No Charges Filed

LUMBERTON, N.C. AP — No charges have been filed in the wake of a two truck accident Thursday which killed Ronnie Lee Blanks, 16, of Lumberton.

Blanks died when his pickup truck collided with a fire truck driven by Robert Dewey Ivey, Jr., 16, of Rt. 8, Lumberton.

Donald Banks, 20, brother of the dead man, was hospitalized in satisfactory condition in Fayetteville, while Ivey is hospitalized in Lumberton.

Ivey was driving a North Woods Volunteer Fire Department truck to a grass fire when the accident occurred on a rural paved road near Lumberton.

A coroner's inquest is pending into the accident next week.

Medical Certificate Denied

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — State and federal officials have denied the Forsyth County Mental Health Department's inpatient unit at Reynolds Health Center certification for Medicare and Medicade reimbursements.

And officials of the county department say the denial could cost them as much as $100,000 this year.

Dr. George E. Hamilton Jr., area mental health director, said he was informed of the denial Friday, following an all-day review of the center Thursday conducted by the North Carolina Division of Facility Services.

State and federal inspectors making the review said they found "a whole list of deficiencies" in the program, including a local of a registered nurse on every shift and a lack of 24-hour-a-day emergency lab services.

Commission Defends Oversight

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Utilities Commission has defended its oversight of the electric power industry and given the people an example.

Chairman Marvin Wooten told a legislative committee Friday that the commission has done its best to force the power companies to justify every bit of the large rate increases they have won with regularity in the past few years.

Would Be Harder To Sue

RALEIGH (AP)—Patients would find it harder to sue their doctors under a package of mild reforms endorsed Friday by a North Carolina legislative study commission.

The General Assembly will be asked to enact the proposals when it meets in May. The changes did not include some of the more sweeping changes recommended to the commission.

N.C. Jobless Rate Rose

RALEIGH (AP)—Unemployment figures indicate that North Carolina's economy is not recovering very quickly from the recession of 1975.

The state Employment Security Commission reported Friday that the jobless rate in January rose to 8 per cent, the second consecutive monthly increase.

The commission noted that the unemployment rate always goes up in January because of seasonal job terminations. And it said that the January, 1975 rate was 11.5 per cent.

But this January's rate was the second highest on record for a January. It represents 195,000 people out of work. A year ago, there were 287,000 people out of work.

Nine Sentenced, Fined

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Nine persons who pleaded guilty to charges of illegally redeeming food stamps were given suspended sentences and ordered to pay fines ranging from $300 to $800 by a U.S. Magistrate.

Charges against one clerk were dropped, and five other persons will stand trial in March or April after pleading not guilty to the charges at a hearing Friday.

The 15 persons— grocery store owners, managers and clerks — were charged Feb. 19 with illegally redeeming food stamps for such nonessential items as liquor, cigarettes, jewelry and beer. By law, food stamps can be redeemed only for essential food items.

Opposes Amendments

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (UPI) — The North Carolina American party said Saturday it opposes two constitutional amendments and a $43 million university bond issue on the March 23 ballot.

Moore's Creek Commemorated

CURRIE, N.C. (UPI) — About 6,000 persons gathered Saturday to mark the 200th anniversary of the battle of Moore's Creek, a three-minute skirmish historians say thwarted British plans of an early conquest of the South in the Revolutionary War.

The crowd, many of them riding school buses from parking lots set up six miles away, gathered at Moore's Creek National Military Park just southwest of here where a band of patriots turned back a force of loyalists at widow Moore's bridge.

For 16 Campus System

Board Of Governors Ratifies Growth Limits

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)— Dr. Leo Jenkins thinks that "marginally qualified" high school students may have to turn to private schools or community colleges to continue their education.

Jenkins' comment came after the University of North Carolina Board of Governors ratified enrollment growth limits for the 16-campus system. The limits have forced some schools to raise their entrance requirements.

The board resolution would hold the entire system to a growth of 3½ per cent for the 1976-77 school year, about half the rate of growth in recent years. Some campuses would be virtually frozen at current enrollment levels while others would have some room to continue growing.

President William Friday said the system could no longer allow some campuses to enroll hundreds more students than their budgets provided for and then seek additional appropriations for them.

Friday said the downturn in the economy has caused the legislature to cut back on appropriations growth. At the same time, many youngsters are finding college an attractive alternative to an uncertain job market.

Jenkins, the chancellor at East Carolina University, said the limits on public university enrollment might not be a bad thing. He noted that some students might decide to apply to private colleges, which have had trouble filling all their spaces.

Jenkins' own ECU has raised the admissions standards for the freshman class that will enter school next year, according to Dr. Jack Horne of the admissions office.

The higher standards should cut the freshman class from 2,000 to 2,500 students, allowing the total university enrollment to stay well within the Board of Governors' limit of 10,500. Current enrollment is 10,370.

Horne said that a high school student needed a combination of grades and Scholastic Aptitude Test scores that combined to predict a 1.5 grade average in his freshman year to gain admission to ECU in previous years. Next year's freshman will need a record that predicts a 1.6.

Horne said that roughly speaking, a student with a combined score of 800 on the SAT and a scholastic ranking in the top half of his class would qualify now at ECU. Last year's standards were slightly lower.

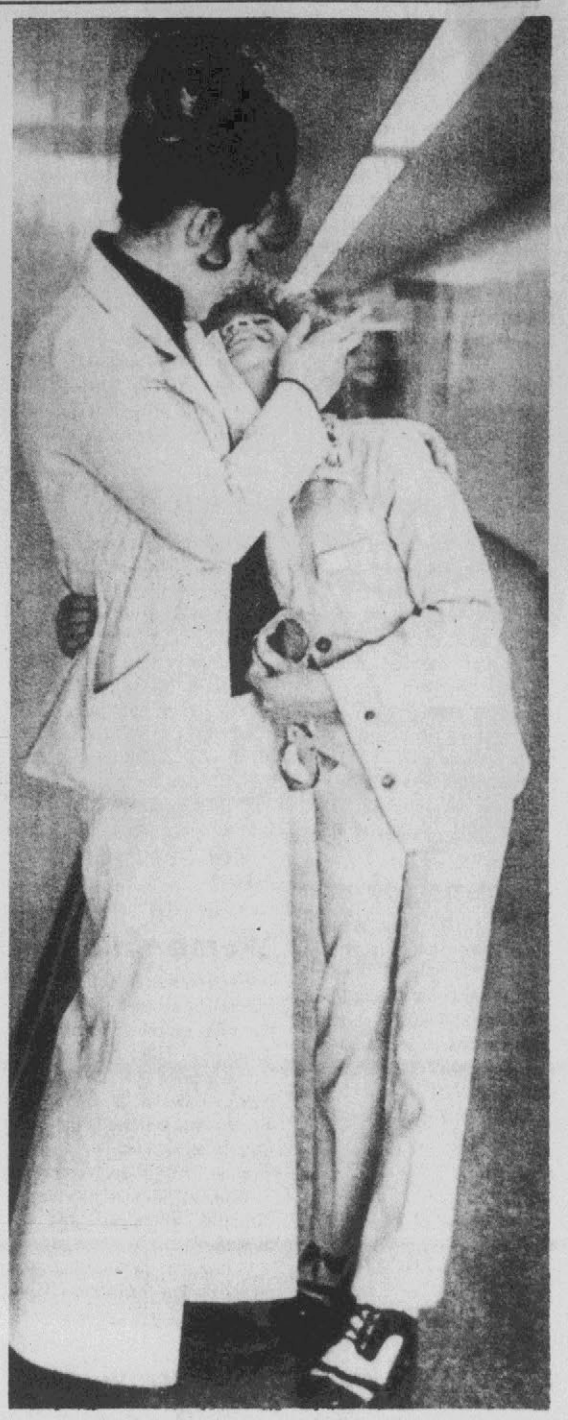

He noted that higher grades in high school or a higher class standing could make up for lower SAT scores. Higher SAT scores could make up for lower high school grades.

North Carolina State at Raleigh is another school which has consistently enrolled more students than its budget provided for. The school now has 14,768 students and a budget calling for 13,205 students.

A spokesman for State, Dr. Tom Stafford, said the school had already decided to raise standards for new students in 1976-77. High school seniors will need a record that predicts a 2.0 to gain admission. Last year's standard was 1.8. Transfer students will need a 2.5 average instead of a 2.0 in their current school.

Stafford estimated that 700 students who could have entered State in previous years will not be admitted this year because of the higher standards. State must restrict next year's enrollment to a maximum of 14,960.

The chancellor at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, Dr. D.W. Colvard, said his campus is not raising entrance requirements. It may, he said, shut off enrollment to some divisions if it comes up against the enrollment limit. The limit, however, allows UNC-C to grow from 6,100 to 7,020 students next year.

American Businessman Kidnaped In Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Venezuelan police launched a nationwide manhunt Saturday for the kidnapers of American businessman William Niehous, who was drugged and dragged from his home in full view of his wife and three teenaged sons.

No ransom demands had been made so far, police said.

Authorities said seven masked gunmen, two of them wearing army uniforms, burst into Niehous's home Friday night in the capital's exclusive Prados del Este neighborhood.

They tied up his wife Donna, their sons Mark, David and Craig and the family maid, and ordered the 45-year-old executive to accompany them.

When he refused, they injected him with a sleep-inducing drug and dragged him from the house into one of two waiting getaway cars and roared off, police said.

The maid managed to free herself and alerted neighbors, who called police.

Niehous, a Toledo, Ohio native, is vice president of Owens Illinois of Venezuela, a glass-manufacturing company.

Interior Minister Octavio Lepage placed all police units on a full alert and set up a joint command from the kidnap and political police bureaus to handle the case.

Police said they did not know if the kidnaping was the work of political radicals or common criminals but noted the gunmen ransacked the house and stole an estimated $200 in Venezuelan currency.

Pre-School Census Forms Going Out

Information on pre-school census and registration for kindergarten and first grade students for the Greenville City Schools during school year 1976-77 has been announced by Charles W. Ross, Director, Elementary Education.

Beginning Monday, letters and forms will be given children to take home to their parents. Forms are to be filled out and returned to the various elementary schools. Parents are being asked to check with friends and neighbors who have incoming kindergartners or first graders to see if they, too, have have received a copy of the preschool cenus-registration form.

Parents of any eligible child who does not receive a form are asked to check with the City School Office, 431 West Fifth Street or with the principal of any elementary school to get a form.

For parents with children currently enrolled in kindergarten classes, it will not be necessary to complete a form.

To be eligible to attend kindergarten during the 1976-77 school year, a child must be five years old on or before October 15, 1976.

To be eligible to attend the first grade, a child must be six years old on or before October 15, 1976.

Ross explains that completed forms can be returned to any elementary school and that the forms will be sent to the school in which the child will be enrolled.

For those who return forms, information will be sent to them during the month of April about the preschool orientation program scheduled to be held on April 29.

Wants Image Restored

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's All Nippon Airways said Saturday it has demanded Lockheed Aircraft Corp. take immediate steps to restore ANA's public image as well as that of Lockheed TriStar jetplanes.

A former Lockheed official testified before a U.S. congressional subcommittee that the company spent more than $12 million to promote the sale of its planes in Japan, some of which allegedly was used to bribe politicians and other prominent Japanese.

The scandal has blown up into the hottest political issue Prime Minister Takeo Miki's government has faced since its inauguration in December, 1974.

ANA, Japan's major domestic airline which operates 16 Lockheed widebodied TriStars, said its demand was made in a note sent to Lockheed by ANA President Tokuji Wakasa.

The note called for "immediate and all necessary measures (by Lockheed) to restore the public trust in our company and the image of TriStars," company officials said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thomas Gates, the last secretary of defense in the Eisenhower administration, is President Ford's choice to head the U.S. liaison office in Peking, according to government sources.

The Political Trail

Ford

Ford branded Communist Cuba an "international outlaw" for sending a 12,000-man expeditionary force to Angola, and warned Premier Fidel Castro against armed agression in the Western Hemisphere.

The audience broke into cheers of "Viva Ford," and women hugged and kissed him when he stepped from the podium to mingle with the crowd.

Ford's campaign schedule took him from Florida's east coast to the retiree havens of the west coast for an overnight stop. He takes on another grueling campaign schedule today.

Reagan

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan lashed out at the Ford Administration Saturday and, as have many of the Democratic contenders, said he would not keep Henry Kissinger as secretary of state.

"If I am elected president of the United States, I will name my own cabinet and that will include a new secretary of state," Reagan said.

Reagan, speaking to a half-filled baseball park that seats 3,400 persons, said the State Department has deceived the American people about the Panama Canal.

He said there are reports the United States will recognize Panama's sovereignty over the canal.

Wallace

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace edged out former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter in South Carolina Democratic precinct caucuses Saturday, but party leaders backing an uncommitted delegation to the national convention were the big winners.

With 81.5 per cent of the state's 1,670 precincts reporting, 46.2 per cent of the delegates to the county conventions were uncommitted.

Wallace, who had visited four South Carolina cities in the days leading up to the precinct caucuses had 3,259 delegates or 27.7 per cent of the total. Carter had 2,880 delegates or 24.5 per cent.

Carter

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter moved far ahead of other presidential hopefuls in Oklahoma's Democratic county conventions Saturday, but half of the delegates chosen were committed to no one.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, armed with a poll showing him slightly leading Gov. George Wallace, said Saturday his drive to the Democratic presidential nomination cannot be stopped if he wins the Florida primary.

Udall

BOSTON (UPI) — Backers of Democrat Morris Udall summoned undecided liberals to the Arizona congressman's banner Saturday with warnings the Massachusetts primary Tuesday is the "last chance" to elect a progressive president in 1976.

A spokesman for one of Udall's liberal rivals called the effort a "desperation move."

Byrd

RICHMOND (UPI) — Presidential hopeful Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., Saturday called Richard M. Nixon's trip to China an indication of a "vacuum at the White House."

Byrd said Nixon's expected debriefing in Washington shows President Ford is "very hard-up for foreign policy.

"A man who caused one of the greatest constitutional crises in American history, who put this nation through months of trauma with lies and coverups, who bred distrust for government at all levels of American society is now carrying on high level conversations with a foreign power," Byrd said at Jefferson-Jackson Day activities.

Rio Carnival Underway

By ROBERT E. SULLIVAN

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Thousands of costumed "sambistas" whirled and gyrated in drum-led marches down the streets of Rio Saturday, opening the four-day carnival of samba and song early.

Officially, the carnival opens near midnight, when King Momo, the roly-poly monarch of carnival happiness, swaggers his blubber down the main avenue and announces, "Let the merry-making begin."

But thousands of samba dancers from The Black Ball, a Rio social club, poured into the city's central Avenida Rio Branco early in the morning to the beat of a battery of drums.

The city's streets were given over to small samba schools Saturday night and the rich flew into Rio for a $60-a-ticket costume ball at a suburban hotel.

The major event of the carnival is Sunday night's 14-hour parade of the major samba "schools" or associations of devotees of the African-based dance.

Members of the 14 top samba schools, mostly poor blacks from Rio's hilltop shanty towns, have practiced all year for their presentation, which includes mini-plays.

The average cost of the colorful, spangled costumes, according to a magazine research project, is more than $43—in a city where the minimum monthly wage is $57.

Man Claims To Be Lindbergh's Son

By MICHAEL SHORT
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — A factory worker from Maine says he is the son of Charles A. Lindbergh kidnaped 44 years ago and can prove it in court.

If his story is true, it means Bruno Hauptmann, electrocuted in 1936 after one of the most celebrated trials of the century, was executed for a murder that may not have been committed.

Lawyers for Kenneth W. Kerwin filed a petition in Circuit Court this week on Maui Island, where Lindbergh died in 1974 and where his estate is in probate. The brief petition asks that Kerwin be declared one of the aviator's heirs.

Kerwin "has had a pathetic life and has had only a third-grade education" said his attorney, Robert W. Bryan of Birmingham, Ala. "But he never mentioned money to me, only getting this straightened out."

Court records list the value of the Lindbergh estate at less than $300,000 and name survivors including five children and the widow, author Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

Lindbergh family members and spokesmen were not available for comment on the suit.

Kerwin's lawyers refused to disclose his whereabouts, saying only that he lived in the Northeast United States. News reporters in Maine said Kerwin worked for a sportswear company in Springvale, Maine, but that he is currently vacationing at an unknown location.

The Portland, Maine, Press Herald said Kerwin has lived in the Biddeford-Sanford area, which includes Springvale, for several years.

The newspaper quoted one area resident, Bernard Gaines Sr., as saying that Kerwin used to come into a local bar and talk about being the Lindbergh child.

"I have no doubt he's Charles Lindbergh's son," said Gaines. "He's so sincere. ... All he wants out of life is his true identity."

Kerwin once worked at a textile mill in Biddeford and was employed last summer as a clown at a local amusement park, the newspaper said.

Kerwin's lawyers disclosed few details about their case, but they said it is based on more than 500 pages of documentary evidence.

Bryan said that after being kidnaped the Lindbergh baby was reared in New England as the son of a couple named Kerwin. In 1948, Bryan said, the Kerwins told the boy who he really was. Neither Meeker nor Bryan would say what had become of the Kerwin couple.

Kerwin tried unsuccessfully several times in the 1950s and 1960s to get in touch with the Lindberghs, Bryan said.

Charged In Rape

BURLINGTON, N. C. (AP) — A former Burlington policeman has been arrested and charged with rape in an alleged attack on a young black woman he reportedly stopped for traffic investigation.

Police said Edna Leath, 25, appeared at a magistrate's office Friday and swore out a warrant against Michael D. Sykes, charging him with the alleged attack a week previously.

Sykes, who is white, resigned from the police force Tuesday, after a city investigation was launched following the woman's complaint of the attack to the police department.

Charlotte Medics To Guatemala

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Staff members of a Charlotte clinic left Saturday for earthquake-ravaged Guatemala with $30,000 worth of medical supplies paid for largely by donations from North and South Carolina.

The staff from the Heineman Medical Center carried 39 boxes of supplies, including surgical instruments and bandages, for delivery to the Central American nation's ministry of public health.

A center spokesman said the drive had collected more than $12,400.

Medical supply companies throughout the country donated another $18,000-worth of supplies, the spokesman said.

"This is all critically needed materials," said Bill Proveromo, administrative assistant at the Heineman Center.

"This is material they have not received in the normal relief supply."

Proveromo, one of three staffers to make the trip, said supplies would be flown from Miami to Guatemala City for free aboard Avia Teca Airlines.

He said the staff expected to return in about a week with a list of supplies still needed by the Guatemalans.

In addition to the medical supplies, some 28 tons of food have already been collected by the WSOC relief drive and sent to Guatemala, a station official said.

The drive began three weeks after the Feb. 4 earthquake which killed an estimated 22,000 persons and injured about 74,000.

Final Day Lecture For Nixon

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor

TSUNG HUA, China (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, veteran of the finger-punching kitchen debate with late Soviet premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, got a lecture on communism from a Chinese farmer Saturday on the last day of his visit to China.

Nixon, who has been attended by a Chinese doctor and followed by an ambulance on part of his tour of southern China because of fatigue and recurring pain in his leg, was buoyed and appeared revived by the largest welcome he ever received in China upon his arrival in Canton earlier.

The former President and his wife Pat spent the last night of his controversial visit in this hot spring resort, about 50 miles from Canton.

Tens of thousands of students and workers crowded around Nixon and his wife along the route from Canton's White Cloud airport to a guest house. Secret Service agents and Chinese security men had to extricate them from the throngs. At one point, Nixon almost fell down.

After he was moved a few yards away from the waving and applauding crowd, the largest ever to greet him in China, Nixon turned to one of his interpreters and said: "How do you say 'thank you'?"

Nixon then raised his hands in a "V" sign and shouted: "Hsieh! Hsieh!"

The crowd applauded and yelled even louder and it was with obvious reluctance that Nixon entered his limousine

Guards Sold Marijuana To Prisoners

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A senior prison official says there have been instances in the past of guards selling marijuana to state prison inmates, but says it isn't going on now.

W.C. Brown, director of the North Piedmont area of the state Corrections Department, said Friday that he has fired three prison employes in the last four years for allegedly selling the drug to prisoners.

Brown's remarks came in response to charges by a young inmate, 21-year-old Belvin Wagner, that prisoners in some state prison units obtain marijuana from other prisoners and guards.

Wagner made the statements after pleading guilty to charges of selling marijuana while on work release.

Brown said Wagner would be taken off work release and transferred from the Forsyth Advancement Center to the Caswell County prison unit.

Proposes $2 Trillion Investment

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, is proposing a $20 billion public works program to create jobs and a $2 trillion investment by government and private industry in energy development.

He does not have specifics on where he would get the money or what the impact would be on the nation's deficit.

Protestant Rioting Flares

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Protestant youths roamed the streets Saturday, hijacking autos and buses and setting off bomb scares. A Protestant group said it kidnaped the brother of the city jail warden.

It was the second day of the worst flareup of Protestant rioting in nearly two years and was in protest against Britain's intention to abolish special privileges for convicted Protestant gunmen in jail.

In an apparent revenge attack for the killing of a Protestant guard at a pub 24 hours earlier, gunmen sprayed the Roman Catholic side of the Ormeau road with submachine gun fire Saturday afternoon. Police said two persons were critically injured and another lightly wounded as their automobiles drove into the line of fire.

French Party's Independence

MOSCOW (UPI) — In an outspoken declaration of independence from Moscow, the French Communist party Saturday joined a growing list of Western parties asserting the right to create their own form of communism respecting democratic freedoms.

The speech by French delegate Gaston Plissonier at the end of the first week of the 25th Soviet party congress emphasized a widening Soviet rift with comrades in France, Italy and Britain that has the Kremlin worried.

Italian Party's Independence

ROME (UPI) — One of the founding fathers of Italian communism said Saturday Stalinism and contempt of human rights are still very much alive in the Soviet Union.

In a magazine interview 24 hours after Italian party chief Enrico Berlinguer reasserted the party's independence in a Moscow speech, Sen. Umberto Terracini said Italian Communists are not afraid of Soviet criticism.

Spain Cedes Western Sahara

EL AYUN, Western Sahara (UPI) — Spain formally ceded the Western Sahara to Morocco and Mauritania Saturday, but independence fighters declared a desert war for the phosphate-rich territory.

Invoking the name of Allah, Algerian-backed guerrillas Friday proclaimed creation of an independent republic and vowed to repulse Moroccan and Mauritanian "invaders."

Unions In Busing Protest

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — About 1,000 demonstrators participated Saturday in a four-mile march sponsored by Union Labor Against Busing, protesting court ordered busing in the Jefferson County school system.

Some traffic backups were reported when police blocked off one lane of a main highway for the march, staged by the coalition of more than 70 union locals.

Deplores News Reportage

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI deplored biased and superficial news reporting today in a special audience for the foreign press.

The 78-year-old pontiff, receiving more than 200 journalists for the first time in nearly four years, called careless journalism "a form of intellectual violence, which in the end boomerangs against those who practice it."

Budget Analysis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An analysis by the Congressional Budget Office shows how to cut $7.5 billion from next year's defense budget, and even larger amounts from future budgets, making more money available for social programs.

The impartial, nonpartisan analysis—offering options for hawks as well as doves—also shows how to boost defense appropriations $8.1 billion above President Ford's request for the coming year and to push it even higher in subsequent years.

Delighted By Postponement

RALEIGH (AP)—Spokesmen for consuming groups say they are delighted with the Federal Power Commission's decision to postpone and reduce higher wholesale electricity rates sought by Carolina Power and Light Co.

CP&L is asking the FPC to raise by an average of 35 per cent the rates it charges to cities and rural coops which buy power wholesale and resell it to retail customers. It had asked permission to start the new rates on March 1.

But the FPC Friday suspended the rates until May 1 and ordered CP&L to refile its request with lower rates. The commission said CP&L improperly had asked for money to reimburse it for income tax charges. CP&L incurs the taxes on paper but actually defers payment on them because of construction allowances in the tax laws.

The lower rates should save the cities about $7.8 million in the next year, said Marshall Lancaster, executive director of the Electricities of North Carolina.

They will take effect on May 1. The extra revenue will be collected under bond, which means that CP&L would have to refund it if the commission eventually decided against the increase request.

Hugh Wells of the North Carolina Electric Membership Corp. said he was pleased with the FPC action but disappointed that the effective date for the new rates was not postponed longer than May 1.

Wells said he expects it will be August or September before the FPC can hold hearings on the increase.

Both he and Lancaster said their groups would continue to fight the increase [illegible]st.

6,000 Plastic Toys Seized

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)— In about a month, 6,000 Mickey Mouses and Donald Ducks worth $1 apiece are expected to be destroyed.

U.S. Customs officials and the U.S. Attorney's office in South Carolina say the inflatable plastic figures of the popular cartoon characters are unauthorized copies of copyrighted material. The flattened toys have been in storage at Charleston since they arrived from Taiwan 2½ years ago.

Marine Recruit Killed In Charlotte Incident

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A young U.S. Marine recruit on his way to basic training died Friday after being hit on the head with a nightstick during a scuffle with police at Charlotte's airport.

Authorities identified the young Marine as Kenneth M. Brown, 18, of Camden, New Jersey, one of a group of about 25 recruits on their way to the Marine training base at Parris Island, S.C.

Charlotte police chief J.C. Goodman said the altercation started when Brown refused to go through a security metal detector in the airport's west wing.

Goodman said an airport security guard then summoned three nearby Charlotte policemen, and Brown grabbed a revolver from the holster of one of the officers.

He said Brown attempted to fire the gun once but was unable too because its owner — officer R.L. Stinson — always keeps one chamber of the pistol empty.

Brown was apparently then hit in the ensuing struggle by the three officers to regain control of the gun, according to Goodman and eyewitnesses.

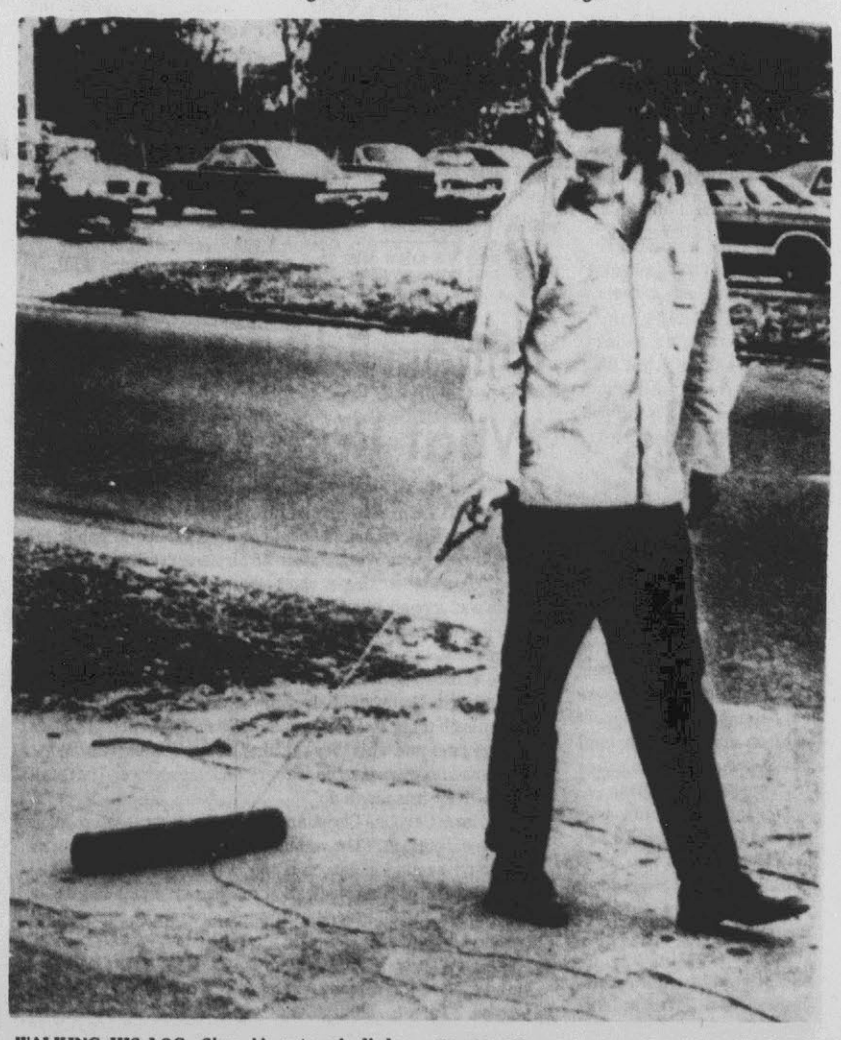

Three Youths Die In Wreck

DILLSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Three young Sylva men died early today when their car ran off a bridge and plunged into the Tuckasegee River in Jackson County, officers reported.

The victims were identified as Wayne Hutchins, 25, Gene Hoyle, 20, and Wilfred Virgil Ledford Jr., 14.

The Jackson County Sheriff's Department said the accident occurred about 12:30 a.m. Deputies said the vehicle ran off a narrow, winding road along the river bank and plunged into the water.

One body was found in the car and the others were recovered from the river about 7:20 a.m.

Proper Use of Thermostats Can Save Energy . . . Save Money

First, a definition:

A thermostat is simply a heat sensing device that automatically turns equipment on or off. But it's how you use it that determines either efficient energy control or wasted energy and money.

Thermostats are used on heating equipment, appliances and air conditioners. Here are a few tips on use of your heating thermostat:

- Find the lowest daytime setting at which you are comfortable and keep the thermostat at that setting.
- Don't use your thermostat as a switch — turning it up and down all day.
- Turn the heating thermostat down five degrees at night.
- Close the door to unused rooms and turn off the heat in those rooms using either the vent or the thermostat.
- Large crowds will heat your home, so turn the thermostat down 30 to 40 minutes before your guests arrive. Drop it another few degrees when they come. This avoids wasting heat by opening a door or window to let body heat escape.
- When away from home for 24 hours or more, turn your central heating system thermostat down to the lowest setting, ideally 52 degrees.
- Never turn a heating thermostat completely off when leaving your home in winter for a few days. A sudden cold snap could cause your pipes to freeze and burst.
- If you choose to open a bedroom window at night, close your bedroom door so the cold air doesn't hit the thermostat and cause the rest of the house to overheat.

Might Well Quit Primary List

Where do we go with the presidential primaries?

The New Hampshire primary is behind us now and only 29 or so more states will go through this ludicrous exercise between now and convention time in mid-summer.

North Carolina's presidential primary is in March. The most constructive thing that could come out of it, in our judgment, is for the people of the state to decide to get out of this silly presidential primary rat-race once and for all.

In these primaries across the country scores of presidential hopefuls are spending millions of dollars in the pre-convention popularity contests. In addition, the states themselves are putting additional millions of tax dollars into cranking up their election machinery for the special presidential primaries.

For the most part, delegates gained by the candidates in these primaries provide little more than a base from which to work when it comes to the national party conventions. Even the convention delegates committed to a particular candidate by their state's primaries, more often than not, are permitted to switch their votes to other contenders after the first one or two ballots on the convention floor.

The choosing of a presidential ticket is done by the national conventions, often with the results of the long series of presidential primaries in three-fifths of the states indecisive and largely ignored. The theory that presidential primaries give rank and file party members a greater voice in choosing their party's ultimate nominees is more myth than reality.

North Carolina would be just as well off without a presidential primary. It is our hope that the General Assembly, between now and 1980, will see fit to remove North Carolina from the long list of presidential primary states.

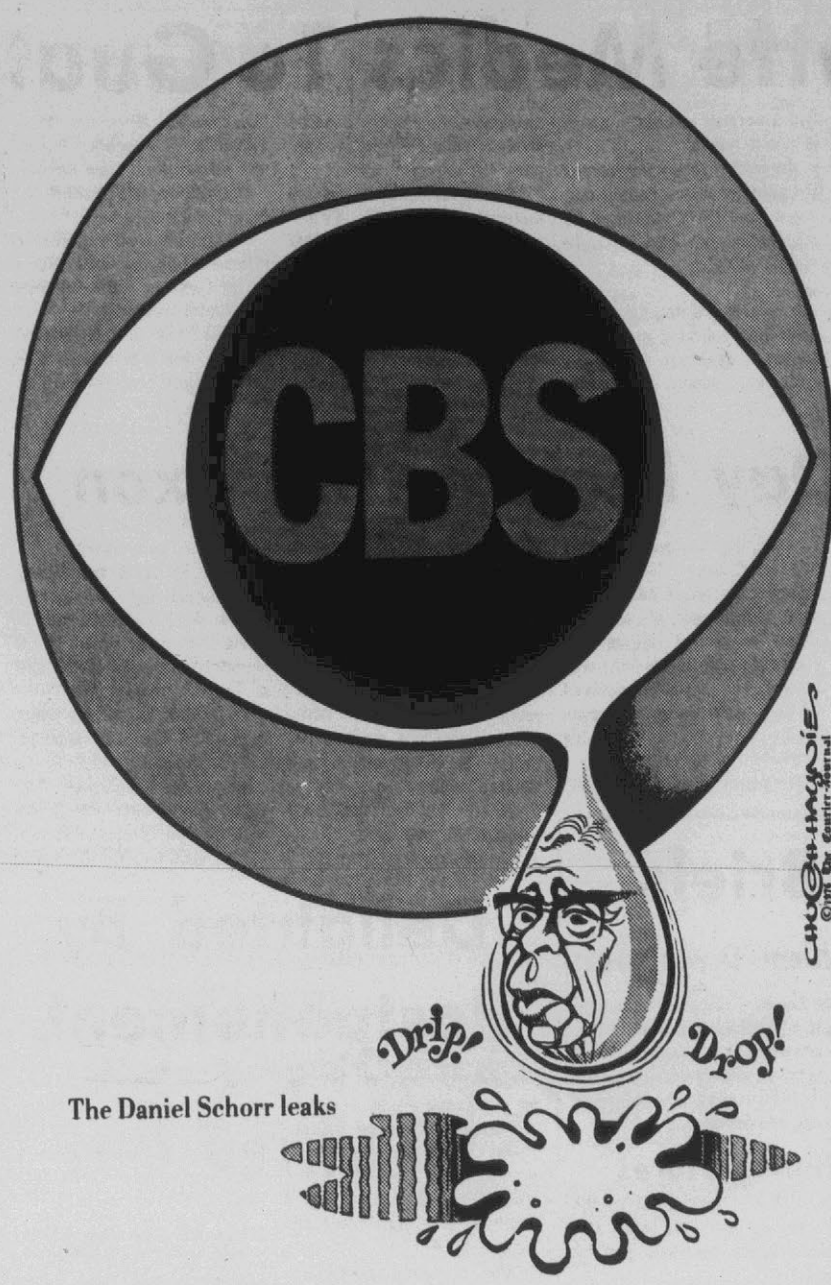

Teacher-Training Still A Key Function

ECU has moved into many fields other than teacher training since the days when it was known as ECTC, and in some areas it is establishing a national reputation.

It is good, though that the university, in broadening its programs, has not abandoned teacher training.

State Supt. of Public Instruction Craig Phillips said on a recent visit here, "I look upon East Carolina University as one of the leading teacher training institutions in the nation."

We are happy to hear that assessment, for while we want to see diversity at ECU, the university should continue to work toward training top quality teachers.

Payoff Scandal To Hurt

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The Lockheed payoff scandal seems unlikely to hurt the aircraft company's business in Europe or the Middle East but indications are that business will be seriously affected in Japan, an Associated Press survey shows.

The loss of Japanese business could also cost Lockheed a $950 million Canadian order.

A spokesman for Lockheed's Japanese sales agent, Marubeni Corp., said the outlook for business there is poor because national sentiment disapproves of dealings with companies that have resorted to bribery.

Marubeni, the spokesman added, "is considering the possibility of breaking off its agent contract with Lockheed because Marubeni's own image has been hurt."

However, customers in Europe and the Middle East are still considering purchases from Lockheed, and there is no evidence of any cancellations of options.

TriStar airliners at $35 million each, C130 Hercules military cargo planes at around $10 million each and other Lockheed planes are still in demand, the survey shows.

Where contract negotiations are delayed or stalled, government spokesmen say financial reasons unrelated to the scandals are to blame.

In Europe, the Dutch government is still thinking of replacing its 13 outdated Lockheed Neptune antisubmarine planes with the company's P3 Orion, which costs about $8 million, despite charges that Lockheed paid Queen Juliana's husband, Prince Bernhard, $1.1 million. The prince denied getting any of the money, and the government is investigating the allegation.

Lockheed's biggest private customer in Japan has been All Nippon Airways, the major domestic airline, which currently uses 16 TriStars. All Nippon said the scandal "has darkened the airline's image" because of its use of the Lockheed jetliners, and "in the future we will take this into consideration when purchasing aircraft."

The Japanese government is planning to buy more than a billion dollars worth of new antisubmarine patrol planes, and the Japanese Defense Agency rated the Lockheed Orion as one of the "best possible" choices. But a government spokesman said the govern-

Difference : 'We Deliver'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There is, says N. C. State University Chancellor Joab Thomas, a distinct difference between a land grant college like State, and the traditional, classic university.

"We deliver," he says of the numerous programs carried out by the land grant school. Whether in textiles or engineering, agriculture or city planning, the investment of the public in the college is made in exchange for regular communication of research and study project results back to the people.

The classic schools are like the supermarket: they've got the goods, but you have to go there to do your shopping. Schools such as State, however, put a lot of emphasis on extension services and written reports, news releases, broadcasts, and seminars to bring people up to date on lastest developments.

In all, he says, he has seen the growing and disturbing trend of students being unable to read and write well. But he thinks the problem may possibly be part of the normal "plateau" development of learning.

All areas of learning, traced over the centuries, take spurts of phenomenal growth and progress then level off for a period of time, Thomas notes. He hopes for new developments in communications which will not only help resolve the reading-writing dilemma, but make the transfer of knowledge from one individual to another even more effective.

Next Governor

A long-time state agency man who has survived several administration changes and continues to progress up the bureaucratic ladder revealed some of the diplomacy which has kept him on the job for so long.

Asked who he favors in the developing race for governor, his quick response: "Skipper O'Hunt." For those who haven't been keeping up, Skipper Bowles, Ed O'Herron, and Jim Hunt are the present leaders in early campaigning.

What's Danger

North Carolina Highway Patrolmen who make hazardous duty pay one of their principal claims to higher salaries than run-of-the-mill state employees will likely run into a buzz saw from some other agencies.

"You open a pandora's box with the question of hazardous duty pay. There's hazardous duty in many state jobs," says G. C. Davis, chief of the classification division of the state personnel.

Wildlife protectors, for instance, are quick to remind you that they are the only law enforcement people in the field who are guaranteed that the man they are after has a gun, Davis said.

Some 30 troopers from across the state met recently with a special committee of the House of Representatives to outline complaints and proposals from the newly organized Highway Patrol Association.

Most got a chuckle from a joke which made the rounds of the room. "The patrol commander (Col. E. W. Jones) called and left a note for the chairman. If he's needed, give him a call and he'll speed right over," an irreverant observed quipped. The meeting came in the midst of controversy over Jones' involvement in a speeding incident and failure of a trooper to ticket him.

Sunday Morning Notes

Lib LeConte, who had visited her daughter's family over Christmas, received a call from them the other night.

"I've just got to tell you this," her daughter, Virginia, said.

Her five-year-old daughter, Ginny was asked to say grace prior to a meal.

"Dear God," said Ginny. "Bless this food and I wish 'muddy' (Grandmother Lib LeConte) lived with us all the time, so I wouldn't have to eat liver."

Grandmother doesn't care for liver so the Buchanans don't have it when she is visiting.

A man we know was in a conversation with two girls.

"I've got some gossip to catch you up on later on," one of the girls said to the other.

There was a silence.

Finally the man said, "Well, I'll leave. I know you won't pass on that gossip as long as I'm around."

The girl laughed. "It's just girl talk," she said.

The pretty girl ordered an Alka-Seltzer at a local soda fountain.

She watched it fizz and then carefully drank part of it, setting down the half empty cup.

"You should drink it all," a friend urged.

Makes sense.

Over in Rocky Mount last week some 18,000 ballots enroute to the board of elections, were stolen from the bus station.

ALVIN TAYLOR

The culprits, upon finding what they had, apparently discarded them and the winds scattered them. Authorities, when they found out, reacted quickly and recovered all but 400 of the missing ballots, so the election will go on as scheduled.

That's fine, but who knows, perhaps an election in which the ballots were distributed by the wind might turn out to produce the best elected officials.

The signing of Rose High Super star Mike Brewington to an ECU football grant-in-aid recalls UNC Coach Carl Snavely's comment when the great Charlie Justice decided to attend Chapel Hill.

"Sure hope he comes out for football," the coach said.

INSIDE REPORT

Scoop's Moderation Fails

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

BOSTON—Sen. Henry M. Jackson has irrevocably lost this state's dangerously alienated hard-core anti-busing vote to Gov. George C. Wallace, a failure of profound significance in the March 2 Massachusetts primary and for what lies beyond.

With the angry despair of low-income whites spawning a climate of continuing violence, Jackson moderation is no match for Wallace rhetoric. Attempting an anti-busing position while maintaining respectability within the liberal Democratic mainstream, Jackson has failed to distinguish himself from the pack of liberal presidential candidates in the eyes of embittered anti-busers.

The result could be a disastrously low finish by Jackson in the nine-man field, while Wallace has an outside chance to finish first. Shattering though such an outcome would be in a state counted on by Jackson's high command, even worse is what it suggests about his overall viability. If Jackson cannot compete with Wallace for Northern blue-collar workers, does his candidacy have a broad enough base of support?

In keeping with the bad luck and poor timing which have plagued Jackson's long quest for the presidential nomination, he put forth a moderate formula to combat busing just when moderates in the anti-busing movement were losing ground. The unspoken fear at city hall is that extremists are taking over ROAR, Boston's anti-busing organization, bringing into the streets a fight that has been lost in the courts.

