

Pentagon Plans Base Cutbacks

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is preparing to announce the first in a series of politically sensitive military base cutbacks. Sources said the Air Force has tapped three bases — one of them in President Ford's home state of Michigan — to be closed and about 20 others to be reduced or otherwise realigned. The three Air Force bases to be shut down are Kincheloe in Michigan, Craig in Alabama and Webb in Texas. Two bases — Loring in Maine and Richards-Gebaur in Missouri — are in line to be reduced significantly. The Pentagon was expected to claim in its announcement today that the moves will help streamline the military base structure, promote efficiency and save up to $150 million a year, starting in 1978. Information on the number of military and civilian jobs to be affected was not available in advance of the announcement. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said there are 2,000 airmen and 650 civilian workers at Webb alone. The Army and Navy are due to follow in later weeks with their base cutback nominations. This is a departure from the Pentagon's normal practice of announcing all service base cutbacks at once rather than stringing them out. It appeared likely the Pentagon hoped the overall impact would be softened if the moves were made public in stages. Pentagon officials have been working over a list of 165 proposed Army, Navy and Air Force base reductions, closings and consolidations for several months. There have been reports of debate between Pentagon officials and White House staff members over the advisability of going ahead with base cutbacks in a political campaign year. Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and Deputy Secretary William Clements were said to have insisted on the reductions in view of the Pentagon's record $100.1-billion defense spending budget for next year.

Power Plan Study By Electricities

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Representatives of 16 Northeastern North Carolina municipalities served by the Virginia Electric and Power Co. met here yesterday to discuss forming a joint agency to buy or build electric power generation facilities.

The 16 cities—members of Electricities, an organization formed several years ago by 79 municipalities in the state in an effort to find solutions to mutual electric supply and cost problems—have been told that the most feasible way to proceed is to form a joint agency to be called North Carolina Municipal Power Agency Number 2. Cities who purchase power from Duke Power Co. have already formed NCMPA Number 1. It is thought that municipal customers of Carolina Power and Light Co. may also form an agency to negotiate with CP&L.

Officials attending yesterday's session were told that all that would be required to form the joint agency would be first, for city governing boards to adopt an ordinance finding that participation in such an agency would be beneficial to the city; second, adopt a resolution naming an individual as a commissioner (representing that city) to the agency; and thirdly, have the commissioner sworn. When two or more municipalities have named their commissioners, an agency charter would then be granted by the Secretary of State. The joint agency would then be in a position to complete feasibility studies as to what direction to follow, the VEPCO cities representatives were told. Negotiations would then be conducted with VEPCO, either for purchase of one of its generation plants to supply peak power shaving capability, or construction of a new peak shaving generator. To finance such a project, revenue bonds could be issued by the joint agency. Those bonds would be secured with power-purchase contracts; the individual municipalities would agree to purchase a percentage of their peak power requirements from the agency.

At present the municipalities are all requirement customers of VEPCO. That is, VEPCO supplies the total needs of the 16 cities, including base power needs and peak power requirements.

If negotiations with VEPCO are successful, the joint agency would own generation facilities that would supply it peak power requirements (about 15 per cent of the total demand) and hopefully be able to gain more favorable rates for their base power purchases.

A new peak shaving generator—a 60 megawatt unit—would cost an estimated $17 million to $18 million. Over a 10-year period (1980-1990) Electricities engineering consultants said yesterday, such an operation could save $14 million or more for the municipalities. Engineers said, "it's no monumental savings to the cities . . . but it's a start."

Greenville Utilities Commission director Charles Horne, after reviewing the proposals, said this morning that Greenville requires about 40 per cent of the total VEPCO system load in North Carolina. He said based on the projections, Greenville would realize a $5.5 million savings over the 1980-1990 period.

"It's up to us now if we want to go further into it," Horne said. The GUC director noted that, according to the projections, the agency-owned peak shaving generator unit would operate only about 175 hours a year . . . about two per cent of the time. But, he explained, the generator would be supplying power at the time it is now most expensive to VEPCO customers.

Horne, saying the joint agency should be formed within a matter of a few weeks, said it would be six months or a year before negotiations and feasibility studies could be completed so the agency would know in which direction to move. "My main concern," Horne emphasized, "is what savings will be effected . . . savings to our customers."

TENTATIVE CHALLENGE GREENSBORO (AP)—Joseph Johnson, 34, a business professor at the University of North Carolina-Greensboro, said today he has tentatively decided to challenge John Ingram for Insurance Commissioner in the Democratic primary.

VOA Critics Heard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criticism is not new to the Voice of America. The government's overseas radio network often has been described by Moscow as a Western propaganda tool whose newscasts stretch the truth.

Today the criticism strikes much closer to home. Serious questions are being raised on Capitol Hill about VOA's broadcasting and whether it may be too tightly under the control of the State Department.

While the Soviets accuse VOA of airing antidemocratic views, some congressional critics claim that within recent years VOA has adopted too soft a tone and has shied away from reporting on Soviet dissidents and other touchy topics.

The rising criticism, however, is only part of VOA's problems. The network is beset with problems involving its basic organization and aims, funding, high-level administration disputes and poor broadcast reception because of aging transmitters.

The basic problem, according to NBC's John Chancellor, a former chief of VOA, is that the Voice "has been placed at the intersection of journalism and diplomacy"—attempting to report the news fully while at the same time actively presenting U.S. foreign policy.

One major Soviet newspaper charged that VOA deliberately concentrates on airing anti-Soviet statements by former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger and others "who use any reason to blacken détente."

Shrugging off the latest Moscow media barrage, officials note that Soviet propaganda aimed voices and other Western shortwave broadcasting goes through frequent cycles. "It has its ups and downs," remarks VOA's USSR Division Director Eli Flam.

On Capitol Hill, however, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., has contended that VOA last spring presented a "totally misleading" picture of developments during the last days before the fall of South Vietnam by failing to report adequately on American evacuation plans.

Percy, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said this kind of "censorship" — responding to administration pressure — violated a provision of VOA's charter requiring that its news coverage be "accurate, objective and comprehensive."

He noted that "through the years, I have listened to BBC

Recreation-Library Bldg. Plans Liked

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The seal of approval was given Wednesday night by members of the Greenville Recreation Commission to William Friend's preliminary plans for a joint Recreation-Library building to be constructed at an estimated cost of $311,431.

The Recreation Commission approval and approval of the Board of Directors of the City Library system, if given at their March 18 meeting, will be forwarded together to the City Council for their action.

One of the items designed as part of the city program to be funded by Community Development funds, the proposed 10,381 square foot building will consist of a library area of 3,660 square feet; a recreation area measuring 3,818 square feet, an activity room of 1,945 square feet; and a vestibule area of 958 square feet.

"The probable construction figure is $11,000 over the $300,000 allocation for this building," Friend told commissioners, "however, this is a working estimate only. There are alternates built-in that can lower the figure if necessary; for instance a cheaper type floor could be substituted for the terrazzo floor designed for the game and craft rooms."

Friend's design is basically a three-in-one type building, with the activity room and vestibule in a central area, flanked on each side by the library and recreation areas. The library, which would replace and be four times the size of the present East Branch Library, contains a librarian-work room, adult reading area, children's reading area, and a reference area.

Boyd Lee, executive director of the Greenville Parks and Recreation Department, explained that the Recreation Department area was designed to provide an administrative center for the department, with three offices, a small and a large craft room with a craft director's office in between, a kitchen, and a games room. The activity room would also serve as a community theater area, with a seating capacity for 175 people. This same area would be available for gatherings, workshops and similar usages.

Some Quit Social Security Program

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing numbers of local governments are pulling out of the Social Security program at a time when the big federal benefits system is being buffeted by inflation and unemployment.

While alarmed that the defections may snowball, federal officials say there is no indication now of any noticeable impact on the solvency of the Social Security trust funds.

They point out that, despite the dropouts, the over-all number of state, county and city employees covered by Social Security and paying contributions is steadily increasing and has been since they became eligible in 1950.

Under federal law, state and local governments that have had Social Security for at least five years can pull out by giving the federal government two years' advance written notice. They can't join again.

Since 1959, a total of 322 local governments with 44,667 employees have dropped out of Social Security, most of them in California, Louisiana and Texas. And 207 other governments with 53,187 employees have given the required two years' advance notice of intention to terminate. Alaska, with 12,649 state workers, is the first state to file notice of intent to pull out, but Social Security officials believe that notice was merely protective while the state weighs a decision.

Financially troubled New York City also is exploring the possibility of pulling its 230,000 employees out of Social Security to save the city about $200 million annually.

CAB SERVICE AFTER 1 A.M.?

Is there any way the City of Greenville could require taxi services doing business here to provide 24-hour service? After 1 a.m. it's impossible to get a cab. I tried last night. Perhaps the cab companies could operate during the night on a rotating on-call basis. J. R.

According to Greenville City Clerk Lois Worthington city ordinances governing franchises do not require any of the licensed companies to operate at any particular hour. Ordinances set forth only rates and applicable zones. Your suggestion sounds like a good one, but apparently it would have to be a voluntary action on the part of the taxi services themselves.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace's wife, Cornelia, says her husband suffered periods of deep depression and crying spells when recovering from a 1972 assassination attempt that left him paralyzed in both legs.

Mrs. Wallace said that at one time he was "rejecting his role of husband for that of an infant. Being crippled made George feel stripped of his masculinity. For the first time since we had been married, he started calling me 'mama' . . . He expected me to pamper him.

"If I had entered this game with him, I could have made him dependent on me for life. He would have become emotionally crippled as well as physically crippled." Mrs. Wallace comments on the Alabama governor's recovery and other matters in an autobiography, "Cornelia," scheduled to be published April 5 by A.J. Holman Co.

She says Wallace, who is again seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, fought his way out of depression and resumed a regular work schedule — "his real salvation."

Since the May 15, 1972, shooting at a Laurel, Md., shopping center as Wallace was campaigning for the presidential nomination, Mrs. Wallace has several times questioned whether Arthur Bremer, the man who was sentenced for the crime, acted alone.

In her book, she says laboratory reports showed five shots were fired from Bremer's gun. "But four people were hit, with six points of entry on George's body alone," she says, adding that another bullet was found in the asphalt.

"How could five bullets cause nine wounds?" she asks. "I have presented the facts so that you may draw your own conclusions."

Mrs. Wallace notes that many of the nation's political leaders visited Wallace at the hospital when he was recovering. She indicates she was impressed by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., writing that the former vice president is a "warm and

Cornelia Wallace Tells Of George's Comeback

Dear Abby

One Unwed Mother Who Wants Her Baby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, a 21-year-old working girl, is pregnant. She isn't going with anyone steady and doesn't want to get married right now. But she is thrilled because she really wants a baby. My husband and I are also thrilled because this will be our first grandchild.

We will do everything we can for her and the baby. We'll even adopt it if she wants us to.

She wants to keep the baby and take care of it herself. She doesn't want to tell the baby's father about her condition because although he's single, he isn't ready to settle down yet. She doesn't see him anymore.

What should she tell people who ask who the father is? If he doesn't pay anything toward the delivery and support, he doesn't get any visiting rights, does he?

Our daughter will be getting help from welfare. Does that mean she has to tell them who the father is? She would rather not. Also, does she have to put the father's name on the baby's birth certificate?

GRANNY-TO-BE

DEAR GRANNY: Since the laws differ from state to state, have your daughter ask her case worker to answer her questions. And tell her to ignore the people who ask who the baby's father is. That's her business. And her secret.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 42 years, and two years ago my husband told me that he wanted to have his left ear pierced so that he could wear a little gold earring in it. I asked why. No answer. Then I told him that his wedding ring was enough rings for a man. Still no answer. Soon I noticed that he had his left ear pierced and was wearing a tiny gold earring in it. We haven't had a happy day since.

I am 59 and he is 63. When friends ask me why my husband wears that earring, I don't know what to tell them. Even our priest has asked me.

If you or any of your readers has a clue, please let me know.

STUMPED IN MONTANA

DEAR STUMPED: The only person who can answer your question is your husband. If wearing a tiny gold earring in his left ear has special significance for him, ask him what it is. And if he tells you, please tell me.

DEAR ABBY: My husband grew up in a family of kissers. They were constantly giving each other (and everybody else) long, enthusiastic kisses on the mouth whenever the occasion arose.

I have asked my husband not to kiss our preteen daughters this way, and he thinks I am strange for feeling as I do. Abby, I have absolutely no objection to kissing friends and relatives on the cheek, but I save my mouth-to-mouth kisses for my husband.

