Verdict Of Guilty On Bank Robbery Charges

BY RICK DU BROW

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst was found guilty of bank robbery charges Saturday by a jury which would not accept her story that she was forced into terrorism by her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers.

After only one and a half days of deliberation, the jury brought in a verdict which could send the 22-year-old heiress to prison for 35 years.

Miss Hearst took the verdict impassively. Her mother broke into tears, and her father said, "Oh Christ."

The verdict by the jury of seven women and five men came suddenly and unexpectedly soon after the end of an eight-week trial in which the defense portrayed her as a kidnap victim who had no choice but to enter into the Hibernia Bank robbery and said she had been brainwashed by her abductors.

Just as the jury was brought into the witness room, chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey patted Miss Hearst on the back as if to reassure her that everything would be all right.

Within a few minutes, U.S. Judge Oliver J. Carter read the jury's verdict finding her guilty of bank robbery and using a deadly weapon in committing a felony.

Judge Carter set April 19 for sentencing in the case. Miss Hearst still faces charges in Los Angeles of kidnaping and assault with a deadly weapon in connection with an incident that occurred a month after the bank robbery in which she sprayed a storefront with machine gun fire.

Bailey obviously had expected a verdict of not guilty in view of the briefness of the jury's deliberation and was cocky and confident in the corridor before the verdict against his 22-year-old client came in.

Judge Carter told the jurors that if they wished to, they could talk to the news media about their findings in the case, but they declined to do so.

The case boiled down to whether Miss Hearst was telling the truth when she testified during a week on the witness stand that she was so terror-stricken by her SLA captors that she had a choice only of helping in the San Francisco bank robbery or being killed.

After the verdict was submitted by jury foreman William Wright, a retired Army colonel, Judge Carter thanked the members for their close attention to the case and said the verdict was well within the evidence that had been submitted to them.

Judge Carter recommended to them that they not "second-guess" themselves, but live with the decision that had been brought in.

The 250-seat courtroom was packed to overflowing as the eight-week-old trial came to a close. There was no show of emotion from the spectators, but something of a stunned silence as the verdict was read judging that Miss Hearst was a revolutionary and had joined the bank robbery of her own free will.

At the end of the 40-day trial it was evident the jury disregarded the testimony of three defense psychiatrists, Dr. Louis J. West, Dr. Morton Orne, and Dr. Robert Jay Lifton, that Miss Hearst, in her captivity, behaved in the

Major Candidates On N.C. Campaign Trail

By United Press International

President Ford, confident of another primary victory, and Ronald Reagan, determined to stay in the race, campaigned in western North Carolina Saturday.

Ford had breakfast with supporters of Rep. James G. Martin, R-N.C., spoke at the state convention of the Future Homemakers of America and visited his campaign headquarters in Charlotte.

"I think we're going to win...the momentum is with us," he told volunteers at the headquarters. He said earlier at an airport news conference he did not care whether Reagan dropped out of the race.

He said he had not "personally suggested nor authorized anyone" to seek Reagan's withdrawal.

Stops at Asheville, the tiny mountain community of Spruce Pine and Hickory rounded out almost 12 hours of Tar Heel campaigning by the President.

He said at the campaign headquarters in Charlotte he was delighted with five primary victories but wants another in North Carolina.

"Five is great, but six would be even better," he said. He added, "I can see nothing but victory ahead, in Kansas City and on Nov. 2."

KINSTON, N.C. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan said "nuts" Saturday to pressure that he abandon his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

The 65-year-old former California governor said he was "in the race all the way to Kansas City because I believe I offer a better chance for victory in November than does my opponent."

Reagan told an airport rally attended by an estimated 400 to 500 people that he was adopting

Wallace Questions Carter Credibility

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Alabama Gov. George Wallace, campaigning for North Carolina's primary election and the Democrat Party's nomination for the Presidency, stopped in Greenville Friday afternoon to talk with newsmen and tape an interview at WNCT-Television.

Wallace's prime opposition in Tuesday's primary is former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter who defeated the third-term Alabama Governor in primaries held in Florida and Illinois.

Other Democrats on Tuesday's primary ballot include Washington Sen. Henry Jackson, Arizona Rep. Morris Udall, former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris and Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. But Bentsen has quit the race and Jackson, Udall and Harris are concentrating their efforts in other states.

Two newcomers to the field, Idaho Sen. Frank Church and former California Gov. Edmund Brown are not on the North Carolina primary ballot.

During the interview at WNCT-TV—which will be aired Monday on Channel 9's Carolina Today at 7:25 a.m.—and later talking with other newsmen, Wallace questioned Carter's credibility.

People Involvement Is Strickland Goal

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

"People have had enough of governments being operated by politicians and not having any say," said Gubernatorial candidate Tom Strickland at a breakfast hosted by the Committee for Tom Strickland in Greenville Saturday.

"We are having a people campaign in North Carolina. We are urging people to get involved in state government," Strickland said.

"I believe strongly in people being involved in their government. I introduced legislation for the Presidential Primary because I found out in the 1968 state convention that people had little say in the election of the President. I want people to become informed.

"I supported electronic voting in the state government so that it would be recorded how each legislator voted on each issue."

Strickland, who is presently serving his third term in the North Carolina State Senate, listed the following as areas for concern of the next governor of North Carolina:

"I think that the governor must know how to work with the legislators and the budget. He must also understand the reorganization of the state government."

Strickland explained that he supports the standardization of law enforcement officers, the expansion of research and trade opportunities of agriculture, decentralization of prison facilities, local decisions concerning road systems, minimum governmental interference with individuals and the medical school program at ECU.

Strickland outlined several improvements that he would like to support in the state government.

"The decentralization of prison units would allow for more work opportunities for the prisoners which I feel is the best therapy for the criminal. More opportunities for work release programs should also be investigated," Strickland said.

"I've always supported capital punishment, but the Supreme Court may outlaw it. If this should happen, I would be in favor of having the meaning of life imprisonment changed to mean that life imprisonment would not allow any parole. I would support the revision of the law concerning second felons so that second felons would have to serve full terms without the benefit of parole. I feel that armed robberies should not be allowed the benefit of parole. I believe that punishment works

Released On $40,000 Bond

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — David William Dangerfield was released on $40,000 bond Friday from the Mecklenburg County Jail, pending the outcome of an appeal of his conviction of murdering his wife.

Dangerfield, 26, was convicted Wednesday of second degree murder in the death of Robyn Van Vynckt Dangerfield, 22. Mecklenburg Superior Court Judge Lacy Thornburg sentenced Dangerfield to 40 years in prison Thursday.

$38 Million Increase

RALEIGH (AP)—An analysis released Friday by Gov. Jim Holshouser's office showed that federal funding to North Carolina would increase by $38 million in fiscal year 1977 under President Ford's proposed budget.

The report said the proposed funding to North Carolina is about 3 per cent more than the estimated $1.2 billion in fiscal 1976.

Two Die In House Fire

BAILEY, N.C. (AP) — Two adults perished today in a predawn fire in a tenant farmhouse four miles from this eastern North Carolina community.

Authorities said 12 other persons, mostly teenagers, lived in the house but were not injured.

65 Named In Arrests

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — State and local law enforcement officers Friday night arrested the first of some 65 persons named in warrants alleging illegal sales of alcoholic beverages in Sampson County.

More than 20 Sampson County deputies and state ABC officers raided homes and businesses in Garland, Ingold and Clinton, arresting 14 persons Friday. A total of 112 warrants were issued.

Many of the arrests involved illegal sale of beer. Sampson County has legalized liquor sales through state ABC stores, but sale of beer or wine is a violation in the county.

Mistrial In Drug Case

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A mistrial was declared Friday night in the trial of a Charlotte doctor charged with illegally prescribing drugs to undercover agents.

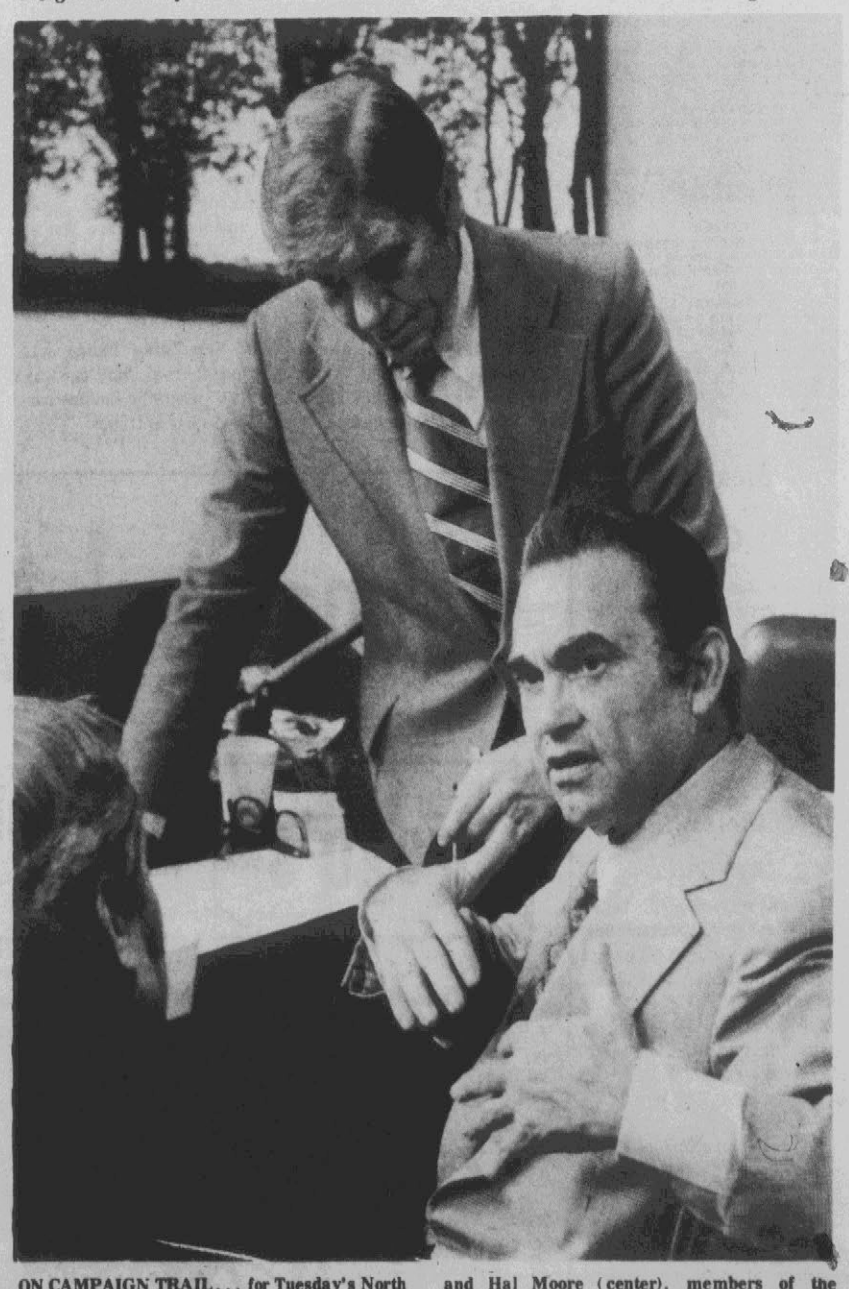

Superior Court Judge Sam J. Ervin, III, declared a mistrial in the case of Dr. Gordon M. Wilkins after the jury deliberated more than four hours, then reported it was hopelessly deadlocked.

Search For Bishop Continues

By CARL A. VINES

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (UPI) — Officials banned "back country" hiking in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park Saturday while teams of armed rangers and FBI agents scoured forest trails in search of diplomat Bradford Bishop Jr., accused of killing five members of his family.

Park Superintendent Boyd Evison said the ban, ordered for the protection of campers and hikers, would remain in force until Bishop is found or the search abandoned.

Flyers bearing Bishop's picture were posted at all entrances to the park.

Twenty five agents and rangers, searching in teams of two or three, spent the day battling their way through the wilds, which are infested with bear and wild boar. They probed into ravines and gorges, checked under cliff overhangs and searched dilapidated shacks that predate the declaration of the 500,000 acre area as a park.

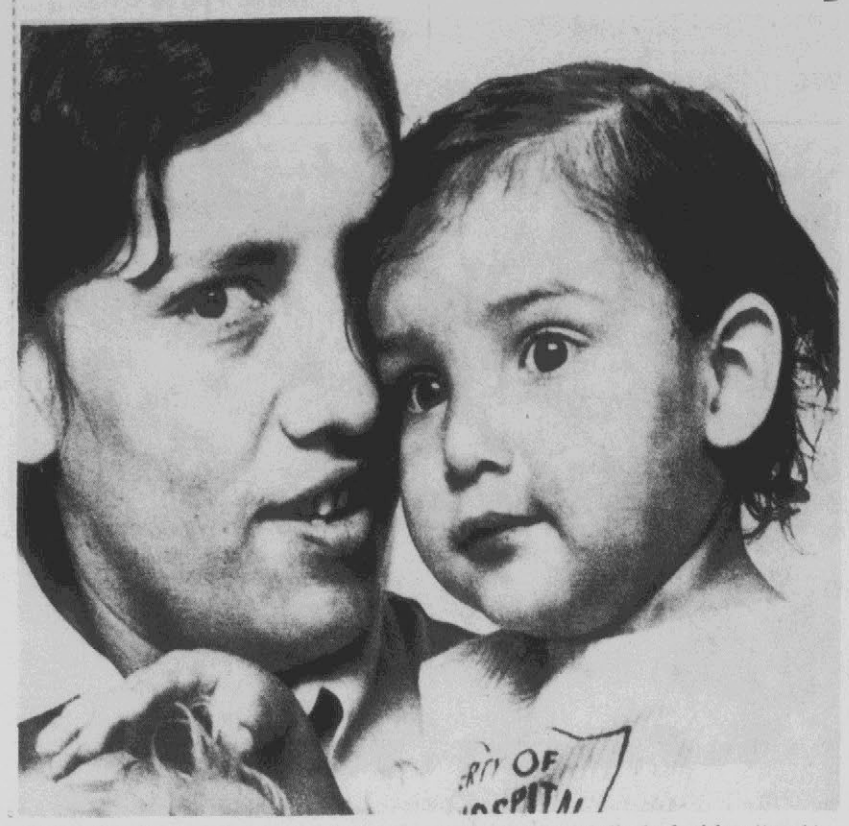

The procedure used by each team was to examine a 300 yard area between trails and systematically mark it off on a grid map. Officials said that their plan was to "eliminate possibilities" where Bishop could be, but there are literally hundreds of miles of trails running through the park.

FBI agents said the most substantial lead to date came from a some of Texas Eagle Scouts who told authorities a young couple they had met had reported camping out last Sunday night with a man wearing "street clothes."

The couple, identified only as "Mike and Betty" from Cleveland, Ohio, were sought by authorities for further question. Rangers said, however, it was not unusual for persons to hike in the park in street clothes.

The hunt began after Bishop's rust-colored 1974 Chevelle station wagon, stained with blood on the inside, was found parked on an unpaved lot in the park Thursday.

The 39-year-old Foreign Services officer was indicted by a grand jury in Montgomery County, Md., on charges of murder in the death of his wife, mother and three sons. He is accused of burying the victims in a shallow grave in Tyrell County, N. C., after apparently hauling them to the site in the station wagon.

Six Children Die In Oxford Fire

OXFORD, N.C. (AP) — Fire men battled a blaze at a five room house early today, unaware that six unattended children — ranging in age from 9 months to 12 years — were inside.

All six died.

Firemen said they fought the blaze for about 45 minutes, without knowing that anyone was inside, or even that anyone lived in the house. The children's parents were not at home.

The dead children were members of three families. Police said the parents had left their children in the house while they were at a local nightclub.

Patricia Jackson, the dispatcher for the Oxford Police Department, said the parents "were forming some type of (music) band together."

She said the home was owned by Norris Latta, estranged husband of the mother of one of the victims.

Officers said they were not certain how many of the families lived in the house but said some were apparently just visiting.

Firemen from the Oxford Volunteer Fire Dept. who responded to the alarm about 1:30 a.m. found the fire out of control. Officers said the fire began in a portable heater, which burned the living room floor below it.

Identified as the victims were Maxine Gooch, 16; Janet Gooch, 8; John W. Gooch, 6; Jerome Miles, 9 months; Belinda Taborn, 6, and Teresa Taborn, 5.

"Nobody believed it at first, because none of the neighbors said anything about people being in there. It appeared to be unoccupied. It looked like a new house," said Al Woodlies, an Oxford fireman and also station manager of radio station WCBQ in Oxford.

"But when we got inside we saw it was occupied, and when firemen reached the end of a hallway at the back bedroom, we found the bodies," Woodlies said.

Miss Jackson said a man who appeared to be intoxicated told firefighters that two children were inside the house. She did not identify the man.

Firemen said the blaze began in an unvented oil heater. Authorities ruled the fire accidental.

Woodlies said fire did not reach the room where the bodies were found. The bodies were found lying on the floor of a bedroom near a window, and all six appeared to have been overcome by smoke and intense heat, he said.

The home was a frame, green and white structure in a new section of the town. Police said all the parents were taken to Granville County Hospital where they were treated for shock.

Woodlies said he believed the parents worked in mills in the area. Oxford is located in Granville County, 15 miles from the Virginia line and 45 miles from Raleigh, in northeastern North Carolina.

Jesse Helms Comments

Says Reagan's Chances Good

Jesse Helms...is shown during his Saturday morning visit in Greenville.

By BETTY HATCH
Reflector Staff Writer

In a brief press conference Saturday morning at Greenville's Reagan for President headquarters, U.S. Senator Jesse Helms discussed Ronald Reagon's chances for carrying North Carolina in the upcoming presidential primary and commented on other related campaign issues.

"We're going to win Tuesday," Helms declared with a smile. He noted that the support Reagan receives will depend on whether voters turn out despite some apathy and cynicism in the country. "We've got to have more citizen participation," he added.

In commenting on a recent statement issued by Gov. Jim Holshouser asking Reagan to resign from the race, Helms called the request "an obvious political contrivance." He attributed the lack of support from other governors for the request to the fact that "it was orchestrated by Gov. Rockefeller with Holshouser, and they just moved a little recklessly" in including others' names.

As for Holshouser's statement itself, Helms said, " 'Res ipsa loquitor' — that's Latin, meaning 'the thing speaks for itself'."

He suggested that supporters of President Gerald Ford are "living on a diet of fingernails", fearful of Reagan support.

The Senator also said that Ford's recent stand on the New River issue, a subject considered important in the North Carolina primary, was brought about by Reagan's stand to save the New River.

"I introduced the bill to save the New River," Helms explained. He showed Reagan the bill, and Reagan then issued a statement favoring the preservation of the river. Ford later issued his own statement favoring preservation.

the position of Army Gen. Anthony McAuliff when he was asked to surrendered Bastogne during the Battle of the Bulge.

Speaking on a warm but slightly windy day, Reagan urged North Carolina Republicans not to be "intimidated by the Washington establishment" which wants him out of the race.

"Yesterday, some mayors who support Mr. Ford were persuaded to call on me to withdraw", Reagan said. "Then several governors—there's some confusion as to which ones—asked me to withdraw.

"Then in a broadcast interview in Washington, Mr. Ford delivered a not-so-well disguised invitation for me to withdraw."

Reagan added, "I'm touched by their concern for my welfare, but can't help but feel they sound a little nervous about their own."

During the Kinston rally, Reagan's national aides said they had put a stop to the distribution of a leaflet which contained a reprint of a news story from last November in which President Ford said that Massachusetts Sen. Edward Brooke, a black, should be considerd among the possibilities for vice president. The leaflet, which carried a notation at the bottom that it was printed by North Carolina Citizens for Reagan, also included a quote from Brooke that "busing is a constitutional tool that should be used."

Reagan's aides said they became aware of the leaflet only Saturday only it had been reportedly in distribution for three days and was available at the rally in Kinston.

By DAN LOHWASSER

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace predicted Saturday night he would "do well" in next Tuesday's North Carolina primary and vowed to carry his campaign on to Wisconsin.

Wallace told about 500 persons at a nighttime rally, one of only two appearances he made during the day, that he feels he would have beaten Jimmy Carter two weeks ago if the Florida primary had been held in Georgia.

"If they'd had that primary in his state two weeks ago, things would have been different," he said.

Wallace arrived Tuesday night from Illinois for seven consecutive days of campaigning in North Carolina.

"I want to tell the media here, local and national, that I'm going to do well in this primary and then I'm going on to Wisconsin," he said.

Wallace received 50 per cent of the vote running against former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford and three candidates who did little campaigning in the 1972 North Carolina primary a week before he was shot and left paralyzed.

Despite his confinement to a wheelchair, Wallace said his health is excellent and he would not be seeking the Presidency if it were not.

Wallace Questions.....

published in an Atlanta newspaper in 1972, Wallace said, "Gov. Jimmy Carter has warmed to the idea of a Hubert Humphrey-George Wallace Democratic ticket next November as one which would be acceptable to him and one which would do well in the South."

The Alabama governor then said Carter has "denied ever supporting me. Carter has jumped on me unmercifully. Carter promised to support me. When he ran for Governor . . . he used my name . . . he used my organization and my mailing list.

"This goes to the matter of credibility," Wallace emphasized. "I believe that goes to a man's credibility."

A poll published by the "News and Observer" last week showed the Alabama governor trailing Carter by 10 percentage points. Commenting on that, Wallace said it was "propaganda for the newspapers for the purpose of building up a candidate they want to beat somebody."

Wallace also called Carter a "captive of the liberal wing of the Democratic Party . . . a McGovern card-carrying liberal," adding "the McGovern crowd is leading the fight for him."

Questioned about his program as governor of Alabama, Wallace said, "I must be doing something right," citing the fact that he has been elected governor three times, with a larger majority in each successive election. During his last bid in 1974, Wallace said he "carried every county" in the state, taking 83 per cent of the votes. "Nearly every black leader in Alabama endorsed me."

And citing the need to do something for the middle class citizen, Wallace said in Alabama, during his tenure as governor, that state has had "no new taxes . . . we don't have a repressive tax structure. I believe you pay more in North Carolina," he said.

"We need to help the average American put dollars in the bank. We've got to have tax reform in this country." He noted that under the present situation there is a question "whether or not the middle class can survive."

Wallace also expressed support for the American farmer, He said the "efficiency of the farmer" is the prime force keeping America's balance of payments on an even keel. "The American farmer," Wallace emphasized, "is the brightest spot in the economy."

He also said he favors "90 per cent of parity or more" in crop support programs.

On the question of the nation's energy crisis, Wallace said "we should start utilizing coal" to its fullest advantage. "We should emphasize conservation of energy sources . . . cut down on our dependance on foreign oil . . . use farm products as leverage."

Wallace said a win in the North Carolina primary is "very important." But he explained, "I want to win. It's a good state, it's an important state. But no one primary is fatal or not fatal," Wallace, who still faces 20 more state primary elections, said.

Saying he is in good health, Wallace said after he was shot while campaigning in Maryland in 1972, "I came back."

The candidate emphasized, "no one owes me a vote because I'm in a wheel chair." But he said too, the fact that he is confined to a wheel chair "shouldn't keep people from voting for me."

Wallace said, "the Democratic party should get back to being the party of the people."

Wallace feels he is a candidate of the people. Painted on the side of his jet is the slogan "Trust the People."

"I just hope the people of this great State give me a vote," Wallace said.

Memphis Battleground On Sex-Movies Issue

By BRUCE NICHOLS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Federal court in this Bible Belt city has become a major battleground in the war between sex-movie profiteers and those who would put them in the nearest jail.

It's unclear who will win. Three prosecutions in the past six months have ended in a mistrial and two convictions now are on appeal. But it is plain that much federal and private money, time and energy is being spent on 10 cases.

"We're not just going after the ticket takers, popcorn sellers and projectionists," said 62-year-old U.S. Attorney Thomas Turley. "We're going after the big guys."

By big guys, he means organized crime which he says is making big business of pornography.

Involved are dozens of X-rated movies, including two of the most notorious and profitable ever made, "Deep Throat" and "The Devil in Miss Jones."

Among those indicted are well-known, on-camera performers, Harry Reems and Georgina Spelvin, and alleged producers, distributors and exhibitors.

Female sex superstar Linda Lovelace is being sought to testify, with immunity from prosecution, in the "Deep Throat" case.

In all, 60 defendants have been charged under the same federal law barring interstate shipment of obscene materials, a law Turley says has not been used effectively against smut.

His field general is assistant U.S. attorney Larry Parrish, 32, a buttoned-down lawyer with three young children who has spent four years getting indictments aimed at what he sees as an unhealthy spread of pornographic films.

"They are degrading to sex," Parrish says. "And, to the degree that you slap that part of humanity, you slap humanity generally."

On March 1, Parrish began prosecuting 16 defendants charged in the production, distribution and showing of "Deep Throat," which testimony shows cost $20,000, took six days to film, and has netted $25 million since 1972.

It is his showcase trial, bringing together for the first time alleged actors, stage crew, producers, distributors, exhibitors and rental collectors.

"We will show that there was a nationwide conspiracy to produce, distribute and exhibit an obscene movie in violation of federal law," Parrish told the jury in his opening statement March 2.

If he convinces jurors, who will view the film at a special private screening, it will be the first time and, Turley says, will be a big step forward from piecemeal prosecution of local smut peddlers.

Stresses Need For Criminal Justice

By BETTY HATCH
Reflector Staff Reporter

Rufus Edmisten, N.C. Attorney General, stressed the need for an improved criminal justice system at a dinner held in his honor Friday night at Riverside Restaurant.

"I don't think the people in North Carolina have paid enough attention to the criminal justice system," Edmisten declared. "People complain about it only when things come home to haunt them.

"We don't pay law enforcement officers enough," he said, noting that the minimum salary is now $6,000 a year. "That is not right. It ought to be at least $7,500 or $8,000 a year."

He added that law enforecement officers "want a decent wage, respect and dignity" and he praised Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson, a member of the dinner audience.

"This court system is not what it ought to be," he further explained. "Court systems will work only as well as we demand. There is no surer deterrent to crime than swift and sure justice."

His third area of complaint was the prison system. Noting that he is "no coddler of criminals," he stressed the need for better security to avoid crimes that might occur after a criminal escapes from prison.

"I believe in prison reform," he said. "Rehabilitation is just a farce in most cases, as with hardened criminals." He added that he does support helping those who can be rehabilitated.

Edmisten admitted being a "fanatic on drugs" and catching persons who deal in drugs.

"The only thing we have left in this country is our youth," a group threatened by drugs, he explained. "We could arrest 100 people a day if we had enough law enforcement personnel. Anyone caught dealing drugs ought to get a minimum sentence and no chance of parole.

"The Democratic party could do more for the people of this state by improving the criminal justice system then anything else."

Edmisten, a Democratic candidate for re-election, said his job is "the hottest seat in town" and is "more heartaches than anything else" because of the many victims of crimes.

He previously served as staff director of the Watergate Committee under Sen. Sam Ervin.

Sponsors Special Film

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department Crime Prevention Bureau is sponsoring five showings of "How To Say No To A Rapist And Survive". Frederic Storaska, Executive director of the National Organizational For Rape Prevention was recently filmed at one of his college-campus lectures and this film has been obtained by the Pitt County Crime Prevention Bureau.

Storaska attended North Carolina State University. During his senior year he witnessed the rape of an 11 year old girl and broke up the assault on the girl by a gang. Later he became one of the nation's leading authorities on rape prevention. The public is invited to attend the following showings: Monday March 22 at Farmville Central High School at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, March 23 at Ayden-Grifton High School at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 24 at D.H. Conley High School at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, March 25 at North Pitt High School at 7:30 p.m., and Friday March 26, at Rose High School at 7:30 p.m.

Pitt County Crime Prevention Officer Gordon Edwards will be at the showings of the film to coordinate the program and to distribute free rape and assault prevention literature.

Agree To End Sick-Out

BALBOA, Panama Canal Zone (AP) — Panama Canal employes agreed to end a sickout Saturday afternoon after the Canal Zone governor agreed to modify wage freezes and work toward some form of collective bargaining.

Gov. Harold R. Parfitt said pilots and tugboat operators who had been calling in sick would return to work immediately to begin moving a backlog of more than 175 ships through the 50-mile canal.

No Believer In Majority

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Premier Ian Smith said Saturday he did not believe in black majority rule in Rhodesia "in a thousand years" but that he might renounce the nation's declaration of independence from Britain.

Smith asked Britain to intervene in the Rhodesia crisis in a news conference called one day after the collapse of negotiations with black nationalist leaders on handing over power to the nation's 6.5 million blacks.

Fire Guts Israeli Hotel

NETANYA, Israel (UPI) — A fire fanned by coastal winds gutted a seaside hotel packed with American and European tourists Saturday, killing four persons and injuring dozens of others.

Police said six of the hospitalized were Americans— part of an 18-member Temple Menorah tour group from the Miami, Fla., area.

Reaches Agreement

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Premier Rashid Karami reached agreement with Syrian President Hafez Assad after five hours of talks Saturday and said he was "optimistic" peace was near in Lebanon despite spreading fighting between Christians and Moslems.

Casualties in the latest round of civil war, triggered nine days ago with a coup by rebel Moslem army officers, topped 300 dead and nearly 700 wounded.

Federal Town Bankrupt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six years after it began pouring money into planned communities, the federal government is giving up on the nearly bankrupt "new town" of Gananda, near Rochester, N.Y.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development announced Friday it will acquire the assets of the town and will try to peddle it to a private real estate developer.

Tim O'Brien, attorney for the Gananda Development Corp., said more than $22 million in private and federal money has been invested in the community for a school, a sewage treatment plant, seven miles of roads and 700 improved lots ready for building.

Will Fight Wheat Embargoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Wheat Growers, still upset about the Ford administration's embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union last year, says it will begin "immediate court action" if any embargoes are ordered in the future.

"This decision is a warning to those who would attempt to block new wheat sales," Don Woodward, association president, said Friday. "And it serves notice that we are ready to take legal action to assure future access to world markets."

Goes Home To Mother

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret went home to her mother at Windsor Castle late Friday night after announcing the breakup of her 16-year marriage to the Earl of Snowdon. The 45-year-old princess, younger sister of Queen Elizabeth II and fifth in line to the British throne, smiled wanly as the Queen Mother greeted her at the Royal Lodge at Windsor, 22 miles west of

Refusal Said 'Rank Racism'

ATLANTA (AP) — A black Georgia legislator said Saturday that a state agency's refusal to allow a white couple to adopt their racially mixed 2-year-old foster child is "rank racism."

State Rep. Billy McKinney, an Atlanta Democrat, called on Gov. George Busbee to study the case of Bob and Pauline Drummond, who lost a court battle Friday in their efforts to adopt Timmy, a child born out of wedlock to a white woman and a black man.

to deter crime," Strickland said.

"If I were elected governor of North Carolina I would most look forward to causing the stability of our state government so that the people of this state could feel that this is a good place to live, work and bring other people. The only way to bring this stability is to work on these issues that I have listed, especially crime and involving the people in the politics."

"Tom Strickland is a well qualified candidate for the governor of North Carolina," said Sam McLawhorn, Stricklands' Eastern North Carolina Campaign Manager.

"He is respected by all of the state legislators and is able to work with each of them. He is supported in all parts of the state and the best candidate we have ever had from the eastern part of the state," said McLawhorn.

Strickland was accompanied by his wife Shirley. After his breakfast address he entertained questions and shook hands with the crowd.

East Should Respond At Polls

Among the items to be voted on in Tuesday's election is a $43.2 million general obligation bond issue to finance capital improvements on the state's university campuses.

The bond issue would affect 13 of the 16 campuses under the Board of Governors supervision. East Carolina University, N. C. Central University and the N. C. School of the Arts would receive no funding from the bond issue, but the reason is those institutions received appropriated funds for expansion. ECU got $28,145,000 from the Legislature in 1975 for development of the medical school, N.C. Central got $2,500,000 for a law school building and there was a 1974 appropriation of $3,685,000 for a classroom building at the N.C. School of the Arts.

Due to the tight budget there were no funds left for critically needed projects on the other 13 campuses, so the legislators authorized a vote on the bond issue.

The facilities to be provided by the bond issue are largely designed to provide space for students who are already enrolled on the various campuses, and facilities for ongoing programs. There is little of an expansion nature among the projects.

Library additions are scheduled at Appalachian State and Elizabeth City State for instance, a classroom building at N. C. A&T and biological sciences classrooms and laboratories at N. C. State. Pembroke University would get funds for restoration of "Old Main", an historic campus building. Badly needed physical education facilities would be financed at UNC-Chapel Hill. Classroom, office and laboratory facilities are slated at UNC-Asheville; UNC-Charlotte, UNC-Greensboro, UNC-Wilmington, Winston-Salem State and Fayetteville State. An administrative building is planned at Western Carolina.

There is also $1.5 million included for architectural barrier removal to aid the handicapped, Occupational Safety and Health Acts projects and land acquisition.

These bonds deserve a positive vote by the people of this area. It is not a major amount of money for the state of North Carolina and no tax increase is anticipated to pay it off.

Many people from many areas of the state gave their support to the ECU medical school in the legislative fights; now we here in the east should reciprocate by supporting essential higher education projects for university campuses throughout the state.

We give our unqualified support to the higher education bond issue and urge its passage on Tuesday.

Dramatizing Plight Of British Govm't

The resignation of Prime Minister Harold Wilson in Britain last week shocked the British people.

The prime minister's quitting was unexpected and he didn't appear to be overburdened by the work load of the office.

The resignation does as much as anything to dramatize the serious economic plight of Great Britain. Perhaps that is why Prime Minister Wilson resigned: to bring in focus for the British people the need to take serious measures to improve the nation's economy.

Hands Change Style

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is using new sign language.

He has added to the repertory of hand gestures he uses in public speaking.

In his primary campaigning in New Hampshire, Florida and Illinois, as well as at work in the White House, Ford shows he no longer is locked into the bishop's grip.

The bishop's grip involves cupping one hand into another in front of the stomach, just above belt level.

Displayed by popes and pious emperors in pre-Reformation paintings, the grip is used in modern times by politicians to demonstrate dignified humility in public. It sort of says, "I am a hot dog but don't think that I believe I'm holier than thou."

Of course, the bishop's grip has other uses. Janos Kadar, the Hungarian Communist party leader, almost always cups his hands in public. But he does it to hide the scars on his fingers that were left by Russian torturers in a Stalinist jail.

Ford, like Ronald Reagan and others, has been a lectern-gripper. He oftens clutches the stand that holds his speech notes. But there's something new in Ford's 1976 campaign style.

Take the gestures that Ford might use in delivering one of his favorite speeches. Let's take it phrase by phrase, gesture by gesture.

"Any government..." he begins. (Gesture: both hands, fingers straight, extended from in front of his jacket at the point of the top button, as if showing the length of a small fish.)

"...big enough..." (The presidential arms and hands are now extended to either side, palms to the front.)

"...to give you..." (The right hand, forefinger extended and other fingers curled inward in a bang-bang-you're-dead gesture, is pointed at the audience. The left hand is inside a jacket pocket.)

This is new. The President is daring now to jam hands in pockets. Some observers regard this as a display of the ease and confidence he has developed in the presidency.

"...everything you want..." (Both hands extended in front again, but this time the fingers are parted. It is the sort of hand position that Santa Claus uses in parceling out goodies.)

"...is big enough..." (Now the right forefinger is pointed to Heaven and the left hand is a clenched fist. The former shows

Local Taxes No Hindrance

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Local property taxes are insignificant to business firms making a decision on where to locate a new plant, and tax breaks are not a desirable tool for attracting prospects, a consultant has reported to the State Office of Planning.

A key elements in location decisions appear to be labor availability and degree of unionization; transportation; availability of utilities and other amenities; special resource requirements; and the "chemistry" between community leaders and the executives of a particular company seeking a site, says L.H. Revzan, a consultant from the firm of Ernst and Ernst in Washington, D. C.

Revzan has produced a paper for the tax component of a growth policy plan under study by state planners. The discussion of local taxes on industrial location decisions was published in "Popular Government," a periodical printed by the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill.

Taxes Compared

Revzan tracked through an elaborate comparison formula the various local, state, and federal taxes paid by four particular industrial firms, with annual sales of $10 million.

Sharp differences were seen in local property taxes, inventory taxes, and intagibles taxes paid by firms located inside the city limits in Charlotte. In Mecklenburg County outside the city limits, in Gaston County, and in York County, S. C.

But, the property taxes were such a small percentage of total taxes, and the property taxes are counted as expenses on state and federal corporate income tax returns, thereby reducing those, with the combined result "that the total tax differential an industry faces in choosing among locations amounts to less than 0.5 per cent of its annual sales," Revzan concluded.

In sum, differences in local property taxes which vary significantly from county to county are all but eliminated when total tax bills are considered.

Revzan feels that commitment to providing water-sewer services, transportation, health care, education, etc. and sound land-use planning "would be more cost-effective in meeting economic development objectives than the use of tax incentives or subsidy mechanisms."

More Crime

State law enforcement experts are scratching their heads over a study just completed which shows that North Carolina communities with police crime prevention units in operation have witnessed sharply increased crimes against property when compared to similar communities without crime prevention units.

A multitude of charts prepared by the evaluation unit of the Governor's Law and Order Commission prove that a majority of cities which had crime prevention programs during 1975 realized either an increase in property crimes or, if a decrease was noted, it was not as great as the decrease which occured in a comparable city without a crime prevention program.

Briefly, those with crime prevention units saw a 27.9 per cent increase while the comparative cities showed a 9.7 per cent increase.

So confusing were the figures that the report contains a preface which attempts to explain that not all facets of crime prevention were touched upon in the study, and that crime date "is still largely inconsistent and incomplete."

Actually, says Don R. Nichols, chief of the law and order office of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources, most experts believe the figures result from a greater citizen awareness of crime, and a greater willingness to report the crimes in those communities with crime prevention units.

Sunday Morning Notes

If there's one thing that those in charge of things have learned in Greenville, it is not to mess around with the city's trees.

Especially is this true of the trees on Fifth Street along the university campus.

Tree lovers are more vociferous than dog lovers even, in our city.

But, alas, the Fifth Street trees are sick. What to do? Well the city authorities didn't do anything without first, conducting an exhaustive study which included a separate appraisal of every tree on the street. Some can be saved with some work, but 13 of them will have to come down.

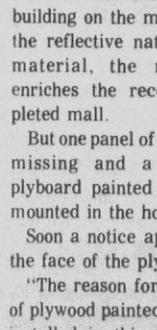

To make certain that workers aren't abused when they undertake the job, a notice has been placed on each tree due to come down.

"This tree has been declared dead or dying by the Environmental Advisory Commission," the notice says. "For the safety of the public and protection of the other trees, it's their recommendation that this tree be removed. Therefore the Greenville Public Works Department has been instructed by the city manager to remove this tree within a few weeks due to its diseased and decayed condition."

Lawton Nisbet of Interstate Securities observed one of the notices and mused, "Wonder if anybody read them their rights?"

Anyway we are glad to see such a concern for asthetics in our fair city. It even extends to the construction industry.

Ernest and Knott has recently installed a new glass front on the First Federal building on the mall. Due to the reflective nature of the material, the new front enriches the recently completed mall.

But one panel of the glass is missing and a sheet of plyboard painted black was mounted in the hole.

Soon a notice appeared on the face of the plyboard.

"The reason for this piece of plywood painted black and installed in this front is to keep the hole or brick from showing and causing the remaining front of the building to look bad."

The notice went on to explain that the Spandrel glass section was broken in the installation process and another one was ordered to replace it. Delivery was due in about three weeks.

There were 127 panels, it was explained. "One piece broken out of 127 is not a bad average."

One man received a small cut on the hand when the section broke,

Key Battleground

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

North Carolina is a make or break state for at least two important contenders for the presidential nomination.

They are Republican Ronald Reagan and Democrat George Wallace.

Reagan's campaign has faltered before a Gerald Ford blitz that has won the president majorities in five consecutive primaries.

North Carolina is considered one of the former California governor's potential strongholds. Reagan has drawn huge and enthusiastic crowds at every appearance here.

He is getting support from North Carolina's Senator Jesse Helms.

On the other hand, President Ford has Governor Jim Holshouser supporting him and has even dangled before Tar Heels the possibility of Holshouser's being his running mate.

Both Reagan and Mrs. Reagan are personally campaigning in the state as the primary years.

George Wallace also sees North Carolina as a key state to his chances. With former Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter enjoying increasing popularlity on the presidential primary circuit, Wallace lost to him in Florida. The Alabama governor had expected to win there.

He is yet to win a primary, though he had been breathing down the backs of the front runners in every state until Tuesday's vote in Illinois. In that primary, Carter scored an impressive 48 per cent to 28 per cent win.

Wallace is counting on North Carolina. He carried it before, defeating the state's own former Governor Terry Sanford. Wallace predicts he will win the state.

The eyes of Democrats and Republicans alike around the nation certainly will be on us on March 23.

North Carolina is the arena in which both George Wallace and Ronald Reagan face what could be their final battles for survival in the campaign for the presidential nominations.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann's lawyers, showing increased confidence of saving him from execution, hurried preparations today for a frontal attack on the testimony of Dr. John F. Condon, a principal state witness in the condemned man's trial for the Lindbergh kidnap-slaying.

The defense hopes appeared to have taken a sudden upward surge and Hauptmann, himself, was pictured as feeling certain he would escape the penalty. He is under sentence to die March 31.

C. Lloyd Fisher, chief defense counsel, said he did not see how Hauptmann could be executed in view of "the facts in our possession."

INSIDE REPORT

Six Airplanes For Egypt

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Confidential advice from Sen. Hubert Humphrey that the Ford administration bypass Congress by arranging a commercial sale of six military transport planes to Egypt contradicts Humphrey's public campaign to give Congress new, far-reaching control over all U.S. military sales abroad.

This private advice to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger—likely not to be heeded—can be explained in only one way: Humphrey and other leaders of the pro-Israel bloc know that this country must help Egypt in its spectacular turn away from Moscow at all costs; however, they want to avoid a public vote on the matter.

Thus, the relatively insignificant sale of non-armed C-130 transports to Egypt for $40 million (compared to annual aid to Israel running nearly 40 times that amount) is posing a deep dilemma for politicians unwilling to face fundamental changes in the Mideast.

For Humphrey, an unannounced Democrat presidential prospect, the sale to Egypt is particularly distressing. Humphrey is author of a Senate-passed bill (now in a Senate-House conference committee) that would compel the President to give Congress a chance to veto any commercial arms sale of $25 million or more, just as Congress now can veto non-commercial sales between the U.S. and another government.

Yet, despite sponsoring this bill as part of his long battle to give Congress more control over world arms traffic, Humphrey quietly proposed that the administration handle the C-130 sale quickly as a routine commercial sale. Under existing law, that would bypass Congress—and get Humphrey off the nasty hook of having to vote the sale up or down.

The hook would be nasty for Humphrey because if he voted for the sale, as overwhelmingly dictated by Egypt's switch away from Soviet friendship to informal alliance with the U.S., he would be exposed to embarrassing contrast with Sen. Henry M. Jackson, a leading Democratic presidential candidate.

As Israel's foremost Senate champion, Jackson is under irresistible pressure to vote against the C-130's sale (publicly condemned by Israeli prime minister Yitzhak Rabin on March 4).

Humphrey's position is not unique. Republican Sens. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey and Jacob K. Javits of New York joined him in private talks with Kissinger agents strongly recom-

EXAMINATION UNDER THE LIGHT

A young man leaned over the counter of the jewelry store and examined the gem on a tray held out to him by the jeweler. "How can you tell that it is a diamond?" asked the young man. "Take it to the light and look at it," replied the jeweler. And when the young man did so, every facet of the diamond sparkled brilliantly.

The Bible urges us to take the things in life that we consider to have value and to examine them under the light of God's loving purpose. If the thing we prize is without real value, nothing will reveal its spurious nature so readily as this divine light. We shall see that the thing we thought precious is indeed worthless. The paste diamond will be dull and ugly under such a light.

plans we make and the schemes we propose for our future actions. These things may not fit in at all with the plan which God has for us and for others. We find this out when we bring our plans into the brilliant light of God's greater plans.

Making Use Of Federal Money

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new campaign financing law is making it possible for advocates of a cause to spread their message with federal money under the guise of a presidential campaign.

One person expected to take advantage of the law is Reed G. Larson, executive vice president of the National Right to Work Committee, who says he is planning to enter the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Larson would be following the same strategy Ellen McCormack, a Long Island housewife who is campaigning in the Democratic primaries with federal matching funds to promote efforts to end legal abortion.

"We've been thinking about it ever since she qualified for the funds," Larson said Wednesday. "If she can take advantage of the law and use it to focus attention on a specific issue, why can't we?"

The right-to-work committee, a conservative lobbying group with headquarters in nearby Fairfax, Va., has been a strong opponent of organized labor principally in the fight against the union shop, in which workers are required to join a union.

To finance its operations, the committee raises millions of dollars through computerized appeals to its growing list of donors.

With this experience, Larson and his associates apparently would have little difficulty raising the money needed to qualify for federal matching funds from the Federal Election Commission.

Larson acknowledges that while he is unlikely to "get very many votes in any primary," a presidential campaign "will give us a platform to articulate our opposition to compulsory unionism."

He said all of the Democratic candidates support the union shop and are using federal funds to spread their views. "So maybe it's time somebody spoke out in favor of the right to work," said the 53-year-old Larson.

To qualify for matching funds, a candidate must secure at least $100,000 in contributions in amounts not over $250, with $5,000 to be raised in each of any 20 states.

Neal Stabler, vice chairman of the Federal Election Commission, said a Larson campaign apparently would be within the law "as long as the public is presented clearly with the request for contributions and as long as the public knows who they are supporting and why they are running for office."

Divided Poll On Abortion

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N. J. — "Abortion is murder, plain and simple," is the view of a 37-year-old housewife from Columbus, Ohio.

