As Ford's Campaign Manager

"Bo" Calloway "Temporarily" Relieved

GOV. BROWN JOINS PRESIDENTIAL RACE — California's Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. announces to reporters at his Sacramento Capitol office Friday evening that he is entering the Presidential race as a California favorite son candidate. (AP Wirephoto) hearings on the allegations "could cast a pall over the campaign" by Ford to return to the White House. But a White House aide said he did not feel Ford's Republican nomination battle with Ronald Reagan would suffer.

By HELEN THOMAS UPI White House Reporter GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — President Ford's campaign manager, Howard "Bo" Calloway, "temporarily" quit the job Saturday because of allegations he tried to use government influence in the development of a Colorado ski resort owned by Calloway.

Calloway owns controlling interest in the Crested Butte resort. Ford's announcement came after both the Denver Post and the Denver Rocky Mountain News carried stories on the matter today.

"Mr. Calloway this morning asked that he be temporarily relieved of his responsibility as campaign manager of the President Ford committee. It was at his request, and I acceded to it," Ford told reporters.

Ford named Stuart Spencer, one of his campaign officials, as his acting campaign chairman. Another spokesman said Calloway is on "leave" status but will be kept on the payroll.

properly, has the support of the American people for an honest and open administration ... Therefore, I think it is right to go the extra mile, and (step down to make sure) there is no hint of any impropriety in the campaign.

Black Muslims Are Convicted

By JOHN M. LEIGHTY SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Four Black Muslims were convicted Saturday on multiple charges resulting from random street attacks that left 14 whites dead in late 1973 and early 1974.

Manuel Moore, 31, J.C. Simon, 29, all of San Francisco. Green and Cooks were convicted on one count of first-degree murder, one count of conspiracy to murder, two counts robbery, two counts kidnaping and one count assault with a deadly weapon.

Holshouser Mentioned As Potential Running Mate

By JERRY MITCHELL MILLER'S CREEK, N.C. (UPI) — President Ford campaigned from North Carolina's biggest metropolis to a tiny Blue Ridge foothills community Saturday, drawing enthusiastic crowds and predicting victory in the March 23 primary.

Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., who said he doubted anyone would reject the vice presidency if it were offered, was surprised at the size of the response in the new, twin-level Hanes Mall.

Ford spent 15 to 20 minutes taking questions from the audience, taking them from children as well as adults. When one youngster asked how he liked being President, he said, "I kinda like the job and I like it better every day."

contentions he may have used official influence to develop a Rocky Mountain ski resort. But the sunny, springlike weather and warm crowds quickly brought smiles to the President's face and he was talking confidently of whipping former California Gov. Ronald Reagan here in 10 days.

Announces Candidacy

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he will be a candidate for president in California's June 8 Democratic primary because "I have a philosophy that deserves a hearing."

that he has "no present plans" to campaign outside California. But he did not rule out the possibility of a national campaign.

The 37-year-old bachelor governor said Friday that none of the other 10 Democrats now on California's presidential ballot is raising the questions he thinks are most important. Brown, who was elected in 1974, said he has no plans now to enter any other primary and "My only decision now is to run in California. That is the decision that had to be made by Monday (the deadline for naming campaign steering committees). That is the only decision I have made." "I don't anticipate barnstorming up and down the state," he said. But he said he might step up his schedule of speeches.

As for other programs schools which now award bachelor's degrees would have no opportunity to establish master's programs. Those with master's programs would not be allowed to step up to doctorate degrees. The board's Committee on Educational Planning, Policies and Programs, which developed the 750-page plan, received requests for more than 300 new programs from the 16 UNC campuses. It winnowed

After the stops in Winston-Salem and earlier in Greensboro, which together with neighboring High Point form the biggest metropolitan area in North Carolina, Ford came here.

"We were expecting a big crowd, but I don't think anyone thought it would be like this," Holshouser said.

He was asked why no President since Herbert Hoover has mentioned the name of Jesus Christ in public. An active Episcopal layman, Ford noted that he has a son in seminary and said, "He's made his commitment and so have I."

Neither Ford nor Holshouser would predict the margin of victory in the March 23 North Carolina primary, Holshouser saying he would guess only "50 per cent plus one."

His biggest crowd, a throng of nearly 15,000, came at a Winston-Salem shopping center where almost every line of his brief speech was applauded and he was almost pulled across barricades while shaking hands.

A crowd of 5,000 waited outside West Wilkes High School on a grassy hillside for the helicopter to land in the twilight and another 1,700 were inside, many waiting to ask questions.

The eight-hour stay in North Carolina began on a grim note for the President with his announcement that campaign manager Howard "Bo" Calloway was taking a temporary leave of absence because of Holshouser felt the trip was a definite boost to Ford's campaign and said the President probably will return next week for another day on the hustings. "We hope next Saturday," he said.

Wake Forest Budget

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Trustees of Wake Forest University adopted a record budget Friday of $41,731,629 for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

The new budget is 12 per cent higher than the budget for the current year. It will provide $22,555,629 for the medical school and $19,176,000 for the Reynolds campus.

In the 1966-67 fiscal year, the school's first in Winston-Salem after its transfer from Wake Forest near Raleigh, the total budget was $3,742,719.

Included in the new budget is a $100 tuition increase — from $2,400 to $2,500 — for undergraduate students.

Bank Robbed In Sparta

SPARTA, N.C. (AP) — A bandit held up the Workman's Federal Savings and Loan office Friday, the first robbery of a banking institution in this Western North Carolina town in recent memory.

He escaped on foot with an undetermined amount of money.

Decision On New River

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 26.5 miles of the New River in North Carolina will be added to the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System, Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe has decided.

Some conservative Republicans say the announcement today was timed to win votes for President Ford.

Despite its name, the New River is believed to be one of the oldest geologically in the world. Environmentalists say it is one of the nation's few largely unspoiled rivers.

The decision could block construction of two controversial dams on the river.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., charged the decision was being released so Ford, due to campaign in North Carolina today, "can bank in the glory on Saturday."

The Interior Department, in fact, aimed its release of the decision for just after midnight Friday night.

---Street Closings---

The schedule of temporary street closing during the coming week for railroad crossing repairs has been announced by Mrs. Gail Meeks of the City Manager's office.

All crossings listed will have signs erected to guide traffic for detours. The schedule is:

—Monday, March 15—Brownlea Drive, 5:30 a.m. to 10 a.m., Elm Street, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and Berkley Road, 2 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

—Tuesday, March 16—South Evans Street, 5:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

—Wednesday, March 17—Pitt Street, an unspecified short time.

—Thursday, March 18—Skinner Street and Line Avenue, an unspecified short time.

CAR STRUCK — This car, driven by Tammie Haddock of 2509 Jefferson Dr., collided with a railroad maintenance vehicle at the railroad grade crossing on King George Road Friday afternoon. The car was pushed 33 feet by the maintenance vehicle carrying crossties which was operated by Elbert Carnes of Sylva. A passenger in the car, Debbie Haddock, was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital with minor injuries, according to Trooper Wayne Taylor, investigating officer. Taylor said no charges were filed and estimated damage to the car at $500. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

...To Escape, You Just Walk Away...

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — A Hickory man who had just been sentenced to 7-10 years in prison decided Friday he didn't like the way things worked out at his trial — so he simply left the courtroom and drove away.

And embarrassed Catawba county authorities said it was the second time in a week that a newly convicted prisoner walked out of the courtroom to freedom.

Monday, authorities reported, James Harold Davis, 20, of Hickory, had done the same thing, walking out of a District Courtroom in Hickory soon after he was convicted of a misdemeanor.

The State Bureau of Investigation said Saturday it has issued an all-points bulletin for Page, who is still missing.

Six Traffic Deaths Listed

By The Associated Press
Six persons have been killed in traffic accidents in North Carolina this weekend, three of them in a collision in coastal Currituck County and another was a fireman killed when his fire truck overturned, the Highway Patrol reported.

The death toll for the year grew to 232 compared to 244 in the same period last year.

Killed in the Currituck accident Saturday morning were William Mark Laflesh, 24, of Norfolk, Va., Anthony Francis Collier, 18, of Virginia Beach, Va., and James Thomas Gaskill, 76, of Wanchese. The patrol said the car driven by Laflesh went out of control, skidded across the highway and hit the Gaskill vehicle broadside. The accident occurred at the intersection of U.S. 158 and a rural road in the community of Jarvisburg. Collier was riding with Laflesh.

Larry Gerald Lee Jr., 11, of Rt. 2, Trenton, was killed early Saturday when the car in which he was riding struck a tree five miles north of Trenton in Jones County.

Several Accidents Reported

A number of traffic accidents investigated by Greenville Police Friday and Saturday resulted in nearly $6,000 total estimated damage and three drivers being charged, according to police reports.

Heaviest damage occurred at 7:19 p.m. Friday at the intersection of E. Tenth Street and College Hill Drive. Involved were cars driven by Janet Lynn Tremon of 202-A S. Jarvis St. and Zeno Moore Jr. of Kinston. Damage was estimated at $1,200 to the Tremon vehicle and $1,000 to Moore's car. Ms. Tremon was charged with a safe movement violation.

Donald Duse Rhodes of 804-B Johnston St. was charged with driving too fast for existing conditions after his car collided with a telephone pole Friday night on Student Street. Police estimated damage at $600 to the car and $200 to the pole.

Cars driven by Patti Ann

Jones of Jacksonville and Lilla Gwendolyn Holsey of 104 Clubway Dr. collided Friday evening on Greenville Boulevard. No charges were filed and damage was estimated at $800 to the Jones car and $175 to the Holsey vehicle.

In another Friday accident, David Prichard of Burlington reported to police that someone had hit his car while it was parked. Damage was estimated at $300. The vehicle which hit Prichard's car is unknown.

A Saturday morning wreck at the intersection of E. Fourth and Harding Streets involved cars driven by James Grady Jones of 1703 River Dr., Apt. 4 and Jesse Richard Laughinghouse, O. O. Box 2057. No charges were filed in the mishap which caused an estimated $600 damage to the Laughinghouse auto and $275 damage to the Jones care, according to police reports.

Three Arrested On Drug Charges

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Three Michigan residents were arrested by narcotics agents in Onslow County late Friday night and 15 pounds of hashish was confiscated from their car, authorities reported Saturday.

State Bureau of Investigation agents and Onslow County sheriff's deputies participated in the seizure of an automobile containing the three and the drugs, the sheriff's department said.

Charged with possession of hashish for sale were Randall Eugene Johnson, Bobby Lee Burton, and Kyna Marie Bowling, all of Flint, Mich. No ages were available on those arrested, but authorities said they appeared to be in their 20s.

Bond for Burton and the woman was set at $20,000 each, while Johnson — also charged with possession of amphetamines — was held on $30,000 bond.

Authorities said they had a tip that the trio would be bringing the hashish into Onslow County from Michigan, and had staked out roads leading into the county for four nights before making the arrests.

Also confiscated from the car when it was stopped were 3½ pounds of marijuana, the sheriff's department said.

In 1824, Simon Bolivar, ruler of Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador and Peru, broke Spanish power in South America.

The department said the street value of the drugs was more than $100,000.

On page C-9 of today's paper, the title "Bicentennial Guides At Library" should have appeared beneath, not over, the headline "Books Under Review."

Craven Crackdown Reported

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP)—For the second time this year, authorities have cracked down on liquor law violations in Craven County.

Late Friday, some 36 officers began raiding nightclubs and private homes to serve warrants charging 56 persons with 156 violations of state liquor laws.

Late Friday night authorities said 32 persons had been arrested.

The raids were a result of a three-month investigation of illegal liquor sales in the county, a spokesman for the state Alcoholic Board of Control said. While most of the warrants charged illegal sales of tax-paid liquor, there were six felony warrants charging possession and sale of drugs.

Participating in the raids were officers from the New Bern police department, the Craven County sheriff's department and ABC agents.

New Bern Police Chief John

Worsham had called for the undercover investigation. He noted that earlier this year, there were 18 persons arrested in a similar crackdown

To Introduce Legislation On Right To A Job

By DONALD H. MAY
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats are introducing legislation this week to give every adult American the right to a job, provided through the federal government if necessary.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins of California said the bill would set a national goal to reduce unemployment to 3 per cent in four years.

It also would significantly cut inflation and increase the nation's productivity by $500 billion, the co-sponsors said.

With more than 7.1 million persons unemployed, a 7.6 per cent unemployment rate, Democrats will be pushing the administration of President Ford hard on unemployment in this political year and will lean hard on any Republican running for president in November.

The bill, called the "Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act," raises issues to be debated. Most Democratic presidential contenders have endorsed an earlier version of it.

It calls on the President, Congress and the Federal Reserve Board to map budget, tax and monetary policies that work toward a 3-per-cent, "full employment" goal through free enterprise economic forces.

To the extent the economy falls short of this, the bill says the government will provide "job opportunities" to all adult Americans who looked for but found no work.

A new Full Employment Office would be set up to help provide counseling, training and referral of persons to private enterprise jobs, and through "reservoirs" of taxpayer-financed jobs that could be phased in and out according to economic conditions.

If the economy responds well, Humphrey and Hawkins said, the bill could result in a net profit for the government because increased employment and business output would raise tax revenues while decreasing unemployment compensation and welfare.

If the economy makes the worst possible response, Humphrey said, the government would create 4 million jobs under the bill and the net annual cost would be $12 billion.

King Gustaf To Marry

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Sweden's King Carl VI Gustaf, 29, and commoner Silvia Sommerlath, 32, met the press Saturday after four years of hide-and-seek and disclosed some of their future plans, including a summer wedding.

Carl Gustaf will be the first Swedish king to marry in almost 200 years. The last wedding of a Swedish monarch was in 1797, when the king married a German princess.

Carl Gustaf's fiancée also comes from Germany although she is not a princess. Miss Sommerlath is the daughter of a West German businessman and a Brazilian mother.

New Bomb War Declared

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — The outlawed Irish Republican Army Saturday issued a statement to the British public declaring a new bomb war against Britain.

"You have labeled us terrorists," the IRA said. "Now we will act as terrorists."

The statement, the bluntest warning issued by the IRA in the past year, was interpreted by IRA sources as heralding a new attack on targets in Britain.

Dying Father Appeals

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The dying father of kidnapped Ohio executive William Niehous made an impassioned appeal to his Venezuelan abductors Saturday for his speedy release.

"I want you to return Bill to me safe and sound because I don't have long to live and I want to see him again," the elder Niehous said in an appeal carried on Venezuela's three television channels with Spanish subtitles.

The leftist kidnappers had still made no contact as of Saturday. Niehous, 45, vice president of Owens Illinois of Venezuela, was abducted by seven armed men from his home on Feb. 27.

Scotia Mine Closed

PARTRIDGE, Ky. (UPI) — Federal and state officials Saturday closed indefinitely the Scotia Coal mine where 26 men were killed in two separate methane gas explosions.

The bodies of 11 of the victims—killed Friday on a mission to discover the cause of the first explosion—were buried 5,000 feet below the ground, perhaps to be entombed there forever.

"We don't want to risk any more lives," said Richard Nellius, spokesman for the federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration, in announcing the closing of the mine.

Indicted In Payoff

TOKYO (UPI) — Yoshio Kodama, the influential rightwing lobbyist alleged to have been Lockheed's "secret agent" in Japan, was indicted Saturday on charges of evading nearly $3 million in taxes on commissions paid him by the U.S. aircraft company in 1972.

The indictment came as government sources reported Vice Justice Minister Yasuyoshi Shioni would fly to Washington next week to get the names of Japanese allegedly involved in the $12 million Lockheed payoff scandal.

Spends More On Animals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — State and federal agriculture departments are spending nearly three times more for research on how to feed animals than for research on human nutrition, Sen. George McGovern said in a report released Saturday.

Five Youths Die

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (UPI) — A fiery, two-car crash in suburban Bedford Township took the lives of five persons, all in their teens or early 20s, late Friday. A young man, whose younger sister died, was in serious condition at a hospital.

Authorities said a speeding car went out of control, slid into the oncoming lane and was struck broadside by a second vehicle. Police said it was raining at the time.

Three persons were riding in each of the cars.

Family Murdered

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Five members of a family and a visiting friend were shot to death execution-style Friday night in the basement of a home in suburban Bucks County, police report.

Police said the victims were found in the basement about 8 p.m., shot with a small-caliber weapon. The gun was not recovered.

Police identified the victims as John Abt and his wife Margaret, both 50; and their children, Margie, 19; Cathy, 15; and John, 13, and Margie's boyfriend, Garson Engel, 20.

They were not tied up and there was no sign of a struggle, said Lawrence Michaels, Bensalem Township police chief. He said the house had been broken into but there was no evidence of a robbery.

Michael Abt, 20, another son, saw blood in the kitchen when he came home about 8 p.m. Friday and notified police, the police chief said. A patrolman found the bodies in the basement.

A third son, Clifford, is in Bucks County Prison, according to police. It was not immediately known on what charge he was imprisoned.

Neighbors said they did not hear the shootings and were unaware of the slayings until they saw the police cars.

Fun Loving Priest Arrested In Italy

By ERNEST SAKLER
ROME (UPI) — A north Italian cheese maker has proved the undoing of the fun-loving Franciscan friar who split his time between sports cars, champagne parties and spiritual counseling for the Milan soccer club.

Police said Saturday they arrested Padre Eligio, born Angiolo Gelmini, on fraud charges along with his brother, also a priest whom the Vatican barred from saying mass in Rome because of his luxurious way of life, and another man.

A prosecutor in Vercelli who issued the arrest warrants said the three men were charged with fraud against a cheese company in the Po valley town of Crescentino, but would give no further details.

Padre Eligio, 44, wearing his usual attire of dark trousers and a blue turtleneck sweater, opened the door personally when national police knocked Friday night at the north Italian castle housing his "Eco Base" ecological group.

"Okay, let's go," a police source quoted Eligio as saying. He said Eligio looked "more annoyed than surprised."

Police first took Eligio to Vercelli, then moved him to Novara so he could have a prison cell all to himself, a privilege to which Roman Catholic priests are entitled under Italy's 1929 concordat with the Vatican.

Padre Eligio became a national figure as "spiritual advisor" to Milan, one of the country's leading soccer clubs, and a friend of Gianni Rivera, the star player who bought control of the club last year because he didn't like the previous president.

Another Rivera associate, businessman Franco Ambrosio, was arrested in Milan nine days ago on charges of criminal association and receiving stolen goods. He was released on bail Saturday.

Photographs of Padre Eligio hugging girls, driving sports cars and drinking champagne have appeared frequently in newspapers for years.

"I don't rush into hiding when I have a glass of champagne in my hand," he once explained about his conduct.

Padre Eligio also once denied a newspaper report that he wore red underwear.

Search In The South For Missing Suspect

WHEATON, Md. (UPI) — The FBI and police concentrated their search Saturday in the South for Foreign Service Officer Bradford Bishop Jr., suspected of fatally clubbing his wife, mother and three sons and burying them in rural North Carolina.

North Carolina authorities said that reports of Bishop sightings persist throughout the state.

Montgomery County police said "nothing has changed" in the 24 hours since they obtained a warrant charging Bishop, 39, with murdering his 37-year-old wife, Annette. Later, the FBI obtained a warrant charging Bishop with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder.

George P. Quinn, special agent in charge of the Baltimore office, said "Bishop is considered armed and extremely dangerous."

Montgomery County police said a single warrant was sufficient to pursue Bishop, who has been missing since March 1, the day police say the murders were committed in the family's fashionable home in nearby Potomac.

The bodies were found set afire in a makeshift grave near Columbia, N.C., March 2. North Carolina police traced a shovel found near the gravesite to a Potomac hardware store and the bodies were identified Monday.

"We have had rumors off and on all week of possible sightings of Mr. Bishop in the Wilmington-Jacksonville area," said North Carolina Attorney General Rufus Edmisten. "We have been checking these out."

One of those sightings was at a restaurant in Wilmington, where a waitress said a man, who resembled Bishop, ate sausage and eggs Wednesday night, tipped her $3 and was abusive to some black customers.

The Washington Post said waitress Barbara James and two plainclothes policemen who were in the restaurant at the time identified Bishop the next day from a picture in the local newspaper.

Police said a credit card in Bishop's name was used to purchase items in Jacksonville, N.C., on March 2.

Despite the North Carolina reports, the search concentrated in southern Georgia and northern Florida, according to Maj. Wayne G. Brown of the Montgomery County Police Criminal Investigation Division.

Will Not Resign Franjeh Defies Demands

By MICHAEL KEATS
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — President Suleiman Franjeh Saturday defied demands by parliament and army coup leaders to resign and said the only way he would leave the presidential palace is if "they carry me out dead."

Troops loyal to Franjeh seized a barracks and called on soldiers to defend "the homeland against invaders bearing Lebanese names," raising fears Franjeh would fight to stay in power.

Parliamentary deputies, ducking snipers' bullets as they arrived, met in emergency session to constitutionally vote Franjeh out of office and avoid a bloody showdown with the rebel military command.

Franjeh rejected an earlier ultimatum to resign from the army officers who staged a coup Thursday, as well as a dismissal by the new military command after the ultimatum ran out and a formal request from parliament to step down.

Franjeh told visitors to the palace Saturday the only way he would leave is if "they carry me out dead."

As the emergency session met, pro-Franjeh troops seized a military barracks at Fayyadiyah, less than a mile from the presidential palace at Baabda, which is seven miles from the capital.

Scattered shooting and kidnappings were reported across Beirut. In Tripoli, leftist forces clashed with right-wing gunmen from Zghorta, Franjeh's home town, and gunmen manned roadblocks throughout the capital and the suburbs.

Panamanian Ship Taken Into Custody

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — A Panamanian merchant ship and its 17 man crew were in the custody of federal officials Saturday charged with smuggling marijuana into the United States following a chase on the high seas.

The Coast Guard said the Kaki was seized 200 miles off the coast of Charleston at 8:30 p.m. Friday by the Cutter Dauntless with no injuries reported.

"Repeated attempts to stop the Kaki during hot pursuit failed and the Dauntless was forced to fire from one of its 50 caliber machine guns across the vessel's bow," Ensign Thomasina Sconiers said.

She said said the 154 foot Kaki was ordered taken after the arrest of three other persons and the confiscation of 5,000 pounds of marijuana earlier in the day at Georgetown.

"The commanding officer of the Dauntless was ordered to seize the Kaki after it reportedly unloaded contraband to other vessels which entered U.S. waters," she said. "The Kaki had been a suspect vessel and had been watched for a number of days."

Transit Plans Begin To Move

After months of study it appears that Greenville's long-awaited public transportation system is about to get underway.

The City Council last week approved the transit program and authorized advertising for bids for purchase of buses.

Nineteen-passenger Mercedes buses, with an estimated cost of $16,000 each, are to be purchased for the transportation system. Bids will be called for the purchase of four buses.

In approving the plan the council accepted recommendations of a Transit Needs Study from the Public Transportation Commission.

The study recommends routes which can be adjusted as needs are determined. Also recommended is a strong promotion program, including advertising, of the transportation services which will be available to the public.

Thus we seem to be getting to the practical stages of something which we feel is needed in Greenville.

The planned diesel buses which the city soon will purchase seem to be of adequate size for a city of Greenville's population. With the purchase of the buses, City Manager Jim Caldwell expressed the view that the service can get underway by June 1.

After service is inaugurated, the next step will be to make certain that the system is used to the extent that it will be worthwhile to operate. Part of this will come through the promotion plans which are being formulated. But if after all that has been done, the system still is not used, then the City Council certainly would not be remiss in discontinuing the service.

We don't think that will happen, though. For its population size, Greenville covers quite a large area. The industries, the university, medical complex and other places where people work often are located some distance from the residential areas. The new bus system will allow people to leave their cars at home and travel to work or shopping at much less cost. It should also reduce the number of vehicles on city streets at rush hours.

The commitment to a public bus system has now been made. It is up to all of us to make it operate efficiently.

A Patriot, Loyalist Or Non-Alligned?

There was a story last week about a special Bicentennial exhibit which poses questions for visitors in Boston; a computer then projects whether the visitor would have been a loyalist, an American revolutionary, or a neutral back in 1775-76.

So far, 47 per cent turned out to be latter-day patriots, 27 per cent loyalists and the rest were non-alligned.

The prospect intrigues. We'd suspect the accompanying recreations of the Stamp Act arguments, the Boston Massacre, the Boston Tea Party and finally the siege of Boston would be pretty inflammatory dramas.

Not that the presentation would be rigged . . . Heaven forbid! . . . but we wonder if the view of the same incidents from the English position was provided. It would be quite different, as any reader of history can tell you.

It's tough to pass judgment from a distance on an imaginative and elaborate exhibit in a onetime center of colonial revolutionaries; but skepticism lingers and lingers and lingers.

Addict Knows Effect

By BARBARA SLAVIN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Arnie W. and his wife had a 5-year-old daughter. "My wife used to be so frustrated with me she'd hit the kid."

Every night Arnie watched the 11 o'clock sports results on television. If he won, he didn't "need" to have sex with his wife.

"If I lost, I didn't want to have anything to do with her." Arnie is one of an estimated 10 million Americans afflicted with a chronic disease that until a few years ago was not even considered a medical problem.

Despite the enormous suffering it causes, state and local governments, businessmen and even church groups inadvertently spread the contagion.

The disease is compulsive gambling.

The sickness touches not only its immediate victims, but an estimated 40 million relatives, who must put up with a gambler's lies, emotional withdrawal and financial irresponsibility.

As Arnie said, "It's what it does to the family and the quality of life."

A pioneering Veterans Administration study completed last year distinguished between the compulsive gambler and the social gambler, who bets for amusement rather than need.

The average compulsive gambler is a man in his thirties, deeply in debt, whose family needs are provided for by his relatives or welfare, the study said.

"His wife is regularly threatening divorce. There are discipline problems with the children."

The gambler must avoid most friends because he owes them money, the study said. "He sleeps poorly, eats irregularly and is indifferent toward sexual activity."

"He thinks about gambling constantly," the VA paper concluded. "He dreams of the big win, the only comfort for his depression."

Sunday Morning Notes

Remodeling work is underway on the Goodson and Flanagan building on the mall.

When a steel beam across the front of the building was exposed it was found to be labeled, "John Flanagan Buggy Co."

For newcomers, it should be pointed that the firm manufactured buggies for many years and then went on to become one of the nation's largest Ford dealers.

Phil Goodson could only speculate on how the beam got so labeled.

Col. Ed Flanagan was the Flanagan in the firm with the present Goodsons' father. The insurance firm wasn't located in the present building at that time, but it is believed that the building might have been constructed by Col. Flanagan and the steel beam was co-signed to

"John Flanagan Buggy Co., for shipping convenience."

ALVIN TAYLOR

At any rate the firm of Goodson and Flanagan was eventually moved to its present location and the firm and building have since been purchased by the Goodsons.

Soon the "John Flanagan Buggy Co." designation on the steel beam will be recovered as the remodeling proceeds.

Other Editors Say Anti-Family Trend

(The Wilson Times)

The family, which is the center of society, is being neglected and the children are also. There are trends that indicate the home and family are being threatened and this is disturbing as the family is the key unit in the life of our country and civilization.

In the family, the children learn the values by which they live and the nation endures.

Today there is the need to come back to the responsibility of child-raising, which is the responsibility of the family, not society in general. When you hear legislators and social commentators talk about a "role for society," in raising children, thoughtful citizens should be alert. It is in the totalitarian societies that one finds the doctrine that the child is the care of the state. In America it is very important that authority not be wrested from parents.

Mrs. Susan Marshner, former education director of the Heritage Foundation, recently commented on the danger of federal interference in child-raising. In a research paper prepared for the United States Industrial Council Educational Foundation, Mrs. Marshner observed: "This pre-school involvement of society in the parent-child relationship is in its formative state now. So-called child and family services legislation pending before Congress has received wide support. Many programs are already in operation, stragglers left over from the war on poverty. A very active propaganda campaign is underway to sell the idea to the nation. This campaign has two fronts, the home front and the political front."

The need today is for public policy in support of parents, not laws that erode the authority of parents.

The political front generates economic misapprehensions that poverty can be eliminated if the unplanned and unwanted children of the poor are turned over to Uncle Sam so their obviously unhappy mothers can fly into the arms of the labor market, leaving the children so they can be improved and will not be poverty cases themselves. That argument ignores many facts about human nature and about poverty in America.

San Francisco has its BART system—Bay Area Rapid Transit. In Raleigh it is CAT—Capital Area Transit.

In a few months Greenville will be starting up its transit system, using 19 passenger buses.

The system will be known as Greenville Area Transit. What will the short version be? That's right. GREAT.

Following the Utilities meeting last week Chairman George Coffman asked Ray Minges to report on his recent trip to Australia.

Minges indicated he didn't get a fair look at Australia. "They had just had what they call a cyclone. We call it a hurricane."

New Zealand he found to be a fascinating country.

But Tahiti. "That's where you ought to go." Minges, who is of ample girth, commented, "They like their people fat over there."

He indicated that Coffman, who is slender, should stay away.

March 14, 1936

North Carolina Governor Ehringhaus, who last night appealed to President Roosevelt to allocate $50 million to tobacco areas under the new soil conservation program, said today he would appeal directly to farmers for cooperation in a radio address next Monday night.

The governor in his telegram to the President asked the allotment as an inducement to tobacco growers to shift to soil conservation crops and reduce acreage in tobacco planting.

Growers in the flue-cured belt, the telegram said, "face at this moment the greatest peril in years because of the present all-time record of tobacco stock on hand which hangs over this year's prospect like a cloud."

Authoritative sources indicated the government would urge an immediate voluntary sign-up reduction by which farmers possibly would benefit several cents a pound for tobacco they do not plant, provided the $50 million is allotted.

INSIDE REPORT

Can The U.S. Stop Cuba?

BY ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Deepening penetration into black Africa by Fidel Castro's Cuba with Moscow's diplomatic aid, if needed, military support is now seen at high levels of the Ford administration as the biggest Communist threat anywhere to tip the world power balance.

Intense briefings of President Ford on Cuba's sensational success in Angola and its implications have just been completed. Consequently the President is now considering a major effort—possibly following a foreign policy speech—to make a willfully obtuse Congress understand Castro's desperately dangerous gamble which, so far, has paid glittering dividends.

The Soviet-Cuban axis so successful in Angola seemed strengthened during the recent Soviet Communist party congress. As part of that strengthening, Prime Minister Castro quietly took to Moscow Osman Cienfuegos, top African expert in the Cuban Communist party.

While there, they conferred secretly with black nationalist leaders of the South West Africa Peoples' Organization, which desperately wants Cuban help in its drive for independence of Namibia from South Africa.

Intimate collaboration between Havana and Moscow now evident in Cuba's long-range commitment to Africa has ended Castro's earlier worry that his 12,000 to 14,000 troops in southern Africa might be stranded at the end of an extremely vulnerable supply line stretching across the Atlantic Ocean.

Instead, Moscow sent Cuba two IL-62 troop-carriers in mid-January to replace shorter-range Britannia and IL-18 transports. More significantly, the Russians have recently used the high-flying TU-95 over the South Atlantic to study U.S. fleet movements in water that would be critical if the U.S. should decide on severe retaliation against Cuba.

One possible retaliation would be a U.S. naval blockade of Cuba, known to be under consideration. But even if congressional apprehensions were overcome, the difficulty of extending a blockade to the air—essential for success—would jeopardize the whole enterprise. Further, some administration experts fear the Russians would contest an American blockade, as they could not in the Cuban missile crisis 13 years ago when U.S. power was supreme.

In such a confrontation, the U.S. would immediately be placed in a vicious political context—"In lockstep with the white supremacists" of South Africa and Rhodesia, in the apt phrase of one (Continued on A-5)

Strength For Today

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

We have all read about child prodigies. For example, Benjamin West, the great portrait painter, was so devoted to art as a child that he made his own brushes from hair taken from a cat's tail and his paint from the juice of berries. Louisa Alcott wrote verse when she was still a child. Mozart was giving concerts all over Europe when he was ten years old.

The lives of these children were of course characterized by very definite promise of greatness. Yet the difference between these children and others is not so much one of kind as one of degree. Psychologists are finding today that both children and older people have a vast quantity of natural resources which are never used.

How to stimulate people to use these resources is of course a difficult task requiring much study and insight, but the first big step will be taken if we assume that the resources are there and make an effort to get them utilized.

Low Turnout Is Indicated

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — Evidence at this early stage of the 1976 presidential race points to another record low turnout in the November election.

The percentage of citizens currently registered to vote — 68 per cent — is no higher than it was at this time in 1972. In that race, between President Richard Nixon and Sen. George McGovern, a smaller percentage subsequently voted than in any presidential election in recent history.

Most disappointing is the continued low level of registration on the part of young voters. Fewer than half (47 per cent) of citizens between the ages of 18 and 29 are now registered, again no higher than was the case early in 1972.

In the 1972 election McGovern counted heavily on the 18 to 21-year-olds who had just gained the right to vote in federal elections. But surveys indicated less than half of these new voters actually went to the polls.

The following table compares the registration levels in 1972 and 1976 by key groups.

	Per Cent Registered
	Start of 1972	Start of 1976
NATIONAL	69%	68%
Republicans	79	77
Democrats	70	72
Independents	61	62
18-29 years	48	47
30-49 years	74	73
50 and over	83	81
Whites	70	70
Non-whites	63	57

It should be remembered that not all of those who are currently registered will actually vote — past performance indicates that about eight of 10 persons now registered will actually vote. The percentage of the voting age population voting for President in the last five presidential elections was as follows:

	Voter Turnout
1968	61
1964	62
1960	64

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with a total of 3,109 persons, 18 and older, during December 1975 and January 1976. The 1972 figures are based on surveys conducted in November 1971 and January 1972. This question was asked:

"Is your name now recorded in the voter registration book in the election precinct or election district where you now live?"

Evans-Novak....

No matter how distorted and inaccurate that context would be, high officials here doubt that U.S. allies would back Washington's effort to break Castro interference in the cause of black nationalism against white-minority governments. Indeed, Congress might prove just as balky.

The Soviet high-altitude reconnaissance over the South Atlantic, at the very least, is an indication Moscow feels the same way and might quickly intervene against any U.S. blockade of Cuba.

With his military intervention in Angola victorious and the Soviet-backed Popular Movement in control there, Castro's future in Africa seems assured—and expanding, with two new Cuban tasks.

Task No. 1, as seen by experts here: To consolidate the new Angolan government by lending expert aid to build a centralized Communist-style party, getting the economy working again (particularly the coffee plantations and the ports) and teaching the Popular Movements basic elements of internal security, mass communications and similar techniques of control.

Task No. 2: To lend Cuban armed power to other nationalist parties, almost certainly starting with guerrilla units based in Mozambique for operations across the border in Rhodesia.

Cuban troops, their strength unknown here, have recently been seen in Mozambique, apparently getting there by ship around the Cape of Good Hope. Bases of operation must be established behind the border with supplies, weapons and other essentials from major guerrilla operations.

Other targets for Castro's ambitious Africa corps are Namibia, (formerly South West Africa) and French Somalia soon to be independent. Officials here say Cuban troops may be used if Somalia, home of the Soviet naval base of Berbera, decides to invade the former French colony.

This predictable future course of Cuban intervention in black Africa has led Mr. Ford to the brink of a major new U.S. policy—despite last fall's congressional veto of any U.S. help which doomed anti-Soviet factions in Angola.

Some of the President's political advisers feel Congress is changing, mainly because voters back home have been aroused by the marriage of Soviet weapons and Cuban troops 8,000 miles from Moscow. Whether Congress is coming to its senses or not, President Ford is determined to end Castro's free run in Africa, whatever the opinion of his foreign allies, the Third World, American black leaders or anybody else.

A Conservative View

Recycling Makes 'Something Out Of Nothing'

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

RICHMOND, Va. — They say you can't make a silk purse from a sow's ear; you can't make something from nothing. But the Reynolds Aluminum people, through an imaginative recycling program, are turning their old beer and soft drink cans into profits. In the process they are making both dollars and sense.

The Reynolds story is important. It touches directly upon one of the most urgent problems — one of the most neglected problems — of our highly industrialized civilization. This is the problem of conserving energy and raw resources. In their own sector of the battle against waste, David Reynolds and his associates are doing remarkably well.

Ours is the most wasteful nation in the world. The statistics numb the mind. Back in 1967, some analyst figured it out that Americans throw out enough garbage every year to cover the State of Delaware one foot deep. The volume of solid waste increases with every passing month. We throw away 44 million tons of paper, 13 million tons of glass, and 12 million tons of metal annually. It is one gigantic mess; it is one colossal folly.

Some small part of the trash mountain winds up as litter; in the name of good public relations, Reynolds is working on this nuisance also. But the bulk of our solid waste is simply burned, hauled out to sea, or buried in land-fill dumps; and in the name of an honest dollar, the Reynolds company is waging its own aggressive war. This is the nice thing: Everyone is winning.

To be sure, the war upon waste is no new engagement. Americans have been talking conservation for years. The junk man, the scrap dealer, and the Scouts collecting old newspapers have been around a long time. What is new is the sense of urgency, spurred by rising costs of energy and by diminishing supplies of natural resources. The country, moreover, is running out of places to dump its trash, and the costs of disposal are astronomical. The extravagant nonsense has to stop.

Reynolds Aluminum launched its own recycling effort in Miami in 1967. From that pilot project, a more effective campaign moved to Los Angeles the following year. The results were so encouraging that a subsidiary corporation was created to manage a massive recycling program. By mid-summer of this year, the corporation will be running 85 major plants, plus 150 mobile units collecting and processing aluminum cans in 45 States.

The plan of operations is so simple you don't see how it could work. By word of mouth and through advertising, Reynolds (and other aluminum companies also) encourage the public to collect and to turn in discarded aluminum containers. Twenty-three beer or soft drink cans made a pound. For each pound, a collection center pays 15 cents cash on the counter. Last year Reynolds alone recaptured 86 million pounds of aluminum, mostly in the form of 1.75 billion empty cans — equal to about 40 per cent of the company's annual can production.

The reclaimed cans, shredded to fragments the size of popcorn, then are melted down and made into new cans. A part of the beauty of this process is that, while it takes 100 kilowatts of electricity to make a unit of virgin aluminum, it takes only five kilowatts to make the same unit from recycled scrap. Bauxite ore is conserved. The Boy Scouts and ladies sodalities raise funds. And 1.75 billion cans that might be buried or tossed by the roadside are put to useful life again.

The Reynolds executives who are masterminding this campaign are full of the old sib-boom-bah. They hustle around the company's gleaming home office like a covery of football coaches in the midst of a winning season. They view the recycling process as a future imperative, not merely for aluminum but for other solid wastes also.

A couple of years ago, one of the enthusiasts told David Reynolds a whole house could be built of recycled materials. "Why don't we build one?" asked Reynolds. So they did—a whole house of recycled aluminum, paper, glass, copper, rubber, jute, cast iron, sawdust, marble tailings, and New York garbage. The garbage, turned into compost, went on the lawn. A large color photo of the house hangs in a conference room as a reminder, says Reynolds, of where the movement will go, once it really gets going.

YOU'VE GOT TO KNOW HOW TO DO THINGS!

By GAIL MICHAELS

Tradition Is Upheld By Youngest In The Family

Every mother has her own dirty diaper story. One mother I know tells about the time she was eating in a fancy Chinese restaurant in Raleigh, and her little one decided to decorate her new white wool dress. She said that she was so used to it that she just cleaned herself up and went right on eating, but the other customers were all gagging into their birdsnest soup.

Another mother I know tells of the time her youngster tried body painting with his diaper at 3 a.m. She got him cleaned up and tucked away in his playpen, but by the time she had cleaned up the crib, he had managed to open his bottle and had dumped the contents all over himself, the playpen, and the wall-to-wall carpet.

Still another mother tells of sleeping in the same bedroom with her baby — that is, until one night he decided to wash the walls with his specially treated cloth, then threw the remainder of his experiment into bed with his parents. The next week they moved into a two-bedroom apartment.

Now, after hearing stories like these, I was determined that I would be prepared for the inevitable when it happened to me. I soon found out one is NEVER prepared. The first time it happened, I was wearing a brand new pantsuit, the first new outfit I had had since I got pregnant. As soon as we were far enough from the house to make returning unfeasible, Meg decided that my suit wasn't clean enough — so she washed the right side of it. When I finished crying over that, she decided that I looked lopsided so she evened me up by messing all over my left side.

GAIL MICHAELS

Of course, I figured that since I had been baptized one, I didn't have to worry about it anymore. But Meg was obviously familiar with Jacqueline Susann because she knew that once is not enough. Nowadays when we go anywhere, I pack two or three extra outfits for her and at least one extra for myself.

But evidently Meg got tired of the same old routine, so Tuesday night, she provided me with a real diaper story to write about. (She must have known that I was having difficulty coming up with a column topic.) About 4 A.M., alerted by whimpering coming from the general direction of her bedroom, I walked in to find her in the middle of an excruciating mess. She had managed to miss her diaper completely, but the crib was lined in bumper-to-bumper oozy-boy-wow. Being a conscientious mother, who would never allow her infant to remain in such a state, I woke Phillip up and let him clean the crib.

At 8 A.M. I walked in to find her in the middle of another mess. This time she looked up at me and grinned. "Ah go," she commented proudly. However, this time I wasn't so tolerant of her antics — Phillip had already left for work.

Nevertheless, I cleaned up my little darling, confident that she was by now thoroughly cleaned out. I put a new sheet on the bed, walked down the hall to get dressed, and came back to find that despairing of one end, she had enlisted the other end and had spit up all over the place.

"Now, look," I said sternly, "You only have one clean sheet left. I'm going to get your bath ready, and you lie there like a good girl. Don't you dare mess up this sheet!"

Needless to say, she dared. When I got back, she had crawled to the other end of the bed, leaving a trail behind her.

"How could you do this?!" I screamed.

"Ah go," she answered apologetically.

"Okay," I replied. "But if you ever do it again..."

'Mercenary' Force In Angolan War Proved An Empty Threat

By LARRY HEINZERLING Associated Press Writer JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The "Dogs of War" — white soldiers of fortune in black Africa — trooped to battle in Angola for $300 a week in pay and were mauled.

They are straggling home, mostly to Britain, now that the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Africa (MPLA) has all but won the civil war against two Western-backed factions.

The mercenaries fought for the Western factions and the disillusionment of their experience has shattered, for the moment, whatever romance the life of a mercenary in Africa might once have had.

According to the best estimates, 150 mercenaries actually fought in Angola, mostly against Cuban troops (there were 12,000) assisting the MPLA. Sixty mercenaries were killed and 15 wounded.

