

State-Of-War Jackson Leads Democrats With Rhodesia In Massachusetts Race

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — The Communist-backed government of Mozambique declared today "a state of war" exists with Rhodesia and announced it has sealed off its 800-mile border with the white-ruled nation. Some prices on the London stock exchange immediately dropped.

However, a Rhodesian government spokesman in Salisbury said that "a state of war" did not mean a declaration of war. The Mozambique Ministry of Information confirmed this but said Mozambique was being put on a war footing.

Last week Rhodesian forces went into "hot pursuit" after some of the thousands of African guerrillas infiltrating from the Mozambique border, killing 24 guerrillas and suffering one Rhodesian soldier dead. Rhodesia, a breakaway British colony, has a regular army of 3,500 men and 10,000 reservists, many of whom have been called up in recent months. But Rhodesia has been bolstering its forces over the past year with an additional but undisclosed number of callups.

The "state of war" declaration came in an impassioned speech by Marxist President Samora Machel from the presidential palace. The speech was broadcast by Mozambique radio.

The bearded, 42-year-old Machel said all Rhodesian property and assets in Mozambique would be seized, all communications with Rhodesia cut and Mozambique would apply full economic sanctions against its neighbor.

The closure of the border is expected to have a serious impact on the economy of landlocked Rhodesia, but a government spokesman in Salisbury said it would hurt Mozambique more.

The Rhodesian spokesman said much of Mozambique's revenues come from rail traffic and port dues on Rhodesia's imports and exports and that Mozambique also buys corn from Rhodesia. All of this is now expected to stop.

During Portuguese rule, Mozambique handled up to 80 per cent of Rhodesian imports and exports, but the Rhodesian spokesman said most of these now move through South Africa, another neighbor.

The closing is also certain to hurt Zaire, which uses the railway line through Zambia, Rhodesia and Mozambique for much of its exports and imports. Zaire's traditional outlet for its copper through Angola to the Atlantic has been closed for a year.

Machel urged Mozambique's 8.5 million impoverished people to prepare for war and begin building air raid shelters in every village.

He called on socialist nations to aid Mozambique in its time of need. The reference was apparently to the Soviet Union and China, which both support Machel's revolutionary Marxist regime.

An estimated force of 3,000 black nationalist guerrillas from Rhodesia have been massing on Mozambique's border for the past two months for a full assault across the frontier. Another 10,000 African guerrillas have been reported training in camps in Tanzania, preparing to join the units on the border.

Machel leads a 10,000-man army of his own, veterans of a 10-year-old guerrilla war of liberation against the colonial forces of Portugal, which granted Mozambique independence last June 25.

He said Rhodesian aircraft attacked the Mozambique village of Pafuri last month and caused extensive damage.

He said ground forces were also involved on the attack on Pafuri which he described as an act of war and a war crime against Mozambique.

The village of Pafuri is in the southwest corner of Mozambique, where its borders converge with Rhodesia and South Africa.

SIGNALS VICTORY—Presidential Contender Sen. Henry M. Jackson raises arms in victory Tuesday night in Boston after claiming victory in the Massachusetts presidential primary. (AP Wirephoto)

BOSTON (AP)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson, the victor in Massachusetts Democratic presidential primary, is turning his attention to Florida, but says its primary next Tuesday will not be decisive in gaining the nomination.

Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona ran second in the Massachusetts vote Tuesday and was clearly the leader among the party's liberal candidates. Sen. Birch Bayh, another liberal, was seventh among the eight Democrats and may decide today whether to bow out.

An aide to the Indiana senator said Bayh planned a meeting in Washington today with key campaign aides.

In Florida, Jackson will face his most serious challenge from Southerners George C. Wallace and Jimmy Carter. Wallace ran third in Massachusetts and Carter fourth.

President Ford, meanwhile, said he was pleased with victory over former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in Massachusetts, where Reagan's name was on the ballot, and in Vermont, where it wasn't.

With 94 per cent of the precincts in Massachusetts counted, Ford had 105,616 votes, or 62 per cent, and 27 delegates, to Reagan's 58,848 votes, or 35 per cent, and 15 delegates.

In Vermont with 96 per cent of the precincts counted, Ford had 25,270 votes, or 84 per cent, to Reagan's 4,769 write-in votes or 16 per cent.

Massachusetts was based on a "broad coalition" of support, but both Udall and Wallace proclaimed triumph, too.

The Washington senator said on the CBS "Morning News" that he did not think Florida would be decisive in choosing the Democratic nominee.

"Wallace is ahead in the South, let's face it," he said. "The point is that I beat Jimmy Carter and George Wallace in the kind of state you must win."

James Johnson, a student of D. H. Conley High School was presented a trophy by the Pitt County Board of Education for his accomplishments in winning the State Champion 188 pound Wrestler title at the Pitt County Board of Education meeting Tuesday afternoon. Johnson was recognized as the first individual wrestling state champion from D. H. Conley and Pitt County Schools. Johnson's coach Milt Sherman and principal Bob Carraway accompanied him in receiving the award.

In other business the board voted to recommend August 30 as the beginning date of the 1976-77 school year, to the Planning Team for consideration in planning the school calendar.

The board accepted Pitt County's proposed Occupational Plan submitted by Carl Toot. The plan supports a continuation of all existing programs with the following exceptions: (a) A modification of Trade and Industrial Education Programs to provide a third year, three period block, for those students who want and can profit from further skill development.

(b) Eliminating the special Cooperative Office Occupational Programs at D. H. Conley and Ayden-Grifton High Schools because of a proposed lack of funds. (c) A request of $26,000 in local funds to maintain two of five teaching positions which state and federal funding have discontinued financial support for at A.G. Cox and Farmville Middle schools.

The board accepted the proposed formula for allocating Title I resources to individual schools. The formula includes the same guidelines as used in the past for determining allocation of resources.

The board accepted the Title I program for the 1976-77 school year. According to Assistant (Continued on page 12)

Howard Lee Is Running

RALEIGH (AP) — Howard Lee, former mayor of Chapel Hill, formally announced today his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor of North Carolina.

Lee is the seventh Democrat to announce for the office. Others are former state senator George Wood of Camden, Rep. Herbert Hyde of Asheville, House Speaker Jimmy Green, Waverly Akins of Fuquay-Varina, E. Frank Stephenson of Murfreesboro and Rep. John Jordan of Saxapahaw.

Lee, 41, said in a prepared statement that if elected, "You won't come in and find any special interests sharing that chair with me. I am not an enemy of big business. But when it comes to a conflict between big business and the people, you can expect to see me walking with the people."

Lee, son of a sharecropper family in Lithonia, Ga., is currently on leave from his post as Duke University's director of human development.

Med School Progress Is Praised; Much Yet To Do

"Substantial progress" has been made toward early enrollment of students in the School of Medicine at East Carolina University although more work is needed before students can be admitted, according to a joint statement by University of North Carolina President William C. Friday and ECU President Leo Jenkins.

The joint communique came after the two met with accreditation officials here yesterday.

Dr. James Schofield and Dr. Edward Peterson, executive staff members of the Liaison Committee on Medical Education—a joint American Medical Association—Association of American Medical Colleges committee which governs accreditation—were in Greenville Monday and Tuesday for what was termed an "unofficial consultation and advisory visit to evaluate progress" in the development of the medical school.

The Friday-Jenkins statement said "they were pleased to see the tremendous accomplishments achieved by Dean (William) Laupus, Vice-Chancellor (Ed) Monroe, and Chancellor Jenkins, and the East Carolina administration with the support and assistance of President Friday and his staff."

The statement concluded, "Dean Laupus will maintain a close relationship with Doctors Schofield and Peterson to determine the most appropriate time for the official accreditation visit."

Commenting on the LCME staff visit, Dr. Laupus this morning said "What they said to us was, 'you have made an enormous amount of progress, but you're not quite nucleus of faculty and administration already in Greenville, and the leadership of Dean Laupus were cited for praise."

there. You need to complete your program... before we can present you favorably to the LCME."

The Dean said, "the report of this unofficial visit will be given to the LCME at their march meeting. Then some instructions from the LCME are likely to be given to us."

According to Dr. Laupus, "we are studying our position of readiness for submission of a request to the LCME for an accreditation site visit," and "we will ask for an accreditation site visit at the earliest time when we feel accreditation will be forthcoming."

He emphasized that the decision on when to ask for an official accreditation visit "will be made by the administration of ECU and its school of medicine, in consultation with the LCME."

C.M., CALL S.B.I.

The State Bureau of Investigation has asked Hotline to again appeal to have C.M. call them. This person has given them some valuable information, they say, and told them that if they need to contact him again to let him know through the Hotline column. Their first appeal, which appeared in this column Feb. 24, got no response, they say.

COUNTER CHECK TROUBLES

I just opened an account with First State Bank and have not received my personalized checks yet. I've found I have trouble cashing the counter checks supplied me by the bank in the interim. Rose's, for instance, refused me, quoting their policy of not accepting counter checks. Is there a way around this dilemma? Mrs. W. H.

We called Curtis Hendrix of First State Bank, who said he is familiar with your situation and has talked to the Rose's manager about it. Having a check personalized, in no way makes it more legitimate than a counter one, he said. In fact, a check written on a paper bag may be good, he said, though, he observed that no bank these days would truly welcome many of these since they would have to be processed manually.

The Rose's manager was on vacation when Hotline called, but the assistant manager J. V. Brown explained that the rule not to accept counter checks is a chain-wide one. Anyone, including a store manager, who does accept one, he said, must pay for it out of his or her own pocket if the check bounces. So, though you did not mean to, you were putting the person you asked to cash your check in a difficult position. Brown said, however, that if anyone really feels he must cash a counter check in Rose's, the manager has agreed to call the bank named and verify that the person does have an account and that it is sufficient at that moment to cover the amount for which the check is written. He is the only one in the store with the authority to do this, however.

Hendrix added that the bank will be glad to provide you with a letter of legitimacy to present when cashing checks until your personalized checks arrive, if you wish.

Tentative Endorsement Is Given CDP Projects

A list of proposed projects for the 1976-77 phase of the Community Development Program for Greenville gained the tentative endorsement of the City Council at a workshop session Monday evening.

The tentative list, which includes preliminary cost figures that could meet revisions, calls for a project fund of $2,127,000, including $218,000 in unobligated funds from the first-year program that will be transferred to the second-year phase.

The CDP project list will be discussed at Thursday night's regular meeting of the City Council and a list will be adopted at the meeting and forwarded as part of the CDP application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for approval. Included in the $218,000 transfer money is the $90,000 account for thoroughfare design and construction; $50,000 for right of way acquisition; transferral of $25,000 from the purchase price of the Elderly Activity Center; $10,000 from the code enforcement budget; $5,000 from the planning budget; $10,000 from the traffic study since the city plans to handle the study with its own staff; $8,000 from the citizen involvement account, and $20,000 from the un-programmed balance of 1975-76.

The $1.9 million designated for the city's second year of the CDP program, plus the $218,000 in transferred funds, constitutes the tentative project fund of $2,127,000.

The actual CDP tentative project list includes: Acquisition of Real Property; $200,000 for the West Meadowbrook Redevelopment Plan, $7,000 for right of way acquisition for improvements to Cotanche Street between Eighth and Ninth Streets; (Public Works), $40,000 for neighborhood improvements for Higgs, Riverdale and Greenfield Terrace, $75,000 for neighborhood improvements in the South Evans area, $500,000 for construction of Arlington Boulevard, $210,000 for completion of the West Meadowbrook street project including sidewalks and storm drainage, $23,000 for actual improvements on Cotanche between Eighth and Ninth, $100,000 for street construction in the community development neighborhoods, including paving streets, placement of curb and gutter and storm drainage, $20,000 for renovation of the old Memorial Baptist Church for use as an activity center, $70,000 for purchase of a new fire truck for the main fire station, $300,000 for construction of the joint Recreation-Library complex, $40,000 for street improvements in the Central Business District; (Code Enforcement), $30,000 for Code Enforcement Program; (Clearance and Demolition), $30,000 for West Meadowbrook; (Rehabilitation), $100,000 in all of the CDP neighborhoods. Grid Star Loves The Game

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Linda Jefferson's name may not be a household word like O.J. Simpson's but she, too, is an outstanding ground gainer in professional football.

The 21-year-old halfback with the Toledo Troopers ran for 1,357 yards this past season and scored 14 touchdowns.

However, the attractive female grid star thinks women should never compete against men in football and is content to stay in her own league, which in this case is the National Women's Football League.

"In track, basketball, tennis — okay. Those are not contact sports. As for football, no way," she declared firmly in an interview here.

Linda, in New York for television appearances she admits made her more nervous than coming up against a hefty opponent on the field, predicts increasing interest in women's football.

"We'll have our Superbowl some day, even though we may not have 80,000 to see it," says the 5 foot 4, 125-pounder who was named female athlete of 1975 by WomanSport magazine. And she wants to see more girls compete in all kinds of sports.

She'll be doing her bit toward this end while continuing her own sports activities and pursuing a degree in environmental health at the University of Toledo, where she is a sophomore.

As a community relations representative for Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. she will travel throughout the country speaking at schools, sports clinics, recreation department gatherings and clubs, encouraging girls to participate in sports programs.

"It's not to show up men," she explains. "I just want to tell the kids they'll live a lot longer if they get into sports, that competition will give them self-control, respect for themselves and keep them in good condition. And I'd like to put the kids on the right step. It was hard for me when I came up. I needed someone to teach me."

While Linda does not feel that she has been discriminated against as a black, she does believe that girls in general are discriminated against in sports, though she notes that things are getting better.

"They have better equipment now than when I was in school," she concedes, adding ruefully that she gets just $25 a game when she plays for the Troopers, working both offense and defense.

The team wears junior high school boys' uniforms and the only concessions to females in the women's league are a smaller ball, 12 minute quarters instead of 15, and kickoff from the 45-yard line instead of the 35 as in men's pro football.

Linda has had her share of injuries, including a chipped bone in her foot and a torn ligament in her ankle that put her on crutches for two weeks.

She has scored 72 touchdowns in her four seasons of play and her longest run was 93 yards, but she modestly gives the credit to her blockers.

"If it weren't for them I wouldn't be where I am. They're the ones who get beat up, not me. If they get beat up to open a hole in the line for me you can bet I'm going to get through it."

The Toledo native recalls she "always liked to get out and run and be active. I couldn't stand to sit around playing with dolls all day. I used to run home from school and one day a girl friend said why not come out for track."

That was when she was 11, and her natural athletic ability resulted in her winning the long jump gold medal in the Junior Olympics of Lucas county, getting on the Toledo All-Star basketball team and being named to a number of all-star softball teams.

"It was something different, it's an exciting game," she says of her decision to get into football. "And besides, people said, 'Don't do it. It's not lady-like to play football.'"

"I'm a football player during the football season. Once I leave the field I'm a lady," she adds, looking very much the part in a red shirt, gold hoop earrings and her hair in a neat Afro style.

As for marriage, "that should be an ultimate goal in a woman's life," declared Linda, who doesn't equate female sports competition with the women's movement. "I'd like to get married some day."

"I would prefer O.J. Simpson — but he's married."