Thus, Jackson's anti-busing legislative package fell with a dull thud when unveiled two months ago. "The most I can say is that it was better than nothing," Louise Day Hicks, the anti-busing city council president, told us. But less moderate anti-busers than Mrs. Hicks considered it worse than nothing.

The result is that Jackson has neither mass nor leadership support among Boston's anti-busing constituency. One perceptive South Boston politician believes voters there, confronting the loss of their school system and indeed their way of life, view George Wallace as their only protector. "They see Jackson as just like the others," he added. "They can't tell Scoop Jackson from Fred Harris."

State Sen. William Bulger, deeply apprehensive of Wallace's rise in his South Boston constituency, consulted with Jackson on his anti-busing proposals, and continues to advise him—but dare not and will not endorse him despite Jackson's pleas.

Similarly, Mrs. Hicks has been intensely criticized within ROAR for collaborating with Jackson in seeking $10 million in federal funds to east the crushing cost of busing. Mrs. Hicks cannot openly support Jackson and has been hard put to keep the organization from supporting Wallace.

Jackson's dilemma was typified two weeks ago when Wallaceites booed him off a platform in the Charlestown section of Boston, an anti-busing hotbed—an event shown repeatedly on telecasts across the state. Jackson came over as cool and self-controlled but also, incorrectly, as a supporter of busing. The end product: admiration from pro-busers who will never vote for him and rejection by anti-busers whose support he must have.

No such identity problem is encountered by Wallace, though he is consciously softening his rhetoric to avoid provoking violence. Privately informed that South Boston is a powder keg, Wallace told a boisterous rally there last week at the Lithuanian Club:

Other Editors Say
What Rogers Said

(Henderson Dispatch)

Oldtimers remember the late Will Rogers and his homespun common sense comments about public officials and public affairs. He died with Wiley Post in an airplane crash in Alaska in the 1930s after writing a short observation daily, for years, which was moved by wire. One of the newspaper syndicates is reviving his sayings and some papers are publishing them again.

One came to notice, dated August 9, 1924, more than half a century ago. That was an election year the same as 1976. There was no such thing in those days as television. He cited promises of candidates and what they said they would do if elected. "What the candidate intends to do is to try and get elected. That's all any of them intends to do."

The North Carolina Christian Advocate adds its assessment of the present outlook. "The voting public, we believe, is casting its weary eye around in search of 'Mr. Clean' of candidates who give promise of high dedication to honesty and integrity in government. Recent scandals, from Watergate on down, have created a high degree of sensitivity at this point."

That organ of North Carolina Methodists adds that voters "need to vote for persons who possess a high degree of competence. Talent, ability and experience should not be overlooked."

The admonition is timely. Candidates are popping up all about us. Some apparently want office for the income provides. Some would in all sincerity wish to serve the State and its people, and they are those who should get attention.

Out of the dim, distant past comes again the observation of the sage of Oklahoma. It is as much in order today, half a century later, as when it was first spoken.

40 Years Ago Today

February 29, 1936

A rebellion by the Japanese army collapsed today under threats of machine-gun fire as Japanese Premier Keisuke Okada, previously reported assassinated, reappeared on the scene unhurt.

Surrender of the troops, which on Wednesday attempted a massacre of cabinet leaders and succeeded in three instances, was swift and bloodless after the martial law administration issued them an ultimatum.

Okada, whose regime has been sharply at odds with militarists for refusing to bow to civil authority, survived assassin's bullets only because his intended assassins mistook his secretary for him.

CONSCIENCE IS COMPELLING

The great novel by Victor Hugo, Les Miserables, contains a profound moral lesson. Jean Valjean, a fugitive from justice, changes his name, becomes prosperous in business, and is elected major of a small French city. One day he learns that a man has been sentenced to the galleys for the crime he himself had committed. Then and there begins an epic battle between conscience and self-interest for the control of Jean Valjean.

"Go and declare your identity and save an innocent man," says conscience. "Why should you? No one knows," replies self-interest. In the end his conscience conquered, and at the cost of his liberty he stood up in court and identified himself.

The conflict which goes on continually between conscience and self-interest is a mighty one, and people are never happy until they decide in behalf of conscience.

NEW YORK (AP) — The serious problems became evident in 1967 when paperwork representing many millions of dollars in transactions couldn't be deciphered or was misfiled, destroyed or lost behind desks in the backrooms.

This was the beginning of the stock exchange community's paper panic. Brokers had more business than they could handle, which is a strange reason for an enterprise to collapse. But many of them did.

In the next few years a special government-industry agency was called upon to settle claims by customers of 117 securities firms in liquidation, some of which had become so confused they failed to collect commissions.

One thing led to another, and on Wall Street that eventually means prices. In 1969 and 1970 prices took a terrific tumble, from 985 points on the Dow Jones industrial average to just 631 points.

The big institutional investors — the pension and mutual funds, bank trusts and insurance companies, for example— sold huge chunks of stock that had become inflated over the previous few years. Everyone took losses.

Individual investors, who had been courted almost zealously to participate in people's capitalism, to own a piece of America, were among those most seriously hurt. They left the market, and for the most part haven't returned.

Shocked and angered, the American people demanded through Congress that something be done. Congress responded by declaring that the stock exchanges must become truly public service institutions, rather than "private clubs."

Somehow, it suggested, a central market place would have to be created, using elements of the existing system dominated by the New York Stock Exchange, but in an arrangement that was left unspecified.

The Securities and Exchange Commission tackled the job. As one of the commissioners at that time said, the New York and American stock exchanges would cease to exist in their present forms.

Now, in 1976, the stock market has recovered. Tremendous technological changes have been made in the handling of securities, so that volume double that of the late 1960s can be handled with no great strain.

But the one great central market place for all stocks hasn't yet evolved. When the markets were depressed, when trading volume was low, there seemed to be an ideal opportunity for change. But change comes slowly.

Instead, with some modifications and more interrelationships and areas of cooperation, the independent stock exchanges are doing business as usual, and probably regaining their self-confidence.

Family Cost Is Inflated

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—A family of four needs a record $177 per week to make ends meet, according to the public's current estimate of living costs.

The impact of inflation is dramatically revealed by the fact that one year ago the comparable figure was $161, while two years ago the amount specified was $152. In 1937, the year this measurement was started, the estimate for a family of four was only $30 per week.

These dollar estimates are based upon samples of the U.S. adult, civilian nonfarm population. The current figure of $177 is the median of the responses to the following question (the "median" is a type of average):

"What is the smallest amount of money a family of four (husband, wife, and two children) needs each week to get along in this community?"

This cost of living index is based upon the respondents' estimates, while the federal government's cost of living statistics are based upon retail prices and price changes.

Living Costs Least In South, Midwest

Living costs are considerably lower in the South and Midwest than in the East or West, according to the estimates of people living in each of these regions.

Residents of the largest cities (one million and over) give a considerably higher figure ($201) than do persons living in smaller communities and rural areas.

Those in families where the head of the household is in the professions, business or in other white-collar professions estimate it takes $200 per week for a family of four to get along in their communities. This figure exceeds the average estimate of blue-collar families, which is $176.

The following table shows the highlights of the national trend since the first measurement in 1937:

Minimum Amount Needed By Family Of Four (Nonfarm families)

	Medians
1937	$ 30
1947	$ 43
1957	$ 72
1967	$101

1971	$127
1973	$149
1974	$152
1976	$177

The table above shows the rapid rate of growth in the public's cost-of-living estimates and the decrease in the value of the dollar. In the decade 1937 to 1947, the amount increased by $13. In the next decade, 1947 to 1957, the figure went up by $29. In the 1957-1967 decade, the amount again increased by $29. And, in less than a decade, between 1967 and the latest (1976) survey, the amount has climbed $76, an increase of 75 per cent over the 1967 figure.

The following table shows the results by population groups:

Professional & business	$200
Clerical & sales	$200

For the latest survey, a total of 1,534 nonfarm respondents were interviewed in person in more than 300 localities across the nation during the period Jan. 30—Feb. 2. Farm families were excluded from the survey since many farmers raise their own food.

"You can win this battle . . . at the ballot box and peacefully." Still, he triggered bedlam in the packed hall by shouting: "When they (national Democrats) said busing, I said no!"

Wallace is drawing easily the biggest, most enthusiastic crowds of the Massachusetts primary, not only in the busing area of Boston proper but in such blue-collar suburbs as Somerville and Lynn. Nor does he dwell on busing. He hammers home Jackson's key issue of naval construction—for national defense and for Boston naval yard jobs—but with far greater intensity than defense expert Jackson.

Democratic politicians are praying for inept organization and diminished strength beyond Boston to stop Wallace from winning. His leading contenders are Rep. Morris Udall (taking a pro-busing stand and wowing liberals on Beacon Hill and in the high-income suburbs) and Jimmy Carter (typically fuzzing up busing to satisfy an indistinct base that includes surprising business support).

If this means Jackson lacks a constituency here, it is calamitous for a presidential campaign now in its sixth year. But worse news for Democrats generally is the strong implication that George Wallace has a monopoly on primary voters who feel betrayed and persecuted by busing.

A Conservative View

A Political Nugget Down In West Palm Beach

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Given a few more ten-carat diamonds like Iris Parrish, George Wallace would win Florida's March 9 primary in a breeze. Even with just one Iris Parrish, the Alabama governor is looking pretty good.

Mrs. Parrish is the volunteer proprietor of Wallace's drive-in campaign booth in West Palm Beach. She isn't as big as a minute; she's about as big as 30 seconds. She has hair the color of good fresh carrots, and her hazel eyes go sparkle-sparkle. At 65, she is having more fun than a kitten with a big ball of yarn. Honey chile, she is sump'n.

It's much too formal to keep calling her Mrs. Parrish. Iris comes from Obion, Tenn., a small town in the Davy Crockett country a few miles south of Union City. She's now lived in Florida for 17 years, but she still talks with that unmistakable Mimphis accent. She likes newspapermin, partly because she used to handset tin-point type for a weekly paper. As a girl of 19, she married a watchmaker — he died some years ago — and she's learned to repair watches herself. Her second husband is a welder.

The wandering correspondent who spends an hour kidding around with Iris learns more about the Wallace campaign than one might learn in a week of political seminars. She was a Wallace delegate at Miami Beach in 1972 and she expects to be a Wallace delegate in New York next summer. "Honey, I tell you, I love politics, and I love Wallace, and if you weren't so meee-yun, I'd love you, too." She is only teasin'.

Iris's drive-in once was a hamburger stand. The counters that held french-fries now hold Wallace keychains, bumper stickers, imitation gold coins bearing the Wallace image, and stacks of Wallace pamphlets. The customer who comes to her window gets a wall-to-wall smile and 500 watts of Tennessee charm.

A young man rattles up in a vintage Buick and asks for a couple of bumper stickers. She persuades him to take six. "Look, honey, you got friends who're for Wallace, don't you? Listen to me, honey chile. You get out there and get those stickers on somebody's bumper, you heah?" He grins and she grins, and the old Buick rattles down the Military Trail. When Wallace gets to be president, maybe he will make Iris ambassador to Moscow. The Russian hasn't been born who could say nyet to her.

Four years ago, the Florida primary saw 1,264,000 votes on the Democratic side. Wallace won almost 527,000, or 41.6 percent of these. That's the mark against which his performance on March 9 will be measured. Veteran observers believe this year's turnout will be smaller. If that's the case, Wallace will benefit and his percentage may well hold up. In the political vernacular, the Wallace vote is "hard." By contrast, support for Jimmy Carter and Henry Jackson is relatively "soft."

The Carter and Jackson people sturdily deny this. Carter has planned a full-blown blitz next week. The whole Carter clan will be working the state — papa, mama, sons Chip, Jack and Jeff, assorted daughters-in-law, and five busloads of sweet-talking bell-ringers from Valdosta. The Carter camp is spending every permissible penny on TV commercials. Neutral bystanders say the Carter commercials are excellent.

Senator Jackson's Florida campaign got off to a belated start. No one seems to know quite why, for Florida is vital to Jackson. Four years ago, he ran third behind Wallace and Hubert Humphrey, winning only 13.5 percent of the vote. Then there were six substantial candidates on the ballot. This time there are only three, so Jackson ought to do much better.

The issues in Florida, to the extent that issues can be found at all, appear to be mostly economic. Racial-balance busing, which figured significantly in 1972, is a dead horse. In certain parts of the state, defense spending is important, but except for Israel (all the candidates are "right" on Israel), foreign affairs are thought to count for little. For thousands of persons living on retirement incomes, inflation is the big concern. These voters want Social Security up and deficit spending down.

Mainly it's a personality contest. "That's us," says Iris at the hamburger booth. "We got more issues, more personality, and more strength of character than all them others put together. And we'll have more delegits, too. You wait and see." In Florida, honey chile, it could be so.

Recovery Of Economy On Schedule; Risks In An Over-Stimulation

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Economic forecasting has taken a rather rough beating over the past few years. As a result practitioners lately have been disposed to hug the tree rather than step boldly out on a limb.

Thus, it is understandable that there is, as yet, no rush to revise the moderate projections made for 1976. These were made last fall and early winter in the midst of a welter of uncertainties now being resolved on the upside.

Actual performance of the economy during January and February has been better than many anticipated. This shows in the figures on production, employment, prices, profits, wages and salaries, retail sales, and in the financial markets. What's more, the recovery has been strong enough and on a broad enough front to guarantee that the first 1976 quarter will end well on the reassuring side.

It is significant that the gains have been accompanied, perhaps brought about, by a marked improvement in the "national mood". Polls and other surveys show the public "confidence" factor on the rise. Consumers spend more as they feel better and their spending performance, more than any other factor determines the economy.

During the recession, consumers did much to improve their financial positions. They turned cautions on spending, with the result that they paid off debt and increased savings. As inflation moderates, their spending power gains. So, they are becoming better customers, using their own funds and resorting to credit more freely. This is reflected in rising retail sales.

The plusses turning up in the official statistics do not mean that it is all smooth sailing ahead. There will be wobbling in the recovery which will raise doubt about the future. The important thing is that the strengths displayed thus far greatly reduce the chance that one of these wobbles will turn into a new recession.

Two major segments of the economy have failed to play their usual part in this recovery movement. Usually, housing is a leader in an upturn. Spending by business on plant and equipment normally begining to show gains some months later. This time, neither area has reacted on schedule.

Housing starts have made some slight gains, but in a generally faltering pattern. A usbstantial pickup still is expected during this year. Credit for home buying is readily available, although interest rates "look" a bit high. The problem is price. Construction costs have been allowed to get out of hand. The best builders seem able to do is offer less, in space and quality, but at high prices.

If recovery does, as expected, extend recent gains, then a rise in business spending for plant and equipment will become more certain. Corporate liquidity has undergone substantial change. Excess inventories have been fairly well liquidated. Loans have been paid off. Profit gains have added to financial strength. And the stock market improvement leaves corporations less dependent on fixed charge debt financing, bank loans and bonds, to meet capital needs. Equity financing once again is possible, and use is being made of it. Offering of new stock are on the rise.

There is a real inflation danger in the housing and capital spending outlook. If a strong recovery surge should hit both areas at the same time it would produce a tremendous demand on material supplies and bring a sharp price rise. What otherwise would be a gradual and lasting recovery might well turn into another inflationary boom, such as that of 1973, followed by an even worse bust.

But so far, the recovery movement is staying fairly close to the hopes of the Ford Administration. This policy has been to avoid over stimulation, which would threaten new inflation, and to suffer a period of unsatisfactory unemployment level for a few years in order to gain economic stability.

There has been doubt that Ford would stay with this through the presidential election year. But his budget, followed by the veto of the so-called employment bill ($6-billion) reflect a determination to take whatever political chance is involved.

But his Democratic opponents in Congress aren't giving up. They are still demanding a quick return to full employment, meaning no more than 4 percent unemployed. The "cure" they offer is more spending, with an even bigger deficit.

What this overlooks is that full-employment of this sort may be completely unrealistic, short of a government takeover. We have only had it during war, which is a pretty high price to pay.

This threat to Lockheed was a factor in Canadian Defense Minister James Richardson's announcement last week that his government might cancel its order for $950 million worth of Orions because of the company's financial difficulties.

Other Canadian officials said the decision to go ahead with the order depended on whether Japan bought the Orions, because the Canadian aircraft industry expected to get subcontracts for the Japanese order totaling nearly as much as the Canadian government was planning to spend.

There Are Those Who Don't Rest On Sunday

I like to know that people care about me. For instance, it makes me happy to know that the police are concerned about my physical safety. And it's obvious that my husband is concerned about my mental health. But I do think that the city council is going a bit too far in involving itself in my spiritual development.

Now, I wasn't aware that my spiritual health was being threatened in the first place until I tried to buy a box of Pampers on Sunday.

"I'm sorry, ma'am; you can't buy these today," the salesgirl said when I put the diapers on the counter. "It's Sunday."

"What's that got to do with diapers?" I asked.

"Sunday is a day of rest."

"Look," I said, "My baby's bottom NEVER rests, not even on Sunday."

"I still can't sell you the diapers, ma'am," the clerk explained. "It's against the law. If I sell you these diapers, that policeman over there will arrest me."

I looked over at the policeman sitting at the lunch counter. "You mean that the city of Greenville is so crime-free that they can afford to pay someone just of making sure I don't buy a diaper?"

"That's about the size of it. The ordinance states that buying certain products on Sunday endangers your morals."

I gave her a puzzled glance. I knew that dirty diapers damage my aesthetic values, but I never figured them for undermining my morality. Actually, I would have been glad to try convincing Phillip that my association with diapers was immoral. But I still needed the diapers so that he could take over rear duty.

GAIL MICHAELS

So I aked, "What about Jewish people and Seventh Day Adventists? There's no law prohibiting them from buying things on Saturday."

The salesgirl looked confused. "Maybe the city council thinks they're moral enough already."

"This is ridiculous," I raged. "Now, I can see not being able to sell some products, I guess — like cigarettes. . ."

"Oh, we can still sell cigarettes."

"You mean to tell me that it's immoral for my baby to wet her diaper, but it's okay for someone to cremate his lungs?"

She was beginning to get uneasy. "Shhhh," she warned. "This is North Carolina. You don't say things like that in this state."

"All right, all right," I conceded. "I guess I got carried away. It's just that it doesn't seem logical. . ."

"Oh, well, I can explain that," she answered, brightening up. "Politicians are never logical."

"But this isn't even the state level. Local politicians are supposed to be close enough to the people to be responsible."

"That doesn't matter," she said, shaking her head wisely, "You talk about logic — under this law a person can't buy rubber gloves or cookie cutters, but he can buy shotgun shells. How's that for logic?"

"And I though I was mixed up," I sighed.

The clerk leaned over the counter in a confidential manner. "I'll tell you what; I don't think it has anything to do with morality. Why, I read in the paper that it's just a free day so that the stores that don't stay open on Sunday don't feel like they have to open on Sunday."

"But that's not fair!" I cried. "Next thing you know, the city council will be telling me that I can't buy diapers after 5 o'clock on weekdays. We've got to do something about this!"

"You got it," she smiled. "We're trying to. See that petition over there? It's against the blue law."

As I rushed over to sign it, I heard her call triumphantly to the manager, "Just got another one, Sam."

Planned Nuclear Pacemakers Generating Fresh Controversy

By GALE TOLLIN
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The use of plutonium to keep the hearts of 500 Americans beating regularly is also generating controversy over the safety of the nuclear-powered pacemakers these people use.

The chief battleground is Minneapolis, headquarters of the world's principal manufacturer of nuclear pacemakers. That firm, Medtronic Inc., claims the devices are radioactively safe and a boon to people requiring a pacemaker with a power supply that lasts for years.

Nearby, at the University of Minnesota, Dr. Dean Abrahamson, a physicist and physician, is one of the most outspoken critics of nuclear pacemakers. He and others have asked the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to ban them. Dr. Abrahamson, who describes himself as an activist on environmental issues, argues that radiation might cause cancer in a person with a nuclear pacemaker, or the radioactive plutonium fuel might be released accidentally.

The NRC staff in Washington is preparing an enviromental impact statement on nuclearpowered pacemakers, weighing the claims of manufacturers and the experience of doctors against the concerns of Abrahamson and various enviromentalists.

Heat generated as part of the fuel's radioisotopic decay is converted into electricity — the electrical impulses delivered to heart muscles to control heart rhythm, prolonging the lives of people with damaged hearts.

More than 250,000 people throughout the world have had battery-powered pacemakers implanted since their introduction in 1960. The drawback with battery models is that when the batteries run down after six years or so, part of the device must be replaced surgically.

The nuclear models, designed to last at least 10 years, have been in use only since 1970.

James R. Mason, NRC medical specialist who headed a recent nuclear pacemaker study, says the NRC's final decision on the safety of nuclear pacemakers should be made this year. It could be challenged in the courts.

So far, about 1,500 nuclear pacemakers have been implanted — 500 of them in the United States. Medtronic has manufactured about 80 per cent of the units.

Dr. Chardack says he has heard of no power failures in the nuclear pacemakers. He said a report in 1975 on 1,000 implants showed two electronic malfunctions but no losses of power source.

Chardack said some new batteries are capable of driving pacemakers for 10 years. Still, he said, the nuclear device has a potential life span exceeding any battery pacemaker.

Bob Griffin, nuclear programs manager of Medtronic, says the lifespan of the nuclear unit allows a doctor to eliminate multiple pacemaker surgery for young patients with a long life expectancy.

But he noted that only a small percentage of pacemaker users can take full advantage of nuclear pacemakers because most heart patients are older and their life expectancies don't warrant the additional expense of a nuclear pacemaker. It costs about $5,000. The battery-powered units cost $1,200.

Dr. Abrahamson, now director of the University of Minnesota's School of Public Affairs, contends there has been insufficient study of the possibility of radioactive exposure. He says there is a possibility of cancer when tissues are exposed to radiation.

Griffin counters that a patient with a nuclear pacemaker receives less radiation than an average jet crew receives at high altitudes from cosmic rays.

Abrahamson says there is no evidence to support the assumption of a 10-year operational life for nuclear pacemakers. He claims that alternatives are available with that life span and without environmental hazards.

Griffin responds that the 10-year estimate is "conservative," and studies indicate that nuclear pacemakers may last "much longer."

Abrahamson fears plutonium could be released in cases of accidental burning deaths or cremation.

Mason, of the NRC, said "very rigorous" tests have been conducted to ensure that the radioactive material would not be released from a pacemaker, even if there was an accident. The tests covered such contingencies as impact, fire, crushing and corrosion in sea water.

Says Medtronic's Griffin: "I can't say absolutely that no pollution will escape under any conditions. But I do know that under conditions we've tested, the chances aren't anything other than miniscule."

The NRC must now judge those chances and decide whether the benefits of nuclear pacemakers outweigh the risks.

50,000th Telephone In District Said Installed

MILESTONE REACHED . . . Walter L. Shepherd (L) inspects the 50,000th telephone for the Greenville District which was installed at his home. Looking on are Don A. Collier, (C) district commercial manager of Carolina Telephone, and Mayor Percy Cox. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. announced that the 50,000th telephone for the Greenville District was recently installed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Shepherd at 104 Darwin Court.

Don A. Collier, district commercial manager for Carolina Telephone, and Mayor Percy Cox were on hand for the historic installation at Shepherd's home. Shepherd is assistant to the Dean, School of Medicine at East Carolina University.

The Greenville District, according to Collier, includes the towns of Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Fountain, Greenville and Snow Hill.

Noting the growth in the number of phones in the district, Collier pointed out that telephones in Ayden increased from 200 in 1926 to 3,938 in 1975, Bethel climbed from 146 in 1946 to 1,406 in 1975, Farmville increased from 247 in 1926 to 4,586, Fountain jumped from 44 in 1936 to 618, Greenville experienced an increase from 1,225 in 1926 to 34,637, and Snow Hill rose from 115 phones in 1926 to 3,787 in 1975.

Collier said that the Greenville exchange in 1950 handled some 410,000 local and 40,000 long distance calls a month. Today, the exchanged handles about 7,000,000 local and 675,000 long distance calls monthly, he added.

DE Club Gets Recognition

The Farmville Central Distributive Education Club of America (DECA) has recently received both state and national recognition for their efforts in organizing a radiothon at WFAG.

Information about the radiothon was printed in the DECA Distributor the national DECA magazine and Trade 'N Print the North Carolina DECA newspaper. The radiothon was held during the National DECA Week to raise money for the new National DECA Center.

Chapter members sold advertising packages which included ten radio spots, one spot to be given each hour during the day of the radiothon. Each person who sold an advertising spot was responsible for the writing and announcing the copy live on the radio. The station was operated completely by the DECA members the day of the radio-thon.

Elementary Students Assignments Status

In response to numerous requests received by the Greenville City School Office and Greenville City School Board members concerning the assignment of students in the elementary schools for the coming school year. School Board Chairman Henry Dunn and Supt. of Greenville City Schools Glenn Cox have released the following statement which they hope will answer some of the questions and help eliminate unfounded rumors which seem to be prevalent.

Dates mentioned in the paragraphs below represent the time members of the city school board and the central office staff consider as the best estimates for when action to be taken relative to the adopted redistricting plan will take place:

1. Reassignment of at least 700 of the city's approximately 2,500 kindergartners through sixth graders will be necessary to achieve the racial ratio.

2. Currently, several members of the central school staff are studying various assignment patterns in an attempt to develop alternatives to meet the requirements set forth by the board.

3. By April 1 the central staff hopes to be able to place before the school board for its consideration the staff's assignment recommendation.

4. It is anticipated that official approval will be taken at the regularly scheduled third Monday in April (April 19) meeting of the Greenville City School Board.

5. Following official approval of assignment and reassignment data furnished the school board, individual school principals will immediately begin sending assignment letters to parents of every student enrolled in the Greenville City Schools.

At this point, Cox emphasized, no firm decision or assignment pattern has been established and or approved, so that any information anyone may be hearing is actually speculation of no valid consequence.

Rare Fifth February Sunday

Today Is Chocolate Sundae Day

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—A fifth Sunday in February is a rare date. If your imagination is just right, it could also be a good date for catching up on your calories.

Daniel Turner is 10, a fifth grade student at Fairforest Elementary School in Spartanburg County. Daniel entered a tall tales contest being sponsored by the Spartanburg Herald Journal and wrote the following.

By Daniel Turner

Once upon a time, there lived an old man who was looking at the month of February on his calendar.

He saw Washington's birthday, Lincoln's birthday, but then his eyes caught something about Chocolate Sundae. It's on Feb. 29.

"Well, I'll be a monkey's uncle," he laughed. 'That's this sundae!"

But then something confused him. "I wonder what that means," he thought. "I'll look it up," he said to himself.

So, he looked it up in the dictionary.

"Chance, change, chocolate, chocolate sundae!" he said out loud, "a special sundae coming only in February when February has five sundaes. On this day, for one hour, it rains different sizes, shapes and colors of chocolate sundaes."

The man was so excited that he began to plan what he would do next sundae.

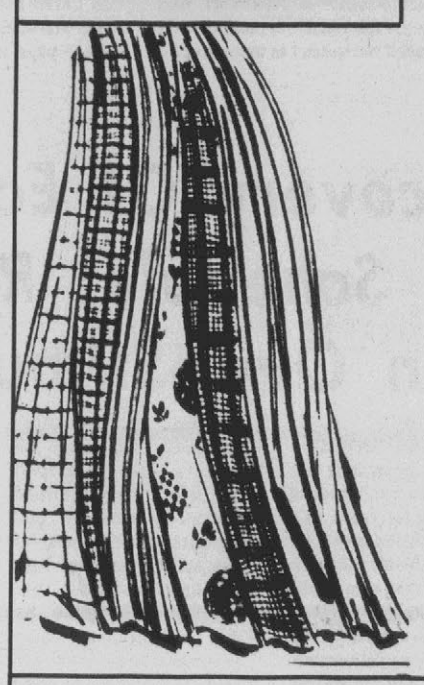

He arose early sundae morning, got dressed and peeked through the window shades just in time to see the first sundae fall from the sky. Quickly, he gathered his buckets and pails and ran outside.

It was so early that nobody was up to help him get the sundaes. For one hour the sundaes filled the containers. Then the man rushed to his freezer and stored all the sundaes there.

That afternoon he called all the village children to his house. The last I heard, they are still eating chocolate sundaes!

ECU Business-Math Major Michael Kincer

Student Takes Positive Attitude To Job Market

By FRANCEINE PERRY
ECU News Bureau

The job market for this spring's crop of college graduates looks pretty grim, but East Carolina University senior Michael Kincer doesn't worry about his employment prospects.

Already he has had encouraging on-campus interviews with a variety of employers—a well-known automobile manufacturer, a Richmond tobacco company, a cosmetic distributor, an office equipment firm, a large bank and the regional office of a camera manufacturer.

And the local car dealership which has employed Kincer part-time during his student years has urged him to consider permanent employment.

The jobs Kincer is considering include management, data processing and marketing positions, which would enable him to apply his campus studies as a business and mathematics major.

Some of the potential employers have offered to pay his travel expenses for further interviews.

Why is Mike Kincer so fortunate in locating job prospects?

"He has a positive attitude toward job-hunting," says ECU Placement Service Director Furney James. "Mike has not simply read the unemployment statistics and given up in despair, as many students have.

"He knows he has a good deal to offer an employer, and this confidence is communicated to the company representatives who interview him."

James's office arranges for graduating seniors to meet with visiting interviewers from businesses, industries, school systems and other companies and institutions interested in hiring new employees.

Problems resulting from the current recession—unemployment, inflation, low revenues and resulting cutbacks—have caused numbers of students to panic, and fail to register for interviews at all, believing that the situation is hopeless, James says.

"That is why Mike is in such a favorable position."

Mike Kincer himself attributes his success to the fact that he does not feel "pressured."

"Graduate school is always an option," he said. "As an Air Force veteran, I still have two more years of the GI Bill. My wife is employed, so I am not desperate for a job.

"And I honestly feel that if I go with a company, I will be an asset to them; and I don't hesitate to tell them so. Many of my friends have given up and are not even trying. I know of others who have already accepted the first job they were offered.

"I believe the key is not to give in to pressure. When I talk to a prospective employer, my attitude is 'I'm not just here to sell myself. I'm here to look at what you're offering.'"

Job-hunting has not been altogether easy for Kincer; the first job applications he sent away were accepted with thanks but with polite replies that no position was available.

"This is why so many students are turned off. You just have to keep trying," he said.

Michael Kincer

A native of Kentucky, brought up in Baltimore, Mike entered ECU in 1968, leaving two years later to join the Air Force. For most of his four service years, he was a linguist, working with the Bulgarian language in California. This service job was both challenging and interesting, he recalls.

After active Air Force duty, he returned to ECU, and has maintained a Dean's List academic grade point average and accepted an invitation to join the campus honor society in mathematics.

Besides his studies and service, Kincer has held numerous part-time and summer jobs, among them construction work, steel mill work, driving a vending machine company truck, and leading municipal recreation activities.

In addition, he has been an active volunteer baseball and football coach for local children's teams, and usually has several tutoring jobs with students having difficulty with school math.

In 1971 Kincer married Linda Pollard from Wytheville, Va., whom he met during his sophomore year. She was a primary education major at ECU, and now lacks one quarter to graduate. She plans to complete her education in the near future.

Michael Kincer is the youngest of three children, and the first member of his family to complete high school. Most of the youngsters he grew up with in central Baltimore did not finish high school either.

"It was a typical urban neighborhood," he said, "and the kind everybody remembers who ever passed through Baltimore—blocks and blocks of red brick rowhouses with the white marble steps. Well, my first job was scrubbing our white marble steps every day."

Kincer's confidence in his own worth just might be his greatest asset. Asked by one job interviewer, "What can you do?" he replied. "I can do anything I try to do, within reason."

PLAN YOUR HOME

TRADITIONAL FACADE GRACES DUPLEX DESIGN

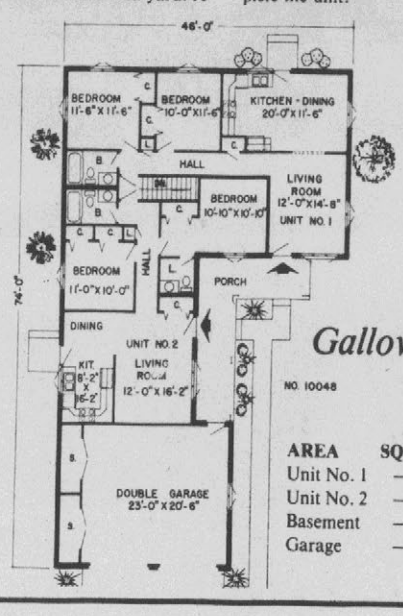

By Jerry Bishop

Warm brick veneer sheathes the facade of the Galloway, an attractive one story traditional, and conceals the fact that the plan is designed to house two families in total comfort and privacy.

Each of the units guarantees plenty of space and livability and includes two ample bedrooms, an open kitchen-dining arrangement, and an abundance of closets, as well as a full basement and garage.

Topped by the traditional cupola, the facade of the Galloway blends brick veneer and a cedar shingle roof for an exterior that is virtually free of maintenance. Wrought iron panels accent the small but practical porch that fronts the design.

Unit One shows an entry directly into the well-proportioned living room, where windows create a bright, airy mood. Adjoining the living room is the 20-ft. kitchen-dining area, large enough to serve as both dining area and family room. A feature not often found in multi-family plans is the rear entrance that connects kitchen and yard. A small patio could be added here if desired. Linen and coat closets are notched in the hallway, and two bedrooms and a full bath complete the unit.

AREA	SQ FT.
Unit No. 1	— 939
Unit No. 2	— 888
Basement	—1,827
Garage	— 602

Basically similar, Unit Two offers a coat closet close to the entry. A larger living room and more compact kitchen-dining area are shown, and the plan boasts a private half bath off the master bedroom as well as slightly more closet space than Unit One.

Equally accessible from both units, a full basement partitions separate laundry and utility areas for each unit and leaves plenty of space for recreation and storage.

A side entry double garage, camouflaged to maintain the exterior charm of the home, is lined with convenient storage space and provides parking for each of the tenants.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

No matter how many safeguards manufacturers devise to protect the users of electrical tools and equipment, no matter how stringent the requirements of electrical codes and building regulations, there always are some persons who find ways to circumvent them.

Three-pronged plugs on portable power tools enjoyed a wave of popularity a few years ago because they seemed to provide a form of automatic grounding. Which they did — but only when used properly in outlets with a special three-wire ground conductor. So people began cutting off the third prong of the plug to make it fit into a two-slot outlet or using an adapter and neglecting to ground it.

The current effort to protect users of portable electric tools and appliances against themselves is through what is usually called double insulation or shockproof or safety housing. Tools so protected usually have the conventional two-pronged plugs and thus can be used in ordinary outlets. This has worked wonders in preventing accidents because of short circuits. But, in a few cases, it doesn't provide 100 per cent protection against ALL electrical hazards. Users are warned that double insulated equipment should not be grounded, since an improper wiring connection could make exposed metal parts live. No matter how remote the possibility of a shock with a double insulated tool or appliance — and it is remote — it is foolhardy not to read the instructions that come with the unit.

Another development designed to prevent trouble is the ground fault interrupter. If there's a shock-causing ground fault condition in electrical equipment or wiring, the device interrupts the circuit and cuts off the current. It has been so effective that the National Electrical Code has mandated its use in bathrooms and outdoor receptacles, places where dangerous electrical shocks are likely to occur. But even this protective device can only protect a person against current leading through the body to the ground. It can't protect you when you become the path for the current between the hot wire and the neutral wire of a circuit.

Even though your swimming pool has ground fault interrupter protection, some pool safety tips are in order. Don't use portable appliances within 10 feet of the pool. The National Electrical Code forbids installation of outlets within 10 feet from the inside walls of a pool. If a receptacle is located within 15 feet of the pool, ground fault interrupter protection is required. Keep extension cords away from pools. Take care in handling poolside accessories, such as radios, barbecues, refrigerators and the like. And don't run overhead wires across the pool or diving platform or within 10 feet of them.

In short, no matter what precautions are built into your power tool or appliance and regardless of what extra protective equipment you provide, don't assume that nothing can happen. Eternal vigilance is the price of safety — and the first step in that direction is to read and follow the instructions of the manufacturers.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper in care of Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Young Show Taste In Antiques

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Young people may have parlayed their interest in handcrafted things into an appreciation of the oldest American antiques ... it is very difficult for dealers to find authentic old antiques ... geographical factors influence the popularity of antiques styles.

Those were some of the thoughts expressed by dealers at the recent Winter Antique Show in New York. A little gloom was displayed, but it wasn't because the dealers weren't selling. It was a big sell show. What bothered many dealers was the scarcity of antiques.

In her 43 years in the antiques business Lillian Blankley Cogan of Farmington, Conn., has never seen early things so scarce. But it isn't because of Bicentennial buying, she says.

"People have begun to understand that there are just so many old things available and they must get them while they can." Then, too, people are holding on to the old things they own.

"A pleasant surprise for me has been the great interest young people are now showing in the very old things. They want to know everything about them. They are knowledgeable, careful and discriminating in their selections. They are buying for pleasure, use and potential investment."

She never encourages people to buy for investment, she says, but "it is a safe thing to do if they want to do it. I certainly think there is no place for prices of old things to go but up."

An early sale in the show had been a Spanish foot tea table (1700s), she said. Among other choice things in her booth was a William and Mary ballfoot desk with its original brasses, pewter spoons with trifords — three point ends — and a rare New England Bible box (1680) with stamped decorations of sunflowers that "had been done with a little tool." The sturdy large box from the Pilgrim period had created a lot of interest, especially among young viewers.

Some things are unique for values that surpass even age and workmanship, she explained. Revolution buffs are especially interested in her silver tankard that was made by Samuel Minott of Boston for Ichabod Rollins, a planner of the Revolution. It seems Minott was reported to be a Tory, which provides great intrigue.

Other things that might otherwise rarely be seen outside museums always make this show for the benefit of the East Side House Settlement a unique event.

Lawrence King of Monroe County, Ill., was exhibiting a large handcrafted cupboard made by Norwegians in Wisconsin. It was decorated with a variety of motifs and was one of four made for daughters — three others like it are in museums — explained Raeburn Stanley, who operates King's other shop in Ohio. There was also a primitive-looking Norwegian chair that had been carved out of a log.

Some antiques style trends must be considered on a geographical basis; tastes vary, Yvonne Allen said.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — The beautiful wooden top of our console television set has some very tiny scratches in it. They can't always be seen, only when the light is shining on them a certain way, but we'd like to get rid of them. Can this be done without removing the old finish and putting on a new one?

A. — Yes, especially since the scratches are so minute. The top should be given what is called a pumice-rottenstone treatment. Both the pumice and the rottenstone are purchased in powdered form. Begin with the pumice. Sprinkle a bit of it on the wood over the scratches, covering a fairly small area at a time. Apply a little water or oil in the same place. Rub with a felt pad in the direction of the grain. In a few minutes, the area will become smooth to the touch and the scratches will have disappeared.

Keep doing this a little at a time until the entire surface of the top has been rubbed. Be sure to continue applying a little pumice powder and a little water or oil as you move along. When the entire top has been completed, it should be very, very smooth. The beginner may be dismayed to discover, however, that the original gloss is no longer there. It is because of the dull appearance of the wood that the second and final step is necessary. This step is sometimes called polishing, but is nothing more than additional rubbing. Follow the same procedure that you did the first time, except that this time you use rottenstone powder rather than pumice.

After you have gone over the entire surface, put aside the rottenstone and continue the rubbing, this time with a clean piece of felt. There are several types of rubbing compounds on the market designed to do away with pumice and rottenstone and they probably are excellent, but I have continued to use the treatment outlined here over the years and have obtained good results.

Q. — I recently purchased some oil stain and tested it on the underside of the table top I want to finish. It is a little too dark. How can it be made lighter?

A. — There are two ways to lighten an oil stain. One is to dilute it with a little turpentine. The other is to apply it, then wipe it off almost instantly. The longer it stays on the wood, the darker it gets, up to a point. A little more experimenting on the underside of that table top will get you the shade you want.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, wood filler, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 30 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743. Questions can not be answered personally.)

The Garden Clinic

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. Can I grow Snow Peas in this area? (W.R., Rocky Mount)

A. Yes. The Snow Pea is a delicacy in Oriental countries and it could and should be grown more in North Carolina. It can be grown anywhere the common English Pea or Garden Pea can be grown, which is throughout the state. It is a cool season vegetable and should be planted during February or early March. The tender pods are picked when the pea seed is just beginning to form. The Snow Pea is also called the Edible Podded Pea. Ask your local seedsman to stock them if he doesn't already do so. (Albert A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

Q. Last year I set a pecan tree in my yard which was dead by July. How can I have better success this year? (Mrs. T.C., Spring Lake)

A. Pecans should be set one to two inches deeper than they were in the nursery. They have a large root system. A hole two and a half feet deep and two and a half feet wide is needed for the average tree. Place the tree in the hole and fill three quarters full with good top soil. Add 10 to 12 quarts of water and when the water has disappeared, finish filling the hole with top soil. Mound soil about six inches high in a circle three feet from the trunk. Then you will have a place to apply 20 to 25 gallons of water each two to three weeks as needed. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

Q. My small garden plot has red clay soil that gets hard as a rock. How can I make it soft and loamy so that it will grow plants better? (J.L., Wake Forest)

A. A good garden soil has varying amounts of clay, organic matter and sand. Yours is probably all clay. Try adding some organic matter, such as rotted sawdust, peat or ground pine bark. Spread about three to four inches of this organic matter over your soil and work it into the upper eight to ten inches of your soil with a spading fork or tiller. A couple of inches of coarse sand can be worked in the same way. Mulching your crop with organic matter also reduces caking and crusting. (Albert A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

Everybody Gets Older, Nobody Has To Get Old

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — One day recently, Dr. Alton Ochsner, internationally famous surgeon for half a century, arose at 5:30 a.m. and did 105 pushups.

