Pitt County's GOP Supported Reagan Above Statewide Level

Republican presidential aspirant Ronald Reagan gathered a whopping 63 per cent of the GOP vote in Pitt County and rode surprising statewide support to his first primary win on Tuesday.

Reagan, who had suffered a succession of primary defeats to President Gerald Ford in recent weeks, carried 24 of the 26 Pitt County precincts in topping Ford.

The former California governor polled roughly 52 per cent of the North Carolina GOP vote as he handed Ford his first primary loss of the campaign and renewed his effort to gain the Republican nomination.

Ford, who had been expected to win the North Carolina primary and deal another setback to Reagan's longshot hopes, received only 35 per cent of the Pitt Republican vote and 46 per cent statewide.

Pitt County, with a Republican registration of only 4,001, voted less than half of that figure with Reagan receiving 1,106 votes and Ford 614, according to unofficial tabulations compiled by The Daily Reflector.

Only 33 "No Preference" votes were cast by county Republicans, according to the tabulations.

Countywide, Reagan carried every voting precinct except Greenville Three (Third Street School), which gave Ford a slight six votes to two edge, and Swift Creek, which voted five to three in Ford's favor.

Ford did gain the edge in the absentee balloting as he received nine votes to four for Reagan.

Reagan piled up decisive margins in several of the county precincts, including a 146 to 62 advantage in Greenville Nine (Gardner Fire Station), a 133 to 71 margin in Greenville Five (American Legion Building), and a 115 to 71 margin in Greenville Seven (Elm Street).

Ayden Republicans voted 73 to 35 in favor of Reagan while Farmville gave the challenger a 46 to 20 margin. Grifton voted 66 to 21 in Reagan's favor, Winterville leaned toward Reagan by a 55 to 32 vote, Falkland gave him a ten to three margin, and Fountain voted 12 to one in his favor.

Neither Reagan nor Ford made personal appearances in Pitt County although Reagan's wife Nancy, and U. S. Senator Jesse Helms made local campaign stops in the former actor's behalf. Reagan also visited Kinston late in the primary campaign.

Carter Saw A Narrower Margin In Pitt's Voting

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Democrat Jimmy Carter, who won Tuesday's North Carolina presidential primary by a large margin, had a tougher battle in Pitt County where he ran only a few percentage points ahead of Alabama Governor George Wallace.

Carter, as expected, piled up a healthy statewide lead and polled roughly 54 per cent of the vote to Wallace's 35 per cent. In Pitt County, however, Wallace led much of the evening before falling back to an unofficial final percentage of 42.5 per cent to Carter's 46.3 per cent.

Three important state issues received the approval of Pitt voters during yesterday's balloting and the county trend proved to be statewide as North Carolina endorsed a $43.2 million higher education bond proposal, as well as two constitutional amendments involving bond issuance.

Pitt Democrats gave Wallace the edge in precinct wins but Carter carried more of the larger, more populated areas to gain the county edge. Wallace topped the balloting in 14 of the 26 precincts.

According to unofficial tabulations compiled by The Daily Reflector, Carter received 4,297 votes to 3,946 for Wallace in Pitt County. Trailing the two frontrunners were Henry Jackson with 315 votes, Morris Udall with 200, Fred Harris with 105 and Lloyd Bentsen with ten.

A significant number of "No Preference" votes were cast by Pitt Democrats as 404 persons indicated they did not wish to vote for any of the listed candidates. The votes are an important part of the overall count since they figure in the delegate committal picture.

Budget Hike By Pitt Tech

The Pitt Technical Institute Board of Trustees adopted a proposed county budget of $244,980 for current operations and $249,298 in capital outlay as a recommendation to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners at their Monday meeting.

The current operations budget proposal represents a 26 per cent increase over last year and the capital outlay proposal, a 28.7 per cent increase. Reflected in the operations budget are requests for a 5 per cent salary increase for county employees or the same per cent increase granted other county employees in similar positions and a request for funds to maintain and operate the old nurses building behind the hospital if Pitt Tech is permitted to use the facility.

A motion was passed by the Board to request the County Commissioners' permission to use the old nurses building behind the hospital. Pitt Tech would house health-related programs in it. A part of the proposed current operations budget includes funds to defray Reagan Surprised Even Himself By Defeating Pres. Ford In N.C.

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

Ronald Reagan, one of the big early losers of the 1976 presidential season, is now a winner and says it's because the voters are beginning to catch on to his attacks on President Ford's policies.

Reagan surprised everyone, including himself, by winning the North Carolina Republican primary over Ford. It broke a zero-for-five run, put an end for the time being to the clamor for him to drop his challenge to the President and gave him something to show donors who are scared off by losses.

On the Democratic side, Jimmy Carter continued to win, racking up his fifth victory in six early primaries and pushing aside for good George Wallace's claim to speak for the South. Carter got over 50 per cent of the vote for the first time, easily outdistancing Wallace, who lead four other Democrats who didn't campaign in the state.

If Reagan had lost as expected in North Carolina it would have increased the cries for the former California governor's withdrawal—perhaps to a level that would have been impossible to ignore. As it was seemed resigned to losing and issued one of those tough-it-out statements he was in the race to stay.

He arrived in Los Angeles from Wisconsin early today and said of his supporters, "There was no panic, no one discouraged, everybody stayed with it. I'm very proud of them, happy to be coming home this way."

In Florida, Illinois and again in North Carolina, Reagan has been attacking the administration's detente with the Soviet Union, what he said is a weak defense posture and government spending. He said today, "The issues we've been trying to talk about are beginning to catch on."

Ford, in a telephone chat with campaign workers in Raleigh, conceded that he expected a victory.

Carter carried all of the Greenville precincts with vote margins that included: Greenville one (Meadowbrook), 107 to 86 for Wallace; Greenville Three (Third Street School), 207 to 15; Greenville Four (West End Fire Station), 280 to 60; Greenville Five (American Legion Building), 264 to 240; Greenville Six (Fifth Street Fire Station), 149 to 91; Greenville Seven (Elm Street Gym), 333 to 284; Greenville Eight (Willis Building), 315 to 220; Greenville Nine (Gardner Fire Station), 339 to 203; and Greenville Ten (Aycock Junior High), 244 to 141.

Carter also carried Bethel (172 to 168), Farmville (482 to 382), and Grimesland Two (137 to 119).

Wallace took the lead in early returns Tuesday evening, carrying many of the rural precincts. His final unofficial figures show precinct wins in: Arthur (98 to 41 for Carter); Ayden (363 to 305); Belvoir (97 to 39); Carolina (120 to 37); Chicod (Continued on page 16)

Coup Unseats Pres. Isabel

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The commanders of Argentina's three armed forces ousted President Isabel Peron early today in one of the most anticipated coups in history and flew her under arrest to the interior of the country.

The coup left only two of South America's major countries under civilian rule.

Ten hours after Mrs. Peron's ouster, the three-man junta had itself sworn in and pledged to operate as a sort of "collective government," until the next president is appointed by the armed forces "in due time."

The military takeover, which had been expected for months, ended 21 chaotic months in office for the Western Hemisphere's first woman head of government.

A communique broadcast over the national radio said the army commander, Gen. Jorge R. Videla, 50, was heading the junta. Other members are the navy commander, Adm. Emilio Massera and the air force chief, Gen. Orlando R. Agosti.

The swearing-in ceremony at the army's huge Libertador building was attended by all generals, admirals and brigadiers on active duty.

The junta announced official by the dismissal of Mrs. Peron, national and provincial congressmen, provincial governors, all elected municipal administrations and members of the Supreme Court.

Political activity was ordered suspended.

Reaction was generally relaxed and, in many cases, almost indifferent, as Argentines (Continued on page 16)

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

WHAT'S HAPPENING? Some time ago Hotline ran an item about the Whistlestop program which originated in Edgewater, a neighborhood of Chicago. The Edgewater Community Council started a program to provide every citizen who wished it a whistle which would be blown only as a call for help in an emergency situation. Several Greenville and Pitt County organizations asked us for further information about this program, but so far we've heard of nothing underway. If something is happening in this direction we'd like to hear about it.

Another thought — perhaps the Pitt County Crime Prevention Officer, Gordon Edwards, who works out of the Sheriff Department, 752-3312 can be of assistance to anyone wishing to start such a program.

The Whistlestop Community Services address, again, is Edgewater Community Council, 1112 W. Bryn Mawr Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60660.

T-Shirts Represent Cheap Chic

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

T-shirts have become fads of the fashion world, but don't call them Model Ts.

Although everybody from the diaper set to dowagers wears t-shirts these days, many designs are as different from the original t-shaped, round-necked, short-sleeved undershirt as a bikini is from a Gay Nineties bathing suit.

Other designers showing t-shirt apparel include Calvin Klein, Oscar de la Renta, Giorgio Sant'Angelo and Givency for Chesa.

At the other end of the price line are mass-produced cotton tees in the traditional t-shaped undershirt design, printed with slogans or pictures, or ready to be decorated with heat transfer patterns while the customer waits. An adult size shirt with decoration can cost as little as $3 at card, gift and clothing shops and stores.

Ms. Keitlen, daughter of a Springfield, Mass., physician, was a language major in college whose interest in style led to jobs as coordinator and designer of fashion shows and photographic layouts for magazines, development of advertising, special product promotions and a product newsletter.

Perching on a bale of t-shirts in her cluttered New York office, Ms. Keitlen said she got into design and manufacturing after a trip to Morocco. Her first t-shirts were 10 basic styles, made in Morocco by the same factory from which she imports caftans and djellababs — tent-like garments that westerners use for beach and at-home wear.

She said the hottest number in her line is a grandfather shirt that looks like an old-fashioned nightshirt. It is available as a shirt, long and short dresses and a jumpsuit.

Her t-shirt collection also includes Bermuda shorts with elasticized waists, culottes, long pants, skirts, tennis dresses, apron dresses, even a string bikini and Betsey Johnson's diaper collection, with pants that tie like diapers and a sited wrap shirt like an infant's undershirt.

"In this business you can never please everybody," Ms. Keitlen said, adding that a wide range of colors is also necessary.

She said department stores tend to buy classic colors such as red and blue, instead of bright fashion colors one finds in boutiques and specialty shops.

"Black always sells. It's very big for summer. So is natural."

Designer-manufacturer Phyllis Keitlen attributes t-shirts' universal appeal to "... a chic way to dress inexpensively."

Trend-spotting "Women's Wear Daily" recently reported that t-shirt dressing has moved into almost every life style, and become a 12-month favorite.

"I think women are really tired of spending excess money when they can have cheap chic," said Ms. Keitlen, whose own Tric-Trac designs range from about $9 for a shirt-length top to about $50 or $60 for a two-piece dress or pantsuit.

Dear Abby

Mother Wants Advice On Daughter's Plans

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My 23-year-old daughter is planning to be married.

Five years ago she had a baby out of wedlock, and she kept the child and raised her.

My daughter now wants a traditional wedding with a white dress and veil. She also wants her daughter to be the flower girl!

What is your opinion of such a wedding under the circumstances?

CONVENTIONAL MOM

DEAR MOM: I hope I won't shock you, but I say, let your daughter have the kind of wedding she wants. This is her first wedding, and it probably has been her heart's desire for many years.

One swallow doesn't make summer, and one mistake shouldn't cast a shadow over a person for a lifetime.

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to TORN was perfect. If those parents really love their tall, handsome, athletic son, the best way to show it is to allow him to be himself, even if his choice of a life's companion is another man, and not the woman of their dreams.

I speak out of agonizing years of personal experience. I made my personal decisions on the basis of what would please my parents, my friends and society in general. I have tried to live a straight life in a straight world and have been relatively successful. But each day is an inner struggle. I have conformed to a way of life that is "proper," but it's unnatural for me. My life has been one long succession of unfulfilled yearnings.

I would advise any young person who is struggling with homosexual feelings to be true to himself. Thank God for the openness society is developing. Had I known 25 years ago that there could possibly be an alternative, I would have taken a different course.

Now, in my 40s, I still wear a mask and am more miserable than ever. Surely those parents wouldn't want that kind of misery for their son.

Abby, please continue to tell parents that the opinions of their friends and relatives are not as important as their children's right to be themselves.

UNHAPPY CONFORMIST

DEAR UNHAPPY: I could not have said it better than you did.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I know how President Ford felt when he walked in to a dinner in New Hampshire and the band played "The Party's Over."

Once someone starts a rumor you're not a mental giant, it's uphill all the way.

Just slip once... like a few months ago at a dinner party, someone asked, "Just how much will detente with China cost?" and I replied, "If you have to ask, you can't afford it."

From that night on people treated me differently. They used single-syllable words around me. They spoke slower. And when I chanced on a group they would stop talking about Angola, turn to me and say, "Is Sissy still dancing with Bobbie on the Lawrence Welk show?"

"Did you hear that?" I asked my husband angrily.

"Hear what?"

"Hear Steve ask me about Sissy and Bobbie on the Lawrence Welk show."

"What's wrong with that?"

He shouted at me like he was giving his order to the clown at Jack-in-the-Box.

"You're being sensitive."

"I'm not being sensitive."

"Well, maybe you should be. When Ethel leaned over and said how enchanted she was with Edith Wharton, you said you were going to call Edith in the morning. Edith Wharton is dead."

"No wonder she hasn't been answering her calls."

"The trouble with you is you try to fake your way through. You're just going to have to take the time to read more. Find out what's going on in the world."

"I know what's going on in the world. You think I don't know we have to keep an eye on Japan—"

"MY HUSBAND SHOOK HIS HEAD — 'or whoever is dirty this year?'"

What really incensed me was that the rumors of my ignorance not only persisted, they grew out of proportion.

At a cultural affair one night, I was supposed to have said, "Don't see anything until you have seen the touring company of 'Tobacco Road.'" One critic even accused me of recommending "Fear of Flying" because it was a courage story of the Wright Brothers.

Last night, I really made some recovery points. In a loud voice I announced, "I renewed my subscription to Forbes today."

Every eye in the room looked at me anew. "Loved their recipes," I ad'ed.

The band played "Born to Lose."

NOW Chapter Meeting Planned For Thursday

Wife abuse will be the program topic of the March meeting of the Eastern Carolina Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) Thursday.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the meeting room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Building on the 264 By-pass, and is open to all interested persons.

Featured speakers will be Marge Baney, coordinator of REAL Crisis Intervention Center, and Doug Jackson of the Greenville Police Department, who will discuss their professional experience in dealing with wife abuse, and answer questions from those in attendance.

The 1975 national NOW convention in Philadelphia included a session on wife beating, and NOW has set wife abuse as a target for investigation and legal action.

According to a NOW spokesperson, wife beating probably affects more than three times as many women as rape, and tends to recur because abused wives are often pressured by their clergymen and physicians into returning home after suffering physical abuse. Financial dependence, lack of a place to find refuge, and the presence of young children are also responsible for repeated instances of wife abuse, she said.

The March meeting will also feature a report from the chapter's representatives to the NOW State Council meeting in Greensboro last weekend.

The most protracted silence in a musical composition is one entitled "4 Minutes 33 Seconds" in a totally silent opus by John Cage.

Mrs. Addie Jenkins, coordinator for Projects Division, introduced two staff members from ADAP, Adult Developmental Activity Program, who presented the program at the Pilot Club Monday night.

Ms. Ellie Rice and Carl Rothrock, explained the program of ADAP and showed slides of the participants. This center for retarded adults, over the age of 16, is sponsored by Mental Health and its goal is "to teach retarded adults to act like adults."

Mrs. Gloria Butler, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the slate of officers which included: Mrs. Jenkins, president; Mrs. Sue Smith, first vice president; Mrs. Kay Whitehurst, second vice president; Mrs. Quieda C. Delegates to the District VI Pilot International Convention in Greensboro were elected. The next meeting will be April 26.

DROUGHT ENDS

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — Rain during the last weekend of February was good news for California and Arizona lemon growers after the longest dry spell in 73 years. John M. Van Horn, vice president of field services for a growers' cooperative, said irrigation keeps trees alive and vigorous, but natural rain water promotes greater growth. Rain also cleans the soil.

Interior Designer Aims At Comfort For Clients

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
She is not a cookie cutter interior designer. When Barbara

Greene's designs can be recognized in magazines, she knows she "will have stopped doing creative things."