Grandmother Doesn't Need Frayed Nerves

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked you if you thought a grandmother should be expected to sit with grandchildren who were rude and disrespectful. She said she had two married sons who each had two little boys under 10. The sons of one family were a joy to sit with, so she often did, but the other two boys were mean and mouthy, so she refused to sit with them. Her problem was that she was being criticized for playing favorites. You told her to turn a deaf ear to the criticism.

Well, Abby, CRITICIZED made her first mistake when she didn't correct her disobedient grandchildren the first time they got out of line.

One grandson sassied me, so I told him that his Daddy didn't sass me when he was growing up and that I wasn't going to put up with it from him, either. Then I gave him a smack and set him down. He was so surprised he sassied me again, so I gave him another smack and set him down again. That was our first and last scene.

Later, I warned his younger sister, "You'd better mind Grandma or you'll get what your brother got."

Try to win their respect with love and firm discipline. If it doesn't work, refuse to babysit. Who needs frayed nerves and a headache?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR ABBY: Mrs. Ready Kilowatt wrote to you complaining that at bedtime, all her electrician husband wanted to do was talk about his business, while she had other things in mind.

You should have advised that wife to learn the lingo of her electrician husband so they could make contact that would be satisfactory to both.

FULLY CHARGED

DEAR FULLY: Why talk? Non-verbal communication is sometimes much more effective. Assuming that the husband's batteries aren't dead, the proper action could lower his resistance and increase his frequency.

DEAR ABBY: Last October you had a whole column on fire prevention and suggested having a hand fire extinguisher in every home. Well, that gave me an idea for my married son's Christmas present.

It should make you feel real good to know that gift turned out to be a lifesaver for my son, his wife, two small children and their home!

Words cannot express my gratitude to you, Abby!

BREAD BAKING
NEW YORK (UPI) — Home bread baking is booming, says a yeast manufacturer. Yeast sales have increased 25 per cent in the past five years.
Increased sales of family flour also are attributed to the trend. After a 20-year decline, sales rose 10 per cent in 1973 and another 9.4 per cent in 1974.
In addition, the manufacturer says public libraries, state Bicentennial committees, Extension services and private schools are conducting bread-baking programs and classes, and a survey by a West Coast consumer magazine indicated seven out of 10 of its readers had tried making yeast bread.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's defense attorneys have launched a vigorous assault against some of the most stinging evidence against her, seeking to have it stricken as the product of an illegal search. U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter scheduled an evidentiary hearing outside the presence of the jury today at the request of defense counsel F. Lee Bailey.

The judge predicted the hearing would take at least several hours, interrupting the prosecution's rebuttal testimony and virtually erasing any chance of sending the bank robbery case to the jury by the end of the week.

Bailey wants Carter to throw out the controversial "Tania Interview" as well as other documents the government contends prove Miss Hearst willingly embraced the revolutionary goals of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

The 29-page "Tania" manuscript — so called for the revolutionary name Miss Hearst said the SLA gave her — contains some of the defendant's handwriting and outlines her rejection of her family and her conversion to the terrorist doctrines of the SLA. Portions of the document were read to the jury during the trial. Bailey objected Tuesday when U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. attempted to read an agreement between the opposing counsels of a list of documents and notebooks found in the San Francisco apartment of SLA members William and Emily Harris, arrested within hours of Miss Hearst last Sept. 18.

"It has come to my attention that the search which we thought was made legally at the time of arrest has now been ruled illegal by a judge on the state bench," Bailey said.

Some of the material, which could link Miss Hearst to planned bank robberies during her 19 months in the underground, prompted her to invoke the 5th Amendment 42 times last month.

Bailey told Carter that a Superior Court judge in Los Angeles had declared the search of the Harris' hideout illegal and asked Carter to do the same.

Carter said he was aware of Judge Mark Brandler's ruling. Brandler said the FBI had the apartment under surveillance for more than 30 hours and had ample time to get a search warrant but failed to do so.

He refused to accept as evidence in the Harris assault case in Los Angeles any material found in their apartment.

Browning objected to the hearing, saying the defense should have filed the motion to suppress the evidence long ago. Bailey angrily informed the prosecutor that he had been unaware that the legality of the search was in dispute.

Court was recessed 20 minutes early Tuesday to prepare for the hearing. Bailey dashed out to fill a speaking engagement, but his associate, Al Johnson, said, "If the search and seizure were illegal, the evidence derived in that search would be stricken from the record of this case."

Counselors Attend Annual Convention

Raleigh—The 49th Annual Convention of the North Carolina Personnel and Guidance Association was held in Raleigh at the Sheraton-Crabtree Motel Feb. 26-28.

Attending the convention from Pitt County Schools were Elaine King, Ayden Grammar School; Sarah Orgel, Farmville Middle School; and Kate Green, school psychologist.

Hearing On Proposed Swimming Pool Standards Well-Attended

Pitt County Board of Health Chairman Dr. Charles Fitzgerald reported at the Board of Health meeting Thursday night that the Feb. 17 public hearing on the proposed standards and regulations for swimming pools was well attended. He expressed appreciation for the participation and advice of the swimming pool owners and operators. It was agreed that the Board will incorporate feasible changes and adopted regulations which they feel are suitable for this county.

Health Director, Roger Barnaby reported that plans have been completed with local veterinarians for holding the annual series of Rabies Vaccination Clinics throughout the county April 5-16. As required by state law, the time and location of these clinics will be advertised in each township, he said.

Dr. Earl Trevathan, Medical Consultant to the Health Department, reported on a recent meeting of the Health Department, OB-GYN physicians, and the Hospital Administrator to explore ways to serve the increased caseload of patients needing prenatal care and delivery. One avenue being discussed is the use of nurse mid-wives to supplement physicians. Barnaby indicated that the Health Department is continuing to work closely with all who participated in the meeting in an effort to determine ways to improve current operations and to meet the needs of the patients, the physicians, the Hospital, and the Health

Break-Ins At Two Homes

FARMVILLE—There were breakings and enterings at two homes in Farmville early Tuesday morning, and one earlier prowler call, according to Farmville Police.

Chief Marsdon Cannady refused to release the names of the persons whose homes were entered, but did say that one was dealt some physical harm, while the other had a wallet taken. One break-in occurred shortly after midnight; the other between 1 and 2 a.m.

The Police Chief said his Department was assisted throughout the remainder of the night by investigators from the Greenville Police Department, the Pitt County Sheriff Department, the State Bureau of Investigation, and the Department of Corrections, the last with dogs. "We have some very good leads," he said.

He said the Farmville Rescue Squad was quite helpful in aiding the injured party and in staying with the person once the ordeal was over.

Department.

Dr. Fitzgerald announced that the capital construction program to renovate and expand the Health Department buildings should begin within 60 to 90 days. Barnaby mentioned that the County Department of Mental Health vacated its building that week enabling the Division of Environmental Health and the Maternal and Child Health staff of the Division of Personal Health, to move in temporarily until construction begins. This has relieved overcrowded offices considerably, he said.

The Board reviewed the status of plans to upgrade the facilities for the Health Department's satellite clinics. Mrs. Tillie Cullipher, Acting Chief of the Division of Personal Health, announced that services for the Grimesland area will resume Friday, at the new clinic site which is a trailer located on the corner of River and Washington Streets in Grimesland. The three legislative acts that affect the credit industry were discussed, along with the origin and meaning of each of the laws.

Marks of a good citizen, understanding others and their problems, misunderstanding between employer and employee and a citizen's attitude were discussed.

Board decided that dedication ceremonies should be held prior to the opening of the clinic. (The ceremonies have been scheduled for Thursday, at 4:00 p.m.)

Joe House, Board of Health member from Grifton, reported that he had located a possible site in Grifton for an additional satellite clinic. This site and possible locations for Farmville and Ayden will be investigated by the Board.

Peak Load Pricing Plan 'Fair'

The State Utilities Commission seems to be giving the utilities all they ask for in the way of rate increases, but at least it is requiring the companies to develop plans for peak load pricing.

those who use peak hour electricity should pay a premium rate for it. That family or industry which is willing to schedule its electric use around the peak hours should be rewarded by not having to pay the high peak hour rate. The companies have yet to show much enthusiasm, but it seems the logical way to go to us.

Nixon Hasn't Lost His Old Shrewdness

No matter how much one opposes the Nixon trip to China—and we opposed it—it has to be recognized that the resigned president has found a way back to public attention. A speaking tour of the United States would have been fraught with danger, both physical and mental, in that he could have been hoisted off the stage. But a trip to China by invitation was an ideal way to the spotlight for Nixon, since he is well regarded there.

It causes many headaches for the Ford administration in this election year, and yet Nixon must be listened to when he returns. He could be given a message of importance by the Chinese leaders, and for Ford to ignore his predecessor entirely on his return could cost the country some vital information from China. Nixon is jockeying for power with the administration and the Republican Party. It is clear that he has not lost his old shrewdness.

THIS AFTERNOON

Who Minds The Store?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — While Gov. James E. Holshouser beats about the state, the Southeast, and the nation placing his top priorities on campaigning for the election of President Gerald Ford, who's minding the store? That was the key thing on the minds of a group of Meredith College political science students when they gathered in the governor's office on a recent day for a firsthand look at that phase of state government. The governor was away, so Sam Long, the governor's special assistant for legal matters, fielded the questions. Earlier, Holshouser had told newsmen that he expected to make the presidential campaign his number-one priority in the last months of his stay in the governor's mansion.

"But being governor is not a nine-to-five job. He is seven days 24 hours a day, seven days a week," the attorney added. "That's exactly what I had in mind... who is in charge when he is not here?" one of the students wanted to know. Long said the governor is in touch by telephone, two or three times every day. But more importantly, Long said, he has given sufficient instruction to the staff, has confidence in the judgment of the people who work for him, and "90 per cent of the time it doesn't matter whether he is here or not." Long says the staff — about 28 people in all, but primarily the chief aide, Gene Anderson, and the legal, press, energy, appointments, and minority affairs specialist — operate the same whether Holshouser is in town or not. "We are close enough to him that we know his thinking. And we know when we can handle a matter, or when we need his direction." Once during recent months, the governor has managed to completely escape his state responsibilities. During the Christmas and New Years Holidays, the governor, his wife, and daughter flew a commercial plane to Florida. They left behind all security personnel and aides who usually accompany them, and only two people had the telephone number where he could be reached. "They just wanted to get away from everything, even the security. So somebody just drove them to the airport and let them out," Long said.

Who Pays?

At other times, security officers accompany the Holshousers even on political campaign trips. Their state salaries and expenses are paid by the state, while the governor must pay personally his expenses while politicking as opposed to governing. When a trip involves some business, some campaigning, the cost is shared pro rata. Why, wondered a student, should the governor be spending so much time on a national election? Shouldn't North Carolina affairs take priority? Long said it is because Holshouser sees Ford as the only and best hope to save the nation from further movement toward socialism, and puts a lot of importance on that. As to how the governor spends most of his time under ordinary circumstances, Long explained that above anything else, budget matters occupy the decision-making. "That is what government is really all about... decisions about what the priorities are, and what you will spend the available money for. There is, after all, not a limitless supply of money." As to whether Holshouser will push for greater strength for future governors—especially vice power—Long feels the likelihood is slim. "You only have so many green stamps; you can only go to the well so many times. You must choose the important issues, and ones you have a chance of winning with." "Further, it would require the General Assembly to give the governor more power, and we don't see that happening," Long replied.

That Nixon Debriefing

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said he hoped to debrief former President Richard Nixon when he gets back from his trip to China. No one knows what Mr. Nixon will say, but this is how the debriefing may go. "Mr. President, what's going on in China now?" "Henry, I have it on highest authority that Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, whom you and President Ford met on your recent trip, was a member of the revisionist, imperialist, bourgeois clique that was trying to turn back the clock of Chairman Mao's Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution." "How do you know this?" "I saw it on a poster across from my hotel. It seems that Teng thought he could follow the capitalist-imperialist path of the ignoble traitors Liu Shao-chi and Lin Piao. But this running dog did not fool the masses." "That's very good, Mr. President, but did you get any feeling about who was in charge in China at the moment?" "Chairman Mao Tse-tung is still the beloved leader of the proletariat. He has designated Hua Kuo-feng as acting premier because Hua is a dedicated Marxist-Leninist of the anti-Soviet school who has devoted his life to the heroic struggle for Communist revolution and socialist construction." "Who told you this?" "Pat saw it on a wall poster when she visited a children's school outside of Peking." "What feeling did you get about their economy?" "Chairman Mao's Great Leap Forward continues in spite of efforts by feudal landlords to destroy the dictatorship of the proletariat. But the poison is being eradicated by the vigilance of the workers, the peasants and the soldiers." "That's very good, Mr. President, but did you get any feeling that there was some sort of power struggle going on in the country?" "I did hear of rightist winds blowing across the desert, trying to reverse the verdicts of Chairman Mao. But the masses, through the Central Committee, intend to deal with these capitalist-roaders as they have with the running dogs Liu Shao-chi and Lin Piao." "Did you hear any names mentioned as to who was opposing Mao?" "Confucius for one. I heard Confucius' writings were an example of the reactionary ideological weapons which the imperialists have used to achieve their goals of big power chauvinism." "You saw that on a poster?" "Chairman Mao personally told me that Confucius was the foremost peddler of degenerate capitalist notions."

Agency Tests Appeal

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, alarmed by the drop in mail use, is considering a nationwide advertising campaign urging people to write more letters. The ads would be "not unlike the telephone company's campaign for long-distance calling, the it's-the-next-best-thing-to-being-there theme," J. T. Ellington, a senior assistant postmaster general, said in an interview. An increase in long distance telephone calling has been one factor in the recent decline in mail usage. "In 1972 the average household was mailing 3.8 pieces of first class mail per week. In 1974 it was down to 3.2 and in a survey last fall it was 2.6 sent per household per week," Ellington said. The advertisements have been tested for more than six months in Atlanta, Minneapolis. (Continued on page 5)

To the editor:
Thursday, Feb. 26, my daughter and I heard shots being fired. We did not get excited until we heard a dog scream. Thinking a hunter had shot our dog by mistake, we ran out to our carport. We saw a medium-sized black dog crouching about 10 feet from our house. A man we did not know shot at him. The dog was looking right at me for help. The dog ran to within one foot of my carport. The man fired again directly toward my carport with me in the line of fire. My daughter was screaming and I was crying. I noticed two of my neighbors were in the yard. I asked one of them who the man was. He said "DOG CATCHER." Until that time, I thought we had a crazy man in the yard. The dog ran around the house and the man followed. I don't know if he shot again or not. He was dragging the dog when I next saw him. We were still crying and wanted to know what right the man had to be shooting all around our house. We called the Sheriff Department. They thought it was all right because it might have been a tranquilizing gun. Was it? We called the Pitt County Health Department and got a man on the phone who said he would check into it and call us back. We haven't heard from him. I did ask him what kind of guns were carried in the truck? He said, "BOTH KINDS." Is this the way we do away with unwanted animals in Pitt County? What kind of gun was he using? Did he have the right to put my life in danger? I do want to know—Isn't there a better way?
Shelby Braxton
Rt. 8, Greenville

Editor's note: Pitt County Environmental Health Director Willie Pate said the dog was shot with a 22 rifle after he escaped when the Rabies Control officer was attempting to place him in his truck. He said the officer had the permission of the dog's owner who had previously requested that he pick up the dog to kill the dog since he could not be apprehended any other way. He has a signed statement to this effect on file at the Health Department, Pate said.

