

Shopping Center OK'd

By TOM BAINES

Both the final and preliminary plats of Greenville Square Shopping Center across from Pitt Plaza gained the approval of the Planning and Zoning Commission last evening.

The unusual action by the board was taken after officials of The Mitchell Co., developers of the 23-acre tract, explained that an option on the property expires on April 1.

Company spokesman Jay Beal said that construction of the shopping complex, which will eventually contain 20 to 25 individual businesses, is expected to begin prior to June 1.

Mrs. Ruth Trevathan, who termed the parking arrangement at Pitt Plaza a "disaster area" since motorists are not prohibited from cutting across the lot rather than following prescribed routes, said that she considered the situation very dangerous in terms of shopper safety.

Beal said that the developers would be happy to install a raised curb line or divider every four or five rows of parking to keep motorists from cutting across the parking area. He added that trees could be planted on the dividers and some could be used for walkways.

The plats already called for some landscaping measures and the addition of the dividers would provide more areas for trees and shrubs. The preliminary plat was approved with the stipulation that six planters be included in the development.

Final plat approval was also given as the maps and other documents reflected no changes from the preliminary paperwork.

Beal explained that The Mitchell Co. is owned by Singer Housing Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Singer Sewing Machines. The firm has developed some 60 to 70 shopping centers in the Southeast, he said, with

Junta Rules In Argentina

By WILLIAM R. LONG
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Military rule in Argentina has begun with the usual flood of restrictive decrees but no indication of what the three-man junta plans to do about the nearly bankrupt economy.

After sending President Isabel Peron off to house arrest in southern Argentina early Wednesday, the commanders of the army, navy and air force issued decrees suspending political parties and labor unions, setting up "special war councils" to judge subversion cases and imposing censorship on the Argentine press.

No armed resistance to the new government was reported, and censorship muted criticism.

The junta, headed by the 50-year-old army commander, Gen. Jorge Videla, said it was banning political activity "while the process is carried out for the recuperation of the state in all its levels and functions."

But it said it would return Argentina eventually to "republican democracy" and would align the country with "the Western and Christian world."

In banning the activities of the labor unions that were the backbone of the Peronist movement, the junta said they "have been affected by the process of disorder, corruption and subversion that has characterized national activities in recent years." However, it promised to respect the "social conquests" of workers.

GEN. JORGE VIDELA

Newspapers were required to submit page proofs in triplicate to the censors for approval before publication. "Corrections made must be strictly respected," said an official set of rules distributed to editors. Another communique prohibited publication of statements by guerrilla organizations and material insulting to the armed forces.

The censors permitted the press to carry news of a raid on the headquarters of the powerful metalworkers' union, where security forces said they found firearms, ammunition and a stock of automobile license plates.

But the censors edited an NBC television film to eliminate scenes of troops firing on a Communist party office and roughing up a man leaving the building. The censors said it was an isolated incident and showing it would distort the reality of the generally peaceful coup.

Schools, theaters and public offices were closed, but stores and restaurants were open. There was no curfew. The junta said the country was calm and completely under its control, with military officers taking over the municipal and provincial governments.

Although Mrs. Peron as well as some of her closest advisers have been accused of corruption, it seemed unlikely that the military would run the risk of making a martyr of her by bringing her to trial. Reliable sources in Madrid said the Spanish government had been informed unofficially that she might be sent this weekend to Spain, where she married the late Juan D. Peron and where they lived for most of his 18 years in exile.

Marine Corps Board Is Eyeing Plans For New Combat Readiness Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rejecting a proposal that the Marine Corps emphasize its traditional amphibious warfare role, a Marine board wants to boost the Corps' firepower and prepare it for combat anywhere.

The board unveiled proposals Wednesday that would shift the Marine Corps' emphasis from Vietnam-style "low-intensity" conflict in the Asian-Pacific area to readiness for battle with Soviet or other forces heavily equipped with tanks and airpower.