Toward the end of the debacle came a report that 14 British mercenaries were executed by a firing squad of their own men for allegedly refusing to fight. One mercenary later reported that the man who allegedly ordered the executions, a Greek Cypriot named Costas Georgiou and known as Colonel Callan, was "finished off" by a British mercenary after a "mortar bomb ... chopped his legs off."

Callan later was described as mad, perhaps driven to distraction by the overwhelming odds. Although they lacked the necessary antitank weapons, many of the mercenaries were sent against Russian T-34 and T-54 tanks manned by Cuban crews, according to accounts reaching Kinshasa in neighboring Zaire.

British authorities are investigating the exact circumstances of the executions.

Most of the mercenaries were recruited in Britain by a shadowy outfit called Security Advisory Services, whose headquarters was in Camberley, near London. Two hundred were actually flown from London to fight in Angola.

One mercenary leader, who asked not to be identified, claimed that 50 men took off with their advance pay when the planes carrying them to Zaire stopped briefly in Brussels or Paris.

"Some were the scum of the earth," he remarked. "Some had never seen a shot fired in anger."

He attacked the complete lack of training before the first battle, just hours after his arrival. He said the mercenaries were armed with 1943 M-1 carbines and old Belgian FNS rifles.

"There were experienced men there but a lot were overweight and unfit," reported another British mercenary, who also dropped out. "When your life's at stake you want to know who you're fighting with and that you can rely on every one of them."

The presence of British mercenaries in Angola was strongly condemned by the British government.

"Some of those who went to Angola ... have already returned with hair-raising stories of mismanagement, lack of training and financial confusion," declared David Ennals, Britain's deputy foreign minister.

The mercenary fiasco in Angola added nothing to the legends built by soldiers of fortune in other African campaigns.

Col. Mike Hoare, now an accountant in South Africa, first became famous supporting the secession of mineral-rich Katanga Province in the former Belgian Congo in 1961.

He later led his troops on anti-Communist campaigns in the Congo in 1964-65, backing Gen. Joseph Mobutu, now called Mobutu Sese Seko. "Black Jack" Schramme, a Belgian, was with Hoare in Katanga and in the later battles against the Communist-backed Simba tribesmen in the Congo.

Rolf Steiner, a German, made his name with the small mercenary force siding with Biafra in Nigeria's civil war. He later joined with Christian rebels in the southern Sudan, where he was captured and imprisoned for a while.

There were numerous reports earlier this year that a club of Hoare's Congo veterans, with headquarters in Johannesburg, was recruiting soldiers to fight in Angola. Hoare denied the reports. He reportedly vetoed a mercenary operation because of inadequate conditions.

At one point, reports from cities in various countries, including the United States, suggested that a large mercenary force was being recruited for Angola. But except for the British recruits, the movement fizzled out. No one knows exactly why.

The financing of the mercenaries remains unclear. Some said their money came from the government of Zaire, which has supported the National Front for the Liberation of Angola. There were reports in Britain that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency poured more than $20 million into a recruitment fund. A CIA spokesman in Washington said, "We haven't said anything on that matter."

The London Sunday Observer quoted a spokesman for Security Advisory Services as saying the recruiting of British mercenaries was financed with American funds. The organization was responsible for recruiting all the British mercenaries signed on to fight in Angola.

An embassy spokesman denied that the embassy was in any way involved in the recruitment of mercenaries.

Pianist Murray Perahia Well Attuned To Schumann's Romanticism

Murray Perahia played a poetic and musically satisfying piano recital on Wednesday night as part of East Carolina University's Artists Series. Mr. Perahia attained international acclaim upon winning the Leeds Competition in 1972; he has since appeared as soloist with most of the world's great orchestras and in frequent recitals both in this country and abroad. His pianistic style is marked by subtle control of tonal shadings, clear exposition of structural elements, and a rare quality that is the earmark of a true artist: the ability to play with unhurried, unhurried simplicity.

His recital was solidly traditional. It opened with a coherent and eloquent reading of Haydn's "F-minor Variations", followed by Bela Bartok's "Out of Doors" Suite. To this listener, the outer movements lacked a measure of incisiveness and primitive force; however, the more Impressionistic middle movements, with their varied levels of tonal color, came off to perfection.

Mr. Perahia has made Schumann something of a specialty; his debut recording on Columbia records, all Schumann, was highly acclaimed. On Wednesday night, his "Papillons", Opus 2, shone like a rare gem; it had everything, from rhythmic drive to meltingly lyrical melodic lines. It was beautiful.

The "Brahms-Handel Variations" was less successful. The pianist did not seem as well attuned to the Classicism of Brahms as to the whimsical Romanticism of Schumann. There seemed to be an occasional lapse in the continuity of the work; and the final Fugue, though it had real excitement, failed to arrive at the thunderous, bell-like climax the piece requires.

Technically, Mr. Perahia is excellent, though in that respect he is outclassed by many a young virtuoso; however, in the honesty of his musical commitment and the uncanny accuracy and clarity of his musical perceptions he stands high above his contemporaries.

Summer Art Tour Applications

East Carolina University is accepting applications for its summer "Art and Architecture of Europe" tour, featuring visits to museums and famous buildings in France, Italy and Greece.

The tour will depart for Paris via New York Monday, May 31, and will leave from Venice Monday, June 21.

Points of interest to be visited include Chartres, Versailles,

Athens, Corinth, Rome, Naples, Pompeii, Sorrento, and Florence. Much of the between-stop traveling will be done by motor coach, enabling tour visitors to view the countryside.

Tran Gordley, associate dean of the ECU School of Art, will conduct the tour. Participation on the tour may be applied toward six quarter hours college credit, for graduate or undergraduate degrees or teaching certificate renewal.

Further information and application materials are available from "Travel Study Tour," Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

Children's Films Scheduled

Four films will be shown during the coming week in the series of free children's movies at three Greenville libraries. Show times are: Carver, 4 p.m. Tuesday; Sheppard Memorial, 7:30 p.m. Thursday; and East Branch, 4 p.m. Friday.

The films are: Brown Wolf, an adaptation of Jack London's story about a dog; Caps For Sale, based on a children's book by Esphyr Slobodkina; There's Something About A Story; and The Great Adventure.

Students On Dean's List

Vocational List: Ramiro Cardenas and Betty Gipson, Ayden; Ronald Lovitt, Farmville, Alvin Jones, Greenville; and James Beamon, Daisy Bunn, Carolyn Carr, William Coley, Diane Edwards, Dennis Foss, Bennie Harris, Robert James, Vincent Mallol, and Linwood Mitchell of Grifton.

Membership Information

Anyone interested in joining the Pitt County ECU Alumni Association should telephone Sylvia Messamer at 756-5830, Wanda Petree at 752-2121 ext. 244 or Phil Dixon at 758-3116. Membership is $5.00 per year for an individual and $7.50 per couple per year. Associate memberships are also available for $5.00 a year.

Members receive periodic mailings informing them of scheduled events on the campus, a library card allowing them to use the ECU library, and a membership card entitling them to group discounts on tickets for special events on campus.

The chapter plans to have frequent socials and to sponsor short distance bus trips to places like, Williamsburg, Va., the N.C. Zoological Park and the Lost Colony.

New Slant?

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — The "Maple Leaf Rag," one of Scott Joplin's best known ragtime compositions, may have been written in honor of a private, genteel gentlemen's club rather than a bawdy house.

The "Maple Leaf Rag," written in 1899, was popularly believed to have been written in honor of a boisterous brothel and barroom here.

But this week the Pettis County recorder uncovered an old yellowed copy of the incorporation papers for the Maple Leaf Club.

Receives Outstanding Young Educator Award

The Outstanding Young Educator Award was presented to Ronald R. Williams by the Greenville Jaycees Thursday night, according to Mike Messick OYE chairman.

Williams has taught arts and crafts for the last three years at Rose High. He also coaches the wrestling and cross country teams.

Williams received a MA degree in sculpture and design and a BS degree in Art Education at ECU.

Named Editor Of Law Review

CHAPEL HILL—Pat Oglesby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oglesby of Grifton, has been selected editor in chief of the North Carolina Law Review and president of the North Carolina Law Review Association.

Oglesby was notified of his selection by Donald F. Clifford Jr., faculty advisor at the University of North Carolina School of Law.

Clifford noted that the selection of Oglesby, a third-year student in the School of Law, took place upon the recommendation of the Board of Editors of the Law Review and with the approval of the faculty.

"I am sure the entire faculty joins me in congratulating you on this achievement, which... is the highest possible in any law school, except, perhaps, that of completing your editorship with an outstanding volume of the Review," the advisor observed.

Honor Society Inductees

CHAPEL HILL — Jane and June Hall, daughters of Mr. Robert V. Hall of Winterville have recently been inducted into the newly chartered UNC School of Pharmacy of Phi Lambda Sigma Honorary Society at UNC Chapel Hill.

Young Surfers Save Three Fishermen

THE STATUE OF NATHANIEL GREENE... is battle between Gen. Greene and Lord Cornwallis at historic Gullford Courthouse National Military Monument. A commemoration of the and Tuesday.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — "There's no way they could have survived," says a local police officer of three Colonial Heights fishermen whose mishap Thursday left them bobbing in the rough and frigid Atlantic before nine young surfers turned their act into a rescue mission.

The trio — Robert D. Smith, 75; James R. Garlick, 64, and Robert Brooks Jr., 61 — had been fishing in a small outboard boat and were headed toward Rudee Inlet when near-disaster struck. A wave hit the boat and two of the fishermen were catapulted into the sea. A third straddled the wavering boat for a time, but fell overboard when it hit a rock jetty. Rudee Inlet is guarded by rock jetties that stretch straight out from the beach.

Smith and Garlick were in the intensive care unit and Brooks in the coronary care unit Friday at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

The incident would have more tragic, however, if the accident hadn't caught the attention of nine young surfers who turned their boards into life rafts.

James "Jimbo" Pearce III, 17, of Virginia Beach, said he and Mike Burgett, also of Virginia Beach, "were out maybe 40 or 50 yards from the beach when we saw a boat coming along."

"A wave hit the boat and two men flew out into the water. The third man was still in the boat, which was out of control, and the boat zipped by us and headed toward the rocks."

"We saw they had no life preservers and it didn't look like they could swim. When Mike and I got there, one man was doing the dog paddle and the other was going under every time a wave came along."

"They both had heavy clothes on. Mike took one on his board. That man had a bad cut on his head."

"The man appeared to be in shock. He just kept grabbing onto my board, and the board would sink."

"Pete Lively (also from Virginia Beach) came over to help and we had to call another guy over who had a bigger board."

By that time, Pearce said, the boat had hit the rocky jetty. Its lone remaining occupant was thrown into the water. Another surfer went to his rescue.

Bob Hill, a cardiac technician for the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad, said when his unit arrived the surfers were using their boards as shields against the wind for the three fishermen.

All three men, Hill said, were suffering from exposure and their body temperature had dipped dangerously below the normal of 98.6 degrees.

Craig Cox, 17, was among the surfers, along with Bill Wolf, a fellow student at First Colonial High School in Virginia Beach.

Historical Soc. To Feature 4-H Singers

The Pitt County 4-H Club Bicentennial Singers, under the direction of Mrs. Jean Johnson, 4-H Club Program Assistant with the Pitt County Extension Office in Greenville, will present a special program of patriotic music at the dinner meeting of the Pitt County Historical Society which will be held on Thursday, March 18, at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

An informal social hour will begin at 6:45 p.m. and dinner will be served at seven o'clock p.m., according to Ms. Annie Turner, secretary. Reservations for the meal must be made with Ms. Turner by noon on Wednesday, March 17.

Beaufort County Sets Bicentennial Events

Events scheduled for Beaufort County's Bicentennial tribute to 1976 "Celebration of the Arts" contains a variety of events:

—On, Tuesday March 16, during the season of the full moon, Mrs. Mamie Oden will demonstrate the hot and cold water methods of soap-making. Mrs. Oden and her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Gibbs, will be demonstrating their skills from 10:00 a.m. until 12 Noon in the yard of the Seaboard Coastline Railroad Station on Main Street.

Also featured will be demonstrations of dye making, with Chloe McHorney creating natural colors from walnuts, onion skins and wild berries. At noon, Harold Lane and George Parker will be whipping up a batch of Big Hominy.

—On Saturday, March 20, the Sir Walter Chorus of Raleigh will present an evening tribute in music and song to the Bicentennial Spirit and the heritage of America.

The chorus will share the spotlight with the Reign Beaus End, a barbershop quartet, whose performances have been heard by audiences all over the U.S.

Featured with the chorus will be Bartow Houston Jr., a barbershop singer, and Beaufort County native.

The event begins at 8:00 p.m. in the Washington High School auditorium. Admission will be $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for persons under age 18.

—For two days, Friday and Saturday, March 19-20, Washington will host an antique show, featuring the "treasures" of fifteen dealers from locations throughout the state.

The Red Men's Lodge will be open for visiting on Friday, from 10:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. and again on Saturday from 10:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m. Admission will be $1.00.

Contrast 76, taking place March 26-27, will capture the trends of contemporary art and simultaneously reenact the entertainments and everyday activities which characterized 19th century life. Four events will take place during the two day festival.

"Hand-Me-Down Days" will feature members of the older generation showing the youngsters how tasks were done "back when."

On the contemporary scene, groups of "third century artists" will be displaying works in painting, sculpture, weaving, pottery and photography.

Concluding CONTRAST 76 will be a school art exhibit and local talent art display and sale.

Young artists in the city and county school systems will present a multi-media show, and Pamlico area painters will display their work for public view.

All events will be held in the Warehouse and Depot of the Seaboard Coastline Railroad Station and will be open to the public.

Demonstrations and shows will take place on Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and on Saturday from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Open House At Langley Air Base

A U. S. Air Force special, the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds, are staging a bicentennial special salute to great Americans. The salute in the form of aerial maneuvers is to be staged at the Bicentennial Open House on Saturday, March 20 at Langley Air Force Base, Hampton, Virginia. The Open House begins at 10 a.m. and continues until 4 p.m.

Also, more than 20 types of modern Air Force aircraft — such as the F-15 Eagle and the T-38 Talon will be on display at the base.

The Open House commemorates the nation's 200th anniversary, Langley's 60th and the Tactical Air Command's (ATC's) 30th anniversary.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge. Langley AFB is across the James River from Norfolk, Va., and is about 140 miles from Greenville.

Teachers, Parents, Students Prepare For Three Years Accreditation Sought By 17 County Schools

the revolution invited the opportunity for them to create more art work for their classroom.

Text And Photography By Susan Quinn

In 1973 when the Pitt County Board of Education passed a recommendation that the Pitt County schools should seek accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, only a few educators in the county were aware of the changes that would be necessary in the schools. Today, three years later, even kindergarteners know how to spell the word accreditation and are proud to be a part of the task.

Buildings have been painted, structures removed, curriculums improved, parents and students made aware of the need for improvement, and schools are almost sparkling with enthusiasm and cleanliness. Every part of the county schools—the teachers and administrators, parents, students and the schools—is waiting for approval by the Southern Association.

March 16 a visiting team of 125 educators and other persons will meet with principals and teacher chairpersons at a buffet luncheon which will begin the two-day visitation by the team.

During the afternoon of March 16 the visiting team will divide into groups and visit the elementary and middle schools and the administrative offices. In each school one team member will be assigned to observe four classrooms and teachers. Wednesday, March 17, team members will observe the classrooms and make a report to the visiting team at the school. Each school's visiting team will make a joint report. Each school's joint report will be compiled into a county report which will be sent to the Raleigh office of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. The report will be reviewed by the Commission on Elementary Education. If the commission approves the report it will be sent to the Atlanta Office of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools for approval of accreditation. Pitt County schools will probably not be notified whether they received accreditation or not until December, 1978 according to Mrs. Kathryn Lewis, Pupil Personnel Director.

"The Southern Association Accreditation is a voluntary accreditation," explained Mrs. Lewis.

"Each school is involved with a self study to study weaknesses and strong points of the schools. The preparation for the accreditation allows for the increased awareness of the needs of the schools by the community, the teachers, parents and the students. The self study which each school must publish, is designed for schools to measure their facilities and practices against the principles and standards set up by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools."

The Pitt County Consultant for the Accreditation preparation is Dr. W.C. Sanderson. Dr. Louis Swindell is the central office chairperson. Miss Ruth Hoyle, the assistant superintendent of Craven County Schools is the county chairperson.

The following are some of the major improvements in the schools which have come about because of the accreditation preparation.

Ayden Elementary
"Some of the projects that have been brought to our school because of accreditation are three new classrooms, carpeting, carrels and air conditioning for the library, and $3,000 worth of audio visual equipment," said Stuart Tripp, principal.

Tripp listed the following as other new changes at the school: playground improvements by parents, transition from coal to oil heat, new tables and chairs for the cafeteria, new equipment for the cafeteria, additional wiring and carpeting in the library, a media specialist, additional half day of medical care per week, students artwork, and many bi-centennial decorations.

"The accreditation preparation makes you take another look and helps to sharpen your awareness to your weak points," Tripp said.

Ayden Grammar
Mrs. Elaine King, chairperson for accreditation at Ayden Grammar explained the changes and accomplishments at Ayden Grammar and listed the following changes: new reading centers in different areas of the school, murals painted by teachers and students, a better counseling program, newly, student-built bulletin boards, parents tutoring classes, group activity rather than lectures, painting of most of the building, new gym equipment, landscaping by the Ayden Garden Club and the Chamber of Commerce, more clubs, a parent newspaper, garden centers, more instructional supplies, and career exploration for seventh and eighth graders.

"Students will be the guides for our guests while the visiting team is here and the parents will help with the reception," Mrs. King said. "The accreditation process helped the students' parents' and teachers' self awareness," she said.

Belvoir Grammar
"We have part time art, music teachers now," said Mrs. Joyce Weatherington, chairperson.

Mrs. Weatherington listed other changes at Belvoir Grammar School as follows: guidance counselor, building improvements, curriculum geared toward individual needs, students and parents have worked together to create changes, parents have worked in some of the classrooms, and students have exhibited art work throughout the school.

Bethel Elementary
"One of our nicest improvements is the new wing added to our school which houses kindergarten through fourth grades administrative offices, a media center and a lunchroom," said Jackie Staley, chairperson.

"In addition to the new building, we now have music and art taught in our school. We have a media specialist and we have added a kindergarten. Other improvements include a beautiful mosaic mural by the students, landscaping by parents and a bi-centennial play," Mrs. Staley said.

A.G. Cox
Anne Worthington and Margaret McCaskill, chairperson and assistant explained the changes at A.G. Cox. "After we completed our self study and found out what our weaknesses are we were concretely able to see improvements," Mrs. Worthington said.

"We now have a music teacher, art teacher, band teacher, and woman P.E. teacher," she said.

Other improvements at the school include the following: a new testing system, better curriculum guides, more books, more group work and better policies for smoother school program.

Farmville Middle School
Charles Carrick, principal of the school, listed the following major items as improvements at the school: two additional reading teachers, part time art and music teachers, media specialist, guidance counselors, teachers are working on masters or have completed their masters degrees, more inter-school programs, wrestling, girls volleyball, girls track, a resource file, peer counseling, student council, more clubs, teacher workshops, and others.

"The accreditation preparation has made us look at ourselves and work to make many improvements," said Carrick.

Grifton Elementary
According to Nelson Baldree, principal, the increased parent participation in the school activities has been one of the most worthwhile results of the accreditation preparation.

"The parents have helped screen students, have added their names to our resource file, they helped us with the philosophy, and they will be here to help us with the reception during the visitation," he said.

The students have had much input with the preparation. They wrote papers on what the school should do to help the student, they have created much art work and designed bulletin boards," he added.

Other changes at the school include the following: clean up campaigns, the removal of an old structure on the campus, more equipment, more painting, and additional material for the media center.

"We have experienced professional growth within the staff," said Baldree.

G.R. Whitfield
New additions at G.R. Whitfield include the following: a new lunchroom and two kindergarten classrooms, team planning, peer teaching, redecorations of some rooms, more storage space, more floor space, graduation program for eighth graders, air conditioning, a dental program, a teacher for learning disabled students, and more clubs.

H.B. Sugg
"The accreditation process has helped our school upgrade our academic programs and the teachers have received a great deal from our self study," said Frederick Graham, principal.

Improvements at the school include much painting, improved testing, school newspaper, refurbishing in some rooms, additional shelving, certified media specialist, music and art teachers, a resource file, read-in every day, and much art work by the students.

"We have learned many things through the preparation for accreditation and our community and staff are more aware of our needs," Graham said.

W.H. Robinson
Judy Budcaz listed the following as improvements and changes at W.H. Robinson: a new media specialist, an expanded media center, a physical education specialist part time, new math objectives, more PE equipment, air conditioning, bus loading area resurfaced, parent volunteer programs, read-in, in-service workshops, new reading lab, painting, Parents Teachers Organization, and the teachers' professional reference list has been expanded.

Sam D. Bundy
All of the teachers at Sam D. Bundy have made special efforts to be certified in the fields in which they are teaching.

Other improvements at the school include: wall paintings, a sun dial and rock garden, supervision for students from the moment they reach the school grounds, a media specialist, reading labs, parents' art work, more recreation facilities, and the cataloging of all supplementary materials in the library.

Stokes-Pactolus
The Stokes-Pactolus school improvements are as follows: a program for exceptional children, art, music, increased sports activities, new equipment for the cafeteria, the breakfast program, a full time guidance counselor, more books for the media center, smaller classrooms, more artwork by students, and read-in.

Belvoir Primary, Chicod, Falkland Elementary, Pactolus Elementary, and Stokes Elementary schools also have worked in preparing for the accreditation and each of the schools have media specialist and basically improved reading, and math curriculums. Artwork has been created and exhibited by all students in the elementary and middle school system in the county. Parents are preparing the reception for the guests, and teachers and administrators are anticipating the observers' reports.

Many long after school hours of preparation, an increased awareness, kindergarteners who can spell accreditation, more colorful schools, parent involvement, and community awareness are the results of the three years of work that the students, teachers, administrative officers, and parents have joined together in. Now, all of these people in each of the school communities in Pitt County are awaiting reports from the visitors and continuing to improve their schools for their students.

Pitt County Humane Society Goal

Reducing The Pet Population

Greenville's puppy births declined after passage of the city's leash law last spring, but much accidental breeding occurred in the rest of Pitt County, according to Pitt County Humane Society President Dorothy Hackett.

She cited one of the Humane Society's chief goals—to reduce the area's cat and dog population and thus prevent the neglect, abuse and abandonment of pets which are the inevitable results of overbreeding.

"A birth preventive drug is being developed which can be administered to pet animals in their food," said Mrs. Hackett. "But until this formula is available to pet owners, the most effective means of controlling animal birth is a surgical operation—spaying for females or neutering for males."

"Spaying or neutering is desirable for pet animals unless they are specifically intended for breeding," she stressed. "In Pitt County and elsewhere in the U.S., the growing surplus of kittens and puppies has become a serious problem for people and for animals.

"Many owners neglect to have their pets spayed, because they usually have little trouble giving extra puppies and kittens away. But even if an entire litter is given away, there is no guarantee that these 'free' pets will be appreciated and cared for properly throughout their lives.

"And of the countless numbers of puppies and kittens born, about 60 million reach maturity in the U.S. each year, but only half find people who can provide permanent homes and good care."

A typical female dog or cat can come into breeding season while very young, she said, often at less than 12 months of age, when pregnancy might be harmful to the animal's health.

"Ten offspring per year, or two litters of five, include an average of five females, who in turn will breed as rapidly as the mother, resulting in as many as 250 or 300 offspring in less than three years.

"This is the rate at which one female dog or cat can multiply. Male animals can father an infinite number of kittens or puppies."

Spaying or neutering a pet animal is not only a useful and humane measure to prevent misery to surplus animals, said Mrs. Hackett, but also a method of insuring that an animal will be a healthier and happier pet.

"The neutered animal is less likely to roam and prowl or get into fights, and usually has a longer life expectancy."

Female animals in "heat" attract marauding stray males or neighbors' pet males, and within a few seconds of contact, can be impregnated. While female dogs typically have two breeding seasons per year, the breeding seasons of female cats can recur as often as every two weeks until the animal becomes pregnant. Confining a female cat indoors during her "heat" season might prevent birth, but the animal noisily howls for a mate throughout the season, which lasts several days.

Unaltered male cats "spray" during the mating urge, leaving an unpleasant odor which is difficult to remove from household carpets and furnishings. If a tom is allowed out to find a mate, he usually must fight for the privilege, and returns with cuts and scratches which can be quite serious.

Mrs. Hackett noted that two mistaken beliefs among pet owners are responsible for much of the current pet overpopulation. One of these is that altered animals will become obese and lazy.

"Proper diet and exercise for altered pets will insure that they continue to be healthy and active," she said. "Animals are overweight because they are overfed." The other false belief is that altering a pet will ruin its chances of enjoying a "normal life."

"The mating urge in cats and dogs is an involuntary instinct which does not bring spiritual pleasure or satisfaction to a pet," she emphasized. "The pet which has been spayed or neutered is free of this urge.

"There is no sense of deprivation for a female if she is not allowed to become a mother, nor for a male if he cannot be a father. Well-meaning humans often superimpose their own conditioning and desires upon their pets."

She added that parents who allow pets to breed so their young children can experience "the miracle of birth" should be aware of the large numbers of cats and dogs which are put to death at the Greenville City Animal Shelter and the County Pound simply because no one wants them.

"Dozens of tiny kittens were killed in these facilities during the summer of 1975; there were just too many cats and not enough homes for them."

The Humane Society is the local sponsor for the nationwide Friends of Animals Reduced-Fee Spaying-Neutering program, which enables low-income pet owners to pay a reduced veterinary fee for their pet's surgical operation.

Humane Society member Nicole Aronson is Pitt County's FoA representative. She reports that during 1975, a total of 171 pet animals were spayed or neutered in Pitt County veterinary clinics under the reduced-fee program.

In addition, the Humane Society paid more than $400 toward the costs for owners who were unable to afford even the reduced fee.

The program is intended only for pet owners who cannot pay the regular cost of spaying or neutering. Animals covered by the program include mixed-breed female dogs of all sizes, and mixed-breed male and female cats. Purebred animals which were adopted from animal shelters will also be accepted.

Applications for the FoA Reduced-Fee program are available by telephoning Dr. Aronson at 752-2895.

"Having a pet animal surgically desexed is one of the greatest kindnesses an owner can show his pet and animals in general," emphasized Mrs. Hackett.

"Anyone who can possibly pay for the operation should immediately arrange for it. Those who cannot afford it should apply for help from the Humane Society."

"If more pets were altered, there would be far fewer animals put to death by the animal control officers, and fewer unwanted strays whose lives are doomed to end in disease or death on the highway."

Presidential Election In Mexico Is No Contest

By CAROL COOK
MEXICO CITY (UPI) — When Mexicans go to the polls to elect their next president on July 4, there will be only one name on the ballot — Jose Llopez Portillo, candidate of the ruling International Revolutionary Party.

Although the PRI candidate has won every presidential election since the party was founded in 1929, this is the first time he's had no opposition.

Two of Mexico's three other parties — the Popular Socialist Party (PPS) and the authentic Revolutionary Party (PARM) — are backing Lopez Portillo.

And the only opposition party of any strength, the National Action Party (PAN), is so racked by internal quarrels that it was unable to reach a consensus and finally announced it would have no candidate.

Lopez Portillo's only declared opponent is the Communist party candidate, Valentin Campa. But the Communists are not registered to go on the ballot, since they have never presented the required 75,000 signatures from registered voters. So Campa may receive only write-in votes.

Under the Mexican constitution, the president is limited to a single six-year term, but he has a decisive voice in choosing his successor. Lopez Portillo, who was finance minister when he was tapped, is a close personal friend of President Luis Echeverria.

Echeverria had been mentioned as a possible candidate for the post of Secretary General of the United Nations. But lately he has been saying he does not expect to get that job and intends to retire to private life when his term ends on Nov. 30.

Although Lopez Portillo was certain to win, the PRI and the pro-government press have been attacking the PAN's decision to pull out of the race.

Interior minister Mario Moya Palencia — once a top contender for the presidency himself — denounced the PAN's withdrawal as "harmful to Mexican democracy."

David Gustavo Gutierrez Ruiz, leader of the PRI's National Confederation of Popular Organizations, said it was "not healthy for the democratic process."

The PAN retorted acridly that such comments were "anecdotes of the agents of anti-democracy and political hypocrisy."

The morning daily Novedades attacked the PAN for "refusing to contribute to our democratic progress."

El Universal put it more bluntly: "Only the PRI will have a candidate, and although his triumph was a foregone conclusion, according to the traditional characteristics of Mexican politics, now the hegemony of the official party looks insurmountable."

Choice or no choice, however, the Federal Electoral Commission continues its campaign against voter apathy. Voter registration booths have been set up around the capital and elsewhere around the country.

Colorful posters advise citizens: "If you abstain, you'll be left out. Register and vote."

It seems to be working. The commission has reported that 6,000 Mexicans are registering to vote every day, a total of more than 25 million so far.

Although some fear many of them may not bother to vote, the specter of "abstentionism" does not bother Fidel Velazquez, powerful leader of the Mexican Workers' Confederation (CTM), the labor arm of the PRI.

"The people will vote — as they always do — for our candidate," he said.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — More than 42 years after it first opened its doors, Kansas City's Nelson Gallery-Atkins Museum is now complete.

The gallery's west wing — used only for storage since it opened in 1933 — has been transformed into eight new galleries as the Frank Grant Crowell wing.

Laurence Sickman, director of the gallery, said the new expansion is dedicated as a "lasting Bicentennial gift to the people of Kansas City and the Midwest."

EXTERIOR EXHIBITS COUNTRY CHARM

Lenexa

By Jerry Bishop

Charmingly clothed in shutters, diamond light window, and tidy brick siding, the Lenexa displays an exterior that radiates the appeal of the country. Inside, the floor plan caters to the needs of an active family and shows three bedrooms, two full baths, and a functional kitchen-dining complex.

In less than 1600 sq. ft. of living space, this design fashions informal living areas, a cozy formal living room, and a generous allotment of sleeping space.

One of the plan's most desirable features is the entry foyer, closeted and open to the double garage for convenience. The foyer channels traffic to the living room, which corners a wood-burning fireplace to a restful mood, or to informal areas. A snack bar cleaves the dining area and kitchen and forms the focus of this family activity area. Centrally located for easy access, the area merits sliding glass doors to the stone patio, an inviting spot for summer parties and cookouts.

Two hallways join the L-shaped bedroom wing to the plan. The three bedrooms spotlight a large master bedroom that calls for two closets and a private bath. Another bath serves the remaining bedrooms, all furnished with ample closet space and windows.

For convenience, a washer-dryer niche is tucked into the hallway bordering the baths to offer a miniature laundry center in a most efficient location.

The double garage displays a closed-off storage area with endless possibilities and an entry to the patio for use in moving and storing lawn furniture and barbecue supplies.

Modest in square footage, the Lenexa offers an exterior that expresses a homespun appeal and a floor plan that features a central living area to meet the needs of active families.

Spring Is Annual Checkup Time

By DOROTHEA BROOKS
 United Press International
 Now is the time for an annual checkup.

That advice will prod different folks in different directions—health, auto, financial, whatever you've been putting off.

For the household with air-conditioning equipment, it's meant as a reminder that, to insure trouble-free operation through the hottest of summer weather, and to minimize electric consumption, maintenance is a must.

This is a good time for it, whether you live in the north where winter can be hard on idle equipment, or in a warmer climate where year-around use takes its toll. The homeowner who doesn't give his air-conditioning system a routine spring checkup may end up calling a specialist for emergency work on the hottest day of summer, advises George Buchanan, general service manager for the York division of Borg-Warner Corp.

The average homeowner is capable of handling this routine maintenance, Buchanan says, but he urges that repairs be performed only by an expert with proper training.

At the top of his check list of maintenance suggestions, Buchanan puts "a complete reading of the manufacturer's maintenance manual. The few minutes to read it will be the best thing you can do."

For homes with single package central air-conditioning systems, where condenser and evaporator are in the same unit, he recommends the following:

Reset dampers if there are separate ducts for heating and cooling.

Inspect air inlets, both in and outside the house. Remove any obstructions.

Clean or replace filters. Lubricate where necessary, usually on fan motors and bearings.

Central units with auxiliary drain pans require cleaning of this pan. These are common in attic installations.

After completing these checks, Buchanan suggests the electric power to the unit be turned on for one day before actually running the compressor. "This should be done as many types of air-conditioners require power to pre-warm compressor oil," he explained.

"During this warmup, only the fan should run and the thermostat should be set high."

After the warmup comes the test run. This should be on a day when the outside temperatures are in the mid-60s. The unit should be set at a temperature lower than room temperature and run for 10 minutes.

During the test listen for any unusual noises. If they persist Buchanan suggests calling a professional service technician.

For homes with "split systems," with compressor located outside and evaporator inside, there are a few extra checks.

Piping going outside should be inspected as should any insulation. Exposed metal surfaces and concrete foundation outdoors should be inspected for damage.

Check air intake and discharge vents to be sure they are free of debris and leaves.

Owners of room air-conditioners also should follow a brief service routine to assure satisfactory operation.

Any window unit that has been stored should be placed upright on a level surface to allow oil to drain back into the compressor. Some lubricating may be necessary; check the manual.

The unit should be cleaned, particularly air inlets and outlets. If rust is found, some painting may be necessary.

If a unit has been left in a window all winter, it might only need a bit of oil and change of filter.

As with central systems, Buchanan recommends a test run for room units. Choose a day when the room temperature is in the 70s and the outside temperature in the 60s.

Run the unit for 10 minutes, listening for unusual noises and checking cooling effectiveness. If something sounds wrong, or the unit isn't cooling, it may have lost its refrigerant charge.

Perform this little routine, Buchanan suggests, and you'll get through the hottest summer without losing your cool.

Q. We have some very large over-grown azaleas. When should they be pruned back? (Mrs. W. C., Beulaville)

A. Prune azaleas to shape and desired size while they're in bloom, or immediately after flowers fade. If you cut back while in bloom, arrange cut branches in water to enjoy indoors. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Last year my tomato plants looked wonderful but most of the early fruit rotted on the vine. How can I prevent this? (J. P., Rocky Mount)

A. The fruit probably had blossom-end rot, which is caused by calcium deficiency. To prevent it be sure that your soil has the right amount of lime. Get soil sample boxes from your local county agricultural extension agent, take soil sample properly, mail it to the Agronomic Division of the N.C. Department of Agriculture, and then apply the amount of agricultural lime recommended. After planting keep the soil moist by mulching and by irrigating when necessary. (Albert A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

Q. I have young pines in my yard that have a white fungus in the joints. How can I get rid of it? (L. G., Greensboro)

A. The material which seems to be a white fungus is actually a white mass of waxy filaments secreted by the pine bark aphid, a tiny insect which sucks the sap of white pines and sometimes causes gouty growth at the base of the branches. These insects reproduce throughout the year, but ladybugs and other predaceous insects generally keep the numbers of pine bark aphids low during the warm months. Spraying the tree with diazinon (Spectracide), malathion or Meta-Systox-R will control pine bark aphids. Follow the directions for use found on the label of whatever pesticide is used. (James R. Baker, extension entomologist)

Q. What kinds of plants can I use to prevent the soil from washing down a three-foot slope? (S. C., Hill Crest)

A. Plants that creep, such as a jugs, ivy, periwinkle, sedum, or low-creeping junipers. (Henry J. Smith, extension horticulturist)

Pop Music From Russia Heard

CANNES, France (UPI)—Russian pop music was performed outside of the U.S.S.R. for the first time when two popular music groups and two soloists appeared here at a convention of record and music publishers.

The Peniary Group kicked off the entertainment with a selection of White Russian folk songs arranged in modern rock rhythms, together with a group of contemporary songs.

Most of the Peniary's repertoire is composed and arranged by leader Vladimir Moullavine. Members of the group are in their 20s and began performing together in 1972.

Q.—Can you tell me something about the nailability and shrinkage qualities of the following woods—Idaho white pine, sugar pine, Ponderosa pine, larch and Douglas fir? I have some projects scheduled for this year and the woods I mentioned are those which are available where I live.

A.—A lot depends on the type of projects you have in mind. Here are some facts that should help you make a decision. Sugar pine is very resistant to splitting when nailed. Ponderosa pine and Idaho white pine have less tendency to split than the harder, denser softwoods. Douglas fir ranks about midway among all commercial softwoods in nail-holding ability. Blunt-pointed or common nails are recommended. To avoid splitting when using larch, avoid the use of sharp pointed nails. In the shrinkage area, sugar pine shrinks the least, with Ponderosa pine and Idaho white pine not far behind. Douglas fir undergoes a minimum of shrinkage and swelling, but is subject to more dimensional changes than less dense woods as atmospheric conditions vary, although these light changes usually do no harm. Larch will shrink and swell more than lighter softwoods, but once dry the wood responds very slowly to moisture changes.

two, I expect to paint a brick wall that runs along both sides of our driveway. Can a paint roller be used for brick?

A.—Yes. Be sure to get a roller that has a deep nap cover so that the fibers can penetrate the joints of the brickwork. Tell your dealer what the roller is to be used for and, even then, read the information that usually comes on the plastic wrapper. Some manufacturers put out covers made especially for use on brickwork and other rough surfaces.

Q.—In putting up a hard-board wall in an attic, what's the best way to make the cut-outs for the electrical outlets?

A.—To locate an outlet cut-out on a panel, place the panel against the wall and, with a softwood block over the area, tap it soundly with a hammer. The outlet box will indent the back side of the panel. Drill small pilot holes from the back and larger holes from the front. Then saw the outlet hole from the front side of the panel with a keyhole saw.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
 AP Newsfeatures

Do you really save money on energy conservation improvements, and, if so, is it enough to make it worthwhile?

A study by the National Bureau of Standards, in conjunction with the Federal Energy Administration, gives affirmative answers to both parts of that question. How much you should invest depends equally on climate and energy prices, since both affect your heating and air conditioning bills. The bureau gives this example:

"When prices for home heating oil doubled in Washington, D. C., the effect on a home owner's heating bill was the same as physically moving his house to Minnesota."

Increases in the cost of energy for heating and cooling homes has led the government to recommend much higher levels of insulation—often double or more the amounts that were thought sufficient even a year or two ago. The NBS now says:

"In some parts of the country, when higher-priced fuels are used, R-38 insulation (about 12 inches of mineral fiber batts) in the attic is recommended to give the best results. Even in milder climates, R-30 insulation (about 10 inches) may be economically justified if you use oil or electric heating at current high prices. For instance, for a home in Indianapolis, recommendations are for R-30 ceiling insulation, full insulation in walls, R-19 insulation in floors over cold spaces, and storm sash for all windows nine square feet or more in area."

A colder climate calls for buttoning-up a house even more tightly. Requirements may be less in a warmer climate, but not if a home is air conditioned, because then energy is saved in the summer, too.

"R" numbers call for a little explanation. Energy savings result from decreasing the heat flow through the exterior shell of a building. The resistance, or R value, of insulation is the measure of its ability to decrease heat flow. Although two different kinds of insulation may be of different thicknesses, they'll perform equally well if the R numbers are the same. If R numbers are different, the one with the higher R will perform better. To meet federal specifications, R values are generally marked on packages of insulation. If they aren't, be wary.

Storm windows, weatherstripping, and caulking around window and door frames are recommended, except in the mildest climates.

How much will it cost? Here's a list of some of the costs the NBS used in figuring out its recommendations. They include an allowance for contractor installation:

- R-11 ceiling insulation — 15 cents a square foot.
- R-19 ceiling insulation — 25 cents a square foot.
- R-30 ceiling insulation — 39 cents a square foot.
- R-38 ceiling insulation — 49 cents a square foot.

R-19 floor insulation — 30 cents a square foot.

Storm windows, up to 100 inches of height and width combined — $30. More than 100 inches — add 60 cents an inch.

Storm doors — $75.

The NBS adds: "Many of these items can be purchased at substantial discounts if you watch the advertised sales. Considerable savings may be made by installing these materials yourself."

Because of the considerable cost variations, the National Mineral Wool Insulation Assn. advises home owners to check building supply dealers, home centers and mail-order houses for prices of insulation batts, blankets, and pouring wool. For contractor installation, ask for quotes from two or three contractors, specifying exactly what you want.

The same applies to storm windows and doors. Check building supply dealers, home centers or retail dealers in window glass for do-it-yourself installation. For contractor installation, get cost quotations from home improvement contractors or glass dealers. Prices of weatherstripping and caulking materials are available at hardware stores and home centers.

Nuclear Reactor Test Will Play A Role In Debate

SPACE RESCUE DEVICE—Two space suit technicians demonstrate "inflatable ball" to be used in rescue of space men on crippled space ship. The victims aboard a crippled ship can be zipped up in this temporary vehicle and exit the

EDITOR'S NOTE — A nuclear reactor built by the government at a desert test site in Idaho will play a major role in the national debate over the safety of nuclear power plants.

By DEAN LOKKEN
Associated Press Writer

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Thirty miles west of here, on a sagebrush plateau occupied mostly by jackrabbits, scientists are preparing a long-awaited series of tests they hope will help answer a haunting question about nuclear power plants: Are they safe?

The tests are being conducted in a nine-story white domed structure which houses a nuclear reactor similar to those being used in 56 plants now operated by utility companies in various parts of the country. These plants generate eight per cent of the nation's electricity.

The complex safety systems of the commercial reactors have never been fully tested under real emergency conditions — the bursting of pipes and other mishaps that could lead to the release of radioactive steam or the melt-down of a nuclear fuel core, releasing deadly contaminants into the environment.

Such tests are to begin at a desert site near here next year and they will probably continue into the 1980s, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission says. Once preliminary tests are completed this year, scientists will deliberately permit a test reactor to fail, mostly by releasing water that shields and cools the nuclear fuel core. If deadly radioactive material is released, there won't be much danger, the NRC says, for the reactor is at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, located on a government reservation nearly three-fourths the size of Rhode Island. Most of the reservation is uninhabited desert.

Even before the tests begin, however, critics of nuclear reactors question whether they will resolve the ever more complicated and controversial problem of reactor safety. The Union of Concerned Scientists, for example, says the test reactor is only a fraction of the size of many commercial reactors and therefore too small to produce reliable data for large reactors.

Idaho Falls. "And some people let that take the place of good reason."

Ybarro works for Aerojet Nuclear Co., which runs the testing program here under government contract. He is program manager for the loss-of-fluid tests.

The government has not decided how far the reactor will be pushed. Each step in the test series will be more critical, with each "accident" more serious than the previous.