Holding an opposite point of view on the issue of abortion — one of the critical moral and legal issues of our times — is a 43-year-old Santa Barbara resident: "It's not a matter to be decided by the courts, but should be a decision between a woman and her doctor."

Also in favor of legalized abortion is a 19-year-old factory worker from Colorado Springs, Colo.: "There are too many people in this world and I can't see the sense in anyone having unwanted children."

In a recent nationwide Gallup referendum on the question of whether there should be a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion except when the pregnant woman's life is in danger, 49 per cent said they would oppose such an amendment while 45 per cent voted in favor.

Anti-abortion groups in the U.S. want a constitutional amendment that would ban all abortions. Such an amendment would nullify the Supreme Court's 1973 decision which legalized aborptions during the first three months of pregnancy and gave considerable latitude to abortions in the last six months of pregnancy.

Many Catholics Take Pro-Abortion Stand

Despite the Roman Catholic church's official opposition to abortion, as many as four in 10 (42 per cent) of American Catholics say they would oppose an amendment to prohibit aborption. A majority (52 per cent) of Catholics, however, take an anti-abortion stand.

Protestants are closely divided in their views, with 46 per cent in favor of the proposed amendment and 48 per cent opposed.

Seen As 'Non-Issue' In Race To Date

Because views on the issue divide closely and cut across party lines, presidential candidates are not eager to take a stand on this intensely volatile issue.

To date, however, the abortion issue has been a "non'issue." This is seen in part, for example, in the small percentage of the vote won by presidential candidate Ellen McCormack, the "right-to-life" candidate, in the recent primary in Massachusetts, a state which has a relatively high proportion of Catholics.

Analysis of the findings also reveals the following:

Men tend to be more pro-abortion than women.

Education and age are important factors, with college-trained persons and younger adults most likely to take a pro-abortion position.

Married people are divided in their views, but single people are 2-to-1 in favor of abortion.

This was the question asked to determine attitudes toward a constitutional prohibition or abortion:

'A constitutional amendment has been proposed which would prohibit abortions or would you oppose it?"

Here are the national figures as well as results by major population groups:

Constitutional Amendment Prohibiting Abortions?

A Conservative View

Despotic Views In Defense Of Big Government

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Henry Fairlie, the distinguished British journalist, delivered himself the other day of a vigorous essay, "In Defense of Big Government." His piece was distilled liberalism, the pure product, untouched by doubt, intolerant of dissent. A few words of response may be in order.

Writing in the New Republic, Fairlie rejects those who fear "big government." They are unthinking; they are manifesting the current drift in the United States to a reactionary and selfish conservatism. To oppose "big government," in his view, is to launch a counterattack and explicitly stated that strong and efficient central government is the foundation of 20th century democracy."

The gentleman describes himself as a Tory Democrat: He believes passionately in strong central government, he detests capitalism, and he puts his trust in the ultimate good sense of the people. Conservatives who disagree are nasty, narrow-minded, selfish, and mean-spirited. Conservatives do not understand that the American people need "big government." Indeed, that necessity is not even arguable: The question is not whether there should be a strong central government, but whose interests that government should serve. And so on.

In the course of his essay, Fairlie scores some palpable hits. It is true, for example, that much of the industry we euphemistically describe as "free enterprise" is a kind of corporate socialism. And it is ironic, as he says, that persons who once exalted an all-powerful presidency, only to bring it low, now are exalting the Congress they used to degrade. These points are peripheral to his main argument, which is that "big government" is all in all a good thing.

To be sure, this is no new argument. It is essentially the same argument that divided the Founding Fathers. But the argument was discarded then, and it ought to be discarded now. A strong central government is indispensable in certain limited areas—waging war, coining money, treating with foreign nations, establishing uniform rules of naturalization, and the like. But beyond such indisputably national interests, the arguments in defense of "big government" begin to collapse.

Jefferson defined one reason. "I am not a friend to very energetic government," he once wrote Madison. "It is always oppressive." And so it is, and so it must ever be. One function of big government is to press its subjects into the same mold. The purpose is to regulate, to coerce, to make uniform. In such a government there is small room for the maverick, the dissenter, the non-conformist. If the maker of cherry pies, or automobiles, or swimming pool slides does not conform, he must be made to conform.

The "big government" that Fairlie so admires is the enemy of diversity. It cannot well tolerate variety or freedom. The flawed theory is that we are one people, dwelling in one country, and therefore we have one set of problems capable of being put right by one solution. This is nonsense; it is breathtaking nonsense, and it manifests a monarchical arrogance that is light years removed from a democratic society.

One would like to ask Fairlie: Suppose his "big government" is wrong? The Congress is about to impose an untested, highly controversial scheme of automobile insurance upon all states and all motorists. This is the kind of thing big government does. But what if "no fault" is wrong? What if it simply doesn't work? Instead of having error confined, we have error rampant; we have error compounded and entrenched, and because it is a natural tendency of men to defend their mistakes, rather than to correct them, we are stuck with error.

No, sir. Fairlie foolishly supposes that big government must extend equality in order to justify liberty, but the two aims are incompatible. The more equality is mandated by federal fiat, through taxes, or quotas, or busing, or "affirmative action," the more must liberty be circumscribed. The more uniformity, the less freedom. As government becomes our benevolent shepherd, so we must become its obedient sheep.

In Fairlie's despotic view, my ideas are "unthinkable." But wiser men than he or I have thought them before; and before we succumb to those who believe passionately in a strong central government, we had better think them anew.

Economic Recovery Is Maintaining Its Pace And Ford Gets Credit

By GEORGE BRYANT

The recovery is picking up surprising momentum, spreading along a widening front and showing signs of lifting important areas which have been slow to respond. There's no sign of faltering.

Politically, this has already become President Ford's greatest asset in his bid to win the White House in November. It does much to soften the anger of the Nixon Watergate and build confidence in the Ford economic policies.

As a challenger to Ford, Ronald Reagan hasn't been able to get on first in the primaries. If the former California Governor strikes out in North Carolina, making it six in a row, he is mighty apt to find maintaining a viable image impossible. Ford's nomination now seems secure, barring unforseeable disaster.

Most forecasts now agree that the trend of the economy will still be strongly up when the November showdown rolls around. This would put Ford in a strong position against the Democratic nominee, whether he is picked from among the still-heavy field of primary contenders or is the choice of a "brokered" convention.

When times are "good" voters tend to be influenced more by what they stand to lose, than by what they might gain, by a switch of leadership. The course of moderate stimulation, with a brake on inflation, which Ford has advocated and followed, despite Congress, has confounded his big-spending critics.

Since recovery got moving more than nine months ago, it has followed closely the course projected by Ford and his economic advisers. In fact, it inched ahead of these projections last fall. An upward revision now is in order.

The most impressive fact about the gains in production of goods and services and in jobs is that they have taken place while the rate of inflation has been shrinking. The steady fall of wholesale prices gives reason to conclude that the current rate of consumer price inflation, about 6 per cent, is no fluke.

On the job side, improvement has exceeded just about every expectation. Employment has returned to his pre-recession high, 86.3-million. And unemployment has shrunk at a surprising rate. From a May 1975 peak of 8.9 per cent it has fallen to 7.6 per cent and is still moving down.

The significance of the employment-unemployment trend often is overlooked. Not only are we in a peacetime economy—no war stimulent—but we are in a period when the labor force is expanding at a record rate. There has been a predictable number of young people entering the labor force during the recession. But on top of this, we have seen women coming into the job market in unprecedented numbers.

Working women have done much to boost family buying power. Also, working women have done much to cushion the economic impact of unemployment. A working wife sort of keeps things going when the man of the house is out of a job.

The Ford White House argued all along that the recession could be fought without the vast increase in spending and in the money supply sought by the Democratic side, which saw unemployment as a greater problem than inflation.

Developments now have given Ford a performance record which critics will find hard to attack. The old appeal of "let Washington do it" with more spending, meaning climbing deficits, would seem to be weakened.

Right now, some of the political writers and commentators who were inclined to write Ford off as a "bumbler" earlier in the year are seeing him as "hard to beat". And, from the evidence, some professional politicians seem to hold the same view.

Efforts to tip the nomination away from the primary scrappers to a "side liner", such as Senator Hubert Humphrey or Senator Ted Kennedy, are coming into the open. They are motivated by the fear that a Jackson or a Carter "can't win", while a Humphrey or a Kennedy might make it. The pros want a winner.

It may be that the favorite son strategy can be successful against the primary front runners in the July convention. Certainly, such men as Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley and AFL-CIO boss George Meany, will have more to say about things than they did when the Democrats picked George McGovern four years ago.

But anyway the convention goes, there will be deep splits within the Democratic party. And any Democrat will be forced to lean left, since the GOP has the middle ground.

At this stage, it doesn't shape up as any sure thing for Ford. But he is on an uptrend, with the times.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, March 21, the 81st day of 1976. There are 285 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1803, the French civil code, the Code Napoleon, was completed.

On this date:

In 1790, Thomas Jefferson became the first U.S. Secretary of State.

In 1829, an earthquake in Spain killed about 6,000 people.

In 1918, in World War I, German guns bombarded Paris from 75 miles away.

In 1946, the United Nations moved into temporary headquarters at Hunter College in New York City.

In 1965, Dr. Martin Luther King led a march of black and white civil rights demonstators out of Selma, Ala., toward Montgomery.

In 1974, the United States and Sweden named new ambassadors to each other's capitals after a 15-month rift over the Vietnam War.

Ten years ago: Britain resumed arms sales to India and Pakistan after a one-year suspension because of Indian and Pakistani fighting over Kashmir.

Five years ago: Eight hundred protestors for Soviet Jews were arrested in Washington for blocking an intersection near the Soviet embassy.

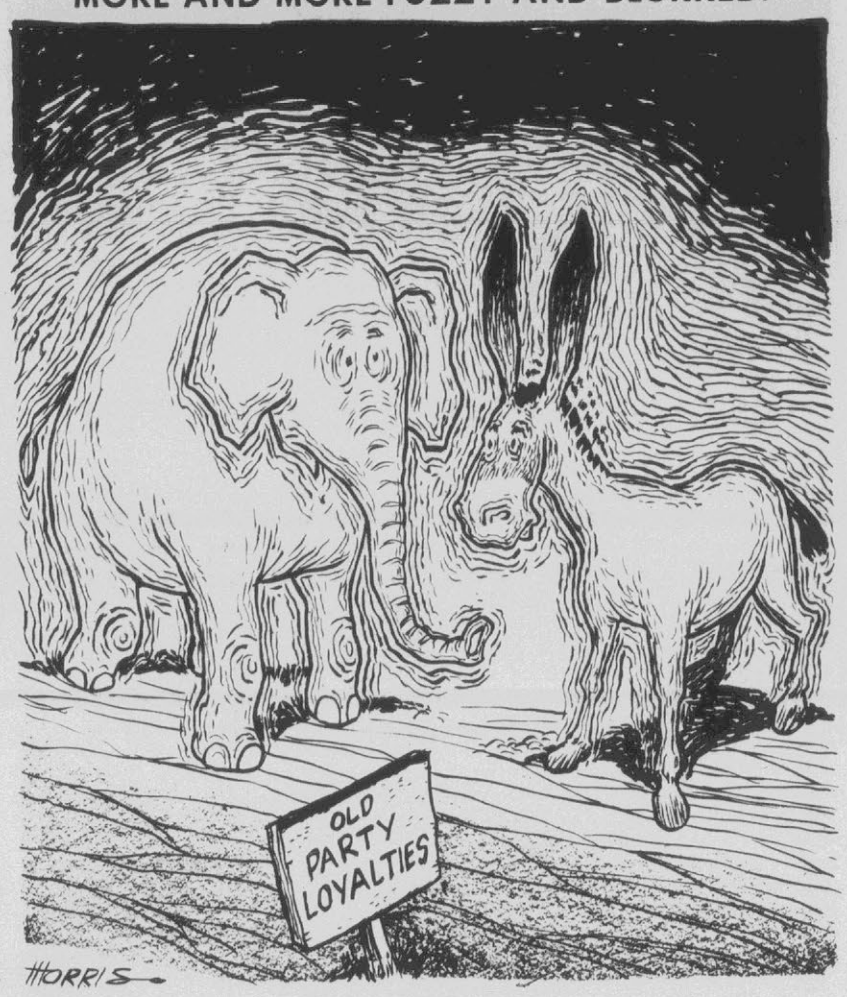

One year ago: The military government in Ethiopia abolished the royal position of Emperor.

Today's birthdays: John D. Rockefeller III is 70. Writer Phyllis McGinley is 71.

Thought for today: It is easier to do a job right than to explain why you didn't — President Martin van Buren, 1782-1862.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, following the British evacuation of Boston, General George Washington asked town officials to supply him with the names of persons suspected of spying on the Continental Army.

Take It Or Leave It: The Greenville Bicycle System

When I was on a poverty tour of England several years ago, I was fortunate enough to be able to use the English system of bicycle paths. These were well-kept, usually paved paths parallel to heavily travelled roads, with an occasional scenic detour through some of England's gorgeous countryside. Naturally, after having such a rewarding experience, I was ecstatic to find that the Greenville city council had approved $32,000 in revenue sharing funds to develop its own bike path system over a three year period. With that much money invested in it, I was sure our bicycle system would be one of the best in the U.S.

All last year I kept looking for signs that work had begun, but the only signs I ever saw were ones that read "bike route" and pointed in the direction of the river. Now, I know that some Greenville citizens are hostile toward bicyclists, but I didn't think the city was spending all that money just to drown us. So, one day while we were driving down Fifth Street, I asked Phillip, "When are they going to develop that bike system they were talking about?"

He carefully maneuvered our Toyota around a struggling cyclist, then answered, "They have."

"What are you talking about? There's not a bike path in this whole town, not that I can find anyway."

GAIL MICHAELS

"Of course not, silly," he said scornfully. "Where are they going to build a bike path on Fifth Street? On top of the University's hedge?"

"But then how are they using all that money?" I persisted, my eyes glowing covetously at the mere thought of $32,000.

"They've developed bike lanes." Phillip pointed to a wavering yellow line running along the outside of the street. "That is your bike system."

I gasped in disbelief. The bike lane to which he had pointed consisted of a continuous line of warped curbing, spotted here and there with sewer grates, fallen leaves, and tree roots. The tires of a Lincoln Continental might survive the abuse of a drive over that bike lane, but my bike's slightly dry-rotted tires would not. I had visions of hitting one of those sewer grates, being flipped off my bike into Fifth Street, and being run over by a caravan of TR6s going ten miles over the speed limit. "Who in the world could survive a ride over that mess?" I cried.

"Evel Knievel?"

"Don't be funny," I hissed. "I think it's a conspiracy against bike riders. They're trying to kill us all off. If we don't follow one of those signs and ride into the river, we get bounced off our bikes and run over." I held my breath a minute and geared up for my final attack on injustice. "And furthermore," I continued, "I want to know how anyone can spend $32,000 on yellow paint!"

"Look," Phillip said, "You wanted a bike system; there it is. Now you can take it or leave it."

mending the commercial sales route.

But other members of Congress who have tended to see only Israel's foreign policy interest—as opposed to Arab interests and perhaps even U.S. interests—appear to be changing. One major reason: the effect on U.S. relations with Egypt and the Arab world if, after expelling some 14,000 Soviet advisers in 1972 and now abrogating the Egyptian-Soviet friendship treaty, President Anwar Sadat is publicly humiliated by the U.S. and thrown back on the tender mercies of Moscow.

That might well be taken by the Arabs as a final verdict that the U.S., in the face of even so dramatic a turnabout as Egypt has just completed, is unable to take a decision in the Middle East publicly opposed by the Israeli government.

It is precisely for that reason that President Ford and Kissinger are now leaning strongly away from Humphrey's proposal to protect Congress from the C-130 hot potato.

Whereas Humphrey wants Congress relieved of any confrontation and vote, the administration now leans toward a direct collision on grounds that treating the C-130 sale as a "commercial" deal is flim-flam—a way of gaining the short-term objective (sale of the C-130s) but losing the vital political point that deep changes in the Mideast demand deep changes by the U.S.

If the administration sticks to this position, a letter notifying Congress of the U.S.-Egyptian sale will be sent to the Senate and the House. Resolutions to veto the sale will be introduced, with the administration confident of victory (even if Humphrey should lead the veto fight). The fact that such a direct collision with Congress is preferred to an undercover deal tells much about the administration's future arms plans with Egypt.

Thus, to keep Egypt from crawling back to Moscow for arms aid sometime in the future, the administration intends to open an arms supply-line with Egypt—but for only a fractional tidbit of the arms now flooding Israel—starting with the C-130s.

Mideast experts feel Congress will accept such a future commitment, however high the pressures from Israel to impose an American arms ban on Cairo. If that appraisal by the Ford administration is correct, it means that elected politicians may be taking a less stigmatic view of the Arabs, a change that holds more, not less, promise for the real future security of Israel and one that Humphrey might be advised to nurture instead of resist.

the Big Point is about to be made, and the fist indicates it isn't going to be jolly.)

"...everything you've got" (Uh huh, the point. The left hand is held at attention along the left seam of the trousers and the right hand, in the most dramatic of Ford's new gestures, is tucked into the jacket, thumb to the outside, in a Napoleonic gesture of certainty.)

The hand gesture the President probably would use to describe the above interpretation is a thumbs down.

Another Winston Churchill Warning The West

By ROBERT MUSEL
UPI Senior Editor

LONDON (UPI) — There is a nation whose armies — wherever they face the West — are always in attack formation. They are backed by an armaments industry consuming the same percentage of national wealth that Adolf Hitler spent one year before he plunged humanity into World War II.

The nation is Soviet Russia and Winston Churchill, 35, conscious of the great name he bears and his responsibilities as a member of the House of Commons, devotes much time to analyzing what this might mean in the minds of the men in the Kremlin.

Forty years ago his famous grandfather sounded an alarm largely unheeded by the government of the day until it was too late.

This time young Winston is one of the most persistent voices in the Conservative party urging a more resolute stand by the United States and the Western Alliance as Russia's words and deeds go their separate ways.

But he is not isolated. There are other British statesmen worried by Russian intervention in Africa, who agree with him that other means of achieving majority rule in Rhodesia should be found rather than the "bloodbath" threatened by some Africans, possibly with the help of Moscow's Cuban mercenaries.

These statesmen also fear with him that if anything happens to 84-year-old Marshal Tito, the Soviets may manufacture an "invitation" and march into Yugoslavia to preserve order.

Onve there, straddling the northern shores of the Mediterranean, they would, in Churchill's opinion, be there to stay.

Churchill gave what he ruefully called "a fairly gloomy assessment" of the world today in the living room of his elegant apartment near Parliament.

Two celebrated forebears looked down from the walls; a striking full length portrait of Sir Winston at about his age and a head and shoulders of the first Duke of Marlborough, victor of Blemheim in 1704.

"What worries me deeply," he said, "is that according to all the indicators, once again today as in the 1930s, we have a single country with a totalitarian dictatorship at its head which is bent on a course not only of internal repression but more seriously bent on a path of world dominance, of imposing its rule on other parts of the globe.

"One cannot forget that fascism started on its rampage with Mussolini's invasion (of Ethiopia) in Africa and this, combined with the building of a war machine many times greater than any requirement for self-defense is grave grounds for concern.

"Their whole economy is geared to a war footing and what are we to do about it?

"I feel that what is at risk with the challenge they are putting to us is Africa and that is a very difficult challenge to meet because if we don't meet it the Soviets win and if we meet it in a clumsy way we will allow ourselves to be identified only with the white minority in Southern Africa.

"In that context I don't think liberal and left-wing sentiment on either side of the Atlantic would permit a level of aid to Southern Africa equal to what the Soviet Union will put in on the other side.

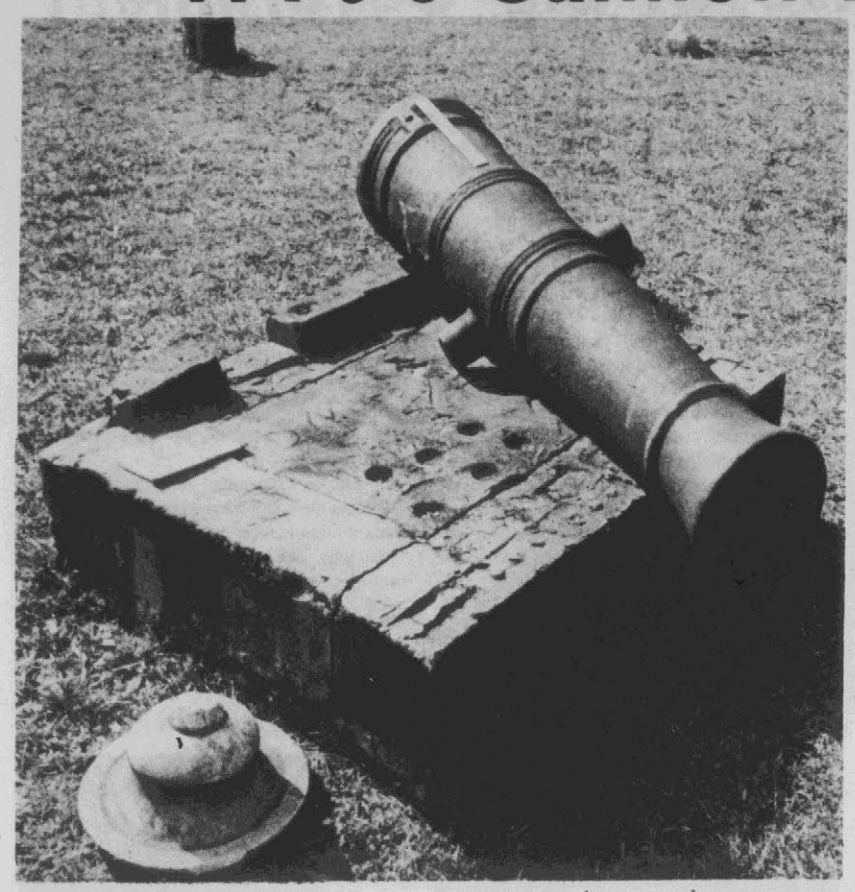

"I think we must have to be clear that the path of resistance, if the West has the will to meet this challenge, must be on a wholly non-racial basis."

And this, he said, meant supplying military hardware to Southern Africa as well as to the black governments and at the same time concentrating an important naval task force in the South Atlantic "to make sure the Soviets do not establish any tactical superiority, naval or air, in the area with bases they undoubtedly have in mind to build in Angola."

Churchill said that while Africa was the current theater of the Russian challenge it was really directed at the West everywhere.

—1770's Cannon Being Restored In Greenville—

THE CHERRY HILL CEMETERY CANNON... of British origin and dating to the 1770's, is being restored through the efforts of the Pitt County Historical Society, assisted by the Greenville Jaycees. Plans are to mount the cannon on the Town Common. (Photo Courtesy City of Greenville)

Members of the Pitt County Historical Society voted on Thursday evening to financially support a Bicentennial Project to vesture and mount a Revolutionary War vintage on the Town Common in Greenville within the next few months.

The cannon, which dates from the 1770s and is of British origin, had been located in the Cherry Hill Cemetery until its significance was recently called to the attention of the Historical Society and the City of Greenville through the interest of W. R. Newton of Farmville. Mayor Percy Cox contacted the local Jaycees and asked if this group would be interested in having the project as a part of the Fourth of July program for 1976.

Jaycee President Doug Hill and Robert F. Bird, Personnel Officer for the City of Greenville, researched the cannon and contacted Keith Strawn of the North Carolina Department of Cultural Resouces. Strawn made an extensive study of the cannon and authenticated its age.

According to Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, president of the Historical Society, the Pitt County Commissioners have appropriated funds for use by the Society for special Bicentennial projects.

"The Historical Society members are pleased to cooperate with Mr. Bird and the Jaycees in this worthy endeavor aimed toward making all the citizens of Pitt County more aware of their rich Revolutionary War heritage," Dr. Rives said.

"As a part of the Bicentennial Celebration of the City of Greenville," Rives noted, "the Society donated, in 1974, a group of historic flags that have flown over this city. The endorsement by the Society of the restoration and mounting of this cannon, which will be placed in a conspicuous position on the Town Common, is further evidence of our desire to have a visible symbol of our county's eighteenth century roots."

Also of the Thursday meeting; Dr. Thomas A. Williams announced that Era Press of Greenville will soon publish a new edition of Sketches Of Pitt County (1704-1910), by the late Henry T. King. The book has been indexed by Ms. Marguerite Wiggins.

The Pitt County 4-H Bicentennial Singers, a group of 4-H Club students from Pitt County, presented a program of special patriotic Bicentennial Year music at the dinner meeting of the Historical Society which was held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Mrs. Jean Johnson, 4-H Club Program Assistant, who is affiliated with the Pitt County Extension Office, was in charge of arrangements for the program.

New Staff Member Named To Children's Home Society

Children's Home Society of N. C. announces the addition of Mrs. Worth Cooley to its casework staff in Eastern N.C.

She is assigned to the Society's Greenville office, but lives in Kinston with her husband, Tom, and four-year-old daughter, Nell.

Mrs. Cooley is a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill and is a part-time student in the Master's program of the ECU School of Psychology. She has worked in the past with the Lenior County Mental Health Clinic, the Model Cities Program in Charlotte, and the Duke Campus Ministry.

She will work in all areas of service provided by the Society, including home finding and adoption services for children and care for children referred from other agencies; casework with persons applying to adopt a child; counseling and related services for persons with a problem pregnancy, temporary care for infants and young children for whom the biological parents are considering adoption. In 1975 the Society, a non-sectarian, voluntarily supported adoption agency, placed 155 children from direct care and 67 children referred from other agencies.

Government Expected To Prevent Damage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals, in a decision already being blasted by the chemical industry, says the government is expected to prevent damage to public health, not wait until the damage is done.

Its 5-4 ruling, with wide implications, confirms the Environmental Protection Agency's authority to order reductions of lead in gasoline, even before any public health hazards have been positively established.

Ethyl Corp. said it would appeal the ruling to the Supreme Court.

In its decision Friday, the court majority said regulators must be able to head off potential dangers without awaiting the final, perhaps disastrous, proof.

"Speculation, conflicts in evidence and theoretical extrapolation typify their every action," said the court's majority. "How else can they act ... ?"

The decision appeared to uphold EPA's authority to regulate a broad range of environmental issues where danger to human health seems likely, even though it has not yet been scientifically proved.

The decision cited as examples such recent controversies as the discharge of asbestos fibers into water, work-place exposures to vinyl chloride and the banned use of the pesticides DDT, aldrin and dieldrin.

"Never before have massive quantities of asbestiform (asbestos-carrying) tailings been spewed into the water we drink.

"Never before have our industrial workers been occupationally exposed to vinyl chloride or to asbestos dust.

"Never before has the food we eat been permeated with DDT or the pesticides aldrin and dieldrin.

"And never before have hundreds of thousands of tons of lead emissions been disgorged annually into the air we breathe."

Fishing Is Slow

GRIFTON—Shad fishing has been slow according to the records at the Grifton Sport Shop. Less than 20 Shads have been entered in the Shad Fishing Competition.

The largest three fish entered in the competition are listed as follows: 2 lbs. 10 ozs. caught by Tom Baines of Greenville, 2 lbs. 9 ozs. caught by G.R. Boyette of Wilson and 2 lbs. 8½ ozs. caught by Bill Butler of Grifton.

Jones Will Block Prison Labor Unions

RALEIGH (AP)—Secretary of Correction David Jones, critical of a federal court ruling, says he will take every legal step possible to block formation of a labor union in North Carolina's prisons.

Jones made the comment Friday following a ruling by a three-judge court that a prison union must be given the right to meet, circulate news letters and solicit membership.

In criticizing the ruling, Jones said, "It seems the liberal view is that the prisoners who commit the crimes have more rights than the citizen who live within the law."

The three-judge panel was composed of Circuit Court Judge J. Braxton Craven, senior District Court Judge Algernon Butler and District Court Judge Frank Dupree.

The court noted that the N.C. Prisoners Labor Union Inc. had not sought recognition as a "true labor union" and did not invoke the federal labor-management law.

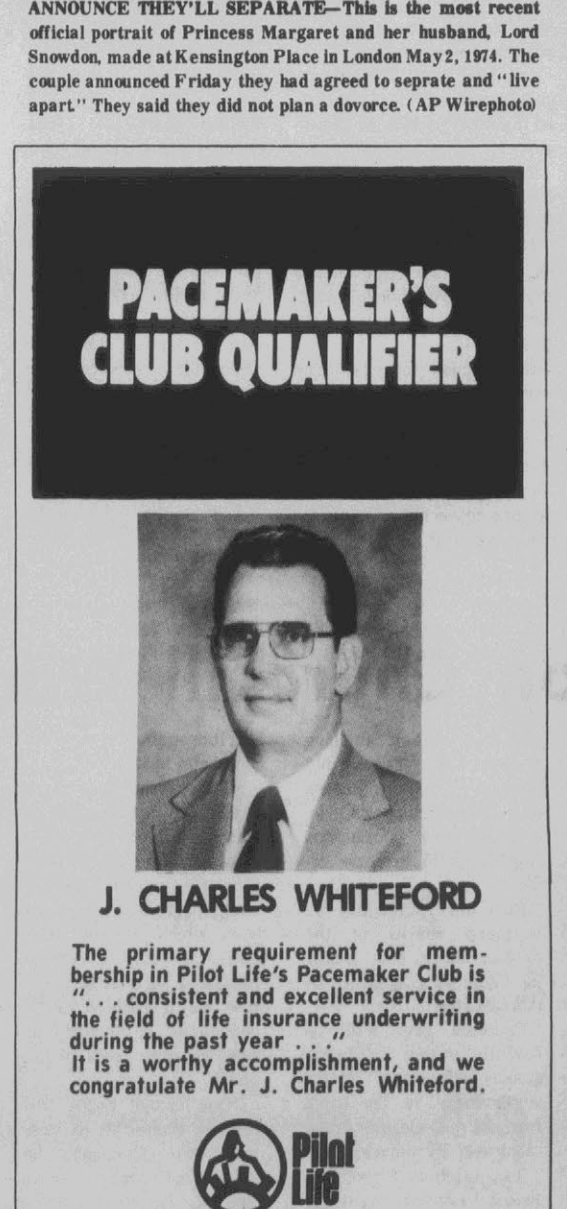

Jones, contacted by telephone at Asheville where he was on vacation, said, "As secretary of corrections, I stand in the same position that I did before, that I would exercise all the authority and all legal channels available to me not to let a union form in the prisons of North Carolina, either through an appeal or any other legal way to not recognize them."

His statement was a strong indication an appeal will be made, but he said he would have a decision by next week.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Jacob Safrom said he hopes the decision will be to appeal. He added, "I'm looking forward to appealing that case if given the opportunity."

Jones' statement apparently was in conflict with a portion of the federal court ruling which said prison officials admitted the prison labor union existed and that it had 2,000 members among the 12,000 prison inmates.

The court warned that prison inmates are not to try to force demands on prison officials.

Another Winston...

"What I'm really trying to say," he went on, "is it is not a racial or an African question; it's an alliance question.

"If they are tempted by the total apathy and demonstrated feebleness of the West in the past few weeks, if we go down this slope for very many more months it won't be a question of the independence of a few African countries or European domination in Southern Africa, or our economic situation as far as the Cape route is concerned: it will be a question of peace, global peace for the first time in 30 years."

Churchill said the theory that once the Russians have served the African purpose they will be "booted" out was "the most preposterous and facile argument that can be deployed."

Thirty-one years after the end of World War II, he said, some 200 million people in what had been independent countries "were still under the tank track of Russia ... Let it not be thought that in its much strengthened position today and the much weakened position of the rest of the world they cannot colonize and dominate Africa, Asia and ultimately Europe.

"I think that if there is no coordinated resistance to Soviet expansionism and imperialism in Africa we could see this thing moving nearer home with a Soviet takeover of Yugoslavia following Tito's death or incapacitation. And that, of course, would see the Soviets straddling the northern shores of the Mediterranean which they already dominate with a fleet four times greater than that of the U.S.

"In that context I think one could see the possibility not of nuclear war but of such a largescale buildup of military power so close to the frontiers of Western democracies that they would just succumb from a combination of external pressures and largescale fifth column activity supported from outside.

"And that in my view is the real threat."

Returning to Yugoslavia, he said:

"I can well imagine there must be plans in the Kremlin that deal with the contingency of the Marshal's death.

"It would be an easy matter for them to arrange for a small group in Montenegro or Bosnia or one of the remoter provinces to seize a radio station and call on our valiant Soviet allies to protect the revolution against fascism and imperialism.

"Out of the sky would drop two or three or even six Soviet divisions. Mind you, I think they'd have their work cut out for them. I think the Yugoslav partisans tied down 13 Nazi divisions in World War II."

Speaking as the great grandson of a New Yorker (Jennie Jerome Churchill) and as the stepson of Averell Harriman (the former U.S. diplomat is married to Churchill's mother, the former Pamela Digby Churchill), Churchill said he wished some way could be found to "speed up the ghastly American electoral process which once every four years subjects your friends and allies to a most terrible situation where it is impossible to get a rational coherent response out of the U.S."

Churchill said he felt there was one way short of war to stop the Soviets.

It would require a resolute American President, Congress and electorate warning Moscow that unless it adhered to a real detente there would be no more grain, no more technology, no more Western help of any kind and massive rearmament instead.

This might also include supplying antitank weapons to any neighbor of the Soviet Union that wanted them.

"It's always been accepted by the West that it's open season for the Russians to stir trouble on our side of the fence," he said. "And it always seems to have been accepted by us as off-limits to stir anything on their side of the fence."

City School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at Greenville's elementary school have been announced as follow:

Monday — fish sandwich, french fries, cole slaw, cornbread or rolls, brownies, milk;

Tuesday — fried chicken, whipped potatoes, peas, cranberry sauce, rolls, milk;

Wednesday — vegetable beef soup, crackers, cheese cubes, banana pudding, milk;

Thursday — pizza, tossed salad, harvest cake, milk;

Friday — hot dogs with chili, baked beans, cole slaw, apple sauce, cookies, milk.

Together In Marshal Job

DERBY, Conn. (AP) — At least two weekends a month Anthony and Mary Dirienzo pack their bags and take off on a three-day trip.

They go by car or plane and the distance can be anywhere from 600 to 3,000 miles from their Derby home.

Their destination is always the same — a prison.

The Dirienzos both work as marshals for the federal government. Anthony is chief U.S. Marshal for Connecticut and Mary is a deputy marshal.

It's the couple's weekend job to transport prisoners from one penal institution to another.

During the past 13 years, they have traveled to prisons in 22 states, as well as Mexico and Puerto Rico.

Mrs. Dirienzo says that because so much traveling is involved in the job of transporting prisoners, the government often appoints the wives of chief marshal to be deputy marshal. This enables them to accompany their husbands.

About the prisoners, she says "most of them are surprisingly well-versed and responsive. Our conversations are very natural and run the gamut from fashions to current world events."

County School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at Pitt County schools have been announced as follow:

Monday — hot dog on bun, french fries, coleslaw, cinnamon bun, milk;

Tuesday — beef ravioli or spaghetti with meat sauce, buttered corn, seasoned green beans, rolls, apricot crisp, milk;

Wednesday — fried chicken, mashed potatoes with gravy, buttered broccoi, cranberry sauce, rolls, cookies, milk;

Thursday — sausage cake, rice and gravy, steamed cabbage, biscuits, sliced peaches, milk;

Friday — vegetable beef soup, crackers, peanut butter and jelly sandwich, spiced apples, milk.

Picnic Table Is Mile Long

UPLAND, Calif. (AP) — A mile-long picnic table on Euclid Avenue Parkway between Upland and Ontario, Calif., is probably the longest in the world.

Residents of the two cities gather there every 4th of July for their "All States Picnic."

About 2,000 pepper trees line the picturesque parkway.

The Patty Hearst Story

More Than Two Years In The Public Limelight

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Chronology of the Patricia Hearst case:

Feb. 4, 1974 — She was kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment.

Feb. 7 — The Symbionese Liberation army claims responsibility for the abduction.

Feb. 18 — Miss Hearst's father announces a $2 million food program for the needy, demanded by the SLA as a good faith gesture.

April 3 — Miss Hearst announces on a tape recording that she has decided to join her terrorist kidnapers as "Tania." The tape is accompanied by a photograph of Miss Hearst carrying a gun in front of the SLA seven-headed cobra symbol.

April 15 — Miss Hearst takes part in the Hibernia bank robbery.

April 24 — In another tape recording, Miss Hearst brags she willingly took part in the robbery and denounces her father and fiance.

May 16 — Miss Hearst sprays street in Los Angeles with bullets to cover escape of SLA member William Harris from shoplifting incident at Mel's sporting goods store.

May 17 — Six SLA members die in shootout with police at Los Angeles hideout. Miss Hearst watches on television at motel 20 miles away.

June 7 — In another tape recording, Miss Hearst expresses her love for dead SLA member Willie Wolfe, then disappears for 17 months until her arrest. During that time, she later said, she was in the San Francisco area, on the East Coast and in Sacramento, Calif.

April 21, 1975 — Holdup of Carmichael, Calif., bank in which a woman was killed. Miss Hearst later identified as person who rented a garage where a getaway car was kept.

Sept. 18 — Miss Hearst and the Harrises arrested at two hideouts in San Francisco.

Oct. 2 — Miss Hearst indicted in Los Angeles on kidnap, robbery and assault charges stemming from hours following Mel's shooting incident.

Jan. 27, 1976 — Miss Hearst goes on trial for armed robbery of Hibernia Bank.

SAN FRANCICO (UPI) — During her trial, Patricia Hearst talked about the role of many others in her 19 months underground.

Some of the others she named and their status:

William and Emily Harris — Miss Hearst said she spent the entire underground time with them. They are in jail in Los Angeles awaiting trial on an 11-count indictment charging kidnap, robbery and assault in connection with the hours following the Mel's Sporting Goods shooting incident on May 16, 1974. Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler is to rule March 29 on a defense motion to delay their trial for a year because of the heavy pretrial publicity. Miss Hearst also faces the same charges.

Steven Soliah — Miss Hearst said she lived with him prior to her arrest, and he was arrested the same day she was. His trial on charges of taking part in a fatal bank holdup in Carmichael, Calif., is in the jury selection stage in U.S. district court in Sacramento.

Wendy Yoshimura — She was arrested in the same apartment with Miss Hearst. She is free on bail awaiting trial in Oakland on 1972 charges she possessed illegal explosivqs.

Russell Little and Joseph Remiro — Although they have been in jail since before Miss Hearst was kidnaped, they were part of the SLA. They have been convicted of the 1973 murder of Oakland, Calif., schools superintendent Marcus Foster. Little was acquitted of assault on a police officer during their arrest in January, 1974, and the jury was unable to reach a verdict on Remiro. Both are awaiting a third trial on charges they attempted to escape from the Alameda County jail in Oakland.

Kathleen Soliah — Steven Soliah's sister. Still at large, she was reportedly secretly indicted in Los Angeles on charges of planting bombs under two police cars last summer.

Josephine Soliah and James Kilgore — Josephine is Steven's and Kathleen's sister. Miss Hearst said they helped her hide during her life underground. Kilgore's fingerprint allegedly was found on a getaway car used in the Carmichael bank robbery. Miss Soliah has not been charged with any crime; Kilgore is wanted for questioning in connection with explosives allegedly found in his belongings by a moving company last fall. Their whereabouts are unknown.

Jack and Micki Scott — Miss Hearst said Scott, a sports activist who once was athletic director at Oberlin College in Ohio, and his wife helped her while she was underground. They have not been charged with any crimes. They live in Portland, Ore.

On Tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller has left for a 17-day diplomatic trip around the world.

Accompanied by his wife, Happy, and aides, Rockefeller left Kennedy Airport aboard Air Force Two on Friday bound first for Tunisia, where President Bourguiba will celebrate 20 years in office.

On Sunday, Rockefeller leaves for Paris for two days of American bicentennial ceremonies.

Other stops include Iran, Kuala Lampur, Malaysia, Singapore, Australia and New Zealand.

Pamela Bath, a junior at J. H. Rose High School has become the first person from North Carolina to win the Music Teachers National Association (Southeastern Regional) High School auditions in violin.

She competed with representatives from the nine southeastern states at Millsaps College in Jackson, Mississippi. She will now represent this region at the National auditions to be held in Dallas, Texas, on March 28.

Her program will include the Rondo in G Major by Mozart; the first movement of the Violin Concerto by Samuel Barber, and the Six Rumanian Folk Dances by Bela Bartok. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bath. Her violin teacher is her mother, Joanne Bath.

Heroin Supply Not Diminished

By CRAIG A. PALMER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The heroin supply to American addicts has not diminished much despite Mexico's drive to choke off the source this year, according to new information released Saturday.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., released new data on Mexico's massive effort to destroy opium poppy crops and cut off drug smuggling to the U.S. market, plus documents showing U.S. officials had high hopes the program would pay off significantly this year.

But Percy staffers said Peter Bensinger, the new head of the Drug Enforcement Administration, told them Friday he expects no major reduction in heroin supplies until early next year.

They quoted Bensinger as saying existing stockpiles of the drug have so far offset the "gratifying improvement" Mexico has achieved in reducing the flow of heroin across the border.

And Dr. Robert DuPont, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, said last week U.S. heroin addiction is increasing again after an 18-month decline,

The Percy material included letters he got in December from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Henry Dogin, then the acting DEA administrator. Dogin seemed optimistic the Mexican drug war, carried out with U.S. financial and technical assistance, would yield fast results.

"The challenge is very great," Dogin wrote, "but if the program is implemented with determination and effectiveness, a meaningful diminution in the traffic of heroin to the United States will be possible in 1976."

Kissinger said, "I am confident that the supply of heroin flowing from Mexican sources will be reduced significantly as the result of our common efforts."

Percy had asked Kissinger and the Justice Department to get Mexico to "dam up this international stream polluted with deadly granules of brown heroin."

Percy said the Mexican effort, begun last Nov. 20, has made "significant progress."

He released State Department statistics showing that, as of March 14, more than 15,000 opium poppy-growing acres were destroyed, compared with 3,175 acres in a similar period last year.

At Methodist Conference

Human Sexuality May Create Debate

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Human sexuality—und especially homosexuality—will probably generate the most debate when the United Methodist Church gathers in General Conference next month in Portland, Ore.

But the most controversial part of the issue, the ordination of gays, seems to have been shelved.

Some half-dozen agencies in the 10.3-million-member denomination petitioned the General Conference to set up a four-year study of human sexuality, including homosexuality.

The women's division of the church's Board for Global Ministries, stated recently: "Nowhere in the church's consideration of human sexuality is there more confusion, embarrassment and even self-hatred evident than in the currently dominant discussions about homosexuality."

It called "contradictory" the church's stand on homosexuality spelled out in a 1972 Statement of Social Principles, which said, "We do not condone the practice of homosexuality and consider this practice incompatible with Christian teaching."

Said the women's group: "On the one hand it proclaims an inclusive gospel and an inclusive church, and at the same time makes exclusions."

Delegates to the General Conference will be asked to replace the church statement on homosexuality with: "We welcome all persons regardless of sexual orientation into fellowship and membership."

The "Good News" movement, made up of evangelical and conservative Methodists, has led the fight against changes.

And a survey based on returns of 13,000 questionnaires printed in the denomination's magazines found little support for even a study of sexuality.

The denomination's Board for Church and Society, an advocate for gays, reflected some of the confusion at a February board meeting.

It reaffirmed support for changing the language of the church statement but rescinded an earlier resolution supporting equal rights for homosexuals, fearing that would imply supporting ordination of homosexuals.

Ordination has been the most emotional of all the sex-related issues since the Council on Youth Ministry first proposed it.

Five Die In Accident

WATERTOWN, Wis. (AP) — Five teen-agers, apparently lured by spring-like weather to skip school, died when their car collided with a truck.

Lee Johnson, an assistant principal at Watertown High School, said at least four of the victims should have been attending class Friday but "the nice weather probably prompted them" to go riding instead. Afternoon temperatures were in the 70s.

Allen P. Zabel, driver of the truck, escaped serious injury. He told police the youngsters' oncoming car skidded sideways at a curve near the city limits.

Killed were the driver, Kirby Mueller, 18, Scott W. Ziegler, 17, Gary L. Kurtz, 18, Kaye Keeser, 17, and Sharon M. McDonald, 17, all of the Watertown area.

Student Political Apathy 'Skin Deep'

EDITOR'S NOTE — College students seem plainly indifferent to the presidential election campaign as it has developed so far. But that doesn't mean they're not interested in American politics, some on campus contend.

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

Joe Freeman hawks Bicentennial buttons on the University of Pennsylvania campus for $1 each, and business is good. Nearby, however, few pause at a pamphlet-filled table for a Democratic presidential contender's free campaign button.

Across the country, on the Los Angeles campus of the University of Southern California, Dr. James Appleton looks out the window of his student affairs office and also observes that political interest is just about zilch.

"I see two students promoting Ronald Reagan but there are no students talking with them," he notes. At the other end of the square several hundred are listening to a guy selling property on the moon.

A sampling of American colleges, big and little, indicates the campus attitude everywhere is similar: very few are excited about the presidential election campaign as it has developed so far, or about any major political issue.

Today's student apathy contrasts with the activism of the '60s and early '70s, an activism based largely on student opposition to the draft and to American involvement in Vietnam.

The unrest resulted in violence at Kent State, where Ohio National Guardsmen killed four, at the University of Wisconsin, where a bomb blast in an Army building killed a student, and at Jackson State College, where fighting with police resulted in two student fatalities.

"If there was an over-all burning issue, like reinstituting the draft or getting involved in Angola, people would get steamed up," claims Austin Ranney, a visiting political science professor at the University of California's Berkeley campus.

Paul Magarill, 20, of Fort Lee, N.J., who took off two semesters from Union College in Schenectady, N.Y., to work for Indiana's Sen. Birch Bayh, says it's difficult to motivate students politically.