INSIDE REPORT

Watch Castro In Africa

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The chilling prospect that Fidel Castro intends further use of his 12,000 Cuban troops in Angola to "free" South Africa-controlled Namibia is causing far more consternation inside President Ford's White House than Cuba's original Angolan intervention. Unlike Castro's quick Angolan triumph, a move into Namibia would confront South Africa's predominantly white army and threaten bloody racial warfare. To high officials in Washington, it is out of the question that any such Cuban adventure would go unchallenged. While the White House vows Castro will not be allowed to use military force again anywhere, the question is how to stop him. One possible answer under tentative discussion is an outright U. S. naval blockade of Cuba itself.

It was precisely this bleak prospect that led the President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to move against the pro-Soviet, Cuban-backed Angolan independence movement — an action vetoed by Congress. But if Congress balked at such limited aid, would it consent to substantial intervention (such as a naval blockade) in league with the white supremacist South African regime? Castro apparently is sure enough Congress will say "no" to risk overplaying his hand in Africa. Both congressional reluctance and Castroite boldness are buttressed by the fact a Cuban move to "free" Namibia would be done under cover of international legality, with Castro claiming United Nations support. Namibia (formerly Southwest Africa) is legally a UN trusteeship, though South Africa has never relinquished its long control over the huge, sparsely settled territory on its northern border. Accordingly, Cuban military operations in Namibia would be given a superficial sanctity, with or without specific UN action. The reasoning at high administration levels is that 12,000 Cuban troops were far more than was needed to pacify Angola. That raises the ominous thought that Angola only begins Communist Cuba's renewed pursuit of world revolution. "We will defend Angola and we will defend Africa," Castro said last December in a speech being sharply scrutinized here. "When we say defend, we mean it. When we say fight, we mean it. Let the South African racists and the Yankee imperialists know it." Realists in the Ford administration are belatedly believing Castro means exactly what he said.

Bayh's Tong War

While national liberal leaders talk of uniting behind one candidate to stop Jimmy Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, a bloody backstage struggle between the two top liberal hopefuls — Sen. Birch Bayh and Rep. Morris Udall — is underway in New York. The aggressor is Bayh, who after trailing Udall in New Hampshire and expecting to run behind again in Massachusetts needs a big win in New York April 6. Consequently, Bayh's campaign has launched what one neutral party pro calls a "long war" against Udall: challenging Udall's somewhat skimpy petitions in New York. With Udall filing delegate slates in only 23 of New York's 39 districts (compared to 38 for Bayh), Bayh hopes to eliminate him from another 9 or 10 because of faulty signatures. That would make Bayh the premier liberal challenger in New York despite losses in early primaries. This conflicts with the informal agreement over lunch at Washington's Federal City Club in Washington Feb. 11 among three influential liberal Democrats — Joseph Rauh, veteran liberal leader; Leon Shull, executive director of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), and Alan Baron, political adviser to Sen. George McGovern. They agreed the party's left should unite behind the clear winner between Udall and Bayh in New Hampshire (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

THE GENEROUS ACT
The great American scientist of the nineteenth century, Louis Agassiz, learned that the French scientist, Jean Cuvier, was preparing to publish the results of some experiments similar to his own. Since Cuvier was older and much better known than Agassiz, prior publication by the more famous scientist would render Agassiz's work useless. Then one day Agassiz got a letter from Cuvier in which the older scientist wrote, "I know your methods well, and since you as a younger man will be able to make better use of the results of my experiments than I can, I deem it no more than right to put my material at your disposal, hoping that you will be eminently successful in your efforts." It seems that when a person is supremely generous, as Cuvier was, all the power of the universe is suddenly marshaled behind him for moral triumph. We may be sure that God singles out people of this kind for his loving favor. —by Elisha Douglass

Savings Rate Remains High

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — He and she are called the American saver, for that has really been the focus of the species' interest. "Savings deposits at the nation's savings and loan associations broke all records on the books in January 1976," the United States League of Savings Associations reported this week. "Savings banks attracted record net deposit inflows in January," said the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, the other major factor in what is called the thrift industry. American saver, for that has really been the focus of the species' interest. "Savings deposits at the nation's savings and loan associations broke all records on the books in January 1976," the United States League of Savings Associations reported this week. "Savings banks attracted record net deposit inflows in January," said the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, the other major factor in what is called the thrift industry. Savings as a per cent of disposable income continued very high during recession of 1974 and 1975, a not unusual occurrence. Contrary to what some believe, people tend to save during recessions, spend during periods of greater confidence. While the long-term savings rate is around 6.5 per cent, the 1974 rate rose to 7.5 per cent and rose to 8.3 per cent last year, reaching the almost unprecedented level of 9.9 per cent in the second quarter. But now, while the economy recovers, the savings rate remains high, perhaps even slightly higher in the first quarter of the year than in the final three months of 1975. The first month of any year is likely to be a poor one for savings, since a good many Christmas bills, for one thing, must be paid off. Not so this year. Savings and loan associations took in $5.3 billion, the greatest one-month inflow in its history. While a high savings rate suggests that consumers still haven't regained their confidence or faith in the future of the recovery, most economists view the situation as encouraging. The thrift industry, for example, is the main supplier of funds to the housing market. A strong housing market means more vigorous sales for furniture and appliance manufacturers and dozens of other industries. In fact, it is almost axiomatic that no recovery is solidly based unless the huge construction industry participates. The presence of all those lendable funds, says the economists, now almost assures that participation. The worst area of the housing industry has been in multifamily units. Because of high interest rates and limitations on the amounts of rent people are able to afford, such units are said to be unprofitable. Fortunately, however, one part problem is improving — interest rates, if perhaps temporarily, are falling.

Strike Paralyzes UN European Headquarters

By HANNS NEUERBOURG
Associated Press Writer
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The clocks have stopped, mail is piling up by the ton, elevators and computers are idled and there is no heat in the offices or toilet paper in the bathrooms.

The 30-nation Geneva disarmament conference has been forced to cancel its meetings, and the 32-nation U.N. Commission on Human Rights has moved to emergency rooms outside the U.N. complex.

A week-old general strike, unprecedented in the history of the United Nations, has effectively paralyzed work at the European U.N. headquarters in the mile-long Palace of Nations.

"We remain operational on an emergency basis," said a Dutch official at the office of the U.N. high commissioner for refugees. "And we even managed to get one or two manual typewriters. But we have to collect urgent cables downtown because there is no power for our Telex machines. And each of us has to walk up 10 flights several times a day, enough to give you a heart failure. It is a pain in the neck."

"Everybody is fed up with it," agreed a British member of the multinational committee that organized the strike.

The strike was called for about 2,000 employees in the "general services" category, the lowest income bracket in the U.N. hierarchy, which includes secretaries, cleaners, gardeners and other operational staff. They make up about two-thirds of the headquarters staff in Geneva, the others being senior administrative officials, economic analysts, translators and interpreters.

Earning between $800 and $1,600 monthly, the strikers seek retroactive pay adjustments effective last Aug. 1. They argue that the U.N. administration failed to honor its commitment to base the adjustments on an impartial living cost survey supplied every five years by a private Geneva research institute.

The study suggests that the average pay of general service employees now is almost 20 per cent below that of salaries paid for comparable jobs in Geneva. The Swiss city, according to a U.N. survey made last year has a cost of living index that is 33 per cent above New York's.

The U.N. administration argues the study is faulty and demands a new analysis before fixing salary scales. Officials estimate if the study is accepted as a base, hikes in salaries and family allowances would boost personnel costs for the U.N. in Geneva by about $3 million.

St. Paul and Columbus, Ohio. In addition to television, magazines and newspapers, the Postal Service would use its own medium, the mails, to encourage letter writing.

"What we are attempting to find out in these test markets is if habits relating to personal correspondence can be influenced through the use of advertising," Ellington said.
The goal of the campaign would be a 5 per cent increase in personal correspondence. "After more than six months in the test markets we have had some pretty good indications that we are achieving this result," he said.

Such a result on a national scale would bring an additional $150 million into the financially troubled Postal Service annually, he said.

The agency now is continuing its tests to see if the 5 per cent increase could also be expected under the new 13-cent letter rate.

The advertising campaign to encourage letter writing would be a new technique for the Postal Service. Previously it has advertised only for philatelic products and for service-connected messages, such as encouragements for people to tell the Postal Service when they are moving to a new address.

and Massachusetts. That now seems likely to be Udall, but the message is definitely not accepted by Bayh or his New York fighters.

A footnote: Gov. George Wallace's sloppy petitions, filed in 21 New York districts, may be thrown out on a wholesale basis. If so, Wallace will step up contentions that the party hierarchy is out to get him.

Passman's Threat
A House subcommittee's highly unusual rejection of an extra half-billion dollars in military and economic aid to Israel resulted from a private threat by tough old Rep. Otto Passman of Louisiana.

Passman, longtime chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign aid, is a conservative Democrat who describes himself as "very pro-Israel." Nevertheless, he warned subcommittee members that if Israeli aid were raised he would insist on equivalent boosts for Egypt, Syria and other Arab nations.
He got private backing from Secretary of State Kissinger, who informed the subcommittee through Passman that special treatment for Israel would harm President Ford's diplomacy in the Middle East. That marked a switch from Kissinger's earlier approval of the $500 million extra fund for Israel. Under strong political pressure, Kissinger had told Sen. Hubert Humphrey he would not object to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee authorizing the extra amount.

Look To The Eel Market

By DIXIE BERG

There's a new crop growing in eastern North Carolina that would make most old-time hog-and-tobacco farmers shake their heads.

They'd chuckle and say anybody who'd try to raise such a thing as eels must be touched in the head.

But it could turn out that farming eels won't be such a joke in years to come. Eels, you see, are a favorite dish among many Europeans and Asians.

A fellow in eastern North Carolina who could supply the eel demand in foreign countries just might make some money, just like those Tarheel farmers who sell their tobacco overseas. And that same North Carolina eel farmer could probably also add to his bank account from sales to sport fishermen who are hungry for good bait like young eels.

Already, fishermen who have caught and sold wild eels for European export have earned as much as 55 cents per pound for their catch. Eastern North Carolina's mild climate and its abundance of wild eels appear to make it favorable for profitable eel farming.

It's too early to say that eel farming has progressed to an art. But a team of University of North Carolina Sea Grant researchers are working out the kinks on a small eel farm outside of New Bern. One of their goals is to learn the tricks of growing eels from the size of a pencil lead and a weight of about 1-4,000 pound of nearly one-half pound. Another goal is to pave the way and provide the know-how for people interested in getting into the eel farming business.

Already the researchers, Walt Jones, John Foster and Dr. Bill Rickards of North Carolina State University, have put two years work into coming up with a rapid-growth diet for eels, controlling diseases and building tanks and ponds where captured eels are expected to do nothing but eat and grow. At their eel farm, located on land loaned to the project by Weyerhaeuser Co., the researchers have the capability of growing more than 300,000 eels.

Jones, Foster and Rickards stock their growing tanks and ponds with tiny, transparent "glass eels" caught from coastal streams in late winter and early spring. The young eels, or elvers, are first held in indoor tanks while they adapt to confined quarters and a specially prepared high protein diet.

After about 40 days they are put in one of four larger outdoor ponds. With special care and feeding, the eels should grow to one-quarter to one-half pound in 14-16 months, the researchers say.

To help pave the way for others, the researchers have opened the eel farm to visitors. They will provide information on a variety of subjects ranging from the biology of the American eel to harvesting elvers and growing them to marketable size. For more information on eel farming, write to Sea Grant, Box 5001, Raleigh, N. C. 27607.

Lighthouse Life Bores The Wife

OLD SAYBROOK, Conn. (AP) — Stranded at the very tip of solid ground, the lighthousekeeper's wife tells a tale of loneliness, boredom and longing for spring.

"Everything is bleak," says Violet Horoschak of her winter on Lynde Point.

What passes for normal human activity is an abnormality for her in a two-family house tucked next to the 1860 lighthouse where her husband works.

With few visitors, she passes long hours reading books. And with someone required to be home all the time to answer the telephone, the Horoschaks can't go out with the Bowdlers, who live in the other half of the modern house.

"It's so boring, there's nothing to do. It's a place to get fat, eat, lie around and watch TV. Even my dog's gained weight."

The mailman doesn't come to the lighthouse, five miles from the center of town, next to the borough of Fenwick. The school bus stops a mile away.

All the summer homes are boarded up. Only two other families stay all winter, the only sign of human life for miles.

"The ice smashing on the side of the rocks is about the only noise besides the seagulls," says Mrs. Horoschak.

Her reading taste runs to mysteries, which come in handy on such occasions as the time high water washed out the road to town for three days last year and kept the Horoschaks prisoners in their home.

She lives with her husband, Coast Guard Boatswain IC Robert Horoschak and their son. Sharing the house are George Bowdler, also in the Coast Guard, his wife and their three children.

The families take turns keeping up the lighthouse and answering the phone.

Life becomes livelier in the summer when the Horoschaks have parties with their friends in town. But winter visits from friends are rare.

"It's so cold, a lot of people don't like to make a special trip in the winter," she says.

Moe Bandy Is Another Who Struggled Up

By BILL EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —

Three years ago, Moe Bandy was a Texas sheet metal worker and in heavy debt because of a sideline country music career.

Today he's got a top five hit, "Hank Williams, You Wrote My Life," and people recognize him on the street.

"I'm still in a daze," he confesses. Bandy, 32, first hit the national charts in 1973 with "I Just Started Hatin' Cheatin' Songs Today." Since then, he's had five other singles and two albums in the top 10.

"Success hasn't changed me," Bandy said in an interview in a conference room at his booking agent's. "People tell me I don't act like a star. I don't know what a star would act like. If you don't act like yourself, the public will see it before anybody else."

"I still live in the same house, but we've remodeled, and I drive a better car than I used to. All my friends are construction workers. They are full of questions, and some don't believe what I'm doing—they just think I've got a record that's being played locally only."

"I miss my friends, but not the job. I go out to the jobs and see the guys I used to work with. We are still friends — the only thing is that I'm out of town a lot."

to listen to some of his tapes. The upshot was that Baker became his producer.

"I was in debt a bundle," Bandy recalled. "I had borrowed money to record some songs that were being played locally only. I was ready to quit singing but something deep inside kept telling me to keep going."

He repaid the debt about eight months ago.

He said "Hank Williams, You Wrote My Life" has been successful for several reasons.

"There are a lot of Hank Williams fans; he'll be hot forever. It tells a good story and mentions his songs. It's well written, and has a good ending."

He said Williams would love it. "It's complimentary." He hasn't heard from Hank Williams Jr. about it, but read where the famous son praised it.

Bandy, according to a press release from his record company, "is fast coming to be thought of as the undisputed king of heart-broken, honky-tonk and a champion of the working man."

"The songs I sing have a lot to do with hard-livin' people," he acknowledged. "They get off work, go to a bar, have a beer and listen to the jukebox. It knocks me out when people say, 'Hey, that sounds like a Moe Bandy song.'"

Bandy, a native of Meridian, Miss., was a sheet metal worker for 10 years in San Antonio until a chance meeting with his current manager, Ray Baker, led to the big time.

