY TO OUR SALES SUCCESS

Friday is the most important day of the week in our fertilizer plant. That is the day we sample the fertilizers we made Monday thru Thursday and clean and adjust our plant for the next week's run.

Every lot of Morgan Quality Fertilizer is thoroughly sampled using methods recommended by the Fertilizer Institute and is analyzed to determine its exact nutrient content. In this way, we can be certain that there have been no mistakes made in manufacturing and can avoid having our errors become your problems.

Throughout our plant, Quality Control is an integral part of our normal work procedures. All incoming materials are sampled, analyzed, and size-matched for the best possible blends. Our formulating scales are tested weekly for accuracy and are checked with our bagging scales daily. Each lot of fertilizer is checked during manufacture, sampled and tested weekly, and inspected for sowability each month while in storage.

Morgan Quality Fertilizers are still being made and sold with the same genuine concern for product quality and customer satisfaction typical of our company throughout its sixty-five year history.

Lefty: No Doubt UNC Is The Best

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

After North Carolina beat Maryland at Chapel Hill on Jan. 25, Lefty Driesell knew things would be different when he got the Tar Heels back at his place in College Park.

Things were different. The second game didn't go into overtime.

The third-ranked Tar Heels, who beat No. 4 Maryland with some strain the last time they met, left no doubt as to their superiority by belittling the Terps 81-69 in their own town Wednesday night.

"There is no doubt that Carolina is the best team in the Atlantic Coast Conference now," said Driesell. "I don't think they beat us in Chapel Hill, but they beat the devil out of us tonight."

And they did it with a one-eye ballplayer — Mitch Kupchak, who played in Carolina's 95-93 overtime thriller last month. Kupchak injured his eye in a game against Georgia Tech last week and has suffered from double vision since, but still managed to score a game-high 21 points.

"I had a little difficulty seeing on my left side," said the 6-foot-10 center who is the apple of the pro scout's eyes. "I also had a problem seeing across the court, but it was no big thing. It might have been bad had I got poked in the eye again."

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, informed that Driesell had just about raised the flag of surrender in the ACC race, was hesitant to pick up the spoils just yet.

"We're extremely pleased to be where we are right now," he said, referring to the Tar Heels' league-leading 8-1 mark and 19-2 record overall. "But I hope Lefty didn't put the whammy on us. We have to go to Tulane now and there's still the ACC tournament."

Elsewhere, No. 10 Notre Dame crushed Villanova 84-57; 12th-ranked North Carolina State outscored North Carolina

Charlotte 67-64; No. 14 Missouri nipped Oklahoma State 72-71; 15th-ranked Western Michigan lashed Eastern Michigan 85-73 and No. 18 Virginia Tech trimmed William and Mary 50-48.

Notre Dame's Bill Paterno scored 14 points and anchored a crisp defense that led the Irish over Villanova. Kenny Carr's 22 points powered North Carolina State's victory over North Carolina-Charlotte. Willie Smith hit a layup with 11 seconds remaining as Missouri beat Oklahoma State and took sole possession of the Big Eight lead. Jimmie Harvey scored 21 points to pace unbeaten Western Michigan past Eastern Michigan. Ernest Wansley's layup with 2:36 left put Virginia Tech ahead for good and the Gobblers went on to beat William and Mary.

Donahue New Coach At UCLA

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Terry Donahue, like Dick Vermeil, is young, personable, and more than a little gung-ho about football.

If Donahue, named UCLA's new football coach Wednesday, can emulate Vermeil in another way — success on the football field — the Bruin job may be locked up for a long time.

An assistant under Vermeil the past two seasons, Donahue is just 31 years old, and, if he likes the job and UCLA likes him, he could be around for awhile.

Donahue becomes the 14th head coach in UCLA's 57 years of football after Vermeil's announcement Sunday that he was going to coach the Philadelphia Eagles.

A defensive tackle for the Bruins in 1965-66, Donahue got a quick start on his coaching career, joining Pepper Rodgers' Kansas staff immediately after leaving UCLA.

At 23, he became one of the youngest major college assistant coaches in the country. And his appointment to the UCLA post makes him one of the youngest head coaches in major college ranks.

Donahue inherits a UCLA team that was 9-2-1 last season, a campaign capped by the Bruins' 23-10 upset of top-ranked Ohio State in the Rose Bowl. But a number of stars from that fourth-ranked team, including All-American quarterback John Sciarra, are seniors.

It may be a difficult act to follow, but Donahue said he was happy for the chance after UCLA Athletic Director J.D. Morgan announced his selection.

