

Carter Is Demo Frontrunner

Ford Squeaks Through In N.H.

By H. JOSEF HEBERT Associated Press Writer CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — President Ford edged out Ronald Reagan in New Hampshire's leadoff primary, and Jimmy Carter strengthened his claim to frontrunner status with a comfortable triumph in the crowded Democratic field.

Democratic candidates say they achieved all their goals when they ran second and third, Morton said on NBC's "Today" show. "This is a new politics. I've always felt that it's better to win."

Florida primary on March 9. Carter said Wallace must do as well in Florida as he did in 1972 when he won the primary. Carter added, "I'm convinced and determined that he will not do as well in '76 as he did in '72."

The "beauty contest" presidential preference votes, which are nonbinding, attracted the spotlight in the nation's first primary. But voters also cast ballots for 17 Democratic and 21 Republican delegates to the national party conventions.

Carter held 13 seats and Udall had 4. With 97 per cent of the anticipated vote counted, the lineup was: —Carter 22,806 or 30 per cent —Udall 18,309 or 24 per cent —Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh 12,374 or 16 per cent —Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris 8,691 or 11 per cent

—Sargent Shriver, 1972 Democratic vice-presidential nominee, 6,547 or 9 per cent —Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey—who has said he will not run for the nomination—4,255 write-in votes for 6 per cent —Wallace 1,019 write-in votes or 1 per cent —Ellen McCormack, anti-abortion candidate, 969 votes or 1 per cent

Only Two Winners? You Can't Tell By The Losers

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD Associated Press Writer CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — There were only two winners in New Hampshire's presidential primary, but you couldn't tell it by listening to the losers.

at the same time declaring that their showings, no matter how dismal, had served to advance their causes. President Ford and Ronald Reagan ran a tight race on the Republican side, with the lead switching several times.

had far exceeded his expectation of winning more than 40 per cent of the vote. A jubilant Carter, surrounded by throngs of supporters following "We're No. 1," told his followers, "When we go to the convention in July, there's going to be a very quick decision, I think the first ballot."

His New Hampshire campaign cochairman, William Shaheen, said Carter would be unbeatable. Arizona Rep. Morris Udall disagreed, saying he had achieved one aim by running a "strong second."

Former Georgia Gov. Carter defeated four major candidates on Tuesday's Democratic ballot, gaining 30 per cent of the vote. Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall was second with 24 per cent and Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh was third with 16 per cent.

Appearing on the "Today" show, Carter said today that he was satisfied with the outcome in New Hampshire. "We were hoping to come in first or second. I thought we would for the last month or two. This is a good indication that in New England I can do well."

CP&L Rate Increase Proposal Draws Fire From Municipalities

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal by Carolina Power & Light Co. to increase its wholesale rates has drawn opposition from municipalities served by the company.

Lancaster quoted CP&L as saying the increase would bring in $30 million annually. CP&L wants to put the rate hike into effect March 1.

In North Carolina, New Bern Mayor Charles Kimbrell said the increase would "make the earth tremble," adding that New Bern residents might see their monthly power bills rise by as much as 50 per cent.

Sargent Shriver, the 1972 vice-presidential candidate, said he was encouraged by the results, although he was last among the major candidates on the ballot.

CPR TRAINING?

I read in your paper that five per cent of the population of Seattle, Wash.'s metropolitan area has been trained to give first aid to heart attack victims "in the critical moments before a doctor or an ambulance arrives."

Hotline called the Heart Association and was referred to Dr. Eric Fearrington. He said it is believed in this area that "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

Lynn Harkins, who is Preceptor in Life Support Skills for the Department of Anesthesiology of the UNC School of Medicine, says he is developing a cardio-pulmonary resuscitation course now based on the idea that knowledge gained in a cpr course must be renewed through refresher courses in order to be retained and used correctly.

Daylight Saving Time Extension Being Argued

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is debating whether Daylight Saving Time should be extended to eight months, as it was last year, or whether it should run for six months or less.

Panel Gives Audience 'Crash Course On Politics'

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

Democrats and Republicans joined in educating Pitt County residents about politics in a "Crash Course On Politics" hosted by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters last night.

The five speakers for the course included Mrs. Kathy Crockett, Chairman of the N.C. Federation of Young Republicans Tom Taft, former assistant to Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt; Mrs. Janice Faulkner, former Pitt County Director for the McGovern campaign and director of the Speaker's Bureau for the Democratic Party; Phil Kirk, administrative assistant to Gov. James Holshouser; and Mrs. Mildred McGrath, Councilwoman and Mayor Pro Tem of Greenville. Mrs. Helen Parks was the moderator for the speakers.

Mrs. Crockett spoke about the structure of the Republican Party from the precinct level and explained how individuals including young people can get involved in politics and have a voice in politics.

"The first step is to get involved in one of the auxiliaries of the teen Republicans, College Republicans, Women Republicans. An auxiliary serves to help you understand the party. If you want a voice in politics you can first start working in your precinct, and later work to become a county delegate, district delegate, and state delegate."

"I joined the Republican party in 1968 because I knew that I could get involved and while working could get a voice in politics. I wanted to join because we didn't have a Republican party in this state. The Republican Party believes that there is a new place for new leaders and we do not want stagnant leadership. This idea of new leadership allows more people to get involved and to have a chance to have a voice in politics," Mrs. Crockett said.

Tom Taft talked about the structure of the Democratic Party and the importance of a two-party system of politics in the United States.

"The Democratic and Republican parties have a lot of the same ideas. The Democratic platform is ever-changing and is mainly used around election time to get the party regulars interested in issues."

Taft explained that the Democratic Party in North Carolina publicizes all meetings, tries to represent the traditionally unrepresented, and does not test its members.

"The Democratic Party has an affirmative action plan that allows the party to be open to active participation by all of its members. The details of the plan include the following: (1) The basic unit is the precinct. There are 26 precincts in Pitt County. (2) Delegates are elected to the county convention. (3) There is a county executive committee with a party chairman from each county. Members of the Board of Elections are selected by the Executive Committee. (4) There are 11 congressional districts and from the counties district delegates are elected. (5) There is a state executive committee which is made up of the party chairmen of each county and delegates. (6) In the top levels of the party there are state party chairmen, national committee women and men.

"It is very important that we need a strong two party system because it provides a function for an individual other than a vote. The two party system also allows for competition needed to offer a general alternative."

Mrs. Faulkner said, "It is necessary to involve yourself in politics, and finding a place is easy. Read the newspapers, become acquainted with the precincts, know the boundaries of your precincts, and go to the board of elections for any answers of questions you have about your party."

"Politics is based on public appeal not charisma. You can become an effective political force by just knowing your neighbors and discussing your party and candidate favorites with them."

"If you want to support a candidate, make contact with the candidate and volunteer your time to work for his or her campaign. If you're not afraid of speaking out for your candidate, wear buttons. If you believe in your candidate, it doesn't matter if he has a chance of winning, you can work hard and build your political experience," she continued.

"If you want to be actively involved, find a candidate who needs help. Politicians are ineffective unless they have grassroots support, the people who they can call on to ask others for votes."

Phil Kirk explained how he got his start in politics and the financial support a candidate receives.

"When I was 10, 12, 14 I listened to the election returns on the radio, and I noticed that the Republicans never won, so I pulled for the underdogs. When I was 17, I went to a teen Republican meeting. There were four people there and I was elected chairman. I went to the state Young Republican meeting several years later and I was elected treasurer and soon after elected chairman. I guess that I was just in the right place at the right time. At 22, I became chairman of the Republican party in Rowan County and later became a state senator."

"I guess that if North Carolina had been primarily a Republican state for 72 years, I would have probably grown up to become a Democrat. I didn't have a base in politics but, I was willing to serve."

"As far as financial support is concerned, it is hard to raise money, but I didn't have a problem with any of my campaigns. In my senatorial campaign, I spent $3,000, all donated. The second campaign, I spent $5,500 and still had no trouble getting it."

"Tips for the potential candidate include, be active in politics for several years before running and also be active in non-political activities. Also get your financial commitments early. Consider if you are elected whether or not you will like it. The best tip is don't be a know-it-all, but work to know a lot," Kirk said.

"I grew up in a political atmosphere, said Mrs. McGrath. When I was young, my mother was the chairman of the Republican Party in our county and my father was the chairman of the Democratic Party in the county."

"I do not believe that partisan is better in local government. I believe in openness in government. I wanted to be a participant in the decision making process, so I ran for councilwoman."

"I was not afraid of losing, because of the experience that I gained. I think that being a woman was an asset in my being elected."

"I have strict priorities each day, with my family, with my job as a teacher until 4 p.m. and my involvement in city politics. My priorities as a councilwoman are to continue to work for the basic programs that I have supported and will continue to support."

Speakers entertained questions from the audience and refreshments were served.

Alumni Endorse Bond Proposal

The proposed $43.2 million state education bond issue was endorsed by the Board of Directors of the East Carolina University Alumni Association at a Monday evening meeting here.

A resolution to endorse the bond issue was proposed by Col. C.R. Blake, assistant to ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins, and the resolution was passed by the 12 board members.

Chancellor Jenkins urged support of the bond issue in a letter sent to 30,000 members of the Alumni Association shortly before last Christmas.

The proposed bond issue would support construction of facilities for current needs on 13 of the 16 UNC campuses. Not included in the bond plans are ECU, N.C. Central University and N.C. School of the Arts, which received substantial appropriations from the 1975 General Assembly.

Requesting the board's endorsement of the bond issue, Blake noted that the bond issue is an attempt to compensate for the loss of higher education funds in 1975 budget cutbacks.

"The bond issue is not a method of financing growth and expansion among the state's universities; it is a necessary measure to fulfill present needs of our campuses," he said.

"Reading for Speed and Comprehension," a non-credit evening course for adults, will be offered by East Carolina University on Wednesdays, March 17 - May 12, 7-9:30 p.m.

Dr. Phyllis Smith of the ECU Guidance and Counseling Center will instruct the course. She works with regular ECU students in special classes for reading skill development.

Further information about the course and registration materials are available from the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, Greenville, or telephone 758-6143-6148.

"If the issue fails, severe enrollment decreases and other stringent steps to reduce operating costs must be taken throughout the UNC system. This would imperil the quality and availability of higher education in North Carolina."

The state's voters will pass on the measure March 23, when the proposed bond issue will appear on the North Carolina presidential primary ballot.

Couple Exchanges Vows Chinqua-Penn To Open March 3

HOOKERTON—Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church here was the setting of the marriage of Miss Olivia May Vandiford to Charles Donald Southerland.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Earl Vandiford of Rt. 1, Ayden. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peter Southerland of Louisburg.

The double ring ceremony was officiated by Rev. Jack Cox at three o'clock in the afternoon Feb. 15.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her mother and father. She wore a formal gown of satin organza over peau de soie, styled with a high neckline of Rose point lace, centered with pearls, sheer yoke and an empire bodice of lace and pearls. The long sheer fitted sleeves were accented with the caps and cufflets of the sleeves in lace. A wide insert of lace centered the A-line skirt which fell into an attached chapel length train, both completely bordered with lace.

Her shoulder length veil was composed of three tier taffeta, accented with Rose point lace applique and pearls. She carried a bouquet of silver epergne filled with white carnations, baby's breath and sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Edward Jones, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Deborah P. Cannon of Sanford, Mrs. Linda T. Riley of Fayetteville, and Mrs. Diane J. Butler of Jacksonville.

Miss Niki Alford of Louisburg, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl.

Charles Petter Southerland served his son as best man. Serving as ushers were William Vandiford, brother of the bride, Randy Alford, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mike Aldridge of Greenville.

Dwight Whitworth, organist presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied his wife, Debra, who sang "The Lord's Prayer", "Your Tender Love" and "True Love Comes from God." Mrs. Susie Vandiford served at the guest register and Mrs. Jennifer Vandiford directed the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Greene Central High School and Lenoir Community College. She is presently employed by the Pitt County Register of Deeds office. The bridegroom is a graduate of University of North Carolina and self-employed with Aldridge and Southerland Realty, Greenville.

The couple will make their home in Greenville following a wedding trip to Florida.

A rehearsal dinner party was given on Saturday at the Holiday Inn, Greenville, by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Southerland.

Following the wedding ceremony, the couple was honored by the bride's parents at a reception at the Hookerton Community Building.

An arrangement of silver epergne filled with white carnations, baby's breath and sweetheart roses, centered the table.

GREENSBORO—Chinqua-Penn Plantation House will be reopened to the public for a new season Wednesday, March 3.

George W. Hamer, executive director of Chinqua-Penn, noted that this will mark the 11th year that the scenic old plantation house has been open to the public.

In the past 10 years, more than 180,000 persons have toured the tourist attraction. Hamer pointed out that last year's record number of visitors was more than 7,500 above the previous year's total.

"We are very pleased with the response last year and are so glad that this many people came to visit Chinqua-Penn," stated Hamer. "We hope that in the coming year, the attendance will be just as good."

"We urge people to visit Chinqua-Penn because it is right here in the state and doesn't require a lot of travel. It has beautiful furnishings and articles of museum value, plus beautiful gardens in the spring."

Beginning March 3, the 27-room mansion will be open to the public Wednesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sundays from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. During those visiting hours Chinqua-Penn will be open from March 3 until Dec. 19.

Hamer also encouraged public school groups, garden clubs, and other organizations to visit the mansion, which was built in 1925 by the late Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Penn. In 1959, Mrs. Penn gave Chinqua-Penn to the University of North Carolina, and UNC-G has charge of the operation of the house and 36 acres of surrounding grounds.

Ask Girlfriend How She Feels

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Ever time I say, "I love you" to my girlfriend, she says, "Thank you." She never tells me that she loves ME, and that is what I want to hear. Any suggestions?

ME IN BURLINGTON

DEAR ME: When she says, "Thank you," say, "You're welcome. Now how do you feel about ME?"

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive, natural blonde who was raised by strict parents. I love the Lord and have been saved.

I've dated quite a lot, but I never let a man get too close to me because I wanted to keep my virginity for my husband.

Five months ago, I met a 29-year-old man to whom I was attracted like I couldn't believe was possible. One thing led to another, and I finally told him that I was a virgin.