Friends told him Baker was in town, and he was able to reach Baker and persuade him

Egypt Seemingly Destined To Be Big Oil Producer

HOPE FOR EGYPT—One of the many oil rigs now dotting the Suez Gulf, where discoveries have shown Egypt might become a major petroleum producer. (UPI Photo)

By MICHAEL S. BARRETT
CAIRO (UPI) — Oilmen working the big rigs in the Suez Gulf have brought in three gushers this year, leaving little doubt among experts that Egypt is destined to become a major petroleum producer.

"You'll be seeing a lot of activity this year," a U.S. oil expert predicted. "Already we've seen some in the Gulf, but this is only the tip of the iceberg."

AAMA Meet Slated Thursday

The American Association of Medical Assistants meeting will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Educational Building behind Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The guest speaker will be Marvin Blount, Greenville attorney. Interested persons are invited to attend.

To an overpopulated country still embedded in war, debt-ridden to a tune of $10 billion and suffering a balance of payments deficit of nearly $4.5 billion, this can be nothing but good news.

The country currently produces 320,000 barrels of crude a day — 63 per cent more than a year ago, thanks mainly to the reacquisition of the lucrative Sinai fields occupied for eight years by Israel.

Oil Minister Ahmed Ezzedin Hilal, one of the more cautious prognosticators, expects a daily yield of one million barrels by 1980. At today's prices, that would be worth about $4 billion a year.

"My American, English, French friends say I am conservative," Hilal said in an interview, "but they only say that because of their discoveries in January ... Let us see what we have in 1976 and then maybe we can change the estimate."

The key to success, Egyptian officials and Western experts agree, lies in the exploratory drilling work now being carried out by two dozen foreign oil concerns, 13 of them American.

"The fact that we can sign 30 agreements in a period of two years is miraculous by any standards," said Selim Rizkhalah, undersecretary of oil.

The agreement process is made as simple as possible, according to Ibrahim Radwan, a director of the Egyptian General Petroleum Corp. (AGPC) and architect of the plan.

Companies are invited to bid for the right to explore in selected areas of the country, which has been divided into 100-square-kilometer blocks, he said. The chosen firm agrees to spend so many million of dollars to look for oil over a certain period of time and pays the government a "signature bonus," usually several million dollars, for this right.

If a strike is made and it brings in at least 2,000 barrels a day — 3,000 if the level is deeper than 4,000 meters (12,000 feet) — a company is formed between the finding firm and the EGPC. For the first five years, the foreign side takes a daily cut of up to 40 per cent to recover costs and the rest is split 20 per cent for the company and 80 for EGPC.

"This means then," Radwan explained, "that a company like Mobil or Shell will get 40 per cent of production for cost recovery, plus one-fifth of the remaining 60 per cent, or 12 per cent of the whole. This gives the company a 52 per cent stake in the well."

The companies appear to like the arrangement and have gone all out to produce oil from Egypt's soil or offshore beds.

So far the big winner has been Amoco (American Oil Co., a division of Standard Oil of Indiana). In January it produced not only Egypt's biggest well to date but one of the largest ever, yielding up to 30,000 barrels (each 42 U.S. gallons) a day, south of the Suez Gulf's Morgan Field.

About the same time, Amoco drilled in the Ramadan Field — near where a Japanese firm had come up dry three years before — and scored some highgrade crude at a daily rate of 20,000 barrels.

A third find in the area, credited to the West German Deminex International company, produced 3,700 barrels.

Hilal believes the Gulf lies over an international oil formation of staggering proportions.

"Really, the discoveries are beautiful," he said, "but we had to go deep."

Rigs must drill to 12,000 to 15,000 feet to get at the oilbearing layer, requiring sophisticated and expensive equipment and special expertise, he said.

The wells along the coast of Sinai, which produced half of Egypt's oil needs before they were captured in 1967 by Israel which in turn extracted 60 per cent of its own requirements before giving them back late last year, also hold future promise, Hilal said.

"We have great hopes, really, to go deeper, as we did in Ramadan, because this Bayeyeem (biggest field of Abu Rudeis) is still shallow, 5,000 to 7,000 feet deep, and holds much promise further down."

Experts say it is too early to tell whether Egypt will soon join her oil-rich Arab brothers like Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the Gulf States as a major petroleum exporter. But the first step in that direction took place Feb. 12 when Egypt agreed to ship Greece 400,000 tons (2.66 million barrels) of oil a year for $30 million.

Meat Shortage In Communist Poland

By GEORGE BROSZKI
WARSAW (AP) — Long queues in Poland's meat shops have recently become a permanent feature in this Communist country.

Meat shortages have occurred here from time to time, particularly in years plagued by poor harvest. Two such bad harvests in 1974 and 1975 caused the present situation.

A bad grain harvest is inevitably followed by a fall in cattle and livestock breeding, which in turn cuts down market supplies. Yet, even from a sometimes meagre stock of meat and its products, some must be exported to assure the inflow of much needed hard currency.

Foodstuffs exports bring Poland annually about five per cent of her total foreign trade income — about $42.5 million.

Of course, no one is starving in this country and there is enough food on the market to meet the growing demand. The problem begins and ends with meat, particularly with better quality and variety of the product.

You queue up for ham or choice fillet, but in Poland's shops you get Spanish oranges, Colombian bananas, French olive oil, Dutch chocolate, Brazil nuts or Malaysian shrimp.

You queue up for sirloin or good veal but you have an abundant variety of cheese, eggs, choice butter, excellent chicken. There are also no problems with fruit and vegetables sold in state shops and at open, private markets.

The main problem is meat and its shortage causes griping, dissatisfaction and grumbling among the people. Meat prices have been kept frozen since 1970, while the average monthly wage in Poland went up from 2,200 to 3,500 zlotys ($U.S.110 to 175). Most families turn their higher incomes principally to meat purchases.

And annual meat consumption per head of population has dramatically risen over the years.

Meanwhile, the government is seeking various ways to increase food production. A recent decree radically lowered taxation of private foodstuffs enterprises such as bakers, butchers or fishermen. They were encouraged to open new workshops and their investments will be tax exempt.

Another measure was to introduce "combined dinners" in most state-owned restaurants. A customer is offered four to seven dinner menus only. Poles eat dinner at midday.

A restaurant supervisor said: "This way we do not need such a variety of meat as for normal service. Our menu formerly had 15 to 20 meat courses. Now we do with five."

Libraries And Museums Robbed

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's museums and libraries are being ripped off.

James Burghardt, head librarian of the Multnomah County Library, estimates $50,000 worth of books and magazines disappear annually.

The Oregon Museum of Science and Industry spends nearly $14,000 a year on security and insurance, but still loses a steady stream of exhibits.

Hong Kong Police Apply Television Show Plan

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong's police department has adopted a program similar to that of Scotland Yard's "Police Five" and says one of its main benefits is better police-community relations.

Known as the "Junior Police Call," the program was adopted about a year ago and is directed by Chief Inspector Ko Po, better known as "Uncle Charlie" to the youngsters.

Numbering well over 120,000, the membership helps the police by using their eyes and ears — not their strength — solve crimes within the city.

The 10-minute weekly television program teaches the viewers about their government and tells them about situations in which they can help. For seniors, there is another program called "Police Call" in which a senior police officer tells the viewers about the major crimes committed during the week and gives a description of the suspects. The programs are both in English and Chinese.

The JPC Club is designed to keep the effects of the television show going throughout the week. Youngsters, known as the "Junior Police Call," the program was adopted about a year ago and is directed by Chief Inspector Ko Po, better known as "Uncle Charlie" to the youngsters.

Recruits Lined Up; Not His

SLOUGH, England, Feb. 19 (UPI) — Sgt. Maj. Denis Mance of the Royal Horse Artillery beamed when he saw the line of men outside his army recruiting office here, until they started asking how they could enlist in the mercenaries for Angola.

"We were amazed when they asked for information on enlisting for Angola," said Mance. "Most of them were bored with life and thought it was a good way to make money."

ranging in age from 8 to 17, are told not to disrupt their normal activities but to be observant while they are at schools or playing.

"I don't tell the kids to join the police force when they grow up," Ko said. "In fact, I tell them not to. I tell them that their most important job is to be decent citizens and to know their responsibilities to the community."

"Before the JPC was started," Ko said, "kids often thought of the police as bad guys. Now, we get kids walking into police stations to talk to us, sometimes just to say hello."

"They are friends of the police and they work with us. Some very big cases have broken because a JPC member was being observant."

The JPC Club has four basic rules: only use your eyes and ears, don't do anything silly, consult your parents and be a good student. These tenets have brought support from government departments, the education department, community leaders and parents of the members.

"The members and their parents know I'm available for their problems," Ko said. "Often I've had families come in to see me when their child wants to drop out of school. We talk, and so far I've been able to convince them all to go back. The youngsters know I care, the parents know I care, so it's a good situation."

When a JPC member makes a discovery or sees something possibly criminal, the club's advice is to first go to his parents with the information and then together they can decide what action to take. If the youngster has seen a situation in which the parents do not want him involved, then the parents usually make the calls, Ko said.

"We've had a lot of interest expressed by other countries

(in southeast Asia)," Ko said. "They have asked us for information and we've sent our outline and a list of activities, but so far we're the only one operating (in southeast Asia)."

Taxidermist Mounts Jumbo

LONDON, Feb. 19 (UPI) — Taxidermist Arthur Manning has just completed a jumbo-sized job that began eight months ago when a half-ton parcel arrived from Johannesburg, South Africa, with the carefully salted hide of a 40-year-old African bull elephant.

With jumbo back to jungle size and standing 12 feet at the shoulder Manning is arranging for the roof to be lifted off his Wood Green, London, workshop to have it winched out for the drive to Edinburgh to appear in the Royal Scottish Museum.

Built Railroad In Front Yard

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Jack Bennett built his own railroad in his front yard.

After almost six months work, Bennett recently drove a golden spike that joined the ends of his Missouri Flat & Applegate Valley Railroad. It covers 10 acres of his 95 acre farm. He has two engines six passenger cars, and nearly a mile of track. He purchased his "rolling" stock from two amusement parks that were going out of business.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed today, apparently hesitating over signs of increased tension in southern Africa.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off a fraction in the early going, while gainers took a slight lead over losers in the over-all count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

In Africa, Mozambique closed its border with Rhodesia and said a "state of war" existed between the two nations.

Analysts noted that unsettled political and diplomatic conditions in any part of the world can often have a negative psychological impact on the stock market.

(Planning and Management), $15,000 for the planning staff, $50,000 for aerial topographical mapping project, $30,000 for advance appraisals for S. Evans Redevelopment Project; (Administration), $40,000; and an unprogrammed balance of $45,000.

The Council emphasized that the figures are preliminary and could be changed or revised prior to adoption of the final program by the board.
Under the Housing Assistance Plan, which is part of the Community Development application, preliminary figures indicate that during the program year some 472 families needing housing assistance will be helped.

The application will propose that assistance be in the area of 50 additional units of Section 8 housing for the elderly; 75 units of substantial rehabilitation under Section 8, (or these 75 units could be used for new construction); 50 units for rehabilitation of existing units;
117 units for new housing project on Evans Street; 60 units under Community Development rehabilitation; 30 units of urban renewal rehabilitation in Southside; 40 units of Section 235 housing; and 50 units of elderly housing already planned for this year.

Under Section 8 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, the private market would hopefully be involved in the program. Section 235 would also involve private ownership.

Hails Win By Jackson

RALEIGH (AP) — Jim Ramsey of Roxboro, North Carolina campaign chairman for Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Henry Jackson, said Tuesday night he believes the Washington senator's primary victory in Massachusetts was "a great victory for America."

Ramsey, former North Carolina House speaker, told The Associated Press, "The issues he discussed in Massachusetts are the issues of middle America, and issues that North Carolinians understand."

Ramsey added, "They are winning issues for the voters of this nation. Scoop Jackson wants more jobs to give our economy a solid boost. He's for reforming welfare programs so that work is again emphasized."

"He's a candidate who is saying the same thing in North Carolina that he said in Massachusetts, Florida and New York. And I think this expresses his candor and truthfulness to the people of this country."

Ramsey said he is "delighted that Scoop Jackson offered himself in the North Carolina preference primary to give the people of this state the opportunity to vote for the next president of the United States."

Blizzard's Anniversary

BIG SNOW . . . yesterday's balmy temperatures are in sharp contrast to the cold and 16 inch snow which gripped the area on March 2, 1967. This was the scene at the Standard Filling Station on Main Street in Farmville 49 years ago today.

The high temperatures in the Pitt County area in the past few days is the complete opposite weather conditions of 49 years ago when the Greenville area received a blizzard snowstorm registering 16 inches of snow.

Yesterday's high temperature in Greenville was 80 degrees and the low temperature was 54 degrees according to the Greenville Utilities department. Today's 8 a.m. temperature registered 60 degrees and the river level was 1.8 feet.

March 3, 1927 Greenville had one of the deepest snows in history to this area. Temperatures registered in the low 20's throughout the day and night. The storm caused several ships to be stranded off the North Carolina coast including one passenger liner, The City of St. Louis, which was carrying 25 passengers and 75 crew members. The snow remained in the area for several days and the temperatures remained sub-freezing.

Supt. J. L. Keeter, who presented the plan, the Title I program plans to utilize $950,000 in the 1976-77 school year for constructing and assisting reading labs, tutorial programs, and summer school lag programs.

The board voted against plans to consider the use of certain weekly newspapers, like the Enquirer and Midnight to be placed in the high school reading labs.

Mrs. Kathryn Lewis, Pupil Personnel Director, presented copies of the completed self-studies for the individual schools and the central office and gave a report on preparations for the Southern Association Accreditation Visitation March 16.

The board passed both new appropriations in the sum of $6,187.85 and an update on a ROTC bond required by the Department of the Army, presented by the School Finance Officer, Dan Thomas.

Associate Supt. Tom Craft reported on construction progress in the county. Craft also reported that 50 percent of monies applied for through Title IV-B would be used to support the library program and counseling at H.B. Sugg School.

The board accepted a request by the Ayden Advisory Council for expenditures of $10,000 for paving and curbing, and $5,000 for curtains and furniture for the lunchroom at Ayden Grammar School with the funds to be taken from the Ayden escrow account.
Assoc. Supt. Craft was appointed to study the possibility of regulating temperature ranges in the schools giving consideration to possibly having an energy supervisor in each school. The study was prompted by Craft's report that the county would have a projected $8,000 deficit at the end of this school year because of a 30 percent increase in the utility bills this year in the schools. The county has through January paid $111,000 for utilities this year and the projected total bill for the fiscal year is $231,000.

The medical school official said that this week's unofficial "visit is not all negative at all. It had a lot of very positive returns. It told us how far along we had really come and reinforced our own judgment as to our progress."

"From this standpoint the visit was positive and supportive. They were very high in their praise for the administrative job that had been done."

Dr. Laupus said in his opinion the staff visit Monday and Tuesday "will strengthen us internally in terms of the common goal in which we are all engaged in reaching. And," he emphasized, "we will continue to move on the same kind of day-to-day progressive steps that we have been taking for many, many months."