The Marines would become a strategic reserve whose units could be used with the Army and other U.S. forces on any front in the world, including Europe or the Middle East. "We're moving with the times and the threat," Maj. Gen. Fred Haynes said.

The Brookings Institution recently suggested that the Marines expand their mission, but concentrate on amphibious warfare and cut back on their size, including their separate air arm.

Haynes, who headed the Marines' nine-month study, agreed that "by 1988 or 1989 we will not be jumping off landing barges" anymore.

However, he said the Marine Corps will start using revolutionary equipment, such as air cushioned vehicles, to land across beaches.

Haynes briefed reporters on the general contents of the study, but its details were kept secret. The recommendations will be considered by Gen. Louis Wilson, Marine Corps commandant.

Haynes said the study envisions keeping the Corps at its present level of 196,000 men and women over the next 10 years.

The board proposed three alternative plans for restructuring the Corps, all of which contemplate increased firepower against tanks and attacking aircraft.

The alternative that would bring about the most fundamental change calls for strengthening two of the three Marine divisions and related air wings and providing each with a special mobile assault regiment designed to fight tank-equipped enemy forces such as the Russian army in Europe. These regiments would be equipped with tanks, self-propelled artillery and infantry riding in armored personnel carriers.

Haynes said planners recommended measures that would enable the Corps to fight on the northern and southern flanks of the long NATO front in Europe, to reinforce the U.S. Army and NATO troops holding the central front in Germany, and to fight in the Mideast or in Asia, if necessary.

Ford Asks Emergency Flu Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearing an epidemic of flu deaths next winter, President Ford is asking Congress for $135 million to finance production of enough vaccine to protect 200 million Americans against a new outbreak of swine flue virus.

The President said he wants the supplemental appropriation passed before the lawmakers' April recess so that by the end of November nearly every American citizen can be protected from the virus, which took 20 million lives around the world in a 1918 epidemic.

Ford is to make his request to Congress today.

The vaccine will be available in September, October and November in schools, hospitals, doctors' offices and public health facilities in the largest mass immunization drive in U.S. history, Ford said.

The government will pay for production of the vaccine by private drug companies, but patients will have to pay for the flu shots themselves unless they are covered by government or private insurance.

not afford to take a chance with the health of our nation." Federal health experts said $135 million would produce about 200 million doses of swine virus vaccine, which would, in most cases, produce reactions no more serious than a sore arm.

About one out of every 100,000 persons is allergic to eggs and will not be able to take the vaccine, which is grown in fertilized chicken eggs. Health officials said those persons will be at a reduced risk of infection, however, if the rest of the population is immunized.

The virus, dormant nearly half a century, killed an estimated 548,000 Americans in 1918, more than died in World War I combat.

Early last month, a swine-like strain reappeared at Fort Dix, N.J., killing one trainee and infecting several hundred other personnel.

Ford announced his decision to go ahead with the immunization campaign after a meeting Wednesday with 35 leading scientists, public health officials, drug executives, physicians and politicians.

"I've been advised that there is a very real possibility that unless we take effective counteraction there could be an epidemic of this dangerous disease next fall and winter here in the United States," the President told reporters.

"No one knows exactly how serious this threat could be," he said. "Nevertheless, we can-virtually every American under the age of 50 is susceptible to swine virus infection when the new flu season begins this fall, the White House said. About 80 per cent of Americans over 50 have swine virus antibodies, indicating they had been exposed previously and developed natural immunity. But experts said those persons cannot be assured of protection without the vaccine if the disease reappears.

Palace Fled By Franjieh

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Suleiman Franjieh fled under Moslem bombardment from the badly damaged presidential palace early today.

A pro-Franjieh radio station called the move a "temporary transfer of the seat of the presidency," however, indicating Franjieh still considered himself president.

The 65-year-old Christian president, who defied two weeks of threats by Moslem military leaders to bomb him out, left the palace four miles east of Beirut with his wife in a bulletproof limousine, the sources said.