He said that I was "one in a million," which I took as a compliment, but he never called me after that. Thinking maybe he was sick, I called him. He sounded rather cool and distant, and said he had been busy with his work and would call me soon.

Well, it's been a month, and he hasn't called. I really care for him, Abby, and I'm afraid my virginity has scared him off. Perhaps he thinks I'm abnormal to be a virgin at 27. Now, instead of being proud of myself, I feel like an overlooked wallflower.

I'm considering going to a gynecologist and asking him to surgically deflower me. Do you think he would do it?
CAROLINA VIRGIN

DEAR VIRGIN: Probably, but since a virgin is someone who has never experienced sexual relations, it wouldn't alter your status as a virgin.

The advice from here is to stay as you are and be proud of it. And if you "scared him off" for that reason, you haven't lost much.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding what to say when confronted with a baby or a picture of one who is obviously very homely, yet whose parents clearly expects a compliment: A doctor friend once told me that when he delivers a homely or—might as well say it—very ugly baby, and the parent(s) look at him expectantly for some kind of word of praise, he simply grins broadly and says, "Now, there's a REAL boy (or girl)!"

Obviously, it's not a crocodile or platypus, so the doctor hasn't been dishonest and the parents are satisfied.
TOM IN OKLAHOMA CITY

DEAR TOM: Beautiful. But occasionally the doctor is mistaken.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

West Meadowbrook Solution

The City Council completed long and difficult planning and public hearings on the West Meadowbrook Redevelopment project last week and approved the $1.4 million program.

Approval of the project means that perhaps the worst housing area in the city will be corrected. Much of the housing in that section was built in the Tar River flood plain and thus is subject to rising waters. The Utilities could not install sewer lines in the area and street maintenance was virtually impossible.

The only answer seemed to be relocation of the families living in the area and allowing the land to return to the use intended by nature—that of a flood plain for the river.

So now the planning has been done for the 63 acre project. The property south of the flood plain boundary—150-200 feet south of and parallel to Moore Street—will be acquired by the city.

Because the project is a public one, those living in the area will be eligible for certain benefits in purchasing new homes or relocating in other rental units.

Greenville has made much progress in cleaning up other residential areas over the years. The West Meadowbrook area remained a major problem, however. There was little the city could do to make living conditions better in the area and it was a constant health problem, as well as being an eye sore.

We are on the way now toward making the needed improvements in that area, and that will be an asset to the entire city.

Smoothing Out Differences On Budget

Just a short while back, the governor and the Democratically controlled Legislature seemed headed for a show down on the question of how to bring the state budget in balance.

Following a meeting between the GOP Gov. Holshouser and legislative leaders late last week things seemed to be smoothed out.

"I don't think that we'll have any disagreement between the executive and the legislature if that money is needed to balance the budget," Holshouser said in a news conference Friday. He was discussing $13.3 million which a committee had recommended putting in reserve rather than being used to balance this year's budget. If Holshouser accepts that recommendation he would presumably have to save a similar amount out of the operating budget.

We think considerable savings can be realized from the operating budget without severely hampering state services. It appears that the Legislative leaders and the governor may now be ready to cooperate so these savings can be realized.

Revenue Bonds For N.C.

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The key determination to be made by Tar Heel voters March 23 in the question of tax-free revenue bonds to aid industry is not the philosophical merits of such a system, but the fact that North Carolina is being hurt financially by the lack of them, says State Rep. Ben Tison, D-Mecklenburg.

"We are the only state in the country without some form of revenue bond aid... And the proposal here is a most conservative one on the scale of aid provided by the other 49 states," Tison believes.

Himself an industrial development specialist with North Carolina National Bank in Charlotte, Tison was chief sponsor of the rewritten bond measure endorsed by the General Assembly for listing on the ballot March 23. A Constitutional change is involved. Voters defeated the measure in 1974, and a previous step in the same direction by the General Assembly without a statewide vote was held unconstitutional.

Are Bypassed
"But the point now is that we are getting bypassed by a lot of good companies which are looking for locations, or seeking to expand.

"I'm not talking about some jackleg, fly-by-night sweat shop operations either, but good, substantial firms. 'Honestly, we are 50th in the nation in manufacturing wages and if we are ever gonna do anything to raise that position, this kind of assistance to industry is of number-one importance,'" says Tison.

Still, critics do look at some of the particular features of the proposal as outlined this year. A critical problem is what would happen to a local government if the industry which is leasing a plant should go broke.

Ownership of the property would be in the hands of a bond commission separate and apart from county government, and that commission could sublease the property to another tenant, or if efforts to sublet fail, then it is not the taxpayers, but the bond-holders who suffer the loss.

Tison says such an eventuality would not affect the bond ratings of the local government, and public funds are prohibited by law from use in satisfying the debt.

No Cost
The system works with "absolutely no cost to the taxpayers," Tison said. Bonds are sold to individuals, trusts, banks, pension funds, etc., which buy them because there would be no income tax on interest paid.

What about some less than substantial firm landing a deal, or some collusive effort by a local politician to get favored treatment?

Tison says the law requires the industry be investigated as to financial soundness and worth, and the approval process includes the local bond commission, the secretary of the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources, and the Local Government Commission under direction of the state Treasurer. Additionally, the law requires the prospect pay wages above the prevailing rate, offer good jobs in an area, and satisfy environmental concerns.

"We've tried to cover every loophole... and avoid any speculative features. Our act is conservative, and where jobs are not substantial ones, or pollution devices not required to help our environment, we are not interested.

Bond funds could be provided for an industrial plant or expansion costing up to $5 million (federal Internal Revenue Service rulings set that limit, not the state law), and required pollution control devices could be funded in unlimited amounts but would generally be restricted to between three and five per cent of the total plant investment, Tison said.

Has Anybody A Secret?

WASHINGTON—Almost everyone living outside Washington believes that every newspaperman in Washington has closets full of classified and secret documents leaked to them by bureaucrats, congressional aides or ex-employees of the Lockheed Aircraft Co. It's true.

Those of us who report the government's business are judged not by how much money we have in the bank but how many documents we have in the safe.

The only exception to the rule is myself. For reasons that I have been unable to explain, no one ever leaks anything to me and it's very embarrassing to be an accredited correspondent and not have any confidential papers in my briefcase to show for it.

Occasionally I do hear from someone in the government, but I really can't call it a leak. Last week Secretary of Transportation Coleman sent me his decision on the Concorde SST, but only AFTER it had been made public. Every once in a while I'll receive a hand-delivered brown envelope from the White House with a short note from Ron Nessen saying, "I thought you would like to have a personal copy of the President's speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars."

Once I showed it around at the Sans Souci Restaurant, but Dan Schorr just laughed at me.

It's really no fun at all to live in a town where everyone is dealing in secret documents and all I get is newsletters from congressmen and press releases from the "Shriver for President" committee addressed to "Occupant."

Every morning I come into the office and say to my secretary, Ellie, "Did anyone leak anything to us today?" She always replies in a kindly manner, "No, but the afternoon mail hasn't come in yet."

I then get on the phone and start making calls. I telephone the Pentagon and say, "Do you know if anyone plans to leak anything today?" The Pentagon operator puts me in touch with a colonel. "Colonel, this is Art Buchwald, the syndicated columnist, and I was wondering if you had any confidential or secret papers you didn't want?" He always says he'll call me back, but he never does.

Then I try the CIA. "This is Beaver," I say, not identifying myself. "I want to talk to Wolf Two." I usually get a secretary. "Tell Wolf Two to meet me on the corner of 14th

Other Editors Say Don't Blame Computer

(The Raleigh Times)
It is beyond the comprehension of reasonable men and taxpayers why the state Employment Security Commission and the Revenue Department only now, nearly two months into 1976, are starting to check incoming tax returns for 1975 to see whether unemployment benefits recipients properly listed this money as income.

State Revenue had to order a temporary holdup last week on sending out refunds, to go back and check returns already filed in case the fillers had neglected to include unemployment checks among their taxable income, a requirement of state but not federal tax law.

Employment Security, which presumably had known all through 1975 that questions might arise involving its record volume of benefits paid last year and their treatment by the Revenue Department when tax time came, didn't come up with a computerized list in the proper form for Revenue use until Feb. 18, 1976.

This despite the fact that ESC's own operations are largely computerized and the proper program could and should have been written in time to provide the information Revenue would need by Jan. 1 or soon after. The "technical difficulties" ESC cited in writing the program for the tax people ought to have been foreseen.

This is far from the first time ESC's computer operations have shown lamentable signs of poor input, as all too many of North Carolina's jobless have found to their sorrow when checks were inexplicably delayed "because of the computer" for weeks or months. But that does not make poor utilization of expensive computer capability any more excusable.

"Garbage in, garbage out" is still the ineluctable rule that governs whether computerization brings efficiency or compounds frustration. The computer, marvelous potential and all, is no earthly use to anyone unless accompanied by human forethought.

Records indicate that the last U.S. territorial acquisition was the annexation of Swains Island to American Samoa in 1925. The United States purchased the Virgin Islands from Denmark in 1917.

Under commonwealth status, Mariana Islands residents would draft a constitution, including a bill of rights, elect a governor and legislature and establish a judiciary. They could not vote for president of the United States or have representatives in Congress.

Pacific Islands Action

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 14 Mariana Islands in the Pacific will become the first new U.S. territory in 51 years under legislation nearing final congressional approval.

The commonwealth covenant extending U.S. citizenship to 14,000 island residents was approved by the Senate on Tuesday, Feb. 23. The House passed a slightly different resolution last July 21.

All that remains is for differences to be resolved, probably in a House-Senate conference.

The Senate resolution lacked House-approved authorization for the president to extend federal aid grants and loan programs to the Marianas and other U.S. offshore territories.

The Marianas, located north of Guam some 5,400 miles west of San Francisco, are part of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. The Trust Territory, which includes the Marshall and Caroline islands, has been administered by the United States since 1947 under a trust agreement with the United Nations.

The commonwealth covenant, negotiated over two years, was approved by Marianas residents by a 78.8 per cent margin in a plebiscite last June 17 in which 95 per cent of eligible voters participated.

Opposing the resolution in Senate debate, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said territorial expansion is "a very serious step," accomplished in this case by "entitlement."

The covenant provides for a $14-million U.S. contribution each year for at least seven years for economic development and local budgetary support. U.S. income tax money would be retained in the islands.

The United States, in return, would have the option of leasing areas on Saipan, Tinian and Farallon de Medinilla islands for 100 years for a $19.5-million payment. All three are part of the Marianas.

"It will be the most expensive commonwealth this country has ever declared," Mansfield warned the Senate.

The United States has a major naval base on Guam, the southernmost Marianas island. Guam was annexed to the United States in 1898.

Records indicate that the last U.S. territorial acquisition was the annexation of Swains Island to American Samoa in 1925. The United States purchased the Virgin Islands from Denmark in 1917.

Under commonwealth status, Mariana Islands residents would draft a constitution, including a bill of rights, elect a governor and legislature and establish a judiciary. They could not vote for president of the United States or have representatives in Congress.

Odd Anti-Carter Alliances

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — An alliance of political strangers is insensibly forming in Florida, not for the national Democratic party's decade-old purpose of stopping George Wallace but for a new and more pressing cause: slowing the amazing momentum being built up by Jimmy Carter's quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

There is more that links the strange anti-Carter bedfellows than mere concern over his momentum. Two principals in the shadowy anti-Carter alliance—Wallace himself and anti-Wallace Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida—have old scores to settle with the tough little former governor of Georgia.

A third principal, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, worries about Carter for a more practical reason: if Carter follows a possible win in New Hampshire by edging out Wallace or even running a tight second in Florida, Jackson—and the rest of the Democratic pack—may be hard put ever to catch him.

Accordingly, Democrats worried about the Carter phenomenon feel he must be stopped in Florida.

But Jackson cannot stop Carter. Not even trying for a statewide total contesting Wallace and Carter, Jackson is seeking a mere 15 per cent in a dozen or so congressional districts to guarantee himself one delegate in each of those districts.

The role of Carter-stopper, therefore, falls by necessity to George Wallace, an old symbol of racism few national Democrats dare speak well of.

Ironically, Carter originally was supported by some liberals as the best candidate to stop Wallace in Florida. Now, many Democratic politicians consider Carter, not Wallace, the more serious threat. That is why Wallace has some unusual Democrats silently rooting him on in Florida.

It is not necessary to endorse Wallace to help him here. The highly respected Gov. Askew, perhaps the most popular Democrat in Florida history and the antithesis of Wallaceism, passes the word on every occasion that he will vote "no preference" March 9—a vote for uncommitted delegates.

Askew's influence within the party here is such that he probably could turn thousands of voters out for Carter and away from Wallace—if he wanted to. But that's not what Askew wants. It was Carter—then Gov. Carter—who tried in vain to block Askew's election as chairman of the Southern governors in 1974 after promising to support him. Askew has not forgotten.

Although Askew's advisers deny that Askew is anti-Carter, Askew has resented Carter's national emergence as the anti-racist progressive Southerner; it was Askew, not Carter, who took early courageous stands on busing and other racial issues Carter is now being lionized for. Despite public denials, Askew intimates say he would like to become the first new-breed Southern governor named to a national ticket—an unspoken ambition now menaced by Carter.

As for Wallace, his lieutenants claim Carter reneged on a pledge to steer Georgia's 1972 convention delegates to Wallace if Wallace could show at least 300 delegates in hand.

That agreement was the price for Wallace not to invade Georgia seeking convention delegates. Yet Carter delivered the nominating address for Jackson, and Wallace ended up with less

Strength For Today

A FAITHFUL SERVANT
One of the greatest men who ever lived was Louis Pasteur. Yet so intense was the vilification hurled against him by his enemies that for much of his life he was generally considered to be a cheap charlatan.

His great discovery was to find an antibody which would make dogs immune to rabies, which was a devastating disease of epidemic proportions in much of Europe during the mid-nineteenth century.

Pasteur had never dared to try the antibody on humans. But one day a desperate mother brought to Pasteur's laboratory a small boy had been bitten by a mad dog. Pasteur knew that any attempted cure on his part might bring death for the boy, disgrace and prison for himself, and the end of his scientific work. But he took the chance anyway since the boy would certainly die a horrible death if nothing was done.