Officials have, in the past, expressed the hope that the first class of students for the four-year program could be admitted in September. In order for that to occur, the LCME would have to grant provisional accreditation to the ECU program at its June meeting.

In the past, Dr. Laupus has said that first-year medical students could begin their studies anywhere from September to mid-December 1976 and still be able to complete work so they could move on into the second year studies in September, 1977 on schedule.

Two Death Row Inmates Fight

RALEIGH (AP)—Central Prison guards fired tear gas Tuesday to break up a fight involving two death row inmates as 38 others milled around the inmate dining hall, prison authorities reported.

Deputy Warden Nathan A. Rice said Tamarus Swift of Goldsboro, under death sentence for first degree murder, was stabbed in a fight with another inmate. Prison authorities declined to identify him pending investigation of the incident.

Swift was reported in satisfactory condition in the prison hospital where he was being treated for stab wounds in the chest. Rice said Swift was stabbed with a homemade weapon.

He said guards fired tear gas "to bring the situation under control."

Seek Identity Of Bodies In Mass Murder

COLUMBIA, N.C. (AP) — At least four of the five persons whose bodies were unearthed Tuesday in this rural, peninsula county had been bludgeoned to death before they were set afire, state medical officials said today.

However, other details of the grisly incident remained locked in the pine forests where the bodies of two women and three boys were uncovered.

Ronald Brickhouse, Tyrrell County forestry agent, discovered the smoldering bodies while investigating a brush fire which authorities said apparently spread from the burning bodies.

Dr. Page Hudson, state medical examiner, said the bodies were those of a woman in her 60s, one in her 20s and three boys aged 6 to 15 years.

He said identification "may take a few hours or a few days."

The bodies were sent to Hudson's office in Chapel Hill for examination.
"The assailant or assailants apparently tried to obscure the matter by burning the bodies," Hudson said. "This resulted in only superficial burns which will not handicap our investigation."

Tyrrell County Sheriff Royce Rhodes said he did not think the victims were from his county, which has some 4,000 residents. "I believe I'd have recognized them if they were from around here," he said.

Rhodes said the boys were clad in pajamas, the younger woman in dungarees and a

Chargers, Rams Hold On To Get Wins

Terps See No Home Advantage

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer
COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Coach LEFTY Driesell of Maryland sees no advantage for the 9th ranked Terps even though the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament is being played at the Capital Centre in nearby Landover, Md.

Maryland has played five regular season games at the Capital Centre during the past three years, but Driesell said that shouldn't help the Terps anymore than the Greensboro Coliseum helped North Carolina teams in past tournaments.

"Now if we were playing in our own Cole Field House, where we practice every day," he added, "that would be different."

Asked at a news conference Tuesday if the Terps had practiced at the Capital Centre, Driesell rolled his eyes and cracked: "We did slip over there a little bit, when there was something going on at Cole and we couldn't practice."

Driesell also figures the capacity crowds of 19,500 for the three tournament sessions, starting with a tripleheader Thursday afternoon, aren't likely to be pro-Maryland unless the Terps reach the finals.

Each of the seven ACC schools was allotted 2,500 tickets for the tournament, and it's possible that those fans backing teams which lose on Thursday or Friday could sell to Maryland supporters. But, Driesell's not too sure about that, either.

"People coming up here from North Carolina have never been to a big city before," joked Driesell. "They might want to stay around and have some good food, see some good shows, and they could all root against us anyway."

"They all stick together like flies on rice," added Driesell, who prior to taking over at Maryland coached at Davidson in North Carolina. "No, make that flies on grits."

Driesell, a native of Norfolk, Va., with a distinct southern accent, said when he arrived at Maryland, "I wore wide ties and saddle shoes." Although the crowds of 19,500 will be the largest ever to watch the ACC tournament, the total attendance record won't be topped because there will be only three sessions instead of the usual four.

Marvin "Skeeter" Francis, the ACC information director who is running the tournament, said a tripleheader was scheduled for Thursday instead of day-night sessions because the fans were coming from a wider area than they do in North Carolina.

This is the only time the ACC tournament has been played outside the state of North Carolina, but it hasn't dimmed ticket requests. Those from Clemson fans, who must travel the furthest distance, are up 30 per cent over any previous year.

With tickets priced at $30 for the three sessions, Francis said a record of about $585,000 is expected from ticket sales and another $50,000 from radio and television rights.

Francis said he had handled a record number of media requests for the tournament, adding: "I never realized there were so many radio stations up here. There must be one on every corner."

Friday night's two semifinal games will be televised to New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, in addition to the regular ACC network. The title game Saturday night will be televised nationally.

North Carolina, the regular season champion with an 11-1 record, drew a bye in Thursday's first round.

Maryland, seeded No. 2, will play Duke in the 1 p.m. opener, followed by N.C. State against Virginia, and Wake Forest against Clemson.

Unless it is Clemson, which has been placed on probation by the NCAA for three years because of recruiting violations, the tournament winner will automatically qualify for the upcoming NCAA playoffs. North Carolina, however, is expected to get a bid regardless of how the Tar Heels do in the tournament.

No Slump For These Sophs

By The Associated Press
Sophomore slump? Don't tell that to Brian Winters or Phil Smith. The two 6-foot-4 backcourtmen are having too much fun in their second year in the National Basketball Association.

Winters, one of four players obtained by Milwaukee in the deal which sent Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to Los Angeles, scored 12 of his 28 points in overtime including the winning basket with three seconds left to give the Bucks a 111-109 victory over the New Orleans Jazz Tuesday night.

Smith, meanwhile, scored 23 points in the second half to lead Golden State past Buffalo 100-93. He hit five consecutive baskets in the fourth quarter to give the Warriors the lead for good.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Seattle 109, New York 105; Washington 128, Philadelphia 111; Kansas City 127, Detroit 113, and Portland 116, Chicago 105.

Winters sent Milwaukee's game into overtime with a basket with 37 seconds left, then gave the Bucks a 109-108 lead by scoring with 22 seconds to go in the extra session.

Winters is averaging 17.9 points per game for Milwaukee, which leads the Midwest Division by 2½ games over Detroit. Smith is scoring at a 19.5 clip for the Warriors, and is one of the big reasons Golden State has made the Pacific Division a runaway.

Golden State trailed 79-77 when Smith went to work, reeling off 10 straight points to help the Warriors take command. He had played just six minutes in the first half because of foul trouble.

Sonics 109, Knicks 105
Seattle beat the Knicks from the free throw line, converting 20 of 21 tries in the second half. A 10-2 spurt late in the fourth quarter helped the Sonics pull away.

Bullets 128, 76ers 111
Elvin Hayes scored 30 points, Phil Chenier 26 and Dave Bing 25 — plus a season-high 16 assists — to carry Washington to its 10th victory in the last 12 games.

Kings 127, Pistons 113
Nate Archibald scored 30 points and handed out 13 assists to help Kansas City climb back into the thick of the Midwest Division scramble, just two games back of second-place Detroit and 4½ back of Milwaukee.

Brickels Going?

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—Davidson College hopes to decide within three weeks whether to retain basketball coach Bo Brickels, whose teams have a 12-40 record in his two years.

The Wildcats had a 5-21 record this season, the most losses in their history. Athletic Director Thom Cartmill said Tuesday that college administrators hope to decide Brickel's fate by March 28. That's the date of the national basketball coaches' convention in Philadelphia, in conjunction with the NCAA tournament.

FARMVILLE — Just because you are a higher seeded team in a post-season tournament does not mean you will have an easy row to hoe by any means.

And three teams found that out last night in the second round of the first round of the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament in Farmville. Fourth seeded Ayden-Grifton struggled to a 61-59 win over fifth seeded North Lenoir; the second seeded North Lenoir girls had to rally to overcome Greene Central's girls, 53-37, and Greene Central's number two boys scrapped past seventh place Southern Nash, 59-56, in overtime.

Tonight's card will feature Conley's boys facing Farmville Central at 5:30, and North Pitt's girls taking on Ayden-Grifton at 7:00 p.m. in the completion of the first round. North Pitt's boys team will play Ayden-Grifton in the first semi-final round with the winner moving into Friday night's final.

Ayden-Grifton's defense came through in the fourth period forcing six turnovers and sparking the offense to erase a nine-point difference and eventually win the game.

A-G took the opening basket but North Lenoir got a stable lead when Jimmy Wynne put in a rebound for a 4-3 North Lenoir lead. Ogdin Braxton tied it at the end of the frame with a three-point play.

Wynn put the Hawks up by two starting the second period but North Lenoir could not keep the lead until James Lee hit for a 15-14 lead. North Lenoir outscored A-G, 10-8, in the last four minutes of the period for a 25-20 halftime lead.

The Chargers could not catch up in the third quarter scoring just as many as the Hawks, 14. But they began to turn things around in the last quarter as they fought back to go ahead.

Trailing 45-36, Willie Forbes hit a jumper and Vern Davenport scored from the corner after two defensive steals cutting the margin to five, 45-40. Frankie Dail scored twice around a bucket by Forbes, giving A-G a 46-45 lead with 5:02 left.

The lead changed hands six times in the next three minutes until Forbes sank a free throw and a field goal with 2:57 left, 53-51. Tommy Pope tied the game with a pair of free shots but Braxton put the Chargers back up by two, 55-53, on a lay-up.

Pope scored on a fast break giving North Lenoir its last lead with 1:11 left. Braxton's two free throws after Wynne's fifth foul put A-G ahead for good, 57-56. Forbes scored on a steal with 28 seconds left and Davenport's free shots at :07 tied it.

Roger Jones hit the final Hawk bucket as time ran out.

Forbes led the Chargers with 19, all in the second half. Dail scored 16. Wynn led the Hawks with 19, Jones had 13 and Lee 10.

A-G's Bob Murphrey said the difference was in the defense. "The defense got the offense going," he said. "We were standing around and the defense pushed the offense. North Lenoir got off to a bad start but we were slower. We should have been up."

Greene Central's girls played an amazing two-and-a-half quarters against North Lenoir. Amazing in that the Ewes finished in a tie for seventh place and for over half the game, they had the Lady Hawks sweating.

But failure to hit the boards and take good shots finally took its toll on the Ewes as North Lenoir outrebounded GC 23-17 in the second half, forced seven turnovers and scored almost at will and pulled away to a 14-point lead in the fourth period.

Greene Central scored the first three buckets of the game and led at the end of the first period, 8-5. But the Ewes fell behind in the second frame by not hitting the boards. North Lenoir caught up on Nelda Cox's bucket with 5:47 left, 11-10, and moved out to a 16-10 lead.

Greene Central rallied to go ahead, 17-16 and the lead switched hands until Vanessa Hooker hit with two seconds left to tie it at halftime, 21-21.

The Ewes took a 25-22 lead with 6:04 left in the third quarter but two fast breaks by Beverly Faison started a North Lenoir rally that sent the Lady Hawks to a 36-28 lead going into the final period.

North Lenoir outscored Greene Central 16-9 in the final period to wrap it up.

Faison led the Lady Hawks with 18 and Vickie Vale scored 17. Marolyn Yelverton scored 12 and Teresa Whitley 10 for the Ewes.

Two buckets by Walter Williams near the end of the first period of the third game gave Southern Nash a 9-6 lead and Jeff Strickland added a bucket for an 11-6 lead at the end of the period over Greene Central's boys.

The Rams came back in the second stanza and went ahead, 12-11, on two free throws by Ray Hill. Six straight points by Nelson Edwards gave the Rams a 20-11 lead and at halftime, the Rams were up by 10, 26-16.

Southern Nash knocked three points off the lead in the third period trailing by seven, 40-33, going into the final quarter.

In the first 4:45 of the fourth period, the Firebirds outshot Greene Central, 13-6, tying the game at 46-46 with 3:15 left. Ronnie Taylor sank two free shots giving the 'Birds the lead and after Greene Central got it back on a three-point play, Kenneth Morgan scored to put the Firebirds out by 50-49.

Marvin Rouse drew a foul with :08 left but made just the first of the one-and-one tying the game, 50-50.

The Rams won the game on free throws making three of five attempts in the overtime. Southern Nash tied the game once more, 52-52, but a three point play by Melvin Briggs and a bucket by Marvin Rouse gave the Rams their winning points.

Edwards led the Rams with 22 and Rouse added 15. Briggs scored 14 and pulled down 11 rebounds. Williams led Southern with 16, Anthony Sherrad scored 11 and Tayborn scored 10.

Giant Sale Is Okayed; Drills May Start Soon

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer
The National League has taken the first decisive action of the 1976 major league baseball season — the Giants will stay in San Francisco — but there also are rumors the teams may soon be in spring training.

League owners on Thursday approved the sale of the Giants to San Franciscan Robert Lurie and a partner from Phoenix, Ariz., Bud Herseth. NL President Chub Feeney says the Giants will stay in Candlestick.

Meanwhile, an impasse that has kept all but one major league team from beginning the spring tuneups entered its third day today, threatening to wipe out the first weekend of exhibition season.

But despite some belligerent and pessimistic language in Miami, where owners and players are negotiating, there were indications a settlement was near.

The St. Louis Cardinals rented rooms for their players at the Edgewater Beach Motel in St. Petersburg, Fla., on Tuesday, and they are to report later in the week. The Pittsburgh Pirates ordered their front office personnel to Florida by Friday.

There also were reports that New York Mets General Manager Joe McDonald, who has delayed his arrival at St. Petersburg repeatedly, will arrive at the spring training site Thursday.

The Baltimore Orioles also were reported to be planning to open camp as early as Thursday, and the Atlanta Braves are rumored to be planning a Friday opening of pre-season warmups.

These rumors, and others, have led to suspicion that an announcement is forthcoming from Miami negotiators.

The first full weekend of pre-season games is scheduled for March 13-14. But a major league rule and the delay of spring training, which was to have opened March 1, has jeopardized those games.

The rule says players must undergo 10 days of spring training before they participate in pre-season competition. Thus, players would have to be in camp today to play on the 13th, and if they are not in camp by Thursday, Sunday's games also would become illegal.

Feeney said the poll of the 11 NL clubs conducted by telephone from San Francisco was unanimous in favor of approving the sale of the Giants to Herseth and Lurie, who will be the controlling partner.

Bob Short, a Minneapolis contractor who had been a partner of Lurie's in the original bid to buy the Giants, was not involved in the sale in its final form, Feeney said. There was no explanation why Short dropped out of the picture.

The announcement ended months of speculation whether the financially-troubled Giants would stay in the Bay Area or move to Toronto, where a bid had been made to buy the team.

In Miami on Tuesday, Marvin Miller, the player's negotiator, and the owners' chief negotiator, John Gaherin, briefed about 60 players on the status of negotiations.

"It's frustration," said Baltimore Oriole pitcher Jim Palmer when the meeting broke up after three hours. "It seems the owners have shown great reluctance to discuss issues."

Miller has maintained throughout negotiations that owners refuse to bargain seriously on revising the reserve rule — which binds a player to a team for life — until a ruling is handed down on an appeal.

A three-judge federal panel is considering an appeal by the owners of arbitrator Peter Seitz' December ruling, which allows players to become free agents one year after fulfilling contractual commitments. The ruling, already upheld by a U.S. District Court, would enable players to play without contracts this season and deal with other clubs as free agents in 1977.

