Each Year The Public Is 'Buried' In Forms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government buries the public each year in more than 500 million forms asking about everything from income taxes to critiques of the "Discover America Pow Wow and Trade Mart."

The Commerce Department wants to hear how many contracts 600 businesses signed at its annual travel show, while the Internal Revenue Service expects every taxpayer in America to fill out one of its 86 million tax returns.

The Agriculture Department's weekly report of red tart cherries gets only about 706 replies a year, and the Tennessee Valley Authority wants data from 21 commercial fish and mussel dealers.

From taxes to cherries, the federal government has a form asking individuals and businesses for information on just about everything.

Business men contend they cannot afford to answer many of the forms feeding the government's need to know and that the cost of answering the inquiries is passed on to the consumer as higher prices.

Some consumer groups, on the other hand, say many government decisions are based on incomplete or biased information. For example, the agencies dealing with energy often use industry-supplied data that critics see as self-serving and unreliable.

Making a Count
No one in the federal government keeps track of all the forms that department and agencies send out to individuals and businesses.

An Associated Press survey, however, turned up more than 9,800 separate forms the federal bureaucracy sends out to the public. An estimated 556 million responses are returned each year, with hundreds of millions of hours needed to gather data and complete the forms.

"The question is how much information do we need to run the government," said a congressional aide who studies the paperwork burden. "We may have gone too far."

Thousands of the forms are needed by government programs requested by business — agricultural marketing orders, government contracts and economic development loans.

For example, travel companies and red tart cherry processors get a direct benefit from government forms.

The gravel companies come to the Commerce "Pow Wow" each year to sign contracts to bring foreign tourists to this country. On the Commerce forms, the companies say how many contracts were signed and how much they were worth. Because the companies say each year they sign tens of million of dollars in contracts at the meeting, Commerce continues to hold the "Pow Wow."

The weekly cherry production forms are a crucial part of the federal marketing order that helps keep cherry prices up by controlling the supplies that reach the market.

A service station owner may think a Census Bureau form is just a burden, but officials say the data he supplies — added to that from others — may encourage the construction of a new shopping center or factory that would boost his gasoline sales.

The Forms Race
The IRS leads one part of the federal forms race with 3,500 forms that elicit about 122 million responses a year from the general public.

The latest figures available from the IRS show about 3,500 forms sent out to the public for tax purposes, down from 5,000 in 1968.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare only has 957 forms listed with the Office of Management and Budget, but an estimated 176 million replies are received each year.

HEW also leads — excluding IRS — with the largest total of manhours required to fill out the forms, 43.2 million.

Other departments and their repeatedly used forms include Labor, 270 forms and 42.19 million replies; Treasury, excluding IRS and scattered other forms, 133 forms and 37.4 million replies; Agriculture, 795 forms and 30.98 million replies; Commerce, 571 forms and 22.6 million replies; Transportation, 285 forms and 18.28 million replies; Justice, 167 forms and 16.7 million replies; and the Civil Service Commission, 150 forms and 16.39 million replies.

Parent-Child Relations Class Begins Mar. 18
A course in Parent-Child Relations (AGAPE) will begin on Thursday, March 18 at 9 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Greenville.

The eight-week course is designed to help parents deal with their children through effective personal communications.

Babysitting services will be provided through the Park-A-Tot program at the church. The charge for this service is seventy-five cents per hour.

The class will meet each Thursday morning from 9-12:00 a.m. Tuition is $3.00 per person. Persons interested in enrolling in this course should call Mrs. Carolyn Daughrey at 756-5504 and have their names placed on the class roster. They should also indicate whether or not they would like to use the Park-A-Tot service.

A Library of Congress study found that during 1974, Congress passed 404 laws while the federal bureaucracy churned out 7,496 new or amended regulations. That's 18 regulations for every law.

Most of the regulations carry the force of law, meaning violators could be subject to fines or jail.

The budgets and number of employees of the regulators have soared in the last decade. In 1965, the 12 major agencies spent $860 million, employing 58,455 people.

President Ford's proposed budget for this coming fiscal year lists $3.8 billion for the 24 major agencies and 105,000 employees.

That means the cost of regulation has gone from $4.43 per American to about $10.36, adjusted for inflation.

The Spreading Impact
This growth came as Washington answered demands for cleaner air and water, for less job discrimination against blacks, browns, women and the elderly, for safer autos, workplaces and consumer products, and for more honest elections.

The result is a sea of alphabet soup. EPA. OSHA. NATSA. That's the Environmental Protection Agency, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Then there's the FEA, FEC and the EEOC. The list goes on and on.

Regulators still make up a tiny minority within the federal government. The current $3.8 billion for the 24 major agencies is less than one percent of Ford's proposed budget. Yet their impact, once confined to a few industries — transportation, communications, agriculture, finance and drugs — now has spread to many unaccustomed areas.

Federal job safety inspectors can fine a New York girder maker $500 for locking his emergency fire doors. It happened recently to Anita Foundations Inc.

Auto safety officials press California, Utah and Illinois to force motorcyclists to wear approved crash helmets.

Pollution officials are moving to outlaw traditional marine toilets on even the smallest cruising boats, requiring either waste-treatment devices costing $400 and up or inexpensive but inconvenient tanks that hold waste on board.

Regulations' Cost
How much does all this regulation cost? There is simply no accurate way to measure regulation's total impact on the nation, although many are willing to try.

President Ford's aides in the Office of Management and Budget estimated regulation's cost at $130 billion a year in artificially inflated prices, additional costs to business and lost productivity. This estimate — totaling about $2,000 for each family — is based on a mishmash of economic assumptions, projections and guesses.

In one instance, the OMB counted the costs of foreign trade restrictions that no longer exist.

The administration study also said Americans spend $40 to $60 billion a year to meet federal pollution standards. Yet the congressional General Accounting Office, in a report critical of the OMB study, said Ford's aides had misquoted the original source for the figure, which had put anti-pollution costs at $33 billion.

The Benefits
Does the regulation do any good? Frequently, yes.

The 3,451 people with accounts at a Houston bank didn't lose their savings when the bank collapsed. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. paid them $12,259,733. Of course, some say there should be more federal regulation of banks to prevent such failures.

Not all governmental nitpicking is needless. Late last year, the Food and Drug Administration got a court order to seize imported bear-bristle brushes from a Los Angeles importer because the brushes were contaminated with nits.

Nits are lice eggs. Even the auto manufacturers concede that federal auto safety regulations save motorists' lives, probably by the thousands.

America's air is measurably cleaner since EPA began work.

Whatever the cost of cleaner air or prolonged lives, their worth can't be measured in dollars. This makes comparison of cost and benefit essentially a matter of personal opinion.

"Horror Stories"
Often the benefits of regulation are hard to see, while the defects are all too apparent.

There is little question that government can take years to reach a seemingly simple decision, as when the FDA went through nine years of hearings, proposals and comment periods before deciding that anything labeled "peanut butter" must contain at least 90 per cent peanuts.

Outright mistakes are made. And sometimes even admitted.

In 1973, the fledgling Consumer Product Safety Commission erroneously banned as unsafe a toy plastic ball manufactured by the Marlin Toy Products, Inc., of Horicon, Wis. The commission later admitted the boner, but the company says the mistake cost it $1.2 million in cancelled orders and forced the layoff of all but 10 of its 85 employees. Congress has authorized payment of damages to Marlin, with the amount to be set by a claims court.

There are cases where the regulators strain the law.

A federal job-safety inspector wanted changes in an allegedly unsafe hydraulic log-cutting machine clearing land in California's Napa Valley in 1972. Although the wood was sold entirely within California, the Labor Department insisted the land being cleared was for planting grapes, and that grapes were for making wine sold across state lines, and that this made it a federal case. A review commission sided with the logger by a 2-to-1 vote last year and threw out his $600 fine.

Sometimes one agency's rules collide with those of another. Job safety rules call for protective railing around blood pits in meatpacking plants, but Agriculture Department inspectors disapprove of the railings because they become encrusted with gore and are unsanitary. So OSHA compromised by allowing employees to use safety harnesses to prevent their falling into the pits. Evidence suggests that some agencies, principally the older ones, help limit free competition and keep prices high in the industries they regulate.

The Civil Aeronautics Board refused to allow a British firm, Laker Airways, to fly regular New York-to-London flights for $270 round trip. Existing airlines fly the same route for $626 for a roundtrip economy-class ticket.

The burden of government paperwork is a frequent complaint by businessmen.

For example, Maryland automobile dealers have to fill out 31 federal forms and 51 state forms. Eighteen of the federal forms deal with taxes and payrolls, 11 with pensions and one each with job safety and non-discrimination.

The Prospects
There is movement aimed at limiting the regulators' powers in this year of the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution.

But the regulators have powerful defenders — usually the industries they oversee — who are fighting this new revolt in Washington.

Many proposed changes require legislation, and Congress often moves at least as slowly as the regulators.

Charged After Sunday Mishap

Michael Phillip Haymans of Fayetteville was charged with careless and reckless driving following investigation of a 1:15 a.m. Sunday mishap on Jarvis Street, 200 feet North of the First Street intersection.

Police said the Haymans vehicle collided with a parked car owned by the County of Pitt, resulting in an estimated $1,000 damage to the truck and $1,500 damage to the car.

No injuries were reported.

Old-Fashioned Toys Keep Pace

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

A recent magazine cartoon showed a saleswoman demonstrating a pushbutton device to a father and son. The caption: "Just press this button and it plays with your toys."

It's probably only a matter of time until a manufacturer makes such a gadget for the Toy Fair, the New York City winter trade show that previews Christmas merchandise.

Meanwhile, manufacturers at this year's 73rd annual exhibit said more traditional toys are holding their own in competition with pushbutton, computer-age playthings. About 5,000 new products were displayed at the Toy Center in Manhattan and in a hotel and manufacturers' showrooms.

David A. Miller, president of the sponsoring Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc., said the hobby and craft area, including kits, is expanding, partly because of shrinking families with fewer children.

Miller sees renewed interest in model trains and continuing interest in dolls: everything from old-fashioned Kewpie and mama dolls to images of television and sports personalities and a millionaire private investigator, Jay J. Armes of El Paso, Tex., who lost both arms in a boyhood accident. Black dolls include one modeled after O.J. Simpson, running back of the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League. There are at least two anatomically correct American-made dolls, one of which depicts Archie Bunker's grandson, Joey Stivic.

"A few years ago a store that carried an (imported) anatomically correct boy doll was picketed by consumers," Miller said.

Abe Kent, TMA vice president, said a study about five years ago showed quite a bit of resistance to such toys even on the part of children. But times change, and so do playthings.

"To date, we've had no flak of any consequence from consumers (about the new doll)," Miller said. "We can assume that individual manufacturers may receive some."

He said toys, games, hobbies and crafts tend to reflect society in a very large sense, with trends toward military weapons, armed vehicles and the like tending to parallel violence in society.

Miller thinks the popularity of western guns and cowboy outfits stems not from violence as such but from interest in America's past.

"The impact of 'Jaws' is not quite over," Miller added, pointing to a shark bath puppet and two games called "Jaws." One is a variation on traditional jackstraws; the other is a board game. Both obviously were inspired by the huge success of Peter Benchley's best-selling novel of the same name and the movie based on it.

Miller said soccer is moving up as a toy because of the popularity of Brazilian soccer star Pele.

Interest in books about the "Bermuda Triangle" spawned at least one board game about the mysterious disappearance of sea and aircraft in an area of the Atlantic. Other topical playthings include a kit for building a plastic model of the controversial Concorde supersonic jet and an American history coloring book of Bicentennial inspiration, although Bicentennial toys in general have had their day, the manufacturers said.

Suspense story popularity was reflected in a board game about spies that uses red plastic unscramblers to decode messages on cards.

Some manufacturers reportedly introduced mechanical games last year in anticipation of more families staying home for economic reasons. They stayed home, Miller said, but they bought more traditional items, such as board games and toy trucks.

Other trends, observers said, are proliferating playsets and pastimes and characters representing TV, movies and comic books.

Most battery-operated toys are imported these days. One manufacturer described them as a fad that has run its course.

Craft kits include an air brush designed for use with stencils and plastic easel, crank-operated devices for knitting and making needlepoint and imitation American Indian jewelry and paint-by-number tapestries.