A visitor to the test reactor sees hundreds of horizontal and vertical pipes and thousands of feet of electrical wiring surrounding the core, which holds metal fuel rods 5½ feet long.

There are hundreds of valves to control such things as water flow and pressure during experiments. One scientist says setting up the reactor for a test is like playing a huge pipe organ.

The initial tests with nuclear fuel are planned to take only minutes. About 700 different measurements of the safety system will be taken by computer in that short span.

During the tests, 15 to 20 operators, technicians and data specialists will be at the reactor. All have been trained for speedy evacuation in case radioactive matter is released.

If the reactor's core melts and fissionable material is released into the atmosphere, an emergency plan to protect 150 people in three hamlets 8 to 10 miles away would go into effect. Police and various emergency services already have participated in what one spokesman called simulated problems with radioactive releases.

Working at the Idaho test site, an official said, is safer than working in a retail store and "far safer than driving to work."

Nevertheless, some critics claim that the test reactor here is too small to make the tests meaningful.

"A lot of the problem is making a relatively small system act like a large system," said Carl Hoyer, a staff member of the Union of Concerned Scientists.

Nevertheless, some critics claim that the test reactor here is too small to make the tests meaningful.

"A lot of the problem is making a relatively small system act like a large system," said Carl Hoyer, a staff member of the Union of Concerned Scientists.

The group, started by scientists at Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, wants the government to halt construction of new nuclear power plants and to require that reactors at existing plants be operated at reduced power levels until safety devices are proven.

Saul Levine, deputy director of regulatory research for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, admits the loss-of-fluid tests won't prove beyond all doubt that emergency cooling systems are infallible.

Ybarro is confident the tests will run smoothly.

He discounts criticism that the reactor is too small to provide reliable data about the emergency core cooling systems of all reactors. He says several hundred thousand dollars was spent to have private industry evaluate the size issue and decide how the final test reactor should be built.

It was built small partly for economy. The government already had some of the reactor and auxiliary facilities on hand and abandoning them to build a larger model from scratch would have cost time and money.

Elizabeth II To Help Former Colonies Mark Bicentennial

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth is looking forward to going to the American Bicentennial celebrations, and why not?

If it hadn't been for her great-great-great grandfather, King George III, there would be nothing to celebrate.

King George, as every schoolchild knows, lost the American colonies because of his stubbornness and bad temper.

Some British doctors say it couldn't happen now because they would have diagnosed and treated the king for porphyria, a liver dysfunction which causes extreme irritability.

But that's medicine over the dam. And time has healed the wounds so that the Queen can quite happily witness commemorations directed against her own ancestor.

Incidentally, the Royal Family, with access to private letters and diaries, has a much higher opinion of George III than American historians.

Prince Charles, heir to the throne, avers that his great-great-great-great grandfather is the historical character he most respects.

The visit to the United States — her first since 1959 — and then to Canada to open the Olympic Games in Montreal July 16 will be the high points of the year for the Queen, barring the unlikely possibility that Prince Charles will find himself a wife.

There is another event the Queen would like to see pass off with as little fuss as possible — her 50th birthday April 21.

One of the penalties of royalty is that everybody knows your age — and if they forget it the helpful British Broadcasting Corporation has a habit of announcing it on nationwide radio.

The Queen and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, paid a five-day state visit to the United States in 1957, and stopped off in Chicago for a day in July 1959 during the opening ceremonies for the St. Lawrence Seaway.

This trip is very different, however, and Scotland Yard has been in touch with American and Canadian agencies about security.

The two possible trouble spots are Montreal and Philadelphia. There is some opposition to the Queen's presence at the Olympics but, Buckingham Palace sources stress, she is Queen of Canada and acts only on the advice of her Canadian ministers.

In other words she did not just decide to show up at the Olympics. She was asked to officiate.

There have been reports in British newspapers that militant Irish nationalists may demonstrate against her in Philadelphia to gain publicity for their campaign in favor of the Irish Republican Army.

Philadelphia is a stronghold of the Irish Northern Aid Committee, which is described here as a financial backer of the IRA.

But there is no real expectation of trouble and talks among the security agencies are still at an early stage.

The Queen's attitude to situations like this are well known. When one of her prime ministers recommended altering a schedule because of possible danger she replied: "Danger goes with the job."

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip cross the Atlantic in the royal yacht Britannia, arriving at Philadelphia July 6.

They will visit Washington at President Ford's invitation July 7-11, then sail for Boston, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland before going to Montreal.

JOINT STAMP — The U. S. Postal Service and the Canada Post Office have announced they will jointly issue commemorative postage stamps featuring a likeness of Benjamin Franklin. The stamps, observing the Bicentennial will differ in language, denomination and size. This is the U. S. version. (AP Wirephoto)

Bone Stress In Shooting

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The more than 71,000 registered trapshooters in the United States who brace the butts of their shotguns against their shoulders each weekend may get some unexpected pains from their pastime.

The first report of a shoulder fracture resulting from the continuous stress involved in trapshooting was recently made by Dr. Austin R. Sandrock, radiologist at the University of Iowa Hospital and Clinics here.

His patient, who fired between 200 and 1,000 rounds of ammunition each weekend, noticed a pain in her right shoulder where she positioned the gun butt. She had no memory of any instance of injury although she could not move her arm freely.

An X-ray view taken toward the armpit revealed a fracture in the coracoid process, the strong curved upper part of the shoulder bone. Three months later when the fracture had healed, an X-ray study was done from the same angle with the butt of her shotgun in place. It was directly in front of the area where the fracture developed.

Stress or fatigue fractures such as "shotgun shoulder" occur not from a single blow but from repeated events occurring in such activities as marching, coughing, ballet dancing and athletic pursuits.

Reader Survey Reveals Local News Top Choice

A total of 375, or approximately three per cent of The Daily Reflector's circulation number, filled out and returned the reader survey published in our Feb. 8 edition.

The survey asked any reader who wished to answer whether he read certain of our regularly offered columns, pages, and types of newspaper material regularly, occasionally, or seldom or never.

Our local news and local photographs, the survey showed, are read and looked at by all but one per cent of the readers who returned surveys, that is the combined regular and occasional readership equals 99 per cent. State, national, and international news and photos are read by all but three per cent, equalled only by our reader-input Hotline column, which also polled 97 per cent readership.

Family Weekly, our Sunday magazine supplement has 96 per cent readership, we found, with human interest photos having 95 per cent.

Our display advertising is appealing, too, apparently, as it scored 93 per cent, while classified advertising followed it closely with 90 per cent.

Abigail Van Buren's syndicated personal advice column scored 92 per cent readership, and our Sunday feature page, our Sunday entertainment page, and our editorial cartoon, 90 per cent each. Closely following the top 10 per centers were our Public Forum (letters to the editor) column and TV Showtime, with 89 per cent each, and our engagement and wedding photos, with 86 per cent each, combined regular and occasional.

We believe, judging by other newspaper readership surveys we've seen, that our editorial page is extremely well read. Local editorials readership was also 86 per cent. Our local columns, Alvin Taylor's "Sunday Morning Notes" and Gail Michael's Sunday column are better read than our syndicated ones, though each columnist seems to have his or her own following.

As might be expected, obituaries are well read (all but 20 per cent), as are the TV Log, all but 31 per cent (We feel there naturally is some overlapping of this column and our Sunday TV Showtime.), the Daily Horoscope (all but 41 per cent), the court judgments, (all but 33 per cent), and How N.C. Congressmen Voted (all but 30 per cent).

Many readers apparently considered the listing Daily Comics a heading, as well it might have been, and left it blank. However, their individual markings of various comics strips showed that all of these syndicated features have their following. Peanuts led with 69 per cent readership. Beetle Bailey and Blondie each have 68 per cent readership, though Beetle has one per cent more regular readers than Blondie, and each of these have higher regular readership than Peanuts. Juliet Jones and There Oughta Be A Law are the only comics that dropped below 50 per cent readership. (This may not have been a fair test of There Oughta Be A Law, however, since the heading had been accidentally dropped from this cartoon shortly before the survey and our calling it Whipple and Borth, the names of the cartoonists, may have been misleading.)

Woman's Page readers showed that, next to Abby, they like engagement and wedding photos, and that more read wedding writeups occasionally than regularly. The last two of the local personal columns, the Ayden News and the Grifton News, did not fare well. Ayden had only 28 per cent readership; Grifton, 24 per cent.

Sports readers seem to be divided fairly evenly among the regulars, occasionals, and nevers on almost all the sports offerings, except golf and auto racing. Apparently these sports have relatively small followings, though some did ask for more local coverage, especially of area auto racing events.

Lowest Sunday readership seem to be shared by the Week's Stock Market (though many of the faithfuls asked that this be expanded), the Health Department schedule, and the school menus (though we get calls and more calls if the menu's left out).

Verbal comments reflected a wide range of tastes and opinions. Most of the criticism was constructive and we appreciate every comment and are finding them helpful.

Visual items are liked by most, it seems, and more pictures were called for. Some asked that editorials have "more meat to them," at the same time acknowledging "I know this is hard to do day after day."

Many seemed to either love or hate Mrs. Michael's column. One reader asked that she "go back to giving more of her view of Greenville, instead of her own family."

Hodline was complimented often, but one reader called it "a waste of space on the front page."

Commenters on sports coverage seemed to be mostly pulling for one's own special interest. Many expressed hope for more attention to collegiate events, other than those of ECU and the ACC. One pleaded, "Give Woody more space."

No decisions have been made at present on what will be dropped from or added to our format as a result of this survey, but we've learned a lot about ourselves and about what the people who keep us going, our readers, think of us. Changes and we hope, improvements will be made as a result of our finding. We thank every person who went to the trouble and the expense of returning a survey. Every one was carefully counted and read. Percentages on each item are based on the total number of persons who answered on that particular item, not on the overall 375 respondents total.

—Carol Tyer

LWV Sets Goals For N.C. Justice Reform

Following a year-long study and discussion of the North Carolina court system, the board of directors of the League of Women Voters of North Carolina this week announced the results of a survey of statewide member opinion.

Eighteen of 21 local chapters participated in this criminal justice study and have agreed to support: (1) a non-partisan merit selection of judges; (2) the concept of a broadly based judiciary nominating commission for the selection of well-qualified judicial nominees, with the proviso that the guidelines used by the commission in selecting such nominees shall be spelled out and publicized; and (3) the requirement that North Carolina judges be licensed attorneys.

Regarding sentencing reform, League members support: (1) mandatory pre-sentence investigations over the present voluntary use; and (2) a more narrowly defined range of penalties through legislative action.

In announcing the consensus, State president Mrs. Ruth Mary Meyer of Durham said, "The N. C. League has long been concerned with the court system, and has felt that there must be a better way to select qualified judges than the present elective system. There are no candidates for public office about whom the voters know less than the candidates for judges." She explained that this fact has resulted either in abstention or totally blind voting for most of the electorate. "Since there is no requirement that judges be licensed attorneys, it is quite possible to elect someone as judge who has no professional qualifications whatsoever," she said.

"North Carolina also has the most severe sentencing of any state," said Mrs. Meyer, "and the League has been disturbed that too often widely varying sentences have been given for identical crimes. While there are mitigating circumstances which can and should enter into the length of a sentence, a judge's mood or degree of severity should not permit widely disparate sentences for the same offences."

Together On The Rocks

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Mrs. Bess Dill operates a rock shop at Meramec Caverns here, selling rocks to tourists.

"I started it because I wanted to be with my husband more," explains Mrs. Dill, wife of Lester B. Dill, who as cave owner spends a lot of time underground.

Cancer Deaths For 360,000

HOUSTON (UPI) — The American Cancer Society predicts 370,000 persons will die from cancer in 1976 and more than 10 per cent of those will be from the State of New York.

The society predicted 37,000 persons will die in New York from all the different types of cancer. California will have the second highest number of cancer deaths, with 34,500.

Both states also will lead in the number of persons contracting cancer, the society predicted. In New York, 70,000 may contract the disease, and in California the society predicts 63,000 persons will get cancer.

Plastics Gain In Furnishings
NEW YORK (AP)—A comeback is being staged by plastic furniture, according to Modern Plastics.

The magazine says softwood price increases, a decline in demand for Mediterranean-style furniture, and new technology which lets plastics simulate such materials as wicker and bamboo are contributing factors.

May Take Up To Two Years To Analyze 'Oliver'

"OLIVER" IS HIS NAME, but whether he's just a chimpanzee or something else is still unknown. Animal handler Frank Burger stands behind the puzzle from Africa. (UPI Photo) speculation, but said he didn't know what Oliver was, and says he still doesn't.

He conceded the creature has chimpanzee characteristics. But he insisted it also has peculiar traits — such as its ability to walk erect and its dome-shaped head which is small and bald. Further, a chromosome test has revealed, he said, that Oliver has 47 chromosomes instead of the 48 that apes have.

"This in itself is an abnormality. However, at this time it is best to say that it is just an abnormality and not go further," he said.

Miller said he could not be more specific about the creature's nature because it will take up to two years to fully analyze Oliver. He would not identify the scientists or organizations which have examined Oliver, saying "they have not given me permission to use their names because they don't want publicity."

But, he said, "I have had institutions who have said to me that he is important to science. An elderly scientist with a New York institution looked at him recently and said 'he is important.' I would love him to be important for science. If scientists tell me that, that's what I'm hungry for."

On the other hand, Sydney Anderson, chairman and curator of the department of mammalogy of the American Museum of Natural History, who saw Oliver at the club, said Oliver is simply a chimpanzee, nothing more.

"It's a chimp, no question about that," Anderson said. "It's a bit unusual that it walks bi-pedally but the reason, I hypothesize, is that it was trained since it was young. There's nothing peculiar about the shape of the animal or its head."

And William Conway, general director of the New York Zoological Society, Dr. Wayne King, the society's director of zoology and conservation, and Mark MacNamara, a mammalogist with the society, all saw photographs of Oliver and say the animal is just an ordinary chimpanzee. They discounted Miller's arguments, saying all of Oliver's traits "are those of a chimp's."

"The fact that it walks erect means that it is a trained chimp," King said. Conway said, "I'd be happy for it to be something else, we'd double the money he paid for it but it's just a chimp and nothing more."

Confronted with these statements, Miller said he still believed Oliver was "different" and should be investigated scientifically.

Before bringing Oliver in, Miller showed two slides of a chimpanzee, one showing the chimp on all fours, the other with the animal standing erect. He described why chimps are "not (anatomically) equipped for walking."

Then Oliver came in with Frank Burger, a South African animal handler from whom Miller bought Oliver last year for $8,000, leading him on a leash attached to a chain around the animal's neck. Burger got the animal from another man, Miller said, who brought him from "the Congo River region."

Oliver and Burger stood on a three-foot high makeshift stage and Burger turned Oliver around. He walked erect with almost perfect balance, did not make any loud noises but flashed his gums and snorted.

After several minutes, he and Burger left, then immediately got into a specially fitted mobile home and sped off to an undisclosed destination.

The next step, Miller said, is further tests, by "some reputable university or accredited organization which will agree to identify themselves and make their reports public."

British Army Maj. John Blashford-Snell, leader of the first successful expedition to navigate the Zaire (Congo) River last year, is coming to New York next month to take an expert look at Oliver.

"This is not a publicity stunt," a spokesman for Snell said. "We believe the animal could be anything — the missing link or just a mutant chimp."

"Maj. Snell is going to New York with an open mind but nothing can be established until the animal is seen and examined properly," he said.

In the meantime, Oliver will be kept "in the New York area," living on a steady fare of oatmeal, bananas, oranges, milk, cheese, grapes, pears, lettuce, a few cookies and baby vitamins.

Furman Stuns Bucs, 4-3, 12-6, In Pair

GREENVILLE, S. C. — Last year, East Carolina University's baseball team opened the Southern Conference season with a doubleheader loss to Davidson College. The Bucs never recovered, and despite a sweep of The Citadel late in the season, the Bulldogs beat East Carolina out for the title. Yesterday, the Bucs opened the 1976 Southern Conference campaign on the road again—this time at Furman. But the result was the same. The Paladins knocked off the Pirates, 4-3 in eight innings in the first game, and 12-6 in the nightcap. The loss left the Pirates struggling with a 0-2 league mark and a 2-2 overall record. The double defeat cast a big shadow over the Pirates' hope of another even-year championship.

Furman, meanwhile, leaped into the lead in the loop with a 2-0 mark. The Paladins are 5-5 overall. The Bucs' problem wasn't getting men on base. It was getting them across the plate. In the first game, the Pirates held a 3-2 lead going into the bottom of the seventh, but Furman tied it up, then won in the eighth. The Pirates stranded nine men in that contest. Furman left only five on base. In the second game, the Pirates took a 6-1 lead into the fourth, only to see the Paladins rally to tie it by the fifth. Then, a six run outburst in the sixth sealed the Pirate fate. In this one, ten Pirates were left waiting, while only six Paladins suffered a similar fate. In each game, too, the Bucs held a hitting edge on their foe, 6-5 in the first and 12-10 in the second. Furman took the initial lead in the opener scoring a run in the bottom of the first. Craig

Reisinger reached when his bunt was misplayed, and he moved to third on two infield outs. On the second out, Sonny Wooten's relay to third from first attempting to double off Reisinger went astray, and the Paladin runner scored. The Bucs came right back to take the lead, 2-1, in the second.

Joe Roenker led off with a single, and Macon Moye then lost one for the Bucs, scoring both of the runs on the round-tripper. Furman tied it up in the fourth. Everett Smith singled and moved up on an out. Russell Lee then doubled him in. The Pirates sent back out in the sixth. Wooten walked and took second on a wild pitch. Glenn Card singled him in for a 3-2 lead.

But the Paladins came back with one in the seventh to tie it. Bob Kellett walked, was sacrificed up and took third on a wild pitch. Brad Mitchum got a hit to score him. The winning Paladin run came over in the eighth. Smith reached on an error, stole second and went to third on an out. Lee reached on an infield hit, scoring the winning run. Furman again took a first inning run in the second game with a run. Smith walked and singles by Randy Howell and Walt Kalita loaded them up. Smith scored on Lee's sacrifice fly. The Pirates took the lead in the second. Roenker tied it up with a solo blast. Moye then walked, Card singled and Rick Koryda singled to score Moye

Thinclads Set Invitational

East Carolina University's track team hosts the ECU Invitational Track and Field Meet this Saturday, as its facility is dedicated. The track will be named in honor of Michael L. Bunting, prominent alumnus and a strong supporter of East Carolina athletics. Bunting is a Greensboro businessman. Three members of the East Carolina indoor track team who qualified for the nationals will be entered in the meet, and a fourth is possible. Carter Suggs, Donnie Mack and Marvin Rankins all participated in this weekend's NCAA indoor meet in Detroit. Sam Phillips, who qualified for the meet, but was unable to participate because of an injury, is listed as a possibility. A fifth qualifier, Larry Austin, ranked fifth in the 60-yard dash in the nation, is still recovering from an injury and will not participate. Suggs, a sophomore, is ranked tenth in the nation in the 60. He has run a 6-1 on several occasions and has been beaten only by Austin and Norfolk State star Steve Riddick. Mack, a freshman, also is one of the nation's top 60 men. Rankins, another freshman, has been beaten only once in the hurdles this winter, and that was by Phillips. Among the opponents for the meet will be Seton Hall, one of the top teams in the country last year; Howard, Catholic University, Baptist College, Norfolk State, Pembroke State, Richmond, and Hagerstown Junior College. Seton Hall and Howard will be favored in the mile relay, while East Carolina joins these two in the battle for the 440-relay title. The dedication ceremonies will begin at 11:50 p.m. at the track, with the meet getting underway at 2 p.m.

Irish Rally To Nip Bearcats

By DOUG TUCKER AP Sports Writer LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Toby Knight tipped in a last-second desperation shot that pulled Notre Dame to a dramatic 79-78 victory over Cincinnati Saturday in a nationally televised NCAA Midwest Regional basketball game. In the first game of the regional doubleheader, Missouri squeezed past Washington 69-67. The victories advanced the Irish and the Tigers to the regional semifinals next Thursday night at Louisville. Cincinnati led throughout most of the game. The Irish, down by two points, 39-37, at intermission, finally pulled ahead with 3:56 remaining on an Adrian Dantley jumper that made it 69-68. Cincinnati, 25-6, again sprinted into the lead with bas-

Hoosiers Romp Past St. John's

By STEVE HERMAN AP Sports Writer SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Scott May, college basketball's Player of the Year, scored 33 points Saturday, leading top-ranked, undefeated Indiana past St. John's, N.Y., 90-70, in the first round of the NCAA Midwest Regional tournament. The 6-foot-7 May, a two-time All-American forward, scored 19 points in the first half as the unbeaten Hoosiers took control in the final minutes before intermission en route to their 28th straight victory of the season. The Redmen, ending the season at 23-4, rallied to within one at the start of the second half, but the Hoosiers erupted with a 29-10 spurt and never were threatened. Indiana built its biggest lead, at 22 points, 90-68, in the closing seconds. All-American center Kent Benson added 20 points and guard Quinn Buckner wound up with 15 for Indiana in the nationally televised contest from Notre Dame's Athletic and Convocation Center. In the first game, No. 16 Western Michigan rallied behind forward Jeff Tyson's 25 points for a 77-67 overtime victory against unranked Virginia Tech.

Alabama Dumps Heels; Marquette Gets Win

By GEORGE STRODE DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Methodical Marquette, the nation's second-ranked powerhouse, and No. 8 Alabama, paced by Leon Douglas's brilliant all-around performance, posted easy first-round victories Saturday in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament. The independent Warriors, appearing in their sixth straight NCAA tournament, ran their winning streak to 22 games, taking advantage of Western Kentucky's mistakes for a 79-60 triumph. Eight-ranked Alabama registered its first NCAA victory ever, dealing fifth-ranked North Carolina a 79-84 setback behind Douglas' 35 points, 17 rebounds and three blocked shots. In the Midwest semifinals at Baton Rouge, La. Thursday night, Marquette, 26-1, will face Mid-American Conference champion Western Michigan while Alabama, 23-4, will take on top-ranked and undefeated Indiana. Butch Lee, a 6-foot-1 sophomore guard, poured in 21 points and Earl Tatum contributed 18 for Marquette, which took advantage of 12 first-half Hilltoppers errors. Meanwhile, Marquette was committing only two turnovers in the first 20 minutes and cruised to a 36-29 halftime lead. Marquette, atoning for a first-round loss last year to Kentucky, reeled off 12 straight points with long-range shooting against a 2-3 Western Kentucky zone defense. That gave Marquette—whose only regular-season loss was to Minnesota a 30-24 lead. The Warriors never trailed thereafter. Western Kentucky, paced by Johnny Britt's 19 points, relied on a blistering fast break for a 24-18 lead. Then Lee, Lloyd Walton and reserve Gary Rosenberger went to work with their long shots against the Hilltoppers. Marquette outscored the Ohio Valley Conference tournament champions 14-5 in the opening minutes of the second half for a commanding 50-34 bulge. Chuck Rawlings scored 14 points for Western Kentucky, whose nine-game winning streak was ended. The Hilltoppers finished with a 20-9 record. C. M. Newton, Alabama's pipe-smoking coach was not surprised at his starting senior's awesome performance. "This was a typical Leon Douglas game," said Newton. Western Kentucky ended up with 20 turnovers to only nine for Marquette, and Al McGuire, the Warriors' coach, said that was a big factor. "We did hit a lot of garbage baskets off their hands," said McGuire. "To win we have to have them turn the ball over. We do that anywhere on the court. A few times we had double turnovers on them." McGuire was asked what he told his team when he called a time out with the speedy Hilltoppers fast-breaking into a six-point lead. "I yelled at Lee," he answered. Jim Richards, the Western Kentucky coach, said of Marquette's 40-29 edge in rebounding, "They come to the offensive boards harder than anyone we've played all year. They are a powerful ball club. They have great strength. They are talented and well-coached. That's a whole of a combination." Richards partially blamed the defeat on Wilson James' third personal foul early in the first half. "When he got into foul trouble, we no longer had our running game," explained the Hilltoppers' coach. Douglas, a swift, high-jumping 6-foot-10 senior, matched his career point high and personally led the Southeastern Conference champions into an insurmountable lead. Douglas, placed the SEC Player of the Year, sank seven of his first nine shots, leading the 23-4 Crimson Tide into a 25-12 lead. Meanwhile, Alabama's aggressive man-to-man defense throttled North Carolina's big guns. The Tar Heels' top two scoring thrusts, Mitch Kupchak and Phil Ford had a combined four points at halftime. By that time, Alabama was rolling with a 40-28 bulge in the nationally televised showdown of top-ranked powers. North Carolina was apparently still rattled by a 67-62 upset loss to Virginia in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament final. The Tar Heels, now 25-4, missed 6 of their first 22 shots. By halftime, Alabama was outshooting them 57-33 per cent. Ford, his injured right knee heavily bandaged, settled for a lone field goal and 2 points. Kupchak the ACC Player of the Year, had only 8 points. Tommy LaGarde, who formed a 6-10 tandem with Kupchak, led North Carolina with 22 points. Walter Davis added 16 for the Tar Heels. Reginald King, a 6-6 freshman, and Anthony Murray each scored 13 for Alabama, making it's deepest penetration in the NCAA tournament. Alabama's only other NCAA appearance ended in a first-round defeat to Arizona State last year.

VMI Upsets Tennessee

By KEN ALYTA AP Sports Writer CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Hot shooting Virginia Military's Will Bynum, Ron Carter and John Kroyac combined for 56 points to offset 36 by Tennessee's Ernie Grunfeld, upsetting the ninth ranked Volunteers, 81-75, Saturday night in the first round of the NCAA Eastern Regional basketball tournament. Virginia and DePaul met in the second game to determine which will play VMI in the Eastern semifinals next Thursday night in Greensboro, N. C. Unbeaten Rutgers and Connecticut, winners Saturday afternoon in their first round play in Providence, R. I., will meet in the other Greensboro game. Tennessee, Southeastern Conference runnerup, played without Bernard King, top scorer and rebounder in the league. He watched from the bench, nursing a left thumb strained in practice a week ago. He was in uniform for the last nine minutes but never got in the game. In his absence, Grunfeld hit 13 of 23 shots and 10 of 17 free

Tigerettes Meet Erwin

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School's District One Girls Basketball champs will meet Clyde Erwin High School in the opening round of the state tournament. The Tigerettes will close out the first round play at Union Pines on Thursday at 8:30 p.m. In the other Thursday night game, Douglas Byrd takes on Union Pines. Elm City takes on Eastern Guilford at 7 p.m. Wednesday followed by Fred T. Foard against Southern Wayne, rounding out the field.

Cavs Bow

CHARLOTTE—DePaul University defeated the University of Virginia, 69-60, last night in the first round of the Eastern Regional's NCAA Basketball Tournament. The loss eliminated the Atlantic Coast Conference's Cinderella tournament champion from the field. Earlier in the day, the other ACC entry into the tournament, North Carolina, was defeated by Alabama, in a Mid-East Regional game. DePaul will meet upset winner Virginia Military Institute in the semifinals of the Eastern Regionals Thursday in Greensboro.

Pirate Tankers Claim Second

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa.—East Carolina's swimmers recorded their best finish ever in the Eastern Regional Swimming Championships this weekend as they wound up second in the three days of competition. The University of Pittsburgh took first with 443 points outdistancing the Pirates who had 299. Syracuse finished third, Maryland fourth, and Villanova, fifth. Records were set in the 1650 freestyle and the 200 back by Stuart Mann, in the 200 butterfly by Keith Wade and the 400 free relay team. The relay team of John McCauley, John Tudor, Billy Thorne and Ross Bohlen also qualified for the nationals with their victory in the 400. McCauley was the day's only individual winner for the Pirates. The summary:

Charlotte Wins; A&T Is Beaten

By KEN RAPPAPORT AP Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Melvin Watkins hit the go-ahead field goal with 1:03 left in overtime and Lew Massey contributed four killing points as North Carolina-Charlotte beat the University of San Francisco 79-74 Saturday night and moved into Monday night's quarter-finals of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament. In the second game of a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden, St. Peter's of New Jersey met Holy Cross for Monday night's other quarter-final berth. Earlier in the day, Bob Fowler led Kentucky on a nine-point tear midway through the second half and the explosive Wildcats went on to beat Niagara 67-61 in the opener of an afternoon doubleheader. Providence strongman Bob Miscivius tore up North Carolina A&T with 16 second-half points and led the Friars to a runaway 84-68 victory in the second game. The UNC Charlotte-San Francisco game was easily the most dramatic of the day in the NIT's opening round. The Dons seemed to have the game locked up with a 69-67 lead with 21 seconds left before the UNC-Charlotte 49ers came back to tie the game in regulation time on Kevin King's dramatic shot with no time left on the clock. Winford Boynes scored four of San Francisco's first five points in overtime to give the Dons a 74-73 lead with 1:34 left. But Watkins hit an uncontested jump shot from 10 feet out to provide the 49ers with a 75-74 lead. Then Massey connected on a field goal and two free throws in the last 18 seconds to lock it up for UNC-Charlotte. Cedric Maxwell led UNC-Charlotte, 22-5, with 28 points, while Massey contributed 25. Sam Williams scored 21 points while Boynes had 19 for San Francisco, 23-8. The victory earned the 49ers a shot in the quarter-finals against Oregon. Providence's first-round victory shot the Friars into a quarter-final game Tuesday night against Louisville, one of four seeded teams that drew a first-round bye in the 12-team tournament. Providence held only a 42-37 lead, before Miscivius took charge of the game early in the second half. Driving in for easy baskets through the porous Aggies defense, the 6-foot-9, 230-pound Miscivius scored 10 of his game-high 20 points in a 15-8 run that gave the Friars a 57-45 lead with 9:05 to go. The independent team from New England then increased its lead to 18 points at the end, their biggest margin of the game. By winning the opening game, Kentucky advanced to Tuesday night's quarter-final against Kansas State, another team which drew a first-round bye. The run-and-gum Kentucky team, from the Southeastern Conference, seemed to have command of the game with a 43-33 lead well into the second half. But Niagara, an independent from upstate New York, ripped off eight straight points and pulled within 43-41 with 10:21 left. The Wildcats then got field goals from Truman Claytor, Fowler and Larry Johnson for a 52-41 lead with 7:43 remaining in the game. Kentucky later scored eight in a row for a 60-45 lead, then withstood a late rally by the Purple Eagles. Three players fouled out for each team in the bruising contest. James Lee led Kentucky, 17-10, with 20 points before fouling out late in the game. Jack Givens added 16. Niagara, which closed out its season at 17-12, was led by Andy Walker's 18 points and Mike Hanley's 13.

After 6½ Hours—No Progress

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Baseball owners and players wrangled for 6½ hours Saturday in their 28th negotiating session but didn't progress an inch, and Commissioner Bowie Kuhn never showed.

"None—absolutely none," said John Gaherin, bargaining agent for the owners, when asked if any progress was made.

"No progress whatever," agreed Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association. "They made a slight movement which I would have hailed as progress last October, but nothing more."

The two bargaining groups looked haggard and frustrated as they emerged from their conference room in a St. Petersburg hotel. Optimism that training camps might be opened by Monday and that the regular season would open April 8—as scheduled—was quickly dashed.

However, Lou Brock, the St. Louis Cardinals' base stealing ace, came out after the lunch break and said, "I think we will have spring training and I think the season will start on time."

Some of Brock's optimism probably was encouraged by sweeping rumors spreading through this spring training hotbed that Kuhn, after weeks of remaining in the background, had stepped into the picture.

Seen in the St. Petersburg hotel, where the negotiations were taking place, and in other areas in conferences with owners, Kuhn provoked a lot of comment that he was readying for an arbitrary move to open the closed spring training camps.

"The commissioner is finally in it and he will take action for sure now," said one player, echoing the feelings of many of the anxious players.

It didn't happen—not this Saturday anyhow.

Kuhn has said that he has authority to make such a move if he determines that negotiations have reached such a stalemate as to be detrimental to the best interests of baseball.

Nevertheless, he has stayed out of the picture, only prodding the owners to keep negotiations progressing.

The slight movement, which Miller referred to as having been made by the owners, was a proposal in which the owners pared their original free agency offer by one year. Now, players could become free agents in their ninth years rather than their 10th years.

The players originally suggested a six-year total before gaining freedom but even this offer subsequently was pulled off the table.

"This is virtually no concession at all," Miller said.

The players' chief negotiator said that 94-99 per cent of the day's discussions were devoted to the reserve rules, instead of dealing with the liability problem, which he considers the crux of the problem.

Under an arbitrator's decision, twice upheld by federal courts, a player may gain his freedom by playing an option year at the end of his regular contract. This gives the players a potent negotiating weapon.

But Miller is concerned about the individual rights of players who, he says, would be able to file suit if their rights were taken away by a blanketing union contract. This, he adds, could make the Players Association liable for as much as half a billion in suits.

Such players as Mike Marshall of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Ken Holtzman of the Oakland A's and Reggie Smith of St. Louis, have said they would bring suit if their individual rights were jeopardized by a reserve clause agreement.

Gaherin was incensed at this stand on the part of Miller and the players.

"Bunk—it's just a smoke-screen," he said. "These people now are saying, 'this is far as we are going.'"

The owners have contended that a blanket agreement on a reserve clause for whatever years the two sides agree upon would not be subject to attack from players holding individual contracts.

Miller appeared very edgy and upset in a post-meeting news conference and said: "Let's stop this kind of haggling that will not produce an agreement until Christmas," he said.

He told the owners to go back and formulate their best offer and "stop this nonsense." He promised that if they would open spring training and present him with the best offer, he would take the proposal first back to the players' executive board and then to the players themselves to find out what they think.

He also said he told the owners that if they reached agreement on an overall reserve system and more than 50 players played out their options after 1976, then the owners could reopen negotiations on revising the basic agreement.

Another meeting here was scheduled for 10 a.m. EST Sunday.

"We challenge them," Miller continued. "They keep saying that what they are offering is what the majority of the players want. So I told them 'open spring training and we'll find out.'"

"But if you ask me, they will reject by the biggest majority what they have ever seen. But we would take it to them."

Meanwhile, Brock predicted that the regular season would open on April 8, as scheduled.

Rutgers Advances To Semis; Hofstra Wins

By JOHN SHURR
Associated Press Writer
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — All-American Phil Sellers hit four key second-half foul shots, leading undefeated and third-ranked Rutgers past Princeton 54-53 Saturday and to a berth in the NCAA college basketball Eastern Regional semifinals.

In the second game, Connecticut overcame a 15-point second-half deficit and edged Hofstra 80-78 in overtime. Rutgers will meet Connecticut Thursday in the East Regional semifinal at Greensboro, N.C.

Rutgers, which was outscored in the second half 28-21, almost lost the game when guard Ed Jordan fouled Princeton reserve guard Pete Molloy with four seconds remaining.

Molloy, a 5-foot-10 senior, who had been shooting only 56 per cent from the foul line this season, had an opportunity to tie the game at 54-54 but missed the first of his one-and-one situation.

Before Molloy went to the foul line, Rutgers Coach Tom Young called two consecutive timeouts, apparently to try and unnerve the little guard, who scored only 31 points the entire season.

After Molloy missed, the game ended with a struggle for the ball under the Princeton basket.

Top scoring honors went to Jordan, who was an AP honorable mention All-American. He had 16 points, followed by Sellers and guard Mike Dabney, also an honorable mention All-American, with 13 points apiece.

Sellers, who had been averaging 20 points per game this season, hit on only two of eight field goals in the first half and only one of five in the second half. But his clutch free throw shooting late in the game made the difference for Rutgers, 29-0. Princeton ended its season 25-4.

Princeton's high scorer was Armond Hill, who fouled out with 4:31 remaining, after scoring 14 points. Barnes Hauptfuerer had 12 points for the Tigers.

Rutgers led at halftime 33-25, but the Tigers narrowed the margin to two points after going into a zone defense midway in the second half.

Princeton's only trip to the foul line in the second half was Thorpe with 19 points and Davis with 16.

Virginia Tech, which trailed the first 11 minutes of the game, turned it around with three straight baskets by Thorpe and a 20-foot jumper by Cooke which gave the Gobblers their first lead, 21-20.

A free throw by Thorpe, a basket by Davis on a rebound of a Thorpe missed second throw attempt and another long jumper by Cooke pushed Tech's lead to six as the Broncos' shooting went cold.

The Gobblers steadily widened the lead to 39-26 as Western Michigan managed only six points in a 10½-minute span before freshman Marty Murray hit two corner jumpers in the final minutes before intermission.

The Broncos pulled within three points in the first four minutes of the second half, but the Gobblers scored the next eight points and maintained leads of six to eight points until the rally, led by Tyson, tied the game in the final minutes.

Cutter finished with 17 points, while Paul Griffin and Jimmie Harvey added 14 and 10, respectively.

The Hoosiers, considerably bigger than St. John's, dominated the inside and only the shooting of guard Glen Wil-

Green Holds 4 Stroke Lead Over Doral Field

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Lean and lanky Hubert Green stalked away from a host of challengers with a seven-under-par 65 and established a four-stroke lead after Saturday's third round of the $200,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament.

Green, in a slump most of the season, put together a three-round total of 201, a whopping 15 under par for three trips over the usually-difficult, 7,065-yard Blue Monster Course at the Doral Country Club.

"That is exceptionally low for three rounds on this golf course," said Jack Nicklaus, the defending champion who couldn't keep pace with Green's surging finish.

"Goodness gracious," said Nicklaus, "I shoot 68 and I'm losing ground."

That's exactly what happened. His four-under-par effort left him a distant seven shots back at 208 going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $40,000 first prize.

Mark Hayes, the second-round leader, could do no better than a 70 in the warm, sunny, typically breezy south-Florida weather and dropped back into a tie for second at 205.

He shared that position with veteran Bobby Mitchell, who had a 68.

sure free throws with less than a minute left, helping the Tigers beat Washington.

Kennedy went to the foul line with the score tied 65-65. A few seconds later, Washington's Clarence Ramsey missed two free throws that could have forged another tie.

Missouri's final two points came on foul shots by Willie Smith and Scott Sims. Washington's Larry Jockson made a long jumper, bringing the Huskies within two points with 14 seconds remaining.

Missouri, Big Eight Conference champion with a 25-4 record, started the game poorly, missing its first six shots from the field. The 10th-ranked Tigers trailed until 14:10 of the second half when Kennedy hit a layup, putting Missouri ahead 44-43.

The 11th-ranked Huskies, 22-6, fashioned a 36-30 halftime lead as the cold-shooting Tigers suffered through numerous turnovers.

Smith was held to eight points in the first half but exploded for 13 after intermission and led all scorers with 21 points. Kennedy finished with 20 for the Tigers.

Ramsey and Lars Hansen paced the Huskies with 14 points apiece.

Washington players were unimpressed with the victorious Big Eight team.

"They were just like we thought they'd be," said Huskies center James Edwards. "They beat us, but I don't think they'll go too far."

"We made a lot of mistakes and put them back in the game," said Ramsey. "They really weren't that quick."

Missouri Coach Norm Stewart praised the Huskies' defense of his star shooter, Smith.

"They did a good job on Smith defensively. We just didn't get him the shots we ordinarily do. Give them credit," Stewart said.

"We're very pleased to win one and get a win under our belt. There were a lot of things we planned to do that we didn't even get close to in the first half. There's a lot of tenseness that we didn't feel until we got on the floor."

Pam Pack Holds Off North Pitt, 67-56

ROGERS OFF THE GLASS — North Pitt's Donnie Perkins goes up to block a shot by Washington's Alvis Rogers (white uniform) during Friday night's game. Perkins failed to stop Rogers' second quarter shot. Also trying to stop Rogers is Panther Jackie Best (34). Waiting for the rebound are North Pitt's Virgil Pilgreen (31) and Kenneth Roberson (23) and Washington's Kenny Rogers (44) and Albert Spencer (50). (Reflector photo)

BETHEL—Washington survived a third and fourth quarter rally by North Pitt, hanging on for a 67-56 win and the district championship Friday night before a standing room only crowd.

With 3:30 to go in the third period, North Pitt found itself 18 points behind, 54-36, and going under for a second time. The Panther changed defenses and pulled Pam Pack out of its offense dumping in six points and they picked up in the fourth frame with five straight narrowing the gap to 56-52 with just under six minutes left.

But then the Pam Pack regained its composure on a free throw by Kenny Rogers and a pair of quick buckets by Gray Hodges and Albert Spencer moving out, 61-52.

That put the Panthers under for good.

"We just got away from our offense," Washington's David Smith said. "We didn't fill the lane. I'm not taking anything away from North Pitt, but they did what people have been doing to us all year."

In Thursday's semi-final game against Greene Central, Washington came out looking at a four corners. But Friday night, North Pitt went with its usual offenses.

"I thought they would try to press and come down and shoot off the fast break, if they had it," said Smith. He added he didn't expect a repeat of the previous night because North Pitt "Isn't geared to that type of ball."

When North Pitt began its comeback, it was getting a man open away from the ball. "I should have gone to the man-to-man sooner," Smith said. "They were overloading and had a free shot. They set a point and ran a weak side cut on the other."

Carl Williams hit his first three shots giving Washington a 6-2 lead but his antics ceased after the spurt. He finished the game with 13.

The Pam Pack ran the lead up to ten, 13-3, but then the Panthers cut it back to 19-15 at the end of the first period. North Pitt hit a cold streak in the second period and the Pack ran the lead back to ten, 31-21. At halftime, the board read 36-27.

North Pitt's Cobby Deans praised his team for its play. The Panthers were decided underdogs mainly from the lack of height. The tallest they had was Donnie Perkins, 6-4. Washington had Albert Spencer, 6-9, and Alvis Rogers, about 6-6.

"They are not as smart as they think they are," Deans said.

"When they meet a team as large as they are, they'll be in trouble."

"We took some bad shots. We made some mistakes. We did as good a job as we could. We weren't patient enough."

Deans said he had wanted the Panthers to drive inside more. Several times they had an opening but didn't take it.

The Pack was able to stop the Panther rally with its board strength. Washington pulled down 31 rebounds while North Pitt grabbed 24. North Pitt was out-rebounded, 15-9, in the second half. Perkins led the Panthers with nine and Kenneth Roberson had six. Spencer had eight and Alvis Rogers seven.

The teams traded baskets until Alvis Rogers and Hodges hit from the corner giving Washington a 49-34 lead. Five more points gave Washington a 54-36 advantage. North Pitt called a timeout and changed defenses. With 1:57, Spencer blocked a shot that reeked of goal tending but there was no call.

That play seemed to put new life into the Panthers. Roberson and Wallace Council scored and Roberson added two free throws. Kenny Gray broke the slump for Washington hitting with 13 seconds left.