When he kissed a young woman friend of mine on the lips last evening as a friendly greeting, she looked embarrassed. When I mentioned it to him later, he said, "Nonsense! It's time you shook your Victorian morals and joined the modern world."

Where do you stand, Abby?

STIFF UPPER LIP

DEAR STIFF: With you. The mouth is an erogenous zone, reserved for one's lover—or for mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

tender man, a humanitarian in every sense of the word and there is nothing phony about him.

"If he is guilty of one political sin, it's that he cares more about people than politics."

She says the days after the shooting were made worse by bomb threats telephoned to Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Springs, Md., where Wallace was under intensive treatment.

She says the hospital got an average of three such calls a day and one day there were so many that "when the hospital switchboard operator rang the Secret Service command post room and told an agent she had a bomb threat on the line, he said, 'I'm sorry, we've taken as many bomb threats as we can today. Tell them to call back tomorrow.'"

"He wasn't being frivolous. It just happened to be the end of a long day and everybody was beginning to get tired from the hospital routine."

Mrs. Wallace, the governor's second wife, recalls in the book the days when her uncle, James E. "Big Jim" Folsom, was the governor of Alabama and was accused by "narrowminded people" of being too liberal toward racial matters.

As his niece, she said she "felt the repercussions of his unpopular stance...."

"Injustice is just as painful to a white governor's niece as it is to a black sharecropper's son."

Discussing the assassination attempt, Mrs. Wallace adds, "There were many people who hated George Wallace before he was shot.... The barriers of hatred were broken that day in Laurel, Md."

"Today for the first time in his national political career, people who before had turned a deaf ear to the voice of George Wallace listen to what the man has to say. They may not agree, but they are no longer deaf to his voice."

Mrs. Wallace says the shooting was "part of God's plan in his (Wallace's) life." If Wallace ever walks again, "it will be only when God can claim the glory."

And she says he "may serve God better ... by continuing to be an inspiration to millions of handicapped people and to those of us who are able-bodied but are not measuring up to the tasks God has assigned to us."

Supply Of Canning Lids Doubled By Manufacturers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

While most home canners are still enjoying the fruits and vegetables of last year's labors, government and industry officials are looking ahead to the summer of 1976, trying to avoid shortages like the ones that plagued consumers in 1974 and 1975.

Nancy Harvey Steorts, consumers affairs adviser of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, says manufacturers report they will have more than four billion replacement lids available for this year's canning season. That's about double the 1975 supply.

"Will four billion be enough?" Bill Kerr of the Kerr Glass Co. of Los Angeles, one of the major manufacturers, said he hopes so, but refused to make any predictions.

Asked whether the supply would be adequate, Kerr said: "I'd have to ask you what the demand will be. We're going to do a lot better (than last year). We estimate we'll make 50 to 60 per cent more lids this year. Whether that will be enough, we don't know."

Kerr said this year's lid production will be double the number made three years ago. He said the company has been operating three shifts a day, seven days a week since Oct. 1 to turn out replacement lids for the reusable glass jars used by consumers to preserve a wide variety of foods.

The company also has been shipping them through regular distribution channels and Kerr said people have been buying "right through the winter." He said company representatives report the lids "don't remain on the store shelf longer than overnight."

The Ball Corp. of Muncie, Ind., another major manufacturer, also is producing lids at a record rate.

Like Kerr, Ball has added new equipment and spokesman Bill Brantley said the lids will come off the assembly line at the rate of 1,200 a minute. Last year, Brantley said, Ball produced four or five replacement lids for every new jar and lid combination. This year, he said, the ratio will be seven to one.

The canning lid crunch began in 1974 when soaring food prices prompted millions of Americans to turn to home gardening. The increased demand, combined with tight supplies of tinplate and soda ash, created a shortage.

Production was stepped up last year, but the lids disappeared as quickly as they were put on the shelves. There were reports of hoarding by worried consumers and claims that the industry was deliberately withholding lids.

The Federal Trade Commission, after a seven-week investigation, said it found no evidence of collusion on the part of the manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. Instead, the FTC said, the shortage resulted from "unprecedented demand which the industry was unprepared to supply despite substantial increases in ... production."

No one really anticipated the increased interest in home preserving of foods. "Five years ago," recalled Kerr, "we could hardly give the lids away."

Kerr said that despite the large volume produced, lids account for a relatively small portion of the company's sales which totaled $229 million last year. He declined to give specifics, but said that jar, cap and lid sales generally account for only 9 or 10 per cent of total sales.

(Kerr also makes commercial glass containers like mayonnaise jars — the ones you should not use for home canning.)

The Department of Agriculture, meanwhile, is continuing its campaign to make sure that home canners follow safety

ECU Faculty Member Appointed To Council

Therese Polard Lawler, an associate director of the Eastern Area Health Education Center and faculty member in the East Carolina University School of Nursing, has been appointed to the North Carolina Perinatal Advisory Council.

She is one of 15 council members, which include physicians, medical and nursing school professors, hospital administrators, state officials and nursing supervisors.

The council will advise the N. C. Dept. of Human Resources in the development of a statewide program to expand services relating to maternal and child health, and to reduce the state's high rates of infant death and illness.

The program will be voluntary and will be divided into six regional perinatal centers. Health services will be extended so that by 1980 at least 90 percent of all pregnant women receive prenatal care, and that high-risk mothers or infants receive consultation from physicians, social workers, nutritionists and other health and social services professionals.

Mrs. Lawler is a specialist in maternal and child health, and has worked professionally in obstetrical and gynecological nursing in New York and Illinois.

Since 1974 she has directed a project for perinatal nurse training at ECU, which was funded by the Regional Medical Program. Before accepting a position as associate director for nursing education for the Eastern AHEC, she was Director of Personal Health Services for the Pitt County Health Department.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

So many marriages these days are yielding two careers that today I'd like to talk about a question that is becoming a little sticky. "Should I ask my husband for his opinion or advice on things relating to my job?"

First, you have to answer a question: Are you two bright, consenting adults who want your marriage to grow into one of mutual interest and trust?

If the answer is yes, then you will want to read on and see how our family handled the situation.

Back in 1965, when I began writing this column for syndication, I gave the first one to my husband one night and said, "Read this column and tell me what you think."

He read it and said, "I think it's funny."

"Oh c'mon," I said. "You can be honest with me. If you see anything, no matter how small, I want to know about it."

"It's such a little thing..." "Please!" I begged. "I can handle it. After all, what possible reason would you have to criticize my work if not to improve it. Right? What is it you hate about the article?"

"I didn't say 'hate.' I said there was one small thing." "How small?" I asked straining to smile.

"You'll get sore," he said. "By this time I was coiled around his leg begging for his criticism as he dragged me across the floor trying to make an exit. 'Tell me where I've failed.'"

"Look," he said, "it's just the first paragraph."

"What's wrong with the first paragraph?" I asked evenly. "It seems like an attention getter."

"You see something wrong with 'Mrs. Herkle had never parked her car in the oven before.'"

"There's nothing wrong with it," he said lamely. "It just doesn't seem to have anything to do with the rest of the story."

"Isn't it funny," I said, "that I've been living with a literary critic for 16 years and never realized it. Is this the way you handle Truman Capote and Leon Uris and your other clients?"

"I see no need to continue this conversation."

"You've always been jealous because you have no humor."

"I married you, didn't I?" "Well, I said grabbing my column back, "if you can't offer a simple bit of criticism without getting sarcastic..."

Should a woman ask her husband for his opinion or advice on things relating to her job? Of course she should ask. Just don't hang around when he answers.

Best Approach In Budget-Cuts

State Budget Officer Kenneth Howard says there is "no painless way" to cut state spending under the limitations imposed by the Holshouser administration.

The cuts were ordered after it became clear that there would be a severe shortfall of funds for the state government.

A ceiling of $477.5 million has been set on allocations for April through June in order to save $30 million in the budget.

Included in the limitations is a partial freeze on hiring curtailment of travel and holding off on equipment purchases, all as a part of the effort to make certain that the state budget balances, as the law requires.

There are indications that the administration is leaving it up to the various departments and agencies to find ways to live within the new spending limitations.

"Agencies all over are working nights to see how they can cope," Howard said.

We feel that is the best approach to the problem. The agency heads, while not welcoming the cuts they are having to live with, should know best what can most easily be cut out.

It is painful to cut anything, but it is obvious that it must be done, if North Carolina is to stay within its revenues. No one agency should bear the brunt of the budget slashes, but each agency should examine its spending and cut out the least essential items.

More People Are Alive To Complain

There's no arguing with the weekly figures we see on traffic fatalities. Something is working out right.

At the close of the past weekend it was reported the North Carolina toll for 1976 had reached 205, or 14 fewer than at the same time last year.

And 1975 is a year to be remembered by the safety-conscious as the one when the steadily rising traffic fatality chart made a sudden down-turn.

It is very difficult to avoid concluding the 55 MPH speed limit has something to do with the declining number of crash deaths. Not everybody observes the lowered speed limit; but we do suspect a large percentage of the 205 traffic victims thus far in 1976 would be alive today if they had been observing the 55 MPH limits.

The slower speed has two things going for it: more reaction-time is available to the driver than at 75; and it carries a somewhat lessened crash impact.

Many drivers dislike highway travel at slower speed than they're accustomed; but at the same time, more people are alive to complain.

"Steady as she goes! Steady as she's going! Steady as she..."

THIS AFTERNOON

Govm't NEEDS Business

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—There are those who from time to time issue outspoken criticism of the "special interest" pressure group known as the business community for its active role in state and local governments in North Carolina.

Those who criticize loudest seldom stop to ponder a simple fact: government creates no wealth, and without commerce there would be no wealth to tax.

Some looked askance recently when candidates for governor and lieutenant governor came to court the Merchants Association of North Carolina at the first of several such gatherings of retailers to hear what message the hopefuls might bring.

Those who think government is the final answer to all social ills and should divorce itself from such special interest groups, raising itself on a pedestal above the common marketplace tend to forget the historic significance of trade.

Close Relations

Most of the candidates for high office in this state paid homage to that traditional and successful close relationship between government and business, and to the simple chain of events which has proved itself over and over:

Government creates an atmosphere in which honest trade is encouraged, invited, urged to succeed. From success comes jobs in making, transporting, selling goods; and with wages people buy other goods, homes, transportation, leisure rewards. From that buying, more jobs are created and, as people prosper, wages go up and more stuff is brought, money banked, and jobs created.

How does government prosper from that? The more money that is spent, the more taxes pour into state coffers; the more people working and the higher the wages, the more income taxes are collected.

But the warning signals are clear. Both state and federal governments are creating bureaucratic licenses and inspections and reports and forms and fee schedules and regulations and restrictions to the point that most merchants wonder whether they are working for themselves, their own families and communities, or for government.

Here, briefly culled from their remarks, are the comments candidates for governor had to say about this:

Some Comments

Jacob F. Alexander, Republican: "You (businessmen) are the economy, and you need freedom from Big Brother in Washington or in Raleigh."

David T. Flaherty, Republican: "Government is trying to do too many things for too many people... we need to set priorities. There is no need to increase taxes... improved business (measures) can do the job."

James B. Hunt, Democrat: "Washington ought to keep its hands off business (which) is being handcuffed, over-regulated... We can get additional income from the state not from higher taxes, but from higher incomes through improved business."

Wallace E. McCall, Republican: "Business must have less government red tape and forms, taxation, and overspending of tax dollars."

E.M. O'Herron, Democrat: "Business is being held back and stifled by red tape, regulations, and government rulings... businessmen are fed up with governmental interference... Businessmen have delegated their business to lawyers and professional politicians. It is time for us to do it ourselves, and if we don't, we have no one to blame but ourselves."

Coy, C. Privette, Republican: "Government is harassing business and trying to stymie what you do... Businessmen know what it is to tighten the belt, to live within a budget and say No. That is the hardest thing in the world for a politician to do... to say No."

Thomas E. Strickland, Democrat: "Government must stay out of peoples' business, and build incentives to create more jobs and get more people to work."

Libel Law 'Messed Up'

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, which long ago made a mess of the law on obscenity, now promises to make a worse mess of the law on libel. Last week's decision in the Firestone case was a bummer.

In one sense, these observations amount to shop talk, for the Court's opinion is of primary interest to reporters and editors who deal with court news. In a larger sense, it may be suggested that a free press is everyone's concern; and to the extent that a free press is inhibited, everyone suffers. The Firestone decision threatens to inhibit us sorely.