The boy lived. A great medical discovery had been made and Pasteur's name was vindicated. A dedicated Christian, Pasteur was a faithful servant of the Lord.

Suspects Wrong Health Target

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The United States may be wasting billions of dollars a year by failing to concentrate medical and health research where the problems are, Walter Mc Nerney, president of the Blue Cross Association, believes.

Mc Nerney said it is increasingly evident that the betterment of national health and well being is to be found in a study of environment, life-style and culture, from which many modern ailments arise.

Nevertheless, he said, the often uncoordinated efforts of the vast health care industry seem to focus on research areas that offer relatively minor possibilities of improvement, and on development of exotic equipment and hospitals.

Referring to the costs involved, he said "We're doing a good job of doing some old things, but that won't change even if we do an excellent job."

Traditional approaches to delivering health care leave the country "in a bind between cost and payoff," he said. Proof that new approaches must be tried, he said, is evidence that increased expenditures no longer produce improved results.

Mc Nerney said that health care now costs $120 billion a year, but that "we could double that and not make a major impact on some of the key health indices" by continuing existing methods.

Instead, he said, a holistic approach must be attempted, that is, a coordinated attack on the problem rather than the current fragmented emphasis on only various aspects of the problem.

Studies that offer the greatest possibilities for raising the general level of health, he said, are indisputably in the areas of environment, life-style and culture.

Blue Cross, he said, already has a contract from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to examine its records in search of clues to occupational causes of disease. But, he said, hospitals must cooperate by beginning to ask more searching questions about possible occupational hazards.

In the United States, occupational hazards alone have been estimated by the National Safety Council to cost $15 billion in 1974, a

As an indication of what he termed a "disjunction between the problem and the resources," Mc Nerney noted that the Department of HEW spends $200 million on biochemical cancer research and under $10 million on possible environmental causes, where study is more likely to produce results.

Who is to blame for the misplaced emphasis that Mc Nerney maintains is widespread? "We're all to blame," he said. "It is only recently that we began to notice."

The new, holistic approach, especially as it relates to environment, life-style and culture, will take time to develop, he conceded. "The health establishment needs a shakeup," he said.

than a quarter of the Georgia delegation. Wallace, then, has a motive beyond just winning.

Wallace showed no sign of fatigue campaigning last weekend, ending up near midnight Saturday after a hard-hitting rally speech in Vero Beach and then going on display Sunday before 125,000 racing fans here as grand marshal of the Daytona 500.

Although he appears to be running only marginally less well than in 1972, not even Wallace backers believe he can match that year's astonishing 42 per cent. The busing issue, so torrid in 1972, is no longer overriding. Nevertheless, a Wallace score of around 35 per cent seems likely, with Carter coming in not far behind and Jackson a weak third. The end result: continued momentum for Carter.

To prevent that, Jackson is now attacking Carter's equivocation on national issues and he means to intensify this criticism. The danger is that it could backfire on him and build up Carter.

Whatever Jackson does would be eclipsed by a Carter win in New Hampshire, tightening his Florida race with Wallace. Should that happen, the alliance of political strangers against Jimmy Carter would become a truly desperate enterprise — to be joined by other silent bedfellows.

In a recent column, the name of one of the absent 15 House members favoring natural gas deregulation was inadvertently omitted. Rep. Marvin Esch missed the vote because he was back in Michigan campaigning for the Republican nomination for the Senate.

everyone says he's the best leak in Washington. The other night Kissinger told me, "With the exception of Angola and SALT, detente is going very well." At least, I said to myself, I have something I can sell to the Village Voice. The question was, could I get it in the paper before Jack Anderson heard about it? But when we sat down to dinner Barbara Howar said to me, "Henry just told me with the exception of Angola and SALT, detente is going very well."

Rowland Evans and Bob Novak, who speak with one voice, said together, "Kissinger just told us that with the exception of Angola and SALT, detente is going very well."

After the dinner the parking attendant at the garage said to me, "Is it worth 10 bucks to you to know what Kissinger thinks about detente?"

"Just give me my damn car," I said in disgust.

In order to get tenure at a university you have to write a book. In order to remain accredited in Washington you have to publish secret papers. I've been warned by all my colleagues that unless I come up with something soon I will be drummed out of the Washington press corps and lose my right to be tapped by the FBI.

It's a very tough position to be put in. I hate to beg, but if anyone out there has any confidential or secret report they would like to contribute, you could save a journalist's life.

Study Lowering Of Airline Fares

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation pending in Congress to give airlines new freedom to raise and lower fares could cut the cost of air travel in half during off-peak hours on routes between 60 major cities, a report prepared for the Department of Transportation concludes.

However, the legislation might also result in higher air fares or less service on routes to small cities, the report found.

The report, prepared by the private consulting firm of Simat, Helliessen and Eichner, reaches the same basic conclusions on the effects of decreased federal regulation as a recent Senate subcommittee report. Both studies are expected to give new impetus to the Ford administration's drive to give the nation's airlines more freedom to raise and lower fares and to start and stop service.

The consulting firm report, released Tuesday, said three intrastate airlines not regulated by the government make profits while offering fares far below those of interstate airlines regulated by the Civil Aeronautics Board. The three airlines were Southwest Airlines in Texas, and Pacific Southwest and Air California in California.

The report said the intrastate airlines were able to offer lower fares than airlines regulated by the CAB because state regulations penalize inefficient operations while federal regulations do not.

Fares approved by the CAB are set high enough to cover the average cost of all airlines flying the route the report said. In contrast, the California and Texas fares are set high enough only to cover the cost of the most efficient airline flying the route, thus putting pressure on all airlines to become as efficient.

Southwest uses a two-tiered fare. For example, higher rates are charged between Dallas and Houston during peak business periods with a lower fare during slack periods and on weekends. This has led to a massive increase in air travel between cities served by Southwest, particularly by those who use off-peak fares, the report found.

As to the effect of deregulation on air service to small towns, the report said the predicted adverse impact could occur because lowering the cost of air service on major routes would keep airlines from using profits from those routes to subsidize unprofitable routes.

However, the study and Department of Transportation officials said any adverse effect likely would be small and limited to few routes.

support. In fact, the great flexibility of sneakers gives the muscles of the foot freedom to develop.

If you child spends a lot of time playing on cement playgrounds and sidewalks, a thick-soled basketball or professional type tennis shoe is a good investment. Its thick resilient sole helps young feet take the pounding that hard surfaces give them.

However, rubber soles puncture more easily than leather and they do not allow the feet to breathe. Remember, fungi that cause athlete's foot, one of the most common childhood foot ailments, thrive in warm, dark, damp shoes. Whenever your children wear sneakers be sure they wear clean, absorbent cotton or wool socks.

Contrary to popular belief, sandals do not make the feet spread. A well-fitted sandal allows the feet freedom to develop naturally.

Sandals are often fitted small to help them stay on the feet. Look for styles with closed backs or wide straps to minimize this problem.

Dollar A Pack?

HAZLEHURST, Ga. (AP) — Flue-cured tobacco growers can expect higher federal support prices in 1976, but pending legislation could raise cigarette prices to as much as a dollar a pack, according to federal officials.

"There is every reason to be optimistic about tobacco this year," Fred Bond, general manager of the Flue-cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., told growers from Georgia and Alabama Tuesday.

Prices in Georgia, Alabama and Florida dropped last year for the first time since 1961.

The assistant regional director of the federal Tobacco Grading Service, A. A. Roberson, told the farmers Congress is considering a bill that would tax cigarettes according to the amount of tar and nicotine they contain.

"With the added taxes, some packs of cigarettes could cost as much as $1," Roberson said.

He called the measure one of a series of "raids on the farmers' pocketbooks."

Bond and Roberson commented at the 18th annual district meeting of the stabilization service, which administers the federal price support program.

Both men said they have heard talk that this year's selling season will be shortened, but they said any decision would have to be made by the federal Tobacco Marketing Committee.

Higher Crop Targets Set

By BRIAN B. KING

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Target prices and loan rates for the 1976 crops of cotton and major grains are 14 per cent higher than last year.

The Agriculture Department is also reinstating the soybean loan program.

The Agriculture Department announced the adjustments in target prices, required by statute, and in production loan rates, subject to the secretary's discretion, on Tuesday.

Secretary Earl L. Butz had been under increasing pressure from farm organizations and farm-state members of Congress to pull up the loan rates in line with the mandated hikes in the target prices, to reflect increases last year in production costs.

Long-standing pressure to reinstate a loan program for soybeans, not in effect last year, also was intensified in recent months because of expanded production from competing Brazil in soybeans and the several Asian nations producing and exporting palm oil.

The announcement from Butz' office attributed the need for a soybean loan, at $2.50 a bushel, to those foreign factors.

The new target prices are:

Wheat — $2.29, up from $2.05 a bushel.

Corn — $1.57, up from $1.38 a bushel.

Sorghum — $1.49, up from $1.31 a bushel.

Barley — $1.28, up from $1.13 a bushel.

Upland cotton — 43.2 cents a pound, up from 38 cents a pound.

The new loan rates are:

Wheat — $1.50 a bushel, an increase of 9.49 per cent.

Corn — $1.25 a bushel, an increase of 13.6 per cent.

Sorghum — $1.19 a bushel or $2.13 per 100 pounds, increases of 13.3 per cent.

Barley — $1.02 a bushel, also a 13.3 per cent increase.

Oats — 60 cents a bushel, up 11.1 per cent.

Rye — $1 a bushel, an increase of 12.4 per cent.

The interest rate for the loans, which allow farmers to get cash for production and hold their crops for more orderly marketing, will remain at 7.2 per cent, USDA said.

The upland cotton loan rate already had been announced as 37.12 cents per pound, compared to 34.27 cents for 1975.

Under the target-price provisions of the basic farm-program statute, direct payments are made to farmers if the national average market price for the commodity falls below the target. The government then pays the difference between the target and the market price or the loan level, whichever level is higher.

Target prices also are used to calculate payments to farmers when natural disasters strike their crops. Those payments are made at a rate of one-third the target for the particular crop that could not be planted or for the yields which were substantially reduced.

Sees Hostile View By Profs

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The chief executive officer of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. says many university professors teach their students to hold the business community in contempt.

Darrell Eichoff told Duke University business students Tuesday that many professors are hostile to the business community and try to transfer that negative feeling to their students.

Eichoff said business should become part of the career counselling program in colleges and universities.

Game-Playing
Another 'Talent'
Of Computer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The blackjack dealer doesn't smile when you say "hit me" for the third time, but he isn't a sore loser either.

He's a homemade computer, and members of the Southern California Computer Society say they have found there is more to be done with computers than just mere business.

The society's computer buffs have programmed their machines to play tick-tack-toe as long as you like. They have invented games, like "Star Trek" in which the player is pitted against a computerized universe complete with enemy spaceships, and have even taught the computers to write news stories.

"It's power. It's stimulating. You challenge yourself," said Stuart Gibbs, a member of the San Fernando Valley-based society. "They say guys with ham (radio) sets are putting them aside and getting computers. It's a craze. I don't like that word, but that's what it is."

Dr. Gerald Silver of Los Angeles City College, one of the society's founders, said he was tired of computers always being serious.

"I was working with the UCLA computer, doing nothing but practical problems when I started thinking about doing things that would have no practical use at all," he said.

The game of Star Trek puts the player in the driver's seat of the starship Enterprise, Silver said.

The game, invented in 1972 by Michael Mayfield of an East Coast engineering firm, involves a computer program that puts the universe with randomly scattered stars and other obstacles on a television-type screen. The object is to steer safely through the maze, defeating any enemy spacecraft encountered.

Silver said his group has developed a game called Mad Lib, in which the computer writes stories based on data supplied by the player.

"The computer asks about your interests," Silver said. "If you are interested in fishing, the computer takes your answers and offers to write a story about fishing and, say, skydiving or whatever, built around the verbs and data you have given it."

Graham Lee Mahin, a society member who invented a similar game, gave an excerpt of a story written about Wall Street by the computer:

"The overpaid margin-man made his first trade of the day on behalf of the pompous Translux repairman and then demanded fresh funds from the trader who was continually trying to dress like a typical Wall Streeter as a result of bearish news from Geneva."

Face Cane For
'Raising Cain'

By THOMAS CHEATHAM LONDON (UPI) — The cane, in British school house lingo, is a nice little piece of quarter-inch bamboo, about two feet long.

The strap, on the other hand, is a thick leather belt, often with its end cut into two or more thongs.

It smarts when either one is propelled across the posterior. Many a British school boy can attest to the disciplinary effectiveness.

Now the privilege of bending over for a caning or strapping may be passed to the girls, too.

Traditionally, the decision to use corporal punishment in schools here has been left with the school district or, in many cases, with the headmasters and teachers. Historically, girls have been exempt.

Headmaster Harry Askew has threatened to change that by vowing to strap swearing and abusive teen-age coeds at his 1,360-student Heaton Comprehensive school in Newcastle-on-Tyne, a tough, industrial town.

The girls responded with a riot.

Eight windows were broken before the police — six cars of them — broke it up. Quickly came the howls from parents with allegations of teacher atrocities.

With school hooliganism on the rise in Britain, especially among girl rowdies, the debate on caning or strapping coeds spread quickly to the national press and Parliament.

"Ironically, it came shortly after a sex discrimination act had given women equal rights with men under British law for the first time.

There were no easy or quick answers on to spank or not to spank girls. Meetings were scheduled. Investigations were demanded.

Askew held off with his strap but suspended five girls whom he described as "ringleaders."

"I am determined that my staff will no longer have to put up with abuse, swearing and threats," he said. "There is some evidence that the girls think they can get away with bad behavior simply because they are girls."

"I have let it be known that unless we get some respect from them from now on, there is going to be trouble."

His superior backed him up, but some of the girls and their parents claimed that a handful was being singled out for discipline.

"The trouble with so many adults today is that they're too sophisticated," said Terry Casey, head of the National Association of Schoolmasters. "A ticking off to a child is so often seen as inflicting a trauma."