While all this was going on, some other clubs were going about the more mundane baseball business of wheeling-and-dealing.

In a major pre-season trade, the Los Angeles Dodgers sent outfielder Willie Crawford to St. Louis for infielder Ted Sizemore.

Crawford, a former $100,000 bonus baby, has been with the Dodgers since 1974. Sizemore, who won rookie of the year honors in 1969 when he broke in with the Dodgers, has spent the past five seasons as the Cards' regular second baseman.

The Chicago White Sox — the only team to open spring training, with 25 non-rostered players — continued their warmups — continued their warmups — continued their warmups. The Bob Olivers beat the Cleon Joneses 5-2 in the game on the strength of homers by Mike Ondina and Bob Palmer.

The Cincinnati Reds, Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs, meanwhile, announced the signings of players.

The Reds signed pitcher Pedro Borbon and outfielder Ken Griffey; the Pirates signed pitchers John Candelaria and Tim Jones, utility man Bob Robertson and infielder Jimmy Sexton, and the Cubs signed second baseman Manny Trillo, shortstop Dave Rosello and pitcher Willie Prall.

Not signed, but reportedly negotiating is Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, last year's American League rookie of the year. The Los Angeles Herald Examiner said Lynn was asking for a $2 million package that would include: a $500,000 insurance policy, a six-figure bonus if the team makes the World Series, another $50,000 bonus if he makes the All-Star team, and $35,000 a year for 25 years if he is injured on the field.

Skip Brown is one of Wake Forest's most-feared basketball players. As a junior last season he averaged 22.7 points a game.

Olympic Group Lists Prohibited Medicines

By DAN BERGER
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The athlete crosses the finish line at the U.S. Olympic Trials in world record time and then, an hour later, is informed he failed to make the U.S. team because he took a cough drop 30 minutes before his race.

It's a scene that hasn't been acted out yet, but unless America's amateur athletes are aware of a new set of rules governing what they ingest, some are likely to fall prey to the rules and be lopped off the team to Montreal.

A list of banned drugs, which includes some apparently innocuous non-prescription compounds, was published this week by the women's committee of the Southern Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union. The list is huge: about 300 drugs by brand name and generic name, broken down into five categories.

The list was prepared for women track and field athletes, but it has applications to athletes in all Olympic sports. The single sheet of paper is prefaced with a paragraph explaining that urine tests will be given at the U.S. Olympic Trials June 19-27 at Eugene, Ore. The list was compiled by Dr. Harmon Brown of San Mateo, Calif., advisor to the women's track and field committee.

The list appears frightening to some athletes, but at least they'll get a chance to see in advance which chemicals are likely to create problems. Rick Demont didn't have that advance warning.

Demont was the winner of the 1972 Olympic 400-meter freestyle 3½ years ago. A few days later he was told he couldn't have the gold medal because he was taking a banned decongestant for an asthma condition.

The list published by the AAU this week includes some common cold products, such as Vicks Formula 44 Cough Discs, Listerine Cough Control Lozenges and Dristan Cough Formula Syrup. In 1972, Demont was taking Marax under a doctor's prescription. It contains the drug ephedrine, which was an aid in helping him breathe.

Dr. Brown, a specialist in internal medicine at Hayward State University, said the cough remedies on his list contain dextromethorphan, "which is nothing more than a synthetic codeine. It's commonly used as a cough suppressant and I suppose if you took enough of them (the cough drops), since they are pain killers, they might suppress pain to the point where it might allow a person to perform better."

Dr. Brown suggested that athletes who are taking any type of drug contact their doctors to determine if what they are taking contains banned drugs. "If you have to take one of those drugs, say for an asthma condition, try to take something else, a substitute which will do the same thing without being a banned drug."

Brown said athletes taking any of the banned substances should plan to stop taking them at least three days before their competitions because, "As far as I know, there will be no waivers."

ECU Women Seeking State Title

By JOHN EVANS
Special to the Reflector
It will be a hard road that East Carolina's Women's basketball team must travel if it is to win this weekend's North Carolina Division I championships in Chapel Hill.

The Lady Pirates are fifth-seeded in the six team tournament, which will mean they must play the hosting North Carolina Lady Tar Heels in the first-round at 7 p.m., Thursday. And if ECU should get by the Tar Heels in the first round, it would mean the Lady Pirates would be paired against the regular season NCAA Division I champions from North Carolina State University.

The nucleus of the team, however, revolves around Thompson, sophomore Debbie Freeman and senior point guard Ellen Garrison. Freeman and Thompson, both All-State selections, have averaged 23 and 18 points a game, respectively. Garrison is the team's defensive leader and, as of late, has been picking up some of the scoring slack. Last weekend against Appalachian, Garrison scored 14 points, most of her baskets coming on 20 footers.

Garrison feels defense and the fast break will play a major role in the success of the Pirates against UNC.

"It depends on if we get up for the game psychologically and if we can play good defense against them. They have real good guards who can shoot well outside, as well as drive to the basket, so we will have to be aggressive."

"The Appalachian game showed that if my outside shots go in, it opens up our offense and fast-break better. This will have to be the case this week. Our fast break must work to win."

Freeman has led the Pirates in rebounding and scoring all year, but it has been her defense which has made the biggest difference in the team's play. Freeman has set six individual records this year and can break three more if ECU makes it past the tournament's first-round.

"If they are smart, they will play us as a team and not key on either Rosie or me. It has happened a lot this year where a team has keyed on me and the other players have hurt them."

"Personally, I feel I can play without having to score because I feel that lately I have helped the team more with my defense than my scoring and my rebounding. I'll do whatever will help the team to win, because that is most important."

Thompson said she feels Freeman will most likely be the player keyed on, but that may not be the answer to stopping East Carolina.

"If they key on anyone it would have to be Debbie, but they really can't key on anyone, because we all can score."

With three experienced seniors on the bench, in Marie Chamblee, Brenda Dail, and Frances Swenholt, the Lady Bucs have a strong bench going for them, too.

The Pirates' chances come down then to what Freeman refers to as "keeping cool."

"We have to be considered underdogs against State and Carolina, but if we keep our heads, be cool and play our game we'll win. If both teams play to their capabilities, it will be interesting, but I think we would come out on top."

Western Carolina and UNC-Greensboro will meet in the other first-round game on Thursday.

John Lucas, a senior from Durham, N.C., led Duke's basketball scorers with a 19.5 point average last season and is back for his final season with the Blue Devils.

Jacqueline Has Learned To Live With Slow Death

By THOMAS CHEATHAM
LONDON (UPI) — Jacqueline du Pre started playing the cello at 5, a pretty, unpretentious child determined to perfect the tunes her pianist mother wrote for her.

an instrument bigger than herself, she embarked on a career that brought her acclaim as one of the greatest cellists of our time.

Three years ago, at the age of 27, it came to a shattering end. She was told she had multiple sclerosis, an incurable, crippling disease of the central nervous system.

She can no longer walk, uses a wheelchair, and just now has begun to talk about her fear and frustration.

It has taken time to learn to live with a slow death.

Rare is the couple with such gifts. The two would appear as a duo or with him conducting and her soloing. They were young, excited, exciting.

YOU KNOW WHAT YOU'RE DOING, MAMA — Mildred the Bear, mascot of Grandfather Mountain, has two brand new cubs, and she is lifting one of them head first in her mouth. This is a normal procedure for a mother bear when the cub is very young, and although it looks cruel and rough on the youngster it is actually a gentle way for mother bear to transport baby. Both of Mildred's cubs this year are little boys. Her cubs in previous years — Mini, Maxi, and Honey — were all girls.

"I'm lucky," she said in an interview. "I can look back on a life that was fulfilled. I can't look back and say, 'Dammit, I was ripped in the bud,' because I've done what I wanted to do."

From as far back as she can remember, there was nothing more important than the cello. Perfection required physical power — 20 pounds of pressure for a single note — and an inner strength, too. She had both.

"You often have childish brilliance," her teacher, William Pleeth, recalled, "but this was a dynamic personality with enormous talent and emotion ... She had an incredible compulsion."

From her mother's tunes, she went to Bach, Brahms, Schumann. Others her age needed two to three weeks to memorize and play a difficult piece. She could do it in two to three days.

There were international competitions and prizes, including one from Queen Elizabeth when Miss du Pre was 15, and then, a year later, her concert debut at London's Wigmore hall. She played Bach's Suite No. 5 and, Pleeth said, "everyone was shattered."

Berlin...Paris...more London concerts...Amsterdam...to Moscow to study under Rostropovich...Carnegie Hall in New York City at 20...rave reviews...packed houses... recording contracts...world tours.

Success forged no change in Jacqueline du Pre. She kept what her teacher described as "the most beautiful innocence." She had beauty, a quiet charm, a tendency to keep to herself. Yet her life took on a storybook ring. She and pianist-conductor Daniel Barenboim were married in Jerusalem after touring Israel before, during and after the 1967 Middle East war.

Then the strength and feeling in her fingers began to go.

On Jan. 15, 1973, she played her last concert with her husband, at New York's Philharmonic Hall. Her final performance was there, too, on Feb. 24. She canceled an appearance scheduled for three days later.

"A great deal of coordination and strength is required to play the cello," she explained, "and I realized one day it was gone."

Multiple sclerosis strikes suddenly and at random among young adults. No one knows what causes it. There is no cure. Britain alone has 50,000 cases.

The disease's effects vary widely. Many victims have lengthy remissions and manage to live normal lives.

A smaller percentage suffers progressive paralysis, affecting not only movement but speech and sight. The severely stricken become unable to take care of themselves and finally are weakened to the point where pneumonia or infection can kill.

Except for brief remissions at first, Miss du Pre has had none. Special treatment in the United States was unsuccessful. Now the prescription is steroids and vitamins. She is not in pain.

For two years, she isolated herself. Then she realized "in the end, it's my own 'bum' I have to get out of bed. One is still alive, can still enjoy. There are things to do."

Barenboim ("I have a marvelous husband — he couldn't be greater") curtailed his travel and is said to have turned down the directorship at the New York Philharmonic to be with her. They have no children.

"There is a lot of fear attached to this disease," she said. "There was a period when I was totally frightened. I'm less frightened now, but there are periods when I'm still not without fear ..."

"I succeeded very poorly for two years. I couldn't face anything. That period has been undergoing a change. I just have to rechannel those energies into other things."

Like teaching the cello, making beads, going to concerts and writing down "what one goes through."

"What I've learned," she said, "is that one can do a very great deal from a wheelchair. Life can start from a wheelchair. It has to. It can. There is a lot we can do ..."

"Sometimes, when I hear a pupil play, I might say to myself, 'Dash it, I wish I could do that.' But I also know and live with a rather privileged feeling that my talent expressed itself very young and I led a very fulfilled musical life ..."

JACQUELINE DU PRE started playing the cello at five years old, embarking on a career that has brought acclaim. (UPI Photo)

Wild Burro Kicks Up More Than Just Dust

By JAMES J. DOYLE
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The wild burro, a proliferate leftover from the old gold-mining days, is kicking up more than dust in the southwest deserts.

Burros, growing in number, are creating havoc with the fragile desert ecology, according to land and game management spokesmen.

The gold prospectors who brought them west in the last century needed a tough pack animal. When something better came along, like automobiles, they turned loose the burros that hadn't already escaped.

Burros, ornery cousins of the African zebras, did quite well. They still do. They breed at all times of the year, live in either high or low altitudes, seemingly enjoy the desert sun and eat about anything that grows.

"Oh boy, are they tough!" said Jim Crew of the California Fish and Game Department. "I've known burros to completely strip an octillo plant, thorns, bark and all."

Don Heinze of the Bureau of Land Management in Riverside says they are a real headache to the federal agency trying to preserve the desert lands and the rest of the wildlife.

protection don't like burros. But they also like Big Horn sheep, whose existence are threatened.

"This is one area we've been working on," Heinz said. "When there are animals mixing one is displaced and, in this case, it's the Big Horn sheep."

"The burros will take over a spring and strip it clean and pollute the spring to the point where sheep can't use it."

"They also are threatening invertebrate species in Death Valley, species that occur there and nowhere else."

"Right now there's very little we can do. They are protected by law."

"They can't be harassed and they can't be vaptured by motorized means. And it's virtually impossible to round them up with horses. They're smarter than horses, and they exhaust the men."

Heinz said they range from Death Valley through Southern California's deserts, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico.

Burros were imported from northeast Africa, where they were domesticated more than 5,000 years ago, through Europe as pack stock. They are of the species Equus Asinus.

Heinz said there are about 1,500 in Death Valley, 950 or more in the southern desert areas of California, and perhaps 300 more in the Granite Mountains. But the census is sketchy. Burros move around a lot.

Ecology groups, Heinze said, have waged a successful fight to protect the burros, but in doing so have tilted the whole balance of the desert ecosystem.

Simply, he said, the southwest deserts cannot provide for large numbers of a non-native species without being damaged.

Introducing the Centennial Edition of Funk & Wagnall's New Encyclopedia.

The best way to get information is to go to the source. And that's exactly what Funk & Wagnall's has been doing since 1876, when they began publishing reference books.

Their sources for this new Centennial Edition include hundreds and hundreds of prominent people. Each a recognized authority in his, or her, field of knowledge. Many with Nobel and Pulitzer prizes to their credit. And while they're too numerous to list here, you'll find they're all listed in Volume 1.

The result is a comprehensive, accurate home reference center with over 193,000 indexed subjects. [That's as many subjects as encyclopedias costing hundreds of dollars more contain.]

And each article is written in clear, simple English that gets to the heart of the subject without going over your head.

Try Volume 1 for 49¢. It'll sell you the rest of the set.

To introduce you to Funk & Wagnall's New Encyclopedia, we sell Volume 1 at the special introductory price of 49¢.

So instead of going through a high pressure sales pitch, you just go through Volume 1 and let it convince you to buy the rest of the set a volume or two a week.

That way, you find out if it's the right encyclopedia for your family before you pay for the whole set. And you save two ways. First, because Funk & Wagnall's sells their encyclopedias through supermarkets instead of through salesmen working on commission, there's no high commission to pay. Second, because supermarkets can sell in great volume, Funk & Wagnall's can afford to charge you less per volume. So stop by the Funk & Wagnall's display in any of our supermarkets and pick up Volume 1. It's one of the smartest purchases you can make these days.

Buy Vols. 2 & 3 and get a free dictionary in the bargain.

You get Funk & Wagnall's 2-volume Standard Desk Dictionary free when you purchase Vols. 2 and 3 of the Encyclopedia.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Feb. 19 through Feb. 25.

House
VETO Override, 319 for to 98 against, President Ford's veto of a $6.1 billion bill (HR 5247) initiated by Democrats to spur economic recovery by the creation of hundreds of thousands of private sector jobs on public works projects. The bill also would have authorized cash aid to state and local governments whose tax revenues have been eroded by the recession. A third title authorized funding of programs such as urban redevelopment and sewage treatment.

The vote offered a choice between the Democratic Party approach of stimulating the economy by massive federal spending and the traditional GOP approach of relying chiefly on tax incentives for the private sector. The Senate later failed to override and the veto was sustained.

A supporter of the override, Rep. Benjamin Gilman (R-N.Y.), said the measure would help "revitalize our sagging economy by putting people back on the payrolls and off the welfare rolls."