This is what happened. In 1961, Russell Firestone, Jr., then 35, took as his third wife a beautiful Palm Beach school teacher, 26-year-old Mary Alice Sullivan. It proved a stormy marriage. In 1965, she sued for separate maintenance. He filed a countersuit for divorce.

The trial in the Circuit

Court of Palm Beach County was a 17-month sensation. The wealthy Firestones were hot copy in the jet set. In time the Florida Supreme Court would describe the case as "a veritable cause celebre."

In December, 1967, Circuit Judge James Knott delivered his opinion and entered a final order. He alluded to certain testimony indicating that Mrs. Firestone had engaged in "bizarre" extramarital escapades "of an amatory nature which would have made Dr. Freud's hair curl." Other testimony indicated that her husband "was guilty of bounding from one bed partner to another with the erotic zest of a satyr." The trial judge was inclined to discount much of this testimony as unreliable, but in any event, he found, the equities were with the husband.

Firestone had based his counterclaim for divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty and adultery. The Palm Beach judge ordered "that defendant's counterclaim for divorce be and the same is hereby granted."

Time magazine, working on a tight deadline, reported the item in its "Milestones" column, noting briefly that Mrs. Firestone had been divorced by her husband "on grounds of extreme cruelty and adultery." Three weeks later she sued Time for libel. A jury awarded her $100,000.

As it became clear later, though it was by no means clear from the court order, Mrs. Firestone had not been found guilty of adultery. Under Florida law at that time, alimony could not be awarded to an adulterous wife, and Mrs. Firestone plainly had been awarded alimony of $3,000 a month. Time erred.

Last week the Supreme Court, speaking through Justice Rehnquist, refused to overturn the libel judgment outright. The Court instead remanded the case to the Florida courts for a determination of Time's "fault" in preparing its brief account. But in the course of its inept opinion, the Court produced uncertainties almost as gross as the uncertainties in the original divorce decree.

The Court split 4-2-2. Rehnquist, Burger, White and Blackmun were ready to nail Time magazine to the wall. Justices Powell and Stewart didn't know what to think. Justices Brennan and Marshall, to their credit, dissented furiously. Newsmen who cover the Court whistled a disconsolate tune: Bill Douglas, Won't You Please Come Home. It was a terrible decision.

Until last week, "public figures" had a reasonably well understood identification in the law of libel. Until last week, honest error in the reporting of a court proceeding — especially error arising from an ambiguous court opinion — was not enough, in itself, to justify a libel judgment in the absence of malice. Until last week, court proceedings — any court proceedings, civil or criminal — were understood to be matters of real public concern.

Assigned To Learn America

By BARTON REPPERT

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. diplomats will be assigned to year-long stints working with American state and local governments and schools in an effort to give the officials a better feel for the country they represent.

The State Department says its "Assignment America" program is designed to give Foreign Service officers career training and experience as well as giving them needed contact with the people they serve.

A department spokesman said a pilot group of about 20 officers will be involved when the domestic service program begins this summer.

No specific assignments have been firmly decided on yet, said spokesman Gerson H. Lush. "It's still up in the air," he said.

However, it is expected that positions to be filled by the initial group will include a spot on (Continued on page 5)

Microwave Affair Hushed

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—President Ford's administration has removed some electronics intelligence equipment from the U.S. embassy roof in Moscow in return for reduced Soviet microwave bombardment of the embassy—a top secret effort to avoid an open rupture of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Intensified electromagnetic radiation beamed at the embassy to interrupt U.S. intelligence-gathering has produced repeated complaints that embassy personnel, including Ambassador Walter Stoessel, have been physically harmed. The Soviet government refused even to acknowledge the microwave attack, much less stop it. Thus, the Ford-Kissinger policy of detente was seriously threatened on a peripheral issue.

The result is what critical officials high in the Ford administration call "hand-wringing" diplomacy. Instead of outright U.S. demands that the Soviets observe the bounds of civilized behavior, a bargain of sorts has now been secretly struck. Some electronics equipment on the embassy's roof used to penetrate confidential Soviet communications has been removed. In return, electromagnetic radiation at the embassy has decreased.

However, radiation remains above minimum safety standards, and the matter is by no means closed.

Many nuances and implications of this hush-hush affair are not fully known; nor is its ultimate outcome. But critics within the administration believe Mr. Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger are following tactics that have probably failed in past confrontations with the Kremlin.

The Soviets began directing microwaves at the U.S. embassy in the early 1960s, obviously as a countermeasure against electronic spying. By contrast, the U.S. has followed the normal diplomatic practice and dealt indirectly with similar electronic spying from the Soviet embassy in Washington—never by beaming microwaves against the Russians.

That the radiation in Moscow was above the Soviets' own safety standard has for years been the subject of innumerable conferences high in the government. President Johnson raised the matter at Glassboro, N.J., in 1967 with Soviet Prime Minister Alexei Kosygin, who disclaimed any knowledge of microwave bombardment. However, the U.S. decided not to press its grievance.

What changed this was a drastic increase in electromagnetic radiation at the embassy in Moscow within the last 24 to 36 months.

The main purpose of that increase is believed to be counter-measures against electronic eavesdropping devices in and on top of the embassy. But U.S. intelligence sources believe the Soviets might also be pursuing one or all of three other purposes:

First, actual physical harm to U.S. personnel (which some embassy employees claim has afflicted many embassy officials, including Ambassador Stoessel); (Continued on page 5)

IS RELIGION A THEORY?

An English prime minister of the nineteenth century, Lord William Melbourne, returned from church one Sunday morning fuming with rage at the preacher. "He is one of those pestiferous fellows," said Melbourne, "who supposes that religion has to do with a person's private life." Melbourne's words were somewhat similar to those of the man who remarked that he belonged to a certain church because it didn't interfere with his politics or his religion.

Many people succeed to their own satisfaction, at least, in keeping their religion in one section of their minds and their mode of living in another. Some of these people are quite sincere in their religious professions and seem to get a certain comfort out of their faith.

But if religion is only a theory, then men have wasted money building churches and cathedrals and are continuing to waste money in their support of them. Jesus intended that religion should be a way of life, an unchangeable standard of moral conduct.

Housing Starts 'Below Needs'

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 60 per cent of all American households own their homes, but that level is in danger, despite a gradual improvement in the outlook for the industry.

Last year the number of housing starts totaled about 1.1 million. This year the number is expected to grow to 1.5 million or 1.6 million—possibly more, but still hundreds of thousands below the need.

Good housing, sociologists agree, is a requirement of a sound society. Without it, a variety of other social ills manifest themselves, always in financially wasteful ways.

What in the world has happened to housing? As described by John C. Hart, it would seem that society has somehow declared war against homeowners, which in a nation of homeowners is a form of fratricide.

Hart, president of the National Association of Home Builders, said in a statement this week that taxes and inflation have increased maintenance costs 303 per cent in the past 20 years, pricing 80 per cent of potential homebuyers out of the market.

From 1955 to 1975, he said, real estate taxes have soared 341 per cent, insurance 321 per cent, maintenance and repairs 269 per cent, utilities 199 per cent and mortgage interest from 4.8 per cent to 9 per cent.

At the very time earnings actually decreased, in terms of spending power, the prices of new and existing housing soared. In 1965, only 3 per cent of new single-family homes cost more than $40,000; now that's a typical price. Not all of this has been caused by inflation, unless you include in that definition the inflated dreams of many builders and homebuyers. A few facts from the "Savings and Loan Fact Book" shows what happened between 1966 and 1973:

"The average floor space of a new home increased by 8.1 per cent.

"The percentage of new homes having two or more stories rose from 18 per cent to 23 per cent.

"The percentage of homes with two or more bathrooms increased from 50 per cent to 60 per cent.

"The percentage of new homes having central air conditioning grew from 25 per cent to 49 per cent."

Those trends are correctable. Many home-seekers and builders have lowered their sights; they are cutting out the frills and shrinking prices a bit without, they say, reducing the basic quality of the product.

Those efforts often are hampered, however, by another holdover from another day: Restrictive zoning and building codes seek to maintain a standards that some critics say is unrealistic. They prevent a return of the basic house.

Other critics say the tax system must be changed.

Meanwhile, the thrift industry — made up of savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks that are the chief mortgage leaders — fears a diminution of its ability to finance future housing needs. Because of competition for funds from commercial banks, they say they need expanded powers, such as checking accounts.

Another Psychiatrist Will Be Heard In Patty Hearst's Trial

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A psychiatrist whom Patricia Hearst once accused of bullying her to tears says she "quivered and half-sobbed" when he bluntly inquired into her motives for joining terrorists in a bank holdup.

Dr. Harry Kozol, who was embroiled in a dispute with Miss Hearst in January, began his testimony for the prosecution Wednesday at her trial for bank robbery.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. said Kozol, who interviewed the defendant five times, will challenge her contention that she was still a frightened kidnap victim when she joined her Symbionese Liberation Army captors in crime.

Chief defense counsel F. Lee Bailey said he would vigorously protest Kozol's testimony and probably would refer to the previous dispute between the doctor and the defendant.

The diminutive, gray-haired expert appearing for the government said Wednesday that he first mentioned the SLA, the tiny terrorist tribe that kidnaped Miss Hearst on Feb. 4, 1974, by asking her to describe slain SLA chieftain Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze.

"He was always giving orders," he quoted her as saying.

Kozol, 69, depicted Miss Hearst as ill but cooperative at their first meeting on Jan. 7. But he said he was disturbed by "her smoking constantly."

He said he got the impression "this was a girl who talks directly and likes to be directly spoken to."

In that vein, he said, he referred to the bank robbery and "I asked bluntly, 'Why did you do it.'"

He said she replied, "They told me to," and he quoted this exchange with the defendant at her jail cell:

Q. Who were they?
A. Cinque and the others.
Q. What did they do?
A. They told me I would go in the bank and get my picture taken and I did it.... they told me that if I didn't do it, I would be killed.

At that point, Kozol said, Miss Hearst "quivered and half-sobbed" and he suggested that she take a sip of coffee.

During a pretrial hearing in January, Miss Hearst testified in court that Kozol had "ordered" her to drink the coffee and had driven her to hysteria with accusing questions. Her attorneys asked that Kozol be prevented from examining her again.

Kozol denied that he had been harsh, and U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter refused to remove the psychiatrist as a government consultant. Kozol subsequently examined Miss Hearst four more times.

Kozol, who had been sitting in the courtroom nearly every day for several weeks, was the second psychiatric expert called by the government in its rebuttal case against three defense experts who had described Miss Hearst as a terrified pawn of her kidnapers.

The defense testimony that she was a hostage of fear during her entire 19 months in the underground was stoutly contested by Dr. Joel Fort, who spent four days on the witness stand and deflected attempts by Bailey to shake him from his conclusion that the newspaper heiress freely joined the SLA.

Report Col...

The staff of Georgia Gov. George Busbee along with a top-level job in the Wisconsin state government.

During a visit last weekend to Atlanta, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger personally assured Busbee that the Georgia state government would be among the first to benefit from the new program, according to Busbee's press secretary, Duane Riner.

Riner said the governor has repeatedly contended that some kind of State Department representation in Atlanta would be helpful to aid Georgia officials and businessmen in preparing for missions abroad to attract foreign trade and investment.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey also has expressed a personal interest in the domestic service program.

An aide to Lucey said the governor hopes one of the Foreign Service officers can be assigned as an assistant to Manuel Carballo, chief of Wisconsin's Department of Health and Social Services. Wisconsin is offering to pay 20 per cent of the State Department officer's salary while he is on duty in Madison, the aide said.

Under legislation adopted by Congress last year authorizing the program, such reimbursement is provided for but not required.

The measure states that "a substantial number" of Foreign Service officers are to be assigned "for significant duty with a state or local government, public school, community college or other public organization" designated by the secretary of state.

It also provides that up to 20 per cent of the diplomats in the program may be assigned to congressional offices.

The provision's chief sponsor, Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., argued that "it is vital that the men and women who represent the United States and help formulate and execute its foreign policy remain in touch with their own country and its people."

Rehnquist alone may know what the law of libel is. In this case, the trial judge noted that Firestone's counterclaim was based "on grounds of extreme cruelty and adultery." The trial judge granted "the same." Time magazine truthfully reported a bungled decree involving prominent public figures. And Time got hit for $100,000. This may pass for justice in the Florida Supreme Court, which hates a free press, but it is a sorry and ominous development to see the U.S. Supreme Court rule as it ruled last week.