"I am of course honored and thrilled Mr. Morgan has given me the opportunity to head up the UCLA football program," Donahue said. "UCLA is one of the great academic institutions in the country and its athletic program is second to none."

Donahue played high school football at Notre Dame in the Los Angeles suburb of Sherman Oaks and was a member of the San Jose State freshman team before eventually transferring to UCLA.

He played under Tommy Prothro at UCLA, and was a starter on the 1966 Bruin team that upset top-ranked Michigan State, 14-12, in the Rose Bowl.

Donahue returned to UCLA as a coach in 1971, when Rodgers moved from Kansas to coach the Bruins.

Donahue and Jerry Long were in charge of the Bruins' offensive line under Vermeil.

Court Order Blocks Sale Of Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The sale of the San Francisco Giants to Toronto, Canada, has been blocked by Superior Court Judge John E. Benson, who heard Mayor George Moscone save the day for Frisco.

The judge's order Wednesday for a preliminary injunction against sale of the club to Canadian interests provoked lively applause in the courtroom.

It all came down when the mayor marched triumphantly into court and said an $8 million offer for the club had been made by San Francisco financier Robert Lurie and Minneapolis trucking mogul Robert Short.

"Bobby Thomson still lives!" said the mayor, laughing out loud when asked how he felt about saving the Giants for San Francisco. Thomson saved the Giants for World Series competition in 1951 with a timely homer.

The courtroom hosted a jub-lant, standing-room-only crowd of about 200 when Moscone, flanked by the two businessmen, said terms were agreed to in his City Hall office an hour earlier.

Said the mayor, with a pardonable touch of pride: "They have authorized me to tell the court they will pay $8 million cash for the rights to the Giants' franchise with $500,000 down right now as a sign of good faith."

"Do you have the money?" asked Giants' lawyer Richard Murray.

Moscone answered up. "They told me they did." All the while, Lurie and Short stood smiling as the words were made part of the record.

City Atty. Thomas O'Connor called both men to the witness stand and heard them say they were prepared to put the half-million down "right today and pay the $7.5 million balance in cash upon signing a purchase contract.

Murray asked Short if the $8 million offer might suddenly find tough sledding should Labatt's Brewery of Toronto withdraw its offer for the Giants, and Short responded that nothing would change, even "if Labatt's wasn't in the picture."

After the session, Short said he did not know just how long the offer would remain open, but he didn't think it would be logical to extend it much beyond March 1. Short is former owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team and the Minneapolis Lakers basketball team. The Lurie wealth comes from longstanding real estate and other investments in San Francisco.

The Labatt's bid was $8 million for the Giants' franchise and $5.25 million to cover litigation that was expected to develop from breaking of the Candlestick Park lease that extends through the 1994 season.

Jury To Hear Patty In Person And On The Tapes

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The jury in Patricia Hearst's trial will hear the taped voice of Miss Hearst boast that she took part in a bank robbery and then probably hear her — in person — repeat her dramatic story of being forced into the holdup.

Miss Hearst's defense lost a battle Wednesday to prevent the playing of a taped communique in which the newspaper heiress, using her underground name "Tania," said she willingly joined her terrorist kidnappers in the April 15, 1974, robbery with which she is charged.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter ruled that Miss Hearst's taped statement was made "voluntarily" and that the prosecutor could use the tape and the testimony of a Los Angeles teen-ager who said the Miss Hearst and two others held him hostage in May 1974.

Carter's ruling all but assured that the defendant will take the stand in her own defense and recount for the jury the story she has told out of its presence in the past two days, her version of life with her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnappers.

The prosecution in the case could wind up its case this week. U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. said after Wednesday's court session that he has, in addition to playing the tape, "five or six more witnesses" to call.

They will testify on technical matters, detailing such things as the seizure of evidence and Miss Hearst's arrest last Sept. 18, he said.
Chief defense counsel F. Lee Bailey fought for two days at a special hearing outside the presence of the jury to suppress the taped communique and to prohibit testimony about a shooting and kidnapping incident in Los Angeles in which Miss Hearst also is charged.

Bailey acknowledged outside court that introduction of the tape would "sharply increase" the likelihood that he will ask Miss Hearst to repeat for the jury the story she told to the judge — and the world — on Tuesday.

She testified that she lived in constant fear of being killed by the SLA if she did not cooperate from the time she was kidnapped on Feb. 4, 1974, until shortly after her capture in San Francisco.

Browning called her story a lie and urged the judge to admit the tape and the evidence of her activities in Los Angeles. "Everything the court has heard from Miss Hearst of her coercion in a year and a half is not true," he said.