He puffed a bit toward the end, as might be expected of a man who will celebrate his 80th birthday May 4.

It was a standard beginning of another day in the bustling life of a physician who insists you have to age but you don't have to get old.

By 6:15 a.m., he was driving to work, blinking in disbelief as he always does when the highrise buildings of the Ochsner Medical Institutions loom in the suburban skyline.

Only 23 years ago, Ochsner and four associates borrowed $400,000 on their own signatures to build a small hospital in adjoining Jefferson Parish. When workmen finish expansion work next year, the Ochsner complex will have a $100 million face value.

One of the reasons behind this spectacular medical success story is the legendary energy of Ochsner, whose rettinue of attending younger physicians came to be known as the "Dawn Patrol" or the "Thundering Herd" as they tramped quick step down the original uptown clinic with its resounding wooden floors.

On this day of 105 pushups, Ochsner strode briskly up the stairs of Ochsner Foundation Hospital, disdaining the elevators as usual. In the next 90 minutes he visited 18 patients in their rooms.

By 8 a.m. he was ready for the busy time of his day, not in the operating room but in his fourth floor offices. The famed surgeon hasn't operated on an anesthetized patient in nine years by an Ochsner Foundation policy he himself voted for. He is too old to do major surgery, but he still receives patients and consults with his colleagues.

"Everybody gets older, but nobody has to get old," he said as he waited for his first patient. "Aging is a wearing out process. Start with a good machine and take care of it and it will last a long time.

"Even an inferior machine will wear well with care, but the very finest machine, and the human body is the most marvelous one there is, won't last if it is abused."

Ochsner listed three things contributing to premature aging: smoking, which is a major enemy to Ochsner; lack of exercise and obesity.

He is for exercise as much as he is against smoking. He used to begin each day with Canadian Air Force exercises, which included running in place. He stopped that and turned to pushups when the pounding of his feet knocked the plaster from the ceiling of the room below his bedroom.

Behind him as he talked were bound volumes of his 554 scientific papers published up to the end of 1973. There have been others since.

His first published work was written in German and appeared in 1922 in the Vienna Clinical Weekly. Ochsner was doing graduate work at the University of Zurich, and in the paper he described the paraffin glass method of blood transfusions, which he introduced in Europe.

"They didn't know about blood-matching," he said. "When I left for Zurich, my mentor and cousin, Dr. A. J. Ochsner of Chicago, suggested I take the paraffin equipment with me.

"They had done five transfusions in the year before I arrived, and three of the patients died. When they brought in a desperado who had been shot, they didn't care too much about what happened to him, so they asked me if I wanted to show my transfusion method.

"I quickly matched blood and made the transfusion. The patient responded. Then they brought in the president of the largest bank in Zurich. He was in bad shape from a bleeding ulcer.

"So I used matched blood again, and the man recovered. After that I demonstrated transfusions all over Europe."

In 1942, Secretary of State Cordell Hull asked Ochsner to try to save the life of Thomas Gabriel Duce, former president of Panama, gravely ill with a thyroid heart.

Ochsner flew to Panama City with an anesthesiologist, operated to relieve the thyroid crisis. For five days and nights, Ochsner remained by Duce's bedside while the patient's fever rose as high as 108 degrees.

Duce recovered and lived for 20 more years. He didn't complain about Ochsner's $5,000 fee, his largest.

The New Orleans surgeon flew in 1955 to Buenos Aires, an off-the-record flight to examine President Juan D. Peron, the Argentine dictator. He was suffering from arterial trouble.

The necessary surgery was too complicated to do in Buenos Aires, Ochsner told Peron.

"Very well," said Peron, "Congress is meeting next week. As soon as it is over, I'll come to New Orleans."

Peron didn't make it. Congress deposed him that week.

The deposed dictator did, however, acquire one plus from the visit. He swore off smoking.

The list of celebrity patients on which Ochsner has operated is long, containing such names as golfer Ben Hogan after his automobile accident in Texas, actor Gary Cooper and Gen. Clare Chennault of Flying Tiger fame in World War II.

After a luncheon meeting of directors of the Cordell Hull Foundation, Ochsner returned to his office and took out the stitches of a 50-year-old man who had a cyst removed the week before, examined a woman who feared breast cancer and another suffering from phlebitis.

"Can you help me, doctor?" the last patient asked.

"I can't do much," said Ochsner. "But, you can help yourself. You will have to stop smoking."

Shortly after 4 p.m., Ochsner drove to New Orleans International Airport to pick up a prominent Mexican, who was coming for treatment at the clinic. He dropped the man and his wife off at Brent House, the motel attached to the institutes.

He headed home, picked up Mrs. Ochsner and they dined at the home of friends. By 8 p.m., the Ochsners were back at their uptown New Orleans home, where they watched a television program. Then Ochsner worked until 10:30 p.m. on the manuscript of a paper he will present at a meeting.

Insurance Women Heard McPherson

H. L. "Mac" McPherson of the North Carolina Independent Agents Association of Raleigh was the keynote speaker of the Pitt County Association of Insurance Women Wednesday night at the Ramada Inn.

McPherson gave an insight on the workings of the General Assembly as respects to the N. C. Insurance Industry. At the last Assembly, 29 pieces of insurance legislature were passed, with 61 pieces killed or not acted upon.

"Every person in North Carolina is affected by insurance, and the only way we, the individual citizen can be heard is through our representatives," said McPherson.

Larry Wynne of St. Paul Five & Marine Insurance Company, spoke briefly, commending the insurance women for the role they play in the insurance industry.

Jane Bradbury, PCAIW President, opened the business meeting, reading letters from the National headquarters, urging the club to promote the national projects and goals, as well as local projects and goals. She also urged full attendance at the State Convention, being held in Asheville, in March, where three local members: Evelyn Stroud, Frances Blanchard, and Audrey Stillwell will receive their CPIW certificates.

Operation Lace, which is classes held on public speaking, was voted on to be held in the McRoy Insurance Agency office, with the time to be set at the planning meeting. At the end of the course one member will be selected for Operation Lace Speak-Off at Regional Conference.

Toni Lassiter, a local artists, and guest at the meeting donated a bicentennial painting for the State Convention.

Faye Williamson, a student of Rose High School who is employed part-time was also a guest of the meeting.

Errant Doctors Shudder At Name Of Melvin Belli

By KENNETH R. CLARK

NEW YORK (UPI) — To the American Medical Association, he's a subaltern of the devil.

To the American Bar Association, he's an omnipresent embarrassment.

To scores of grateful clients, whose damage claims he has won in five and six-figure brackets, he's the knight-errant who rescued them from the cold indifference of the wealthy and the powerful.

To himself, he's Melvin Belli — "King of Torts," flouter of conventions, baiter of judges and, above all, arch-foe of "bad medicine, bad prescriptions, bad diagnosis."

"If you hang out your shingle you ought to be able to sue anybody — doctors, lawyers, tennis players or anybody else," he said in an interview this week. "The answer (in stemming the burgeoning incidence of malpractice suits) is better medicine. Believe me, there are a hell of a lot of goofs in the medical profession. I had it from the president of the American College of Surgeons some years ago that 50 per cent of all surgery is unnecessary and dangerous. A great number of doctors just aren't fit to practice."

Doctors striking in California to protest rising malpractice insurance rates well might finger Belli as the one man who, beyond anyone else, has singlehandedly sent the rates soaring. Belli gleefully bows to the charge, but he says he has a solution for the malpractice lawsuit problem too, if only the medical profession would listen to him.

"Years ago you could never get one doctor to testify against another one," he said. "We broke that conspiracy of silence, and now the doctors themselves have got to clean up their act if they want to avoid malpractice charges. First, we've got to weed out the bad doctors through doctors' committees. Then we've got to go to the insurance companies and find out just how much money they actually lose on premiums and how much they've lost in the stock market."

Belli admitted that many malpractice suits are the result of "untoward events," rather than incompetency on the part of the doctor, and he proposed establishment of a fund to pay damages without litigation to claimants in obvious cases.

"I'd have every patient with a $15 doctor bill put up $1 extra for the fund," he said. "Then it could be used to settle claims of obvious error. A judge or a doctors' committee could order such payments without the claimant having to go to court. That wouldn't end the malpractice remedy, but it would funnel off an awful lot of cases."

Belli said he has proposed his brainchild to doctors, but with little success.

"Just because Belli suggested it, they want no part of it," he said. "They think I don't like them. I have nothing against doctors. I'll even go to one if I'm sick ... reluctantly."

Belli's record speaks eloquently for the mistrust. In more than 30 years in the courtroom, stunning juries with his always flamboyant and frequently spectacular left hook of "demonstrative evidence," Belli has wrested damages averaging in excess of $1 million a year from giant corporations and errant physicians. Malpractice suits are his specialty, and medical terminology rolls off his tongue as readily as does lawbook Latin.

To crack the mystique of the doctor as the always dedicated and compassionate font of all wisdom, Belli has resorted to demonstrative evidence techniques that, to more staid members of his profession, smack more of the circus than of the courtroom. But if they fail to impress judges and his fellow lawyers, they have had noticeable impact on juries — and it is the juries which bring in the awards for his aggrieved clients.

His client was suing a plastic surgeon for botchwork which had left her breast a mass of scar tissue. To illustrate his point, Belli took the woman into the judge's chambers, asked her to disrobe, then led the jurors in one by one to view the damage for themselves.

"It was the most dramatic thing I think I've ever seen," he said. "Her face was red and she was standing against a white sheet. She had her head bowed and the tears were falling down across her breast ... washing the scars. The jury gave her $115,000."

The tactics win cases, but they frequently have gotten Belli on the carpet with judges too — a carpet the American Bar Association vainly has tried to yank out from under him in the form of censure or disbarment because of his predilection for treating opposing attorneys and judges alike to the finely honed edge of his tongue.

Belli is unintimidated.

"One thing I think young lawyers should learn is 'don't try a case on your knees,'" he said. "I tell them, 'if you can't stand up to the judge ... and socially and carefully argue back, you don't belong in the courtroom. If you're scared to talk to him, you'd better let someone in there who isn't.'"

"Young lawyers" are Belli's favorite people — the ones who keep his faith in mankind and the American court system blazing as brightly as the brilliant red lining he favors for his sport coats.

"They don't give a damn about the establishment, the banks, the insurance companies or the American Bar Association," he said. "They're not interested in making a bundle of money. They're concerned for their fellow man. These young ones, and the goodness that's in them, came up out of the hippie movement.

"The idealistic improvement in the law is that all these young fellows are interested in helping the guy who up to now wasn't aware of his rights or economically wasn't situated so he could preserve his rights. When you get that, then you bring equal protection of the law and due process to everybody, and I haven't seen any such trend in France or England."

If Belli is entranced by what the hippie movement produced in young turks at law, however, he is equally disenchanted with his leading activist colleague, William Kunstler and "all his talk of revolution."

"We don't need a revolution," he said. "We need a practical revolution where the young fellows get out and help the people who can't pay them the big fees, and we're getting that, but for Kunstler to come out and say we need a revolution because the law's no good — that's a crock. He doesn't know the law."

Belli admits the American court system has its flaws, and that it is severely overloaded, but he's ready to do battle with doomsayers who call for drastic changes as a corrective measure.

"We're dealing basically with human beings and as long as you have human beings, you're not going to have computerized objective justice," he said. "As long as you have human beings, you're going to have perjury and you're going to have a crooked judge here and there — but a crooked judge is very, very very rare."

Perjury is not so rare. There's more perjury than the layman really realizes. A lawyer can set a witness up and tip him off through questioning what he should say — truthfully or otherwise. That kind of kid glove perjury is rampant. You can't take it out, dealing with human beings ... but you can't throw the whole system out just because you see this exemplification of human nature."

To Belli, freedom of the press is the "cornerstone," both of the courts and of democracy — even ahead of the rights of the individual — and he opposes any judicial "gag" of reporters covering a trial.

"If you want to destroy democracy," he said, "you put all the lawyers in jail and prevent the newspapers from publishing and you've done it."

Sorghum Could Be The Answer

By ALAMGIR MOHIUDDIN

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — On the Indian subcontinent, people have been known to starve to death rather than supplement their diets with an unknown food.

American CARE and the Mennonites hope to change all that.

Past efforts to change traditional eating habits, which contribute to the perennial food shortages in the region, have generally failed due to lack of public cooperation.

For example, the Hindus of India regard the cow as a sacred animal and beef eating, therefore, is strictly taboo.

But Imdia has the largest cattle population in the world and millions of stray cattle consume hundreds of thousands of tons of precious foodgrains each year.

Similarly, the Bengalis of Bangladesh have stubbornly refused to switch from rice, which is always in short supply, to any other staple.

But a successful experiment — substituting rice with a cereal little known in this part of the world has given agricultural economists new hope.

That cereal is sorghum, a protein-rich bonanza that is far cheaper to grow than rice or wheat.

According to one Bengali agriculture expert, sorghum "has come as a handy answer to the country's quest for an alternative cereal to reduce the pressure on rice."

The credit for successfully introducing sorghum in Bangladesh goes to two American voluntary relief organizations — CARE and the Mennonites.

The experiment with sorghum, begun two years ago by the two organizations, proved an instant success.

Farmers involved in the experiment found that sorghum can be grown on land which they had been forced to keep fallow — important in a country where only 24 million acres, about a third of the land area, is considered arable.

The cereal can be grown on dry land and the cost of sorghum cultivation is much lower than paddy (rice) cultivation.

The farmers also found sorghum yields two or three times as much as the same acreage of rice.

The first big crop of sorghum was ceremoniously harvested recently at Mirzapur, 60 miles from Dacca, in the presence of CARE and Bangladesh government officials.

To the pessimists' surprise the Bengalis loved it.

Market reports showed that people have been rushing to buy sorghum because it costs less than rice and they prefer the taste to wheat.

Sorghum chappatis (a baked flattened bread), Bengali housewives say, take less effort and time to make than wheat chappatis.

Joe Cocker In Friday Concert

JOE COCKER . . . will be in concert in Minges Coliseum on Friday, March 5, beginning at 8 p.m. Also on the bill will be a five member group from Chicago, Styx. Tickets for the major attractions event are available at $5.00 each from the Central Ticket Office.

Joe Cocker, a well known interpretive singer of rock music, is to appear in concert in Greenville on Friday night at Minges Coliseum. Under the sponsorship of the Student Union Major Attractions Committee, Cocker will be joined by Styx, a five member group from Chicago. Admission to the concert is $5.00 per person.

A workingman's son from the north of England, Cocker has performed songs by writers such as Dylan, Lennon-McCartney, Gregg Allman and Randy Newman.

His first hit was a 1967 cutting of a single called Marjorine, released in England where it hit the British Top 50 list. A little later, Joe and Chris Stainton waxed an unorthodox version of a Beatles' song, With A Little Help From My Friends, which became a major European hit.

Cocker's American debut was on the late Ed Sullivan's TV variety show. By 1972 he had recorded a fourth album, Joe Cocker, which has been followed by I Can Stand A Little Rain and a new album, Jamaica Say You Will. Highlighting this new album are two Randy Newman songs, I Think It's Going To Rain Today and Lucinda.

On the bill with Cocker in the Friday night Minges concert will be Styx, a five piece rock and roll band from Chicago's South Side. The five—Chuck Panazzo, Tommy Shaw, Dennis De Young, John Panazzo and James Young have five albums and one major hit single, Lady, to their credit.

Three of the Styx members, twins John and Chuck Panazzo and Dennis De Young, grew up together in Chicago's steel-mill district at the time the Beatles had captured every young man's fancy as heroes to emulate. Encouraged by their parents, the three formed their band and have been making music since, adding the two additional members along the way.

NCMA Exhibition For Bireline

It was in 1963 that Raleigh artist George Bireline first painted "Winter (Damaged)"—only it wasn't damaged then. Entitled simply "Winter," it was an abstract oil in large blocks of color resembling doors or windows.

But after the painting had been exhibited several times, Bireline's 13-year-old daughter accidentally put a hole through the canvas. A ruined work of art? Not quite.

Last year, Bireline painted a Band-Aid of crossed strips of masking tape over the hole. The retitled canvas is today an example of both the artist's humor and the range of his talent.

"Winter (Damaged)," illusory masking tape and all, is one of about 60 paintings that will be on display in the N.C. Museum of Art in Raleigh when "Original Bireline: A Retrospective of the Work of George Bireline" opens on March 7. The show will continue through April 11.

The paintings in the retrospective cover 21 years and several styles in Bireline's development, ranging from the abstract expressionism of the mid-fifties to the meticulously detailed realistic objects he paints today.

Now a professor of design at N.C. State University in Raleigh, Bireline has been painting since about 1945. He gained national recognition in 1964 with a first one-man show at a New York art gallery.

Before coming to NCSU, Bireline was a scenery technician for the outdoor drama "Unto These Hills" and technical director of the Raleigh Little Theater. He also worked with the development of geodesic domes with Buckminster Fuller's original firm.

"The museum sponsors a series of one-man shows recognizing important North Carolina artists," said Moussa Domit, director of the museum. "This exhibition is a part of that program. We think Bireline's work as a painter and as an inspirational teacher has made a lasting impact on the state's artistic climate."

Comments from people who have worked with Bireline and owned his paintings are included in the catalogue published in conjunction with the show. The catalogue introduction is by Duke University art history professor Charlotte Vestal Brown.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By WILLIE MAE GIBBS

Jean Baron Nassau, a specialist in the health-care field has provided a badly needed guide for potential nursing home patients and their families. Armed with the sensitive and concerned insights and advice that she has put into CHOOSING A NURSING HOME, patients and their families can assure themselves or more adequate and acceptable care than most receive today, CHOOSING A NURSING HOME covers all of the important questions one should ask before making a choice. It tells what the differences are between various types of homes; how to judge the administrative and medical personnel and programs; how to evaluate the physical plant; how to judge the nursing and dietary departments; what aspects of the recreational and rehabilitational services are essential for a specific patient; what the goals of the social services department should be. Included also is a thorough discussion of Medicare and Medicaid benefits and how they apply to skilled nursing facilities. Going beyond the choosing of a nursing home, Jean Nassau offers many valuable suggestions on how to prepare the patient emotionally for his move to a home, and what to do on admission day and during the first weeks there to make the adjustment easier. Written from her experience as a former nursing-home administrator, Ms. Nassau's book will be an invaluable aid to the layman when a crisis arises and it is essential to find a nursing home for a relative or close friend.

Senator Charles H. Percy, a member of the Senate Special Committee on Aging and the Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, forces us to take a hard look at ourselves as he reflects upon the present of our aged and the future of our young in a book called GROWING OLD IN THE COUNTRY OF THE YOUNG. Superbly researched and documented, this book talks of people as well as facts and statistics. Why has a sudden wave of elderly shoplifters begun to strike our nation's supermarkets and drugstores? Why does one out of every four men and women over 65 live below the poverty line? Why are conditions getting worse rather than better for 20 million older Americans? What can you do about it? These are some of the questions that Senator Percy addresses in his book. He defines the problems and suggests practical and specific solutions for the aged in the areas of poverty, unemployment, government health programs, home health care, nursing homes and housing. No book could be more timely or practical for the aged and their families.

Arts and crafts serve a very special function in the general activities program for the elderly whether they are in a nursing home, in a rest home, in their own home, or living with relatives. Realizing this, Elaine Gould and Loren Gould, M.A. have written for nursing-home craft directors and all who work with the elderly a book that explains, step-by-step, a variety of inexpensive craft projects that they have developed while working with actual patients in a nursing home. Even the inexperienced craft worker can begin any of the projects without fear that she will be unable to complete directing the patient's efforts. Working with these projects, an individual can develop ideas of his own as to how he can expand his program. There is simply the need on the part of the worker to be patient-oriented and to develop crafts that interest the different patients rather than those that sell at nursing-home fairs.

After Seventy-Five Years, No Statue Of Sir Walter

Seventy-five years have passed since the idea took form and still there is no official statue to Sir Walter Raleigh in Raleigh, the city named for him.

It is hoped that this situation will be remedied soon after the introduction in March of Bruno Lucchesi, the sculptor who has been selected to do a bicentennial commemorative statue of the Elizabethan soldier, sailor, statesman, poet, and writer.

The bicentennial plaza in the state government complex has been selected as the site for the memorial. Lucchesi will show models of his proposed statue for the site.

The problem now will be to raise the $50,000 necessary to erect the statue. The sum includes the sculptor's fee and various installation costs.

The project started in 1901 under the auspices of the State Literary and Historical Association. School children contributed pennies, nickles, dimes and sometimes even quarters to a fund that never quite reached a sum, even in those days, to erect the statue.

Apparently after the initial outburst of interest, the project lost its appeal. The money had been deposited in banks where some of it was lost during bank failures of the Depression years, or so accounts of the disposition of the collection seem to run.

Some $10,226 remained with the state treasurer.

Lucchesi, born in a mountain village near Florence, Italy, in 1926, studied art in Florence, supporting himself while doing so by carving eagles, crosses, angels, cherubs and other figures for caskets.

Finishing his studies at an art institute, he worked in a factory that manufactured religious figurines, but at the same time was a parttime member of the faculty of architecture at the University of Florence. He emigrated to New York in 1957.

His work now is in the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Brooklyn Museum, the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts, the Ringling Museum of Art and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Pendered Book To Be Published

Dr. Norman C. Pendered of the East Carolina University School of Technology faculty has been notified that his manuscript, "Stede Bonnet; Carolina's Other Pirate," has been accepted for publication by the Times Printing Company of Manteo.

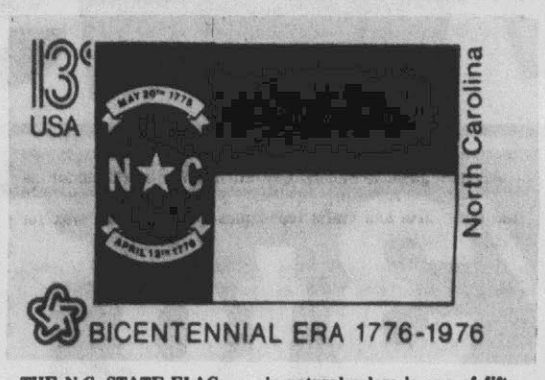

The book is scheduled for release in late spring or early summer.

Dr. Pendered said "Stede Bonnet" is a companion volume to his earlier publication, "Blackbeard: The Fiercest Pirate of All." The newer book includes material on Bonnet never before printed.

"It will shed new light on Carolina's 'Gentleman Pirate,'" he said.

Dr. Pendered is chairman of the ECU Department of Industrial and Technical Education.

Speight, Sexauer Showings

Donald Sexauer and Francis Speight, both faculty members in the School of Art, East Carolina University, are having work exhibited in the 151st Annual Exhibition of the National Academy of Design at the Academy's Galleries, 1083 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The exhibition, which opened yesterday, will continue on view through March 21. The big annual exhibit this year includes 329 works of art representing various media including prints, paintings, drawing and sculpture.

Speight is exhibiting as a National Academy member, having been elected to that body a number of years ago. Sexauer is one eight non-member graphic artists in America invited to show in the 1976 annual exhibit.

Prints by Sexauer are also on view in two other current exhibitions. Old Man's Gold and Other Stories
by Ovid Pierce

"One sees in these stories not only the stylistic evolution of a fine craftsman but the evolution of his later novels as well. Taken as a whole a remarkable portrait of a time and place emerges."
—SAM RAGAN

"The real heart of any work of fiction lies in its power of revelation, of giving us an electric moment in which we perceive something new—or, perhaps, something old that we had forgotten—about human life. Time and again, on the pages of his slender volume, Mr. Pierce evokes this flash. These are timeless stories. Beautiful and instructive. If they have a fault it is only that there are not more of them."

U.S. Warns Blindness May Be Increasing

By R. M. SORGE

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The number of blind persons throughout the world will double from the present 10 million within 25 years unless preventative measures are taken now, specially in the poorer countries, the United Nations warns.

The warning is spelled out by the World Health Organization (WHO) in a pamphlet entitled "Foresight Prevents Blindness," issued for World Health Day, April 7.

"Prevention is important in all the world, but particularly in the developing world where most preventable blindness occur ... and where cure is available only to few due to lack of adequate health services", says Dr. Halfdan Mahler, Director General of WHO.

Professor G. B. Bietti, an expert with the organization, notes that "it is almost impossible to make an acceptable estimate of the total number of blind people in the world. (But) a reasonable estimation of between 10 and 16 million blind people would probably be close to the real situation."

Mass campaigns with antibiotics and the improvement of social and economic conditions have markedly reduced the severity of eye infections in specific areas, the WHO says.

But it calls for an intensified prevention program, saying that otherwise the total blind population could double by the year 2000. "Throughout the developing world" it says, "two-thirds of blindness is estimated to be preventable or curable. (But) cure is possible only to few because of lack of adequate health service."

Trachoma is still the No. 1 cause of blindness, according to WHO. It attacks the lining of the eyelid (conjunctiva) and the cornea, the transparent front portion of the eyeball. WHO estimates there are 400 million to 450 million trachoma cases around the world, including 120 million in India alone. Some 2 million sufferers are totally blind.

Onchocerciasis or "river blindness" — transmitted by bites of the blackfly in tropical Africa and Latin America — is listed in second place. It weakens the entire human body, in particular the eyes. About 20 million persons round the world suffer from onchocerciasis.. The worst affected are the 10 million people in the Volta River basin of West Africa. One million of them are affected and 70,000 are totally blind.

WHO says the third most frequent cause of lost eyesight isXerophthalmia. Its symptoms are dryness of the conjunciva and cornea due to Vitamin A deficiency. About 100,000 people are believed to be blind due to xerophthalmia, particularly in Indonesia, some areas of India and other eastern Asian countries and certain parts of Central America and Africa.

"Early treatment," the WHO report says, "will cure trachoma before the eye is damaged; administration of Vitamin A to children will prevent xerophthalmia; vector control will prevent onchocerciasis.

"Other more long-term measures also have a part to play in controlling eye infections — better sanitation; cleaner and more abundant water; improvement of personal and environmental hygiene ...

"To a large extent the resources are there; it is a question of utilizing them and putting men and money into their application.

"Half a dollar will treat a case of trachoma — $5 will remove a cataract — 12 U.S. cents will buy enough Vitamin A to protect a child from xerophthalmia for a year."

These rates vary from 51 blind persons per 100,00 inhabitants in Belgium to 4,000 per 100,000 in Yemen.

The total blind population in the United States is estimated at 385,000, with a rate of 214 per 100,000.

Other regional rates (per 100,000 population):

Africa: Uganda 1,842; Kenya 1,050 to 1,150; Northern Nigeria 1,000; Sierra Leone 952; Malawi 724; Northern Cameroon 684; Tanzania 569; Zambia 500 to 750; Tunisia 450; Ethiopia 380 to 450.

Americas: Cuba 968; Brazil 141; Mexico 101; Argentina and Uruguay 80 to 90.

Middle East: Yemen 4,000; Saudi Arabia 3,000; Iraq 500 to 1,000.

Europe: England 209; Italy 200; Sweden 196; Greece 170; Switzerland 145; France 107; Hungary and Yugoslavia 100; Portugal 93; Romania 77; Poland 66; West Germany 60; Spain 56; Belgium 51; Netherlands 50 to 60.

Western Pacific: Australia 222; New Zealand 135. Polynesia fewer than 145, except for Fiji with a rate of 1,190.

Typical British Actress Really Is An American

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — Only one things keeps Mikel Lambert, now playing leading roles with the Royal Shakespeare Company, from being a typical British actress.

She's American.

"I'm the only one in the company," she said, brushing back her long dark hair. "But I don't think you could say I got here the American way."

Her way, in fact, could hardly be more traditionally British. Without intending it, Mikel Lambert has followed the precise pattern of the characteristic English actor's career.

Just now there is the glory and glamor of London's West End. Last year was the heady atmosphere of Stratford-upon-Avon.

But before that were a dozen years of hard work, of drama school and repertory theater in provincial towns, a marriage broken by threater pressures, near-miss success on the London fringe, a few minor television parts.

Ahead, now that she's made it close to the top, lies unemployment.

Mikel Lambert loves it all. She sat in a stark, concrete block dressing room, sipping beer during a rehearsal break, and made it clear that to her the theater still means romance.

"I don't think an actor could do it now the way I did," she mused. "It used to be much easier to get a big spread of parts.

"I don't think the opportunities are there now. I teach a little, and I tell my students not to expect old peoples' parts. Actors now tend to be picked to play their own types."

Mikel ranges more widely. Currently she is Gertrude in a modern-dress "Hamlet," seldom off stage in Brecht's "Man is Man" and concealing her angular beauty under Doll Tearsheet's makeup in "Henry IV part 2."

The first two plays are Downstairs at The Roundhouse, a basement theater under a converted railway engine shed which the Royal Shakespeare has taken over for a season. The other is at its usual London theater, the Aldwych. Miss Lambert played all three roles last year at Stratford.

Before she took dead aim on the theater, Mikel's life was patterned like a jigsaw puzzle.

"I grew up all over the world," she said. She trotted the globe with her father, Los Angeles Times foreign correspondent Tom Lambert, learning Japanese and Russian and two other languages on the way.

"It's always nice when these things are useful," she said. "I was in a spy thriller on television the other day where half the part was in German.

"Once I had to play the piano in a part, so I was able to write Daddy that all those lessons weren't wasted. He was delighted."

Lambert was first assigned to London in 1962 and Mikel, fresh from Radcliffe, made a bee-line for RADA. The Royal Academy of Dramatic Art is the favorite hothouse for budding English actors and her classmates included Anthony Hopkins and Simon Ward.

RADA led, as in British tradition it always does, to "rep."

"I played all over England," Mikel said. "Liverpool, Lincoln, Nottingham, Aberystwyth — you name it, I've worked there. I played literally everything — ladies of 60, Chekhov and Shaw, just everything.

"There's a kind of magic about living in digs. They introduced me to things like cold bedrooms and black pudding. But it really was marvelous. I still write to some of my landladies.

"One thing I loved was discovering the differences in England. I've never been in a country where you go 50 miles and everything is different — different accent, different architecture, different character about the people."

The call to Stratford came out of the blue. Mikel chose words with slow care in describing her reaction.

"I think every actor who is honest who has been invited to join the Royal Shakespeare will tell you it's a summit, a dream. It was for me.

"Stepping onto that Stratford stage — well, it was glorious. It's not just a theater like any other. There is something very special about that stage. So many famous names. So many great talents."

Surely that experience, plus her current London exposure, will lead to greater things?

"Well, let's see," Mikel said, digging out a diary. "We play here through March 19. I suppose on March 20 I'll be unemployed." The prospect did not seem to dismay her.

"There will be something. With two children of whom I'm the sole support, there has got to be." The something, of course, will be in theater.

"You always want to step higher next time," Mikel Lambert said. "I suppose when the day comes when that doesn't happen, you're in a real jam.

"Then you have a major decision to make. I hope I never have to make it."

Use Ultrasound In Diagnosis

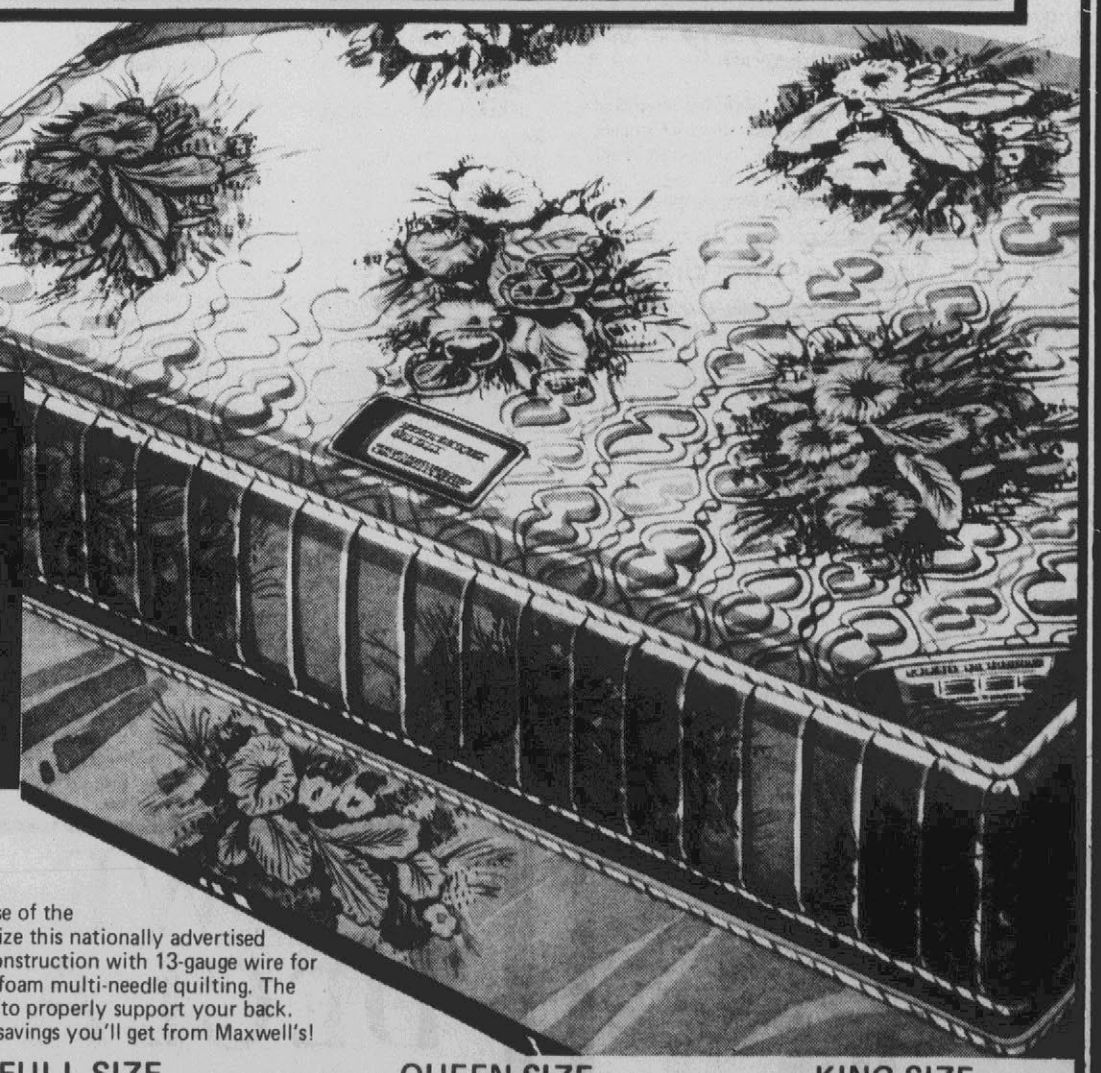

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — A new diagnostic tool called ultrasound is being used in radiation diagnosing examinations at the University of Texas Medical Branch.

Used primarily for acquiring anatomical information, ultrasound uses the principles of a submarine's sonar. Through the use of an ultrasonascope, sound wave echoes are recorded, mapping the contour of internal organs when a particular density or organ is encountered.

Radiologists say ultrasound is both noninvasive and noninjurious to the patient because abnormal anatomy can be imaged — or seen — simply, accurately and without radiation exposure to the patient.

Mounties Upend Bucs In Tourney Game

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Appalachian State University probably set a new NCAA record last night in getting past East Carolina, 79-72, in the first round of the Southern Conference story.

It might take some searching, but one wonders what the record is for the least fouls called against a basketball team. Last night, officials Dick Cook and Tom Fraim called just four against Appalachian State, two in each half.

As a result, East Carolina never sent to the free throw line, and the loss was a direct result. The Mountaineers took advantage of 21 fouls called against the Bucs to hit 17 of 24 shots in the game, including 12 of 17 in the second half.

The two first half fouls were both defensive ones. The two in the second half were both offensive. The first in the second half came with 10:08 left, and by then, ASU was comfortably into the one-and-one at their end of the court. The other came with just 2:43 left.

"No free throws?" a disgusted Dave Patton, coach of the Pirates asked. "We didn't have a chance at the line. I've never seen anything like it. I don't ever remember being connected with a game or even hearing about one like this.

"I certainly think that the officiating was the key to the victory. It was unbelievable," he said.

The coach added that if the Bucs had shot just half of Appalachian's total, 12, they would have had a chance to win the game. "Our average would have given us eight, enough to win.

The statistics would seem to bear out what Patton said. Both teams hit 55.4 per cent of their shots—and as a result, East Carolina outhit Appalachian by 10 points, making five more field goals. The Bucs had less turnovers, 11-8, but we outrebounded by three, 31-28.

"It's just like always," Patton said. "The team that comes in here shoots the eyes out of it. Look at (Calvin) Bowser, making 12 of 18. He's only a 30 per cent shooter for the year."

Patton added that part of that was defense. "It's been the same all year, when we front a guy, we don't get any offside help when he gets the ball, and when we get behind him, he shoots the eyes out by jumping over us."

"Still," Patton said, "you have to expect to get to the foul line sometime—especially when you're on your own home court."

The Pirates took an early lead in the game, but never led by more then four points in the half. Appalachian tied it at 2-2 and 8-8 before finally gaining the lead on a jumper from the lane by Bowser at 25-24. East Carolina tied it back up at 26-26, then regained the lead on a jumper from the free throw line (the closest the Bucs got to it) at 28-26.

Appalachian got the lead back at 31-30 on a jumper by Daryll Robinson with 2:04 left, and moved out by five points on two Bowser free throws and a jumper by Mel Hubbard. Reggie Lee cut it back to 35-32 at the horn.

The Bucs cut it back to one point as the second half opened, but they were never able to take the lead. Bowser ran it back up to four with a three-point play and Robinson added two free throws to make it six points. Hubbard added a jumper for a 48-38 lead, but the Bucs were able to put on a rally and come back to within four at 48-44 before the Mounties pulled away again.

After that, it was simply a pull away as the Mounties continued their trips to the free throw line, building up as much as a 13-point lead late in the game before the Bucs cut it back to as little as five on the press, but were forced to continue fouling to try and get the ball.

Bowser finished the game with 32 points, while Robinson and Hubbard had 16, and Bob Pace had 13.

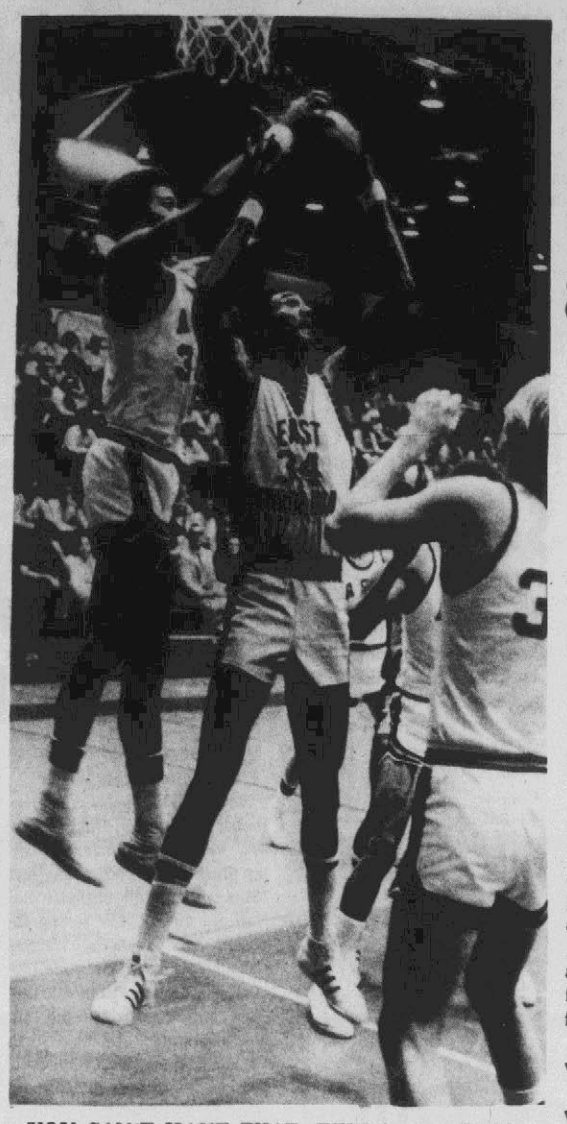

Earl Garner led East Carolina with 26, while Wade Henkel had 12, and Louis Crosby and Billy Dineen each had 10.

Henkel led the rebounding for the Bucs with eight, while Robinson had an equal number for Appalachian.

The Mountaineers now move into the semi-finals of the Southern Conference Tournament at Greenville, S.C., Wednesday night against the winner of the VMI-Davidson game.

William & Mary Rallies To Take 70-57 Victory

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—William and Mary's Indians, after falling behind 9-0, rallied behind Ronnie Satterthwaite and Billy Harrington for a 70-57 victory Saturday night over Furman's Paladins in a Southern Conference basketball tournament first round game.

The victory moved the Indians into next Wednesday night's semifinals at Greenville, S. C., against Richmonds Spiders, who defeated The Citadel's Bulldogs, 82-69.

William and Mary, seeded second with an 8-3 conference record, went the first 6:48 without a point as Jim Strickland scored five and Ray Miller four for Furman.

But the Indians, now 15-12 over-all, broke the ice on a 15-foot jumper by Harrington and eventually took their first lead at 23-22 on a jumper by John Lowenhaupt.

Leading 31-29 at the half, the Indians started the second half with six straight points by Harrington to move out to a 35-31 lead. The Paladins cut the gap to two points once and to four points at 47-43 after the Indians had gone in front 43-35.

But the Indians, with Satterthwait hitting 11 of 12 at the foul line, gradually pulled away and went to a four-corner offense in the last seven minutes.

Satterthwaite finished with 23 points and Harrington with 12 for the Indians.

Furman, which had won the last three conference championships, bowed out at 9-18 with Miller scoring 22 points and Strickland 19.