Librarians Joined In ECU Workshop

Forty-seven librarians from county and municipal public libraries in North Carolina have completed a "Reference Tools and Techniques" workshop at East Carolina University.

The program was developed by the N.C. Library Association and the N.C. Division of State Library, in cooperation with the ECU Division of Continuing Education.

Funding was provided under Title I of the Library Services and Construction Act.

Workshop coordinators and instructors included Nancy Fulbright, director of the Davidson County Public Library; Judith Sutton, adult services consultant for the N. C. State Library; Jane Williams, chair of the NCLA Committee on Continuing Education and associate director of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Public Library; Eugene Huguélet, director of ECU's Joyner Library; Virginia Gibson, State Library interlibrary services head; and Antoinette Thompson, Wake County Public Library reference librarian.

ECU Librarians Artemis Kares, Martha Lapas, and Marilyn Stephenson conducted special sessions on referenced sources in the social sciences, science and technology, and religion and philosophy.

The workshop was the final one of a series of three at ECU for professional librarians.

second, psychological trauma, rendering employees unable to function effectively (which has clearly happened); third, to activate sensors secretly placed inside the embassy to record conversations for Soviet ears (which has not yet been confirmed).

No protest was made to Moscow after the radiation level increased, but word inevitably began leaking through Washington. Attempting to plug the leaks, high State Department officials argued privately that disclosure might generate damage suits against the government from embassy employees with claims of illness. Far more significantly, these officials continued, disclosure would compromise the embassy's electronics intelligence.

Indeed, after the Boston Globe's William Beecher revealed the increased microwave bombardment and Stoen's illness, Soviet diplomats in Washington began a campaign of whispering to American newsmen about the Moscow embassy's electronic spying.

Faced with growing leaks of secret information in the press, the administration moved publicly and privately. Publicly, an electioneering President Ford finessed the issue: his only public statement came in a Feb. 8 press conference at Durham, N.H.: "I have heard rumors concerning it, but I don't think it is a matter that ought to be discussed at this point." Privately, the U.S. turned to Dr. Kissinger's "quiet diplomacy," the full nature of which is unknown but clearly included removal of embassy electronic equipment and accompanying reduction of microwave bombardment.

Officials critical of "quiet diplomacy" believe State Department emissaries should have pounded the table instead of wringing their hands; should have loudly informed the Russians that violating the sovereignty of an embassy is an intolerable breach of international conduct.

Thus, the microwave affair transcends U.S. intelligence operations and even a hoped-for successful conclusion of diplomatic efforts. Faced with blatant provocation, the U.S. government did not react until after public disclosure, and then employed shrouded maneuvers to smother and smooth the trouble. The implications have not been lost on the Kremlin.

Duke Chemist To Head Seminar

Peter W. Jeffs, professor of chemistry at Duke University, will direct the regular Friday afternoon seminar program at the East Carolina Department of Chemistry this week.

The seminar, scheduled for Friday, March 12 at 2 p.m. in room 201 Flanagan Building, will focus on tumor inhibitors.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

Realtors Board Hears Speaker

The Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors met Tuesday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The guest speaker was Helene von Damm, private secretary to Gov. Ronald Reagan. She spoke to the group on her experiences with the Governor since 1966 and his capabilities for leadership.

She also mentioned her book "Sincerely, Ronald Reagan," which has just come off the press.

Several new members were inducted: Bill Clark, Louise Hodge, and Dees Whitley as realtors, and John Day as associate realtor.

Plans were also discussed for the upcoming private property week to be held April 18-24.

Confederate Pension To Possible Union Widow

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—For 16 years, Tennessee has been paying a Confederate widow's pension to a woman whose husband may have served in the Union Army.

And state officials say they don't know how to stop the $175 monthly payments even if they can show that Mrs. Texanna Whitfield's husband fought with federal forces instead of the Confederacy.

The state board that determined Civil War pensions was abolished five years ago.

The 86-year-old Memphis woman told the Nashville Banner she thinks her husband, Robert Whitfield, was a Confederate soldier but she is not sure.

"He didn't talk much about the war, but I think I heard him say he fought for the South," she said. "I can't think of his name right now — the man he said he fought under."

The couple was married in 1925 in Tunica, Miss. He died four years later at the age of 100. Mrs. Whitfield now lives in a small three-room house with her grandson.

"He said I would get a pension, but he didn't have any discharge papers," Mrs. Whitfield said. It was not until 1960 when she moved to Memphis that she found her husband's papers and applied for the pension.

Documents on file with the Tennessee Department of Human Services include an October 1883 report from the adjutant general's office in the U.S. War Department that Whitfield served in Company E, 61st regiment, U.S. Colored Troops, from February 1864 to December 1865.

The Veterans Administration is now checking its records in Washington in an attempt to determine which uniform

Whitfield wore.

Still, state officials do not know how to stop Mrs. Whitfield's pension even if it is shown that her husband fought for the Union since the Confederate Pensions Board was abolished in 1971.

"If you have a question, who do you bring it up to?" asked Warren Causey, a spokesman for the Human Services Department.

"If she is not eligible, what do you do about it?"

Mrs. Whitfield was one of the last Civil War widows to be approved under a 1905 state act declaring "any widow of a Confederate veteran to be pensionable." Only five women in Tennessee are now drawing the Civil War pension.

"I guess I won't be here much longer either," she said.

Pitt TLC Counseling Program Termed Pace-Setter

Help! Give me some TLC
Too old for dolls;

Too old for Santa Claus;

Too old for baby sitters;

Too old for asking for money;

Too old for turning in early;
too young for staying up late.
Too old to be caught crying;
too young to be petted.

TLC

These are the problems that many elementary students face in their everyday lives. They are the in-betweens. They are in between toddlers and teenagers. They are the middle school student and their problems are very real. To help these problems, training for living and learning counseling centers have been established. Two Pitt County schools, Farmville Middle School and Ayden Grammar School have been experimenting with TLC counseling centers for 1½ years. The program is federally funded for three years.

TLC counseling allows teachers to meet with counselors and teachers in discussion groups to discuss general and individual problems of the students.

The students become group members and peer counselors. They assist tutoring, learn to accept responsibilities, learn about personal values, and learn about stages of physical and mental development.

Parents become involved as volunteers in the school classrooms and screening groups, they become aware of student problems, and meet with the counselors in group discussions.

The counselors work with the students, teachers, and parents to find the needs of the students and the school and helps to coordinate programs to solve the problems.

The counselor at Farmville Middle School is Mrs. Sarah Orgel and the counselor at Ayden Grammar School is Mrs. Elaine King. The director of the TLC program in Pitt County is Mrs. Kathryn Lewis and her assistant consultant is Dr. Charles Coble.

"The TLC program is the most foresighted concept in counseling in the United States and it's happening in Pitt County," said Dr. Coble.

"High schools usually have counselors who help students decide their occupations and the colleges of their choice. This program is designed to help the pre-high school student with his problems now through self studies and a self evaluation. It is hoped that by improving the self concept of the student that school achievement will be improved in direct proportions."

"The schools have counselor aides who assist the counselors. These aides are trained at Pitt Technical Institute in a Mental Health Technology curriculum," Coble said.

"All of the programs in the counseling program must have an academic objective. In both schools academic achievement went up."

"Suspensions, truancy, and discipline problems have declined in the two schools. We hope that the group counseling has been supportive enough to the students that it is fulfilling the need which keeps them from being truant or poorly disciplined," said Dr. Coble.

"We are in the second year of TLC and the community has fully supported the program," said Mrs. Rogel.

"Many parents have requested that the counseling be expanded to the other schools so we have begun a peer counseling program at Farmville Middle School. We take a group of the eighth grade students who we have counseled here, to another school and they act as peer counselors for lower grade students such as second and third grade students. The results of the peer counseling is that the younger students are more aware of self concept and are more aware of peer opinions."

"Counseling is for everyone at our school. There is no stigma attached to the visit to the counselor because each child in the school comes at least once every two weeks as a part of an activity period."

"This year we have much parent involvement in our counseling program. We have started parent groups and parents are tutoring and assisting teachers," she said.

"We could not see all of the groups of students unless we had the counselors aides. We have two aides and an intern from Pitt Tech and an intern from ECU. They help coordinate activities for the groups. Our counselor aides are Yvonne Pearce and Lynn Scarborough and our interns are John Maye and Steve Bonner. There are very few male teachers at this level in the schools, so we are very happy to have male interns.

"Our counseling center is being used to help inform other schools of the need for counseling in lower grades. We are able to support or host workshops on counseling and we often send some of our teachers to workshops to learn about counseling in the classrooms."

One activity students have participated in at Farmville Middle School was a group discussion on dating. For this activity, Mrs. Orgel gave each student a question about dating from the Dear Abby newspaper column. Each student was asked to read the question aloud and supply his own answer. The group discussed jealousy, age of dating, and companionship.

The Ayden Grammar Counseling Center has several ground rules that all students abide by while at the center and hopefully in the classrooms. They are as follows: listen carefully—to directions and to each other; no put-downs—respect each other; give each person a turn to speak; help each other; and free to pass—it is not necessary to answer if you don't want to.

"I work with the teachers providing an inservice training workshop in and out of the schools," said Mrs. King.

"We have teacher discussions during school while parents volunteer to take over the classes, and we discuss guidance activities. One program that we started in our teacher discussion groups was the warm fuzzy program. The teachers told their classes a fairytale story about people who gave warm fuzzies away and the school adopted the make-someone-happy-each-day plan.

A student activity day has been developed at Ayden Grammar School. The last two hours of the third testing day each six weeks students may sign up for activities to be directed in each classroom of the school. Activities included sewing, dancing, cooking, basketball, and other programs.

Each fifth and eighth grade student goes to the counseling center once a week and each sixth and seventh grade student goes to the center every two weeks. The counseling center accommodates three groups per session.

A Student Advisory Counseling Committee has been established at Ayden Grammar School. Each home room has two representatives who help the students in the class and who help the counselors by making them aware of problems that individuals or classrooms may have. The Student Advisory Committee has meetings where the representatives learn activities to share with their classes.

Mrs. Wanda Reddick, home school counselor, and Mrs. Shirley Gerry, counselor aid, explained that the center contains a diagnostic center, reading and math program, a good time box, occupations references, and parent and teacher supplements.

Mrs. King and the counselor aides agreed that the parent participation has been major in assisting the success of the program.

Although the TLC counseling program is federally funded for only three years, parents, teachers, and counselors are hoping that the program will be continued to assist pre-high school students.

COUNSELING — Mrs. Elaine King, counselor at Ayden Grammar School counsels students. The students are ending a counseling session by writing a memory sentence in their personal folder.

No Let-Up In Terrorism By Argentine Guerrillas

By STAN LEHMAN
 (UPI) — Despite recent losses, Argentina's left-wing guerrillas show no sign of giving up their six-year effort to impose a socialist government on the country.

"The People's Revolutionary Army is willing to carry out all the necessary sacrifices and to use all our energies," one of Argentina's two main guerrilla groups said in a recent clandestine publication.

"We are encouraged by the absolute certainty that at the end of this long road we will see an independent and socialist Argentina."

The Marxist-line People's Revolutionary Army, known by its Spanish initials as ERP, shares the struggle with the Montoneros, a separate outfit with similar goals and tactics.

The armed forces admit the guerrillas still pose a serious problem, although military men have expressed guarded optimism that they have the insurgents on the run.

There is no official body count of all those who have died in Argentina's political violence. But the total for the past six years is at least 1,300 — including more than 800 in 1975 alone.

The violence began as daring raids and kidnappings by leftists, then expanded into a deadly feud between the right and left wings of the Peronist movement. Guerrilla assassination campaigns against policemen and army officers have added to the toll, as have full-scale battles between the insurgents and security forces.

Finally, right-wing death squads have kidnaped hundreds of guerrilla suspects or leftist sympathizers from their homes and executed them after beatings and torture, with no apparent interference from police.

For the past year, the army has been fighting a Vietnam-style anti-insurgency campaign against the ERP in the mountains and jungles of Tucuman Province in the northwest. The army says the guerrillas who once dominated the impoverished sugarcane area have been reduced to small groups, ill-fed and demoralized.