Carter then declared that "by the preponderance of the evidence, the government has established that the statements made by the defendant after the happening of the bank robbery, by recording, orally or by writing, were made voluntarily."

He promised a detailed explanation of his decision in writing soon.

Having been tipped by Bailey in advance on what to expect from Carter, Miss Hearst sat expressionless. Her parents, Randolph and Catherine Hearst, did not move for several minutes.

The jury was then brought into the courtroom, and Browning called two witnesses to repeat the testimony that previously had been withheld from the sequestered jurors.

Anthony Shephard, a clerk at a sporting goods store in central Los Angeles, said he caught SLA members William and Emily Harris shoplifting and scuffled with them on the sidewalk.

Miss Hearst has admitted breaking up the fight by peppering the store with sub-machine gun fire from a van parked across a busy four-lane street from the store, allowing the Harrises to flee.

Shephard said he later saw a woman who fitted the description of Miss Hearst walk toward him holding a weapon across her chest.

During cross-examination, Bailey attempted to destroy Shephard's credibility as a witness by alluding to Shephard telling police that the figure was 6 feet tall.

The 5-foot-3 Miss Hearst stood at Bailey's request, but Shephard contended he saw the person from the bottom of a hill and, from his direction, a short person would look taller. He never identified Miss Hearst with certainty.

Thomas Dean Matthews, a 19-year-old college student, testified that the Harrises and Miss Hearst took him hostage and used his van as part of their getaway.

Smiling frequently and brushing hair from his eyes, the casually clad youth told of his night-long ride through the streets of Los Angeles with benevolent captors. He admitted a fondness for the Harrises and

Miss Hearst "because they were all so nice."
Miss Hearst, he said, deftly handled weapons in front of him, freely told how she joined the SLA and boasted of her role in the robbery.

She was constantly asking him if he was comfortable in the back of the van and patted him on the head several times, he said.

Miss Hearst "because they were all so nice."
Miss Hearst, he said, deftly handled weapons in front of him, freely told how she joined the SLA and boasted of her role in the robbery.

Need Only Cash

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina citizens have been urged to halt collection of relief supplies for Guatemala.

Gen. John J. Tolson, state secretary of military and veterans affairs and coordinator of foreign disaster relief, said he has been advised by the national foreign disaster relief coordinator that the United States and other donor nations and organizations are meeting needs of quake victims as rapidly as they can be handled.

"There is already an excess of medical personnel and supplies in the country and arrival of unscheduled relief supplies creates logistical congestion and hampers delivery of high priority items," Tolson said.

The only need from the public, Tolson added, continues to be donations of cash to the American volunteer agencies active in Guatemala. Those agencies are: Church World Service, Catholic Relief Services, CARE, Inc., and the American Red Cross.

Sues To Inherit Father's Title

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Eleanor Dixie, daughter of an eccentric British baronet, is going to invoke Britain's new Sex Discrimination Act to challenge a ban on inheriting her father's title.

Sir Wolstan Dixie, who once lost a beer-drinking contest to a pony, was the 13th Baronet of Dixie. He died on Dec. 28, the day before the equal rights act became effective, leaving two daughters — 23-year-old Eleanor and 16-year-old Caroline — and no male relatives in Britain.

Britain's ancient laws of heredity limit the inheritance of titles to males except in certain special cases, and the Dixie baronetcy isn't one of them. In fact, it's the first time a woman descendant of a baronet has challenged the laws, said Sedley Andrus of the Royal College of Arms.

"I'm not sure how the Sex Discrimination Act will affect her claim," Andrus added.

The act bans discrimination against women because of their sex in most fields of endeavor.

The Home Office said it does not apply to claims of succession, but that does not deter Eleanor.

Her mother, Lady Dixie, said "several people in the United States — down South, I believe — have claimed the title. But one can't consider them serious claimants, can one? They're not even English, are they?"

However, the Royal College of Arms, whose scholars usually have the final say in heraldic squabbles, said any American male who could prove he is a direct descendant of the Dixie family would have a good chance of taking the title.

The title dates back to 1650, when Charles I bestowed it on the first Wolstan Dixie for "zealousness in the royal cause" against Oliver Cromwell's Roundheads.

"There's no money involved, just the title," said Eleanor, who helps her mother run a restaurant near their ancestral home at Bosworth Park, 100 miles north of London.

"It's ridiculous that a girl can't inherit the title. I suppose I could have a sex-change operation and do it that way, but I'm happy the way I am."

