

Breakout By Americans In Mexico Jail

EAGLE PASS, Tex. (AP) — "I heard someone shout 'freeze' and then they opened the cells and we headed for the river," said Paul Nesinson.

"We had to sleep with our clothes on because there was no privacy. So we were ready.... We just ran," added Kari Kristine Jorgenson.

They were among 11 Americans freed unexpectedly from a Mexican jail Thursday by two hooded men who burst into the jail with guns and overpowered the guards. Five Mexican prisoners took advantage of the situation. They claimed to be Americans and escaped with the others.

More than 500 Americans are jailed in Mexico, mostly on drug-related charges. And both Congress and the State Department have been critical of harsh treatment the prisoners have received, including reports of torture in some cases.

The breakout was at the jail in Piedras Negras, directly across the Rio Grande River from Eagle Pass, a West Texas town about 140 miles west of San Antonio.

Two unidentified men burst into the prison about 3 a.m. The men tied up the five guards on duty and then broke the locks on the cells where most of the American men and women were held.

Piedras Negras Chief of Police Rafael Ceja Barajas said the two men were "Americans and spoke only English."

Nesinson, who is from Minneapolis, four other men and one woman, made it across the river Thursday morning and were later arrested by U.S. authorities. They spent the night in the Maverick County Jail while officials determined whether any charges were pending against them in the United States.

Sheriff J. Bean Salinas said he would release the six today. All are U.S. citizens and cannot be sent back to Mexico in this type of case, the State Department said.

Others with Nesinson were Pascual Narvaer Uriegas, 20, Ozona, Tex.; Jeffrey Andrew Garafola, 24, of San Francisco; Dale Chenoweth, Moss, Tex.; Miss Jorgenson, 23, Denver; and Jim Rodgers, 26, Denver.

The whereabouts of the other escapees was unknown. Maverick County Deputy Alfredo Menchaca said officers were "searching along the river" where they found an M1 rifle and a sawed-off double-barrel shotgun apparently used by the two men who freed the prisoners.

Ceja Barajas said the Americans were in jail for "crimes against public health" — drug offenses.

Another Explosion At Mine Traps 11

By BILL HENDRICK
Associated Press Writer
OVEN FORK, Ky. (AP) — Rescue workers searched cautiously today for 11 men trapped Thursday night by an explosion in a coal mine where a blast killed 15 miners earlier this week. There were reports the 11 were alive.

"We're advancing slowly into the mine," said O.W. Harris, a U.S. Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration official at the scene. Rescue workers "are being careful," he said.

Two men in the mineshaft when the blast occurred climbed to safety and told rescue workers the 11 trapped below were alive after the explosion, said a spokeswoman for the Scotia Coal Co. Three of the 11 are federal mine inspectors.

Herschel Potter, chief of MESA's safety division, confirmed in Washington that two men had been rescued. He said the two climbed 5,000 feet after the blast and yelled for help. A rescue crew went in and got them out, he said.

Officials denied earlier reports that there had been a cave-in as well as an explosion in the mine.

Lawrence Phillips, MESA's district supervisor, was in charge of the rescue effort.

Phillips said the 11 men were working in the same area as the 15 miners trapped and killed Tuesday. That area is 3½ miles from the mine entrance and 1,600 feet underground.

Three of the 11 were MESA mine inspectors, said Kentucky State Police Capt. James Gay. Gay rushed to the mine after the explosion at 11:30 p.m. Thursday.

Funerals were scheduled for today for four of the men killed in Tuesday's explosion. All were from small communities in the surrounding mountains of eastern Kentucky.

Within minutes of the latest blast, relatives and spectators began gathering along the road leading to Scotia's No. 1 Black Mountain mine. Several ambulances arrived, and state police cars blocked the entrance. Reporters were not allowed on the property.

Rescue teams had been in the mine around the clock since Tuesday's explosion, trying to clear 3½ miles of mine shaft of poisonous and explosive gases and to reinforce the roof, a spokesman at MESA's District 6 office at Pikeville said.

The mineshaft's roof, he said, apparently was weakened by the first blast.

Ben A. Taylor, a MESA mine inspection supervisor, said the federal and state crews tried Thursday to get to the site of the first blast to determine the exact cause. But he said they had to delay the attempt when they encountered the "bad roof conditions."

Heavy crane equipment was moved in from mines in neighboring Harlan County to aid in the rescue effort, officials said.

A MESA inspector had cited the mine for poor ventilation the night before the first explosion. Investigators said methane gas, produced in some coal seams, had accumulated and somehow been ignited.

Oppose Tax Boost In Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, echoing earlier action by a Senate panel, has rejected President Ford's plans for a new boost in Social Security taxes.

The panel Thursday approved a $46.6-billion federal budget deficit, anticipating a $17.3-billion continuation of tax cuts next year.

Ford proposed to raise $4.4 billion by hiking the Social Security tax rate to 12.3 per cent effective next Jan. 1. The current rate is 11.7 per cent, half paid by a worker and the other half by the employer.

The Senate Finance Committee already had rejected the plan when Ways and Means voted down several efforts to increase the tax.

Automatic tax increases will nevertheless boost the Social Security tax for many Americans.

Ways and Means, issuing its preliminary budget recommendations, estimated the federal government in fiscal 1977 — the year starting Oct. 1 — will spend $402.1 billion while gaining $355.5 billion in revenue, for a $46.6-billion budget deficit.

President Ford has proposed a $43-billion budget deficit, with $394.2 billion in spending and $351.3 billion in revenue. Due to higher costs of a health proposal and delay in enacting unemployment benefits plans, congressional tax experts adjusted Ford's budget figures in ways setting the deficit near $45.2 billion.

The Senate committee estimated $400.2 billion in spending and $355.1 billion in revenue.

Congress must finish action on its initial budget resolution by May 15, containing targets which are considered subject to revision before binding budget totals are set by Congress in late September.

Social Security issues may be resurrected later this year in Ways and Means' Social Security subcommittee, but the committee's votes this week showed deep divisions over what — if any — step to take toward boosting the system's revenue.

Under automatic features of existing law, the maximum amount of a worker's annual earnings on which this Social Security tax is paid is expected to reach $16,500 next year, compared with $15,300 this year.

Thus, any worker at the upper limit of this year's wage base will pay the top Social Security tax of 895.05. If the law is unchanged, the top tax automatically will reach $965.25. This means the tax would bite deeper into the wages of higher-paid workers.

Edmisten Here

North Carolina Attorney General Rufus Edmisten will be the guest speaker at a Democrat Party rally and dinner to be held here March 19.

The dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Riverside Restaurant. Donations of $10 per person will cover the cost of the steak dinner.

Edmisten gained national recognition for his work as staff director of the famous Senate Watergate Committee before he was elected Attorney General for North Carolina in November 1974.

Resignation Order Defied By President Of Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Suleiman Franjeh, surrounded by loyalist tanks and troops in his hilltop palace, rejected a resignation order today from army officers who announced a military takeover.

At the same time, fighting erupted in the downtown hotel district, leaving at least two persons dead by official count, and guerrilla sources said the revolt of Moslem mutineers rolled on unchecked, with rebels capturing another army garrison just south of Beirut and attacking a second at Sidon, 25 miles south of the capital.

Franjeh told a newspaper which supports him, "I'm staying on to defend legality and legitimacy. I shall wait for the coup leaders here in the presidential palace."

Brig. Aziz Ahdab, commander of the Beirut garrison who announced the takeover in a television-radio address Thursday, claimed today he has full backing from the army command.

"We are in close collaboration with the army command and we will labor together and will invite the politicians to concerted action with us to save the situation and the country," said Ahdab at a news conference at his headquarters ringed by armored personnel carriers.

But Army Commander Hanna Said and most of the country's leftist and rightist politicians withheld any public comment, apparently waiting for the outcome of Ahdab's showdown with Franjeh.

Ahdab acknowledged he has had no contact with 1st Lt. Ahmed Khatib, leader of the Moslem soldiers' revolt that has shattered army unity over the last week. But he claimed "scores of his men are joining our movement."

On Thursday Ahdab called himself "provisional military ruler" and said he would stay in power only long enough to get a new president and government. He announced his commitment to democratic parties as he called for resignations of Franjeh and Premier Rashid Karami.

There was no word from Karami, who remained isolated in his downtown home.

Ahdab received public support from a number of officers.

Shapp Is Out

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp today pulled out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Shapp told a news conference that "it is very difficult for someone campaigning solely on the issues, and then only part-time, to compete in the complex political infighting of the presidential primary system."

He said he would not participate in the Pennsylvania primary next month.

The Pennsylvania governor turned loose the 96 delegates who had filed for him on the April 27 ballot in his state.

"I hope they will consider their individual situations and decide for themselves whether they wish to continue to compete."

The governor said at this time he would not support any other candidate for the nomination.

Shapp said he had neither the time, the money, the field organization nor the media coverage to make an impact.

DUMPSTERS STILL AN ISSUE?

Would you please tell me who to contact about getting waste bins in Pitt County? We're the only county anywhere around that doesn't have them, and the people in the rural areas need some help with this problem. S. J.

Hotline gets several letters and calls a month on the dumpster subject and the volume has picked up considerably lately. We've checked on the situation before and learned only that it's up to the county commissioners to make such a decision and that they feel there will be a double taxation problem in municipalities which provide refuse collection, and that they're afraid of creating "mini-dump areas around the dumpsters". These same considerations were voiced again this week when Hotline contacted County Manager Reginald Gray to see if there had been any new discussion of the issue. He said that the County Office gets very little mail on the subject and that, as far as he knows, the people aren't speaking to the Commissioners about it. Of course, Hotline cannot pass on its contacts on the subject without the express consent of the persons who contact us, so we believe it would be advisable if those who feel strongly about the subject, pro or con, would contact the Commissioners.

Reveal Sweden's King Is Engaged To German

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Swedish King Carl XVI Gustaf, European royalty's most eligible bachelor, became engaged today to West German commoner Silvia Sommerlath.

The royal court confirmed press accounts of the engagement and said a formal announcement would be issued later in the day. Most of the royal family and Miss Sommerlath's family were gathered at the palace.

Carl Gustaf, 29, met the 32-year-old Miss Sommerlath in 1972 when she was a hostess at the Olympic summer games in Munich. She has been a frequent guest of the curly-haired king since then at his Stockholm palace and summer residence on the Baltic Sea island of Oland.

The king ascended the throne in September 1973 after the death of his grandfather, Gustaf VI

Adolf, at the age of 92. Carl Gustaf plans to visit the United States early next month on a "sell Sweden" campaign and his trip will be the first by a reigning Swedish monarch to the United States.

Miss Sommerlath, slim and dark haired, is the daughter of retired businessman Walter Sommerlath of Heidelberg, who spent many years in Brazil dealing with Swedish exports and imports. She attended several exclusive finishing schools and speaks English, Portuguese, Spanish and French.

News of the marriage plans came as no surprise to the Swedes, and recent opinion polls showed a majority of the democratic-minded Swedes would welcome a commoner as their monarch's wife.

Best Toys Stimulate Imagination

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Child psychology and development specialists John and Sandra Gadell are concerned about toys designed to do a child's thinking for him, playthings that rob a child of the valuable gift of make-believe.

The Gadells view with dismay toys such as dolls that set their own hair to go out on a date or fancy plastic sculpture machines that turn out pre-conceived shapes at the flick of a switch. Their Center for New Ways in Early Childhood Education in St. Louis is a private agency that runs child development clinics for parents, teachers and psychologists. The Gadells also stage workshops in other cities.

They say the best toy is the simplest toy, one that lets a child use his imagination instead of batteries to create a world of his own.

In an interview, they said a child is better off with a simple set of blocks. To an imaginative child, a block can become anything. That child has a head start toward becoming what he wants to be.

"We think if a child can have only one toy," Gadell said, "it should be blocks. There is a deadly serious purpose for toys. If you show me a kid who can build with blocks and imagine a large city, I can show you a kid who will probably not have trouble with his reading."