A vivacious, petite, brown-eyed blonde in her mid-30s, she had just learned that she had won first prize — residential category — in the prestigious S.M. Hexter 18th annual awards contest which aims to further good design. Bubbling over, Mrs. Greene was explaining her mode of operation, a different point of view.

"The professional obligation of interior designers should be to expose clients to their education, training and experience. They shouldn't be identified with a style or a blue phase or whatever. They should act as problem solvers. To salvage existing but unusable space has become an ever increasing need."

Her winning room — a living room that is a large "well" of a total (upstairs) apartment — is a basement that had been a bakery. It gave her plenty of latitude in proving her point. Her clients wanted the underground space turned into cocoon-like coziness.

"My emphasis is on total design, not objects. The days of interior designers tastefully assembling beautiful objects in a room are over. That is no longer their role," she says. "People have better taste now and can assemble objects if they want them. But people anyway are getting away from possessions as mere objects of beauty to be looked at. They are much more interested in comfort and they don't want to be worried about destroying things of value or covering everything with plastic to protect it."

In this living room her answer was to cover plywood platforms with brown carpet and set them at 10 and 20-inch levels in four areas for dining, lounging, eating. Cushioned, some have pillow backrests for low-cost seating. Two walls are painted glossy brown to match the brown carpet. White painted walls continue to rooms above, the main part of the apartment.

People want to sit, lounge, play, eat and entertain in comfort. Functional considerations have become as important as aesthetic preferences, she maintains.

"I find out how people function, and then I take into consideration the architectural limitations and advantages, their likes and dislikes — color, pottery, whatever. I don't impose my style or preferences on a client."

Working without windows and with a wall that had two doors, one leading to a laundry-storage room that is shared by other apartment dwellers, and another door that leads to a bathroom that some day would be remodeled, were among the problems.

She installed a partition to conceal the doors and it provides, as well, a backrest for the pillows used with platform seating. It also houses the television and stereo turntable. Platforms also become storage bins and the wall that encloses the stairs provides an area for deep closet storage and open book shelves. Mirrored surfaces on storage-bookshelf walls give an illusion of depth. Ditto the great painting used at the end of the room.

"I like to be paid as a well-educated professional designer who can solve problems. I am not a furniture vendor. If clients want to order the furnishings themselves, fine. It is a headache I like to get rid of. But even if I order for them, I give them the wholesale price, plus the cost of processing the order for them."

In that way she differs from her designer friends who do not approve of her different way of working, she insists. Most designers make money on the mark-up of furnishings.

"Some people have become afraid to tell how much they can afford when they want to decorate, but I tell them if I know their limit, we can make compromises," she says. "Instead of a fantastic painting, we might use a beautiful basket without sacrificing the look."

A budget of $5,000 covered the cost of construction, furniture, fabrics, floor and wall coverings and the design fee for her winning room.

Mrs. Greene lives in Greenwich, Conn., with her husband and 2-year-old son. She had left Portland, Ore., to attend Parsons School of Design in New York, where she became known for her talents even as a student. Graduating in 1967, she started a firm with two partners, but now is sole owner. She has done "every kind of home" from the rustic, totally casual house with natural materials to the slick, urban, sophisticated apartment.

One of scores of entries in the awards program, hers was typical of the better quality that was observed in candidates from all 50 states, said Thomas Felber, president of S.M. Hexter.

"The decorating mood is changing even though tastes are geographical."

BEFORE AND AFTER—Barbara Greene's interior decorating skill transformed basement area, above, to cozy room, below. Brown carpeted platforms form seating units, divider hides doors and becomes backrest, bookcase and storage area enclose stairs. Mirrored surfaces provide illusion of depth.

Couple Weds In Recent Ceremony

The Faith Assembly of God was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Kathleen Louise Haddock and William Edward Langley on Friday, March 12.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Steve Jones at 7:30 in the evening. A program of organ music was presented by Miss Donna Brinkley. Miss Jackie Harris and Mrs. Steve Jones presented vocal selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Leslie Williams of Greenville, and Mr. David Haddock of Chocowinity. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Grace Langley of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Thomas E. Stancill. The bride wore a traditional full length gown of satin and old English lace styled with three-quarter length sleeves, round neckline and overlaid lace bodice. A lace band accented the bottom of the gown and down the sides of the train appliqued with seed pearls. She wore a shoulder length veil attached to a pearl and crystal crown. She carried a bouquet of white pom poms, pink carnations, baby's breath and rose colored dried flowers.

Mrs. Deborah McLawhorn was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Sharon Porter and Sandra Haddock, all of Greenville. The flower girls were Denise and Karen Stancill of Greenville, nieces of the bride.

The ring bearer was Charles Salvatore Mangiapane III of Greenville, cousin of the bride. John Buck of Greenville served as best man. Ushers were Mark and Keith Langley of Greenville, brothers of the bridegroom.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Greenville.

Mrs. Thomas Stancill presided at the bridal register.

The bride attends D. H. Conley High School and works part-time at Hardee's. The bridegroom is employed by Child's Construction Co.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Cherry Court clubhouse given by the mother of the bridegroom.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Mark Langley, sister-in-law, and Mrs. Joe Ellers.

A rehearsal dinner was held at Cherry Court clubhouse following the rehearsal Wednesday night given by the mother of the bridegroom assisted by Mrs. Mark Langley, sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

The wedding consultant was Mrs. C. S. Mangiapane Jr. of Greenville.

The Time Element Is Factor

States, counties and cities have very large stakes in the dragged-out congressional debate on revenue sharing.

The first authorization of the program came in 1972, and something more than $30 billion will have been distributed to nearly 39,000 state, county and city governments. The program expires December 31, 1976.

How the money will be used is pretty much left up to the lower echelons of government; the catch is, much forethought and planning is necessary by those governments so that their own budgets and the shared funds can be used to the best possible advantage.

The time element, one can see, is important. As of now, the argument among congressmen is based on whether the renewal should be done on a year-by-year basis or, as originally proposed, for something over five years. There's another point of debate: over whether Congress should decide on how the money is to be spent, or whether state, county and municipal governments know best as to where the money goes.

There appears to be an undercurrent among members of Congress that local government isn't to be trusted.

If that's the case, it's pure hogwash! Let the governments closest to the people control their own decisions. They comprise the grass roots... the real balance of power in the federal system.

If revenue sharing is to be dropped, well and good. The Congress should immediately act to reduce federal spending the appropriate amount so that local governments can act to adjust their own tax systems to make up for the required sums.

This would necessarily take more time; but it adds one more reason for knowing soon what steps are to be taken to deal with the uncertain future.

Right now, time is of the essence. It's time Congress did something more than talk.

Two-Way Recovery Almost Too Good

It's almost too good to be true that at a time when the nation is pulling out of a recession, the inflation rate also seems to be coming under control.

Yet last week the government reported that consumer prices rose only one-tenth of a percent.

Declining food prices were responsible for the slow price rise.

Maybe it's only an election year phenomenon, but perhaps there is some hope that we will soon get inflation under better control. Even with a recession, inflation has been the nation's number one problem for some time.

Girding For Wages Battle

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The battle of the budget is now a month away, and the organizations of both state employees and teachers are gearing up for the May session of the General Assembly.

Borrowing a page from the battle plans of the North Carolina Association of Educators, the North Carolina State Employees Association is currently building a political action arm.

The purpose is simple: to impress legislators with the political clout of the organization, and push for increased salaries and fringe benefits.

Earlier this year, leaders of the State Employees Association met with leaders of the Association of Educators to discuss where each group now stands, and talk about improved and expanded ties between the two groups from a political standpoint.

Well Organized
The Political Action

Committee of Educators has leadership in Raleigh and chapters throughout the state which keep tabs on political friends, inform candidates and those in office of the positions taken by educators, and interview candidates for possible endorsement.

The political arm of the teacher organization figures on raising a war chest of about $200,000 at the rate of $5 per individual contribution.

Now, the State Employees Association has conferred with the attorney general's office and state elections officials to make sure the proposed political activity by that group is on firm ground, and is moving into action.

Leaders say bluntly that ultimate strength lies in the collective voting power of state employees. There are some 70,000 regular state employees, and another 65,000 teachers and other educators. That many employees, with their families, represent probably the largest voting unit in the state if organized.

Attention right now is focused on the May session of the General Assembly to consider budgetary matters. Bypassed for raises last year because of the recession, pressure is growing for cost-of-living raises this year, effective at the beginning of fiscal year 1976-77. A five per cent across-the-board raise would cost some $70 million. Teachers and state employees are pushing for something between 15 and 20 per cent.

Keep Tabs
Naturally the stands taken by various members of the General Assembly on that question will become a major part of the consideration given to them in party primaries and general elections this coming fall.

John E. Thomas, assistant budget officer for health affairs at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is chairman of the State Employees Association political action study group. Thomas says the combined power of state employees "may be the only way in which... employees can attain a cost of living wage increase in July. Due to lack of positive action last spring, many of our co-workers are sliding into poverty."

"More concern has been given by our Legislature to create new programs, to building complexes, than has been given to the welfare of the families of state employees."

"Why should a state employee have to apologize for reasonable fringe benefits everytime the Legislature meets. Should we conclude that the state, as an employer, has no continuing responsibility to its employees?" Thomas asked in a statement published in the employee magazine.

Thomas said the unified statewide effort will be to "inform our legislators of our needs... and of our intent to exercise our vote opinion during 1976 if we are not satisfied with their legislative decisions."

INSIDE REPORT

The Sonnenfeldt Doctrine

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Intense debate was set off within the Ford administration three months ago when Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's right-hand man declared in a secret briefing that permanent "organic" union between the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe is necessary to avoid World War III.

That policy, going well beyond any public position of the U.S. government, was enunciated in mid-December by State Department counselor Helmut Sonnenfeldt. He told a London meeting of U.S. ambassadors to European nations that the "inorganic, unnatural relationship" between Moscow and Eastern Europe based on Soviet military prowess threatens world peace. "So," he concluded, "it must be our policy to strive for an evolution that makes the relationship between the Eastern Europeans and the Soviet Union an organic one."

When transcripts of Sonnenfeldt's remarks hit Washington, some officials complained that this amounted to U.S. underwriting of Soviet dominion over Eastern Europe. As such, these critics contended, the Sonnenfeldt doctrine never had been U.S. policy and certainly should not be now.

Indeed, what was said three months ago may be the victim of President Ford's election-year harder line which has made "détente" an unwieldy word. Nevertheless, the Sonnenfeldt doctrine exposes underpinnings of détente as practiced in the State Department until recently.

In their December briefing in London, both Kissinger and Sonnenfeldt stressed the need for the U.S. to come to terms with the Soviet Union as an emerging superpower—now their principal rationale for détente. Contending the NATO alliance is undermined by leftist gains in Western Europe, Kissinger declared: "The dominance of Communist parties in the West is unacceptable." That doctrine has no critics within the administration—in total contrast to Sonnenfeldt's message.

Lacking the attractiveness of past empires, Sonnenfeldt declared, the Kremlin relies on "the presence of sheer Soviet military power" to unify Eastern Europe. Because "a more viable, organic structure" is lacking, "the desire to break out of the Soviet straitjacket" has intensified among Eastern European countries.

The counselor saw this as no boon for the West, declaring: "The Soviets' inability to acquire loyalty in Eastern Europe is an unfortunate historical failure because Eastern Europe is within their scope and area of natural interest. It is doubly tragic that in this area of vital interest and crucial importance it has not been possible for the Soviet Union to establish roots of interest that go beyond sheer power."

After describing détente as a means of affecting the use of Soviet power, Sonnenfeldt warned Eastern Europe's "present unnatural relationship with the Soviet Union" may "sooner or later explode, causing World War III. This inorganic, unnatural relationship is a far greater danger to world peace than the conflict between East and West."

Sonnenfeldt cautioned that "any excess of zeal on our part" could reverse the "desired process" (the

Strength For Today

FIVE RELIGION A CHANCE
John Fiske, the historian, once said, "Religion is God working among men in everyday living."

We may not regard this as a sufficiently inclusive definition of religion, but it is certainly admirable as far as it goes.

In their reverence for religion, some people push it off into a realm which has no contact with the everyday events of life. They are so impressed with the supernatural aspects of the life of Jesus that they forget He was human as well as divine. They have such high regard for the sacredness of their faith that they lose sight of the fact that it is something God intends should be used every day. The religion that stays up in the clouds is not religion at all—it is pious superstition.

It is only when men bring the spirit of God down into their business and home life, into their thoughts and aspirations, that they can be said to have any religion at all.

BETTER COOL THOSE BURNING AMBITIONS!

By ART BUCHWALD

Not The Male's Fault

WASHINGTON—Just when I get my latent male chauvinist pig feelings under control the new fashions come out and I'm back to where I started. Last week's cover of Time magazine of a girl in a black bathing suit made me forget the intensive consciousness-raising sessions I had attended all winter.

The trend for this year, if I understand it is toward the pajama look with see-through fabric placed in areas you're not supposed to see. The backs are bare and in many cases the midribs are exposed. There is even a rain suit that zips down to the navel.

One has to assume that these clothes wouldn't have been designed unless the manufacturers thought women would buy them. And, if this is the case, where do we men who have been trying to stop thinking of women as sex objects stand?

It is a terrible dilemma and one I don't think the Women's Lib people are facing up to. For example, the other night I went to a dinner party in Washington prepared to behave as the pretty liberated male. I was going to treat my dinner partners as human beings who had minds of their own and opinions on the subjects of the day that should be listened to.

Unfortunately, the person on my right was wearing a black net pajama top with a neckline that plunged down to heaven knows where. The blouse was held up by two tiny straps that looked as if they would break at any moment.

The person on my left was wearing what appeared to be a sheer scarf wrapped in such a way that her bosom was pushed up and out halfway across her soup plate.

Now you have to admit it's pretty difficult to discuss President Ford's tax-cut plans when you're faced with this kind of situation.

My heart said, "These women have brains. Find out what they're thinking." But my eyes kept wandering down to areas other than their heads.

Other Editors Say The Hatch Act

(Greensboro Daily News)
The U. S. Congress has voted to liberalize the Hatch Act. Passed in 1939, the law forbids federal employees from engaging in partisan political activity or seeking public office although it does allow campaign contributions, the expression of political opinions and nonpartisan activity.

The Hatch Act is a product of the political struggles of the 1930s. Republican conservatives were convinced that President Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins, director of the Works Progress Administration, were setting about to create an invincible Democratic machine through the expansion of the federal government. After recovering in the 1938 elections from the political defeats of the depression era, Republicans combined with Southern conservatives to scotch this plot with the Hatch Act.

The new version of the act would allow partisan activity by federal employees in their off-duty hours, including the pursuit of public office. Only the employees of the Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service, and the Central Intelligence Agency would be kept to the old standard.

The vote for this legislation divided along partisan lines. In the Senate, the Democrats supported the bill 42 to 6, while the Republicans opposed it 26 to 5. The Republicans believe that the federal bureaucracy is basically Democratic in its political sympathies and that public employ unions would organize a voting bloc for the Democrats. The Democrats smile knowingly.

There is some merit on both sides of the argument. Federal employees are also American citizens and deserve the opportunity to exercise their standard democratic rights. Yet a partisan political machine entrenched in the federal bureaucracy would impede the impartial performance of public duties. The bill attempts to meet this objection by prohibitions against political coercion by workplace supervisors, particularly the solicitation of campaign contributions, and provision for the dismissal of employees who violate these rules.

On balance, we are persuaded that the liberalization of the Hatch Act is a good thing, provided that the rules against political coercion are strictly enforced. Inevitably, the Hatch Act continues to be enveloped in a partisan fog. The bill passed because the Congress is two to one Democratic. It will be vetoed because President Ford is a Republican.

Threat Is Left In Air

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger refuses specifically to rule out a U.S. invasion of Cuba if troops of the Caribbean nation engage in further intervention in Africa.

Kissinger declined to specify what action the United States would take if Cuba — as it did in Angola — sent armed troops into another southern Africa nation.

"What we will do I cannot say, but we are serious and we have pointed this out to Cuba. We were accused of not making our issues clear in Angola, but we are making them clear to Cuba," Kissinger said here Tuesday during one of a series of regional visits designed to bolster support for U.S. foreign policy.

In recent weeks, Kissinger repeatedly has said Cuba should not ignore U.S. warnings against further African intervention. He repeated those warnings in a speech here Monday night and said at a new conference Tuesday that his statements concerning Cuba had been approved by President Ford.