Jesse Harris opened the fourth period with a field goal and Jackie Best added one cutting it to 56-46 lead. Harris scored again and helped Virgil Pilgreen score over Spencer knocking it down to 56-50.

Gray charged with 5:40 left setting up Council's jumper with 5:22 left as the lead fell to four.

But Kenny Rogers hit a free throw and after a foul by Harris, Hodges and Spencer sank buckets ending the rally.

Pilgreen led the Panthers with 16, Harris scored 14 and Roberson 10. Spencer scored 16 and both Williams and Kenny Rogers 13 and Alvis Rogers 12 for the Pack.

Elm City Runs Past Roanoke

JACKSONVILLE — Elm City might just as well left all of their basketball team home except John Virgil, Robald Parker and Chris Ladson Friday night.

The trio scored more points between them than the whole Roanoke team leading the Trojans to a 90-63 rout of Roanoke and the championship of the District 2, 2-A playoffs.

Virgil, Parker and Ladson scored 74 points between them, enough to beat the Redskins by 11. Gil Wheeler added 12 more.

Elm City pulled up a 16-8 lead in the first period but Roanoke did not let them pull farther away in the second matching the Trojans' 14 points.

Elm City did pull away in the third as the Trojans poured in 30 points to Roanoke's 14. Elm City added 30 points to Roanoke's 14. Elm City added 30 more in the fourth quarter.

Ricky Duggins led Roanoke with 19, Carl Whitely had 16 and Tim Highsmith 10.

Virgil scored 27, Parker 24 and Ladson 23.

"Competition is very tough," said head coach Ray Scharf after the day's end. "Pitt is really tough. I thought we did a fine job tonight and I look up and we are 63 behind. The race now is for second place."

Pitt held the lead over the Pirates with 248 points. The Pirates followed with 185, while Syracuse moved up to third with 168. Maryland dropped two places to fourth with 153, and Villanova holds down fifth with 120.

The Pirates broke four varsity records during the day although no ECU swimmer could register a victory. The best effort seemed to come from Tomas Palmgren, who has had a superb season came through to place second in the 400 individual medley with a record time of 4:15.12. This eclipsed more than five seconds off the previous mark.

In the 100 butterfly, Keith Wade, a freshman, swam to a record :52.56. David Kirkman broke his own 100 breaststroke mark with a swim of 1:02.10.

The 800 freestyle relay team of John Tudor, Billy Thorne, John McCauley, and Ross Bohlen finished third in breaking the seven mark for the first time

Williamston Goes To State

WILLIAMSTON — The Williamston Tigerettes earned their fourth straight trip to the State Girls Tournament Friday night by rolling to a 53-36 victory over Northeastern.

The win gave Williamston the District One Girls Basketball title and a berth in the State Tournament which starts Wednesday at Union Pines.

It will mark the fourth year in a row that the Tigerettes have earned a berth in the state event. After twice being knocked out in the first round, they were the state runner-up last year.

Williamston took an early lead and powered out to a 16-5 lead after one period. They continued to pull away from the Eaglettes, outthumping them, 15-9, in the second frame. That gave Williamston a 31-14 lead at the half.

Northeastern began to find the range in the third period, scoring 12, but Williamston added 14, and boosted the lead to 45-26. Northeastern outthrum them, 10-8, in the final period.

Nancy Williams and Paula Bennett each had 14 points to lead the Williamston scoring. Nancy Sharp added 10. Terry Horton led Northeastern with 16.

Williamston is scheduled to go into state action on Thursday night against an opponent still to be determined.

Rose Opens Baseball Season This Tuesday

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

That big smile on Ronald Vincent's face is just about the start of the 1976 baseball season.

No, the coach of the defending State 4-A Champions has another reason for the grin right now. Thursday, he became the father of a baby girl Katherine Ann. It is the first child for Vincent and his wife.

Vincent was supposed to see if he could keep on smiling Friday afternoon, when the first game of the year, with Williamston, was scheduled. But the game was postponed until later this month.

Now, the opening will come Tuesday at Guy Smith Stadium in a 4 p.m. encounter—also with Williamston. Oddly enough it will be a clash between the top two State Champs of last year. Williamston took the 3-A title.

"We're got some pretty good material and depth, but we lack of lot of experience," Vincent said. "It's going to take a little time for our pitching to come around.

"But our team has found out what it takes to win. The State Championship last year taught us a lot. We have a winning attitude, and that helps a lot," Vincent said.

The pitching is coming along well, the coach said. Mike Belton is the only veteran moundman. He and fellow left-handed Jim Wilkerson, who has returned to Rose from Hargrave Military Academy, look to be the mainstays right now.

"We have quite a few behind them," Vincent said. Among them are righties Henry Baker, Wright Hooks, Danny Hester and Jimmy Averette. The latter, however, has been hampered by a wrist injury and may not be ready for duty for a couple of weeks.

"John Coffman is also coming along good," the coach said. "The one who comes quickest stands to be our number three starter, with the rest seeing relief action."

The defense will have a number of inexperienced or lightly experienced players. Anchoring the defense, however, is veteran catcher Eddy Connolly. "Having him back is a real plus for us," the coach said. "It's a tremendous asset. We also have Mike Brewington back at first base, where he does an excellent job."

Currently, Vincent is playing Greg Sasser at second, Lee Shearin at third and Hooks at shortstop. Backing them up is junior Mark Conway and sophomore Greg Lee. "We have three fine sophomores in Lee, catcher Mike Shank and outfielder Jeff Aldridge," Vincent added.

The outfield will largely depend on who has the best stick on a given day. Currently David Dixon appears set for center. Others who could figure in include Jay Chenier, Belton, Wilkerson and Averett.

Gone from the team are the three big sticks of Macon Moye, Griff Garner and Kelly Heath, all graduated. "We're going to have quite a bit more speed," Vincent said. "But our long ball power is gone. We'll have to take advantage of our speed and play good defense."

In the conference race, Vincent warns of Northern Nash. "They only lost one player off last year's team. But then, the rest of us will all be pretty even. It should be a very balanced league."

"Our conference has two state tournament positions open this year, and that's good. Our goal of course, is to get one of these."

The Rampants, in addition to defending their State title, will also be defending their Gaylord Perry Tournament title in Williamston this spring.

Love Got None In Bull Loss

By The Associated Press

There's no love lost between the Chicago Bulls and their fans... unless it's Bob Love.

Love, along with the rest of the Bulls, was undoubtedly lost in dropping a 95-73 decision to the Kansas City Kings Friday night. In tennis, love means nothing, and that about sums up Love's latest performance—while the crowd booed him on.

Love, an eight-year regular, shot a perfect 0-for-15 from the floor. He did, however, make one of two free throws, but that didn't come until the final minute.

"This may not have been our worst game in my seven years with the Bulls, but it ranks very close," said Coach Dick Motta.

Elsewhere in the National Basketball Association, Detroit trounced Milwaukee 117-101, Philadelphia edged Atlanta 109-107, Houston trimmed Buffalo 113-100, New Orleans flattened Portland 110-101 and Los Angeles whipped New York 113-95.

The Kings had six players in double figures against Chicago, led by Nate Archibald's 22. His driving lay-up and Sam Lacey's domination of the backboards propelled the Kings to a 69-53 third-quarter bulge.

"We took good shots in the first quarter and then we disintegrated," Motta said. "The way our players were missing shots, it looked like they didn't care, but I know they weren't missing on purpose. My only hope is that they turn it around Saturday night and prove to themselves that they are pros."

Pistons 117, Bucks 101

Bob Lanier scored 17 of his 21 points in the second half. Curtis Rtwc added 17 and John Mengelt and Al Eberhard had 16 apiece as Detroit climbed within two games of the first-place Bucks in the Midwest Division.

76ers 109, Hawks 107

Coniel Norman's 17-foot jump shot with three seconds left, his only tally of the game, lifted Philadelphia over the Hawks.

Rockets 113, Braves 100

Houston's Calvin Murphy scored 16 of his 32 points in the fourth quarter to blunt a Buffalo rally.

Rose High School's track team opens the 1976 season Monday by playing host to the Kinston Vikings.

The Rampants thinclads will host the meet on the E. B. Aycock track. Field events will get underway at 3:30 p.m., with running events starting at 4 p.m.

Softball Meetings

The Greenville Recreation Department will hold organizational meetings for its softball leagues this week.

The City and Industrial leagues meetings will be held on Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Elm Street Gym TV room. The Ladies and Church leagues will meet on Wednesday, at the same time and place.

Further information on the leagues can be obtained from 752-4137, ext. 220.

Chargers Win, 4-1

WASHINGTON — Ned Craft slapped his first homer of the year in the first inning and Ayden-Grifton picked up runs in the fourth and seventh innings to spoil Washington's baseball opener, 4-1, Friday.

Craft's homer came in the first with one on. Washington countered with its only run in the second as Ricky Payne walked and later scored on an error.

Steve Noble walked, stole second and scored on Butch Davis' single in the fourth.

Davis walked in the seventh, took second on Mike Teachy's hit and scored on a single by Al Butts.

Chris Riggs got the win giving up just one hit, a punt to the Pam Pack. Tim Shadle relieved Riggs in the fourth and Teachy came on in the sixth and got the save.

Butts and Davis had two hits each for A-G, which is not 3-0.

Jaguars Lose Close One, 1-0

DUDLEY — For the second straight game, Farmville Central has been the victim of a one-run margin. This time it was another 4-A team, Southern Wayne, which came out on top, 1-0.

Ron Pelletier of Southern tossed a three-hitter at the Jaguars, fanning 14 batters and walking just three.

Farmville got good pitching from Ricky Smith and Carroll Griffin, but it wasn't quite enough as errors behind them caused the trouble.

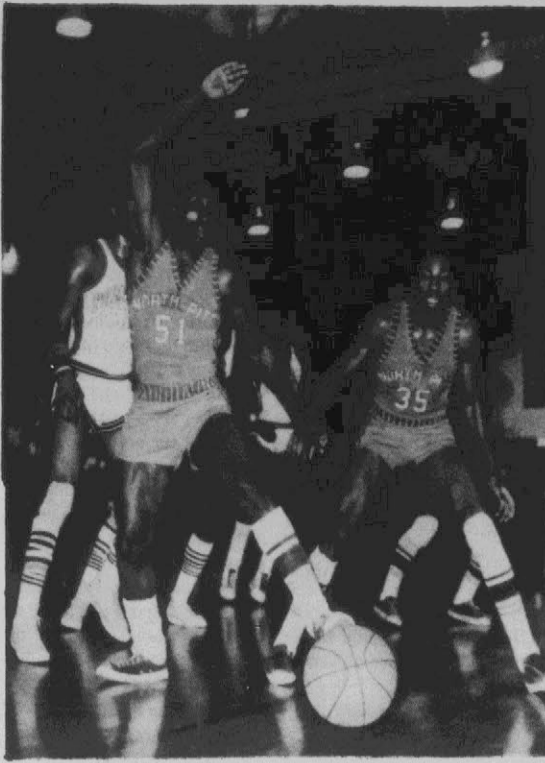

Smith went the first four innings was pinned with the loss. He scattered just two hits, struck out one and walked none. Griffin, in the final two innings, allowed no hits, walked one and fanned one.

Farmville had a chance to score in the third and fifth innings. In the third, Mike Jenkins walked, stole second and moved to third on Scott Evans' hit. But he died there when a fly ball ended on a hit by Jenkins, but a strikeout ended that threat.

Southern Wayne's run came in the fourth. Jeff Rose reached on a two-based error and moved to third on an misplayed pickoff attempt. Bill Blackman then hit a sacrifice fly to score Rose with the game's lone run.

The loss left the Jaguars with a tough 0-2 record. They return to action Friday, playing host to Saratoga.

Networks Mad About Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) — Over the protests of CBS and NBC, who have charged foul play to Olympic officials, ABC has conditionally obtained the rights to telecast the 1980 Winter Olympics from Lake Placid, N.Y.

A joint announcement issued Friday by ABC Sports and a committee head for the 13th Winter Games made official—pending International Olympic Committee approval—the transaction that NBC and CBS had tried to postpone.

The release, made by ABC Sports President Boone Arledge and John M. Wilkins, chairman of the 1980 Olympics' Marketing and Television Committee, announced an agreement "in principle" to give ABC the rights despite outraged cables sent overseas by the other two networks. The other networks asserted they never got the chance to bid on an equal footing with ABC for the rights to the first Winter Olympics in the United States since the Squaw Valley Games of 1960.

No dollar figure was released by ABC, which obtained the broadcast rights for the seventh of the nine Olympiads held since 1964.

NBC's wire went to Lord Killian, president of the IOC, claiming that rights to the Lake Placid Games had been awarded to ABC "through private and non-competitive procedures," representing a "flagrant departure from the stand-

Love Affair Between Seaver And New York Mets May Be Cooling

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Baseball's current player-owner stalemate has put a cold chill on one of the game's most celebrated love affairs—Tom Seaver and the New York Mets.

It isn't so much that Tom Terrific, winner of the Cy Young Award as the best pitcher in the National League last year, is asking $800,000 for his services the next three years or that the Mets don't think they can afford it. Like pouting school kids, they're refusing to talk about it.

"A couple of months ago Tom was in New York and we sat down to talk about a new contract," Joe McDonald, the Mets' general manager said Friday. "We didn't make a great deal of headway and mutually decided to discuss it later."

"A second meeting hasn't worked out." Seaver has become involved up to his ear lobes in the players' efforts to achieve a strong new agreement with the owners and, until Friday's dramatic suspension, had single-handedly supervised informal training for some 40 big leaguers at Eckerd College here.

He has worked closely with Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, in solidifying his contemporaries behind the cause. "We were supposed to meet earlier this week—I am very anxious to get all of our players in the fold," McDonald said.

"I told Tom I would be in my office at Huggins Field every day. He hasn't come by." McDonald acknowledged that Seaver's reluctance to come by the Mets' headquarters possibly could be traced to the fact that the field is shuttered for player training as part of what the players call a lockout.

"I talked to him on the phone and he told me to come over to Eckerd College where he was working out," the Mets' general manager added. "I told him I didn't want to do any negotiating in a parking lot or in a dug-out swarming with players and newsmen.

"He said why didn't I come by his house at Indian Shores. I know he is a super pitcher, maybe the best pitcher in baseball, but I don't see why I should go to him to get a contract signed."

"I repeated my invitation that he come by the office or that we arrange a mutually agreeable meeting place. He said he was very busy and that maybe we could do it later."

"Whether it's a $200,000 pitcher or a $20,000 pitcher, I am anxious to get all of our guys signed. Seaver says he wants to wait. I don't know whether it's just that he's so busy or that he is waiting to see how negotiations turn out."

If the players stick to the arbitrator's decision in the Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally case, Seaver would be able to play the next year under option and then become a free agent.

Conceivably, he could sell his services to another club, getting a hefty bonus although probably not the size of that awarded Catfish Hunter by the New York Yankees—$3 million-plus.

Business Notes

APPOINTED MANAGER
The Life Insurance Co. of Virginia announced that Harold H. Pittman has been appointed manager of the company's TobaccoLand Agency, headquartered in Rocky Mount and serving the Rocky Mount, Wilson and Greenville areas of the state.

A North Carolina native, Pittman graduated from East Carolina University and began his insurance career in 1968 as an agent in Life of Virginia's Kinston agency. He later transferred to the company's Florence, S.C. agency.

FIRM HONORED
J.H. Hudson Co. of Greenville was honored recently by Butler Manufacturing Co. for the "Project of the Year" in the metal building systems manufacturer's Charlotte region.

The construction firm received the award for Eaton Corp. Industrial Truck Division plant here which incorporates more than $1 million in Butler pre-engineered building components. J.H. Hudson Inc. required nine months to complete the plant, it was announced.

Headed by James H. Hudson, the business was founded in 1967 as a general construction firm offering design-build construction services. The firm's Butler division is led by R. Richard Miller.

PLANNING INSTITUTES
Bill L. Hunt, CLU, district agent of Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Greenville, will attend a one week program of advanced study in business and family financial planning at the 103rd CLU Institute at Stetson University, DeLand, Fla.

Hunt is one of 200 underwriters registered to attend two institutes on university campuses for members of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters.

At the graduate-level seminars, the underwriters study such subject areas as estate planning, economics, communications, qualified retirement planning, business insurance, deferred compensation and employee stock options.

DELIVERIES UP
Chevrolet dealers in the Richmond zone delivered a total of 3,926 new passenger cars and trucks during February, according to R.E. Heithaus, zone manager.

Heithaus said that zone passenger car sales in February were 2,677 compared with 1,922 in February of 1975. Truck sales for February reached 1,249 compared with 731 for 1975.

The zone includes 15 dealers in an area covering the southern two-thirds of Virginia and the eastern third of North Carolina.

FEBRUARY LEADER
Shirley Miller, Greenville agent with Life and Casualty Insurance Co. of Nashville, Tenn., was honored by the company as the Kinston District's Leader of the Month for February.

The agent received a plaque from the company in recognition of her sales performance.

1975 RESULTS
Richard R. Shinn, president and chief executive officer of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., reported that the company disbursed a record $4.25 billion to policyholders and beneficiaries in 1975.

Shinn said that more than two-thirds of the payments or $3.04 billion were to living policyholders in the form of health insurance payments, cash values, pensions, endowments and dividends. Some $1.21 billion went to beneficiaries in death claims. Dividends to policyholders totaled $7.92 billion.

New life insurance sales totaled $22.76 billion, including personal life sales of $13.26 billion and group life sales of $9.50 billion. Insurance in force reached a company record of $226.29 billion, a gain of $1.39 billion over last year.

DIVISION POST
DETROIT—Burrhoughs Corp. announced that Ben L. Rouse was named vice president and group executive of the Business Machines group, the computer and business machines maker's largest division.

Rouse, a Farmville native and resident of Greenville, was formerly vice president and group executive of the International group.

RECORD FIGURES
Hampton Industries Inc. reported record sales and earnings for the fourth quarter of 1975.

Sales volume increased 57 per cent and earnings reached 57 cents a share compared to a loss in 1974. Sales were $19,500,696 during the current quarter against $12,386,438 during the comparable period in 1974 while earnings were $951,170 versus a loss of $386,289.

Sales volume for the year reached a record level of $56,439,691 compared to $41,582,295 in the prior year, an increase of 36 per cent. Net income for the year was $1,852,147, equal to $1.10 per share versus a loss in the period year of $775,376.

FRANCHISE SALE
Cedric's Inc., a fast-food family restaurant chain specializing in fish and chips and general seafood, announced that it has signed a five-year contract with Horn and Hardart for the development of 255 units.

The contract gives Horn and Hardart, a New York restaurant company, exclusive franchise rights in five northeastern states (New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania).

Cedric's operates a restaurant on Greenville Boulevard here.

CREDIT CARDS HONORED
Beginning March 15, Belk department stores in North Carolina and South Carolina will begin honoring both the Master Charge and BankAmericard credit cards, the company announced. Belk credit cards will continue in effect.

Greenville Banks Jr., manager of Belk Tyler Co. here, said the Belk credit card is currently accepted in all Belk and Leggett department stores, now numbering nearly 400 in 18 southeastern states and Puerto Rico.

He asserted that the extension of credit privileges to holders of Master Charge and BankAmericards is "in keeping with the continuous growth of Belk."

Brisk Sales Trend Is Noted In Some Stores

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Business has turned brisk in some of the major retail chain and department stores across the country. The surge in buying this year, which was reflected in the profit statements of three big companies and government statistics this past week, follows a rise in employment and an easing of inflation as the nation recovered from the recession in the last half of 1975.

aided in part by improved weather and particularly by an improvement in economic conditions and consumer confidence, sales began to push up," said Robert Dewar, chairman of the S.S. Kresge Co.

"Throughout the balance of 1975, with the economy gathering strength, consumer demand increased, leading to the important fourth quarter when excellent results were achieved," he said.

In the quarter ended in January, Kresge's sales rose 26 per cent from their level in the same period a year before. Its profits jumped 249 per cent.

J.C. Penney Co.'s sales in that period rose 20 per cent and its profits 235 per cent. And Montgomery Ward's sales were up 9 per cent and its earnings 118 per cent.

In February, retail sales nationwide rose 12 per cent from a year ago, the Commerce Department said.

The buying was heavy in durable goods — items like refrigerators and furniture. Durable goods sales rose 3.5 per cent in February, mostly because of a jump in auto sales.

Montgomery Ward, meanwhile, will become part of the Mobil Oil group of companies if a merger proposal announced this past week goes through. Montgomery Ward is a subsidiary of Marcor Corp., in which Mobil currently has 54 per cent ownership.

Mobil proposed to merge completely with Marcor through an exchange of securities worth an estimated $900 million. The deal must be approved by directors and stockholders of the companies.

Meanwhile Mobil was also negotiating the sale of its 7.5 per cent ownership in Arabian American Oil Co., the joint venture of four American firms that produces most of Saudi Arabia's oil.

More Payoffs Revealed

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three more major American companies, including the giant International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., say they were involved in making payoffs to officials and customers in foreign countries.

The three firms, ITT, General Tire and Rubber Co. and Westinghouse Electric Corp., said internal investigations were made as a result of the disclosure of foreign bribes paid by other large American firms and as a result of probes by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

ITT said it had paid out $3.8 million to foreign customers or government officials over the past five years.

A fourth firm, Universal Oil Products Co., reported Thursday it had made $290,000 in questionable overseas payments since 1970.

In a special report prepared for its stockholders, IIT said no laws were broken in the 80 countries where the firm did some $50 billion worth of business in the five-year period ending in 1975.

"In many areas of the world it is not unusual and often accepted as normal practice to give presents or make payments of modest value to government functionaries in order to expedite administrative action or secure procedural assistance," the report said.

ITT also reported making $60,000 in political contributions overseas during the five-year period. Those payments were legal, IIT said.

The company said the payoffs "will have no significant effect" on taxes owed in the United States.

Westinghouse told the SEC it found four questionable payments made by sales agents overseas.

"In two of these, there were indications that the special sales representative intended to make some improper payments to foreign officials," the firm said. "In neither of these two cases is it known whether any payment to foreign officials in fact was made."

government official who had worked as a sales representative before taking a government position, the company said, adding: "The payments were made in apparent good faith, based on work actually done for Westinghouse before the individual entered government service, which resulted in Westinghouse sales to that government."

General Tire said it maintained a secret fund of $1 million, much of which was paid to Arab consultants and behind the Iron Curtain.

And Westinghouse reported that a search of its records turned up questionable payments of less than $300,000 over the past five years, including $70,000 in 1975.

The company gave no details of the transactions and an ITT spokesman declined to elaborate beyond a two-page statement, which also said $4,300 was expended in the United States. ITT said these expenditures "could be considered to be direct or indirect contributions to federal election campaigns." Political contributions by corporations to U.S.

Westinghouse said, no evidence of improper payment was found, but "arrangements with the special sales representative departed sufficiently from normal Westinghouse procedure and documentation to require further inquiry."

The fourth case involved payments to an unidentified foreign

Energy From Organic Matter Said Feasible

By WARREN LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost limitless supplies of renewable energy are lying around on the earth's surface waiting for the political decisions needed to develop them, experts say.

Organic matter from plants, trees and wastes store the energy of sunlight. This energy can become useful forms of fuel, heat and electricity through bioconversion if there is a commitment to do so, the experts said Friday.

Several hundred persons representing science, government and private industry attending a three-day conference on bioconversion heard reports on a worldwide need to develop biological sources of energy.

ation for the Advancement of Science, said the conference came to three main conclusions about bioconversion:

There is a need for stepped-up pilot projects to develop bioconversion technology; long-range economic and social implications of bioconversion need further study, and more international cooperation in developing and assessing bioconversion is needed.

Participants delivered papers on several existing bioconversion projects, including using bacteria to generate methane gas from city and farm wastes, developing liquid fuels from wood and growing ocean kelp on marine farms for fuel and protein.

"And there is evidence that biomass conversion may have less of an impact on the environment than many other energy sources, such as nuclear or coal," Dever said in an interview.

Bioconversion could be particularly useful to developing countries as an alternative to nuclear power, Dever said.

"Many developing countries were on the way to having viable economies until the energy crisis," he said. "They don't want to go back to the way they were and some, such as South Korea, are committed to nuclear power and aren't going to drop it despite the risks. Bioconversion may be a viable alternative to those who haven't yet committed themselves."

Executives of Texaco, Exxon, Standard Oil of California and Mobil met all week in secret and under heavy guard in Panama City, Fla., with Sheikh Ahmed Yamani, the Saudi oil minister.

The subject as the complete takeover of Aramco, of which the Saudi government now owns 60 per cent. On Friday, they reached "general accord on major issues," something that has eluded the negotiators for months.

"Over the past few years Saudi Arabia has not been in a rush to finalize a new agreement with Aramco," said Anthony Copp, an energy economist for Salomon Brothers investment bankers. "In large part this has been dictated by the large volume of spare oil productive capacity in the country," he said.

William Carey, executive officer of the American Association of the Biomass Energy Institute in Winnipeg, Canada, said costs of most energy processes existing today are about the same — making it feasible to develop bioconversion.

Donal A. Dever, chairman of the Biomass Energy Institute in Winnipeg, Canada, said costs of most energy processes existing today are about the same — making it feasible to develop bioconversion.

Chalmer G. Kirkbride, science advisor to the head of the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration, reviewed U.S. plans for bioconversion projects.

Kirkbride said ERDA has joined a program to build an experimental microbiological conversion plant at Pompano Beach, Fla. The plant, which will be built starting in July, will use bacteria to digest municipal trash to produce burnable methane gas.

ERDA is involved in at least 20 other research projects in bioconversion as part of a push in all fields of solar energy, he said. "Biomass conversion is one of the most important and is being given top priority," Kirkbride said.

SOVIET OIL—Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson tells a Washington news conference Friday that little hope remains of getting the Soviet Union to sell its oil to the U.S. at prices below those fixed by the world oil cartel. He provided no indication when a final agreement can be expected out of oil negotiations with the Soviets. (AP Wirephoto)

Cites Hazard In Wells

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Abandoned wells and cisterns are threats to the safety of children who might fall into them and drown, State Health Commissioner R. LeRoy Carpenter said.

"I am appealing for citizens and officials to become aware of this tragic problem and cooperate to fill or close up abandoned wells and cisterns," Carpenter said.

The increase in grain-fed cattle does not necessarily mean a net gain in over-all beef production. Last year, when grain-fed beef output was in a sharp decline, cattle fattened on grass or fed small amounts of grain more than made up for the reduction in feedlots.

Cattle Inventory

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers and feedlot operators are building up their inventories of grain-fed cattle, meaning consumers will see more choice and prime-grade cuts of beef in the grocery store, the government says.

Further, beef production is not a uniform flow of meat from farms, ranches and feedlots to consumer tables. For example, if spring rains produce good grass conditions in the next few months, many cattle which normally might be sold to feedlots could be kept longer in pastures.

On the other hand, if the drought area in the southern Great Plains persists, and even enlarges, many more cattle could be forced to market and result in a temporary glut of lower-grade beef at lower prices for both consumers and producers.

Fly Kites Safely . . . AWAY FROM POWER LINES

The month of March and kite flying naturally go together. The rising winds send signals to all who enjoy the thrill of seeing kites floating high and free.

But you should know that kite flying has its dangers. A kite string can be a deadly conductor of electric current if it touches a power line. So if your kite should catch a power line, let it go immediately. And don't pull.

There are a few other things you should know about kite safety: use dry cotton string — never wire or metal; don't use metal in the construction of your kite; fly your kite away from busy roads, highways and power lines.

Republican Schweiker An Unabashed Liberal

By DREW VON BERGEN WASHINGTON (UPI) — In 1952, at the age of 26, Richard S. Schweiker was confronted with a major political decision. He was in Chicago as an alternate delegate to the Republican National Convention, and candidates for the presidential nomination were lining up support.

Pressure came from three sides. Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio was "Mr. Republican" and leader of the party's conservative wing. Liberals were pushing Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, a man with no political background, as the man to stop Taft. And the governor of Pennsylvania, John Fine, wanted the delegation to hold out for his favorite son candidacy.

"My first decision I had to make in politics," Schweiker recalls. "I came down on the Eisenhower side."

Now serving his second term as U.S. senator from Pennsylvania, Schweiker has been coming down on the liberal side ever since.

In fact, the liberal Americans for Democratic Action gave Schweiker and Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts an 89 per cent rating in the 1975 session of Congress, highest among Senate Republicans.

Ironically, Schweiker, 49, got to the Senate by defeating Sen. Joseph Clark, D-Pa., once a member of the ADA executive board.

Schweiker's stands against the antiballistic missile system and President Nixon's unsuccessful Supreme Court nominees, Clement Haynsworth and G. Harrold Carswell, endeared him to liberals and landed him on the Nixon White House "enemies list."

Issue Blueprint For Justice

DALLAS (UPI) — A 20-member executive committee has issued a detailed blueprint for restructuring the Texas criminal justice system. Called Texas Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, the 198-page report attempts to define what the system is and what it should be and includes legislative recommendations, which are being drafted by the State Bar of Texas.

senator ever endorsed by the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO. He began his active political career in 1960 by defeating Rep. Jack Lafore, whom Schweiker described as "pretty much Goldwater in his thinking", in the GOP primary for the seat representing Philadelphia's wealthy "Main Line" suburbs. Schweiker says his vote for Medicare in 1965 was seen as a "proof positive I was a real renegade." The next year, several wealthy conservatives disenchanted with his voting record backed Lafore in an unsuccessful campaign to topple Schweiker.

In 1968, while Democratic presidential nominee Hubert H. Humphrey was carrying Pennsylvania against Nixon by 170,000 votes, Schweiker defeated Clark by more than 280,000 votes for the Senate.

He won reelection in 1974 over Pittsburgh's Democratic mayor, Peter Flaherty, with 53 per cent of the vote, the biggest margin for a senator in the state since the mid-1940s. At the same time, Democrat Gov. Milton Shapp was winning reelection.

A post-election survey showed that 54 per cent of those normally voting Democrat supported Schweiker, while Flaherty attracted only 27 per cent of GOP voters.

"They weren't out to lynch Schweiker, even though I called on Nixon to resign," Schweiker said in an interview.

Schweiker doesn't mind being called a liberal, but believes a politician's popularity has more to do with his attention to constituents' needs than ideological labels or voting records.

"By singling out and being responsive to their needs, I've been able to hold their (conservatives') support," he said.

Schweiker backs President Ford for the GOP presidential nomination in August.

"Here again we have to make choices," he said.

"Politics is the art of the possible. Ford isn't running against (Vice President Nelson) Rockefeller. He isn't running against (Maryland Sen. Charles) Mathias. He isn't running against (Illinois Sen. Charles) Percy. He's running against (Former California Gov. Ronald) Reagan."

"It's Ford vs. Reagan and I'll support him down the line," Schweiker said. "If Ford got out of the race, that's another ball game."

"I'm going to reserve my options on what I'm going to do if Reagan is the nominee," he said, calling Reagan "probably more pragmatic and more articulate than Goldwater." Despite his credentials as a popular, labor-backed senator from a major industrial state, Schweiker's name is missing from speculative lists of possible vice presidential nominees. "I think anybody would be interested if he was asked," Schweiker said, "but I probably wouldn't be asked."

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

Most good used cars, if they're guaranteed at all, are only covered for a month or two. At Tarheel Toyota, we're just as willing to back our good used cars as our good new cars. So we guarantee the motor, transmission and rear end for 12 months or 12,000 miles. This warranty applies to all cars selling for more than $1000.00 or more on a 50-50 basis with all work being done in our shop. It doesn't apply to all sports cars, high performance engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). If you're in the market for a BETTER USED CAR, COME OUT AND LOOK AT OURS. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. (Owner's name furnished upon request.)

Houses For Sale

RESIDENTIAL

COUNTRY BOY AT HEART?
 YOU'LL LOVE THIS!
 There's not another house like this one. Unique in design and just filled with living space. Four large bedrooms, 3 1/2 baths, living and dining rooms, double garage, fireplace, plenty of closets, double garage, terrapane windows, and situated on two acres wooded lot. You can't beat this for country living at its best! 70's
LET ME GIVE IT TO YOU STRAIGHT!
 We could raise the cost if you want the prestige of paying a big price for a home in the "in" neighborhood. But why do that when you can purchase all you'd ever want in a house for a reasonable sum. It has the normal living and dining rooms, eat in kitchen, den with fireplace, 3 bedrooms and 2 baths, double garage and sits on a beautiful wooded lot. The price is only $86,000. By the way, it's located in Lynn, date.

WANT A HOME IN THE COUNTRY?
 But don't want the long drive? This is just outside of town and it's less than a year old. Two story Colonial is immaculate in every detail. There's plenty of room for the large family in 4 bedrooms, 3 1/2 baths, living and dining rooms, large den with fireplace, double garage, and den with fireplace, double garage, and den with fireplace. Lot is 150 x 200 so there's plenty of room. You must see it — 880's.

EXCLUSIVE LISTING
 With our agency on this large 3 bedroom home with 2 full ceramic baths, foyer, living room and dining room, family room with fireplace and new carpet. Beautiful hardwood floors throughout. Storage and car carport. This one won't last long because you only need $6,700 to assume present loan.

JAWS
 May be one heck of a fish story but this home is one whole of a buy! 4 bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths give you room for the growing family. Formal living room, kitchen, dining room, and den with fireplace, double garage, and den with fireplace. Lot is 150 x 200 so there's plenty of room. You must see it — 880's.

CLASS AND CORNER (Lot, that is, CLEAN!) It's new and CLUB PINES. Authentic Williamsburg that's full of living space. 4 bedrooms, fashionable living-den, lovely dark stained floor highlights the dining room and large kitchen overflowing with cabinets and storage space. Add two sparkling baths, garage, trees to finish out this magnificent home. $97,500.

WANT ECONOMY?
 Don't continue to support your landlord when you can be making a valuable investment. Buy one of these homes and start building equity and enjoy a big tax savings on your own home. Both homes have living room, kitchen/dining combination, 3 bedrooms and 1 1/2 baths and garage. Priced at only $68,500 and includes closing cost and points.

ARE YOU ALL CRAMMED TOGETHER?
 Take a few minutes to look at this three bedroom house in the choice area of Club Pines. Lovely tree covered lot, enhances the beauty of this L-shaped ranch. Formal living room, kitchen with dining area, large den and two baths. Double garage. $43,500.

REDUCED TO SELL
 The price can't be beat on this one. It's just right for the growing family and there's a nice deep lot for the kids to play, a garden or whatever you need. 3 bedrooms, 1 1/2 baths, living room, kitchen/dining combination, utility and garage. $25,500.

ROOM-A-TISM
 Need room to roam? This beauty is sitting right in the middle of three acres. If you're the one who has called about a house with a big den then this is for you. Is 30 x 30 large enough? All rooms are extra large. There are four bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, formal dining. $85,000.

Singapore Is Building City Of The Future—Today

By JOSEPH GALLOWAY
SINGAPORE (UPI) — The city of the future may be abounding in the Singapore of today.

While other of the world's unmanageable metropolitan jungles talk about air pollution, traffic congestion, crime waves, filthy streets, skyrocketing birth rates and rat-ridden slums, Singapore is acting.

Singapore had no time for talking — no time for blueribbon white papers written by concerned suburbanites unanimously agreeing that someone ought to do something about the city's plight.

Singapore is a 225-square-mile city-state surrounded by water. It has no suburbs from which planners can study the concrete jungle in comfort and safety.

Those who plan must live with their successes and their failures — and as a consequence they tend to have a stunning rate of success.

Singapore has one other asset in tough, no-nonsense Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew, a Cambridge-educated lawyer who demands and gets integrity and results from his bureaucracy.

The island republic in the mid-1950's was a fairly sleepy, dingy tropical outpost of British colonialism with the normal diseases, problems and crimes automatically associated with the rabbit warrens of tiny two- and three-story shop-houses that were the heart of the city and home to hundreds of thousands.

In 1960 Singapore launched the world's most ambitious program of constructing subsidized public housing.

By 1975 half of the city's 2.2 million people lived in a total of 234,488 apartment units in hundreds of high-rise blocks. By 1980 Singapore intends to have 75 per cent of the population sheltered in public housing.

The public housing flats — rented at low controlled rates or purchased outright for from $8,000 up — may not win any architectural prizes. But they beat 12-in-a-room all to hell and few complaints are heard.

The next major concern was to clamp a lid on a birthrate high enough to render all planning and progress useless.

In just over a decade Singapore's birth rate was chopped from an average of over four children per family to the present 2.2. This was achieved in spite of big-family traditions and religious scruples of the Chinese, Malay and Indian racial stocks which make up most of the island's population.

It was done through intensive public education, free contraceptives and a skillful use of incentives and disincentives including hospital maternity charges that escalate sharply after two births, income tax deductions that fall sharply after the second child, and reserved places at the best educational institutions for the children of parents who agree to sterilization after the second child is born.

S. Sundran, a technical college lecturer in his 30's, and his wife waited seven years to have their first child.

"I don't think we are going to have any more babies for a long time...maybe never," he said. "The rising cost of living has awakened a lot of people to the need to limit family size."

Last year the punch was officially aimed at the owners of private automobiles.

With Asia's second highest per capita annual income, Singapore citizens had come to look on ownership of a car as a matter of course and the island's streets and highways were nearing the saturation point.

The 1974 oil crisis and drastic price increases were instantly passed along to Singapore consumers in the form of $1.50 a gallon for gasoline.

The government kicked off 1975 with stunning increases in the annual road tax on private cars which escalates sharply according to the size of the auto engine.

This was coupled with a novel system that declared the central business district a restricted zone. Cars and taxis entering the zone during morning rush hours were required to display a special tax permit costing $1 per day.

Car pool vehicles carrying at least four persons were exempted from the tax and special commuter car parks were established on the fringes of the zone with mini-buses ferrying workers on into the business district.

Overnight it reduced rush-hour traffic by nearly 50 per cent.

The government greeted 1975 with even more bad news for the motorist — higher road taxes, a surcharge on vehicles over 10 years old and a staggering 150 per cent duty and tax on new cars.

The owner of a standard Ford today pays an annual road tax of $1,250 and the lucky (?) owner of a Mercedes Benz 600 pays a tax of $2,100 annually.

THIS IS SINGAPORE—While other of the world's metropolitan jungles talk to problems, Singapore is acting. The world's most ambitious public housing program was begun by the city in 1960. (UPI Photo)

If the car is 15 years old, add 50 per cent, and if you drive it downtown to work, add $35 a month.

Singaporeans are taking to car pools and public buses by the droves.

Sundran has kept his small car mainly because he figures it's too much trouble to haul around a small baby, diapers and milk bottles on public buses.

"I will give up motoring when my child is old enough to ride the bus without all the stuff that has to go with him now," Sundran said.

"There's no question of whether the high road tax is justified or not," he said. "In our small island we have to improve the quality of life by discouraging car growth."

All right. You build a model city with model housing and quiet streets. But criminals are always within the city, feeding off the innocent. What about them?

In 1975 Singapore had a total of 49 murders — down from 1973's 72 murders. There were 1,364 robberies, down from 1971's total of 2,182.

Singapore hangs murderers, big-time drug peddlers and manufacturers, robbers who use a gun during commission of a crime, and people who sell firearms.

Offenders who harm their victims are invariably sentenced to stiff jail sentences accompanied by corporal punishment.

From the old British colonial codes Singapore inherited a statute that permitted the courts to impose sentences of a specified number of strokes of the rotan — a long supple cane — and it has applied both the statute and the cane with a vengeance.

Those who lay a violent hand on a peaceful citizen face a stiff prison sentence and will carry a latticework of scars on their backs for the rest of their lives.

Under the 1976 drug law, any person found in possession of more than 15 grams of heroin or 30 grams of morphine is presumed to be trafficking in drugs and is subject to the death penalty.

Possession of half an ounce of marijuana is presumption of trafficking and subject to up to 20 years in prison and 10 strokes of the cane.

And just as a small afterthought, Singapore law provides for a fine of up to $200 for smoking in an elevator or public theatre and a similar fine for dropping a cigarette butt or candy wrapper on a public street.

"The tough laws against crimes and drugs are quite justified," said Ngo Tiong San, a 39-year-old schoolteacher.

"Being a teacher I should know. The drug peddlers even invade the schools to push their cruel trade."

Singapore's citizens have a lot of discipline imposed on them but they walk the streets of a clean liveable, city with little fear that the next man they meet is anything else but another law-abiding citizen.

All of this has meant change for the people of Singapore — a change of old ways and recent dreams.

It has been accepted quietly as the price they pay for a city-state that works.

Retarded Are Kept In The Community

TORONTO (AP) — A nursery school which opened last September represents a major breakthrough in situating such a facility for retarded children within the public school system.

Briarcrest, according to a spokesman for the Metro Toronto Association for the Mentally Retarded (MTAMR) provides an opportunity for retarded youngsters to attend school in their community and be part of the school environment of other neighborhood children.

Lina Sisto, whose 4-year-old son Michael attends Briarcrest, said she's seen an improvement in her son since he started at the school five months ago.

"He can pick up a small glass and drink and he's not nearly so sloppy," she said. "He'll pick up his toys and put them away, or arrange them and then be able to put them all back in the box. The children really improve at Briarcrest."

The program looks after children from 2 to 4 years old and, says Shirley Des Islet, chairman for the preschool education committee of MTAMR, its effectiveness has already been proven.

The school has four rooms where 16 students learn gross motor skills such as climbing, riding trikes and kicking a ball.

They also master fine motor skills when they learn to use their hands in order to play with table toys and the social skill of feeding themselves.

There are two teachers, two assistants and between 10 and 12 volunteers working with the children.

Freda Hannah, director of the preschool education program, is a registered nurse. She is an ex-volunteer who has taught mentally retarded children.

"We combine our program with home visits in the afternoon," she said. When children go to the school, part of their assessment includes working through a checklist of skills an average 2-year-old learns and masters from birth.

"This includes things like dressing themselves, or perhaps drinking from a cup," she said. "When we find youngsters who have missed one of these steps, then we have methods to help them learn whatever it is they've skipped."

She said that the methods, usually a matter of following a simple sequence of steps, can also be taught by parents.

"Some of the visits made to children's homes in the afternoon are a follow-up when we can show parents how they can extend their children's learning process when they're not at nursery school."

Mrs. Hannah hopes that in the future a parent program can be developed so that families can become mutually supportive and also raise money for needed equipment.

Four Women On City Rescue Squad

By BETTY HATCH
Reflector Staff Writer

It hasn't been that many years since women met with discouragement when they wanted to become doctors rather than nurses. Today women are not only becoming physicians, but they are taking it a step further—they are becoming fully accredited members of city rescue squads.