"There is no one here but soldiers," the palace switchboard operator said. "There is no one in the offices of the president. He left this morning."

Franjieh was driven toward Jounieh, the major Christian stronghold on the coast 12 miles north of Beirut. Its harbor is guarded by two pro-Christian army garrisons and a naval base. It is the chief port of entry for arms for the right-wing Christian militias battling the leftist Moslems in the 11-month-old civil war.

Meanwhile, the Moslems and Christians hammered at each other with mortar and artillery fire and fought close-contact battles. Police said at least 126 persons were killed and about 200 wounded in Beirut and the summer resorts in the hills east of the city.

This incomplete toll raised to 814 the total reported killed since the last cease-fire ended March 11, when the Moslem commander of the Beirut garrison proclaimed himself provisional military governor of Lebanon and demanded Franjieh's resignation.

Fires spread from shop to shop in the city's shuttered, deserted commercial center as the street battles raged without letup there and in the hotel district. Syrian fire engines sent from Damascus were unable to reach the city because of fighting along the roads.

Syrian officers still were trying to restore the cease-fire, but the country's leading Moslem leftist, Kamal Junblatt, rejected their efforts.

AIR SIRENS

The Greenville Woman's Club reports that it has undertaken a program similar in some ways to the Whistlestop program discussed in Tuesday's column, for equipping local citizens with an effective means of calling for help in an emergency. Through the Greenville Police Department the club is ordering "Mini-Gard" air sirens which are small enough to fit in a purse or pocket, yet loud enough to be heard at considerable distance. The devices cost $3.25 and may be ordered from Mrs. Robert Murphy, 756-2932; Mrs. Robert Knapp, 756-3908; Mrs. L.D. Austin, 756-0119; or Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, 756-4867.

Bowles Drops Out Of Race For Governor

GREENSBORO (AP) — Harrogate "Skipper" Bowles, the 1972 Democratic gubernatorial nominee, announced Wednesday that he will not seek the 1976 nomination because of a health problem.

Bowles, a wealthy Greensboro businessman, said his doctors had advised him that he would be asking for trouble if he undertook a campaign.

Bowles said his problem, high blood pressure, was detected recently. It will not, he said, prevent him from staying active in business and other pursuits.

Bowles said that he had both the financial and organizational support needed to wage a successful campaign.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, Charlotte businessman Howard O'Herron and state Sen. Thomas Strickland of Goldsboro.

Hunt, Strickland and O'Herron reacted to Bowles' withdrawal by issuing sympathetic statements.

His assessment differed from that expressed by many neutral Democrats at the recent Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Raleigh. The consensus there was that Bowles' strength lay in the fact that his name was already well known from the 1972 campaign.

Most of his important campaign workers and contributors, however, appear to have joined the forces of one of the other three Democratic candidates —

Highway 264 Ass'n Looks Into Data Provided In Route Study

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville attorney Tom Taft, president of the Highway 264 Association said today that a firm of consulting engineers hired to do a study to determine the best location for a limited access highway corridor from West of Wilson into the East, may have been given prejudicial information on which to base its study.

Taft said the Highway 264 group has asked to meet with officials of the Department of Transportation and Kimley

Horne Associates of Raleigh, the consultants, in an effort to determine what information they have been given and what provisions have been made for public input into the study.

Kimley Horne Associates was hired to do the study earlier this year, Taft said, at a cost of $80,000.

Taft said he has been told that old traffic count information has been given the consultants and that Greenville is not to be included in the study.

"We want to sit down and talk to them about the study . . . hopefully the second week in April," Taft said. "We want to make sure the study will be fair in every way." "We want to know what instructions have been given to them."

Proponents of a limited access highway to the West from the Rocky Mount area want the proposed road to follow the route of U.S. 64, which runs through Rocky Mount, Tarboro and Bethel. The Highway 264

Association would like for the corridor to generally follow the path of U.S. 264.

According to Taft, making U.S. 264 a limited access four-lane road from West of Wilson to Greenville would cost an estimated $40 million to $50 million.