Psychiatrist Says Patricia 'Switched Identities'

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst was a confused young woman with "a variety of behaviors" and virtually no identity of her own in the weeks after her arrest, says a court-appointed psychiatrist.

Dr. L.J. West, a professor of psychiatry and an expert on prisoner of war torture, spent the entire day Tuesday on the witness stand at Miss Hearst's trial for bank robbery.

Asst. U.S. Atty. David Bancroft, who repeatedly questioned West's interpretations of Miss Hearst's mental state, planned to continue his cross-examination today.

During direct questioning by defense counsel F. Lee Bailey, West portrayed Miss Hearst as a "shattered" survivor of a 19-month ordeal in the terrorist underground.

West said Tuesday that Miss Hearst, who had been given the name "Tania" by her Symbionese Liberation Army captors after she proclaimed her allegiance to the terrorist band and took part in the bank robbery, became "Pearl" for much of her time in the underground.

Miss Hearst testified earlier that SLA member Emily Harris gave her the name "Pearl" after the May 17, 1974, shootout in which six SLA members died in Los Angeles.

West said the heiress had made a "remarkable improvement" in her condition in the past few months but still showed signs of anxiety and the fear for her life that characterized much of her own testimony.

West was one of three psychiatrists appointed by U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter last fall to help determine whether Miss Hearst was competent to stand trial. He spent a total of 23 hours examining the 22-year-old defendant and was called as a witness for the defense.

The other two experts who examined her on behalf of the court have not testified at the trial.

Bancroft attempted Tuesday to discredit West's sympathetic picture of Miss Hearst and elicited the fact the psychiatrist had written the Hearst family months before he ever met the defendant.

West defended his letter to Randolph and Catherine Hearst as "one parent to another," written sometime while Miss Hearst was sought as a fugitive.

"I think I expressed some sympathy and told them they should not despair of their daughter's condition because if she were ever returned to them alive she might be in a condition to be helped and possibly defended," he said.

West and the judge confirmed that the court was aware of the letter prior to West's appointment by Carter to the case.

The prosecution contends Miss Hearst willingly joined her SLA kidnapers, helped them rob a bank and remained with them on her own volition until her capture last Sept. 18.

Miss Hearst contends she co-operated with her kidnapers and desperately wanted them to believe she had joined their terrorist ranks because she felt it was her only means of survival. Any sign of betrayal or lack of commitment, she said, would mean death.

West said she "lived for the moment as a sort of psychological armor" to blot out the pain of being a hostage of the SLA and a fugitive of the law.

The defendant has testified that she was raped by now-dead SLA members Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze and William Wolfe twice in the weeks after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnaping.

She has described surviving SLA member William Harris as a brute who blackened her eye at least four times and who, along with his wife, Emily, kept her in fear after six SLA members died in a shootout in May 1974. The Harris are now in jail.

During another part of his cross-examination, Bancroft made a point of mentioning that West is a professor at the University of California at Los Angeles and that the defendant's mother is a UC regent. He also asked why the witness had had dinner with the Hearsts and West said it was "necessary to interview the parents to gather information on Miss Hearst's background."

Earlier Tuesday, West had said Miss Hearst initially could not recall some details of the bank robbery for which she is on trial. "It was like a dream," he quoted her as saying. She did not remember two bystanders who were shot in the holdup even though she had to step over their bodies to leave the bank.

"Patricia Hearst, improved as she is, still trembles at mention of the SLA," he said. West examined her less than 10 days ago and said she told him, "My biggest worry right now is staying alive."

Miss Hearst has testified that her renunciation of her role as "Tania" in the underground has upset some radicals who view her as a traitor and want to kill her.

Social Security Tax Hike Dying

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's plan to raise Social Security taxes by as much as $1 a week per worker apparently is dead, a victim of the battle between Congress and the White House over economic policy.

The Senate Finance Committee's action rejecting Ford's proposal came as no surprise. And while the decision could be reversed by the Senate and the House, the prospect in this election year is unlikely.

Without a formal vote, the Finance Committee agreed Tuesday that its spending and tax plans for 1977 would not include an increase in Social Security payroll deductions. The panel delayed until later this year a decision on whether money should be taken from elsewhere in the federal budget to pump up the Social Security system.

In addition, the committee agreed tentatively to increase benefits under the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program by up to $900 million next year. That program provides federal checks each month to 4.3 million needy elderly, disabled and blind persons.

How that $900 million will be spent was not decided, although a large portion may be used to insure that state contributions to SSI are not cut when federal benefits are raised.

The decisions on Social Security taxes and increased SSI benefits, coupled with the committee's agreement to rely on congressional economic predictions rather than those of the Ford administration, would mean a $5.1-billion increase in the $43-billion deficit Ford is predicting for 1977.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee, told his colleagues there is no reason for Congress to rush more money into the Social Security system now, although checks mailed out each month to the retired, disabled and survivors of workers are exceeding revenues poured into the fund by payroll taxes.

By all accounts, the system will remain solvent at least through 1981, although the gap between incoming tax money and benefits paid out will continue to widen.

President Orders Refusal Of Subpoena Compliance

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford ordered the Justice Department and Defense Department to refuse compliance with a House subcommittee subpoena for records about government interceptions of cables sent to and from U.S. citizens, congressional sources say.

the Defense Department in a memorandum last week to refuse to comply with the panel's subpoenas for all records on the interception of cable traffic. Ford's memo said, "The scope of the records sought is so extremely broad as to encompass records containing the most sensitive national security information."

Committee aides said Levi and Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements agreed to let the agents appear before the panel, but indicated their testimony would be limited. Meanwhile, the Reporters' Committee for Freedom of the Press said it will not accept any money from the weekly Village Voice in connection with the printing of the House intelligence committee's final report.

CBS newsman Daniel Schorr, who arranged for publication of the secret report, had said he specified in his dealings with the Village Voice that the Reporter's Committee should get any fee due him from the New York paper. The Washington-based Reporters' Committee issued a statement Tuesday saying it had agreed to accept money from publication of the House report in book form, but won't take any money from the Village Voice.

Village Voice publisher Clay Felker has not said whether he is paying anyone for the report and would not answer telephone queries. The Reporter's Committee chief trustee, Jack Landau, said the committee decided against accepting any payment due Schorr "to avoid any suggestion that the committee was involved in commercialization or checkbook journalism."

A quiet struggle is developing in the Senate over whether a proposed new panel to oversee U.S. intelligence agencies should have exclusive jurisdiction to monitor all government spy activities. The Senate Government Operations Committee voted Tuesday to create a new committee with power to monitor domestic and foreign intelligence operations conducted by all government agencies.

But it was learned that members of the Senate Judiciary Committee don't want to give up their traditional responsibility for overseeing domestic intelligence activities, particularly those by the FBI. The resolution also provides for punishment up to expulsion for senators who leak information. It would also empower the full Senate to disclose intelligence data over the President's objection.

Rep. Taylor Is Retiring

A spokesman for the House government information subcommittee said Tuesday the panel had been told that Ford was prepared to invoke executive privilege to keep the subcommittee from obtaining information on Operation Shamrock, the now-defunct cable interception program.

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina's Democratic Congressman Roy A. Taylor, of Black Mountain near Asheville, has decided not to run for reelection, thus winding up 16 years in the House of Representatives.

Taylor, 66, announced his decision in Washington Thursday, saying in a statement, "This decision has been reached with reluctance and after much thought because I love the Congress as an institution and have great respect for its members, whose public image does not do them justice."

He added that "now I am at the right age and in the right mood to seek a more relaxed way of life. I desire to come home to western North Carolina while my wife and I are still young enough and healthy enough to enjoy life at a less strenuous pace."

Taylor also noted that an ear infection which sent him to Bethesda Naval Hospital last October "caused a substantial hearing loss in one ear which hampers communications. It is better for the country that congressmen retire too early than too late."

He said his supporters have been advising him that he would have no problem getting re-elected — so he could "stay in there but take it easy."

"But it is not right that I occupy a seat in Congress without exerting my best efforts," he said.

Answer 45 Fire Alarms

During January the 18 Rural Fire Departments in Pitt County answered a total of 45 alarms covering 14 fires in the county, according to the monthly report issued by Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner.

In January, house fires, numbering 15, led in the number of fires reported in one category. This was followed in number of occurrences by 14 building fires, four auto fires, two grass or wood fires, two house trailer fires and two miscellaneous type fires. There were also two false alarms and four instances of mutual aid fire fighting, where one or more fire departments go to the aid of other fire departments.

Property with a value estimated at $82,315 was lost in the fires, which involved an estimated total of $308,300 in property involved in the fires, plus an additional $310,500 in estimated value of property adjacent to the fires.

Eastern Pines, Bell Arthur and Farmville all had an active month, with each department answering five calls.

Story Of UFO Encounter Has Believers, Doubter

By JON HALVORSEN
Associated Press Writer

Travis Walton was cutting trees for $6 an hour in the forests of northern Arizona when he saw the light, a bluish-green ray that he and six witnesses say knocked him to the ground.

Three months after what he says was an encounter with an unidentified flying object, Walton says it is still difficult to lead a normal life.

At dusk last Nov. 5, as Walton tells the story, he was struck by the ray of light from a UFO in the spacecraft and taken off in the spacecraft by strange creatures. He was missing for five days until, his family said, they found him slumped in a phone booth in Heber, Ariz., pale and shaken.

In the days that followed, reporters from as far away as Australia pursued the Walton story; psychiatrists interviewed him; UFO groups studied the incident; and Navajo County Sheriff Marlin Gillespie, whose men had combed the woods in vain for Walton, confessed he found the case the "most exasperating" in his 18 years with the sheriff's department.

Walton, 23, now unemployed and living alone in a rented house in Snowflake, Ariz., says that he's barely existing financially. He has considered finishing his college education at Northern Arizona University, where he completed one year, or seeking a job in electronics.

But the tall, slender young man says he has kept busy. In recent weeks, he said, he has:

- Been "working with an artist to reproduce some of the things I've seen and writing a book" about the incident, tentatively entitled "The Walton Experience."

— Traveled to Toronto for a "news quiz show" on television and to Hollywood to film a TV pilot called "The Unexplained," in which he was interviewed by Leonard Nimoy, the pointy-eared Mr. Spock of "Star Trek" fame.

— Passed a lie-detector test about the UFO incident.

Walton said he received only expense money for his Hollywood and Toronto trips.

Five of the six young men who were with him Nov. 5 passed a polygraph test about what they saw; the test on the sixth man proved inconclusive.

Mike Rogers, 28, who passed the test, is one of Walton's closest friends. Rogers still insists he saw the UFO. He says he and the others saw it as they drove along a bumpy mountain road about 12 miles south of Heber. Walton jumped out of the moving truck, ran toward the brightly glowing object hovering about 15 feet above the ground in a small clearing. He was knocked down by a ray of bluish-green light, Rogers said.

Rogers, who said he and the other men were still sitting in the truck about 25 yards away, drove off in fright. When the men returned 15 minutes later, there was no trace of Walton or the UFO, Rogers said.

Rogers, a father of four who was the foreman of the wood-cutting crew, said in words similar to Walton's: "I would prefer people to believe me, but there's nothing I can do about it if they don't."

Walton's story — he says he remembers only about two hours of the five days he was missing — is that he woke up on a table in a white room and found himself being examined by several creatures with bulging eyes and no fingernails. He said he seized a piece of plastic pipe and swung at the creatures, who backed out of the room.

Walton said he walked down a hallway into another room where he saw a chair with buttons on the side. He began playing with the buttons and saw a large screen filled with stars.

(In the popular TV series "Star Trek," the control room of the "Starship Enterprise" has seats with buttons on their sides and a large viewing screen often filled with stars.)

Next, says Walton, a human-like creature entered the room, took him by the elbow and led him into another room where three men and a woman were standing, he said.

Walton said the creatures placed him in a chair, and from that point on he could remember nothing until he woke up in the phone booth.

Sheriff Gillespie said he became skeptical when Walton failed to show up for a lie-detector test the sheriff had arranged with the Arizona Department of Public Safety.

"I do think that Walton along with the other six people did see something they thought was a UFO. From that point on, I don't believe anything else occurred," said the sheriff.

Walton says he didn't appear for the polygraph test because his emotional state then would have produced misleading responses. He said the sheriff didn't keep his word that the test would be held "in private, not with the press around."

Earlier this month, Walton did pass a polygraph test in Phoenix, according to George Pfeifer of Ezell & Associates Polygraph Institute, who said he administered it. The test was paid for by Aerial Phenomena Research Organization Inc., a Tucson UFO group, Pfeifer said.

Walton and his brother Duane, 26, who has been Walton's most outspoken supporter since the UFO incident, were tested for two hours each and both passed, Pfeifer said.

Walton denies suggestions that he and other members of the family were UFO buffs before the incident.

"That's been said because of an incident my brother (Duane) had when he was younger," Walton said. Ten or 12 years ago, Duane said he saw an object in the woods and ran from it, Walton said.

The sheriff says both Travis, Duane and their mother, Mrs. Mary Kellet, "have on numerous occasions indicated to me they have been UFO buffs. In fact, Duane and Travis had made a pact between each other that if either of them were picked up by a UFO, he would attempt to return to earth and pick up the other."

Self-Discovery In Hiking Alone

By JANE ANDERSON
STORRS, Conn. (UPI) — Warren Doyle, who has hiked the 2,040-mile Appalachian Trail twice, says it's a path to self-discovery.

Doyle, 25, says the journey begins with one step, but there's too much talk of "I can't do it."

An advocate of the growing sport of backpacking, Doyle has set two records on the continuous footpath through 14 states. Now he is writing his University of Connecticut doctoral thesis on it.

In 1973 Doyle hiked the trail alone in 66 and a half days, a record.

Last summer he led 18 students from Georgia's Springer Mountain to Maine's Mt. Katahdin. Before that, the largest known group to make the entire trip was two persons.

The student from Shelton calls the hike "a stress experience," but he is not referring to the twisted ankles, sore muscles, exposure to inclement weather, or the diet of freeze-dried food and protein pills.

He is talking about self-confrontation and self-discovery.

"There's a theory that most people have high self concepts that crumble in situations of crisis or adversity. Many of us never have a chance to find out who we really are," he said.