"A child can be very imaginative with blocks," his wife added, "much more so than with something where he pushes a button, then sits back and watches it run around a track."

The Gadells stressed that if a child becomes accustomed to the idea of blocks as symbols for something else: a telephone, a cookbook, a brick in the wall of a fantasy castle, he will more easily understand how printed words on a page can stand for ideas, and a brightly colored map can symbolize a far-off country.

"This is a lifetime skill that is worth its weight in gold," Gadell said.

The Gadells said imaginative play with simple toys can also help to break sexist molds. Dolls aren't just for girls, and blocks aren't just for boys. "A plain old simple, lovable baby doll is best," Mrs. Gadell said. "Dolls are important for boys as well as girls, because girls get plenty of practice showing love with their dolls, but boys don't. There's nothing feminine about showing love."

Parents can take time to prod their children into creative play, she added. They can say, "Let's pretend this block is a car," then leave the children to work out their own scenarios. "Give the child the feeling that there's no one way to use it, no one right answer," she said.

The Gadells said materials such as modeling clay, dough made with flour, salt and food coloring, construction paper or even such a mundane but unexpected treasure as a roll of adding machine tape can fuel the imagination without setting boundaries that inhibit creativity.

Emphasis on simplicity does not mean a child never should receive a toy that is a mass of buttons, lights and gadgets. "Once in a while it's okay to buy a child a toy just because he wants it and his friends have it," Gadell said. "We don't mean to be fanatical about it."

But toys aren't just kid stuff, they added. A child's toys can be crucial in helping him to grow, create and work through the traumas and distress that dot the life of anyone at any age. If a toy does all the work for him, he may never learn how to do it for himself.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Worldwide shipments of French champagne rose 15.8 per cent last year over 1974. The Comité Interprofessionnel du Vin de Champagne, the industry organization, said more than 122 million bottles were shipped, of which nearly 94 million went to domestic consumers in France.

The National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers said consumption of champagne and other sparkling wines increased 4.5 per cent in 1974 over the previous year.

Dear Abby

Ask Pediatrician's Advice About Son

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is my first "Dear Abby" letter, and I'm counting on your help.

Our son, who is almost 3, is about to drive me crazy with wetting his pants. I realize that little boys do have their accidents, but surely not all the time!

Abby, we've tried whipping him, shaming him and even keeping him from going hunting with his Daddy (which he loves to do) until he quits wetting his pants and starts acting like a big boy.

Nothing we do seems to help one bit. I'll be having our second child soon, and I would give anything for our first child to be potty-trained once and for all. Please suggest something.

EXHAUSTED MOTHER

DEAR EXHAUSTED: Whipping and shaming your child is exactly what you should NOT do! Your pediatrician is the one who is qualified to advise you. Ask him today. Your son may have a physical problem that needs treating.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to the same man for 30 years. When he picked a wife, he said he wanted a church-going girl who didn't smoke or dance—one who was quiet, modest and not sexy.

I was that girl. I gave him two children who are both married. Now my husband has decided that he no longer loves me, and he's taken up with a younger woman who is sexy and can "turn him on." He doesn't care if she smokes or drinks, either.

Behind my back, he had divorce papers served on me. He never let me work because he wanted me to stay home and be a full-time wife and mother, so I have no skills. I don't want a divorce and am contesting it. I left my home and am living with my daughter. I attend church regularly.

The lawyers say we could live separately, and come and go as we please, but that's against my way of life. I don't believe in divorce, and I still love him, regardless. What is your advice? We are both 50.

MARRIED FOR LIFE

DEAR MARRIED: You may prevent your husband from getting a divorce, but you can't force him to live with you or to love you. Perhaps if you hang on long enough, he'll change his mind and return to you, but you have no guarantees.

In the meantime, find something constructive to do. Go back to school or get involved in civic and volunteer work. Good things are more apt to happen to people who forget themselves and think of others. Try it. It works!

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I just love to get a man who's hard to get, but after I get him, I lose all interest in him.

Then when he loses all interest in me, I start getting interested in him all over again.

I really don't do this on purpose, Abby, but it has happened so many times there must be a reason for it. Can you explain it?

GOING IN CIRCLES

DEAR GOING: You aren't ready for a serious commitment yet. You enjoy the excitement of the chase, but you don't really want the prize. (P. S. It's typical of adolescent behavior, but some grownups never outgrow it.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ordered To Pay His Bills, Compensation

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The North Carolina Industrial Commission has ordered Duke Power Co. to pay one of its former employees $80 a week for the rest of his life and pay all his medical bills.

In September 1974, Mike Johnson lost consciousness while scrubbing the inside of a metal tank with a chemical cleaner at Duke's Toddville Road plant in northwestern Mecklenburg County.

His heart and lungs stopped for several minutes, depriving his brain of oxygen, and leaving him with permanent brain damage and blindness.

He was 19 at the time of the accident.

Duke claimed the chemical cleaner didn't cause Johnson's injuries even though the power company offered no alternative reason.

But deputy industrial commissioner W.C. Delbridge said yesterday after hearing from lawyers on both sides of the case that the chemical did cause Johnson's injuries.

He ordered the company to pay Johnson $80 a week and all past and future medical bills, including lawyers' fees and nursing costs.

So far Johnson's parents have paid $27,000 in medical costs and an insurance policy has paid an additional $25,000.

Duke will have seven days to appeal the ruling to the full industrial commission. Spokesmen for the company said yesterday they haven't seen the order and haven't decided whether to appeal.

If the company loses before the full commission, it could then appeal to the courts.

Membership Week Planned

The week of March 21-27 has been proclaimed Membership Week for the Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens.

The proclamation was signed by Greenville Mayor Percy Cox and calls upon the citizens of Greenville to support the efforts of volunteers in the air for retarded citizens.

Won't Reopen

KITRELL, N.C. (AP)—Kittrell College will not reopen next fall because a fund-raising drive to save the school failed, Kittrell officials said Thursday.

The black junior college was closed last summer because of financial troubles. The AME church, sponsor of the college, said then the institution was more than $1 million in debt.

The church raised $200,000 since the closing but that was used to pay a debt owed the Internal Revenue Service. But, officials said, recent efforts to raise money were unsuccessful, forcing the decision to close the college.

If He Makes It, He Is Stable

A suggestion by the chairman of the psychology department at Sacred Heart College that presidential candidates undergo psychological testing seems tempting.

Dr. Lewis Aiken made the suggestion, saying, "People have a right to know whether their leadership will press the red nuclear button." Each candidate would decide whether or not to make the report public.

After reflection, though, we would have to be against the idea. Candidates, once they undergo the tests, would almost certainly have to make them public; not to do so would leave the suspicion that something is wrong.

Once the exams were made public, every quirk of the individual candidate's personality would raise dark suspicions about his ability to perform under pressure — and since we are all human, none of us is without some failings.

There is nothing more gruelling than the American political process by which presidential candidates are chosen. That very process brought out the fact that Sen. Thomas Eagleton had undergone therapy four years ago and forced him out as the Democratic vice presidential candidate.

We can think of no greater test of a candidate's stability than going through all the primaries, conventions and general election campaigning which the candidate has to face in this nation. If he makes it through all that, the candidate is stable.

Fair Alternative: Pay Their Own Way

It's beginning to sink in. Members of the House of Representatives apparently are hearing voices of their constituents and defied their leadership in voting "no" to a proposed junket to London.

The plan envisioned sending 24 congressmen, their spouses and staff to London to bring the only surviving copy of the Magna Carta to the United States for a Bicentennial exhibition.

The Senate passed the resolution unanimously; but then, we've suspected for a long time that body is living in another world. We had some doubts about the House, too. Then we realized election-time was at hand, and so too did a number of Representatives.

Speaker Carl Albert is described as outraged and vowing the vote would be overturned. Such expressions epitomize a lack of awareness on the Speaker's part. This is the tax-paying season, and congressional expense accounts and frills are a sore point with the public who has to pay the bill.

Then, there's the matter of election-time; a period when survival instincts among members of the House and Senate should be at their peak. Maybe Carl Albert has lost that instinct.

At any rate, if the House Speaker and his cohorts are so upset at refusal to pay for a congressional escort for the Magna Carta they do have an alternative solution:

They can pay their own way.

Community Colleges Plan

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The effort to plan what North Carolina's community college system should be like over the coming 20 years is underway by a Community College Study Commission which held its organizational meeting recently.

Two themes continually were heard throughout that initial meeting as participants brainstormed ideas for blueprinting the future: open doors for all; and the flexibility to meet widely varying needs of individuals.

The 26-member commission was set up by the State Board of Education, and is chaired by Dr. Alan S. Hurlburt of Duke University's school of education.

Two Return

Dr. C. Horace Hamilton, professor of rural sociology at N.C. State University, is also a member of the commission. Both Hurlburt and Hamilton were leaders of various study efforts in the 1950s and 1960s which produced the present Community College system in the state. Both express amazement at the manner in which that system has surpassed their dreams, presently having some half-a-million students enrolled at 57 community colleges or technical institutes.

But with the world changing ever more rapidly, the need for changing plans in that system of technical, vocational, and junior college institutions occupied the initial planning session.

Without getting into specific detail at this early time, discussion centered around general areas which ought to be studied and further planning done toward recommendations to be made to the State Board of Education and the General Assembly.

The commission is considering a spring meeting as an open forum for those interested in the system from throughout the state. There was some talk of holding "town meeting" discussions at the various campuses to get ideas from students, faculty, and community people.

Two major areas of change were identified which the community college system must be ready to cope with: the rapid shift in industrial technology and need for improved work skills by Tar Heel employees, and the population shift from a rural to an urban pattern in this state.

Several Objects

Other concerns expressed included concentration on relevance of training to needs of the "real world;" need for greater cooperation between community colleges, public schools, and higher education; need to keep the cost low for students; need for counseling and training pegged to individual needs; need for increased adult education programs, including those for senior citizens; and need to make smoother the transition from community colleges to four-year colleges or universities.

During the two-day session, members of the commission were reminded of the philosophy of the system as spelled out by Dr. Dallas Herring, chairman of the State Board of Education.

That statement, which is contained in the policy manual of the Community College system, focuses on the open-door nature and individual approach of the program:

"The only valid philosophy for North Carolina is the philosophy of total education; a belief in the incomparable worth of all human beings... whose talents... the state needs and must develop to the fullest possible degree. That is why the doors to the institutions... must never be closed to anyone... who can learn what they teach.

"We must take the people where they are and carry them as far as they can go... If they cannot read, then we will simply teach them... if they did not finish high school, but have a mind to do it, then we will offer them a high school education at a time and in a place convenient to them and at a price within their reach. If their talent is vocational or technical, then we will simply offer them instruction, whatever the field, however complex or however simple..." Herring wrote in that philosophy statement.

The GALLUP POLL

Ford's Popularity Rising

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.—President Ford's job performance rating has increased to 50 per cent approval in the latest nationwide survey and is 11 points higher than his rating in December.

The uptrend in the President's approval score has coincided with growing public optimism regarding the economy. A recent nationwide survey shows 49 per cent of the public believing the economic situation will improve during the next six months, compared to 28 per cent who think it will worsen. These findings represent a nearly complete reversal of economic expectations since a survey conducted last fall.

In the December popularity measurement, a greater proportion disapproved (46 per cent) than approved (39 per cent). That approval figure was only two points above the President's low point to date—37 per cent approval, recorded in January and March 1975.

In subsequent surveys in January of the current year, however, the weight of opinion shifted to the approval side.

Here is the question asked since Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration to measure presidential popularity:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way (name of incumbent) is handling his job as President?"

Here is the recent trend in Ford's popularity:

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opinion
LATEST	50%	39%	11%
Jan. 30-Feb. 2	46	40	14
Jan. 23-26	45	45	10
Jan. 2-5	46	42	12
Dec. 12-15	39	46	15

The latest results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,262 adults, 18 and older, in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Feb. 27-March 1.