Nevertheless, the ERP managed to plan and execute a major attack on an army arsenal south of Buenos Aires just before Christmas, coordinated with a half-dozen diversionary raids. The army, apparently tipped off, smashed the attack and killed scores of guerrillas. But ambushes of police and soldiers have continued steadily since then on a lesser scale.

Guerrilla actions appear aimed at disrupting political and economic life to the point where Argentines will welcome a socialist solution to the nation's problems.

A second aim was to try to provoke the armed forces to overthrow the weak civilian government of President Isabel Peron and impose a harsh military regime. This theoretically would bring recruits for an all-out guerrilla offensive to seize power, as Fidel Castro did in Cuba in 1959.

Argentina hardly seems like an ideal country for a guerrilla movement. Its 24 million people have one of the highest living standards in Latin America, despite years of political squabbling and economic errors. Leftist political parties draw a tiny percentage of votes in national elections.

The country is 20 times the size of Cuba — bigger than France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Greece and Turkey put together. Mountains and jungles capable of hiding insurgents are isolated from main population centers by hundreds of miles of pampas, open plains without a hill or tree in sight.

Poorly organized attempts to establish leftist guerrilla bases in the mountainous northwest region were broken up by police and the army with relative ease in 1959 and 1968.

But Argentina's large cities with their militant labor and student groups proved fertile ground for urban guerrilla operations.

The economy was stagnant under the military government that had seized power in 1966 and there was no outlet for legitimate protest.

Small, anonymous bands seized weapons in a series of minor attacks on police and military posts in 1969.

The kidnaping and execution of former President Pedro Aramburu in May, 1970, brought the guerrillas into prominence. Responsibility was claimed by the Montoneros, a small group taking its name from Argentine irregulars who battled for independence from Spain in the early 19th century.

The Montoneros pledged to bring back exiled former president Juan D. Peron, counting on him to establish a "socialist fatherland."

Two Tar Heels Were Experts On Explosives

By Dr. H. G. Jones, Curator North Carolina Collection
 Written for Associated Press
 CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Two brothers, natives of New Bern, became the Confederacy's leading experts on explosives during the Civil War, but because both spent most of their adulthood outside the state, they are seldom remembered as Tar Heels.

Gabriel James Rains and George Washington Rains were sons of a New Bern cabinetmaker, Gabriel Manigault Rains, and his wife, the former Hester (or Esther) Ambrose. Both were educated in the New Bern Academy, then were selected as cadets in the United States Military Academy. In the Civil War, Gabriel and George served the Confederacy as high ranking officers.

Gabriel Rains graduated from West Point in 1827 and was given an army commission. He was wounded and decorated for gallantry in the Seminole War, and he participated in the Mexican War.

When the Southern states seceded from the Union in 1861, Lieutenant Colonel Gabriel Rains of the Union army became a brigadier general in the Confederate army. For years he had been experimenting with explosives, and when he was placed in charge of a brigade at Yorktown the following winter, he mined the waters. When in the spring his troops were forced to retreat, he planted shells and percussion fuses along the roadway, causing casualties among the pursuing Union soldiers.

This first use of land mines in warfare brought outraged cries from Federal officials and the Northern press. Many Southern officers, gentlemen even in war, were also indignant over the use of so ruthless an invention which caused such indiscriminate deaths. Confederate James Longstreet forbade their use against the enemy.

A great debate ensued among Confederate leaders. Finally, Secretary of War George Randolph decided that it was all right to use the land mines "in a parapet to repel assault, or in a road to check pursuit," but he rejected their use "merely to destroy life."

The controversy brought General Rains to the attention of President Jefferson Davis who was enormously impressed by a small, black object that looked like a lump of coal. The device, concocted by Rains, was designed to be slipped into the coal supply of enemy vessels. Its effectiveness was demonstrated when one of the camouflaged bombs was shoved into the boiler of a captured blockade runner, the Greyhound, which was carrying Union General Benjamin Butler and Admiral David Porter.

Both officers escaped the explosion and subsequent sinking, but thereafter a close watch was placed around all Union coal supplies.

President Davis then appointed Rains to the position of superintendent of the Confederate Torpedo Bureau. Soon he built torpedo (mine) factories at Richmond, Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, and Mobile, and supplied mines—some of them weighing nearly a ton—to protect the James River from Federal ships. More Union ships were said to have been lost during the war from mines than from all other causes. Rains himself claimed that his mines sank at least 58 enemy vessels.

In his native state, Rains' mines sank seven of twelve Federal ships on the Roanoke River. His land mines helped Fort Fisher hold out until early in 1865, thus keeping open the South's most important lifeline until the last four months of the war.

His land mines were crudely but ingeniously constructed. One type involved a small buried powder keg protected from the rain by a conical tin roof over which was laid a small plank, itself half-buried. One step on the plank set off the explosion.

Around Richmond alone, Rains' men planted nearly 1,500 mines. After the fall of the city, Southerners who knew how to locate the mines had to lead their captors through the mined fields.

After the defeat of the South, General Rains lived in Atlanta. Later he was clerk in the Quartermaster Department, stationed at Charleston. He married Mary Jane McClellan, a granddaughter of Governor John Sevier of Tennessee, and they had six children. The general died in Aiken, South Carolina, on August 6, 1881.

In subsequent wars dozens of nations improved upon this weapon of death first pioneered by the New Bern native whose brother (to be discussed next week) was simultaneously serving the Confederacy as a supplier of gunpowder.

The Flood Control Act enacted by Congress in 1928, following the great Mississippi flood of 1927, appropriated $325 million for levee work in the Mississippi Valley over a 10-year period.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made another pass at the 1,000 level in the Dow Jones industrial average today and then retreated to just below that point.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips stood at 999.13, up 3.85, at 11:30 a.m. Gainers outnumbered losers by about a 5-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was fairly active. The Dow reached 1,000 for the fourth time in the last three days about 45 minutes into the session.

And once again it immediately ran into resistance at that point.

Analysts said the market still seemed to need a push from some favorable economic development to get the impetus to break through profit taking at 1,000 in the Dow.

Central & South West was the most active Big Board issue, unchanged at 14¼. A 430,000-share block traded at 145.

United Technologies, which won a $524 million addition to an Air Force contract, gained ¾ to 58½.

Marcop picked up 1½ to 32½ on top of a 1¼ advance Wednesday, when the company posted sharply higher quarterly earnings.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose 23 to 54.20.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .40 at 105.14.

RECREATION...
A site for the proposed building has not been selected. The general understanding is however, that a site will be chosen in East Greenville so that the library replacement of East Branch will keep the library in that general area.

The entire building has been designed with parking areas and entryways to be compatible with needs of handicapped persons. "The small crafts room and the games room," Lee said, "will both be for the exclusive use of handicapped persons." Commission members also approved the statement of financial conditions of the Greenville Little Leagues for the year 1975.

The annual statement for the 180 Greenville boys who are players in the Little Leagues shows a total income for the year of $28,222.96, with total expenses amounting to $23,354.14, and a carry forward of cash on hand into 1976 of $4,868.14.

A couple of commission members expressed surprise that the boys themselves had to pay "a players dues" of $10 each. Lee pointed out this fee helped pay for the uniforms for each player.

Big income items on the statement include $5,368.20 resulting from the Little League supper account and the Brown and Wood collection of $1,532.00. A profit of nearly $2,000 was realized from concession stands during the season.

Major expense items include $1,454 for umpires and score-keepers; $2,000 for the D.H. Gordon administrative expense allowance; $2,399.93 to H.H. Hodges for baseball equipment and miscellaneous supplies; $2,852.34 for concession expenses; and $1,000 for the All-Star trip to Asheville.

A request for waiver of fee for use of a recreation facility submitted by John Taylor, was not granted, with a motion made and passed that the recently approved non-waiver policy be adhered to.

Approval was given for waiving closing hours for a dance to be held at the West Greenville facility on May 15. A closing hour of 1 a.m. on that date was set for the event, a non-recreation one for which the standard $25 hourly fee will be charged.

In a report on usage of tennis courts at night during January and February on a call-in reservation basis, Lee gave the following information: January, 23 reservations called in, with 17 of the 23 not showing up after making reservations.

February, 65 reservations called in, with all but six showing up to play at the time reserved. Lee said the total of 88 reservations represented 38 different people playing during the period. He noted that the department effected a savings of approximately $200, by using the system of not turning on lights except on a reservation basis at two courts at Elm Street.

One Man Burned In Plant Fire

Greenville firemen reported one man received second degree burns Tuesday when acetone vapors ignited in a recycling-mixing room at the Grady-White Boats plant here.

Officers said fire units were called about 1:20 p.m., but noted the fire was out when trucks arrived at the scene.

No damage was reported by officers to the metal building behind the main plant that housed the acetone recycling unit.

Proctor & Gamble has manufacturing facilities in 23 other states which produce household paper products, toilet goods, coffee, industrial chemicals, raw material supply and food products, as well as laundry and cleaning products.

More than 150 area leaders attended the opening activities. Both the Senate committee and a House International Relations panel overseeing VOA's budget are undecided about proposals to remove the station from the U.S. Information Agency, as part of a plan to reorganize American overseas information and cultural programs.

VOA's current chief, Kenneth Giddens, concedes that the station tends to be "a little more restrained" in its reporting than BBC.

But he adds that "I really believe ... that the Voice of America puts out as objective, balanced, unbiased a news product as you'll find anywhere on the face of the earth. I'm very proud of it."

However well the Voice may compare with other Western overseas broadcasting, VOA officials estimate that it has a regular Soviet audience numbering "in the millions," providing them an alternative to government-controlled media.

"To some degree it's fashionable, it's vogue to listen to VOA," one official commented.

Social Security officials said in interviews that local governments sometimes consider defecting when they get into money trouble, especially if a hard sell is made by a profit-motivated insurance company hoping to write a private retirement plan.

"Some of these plans are no sounder than Social Security and some are worse," a spokesman said.

Public Spending Cut By Britain Given Setback

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government faced a major political and economic crisis today after its controversial plan to slash public spending by $6 billion was defeated in the House of Commons. The measure, a key part of Wilson's program to cure Britain's chronic economic plight, was defeated by 28 votes Wednesday night, an unprecedented defeat on a major policy issue in modern parliamentary history. It dumped Wilson into grave political trouble that was expected to force him to seek a vote of confidence in the 635-seat house in the next few days.

The defeat was also likely to send the battered pound, which has nose dived to record lows on currency markets in the last week, plunging further.

The 284 to 256 vote obviously staggered Wilson and his ministers. Wilson hastily left the house as opposition Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher demanded the government resign and Conservative legislators chanted "Out! Out!"

But Wilson was not expected to resign. Although the defeat rocked his government, it was in no immediate danger of being swept from office. But it did underline a grave split among Laborites.

The government program was defeated because 37 left-wing Laborites abstained from voting. Two voted against, along with Scottish and Welsh nationalists on whom Wilson has depended to give him a majority in the house.

The extent of the left-wing revolt, simmering for months, shocked party managers. However, the rebels were certain to support Wilson if he seeks a vote of confidence.

Wilson has a one-vote majority in the Commons and cannot afford to discipline his rebels too harshly. Some commentators speculated he will be forced to bow to their demands to revamp his economic policies.

The left-wingers oppose the spending cutback, which would have badly hit education, housing and health programs, because they claim it will boost already high unemployment and send the cost of living soaring.

Closing Crossing

City Manager Jim Caldwell announced that 14th Street at the Seaboard Coast Line crossing will be closed to all through traffic from March 15 at 8:30 a.m. to March 19 in order that the crossing may be reconstructed by Seaboard and the City of Greenville.

Caldwell said that detour routes around the crossing, which lies one block west of Clark Street, will be signed by the Public Works Department.

Only local traffic will be permitted on that section of 14th Street lying between Clark Street and Dickinson Avenue, the city manager said. Clark, Tenth and Dickinson will be detour routes around the construction.

"This railroad crossing has been a constant maintenance problem for the city and a traffic problem for motorists for some years," Caldwell added. "We are happy to report that the reconstruction will eliminate these problems permanently."

He asked the public to cooperate with the street closing during the week of March 15.

"Almost universally there has been a feeling that BBC is a more credible and accepted news reporting service," Percy said.

Salvation Army Hears Jenkins

WASHINGTON, N.C.—"Our nation and state were built on the cumulative successes of individuals," East Carolina University Chancellor Leo Jenkins told a gathering of Salvation Army personnel here Wednesday.

"One of the most important bases for success as a people is the citizen's desire to contribute individually. The strength of the U.S. lies in the strength of 20,000 communities."