Greenville now has four women on its Rescue Squad, having recently lost Sharon Atwell to the U.S. Army Nurse Corps. The current members are Joyce Hardee, a registered nurse in Pitt Memorial's Intensive Surgical Unit, Mary Olchovik, an ECU nursing student, Patty Little, a licensed practical nurse and registered nurse serving in the Emergency Room at Pitt Memorial and Mable Wolcott, a local homemaker.

Sharon and Mary were the first women to become members of the Greenville Rescue Squad. They joined in November, 1974, after taking the required Emergency Medical Technician course. Both were then ECU nursing students and had been approached by male squad members with the possibility of joining.

Some static resulted at first, according to Sharon, especially when it came to physical labor, but they were soon accepted as part of the group.

"They pretty much treat me like one of the boys now," said Sharon recently. Mary echoed that statement: "I think everybody is really satisfied with our work." Some problems did arise.

Female volunteers are not allowed to be in the building all night with their male counterparts, so special hours were set up. Women are generally given assignments from 5-12 p.m. on weeknights and 12 noon to 12 p.m. on weekends, while men may be assigned to all-night duties. They usually work one or two nights a month, sometimes more or even less. Also, the women do not have separate bathroom or cooking facilities.

"I feel good about being a qualified member of the Rescue Squad," Sharon remarked. "We enjoy it. If we didn't, we wouldn't keep going. It is very rewarding."

"I love it," said Mary. "I hope to go into emergency-type nursing. And the men are very helpful. They love to talk about their work."

Patty and Joyce joined next, and the four women participated in a state rescue competition sponsored by the N.C. Association of Rescue Squads in September, 1975. Mary and Patty set a precedent, being the first women to ever compete on a heavy duty rescue team in the competition. The Greenville heavy duty team placed second, but the first aid team did not place. Sharon was first aid co-captain, and Joyce was a member of the team.

"They're pretty easy to work with," said Joyce of the men on the squad. "The Greenville Rescue Squad is the best in the state."

True Emergency

It is a phase of emergency care much different from working in the Emergency Room," Joyce explained. "In the Emergency Room you have everything that is needed and you are protected in your own little heaven. Squad work is 'in the raw'. It's always rewarding to go out and help someone on a true emergency."

Patty described her work with the squad as being "more challenging" than nursing.

"Emergency Room care is a very challenging type of work in a stress situation," she said. "Rescue work is another phase of this challenge. I'm there to help."

The male squad members are easy to work with, in her opinion. "They seem to respect the fact that I have had some experience with nursing and emergency care. They respect us as women and team workers. We all develop one-to-one relationships with patients."

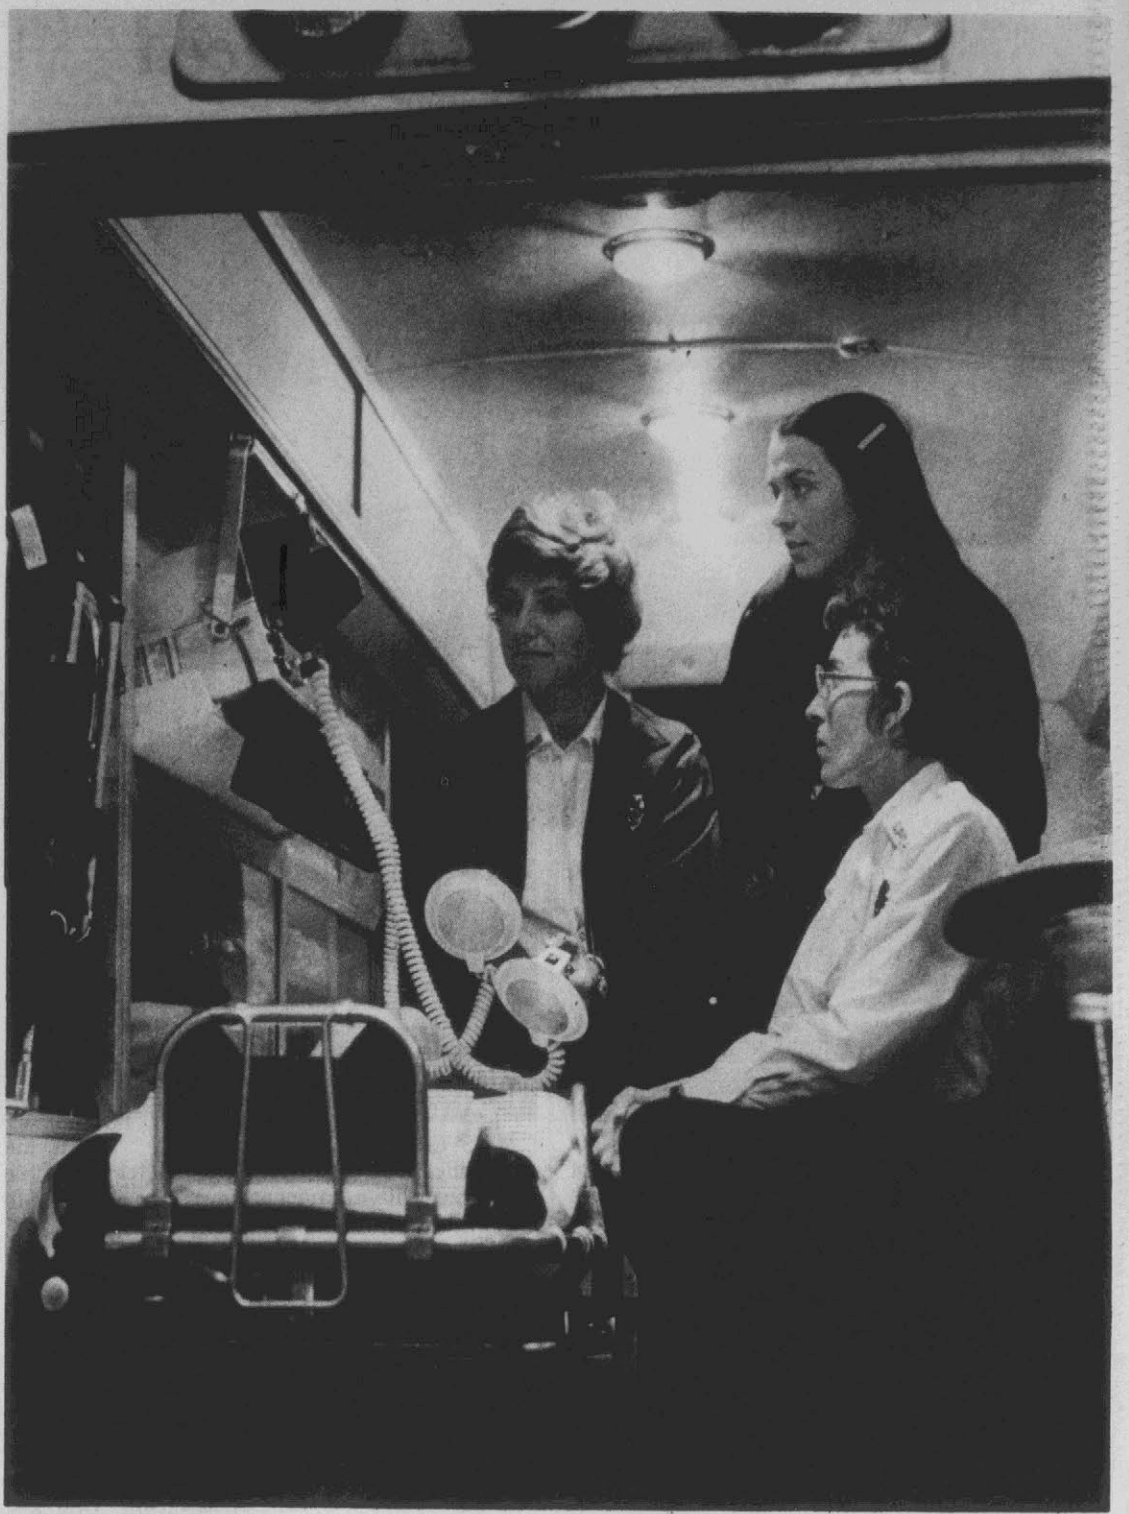

"It is something I have always wanted to do," she added. Patty got interested in the Rescue Squad through ambulance attendance work with the Emergency Room. When she found out women had been allowed to join, she followed suit and became a member, too.

The newest member is Mable Wolcott, who joined in October, 1975. She says the men are "the most considerate group of men I have ever worked with" and she really enjoys the work.

She explained her reason for joining. "My children are all grown up and I was looking for some kind of service organization. I'm not much on women's groups."

"I'll stay on as long as they'll have me or as long as I'm capable of doing the work."

She said she would encourage women to participate in this type of work, adding that "there are times when a woman is more valuable" in an emergency situation.

Mable also recommended the EMT course to anyone, whether or not they are interested in rescue work. It is available through Pitt Technical Institute. Mable is the only one of the women without previous nursing or emergency experience, and so far is the only one who has not pursued a related career. Sharon ended her duties as charge nurse on the night shift of Pitt Memorial's Emergency Room when the U.S. Army Nurse Corps called her to active duty. Mary will soon graduate with a nursing degree from ECU and plans to go into the emergency nursing area. Joyce recently left a job with a doctor's office to work with the "delicate cases" of the Intensive Surgical Unit who were formerly sent to other hospitals such as the Duke Medical Center; she had previously worked in the Emergency Room for three years and had "missed the routine." Patty has worked in the Emergency Room since 1969 and enjoys emergency care nursing.

The women come from different areas. Sharon is from Annapolis, Md. Mary hails from Fayetteville. Patty was born in Albuquerque, N.M., and did her LPN training there. Joyce is

In UNC-G Program

Students Train To Teach The Deaf

By DAVID KINNEY
UNC-G News Bureau

GREENSBORO—It was a noisy classroom, as classrooms go. Students punctuated their motions with sharp cries, yelling for attention when they raised their hands. But that was good, not bad.

The teachers themselves never said a word—except with their hands—unless it was to one another.

Miss Beverly Barnett, young and pretty, talked to one of her students. Her fingers flew. They danced. The boy, his eyes locked on the moving digits, grinned and nodded.

A Greensboro native and senior at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, Miss Barnett is practice-teaching in a school near her hometown. But the school is unlike any she attended growing up. There everyone could hear.

But for students at N.C. Central School for the Deaf, located just northeast of the city, the loudest noise is only a whisper.

Miss Barnett came to UNC-G four years ago as a biology major. She will graduate this spring as the first recipient of the University's bachelor of science degree in education of the deaf.

The new degree program received final approval in early November, about two months after Central School for the Deaf opened. UNC-G became the third institution of higher learning in the state teaching teachers of the deaf.

The other two colleges—Lenoir Rhyne and Atlantic Christian—are located near the state schools for the deaf in Morganton and Wilson.

"We've had students in this program for several years now, but they've been in it at their own risk," explained Dr. Richard F. Dixon, director of the Division of Speech Pathology and Audiology in UNC-G's Department of Drama and Speech.

"In the past, we couldn't give them the complete training program to finish their work. When the school opened here, this gave us the practice-teaching facility we needed."

Approximately 20 students are majoring in education of the deaf at UNC-G. Dixon said the division is investigating the possibility of initiating a graduate program in the field. If this comes about, the Greensboro institution will be the first school in the state to offer such a program.

There is a trend growing across the state to set up classes for students with impaired hearing within the public school systems, and Dixon noted Central School for the Deaf won't be the only facility used in the program.

"But it would be almost impossible to provide this training without it," he added.

Neil F. Lowell has been hired to coordinate the program. He came to UNC-G from Wisconsin School for the Deaf, where he was principal. Prior to that, he worked as director of training programs for teachers of the deaf at the University of Wisconsin at Stephen's Point.

Lowell holds a master's degree in educational administration from California State University at Northridge. He has also studied at Gorham Teachers College in Maine, Massachusetts' Clarke School for the Deaf, the University of Maine and Gallaudet College for the Deaf in Washington, D.C.

In addition to the professional courses required for state teaching certification, students majoring in the new degree program must learn special techniques—such as sign language—required to reach children with impaired hearing.

"Everything has to be visual for these children," Miss Barnett reported. "You really have to gear everything visually. When deaf children look away, you've had it."

Before she began working with audio-impaired children, Miss Barnett never had any experiences with deaf people.

"In my freshman year I found out I had a partial hearing loss in one ear," she noted. "That's one reason I attended a meeting of the University Speech and Hearing Association where a woman told about volunteers being needed at a pre-school program for deaf children in the city."

She became a volunteer and "really loved it." Then she decided to become a teacher of the deaf and went to see Dixon. Once Central School for the Deaf opened in September, Miss Barnett began going there twice a week as part of her teaching methods course. This semester she spends half of each weekday getting practical teaching experience there.

In addition to Dixon and Lowell, she has been influenced most by two people with whom she has worked. One is Hal Wright, the teacher in whose classroom she does her practice-teaching. The other is Mrs. Doris Stewart, a 42-year-old mother of six who has come to UNC-G to earn a degree.

Both Wright and Mrs. Stewart are deaf.

"If I were a deaf person, both Hal and Doris would be an inspiration," she stated.

"I think that's something I learned this semester. Deaf persons are real people. They just can't hear, that's all."

Engagements Announced

MISS BARBARA ANN HAVERTY . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Page Haverty of New York City, who announce her engagement to Charles Jefferson Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Walker of Walpole, Mass. The wedding will take place April 17.

MISS GLORIA FAYE MCGOWAN . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Morris McGowan of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Charles Edwin McDonald III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edwin McDonald II of Richmond, Va. The wedding will take place in June.

from Winterville. Mable lives in Greenville with her husband, Edwin M. Wolcott, Jr.; their last home was in Skaneateles, N.Y., and she was born in Mexico, N.Y.

Sharon and Mary did not seem particularly impressed with the fact that they were the first women on the Greenville Rescue Squad. Mary and Patty were equally unconcerned about being the first women in the state heavy duty team competition. The general attitude of all the women seems to be that they enjoy the work, and are proud of each other and their contributions.

A Great Help
"They're a great help to us," said Lt. Mike Branch about the women. Branch was the one who asked Mary and Sharon if they would be interested in joining the squad, after he had met them while accompanying a friend to the same EMT course the two women were attending.

"We're proud of our squad," Branch noted. "Everybody works hard. The women have enjoyed it."

Branch added that women are not restricted to duty from 5-12 p.m., although they must be out of the building by midnight. They can serve any time during the day after 8 a.m., as long as they have on their uniforms. They work with about 25 other volunteers and seven paid personnel, and have not had any problems simply because they are female.

"They work well together," he said of the squad members. "It is a business relationship."

One serious problem for the squad, according to Joyce, is that squad personnel are not allowed to make complete use of the cardiac unit on the truck.

"We put electrodes on the patient's chest," she explained. "These monitor the heartbeat. If the heart stops, we see it on a readout. There is a button we could push for an electric charge to the heart, but we can't use it. It could save a life, and once we needed it. The machine is going to go to waste. She said most of the public is not aware that the squad has such a machine."

In order for rescue squad members to use the defibrillator, however, they must undergo an intensive training program and be certified by the State Board of Medical Examiners.

For them to receive the necessary training, Pitt Memorial Hospital must agree (both administrative and medical staffs) to sponsor the required Mobile Intensive Care Technician training, then operate a mobile intensive care program at the hospital.

ECU Club To Meet Monday

The East Carolina University Club will hold its monthly meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Mendenhall Student Center, room 244.

This month's activity will be a blind auction with proceeds going towards the scholarship fund. Members are asked to bring items for the auction as this will be the last fund raising event for the current year.

Members are asked to bring their questionnaire to the meeting if it has not been turned in.

Progress may bring that needed consent, just as it has already brought a new aspect of life to five Greenville women. All five have praised the Rescue Squad for its contributions to their lives as well as the lives of local citizens. They respect their male co-workers and get respect in return. They enjoy their work despite hardships or moments of disappointment. And they are making a path for others into a world where women are encouraged to use their talents to the fullest.

Tommy Gladson, Graham Dempsey, Curtis Evans, Michael Dyer, Myron Brown, Gary Corda and Lee Hawley toured the Burroughs Welcome plant Wednesday. The students are members of the Burroughs Welcome Explorers Post Number 160. The club has participated in several projects during the year.

Members of the Health Careers Club visited the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center to observe the works and conditions of the center. Jamie Lesharnsky, Jackie Robinson, Jan Pulley, Vicki Howard, Rita Ross, Liz Brance, Tina Longnecker, and Eva Pittman attended the tour.

The club is designed to allow students interested in a future health career to become acquainted with the different opportunities in the field and to develop an elementary medical

The political fever appears to have arrived on the Rose High campus this spring. An amendment to the school constitution was proposed by the Student Government Association calling for the election of homeroom representatives in the spring rather than in the fall.

Voting was held Thursday after the students were allowed to hear speeches on the proposition for several days.

Varsity football players were invited to a supper by the Greenville Jaycees. Approximately 60 athletes attended the Rose High football appreciation night. The supper was a reward for the team's effort in producing a fantastic season.

Contest Winner
Winners of the logo art contest sponsored by the Greenville Sports Club were announced at the first of the week. Elaine Nichol's art work was chosen to represent the local organization. Also recognized for the excellence of their designs were Kelly Graham, Pat Pleasant and Lisa Clark.

Accidents Rise As Spring Nears

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

As spring nears, the emergency hospital business picks up. And it is not all confined to removing fish hooks from thumbs and ears. A lot of the patients are eager do-it-yourselfers who injure hands, eyes, face, scalp, and suffer broken bones.

At the first warm breeze, many people rush outdoors to take their stations at weeding, sawing, digging and construction points. It has been a long wait. And the economy has driven many inexperienced do-it-yourselfers outdoors to do their own chores.

A lot of booby traps can put a crimp into the idea, especially for those who are not protected with eye shields, hats, heavy gloves. One woman bent down to pick up a soda bottle that had been tossed into her front yard and got a bad gash in her hand. The bottle had not looked as if it were broken. A young man painting a house was bitten badly on the face by wasps.

An old ladder was the cause of another accident. A man trying to get a little more use out of it — he couldn't afford a new one, he said — broke his hip when he fell 10 feet.

Many women are trying to use the new lighter chain saws and other tools, and often their hands aren't big enough to handle the tools properly. Last year even experienced farmers with rugged hands suffered a number of accidents with chain saws, as one medical meeting revealed. In many instances the chain saws had recoiled and severely cut their faces, injured their eyes and heads. Doctors estimated that at least 200 people were treated for injuries and many had plastic surgery.

Some people simply do not read directions and some directions may not be adequate. Some people borrow tools and do not receive any instruction from the owners. Good safety advice includes wearing face shields, safety glasses and even helmets.

High-powered tools aren't the only cause of accidents. Helmets may be needed in using some hand tools, suggests the Hand Tool Institute, which advises wearing safety goggles for some jobs. Many accidents occur in the facial area — the hammer is often used at eye level, they point out.

Even hammering techniques need rules. The proper tool should be used for a particular job, instead of picking up any tool that is handy. You wouldn't use a sledge hammer to put a tack in the wall so why use a claw on a wedge to try to split a log? It has been done.

Take a good look at your tools — hammer, chisels, wedges, whatever. An old worn hammer used on a worn chisel creates a hazard. A chip from a fragment of a worn chisel might cause eye injury.

The institute suggests replacing a tool if the striking part is battered and keeping blades and points of tools sharpened to the proper angle. And one shouldn't try to get a little more mileage out of a hammer with a loose handle. It can cause accidents.

There are different hammers for different jobs, it is explained. If you are installing furring strips with masonry nails into concrete, a hand drilling hammer is used. In panelling, claw or nail hammers are best for driving common nails, finishing nails and even nail sets.

And even the family cook may need a little education before the formal opening of the backyard. Often a bowl of hamburger will be left sitting on a barbecue for hours while the chef says "come and get it, when you are ready." If you aren't ready right away, perhaps you shouldn't eat it at all. The outdoor party table is a potential bacteria carrier, as the Department of Agriculture has advised. Hot foods, seafood, poultry, meat, beans, eggs, cheese and other dairy produce shouldn't be put outdoors too soon. Food should be kept heated in chafing dishes outdoors or even in the oven indoors. Warming units with small candles may not produce enough heat.

Foods such as cream pies and other desserts made with eggs, milk and cream as well as salads made with seafood, poultry or red meat should be served directly from the refrigerator and even then, if possible, the bowls should be put into cracked ice. Hot or cold food should not be kept at room temperature for more than 2 or 3 hours. Set limited quantities of food and then refill serving dishes as time passes, the experts suggest.

Extravagant Hosts Never Invited Out

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: What has happened to good manners? My husband and I have a lovely large home, and we love to entertain, but our friends do not know the meaning of the word "reciprocate."

We've had elegant sit-down dinner parties, small brunches, outdoor barbecues, cocktail parties and buffets, but we're never invited to our guests' homes. Why?

We've lived in a number of towns and have always had our invitations reciprocated, but in Los Angeles, it's different.

We enjoy being with people, and we realize that some of them can't afford to entertain the way we do, but we'd be satisfied to accept an invitation for coffee and cake. After all, it's the people, not the refreshments, that make the party.

DEAR LEFT OUT: I am not defending those who accept invitations and fail to reciprocate, but I suspect that you entertain so lavishly that your guests feel inadequate to entertain you on the same grand scale and therefore make no effort to entertain you at all. Try having smaller groups for coffee, cake and conversation, and see what happens.

DEAR ABBY: My grandmother belongs to a senior citizens group. She told me that she met a very nice woman at this group who has a grandson she thinks I ought to meet.

Even though I told my grandmother that I can take care of my own social life, she went ahead and gave my telephone number to this woman to give to her grandson. He hasn't called yet, but he might.

Is there any way I can prevent my grandmother from doing this again? I don't think it's right for other people to make MY business their business. I'm 21 and can choose my own friends.

NEEDS NO HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Don't make a federal case out of it. If someone calls as a result of your grandmother's "help" and you don't want to meet him, tell him you're not available. Unless you're already involved with someone, why not meet him for coffee? You could be passing up a gem.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years many of our neighbors have gotten married, and on every wedding invitation it says, "No children."

We kids who are not invited are very disgusted. We need to have fun, too.

What do you think of those people? We think they are very unfair, and we hope you will print this so they will see it and invite us next time.

DISGUSTED IN PENNA.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Children are sometimes excluded from weddings and receptions to keep the cost and/or the noise down. Also, some receptions are held when children should be in bed. Since most weddings are the stuff of which beautiful memories are made, it's unfortunate that more children can't witness them.

Patient Circle Holds Meeting

The Patient Circle of the King's Daughters had its meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Annie Turner.

Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, president, presided.

Miss Mary Wells introduced the Rev. R. Graham Nahouse, who presented the program. He will review the remainder of the book of Acts at the April meeting, which will be at the home of Miss Martha Lee Cowell.

Members were urged to save Campbell Soup can labels. These labels are sent to the Southwest Indian School.

The group will sponsor seven handicapped children to attend a circus being held at the Moose Lodge in the near future.

At the end of the meeting the hostess assisted by Mrs. Delphia Corbett and Mrs. Mildred Manning served refreshments.

Furniture Manufacturers Aim Sales At The Newlywed Market

By BROOKE W. KROEGER
CHICAGO (UPI) — Young people defy tradition when they buy furniture, and manufacturers and retailers are doing all they can to lure those big buying dollars.

"When you talk about a buying group you talk about an age group," says Tom Lyman, who is in charge of the American Mart. "People between the ages of 18 and 35 have the buying power now in this country. There isn't a manufacturer around who doesn't have stuff in his line pitched at this group."

The group includes many newlyweds, and a survey for "Modern Bride" magazine indicates that the number of young households in the United States is expected to increase 35 per cent between 1975 and 1985, compared with total population growth of only eight per cent.

Industry observers say these young shoppers are buying good, comfortable, easily moved furniture in natural tones and pastels.

"People today have money and can afford good furniture," Lyman said. "But what they buy is what's comfortable, what's easily moved."

Larry Russell, who owned a furniture store in a working class neighborhood of Kansas City, Kan., says he now sells better furniture than ever before.

"Even people who don't have a lot of money are buying better furniture," he said. "They buy on time, on payments, and by the time they get cheaper furniture paid for, it's shot. Better furniture doesn't make a great deal of difference on the down or monthly payments, so when they're through paying for it, at least they've got something."

Casual furniture, which once could only be found on patios or beaches, now graces living rooms in the most fashionable homes, said Sherie Van Gelder of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers in Washington.

"The trend is toward everything lighter scale, movable, modular, upholstered sectionals, collapsibles and sling chairs," she said.

Another favorite is K.D., or knockdown, assemble-it-yourself pieces, which save on shipping costs and can be moved around more easily.

Dick Butler, a color consultant formerly with Sears Roebuck Co., said young people today have a new freedom in decorating their homes.

"There is a lack of ground rules that their parents might have known," Butler said. "Young people are fed up with the plastic world and like real wood and real leather. They like plastic only to look like plastic, not plastic pretending to be wood."

Butler said earth and natural tones of the past three years still dominate color choices, but there also are more pastels: softer mauves, peach, rose, green, ivory, teal blue and aqua. "Lots of colors are influenced by the Art Deco style trend."

Michael Sainsbury, store design director for Homemakers, Chicago's largest volume dealer to the 18-to-35 market, says hardly anyone buys dining room sets any more.

"The masses no longer build large dining rooms," he said. "So young people buy a game table or an expensive dinette set at, say $565, which is a lot less than a dining room set."

He said sofa beds also are popular for their space-saving features.

"Modulars and sectionals are very popular," he said. "And sofas with huge ottomans, which can be used for storage as well as foot rests."

He said his firm has dropped its Mediterranean, Spanish-style furniture lines in favor of contemporary and colonial designs.

Nat Silverman, a spokesman for Chicago's Merchandise Mart, agreed: "One major giant casegood line, which you would normally expect to show Mediterranean and that sort of thing, brought out what they say is the largest selection of contemporary designs in their history at the January market."

Don Gott of the Fine

Hardwoods-American Walnut Association said the Bicentennial influence is growing.

"For the past 18 months, young people want only the genuine, and as much American as they can obtain. (Colonial styles) have taken over 30 per cent of the market, and that awful Bronx Mediterranean has finally been relegated to where it belongs."

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Jenkins request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Myra Elizabeth, to Frank Brown Nelson, on Sunday, March 21, at 4:00 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, Robersonville. Reception following ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

A Bicentennial heritage quilt that started as a project for the Governor's Mansion, Raleigh, has resulted in unexpected benefits in Lenoir County.

The Kinston-Lenoir County Girl Scout Neighborhood Association is having a Bicentennial tea this afternoon from 2-4 p.m. at Harmony Hall, Kinston, to present quilt patches marking the start of a Lenoir County heritage quilt.

Last spring, Mrs. James E. Holshouser asked Girl Scout Troops across the state to submit squares, symbolic of their country's heritage, for inclusion in a quilt for the guest room in the Executive Mansion.

Junior Troop 204 of Kinston selected Harmony Hall, one of the oldest buildings in Kinston, as the theme of its square, which was chosen to represent Lenoir County in the governor's quilt. The girls were asked to duplicate the square for Harmony Hall and from that suggestion, came the idea for a local heritage quilt. The quilt will be made from squares donated by members of the 35 troops and adults in the Neighborhood Association.

Other squares will show additional historical themes from Lenoir County as well as scenes that are typical of the county today. When completed, the quilt will be included in the furnishings of the Harmony Hall restoration.

Representatives from the troops will be acting as hostesses at the tea. They will discuss the history of Harmony Hall and plans for the restoration.

Nancy Lou White, a sophomore at St. Mary's College, has been selected as one of her class representatives to the Spring Festival Court.

Held in conjunction with the school's annual mother-daughter day, the festival will be held Friday, April 23, at 3:30 p.m.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Julian J. White Jr. of Greenville.

Nutrition Week Is Observed

"Improving Nutrition For The Nation — 1776 to 1976" was the theme for National Nutrition Week March 7-13.

The American Dietetic Association has adopted the Nutrition Bill of Rights and is recommending that every American have:

"the right to health through improved nutrition; the right to choose a variety of foods that provide optimum nutrition at competitive prices; and the right to be informed through adequate nutrition education as a protection against food and nutrition misinformation."

"To benefit as many as possible" is the motto of the American Dietetic Association.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Does anybody out there have a kid who wears one outfit until it falls off his back?

We've got one. You may remember him. We took him on a vacation a few years ago wearing a baseball cap with "REDS" on the bill.

"Isn't that cute?" I said to my husband.

In the restaurant, the cap lost a little of its charm. Seeing it in bed worn with his pajamas became ridiculous. And the next day as I saw him swimming in the pool in his cap, I said, "Even Johnny Bench takes his cap off sometimes."

We were to see the cap every day for the next six weeks. It never left his head. Some viewers speculated he had had brain surgery and it was covering the spot where his head was shaved. One man circulated the rumor that he was a short Communist. We were soon to discover the real truth. He was a child who just couldn't handle a decision.

At breakfast, he ate the same cereal in the same bowl in the same amount for every year of his life. He ate every meal the same way. First, he isolated all of his potatoes and ate them. Then, he marked off his meat, followed by his bread and finally desert. He never mixed them up. After a clerk had rattled off 87 delicious flavors of ice cream, he always ordered the same—vanilla.

But it was the wearing of one outfit at a time that drove me crazy. It took me awhile to figure it out. Then one morning as I saw the green brushed jeans the front head for the door I said, "Didn't you wear that yesterday?"

He nodded and added, "And the day before that!"

"Do you mean to tell me you're sweating in the same outfit three days in a row?"

"Nope. I've worn this outfit since January."

"JANUARY!"

"It's my lucky outfit and I'm doubly protected because I've been wearing my lucky underwear."

"Lucky for whom?" I asked stiffly.

It has been no small thing keeping that kid's luck laundered. I sneak in at night while he sleeps and run those threads through a complete cycle.

Yesterday, I couldn't stand it. "Look, this is ridiculous. Luck or not, you've got to wear a different outfit to school. I mean it! Get yourself back to the bedroom and put on a different pair of pants and clean shirt."

This afternoon, he came home a picture of dejection.

"What happened?" I asked.

"My teacher looked right at me and marked me absent."

Divorce Or Depression, What's First?

By DALE SINGER

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Many persons going through divorce proceedings show symptoms of depression and should seek treatment before making decisions affecting the breakup of their marriages, a psychiatrist says.

Dr. James B. Smith, a faculty member at the Washington University School of Medicine, said it is difficult to determine whether the divorce causes the depression or depression prompts persons to seek divorce.

What is clear, Smith said in an interview, is that men and women embroiled in a divorce suit are often confused, fatigued and discouraged. They must be handled with care by the persons they seek out for advice, he said.

Using names from the divorce docket in St. Louis County, Smith and Dr. C. William Briscoe interviewed 139 persons.

Spring Fashion Show Held By Club Wednesday

The Welcome Wagon Club's annual spring fashion show was presented to members and guests Wednesday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Welcome Wagon sponsors and the models presenting fashions were Susans—Dolly Mitchum, The College Shop—Bunny Powers, C. Heber Forbes—Helen Turner and Debbie Hill, Brody's—Catherine Creech, and Blount—Harvey - Peg Henderson. Children's fashions were modeled by Jennifer Feimster and Chris Swanda.

Prospective members introduced by Bernice Parker were Lillian Parker, Kathleen Milward, Beatrice Harkins, Judy Ericson, Patricia Hadder, Betty Haynes, and Eloise Starling.

The casino night party originally scheduled for March has been changed to April 3 at 8 p.m. at the Candlewick Inn. For reservations contact Mary McPherson, 756-3405, or Lisa Kannen, 758-0383.

The Share-A-Craft group will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Art Shop and Gallery on Dickinson Ave. The program will be Paint With John Wallace in Acrylics. Interested members should contact Pat Swanda, 756-4038, or Mrs. Kannen for more information.

The Bienvenue Book Club will meet Wednesday at 1 p.m. in the home of Eleanor Holstius. Gad-A-Bouts will not be meeting this month.

On Thursday, April 29, a bridge benefit will be held in the fellowship hall of Jarvis Methodist Church. Tickets may be purchased from Ruth Duffus or JoAnn Goodman.

The board meeting will be March 24 to 10 a.m. in the home of Judy Feimster. Any Welcome Wagon Club member is invited to attend.

The first paint prepared from standard formula for floors, woodwork, furniture, walls, etc., was manufactured by the Sherwin-Williams Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, in 1880.

They found that 75 per cent of the women and 67 per cent of the men showed symptoms of depression.

The interviews revealed past feelings of despondency and self-pity, problems with sleeping and eating, a tendency to blame others for feelings of depression and even death wishes — all commonly accepted signs of depression.

Smith said these are not just normal feelings of being down in the dumps. They are more serious than every-day blues and should be treated.

"Our feeling is that these people often have depression, but it's never really recognized," he said. "They feel bad, but their feelings are not diagnosed as depression, and they're not referred for treatment."

Smith said research showed that depression more generally is found in broken marriages of longer duration, and that in those cases, adultery was likely to be one of the grounds for divorce.

The study also indicated women more often had their depression at the time of separation, while men were more often depressed at the time of the divorce.

Smith said the reasons behind these findings are elusive, just as the causes for depression in general often are hard to determine.

"There is a lot of controversy on whether depression is a reaction to a specific event or a series of events," he said.

In the case of divorce, it is not clear whether the depression is a response to the trauma of the marriage breaking up or the result of a long history of marital turmoil.

"We feel that regardless of the specific cause, the significant thing is to see that the depression is treated, so the individual can make a proper decision," Smith said. "A frequent symptom of depression is that judgments or decisions are difficult to make."

Those giving professional advice also should be aware of the problem, he said.

"We ended up feeling that whoever it is who deals with people at the time of divorce — lawyers, psychiatrists, clergymen or counselors — should be tuned in to the fact that there is a good chance there is an emotional illness present, and it should be treated," Smith said.

Euthanasia, or "mercy-killing," is not yet accepted fully by the majority of persons in our society, but it is significantly gaining approval, says an East Carolina University sociologist.

Dr. Donald Stewart, an associate professor of sociology at ECU who has studied attitudes toward euthanasia, discussed his findings at a recent Alpha Kappa Delta research symposium in Richmond, Va.

"A dictionary definition of euthanasia is 'the act of putting to death painlessly a person suffering from a painful and incurable disease,'" said Stewart.

Euthanasia and other types of "putting to death" has been openly practiced by many societies, he said.

"Infanticide has existed as a means of population control in many cultures. In some pre-literate migratory groups, the ages were abandoned or killed outright, and this was expected, if not approved, by the elderly."

Even in modern western nations, euthanasia is widely practiced upon ages patients, as reported by Simone de Beauvoir in "The Coming of Age," he said.

Dr. Stewart pointed out a complex ambivalence toward euthanasia in the U.S.: while it is illegal, it is not infrequently carried out by medical personnel with the consent of the patient or the patient's family. Most euthanasia of this type is unreported, but occasionally a "mercy killer" is arrested. However, court action usually results in acquittal or a light sentence, unlike other forms of homicide.

Euthanasia is often made possible by the fact that a bedridden patient may contract pneumonia, and if the hospital staff purposely neglects to treat the pneumonia, the patient dies sooner, he said. This is "negative" or "passive" euthanasia, the term applied to a failure by medical personnel to take "heroic measures" to pro long life, thus allowing death to occur naturally. "Active" euthanasia is the deliberate termination of life.

Dr. Stewart believes many seriously deformed infants are euthanized soon after birth.

"The number of such cases cannot be known, but the evidence indicates that this number is considerable," he said.

Dr. Stewart recently directed a survey of a cross-section of North Carolinians regarding their thoughts on euthanasia as a means to end the lives of three chief categories of hopelessly ill persons: deformed infants, the seriously injured of any age, and the elderly who suffer from terminal illness.

Forty-one percent agreed that euthanasia should be practiced in all three cases, 32 percent disagreed with all three, and 27 percent disagreed with one or two of the categories, most often drawing the line at euthanizing deformed infants.

"Infanticide appeared to be the most unpopular form of euthanasia," Stewart says.

"Data from the interviews indicated that at least some persons had the idea that medical technology might someday develop remedies for the deformed infant."

Age was noted as an important characteristic of each opinion group. Pro-euthanasia people represented a median age of 35 years, and the "anti" group's median age was 54. Forty-eight was the median age for the mixed group.

Those most likely to be anti-euthanasia were not only older, but less educated and professed strong religious beliefs, particularly Roman Catholic. The sex of the individuals surveyed did not seem to influence opinion on euthanasia.

He believes that most governments will eventually permit the practice of euthanasia but that new legislation is not the most workable means of legalization.

"In this nation, a Supreme Court decision, such as the 1973 ruling which effectively legalized abortion, is the easiest way to legalize euthanasia," said Stewart. "Public opinion is rising in its favor, according to national and regional polls taken during the past 15 years. A decisive court ruling will one day reflect this increasing approval."

Regional Science Fair Details Are Announced

The annual Eastern Regional Science Fair for high school science students has been scheduled Friday, March 26, on campus.

the East Carolina University Department of Science

The fair will be coordinated by James D. Nicholson of the ECU

Department of Science Education and will feature four divisions: technological sciences, biological science, physical science and earth science.

Each division will be divided into junior and senior levels. Teachers and students interested in exhibiting student projects in the fair should write Nicholson for more information and entry blanks. All entries must be registered by March 24.

Senior level projects must be presented by one person only, and junior level projects may be presented by one, two or three people. No gas or running water can be supplied, and dangerous chemicals, open flames, explosives or poisonous reptiles will not be accepted for exhibits.

In addition, no starvation experiments on animals or anything involving cruelty to animals will be accepted.

Nicholson noted that permission to exhibit may be refused for reasons of safety, sanitation or the best interests of the fair.

All fair exhibits will be on display in ECU's Minges Coliseum. Prizes will be awarded for the best exhibits in each division.

Campus Minister For ECU Resigning

Rev. John N. Miller, Presbyterian Campus Minister for ECU, has resigned from the position after six years. He is to be installed on April 21 as pastor of the Laurel Hill Presbyterian Church near Laurinburg.

Miller, a native of Charlotte, has directed the program at "The Den," Presbyterian Center at East Ninth and James Sts., since October, 1969. Miller said The Den will remain open for student and staff activities.

While at ECU, Miller served as a member of the Campus Ministers Association. He participated in many student discussions and activities, and was a member of the Family Life Conference Planning Committee.

At the Presbyterian Center, Miller's program included Sunday and Tuesday groups, Bible and Greek study, Couples Club, hospitality to International Students, and personal counseling.

Miller's successor for the Presbyterian Campus Minister post has not been announced.

Mrs. Miller is the former Dowdy Hardy of Lenoir County. The Millers have two sons, John, Jr., a student at UNC-Chapel Hill, and Ben, a student at Rose High.

Nuclear Plants Big Providers

HOUSTON (UPI) — Almost 60 nuclear power generating stations provided 121 billion kilowatt hours of electricity in 1975, according to the Atomic Industrial Forum, Inc.

Those kilowatt hours represented 8.5 per cent of all commercial electricity in the United States. It would have taken 40 million tons of coal or 7.5 billion gallons of oil to produce the same amount of electricity.

In addition to the nearly 60 nuclear power reactors operating, 70 more are under construction and 100 others are planned, the Atomic Industrial Forum said.

'Guidelines' On TV-Watching

DALLAS (AP) — "Watching television is the second-largest activity in our children's lives, second only to sleep," says child psychologist Virginia Chancey, urging parents to recognize TV as a major fact of life.

"The latest figures show children spending 6 1/2 hours a day, seven days a week, looking at TV — 50 per cent more time than they spend in school," Mrs. Chancey points out. "We must deal with TV as a vital part of who we are, and how we live."

Television can increase family closeness and communication, believes Mrs. Chancey, an assistant professor of psychology at Southern Methodist University and a consultant for many children's services.

She offered guidelines for parents at a recent conference on children and television here. The conference was presented by SMU and "Big Blue Marble," the award-winning television series for children sponsored by International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

"I'm not suggesting a set of specific rules," Mrs. Chancey cautions. "That's because I think, for example, we make a mistake if we relegate TV to being primarily a source of rewards and punishments, any more than we would link rewards and punishments consistently to the basic activities of eating and sleeping."

Rather, the psychologist wants parents to be more aware of the child's viewpoint, and to see how their own actions can make television a more constructive part of family living.

"Sometimes adults assume a program is boring because it's repetitious and familiar and the child isn't exhibiting much reaction to it," she says. "But sometimes a child wants the comfort and security of repetition, as any parent knows who has had to read a favorite book to his child, over and over, being corrected whenever even a word is left out."

Mrs. Chancey's guidelines for approaching television viewing in the family are:

- Maintain a healthy distance. Be aware of what your child is watching and be available, but don't hover.
- Know what's offered. Don't rely exclusively on newspaper listings; monitor the shows periodically. That way you can spot unsuitable fare and encourage an alternative before a child gets too involved.
- Watch along with your child.

TV can actually be a social activity, when we respond to it spontaneously, like having another person in the room. Such response is sterile for a child alone, because there's no feedback from fellow viewers.

Encourage active participation. Make it easy for the child to talk about what the "good guy" is doing and what the "bad guy" is doing. It combats TV's tendency to reinforce passivity and makes the child an active observer.

Help the child express feelings. Children need help in recognizing and verbalizing underlying feelings. By reflecting aloud on "how the little boy must feel" or "how the old man feels," we can foster empathy in youngsters.

Don't force watching. It may produce the opposite from what you intend. A child may learn to reject what you consider desirable.

Know internal needs your child brings to TV. There is no simple cause-and-effect proof that TV causes specific behaviors. For example, video violence does not "cause" a child to behave violently, Mrs. Chancey says. Rather, much research shows TV may be a catalyst, suggesting ways for a child to act out existing inner conflicts.

Flutist DeLaney To Open ECU '76 Festival

The opening event of Festival '76 of the East Carolina School of Music will take place on Wednesday, March 17 at 8:15 p.m. when Charles DeLaney, flutist, will appear in recital accompanied by Becky Barrow, pianist and harpsichordist.

The event will be in the Recital Hall of the A.J. Fletcher Music Center. The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

For this program, DeLaney will perform J.S. Bach's Sonata in B Minor; Caesar Franck's Sonata in A Major; Greensleeves to a Ground (for alto recorder and harpsichord), the Division Flute version (1702) edited by George Hunte; John Stanley's Solo in D Major, No. 5; Janus Mroczeck's Four Etudes for Flute and Piano; and Olivier Messaien's La Merle Noir.