Strength For Today

PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS

A man as he came to old age wrote these words to a friend: "Instead of trying so hard as some of us do to be happy, I should, if I were a boy again, try harder to deserve happiness." He might have added that if he had tried to deserve happiness rather than get it, he probably would have experienced much more happiness than he actually did.

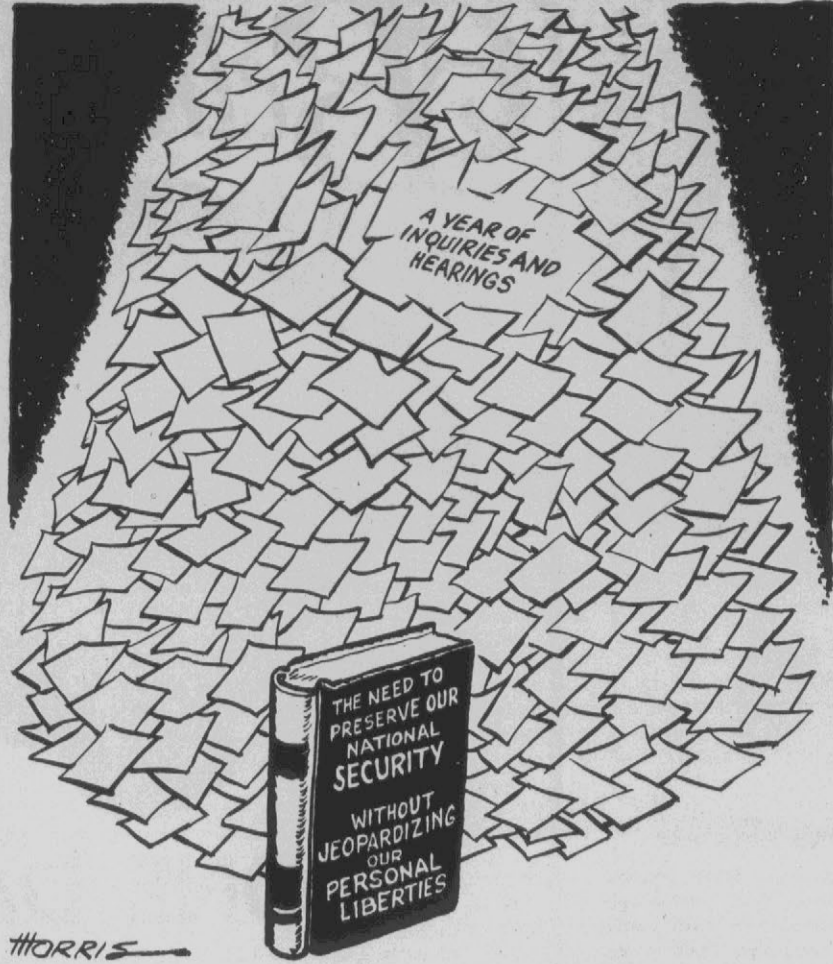

There is no will-o-the-wisp so elusive as happiness. The pursuit of happiness can, and frequently does, become tiresome, boring, and unrewarding. Very often happiness is a by-product which comes as the result of other forces. Or, to change the figure, it is a spirit which grows in our lives unnoticed as we give ourselves energetically to honest, purposeful, helpful living. Money will not buy it; neither will sorrow and trouble permanently destroy it.

Jesus summed it up in succinct fashion when he said, "He that loseth his life shall find it."

Archives House History

By DON SANDERS

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) —

Anyone wanting to research the 200-year history of the American republic from its founding until the present inevitably winds up at the National Archives.

This is the repository for official copies of all the federal laws ever enacted, and of regulations promulgated by federal agencies to implement them.

There is the original U.S. copy of the 1778 Treaty of Alliance with France, under which that nation undertook to give military aid to the American colonies in their fight for independence. Every treaty since is also on deposit in the imposing National Archives headquarters building between Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues at 8th Street NW.

There are all the treaties negotiated with American Indians — now consulted frequently by Indians because of numerous lawsuits filed by the Indians in recent years against the federal government.

No one will hazard a guess as to how many pieces of paper are stored. There are estimates that the federal government produces two billion documents a year, only a tiny fraction of which are preserved.

The main archives building has 900,000 cubic feet of storage space; one cubic foot holds about 2,500 pages of material. There are much larger storage facilities at St. Louis, Mo., and at Suitland, Md.

The St. Louis and Suitland facilities are among 15 regional centers of the National Archives, a branch of the General Services Administration, the government's housekeeping agency. Many records are available to these centers through microfilm copies.

All federal laws and regulations are required to be printed in the daily Federal Register, which is available at libraries throughout the country.

But anyone desiring to look at an original may see it at the archives, assuming he or she has a legitimate interest.

There are 550 bound volumes of records of the Continental Congress. There are all the laws of the United States, the earlier ones written longhand on varying sizes of parchment, the more recent ones printed on quality paper with a red border.

Whenever a law is enacted, the official copy is delivered to the Federal Register, an archives branch. At the end of each congressional session the copies go to the archives. Each has been signed by the speaker of the House, the president or president pro tem of the Senate, and the president of the United States.

The republic was 158 years old before it got around to establishing a central archives — what might now be called a memory bank.

Until then, laws and treaties were in the custody of the State Department but many other documents were widely scattered among federal agencies.

The archives was established in 1934, but it took until 1952 for the agency to acquire the most treasured of America's historic documents: the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

The Constitution and the Declaration had been stored in several places over the years, and in 1934 were at the Library of Congress, which was reluctant to give them up. The Bill of Rights exists in a dozen original copies; the Library retains one and Archives another.

Takes Plants Along

By FRED RIGSBEE

Charleston Post

Special Assignments Editor CHARLESTON (AP) — When Col. Ray B. Coffman travels his plants go with him.

His plants, the Air Force officer says, are like children to him.

Military life, being like it is, assures the colonel's plants a lot of travel. He estimates that he moves about every three to four years.

His last move was from Scott Air Force Base to the Charleston base. This was in August.

Coffman admits that he has become such a plant lover that he ships his clothes ahead to his new station, and drives his plants there with him.

However, one doesn't, or shouldn't, callously put the plants in a car and head off on a long trip. If he does the plants are in for a shock, the colonel warns. They should be conditioned for the car in advance of the trip. The colonel puts his plants in the car a few days before the trip begins. Since plants are shocked by changes in the environment, by putting them in a car ahead of time they become conditioned for the change, Coffman said. He doesn't buy the theory that plants have emotions but they do react to physical change, he said.

Coffman, chief of personnel of the 437th Military Airlift Wing, traces his interest in house plants to his assignment in Seattle, Wash., in the late '50s.

The colonel, who went into the Air Force holding a degree in industrial engineering, he was sent to the University of Washington by the service to get a degree in meteorology.

While in Seattle he rented a house that was surrounded by shrubbery and flowers. Anything a person stuck in the ground there seemed to grow, he said.

This instilled his interest in plants.

For a while he kept up his interest in shrubs. But it was discouraging to work hard getting the shrubbery started only to have to move before he could fully appreciate the fruits of his labor.

So the colonel decided to turn his attention to house plants. At least he could take them with him.

40 Years Ago Today

March 12, 1936

Germany warned the rest of Europe today that if any attempts are made to force the Reich to renounce sovereign rights, the peace offers made by Reichfuhrer Hitler would be withdrawn.

The German government said the nation would prefer "honorable isolation" rather than to be discriminated against by other nations.

Great Britain, host to a difficult inquest over the remains of the Treaty of Locarno, swung apparently today toward France's demands that Adolf Hitler call most, if not all, of his troops out of the Rhineland. There is speculation that Britain is turning towards accepting the French condition as a preliminary to the new negotiations suggested by Hitler himself for European security.

Southern Africa Fears Fading

By LARRY HEINZERLING

Associated Press Writer JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) —

Fears of wider Soviet and Cuban intervention in African guerrilla wars against white rule in southern Africa are fading.

The threat is still there, as are the fears of a racial war in the area, but analysts and observers here claim to see evidence that after massive intervention in Angola the Soviet Union and Cuba are trying to avoid a major regional confrontation.

As the victorious Cuban troops swooped through southern Africa two months ago, alarm grew in South Africa of a direct clash along the border of Angola and South-West Africa, also called Namibia. South Africa controls South-West Africa under a disputed mandate.

There were also fears the Cubans might join black nationalist guerrillas in Mozambique attacking white-governed Rhodesia.

But military, diplomatic and intelligence sources all report no evidence of such action, supporting one view, at least, that the Soviet Union and Cuba are more interested in consolidating gains in Angola.

According to one informed source, African troops of Angola's Marxist Popular Movement (MPLA) and Cuban forces have halted their drive south towards the South-West African border.

The MPLA soldiers are reported holding a line about 125 miles north of the border, and the Cubans are reported 175 miles further behind. The MPLA has an army of about 15,000 men who were aided by 12,000 Cuban troops during Angola's civil war with rival African factions.

Guerrilla forces of the South-West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO) have stopped attacks across the border from bases in southern Angola since Feb. 13, sources here say.

Intelligence sources claim the Soviet Union apparently has sharply curtailed shipments of tanks, rockets and other equipment to Angola that would be needed in any major confrontation with South Africa along the border.

An estimated 5,000 South African soldiers — possibly more — are holding positions along the border between South-West Africa and Angola to guard refugee camps just inside Angola and the South African-financed Cunene River hydroelectric project at Caluqueu.

There are also reports that cannot officially be confirmed that South Africa and Angola are close to agreement on a withdrawal of South African forces from southern Angola following secret negotiations through third party African states and possibly Portugal.

Rhodesia, concerned about possible Cuban intervention in the hit-and-run war with black nationalists along its border with Mozambique, also reports no evidence of Cuban involvement.

Rhodesian military authorities as well as diplomats in Mozambique's capital, Maputo, say no significant shipments of arms or Cuban troops have arrived in the East African nation.

Former Aide To Senator Says He Played Spy Role

KENNETH TOLLIVER says he played a "game of foxes" with Russian agents for seven years. (AP Wirephoto)

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Kenneth R. Tolliver, a former aide to Sen. James O. Eastland, claims he played "a game of foxes," outwitting Soviet agents for seven years as he pretended to spy for them while actually working undercover for the FBI.

He tells stories of intrigue and danger on mysterious missions abroad for his Soviet contacts. He speaks of such mundane chores as providing the Soviets with a Senate telephone directory.

The FBI still doesn't know how much to believe about Tolliver's adventures. But several sources familiar with the case verify that this much is true: —Tolliver began to deal with Soviet agents in late 1967 while he was working as a press aide to Eastland, the influential conservative Democrat from Mississippi.

—The FBI investigated Tolliver extensively and did use him as a double agent to spy on the Russians.

—He left Eastland's staff in 1968 and moved to Greenville, Miss., where he still lives and runs an advertising business he started in 1969.

—He continued sporadic contacts with the Soviet agents after moving to Mississippi.

Some key questions linger without answers. Did Tolliver spy for the Soviets for several months before the FBI learned of his activities? He did, according to a former FBI intelligence official and another source familiar with the case. Or did he tell the FBI within a half-hour after a Soviet diplomat began the effort to recruit him as a spy by inviting him to lunch? This is Tolliver's assertion.

Did Eastland fire Tolliver in the spring of 1968, as Eastland and another source report? Or did Tolliver leave voluntarily as he claims?

The disclosure of Tolliver's Soviet connections follows reports last fall that Russian agents may have penetrated several congressional offices.

The FBI said then there was no evidence that the Soviet KGB had infiltrated any congressional staff. But the FBI noted that hostile foreign agents had attempted to make contacts "with individuals who are in positions of influence or in a position to furnish information" on Capitol Hill.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi questioned FBI officials about that possibility at the time the Justice Department began providing sensitive information to the Senate and House intelligence committees, said department spokesman Robert Havel.