Apples Flourish In Dumpling

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Charles Lamb, the great English essayist of the last century, wrote: "A man cannot have a pure heart who refuses apple dumplings."

You, too, may feel that delightful way about the dessert — especially when it is made with flaky pastry, Golden Delicious apples and apricot preserves. The apples have a delicate and lovely flavor when they are baked and they hold their shape well, particularly if you use those whose skin is still tinged with green. The apricot preserves are just the right addition: several of our tasters said they appreciated the fact that the dumplings weren't overly sweet.

Should you try the following recipe, please serve the dumplings warm from the oven. That's when they are at their best. We like to offer them after a main course of scrambled eggs and sausage at a weekend brunch. They are equally delicious after a light main course at a weekend supper; in this case they benefit from being served with vanilla ice cream.

We use small apples for our dumplings not only for the sake of economy and calories, but because then there's just enough pastry to enjoy with the fruit.

GOLDEN APPLE DUMPLINGS

Pastry for a 2-crust 9-inch pie
6 small Golden Delicious apples, a generous 1½ pounds
Apricot preserves

Flatten the pastry into a rectangle. On a floured pastry cloth with a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll it out to an 18 by 12-inch rectangle; if pastry is slightly larger than this with uneven edges, trim to this size. With a pastry wheel, cut into six 6-inch squares.

Core apples from the stem end, but not all the way through. With the tip of the apple corer, flick off the blossom end at the bottom of each apple so there is only a pin-size hole. Place an apple in the center of each pastry square. Drop 3 teaspoons of the apricot preserves into each core cavity, using a small metal spatula or the tip of a spoon handle to help you do so because the core cavities will be small.

Moisten edges of a pastry square with water. Bring two adjacent sides of the pastry up over an apple; seal edges thoroughly but not quite up to the top; turn back the corners slightly to expose core cavity; repeat with other edges. Prick pastry with a fork. Repeat process with remaining apples.

Place dumplings well apart in a buttered shallow baking pan. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until apples are tender when pricked with a fork — 35 to 40 minutes. At once spoon 3 teaspoons of apricot preserves into each cavity, spreading a little of the preserves over the exposed part of the apple. Serve warm "as is" or with vanilla ice cream.

Makes 6 servings.

Note: Any pastry trimmings may be rolled out, cut into small squares, filled with apricot preserves and baked.

The committee members, Mrs. Sam Wilson, Mrs. Mayo Cherry and Mrs. Bob Reirerson, invite all members and the general public to attend for a tour of the office, to meet and talk with the staff and members of the Board of Directors.

The cooperative was formed in 1936, for the purpose of serving electricity to rural areas. It is owned by "those we serve" with a membership to date of 7,345.

Career Woman Feels No Need To Be Liberated; Is Firm Believer In Woman's Rights

By MARTIN HEERWALD
SEATTLE (UPI) — Ann Forest Burns is one career woman who feels no need to be liberated.

She says she detests Ms.: "It's an ugly word — actually, not a word but a silly symbol."

At the same time, she says she is a firm believer in women's rights, although she doesn't go along with the more extreme campaigners in the women's liberation movement.

"Actually, it's the men in our society who need liberating. I have enjoyed the advantages of being able to do what I want to, with no questions asked, in two predominantly male fields, forestry and law.

"But if my husband decided to be a hairdresser, or wanted to stay home and take care of the house and do embroidery, I'm sure most of his friends would look at that as a bit strange. In fact, I think I'd be among the first to wonder about that."

She quickly added that her husband, a computer systems analyst in Seattle, has displayed no interest in hairdressing or embroidery and is only moderately helpful around the house.

Mrs. Burns, whose job with Georgia Pacific's Bellingham, Wash., division has her practicing both forestry and law, says no one, male or female, raised an eyebrow when she chose to get a degree in forestry or later when she decided she wanted to be a lawyer, too.

Although there are other forester-lawyers, Mrs. Burns is believed to be the only woman in that relatively unique classification.

She said she is fully aware that her position attracts media attention simply because of her sex.

"But that doesn't bother me. As a matter of fact, I rather enjoy the attention."

As for disliking Ms., she says it's a needless designator in news stories.

Many editors have a policy of using Ms. upon request and otherwise use Miss or Mrs.

Burns, as she would prefer to be referred to, says it would make just as much sense to attach Mr. to a man's name each time the name was used in a news story.

She said she became interested in forestry while working as a fire lookout on Washington's Olympic Peninsula, where she grew up and where her parents, both lawyers, still live.

"I watched a group of foresters laying out a timber sale site on a hill slope near my lookout. I found it fascinating, and when I went back to school (at the University of Washington) I went into forestry."

She considered specializing in forestry research:

"But I discovered I didn't have the makings for it."

After earning a forestry degree in 1970, she decided to go on to the law school at Willamette University in Salem, Ore.

She earned the law degree in three years, did free lance work for attorneys working on environmental issues, especially in forestry, during her first year out of law school and then opened a law office in Seattle.

"I found myself doing a lot of work in personal injury cases and domestic relations problems, two areas I don't like. I decided I wanted to work exclusively in forestry law, and it wasn't long before Georgia Pacific gave me exactly that opportunity in a brand new position the company established."

Mrs. Burns said her work involves law related to such things as chemicals used in the paper and pulp industry, patents and copyrights, contracts, deeds, land acquisition, liquidation of old railroad rights of way and a lot of lobbying when the state legislature is in session.

She loves every bit of it.

With her work at Bellingham and her husband's at Seattle, she concedes the male in the family has the advantage when it comes to driving to work. The Burnses live in suburban Mountlake Terrace, north of Seattle, which helps some in cutting the driving time to Bellingham. Even so, she says her daily roundtrip amounts to about three hours on the highway, while her husband's commuting time is less than a third of that.

Fashion Show Held Wednesday

Decorations for the event were provided by one of the club's sponsors, Sunshine Garden Center.

On June 3, 1974, the Supreme Court ruled women who do the same work as men are entitled to the same pay rates.

The National Security Council was founded July 26, 1947.

Protestants Approve The Right To Die

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: I have signed The Living Will, a document that simply states that if I should become terminally ill, and my physician concludes that there is no reasonable hope for my recovery, I do not wish to be kept alive by artificial means. In other words, "when God calls me home, let me go."

Copies of that document have been given to my physician, my lawyer, my rabbi and my immediate family. I have no fear that someone will try to "do me in" before my time.

I wrote to Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, asking him to state the Protestant view on a person's right to die with dignity. His response follows:

DEAR ABBY,

As to the official Protestant point of view on the right to die with dignity, as far as I know, there is none.

The reason is that Protestantism is fragmented into denominations, and there is a variety of opinions on this issue. The very name "protestant" indicates the absence of uniformity.

My judgment is that the prevailing view would be that God alone should determine life and death. The individual should be in the hands of God, who gave life and whose function it is to take it.

There are increasing numbers who might question this view in certain circumstances, but I should think that the great majority of Protestants would subscribe to the above. I read you constantly. You are good for what ails America. Keep it going. You're the greatest.

God bless you every day all the way.—Cordially,
NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

DEAR ABBY: Out of the blue, for no reason whatsoever, my husband decided to destroy all of our credit cards! He could just as easily have put them away to be used only in case of emergency, such as unexpected expenses.

I work just as my husband does, and I pay my share of the bills, so I think I should have had a say in this matter. But he just made up his mind and destroyed all our credit cards.

What should I do?

Made Grist For Their Mills

As expected, a recent unofficial visit by medical school accrediting representatives to the ECU campus brought a new flurry of breast-beating by the few die-hard opponents of the school.

It is sad to us that this irresponsible opposition continues, even as the school's development moves along. On the other hand we are pleased that those whose responsibility it is to plan the school did not engage in a shouting match with the critics, and legislative leaders stood firm in the financial commitment for developing the school.

There are those who would have you believe that there is $50 million lying around in the state treasury, unused and unneeded by the medical school, all ready to be picked up for some other purpose.

There are those who want to give the public the impression that almost nothing has been accomplished on the medical school's development or the affiliation with Pitt Memorial Hospital and that the program is badly behind schedule.

Nothing could be further from the truth. The fact is that, while funds have been budgeted in the present biennial budget, much of the money hasn't even been collected yet, since it will come in the second year of the budget.

More important the money had to be budgeted and it has to be there for the capital improvement projects to get underway—and the assurance of these projects is absolutely essential to obtain accreditation for the school.

Some of the money is currently being spent for capital improvements. Work is nearing completion on the interim facilities in Ragsdale Hall. Extensive planning changes are underway in the new Pitt Memorial Hospital to allow for the first addition to accommodate the medical school. Planning is underway for the clinical building which will take a large part of the capital improvements money—and this project must get underway to satisfy accrediting requirements.

So far as the school's affiliation with Pitt Memorial, it's a fact that the Board of Governors recommended members of the hospital's board of trustees have already been appointed and they will attend their first meeting of the official board Tuesday night.

Of course, the opponents would like to get into the funds appropriated for the medical school's development. They must know that if they can divert any of the funds then accreditation very possibly can be held up. Any delay gives those who oppose the ECU medical school so much their only chance at sabotaging it.

Our advice to those who are working so diligently to develop the school is to continue to take the high road. The case for the ECU School of Medicine has long ago been proven. The state's financial commitment is firm and what with the progress that has been made to date, it is irreversible. Even another ten years of empty historicity by the opponents is not going to change that.

Turned Off By Politics

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Political pollster Walter DeVries offered his views on politics in 1976 to a group of students at the University of North Carolina in Wilmington recently. And what he had to say was not encouraging.

DeVries is a professor at Duke University who has developed a reputation as one of the more astute observers and analysts of voting behavior in the country today. He keeps his observations current with frequent samplings of opinion on behalf of one client or another.

What he has found recently is a degree of alienation and disaffection unparalleled in recent American history. The people are convinced that politicians habitually lie and that most of them are in politics for what they can get.

More and more people, especially young people, are simply putting politics out of their minds and lives. They do not vote; they do not think it would make any difference if they did. Less than 12 per cent of the voting age population bothered to go to the polls in 1974.

There have always been non-voters. But in the past they have been people who failed to vote out of ignorance. Now they are being joined by well-informed people who, DeVries thinks, have been turned off by the broken promises of the Great Society, Vietnam and Watergate.

Still, politics is one of the most interesting games in town, and DeVries was willing to make a few predictions about the 1976 game:

—It will be the most boring year in a long time. "By the middle of June, we will feel as though we had been trapped into watching a five-day turtle race, accompanied by a non-stop commentary from Howard Cosell," he said.

—No Democrat will emerge from the primaries with enough delegates to be nominated. Wallace will come closet with perhaps 900 of the 1,500 needed to nominate.

—The convention will be brokered by a new kind of political boss, the candidate himself. In the old days, delegates were controlled by bosses through patronage and party machinery.

The boss of 1976 will control his delegates because he won them in a primary and under the new party rules, he gets to choose the delegates he has won.

—The new brokers will probably wind up doing essentially what the old brokers did, picking the compromise candidate who appears most likely in the polls to defeat the Republican nominee. DeVries feels the candidate will be a moderate.

The Republican candidate, he said, will be President Ford, who will dispose of Ronald Reagan in the early primaries. He feels Reagan may meet his final defeat in North Carolina, his last chance to win in a conservative Southern state.

—DeVries didn't say who is going to win the Democratic primary on March 23. That one may be too close to call, with Jimmy Carter obviously cutting into George Wallace's formidable strength, but perhaps not enough to gain a plurality.

DeVries didn't say whether Ford will beat the Democratic nominee and win a term of his own.

He would only make two pre-

Starting: Read About The Regulators

A small army of unelected federal regulators today make more rules directly affecting people than does the Congress.

The Associated Press Special assignment Team of Brooks Jackson and Evans Witt have written a series of articles on the growth of the federal regulators. That series starts today in The Daily Reflector. We commend it to your attention.

The series shows the pervasive influence of these regulators on our lives, from our taxes to our alarm clocks to the milk in our ice boxes.

Since 1965 the number of major regulatory agencies in the United States (on the federal level, alone) has doubled to 24. Their employees now number 105,000, up from 58,455. The cost to the American taxpayer has more than doubled.

The price these agencies exact in terms of taxes and increased costs to the consuming public, as weighed against their benefits, is something to be pondered by our citizens.