Doyle thinks being alone with nature forces a person to find out.

"In 1973 I was alone for 66 days. I lost my physical fat and my emotional fat as well. I saw myself as I really was," he said.

"I was lonely, but it's good for people to have a period all to themselves. That's when the insight comes," he said.

Doyle said for every eight people who start the trail only one person finishes it, and he doesn't think it's because of blisters or running out of money.

"A lot of people quit the trail because they can't live with themselves. We're not accustomed to living with ourselves," he said.

"I think in everyday life you perform for other people, you put on different faces for different people, and you behave in certain ways to gain acceptance," he said.

"In nature there are no airs to put on, no one to impress, no one to fight, and no one to support except yourself," he said.

Long-distance hiking, like other sports, requires stamina, self-discipline, quick decision-making and physical endurance. But there are no tangible rewards such as money or trophies.

"It takes a lot of character strength, adaptability, tolerance, patience and selfishness. The trail will bring out those qualities in you or you'll find certain weaknesses in yourself," Doyle said.

"A lot of times I come back from nature and see many more things in society that are trivial," he said.

"Before, I had certain convictions, certain standards and moral values; but they were never so strong or confirmed until after my first experience in nature. It's given me a clear perspective."

Nixon Denies Statements Criticize U.S. Actions

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
PEKING (AP) — Richard Nixon today denied criticizing the Helsinki Declaration or applauding a song calling for the "liberation" of Taiwan during his visit to Peking.

"My God," he said to an aide when asked about the controversy over the toast he made at a banquet Sunday night. "I've used that statement a dozen times before and I used it in a general context. It could apply to the United Nations charter or the Shanghai Communiqué or any international document."

The statement referred to by Nixon was interpreted in some quarters as criticism of President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for joining the Soviet Union in the Helsinki agreement on European security and cooperation.

Nixon in his toast talked about the Shanghai Communiqué he signed four years ago with the late Premier Chou En-lai and then commented:

"There are, of course, some who believe that the mere act of signing a statement of principles or a diplomatic conference will bring instant and lasting peace. This is naive. There cannot and will not be lasting and secure peace until every nation in the world respects the security and independence of every other nation large or small."

Several State Department officials were angered by Nixon's comment, but both Kissinger and the White House said after reading the full text of the toast, they did not interpret it as a criticism.

Nixon also denied that when he applauded during a concert Monday night, he was clapping for a song calling for the ouster of the Nationalist Chinese regime from Taiwan.

"Like hell I did," he said. "I didn't really stand. It was just a gentleman-to-a-lady gesture. I stood for a lady who was standing, not for the song."

Chiang Ching, the wife of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, sat at Nixon's left during the concert and directed his attention to an English translation of one song which said:

"People of Taiwan, our own brothers, day and night, you are in our hearts. We are determined to liberate Taiwan Province and let the light of the sun shine on the island."

At the end of the song, Chiang Ching jumped to her feet applauding, and the other Chinese members of the official party also rose and clapped.

Nixon rose partially, applauding limply.

Nixon on Tuesday afternoon had his third talk with Acting Premier Hua Kuo-feng and in the evening attended a small, informal dinner given by Hua in the Great Hall of the People.

Today, the chairman of the Revolutionary Committee of Tsinghua University, Chi Chuan, confirmed to Nixon that the man Chou En-lai picked to be his successor, First Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, is once more in disgrace.

Teng was purged during the 1966-69 Cultural Revolution. Chou rehabilitated him as part of his campaign to end the turmoil, get government operations back on a smooth basis and resume industrial development. But after Chou's death and the start of a new era of critical wall-poster campaigns, Hua was named acting premier.

Birthplace Of USA Is Attraction

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor
PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (UPI)
— History can come alive for American and foreign visitors to Philadelphia's Bicentennial celebrations.

For here is where the United States of America was born on July 4, 1776. And Philadelphia and the U.S. government have spent millions of dollars in recent years getting ready for the 200th birthday party.

This City of Brotherly Love claims to have the greatest concentration of historic buildings, sites and relics in the United States. Many of them are located within walking distance of one another in what is often called "America's Most Historic Mile."

And when you have finished strolling through the historic area in the old section of the city, one-fare loop buses, London-type double deckers, horses and carriages or old-fashioned trolleys can take you to other key areas in the city's Bicentennial celebrations.

The city fathers have scheduled a year-long calendar of special attractions and activities, from parades, fairs and festivals to art and flower shows, plays, concerts and sports events.

The most popular historic shrine is the Liberty Bell, which was moved on New Year's Eve to a new transparent pavilion across the street from Independence Hall to make it easier for more visitors to see and touch it.

Stop first, however, at the Visitors Center on 3rd and Chestnut Sts., where guides from the Independence National Historical Park and the Philadelphia Convention and Visitors Bureau will provide free brochures and the latest information on what's going on. While there, take time to see the free movie "Independence," directed by John Huston and starring Eli Wallach, Pat Hingle and Patrick O'Neal as founding fathers.

Within a few short blocks from the center are a number of new and restored sites of major interest. There are Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed and the Constitution drafted; Carpenters' Hall where the first Congressional Congress met in 1774; the Greek revival Second Bank of the U.S. with its portrait gallery of early American heroes and Old City Hall, where an interior sound and light show depicts the history of the Supreme Court.

Still within walking distance are the Graff House, where Thomas Jefferson lived when he drafted the Declaration of Independence and the 18th century Christ Church where George Washington, Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and other Revolutionary heroes worshipped while in Philadelphia.

Then there is Franklin's Court with its own post office where mail is stamped with the famous statesman-inventor-author's original postmark and an 18th century print shop which turns out Park literature. There also is an imaginative underground museum with a collection of multimedia displays depicting the life and personality of this multifaceted man. Franklin is buried in the Christ Church burial grounds.

Opening in April will be an exciting new attraction, the Living History Theater at 6th and Race Sts. (There will be an admission charge.) Using a special film process, the 200-year story of life in the United States will be seen in 30 multimedia exhibits and a film which will be seen on a 100-by-94-foot screen. The film "American Years" was directed by Francis Thompson, an Academy Award winner for his movie "To Be Alive," which drew millions to the Johnson Wax Pavilion at the 1964-65 New York World Fair. The theater will also feature a spectrum of unusual displays on Americana, and house several restaurants.

The American Revolutionary Bicentennial Administration predicts Philadelphia will be second only to Washington as a tourist destination with an estimated 17 to 18 million visitors.

At any rate, affable Al Hornstein, director of tourism and public relations, suggests that for the latest information on housing, sightseeing and special Bicentennial packages you should write to the Bureau's Tourist Center, 16th St. and John F. Kennedy Blvd., Philadelphia, Pa. 19102.

The Edenbank Farm near Sardis, B.C., is famous for its purebred Ayrshire cattle.

Egypt Sees Democracy Experiments

By MICHAEL S. BARRETT
CAIRO (UPI) — In a dimly lit law office above a noisy market street, a prim man sits at a book-laden table with five of his cohorts, plotting a course for Egypt's first rival political party in 23 years.

Abdel-Aziz El-Shourbagi, a respected, bespectacled 64-year-old attorney and former bar association president, explains to a visitor his Democratic Party's platform.

"We stand for democracy," he says. "It is necessary to give freedom to our adversaries before we give it to ourselves. To be free you have to give freedom to all."

Politicians don't give Shourbagi's party much of a chance, at least for the moment.

For one thing, there are Egyptian laws against it — such as the national unity law of 1953, whose sixth article states:

"The foundation of new political parties is banned."

Another reason is that the lawmakers and members of the country's only legal political organization, the Arab Socialist Union, have another experiment in democracy under way, one that could form the basis for a future multiparty system.

A 128-man committee, announced Jan. 26 by President Anwar Sadat, has begun formulating guidelines and controls to govern the establishment of political groupings to be known as tribunes, or forums, within the Arab Socialist Union.

These forums will not be parties, said Gamal El-Oteifi, deputy speaker of the National Assembly, but will serve as platforms for dissent, much in the way the different factions of parties in the West function.

"One can concede that our 'wings' may be political trends more to the left or more to the right without being accused of being against the political organization itself," Oteifi said in an interview.

The idea of tribunes started with Sadat's "October paper" published 16 months ago.

It states: "The masses have accepted the alliance of the working forces of the people (meaning the Arab Socialist Union) as the framework of political life. In our battle for construction and progress there is a dire need for such an alliance. Consequently, I refuse any call for breaking up national unity in an artificial way through formation of parties."

The paper was endorsed by the nation in a referendum that gave it the force of a national charter.

But the party idea lingers, and Shourbagi's venture is a concrete manifestation of this.

Oteifi said he saw Shourbagi's so-called Democratic Party as "a sort of pressure to keep the demand for political parties always alive" and admitted that "in the future, if these trends continue, this will lead to political parties" being accepted.

Shourbagi meets nightly with his colleagues in his office, discussing strategy. He has a preparatory committee of three and aims at forming a constituent committee of 150 members who will help organize at the grassroots level throughout the country.

The visitor asks if he is testing the constitution by forming his new party.

"Democracy cannot be a test for others," he says. "It's a reality, a driving formula in the hearts of the masses."

Top government and Arab Socialist Union leaders have said permission would be denied if Shourbagi applied officially because his plan contravenes existing laws and the October paper. What will he do then?

"I will fight it out in court," he said.

Spending Isn't Brown's Thing

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. occasionally visits a Trappist monastery or Zen Buddhist retreat "just to get away from all the nonsense for a while," Reader's Digest says.

The 37-year-old Democratic governor is profiled in the magazine's March issue as a politician whose goal is to look skeptically at everything the state does.

"The truth is I'm cheap. I don't like spending my money or anybody else's," the magazine quoted Brown as describing his conservative fiscal policies.

Jacksonville Nips Rose In Overtime

North Carolina 'Corners' 91-79 Victory Over State To Ice Bye

By The Associated Press
Now that North Carolina has won the first-round bye, the scramble is on to determine who plays who in next week's first round of the Atlantic Coast Conference championship basketball tournament.

The Tar Heels assured themselves of the regular-season title and the bye by winning 91-79 at North Carolina State Tuesday night.

It was their 11th victory in a row since a one-point loss to the State Wolfpack in Chapel Hill. Their record is 10-1 in the league and 23-2 in all games. Wake Forest is the only other team to have beaten them, by 12 points. But that game, in the Big Four Tournament, did not count in league standings.

In the championship tournament at Landover, Md., Thursday through Saturday, March 4-6, first-round pairings will be No. 2 seed vs. 7, 3-6, and 4-5.

The standings below North Carolina are N.C. State 7-4, Maryland 5-5, Wake Forest 4-6, Virginia and Clemson each 4-7, and Duke 3-7.

There are only two more days of play in the regular season.

Tonight, Wake Forest will be at Maryland, Clemson at Duke and Virginia will be home to Virginia Tech.

On Saturday, Duke will be at North Carolina at 1 p.m. and N.C. State at Wake Forest at 3 p.m. in regionally televised games. Virginia will be at Maryland and Clemson will be home to Florida Southern that night. Phil Ford hit 16 straight free throws and added 10 points on field goals for North Carolina Tuesday night.

N.C. State had more field goals, 34 to 27, but North Carolina won by sinking 37 field goals to 11 for the Wolfpack.

"We can beat them, they're just a bunch of foul shooters," said Kenny Carr of State, the leading scorer in the ACC. He fouled out with 1.44 left after scoring 33 points, only three of them on free throws.

Coach Dean Smith ordered North Carolina into the four-corner delay offense with almost 13 minutes to play and both of his tall men, Tommy LaGarde and Mitch Kupchak, with four fouls.

Sophomore Ford responded magnificently, dribbling the time away and being fouled repeatedly as his mates spread out in box formation.

The Wolfpack, meanwhile, committed five turnovers when it got the ball.

"Our Carr is better than any Ford" said a banner displayed by N.C. State students in the partisan crowd of 12,400.

Coach Norm Sloan plugged Ford for player of the year in the ACC. "Let's play one on one and I'll bet my coliseum against anyone else's," he said.

"Smith said he was very pleased with the victory, but our goal is winning the tournament. You noticed that we scored well from the four corners offense, and I did say of-fense."

JACKSONVILLE — Tony Marshburn, who seemed like he never missed, did just that on three straight shots at the end of regulation time, but made up for it by hitting the first points in overtime last night. The Cardinal guards' only bucket of the extra period put Jacksonville into the lead for good as they eked out a 78-76 win over the Rose High Rampants.

It was the final non-conference game for the Rampants, and dropped their record to 2-17 on the season. Jacksonville, which Rose beat in the early days of the season, upped its record to 5-15. Marshburn seemed like just about all of the Jacksonville offense in the game, canning 31 points. He hit on 14 field goals, most of them from downtown

Jacksonville. He also added three free throws.

But while the Rampants couldn't handle Marshburn, the rebound in the game may have been the key to their defeat. Jacksonville took control of the backboards in the second half, and outrebounded Rose, 33-20, during the last two quarters and the extra segment. Overall, the Cards held a 54-43 margin.

Rose hit one more field goal, 29 to 28, as both took the same number of shots, 68. Jacksonville made good on 22 of 30 free throws while Rose hit 18 of 28. Turnovers were almost even, with Rose losing it 22 times and Jacksonville, 21.

Both teams had small leads. Rose was out by as much as four and Jacksonville was ahead by seven at one time.

It was knotted a total of 14 times, and the lead changed hands on nine occasions.

The Rampants took the initial lead, as William Barnes hit two shots in the first 20 seconds, 4-0. But Jacksonville came back on two by Marshburn struck again. The Cardinals then moved out by as much as six points, 18-12, late in the period, but a free throw by Harry Pair and a basket by Jeff Barber cut the lead back to 18-15 at the end of the frame.

Two free throws by Mike Jones and a basket off a rebound by Billy Ray Washington ran the Cardinals out to their biggest lead, 22-15. Rose pulled back, however, and finally tied it up on two free throws by Donnie Shields, 28-28.

Mike Brewington put the Rampants back into the lead on two more charity shots, 30-28, but they couldn't hold it. Jacksonville retook it at 34-32 on two Jones' free throws, and Rose regained it at 38-36 as Derek Brewington hit from the lane.