"He was told by the FBI that there was no evidence of anything like that," Havel said Thursday.

An FBI spokesman declined comment on the Tolliver case and refused to say whether other congressional aides had been the targets of espionage investigations.

In a statement issued Thursday, Eastland said he hired Tolliver as a press aide on the recommendation of his campaign committee in 1966. He came with the senator to Washington where he met a Soviet diplomat at a party.

By Tolliver's account, the diplomat invited him to lunch and began an intensive campaign to recruit him as a spy.

Tolliver said he became more and more deeply involved with the Soviets but always "with the knowledge and approval of the FBI."

Over the years, he said, the Russians asked him to provide various pieces of information and to help with "support services" for Soviet undercover agents.

"One of the first things I was asked to do was to get them a Senate telephone directory," he said. He said he did. The books are available for public purchase through the Government Printing Office.

Tolliver said he also helped arrange jobs and work permits for Soviet aliens living in the United States under cover spies.

As for money, Tolliver said "any funds I received from the Soviets were given to the United States." He said the FBI compensated him for his expenses.

"To my knowledge, I never provided any secret information," he said. "I never supplied any information without the FBI's knowledge and approval."

FBI investigators were never able to determine precisely what information Tolliver gave the Soviets, said the source familiar with the case. "He apparently is a con man. I don't really think we know what in the hell he furnished to the Soviets, if anything."

The former FBI official described the information Tolliver provided the Soviets as "mostly junk."

Eastland is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and its internal security subcommittee and held those positions at the time Tolliver worked for him. Those positions gave the senator and some members of his staff access to sensitive information the Russians might have considered valuable.

Eastland said he knew nothing about Tolliver's Soviet connections at the time he fired him. He said the FBI told him Tolliver was arrested and paroled on a minor criminal offense in California as a youth.

"The bureau suggested I discharge him and I did so," Eastland said. "I later learned the bureau was using him in some capacity. I learned from other sources that he had had contact with the Soviet secret service while he was employed by me, but I was unaware of this at the time I discharged him. I have never discussed these latter activities with him."

Missing With A Half-Million

By WILLIAM SCHIFFMANN
Associated Press Writer
SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — On Feb. 11, a Brinks guard named Richard C. Rees disappeared with half a million dollars. Not a trace of him has been found, despite a wide-ranging investigation, and a police sergeant says, "He may be the greatest rip-off artist of all time."

Rees, 26, was last seen wheeling a handtruck loaded with a champagne case from his armored car into a restaurant here. There were no bottles inside. The box was crammed with more than $500,000 in cash and securities.

The driver of the armored car said later the restaurant was one of several stops on an afternoon money pickup route. He said Rees told him he had to deliver the champagne to someone inside.

Rees vanished, along with handtruck and box.

In an effort to locate him, authorities are conducting intensive research into his past.

"We're trying to compile a sophisticated profile of all known acquaintances, information from his youth to his military record, analysis of his conversations," said San Mateo Police Sgt. Ed Trucco.

"We're trying to find out how he thinks. When we're finished, we should have a fairly good idea about Mr. Rees."

Information compiled so far shows Rees went to work for Brinks in October 1972 after a series of other jobs and two years in the Marine Corps, during which he earned a Purple Heart in Vietnam.

Rees left his wife of 2½ months behind when he fled. He had no criminal record. He maintained a "low profile" and did his job unobtrusively, Trucco said.

In a radio interview after the theft, a tearful Mrs. Rees said her husband was a "laughing, happy person" who kept regular hours and never acted strangely.

"We can't think of another case where a single man, using no violence or weapons, escaped with such a large amount of untraceable cash," Trucco said.

Despite his haul, says Trucco, Rees may find it hard to flee the country or remain undercover indefinitely.

"It's darn hard to get through customs anywhere with a suitcase full of money," he said. "Besides, we have good photos of him and Interpol has them."

Sentenced For Misusing Cards

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Two tobacconists have been fined $20,000 each and sentenced to five years imprisonment, suspended, for misusing flue-cured tobacco marketing cards.

Lynn Floyd of Fairmont, a warehouseman, and Willis Y. Wells of Teachey, a grower, were tried in federal district court of violating the federal tobacco control program in 1974.

The men had pleaded no contest which means they did admit guilt, but also did not put up a defense.

They had been accused of using the wrong card to sell tobacco in two instances each. The cards are issued by the government to limit the amount of tobacco each farmer may grow and sell.

Hearst Trial Stopped As Patty Has The Flu

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An ailing Patricia Hearst rested in her jail cell today, battling the fever and chills of the flu while her attorneys turned to procedural matters in her bank robbery trial.

Her sequestered jury got a long weekend as U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter recessed court until Monday.

But he scheduled a session with prosecution and defense attorneys today to "settle instructions" to be given the jury when testimony is concluded, perhaps by the end of next week.

Miss Hearst, 22, fell ill early Thursday, and Carter ordered her taken to a hospital for X rays and blood tests. He said the pale defendant, who had appeared wan and fatigued for several days, had an "upper respiratory infection."

She had a temperature in excess of 100 degrees when she was brought to court Thursday, the judge said.

One of her attorneys, Al Johnson, told reporters that the medical examination disclosed that "she had a strain of influenza. There is some swelling of the lymph node glands in her neck which is symptomatic of the flu."

He said pneumonia has not been ruled out because of some "constriction in her chest. She is very uncomfortable."

After her diagnosis at the hospital, Miss Hearst was given some medication and returned to the San Mateo County Jail 25 miles south of here.

Nurses are on duty 24 hours a day at the jail, and Johnson said the defendant is being treated by her personal physician, Dr. Robert Regan.

As Miss Hearst's trial for bank robbery neared the end of its seventh week, Carter outlined for the jurors "some idea of what is confronting you."

He predicted they would receive the case by next Friday and would "deliberate through the weekend." That depended, however, on Miss Hearst's recovery, he added.

The judge said the government plans one more full day of rebuttal testimony, including that of Dr. Harry Kozol, a psychiatrist whose appearance on the witness stand was interrupted by the illness.

After Kozol, the judge said, the prosecution will have "three more short witnesses" and the defense will offer rebuttal of about "a day to a day and a half."

The government is trying to prove Miss Hearst was a convert to terrorism and a willing participant in the 1974 robbery of a Hibernia Bank branch. Miss Hearst has said she took part in the holdup in fear for her life.

At a news conference, Johnson said it "was a possibility" that Miss Hearst's parents, Randolph and Catherine Hearst, will be called to testify in rebuttal.

The National Archives, too, has a staggering collection of nonofficial items.

There are 5,000 still pictures, including many taken by Matthew Brady in the 1860s; 223,000 captured German photos, including the personal albums of Eva Braun, Adolf Hitler's companion; 1.5 million maps and 2.4 million aerial photos; 82,000 reels of motion picture film; 70,000 sound recordings.

Most of these things, like slave sale records and pension documents from the Civil War, are stored on drab but orderly shelves in 21 stories of stacks.

The Archives mounts occasional special displays but its principal attraction for tourists is the Constitution, the Declaration and the Bill of Rights. They are displayed under a rotunda, sealed in brass and glass cases. Each night the cases are lowered into a fireproof and explosion proof vault underneath the building.

Fund Drive For N.C. Symphony

RALEIGH (AP)—Rising expenses caused mostly by inflation have forced the North Carolina Symphony to plan a major fund-raising drive and to hire someone just to handle that problem.

Goal of the three-year effort will be to raise $1.6 million. The drive is to begin in May.

The money is needed to fill out shortages in funds from the federal and state governments and what is raised by ticket sales. The symphony relies on private donations every year to keep from going in the red.

The orchestra, which travels the state giving concerts, has a budget this year of $1.4 million with 55 per cent of that coming from contributions and sale of memberships and tickets. The state allotted the symphony $500,000, 35 per cent of the budget, while the federal government's contribution amounted to 3 per cent.

Symphony officials envision a shortage of $435,000 in this fiscal year which ends June 30. That's how much the organization must raise by then through contributions, ticket sales or other methods.

The fund-raising drive will be run by Ketchum and Co., a professional fund-raising firm based in Pittsburgh with an office in Charlotte.

Crash Death Is Settled

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A lawsuit seeking $12 million for the death of Dr. William M. Shelley, Charlotte pathologist who died when an Eastern Air Lines plane crashed and burned, has been settled out of court for an undisclosed amount, his widow says.

Seventy-two of the 82 aboard died when the plane, on a flight from Charleston, S.C., to Charlotte and Chicago, crashed while approaching Douglas Municipal Airport at Charlotte 18 months ago.

An Eastern spokesman, Robert Alpert, says only 78 suits are possible since the four EAL employees on board cannot sue because of workmen's compensation. Fifty-six settlements have been reached, not all involving lawsuits. Thirteen suits are pending in state and federal courts and nine possible suits have not been filed.

A suit seeking $5 million for the death of Rear Adm. Charles Ward Cummings, 51, is to begin in federal District Court in Charlotte on Monday. It has been filed by his widow, Lillian A. Cummings of LaJolla, Calif.

Secret Agent Harel Is One Of Most Successful

$159,000 In Expansion

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Nobody noticed the plain, middle-aged man slipping from cafe to cafe in Buenos Aires 16 years ago. Isser Harel didn't want to be noticed. He was planning a kidnaping.

And when Adolf Eichmann — the Nazi convicted and hanged for organizing the World War II slaughter of Jews for Hitler — was captured in his Argentina hideout and flown secretly to Israel for trial, almost nobody knew that the inconspicuous stranger in Buenos Aires was Eichmann's captor.

Isser Harel has made a career of being unnoticed. Yet for more than a decade he was a key figure in the Middle East and the mystery world of espionage — the intelligence expert who built and ran Israel's secret services.

"Capturing Eichmann was the most important achievement of the Israeli secret service," Harel reminisced recently in his Tel Aviv home.

"But capturing Eichmann wasn't the most sophisticated or complicated operation I directed. Those cases are still unknown," Harel said, and many of them must remain unknown.

Allan Dulles, former chief of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, once said Harel's underground network was "among the world's best." Ex-CIA operative Miles Copeland, in his book "Beyond Cloak and Dagger," says the intelligence service built by Harel "may have succeeded where others have failed in planting (agents) in the Soviet government."

But Harel kept his name a state secret all the time he was Israel's chief spy from 1952 to 1963. It was divulged only two years after he resigned in an argument with then Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, over Harel's mailing of explosive parcels to German rocket scientists working in Egypt.

Harel also differs from the glamorous spies of fiction like James Bond, whom he calls "too stupid." In all his years in business, Harel said, he never carried a gun and he was never seduced by a beautiful woman, at least not in the line of duty.

"I often used women as agents, though," he said. "Women were some of our best operators, but I never used them in a sex role. It's dangerous. You put a woman to work on a man and you never know what will happen — the situation can turn around."

Harel came to Palestine from the Soviet Union in 1930 as an immigrant farmer and orange grower, joined the Jewish underground in World War II and caught a German counterfeiter on his first assignment. By 1948 he was manipulating Arab agents, building the filing system that is the basis of intelligence work, breaking up Jewish terrorist gangs and virtually running the secret service.

Four years later he was officially put in charge and he constructed Israel's complicated system of intelligence departments in its present form: "Mossad" (the institute for operations abroad, "Shin Bet" (security service for secret work inside Israel, "Aman" (military intelligence), plus a police special branch and a Foreign Ministry research division.

Don Collier, district commercial manager for Carolina Telephone, announced today that a $159,000 project is now underway to expand the company's central office local dial equipment here.

The program will provide facilities not only to serve new subscribers in this area, but also to permit higher grades of service for existing subscribers.

"Recently," Collier said, "the growth of Greenville has accelerated the demand for telephone service. As a result, the maximum capacity of present equipment has nearly been reached."

In the past 10 years, for example, telephones in service here have increased from 13,200 to more than 35,500.