"Since there are no male heirs, the title will just die out if I cannot claim it. I don't want the title particularly. I just want to have it so I can pass it on to my son when I get married and have one."

Eleanor said she's been deluged with supporting telephone calls since she announced her claim, including one from a young man interested in getting married to keep the Dixie line going.

"He's coming round to tea," she said.

ARC Gains Psychiatrist

Dr. P.S. Prasad, of India, has been appointed psychiatrist on the staff at the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center (WBJ-ARC) at Greenville.

Donald H. Hayes, WBJ-ARC Director, said in announcing Dr. Prasad's appointment, "We have been needing and wanting a psychiatrist on our staff to work directly with clients who need such services while they are here at the ARC. We are pleased to have Dr. Prasad on our staff and feel that his work with clients will be of much benefit to the clients in their efforts to begin their recovery from alcoholism."

Dr. Prasad completed medical school at Gandhi Medical College, Hyderabad, India, and did his psychiatric training in Binghamton, N.Y. at the Psychiatric Institute and at John Umstead Psychiatric Hospital, Butner, N.C. He has been studying for the past four years in the United States.

Dr. Prasad is married and has one daughter.

Savings Bond Sales Reported

Sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds in Pitt County during the fourth quarter of 1975 were $173,150, according to R. W. Howard, county volunteer chairman.

Howard said that total sales for 1975 were $799,409 or some 96.5 per cent of the county's goal of $828,240.

Total cash sales of E and H Bonds for the past year in North Carolina were $97,910,586, which represents 99.3 per cent of the state's dollar goal of $98,600, the chairman reported. He said that $25,032,635 of the total amount was sold in the fourth quarter.

Nationally, United States Savings Bond sales hit a record high of more than $7 billion during 1975, Howard said.

Russia's Sakharov: Nobel Prize Winner At Home

By BARRY JAMES MOSCOW (UPI) — The citation for the Nobel peace binding is stuffed high in a prize in its elegant blue leather bookshelf between a cardboard

HUNTING WITH A FRIEND — Turdukul Begiyev, 77, a Soviet pensioner communicates with his revered hunting mate, a golden eagle. The ancient sport of using trained golden eagles to hunt wild fowl or small game is still a highly respected sport in the mountains of Kirghizia. The long process of training the birds begins by snatching an unfeathered baby from its nest, then guiding it until it becomes a skillful hunter. (AP Wirephoto from Tass)

box and a pile of old magazines. Andrei Dmitriyevich Sakharov has to think for a couple of seconds where he put it. It's not that Sakharov has anything against the prize, awarded to him in his absence in Oslo Dec. 10. He welcomed it for the attention it brought to his human rights struggle in the Soviet Union. But the citation and Nobel medal which his wife somehow managed to get past customs are part of a material world that Sakharov seems to have rejected. They are brought down and shown to the interested visitor, but quickly returned to place. Instead the wall is decorated with a couple of reminders of Mrs. Sakharov's recent stay in Italy — a pennant from the Pisa Rotary club and souvenir dish towel from Florence. Sakharov quickly directs attention from talk of the Nobel prize to his bulging plastic briefcase, from which he extracts an appeal for an imprisoned dissident, a protest or an open letter. A visit to the Sakharov's tiny apartment is a bemusing experience. This is a man who once stood at the pinnacle of the Soviet elite, the holder of a Stalin prize and winner of three Hero of Socialist Labor awards for his work in developing the hydrogen bomb. Yet he comes on like the typical absent-minded professor, shambing around in a homey cardigan, carpet slippers and baggy pants. Sakharov is renegade No. 1 as far as the Kremlin is concerned, but it seems difficult to believe that such a self-effacing and diffident man could call so much abuse onto his head. When Sakharov lost his temper and shouted to be allowed to enter the trial of his friend Sergei Kovalev in Vilnius, in the Soviet Republic of Lithuania recently, acquaintances were surprised at this lapse from his normally mild ways. Even nowadays, Sakharov can go just about anywhere in Moscow without being recognized. Sakharov's "press conferences" take place in his living-cum-bedroom, with reporters perched on spindly chairs or on the bed. The carpetless room is piled with boxes. A glass-fronted bookcase holds family mementos but few books. Like most Soviet scholars, Sakharov has to rely more on libraries than on a private collection. Sakharov and his wife share with most Muscovites a space squeeze that would cause claustrophobia to many Westerners. The three-room apartment is also occupied by Mrs. Sakharov's mother, daughter and son-in-law, as well as the two small children of the latter. Every available inch seems crowded with clothes, skis, ice skates and household impedimenta. Children's squeals and cries can be heard from an adjoining room as Sakharov reels off allegations about labor camps, police searches or persecuted dissidents. The space squeeze is compounded by the fact that the apartment is a refuge and meeting place for other dissenters, who edge into the kitchen around mugs of tea to discuss their problems. Although his heart is on his sleeve, Sakharov remains a cool intellectual — a typical Russian "intelligent" of the old school who thought his way into the dissident movement rather than being pushed into it. His wife, Yelena, complements him with an almost fiery energy and direct experiences — her mother was sent to a labor camp for 16 years in 1937 and she is the aunt of a Jew sentenced to death but later reprieved in the 1970 Leningrad hijack trials. While Sakharov talks in the shy, halting manner of one long used to solitary thinking, his wife chatters at great speed and vigor on any given subject. The Sakharov's met during a vigil outside the trial of a dissident in 1970. Sakharov, 54, has three grown-up children from a previous marriage but they are said to shun him. Although Sakharov is now divorced from state-related scientific work, his continuing membership of the Academy of Sciences apparently helps protect him from the fate which befalls many lesser dissidents. He could be removed from the Academy only by secret ballot, and there is no certainty such a vote would go against him. Academy membership still provides him with an income, use of a car and a country house near Moscow.