"They are very reluctant to do volunteer work," Magarill says. "They'd rather do nothing. They see politics as unimportant, uninteresting, not exciting."

However, the campaign rhetoric of the primaries apparently isn't entirely unheard by college students.

"I suspect that the person who becomes president could have a decided effect on the philosophy that runs the country, whether it's liberal or conservative," says Richard Langlois, 24, a Stanford graduate student in engineering-economic systems. "I'm extremely concerned. I'm just confused. I'm not sure which one is right."

Melvyn Klein, director of activities at Penn State, says: "Students are more interested in the local government situation where they are actually living. I would anticipate that as we get closer to the national conventions and the election that there will be increased political activity."

Holly Warren, 18, a physical sciences major at Berkeley, disagrees. "Most students are into escaping and being individuals and not having anything to do with politics," she says. "I'm going into science. I'd rather contribute through that than through voting."

Dr. Robert Brisbane, faculty adviser to the political science club at Atlanta's predominantly black Morehouse College, reports that "the kids have gone back to fraternities."

Adds Paul Ginsberg, Wisconsin's dean of students: "Students are thinking about academic and personal survival, about jobs. They are more concerned with what's going to happen to them than who's going to be the next president."

This attitude is evident in many college dorms when one walks in and listens to the pages of books being turned, typewriters pecking away and tape recorders replaying yesterday's lectures.

Dr. John Blackburn, vice chancellor for student resources at the University of Denver, adds: "Students are indifferent about the presidential race because they don't see any particular person now seeking the job making much of a difference in their personal lives."

But Dr. Robert Shaffer, former dean of students at Indiana University and now professor of higher education, believes students are beginning to work within the established political system.

"Those of us working with students are struck by the students' return to the party system," he says. "This became more noticeable about two years ago, after Richard Nixon quit, the Watergate matter was winding down, and those who were cynical and disillusioned in the early 1970s had left the campus."

Jane Maggin, vice president for student affairs at New York University, insists it's difficult to segregate student views from the rest of the population.

"They're not steamed up about presidential politics," she says. "But then neither is anyone else."

Meanwhile, campus activism is often most concerned with lowering tuitions or improving faculties, through letter writing campaigns, or by confronting legislators face-to-face, as 5,000 students from Rutgers recently did in Trenton, N.J.

Steve Biddle, 23, a political science major who is coordinator of Morris Udall's presidential campaign at Penn, says there aren't posters tacked up, or loudspeakers blaring because "students are more mature today than four years ago. They take politics more seriously and less emotionally."

COLUMBIA, Calif. (AP) — Gold Rush prices may have been pretty high, but some of them weren't as high as today's.

In the Mother Lode town of Columbia in 1860 miners spent $4,898 to build their first school house. But when it was restored recently the cost was $60,000.

REVIVAL STARTING

A revival will be held at the Holy Temple Holiness Church Monday, March 22 through March 26. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. each night. Rev. I. J. Robinson will conduct services Wednesday night.

'Worst Prison' In Nation Is Somewhat Improved

By PETER M. ZOLLMAN

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Five years ago Orleans Parish Prison was regarded as one of the worst in the nation — fit only for rats that were the sole willing inhabitants.

The chalk-white structure looked like a Hollywood set for a 1930s gangster movie, with guard towers, light stanchions and tall, thick walls topped by barbed wire. In a 10-month period, 84 prisoners escaped and 22 guards were attacked.

Complaints of filth, overcrowding, understaffing, uprisings, sexual assaults and mass escapes prompted a federal judge in 1971 to order a clean-up. Now, rats and cockroaches are still the only willing inhabitants but conditions are somewhat improved.

"I'll guarantee you, this was one of the worst prisons in the country," Sheriff Charles Foti said. "It was a filthy pig sty and it still is in some areas.

"But now I think it's one of the best prisons and I'll put my staff against any staff at any prison in the country."

Foti said in the past two years there has been only one escape and no attacks at the prison, located downtown a mile from the new Superdome.

It was designed for 450 prisoners but houses about 1,200. A new jail is being built, but in the meantime Foti has tried to relieve the space problems by building four-high bunkbeds, replacing many floor mattresses and cots.

"You've got to be innovative in some of these things," Foti said during a tour in which he told of a rehabilitation program, work-release project, prison classrooms and other programs — all new or improved in the past few years.

As Foti walked through sections of the 48-year-old jail he was greeted by prisoners walking to a movie in the chapel.

A sign on a wall said, "Right on — write for Parish Prison News." Nearby, trophies and newspaper clippings honored the prison boxing team, which recently went to an AAU national tournament on private funding.

Federal authorities agreed with Foti that the prison is in much better shape than 1971 when Sheriff Louis A. Heyd Jr. said, "When we close the door on the inmates it's with a sense of frustration and despair."

"The prison is operated in a much more effective manner now," said Robert Force, a Tulane University law professor who was named by the late U.S. District Court Judge Herbert Christenberry to oversee changes at the prison. The judge's cleanup order, issued after a suit by inmates, still is in effect.

"Instead of sitting around and bemoaning things, they actively seek change," Force said. "Many things which they used to say couldn't be done, have been done."

But Foti and Force both said improving the prison is an endless job because the building is so old. The sheriff said the "condition of the building is just deterioriating."

"The old idea about a can of paint and a light bulb does not work," Force said. "The 'ratholes' are a little better than they used to be, but the unrehabilitated tiers I would still characterize as 'ratholes'."

A new $15 million jail designed for 450 inmates adjacent to the old prison originally was scheduled for completion in 1972. Now it is expected to open in October and supplement the present facility instead of replacing it.

Current improvements resulted from an increased prison budget — a trend which city officials say probably will continue. The budget, less than $900,000 in 1969, is now $3.4 million, an increase of 282 per cent.

Douglas C. Augustin, a top city budget official, pulled out a thick folder on the prison showing no other vital city services had nearly as big an increase. The total number of prison employes is well up, too, from 95 in 1969 to 322 in 1976.

Despite Force's contention that the city is not yet spending enough money on the jail, Augustin said prison improvements are sapping the city budget and the court order "gives the sheriff good leverage against other departments."

Before 1969, the prison hired a doctor, a dentist and a nurse. Now, under a $360,000 annual contract, Charity Hospital aides, doctors and nurses staff the eight-bed prison hospital around the clock. Prescription drugs are available, and work is finishing on a new dentist's office.

"The shining light is the medical program," said Force. "It's probably the best medical program in a county jail in the country."

The sheriff also credited a new inmate council as a key morale booster.

"We have inmate representative meetings once a week," Foti said. "We meet with them, you know, hear the gripes. You also get some constructive criticism. And if we can do something for them, we will. If we can't, at least we explain it."

Thirteen Old Trees On East Fifth St. Have To Go

In an age of crowded superhighways and smokestacks belching black clouds of pollution, Greenville is fortunate in at least one respect — some of its city officials care enough to try to save the trees on Fifth Street.

Thirteen trees between Reade Circle and Elm Street are dead or dying, infected by either root rot or heartwood rot. These diseased trees can easily infect others in their area, so the city is going to have them taken down in an effort to save the remaining healthy trees.

Most of the trees in the Fifth Street area are expected to reach maturity and die within the next 20 to 30 years, according to Dr. William Stanton, urban forester of the Agricultural Extension Service. The Greenville Environmental Advisory Commission became concerned about the possibility that "the city would lose one of its best natural assets" early due to disease, so it initiated a detailed tree condition survey.

The survey was made by City Planner John Schofield, Assistant Planner Tom Powers and Terry Oglethorpe, landscape supervisor for the Recreation Department. It was presented to the commission Feb. 17. The commission then drew up a list of recommendations to the City Council.

The council has made plans for removal of the 13 trees at $100 apiece. The money, said Schofield, will come out of personnel cost for the Public Works Department, which is in charge of taking the trees down. Signs have already been placed on those trees which will be removed, and removal should begin in about a month.

Schofield said they are also trying to get support from local civic groups, garden clubs, organizations and individuals to start programs for replacing the trees and providing proper care for the remaining ones.

"We would like help to replant some of the trees so that the beauty of Fifth Street would remain unchanged," he explained. "You can look at a tree two ways — as something nice to look at and as an energy-saving device in its environmental function. Their shade reduced heat in homes in summer and winter. They also help break down air pollution."

"They are a very definite part of Greenville," he added. "They have been here a number of years. They add a dimension to the quality of life in Greenville."

Schofield said he hopes local support will be strong enough that a tree can be replaced every time one is cut down. Work has begun on a tree preservation ordinance for the city. Special care may also be necessary; the death of the 13 trees was "attributed to past poor and improper pruning practices which allowed water and disease organisms to enter the roots or trunk," according to the tree survey.

Heartwood rot generally eats out the center of a tree, Oglethorpe explained. Root rot is carried through a tree's root system. Once one of these has reached the main trunk, the tree doesn't have a chance.

Of 96 trees in the area surveyed, about 58 are in good condition and have been marked with green tags, said Oglethorpe, who has a Master's Degree in horticulture. About 25 need some work, mainly pruning, and have green and red tags. The 13 dead or dying trees have red tags and notices of imminent removal.

Most of the trees in the survey area are live oaks (which stay green all year round) and willow oaks. A few pecans are standing now, but only one of them is healthy enough to be saved.

A care program may include fertilizer, pruning and watering during hot, dry periods. In some areas, where the soil is too hard or compacted, the treatment may be to bore holes into the soil to allow penetration of moisture and air into the tree's root system. Tree wounds should also be treated to prevent drying of tissues and infection by rot-producing organisms and insects.

Anyone wishing further information about the trees or about starting a care or replacement program may contact Schofield at 752-4137.

Schofield and Oglethorpe intend to survey other areas later and are hopeful of full support from the city in saving those trees for which there is some hope.

DOOMED TREE . . . This oak tree, located on the south side of Fifth Street where Students Street intersects it, will soon be removed because of the heartwood rot which has infected it. The center of the tree is exposed to insects and disease in the area where the outer trunk has rotted away. Spores on the tree, as in the lower left section, burst and spread to open wounds on the same tree or other trees. This tree and others displaying removal notices will be taken down within about a month. (Reflector Photo by Betty Hatch)

Baptist Director Of WMU To Speak Here

Suthell Walker, Baptist Women Director of North Carolina WMU, will speak at the Annual Session of the South Roanoke Woman's Missionary Union to be held at The Memorial Baptist Church, Monday March 22, at 7:30 p.m. and again Tuesday, March 23 at 10 p.m., according to Mrs. Ruth B. Garner, Associational WMU Director.

Miss Walker began working in the Raleigh office December 1, 1975. She is a native of Spindale, a graduate of Gardner-Webb College, Carson-Newman College and the New Orleans Seminary. She was Director of the Baptist Community Center, Lexington, Kentucky, prior to her return to North Carolina.

Invitations are being extended to all WMU members, pastors, and friends in the 51 churches of the Association.

The Acteen Council will serve as pages for the Monday evening session.

During the Tuesday morning business session, several by-law changes will be submitted by Mrs. C.U. Rogers, chairman, of Williamston Memorial. Mrs. R. Albert Bell of Fountain and Mrs. Tommy Craft, Jr. of Ayden assisted on the By-laws Committee. Host Pastor C. Norman Bennett will present the devotional message at both sessions.

Others serving on the program are Mrs. Julius Whichard, Mrs. James Briley, Mrs. H.A. White, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Moore, Mrs. C. Norman Bennett, Mrs. C.T. Mallison, Mrs. Tom Vicars, and Mrs. Douglas Moore.

Hopes To Form Singles Group

"I would like to form an association of Christian single persons and would like to know if there are people interested in this type of group," says Elsie Dunn of Rt. 1, Fountain.

Miss Dunn has information on a national group called BASIC, with which such a group could be affiliated. She would like to know if these same people would be interested in such activities as weekend retreats, summer retreats or conferences, both with Bible-based program, study courses, prayer groups, tours, pen pals, social activities, and a Single Adults' Sunday School Class.

Anyone wishing to contact her should call Miss Dunn at 752-3092 or write to her at Rt. 1, Box 161, Fountain, N.C. 27829.

Vote 'FOR' Amendment #1

Hospital Improvements Without Tax Money

On March 23 you, as a voter, will vote on Amendment #1 to the State's Constitution which, if approved, will permit the State of North Carolina to sell revenue bonds to finance vitally needed hospital improvement and modernization projects.

No tax money is involved in this amendment, and there will be no tax increase if this amendment is approved.

Health care costs are expensive, as everybody knows, and we are not going to insult anyone's intelligence by implying that passage of Amendment #1 is going to bring down these costs. But Amendment #1 will provide a dollar savings on capital improvement projects, which can mean a lesser bite out of your pocketbook. The intent of this amendment is to help hold down the increase in hospital costs.

Passage of this amendment will help hold down hospital costs by enabling lower interest revenue bonds to be used for building new additions to existing facilities or new hospitals to replace presently obsolete facilities; constructing hospital-owned doctors offices and clinics; and building or modernizing of laboratories, out-patient facilities and other hospital projects.

You expect quality patient care at reasonable costs. Revenue bonds will save money because of lower interests costs than conventional financing. By using revenue bonds, hospitals will save between 20 and 30 percent in interest costs. Any savings in interest costs will be passed on to patients in the form of lower hospital charges than would otherwise result from interest on conventional financing.

To illustrate how interest costs differ, examine the total cost to repay $15 million borrowed to build a new hospital. Using conventional financing, the total repayment will be $41,313,000; but by using tax free revenue bonds, the total repayment will be $35,129,250 -- a difference of $6,183,750 saved in interest costs over the life of the bond debt.

The difference in lower interests costs represents a savings to hospitals -- a saving which will be passed on to patients in the form of lower hospital charges than would otherwise occur.

Constitutional Amendment #1, if approved, will give hospitals an alternate method of financing improvement projects. Over the past 10 years, federal and state funds available for hospital construction have steadily decreased. Presently there are no state or federal funds available, and the Hill-Burton program has expired.

All public (city or county) and community non-profit hospitals, including church-affiliated hospitals, and some state hospitals, will be able to use revenue bonds to finance improvement projects.

Hospital projects will be reviewed by the N. C. Medical Care Commission and the N. C. Local Government Commission. Any project must be necessary and financially feasible before these commissions will issue and sell revenue bonds.

To qualify for tax free revenue bonds, the hospital borrowing the money must transfer the title to the Medical Care Commission. When the debt is repaid, the title is transferred back to the hospital. The title transfer is simply a safeguard. These institutions will still be locally directed to meet community needs.

Under provisions of the legislation permitting the sale of tax free revenue bonds, there will be numerous safeguards to guarantee that the bond debt will be repaid; but no state taxes will be used to repay the debt. If necessary, in case of default the N. C. Medical Care Commission can be empowered as a fiduciary or trustee to manage a hospital until alternate management and fiscal policy changes can be made that will insure the repayment of the bond debt.

Revenue bond financing is available in many states in the nation.

In order for hospitals in North Carolina to use this means of financing hospital improvements projects, voters must approve Constitutional Amendment #1 at the March 23, 1976 Presidential Preference Primary election.

With the limited financing options presently available, revenue bonds will be an economical way to improve hospitals and maintain quality patient care at reasonable costs.

Sidewalk Survey Points To Carter, Ford, Wallace

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

Gerald Ford, Jimmy Carter, and George Wallace were the favorites picked as predicted winners of the North Carolina Presidential Primary by a survey of Pitt County residents Thursday.

"I think that Jimmy Carter has a good chance of winning here. He has made a good showing in other states," said Robin Owens of Grifton. "I plan to vote for him," she added.

"I don't have any idea who the winner will be. I don't even like to read politics," said Nolan Elkins of Grifton.

CHARLES CRAFT

"Well I'm going to vote for George Wallace, but I don't think he will win. Carter and Ford will win in Pitt County, but I'd like to see Wallace and Reagan win," said Charles Craft of Grifton.

KELLY BUTLER

"George Wallace is going to win. If I'm living Tuesday I will vote for Wallace," said Kelly Butler of Grifton.

"If Wallace doesn't make it, then I think Carter will win the whole works," he added.

"It seems that North Carolina has been neglected by the candidates' participation especially in Eastern North Carolina, said Jim Abernathy of Ayden. "I'd like to see more interest of politics after the election, at least as much interest as before the election." he added.

ERNEST FAULKNER

"I believe Wallace will win here," said Ernest Faulkner of Ayden. "Wallace has been popular around here. I believe that Ford will win the final election."

"Ford and Carter seem to have it sewn up," said James Sessoms of Kinston. "I really want Harris to win."

"I'll say Ford will carry North Carolina. Ford's my choice," said Earl Faulkner of Ayden.

"I'd vote for Carter," Donald A Woodard of Winterville said.

"Carter and Ford will probably win overall. I don't really know yet, probably Ford, but if not, Reagan," Roy Forehand of Winterville said.

"Wallace and Reagan will carry North Carolina, but Ford will probably win the election in November," said Elwood Nobles of Winterville. "If the final election was Tuesday, Ford would probably win."

DEBRA DANIELS

"Carter and the Ford will be the winners here. I'd support Carter," said Debra Daniels.

JAMES SESSOMS

Historical Soc. Meets Tuesday

The Edgecombe County Historical Society will meet Tuesday, March 23, at 8:00 p.m. in the Howard Memorial Presbyterian Church Hall in Tarboro.

The speaker for the evening will be Harry Alan Jones, Jr. who has recently published Tarborough and Its Academies, a history of the early schools here which includes photographs, drawings, and some vivid newspaper accounts of such things as fires and cultural events at the academies. The time period covered is from 1793 to 1910.

Jones, a native of Kinston, has taught at Tarboro Senior High for three and one-half years. He is a graduate of East Carolina University.

Following the program, refreshments will be served.

MEET MONDAY

The youth and senior classes of the Sweet Hope F.W.B. Church will meet Monday at 7 p.m. at the church.

BEACH SCENE—Ft. Lauderdale's beaches are beginning to fill up now with vacationing college students. But senior citizens are there, too. Here one man scans the sand with a metal detector looking for buried coins and jewelry. (AP Wirephoto)

Sheltered Workshop Is Planning Transportation

The East Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center is making plans to provide transportation to handicapped residents of Pitt and Martin Counties.

A 20-passenger vehicle equipped with air conditioning, two-way radios, and a 16-passenger one equipped with hydraulic wheelchair lifts will be purchased.

The total cost of the project is expected to be $21,000. A request for 80 per cent of this cost, $17,800, will be made the U. S. Department of Transportation. The Sheltered Workshop will be responsible for financing the remaining 20 per cent, $4,200.

The purchase and use of these vehicles and equipment is subject to the terms of the financial assistance contracts between the N. C. Department of Transportation and the U. S. Department of Transportation, and between the local Sheltered Workshop and the N. C. Department of Transportation.

This project will be carried out in conformance with the ongoing transportation planning efforts in the Greenville area. This proposed project will also be reviewed by the A-95 Clearinghouse. Written comments on this proposed project should be submitted to the following officials: Director of Mass Transportation, N. C. Dept. of Transportation, Box 25201, Raleigh, N. C. 27611 or Howard G. Dawkins, Executive Director, East Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

Teaches How To Foil Kidnaping

By YVONNE de JONG

OSOGNA, Switzerland (AP) — The casual passerby will feel tempted to call the police when he spots the Rolls Royce zigzagging at high speed on a remote private road.

But he does not need to worry. It's elementary routine in a new school, believed to be unique in Europe. The student drivers are taught how to foil kidnap attempts by a perfect motorized getaway.

Unnus Hendrichs, a muscled Dutchman and ex-rally driver who has been giving special performance driving lessons in this tiny Ticino village for the past six years, initiated the project when the number of kidnapings in neighboring Italy rose to an alltime high of 58 last year.

Bodyguards and drivers of money transports, of millionaire industrialists and other potential kidnap victims learn some hair-raising basics, including turning on a dime in a controlled 180 degree slide.

Candidates must pass 18 different tests. "The drivers must be in control of their car in any situation without endangering their bosses' lives. We teach them to escape without the use of firearms. We are for a bloodless solution."

Hendrichs, 36, is not too keen on giving details but he has had many applicants since he first opened his antikidnap school last August. Predictably, Italians make up most of his clients, he says. But he also trains drivers from Germany, France and Switzerland.

"Among the first to be interested were Swiss banks," Hendrichs said with a smile.

Applicants are thoroughly screened before being admitted to the three-days-plus-one-night course comprising two phases on which Hendrichs would not elaborate. "We work four months to prepare the course. Applications must be made by the drivers' bosses. Then I have the applicants checked by a private detective agency.

Dance Theater To Give Benefit Performances

Twenty-nine young Greenville dancers, members of the Community Dance Theater, will be giving two benefit performances at the Moose Lodge on Saturday, March 27, a 4 p.m. matinee and an 8 p.m. evening performance.

Proceeds from the two performances will go to REAL House, a local personal assistance organization that is also a recipient of the United Fund.

The first half of the program celebrates the American Bicentennial theme, with dances commemorating historic events and saluting the Armed Forces. Dances and songs of many moods and styles will form the second half of the program. Christina Williams director of the Dance Theater, is in charge of the the production of this show.

In addition to the young dancers, who range in age from nine years to young marrieds, singers and instrumentalists will be performing in the benefit gala. Townspeople representing various professions will join in a special parade.

The East Carolina University AFROTC Drill team will be on hand to furnish a color guard and also to perform precision drills.

Singers scheduled to appear include Betty Aldridge and Anne Langdale, both accompanied by Barbara Caspar. Singers who will be accompanying themselves on the guitar are Muriel Flanagan, Mike Hammer and Allen Oatley.

Members of the dance company are Lorra Aldridge, Pamela Bath, Patricia Bath, Stephen Bath, Rachel Caspar, Michele Darden, Jennifer Davis, Jan Duffy, Elizabeth Allen, Tracy Fearrington, Betsy Bidley, Robin Hardy, Melinda Haynie, Cyndy Latham, Manya Lowry, Scarlet Mallenbaum, Molly Merritt, Leigh Messner, Heather O'Neal, Jennifer O'Neal, Kevin O'Neal, Kenlyn Riggs, Mark Schmidt, Maureen Stevens, Ruth Taft, Mary Vick, Susan Vick, Andrea Williams and Lisa Williams.

Tickets are priced at $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for children under 12. They are available at REAL House, Barre, Ltd., The Mushroom, the ECU Drama Dept., Record Bar, Ariane Clark, Sunshine Garden Center, Razz Jazz Records, the Gazebo and will also be available at the door.

YOUNG DANCERS . . . of the Community Dance Theater of Greenville will be appearing in a two performance benefit event at the Moose Lodge on Saturday, March 27 at 4 p.m. and at 8 p.m. Christina Williams, the company's director, is pictured here with 27 of the 29 member dance group.

Folk Singer Doc Watson In Two Performances

Guitarist-singer Doc Watson, his son Merle Watson, their back-up band Frosty Morn, and another group familiar to music lovers of the Greenville area, Rich Mountain Tower, will be performing in two shows at the Carolina Cowboy Saloon on Saturday night, March 27.

The first performance is slated for 7 p.m., with a second performance to follow at 9 p.m.

(Carolina Cowboy Saloon is located about five miles from Greenville, off the Greenville Boulevard).

Doc Watson, who has been called a performer for all ages, has a finger-picking style that has made him a favorite for years. He and his son, Merle, draw from a repertoire of old folk ballads that have their roots in the background of mountain lore of Watson's home, the hills of North Carolina.

Tickets for the event are available at the time of performance.

Wha Chung Concert

Violinist Kyung-Wha Chung will perform in concert at the East Carolina University Mendenhall Student Center on Thursday, March 25 at 8 p.m.

Miss Chung made a sensational European debut in 1970, performing the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto with Andre Previn and the London Symphony Orchestra at the Royal Festival Hall in London.

She has since performed numerous concerts in Britain and toured as soloist with Previn and the London Symphony in the Far East. In addition, she has completed ten European tours, appeared on BBC television five times and signed a long-term contract with English Decca. Music critics throughout the world have lauded her technical ability and sensitive interpretations.

Kyung-Wha Chung, only 24 years old, is a member of distinguished Korean family of musicians.

Her concert instrument is the famous "Harrison" Stradivarius, made in 1692 and considered the foremost example of the Cremona violin-maker's experimentation with the "long-pattern fiddle."

Tickets for the Chung concert are available at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center.

DOC AND MERLE WATSON . . . father and son folk guitarists and singers, will be appearing in two shows, at 7 and again at 9 p.m. Saturday at the Carolina Cowboy Saloon outside Greenville.

ECU's Children Concert Set

Music with a predominant American flavor will be featured on the Ninth Annual Children's Concert to be given by the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra on March 24.

Robert Hause will conduct the ECU Symphony in a program that opens with The Star-Spangled Banner.

Two great American songs, one old, one of recent years — America The Beautiful and God Bless America are scheduled for the program.

Contemporary music will be represented by two selections, Leroy Anderson's musical time piece dating back about two decades, Snycopated Clock; and a pop tune still in the top 40 list, Barry Manilow's I Write The Songs.

Music from George Gershwin's An American In Paris and an old spiritual, Swing Low, Sweet Chariot are two other program selections as is Louis Moreau Gottschalk's Souvenir of Puerto Rico.

The event, scheduled for 1 p.m. on Wednesday at Wright Auditorium, is the annual program of music designed for members of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades in the Greenville City Schools.

Music On Campus

All events, unless otherwise noted, will take place in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center and all are free.

—Monday, March 22—7:30 p.m., joint recital, Sally Helton and Carlton Hirschi, Jr. both percussion. The two are students of Harold Jones.

Ms. Helton, of Charlotte, will be accompanied by Linda Walker. Selections she has listed are Jacques Charpentier's Lalita pour Ondes Martenot et Percussion; Sonata for Marimba and Piano by Peter Tanner; and Jan Williams' Variations for Solo Kettledrums.

Hirschi, whose home is Burlington, will be accompanied by Robert Sullivan. He has listed Anthony J. Cirone's Sonata No. 1; Yvonne Desportes' Theme et Variations pour Timbales, Batterie and Piano; and Walter Watson's Recital Suite for Marimba.

—Tuesday, March 23— 7:30 p.m. James Rhodes, piano. From Wilmington, Rhodes is a student of Mrs. Eleanor Toll. His program consists of works by three composers. These are two sonatas by Scarlatti; von Webern's Variation for Piano (Opus 27)) and Schubert's Sonata in A major (Opus 120).

—Friday, March 26,—8:15 p.m. Ms. Sherry Miller of Ford, Kansas, student of Mrs. Glady White, will give her graduate voice recital accompanied by Dale Tucker, piano and assisted by Tim Hoffman, oboe. Songs listed on her program are Bach's Gott versonget alles Leben, Gerchter Gott, ach Rechnest du; Strauss' Ach lieb, ich muss nun scheiden, Nichts and Caecilie; Debussy's L'Obre des arbres, Mandoline, and Clair de lune; Chere Nuit by Bachelet; The Trees on the Mountain from "Susannah" by Floyd

Percussion Ensemble Concert Wednesday

The East Carolina University Percussion Ensemble, directed by Harold Jones, will appear in concert on Wednesday, March 24 at 8:15 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center.

The program, with financial assistance from the ECU Student Government Association, is open to the public and there is no admission charge.

Two of the works being presented will be performed by The New Eastern Percussion Quartet—Anthony J. Cirone's Triptych; and Russel Peck's Lift Off.

Graduate Assistant conductor Frank Oddis will conduct two selections, his arrangement of Bach's Bouree; and the LeGrande-Shietroma score of Summer of '42.

Other selections listed on The Percussion Ensemble program are: Zita Carno's Sextet For Percussion; Jared Spears' A Time For Jazz; and The Days of Wine and Roses by Mancini-Naff.

Lasansky's Prints: A Visual Experience

Lasansky: Printmaker, Contributions by Phillip Lasansky, John Thein, Carl Zigrosser, Alan Fern, and Stephen Rhodes. University of Iowa Press, Iowa City, 52242, 1975, $45.00.

Lasansky: Printmaker is a catalogue raisonne of all the prints of Mauricio Lasansky from 1933 to 1973. A detailed description of each print was prepared by John Thein and Phillip Lasansky under the supervision of the artist.

The book contains a memoir by Carl Zigrosser, that takes on a letter form. Mr. Zigrosser wrote the foreword to a 1960 American Federation of Arts Catalogue on Lasansky, and there is evidence in the tone of this recent publication that Zigrosser has a great deal of respect for Lasansky, both as an artist and a friend.

Alan Fern, Chief of the prints and photographs division of the library of Congress provides the reader with a biographical and critical discussion of Lasansky's aesthetic development.

Stephen Rhodes, director of the Blanden Art Gallery, Fort Dodge, Iowa, and a former student provides the reader with a rather detailed essay on the themes and images found in Lasansky's prints. That Mr. Rhodes had access to the artist has made possible a clear, concise essay on the topic.

The textual section of the book is neither labored or overwhelming in the sense that it might detract from the images themselves. It introduces the reader not only to the artist, but to his images and we are led by these three authorities to the point of being impressed by this artist and his visual contribution to the arts, especially printmaking.

One section of the book includes some twenty-four color reproductions of Lasansky prints. A black and white of each of these is also included in the catalogue.

The catalogue of forty years of Lasansky's prints is to say the least overwhelming. It provides the reader with a strong grasp of the growth, the development, and the changes that occurs in the visual imagery of this truly fine printmaker. Regardless of the position of the reader, whether they be artist, printmaker, collector, patron, or student, this book provides through visuals an understanding of the creative process. Both the color and the black and white reproductions are of the best possible quality in reproduction.

The one aspect of the book that bothered this reader was the repeated reference to the Nazi Drawings by all three of the scholars who have contributed to the text, but the lack of any visual reference to these drawings. For those people that have not seen one, several or all of these drawings, the constant reference can be a little frustrating. Possibly at a later date the publisher can put out a supplement that could be a companion piece to this fine production.

A chronology of Lasansky's life, a selected bibliography, and a chronology of art exhibitions and competitions, are included. There are two photographs of the artist. One is dated 1966 and the other one, I would assume is quite recent. Seen together they furnish an interesting contrast.

The catalogue is the heart of this book, however, and it is definitely a visual experience that can be repeated without getting stale.

Book News For Young Adults

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By ANN NOBLE

Sheppard Library's Young Adult section has recently acquired some new paperbacks and Perma-bound books which should be of interest to teenagers. ONE FLEW OVER THE CUCKOO'S NEST by Ken Kesey is enjoying renewed popularlity because of the new movie based on this award-winning book. The story centers around a group of men in a mental hospital and their arch rival "Big Nurse." A swaggering character named McMurphy enters the institution, preferring that to working on a prison farm, and he immediately begins to liven up the place. Chief Bromden, an Indian who is assumed deaf and dumb, narrates the tale. Included in this Perma-bound edition are photographed scenes from the recent movie.

Another recent, popular movie is THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN. This is the story of skier Jill Kinmount. The paperback book by that title is now available at Sheppard. The original hardbound edition was entitled A LONG WAY UP! THE STORY OF JILL KINMONT by Evans G. Valens. It is the biography of a young woman who was injured in a skiing accident, and who struggled to overcome her condition - both physicial and emotional.

Also in paperback are two books by Carlos Castaneda. JOURNEY TO IXTIAN: THE LESSONS OF DON JUAN and TALES OF POWER both deal with the author's experiences with don Juan, the Yaqui Indian sorcerer. JOURNEY TO IXTIAN, published in 1972, is the record of Castaneda's initiation into the mysteries of sorcery by don Juan. TALES OF POWER, 1974, starts out only a few months after JOURNEY TO IXTIAN leaves off. It culminates the remarkable story of his apprenticeship. Going beyond Castaneda's previous books, it is don Juan's final statement and the reader's opportunity to open the door to the unknown.

Another young adult favorite now at Sheppard in Perma-bound format is MOM, THE WOLFMAN, AND ME by Norma Klein (author Sunshine). Told from the point of view of a teenaged girl, it is simply her perception of life without a father, of her relationships with family and friends, and finally of her acceptance of "The Wolfman" - her mother's boyfriend. It is a charming story that may be enjoyed by all ages.

Religions In Art Event

The first three days in April will be the time for a program of Celebration of Religious Beliefs through use of various arts media, according to Mrs. Jo Ann (George) Kirch, publicity director for the campus program.

The three days of events — encompassing film, dance, music, painting, sculpture and printed matter will be held on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, April 1, 2 and 3 in the Multi-Purpose Room of Mendenhall Student Union Building.

Although at this date times for various events are not firm, Mrs. Kirch said that music would be the focus of emphasis on Thursday; Friday will be principally devoted to films; and on Saturday drama, dance and poetry would be featured topics.

Displays of crafts and arts related to religion, she noted, will be on view at all hours during the three days. Most events involving participants will be held between 7 and 10 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, with programs also planned for most of the day Saturday.

All events will be open to the public, and there will be no admission charge.

"At this time," Mrs. Kirch said, "we would like for people in Greenville and the Greenville area to consider loaning religious artifacts to be displayed." She said this is open not only to people of the Christian religions, but to those of all religious faiths.

She is also asking that persons will creative talents in any field that tie in with any aspect of religion — whether in poetry, art, music or other fields, consider being a participant.

Persons to contact for details and planning information are: Music: Dr. Everett Pittman, Dean of the School of Music, Tel. 758-6851; Art; Tran Gordley, School of Art, 758-6563; and printed matter, Rev. Dan Earnhardt, Methodist Student Center, 758-2030.

Writers To Meet

The second Greenville Writers meeting for the month of March will be held Wednesday, March 24 at 8 p.m. at the home of Nancy Patterson, 4 Oakmont Driver, Yorktown Square, off N.C. 43 opposite Carriage House Apartments.

The regular Tuesday date has been by-passed for this one meeting due to elections being held on that date.

Persons interested in any form of creative writing are invited to attend.

Husband-Wife Artists In Mendenhall Show

A student show combining the talents of a husband-wife team will be on view during the coming week at Mendenhall Student Union on campus at East Carolina University.

Senior art student Mary Lou Strider, candidate for the BFA degree in painting with a minor in drawing, is exhibiting figurative paintings and drawings.

The paintings are primarily in oils. The drawings include those done in inks, graphite, alcohol and colored pencil.

Sharing the Mendenhall show with Ms. Strider is her husband, Dave, a graduate student in wood design. He will show examples of furniture.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to view the show during center hours, about 10 a.m. until about 10 p.m. daily.

DETAIL . . . from "Joy Returns To Cultureburg," a drawing by senior art student Mary Lou Strider. Ms. Strider and her husband, Dave, a graduate student, are exhibiting jointly in a Mendenhall show during the coming week.

Reception Today

A reception is being held from 3 to 5 p.m. this afternoon at the Greenville Art Center to mark the opening of the Annual Elementary Art Show for the Greenville City Schools.

This is the second in a series of student shows held each spring at the Art Center, 802 Evans Street. The show opening today has work by students in kindergarten through grade six.

Poetry Contests Announced

Six contests for the Poetry Council of North Carolina, Incorporated, which has for its aim discovering and encouraging writing talent, will open on April 1, and will close on June 15.

The contest categories include the Oscar Arnold Young Memorial Contest for the best book of poetry with more than 20 pages, published in 1975, by a writer who has been a resident of North Carolina; the Charles A. Shull Contest for any traditional form, except the sonnet, and limited to 24 lines; the James Larkin Pearson Contest for free verse and experimental forms and limited to 22 lines; The Archibald Rutledge Contest for only sonnet entries, either Shakespearan or Italian forms; The Virginia Dare Contest for writers aged 12 to 17 with any verse form, preferably traditional, and limited to 24 lines; The Merle Price Contest for young writers from eight through 11 also with any form, but traditional forms with rhyme and meter are recommended.

Each year prizes are awarded winners on Poetry Day, which is held annually in Asheville during October.

A contestant may enter only one poem in any contest. If the writer submits a poem in a second contest, he must send a different poem. Poems must be original, previously unpublished, and not offered at the time to any other contest or publication. Contestants should avoid bizarre language, profanity, and pornographic words or images.

For further contest information and rules, the writer should send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the contest chairman and coordinator: Miss Carolyn Kimzey, Route 1, Horse Shoe, North Carolina 28742.

Buttons In Halifax

Buttons the Clown, a member of the famous Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey circus, has completed a week's tour of public schools in Halifax County during the past week. He will be making additional appearances in the Halifax County area in April.

To commemorate Education Days (April 13-15), Buttons will be at the new Amphitheater. In addition, he will make several appearances during the Halifax Resolves Anniversary Celebration from April 9-15.

Dr. Steila's Book On Soils Published

The Geography of Soils: Formation, Distribution and Management, by Dr. Donald Steila of the East Carolina University geography faculty, has been released by Prentice-Hall publishing firm.

The 222-page book is a survey of soils and their geographic ramifications, including land use and management. After a four-chapter overview of soil formation, the book discusses major soil orders, in the terminolgoy developed by the National Cooperative Soil Survey.

Illustrations, graphs, maps and diagrams used in the book were done by Dr. Jack Blok, catographer in the ECU Department of Georgraphy.

According to Dr. Steila, the book is designed for use in the study of soils in college and university geography courses in the U. S. and Canda.

An alumnus of Kent State University, Dr. Steila holds advanced degrees from Kent State and the University of Georgia. His research interests are agricultural climatology, soils and land utilization, particularly relating to the tropical regions of Latin America.

He is the author of five book-length research reports and numerous articles in professional and scientific journals.

Since joining the ECU faculty in 1972 he has organized the current cooperative overseas study program between ECU and the Universidad Nacional, Costa Rica.

On The Young Side

By JANET GANTT

This was another good week for Rose High School in terms of honors and awards.

Ron Williams, a Rose High art teacher and wrestling coach, was selected by the Jaycees as Greenville's Outstanding Young Educator for 1975-76. Williams was acknowledged for his industriousness in the teaching profession.

Artistic talent at the school proved excellent as Rose students captured several awards in music and art.

The Women's Club Art Contest had three winners. Janet Boone and Elaine Nichols received blue ribbons for their artwork in the competitions. They will advance to the state contest in hopes of another blue ribbon. Janet and Elaine will be joined by Mary Jo White, who will perform in the flute auditions on the state level.

Congratulations to senior Christi Hearne for her nomination for the Spencer Love Scholarship in the categories of Fine Arts and Competitive Academics.

Christi will be staying on campus at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, March 20-22, to undergo further interviews and auditions. Dinners and various other campus activities will be available to her and the other nominees.

Christi has been musically active in the Rose High Band Council, serving as secretary, and in the orchestras for the Rose musical productions Carousel, My Fair Lady, and The Red Mill. She was also a 1975 Governor's School representative in instrumental music and was selected as a marshal during her junior year. Christi is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hearne.

Girls State

Representatives from Rose High for Girls State were announced Monday. Mary Lou Dienier, Tammy Levey, Hope McMillan, and Beth Heath will travel to the University of North Carolina at Greensboro for a week of seminars designed to enlighten high school girls to the policies and processes of our government. The Ladies Auxiliary of Greenville selected the four from 35 nominees from the junior class. Congratulations are extended to these individuals.

Another scholarship has been awarded to a Rose High student. Bette Yancey received a scholarship to Greensboro College. Bette is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Yancey.

Finalists for Community Ambassadors were chosen during the week. The 10 will now be interviewed before the final ambassadors are selected. Greenville is usually represented by two ambassadors, provided sufficient funds can be raised.

The Ambassadors stay with a family from a foreign country, spreading American goodwill. Those who could possibly travel abroad this summer include: Pam Bath; Brenda Battle; Janet Boyd; Liz Branch; Mary Lou Dienier; Hank Dunbar; Jane Farley; Jimmy Maye; Melvin Johnson; and Rita Ross.

The Guidance Department announced that students interested in working in a resident camp at Umpstead State Park, Raleigh, or Price Cone Camp, Blowing Rock, could obtain application forms at the guidance office or at the Employment Security Commission.

The jobs are provided by the Youth Conservation Corps Summer Camp Program. One hundred young conservationists will be hired through a statewide procedure to work at the two caps.

Receives A Scholarship

A $500 scholarship has been awarded by the Pitt County Mental Health Association to Deborah Gwen Manning of Bethel, a graduate student in psychology at East Carolina University.

The David W. Hardee Memorial Scholarship is awarded annual by the Pitt County Mental Health group for "use by a capable and worthy student who plans to enter the field of clinical psychology."

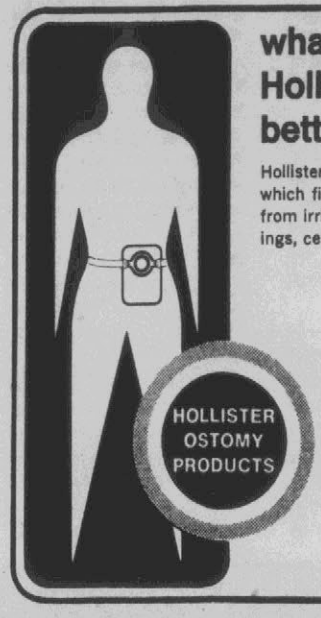

Miss Manning, 24, attended Bethel High School and obtained a B. S. degree in psychology at N. C. Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount, where she graduated summa cum laude. She has completed all work toward her M. A. in clinical psychology, except for her research thesis. She says she would like to work as a pyschologist in a Mental Health Center, hopefully in Pitt or a nearby county "so that I may repay with dedication and hard work, those who made it possible for me to obtain my degree."

She says she has no immediate plans for a higher degree, but would eventually like to study for a Ph. D. in clinical psychology.

Odorless Gas Is Silent Killer

LINCOLN, Neb., (UPI) — Carbon monoxide, a tasteless, colorless and odorless gas, is the most dangerously common poison in America, says the cooperative Extension Service of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

This silent killer can permanently damage the brain after minimal exposure, the service said. It causes drowsiness, nausea, and confusion, symptoms usually associated with lack of oxygen.

Davidson, Pirates Split Doubleheader

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

With just one-seventh of the Southern Conference baseball season gone, the East Carolina Pirates find themselves in a deep, deep hole. Four games are behind them, and three of them are losses.

The latest setback to the Pirate hopes came in the second game against Davidson yesterday. The Pirates took the opener, 3-1, but an error led to three Davidson runs in the second game, and the Wildcats snuffed out a Buc rally in the seventh to take a 3-2 victory.

That left the Bucs with a disappointing 1-3 record in the league, and according to Coach George Williams' pre-season statement, about eliminated the Bucs from any hope of another even-year title.

"You can lose a couple and still win this thing," Williams told the Greenville Sports Club prior to the season. "But if you lose three, you can just about count yourselves out of it."

For Davidson, the victory in the second game was only their second of the year. They are now 2-10 overall and 1-1 in Southern Conference play. The Bucs are 6-3 overall.

The Wildcats got all three of their runs in the same inning, the fourth, when they chased starter Bob Feeney, who took the loss. Rick Blinkhorn opened up with a single and Jim Kaulius followed with a two-bagger into right center. Ed Willingham hit a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Blinkhorn with the tieing run.

Jim Nichols drew a walk from Feeney, and Keith Kurdewan came on to pitch. He got Stan Brown to ground back to short in a drawn-in infield. Dick Koryda elected to go for the play at the plate, but his throw was in the dirt and bounced past Howard McCullough, allowing Kaulis to score. Tim McDowell followed with a hit that scored Nichols with the third—and eventually winning run.

The Pirates had taken the lead in the third after threats in the first and second. Geoff Beaston, going for a record 61st run, was thrown out trying to score on an infield bouncer in the first.

In the third, Charlie Stevens walked and Joe Roenker singled. Sonny Wooten followed with a single to center scoring Stevens. But the third of four double plays the Wildcats got during the day got them out of the inning.

The Bucs threatened to pull it out in the bottom of the seventh. With two away, Stevens kept the hopes alive with a hit to right. Roenker also singled. Wooten reached on an error by Blinkhorn, who then also booted a grounder by Robert Brinkley, leaving the bases loaded, and scoring Stevens. Glenn Card popped up, however, ending the game.

In the opener, Dean Reavis handcuffed the Wildcats on two hits, claiming his second victory of the year. He walked one and struck out three.

No Davidson runner got as far as second in the first game.

East Carolina scored a run in the first, Beaston tripled to left center, and scored on the first of four consecutive hits by Steve Bryant.

The other two runs came in the third. Beaston led off with his second hit of the day, and Bryant also got a hit. Stevens followed with another single, loading the bases. Beaston scored his career record tieing run on a wild pitch, and Bryant came home when Wooten hit into a double play.

Beaston also broke another career mark during the game. He passed the old mark for at bats, 333, as he now has 38.

The Pirates return to an area that has been more cordial to them so far this year for games today and Monday. Today, they meet Duke in a double header at Durham (1:30 p.m.), then host North Carolina Monday at 3 p.m. at Harrington Field. The Bucs are 4-0 against ACC competition.

Mid-West Regional Captured By Michigan

By MIKE CLARK
AP Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ninth-ranked Michigan withstood an awesome 43-point performance by Missouri's Willie Smith and outlasted the Tigers 95-88 in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball championship Saturday.

Smith, a slim 6-foot-2 senior guard, scored 29 of his points in the second half to lead Missouri from an 18-point first-half deficit into a brief second-half lead at 76-71 with 7:54 remaining.

But Michigan, 24-6, regained its poise and rode the scoring of Ricky Green, John Robinson and Phil Hubbard to pull the game out. Green led Michigan's balanced attack with 23 points, Robinson added 21 and Hubbard 20.

Michigan's Wolverines had things their own way throughout the first half, rolling to a 12-2 lead within the first four minutes and building the margin to 41-23 with 4:17 left in the first half.

Missouri, 26-5, cut the deficit to 50-37 at halftime, then all but blew Michigan off the floor in the first 12 minutes of the second half.

Smith, hitting 30-foot jumpers as if they were layups, scored seven quick points to pull Missouri within 52-44 with 18:32 to go, then added 17 more points in the next 10 minutes to give Missouri a 76-71 lead with just under eight minutes to play.

The Wolverines finally drew even again with 6:14 to go when Robinson hit a pair of free throws, then they took the lead for good 23 seconds later at 79-78 when Robinson added two more free throws.