We think you will find it of interest.

The Court Controversy

WASHINGTON—I just received my application for membership in the St. Albans Tennis Club in Washington. It isn't a fancy club. The courts belong to the St. Albans Prep School but, since it is centrally located in the city, far more people want to belong than there are memberships available.

One of the problems the club faces is the breaking up of marriages in Washington. It has become so serious that the board sent out the following notice: "In order to prevent a further geometric explosion, the board considered the case of family breakups which has reached endemic proportions.

"For those contemplating divorce or remarriage, please be advised that the new spouse and their dependents will not automatically be made members. Please work out your own settlement of these problems."

If a small club like St.

Other Editors Say American Arsenal

(Greensboro Daily News)

When it comes to gun control, the House of Representatives is suddenly gripped by a case of holster paralysis.

Consider the House Judiciary Committee's favorable 18-14 vote recently on an amendment to ban "concealable" handguns. No sooner had the committee voted than the National Rifle Association and other assorted gun lobbyist pulled out their heavy artillery and went to work. The committee quickly caved in. By a one-vote margin the bill was sent back to subcommittee for further study, which is a euphemism for a quiet death this year.

The bill itself was hardly revolutionary. It did not cover the estimated 40 million handguns already in circulation in this country. Instead it sought to ban the manufacture of pistols less than 8 1/2 inches in length with frames under 5 1/4 inches.

Gun lobbyists complained that the bill would ban manufacture of 75 per cent of all handguns. They also said the bill would cover not only the "Saturday night specials" commonly used in crimes, but collectors' pistols as well. The NRA also argued, inaccurately, that the bill would "severely limit availability of all long guns as well as ammunition."

We agree that the bill was not perfect. Criminals intent on killing someone can acquire bigger pistols and bigger pockets to hide them. And manufacturers can skirt the intent of the law by making handguns just slightly larger than the outlawed sizes. A better approach in the long run is not to control gun lengths but to devise ways to keep guns out of criminal hands.

But a start on controlling the American handgun arsenal must be made somewhere. And the House committee started by turning down a dead-end alley. Swept away with the size limitations were other sensible proposals to put limits on multiple gun purchases, require police checks of potential buyers and impose mandatory sentences for felonies committed with handguns.

The House has not passed any gun control legislation since 1968. The Senate, which has enacted gun legislation only to watch it die in the House this time held up a similar bill to see what the House would do. Now the House has done nothing at all—despite two pistol-related assassination attempts on President Ford last year.

So the crime rate soars and Congress acts paralyzed. Obviously, limited handgun control of this kind is no panacea. But it would serve notice that the people mean business about handguns and their illicit marriage to crime. And it might just be the beginning of the end of America's long frontier romance with guns.

Will Convene TV Session

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Despite the flak launched by those who argued that he had no business meddling in the area of television programming and those who accused him of using a volatile issue for political gain, Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., is going ahead with plans for a television conference this month.

The statewide meeting will be held March 26 at the Research Triangle Park near Raleigh. The purpose will be to try to determine if there is anything an organization of those opposed to the violence and sex on television can do about that.

Those taking part feel it is well enough known that the material brought into homes is unfit for consumption, especially by children, and have largely accepted that as fact. The intent is to move on to possible courses of action, if any.

In late January, Hunt hosted a planning session of some 50 people representing numerous church, social, and civic organizations.

Social Problem

At that time, he told the group, "We have been concerned with poor housing, with health problems, and with other social ills which affect our citizens, yet there has been no concern with a medium which has profound impact on young, developing lives."

Discussion followed, with participants decrying both commercials and programming for emphasis on crime, violence, sex, alcohol, bad language, and general overall absence of quality.

Even at that early planning session, as reported here at the time, there were those who wondered just how far government or a citizens group could go in pushing reform without confronting the question of censorship.

Afterward, broadcasters objected to plans for such a conference and protested that they had been left out.

Additionally, some critics aimed barbs at Hunt for using his political office for further political gain. It is no secret that he plans to seek the Democratic nomination in the governor's race this fall.

On at least two occasions, such strong criticism has been directed at Hunt: in this instance, and when he created a statewide community crime watch program earlier this year.

Hunt thinks he is right in using his office and his political leadership role in such a way. That is, after all, the way our system operates: the political forum is for problem solving, and if you are in politics you should be active in addressing problems and seeking solutions, he believes.

Chameleons On Israel Aid

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A few days before the Massachusetts Democratic presidential primary, Rep. Morris Udall ran an advertisement in a Boston Jewish weekly that startled even ardent Zionists with its lavish praise of Jewish occupation of the West Bank of the Jordan as a positive good rather than a necessary evil.

The day after the Massachusetts primary, an emissary of another presidential candidate, Jimmy Carter, contacted a national Jewish leader to proclaim his candidate's pro-Israel credentials. Contrary to reports circulating through the Jewish community, the emissary indicated, Carter would never freeze military aid to Israel as leverage to force Israeli withdrawal from conquered Arab territories—a maneuver boldly attempted by President Ford.

Udall was belatedly embellishing a record that has been routinely pro-Israel. As for Carter, he was trying to remodel a position that only last spring seemed truly evenhanded on the Mideast. Both were competing for Jewish voters courted long, fervently and effectively by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, whose victory in Massachusetts suddenly made him a credible candidate.

Jackson's one-sided support of Israel to the total exclusion of Arab interests might prove vulnerable among non-Jewish Democrats, but such is the influence of the pro-Israel lobby that no opponent risks an even-handed, much less a pro-Arab, stigma. Rather, Jackson's two most serious primary opponents seem determined to wear an identical suit of clothes cut from Jackson's pro-Israel cloth. But whereas the suit fits Jackson comfortably after so many years, Carter and Udall look ill at ease, even downright sloppy.

Any doubt that this is politics pure and simple is resolved by a confidential Udall campaign memorandum written last September. Three-quarters of a million Jewish votes, the memo said, are "certainly enough to be decisive in a close election, and even more influential considering that these votes tend to be cast as a bloc and are clustered in big electoral-vote states."

The key to these votes? Israel.

"Unlike the 1972 election, the major focus of the American Jewish community will be Israel" — instead of black-white racial tensions. All issues, the memo went on, "will be subordinate to Israel and the world Jewish community." Hence, "we can and should counter" Jackson's head start with "Mo's trip" to Israel (but not to Arab states) last August.

The Udall campaign memo cautioned, however: "We must remove any thoughts of trying to be stronger on Israel than... other candidates. The Jewish community is too politically sophisticated." That warning against outdoing Jackson on Israel was ignored in Udall's primary eve advertisement in the Jewish Advocate of Boston.

Whereas Israel's longstanding champions generally feel the less said the better about the conquered lands, Udall's ad inaccurately proclaimed: "In (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE

The enjoyment of the present can easily be spoiled by too much dreaming about the future or brooding about the past. The past is history; the future is yet to be realized, both past and future are flowers of the imagination. Someone has said: "Life as we really know it is in the present tense. It is the immediate need which must be supplied, the present temptation that must be overcome, today's task that must be performed, today's sorrow that must be borne."

Of course, a failure to plan for the future or a failure to learn from the past will spoil our present later on. Yet past, present, and future are in God's hands. Much of the past needs forgiveness, and all of the future needs guidance. If we will give ourselves to our present tasks, filled with the confident assurance that God will never forsake us, we can come to the close of each day with a wholesome feeling of having done our best, and we can face the coming day with a quiet confidence that all will be well.

Few Surprises On Stock Mart

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — For those who have watched past flirtations with 1,000 points on the Dow Jones industrial average, there have been few surprises over the past few weeks. The market has behaved as expected.

Those who were unpleasantly surprised by its failure to remain in four-digit territory appear to have too easily forgotten the character, the personality of the market. It is indeed a flirt; the term is no misnomer.

Every time in the past 10 years that it has come into the presence of 1,000 points—that is, within 50 points or so — it has moved erratically, trifling and toying and winking and misleading the investor.

When the average broke 1,000 points and stayed above that mark last Thursday, many an investor was fully prepared for a direct and sudden move to follow in the opposite direction, because that is how it has behaved in the past.

Even sophisticated investors forgot this, however, and they believed the promoters and hucksters who assured them that the very next challenge to the market was its old high of 1,051.70 points on Jan. 11, 1973.

Instead, the market retreated 15.67 points, all the way back down to 987.64 on Friday, from 1,003.31 points on Thursday. And so, this week begins with the flirtation still going on.

How much longer will it continue? Quite likely it won't last much longer. Everyone gets tired of a flirt; the glamor, the attraction, the mystique wears off, and then the boredom sets in.

There are too many strong opinions about this economy — which the market allegedly reflects — for it to daily much longer. Each day those economic factors play a larger role, and the significance of 1,000 points diminishes.

As investors return to the more fundamental considerations, the market is bound to move out of the 1,000-point area, above or below. There is too much active participation for it to simply turn inert.

As you read the stock market letters and commentaries you become aware of the divisions of opinion regarding the economy. While the market flirts with 1,000 points, the economic argument continues, and eventually it will be the determining force.

A large number of professional analysts of the market foresee a gradual and undramatic but solid improvement in the economy over the next six months, and for this reason they feel confident about the present level of prices.

There are those who are suspicious too. Some observe that they see elements of a boom mentality among some investors but argue that the economic data to support such an attitude is absent.

Government by statistic, they seem to say, can be misleading. It is true that the numbers are improving, but do the numbers truly represent reality? Do they tend to hide the weaknesses in the economic structure?

It is the economic debate that soon will dominate the stock market, and then we'll see the end of this flirtation with a number, a neat number though it be, and get back to more worthwhile musings.

Noblitt...

To do other wise, he feels, would be to do nothing for fear action would be denounced as a political move.

Will Participate
At a later planning session for the TV conference, it was suggested by some present that Hunt not take a prominent part since his participation would certainly be criticized as politically motivated.

But that suggestion was promptly rejected by those who argued that political motivation is exactly what is often required to table public issues, and Hunt will take an active part in the conference.

The morning session will feature a panel talk with network, local station, and sponsor representatives discussing how television programming is done. In the afternoon, a panel will explore ways in which television programming might be affected by citizens.

Keynote speaker will be Erik Barnouw, professor emeritus of drama at Columbia University and a former network writer and producer. He was the subject of an interview, "Television's Dangerous Malaise," in the March 1 issue of U.S. News and World Report.

Shipping Subsidies Hit Grain Sales To Russia

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — American grain going to the Soviet Union this year will cost U.S. taxpayers about $80 million in subsidies for ship operators and workers, according to government estimates.

The subsidies will exceed organizations represented in the earlier planning sessions, including the Federation of Women's Clubs, the Negro Women's Club, the dietetic and homemakers associations, senior citizens groups, American Legion Auxiliary, Kiwanis, Rotary, Churchwomen United, and Baptist, Presbyterian, Methodist, Friends, and Church of Christ groups. Conference cost will be covered by a $10 charge for each registrant.

my visits to the West Bank, I saw that Israel's humane administration of the occupied territories and the enormous success of the Open Bridges policy have created a situation where time seems to be working on the side of Israel." The ad praised the "tranquility, security and prosperity" of Arabs under Israeli rule.

But if Udall has magnified previously routine pro-Israeli positions, Carter has moved farther. It was only last June at the Trilateral Conference in Kyoto, Japan, that Carter denounced a letter to President Ford from 76 U.S. Senators demanding an end to his "reassessment" freeze on military aid to Israel. Four Americans attending the conference confirmed to us that Carter said he would not have signed the letter.

Word of Carter's criticism slowly circulated through the American Jewish community and wound up in anti-Carter pamphlets distributed around Boston before the Massachusetts primary.

So, with Carter running poorly among Massachusetts Jewish voters March 2 and facing Jackson's stranglehold on Florida Jewish voters March 9, his emissary placed that March 3 call to the Jewish leader. The emissary declared that what Carter really meant in Japan was that there would be no need for a senatorial letter if he were President. Translation: Carter never would exercise leverage against Israel by freezing aid.

When asked by us for comment, Carter relayed this explanation: he had told the Kyoto executive that "with strong conference leadership, we would not have needed for the Congress to get involved." That formulation, in Carter's delphic style, indeed sounds like a pledge never to freeze Israeli aid.