DeLaney, a native of Winston-Salem is professor of flute at the University of Illinois. He is also a recording artist and an active recitalist, and has taught at the N.C. Governor's School and at Brevard. DeLaney appeared on the Festival program at ECU four years ago.

In addition to his recital, DeLaney will give a master

Flying Saucers Is Friedman Topic

"Flying Saucers Are Real" is the title of an illustrated lecture to be presented by nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman at 8:00 p.m., Thursday, March 18, 1976, in Mendenhall Student Center.

The program is being sponsored by the Student Union Lecture Committee.

Friedman is the only space scientist in the western hemisphere known to be devoting full time to UFO's. Since 1972, he has lectured at more than 250 colleges in 40 states. He was one of the few scientists featured in the NBC television documentary, "UFO's: Do You Believe?"

Friedman's professional background includes 14 years of industrial experience in the development of advanced nuclear and space systems such as nuclear aircraft, nuclear rockets, fusion rockets, and compact nuclear reactors for space applications. He also worked on the Pioneer 10 and 11 spacecraft which have flown out past the planet Jupiter. He is a member of numerous scientific organizations, several UFO groups, and is a Fellow of the British Interplanetary Society.

Slides will be shown during his program and question and answer session will follow. Public tickets are $2.00 each.

Jazz Ensemble Concert

On Monday evening, March 15, at 8:15 p.m. in Fletcher Recital Hall, The East Carolina University Contemporary Jazz Ensemble will present a free concert.

The group consists of Paul Tardif, acoustic and electric piano, and mini-moog synthesizer, Mike Carney, drums and vibraphone, and Larry Dowdy, acoustic and bass.

Featured soloist will be vocalist Renee Hair. Ms. Hair has appeared at the Frog and Nightgown, Carowinds, and recently participated in a concert tour of New England with the Oscar Smith Quartet.

Two ECU Recitals Slated This Week

Two recitals, one faculty and one senior, are slated on campus at East Carolina University during the coming week. Both will be held in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Details are:

—Today, 8:15 p.m. — Faculty recital, saxophone, Linda J. Magata. Ms. Magata, who holds the BM degree from Arizona State University and the MM degree from the University of Arizona, is currently an instructor of saxophone at ECU.

—Thursday, March 18, 8:15 p.m. — Sven Erik Sieurin of Cary, a student of James Parnell, will give his senior recital accompanied by Diane Goodall. Sieurin has listed two compositions for his recital, the Concerto Rondo by Mozart and Gordon Jacob's Concerto for Horn and Strings.

The senior piano recital of Gail Schlosser, originally scheduled for Thursday, has been cancelled.

The Contemporary Jazz Ensemble has performed at various southeastern colleges and universities. They have also appeared on educational television and at jazz festivals and workshops.

Monday's concert will include original works by John Coltrane, Chick Corea, Stanley Clarke, Doug Carn, Thelonious Monk, Dizzy Gillespie, Antonio Carlos Jobim, and Tardif.

The public is invited to attend.

She will be accompanied in her program by Dale Tucker, piano. Selections she has listed are Sonata by Johan F. Fasch; Duo for Alto Saxophone and Piano, Walter Harley; Jacques Ibert's Concertina da Camera; Concerto by Georges Tournour; and Sonata for Alto Saxophone and Piano by Paul Creston.

Faculty Members In Campus Show

Four artists, all new faculty members of the School of Art, East Carolina University, are exhibiting in a multi-media show now on view at Kate Lewis Gallery on campus at East Carolina University.

The four are: Michael Ehlbeck, Department of Printmaking; Paul Hartley, Department of Drawing and Painting; Terry Smith, Department of Design; and Jeffrey Verheyen, Department of Interior Design.

Verheyen shows a few drawings, but his main entry in this show is models and blueprint renderings of a Visitor Center for Cape Lookout Marine Park. The panels and two scale models, a Verheyen thesis project, is a proposal for a Cape Lookout grouping of buildings with outside galleries for a visitor center, restaurant, a projection and lecture center, educational center, a Marine Viewing Center and a Dive Center. The project is ideally suited in design, scale, and color (muted tans and grays) for the purpose they would serve and seem just right for a seashore locale.

Although at this point it's an imagined project, it can be hoped Verheyen's thesis will eventually become an architectural reality.

Wood is the material constituting Terry Smith's portion of this show. Clean-cut, graceful and simple in concept, his pieces, such as a slender stand self framing a round mirror; a solid practical stool, several small containers that beg to be held and caressed; and a music stand with gentle curves, all combine the natural beauty of wood grain with flowing, uncluttered lines.

Ehlbeck is an exciting newcomer to the Greenville scene. Rich in innovation and imagination—his work is sharply contrasted. Some pieces are in deep, somber black and white; others are done in candy bright colors.

Food, especially deserts, have a major place in Ehlbeck's prints and drawings. "Cookie Drawing," a mixed media work in pink and chocolate, is suggestive of cookies scattered on a Persian rug, with incongruous touches — a bone and two tiny metal soldiers. A realistic (self portrait?) drawing of a thin young bearded man has a touch of irony, he offers coloried temptations, a tray of sweets.

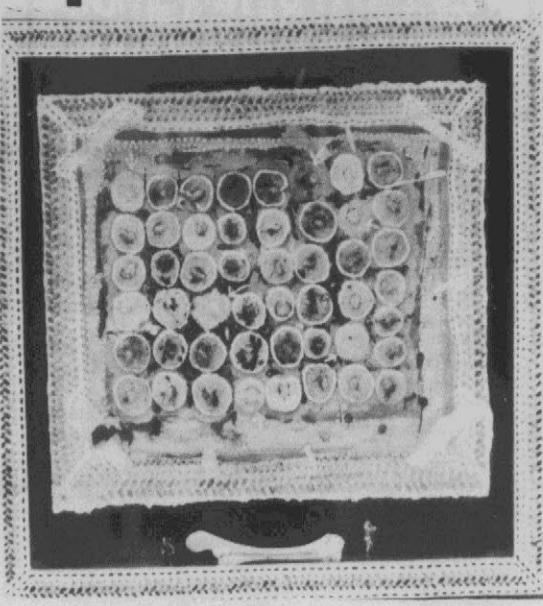

The same portrait appears again in a powerful, black and white work that has the impact of a vividly remembered dream.

Of the four artists, Hartley is the one whose work is familiar in the area from his student and graduate days at ECU. An artist with a fine talent for depicting insect life, Hartley continues in this vein in several drawings, such as flies swarming over a screen and an oversize ladybug in a composition that includes a row of piano keys.

Hartley's recent work has taken a new, more abstracted direction. Typical is "Travels IV," a multicolor drawing in which hieroglyphic-like touches of brilliant color and white are overlaid on veils of washes. This is a beautiful luminous work, with an echo of Klee and the translucent magic of city neon night lights reflected on wet pavement.

The four-artist show will remain on view until April 2. It's a show full of energy and emerging talent, one with many rewards for the viewer.

COOKIE DRAWING . . . is by ECU faculty artist Michael Ehlbeck.

Three In ACC Faculty Exhibit

Work by three members of the Atlantic Christian College art faculty are on exhibit in the main gallery of the Case Art Building on the college campus. The exhibit includes paintings, photographs, silk-screen prints, ceramics, and sculptures.

Thomas Marshall is represented by black and white photographs of North Carolina scenes, silk-screens and paintings including still-lives, landscapes, and studies of children.

Norbert Irvine has silk-screen prints on display. The prints are nature oriented abstract designs based on a process of photo silk-screen and drawing.

Edward Brown is represented by one-of-a-kind, hand-built pots, glazed in earth colors ranging in size from small to large. He also has on exhibit eight sculptures including wall reliefs, three-dimensional brass sculptures and one abstract marble carving.

Closing date for the exhibit is March 26. Individuals and school groups are welcome. There is no charge for admission. Gallery hours are: Weekdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Sundays, 1:30 until 3:30 p.m.

The world's largest paper mill is that established in 1936 by the Union Camp Corp. at Savannah, Ga.

Student Show At Art Center

DETAIL . . . of a ceramic vase, one of several pieces by ninth grader Clyde Owens on view in the Junior High School level show now at the Greenville Art Center. (Reflector Photos by Jerry Raynor)

The student art show now on view at the Greenville Art Center is an interesting and informative cross section of art by students in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades in the Greenville City Schools. It does not, however, match up to the more colorful and broader exhibit given last spring by students in these three grade levels.

From all appearances, it seems likely that the art teachers involved have probably been more highly selective. This has its good points, in that the show is more balanced and more sophisticated than last year's show. Yet personally, I miss the colorful, crowded-in atmosphere that gives many student exhibits an exuberance that can be achieved only by a reckless, show it all approach for children's art.

The show is hung with a fine regard for a pleasing balance. Agnes Fullilove seventh graders are exhibiting in the north gallery. Aycock Junior High eighth and ninth graders are exhibiting in the south galleries as well as in the hallway and showcase.

Artist-teachers for these three grades are: Agnes Fullilove, Cynthia McAllister, and Aycock Junior High, Marsha Eakes, ninth grade art, La Veta Weatherington, eighth grade art, and Bob Carl, crafts.

Bicentennial Guides At Library

Books Under Review

The two new volumes of bicentennial events, the Index of Bicentennial Activities, (250 pages) and its companion volume, Comprehensive Calendar of Bicentennial Events, East of the Mississippi, (391 pps plus appendix) have been released by the Government Printing Office.

Both are updated versions of the original two volume set issued in October, 1975, and are in a large, telephone directory size, format, in paperback.

The Index constitutes an abbreviated listing of towns and cities in all 50 states as well as American Samoa and Puerto Rico. These are cryptic, one line entries without details—simply an indication that an event (i.e., art show, tree planting project, building dedication, speaker's forum, etc.) is scheduled. Cross references are made to the volume and page number in which more detailed information is contained. (Price of the Index is $2.40)

The Comprehensive Calendar is in two volumes (East and West).

Information in the Calendar—East of the Mississippi volume is in sufficient detail to give readers a good idea of what to expect for each event noted. This information includes type of event, dates (in most instances, otherwise a "dates uncertain" notation is carried), admission if charged, speakers and topics, names of music groups, place or places where the event is being held, address and telephone numbers. The price of this volume is $3.40.

The volume can be ordered (separately) from: Bicentennial Publications, Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The average user, individual or agency would perhaps have little use for the Index volume.

The two volumes are on file at Sheppard Memorial Library and are available for reference

Do-It-Yourself Magic

Bill Severn's Magic Workshop. By Bill Severn. Illustrated by Craven & Evans. New York. Henry Z. Walck, Inc., 176 pps., $7.95.

People who have always wanted to be an amateur magician will find valuable assistance in this latest Bill Severn magic book.

A do-it-yourself book, it covers 25 projects ranging from the most simple to the not-so-simple in card tricks, working with boxes, cartons and tubes, tin cans, disappearing coins and handkerchief tricks.

The author notes this book

"is intended as an experimental workshop in the performance as well as in the construction of magic."

What makes this book very useful, especially for young people, are the simple explanations given, step by step, complete with ample diagrams and illustrations that make mastering a trick even easier.

Bill Severn's Magic Workshop is a book that will provide a real challenge in acquiring new skills, and one that will bring hours of fun to an individual or to a group.

Employment Directory

More than 90,000 paying jobs throughout the United States and Canada are available to high school seniors, college students, and teachers for the 1976 summer season.

Complete information on each of these jobs is contained in the 1976 edition of Summer Employment Directory of the United States.

The result of extensive nationwide research, 1976 Summer Employment Directory of the United States provides details—name and address of employer, type of work, duration, pay rates, etc.—on a wide variety of positions, such as: camp directors, instructors, and lifeguards; summer theater directors, actors, and stage hands; guides, waiters and waitresses for resorts, hotels, national parks, and amusement centers; and many others.

Also featured are tips from the nation's leading authorities on summer employment showing how to make effective application, write professional resumes and cover letters.

A reference copy of 1976 Summer Employment Directory of the United States is on reserve at Sheppard Memorial Library. Copies are also obtainable for $6.95 each from National Directory Service, Inc., 252 Ludlow Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio 45220.

Chowan Art Scholarship

MURFREESBORO, N.C.—A $500.00 scholarship is being offered as the top prize in the Third Annual High School Art Exhibition at Chowan College, April 12-14.

J. Craig Greene, director of Chowan's division of art, said high school juniors and seniors are invited to enter up to three works each in any media. The deadline for entering is April 8.

The $500.00 art scholarship will be offered for the best senior work. The best in the show will receive a $25.00 cash award. There will also be several honorable mentions.

The exhibition will be shown in the Chowan College Art Gallery. The final day coincides with Spring Festival at Chowan, when hundreds of parents, students and other visitors are expected to view the exhibition.

SHOW ON VIEW . . . Paintings by Dot Rawls, art instructor for the Beaufort County Tech Institute, currently are on view at Ballentine's Cafeteria at Pitt Plaza Shopping Center. The 30 works, in oil, acrylic and watercolor, are mostly scenes of eastern North Carolina. Mrs. Rawls has exhibited widely, including a number of one-artist shows.

Poetry Forum Meets Tuesday

The ECU Poetry Forum will meet for the first time in the month of March on Tuesday, March 16 at 8 p.m. in Room 221, Mendenhall Student Center.

Vernon Ward, director of the forum, says that meetings on the first and third Tuesday are scheduled through Tuesday in May. At a later date information will be made public on a special meeting to be held on the third Tuesday in May at a site other than the student center.

There is no admission charge, and persons interested in poetry and poetry discussions are invited to attend.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By JUNE PARKER

Many new nonfiction books have arrived at Sheppard Memorial Library. Several of which should be of particular interest. The first one, DUKE ELLINGTON: MUSIC IS MY MISTRESS, is a kind of autobiography by Duke Ellington. It is not the standard autobiography, but a set of pictures and glimpses into his life; the people he has known such as Louis Armstrong, George Gershwin, Frank Sinatra, Lena Horne, and the Presidents; and the places he has been such as Latin America, Mexico, Russia, London, Paris, and Toronto. He tells about the people in his own band - Billy Strayhorn, Sonny Green, and others. He philosophizes about life, music, the future, and his family. His enthusiasm shines through every chapter as he remembers the people, places, and things that have made up his life. The readers gets the story behind his songs along with the feeling of the times through which he has lived. This book is the reminiscences of a long, satisfying, happy life.

The next book is in an entirely different mood. It is WE ARE YOUR SONS: THE LEGACY OF ETHEL AND JULIUS ROSENBERG by their children, Robert and Michael Meeropol. In this book, the two sons tell the story of the terror of the years of 1950-1954, the trial, appeals, and finally the execution of their mother and father for treason. They discuss what became of them after the execution - the changes from relative to relative, the children's shelters, and finally their adoption by Anne and Abel Meeropol. Their years with the Meeropols were secure and reasonably happy; however, the two sons wanted to clear their parents' name and make people understand what had happened to the Rosenbergs. They have in their possession 523 letters written by the Rosenbergs, their own memories, plus many conversations with people who had known their parents. They say that they will rely on these to set the record straight and show the distortions others have made of letters. In the last section of the book, the brothers speculate on the reasons the government had for framing the Rosenbergs, which is what the brothers believe happened.

Robert Meeropol has his B.A. and M.A. in anthropology and is working on a doctoral project in urban anthropology. Michael received his B.A. and M.A. in economics and is now an Assistant Professor at Western New England College.

The last book is the continuation of AN UNTOLD STORY: THE ROOSEVELTS OF HYDE PARK. It is THE ROOSEVELTS OF THE WHITE HOUSE: A REDEZVOUS WITH DESTINY by Elliot Roosevelt and James Brough. Here, both the personal and public stories of the period that Roosevelt spent in the White House are discussed. Elliot Roosevelt gives a behind the scenes account of Roosevelt's actions and policies during World War II, his hopes for peace conferences at Teheran, Yalta, and Potsdam, and his association with Stalin and Churchill. He also reveals how Stalin betrayed his allies by not telling how Japan made advances for peace through the Japanese ambassador in Moscow four days before the Potsdam Conference. These actions helped to destroy Roosevelt's dream of world peace.

Two Wilmington Shows

Two art shows are currently on view in the Wilmington area. One, a collection of 17 bronzes, is at St. John's Art Gallery, 114 Orange Street in Wilmington. The works, loaned by the N. C. Museum of Art - from the Mary Duke Biddle Gallery for the Blind - includes sculptures as early as a Chinese and a Cambodian pieces from the 13th-14th century through contemporary American work.

The second show in the area is one entitled "Five Winston-Salem Printmakers Plus One" being shown through March 27 at the Community Art Center. A show of prints, the artists with works being exhibited are Susan Moore, Martha Dunigan, Ann Carter Pollard, Virginia Ingram, Mary Goslen and Anne Kesler Shields. The group has shown collectively throughout North Carolina and in Virginia and South Carolina.

There is no admission charge to either of the two shows.

Find A Sitter For Fish, Plants

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — Are you afraid to take that much needed vacation for fear of leaving your African violets at home with no one to water them?

Are you worried that your pet fish will be lonely without your constant attention and company?

Well, there is a new breed of babysitters, sitters who will water your plants and watch after your fish.

Mrs. Susan Linehan of Hamden recently graduated with a degree in horticulture and is a plantsitter.

"I had worked in a few florists' shops in the New Haven area but found I was not making enough," she said. "Then, about a year ago while I was in California I read a magazine article about plantsitting and decided that was for me."

"Because of my background I know a lot more about plants and am more responsible than the ordinary person."

Mrs. Linehan says she already has 50 clients.

"I am only working parttime but I am sure I could make a fairly decent living doing it fulltime."

"It gets around by word of mouth. My clients tell their friends, who in turn tell their friends," Mrs. Linehan says. "I get mostly house calls from people who want me to tend their plants while they are on vacation."

According to Mrs. Linehan, the fee depends on the type of plant, the number of plants, the care needed and whether it is a house call or the plant is dropped off at her home.

"The typical charge is about $5 a visit and I make three or four visits a week," she said. Describing a typical house call Mrs. Linehan says she feeds the plant, waters it, checks it for bugs and diseases, positions the plant so all leaves will get sunlight, prunes the plant if it needs it, and checks the humidity.

Peter Falconi, owner of the Norwalk Aquarium in Norwalk is a successful fishsitter in suburban Fairfield County.

Falconi said he has made about 75 house calls during the year, and an additional 40 clients brought their fish and sometimes their equipment to the shop.

"Most of our clients are people who are really into the hobby and are concerned about leaving their fish alone."

For house calls, he says he takes along his portable lab which allows him to make ten tests, including checks on equipment, water solution, temperature, toxic elements and amount of oxygen.

"Of course, I also feed the fish. The cost depends on the type of fish and the care needed, but the average charge is $5 per house visit and $1 to $10 a week for store sitting."

"Before we take a fish to sit we diagnose it for any illness. I won't take in any sick fish and I have never had a fish die while here."

"Our clients come from all walks of life. We have a 12-year-old boy who is very knowledgeable about the hobby and has a sophisticated collection. Two of our other clients from New York City have purchased a duplicate aquarium system which they keep here at the store for their fish while they are away."

FINAL HOME

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Although usually associated with Kentucky, Daniel Boone made his final home in Missouri. He came to the state at age 63 and lived in the Defiance area near St. Louis until his death in 1820. His home still stands.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Think over plans to make your life more efficient in all areas — work, outside matters, home and family, and friends.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to be of greater service to others, gain their goodwill. Make better plans with partners. Entertain at home in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be cheerful with others and raise both your and their spirits. Dress charmingly and make a fine impression.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make your home more attractive and comfortable for future happiness. Study a new interest carefully before acting.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get into the spiritual studies that will elevate your consciousness and make the future brighter. Show diplomacy.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study financial position and improve it. Reduce expenses. Make small, necessary repairs at your home. Improve wardrobe.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your appearance and health and do whatever will improve both. Then contact good friends, but avoid those who are burdensome.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plow through work with flying colors, and have time for other pursuits later. Show the romantic side of your nature.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Go after vital matter that means much to you. Relax and restore energies later. Steer clear of persnickity pals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle civic matter early. Later, don't spoil the prestige you now enjoy. If invited to a party in p.m., accept.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study philosophical matters early and new plans. Not a good day to go afar from home, or you could get into trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Your hunches are good in a.m., so follow them, but they go awry later in the day. A charming, social evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can have a talk early with partners and get good results, but enjoy social activities in afternoon and evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be gifted at understanding how to put plans into action successfully. The education should be slanted along such lines, particularly in the fields of investigation, dietetics, laboratory research, or the like. Give good spiritual training early, too. Also permit to participate in sports early in life.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MARCH 15, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until evening you have many tasks that require a stick-to-itiveness to carry through successfully. Interesting conditions come into effect in the evening.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get busy performing tasks you have promised to do. Take the right amount of exercise to rebuild your vitality.

 TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve your talents so that you can accomplish more and have greater benefits in the future. Use care in motion.
 GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Give as much attention to home affairs as you can during hours away from business. Study a new interest.
 MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Shop with care and be sure to use extreme care in motion. The evening is fine for being with friends.
 LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study monetary matters and find a way to improve your position. Cut down on expenses. Obtain the data you need.
 VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find the right solution to a problem that had you puzzled. Use positive methods in handling a new project.
 LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take special steps to make this a most productive day. Obtain the advice you need from a business expert.
 SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Using the right means can help clear the way to gaining your objective today. Attend the social tonight.
 SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Begin the week properly by handling tasks at hand intelligently. Take care of credit affairs wisely.

 CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A new plan needs more study before you put it into operation. Sidestep a foe who is overly aggressive.
 AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle any responsibilities you have in a most conscientious fashion. This evening is meant for romance.
 PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Others may be worrisome to you at this time, but try to be understanding and by evening all will be harmonious.
 IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be seeking the answers to many questions. Make the effort to give the finest academic education you can afford. A fine chart for the seeker of truth. Be sure to give religious training early in life.
 "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Catering To Vegetarians

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (AP) — Student interest in vegetarianism has led to the establishment of a vegetarian lunch center at Mount Holyoke College.

Open since September, the center has 300 students regularly using its facilities and a waiting list of 20, according to John Hansel, director of food services.

Susan Read, student organizer of the program, and several other students met with Hansel to work out the details after determining the extent of student interest in an alternative eating program.

The center was established in Pearson's dining hall because it is the largest dormitory eating facility on campus.

A vegetarian dinner center has not been set up because, according to Hansel, "eating dinner in a student's own dormitory is a tradition at Mount Holyoke. Students eat lunch in one of several different lunch centers around campus, so they're moving around anyway. A vegetarian dinner center would mean displacing students from their own dormitory."

Most students do not object to having vegetarian meals at lunch only, Miss Read said, adding, "We just eat our biggest meal of the day at noon."

William Wyler's Career Reads Like A Hollywood History Book

THE MOVIES — Film director William Wyler, pictured (center) in a candid moment while directing the 1956 film classic, "Friendly Persuasion," has worked with some of Hollywood's finest performers, including (clockwise from top, left) Barbra Streisand in "Funny Girl" (1968); Veronica Cartwright and Karen Balkin in the tense drama "The Children's Hour" (1962); Audrey Hepburn in the romantic adventure "Roman Holiday" (1953); as well as hundreds of "extras" in the epic film "Ben Hur" (1959). Wyler will be honored by Hollywood for his 50 years of filmmaking in the special, "The American Film Institute Salute to William Wyler," to be broadcast Sunday, March 14 (10-11:30 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

"Funny Girl," "The Collector," "Ben Hur," "Friendly Persuasion," "Roman Holiday," "The Heiress," "The Best Years of Our Lives," "Mrs. Miniver," "The Little Foxes," "Jezabel," "Wuthering Heights," "Dead End" . . . the list goes on and on.

The director of those motion picture milestones made his debut behind the camera in 1925 with "Crook Buster." It was 10 minutes long and cost less than $2,000. "Ben Hur" was 16 times longer and 5,000 times as expensive.

William Wyler directed these films and 65 other motion pictures.

A biography of Wyler is a history of Hollywood during its last 50 years. It is a history being brought up-to-date when Wyler receives the fourth annual AFI Life Achievement Award during "The American Film Institute Salute to William Wyler" special tribute, featuring stars from many of his films, to be broadcast Sunday, March 14, 10 to 11:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Wyler's introduction to motion pictures was in 1920 at age 18, literally "fresh off the boat" and working as an office boy at Universal Pictures in New York City. Because he could speak French and German, he soon promoted himself into the foreign publicity department. A year later, he actually was in Hollywood, again as an office boy.

To become an assistant director on Universal's two-reel Westerns was not too difficult, and Wyler was soon moving toward his inevitable goal.

"The two-reelers were a training school," Wyler recalls. "Anyone who showed he was eager and ambitious could get to direct a Western. It wasn't hard. The whole picture cost $2,000 and was no great risk to the studio."

William Wyler made 21 of those two-reel Westerns for Universal. He then made five-reel Westerns and, in 1928, went on to even longer pictures. His first "big" picture was in 1933, "Counsellor at Law," starring John Barrymore. Wyler was 31 years old.

Starting with Barrymore, Wyler's stars were the brightest in Hollywood.

Among the awards Wyler has received are: The Irving G. Thalberg Award in 1966, Oscars in 1942 ("Mrs. Miniver"), 1946 ("The Best Years of Our Lives"), and 1959 ("Ben Hur"), all for director and best picture.

He also received nominations from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for his directing of nine other films.

Now, the stars, the producers, the film-makers who have shared Wyler's Hollywood are gathering to pay him tribute. Many will be on the program, adding their personal reminiscences to those of the man who has created so many memorable experiences in motion pictures for audiences.

Partners Married

It's so nice to have a man around the house, as the song says — and around the studio, and around the nightclub, and around the hotel room, and just generally around.

That's not only the lyric theme of a classic pop tune, it also happens to reflect the philosophy of Mitzi Gaynor, who is also very much a new-fashioned entertainer and an old-fashioned wife.

Miss Gaynor and her husband, Jack Bean, have been both professional and personal partners for the past 21 years. Besides being her manager, he is the executive producer of her television specials the newest of which, "Mitzi . . . Roarin' in the 20's," will be presented Sunday, March 14, 9 to 10 p.m. on CBS Ch. 9-11.

Miss Gaynor has no quarrel with the campaigns for women's equality. "But," she says, "I think some women are pushing for the wrong things. What's wrong with letting a man open doors for you? Jack has been opening doors, all kinds of doors, for me for over 20 years. And I love it."

Bean, for his part, believes that his talented wife should not have to cope with the technical problems of a show. "The only thing Mitzi should have to do is the very best she can on stage," he says. He does not, however, think she should be excluded from the creative decisions that concern her performances. "Mitzi sits in on all our creative meetings and makes valuable contributions," Bean emphasizes.

When the couple first met (on a blind date) her career was at a virtual standstill. Bean encouraged her, made suggestions about style and make-up and insisted on the short hairdo that has become her trademark.

Their mutual careers, which run both side-by-side and independently (he has a real estate management firm), have prospered, as has their marriage.

"Despite what people seem to think," Miss Gaynor says, "A Hollywood marriage is the same as any other marriage — you have to work at it. And we like the work."

MITZI — Mitzi Gaynor stars in "Mitzi . . . Roarin' in the 20's," Sunday, March 14 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11. The special celebrates the music, dance and life styles of the colorful decade of the 1920s.

War Problems Studied

Whenever Johnny comes marching home — from no matter what war — he's in trouble on the home front. This was true as far back as the Revolutionary War, when fighters in the rag-tag Continental Army, returned from the bitter cold and near starvation of the front, found themselves penniless and homeless.

The overwhelming problems these men encountered in battle and at home are dramatically presented in "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness," first of the "Decades of Decision" series, to be seen on PBS Wednesday, March 17, at 8 p.m. Henry Fonda will host the five-part series.

"Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness" first focuses on the heart-rending decision faced by a young corporal heading a Continental Army food-foraging party — he has to choose between commandeering the food desperately needed at Valley Forge or leaving it for a war widow and her three children on their impoverished Pennsylvania farm.

Whose need was greater — that of the Army fighting for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, or that of the civilians whose lives, liberty and pursuit of happiness depended on the men fighting? Could the survival of soldiers be weighed against the survival of the very people they were fighting for?

Flip Travels Again

Flip Wilson, whose first "Travels With Flip" special received much acclaim, hits the road again for a new special hour of comedy with guest stars Roy Rogers, jockey Willie Shoemaker, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and the Los Angeles

Lakers, the San Diego Chargers, and illusionist Mark Wilson. The new special, "More Travels With Flip," will be presented Friday, March 19, 8:30 to 9:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 9.

The comedy-variety hour, which also includes a visually breath-taking single-engine plane trip through the Grand Canyon in salute to the country's Bicentennial, was produced and directed by Lee Mendelson and Chuck Barbee, with Monte Kay as executive producer. It was written by Flip Wilson, Mendelson and Herbert Baker.

Each of the special's four acts takes off from a humorous "rap session" between Flip and the San Manteo (Calif.) High School student body with whom Flip is "rediscovering America."

Nick Bellini Is Back

NBC-TV's triple Emmy award-winning daytime drama, "The Doctors," will present a special 90-minute program featuring the return of Gerald Gordon as Dr. Nick Bellini Monday, March 15, it was announced recently by Madeline B. David, Vice President, Daytime Programs, NBC-TV.

"We featured 'The Doctors' in a 60-minute format in January of last year," Ms. David said, "and we felt that the response was indicative of an impressive success.

"There probably is no better way to bring Dr. Bellini back to the show than to present him performing a life-or-death operation. That show will also include the surprising remarriage of two of the major characters."

Gordon, who has not been seen on "The Doctors" since last spring, portrays a volatile but brilliant neurosurgeon. During several years with the show, he became one of the most popular performers in a daytime dramatic series.

"The Doctors," which has been on the air for 12 seasons, received an Emmy Award as Outstanding Drama Series, Daytime Programming, during the 1973-74 season and was cited for Outstanding Achievement in Daytime Drama during the 1971-72 season.

Elizabeth Hubbard, who portrays Dr. Althea Davis, was named Best Actress in a Daytime Series in 1973.

NICK'S BACK — Gerald Gordon, starring in the role of Dr. Nick Bellini, returns to the cast of NBC-TV's "The Doctors" in a special 90-minute colorcast Monday, March 15 (2:30-4 p.m.) which features a life-or-death operation. Gordon will remain with the daytime drama series for about three months.

Walters Hosts Women's Awards

Barbara Walters, one of the most honored people in the communications industry, will host the fourth annual "Women of the Year" awards to be colorcast live from New York City Thursday, April 8.

Ten women of outstanding achievement will be honored for their contributions to American life. These women will be selected according to standards which reflect both public and professional judgements.

Women throughout the country were asked to respond to a questionnaire in the January issue of Ladies Home Journal by making recommendations in each of ten categories. A panel of 14 distinguished women will make the final selections guided by the reader preferences but not bound by them.

The winners, who will be announced on the telecast, will each receive a special pendant designed by Cartier and presented by personalities from the arts, show business and government.

The ten categories in which the 1976 "Women of the Year" awards will be made are: Government and Diplomacy, Political Life, Business and Economics, Science and Research, Sports, Communications Performing Arts, Inspirational Leadership, Educational Leadership, and Humanitarian and Community Service.

Eastwood Stars In Sunday Movie

Clint Eastwood stars as the quietly menacing stranger who defends the terrified citizens of a small western town by turning the streets into an inferno in "High Plains Drifter." "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," March 14, 9 to 11 p.m., Channel 3W-5-12.

Eastwood, playing the sort of nameless wanderer that has made his westerns boxoffice bonanzas, also directed the film, which was written by Academy Award-winner Ernest Tidyman ("The French Connection"). Verna Bloom and Mariana Hill are co-starred.

As "The Stranger," Eastwood once again dons his flat-crowned black hat, tilts it forward and rides tall and silent into a Southwestern town filled with people trembling in fear.

The townspeople, burdened with an excess of corruption and a dearth of courage, are awaiting the return of three gunmen who were sent to jail on phony charges trumped up by the local mining company. The stranger agrees to stay and face them down - but only on his own terms. Those terms include painting the entire town a crimson red, remaining in "Hell," and setting a reception for the released criminals that involves a gun and dynamite battle that sends the town up in flames.

THE STRANGER — Clint Eastwood (1) is without his traditional black stogie, but his little buddy, Billy Curtis, has one, and Eastwood's quiet menace remains the same in the encore showing of "High Plains Drifter" on ABC-TV's "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Sunday, March 14 (9-11 p.m.).

An Eye For Accessories

No question about it, furniture, floor coverings and fabrics make up the basis for your room. But, without accessories and art, it will lack individuality and charm. The choice of accessories that you can make is as wide ranged as the selection of new major pieces for your living room. In addition to being attractive and comfortable, your home should say YOU. With your eye on accessories, and there is no end to ideas and arrangements, add the individuality you want in your home. Speaking of individuality, we have a fine selection of wall to wall carpet to give your home a very special touch of individuality.

Cousteau Studies The Octopus

Facts and fables about the legendary octopus are studied in "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau," documentary special to be rebroadcast Sunday, March 14, 7 to 8 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

In "Octopus, Octopus," Capt. Cousteau and the crews of the Calypso and the Espadon ranged the Mediterranean and the Pacific to observe and photograph one of man's most curious contemporaries.

The octopus, subject of folklore for centuries, has been dubbed "giant devil fish," but few seafarers have dared to confront this much-maligned, eight-armed monster of the deep. Artists and writers, among them Victor Hugo and Jules Verne, have depicted octopuses as gigantic bloodthirsty creatures powerful enough to crush ships.

In Marseilles, France's chief seaport, the Espadon, a fishing vessel and little sister to the research ship, Calypso, was refitted as an auxiliary dive boat. Capt. Cousteau and his crew then headed southeast to Friouls Island where the major phase of the study took place.

Head diver Albert Falco planned the venture with Frederick Dumas, longtime associate of Capt. Cousteau who helped the scientist test the aqua lung in 1943. Before the invention of this device, men could only speculate about the mysterious creatures prowling the bottom of the underwater jungle.

Off Seattle, in the cold waters of the Pacific, another octopus study got underway.

The Sentence Is Not Bad At All

Jose Perez, the small, wiry actor who plays Hector Fuentes in the hit series "On the Rocks" (Mondays, 8 to 8:30 p.m. on ABC-TV), came to the United States when he was nine-years-old from a small village in Puerto Rico called Fajardo. He came, as did most, to seek the great opportunities that America had to offer. But he and his family found reality to be something different than they had expected.

They settled in the Hell's Kitchen area of New York City, where life was, at the very least, hazardous. Jose survived the rough-and-tumble local streets for years before he was finally plucked from the pavement by a counselor of the Eastside Boys Club for an audition in "South Pacific." Thus began his life as an actor, and the road from Hell's Kitchen to starring in a popular series has been a long one.

Surely one of the most unusual situation comedies in many a season, "On the Rocks" is set in a surprising locale, a prison.

Perez, along with co-stars Hal Williams, Rick Hurst and Bobby Sandler, portray inmates who were snagged by a thorn while starting down life's primrose path. With their freedom curtailed, these "shut-ins" find their fun in little victories over the establishment.

If Hector Fuentes weren't in prison, Perez feels that he would be working on getting there. "I think he would have a small racket going somewhere — nothing big, just a little something to get by, you know."

"Actually, Hector's a 'survivor' — he will survive when all around him fall. I've known a lot of people like that, and my old neighborhood was like that too," Perez said. "And, I guess you might say I'm the same way."

He feels the reason he survived the tough streets was because of his acting. "It helped me escape the reality of the situation. I always had something to look forward to — a goal in life. I was very lucky, and a lot of people in the neighborhood didn't have a life-goal."

Perez admits that it's nice to be recognized as an actor, but "most people look at me like maybe I have just escaped or perhaps been paroled."

Shortly after the series had been picked up for another 13 segments, someone went up to Perez on the street and said, "Hey, man, when did you get out?"

"I didn't get out," he responded with a grin, "in fact, they just sentenced me to another 13 weeks of hard labor!"

FRIENDS — Though they are on opposite sides, a certain togetherness prevails in this group consisting of stars who play prisoners and guards in "On the Rocks," the ABC comedy series about the lighter side of life in minimum security prison telecast Mondays (8-8:30 p.m.) They are (seated, center) Jose Perez, most resourceful of the prisoners, and left to right, back; Leonard Stone, Hal Williams, Rick Hurst, Jan Gerber and Bobby Sandler.

Gay Life To Be Viewed

"Homosexuals: Out From the Shadows," an in-depth inquiry into the gay life, the view that homosexuals have of themselves and how others view them, will be rebroadcast as the "Monday Night Special" on ABC-TV, March 15, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. David Frost is the program host.

A scene from the off-Broadway musical revue, "Lovers," which celebrates the gay life in music and song will be seen in an opening segment of the program as Frost assesses the homosexual society, in numbers and character, in the United States.

Frost will interview a father who has learned that his son is a homosexual; parents of a lesbian and the lesbian couple who are living together with their two children, and who will explain what their relationship means to them.

The program will also focus on a new lesbian singing duo, Jade and Sarsaparilla, who are seen performing for a homosexual audience in Chicago's Man's Country baths.

Chief Edward Davis of the Los Angeles Police Department and Dr. Evelyn Hooker, professor of psychology at UCLA and former Chairman of the Task Force on Homosexuality of the National Institute of Mental Health, will also be interviewed by Frost. And a gay film historian will give his views of Hollywood's movie image of the homosexual.

Mae West Gives In

America's sexiest member of the senior citizen set, Mae West, has finally succumbed and will appear on TV. She ended her long holdout when she signed to guest-star with Dick Cavett in a forthcoming special on CBS. Why? Because she's filled with the Bicentennial spirit.

"It's the spirit of seventy sex," says Ms. West, who is seventy sex and then some. Eighty four, to be exact.

Even though she's given in, the come-up-and-see-me-sometime gal still has great reservations about people seeing her without paying the price of admission at the box office first.

"When they see you on television," she says, "they don't feel they want to pay to see you."

She says that she 'thinks' there might just be a series in the future for her, and she is aghast at being asked if she feels up to it.

"Of course I could handle it," she laughs. "One hundred per cent!"

Chieftains

"Camera Three" presents The Chieftains in a concert, "Hail to the Chieftains," that shows the wide range and exceptional energy of this unique group, traditional Irish musicians who have trained themselves in music, on Sunday, March 14, 11 to 11:30 a.m. on CBS-TV.

The Chieftains, who have been performing and recording in Europe for many years, were named Group of the Year in 1975 by Melody Maker, Britain's leading pop-music publication. Following the release of Stanley Kubrick's new film, "Barry Lyndon," which uses musical themes played by the Chieftains, they now have a solid following in cities all over the United States.

Sean Potts, Sean Keane, Michael Tubridy, Peadar Mercier, Martin Fay, Derek Bell, and the group's leader Paddy Moloney, use the traditional instruments of a keenly musical culture — pipes, tin whistles, harp, bones, concertina and fiddles — and the music they make is by turn carefree, deeply moving, noble and eerie.

What Linus did for the Great Pumpkin, the rest of the "Peanuts" are planning to do to Arbor Day.
 The highly successful animated specials, based on the Charles M. Schulz cartoon characters, have dealt with all the major holidays, from Christmas to Valentine's Day to Easter to Thanksgiving. They've saluted such happenings as the last day of school, election time, summer vacation, baseball season, Beethoven's birthday - and even invented that new folk hero, in the person of Halloween's Great Pumpkin, who threatens to make such symbols as witches, ghouls and skeletons forever passe.
 So Schulz and producers Lee Mendelson and Bill Melendez looked to the calendar for an obscure holiday that might benefit from the magic touch of the Peanuts gang. They found it in Arbor Day.

become the occasion for impressing upon school children the importance of forestry, and for the planting of seedling trees to reforest otherwise wastelands.
 All of this, of course, is a worthy project, but the Peanuts, as always, can't leave well enough alone. In "It's Arbor Day, Charlie Brown," they choose Charlie's baseball field for their planting, including "a nice little tree" right on top of the pitcher's mound. The resultant jungle growth gives a life to Arbor Day, but it doesn't do much for Charlie's already overwhelming problems in trying to win a baseball game.
 "We certainly don't try to preach or spout facts about the various holidays," comments Schulz, "because our main purpose is still to entertain. But if we can get a basic message across and be funny at the same time, well, that's our goal.

After "It's Arbor Day, Charlie Brown," newest in the series of Peanuts specials, is broadcast Tuesday, March 16, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11, the homely shade tree may emerge to rival Santa Claus, the turkey, firecrackers and the Easter Bunny as an image of holiday festivity.
 "We've tried with our various shows to remind people of the true meaning of our holidays," says Schulz, "and it occurred to me that one of our more important ones, Arbor Day, has been lost in the shuffle over the years."

Since its origination in Nebraska in 1872, Arbor Day has been variously observed as a legal holiday, a school festival, and a spring date for the public planting of trees. The time of celebration varies in different states, sometimes even in different localities of the same state.
 The scope and purpose of Arbor Day, wherever it appears on one's local calendar, have been broadened over the years. From simple exercises and the planting of single trees to beautify public grounds, it has

Actress Gambled, Won

Susan Blakely is a gambler. Not the kind epitomized by felt tables and guys with green eyeshades but a gambler with her career and, hence, her future.

Miss Blakely gave up one of the most successful modeling careers in recent history to try her hand at acting, a business where falling flat on your face is the rule rather than the exception. But the gamble paid off, and in just over a year in Hollywood she has had starring roles in three major films and won one of the most coveted roles of any television season when she was signed to play the female lead in "Rich Man, Poor Man," which concludes Monday, March 15 (9 to 11 p.m.), on ABC Channel 3W-5-12.

"I knew I was gambling a lot when I made my decision but it was one I felt I had to make if I was really going to be honest with myself," she says. "With very few exceptions, models just don't make it as actresses, so I knew in advance that the odds were against me. I also knew, though, that the bug wasn't going to go away, so - with the help and support of my husband - I left New York and came to Hollywood."

It was a move that paid off, and within a year she had starred in "Report to the Commissioner," "The Towering Inferno" and "Capone." Those performances led to her most challenging role - that of Julie Prescott in "Rich Man, Poor Man," a character combining several different women in the best-selling Irwin Shaw novel on which the drama is based.

Julie Prescott's character and life style change dramatically over the 20-year period of the story, and Miss Blakely says, "The six months that we worked on the film were the most exhausting and difficult days I've ever spent. My character goes through so many changes that it was often hard to know exactly where I was at any given time, but all the hopes and aspirations I had when I decided on acting suddenly came true. I could see why so many people love it and why others loathe it. And I found out that I made the right choice, and that was the most exciting feeling of all."