He was asked specifically during the news conference if the United States might invade Cuba if it defies the U.S. warnings. Kissinger replied, "I do not want to answer that question."

"What we will do in complete circumstances I don't think I should say under present conditions, and we are still studying this," he replied to another question about what actions might be taken. "It is impossible for any senior official to put out ahead of time all the things the United States will or will not do in all the circumstances that may arise."

Kissinger said time will tell what steps will be necessary, and he added, "We have no concrete proposals to present to Congress. But we have made clear our refusal of further military action from Cuba."

A major U.S. concern in Africa at this time is that 12,000 Cuban soldiers now in Angola might be used in wars against the minority white rulers of

40 Years Ago Today

March 24, 1936
Residents of a vast flood belt extending from Maine to Ohio and Kentucky, in which 168 lives were lost during a terrifying week, scraped muck and debris from their silt-laden cities and towns today while residents of Cincinnati watched the crest of the swollen Ohio river sweep onward to new territory.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 persons fled from their homes in Cincinnati and the nearby areas in advance of the muddy tide that has brought catastrophe to many other cities.

In New England, where streams overflowed their banks and wrought havoc, conditions were definitely better.

In almost every stricken area, anxious eyes were cast toward the federal government in hope that additional financial aid would be forthcoming for the work of rehabilitation.

More Than Profits Required

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Industry today is seeking more than profits from its top executives, after learning again during the 1960s that impressive short-term earnings often hide poor long-range management.

"Good management is more than just showing profits," said Prof. Eugene Jennings, confidential personal advisor to chief executives and a university scholar recognized as a top authority on management and personnel.

"Good management is not just the bottom line," he said, "but the survival of the company in a sometimes hostile world." It often means forgoing immediate profits in order to invest in personnel, plant and procedures for the future.

The "performance syndrome" of the 1960s, to an extent forced upon management by an investment community concerned only with numbers, permitted many mediocre managers to hide their inadequacies in profits produced more by accounting than corporate strength.

Profits remain important today, as they probably always will be, but good managers must also deal with more active consumers and regulators, and with a host of ecological, ethical and social considerations.

So, as in so many areas of life, another excess or extreme or weakness of the 1960s is being corrected in the 1970s by a return to fundamentals.

In the view of Jennings, who teaches at Michigan State University, industry is seeking to do a better job of what he labels "staging, pacing and positioning."

STAGING. We are keeping managers longer in the first-level management jobs. These managers of non-managers now stay four years at this level, almost double the time so spent in the 1960s.

Managers in large corporations also are staying longer at the division level. Division managers now remain close to five years at this level, or nearly two years longer than in the 1960s.

Nevertheless, they arrive at the presidency, one step below the chairman, at an earlier age, at 49 years now compared with 54 in the 1960s. A different role is expected of the president also: He is expected to lead on his own rather than merely complement the chairman.

In fact, he is expected to step up to the very top job, the chairmanship, after serving his years as president. In the past, he sometimes left the company when the chairman left.

If he spends more time at key, lower-level management positions, how does a manager arrive in the presidency at an earlier age? Because of PACING. Between the key jobs, the corporation moves some managers with greater speed.

At the same time, a weeding out process is at work. How much can a man take? Which executives are burned out and need to be slowed down? Who is moving too slowly? These questions are constantly asked.

An individual's particular characteristics are noted, including his ability to tolerate stress. Corporate officers today are not naive enough to believe that if a manager asks for more responsibility he should be given it.

"The individual manager himself is no realistic judge of what he can and cannot

Consequently, he set "a policy of responding to the clearly visible aspirations in Eastern Europe for a more autonomous existence within the context of a strong Soviet geopolitical influence. This has worked in Poland. The poles have been able to overcome their romantic political inclinations which led to their disasters in the past."

North Korean agricultural experts were sent to Albania to help with the planting of the rice crop in 1962.

Soviet orbit would be "a major strategic setback," Sonnenfeldt suggested the Yugoslavs "should be less obnoxious" to Moscow and disabused of the impression "they have a free ride" of independence guaranteed by Washington.

Critics inside the administration, describing themselves as "appalled" by the Sonnenfeldt doctrine, do not propose tragic encouragement of futile anti-Communist insurrection in Eastern Europe. But they believe Sonnenfeldt's confirmation of dominion there undercuts Eastern European nationalists such as President Nicolae Ceaucescu of Rumania.

While ruling out Communist party control in Portugal or Italy, Dr. Kissinger's London briefing blamed the danger on the West's own problems, including "domestic paralysis in the U.S."

"The Soviets are not the key element in producing the present instabilities that we now face in Western Europe," he declared. "A Communist Western Europe would be a headache for us. It would be a headache for the Soviets as well. They probably prefer not to see Communist powers taking over in Western Europe. But in the final analysis their ideology requires them to assist in these efforts."

To avoid assistance from Moscow, Kissinger asserted,

"we must create the maximum incentives for a moderate Soviet course." But Sonnenfeldt, usually the faithful mirror of his chief, goes even further by putting the U.S. on record for stabilization of the Soviet empire in Eastern Europe to preserve world peace.

POSITIONING is the third crucial consideration. When do you put a man under the gun? When do you put him under nononsense, tough, task-oriented manager? When do you give him a priority job involving the entire corporation? When do you give a man a position when everything he does is exposed to review?

Charged In 2 Break-Ins

Steven Randall Jones, 20, who investigators quoted as saying has no address, was charged on two counts of breaking, entering and larceny and with possession of marijuana, following an early-morning investigation today, Police Chief Glenn Cannon said.

According to Cannon, officers found Jones inside the Stop Shop at 213 East Fifth St. about 1:47 a.m. He allegedly gained entrance to the store by breaking a window and had three cigarette lighters and a can of deodorant valued at $5.84 in his possession.

Police also found a small quantity of marijuana in his possession at that time, the chief noted.

Cannon said further investigation led officers to charge Jones in connection with a break-in at the Gazebo gift shop at 201 East Fifth St. where a window was broken and a ceramic elephant, valued at $12, was reported missing.

The elephant had been thrown against the wall of a building across the street from the Stop Shop and broken, Cannon noted.

Wolves And Dogs Mixed

PET PROJECT—Earl H. Smith, 28, of Wells, Maine, breeds several kinds of wolves with several kinds of dogs to produce animals he sells for pets.

By MARY MacDONALD
Associated Press Writer
WELLS, Maine (AP) — A growing number of people want a wolf around the yard, says Earl H. Smith, who crosses wolves and dogs to produce creatures he sells for pets.

At the foot of a short rise from his house, Smith's own yard is filled with large pens that hold more than 20 canines, most of them mixtures of sub-species of wolf and dog.

Smith, 28, said he breeds several kinds of wolves with several kinds of dogs — he doesn't disclose the kinds — and eventually comes out with an animal that has the looks and intelligence of a wolf, but the behavioral stability of a dog.

He calls the creature "Awooldo" — five-eighths to 13-16ths wolf.

"We find we can breed the dog back out and still keep the calmness in," he said. "Why it works we really can't explain totally. It's a combination of factors."

Smith said he receives about 120 inquiries a month, which he carefully screens. Last November, for example, he said he sold 30 hybrids, at prices ranging from $100 for cubs one-fourth to one-half wolf to $300 for wolf throwbacks estimated at more than 13-16th wolf.

"About 10 per cent of them (the customers) want a watchdog. The rest just want a superior animal," he said. "To many people it's the kindred spirit, the wilder part in man. The man or woman in the pioneering spirit is the kind that gets along with a wolf."

Smith said the wolf dogs consider him a two-legged pack leader, and he admires them and enjoys that relationship.

He participates in the bluff-and-growl rituals that set the wolves' dominance patterns, and likes to talk about their sense of fairness and ability to sense covert fear and threat.

"I've learned more from the wolves than I could ever teach them," he said.

Smith said he is able to detect within three minutes on the telephone whether he is talking to someone who would make a good home for a wolf dog. "That's not a normal instinct of humans. I've picked it up from the wolves," he said.

Smith said the ability involves reading tiny, almost unnoticeable signals in a person's manner, but on such a subliminal level that he doesn't realize what they are.

He said his 160-pound pack sire Lobo sometimes challenges his authority.

"He'll defy me occasionally — try to knock me down, kind of chidingly. I'll take him down and hold him and growl at him. Then he'll paw at my face and he's my wolf again."

He says he has never been injured by a wolf attack. "There's been no vicious attack. That's only in bad crosses or a badly spoiled wolf or dog. And the hybrids seem harder to spoil that way than dogs."

George Moore of Waterboro, who owns a 4-month-old hybrid, says he was attracted to the beauty and intelligence of the animals.

"I was moving up from the city, and I'd always wanted a big dog. A friend suggested a hybrid, and I said, 'no way I want a wolf.' But then I saw them, and they're really beautiful animals. So I asked a lot of questions."

"It wasn't particularly for the ego trip," Moore added. "But I do love it when people say 'what a beautiful animal.' And I love to watch the expressions when I say 'it's a wolf.'"

Moore said he spent several hundred dollars on a kennel and house for Banshee, and feeds her about two pounds of prepared dog food a day. At 4 months she weighs 50 pounds, and spends about half the time outside the house.

"I don't try to tread on her nature. I don't demand that much of her. But she's terrific, she's well-behaved with my friends, she's gentle, she's excellent for obeying me."

"And she likes Beverly Sills," said Moore, himself an opera buff.

Says Students Writing Better

BOSTON (UPI) — The inability of many college students to write a clear sentence is declining because of their willingness to tackle the problem head on, says a Boston University English instructor.

Celia Millward says the old "So what?" attitude displayed among poor writers has changed. She urges less television-viewing and more reading for fun in the early years as a way to nip the problem in the bud.

Helping Create Future Experts

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The Rucker Company is bringing its oil equipment and drilling services technology to the campus to help develop future experts. Rucker, based here, has given Lamar University $80,000 of blowout preventers and other products for student training at the university's Oil and Gas Drilling Institute in Beaumont, Tex. Industry forecasts project a compounded growth rate of 11.3 per cent annually for petroleum products and services.

HARDWARE SALES

NEW YORK (UPI) — the National Wholesale Hardware Association expects banner sales this year. A survey of members by the association shows a sales projection 12 per cent above the 1975 figure.

Fix-Up Loans Are Available

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rural homeowners whose houses need fixing up may be eligible for loans from the Farmers Home Administration of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Uses of home repair loans include removal of health or safety hazards by repairing roofs, providing water and waste disposal systems, and installing screens, windows or insulation. Home improvement loans can include all the foregoing, plus alterations that bring the home up to minimum property standards and add conveniences, such as new rooms and kitchen remodeling.

Information about eligibility is available from local county offices and the national office of the Farmers Home Administration, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. Local FHA offices are listed in telephone directories under U.S. Government — Agriculture.

A Shortage Of Monkeys

Monkey imports into the United States have dropped by more than 60 per cent in the past eight years, causing a serious shortage of primates available for biomedical research. This monkey shortage poses a real concern for scientists and conservationists alike, reports the March-April issue of International Wildlife, published bimonthly by the National Wildlife Federation. Of more than 200 species of monkeys and other primates, just 13 account for most American monkey imports, with a mere seven species used in 96 per cent of all research.

Six out of ten research monkeys are rhesus monkeys, which are still fairly plentiful. But certain species, such as the owl monkey, are rapidly disappearing, to the dismay of biomedical researchers anxious to continue their experiments.

The decline in the number of monkeys available for research can be traced directly to the destruction of vital habitat, human eating of monkeys in the exporting nations, and tighter limits by exporting nations on the number of monkeys shipped abroad, International Wildlife says.

Author David R. Zimmerman reports in the National Wildlife Federation magazine that tighter export quotas do not control the most important threat to the monkeys' survival: loss of habitat.

"It is far easier for a government to clamp down on exports than it is to curb habitat destruction, the real villain in most instances," he writes. "Ultimately, of course, management of primate populations to achieve healthy populations depends almost entirely on habitat protection."

An example of this problem is the growing scarcity of owl monkeys in northern Colombia, South America, long a source of research monkeys for export. Because owl monkeys are excellent animals for experimental studies of human malaria, they have been in high demand by the biomedical community. But their dwindling numbers have forced the Colombian government to classify the monkeys as endangered and outlaw their export.

The northern part of Colombia is "severely depleted of primates," according to Zimmerman, because only 15 per cent of the land that will support the forest habitat of the monkeys still has forest on it. Rapid human population growth and conversion of forest land to agricultural and urban uses have robbed the red-eyed owl monkey of its home.

The major monkey exporting countries have cited three main reasons for limiting the monkey trade: (1) the need to protect wild monkey populations; (2) the need to develop data on primate populations and sustainable yields; and (3) the need to end the wasteful monkey pet trade.

The United States government has banned monkey imports for the pet trade on the grounds that the animals present a potential threat to public health as a source of infectious disease.

A few conservationists would have the imports ended altogether. These people oppose all or some biomedical research on animals, centering their opposition on the issue of humane treatment of animals.

As a result of the primate shortage, export restrictions, and pressure from antivivisectionists, the biomedical community has stepped up its cooperation with conservationists seeking to maintain wild monkey populations.

According to International Wildlife, environmentalists are hopeful that an alliance of research scientists and conservationists "will provide clout for getting governments in the producing countries to take the costly steps needed to preserve and restore habitat, set up refuges and parks and manage primate populations at sustainable levels."

American scientists also are looking at other solutions to the shortage problem. A primate steering committee has been formed under the auspices of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) to develop methods for conserving the monkey resource, such as substituting dogs and cats for monkeys whenever possible and passing research animals along to other scientists for reuse.

In addition to rhesus monkeys, other primates heavily used in biomedical research include the owl monkey, the vervet or African green monkey, the crab-eating macaque of Southeast Asia, squirrel monkeys, moustached tamarins, and yellow baboons of south central Africa. Three-fourths of all U.S. imports come from Colombia, Peru and India.

A promising solution to the shortage problem may be the establishment of breeding colonies of monkeys within monkey-producing nations. The NIH is funding one such program in Peru. Similar programs are underway in the United States for rhesus, squirrel and owl monkeys.

The success of these breeding programs may prove crucial to future research. In the case of the owl monkey, scientists are running a race against time to develop new life-saving anti-malaria drugs to combat the rising incidence of malaria in Latin America and Asia. Without the necessary monkeys, this research could grind to a halt.

Typical Realtor 50 Years Old

CHICAGO (UPI) — The average realtor is 50 years old, has been in the real estate business 13 years and earns $24,000 a year, the National Association of Realtors says, based on a survey of its members. The association claims nearly 500,000 members, making it the world's largest trade and professional organization.

SHOWS "BUG"—Ned Young, coordinator for Alabama Gov. George Wallace's Georgia presidential campaign, shows an electronic "bug" found in his telephone in Atlanta Tuesday. Another device was found in a light fixture over his desk. Young charged that it was the work of "dirty politics". (AP Wirephoto)

Listening Devices In Wallace Office

ATLANTA (AP) — Two crude listening devices were discovered Tuesday in the office of George Wallace's Georgia campaign coordinator who first blamed Jimmy Carter for the "bugs", then backed off that charge.

Soon after finding one device in his telephone and another taped to a light fixture over his desk, Ned Young told The Associated Press in a telephone interview:

"I don't see (Arizona Rep. Morris) Udall or (former Oklahoma Sen. Fred) Harris or those guys bugging us... what does that leave? It's either Carter or a Carter supporter."

Young later denied specifically implicating Carter. A check of notes taken by the AP reporter indicated the quotes from the telephone conversation were accurate.

Wallace told reporters in Montgomery, Ala., "there is no need to make implications." Besides, the Alabama governor added, "I don't know what you learn by bugging anyone's headquarters anyway except maybe some salty language."

Informed of Young's charges, Carter's Georgia campaign coordinator, Connie Plunkett, said, "That's the funniest thing I've ever heard."

Rex Granum, another aide to the former Georgia governor, said the charge was "ridiculous" and "rather typical of the hysteria that's been in the Wallace camp lately. Their man's not doing very well."

Young said the device on the light fixture, slightly smaller than a cigarette pack, was found when a campaign worker noticed a wire hanging down from the fixture in Young's office in a north Atlanta office building.

He said he called in a former state electronic surveillance expert, Michael Gutter, who found the telephone "bug."

FBI agents questioned Wallace campaign workers and said they would send the de-someone was fooling with our business" because several Wallace supporters backed out of pledges to run as Wallace delegates in the May 6 Georgia primary.