Thus, leading Democratic presidential contenders can debate detente, busing, tax reform, defense, energy, even abortion — but not Israel and the Mideast. On this issue, Carter and Udall are so frightened of the Israeli lobby that they have become Scoop Jackson's chameleons, enhancing the real article and demeaning themselves.

those paid for carrying the grain sold to the Soviet Union in 1972.

The higher costs are due to a government program that assures U.S. vessels against loss if freight rates dip below operating costs and because of the terms of the U.S.-Soviet maritime agreement.

The Russian grain-trade ships aren't the only ones receiving subsidies for operating costs. As part of its program to encourage growth of the U.S. merchant marine, the Maritime Administration will pay a total of $403.7 million in 1977, indictions about the General Election. The turnout, due to boredom and alienation, will be the lowest in history, with more than half of the eligible people declining to take part.

And, when the votes have all been counted, the Republic will still be standing.

That is probably scant comfort to those who have staked their time and energy on winning in the primaries this spring and who hope to be able to expend more of their sweat and blood this fall. But it is perhaps the most comforting thing that can be said about the politics of our Bicentennial year.

cluding $53.4 million for the Soviet sales.

The subsidies make up the difference between the best rate U.S. ship operators can obtain from shippers and any operating costs in excess of those rates. The subsidy is supposed to make up for the higher costs of complying with U.S. ship regulations and higher wages of U.S. seamen.

The government estimates of $53.4 million in 1977 for Russian grain trade compares with the $29.4 million paid out in fiscal 1974, when most of the bills for shipping the 1972 sale came in. The rest of the $84.5 million estimated as the total cost for current shipments will come out of earlier budgets.

And with last year's U.S.-Soviet grain agreement committing the Soviets to buy six million metric tons of U.S. grain annually, officials in the Commerce Department's Maritime Administration estimate that grain subsidies will run at least $30 million a year over the five-year term of the pact.

The grain is shipped primarily in oil tankers. The big ships are currently in excess supply worldwide, resulting in sharply depressed rates for ship operators. Rates have plunged since the final shipments of the 1972 purchase cost the Soviets $31 a ton, which was above the point where U.S. subsidies kick in.

Speaking At Fourteen Dead LWV Meet In N.C. Wrecks

Al Averette, Finance Director of Greenville, and Reginald Gray, County Manager of Pitt County, will be the guest speakers at a meeting of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters (LWV) at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the First Presbyterian Church.

Averette and Gray will discuss the finance systems of our city and county governments; the chief sources of funds; the process of making budgeting decisions; and the ways in which citizens can influence budgeting decisions. The speakers will also answer questions from the audience.

This will be the second in a series of two LWV meetings this year concerning local government budgetary processes. These two meetings comprise the first part of a two-year study of the Greenville and Pitt County governments.

The public is invited to attend.

By The Associated Press
Fourteen persons died in North Carolina traffic accidents over the weekend.

One was a boy killed in what the highway patrol called a hit-and-run accident near Mount Airy. Three died in a collision at a coastal intersection and two in an accident near Asheville. And a volunteer fireman died when a fire truck overturned near Asheville while responding to what turned out to be a false alarm.

The toll for the year rose to 240. But it is seven fewer than at the corresponding time last year.

Trooper L.E. Williams says that a 70-year-old Winston-Salem man, Joe Columbus Willis, was charged with hit-and-run driving after he was stopped in Virginia and voluntarily returned to North Carolina. He was accused in the death of Michael Anthony Stevens, 7, who was struck and killed by a pickup truck near his home in the Mount Airy vicinity, near the Virginia line.

Two Virginians in one car and James Thomas Gaskill, 76, of Wanchese, N.C., in another were killed in a collision near Jarvisburg on the upper coast. The Virginians were William Mark Laflesh, 24, of Norfolk, and Anthony Francis Collier, 18, of Virginia Beach.

The volunteer fireman who died was Carlos Dale Dorset, 28, of Asheville. Two other firemen were injured.

Two persons were killed when their car hit a tree near their hometown of Asheville. They were Roy Wesley Henson, 16, and Elva Lee Whitte, 50.

Jonathan Michael Wilson, 24, of Rt. 2, Wilmington, drowned when he was pinned in his car after it overturned into a creek near Carolina Beach.

Ralph Humphries, 49, of Fort Payne, Ala., died when his car hit a pole near Lattimore in Cleveland County.

Victims of other accidents were:

Randy Benfield, 20, of Rt. 2, Roaring River in Wilkes County.

Jerry Allen Pierce, 16, of Ayden.

Carla Denise Roger, 18, of Charlotte.

James Truman Patterson, 40, of Sanford.

Larry Gerald Lee Jr., 11, of Rt. 2, Trenton in Jones County.

the judge admitted.

"Is there no way of having the ex-wife play on weekdays and the ex-husband and his new wife on weekends?" I asked.

"I have suggested it a few times, but there has been resistance from the men. They feel their ex-wives shouldn't be spending their weekdays playing tennis. They should be out looking for a job or a husband, so the husbands don't have to continue paying alimony."

"I guess it's tougher on a woman than a man to give up her tennis after a divorce." "It's very complicated," he replied. "You see a divorced woman on a tennis court, if she happens to be a good player, is a threat to every married woman who is a member of the same club, particularly if she plays mixed doubles. A divorced man, on the other hand, usually shows up with a young partner of the opposite sex and prefers to play singles. I have to take all this into account when I make my ruling."

"Then when you make a decision you have to decide not what is good for the man or the woman, but what is best for the club?"

"Exactly. In divorce cases the welfare of the tennis club always has to be first. After all, the club members are really the true victims of a divorce."

"Has anyone ever appealed your decision to let the ex-wife and the present wife play for who gets the membership?"

"There is one couple that plans to take my ruling to the Supreme Court. The present wife says on the day the tournament was scheduled she had a bad back, and the ex-wife refused to postpone the match. The wife lost the set, and she is now appealing on the grounds of "illegal return of serve."

Survey For Area Begins

During the week of March 15-20, the U.S. Bureau of the Census will conduct its regular survey on employment and unemployment in this area, according to Mr. Joseph R. Norwood, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Charlotte.

In addition to the usual questions on current employment, the March survey will have questions on the work experience and income of household members last year and whether they have moved since March 1, 1975.

Households in this area are part of the sample of 55,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all U.S. households.

The monthly survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor and provides a continuous record of activity in the labor force. The January survey indicated that of the 93.5 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 86.2 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 7.8 percent, down from 8.3 percent in December, and substantially below the recession peak of 8.9 percent reached in the second quarter of 1975.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Interviewers who will visit households in this area include Mrs. Jean Wilson of Grimesland.

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is taking up the question of whether the Constitution should be amended to give the District of Columbia two senators and a share of representatives in the House.

The House is scheduled Tuesday to take up the amendment, proposed by the District's non-voting delegate, Walter E. Fauntroy.

On the same day, the Senate is to begin debate on its version of legislation to reconstitute the Federal Election Commission and thus assure the continuation of the government campaign law.

By the terms of a Supreme Court decision, the commission must be re-established as a body of presidential appointees or lose its authority to handle campaign funds. The court originally set a March 1 deadline and then extended it to March 22, which Congress now cannot meet. However, handlers of the legislation say a brief interruption in the flow of campaign contributions would not seriously hamper candidates.

Before the election bill debate, the Senate is to take up a bill designed to strengthen enforcement powers of government agencies that administer cleanliness standards in food processing plants.

Meanwhile, the House was to take up a compromise measure to settle a long controversy over financing child day-care centers. It would continue until July 1 a suspension of strict staffing standards ordered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and provide $125 million in additional federal funds to help meet the requirements.

The House will vote Wednesday on arrangements to escort the Magna Carta from Britain to this country for Bicentennial observances. A confused series of parliamentary moves and votes last week resulted in defeat of a resolution setting up the arrangements. The vote also resulted in some embarrassment to congressional leaders who thought the details had been worked out with their British counterparts.

The proposed constitutional amendment for the District of Columbia would not make a state of the capital city but would grant it full voting rights — two senators, and, on the basis of a population of about 750,000, two representatives.

In terms of population, the District is larger than 10 states, according to the 1970 census. An amendment ratified in 1961 gave District citizens for the first time a voice in presidential elections. In 1973 limited home rule was authorized, with an elected mayor and council. But Congress retained veto powers and control of the District budget.

The representation amendment, like all constitutional changes, would require a two-thirds vote in each chamber and then ratification by three-quarters of the states. Supporters were especially gloomy about the chances in the Senate because of resistance to increasing the number of Senators.

Nevertheless, they are mounting a strong push with a Bicentennial theme: its taxation without representation when Congress controls the District's fiscal affairs but the residents have no vote.

Plan Revival Bishop Said Possibly A Series Here Stowaway On Vessel

Revival services will be conducted at Cornerstone Baptist Church March 15 through March 19. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. each night.

Rev. O. A. Hester, of Louisville, Kentucky, will be the guest evangelist. Various churches of the city will conduct praise services each evening.

Dr. Hester is a native of Roxboro, N. C. and has pastored various churches in North Carolina and Virginia. He is presently pastor of the Greater Tabernacle Missionary Baptist Church in Louisville, Ky.

Dr. Hester received his undergraduate degree at Shaw University and Livingstone College, his masters degree at ECU and his Doctor of Divinity degree at Goldsboro Institute.

He is the President of the Kentucky Baptist State Convention of the National Baptist Convention U.S.A. Inc. and President of the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance of Louisville.

The public is invited.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — It's possible that William Bradford Bishop Jr. may have stowed away on a ship leaving a North Carolina port city, says North Carolina Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten.

Edmisten said Sunday that his office is working under the assumption that Bishop, wanted in the murders of his wife, mother, and three sons, is in North Carolina. But Edmisten didn't discount the possibility that Bishop may have fled abroad.

Montgomery County, Md., police are also considering the theory Bishop may have left the country, according to the Washington Star. The newspaper said in its Sunday edition that police have alerted officials at foreign ports of entry to be on the lookout for Bishop.

The 39-year-old middle-level foreign service officer has been missing since he left work early March 1. The bodies of the five victims were found the next day, burning in a bathtub-sized grave in a Tyrrell County, N.C., pine forest.

Montgomery County police and the FBI have said the victims were apparently killed March 1 at the family's Bethesda, Md., home.

Officers said they believe the bodies were taken in the family station wagon to North Carolina, where they were doused with gasoline and set afire.

Records show that the day the bodies were found, a BankAmericard in Bishop's name was used to buy $15.60 worth of merchandise at a sporting goods store about 100 miles from Tyrrell County.

But John Wheatley, who owns the store, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Sunday that he did not remember the transaction and that someone other than Bishop could have used the card.

He said he recalled someone matching Bishop's description, but only after he was shown pictures of Bishop.

Montgomery County police are having the handwriting on the credit card slip analyzed in an attempt to discover whether it was actually used by Bishop.

Wheatley says the slip does not indicate what was purchased. The definite information he has about the sale is that it did not involve guns or ammunition, because state law requires detailed records of such transactions.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Chance of rain Tuesday, becoming fair Wednesday and Thursday. Highs in the 60s Tuesday, cooling to the 50s and low 60s Wednesday and Thursday.

Half Day

All Pitt County Elementary and Middle Schools with Kindergartens through eighth grades will be closed a half day Tuesday, March 16 to allow teachers time to prepare to receive visiting team members of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Schools will close at 12 noon according to Tom Craft, associate Superintendent. High Schools will follow regular schedules March 16.

Plan Livestock Judging Team

The Pitt County Extension Service is organizing a county livestock judging team. This team will help youngsters between the ages of 9 and 19 become familiar with breeding and marketing livestock. Team members will also be taught livestock terminology how to evaluate differences between animals in a class and how to organize notes to present oral reasons.

An organizational meeting will be held Tuesday, March 23, at the Pitt County Extension Office Building, 203 West Third St. at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Arrest Suspect On Rape Charge

James Milton Barrett Jr., 28, of 423 Pittman Dr. was arrested by Greenville Police Saturday on rape charges, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

According to the chief, Barrett was charged in connection with an incident that occurred between 9 p.m. and 9:40 Saturday in the Hooker Road area.

Cannon said the incident was reported to police at 10:32 p.m. after the alleged victim contacted a neighbor and physician.