Opponents generally agreed with Ford's characterization of the bill as an "election year pork barrel." Ford, in his veto message, said the bill would create fewer jobs at higher cost than Democrats claim, and said a better way to boost employment is through tax breaks to job-creating businesses.

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "nay."

SCHORR PROBE Passed, 269 for and 115 against, a resolution (H Res 1042) instructing the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct (the ethics committee) to investigate the circumstances under which CBS newsman Daniel Schorr obtained the secret House Intelligence Committee report and supplied it to the Village Voice newspaper for publication.

The resolution states that Schorr "may be in contempt" of the House for passing along the report to the New York City newspaper, which has printed exerpts, and orders the committee to report back to the House.

Rep. Samuel Stratton (D-N.Y.), the sponsor, said he is "not challenging the principle of the freedom of the press," but that Schorr gave up First Amendment protection against such a probe by turning over the secret report to another news medium. An opponent, Rep. Bob Eckhardt (D-Tex.), said: "I am willing to join in an inquiry, but I am not willing to join in an inquisition." He said the resolution seemed to state in advance "what we think the investigators ought to come out with."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

LIBRARY FUNDS Passed, 336 for and 52 against, a resolution (HJ Res 811) appropriating an additional $33 million for the completion of the $123 million Library of Congress James Madison Memorial Building. Half the new funds will pay for cost overruns on the new Capitol Hill building, and most of the remainder will pay for book conveyor, security and fire systems not in original plans.

A supporter, Rep. George Shirley (D-Ill.), said that without fast approval of the new funds, completion would be delayed as new bids would be needed for the remaining work. The building is needed, he said, to "alleviate overcrowded conditions throughout the Library."

No Member flatly opposed the funds in debate, but Rep. Lawrence Coughlin (R-Pa.) questioned the building's burgeoning cost and the merit of "acquiring and preserving almost every document known to mankind."

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Senate
VETO Failed, 63 for and 35 against, to achieve the necessary two-thirds majority to cancel President Ford's veto of HR 5247, a $6.1 billion jobs bill (see House vote above). The override attempt thus failed by three votes and the veto was sustained.

"At a time when millions are seeking the opportunity to work, there exists numerous vital public projects that need to be undertaken to improve the quality of life for everyone," said Sen. Harrison Williams (D-N.J.), a supporter of the override. An opponent, Sen. Robert Taft Jr. (R-Ohio), said the bill would "bust the budget and fuel the fires of inflation which are just now being brought under control." Taft added that "If we have learned anything in recent years, it is that federal dollars do not solve all problems."

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "yea."
Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS Passed, 70 for and 23 against, a bill (S 2931) to give the U.S. seven months of daylight savings time per year in 1976 and 1977, in place of the present six. The bill was sent to the House.

The measure would start daylight savings time on the second Sunday of each March and return it to standard time on the second Sunday of each October. The existing six months begin on the last Sunday in April and end on the last Sunday in October. The bill allows states to exempt themselves from daylight savings time.

A supporter, Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.), said a federal study found that daylight savings time conserves electricity, curbs crime and provides more daylight for many election days. And, Magnuson said, "People like daylight savings time... for all kinds of reasons."

An opponent, Sen. Wendell Ford (D-Ky.), said: "I think six and six is reasonable" and that changing it would hurt the farmer, construction worker and school child, all of whose activities are disrupted by early hours of darkness under daylight savings time.

Helms voted "nay" and Morgan did not vote.

MARIANA ISLANDS Passed, 66 for and 23 against, a resolution (HR Res 549) approving a covenant to establish a Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands in political union with the U.S. The resolution was sent to conference with the House. The islands are a part of Micronesia in the South Pacific Ocean. Micronesia became a "trust" territory under the U.S. after World War Two, with the U.S. obligated to move the islands toward self-government.

The Northern Mariana Islands, seeking a separate political identity from Micronesia, have negotiated for commonwealth status with the U.S. for a decade. Under the resolution, the foreign policy of the islands would remain under U.S. control but, like Puerto Rico, the islanders could obtain U.S. citizenship and substantially run their own affairs.

Supporters said the people of the Northern Mariana Islands have shown themselves eager for permanent ties with the U.S. as they seek self-government, and should not be rebuffed.

Opponents said that the problem of self-government for all of Micronesia should be addressed by Congress, and that the U.S. faces years of financial support for the proposed commonwealth which can offer little in return.

Helms and Morgan voted "yea."

Advise Keeping Instructions

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Home Management Specialists at Pennsylvania State University remind consumers that they should keep the instruction books that come with washing machines, small appliances, cameras and even clothing.

They say an appliance will operate best when maintained according to the manufacturers instructions. Also, a manufacturer's instructions tell the fiber content of clothing items and how they should be laundered or dry cleaned.

Building Ship In Three Parts

HAMBURG (UPI) — A Hamburg shipyard is building the largest crane ship in the world for the Soviet Union.

A spokesman for Blohm and Voss said the ship will have a giant crane able to lift 2,500 tons. The ship will be built in three parts, transported to the Caspian Sea and assembled there.

NO BABIES
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Bicycle Manufacturers Association says bikes should not be used to carry babies.

Some dealers are refusing to sell baby carriers and many of them advise against using them.

Class of '76.

Now there was a great bunch of guys. With an unheard-of, revolutionary, class gift. The Declaration of Independence. A document so powerful, it stirred a colonial people to take stock in a new idea: America.

And take stock, they did. By purchasing U.S. Government securities.

After all, we sure needed the money back then, and everyone knew it. But there were more than a few who wondered if this young, determined nation would pay it back.

Well, we did. Every last penny. With interest.

And it's the same today.

Maybe that's why now millions of Americans take stock in their country every payday by buying U.S. Savings Bonds.

You see, when you join the Payroll Savings Plan, a little is set aside from each paycheck to buy Bonds. There's just no easier way to save. And certainly no safer way.

So take a tip from the Class of 1776 and — buy U.S. Savings Bonds. You'll be voted most likely to succeed.

Take stock in America.

200 years at the same location.

New E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Disagree Over School Site

WILLIAMSTON — Differences in opinion about a possible site to place a consolidated junior high school at Oak City were expressed Monday night at the monthly meeting of the Martin County School Board.

A delegate from Oak City has gone on record approving a junior high at Oak City while a delegation from Hamilton has gone on record as saying they do not want a consolidated junior high to be located at Oak City.

At this point, the board has made no decision on the possible location of a combined junior high to serve the western end of the county.

On Sunday, March 7, dedication of Roanoke High School located near Gold Point will take place at 3 p.m. Dr. Craig Phillips, Superintendent of Public Instruction, will be guest speaker. Roanoke is the new consolidated high school combining the old Robersonville and Oak City High School student bodies.

Barnhill Construction Company of Greenville is the successful bidder to demolish the old three story brick school at Oak City. Also, the board approved demolition of the old Hamilton Elementary School by the town of Hamilton with a provision that the school board not be held responsible for any possible liability or injuries incurred.

Two policy matters were discussed — a food system service for the county schools based on state recommended lines; and the policy of student retention and promotions, particularly in the elementary grades.

Antique Film Footage Readied For TV Show

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's hard to believe, but there's film footage of the pandemonium that followed the fatal shooting of President William McKinley in Buffalo, N.Y., in 1901.

Not only that, there's some equally rare footage of his successor — Theodore Roosevelt — attending McKinley's funeral in Ohio, according to Merl Koplin and Charles Grinker. And they should know.

Since 1963, they've run a small company here which specializes in making programs that use both obscure and familiar film footage of major and minor events and newsmakers of the 20th century.

And they'll be using the McKinley and Roosevelt footage in one of their four TV specials about 20th century U.S. presidents, first ladies, vice-presidents and assorted minority candidates for the presidency.

Their one-hour programs, bankrolled by Scripps-Howard Broadcasting Co. and Post-Newsweek Stations, Inc., are being syndicated for showing by TV stations around the nation in April, May, June and July.

For Koplin and Grinker, codirectors of the Corporation for Entertainment and Learning, Inc., unearthing rare or unusual historical film is a labor of love, as well as profit. As Koplin puts it, "We're doing for a living what we enjoy as a hobby."

For competitive reasons, they aren't too specific about whence their more unusual antique footage comes.

But they will point to companies owning old newsreel films, the National Archives, the Library of Congress, various state and county museums and historical societies as good sources of the rare or unusual.

And occasionally they get a tip about a garage somewhere that holds, say, 15 cans of President Calvin Coolidge going about his business.

A key element in their work is the use of newsreel "outtakes," material edited from what audiences once saw in movie theaters.

Citing newsreel footage of the late, flamboyant Gov. Huey Long of Louisiana as an example, Grinker says the idea "is not to use the same five pieces that have been used in every documentary about him for the past 20 years."

"Take the time to print up all the outtakes that exist on Huey Long and I guarantee you'll come up with a sensational three or four minutes of film that hasn't been seen over and over again," he said.

But that sort of thing, he said, requires the patience to go through every available foot of film, a process that "takes sheer will and an extremely conscientious individual."

It is all very well to find a good line. But that's exactly when you should take a second look at the situation; there's possibly a better play lurking in the bushes.

South had a difficult rebid to make. A mere two spades would understate the playing strength of his hand, and there was the danger that North might pass. Three spades, on the other hand, would considerably overstate the high-card content of the hand. So South's choice of four spades was a fair compromise, and North, who had as little for a two-over-one as the law will allow, had no further ambitions.

West led his singleton club, and declarer saw that he could get rid of his heart loser. Without looking any deeper into the position, he won the ace of clubs, crossed to the queen of spades and led the king of clubs. He discarded his heart loser, but West ruffed and returned his last trump. To his considerable anguish, declarer found that he still had to lose three diamond tricks and his contract.

Friday Lauds UNC System Supporters

By JIM JENKINS
Fayetteville Observer
Written for The AP
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — After 20 years as president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, Dr. William Friday credits the legislature and the people of the state for the system's progress.

"A lot of people did a lot of things," Friday said in an interview. "The legislature deserves a lot of credit. Despite the speaker ban (by which Communists were banned from speaking on public campuses), it has been my experience that they want to do whatever they can do to be helpful. "And the people of North Carolina are really earnest in their desire to see their children get a good education."

There were times, particularly in the late 1960s, when the university fell out of favor with both lawmakers and the people, however.

Student unrest reached its height and Friday and the university became targets of criticism.

"I'm not sure we handled it exactly as we should have," he said. "But the UNC system went through that entire experience without having to cancel a class, with no buildings being burned and with no shots being fired.

"It was a credit to the students and to the people of the state who had patience."

Friday even sees some benefits coming from that period — benefits that came when the university had passed the test and proved itself strong enough to withstand fierce pressure.

"We felt it was better to permit the talking out of issues rather than holding back and letting it break out somewhere else," Friday said. "It taught us that we've been right all along about academic freedom."

After this test the university faced another crisis — reorganization.

With 16 state supported institutions, management of the separate schools was difficult. After a long and sometimes bitter legislative fight, the consolidated university became the university system. Friday credits the system's board of governors and the leadership at individual schools with helping the plan to work.

"The state is fortunate to have leaders the level of these men," said Friday. "Nine of our chancellors have gone on to be university presidents."

Friday says 11 states have talked with the university officials using the system as a model for their own.

A problem that came with the new system was the competition by different schools within the system for the same programs. This was highlighted several months ago when both North Carolina State and North Carolina A&T, a predominantly black school, lobbied for a veterinary school.

North Carolina State was awarded the school because it has a pre-veterinary program but A&T supporters cried discrimination.

The crisis became more complicated when the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare became involved and indicated that a similar program should be established at A&T or the state might lose some federal money.

Friday defends the university's decision. "The day of duplication is over," he said. "We're not interested in homogenizing all the institutions, putting them all on the same level."

"I believe we should have the institutions as they are, remove the deficiencies where we find them and refine those institutions."

As for HEW, Friday believes its relationship with the university is improving.

He said the university's civil rights plan "is on its way now. I think we're going to come up with a model relationship."

It is problems such as expansion, changes in students and the civil rights issue that made the job more complicated for Friday than for his predecessors.

Has he thought of leaving?

"No, I have never thought about leaving," he said. "There have been times when the frustration was great. These happen in any public experience. And I've never thought that there was a man who wasn't replaceable."

"But I guess one reason I've never thought about it is that there has been such constant transition within the university that there never was time when you really could break off clean."

Friday believes passage of the $43 million bond issue, which is on the March 23 ballot, is important to the future of the university.

The bonds would provide funds to build dorms, classrooms and offices at overcrowded campuses.

"These young people have got to be provided this opportunity somewhere," Friday said. "In the Fayetteville area, the fastest growing population base in the state, we're looking closely at Fayetteville State, UNC-Wilmington and Pembroke. We've got to provide master's degree opportunities for teachers in that area."

Friday expects that the next 20 years will be a time of "slower growth" for the university system.

"We'll take advantage of this next period to consolidate the gains we've made," he said. "We're going to live with ourselves for a while."

No Letup For Wintry Storm

By The Associated Press
Little letup was expected today from wintry weather that disrupted primary voting in New England and played havoc with travel in broad areas of the northern United States.

A band of freezing rain stretched from central portions of Wisconsin and Michigan into southern New England. Ice storm warnings were posted for lower Michigan and most of western New York, and southeast Colorado continued to experience winter storm conditions, with heavy snow warnings in effect for the Colorado mountains.

In eastern Missouri, Illinois and southern Wisconsin and Michigan, strong thunderstorms brought heavy rains today.

When the storms broke on Tuesday, most of the physical damage was confined to central lower Michigan and the Erie, Pa. area, where ice storms coated and broke trees and power lines.

But there were political effects as well. More than a foot of snow fell on parts of New England, and sleet, icy sidewalks and slippery roads were blamed for a light turnout in the Massachusetts primary.

In Vermont, where voters were showing their preference for a President for the first time since 1920, at least four communities — Mount Holly, West Haven, Timmouth, and Middletown Springs — put off primary voting and town meetings until Friday and Saturday.

State police said up to 15 inches of wet, heavy snow on Interstate 91 caused two major traffic snarls near Springfield and Rockingham in southern Vermont. A police spokesman said it took nearly four hours to untangle the jams, one involving up to 100 automobiles strung out two cars wide for more than a half-mile.

A state trooper said traveling on the highway was "like driving through thick, wet sand."

The storm took many by surprise especially since New England had been enjoying spring-like weather for a week. In other areas of the country it was the same — the wintry blasts putting an end to weather that had only recently set records for warmth.

Area Students In Chorus Tour

Several local area young people, student members of the Mount Olive College Chorus, have been on tour in eastern North Carolina that started Monday and will conclude tomorrow.

Singers from this area are Kim McKinney from Greenville, Valerie Wood, Ayden; and Sue Cox, Vanceboro.

The chorus has performed at high schools in Smithfield-Selma, Clayton, Southern Nash near Bailey, Roanoke High School in Martin County and Bridgeton Elementary School.

Tomorrow the chorus will perform at White Oak School near Jacksonville and then end its seven-county tour at Pender High School.

'Skyhooks' Join Friday Concert

"Skyhooks," Australia's top rock and roll band, is an added attraction to be featured in the Friday night concert at Minges Coliseum under the sponsorship of the Student Union Major Attractions Committee.