But neither team could get an advantage the rest of the way, and it was knotted at 40-40 at the half.

Marshburn hit again to open the third period putting the Cards back into the lead, but a jumper by Curtis Keys and a free throw and a basket by Derek Brewington put Rose up, 45-42. Washington put Jacksonville back up a 46-45, however, and except for a 51-51 tie, the Cards held the lead the rest of the period, which ended with Jacksonville up, 56-55.

Greg Ebron put Rose into the lead at the start of the final period, but Washington came right back with a basket to put Jacksonville up, 58-57. Marshburn added two free throws for a three-point edge, and the Cards held the edge until Brewington tied it at 70-70 with 2:25 left.

Leander Green put Jacksonville back ahead, with Keys hitting to tie it once more for Rose with 1:21 left. Jacksonville then stalled until the final five seconds, missing on three shots, all by Marshburn in those final ticks.

Marshburn made up for his mistakes, however, controlling the ball off the tip to score after just three seconds. A Rose turnover gave it back to Jacksonville and Green hit two at the line for a four-point edge. Rose never overcame it. Keys cut it back to two, but two charity shots by Jones moved it back to four, before Keys hit once more with 58 seconds left to pull back within two. Rose then missed on three shots in the final seconds, and the Cards got the final rebound to run out the clock.

In addition to Marshburn's points, Washington added 25 to give the two-56 of the 78 points. Derek Brewington led Rose with 23, while Shields had 11 and Barnes had 10.

The Rampants rallied from 11 points down in the junior varsity game for a 66-61 win, their fourth of the year. Rose trailed, 19-8 after one period, but cut it to 33-24 at the half.

Woody's Ramblin's

BY WOODY PEELE

Yesterday at the Greenville Sports Club, Nick Pond, sports director of WRAL-TV in Raleigh, spoke to a subject dear to the heart of media members everywhere: the growing problems of time and space.

Pond pointed out that back in the "old days" of television, the 11 o'clock news slot was open-ended, and went on as long as there was news to give. Then, the networks started late programming, cutting the news to 30 minutes. "Then, sports started to shrink," he said. "Currently I've got three minutes on the 6 p.m. block, and four to six minutes at 11. This is a national trend of having only 20 percent of the air time devoted to sports. And as commercials crowd in, more and more times come off sports."

Now, Ponds points out, a sportscaster has to weigh what he uses and pick and choose carefully. Not everything everybody wants can be gotten in. "You have to try and use what you think the most want, but regardless, you get telephone calls every night, asking why didn't you have so-and-so. Well, there's just no way."

Pond pointed out that in his coverage area, which has expanded due to cable, there was no way that every event could be covered in three or four minutes of air time.

He added that newspapers face the same problem. The amount of sports they have to cover is growing. "As people move in from outside areas, they bring in outside interests. Certainly you can't give everyone what they want. Newspapers are also faced with less and less space all the time, just like we have less and less time."

We can see what Pond means, as we reflect on our own area, which we like to think covers three counties, Pitt, Martin and Greene, with the emphasis on Pitt. Right here, we have 10 high schools, a major university program with 20 varsity sports, plus all kinds of non-school related programs in golf, tennis, baseball, basketball, and on-and-on. There is simply no way you can hope to satisfy them all.

Our recent reader survey showed that people have a wide variety of interests. Some wanted less local sports, others more. Naturally, there is no way to please them all.

Some people wanted more coverage of ACC sports, saying our stories were too short. Unfortunately, they come from the Associated Press, and we have no control over their content or length. One person wanted, for instance, a day-by-day accounting of the Southeastern Conference activities, and that is completely unavailable. Only the scores run by the AP are available to help keep that fan up to date.

We have some ideas about trying to get more in. How soon they come about, we cannot tell now. There are many factors involved. Needless to say, it's much harder than the average person might think.

For instance, take this spring. Between East Carolina and the area high school teams, there are 43, that's right, 43, teams that will be fielded. And each of them thinks that they are the most important around. They want coverage.

We'll do our best.

During the questions period at the Sports Club, Pond was asked his prediction on last night's State-Carolina game. "I think Carolina is capable of going all the way. And I mean by that, to win the national championship," he said.

The Tar Heel performance last night would tend to make one believe he might be right.

Pair In Finals

BETHEL — North Lenoir and Southern Nash won their way into the finals of the Eastern Carolina Conference junior varsity tournament last night. The event is being played at North Pitt High School, and the finals will be Thursday at 7:30 p.m. there.

In the opener, North Lenoir took a 76-62 win over North Pitt. Mitchell Wiggins led North Lenoir with 22 points, while Ronnie McPhail had 17 and John Wooten and Anthony King each had 12. For North Pitt, Ricky Harris had 13 and Floyd Sneed and Calvin Carmack each had 10.

Metropolitan New York PGA champion Bill Collins of Purchase, N. Y., won the 1975 Izod International golf title by beating Charlie Sifford on the second playoff hole at Southern Pines, N. C.

National League Moves Closer To Keeping Giants In Frisco

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
The National League owners have taken a giant step towards keeping major league baseball in San Francisco this season, if and when the season ever gets started.

The owners, meeting for over four hours in Chicago Tuesday, voted to approve the sale of the financially-troubled Giants to a group headed by San Francisco financier Robert Lurie and former Texas Rangers owner Bob Short.

"We'll keep the Giants in San Francisco forever," pledged Lurie. "If not, I wouldn't be bidding for the team. We have new ideas and promotions. I am willing to say, right now that if we get the club, we'll double the attendance next season."

Assuming that season ever gets underway, Marvin Miller, head of the Players Association, was to meet with an owners committee in Philadelphia today to try to make some progress towards settling their dispute, which centers on the controversial reserve clause.

After a similar session in New York Monday, presidents

Lee MacPhail of the American League and Chub Feeney of the National League said the differences between the owners and players over the reserve clause were too great to open the spring training camps as scheduled. The owners' player relations committee also expressed a willingness to forego the regular season, if necessary.

The sale of the Giants for $8 million — Lurie would own 50 per cent, Short 25 per cent and a Minneapolis conglomerate 25 per cent — was approved with the provision that certain conditions involving both the purchasers and the city of San Francisco are met by March 1.

Feeney said if the conditions — which were not disclosed — are not fulfilled, the National League owners would meet again on the Giants matter. A Toronto group has bid a reported $13.25 million for the team, but about $5 million of that would go towards legal fees should the city of San Francisco sue to keep the team from moving to Canada.

Feeney said the Giants' sale was the only topic of discussion at the Chicago meeting, but added that the National League would meet again soon to discuss expansion.

That came on the heels of a report from Washington that M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board of the New York Mets and chairman of the major leagues' franchise committee, was urging his fellow owners to vote for immediate expansion to Washington.

Carolinas Loop Opens Tourney

By The Associated Press
Three games tonight will get the annual Carolinas Conference basketball tournament underway, looking toward the championship game Saturday night.

Tonight's first round will be played on three different campuses, with High Point at Mars Hill, Pfeiffer at Catawba and Atlantic Christian at Elon.

The regular season leader, Guilford, has a bye and won't see action until Friday night's semifinals when the Quakers will meet the winner of the High Point-Mars Hill game.

Friday night's winners will meet Saturday night for the tournament title.

The semifinals and finals will be played in Lexington.

Guilford has a 10-2 conference record and the Quakers are 17-5 overall but Catawba goes into the tournament with a stretch of 13 straight victories.

The Indians are 9-3 in the league and 19-8 overall. They were third behind Mars Hill in the regular season race and were followed by Elon.

Game times are 7:30 p.m. for the first round, 7 and 9 for the semifinals and 8 p.m. for the title game Saturday night.

Williamston Captures Pair

EDENTON—Both Williamston's boys and girls basketball teams scored 57 points last night and both totals were good enough to get the Tigers a pair of wins over Edenton's Aces.

The Williamston J.V.'s started the rout with a 66-48 win over the Edenton J.V.

The Lady Tigers kept things going recording their 19th win, a 47-36 victory. Williamston zoomed out to a 20-8 first period lead, and padded it with a 15-7 second quarter.

Edenton knocked five points off the 35-13 margin in the third period but the Lady Tigers got it back in the fourth, 14-8.

Williamston had four girls in double figures. Paula Bennett led the teams with 13, Nancy Williams had 12, Cissy Taylor, 11, and Bett Brandon, 10. Lu Ann Bunch led Edenton with 11.

The boys team, led by Barry Wallace and Butch Davis, posted a 10-point win, 57-47. They had to work a little harder for it than their girls, however.

Edenton moved out to a 17-8 lead in the first period but the Aces cooled off in the second period as the Tigers warmed up to take a 27-24 halftime lead.

Williamston added a point to the spread in the third period and finished the game with a 19-13 fourth.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT FINAL SOCIAL SERVICES PLAN UNDER TITLE XX THE DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA PROGRAM YEAR OCTOBER 1, 1975 TO JUNE 30, 1976

Changes in federal interpretation of the law, state policy, and service delivery proposals have necessitated the amendment of the final social services plan. The Division of Services for the Blind is proposing to expand the discrete services available to the blind, by ten (Chore, Day Care — Adults and Children, Health Support, Housing and Home Improvement, Home Management and Maintenance, Information and Referral, Educational Support, Social Development and Group, and Transportation). These services will be provided through the service workers for the blind and directed at the two goals of self-sufficiency and prevention of inappropriate institutional care. The Division of Social Services has revised the definitions of six services to meet federal and state requirements (Foster Care — Children, Homemaker, Educational Support, and three special need services: Emotionally Disturbed, Mentally Retarded, and Elderly, Disabled or Handicapped); deleted fees charged for meals to individuals below 65% of the median income; and updated county plans for service delivery.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT is available without charge. Please contact your local Social Services Office or call CARELINE 1-800-662-7030, toll free, to make requests, or write to office listed below.

Bears Bow To Aurora

AURORA—Aurora romped to a 92-57 victory over Bear Grass last night, but the Bear Grass girls took a 29-27 overtime win in their game.

In the girls' game, Bear Grass romped out to a 6-0 lead in the first period of play, then outthit Aurora, 13-10, in the second quarter for a 19-10 halftime lead.

Aurora put on a comeback in the third period, 13-6, and cut the Bear lead to 25-23. Then, in the final period, the Bears couldn't find the range at all, and only a basket by Donna Levictore with six seconds left tied it up for Aurora. In the overtime, both the teams scored to make it 27-27, but a basket by Lou Rawls with four seconds left gave the Bears the 29-27 win.

In the boys' game, it was a different story. Aurora ran out to a 20-10 lead in the first period and pulled away the rest of the night. They boosted their lead to 48-24 at the half.

Aurora and the Bears matched points in the third period, which ended at 68-44. Aurora then outthit the Bears, 24-13, in the final frame.

William Bell led Aurora with 22, while Keith Holmes had 17 and Irvin Chapman had 14. Alan Crawford led the Bears with 10.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes between Feb. 16, when the Lincoln's Birthday recess ended, and Feb. 18.

House
INDIANA DUNES Passed, 272 for and 118 against, a bill (HR 11455) to greatly enlarge the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore, located along Lake Michigan in northern Indiana. The bill, authorizing the expenditure of $53.5 million to add 4,340 acres to the 8,329-acre national park, was sent to the Senate.

Supporters cited broad-based regional support, from the business sector as well as environmentalists, for expanding the park. Rep. Edward Roush (D-Ind.) said that "the natural resources we would preserve by these additions are vanishing, and time will not make those left any cheaper in cost."
An opponent, Rep. Joe Skubitz

(R-Kan.), said that the "hodgepodge of parcels" slated for acquisition are of no national significance, and cited the backlog of national park projects already approved by Congress but not yet funded. He added: "If there was ever a park bill that should be vetoed, it is this one."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "nay."

Rep. David Henderson (D-3) did not vote.

CONRAIL Passed, 298 for and 95 against, a bill (HJ Res 801) appropriating $2 billion through September, 1979 for implementing the reorganization of seven bankrupt northeastern and midwestern railroads into the quasi-governmental corporation called Conrail.

The bill provides capital and operating money, a federal investment that would be recovered as the new system struggles out of debt. It was sent to the Senate.

One supporter, Rep. Silvio Conte (R-Mass.), said that Conrail is ready to take over the 17,000-mile bankrupt system, and that without quick approval of the funds there will occur this spring "a complete breakdown of rail freight service throughout most of the Northeast . . ."

An opponent, Rep. William Armstrong (R-Colo.), said that burdensome federal regulations drove the railroads to bankruptcy, and that the "outlook is for perpetual subsidies" to Conrail unless Congress removes barriers to railroad profitability. One barrier he cited was the Interstate Commerce Commission regulation of freight rates, which he said have "hamstrung the industry."
Preyer, Rose and Hefner

voted "yea."
Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

Senate

OFFICIAL SECRETS Rejected, 36 for and 44 against, an amendment to allow a President to continue the practice of classifying some information contained in his annual report to Congress on military aid to foreign countries. It was proposed to S2662, which authorizes $3 billion through the fiscal period ending next September in foreign military aid. As later passed and sent to the House, the bill requires a President to make full disclosure of details on such aid.

Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.), the sponsor, said that without his legislation "the disclosure syndrome" in Congress will send foreign governments elsewhere in search of arms. An opponent, Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.), said the annual presidential report is only a "general review" of U.S. military aid, the disclosure of which is unlikely to harm the national interest.

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea." ANGLA AID Rejected, 21 for and 70 against, an amendment to delete a prohibition against the U.S. government providing covert military aid to any fraction in Angola. The ban is part of S 2662 (above), a foreign military aid authorization bill for the current fiscal year.

The sponsor, Sen. Dewey Bartlett (R-Okla.), said the policy of detente failed in Angola, partly because "there was not the will of our government to use any of the power that it had . . . power in the form of military aid to the side of the UNITA and the FNLA forces."

Sen. Dick Clark (D-Iowa), an opponent, said military aid to Angola should be granted publicly, and asked Bartlett: "Why would the senator not be prepared to come openly to the Congress and ask for this kind of assistance?"