Charge Woman In Gun Death

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP)—A 19-year-old woman has been charged in the shooting death of Thomas Lyndon Lacy, 20, of Elizabeth City, the Pasquotank County Sheriff's Department said.

Charged with first degree murder was Mary Ellen King. Lacy was shot in the chest with a .22 caliber rifle, officers said.

Tanks 'Competition' Is Possible Sham Battle

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A forthcoming competition between a U.S. tank and West Germany's Leopard II to become America's tank of the future may prove to be a sham battle because U.S. officials already lean toward the local product.

The Pentagon has promised to give the German tank a fair shot at the prize — a planned U.S. purchase of 3,312 new tanks for nearly $4 billion. But key U.S. officials are inclined toward U.S. tank entries even before the U.S.-German competition begins late this year.

The final U.S. entry, the XM1, will be chosen from two rival models entered by General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp., which developed prototypes with the help of a $200-million investment by the U.S. Army. The competition involves the evaluation of the German and American entries against a set of standards defined by the U.S. Army.

Dr. Malcolm Currie, the Pentagon's research chief, told Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld last month that "the realistic likelihood of the modified Leopard II being desirable for adoption by the U.S. is considered low."

In an internal memorandum to Rumsfeld, Currie cited "reasons of cost, capability and ammunition standardization" with present U.S. tanks. A copy of the memo was made available to The Associated Press.

The Germans have been uneasy for some time about prospects for the Leopard, and the Currie memo is likely to deepen their concern.

Late last year, German officials complained to Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., that their tank might be denied a fair chance because the U.S. Army intends to choose between two competing U.S.-built models and move into costly full-scale development before the German tank is ready for the face-off with the final American entry.

Beyond the prospective big American purchase, there have been suggestions that the tank that wins the U.S.-German competition might become the basic fighting vehicle for the North Atlantic Alliance.

NATO nations are expected to replace about 10,000 older tanks with new models over the next 10 years or so. That could add up to more than $10 billion in production orders.

But Pentagon officials say they doubt NATO countries will settle on a common tank, even though everyone seems to agree that standardization of weapons among the alliance's members is a worthwhile objective.

Army officials testifying before Congress speak almost entirely in terms of the XM1, as though it is virtually a foregone conclusion that the U.S.-built tank will be chosen. They barely mention the Leopard II.

As Assistant Secretary of the Army Edward Miller put it, "The XM1 will be the backbone of our future Army."

Arrested 11 In Vice Crackdown

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—An assistant district attorney, after being propositioned a couple of times, got permission from his boss and became an undercover agent as Fayetteville police arrested 11 persons in a weekend crackdown on prostitution.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Willie Swann had accompanied police on "Operation Pickup" and was just observing the officers when the prostitutes solicited him.

"We don't intend to have assistant district attorneys working undercover all the time," Dist. Atty. Ed Grannis said, adding, "He was just out there with them (police) and was solicited, so I said to go ahead."

Grannis said he encourages his assistants to spend time with police to establish good working relationships.

Grannis said it was the first time to his knowledge that someone in the district attorney's office acted as an undercover agent.

All those arrested were from Fayetteville with the exception of two persons from New York City.

Arrested Sunday were Clarence Albert Green, 28, on two counts of aiding and abetting prostitution, and Marsha Marie "Peaches" White, 24, on one count of soliciting Swann.

Arrested Saturday were: Mary Smith "Hot Chocolate Jane" McGee, 26, on one count of soliciting; Naomi Smith, 19, on one count of soliciting Swann; and Katrina Latrice "Tottie" Jones, 19, on two counts of soliciting.

Arrested Friday were: Shakira Karir, 19, of New York on one count of soliciting; Robin "De-De" McCloud, 18, on three counts of soliciting; Fred Bernard McAllister, 21, on two counts of aiding and abetting prostitution; William James "Jenna" Graham, 21, on two counts of prostitution while dressed as a female; Denise Marie Grove, 20, on one count of soliciting; and Nita Jane Adams, 23, on one count of soliciting.

NEW YORK (AP)—Profit takers pushed the stock market into another broad decline in slackened trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 15.67 on Friday, had dropped another 9.60 to 987.04 by 11:30 a.m. today.

Losers outpaced gainers by about a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading volume dropped off sharply, with 5.28 million shares changing hands in the first hour against 7.39 million in the like period Friday.

Analysts said Friday's decline apparently had convinced some would-be buyers to hold off for a while on the theory that the market was due for a pullback.

The Dow had risen 150 points in 10 weeks before beginning its pullback Friday.

France's decision to withdraw from the joint float system of European currencies also seemed to have put investors on their guard. Steel stocks continued to slide following an analyst's wary comment on the group last week. U.S. Steel dropped 2 1/4 to 82 3/4; Bethlehem Steel was off 1/4 to 43 3/4, and Armco fell 1 1/4 to 33 3/4.

American Telephone & Telegraph, the most active Big Board issue, dipped 3/4 to 55 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gave up .38 to 53.53 in the first hour.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .49 at 103.99.

CP&L Claims Plant Saved $100 Million

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Carolina Power & Light Co. says its nuclear plant at Hartsville, S.C., has saved CP&L customers more than $100 million in fuel costs during its first five years of operation.

The H.B. Robinson plant, put into commercial use in March 1971, was the first commercial nuclear power plant to operate in the Southeast.

The plant, constructed at a cost of $84.1 million, has generated more than 20 billion kilowatt hours in the last five years. The electricity generated by it has cost more than $100 million less than what it would have cost to generate a similar amount of electricity using conventional coal plants, according to the company.

The nuclear plant's output has represented between 15 and 20 percent of all power generated on the CP&L system. CP&L expects to get 30 percent of its generation from nuclear fuel this year, including the output from the utility's second nuclear unit, the Brunswick plant near Southport, N.C.

Communist-Socialist Alliance Scored Gains

PARIS (AP) — For the second weekend in a row, the Socialist-Communist alliance got more than 50 per cent of the vote in a nationwide French election.

Government spokesmen acknowledged the results of the two rounds of voting for 94 regional councils was a setback for President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's forces. But they contended local issues were of primary interest to the voters and that the outcome was not necessarily an indication of what would happen in the 1978 parliamentary elections.

The leftists claimed the vote was a true sign of national feeling.

Results from 1,775 of the 1,863 districts gave the leftist alliance 905 seats on the regional councils and the government coalition 870. A number of the districts still to be heard from usually vote Communist.

The figures included races decided March 7 in the first round of voting for the councils, which deal mainly with such matters as county budgets and public works.

Among the individual parties, the Socialists and Giscard's independent Republicans gained seats and the Communists were holding their own. But the Gaullist Union of Democrats for the Republic was losing seats.

One of the losers was Transport Minister Marcel Cavaille, who despite his support of the supersonic airliner Concorde lost his council seat to a Socialist in Toulouse, the site of the Concorde factory. But the airliner was not an issue, and Cavaille's cabinet membership was not affected.

Probe Theft Of About $1,244

Chief Glenn Cannon said police are continuing their investigation into an incident at First State Bank on South Memorial Drive last night in which about $1,200 was reported stolen.

The chief said Gary Ross Hovermale, an attendant at the Sav-A-Thon gas station told police he went to the bank to make a night deposit about 11:40 p.m. Cannon quoted Hovermale as saying when he approached the night deposit box, someone came up behind him, stuck what he believed to be a pistol in his back and took a bag containing about $1,244.

A campus march is planned and an information booth has been set up on campus in the old Student Union.

For students or area citizens who are interested, there will be a meeting Tuesday at 7:30 in Room 208 of Mendenhall Student Center. Further information may be obtained by contacting Ramsey or any of the other committee chairman.

Arson Indicated In Motel Fire

SANFORD, N.C. (AP)—The State Bureau of Investigation's arson unit was called in after a seven-room penthouse apartment in a downtown Sanford motel exploded into flames Sunday afternoon.

Firemen said they found numerous gasoline-filled containers had been placed in the apartment. There were no injuries.

No estimate was made on the amount of loss but damage was restricted to the unoccupied third-floor apartment and an attic above it, authorities said. Gasoline cans were found in every room of the apartment, but authorities did not give the total number.

Bowie Kuhn Expected To Start Spring Training

AT BRISTOL—Darrel Waltrip (88) slips by on the high side as Richard Petty (43) loses control in the second turn. Petty's car continues to spin and climbs toward the wall. Cecil Gordon's car (24) slams Petty's in the third picture of the sequence. Both Petty and Gordon were knocked out of the running of the 16th Southeastern 400 Stockcar Race. (ASP Wirephoto)

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is expected to step in today and order the opening of baseball's spring training camps while negotiations continue between club owners and the Players Association over a new labor contract.

"I can't offer you a hard date, whether it is Monday or Tuesday, but we will have baseball on time," Kuhn said Sunday in a surprise appearance at the hotel where negotiations are taking place.

Despite Kuhn's optimism, the negotiators issued four reports at the end of the 29th negotiating session.

"We're a long way from having the key to the padlock," said John Gaherin, the chief negotiator for the owners.

"There is no drastic change at all," said Gaherin. "We're still confronted with the same problems at the same dimensions."

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, agreed with Gaherin. Miller indicated, however, that the owners were stonewalling until a specific time, and then would break the impasse.

A management source told The Associated Press that the owners' deadline was Monday, probably before nightfall. That would open the camps Tuesday and give teams three weeks to get ready for the April 8 openers.

Kuhn was asked about the Monday deadline and replied: "I hope so ... But there is a difference of opinion among owners on how much time is needed for preparations."

The commissioner has the power to open the camps for the best interest of baseball.

The league presidents, Chub Feeney of the National and Lee MacPhail of the American, also could issue the order if they felt enough progress was being made at the negotiating table.

The thorny problem of the reserve clause still confronted the negotiators. The owners want a player tied to a club — unless traded, sold or released — for nine years. The Players Association is willing to settle for a six-year reserve clause. The players, under an arbitrator's decision subsequently upheld by two federal courts, legally could become free agents in two years under the controversial one-and-one option ruling.

Kuhn, however, took the play away from the tense negotiating scene. Casually attired in a yellow spot shirt and red sweater, he indicated that he came to Florida to help break the impasse.

"When I think opening the camps will help bargaining, I will open them," he declared. "I don't think that anyone takes seriously the thought that there will be no baseball."

Gaherin, his Management Players Relation Committee, Miller and nine players worked at the problem for 7½ hours Sunday. Included among the players present were Tom Seaver, the pitching ace of the New York Mets; Pittsburgh Pirates starting Willie Stargell; Lou Brock and Reggie Smith of the Saint Louis Cardinals, and catcher Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Beseiged NFL Opening Its Meetings; Many Problems

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Beseiged by legal entanglement over its reserve clause, the National Football League opened annual meetings today with a disagreement on the number of players its teams should carry.

According to official rules, the limit is 36 but in past years owners have boosted that to as many as 47. The limit in 1975 was 43.

Prior to 1974, there was a "taxi" squad limit of seven above the regular roster of 40 — which permitted clubs to carry a reserve squad. Two years ago the taxi squads were eliminated.

Currently one group wants to reduce from the 43 of last year and Eugene Klein, majority owner of the San Diego Chargers is in that alignment.

Others want to return to at least 47 with Coach George Allen of the Washington Redskins vocal in that group.

Player limits and the injured reserved list might well be coupled in discussions of the owners. Last year, the Los Angeles Rams, for instance, had seven regulars knocked out for the season.

Only three on the injured reserve list could be protected from being drafted by other clubs at the end of the season, so to protect the others from the draft, the Rams kept injured players on their active roster and suited up less than the squad limit.

For two years there has been no contract between the players and the league. Two years ago there was a strike. Last year there was competition with no contract. The Joe Kapp case in San Francisco and the John Mackey suit in Minneapolis have gone against the NFL and its "Rozelle Rule" that a team losing a man who plays out his option and signs with another club must be compensated by the signing club.

A year ago, the NFL calmed its labor relations problems with players by agreeing to a five-year plan still providing there be compensation for a team that loses a free agent player. However, if the two clubs can't reach an agreement, the dispute goes to binding arbitration rather than to Rozelle for his decision.

All this will be discussed behind closed doors at the swank Hotel del Coronado during the week-long annual session.