"The expansion project here was engineered to enable the company to meet future growth requirements," Collier noted.

Three People Hurt In Four Collisions

Collard Festival Meeting Held

Three persons were reported injured and an estimated $6,000 property damage caused in four collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted when cars operated by Carlton Gene Keech of Goldsboro and Mary Corbett Peele of Fountain collided about 3 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Evans Street.

Investigators, who charged Keech with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety and reported he was injured in the collision, estimated damage at $2,000 to the Keech car and $1,200 to the Peele auto.

William Kyle Thompson of Grifton and a passenger on the motorcycle he was driving were injured when the vehicle collided with a truck operated by Ernest Coy Avery of 205 West Martinsborough Rd. about 9 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Bismark Street.

Police estimated damages at $600 to the Avery truck and $1,000 to the motorcycle.

Bessie Langley White of Route 4, Greenville was charged with failing to stop for a red light following investigation of a 10:50 a.m. collision at the intersection of 14th and Chestnut Streets.

Officers reported the White car collided with an auto driven by John Shaw King of 801 Ernul St. causing an estimated $450 damage to the King auto and $300 damage to the White car.

Jung Gun Kim of 1204 South Wright Rd. and Kenneth David Keese of Goldsboro were identified as drivers of vehicles which collided about 1:55 p.m. at the intersection of Ninth and Lawrence Streets.

Officers, who made no charges, estimated damage at $325 to the Kim car and $125 to the Keese auto.

AYDEN—A Collard Festival membership drive was started at the Collard Festival meeting in Ayden Tuesday night. Memberships can be purchased for $1.00 and names of members will be published in The Ayden News Leader every week.

Funds were allocated to employ the Spectaculars to play for the street dance to be held Friday night of the festival.

Tommy Cannon, Richie Cannon and Mike Sutton discussed the possibility of the addition of a skateboat contest.

New committee members were named and the possibility of purchasing Collard Festival T-shirts was discussed.

Set Learning Ability Test

A learning ability screening program for all children scheduled to enter the first grade in Greenville City Schools is to be conducted during the week of March 15-19.

Initiated last year as a cooperative venture, the program will again this year be conducted through the cooperative pooling of personal resources of the city schools, East Carolina University, Greenville Kiwanis and the Greenville Moose Lodge.

The purpose of the screening is to help identify how individual children learn, to discover problems that might interfere with learning.

Mrs. Ann Harrison, Director of Program for Exceptional Children in the city schools, says it is estimated that up to ten per cent of all children entering school will have a specific learning problem that is correctable in special and summer programs.

Persons interested in additional information are to call the Greenville City School office, telephone 752-4192.

Kennedy Airport Flight Ban Will Be Fought By Concorde

NEW YORK (AP) — The two-state agency that runs Kennedy International Airport has barred flights by the Concorde supersonic jetliner for at least six months after an announcement from Air France and British Airways that they planned to begin training flights there next week.

The resolution Thursday by commissioners of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey banned the flights and ordered a study by the agency's aviation director of Concorde operations elsewhere for six months and a report "as to the acceptability of supersonic operations at Kennedy."

The study should pay particular attention to environmental effects and the impact of the 1,400 mile-an-hour, 100-passenger jet's noise on communities around Dulles Airport near Washington, Heathrow Airport in London and DeGaulle Airport in Paris, commissioners said.

Shortly after the commissioners' action, Port Authority Chairman William J. Ronan said of the British-French operators of Concorde, "We will notify them certainly by tomorrow. The flights are not going to be permitted."

A spokesman for British Airways said officials of his company would meet today to decide what legal course to follow.

Paul Mifsud, a British Airways attorney, said the Concorde's sponsors feel a Feb. 4 ruling allowing the plane to land in the United States — by U.S. Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. — is valid.

In notifying the Port Authority of its plans to begin training flights next week, the airlines said: "Our counsel advises us that the Port Authority does not have the legal right to refuse to allow us to operate at Kennedy Airport in light of the permission which has been granted by the federal government" to operate flights for evaluation for 16 months, beginning April 10.

"That will have to be tested in the courts," Ronan replied after the commissioners voted. "We will take all legal steps necessary."

Ten of the board's 12 members, appointed by Gov. Brendan Byrne of New Jersey and Gov. Hugh L. Carey of New York, were present for the meeting.

Carey signed noise-level legislation last week that would require the Port Authority to bar the plane if New Jersey enacts a similar bill.

More Big Porn Raids In N.C. Are Indicated

RALEIGH (AP)—On the heels of a raid on a Raleigh warehouse accused of distributing pornographic materials in the Carolinas and Virginia, the North Carolina office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation revealed that other pornography cases are being investigated and more raids may be in the offing.

Louis A. Giovanetti, special agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina, called Thursday's raid "the first major search and seizure" in the crackdown on pornography he announced late last year.

No one was arrested immediately, but agents seized an undetermined amount of material from Carolina Book Distributors Inc. Documents filed in federal court say the company receives materials from Atlanta then distributes it in the three states.

According to the documents, the agents seized movies and magazines depicting sex acts involving heterosexual and homosexual couples and ani-

Church Sets Businessman To Be Youth's Day Speaker At Church

The St. James United Methodist Church Council on Ministries has declared Sunday, March 14, as "Youth's Day" and special activities have been planned by the church for that day.

The Youth Choir will sing selections from the rock-folk musical "Tell It Like It Is" and a covered dish supper will be held in the Fellowship Hall at 6 p.m. to honor youth members and friends of the church. Following the dinner, the youths will break into age groups and go to different rooms to study the biblical idea of the Holy Spirit.

The purpose of this study, according to Bishop Earl G. Hunt of the WNC Conferency is "to guide the rediscovery of Christian experience and the power of the Holy Spirit into constructive channels and further renewal of the United Methodist Church."

The study will continue for four weeks in 31 neighborhood groups across the city with different topics each week.

"It is our hope that our St. James constituency will come to a biblical understanding of the teaching of the Holy Spirit and Christian experience," according to the pastor, the Rev. F. Roderick Randolph.

He invites the public to participate.

Multi-millionaire, Dr. Russell Anderson, a Christian businessman, will be at People's Baptist Temple, Sunday at 10 a.m. according to Dr. Barry Bagwell, Pastor.

located in Ypsilanti, Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson have three daughters, and the family actively supports the program of their home church, Metro Baptist Temple in Belleville.

Anderson was saved at the age of 28 and has dedicated his life to soul winning. He spends an average of five nights and three days a week soul winning or speaking in churches. As a result, he has seen approximately 1,000 receive Christ as Savior in the last two years.

Anderson's personal testimony and challenge to laymen has been successful in numbers of churches across the country.

He is also co-founder of the Hyles-Anderson Bible College in Hammond, Indiana.

Marcus Garvey was a leader who sought a homeland for blacks in Africa and had millions of followers.

The scene from the Hill. It's up to him to inform the rest of us, and in these complicated times, that isn't easy. But his job is communication, to get the facts, to give them to us straight.

He represents a Freedom . . . one of those precious gifts guaranteed to us under our Constitution. The Church represents another Freedom.

These Freedoms, and the word itself, have special meaning just now when we're celebrating our Bicentennial. Let's not lose sight of them.

It's a birthday present we owe ourselves.

NEW YORK (AP)—Interest rate worries and selling in steel stocks combined to drive the Dow Jones industrial average back below 1,000 in the stock market today.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips, which closed above 1,000 for the first time in more than three years Thursday, had dropped back 6.30 to 997.01 by 11:30 a.m.

Losers took a slight lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues after trailing by as much as 2 to 1 earlier.

The central bank sold a record amount of Treasury securities in the money market over the latest reporting week—a move which makes funds more scarce in that market and thus tends to put upward pressure on interest rates.

Weakness in the steel group was ascribed to a Wall Street Journal article which raised questions about the industry's outlook.

U.S. Steel dropped 1% to 85 1/2 and Bethlehem Steel lost 3/4 to 46. Both are components of the Dow.

Mobil Oil rose 3/8 to 54 1/2 and Marcor slipped 1/8 to 32 1/2. Mobil proposed to acquire the 46 percent of Maccor stock it doesn't already own through an exchange of securities and form a new holding company called Mobil Corp.

The NYSE's composite index was unchanged at 54.43 after the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index managed a .10 gain to 105.40.

Ford Disclaims 'Stain' By Watergate

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
President Ford, campaigning for Illinois' upcoming presidential primary, has denied that Watergate left any stain on his administration. Two other candidates — Republican challenger Ronald Reagan and Democrat Jimmy Carter — attacked Ford's foreign policy.

The President, in search of another damaging blow to Reagan's candidacy in next Tuesday's Illinois primary, was in the Chicago area today to continue a three-day swing. He arrived Thursday in Rockford and went at once for the rural vote.

Ford was scheduled to give a foreign policy address today before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

In response to Reagan's earlier suggestion that a Ford nomination would keep Watergate alive, the President, on arriving in Illinois, told reporters that the "Democratic Congress was absolutely convinced I had no connection whatsoever with Watergate. So that ought to lay that allegation to rest."

Ford did not mention his pardon of former President Richard Nixon.

Democrats, too, were busy in Illinois, biggest of the primary states so far in terms of delegates. Carter was in Chicago and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in Peoria.

Carter, winner of primaries in New Hampshire and Florida, was joined in Chicago by R. Sargent Shriver, who is trying to keep his patchwork campaign alive.

Wallace got a foot-stomping reception from supporters in Peoria, and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris, who is not campaigning full tilt in Illinois, met with supporters in the Chicago area.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, speaking in Boston, attacked critics of the administration's foreign policy. He didn't name names, but his targets apparently were Reagan and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a Democratic presidential candidate.

New York's legislature passed and Gov. Hugh Carey signed a bill allowing the listing of candidates' names on Democratic primary ballots. In the past, only those running for delegate to the national conventions have been listed — something observers said favored those with the most money and biggest organizations. The new law is expected to help such candidates as Carter and Rep. Morris Udall.

Republican state chairmen prepared for a meeting at the Texas home of former Treasury Secretary John Connally. Connally denied that the meeting indicated anything about presidential ambitions on his part.

North Pitt, Washington Vie For Title

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
BETHEL—"We might have taught them something and we might have taught North Pitt something," Greene Central's dejected Jim Fulghum said last night. His Greene Central Rams had just lost an amazing game to Washington, 42-35, in the district playoffs.

"We might have taught them something," he said working the plug of tobacco in his cheek. The Rams had surprised Washington's defending state champs with a four-corners and had it not been for two breaks, Fulghum felt things might have been different.

The Pam-Pack win pits them against North Pitt, a 69-51 winner over Farmville Central, tonight at 7:30 at North Pitt. The winner will go to next week's state 3-A playoffs in Durham.

Farmville Central has had some close games with North Pitt this year, but last night, North Pitt made it look easy once the Panthers began to roll. Jesse Harris ran a cleaning service for the Panthers wiping eight rebounds off the boards in the first half and Donnie Perkins bought into the company in the second half for a game total of 10. In all, North Pitt outscored Farmville Central, 36-24.

Things started out tight. It took North Pitt three minutes to get the lead, 4-2, on a bucket by Virgil Pilgreen but when they got it, the Panthers ran it to 8-2 before the Jaguars scored again.

Things got tight again in the second quarter. North Pitt was only able to add two points to the margin which rose to 26-18 at halftime. The lead got up to 24-12 at one point but FC rallied in the closing minutes of the half to knock it down to 24-18.

North Pitt took the first part of the third quarter, 11-2 for a 37-20 lead with 4:22 left and after that, North Pitt coasted to the win. Mitchell Foskey played a fine game in his last appearance for Farmville Central scoring 17 points and grabbing eight rebounds. He also blocked three shots. Perkins led North Pitt with 21, Harris and Kenneth Roberson scored 11 each.