During a critical three-minute stretch within the final five minutes, Michigan managed to hold Smith at bay while Hubbard hit a layup, Robinson a tip-in and Green a fast break layup for an 87-80 lead with just 2:40 to go.

The Wolverines, who will meet the East Region champions in the NCAA semifinals next Saturday, then employed a stall to protect the lead.

Smith was a near-unanimous choice as the tournament's Most Valuable Player. He was joined on the all-tournament team by Green, Hubbard, Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley and Texas Tech's Rick Bullock.

Michigan Coach Johnny Orr was stunned by Missouri's comeback.

"They played like the devil in the second half. He (Smith) made every kind of basket you can make. That's the finest shooting exhibition I've ever seen," Orr said.

Almost lost in the shuffle was the performance of Michigan reserve guard Dave Baxter, who was forced to go most of the way in place of starter Steve Grote. Grote played just 97 seconds in the second half before fouling out in a vain attempt to stop Smith.

Orr said that Baxter "stopped Smith and caused the turnovers" which clinched Michigan's victory. "He (Baxter) hit some big free throws, too."

Scarlet Knights Change Offense And Pull Away From VMI, 91-75

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Rutgers Coach Tom Young said it was a change in offense that gave his unbeaten Scarlet Knights their 91-75 victory over Virginia Military Institute in Saturday's NCAA East Regional basketball championship.

"We went one period of five or six minutes where we scored only five points," said Young. "We had to change our offense and get more movement."

Fourth-ranked Rutgers takes a 31-0 record against Michigan in the national semifinals next Saturday in Philadelphia.

That offensive change, Young pointed out, led to a 22-7 run over the last 4½ minutes of the first half that rallied Rutgers from a 27-26 deficit to a 48-34 halftime lead. The closest the Keydets got after that was 10 points with 8:26 left and some 700 cadets roaring encouragement.

"Regardless of anything," VMI Coach Bill Blair said, "these kids are a credit to themselves, VMI and the NCAA. We may have lost but this is certainly my proudest moment.

"We are not that deep and when the fouls accumulated we had trouble staying with them," Blair added.

Rutgers' relentless attack was led by Mike Dabney and Ed Jordan with 23 points a piece. Will Bynum of VMI led all scorers with 34 points.

Jordan scored nine of his 15 first-half points from the free throw line as Rutgers connected on 16 of 21 to build its intermission lead.

Starter Ron Carter had four fouls and four VMI teammates had three each at the half, adding to the Keydets' problems.

All-American Phil Sellers contributed 16 points and 12 rebounds to round out a big three for Coach Tom Young's Scarlet Knights, who shot 66 per cent in the second half for an overall 57 per cent. VMI tapered off to 39 per cent in the last-half and 43 per cent overall.

Jordan, a junior from Washington, D.C., was named the tournament's outstanding player. He hit nine of 17 shots against the Keydets and had six steals, five assists and four rebounds.

"We didn't like the tempo of the game at the start," said Young. "We had to change our offense and get more movement."

Coach Bill Blair, whose VMI team finished 22-10, praised Rutgers for an excellent game and proudly added, "Our kids showed you they never quit."

Bynum, who hit 12 of 20 shots and 10 of 12 from the foul line, and Jordan were unanimous choices for the all-tournament team. Others named to the six-man squad were Dabney, Ron Carter of VMI and two players from semifinal loser Connecticut, Tony Hanson and Al Weston.

After VMI had cut Rutgers' lead to 68-58 with less than nine minutes to play, the New Jersey team quickly surged back into a comfortable lead at 86-68, with Jordan and Dabney doing the heavy damage.

Suggs, Rankins Lead Thinclads To Victory In ECU Invitational

East Carolina easily outdistanced Seton Hall and three other teams to win the first track meet held on the newly named Bunting track and field at ECU, Saturday.

The facility was dedicated and named for Michael Bunting who resides in Greensboro a prominent businessman and alumnus of East Carolina.

The Pirates took five first places, eight seconds and a host of thirds, fourths, fifth and sixths to outscore Seton Hall, 167-128. Leading the Pirates were double winners Marvin Rankins, who won the 120 high hurdles and ran in the 440 relay, and Carter Suggs who won the 100 and was also on the 440 relay team. Rankins was named the meet's most valuable runner. Charles Shipman, who won the shot put and discus, was the most valuable field participant. He is from Pembroke.

Behind Seton Hall, Pembroke was third with 96 Howard University was fourth, 50 and Haggerstown was fifth, 44.

There were also two high school feature events. William Fields of New Bern won the 100-yard dash with a run of 9.7 which equalled Suggs' winning time for ECU in the same event.

Karl Williams of George Wythe High School of Virginia won the 120 high hurdles.

There were three track records set during the afternoon, East Carolina's 440 relay team of Rankins, Suggs, Maurice Huntley and Al Washington won the event in :40.0 beating the old mark of :41.3 set in 1973 by Pembroke State.

In the 440-yard dash, William Cruz of Seton Hall knocked two tenths-of-a-second off the old time set in 1971 by East Carolina's Barry Johnson of :48.0.

Shipman's winning discus throw of 177 feet, nine inches buried the former best throw of 152 feet, six inches set VMI's Tom Lozzi in 1971.

The Pirates will travel to the Atlantic Coast Relays this Saturday. Saturday's event was the only home meet of the year for the Pirates.

Unbeaten Indiana Is Victor Over Marquette

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Top-ranked Indiana, scrambling behind the offensive firepower of all-Americans Scott May and Kent Benson, defeated No. 2 Marquette 65-56 Saturday to remain unbeaten and capture the NCAA Mideast Regional basketball championship.

May, who sat out more than 13 minutes of the first half with three fouls, scored 11 of his 15 points in the second half to keep the 30-0 Hoosiers in control until the closing minutes, when Marquette's pressing defense got the Warriors back in contention.

May gave Indiana a 51-41 lead with just over 10 minutes remaining and the score stayed that way until Marquette's Earl Tatum scored with eight minutes left, triggering the Warriors' comeback.

Tatum led all scorers with 22 points while Benson paced the Hoosiers with 18.

Marquette got within five at 51-46 before Benson banked two free throws and came back with a layup off May's perfect feed to give Indiana a 55-46 lead with only four minutes to go.

Tatum then banged in two shots from over 20 feet and freshman Bernard Toone added two driving layups as Marquette slashed the lead to 57-54 with 2:18 remaining.

May missed on a one-and-one free throw situation with 69 seconds left but Marquette couldn't score again, then was forced to foul the Hoosiers in the closing minutes.

Al McGuire, the fiery Marquette coach, got his second technical foul with 25 seconds left and Indiana's Tom Abernethy hit both ends of a one-and-one free throw situation but missed the technical foul shot and Indiana led 59-54.

The Hoosiers closed the scoring on free throws by Bob Wilkerson and Abernethy and a layup at the buzzer by Quinn Buckner to snap Marquette's 23-game winning streak.

The Hoosiers now enter the NCAA national finals at Philadelphia next Saturday, seeking their third national championship and their first since 1953.

A year ago, Indiana also was undefeated going into regional competition, but lost a 92-90 decision to Kentucky in the Mideast finals. That is Indiana's only defeat in its last 65 games.

Marquette, which has escaped regional competition only once in 11 NCAA appearances, closed its season with a 27-2 record.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight had told a fellow coach moments before the tip-off that he felt his team would win if it could handle the ball against the Marquette press, but wouldn't if it failed to do so.

Dye Very Happy With Spring Drills

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

As East Carolina University's Pirates near the mid-point of the third Pat Dye spring drills, enthusiasm is running high.

"I'm real pleased with the way things are going," Dye said. "We've had a lot of contact in the eight days we've worked. We've worked a lot on fundamentals, and we've been trying to give everyone a chance to make the team and play.

"I think we're a lot further along than we've been in any other year," Dye added. "But we have more football players now than ever before too, especially since we lost so few."

Dye said that the Bucs have never looked so good on both sides of the ball before. "We've got some outstanding senior leadership. And all of our seniors are going to be involved in playing this year, too."

The coach said that the team now appears to be getting a little tired of hitting. "But we've got to try and develop some of our younger people into good depth. A lot of our young men have made tremendous progress."

Offensively, Dye said that he had two tight ends who are looking very good, Clay Burnett and Barry Johnson, "They are fine players.

"The whole first unit on offense looks good. Matt Mulholland has moved into Larry Lund's spot, while Wayne Bolt, Tim Hightower, Randy Parish (taking Jimbo Walker's slot) and Ricky Bennett are all improved. We're not real big, but we have a good group."

Quarterback Mike Weaver has had a fine spring so far, the coach said. "he's throwing well, and (Jimmy) Southerland and (Steve) Greer are looking good behind him."

Dye praised returning running back Willie Hawkins as improved. "He's just one heck of a football player. He's running tougher than ever before, and he's doing a fine job of blocking and of catching the ball. Eddie Hicks is also doing well. He has tremendous ability, and his blocking is improving."

At the fullback slots, two seniors are working, Tom Daub and Raymond Jones. Vince Kolanko has also been moved into this spot "We also tried moving Emerson Pickett over there, but right now it looks like we need him more on defense." Pickett, however, has injured a knee and will probably miss the rest of the spring.

Also hurt is linebacker Harold Fort, with a pulled hamstring, and he may miss the rest of the spring drills.

Rounding out the offense is split end Terry Gallaher, who has picked up right where he left off, Dye said. Mike Umphlett and walkon Gary Newell are also looking well.

"Zack Valentine and Fred Chavis have looked impressive. Chavis is awfully improved at defensive end. And Ed Nelson will catch your eye, too."

Jake Dove, at defensive tackle, is way out in front of the rest, while D.T. Joyner, Tim Swords and Wayne Poole are looking good at the other spot.

Oliver Felton has improved at nose guard, and Harold Randolph, the middle linebacker, is doing a fine job. "He's stronger, and is playing with more authority," Dye said of Randolph.

Reggie Pinkney, Ernest Madison and Jim Bolding all return in the secondary, and Dye is very happy with their work. "The other secondary position, strong safety, is up for grabs. Greg Pingston, Steve Hale and Gerald Hall are all looking good. Drew Fish is doing well behind Bolding too."

"We have a chance to be a real fine team," Dye said. "The kids believe in themselves, we're getting good senior leadership, and we have some great football players with a lot of ability. If they play to this ability and some of the others put out a little more, we have a chance to do something special. We also have some freshmen who will help us, too.

"We've got great spirit, and I think the enthusiasm is the highlight of the spring so far. We're hgaving a good time. I'm just tickled to death with the progress and attitude."

Drills continue with Saturday, April 3, set for the annual Purple-Gold game.

Guess Who's Going To Finals? UCLA!

By DAN BERGER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Forward Richard Washington led fifth-ranked UCLA on a 12-0 scoring burst late in the game Saturday and the Bruins took another step toward defense of their NCAA basketball title with an 82-66 victory over Arizona for the West Regional championship.

The 6-foot-10½ Washington led the 26-4 Bruins with 22 points, including two baskets and an assist during the six-minute span in which the Bruins broke a 58-58 tie to lead 70-58 with just 2:11 to play.

UCLA led 38-35 at intermission and the Wildcats stayed close on Herman Harris' long-range jump shots and some fine offensive rebounding by 6-8 Al Fleming

Harris' bomb from the left corner with 13 minutes to play cut UCLA's margin to just 50-49, but UCLA's quick sophomore guard, Raymond Townsend, connected for a key basket to extend the margin to three once again.

Then, Bob Elliott and Harris combined to give the Wildcats a 54-54 tie and Arizona knotted the score again at 58-58 with 8:15 to go on Elliott's short jump shot in the key.

The Bruins then took over with a vengeance.

Center Ralph Drollinger broke the tie with a free throw, young center David Greenwood fed Washington for a 10-foot jump shot and Townsend hit Marques Johnson with a sizzling pass for a lay-in.

Washington then connected on a short jump shot and, 30 seconds later, passed to Johnson for another lay-in that made it 67-58.

A basket that appeared to hurt Arizona's morale the most, however, came with 3:02 to play when Townsend tossed one in from 22 feet to give the Bruins an 11-point advantage.

The 15th-ranked Wildcats were led by Harris with 18 points and forwards Phil Taylor and Fleming with 14 apiece. Townsend had 16 for the Bruins.

UCLA earned the right to meet top-ranked and unbeaten Indiana next Saturday in Philadelphia in the NCAA semifinal game. It will be a rematch of the first game of the season, when the Hoosiers blasted the Bruins 84-64.

Arizona closed its season with at 24-9, its best record in many years.

Arizona moved into a 14-12 lead with only 6½ minutes gone in the game when Elliott scored on a driving layup and followed with a free throw.

At that point, the Bruins ran off eight straight points to take command of the game, with freshman Greenwood contributing two pretty baskets from inside.

The spree started with Washington connecting on a six-foot baseline jump shot and, when Fleming of the Wildcats missed a shot at the other end, Gavin Smith took the rebound and fed the ball to Andre McCarter, whose bounce pass to Greenwood in the key produced the go-ahead basket.

McCarter's jump shot and Greenwood's corkscrew eight-footer after a pass from Townsend made the score 20-14.

Arizona started the game with flashy senior guard Jim Rappis still hobbling from a heel injury he suffered Thursday in a 114-109 overtime victory over Nevada-Las Vegas. Rappis periodically left the game against UCLA to rest.

After Arizona closed to within two points at 20-18 on Taylor's high-arching jumper, UCLA went into a zone defense. Arizona did likewise and, with neither team able to penetrate the key, the clubs traded long-range baskets until it was UCLA in front 30-26. Townsend, a 6-2½ guard, hit three basket during that span and led UCLA scorers at halftime with 10 points.

The 6-5 Harris, who connected for a career-high 31 against UNLV, connected on three long-distance shots over the shorter Townsend early in the second half as Arizona clawed back to earn a tie.

But Washington, who hit just four of 14 shots in the first half, continued shooting and the ball started dropping.

Meanwhile, Johnson began to take command of the Arizona backboard and, instead of getting three or four shots, the Wildcats were limited to just one at a time. That enabled the Bruins to breeze downcourt and run away with the game before 12,459 fans at Pauley Pavilion, UCLA's home court.

Washington, who scored 16 points in UCLA's 70-61 victory over Pepperdine on Thursday, was named the tournament's outstanding player. He was joined on the regional all-tournament team by Johnson and three Wildcats—Harris, Fleming and the gutty 6-2 Rapis.

Johnson had 14 points for UCLA after scoring 18 against Pepperdine. Rappis, who missed his first seven shots Saturday, scored but four even though he controlled the tempo for the Wildcats.

Both Leagues Claiming Toronto

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The American league voted Saturday to expand to Toronto for 1977 and the National League immediately set up a possible collision course by saying it would actively consider expansion to the same city for the same season.

Presidents Lee MacPhail of the American League and Chub Feeney of the National League announced their separate actions at the conclusion of the joint meeting of the 24 major league owners.

"The American League has declared its intention to expand to Toronto in 1977 and so advised the National League and the commissioner in a joint meeting," MacPhail said.

Then Feeney disclosed the National League's plans, saying his league will actively consider expansion for 1977 and, if it adopts expansion, Toronto will be included."

The National League meeting has been recessed, but "it can be reopened on a moment's notice," said Feeney.

He said that should the National League decide to move to Toronto "the city would have to decide which league it wants."

"There is one ball club and we're not contemplating two teams there," said MacPhail.

The American League, which has already voted to expand to Seattle for 1977, requires a three-quarter majority to approve a new team. "Our vote was 11-1," said MacPhail, who declined to identify the dissenting team.

Feeney said the National League requires unanimous consent for expansion. "We didn't vote to expand today, only to actively consider expansion," he said.

MacPhail refused to set a price for a Toronto franchise but the price for Seattle was $6.3 million.

The sequence in Saturday's meeting went this way:

After a joint session to consider baseball's difficult labor crisis, the two leagues met in separate sessions. It was at that time that the American League decided to expand.

At the joint meeting that followed, the AL advised Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and the National League of its plans.

Then the NL met and, in another joint meeting, advised the AL and the commissioner of its continuing interest in Toronto.

"If the National League votes to expand and continues its desire to go to Toronto, then either the American League or National League will be successful in placing a team there," said MacPhail. "Whichever group the city of Toronto makes a lease with will get the team.

"If Toronto decides to go to the National League, that will leave us still looking for a 14th franchise."

MacPhail acknowledged that the American League decision gives it a head start in the race to Toronto. "We have made a commitment to expand and they have not," he said, nodding toward Feeney.

Commissioner Kuhn said he was not upset over both leagues aiming for the same city.

"I don't think it is a battle or a war," he said. "But I certainly think the situation is competitive. I don't think there is anything unhealthy about competition of that kind for franchises. I don't consider it bad for baseball."

Toronto originally thought it had a franchise when the San Francisco Giants ownership accepted a bid in principle to purchase that club. That deal fell through when the Giants were purchased, instead, by local interests and kept in San Francisco. Toronto would be a prime target for the National League because of the natural rivalry it offers for the Montreal Expos, currently the only non-United States team in baseball.

If the American League gets Toronto, there would not be any chance to play Montreal because baseball, at the present time, does not have interleague play. The American League is said to favor it, while the National League is opposed.

Earlier Saturday, the Player Relations Committee, of which Feeney and MacPhail are both members, formally withdrew their "best and final" offer to the Players Association in the continuing labor conflict.

"The offer has been withdrawn," said Lee MacPhail, president of the American League and a member of the owners' negotiating committee. "We are going to negotiate further. We want to wait to hear their ideas."

"It (the withdrawal) means nothing," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association. "It's a negotiating tactic. They can do anything they want."

The 24 major league club owners met with their Player Relations Committee for three hours Saturday to hear a report on the status of the negotiations.

Ed Fitzgerald, chairman of the board of the Milwaukee Brewers and chairman of the Player Relations Committee, said, "We had a very thorough and frank discussion of the current situation. Various opinions were expressed as to the wisdom of the offer made last week."

The owners broke for lunch

Crosby Named To All-Rookie

CHARLOTTE—Furman's Jim Strickland, Richmond's Mike Morton, Davidson's John Gerdy, Appalachian's Daryl Robinson and East Carolina's Louis Crosby have been named to the 1975-76 Southern Conference all-rookie basketball team.

Strickland, a 6-10 post man from Columbia, S. C., was voted rookie of the year in a poll conducted by sports information directors in the conference.

Strickland averaged 15.3 points, shot .562 from the field and averaged 11.1 rebounds to lead the conference in that department.

Top scorer on the club was Davidson's Gerdy, from Little Falls, N. J. He averaged 17.9 points per game for the Wildcats and hit double figures in all 26 games.

Robinson, a 6-4 guard from Brooklyn, N. Y. averaged 15.2 points in leading Appalachian to a tie for third place in the regular season standings and a semifinals berth in the league's post season tournament.

Morton, a 6-8 forward from Washington, helped Richmond to a second place finish in the regular season standings and into the finals of the tournament as he hit 12.8 points per game.

East Carolina's Crosby, a 6-3 guard from Shelby, N. C., was the only player on the five man team who did not score in double figures. He averaged 7.9 points and generally is regarded as one of the league's future standouts.

Pirate Netters Down Seahawks

The East Carolina tennis team won five singles matches to easily take a 7-2 victory over UNC-Wilmington here Saturday afternoon.

Tom Durfee, Doug Getsinger, Mark Callaway, Mitch Pergerson and Randy Bailey won singles matches to give the Pirates their second victory of the season.

Mark Callaway and Sam Smith teamed together to win the number one doubles match while Jeff Sutton and Gerry Felton captured the number three doubles match.

"We really got outstanding effort from everyone on the team today," said graduate coach Neal Peterson. "We used three new doubles teams and rotated people throughout the entire lineup and still managed to win. I thought Tom Durfee, Randy Bailey and Doug Getsinger did an outstanding job in the singles matches."

East Carolina's Jim Ratliff went three sets with UNC-Wilmington's Joe Goulding before losing in only singles match the Pirates failed to win.

David Shackleford and Robert Vail defeated ECU's Joe Zahran and Tim Hill in the only doubles match the Pirates lost.

The Pirates will face Virginia Tech this afternoon at 2 p.m. on the varsity courts.

Summary:

Tom Durfee (EC) defeated Gordon Dean, 6-0, 0-6, 6-1
Joe Goulding (UNC-W) defeated Jim Ratliff, 6-4, 6-7, 6-1
Doug Getsinger (EC) defeated David Shackelford, 6-4, 6-4
Mark Callaway (EC) defeated Robert Vail, 6-2, 6-3
Mitch Peterson (EC) defeated Danny Currie, 6-2, 6-1
Randy Bailey (EC) defeated Andy Burnette, 4-6, 6-0, 6-1
Mark Callaway-Sam Smith (EC) defeated Goulding-Burnette, 6-3, 7-5
Vail-Shackleford (UNC-W) defeated Joe Zahran-Tim Hill, 6-7, 6-3, 7-5
Jeff Sutton-Gerry Felton (EC) defeated Currie-Bill Dawson, 6-4, 6-4

Golfers Climb To Third Place

CAMP LEJEUNE—The East Carolina golf team put together a three over par effort in the second round of the Camp Lejeune Invitational to move into third place in the overall team standings.

The North Carolina "B" team moved into first place with a two day total of 588 followed by the North Carolina State "B" team with 589 strokes. The Pirates who moved from seventh place to third, had a team total of 594 strokes. Elon was in fourth at 596 followed, by Appalachian State and Pembroke State tied for fifth at 604.

Junior Steve Ridge was the top individual man for the Pirates with rounds of 78-69 for a 148 total, which put him tied for ninth with three other players. Ridge's 69 was the low round of the tournament. Rob Welton and Mike Buckmaster both fired one over par 73's and Keith Hiller had a 76 Saturday to all remain at 149. Tripp Boinest had a 76 while Frank Acker had a 77 Saturday. Both were tied at 156 after two rounds.

Pembroke State's Mike Roshelli was in first place after the second round with a two day total of 145. Mike Bright of Appalachian State and Wayne Tiddy of North Carolina were tied for second at 146. At 147 were Joe Hull of N.C. State, Phil Shelton of N.C. State, Bill Fleishman of North Carolina and Mike Aglffrich of North Carolina.

Ridge was at 148 along with Mike Wools of N.C. State, and Phil Nance of Pembroke State.

"We really played well today and made up some ground, "said Pirate head coach Mac McLendon. "We've got to play as well, if not better, tomorrow if we're going to win the tournament. Nevertheless, I was real pleased to see us have such a fine round as a team."

The final round will be played today over the Paradise Point Scarlet Course.

Tempo Change Key To Win

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Coach Tom Young of Rutgers said, "obviously we didn't like it" when Virginia Military suddenly pulled to within 10 points of his Scarlet Knights in the last half of Saturday's NCAA East Regional basketball championship game.

"They got things going their way, we had a goaltending call against us and missed a layup," said Young. His team ran its record to 31-0 with a 91-75 victory that moved the fourth-ranked Scarlet Knights into next Saturday's national semifinals against Michigan in Philadelphia.

But Young said he wasn't worried about the outcome at that stage. "we decided we could pull them out of that zone defense," he said. "We felt it was time to change the tempo. We felt when we got them man to man we could control it."

Rutgers, who had led 62-41 with 15:03 left before the Keydets staged their final run that made it 68-58 with 8:26 left, went on a six-point tear of their own. VMI never got closer than 12 points after that.

It was the second time Young had made a change.

Earlier, despite having three starters on the bench with foul trouble, VMI took a 27-26 lead 4:49 before intermission.

At that point, Rutgers "obviously didn't like the tempo of the game," Young noted. "We had to change our offense and get more movement. Our pressure defense came around with it."

Rutgers went on a 22-7 splurge for a 48-34 halftime lead.

Ed Jordan and Mike Dabney had 23 points each for Rutgers and Jordan, a 6-foot-1 junior from Washington, D.C., was named the tournament's most outstanding player. He also contributed six steals, five assists and four rebounds.

"He did a hell of a job both offensively and defensively," said Young.

Jordan said, "When I found out they were able to run with us, we kept our defense up and let them run. I wanted the team to play its best. We wanted to show we're the best team in the nation."

VMI Coach Bill Blair said, "It was an excellent game by Rutgers. They're an excellently coached team. I hope they win the NCAA."

He called Jordan "certainly the best guard we have played against." But he also praised his own Will Bynum, who led all scorers with 34 points. Blair said he is "a tremendous player—he showed it today."

Green Shooting For Second Straight Win

By BOB GREEN

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Hubert Green, the fast-talking winner of last week's Doral Open, quick-stepped his way into a shot at a rare second consecutive title with a 67 that gave him the third-round lead Saturday in the $175,000 Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament.

The lean and lanky Green, who describes himself as "just a skinny kid from Birmingham," came from two strokes off the pace with his five-under-par effort and established a one-stroke margin with his 54-hole total of 206, a solid 10 under par on the deceptively-difficult, 7,143-yard Deerwood Club course.

Green, rapidly becoming one of the game's more popular players, rewarded the big gallery that trailed him on his trek through a plush residential area spiked by pines and mirrored by lakes with five birdies and no bogeys in a solid round that made him the man to catch in Sunday's final 18 holes of the chase for a $35,000 first prize.

Green, who has parlayed his crouched and curious putting style into 10 international triumphs in the past five years, was chased by a diversified corps that included such veterans as Miller Barber, U.S. Open champ Lou Graham and globe-trotting Gary Player; second-round leader Mike Hill; and young challengers Ben Crenshaw and—once again—Mark Hayes.

The 44-year-old Barber, who recently joined the elite list of men who have won $1 million playing this game, shot a 68 in the mild, sunny, breezy weather and advanced to second place at 207, just one stroke back. Hill managed a 71 and was another shot behind at 208.

Graham, in a slump most of the year, birdied four holes in a row at one stretch and later holed out a 40-foot sand shot for an eagle-three on his way to a 65—by two strokes the best round of the tournament—and moved into strong contention at 209.

Player had a 69 and was five back of Green at 211.

Hayes, who now has challenged for his first title for four weeks in a row, and Crenshaw, a two-time winner already this season, and another half-dozen players were bunched at 212, four under par but with little chance of catching Hubert. Hayes matched par 72 and Crenshaw shot 71.

Green, whose gallery included wife, Judi, continued the brilliant, almost flawless play that staked him to a tournament-record score and the biggest winning margin of the year in last week's Doral Open.

He didn't miss a green and had trouble saving par on only one hole, the 18th.

He ran his long approach putt some five feet past the cup on that one, and "I didn't like the putt I had coming back," he said. But he nursed it into the cup and had the lead alone.

Hubert, dressed in his trademark green ensemble, holed 20-foot birdie putts on the first and sixth holes, reached the fourth with a three iron second shot and two-putted for birdie four, and scored from about 10 feet on the seventh.

That put him out in 32, and he flipped a short iron shot only five feet from the cup on the 10th, then reeled off eight consecutive pars coming home.

Demands Not Big

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Fred Lynn, the sensational rookie star of the Boston Red Sox last season, reported to camp Saturday and said reports of his contract demands were highly exaggerated.

"I don't know where those reports started," he said, "but there's no basis for them."

Reports from Los Angeles have said the 22-year-old graduate of the University of Southern California, the Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player in the American League in 1975, planned to ask for $2 million. Subsequent reports, all unofficial, had watered the demands down to $1.3 million.

"I am leaving it entirely up to my agent, Jerry Kapstein," Lynn said. "He will be here next Wednesday or Thursday."

Lynn is one of three unsigned Boston players.

Hat Trick Lets Chargers Win, 3-1

LARRY CSONKA JIM KIICK PAUL WARFIELD

RELEASED—Former Miami Dolphins Larry Csonka (left), Jim Kiik (center) and Paul Warfield were among those released Friday from all contractual obligations to the World Football League's Memphis Southmen, opening the prospects on an NFL money war similar to baseball's Catfish Hunter spree. LITTLEFIELD—Greg Gambrell's flying hat cost Eastern Wayne a ball game Friday.

The flying chapeau was hit by a Gambrell pitch and the ball sailed into the backstop. It would not have been so bad had there not been three Ayden-Grifton runners on base at the time. And it would not have been so bad if two of them had not scored.

The freak play ended up costing the Warriors the game, as the Chargers won, 3-1.

The win ran the Charger streak to five games in a row.

Eastern Wayne had taken a 1-0 lead in the first. The Chargers almost tied it in the bottom of the frame but an appeal killed the score. A-G scored the tieing run in the third and added the other two to win the game.

Dennis Cristiano picked up his third win of the season going the distance. He struck out eight, gave up four hits and walked none. The Eastern Wayne run was earned.

Gambrell lasted the whole game, also. He fanned eight Chargers, walked five and gave up eight hits.

Cristiano had two out in the second when he gave up a single to Ray Batts. Norman Rigdon doubled off the centerfield fence to drive in Batts but Rigdon was thrown out at third on the play.

Cristiano led off the A-G half with an infield hit and was sacrificed up. Paul Setliff singled to center apparently scoring Sammy Whitehurst running for Cristiano. But Whitehurst missed third base and was called out on the appeal.

Cristiano allowed an infield hit in the third to Howard Johnson but Johnson was picked off first.

Steve Noble started the third with a double and A-G catcher Ned Crat singled him in. An error in the play moved Craft to second. Eddie Taylor beat out an infield hit and Cristiano walked.

Gambrell, pitching, to Jed Hardy, did his hat trick and Craft scored. An error on the throw back to home allowed Taylor to score and it moved Cristiano to third. The inning died on a fielder's choice.

After the third, Eastern Wayne had only one batter to reach base, Gambrell, with a double in the seventh. A-G left two men on the remaining frames.

The win was also the second over the Warriors this year by A-G.

Craft and Cristiano had two hits each for A-G.

Saratoga Nips Jaguars By 9-6

FARMVILLE—Saratoga Central scored early and went on to hand Farmville Central a 9-6 defeat Friday in a non-conference baseball game.

Saratoga pushed over three runs in the first inning. Rogers reached on an error and Carter walked. Whitley hit into a fielder's choice. Jones then walked, scoring Jones. Shelton singled in both Carter and Whitley.

Farmville Central came back with one in their half of the inning. Mike Jenkins singled, stole second, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on a wild pitch.

Saratoga put the game out of reach with five in the second. Goff and Bailey both singled and Carter reached on a fielder's choice. Whitley was safe on an error, scoring both Goff and Bailey. Jones walked and walks to Shelton and Wheeler brought in Carter and Whitley. Cherry then singled in Jones.

Farmville added another in the second. Emerson Hobgood singled and stole second. After Jerry Rackley reached on a fielder's choice. David Cockran singled in Hobgood.

Farmville added two each in the fourth and seventh, while Saratoga picked up another in the fifth.

Jenkins and Hobgood each had two hits in four trips, while Tommy Cobb had three in four appearances for Farmville.

Panthers Top Tarboro, 13-8

TARBORO—North Pitt got revenge on Tarboro for an opening game loss when the Panthers rolled up a 13-8 victory over the Vikings Friday afternoon.

The win leveled the Panther record off at 1-1 on the season.

Tarboro grabbed the initial lead with a run in the first. Parrisher singled, moved up on another hit and scored on Thorne's double.

The Vikings added another in the second and took a 2-0 lead into the third. But the Panthers came to life then, scoring three runs. Eddie Hemingway and Dwight Vernelson both singled and Noel Whitley walked, loading them up. Roy Brown was hit by a ptich scoring Hemingway, and Aubrey Wynne singled in Vernelson. Roy Briley reached on a fielder's choice that nailed Whitley at the plate and Ken Perry squeezed in Brown for a 3-2 lead.

Tarboro came back with four in its half of the inning, however, taking a 6-3 lead.

The Panthers stormed back with five in the fifth. Brown walked and Wynne and Briley both singled, the later scoring Brown. Perry singled in Wynne and Mike Manning walked to load the bases. Walks to Vernelson, Whitley and Brown brought in the next three runs, giving North Pitt and 8-6 lead.

Tarboro made one more comeback, scoring twice in the bottom of the inning for an 8-8 tie.

But five more Panther runs in the seventh gave North Pitt the win. Hemingway reached on a fielder's choice, but an error on the play let him go on to third. Another error that scored him. Vernelson and Whitley both singled and both scored on Brown's double. Wynne's two-bagger scored Brown, and Briley singled Wynne to third. Perry's sacrifice fly brought Wynne over with the final run.

The Panthers return to action on Tuesday, March 30, facing Saratoga Central in a home game.

Bidding War Expected To Start For Services Of Csonka And Co.

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield starred for the Miami Dolphins when they won the 1973 and 1974 Super Bowls, and that trio, which defected to the World Football League, dominated the final session of the National Football League meetings even though they weren't here.

The three played out their options with the Dolphins and jumped to the now-defunct WFL with multiyear, million dollar contracts. On Friday, John Bassett, who owned the WFL Memphis club, declared them free agents.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the NFL said he didn't know if they were truly free or not, but that the NFL would find out quickly. If so, they presumably would be free to sign with the highest bidder.

Fullback Csonka, 29, might be the subject of a bidding war. Running back Kiick, 29, and wide receiver Warfield, 33, possibly would not.

Brightest spot of the week for the 28 owners probably came when Dick Anderson, president of the players association, came to their meeting and said the players were "ready, willing and able" to negotiate a new collective bargaining agreement.

Pro football has been without one for two years, with many lawsuits involved.

Anderson and Rozelle each expect meetings to start within two weeks in an effort to negotiate the working rules and eliminate any possiblity of strike or lockout.

In the wrapup session, the owners decided to loosen the rule covering players who had been put on the injured reserved list in 1975 and were out for the year.

Under the statute last year, only three players could be protected by their clubs from being picked up on waivers if they had been on the injured reserve list.

Three players still may be eligible for trade, but all the rest on the injured reserve list will be given the chance next year of making the grade with their team. If they don't, they must be put on waivers, where another club could claim them for $100.

Jim Kensil, Executive Director of the NFL, said the intent of the rule always has been to stop clubs from putting players on the injured reserve list only so they will be available if needed in future seasons.

Under the old rule, the new clubs of Tampa Bay and Seattle would have been given the chance of picking up players that other clubs had placed on injured reserve, with the exception of three. Now they will have to wait to see if those players are able to stick with their 1975 clubs.

Rule changes during the five-day annual meetings were minor, ranging from eliminating the stripe on the football used for night games, to installing a 30-second clock in each end zone for timing the offensive team in getting a play started.

Dates for the expansion draft were set for March 30-31 to stock Tampa Bay and Seattle. The also-delayed college draft will be held April 8-9.

Saints Roll By Greene Central

SNOW HILL—Greene Central took it on the chin from the second straight 4-A Wayne County team Friday afternoon, bowing to Southern Wayne, 11-0.

The Rams managed only one hit during the shutout defeat to the Saints. Gary Newhard started the game for Southern Wayne, hurling four innings. He gave up the lone hit, a double to Ronnie Whitley. He struck out six and walked one. Warren came on in relief to go the final three, striking out two, walking three, but allowing no hits.

Southern Wayne got all the runs it needed when it scored one in the first. Ron Pellitier walked, stole second and moved to third on a sacrifice. Jeff Rose then squeezed Pellitier in for a 1-0 lead.

The Saints put the game away with six runs in the third frame. They got them on three walks, three hits and three Greene Central errors. Four of the runs came when Haywood Outlaw cracked out a grand-slam homer. It marked the second straight year Outlaw has had a four-run homer against the Rams.

Three more runs came over in the fifth on three hits and two errors, and the final run scored in the seventh.

Keith Neal led the Saint hitting with three raps in four trips.

Greene Central, now 0-2, travels to Plymouth on Wednesday.

Even Dr. J Is A Human Being

By MIKE CLARK
AP Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Dr. J is only human.

A stunned crowd of 8,338 left Freedom Hall Friday night after watching Julius Erving suffer through a night usually reserved for basketball's mortals.

Erving went 46 minutes without a field goal and finished with just two baskets and a meager nine points as his New York Nets dropped a 104-97 American Basketball Association decision to the Kentucky Colonels.

"I've never seen the Doc have such a bad night," said New York Coach Kevin Loughery. "The other night in St. Louis he was just great. I don't think he's ever had a better game. But tonight..."

Elsewhere in the ABA, the Denver Nuggets turned back the Virginia Squires 113-108 and the Spirits of St. Louis walloped the San Antonio Spurs 125-100.

Despite his troubles, Dr. J contributed to a desperate fourth-quarter rally that fell just short.

"That's the mark of a great player," Loughery said. "He was there at the end when we needed him."

Erving scored his only two buckets in the final two minutes after New York's reserves had cut a 23-point Kentucky lead to 96-92. His turnaround jumper made it 96-94 and, after Kentucky's Artis Gilmore answered with a hook shot, Erving cut the margin to 98-96 with a 20-footer.

That was it for the Doctor and the Nets, though. Maurice Lucas hit two free throws and Wil Jones added a 20-footer from the corner to save the Kentucky victory.

Kentucky had six players in double figures, with Bird Averitt leading the way with 23 points.

Nuggets 113, Squires 108

Dan Issel scored 31 points as Denver rallied to beat Virginia after the Squires jumped to a 36-25 first-quarter lead, paced by Mike Green's 10 points, and held a 58-53 margin at the half.

Net Clinic Scheduled

FARMVILLE—Farmville Central High School will sponsor a tennis clinic in the school gym at 1:30 p.m. on March 31, featuring two of North Carolina's top tennis professionals. Proceeds from the event will be used for tennis court improvements at the school.

Instructors will be Australian Jim Haslam of the Chapel Hill Tennis Club, named the Outstanding Pro of 1975 by the North Carolina Tennis Association, and Greensboro's Dean Mathias, Head Pro at the Piedmont Raquet Club. Both are former Wake Forest University players.

The program will include a half-hour clinic on tennis fundamentals, a half-hour singes exhibition by the pros, and a half-hour mixed-doubles exhibition with the pros teaming with Farmville Central students Beth Turnage and Jennifer Counterman.

Admission will be $2. The public is cordially invited.

Vikings May Try Memphis

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The general manager of the Minnesota Vikings says the National Football League club wants to test market Memphis this year by playing two August exhibition games in the Tennessee city rather than at home in Bloomington.

Mike Lynn, bitter over rejection in the Minnesota Legislature of plans for a new and larger stadium, was in Memphis Saturday for talks with Mayor Wyeth Chandler to discuss a possible franchise move.

Lynn's comments in Memphis were reported by Jim Klobuchar of the Minneapolis Star.

"I told the legislators last week, when they kicked us in the head, that they had seen the last of us, we weren't going to be back next year," Lynn said Saturday. "I said that, because I thought the stadium was dead. I wouldn't be looking for a new place if I didn't think so."

Lynn said he would be interested if there's some chance of reviving the stadium bill, defeated in the Senate Tax Committee Thursday. He said he was unaware of any new attempts by legislators and the Minnesota governor's office to revive the bill. Lynn stressed that the Vikings would refuse to play in a remodeled Metropolitan Stadium, in suburban Bloomington, beyond 1976.

"I'm down here shopping," said Lynn. "What I want to know is whether the provisions of the pro football lease for the Memphis Stadium would apply for two or three games in 1976. I mean 100 per cent of the beer sales—things like that."

Lynn said he went to Memphis expecting to make some kind of informal agreements, or at least agreements in principle. He emphasized that the Vikes, if the price is right, will train and play in Memphis this summer.

"We want to shift our Aug. 21 exhibition with Cincinnati and our Aug. 28 exhibition with Philadephia from the Met to Memphis," Lynn said. "We also would like to consider shifting to Memphis any December games on our regular-season schedule. That would be harder, I imagine, because approval of 21 out of 28 league owners probably would be required."

Lynn said shifting the training camp and exhibitions to Memphis are internal matters which the Vikings control.

Since 1966, the Vikings have trained at Minnesota's Mankato State University, about 90 miles southwest of Minneapolis-St. Paul and Bloomington.

Ed McMahon, MSU vice-president for resources, said Saturday: "We still expect the Vikings to be here in 1976. We are in negotiations with them now.

Jamesville In Win Over Bears

JAMESVILLE—Jamesville rallied for four runs in the fifth inning to pass Bear Grass and the Bullets went on to win their first game of the season, 9-7.

The Bullets had lost their opener Thursday to Bear Grass, 8-1, at Bear Grass. Friday, the Bullets jumped off to a 2-0, first inning start and in the second added two more for a 4-1 lead.

Both teams picked up a run in the fourth. In the top of the fifth, Bear Grass knocked Jamesville starter Duke Stone for five runs finishing his duties.

Richard Knox walked and Ricky Williams doubled him to third. Both scored on a single by Alan Crawford. Ray Wynn singled Crawford to third and Wynn stole second. A walk to Danny Rogerson loaded the bases and a single by Jimmy Peaks drove in Crawford and Wynn. Jerry Wynk reached on an error and a walk to Knox forced in Rogerson.

But the Bullets came back in their half of the frame to win the game. Ramsey Simmons singled and Terry Holliday walked. Jerry Ange reached on a bases-loading error. A double by Billy Brown drove in Simmons and Holliday and Robby Hardson singled in Ange. A hit by Jeff Holliday drove in Brown.

Terry Wobbleton and Dickie Williams had two hits each for the Bears, Danny Lilley and Brown had two each for the Bullets.

after concluding their business with the Player Relations Committee. They were to meet again in separate league meetings to discuss franchise affairs, then meet jointly again later in the day.

Fitzgerald acknowledged that a sizeable group of the owners felt the committee had gone too far in its offer, which accepted the premise of the "one-and-one" free-agent rights for the players, who could, however, only deal with eight teams.

Last Wednesday, the players' union neither accepted nor rejected the offer, calling it incomplete and also calling for continued negotiations.

Miller said he expected to return to the negotiating table with the Player Relations Committee on Monday. The main task for the parties was further refinement of the owners' "one-and-one" proposal, which would permit players to deal with a maximum of eight teams and, in some cases, would limit players to dealing with only one club.

Peter Seitz' landmark arbitration decision, involving pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally and upheld twice in the federal courts, gives nearly every player the right to free agency in the next two years and then the chance to deal with all 24 clubs, without any stipulations.

That is the case for Messersmith, presently negotiating from California, and McNally, who, however, is retired.

Miller reiterated that the players' free agency right to deal with all 24 clubs "is here. The right won't go away," although the Players Association resolution of Wednesday said it agreed to the principle of some form of control.

The union has said it is "prepared to agree on such a mechanism (a free-agent draft) along the general lines proposed by the owners."

"Eight teams, however, is not acceptable," said Miller, who said not to assume any future compromise would be along strictly mathematical lines between the owners' eight and the players' 24.

Miller points out that any agreement on a labor contract that modifies in any form a player's free-agency right to deal with all 24 clubs could place the Players Association in a liability position if a player chooses to sue the union in the courts.

"The liability is there, you just have to seek ways to limit it as much as you can," Miller said. "There are various ways in which you can cut that potential."

Miller again said that since the owners are the ones attempting to abridge present rights, they must assume the liability for any damage suits by the players.

"There's no question about that," he said.

The owners, some of whom were known to oppose the owners' last offer, discussed the merits of that proposal on Saturday.

"There were very strong feelings on all sides concerning the wisdom of the offer," said Fitzgerald.

The owners came to two conclusions, he said.

"Our committee is to press on in a attempt to gain resolution as quickly as possible," he said. "The owners also gave a unanimous vote of confidence to the committee's actions."

MacPhail, acknowledging the vote of confidence, smiled: "That's probably because none of the people in there wanted to be on the committee."

Lot Of Kentucky In That Charlotte Team

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "This game is like a family affair," said Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall, contemplating Sunday's final of the National Invitation Tournament against North Carolina-Charlotte. "We're pretty much in-bred—there's a lot of Kentucky in both these teams."

A lot of Kentucky in North Carolina-Charlotte? You bet.

Lee Rose, coach of the 49ers, spent seven years coaching at Transylvania, a college division school in Lexington, Ky., which just happens to be where the University of Kentucky is located. Mike Pratt, Rose's assistant, played at Kentucky under Coach Adolph Rupp.

"We're close, very close," said Rose at a news conference Friday. "Joe Hall and I are both a couple of farm boys. We've known each other for many years now. We worked in the same area, we recruited the same kids—there's a lot between us."

Matter of fact, Rose has as much Kentucky in him as any colonel.

"As a kid I used to sell soda during Kentucky games at the Coliseum," said Rose. "There were times I used to sneak in just to see the great Wildcats play under Coach Rupp. I'd hang from the rafters just to see them play."

For the past 11 years, Rose and Hall have been members of the Crestwood Christian Church in Lexington, Ky.

"I'm on the fund-raising committee," said Rose, "and he (Hall) hasn't paid his dues. I wonder who David Blondell, our minister, is going to be praying for?"

"I got to him first," countered Hall. "He's our team chaplain. He eats breakfast with the team before all our games. He's flying down here for the final—at my request."

Sunday's final matches one of the most prestigious names in college basketball, Kentucky, against a growing school hungry for recognition. "With all the ACC schools around us," said Rose, "we don't get much ink. We're trying to build our program, and being here in the finals of the NIT against a team like Kentucky is just great. Win or lose, we're winners already just being here."

Both clubs won one-point thrillers in Thursday's semi-finals. Kentucky edged Providence 79-78 on Larry Johnson's court-length drive and layup with one second to go, while UNC-Charlotte beat North Carolina State 80-79 on Melvin Watkins' basket with 30 seconds left.

To beat Kentucky, UNC-Charlotte, 24-5, will need another big game from Cedric Maxwell, the 6-foot-8 center who has averaged 28.3 points and 10.2 rebounds in three NIT starts. His 39 free throws—in 43 attempts—are already a tournament record, and he also had blocked eight shots, stole the ball seven times and handed out nine assists.

But he'll have his hands full when he goes against burly 6-11 center Mike Phillips of Kentucky, 19-10. Despite a sprained ankle, Phillips has been a dominating player under the boards.

"There's no way I can outmuscle him," said Maxwell of the key match-up. "I'll just have to use whatever speed I've got and try to out-hustle him."