"In this new world of change, we owe it to ourselves as well as to others to get into the political, moral and economic struggles and help overcome that which is ugly, weak or wrong."

The left-wingers oppose the spending cutback, which would have badly hit education, housing and health programs, because they claim it will boost already high unemployment and send the cost of living soaring.

Players, Owners Seem No Closer To Solution

TAMPA (AP) — As usual at this time of the baseball year, the pitchers are ahead of the hitters.

Only this time the players are the pitchers and the owners are the hitters.

The two sides meet again today for the 26th time in a series of contract negotiations that has produced little progress. Whether either side is ready to reduce its demands at today's brief session or a longer one scheduled for Friday in St. Petersburg is debatable.

"There's no way to go now but to settle," said Tom Seaver of the New York Mets as the players savored a pair of court decisions that upheld an arbitrator's ruling granting free agent status to pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally.

"The owners told us they had only a 30 per cent chance of winning in the appeals court. They were right. They lost, and now the players have what you might call the ultimate weapon," Seaver said.

The latest court ruling left the owners with an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court as their last recourse.

"Do they want to try going to the Supreme Court and meanwhile not play ball or pay salaries for two years?" Seaver wondered. "The Supreme Court wouldn't even hear the case — they don't get involved in arbitration matters, anyway."

What the owners want — at least in their latest proposal Wednesday — is an agreement in which a player with six years of major league service could play out his option in his seventh year and become a free agent the following season.

The catch in the proposal is that the club could retain the player's services for up to two more years simply by offering him a contract for that length of time. The players' association says that's just another way of wording the owners' previous proposal which would have given eight-year veterans the chance to become free agents in their 10th season after one option year.

"It's still 8-and-1 no matter how you slice it," said Dick Moss, counsel for the players association. "They just tried to disguise it a bit."

The major schism is still whether the rights won by the players in the landmark Messersmith-McNally arbitration decision last December — i.e., that a player is bound to a club for only one option year beyond contractual commitments — can be stripped away retroactively in collective bargaining. In fact, Mike Marshall of the Los Angeles Dodgers has announced his intention to sue the players' union if such is the case.

"The owners seem to think that there will be hundreds of unsigned players who will play out their option this year," says Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association. "I predict that there will be less than two dozen who will do it. My proposal is that we put the reserve-clause issue aside and find out just how many players will play out their option."

"None of the players can be a free agent until October anyway. That gives the teams more than six months to sign them. But by May or June, we would have a general idea of how many there are and who they are."

Technically, some 200 players who haven't signed for 1976 began playing out their option year at midnight Wednesday when the clubs, under baseball law, automatically invoked the one-year renewal clause in last year's contracts.

The list of unsigned players includes Seaver, Fred Lynn, Rod Carew, John Mayberry, Ted Simmons, Thurman Munson, Al Hrabosky, Graig Nettles, Carlton Fisk and Bert Blyleven.

The Minnesota Twins invoked the renewal clause for 23 players while the Atlanta Braves were close behind with 22. The renewal clause may be invoked at the same salary as the previous year, a higher salary or a cut of up to 20 per cent.

Pirates Take 10th In Field

PINEHURST—East Carolina University's golfers closed out their first tournament of the year yesterday with a 10th place finish in the prestigious Pinehurst Collegiate Invitational Tournament.

The Bucs, picked for 17th place in the pre-tournament seeding, were in seventh place following the first of the three rounds, but slipped to 10th after the second day, holding it the final round.

Wake Forest's defending NCAA champions took first place with 1,099 strokes, while North Carolina was second with 1,129. Maryland finished third with 1,136, followed by Georgia Southern at 1,137; N.C. State at 1,138; Marshall, 1,152; Memphis State, 1,157; Clemson, 1,161; Elon, 1,164; and East Carolina, 1,167.

North Carolina's John Elam took the individual honors with a three-day score of 216. Jay Haas of Wake Forest finished second with a 218. Bob Byman of Wake was third with 219.

Steve Ridge of East Carolina fired a 72 to close with a 223 to tie for 10th place in the tournament. Other Pirate final round and total scores were: Rob Welton, 77-234; Mike Buckmaster, 79-235; Tripp Boinest, 81-237; Keith Hiller, 76-239; and Frank Acker, 82-257.

"We proved that we were better than most people thought we were," Coach Mac McLendon said. "Considering that this was our first major tournament of the year, I'm pleased. But out potential is greater."

East Carolina returns to action next week, playing in the Camp Lejeune Invitational starting March 19.

number of shots, 68, as compared to 51 for the Jaguars. Farmville had more turnovers, 19, as compared to 13 for the Cougars. A final period edge in rebounding allowed the Cougars to take an overall margin in that category, 48-45, but Farmville controlled the boards most of the way.

After Ahoskie took the first lead, Farmville came back on a free throw by Mitchell Foskey and a turnaround jumper by James Baker to take a 3-2 lead. Behind Baker's scoring, which accounted for 10 of the first 11 Jaguar points, Farmville built up a 9-4 lead midway through the period. But Ahoskie rallied and pushed ahead at 12-11, and held a 14-13 edge at the end of the frame.

The two jockeyed for the lead as the second period opened. Timmy Ward, who ran off 12 straight for the Jaguars, put Farmville back on top, 17-16 a minute into the period, and then added three more baskets for a 23-16 edge. After a Cougar score, baskets by Ward and Jeff Fields ran the lead out to 27-18. Still, Ahoskie refused to fold and cut the lead to 30-25 at the end of the half.

biggest lead of the first half, the Rams hung in there all the way, and trailed 31-29 at the half.

The Tigers seemed to take control in the third period, gaining a rebounding edge, and pulling out to as much as a 10-point lead, 45-35 with 1:38 left in the frame. But again, the Rams charged back, cutting the lead to 47-41 as the quarter ended.

The Rams cut three points off the lead as the period opened, and after two Williamston free throws, scored twice more. Melvin Briggs then got two free throws to put Greene Central into a 50-49 lead, their first of the night.

The Tigers regained the lead twice more, but Hill, who tossed in 15 points, most of them off rebounds, came through with two straight and that kept the Rams up, 54-53.

After a turnover by the Tigers, the Rams stalled until Rouse was fouled with 2:30 left and made one, then after a missed Tiger shot, added two more for a 57-53 lead.

But two straight steals, by Deno Lloyd and Butch Davis tied it up once more, at 57-57. After taking two times out, the Rams made a poor shot, but Williamston after getting the ball off the boards, threw it out of bounds at midcourt with nine seconds left.

Taking the inbounds pass, Rouse dribbled for seven seconds, then with two left, tossed in his 25-footer for the victory.

Hill, who had a season high, had 15 points along with Nelson Edwards to lead the Rams, while Rouse added 13. Barry Wallace had 18 and Davis, 19, to lead Williamston.

Farmville found the going almost as rough with Ahoskie, and the Jaguar victory might be called somewhat of an upset since the Cougars were the seeded team.

Both teams scored 23 field goals, but Ahoskie took a greater Farmville clung to the lead in the third period, leading by as much as eight at times, and by nine at the end of the frame, 42-33.

The final period was the most furious of the game, as the two teams raced up and down the court shooting. Ahoskie had little luck, however, hitting just eight of 26 shots. Farmville made just five of 13, but canned eight free throws, and that helped their cause. The Jaguars moved out by as much as nine again with 3:25 left on a basket bay Ward. Ahoskie came back to within four at 54-50 with 1:32 to go on Timmy Newsome's three-point play, but they got no closer. Farmville either got an easy layup or went to the foul line in the final seconds of the game to protect its lead.

Ward led the scoring for Farmville with a season high of 20. Baker added 19 and Kenno Farrow had 11. Newsome led Ahoskie with 21 while Grayling Ruffin had 14.

Three Go To National

East Carolina University will be sending three sprinters to the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships in Detroit this weekend with high hopes of them placing in their respective events.

Carter Suggs is ranked tenth in the nation in the 60 yard dash and should have a good chance of scoring points in the meet. He had run 6.1 consistently this year and has only been beaten by teammate Larry Austin and Norfolk State's Steve Riddick.

Running besides Suggs in the 60 will be Donnie Mack, a freshman from Laurinburg, N.C. Mack has also been consistently on the 6.1 mark and should be right up there with the leaders.

The biggest hope of all rests on the shoulders of freshman hurdler Marvin Rankins. Rankins, a native of Windsor, has run 7.2 in the 60 yard high hurdles just about every time out this season and has only been beaten once, and that was by teammate Sam Phillips who qualified for the nationals but is injured and cannot go.

May, Dantley Pace AP's All-America

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Indiana's Scott May and Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley, two of the country's gold-plated forwards, were named to the 1976 Associated Press All-America basketball team today.

Joining the frontcourt stars on the first team are May's teammate at Indiana, center Kent Benson; Phil Sellers, the brilliant Rutgers swingman, and Maryland guard John Lucas.

May, a 6-foot-7 senior, and Dantley, a 6-5 junior, were selected for the second straight year. The 6-4 Lucas was a second-team selection last season, while the 6-5 Sellers was on the third team and 6-11 Benson made honorable mention.

With 380 votes from the nation's sports writers and broadcasters, May was the high scorer on this year's team — nosing out Dantley by four. Behind Dantley's 376 were Lucas with 288, Sellers with 272 and Benson with 236.

The first team was a clear-cut choice above the AP's second team which included: forwards Richard Washington of UCLA and Mitch Kupchak of North Carolina, center Robert Parish of Centenary and guards Phil Ford of North Carolina and Ron Lee of Oregon.

On the third team were, forwards Bernard King of Tennessee, Terry Furlow of Michigan State, Kenny Carr of North Carolina State; center Leon Douglas of Alabama and guard-forward Earl Tatum of Marquette.

May and Dantley are the premier players from this year's college crop, according to pro observers.

Indiana-St. John's Could Be Most Interesting Of 1st Round

By KEN RAPPOPORT
You can look for Lou Carnesecca to kick a chair into the seats and for Bobby Knight to tear up a towel. In other words, it's time for the NCAA basketball playoffs.

Those two highly excitable coaches will be on the sidelines — and probably all over the court — as Carnesecca's 17th-ranked St. John's team meets No. 1 Indiana in a first-round Midwest Regional game at South Bend, Ind., Saturday.

The St. John's-Indiana matchup is one of 16 first-round games from coast to coast and could be one of the most interesting.

The Redmen and Hoosiers met earlier this season in the Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden and the brawny Hoosiers defeated New York's finest 76-69 in a game that wasn't decided until the end.

Carnesecca's players won't have the hometown crowd to buoy them this time, but they're a self-sustaining emotional team — a key factor for Saturday's game. George Johnson is the high scorer and Frank Alagia the catalyst.

The Hoosiers, led by Scott May and Kent Benson, have pulled out impossible as well as easy victories this year.

Against both Michigan and Kentucky, Indiana was losing by four points in the last 20 seconds, but managed to win those games in overtime.

Carnesecca and Knight, of course, will be almost as interesting to watch as their teams. Both are known for their kinky sideline behavior. In the Holiday Festival, the emotional St. John's coach became so excited during one play that he booted his chair into the stands. He runs up and down on the sidelines as the game progresses and occasionally finds himself rubbing elbows with the players.

Knight wears a constant scowl on his face and a towel in his hands. While wringing the towel into a pretzel shape during a game, Knight is apt to explode in temper fits.

While Carnesecca matches his eccentric behavior against Knight's volatile temper and their teams match shots, 30 other clubs will be trying to make it past the first round of the NCAA playoffs.

In the other Midwest Regional game at South Bend, Western Michigan will face Virginia Tech. The Midwest Regionals will also be held at Dayton, Ohio, where Alabama plays North Carolina and Marquette takes on Western Kentucky.

In one of the East Regionals at Charlotte, N.C., it's Virginia against DePaul and VMI vs. Tennessee. In the other at Providence, R.I., Princeton meets Rutgers while Hofstra plays Connecticut.

Scouts describe the slick Indiana forward as "the complete player ... a clutch shooter ... a hard worker at both ends of the court." May scored close to 24 points a game while leading the Hoosiers to the Big Ten championship and an undefeated regular season.

Dantley, who applied as a hardship case for the pros but withdrew at the last minute last year, scored close to 29 points a game for the Irish. "Dantley can score from inside or outside," said a pro scout. "He's another Elgin Baylor ... an excellent offensive rebounder."