Fulghum surprised just about everybody with his Snow Hill spread the first time the Rams got the ball. Washington broke the stall on a steal by Albert Spencer with 6:57 left and scored the Pack's first bucket on a layup, 2-0. A foul on the play resulted in a tap in by Kenny Rogers for a quick 4-0 lead. The Ram stall helped them get a bucket from Nelson Edwards and after two Washington field goals Edwards, and Melvin Briggs each hit to tie the game, 8-8.

The Rams continued to play their slow-down game trying to get Washington to rush its game and start fouling.

"I expected them to come out in it," said Pam-Pack coach David Smith. "But not that soon. They did a good job.

"They wanted to spread us out," he said, "and drive down the lane. But then the Rams had an opening, they failed to take it. (Marvin) Rouse got open in the middle and should have shot," Fulghum said, pointing out one of two keys in the game. The other, he said, was not getting help on the lob pass to Spencer when Washington went man-to-man.

The Pam Pack barely outshot Greene Central, 43 percent to 39 percent. Washington hit 13 of 30 and 30 and the Rams 12 of 31 attempts.

Greene Central led twice in the second period and stayed right with Washington through the third period. The turning point came in the fourth quarter when Spencer hit a field goal and was fouled. He missed the free throw but Smith said it may have cost the Rams the game.

"That was the turning point," he said, "That bucket. At the end it was the toughest (the Pack has had to play) all year. They executed real well."

At one point in the fourth quarter, Rouse got tangled with Spencer and the resulting jump ball looked like Tom Thumb going against the Jolly Green Giant.

But the overwhelming height difference could not be overcome and the Pack got as many rebounds in the first half, as the Rams did the whole game, 12.

Another thing that startled Smith was the absence of Ray Hill in the Ram lineup. "I expected him (Fulghum) to start the big guy but when he didn't, I knew what kind of game we were in for.

"We didn't lose our poise," Smith said. "We made one or two fouls away from the play that helped them out."

Greene Central hung a point back through the second quarter until a fast break and an outside bucket by Edwards lifted the Rams to a 20-19 lead. The advantage changed hands again but Washington finally got it good on a basket by Kenny Gray. Rouse hit two free throws with :03 left for a 25-24 score at halftime.

Both teams slowed things down in the third period getting just four points each. Two big Washington turnovers helped the Rams. With :57 left, Kenny Rogers stepped on the baseline as he drove for a lay-up. Thirty seconds later, Alvis Robers did the same things handing the ball back to GC. And both times, the Pack could have easily gotten two points.

The Rams settled into the spread in the fourth period but it was broken when Hill fouled Spencer turning the ball over. Grey Hodges scored as a result giving Washington a three-point lead, 31-25, with 7:23 left.

A basket by Kenny Rogers made it 33-28 but the Rams cut it back to one. A fumble by Melvin Briggs with 4:43 left brought the Washington fans to their feet screaming double dribble. The roar only incited Rouse to bomb the Washington zone, 33-31, and Briggs added two free throws with 1:47 left to make it 33-32.

A foul by Edwards with 1:07 helped the Pack get a bucket by Spencer on the inbounds. Thirty seconds later, Spencer added two free throws and it was practically over.

"Before the game, I didn't know if they had confidence in themselves," Fulghum said. He quickly found they did, he added.

"I was surprised we held the ball as long as we did," he said. "There were two rebounds in the first half we should have gotten.

"We wanted them to become impatient and throw up some shots. In the third quarter, they came out in a half court trap. If they had stayed in it, we might have..." he said as his voice trailed off.

Washington's Smith agreed with Fulghum. "They controlled the ball really well. We wanted to double team him (Rouse)." Nelson Edwards led the Rams with 14 and Rouse scored 11. Spencer had 12 and Kenny Rogers 10 for the Pack.

Smith didn't say when, but was quick to point out that the Pam Pack had not seen the last of the stall. "We'll see it again."

Roanoke Wins In Overtime

JACKSONVILLE — Roanoke High School used time outs and an extra period to pull off a 70-66 upset of North Johnston last night and move into the finals of the District Two, 2-A Basketball Tournament.

The Redskins will face unbeaten Elm City, the tournament favorite, tonight at 8 p.m. at West Edgecombe High School for the title. The winner moves on to the State 2-A Tournament.

It took an overtime and some timely time outs for the Redskins to pull out the victory.

North Johnston pushed out into the initial lead, building up a 19-14 edge after one period. They continued to pull away from the 'Skins in the second frame, 16-10, and built a 35-24 lead at the half.

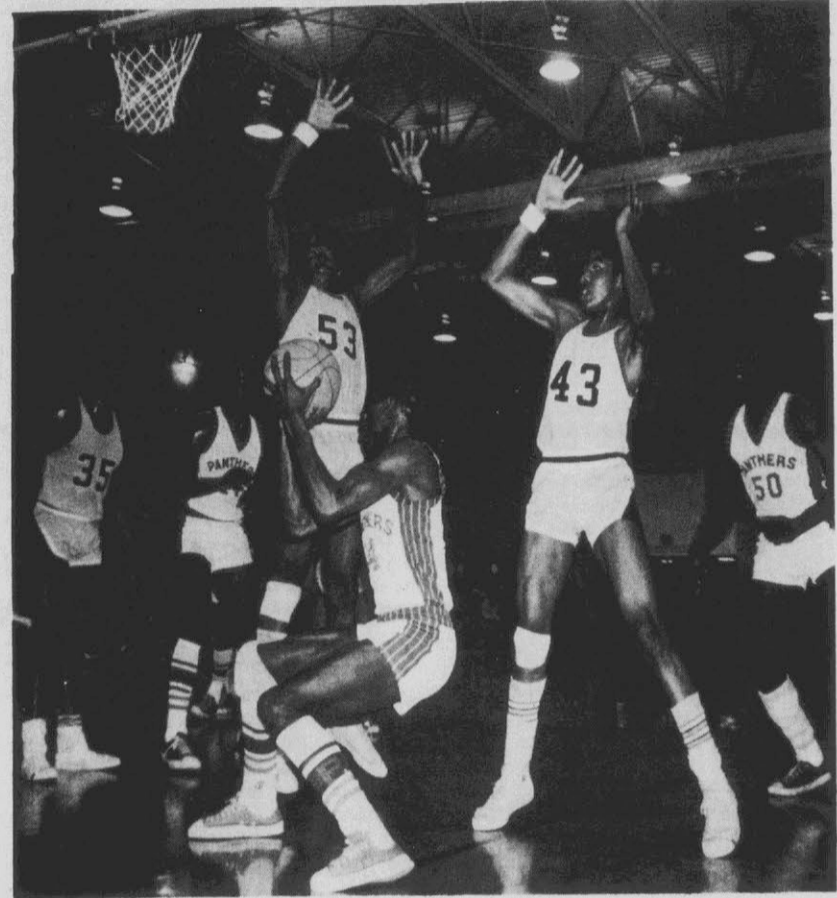

But the Redskins put on a rally in the third period, outscoring Johnston, 21-7, to push into a 45-42 lead. They held onto the slim edge until Greg Purvis hit for Johnston to tie it up with 20 seconds left.

Roanoke then stalled for the next 18 seconds, but turned the ball over with two seconds left.

Then, on the inbounds play, Jerry Stencil was fouled and went to the line with a one-and-one and a chance to win. But before he could shoot, Roanoke called a time out and went on to call two more, letting Stencil stew a while and think about it. When he finally did shoot, the results were as the 'Skins hoped for—he missed.

Ricky Duggins hit four of the eight Roanoke points in the overtime, while Tim Highsmith added a crucial three-point play as the 'Skins outhit Johnston, 8-4, to take the win.

Duggins led Roanoke with 20 points, while Kenneth Howell had 13 and Lowell Williams, 10. Purvis led Johnston with 23, while Dana Moore had 16 and Marion Frazier had 14.

Williamston Gains Finals

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School's girls basketball team struggled to a 55-47 victory over Belhaven last night to gain the finals of the District One Girls Tournament.

Northeastern High School of Elizabeth City took the other finals spot, nipping Chowan, 35-34. The two teams meet tonight for the title and a berth in next week's State Tournament at 8 p.m. at Williamston.

Williamston and Belhaven battled down to the wire in the first period, with the Tigerettes holding a 16-15 lead. It stayed close in the second quarter, with Williamston outshooting Belhaven, 10-8, to inch out to a 26-23 lead at the half.

The Tigerettes continued to inch away in the third period, posting a 12-9 advantage. That left Williamston up, 38-32. They extended their lead to as much as ten points in the final period, despite foul trouble.

Paula Bennett led Williamston with 19 points, while Nancy Williams had 17 and Bet Brandon had 13. Linda Nelson had 26 while Martha Gibbs had 11 for Belhaven.

"We went man-to-man on Gibbs in the second half and held her scoreless," Williamston Coach Susan Cox said. "But we couldn't stop Nelson."

Miss Cox looks for a tough game against Northeastern. "They're fired up. It's not going to be easy for us."

Radford Gains Third Round; Bucs Are 17th

TUCSON, Ariz.—East Carolina's Mike Radford hung on for a narrow 4-3 decision over Navy's Greg Cooper to advance into the quarterfinals at the first round of the NCAA Wrestling Championships.

Radford's victory gave the Pirates six team points which moved East Carolina into 17th place in the overall team standings after the conclusion of the first round.

Radford, who received the number eight seed in the 190 weight class, stopped Penn State's Bill Bertrand in the afternoon session to advance into the evening round. His victory over Bertrand was one of the most exciting matches of the afternoon, as the score was tied 3-3 at the end of regulation and 1-1 at the end of the overtime period. Radford was awarded the victory on a referee's decision.

Ron Whitcomb at 177 and Phil Mueller at 167 also scored victories in the afternoon only to lose in the evening session. Whitcomb easily defeated Richard Rose of Arizona 11-5 but ran into third seeded Willie Gadsdon of Iowa State in the next preliminary round and lost 7-4. Mueller upset eighth seeded Dennis Graham of Portland in the afternoon session 15-8, but was pinned for the first time in his career by Wyoming's Paul Reed in the next preliminary round.

Paul Osman got the Pirates off to a quick start in the morning "pig tail" round with a pin over Shippensburg State's Glen Burket in 7:16. But Harold Wiley of California at Santa Barbara pinned Osman in 3:45 in the next round.

Tom Marriott and Paul Thorp both ran into top seeds in their first round preliminary matches and were beaten.

Thimer Toth-Fejel of Lehigh, seeded seventh in the 142 weight class stopped Marriott 12-6 while Roy Oliver of Arizona State, seeded third in the 150 weight class shut out Paul Thorp 8-0.

"I was very pleased to see Radford pull out two close matches," said Pirate head coach John Welborn. "We got outstanding effort from Mueller and Whitcomb. They just both ran into some terrific wrestlers. But we're in 17th place as a team and I have to say I'm quite pleased with that. If we can get some wrestlers in the consolation matches we've got a great chance of finishing within the top 15 teams."

The 17th place finish after the first round was the highest an East Carolina team has ever finished after the first round. Pirates are only two points from matching their highest team total of eight which was set in 1974 when Bill Hill placed fifth in the nation at 177.

Second round action will continue through Friday with the finals and consolation finals set for Saturday.

Richmond Tops Bucs

The East Carolina tennis team lost its first Southern Conference match yesterday, 7-2, to the Richmond Spiders on the ECU courts.

Mitch Pergerson of the Pirates registered his third victory of the season in beating Tommy Richards in the number five singles, 6-7, 6-3, 6-2.

The doubles team of Doug Getsinger and Bob Neff picked up their second consecutive victory in defeating Richards and Bill Chavent, 6-0 and 6-3.

The loss for the Pirates dropped them to 1-1 in the Southern Conference and 1-2 overall. The Spiders raised their conference mark to 1-1, 2-2 overall. The Pirates return to the courts Saturday for a 1 p.m. meeting with Bloomsburg State College.