Scarecrows Were Big

When you're built like a scarecrow and you move like a scarecrow and you even look a little like a scarecrow, there isn't usually much type-casting. But Ray Bolger lucked out.

Scarecrows were suddenly at a premium when MGM began casting for "The Wizard of Oz," the 1939 motion picture that was destined to become a classic and that launched a relatively unknown youngster named Judy Garland on "The Yellow Brick Road" to stardom.

The durable fantasy, starring Bolger as the Scarecrow in search of a brain, with Miss Garland, Jack Haley, Bert Lahr and Frank Morgan as his compatriots in the mythical land of Oz, will be rebroadcast as a special Sunday, March 14, 7 to 9 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

The equally durable Bolger (who, at 72, remains an indefatigable headliner) still considers "The Wizard of Oz" a singular high point in his long illustrious career.

"It is a self-renewing hit," he says of the classic film. "It has been seen over and over again through the years, and with each showing it picks up a new audience. Kids whose parents were small children when the movie was first released and whose grandparents and great-grandparents were enthralled with the story when it was published in book form, are 'discovering' the wonderful world of Oz for the first time."

Bolger gives full credit for the property's longevity to "Oz" author L. Frank Baum, whose original story was printed in 1900.

The basic philosophies behind Baum's "Wizard of Oz" reflect human values that have never changed and will never change, Bolger believes.

"The Tin Woodman who yearns for a heart, the Scarecrow who quests for a brain, the Lion who seeks courage — they are all of us who long to exchange our weaknesses for strengths," says Bolger.

"And the little girl who discovers, after all her fabulous adventures in a far-off world, that there is really no place like home, has learned a timeless lesson."

Bikel Travels, Naps

Theodore Bikel, film actor, stage star, lecturer and folk singer, has a house in Connecticut and the ability to fall asleep readily on moving vehicles. Both are necessary to this peripatetic performer.

Bikel is currently starring for eight weeks in a Hartford, Conn., stage production of "Zorba the Greek." Between rehearsals he made many trips to the New York City offices of Actor's Equity, of which he is president.

In April he returns to California for a college lecture at Cupertino. In May he goes to an actor's conference in Dublin, Ireland, then on to Budapest, Hungary, at the invitation of that country's actors guild.

Michael Glaser Is Born Actor

STARSKY — Paul Michael Glaser stars as Dave Starsky, one half of the team of Starsky and Hutch (David Soul), who bring resourcefulness, street wisdom and a zest for living into their fight against crime in the ABC-TV police drama series, "Starsky & Hutch" which airs on Wednesdays (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Gambling Fever Hits Plainfield, Conn.

A study of a town hit by gambling fever will be presented as a one-hour "NBC Reports" special on Wednesday, March 17, 10 to 11 p.m., Channel 6-7.

Eliot Frankel is producer of the program, which will focus on the small town of Plainfield, Conn., and try to measure the social and economic impact of its recently opened dog track and the community and the townspeople. Plainfield's dog track - the state's first - opened Jan. 2.

Connecticut, part of traditionally strait-laced New England, has gone into gambling in a big way, Frankel noted.

10:00 (3N,9,11) CBS News Special: "The Second Battle of Britain" The startling decline of Great Britain, from a position as one of the Big Four at the end of World War II a position as one today trying hard to survive, is the subject of the broadcast. CBS News Correspondent Morely Safer is the anchorman. (60 min)

Even in rehearsal, Paul Michael Glaser's star quality is there. He's dark, he's volatile, explosive, thoughtful — and an outstanding actor.

Glaser, who co-stars with David Soul in the popular series "Starsky and Hutch" (Wednesdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV), feels that he discovered as a child that acting was to be his way of life because of his older sister, Priscilla. "She was involved in dramatics, and I can't say just how she influenced me, but she did. We were close as children, she set an example, and I saw it from a distance," he says.

His big break-through in his career came with his role in a Boston production of Raskolnikov's "Crime and Punishment," and from there he went on to New York. While in New York he appeared in several Broadway productions and had parts in the daytime TV dramas "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing" and "Love of Life."

"People sometimes think of acting as putting on a mask," he says with a steady, thoughtful voice. "It's not a putting on of a mask at all — it's a taking off process. An actor's quest is for himself to find out who he is. With every part you play, you strip off another mask, experiencing another facet of yourself."

Someday, Glaser hopes to direct instead of act. "Acting and directing are certainly related, the theater is the actor's medium, film is the director's ... but when someone asks me when I plan to direct, I can only say 'when I've outgrown the need to worship my own image.' And let me say quickly that by worshipping one's own image, I don't mean vanity. I mean watching the image you project as an actor on film," he continued, "and when it's good, liking it, loving it, and seeing more of yourself than you've ever seen before."

Glaser is very interested in understanding man's spiritual quest — therefore his own quest. He's deep into Yoga, into Meditation, and a perfectionist who is inclined to punish himself when he is less than he could be.

It isn't easy to practice Yoga and meditation when you're on the run with "Starsky and Hutch." But he feels an obligation to the series. What's more, he enjoys working with it. He readily admits that he likes the lightness of the series' action and the comedy inherent in it.

Here is a talented young man who has set definite goals for himself and approaches work and life with a high level of consciousness and determination.

Smile Pays

After five years as the kindly gray-haired gent in the Crest toothpaste commercial, actor Arthur O'Connell has become so darned rich that he's unofficially retired from television and motion picture acting.

He flashes that gorgeous smile at the cameras about 20 times a year, and it has made him happily indifferent to a career in which his latest—and possibly his last—effort was the highly acclaimed "The Hiding Place."

Does he actually find the commercial world more lucrative than that of straight acting?

"You bet your life I do," he exclaimed, ever smiling.

OFFICE SEEKER — Robert Redford stars as Bill McKay, his party's choice to run for the United States Senate in "The Candidate," a film about the process of campaigning for political office in America, to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" March 18 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Redford Plays The Candidate

Robert Redford stars in the title role of "The Candidate," an insider's view of contemporary political campaigning, to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" March 18, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7. Melvyn Douglas and Peter Boyle co-star in the 1972 Warner Bros. release.

The Democratic party needs a candidate to oppose California Senator Crocker Jarmon, a conservative, in his bid for reelection. Campaign manager Marvin Lucas is seeking a fresh, new face and he settles upon Bill McKay, the idealistic son of John McKay, the state's former governor and still a powerful party influence.

An outspoken liberal given to causes to aid the poor, young McKay agrees to run, but only if he is allowed to speak freely and campaign without a hint of his father's support.

Soon, however, the party machine calls in image-makers headed by a high-powered public relations expert, and the inexperienced candidate's forthright statements are transformed into a party ideology. Ultimately, as the press questions the father's lack of interest in the race, the son seeks support and finds himself in a serious contention for the Senate seat.

Redford stars as Bill McKay, Melvyn Douglas as his father, John McKay, and Peter Boyle as Marvin Lucas. Senator Jarmon is portrayed by Don Porter.

Switched Personalities

It's sometimes hard to tell where Jason Robards, Jr., the man, leaves off and Jason Robards, Jr., the actor, begins. Especially when Robards plays Jamie Tyrone, the character Eugene O'Neill modeled after his older brother, in "A Moon for the Misbegotten."

The similarities are inescapable. Both Robards and the real Jamie were the older sons of a handsome, popular actor father. Each willingly chose to follow in his father's professional footsteps. Each had a sense of childhood rejection by an absent mother, but was considered very attractive to women.

On stage, Jamie and Robards have even aged together. Twenty years ago, Robards was the young prodigal Jamie in "Long Day's Journey into Night." Then, in 1973, he won a Tony as a much older Jamie — the alcoholic down-and-out actor in "A Moon for the Misbegotten," which was adapted for television last spring.

The TV version on UNC-TV Tuesday, March 18, 9 to 11 p.m., boasts the original Broadway cast — Robards and his Tony award-winning co-stars, Colleen Dewhurst as the earthy farm girl Josie Hogan and Ed Flanders as her crotchety father.

Again under the direction of Jose Quintero, they play out O'Neill's drama — a love story minus conventional love scenes that orbits around the relationship of Josie and Jamie and culminates in one revealing night of non-physical love.

Ever since Robards first played Hickey in O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh" 20 years ago, he's been closely identified with the playwright, whom many think he even resembles physically. But his connection with O'Neill goes back much farther — to World War II, when Robards, who had joined the Navy at 17, picked up a copy of "Strange Interlude" on board ship, read it and "knew I had to be an actor."

Pike's Peeks

By CHARLIE PIKE
TV Showtime staff writer

HOLLYWOOD—There's been neither a denial nor an admittance, but don't be surprised if Goldie Hawn and Bill Hudson of the Hudson Brothers singing group announce their wedding plans in the near future.

John Travolta, known to TV viewers as Vinnie Barbarino of "Welcome Back Kotter," has recorded an album, and a single from it will be released this month with the album to follow in April. Ironically, his manager predicted stardom for the New York native by the time he was 21. He was 21 in February.

Dina Dietrich is best known as Mother Nature in those TV commercials, but she's now co-starring opposite Danny Thomas in "The Practice," which makes her third series in as many years since moving from New York. She previously had featured roles in Karen Valentine's series as well as "Adam's Rib."

Even though Brenda Vaccaro has been dating actor Don Stroud, insiders are predicting that she and Michael Douglas will get back together at the church alter before year's end.

Patsy, Rahn, Richard Anderson and Bobie Jordan are new cast members on daytime's General Hospital."

Julie Andrews and hubby Blake Edwards, with two adopted Vietnamese war orphans swelling their brood, are planning to adopt still another orphan, this time from Korea.

Actor James Shigeta deserves a rhinestoned purple heart for his death scene he filmed in "Ohanian," the Mike Connors pilot. Possibly the most gruesome demise yet shot for TV, the script had Jimmy fall into a snake pit filled with over a dozen reptiles—including a boa constrictor. No doubles were used—no even for the snakes.

There're lotsa calls asking who the George C. Scott look-alike is who does the TV commercial in a "Patton" uniform. It's Chuck Blore. He's so immersed now in his Scott characterization, if he wins a Best Commercial Award, he says he'll refuse it.

Mayo Hopes To Expand

The ratings of "Grady" (Thursdays, 8:30 to 9 p.m.) have been low since it premiered in December, due in all probability to formidable opposition on the other networks. But series star Whitman Mayo says he can't let himself be concerned because it could hamper his performance.

The NBC "spinoff" from "Sanford and Son" has not caught the public's eye as much as the network had hoped, and since the game is numbers — which "Grady" doesn't have — the show will go off the air March 18, after a 13-week shot.

Mayo does the show in front of a live audience, and he says that he likes that aspect. "I think it helps me personally, but I don't know whether it makes my overall performance better. A live audience is better, particularly when you're doing comedy. The instant response tells me whether the line was good or not."

Starring in a TV series is not Mayo's ultimate goal. "I have many other goals, in addition to TV. I would like to become involved in the administrative end, and producing and directing shows as well. In addition, I have a travel agency that's doing well and I'd like to give more time to that. I have done a lot of drama, but not on TV. I like drama and I want to do more."

Mayo feels that there is a lot of himself in 'Grady,' in the philosophical sense. "Physically, there is very little other than the fact that Whitman is slow and easy moving."

Cure Sought

The search for a cure for a deadly epidemic sends two men on a desperate mission through time to Chicago in 1871 on the eve of the great Chicago fire in "Time Travelers," an exciting adventure drama airing on "The ABC Friday Night Movie," March 19, 9 to 10:30 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Produced by Irwin Allen, who brought "The Poseidon Adventure" and "The Towering Inferno" to the screen, and "Irwin Allen's Swiss Family Robinson" to television, "Time Travelers" is a pilot for a projected series. The movie stars Sam Groom and Tom Hallick with Richard Basehart as special guest star. Trish Stewart, Francine York and Booth Colman also star.

In "Time Travelers," the city of New Orleans is gripped in 1976 by an epidemic of a mysterious disease labeled "woods fever." The search for a cure brings together a young doctor, Earnshaw (Groom) and a research scientist, Adams (Hallick). A special government project enables both men to be sent back in time to 1871 where a Dr. Henderson (Basehart) had inadvertently stumbled upon a cure. Although Earnshaw and Adams are scheduled to spend four days in the past, a computer error allows them just one day to complete their mission before Dr. Henderson's invaluable files are destroyed by the Chicago fire.

TRAVELLERS — Sam Groom and Tom Hallick (l to r) are transported into the past by a time machine in a desperate effort to save a fever remedy from the disastrous Chicago fire of 1870 (bottom) in "The Time Travelers," a world premiere on ABC-TV's "The ABC Friday Night Movie" Friday, March 19 (9-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Actors Erased By Seuss

Ooblecks, wungs, sneetches, nizzards, a one-horned reindeer dog and a three-muffed apel moose naturally pose certain problems for the human producer-director of their television specials. But they are a joy to work with in one respect. These "stars" of the popular Dr. Seuss stories, in spite of their unique proportions, which demand specialized wardrobes, their peculiar vocabularies and their unusual ways, are never "kratunkulous," a Seussian word meaning temperamental.

"If one of our actors gives us any trouble, we just reach for an eraser," says Chuck Jones, director and co-producer, with Theodor (Dr. Seuss) Geisel, of "Dr. Seuss" Horton Hears a Who," Peabody Award-winning animated special to be rebroadcast Friday, March 19, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Channel 9.

Horton, the rhyme-scheming elephant who wraps his tongue around poetic lines as casually as most pachyderms chew peanuts, is no exception to the "kratunkulous" rule. The only problem caused by this big-hearted elephant, who goes to the rescue of the world's tiniest people, is the result of his wavy, fluffy ears and foot-long eyelashes.

Bringing to life the plication with a forthright teenager.

1:00 (6,7) Midnight Special: With Helen Reddy as host and guests imaginative Seuss creations, including a heroic pachyderm poet laureate of Seussdom, is not only a challenge to Jones, but an elephantine responsibility.

"Millions of youngsters all over the world are on intimate terms with these fantastic creatures that exist nowhere but in the fertile imagination of their creator," explains Jones. "In bringing them alive, through the animation process, one wrong expression or one missing detail could bring an army of enraged kids down on our heads."

The problem of incurring the "kratunkulosity" of little readers everywhere is compounded by the fact that Jones' famous partner, Geisel, has an uninhibited way of sketching his characters, often varying them in his books from page to page.

But the animation director and the artist-writer, who claims he "never learned to draw" and is "really just a doodler," has reached a artistic compromise in their tandem translation of the original Dr. Seuss "doodle drawings" to the animation board.

NEW DOLLS TO BE MARKETED SOON
 Mego International will soon release a new pair of dolls fashioned after the famous twosome, Sonny and Cher. The miniature Cher will come complete with navel and two dozen outfits.

Advice Unheeded

"This is about the first thing I've ever been asked to do that didn't require a funny voice," reported comedian John Byner, referring to his recurring role as dapper Dr. Roland Caine on "The Practice" (Fridays, 8:30 to 9 p.m., NBC Channel 6-7).

"People always think of me as an impressionist," Byner continued. "I'm a comic impressionist. I'm out there for the laughs."

He believes it's easier for an aspiring comedian to start his career as an impressionist.

"The big thing about doing impressions is that it gives you someone else to hide behind," he explained. "I stay pretty much with the voice, but with some people you have to include the mannerisms that are obvious to everyone."

When Byner first started doing impressions as a Navy man on Guam, he didn't dream of a career as an entertainer. Following discharge, he took a New York State aptitude test to see where his talents lay. Vocational counselors advised him to seek work either as a clothing designer or as an x-ray technician.

"I went home and prepared myself by making dresses out of old negatives," he commented with a straight face.

Later he worked as a sheet metal ("and finger") cutter, swimming pool maintenance man, truck driver for a stationery firm ("my first white collar job") and a plumber's apprentice.

DEAN SMITH— College basketball's winningest active coach over the last ten years, Dean Smith, proceeds into the NCAA regional competition with his sixth ACC regular season title in the past ten years. A triple-header of Regionals Finals will be corcast Saturday, March 20, at 12 noon on NBC-TV.

Smith Is A Tarheel Wizard

Dean Smith: A name that puts a grin on every Tarheel's face, and sends a chill up every ACC opponent's spine. He is a man of phenomenal talents, but one who also likes his privacy. In the Atlantic Coast Conference, where his Tarheels annually struggle, he is scorned as "that man who uses the four corners."

No matter what one thinks of Dean Smith, and opinions vary tremendously, there is little doubt that he is one of the most successful college basketball coaches ever. The University of North Carolina bids for its fifth Eastern Regional Championship in the last ten years on Saturday, March 20. The game will be broadcast as part of a triple-header airing on NBC from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

Here are just a few of the accomplishments over the last ten years that have made the "Tarheel Mastermind" the winningest active coach in college basketball over the last ten years:

He has won six of the last ten ACC regular season championships, and five of the last nine ACC tournament Crowns. Smith has also taken Carolina to a national post-season tournament each of the past nine years.

During the ten-year span, his team has won 237 games and lost only 68, a .734 average that becomes even more impressive considering the fact that he has won the great majority of those games in the rugged ACC.

In his first 11 years at Carolina, Dean took his teams to the final four games in NCAA play four times. Only five other coaches ever made it that many times in an entire career.

Smith received a tremendous singular honor last spring when he was picked to serve as head coach of the United States basketball team in the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal.

The Emporia, Kansas native is also one of the most innovative coaches in the game. He invented the run-and-jump defense, the point zone, team huddles at the foul line, and the famed four-corner offense.

Michele Will Tell

TO MRS. E. WILLIAMS, MADISON HEIGHTS, VA.: Anytime new writers are hired for a 'soap,' you can expect characters to be written off. Such is the case with "General Hospital." Those axed by the new writing team are: Ted Eccles (Bobby Chandler), Monica Gayle (Kate Marshall), Danny Black (Kyle Bradley), Marla Pennington (Samantha Chandler), Augusta Dabney (Caroline Baldwin) and, sadder still, Peter Hansen (Lee Baldwin), James Sikking (Jim Hobart), and Lucille Wall (Lucille Weeks).

TO MRS. A. LOCKLEAR, MAXTON, N.C.: Mart Hulswit has portrayed Ed Bauer in "The Guiding Light" since 1969. The multi-lingual (he speaks five languages) has guest-starred in numerous TV series, and among his film credits are "A Lovely Way to Die" and "Come Spy With Me." He lives in New York with his wife, Maria, and their two daughters.

TO B. BRANNON, ROCK HILL, S.C.: Robert Blake, now starring in "Baretta," was Mickey in "The Little Rascals" and Little Beaver in the "Red Ryder" series.

TO C.H.R. STAUNTON, VA.: For recipes that are featured on "The Betty Feezor Show," write to WWBT-TV, 5710 Midlothian Turnpike, P.O. Box 12, Richmond, Va. 23201.

TO C. WILSON, LITTLETON, N.C.: Ali MacGraw co-starred with Steve McQueen in "The Getaway." Yes, she's married . . . to him!

TO G. JACKSON, HARTSVILLE, S.C.: "Mod Squad" ran on ABC-TV for 5 years and is now a syndicated show. Actress Peggy Lipton who co-starred is now keeping house for hubby Quincy Jones and awaiting the arrival of their second child.

TO G. THOMPSON, CHAPEL HILL, N.C.: The original Snapper on "The Young and the Restless" was William Gray Espy who hails from Rome, Ga. Before his role as Snapper, he was in two films—"Gidget Gets Married" and "Kansas City Bomber." The handsome bachelor left the series to further his dramatic career.

New Series For Saturday

A new Saturday daytime schedule for 1976-77, designed to provide new forms of programming for young people while maintaining a successful balance between live and animated presentations, will be launched this fall on the CBS Television Network with four new series, along with many returning favorites. The announcement was made recently by Jerry Golod, Vice President, Children's Programs.

The four new series are "Clue Club" and "Tarzan: Lord of the Jungle," both in animation; and "Ark II" and "Way Out Games," live presentations.

Also, many popular favorites from the Warner Bros. library of animated classics join the celebrated cat and bird duo in the half-hour series "Sylvester and Tweety."

In making the announcement, Golod pointed out that the schedule was divided into three categories — from 8 to 10 a.m., animated comedy; from 10 a.m. to 12 Noon, adventure; and from 12 Noon to 2 p.m., a variety of entertainment including a live-and-animated series, new fun-filled games and a film festival.

Stars Reflect Olympics

She was regal, wearing a Palm Beach suit, as she stepped into the bright lights playing on the television studio set. She could have been a fashion model, a movie star or a jet setter just back from the French Riviera. The face had a classic beauty; the figure was eye catching. The overall effect of her presence under the lights was to stir a happy memory. She was Wilma Rudolph, 15 years later.

Thanks to producer Gerry Gross, Wilma Rudolph had stepped once more from private life into the public eye to relive her moments of glory in the 1960 Rome Olympics on "The Way It Was." The sports retrospective will be telecast Sunday, March 14, at 7:30 p.m., on PBS.

Bringing back Wilma Rudolph — who appeared, if anything, to be even more beautiful than when she was wearing the Olympic colors of the United States — was an act of pure nostalgia.

Appearing on the show with Ms. Rudolph and host Curt Gowdy are 1960 Olympic decathlon champion Rafer Johnson and, as guest commentator, the most famous U.S. Olympian of them all, Jesse Owens.

Filed highlights of her incredible three days of glory, when Ms. Rudolph won nine races to capture three gold medals, brought back the vision of her long, fluid stride and reminded Ms. Rudolph that her apparent calm in Olympic Stadium was misinterpreted by observers.

"I took naps between races," she confirmed, "But that was a nervous reaction. I was anything but relaxed. I had to have something to do, so I took naps."

Giant Eel

A young boy must prove himself to his friends through an act of bravery, so he sets out to capture a legendary monster, in "The Giant Eel," a 1971 film from Czechoslovakia, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, March 20, 1 to 2 p.m.

In the story, Tony, a city boy, visits his aunt in the country for the summer. Because he is little and unathletic, he finds that life there is rather unpleasant — the children, who have a local gang, are mean and don't take kindly to newcomers.

The gang spends most of its time in a deserted stone quarry that surrounds a quiet lagoon. Legend has it that a monster lives in the lagoon, and every year the bravest child tries to capture it. Tony decided that the only way to become accepted is to snare it himself.

"The Giant Eel," made at Barrandov Film studio, was directed by Ota Koval from a screenplay by Koval and Milan Simek. Tony is played by Jiri Kukol.

Aussies Vie For WCT Cup

Two Australians of contrasting styles and success meet in a WCT Challenge Cup Match, from Keauhoiekona, Hawaii. Rod Laver and John Alexander pit their Aussie pride against each other Sunday, March 14, 1:30 p.m., on NBC-TV.

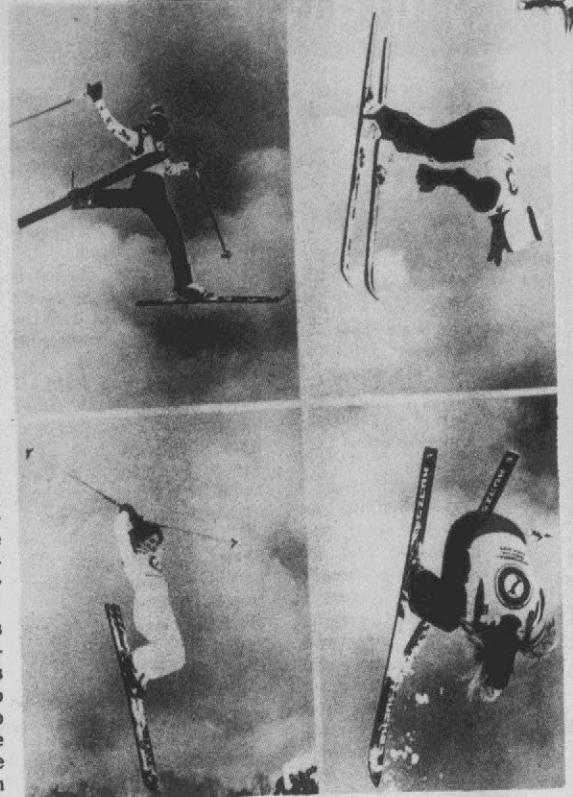

Eight years ago, John Alexander, or "J.A.," emerged from Sydney, Australia as the next national legend, but he gained recognition just last winter as a member of WCT's "Texas Rodeo Group." Against such talented "racketeers" as Harold Solomon, Mark Cox, Stan Smith, Dick Stockton and Bob Lutz, the 24-year-old compiled an excellent 26-8 record, winning the Fort Worth Tourney, and finishing first in the tough Red Group.

In the WCT Championship at Dallas, Texas, John again played well, soundly defeating Roscoe Tanner in straight sets before succumbing to eventual champion Arthur Ashe in a four-set semifinal.

Alexander's career began spectacularly at 17, when he became the youngest man ever to play in a Davis Cup Challenge Round at age 17, earning him nearly $100,000. Last summer, he reached the Chicago final, the 16's of the French, and upset Manuel Orantes at the U.S. Pro. The '70s could be very good to this still young 24-year-old.

Rod Laver is, of course, a legend in this time, the vertiable "Rocket" who may be the greatest left-hander ever to play the game. He has a superb backhand, a fine return of service and a fast and deceptive forehand, especially when under pressure.

This Australian machine has won a room full of championships, including singles titles in four Wimbledons, two U.S. Opens, two French and two Italian Opens, as well as three singles crowns in this native Australia. He has also won numerous titles in doubles and mixed doubles competition.

UP AND AWAY — You'll be seeing spectacular maneuvers like these (clockwise from upper left) the spread eagle, forward flips and the tip drop — when ABC Sports presents, "Skiing Free — The Colgate National Women's Freestyle Skiing Championships" Friday, March 19 (10:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12. The special takes an inside look at free style skiing competition including training methods and techniques as well as coverage of competition from Stowe, Vermont

Tatum Is Roundball

"The most talented player I've ever coached."

That's what Marquette University's basketball coach, Al McGuire, says about his super-talented forward, Earl Tatum. Considering the fact that the "hot Irishman" has coached such players as Dean "The Dream" Meminger, Jim Chones and Maurice Lucas, he has played quite a compliment to the 6'6" senior. Tatum, Coach McGuire and the rest of the Marquette University Warriors will be attacking the Midwest Regionals with a vengeance, hoping to finally win that elusive NCAA title.

The Midwest, Eastern and Mideast Regionals will be broadcast on Saturday, March 20, on NBC-TV from 12 noon to 6 p.m.

The tremendous overall talent that Earl possesses can be seen in the fact that he was a guard last season during various contests, quite an effort for a 6'6" player. But then, the Mt. Vernon, New York native has always been an unselfish participant in the Warrior cause.

In his junior year, Tatum averaged just 13.6 points per game, but his shooting percentage was better than 48 per cent, indicating an excellent ability to select good shots. He also pulled off 182 rebounds last season, an average of 6.7 per game. His best game was a 22 point, ten rebound night against Wisconsin.

Earl was a consensus prep All-American at Mount Vernon, where he teamed with former collegiate All-Americans Gus Williams of USC and Rudy Hackett of Syracuse. He scored 22.7 points, grabbed 9.5 rebounds and added 6.5 assists per game as a high school senior.

Coach Al McGuire, who sports a strong 352-135 record as Marquette coach, has nothing but the highest praise for his senior co-captain.

"Just watch Earl move," McGuire says. "He's a thoroughbred. He has the soft stroke, the smooth moves and the steady pace. He's stylish. We'll be able to swing him to the backcourt more and use him as a zone-breaker. But he'll still have to be a retriever for us around the boards."

Marquette has been highly successful in their basketball efforts, perhaps the best independent over the last ten years. But their ultimate goal is that of every major college team: the NCAA Championship. This year, the Warriors suffered only one loss during the regular season. 1976 appears to be an excellent opportunity for Marquette to finally win their first NCAA crown.

ANDY GRIFFITH SINGS FOR TV MOVIE

Andy Griffith has been signed to star in "For the People," a 90-minute "ABC Movie of the Week" and a possible pilot for a series. Filming will be on location in New York and Los Angeles.

Havlicek Is Magician

What more can you say about a man who owns numerous basketball records, a player who is literally always in the right place at the right time? Simply say that John Havlicek, Boston's incomparable "Hondo," is one of the greatest athletes ever to play the roundball game. The Boston Celtics face the Washington Bullets in a key NBA contest on Sunday, March 14, at 1:30 p.m.

You can quote statistic after statistic that magnify the greatness of the Ohio State graduate. In 1974, Hondo led the Celts in scoring with a 22.6 average, and was the team's best play-maker with a 5.9 average. He was also third in rebounding behind Dave Cowens and Paul Silas, and led the Boston club to an NBA Championship. John is consistently named to the All League Team and NBA All Defensive Team, attesting to his all-around value.

He has passed the 20,000 point mark already in all-time scoring, but the most important accomplishment has been his participation in eleven play-offs and seven World Championship teams. Havlicek has also been a starter on the East Team in the All Star Game ten consecutive times.

Hondo was an All American at Ohio State on a team that featured former NBA Stars John Lucas and Larry Siegfried. Few people know that he was the final man cut by the Cleveland Browns before joining the Celtics. His friend from high school, Atlanta pitcher Phil Neikro, claims, "He would have been a superstar in baseball, if he followed it up."

Visits Heartburn City

You might say that Marco Lopez, who plays "Fireman Lopez" in the "Emergency!" series (Saturdays, 8 to 9 p.m. on NBC Channel 6-7) has cooked his way into the hearts of the cast and crew of the action-adventure series.

"In fact, you might say that I've cooked my way all the way from "Dragnet" to and through "Emergency!", Lopez says. "It all started as a dare back during "Dragnet," when we would talk about hobbies between takes and I admitted I liked to cook. The guys said, 'Prove it.' I set up a hotplate backstage on Stage 33 and whipped up a couple of Mexican dishes. That was the start."

In the "Dragnet" days, Lopez used to double for Jack Webb in long shots, as well as performing in small roles. Webb is a great one for keeping the same actors on salary in various capacities, whatever show he is doing. So when Webb's Mark VII productions began "Emergency!", Lopez was retained, this time as a full regular in the cast, a member of the fictional "Fire Station 51" crew. And in the Fire Station is a fully operative gas stove, which meant that Marco could turn out a complete Mexican meal, rather than an occasional hors d'oeuvre. Now when the cast and crew are on Universal Studio's Stage 41, the Rampart General Hospital set across the street from Stage 33, Lopez will seize the opportunity for fixing quesadillas (fried tortillas filled

More cigarette VS. your cigarette.

1. Is your cigarette as long and as lean as our cigarette for more pleasure, more style?
2. Does your cigarette draw as easy as our cigarette for more tobacco enjoyment?
3. Does your cigarette smoke slower than a 100 mm cigarette for more smoking time?
4. Does your cigarette come in a burnished brown wrap so it looks as good as it smokes?
5. Does your cigarette sit neat in your hand like it was made for it and fit your face like it found a home?
6. Does your cigarette give you all this yet cost no more than a 100 mm cigarette (which means more for your money)?

If the answer to all these questions is yes, your cigarette is probably More. Because there's only one cigarette that's so much more. More.

The first 120mm cigarette.

FOR LAINIE KAZAN, singer

Has your sexy image helped your career, or would you have gotten this far without it?—T. F. Moore, Danville, Va.

● Helped, but I like the sexy look, not the sound. It all began when I understudied Barbra Streisand in "Funny Girl." People kept asking, "Why aren't you a star like Barbra?" I asked myself what I had that Barbra didn't, and came up with a photo campaign that stressed the voluptuous me. I guess the public took me less seriously as a result. The private me is no different. I don't walk around exposing myself, but I'm not very inhibited. Also, just for the record, there's more in my head than sex.

FOR JOHNNY CARSON

On a recent show you were handed a check for a million dollars by a Hollywood agent who said it was yours to keep if you played a certain movie part. Was the check real? Are you going to play the part?—J. Brydges, Grand Rapids, Mich.

● Yes, the million-dollar check was for real. I still haven't decided if I'll do the part, but I haven't returned the check yet.

FOR MICHAEL LEARNED, star of "The Waltons"

Does having children of your own make your role as Mother Walton more realistic?—Shannon Skinnell, Pasco, Wash.

● Of course. I'm sure that's why I was chosen for the part of "Olivia." There were so many other actresses, more beautiful and talented than me, who didn't get the part. I guess they didn't show or feel the great love for children that I did.

FOR GOV. GEORGE WALLACE of Alabama

● I am in support of a Constitutional amendment which would protect the lives of unborn children and which would nullify the Supreme Court decision on abortions.

FOR COACH TOM LANDRY of the Dallas Cowboys Football Club

You're active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and are a devout person. How do you justify the Dallas Cowboys' praying for victory before each football game? Certainly the Good Lord has more important things to consider.—R. C. Wright, Durham, N.C.

● We never pray for our football team to win; we only pray that God will help us use whatever abilities we have so that we may perform at the best level possible during the game.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

Was there ever a time when you wished the floor would swallow you up?—B.S., Biloxi, Miss.

● And how! I was in Las Vegas, where nudity is the norm. But, even so, when my bra worked loose during my dancing routine, I thought I'd drop dead of embarrassment. No one noticed—they were so busy watching the show girls—and I yanked it up as soon as I felt it slip. But I felt the whole world saw and was laughing at me.

FOR SEN. HOWARD H. BAKER (R-Tenn.)

What advice do you have for a future lawyer?—C. Kennedy Janecky, Denver, Colo.

● Have a healthy command of the English language. It's essential. Also a good grounding in English grammar and composition.

FOR BILL HUDSON of The Hudson Brothers

I've heard of the great love you Hudsons have for your mom, but I bet you can't answer this: What was the first present you ever got her?—T.D., Boise, Idaho

● How much do you bet? When we were small—I was 6, Mark was 4 and Brett, 2—we decided we wanted Mom to smell nice, so we got the cheapest, strongest perfume we could find at the five and dime. We chipped in and got a 15-cent bottle of "Atom Bomb." When we gave it to Mom, she cried and hugged us and said she'd use it forever. So we still put a bottle of "Atom Bomb" in with her other presents.

FOR TOTIE FIELDS

I have the same kind of figure as yours. You always look well turned-out. I, don't. What advice do you have for me?—V.G., Little Rock, Ark.

● The first thing to remember is that it's not necessary to be a size 6 to look cute. The second is that women of our width and girth should not wear clothes that are glued on. Flowing things are the secret—not so loose that we look like walking tents, but styles that aren't fitted, that give an inch of space between us and the dress. And it's a fallacy that gals like us can't wear bright colors and flashy designs!

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Is it true that Clifton Davis, who plays the son on "That's My Mama," almost died of tuberculosis?—E. R. Davis, Gainesville, Fla.

● Cliff had open-heart surgery as a teenager. At 9, during a baseball game, he passed out after hitting a home run. That's when his heart trouble was discovered, and he had to cut out sports. He was more heartbroken about that than about being sick: "Kids are judged by their performance in sports," said Cliff. "It was the quickest way to become popular—which I wanted to be." Cliff says he wasn't nervous before the operation, but he sure was afterward when he realized how delicate it was. "I was in the hospital for two months before the operation. I was 'built up' for it. All the gorgeous nurses adopted me. I was spoiled, and loved it." Now he's cured and can swim, ski, play tennis and football.

Four People of Note—

A Gina's-Eye View

Gina Lollobrigida still looks every inch a movie star. But now, in addition to her film work, she has made a very sizable reputation for herself as a photographer. Here are some of the celebrities and VIP's Gina has photographed—along with her comments.

HENRY KISSINGER

When I set out to photograph the most interesting men in the world, I thought first of Henry Kissinger. I had never met Dr. Kissinger, but I had heard about his dramatic accomplishments as well as his romantic life. He was evidently a man with charm, brains and the ability to balance his public and private worlds.

Dr. Kissinger and I chatted for more than an hour. I found him remarkably open, honest and charming. He is much younger, much stronger in the flesh than he appears in photographs; and he has great self-confidence. He is not a handsome man, but he will tell you that almost instantly. "I am not photogenic," he said as he showed me a picture of himself in Russia. "I hope you can do better." I told him that looks don't matter when I photograph. "It's the personality I want to capture on film—not just looks."

I asked him what kind of women he liked. He answered "strong, intelligent." I found him interesting, with a good sense of humor. "I have written a book, but not a successful book like yours," he said. "A German critic said that a reader may not find me a good writer, but he will find himself a good reader." Dr. Kissinger explained to me that his book was extremely long.

At the first photographic session, I had to work quickly. Kissinger was not at ease before the camera. Trying to make him relax, I chattered away, saying "Oh, you will look very good on this half of the film because on the other half I still have the kangaroos from Australia." He laughed openly and I knew that would be a good picture.

Here is part of a conversation I had with him:

ME: I got used to publicity because I am a film star, but you, you are a politician, and I'd like to know what you feel when they call you "superstar." And, do you read everything they write about you?

HE: No, I don't read everything they write about me. I really never thought to become a "superstar." And all this happened so quickly . . . I can't get accustomed to the idea.

ME: When you are no longer Secretary of State, although I hope this will never happen . . .

HE: My staff hopes the opposite . . .

ME: Your staff? You mean your enemies . . .

HE: No, my staff. They are so tired of this rhythm of life that they hope it will soon finish. You will see, the day is not so far away . . .

ME: When the day does come, what will you do?

HE: I don't think about it. It's always difficult to know what you will do tomorrow, especially if you have worked in politics for so long. Anyway, I'm sure I won't be a teacher again.

ME: Dr. Kissinger, you are always so busy, traveling the whole time all the world over to bring peace where there is a danger of war. How can you relax?

HE: I like to swim. Swimming is the best sport to keep fit the whole time, to get energy. The rest of the time . . . as you said, I'm working.

ME: You are certainly a lucky man. You are married but, whereas other married men come back home at night, you, most of the time, you are so far away . . .

HE: You must say my wife is lucky.

ME: Did marriage change your life?

HE: I'm much quieter now. I'm very happy with my wife and there is a wonderful relationship between us.

Famed painter Dali throws Gina's lens a look of amazement.

SALVADOR DALI

Dali is the sort of man you feel you have known all your life. I can't say when I first met him. I was always bumping into him in Paris or New York.

Dali is a great talker; he is weird, wonderful and a genius. His life is an uninterrupted series of surprises. He was born in Figueras, at the foot of the Spanish Pyrenees, in 1904, the son of a notary. He ran through the gamut of modern European art. He illustrated a lot of books, including a cookbook. He also designed jewelry, and, in 1928, he staged the famous short film, "Un Chien Andalou," which was directed by his friend Luis Buñuel.

I photographed him while he was working on his latest painting, which shows Dali in the act of painting his wife, Gala (who has always been his model). All this is represented with a system of mirrors. Dali calls it "tri-dimensional painting."

While I was taking pictures, he promised me that he would organize a special corrida de toros (bull fight) for me. But he will never keep this promise because neither of us will ever have enough time to do it.

He also told me that he had designed the fabulous jeweled brooch that his wife wore. I didn't dare touch it: I knew Dali would have thrown it away because he believes that a jewel must only be touched by the person who wears it.

Dali is a very wealthy man. Somebody once accused him of loving money too much. Personally, I don't think this is true. Rather, money gives him the measure of his worth; money is the final confirmation for him that he is an eminent painter. He works so hard for hours and hours at a time, sometimes by candlelight, in the hard labor of creation. He needs some reward.

"I was given permission to visit the mine. I think this was the most unpleasant experience of my life."

HARRY OPPENHEIMER SOUTH AFRICA'S DIAMOND KING

I'm pretty sure that, after me, nobody will ever be able to photograph and interview Harry Oppenheimer again. The experiences of that day must have scared him. Shy and discreet as he is, he was completely lost among all the cameras, lights, flash guns, movie equipment, microphones and technicians. It was for a special TV series on the world's most important people.

Harry Oppenheimer controls 80 percent of the world's gold and diamonds. He is a quiet, simple man with a wonderful wife and two grown children. I asked him a straightforward question: "Mr. Oppenheimer, you know what diamonds mean to us women: what do they mean to you?" He answered in perfect English: "I must say that my work is very romantic. I enjoy it. Going beyond the fact that you have to dig them out, diamonds have something romantic that other products don't have."

The day after our interview, I was given permission to visit the mine. I think this was the most unpleasant experience of my life. I went underground with the miners to a depth of 8,856 feet. After a first descent on a lift—it drops the first 4,428 feet at 25 miles per hour—we walked about half a mile before reaching a second lift that dropped another 4,428 feet, bringing us to the actual workings. There was an oppressive, suffocating heat. I took my photographs without being able to see anything around me. My camera was wet, and my only concern was to avoid fainting. Actually I didn't faint, thanks to an air pipe that one of the miners gave me from time to time. How I valued that fresh, breathable air. We came out into the sunlight, after having walked again that long, long corridor. The floor was slippery because of the oil they sprayed on it to prevent the dust from flying about in the air, otherwise it would have been impossible to breathe.

The day after my visit, they found a really big diamond, weighing 616 carats, in that very mine. It was the ninth largest diamond in the world. Mr. Oppenheimer told me that they wouldn't cut it, but would put it in the company museum.

Mr. Oppenheimer, who is really very kind, gave me a "small" diamond of 6 carats.

I interviewed and photographed Mrs. Gandhi, the Prime Minister of India, in her comfortable personal home in New Delhi. This was before Mrs. Gandhi had so harshly commanded the Indian Government and its press.

I was astonished that her home was not one of those enormous majestic palaces where previous leaders of India lived. Instead it was a modest home of about 10 rooms in the middle of a medium-sized flower-filled garden. I was in the garden when Mrs. Gandhi appeared and began playing with her grandchildren, like any other grandmother. At that moment, it was hard to believe that she was responsible for the destiny of more than 600 million souls.

On the subject of her country, she said: "We feel that India is greatly misunderstood by people outside, partly because of the tendency of the press to highlight what seems spectacular or different. So the people outside focus on the poverty. Before they used to speak only about maharajahs or snake charmers. We don't want to be an imitation of Europe. So many developing nations have changed so much that their own personalities have become submerged. We have many traditions that we would like to keep. But there are also some bad things that we have to sweep out.

"I think in today's world it is very important to be oneself. Everything is becoming so mechanical and fast-moving that people tend to be annihilated. People are alienating themselves from nature and creating so much competition and rivalry that nobody is even happy when he gets things he wants. So I think the real things are to know yourself and to try to know others. And I think it's by working for something much bigger than oneself that one eventually finds happiness.

"We need to ask each other questions about what sort of world we want and what we can do with it and what sort of people we want to be. I think there has been a tendency for only a few people to decide what everybody wants, and now we should involve all people in appreciating the good things of the world or in trying to fight the bad things."