The quintet of performers, noted for their mod on-stage dress and their own native Aussie sound is joining Joe Cocker and another quintet, Styx, in an evening of contemporary popular music.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. Tickets, at $5.00 each, are now on sale at the Central Ticket Office.

OPPOSE STUDY
NEW YORK (AP) — Stockholders have voted by a 10-1 ratio against a proposed study of costs of the continuing labor dispute at J. P. Stevens Co., one of the nation's largest textile chains.

Protestors Mobilize To Fight Baby Seal-Hunters

By ED WALTERS
Canadian Press Writer
ST. JOHN'S, Canada (AP) — Seal hunters from here in Newfoundland and Norway, their clubs and weapons called hakapiks stowed and ready for use, set out this month into the heaving icepack off Canada on the annual hunt for seal pups.

But this year others who oppose the killing of seals say they hope to disrupt the hunt by spraying the white pelts of the pups with a green dye, rendering them commercially worthless, before the hunters reach them.
This year's quota, set by international agreement, is 142,000 seal pups.

Female harp and hood seals, fattened by fish eaten farther south along the Newfoundland coast during the previous two months, move north by late February.
There, on what Newfoundlanders call the whelping ice, the females give birth to thousands of pups, each weighing about 15 pounds. Absorption of the sun's ultraviolet rays by the pups' white fur keeps them from freezing.

By the time the sealing season opens March 15 the pups' diet of fatty milk from their mothers will have brought their weight to as much as 85 pounds.

If the ships are successful in finding the seals, the five-foot Norwegian Hakapike, hammerheaded on one end, and 36-inch wooden Canadian clubs will begin to swing.

The pelts go to furriers and the blubber is used in making good oils and cosmetics.
The meat, especially the flippers, is considered a delicacy by both Newfoundlanders and Norwegians.
Fishermen from eastern and northern Newfoundland, who regard sealing as a combination of adventure and an opportunity to make extra money during the lean spring months, have generally accepted the reduced sealing quotas of recent years.
But they have reacted angrily to outsiders' attempts to interfere with the hunt.
Some have threatened violence. Others said they hoped the front, the area of ice containing the most seals, would be blown far from land and out of reach of Greenpeace helicopters.
Ice forecasts indicate that the leading edge of the Front probably will be east of Newfoundland's northern tip. The Greenpeace group plans to establish headquarters at St. Anthony near the northern end of the island.

PRIME TARGET — This two-week-old harp seal shown in this file photo is the name of the game as seal hunters set out later this month to the icepack off Canada on the annual hunt. (AP Wirephoto)

Sexless Classified Ads Are Carefully Worded

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — "Wanted, Experienced storekeeper, either sex, provided that they have at least five years' experience, are fluent in German and look like Marlene Dietrich in her early 20s."

Many classified ads like that one in a Hampshire newspaper, the Romsey Advertiser, have appeared in the British press over the past few weeks as employers try to evade violation of a new equality law.

The Sex Discrimination Act, which took force Dec. 29, bans discrimination in employment and job recruitment on the basis of sex. So employers can no longer say in classified ads whether they want male or female applicants for a job.

"People are having to word advertisements carefully to comply with the act and, at the same time, get what they want. It's absurdity gone mad," commented Colin Hooton, managing director of Repete Publicity, Ltd., an ad agency at Wellborough in the English Midlands.

Hooton's agency placed in the Northampton Evening Telegraph an ad considered one of the more flagrant evasions of the law by the Equal Opportunities Commission, set up to police the new act.

"What we really wanted was a mini-skirted, blue-eyed blonde," read the text of the ad beside a sketch of a trim young woman in mini-skirts and boots, "but under the Sex Discrimination Act we can't advertise for her so we'll just say we require a receptionist."
"Nobody took our advertisement frivolously and we made it clear what we wanted," Hooton said. "We had serious applications from 17-year-olds through to middle-aged women. Significantly, no men applied."

Hooton said he had 60 applicants, interviewed about 20 and selected 17-year-old Deborah Farden — not a blonde, but an attractive leggy girl fond of mini-skirts and boots.

"I think the new act has advantages," Miss Farden said, "but it seems ridiculous when both sexes can apply for jobs which are obviously designed for a man or for a woman."

Things didn't work out so well for Eton college, the elite boys' school at Windsor just west of London. The school placed an ad in the Slough and Windsor Express that said: "Somebody to help in the pantry and dining room: a person to share a flat with another woman."

"The new laws have made it impossible for us to advertise for a woman and we thought that phrasing it this way would overcome the problem," said Mrs. Elizabeth Gage-Hardy, matron at Eton's Warre House.

"Instead all the early calls were from men who obviously thought it was a jolly nice idea to be able to share a flat with a woman.... The lady the new worker has to share with is the most spinsterous of spinsters and was not amused by the idea of a man living with her."

Not many women were likely to reply to this ad in the Long Eaton Trader: "In celebration of the equal rights bill all bricklaying vacancies will now be open to men and women alike. Applicants must have a minimum of 38-inch chest measurement and be prepared to strip to the waist in summer."

Toy Experts Agree: No Telling Likes, Dislikes

NEW YORK (AP) — Figuring out what makes kids tick is a multimillion dollar business for the nation's toy manufacturers and even the experts agree there's no way you can accurately predict what a child will like.

"It's a gut feeling," said Jeffrey Breslow, a general partner in one of the country's major toy designers.

"A lot of good ideas don't sell for one reason or another," said Breslow. The toy may be ahead of its time; it may be marketed at the wrong time; or it may not appeal to a child for some totally illogical reason.

Dr. Brian Sutton-Smith, head of graduate studies in developmental psychology at Columbia University's Teachers College and a consultant to the Toy Manufacturers of America, said adults and children react differently to the same toy.
"Most women hate Barbie dolls," he said, referring to criticism of the doll, particularly by feminist groups which say it presents a stereotyped view of women. On the other hand, Sutton-Smith said, "watch a young girl play with the dolls. They make up all sorts of activities for them" and enjoy themselves.

Sutton-Smith said psychologists and researchers generally do not pay enough attention to a child's very early development. He said toys can play an important role.

He said the most important thing for a young child is parental attention, but noted that parents simply can't devote all of their time to their children. "Toys are a great substitute for a parent," he said.

Sutton-Smith said progress had been made by toy companies in getting the advice of psychologists and others about the needs of children, but added that much more is yet to be done.

Another expert on child development, Prof. Burton L. White, head of Harvard University's Pre-School Project, said recently that the mother's role is most important in a child's development.

"A rich social experience is the best thing you can do to ensure a good mind," he said. For the child, this means following the mother around, seeking attention from her and learning cooperation. Everyday objects in the home provide visual excitement, he said, adding: "Educational toys are baloney. It's a very rare toy company that knows very much about kids."

Toy experts, including Sutton-Smith, said they did not like the use of the term "educational toys" at all except for those items which are used directly in connection with the classroom.

"Most toys teach something if you get them at the right level," said Sutton-Smith. He said ordinary household objects like pots and pans make good toys, but do not fulfill all of a child's needs.

"I'd hate to see a kid without push toys — those abominable things with wheels that go clack, clack. It's hard to find any natural objects (around the house) like that."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

SMALL HOUSE, shown in both its Colonial and contemporary versions, is typical of those which carry out a separation of the four functions of family living—formal living, informal family living, sleeping and service. Complete visual privacy is insured from each of these four areas to another. Despite its few square feet of habitable area, 1,227, Plan HA913Y contains three bedrooms, two and a half baths, huge laundry and large closets. Herman York and Raymond Schenke, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica, N.Y. 11432 are the architects and anyone interested in more information can write to them, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

See Impact Of Crop Failure

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Oklahoma's commissioner of agriculture is predicting a drop of several million dollars in Oklahoma's business volume and state tax collections because of a poor wheat crop.

Agriculture Commissioner Jon Ford blames dry fall weather and late plantings which may bring production 30 per cent below last year.

Agricultural economists say total loss in business revenue may be $350 million and loss to state sales tax revenue might be $27 million.

WANTS RIGHTS—Bitzy Gomez, a truck driver for 10 years, stands at the cab of a big rig as she explains what she feels is job discrimination against women truckers. The diminutive divorcee has formed the Los Angeles Coalition of Women Truck Drivers to counterattack the male-dominated unions and employers who often regard them as prostitutes on wheels. Declares Women Truckers Need Her 'Coalition'

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bitzy Gomez wants to keep on trucking, but she feels too many knights of the road are still slobs when it comes to sharing a cab with a woman.

After 10 years of fighting off passes in the sleeper beds of tractor-trailer rigs, the diminutive divorcee has formed the Los Angeles Coalition of Women Truck Drivers to counterattack male-dominated unions and employers who regard them as prostitutes on wheels.

"There are so many women out there who think they're the Lone Ranger I just felt it was time we organized for some protection," said Mrs. Gomez. Her efforts are being assisted by the National Organization for Women, which is providing legal help, advertising and initial financing.

Mrs. Gomez said she doesn't know how many women truck drivers there are in the United States. But she said she believes there are thousands "because so many truck stops are installing hair dryers and shower facilities for women."

NOW advertised the coalition for a week in Los Angeles newspapers while Mrs. Gomez posted notices in truck stops. She said about 100 women drivers from all over the country responded.

"All complained of discrimination in finding work and sexual abuse once you get the job," said Mrs. Gomez. "Some union locals just don't want women to join because the men don't like competition. So they tell you to get a letter of hiring from a company. Then the company tells you they only hire out of the union hall."

Women on road tests often find that it becomes a "sleeper test," she added. "You get 20 miles out of town and the guy tells you to put out or get out." On the management side, she contended that many firms try to discourage women truckers by placing them with male partners and using them as "sexual rewards" for drivers with good performance records. Mrs. Gomez charges women truckers also have to fight discrimination in state and federal agencies. Two of her three children were placed in foster homes in Bakersfield, Calif., because welfare authorities termed truck driving "an unfit occupation for a mother."

"I am now fighting to get them back," she said.

Now 34, Mrs. Gomez has had a Class I truck driver's license for 10 years but has spent much of that time unemployed and on welfare because of what she considers sex discrimination.

93,000 To Get Lung Cancer

HOUSTON (UPI) — The American Cancer Society says 93,000 people will be stricken with lung cancer in 1976 and 84,000 will die from the disease. The Cancer Society said by the end of 1975, 100,000 Americans had lung cancer and only about 10 per cent of them can be saved because it usually is detected too late.

The society said although smoking is known as the major cause of the disease, the number of smokers has slightly increased since 1971. In 1965, nearly 43 per cent of the total adult population was smoking, but it dropped to 36 per cent by 1971.

The society also predicted 370,000 deaths from all types of cancers, more than 1,000 people per day.

Lake Replaced An Empty Well

SILSBEE, Tex. (UPI) — One of less attractive aspects of having an oil well in your backyard is what may happen to it when it is pumped out.

In 1929 a pumped out multi-million dollar field in Hardin County began caving in. In two days the land had dropped more than 100 feet and the area eventually became a lake.

Offer Weekend With Ghosts

LONDON (UPI) — A British hotel chain is sponsoring a winter series of "ghost weekends" near a spot where the cries of 2,000-year-old victims of human sacrifice can still be heard near the battlements of a castle paced by a headless drummer boy.

Or so the Grand Metropolitan Hotels claim. Until March they offer special "ghost" deals for spook fans, Friday night to Sunday night at special rates near allegedly haunted haunts.

Experts on the supernatural give lectures and answer questions far into the night around the log fires, the hotels said. Ghost sightings are not guaranteed.

VISUAL PRIVACY

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Mrs. Marilyn Furry, a family resource specialist at Pennsylvania State University, says creating more private spaces in a home doesn't mean the family has to move to a larger house or add on a room.

Telephone Links Remote Alaska

EGEGIK, Alaska (UPI) — Eskimos and Indians who live in remote villages such as this one will soon substitute the telephone for dogsled messenger service and other means of communication — as soon as they learn how to use a phone.

A public telephone is being installed in each of 161 villages with 25 or more persons, aided by the new RCA Satcom I domestic communications satellite — an electronic relay station in the sky.

In an illustrated booklet, "How to Use the Telephone in Alaska," RCA has published telephone instructions in several native languages and dialects, as well as English.

Crusader Of Hope For A Good Future

By LOTTE SEIDLER
ELY, Minn. (UPI) — At 76, Sigurd Olson enjoys the sunsets and the moon, keeps standing up for the things he believes in and thinks there's a great deal of hope for planet earth.

Olson — teacher, geologist, wilderness writer and guide — was an ecologist before most people knew the meaning of the word. He fought against the encroachment of roads in the 20s and dams that would have reduced lakes to stagnant backwaters. He also fought successfully for air-space restrictions in the Quetico-Superior Forest in northeastern Minnesota and Canada in the 1940s.

Some of the people in his part of the state — at one time he was dean of Ely Junior College — disagreed with what he was doing. Resorters accused him of taking bread out of their mouths. Businessmen saw him as a threat to the economy.

The opposition has mellowed now and the country appears to have caught up with Olson's views.

"Since Earth Day was held in 1970 people have begun to understand what the word ecology means," Olson said in an interview. "After that environmental groups mushroomed just like after a rain."

Through his writings Olson is continuing his own battle for more beauty, less destruction and man's oneness with nature.

He's working on a new book, "Reflections," which he expects to be published next fall. He writes every day. He also gets out into the woods — hiking, snowshoeing, canoeing, depending on the season — and he still chops wood.

He just got through writing an introduction to promote the preservation of a mini-wilderness area within the Duluth city limits. These mini-wildernesses are important, especially now when such a large share of the population lives in cities, he said. He had words of praise for people in Minneapolis, St. Louis, Ottawa and Montreal for beautifying their cities.

He also had words of hope for the future.

"I think there is hope," he said. "I look at the young people — they're going to inherit the earth you know. They're looking at life in a different way. They're looking for work that has more meaning, for rewards that are not necessarily material."

Olson, who is married and has two sons of his own, said thousands of people have written him. And many young people come to his home in Ely to ask him how they can live happier lives.

"I'm very happy to see they are concerned," he said.

Olson, acutely aware of national and international developments in ecology, said there are both bad and good signs.

He considers strip mining and the opening up of new ore fields serious threats to the environment. But he's encouraged by California's setting aside 1,000 miles of its shoreline, by Delaware's refusal to let the petrochemical industry build plants along the state's coastline.

He doesn't believe there ever was such a thing as the golden age, but one might come when man recognizes his closeness to nature.

"If man begins to realize that, he's on his way to understanding," he said.

Might 'Need' Forest Fires

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — A researcher at the University of Wyoming is trying to determine whether the suppression of natural forest fires affects life in streams and lakes.

Brian Shero, a UW doctoral candidate, wants to find out if the lack of fires affects the production of nutrients which flow into water systems.

A Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife biologist noticed the number of fish in Yellowstone Lake was decreasing and brought up the question. For many years all fires were suppressed in national parks, although some natural fires are now allowed to burn.

JAMAICA CONNECTION
KINGSTON, Jamaica (UPI) — Alexander James Dallas, who was secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and later secretary of the United States Treasury under Thomas Jefferson, was born here in 1759.

His son, George Mifflin Dallas, was vice president of the United States during the Polk administration. Dallas, Tex., is named after him.