How well he succeeds will go a long way in determining the outcome of the family squabble known as the 39th annual NIT.

Pond Would Like To Get Atlanta Victory

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — A victory in Sunday's Atlanta 500 stock car race would mean almost $170,000 to Lennie Pond. However, anything less than first would net the likable, balding Virginian less than $10,000.

"That's all I've thought about lately,' ' said Pond, a former NASCAR Grand National rookie of the year who is still gunning for his first victory on the circuit. "But if I'm gonna win here, I've gotta get a lot of speed or a lotta luck before Sunday.

"My car is just not running here. I'm almost 1½ seconds off the pace."

The purse for the 17th annual Atlanta 500 is $151,900, and first place pays $15,750. But victory would also include Pond for this year and next in NASCAR's lucrative Winner's Circle Award program for race winners.

Current members are seven of the first nine qualifiers for Sunday's race—Dave Marcis, Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough, Benny Parsons, Buddy Baker, Bobby Allison and Darrell Waltrip. One more spot is available and Pond is considered the best bet.

"In round figures, it's worth about $82,000 next year and about $70,000 this year," Pond explained. "So if I can do it, I can get a two-year ride."

It looked as if Pond had it made two weeks ago in the Grand National race at Richmond, Va. But with a decisive lead late in the race, Pond and Ed Negre collided, and Pond was out of the race.

"You can't believe how much I've thought about it," Pond said wistfully. "When I hit the wall at Richmond, I figured it cost me about $170,000," including first place money and repairs to his battered Chevrolet.

But he added, "It was just one of those things. Negre didn't see me. He came up on me as I went by. We hooked bumpers and it shot me into the wall."

Pond sits 10th in the 36-car grid, with a qualifying speed of 156.005 miles per hour, compared to Marcis' pace-setting 160.709 m.p.h.

"I'm not so concerned about the difference in speed," Pond noted, "because luck is better than speed.

"You can go 160 m.p.h. for 490 miles and lose the race. You gotta go the whole 500. That's where I could use a little luck."

Havlicek Back, So Are Celtics

By The Associated Press

John Havlicek is back...and so are the Boston Celtics.

The two go together like ham and eggs or macaroni and cheese. And even though Havlicek scored only 12 points after missing six games with a knee injury, the Celtics looked like their old selves in a 120-117 National Basketball Association overtime victory over the Kansas City Kings Friday night.

"We missed a lot of easy shots, but we played our game again," said Coach Tom Heinsohn. "I'm happy with it after what we went through in the last six games (3-3)."

Elsewhere, the New Orleans Jazz crushed the Cleveland Cavaliers 103-81, the Los Angeles Lakers trounced the Detroit Pistons 122-107, the Portland Trail Blazers outlasted the Houston Rockets 111-105 and the Chicago Bulls beat the Atlanta Hawks 108-101.

Charlie Scott scored four of the Celtics' 14 overtime points and set up a key basket by JoJo White. A field goal by Scott put Boston in front for good 110-108. Nate Archibald had 37 points and Jimmy Walker 32 for Kansas City while White had 30 and Scott 29 for Boston.

Jazz 103, Cavaliers 81

With Pete Maravich home with the flu, Henry Bibby led the Jazz with 20 points while Otto Moore and Jim McElroy each added 14.

Lakers 122, Pistons 107

Cazzie Russell came off the bench in the second quarter to score 15 points and lead Los Angeles over Detroit.

Trail Blazers 111, Rockets 105

Reserve guards Lionel Hollins and Steve Jones combined for 21 points in the fourth quarter to pace Portland's triumph.

Bulls 108, Hawks 101

Tom Boerwinkle controlled both backboards, blocked numerous shots and scored a career-high 31 points to lead Chicago.

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The 49th annual Texas Relays April 2-3 will feature four NCAA champions and six winners at last year's relays.

Discus thrower Jim McGoldrick of Texas, pole vaulter Earl Bell of Arkansas State, hurdler Larry Shipp of LSU and steeplechaser James Munyala of Texas-El Paso won their events at last year's NCAA meet.

All 17 individual events will be open to university, college, junior college and unattached athletes to give everyone a chance to qualify for the Olympic trials this summer.

UTEP, which won both the indoor and outdoor NCAA titles, is the top-rated team. Other strong entries include Big 8 champion Kansas, Southeast contender Florida, Texas and Baylor of the Southwest, and Texas Southern.

---

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A full-bearded Al Hrabosky says he's concerned over his slow starts but may not be too far behind his schedule after all.

Hrabosky, the St. Louis Cardinals' star reliefer, joined in his team's second formal workout Friday and afterward expressed hope that the delayed opening will not affect him.

"We went 10 minutes each day, which is about the length of my usual work day," Hrabosky explained of the pitching he had done at Eckerd College here while awaiting the camp's opening.

Hrabosky, who last year posted a 13-3 record and compiled a 1.67 earned run average in 65 games, is among five Cards whose contracts have been renewed because of failure to come to terms.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Professional Golfers' Association of America (PGA) has switched the site of its future headquarters and golf course complex from Martin County to Palm Beach County.

A spokesman said Friday the move away from the site named last April puts the PGA closer to transportation, shopping and related facilities, and offers better accessibility to utility services.

The PGA said it is retaining its original timetable. It said it will have three golf courses, a clubhouse, communications center and space for a complex to include an administration building, library, museum, hall of fame, educational facilities, hotel and exhibition hall.

The contract calls for the first two courses and clubhouse to be completed by the end of 1977 and all three courses playable by the end of 1978, the PGA said.

Solar Heating Water Is Economically Feasible

DATA . . . from Paul Carr's home-built solar water heater shows it's working well, despite being his first attempt. He plans to build more, incorporating the improvements he's making on his first.

Approximately $15 of every household's monthly electric bill in winter, $20 to $22 in summer, is spent on hot water production says George Reel of Greenville Utilities.

"Why, then," asks N.C. State University School of Mechanical Engineering Senior Paul Carr, "do people keep discussing whether solar water heating is economically feasible? I don't see how there can be any doubt."

Carr, who lives a few miles out of Greenville on Highway 43 North, has backed up his beliefs with action. He and his father, W. Paul Carr, a project engineer for the Dupont Company in Kinston, have built a working solar water heater which they plan to install in their river cottage soon. They have plans to build one in the near future for their year-round home and one for Paul's sister's home near Kinston.

"Dad and I have made a lot of mistakes with this first one," Paul said, "but that's to be expected when you're working almost entirely from theory. At first I was all set to start on a new one, but now we've decided that we'll keep improving and refining this one till we get all the bugs out. It's doing better than I would dared have hoped, though."

Interviewed Monday afternoon, Mar. 8, when it had been partially cloudy most of the day, his flat plate collector had heated and maintained about 50 gallons of water to 120 degrees, hot enough for most household use without any auxiliary heating.

Paul spent a year at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., where he was enrolled in a cooperative education program, getting practical experience as part of his engineering education. He was involved in a residential solar heating and cooling demonstration project there, but it was different, he said, from his and his father's home project in that funds were virtually unlimited there and very sophisticated equipment could be used.

Father Practical One

The younger Carr is quick to tell you that he had the physics knowledge, but that without his father's practical knowledge of such skills as building and pipe-fitting and soldering, the solar water heater on the hill in front of their house would never have become reality.

"Dad knew where most of the materials we needed were available," he said, "and we did a little calling around for the others. We were pleased to be able to get everything we need in either Greenville or Raleigh. By shopping for the best buys, we kept costs under $200.

"We decided to build our collector on a four-by-eight-foot scale, because this size seemed to be sufficient for our needs and these are the dimensions of many of the materials you buy, such as the plyboard and the plexiglass we used."

The collector's frame, is made of plyboard and set at a 45-degree angle. This angle, Paul said, is the optimum one for all seasons and times of day. The collector plate is an aluminum sheet painted flat black, with three-eighth inch copper tubing on it. (One-half inch also will work quite well, Paul said.) Copper could be used for the collector plate, also, but it is so expensive that it is not cost justifiable, the Carrs believe.

Placed over the plate and about three-eighths of an inch above the tubes through which the water runs is a sheet of plexiglass. The water is run through a closed loop from a tank under the frame, through tubes where it's heated, and back into the tank. Water flow must be controlled. The ideal rate is seven pounds per square foot, so it has time to heat to the maximum, Paul said. A fractional horsepower pump may be used for this job, he suggested.

Like A Greenhouse

Simply told, solar heating works with a greenhouse effect. Short wave length high energy ultraviolet ray pass through the plexiglass, heating the absorptive black metal plate. Warm bodies emit infrared rays which are long in wave length and most cannot pass back out through the plexiglass, so they are trapped and may be used to heat the water passing through the tubes. Styrofoam insulation behind the metal plate keeps heat from escaping through conduction.

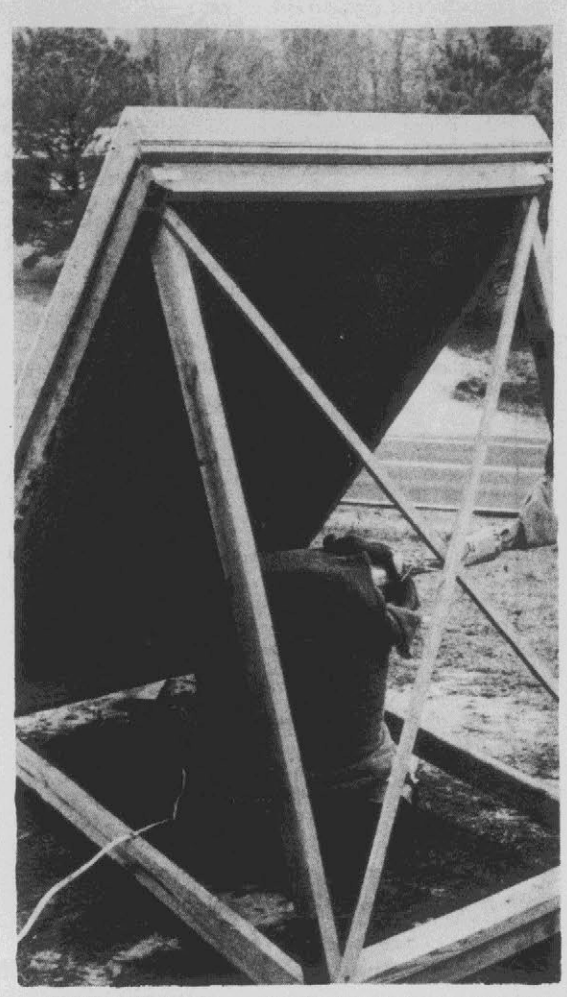

The collector may be mounted on a roof or on the frame on the ground. If freezing is not a problem, it may be connected directly into the home hot water system, with the conventional hot water heater working only to boost the temperature of the already heated water. Entrance temperature will vary, of course, with the degree of sunshine each day.

If the water must be treated to prevent freezing, it may be run through a coil in a tank holding potable water, a very simple heat exchange system, Paul says.

The Carrs' solar water heater, along with the data Paul has collected and information he has obtained about other commercially produced solar water heaters, formed the basis for a paper which recently won for him the American Society of Mechanical Engineers' student paper competition for this region. Paul will soon go on to a higher competition with this paper. He also is presenting the paper to the scientists with whom he worked at Marshall Space Flight Center.

Paul says he would be interested in building solar water heaters for a few customers, so he can finance further exploration of solar heat usage. He hopes to investigate solar space heating, and possibly cooling, and may well pursue a career in some area of thermal sciences.

THE WATER TANK . . . for Carr's collector is a wrapped galvanized garbage can, but the collector can rather easily be hooked into a conventional home water heating system, the builder, a local NCSU student, says.

Greenville Packing Company Celebrates 60th Anniversary

Text And Photograph By James Kyle

SAUSAGES IN THE MAKING—Mrs. Peggy Bone racks sausages as they come out of a crimping machine at Greenville Packing Co. Working in the background is David Rouse Jr. Greenville Packing Co. celebrated its 60th anniversary last week.

When Jesse Noah Williams started a meat-packing business here in 1916, he probably didn't know it would grow to be the largest in this part of the state.

However, Greenville Packing Company, the culmination of William's meat-packing venture, is now the largest and most complete packer in the area, according to manager Bill Jones. The firm, located at 1601 Smith St., behind Keel's Warehouse, celebrated its 60th anniversary March 17.

When he first started in business, Williams "would slaughter a calf and hang it in a tree to dress it," Jones said.

"He shaved the first pig right next door here," Jones said, pointing out the window of the packing company office. He shaved the pig in an old bathtub and took it uptown on a wagon, Jones said.

The company is now owned by Jesse B. Jones and the Williams heirs, according to Jones. Around 50-100 hogs and up to 20 cattle are processed there per day.

Sausage is one of the main products of the company, which sells meat under "Greenville Brand." Some 14,000 to 16,000 pounds of sausage are made a day. This figure includes franks, fresh, smoked and dry sausage.

In addition, the company sells all cuts of pork and beef.

Although they deal mostly with grocery stores, farmers can bring their livestock to be processed for personal use according to Jones. They are the only packers in the area to provide this service.

The packing company gets livestock at sales in Greenville, Wilson, Kinston and Rocky Mount. When the firm can't get enough in this area, it has to get some livestock from other states, Jones said.

Most of the cow is used in processing, Jones said, and all of the pig is.

"There's an old saying that 'You don't lose anything in the pig except the squeal,'" Jones said.

Bronze Bust Of Jenkins To Adorn Art Building

Visitors to the campus office of East Carolina University Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins may be startled by a large clay model of Dr. Jenkins' head which rests on a pedestal near the chancellor's desk.

The clay model is the first step toward the execution of a bronze-cast sculpture which will be mounted high on the outside wall near the entrance to the new $4.1 million Leo W. Jenkins School of Art Building. The sculpture was commissioned by Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.

Faculty sculptor Robert Edmiston comes in each afternoon to fashion the clay model's features into Dr. Jenkins' likeness while he watches the busy chancellor at work.

Completion of the sculpture, which will be half again as large as life size, will be a lengthy and complex process, involving more than 200 hours of work. According to sculptor Edmiston, modeling the clay image is only the beginning.

"Upon completion of the clay portrait, a plaster mold will be formed around the clay head. This plaster negative mold is then used to duplicate the portrait in wax," he explained.

Meanwhile the original clay model will be pressed together and the clay stored away for re-use in future projects. Some of the clay used in the model is nearly 100 years old.

The wax duplicate of the clay portrait is then encased in a complex foundry mold constructed of silica and plaster. The melted wax image and moisture are drained from the mold in a furnace at 1100 degrees F. Molten bronze, at 2100 degrees F., is then poured into the mold in a foundry procedure which replaces the wax melted out in the earlier operation, said Edmiston.

Hence, this process of sculpture is termed "lost-wax casting."

The actual casting will be carried out in the ECU School of Art's new foundry, with the help of sculpture students, if that facility can be completed in time. Otherwise, Edmiston explained, his own home studio foundry would be used to complete the job.

The bronze will be ready for the special building dedication ceremony of the Fine Arts Center later this year.

Edmiston, like most professional sculptors, usually works in abstract forms. The Jenkins portrait is his first realistic work in several years, although he was carefully prepared for this type of sculpture during his training as a student.

"I have really two tasks to fulfill in this work," he said. "One is simply to copy Dr. Jenkins' physical features in the medium, to achieve a strong physical likeness.

"The second is to attempt to express through formal means—mass, line and texture—something about the man."

The rough texture of the clay model's surface is a result of Edmiston's perception of Leo Jenkins as "an intensely dynamic personality" and "a leader who has experienced many crises."

"We all know him as one who has achieved despite past controversies and confrontations," he said. "There is a strength, a ruggedness, and a humanity which enables him to succeed, and these qualities must be expressed in the portrait."

The raw red bronze sculpture which finally emerges from the foundry mold will be chased to a finished texture and treated with a special solution to give it a dark brown patina. After it is permanently placed outside the ECU art building, exposure to the elements will modify its surface, giving it a weathered effect.

Horn Comes From Whale, Not Fabled Unicorn

THE TUSK BEARING . . . Small Narwhal whale sports a horn that can grow to ten feet in length.

During the Middle Ages, emperors and kings paid large sums for drinking cups supposedly made from the horn of the fabled unicorn, in the belief that the horn would render poison harmless.

Although the miraculous power of the horn was as much a myth as the creature from which it allegedly came, the long, twisted ivory horn did in fact exist. But where did it come from, if not from the legendary horse-like unicorn?

Scientists today tell us that these unusual horns were and still are grown by small members of the whale family called narwhals (NARwalls).

According to the January issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, published by the National Wildlife Federation, narwhals live only near the North Pole in the remotest regions of the Arctic. There are only about 20,000 of these creatures living in the world today.

The narwhal's horn is really a giant left front tooth, which can reach a length of almost ten feet. Only the male narwhal has this tusk, which grows straight out through its upper lip. Like its human counterpart, the tooth has a hollow center filled with spongy pulp and nerves.

The National Wildlife Federation publication for children notes that narwhals generally reach an adult size of 16 feet in length. A baby narwhal, called a calf, is born a dark slate blue color and measures approximately five feet in length.

As the small whale gets older, its color lightens until as an adult its back remains dark blue, its sides become spotted and its belly is a grayish white, notes Ranger Rick.

Biologists still are not sure why the male narwhal has its long, twisted tusk. Some believe that the tusk is used to spear cuttlefish, squid and crustaceans, which narwhals eat. But if this were so, how would the female narwhal obtain its food? The most accepted theory is that the tooth is used by the male as part of the mating ritual.

The children's magazine reports that herds of narwhals swim underneath ice patches in summer to get from one open area of water to another. Because they are mammals they must surface for air every ten minutes or so to breathe. Thus when colder weather comes in the fall and solid sheets of ice begin to form in the bays and fiords, the narwhals leave these areas to escape being trapped under the ice.

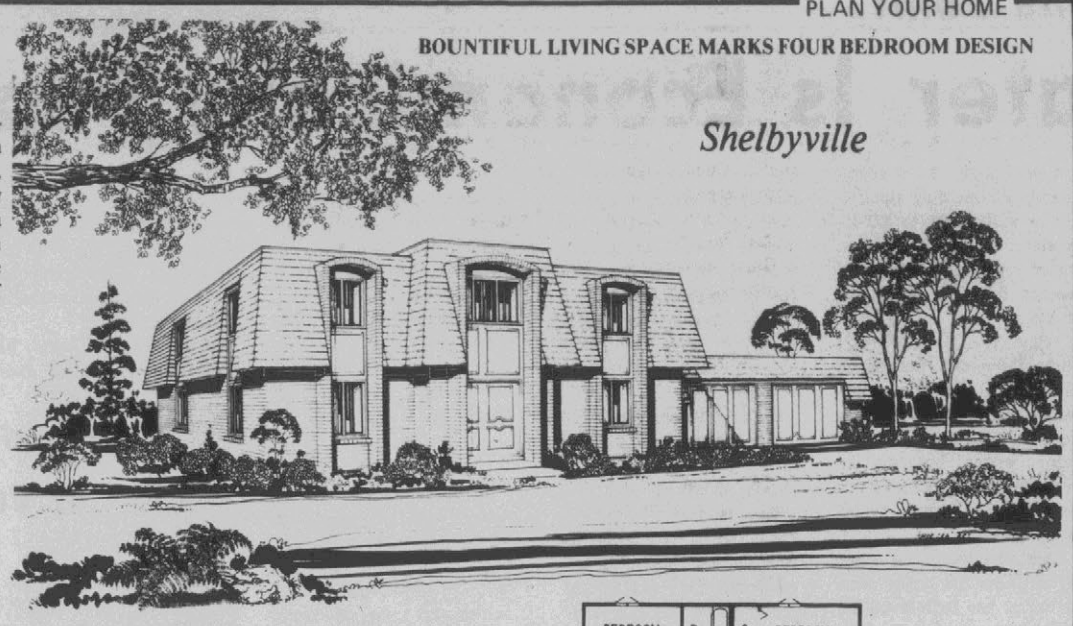

During the winter, they swim in the Arctic Ocean, which doesn't freeze over due to its strong currents. When narwhals surface to breathe, they exhale with a shrill whistle. Swimming through the water, they hold their heads high above the water's surface, allowing the males' tusks to glisten in the sun as they move forward.

Eskimos in Greenland, the northernmost people in the world, hunt narwhals to get their meat and blubber, which are used as food by the Eskimos and their sled dogs. The Eskimos also eat raw narwhal skin, called muktuk, which contains as much vitamin C as a lemon or an orange. Crunchy with a hazelnut taste, the skin is regarded as a treat by Eskimo children.

BOUNTIFUL LIVING SPACE MARKS FOUR BEDROOM DESIGN

Shelbyville

By Jerry Bishop

Delightfully maintenance-free, this two story design begins with a stately facade, adds inviting double entry doors, and wraps the plan in a steep mansard roof. Minimum upkeep is guaranteed by the cedar shakes that layer the roof and the warm brick siding that envelops the exterior.

The Shelbyville, an expansive four bedroom plan, outlines ample rooms, including a spacious country kitchen, zoned formal and casual living areas, and a first floor laundry.

Entry is via double doors into the foyer, provided with a large closet. From this point, any area of the home is only steps away. Opening directly into the foyer is a stairway to the second floor, an area reserved for bedrooms and baths.

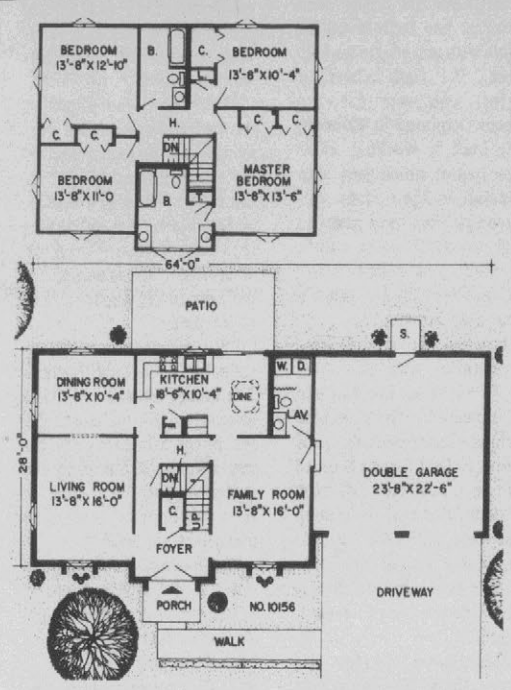

The master bedroom emerges as a luxurious retreat, indulged with privacy, plentiful closet space, and an extra large bath. Three more bedrooms and another full bath complete the upper level.

Living areas dominate the main level, with both living room and family room bordering the foyer. A formal dining room is cornered next to the kitchen and, with the living room, forms a gracious area for entertaining.

Sliding glass doors join the roomy eat-in kitchen to the pation and extend informal living areas outdoors. For family and friends, a sizable family room fills indoor needs and is edged by a combination laundry/half bath. The kitchen itself stretches over 18 feet to take in a dining area and a built-in pantry.

Storage space is provided in the full basement, which shows another 1144 sq. ft. of space for work or play. The double garage is also large and features an entry from the family room and from the rear yard.

In all, the Shelbyville offers 2288 sq. ft. of living space within its low-maintenance exterior.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A combination system that detects both fire and intruders with separate alarms for each.

Manufacturer's claim — That when an emergency occurs, a pre-recorded tape silently dials outside your home and-or sets off a piercing, steady alarm to warn of smoke or fire, while a pulsating alarm goes off to alert against intruders...that the fire detectors are surface-mounted on ceilings and react when a preset temperature limit is exceeded...that smoke detectors are surface-mounted on either walls or ceilings and are activated when abnormal smoke accumulates...that the intruder part of the system features two circuits for perimeters and interiors, one to guard points of entry, one to guard inside doors, plus the use of floor mats that can be hidden under rugs and carpeting.

THE PRODUCT — A new copper and brass cleaner.

Manufacturer's claim —That this cleaner can be used on all copper and brass pieces, such as chafing dishes, trays, serving pieces, antiques, display pieces and even the bottoms of pots and pans...that its non-abrasive formula won't scratch or harm copper and brass surfaces...that it does not require rubbing...that, in addition to removing tarnish, it has an anti-tarnish ingredient to keep items tarnish-free longer than ordinary cleaners.

THE PRODUCT — An acrylic latex blacktop crack sealer.

Manufactucer's claim — That it withstands the weather, drys quickly and cleans up easily with water before curing...that it may be walked on after one hour and cures tough overnight...that it can also be used for gutters, chimney flashing, roofs and above-ground foundations...that it comes in an 11-ounce cartridge that fits any conventional caulking gun.

THE PRODUCT — A timing device that can be used with any heating or cooling system controlled by a thermostat.

Manufacturer's claim — That it can be mounted to a wall under the thermostat to provide automatic day or night temperature setback...that it can be installed quickly without any technical skill...that you set the timer to go on and off when desired, with degree of temperature controlled at the unit.

(Thirty five do-it-yourself problems are covered in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

(The fire-intruder system is manufactured by Scovill, Madison and Red Bank Roads, Cincinnati, Ohio 45227; the cleaner by 3M Co., P.O. Gardening Questions

Q. The leaves of my camellia have yellow splotches on the top surface and white fuzzy material on the lower surface. What's the problem and what can I do about it? (P.W., Washington)

A. Your camellia is infested with tea scale. Tea scales reproduce throughout the year, but the best time to treat is in the spring after cold weather. Two applications 10 days apart should be sufficient. Cygon is a systemic pesticide which is very effective for the control of tea scales on camellias and other insect pests on azaleas, boxwoods, euonymus, roses, and a few other plants. Cygon can damage some hollies badly and should not be used on plants which are not listed on the label. Summer oil plus malathion will also control tea scales. (J.R. Baker, extension entomologist)

Q. The bottom leaves on my brussel sprouts fell off and the fruit never matured. We planted in several areas with different soils and the same thing happened each time. We also sprayed with Sevin. Can you help me? (G.B., Rocky Mount)

A. I strongly suspect you had a fertility problem. Either the amount of fertilizer was inadequate or the soil pH was too low. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. What can be done to hide tulip and narcissus foliage during that period when the foliage must die back before it can be removed? (Mrs. S.C., Eagle Springs)

A. It is wise to let the bulb foliage die down before it is removed, as the leaves are making food for next year's bloom. One of the surest and easiest ways of brightening up the bed is to plant seed of annuals directly in the beds among the bulbs. For example, sprinkle zinnia seed among the bulbs in April or May—after the ground has become warm and work zinnia seed carefully into the ground. Zinnias will benefit by the shade and protection which bulb foliage gives from driving rain and blazing sun. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Check Up On Your Contractor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Spring is the season for unscrupulous building contractors "working out of their glove compartments."

That timely reminder comes from Peter Johnson of Hackensack, N.J., president-elect of the National Home Remodelers Assn. which has just had its first consumer show in 43 years.

"There are good guys and bad guys in the business. People should learn how to sort them out," Johnson said.

In addition to the itinerant contractors cruising about neighborhoods looking for prospects, one must be alert also to choosing the right contractor from those called to estimate on a job.

"Lots of gimmicks are used. A contractor may suggest that if you hire him to put siding on your house, he will pay you a good fee for other business he picks up in your neighborhood. The model-house ploy.

"And there are fear tactics — your roof is about to collapse. Or maybe it is your chimney that will fall down. Or perhaps your furnace will blow up — unless you do something about it right away."

Many fraudulent representatives may be spotted by out-of-state license plates on their cars, he says. Or your suspicions might be aroused when he quickly knocks $1,000 off his top-of-the-head $5,000 appraisal of a job. Or he may even produce a fake card that introduces him as vice-president of a big building materials company.

When contracting with anyone to do a good-sized job, be sure to check him out, Johnson caustions. For example:

... The entire agreement should be put in writing. And you should plan to take the hour or so it might take to read even the fine print.

... If it is a sizeable job, make sure he will use an architect, even if he doesn't have one on his own staff.

.. He should have adequate insurance — property damage, liability and workmen's compensation. If the job will cost more than $2,000 ask for references — his banks and the companies he has done business with.

... How many years has he been in business under the same corporate name? If a long-time operator he will honor his guarantees, but if he has changed the name of his company many times, beware.

... Even if he is just building a porch, don't settle for a mere mention of dimensions in the contract. Get all the specifications. What kind of materials will be used? If a room is being added ask even about the molding. Will it be crown? Dentil? Cove? If you don't know what they are, ask to see a sample.

... There should be a clean-up clause in the contract. You don't want to be stuck with a pile of junk. The contract should specify the area will be broom-swept at least, and the debris removed from the premises.

... Make sure the contract states who will pay for the permit necessary to do the job. Some permits run as high as $200, and it is a point well worth settling in advance.

... Starting and completion dates should be incorporated into the contract. Weather, deliveries and other things can delay a project, but at least you will have something to work with. Contractors may need some grace period if they have been hampered by things beyond their control. But the job shouldn't lag. Some contractors take on a lot of jobs figuring they will fit them in when they get around to it.

A contractor for almost four decades, Johnson has been appalled at some of the shoddy work he has observed as co-chairman of the Better Contractors of New Jersey.

"One woman had a kitchen that a contractor had begun remodeling six months before and it was still a hideous mess. I suggested she should be rebated $700."

Some years ago to help inform consumers, Johnson published a book, "How to Guesstimate Remodeling and Home Improvements." It listed every kind of job and its probable cost to be used as a guide. Today, the book, which he privately published, carries a sticker advising the estimates must be increased by 25 per cent.

He believes in a strict code of ethics for contractors, one of his aims in his new post. He also says he will campaign for national uniform codes in home remodeling, although it might take many years to achieve such goals.

"In some towns you can't even put up a second roof which is ridiculous, whereas other towns would permit two or three, and there may be some that would permit four which would really be too much of a burden for a house," he says.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — I have a wooden boat that I soon will be getting into shape. In a few places, a strong adhesive will be required. What kind should I get?

A. — A resorcinal adhesive will do the job. It's a 100 per cent waterproof glue that comes in two containers. One holds a liquid resin, the other a powdered catalyst. Mix according to the directions.

Q. — I have my eye on a bathroom vanity top that I want my husband to install, since he is handy at such things. However, it is advertised as cultured marble. Does that mean it is inferior to natural marble?

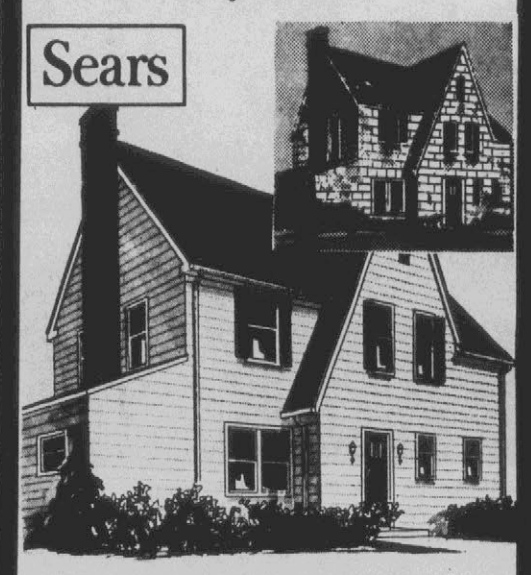

A. — Cultured marble is cast from finely pulverized natural stone combined with specially formulated polyester resins. That makes it nonporous, chemically resistant and crack resistant. It is an ideal product for a vanity top.

HOME BARGAINS

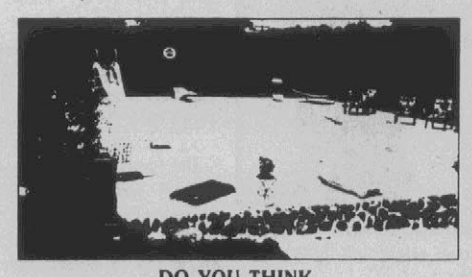

BOSTON (UPI) — The average American home has more space than it did 10 years ago and costs less than nearly everywhere else in the world, according to the Investors Mortgage Insurance Co. It says the average American home sells for around $40,000, while the average home in such places as Britain, France and Sweden, for example, sells at $46,000 and more.

Business Notes

ADVANCE IN RANK

The annual roll call of United States banks, featured in the "American Banker" daily newspaper, indicated Planters National Bank rated special recognition for having gained 13 places in rank since last year.

Notification was received by PNB president James B. Powers from Dominik J. Miscioni, executive vice president of the "American Banker."

Of approximately 14,000 banks in the nation, Planters National is currently in 407th position, as reflected in December of 1975 statements of condition. On Dec. 31, 1974, Planters ranked 420th.

COMPANY PROMOTIONS

Ivey Coward Termite & Pest Control Co. announced the promotion of Leroy Everett Jr. to the position of assistant manager and Charles Justice as the person in charge of the Rocky Mount and Tarboro operations.

Everett, who has been with the firm for four years, recently passed federal and Environmental Protection Agency certification examinations in the wood destroying and household pest control phases.

Justice, a member of the firm's staff for two years, has had experience in termite control, industrial pest control procedures, and household pest control.

ELECTED PRESIDENT

James R. Ridley, CLU, has been elected president of Integon Life Insurance Corp., the largest of seven corporations in the Integon family.

Ridley, currently senior vice president and director of operations of ITT Life Insurance Co., will become Integon Life's president on April 5.

The announcement was made on behalf of the corporation's board of directors by J. E. Collette, who currently serves in a dual capacity as president of the corporation and the life company. Collette will concentrate on long-range planning and corporate management.

AGENCY HONORED

Quixote Travels Inc. of Greenville was honored recently by Eastern Air Lines for being one of the top four agencies in the Raleigh-Durham area with increased sales for 1975.

Janet M. Stoughton, president of the travel agency, attended a luncheon in Raleigh recently to receive the recognition.

Quixote Travels is American Express representative for Eastern North Carolina, a member of International Air Transport Association and Air Traffic Conference.

GROSS LOANS FELL

Gross loans at 27 of the large commercial banks in the Fifth Federal Reserve District fell $47,598,000 during the week ended March 10, lowering the total outstanding to $16,085,813,000, according to the weekly survey conducted by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Loans to domestic commercial banks dropped $192,245,000 while loans net of these interbank transactions, or loans adjusted, increased $144,647,000.

Demand deposits went down $166,539,000 and time deposits decreased $15,206,000. Investments went up $99,043,000.

Included in the district are the District of Columbia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland and most of West Virginia.

NEW BUSINESS

Kathy and Alan Pittman and Richard and Peggy Briley announced the opening of Greenville's newest in-stock wall covering store, Creative Wall Covering located at 1207 W. 14th Street.

The owners announced that the firm has some 2,000 roles of wall covering in stock for in-store selection, as well as wall covering supplies and accessories.

Store features include a demonstration wall for consumers to practice their wall papering skills and a "Kiddy Korner" for children to utilize while their parents shop.

Creative Wall Covering, the owners noted, will assist in the coordination of wall paper with carpets, paints and draperies.

1975 FIGURES

Planters National Bank chairman and president James B. Powers reported to shareholders at the bank's annual meeting that per share earnings for PNB in 1975 increased 3.5 per cent.

Powers said that deposits advanced 11.9 per cent while loans moved up 5.7 per cent. Total assets at year end exceeded $250,000,000, an increase of 11.7 per cent or more than $26,000,000 over 1974.

S. Eugene West of Greenville was one of 19 directors elected by shareholders to serve for the coming year.

JOINED FIRM

Greenville native Nancy H. Roe has joined Realty Associates of Hilton Head Island as a sales executive and broker, the firm announced.

In her new position with the real estate firm, Mrs. Roe will assist the company's residential and commercial sales activities throughout the private residential communities and major subdivisions of Hilton Head Island, Realty Associates reported.

Mrs. Roe is a graduate of Duke University.

SALES DIRECTOR

Glenn W. Bunting Jr. has been appointed district sales director for the state of North Carolina for CMI Investment Corp., Madison, Wis., and its largest subsidiary, Continental Mortgage Insurance Inc.

Bunting, a native of Durham, is a graduate of Campbell College.

CMI's other subsidiaries include Commercial Mortage Insurance Inc. and Management Data Systems Inc.

Family Loans At Record Volume

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America says single-family loans reached a record volume of $15 billion in 1975.

It says this was 16 per cent above the previous record of $13.3 billion set in 1972.

Builds Paper Clip Models

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — James Traynor began an unusual hobby — paper clip sculpture — after a wrought iron decoration caught his eye.

In the past year, Traynor has completed a half-dozen metal mini-sculptures including a car, locomotive, airplane and bicycle at a bargain price.

"I liked the wrought iron work, but I didn't have the money or place to work on something that big, so I decided to try it on a smaller scale," he said.

Although the cost may be low — $20 so far — and not much space is needed, the tiny twisted and soldered works of art take just as much time as a larger piece, Traynor said.

"My first project took me 15 to 20 hours of actual work," he said, pointing to a small antique car. Part of the complexity involves cutting, bending, molding and soldering the small steel links into the right shapes.

Traynor, 25, uses no models in his work; all the designs come out of his memory.

"I just try and plan ahead and solder as few connecting points as possible to give the finished product a more streamlined look," he said.

His only previous experience in modeling has been the plastic kits most youngsters put together with glue, he said. Traynor has had no formal art training.

Traynor, an employe of the Internal Revenue Service Center here, says his future plans include making nautical pieces like a sailboat or a replica of the U.S.S. Constitution.

"All of my projects took only three boxes of paper clips, which I bought myself," he said.

Orange Industry Dates To 1873

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — The California orange industry can be traced to Brazil.

A farmer's wife in Riverside in 1873 sent for two seedless orange trees from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. She planted them near her kitchen door and watered them with dishwater. The trees belonged to the Washington navel variety originally imported from Brazil.

The two trees adapted themselves to the California climate and within a few years a industry was born.

Seminar Series For Employes

MIDLAND, Mich. (UPI) — Dow Chemical U.S.A. has launched a series of employe seminars on the decision-making process in Washington, designed to increase employe participation in government.

The program, called "It's Your Government, Too!," is being made available to the more than 30,000 employes nationwide. And, according to Dow U.S.A. president Paul F. Oreffice, the program is being offered to other interested organizations.

HOME CARE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Home care, not hospitalization, often speeds a patient's recovery from illness or accident, says the Health Insurance Institute. An institute study also indicated that familiar surroundings are preferred for the aged and those with chronic illnesses such as arthritis.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARINGS BEFORE THE N. C. LAND POLICY COUNCIL

Notice is hereby given that public hearings will be held by the North Carolina Land Policy Council:

Wednesday, April 7, 2:00 p.m. — Commissioners' Room, No. 700, Wake County Courthouse, Raleigh, North Carolina.

Wednesday, April 21, 7:00 p.m. — Superior Court Courtroom, 2nd Floor Courthouse Building (new wing), Corner of Evans and 3rd Streets, Greenville, North Carolina.

Thursday, April 22, 2:00 p.m. — Cumberland County Office Building, Highway 301 South, Fayetteville, North Carolina (parking at Cumberland County Memorial Auditorium)

The purpose of these hearings is to receive comment on a draft proposal entitled "A Land Policy Program for North Carolina." This proposal, prepared pursuant to the Land Policy Act of 1974 (G.S. 113A-150 to 113A-159), contains recommendations for a State land use policy and for a land classification system. The proposed policy and land classification system are to be presented to the Governor by July 1, 1976.

PUBLIC NOTICES

Interested persons may present their comments orally or in writing at the hearing. Those unable to attend the hearings are encouraged to send written comments (no later than May 5, 1976) addressed to: Mr. Stephen C. Thomson, Director of Land Policy, Office of State Planning, 116 West Jones Street, Raleigh, North Carolina 27603.

Reading copies of the proposed Land Policy Program will be available as of March 22, 1976, at the Lead Regional Organizations and at the State Clearinghouse and Information Center, 116 West Jones Street, Raleigh, N.C. Copies of the proposal have also been sent to the Chairmen of the Boards of County Commissions, Mayors, and Town Clerks or City Managers. Additional copies may be obtained on request by writing or calling (919) 829-4131 the Office of State Planning.

For the inexperienced 21 and over this could be it!

We're looking for inexperienced individuals who want an above average income, enjoy helping people, want to be respected by their family and friends as a professional, who do not want to punch a time clock and do not mind working unusual hours.

Our representatives are highly skilled, highly paid professionals who interview prospective students for educational programs in various academic and technical fields. We prefer to fully train new representatives in our successful sales methods. Past experience in our field is definitely not an asset. If you are looking for a secure career with an established World Wide Company, this could be the opportunity you've been waiting for. Sound interesting? Call Mr. Pickren at (919) 828-4688, Monday or Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

COSMETIC SALES

We are establishing a Cosmetic Sales Organization in Pitt County, and we need sales personnel, full and part time, with a minimum of 2 days per week.
Persons must be sophisticated, neat, honest and willing to apply themselves since we will train in sales and have a Master Cosmetician train you in product and product use. When we say sophisticated, this is truly what we mean. Working will be in pleasant surroundings and — does not — include door to door sales nor telephone solicitation. This truly is an excellent opportunity for the right persons who want to learn, work and be well compensated. If interested, call Greenville 758-2198 for an appointment for an interview.

SALES PART-TIME. $90 to $100 per week. Local firm needs part time representative to show Paul Harvey fire safety film during the evening. Prefer married candidates with auto. Excellent income opportunity. No experience required. Will train. Call 758-2107 from 9 to 5 or 758-0048 after 7 p.m.

AVON TO BUY OR SELL . . . at new low prices. Call for more information, 758-2444.

12 MONTHS OR 12,000 MILES USED CAR WARRANTY

Most good used cars, if they're guaranteed at all, are only covered for a month or two. At Tarheel Toyota, we're just as willing to back our good used cars as our good new cars. So we guarantee the motor, transmission and rear end for 12 months or 12,000 miles. This warranty applies to all cars selling for more than $1000.00 or more on a 50-50 basis with all work being done in our shop. It doesn't apply to any sports cars, high performance engines or 4 speed transmissions (except economy cars). If you're in the market for a BETTER USED CAR, COME OUT AND LOOK AT OURS. We'll show you some as good as new. Guaranteed. (Owners name furnished upon request.)

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MARCH 22, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Bigwigs are not disposed to grant favors in early part of day as they are overly occupied with own concerns. Late afternoon, evening are fine for putting in operation an interesting new course of action that can solve whatever problems face you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Safeguard your present position; try to gain the goodwill of the influential. Then you get ahead faster. Improve credit.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get busy at duties instead of making new contacts or going to new places that appeal. Evening is fine for enjoying friends.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get work done. You can make the evening a romantic one. Your intuition is faulty during day, but accurate in p.m.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Steer clear of arguments with partners since they could bring dire results. Iron out any differences tonight objectively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get difficult jobs out of the way early, then tackle the pleasant. Take treatments to improve health. Have a happy p.m.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make the appointments early with congenials for having a good time after work. Avoid tendency to overspend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use particular care in handling your affairs to avoid trouble. Entertain at home in p.m. Avoid taking risks outside.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Not a good day to contact those who are overly sensitive and not thinking logically, but the evening is fine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Monetary affairs are a nuisance to you right now, but require more than average care in handling just the same.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You want to make radical changes because you are feeling upset, but try to improve your health instead. Out socially later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to improve conditions that do not now appeal to you and get good results. Use tact with mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your ideas may be beyond the ken of friends, so do not confide in them. Be cagey. Attend to important business. A social p.m.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 21, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Consult wise persons who can be of help to you instead of going off on a time-wasting tangent. Take it easy tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your hunches are off today but your judgment is good, so rely on that exclusively. Don't neglect important duty.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend the services of your choice early in the day. Later engage in favorite hobby. Show more devotion to mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Fine day for resting. Avoid getting into troublesome situation. Meditation could yield excellent results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Not a good day to indulge in untried activities which you could regret later. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to exercise diplomacy at home if you wish to achieve harmony. Take time to study a new interest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Exercise a great deal of care in movement today and steer clear of any danger. A good time to visit old friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Fine day for thinking of constructive ways to advance in your career. Make long-range plans for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Fine day for thinking about how to advance in your line of endeavor. Improve your physical condition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan some time for finding ways to make the future brighter for yourself. Show more thought for the one you love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day to see friends with whom you have had any misunderstanding. Do some studying and avoid the social. Take it easy tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure you follow every regulation that applies to you. Be careful of those who have an eye on your assets.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she must be taught to have more tact, otherwise the life here could be most difficult in dealing with others. This could be a most successful chart if you encourage the study of foreign language early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

'Man From SCS' Is Attractive Woman

By FRANK JETER JR.
USDA-Soil Conservation Service

When folks in rural or urban areas ask for assistance from the Soil Conservation Service, they accept it as routine when the SCS man shows up to help plan conservation cropping on farmland, to provide data for suburban land use, or to aid with a flooding or erosion problem.

But in recent months some citizens in Mecklenburg County have honestly been surprised when the "man from the SCS" turned out to be an attractive young woman. Some have also appeared surprised when she tackled the task at hand in a businesslike manner.

It's a serious matter to Miriam G. Bailey, even though she often shows her attractive smile while on the job. She is proud of her competence in her chosen profession (and has recently received a good promotion for her knowledge and attention to professional duties) and is perfectly willing to take on any job that another "man from SCS" will do.

In her year-and-a-half on the job, she has staked out ponds for heavy equipment to dig, has designed terraces to control water run-off, has planned grassed waterways and advised farmers on ways to improve their pasture—as well as their conservation program. Her clients appreciate her services.

She comes to her chosen profession honestly. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Bailey of the Woodleaf community in rural Rowan County, not far from her present assignment, she was raised on a farm with her two brothers and two sisters. In high school she was disappointed because she couldn't join the Future Farmers of America chapter. After all, wasn't she feeding baby calves on her parents' farm?

On the farm her father (with help from his five children) grew tomatoes and other produce, ran a dairy herd, and experimented with greenhouse tomatoes to raise his family.

After high school, Miriam Bailey went to North Carolina State University at Raleigh, where she started majoring in aerospace engineering. After only one year, she switched to the School of Forestry and graduated with a B.S. in conservation, following three years of concentrating on the subject of her future profession.