Benson was described as a "self-sacrificing, tremendously hard-working player." A supreme intimidator under the basket, the 235-pounder collected nine rebounds and 17 points a game. He had a high of 38 points against Michigan this season and came up with a basketful of game-saving plays for the Indiana team.

Lucas, a perfect pro-size guard, is the all-time Maryland scoring leader with an average that has hovered near the 20 mark since his sophomore season. According to pro observers, Lucas is "a great playmaker and shooter ... the top guard in the country ... exceptionally quick and a great penetrator."

Sellers was the heart of Rutgers' unbeaten season. A high-powered scoring machine in his earlier years, he became an all-around floor leader this season — averaging 20 points, 10 rebounds and a fistful of assists a game. He was known, especially, for his court savvy.

Jaguars Get Win

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central captured its second tennis victory of the year yesterday, downing Greene Central, 9-0.

Farmville did not allow the Rams a single set in taking the win. The match was also the first home match played by the Jaguars on their new courts.

Farmville, now 2-0, plays host to Charles B. Aycock today.

Summary:
Eric Pierce (FC) defeated Butch Martin, 6-2, 6-1.
Tommy Holloman (FC) defeated Chris Murphy, 6-2, 6-0.
Stuart James (FC) defeated Terry Strickland, 6-1, 6-1.

Tyson-Baker (FC) defeated Strickland-Hinant, 8-4.

Chargers Take Second Contest

NEW HOPE — Ayden-Grifton rallied from a 2-0 deficit to take a 5-2 victory over Eastern Wayne yesterday. It was the second straight win for the Chargers.

Eastern Wayne pushed over both of its runs in the first inning. Billy Suggs reached on an error and moved up when Willie Jernigan reached on a fielder's choice. Greg Gambrell then doubled in Suggs, and Jernigan scored on Ray Batts' out.

The Chargers came back in the second to score three runs and take the lead. Rod Kornegay walked, stole second and took third on a passed ball. Steve Nobles walked and a hit by Dennis Christiano scored Kornegay. Sammy Whitehurst walked, loading the bases and Al Butts also walked, scoring Nobles. A wild pitch brought in Christiano.

In the third, Ayden-Grifton added a fourth run. Kornegay walked and stole second. An error on the play moved him to third and he scored when a pickoff play was also misplayed.

The final Charger run came in the fourth. Butts walked, stole second and was sacrificed to third. Ned Craft then singled in the final run.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Washington on Friday.

Ayden-Grifton 031 100 0-5 2 2 Eastern Wayne 200 000 0-2 3 3 Christiano, Riggs (4), Shadle (6) and Craft; Capps, Matthewson (3), Ward (5), Gambrell (7) and Sutton.

Philadelphia Rally Pays Off

By The Associated Press
The Philadelphia 76ers have been going strong most of the season, but usually have lacked a good finishing kick in their games.

It was different Wednesday night, however.

The 76ers, down by 11 points in the second quarter, came back with a late rally and beat the Phoenix Suns 125-108 in the National Basketball Association.

"Early this season we played well at the beginning of games and couldn't get our momentum going," said Philadelphia's Steve Mix. "Now we have reverted and are able to make strong finishes."

The late rally was sponsored by George McGinnis, who scored 13 points in the fourth period.

In the other NBA game, the Buffalo Braves beat the New Orleans Jazz 120-102; the Houston Rockets edged the Portland Trail Blazers 113-110; the Seattle SuperSonics outscored the Milwaukee Bucks 110-105 and the Boston Celtics nudged the Los Angeles Lakers 92-89.

McGinnis not only scored a lot of points at the end of Philadelphia but set up Doug Collins for a layup with 9:12 left to put the 76ers ahead for good at 96-94. It was the first time the Sixers led since the first few seconds of the game. Philadelphia's Joe Bryant scored 26 points to lead all scorers.

Jazz 120, Rockets 102
Bob McAdoo and Randy Smith scored 32 points each to lead Buffalo over New Orleans.

Rockets 113, Blazers 110
Calvin Murphy poured in 31 points for Houston as the Rockets edged Portland. The Rockets also got 18 points from Rudy Tomjanovich, 17 each from John Johnson and Ed Ratleff, and 15 from Mike Newlin.

SuperSonics 110, Bucks 105
Seattle, 18 points down with 4:49 left in the third quarter, rallied behind rookie Bruce Seals and Fred Brown to beat Milwaukee.

Celtics 92, Lakers 89
Dave Cowens broke a tie with a free throw with 48 seconds left after Kareem Abdur-Jabbar fouled out, and Kevin Stacom added two points for insurance, lifting Boston over Los Angeles.

Rebounding To Be Key

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Head Coach Dean Smith says rebounding will be the key to success for his North Carolina Tar Heels when they meet Alabama in Dayton, Ohio Saturday in the first round of the NCAA Midwest Regional playoffs.

The fifth-ranked Tar Heels have been resting since their loss Saturday to Virginia in the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament and there are no classes this week because of spring break.

However, Smith put the team through a hard practice Wednesday in preparation for the eighth-ranked Crimson Tide, which he described as "probably the best offensive rebounding team we'll see."

Smith said in advance of Wednesday afternoon and night practice sessions the stress would be on defensive fundamentals.

"I was disappointed with our defense against Virginia," he said at a noon news conference. "Virginia shot 67 per cent against us in the second half. No matter what kind of defense you're playing, that should never happen."

Smith said he couldn't think of a more even game than between North Carolina and Alabama. North Carolina is 25-3 for the season and Alabama, the Southeastern Conference champion, is 21-4.

"Alabama is a very quick team. I don't know if we've played anybody with better quickness and size," Smith observed. "They like to fast break a good bit, and they like to run."

He said he discussed the Tide with John Lotz, who served as an assistant coach under Smith at North Carolina and now is head coach at Florida.

"He said Alabama's guard, Anthony Murray, is quicker than Phil Ford, so that should be something to see," Smith said.

Murray is averaging 11.7 points per game. The Tide is led by Leon Douglas, a 6-foot-10 center averaging 20.4 points and 12.5 rebounds per game.

North Carolina is led by ACC Player of the Year Mitch Kupchak, who has scored 17.9 points and grabbed 11.3 rebounds a game. Ford, a sophomore guard, is averaging 19.2 points per game.

King Will Be Ready

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee's Bernard King will probably start in the first round game against VMI in the NCAA East Regional this Saturday at Charlotte N.C., his trainer and coach say.

"He'll play," Vols trainer Tom Bradshaw said Thursday. "Something had to happen to happen to keep him out. And I'm not going to let anything bad happen."

King, the leading scorer and rebounder in the Southeastern Conference this season, sprained his left thumb during practice last Friday. The thumb now has five stitches in it.

"As of right now, he's our low post man in the game Saturday," said coach Ray Mears. "Something could happen to change the situation, but were approaching it with him in the starting lineup."

The 6-foot-7 sophomore averaged 25.2 points per game, pulled down an average of 13 rebounds a contest and scored on 57.3 per cent of his field goal attempts this season.

FERTILIZER SOWABILITY GETTING THE LUMPS OUT

Free flowing fertilizers are essential to efficient farming operations. Time spent removing lumps, rocks, and sticks from a clogged fertilizer hopper is time never regained during the rush of spring planting.

Morgan Quality Fertilizers have earned the reputation of being easy flowing and free of foreign objects. Each fertilizer material is carefully screened prior to mixing to eliminate lumps and foreign objects. Our mixing and bagging equipment is cleaned out weekly to minimize objectionable mixer scale. Bags of each lot stored in our warehouse are inspected for condition monthly.

Morgan Quality Fertilizers are still being made and sold with the same genuine concern for product quality and customer satisfaction typical of our company throughout its 65 year history.

Buse Was Pain In The Neck To Denver Club

By The Associated Press
Don Buse had a pain in the back, but he was nothing but a pain in the neck to the Denver Nuggets.

"Boy, what a gutsy effort," said Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard after watching Buse collect 19 assists in Indiana's 129-119 victory over Denver Wednesday night.

Buse performed especially well in the American Basketball Association game despite a back ailment.

"The back injury sure didn't keep Boo from having a game tonight, did it?" Leonard said. "It was a great all-around team effort, too — the best we've played since the first part of the year, I think."

Billy Knight and Darnell Hillman combined for 55 points and 30 rebounds for the winners to go along with Buse's game-high assist total.

"I thought one of the keys to the game was the 35 offensive rebounds (a team record) by the Pacers," said Denver Coach Larry Brown. "The game was very physical tonight and we didn't do the job on defense like we should."

In the other ABA games, the Kentucky Colonels edged the San Antonio Spurs 128-124 in overtime and the Spirits of St. Louis turned back the New York Nets 99-95.

Knight finished with 31 points and 11 rebounds and Hillman had 24 points and 19 rebounds. Dan Issel pumped in a game-high 42 points for the Nuggets, who suffered their fourth loss in six games this season on the fifth-place Pacers' home court. The triumph strengthened the Pacers' playoff hopes, giving them a three-game bulge over sixth-place St. Louis.

Colonels 128, Spurs 124

Wil Jones hit three field goals in overtime and Louie Dampier added two more as Kentucky nipped San Antonio. Dampier twice brought Kentucky from behind with long jumpers, then assisted on a Jones layup, putting the Colonels ahead 122-120 with 1:45 left in overtime.

Spirits 99, Nets 95

Marvin Barnes blocked a career-high seven shots and scored 23 points, leading the Spirits of St. Louis over New York despite Julius Erving's 39-point performance for the Nets.

Ali May Have To Battle Concert

By MIKE CLARK
AP Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Muhammad Ali may have to take on the Allman Brothers before he tackles Jimmy Young in a heavyweight title fight here April 30, the night before the 102nd Kentucky Derby.

Louisville promoter William H. King says that he has cleared most of the obstacles to an Ali-Jimmy Young title fight here on Derby eve, but doesn't have rights to 17,000-seat Freedom Hall. Those rights belong to the Derby Festival Committee, which plans to stage an Allman Brothers concert in the arena on April 30.

"The big catch now is getting Freedom Hall released," said King, who has been negotiating with Ali's backers to stage one of his last fights in his hometown. "We've asked them to move the concert to Fairgrounds Stadium, which is adjacent to Freedom Hall. We just can't take a chance with a rainout of a nationally televised event."

"We would be very pleased and happy to have the fight in Louisville during Derby Week," said Jack Guthrie, executive vice president of the Derby Festival Committee.

Guthrie suggested that King and Ali's backers look into the possibility of staging the fight on May 1, just hours after the running of the Derby. He said the only event scheduled in Freedom Hall on that night is a dance, which could conceivably be moved into one of the huge wings of the building.

But Freedom Hall "is under a signed lease for Derby Eve and the signed lease is with the Derby Festival Committee," said Don Johnston, executive director of the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center which includes Freedom Hall.

Guthrie indicated that his committee "would be happy to talk about the possibility of moving the concert," but that moving it outside brings it under the influence of weather.

For that matter, King dismissed an outside title fight because "we just can't take a chance with a rainout of a nationally televised event."

The fight, still scheduled for Costa Rica, is to be telecast nationally by ABC-TV, which also will telecast the Derby.

Guthrie said he would like to meet with King and Ali's managers "to explore the possibility of Derby night" for the fight. "One thing we would need would be assurance that the fight is indeed coming."

Roche Upset By Drysdale

MEMPHIS (AP)—Despite an outstanding drop shot, second-seeded Tony Roche of Australia was upset by South Africa's Cliff Drysdale, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, in first round action of the $60,000 World Championship of Tennis Memphis Racquet Club Classic.

"Tony had an unbelievable drop shot," Drysdale said Wednesday after the match in which Roche used the drop shot to throw Drysdale off his usual game in the opening set.

"As usual my backhand was strong and my drop volley was good. I'm in as good a shape right now as I've ever been," Drysdale said.

The 34-year-old Drysdale broke Roche's serve in the first, third and fifth games of the second set, while losing service only once in the second game.

In other first-round matches, Marty Riessen of Amelia Island Plantation, Fla., defeated Britain's Mark Cox in straight sets, 7-6, 7-6. Stan Smith of South Carolina defeated Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico, 6-3, 6-3.

The winners advanced to the quarterfinals which begin Friday.

Reissen, meanwhile, won 7-5, 7-3, in the two tie-breakers of his match with Cox.

"Winning the first set was good for me," Riessen said. "I could have thought I was tired if I had given up. I was happy to be in the tie-breaker during the first set. I didn't really deserve to be."