Computer Finds Suicide-Prone

NEW YORK (UPI) — A computer at the University of Wisconsin was 30 per cent more accurate than doctors in spotting suicide-prone individuals among those under treatment. Furthermore, most of the patients preferred to tell the computer their problems rather than talk to doctors in live interviews. The computer interviews eliminated the prejudice or hesitation that a doctor sometimes exhibits.

Suicide is the 11th biggest cause of death in the U.S.; the second biggest among the 15 to 29 age group.

Helms voted "yea" and Morgan voted "nay."

CHILEAN AID Adopted, 48 for and 39 against, an amendment to S 2662 (above) to prohibit military sales to Chile, commercial as well as governmental. The amendment expanded upon limitations on arms sales to Chile already contained in the bill S 2662 was sent to the House.

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), the sponsor, said the rightwing regime in Chile "has imposed a repressive dictatorship . . . endorsed and permitted the use of torture against its opponents . . . ruled by decree and voided traditional due process guarantees," and thus is undeserving of U.S.

military assistance.
Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.), an opponent, said that "while I abhor violations of human rights" he does not believe that the Kennedy amendment "is appropriate to the situation, nor would it serve to improve the conditions in any way." He added that it would be perceived by Chileans as "interfering directly into matters of national sovereignty."

Helms voted "yea" and Morgan voted "nay."

Nostalgia In Radio Tapes

By JOSEPH A. REAVES
DENVER (UPI) — When things get bad on television and John Dunning can't find a good book to read, he heads to the basement of his house and listens to "Terry and the Pirates" or "Your Hit Parade."

Neatly stacked on the metal bookshelves lining Dunning's basement are 6,000 hours of radio history—whole seasons of "The Jack Benny Show," 18 hours of news coverage on D-Day, and dress rehearsals from the old "Gunsmoke" series.

"I guess if I had to put a dollar figure on the collection, it would have to be worth at least $50,000 just for the programs," said Dunning. "But I'd never sell it for that."

Dunning, a former Denver Post reporter, spends most of his time writing mystery novels and a book on old-time radio. But once a week he takes an armful of tapes from his personal library to a local station and hosts a two-hour radio nostalgia program.

"There is a group in California who would like to make a lot of trouble for guys who broadcast these shows or sell these tapes," Dunning said. "There's a question of who legally owns the rights to the tapes."

"So I keep my own show pretty limited. I just don't want any flack by going on 600 radio stations and making a big ripoff. I make enough off the radio show to pay for my costs and I'm happy."

The cost of Dunning's hobby can get pretty expensive. He started his collection by paying $10 a reel for 30 tapes back in 1965. Now he buys 200 blank reels at a time and uses one of his three tape recorders to make copies of the best programs he can find.

"I've been pretty lucky," he said. "Eventually I got hold of a guy in California who sent me tons of stuff just because he liked me."

"I'd send his stuff to some people I knew on the East Coast and they'd send me stuff which I'd pass on to my friend in California. So I'm sitting here as sort of a glorified middle man and I've been the beneficiary."

Dunning said when he first started his collection he was glad to get practically anything.

"Since then I've become really picky. I tend to think now in terms of seasons rather than single programs. People think just because the programs are old, you've got to have poor quality. That's not true. They had some really great recording techniques back then."

With that, Dunning put on a 1931 recording of Gus Arnheim and his orchestra, the band that played with Bing Crosby on his first broadcasts.

After two minutes of soft music, a nasal announcer introduces "Gus Arnheim—the star of entertainers and the entertainer of stars—playing 'I Found a Million-Dollar Baby in a Five-and-Ten-Cent Store.'"

The sound is as clear as Dunning speaking from across the room.

"See what I mean," he said.

"Some of this stuff is incredible."

Dunning's emphasis on getting only the best recordings has paid off. It got him a trip to Hollywood and a job in the movies.

"Some guy was just passing through Denver and heard my show. He called me up and asked if he could come hear some of my stuff. He liked it so much he asked me to come out to Hollywood and work on the sound track for his movie."

Dunning spent six weeks in California, dubbing the sound track for "Thieves Like Us."

"The whole thing is set with a radio playing in the background and it's all from these old tapes. I was really pleased with the way it came out."

Dunning's library is so big now he has a cross-reference file just to make sure he knew where everything was.

"I've got stuff in here, I'll probably never listen to again, but it's good to know I've got it."

Dunning said there is one radio program he's been unable to add to his collection.

"There was a show called 'I Love a Mystery' that was a classic for thriller freaks. It was done by Carlton E. Morse, the guy who wrote 'One Man's Family.' I'd love to get hold of some of those."

Dunning said a friend of a friend claimed to have 30 consecutive hours of "I Love a Mystery" recorded in 1949.

"I asked him how much the guy wanted for them. When he said $1,000, I told him 'fine, we'll take it this afternoon.' I had nine guys out on the coast who were willing to chip in $100 each and we were going to buy it right away."

The deal fell through when the guy decided to hold on to the recordings a few more years.

"I don't even know for sure he ever had them or if he just wanted to hold out for more money. That's the funny part, once these recordings get out, they're not really worth anything because everyone can get hold of them. It make for a lot of intrigue and sneaking around dark corners."

Choose 'Right' Camp For Child

NEW YORK (UPI) — Before choosing a summer camp for children, study their needs as well as the camps' emphasis, philosophy, program and methods.

The New York section of the American Camping Association recommends, among other things, asking your child how he or she feels about the camp program you are considering. In its 1976 directory, "Choosing a Camp (the right camp) for Your Child," the regional ACA office also suggests parents find out on what basis, if any, campers are accepted or restricted.

The directory is available from American Camping Association, 225 Park Ave. South, Room 742A, New York N.Y. 10003 for $1.50, including postage and handling.

COMMEMORATIVE — The U.S. Postal Service has released this design in Washington in the 1976 commemorative stamp honoring chemistry. The 13-cent stamp will be issued first in New York City on April 6. (AP Wirephoto)

Museum Built To Help Serve Handicapped

By MIKE FEINSILBER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the Fourth of July, when the Smithsonian's new Air and Space Museum opens to the public, it will be a day of liberation for America's 1.7 million blind persons and millions of more who are handicapped.

At last, a museum has been built from the ground up with them in mind.

The Apollo 11 capsule which carried men to the moon will be set on its side so people in wheelchairs can look into it.

The blind will learn the history of man's ascent into the air by following the story in raised-lined pictures, sheets of paper bearing three-dimensional images which can be read with the fingertips.

The museum's brochure will be on tape cassettes and on raised-line booklets. There will be 24 cassettes, one for each gallery, with which the blind can guide themselves with verbal instructions and commentary from exhibit to exhibit.

Deaf persons will receive written scripts of movies, puppet shows and audio-visual displays. These will have photographic annotations in the margins, so if a deaf person comes in late, he'll be able to catch up with the show by matching pictures in his booklet with those on the screen.

Persons with upper spinal injuries cannot move their heads to look up to see Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" and other aircraft hanging above their heads. So convex and concave mirrors, adopted to hook onto wheelchairs, have been devised.

Wheelchairs won't slip on the museum's carpet. There are no staircases, only ramps. The cafeteria counter is low enough for persons in wheelchairs to carry their own trays. Braille markings in the elevators enable the blind to know what button to push.

The book shop will sell taped and braille books on aerospace. Volunteer and professional guides will speak in sign language and will be "sensitized" to the needs of the handicapped through training. Seating will be adequate enough to enable elderly visitors to pace themselves.

All this is the work of Harold Snider, 28, a portly, independent, good-natured and militant blind man.

He says his goal was this: "A museum where a handicapped person will be able to enjoy himself just the same as anybody else, but in different ways. You can't look at the spacecraft, so you touch it, or you hold a model of it or a raised-line picture of it. You can't see an airplane, so you hear its engine roar."

When the world watched television to see men walk on the moon, the blind could not. So Snider thought of having a moonrock embedded in plastic so the blind could touch a piece of the moon.

He brought his ideas to Michael Collins, the former astronaut who is director of the museum. He says Collins agreed at once, saying, "We don't want to leave anyone out."

Snider, the first blind person ever hired by the Smithsonian, says he is trying to "sensitize" the institution's staff to the prejudice, discomfort and fear the handicapped often encounter.

He's fought it for a lifetime. His father, a dentist in Jacksonville, Fla., who is sighted, had to sue the Duval county school system to enable his son to attend ordinary schools.

Snider was graduated from Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service in 1969, received a master's degree from King's College in London, then worked on his Ph.D. in British history from Oxford's New College.

He met a blind British girl and married her. They have two children, David, 5, and Ellen, 2, both of whom have normal vision.

Snider says he fought for a year and a half to take the foreign service examination, but couldn't break the State Department's prejudices. Then he found the museum and his mission.

Under Snider's direction, things at the Air and Space Museum will be different. For instance, the book shop will sell the only braille and taped books available in Washington, including Michael Collins' book, "Carrying the Fire."

And — to Snider's knowledge, for the first time anywhere — the blind will be able to buy post cards illustrated with raised-line drawings to send to friends who also are blind.

Snider asks a favor from you. If you've read this, he says, tell a blind or handicapped person about the Air and Space Museum. He very much wants them to visit it.

Hidden Dangers In Home-Repair

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Epoxy and other products make home appliance repairs a cinch for many people, but there are hidden dangers.

Extension safety specialist Rollin D. Schmieder of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln urges home handymen and women to read all directions carefully before using any product.

He said dust from sanding epoxy adhesives can cause skin or lung problems. So can fiberglass. Solvents such as Benzene, Toluene and Xylene can cause dermatitis if splashed on the skin. Vaporizing liquids, varnish removers and tile glues are highly flammable, Schmieder said, but nonflammable varieties of tile glue and cement sealers are now available.

Stallings Named To Society Bd.

CHAPEL HILL — John Stallings has been elected a member of the Board of Directors of the North Carolina Society of Hospital Pharmacists for the 1976-77 term. Stallings is presently Director of Pharmacy Services at Pitt County Memorial Hospital at Greenville. He is a graduate of the School of Pharmacy of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Margo Smith's Music Success Wasn't Forced

By MARIAN FOX
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS (AP) — After Margo Smith found security, she was ready for a career in country music. But she was smart enough not to force it.

For her, other things had to come first — marriage, children and a teaching career.

"I was learning to can pickles when Brenda Lee was learning to be a superstar," she said. "But it was important for me to become a housewife and rear children."

An adopted child, Margo was reared by an aunt and uncle on an Ohio farm. She absorbed a blow at age 16 when her uncle and her real father died the same year.

"It really kind of knocked the security out from underneath me," she said. "So all I thought about was having something that I felt I could really lean on. That's one of the biggest reasons I went into teaching."

She taught kindergarten for three years and backed into song writing while looking for a way to entertain the youngsters.

"I found out when I started teaching that when I could not find a song or a poem applicable to the situation, I would write it. So I started writing poetry and songs."

In 1971, she was ready to tackle the uncertainties of a music career. She and her husband Kenneth left New Carlisle, Ohio, bound for Nashville with a fistful of songs.

"I guess the thing that gave me security about getting into the music business was that I had gotten a bit older and my husband had a secure job," she said. "I felt like I had been conservative long enough and I was going to fly."

She signed a record contract on her first trip to Music City. But it wasn't until her single, "There I Said It," was released that she knew how it felt to have a record in the top 10."

She wrote the song in 15 minutes. It was about the aunt who reared her.

Her aunt taught her to smile every day, get as much out of life as possible and be honest. The aunt said it isn't painful to tell someone you love them, "because once you said it, it becomes easy and becomes part of your personality."

"The time I wrote that song, I knew it was a hit," Margo said. "I didn't know if I could make it a hit, but if anybody listened to that song, they would know it was a hit."

She sounds a little like Teresa Brewer but isn't patterning herself after anybody.

"People tell me my phrasing is a little different, but I'm not going to change that. I'm doing what I think is me and if people can't accept that, then that's the way I want it. I don't want to be something I'm not."

Tax Rate Ended Tourist Bargain

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD
BALI, Indonesia (UPI)—Indonesia, eyeing jealously the millions of tourists who visit its Asian neighbors, wants to lure more tourist dollars to its sprawling archipelago of 13,000 islands.

Officials in the capital of Jakarta blame the scarcity of tourists on inadequate marketing techniques and plan to inundate travel agencies with brochures extolling the delights of Indonesia.

But many foreign tourists cite the toll on their wallets as the reason for shunning Indonesia.

Tourism is the life-line for many on the enchanting island of Bali located just beneath the equator.

Most tourists fall in love with the tiny island, which boasts more than 20,000 temples, spectacular scenery, wide stretches of clean beach and fascinating dance and shadow puppet theater.

Foreign tourists find Bali particularly exotic because life goes on there much as it did 1,000 years ago. Traditions run

Asks Jury Trial On Tax Claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Gloria Swanson has asked for a jury trial before the U.S. Tax Court to decide the validity of an Internal Revenue Service claim that she owes $14,000 on her 1969-70 taxes.

However, the court has never had a jury trial in its 52-year history, according to court clerk Charles S. Cassaza.

Miss Swanson's lawyer says she needs a jury because she is fighting "bureaucratic opposition deliberately designed and relentlessly pursued against her."

strong among Bali's 2.2 million people and the villages outside the realm of the island's two luxury hotels remain unspoiled.

But while Asia's "bargain centers" like Hong Kong, Singapore, Thailand and Malaysia count their visitors in the millions, only 345,000 visited all of Indonesia in 1975.

Few tourists question the fun of exploring Bali and sampling unusual dishes from the market food stalls.

But most foreign tourists complain that Bali is just too expensive.

With a hotel room tax of 26 per cent, taxes on meals, sales taxes hiking the prices of souvenirs plus a steep airport tax upon departure, tourists consider Bali anything but a bargain.

Many say that, as picturesque as the island is, other Asian resorts also offer beautiful scenery, unusual temples and village rituals at considerably lower prices.

Tourists complain of being bothered constantly by Balinese offering two-hour tours for $14 or by children teasing them to buy in their parents' shops.

Prices of Bali handicrafts of Bali — wood sculptures and colorful batiks — have also increased sharply.

"Don't you see?" explained an exasperated shop owner to a customer questioning the $15 pricetag on a wooden figure. "We have to pay the sales taxes too, plus income tax."