"They would commit to be a Wallace delegate and two days later they call back and say, 'I don't want to do it,' Young said.

"You always have a few, but why all of a sudden do you lose a couple of dozen?"

Young said he found no sign of forced entry but said there must have been a break-in because his staff is made up of "trusted people."

"We've got us a Watergate in Georgia," he told a reporter. "You don't have to go all the way to Washington to write about it."

Wallace Vows Stay In Race

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Gov. George C. Wallace has vowed to remain in the presidential race through the Democratic National Convention despite his third straight primary loss to Jimmy Carter.

But Wallace conceded to reporters at a news conference Tuesday night following his loss to the former Georgia governor in the North Carolina primary that the defeat "certainly doesn't help."

He said it "certainly was a fine win" for Carter, who had earlier defeated Wallace in Florida and Illinois.

The partially paralyzed Alabama governor said there would be some changes in his campaign tactics such as holding fewer rallies "because they are expensive," concentrating instead on gaining more media coverage.

Wallace also confirmed that some 30 campaign workers have been dropped from the payroll. Their jobs, he said, were to "get ballot position" in various states, adding that they already had been retained longer than originally expected.

Although he acknowledged that country music singer Billy Grammer is no longer with the campaign, he angrily denied reports that the singer had been "fired."

Grammer was just not needed anymore, said Wallace, because "we're not having rallies every night like we did."

The campaign is not "running out of money," he emphasized, but "we can use some."

Asked to explain the reason for his second-place finish to Carter Tuesday, Wallace said that when he carried Florida and North Carolina four years ago, he was "all alone in the positions I took."

But now, he said, "the other candidates have moved toward those positions"—opposition to big government, welfare abuses, foreign aid to unfriendly nations and federal interference in such local matters as school busing.

At one point Wallace was asked by a reporter if it were possible that he has "gone to the well too often," referring to his four bids for the nation's highest office.

"That may be true," Wallace replied, "but I went to the well enough that all of the others went to the same well." Carter, he said jokingly, has been "using the same dipper but maybe has a bigger mouth."

Wallace also declined to speculate on who might have installed two electronic eavesdropping devices in his Georgia campaign headquarters in Atlanta.

Experiment

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Duke Power Co. will experiment with hand delivery of electric bills to 25,000 customers in Charlotte to see whether it's a saving over postage.

If it works, hand delivery will be expanded to the 88 cities and towns in North Carolina and South Carolina the utility serves.

The bills will be put in brown envelopes and hung on doorknobs or put behind doors. By law, they cannot be put in mailboxes.

Duke will use its employees to start the experiment. If it is successful, the company will hire people to do the work permanently.

Duke paid $2 million to mail its bills last year. It said the cost of postage was expected to rise to $1.775 this year.

Gospel Music Becomes Part Of Nashville

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—They call it the "spread of the gospel."

Gospel music is out of its infancy and becoming a major part of the Nashville music industry.

"I think there is a need for gospel music," says Mrs. Norma Boyd, executive secretary of the Gospel Music Association, which has its offices on Music Row here.

"We've got the world in a mess, and gospel music is a very positive word of encouragement; it's a hope."

"More people are becoming aware of gospel music, more radio stations are programming gospel, more companies are publishing gospel sheet music and producing gospel records, more people are attending gospel concerts and more gospel music is being seen on television."

Gospel music is becoming increasingly popular with young people, Mrs. Boyd said. This is because of the so-called "Jesus movement" and because gospel has become more modern sounding.

"The growth revolves around young people. Gospel music is not just the quartet, but also the contemporary group."

There's rock gospel and contemporary gospel as well as the traditional. We've got a sound for everybody."

She added, however, that the music itself hasn't changed as much as the way it's presented.

"Groups are now using orchestras. There used to be only a piano and occasionally a guitar."

GMA statistics show 75 radio stations with full-time gospel-religious programming and about 1,000 that have six or more hours of gospel weekly. This compares with some 1,200 stations broadcasting country music full-time.

"Some 20 years ago, there were about 30 gospel groups that were full-time in the business," Mrs. Boyd said. "Today, there are more than 100, not to mention countless other hundreds who sing in gospel concerts and churches on week-ends while earning a living at other professions."

"Almost every county in each state has one or more gospel groups performing."

Additionally, a Gospel Music Hall of Fame will be built across the street from the Country Music Hall of Fame on Music Row. Construction on the $1.5 million facility is expected to begin this spring with completion scheduled for fall 1977.

When plans were announced in January, Mayor Richard Fulton said, "Gospel music is an important part of our music industry and we have been impressed by its growth and popularity."

Taylor Airs Jazz Tribute

BILLY TAYLOR... native of Greenville, is music director and co-host of "Black Journal," the UNC-TV program airing each Sunday at 7 p.m. on Channel 25, Greenville.

The diplomas read "Dr. William E. Taylor," but to the new appreciative audiences he's brought to the wonders of jazz, it's Billy Taylor. The Greenville, native who was music director for "The David Frost Show" is entering his second year as music director and music co-host for Black Journal. Each week he discusses black contributions to American music and with his own combo pays tribute to such jazz greats, as Duke Ellington, Art Tatum and Fats Waller and others.

"I was the first to make the statement that jazz is classical music," he has said. "I don't consider it black classical music, but American classical music. Black music has contributed much more to the culture of this country than many of us realize. All of the popular music had its origins in the same kinds of musical experience that gave us the spirituals, the blues, and of course, jazz."

A versatile jazz pianist, composer, arranger, teacher, and even an actor (he appeared as "Wesley" in The Time of Your Life), Taylor has written more than 300 songs, a dozen books on the art of jazz piano, and made over 30 recordings. He has referred to some of them as "the best kept secrets in jazz."

Taylor has become one of the older statesmen of jazz. He has served as a member of the National Council on the Arts, the New York State Commission of Cultural Resources, the board of ASCAP (The American Society of Composers and Publishers) and the New York City Cultural Council. Since its beginning in 1965, he has served as President and principal fund-raiser of "Jazzmobile," a program that brings name artists and their music into more than 15 inner cities.

A gifted lecturer, Billy Taylor also has brought jazz into high schools and colleges all over America. Recently, he earned his doctorate in musicology from the University of Massachusetts. He has taught at the Manhattan School of Music, C. W. Post College, Columbia and Yale University.

Born in Greenville, Billy Taylor began his music career at the age of seven in Washington, D.C. After graduation from Virginia State College, he moved to New York and began playing piano with the Ben Webster Quartet.

Taylor found himself in the middle of the New York jazz-be-bop revolution of the forties and fifties when he performed with Billie Holiday, Dizzie Gillespie, Coleman Hawkins, Roy Eldridge, Charlie Parker and other greats.

In the 1960's, in addition to his nightclub dates and concert appearances, Billy Taylor became a popular disc jockey on Harlem's WLIB. A few years later, he became the general manager of WLIB. He was a charter member of the Inner City Broadcasting Corporation and the Black Communications Corporation. He also has his own corporation, Billy Taylor Productions, which produces radio and television commercials, records and concerts.

In 1969, Taylor became the first black music director of a major television series "The David Frost Show." His name and music became familiar to a whole new audience, as "O.K. Billy!" became Frost's cue to begin each program.

Taylor's own compositions include "Suite for Jazz Piano and Orchestra," which he has performed with the Oakland and Minnesota Symphonies; and "I Wish I Knew How It Would Feel to Be Free," which has become a theme song of the civil rights movements.

Billy Taylor is not new to public television. He has appeared on several specials and his music has been featured on blot Sesame Street and The Electric Company. Black Journal can be seen Sunday at 7:00 p.m. on Channel 25, Greenville.

Many Years Of Monster Legend

LOCH NESS, Scotland (UPI) — The Loch Ness monster recently has been hunted with all kinds of electronic gadgetry, but the story is more than 1,400 years old. According to legend, St. Columba engaged the monster in a duel on the shore of Loch Ness in 565 A.D.

A booklet, "Loch Ness and Its Monster," written by a monk from Fort Augustus Abbey, describes the story and is on sale at the Abbey bookstore.

'Bombshell' Changed Tone Of Political Revelries

By DAVID R. NELSEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The 100 revelers at President Ford's advertised "victory" party were lightheartedly dismayed when the television networks projected Jimmy Carter the winner of the North Carolina

Democratic presidential primary. Unknown to them, their real disappointment was yet to come. Of the Carter projections that came just minutes after the polls closed, Pat Holshouser, the state's first lady, said: "How can they do that? They can't do that!" A woman nearby piped in, "The party hasn't even started yet!" The mood was optimism and happiness at the Ford party. The Republican state officials, campaign workers, spouses and hangers-on sipped mixed drinks, chatted and watched one of three television sets, each tuned to a different network.

A few minutes later, the first of many bombshell news reports came in: At 8:05, 11 per cent of the vote was counted and Ronald Reagan led Ford by a 52-46 margin.

There were gasps. A sudden hush filled the room. A young man struck a wall with his fist.

While it was downhill from then on at the Ford party, Reagan supporters were at first cautiously joyous at their party in another motel across town.

Few Reagan backers were on hand while the early returns came in. But, by the time Reagan held his lead through another 30 minutes, dozens of persons arrived.

The early stages of pandemonium began with cheering, yelling, hugging and pounding one another on the back. The drinks flowed.

The common refrain, as happy supporters watched one of four TV sets in the room, was: "Isn't this great! I knew we could do it! We're winning!"

Unlike the Ford party where pretty girls wearing red, white and blue "President Ford in '76" outfits were in abundance, the Reagan hats and buttons didn't emerge until the candidate set a leading trend.

On the Democratic side, there were few surprises. Despite Carter's strong showing in what had once been "Wallace Country," those gathered at his victory party gracefully accepted the win as though they believed North Carolina could come to no other decision.

About 250 Carter supporters shared the sweet taste of victory. There was dancing to the music of a country band, but the mood was sober. The imbibing was more restrained at the Carter festivities downstairs from the Reagan celebration in the same motel.

In fact, a few Reagan backers wandered into the Carter party and were gracefully accepted.

Backers of George Wallace gathered at the candidate's Raleigh headquarters to watch as the man who took 51 per cent of the primary vote in North Carolina in 1972 suffered a 3-2 setback to Carter.

The mood was aggressive.

The workers seemed bitter and determined to work harder to prevent a similar defeat in future contests.

"We're going to a more aggressive organization Wallace is going to start hitting with his fists instead of being the target. We haven't lost just because we came in second," said Paul McCormick, the Wallace campaign coordinator.

McCormick predicted there will be "a whole bunch more states where Carter won't be on top." There was nervous laughter.

Carter had a different view of the results. When he telephoned his North Carolina workers to thank them, he said he won by gathering support from whites and blacks, rural and urban dwellers, young and old. "This is to be the Carter coalition of the future," he said.

Reagan's top state supporters assessed the win as "a new direction" and "a whole new ball game." They said Reagan's first win in five outings against Ford will give the challenger "a big boost."

Ford's supporters, however, discounted the Reagan win. Gov. Jim Holshouser, Ford's southern campaign chairman, said he was "very disappointed" that the loss was in his home state but refused to speculate on reasons for the upset.

"It had been my hope that perhaps we would sort of finish things up here in North Carolina and obviously this win by Gov. Reagan will prolong the pre-convention battle a little bit further. At the same time, we know that the President will continue to do well ... and we'll just look ahead to the next one in Wisconsin," Holshouser said.

It was 10:40 p.m., with 95 per cent of the vote counted, before Holshouser came to the party and conceded that Reagan had won.

By then, the bar had been open several hours and the sting of defeat had been anesthetized.

Laughter and gaiety returned to the room.

Cooperative On Proposed Curbs For Surveillance

By JIM ADAMS

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In a rare display of election-year harmony, key Democrats are predicting Congress will approve an administration bill to require government agencies to obtain court orders before using electronic surveillance devices in cases involving national security.

The Democrats joined the administration in introducing the bill Tuesday in what Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called "an extraordinary spirit of constructive cooperation with the Congress."

Although predicting the bill will be approved by Congress, Kennedy and other Democrats said they had reservations about the measure and indicated it would not pass without changes.

In the House, Judiciary Committee chairman Peter J. Rodino, D-N.J., called the bill "the right approach to a vexing problem," and Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., said his civil liberties subcommittee may begin hearings on the legislation within two weeks.

Under current law, warrants are not needed for wiretaps or bugging in cases involving national security. Warrants are necessary for electronic surveillance in domestic intelligence and criminal investigation cases.

Revelations that past administrations used "national security reasons" to place wiretaps on private organizations, political parties, reporters and political dissidents has led to criticism of current wiretap laws.

Drafting of the new measure by Ford administration officials reversed previous White House stands against such legislation.

Under the proposed bill, the chief justice of the Supreme Court would designate seven U.S. district judges to handle court orders and would name a special three-judge panel to handle cases in which the attorney general felt he had been wrongly denied a warrant.

The attorney general would have the power to authorize eavesdropping on his own in a "national security" emergency if he felt he had no time to get a court order. But he would have to obtain a court order within 24 hours. If the court order was denied the attorney general would have to notify the person involved that he had been put under electronic surveillance.

The electronic surveillance would be limited to foreign powers and agents of foreign powers suspected of being "engaged in clandestine intelligence activities, sabotage, or terrorist activities."

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi said the bill would have "little impact" on current practices, adding that "no American citizen is the target of a national security tap now."

Many Arrested In Fla. Spring Fling

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Police in this Atlantic Coast resort city are arresting vacationing college students in record numbers but say the Easter holiday throng appears better behaved than in years past.

Police Chief Robert Palmer said his officers have made nearly 900 arrests since Friday, when thousands of students began pouring onto the beaches.

He attributed most of the busts to the youths' unfamiliarity with the city's ban on drinking on the beach or streets.

"By the time one group learns how not to be arrested, they leave and another group comes in," Palmer said.

Police estimated Tuesday that up to 150,000 students have arrived since Friday. The Chamber of Commerce predicted the crowd would swell to 500,000 by Easter, April 18.

"They're coming in in busloads, day in, day out, night in and night out," said Palmer, who has placed his force on 12-hour shifts.

But despite the high number of arrests, Palmer said there has been none of the violence that marred last year's spring fling, when 750 students were arrested during a weekend climaxed by a rock-throwing melee.

"So far, there are no problems," said police Capt. Sheldon Schultz. "They're doing the same thing kids always have been doing. They haven't changed much in all the years I've been here. There's just more of them."

Although the numbers were smaller, police in Florida's other student vacation gathering spot, Fort Lauderdale, issued the same all-quiet assessment.

Fort Lauderdale police spokesman Tom Brophy said about 50,000 youths had arrived and the few arrests made so far were for drinking on city beaches and streets.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 11 through March 17.

HOUSE
PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE — Rejected, 149 for and 201 against, a bill (HR 7743) authorizing $38.8 million over two years to launch a joint public-private revitalization of Pennsylvania Avenue between the White House and the Capitol, a plan 14 years on the drawing board. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, the architect of Washington, envisioned the avenue as a center of civic activity with government buildings, residences, a playhouse and marketplace. This money would have been used to work toward that objective. The Senate earlier had authorized $130 million for the project, but the House rejection leaves the future of the project uncertain. Rep. Joe Skubitz (R-Kan.), a supporter, said, "Anyone who has driven or walked down Pennsylvania Avenue from the Capitol to the White House must feel a sense of shame that the main street of our nation should present a picture of such blight and dilapidation." Supporters said federal assistance was necessary because private enterprise without such help has shown little interest in the project.

Opponents of the bill expressed optimism that the private sector would revitalize the historic avenue without the prod of a federal subsidy. Rep. Virginia Smith (R-Neb.) said, "While I would like to see the blighted north side of the thoroughfare beautified, it is unjustifiable to expend federal funds to accomplish this goal." Reps. Richardson Preyer (D-

6) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Stephen Neal (D-5), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "nay."

Rep. Ike Andrews (D-4) did not vote.

MAGNA CARTA — Passed, 294 for and 98 against, a resolution (S Con Res 98) to send a 25-member congressional delegation to London this spring to accept a Bicentennial loan of one of the original copies of the Magna Carta. The Senate had passed the resolution, and will review minor House changes.

This was the second House vote on the resolution, which was earlier rejected (167 for and 219 against) because many members thought the trip was yet another expensive junket and did not know that the British government had invited the legislators.