Howard Leads Terps To 81-73 Win Over Cavaliers

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Senior Mo Howard, in an emotional final home game performance, came off the bench to score 24 points and lead 10th ranked Maryland to an 81-73 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Virginia Saturday night.

By winning, the Terps finished the ACC regular season with a 7-5 record and clinched the No. 2 seed in the league tournament which opens next Thursday.

After building a 63-43 lead as Howard scored five of Maryland's 13 consecutive points, the Terps almost blew their commanding advantage as Marc Iavaroni led a Virginia comeback.

Maryland, leading 71-51 with 11:09 remaining, made only one field goal until Howard banked a shot off the board to make it 77-69 with 1:29 to play.

Maryland tried to hold the ball, starting with a 73-62 lead, but Virginia twice gained possession of the ball and scored five more points as some of the Maryland fans booed the stalling strategy.

Wally Walker scored 24 points to pace Virginia, which is now 15-11 including 4-8 in the ACC.

Senior John Lucas, off on his shooting, scored 15 for Maryland and moved into seventh place on the all-time ACC scoring list with 1,988 points. The Terps ended the regular season at 21-5.

Wake Survives For 98-96 Win

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — Skip Brown and Rod Griffin combined for 52 points and Wake Forest survived a closing North Carolina State rally for a 98-96 victory Saturday in a final regular season Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game for both teams.

Two foul shots by Jerry Schellenberg lifted Wake Forest to a 98-93 lead with 28 seconds remaining and the Deacons held the 15th ranked Wolfpack to a foul shot by Dirk Ewing and a field goal by 7-1 Glenn Sudhop in the regionally televised game.

After the goal by Sudhop, who finished with 21 points for N. C. State, the Deacons ran out the clock.

Brown scored 28 points and Griffin scored 24 for Wake Forest, which wound up the regular season with a 5-7 conference record and 19-9 overall, its best record since 1969 when the Deacons went 18-9.

The loss left N. C. State at 7-5 and 19-7. Maryland had a chance to share second place with N. C. State by winning over Virginia.

Al Green equaled Sudhop's 21 points for the Wolfpack and Kenny Carr added 18 before fouling out with 56 seconds remaining in the game. Brown departed by the foul route with 1:52 remaining.

N. C. State dropped behind by seven points at the start of the game but caught the Deacons at 16-16 and the teams swapped buckets until Griffin hit a 35-footer to give Wake Forest a 49-47 halftime lead.

The Wolfpack opened up a five-point lead early in the second period when a Phil Spence layup put the margin at 66-61. Schellenberg finally put Wake Forest ahead to stay with a driving layup for a 77-76 lead at 8:08.

East Carolina Rolls To Wrestling Tournament Win

CHARLESTON, S.C.—The East Carolina wrestling team amassed 111 points to easily outdistance William and Mary and swept its fifth consecutive Southern Conference Wrestling title here Saturday.

William and Mary with 74¾ points was a distanct second place followed by VMI with 30, and The Citadel in a surprise fourth place with 26½ points.

The Pirates crowned five individual champions and were never seriously threatened throughout the entire tournament. Paul Osman took a 5-0 decision over William and Mary's Bob Pincus to win the 126 weight class while Tom Marriott claimed his fourth straight Southern Conference title with a 11-4 decision over Richmond's Justin Green in the 142 weight class.

East Carolina's Phil Mueller registered the only fall in the finals pinning VMI's Bob Sherrard in 6:55. Ron Whitcomb took his second conference title with a tough 4-0 victory over Chip Dempsey of William and Mary at 177 Mike Radford won his third straight title in the 190 weight class with a 9-2 decision over VMI's John Vizzi.

The biggest upset in the tournament came in the finals of the 150 weight class where William and Mary's Max Lorenzo stung ECU's Paul Thorp, the defending champion and number one seed, with a 15-10 decision.

Tom Dursee of William and Mary stopped ECU's Wendell Hardy with a close 4-2 decision at 118 while VMI's Ed Stepanovich claimed a 9-4 win over D.T. Joyner in the heavyweight division.

"I think we came away with as many champions as I really expected to, "said Pirate head coach John Welborn, named the Coach of the Year for the fifth consecutive season." I was very disappointed that Paul Thorp was beaten, but you just have to give a lot of credit to William and Mary. They did an outstanding job even though they did finish far behind us."

East Carolina is the first Southern Conference team to ever win five straight conference championships.

Mike Regner of The Citadel took an easy 17-8 superior decision over ECU's Paul Prewitt to win the title at 158 and was voted as the Outstanding Wrestler in the Tournament.

All ten conference champions will move on to the NCAA Wrestling Championships which will be held March 18-20 in Tucson, Arizona.

Paul Thorpe who lost in the finals, was chosen the wild card winner and will go to the nationals along with the other ECU winners.

ECU Women Stop Lady Mounties

By JOHN EVANS

RALEIGH—East Carolina's Lady Pirates basketball team used an impressive shooting display in the second half to rebound from a 39-34 halftime deficit and down Appalachian State, 77-68, here yesterday.

The Lady Pirates, down by as many as nine late in the opening half, scored the first eight points of the second half and fired in 57 per cent of their second half shots to overcome the Lady Apps, who fell to 15-4 on the season.

East Carolina was led by the shooting of freshman Rosie Thompson and senior Ellen Garrison. Thompson hit on 13 of 18 field goals and six of eight free throws to lead ECU with 32 points. Garrison's hot outside shooting and aggresive defense led to 14 points for her, on seven of 12 shots.

In the second half, Thompson hit eight of nine shots to lead the scoring, and the ECU defense, led by Garrison, Susan Manning and Debbie Freeman, forced ASU into numerous turnovers which enabled the Lady Bucs to roll to their twelfth win in 17 games.

The Pirates, after the spurt at the beginning of the second half, trailed only once after intermission, 45-44, before scoring nine straight points to take the lead for good, at 53-45.

The Pirates built the lead to 65-57 with 5:25 to play and never led by less than six the rest of the way.

The ladies' next action will be next weekend in the NCAIAW tournament in Chapel Hill.

Rain Halts TPG Play Saturday

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — A violent thunderstorm, packing torrential rain, winds and lightning, forced a cancellation of Saturday's scheduled third round play in the $300,000 Tournament Players Golf Championship.

The third round was rescheduled for Sunday with the fourth round pushed back until Monday.

The 36 hole leaders—Don January, Jack Nicklaus and J.C. Snead—were still awaiting their starting times and only a handful of early starters had begun play when the storm hit the already-damp and soggy 7,128-yard Inverrary Country Club course.

Players were rushed to cover moments before lightning began to strike.

Play was held up at 10:43 a.m., EST, and finally cancelled at 12:30 p.m. when the heavy rain flooded the course and rendered it unplayable. Greens and traps were flooded and pools and puddles of casual water formed in the fairways.

"It was cancelled for obvious reasons," said Jack Tuthill, chief of the officials for this event. He made a gesture toward the pouring rain.

"What can you say?" asked Nicklaus. "Obviously, we'd like to have played, but what can you do?"

The wash-out was the first on the pro tour this year, but was a continuation of a series of weather problems that have plagued this ambitious event that ranks as the championship of the touring pros.

The first TPC championship in Atlanta in 1974, won by Nicklaus, was interrupted five times by weather and finally completed a day late. Last year's event in Fort Worth, won by Al Geiberger, was played in terrific heat, humidity and occasional storms.

This time, the opening round Thursday was delayed by rain and the day's play eventually was halted by darkness with Nicklaus and 32 others stranded on the course.

That round was completed shortly after dawn Friday immediately before the start of the second round in which the 46-year-old January took the lead with a nine-under-par total of 135. He had a solid, four-under-par 68 over the second 18 holes.

Nicklaus and Snead, the recent winner of the San Diego Open, were one shot back at 136. Nicklaus had a second round 70, Snead 69.

British Open champion Tom Watson and Jim Masserio were another stroke behind at 137. Watson had a second round 70 despite a double bogey six and Masserio a 68.

Eastern Carolina Tourney Heads List Of Area Clashes This Week

Most of the sports talk these days is about the ACC basketball tournament this week in Landover, Md. But if you ask an Eastern Carolina Conference coach to pick the winner, he might reply, "What tournament?"

Right now, the big thing on their minds is the ECC tournament which also begins this week but in Farmville. And if you think the ACC tournament will be a good one, the ECC clash will by a dilly.

In no previous year has the league been so balanced and the race has been tight all year. There were two ties when the season ended for the middle berths.

North Pitt clinched the regular season title three games ago when the Panthers beat C. B. Aycock. But the Panthers were able to do it only after knocking Ayden-Grifton out of first place and down to a tie for third with Farmville Central, the host team.

North Pitt is led by Donnie Perkins, the area's second leading scorer with an 18.9 average. The Panthers have been averaging 64 offensive points a game and winning by 12.

The Panthers have probably the best guard in the conference in Jesse Harris and some of the best shooters in Virgil Pilgreen and Kenneth Roberson. Helping on the boards will be Wallace Council along with Perkins.

The Panthers will face Aycock in the second game Monday in the tournament's first round. North Pitt should be wearing falcon feathers, Tuesday.

The only other team averaging over 60 points a game is Ayden-Grifton which broke out of a five game losing streak Friday night bashing Aycock, 83-63. The Chargers have been winning by three. Greene Central, however, has been winning by just a point.

The Rams finished second in the loop mainly on a second half surge that saw them beat North Pitt, Ayden-Grifton and D. H. Conley. The Rams have been led all year by Marvin Rouse (15.8 ppg) and he has been in double figures every game. He should not break that habit this week.

Rouse will get help from Nelson Edwards (11.9 ppg) point-wide, and Melvin Briggs, Melvin Darden and Lawrence Swinson rebound-wise.

The Rams finished their season on a big win beating Conley at the buzzer Friday night, 64-63. Greene Central has to wait until Tuesday night at 8:30 to get into the action when they take on the seventh place Southern Nash Firebirds. Again, more flying feathers.

Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central both won Friday night tieing for third. The Chargers have been battling North Pitt for the lead until the two met three weeks ago. The Chargers lost and charged to third. They may have turned things around.

A-G will be tough with three of the area's top 20 scorers in their lineup. Willie Forbes leads the team with 13.6 points per game while fellow guard Paul Ricciarelli is hitting an 11.4 clip. Forward Ogden Braxton is scoring 10.3 a game.

The Chargers will have to stay in their offense, play good defense and rebound strong to stampede past North Lenoir. Vern Davenport, Frankie Dail, Dennis Moore, Mike Teachy and freshman James Leggett should lead the front line crew. If A-G got its act together Friday night, they could mean trouble for somebody.

Farmville Central helped themselves and A-G out by beating North Lenoir Friday, knocking the Hawks into a tie for fifth. The Jaguars started the season off with a bang but their bubble popped when Mitchell Foskey came down with the mumps and was out for three weeks.

Missing him all but wiped the Jaguars out of the race. When he came back, he brought with him Keno Farrow who has taken over the team's scoring lead after nine games, 16.1 Foskey leads the team in rebounds, blocked shots and most intimidations. Helping on the points will by James Baker (10.9 ppg), Walter Gorham, Jeff Fields, Timmy Ward and Ed Edwards. And with the tournament being at Farmville Central, to count the Jags out would be a big mistake. The Jags meet Conley, which they beat twice, Wednesday night at 5:30 p.m.

Ayden-Grifton will meet North Lenoir and Farmville Central

Ford, Kupchak Lead UNC Win

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Saturday was North Carolina basketball Coach Dean Smith's 45th birthday and his fourth ranked Tar Heels gave him a memorable 91-71 victory over Atlantic Coast Conference archrival Duke, finishing the regular season with a 24-2 record overall and 11-1 in the league.

While no mention was made of the birthday before or after the game, the 8,800 fans sang happy birthday to Smith before the regionally televised game got under way.

Smiling and unusually relaxed after the game, Smith wouldn't gloat over the commanding win, instead praising his three seniors who had played their last home game and saying, "I think we caught Duke on one of their off days of the year."

"Mitch (Kupchak) just played a great game in bowing out, and I'm glad Bill Chambers and Dave Hanners were able to contribute more than usual—although they have had their share of great success," he said.

The victory wasn't all that relaxed Smith. His team, in clinching the ACC regular season championship last Tuesday, earned a first round bye in the ACC tournament, beginning Thursday.

The win was North Carolina's 12th straight and was sparked by an explosive fast break, an equally explosive Phil Ford and 65 per cent shooting in the second half to come from behind.

The loss dropped Duke to 4-8 record in the ACC and 13-13 overall.

After shooting 38 per cent from the field in the first half and going to the dressing room trailing by one, 34-33, North Carolina went ahead on its first bucket in the second half and kept the lead all the way.

Ford put in 22 of his 28 total points while Kupchak grabbed nine of his 15 rebounds in the last half as the Tar Heels gradually expanded to their biggest lead of 22 points, 91-69, with 1:20 left.

The Blue Devils, led by Tate Armstrong's 29 points, was outrebounded by North Carolina 39-27 and never seriously threatened the Tar Heels in the second half, as North Carolina outscored them 11-4 in the early minutes.

Duke's last gasp came when 6-foot-9 pivot man Willie Hodge fouled out with 11:09 remaining and North Carolina already up by 10, 57-47.

East Carolina Opens Baseball Season Saturday Against Terps

East Carolina University will open its baseball season here March 6 against the University of Maryland.

The Pirates will be hoping to start a season similar to the even-numbered seasons which have preceded them to this point. Except for 1972, the Pirates have won the Southern Conference championship every even-numbered year.

The opening game will be the first of two with the Terps, who finished third in the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 7-3 loop mark last season. Other ACC opposition will come from N.C. State, the defending champions; UNC and Duke.

East Carolina finished 17-12 overall and 9-5 in conference play. The Pirates have a 14-game league slate, as is usual in the conference. The Pirates also have a pair scheduled with UNC-Wilmington, last season's NAIA national tournament representative from this area.

"This schedule will help us determine how quickly we will become competitive," said George Williams, in his third year as head coach. "Team by team, the Atlantic Coast and Southern conferences present some good baseball."

Williams hopes his club will be in the thick of the conference race, as well as give a good showing outside. Gone from the 1975 club is Ron Staggs, who set eight ECU career hitting records before departing for the pros last summer. He will be replaced by Sonny Wooten, a much sought after first-baseman who helped Louisburg College to a third-place finish in the national junior college tournament last spring.

Catcher Howard McCullough, second-baseman Steve Bryant, third-baseman Geoff Beaston and shortstop Ken Gentry all return to head the Pirate infield. Glenn Card, Addison Bass, Joe Roenker, Robert Brinkley and Charlie Stevens will see outfield duty. All are returning lettermen, except for Stevens, who blistered junior college pitching at Louisburg last season.

Dean Reavis, the conference's leading ERA pitcher (1.82), returns to head a staff which has for the past two years topped the conference team pitching ratings. Reavis should be supported by lefthander Bob Feeney (4-0) and Terry Durham, who started late in the spring and had strong summer league records. Pete Conaty, who fared will in summer league ball, and Keith Kurdewan, a freshman from Neptune, N.J., will be among five others Williams say will challenge for starting roles.

"We've been fortunate to have weather which has permitted us to play outside a lot," said Williams. "But there is no way you can gage what will happen when the season starts. We'll just have to get ready and see what happens."

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Mike Morton crammed in 20 points and Jeff Butler added 17 as Richmond's Spiders buried The Citadel under an avalanche of layups, easily defeating the Bulldogs 82-69 Saturday night to advance to the semifinals of the Southern Conference basketball tournament.

The third-seeded Spiders, who will face William & Mary's Indians in one of next Wednesday's semifinal games at Greenville, S.C., registered 22 of their 24 field goals on layups as they hit on a sparkling 77.4 per cent of their shots from the field.

The only Richmond field goal that didn't come on layups were a hook shot by Butler and a foul line jumper by Larry Slappy. The latter was the only outside shot the Spiders attempted.

There never was much doubt about the outcome as Richmond jumped off to a 7-0 lead and stretched its advantage to as much as 19 points before going into intermission leading 34-19.

Paced by Morton, Butler and Kevin Eastman, the Spiders increased their margin to an overwhelming 23 points in the second half before winding down the game with a combination of starters and subs. Eastman had 15 points and six assists.

Morton was 7 of 10 from the floor while Butler gained 5 of 8 shots and Eastman 4 of 4. Slappy, who was 6 for 7, tallied 13 points and reserve John Campbell pitched in 11 to give Richmond five double-figure scorers.

Petty And Pearson Starting In Carolina 500's Second Row

By RICHARD WATERS
Associated Press Writer

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Richard Petty and David Pearson, whose spectacular, crashing finish in the recent Daytona 500 is still the talk of the Grand National circuit, are strong favorites in Sunday's $130,735 Carolina 500 stock car race.

Although both will be starting from the second row in the 11th annual chase at the North Carolina Motor Speedway, their past successes here indicate another neck-and-neck battle may shape up.

Both qualified a shade slower than pole-winner Dave Marcis, whose Dodge was clocked at 138.247 miles per hour in Thursday's qualifying.

Petty's speed was 138.005 m.p.h.; Pearson's was 137.394 m.p.h.

Pearson said he was surprised by Petty's performance in qualifying. "With that soft setup he uses, he usually qualifies back in the field and comes up during the race.

"Boy, I bet this is one race where he won't run faster during the race than he did in qualifying. If he does, the rest of us might as well pack up and go home," the Mercury driver said.

The Dodge-driving Petty has won six races here, more than any other driver. His triumphs include four Carolina 500s and two American 500s, with the most recent win in the 1974 Carolina 500.

Pearson has won four races here, including two Carolina 500s. His last win here was the 1974 American 500.

Defending champion Cale Yarborough, who is looking for his third straight victory here, has won three events on this 1.017-mile track and is expected to offer stiff competition.

Yarborough's Chevrolet will start eighth.

Other contendors in Sunday's race are Marcis; Buddy Baker, whose Ford won the outside pole; Bobby Allison, whose new Roger Pinsky Mercury will start fifth; and A. J. Foyt, who will start 31st after missing the first two days of time trials.

Foyt's Chevrolet, prepared by Hoss Ellington, finally qualified Saturday at a speed of 136.213 m.p.h., about two miles an hour slower than Marcis. Foyt did not arrive at the track until Friday but was unable to qualify then because of a broken timing chain.

Meantime, Petty and Pearson rehashed their thrilling finish in the Daytona 500, where they collided on the final lap.

Conley's Johnson Wins State Title

WINSTON-SALEM—D.H. Conley's James Johnson captured a first place title in the state high school wrestling tournament in Winston-Salem last night.

The 185-pounder took his weight class in style, pinning his opponent. Johnson, who raised his record for the year to 26-0-1 in the meet, wrestled the eventual third and fourth place finishers, as well as the runner-up.

Johnson took Bostic of Greensboro Smith in the first round, winning by 14-7. His second round match was a seven-point decision over Willis of West Cartaret, and he pinned Little of Fayetteville Reid Ross in the semi-finals.

His victory helped Conley to a fifth place finish in the team standings. It marked the second straight year the Vikings had finished in the top five. They were fourth last year. Greensboro Grimsley won the title.

Conley also had another wrestler to place, as Floyd Crandell won by a pin in the consolations to take third place at 112-pounds.

Farmville Central's Horace Williams took fourth place in the 119-pound division, while Rose High School's Tyrone Perkins finished fourth at 138-pounds.

A total of 13 area wrestlers, the highest number ever, qualified for the state tournament. The others included Alton Crandell, Marvin Hardy and Lo Carmon of Conley; John Lawler, Jimmy Davis, Ronnie Goodall and Rocky Butler of Rose; and Bobby Clemons and Aubrey Wynne of North Pitt.

Saratoga Downs Squaws

SARATOGA—Saratoga Central's girls basketball team rolled up a 32-15 first half lead and coasted to a 54-35 win over Roanoke in the first round of the girls's division of the Eastern Plains Conference tournament last night.

Pat Tyson led the Lady Cougars with 20 and Charlene Tyson scored 10. Barbara Bullock led Roanoke with 10.

Roanoke—Stanley 7, McNiel, Douglas 7, Bullock 10, Modica 3, Jones 2, Langley 2, Vandiford 4, Johnson, Jackson, Best, Knight, White.

Saratoga—Boykin 10, Eastwood 8, Ward 9, Taylor 2, Tyson 20, Harrell 1, Williams 4, Farmer, Peoples, King.

will face Conley. Conley and North Lenoir took fif th with 7-7 records. The Vikings have the area's top scorer, Rick Mobley (23.4 ppg) followed distantly by Johnny Streeter. Joey Baggett is the main play-maker for the Vikings who finished third in the state last year, but the Vikings have not played consistant ball this year and losing to Greene Central Friday night has to hurt their attitude, some.

Like A-G, Conley needs to settle down and take better shots in order to shake thing s up this week.

The North Lenoir Hawks could wing their way into the finals behind leading scorer Jimmy Wynn but they will have a tough time getting off the ground just as the Firebirds of Southern Nash will. Southern finished seventh and having to face Greene Central will be no pleasure. Aycock's Falcons may have their feathers plucked right off the bat by North Pitt. Having lost their leading player to pneumonia the Falcons may end up getting stuffed by a Panther.

On the girls side of the ledger, Southern Nash which tied with North Lenoir, will face eighth place D.H. Conley at 5:30 and Farmville Central, the fourth place girls team, will meet Aycock at 8:30 Monday night. Aycock's Lady Falcons took fixth and look tough but cats have always had a thing about birds and the Lady Jaguars may not be an exception.

Tuesday night, North Lenoir, number two, takes on Greene Central number seven. Wednesday, Ayden-Grifton faces North Pitt in the final first round girls game. They will be followed by the first upper bracket boys game. Thursday, the girls semi-finals will begin at 5:30 and 8:30 and the second boy's semi-final at 7. The finals will be Friday.

The top two boys teams, North Pitt and Greene Central are assured of a berth in the district tournament at North Pitt next week while Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton both could get one unless a lower seeded team gets tot the finals. The girls' champ goes to the districts in Williamston with a possible wild card spot going to the runner up.

In other tournaments this week, Williamston third seeded Tigers will meet Tarboro in first round play of the Northeastern tourney in Washington, Tuesday night. Williamston's girls gained a bye and will meet the Washington-Ahoskie winner Wednesday at 7 p.m. Williamston's boys qualified for a spot in the districts with their third place finish.

Rose High will go to Bertie Tuesday at 7:30 and the winner there goes to Northeastern, Thursday.

The Beaufort-Martin-Hyde and Eastern Plains Conferences began their tournaments this weekend.

Northeastern Glides Past Rose, 90-69

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School closed out the 1976 basketball regular season Friday night, and what a difference a year has made.

Last season, the Rampants, doing a complete turnaround from the previous years, finished second in the Division I standings and moved into the State playoffs. This year, it was something else.

Last night, Northeastern High School romped to a 90-69 victory over the Rampants, giving Rose a 2-18 record for the year—and last place among the six Division I schools.

Tuesday night, the Rampants travel to Bertie to face the Falcons in the first game of the divisional playoffs. Rocky Mount and Northern Nash meet in the other game while both Wilson and Northeastern, who tied for the regular season title, have byes.

Tuesday's winners move on to play on Thursday against the two top-ranked teams.

There was one bright spot for the Rampants. Down by as much as 13 points in the first period, the Rampants put on a comeback and actually took the lead at one point in the second period. But in the remaining 5:15 of the period, Northeastern outhit the Rampants, 23-5, to run out to a 17-point advantage.

The two teams went at it like the first game of the season—where most players are still accustomed to playing football. A total of 59 fouls were called in the contest, plus a technical foul on the Rose bench, for a grand total of 60. Oddly enough, no one fouled out.

Of these, 19 were called in the opening period—with the bonus starting after less than three minutes. Seventeen more were called in the final frame, 15 in the third, and just eight in the second. The technical came in the third frame.

The Rampants were killed by their field goal shooting. They got off five more shots than did the Eagles, but they made eight fewer. Northeastern's 32 of 71 was good for 45.1 per cent, while Rose hit just 24 of 76 for a poor 31.6 per cent.

Northeastern also cashed in on 26 of 38 at the line, while Rose hit 21 of 37.

Rose outrebounded the Eagles, 61-58, and had five more turnovers, 27-22.

Northeastern took the lead on six straight free throws, four by Bobby Vaughn, before Rose got on the board with the first basket of the night, by Greg Ebron. But Northeastern kept control, moving out by a jumper by Vaughn, another by Ray Scott, and one to Lee Pritchard to gain a 14-3 lead. After both teams hit for a while, Vaughn added two more free shots with 2:12 left to a 22-9 lead, the biggest of the first half.

Rose hit six straight to cut that down, but trailed, 24-15, at the end of the period.

Northeastern hit a free throw to open the second period, but Rose hit a hot streak after that to charge into the lead. Derek Brewington got it started with a free throw and Jeff Barber hit a jumper. Brewington scored on a rebound and Barber again struck on a long-range shot. Brewington hit once more, and with 5:20 left, Mike Brewington hit for a 26-25 Rose lead.

But the bubble broke right there. Roderick Williams hit to put Northeastern back on top, and then never trailed again. After a couple of free throws by Northeastern, Rose got another basket, but missed on its next seven attempts, and also added a few turnovers. Northeastern took advantage, running off 15 straight for a 44-28 lead. Scott led the streak, hitting six points, while Vaughn and Tyrone Perry each had four.

After that, there was little doubt as to the final outcome. Northeastern held a 48-31 lead at the half, and blew that out to 25 at 63-38 late in the third period. They held a 67-42 lead after the end of the period. The margin climbed to as much as 30 early in the fourth period, 75-45, before the benches were cleared.

Scott led the Northeastern scoring with 20 points, while Vaughn had 19 and Pritchard had 12. Derek Brewington led Rose with 19, while Barber had 17 and Mike Brewington added 11.

The Northeastern junior varsity also got a victory, 71-68, over Rose. Northeastern rallied to take a 17-16 lead after one period, and held off Rose for a 40-38 halftime lead. The Eaglettes opened it to 54-49 after three periods, and held off Rose, 17-19, in the final period.

Greene Central Nips Vikings

SNOW HILL—Marvin Rouse sank his 27th point at the buzzer giving Greene Central a 64-63 win over D.H. Conley and second place in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

The Rams finished the season Friday night with an 11-9 record overall and 9-5 in the ECC. They will face Southern Nash the seventh place team, Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in the first round of the ECC tournament.

Conley finished in a tie for fifth with North Lenoir at 7-7 in the loop and 10-10 overall.

The Greene Central girls closed their season on a win also Friday night beating Conley 50-37 to finish in a tie for seventh in the conference.

Greene Central grabbed the lead in the first period, 15-8 and added three points to it in the second quarter for a 24-14 halftime lead.

The Ewes put the game away with a 17-9 third period but lost the fourth period, 14-9.

Vanessa Hooker led the Ewes with 16 and Teresa Whitley scored 15. Alice Costin had 18 and Annie Wooten 10 for the Valkyries.

Greene Central slipped in front of the Vikings by four, 16-12, in the opening period of their game and increased it to 34-23 at intermission.

Conley began coming back in the second half taking the third quarter, 14-10, and finally pulling ahead, 63-62 with seconds remaining.

The Rams tried to get the ball back by fouling Conley's Rick Mobley but all he did was to make free shots. The Vikings finally lost the ball in the front-court with three seconds left. The Rams gave it to Rouse who shot from 30 feet as the buzzer went off and the basket gave the Rams the win.

Panthers Rip Southern Nash

BETHEL — North Pitt's Eastern Carolina Conference champions warmped up for this week's league tournament with an 89-61 romp over seventh place Southern Nash, Friday night.

And to add to it, the North Pitt girls upset Southern Nash, 52-39, to prevent the Lady Firebirds from taking sole possession of first place. Southern Nash's girls had to settle for a share with North Lenoir, while North Pitt finished third.

In the opener, the Southern Nash girls inched to a 9-8 lead after one period. But the Big Orange outhit them, 13-8, in the second frame, for a 21-16 lead at the half.

North Pitt continued to pull away in the third period, running its lead to 39-29. They outhit the Firebirds once more, 13-10, to wind it up.

Joy Forbes led the Pant-HERS with 17 points, while Kathi Manning had 13 and Cynthia Barnes had 12. Hall led Southern with 24, while Minga added 11.

In the boys' game, North Pitt pushed into a 16-10 lead in the opening quarter. Then, the Panthers burned the nets for 33 points in the second frame. That helped run them out into a 49-23 halftime margin.

The Panthers built that to 70-43 after three quarters. They finished off the Firebirds, 19-18, to wrap up their 18th win in 20 starts.

Donnie Perkins hit his high for the year, canning 17 field goals and three free throws for 37 points. Jesse Harris added 11 and Jackie Best, 10. Ronnie Taybron led Southern with 16 points, while Walter Williams had 14 and Anthony Sherrod, 10.

Murphy Gets Back On His Game; Leads Win

By The Associated Press

Calvin Murphy had 14 points against Buffalo in the first half, but Johnny Egan wasn't satisfied with his game. Neither was Murphy, as a matter of fact.

"When he's open I want him to shoot," said the Houston Rockets' coach, "but Calvin has a tendency to go one-on-one when he plays a player like Randy Smith and it's quickness against quickness. We discussed that at halftime. In the first half, he got away from his game."

He was more like the old Calvin Murphy in the second half, though. Not only did he score 19 points, but he also got six assists and penetrated better.

The result was a 113-107 National Basketball Association victory over the Braves Friday night.

"I wanted to get the folks involved in the second half instead of working on one individual," said Murphy, who had just two assists before intermission.

In the other NBA games, the Detroit Pistons beat the New York Knicks 97-93; the Golden State Warriors topped the Philadelphia 76ers 121-114; the Boston Celtics defeated the Seattle SuperSonics 122-118 and the Los Angeles Lakers stopped the Kansas City Kings 97-90.

Behind Murphy, the Rockets played almost flawlessly on offense in the second half—making 28 of 35 field goal attempts and committing only two turnovers, the first with 1:33 left.

Pistons 97, Knicks 93

Warriors 121, 76ers 114

Jamaal Wilkes scored 31 points to lead Golden State.

Celtics 122, SuperSonics 118

Jo Jo White scored 34 points and John Havlicek hit for 28 as Boston rallied down the stretch to beat Seattle and snap the SuperSonics' eight-game winning streak.

Lakers 97, Kings 90

Los Angeles outscored Kansas City 12-2 early in the fourth period and beat the Kings behind Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 27 points.

Babe Ruth Meeting

The Greenville Babe Ruth League will hold its organization meeting for 1976 Monday at 7 p.m. in the Elm Street Recreation Center.

All coaches, officers and board members are urged to attend the meeting. New officers for the coming year will be elected, and plans for the season will be discussed.

Ayden-Grifton Snaps Loss String As Aycock Falls Under 83-63 Romp

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD—Ogden Braxton scored 17 points and pulled down 12 rebounds to lead the Ayden-Grifton Chargers out of their slump and to an 83-63 rout of C. B. Aycock Friday night.

The Ayden-Grifton girls did not fare as well, however, losing in overtime, 64-54, after a close battle.

The Chargers had lost their five previous games and they missed winning so much, Coach Bob Murphrey said, it felt like it has been since Christmas that the Chargers had last won.

But they did it up big Friday night and there were a lot of other big things about the game as well. The Chargers pulled down 48 rebounds, shot 56 times, and had 23 fouls called on them. The Falcons were penalized 29 times, had two technicals called, three players fouled out; they shot 80 times and grabbed 37 rebounds. The Chargers also scored 31 free throws.

The only battle was in the first minute of the game as the score was tied once. Aycock got the first bucket on a shot by Glenn Lancaster but baskets by Paul Ricciarelli, Braxton and Twendie Simpson put the Chargers on track, 6-2.

Aycock pulled within one, 9-8, but it was the closest the Falcons got. Two field goals by Ricciarelli put A-G out, 13-8, with half a period to go.

The Chargers doubled their score in the second half of the frame while Aycock added just four more points. Braxton sank six of eight free throw attempts in the remainder of the period.

Ayden-Grifton dominated the second period as well outscoring Aycock 22-15. The period was drug out by fouls which totaled 19.

Ayden-Grifton continued to pull away in the third period, 16-12, increasing its lead to 28 when Mike Teachy put in a rebound for a 63-35 Charger lead.

Aycock managed to take the final period, 22-16, as Harold Best burned the boards with ten points.

Willie Forbes and Ricciarelli each scored 13 for A-G and James Leggett added 12. Forbes has four assists and three steals.

The girls game started out close, seemed to be turning into a run-away by Aycock, then changed to a hair-raiser, then back to a runaway.

The lead was contested until Lu Chase got it for Aycock, 6-5, with a lay-up. A bucket by Donna Winbon made it a three-point difference and the closest the chargerettes could get was one until Cindy Brown hit from outside to tie the game, 15-15, for A-G.

Winbon hit two around a basket by Cindy Potter giving the Lady Falcons a 19-17 lead at the end of the period.

Aycock reeled off four straight to start the second period and managed to pull out by seven, 30-23, with :56 left in the half. A-G cut it to two again on buckets by Audrey McCarter and Toni Smith and a free throw by Smith.

A-G stayed right behind Aycock through the third until Vertha Dixon's bucket after a Karen Hasely free shot gave the Lady Chargers a 37-36 lead. Two field goals by A-G in the last minute of the period made it 41-36.

The Lady Falcons turned things around outscoring A-G 10-2 in the first two-and-a-half minutes of the fourth period to take a 46-43 lead. A-G regained the lead on two Smith baskets, 49-46, but with 1:45 left, Aycock tied it on Dalphene Sauls' rebound, 50-50.

Aycock took the lead as Sauls scored following a steal but McCarter canned a long jumper to tie the game, 52-52, with :10 left.

The steam the Lady Chargers had generated in the fourth period ran out with the jump to start the overtime and Aycock plopped in 12 points to A-G's two for the win. They took the lead on Helen Jones' shot from the lane and never lost it.

Sauls led the winners with 22. Winbon had 14 and Jones 13. Potter led A-G with 16, McCarter had 13 and Dixon 10.

Best led the Aycock boys with 16, Curly Summerlin scored 1 and Spencer Scott and Lancaster each added 10.

Western Downs Bucettes, 78-68

RALEIGH—Western Carolina ended East Carolina's womens' hopes for a third-place finish in state Division I play Friday night by taking a 78-68 win over the Bucettes.

Western took command of the game in the second half and overcame a 37-34 East Carolina lead at the half.

The two teams battled back and forth in the early minutes of the game, with Western gaining a 9-6 lead. But East Carolina came back to take a 13-9 lead with 12:50 left in the period. Western tied it at 13-13, but East Carolina ran off a string of 13 for a 26-13 lead with eight minutes to go. Western refused to die, however, and fought back to cut the lead to 30-27 with four minutes left, then to 35-34 just before the half ended.

In the second half, Western quickly tied it at 37-37, and from a 43-43 tie, they moved out to a 51-43 edge. For the rest of the way it stayed around seven or nine points, climbing to as much as 12 at 63-51 with nine minutes to go. The closest the Bucettes got after that was five.

The East Carolina women held a rebounding edge, 47-39, but after shooting 46 per cent in the first period, hit only eight of 34 shots in the second half. Western hit a poor 30 per cent in the first half, then made 50 per cent of their second half shots.

Jayne Arledge led Western with 23 points, while Judy Stroud had 18 and Janet White had 10. Debbie Freeman led East Carolina with 21, while Rosie Thompson had 19.

The loss left the Bucettes with an 11-5 overall mark and a 1-3 league mark. They could do no better than tie for fourth, but could gain no better than a fifth place seed for the upcoming tournament. Western is now 12-6 overall and 3-1 in Division I play.

UCLA Takes Aim At Pac-8 Title

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — "I think it was our best game this year, both offensively and defensively," said UCLA Coach Gene Bartow after his Bruins scored a 113-93 triumph over California Friday night to move within two games of its 10th straight Pac-8 conference championship.

The ninth-ranked Bruins, 10-2 in the Pac-8 and 21-4 over-all, go into tonight's game at Stanford with a one-game lead over eighth-ranked Washington and Oregon State and finish the league race at home March 6 against Southern California.

Stanford beat USC 96-83 Friday night, and its only two victories in 12 Pac-8 games have been against the Trojans who are winless in 12.

Marques Johnson, 6-foot-7 junior forward from Los Angeles, scored 27 points for the Bruins by making all 11 of his field goal attempts and all five of his free throw tries.

Rich Washington, the Pac-8's top scorer with a 20-point average, tallied 22 points and was the top rebounder with 10 for the Bruins, who controlled the boards, 51-31.

"Ray Townsend and Andre McCarter played a nearly perfect game at the guards, and it sounds like Marques played a perfect game," Bartow said. "Washington was superb, as usual, and (center Dave) Greenwood had his best game."

"All in all, it was a great team effort. We've had several good games this year, but this one was the top."

In breaking a Harmon Gym scoring record set by the UCLA team of 1967, the Bruins made 66 per cent of their shots in the first half and finished with 57 per cent accuracy. Cal's percentage was 46, with guards Rickie Hawthorne and Gene Ransom getting 21 and 18, respectively.

"They were awfully good in the first half of the ball game—just awesome," said Cal Coach Dick Edwards. "UCLA certainly came back like they wanted this game tonight. They hit us inside and also hit their long shots. They didn't miss many shots, and when they did one of their guys was around to tip the ball in."

Elsewhere in college basketball, Gil Miles hit 10 free throws in the last four minutes and Herman Harris scored 24 points to lead Arizona past Wyoming 74-66; a 29-point performance by Lorenzo Cash led Colorado State past Arizona State 96-76; Chuck Williams and Mike Evans combined for 45 points to lift Kansas State over Iowa State 80-67 and Larry Cubas hit a 20-foot jumper with six seconds left to give Dartmouth a 61-57 victory over Columbia.

Armond Hill scored 25 points, including the 1,000th of his college career, in Princeton's 68-53 victory over Yale; Ron Jones hit a career-high 21 points, shooting 90 per cent from the field, to pace Texas-El Paso past Utah 81-71.

Thompson Puts In 50 Points

DENVER (AP) — Enough was enough, thought Denver Nugget Coach Larry Brown, so he benched super-rookie David Thompson with six minutes to go to rest him for the next 14 years.

Thompson had scored 50 points at the time Friday night in the Nuggets' 140-116 American Basketball Association victory over San Antonio. New York topped Kentucky 113-101 and St. Louis trimmed Indiana 116-105 in the other ABA games.

"I pulled him because we had six minutes to go, and he's going to be playing 14 years," Brown said. "He got 50 points against San Antonio, and the team was playing well.

"I've never seen anything like it—that he got 50 points, and did so unselfishly. I think the team respected him for it, too."

Thompson, twice the college player of the year at North Carolina State, had the best night of an already illustrous career in leading the Nugget victory.

He hit on a variety of close-in jump shots and layups and missed only three field-goal attempts. He was 16 for 19 from the free-throw line.

Thompson gave much of the credit to his teammates. "I got going early," he said, "and got some great passes."

Behind Thompson in scoring came Denver's Ralph Simpson with 21 points. Dan Issel had 17. Larry Kenon led the Spurs with 20, followed by Mark Olberding with 18.

Nets 113, Colonels 101

Julius Erving scored 38 points, 13 in the final quarter, to help the Nets expand an 83-81 third-quarter lead.

Credit or refund (at Michelin's option) is equal to current actual selling price multiplied by percentage of warranted mileage not run on tire.
Think Radial... and Look to the Leader
MICHELIN
The Gas Savers
Because of the lower rolling resistance of Michelin "X" radials over conventional bias-ply tires, you might get as much as 10% savings over your present gas consumption. This means more miles per gallon of gas. It means extra dollars in your pocket.

QUARTER MILE LENGTHS . . . of new track are removed from a special train. The same motors which pull the track off the train also stretch the track after it is put down to prevent excess expansion.

OLD TRACK — The track which is being taken up was made between 1896 and 1918. Each 33-foot length is stamped with its date of manufacture. This track was not put down on this line when it was new, however. It was brought in from another line, according to Division Engineer F. R. Meyers.

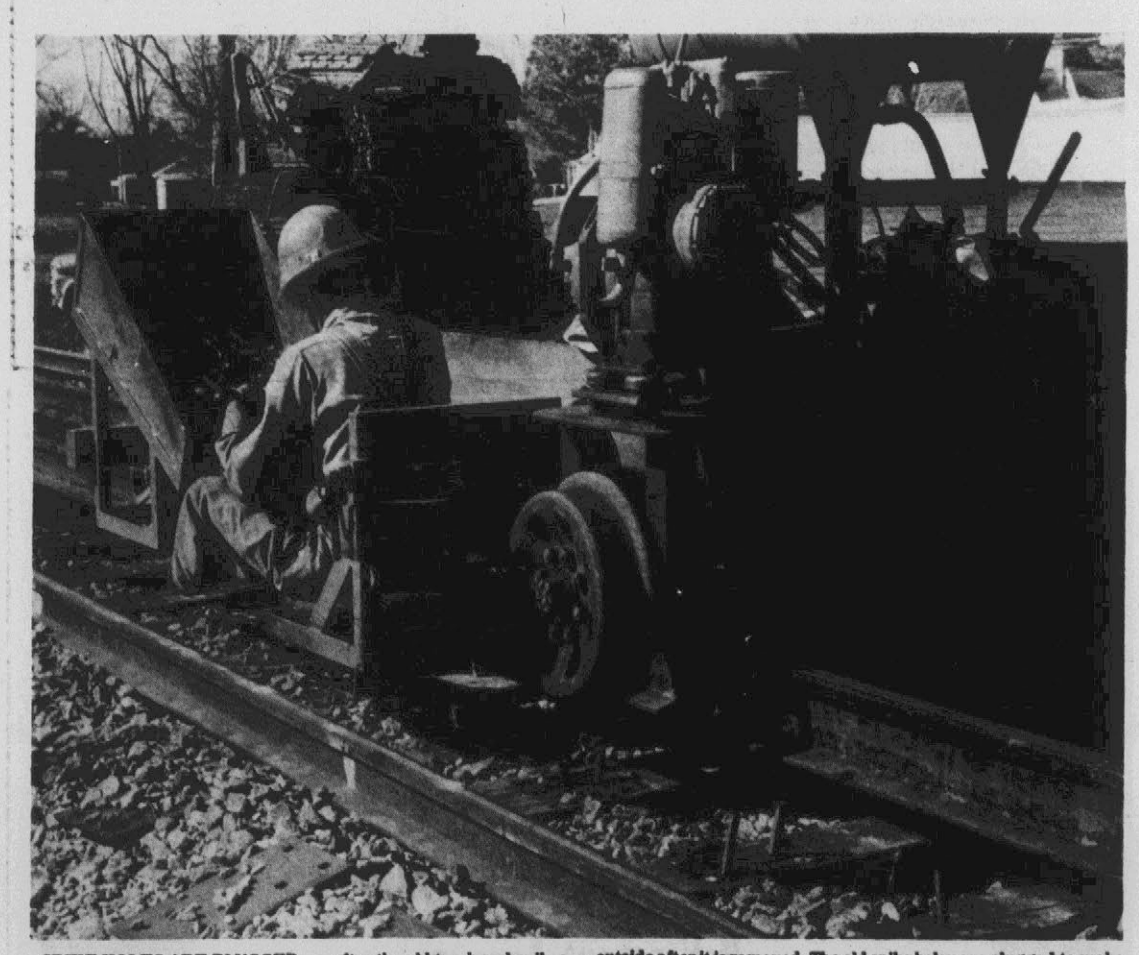

WORKMEN REMOVE . . . expansion control clamps from the old track prior to taking the track up. The clamps control expansion by putting pressure on the crossties to prevent the track from bowing in hot weather.