Begins Employment

She was employed by the Soil Conservation Service after graduation, and reported to the Charlotte SCS office in July, 1974, as a soil conservationist. "It was a good day's work when we hired Miriam," says District Conservationist Braxton Williams, who heads that office and gave the new soil conservationist her first on-the-job training.

"She is making a real contribution."

Miriam Bailey has shown talent as a draftsman, and can design ponds and similar structures with an expert hand. "She also has a good engineering touch," says Braxton Williams.

But she has interests beyond these agricultural pursuits. She does a good job of preparing inventory and evaluation reports of natural resources, to help people solve problems ranging from land not suitable for septic tanks to optimum use of rural tracts. But Miriam Bailey also enjoys working with young people, and lends support to another popular area of SCS technical assistance, the outdoor classroom or environmental laboratory. She has interested dozens of classes in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County's combined school systems in this in new educational technique, where young people "learn by doing" rather than from a textbook alone.

Project Moves

In fact, she is working with Mrs. Pat Frances, the environmental helping teacher in the system, to get a nature trail or outdoor classroom in each of the 105 public schools in the populous county. The project is moving right along.

When Miriam Bailey is on the job, she's all business. She drives a green pick-up-truck just like other soil conservationists, and carries her own level and other tools to do the job. Her attire reflects the workaday necessity of working in fields, in woods and on farms. Off duty, she dresses as attractively as any pretty young woman, and lets her long hair down—literally.

She admits that she's glad that in the recent public election of supervisors of the Mecklenburg Soil and Water Conservation District—the organization of volunteer leaders who lend direction to SCS activities—one female member was elected along with four men. In fact, the distaff supervisor is also president of the Audubon Society and seriously concerned about environmental quality.

Miriam Bailey makes it clear that she's not just marking time in her rather rare choice of careers. She intends to work diligently and see just what opportunities exist in what has been called "a man's field."

So far she likes what she has seen. So do the male conservationists who work with her.

LIKE OTHER SCS EMPLOYES . . . who do extensive field work, Ms. Bailey operates a pick-up truck across all types of terrain.

SOIL CONSERVATIONIST . . . Miriam Bailey uses her transit as she compiles scientific data for a landowner. In the background is Roger Leab, soil scientist.

IN LEISURE CIRCUMSTANCES . . . more generally associated with attractive young women, Ms. Bailey's femininity is evident. (USDA Soil Conservation Service photos by Frank H. Jeter Jr.

Image Problem Hinders Co-Ops

Lately a lot of people have been talking about farmer cooperatives—but some food industry leaders feel that many of these people are not as knowledgeable as they might be about co-ops, says Kenneth D. Naden, president of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

Naden wants co-ops to be recognized as key contributors to the strength of modern American agriculture, but he believes that many people will have to be educated about co-ops to achieve this recognition.

"During the past few years, the nation has been exposed to a wave of publicity about farmer cooperatives—some of it damaging," Naden said recently. "As a result, some people may have questionable attitudes about co-ops, even though only a few of them actually understand what a co-op is and how it works.

"It's true that today's food prices, along with adverse publicity about a few dairy cooperatives, have contributed to an image problem that farmers and their cooperatives must deal with," he added. "But co-ops have done far more for the good of the country than they're given credit for. It's the severely limited knowledge and understanding that Americans have of co-ops and co-op activities that does the most damage."

Not Just Ordinary Corporations

To Naden, the tendency of people to view a co-op as "just another big corporation" is one of the worst misconceptions cooperatives face today—and one that informed opinion can change.

"When people put co-ops into the same category with businesses like GM, Exxon or Borden's, they lose sight of the features that set co-ops apart from conventional corporations," Naden stated. "They overlook the fact that co-ops are self-help enterprises that help keep the independent family farmer in business.

"We should all be concerned about the fate of the family farmer," Naden said. "He has proven to be the most efficient producer of food the world has ever seen. If it weren't for that efficiency, we'd be paying a lot more for our food, and there'd be less food available."

"Co-ops are owned and governed democratically by farmers themselves, not by a group of outside investors," he continued. "They're non-profit organizations that operate at cost; returns on capital invested to establish a cooperative are very limited."

The NCFC president also indicated that while farmer-members do receive refunds proportionate to individual participation after expenses, their biggest benefits are those realized by working together in an organized manner to fulfill common needs.

The Future Isn't Now

What do farmers get from co-op membership in place of high profits? A secure market for their products, according to Naden.

"For small farmers, the phrase 'the future is now' is meaningless," Naden said. "Because of the size of their investments in land and machinery, they have to be able to plan their crops and herds long in advance—and hope that there's a market for these items at harvest time. If they sell their products to non co-op food companies, they can never be completely sure of a market; the company can stop buying and look elsewhere at any time, without warning.

"Co-ops provide a market where farmers' crops can be sold at fair prices year after year," he continued. "They give the farmer a hedge for his investments. And they go a long way toward giving him the kind of 'job security' that people in other walks of life take for granted."

Naden feels that by giving farmers the chance to establish sound, durable operations, co-ops have been a big factor in maintaining a strong agricultural system with bountiful harvests and reasonable prices at retail.

Relief for Homemakers' Headaches

High food prices are one of the American homemaker's biggest headaches, and Naden would not deny that co-ops occasionally raise prices for their products. But he emphasized the point that co-ops are less interested in how high a price they can get for a product than they are in how long-lasting a market they can build for a product. This, he feels, makes him strong marketplace competitors.

"Because farmer cooperatives operate at cost, they often sacrifice some short-term advantages," Naden explained. "That's why prices for co-op products tend to be more stable than similar products from private companies. By

Men And Women Learn Breadmaking As An Art

By MINDY YOCHELSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The scene: a church social hall. The cast: about 200 men and women of assorted ages. They are sitting at tables mixing sticky bread dough in plastic bowls.

After the 49th arm-aching stroke, the smiling woman on the red-and-white draped podium tells the group: "You can add a little more flour — just don't get stuck up." The class snickers.

This is Breadmake, grandchild of the taffy pull and brainchild of Gloria and Elman (E.J.) Folkenberg of suburban Silver Spring, Md.

The Folkenbergs met three years ago when 32-year old Gloria was doing cooking demonstrations at churches and clubs. Elman had worked in health education in England and had been involved in the Five Day Plan to Stop Smoking.

Both are Seventh Day Adventists. They believe the body is the temple of God and must be kept healthy. Their bread project evolved from a course they called "Steps Toward Total Health," whose students expressed an interest in making their own bread.

In an interview, Mrs. Folkenberg said she looked for an easier, quicker method than the traditional five-hour recipe. At the Agriculture Department library, she studied how ingredients react together to reduce rising time.

Then she developed a recipe for a light loaf of whole grain bread that can rest 20 minutes, be punched down and shaped, come up for the final rise of one hour and bake 35 minutes at 350 degrees.

The Folkenbergs believe breadmaking requires more than a recipe.

"You have to develop a feeling for it. Weather and other conditions affect how it's going to turn out," she said.

The Montgomery County Workshop for the Handicapped assembles kits containing flour especially packaged in small pouches, utensils, ingredients, an apron and two packaged towelettes.

The students make bread in unison while a teacher calls out instructions.

The sessions are under the auspices of adult education facilities, community recreation departments, churches and parent-teacher associations throughout the Washington, D.C., area. The cost: $4.95 for a two-hour session.

"If you consider $4.95 for learning a lifetime skill, and the fact that you can save 40 or 50 cents on a loaf of bread, it doesn't take long to save all the investment the person makes to come," Mrs. Folkenberg said.

The class begins with a lecture on fiber in the diet. While the dough rises, Mrs. Folkenberg answers questions. Everyone takes home the two loaves of unbaked bread each has made in class.

With six other teachers, the Folkenbergs say they have taught more than 10,000 persons how to make bread. They plan to introduce classes in other Maryland cities by the end of the year, and in the remainder of the country in the future, either personally or by franchise.

Their Hot Bread Line has taken as many as 750 reservations in one day. It also offers advice to troubled bread makers.

Mrs. Folkenberg feels the program is successful because "people are interested in getting back to basics. They're fed up with food they have to buy on (the) market."

Student Judith Arnold, 35, of Silver Spring said she was apprehensive at first about working with yeast.

"I was concerned about preservatives in foods and wanted to make wholesome fiber bread for my children," she said.

Mrs. Arnold has since branched out to bagels, Syrian bread, English muffins and light and dark rye, and has involved her children in the kneading process.

The Folkenbergs have worked with children as young as 5 at summer camps.

The Folkenbergs consider bread making a healthy release for tensions.

"During the punchdown stage one night," Mrs. Folkenberg said, laughing, "we overheard one man saying 'and this one's for the boss.'

"More and more men, as they feel somewhat liberated, are beginning to make bread.

"Bread making is not a female thing only. It's a very physical, robust thing. A lot of men are good bread makers."

Charles Gailis, a 37-year-old graphics designer, said he had baked bread once before, but "it had turned out like a brick." Because he and his wife share cooking chores at home, he joined Breadmake and brought his wife along as a spectator.

"The mass community of everyone kneading bread was great experience. And rushing home at 10 o'clock to watch it rise, and then eating hot bread at midnight is a fun way to end the day," Gailis said.

Miss Connie Nobles Is Bride

KINSTON—Miss Connie Lynn Nobles and Dr. Rudolph Ivey Mintz Jr., both of Kinston, were united in marriage Saturday at 5:00 p.m. in a candlelight ceremony at Gordon Street Christian Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. David Alexander. A program of nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Gail Cooper, organist, and Dr. Ross Fogleman, soloist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. Bobby Eugene Nobles of Ayden, and Mrs. Jeanette Worthington Pate of Kinston, and Mrs. Rudolph Ivey Mintz and the late Judge R. I. Mintz of Wilmington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of candlelight silk sata peau over peau de soie and peau d'ange lace. The gown was designed with a natural waistline, high neckline and fitted sleeves. Motifs of lace, centered with pearls, embellished the gown. The A-line skirt, bordered with scalloped lace, fell into a chapel length train.

The chapel length mantilla of imported silk illusion was bordered with matching lace and was attached to a Juliet cap centered with pearls. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white butterfly roses, snow drift poms and gysophilia, tied with candelight satin ribbon and accented with ivy.

Mrs. Diane B. Smith of Greenville was maton of honor. Serving as bridesmaids were Miss Mahmette Gerrans, Mrs. Earlene B. Cummings and Miss Betty Zack, all of Kinston, Mrs. Ann L. Beddard of Wilson; Mrs. Susan J. Elkins of Fayetteville, Miss Janeth Evans of Charlotte, and Mrs. Debra S. Guthrie of Rocky Mount. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Sherry Worthington of Ayden and Miss Delores Worthington of Raleigh, both cousins of the bride.

They wore formal length gowns of seafoam maracaine jersey styled with Queen Anne collars and long fitted sleeves. Ivory Venise lace trimmed their collars. The A-line skirts fell from empire waistlines. They carried arm bouquets of sonia roses with matching ribbon and springerii fern.

Miss Ashley Blair Cummings of Kinston served as flower girl. She wore a floor length dress of green and white marquesette over green and white gingham, with pink and green embroidered flowers on the bodice.

Serving as best man was Dr. Bennett W. LaPrade of Kinston. Ushers were Dr. Fuller Honeycutt of Wilkesboro, Dr. Douglas Hill of Kinston, Herbert William Pate Jr. of Boston, Mass., Bennett LaPrade Jr. of Kinston, and Dr. James Starling of Danville, Va.

After a wedding trip to St. Croix, Virgin Islands, and Puerto Rico, the couple will reside in Kinston.

The bride is employed by the Kinston City Schools. She is a graduate of Peace College and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The bridegroom is in the practice of obstetrics and gynecology in Kinston. He received his academic and medical education at the University of North Carolina. His internship and residency training was at the Medical School of the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church fellowhip hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dean Evans.

Mrs. Jayne Worthington and Mrs. Janice Worthington, aunts of the bride, attended the bridal registry. Good-byes were said by Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Parker Jr.

The bridegroom's family gave a brunch Saturday morning for out-of-town guests and members of the wedding party at the Kinston Country Club.

On Friday night, friends of the couple entertained at a cocktail-buffet at the Kinston Country Club following the rehearsal.

The bride's attendants were honored at a luncheon Friday at the Kinston Country Club given by Mrs. C. E. Gerrans. Mothers of the bridal couple also attended.

'The Man From SCS'...

maintaining higher quality and offering more stable prices, co-ops try to keep customers satisfied and willing to come back for more.

"Other food companies don't always share this long-term view of food markets," he added. "They often enter and exit markets at will, and sometimes set prices so high that the public just won't buy a particular food product. This can destroy a market. It can leave farmers without a place to sell their products.

The co-op presence in food markets is, in Naden's opinion, good for both farmers and consumers. It has a stabilizing influence on prices, and by stimulating competition, it forces all food businesses to provide a steady flow of top-quality products. While this isn't a cure-all for supermarket inflation, Naden feels that it helps ease the pain in shoppers' pocketbooks.

The Right to Serve America

In closing, Naden reaffirmed his belief in the right of farmer cooperatives to serve America as they have in the past—and told why this right should be preserved.

"Farmer cooperatives' record of service to the nation and their long-standing tradition of searching for ways to improve their service far outweigh the mistakes of a few cooperatives," he said. "The evidence indicates that America would have less food at lower quality and higher prices if co-ops hadn't made it easier for family farmers to stay in business.

"For this reason, co-ops deserve the right to continue serving America. Service to both farmers and consumers is what co-ops are all about."

Mrs. Creech Gives Program

AYDEN — The Tea and Topics Book Club met at the home of Mrs. Martha Davis. The speaker for the evening was Mrs. Sue Creech of First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Mrs. Creech gave a program on the Individual Retirement Plan which was created by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974. Mrs. Creech explained how the plan was designed to provide a tax benefit for retirement savings.

Plans were discussed by the club members to attend a tour of homes in New Bern in celebration of the Bicentennial. Mrs. Mary Stoneham, president, gave the members present reading on facts relating to the bicentennial celebration.

Don Lennon Is Speaker

The Home Life Department of the Greenville Woman's Club met at the club building Tuesday afternoon. Don Lennon, head of the manuscript collection at East Carolina University, was the speaker.

He gave a report of the types of materials collected, the value and use of these materials to help students and others.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Helen Gray Perkins, Mrs. Helen Whiteford, Mrs. Florence Holt, Mrs. Lib Respess and Mrs. Mildred Manning.

Mrs. Leila Rives was presented a gift and honored in observance of her 89th birthday.

Summer Weddings Are Planned By Brides-To-Be

MISS LOUISE MITCHELL WILKERSON . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Moseley Wilkerson of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Herbert Edwards Perry Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Edwards Perry of Durham. The wedding will take place May 22.

MISS BENET BERARD . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Berard of Orinda, Calif., who announce her engagement to Brent Terry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Terry of Strathmore, Calif. The wedding will take place in early summer.

MISS CAROL ANN HACKETT . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Hackett of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Alan Bruce Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Cameron of Schroon Lake, N.Y. The wedding will take place May 28.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Louise Wilkerson and Herb Perry became engaged while she was living in Atlanta and he was in Durham, making for a long engagement since November, 1974.

They met when they lived in the same co-ed dormitory at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where they both graduated. The bride-elect received her master's degree from Emory University, Atlanta. She heads the East Branch Library here and her fiance is employed at Globe Hardware.

There is much confusion caused by the abundance of "Herberts" in the family—there are two in both the bride-elect's and bridegroom-elect's family.

The couple will exchange wedding vows May 22 in a ceremony in Immanuel Baptist Church.

An early summer wedding is being planned by Benet Berard and Brent Terry. Benet's mother is the former Kathryn Youngblood of Greenville and her grandmother is Mrs. J. C. Youngblood, who resides here.

The bride-elect graduated in 1974 from Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo campus, with a B. S. in journalism. While on campus, she received a Technical Certificate in ornamental horticulture. She was employed by the journalism department while in school and also worked as an instructor at the Academy of Dance in San Luis Obispo, Calif. She is currently working in Danville, Calif.

Her fiance is currently completing his education at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, as a business-economics major. He has been employed by Heavenly Valley in the professional ski patrol at Lake Tahoe.

Following their wedding, the couple hope to make their home in the Lake Tahoe area.

"Women Look at Women," a Library of Congress traveling exhibit of photographs of women taken by 30 women photographers from the 1890's to the present, will be on display in the lobby of the East Carolina University campus library March 28 through April 25.

A vivid illustration of the history of American women since the advent of the camera, the exhibit includes early posed goddess-images, romantic portraiture, social commentary and depictions of poverty among rural depression-era farm women.

Highlights of the exhibit are "Rosie the Riveter"—type photos from the 40's, when masses of women were mobilized to assume hitherto males-only jobs for the war effort. Post-war women are represented in society portraiture, fashion photography, news photos and portraits of personal expression.

Photographers represented include Emma Farnsworth, Marjory Collins, Margaret Bourke-White, Roberta Booth and Diane Arbus.

The show is open to the public every day and evening until the library closes and is scheduled in conjunction with ECU's Women's Awareness Week, April 4-10.

Send Ex's Family Separate Invitation

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am in a terrible quandary. We are having a formal affair for my son's bar mitzvah. My brother and his wife recently separated and are living apart. I don't know whether they will eventually patch up their differences or go through with the divorce.

Should I invite my sister-in-law? We always got along well, and I am very fond of her. Should I send her and my brother separate invitations at their respective addresses? And how about her parents? I like them, too.

IN A QUANDARY

DEAR IN: Send a separate invitation to your sister-in-law and also one to her parents, and let them decide whether or not to accept.

DEAR ABBY: I am amazed at your chauvinistic put-down of women who accept attentions from married men. You fail to mention the men who pester married women, often without any encouragement.

And what about the wife who treats her husband like a second-class citizen and refuses sex, but is hurt and martyred when he finds another woman with whom to share love and companionship?

Many unhappy marriages have been saved by the "other woman," who provides a much-needed oasis for the unhappily married man and sends him back to his wife refreshed and renewed.

It's time wives assumed some of the responsibility for the reason their husbands stray. It's also time that we face the horrible truth that wives also stray with "cruel, inconsiderate, stupid and short-sighted" MALES.

FOR EQUALITY

DEAR FOR EQUALITY: If a marriage must be "saved" by the "other woman" [or the "other man"] who provides a "much-needed oasis" and sends the lover home "refreshed and renewed," I think all concerned should take a good, hard look at the marriage. Such marriages are for masochists.

DEAR ABBY: A waitress signed WANTS TO PLEASE wrote a long list of complaints against customers. The one that irritated me the most was, "Please do not summon the waitress by snapping your fingers, whistling or hollering, 'Hey, Girlie!' "

Now I have a question. I eat in restaurants often, and I have a terrible time getting the attention of my waitress.

What is the correct procedure? I have tried the following: Signaling silently to any waitress whose eye I catch, hoping she will fill my water glass or coffee cup, or bring me my check. She gives me a stony look and says, "This isn't my station!"

Then I ask, "Will you please tell the waitress whose station this IS that I would like some attention?

She doesn't say yes, no or go jump in the lake. She just walks away.

I have waited so long for my waitress that I have actually gotten up from my chair and have gone looking for her!

If you have any suggestions for getting a waitress' attention when she is busy making eyes at the bartender or in the kitchen gabbing with the help back there, please let me have it. I have even become so disgusted that I have started for the door. THEN someone runs after me with my check. Perhaps that is the way to get attention.

DISGUSTED IN CHICAGO

DEAR DISGUSTED: Perhaps! (P.S. Meanwhile, easy, man. You sound like a candidate for a coronary.)

FAIR TRADE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Goods Pricing Act of 1975 that became effective March 12 makes it illegal for manufacturers to fix prices of consumer products sold by retailers. This legislation repealed fair trade laws, and makes it possible for retailers to set prices on a more competitive basis.

Miller-Jones Vows Exchanged

Joyce Marie Jones and Jerry Earl Miller, both of Greenville, were united in marriage Saturday in a double ring ceremony at Parker's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Philip Cooper at 7:00 p.m. A program of nuptial music was provided by organist Debra Speight of Greenville and soloist Greg Tripp of Greenville, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Jones, of Rt. 8, Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. John Langley Miller, of Rt. 7, Greenville.

The bride and bridegroom lighted the middle taper of a three branched candelabra together to symbolize their union. They knelt on a white prie dieu for the benediction and remembered each of their mothers with a long stemmed red rose as they left the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of white silk organza over peau de soie. The empire bodice featured a scooped neckline with Venise lace. The full, sheer bishop sleeves were finished at the cuff with matching lace. The full a-line skirt was embellished with rows of Venise lace which continued around the chapel length train.

Her headpiece was composed of layers of silk illusion bordered with Venise lace amd attached to a Cemelot cap of matching lace. She carried a white Bible covered with lace and a spray of red sweetheart roses with baby's breath. She wore a string of pearls.

Karen Jones of Greenville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Vonnie Jones of Nashville, Tenn., sister-in-law of the bride, Joanne Mosley of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom Alice Martin of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, and Sheryl Buck of Greenville. Honorary attendants were Donna Miller, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Debra Lewis and Brenda Pollard all of Greenville, cousins of the bride.

All attendants wore green and blue floral dresses which featured empire waistlines. Ruffles completemented the bodices. The maid of honor and bridesmaids carried bouquets of white daisies and baby's breath. Honor attendants carried long stemmed white mums.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Carl Miller of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, Dennis Jones of Nashville, Tenn., brother of the bride and Billy Mosley and Graham Stokes, both of Greenville.

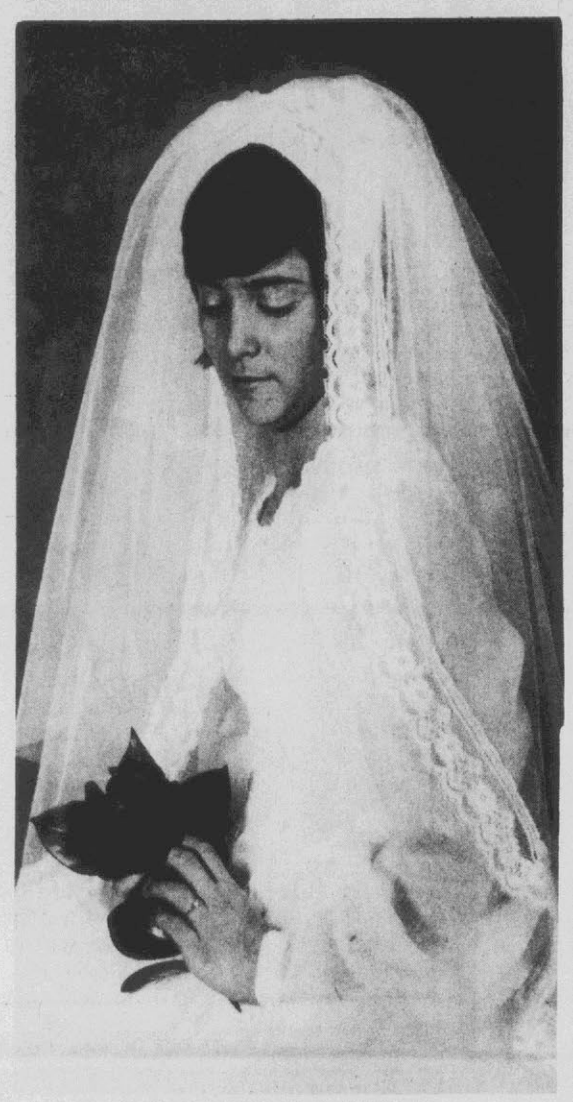

The mother of the bride wore a long green and white polyester knit dress with a green vest. The mother of the bridegroom wore a long blue polyester knit dress with a blue jacket. Each wore a corsage of miniature carnations.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Margaret Lander of Greenville. Glenda Dickerson of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, served at the register.

A cake-cutting was held at the church fellowship hall after the rehearsal for members of the wedding party and friends.

After a wedding trip to Virginia, the couple will reside at Rt. 4, Greenville.

The bride is employed at Prepshirt. The bridegroom is employed at Cox Armature.

Greeting cards were originally born out of the need to say for people what they couldn't say for themselves.

I once gave my mother a card depicting a little girl in a hooped skirt knocking on the door of a cottage and saying, "You bask in the sunshine of sweetness and light . . . and make all my dreams come true . . . prithee reap the harvest of all my love . . . in everything you do. Happy birthday.,"

Mother smiled and said, "It sounds just like you."

"Prithee, mother," I said, "you've been basking in the sunshine too long. All I wanted to say was I'm not much, but I'm all you can afford."

Not so today. I've never seen so many cards for so many occasions saying greetings in so many ways in all my life.

Some of them you can even send through the mails.

If you put your foot in your mouth and are sorry, there's a card for it.

If you won a tennis tournament, a diploma in sheet-metal, a divorce, or passed your eye examination, there's a card for it.

I even saw one that said, "I love living with you because I've got a case on you." When you open it up, it threatens, "Marry me or I'm taking you to court."

There are marriage proposals, business proposals, vacation proposals and some proposals that are just plain indecent.

I was picking out a Valentine for my husband when a salesperson asked if she could help. "I'd like something a little sentimental." "Here's one," she said, handing me a card. My ears turned red. "You wanta see my I.D.?"

"That one's not so bad," she said. "We had one that was waterproof so you could read it under a cold shower. Just tell me what you want to say and how you want to say it."

"Maybe I'll just get a Mother's Day card."

"Unwed? Underage? Unwanted? Undone? Unsung? Unexpected? Underfoot?"

"Just something that will sound like me."

"Here's one that might fit you. It's a little strange. 'You bask in the sunshine of sweetness and light and make all my dreams in accord . . . prithee, mother, you know I'm not much . . . but face it, I'm all you can afford."

Good grief.

Sewing Class Makes Its Own Dress Forms

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Each of 15 home economics students at Oklahoma State University has an exact representation of her body to use in a clothing course, thanks to a do-it-yourself dress form project.

For about $50 less than the cost of a commercial foam dress form the students made their own polyurethane foam forms to use in an advanced draping course. The method was developed about five years ago by Norma Holland, emeritus professor of textiles and clothing at Iowa State University.

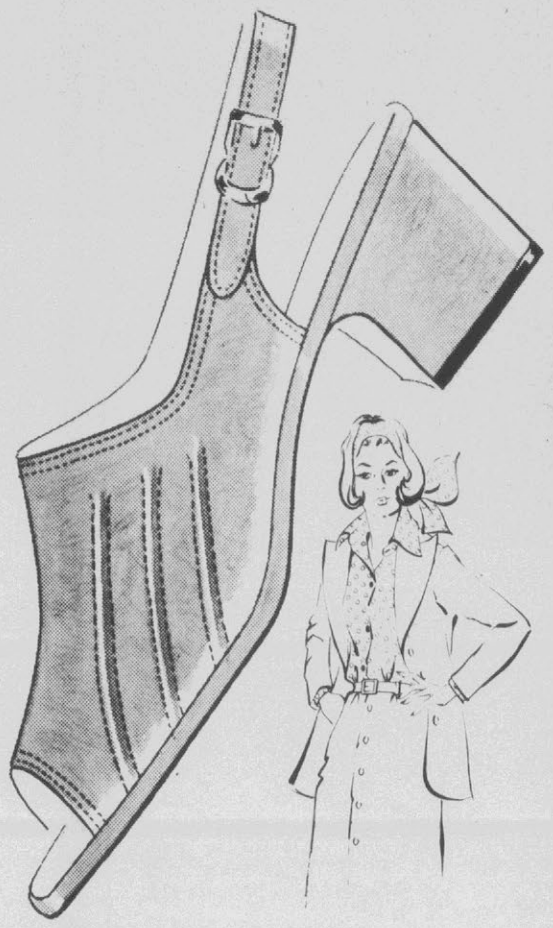

While engaged in the project the students at times looked like surgeons, chemists or carpenters because of the gauze, chemicals and equipment they were using.

Assistant Prof. Regine Brinkerhoff, teacher of the course, bought surgical gauze doctors use to make casts from one medical supply company in Oklahoma City and stockinette from another. After searching for liquid components needed to make the polyurethane, she eventually located them in a paint and paper store here.

Students in previous classes tended to lose interest because it took them nearly half a semester to pad a dress form to body measurements and make a fitted muslin cover to go over it, Mrs. Brinkerhoff said. With the new process the custom-made forms are ready to use in two weeks.

Andrea Doria Mystery Continues

DIVER— Film maker-explorer Peter Gimbel as he was (left) when he first dove to the wreck of the Italian liner Andrea Doria, 28 hours after she sank almost 20 years ago, and (right) as he appears in his fifth dive to the wreck, in "The Mystery of the Andrea Doria," a special to be boradcast on Channel 3N-9-11, Wednesday, March 24 (8-9 p.m.).

A fog rolled in and locked itself around the Northeastern seaboard from Newfoundland to Rhode Island for three days in the summer of 1956. When it lifted, it left behind a mystery that is still unraveling, as evidenced in the special film, "The Mystery of the Andrea Doria," to be broadcast Wednesday, March 24, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS Ch. 9-11.

Fog horns moaned along the shore in the area on the night of July 25, that summer almost 20 years ago. Beach towels and bathing suits remained damp in summer cottages. Small craft warnings were flying at the lighthouses, including Great Point Light and Sankaty Head Light on Nantucket. And vacationing movie - goers piling out of theaters around 11 p.m. thought only of another sunless day looming ahead of them.

Approximately 50 miles south of the island, there was a more exuberant mood among the audiences emerging from viewing the films "Away All Boats" and "Foxfire" aboard the elegant 30,000-ton luxury liner Andrea Doria. They were to arrive in New York the following day, and a party atmosphere pervaded, from the plush boat - deck Belvedere lounge and tapestry - hung ballroom to the quarters where Italian immigrants awaited their first view of America.

The passengers were scarcely aware of the fog since the sea was dead calm. But something more than a sunless day loomed ahead of them.

Minutes later — at 11:20 p.m. — one of the most sensational sea disasters began unfolding as the bow of the Swedish liner Stockholm ripped into the Andrea Doria, changing exuberance to horror, and, in 51 instances, life to death, or the start of death.

Within an hour after the collision, the Andrea Doris reported to the Coast Guard that she was listing so badly she could not lower her life boats. By 2:25 a.m., on July 26, the 1,134 passengers and 500 crew members of the Italian liner were ordered to abandon ship. And, at 10:09 that morning, the Andrea Doria went down, something that has puzzled many, including film maker - explorer Peter Gimbel, who directed and wrote the special. "The Mystery of the Andrea Doria," which he produced with European actress Elga Anderson.

Gimbel, who first dove down to the wreck 28 hours after the ship sank, notes that after his fourth dive in 1966, he "never expected to see her again."

"But recently," he explains, "Elga's conviction that the ship never should have gone down got the better of me.

"Elga had been struck by a Congressional committee report which concluded in part: 'The fact remains that a fine, relatively new ship did sink after damage apparently less than she should have been able to withstand.'

"I became fascinated, and after exhaustive research, Elga and I went out to examine the Doria as she now exists, and to ascertain some facts about her that had not been explored previously."

The weather was relatively kind to the Gimbel expedition. But fog would often creep up on them in that moody, shoal-ridden section of the ocean known as the "Crossroads of the Atlantic" near Nantucket lightship, reminding them of a night 20 years ago and why they were there.

Brinkley Hosts 'Today'

NBC News correspondent David Brinkley will return to his native North Carolina to be host of the "Today" program's two-hour Bicentennial celebration in that state Friday, March 26 (7-9 a.m.). He will be on location in his hometown of Wilmington.

Interviews and filmed segments of locales in North Carolina highlight the program with the following scheduled for the telecast:

— The Rev. Billy Graham, a native of the state, will offer a filmed essay from Montreat, N.C., where he now lives.

—Brinkley will interview two North Carolina newspapermen jointly: Sam Ragan, editor of The Southern Pines Pilot, and Thomas Jervay Sr., editor of The Wilmington Journal.

— Brinkley will talk with former North Carolina Senator Sam Ervin in Ervin's hometown of Morganton.

— Reporter - at - large Paul Cunningham will present a filmed story on the North Carolina School for the Arts in Winston - Salem, the first state - supported conservatory for the arts.

— Brinkley will interview Chief Justice Susie Sharpe of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

— Charlotte, the state's largest city, will be spotlighted in a filmed essay.

— The Playmakers Repertory Company from Chapel Hill, N. C., will perform scenes from their new original musical, "Hot Grog," based on the story of North Carolina's infamous pirate of colonial times, Blackbeard, and the two women pirates who joined him.

— Brinkley will comment on his hometown's seafood, which he terms "some of the best in the world."

— Picturesque areas of various parts of the state will be shown in a brief filmed report.

The National Education Association has recommended the "Today" Bicentennial series for viewing.

Gene Kelly will be one of four emcees to appear on the 48th annual Oscar awards. Kelly makes his ninth appearance on the Oscar show, but this will be his first as a master of ceremonies.

Duncan Is Pinocchio

For hundreds of years, one of the most beloved characters in world folklore has been the mischievious marionette who, after many trials and tribulations, become a human boy.

In 1883, author Carlo Lorenzini, under the pen name of "Carlo Collodi," used this tale as the basis of "Pinocchio," added the moralistic twist of the nose that grew with each lie told and a children's classic was born.

In the intervening years, the story has been printed in 200 languages and dialects, including Afrikaans, Hindi and Urdo. It became a highly successful full-length feature cartoon in 1940 and has consistently delighted new generations of children — and their parents — each time it has been reissued.

Now, in a completely new production, it arrives on television screens — via CBS — on Saturday, March 27, as a 90-minute musical special starring Danny Kaye as the lonely woodcarver, Gepetto, and Sandy Duncan as the impish Pinocchio. (8 to 9:30 p.m. on Channel 9-11.)

At this point you may well be saying, "Sandy Duncan?" And while it's true that Pinocchio is, unequivocally, a male puppet — after all, his dream - come - true is to become a real boy — the winsome Miss Duncan isn't as offbeat a piece of casting as you might imagine.

"After all," she observed during taping, "Maude Adams and Mary Martin both played Peter Pan, and Sarah Bernhardt was apparently a terrific Hamlet. Why shouldn't I play Pinocchio?"

If a positive attitude is any indication, Miss Duncan's characterization should definitely be one of the strong points of this production of "Pinocchio."

"I'm having the time of my life," she said. "I cut my teeth on musicals in New York, remember . . . I did "The Boy Friend," "Canterbury Tales" and "Your Own Thing" before I ever came to Los Angeles. This is like coming home to me."

PINOCCHIO— Sandy Duncan plays the title role in the special 90-minute musical version of Carlo Collodi's classic tale, "Pinocchio," Saturday, March 27 (8-9:30 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

CAST MEMBERS— Cast members of ABC-TV's daytime dramatic series, "All My Children," include Lawrence Keith (Nick Davis), an original cast member when the series premiered in January 1970, and Ruth Warrick (Phoebe Tyler), who joined "All My Children" after a long run as Hannah Cord in "Peyton Place" and five years in "As the World Turns."

Parents Are Featured

So! You think you've got problems with your children. Or. . .to put it another way. . .do you feel that you've got problems where your parents are concerned?

If you'd like to feel a little bit better about the situation, why not take a look at the parents featured in "All My Children," popular daytime 'soap' seen weekdays on ABC-TV.

First, there's a mama - Phoebe. She's Mrs. Phoebe Tyler. Now Phoebe is definately upper-crust, and she's also estranged from her husband, Dr. Charles Tyler, head of the local hospital. The good doctor has 'had it' with his wife. She's a busy-body - he's sick of her - and he wants out. That's spelled O-U-T. She has stuck her refined nose into too many places where it doesn't belong, and meddled with lives that would be much better off today if she'd stayed away. The inhabitants of Phoebe's little world would be so much happier if she'd squelch her desire to 'help" by painting the kitchen, darning Charles's socks or clipping recipes. But She hasn't. As a result, it just may be that her estranged spouse has something other than dictation on his mind where his secretary, Mona Kane, is concerned.

Now Mona's another parent, and - believe me- she's been put through the wringer where her daughter, Erica, is concerned. Poor Mona. The LAST thing Mona needs right now is an affair with her boss. A widowed farmer in his 60s would be far better for Mona. But widowed farmers never seem to appear in soap operas, do they?

A 'swinging' parent in the series is Nick Davis. He first appeared in "All My Children" as the operator of a School of Dance, and, in spite of his many romantic whirls before the cameras, he somehow managed to fulfill his duties to the school for three years. Now he's into the restaurant business as the owner of "the" place to dine in town. Occasionally he makes that no longer flutters is that of his ex-wife Ann. Ann is also the daughter of Phoebe.

Which brings us back to. . .oh, well. . .so it goes. . .you think you've got problems? As one viewer has expressed it, "My problems seem so much easier to cope with after I watch 'All My Children.' "

The popularlity of the series - particularly in the 18-35 age group - can be attributed to the ingenuity of the show's writers.

Friendship Seems Stronger

With more singles deciding to stay that way than ever before, with more and more people deciding to live together informally rather than tie the nuptial knot, and with the divorce rate on the rise — the Sunday night saga of CBS' "Sonny and Cher Show" may become the model for millions who have come to believe that "friendship can be a stronger bond than marriage."

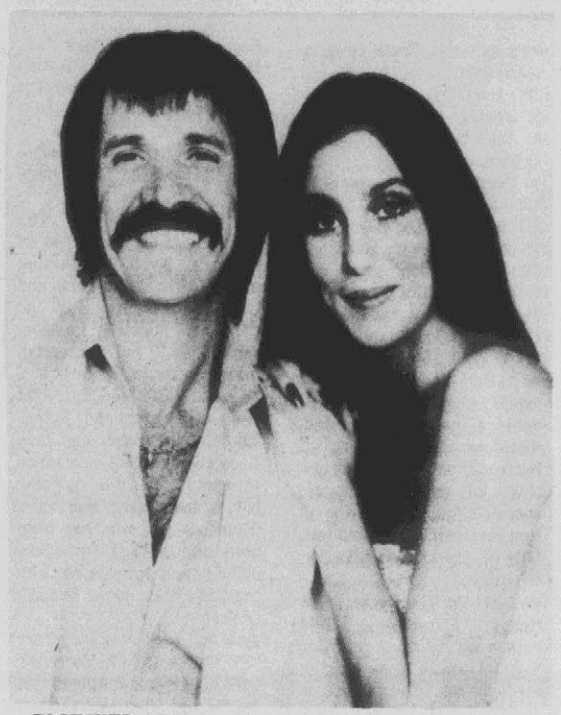

Nearly everyone is familiar with Sonny and Cher's story — the teenage princess of rock married to the singing partner whose business acumen built their careers to the height of international success . . . and then the split-up.

"The only trouble with being apart," Cher explains now, "was that we both discovered it wasn't any fun to work alone. When you've worked with someone for a long time, you get to know how to act and react as naturally as breathing in and then out again. When we split, I found myself feeling like I was holding my breath all the time . . . like the other half of everything was missing."

Sonny agrees with Cher's analysis of their situation, saying, "Look, we've been back working together for over a month now. At first, we didn't know exactly what would happen. It was hard to accept that the girl I married is now married to someone else, and is about to bear him a child. I think Cher must have had some mixed reactions to my romantic involvement with someone else. But all that is past. The bottom line is that we enjoy working together. Our private lives are not getting in each other's way anymore.

"Both of us may be just a bit more grown-up than we were six months or a year ago," adds Cher. "One thing that most people don't realize is that when you start a singing career at 16, you may seem to grow up fast, traveling all over the world, making records, films, being on television — but in a funny way, a schedule like that doesn't leave you enough time for a personal side of things, and in some ways you really don't mature. When Sonny and I broke up our marriage, it may have been a form of emotionally catching up to ourselves. Whatever it was, we're both happier now and having fun doing the show together."

Nic Vanoff, who is producing "The Sonny and Cher Show," truly hopes that the stars' sense of happiness communicates itself to the show's viewers. "Fun is what everyone wants. Life is all so complicated today, we all need to laugh. To tell you the truth, I think we're learning to laugh at real situations these days, and Sonny and Cher, with all they've got behind them, are realer than anyone else on the tube."

TOGETHER AGAIN— Cher and Sonny Bono, have reunited professionally for the "Sonny and Cher Show." They feel that there may be millions of modern, non-marriage-minded people who can identify with their relationship. "The important thing," they say, "is that we are friends." The "Sonny and Cher Show" is seen Sunday evenings at 8 p.m. on Channel 3N-9-11.

Finest Hour

In the "Ellery Queen" episode "The Hard-Hearted Huckster," airing Sunday, March 21, 8 to 9 p.m. on NBC Channel 6-7, Ken Swofford gets guest-star billing along with Eddie Bracken, Bob Crane, Carolyn Jones and Juliet Mills.

It's no accident.

The episode marks Ken's fifth appearance in the series as Front Page Flannigan, a brash, scoop-happy columnist for The New York Gazette.

"It's the biggest part I've had in the series," says Ken, "and really the best one I've done. It's Flannigan's finest hour.

Role Called

As any actor will tell you, working with an animal in a scene is a real test of your talents as a performer if only to keep from being up-staged. And when that animal is a wolf, it's also a test of nerves, which is just what teen-age actor Jeff East learned in his starring role in the two-part "The Flight of the Grey Wolf," airing on "The Wonderful World of Disney."

The story deals with a pet wolf who, after saving the life of his master in a vicious fight with an attacking dog, becomes confused and flees to the hills only to be branded a menace and become the target of a sheriff's posse.

Actor East has never been close to a wolf before but after five days on location, he was handling the "lead" wolf and his "doubles" almost as well as the trainers, according to Frank Zuniga, director of the film.

Decorating Magic

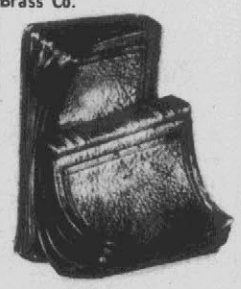

Decorating ideas can please the eye as well as create lovely and liveable rooms. Like every other trade, there are magical tricks even when you know how they are worked. Some have to do with lighting; some, with window, wall or floor treatment; others, with furniture placement, color--scheming, space saving, accessorizing, room division. It's very important to have a total--room, goal in mind and stick to it. Don't get carried away with an idea that just won't work for you.

Decorating magic is closer than you think. Stop in for a selection of beautiful wall to wall carpeting. Expert installation is assured.

Soap Opera Is Training Ground

Daytime dramas are sensational training grounds for young actors but they don't seem to rate with Hollywood casting directors.

So believes Alan Feinstein, who co-stars as Jack Warden's detective partner in "Jigsaw John," seen Mondays, 10 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

"At least, that's the way it was with me," continues the tall, handsome actor from Manhattan who believes his 10 years in such programs as "Love of Life" and "Edge of Night" didn't earn him his ticket west.

"What did it for me was playing the Stanley Kowalski role in Tennessee Williams' 'A Streetcar Named Desire' with Lois Nettleton in a Broadway revival," Feinstein says.

His critical acclaim for his performance in that meaty role (pioneered by Marlon Brando) was what drew Feinstein to the attention of a West Coast casting executive.

"Not that I'm putting down the daytimers," says Feinstein. "They were certainly good to me. The work is hard, but it's steady, and you do have a chance to develop a character over the years."

In "Love of Life," his first big TV role, Feinstein played Mickey Krakauer. Then for more than six years he was seen as Dr. Jim Fields, the psychiatrist, in "Edge of Night."

"You develop a faithful following on daytime TV," Feinstein continues. "We all received lots of letters, and if, scriptwise, our character did something the audience didn't think proper, we sure heard about it. It was as if many viewers related us personally to the roles we played."

Once in Hollywood, Feinstein was a guest star on many series. In rapid succession, he appeared in "Baretta," "Bronk," "Harry O," "Kate McShane," "Barnaby Jones," "Medical Story" and "The Rookies." Then came the Donner role in "Jigsaw John."

"Jack Warden and I work well together," he says, "and I think we've built a good relationship between the characters of the older, more experienced detective and the younger, somewhat brash one."

Clifton Davis Debuts

Multi-talented Clifton Davis, actor, composer, comedian and singer, whose credits span television, films and the Broadway stage, will make his debut as a musical comedy show host and performer in "The Clifton Davis Show," a "Monday Night Special" to be presented on ABC-TV, March 22, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Redd Foxx is the program's special guest star, with Jose Perez, of "On the Rocks," as an extra added attraction.

John Byner, Lonette McKee, Trisha Noble, LaWanda Page, Larry Ragland and the Manual Arts High School Gospel Choir of Los Angeles also make guest appearances.

Davis, star of the recent ABC series, "That's My Mama," will be seen in a comedy sketch in which a roommate, played by John Byner, arranges a double date with airline stewardesses (Trisha Noble and LaWanda Page) with constant interruption by Jose Perez, a persistent salesman.

Later, Perez is seen in another sketch as "Larry Hartmen, Larry Hartman," an insecure homemaker whose kitchen gossip with neighbor John Byner is disrupted by a visit from plumber LaWanda Page and the arrival of Redd Foxx, as the new maid.

Foxx also plays the role of a hearty trencherman as the "Ghetto Gourmet."

Davis begins a "Family Songbook" segment with the hit song he wrote in 1970, "Never Can Say Goodbye," paying tribute to his large family — which includes 14 brothers and sisters.

Both John Byner and Larry Ragland will deliver comedy monologues.

Task Is Difficult

A month after taping her one-woman-show episode of "Maude," Beatrice Arthur still found it difficult to talk about.

"Even so," she admits, "it was one of the most difficult things I ever did, so I hope it turns out well."

The innovative script has Miss Arthur, as Maude, alone on the screen for the entire half-hour, pouring out her innermost thoughts and fears to a psychoanalyst, who is never shown. The episode, conceived by Norman Lear and written by Jay Folb, will be rebroadcast Monday, March 22, 9:30 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

"When Norman first suggested the idea to me," Miss Arthur says, "I didn't think I could go through with it, but he was so enthusiastic I got carried away and decided I couldn't resist the challenge."