One supporter, Rep. William Randall (D-Mo.), explained that on the first vote he (and presumably dozens of other members) had not been told the full facts about the trip and the authenticity of the Magna Carta copy to be picked up in London. "I for one am willing to admit that I made a mistake in my vote because I was misled as to the facts. Honest confession is good for the soul," Randall said.

Opponents generally objected not to the loan of the document but to the expense of dispatching 25 members to accept it. One opponent, Rep. Bob Eckhardt (D-Tex.), said that Americans "are not a ceremonial people" and called the planned voyage "a kind of Disneyland operation that is not a worthy celebration of the Bicentennial."

Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Taylor voted "yea." Jones and Broyhill voted "nay."

Martin did not vote.

SENATE

CONGRESSIONAL PAY —

Adopted, 43 for and 40 against, an amendment to prevent members for voting themselves pay hikes that take effect immediately. The measure, attached to a Hatch Act reform bill (HR 8617) later passed and sent to conference with the House, requires that a general election occur between the time a raise is voted and the time it takes effect.

Sen. Robert Taft Jr. (R-Ohio), the sponsor, said the legislation would give constituents a chance "to ratify the decision Congress had made; to raise House and Senate Salaries. Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.) said:

"Having (members) line their own pockets by voting themselves immediate pay raises is one more reason why the American people are losing confidence in their elected officials."

Two senators spoke against the amendment. Sen. Gale McGee (D-Wyo.) said the White House has asked Congress to examine the overall procedure for granting pay hikes, and that proposals such as Taft's should be considered at that time.

Sen. Hiram Fong (D-Hawaii) complained that the amendment would cancel out the mandatory annual cost-of-living pay hikes that House members and senators voted for themselves last year.

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "nay."

Rejected, 46 for and 47 against, an amendment to re-establish the Federal Election Commission in compliance with Supreme Court guidelines, without changing the commission's functions. The amendment was proposed as a substitute to S 3065, a bill which would reorganize the FEC and amend various campaign law provisions.

The 1974 law establishing FEC provided that a majority of its commissioners be appointed by Congress. The Supreme Court held early this year that by weighting the commission with its own appointees, Congress had usurped executive powers. The amendment and S 3065 both proposed presidential appointment of all commissioners. But the amendment would have deleted other provisions of S 3065 which "simply, cleanly and clearly re-establish the Federal Election Commission in a constitutional way and allow it to continue its functions."

An opponent, Sen. Howard Cannon (D-Nev.), said the amendment would do nothing to curb the FEC, which he said many congressmen feel has "erroneously interpreted" campaign law. "I believe we need more clarification of the law," Cannon said.

Helms and Morgan voted "yea."

PUBLIC FINANCING — Rejected, 34 for and 54 against, an amendment to S 3065 (see above) to end public financing of presidential campaigns after the 1976 election and the tax check-off system after the 1978 tax year.

Congress enacted the public financing law in 1974 in an effort to diminish the role of special interest money in presidential campaigns. Presidential candidates receive federal matching funds for each dollar they raise beyond a required minimum. The tax check-off allows taxpayers to designate $1 of their income taxes to finance presidential campaigns.

The sponsor, Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.), said federal funds prolong presidential campaigns and that "if we want to reduce the role of money in politics, reduce the politicking."

During brief floor debate, no senator spoke in favor of public financing. However, the vote reflected general Senate support of public financing at least for a trial period.

Helms voted "yea." Morgan voted "nay."

The Sea Offers An Escape Route

By DENIS D. GRAY
 Associated Press Writer
 BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — For South Vietnamese who do not want to live under the new Communist regime, the sea still offers an escape route, if they can pay the price.

The refugees usually must make a clandestine dash to the Vietnamese coast, pay a shadow "broker" and boat captain and take a 500-mile voyage in small craft over open water, recent escapees say. They usually wind up in Thailand.

The sea escapes have been going on since the Communist victory last April and show no signs of ending. Initially, there was a flotilla that pushed off from Vietnam to all points in Southeast Asia. But in recent months the boats have come one by one. Thai officials say they cannot estimate how many arrive in the country during any given period.

"The escapes are not well-planned and many who try are caught," a Western source in Bangkok said. From time to time radio broadcasts from Vietnam tell of would-be refugees captured by revolutionary authorities.

Recently, a 60-year-old fishing boat captain claiming to have an interest in politics brought out 12 refugees, charging each $75 for the four-day voyage. Interviewed at a Thai police station, the seaman said he had been impressed into a fishing cooperative after the Communist take-over, but that the fixed price the authorities paid him for his catch was insufficient to make ends meet.

Although he said he himself had no intention to flee, the 20 days' fuel supply provided by the authorities each month was enough to set him up in the sea-flight business. He said control of boats in South Vietnam was very tight but not always consistent, with no security checks at all during certain times.

The sources say that besides such "freelancers" as the old fisherman — who faces an uncertain future if he returns to Vietnam — there are those who simply steal a boat and others who make use of the "Chinese connection" operating out of Thailand with agents inside South Vietnam.

Prices for this service range up to $1,000 per person. A Westerner who recently made inquiries about getting a friend out of South Vietnam said the Thai Chinese operators he contacted seemed to be well-organized in Thailand and Vietnam.

The sea route is not the only way out. Westerners returning from Saigon say that some Vietnamese with the necessary money and connections try various ruses to obtain an exit visa and a one-way air ticket. Some reportedly try to marry foreigners or bribe officials to obtain such permits, while others plead with authorities to let them go on humanitarian grounds such as family separation.

There have also been a few stowaways who steamed out aboard foreign vessels calling at South Vietnamese ports.

The most dramatic escape known to date came earlier this month when a test-pilot stole a helicopter and flew his wife, four children and a mechanic friend to Thailand.

According to the National Automobile Club, about 14 percent of all the petroleum used annually in the U.S. goes to passenger automobiles.

Pension Plans For 50 Million

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some 50 million Americans are enrolled in retirement plans other than Social Security, according to Pension Facts — 1975 published by the Institute of Life Insurance. The publication says about 145 million persons had Social Security credits at the end of 1974, but nearly half the nation's work force in commerce and industry was in other retirement plans, including profit-sharing plans providing retirement income.

N.C. Adopted Bond Proposals

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Promised more jobs, better health care and more college classroom space, North Carolina voters have strongly approved three bond referendum proposals in balloting in conjunction with Tuesday's state presidential primary.

"The real victors are the taxpayers and the working men and women of North Carolina, who will benefit most directly from the good jobs in new or expanded industry these bonds will help bring to our state," said W. Craig Kennedy, chairman of a statewide committee which has campaigned for approval of the industrial revenue bond proposal.

It was a constitutional amendment, the second one on the ballot, giving the state the power to finance industrial development with tax free bonds. The other amendment was similar, allowing the state to issue tax exempt bonds to finance health care facilities.

The $43.2 million higher education bond issue is to finance construction of 13 new buildings on 13 campuses of the University of North Carolina system.

With 2,326 of 2,343 precincts, or 99 per cent, reporting, each of the proposals had won handily, with the health care bond amendment winning by the largest majority, 55.2 per cent for to 44.8 per cent against.

The industrial bond proposal won with 372,318 votes, or 54.7 per cent for, and 308,397 or 45.3 per cent against. The $43.2 million bond issue to finance construction at 13 campuses of the University of North Carolina passed with 380,452, or 53.5 for and 331,001, or 46.5 per cent against.

The health care amendment received 383,053 votes for and 310,742 against.

George Little, secretary of the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources and another supporter of the industrial bond amendment, said "Not having industrial revenue bond financing has been the largest roadblock to our equal competition with the other 49 states for new industry."

"The citizens of this state have removed that roadblock. We plan to have our industry hunters begin tomorrow to inform industries across the nation of this in our status," he said.

Donald E. Woodin Jr., spokesman for the North Carolina Hospital Association, said the new constitutional amendment could save hospitals 20 to 30 per cent over interest rates charged through conventional financing.

University of North Carolina President William C. Friday said approval of the education bonds "is a great victory" and "a vote of confidence in the university."

The only campuses not receiving money from the bonds are East Carolina University, N. C. Central University and School of the Arts. Each recently had major projects funded by the legislature from regular tax sources.

Although the proposals had been overshadowed by the presidential contests, the industrial bond amendment had stirred up some controversy and the higher education proposal had received opposition from two candidates for statewide office.

The industrial proposal was first enacted as a statute in 1971, then was ruled unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court. In 1973 the proposal ran into criticism and was rejected by the voters when it was first presented as a constitutional amendment.

Although university officials said the bond proposal was to finance projects needed to accommodate existing enrollment levels, Republican gubernatorial candidate Coy Privette and lieutenant governor candidate John Jordan said the state could not afford the expense.

Friday said he never discussed their opposition with Privette or Jordan, but had expected the bond proposal to pass because of active campaigning by chancellors and students at each of the UNC campuses.

"What we're trying to do is provide a place for every qualified young North Carolinian who meets the admission requirements. This has been the public policy of the state, and I think this vote means there is strong approval of that policy," Friday said.

Among the projects the bonds will finance are a new women's physical education gymnasium at UNC-Chapel Hill, and a $6 million classroom and office building at UNC-Charlotte.

Dr. D. W. Colvard, chancellor at the Charlotte institution, said the new building would allow the school to move its nursing classes out of the school's gymnasium, where courses are now taught, and move education and architecture classes out of the library, where they are now held.

John Marston, vice president of the North Carolina Hospital Association, a group which represents 160 hospitals in the state, said he expects several hospitals will immediately request bonds under the new amendment.

"The ratification of this amendment indicates the commitment of the people of North Carolina toward good health care at the most economical cost."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market jumped ahead today with the Dow Jones industrial average making another run at the 1,000 mark.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips rose more than 3 points in the early going to about 998. Gainers opened up a 3-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The week before last the Dow reached 1,000 for the first time in more than three years, hitting a peak close of 1,003.31 on March 11.

Since then it had pulled back in profit taking before beginning a new upsurge on Tuesday.

Brokers traced the market's renewed enthusiasm to the belief among investors that the economic recovery was gathering more strength than had earlier been expected.

Today's early prices included Kennecott Copper, up 1/4 at 36; Dow Chemical, ahead 3/4 at 108 1/2; Scovill manufacturing, up 1/4 at 17 1/2; and Tiger International, unchanged at 17 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 13.14 to 995.43.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 5-3 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index rose .74 to 54.55.

Big Board volume rose to 22.45 million shares from 19.41 million the day before.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .56 at 103.88.

went about their morning business as usual. Armed soldiers watched street corners, and banks and public offices were closed. Otherwise, there appeared to be little change.

Today's coup means all but two of South America's 10 major countries are under military control. Civilians now govern only in Venezuela and Colombia and in two small nations on the Caribbean coast freed from colonial control within the past decade - Surinam and Guyana.

The most recent military takeover in South America before today occurred in Chile in September 1973, when right-wing officers seized control and said President Salvador Allende Gossens, a Marxist had committed suicide.

The junta accused Mrs. Peron's government of immorality and incompetence. It said Argentina was faced with "a tremendous power vacuum threatening to sink it in disintegration and anarchy."

Several shots were fired as troops took over the headquarters of the Peronist metalworkers' union, and there was token resistance by some Peronist diehards. But generally things were peaceful as troops moved swiftly to strategic positions behind tanks and machine guns.

The formal takeover during the night was preceded by several days of troop movements. The junta announced there was absolute calm throughout the country.

The military returned to power after three years of civilian rule because Juan D. Peron's widow, after she succeeded to his presidency when he died in July 1974, was unable to quell political terrorism, reverse the steady worsening of the economy, check the world's worst rate of inflation - 423 per cent for the last 12 months - or unify the divided Peronist movement.

Possessing neither the charismatic leadership of Peron's second wife, the late Eva Duarte Peron, nor executive, political or governmental ability, Mrs. Peron demonstrated that her chief qualification for office was her husband's name.

Since last summer she had resisted demands for her resignation. But on Tuesday, accompanied by an aide carrying two large suitcases, she went from her suburban residence to the Government House in the heart of Buenos Aires and conferred for nearly 13 hours with cabinet ministers and officials of the Peronist Justicialist party.

Shortly before 1 a.m. a helicopter took her and her suitcases to the downtown Buenos Aires airport, which had been closed to traffic for hours. Military sources said a jet flew her under guard to El Messidor, a luxurious governor's residence in the Andes 900 miles south of the capital.

There was no indication how long she would be held here. But it was assumed she would soon be sent off to exile in Europe.

The junta, in its second broadcast communique, announced that the state of siege imposed 16 months ago remained in force. It prohibited all public gatherings and the publication of "alarmist news" and warned workers they would be punished if they did not report for work.

Navigation was banned on all rivers, police set up roadblocks on all highways leading out of Buenos Aires and heavy guards were stationed at all ports and airports, in apparent preparation for an intensified campaign against the political terrorism by both leftists and rightists which has resulted in an estimated 1,700 deaths since Mrs. Peron became president.

A military government may be able to reduce the level of violence in the country. But the poor performance of the military regimes that ruled during much of the 18 years between Peron's overthrow in 1955 and his return made it doubtful that Videla and his colleagues could solve the grave economic situation that is at the heart of Argentina's troubles.

The army chief is considered to be a tough-minded professional soldier with deeply felt moralistic Roman Catholic principles but with little knowledge of economics or nonmilitary matters and no political expertise.

The daughter of a small-town banker who died soon after her birth, Isabel Martinez was a cabaret dancer when she met Peron in Panama in 1955, three expenses connected with the old nurses building.

C. W. Everette, Sr., Chairman of the Building Committee, reported tentative plans for a new facility at Pitt Tech. The new facility is to be a vocational shop and classroom building of approximately 25,000 square feet. The committee recommended and the Board approved the hiring of Dudley and Shoe, Greenville architects, for planning and construction of the new facility.

In other actions, the Board adopted plans for "Progress Night" to be held on Wednesday evening, April 21. The Board, faculty, and staff will present a ten-year progress report to special guests.

President Will E. Fulford Jr. informed the Board of a spring quarter student enrollment of 1,603 students, up 11 per cent over the 1974-75 spring quarter. He explained that funding by the state for operation of programs for 1976-77 will probably be below or at this year's funding level even though the institute's student enrollment has increased considerably about 30 per cent over last year.

New boaters are reminded by the Coast Guard that the stern of the boat responds first to a turn of the steering wheel.

Registration Of Pupils Set

Kindergarten and first grade registration for 1976-77 school year will be held Wednesday, March 31, 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the library at Sam D. Bundy School. Children eligible to attend first grade must be six years old before October 16. To be eligible for kindergarten, children must be five before October 16. The following documents should be presented at registration: birth certificate, guardianship papers (if applicable), and immunization records for DPT, polio and measles.

Rampants Top Kinston In Weird Game

Ragazzo Warns Of Forgetting

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Vito Ragazzo, former assistant football coach at East Carolina University, warned against growing too fast, yesterday in a speech to the Greenville Sports Club.

"East Carolina's athletic program has grown by leaps and bounds," Ragazzo said. "They get more for their money here, dollar for dollar, than just about any other school. They've got a great program going and a great growth to go with it."

But, Ragazzo warned, don't forget the student body. "It's a great injustice to forget them. Don't try to do things for the individual and not for the whole school."

The coach, most recently on the staff at the University of North Carolina, pointed to the Atlantic Coast Conference as an example not to follow.

"It's really disheartening to go to the ACC Basketball Tournament. Now there's a coliseum that seats 19,000 and it's full. But there aren't more than a couple of hundred students from each school. The seventh-inning balk and gained a 2-1 victory over Kinston's Vikings yesterday. It was just the second game of the season for the Rampants, realizing what was happening as Dixon approached first again, fired to the base, but not in time. "I really thought it was a foul ball," Dixon said later. "I'll know from now on to wait until the umpire really tells me to go back."

A couple of pitches later, Dixon again stole second, this time to stay. The side was retired without further action, however.

The Rampants got their first run in the second. Eddy Connolly singled to center and Jim Wilkerson ran for him. Jeff Aldridge walked, and when a pickoff play at first was off target, Wilkerson raced to third. Aldridge then stole second, and on the play, the throwdown went into center, allowing Wilkerson to speed home.

Greg Sasser followed with a single, but no other runs scored. Rose threatened in the third when Mike Brewington walked and stole both second and third, and again in the fourth, fifth and sixth, then runners got as far as second.