Compassion Is Preached, And Also Practiced

By JOY STILLEY AP Newsfeatures Writer NEW YORK (AP) — "Take time out for compassion for your fellow man — go out of your way a little," advises Louis D'Ambrosio, a New York City police officer who practices what he preaches. The foot patrolman, stationed in the Rockefeller Center area, took time out to learn sign language when he became aware of the almost total absence in the city of communication channels for the deaf. "Unless you're perfect, society likes to sweep you aside," the 32-year-old D'Ambrosio said in an interview. "We force the handicapped to adjust to us rather than society as a whole making a minor adjustment to them. We take for granted hearing, sight, the use of our limbs, being in good health, the fact that we can pick up the telephone and call for help. Every once in a while we need to take off our blinders and look around — to stop in at the home of a deaf neighbor and write out a note saying we'll be glad to make a phone call if it's needed."

and making believe we were deaf. A man was watching and when he got up he gave us each a nickel. After that, being wise guy city kids, when we needed money we learned to hustle." After learning sign language D'Ambrosio visited St. Joseph's and found it a rewarding experience. "They had never had anyone come and talk to them in their own language about the different things that a cop does. "When you get down to it, a cop does just about everything," said the dark-haired, good-looking man, wearing a scenic print orange, green and tan shirt under his uniform jacket. "When people are stuck in an elevator we get them out; when they steal we take them to jail; when they're sick we take them to a hospital; when they're lost we find them. "People think of police work as a glorious job," continued the officer, who would like to change the image of police projected on TV. "They've got us killing everyone in sight. The action part of the job is minor. Most of the time you're helping people. "The feeling you get as a cop is that nobody cares about you. You're out there doing society's dirty work and the only reward you get is your own personal satisfaction. Every tragedy you read about in the paper — there was a cop there to see it." To counteract some of the job pressures he has started writing poetry, a volume of which is being considered for publication; he is into Chapter 3 of his novel — "about a cop of Italian extraction and how he has to survive in the two worlds of police and family" — and he has written a script for a TV comedy series "so far rejected by all the networks." D'Ambrosio is married and the father of two girls and a boy, ages 3 to 7, whose picture he keeps taped on the inside of his uniform cap. He will graduate in May with a degree in police science from John Jay College, where he has been attending classes 20 hours a week in addition to a full tour of duty. "When I have my time in here, I would like to head a police department in a nice-size town somewhere," he said. "I'd like to do well in writing, and I would like to see someone pick up the ball on broadening communication with the deaf. "We don't realize how much information we receive by word of mouth. I'd like to see some training films made, using sign language and captions, explaining to the deaf their rights as American citizens, their rights if arrested on criminal charges, their rights as consumers."

Tryout for new pipe organ in Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall.

Sixteen-foot pipes are put in place in facade of organ.

These wooden backfalls link organ's keyboard to wind chest.

Getting Organized

Looking more like a shinily elegant exercise in design than a wonder of technology (actually, it's both), a new tracker organ now graces the stage of Alice Tully Hall in New York City's Lincoln Center. Its 4,192 pipes, in 85 ranks with 61 stops, range in speaking length from 16 feet to $\frac{3}{8}$ of an inch. Their voices range from thunder to the tiniest flute and the organ will make music as a solo or ensemble instrument. It's played from a console with four independent keyboards with direct mechanical linkage (trackers) from the keys to the pipes. When it's not in use it can be concealed behind the stage's back paneling.