At Bali Airport, an American woman with empty arms commented, "I usually leave loaded down with gifts and souvenirs. But with the prices of those wood carvings, paintings and silver, the only purchases I made were postcards."

Fuel Source In Farming Kelp Is Considered

By RON HUTCHERSON
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Artificial anchors for fast-growing seaweed and in-sea irrigation with nutrient-rich water from deep beneath the ocean's surface are being evaluated as keys to improved sea farming.

The experiments involve giant kelp (Macrocystis pyrifera), the fastest growing of all plants and a possible source of fuel to help offset the energy crunch. A kelp plant can grow two feet a day and reach a length of 200 feet.

The current experiment makes use of an oversized vase — a fiberglass-covered plywood cone 30 feet deep and 15 feet across which floats in the water.

Wheeler North, a marine biologist at Caltech and the Caltech Kherkhoff Murine Laboratory at Corona del Mar, designed the cone for an experiment in a Navy program to develop new uses for kelp.

The cone floats upright and the kelp plant inside it is irrigated with nitrogen- and phosphorus-rich water pumped from the 1,000-foot level at about 200 gallons a minute.

"The surface of the open ocean is like a desert, at least to kelp," North said in reference to an idea by Prof. John Isaacs of Scripps Institution of Oceanography in San Diego that "oceans are starving and need plowing."

The theory is that most of the sea's nutrients are found in the dark, cold depths, where at 1,000 feet the concentration of nitrates is 30 times greater than in shallow water. If pumped to the warm, sun-lit surface the water can be used to speed the growth of sea plants from one-celled algae to kelp.

North's first "upwelling" experiment off Corona del Mar was hurt by a windstorm that damaged the cone and kelp, but he considered the trial a success. Despite damage, the kelp stayed healthy and grew 2.4 per cent faster than a control plant. Its survival showed the water at tested levels was not toxic.

"The growth rate was slower than we expected," North said. "But we will try the experiment again in the spring, in May or June, and we will redesign the container."

He said the next experiment will focus on perfecting the method of deep-water fertilization to further increase kelp growth. The main purpose of the initial experiment was to learn whether kelp would grow at all in deep water.

The weather also interfered with an experiment by North and Dr. Howard A. Wilcox, a physicist at the Naval Undersea Center in San Diego, to set up a kelp farm with an artificial bottom.

Kelp thrives in ocean water 20 to 80 feet deep but will not grow in water more than 130 feet deep, where the light cannot reach.

The scientists built an artificial shoal off San Clemente Island by laying out a seven-acre grid of ropes at a depth of 40 feet in water 300 feet deep. Thousands of kelp plants were fastened to the ropes.

Six months later the plants were thriving, but one corner of the mooring broke loose and the experimental kelp patch was ruined when a ship steamed through it at night.

Wilcox said a newly designed artificial shoal will be tested in April off Corona del Mar.

The research, funded by the Navy and the National Science Foundation's program for research applied to national needs, grew from the idea that kelp can be grown in sufficient quantities to provide the feedstock for an array of new industries.

One product would be methane, or natural gas, produced by fermenting kelp in vats seeded with aerobic bacteria. By-products would include ethanol (ethyl alcohol), light oils and other gaseous fuels.

Kelp already is used in making foods, medicines, cloth and other products. One of its elements is cellulose, used for making rayon, which made a comeback when the Arab oil embargo forced up prices of petroleum-based synthetics.

With ultimate success in the experiment, "the next century may see huge kelp farms over hundreds of thousands of miles in the ocean," he said.

He also predicted development of "moderate size" kelp farms in the open ocean within a decade.

He believes the kelp can be grown in enormous quantities more easily than land plants. "They grow faster and they cost less to fertilize."

The scientists visualize grids submerged 30 feet under the ocean's surface for create the sea farms. Pumps activated by waves would lift the deep sea nutrients to the plants.

Agent Books Talent For Condominium Dwellers

By MARTIN MERZER
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Have you heard the one about the borscht-belt talent agent who traveled south and struck it rich producing shows for thousands of condominium dwellers?

It's no joke. Several agents and producers are booking hundreds of shows a week — including small dance combos, road versions of Broadway shows and veteran headliners such as Sid Caesar and Phil Silvers — for residents of what is called "the high-rise, borscht-belt south."

"This is very much like the borscht circuit," said agent

Guy Barry, referring to the almost legendary tours of hotels, bungalow colonies and almost any place else in New York's Catskill Mountains where more than two people gathered and paid for up-and-coming or down-and-fading comics and singers.

"Within two years, this will surpass anything the borscht belt ever was," Barry said. "The acts can depend on this area because we have a 12-month season. Audiences are here all year around, not just the summer like in the Catskills."

When vaudeville began declining in the 1930s and '40s, the Catskill region took on added importance as a training ground for young entertainers, and as a place where oldtimers could still make a buck.

Such luminaries as Jerry Lewis, Danny Kaye and Buddy Hackett were among the scores of headliners who began their careers by entertaining the primarily Jewish audiences who each summer retreated to the area, about 100 miles northwest of New York City.

Borscht is a Russian food, and many of the Jews were Russian immigrants. Thus the name "borscht belt."

But in the late 1960s, the region's hotels began losing large numbers of steady customers who had retired and bought condominium apartments in Florida.

So the agents, and their entertainers, followed.

"It's exactly like the Catskills, only here you don't have the bad roads and the weather's a lot better," said Audre Breen, who along with partner Jerry Grant runs one of the largest production outfits in the area.

"Many of our entertainers who are still working the Catskills take runs of 10 days or so here as a working vacation," she said. "They bring the kids down, and maybe visit with the grandparents."

Grant, who likes to play down the borscht-belt comparison because "we bring talent to all ethnic groups here, not just the Jewish-oriented places," said a headliner such as Sid Caesar, Rosemary Clooney or Norm Crosby can earn more than $10,000 for a 10-day tour.

While most agents sell the show to condominium associations, which then decide how much to charge each resident, Grant offers to take the risk of a low turn-out in return for the whole purse.

"We bring the show into the building's recreation center and charge $3 per ticket," said Grant. "We take the gamble that not enough people will show up."

The odds are helped by the fact that, for a show featuring a headliner, the center must have at least 500 seats.

Abandonment Of Baby Charged

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — A divorced woman has been charged with child abandonment as the alleged mother of a 4-year-old girl found in a paper bag.

The child, found nine days ago, is reported in good health. She has been placed in a foster home by the Caldwell County Department of Social Services. She was found in the driveway of a home.

Carolyn Younce Brown, 31, a furniture worker and divorced mother of two children, turned herself in to police Tuesday and was charged with the misdemeanor of abandonment, authorities said. She was released under bond of $300 for a hearing March 23 in state District Court.

Conviction would make her liable to six months in jail, a $500 fine, or both.

ace of clubs revealed the unfortunate break. Declarer passed the ten of clubs to East's jack, and all would have been well had East routinely returned a heart. However, East realized that dummy's queen of hearts, combined with the other high card in the suit which South had to have for his bid, constituted a certain stopper, so he cast about for greener pastures. He shifted to the ten of spades, and four tricks in that suit spelled a one-trick defeat.

There was only about a one in twenty chance that East would hold all four missing clubs, so South might count himself unlucky for going down. However, this department faults his play technique—South could have brought home his contract.

The fact that there is only a remote possibility of a certain distribution existing does not mean that it cannot exist. And if you can protect against it at little or no cost, why not do so?

North-South conducted a classic auction to reach their optimum spot. After West's overall was passed round to him, South reopened the auction with a double to show his strength. Since North had not yet bid, this was for takeout. North showed his fine suit by jumping to three clubs—in view of the fact that he could take no action over West's overall, he had already denied possession of a reasonable hand. With a good fit for his partner's suit and a potential double stopper in the enemy suit, South converted to three no trump.

West's opening heart lead ran to South's jack, and the Declarer cannot expect to make more than two tricks in the opponents' suit, and West surely held the king of hearts for his overall. Therefore, declarer should have played dummy's queen of hearts at trick one. Then he should have used this entry to the table to lead a club to his ten. Even if this trick lost to the jack in West's hand, the contract would be secure. The king of spades was safe from attack, and no matter what West returned, declarer was sure of at least five club tricks and four tricks in the red suits.

Ask Inquiry 'Tiptoeing' Toward A Machinegun Purchase

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)—The Virginia Marine Resources Commission has voted to ask Gov. Mills Godwin to request a congressional investigation of the recent oil spill in the lower Chesapeake Bay.

The action came Tuesday at the request of commission member Russell C. Scott of Richmond. The vote was 4-2.

In calling for the probe, Scott said that because of the potential ecological impact of the estimated 250,000 gallons of spilled oil, "I find it hard to see how, as a commission, we can remain neutral."

Last week the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, headquartered in Annapolis, Md., sent a telegram to Rep. Thomas N. Downing, D-Va., calling for a federal investigation. Downing's office has reported that Congress asked the Coast Guard for a report on the oil spill.

But Scott said that was not enough, expressing concern that the Coast Guard may be guilty of violation of certain regulations in the handling of the spill.

"If the Coast Guard is derelict," he said, "then the Coast Guard might not be enthusiastic about an investigation."

Scott emphasized that a congressional inquiry could ask questions of the Coast Guard "that you and I can ask, but we won't get any answers."

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is tiptoeing toward a decision on a relatively small machinegun purchase with potentially major foreign implications as well as political implications for President Ford.

Competing for selection are a gun made by the Maremont Corp., a U.S. firm in Maine, and a more costly weapon made in Belgium.

Belgian officials are applying pressure to the Pentagon to purchase the European weapon, recalling the Belgian agreement to buy U.S.-made fighter planes instead of aircraft made by France.

In Maine, where hundreds of jobs at Maremont's plant may hang in the balance, there are reports saying that a deal has been made with Belgium but that the announcement is being withheld because of fears it will hurt Ford's chances in today's presidential primary in New Hampshire.

Maine Gov. James Longley said Ford repeatedly had assured him there is no "secret deal" with Belgium.

Longley met with Ford on Monday and said after the meeting that he has "continued optimism" that Maremont will get the Army contract. He said he received assurances there would be discussions in the next two days between federal officials and Maremont officials.

The Maine congressional delegation already has been putting pressure on the Pentagon, and Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., has publicly insisted the Army buy the Maremont gun, which he says would cost about $800 less per unit than its Belgian competitor.

But defense sources say the Belgian MAG58 has shown itself to be far better than Maremont's M60 in tests conducted by the Army. They say the Belgian gun is likely to be chosen.

Still, the Army claims it has not yet made up its mind and that it is "still considering available options which would affect unit cost."

The competition grows out of the Army's need for a new machinegun to replace a tank weapon that has a tendency to jam frequently. Army officials said the present gun's unreliability was underscored when it was fired by Israeli soldiers during the 1973 Mideast war.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Upsetting conditions can be turned to your advantage if you realize it's possible. Be alert to any new arrangements in the office and be willing to let go of crystallized conditions which have served their purpose. Accept changing conditions philosophically.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't rely on good friends today as they are too busy. Get personal matters working in a different direction for best results later.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle business conscientiously or you could lose the backing you now enjoy. Pay bills promptly, or it could cost more.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Analyze your interests. A new contact could give you suggestions that are not good for you. Take them under advisement.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to take care of any obligations. Know what your true position is with mate and improve it now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study well whatever changes your associates suggest, since they may be good. But keep mum yourself for the time being.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan more modern means for handling work load and get better results. Take treatments for physical fitness, strength.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't go in for expensive recreation that you can't afford and which would not be satisfying, anyway. Keep calm; don't argue.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Exercise care at home to avoid serious arguments. If some new interest appeals to you have all facts straight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may be misinformed about something and could go off half-cocked in anger, so recheck first. Study bills for accuracy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Much study is needed before you start some plan to improve property or assets. Set up a more suitable budget. Happy p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study appearance before venturing out and you get good results. A group affair could prove most helpful, bring advancement.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't permit others to impose on you. Be happy, more independent. Use only your finest judgment since hunches may be off base.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those modern era children with many new and radical ideas, so should be taught early to check them first with bigwigs before putting into action. Otherwise, much trouble could develop instead of the great success that can be achieved through mature judgment. Teach to conform to existing conditions first, even as a small child, since few will really understand your precocious progeny. Religious education early, also.

'Symptoms' Of Too Much TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — You've been watching way too much television lately if you:
—Can't recall whether Walter Cronkite, John Chancellor or Harry Reasoner won last night's New Hampshire primary.
—Have seen John Wayne doing an impression of Rich Little.
—Was thrilled at CBS' plans for live coverage of Muhammad Ali's next title fight, against Mason Reese (the commercials start at 9 p.m. EST, the bout an hour and 55 minutes later).
—Shrug when the television reporter asks the badly injured accident victim, "Can you tell us how you felt when the train hit your bicycle?"
—Watch a Saturday afternoon commercial, obediently pick up the phone as the announcer says, "Now, here's where to call..." and wind up wondering why you paid $6.95 for 20 old Teresa Brewer records.
—Believe the Public Broadcasting Service is made possible by a grant from the British Broadcasting Corporation.
—Quiet down during those dog food commercials where a coyote howls and Lorne Green whispers, "Shh! Listen! Listen!"
—Have seen the "American Academy of Humor Awards," "The People's Choice Awards," and "The American Music Awards" but still plan to watch the "Academy of Country Music Awards" as well as the shows handing out Tony, Grammy, Emmy and Oscar awards.
—Haven't heard rumors ABC will radically alter its summer Olympics show by televising every event live and in sequence while Jim McKay describes every event on tape and of sequence. To heighten interest, Curt Gowdy reportedly will cover Pierre Salinger.

—Don't wonder why studio audiences don't hold up signs saying "Clap! Clap!" when the studio sign overhead flashes "Please Applaud."
—Think "Rich Man, Poor Man" is a spin-off situation comedy about the Six Million Dollar Man's first and second visit to the Internal Revenue Service.

But seriously, folks, commercial television's rerun season is drawing nigh and you might give some thought to trying some new wares public television will be offering from March 7 through March 22.

The specials, 22 in all, will be during PBS' "Festival '76," when local stations hold fundraising drives and try to make viewers more aware of public television.