In doubles competition, the team of Roscoe Tanner-Riessen defeated John Newcombe-Roche, 6-3, 6-3, in first round doubles play.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny McKenzie, a 15-year pro hockey veteran who was one of the first National Hockey League stars to jump to the World Hockey Association four years ago, has been acquired by the Cincinnati Stingers.

McKenzie, 39, was a member of the Minnesota Fighting Saints before the franchise folded recently. The Stingers obtained him in a special WHA draft. With Minnesota, he scored 21 goals and had 26 assists.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee's Bernard King will probably start in the first-round basketball game against VMI in the NCAA East Regional this Saturday at Charlotte N.C., his trainer and coach say.

"He'll play," Vols' trainer Tom Bradshaw said Thursday. "Something bad would have to happen to keep him out. And I'm not going to let anything bad happen."

Preventive Detention View Under Fire

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Two legal scholars have come out in favor of holding persons in custody without opportunity for bail during serious civil disorders.

Such an extension of police power—called preventive detention—was unsuccessfully sought on a broader scale during the administration of former President Richard M. Nixon.

In an article in the current Duke Law Journal, A. Kenneth Pye, dean of the Duke University law school, and Cym H. Lowell, assistant law professor at the University of Georgia, call for limited use of preventive detention. Such detention should be available to law enforcement agencies during serious civil disorders "only within the bounds of narrowly drawn legislative authorization," they said.

But, a spokesman for the North Carolina Civil Liberties

Union said, "We take a very dim view of preventive detention," adding that any degree of preventive detention "smacks of totalitarianism." In the journal, Pye and Lowell said preventive detention would end problems that occur when laws designed for other circumstances force judges to release offenders during riots. Such detention could eliminate the need for military intervention in a riot such as occurred in Detroit in 1967, they argued.

As envisioned by Pye and Lowell, persons held would be only those who constitute an unacceptable risk of danger—such as a sniper who may return to the scene of the disorder and cause more bloodshed—and those who are likely to contribute to the trouble.

"The vast majority of persons arrested in serious disorders do not fall into either category. They are the curfew violators, many of the looters, traffic offenders and people charged with disorderly conduct," they wrote.

Detention without opportunity of bail is not too much to demand of an arrested person in return for greater protection of the public, Pye and Lowell argued. Norm Smith, a Greensboro attorney who is counsel for the state civil liberties group, said any form of preventive detention would violate the 8th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which forbids excessive bail. No bail is the highest bail of all, he said. In an interview with the Associated Press, Smith said there's a problem of determining who will make the fine distinctions between those who are serious threats and other offenders who are not a threat to the public safety. That decision, he said, should not be left to "the people who oversee the ad hoc concentration camps that are set up in a civil disturbance environment."

As to the example of the sniper cited by Pye and Lowell, Smith said such a person would have a high bail anyway because he would be unlikely to appear for trial if freed. "The present bail bond system, as crude as it is, would perform the very function they are advocating with preventive detention," he said.

Anticipating such reaction, Pye and Lowell noted that preventive detention could be abused and said the suspension of bail should be limited to a specified time such as the end of the disturbance and those who are detained should be guaranteed a hearing to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to support the charges against them.

Pye and Lowell argued that courts have used preventive detention in some instances by denying bail or setting it extremely high. They cited the 1965 Watts riot in Los Angeles as an example.

Their proposal would allow the law "to reflect what the public expects and what judges will do," they argued.

West Bank Arab Unrest Mounts

BIR ZEIT, Occupied Jordan (AP)—Unrest spread through occupied West Jordan today as West Bank Arabs protested the Israeli occupation, and students marched through this town singing in praise of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Schools went on strike here and in three other Arab towns following several days of riots, warning gunshots and arrests. The Arab mayors and town councils of Ramallah, Bir Zeit and Bira resigned, joining the council of Nablus—the biggest town on the West Bank—in its 5-day-old protest against the Israeli military occupation government.

Armed Israeli troops patrolled in force through the streets of nearby Ramallah in armored cars. Bir Zeit was empty of troops as a few dozen college students demonstrated and sang a PLO song denouncing the Israeli occupation with the words "I carry my machine gun to defend my people against oppression."

West Bank demonstrations began weeks ago against Jews praying near two Arab mosques in Jerusalem. But in the past few days the protests have expanded to oppose Israeli settlements and Israel's control of West Jordan, and to support the PLO, which demands control of the West Bank.

An Israeli military spokesman said schools in Nablus, Ramallah and Jericho were on strike.

Israeli troops scuffled with Arab high school students and youths in Nablus Wednesday, and they fired warning shots in the air to halt a student riot here.

Pro-Wallace Stand Taken

FARMVILLE—Rev. Charles E. Styron, pastor of Truth Baptist Church in Farmville, has announced that at a statewide meeting of the N.C. Independent Baptist Fellowship held Tuesday in Lumberton, delegates adopted a resolution supporting Governor George Wallace as the presidential nominee for members of the Democratic Party; and Governor Ronald Reagan as the presidential nominee for members belonging to the Republican Party.

Styron said that 50 churches of the Independent Baptist Fellowship from across the state were represented at the meeting.

"The delegation also voiced opposition against the three state money issues appearing on the presidential ballot," Styron said. "It is not that we oppose the issues as such, but we are against the blanket type of issues until sufficient information and details are provided to voters."

Styron said "The resolutions agreed on Tuesday represent a stronger stand than in the past. 'We have been attending meetings at all precinct levels the past couple of weeks, and are working for political changes through the churches.'"

School Survey Of New Pupils

Falkland Elementary is now seeking information concerning children who will be entering kindergarten and first grade next year. Anyone who has a child or knows of a child who will be five years old on or before October 16, 1976 should contact the school. Also, parents who have children who will be six on or before October 16, 1976 and will be enrolled in the first grade, but are not in kindergarten should contact the school. For further information call the school at 752-7820.

Asks Stress On Reading

"Schools should spend more time teaching the proper use of the 'mother tongue,' even at the expense of other subjects," East Carolina University Chancellor Leo Jenkins told a gathering of school superintendents here Thursday.

"The battle of reading and writing has not been won; you the school superintendent and the teachers under your direction are the chief fortress for language accuracy within our society."

"The task of teaching English to schoolchildren in all grades is exceedingly difficult because you have formidable competition, not only from the home, but from a society which fosters incorrect use of the language," Jenkins said.

"Bad grammatical constructions such as 'ain't' and the use of double negatives begin at home. Television broadcasts faulty language. Habits acquired while we are young stay with us."

Jenkins emphasized that deficiencies in reading and other language skills handicap a student in all areas of learning. "Too few students realize that no matter what their careers may be, this is the one subject which will help or hurt them," he said.

Ben Franklin said, "He that can have patience can have what he will."

PEANUTS
CHUCK, YOU HORSE THIEF!
YOU TRADED ME A PLAYER WITH A BROKEN LEG!
ACTUALLY, IT'S ONLY A FRACTURED METATARSAL
I'D LIKE A REFILL ON THESE PILLS.
SORRY, THIS IS NON-REFILLABLE.
I CAN'T GET THE TOP OFF.
TRY THIS CAKE. I BAKED IT MYSELF.
THANK YOU. IT LOOKS DELICIOUS.
MAYBE I PUT IN TOO MUCH TABASCO SAUCE AN' ONIONS.
HAS MY HUSBAND BEEN IN HERE TODAY?
YOU MUST KNOW HIM--HE PUTS KETCHUP ON HIS APPLE PIE.
THAT'S NO HELP, LADY.
PEOPLE USE ALL KINDS OF STUFF TO COVER UP OUR APPLE PIE.
THE CHAPLAIN HAD SOME GOOD ADVICE IN HIS LAST SERMON.
"HE WHO INVESTS IN A SMILE PROFITS A GOOD RETURN."
IF IT'S DIRTY I DON'T WANT TO HEAR IT.
LET'S SEE IF HIS SON, MY GRANDFATHER... OR MY FATHER MENTIONED THIS, DEVIL.
I heard tales of a tyrant queen called Witch of Kula-Ku, who took captives with snares.
NO EXPLANATION ABOUT THE WITCH... THE SNARES... OR KULA-KU! MADDENING!
GREAT-GRANDPAPPY WROTE THAT TANTALIZING ITEM... AND NEVER MENTIONED IT AGAIN!
MAY I GET YOU A TAXI?
I... I SUPPOSE I'M BEING FOOLISH, BUT I THINK A MAN'S FOLLOWING US.
HE IS.
THAT'S WHAT HE'S GETTING PAID FOR.
I THOUGHT I'D WALK FOR A FEW BLOCKS.

More people are leasing Mercedes-Benz automobiles than ever before.

What do they know that you should know?

It's a financial fact. Based on the average official resale prices over the past five years, Mercedes-Benz holds its value better than any make of luxury car sold in America. That means less expense for us and lower leasing costs for you. But there's more to leasing a Mercedes-Benz than just money. More and more people are discovering what we've known all along. You don't drive the lease, you drive the car. And when it comes to driving, wouldn't you rather drive the car that is engineered like no other car in the world? Come in and talk to our leasing expert. Find out why Mercedes-Benz leasing is more popular than ever.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

Most good used cars, if they're guaranteed at all, are only covered for a month or two. At Tarheel Toyota, we're just as willing to back our good used cars as our good new cars. So we guarantee the motor, transmission and rear end for 12 months or 12,000 miles. This warranty applies to all cars selling for more than $1000.00 or more on a 50-50 basis with all work being done in our shop. It doesn't apply to any sports cars, high performance engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). If you're in the market for a BETTER USED CAR, COME OUT AND LOOK AT OURS. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. (Owners name furnished upon request.)

Town Daily Split By Its Rail Traffic

By RICHARD D. RIPLEY
Associated Press Writer
ELKO, Nev. (AP) — More than 40 times a day, this north-eastern Nevada town of 9,500 is split in two.

Lying on two main east-west railroad lines, the city's central district is riddled with rail. There are 17 track crossings in an eight block area alone.

Lengthy transcontinental freight trains lumber through Elko about twice an hour. Traffic is hopelessly snarled and entire neighborhoods are completely isolated. Local authorities say a couple of lives are lost each year at the crossings, including motorists who make a last minute dash across the tracks to avoid the wait — and don't make it.

Occasionally the right combination of railroad traffic makes it impossible for cars or pedestrians to cross anywhere in the town for periods up to three hours.

But Elko's railroad woes may be easing with the implementation of an experimental federally-funded bypass program that eventually may be used to solve the track problems of hundreds of American cities that grew up along rail lines.

Under a pending federal demonstration project, a 5.6-mile consolidated track corridor will be laid through downtown Elko to solve the traffic problems and provide more efficient rail service.

The Federal Highway Administration has approved a new alternate route for the corridor, which will replace the central city sections of both the three-track Western Pacific line and the twin-track Southern Pacific line. The five tracks will become two along the new consolidated stretch.

Senate and House versions of the Federal Highway Act of 1975, currently under joint conference consideration, both include $16 million for Elko's Project Lifesaver. The federal government will share 95 per cent of the cost, with the city, state and railroads sharing the rest.

Ira Rackley, a consulting engineer working on the project, says construction may start within a year, with all phases of construction to be completed in about five years.

After almost two years of city-financed planning work, Elko is the first of four demonstration sites in the country to have a final environmental impact statement and route approved, Rackley said.

Some 185 U.S. cities have formally notified the federal government that they are interested in similar railroad bypass projects in their downtown sections.

But Congress has decided that it won't provide funds for more projects until the demonstration projects are completed, Rackley said, adding that municipal officials across the country are watching what happens in Elko.

"It's the smallest of all of the projects but it incorporates all of the problems," Rackley said. "How we handle the downtown right-of-way will probably set a precedent. In other words we're kind of a Guinea pig."

Leadership Session Set

A Leadership Development Workshop designed by the U. S. Center for Creative Leadership will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Baptist Student Center (511 East 10th Street) for members of the League of Women Voters (LWV) and other interested persons. Members of the Board of Directors of the N. C. LWV will conduct the workshop.

The workshop's various exercises and discussions will serve to enhance and develop leadership effectiveness and potential in those serving in voluntary organizations and in professions. The focus will be on policy determination, setting priorities, planning and carrying out programs and evaluating results, Robbie Piper of the LWV said.

The workshop will be open to all interested persons, with admission free of charge. While coffee and doughnuts will be served, each participant should bring his or her own bag lunch.