The organ is a gift to Lincoln Center from Miss Alice Tully in memory of Edward Graeffe—it's part of her original grant to the Center for the building of the hall that bears her name. It was designed and built in Switzerland by the Theodore Kuhn firm and took about six months to assemble in the hall after being shipped over here—some steps in that assembling are shown in these photographs.

Photographed by Susanne Faulkner Stevens.

Organ stops behind facade are being voiced.

Back view of console shows trackers and coupler action.

Hand polish for a 16-foot principal.

Adjustment of wind box keys and strings above console.

By DAVID POWELL
Associated Press Writer
Billionaire recluse Howard Hughes may be on the move again.
Hughes has left his hideaway on the top two floors of a Bahamian luxury hotel and flown with 20 to 30 aides to Mexico, one published report says.
The Freeport News, a weekly newspaper in Freeport, The Bahamas, said Hughes and his retinue boarded three jets at Freeport International Airport early Wednesday and took off for Mexico City.

An air traffic supervisor at the airport confirmed early today that three unscheduled aircraft did leave there for Mexico at 2 a.m. Wednesday. He declined to give his name and refused further comment.
Other officials would neither confirm nor deny the report.

Terry Lieber, a spokesman for Hughes' Summa Corp., said in Las Vegas that he did not know whether the 70-year-old billionaire had gone to the Mexican resort town. If he did, Lieber said, Summa was not notified.
An anonymous tipster suggested to reporters in New York that Hughes might have moved to a hotel in Acapulco.

But sources at that hotel, the Acapulco Princess, said Hughes was not registered there and that they knew of no plans for his arrival.
William Mulder, general manager of the Xanadu Princess Hotel in Freeport, where Hughes was reportedly occupying the top two floors, disclaimed any knowledge of Hughes' whereabouts — before or after the reported departure.

"We never knew if Mr. Hughes was in the hotel so how could we know if he checked out?" he asked. "We have no knowledge of Mr. Hughes."

However, he said the top floors of the hotel were still occupied.

Hughes has been in seclusion since 1954, eluding reporters and the public with each arrival and departure.

W.T. Grant Co. Asks Closing Remainder Of Chain Stores

NEW YORK (AP) — W.T. Grant Co. has requested court permission to close the rest of its stores, but the move has been challenged on behalf of 40,000 stockholders.

The decision to close, announced at a U.S. District Court hearing here Wednesday, was prompted by pressures from the company's creditors. The closing comes 70 years after the variety store chain was founded.

Since Oct. 2, the company has closed 715 of its 1,074 stores and laid off about 50,000 of 65, 000 employees in an effort to cut expenses.

The remaining 359 stores, concentrated in the Northeast and mid-Atlantic regions, have been operating under a provision of federal bankruptcy law which protects the firm from lawsuits while it attempts to reorganize into a profitable operation.

The New York Times, meanwhile, said Montgomery Ward, the S.S. Kresge Co. and the Greyhound Corp. were "reliably reported ... to be actively interested in acquiring Grant's remaining 359 stores."

A committee of the banks and merchandisers to whom Grant owes money proposed closing the chain and Bankruptcy Judge John J. Galgay is to render a final decision on selling the remaining property to pay debts.

The banks that have lent the company $640 million and the merchandisers who provided goods on credit would have the first call on payments if Grant's stores and other properties were sold.

Stockholders, who actually own the company, would be paid if any funds were left.

Several of the banks have already considered portions of their loans as uncollectable and written them off.

$52,847 In Grants To ECU During January

A total of $52,847 in grants from federal and state agencies and private corporations was awarded East Carolina University in January.

The funds will be used to support research projects and sponsor training programs proposed by members of the ECU faculty.

The largest grant, totaling $30,000 was awarded Dr. Richard A. Stephenson of the ECU Institute for Coastal and Marine Resources by Texasgulf, Inc. The funds will be used for a study of the ecology of the Pamlico River Estuary.

The ECU Department of Physics received $14,920 from the National Science Foundation to support a Student Science Training Program, to be conducted by Dr. Paul G. Varlashkin.

E. I. duPont De Nemours and Co. awarded $5,000 to the ECU School of Business. The funds will be used to strengthen ECU's graduate program in business administration.

Other projects receiving funding are an archaeological report on Manteo Bay by ECU anthropologist David Phelps and a transportation plan to be made by the ECU Regional Development Institute.