I asked Mrs. Gandhi what she wished for herself and India in the year ahead. She answered:

"My own life is so involved in the country's life that I can't really think of myself as something separate. So my wish would be that we have good crops and that we will be able to handle inflation and shortages. And that our people will have a better understanding of what has been done in the past years and what is being done now. I think that if they have this measure of understanding, they will be one step closer to achieving greater satisfaction."

I don't judge my cigarette by its length.

There's only one reason to smoke: taste.
Not length. Not looks. Winston Super King gives me the real Winston taste I like and the extra length I want. So I get as much taste per millimeter as any cigarette can give. For me, Winston is for real.

Step up to our Melting Pot Buffet and sample: Sangria, Old Country Hearth Bread, Rumanian Cabbage Rolls, Italian Eggplant Parmigiana, Hot Chinese Szechuan Pepper Beef, Irish Soda Bread and Russian Pashka.

EASTER CHEESE PASHKA (From Russia)

- 2 pkgs. (8-oz. size) cream cheese
- 2 cups small curd cottage cheese
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- ½ cup finely diced mixed candied fruits
- ¼ cup chopped raisins
- ¼ cup slivered almonds
- ½ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, for garnish
- Whole candied cherries, for garnish

1. In large bowl, with electric mixer, beat cream cheese until soft and creamy. Gradually add cottage cheese, sugar and vanilla and beat to get a fluffy mixture.
2. Stir in fruits, raisins and almonds. Then gradually add melted butter, beating at medium speed. Fold in whipped cream.
3. Line a clean, 6-inch, plastic or clay flowerpot with a double layer of cheese cloth. Spoon cheese mixture into pot; cover with foil and set on rack over pie plate. Put a weight on top of cheese mixture (a pound of butter works well) and let pashka drain. Refrigerate for 24 hours.

4. Invert onto plate and carefully peel off cheese cloth. To decorate, pipe on tinted whipped cream. Garnish with whole candied cherries.
5. Serve in thin wedges—needless to say it is very rich.

Makes 12 to 16 servings

Editor's Note: For 6 to 8 servings, divide recipe in half and use a smaller flowerpot for molding.

WHEAT GERM SODA BREAD (From Ireland)

- 2 cups wheat germ
- 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup seedless raisins
- 1 tablespoon caraway seed, optional
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- 1¾ cups buttermilk

1. Preheat oven to 375°F. In large bowl, combine wheat germ, flour, baking powder, soda, salt, raisins and caraway seed. Mix well with hands.

2. Add oil and buttermilk. Mix until dry ingredients are moistened. (Dough will be sticky.)
3. Divide dough in half and shape into 2 mounds. Place each in a greased 8-inch layer pan. Make a crosswise cut in top of each loaf with sharp, floured knife. Bake for 40 to 45 minutes. Makes 2 loaves

EGGPLANT PARMIGIANA (From Italy)

- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- 1 cup fresh or frozen chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
- 1 can (8 ozs.) tomato sauce
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon basil leaves
- ½ teaspoon oregano leaves
- ½ cup wheat germ
- ½ cup fine, dry bread crumbs

- 1 eggplant, about 1½ lbs.
- 2 eggs, beaten
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- 1 pkg. (6 ozs.) sliced mozzarella cheese
- ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

1. In 2-qt. saucepan, heat ¼ cup vegetable oil, add onion and garlic. Sauté, stirring until golden, about 8 minutes.
2. Stir in undrained tomatoes, tomato sauce, ½ teaspoon salt, sugar, basil and oregano. Bring to boiling; cover, reduce heat and simmer for 20 minutes. Break up tomatoes if they are still whole.
3. On sheet of waxed paper, combine wheat germ, bread crumbs and ½ teaspoon salt.
4. Cut eggplant crosswise into ½-inch slices. Dip in beaten egg, then in wheat-germ mixture, coating both sides.
5. Heat ½ cup oil in large skillet, cook eggplant in single layer over medium heat about 2½ minutes per side, until tender and coating is golden. Drain on paper towels or brown paper.

6. Preheat oven to 400°F. Pour half of tomato sauce in shallow 2-qt. casserole. Layer overlapping slices of eggplant in sauce. Cover with cheese slices. Top with remaining sauce and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.
7. Bake for 20 to 30 minutes, or until hot and bubbly.

Makes 4 to 6 servings

Editor's Note: If heat is too high, wheat germ will burn before eggplant is tender. This entree may be prepared ahead up to final baking and then refrigerated.

POTATO-CHEESE SOUFFLE (From Switzerland)

- 2 teaspoons plus 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1½ cups (6 ozs.) frozen hash brown potatoes or frozen Southern hash brown potatoes
- ½ cup chopped onion or frozen chopped onion, thawed and drained
- ¼ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 cup (¼ lb.) grated natural Gruyère or Swiss cheese

Laszlo

Borrowing from the food-loving Swiss: Potato-Cheese Soufflé and Sauce Soubise.

4 large eggs, separated, room temperature
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
Sauce Soubise (recipe follows)

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Using 2 teaspoons butter, butter a 2-qt. straight-side soufflé dish and coat with crumbs.
2. In skillet, heat vegetable oil, add hash brown potatoes and onion. Cook, stirring, until thawed and all liquid has evaporated; set aside.
3. In medium saucepan, melt remaining butter over low heat. Remove from heat; blend in flour, salt, pepper and nutmeg.

Gradually add milk and stir until smooth.

4. Over medium heat, bring to boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in cheese and hash brown-onion mixture. Let cool slightly.
5. In large bowl, beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff peaks form; set aside. With same beater, in small bowl, beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored; stir into cheese mixture.
6. Fold cheese-potato sauce into egg whites (either a large wire whisk or a large rubber scraper is excellent). Pour mixture into prepared soufflé dish.

7. Bake 50 to 55 minutes, or until soufflé is well risen and top is deep golden brown. Serve immediately with Sauce Soubise. Makes 4 to 6 servings

Sauce Soubise

- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 2½ cups milk
- 1 cup chopped onion or frozen chopped onion
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground white pepper
- ¼ teaspoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg

1. In medium saucepan, heat butter until melted. Continue cooking, stirring, until butter turns a light nut brown. Remove from heat.
2. Blend in flour until smooth. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring, until sauce comes to boil.
3. Add onion, salt, pepper, sugar and nutmeg. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer for 3 to 5 minutes. Serve as is or blend in electric blender before serving.

Makes 2½ cups sauce

(From China)

- 1 lb. beef flank steak, partially frozen
- 4 tablespoons soy sauce
- 3 tablespoons dry sherry
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- ¼ teaspoon Accent, optional
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 teaspoons crushed red pepper
- 1 carrot, julienne cut
- 1 rib celery, julienne cut
- 2 fresh green chili peppers,* seeded and julienne cut
- 1 green or red pepper
- 3 large cloves garlic, minced
- ¼ cup water
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- Cooked rice, served alongside

1. Slice beef into ¼-inch thick slices on the diagonal.
2. Combine beef with soy sauce, sherry, sugar, Accent and salt.
3. Heat ½ cup oil in large skillet or wok. Add beef and cook, stir-frying until partially cooked but still rare.
4. In a medium skillet, heat 2 tablespoons oil; add crushed red peppers and heat 30 to 60 seconds, or until peppers start to smoke and look burned. Strain oil and return to skillet; discard peppers.
5. Add carrot, celery, chili peppers and green pepper to skillet. Stir-fry until cooked but still crisp.

FRED LYNN: Record-Breaking Rookie
Who's "Just Unbelievable"

Fred Lynn's constant striving for self-improvement had Detroit catcher Bill Freehan shaking his head in admiration one day last summer. Freehan came out to the ball park early for a game against the Boston Red Sox, expecting to see some of his own teammates. "Instead, I saw Fred Lynn. He'd just had a hitting streak of 20 straight games, and yet he was out there taking extra batting practice." Apparently the extra practice paid off because Lynn gave a sensational performance that day, hitting three home runs and a triple and batting in another 10 runs to lead the Sox to a 15-1 victory over the Tigers. His performance set a new rookie record for total bases in a game. Boston coach Don Zimmer commented later, "In all of my 27 years in this game, I've never seen anyone do everything—hit, hit for power, field, throw—like this kid. He's just unbelievable." ... Lynn credits determination and a willingness to work hard as the reasons for his phenomenal success. His dad, Fred Lynn, Sr., started hammering those "old-fashioned" virtues into him when he was four years old. "He had me work out with him in the backyard—throwing, hitting and pitching," Lynn recalls. "When I did well, he pointed out I could still do better." ... The 23-year-old Lynn is one of the small number of major-leaguers who came into organized baseball from the college ranks (he went to the University of Southern California on a football scholarship). In 1973 he was drafted by the Red Sox. Last year Lynn became the first player in history to win "Rookie of the Year" and "Most Valuable Player" in the same season. How does Lynn react to these honors? "I'm not interested in having a lot of people around me," he says. "I don't like to put on any façade." —By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

When to Take a Cold Sore Seriously

When a cold sore occurs on the lips, it is usually only a nuisance. But when it spreads, or occurs in the eye, the genital organs or the nervous system, it can be grave. Some kinds of cold sore viruses can be particularly dangerous in pregnant women because they can be passed on to the child. Viruses are responsible for a large range of infectious diseases, and the virus infections tend to recur. That is because viruses multiply in the cells. When a cell divides, the virus is spread. If you have a cold sore or fever blister, what can you do? First, avoid spreading infection by towels, tableware or touching with fingers. Second, apply compound tincture of benzoin. This will seal off the cold sore and reduce discomfort. If the infection spreads, see your doctor. He may want to give you an antiviral drug to help combat the infection.

The Diet Watch

Some Fatty Facts About Meat and Chicken

There's chicken, and there's chicken. A dieter should know that certain foods vary enormously in their calorie content.

A small broiling or frying chicken has about 380 calories in a pound, while a stewing hen has about 990 calories per pound! The rule is: Small, young birds are lean. Some "leans" in beef are bottom round or rump roast; some "fats" are sirloin steaks, brisket and ribs. Lamb? Leg of lamb is the leanest—the parts to skip are breast, rib, loin, shoulder. With pork, the leg—fresh ham—is a good choice. Veal is fairly low in calories anyway, with best choices being leg, shoulder, shank. Generally, the more mature the animal, the more fat it will have. When you're a dinner guest, you save yourself 240 calories for every ounce of fat you leave on the plate, so leave what you can cut off.

Tanya Tucker: My Ten Favorite Records

Tanya Tucker said she decided to be a singer at 9: "I went after it like a dog after a bone." When her father finally became convinced that his daughter was serious, he scraped together enough money so that Tanya could cut a demo tape. In March 1972, Tanya's first record was released. "Delta Dawn" soon hit the No. 1 spot on country charts. During the next four years, Tanya had hit after hit. At age 16, Tanya signed with MCA Records. Her latest album is "Lovin' and Learnin'."

Jobmanship

How to Impress The Job Interviewer

Many job seekers lessen their chances by wasting valuable interview-time talking about, "Why I want this job." The interviewer isn't really interested in that. You'll impress him more if you concentrate on how your experience and attitude will be useful to the company. Western Temporary, a nationwide placement service with 142 offices, has interviewed hundreds of thousands of people. They suggest that many applicants fail to obtain the jobs they seek because: 1) They don't evaluate what they really can do and so underrate themselves. 2) They're not flexible enough. They arrive at the meeting with a set idea of the kind of job they want. Though other excellent types of opportunities may be suggested by the interviewer, they don't readjust their ideas. 3) They give the impression that they're "prima donnas." An attitude of "let's try it and see" will take you a lot farther. Western has also discovered that you strengthen your chances by leaving a complete written résumé with the interviewer and by being an interview early-bird. Monday is better than Friday, and morning job meetings go better than afternoon ones.

Overspenders and Underspenders: What Makes 'Em Tick?

The Joneses own the finest camera, the most superb hi-fi and dine at the best restaurants. "Enjoy your money now," they say, "you can't take it with you." The Smiths, who earn about the same amount but spend it more carefully, wonder if they are wrong to give up present pleasure for future security. According to psychologists, people who yield to their desires for all of life's good things "right now" may be guilty of "instant gratification." They have not yet developed the maturity to learn the value (or necessity) of postponing their wants. Also, a person may be grasping because he is trying to gain social status or trying to bolster his ego or make up for what he didn't have as a youngster. A marriage can head downhill if only one partner feels this way: the spouse with a "nothing-but-the-best" philosophy often sees the other as stingy. Warning: The overcautious person who postpones too many satisfactions can be just as troublesome. One wife, 23, told a family counselor she couldn't buy groceries because her husband, 26, kept investing all their money!

When people took my picture, I used to put the baby in front of me to hide my fat.

By Eileen Elfenbein — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

I'm a registered nurse. And while I was in training, there wasn't a day that went by that I didn't see a new mother leave the maternity ward with a bundle of love in her arms and a heap of fat on her thighs and backside. Still I didn't learn. The day I left the hospital with my first baby, I weighed 168 pounds.

It's not as if I didn't know better. But having been a working girl until my pregnancy, I found it difficult to stay home for nine months with nothing much to do but clean house, watch television and empty the refrigerator. By that I mean eat whatever was in it, before filling it up again.

As the scale climbed (to 180 pounds), I kept telling myself it was mostly water—which I'd get rid of when the baby came. And whatever extra pounds that were left, I figured I'd take off immediately after. What a joke! All I dropped the day my daughter was born was 12 pounds, leaving me with 168 pounds to carry around.

My first reaction was to do something that would turn people's eyes away from my fat. So I paid special attention to my hair. That way, I hoped people would look at me from my neck up only. Unfortunately, it didn't stop my husband from looking up and down at me.

Each time we'd go shopping for clothes, he'd reach for a size 9 and say: "Why don't you buy this?" It was his way of telling me to lose weight. But all it did was make me go home and munch on cheese doodles, hot dogs, candy corn, chocolate—or anything else in the house.

From time to time, of course, I'd go on a self-styled diet, but with little success. Yet I would never take reducing-drug pills or water pills. I don't believe in them.

In desperation, I decided to go back to work. My daughter was walking then and by taking the three-to-eleven shift, I was able to take turns with my husband caring for her. Only listen to what happened. You've heard of people having a tough time finding a job because they're too fat. Well, I had a hard time staying on the job because of cracks about my weight. I got so embarrassed that I quit. Just took off for home in Old Bridge, New Jersey.

I don't know what made me think putting my 9-pound baby daughter on my lap could hide my 168 pounds.

At 112 pounds, I don't need to stand behind anyone to cover up my figure.

It was around New Year's, I remember, and I made a resolution right then to lose weight. I had seen those stories in magazines about people who'd lost on the Ayds plan, so I decided to try it. I bought a box of Ayds* Reducing Plan Candy, the chocolate fudge kind, at my drug store. I liked the fact that Ayds contained vitamins and minerals, but no drugs or medications.

I read the directions carefully. Then I took one or two Ayds before meals with a hot drink and they really helped satisfy my appetite.

For breakfast, I'd have one Ayds and hot tea; then orange juice and a toasted bagel with half a teaspoon of jelly or margarine. Lunch, I'd have Ayds again and maybe a tuna fish salad. And for dinner, Ayds and tea before a hamburger or steak, or maybe fish.

string beans, and diet soda. Then in the evening, I'd have a couple of Ayds for snacks.

That way I was able to keep my intake of calories low, yet feel satisfied. As a result, I lost one pound the first week on the Ayds plan. Three pounds the second. And two pounds the third. Being a nurse, I knew it was much smarter to lose weight gradually than rapidly.

In five months, I lost 43 pounds on the Ayds plan. But that's not the best of it. I found with the plan that I could have all sorts of delicious cookies, candies and snacks at home for my husband and friends, yet not be tempted myself.

Actually, I changed my eating habits enough with the help of Ayds so that I was able to get down to 112 pounds by fall. Why, the only plump one at our Thanksgiving table was the bird. As for me, my friends said I was all bones. But my husband said I suited his taste just fine. And he meant it. Thanks to the Ayds plan, I never have to hide behind my child these days.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People of only average good looks have the edge when it comes to making friends.
2. Unattractive women are more likely to stick up for their rights than attractive women.
3. Whether or not a man is wearing a tie makes a marked difference in how people size him up.
4. The best-looking girls are also likely to have the best personalities.
5. A woman should choose clothes that make her look the way she really is.
6. Physical attractiveness tends to go hand-in-hand with a happier life, better psychological health and greater self-esteem.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies conducted by psychologists from two leading universities show that individuals of better-than-average attractiveness tend to be perceived by others as less approachable in any social situation. The investigation also showed that when people are in need of advice or assistance, they are more likely to approach a person of modest looks. And other research has shown that most people tend to feel more comfortable and at ease in the presence of someone whose looks are on the plain side, particularly when that person is only a slight acquaintance.
2. False—as indicated by university studies which showed that physically attractive females are quicker to assert themselves, to stand up for their rights and not let themselves be slighted or pushed around. Evidence indicates that a good-looking girl is much less likely to stand still for patronizing treatment than one who is less attractively endowed.

How Much Will Your Looks "Buy" in Life?

3. True. In a university study, 80 subjects from various walks of life—ranging from the working class to the higher social economic brackets—were used to determine the psychological effect of a tie. In the experiment "Each of the subjects observed a student, first wearing a tie and then without a tie. It was found that when he was wearing the tie, he was rated as significantly more intelligent, ambitious, serious and conservative but less open-minded than when he did not wear a tie."

4. False. Psychological studies show that as a general rule girls of only average looks have the more interesting personalities. They were found to be more interesting conversationalists, better at expressing their thoughts and feelings about various things, and better in the interchange of concepts and ideas. It's suggested that the less glamorous girl has found the need to develop her personality qualities to compensate for the fact that other girls outdistance her in the looks department.

5. True. In a study of women's clothing sponsored by the Social Science Research Council, investigators observed that "Wearing clothes that say an individual is what she is not is seen as a kind of lying." Findings of the research also indicate that most women try to avoid this type of deception and "choose clothes which are a compromise between those that match her ideal and those that match her actual self-image." Other studies confirm that most women "feel that they cannot wear something which is too different from the way they are. ('It wouldn't be me.')

6. True and False! False where men are concerned, but true for women, as shown by studies of more than 200 men and women students at a university. "Physical attractiveness was measured by judges' ratings, while happiness, psychological health and self-esteem were measured by self-report inventories." Results: Physical attractiveness tended to go hand-in-hand with greater happiness, better adjustment and higher self-esteem—but only where the women were concerned. Conclusion of the investigators: Physical attractiveness "buys" more for women than for men. And it's pointed out that in our culture good looks are of greater importance and value to women than to men.

Grass Seed Is For The Birds! Zoysia Saves Time, Work, Money.

By Mike Senkiw
Agronomist

Years ago I was like nearly everyone else with a lawn. I worried about it more than any other thing around the house.

Then things changed. My company obtained a new grass just released by the U.S. Dept of Agriculture. In honor of the plant explorer, Frank Meyer, it was named Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass.

We received only a small amount of this Grass. But it was enough to plant test plots in our Nursery Farm.

Thick, Beautiful Lawn

From that small beginning, these few precious clumps of Zoysia Grass spread over the ground until they built a lawn so thick and beautiful that visitors stopped to admire it every time they saw it.

We Tell People, "Walk On It"

Instead of saying "Keep Off The Grass," we invited visitors to walk on it. It was an unforgettable experience for them — like walking on a thick pile carpet.

After walking on it, visitors learned that Zoysia turf was crabgrass-proof, and the next question never failed: "How can I get some?"

Other Lawns Burn Out

Now, grass is my company's business; but it was a long time before an order for Meyer Zoysia Grass was accepted. First we wanted to see how good this grass was.

We really found out!

One summer the heat was so great you could fry eggs on the highway. Daily the sun blazed from cloudless skies; the drought worsened; whole ponds dried up. Meanwhile crabgrass flourished and took over lawns by the thousands.

IT RESISTS DROUGHT, STAYS GREEN THRU HEAT WAVES

Through it all, our deep-rooted Zoysia lawns stood out like a green island in a brown wasteland.

When conditions became better, I proved another advantage: It could be mowed far less often than ordinary grass.

Thrives In Poor Soils

When I planted it in sandy, clay soils and sub-soil, it took hold and thrived. Other grass in the same soils struggled and died.

I compared it to other grasses in the winter, too. Ordinary grasses may die or turn sparse and scraggly due to frost and winter, but in such weather my Meyer Zoysia merely went off its green color . . . it stayed so thick you could walk on it and not get your feet muddy.

Through zero-cold winters and blistering summer droughts . . . through onslaughts by weeds and diseases . . . Meyer Zoysia had proved it could "take it."

PEOPLE WRITE TO ME

This was the experience of other people who liked Zoysia's promise of a permanent, deep-rooted lawn that stayed green, beautiful and weed-free all summer . . . that rarely if ever needs watering or feeding. These people said "Hello!" to Zoysia. "Goodbye!" to crabgrass and weeds, and grew a lawn that's the pride of their neighborhood.

As Mrs. Harry Winslow writes to me from the heart of wintry New England:

" . . . How pleased we are with our Zoysia lawn! We had a lawn that was a disgrace. My husband used weed killers for every known weed, but next season new weeds sprang up. We dug the lawn up twice and reseeded before we learned about Amazoy. It does everything you say."

"Mowed It 2 Times," Writes Woman

Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn . . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds — it's just wonderful!"

If you say "Hello" to Zoysia Grass now, I promise you'll be delighted with the change — the change in your lawn and the change Zoysia puts in your pocket.

READ HOW YOU, TOO, CAN HAVE A BEAUTIFUL, DROUGHT RESISTANT LAWN

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by U.S. Govt.: released in cooperation with U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

No Need To Rip Out Your Present Grass . . . Plug In Amazoy

2/3 Less Mowing
2/3 Less Care

HOW IT CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

If costly chemicals fail to control crabgrass for good how does Amazoy Zoysia do it? Established Amazoy Zoysia simply grows so thick and luxurious that crabgrass seeds don't germinate!

You'll never need to spend a cent on crabgrass and weed killers again.

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

Or correct problem areas such as slopes where Amazoy halts erosion, in hard-to-cover spots, around swim pools, in play areas, etc.

PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into hole in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style.

When planted in existing law areas, plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth including weeds.

Easy planting instructions with order.

Your Own Supply Of Plug Transplants

Your established Amazoy lawn provides you with Zoysia plugs for other areas as you may desire.

HERE'S WHY AMAZOY PLUGS ASSURE SUCCESS

WHERE OTHER GRASSES FAIL

Due to Amazoy's national reputation, other grasses may be offered that sound like it. But Amazoy's pre-cut plugs look different, ARE different. They are deep-rooted, winter-hardy plugs produced exclusive for transplanting.

Each large sturdy plug contains 3 square inches or more of living vigorous Zoysia turf, complete with vigorous root system in its original enriched soil.

Turf growth is under expert supervision and scientifically controlled conditions. We dig plugs from the soil to your order, and ship them that SAME DAY in our specially designed package

WEAR RESISTANT

When America's largest University tested 13 leading grasses for wear resistance, such as foot scuffing, the Zoysia (matrella and japonica Meyer Z-52) led all others.

Your Amazoy lawn takes such wear as cook-outs, lawn parties, lawn furniture, etc. Grows so thick you could play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Even if children play on it, they won't hurt it — or themselves.

So Deep-Rooted is Amazoy . . . It Grows Into Practically Indestructible Turf

2 Grown Men Can't Pull Apart Amazoy Sod

NEVER NEEDS REPLACEMENT

AMAZOY Saves Money, Cuts Work. Never a seed to sow again with Amazoy! Year after year your lawn grows thicker, like a deep pile carpet, and defies enemies that kill other grasses.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS CUT WATERING, MOWING, TOO.

Your deep-rooted fully established Amazoy lawn grows so thick and luxurious it chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long — year after year. Never spend a cent on crabgrass killers again. Your drought-resistant Amazoy lawn not only cuts your water bills, it cuts your work in other ways: it cuts pushing a noisy mower under a broiling summer sun by 2/3. It resists blight, disease and most insects. It will NOT WINTER-KILL TO TEMPS. 30° BELOW ZERO. After killing frost, it merely goes off its green color, regains fresh new beauty every Spring — a true perennial that ends re-seeding forever!

THERE IS NO SEED

Reports U.S. Dept. of Agric. referring to Meyer Z-52 Zoysia. Experts advise planting only live grass to be sure of getting the famous, winter-hardy grass perfected by U.S. Govt., Meyer Z-52.

NO SOD

Sod of ordinary grass carries with it the same problems as seed — such as weeds, disease, frequent mowing, burning out, etc. Amazoy is sold ONLY in pre-cut plugs . . . never a slab of field grown sod YOU must cut up in order to plant.

FREE PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER, with orders of 600 plugs or more.

OUR OWN EXCLUSIVE DESIGN

NOT AVAILABLE ELSEWHERE

This full size step-on plugger is rugged, yet so light a woman can handle it easily. A growth-producing 2-way plugger that cuts away competing growth at same time it digs hole for plugs. Saves bending time, worth $4.95 separately, free in combination with 600 plugs or more.

Isn't it Time YOU Switched to The Grass Making Others Obsolete?

When you consider your investment in time and money in your lawn, it simply doesn't make sense to take another chance with the same type of grass that has disappointed you before. So start a perennial lawn that grows more beautiful each year.

Order AMAZOY now and let it spread into thrillingly beautiful turf.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day grass is taken from the soil, shipping charge collect via most economical means. © ZFN, 1976

MORE THAN A HALF-BILLION PLUGS SOLD, OUTSELLS OTHERS 10 TO 1

The controlled transplant quality of Amazoy has made it another word for Meyer Z-52 Zoysia . . . the world's best known Zoysia Grass. If you don't want to take another chance with lawn disappointment, remember this:

If it isn't Amazoy, you're not getting the plugs that made Zoysia famous.

GUARANTEED TO GROW IN YOUR AREA IN YOUR SOIL

- AMAZOY WON'T WINTER-KILL — Has survived temperature 30° below zero!
- AMAZOY WON'T HEAT-KILL — when other grasses burn out, Amazoy turns its loveliest!

Doctors Prove You Can Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieve Pain And Itch Too.

Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

Doctors have found a most effective medication that actually helps shrink painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by infection. In many cases, the first applications give prompt relief for hours from such pain and burning itching.

Tests by doctors on hundreds upon hundreds of patients showed this to be true in many cases. The medication the doctors used was Preparation H®—the same Preparation H you can get without a prescription. Ointment or suppositories.

NOW AND DEN

I can remember way back when
 A family room was called a den.
 Perhaps the name was changed because Most denizens of dens have claws,
 Have also teeth with which to bite you
 Or after roaring to affright you.
 As I recall those former years,
 Our den would cause no entrant fears.
 "Come, take a chair," we'd always say,
 Not meaning, though, take one away.
 My glasses may be slightly rosy
 And yet I think our den was cozy.
 In fact, despite the change of name
 I find our family room the same.

On her own time schedule

Who's better than the Six Million Dollar Man and the Bionic Woman? Maybe "Superbaby" Danielle Harrington who at six months has already learned to walk and swim. Danielle's proud mother told FAMILY WEEKLY: "I was involved in an auto accident at the beginning of my pregnancy with Danielle, and was advised by a number of specialists to have a legal abortion. But I refused and prayed that I would have a normal baby. Danielle has proved to be something more than any of us imagined. She first stood on her own feet at three months. She started eating solid baby food when she was 11 days old, was drinking from a cup at five weeks and was toilet-trained at nine weeks." Danielle is obviously no Dr. Spock baby.

witch who was executed? Was Elizabeth Taylor, back in Biblical times, the original Ruth? Was Lady Bird Johnson a British Cardinal? Psychic-artist Tana Jones says all these things are true and claims that her portraits of today's most famous women reflect their past lives. Tana told FAMILY WEEKLY: "I've never had any artistic training, and it would be difficult to prove that I'm a seer, but my paintings now earn as much as $5,000, so someone's a believer. I don't seem to be in control of my own talents, however. I simply concentrate for hours on a photograph of my subject with a magnifying glass so that no facet of her personality escapes me." What does the future hold for these famous ladies? Tana predicts that Cher will replace Barbra Streisand as the top female entertainer (the latter will suffer enormous setbacks this year). Lady Bird will marry again soon. Sophia Loren will make one more film before retiring from the silver screen. The question is: does Tana have much of a future herself?

MORE WINGS FOR MAN Built to sail

Land-yacht racing has become a popular American sport in recent years. But with the traditional cloth sails, when the wind dropped, the fun was over; and when high winds prevailed, the chances of turning over were enormous. Douglas Amick of Ann Arbor, Mich., and his three sons resolved those difficulties with a fixed, arched-wing land sail racer. With a 7 miles-per-hour cross wind, this machine moves along at a steady 25 m.p.h. It took two years for Amick to perfect his 400-pound Fiberglas racing vehicle, which boasts spring-mounted wheels equipped with shock absorbers. Until man can really walk on water or fly, these land sailors must suffice.

NEW PLANTER POLE TURNS A FEW INCHES OF SPACE INTO AN EXQUISITE TREE OF LIVING GREENERY

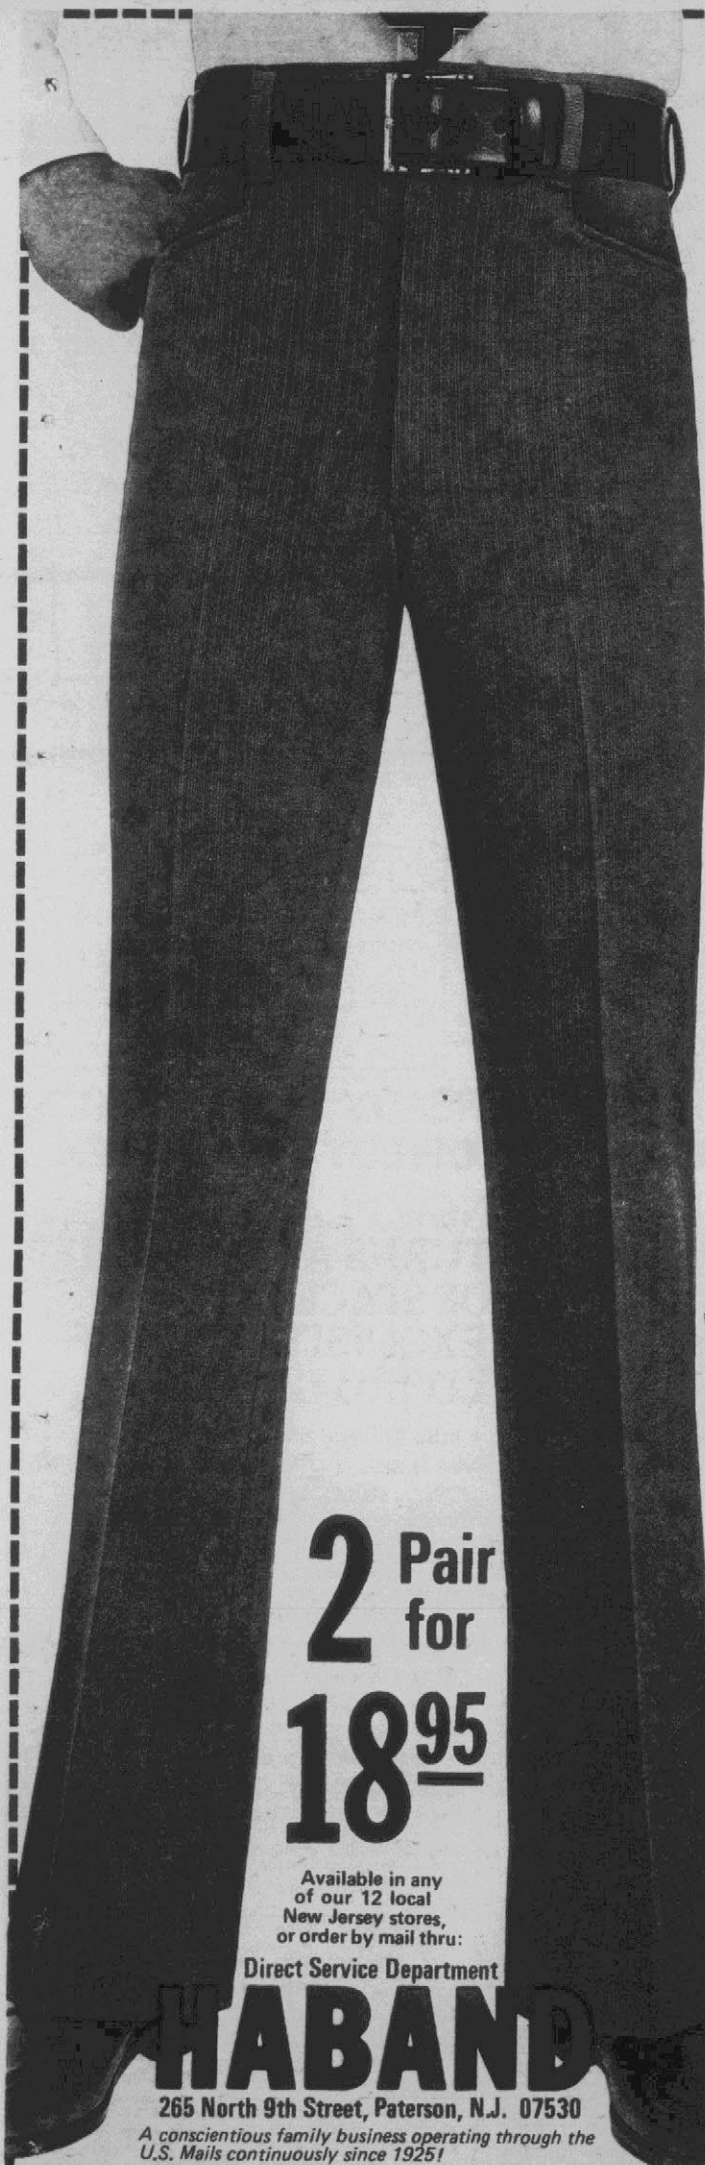

• holds 3 hanging plants • installs in seconds — no holes in walls or ceilings! • adjustable — fits most ceilings, windows, counter tops!

Gather up those plants sitting on tables and shelves, doing absolutely nothing for your room, and hang them from this dramatic planter tree! Since it takes just a few inches of space, now you may choose just the spot that's best for your plants and for your decor!

Works By Vise-Like Spring Tension

Completely eliminates unsightly, expensive-to-repair holes in ceilings and walls. Fully adjustable, it fits ceilings from 7'10" to 9'2", window frames from 5'2" to 6'2", even sits securely on counter tops or vanities. It has a brilliant chrome like finish and holds pots up to 12" in diameter. Special non-mar caps protect floors, ceilings or furniture.

Prince Valiant
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: ON THE EVE OF PRINCE VALIANT'S DEPARTURE FOR THE TREASURE HUNT, ALETA PREPARES A FAREWELL PARTY. AN ORCHESTRA PLAYS AND HIS DAUGHTERS DANCE FOR HIM. GALAN IS A MODEL OF DEPORTMENT AND ALETA, BEAUTIFULLY SEDUCTIVE.

"WHAT TREASURES CAN I HOPE TO FIND THAT WOULD MATCH THE ONES I LEAVE BEHIND? HM-M-M, NOT A BAD LINE. MUST JOT IT DOWN FOR FUTURE USE."

"MY ANCESTOR WAS A ROMAN GOVERNOR," SAYS ZILLA, "AND AMASSED A GREAT FORTUNE. THEN CAME THE EARTHQUAKE! THE PALACE CRASHED ON ALL WITHIN IT: A HUNDRED YEARS HAVE PASSED AND AS YET NO ONE HAS FOUND THE TREASURE VAULT."

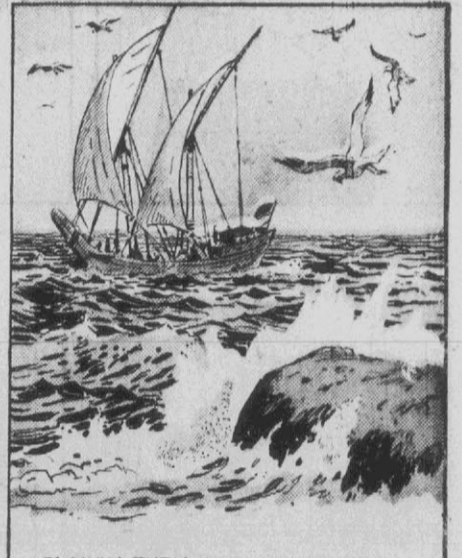

"I VISITED THE RUINS A FEW YEARS AGO. THERE WAS NOTHING MUCH LEFT STANDING, FOR TREASURE HUNTERS HAVE OVERTURNED EVERYTHING IN THEIR SEARCH FOR RICHES. BUT IN THE GARDEN I FOUND WHAT I THINK IS A CLUE!"

"THERE WERE CARVINGS OF FLOWERS ON THE WALLS OF THE GARDEN, EACH ONE NAMED: 'LILY, PEARL OF THE GARDEN,' 'RUBY ROSE,' 'JONQUIL'S GOLD,' 'IRIS, SAPPHIRE OF THE POND.'"

"THERE IS SOME MESSAGE THERE, SIRE, FOR EACH FLOWER IS COMPARED WITH A PRECIOUS JEWEL... A GARDEN OF JEWELS? IS THE TREASURE THERE?"

SLOWLY THEY SAIL ALONG THE LEVANTINE COAST UNTIL THEY SEE FAR UP A VALLEY, THE SUN-BLEACHED RUINS OF THE PALACE.

Oh! Hi, Sis!

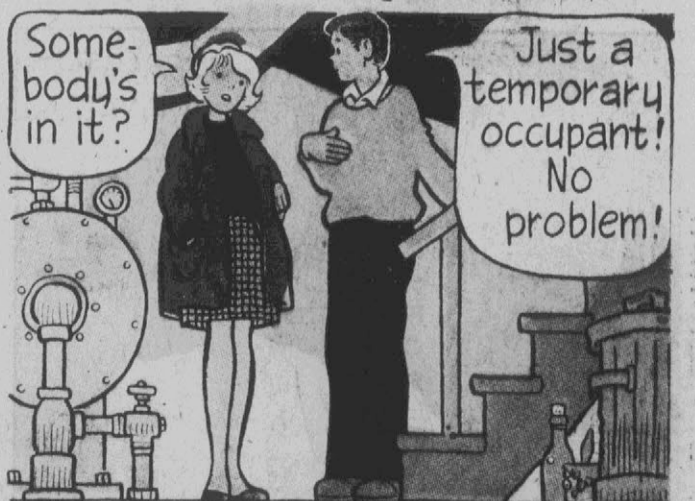

I came to see the vacancy in your building, Chipper!

Go up and check it out first, Slim!

Right, Chip!

Is it a mess?

Somebody's in it?

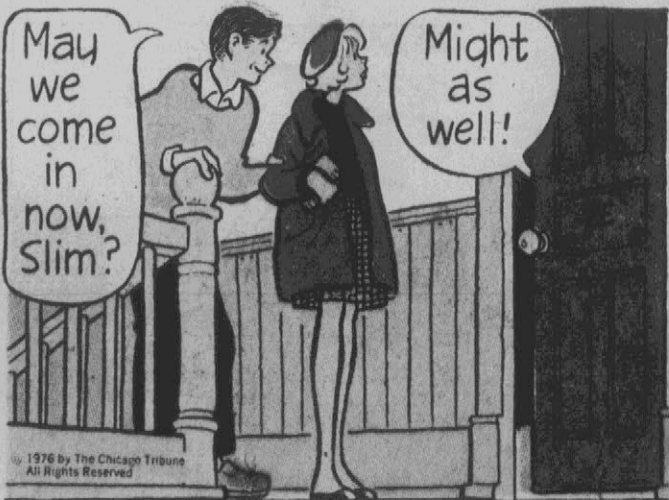

Just a temporary occupant! No problem!

What's Slim doing up there?

It's nothing!

THUMP! THUMP! BUMP!

May we come in now, Slim?

Might as well!

He won't budge!

I HEAR THAT THE SCHOOL IS GETTING A NEW COPYING MACHINE THAT CAN MAKE A HUNDRED PHOTOCOPIES IN FIVE SECONDS FLAT! WOW!

THAT'S ALMOST AS FAST AS JUGHEAD CAN EAT A HUNDRED HAMBURGERS!

WEATHERBEE, THE SCHOOL BOARD APPROVED PURCHASE OF THIS COPYING MACHINE, BUT IT IS NOT A TOY. YES, SIR, I'LL SEE THAT IT'S USED STRICTLY FOR SCHOOL BUSINESS!

MR. WEATHERBEE, THE COPYING MACHINE IS STUCK! WHAT ALREADY? WELL, DON'T TOUCH IT! I'LL HAVE A LOOK AT IT!

HERE'S THE TROUBLE! THERE'S A PIECE OF PAPER STUCK IN HERE!

HELP! MY TIE IS CAUGHT! CRINGE! CRINGE! CRINGE! OMIGOSH! JUG, DIDN'T YOU SHUT THE MACHINE OFF? YOU TOLD ME NOT TO TOUCH ANYTHING!

GET ME OUT OF THIS! I'LL HAVE TO CUT YOUR TIE, SIR! LOOK, ARCH, IT'S MAKING COPIES OF HIS FACE!

GO TO YOUR CLASSES! I'LL FINISH COPYING THIS REPORT AND I'LL MAIL IT TO THE SCHOOL BOARD PERSONALLY! YES, SIR!

IF YOU WANT ANYTHING DONE RIGHT, YOU HAVE TO DO IT YOURSELF!

DADDY, WOULD YOU RATHER BE BLACK OR WHITE? BLACK OR WHITE?

I'M GLAD YOU ASKED ME THAT, DOT. RIGHT NOW OUR COUNTRY IS... WHAT ABOUT PURPLE OR GREEN?

WOULD YOU RATHER BE A PEN OR A PENCIL? CHALK OR CRAYONS?

HOW ABOUT A CHAIR OR TABLE? HOW ABOUT A WAFFLE IRON? HA-HA-HA-HA-HA!

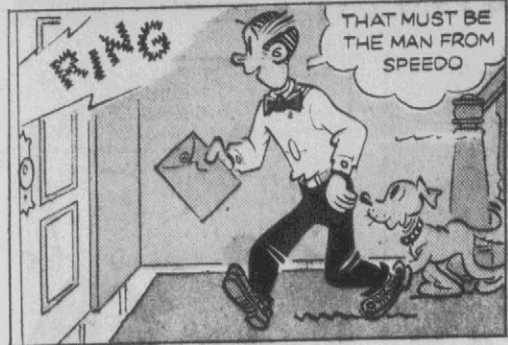

HEY, DITTO! WOULD YOU RATHER BE A SOCK OR A SHOE??!