Kinston after getting two on via walks in the first inning, tied it up in the bottom of the second. Walter Gardner walked as did Kim Lamn. With one down, Mitch Million attempted to sacrifice, but his bunt was played to second, getting Lamn. Joe Wiggs followed with the only hit off Belton, scoring Gardner.

After that, however, Kinston did not get another runner on base as 16 straight went down. Rose got the winning run in the seventh. Brewington got his second hit and was sacrificed up. Connolly added his second hit, moving Brewington to third. A balk then scored Brewington with what proved to be the winning run.

The Rampants, now 2-0, return to action on Thursday. They travel to Williamston for a 3:30 p.m. game with the Tigers. That game is a makeup of an earlier postponed contest.

The Rampants are back home on Friday, hosting Kinston at 4 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium.

Jamesville Rips Belhaven, 24-6

BELHAVEN — Jamesville High School lived up to its nickname yesterday as the Bullets gunned down Belhaven in a Beaufort-Hyde-Martin baseball game, 24-6.

Jamesville took the lead in the first inning with a pair of runs. Ray Pierce walked as did Jerry Ange. The two pulled a double steal, and Pierce scored on Billy Brown's sacrifice fly. Robbie Hardison missed the bunt on a squeeze play, but Ange slid in with a stolen base to score the second run.

After Belhaven got on in the bottom of the first, the Bullets shot away with seven in the top of the second. Toby Holliday walked and so did Edwin Lilley. Larry Pierce singled to load them up. Ange doubled in Holliday and Lilley, and Brown

Bucs Top Pembroke

East Carolina's tennis team hit the road yesterday for the first time this season and came home with a victory over Pembroke State, 9-0.

The Pirates were led by Doug Getsinger, Mitch Pergerson and Mark Callaway, who dusted off their competition without losing a game. Pergerson's win gave him a 6-1 record for the season.

Tom Durfee, playing at number one singles, won his third consecutive match to lift his record to 3-4.

The win for the Pirates gives the team a 3-5 mark for the year, while the Braves dropped to 0-4 with the loss. The Pirates are idle until next Tuesday when they play host to Old Dominion.

ROBERSONVILLE — Edmondson walked and Junior Webb singled. James Eason reached on an error that allowed both Edmondson and Webb to come around and score.

Greg Roberson singled and an error on the play let Smith score and left Roberson at second. He stole third and scored on Spruill's single with the game-winning run.

Little Help For Gaylord

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Last year Billy Martin predicted a pennant. The Texas Rangers came in third place in the American League West and the fiery manager got the axe. The optimism is toried down this season and for good reason.

The short spring training camp hurt the Rangers more than most American League teams because Manager Frank Lucchesi is desperate to find pitching help behind his star veteran Gaylord Perry.

Perry is ready but after that a lot of "ifs" come into play.

If Bill Singer, obtained in the offseason from California in a trade for first baseman Jim Spencer, can come off arm surgery and if Nelson Briles can regain the form he once had before going sour at Kansas City, T-H-E-N the Rangers might make a championship move.

The Rangers are counting on a lot of longshots like lefty Jim Umberger, a second-year man, who was 8-7 as a rookie last year; like Jim Gideon, the mainstay of the University of Texas 1975 NCAA championship team; like rookie right-hander Jeff Terpko in the bullpen; like reserve outfielder Juan Beniquez, obtained in a trade for pitcher Fergie Jenkins settling down an error-prone outfield; like the Roy Smalley experiment at second base.

The "if" list is endless.

The only tested relief pitcher the Rangers could count on last season was right-handed Steve Frazier, who has posted 22 of the 29 saves registered in the last two years.

Smalley, a highly regarded shortstop, has been switched to second base so he won't be playing behind American League All-Star Toby Harrah, who hit .293 with 20 home runs and 93 RBI in a banner 1975 at the plate.

Third base will be anchored by Roy Howell, a power hitter who is still a question mark in the field.

Mike Hargrove, a line-drive hitting second-year man with two .300 plus seasons under his belt, will be a permanent fixture at first base.

Rifle-armed Jim Sundberg, who must improve his hitting, is behind the plate.

The outfield will find Jeff Burroughs in right field. The 1974 AL's Most Valuable Player slumped to a .226 average despite 29 home runs and 94 RBI last year.

The Rangers hope Beniquez can provide a solid bat to go along with his speed in center field. He hit .291 in 78 games for Boston last year.

All-purpose Lenny Randle is expected to hold down the left field post. He hit .276 in 1975 and played second base, third base and all the outfield positions.

Tom Grieve will be in the line-up every day either as a designated hitter or in an outfield position. Grieve thrived under Lucchesi's handling last year, coming on strong to hit .276.

"I'm not making any predictions," Lucchesi said. "But don't sell this team short."

It appears, however, Texas has too many questions to be answered to finish ahead of Oakland or Kansas City.

Bartow Looks Forward To Meeting Indiana

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The players have changed over the years — Walt Hazard, Gail Goodrich, Lew Alcindor, Henry Bibby, Bill Walton, Keith Wilkes and Dave Meyers — but the basketball championship trophies continued to be won by UCLA.

Behind all the changes and titles stood one man — Coach John Wooden.

Wooden is gone now, and new Coach Gene Bartow has taken the Bruins to the NCAA's Final Four. Unlike the past, UCLA is not the odds-on favorite.

Bartow's Bruins met top-ranked and undefeated Indiana in one semifinal game Saturday in Philadelphia. The other semifinal pits fourth-ranked Rutgers, also unbeaten this season, against Michigan.

"We're healthy, excited and it shapes up as a super game," Bartow said of the UCLA-Indiana clash. "Indiana has proven en it is an excellent basketball team. They're sound in every phase of the game and have an outstanding coach in Bobby Knight."

Bartow's Bruins and Knight's Hoosiers have met before — in the opening game of the 1975-76 regular season. Indiana won, 84-64.

"I've usually never been caught up in what an opponent does," Bartow said. "But that was my first game as UCLA's coach and, as I've said, I over-prepared my team and put too much pressure on them."

Bartow said his Bruins will have a different outlook this Saturday.

"We're going to emphasize what UCLA can do, no what Indiana does," he said. "And if we play the way we're capable of playing ... I think we're going to win."

Knight agrees that their first meeting is no indication of what Saturday's game will be like.

"Opening games often are not a reliable yardstick for comparison," the Indiana coach said. "UCLA has improved greatly over the season. I'm sure we have, also."

The Rutgers-Michigan game will pit two teams with similar

Golfing Awards

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Amateur Jay Hass of Wake Forest, the national college golf champion, and Roger Watson, pro at a club in Cary near Raleigh, have been chosen as the Carolina's golfers of the year for 1975.

Haas led the Deacons to the collegiate title last year while winning the individual crown. He was unbeaten in three Walker Cup matches against the British, won the Dixie and Big Four tournaments, and made the All-America team.

Watson, pro at MacGregor Downs Country Club, has won the national PGA Club Professional title the last two years. He also won the Carolina's PGA title last year, and led the section in money won.

They were chosen by the Carolina Golf Reporters Association. Each will receive a plaque at the association's annual business meeting and banquet next Thursday, following the first round of the Greater Greensboro Open.

Choses Furman

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—High school basketball standout Jonathan Moore has apparently chosen to attend Furman over South Carolina, the State newspaper said in today's editions.

Moore had said earlier this week he was undecided between the schools. He is a 6-foot-6, 195-pound star who led Burke High School to the state championship for large schools on Friday, averaging 33 points and 27 rebounds a game. Burke finished with a 25-1 record.

Moore could not be reached immediately for comment, and Furman officials declined a statement. The Columbia newspaper said he had left his home near Charleston and was in Greenville.

Race Going In Pacific Section

By The Associated Press

The Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association has a race going after all.

Not a race for first place — the Golden State Warriors made a shambles of that a long time ago. But Phoenix, Seattle and Los Angeles have come up with a wild scramble of their own.

Those three are battling for two playoff spots, and the battle has become quite heated. The Phoenix Suns, out of the running for most of the year, took their biggest stride towards post-season play Tuesday night when they beat the Seattle SuperSonics 104-97 behind a career-high 39 points by guard Paul Westphal.

Los Angeles, 37-37, and Seattle, 36-36, are tied for second place. Phoenix, 35-36, is one-half game behind overall but tied with Seattle and one game ahead of Los Angeles in the loss column.

One of those three will make the playoffs as the Pacific Division runnerup and one as the Western Conference wild-card team. And one will start its summer vacation early.

Elsewhere in the NBA Tuesday, it was Buffalo 122, Chicago 109; Detroit 122, New York 116; Kansas City 106, Washington 101; Boston 101, New Orleans 97, overtime; Phoenix 104, Seattle 97; Golden State 118, Atlanta 100; Los Angeles 125, Houston 106, and Portland 100, Milwaukee 97, overtime.

Lakers 125, Rockets 106

Los Angeles moved into a tie for second place with Seattle by shooting 60 per cent from the field in the third period, scoring 35 points and moving from a 58-57 deficit to a 92-80 lead. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 30 points and pulled down 20 rebounds for the Lakers, and reserve guard Stu Lantz chipped in with 17 points.

Pistons 122, Knicks 116

Detroit kept pace with Kansas City by beating the Knicks behind 28 points by Bob Lanier and 25 by Eric Money, who got 21 of his points in the second half.

Braves 122, Bulls 109

Randy Smith scored 30 points, Jim McMillian 28 and Bob McAdoo 27 as Buffalo defeated Chicago and drew into a tie with idle Philadelphia for second place in the Atlantic Division.

Celtics 101, Jazz 97, OT

Dave Cowens scored six of Boston's eight overtime points after shooting just 3-for-20 from the field during regulation and finished with 18 points, two less than Jo Jo White and John Havlicek.

Blazers 100, Bucks 97, OT

Lloyd Neal sank two baskets in the final two minutes of overtime and Sidney Wicks sank a pair of free throws with five seconds remaining to clinch Portland's triumph.

Warriors 118, Hawks 100

Atlanta, which suffered its seventh loss in a row, led 27-14 late in the first period but then rookie Gus Williams came off the bench to score 14 points in the second quarter and the Warriors caught up and then pulled away. Williams led all scorers with 27 points.

FARMVILLE—Southern Wayne scored runs in the first and fourth innings and Ron Pelletier pitched a three-hit shutout as the Saints beat the Farmville Central Jaguars, 2-0, yesterday.

Pelletier struck out ten Jaguars having to get his tenth in the seventh inning to stop a Farmville rally. A double play helped him out of the jam as the Jaguars tried to break the ice. Pelletier gave up a walk to Neil Gordon but Gordon was cut down in the double play. Phillip Gordon followed that reaching on an error and a single by Don Holloman put two on. A strike out ended the threat and the game.

Ricky Smith pitched the loss for the Jaguars fanning just three but giving up four walks and five hits.

The Saints scored in the top of the first on a single by Sherrill Blackman driving in Jeff Rose who had singled and taken second on a wild pitch.

Farmville Central's Mike Jenkins led off the Jaguar half with a double and was moved to third on a sacrifice only to die there.

The Saints got a man to second in the third as Keith Neil doubled but was left at second. Holloman singled and moved around to third in the bottom of the third on a walk and a sacrifice but could not score.

Haywood Outlaw walked to open the Southern Wayne fourth and was sacrifice up. Doug Thornton's two-out single brought him around.

The Saints put men on second in the sixth and seventh innings but could not advance them further.

Holloman was the only player with two hits.

The Jaguars are scheduled to face Tarboro on Friday.

Exhibitions Warming Up

By The Associated Press

Take me out to the ballgame ... even if it's only an exhibition game.

And there will be no fewer than 13 games in the Grapefruit and Cactus Leagues today with all 24 major league teams scheduled for action.

Only three exhibitions have been played so far. Two of them took place Tuesday; the Baltimore Orioles downed the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2 while the Chicago White Sox scored four unearned runs off Doc Medich in the ninth inning and trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2.

While the talks between the players' union and the club owners resume in New York today, they will be shunted aside — unless unanticipated progress is made — as the true baseball fan finally gets his long-awaited supply of hits, runs and errors.

Meanwhile, free agent pitcher Andy Messersmith doesn't seem to be as popular as he once was with teams seeking his services. The world champion Cincinnati Reds said Tuesday they have turned down a chance to sign the hard-throwing right-hander for $1.5 million over four years.

And the Atlanta Braves said they would withdraw their offer if Messersmith doesn't make a decision soon.

But Messersmith's agent, Herb Osmond, said he expected the pitcher to sign a million-dollar pact within a week.

The Reds disclosed they rejected a proposal to give Messertsmith a bonus and a four-year, no-out contract.

"To sign him under these terms is poor business," said Bob Howsam, club president.

"No club in our industry can truly afford this and survive."

And Ted Turner, new owner of the Braves, said, "Our offer to Messersmith will be withdrawn within the next few days if we haven't received a decision from him."

Other clubs in the bidding were the Chicago White Sox, New York Yankees, St. Louis Cardinals and San Diego Padres.

"We hope this will all end the end of this week or the start of next week," Osmond said.

Among Tuesday's satisfied players, though, were All-Star catcher Thurman Munson of the Yankees, Baltimore pitcher Mike Torrez and outfielder Jerry Morales of the Chicago Cubs.

The Montreal Expos made the first spring roster cuts, farming out pitchers Bill Atkinson, Larry Landreth, Joe Keener and Ed Riley, infielder Rodney Scott and outfielders Warren Cromartie and Gary Roenicke.

Eric Pierce (FC) defeated Parnaz Green, 7-5, 6-2.

Jim Manning (W) defeated Stuart James, 6-2, 2-4, 6-4.

Doug Tyson (FC) defeated Terry Griffin, 6-4, 7-4.

Sidney Davis (FC) defeated Craig Williams, 6-3, 7-5.

Tony Baker (FC) defeated Steve Dickens, 6-4, 6-2.

Bobby Allen (FC) defeated Doug Chesson, 6-2, 6-0.

Pierce Roy Richardson (FC) defeated Boyd Bowen, 8-1.

James Davis (FC) defeated Douglas Rogers, 8-1.

Dodgers Are Again Wonder Team But Not Quite In The Same Way

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers were the wonder team of the National League in 1974, when a sprinkling of veterans and a host of young lions led them to the West Division title, the pennant and into the World Series. Last year, however, Los Angeles' brief dreams of a National League dynasty evaporated as the Dodgers sank slowly in the West to finish 20 games back of Cincinnati in the division.

The bicentennial Dodgers, however, look like a wonder team again — but in a different sense of the word.

This season, Dodgers fans wonder if the pitching staff can get along without Andy Messersmith; wonder if Tommy John and a newcomer — Ron Bryant — can snap back from injuries; wonder if new arrivals Dusty Baker and Ted Sizemore can help the club as much as Dodger officials believe; and wonder if reliever Mike Marshall will have time between his legal hassles with Michigan State to do his usual yeoman job.

Manager Walter Alton, beginning his 23rd year at the Dodger helm, says a healthy Los Angeles club can beat the Reds this year.

"We got super years out of a great many fellows in 1974 who didn't match that performance in 1975 mainly because of injuries," Alton commented.

The Dodgers appear to be completely healed this spring, although it's not certain if a few of them — Tommy John the most prominent — will be as good as they were before being injured.

Los Angeles apparently has lost Messersmith, a 19-game winner last season, since he was declared a free agent and is currently negotiating with other clubs. But he is still un-signed, and although the Dodgers did not enter the bidding for his services, a slim possibility exists that he might re-join the club.

But even without Messersmith, Alton thinks the Dodgers have a sturdy pitching staff.

"Don Sutton has been with the Dodgers 10 years and has done an outstanding job," Alton said. "Burt Hooton surprised many people last season with his 18 victories. Doug Rau won 15 games last season, and has a bright future ahead.

"Tommy John will be making his comeback this season and he adds to our depth of starters. John was off to his finest season ever in 1974 when he was 13-3 and suffered a tendon tear."

Marshall, the 1974 Cy Young winner who was hampered by a rib injury last season, is again expected to be the mainstay of the Dodger bullpen. Knuck-leballer Charlie Hough and youngster Stan Wall will probably also see considerable relief action.

Steve Yeager seems to have the inside track on the catching job, with Joe Ferguson relegated to right field. The Dodgers recently acquired catcher Ellie Rodriguez from California, and utility man Sizemore can also catch, so Ferguson may be traded.