The Phelps project received $1,403 from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and the transportation plan will be supported by a $1,524 grant from the Council of Governments, Region L.

Figures on the grants received in January were released by the ECU Office of Sponsored Programs.

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — The robins are rushing spring in Edgar Berry's backyard. They started roosting three weeks ago. He estimates there are 20,000 now.

Officials are uncertain whether such a large flock is a hazard to human health. Howard Surface, Catawba County health director, said some birds can spread disease. He did not know if robins are among them. Dr. John Freeman, a state veterinarian, is studying the problem.

Susan's Day Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox has proclaimed that Feb 15 "shall be honored as Susan B. Anthony Day in remembrance of the pre-eminent leader of the woman suffrage movement."

In his proclamation, Cox pointed out that Susan Anthony served as a leader of the woman suffrage movement for 55 years and he added, "the American ideals of equal rights were manifested in the woman suffrage movement."

The proclamation stated, "An amendment to the U.S. Constitution was necessary to guarantee to all American women the privileges of suffrage which had been fought for and won in some states but had not been extended to all."

The 19th Amendment, from its first introduction in 1878 to its final ratification in 1920 was known as "the Anthony Amendment," it was explained.

"The commemoration of outstanding men and women in our history is an important part of our bicentennial celebration," Cox proclaimed, adding that Feb 15 is the anniversary of the birthday of Susan Anthony.

Preemptive action often boomerangs, and did so in an ironic way in this hand.

West's initial action succeeded in getting the opponents to an unworkable contract,

but declarer found an ingenious

"swindle" to bring home his slam.

North had a difficult problem

after West had opened the bidding with three hearts. His hand was too strong for a simple overcall,

yet a jump to game in clubs

might shut out a superior contract in one of the other suits. As against that, a take-out double would suggest a rather more robust holding in the other major. He eventually decided to pursue the latter course since, if his partner merely bid three spades, he could describe his hand by bidding four clubs,

while if South jumped to game in spades the contract should be playable—North had extra values and any heart ruffs would be taken in the short trump hand. North was rather taken aback by South's jump to six spades, but there is no question that

South had the values for his action.

West led his top heart, and when dummy came down declarer saw that he was not a favorite to make his slam.

The obvious chance that trumps split 2-2 was somewhat against the percentages. In addition, West's preempt made an even trump division more unlikely since it suggested that he was short in spades.

If West did have a singleton spade, the only legiti-mate hope was that it was the ten of spades. In that case, it could be pinned by leading the jack from dummy. A glance at the diagram suffices to show that this was not the case.

Yet South still made his slam. He won the ace of hearts, entered dummy with a club, and made the technically correct play of the jack of spades from dummy.

Had East ducked, the defenders would have to score

two trump tricks. But East could not believe that declarer did not have both missing spade honors, and from his point of view the only chance to come to a spade trick was to cover and hope to make his ten. So he put up the king of spades, declarer won the ace, and West is still talking about the hand!

Former 'Hit Man' Assassinated

By MIKE DUNSTAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —
The quiet but uneasy life of a "known Mafia killer," living under a new identity granted by a government grateful for his testimony, has been cut short in a gangland-style shotgun slaying.

Joe "The Baron" Barboza, 42, was killed by a burst of shotgun blasts fired from a passing white van Wednesday while preparing to enter his car, said police Lt. Charles Ellis.

JOSEPH BARBOZA

Barboza, who was leaving a friend's home, died on the spot. His killers escaped.

Barboza was a former "enforcer" who admitted committing a number of murders for organized crime. His testimony in 1968 helped send New England crime boss Raymond Patriarca to prison on charges stemming from gambling and murder conspiracy. It was reported last November that there was a $250,000 contract out for Barboza's death.

Ted Sharliss, a friend Barboza had visited and had lunched with, told police he found the victim propped against the driver's side of his light blue

Thunderbird, blood gushing

ing a volley of gunshots. He said Barboza had left to pick up a drug prescription.

Witnesses said that as Barboza placed his keys in the lock of his car, a white van approached. A burst of shots then rang out, cutting Barboza down.

"He was gunned down in what appears to have been a gangland slaying," Ellis said.

"It definitely seems like an execution-type killing."

Barboza, wearing a sport jacket and slacks, was carrying a hand gun and $300, the coroner said.

After Barboza testified against the New England crime boss, he took the first of three identities and moved to Santa

Rosa in Sonoma County, Calif.,

as Joseph Bentley.

He was arrested under that identity there, however, and convicted of second-degree murder in 1971. He had served nearly four years of a five years-to-life sentence in state prison when released last Oct.

30.