The five days of rehearsal before the show was taped were "strange and unsettling," according to Miss Arthur. She gives much credit for "getting through it" to actor Gene Blakely, who, as the analyst, was not seen and had no dialogue, but nonetheless was present at every rehearsal, "listening" over and over to Maude's problems.

"He must have been bored to death, but he didn't show it, and that saved my life," Miss Arthur adds. "I don't know how he managed it, but he was marvelous. Each time we did it I was absolutely convinced he was hearing it for the first time."

Although everyone connected with the show felt it would be one of the big hits of the season, Miss Arthur was undecided whether she would watch it on the air or not.

"It was such a strange and, sometimes, painful experience, I'm not sure I could be objective about the finished product."

The reaction of the studio audience was certainly a boost — they gave her a standing ovation.

SHIP'S SINKING DEPICTED IN FILM

"Attack on the Lusitania," a three-hour NBC World Premiere movie about the sinking of the British liner SS Lusitania prior to World War I, will be developed for broadcast during the 1976-77 season.

The Lusitania, a Cunard passenger liner, was sunk off Ireland May 7, 1915, by a German U-Boat, a at the start of Germany's submarine warfare campaign. Of 1,959 people aboard, 1,198 died, including 124 Americans.

The United States responded angrily to the sinking and the incident is considered to have turned the tide of opinion in favor of America's entering World War I.

Hoober-Bloob Highway Returns

SEUSS CHARACTER— Old Hoober-Bloob and his helper, Self-Strumming Guitar, hit a sour note in their relationship as they prepare to "dispatch" new earthlings, on "Dr. Seuss' The Hoober-Bloob Highway," animated special to be rebroadcast on Channel 3N-9-11, Tuesday, March 23 (8-8:30 p.m.)

"Dr. Seuss' The Hoober-Bloob Highway," the first story that world-famous children's author Theodor (Dr. Seuss) Geisel has written, specifically for television, will be rebroadcast as an animated special, Tuesday, March 23, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS Channels 9-11.

When Geisel's world-famous children's stories began to be adapted for television (the first was "Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas" in 1966), it was discovered that they were too brief to fill a 30-minute television program. His books, by careful design, take only a few minutes to read.

So, after having painstakingly tailored his tales to a child's attention span, Geisel had to expand them by writing additional action, lyrics and narration.

"This time I thought it would be more fun to start brand new rather than stretch old material," Geisel explains about "Hoober-Bloob." "It was a challenge to write for 'moving' characters rather than to create them for the printed page."

The Hoober-Bloob Highway is an imaginary thoroughfare down which new creatures are dispatched to the world after having been briefed on the pros and cons of earthbound living by Mr. Hoober-Bloob, chief dispatcher. The scientific apparatus that controls the briefing sessions includes a hometown-selection contraption, a wheel of chance that determines what place the new voyager will call home, and the future-viewing invention that gives not only a preview of what will happen "down there" but also a last-minute opportunity to cancel the trip. Old Hoober-Bloob is assisted by his staff, consisting of Mini-Moons, Bloob-Bleepers, Grew-Grusters, A Plumpf and a Self-Strumming Guitar.

Dr. Seuss' fantasies are traditionally in tongue-twisting verse and include simple morals. But Geisel denies writing them with the moral in mind. "The statement," he says, "is the picture."

Never, Never Buy An Orchard

"There's a whole other dictionary of trucker talk," reported Claude Akins who, as rig-master Sonny Pruitt, has met ans worked with hundreds of truckers during location filming of NBC-TV's "Movin' On" series, colorcast Tuesdays (8 to 9 p.m.).

"I was listening to the CB (Citizens' Band radio) in Mobile when a trucker came on and said he'd just spotted Smokey in a plain white wrapper," Akins continued. "He meant an unmarked police car. I'd never head that one before."

When Smokey has his bubble machine going, that means his lights are flashing, according to Akins.

"A picture taker is radar. A county mountie is a sheriff. Have you got your ears on means is you CB on. In the South they say 'Callin' to you - c'mon.' That means it's your turn to talk."

Akins said he became familiar with trucker jargon by associating with truckers, including those piloting the 40-vehicle caravan needed to transport Akins, fellow star Frank Converse and a huge production crew more than 10,000 miles this season alone. And he was quick to point out that - despite the claim of a currently popular country western song - not all trucker talk is concerned with locating "Smokey."

"A lot of the lingo has to do with trucking itself, and with matters of road safety," Akins said, listing a few examples:

"Put the hammer down"—drive fast.

"Buy an orchard"—run off the road into trees.

"Keep the rubber side down"—don't turn over.

"Garbage scow"—produce truck.

"Bedbug hauler"—furniture van.

"Double nickels"—55 mph, the national speed limit.

The Role Is Difficult

Leslie Nielsen is an actor with literally hundreds of roles in television and motion pictures under his belt. Of the many characters he has portrayed over the years, he says he has always had a special affinity for police officers.

That preference is manifesting itself in "Brink's: The Great Robbery," to be broadcast on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," Friday, March 26, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11. Nielsen again plays one of the good guys in the drama.

In spite of some backsliding in roles portraying characters of dubious legal bent, Nielsen has mostly been immersed in law and order. It started as a child on the Canadian frontier in Regina, Saskatchewan. His father was a Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman.

Nielsen emphasizes his life - long regard for the right side of the law by pointing out that, of the three television series in which he has starred, he played a police lieutenant in one ("The New Breed") and a deputy police chief in another ("The Bold Ones"). His other series, "Bracken's World," cast him in the role of a movie studio head, a role much like that of a policeman, he says. "To some, a tyrant; to others a strict father - image; and, to a few, a wise and understanding man."

"I have an instinct about lawmen," Nielsen continues. "I knew what discipline was as a kid. I also knew rebellion, and I remember how my policeman - father handled that.

"But the FBI is the big time. There is less passion in portraying a special agent than in playing a local officer, since violence is always ready to erupt around him. It took six years to bring the Brink's robbers to justice, and it takes a special quality of performance to convey the frustrations and hard work that went into the investigation over that long period. It can't appear on the screen as a series of disjointed crises following each other. There were break-throughs as the case went along, but the frustrations of six years had to be put into focus in a two-hour story without losing the continuity or having large gaps in the action."

"It is the hardest lawman role I have yet tackled," Neilsen declares. "I had to interpret how a man would grow over six years but remain dedicated to a single objective. It may be my definitive performance as a law officer."

TRIO — The peaceful beauty of a vineyard seems a fitting background for the quiet beauty of Jaclyn Smith, Farrah Fawcett-Majors and Kate Jackson (l to r) but that setting also hides a near-forgotten murder in "Charlie's Angels," a mystery drama making its world premiere on ABC-TV's "The ABC Sunday Night Movie" Sunday, March 21 (9-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Fonzie Stars In Movie

Henry Winkler, with the same grease job and black leather upholstery that helped make him a television star as Fonzie in "Happy Days," is alive and well and swinging his way through a Brooklyn high school in 1957 in "The Lords of Flatbush," a nostalgic comedy of good-hearted young hoodlums making its television premiere on "The ABC Friday Night Movie," March 26, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-5-12.

Susan Blakely, who has since achieved her own stardom as Julie Prescott in "Rich Man, Poor Man," is one of the teenage pleated - skirt - with - a - poodle queens who inspire the Lords to such heights of gallantry as stealing a car (only temporarily) for a drive-in movie trip. Perry King, elevated to stardom last year in "Mandingo," is another of the Lords, pining for the new girl in town and dodging the affections of yesterday's girlfriend.

The "Lords" is a small but select (four members) "social athletic club" ("we play a little pool, bust a few heads") of reluctant high school pupils who "trade hits" in the candy store, harmonize on streetcorners, dodge marriage (not always successfully) and just generally "hang-out." None is destined for Harvard or corporate power.

Their woes are those of the "trouble-free" teen years (which always seem more troubled than the Hundred Years War while they're going on) — girls' parents who know the boys aren't good enough for their little girls, star athletes who are good enough; close and undying friendships among the boys that will die along with their acne, and the ever - present deadly danger of growing up.

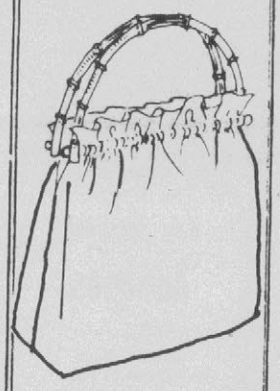

The other two peers of the Lords' Flatbush realm are Sylvester Stallone and Paul Mace.

Love Film Premieres On ABC

A gentle romance between "the most popular boy in town" and the plain, friendless girl who has been used and abused by every other boy in town explodes in a startling conclusion in "Buster and Billie," a tender love story of times gone by, making its television premiere on "The ABC Monday Night Movie," March 22, 9 to 11 p.m., on Ch. 3-5-12.

Jan-Michael Vincent and Joan Goodfellow star in the title roles of "Buster and Billie," which opened quietly but soon developed a fiercely loyal audience, particularly among young moviegoers. The Independent Film Journal, predicting the movie's popularity, called it a "realistic and quite moving story of individuality vs. the group . . . the gentle and doomed love of Buster for his Billie is one of the year's richer sights."

Soft Is Off, Action Is On

GEORGE KENNEDY (right) shows novelist Joseph Wambaugh the script of an episode of "The Blue Knight" the CBS-TV series, based on the ex-policeman's best-selling novel. Telecast Wednesdays (10-11 p.m.), the series is filmed on actual locales throughout the Los Angeles area.

Nothing makes a network move faster than sagging ratings. Last spring, CBS-TV decided to go with several new dramatic series known as "soft" shows (no action, no violence and — as far as these series were concerned — no audiences). With this in mind, they came up with "Three For the Road," "Kate McShane" and "Beacon Hill." They were so soft that they were nothing, according to the ratings, and quickly became casualties.

Therefore, it came as no great surprise when the first replacement offered by CBS was "The Blue Knight," the story of a cop on the beat, based on a book by Joe Wambaugh, and starring George Kennedy. (The series airs Wednesdays, 10 to 11 p.m.)

Wambaugh, a 14-year veteran of the Los Angeles Police Department with three other best-sellers to his credit, is a special script consultant for the new series.

In discussing George Kennedy as Bumper Morgan, the 24-year veteran patrolman the series is built around, Wambaugh says he is grateful for the actor's presence, "not only because he is one of the top pros in the business, but because he has an endearing charm and an everyday wit that helps the character."

Producer of "The Blue Knight" is Joel Rogosin, a young veteran of the TV wars, with credits such as "Ironside," as well as The Doctors segments of the long-running "The Bold Ones" series. Rogosin doesn't feel this is "just another cop show." The stories are being told from a different point of view, that of the lead, Morgan. Says Rogosin, "We are going to stay with Bumper as fully as we can because we think Kennedy is a fantastic counterpart of the character in the Wambaugh book. His special larger-than-life qualities are what it's all about. He's a special guy."

The talented producer feels that the role of the cop is grossly misunderstood. In fiction, a detective is threatened by someone at the top saying he'll go back to 'pounding the pavements.' This is misleading, because the cop on the beat often has more opportunity to do better police work than anyone else on the force. He is the one constantly risking confrontation on a one-to-one basis.

"The beat cop is the first at the scene of the crime, and it's his initial report which becomes the basis of the case and the investigation. Unlike the detective who comes into the case, the beat cop is there every day and relates to the lives of those involved in a direct day-to-day way, unlike any other policeman."

Actress Recalls Words

A toy balloon broke sometime between the night of July 25, 1956, and the day of July 26 that year. It belonged to a three-year-old boy named Richard. And when he told his mother, actress Ruth Roman, about it, she wept with joy.

Miss Roman and her son were sailing from Europe to the United States aboard the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria when it collided with the Swedish ship Stockholm in the fog blanketed Atlantic 50 miles south of Nantucket on that July 25 night. When the order came to abandon ship and the actress and her toddler were put into different lifeboats, she had given him a balloon to calm his fears.

"When we were united in New York almost two days later," she recalls, "all the news media were there. My son came down the gangplank on a sailor's shoulder, and his greeting to me was: 'Hey, Mom. The balloon broke!'"

The actress and her now-grown son are among the surviving passengers who will get a chance to see the once beautiful Andrea Doria as it now is in its watery, 235-foot-deep grave on the ocean floor when "The Mystery of the Andrea Doria" airs Wednesday, March 24, 8 to 9 p.m., on CBS-TV.

"Fortunately, the Andrea Doria incident — as frightening as it was — left me with no traumatic aftereffects," says Miss Roman. "I've always loved the sea and lived near it, and my son is just like me. He bought a sailboat recently and is constantly studying maps."

Of their night at sea on July 25, 1956, the actress says: "There is no way to convey that feeling you get when you first hear the crash, feel the ship start to go over and know — and I knew immediately — that you are going to sink.

Two People Are Destined

Peter Fonda and Lindsay Wagner star as a pair of improbable lovers who meet in Morocco and soon learn that not only their ultimate destination but their destiny are the same in "Two People," to be colorcast on "NBS Thursday Night at the Movies" March 25, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

A romantic drama filmed on location in Morocco, Paris and New York by four-time Academy Award-winning director Robert Wise, the film also stars Oscar-winning actress Estelle Parsons ("Bonnie and Clyde" — 1967).

Evan Bonner is a Vietnam war deserter who has drifted to the city of Marrakech in North Africa where he has lived for nearly three years. Finally, he decides to return to the United States to face a court martial.

The evening before he is to leave Morocco, he meets fashion model Dierdre McCluskey and editor Barbara Newman. On the train to Casablanca the following day, Evan and Dierdre realize a mutual attraction exists.

even closer together and decide that they will meet the challenge of an uncertain future by further cementing their new relationship.

'Waltons' Finishes Fourth Season

"The Waltons," seen Thursdays on CBS-TV, 8 to 9 p.m., is finishing its fourth season. The show has placed in the top 20 each year, thanks to its 'entire family' format and some fine acting, including that of co-star Michael Learned.

Miss Learned, who is mother Olivia Walton, knows for sure, "We have one more year, but after that I don't know. We realize that Richard (Thomas) will become too old shortly, but people have taken to the other children.

"He would be missed, I'm sure, but the show could continue. I believe the network is planning a spin-off next year with Richard. They have the idea, the right formula."

How much has she changed Olivia's character?

"I think I have tried to stay truthful with the role. If any thing, I have become a little less strict with the children. It's hard to sustain that view week after week without the character becoming one without feelings. I was hard on the children the first year, and knew that had to change. We were pretty settled into one mold; and wanted to hang onto a little of everything. Being a Baptist meant there had to be control in a strict sense."

Since she has changed her looks somewhat on the series, she says people recognize the real Michael Learned on the street a little more than they used to a couple of years back. "People come up and say, 'I know you from somewhere.'"

Since the start of "The Waltons," the family has become a bit more prosperous in keeping up with the times, but Miss Learned said she didn't know whether "It's been for the good or bad. I do feel it has had to adapt itself, however, with the change of times."

Pike's Peeks

PIKE'S PEEKS
By Charlie Pike,
TV Showtime staff writer

HOLLYWOOD—McLean Stevenson will finally get to star in his own series on NBC, which was the reason he left "M-A-S-H." It's been announced that McLean will star in "The Prime of Life" beginning this Fall.

Sandy Duncan suffered a severe bruised nose during the production of "Pinocchio," which airs on CBS March 27th. Sandy plays the title role and was wearing an 8-inch rubber nose during a dance routine when she hit the nose. At first it was feared that she had fractured her own nose, but fortunately it was just seriously bruised.

The controversial film, "Helter Skelter," the story of Charles Manson and the mass murders with which he was involved, has been given an air date of April 1 and 2 on CBS.

Mike Farrell of "M-A'S-H" takes his wife and two children on a Hawaiian vacation in April.

There's a lot of gossip making the rounds that Dean and Cathy Martin have separated, though there's been no confirmation.

Henry Wynberg hosted a surprise birthday party for Elizabeth Taylor recently.

Freddie Prinze has been quoted as saying that his wife is pregnant and their baby should arrive before month's end. Yes, he says his wife was pregnant when they married.

Johnny Cash and his wife, June Carter, each broke a leg in separate accidents at their Jamaican vacation home here.

Cash slipped on gravel while supervising workmen, who also dug a small ditch in which June broke her leg.

Security at CBS-TV city is at an all-time high with all show personnel required to wear badges and-or carry passes. This comes as the result of a recent rash of thefts and incidents—including the discovery of an over-amorous fan reclining on Cher's dressing room bed, awaiting her arrival!

Bishop's Best Moves Are Ad-Lib Comedy

Joey Bishop's ability to ad-lib has made him one of the most popular comedians in the country.

Bishop is a frequent guest host and guest on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

Like many of his peers, he is funniest when ad-libbing. At the rehearsal for President Kennedy's Inaugural Gala he told JFK, "Mr. President, now that you've been elected, can you tell me how to get the bumper sticker off my car?"

Another ad-lib came on the Jack Parr Show one night during the Kennedy - Nixon race for the Presidency, when French comedienne Genevieve naively inquired what would happen if the election ended in a tie. Replied Bishop: "Well, in that case, for the next four years we'll have to watch "The Best of Eisenhower.'"

Although he quit school to help his father in a bicycle business, Joey's sights were already set on a career in the entertainment world. As he recalls, "While other kids were necking, I was entertaining."

THE REAL REASON

Mae West says that the reason she decided to be a guest with Dick Cavett on TV is "because of the dullness of the bicentennial. I thought I'd take a little starch out of the year."

Paper Makes The Difference

How do you duplicate $1,119,000 in cash for the camera without having it look fake?

In "Brink's: The Great Robbery," it is done with a combination of real and 'play' money, And, to ensure that there would be no repetition of the rip-off which is the central theme of the world-premiere drama, an armed guard was close by to keep a secure eye on the real stuff during the filming.

"Brink's: The Great Robbery" is a dramatization of the planning, actual robbery, and subsequent investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the 1950 heist of more than $2,750,000 from the Prince Street, Boston, facility of Brink's Incorporated by a group of armed, masked men.

The two-hour - long feature will be shown for the first time anywhere on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," March 26, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11. Starring are Leslie Nielsen, Carl Betz and Stephan Collins as FBI agents, and Darren McGavin, Cliff Gorman, Burr DeBenning, Michael Gazzo, Art Metrano and Bert Remsen as members of the gang.

Soon after the successful robbery, the gang met to divide their loot. It was this scene which provided the movie's personnel with their big headache: how to make $1,119,000 look real. The problem could have been worse — the gang had to destroy $90,000 in brand new bills and over $1,500,000 in thousand - dollar bills, which could have been instrumental in their apprehension if they were ever used.

The money in the scene was in $10,000 bundles. The inside of each bundle was fake, but 238 real hundred-dollar bills faced each bundle — $23,800 for the worried film - makers to keep track of. To compound the possibility of any getting lost, the scene was filmed on location in a Hollywood suburb, with the attendant curious bystanders adding to the hazard. Hence, the armed guard playing nursemaid to the "props."

Both he and the film's production manager breathed that legendary sigh of relief when the scenes with the real and bogus money were completed — the fake bills heading back to the studio prop room and the real bills returning to the bank from which they had been borrowed.

"All the way to the bank I worried about what would happen if I had somehow mixed one of the fake bills in with the bank's money when I separated the bundles," prop man Julian Gordon recalls. "Imagine, being arrested for trying to pass play money to a bank!"

The bank would probably have called in the FBI.

Caan Stars In Friday Late Movie

James Caan, acclaimed for his performances in "Brian's Song," "Godfather," "Cinderella Liberty" and "Funny Lady," stars in "Red Line 7000," an adventure drama about the men and women of stock car racing on "The CBS Late Movie" Friday, March 26, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

Produced and directed by film great Howard Hawks, the movie also stars Gail Hire, Marianna Hill, Laura Devon, Charlene Holt, John Robert Crawford, James Ward and Norman Alden.

"Red Line 7000" (The title refers to an engine speed beyond which it is dangerous to operate a racing car) concerns three young members of a racing team (Caan, Ward and Crawford), their tough-minded boss (Alden), and the women they love (Devon, Hill and Hire). The romances reflect the tension and unpredictability of the racing world.

Set against the roar of motors at some of America's major auto tracks — Daytona, Darlington, Charlotte, Riverside and other speedways — the movie begins with a flaming crash. It then follows the young drivers as they learn to work together, with the loves, both found and lost, and ends with another crash, which brings all their lives into perspective.

'Jubilee' Rings Out

Dog, Cat Pals?

Can a dog and cat be pals? The zany duo on a new animated series, "The Odd Ball Couple," give it a doggoned good try.

Fleabag, a very sloppy pooch, and Spiffy, a neat and tidy cat, are reporters-at-large who share both an office and a secretary, Miss Goldie Hound. While Fleabag prefers to put his feet on his cluttered desk and read magazines, Spiffy sits at a desk that has every paperclip and rubber band in place. It's a strange working relationship, but the two crack reporters always get the job done. They cover big and little stories whenever and wherever they happen. And when nothing is happening, they'll invent a feature, such as "How to Cross the Ocean in a Canoe"!

The fur flies fast and furiously when "The Odd Ball Couple" goes to work, and their adventures promise to tickle a rib or two in the upcoming season!

Paul Winchell and Frank Nelson provide the voices for Fleabag and Spiffy in the series which airs Saturdays, 11:30 a.m. to 12 noon on ABC-TV.

Kangaroo Creates Havoc

An Australian boy does his best to raise an orphaned baby kangaroo, but discovers that it is no easy task, in "Me and You, Kangaroo," a film from Australia that will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, March 27, 1 to 1:30 p.m.

After the boy and his father, driving in their jeep, unavoidably hit and kill a mother kangaroo, the boy is permitted to keep the surviving baby as a pet.

The young kangaroo creates much mischief, which angers the neighbors and shopkeepers. Eventually, the kangaroo is shot at. Wounded, it runs into the bush for shelter. The heartbroken boy eventually finds it and nurses it back to health. However, it has become too difficult to control the kangaroo's activities, so the boy makes the painful decision to return it to its natural environment.

Match Features The Best

Some of the biggest names in tennis will compete in the American Airlines Tennis Games, to be featured Saturday, March 27, 12:30 p.m., on NBC-TV. Jimmy Connors, Arthur Ashe, John Newcombe, Ilie Nastase and John Alexander meet in the $200,000 tournament at Mission Hills Country Club in Palm Springs, Calif.

Tennis has become such a popular, competitive sport that any of a number of players can lay claim to being the number one player in the world. Take Jimmy Connors, for instance.

James Scott Connors may turn many people off with his brashness, but he more than makes up for his tempestuous outbursts on the tennis courts.

Out of UCLA in 1972, he earned more than $90,000, over $160,000 in 1973, over $200,000 in 1974, and — well, you get the picture — in fact, he has already earned almost $700,000 in prize money on the tour. His 6-1, 6-0, 6-1 smashing of veteran Ken Rosewall is still considered one of the most one-sided major title victories, which occured in the 1973 U.S. Open, ever witnessed.

Pro Track Is On NBC

Just how far has professional track come in a nation seemingly tired of the delluge of professional sports? Some hint of that may come when the Professional Track Classic takes place on Saturday, March 27, 11:40 p.m., on NBC-TV.

This special International Track Association event will be televised live from Texas Stadium near Dallas, Texas. The meet will feature shot-put champion Brian Oldfield, pole vaulters Bob Seagren and Steve Smith, speedsters Ben Jipcho and Rod Milburn, and female sprinter Wyomia Tyus.

Last year, a similar track telecast drew a surprising nine-million-plus viewers, indicating a strong interest in the sport. ITA President Mike O'Hara has accumulated most of the greatest athletes in the world, including Kenya's world class runners Ben Jipcho and Kip Keinu.

Another sparkling event is the pole vault, highlighted by colorful Steve Smith and "Super Star" champion Bob Seagren. They have a personal feud going with each other, and this provides even more intensity to the event.

O'Hara has set up other events that are unusual in the world of track, but should excite fans. In one competition, he will have some of pro football's wide receivers competing in the dash events, speedsters such as Mel Gray of the St. Louis Cardinals, Riley Odom of the Denver Broncos, and Cliff Branch of the Oakland Raiders.

Another event will feature huge linemen racing against each other, as well as several dozen women runners in a special relay and dash event.

"The great problem with track on TV in the past," conceded O'Hara, "has been the long wait between events. The true track fan didn't mind, but we had to make changes to reach the large audience."

The ITA President will schedule events in a rapid sequence to provide a constant flow of action. With the caliber of athletes that the ITA has lined up, and the special events included, the Classic from Dallas should provide all sports fans with thrill-a-minute action.

Auto Racers Use Radios

Richard Petty, one of the racing stars who will be driving when ABC Sports presents its "Championship Auto Racing" from Atlanta International Raceway Sunday, March 21, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., feels that racing has become better for him personally because of a radio.

There was a time when driving a stock car in a 500-mile race was a lonely job. The driver had no human contact other than a fleeting glance at faces flashing by as he passed the pit.

But that's in the past now. A NASCAR 500 miler has all the homey atmosphere of a family gathered around the TV on a cold, rainy night.

At least, this is the case of Petty, who has total radio communications with his older brother Maurice and his cousin Dale Inman, the entire time he's on the track. The three men have worked together in racing since 1961 and, as a result, had excellent communication before the advent of their two-way radio system three years ago. Now the threesome all agree that the greatest single advantage of radio is the safety factor involved.

When something breaks apart on the track, the pit crew can tell Petty where and what it is. On the other hand, if it's something about the car only he knows about, he can clue them in and they can prepare for his pit stop.

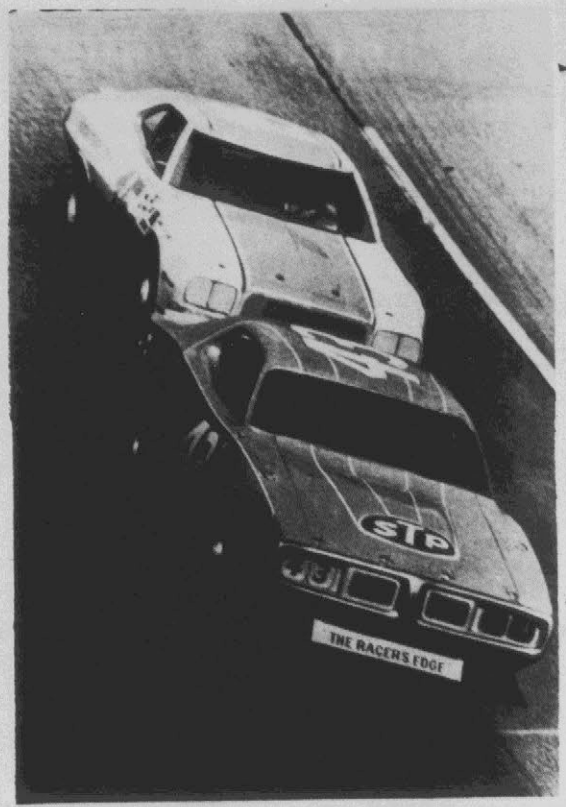

While the STP Team star admits that scrapping the traditional pit board signal system has taken some of the excitement away from spectators, the improvement in safety and general communications has made the racing sport better and sharper.

There are big morale advantages in the radio system as well. Inman says he once talked Petty into finishing a race when Petty was leading and begging for relief with just 17 laps to go.

But the radio is like a race car in that it can break down. When that happens Petty, Maurice and Inman resort to sign language. Should Petty fly by holding his nose, the engine is overheating. When he points over his shoulder, the crew tells him who's behind him and how far behind. When he taps his helmet, he wants a relief driver. If he's seeking a change in suspension adjustment, he signals the crew with his left hand.

The crew loves to tease Petty about sleeping and insist that it takes a combination of the board and the radio to keep him awake.

Petty won't say that two-way radio is the best thing that ever happened to racing, but will admit that it ranks high. He laughingly agrees with the crew about the sleep factor. "One thing it does is take away any chance for me to get any sleep."

RACING — The 17th Annual Atlanta 500 stock car race will be televised live from the Atlanta International Raceway on Sunday, March 21 at 3:30 p.m. Pictured above, Richard Petty in his famed No. 43 Dodge leads Buddy Baker's No. 15 Ford. Petty won last year Atlanta 500 and Baker finished second.

Dynasty Unmatched

Anyone who has followed college basketball over the past ten years is well aware of the amazing dynasty that UCLA has built over the past decade. In fact, the Bruins have captured ten of the last twelve NCAA Championships, clearly marking former coach John Wooden's troops as one of the most legendary success - stories in the history of sports.

UCLA is an excellent bet to be in the championships again this year. The NCAA Semi - Finals will be broadcast on Saturday, March 27, beginning at 2 p.m. The classic will be played in Philadelphia, and seen on NBC.

The long string began forming on the night of March 21, 1964, when the Bruins, led by All-America Walt Hazzard, upended Duke University, 98-83. An indication of the Los Angeles school's domination came in the waning minutes of the first half when the champions scored sixteen unanswered points. In 1965, they became only the fifth team in collegiate history to win back - to - back championships by smothering Michigan, 91-80. Gail Goodrich was the star of that contest, tallying 42 points.

Then came the Alcindor reign, when the then - Lew Alcindor, now Kareem Jabbar, led the UCLANS to three more consecutive titles. The team only lost two games during that era, and easily won in the finals against Dayton, North Carolina, and Purdue.

In 1970, Sydney Wicks was the hero of UCLA's 80-69 conquest of Artis Gilmore and the Jacksonville Dolphins. It was the school's fourth straight title, and sixth in seven seasons. They won again in 1971, the year many felt they would be unseated. The Bruins captured final wins over Florida State and Memphis State.

The string was interrupted in 1974, when N. C. State conquered the reigning champions, 80-77.

1975 was John Wooden's final tenure as coach, and UCLA made it a happy farewell by stopping Kentucky, 97-85.

Women's Basketball Moves To Big-Time

There was a time when the only women to be found on basketball courts were cheerleaders or pom-pom girls.

Not any more. Women's basketball has become big-time in the United States, and almost as many girls show up for school tryouts these days as do the men.

In an effort to find out just how good some of the top teams are in women's basketball, CBS-TV Sports asked 10 of the country's most respected coaches in women's collegiate basketball to vote for their top 10 women's teams in the first such national poll ever conducted. The results, as of March 1, were broadcast recently during halftime of an NBA contest.

Delta State in Cleveland, Miss., was named No. 1 on eight of the 10 ballots. Immaculata (Pa.), which recently ended Delta's 51-game winning streak, received the other two first-place votes in the poll.

"I think the poll is a great thing for women's basketball," said Lucille Kyvallos, the coach at Queens College in New York City and one of the members of the panel. "I'd like to see it done throughout the season, the same way the wire services do for the men's program."

Kathy Rush, the coach at Immaculata, said the interest in women's basketball had "skyrocketed" during the last two years. "People are talking about the sport now," she said, "and there's genuine respect for the quality of play."

One of the interesting aspects of the poll was the unique identification associated with women's basketball.

Winston Created A Nose

Stan Winston is apparently ahead of his fellow makeup artists, these days — he's ahead by a nose.

Winston, who recently transformed Rod Steiger into W. C. Fields, and Cicely Tyson into "Jane Pittman," has just completed the makeup assignment for "Pinocchio," a special starring Danny Kaye as Gepetto and Sandy Duncan in the title role. This musical version of Carlo Collodi's classic tale will be presented Saturday, March 27, 8 to 9:30 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Winston, winner of two Emmy Awards, and three Emmy nominations, notes that the biggest makeup challenges for the special was transforming Flip Wilson into the character of the Fox, Liz Torres into the Cat, and, of course, Pinocchio's fabled nose, which at one point, grows to seven inches long.

FIRST "BABE," NOW "AMELIA"

Susan Clark, who starred in this season's "Babe," will star in "Amelia Earhart," a three-hour World Premiere movie for the 1976-77 season. The film focuses on the still unresolved disappearance of the famed American aviatrix 39 years ago.

Christian Dior
Clothing for Men
Tailored by Hart Schaffner & Marx.

Les couleurs radieux. Sunbright colors distinguish this suit from the Christian Dior Spring Collection. The Fresco suiting is an exclusive weave of Dacron® polyester and finespun wool, cool and lightweight. Further distinguished by the authentic European Look: sharply defined shoulders and higher armhole placement. Dior "CD" linings and signature buttons.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR EDGAR BERGEN, ventriloquist

I hear ventriloquists sometimes get in trouble "throwing their voices." True?—G.S., Austin, Tex.

● Yes. A few years ago I was in a railway station in a tiny town. Along came two porters carrying a coffin. When they put it down, I rapped on the box, and asked, "Is everything all right in there?" The "corpse" replied: "Let me out, let me out." The porters ran like bolts of lightning. The train came, and a guy got off, looked straight at me and asked: "Where are the guys to load this stiff?" I didn't mention why they left, but I did help get the coffin on the train. I almost got a hernia doing it, too.

FOR COACH WOODY HAYES of Ohio State

Are you for or against post-season college football playoffs to establish a clear-cut champion?—David Miller, Austin, Tex.

● I'm against the idea. You'd be working these players to death, and they're still going to college. It would be asking too much of them to play that long a season and at the same time keep up with studies.

FOR OLIVIA NEWTON-JOHN

Is the story about your being thrown from a horse just a rumor? If not, will you keep riding?—L.R., River Edge, N.J.

● That accident was my first in all my years of riding. I was thrown Jan. 13 at a Malibu club. The horse slipped going up a mountain. That spill gave me cervical and lumbar strain and contusions of the back, but I was only in bed for five days, and I'm fine now. I've always loved riding and always will. I've been on horseback since I was old enough to walk.

FOR MICHAEL LANDON

With all the Scripture you quote on "Little House on the Prairie," have you ever had a personal experience with Jesus Christ?—Mrs. Greg Peters, Great Falls, Mont.

● I've discovered that I'm much more religious than I thought I was. I made the discovery when I started writing scripts for the show. In re-reading the scripts, I'm often amazed at the things I've written. As a youngster I never realized how important religion was to me.

FOR DR. MARGARET MEAD, anthropologist

Should housewives get credit towards social security?—Mrs. L. Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● Definitely. I'd also include women who help in agricultural work and other home industries.

FOR PHYLLIS GEORGE, sportscaster

What's more difficult for you—getting into or out of the athletes' locker rooms?—R.L. Holter, Bismarck, N.D.

● Since I have never been in the athletes' locker rooms, I would not know how difficult it would be to get out. However, I believe I could obtain a better interview after the athlete had showered and dressed and had time to evaluate the game or situation. I wouldn't want a man in my boudoir interviewing me while I was dressing, so why should I be in their locker room while they're dressing?

FOR DR. MARLIN PERKINS of TV's "Wild Kingdom"

Who would win in a fight between a lion and a bull?—Gilberto Vega, Monterrey, Mexico

● Animals don't fight for fun. If they attack each other, it is for a specific purpose. The only reason a lion would attack a bull is to eat him. Before the attack, the lion would have assessed the physical condition of the bull. If he was sickly or old, the lion would probably kill him without too much trouble; if the bull was in prime condition, the lion would most likely look around for easier prey.

FOR BILLIE JEAN KING

Is there any chance that you'll accept Bobby Riggs's challenge to play another match?—J.R.B., Amherst, N.Y.

● No. It doesn't mean that much to me to beat him. I wouldn't go through all that again. The match was not a stunt to me. I trained hard for it.

FOR NENA O'NEILL, co-author of "Open Marriage"

Is it true that you and your husband have separated since writing "Open Marriage"? If so, why?—Annie Jones, Olney Springs, Colo.

● It is definitely not true. My husband and I just celebrated our 30th wedding anniversary. It is unfortunate that some people like to spread rumors to allay their own fears about change. It takes love, courage and commitment to open up your marriage and grow. There are no rules in our books, only guidelines for achieving a dynamic relationship in which both partners can grow. It isn't easy, but it works.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Is Greta Garbo still alive? Please write a few things about her.—Mrs. H. S. Heppler, Sacramento, Calif.

● Some 42 years after her first movie—she's still described as one of the world's most beautiful women. She never married. She likes Europe and goes there often. In France she supposedly sunbathes nude (at 72!) every afternoon at the home of a friend. Garbo is known for her solitary walks through the woods, her smoking (three packs a day) and her drinking (vodka). She diets and exercises and still uses very little makeup. At New York's Ritz Tower Hotel, her alias was Harriet Brown. Strangers who invade her privacy are rewarded with icy stares and cutting remarks, and friends who talk about her to the press never hear from Garbo again.

Report From Philip Morris

Filters Fall Short.

Researchers create 'Enriched Flavor'™ for taste of new low tar MERIT after disappointing results with special filters.

After countless efforts at designing special "low tar, good taste" filters, Philip Morris—like most others—had achieved only marginal results.

Filters are good for filtering, not for giving taste to a cigarette.

Tobacco gives taste to a cigarette. And the more tobacco taste that's filtered out in the form of tar, the less taste a cigarette will deliver.

That's the conclusion that led us to the business end of smoking. The tobacco end. And a remarkable new flavor discovery called 'Enriched Flavor.'

The new cigarette with 'Enriched Flavor' is MERIT.

It delivers only 9 mg. of tar—less than 98% of all cigarettes being sold today.

Yet 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivers the taste of cigarettes having more tar. Up to 60% more tar.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL

9 mg. "tar" 0.7 mg. nicotine

Smokers Report MERIT Delivers More Taste

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, all tested at home.*

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette.

MERIT. Unprecedented flavor at 9 mg. tar.

Rona Jaffe Visits Our April Visitor, The Youthful King of Sweden

Rona: "What would you do if you weren't King?"

King: "I have thought about that. I would like to be a farmer."

By Rona Jaffe

One of his students once asked the great acting teacher Stanislavski, "How do you play a king?"

"You don't have to do anything to play a king," Stanislavski replied. "The audience knows you're the king by the way the other actors behave."

There are only four kings left in Europe: Juan Carlos of Spain, Olav of Norway, Baudouin I of Belgium and Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden. Royalty on the grand scale is almost extinct, clearly an endangered species. Viewed from afar, royalty is fun to watch. But if you ever meet a king on his own turf, in the Royal Palace, no matter what you thought before, it becomes quite awesome.

I know. I was there.

The King of Sweden, Carl XVI Gustaf, is a handsome 29-year-old bachelor, a perfectly nice ordinary young man who has the misfortune of being king. Two years ago, at 27, he succeeded his grandfather, the greatly beloved 90-year-old King Gustaf VI Adolf. Usually a king would be middle-aged, but Carl's father died in a plane crash when Carl was a baby. His grandfather was an intellectual, interested in literature and the arts, and a museum is filled with ancient Egyptian treasures he discovered on archaeological expeditions. The new young king, although carefully educated in the duties of his office, is not at all an intellectual. He likes hunting and fishing, skiing and sailing; and before he was king, he was seen every night in his favorite discotheque with friends. He still speeds around Stockholm in his fast little blue sports car, wearing jeans; and what he likes most of all is girls, and they like him.

Independent behavior that is viewed as enchanting in an old king is looked on as too impetuous and reckless in a young one. The late King Gustaf, a tall dignified man who retained his good sense of humor to the last, delighted in leading guided tours around the palace (if he didn't know what period a chair was from, he would make it up), and he accepted tips that the tourists gave him. He would take long walks alone through the streets of Stockholm, talking to the people, sometimes giving them the wrong directions by mistake. The people loved it all. But when Carl became King, his youth and good looks immediately made him the unwilling darling of the tabloids, a celebrity like our Sinatra or Teddy Kennedy. Starlets and actresses wrote stories about their romances (real or imaginary) with the new King. If he took off alone in his sports car and talked to the people, it was generally to girls, and there was gossip. At the 1972 Munich Olympics, he met a German commoner, Sylvia Sommerlaut, who was a guide there, and their long off-again on-again romance caused more talk. Soon the King's advisers became displeased with the King's reputation as a swinger, and the Swedish press was not allowed to interview him. The King himself was tired of being asked when he would get married and produce the necessary male heir.

But what else do you ask a king who is the monarch in a Social Democracy, a cradle-to-grave welfare state where there is neither poverty nor great wealth, where the elected Parliament has stripped the King of all his regal powers, reducing him to the role of a good-will ambassador? And what could the King say to the press? He is not allowed to express political views—the King must be above politics. He is concerned about ecology and environmental protection, he visits the factories, he has studied banking; but people are not very interested in what he thinks about industry or agriculture. You ask the Prime Minister about internal affairs. You ask the young King about love affairs.

The Swedish people like to humanize their Royal Family much the same way as we like to humanize our First Family. As one Swede put it: "We are a socialist country and our Royal Family is the poorest in Europe, and we like it that way."

A woman who is a close friend of the Royal Family described King Carl to me this way: "He's a very gentle boy and wants everyone to like him. He's very sweet, not selfish. His friends are not aristocrats, they're mostly from his boarding school. He would really like to be a sailor or a farmer, not a king. He's like an awkward teenager, he's never grown up. He didn't have much home life—no father, four older sisters bossing him around, a very beautiful and very autocratic German mother, and his grandfather away on archaeological digs."

Thursday, the day of our audience, was icy cold. Our footsteps rang on the stones of the palace courtyard like something from a Gothic novel as we walked to our meeting with the King. The Royal Palace of Stockholm is the oldest and largest castle in Europe in which anyone still lives. It is built of stone, with 700 rooms and is quite forbidding from the outside. The King's apartment consists of about 20 rooms, but that partly lighted area seemed tiny in comparison to the whole. There was a sentry outside, and two guards in the inner courtyard, looking cold. No one else. In Sweden in wintertime it gets pitch-dark at three o'clock in the afternoon. We were to have 20 minutes with the King as a group, and then each of us would have five minutes

My First Glimpse of the King—The Nobel Prize Ceremony

On April 1, King Carl is coming to America for a month, to travel around our country and see what it's like. The Swedish Government thought we in turn should get to know what he is like, and they invited three magazines to send representatives to Sweden beforehand to meet the King. FAMILY WEEKLY sent me.

We arrived in Stockholm on a Sunday, after a 10-hour flight in a jumbo jet filled with present and former Nobel Prize winners and their families. The Nobel Prize ceremonies and banquet were to be on Wednesday.

The Nobel Prize ceremony was held in a huge arena with rows of seats in tiers around a circular area where two thrones (one for the Queen of Denmark) had been placed. The men were in white tie and tails and medals, the women in formal evening dresses. The 5,000 people in the audience stood up as King Carl of Sweden came in. He looked very young and small and had rather sloppy posture. I liked him. Each award winner, after the speeches, was to walk to the King to receive his prize. Eugenio Montale, the Italian poet who wrote three books and won the Nobel Prize for Literature, is 79 years old and ill. When he rose and took two feeble steps, the young King walked quickly across the carpet to him, a gesture of respect so spontaneous that I could feel the waves of approval from the crowd. I liked him even more.

alone with him. It had seemed a very stingy amount of time to me, and yet I was beginning to become so intimidated that it seemed far more than enough, especially the time alone.

"I'm not scared of a king," I lied to the other two journalists. "After all, I'm an American."

"How can I be afraid of the King?" one of them rejoined with what sounded like the same bravado. "He's the same age as my son."

We were handed over to the King's private secretary, Mr. Jan Mortenson, who acted as a sort of chaperon. Up huge carpeted stairs made of stone, into the East Wing. Warm, lighted rooms filled with antiques, paintings of previous Swedish kings, high ceilings painted with scenes, cherubs, flowers, old tapestries on the walls, fireplaces, fresh flowers, everything absolutely spotless. A formal banquet was to be held that night for 200 people, and the long table, already set, stretched through several rooms.

We waited in the suite reserved for guests, joined by a photographer and a fourth reporter from America. We were milling around nervously, when Mortenson whispered, "Here comes the King!" A smallish, boyish-looking young man was suddenly among us, wearing a beautifully cut wool suit, vest and tie.

"I'm not scared of a king," I lied. "After all, I'm an American."

"Well," King Carl XVI Gustaf murmured shyly. "What do we do now?"

It was decided that we should all go into the next room, where the King sat on a couch and we sat on chairs in a semicircle around him, and small glasses of dry sherry were served. We all sat there and looked at each other, in silence, for what seemed to me an eternity. The King had never met with American journalists before, and we had never met a king. Finally I said, "I think we should each introduce ourselves. I'll go first. I'm Rona Jaffe from FAMILY WEEKLY, and I'm a novelist." Each journalist in turn gave an introduction, and we then went around the circle asking questions. King Carl speaks English well.

Q: "What is it like being King?"

A: "I travel around the country, try to meet the people."

Q: "Do you work hard?"

A: "Not so hard. I don't know what you mean by hard."

Q: "What do your friends call you?"

A: "In Swedish we don't have the word 'you' for everyone, as you do, so they just call me King."

Q: "Do you visit the factories?"

A: "Yes. I talk to the workers, not to management."

Q: "Do you still go to discotheques?"

A: "Not any more—there's too much publicity and no privacy, so I go to friends'

Sports Mini-Profile

PETE MARAVICH

Is the "Jinx" Finally Over?

After five troubled years as a pro basketball player, "Pistol Pete" Maravich has found new success and personal happiness with the New Orleans Jazz. Back in Louisiana State University, Pete's unerring marksmanship and dazzling movements had overflow crowds oohing and ahing. He broke Oscar Robertson's all-time collegiate scoring record before graduating, and there was great fanfare when he signed with the Atlanta Hawks of the NBA. But the build-up was too great. Maravich had not learned to coordinate his movements with his fellow players. He also proved weak on defense. Some members of the Atlanta team resented his high salary and "showboating" style. When the Hawks failed to win, the fans began to boo Maravich. At the end of his first season, he commented, "After what I've been through, I feel like a 10-year veteran already." . . . "Pistol Pete's" difficulties continued through the next few years. He was stricken with mononucleosis, then with a strange facial paralysis, and finally with injuries to his Achilles tendon. He felt that Atlanta had become a "jinx" town and welcomed the trade to the new Jazz team. . . . The arrival of a new coach for the Jazz, Butch Van Breda Kolff, signaled a turn in Maravich's fortunes. Van Breda Kolff stressed team play and defense and was able to get Maravich to harmonize his unique style with his teammates. Now it all seems to be coming together. "Maravich is playing the best I've ever seen," says the Jazz coach. And Maravich says in turn, "Van Breda Kolff has been able to motivate me and the other players better than any other coach I've seen in the pros. I'm so happy now, it's really the happiest I've ever been." —By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

Can Too Many Vitamin Pills Do Harm?