On Tuesday, the league decides which city receives the Super Bowl for 1978. Pasadena's Rose Bowl already has it for 1977. The usual bidders — Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles, Miami and New Orleans — will have groups present.

Pasadena tries to repeat its 1975 upset when it landed the NFL gem for next year.

On Wednesday, the Management Council will tell the owners how its negotiations with the players are going. There was no indication the report would be much different from last year.

Yarborough Is Easy Winner In Bristol 400

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP)—Despite damage to the steering of his Chevrolet, Cale Yarborough coasted to his first Grand National victory of the 1976 season in the Southeastern 400 here Sunday.

"My only problem was when I cut a tire down the front straightaway and hit the guard rail on the first turn," Yarborough said after collecting $19,410 for the first place finish.

"It knocked my steering two inches off center, but the car continued to handle all right," he added.

Yarborough finished more than a full lap ahead of Darrell Waltrip, also driving a Chevrolet, of Franklin, Tenn., after taking the lead on the 183rd lap around the half-mile oval.

"I was outrunning Waltrip all day and I knew I had the race won and I didn't want to take any chances the last 100 laps," Yarborough said.

Last year's winner, Richard Petty, was sidelined on the 64th lap following a five-car pileup in which no one was injured.

The Bristol race was the fifth on the Grand National circuit this year. Yarborough picked up his fourth win at the track with an average speed of 87.377 miles per hour.

Bennie Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C., and Dave Marcis of Skyland, N.C., both driving Chevrolets, finished in third and fourth, respectively.

Crimson Tide Could Use Magic Of Bear Bryant

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
Quick, Bear Bryant, if you really know how to walk on water now's the time to tell C.M. Newton.
Perhaps taking a cue from

Bryant's Alabama footballers, who finally won a postseason contest last season, Newton's eighth-ranked cagers registered the school's first-ever triumph in the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament Saturday, knocking off fifth-ranked North Carolina 79-64.

That sends the Crimson Tide on to the next round of the talent-laden Mideast Regionals at Baton Rouge, La., where waiting in the wings is none other than unbeaten, No. 1-ranked Indiana. The Hoosiers walloped No. 17 St. John's 90-70 and led an advance of the top four teams in The Associated Press ratings.

Second-ranked Marquette whipped Western Kentucky 79-60; No. 3 Rutgers, the nation's only other undefeated quintet, had the scare of its life before nipping Princeton 54-53 and fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas buried Boise State 103-78. Sixth-ranked UCLA, the defending NCAA champion, also advanced with a 74-64 victory over San Diego State.

day's regionals:
— East, at Greensboro, N.C. — Rutgers vs. Connecticut and VMI vs. DePaul.

— Mideast, at Baton Rouge, La. — Indiana vs. Alabama and Marquette vs. Western Michigan.

— Midwest, at Louisville, Ky. — Notre Dame vs. Michigan and Missouri vs. Texas Tech.
— West, at Los Angeles — Nevada-Las Vegas vs. Arizona and UCLA vs. Pepperdine.

The regional finals will be Saturday.

Leon Douglas, a 6-foot-10 center who was the Southeastern Conference's Player of the Year, keyed Alabama's victory over North Carolina with 35 points and 17 rebounds. Now, it's on to Baton Rouge, La., to meet the mighty Hoosiers Thursday night.

"We're playing the best team in the country, without any question," Newton said. "This is a great opportunity for us and a great challenge for us."
This is the line-up for Thurs-

day's regionals:
— East, at Greensboro, N.C. — Rutgers vs. Connecticut and VMI vs. DePaul.
— Mideast, at Baton Rouge, La. — Indiana vs. Alabama and Marquette vs. Western Michigan.
— Midwest, at Louisville, Ky. — Notre Dame vs. Michigan and Missouri vs. Texas Tech.
— West, at Los Angeles — Nevada-Las Vegas vs. Arizona and UCLA vs. Pepperdine.
The regional finals will be Saturday.

The two big upsets of Saturday's opening round came at Charlotte, N.C., where unheralded VMI stunned ninth-ranked Tennessee 81-75 and similarly unranked DePaul turned back No. 13 Virginia 69-60. At Providence, R.I., Rutgers edged Princeton and Connecticut outlasted Hofstra 80-78 in overtime.

Alabama and Marquette won their games at Dayton, Ohio, while Indiana came through at South Bend, Ind., along with No. 16 Western Michigan, a 77-67 winner over Virginia Tech in overtime.

At Lawrence, Kan., seventh-ranked Notre Dame needed the luck of the Irish to nose out No. 15 Cincinnati 79-78 and No. 10 Missouri shaded No. 11 Washington 69-67. Michigan, ranked 14th, squeaked past Wichita State 74-73 at Denton, Tex., while No. 19 Texas Tech trounced Syracuse 69-56.

At Tempe, Ariz., No. 18 Arizona downed Georgetown 83-76 and Pepperdine defeated Memphis State 87-77. Nevada-Las Vegas and UCLA won at Eugene, Ore.

The Indiana-Alabama scuffle could turn into a showdown between Douglas and the Hoosiers' Scott May, AP College Player of the Year. May, who was hampered by a broken wrist when Indiana was eliminated in the regional finals of last year's NCAA Tournament, scored 33 points as the Hoosiers pulled away from stubborn St. John's with a 29-10 spurt midway through the second half.

Once-beaten Marquette stretched its winning streak to 22 games with an easy triumph over Western Kentucky behind Butch Lee's 21 points and 18 by Earl Tatum. The Warriors committed only two turnovers en route to a 36-29 halftime lead and blew the Hilltoppers out with a 14-5 burst early in the second half.

Rutgers' perfect record was in jeopardy in the closing seconds but the Scarlet Knights, who led by 10 early in the second half, survived when Princeton's Pete Molloy, a little-used reserve guard, missed the first part of a one-and-one situation with four seconds left.

Nevada-Las Vegas, which average 110.8 points a game during the regular season, took a 48-39 halftime lead over Boise and poured it on in the second half. Eddie Owens topped the Rebels with 24 points and Jackie Robinson added 20. UCLA's Richard Washington collected 25 and the Bruins broke open a tight game with San Diego State in the second half after leading by only three at the intermission.

Notre Dame, despite Adrian Dantley's 27 points, trailed Cincinnati most of the way but the Bearcats turned the ball over when they failed to inbound it in the allotted time with eight seconds left and a one-point lead. Notre Dame's Toby Knight then tipped in a missed shot in the final second.

Tennessee, minus Southeastern Conference scoring champ Bernard King, out with a thumb injury, fell to VMI despite Ernie Grunfeld's 36 points. The winners shot a blistering 66 per cent and Will Bynum, Ron Carter and John Krovic combined for 56 points.

Missouri's Jim Kennedy made two free throws and Willie Smith and Scott Sims one apiece in the final minute as the Tigers, behind 36-30 at the half, overtook Washington. De-Paul trailed Virginia by five at halftime but Ron Norwood rallied the Blue Demons by scoring 21 of his 28 points in the second half.

Michigan came from 12 points down in the second half and nosed out Wichita State on Rickey Green's 20-foot baseline jump shot with six seconds left. Western Michigan trailed Virginia Tech by 13 but caught up on Jeff Tyson's basket with 40 seconds left in regulation time. Tyson then added five of his 25 points in the overtime.

Playmaker Jim Rappis turned scorer with 20 points on 8-of-13 shooting to lead Arizona over Georgetown. Mike Russell and Rick Bullock combined for 40 points as Texas Tech handled smaller Syracuse. Brazilian Marcos Leite's 34 points led Pepperdine over Memphis State and Connecticut came from 15 points back in the second half to nip Hofstra in overtime.

Young Providence Strongman Is Success Secret Of Friars' Quint

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Bob

Miscivius is not the easiest name in the world to pronounce, but it's spelling success for the Providence Friars in the 39th National Invitation Tournament.

The Providence strongman with the tricky name is the main reason his team is in Tuesday night's quarter-finals against Louisville.

"Miscivius is a young player with little experience and he can sometimes keep both teams in the game at the same time," says Providence Coach Dave Gavitt. "He sometimes tries to do too much on offense — but he did what he was told Saturday night."

Miscivius was as tough to handle as his name, scoring 16 of his 20 points in the second half, leading Providence to an 84-68 romp over North Carolina A&T in the opening round.

Three other first-round games were staged at Madison Square Garden, and Kentucky beat Niagara 67-61, North Carolina-Charlotte trimmed the University of San Francisco 79-74 in overtime and Holy Cross turned back St. Peter's 84-77.

The results set up a quarter-final doubleheader tonight matching North Carolina-Charlotte against Oregon and Holy Cross against North Carolina State. Along with the Providence-Louisville match Tuesday night, Kentucky will face Kansas State.

Providence and Louisville met earlier in the season and the Friars beat the Cardinals 63-60 with a weapon Gavitt calls the "spread offense." He used it Saturday night against North Carolina A&T, positioning the 6-foot-9, 230-pound Miscivius out past the key instead of under the basket. And the tactic spreadeagled the Aggies, allowing the big center to cash in on several easy, "back-door" baskets.

Gavitt plans to spring it on Louisville again Tuesday night, so it's no secret weapon as far as the Cardinals are concerned. Kentucky had a tougher time with Niagara in the NIT opener. The Wildcats scuttled the Purple Eagles early with a run-and-gun offense, then had to survive a late Niagara rally.

James Lee led Kentucky with 20 points, while Jack Givens added 16. Niagara was paced by Andy Walker's 18. Melvin Watkins hit the go-ahead field goal with 1:03 in overtime to spur North Carolina-Charlotte past San Francisco in the best game of the opening four. Chris Potter netted 23 points, including seven in a game-breaking stretch, leading Holy Cross past St. Peter's.

Foreigners Fared Well At NCAA Indoor Meet

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Foreigners had their turns on the winner's platform at the 12th National Collegiate Athletic Association Indoor Track Championships — but Americans made enough significant contributions to bolster U.S. hopes for the Summer Olympics.

Some critics seemed concerned that foreigners were honing their track talents with United States college teams at the expense of America's Olympic efforts.

But there were enough native-American winners in the weekend meet at Cobo Arena in Detroit to, perhaps, stave off some of the more severe criticism.

Texas-El Paso (UTEP), which got a meet record-setting performance from its Kenyan distance medley relay quartet Saturday, easily coasted to its third straight championship — an unprecedented feat.

The Miners, who had 17 points after Friday's seven finals, wound up with 23 after the last 11 final events Saturday to easily outdistance the 15 points by Villanova. Tennessee was third with 14, followed by Washington State and Illinois with 13 each, Auburn with 12, plus Long Beach State, Kansas State and Western Kentucky with 10.

There were 122 teams competing and 58 managed at least a point.

Earl Bell of Arkansas State, a 20-year-old junior from Jonesboro, Ark., turned in what was probably the most impressive performance of the meet by successfully defending his pole vault title with a meet record leap of 18 1/4 feet to conclude the competition. He narrowly missed three tries at a world mark of 18-4.

Another American, Long Beach State's Dwight Stones, won the high jump with a meet mark of 7 feet 3 inches. He failed three times at 7-4 1/4. Stones recently set the world record of 7-6 1/4.

Villanova's Mark Belger, a 19-year-old from Long Island, set one of Saturday's five meet records with a 2:07.29 in the 1,000-yard run. The old mark of 2:07.4 was set by Duke's Bob Wheeler in 1971.

Other Americans to win Saturday were Louisiana State's Allen Misher of Houston, with a 60-yard high hurdles time of :07.29, and Auburn freshman Harvey Gance of Phoenix City, Ala., with a winning 60-yard dash of :06.21.

Tennessee got a winning mile relay time of 3:16.03 from Americans Lamar Preyor, Mike Barlow, Ronnie Harris and Jerome Morgan, while Wisconsin's home-grown quartet of Mark Randall, Steve Lacy, Mark Sang and Dick Moss captured the two-mile in 7:26.79.

Irishman Eamonn Coghlan gave Villanova a triumph in the mile with a 4:01.48 clocking. Englishman Nick Rose defended his two-mile crown with a meet record 8:30.91 to beat the mark of 8:33.6 set by Villanova's John Hartnett in 1974.

The 600-yard run winner, Charles Damiga of New Mexico, is a sophomore from Uganda, East Africa. He was clocked in 1:10.58.