Barboza then took up residence somewhere in the San Francisco Bay area, still under the name Bentley, but he was apparently discovered when known organized crime figures visited the area.

His identity was made public in newspaper articles, and again

he disappeared, only to re-emerge in San Francisco under the name Joseph Donati, sources say. He used that identity often and moved into a

$250-a-month apartment with

Maggie Delfel, 32, under her

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The federal government has a

$100,000 In Relief Funds

The American Red Cross announced a contribution of $100,000 to the League of Red Cross Societies for relief of victims of the recent earthquake in Central America.

Red Cross president George M. Elsey reported through the Pitt Red Cross office that the "greatest need at the present time is for funds for local purchases of supplies and to offset transportation and operational costs."

"While we deeply appreciate and applaud the generous spirit of the American people, which often prompts them to donate clothing and other goods for disaster victims, past experience has shown that cash contributions for local purchase of relief items are more useful," the president added.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt Red Cross, said that persons who wish to make a contribution should contact the local office at 752-4222.

problem on its hands in this posh, subtropical city: what do you do with a princely estate that's costing a king's ransom to maintain?

Mar-A-Lago, the opulent estate of the late cereal heiress Marjorie Merriweather Post, is burdening the National Park Service with its $250,000 annual maintenance needs — about $44,000 of which comes from public monies — while serving no useful purpose.

The Park Service wants Congress to authorize a return of the estate's title to the Post Foundation. Local officials, one of whom says local governments lose $64,000 a year because the estate is tax exempt, covet the property taxes Mar-A-Lago would provide if it fell back into private hands.

In Congress, some have suggested that some use should be found, but no one has ventured a specific use. So the estate, considered by many the choicest in this mansion-studded area, remains boarded up.

Mar-A-Lago's 115-room villa, guarded by a 75-foot tower, cost $8 million to build in 1927, and for many years after served as a winter mecca for the rich and powerful.

Mrs. Post had spent months crawling through swamps and underbrush on what was then a deserted island to find the ideal site for her mansion. She decided on a cut of land anchored to a coral reef between the island and the mainland to insure that it would withstand the worst hurricanes.

Stone was imported from Italy, and one authority said the 36,000 Spanish Moorish tiles used generously inside and out were unrivaled anywhere except the Alcazar palace in Spain.

The mansion is set on 17 acres of lush palm-shaded property. On one side lies Lake Worth, the 35-mile-long lagoon separating Palm Beach from the mainland. On the other, a tunnel burrows beneath a highway to a private beach, replete with cabana and swimming pool.

In between are guest lodgings, staff quarters, four greenhouses, a nine-hole golf course, 50,000 shrubs and 2,500 trees.

Key congressmen are reluctant to turn over a public site to a private group — even if the government is not using the facility.

"It's an unusual situation," said an aide to Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., who introduced a companion measure to a Park Service bill.

Both measures languish in a House subcommittee, and a Park Service team will be sent here for more study before the panel acts, the Rogers aide said.

Mrs. Post deeded the property to the government when she died in 1973, a year after it was designated a National Historic Site.

Her will stipulated that the only use to which Mar-A-Lago could be put was as a retreat for presidents or foreign dignitaries, and it set up a trust fund of 100,000 shares of General Foods stock to pay maintenance.

But the Secret Service and the State Department have decided the estate is too large for adequate security, and the Park Service says the trust fund is inadequate.

Aside from the federal dollars spent, Palm Beach Town Manager George Frost said his governmental agency "has to provide police, fire and garbage services that are all loads on the community."

Officials claim the General Foods trust last year ran $44,000 short of covering maintenance costs. In addition, Frost estimates that the estate's tax-exempt status is costing the town $20,000 in property taxes, the county $18,000 and the board of public instruction $26,000 in 1976.

Frost and other officials fear the estate could be turned into a public attraction that would draw gawkers, crowding area roads.

"If it went back into private hands, it would almost assure that it won't become a museum or place for public viewing, creating traffic jams," he said. "This estate is on a two-lane highway."

Local officials went to Washington last month to check on the Park Service and Rogers bills.

Rep. Roy A. Taylor, D-N.C., who wrote the law authorizing the government to accept the estate in the first place, wrote to Rogers:

"Frankly, I hope that you understand that it would be a very unusual situation for the Congress to deauthorize, in effect, a unit of the National Park System."

"It would be my hope that this outstanding property could still become a useful public facility."

Henry A. Dudley, the Washington lawyer who administers the Post Foundation, could not be reached for comment.

The Rogers aide could not say when the subcommittee might take action on the proposals.