The Dodger outfield will most likely consist of Bill Buckner, hobbled by an ankle injury last year, in left; Baker, acquired from Atlanta in a trade that sent Jimmy Wynn, among others, to the Braves; and Ferguson and John Hale splitting duties in right.

Alton has indicated that he'll experiment with his infield. Ron Cey has third base locked up, and the same goes for Steve Garvey at first.

But Alton plans to work Dave Lopes at shortstop, with Sizemore at second. Bill Russell, Los Angeles' regular short-stop, was injured much of last season, and slipped to a .206 batting average.

Alton, who likes to point out that the Dodgers whipped Cincinnati 10-8 in the clubs' head-to-head competition last year, said it will take a good all-around team effort, plus two or three Dodgers having outstanding seasons, for Los Angeles to beat the Reds this year.

And one other thing wouldn't hurt the Dodgers' chances, either, Alton adds, "a little luck."

The 1974 Florida Downs racing season at Oldsmar, Fla., had $28,000 in uncashed mutuel tickets. The money was turned over to the state of Florida.

Baseball Talks Resume After Ten Days; Miller Still Unhappy

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Still seething over the actions of some owners during the 17-day shutdown of spring training camps, Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, returned to the bargaining table today for negotiations with baseball's Player Relations Committee.

Today's session, at the offices of chief management negotiator John Gaherin, was the first formal meeting between the two sides in 10 days. At their last confrontation, the management committee presented what it called its final offer to the players association.

That proposal recognized the free agent rights won by the players in arbitration last December and subsequently upheld in federal court. The owners offered free agency to all major leaguers in the next two seasons but tied certain limitations to the proposal, including an eight-club draft of the players involved.

When the union's executive board neither accepted nor rejected the proposal, the owners withdrew it, although Miller has not officially been notified that the offer is no longer on the table.

Meanwhile, training camps have opened and the start of the regular season no longer is in jeopardy. Those developments have relieved the pressure of time that had been a factor in some of the talks.

But they haven't relieved Miller's unhappiness with some of what went on during the delayed opening of camps.

"There were at least half a dozen violations by the owners ... instances of unfair labor practices," said Miller.

He cited Texas Owner Brad Corbett's dealings with players as one example. Corbett allegedly met with his players to tell them of the owners' offer and counseled them on how to vote before the proposal was formally presented to Miller.

Miller was asked if he intended to pursue the violations with the National Labor Relations Board. "Probably," he said. "We'll have to take a look at it. A decision will be made shortly."

Miller called the camp lock-out, "a naked attempt to divide the players that did not work."

The owners had refused to open camp, demanding that a contract with the players be reached first. "That was a phony issue," said Miller. "They said they wanted to protect themselves against a strike but we already had offered them a no-strike pledge."

The camps were opened one week ago under orders from Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. The commissioner's action did not have total support from the owners and he heard considerable criticism from them when the 24 major league clubs met last Saturday.

It was at that meeting that the owners, also gathered over what they considered an overly liberal proposal, listened to a three-hour report from the Player Relations Committee. Afterwards, they gave the negotiating team a vote of confidence and directed them to resume talks.

The players have asked that the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service be called into the dispute and that until the impasse is solved, the owners extend the old basic agreement which expired last Dec. 31. Those proposals were expected to be discussed by the two sides today.

Defense Helps Kentucky Win

By MIKE CLARK
AP Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Defense isn't a 48-minute-a-game obsession with the Kentucky Colonels, but Jan van Breda Kolff is trying to change all that.

The lanky 6-foot-8 van Breda Kolff slapped some old-fashioned nose-to-nose defense on Denver's spectacular rookie David Thompson and, not coincidentally, gave error-plagued Kentucky a big push toward a 118-117 overtime victory over the Nuggets Tuesday night.

The win, Kentucky's ninth in its last 11 games, allowed the Colonels to slip past struggling San Antonio into third place in the American Basketball Association.

In the only other ABA game

Tuesday night, Indiana nipped San Antonio 107-104.

"I tried to overplay him for the most part," said van Breda Kolff, and the move apparently worked. He limited Thompson, who led all scorers with 34 points, to just one field goal in the final 17 minutes of play.

While others tried, and failed, to stop Thompson earlier in the game, van Breda Kolff was taking mental notes that he used in the final period.

"I was guessing a little bit. I knew that he wanted to go to his right, so I was cheating a little that way so that he would have to force his shot."

In addition to that defensive job on Thompson, van Breda Kolff contributed nine points, nine rebounds and five assists down the stretch.

Miller called the camp lock-out, "a naked attempt to divide the players that did not work."

Ervin Says Rep. Ford Labored To Delay Probe Of Watergate

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — President Ford "moved heaven and earth" to prevent an investigation of the Watergate break before the 1972 presidential election, when he was a ranking Republican member of Congress, says retired Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr.

The charge has been cropping up in recent speeches by the former North Carolina Democrat who was chairman of the Senate Watergate committee.

Ervin told a Democratic rally at Misenheimer, N.C., last Friday that Ford "faithfully executed his Republican leadership" to make sure a committee headed by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Texas, did not act before the election.

The Patman committee wanted to investigate how $114,000 contributed to the Committee to Reelect the President ended up in the bank account of one of the convicted Watergate burglars, Ervin said.

He said Patman, then chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, wanted to subpoena Maurice Stans and John Mitchell of the Committee to Reelect the President, but was prevented by Ford.

Ervin said Ford blocked the investigation "by persuading every Republican on the House Banking and Currency Committee to vote against subpoenaing Mitchell and Stans on the $114,000 that went into Bernard Barker's bank account." Barker was one of five men caught in the break-in at the Democratic National Committee offices, and Ervin said the $114,000 "financed the break-in."

In addition to the Republican committee members who voted against the investigation, Ford also won the votes of "a few Southern Democrats who were so afraid of George McGovern that they were afraid to rock the boat," Ervin said. McGovern, senator from South Dakota, was the Democratic nominee for president in 1972 against Richard Nixon.

Ervin, who supports Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., for the Democratic presidential nomination, denied that his remarks were made with Tuesday's North Carolina primary in mind. "No, I was talking to a rally for Bill Hefner," Ervin said in a telephone interview from his law office. Hefner is a Democratic congressman from North Carolina's 8th District.

Ervin said Ford had told the Rules Committee questioning him prior to his confirmation to the presidency that he would not pardon President Nixon if there was evidence Nixon was involved in the Watergate coverup. "Ford said he wouldn't stand for that, and then afterwards said that was just a hypothetical question," Ervin recalled.

Jenkins Happy On Bonds Vote

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
East Carolina University Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins expressed delight at the University bond issue's being favored by state and county voters yesterday.

"North Carolina's reputation for putting education in the forefront of responsibility has been borne out and reaffirmed," he said. "Our people, once again, have met the challenge. The favorable vote for higher education is wise and prudent, which is the North Carolina way. The funds now provided will go a long way toward meeting the needs that exist today on most of our UNC campuses."

East Carolina University will not benefit directly from this bond issue, but, of course, is part of the UNC system which will. Needs met by this issue will put ECU nearer the front of the line for other allocations later on, Dr. Jenkins explained. He gave credit to Col. Dick Blake, his administrative assistant, who chaired a committee to promote the education bond issue in Eastern North Carolina.

Blake was not available for comment, as he was out of town on business today.

Pitt County voters gave this issue 5,816 affirmative and 5,044 negative votes. The percentages were 53.6 per cent for and 46.4 per cent against. However, 15 of the precincts voted against. Only the Farmville, Grimesland 2, and the nine Greenville precincts, plus the absentee balloters, had majorities in favor of the issue.

Statewide percentages were uncannily close to the Pitt County ones—53.5 per cent for and 46.5 per cent against.

Divers Want John Paul Jones' Ship

By THOMAS CHEATHAM LONDON (UPI) — John Paul Jones won the battle but lost his ship on the day his "I have not yet begun to fight" became a ringing phrase in American history.

Now, in a footnote to history, a team of explorers and underwater archaeologists is getting together to try to locate and retrieve the lost Bon Homme Richard from the depths of the North Sea.

The wreckage has lain off the Yorkshire coast of northeastern England since what historians describe as one of the most savage and bloody of all sea engagements.

France had given Jones the ship as part of its military aid to the American revolutionaries. Jones named her Bon Homme Richard after the pseudonym used by Benjamin Franklin, then U.S. ambassador to Paris, in "Poor Richard's Almanac."

Jones's mission was to bring the war to Britain — to cut and slash at coastal shipping in an attempt to disrupt the war effort and weaken the enemy's will to carry on.

Nazi Germany was to try the same tactic with its submarine wolf packs in World War II.

On Sept. 23, 1779, lying in wait off Flamborough Head, Jones spotted a convoy of 40 British ships carrying naval supplies. He piloted the Bonny Dick, with her 40 guns, into attack position.

The British frigate Serapis, 44 guns strong, moved out to head off Jones and give the convoy time to escape under the protection of the coastal guns at Scarborough Castle.

Serapis, under Capt. Richard Pearson, circled the Bon Homme Richard and at sunset opened up with a series of broadsides.

Soon the American ship was ablaze, but Jones battled on and grappled the Serapis, hull to hull, in the moonlight.

Thousands of Britons, fearful that Jones would land his Marines if he won, watched as the two men-o-war pumped volley after volley of cannon fire into one another in a fight to the death.

The Bon Homme Richard was blown in two and sinking slowly when Pearson asked Jones if he'd had enough. His reply spurred on the American crew then and still stirs patriots now.

Cutlasses flashing, the Marines leaped from the rigging across to the Serapis, fought their way down to its now-flaming deck and knocked out the enemy's guns with grenades.

After 36 hours of battle, Pearson surrendered his sword to Jones and they drank a wine toast before the Americans locked up their captives and sailed away to France.

Behind them, the Bon Homme Richard was rudderless, adrift and foundering in flames, bound for the depths.

Jones, the Scotsman with the French ship, was to become the father of the U.S. Navy. Pearson was to be knighted for saving the convoy. But the Bonny Dick has been largely forgotten until recently.

The wreckage is believed to lie in 150 feet of water between two and six miles off shore.

Yorkshire fishermen have charted many wrecks in the area and are giving all the details to the men who want to try to recover that little piece of history.

The Atlantic Charter Maritime Archaeological Foundation will direct the effort. Its best-known recovery is that of the vice-flagship of the Spanish Armada, the Santa Maria de la Rosa, sunk in 1588.

The project, with participants from the United States, Britain and France, has the blessing of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. It is due to begin this summer.

The U.S. Navy has offered technical assistance in the form of divers and sophisticated detection equipment capable of finding cannon balls in oceans. Jones is thought to have jettisoned some of his guns in an effort to keep the Bon Homme Richard afloat.

If the wreckage is located, the target date for recovery is 1979 — exactly 200 years after it went down in the echo of that famous battle cry.

EDUCATIONAL AID ROCHESTER, N.Y. The funds, awarded to both privately and publicly supported schools, are financed under the Educational Aid Program from the firm's current earnings and from monies previously set aside for the program.

Killer Receives Death By Rope

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) — A man who said he was paid $3,500 for killing a woman five months pregnant has been sentenced to death by hanging. "You earned your fee," said the judge who imposed sentence.

Philip L. Lindquist, 31, was convicted by a jury on Jan. 31 of first-degree murder in the slaying of Joy L. Weitz, 32.

"The cold, deliberate way in which you killed Joy Weitz and knowing she was pregnant, and knowing that she was the mother of other children and with no concern for these children ... you earned your fee," First District Court Judge Watt E. Prather said Tuesday. "I can see no other way but to sentence you to hang."

He set May 5 for the execution.

Mrs. Weitz was found slumped over the steering wheel of her car on a country road in January 1975.

The victim's husband, James C. Weitz, 25, of Spokane, Wash., was sentenced last month to 10 years in prison for voluntary manslaughter. He told authorities he had paid another man to pay Lindquist for the shooting. He testified that he was hoping to collect on a $60,000 insurance policy.

Lindquist's attorney, Raymond Tanksley Jr., said the conviction and sentencing will be appealed. He argued against the death sentence, calling it unconstitutional.

A 1973 Idaho law makes the death sentence mandatory for first-degree murder.

There have been nine executions in Idaho history, all by hanging. The last was in 1957.

Charles B. Vetsche, 34, of Spokane, was the man named by Weitz as receiving the payment. He is being held in a Spokane jail on a first-degree murder charge in connection with the woman's death and is fighting extradition from Washington to Idaho.

The Bubonic plague was estimated to have killed 800,000 persons in Egypt in 1792.

Some Pitt Republican leaders see Ronald Reagan's victory in Pitt County and the state in Tuesday's presidential primary as a "rebuff" for GOP Gov. James Holshouser and a "somewhat personal victory" for Republican Senator Jesse Helms.

Reagan took 1,106 votes as compared with 614 for incumbent President Gerald Ford in Pitt. Only 33 Republicans voted "no preference" in the primary balloting yesterday.

Herb Lee, First Congressional District Republican Party Chairman and coordinator for Reagan's campaign in the 21-county district described Reagan's victory as a "rebuffing" of Gov. Holshouser. He said the Reagan vote yesterday indicates "in my opinion, Sen. Helms has more influence over North Carolina Republicans than Gov. Holshouser does."

Sen. Helms headed the Reagan Campaign in the state, while Gov. Holshouser is Ford's campaign coordinator for the Southeastern United States.

Lee said North Carolina voters "had more confidence in what Jesse Helms said. . ."

Lee said, "We felt all along the First District would go for Reagan. We did our best and it must have paid off."

"I think that Leo Jenkins

(ECU chancellor) on television last night expressed it very well. He said this election really proved the political clout of Sen. Jesse Helms."

According to Lee, "I think that this (Reagan win) will have a tremendous effect on the Reagan campaign. It will re-create confidence. He will go on from here."

Eloise Howard, Pitt County campaign coordinator for Reagan said "I just think it's (the Reagan victory) is a victory for the people. The people of North Carolina had the moral strength to vote the way they felt, rather than vote the way they were told things were going."

Mrs. Howard continued, "I feel North Carolina went for a man who has the courage to espouse the same virtues and priorities and principles that the people of good strong Christian background such as North Carolina, have always lived and practiced in their daily lives. I just feel Mr. Reagan was a champion for their beliefs."

The county coordinator said, "I strongly feel the vote for Reagan was a vote against Holshouser. I think the people of North Carolina sent a message to Raleigh. . . that they have finally had enough of the status quo. I think Holshouser is finished. We even carried Gene Anderson's (a top Holshouser aide) precinct."

Mrs. Howard praised the "gobs of volunteers. . . they are the ones who did this. . . they and the voters."

Republican John East. . . a member of the state steering committee for Reagan, just as Lee and Mrs. Howard . . . expressed interest in seeing "how crucial Northeastern North Carolina was in the Reagan vote." He won overwhelmingly in the Eastern portion, while Ford was strongest in the west, the traditional old line areas.

East also saw the Reagan win as "a rather personal victory for Sen. Helms." According to East, the Reagan win in North Carolina "greatly increased" Sen. Helms' "strength in the Republican Party."

Nationally, according to East, a political science professor at East Carolina University, the victory for Reagan in North Carolina "does breathe new life into the . . . campaign for the near term, certainly."

Conferring On Flu Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two dozen of the nation's top scientists are meeting with President Ford amid reports that government health experts are recommending a massive campaign to inoculate every American against a rare and deadly flu strain.

Any such immunization program would be the largest in the nation's history and would be aimed at the swine flu virus, a strain that has been dormant for nearly a half century.

The swine flu strain was blamed for 20 million deaths world-wide during a 1918 epidemic that claimed more American lives than World War I combat. In all, 500,000 Americans died of the flu strain during the epidemic.

Last month, the virus killed an Army recruit and afflicted four other soldiers at Ft. Dix, N.J.

Since then, public health specialists have been weighing whether a massive public inoculation program should be launched. The Washington Post said today that Ford's health advisers have concluded that such a program is needed.

Officials at the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta indicated that a decision would be announced shortly.

The center said Tuesday it would take nearly six months to produce enough vaccine to provide shots for 215 million Americans.

Estimates of the crash program's cost range from $107 million to $150 million. Pharmaceutical companies would use millions of fertilized chicken eggs as cultures to develop the vaccine.

The center reported last week that this winter's epidemic of A-Victoria type flu has passed its peak. Through February, the flu had caused 1,270 more deaths in the United States than the 3,700 flu and pneumonia deaths the center predicted for this winter.