Southern Railway's Improvement Program

New Rails For Old Tracks

Text And Photographs By James Kyle

SPIKE HOLES ARE PLUGGED . . . after the old track and spikes are removed. As shown here, the old lighter track is pushed to the outside after it is removed. The old spike holes are plugged to make sure the new spikes fit tightly.

As part of an on-going capital improvement program, Southern Railway is replacing track on the old Norfolk-Southern line in and around Greenville.

The track crews, which started in Chocowinity over a year ago, should reach Greenville within the next few days. They are upgrading the present track bed and replacing the old jointed rail with new, heavier, welded rail, according to F. R. Meyers, division engineer.

The old rail, which weighs 70 pounds per yard, contains a joint every 33 feet. These joints wear out quickly, making upkeep an expensive matter.

This rail is being replaced with jointless, welded rail. The welded rail weighs 115 pounds per yard and is welded into strips a quarter of a mile long. Once laid, the ends of these strips are also welded together, making the entire track jointless and more durable.

The process is complicated, but interesting. The new rail is brought up from Atlanta on a special train designed to carry 7.5 miles of the quarter-mile lengths.

The new rail is laid down inside the old. Then, the old rail is removed from the track bed and pushed aside. The bed is then reconditioned and the old spike holes are plugged.

New plates are put on the cross-ties, the new rail is attached to them and spiked down. Then the ends of the new rail are welded together.

The entire process takes time. The crew working near Greenville, though inexperienced, is averaging about a mile of track laid per day. The best crews make about a mile and a half on a good day, Meyers said.

The crew will be doing its best not to inconvenience Greenville citizens while they are in town, according to Meyers. Hopefully, only one grade crossing will be closed at a time.

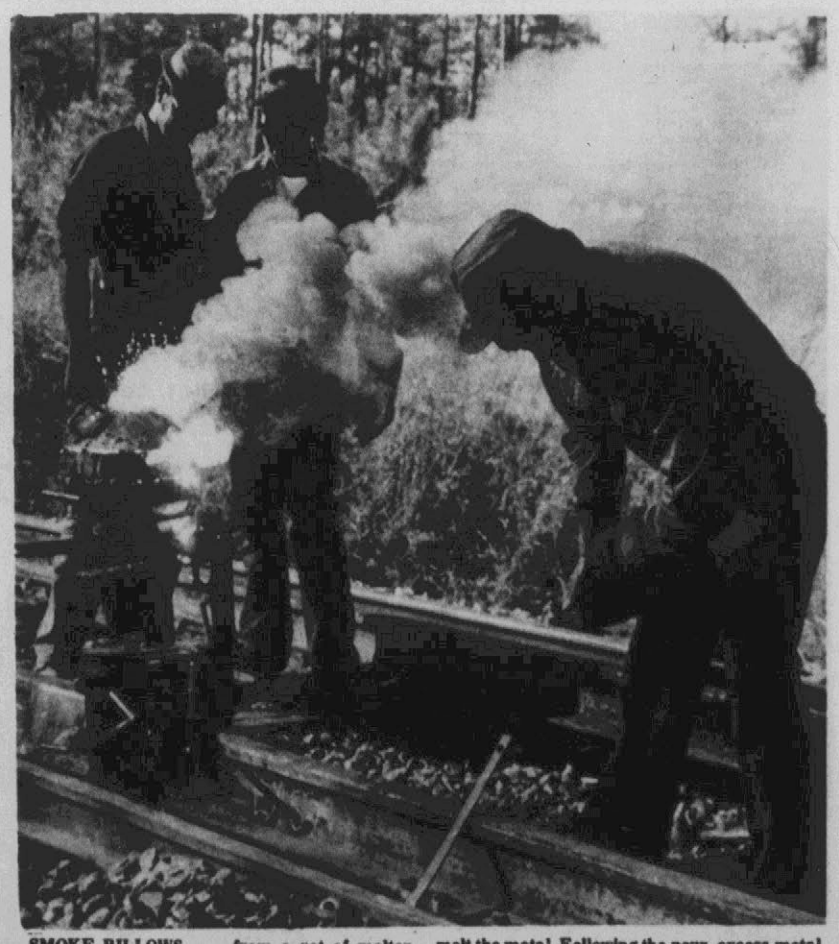

The track improvements should make it possible for trains to move a bit faster through town, so Greenville traffic won't be slowed as much at crossings once the job is completed.

RAIL ENDS . . . are heated with a propane torch prior to making a weld. The rail is heated almost to the flow point, then molten metal is poured into the gap between the rail ends to form the weld.

WORKMEN DRIVE SPIKES . . . with automatic machinery to hold the new track in place while final adjustments and welds are made. The same type of equipment is used to complete spiking when the track is ready.

Presidents Aware Of Gossip

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of two articles on U.S. Presidents' rumored or real romances, written by Joe Wing, former general editor of AP Newsfeatures.

By JOE WING
For AP Newsfeatures

Throughout the nation's history, American presidents' secret loves, real or imagined, have come to light. As in the case of Franklin Roosevelt, the liaisons of President Harding were unknown generally when he died suddenly in 1923.

Then Nan Britton, who had had her eye on him since girlhood in their home town of Marion, Ohio, claimed to have mothered a daughter of his. Lacking letters which she said she had burned, she could not prove in court her right to a part of the estate. Whether Harding received or kept any letters from her cannot be determined because Mrs. Harding, a dour, capable woman somewhat older than her husband and a moving force behind his career, burned much of his correspondence soon after his funeral. Nan also furnished material for a book, "The President's Daughter."

As early as the election year of 1920 there was a published assertion that Harding and Mrs. Carrie Phillips had enjoyed out-of-town rendezvous and that Republicans had paid her to leave the country.

Then some 40 years later a historian, Francis Russell, came across a packet of love letters written to Mrs. Phillips, wife of a Marion department store owner — a willowy redhead known as the most elegant woman in town. These Russell hailed as the first documentary proof of Harding's extra-curricular affairs, but Harding heirs thwarted publication of the letters, which were donated to the Library of Congress under seal until the year 2014.

Mrs. Phillips died a pauper in 1960. Three years ago a writer in the New York Times, which broke the love letter story, said there was now a new appreciation of Harding's virtues and toleration for his weaknesses.

Tough old Andrew Jackson's latter years were embittered by bigamy charges that had been laid against his once beautiful and always loving wife, Rachel.

Technically her detractors were right. The Jacksons had been married for two years before discovering that her first husband, a man named Lewis Robards, had never obtained a divorce as planned. When word reached them that Robards actually had gotten the divorce, they married again.

Soon a gentleman named Charles Dickinson cast aspersions on Rachel. Jackson shot him dead in a duel. Old Hickory had made no attempt to get in the first shot, took careful aim though wounded near the heart, and drilled his enemy through the abdomen. "Oh I believe he pinked me, but I would have shot him had he shot me through the brain," Jackson growled as he walked away.

Next a famed frontiersman and Indian fighter, Gov. John Sevier of Tennessea, made slighting remarks in public, but ducked out on a proposed duel.

More than 30 years later, during Jackson's acrimonious campaign for the presidency in 1828, enemies dusted off the old allegations. Jackson wanted to go a-dueling, but advisers dissuaded him. Rachel took it all pretty well until after they election. Then she realized the full extent of the canards, took to her bed and died. It was an embittered old man who journeyed from Nashville to Washington to start his memorable administration. He never forgave, nor forgot.

Most poignant and controversial of all the irregular love affairs of presidents was that of Thomas Jefferson and Sally Hemings. Partisans still maintain it never occurred but Jefferson's recent biographer, Fawn M. Brodie, devoted much of her "intimate history" to spelling out the details as she reconstructed them.

"Black Sally" was a beautiful mulatto slave girl, half sister of Jefferson's beloved, dead wife. She followed him to Paris as maid to one of his daughters. When he returned to Monticello from his ambassadorial duties, Sally was pregnant. She bore five more sons and daughters, most of them light enough to pass for white, and all conceived, Professor Brodie says, at times while Jefferson was at Monticello. In old age one of the sons made a statement, discounted by Jefferson heirs, asserting that Sally was Jefferson's long time concubine.

During Jefferson's first presidency, a muckraker interviewed some of his Virginia neighbors and published an account of the Hemings affair. Jefferson made no public answer. Although a compulsive letter writer, he was a very private man about his own concerns. Moreover, he had before him the example of his rival, Alexander Hamilton, who killed himself politically by answering adultery charges before being killed physically by Aaron Burr's bullet. Jefferson was re-elected easily.

An opponent of slavery, once wealthy Jefferson died so deeply in debt that of his many slaves he felt able to free only five — all members of the Hemings family.

"If the story of the Sally Hemings liaison is true, as I believe it to be, it represents no scandalous debauchery of an innocent slave victim," Professor Brodie wrote, "but rather a serious passion that brought Jefferson and the slave woman much private happiness over a period of 38 years. It also brought them suffering and even political paralysis in regard to Jefferson's agitation for emancipation."

Jefferson had other loves before and after his wife's death, but that's another story.

There's a myth that the British, to discredit George Washington during the Revolution, forged a letter in which he described the charms of slave women at Mount Vernon. No historian has tracked it down but, given the era and the institution of slavery, some such forgery would not have been implausible.

It was a couple of centuries later that Douglas Southall Freeman, in his six-volume biography, recounted how much taken Washington was with a lovely neighbor woman, Sally Fairfax, and how he continued to delight in her company for years.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

Most good used cars, if they're guaranteed at all, are only covered for a month or two. At Tarheel Toyota, we're just as willing to back our good used cars as our good new cars. So we guarantee the motor, transmission and rear end for 12 months or 12,000 miles. This warranty applies to all cars selling for more than $1000.00 or more on a 50-50 basis with all work being done in our shop. It doesn't apply to any sports cars, high performance engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). If you're in the market for a BETTER USED CAR, COME OUT AND LOOK AT OURS. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. (Owners name furnished upon request.)

Designers Show Spring-Summer Fashions

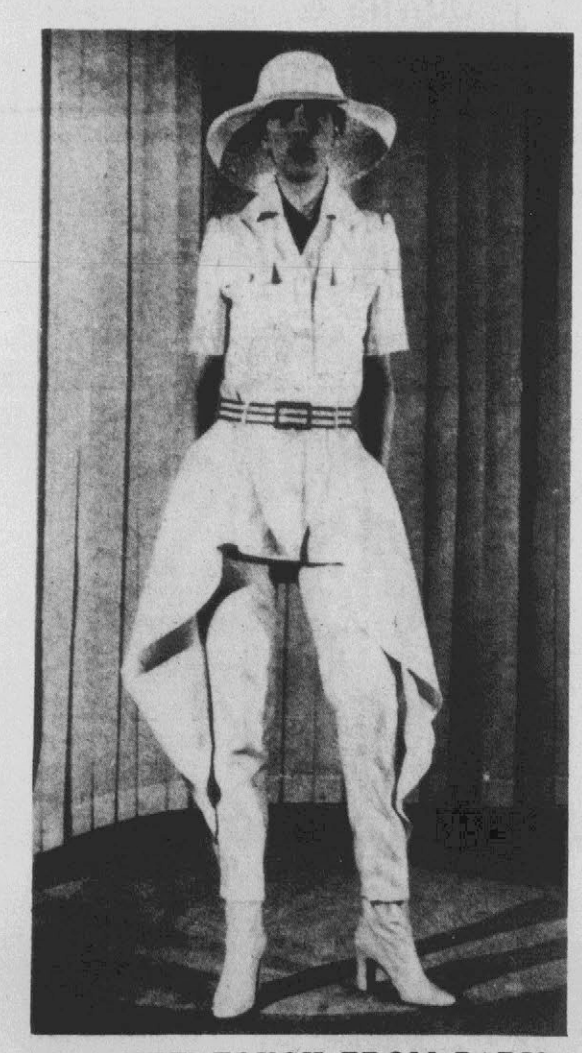

1—This hand painted pink Scottish organza evening dress is part of Pierre Balmain's spring-summer 1976 collection. The high bustline leaves the shoulders and back bare. The knotted collar and shawl are of matching material.

2—In his new collection, Dior presents this raw silk jacket with two pockets. It is worn over a blue crepe de chine dress with a pleated skirt. A tailored suit by Nina Ricci, right, features a long, two-button jacket accented with four patch pockets and is worn over a matching skirt. The knotted collar blouse is crepe de chine in ivory.

3—Balmain adds an exotic touch to his new collection with this outfit of raw silk. Gaucho pants are topped by an unconventional short-sleeved jacket, belted at the waist which ends in chaps on the sides. Leather boots and straw hat complete the outfit.

4—The mood of Morocco is distinct in Givenchy's white embroidered crepe caftan, which is a part of the designer's spring-summer collection. A two-piece outfit, right, in back crepe de chine printed in red and white is from the collection of Nina Ricci. The long-sleeved, straight pleated jumper is accented with a knotted collar.

5—This model wears a two-piece wool suit in red and white checks from Balmain's collection. The belted tunic jacket is worn over a pleated skirt. A red wool coat with red leather trim completes the ensemble. A beige gabardine coat over crepe de chine blouse, right, is printed in khaki and mauve from Dior's collection. The button-up coat is accented with pockets. (AP Wirephotos)

DALY'S DAFFODIL CHILI

A New York restaurant kindly complied with our request for its special formula for this popular dish. It worked out well when tried in our test kitchen.

½ cup bacon drippings
2 pounds chopped beef
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon garlic powder
5 tablespoons chili powder
2 teaspoons powdered cumin
1½ teaspoons dry mustard
Pinch of oregano
Pinch of crushed dried red pepper
2 teaspoons paprika
Two 17-ounce cans plum tomatoes, undrained
6-ounce can tomato paste, undiluted
Three 21-ounce
Three 21-ounce cans red kidney beans, drained and rinsed
Salt and pepper to taste

In the hot bacon drippings cook the beef, crumbling with a fork. Add onion, green pepper, seasonings and tomatoes. Mix well and cook gently, stirring occasionally, for about 1½ hours. Add remaining ingredients and continue cooking gently for about 1 hour. If thicker than you like, thin with beer. Serve with finely chopped onion and crackers. Makes about 4 quarts.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

The Mt. Pleasant Extension Homemakers Club and the Ladies Aid of the Mt. Pleasant Christian Church recently combined their efforts in a missionary project.

A carton of 200, two and one-half ounce bars of antiseptic soap was sent to the Ray Giles', missionaries in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. The total cost of the project was approximately $55. Mr. and Mrs. Giles plan to use the soap in teaching the natives personal cleanliness.

The project was the result of the Extension Homemakers goal of encouraging better health practices for individuals and the community.

Mrs. Lonnie Staton is president of the Mt. Pleasant Extension Homemakers Club.

Judy Hall and Randy Joyner selected June 26 as the date for their wedding.

A graduate of Rock Hill Academy, the bride-to-be is now attending Piedmont Virginia Community College. She is working towards an RN in nursing and is employed at the University of Virginia Hospital in the Respiratory Therapy Department as a respiratory assistant.

Randy, grandson of Charlie Jones of Gardnerville, is a graduate of Lane High School and is presently serving in the U. S. Army at Fort Hood, Tex. He is attending Central Texas University to obtain a degree in anesthesiology.

Bridal couple Mary McGregor and Gary Fields will exchange wedding vows on July 10 in Arlington, Va.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Longwood College, Farmville, Va., where she was a member of Delta Zeta sorority. She is now associated with the Veterans Administration, Washington, D. C.

Gary is a graduate of ECU and a member of Kappa Alpha Order. He is an MBA candidate at George Mason University, Fairfax, Va., and is with Leub, Rhoades and Co., investment bankers.

NO DIET LINK

DALLAS (UPI) — A specialist in children's heart disease has told an American Heart Association meeting that recent findings show no significant link between what children eat and the cholesterol levels in their blood. Dr. William Wiedman said the three-year Mayo study involved more than 2,500 children 6 to 10 years old. It was financed by a $2.1 million grant from the National Institutes of Health.

Couples Are Better Buyers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Newlyweds today are better buyers than those of past generations, says Jacqueline McCord, fashion editor of a bridal magazine.

She attributes the change to heightened consumer consciousness among the young: "They are researching more (before they buy). They don't like the idea of being taken advantage of. They are better educated, they know where to go, where to look (for consumer goods).

"They take buying courses on campus and follow radio, TV, newspaper and magazine shows and stories.

"They demand greater quality in fashions. They are looking for clothing that is well made and well maintained."

They don't cut corners, she added. Because many first-time brides have jobs and independent incomes, they may start by choosing a more expensive wedding dress.

Ms. McCord is on the staff of "Modern Bride," which frequently conducts or authorizes marketing surveys of the wedding scene.

Hardly. Because they tend to be inferior stones, often not worth the discount price. That's a "bargain" you can't afford. Instead, come in and see our collection of quality gems, fairly priced. We base our diamond pricing on cutting, color, clarity and carat weight of the stone. As American Gem Society jewelers we guarantee the quality of every diamond we sell. You can be sure of getting true value for your money. It's a friendly way of doing business.

Miss Deborah Jones Is Bride

Miss Deborah Frances Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alton Jones of Greenville, became the bride of Jackie Booth Jarvis Saturday at 3:00 p.m. in the University Church of Christ.

Lawrence Kepler performed the double ring ceremony, assisted by William Griffin of Elizabeth City. A program of nuptial music was presented by Carol Hudson of Virginia Beach, Va., organist, and Carol Everette of Elizabeth City, soloist.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jarvis of Washington.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown designed by Biljoy of white polyester organza. The gown was fashioned with a high see-through neckline with a wedding band collar edged in Venise lace. Matching lace encircled the waistline and was repeated on the cuffs of the sheer bishop sleeves. The lace detail was repeated down the front of the A-line skirt and encircled the hemline.

Her four tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to a pearl trimmed. The bouquet was tied with a streamer of baby blue ribbon and baby's breath.

The church was decorated with brass accessories, jade palms, cathedral tapers and pedestal arrangements of white gladioli and mums. In the background of the altar was a brass crescent candelabra holding 15 tapers with nine branched brass candletrees on either side. Tri-branched candelabra were used to flank the altar and in the lighting of the eternal light during the ceremony.

The maid of honor was Joy Jones of Baltimore, Md. Bridesmaids were Jeri Buck of Greenville, and Debbie Parrott of Elizabeth City. The attendants wore formal length gowns of romance blue knit designed with an open scooped neckline. White Venise lace edging outlined the Elizabethan collar and neckline. Appliques of white Venise lace flowers trimmed the neckline and bodice front. The gowns were styled with long fitted sleeves and full flared skirts. They wore matching bows with flowers in their hair and carried nosegays.

Honorary bridesmaids were Logan Johns and Judy Haney of Elizabeth City and Martha Elmore of Greenville.

Michelle Jefferson of Washington was flower girl. She wore a gown similar to that of the bride gand carried a blue basket of flower petals.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Tommy Jones, brother of the bride, and Jerry Langley, both of Greenville, George Manning Jr. of Virginia Beach, Va., and Danny Everette of Elizabeth City, cousin of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride selected a formal gown of mint green and the mother of the bridegroom wore an aqua formal gown. Both mothers wore cymbidium orchids.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Rt. 3, Washington.

A reception was held following the ceremony given by the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Faulkner and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hardison Jr.

The bride's table was decorated with yellow and white flowers. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Mack Roberson, Mrs. Janie Faison, Miss Janie Griffin, Mrs. Ruby Coleson, Mrs. Max Langley and Mrs. Poe Worthington.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardison presided at the bride's book and good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner. Mrs. William Harvey Whitehurst presented a program of piano music during the reception.

A wedding breakfast was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Faulkner Saturday morning given by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Melissa Roberson of Williamston.

RICE BOWL

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — An interfaith program to help feed starving people in the Third World is scheduled to be launched in the United States on Ash Wednesday, March 3.

Operation Rice Bowl will ask American families to pray, to eat a sacrificial meal and put the money saved as a result of the meal into a cardboard rice bowl provided by the program's sponsor, the 41st International Eucharistic Congress. The Congress suggests that similar restricted-diet meals be eaten every Wednesday during Lent.

In most dioceses, 75 per cent of money raised will be dispensed by Catholic Relief Services for the overseas poor. The remainder will be used to help the poor and hungry in the U.S.

Engagement Announced

MISS JUDY DIANE HALL . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee M. Hall of Charlottesville, Va., who announce her engagement to Randy Marlon Joyner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin R. Joyner of Charlottesville, Va. The wedding will take place June 26.

PACTOLUS—Miss Brenda Sue Pilgreen became the bride of Perry Thomas Greene in a double ring ceremony Friday evening at seven o'clock. The ceremony was performed in the Pactolus Baptist Church by Thomas Payne.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Pilgreen of Rt. 5, Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a fromal length white organza gown over pale blue taffeta designed with a high neckline encircled with re-embroidered lace. Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Crystal Pilgreen of Washington, sister-in-law of the bride. She wore a formal length orchid dotted swiss over taffeta gown designed with an open neckline edged in white Venise lace. The short pouf sleeves were edged in matching lace, which also trimmed the flounce at the hemline of the skirt.

The maid of honor was Miss Sandra Pilgreen of Greenville, sister of the bride. She wore a gown styled like that of the honor attendant's in a floral pattern of blue and orchid. Both carried two long-stemmed purple tinted chrysanthemums with streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a two-piece lavender suit and the mother of the bridegroom selected a two-piece suit of light blue. They each wore matching corsages. The bridal couple presented the mothers with two long-stemmed red roses.

Abby Resolves Not To Interrupt During This Year

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: It started out to be a blue holiday season until I saw you on the Dinah Shore show on New Year's Eve. Abby, just seeing you on that show changed my life. You announced to millions of people that you were making a New Year's resolution that you weren't going to interrupt anybody!

When I heard you say that I realized that had been my problem all my life. I always talked too much. I never let anybody finish a sentence.

I am a salesman, Abby, and I'm a good one, but my boss used to take me aside and suggest that I listen instead of talk so much. I never took him seriously. I don't know why it didn't hit home until I heard you say it.

Thanks for the best idea I've had in years!

L. IN LOS ALAMITOS

DEAR L.: Making a resolution is one thing—keeping it, another. So far, I've kept it, but it's not easy. Write to me in June and let me know how you're doing. And lotsa luck!

DEAR ABBY: I think I have the perfect way to shut off the flow of gossip from an older woman without being disrespectful.

An acquaintance used to bring me gossip I didn't care to hear, so when she'd tell me something, I would ask, "Are you praying for her?" (Or him, or them, as the case might be.)

She admitted that she was not. Then I would tell her that they needed a lot of prayers, and she should be praying for them every day.

A few instances of that, and she didn't bring me any more gossip.

C. S. IN LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR C.: Beautiful. Your suggestion may inspire people who haven't prayed in years to resume praying.

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of two adopted Oriental children, and we'd like to say a word on behalf of all adopted children of different ethnic backgrounds.

Strangers constantly stop us in public places and gush variations of the following: "Look at those dolls! Aren't they precious? Look at those eyes!" Then they ask, "Where did you get them? Are they Chinese, Korean, Vietnamese, Filipino or Japanese?" (They never guess correctly.)

Meanwhile, our children stand there wondering why their blood lines and ancestry are so all-fired important to these loud strangers who carry on as though the children are deaf. Such scenes have already made the little one painfully shy.

We adopted these children because we wanted to share our lives with them, not because of their doll-like cuteness.

Please tell people that if they want to gush, they should find a poodle to babble over. One man even picked up our little daughter and carried her off to "show his wife" in another part of the store. We were horrified when we discovered she was missing.

Next time I hope he picks up a Doberman to "show his wife."

Please print this, Abby. It may make those who behave this way realize that we parents don't appreciate such compliments, and it only makes our children feel like freaks.

OREGON MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Here's your letter. I hope it helps.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26¢) envelope.

RATE RISE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumers will face higher insurance costs this year as a result of the worst underwriting losses in the history of the property and casualty industry, says an industry executive.

M. Jay Wanamaker, president of the Independent Insurance Agents of America, said the choice is between new premium hikes or rapidly diminishing availability of insurance. He estimates industry underwriting losses for last year at about $4 billion. Wanamaker said physical damage to automobiles is one of the industry's biggest money losers.

MRS. STEVE MARTIN WORTHINGTON

Couple Weds On Saturday

RALEIGH—The Pullen Memorial Baptist Church Chapel was the scene of the Saturday wedding of Carrie Davis Sheehan and Steve Martin Worthington. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. W. W. Finlator at 11:00 a.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence C. Davis of Fremont, and Mr. and Mrs. Julian J. Worthington of Winterville.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her matron of honor was Mrs. Linwood Rogers of Wilmington.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Dr. Marshall Hill of Raleigh, and Robert Thompson of Asheville. A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Daniel Lynch.

The bride is a graduate of UNC-Wilmington. She was employed as a commercial copy writer at WWAY, Channel Three, Wilmington. The bridegroom is a graduate of N.C. State University and is now a research technician in the horticulture department at N.C. State University.

After a wedding trip to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the couple will reside in Raleigh.

Engagement Announced

Col. (USA Ret.) and Mrs. E. W. McGregor of Alexandria, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Gary Wayne Fields, son of Mrs. Charles Russell Fields of Greensboro, formerly of Greenville, and the late Mr. Fields. The wedding will take place July 10.

HOME CARE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Home health care for a 74-year-old stroke victim in Boston cost $1,230, compared with $11,900 for equivalent hospital care for the same length of time, says the National League for Nursing.

The patient received 17 weeks of intensive home health care, including a total of 50 visits by a community health nurse, a physical therapist, a speech pathologist and an occupational therapist. The league recently published a pamphlet describing community health agencies that provide home health services. They include visiting nurse associations, local health departments and home care units of hospitals.

Penny Pitou Now Teaches Skiing

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

GILFORD, N.H. (UPI) — A young farm girl who taught herself how to ski zoomed down the slopes at Squaw Valley fast enough to snatch two silver medals in the 1960 Winter Olympics.

That was the second Olympic appearance for Penny Pitou, who at 18 had been invited to the 1956 Olympics at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, and spent the next four years on the European circuit, winning international events in places like Grindelwald, Switzerland; Kitzbuhel, Austria; Abetone, Italy; and St. Gervais, France.

Slalom, downhill or combined, Miss Pitou showed a flashing speed she credits to the fact "I skied with the boys most of the time because there weren't that many girls around. It made me very strong and I liked to go fast."

Her performances over the years won her election to the Ski Hall of Fame at Ishpeming, Mich., this year. Last year she was named a member of the New Hampshire Athletic Commission.

After Squaw Valley she married Austrian Olympic star Egon Zimmerman, with whom she established four ski schools: at Gunstock in Gilford; Blue Hills, Mass.; Diamond Hill, R.I., and Loch Ledge, N.Y. She gave up the ski schools in 1968 as part of a divorce settlement.

Meanwhile, she was on the road as a fashion consultant for several of the big names in skiwear, and in 1970 went on tour on the ski show circuit. She had a try as a bank director — the first female to hold such a post in New Hampshire — but didn't enjoy it and quit to buy a travel agency in 1974. "I much prefer being with people," she said.

"I bought the agency without any prior background except that I love to travel," she said. Then she went to school to learn her business. She weaves in her skiing expertize with annual ski safaris to the Alps, which she guides.

Her father started her skiing on their truck farm and she had lessons on the nearly flat hill of the local Outing Club, but mostly she was self-taught, she said. Now she's teaching another generation, and finds her son Kim "skies better at 10 than I did at 17." Her other son, Christian, 13, "is an excellent skier, too, but he's into basketball at the moment."

She hopes her sons may find the fun she did in international ski competition. "It depends if they can get through their early teen-aged years and not be swayed by other interests," she said.

On The Young Side

By JANET GANTT

A short week did not slow school activities down. Rose High students had a long weekend, vacationing Friday, while teachers spent the day working.

Rose High had several individuals who won awards for excellence in art. The Women's Club of Greenville again sponsored the annual contest in which Rose has made continuously good showings.

Those honored were Chip Bailey, honorable mention in weaving; Janet Boone, first place in sculpturing; Phillips Broadhurst, honorable mention in the collage category; Penny Buck, honorable mention in painting; Ellen Crane, second in weaving; Nancy Dail, honorable mention in weaving; Kathryn Haynes, honorable mention in water colors;

Phyllis Jones, third in mixed media; Kim Jordan, second in sculpturing; Mary Lou Little, second in painting; Elaine Nichols, first in painting and maccrame; Caroline Stevens, third in drawing and sculpturing; and Lisa Zicherman, honorable mention in drawing, rounded out the list.

A pre-engineering program is being offered to rising seniors by North Carolina A&T University. Taking place in the 1976 summer, P.E.P. will enroll 60 students for a three-weeks course. The participants will be housed on campus at no cost to the individual. If interested, contact guidance immediately.

Juniors and seniors who planned to take the S.A.T. and Achievement Test April 3 at ECU were supposed to have sent their registration fees before Feb. 27. Those who have not registered and wish to do so are reminded to add a $4 late registration fee to the original cost before mailing the application to the Admissions Testing Program.

Language Class

Several students who are taking Spanish were excused to participate in a foreign language class at ECU. The class allowed college Spanish majors to prepare for their future student teaching.

Also participating were Jane Goforth, Sandra Savage, Camille Smith, Chip Bailey, Nancy Dail, Barrie Grady, Gwen Tyson, Kevin Connolly, Wanda James, Brenda Foley, Jani Glisson, Terry Cox, Mario Baro, and Ray James.

The Anchor Club and Keywanettes spent part of the vacation being generous to others. The Anchors brought refreshments to faculty members Friday morning. At a Kiwanis meeting Friday night, the Keywanettes helped by hanging up coats and keeping the cloakroom in order.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I have friends whose dogs will eat anything.

Wilted lettuce, baked beans, cold egg rolls, you name it!

The other day, I cracked an egg and missed the bowl. The egg slid slowly down the cupboard and onto the floor. "Hey, Buddy," I said to our dog, "are you in luck. C'mon, fella, here's your 35-cent egg just waiting to be lapped up. Good dog!"

The dog circled the egg cautiously for a full five minutes in a crouched position.

"Trust me," I said impatiently. "The egg is dead."

He eased in slowly, sniffing his way. Finally, he reached out with his paw, broke the yoke and walked away leaving a trail of yellow pawprints.

"Dogs love eggs," I said following him into the living room. "I read that on a can of dog food somewhere."

As he crawled under the sofa, I got strong vibes that the discussion had been terminated.

I couldn't believe it. This was the same dog who could stand at the kitchen window when a cookie fell off a curb and still get there in time to grab it in mid-air.

When my husband came home, I was on my hands and knees cleaning up the mess. "Why can't that dog be like the Ellises' dog? He keeps the floor licked clean."

"You mean old wax breath?"

"Not like our dog. Did you see him the other night? He just looked at those barbecued ribs, sniffed and walked away."

"We did the same thing at the table."

"That's different. A dog is supposed to be grateful. Frankly, he's getting harder and harder to feed."

"I blame it on the commercials," said my husband. "He sees all those cats being pampered and all those dogs getting the big chunks of meat and gravy and he says to himself, 'Why should I eat leftovers?'"

"He's persnickety," I grumbled. "Do you know he's the only dog I know who washes his hands after he's played with our children?

Later, we looked in the living room in time to see our dog intently watching the commercial of the dog breaking his own egg into the skillet. He got up and walked toward the stove.

I never let on. "You make a mess and you clean it up!" I warned.

Award Shows Do Get Audience

EDITOR'S NOTE — Why do award shows make good television? "It's a competition, and that makes for good television," says a TV executive, "and, two, it attracts the major stars, and star watching has always been a great pastime of the American people."

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The way things are going these days, it may not be long before a television camera zooms in on some starlet to see her pull a card from an envelope and announce:

Television is in the grips of award show mania. Already this year we've watched the Golden Globe Awards, the American Music Awards, the Entertainer of the Year Awards, the People's Choice Awards and the record industry's Grammy Awards (Feb. 28).

Still to come are the Academy of Country Music Awards on March 1 (not to be confused with the Country Music Association Awards last fall), the film industry's Academy Awards on March 29, the Comedy Awards on April 10, the theater's Tony Awards on April 18 and a double dose of TV's own Emmy Awards — daytime categories on May 11 and prime-time on May 17.

Where did they all come from? Some of the presentations — the Academy Awards, the Tony Awards and a few others — have been around for years and would continue even without television coverage. But the others have sprung up over the last three years specifically as television entertainment.

ABC actually commissioned the development of the American Music Awards and the Comedy Awards. The People's Choice Awards and the Rock Music Awards (which hasn't been scheduled yet this year) were brought separately to CBS by independent producers.

And what would happen if television interest was withdrawn? Says Dick Clark, creator and executive producer of the American Music Awards: "There would be no reason for it. It's devised solely as a television program."

Doesn't that seem unusual?

"Not at all, because I'm in the television business," answers Clark. "It's as valid as any premise. You have to have a commercial reason for it. To have a banquet in New York for 10 people and say here are the results of this poll wouldn't serve a very big purpose."

And what is the purpose?

"It's entertainment."

Award shows make good television, in other words.

"I think there are two reasons," says Edwin T. Vane, national program director for ABC Entertainment. "One, it's a competition, and that makes for good television; and two, it attracts the major stars, and star-watching has always been a great pastime of the American people."

"There's no law that says the only valid attractions are those that originate outside television," Vane says.

Bob Stivers, creator and executive producer of the two-year-old People's Choice Awards, even goes so far as to find out beforehand who the winners are and then make a special effort to persuade them to attend the ceremonies. And if the winner is unable to attend, a brief acceptance speech is taped in advance for airing during the telecast.

That this entertainment approach works is underscored by the fact that the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences is revamping its Emmy Awards show this year. Board chairman John Cannon announced in January that fewer presentations will be televised because the show has experienced a decline in audience for the past five years.

And, as with practically everything else in commercial television, luring the largest possible audience is what these shows are designed to do. The bigger the audience, the bigger the profit from commercials.

Even before the People's Choice Awards concept was brought to CBS, in fact, Stivers had developed it in conjunction with an advertising agency for Procter & Gamble, which liked the idea and agreed to finance the entire show, thereby retaining all the commercial time for its products.

The conglomerate spent about $1 million on the show this year. Stan Potter, manager of nighttime television for Procter & Gamble, explained why:

"It reaches a broad family audience. It's something that can hopefully be presented annually so people come to look forward to it. And it attracts a big audience, which is important to us."

How important? Well, Procter & Gamble financed another TV awards show last year that paid tribute to fashion designers. The subject turned out to be one that didn't interest most TV viewers, however, and the show's ratings were poor. So Procter & Gamble dropped it, and those first awards were also the last awards.

To Teach In Jacksonville

Dr. James W. Batten, professor and chairman of secondary education in the East Carolina University School of Education, will teach "Introduction to Research" (Education 480) during the spring quarter at Jacksonville.

The course, required for a master's degree in elementary education, is offered through the ECU Center at Camp Lejeune. Classes will meet Monday evenings beginning March 8 at Jacksonville Senior High School.

Persons interested in the course should telephone the ECU Camp Lejeune Center at 451-5864 for further information.

Registration for the research course and other graduate courses offered in the spring has been set for March 5, 9 a.m.-6 p.m., and March 6, 9 a.m.-noon, at Building 63 at Camp Lejeune.

Advise Budgeting Of Person's Time

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Financial institutions advise careful budgeting of money.

But it also makes sense to budget time, advises the research division of Pioneer Western Corp., national financial services organization based here.

"Putting your time to efficient use is not only important — it is invaluable to career women, housewives and families alike," say the company's analysts, who offer a few time-budgeting tips:

Discipline yourself to allot certain periods of time to certain chores and projects. Remember that all work can be creative — given half a chance. To consider work as drudgery is destructive.

In planning tasks, give them priorities and deadlines — then stick to them. Put the more difficult first, making sure they get done.

Keep a pencil handy at all times. As the thought occurs, jot it down.

Use a typewriter at home — for ideas for the office or just grocery lists.

Lump all your shopping errands together and do them all at once.

Cut telephone conversations short. Far too many people expend their energy and time with superfluous chatting.

The same applies to callers, both at home and office. Be polite but firm and brief. Visitors can interrupt important tasks.

Avoid saying "I haven't got time." If you can't get your important work done in a certain length of time, something is wrong. You are disorganized.

Avoid boredom. It's enervating and guarantees your getting nothing done.

Tackle big jobs when you have the most energy. Some people are at their productivity peak in the morning — others in the afternoon.

Don't allow yourself to become enslaved by perfection. It can prevent you from accomplishing all you have to do.

"Remember the old saying, 'Ask a busy person if you want to get something done.' This in itself should be incentive enough to get yourself organized," the analysts suggest.

ALL UNSCREWED

NEW YORK (UPI) — Traffic policemen in San Jose, Costa Rica, carry screwdrivers instead of guns, according to Pan American World Airways. Instead of issuing summons for violations, they unscrew the license plates from the offender's car. They can be redeemed only by appearing in person to pay the fine in traffic court.

Fitness Program Will Be Offered

A physical fitness program for East Carolina University faculty and staff members will be sponsored by the ECU Dept. of Health & Physical Education during the spring quarter.

ECU employees of both sexes are encouraged to take part in the activity, which will involve one-hour classes at noon each Monday, Wednesday and Friday in Memorial Gymnasium.

The program is coordinated by Richard A. Lauffer. For further information about the program, telephone Lauffer or Dr. Robert Gantt at 758-6497 in Minges Coliseum.

Senior Citizen Club Holds Luncheon Meet

Mrs. Harriet Roseveare presided. Devotions were given by Rev. Adrian Brown.

Mrs. Ruby Parkenson presented the Sunshine Report.

Bruce Strickland, Jr. explained the Amendments of the constitution to be voted on March 23.

Guests present at the meeting were as follows: Bruce Strickland, Mrs. Rex Hodges, Mrs. Hal Moore and J. Wililliamson. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Alma Letchworth, Mrs. Ruth Harris, Mrs. Grace Hill, and Bob Hill.

Some Progress Seen Toward Controlling Pollution

EDITOR'S NOTE — Despite the problems and setbacks in cleaning up the environment, the task is going forward with considerable public support, according to public opinion polls.

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smog still pollutes some major American cities. Oil spills occasionally foul beaches. Coal operators continue to destroy the landscape by strip-mining for coal in some states. And chemical pollutants threaten health.

But six years after Richard M. Nixon signed the National Environmental Health Act and declared the '70s the decade for cleaning up the environment, there are many claims that progress has been made toward eliminating pollution.

In the process, pollution fighting has become a major American enterprise. The Environmental Protection Agency, for example, is the government's largest regulatory agency, with 9,000 employes, although it is only five years old. Most states and large cities run agencies similar to the EPA.

The production of pollution-control equipment is a multi-billion-dollar industry. The federal government estimates that $15.7-billion was spent last year — $5.7-billion by federal, state and local governments and $10-billion by industry. The outlay produced one million jobs, according to federal statistics.

Pollution control is one of the few industries not hurt by the recession, says Russell W. Peterson, chairman of the White House Council on Environmental Quality.

More than 50 groups dedicated to improving the environment have been organized since 1970, the Library of Congress reports, and dozens of lawsuits have been filed in behalf of the environment. Most demand compliance with a clause in the 1970 National Environmental Health Act that requires "environmental impact statements" for all federal activities significantly affecting the environment.

The National Wildlife Federation, the nation's largest conservation organization, annually assesses progress in seven major environmental areas: timber, water, minerals, air, wildlife, soil and open space.

Its recently issued report for 1975 concluded that air pollution decreased, but in the six other areas there was loss of quality, in part because of failures to comply with new federal regulations, or the failure of the federal government to enact necessary legislation.

A federal land use bill, for example, didn't get through Congress last year and President Ford vetoed a bill to regulate strip mining. Although the National Wildlife Federation noted progress in reducing air pollution, even the EPA said that few utilities and industries met the June 1 deadline last year for compliance with federal standards on emissions of smoke, dust, sulfur dioxide, carbon monoxide, smog and nitrogen dioxide over urban areas.

Nevertheless, the National Wildlife Federation concluded: "Despite this generally somber picture, there are some encouraging signs. Most significantly, perhaps, the polls still show undiminished public support for environmental goals."