University Park, Pa.—East Carolina's swim team has moved into third place after the first day of competition in the Eastern Regionals being held here this week.

Pitt leads the meet with 107 points, 43 of which came from the diving events, while the Terrapins of Maryland are in second with 95 and the Pirates have 89.

"If we had some divers we would be in first right now," said a confident coach Ray Scharf. "If there would not have been any diving here we would be 16 points ahead of the second place team right now."

John McCauley led the day's swimming for the Pirates. The 6-7 sophomore broke every record he possibly could in winning the 50 freestyle. His time of :20.83 was a new meet, pool and ECU varsity mark. He drew raves from Scharf.

"John really swam tremendously tonight. He broke his old marks by 24 and qualified for the nationals. Not only that, his swim tonight ranks him fourth this season in the nation."

John Tudor also set a new record for the Pirates as he swam to a third spot in the 500 freestyle with a new varsity mark of 4:43.98, while Doug Brindley finished fifth.

One sad note for the Pirates was the 200 individual medley where the Pirates were expected to do well. Favorite Stewart Mann was ill all day and could do no better than tenth.

Scharf is confident the Pirates can come back and close the gap and maybe win the team championship. "With 12 events left and all of them being swimming events, we can certainly win this thing," said Scharf. "We are going to be strong in the swimming events that are left."

The summary:

500 freestyle—1. Jerry DeMuro (Pitt) 4:38.71; 2. Tom Turner (Syracuse) 4:43.81; 3. John Tudor (ECU) 4:43.98; 4. Robert Pope (WVU) 4:45.43; 5. Doug Brindley (ECU) 4:46.37; 6. Mickey Webb (Syracuse) 5:19.25.

Reavis Leads Bucs To Furman

By WILLIE PATRICK
Special To The Reflector
Dean Reavis agreed that the weather was nice for baseball Sunday when the Pirates opened their season against the University of Maryland. It was so nice, in fact, that the senior righthanded wound up staying on the mound much longer than anyone would expect.

Reavis pitched the first 12 innings Sunday, which is how many innings it took for the Pirates to trip the visitors in the opening game of the doubleheader. He admittedly got tired during the fifth and sixth innings of the game, but there was a critical time that came up after that that changed his feelings.

"After we got out of the major jam in the 10th, I knew we would win," said Reavis. "And the crowd... it was something. Every time we made a move, there was a tremendous roar."

In the 10th the Pirates were looking down the short end of a bases loaded, one-out situation. Two ground balls got Reavis out of that and Glenn Card put the finishing touch on the contest with a three-run home run two innings later. Reavis said that Card's blast was but a small indication of the talent on this year's Pirate team.

"We've got people who can hit the ball out of the park and we have people who can sting you with the line drives," said Reavis. "But I sure was glad Glenn hit that one when he did."

six games and lost two, an area which caused him to reflect differently after Sunday's performance.

"Last year, in relief, I had pitched only four innings and had won two games," said Reavis. "This year, it takes 12 innings to get the first big one."

"The important thing is that we got the big ones Sunday." The next big games the Pirates will have are the two coming up in Greenville, S.C., Saturday against the Furman Paladins. The Pirates have split the series with the Paladins for the past two seasons, something Reavis hopes will not be the case this time around.

"They will have a good team," said Reavis. "But there has been no other school in the conference that has worked as hard as we have."

"The conference is competitive from top to bottom in baseball, but I think it will be the team that works the hardest that will win. I think we have worked the hardest."

Among the factors contributing to Reavis's confidence are the defensive plays and "all-out hustle" displayed by the Pirates against the Taps.

"I was very happy to see everybody pulling together for each other, not only in the field but on the bench, too," said Reavis. "We had the hustle, the togetherness, and a big crowd to cheer us on and it all payed off." Reavis contributed four assists and a putout in addition to his pitching statistics. He also wishes to credit the unknown group that contributed the "Amen Chorus" to the visitors at the end of the game.

"A pitcher isn't going to win by himself," said Reavis. "The 'Amen Chorus' we had in the stands helped us out a lot on Sunday, too."

PIRATES OPEN SPRING DRILLS — A group of East Carolina University football players are put through an agility drill as spring practice opened yesterday with about 90 players reporting. "I thought we had great enthusiasm and spirit," Coach Pat Dye said. "But with so many players out we didn't get to work the players as much as I had hoped too." The Bucs will continue workouts building toward the annual spring game, set April 3 in Ficklen Stadium at 8 p.m. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Kamikaze Kids Pilot To Show His Abilities

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — He leaps over tall press tables, scores baskets in a single bound and seems faster than a speeding bullet.

Ronnie Lee, pilot of Oregon's wild "Kamikaze Kids", plays basketball better horizontally than many players do vertically, it appears.

"He is as intense as any college player I've ever seen," says pro scout Neil Johnson of the Portland Trail Blazers. "He has as much influence on a game as Bill Walton did when he was at UCLA."

Lee's circus-like stunts will be on display when the Ducks play in the 39th National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden. Oregon has drawn a first-round bye and will appear in a quarter-final game Monday night against the winner of Saturday's San Francisco-UNC-Charlotte opener.

"Because of his overall excellence, I think that Ronnie Lee is college basketball's player of the year," says his coach, Dick Harter. "There are players who score more, but none as dominating in the clutch. No one has ever competed for loose balls and done the little things that Ronnie has done continually for Oregon over the past four years. No player puts all these things together like Ron Lee."

Harter calls Lee the foundation of his team. He's more than that. He's the symbol of Oregon's flamboyant style — diving and skittering after loose balls with reckless abandon.

Lee has scored more points, handed out more assists and played more minutes than anyone in Oregon's basketball history. He also holds the school record for floor burns and hurling his body through the air.

"I've always been active, I guess," Lee says. "When I was little, I'd be doing anything — climbing fences, breaking windows, jumping from second-story windows. My mother said it was impossible to keep me in my shoes."

Harter's program at Oregon weeds out the timid and Lee has fit into the tough mold with flying colors. One of Harter's practice "games" is to roll the ball between two players and have them dive, scuffle and scrape for the missile. For those who don't give 100 per cent in these sessions, Harter has his players climb a long rope at the Ducks' MacArthur Court.

"His program takes a certain type of person, one with a lot of character," says Lee. "That's good because that way there are no individuals on the team. It's the team first."

Oregon, a 20-point winner over Pacific-8 Conference champion UCLA during the regular season, ranks as one of the favorites in the NIT, the oldest post-season college basketball tournament in the country. With the free-wheeling Lee acquiring the NIT's Most Valuable Player trophy last year, the Ducks finished in third place.

After the Kentucky-Niagara opener Saturday, Providence plays North Carolina A&T in the second game of an afternoon doubleheader. UNC-Charlotte will face San Francisco, and St. Peter's will play Holy Cross Saturday night. North Carolina State, Kansas State and Louisville will join Oregon in Monday night's quarter-finals.

Show No Progress

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — "We're in the 11th hour of something that is jeopardizing the baseball season."

That was the dour statement of Cincinnati star Johnny Bench after baseball's negotiating committee and some 50 players met eye-to-eye Thursday in a two-hour, 25-minute exploratory session at the Tampa airport hotel.

There was little reason for optimism, indicated by Bench's observation that negotiations for a new labor contract between the major leagues and the Players Association still were stalemated.

"If we don't get off dead center and get it done by the middle of next week, the start of the season could be jeopardized," Bench said.

But both sides agreed to remain in Florida for marathon negotiating sessions starting today.

Bench, who recently signed a $200,000 contract with the world champion Reds, was one of those instrumental in getting together the owners' committee and the Players Association executive committee of 24 for an exchange of ideas. A number of other players attended the session as observers.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, confirmed Bench's pessimism.

Tar Heels Seek To Rebound With 'Bama

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Can North Carolina rebound? Literally as well as figuratively, that is.

The Tar Heels are hoping to come back in the NCAA playoffs Saturday from an Atlantic Coast Conference bust. And to do that, they'll have to come up to Alabama's rebounding power.

"Alabama's probably the best offensive rebounding team we'll see," says North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "Alabama is a very quick team. I don't know if we've played anybody with better quickness and size. They like to fast break a good bit and they like to run."

Smith, unhappy with the Tar Heels' defense in their stunning loss to Virginia in the ACC playoff final last week, accented that element of the game in tuneups for the first-round Mideast Regionals at Dayton, Ohio.

"I was terribly disappointed with our defense against Virginia," Smith noted. "Virginia shot 67 per cent against us in the second half. No matter what kind of defense you're playing, that should never happen."

Guided by Mitch Kupchak and Phil Ford, North Carolina won the regular-season ACC championship before the upset by Virginia in the always-frantic league playoffs. Alabama, powered by center Leon Douglas, displaced Kentucky as the Southeastern Conference champion this year.

Marquette, a strong Midwest independent, will be playing Ohio Valley Conference champion Western Kentucky in the second game at Dayton. In another Mideast Regional doubleheader at South Bend, Ind., eastern independent St. John's will tackle top-ranked Indiana, the Big Ten champion, and Mid-American Conference champion Western Michigan faces Virginia Tech's independents.

Three other regional tournaments will be staged Saturday in the first step on the road to the coveted NCAA championship. The final will be held March 29 in Philadelphia.

Virginia takes on DePaul, a midwestern independent, and Southern Conference winner VMI faces Tennessee of the SEC in the first round of the East Regionals at Charlotte, N.C. In the other East first-rounder at Providence, R.I., it's independent Rutgers vs. Ivy League champion Princeton and Hofstra of the East Coast Conference against Connecticut of the Yankee Conference.

Syracuse, an independent, plays Southwest Conference winner Texas Tech and Michigan of the Big Ten faces Wichita State of the Missouri Valley Conference in one of the Midwest doubleheaders at Denton, Tex. At Lawrence, Kan., Missouri of the Big Eight meets Washington of the Pacific-8 Conference while independent Notre Dame tackles Cincinnati of the Metro-6.

In the first round of the West Regionals at Tempe, Ariz., it's Pepperdine of the West Coast Athletic Conference against Memphis State of the Metro-6 and Arizona of the Western Athletic Conference vs. independent Georgetown, D.C. At Eugene, Ore., Boise State of the SEC in the first round of the East Regionals at Charlotte, N.C. In the other East first-rounder at Providence, R.I., it's independent Rutgers vs. Ivy League champion Princeton and Hofstra of the East Coast Conference against Connecticut of the Yankee Conference.

Toll-Free Directory Is Result Of Frustration

CLAVERRACK, N.Y. (AP) — Three years ago, Paul Montana was trying to find a toll-free hotel reservations number. His search was unsuccessful, but he has turned the frustration into profit.

Montana, 64, has compiled the "Toll Free Digest," listing thousands of "800" numbers that can be called free of charge.

The directory's main focus is travel and leisure, and it has hundreds of listings for hotels and motels, both in this country and abroad, and for airlines, ski resorts and car rentals.

Other listings include Self Improvement, Fats Off, Acupuncture-Chinese and Internal Revenue Service.

The idea for the digest, which sells for $2, came when Montana had to make a toll call to a Utica, N.Y., hotel because he couldn't find the toll-free listing. Later, his wife found the 800 number in a magazine.

"Why didn't some idiot put all those toll-free numbers into one book?" he asked and followed up with his own answer: "Why not us?"

The Montana family went to work, combing magazine advertisements, sales brochures, catalogues and the small print in newspapers.

Montana said telephone company personnel refused to furnish him with listings, saying they did not want to conflict with their regular toll-call system.

(Since the book came out, Montana says, the phone company has called with questions, saying its customers want to know where they can get the digest.)

The family finally produced a 36-page directory filled with almost 3,000 toll-free numbers and some advertisements.

The directory's cover reminds customers: "Somebody out there wants to talk to you..."

Montana's son Gary is director of marketing for the publication and is responsible for research of new numbers and for checking their accuracy.

"You wouldn't believe the response we're getting from all over the country," Gary says. "We're already averaging over 200 mail orders a day."