UTEP's impressive distance medley relay team, which finished three-fourths of a lap ahead of runnerup Princeton, consisted of Paul Njoroge, Joe Gichongeri, James Munyala and Wilson Waigwa.

The Miners had two winners Friday, triple jumper Arnold Grimes and 35-pound weight thrower Emmitt Berry — both from the United States.

Title Time At Baton Rouge Still Unlikely

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — "They'll be settling the national championship at Baton Rouge this week," said a Dayton NCAA Mideast Regional tournament basketball official.

That's not really the case even if No. 1 Indiana, No. 2 Marquette, No. 8 Alabama and No. 16 Western Michigan are heading for the Mideast semifinals Thursday night. The national title won't be played for another two weeks in Philadelphia.

Alabama, celebrating its first NCAA tournament victory, a 79-64 lesson Saturday for No. 5 North Carolina at Dayton gets the first crack at the unbeaten Hoosiers.

Marquette (26-1) carries its 22-game winning streak against Western Michigan after slowing up Western Kentucky's races-horses 79-60.

And, if you listen to Alabama star Leon Douglas, the Crimson Tide has an excellent shot at ending Indiana's 28-game winning spell.

After ruining North Carolina with 35 points, 17 rebounds and three blocked shots, the 6-foot-10, 230-pound Douglas vowed, "This is a very confident team."

Dean Smith, his Atlantic Coast Conference tournament runner-up out at 25-4, appeared envious of 23-4 Alabama's awesome assignment. "We would have liked to try Indiana. When you're on top everyone wants to try you," he said.

Newton seemed stunned after the Southeastern Conference champion's first NCAA triumph. "I'm not used to this," he said. "I was scared to death when we were up 12 at the half."

Alabama's unyielding defense limited Atlantic Coast Player of the Year Mitch Kupchak to eight points on 3-of-11 shooting. Phil Ford, North Carolina's other hotshot, managed only 1-of-5 for just two points.

"I had a poor game. I felt like I let everyone down," said the 6-10 Kupchak. Ford aggravated an old knee injury earlier in the week and played with it heavily wrapped. "I couldn't turn like I wanted. A couple of times I had the ball on what could have been a break, but I couldn't do it," said the 6-2 guard.

Jim Richards, whose Western Kentucky team went out at 20-9, was impressed with Marquette's performance. "They are a powerful ball club. They are talented and well coached. That's a whale of a combination," he said.

The mercurial Hilltoppers shook loose on fast breaks, shocking the Warriors with an early 24-18 lead. Al McGuire called a Marquette timeout, adjusted his defense and watched his team reel off 12 straight points for a permanent 30-24 edge.

Savalas Has Runaway Doral Victory By Hubie Green

A Hot Horse

HIS HORSE WON — Actor Telly Savalas, with son Nicholas up, smiles after his horse, Telly's Pop, won the $150,000 California Derby Saturday at Golden Gate Fields. (AP Wirephoto)

By The Associated Press
"We're going all the way, baby," says Telly Savalas.
The colorful star of television's Kojak, a novice when it comes to thoroughbred racing, has a hot horse to go with his hit series. He's co-owner of Telly's Pop, one of the leading candidates for the Kentucky Derby.
Telly's Pop staked a claim to being the best 3-year-old in the West by winning Saturday's $150,000 California Derby at Golden Gate Fields. Afterward, Savalas issued a warning to Kentucky Derby favorite Honest Pleasure, generally rated the best in the East:
"They'll call him 'Honest Pain' after we get through with him," he said, looking to the Churchill Downs classic May 1. "I figure we can take the pleasure out of him. We've been sipping mint juleps since last year."

Telly's Pop, purchased for $6,000 by Savalas and produce Howard Koch before his racing career began, won California's top three races for 2-year-olds in 1975. Saturday's start was his first since Dec. 27 and despite high weight of 122 pounds, he came through with an impressive two-length victory — his sixth triumph in eight career starts.
"Every time he runs, he's improving," said Francisco Mena, who rode Telly's Pop the 11-1/2 miles in 1:42:55. He paid $5.
On Sunday, jockey Bill Shoemaker passed another milestone when he rode his 7,000th career winner, piloting Royal Derby II — a horse which

Dinner Honors Red Auerbach

BOSTON (AP) — Red Auerbach, president and general manager of the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association, will be honored tonight at the annual dinner of The Hundred Club of Massachusetts.
The Hundred Club is a non-profit organization with 2,000 members who team to provide financial assistance to families of deceased law enforcement officers and fire fighters.
Previous winners of the club awards include late Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, former U.S. House Speaker John McCormack and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Rites For A Sportsman

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled at Superior, Wis., Wednesday for Oluf "Ole" Haugrud, a member of the board of directors of the National Football League Minnesota Vikings.
Haugrud died Saturday in a Duluth hospital at the age of 73.
The former Duluth businessman and sportsman had a life-time involvement with professional football and helped form the Viking franchise in 1960.
Haugrud became business manager of a semipro team in 1924 and two years later signed Stanford All-American Ernie Nevers, which was considered a landmark achievement for the struggling NFL. That club played as a traveling team for two years. The franchise, which through a number of transfers has become the Washington Redskins, was disbanded for a year and finally sold to a group from Orange, N.J.
Haugrud is survived by his widow Margaret.

AP Golf Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Hubert Green describes himself as "just a skinny kid from Birmingham."
But in only five full seasons on the pro golf tour, this skinny kid from Birmingham has won nine American titles, a big-money Japanese event and almost $600,000. But that, says Hubert, doesn't make him a great golfer.

"A great golfer, in my mind, is a man who wins the majors — who wins more than one of the majors," Green said.

"When I think of great players, I think of Hogan and Snead, men like that."
"I don't wear those kind of shoes."

Share Prize In Dogwood

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Jerry Cook of Rome, N. Y., and L. D. Ottinger of Newport, Tenn., used different routes, but both came home with victories in the $75,485 Dogwood 500 Classic doubleheader.
Cook, driving a Pinto, went in front on the 184th lap and coasted home with a two-lap triumph Sunday in the Modified race, the second half of the twin bill, after Ottinger had taken the lead on the 247th lap in his Chevelle to win the earlier Late Model Sportsman event.

The payday was bigger for Ottinger, who earned $6,300 for first place and a $1,000 bonus for leading the most laps, 117.
Cook took home the $6,300 first-place money, but the lap money in the Modified race went to pole-winner Don "Satch" Worley of Rocky Mount, Va., who led for 150 laps before wrecking his car and winding up in 19th place.
The speed in the Modified race was 60.594 miles per hour over the half-mile Martinsville Speedway track with eight caution flags for 71 laps and four lead changes among four drivers.
Ottinger averaged only 53.743 m.p.h. with the caution flag out seven times for 107 laps. Five drivers exchanged the lead seven times.

Trailing Cook were Brian Ross of Ballston Spa, N. Y.; Charlie Gazier of Westhaven, Conn.; Gary of Taylorsville, N. C.; and Melvin Chilton of Eden, N. C.

Ottinger was followed by Jack Ingram of Asheville, N. C.; Monk Tate of Ruffin, N. C.; Morgan Shepherd of Conover, N. C.; and Dale Earnhardt of Kannapolis, N. C.

Doubleheader On Saturday Is 'Team Day'

East Carolina University Director of Athletics Bill Cain announced today that Saturday's baseball doubleheader with Davidson has been designated as "Team Day" by the department.

All area junior high, high school and youth league teams are invited to attend the contests, starting at 1:30 p.m. at Harrington Field, as guests of the Department of Athletics.

Cain said that the area programs have been important as far as feeder programs for the college baseball program and that Saturday's promotion is in recognition of this fact. To gain admission to the contests, the head coach or supervisor of each group must simply register his team at the ticket gate.

This is so the groups can be recognized between games.

Things go better with a Cricketeer mixer.

Because no other suit can cover so much fashion ground as smoothly as a "Mixer" can. It's terrific as a dress or business suit, with meticulous detailing and the bold, elegant shape that's flattering to everyone. Yet it has a whole other life, thanks to coordinated patterned slacks on which to build a lot of great casual looks. In an exclusive textured Dacron fabric with a rich linen texture and a range of colors that goes from classic darks through many new heather tones for Spring.

Laughter Is Now Subdued In Panama

By MATTHEW T. KENNY
PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — It's hard for an outsider to judge but a lot of people seemed to feel that carnival this year lacked the gaiety and spontaneity usually associated with that festival.

Of course they danced the tamborito, caroused a bit and then "buried the fish" at dawn on Ash Wednesday before it was all over until next year.

But the fact that Gen. Omar Torrijos deported 10 of the nation's top businessmen last month and showed no hurry about letting them back didn't do too much for laughter.

Unemployment is running high. Gasoline costs $1 a gallon. Prices are up on everything.

Walk down Avenida Central just before shops close for the mid-day lunch break and you'll find throngs of people on the street, including lottery vendors.

There seem to be a lot of policemen around. Instinctively you take a quick look at your wrist — the watch is still there. (A local news report says pickpockets are operating on bicycles in the Atlantic port of Colon.)

Panama City is a blend of growing numbers of sleek high-rise buildings and old two-story edifices.

The number of stores selling Japanese radios, TV sets and cameras seems to have vastly multiplied. There is a McDonalds and a big Sears department store nearby.

But some things never change here.

The old wooden tenements in the neighborhoods closest to the Canal Zone are still there along with a newer shanty town called Hollywood.

Some must date back to not long after the canal opened in 1914. How they avoid falling down seems miraculous. Their balconies flutter with laundry in sundry colors and exhale the odors of cooking oil.

Stop for a coffee in a cafe. The man on the next stool seems willing to talk. What does he think about the negotiations with the U.S.? Will Panama get the canal?

"Let's hope not," he says in rapid Spanish. "It would go down the drain in six months."

You wonder if he is patronizing a gringo. But he continues:

"Let the Yankees keep control of the canal. Give us more jobs and more money out of it. We need jobs."

He put his mouth up close to my ear. "You gotta be careful here about what you say with this government. You never know who's listening. Some people have disappeared. Nobody knows what happened."

Wander outside past the garish bars which American GI's from bases in the zone love so well — places like "The Fox Hole," "Cantina Relax," "Buffalo Bar" and "Charlie's Bar."

"Welcome buddy — we cash government checks," say the signs. Bar girls in tight halters and tighter pants smile invitations. There is the inevitable tattoo parlor.

The boundary which separates downtown Panama from the Canal Zone is called 4th of July Avenue on the Zone side and Avenue of Martyrs on the Panama side (in memory of the dead in the 1964 anti-American riots).

Itney buses called "chivas" (nanny goats) whirl by. Some look like they came out of Henry Ford's original workshop — and who knows?

The old Ancon Inn is still operating on the Panama side. The sound of a dice box being pounded on the bar echoes out the open doorway.

A youth and an old dog are leaning over the balcony of a rundown apartment house.

"How do you think the negotiations on the canal will come out?" you ask.

"I'm not up on the zone situation very much," he replies, even though the zone is barely 200 feet away.

You knock on a shabby wooden door. Two surprised young women come to the doorway. You explain and ask the same question.

They hesitate. "You should stay," says one. "I don't think the U.S. should go. Panama should get more money and a better deal."

The other agrees. They give their names. Then one says "Don't use my name. You don't want me to be hauled off some dark night, do you?"

Two university students — both 19 and both boarders there — disagree with the women.

"The United States should get out — soon. In 10 or 15 years at the most. Everything belongs to Panama, so why not give it to us?" says one. The other voices a similar view.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There could be some confusion in your relationship with others at this time. You would be wise to come to a better understanding by being more cooperative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't rely on others for assistance now since they are too preoccupied with own affairs. Use own good judgment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure you carry through with any work you have promised others or you could lose out where it counts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take care you don't irk the one you love or there could be a serious argument. Make the evening a charming one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use much thought and courtesy with kin at home and you get good results now instead of arguments.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Care in motion is important today and tonight if you wish to avoid accidents. Show others you have much poise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You should be careful in the handling of monetary affairs or you could make errors. Use common sense.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Seek the company of cheerful individuals since they can help drive away the gloom. Sidelstep a troublemaker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Not a good day to try to uncover a baffling situation and get the truth, but tomorrow is fine. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't rely on a pal for a favor at this time, but rely on your own resources. Guard your reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Exercise care in handling any deals in the business world. Follow any regulations that apply to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget about making any drastic change that could lead to nowhere now. Keep out of dangerous places.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't rely on your hunches today which are likely to be erroneous. Be sure to use tact with the one you love.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will listen on doing things in an unorthodox manner. Teach to insist and then life can become successful along right lines. Any profession that requires precision and patience is fine here.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1976, The Chicago Tribune

A.—We never like passing partner's one club opening bid when we hold a singleton in his suit and a smattering of points. Our preference is for a bid of one diamond. This allows partner to introduce a major suit at the one level should he hold four cards in either hearts or spades.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ10 ♥AK10952 ♦83 ♣K

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3♥ Pass East ?
What action do you take?