Others point to these accomplishments:

—After a concerted federal, state and local effort, fish life is again thriving in Lake Erie, considered a "dying lake" a decade ago. And Lake County beaches near Chicago, closed by pollution in 1969, were reopened last summer.

—For the first time in 100 years, Atlantic salmon have returned to the Connecticut River.

—The waters of Pensacola's Escambia Bay in northwest Florida — the site of numerous fish kills in the early 1970s because of industrial pollution— are clearing. Shrimp and oysters are gradually coming back and the natural ecology is being restored.

—Hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide levels in the exhausts of 1976-model automobiles are 85 per cent less than in vehicles made before 1968, the EPA says.

—More than three-fourths of the 20,000 "major air pollution sources" in the nation are complying with pollution abatement plans, the EPA says, although many are behind schedule and there are some notable problems.

Despite the problems, Russell Train, the EPA's administrator, says: "We have definitely turned the corner on all the major pollution problems that faced us in 1970. But I'm not suggesting that we don't have a lot of problems ahead."

In an interview, Train said the environmental movement that started in the 1960s because of "justifiable outrage on the part of the public," has now largely been institutionalized.

"There's a lot less emotional excitement about the environment today, but perhaps an even deeper acceptance of the issue by the public. The environment has just taken its place among the nation's priorities and values today," Train said.

He has been running the EPA since 1973, when he took over from William D. Ruckelshaus, the agency's first administrator.

Charged with enforcing regulations on everything from air and water pollution to pesticides and noise, the EPA has been controversial from its inception. It has been buffeted with criticism from both environmentalists who say it knuckles under too often to industry pressure and from industry, which has accused the agency of over-zealousness.

Within the administration, Train has differed with President Ford. Twice last year he urged the President to sign bills imposing enviromental controls on strip mining; Ford vetoed them.

"In all fairness," Train said, "I don't think the President has evidenced a strong environmental record on some of the issues that he's been confronted with, such as strip mining."

The energy crisis and the 1973 Arab oil boycott "obviously complicated" the job of enforcing environmental laws and regulations, Train added. "But I really don't think we need to rip off the environment or public health to achieve our national energy goals. In any long-range sense, we've got to do both jobs together."

Train said that despite his differences with Ford on some matters, he feels the EPA has "remained a strong force within the administration" and that public support for environmental programs "continues at a high level."

The Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., last summer polled 1,222 persons, a cross-section of the American public, on their attitudes toward enviromental issues. The poll showed that despite the recession, high unemployment and rising fuel costs, those interviewed opposed cutting back enviromental control programs.

The four major auto manufacturers have been arguing for a five-year delay in the enforcement of auto emission standards now scheduled to take effect for 1978-model cars. The deadlines have already been pushed back three times.

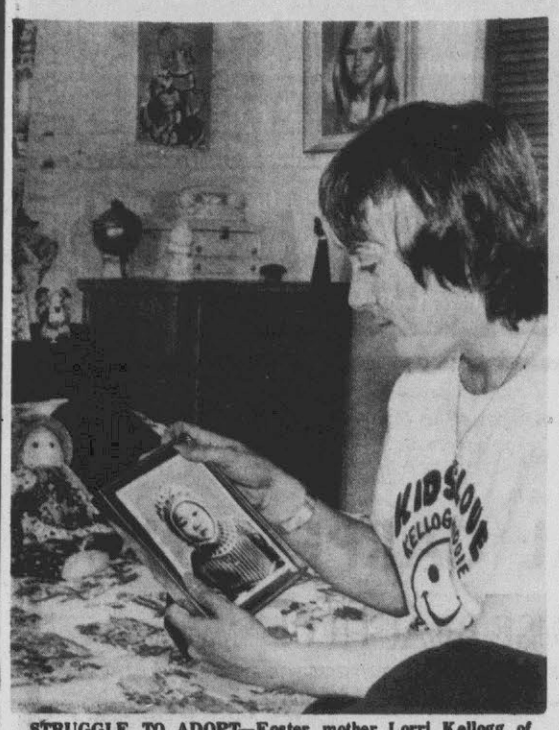

Efforts to comply with water pollution standards in the 1972 Water Pollution Control Act also are falling behind. The act sets tough water quality standards for 1977, even tougher ones for 1983. And 1985 is to be the year in which all the nation's waterways are free of pollution.

The National Commission on Water Quality recently reported that clean-up efforts are running far behind schedule and the deadlines may have to be postponed.

What does the future hold for the environmental movement?

Train said EPA is now beginning to focus on "second generation problems," preventive measures instead of cures.

He noted that $120-billion a year is spent in America on health care and "70 to 90 per cent of these adverse health effects are related to pollution and other enviromental factors."

Clinic Assisted Greene Program

The Greene County Advisory Board for the Statewide Prekindergarten Screening Program (SPSP) recently met with representatives from East Carolina University at the Greene County Board of Education Building.

Genevieve Taylor, elementary school supervisor, was elected to chair the Advisory Board.

Attending the organizational meeting were officials from county agencies and boards and other interested citizens, including George Taylor, school superintendent; Josephine Taylor, Greene Lamp, Inc.; Gary Lewis, and Jack Pleasants, Greene County Health Care; Wanda Battle, county extension office; Frank Baker, Greene Mental Health Clinic; Frank Walston, Greene County Commissioner; Rubneal Kerney, Dept. of Social Services; Asa Streaves, Greene Health Dept.; Carol Miller, a parent; and Dr. Swartzwelder, child psychiatrist.

Representatives from the statewide screening program were Dr. Malene Irons, director of the ECU Developmental Evaluation Clinic; Patricia Adams, program supervisor; Sandra Houston, SPSP-team leader for Pitt, Greene and Wayne Counties; and Betty Walston, child screening specialist.

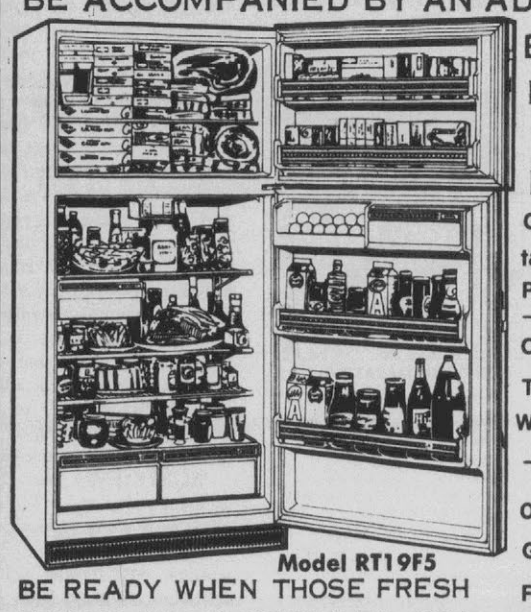

The program, established by the N. C. Dept. of Human Resources, will attempt to recognize the special needs of children by providing a profile for each child reflecting development and educational status prior to kindergarten entry.

Efforts will be made to screen each four-year-old child, and strengths and weaknesses affecting preacademic skills will be noted and used by parents and children's service agencies.

Greene County has approximately 210 four year olds who can benefit from the statewide program.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MARCH 1, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You could have unexpected annoyances, but in ways not evident there's a chance to gain an awareness of what is happening about you. Inner peace now can be easily attained.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care of little tasks that are annoying so that you regain peace of mind. You can now advance in career matters.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good friend could tax your patience today, so keep busy at work you have to do. Use new method for gaining your aim.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be sure not to do anything that would upset a higher-up today. Take corrective steps to improve your credit. Be alert.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have too many commitments to meet before you engage in new interests. Show more affection for mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure you handle your part of any agreements you have made with others. Show more patience with the one you love.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to please an associate and you cement far better relations for the future. Maintain equilibrium with everyone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't spend beyond your means right now or you could dig too deep into your reserves. Rise above petty annoyances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Remain poised at home today and avoid unpleasant results. A new plan needs more study to become successful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Improve your relations with regular allies and encourage them more instead of criticizing them. Be logical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your financial situation well so that you know precisely where you are headed. Strive for true happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take steps to improve your physical and mental health via the right treatments. A time to make plans for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she may feel that one has to fight for what is wanted instead of using the more serene and practical approach. Give as fine an education as you can to bring out the natural talents. Intelligent discipline is important.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Fast Growth In Food Service

CHICAGO (UPI) — The food service growth rate of nine per cent makes it one of the fastest growing industries in the United States, says the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Meat is the most popular food service item, the industry organization said. By the mid-1980s, an estimated one out of every two food dollars will be spent on meals away from home.

FUN GAME

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — The most popular game — and the most popular form of gambling, too — in Colombia is "tejo," in which the participants try to hit small gunpowder charges mounted on a wooden board with a rock from a distance of about 30 feet.

TV SHOWTIME

For The Week Of February 29-March 6, 1976

Capital Centre Hosts ACC Tournament

ACC TOURNAMENT — The annual dogfight in college basketball, better known as the ACC Tournament, will take place from March 4 to 6 in Largo, Maryland's Capital Center. Each team will be led by their nail-biting coaches, who represent one of the finest group of mentors in the entire nation. The semi-final matches will be televised on Friday, March 5 at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m., while the championship can be seen beginning at 8 p.m. on Saturday, March 6.

The 1976 Atlantic Coast Conference Basketball Tournament will have a new location, but the same kind of heart-stopping play that has become a legend in this tournament will emerge again on the week-end of March 5 and 6. Both semi-final thrillers will be broadcast on Friday night, March 5, beginning at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. The final game will be seen on Saturday night, starting at 8 p.m. on Channels 6-9-11.

Greensboro Coliseum and Charlotte Coliseum have long been the home of "the best basketball tournament in the nation." This year, the classic moves north to Landover, Maryland, where the spacious new $18,000,000 super-arena - known as the Capital Centre - will serve as gracious host.

The new center is certainly one of the most spectacular facilities ever to house the prestigious event. Home for the Washington Bullets professional basketball team, the Capital Centre seats 17,500 screaming ACC fans, and has forty spacious suites where luxurious carpeting, bars and private restrooms are the order for the day. No seat is more than 200 feet from the floor, and no supporting columns are in evidence to block a rabid fan's view. The restaurants are also located in the complex, one seating 125 and the other 300.

The most fascinating innovation is a hugh 12-by-16 foot telescreen that is hung high above mid-court. The screen has full color close-up and instant replays, providing ACC supporters with a clear view of an exciting, controversial play.

Attempting to pick a winner in this mad, unpredictable tournament is like finding a non-David Thompson fan in North Carolina. As a natural tie-over from the regular season, the tournament inevitably provides an astounding array of upsets that have come to be expected by ardent Conference followers.

It's not unusual for a nationally ranked, Top Ten team to lose to one of the 'cellar-dwellers' in the ACC: the conference is just that balanced.

The ACC regular season champion is sure to receive an at-large bid to the NCAA Tournament. If they lose, then the second-place team in the ACC Classic also has a very good shot at receiving an at-large invitation.

In any case, the regular ceason champion receives a bye in the first round of the tournament, which is very important considering the large number of upsets that occur in the hectic first day. At this stage of the season, it appears that either the University of North Carolina or North Carolina State will hold that coveted position.

Last season illustrated just how complicated predicting a winner can become. Maryland won the regular season championship but lost to N.C. State in the semi-finals. N.C. State was then upset by North Carolina's Tar Heels in the final: such is commonplace in the ACC.

Don't be surprised to see Wake Forest, Duke, Virginia or Clemson gain a semi-final or final berth. The best way to enjoy the ACC Tournament is to forget who is favored over who, and sit back to enjoy basketball with all the stops pulled.

Mitch Kupachak of Brentwood, N. Y., is playing his final season with North Carolina's basketball team. He led the Tar Heels last season averaging 18.5 points a game.

Monsters Are Subject Of Film

Monsters and the monstrous are the subjects of "The International Animation Festival" Saturday, March 6, at 8 p.m., on PBS, when Jean Marsh introduces some macabre and spooky works by animators from around the world.

"There is a dark side to the human imagination," Ms. Marsh says, "and animators have always been drawn to explore that darkness. Sometimes they do it with humor. But our first work is definitely not funny. It is more like a nightmare than anything else."

The film is Ante Zaninovic's "Homo Augens," about a man who undergoes an agonizing metamorphosis into a growing, bestial cannibal. He reaches colossal size, collapses outside the walls of a city and the populace streams outside to butcher him, thus fulfilling a continual cycle.

Next are three 'mimi-films' - "Invitation to Dinner," about a man who grooms himself for a special occasion, only to find that he is the main course; "Sun Eats Discoverer," an eerie tale of being devoured by cosmic eyes; and a Mexican film, in which our hero listens to his echoing scream emanate from a mysterious hole and then confronts the person of the echo.

"You know that nursery rhyme - 'Little Miss Muffet sat on a tuffet eating her curds and whey? Down came a spider and sat down beside her. And scared Miss Muffet away.' Suppose that happened to you - only you couldn't get away," Ms. Marsh says in introducing the next film, "Spider."

The show closes with "Mr. Hyde," a bizarre take-off on the Robert Louis Stevenson story. In this version, the good doctor Jekyll changes to a human existing in a society of ghouls.

MORE TV NOVELS

As impressive ratings rolled in for ABC-TV's serialization of novelist Irwin Shaw's "Rich Man, Poor Man," NBC-TV unveiled a new series for next fall, "Best Seller."

The new series will offer four to six adaptations of novels during the next season. The dramatizations will be selected from a minimum of 10 titles (to be announced).

Robbins Hosts Music Awards

MUSIC AWARDS — Marty Robbins, long a major performer in the idiom, will be the host of "The Academy of Country Music Awards," to be seen as a "Monday Night Special" on ABC-TV, Channel 3W-5-12, Monday, March 1 (11:30 p.m.-1 a.m.).

Marty Robbins, long a major country music performer, will host the 11th annual presentation of the "Academy of Country Music Awards," to be seen in a "Monday Night Special," March 1, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Lindsay Wagner, star of "The Bionic Woman," and television game show host Peter Marshall will be joined by country music favorites Jimmy Wakely, Mickey Gilley and Mel Tillis in the presentation of the awards.

The all-star cast of performers who will appear on the program includes Loretta Lynn, Conway Twitty, Tom T. Hall, Crystal Gayle, Billy "Crash" Craddock, the Country Current and comedian Jerry Clower.

Today, country music is all grown up. From its back-porch strumming milieu into a structured urban culture, the music has gained stature.

Although its demise was forecast when electric guitars, violins and brass intruded, country music quietly boomed, instead, and — in the 1960s —, country records started outselling classical and jazz.

Actress Hospitalized

On ABC-TV's daytime drama, "Ryan's Hope," Nell Beaulac is being hospitalized for a terminal illness. Viewers agonize daily as she valiantly struggles to hold onto her life despite ominous odds against her. But she bravely looks past her illness toward joy and - poor Nell - dares to laugh in the face of death.

Perhaps the reason the role is so convincingly played is because of the outlook actress Diana van der Vlis has about life. Like the character she portrays, Diana exudes only the positive values that belong to life. There's no room in her life for negatives - only the straightforward manner of an indestructible life force.

She lives in Boston with her husband, a publisher, and their two children and she commutes to New York each week for two days of taping on "Ryan's Hope." "It seems that half of my life is spent in mid-air," she laughs.

"But I'm having a super time playing Nell. I have lots of fights and get to yell at a lot of people, and that's more exciting than sitting around and counseling everybody else. That's what I did for years on "Where The Heart Is."

The now-defunct serial was Diana's first soap, but she'd had a long successful career in the theater and in films before that. She was born in Toronto, Canada, and was educated there, in Winnipeg and Vancouver, and at the University of Manitoba. She began acting in little theater groups, "and I always played old lady characters, because I was the tallest and thinnest girl.

"Acting was the first thing I found that I really enjoyed doing. It was an enormous release for me to be totally free, physically and emotionally free on a stage. I had marvelous parents; there weren't any objections from them about my career ambitions."

After 'Heart's' demise, Diana vowed "Never again," as far as soap operas were concerned. "It was such hard, grueling work for three-and-a-half years. I played Kate Hathaway - loving, kind, warm, understanding, everybody's friend; you know the type."

She's back on the 'soap scene,' and - depending on the outcome of Nell's illness - she just may stay. Diana has many faithful followers in viewer-land, and there'll be wails galore should Nell expire.

'Sound Of Music' Premieres

"The Sound of Music," which thrilled more audiences than any other musical in movie history with its breathtaking beauty and beloved story and songs, makes its long-awaited premiere in an extraordinary family night presentation as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie Special" Feb. 29, 7 to 10:25 p.m., on Channel 3W-5-12.

Julie Andrews, who was nominated for an Academy Award for her performance as the musical and mischievous Maria in this milestone movie, stars along with Christopher Plummer in the film version of one of Broadway's most loved and longest-running hits.

Besides the Oscar nomination for Miss Andrews, "The Sound of Music" received five Academy Awards and several other nominations, including one for co-star Peggy Wood. The movie's incredible box-office success - coming after a run of more than four years on Broadway - earned a total (to date) of $78,400,000, moving it ahead of "Gone With The Wind" on the list of ths most popular movies of all times.

"The Sound of Music" tells the sometimes gentle, sometimes funny, sometimes harsh, always true-to-life story of The Trapp Family Singers, a family which fled from their idyllic home in the Austrian Alps when the crunch of Nazi boots took the music and the joy out of their peaceful life at the beginning of World War II.

In order to film the uniquely beautiful story of a family that rejected defeat, director Robert Wise took his cast and cameras to the Alps to relive the love and deter-mination that saved their lives - and eventually made them internationally famous.

The key to the change - and inspiration - in the conservative and sternly disciplined von Trapp family is Maria (Miss Andrews), a very bright and very unconventional girl who is encouraged by the Mother Abbess (Miss Wood) to leave the convent and share her zany nature with the troubled world. The world she enters is that of the stern Captain von Trapp (Plummer) and his seven motherless children, where she becomes governess, singing teacher, common sense philosopher and eventual mother in the grim days when fascism cast its dark shadows over Europe.

The songs created by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein (their last show together; Oscar Hammerstein died on Aug. 23, 1960) have become a part of the musical language. They include "My Favorite Things," "Climb Every Mountain," and the song that makes the hills come alive: "The Sound of Music." (Rodgers also wrote two new songs with his own lyrics - especially for the movie.)

SINGING— Julie Andrews brings the hills to life with the sound of her own sweet voice as she sings to the children in her care in "The Sound of Music." the most popular musical in movie history, making its television premiere as "The AB C Sunday Night Movie Special" on a special family night Sunday, February 29 (7-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

England's Decline Probed

The startling decline of Great Britain, from a position as one of the Big Four at the end of World War II, to that of a nation today trying hard to survive, is the subject of a CBS News Special: "The Second Battle of Britain," to be broadcast Sunday, Feb. 29, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 11.

CBS News Commentator Morley Safer, who has lived and worked in Great Britain intermittently for the past 20 years, returns to his former beat for this broadcast, which examines the roots of Britain's decline, the prospects for her future, and the implications this unfolding tragedy holds for the heir to her history, traditions and power — the United States.

As Safer discovers in this broadcast, Great Britain is a different country from the one he knew. "It is a nation at war with itself." His reports explores this former leader of industrial capitalism now turned welfare state, and a people, as Safer says, "in the throes of a spiritual dilemma."

The Major Gets A Salute

Lois Nettleton has excelled in zesty roles both in drama and comedy, but nothing pleases her more than "Major Annie, M. D.," a spinoff segment of "Medical Center" airing Monday, March 1, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

She portrays a surgeon in a stateside Army hospital and friend of Dr. Joe Gannon (series star Chad Everett) who risks her military career to aid a stricken colleague.

"Major Annie has a multitude of possibilities that most roles for women in series don't have," Ms. Nettleton says. "She's in the Army, she's a surgeon and she's got an interesting career that can be exploited many ways. In addition, she can have plenty of romantic adventures along the way. She's got to have a certain amount of strength and authority to be where she is, but she's also gentle, soft, romantic and funny.

Ms. Nettleton, an Illinois-born blonde with blueish-green eyes, was preparing a stage production in New York when first hearing of the role. "I got a call and the script on a Tuesday night . . . had to be on the airplane Wednesday morning — packing nine suitcases — and in L. A. for wardrobe that afternoon," Lois recalls. "Thursday I was at the studio for conferences all day and Friday morning up at 4 a.m. to start shooting."

One of Lois' favorite scenes is with guest star John Gavin who plays a great research scientist who regards the individual as less important than the overall concept of humanity. "Annie finds out that he has been withholding information to protect some highly confidential projects. Then after an argument in the next scene, they have a discussion in which two very valid viewpoints are revealed."

Ms. Nettleton, who appeared in a series called "Accidental Family" with Jerry Van Dyke several years ago, had turned down a number of feature roles before accepting "Major Annie."

"Too many roles are very limited in their scope," Lois feels. "Usually they are somebody's wife, and I'd think where can she go? How many adventures can she have? As an actress, I couldn't stand doing limited parts like that week after week."

From a technical standpoint, Ms. Nettleton took lessons from a Colonel learning how to salute properly. "Basically I had to learn when you do and don't salute, making sure the salute was correct. Now, whenever I spot anyone in a uniform, I can't resist saluting."

Some call it an occupational hazard!

LOIS NETTLETON — stars as an Army doctor in a special segment of "Medical Center," titled "Major Annie, M.C." airing March 1 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11. Della Reese and John Gavin guest star.

Yesterday Recalled

Edgar Bergen became world-famous by putting words into the mouths of others. As the voice of such diverse characterizations as Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd, Effie Klinker and Podine Puffington, he achieved his greatest success with radio audiences who accepted his personalities sight unseen.

The oft-times impudent, irreverent and ego-deflating Charlie McCarthy was as widely quoted as a contemporary radio star, Fred Allen. On several occasions, Allen and Bergen made friendly forays onto each other's show.

Charlie and Edgar will be Tom Snyder's guests on the "tomorrow" show Monday, March 1, at 1 a.m.

Bergen reveals that the inspiration for Charlie came to him in 1922 when he was a high school student in Chicago. While staring out the window, he began to sketch a small Irish newsboy selling papers on the street corner. The completed sketch was sent to a wood carver, and a month later the ageless Charlie McCarthy was born.

After graduating from high school, Bergen worked his way through Northwestern University with his ventriloquist act, playing weekend engagements and touring during vacation. He and Charlie were seasoned troupers in the 30's when it became apparent that vaudeville was destined to be just a fond memory.

11:30 (3N,9,11) CBS Late Show: "Letters From Three Lovers" June Allyson and Ken Berry. Three letters, delayed a year by a plane crash, change the lives of three sets of people. One, tells of a young couple who find themselves very deeply in love but prevented from marrying; the second deals with a childless and lonely woman married to a businessman; and the third concerns a secretary who is mistaken for an heiress by an eager fortune-hunter. (repeat, 2 hrs)
(3W,5,12) Monday Night Special: "Academy of Country Music Awards" Marty Robbins is the host for the 11th annual presentation of these awards. Among the presentators will be Lindsay Wagner, star of "The Bionic Woman, and Jimmy Wakely. The all-star cast of performers who will appear on the program, among them include Loretta Lynn, Conway Twitty, Tom T. Hall and Crystal Gayle. (90 min)

Work Is Puzzling

What can be said of people who have trouble finding their way to work?

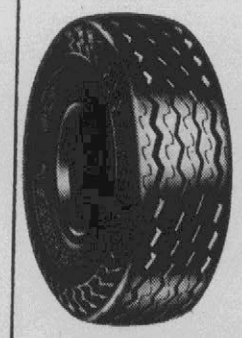

Well, don't jump to conclusions.

The "Jigsaw John" series (Mondays, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7), manages to find the most remote and unusual locations for filming and the staff is intrigued to learn where the company will be from day to day. Since the stories focus on the widespread beat of the Los Angeles Police Department's homicide squad, it isn't surprising that the show films in out-of-the-way neighborhoods in that city.

Claude Akins Sings Again

GEARED FOR SINGING — Trucker Sonny Pruitt (series star Claude Akins) wins a singing contest and dreams of becoming another Elvis in "Sing It Again, Sonny," NBC-TV's "Movin' On" colorcast Tuesday, March 2 (8-9 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Many people couldn't carry a tune in a 10-ton truck, but Claude Akins — who stars as trucker Sonny Pruitt in "Movin' On" series — is one man who can.

"I don't think I'll be giving Frank Sinatra much of a run for his money as a vocalist, but I feel pretty comfortable with what I've done on this show," Akins reported.

Trucker Sonny, via Akins, makes his singing debut in the "Sing it Again, Sonny" episode of "Movin' On," to be colorcast Tuesday, March 2, 8 to 9 p.m. on Ch. 6-7.

In the segment, Sonny sings and plays guitar to win a stag night contest at a Nashville truckers' convention. Overwhelmed by the apparent eagerness of a free-wheeling talent agent (played by guest star Vera Miles) and his fellow truckers, who happen to have a financial interest in his musical "future," Sonny dreams — at least for a while — of becoming another Elvis Presley.

"Sonny never really believes he's all that good, he doesn't get a fat head about it," Akins explained. "But when he sees everybody else hopping on the bandwagon, he hops on, too."

The song he sings, "Rollin' On," originally was considered as a possible theme for the series, according to Akins. It was rejected in favor of the current "Movin' On" theme, which was written and subsequently recorded by Merle Haggard.

"It's a trucking song with a country - western sound," Akins said. "I'm a baritone, and we kept it down low enough for me, and I really enjoyed doing it."

This is not the first time Akins has sung on television. He made his vocal debut about 10 years ago, as a guest star in a western series singing "Tom Dooley." About three years later that forgotten classic was discovered by other artists and it zoomed to the top of the charts.

"And I sang 'Streets of Laredo' on another western series several years later," Akins said, "but I can't honestly say that anyone's been begging for an encore until now."

Akins sang in a church choir as a child, and studied voice at Northwestern University before seeking an acting career.

"I suppose any actor would be interested in expanding his talent, in varying his career — I just don't know how long I could fool the public," he responded with a laugh when asked if he would consider adding music to his acting accomplishments.

"I may not be much of a threat to Frank Sinatra in the singing field — but I'll bet I can drive a truck better than Frank can," he concluded.

During the American Revolution, a young girl in the style of Paul Revere, rides to warn neighbors that the British Army is approaching, in "Sybil Ludington," the Saturday, March. 6, colorcast on NBC-TV's Bicentennial series, "GO-USA," 12:30 to 1 p.m.

'Let's Switch' Is A Comedy

Start with an attractive, bubbly and bored housewife-mother . . . throw her together with her best friend, a hip, funky and fed-up magazine editor . . . slowly the plot souffles into the delightful premise of the hilarious comedy, "Let's Switch," the "CBS Late Movie" airing Tuesday, March 2, 12 midnight, on Channel 9-11.

Starring two of the most accomplished comedic talents in the business — Barbara Eden and Barbara Feldon — "Let's Switch" details some of the hilarious things that happen when two women of totally different views, values and tastes exchange roles and families for one incredible week.

Women will identify with the two females. What housewife hasn't spent some time dreaming of what it would be like to be a woman in business? Which one wouldn't gladly trade places to get out of the house, away from the kids, cleaning, cooking paying bills, etc? And, on the other hand, are there any career women who, swamped with work, hassled by employers, beseiged by dealines, wouldn't be thrilled to get away from it all by staying home for a while? Each may find problems in the new roles, but at least the problems would be different ones.

Grasshoppers Play The Part Of Locusts

At first glance it was a logistics problem of monumental proportions. Five thousand extras were to be used for just one scene in a television movie and all of them had to be transported to the location, fed and housed. But, instead of a producer's nightmare, the assignment was actually quite simple. These extras were not human - they were grasshoppers.

The 5,000 grasshoppers were to be used in a sequence showing an invasion of locusts in "Young Pioneers," a dramatic western airing as "The ABC Monday Night Movie," March 1, 8 to 10 p.m. on Channel 3-5-12. The little creatures did not demand much but they had to be brought to the location early and housed, and that fact had producer Ed Friendly and his production staff slightly confused.

"What do you do with 5,000 grasshoppers while you are waiting to use them?," Friendly asked himself. "We actually found a man who is a grasshopper 'wrangler' and he told us all that he needed for them was a warm hotel room."

Thus, a slightly startled motel manager in Patagonia, Arizona, found himself playing host to the grasshoppers and a smaller number of crickets which would be used in rehearsals for the scene.

"It all seemed rather comical at times," Friendly said. "We had crickets 'standing in' for grasshoppers. But we also had a lot riding on this scene. If it didn't work it would ruin one of the most dramatic moments in the film. Those little insects, though, gave terrific performances!"

The actual filming of the locust invasion on a corn crop surpassed everyone's most optimistic hopes. And for the film's two young stars, Roger Kern and Lina Purl, it became quite an ordeal.

"Those insects sure knew what to do with that crop," Kern said. "And we found out that they really don't care if people are around. They were all over us. Linda was terrified of them, so in the closeups they used plastic grasshoppers. But in all the long shots it was the real thing. We were both scared."

When the scene was finished and the locusts had gone, everyone breathed a sigh of relief that things had gone so well.

"I doubt that we could have found 5,000 humans who could have done such a good job," producer Friendly said. "And the grasshoppers don't have agents."

NEWLYWED SETTLERS— Roger Kern and Linda Purl star in "Young Pioneers," two-hour movie special and series pilot which airs Monday, March 1 on ABC-TV from 8 to 10 p.m. Their roles in the film are those of newlyweds, 18 and 16, who is 1873 leave their native Iowa to settle in the rugged Dakota Territory and their battle against the untamed country, drought, blizzards, a grasshopper plague and loneliness.

Actress Licked Her Shyness

Thirteen years ago, Kim Darby turned to acting because she felt it would be a marvelous way to rid herself of her "adolescent shyness." Today, Kim is one of the most sought-after actresses in Hollywood.

She is currently appearing in "Rich Man, Poor Man," a 12-hour "ABC Novel for Television" running in weekly segments each Monday night (10 to 11 p.m.).

In "Rich Man, Poor Man," Kim portrays Virginia Calderwood, the emotional daughter of a rich businessman. The role, she says, is the type she prefers: "Most of my best roles have been ones in which I have had to show considerable emotion. Although it's very taxing at times, I do enjoy being able to really get into the character . . . feel the way the author meant it to be."

"Rich Man, Poor Man" was in production for six months, and "the production was very demanding on me," she admits, "because during my time off I was doing other guest appearances . . . appearances which I had been committed to for long before I was signed to play Virginia."

When her stint in "Rich Man, Poor Man" was completed, Kim looked forward to a rest period in which she would try skiing, among other forms of relaxation.

And after her rest? "Well, I've been in the business for a long time and what I would really like to do is learn something else within the field. I don't want to quit acting, but maybe something behind the scenes would interest me. Like working close to a director . . watching him . . . and learning the other side of acting."

Kim Darby has come a long way since the 'adolescent shyness': "I'm not shy now, and I have what I've really worked hard for — recognition."

A Fall Led To New Career

CUES THE ACTION— Jack Donohue, director for NBC-TV's "Chico and the Man" is at the controls calling the shots for the hit comedy series, now colorcast Wednesdays (9-9:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

A two-story fall was the beginning of a show business career for Jack Donohue, director of "Chico and the Man" (Wednesdays, 9 to 9:30 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7). He became a dancer after falling two stories from a New York skyscraper — his new choice of careers later led him into directing.

"I smashed both my knees and was hospitalized for three months," said Donohue. "When I came out, I was on crutches and the doctor had me do some exercises."

As a part of his therapy, the doctor suggested any kind of dancing because it would make him bend his knees and ankles. He said: "I would watch people dance and I would say, 'How do you do that?' They would show me and it was just one of those things that came naturally. Within a week, I not only would do it, I would do it better than they did.

After a full recovery, Donohue returned to his job as a steel worker. One day, on his way to work, he saw an ad in the paper seeking dancers for auditions at the New Amsterdam Theatre.

"I left the subway, went back home, dressed up and went to the audition. I didn't even know what I was auditioning for. Ten days later I received a card to report the following Monday morning for rehearsals for the Ziegfeld Follies."

Donohue became a specialty dancer and travelled to London where he spent seven years as an actor and dance director. Upon his return to this country, he went to Hollywood to work at Paramount Studios as dance director on a film starring Bob Hope. He later left Paramount to work for MGM, where he remained for eight years.

"By that time, any idea of going back to acting was foolish," said Donohue. "I knew that the job I wanted was the one that fellow — the director — was doing. So I started to watch and learn the film diector's job.

"Being a dance director at MGM taught me so much about cameras, cutting and shooting. When I got the chance to do my first picture, I just did it and it was fine. I was a director."

Donohue's first television credit as a producer-director came as a result of an offer made to him by Frank Sinatra, with whom he had worked at MGM.

"Everyone thought I was crazy to leave MGM to go into television, because certainly it was not going to last. They said, 'Are you sure you want to do this? Do you know what you're doing?' And I said, 'Yes, I know what I'm doing. I'm going to be a producer-director — leave me alone.' "

Donohue is very happy with his choice of careers. He said; "There is nothing in the world I would rather do. Don't get in my way when I'm on my way to rehearsals because I'll run right through you!"

Kennedy Looks Like A Cop

She was a white-haired old lady; a bit stooped, sensible shoes, clutching a bag of groceries. She saw the big man in a policeman's uniform and blocked his path.

"Pardon me," she said in a quavery voice, "but would a policeman help me if I locked myself out of my apartment?"

"Of course, Madam," said the man.

"But it happened to me last Friday and I waited an hour and the patrol car never showed up," said the old lady.

Actor George Kennedy, the man in uniform, patted her shoulder and said apologetically, "I'm sure there was some mistake, maybe an emergency," and escaped to his trailor dressing room. He had been filming on location in downtown Los Angeles for "The Blue Knight," police drama series in which he stars as a veteran beat cop, seen Wednesdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

"That's happened a dozen times since we started work on the show," Kennedy reports. "People see me in uniform, and to them, I'm a cop. They don't see me, the actor."

Kennedy has been asked for street directions, what precautions to take against burglars, and is regularly stopped by people who just want to pass the time of day.

"It doesn't do a lot for my ego as a performer," says Kennedy, "but it sure helps me understand how important the beat cop is in his neighborhood. If you do your job right, you're a real king. They come to you for every little thing—and that in turn keeps you on top of what's going on."

Kennedy does his share of signing autographs for people who recognize him from his many films, such as "Earthquake," "Airport" (for which he got an Oscar nomination) and "Cool Hand Luke," for which he won an Academy Award.

On a commercial airliner, Kennedy, who has a pilot's license, is often invited up to the cockpit "to see how everything works" as a result of his role as a take-charge maintenance chief in the movies "Airport" and "Airport 75."

SAYS HE'LL NOT RETURN

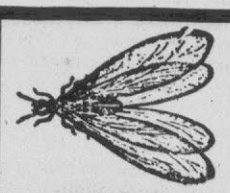

Michael Douglas says he'll not return to "Streets of San Francisco" next season. He may appear in a two-hour launching of the series next Fall— in which he'll be 'killed off.'

NO MORE, PLEASE!

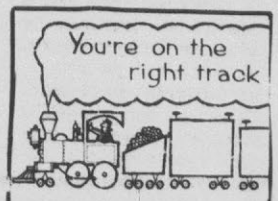

Craig Stevens, who was very successful in TV's "Peter Gunn," was first offered the lead in "Hawaii Five-O," before Jack Lord was given the part. Craig had just finished the 'Gun' series and turned it down because he didn't want to do another detective show.

SHE WAS HIS 'FIRST'

ASSISTANT DA— Susan Clark stars as Laurel McNaughton, an assistant district attorney who has the difficult assignment of prosecuting a beloved public figure on a charge of homicide in "McNaughton's Daughter," a world Premiere drama on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" March 4 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Susan Clark Stars As DA

Susan Clark stars as a deputy district attorney assigned the difficult task of trying to convict a "saint" on a homicide charge, in "McNaughton's Daughter," a World Premiere colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" March 4, on Ch. 6-7. Also starring in the drama are Ricardo Montalban, Vera Miles and Ralph Bellamy.

Laurel McNaughton (Miss Clark) draws the politically dangerous job of trying to convict the famed Grace Coventry (Miss Miles), a beloved public figure who has devoted her life to feeding starving people of Africa, of slaying her assistant. District Attorney Quintero (Montalban) gives her a free hand but warns that she must come up with an air-tight case.

Miss Clark, a Toronto-born actress, studied her craft with the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London. She has starred in the motion pictures "Coogan's Bluff," "Airport 1975," and "Skin Game." Recently she portrayed champion golfer and athlete, Babe Didrikson Zaharias in the TV drama special, "Babe."

Veteran actor Ricardo Montalban, now 55-years-old, is a native of Mexico City and began his acting career in 1940. His first role was in a summer stock production, but a year later he went back to Mexico and made 13 films for MGM.

He has more recently been making commercials for TV and feels that they are not as easy to film as they look. "Commercials are very difficult because they have to be done well, no matter how simple they are. In acting," Montalban continued, "the most difficult scenes are the ones which look so simple, commercials included. The dramatic scenes are really the easiest because you are conditioned to do the hard ones, but not simple ones.

HOLLYWOOD — Esther Rolle of TV's "Good Times" hasn't allowed her success and wealth change her as a person at all. Lee Winkler, her business manager, has been advising her to invest some of her money in a bigger car, but Esther refuses to trade in her VW.

Pierre Cosette is rapidly becoming recognized as TV's number one idea man. He spearheaded the search for the singing cowboy a couple of years ago, and he's also responsible for Sammy Davis' syndicated variety show. Now Pierre's put together an Andy Williams half-hour syndicated show which will premiere across the U. S. at 7:30 p.m., once a week starting in September.

Bo Donaldson doesn't deny that he and Sally Struthers of "All in the Family" are dating, but he says they haven't been seeing each other long enough to tell if there's a serious romance between them. He does predict though that Sally will soon be recording a single, which could be an indication of something.

Anson Williams of "Happy Days" says there is a special girl in his life, but it's not Lorna Luft, Marisa DeFranco or Tanya Tucker, three young women he's been seen with a lot in Hollywood's social circles. Anson will only say that the girl's name is Joanie, and she's not in show business.

Carl Reiner and Ken Berry have been signed to replace previously announced guest star, Anthony Newley, on the Mitzi Gaynor special airing Marh 14th on CBS.

John Denver will host Frank Sinatra in a tribute to the big band era, on the ABC-TV special, "John Denver and Friend," March 29.

Ray Bolger, remembered by generations of fans as the Scarecrow in "The Wizard of Oz," will make a rare TV appearance as a retired vaudeville star in "The Entertainer," on NBC-TV March 10. "I still have my original Scarecrow costume at home," Bolger reveals.

Answer Saved Child's Life

Peter Marshall receives all kinds of fan mail as the host of "The Hollywood Squares" (Monday - Friday, 11:30 to 12 noon on NBC), but a recent missive that began, "This is not a fan letter. . ." caught his attention.

The letter was from a woman in Rhinebeck, N.Y., and she was writing to thank Peter for saving her son's life.

"Not too long ago you asked a question about how to stop a person from choking to death," she wrote. She explained that her 2½-year-old son was sucking on a piece of candy and started to swallow it.

"The candy got caught halfway down his throat and he started to gasp for air. I picked him up and slapped him on his back, but it didn't help. I even turned him upside down and shook him, hoping it would come out. It didn't, and by this time he was quite blue from lack of oxygen.

"Before panic set in I remembered what I heard on your show. I stood him back up and put my arms around his stomach, just below his ribcage, and squeezed hard while at the same time pulling upward."

The candy was expelled. "If I hadn't seen your show that day, he could very well have choked to death," the grateful mother concluded.

Janssen Worries

David Janssen freely admits that he's a born worrier. "I'm always most concerned about how my work turns out, about what people will think of me. The worst time I ever had was when I did things that I didn't want to do," he said.

While acting was something he didn't particularly want to do, he needn't have worried. His acting career has proved to be a long, continuous path which eventually led to fame and financial success.

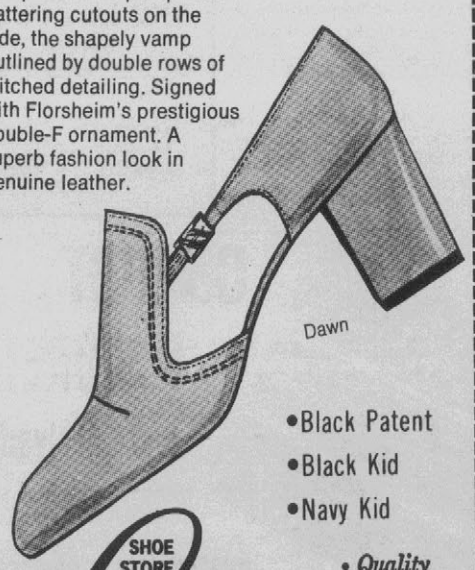

Janssen, who stars in "Harry O" (Thursdays, 10 to 11 p.m., ABC Ch. 3-5-12), made his acting career at the age of nine. Not because he wanted to act, mind you, but because of his mother's constant coaxing. A former Ziegfield Follies girl, she is the first to admit that she was a 'stage mother.'

As he grew older, however, David began to appreciate the value of his 100-odd 'bit parts': "During school, I found that by doing an occasional part, I could buy something I couldn't otherwise afford."

He considers his role as a private eye in the long-running series, "Richard Diamond," the turning point in his career. He also views the 'Diamond' series as "the strangest show in the history of television. It was on and off NBC and CBS for four years." He's quick to add, "Those were the days when TV actors were really looked down on . . . every week I was always hit on the head."

Ford Operates Four-Corners

What makes North Carolina go? In 1976, this question is almost as obvious as the Tarheel Blue coating everything from park benches to automobiles in Chapel Hill. The answer lies in the adept, talented hands of one sophomore from Rocky Mount, Phil Ford. The North Carolina Tar Heels will attempt to win their second straight ACC Tournament this weekend. Broadcast times will be at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. on Friday, March 5, and the following night at 8 p.m.