Nearly half a million books have been printed to date and Montana's distributor estimates sales well over 100,000 in the first month on the newsstands.

"Our ad rates are based on a distribution of 500,000 copies and I'm sure we're going to exceed this by two or three times," says Paul Montana.

Montana also operates an oil and gasoline distributorship, an appliance dealership and an automatic car wash in this small upstate town.

Stars Gathered To Honor Wyler

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Audrey Hepburn came to the dinner from Europe, Bette Davis and Harold Russell from the East, Barbra Streisand and Charlton Heston from closer by. All had reason to be grateful to William Wyler: he directed them to Oscars.

He himself has won three Academy awards — "Mrs. Miniver," "The Best Years of Our Lives," "Ben-Hur" — and has been nominated 12 times, more than any other director. He has the Thalberg from the Academy, the Griffith award from the Directors Guild, a flock of foreign decorations for his war documentaries and a cup he cherishes, for downhill skiing.

He owns as many honors as a film maker can get, but this Tuesday he got another: the Life Achievement Award of the American Film Institute. Stars from all over — he directed more to Oscars than anyone else — came to the dinner at the Century Plaza. It will be telecast by CBS on Sunday.

His friends call him Willy, his name at birth in Hulhouse, France, 73 years ago. Time has grayed and mellowed him, but he seems as sharp as when he was ruling movie sets with an iron hand. His hearing is impaired, the result of a final mission of the Flying Fortress he immortalized on film, "The Memphis Belle."

"That can be an advantage when I want to shut out the noise of my family," he remarks.

Wyler talked about the new honor ("I was flabbergasted") and his 50-year career in films one day at his art-filled home in Beverly Hills. He started directing low-budget Westerns for Universal in the mid-1920s, finished in 1970 with one of the first black pictures, "The Liberation of L. B. Jones" ("Blacks went to see it but whites stayed away; it made them embarrassed, uncomfortable because of its harshness").

Its failure was not why he quit. "I had gotten older, more tired. Directing is hard work, not only mentally and emotionally but physically as well. I worried over scripts and rushes into the early morning and then arrived at the studio bleary-eyed, ready for a day's shooting."

"I had no private life, no family life while I was filming. The work consumed me. That's why I always took long vacations between pictures."

Does he have favorite pictures?

"That's like asking which is your favorite child. I can't pick one, but I can name three: 'Wuthering Heights,' 'Roman Holiday' and 'The Best Years of Our Lives,' I guess.

"You notice they're not necessarily the biggest hits: 'Ben-Hur' is not among them. The things that give a director the most satisfaction are films that have made a contribution to the cultural or social or political life of our times. 'Best Years' did that. So did 'Mrs. Miniver,' which was an outright propaganda film, although the term is not popular in this country. It was made as propaganda for England and for the war."

disappointed to learn that he had a club loser, but all was not lost. Declarer cashed a high club and the remaining high heart, and then threw West on lead with a club. Naturally, West exited with a diamond, ducked in dummy. The ten forced the ace, but the jack lost to the queen and declarer was down one.

A highly unfortunate combination of circumstances, but one that was not insurmountable. The 9-8 of clubs in dummy should have made the contract proof against any distribution of the club suit.

Edward I Of Biffeche Requires A Camel To Visit His Subjects

By TOM UHLENBROCK
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Edward the First, King of Biffeche, would like to visit his loyal subjects, but first the tiny African nation must find a camel.

Native ritual requires that the king make a royal entrance on camelback, but there are no camels in Biffeche. "I'd have to notify them several months in advance to give them time to import a camel," the king said. "Africans are very protocol-minded."

King Edward, who is known as Ed Schafer at the public relations firm where he works, has learned much about African culture since 1964, when he was first crowned.

"I was doing a public service program on radio and interviewed a local woman who had visited St. Louis, the second largest city in Senegal," he said. "She told of a small band of natives struggling to survive and asked me to help. I agreed to head a committee to aid them."

The natives had been sent by their government to a desolate area in an experiment to see whether the semi-arid land could be farmed. The government promised to send supplies but provided only "some busted farm equipment," Schafer said.

Miffed, the natives decided to form an independent nation — Biffeche means "new tribe" in Senegalese. Schafer was chosen king because his name was listed on the letterhead of stationery used by the committee.

The 53-year-old bachelor has proved a judicious and helpful ruler.

Although his appeal for foreign aid from the State Department was rejected, he had an engineer friend design an irrigation system and had soil samples chemically analyzed.

The water system not only allows the natives to grow citrus fruits and cotton but also saved them while much of the rest of Africa suffered through a severe drought.

The country grew from 100 acres to three square miles and Schafer learned in December that 8,000 more subjects had joined the original 150 tribesmen.

"We took in another tribe, the Axim of Ghana," he said. "They had been going downhill over the years; African soil gets worn out fast. Now, we're the United Kingdom of Biffeche."

Schafer's royal status also has added to the St. Louis social scene.

"We formed the 'Court of Biffeche,'" he said. "A professor friend of mine set up a system of aristocracy. We have court functions, awards, official announcements. We even designed a flag."

friends go out of their way to find cufflinks with crowns on them.

"The whole thing has its light and its serious side." With his dark hair combed back, modish sideburns and gold-rimmed glasses, Schafer looks quite regal in his royal outfit.

"I only really took advantage of my title once," he said. "I

Global Law Of The Sea In Sight; So Are Shoals

By SERGE SCHMEMANN
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.
(AP) — After years of stormy pursuit, negotiators from the world over converge here Monday with an unprecedented global Law of the Sea clearly in sight. But they could still run aground on little black rocks scattered on the floor of the sea.

There are probably more than a trillion tons of these potato-sized nodules on the seabed at depths of two miles or more, mostly in the Pacific, and they contain enough nickel, copper, cobalt and manganese to supply an industrialized nation for generations, specialists say.

The task before the 150 delegations meeting here for the third session of the U.N. Conference on the Law of the Sea is to slice up these riches in a way acceptable to everyone.

Industrialized nations are hungry to start mining with or without a treaty; developing nations fear their exports of raw materials will be undercut; the poorest nations clamor for a slice of the "common heritage."

The aim is to draft one of the most comprehensive global treaties ever envisioned, ranging in scope from the limits of territorial waters and control over fishing to ocean pollution and scientific research.

But delegates from nearly every country — those with long coasts or no coasts; with long-range or short-range fishing fleets, merchant fleets or naval fleets industrialized, developing or impoverished — believe the odds are with them.

"In the field of international law and politics you must never despair," said Jens Evensen, a Norwegian cabinet minister with a Harvard Ph.D. and a love of sailing ships who is regarded as the most influential behind-the-scenes negotiator.

He and other experts and delegates interviewed in advance of the eight-week session say that some of the toughest issues before been cracked:

—Negotiators have agreed to extend a nation's sovereignty from the traditional three miles to 12 miles, and to guarantee passage through the world's 130 or so straits — including such strategic ones as the straits of Gibraltar off Spain and Malacca, off Singapore.

—They have agreed to give coastal states exclusive fishing and mining rights in an "economic zone" stretching 200 miles out to sea. The area within which almost all the world's fishing and oil drilling is done. Coastal states would be solely responsible for conserving fishstocks and allowing other nations to catch what they can't use.

Several countries have already set 200-mile economic limits. The U.S. Congress has approved legislation claiming a 200-mile zone for the United States by July 1, 1977.

—Coastal nations would also be given jurisdiction over their continental shelf where it stretches out beyond 200 miles, but they would have to share profits from these margins with the international community.

—In questions of marine pollution, coastal states would assume the obligation to protect set and enforce standards and an international authority would be set up to protect the deep seabed.

—Agreements are also near on giving archipelagic states, such as the Philippines and Indonesia, control over their interior waters; on spelling out regulations for scientific research; on the general rights of landlocked states to have access to the sea, and on dozens of other complex issues.

The experts stress that these agreements are general and that literally hundreds of specifics need to be threshed out in New York, and probably at subsequent sessions. The major hurdle, they agree, is the nodules.

The basic principle governing these nodules is deceptively simple: the United Nations agreed in 1970 that they, and all other riches of the deep seabed, are mankind's "common heritage."

To administer these riches, the sea-law conference has proposed setting up an "International Sea-Bed Authority" complete with an executive council, a tribunal to settle disputes and its own independent source of income from the nodules.

Industrialized powers, exporters of raw materials, and "have-not" nations with the least resources and technology quickly clashed over who would control the Authority, how much to give it over private firms, how to safeguard metal markets and how to split up the profits from the "common heritage." Industrialized countries — especially the United States, the Soviet Union, Japan, West Germany, Britain and France — saw in the nodules a way to free themselves from dependence for raw materials on Third World sources.

The industrial powers declared they would not tolerate an Authority dominated by developing countries, and would never agree to give the Authority the exclusive right to mine the seabeds.

The prospect of a vast new source of copper, nickel and other minerals sent panic through developing countries whose economies depend on these metals for economic survival — especially Zambia, Zaire, Chile and Peru — and they demanded a strong Authority with power to control prices and production.

Finally the poor and landlocked nations demanded a strong vote in the Authority to guarantee they got a fair share of the seabed riches.

So wide were the gaps that some experts said they began to despair of a solution. But in early February, negotiators gathered in New York in a last-ditch effort to salvage the treaty, and, as one delegate said, they scored a "major conceptual breakthrough."

In broad outlines, the industrial powers accepted the principle that land-based producers would be protected and the have-not nations would be compensated. The Third Worlders agreed that the Authority would have only limited control over deep-sea mining and would work with private corporations in some kind of joint enterprise.

Voters, No Candidates

TROUTDALE, Va. (AP)—Voters in this small Grayson County town will find themselves without a single candidate — officially, at least — when they elect a mayor, clerk-treasurer and six Town Council members here May 4.

But residents of the Western Virginia town of Troutdale may be getting used to that situation by now. There were no candidates printed on the ballot in 1974, either.

Last time, it happened because of a mixup over when to file by mail. This time, apparently, everyone simply forgot about filing altogether.

"They never notified us," said Earl Baldwin, one of the six councilmen. He said none of the local governmental representatives was aware of the filing deadline.

Baldwin said he thought all six incumbents would seek reelection, and most likely would be write-in candidates.

"I don't know of anybody else," he said of the town whose population numbers about 200.

TAX FIGURES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Expenditures of federal, state and local governments during the first three quarters last year took more than a third of the U.S. gross national product, according to Tax Foundation Inc. The watchdog group says the adjusted annual rate of government expenditures was $525.8 billion, which is 36.1 percent of the gross national product of $1.453 billion, annually adjusted.

At 91, Less Of A Baseball Fan

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Percy Durgin is disappointed but not heartbroken that this year's spring training games are delayed, even though he's been a baseball fan since he saw the first World Series.

Durgin, 91, saw the first World Series — the 1903 classic between the Boston Red Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I'm not heartbroken," Durgin said about the cancellation of Friday's Grapefruit League opener between Boston and Los Angeles. "When you're 91, you lose a bit of your edge for baseball."

Newport Might Be '77 Site

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — George Wein, the father of the Newport jazz festival, says he might try to return the music program to this seaport city for the summer of 1977.

Interviewed by telephone in Cincinnati, Wein said the program would be traditional jazz and would be held at Ft. Adams in Newport.

Wein's Newport festivals ended in 1971 when a riot broke up the second night of the program. The remaining performances and the related folk festival were canceled by the City Council.

In recent years, Wein has staged the festival in New York, calling it the Newport Jazz Festival — New York.

GRANNY LOOSENS UP—Great-grandmother Gladys Grande goes off the ground while practicing basketball. The 72-year-old basketball enthusiast, who vacations in South Dade County in Florida during the winter, refuses to act her age, saying "Why should I? Some of my friends are gone. Others can hardly walk. I feel good and I don't feel that old. So, what am I going to do about it?" (AP Wirephoto)