A.—Double. It is a close decision between that and a bid of four hearts or a cue-bid of four clubs. However, a bid of four hearts seems too unilateral an action—you could go down at that contract with four spades on ice. A cue-bid could lead you in a difficult position should partner leap to five diamonds. At this vulnerability, you should be delighted if partner converts your double to penalties.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQJ843 ♥KJ ♦AQ5 ♣AK

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
2♥ Pass 3NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Six no trump. Partner almost certainly has the ace of hearts and king of diamonds for his bid, and even if the king of diamonds is missing, the slam should depend on no more than the finesse. And should partner have made an error with his first response and hold both missing aces and the king of diamonds, he should go on to seven.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQJ5 ♥Q1072 ♦K ♣AK74

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♠ 1♥ 1♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. Your hand is too strong for any action other than a jump shift. A leap to four hearts does not come close to expressing its value. Slam in hearts is a distinct possibility, and you should alert partner to your ambitions as soon as possible.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K9 ♥Q9 ♦Q108742 ♣AJ9

East South West North
3♥ Pass Pass 4♥
Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Partner has announced a very good hand with his jump to four hearts, and you could have the right cards for a slam. Your queen of hearts is the equivalent of an ace. The correct way to show your intentions is to cue-bid five clubs.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J982 ♥Q765 ♦Q1072 ♣7

Partner opens the bidding with one club. What action do you take?

A.—Redouble. Your hand has 10 HCP, the minimum for this action. Had there been no interference, you would have bid three spades, but that action would be preemptive. To jump to four spades could be punishing a partner who opened light in third seat.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.25 in cash or check, payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648.

Tevised 'Novels' In Store

EDITOR'S NOTE — "Rich Man, Poor Man" cost $7 million to produce. But that's on the high side, says the producer. Other novels can be serialized for television at less cost.

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — With installments of the Rudy and Tom Jordache saga scoring strongly in the ratings every Monday night, it looks as if "Rich Man, Poor Man" is the preface to a television novel of the Week.

Universal Studios, which produced the 12-hour drama for ABC, already is at work on a weekly "Best Sellers" series that NBC plans to run next season. Four to six novels will be adapted, although none has been announced yet.

Like Irwin Shaw's "Rich Man, Poor Man," each book will be presented in weekly chapters over several weeks, with length being determined by the subject matter, NBC says. None is expected to exceed six hours total, a network programming executive adds.

ABC, although not ready to commit itself yet to a Novel of the Week series, has two other mammoth projects in the works to follow up on the success of "Rich Man, Poor Man."

"Roots," chronicling seven generations of an American black family from its African origins to the present, will run at least six and probably 14 hours, beginning next January. "Hawaii," the James Michener epic that already has been made into two feature films, is being explored for as much as 18 hours.

In addition, ABC is expanding on the four-hour biography of "Eleanor and Franklin," presented earlier this season. A three-hour sequel on the Roosevelts' White House years, featuring the same actors, will air next season, and a two-hour episode based on Joseph P. Lash's "Eleanor: The Years Alone" will be shown the following spring. Then all nine hours will be repeated in series format.

"We have happened something," marvels Harve Bennett, executive producer at Universal of "Rich Man, Poor Man."

"For two decades," he explains, "the American public has been bored and petrified by the patterns of commercial television — the sameness, the predictability."

Bennett couldn't be more pleased. As a lifelong book lover, he had always been frustrated that the experience of reading a novel couldn't be translated to film.

His "Rich Man, Poor Man" breaks with that tradition. The story is not open-ended like a regular TV series; it has a definite beginning, middle and end. The characters are deeply drawn; we watch them grow and change over a 22-year span beginning with high school. And because the drama is stretched out over eight weeks, tuning in is something akin to reading a few chapters of a book before bed, then putting it aside and looking forward to the next time.

Argue Risks In Nuclear Waste Road Shipment

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — A government shipment of radioactive waste across nearly 100 miles of Connecticut roads today would not have been planned if it were dangerous, federal officials said.

But opponents argued on the eve of the first of several such shipments that the government was minimizing the risks.

"This is potentially more dangerous, we feel, than federal officials are allowing for," said Alison Oldham, a spokesman for People in Action for Clean Energy (PACE). The group, based in southeastern Connecticut, opposes nuclear power generating plants.

But David Schwler, chief of operations for the federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), said, "If we had any doubts that the shipments were dangerous, we wouldn't be making them."

At 2 p.m. today a public ferry from Orient Point, Long Island was due to arrive here carrying a flatbed truck with a 13-ton protective cask containing radioactive waste from the Brookhaven National Laboratory in Upton, N.Y.

The truck was to head south-west on the Connecticut Turnpike to Milford; north to the Merritt Parkway, a road normally restricted to heavy truck traffic; west on the parkway to Stratford; north on twisting Route 8 to Waterbury and southwest on Interstate 84 to Danbury. The route was selected because it goes over divided highway almost entirely. The wastes eventually will be taken around New York City and south to Aiken, S.C., where it will be reprocessed. Other such shipments are planned for five successive Mondays.

Shipments through Connecticut from Long Island became necessary after New York City banned radioactive wastes from being transported through the city.

Many critics argued if New York banned the shipments, why shouldn't Connecticut.

Opponents feared the shipments will set a dangerous precedent for more radioactive waste journeys through Connecticut.

In addition despite federal government safety and security measures, a group of Newton residents feared a traffic accident could risk spreading dangerous radioactive contamination throughout the state.

Government officials said the protective cask is seven inches thick and lined with two layers of stainless steel. They said it can withstand a drop of 30 feet to a solid surface and a 40-min-

Gas Rationed In '500' Race

SOUTH WINDSOR, Conn. (AP) — While gas guzzlers are roaring toward the finish line at the Indianapolis 500, another Memorial Day race covering 500 miles will be held — with only 10 gallons of gasoline per car.

Charles MacArthur, who is organizing the race, says times have made obsolete the sleek racing cars that swallow up two gallons per mile.

"I don't think that the Indy proves anything more," says the South Windsor resident. "It's a dinosaur that doesn't know it's dead."

"The Indy," he says, "is for those who think that the seat of masculinity is in the ball of the foot. I always feel that the seat of masculinity is in the brain."

Competitors are to start here, continue 250 miles north on Interstate 91 into Vermont, and then return over the same route. Instead of sleek, speeding competitors, the contestants will have to cope with sealed gas tanks, carrying only the 10 gallons.

MacArthur did not say what would happen to contestants who ran out of gas.

So far there are only two entries, MacArthur and Jory Squibb of Rochester, N. Y. MacArthur plans to drive a Mercedes diesel and Squibb intends to operate a Citroen Deux Cheveaux, an unusually shaped small French car.

MacArthur said his car is rated by the manufacturer at 55 miles per gallon at 35 miles per hour and should get that mileage at 40 miles per hour if the vehicle is lightened and the tires are inflated more.

Squibb claimed his car can get 55 to 60 miles per gallon at moderate speeds.

MacArthur, who sponsored the first Alternative Vehicle Regatta at Mt. Washington in New Hampshire last June, said with a little tinkering a number of cars can get 50 miles to the gallon. Squibb was the first to finish the Mt. Washington race in an electric car.

The rules for the May 30 race require contestants to travel at an average speed of at least 40 miles per hour. Any car registered in the United States with the necessary safety equipment can compete.

MacArthur said he expects more competitors. He has set a $100 entrance fee.

WILD FLOWERS
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri has more types of wild flowers than any other state, according to the Division of Tourism.

N. C. Democrats Agree The Economy Is Big Issue

RALEIGH (AP)—The active Democratic contenders in next week's North Carolina presidential primary agree that the economy is a major problem. But that is about all they agree on.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's plan for curing both inflation and unemployment is simple: "a reformation of the tax structure to make it more equitable for the middle class."

Wallace says this would increase consumer spending. That, in turn, would stimulate production and job creation in the private sector.

His tax reform proposals include taxing foundations like the Ford and Rockefeller foundations and taxing income-producing church property. He has not spelled out the revenues he thinks could be derived from either step.

Wallace has said that he would trust the private sector to create jobs. But in Massachusetts this year, he also said that he favors a federal public works program that would build highways, sewers, transit systems and environmental control projects.

None of his public statements have indicated what he feels the rate of unemployment would be under his proposals, the goals he would set or the timetables he would meet in reaching them.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter feels the government ought to concentrate on stimulating jobs in the private sector, but he has also advocated a substantial amount of public employment.

He has suggested that the government could spend its money in ways that would create jobs. Research in solar energy rather than nuclear energy, for example, might create jobs for plumbers, pipefitters and welders, Carter said.

At a recent North Carolina press conference, Carter said he would also favor a program similar to the New Deal's Civilian Conservation Corps to give jobs to unemployed teenagers. He has also said that government ought to be the employer of last resort for able-bodied welfare recipients.

Carter has not said how much these proposals would cost. He has said that reaching full employment would be the major domestic priority of his administration.

Carter and Wallace both say that deficit spending by the federal government is a prime cause of inflation.

Carter has said that an "ultimate goal" of his presidency would be balancing the federal budget, but he has not predicted when that might happen. He has proposed cutting federal administrative costs by reorganizing the government into a maximum of 200 agencies. He did a similar reorganization in Georgia, but whether it actually saved money is a matter of dispute between Carter and his critics.

Carter has also proposed a "zero-base" budgeting system in which each federal program would have to justify itself from scratch each year. He says it would prevent programs from outliving their usefulness.

Carter says the defense budget could be cut $8 billion without harming the national security by eliminating bureaucratic waste and reducing the ratio of officers to men.

Wallace has not arrived at a figure to which he thinks the federal budget should be cut. He appears to think there is a natural ceiling on spending. "If they don't stop spending, the money won't be there," he said.

Wallace has said the nation wastes unspecified billions of dollars on "welfare ripoffs" and "foreign aid giveaways."

He has said that the nation ought to continue aiding the blind, the handicapped, and those who cannot take care of themselves. He has promised that his administration would closely monitor welfare programs to detect ineligible recipients and get them off the rolls.

He has also promised to end foreign aid to "countries which turn around and thumb their noses at us," but he also has said that the nation ought to continue to provide some humanitarian aid.

Wallace has also advocated unspecified limits on interest rates.

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, who had campaigned in North Carolina before abandoning his state effort, is an advocate of government-guaranteed jobs. He had advocated spending $9-14 billion on programs to stimulate the housing industry and provide jobs working at public projects in hospital, prison, railroad and school construction.

"We already guarantee everyone a payment, either welfare or unemployment. It makes sense to guarantee them a job that will be wealth-producing," he has said.

Jackson believes inflation could be arrested controlling high oil prices and by forcing the Federal Reserve Board to increase the money supply.

Many economists feel that increasing the money supply would add to inflation. But Jackson says high interest rates are a cause of inflation rather than a cure. He also has been an advocate of wage and price controls in the Senate.

Jackson is not making a balanced federal budget one of his top economic priorities. He has said that his programs would result in a "modest" deficit, at least temporarily. He maintains that the deficit would eventually be erased by increased revenues from a revived economy.

Two other candidates on North Carolina's ballot have not campaigned at all.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., favors an 18-month crash program to create five million jobs at an initial cost of $11-12 billion. He would use wage and price controls, if necessary, to control inflation.

Udall says budget deficits must be expected if the recession is to end.

Former Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., would try a $15 billion tax cut to stimulate the economy. He also advocates a $6.4 billion public works program.

Harris would partially offset the impact of those moves with higher taxes on corporations and the wealthy.

The sixth candidate on the ballot, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, has abandoned his campaign.