With almost unbelievable quickness, Ford runs the patented 'four-corner' offense with precision-like perfection. The offense, designed to protect a lead near the end of a half or a game, requires one player to handle the ball about 90 per cent of the time. It puts tremendous pressure on that individual, and Phil Ford has reacted excellently, especially considering that he is a mere neophyte as a sophomore.

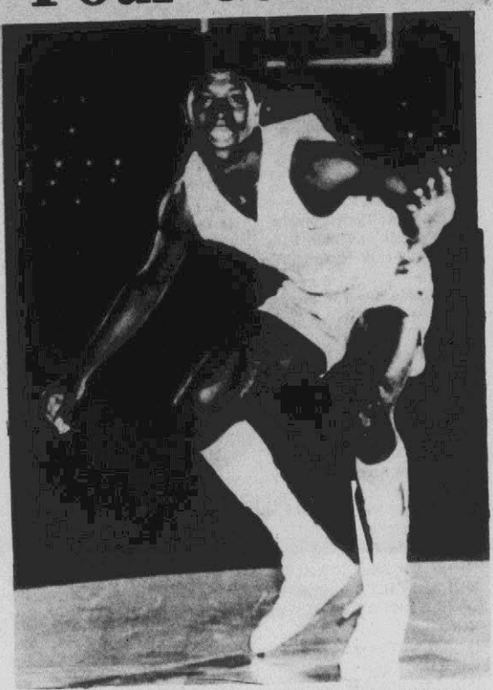

The fact only begins to describe the value of this potential All-American. His uncanny steals and well-timed jump shots always seem to come at the right moment, inevitably coming in the final seconds to preserve a Tar Heel triumph.

Ford had a team-high 161 assists last year and was also second in team scoring with a 16.4 average. His accuracy was superb, hitting 51.6 per cent of his field goal attempts and 78.3 per cent of his free throws. He is already in fourth place among career free throw shooters at Carolina.

Phil's performance in the 1975 ACC Tournament was nothing short of sensational. He was the first freshman ever to win the Everett Case Award as the Most Valuable Player in the Tournament. The Rocky Mount native scored a hefty 78 points in three tournament games, capping a season-high 79 against Clemson in the semi-finals. Even more impressive was the fact that sank 26 of 30 free throw attempts in the tournament, many of them coming at pressure-packed moments for the then 19-year-old freshman.

He has already become a seasoned veteran as a sophomore, and his statistics will surely top those of last season. He leads the scoring attack with almost nineteen points, and has already accumulated over 150 assists.

Look for Phil Ford to grab honors in the ACC Tournament, hoping to lead the Tar Heels to another Tournament victory.

TAR HEEL— All-American Candidate Phil Ford, of the North Carolina Tar Heels, will attempt to win his second consecutive Everett Case Award as the MVP in the 1976 ACC Tournaments the two semi-final contests can be viewed on Friday, March 4 at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m., wit the final at 8 p.m. on Saturday, March 6.

'M★A★S★H' Is Friday Movie

For a good many years, even an avid moviegoer or television viewer who blinked would miss the brief performance of a young actress named Sally Kellerman.

After 15 years of watching the pretty blonde, however, the audience that blinked started to wink. Miss Kellerman, after struggling through a string of bit parts and assorted walk-ons, took a role that made her the hottest item at the 1970 Cannes Film Festival on the French Riviera.

Miss Kellerman portrayed the original "Hot Lips" Houlihan in the zany film "M-A-S-H," which will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," March 5, starting at 9 p.m. on Channel 11.

From her grand entry into the film, hopping down from a helicopter on a long, lovely leg, it was obvious that Miss Kellerman had finally found her way to stardom.

Miss Kellerman seems to hold a record of sorts for time spent at odd jobs and beating down producers' doors to get bit roles.

"I got a job as an elevator operator," she said by way of example. "That lasted one week because I got carsick. And I was a waitress for one day. I was a mess because I couldn't wear starched aprons and high hats — they made me look like a giant. Then, too, I taught swimming. Once, I got a job as a secretary on a Friday — and learned how to type over the weekend."

Many young actresses start their careers playing fragile ingenues. But Miss Kellerman just didn't fit into that image. She played everything during her struggling years from mothers in school plays to a murder victim in the film "Boston Strangler."

Texaco Presents Bob Hope Special

More than fifty guest stars will join in a high octane blend of music, mystery and comedy when "Texaco Presents Bob Hope in Joys" airs Friday, March 5, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on NBC Channel 7. In the special, which is a comedy-whodunnit, a mysterious, shark-like villain challenges the "King of Comedy" in what could be a duel to the last laugh.

Using his San Fernando Valley home and pool as a setting for the first time on television, Hope walks in to discover a house full of stars. Thinking they were invited there by him, the guests mysteriously disappear, one by one.

Those vanishing (alphabetically) include Don Adams, Jack Albertson, Marty Allen, Steve Allen, Desi Arnaz, Sr., Billy Barty, Rona Barrett, Milton Berle, Foster Brooks, George Burns, Red Buttons, Pat Buttram, John Byner, Sid Caesar, Sammy Cahn, Glen Campbell, Jack Carter, Jerry Colonna, Scatman Crothers, Bill Dana, Phyllis Diller, Jamie Farr, George Gobel, Alan King, George Kirby, Don Knotts, Fred McMurray, Dean Martin, Groucho Marx, Jan Murray, Freddie Prinze, Don Rickles, Harry Ritz, Phil Silvers, Larry Storch, Abe Vigoda, Jimmie Walker and Flip Wilson.

In addition, Wayne Newton, Charo and Les Brown and his band provide music (to disappear by), as super-sleuths Mike Connors, Angie Dickinson, Jim Hutton, David Janssen and Telly Savalas lend their talents to unravel the mystery.

You would never guess by looking at agile, amusing Bob Hope, that this year marked his 51st year as a show business professional.

One of the few men in the United States whose newspaper photographs would be recognized even without a caption, Bob Hope was 72 on May 29, 1975. If the Hope family tradition of going strong until their late 90's holds, the nation can count on another 30 years of rapid-fire monologues and merriment in the Hope fashion, a style never successfully imitated because of his unique delivery.

Considered to be one of the best-known philanthropists in the nation, Hope, who was an indifferent scholar in boyhood today holds honorary degrees from 31 institutions and more than 2,000 citations for his humanitarian and professional efforts. These include the Medal of Freedom from President Johnson, the Congressional Gold Medal from President Kennedy, a special Oscar and the Jean Hersholt Award, the Criss Award, the Pacem in Terris Award and many others.

Specials Appeal To Children

Children watch lots of television, and they watch it - for the most part - for their own enjoyment. But they can also find many hours of enrichment and information, as well.

During the next few weeks, there will be several programs airing that are definitely considered to be above the TV 'fare' that appeals to children. In these programs, young folk (old folk, too) will find a tremendous amount of variety, programs that are very different, and an excellent chance to satisfy their own special needs and tastes.

Airing this Sunday is the beloved movie, "Sound of Music," which won the hearts of people of all ages when it was released in 1965.

Next Sunday, March 7, "Bound For Freedom" will be shown. This is the story of teenaged English boys who are indentured servants in Colonial America.

On the following night - Monday, March 8 - "Survival Anglia" takes you on an exciting balloon trip above the tree tops and plains of Africa.

Later in the week (Saturday, March 13), there's a delightful new version of "Pinocchio" with Danny Kaye and Sandy Duncan in the starring roles, and "The Wizard of Oz" makes its annual visit to your home Sunday, March 14.

A show which will be of great interest to nature lovers, young and old, is "Jane Goodall and the World of Animal Behavior." In the special, to air Friday, March 19, Ms. Goodall presents an absorbing study of lions.

On Wednesday, March 24, "The Mystery of the Andrea Doria" airs. This special probes the sinking of the ill-fated Italian ocean liner.

The second segment, "Liberty," of the Bicentennial series, "Life, Liberty and Pursuit of Happiness" is slated for Tuesday, March 30. Of particular interest to children will be the special children's version which will be broadcast Saturday, April 3.

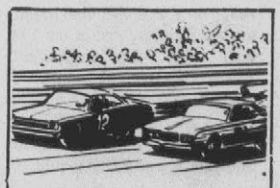

Russian Movie Is On Film Festival

Six-year-old Aliosha, nicknamed Bag on Bag because he is about the size of two school bags on top of each other, and his dog Kitch, who is also small but manages to get into big trouble, are the main characters in "Bag on Bag," a film from Russia that will have its American television premiere on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, March 6, 1 to 2 p.m.

Kitch creates havoc in the apartment while Aliosha is at school. So one day he takes the dog to school in his bag, but little Kitch gets loose, disrupting classes.

While Aliosha is taking a nap one afternoon, Kitch wanders into the hall and is stolen by an older boy, whom Aliosha once reported for stealing mail. The police, aided by a German shepherd dog trained to track by scent, discover that Kitch has been sold to a research institute. There, a doctor performs a test to determine if Kitch belongs to Aliosha.

Douglas Helps 'Tide' Roll

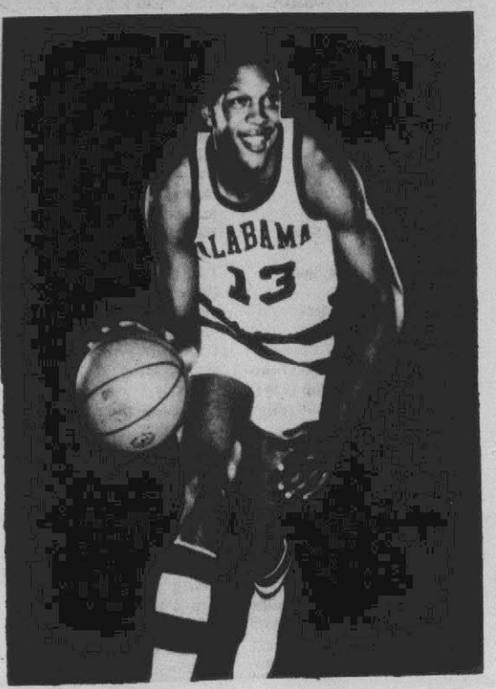

Few will argue that Tuscaloosa, Alabama is a mecca for college football. Next to George Wallace, Coach Bear Bryant is clearly the most popular hero in the state. Revered by all to see, the Crimson Tide annually strives for a Southeastern Conference Championship and national honors.

But the winter has ceased to become a dreary season in anticipation of spring football warmups. The basketball program has risen to national heights, and the school is now also hoping for a conference title in the roundball game. The Tide faces conference opponent Kentucky on the NCAA Game of the Week, to be televised at 1 p.m. on Saturday, March 6, on Channels 6-7.

One of the main reasons for Alabama's new-found success on the hardcourt has been Leon Douglas, a massive, 6'10" center from Leighton, Ala. In the fourth game of his freshman year, Douglas made his initial start and tallied 18 points and 10 rebounds. Since that contest, he hasn't missed starting a game and has led the Tide to three consecutive 22-win seasons, two co-championships in the SEC, and their first NCAA bid ever.

For his outstanding play, Leon was voted the Most Valuable Player in the Conference last season, leading the SEC in rebounding with a 13.1-per-game-average, and averaged 20.7 points-per-game. The big pivot-man converted on 55.1 per cent of his shots, and 80 attempts by his opponents.

Despite the fact that he has averaged 16 points and 11.2 rebounds a game in his three previous years, the past has been one of frustration for Alabama. They have never won an SEC Title outright and lost to Arizona State in the NCAA Tournament last year. But the Crimson Tide thinks that 1976 may be the big year, and Coach C. M. Newton hopes that players like Leon Douglas will help the Tide roll on to greater heights.

Leon Douglas, 6'10" mainstay for the Alabama front line, will attempt to promote his all-America candidacy when the Crimson Tide Face SEC Conference foe Kentucky on the NCAA Game of the Week. The contest will be featured at 1 p.m. on Saturday, March 6 on NBC-TV.

Goodrich Is Laker's Mainstay

In 1974, the Los Angeles Lakers were in danger of missing the NBA Playoffs for the first time in six years. Wilt Chamberlain, their huge center, had gone to coach in the ABA. Jerry West, their super-star guard, was hobbled by injuries, and Jim McMillan had been traded to Buffalo.

Who did coach Bill Sharman turn to for help in guiding the Lakers out of the fire? Gail Goodrich, that's who!

The Lakers face the division-leading Golden State Warriors in a crucial Western Division game on the NBA Game of the Week. The two California teams will clash Friday night, March 5, at 11:40 p.m., and the game will be broadcast live on Channel 9-11.

Gail attended UCLA, and helped the John Wooden coached Bruins capture an NCAA Crown during both his junior and senior years. As a senior, he averaged 24.8 points a game, and copped a hefty 42 points against a strong Michigan team in the championship.

When Goodrich entered the NBA, many didn't take the 6'1" guard seriously.

"When I first came into the league," Gail recalls, "everybody felt you had to be strong. That was the thing. They told me to put on weight. So I did. Then they said, "You're too fat.' I couldn't please anyone."

After being dissatisfied with Los Angeles, the San Fernando Valley native was dealt to the Phoenix Suns in 1968. He emerged as the team's best scorer with a 23.8 average, and was an All-Star.

Warriors Meet Boston Celtics

Rick Barry, Jarmaal Wilkes, Phil Smith, and Clifford Ray. Those are the names that you usually associate with the powerful, world champion Golden State Warriors. But the team from Northern California enjoys much of its success due to one of the strongest benches in basketball. One of the stars of that second crew is Charles Dudley. The Warriors face the Boston Celtics in a classic battle of titans on the NBA Game of the Week. CBS will broadcast the game - from Boston Garden - on Sunday, Feb. 29, at 3:10 p.m. on Channel 9-11.

"The Grasshopper," as he is affectionately known in the Bay area, is a classic example that statistics do not truly indicate the contribution a player makes to his team. Dudley, with his quickness, ability to penetrate, and tenacious defensive play is the type who makes things happen when he enters a game. Many times the contribution he makes does not show up in the box score.

For example, there is no way statistics can reflect the defensive job he put on Washington's Kevin Porter in the first game of the NBA Championship series. The Warriors trailed by 14 points at the half and it was Dudley's outstanding defensive effort that played a key role in the comeback that produced the win and a 1-0 edge in the series.

If you are a statistics buff, be advised that Dudley averaged 4.1 points while playing an average of 11.3 minutes per game last season.

Sexes Challenged

CBS Sports Spectacular continues its fierce contests, pitting rival males and females, in the "Challenge of the Sexes," to be televised as a special segment of "Sports Spectacular" on Saturday, March 6, from 4:30 to 6 p.m.

Two intensely competitive sports, which should bring out the best from the men and the women, are to be featured. Sheila Bussey and Larry Mahan will grapple with lots of heavy beef in the Rodeo competition, while Kiki Cutter and Hank Kashiwa will blaze down the icy slopes for bragging rights in Alpine Skiing.

Sheila Bussey, the 26-year-old from Hallsville, Texas, is one of the smallest performers in the Girls' Rodeo Association. At 5'2" and 108 pounds, she astounds audiences by wrestling with 1900-pound Brahma bulls and bucking broncos. Sheila is clearly one of the best, having won the All-Around title in 1973.

Larry Mahan is the reigning superstar of rodeo, having captured five All-Around championships in a row and six overall. He has had his share of broken bones, but still is good looking enough to be in demand as an actor, which is his future career.

The skiing contest should be an interesting one. Kiki Cutter is a former U.S. Olympian and winner of five World Cup events while a member of the United States Ski team. Hank Kashiwa is the 1975 World Pro Skiing champion.

Thus far, the ladies have fared extremely well in the competition. Evonne Goolagong's stunning tennis triumph over Rumanian Ilie Nastase has been their finest hour.

Advertising Myths

Will watching this week's "Consumer Survival Kit" improve your love life? Whiten your teeth? Wash away gray? No. It won't even raise your bowling average, but it will provide you with a working knowledge of advertising techniques that can save you time, disappointment — and money when it airs Sunday, Feb. 29, at 5 p.m. on UNC-TV.

The quiz segment tests viewer knowledge about money - back guarantees, promotion of new products, and government pre-screening of commercial messages. The Bard himself drops by for a few choice words about carefully chosen "weasel words," the basic elements of advertising puffery. Host Lary Lewman shows how difficult it can be to distinguish between puffery — which is legal — and deception — which is not.

Bob Smith takes a moment to deal with eye - catching "freebies" and "special offers," while a team of advertising whiz kids tackle a tough advertising assignment in a bit that explores the recent FTC guidelines governing the use of the words "new" and "improved." Bob returns with the "anatomy of a commercial," pointing out the use of anxiety and "secret ingredient" claims in TV commercials.

Chevy Chase Is Multi-Talented

Chevy Chase, one of the Not Ready for Prime Time Players repertory company on "NBC's Saturday Night," has been signed by the network to an exclusive contraft as a performer, David W. Tebet, Senior Vice Presient, NBC-TV, announced recently.

Chase, who iriginally became associated with the live, late-night comedy-variety series as a writer — and still functions in that capacity — has emerged as one of the personalities more readily identified with "NBC's Saturday Night." He appears in topical comedy skits with other repertory company members, is featured regularly in the show's opening — which usually ends with one of his patented 'falls' — and is perhaps best known as the commentator on "Weekend Update," a regular newscast parody.

Chase, recently featured on the cover of New York magazine, has been singled out by critics: "From the moment we heard him intone, 'I'm Chevy Chase — and you're not,' we were with him through thick and thin" (TV Guide); "One of Michael's (producer Lorne Michaels) best performers is one of his writers, Chevy Chase" (The New York Times); "Chevy, who started as a writer on the show, is fast becoming its comedy star" (Time magazine).

A native New Yorker, Chase wrote for and performed in "Lemmings" — the National Lampoon production which had a successful Broadway run and then went on tour — and the "National Lampoon Radio Hour." He also collaborated on material for underground TV which ultimately surfaced in the movie, "Groove Tube," and in the "Great American Dream Machine" series on public television.

He was one of the writers on an Alan King TV special, "Alan King's Energy Crisis, Rising Prices, Assorted Vices Comedy Hour," for which he received a Writers Guild of America Script Award in 1974. He was also a writer on the "Smothers Brothers Show" on NBC-TV in 1975.

Under his new contract, Chase will continue as a regular on "NBC's Saturday Night" and will be involved in other NBC-TV properties.

More cigarette vs. your cigarette.

1. Is your cigarette as long and as lean as our cigarette for more pleasure, more style?
2. Does your cigarette draw as easy as our cigarette for more tobacco enjoyment?
3. Does your cigarette smoke slower than a 100 mm cigarette for more smoking time?
4. Does your cigarette come in a burnished brown wrap so it looks as good as it smokes?
5. Does your cigarette sit neat in your hand like it was made for it and fit your face like it found a home?
6. Does your cigarette give you all this yet cost no more than a 100 mm cigarette (which means more for your money)?

If the answer to all these questions is yes, your cigarette is probably More. Because there's only one cigarette that's so much more. More.

The first 120mm cigarette.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR SEN. WILLIAM D. PROXMIRE (D-Wis.)*

How does a Federal agency "win" your Golden Fleece award, and which one is the biggest winner? —Robert Barney, San Antonio, Tex.

● An agency wins my monthly award by engaging in the most outrageous waste of the taxpayers' money. But I can't pick an overall champ. Almost every Government agency seems to be a contender. Month after month there's been such a widespread and monstrous disregard for the taxpayer that we have to pick a new winner every time. The "Fleece of the Year" was awarded to the Air Force for spending $6 million a year to fly Government big-shots all over the world in a special fleet of jets.

FOR REP. JOHN E. MOSS (D-Calif.)*

You've been investigating unnecessary surgery in the U.S. How many unnecessary operations are performed?—M.L. Talbert, Durham, N.C.

● It would appear that two- to three-million surgical procedures done in 1974 were unnecessary. This is about one out of every six elective operations.

FOR PETER BENCHLEY, author of "Jaws"*

Do you think you'll repeat your best-seller success with your next book?—K.C. Joplin, Mo.

● Alas, there are no rules and regulations to insure a best seller. The trick is to write the story and hope the public will want to read it. Quite honestly, I was stunned by the reaction to "Jaws" (and still am). I'm doing my best to repeat it with my next book, "Wreck"; it's about diving for treasure off Bermuda.

FOR JEANE DIXON

Is it true that you once predicted that President Nixon was going to die in 1975?—J.L., Parkersburg, Iowa

● No, indeed! My forecast was that the former President would find 1975 a critical year and that, during the summer, he would have crucial experiences that would determine whether his future was lengthy or brief. Whether those experiences were personal decisions or changes of attitude, I cannot say, but he seems to have dealt with them positively. I'd say his future looks brighter now.

FOR JOAN RIVERS

What do you do when you want to get away from it all?—E.B., Bangor, Me.

● Jump into bed with a big box of candy and any kind of history book about the 17th and 18th centuries. At the same time, I try to pick out something heavy to watch on TV, like "Becket." Do you believe this?

FOR ELTON JOHN

Do you have happy memories of your adolescence?—R. Benson, Flint, Mich.

● As an only child, I was lonely. I was also very shy, introverted, short and overweight. Which meant I was suppressed. The turning point in my life came when I turned 21—that's when I started to have some fun. Sometimes I think I'm going backwards—I'm living through my teenage period now.

FOR CHARLIE JOHNSON, former Denver quarterback*

You've got a Ph.D. in chemical engineering. Has that been more important to you than pro football? Any advice for college athletes in the same stew?—Gabriel Renzo, Rhinebeck, N.Y.

● Pro football made my advanced studies possible. The Ph.D. will make a long career possible for me, so that's the more necessary of the two. But not when I was playing football. I tell all young athletes to play hard but study harder. Studies are by far the more important.

FOR TOM SEAVER, New York Mets pitcher*

Having set a new record by striking out 200 or more batters for eight consecutive seasons, what major goal are you looking forward to now?—T.J. McInerney, New Hyde Park, N.Y.

● My biggest goal—which at this time is improbable but not impossible—is to win 300 games.

FOR ALEXIS SMITH, actress*

How do you think a superstar of yesterday would have reacted to the suggestion that she act in the nude?—J.R., Santa Monica, Calif.

● I couldn't care less whether stars act with their clothes on or off, so I can't even begin to guess. Why don't you ask Katharine Hepburn direct?

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Has Prince Charles inherited the Queen's stuffiness or his father's sense of humor?—R.S., Hollywood, Calif.

● He's more like his dad. When he met an actress in a low-cut dress (Susan Hampshire) at a royal reception at Windsor, he told her: "My father said if I should ever meet a lady wearing a dress like yours, I must look her straight in the eye." But he was strapped for an answer in Monmouth, South Wales, when he noticed two attractive young girls waving to him from a window in a small inn. He asked what they were doing. The Prince's royal training failed when they yelled back: "We're in the loo (bathroom)." Grinning broadly and blushing, he waved back and walked on. He does not admire Women's Liberationists: "They argue constantly and call you a 'male chauvinist pig.' It's all very uncivilized."

The Letters People Send Betty Ford:

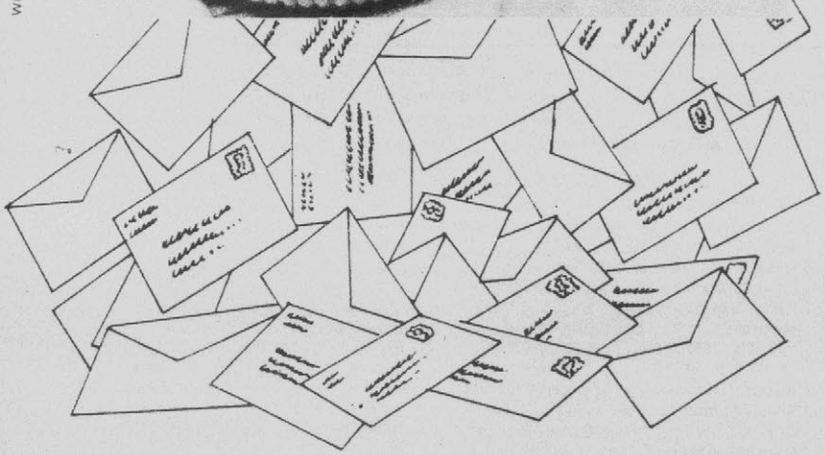

What They Tell Her– How She Answers

"Nobody who sees these letters ever gets completely accustomed to them. A sad letter is sad. Funny letters always make us laugh or shake our heads. There is the feeling of character to a letter. Each one has its own handwriting, spelling, grammar and style. You go home with them inside you sometimes."

Wide World

If the voters put Gerald Ford out of a job come November 1976, he still has an ace card to play. His wife can always pick up her White House staff and go to work writing a Dear Abby-type column for a national newspaper syndicate. Call it "Betty Ford Answers . . ."

"Having replied to nearly a quarter of a million letters, the First Lady has had all the columnist's experience she needs. Letters to her are every bit as tender, poignant, grateful, complex, sad, angry, inspiring, funny and deranged as any personal-advice columnist ever receives. Here are samples:

- A mother's 10-day-old son died suddenly of crib death. She is continually accused by her family of neglect. It has brought her grief and a sense of guilt, just as it has for many women. Can't something be done, she asks Betty Ford, to disseminate information about crib deaths and such prejudice?
- A young man says he's disgusted with politics since Watergate. How can he regain his faith?
- Two students would like to buy the Ford's freezer in their old Alexandria home, now that they've moved to the White House.
- A Michigan friend asks the First Lady to write a greeting to Mrs. Ford's old grade-school teacher, age 93.

Most of the two thousand people who write Mrs. Ford each week probably feel that the chances of the letter actually reaching the First Lady are small. "Oh, I think you'll get an answer. Probably a secretary answers. But, at least it's the White House," as one lady put it. So they gamble a stamp, paper and time. And they all get a prize–the answer to their letter.

But their notion of what happens to letters can be very wrong. A personal letter may be read as many as six times. And you'd be surprised to learn who may see it. For instance . . .

All mail, except letters from Mrs. Ford's children, is first delivered by the Post Office across the street from the White House to the Executive Office Building–as a precaution against letter bombs. Here, it is sliced open by a machine. The unread mail is brought to the White House by courier. In the second-floor correspondence offices in the East Wing, members of Mrs. Ford's staff put letters into one of three categories (not including threatening or psychotic letters, which go directly to the Secret Service). First are the easy-to-answer letters –those containing gifts and those requesting photographs, recipes, acknowledgements of birth announcements, etc. Any money sent to Betty Ford, or to be passed on by her to a favorite charity, is returned; the First Lady is prohibited by law from accepting money or acting as conduit. The second category is "general mail," or, as the head of Mrs. Ford's correspondence staff, Marba Perrott, describes it, "The kind that says, 'I like you very much, Mrs. Ford, but I wish you'd wear a hat.'" They're responded to with a polite, friendly letter.

The third category is more difficult. This is mail requiring special attention. The letters may be from old personal friends, children in trouble, people in distress, etc. A top-priority VIL (very important letter) is always one from a woman who has had a mastectomy. (Mrs. Ford received more than 46,000 letters following her operation. The staff was swamped.)

Personal letters are researched, then an answer is sketched out. The letters and their answers are taken to Mrs. Ford for her approval. Being a night person, Betty Ford works on mail in the evening. She makes corrections and additions. She may show the President some of her mail while they're upstairs in their apartment. ("Sometimes I see notations in his hand on the letters when they come back," says Marba Perrott.) Returned letters are revamped. A copy of both letter and answer may go to Sheila Weidenfeld, Mrs. Ford's press secretary, who likes to keep abreast of what people say and think. At last, a final, finished copy is returned for Mrs. Ford's signature.

What does she say in personal responses? It can come as a surprise. Here's one exchange with 5-year-old Kelly Melancon of Baton Rouge, La.:

Dear Mrs. President Ford,

I am 5 years old. I would like to change my birthday to another birthdate. Be March 17th, St. Patrick's day. I was born on December 12th and never had a birthday party. Daddy said it would take a letter from President Ford. Mom said you would be the one to ask for help from President Ford.

Kelly

Dear Kelly,

We can certainly understand the problem of having a birthday in December. It is a hard time to plan a party what with Christmas and all the rush. However, changing a birthday is a difficult task, too. So the President has made this suggestion. Why not plan an unbirthday party? One year you can have it on St. Patrick's Day, another year on the 4th of July or whenever you want to have it. Since I won't be able to join you when you have it, we are enclosing a personalized pencil. The President joins me in sending our best.

Sincerely,
Betty Ford

The effects of receiving such a letter can be startling.

"I was amazed!" says Mrs. Melancon, Kelly's mother. "Of course, Kelly was expecting it. 'When is my letter coming?' she kept asking. But I work in government and I know what a run-around you can get. For Mrs. Ford to have taken that time! I just wrote her back: 'Thank you very much. You've closed the credibility gap.' Kelly, by the way, sleeps with her pencil."

> I am a thirteen year old girl and I'd like to get my ears pierced. My dad says to ask you. If you had your ears pierced, then I could have mine!

Replied Betty Ford:

> I really appreciate the confidence you and your father have in me. However, the question of pierced ears is a very personal one. And it's probably not the type of question I can decide for you. I can remember when our daughter became a teenager, there were a lot of questions to answer. When am I old enough for this, when for that? Often the answer isn't in so many years, but more importantly, how do you act? How well are you doing in school? How well are you handling other responsibilities? When these things have been decided, I'm confident you and your father will come to an agreement.

Not everybody who writes likes Mrs. Ford.

"Mrs. Ford, it's incomprehensible to me that you would desire equality when you are far superior to your husband in stupidity," wrote one of the thousands of dissenters on the Equal Rights Amendment, which Mrs. Ford spoke out for.

"You have the unique distinction of being the only woman in the White House that we cannot refer to as 'Lady.' Impeach Betty Ford!" said another.

The hardest letters to answer are from people in deep distress. "They've come to the wrong house," an observer once commented. "They should be addressed to God, not Betty Ford." Still, there seems to be therapy in the writing, and being answered in kind. Many of these writers see Betty Ford as a mother surrogate, or sister, or someone having great power at her command. But it should be made known that there is nobody living in the White House called 'Betty Ford, miracle worker.'

To a lady in Illinois, lost in feelings of anxiety and guilt, separated from her husband and children, and now about to have a mastectomy, Mrs. Ford replied:

> Our hearts were certainly saddened when we read your letter and learned of your illness and surgery. Yet, I want to encourage you to be optimistic. I know, from my own case, as well as hearing from other women, that just knowing family and friends care and are praying for you can give you great strength, at least in your return to your normal life. Please be assured that even though your family may appear busy with their work, school and friends, you are an important part of their lives. No illness or distance can change that. I only wish I could be of more direct aid to you. Since that isn't possible, I've asked the Illinois Division of the American Cancer Society to be in contact with you upon your return to Park Ridge and to assist you in whatever area is most beneficial to you.

> "The hardest letters to answer are from people in deep distress. 'They've come to the wrong house,' an observer once commented. 'They should be addressed to God, not Betty Ford.' "

There is one more special category. Letters to the White House "written" by America's dogs and cats.

All Mrs. Ford's animal mail is turned over to daughter Susan, though citizen cat or dog may have addressed Liberty, the President's retriever, or Shan, Susan's Siamese. These letters discuss common master or mistress problems. Liberty and Shan send autographed (paw print) photographs.

"Nobody who sees all these letters ever gets completely accustomed to them," says one of the office staff. "A sad letter is sad. Funny letters always make us laugh or shake our heads. There is the feeling of character to a letter. Each one has its own handwriting, spelling, grammar and style. You go home with them inside you sometimes."

Most special mail is from women. But last year a Texas man wrote one that was unusual:

Dear Mrs. Ford:

My writing is rather childish-looking because I am 100-percent totally and permanently disabled as a result of having contracted polio in Korea during the war.

I've been living at home with my wife Betty since having been discharged from the Veterans Administration hospital on Nov. 27, 1953. I am sure I do not have to go into detail to describe to you the great amount of care that a paralyzed person requires—the hours, day and night, my wife has spent trying to help me keep comfortable, free of pain, clean and warm.

The reason I am writing: Would you take my wife to Washington and give her a big medal, a smile? And, a pat on the back would be a wonderful tonic, too. Everyone who knows Betty will endorse my wish to the hilt . . . God bless you and Mr. Ford.

Faithfully,
Jim Hawkins

Dear Mrs. Hawkins (wrote Betty Ford):

Your husband Jim has very beautifully written of your loving attention to him. The devotion which each detail of your care reflects is a heartening tribute to your depth of character and generosity. Although we are unable to present you with the medal Jim suggested, we are honored to send you our warmest wishes for every happiness. May God bless and keep you.

Sincerely,
Betty Ford

GEORGE McGINNIS:

Why He's in Philadelphia—And His Heart's in Indiana

A lot of Indiana fans were surprised when George McGinnis left the ABA's Indiana Pacers to play forward for the NBA's Philadelphia 76ers. McGinnis had grown up in Indianapolis and had become something of a local fixture. He speaks fondly of Indianapolis's "low-key atmosphere. It's very friendly, very down-to-earth. You can call me a square, but I liked it very much." The 6-foot 8-inch, 25-year-old cage star was a standout player at Indianapolis's Washington High School, and he was the leading scorer and rebounder in the Big Ten when he played for Indiana University. The death of his father, a carpenter, impelled him to leave college after his sophomore year and accept a $50,000 bonus to play for the Pacers. He soon became the ABA's top scorer. Then, suddenly, came the announcement that George was going to Philadelphia. He admits that one reason was the big-money offer he received, but even more important was his desire to prove his star quality in a major city against the toughest competition in his sport. "Let's face it, there's some ham in everybody," he tells you. "We had great players and great games in our league, but I felt not enough people knew about it, and not enough knew I could hold my own with the best talent this country has to offer." . . . Despite great size and strength, McGinnis is a gentle, warmhearted person. "He's the nicest, most polite person you'd ever want to meet," says Larry O'Brien, the Commissioner of the NBA. George says his parents raised him that way. He also says that's the way people are in "country towns." Even though he's now well established as a "big-time" personality with a lucrative income, he remains a "Hoosier boy" at heart. —By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In Coming: Gallstone Removal Without Surgery?

Strange events can occur in the body: stones can grow in certain organs. Gallstones and kidney stones are well-known examples, but you can also grow stones in your tear ducts, lungs, skin and bladder. The most common type of stone is the gallstone, which forms when your bile is loaded with cholesterol. Some of it separates and hardens with other materials, developing into a stone formation. Why one person gets gallstones and another doesn't get them is not fully understood, but we do know that twice as many women get them as men, and the American Indian is particularly susceptible to them. If the gallstone is small, it may never need removal. But if it grows large, it can be excruciatingly painful. Then surgery is required. But recent reports show that a new material called CDAC (chenodeoxycholic acid) can dissolve gallstones in the body without surgery. And there is another substance called heparin which is currently under study and which may soon be used to treat gallstones. People who are susceptible to stone formations should see their doctor. He may recommend a change in diet, such as less dairy foods and a high fluid intake. —By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

Jobmanship

When You Play Hooky From Work

Be careful how you stretch the truth about job absences. In a union-management case which was brought before the American Arbitration Association, a worker (we'll call him Pete Jones) had taken a three-day funeral leave. When Pete returned to work and filled out the company form, he claimed the deceased as his brother. Next day someone informed the personnel director that the deceased had been Pete's cousin, not his brother. The company fired Pete for falsifying company records. The union went to his aid, insisting that the company hadn't lost any money since the lie was discovered before salary payments for the absences were made. The union also declared that Pete had learned his lesson and wouldn't try it again. But the arbitrator decided that Pete Jones was fired for good! Said he, "Falsification of company records is a very serious offense which does not call for progressive discipline." The distinguished labor-management publication, Employee Relations in Action, commented, "Most arbitrators would agree with this award, except perhaps in the case of a real old-timer who had been with the company many years and had a superior work record." —By S. R. Redford

Diana Trask: My Ten Favorite Records

When Diana Trask was 16, she won $2,000 as the most promising act of the year in an Australian TV talent contest. A year later Diana was a celebrity. Soon American entertainers were encouraging Diana to come to the States. She did, and her career blossomed. Her current album is "The Mood I'm In."

MoneyWise

Do You Refuse to Argue About Money?

The married couple who boast that "We never argue about money" may—or may not—be telling the truth. But even if they are, it's not necessarily a good idea to try to follow their example. Family experts say such couples often subconsciously avoid discussing money matters because they are afraid to face the financial facts. They are unwilling to grapple with the need to balance income against outgo or to make the sacrifices required to plan sensibly. Some couples who basically disagree about saving and spending bury their differences because they are reluctant to fight about them. Never arguing about money can have unfortunate results: inaccurate knowledge about your current financial situation; unrealistic spending habits; no real basis on which to plan ahead. Such couples are often repressing their anxieties, and in a financial crisis may be unable to offer each other advice or emotional support. —By Norman Lobsenz

People and You

Sometimes It's Better To Receive Than Give!

Ever since we were toddlers we've heard that generosity was a sure path to virtue and social success. But there can be a problem with being overly generous. For example, on impulse you give a friend an unexpected birthday present. It seems like a pleasant idea. But psychologists have discovered that people are anxious to keep things even between themselves and others. As soon as they receive your unexpected gift, they feel compelled to make a mental note about your birthday. For many people, the effort of remembering to repay you outweighs the pleasure of your generosity. Another error is giving gifts, then refusing to allow the other person to reciprocate. Psychologists say this can actually make people dislike you! The tension can lead to an incident of "ingratitude" which causes you to react in shock. So, while it may be better to give than receive, you must also be willing to receive. —By Shirley Sloan Fader

Smoking.
What are you going to do about it?

And even though we're in the business of selling cigarettes, we're not going to advance arguments in favor of smoking.

We simply want to discuss one irrefutable fact.

A lot of people are still smoking cigarettes. In all likelihood, they'll continue to smoke cigarettes and nothing anybody has said or is likely to say is going to change their minds.

Now, if you're one of these cigarette smokers, what are you going to do about it? You may continue to smoke your present brand. With all the enjoyment and pleasure you get from smoking it. Or, if 'tar' and nicotine has become a concern to you, you may consider changing to a cigarette like Vantage.

(Of course, there is no other cigarette quite like Vantage.)

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

We want to be frank. Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can buy. But it may well be the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you will enjoy smoking.

Vantage. It's the only cigarette that gives you so much taste with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

We suggest you try a pack.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER, MENTHOL: 11 mg. "tar", 0.7 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette FTC Report SEPT. '75.

Astonishing Insights Into the "Overweight Mentality"

True or False?
In many cases, husbands are to blame for their wives being overweight.
(See number 3.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Men who are too heavy aren't nearly as willing to do something about it as overweight women.

2. Many people are overweight simply because they feel rejected, excessively criticized or have suffered a loss of prestige.

3. In many cases, husbands are to blame for their wives being overweight.

4. Being considerably overweight is always a social liability.

ANSWERS

1. True. The National Institutes of Health studies show that men are more reluctant to go on reducing diets. One reason, of course, is because being fat is more of a social liability for women than for men. But it's also because many males believe that reducing diets result in a loss of manly muscle as well as flab and fat. It's pointed out that loss of strength is very threatening to males, and such fears make them less than enthusiastic about dieting. Another factor cited: most men's clothes are shapeless enough to conceal generous amounts of fat, while female fashions are designed to call attention to the figure.

2. True. Studies show that feelings of rejection or loss of status tend to make many people consistently overindulge themselves in their favorite foods—not because of normal hunger but because of what psychologists call psychogenic, or emotionally produced, hunger. In a U.S. Public Health Service study, investigators subjected one group of college students to treatment resulting in marked feelings of rejection and being "put down" by their peers. Their subsequent hunger reactions were then compared with those of a control group. Each subject rated himself on a 7-point scale ranging from "very hungry" to "not hungry at all." The rejected group showed significantly greater hunger than the other. It was also found that eating can decrease the rejected feeling.

3. True. A University of Michigan study has shown that husbands exercise a profound influence over what their wives eat. From tape-recorded dinner conversations, it was found that "husbands were four-times as likely to offer food to their dieting wives than vice versa and 12-times more likely to criticize their wives' eating behavior than to praise it." It was further reported that many husbands wanted to keep their wives fat in order to maintain their own superiority, justify their loss of romantic interest in their wives or keep their wives faithful.

4. False. It depends on your social class. Findings of at least one study show that people in the lesser socio-economic brackets do not regard being overweight as a social liability. Those on the plusher rungs of the social ladder very definitely do. It's suggested that this is because poorer people's experiences with deprivation "may have led them to connect obesity with well-being and prosperity."

AT LAST!

Natural Face Lifting By Exercise!

Now, from Hollywood, California, comes what may be the most important beauty news of the decade. A proven, minutes-a-day method of facial muscle shortening—done in your own home with your own ten fingers—that has been called, "perhaps the only method in the world by which one can lift a face naturally"

For What Is Loose, Aging, Flabby Skin Really? Merely STRETCHED-OUT MUSCLES, That The Years Have Caused To Lose Their Ability To Hold Themselves Tight And Firm!

As Madame Rungé says, it is not the skin, but the firmness or looseness of the muscle flesh beneath that skin that really portrays a man's or woman's age.

In fact, as she points out, the collapse of the upper cheek muscles alone may cause more than 50 per cent of the aging appearance in the face. As she so vividly states:

"Between the ages of 21 and 40, for instance, the upper cheek muscles may have sagged as much as half an inch; and by the age of 60 by as much as one inch, which means that we have an inch too much hanging over the lower part of the face. This results in hollowness in the upper cheeks below the cheek bones, fullness and flabbiness in the lower cheeks, pouches from the mouth to the chin, folds above the laugh line, drooping mouth corners and jowls."