Resolution To Blame Israel For 'Unrest'

By SERGE SCHMEMANN
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.
(AP) — With the United States joining in criticism of Israeli occupation practices, non-aligned members of the Security Council today prepared a resolution blaming Israel for the wave of Arab unrest on the West Bank of the Jordan river.

A working paper circulated by nonaligned members declared that the demonstrations were the result of "Israel's violation of the rights of the inhabitants" of the occupied territories and the "measures of repression" taken against them.

The paper also condemned Israel for changing the character and status of Jerusalem and for building Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territories.

Addressing the Security Council Tuesday afternoon, U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton declared that the "substantial resettlement" of Israelis in occupied territories was illegal under the Geneva Convention and "an obstacle to the success" of Arab-Israeli peace negotiations.

Scranton told the council that the United States would weigh any resolution to determine whether it "corresponds to the actual situation," whether it will "advance the proper administration of the areas involved" and "most important of all, will the council's action help or hinder the peaceful settlement process?"

There was no immediate indication whether the nonaligned paper would meet Scranton's conditions.

The new envoy opened his address, his first speech since he succeeded Daniel Patrick Moynihan, with a personal appeal to other U.N. members to "talk with me in the corridors or at the social functions or whatever" about possible solutions to the Mideast impasse.

The invitation, coupled with Scranton's earnest, noncombative tone, contrasted sharply with the fiery exhortations for which Moynihan was noted.

Scranton declared that Israel's responsibility to preserve religious practices intact in the occupied territory cannot be changed by the ruling of an Israeli court.

This was in reference to the incident that sparked the West Bank unrest and led to the council meeting. An Israeli magistrate ruled that Jews could worship in an area of Moslem and Jewish shrines.

Injury Chances Said 1-In-4

By JOHN STOWELL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chances are better than one in four that you'll be injured this year and the ways it is most likely to happen are fairly predictable, says a new government report.

The report on a study by the National Center for Health Statistics found that an estimated average of 63.4 million Americans per year were hurt seriously enough to seek medical attention or restrict their activities for at least one day in 1971 and 1972.

Falls accounted for 13.6 million injuries or 21.5 per cent of the total. More than 4.4 million persons were hurt falling on stairs, steps or from a height.

More than 5.6 million were injured bumping into an object or another person, 4.7 million by moving motor vehicles, 4.2 million by cutting or piercing instruments and 4.1 million were hit by moving objects.

Together, accidents of that type accounted for nearly 51 per cent of all injuries, based on figures obtained in interviews of 88,000 households with 267,000 residents.

The center, an agency of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said the injury incidence rate in 1971-1972 was about 312 per 1,000 civilians, or 22.2 per cent higher than was found in the last two-year study, made between July 1959 and June 1961. But the report cautioned that changes in the data collection methods may account for a substantial part of the difference.

The study shows that 8.8 million persons were injured at work and 24 million in and around the home.

About two of every five persons whose injury restricted their activity had to take to bed. Nearly 2.6 million were hospitalized.

The center found that many of the types of injuries were most frequent among persons in certain age groups.

Moving motor vehicle injuries peaked among 17 through 24-year-olds, for example, while children under the age of 6 were most likely to have serious fall injuries, followed by persons under 17 and over 65.

Children aged 6 through 16 had the highest rates for injury by cutting or piercing, bumping or being hit by a moving object.

The injury rate for males of all ages was 370.5 per 1,000, almost 44 per cent higher than the rate for females. The report said males were more likely to bump into another person or object, or be struck by a moving object.

Fine Bay View From Monument

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The Portuguese navigator Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo sailed into San Diego Bay and landed at Point Loma, a peninsula jutting out into the Pacific, on Sept. 28, 1542.

It is said Cabrillo named the bay San Miguel Bay.

Today, visitors may stop to see the Cabrillo Monument at Point Loma. From the monument, which is about 300 feet above sea level, one can see the entire metropolitan San Diego area, the Laguna Mountains to the east, and part of the Mexican border.

Pet Cat Is Seeing Eye

RHUBARB is a cat with a mission, serving as a seeing-eye cat for Elsie Schneider, 69. (UPI Photo)

By JAMES J. DOYLE
SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Rhubarb is a cat with a mission. Unlike other pampered tabbies, Rhubarb rises daily to her duty as a seeing-eye cat for Mrs. Elsie Schneider.

Rhubarb, a part Siamese who is nearing 11 years old and has had to reduce a bit, came into Mrs. Schneider's life at the age of about 1 month.

"I started training her early," Mrs. Schneider said. "She's absolutely marvelous."

Mrs. Schneider, who is 69, lost her sight 22 years ago. But she has continued to do her own shopping, housekeeping and gardening.

Rhubarb performs the same function as seeing-eye dogs, and then some.

"I started her out on a 10-foot rope," Mrs. Schneider said. "She would take me to the trash cans and out to the clothes lines and then around in the yard. Anywhere I wanted to go she would take me."

"But, of course, we can't go out on the sidewalk now. Too many large dogs around. We have to stay pretty close."

But the dogs are a recent intrusion into their world. Rhubarb used to guide Mrs. Schneider to the market nearby.

"I started in when she was about 3 or 4 months old, first with the rope and, of course, she kind of rebelled a little. Cats aren't use to things like that. Then we used a leash. But finally she got so she knew what I meant and I taught her to heel, just like a dog."

"We would start off of the porch and I would say, 'Wait till Momma gets down these steps,' and she would hop down one step and wait, and then another until I would tell her 'Off we go.'"

"And I better be ready to travel because those four little feet are going to travel. She really goes."

Rhubarb kept tension on the leash, stopping for curbs and

"Of, yes, she understands. She takes commands like a dog. She took to training beautifully."

"I go up and down the block and then back to the gate and I say, 'Wait till I get to the gate,' and she gives me a 'yeow!' when we get to the gate."

"I tell her 'Momma will open the gate in just a minute' and she waits. Then when we get to the steps, she yeowls again and then at the door, she waits until I open it and then she guides me in."

Rhubarb's duties do not end with guiding, however. She's also a household telephone monitor and watch-cat.

"If I happen to be busy and the phone rings," Mrs. Schneider said, "and I don't pay any attention to it — and sometimes I don't — she'll yeowl at me and run in front of me. I have a little bell on her and I always know where she is."

"Then if I talk too long on the phone, she puts both little paws on my leg and gives another yeowl."

"At night, when I'm asleep and she hears a sound she doesn't recognize, she puts her nose against my cheek and wakes me up and I go and see and then tell her, 'It's okay. Don't worry about it.'"

Rhubarb has become a celebrity at the local cat shows.

"She is a drawing card at the local cat show," said her mistress. "The vets here are just amazed. We've checked everywhere, even foreign countries, and we can't find any cats to compare with her. She's amazing, almost unbelievable."

A Treat Tonight For 'Doubters'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Linger- ing Doubts buffs have a treat tonight on CBS: A show that raises the old question of why the Italian luxury liner Andrea Doria sank about 11 hours after a collision at sea in 1956.

The answer seems obvious: She suffered a mortal wound in her collision with the Swedish liner Stockholm off the coast of Nantucket, Mass., in an area of heavy ship traffic sailors refer to as "Times Square."

But tonight's show, called "The Mystery of the Andrea Doria" and made by an independent production company, asks whether there was a chance she could have remained afloat, even with the damage she sustained.

The program was made by Peter Gimbel, a diver, photographer and writer who has made a number of dives to the ship's final resting place, and by German-born actress Elga

Anderson.

In the show, Gimbel says his interest in the Andrea Doria case was prodded anew by Miss Anderson, whose curiosity was fueled by a congressional report that concluded, in part: "The fact remains that a fine, relatively new ship ... did sink after damage apparently less than she should have been able to withstand."

Suspecting another factor caused the ship to sink — namely, what he calls a "reportedly missing door" separating watertight compartments in the area of damage — the two and a crew of divers and cameramen set out last summer to see what gives.

They came back with a visually fascinating look at not only the Andrea Doria but also the hazards Gimbel and six men faced in plunging 235 feet below the surface of the Atlantic to check out the missing-door theory.

That it was a risky venture is amply shown in one scene in which Gimbel, while slowing ascending after a dive, suffers violent convulsions from an "oxygen hit," caused by breathing high concentrations of oxygen under pressure for too long.

Unfortunately, despite their courage and the good graphics used to show both the damaged area of the Andrea Doria and the routes the divers took attempting to solve the "mystery" of her sinking, the effort comes to naught.

Despite the fine film footage and the interesting theory he raised, the end result is an ambitious project sunk by an ambiguous script.

NBC-TV Optimistic On Outlook

EDITOR'S NOTE — Obviously, NBC executives are disappointed by their network's poor ratings this season, but they feel audiences also have disliked a good deal of what they've seen on ABC and CBS.

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — With much fanfare, the National Broadcasting Co. unveiled a new corporate symbol on Jan. 1. Since then, what it has come to symbolize as much as anything else is the pain and frustration the television network has been experiencing this season.

With NBC about to celebrate its 50th anniversary in broadcasting, the television branch is on the verge of finishing last in the three-way prime time ratings race for the first time ever.

Ironically, on April 21 last year, NBC was the first of the three networks to announce its evening program lineup for 1975-76, the idea being to establish an image of leadership in the industry.

But now, CBS appears to be finishing first for the 20th year in a row while ABC, with three of its midseason replacement series scoring in the top 10 every week, probably will edge out NBC for the runner-up position.

"If it does indeed happen, we would be upset," offers John J. McMahon, NBC vice president of program operations.

"Why? Because we're in a very competitive business, and it (the ratings standings) affects everything from business to morale."

Indeed it does. The cost to the network trailing in the ratings can run into tens of millions of dollars. Expenditures go up as the deadweight programs are canceled and replaced, while income declines because commercial time is less valuable to the advertisers.

Jobs aren't exempt, either. There are rumors that changes are imminent in the NBC programming department because of how poorly the schedule worked out this season. Six of the eight weekly series that debuted on NBC last September were axed by midseason, and none of their replacements has done particularly well, either.

"Last fall we thought our schedule was strong going in. But we had some scheduling problems — how we placed some of our shows. And we did have a tendency to make a lot of quick changes which may have confused the audience."

Four of the network's new series, including the highly touted comedy "Fay," were dropped in the first five weeks of the season.

Then, come January, he said, "We moved some shows around that maybe would have been better off where they were." One example was the new show "Joe Forrester," which was doing quite well on Tuesday nights but suffered when switched to Mondays.

Quality also was a factor in at least some cases, McMahon admitted. He specifically cited "Fay," "The Montefuscos," "Grady" and "The Cop and the Kid" as instances where "we did not put our best foot forward."

McMahon hastened to point out that the ratings have been close all season, and NBC has come up with some fine dramatic specials.

So McMahon is optimistic that NBC will make a strong comeback in the fall — particularly because he thinks people have disliked a good deal of what they've seen on television this season, on CBS and ABC as well as NBC.

"It's been a very interesting season," he said. "There was a lot of program switching early on, and I'm not sure it's stopped. I'm not sure people have settled down. They're looking for some new things."

That would account for the impressive audience that ABC's coverage of the Winter Olympics attracted, he suggested.

And it's true that even ABC was surprised at how well the Olympics did in the ratings.

McMahon said NBC has gotten the message. Police shows are being de-emphasized in the network's development projects for the new season because there are too many on the air right now, he said.

McMahon said most of the network's attention is being focused on other candidate shows, including 16 half-hour comedies, five westerns, four contemporary human dramas about family relationships, an ocean adventure, a suspense anthology and a World War II drama.

In addition, NBC definitely plans a variety show starring Dick Van Dyke and a weekly series, beginning either in September or January, based on well-known novels, with each book being presented in installments over three to six weeks.

McMahon concludes, "If audiences are looking for some choices, we're going to have them next season."

This deal has an unusual aspect. When it was played in a recent team game, two different defenders used the same play to defeat two different contracts—an uppercut to promote a trump trick for the defenders.

Where the auction went as shown, West led a low spade. East won the queen and ace of spades and then shifted to his singleton club. West captured the king with the ace and saw that he could defeat the contract if his partner held a heart honor. To make sure that East would ruff, West returned a low club. Coverage Is Readjusted

Improvements have been made in the All-Risk Federal Crop Insurance program for flue-cured tobacco in North Carolina.

Pitt office representative Betty Lou Jones says the program has been readjusted to provide 15 per cent more protection on tobacco growers' 1976 crop investments than in the past. The increased protection will be provided with no increase in the premium rate per $100 of insurance.

"This represents our determination to provide the very best service possible for our Pitt county growers to offset increased cost of producing a crop of tobacco," Miss Jones said. She explained that increased protection will also be automatically extended to all present policyholders in Pitt County.

Specific details on the new flue-cured tobacco investment protection program are available from the Pitt County office representative whose office is located at 215 Evans St., Room 103 of the Federal Building, Greenville.

Three Vehicles In Collision

An estimated $175 property damage resulted from a three-vehicle collision which occurred at 4:13 p.m. at the intersection of 14th and Evans Streets yesterday, according to Greenville Police.

Investigators identified drivers of the cars involved as Elijah Haddock of Route 1, Snow Hill; Sandra Thorp Maness of Oakwood Trailer Park; and Pamela Kay Forbes of 102 North Summit St.

Police, who charged Miss Forbes with following too close, estimated damage at $75 to the Haddock vehicle, $400 to the Maness car and $100 to the Forbes vehicle.

'Head And Master' Law Will See Tests

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — There's one thing about Louisiana that fires the eye of the mildest of women and sends feminists clawing straight up the wall. It is the law making it mandatory that a woman's husband, no matter how big a doll he may be, is "head and master" of the family. No other state has a law quite like that. Whether this one should be changed is under study and the issue may be put to the legislature when it meets in May. Male supremacy, often referred to by the Spanish term "machismo," was embedded in the state's legal code back in the late 1700s when Spain held Louisiana. Actually, other than a limiting "Southern belle" image, women never seemed particularly downtrodden in Louisiana — but in financial matters the state's law does have some unique quirks. One is that a working wife finds her income under the legal control of her husband. Her money is thus subject to seizure to cover his debts, including those made before they married. Barbara Bullock of New Orleans, as a new bride, awoke to find a slice of her bank account gone with the Internal Revenue Service to cover her new lord and master's old tax debt. But the law does not cut both ways. Had the bride owed the debt, the IRS would have been out of luck; it couldn't have gotten into the new husband's assets. Before a recent change in state law, a woman's creditor could not attach her wages if she married because her income then came under her husband's control. Now that can be done — but the husband's money can't be touched. Presumably, the over-all picture was changed in Louisiana when the federal Equal Credit Opportunity Act took effect last October. The problem is, how? No one seems exactly sure what the situation is now because the act specifies it does not supersede state laws. The act was passed to help women by forbidding discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status. Insofar as the act's full impact on Louisiana is concerned, lawyers expect it will take a series of court tests, fixing legal precedent, before all comes clear. For instance, the federal act specifically backed off from conflict with Louisiana law regarding a husband's control of his wife's income — and the complications that poses for those she may approach for a loan or to establish credit. The act disclaimed any intention of requiring "any creditor or card issuer to extend credit to any person when such person is not deemed credit-worthy." Defenders of "machismo" law argue that, basically, many of the statutes protect women. "We have provided a way that the woman would have the opportunity to share in her husband's good fortune if she let him manage, but didn't have a share in his misfortune," said Robert A. Pascal, a law professor at Louisiana State University. Pascal is a member of a Louisiana Law Institute committee which is trying to shape up a proposed revision of state community property law to present to the legislature. But he would make minor revisions to give the wife more control over her own income or property, leaving the man the head and master. Others on the committee want to scrap the head and master concept and replace it with a partnership arrangement.

SKINLESS FRANKS In 51st Year

CHICAGO (UPI) — The skinless frankfurter celebrated its 50th birthday last year when Americans ate more than 21 million franks, according to Union Carbide Corp. The firm's films-packaging division is the successor of a firm headed by Erwin O. Freund, who developed the cellulose skin, later removed, that shapes the skinless frank.

Aerosol Output Is Still Rising

NAUGATUCK, Conn. (UPI) — A Private survey shows that aerosol production is still on the rise despite widespread fear over aerosol damage to the ozone layer surrounding the earth. The Risdon Manufacturing Co. says that in 1974 total aerosol production in five major world areas totaled two billion units during 1974, a rise of 14 per cent over the year before.