If one vitamin pill is good, wouldn't two be better? Not necessarily. While vitamins and minerals usually do no harm if taken in somewhat greater than the recommended daily allowances, some of them can be harmful. Take vitamins A and D, for example. An excess of vitamin A can cause the very symptoms the vitamin is meant to prevent. Likewise, vitamin D, which makes it possible for the body to utilize calcium, can cause calcification of certain organs if taken in excess. (This is why the FDA has determined that no product containing more than 10,000 units of vitamin A or 400 units of vitamin D can be obtained without a prescription.) Overdoses of minerals can also be dangerous. You've probably heard TV commercials touting the benefits of iron. Well, iron is beneficial. It is necessary to prevent or fight anemia. But cases of iron poisoning have been reported. What it all boils down to is this: vitamins and iron supplements are generally safe and helpful. But do read the labels carefully for recommended doses. —By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

People and You

How Many True Friends Do You Have?

You may have plenty of acquaintances, but how many true friends do you have? Real Friends are the people who care about your well-being and who like you the way you are. You're lucky if you have a precious few of this kind of friend. Jess Lair, in his book "I Ain't Well—But I Sure Am Better" (Doubleday, $3.95), explains that most of us needlessly punish ourselves by spending too much of our time with those people who either don't matter to us or who actually rub us the wrong way. We feel we "ought" to like everyone and we "ought" to work at getting everyone to like us. Such thinking produces situations in which you are stunned when a "good friend" does some terrible thing to you. At such times, says Lair, you come to realize "there really wasn't a friendship there. Is there anything wrong in deliberately arranging your free time around real friends? No. Their companionship can be your surest emotional defense against the rebuffs, cold shoulders and disappointments of daily life. —By Shirley Sloan Fader

Leslie Uggams: My Ten Favorite Records

Leslie Uggams started singing at 6. Performing was in her blood—her mother was a chorus dancer at Harlem's famed Cotton Club, and her father sang in a choir. She achieved national fame with Mitch Miller, who says: "A singer like Leslie Uggams comes along once in a lifetime. I'm glad it happened during mine." Her latest album is "Leslie Uggams."

MoneyWise

Do You Believe in Financial Voodoo?

Several years ago, a man who had lost his job staked all his savings on a stock "tip" from a casual acquaintance. Amazingly, the stock zoomed, and the man made a great deal of money. Instead of quitting while he was ahead, the man continued speculating, and soon he was down to his last few dollars. Still, he didn't worry. He confidently expected another market "tip." As financial counselors know, there are many people who firmly believe some miracle will always occur to bail them out of money troubles. Most of us are not unrealistic enough to expect magic; but a great many persons manage money on the theory that an extraordinary event, such as a winning lottery ticket, will occur. Another form of "expecting magic" is hoping that the sheer act of writing down numbers will produce a balanced budget. Experts say the person who expects magic is basically insecure.

The Diet Watch

Slimming Hints From People Who've "Been There"

At a Los Angeles dieting symposium, the most cheered suggestions from people who had lost weight and were keeping it down, were these: From a secretary: "At dinner, I always give myself a too-small portion to start, so I'll feel free to take a second helping. Then usually I don't take the second helping." . . . From a corporaton executive: "I quit smoking. The smoke was irritating my ulcer and I was having to drink milk to alkalize my stomach acids—that was about 1,000 calories a day I could do without." . . . From a model: "I wear a narrow gold chain around my waist; if I gain a pound it bites into my skin and hurts." A businessman: "No more beer with TV. I drink a gallon or so of club soda spiked with lemon juice and a saccharine pill." Career woman: "When I want a hot fudge sundae, I just figure my priorities: The sundae or a full meal. Usually I end up choosing the full meal and promise myself the sundae next week."

Don't [illegible] because you don't want to spend $1,000 a carat (or more) for a diamond ring. Our Gemfires are so elegant only a diamond expert, or someone with a powerful magnifier can be really sure they aren't natural diamonds.

Gemfires are hefted and scratch-tested by master diamond cutters to bring out their full fire and brilliance. They are then set by master craftsmen, by hand, in expensive-looking, open-back mountings so the base of the stone is exposed for maximum refraction of light.

You don't have to be afraid that Gemfires will be phony-looking plastic or paste jewelry. They gleam like diamonds formed deep within the earth by tremendous heat and pressure. Yet they are free of the imperfections known to many natural diamonds. There are no cracks, no flaws, no spots of impurities to mar their sparkling beauty. We invite you to wear a Gemfire. If you, your family or your friends can tell the difference between it and a natural diamond return it to us within 30 days and we'll gladly send you your money back.

You're in good company when you wear Gemfires. Today, even millionaires wear simulated diamonds and keep their precious jewels hidden away in bank vaults to prevent them from being [illegible].

Gemfires make a lifetime gift [illegible] and the gift of a lifetime.

How to Find Your Ring Size

1. Cut a strip of paper [illegible]
2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a slight dot on the strip where it overlaps the end.
3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.

Our "NO RISK" Guarantee

Order without risk. If not completely satisfied within 30 days, return by INSURED MAIL for full refund of purchase price.

Where the Bicentennial Action Is in the East's "History Cities"

Boston's Bicentennial Pavilion, foreground, houses a multi-image, quadraphonic-sound exhibition that pays tribute to contemporary Boston.

The Jefferson Memorial, foreground, and Washington Monument stand as reminders of our national heritage and two of our greatest Presidents.

As our nation's 200th birthday party on July 4 nears, the focus for special exhibits will be on Philadelphia, Boston and Washington.

In addition, cities, towns and hamlets across the United States will be staging their own cultural and historical events, parades and projects so that the Bicentennial calendar will surely offer something—somewhere—for just about everyone.

But it is these three key cities that have something new to offer visitors on a large scale while still featuring their past and present historic attractions.

PHILADELPHIA's major Bicentennial exhibit will be the Living History Center, an $11.5 million project housed in a specially designed building adjacent to historic Independence Mall. The main attraction here will be a 45-minute historical film charting events since the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It will use a projection technique which creates the illusion that the viewer is taking part in the film's activities. (Tentative admission: adults, $3; children 12-18, $1.75; children 6-12, $1, and under 6, free.)

The center will also feature more than a dozen multimedia subject exhibits, including a referendum on major issues. In this exhibit, visitors will have an opportunity to "solve," by ballot, problems dealing with pollution, crime, excess taxation, eroding military strength and many other areas of concern. The center is scheduled to open in late April.

The Afro-American Historical and Cultural Museum (opening June 11) will highlight the history, culture and achievements of black people. There will be six major display areas, an auditorium for film, drama and lectures, a Black Hall of Achievements and a permanent archive and library.

And in and around the Independence National Historic Park, visitors will see the Liberty Bell in a new transparent home (you can still touch the crack), a reconstruction of buildings owned by America's beloved philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, and Graff House, the three-story brick house where the Declaration of Independence was drafted by Thomas Jefferson.

If all this history seems a bit confusing, then drop by the Visitors Center at Third and Chestnut and watch a free 28-minute film called "Independence," giving the background and events that led up to the Revolutionary era.

In BOSTON, you should go to the multimedia exhibits that transform history, with the help of new film-and-sound techniques, into entertaining, educational experiences. You will see the lifestyles, events and technological advances of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries dramatized in three separate exhibits.

Start with "The Revolution" where you record on a ballot your reactions to the issues and events that confronted Colonial Bostonians. At the final tally, you learn whether you would have joined the Minute Men or fled to Canada or England. This exhibit is located in Faneuil Hall, in the midst of one of Boston's oldest and best-loved attractions—the Freedom Trail. (Admission: adults, $1.50; children, 75 cents.)

"Victorian Boston" celebrates the people, inventions and technological advances that changed the city between 1865 and 1900. Original photos and daguerreotypes, clothes and artifacts show how the rich, middle class, immigrants and factory workers fared at this time. There are also several participa-

The Washington, D.C. Bicentennial Commission's

The United States Presidents Ingots

Only 25,000 collectors will ever own this strictly limited edition of major historical, educational, and artistic significance!

A BICENTENNIAL TRIBUTE TO 37 REMARKABLE MEN

What a dramatic and inspiring medallic series this is... conceived with deep respect for the remarkable leaders of America. And, with the Bicentennial fast approaching we are more aware of the great challenges facing our chief executive—The President of the United States of America. To honor this...the most powerful office on earth...The Washington D.C. Bicentennial Commission has authorized The Hamilton Mint to strike a unique Presidential Ingot for each of the thirty-seven men who have led this nation to greatness.

THE MINTING OF THE PRESIDENCY— A FINE ART TREASURY

A superb example of the engravers' art, The United States Presidents Ingots consists of thirty-seven gleaming, mirror-like ingots. These are to be issued to collectors at the rate of two per month. Each ingot of this significant Bicentennial collection contains 480 grains of the purest silver available—that of 999/1000ths purity. In 19 months, subscribers to The United States Presidents Ingots will have accumulated over 3 troy pounds of fine silver!

STUNNINGLY DESIGNED...METICULOUSLY CRAFTED

It is unlikely that you have ever witnessed pure silver ingots such as these before. Designed by master sculptor Alfred Brunettin, the surfaces glow with a duality of finishes: exquisite satin bas-relief sculpture is dramatically highlighted by the brilliance of mirror-like backgrounds. The illustrations above can merely suggest the superlative majesty of these ingots.

PRESIDENTIAL REFERENCE VOLUME INCLUDED FREE

A beautiful full-color, richly illustrated and carefully researched reference book containing personal background and achievements of the Presidents complements this collection.

ISSUED IN STRICTLY LIMITED EDITION

Significantly, The United States Presidents Ingots bears the highly-regarded endorsement of The Washington D.C. Bicentennial Commission, an independent organization established for the promotion of our nation's Bicentennial festivities. The Hamilton Mint will strike but 25,000 First Edition sets in .999 fine silver. Only one complete set will be minted for each subscriber and no more will ever be minted once the edition limits are reached, thus protecting the rarity of the edition.

YOUR PERSONAL SERIAL NUMBER

Before sending your first two United States Presidents Ingots, you will be assigned the lowest serial number available. This serial number will appear along the edge of each ingot of the series and is recorded in The Hamilton Mint archives to permanently identify each set. As further protection of your investment, each ingot bears The Hamilton Mint Hallmark and is accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity—your record of the precious metal content of the collection.

INVESTMENT POTENTIAL

This collection is certain to be treasured by knowledgeable collectors for its rarity and beauty, and you may acquire this series in precious metal at a time when prominent advisors are predicting a continued rise in the price of precious metals in the years ahead.

YOUR DELUXE OPTION...A PRESIDENTIAL COLLECTION IN 24 KARAT GOLD ON FINE SILVER

At your request The Hamilton Mint will strike a set of The United States Presidents Ingots in 24 Karat Gold on Fine Silver. Collectors will appreciate the rarity of this elegant edition—especially considering that only 10,000 sets will ever be made. Each will cost just $19.95.

TO DISPLAY YOUR COLLECTION...AN ELEGANT PRESENTATION CASE

In keeping with the belief that fine artworks should be kept on constant exhibition, The Hamilton Mint will include an elegant display case with each subscription to The United States Presidents Ingots. This presentation case...handcrafted in magnificent walnut...has been engineered to accommodate your complete collection and is offered at no additional charge!

GUARANTEED PRICE PROTECTION

Under the terms of this offer, The Hamilton Mint is committed to deliver to you at your original subscription price the complete set of 37 ingots over the next 19 months regardless of how high the price of silver and gold climbs. The Hamilton Mint must reserve the right to limit the edition below the published maximum limits, but once your application is accepted, your subscription is guaranteed.

The East's "History Cities"

The Old South Meeting House—on Boston's Freedom Trail—where the Patriots gathered on the night of the Boston Tea Party.

tory exhibits, where you can pedal a kitelike flying machine called a zephyrion or try your skill at operating a rotary handmilker for cows. You'll also learn more about such inventions as the telephone, sewing machine and safety razor. This exhibit is in "The Castle" (one of Boston's armories), which has a moat and drawbridge that must be crossed in order to buy tickets. (Admission: adults, $1.50; children, 75 cents.)

"Where's Boston?" pays tribute to the modern city with a multi-image, quadraphonic-sound show. Thousands of Boston scenes, experiences, images and faces are projected on eight screens while city noises mingle with the voices of Bostonians talking about contemporary life. You can see this exhibit in the Bicentennial Pavilion. (Admission: adults, $2; children under 13, $1.)

Going on to WASHINGTON, D.C., visitors can witness and "participate in" historical events during "The American Adventure" at Washington's National Heritage Theater. This is a 40-minute show that combines wide-screen film photography with slides, special-lighting effects and the recorded voices of historical personalities. (Admission: adults, $2.25; students, $1.75; children, 3-12, $1.25; children under 3, free.)

"A Nation of Nations" is an exhibit showing cultures and traditions that have molded America. See it free at the Museum of History and Technology.

A grand opening on July 4 is planned for the new National Air and Space Museum, which will house 26 exhibit halls and two theaters showing films on space travel and the solar system. Also free.

Summer visitors will be able to attend the Great America Festival of American Music, from ragtime to rock. Performances will run from June 14 through September 6 at the Sylvan Theater on the grounds of the Washington Monument, Tuesday through Sunday from 8 to 9:30 p.m. Free and with fireworks.

These are just a few of the celebration highlights taking place during the Bicentennial. Some will be ongoing, while others will last only a few months' time. So, while planning your Bicentennial trip, keep in mind those events and places in history you'd like to sample . . . and enjoy!

AMERICA'S "5" MOST POPULAR SHADE TREES

LESS THAN $2.00 each (in lots of 16)

PLUS OUR "FANTASTIC" .50¢ BONUS OFFER!

ALL SHADE TREES SHIPPED AT 5 TO 7 FEET

Sugar Maple (acer saccharum) The largest of all maples, and its beautiful array of yellow and orange hues make it a sight to remember due to the foliage thickness — A very hardy northern and southern tree and will grow up to 60 feet. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

E. White Birch (betula verrucosa) This beautiful tree has very delicate foliage with snowy white bark, and a compact form — It can be seen growing in all different climates and the multi-trunk (clump) effect can be obtained by planting two or more trees next to one another. It is also a rapid grower. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Red Maple (acer rubrum) This is one of the most beautiful of all shade trees. Besides having brilliant scarlet red leaves in the fall of the year, it has another excellent trait —it is an extremely fast grower. It is very easily transplanted and many experts agree it will grow practically anywhere in the U.S.A. Grows to 60 feet. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

Weeping Willow (salix babylonica) This tree is the hardiest of all willows, and has clear golden yellow and green leaves, the leaves appear early in Spring and one of the last trees to lose its leaves. A "super fast" growing tree at the rate of 5 to 6 feet per year. An excellent buy. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

"3 WAY GUARANTEE"

1. All shade trees regardless of the number ordered will be 5 to 7 feet tall, and all bonus trees will be 4 to 6 feet. All Shipping Paid.
2. Trees advertised in your area will live in your area.
3. All trees are guaranteed to live and if by mere chance any fail to live they will be replaced free of charge for three years.

Tulip Tree (lirodendron tulipifera) This tree is a very large growing tree reaching heights of eighty feet or more. Its yellow-green leaves turn bright yellow in the fall and in the late Spring it has vivid orange and yellow tulip shaped flowers. Very hardy and fast growing and is a cousin to the magnolia. (shipped at 5 to 7 feet).

BONUS TREES

You may purchase up to as many bonus trees as you do shade trees — for example if you purchase 4 shade trees you may order either 1-2-3 or 4 bonus trees or none. Each bonus tree costs only .50¢ each in any combination. All bonus tree orders must be placed at the same time as the shade tree order.

OUR PRICES

We guarantee our price to be the best possible and if you find any of these trees advertised for less, (same size and variety) we will refund the difference plus give you a free gift of your choice from our catalogue. How can you lose?

FANTASTIC BONUS OFFER .50¢ each

ALL BONUS TREES SHIPPED AT 4 TO 6 FEET

Mtn. Ash (fraxinus pennsylvancia) This tree like the maple has no equal when it comes to its ability to survive hot and cold temperatures. A real rapid grower and matures into a fine, compact tree, with beautiful dense green foliage. Grows to 40 feet. (shipped at 4 to 6 feet).

Red Bud (cercis canadensis) This beautiful flowering tree is native to both the north and south and thereby extremely hardy. It blooms at the same time as the dogwoods and its gorgeous pink flowers form a lovely combination with the dogwoods. Grows to 25 feet. (shipped at 4 to 6 feet).

White Dogwood (cornus florida) This beautiful flowering tree has large white blossoms, and can be seen in all parts of the country. Its foliage is attractive all summer and has beautiful fall colors as the red berries hang on most of the winter. Grows to 25 feet. (shipped at 4 to 6 feet).

ALL BONUS TREE ORDERS MUST BE PLACED AT THE SAME TIME AS THE SHADE TREE ORDER

Invite This Chicken to Your Next Party!

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen shares a "company" chicken recipe you can make the day before. Marilyn says, "You just can't beat chicken at a dinner party. Here's a scrumptious boned chicken dish that's appropriate for almost any occasion."

Savory Chicken Roulade surrounded by Broccoli.

Smart Cooking For Special Occasions

HOT CURRIED CHEESE DIP

- 1 pkg. (8 ozs.) cream cheese, softened
- 2 tablespoons milk
- ½ cup sour cream
- 1 jar (2½ ozs.) dried beef, chopped
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1½ teaspoons curry powder
- ⅓ cup chopped nuts (walnuts, pecans or peanuts)
- Plain crackers
- Raw vegetables: celery, carrots, zucchini, cauliflower, mushrooms, etc.

1. In medium bowl, blend together cream cheese and milk until smooth. Add sour cream. Mix well.
2. Add dried beef, onion, green pepper, black pepper and curry powder. Beat at low speed.
3. Spoon mixture into shallow (2-cup) baking dish. Sprinkle with chopped nuts.
4. Cover and refrigerate. Just before serving, uncover and heat in preheated 350° F. oven for 20 minutes.
5. Serve with crackers and vegetables. Makes about 2 cups

SAVORY CHICKEN ROULADE

- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- ½ cup finely chopped celery
- 1½ cups coarsely crumbled bacon-flavored crackers
- 1 jar (2 ozs.) diced pimientos, drained
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 1 egg, beaten
- ½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 4 large chicken breasts, skinned, boned, split and pounded to ¼-inch thickness
- All-purpose flour
- ¼ cup pure vegetable oil
- 1 can (10¾ ozs.) golden mushroom soup, undiluted
- ¼ cup sherry or milk

1. Heat butter in medium sauce-pan until hot but not smoking. Add onion and celery and sauté for 5 minutes, stirring.
2. Add cracker crumbs, pimientos, parsley, egg, poultry seasoning and black pepper. Mix.
3. Spoon stuffing onto centers of chicken pieces, leaving a ½-inch edge all around. Roll each from narrow end and fasten with wooden picks. Coat lightly with flour.
4. Heat oil in skillet and lightly brown chicken rolls in hot oil.
5. Place chicken rolls in shallow baking dish. Blend golden mushroom soup and sherry until smooth. Pour over chicken rolls. Cover with foil. Refrigerate if not baking immediately.
6. Bake, covered, in preheated 350° F. oven for 45 to 50 minutes.

Makes 4 large servings

The Kienast quintuplets just got all the Gym-Dandy® gyms they'll ever need. One.

Bill and Peggy-Jo Kienast were skeptical.

Frankly, they doubted that any gym—even a Gym-Dandy—could withstand the awesome destructive force of 5 six-year-olds named Amy, Abigail, Sara, Gordon and Ted.

So, we took the Kienasts down to our factory to see for themselves what makes a Gym-Dandy the most kidproof gym in the world.

We got Bill on our side right away with our patented 5 Minute Frame.®

Because unlike any other gym, Gym-Dandy's factory-assembled top bar comes with all crossarms and leg sockets pre-welded into place. Bill simply slid the legs into the sockets, locked them in—only one bolt per leg—and the Gym-Dandy frame was on its feet. In minutes.

What's more, those factory-welded sockets and crossarms can't work loose, the way ordinary nut-and-bolt assemblies can. So a Gym-Dandy not only goes up easier, it stays up longer.

Little things mean a lot

Many of Gym-Dandy's most important features are not too obvious.

So we made sure the Kienasts noticed our unique Bodygard Slide.™ Its platform stays level because it's actually hung from the top bar and supported at 4 points—instead of just standing on legs that can sag or sink into the ground.

We showed how details like the extra-long nylon bearings make our Sky-Skooter® more durable and more fun. By eliminating metal-to-metal friction and letting the unit swing easier.

We asked Bill, who weighs about 170, to climb the ladder and bounce a few times to demonstrate the amazing strength of our Giant Footsteps.™

Making a Gym-Dandy isn't kid stuff

Finally we told the Kienasts a little about ourselves. How we began over 30 years ago, making a few gym sets by hand for our neighbors. How we built a business by taking kids' fun seriously. And how we still make gyms today as though they were going to be used by our neighbors' children.

By this time, the only Kienasts who weren't convinced were the quints themselves. But Bill Kienast fixed that. He put a Gym-Dandy in his backyard. After that, it was all child's play.

Are you still smoking?

In the years since the criticism against smoking first appeared, many people have given up cigarettes. But many more people haven't.

And that's who we'd like to talk to. That even larger group of people who are still smoking today.

If you're still a smoker, you've probably heard the charges leveled against 'tar' and nicotine. You may have become concerned. And chances are you even tried to do something about it. Like trying several of those empty-tasting low 'tar' and nicotine cigarettes.

If you're like a lot of other smokers, you probably went right back to your old brand, and concluded that a good-tasting low 'tar' and nicotine cigarette has never been invented.

Well, if that's the case, you haven't tried Vantage.

Vantage cuts down substantially on the 'tar' and nicotine you may have become concerned about. Without cutting out that satisfying tobacco flavor you've come to appreciate.

Now Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can smoke. But it may well be the lowest you'll enjoy.

To put it simply, Vantage still tastes like a cigarette.

So, if you still smoke, but would like to cut down on 'tar' and nicotine, Vantage is one cigarette you should seriously consider.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER, MENTHOL: 11 mg. "tar", 0.7 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report SEPT. '75.

TV's Jimmie Walker:

The Restless Young Man Who Lives Inside "J. J."

Elizabeth Gee

"I was a newspaperboy in the South Bronx . . . Everybody should live there one time in his life. It makes you want to get out, so you work harder. You learn to roll with the punches."

Jimmie Walker made a surprisingly low-key entrance into crowded Scandia, one of Los Angeles' best restaurants, and headed for my table in his loose, disjointed walk. He was nattily attired in a flowered shirt with brown accents, jeans and matching suede jacket and cap. A chubby couple stopped him on the way and gushed, "You're that fella who plays 'J.J.' in 'Good Times' on TV! We enjoy you so much!" Jimmie grinned until half his face was just an assortment of teeth. Eventually, he pulled himself away, and soon I found myself face to face with "J.J." himself—the supporting actor who won FAMILY WEEKLY's 1975 Celebrity Poll going away!

FAMILY WEEKLY: How do you like being recognized wherever you go?

JIMMIE: I know it's tired and trite, but I hate my loss of privacy. And signing autographs bugs me. I don't need no ego thing. Some people do, I guess. I don't. I'm not into the celebrity bit. Like coming here: when I walked in that door, they looked at me like I was crazy, and right away they want to know, "Where's your tie?" My tie! Man, I'm used to McDonald's or Taco Bell. You know—grab a burger and split! Jeans 'n' T-shirts do me fine.

FW: I understand you do a lot more than the TV show.

JIMMIE: Yes— I write, and at least once a week I do a club show. I also made a movie and an album, "Dyn-o-mite!"

FW: Do you write your own material?

JIMMIE: Of course. I couldn't afford to do it any other way! I'm writing other scripts as well. I did one for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and a "Movie of the Week." Nobody's bought them yet, but I'm hopin'.

FW: How do you think of yourself—as a comedian, actor or writer?

JIMMIE: First as a comedian. Then, moving apart, is the writer. But I'm not an actor! I do the part of J.J. like I was in a nightclub. I react. That's not acting.

FW: Have you always wanted to be a comedian?

JIMMIE: I didn't want to be a comedian! At first I wanted to be a disk jockey until I found out I didn't have the talent for it. Then I wanted to be a network newscaster, but I didn't have the timing or the background to do that.

FW: So how did you end up a comedian?

JIMMIE: I was doing this paper for my oratory class at City College in New York, and I made up some things and attributed them to Dick Gregory, figuring if they didn't go over, he'd get the blame. But they liked the stuff. So I sat down and figured it out: if you're funny, you're funny whether it's for three or 300 or 3,000.

FW: Did you ever have to be funny for just three people?

JIMMIE: I did for Jack Paar—on my first interview! He said, "Everyone keeps telling us you're funny. All right, go ahead: be funny." When I finished, I had them lying on the floor. The next day he asked me if I was ready to go on national TV, and I said, "I've been ready for four years!"

FW: What was your first job?

JIMMIE: I was a newspaper delivery boy in the South Bronx. I'll tell you something: everybody should live there one time in his life. It makes you want to get out, so you work harder. You learn to roll with the punches. Rich kids don't have to. Look at Dino and Desi [Dino is the son of Dean Martin and Desi, the son of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz]: millionaires by the time they're 21, and they haven't anything they really want to do. They have a house, cars, chicks—what do they need? Nothing. No drive.

FW: How old are you?

JIMMIE: Old enough. (Editor's note: He's reported to be 26.)

FW: How do you feel about being in a successful TV series?

JIMMIE: It's advantageous to my career, makes people aware of me. Also, it gives me a lot of money.

FW: How do you get along with your costars?

JIMMIE: All right I guess. They're all actors, I'm the only one from night clubs.

FW: You seem to be quite an extrovert.

houses. The food is the same."

Q: "Can you go out freely?"

A: "Oh yes."

Q: "What would you do if you weren't King?"

A: "I have thought about that. I would like to be a farmer."

Q: "Tell us about your planned visit to America."

A: "I'll be there a month, seeing the country, especially the Swedish people who have settled there in Minnesota and other states. They're excited that I'm coming—they send me letters inviting me to stay with them, or to visit their home or their church."

Finally, one of the journalists said: "Your Majesty, even though I am embarrassed to ask this, I must . . . . What do you eat for breakfast?"

The King looked completely taken aback, sure he was being put on. "Well, I—I don't know," he said. "Continental breakfast (rolls and coffee). I don't like a big English breakfast."

When it was my turn to meet the King alone, I was really nervous. I walked in the room, sat down on my chair, and said, "I must tell you I'm terrified. Is there anything you'd like to ask me?"

The King gave a flirtatious smile. "I better not," he said, "because it might be something rude." We both smiled at each other, and then he asked, "What kind of books do you write?"

I tried to describe my novels, which is difficult for any author to do. "We think they're about modern life, changing values and morals, men and women, and love."

I asked him if he liked to read.

"Yes, but I don't read so much because I read late at night and I fall asleep over what I am reading."

"What do the young people of Sweden think of you?" I asked.

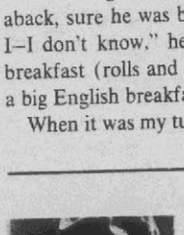

"I think they like me. When I go out they recognize me, and if they've had a few drinks, they come up to me on the street and bang me on the back and say 'Hey, King, come along with us!' "

"The time is up," Mortenson said, looking at his watch.

"But I should add," the King went on, "that the Swedish people are very shy and they have to have a drink before they can come up to me."

We all had our pictures taken in another room, and the King seemed more relaxed, smiling and joking. We said goodbye to him then; and when we left, I looked back at that enormous stone palace and wondered if the King was lonely. I imagined him putting on blue jeans, playing some records, calling up some friends, maybe even jumping into his little blue sports car and speeding away if there were enough time before the banquet.

It didn't seem to be much fun to be King, at least not in 1976.

Have you ever been intimidated?

JIMMIE: Not intimidated, but I like to stay alone. I'm a loner.

FW: Have you ever thought of going back to finish college?

JIMMIE: Yeah, once, a long time ago. But I changed my mind. Decided to write and got into show business instead, and now look—I'm here in Scandia!

FW: How do you write—long hand, on a typewriter, or what?

JIMMIE: I think it! I just tell my secretary or rap into the tape recorder.

FW: How do you create your night club routines?

JIMMIE: I work with a tape recorder. I get out on stage and start rapping. The next night I use what was good the night before and rap some more. By the end of the week, if I'm lucky, I've got two or three minutes, and I put them into my act.

FW: Why do you keep doing one-nighters? stands even when you're so busy?

JIMMIE: I like them! I like the energy I get it! It's you! If you bomb, you bomb. I like getting out there and battling with the people. That's why I play a lot of colleges and universities. That's the area. They're open to ideas.

FW: What do you want out of life?

JIMMIE: To be a headliner. Really draw people in. And write some good stuff.

FW: When you have time off and don't do anything at all, what do you do?

JIMMIE: Lie in bed, sleep, watch TV. Gimme some orange juice and waffles. I can lie in bed two, three days.

FW: If you could start over again, what would you change?

JIMMIE: I'd try harder to think of a way not to be recognized. Unfortunately I've got a face that there aren't too many like.

NOW AT A GREAT NEW LOW PRICE!

THE FIGURE TRIMMER

The Sensible Exerciser that helps both Men and Women Easily Slim, Firm and Beautifully Shape Their Bodies — In Just Minutes a Day

AT LAST — the ingenious easy new physical fitness system, to help you: lose inches and pounds, improve the shape of your body, increase your sex appeal and feel and look years younger — and now at a great new low, low price!

An Easy, Proven System That Takes Just Minutes A Day

It's easy — because you exercise while you lie on your back and do just 3 basic routines. And yet you exercise and tone every muscle in your arms, legs, abdomen, waist, back, neck and tummy — all the important, problem spots that you want to help keep trim, firm and beautiful.

We recommend you start at a moderate 2 to 3 minutes a day. You'll soon find that you want to increase this to 4, 5 and up to 15 minutes at a time. But, and this is important, you do it at your own pace and you find it easier and easier to exercise for longer periods. The rhythmic movements you use are so simple that any child of 5 can master them in one minute, because all you do is lift and bend your arms and legs and the "Figure Trimmer" won't let you make a mistake. A simple, fully illustrated instruction booklet for the basic exercises is included.

Important Note:

Dear Reader,

Don't be confused: The competitive exerciser models you've seen on T.V. and in magazines for $7.95 and $9.95 work on exactly the same principle and in the same way as ours. By a special purchase from a manufacturer, we've been able to break the price wide open and offer "The Figure Trimmer" at this amazing low price!

Use "The Figure Trimmer" Anywhere

Yes, use it in your bedroom, living room, office, even while you're away from home (it's so compact, it folds to fit right in a handbag or attache case and weighs only a mere 10 ounces). You never have to miss your regular exercise . . . use it anywhere you can lie down. Simply attach to bedpost, doorknob, etc., and it's ready to use.

To Help Weight Loss . . .

We recommend a moderate and sensible temporary 15 to 20% reduction in your normal food intake (while still eating exactly the same kinds of delicious foods your normally eat and like). We don't send you any fad or crash diet, because your own doctor will tell you that these are harmful. We suggest you continue this moderation until you reach desired weight loss. After that, just eat normally and continue exercises to feel and look better and younger.

Ironclad Guarantee

Our guarantee is simple. You must within 14 days see and feel your body toned up and feeling great — and look and feel years younger, or simply return unit for a prompt and complete refund. Mail order coupon today; you'll be glad you did.

How to twirl away ugly fat in just 5 min. a day

"Centrifugal Force Transfer" (CFT) The twirling motion of the SWINGER Total Body Shaper® generates centrifugal force and causes your body to burn up fat.

by John Wilkinson

By following the SWINGER Total Body Shaper® Weight Loss Plan, you can shed lbs., trim inches, firm and shape your body, and look and feel younger after just 14 days. You twirl your SWINGER just 5 min. a day 5 days a week, even while watching TV!

SWINGER REALLY WORK!

SWINGER works because it's different than most weight loss plans. Here's 6 reasons why:

1. The SWINGER Weight Loss Plan doesn't involve long strenuous calisthenics. You twirl your SWINGER 5 enjoyable min. each day. You do it because it's fun.
2. The SWINGER Weight Loss Plan doesn't require starvation dieting. You get to eat the foods you love, even in-between-meal snacks. A nutrition plan is included with your SWINGER.
3. You can see and feel results on the 3rd day. After 14 days of use, you can lose 13 lbs., 4" off your waist and feel physically fit.
4. When you lose weight with your SWINGER, instead of hurting your bustline, you'll actually improve it (chest for men).
5. When you lose weight with your SWINGER, you won't become weak, haggard-looking or nervous. Instead, you'll have more energy, eliminate end-of-the-day drag, have a glowing look of good health, and probably live longer. The rhythmic movement of your SWINGER can help to calm your nerves and relieve tension.
6. After you reach your ideal weight, you'll continue to twirl your SWINGER because it's fun. This will help you stay fat-free and physically fit forever.

There are more benefits—many more.

- You'll firm and shape your body. Your legs, hips, buttocks, waist, stomach and arms will be firmer, smaller and younger looking.

"Incremental Momentum" You increase the amount of water and thus the weight of your Swinger each day. The added weight increases the momentum of your exercises, and thus increases their effectiveness each day.

- SWINGER allows you to concentrate on specific problem areas. If your legs are slender but your upper body is heavy, you can slim your upper body without affecting your legs.
- SWINGER can destroy your cellulite (orange-peel or cottage cheese like lumps of fat.)
- SWINGER can improve your breathing and circulation and exercise and strengthen your heart.

The SWINGER has been acclaimed and inspected by fitness experts. But, you needn't rely on these opinions alone. Here is just one example of the many successful users:

"I'd tried the cellulite book, and it worked fairly well, but my cellulite came back. After following the SWINGER Weight Loss Plan for 14 days, I lost 14 lbs., 3 inches off my waist, and got rid of all my cellulite—and it never came back."

Cindy McClintock
Canton, Ohio

HOW DOES SWINGER WORK?

SWINGER works by using two scientific principles: Incremental Momentum and Centrifugal Force Transfer (CFT).

As you can see from the "Incremental Momentum" photo (See photo at lower left.) the variable rotators have 14 graduations. On Day 1, you fill each rotator up to the Day 1 line. Then you simply twirl your SWINGER for 5 min. By slightly increasing the amount of water each day, you increase the momentum and effectiveness of your exercise. As each day passes, you become healthier, your body becomes firmer and, best of all, the weight automatically falls off.

As you twirl your SWINGER, the 2nd scientific principle comes into play. "Centrifugal Force Transfer", CFT. (See photo at upper left). Centrifugal Force is the force that pushes you against your car door as you turn a corner. The twirling motion of the SWINGER generates centrifugal force and causes your body to burn up fat.

SWINGER has all of these features:

- The SWINGER's weight is controlled by the amount of water put in. So, it can be used by anyone —men, women, young and old, even people with no athletic ability.
- There's no need for extra equipment or clothing. You can exercise in your regular clothes.
- The SWINGER is durable. It will stand up to the heavy use it's sure to get.

"SWINGER Total Body Shaper®, the revolutionary new invention which allows you to shed 13 lbs., trim 4 in, off your waist, plus shape and firm your entire body in just 14 days"

- You can use your SWINGER almost anywhere: in the office, bathroom, hallway, bedroom, etc.
- Along with your SWINGER, you'll receive an easy-to-understand instruction booklet.
- SWINGER can be stored and taken anywhere.

What in the World!

Franz Furst

Pictures of Adolf Hitler in unguarded moments were rare; This is one of several recently found and made available to the press.

Few unposed pictures were ever taken of Adolf Hitler because Josef Goebbels, the propagandist who created the Führer myth, felt that Hitler should never look vulnerable unless he was being photographed kissing children (thousands of those shots were taken during his dictatorship). Hitler's vanity was such that no public photographs were to be taken when he was wearing his eyeglasses. Only his mistress Eva Braun was allowed to photograph him in relaxed moments. Never quite sure of his social position—his tastes in art and furniture ran to well-endowed nudes and heavy baroque—Hitler liked to think that he was a member of the upper class. Goebbels thought Hitler's middle-class values were his biggest asset, according to a new biography ("Goebbels," by Viktor Reimann): "Goebbels had in Hitler the ideal type to inspire a population because all characteristics of the masses combined in the Führer. He was moody, brutal, unpredictable, hysterical, cruel and barbaric. But he was also sentimental and capable of self-sacrifice, and therefore better than anyone else at seducing and intoxicating the crowd. He was part of them, he virtually merged with them physically; the masses could practically feel they were being saved. Many confessed to a feeling of paralysis in his presence."

By Frank Baginski

LITTLE EMILY

"Now what was that problem again? If Buddy has 43 apples and Barbara has 52 . . ."

MELISSA MANCHESTER
For adults only

Melissa Manchester, 23-year-old singer-songwriter, on the lifelong struggle of the musical artist: "Contrary to public opinion, we're not one big happy family. The weird people can really get to you after a while. There are so many people who flock to this business because they think it will be one big party. Most of us started out with the same romantic notions. We wanted to do something special since the age of 5. We all performed for our families. Our egos are such that we were willing to go through the worst of times to get what we wanted, which we thought was the opposite of the 9-to-5, two-cars-in-every-garage existence. But then, even after you've 'made it' in this business, you continue to pay your dues. You still have no time to yourself, and your sense of privacy is lost forever. Becoming a celebrity doesn't really change you, only people's reactions to you. Watching those reactions has brought out my survival instincts—I worry about what I'll be left with when all the fuss is over." Melissa's latest record is "Better Days and Happy Endings."

PHIL JACKSON
Why athletes can't be "friends"

The gangly New York Knick, Phil Jackson, explains why competition on the court leaves no room for friendships off the court with teammates: "Bill Russell once stated that he never had a friend on the Celtics. That's the norm in the NBA. There's an air of competitivesness there which seems to permeate all personal dealings that players have with each other. They are competing against their teammates for playing time, publicity, money and sometimes favor with the coach. What usually develops is that each player forms his own private sphere of personal influence. I've never seen Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe together at the same social function, for instance. That doesn't mean they don't like each other; it's just the way it is and has always been. Ballplayers relate best on the basketball court. That's where they can get along without any kind of verbal communication. One of the joys of being an athlete is knowing someone quite well without having to sit down and talk." From "Maverick: More Than a Game," by Phil Jackson with Charles Rosen (Playboy Press, $9.95).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

GONE FOR BAD

I had a shock just a moment ago,
My heart, I was sure, was stopping.
I'd looked for my wife and called,
but oh,
She'd gone. Said her note:
"Gone shopping."

It wasn't her being gone I feared.
I knew she'd be back in time.
It was that "Gone shopping" that stabbed and speared
And led me to write this rhyme.

"Gone shopping" is full of doom and distress,
Which is why I was almost crying.
I couldn't be sure, but I had to guess
What she really meant was
"I'm buying."

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

I was baby-sitting for a 3-year-old boy and asked him who his girlfriend was. He said it was the girl down the street and that he was going to marry her. "What if she won't marry you?" I asked. He stopped for a moment, then replied, "I won't tell her." —Maria Swalls Zeigler, Ill.

Will your health insurance pay when you DON'T go to the hospital?

Mutual of Omaha's new MONEY BACK health insurance can protect you three ways . . .

can pay you IN the hospital
can pay you OUT of the hospital
can refund ALL your premiums if you NEVER get sick or hurt

| UP TO | AS MUCH AS |
|---|---|
| $1,200.00 A MONTH | $40.00 A DAY |

disability income benefits can be provided when a covered sickness or accident keeps you from working.

What hospital insurance does for hospital bills, this Mutual of Omaha plan can do for your grocery, rent and clothing bills . . . important protection for working men and women. Other disability income coverages include Homemakers' plans for housewives.

Our figures show that you're seven times more likely to be laid up at home than in the hospital. That could leave an awful lot of bills unpaid if your health insurance covers you only in the hospital. Mutual of Omaha thinks you need protection at home, too . . . and does something about it.

With this plan, the family income can be protected during and after hospitalization . . . protected even if you never go to the hospital. And, in addition, if you never get sick, never get hurt, every cent you pay in premiums will be refunded when your policy matures at age 65.

Mutual of Omaha guarantees that you'll collect at least as much as you've paid in when you keep your policy in force to age 65. If you do receive benefits, and they total less than you've paid in at age 65, you then collect the difference. If you've never received benefits, you get a 100% refund . . . every penny you've paid in.

As a breadwinner, man or woman, married or single, you can select the amount you qualify for (from $100.00 to $1,200.00 a month . . . up to $40.00 a day) to help replace your paychecks when a covered sickness or accident keeps you from working. These monthly disability income benefits are payable over and above any benefits you receive for hospital and medical bills. They are yours to spend as you please for any purpose you choose . . . yours to use for every kind of bill.

THERE ARE SEVEN REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD CONSIDER THIS MUTUAL OF OMAHA PLAN

1. You may qualify for a plan that can provide up to $1,200.00 monthly income benefits (up to $40.00 a day) to spend as you see fit if you're sick or hurt and can't work, or refund all your premiums when your policy matures at age 65 if you stay well.

2. These disability income benefits are provided in and out of the hospital.

3. Your coverage becomes effective immediately for new sickness contracted or injury received after your policy is in force. Pre-existing conditions (old health problems) will not be covered for 12 months. This applies to such conditions shown on your application and not excluded from coverage.

4. Mental disorders are covered the same as any other sickness.

5. Your policy protects you as a passenger in any kind of aircraft—even a private plane.

6. Benefits are provided for disabilities incurred both on and off the job. They are available in addition to any Workmen's Compensation and Employer's Liability coverage.

7. You have this renewal agreement: no matter how often you may receive benefits, Mutual of Omaha guarantees to renew your policy as long as premiums are paid on time. Your premium can be changed only when changed for all like policies in your state.

Please note that the amount of the benefit, the premium, and the deductible period vary with the plan you qualify for. And that these disability income benefits are not payable for losses caused by war or military service; narcotics, unless prescribed by a physician; childbirth, pregnancy, or resulting complications. Coverage terminates at retirement or age 65, whichever comes first.

Get the full facts about the disability income plan your work, health, income, etc., now qualify you for. Money back plans are available through age 49. Other disability income plans are available through age 69. Mutual of Omaha will provide personal service in furnishing this information without cost or obligation. You will also receive facts about the fine plans to meet your life insurance needs available from Mutual's affiliate, United of Omaha. Mail the postage free card provided for your convenience, now. Or write Reader's Service, Dept. 1231, Mutual of Omaha, Omaha, Neb. 68131.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by Hal Foster

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT AND ZILLA COME ASHORE AND SET UP CAMP. FAR UP THE HILLSIDE THE RUINS OF THE OLD PALACE STAND AMIDST THE RUBBLE LEFT BY TREASURE SEEKERS.

THEIR SEARCH BEGINS IN THE GARDEN WHERE FLOWERS ARE CARVED IN STONE AND EACH ONE COMPARED TO A GEM. "OBVIOUSLY A REFERENCE TO THE TREASURE," MUSES ZILLA, "THERE SHOULD BE A KEY TO THE PUZZLE SOMEWHERE."

"IF THERE IS A MEANING TO THE FLOWER CARVINGS IT SHOULD BE ON THE GATEWAY," SAYS VAL. THE LINTEL HAD FALLEN LONG AGO AND IS BURIED IN THE RUBBLE.

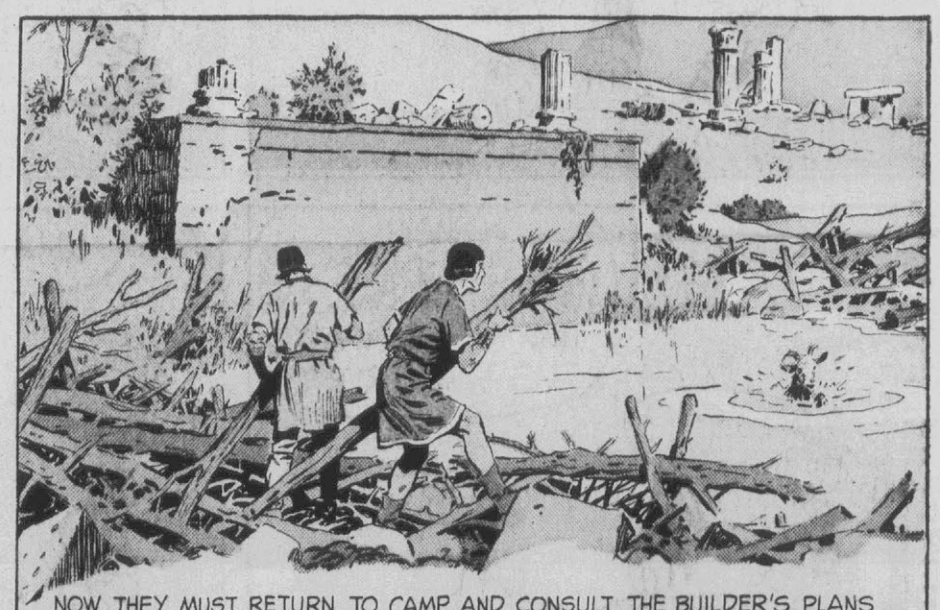

BUT THEY BRING IT UP AND CLEAN IT. VAL READS: 'THE FAIREST FLOWERS BLOOM ON A DUNG HEAP.' "THAT'S IT!" EXCLAIMS ZILLA. "JEWELS, DUNG HEAP! THE TREASURE VAULT IS NEAR THE STABLES!"

"I, A PRINCE, HEIR TO A THRONE, MUST STOOP TO SEARCHING IN A DUNG HEAP FOR A TREASURE I DO NOT NEED?!"