"In addition, the muscles of the upper eyelids may sag as much as half an inch or more between the ages of 20 and 60, causing eyebrows to shift down and upper eyelids to overlap lashes, making the eyes appear smaller. And those muscles attached to our throat skin may sag as much as two inches, resulting in what is termed a "turkey neck."

Thus, She Says, Since The Cause Of This Facial Aging Is Muscle Sagging, "It Stands To Reason That To Remedy It, WE HAVE TO SHORTEN THE MUSCLE GROUP RESPONSIBLE"!

"Flabby and droopy flesh is caused by muscles which have been ignored... My method of isometric facial exercises remedies the cause of the aging process of the face by tightening these sagging muscles... thereby producing a firming where the face appears flabby, and a filling out by rebuilding atrophying muscle tissues. All in a natural and healthy way, thus providing a natural youthful face which may be retained throughout life."

"And the skin itself will always adapt to the size of its underlying foundation... The skin is merely a thin covering over the flesh that has to return to the size of the muscle flesh when it is shortened through isometric exercise."

IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE, Read This One Paragraph—

"You cannot help but see yourself looking younger, since each correctly applied exercise in this book has the power to turn your clock back regardless of age. And, if you can afford to eliminate 20 years from your appearance, this book can teach you how to do this in 3 to 4 months."

And Says Madame Rungé: This NATURAL Way To Lift The Face Is Much More ENDURING Than Even The Finest Face Lift Through Plastic Surgery!

"Surgery can never restore the tone to either skin or muscles... It should be understood that no plastic surgeon, and in fact nothing but exercises, can tighten up unelastic muscles.

"For example, even the result from peeling off the wrinkled surface skin lasts only temporarily, since the poor muscle condition beneath the skin very soon causes the same wrinkles to form."

"A woman whose career depended on public performances consulted me at the recommendation of her plastic surgeon, after he had performed surgical skin tightening on her neck eight times."

"The new tight skin (from plastic surgery) does hold the contour of the face somewhat up, consequently giving it a rejuvenated look. Unfortunately, however, the collapsed muscle structure beneath it soon pushes the new skin downward again, which makes it necessary to repeat the 'lift.'"

But Now These Temporary, Artificial Methods, Can Be Replaced By Simple, Natural Exercise, Says Madame Rungé, WITH RESULTS LIKE THESE:

"Some people I knew were practicing grimaces, and foolishly believed they were exercising their facial muscles. But reason and logic tell us that grimacing merely misforms muscles into lines, furrows and ugly features."

"The actual application of every one of these exercises takes only about one minute. The process causes to tighten and to shorten specific muscles, by expanding them to their fullest natural limit. In this natural way, neither muscles nor skin can be overexpanded. In fact, the skin also benefits from the increased circulation."

Consequently "YOU MUST SEE INSTANT RESULTS FROM EVERY ISOMETRIC PERFORMANCE...because if you do not see results, it tells you that you have done something incorrectly."

"Each exercise takes only about (60 seconds), and has to be repeated three times in succession. With this technique, models removed wrinkles from under the eyes, crow's feet, scowl and frown lines in just a few minutes right in front of the TV camera."

"A contour fault may be eliminated in a relatively short time. However, it usually takes from three to four months to restore sufficient tone to those muscles, to enable them to HOLD the acquired condition without having to exercise every day. (After that) perhaps two or three times a week will be sufficient."

"If my exercises are applied as instructed, the results are nothing short of amazing at any age. Most of my exercises if done correctly, produce instantaneous results, especially in areas where muscles are attached to the skin — as on the forehead, underneath the eyes, and in the crow's feet area. But we also get marvelous results on parts where the muscles lie deeper, as in the cheeks and jowls, which produces an immediate lift."

CAN MADAME RUNGE TAKE UP TO 20 YEARS OFF THE APPEARANCE OF YOUR FACE...AS SHE HAS DONE FOR THOUSANDS OF OTHERS!

Senta Maria Rungé first introduced her FACE LIFTING BY EXERCISE method through a four-and-a-half page, cover-line article in Vogue Magazine.

After the overwhelming success of this article, Madame Rungé conducted a daily half-hour television program, demonstrating to Southern Californians the amazing effectiveness of her natural method. On this live program, right before their very eyes, women all over Califoria saw almost "unbelieveable" transformations take place in the facial contours of her mature models — and were able to duplicate these transformations, at the same time, in their own homes.

Soon, the walls of her Hollywood salon were literally covered with testimonials she received from approximately 12,000 viewers who followed the simple, step-by-step instructions given them on their television screens.

And now she has released this exact same FACE LIFTING BY EXERCISE method to women all over America!

Prove Every Word Of It Yourself — At Our Risk!

Try this revolutionary, proven method for one full month, entirely at our risk. If you don't see results that astound you — from the very first day... if you are not completely delighted, simply return the book for every cent of your money back!

"I am 28 years old and was able to remove my vertical frown lines with one exercise." — B. C., Pasadena, Calif.

"I am 44 years old, and people are telling me I don't look older than 32. Have been erasing wrinkles like mad." E. H., Covina, Calif.

"I receive the most extravagant compliments about my appearance. I am 41½, and recently some lady whom I had met several times said she thought I was about 23. Isn't that something?"—B. X., Woodland Hills, Calif.

"I am amazed at the way the crow's feet and wrinkles around my eyes are disappearing already. It doesn't seem possible at my age (66 years), but I am so encouraged and will keep right on with it." — G. M. P., Los Angeles, Calif.

"The improvement in my face is almost unbelievable. I had given up hope until I found you."
—Mrs. C. R. B., Covina, Calif.

"Your facial exercises have done more for me in the past few months than my two facial exercise machines have in years. At 34 I look much younger than I did 8 years ago." — S. F. J., St. Paul, Minn.

People say to me, "What happened to you? Truly I already look 10 years younger."—O. R., Big Bear, Calif.

"My friends look at me and compliment me... I am 56 years old and like to take pride in my youthful appearance."
—Mrs. T. K., Pacific Pallisades, Calif.

"I met a woman a month ago, who had the most beautiful face. She looked about 25 or 26. She told us she was 46 years old. She also told us about your method." — S. H., North Hollywood, Calif.

FROM A PLASTIC SURGEON:

As a practicing plastic surgeon for over thirty years, I have found that your work can play an important role in facial rehabilitation; and even the avoidance of excessive wrinkling and sagging.

The surgical face-lift is the only procedure that can remove the excess sagging skin in advanced cases; but even after the most complete lift, it is not long before the vertical folds on the neck and under the chin reappear.

The facial exercises as advocated by you offer promise to prevent this recurrence after the surgical lift, and possibly in many cases effect sufficient improvement that the lift could be postponed indefinitely.

—Harold M. Holden, M.D., F.I.C.S., Los Angeles, Calif.

Neil Diamond:

"Songs Are Life in 80 Words or Less"

"I'm not sure Stephen Foster is any happier in his casket now that he's 'immortal.' He was poor and ragged when he died, you know."

By Noel Coppage

Between the time of Neil Diamond's first hit song, "Solitary Man," and his music for the movie "Jonathan Livingston Seagull," America's airwaves grew accustomed to one Diamond hit after another: "Song Sung Blue," "Cherry Cherry," "Holly Holy," "Sweet Caroline," "Brother Love's Traveling Salvation Show," "I Am . . . I Said" . . . the list goes on and on. He wrote his first song when he was 16. At about the same time, he started singing in a mixed chorus at Brooklyn's Erasmus High School, where his emerging baritone was complemented by another voice belonging to Barbra Streisand (the two were introduced years later). He attended New York University on a fencing scholarship and later endowed NYU with fencing scholarship funds. He was theoretically "killed" in a fencing exhibition the day before this conversation took place.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You didn't major in music at NYU?

NEIL DIAMOND: No, I majored in biology, in a pre-med program. Songwriting is different from music, although I don't deny now that it would be nice to have a little more background in music theory. But when you're writing songs, you're dealing with all sorts of things. I was always interested in science, and pre-med was a respectable thing to do while I pursued my songwriting. By the time I was in my third year, I was interested only in fencing and writing songs.

FW: What was the attraction of fencing?

DIAMOND: It's a terrific way to vent your aggressiveness, for one thing, and I needed that. It's physical combat in a classical sense, and it's beautiful to see and do. I've always thought of it as similar to ballet. One of the things I've been panting to do, in fact, is write some music for a fencing-ballet—the movements, music and staging would seem to go naturally together. My movements onstage actually incorporate fencing moves. I've looked at photographs of myself during concerts and it sometimes looks as if I'm in a fencing move, with a guitar in my hands instead of a sword.

FW: Your 1972 concerts on Broadway seemed to anticipate some of today's theatricality in the staging of popular

ASTROLOGICAL RESEARCH NEWS BULLETIN

The Secret Of Having Good Luck

Newest Discovery By I.A.A. May Be Biggest In The History Of Astrology

By J. C. Riley - Astrological Writer

"I am presenting here the most interesting story I have ever covered as an astrological writer. Read my story and find out how to become a luckier person. Yes, as a result of an astrological research discovery, you can actually increase your good luck. How? Find out in the following interview I had with Cary Franks, Chief Astrologer for the International Astrological Association. The interview was conducted at the Association's research center in the northern part of Canton, Ohio." (Canton, OH)

Question: "Cary, what is this luck project you are working on all about?"

Answer: "Very simply, we have uncovered the secret of having good luck. That is, we have found out why some people are so much luckier than others; why certain people get rich by being in the right place at the right time; how that certain person in everyone's circle of acquaintances (you know the guy) seems to always win door prizes, raffles, lotteries, cards and you name it; and why certain people are always lucky in love, careers and business ventures."

Question: "How did you discover the secret of good luck?"

Answer: "The whole project is called the Life-Luck Project."

"This project was commissioned by the board of directors over four years ago on March 7, 1971. Research data was gathered by: 1) Investigating historically famous, fortunate people, 2) Investigating famous fortunate people of today, 3) Observation of research test subjects (half of which were known to be lucky), 4) Analysis of more than 198,000 research questionnaires gathered from all over the country through I.A.A.'s nationally famous feature "ASTROLOGY TODAY" which has run in nearly every major publication in the country. Total number of people submitting birth information through "ASTROLOGY TODAY" was over 1.2 million. Total capital outlay for the Life-Luck Project was over $192,000.00."

Question: "What did you find out as a result of your investigation of fortunate people?" I asked.

Answer: "We confirmed what we had already suspected—that most fortunate people get that way by using astrology. Professional astrologers will tell you that nearly all rich and famous people, past and present, use astrologers. Even present and historic world leaders use or have used astrology."

"But, although the fact that rich and famous people use astrology is news to laymen, it is obvious to professional astrologers. What we were really after was exactly HOW did these fortunate people use astrology. Astrology is a science of infinite scope. Few people know that an astrologer could spend a lifetime ON JUST ONE HOROSCOPE. You must use specific areas for the specific things you want to accomplish with it. Also, you must know in detail how to APPLY astrological knowledge."

"Famous American tycoon J.P. Morgan used astrology to aquire his fortune. This was discovered early in our research and this fact was cited in "ASTROLOGY TODAY." J.P. Morgan's astrologer was none other than Evangeline Adams, grand-daughter of famed President John Quincy Adams. The trick? She concentrated and expanded the luck area of astrology only. J.P. Morgan invested in things dictated to be best by his horoscope. But, he would only make investments at the exact time prescribed by Miss Adams."

Question: "I understand you have combined astrology with numerology (a related field to astrology) as a result of your research. That's a first, isn't it?"

Answer: "Yes. We found that numerology is a very useful tool in producing good luck."

"For example, the letters in the alphabet have assigned numbers. A famous singer took the advice from her numerologist and added an 'e' to the end of her name. Her numerologist told her this would bring about the correct, fortunate combination."

She immediately skyrocketed to fame. She has revealed this fact on a popular late-night talk show twice."

Question: "So, what was the result of all your research?"

Answer: "The end result of our four years of research is a special horoscope which is revolutionary in the field of astrology. This horoscope is called THE LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE. It expands and concentrates on only the luck areas of astrology. It also uses NUMEROLOGY and even PSYCHOLOGY. (It was discovered in Germany that the psychology of color has a profound effect on luck). We tested this horoscope using our in-house research subjects in real life situations."

Question: "How did the LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE do in this "acid test?"

Answer: "The results were astounding! And I'm not exaggerating when I say that. We were able to turn people into winners who had never won anything in their lives."

"But, let me qualify that statement. We also found out something else during this final test. And, that is that all people are not equally lucky. If it isn't in their horoscope; that is, if they were not born at the right time and place, they have only so much luck potential."

"But, why I am so thrilled about the results and why they are significant is this: WE WERE ABLE TO INCREASE THE GOOD LUCK IN OVER 95% OF OUR RESEARCH SUBJECTS. In other words, I will go out on the limb and say that although some people are luckier than others, there is a 95% chance that their luck horoscope will guarantee that they get all the potential luck that they have coming."

"Now, I don't want to tell you some of the amazing things that happened to our research subjects, myself, because I already sound like I'm bragging. Let me make a quick phone call and get two typical research subjects up here. I say typical because many subjects were much luckier and many were much less lucky. They are the average. But, I want to use them because they had never won anything in their lives until they used the LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE."

"Cary summoned two of the research subjects who had taken part in the final tests of the LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE. She said I was free to print their testimony. This really impressed me. Few people know that trade regulations are hard on testimonials from people. If an organization prints a testimonial with a person's name, it had better be true. Bear this in mind as you read the following testimonials from Ken Fronk and Rose Lineman."

"The two people entered the room and sat down. I first asked for the testimony of Ken Fronk of Canton, Ohio."

Question: "Ken, tell me your experience while using the LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE that was prepared for you."

Answer: "My LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE was prepared for me on March 1, 1974. The horoscope was in great detail and covered all areas of my life. But we, as research subjects, were told to concentrate on games so we could get the quickest test."

"My horoscope listed games in order, from those which I would be luckiest, to those that I would be the least lucky. It listed dates and times that I would be most lucky. It also listed what my lucky number, colors and combination of lucky colors and numbers were. I had never won anything in my life. In fact, I used to think of myself as a born loser. But, and I still can't believe it, here are the results of using my LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE."

"The first day my horoscope told me I would be lucky was March 16 to March 20. On March 17, I played the horses because that was listed high on my lucky area chart. I used the color and number information once I got to the track. And, that night I won $506.00!"

"Now, I will just leave out the smaller winning nights and give you the highlights."

"I was told I was going to be very lucky May 19 to May 20. Using the same procedure: On May 19, I played bingo and won a $10.00 door prize and $60.00 in bingo. On May 20, I played bingo at my Moose Club and won the $500.00 jackpot. On May 21, I played bingo again and won $50.00. On May 22, I won $525.00 on the horses and $45.00 playing bingo."

"In October, the 6th to the 11th was a lucky period. But, I was told that October 9 was an especially hot day for me and I was to bet heavy. I played the horses and won the daily double and $1,040.00."

LADY LUCK?

Cary Franks—Famous Chief Astrologer for I.A.A.—Director of the Life-Luck Research Project. Cary was born and educated in Cleveland, Ohio. She received a B.S. in psychology and chemistry from Case-Western Reserve University and a masters in polymer chemistry from Akron University. After graduating, she became interested in astrology. She studied the subject for 10 years and earned the highest certification given to professional astrologers. She has studied astrology in London and around the world. The mere fact that Cary is associated with this project may be lucky in itself. Many of her clients say that just being associated with her in any way seems to bring a person good luck.

Question: "I then asked for the testimony of Rose Lineman of Fredonia, Pennsylvania."

Answer: "Well, my testimony will be much shorter than Ken's was because the only game I am interested in is bingo. I got my LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE on May 1, 1974."

"Prior to that time, I never won at bingo over a period of a month. I would keep monthly records. They would usually come out on the loss side with a few break-even months and a very few slight winning months. Overall, I was way in the red."

"Now compare this. By following the advice in my LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE, from May 1 to December 31, 1974, I had won $2,219.00 over that eight-month period. I played on the average of once a week depending on my lucky periods, averaging about $70.00 a night."

"But, there are two things that impressed me about this horoscope more than my own experience. As a favor, I had the I.A.A. do a horoscope for each of two friends of mine."

"My first friend's horoscope told her to buy an Ohio lottery ticket on December 5. She soon found out that her ticket was a winner!"

"My second friend had a spicy experience. Her horoscope told her that she would have extremely good luck in her love-life in July. It told her to be active socially that month. She had more affairs that month than I think I had in my entire life. She came out of it with a lasting one—a guy that you couldn't have tailor made any better for her."

Question: "At this point, I have only one request from you people." I pleaded, "I want my LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE!" "Everyone laughed at this point as though I had just made a request that a million other people had made before me."

Answer: "Yes, there is quite a demand for the LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE since word has leaked out. And, we are now prepared to offer it to the public now—ON A SPECIAL BASIS. But, let me show you a sample LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE first so you know exactly what it is."

Question: "I was shown a copy of this special horoscope. I can tell you it is something else. It is 31 pages long and contains things that you would never dream existed in a horoscope. To go into a complete description will take up too much space, so listed next are the highlights of the contents of the LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE."

- The LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE reveals the following:
  1. WHERE, WHEN and HOW you will be lucky (including a 15-year, hand prepared, future forecast).
  2. How to take advantage of your lucky opportunities.
  3. How to increase your good luck.
  4. How to avoid bad luck.
- The horoscope covers how you can be lucky, depending on your horoscope, in the following areas:
  Love - Job - Career - Investments - Stocks - Commodities - Oil Wells - Bingo - Lotteries - Cards: Poker, Black Jack, Baccarat - Inheritance - Football and Baseball Pools - Horse Racing - Dog Racing - General Games - Keno - Sports - Tip Boards - Contests - Raffles - Sweepstakes - Roulette - Slot Machines - Dice - Parlays - Legal Matters
- The LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE also defines the following items:
  Your Lucky: Years, Months, Days, Hours, Numbers, Colors, Metals, Stones, People (Their Signs And When They Were Born). How to Create Lucky Vibrations, How To Create A Lucky Attitude.

Question: "This is really a super product. Now what is the special condition under which it is offered here?"

Answer: "First, we would like to test our horoscope on the general public. In the past, we have found we get many letters on the success of our horoscope from people who use it. So, we know that we will get feedback from people who order their LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE."

"Second, we want to do more advance research on color and luck, therefore, we are willing to make the similar offer we did in our famous ASTROLOGY TODAY feature."

"We don't know what we will charge for this product when the LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE finally goes to market, however, I can tell you that an astrologer could charge up to $200.00 for this horoscope—if he knew how. But, those who order here through this special "TEST SUBJECT" offer and submit their birth information and their favorite color will only pay a $5.00 charge to make a duplicate copy of their horoscope plus 50¢ postage and handling."

"At this point, I would like to present this public message: IMPORTANT—PUBLIC BEWARE. The founder of The INTERNATIONAL Astrological Association is the originator of the famous research project ASTROLOGY TODAY. Again, under penalty of law, we could not print this if it were not true. There are presently many imitations of our horoscope and research projects. Some of these companies have names similar to The INTERNATIONAL Astrological Association. These same companies will probably try to imitate the LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE. It took I.A.A. a great deal of time and money to develop the LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE. We do not believe it can be matched in detail and quality by a hurriedly prepared imitation. To insure you are getting the true LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE, be sure the astrology organization is The INTERNATIONAL Astrological Association with the endorsement of certified Astrologer Cary Franks."

"We concluded the interview and Cary gave me the following information to pass on to those who wish to participate in this special project and receive their 31 page, special LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE prepared for them personally from their exact birth information."

1) Get a blank piece of paper. 2) At the top of the paper, print the words "LIFE-LUCK HOROSCOPE". 3) Print your name and address. 4) Print your date, time and place of birth (if you don't know the exact time, just put 12 noon). 5) Write down your favorite color. 6) Mail this along with $5.00 plus 50¢ for postage and handling, in cash, check or money order to: I.A.A.; Dept. L-297; 4626 CLEVELAND AVE. N.; CANTON, OHIO 44709.

Two persons from one household may order through this special "TEST SUBJECT" offer. Simply include $10.00 plus $1.00 postage and handling if two are ordered—BUT, THE LIMIT IS TWO (NO EXCEPTIONS, PLEASE). This product carries a full and unconditional money-back guarantee. If anyone has any questions on this project, feel free to phone The INTERNATIONAL Astrological Association at (216) 494-4282.

"Songwriting is the only discipline I've had in my whole life—that's why I hate it so much."

Neil Diamond

music—you were appearing out of a puff of smoke and the setting was pretty elaborate for that time.

DIAMOND: Yeah, I guess I just think in terms of the stage. A lot of my songs lent themselves to it, to visual interpretation. The album I'm working on now is the kind of thing I might want to turn into a film.

FW: Could that—the glamour of Broadway, the glitter of uptown—could that be the other side of growing up in Brooklyn?

DIAMOND: Well, subconsciously, who knows? But as a kid, I never saw myself as a performer or star or anything. I went to one Broadway show in my life. It was songwriting that I consciously wanted to do, always songwriting—you got your jollies if you wrote one good line a day. I still identify myself as a songwriter.

FW: Do you view writing as a way of leaving your mark on the world, a way of achieving a kind of immortality?

DIAMOND: There may be some of that subconsciously, but the way I think about it is that I have three little kids [two daughters, Marjorie, 9, and Elyn, 7, by his first wife and his son Jesse, 5, by Marsha, his second wife], and I may be leaving something by which they can know who their father was. I'm not sure Stephen Foster is any happier in his casket now that he's "immortal." He was poor and ragged when he died, you know.

FW: Your songs are deceptively simple. Most have just three chords. How do you go about designing a song?

DIAMOND: When I first started, I worked with three chords in every bar, but I found that tied me down—I'm not a chord-change writer, I'm a songwriter. For my new album, I've finally refined it down to a one-chord song in one case. I'd been wanting to do that; it gives me an ultimate sort of freedom. . . . The other things, though—rhythm, for example—are as complex in some of my songs as you'll find in any jazz piece. That's a basic connection to human beings—rhythm. The lyrics aren't simple, either. They're extremely difficult because I'm trying to say complicated things in as few words as possible. "Song Sung Blue" took a lot of compressing and refining, and it has one of my favorite lyrics. It says something that's true—about melancholy being part of the human spirit—and it's concise. "I Am . . . I Said" is a different kind of lyric, and it was agonizing and personal to write. I spent four months on that.

FW: A lot of people have commented on the gospel sound in your songs.

DIAMOND: Well, I loved singing in the chorus, and there was some connection for me between gospel and choral music. But I had one experience that had quite an influence on me. I went up to a church in Harlem and sat in for the service to hear the singing. It was extraordinary, raw and powerful; it made my hair stand up.

FW: After those Broadway concerts, you temporarily retired from live performing to write a symphony. Did the job of writing the "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" score postpone that?

DIAMOND: I guess I satisfied the urge I had by writing that score, at least temporarily. It took a whole year of my life and was very involving. After doing it, I felt I'd now like to do something simpler.

FW: I understand you did considerable delving into religious tracts while you were working on the "Seagull" score.

DIAMOND: That's right. By chance a Hare Krishna kid came knocking on my door about then, wanting to give me literature and such. I invited him in. We talked for a while, and I asked him to read the script and tell me what he thought of it, had him make notes on it. I wound up working with him about six weeks—put him up in an apartment, rented him a car—until I reached the point where I had to work alone on it. He wanted me to go off with him to India and sit in a cave. I said that sounded great and I'd love to, but now I had to write this thing. I gave him a plane ticket, and he went while I settled down to pull it all together.

FW: It doesn't sound as if you miss performing as much as you would miss songwriting.

DIAMOND: Songwriting is what I do. Performing is the easiest part of what I do, and songwriting is the hardest. Songs are so all-encompassing; they're the joys and sorrows and pacing of life. Songwriting is the only real discipline I've had in my whole life—that's why I hate it so much; I don't like imposing that kind of discipline on myself, but it has to be. Songs are life in 80 words or less.

A Doctor's Wisdom: The Rights Kids

By David Viscott, M.D.
Author of "How to Live With Another Person"

Children and parents become the best things they give each other.

Children have rights in a family just as much as their parents do. They have the right to be listened to, to be taken seriously and given an explanation. They have the right to be treated as people. But they also have the right to be children and should not be expected to behave like complete adults. Although children are incomplete people, they still feel and care as much about their feelings as adults do about theirs. Children have the right to be imperfect. They sometimes steal, cheat, lie and take advantage of smaller children. When they do, they need to be told it is wrong, but not that they are bad.

Children have the right to spend time with their parents.

Children have the right to assume adult rights as soon as they are able to handle them responsibly, which means without doing harm to themselves or others.

Children have the right to be afraid, to say no, to quit and to cry. They have the right to be comforted, to be praised, to be adored and to be squeezed for absolutely no good reason except simply happening to be within arm's length.

Parents also have rights, and their children need to be aware of them. They have the right to expect their rights to be respected in the same way that they recognize their children's rights.

Parents have a right to be treated as people and not to be taken advantage of even when they sometimes seem to be asking for it. They have the right to be treated with the same courtesy and reasonableness as the child would treat any other adult.

Parents have the right to s limits that should be reasonab arrived at through mutual co sent between their children an themselves. This mutual co sent is only an ideal, a goal pa ents and children always figh over. Limits constantly chang as children grow and sho more responsibility for manag ing their own lives. Parents ar continually weighing their chi dren's capabilities. Childre continually test their parent firmness in setting limits. It an imperfect system, but, if th ultimate goal is to be reason able and supportive in helpin a child develop independence, usually works.

Parents have the right to en force rules. The philosophy be hind enforcing rules should b either to insure the child' safety when it is in question o to compensate for a child' inability to make certain deci sions in his own behalf. How ever, the parent must leav enough room for the child t make some mistakes so he ca learn from experience.

Parents have the right to certain amount of peace an quiet because they put up wit a lot and often have no choic in the matter. Parents are olde people. Their struggles are no always to their liking or of thei own choice. Many of th dreams they had for themselve have not turned out the way they wanted.

Parents have the right to know their children's friends and should be interested enough in their children's friends to know their names and who their families are. It is not enough to know that your children are not associating with people who are negative influences on their lives. It is also important that you are aware of the positive forces affecting your child's life.

More than likely, all parents do things they do not want to do, and whether they are good-natured about it or not isn't the point. Even if they are not able to be the kind of parents one would want in the best of all possible worlds, they are the only parents one has. Wanting one's parents to be something else is no more justifiable than parents wanting their children to be something other than what they are.

In any relationship, we need people to wish us well just the way we are. No parent has the right to insist that his children be made from the same mold as himself or to demand his child shore up a fallen self-image in hopes of proving by proxy a success that never materialized for the parent. That a parent made a mistake in his own life is lamentable enough without perpetrating the same mistakes in his children.

We cannot expect that our relationships with other people, even family, will always remain the same. That is too rigid an expectation. Both parents and children can grow through their changing relationships with each other.

One of the best possible things about being a member of a family is that the possibility of being loved, no matter how you change, exists there with the greatest chance for fulfillment. Most parents still love their children even when they have been disappointed by them. It is important for children to understand that some of the disappointment their parents feel for them is often really the parents' disappointment in their own lives.

Some parents view their children only symbolically, not as people. These are the most difficult parents to live with. Is the child being criticized because he is not acting the way his parents would want him to act or is he doing something that is not in his own best interest? And worse still, is the parent comparing him with the way the parent mistakenly remembers himself?

Unfortunately, some parents simply don't love their children. Probably they don't even love themselves. That may be the heart of their problem. Having parents like this is a terrible burden for any child and can shadow him all through life. It can even destroy him. A child of such a parent must learn to stop hating his parent for his shortcomings and to stop hating the parts of himself that remind him of that parent. The child needs to learn to get close to other people, to share a part of himself and to learn how to give and accept being given to—in short, how to love the other parts of himself and accept the good parts of his parents that are also in himself.

A home is a place in time. And no place stays the same after you finally grow up and leave it. No place can ever change as much as the person who grows up there. Streets and other buildings may remain much the same no matter who lives there, but people find new places to travel suggested only dimly by the place they grew up.

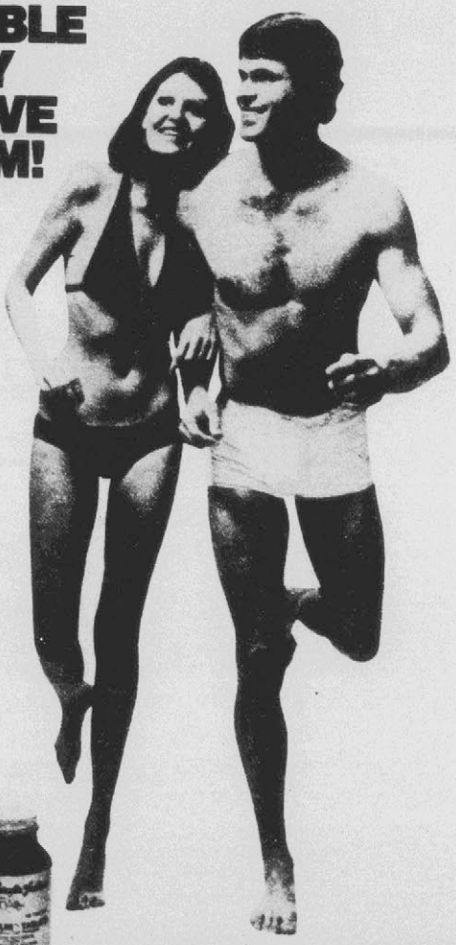

Each child should try to see in his parents the children they previously were. Each parent should try to see in his child the adult he seems to be becoming. The child in you should want to play with your children. The adult emerging in your child should find support and companionship in the adult within you.

None of us should feel ashamed of what we were or what we are becoming. FW

You can shed unwanted pounds in just a few weeks, yet you suffer no agonizing hunger pains . . . and you can indulge yourself with many tempting foods! The only problem with the traditional Grapefruit Diet (and it's a big one!) is that you must eat half a grapefruit before each meal . . . or the diet won't work! So while you may have the freedom to eat the foods you crave, you're virtually chained to your grapefruit-stocked refrigerator while you're on the diet! If you work, want to eat out or just plain need a grapefruit when the stores are closed . . . the diet can be a big nuisance . . . not to mention all those expensive grapefruits!

NEW FREEDOM FOR DIETERS

NOW instead of grapefruit, take the amazing Citradiet tablet. Imagine . . . half a grapefruit compacted into a handy tablet, and more! In addition to whole grapefruit extract, each Citradiet tablet is fortified with vitamins C and E plus protein for "quick energy" and sustenance! All at a fraction of the cost of fresh grapefruit!

HOW THE DIET PLAN WORKS

All you do is take a Citradiet tablet with a glass of water ½ hour before each meal. This amazing tablet, when used in conjunction with the easy-to-follow Grapefruit Diet Plan (FREE with your order) will help your body to rid itself of excess fats and fluids through natural action! The Tablets also act to lessen the appetite, so you'll actually eat less, without being hungry! And you'll never be bored on this diet, because you can splurge with many succulent foods like steak smothered in onions . . . lobster with drawn butter! You're free to dine out, because all you carry is a tiny tablet, not a big, bulky grapefruit!

You lose weight without dangerous "diet pills", there are no exhausting exercises to perform, no gadgets, sauna "belts", or starvation! And excess weight is not only unattractive . . . it's also dangerous to your health! Studies show that even if you're 10% overweight, your life-expectancy is shortened by about 10%. Overweight people are also more likely to develop high blood pressure and heart disease. So, the end result of the easy Grapefruit Tablet Diet is twofold! You'll not only look better, with a new slim, trim appearance . . . you'll feel better as well as you experience a new-found energy and vitality!

The Grapefruit Diet Tablet Guarantee is your protection . . . if our exciting new plan doesn't work for you . . . your purchase price will be refunded!

Braised Veal–Compliments Of a World-Famous Chef

Smart Cooking For Special Occasions

BRAISED VEAL WITH RED WINE

2 lbs. boneless veal, cubed
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 cup rough-cut parsnips
1 cup rough-cut carrots
1 cup rough-cut onion
Few parsley sprigs
2 teaspoons tomato paste
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup red wine
1½ cups water
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 small bay leaf
¼ cup sour cream
Chopped parsley

1. Sprinkle veal with salt and pepper. Heat oil in large 4- to 6-qt. Dutch oven until hot but not smoking. Add veal cubes and brown.

2. Add vegetables and parsley; cook, stirring with meat until vegetables are browned.

3. Add tomato paste and flour; stir well. Add remaining ingredients except the sour cream.

4. Heat to boiling, cover and simmer about 1 hour and 15 minutes, or until veal is very tender.

5. Remove meat and vegetables to heated serving dish. Keep warm.

6. Blend in sour cream with a wire whisk. Heat sauce just to boiling point, pour over veal cubes and vegetables. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Makes 4 servings

BRAISED CELERY

2 large stalks celery
Boiling water, salted
4 slices bacon, diced
2 tablespoons chopped onion
¼ teaspoon crushed garlic
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

1. Preheat oven to 375° F. Cut celery about 4 inches from root end. Remove bruised or tough outer stalks. Peel with potato peeler around root and remaining stalks, wash well.

2. Add celery to boiling, salted water. Return to boiling and boil 10 minutes. Drain and discard liquid.

3. Sprinkle bacon, onion and garlic in bottom of shallow 1½-qt. casserole. Cut celery in half lengthwise and place, split side down, in casserole. Dot with butter. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.

4. Add boiling water to casserole to barely cover celery. Cover with foil and braise in oven 35 minutes or until tender. Serve hot.

Makes 4 servings

Washington Whispers: Will Carla Hills Be Vice President?

"It is common around the house to see her with her two briefcases doing her homework at the same time the kids are doing theirs. They ask her what she thinks, and she asks them what they think. It's that kind of family."

By Frances Spatz Leighton

FAMILY WEEKLY Contributing Editor

When President Ford did not give the Supreme Court appointment to a female—and more particularly, to Carla Hills, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development—Betty Ford was upset. Cathy Douglas, William O. Douglas's wife, was upset. In fact, half the women of the nation were upset!

But a whisper is going through Washington that says, "Don't worry. Ford is saving Carla for other things." The whisper says that in this Bicentennial election, Carla may just be the first female in history to appear on a major Presidential ticket as Vice President.

Will Ford make history by choosing a woman as his running mate? If so, Carla is used to making history. For starters, she is the first woman in 20 years and the third woman in history to gain Cabinet rank. She is young (she has just celebrated her 42nd birthday), energetic (she plays to win against such formidable tennis opponents as Ethel Kennedy), and she is ambitious (she carries two briefcases of work home every night, lives on five and a half hours of sleep and her office workday is from 8 to 8).

For another giant plus, Carla Hills has the perfect husband for a political mate. Roderick Hills has long been a GOP worker among moderates. When Ford appointed Carla to be Secretary of HUD, he appointed Rod to be one of his top legal aides, as Deputy to Chief Counsel Philip Buchen.

Now Ford has moved Rod up and out of the White House. He is the new Chairman of SEC—the Securities and Exchange Commission—which is an independent Government agency of sub-Cabinet rank. So Carla still outranks him. His salary of $42,000 added to Carla's $63,000 is a neat $105,000.

As a couple, the Hills enjoy each other's company—when they can get it—and take turns making sure their four children, Laura, 14, Ricky, 11, Megan, 10 and Lisa, 5, always have a parent around to make them feel loved and wanted. Carla is a great believer in "group thinking"—even with the children. It is common around the house to see her with her two briefcases doing her homework at the same time the kids are doing theirs. They ask her what she thinks, and she asks them what they think. It's that kind of family.

Carla and Rod met when she was a senior at Stanford and he was in his third year of law there. Rod graduated at the top of his class and came to Washington to serve as law clerk to Supreme Court Justice Stanley Reed.

Carla's background is more sumptuous than that of Roderick, who worked his way through college as a bartender. Carla's father was founder of a very successful building supply company. When she approached her father about coming East to continue her law studies, he was so adamant about her remaining in California that he said he would not finance her education unless it was in that state. "O.K.," Carla said, "Then I'm on my own." She went to Yale and lived on the savings she had earned as bookkeeper and bank teller. She and Rod married soon after her graduation.

Rod and Carla take the kidding about her outranking him good-naturedly. But what if she becomes Vice President?

As for what Carla stands for politically, it is "to keep the Government out of the private sector as much as possible, but put the Government in where necessary." She describes herself as "a fiscal conservative." She is for abortion and in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Grass Seed Is For The Birds! Zoysia Saves Time, Work, Money

GRASS SEED WILL NEVER GROW A LAWN LIKE THIS! SAVE WITH OUR SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER UP TO 200 AMAZOY ZOYSIA GRASS PLUGS FREE!

By Mike Senkiw Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.

Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow . . . until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn ". . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds — it's just wonderful!"

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn — nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement . . . ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 2/3.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick rich, luxurious Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It will NOT winter kill. Goes off its green color after killing frost, regains fresh new beauty every Spring — a true perennial!

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

Your Own Supply of Plug Transplants

Established Amazoy gives you Zoysia plugs to plant in other areas as desired!

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed, like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills.

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass Was Perfected by U.S. Govt.: Released In Cooperation With U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

Do as so many thousands are doing and switch to Amazoy. More than a half-billion plugs sold — you cannot lose.

RESISTS WEAR & TEAR

Amazoy lawns take cook-outs, parties, lawn furniture. You could play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Children playing on it won't hurt it—or themselves!

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style. Every plug 3 sq. inches.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds. Easy planting instructions with order.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS ..... FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In Your Area • In Your Soil

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT KILL—when other grasses burn out, Amazoy remains green and lovely!

Plug Amazoy into an entire lawn or problem areas. Plug it into poor soil, "builder's soil," clay or even salty, sandy beach areas. I guarantee every plug, regardless. Any plug failing to grow in 45 days replaced FREE. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it, you know we're 100% sure of our product!

If it isn't Amazoy, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

THE ROCKEFELLERS
A bed is a bed is a bed!

What's it like being the owner of a one-of-a-kind bed that's also a fine example of modern art? Happy Rockefeller told FAMILY WEEKLY's Washington correspondent: "I think it's a great conversation piece for the new Vice Presidential mansion, and it's not bad for sleeping, either; but I'm inclined to go along with Gertrude Stein's philosophy—a bed is a bed is a bed! The only problem is that everyone wants to come into our bedroom now, which makes privacy next to impossible. Nelson, on the other hand, adores it. He's such an art connoisseur to begin with, and he's particularly fond of Max Ernst, who designed it. Actually, Nelson's remark sums up our mutual feelings: 'We happened to need a bed. It's a bed. It just happens to be a work of art, too.' I just hope the next Vice President and his family have a sense of humor."

"I know we said you're 'just a girl' . . . but we're losing!"

Double-barreled blast at mosquitoes: The mosquito was once controlled with the now-banned chemical DDT. Replacements for DDT initially do their job well, but in no time, the insect builds up an immunity. Now, Dr. Edward G. Platzer of the University of California may have come up with a new solution. Said Platzer: "Nematodes, which are inch-long worms, are as productive as mosquitoes and seem to thrive in similar climates. These little worms can lay up to 3,000 eggs a night if the water temperature is right. We've been conducting controlled lab experiments with nematodes and mosquitoes, and we've noticed that when placed in the same trays, the worm immediately attacks the insect with a strangle hold. It penetrates the skin, and then feeds off the insect's vital fluids. In the near future, I believe we will be able to pack these nematodes into insecticide cans."

GEORGE C. SCOTT
"They envy and despise . . ."

The Academy Award-winning actor tells why he has discouraged all of his six children from taking up acting careers: "Psychologically, it can be a difficult life. I don't think it's a life that's terribly conducive to a strong, constructive home environment. It's not only my personal life but the lives of my colleagues over the years. I don't blame acting entirely, but it's the milieu of the profession. Marlon Brando has said that actors are treated like household pets, and he's quite correct. We're idolized, patronized and vilified all in the same breath. People look at you as though you really should go to work and do something respectable. I'm very fond of saying that actors are just one cut above charlatans and mountebanks. We've always been classified as just a tad above pickpockets, you know. People envy you and despise you at the same time. The desire to get someone's autograph or to rip off a piece of his clothing is a frightening thing. Of course, every business is risky and can be damaging, but acting seems to be more frenetic than other professions." From "Off Camera," by Leonard Probst (Stein & Day, $10).

BRIAN DALY
Ask if you don't know

Dining out and taking no chances: If you're a novice at eating at restaurants and you want to insure a pleasurable evening on those rare occasions when you do go out, use good sense, good manners and the advice of Brian Daly, co-partner in the D-M Corp., which operates New York's prestigious evening spot, The Rainbow Room: 1) If you pick an ethnic restaurant, then order the types of dishes it specializes in. For example, don't order a charcoal-broiled steak in an Armenian restaurant. 2) Be absolutely sure of what you are ordering. Ask the captain or maitre d' to explain the dish in full detail. The same applies to wine: don't order a wine you don't know and then return it because you don't like it. 3) Balance your order. For instance, don't order an appetizer made with cream, a main course made with cream and then follow with a dessert made with cream. 4) Taste your food before seasoning it. 5) Order an inexpensive wine with an inexpensive meal; never ask the waiter to chill a red vintage wine. 6) Treat dining-room personnel with respect, not as if they were your servants. On the other hand, don't feel intimidated by a captain or a maitre d'. 7) Finally, tip in relationship to services rendered. Bon appétit!

RELATIVELY SPEAKING

An in-law isn't an outlaw,
I swear it upon the Scout Law.
Yes, some of my good wife's relatives
I speak of with pleasant appelatives.
In fact I consider these nigh folks
Quite equal to many of my folks.
By blood they and I aren't related;
To my wife, not to them, I am mated.
By marriage, you see, I acquired them
And none of my ancestors sired them.
Just one other thing I would mention,
If still I possess your attention:
What I've said of my in-laws, a host of them,
Applies not to all, just to most of them.

Every year at this time my accountant sulks. He claims I treat him as just a tax object. —Lillian Koslover