Taft said the corridor project is not included in the State's seven year road plan at the present time.

"We feel that this road is of the highest priority," he emphasized, noting that "the East has been left out . . ."

Alexander-Carraway Vows Exchanged Sunday

KINSTON — The marriage of Miss Lynn Darlene Carraway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Murphy Carraway of Grifton, and David Lee Alexander Jr., son of the Rev. and Mrs. David Lee Alexander Sr. of Kinston, took place Sunday evening at eight o'clock at the Gordon Street Christian Church. The Rev. Alexander officiated at the double-ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Rex Cooper, organist. The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a white formal gown of bridal mist and pink beribboned Venise lace, fashioned with a V-neckline and empire bodice overlaid with lace motifs. Lace arrangements were repeated on the cuffs of the long bishop sleeves and around the hemline of the A-line skirt and the built-in chapel-length train. Her Juliette cap of matching lace was attached to a lace bordered mantilla of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses interspersed with fern and baby's breath, sprinkled with pink sweetheart roses and showered with bridal ribbons.

Miss Lin Langley of Greenville served as maid of honor. She wore a formal pink chiffon gown and carried a bouquet of pink and white flowers. Miss Mollie Price of Halifax, gowned in formal pink chiffon, presided at the register.

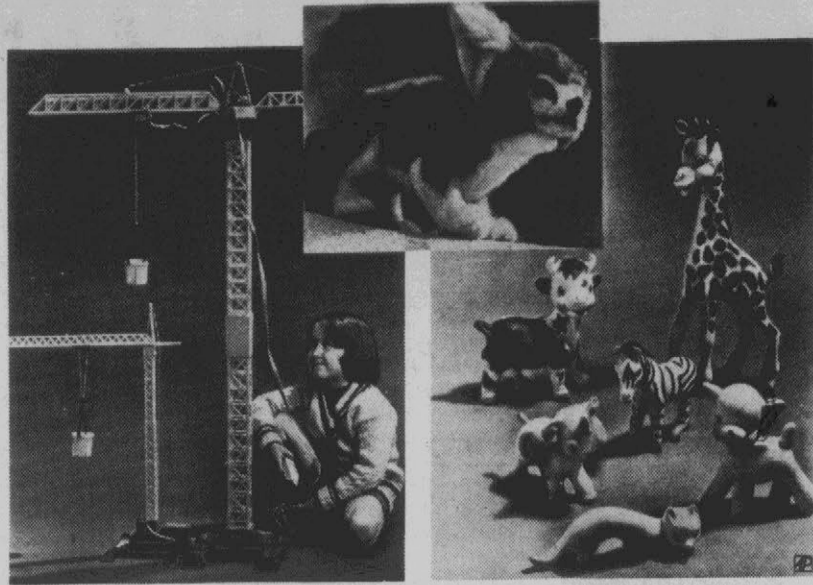

Doug Alexander, brother of the bridegroom, of Kinston, served as best man. Ushers were Tony Carraway, brother of the bride, of Grifton, Karl Shearin of Greenville, Raymond Amyette, and Charlie King, both of Grifton. Steve Carraway, brother of the bride, was train bearer.

The bride is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and is now with Eastern Enterprises, Kinston. The bridegroom, a graduate of the Kinston High School, is now with Dupont.

After a wedding trip to Shenandoah Valley and mountains of Virginia, the couple will reside at Rt. 2, Grifton. Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Billy Boone of Kinston.

Mrs. Remond Grady, aunt of the bride, poured punch. Cake was served by Mrs. Otis Swords Jr., aunt of the bridegroom, of Charlotte. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Price of Richmond, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Boone, Mr. and Mrs. George Loftin, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Fordham and Mrs. Graham Hodges honored the bridal couple and their families with a wedding luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boone Sunday.

FOREIGN FLAVOR—A multiple-function crane, left, plush animal, inset, and a variety of soft squeeze toys are among the French toys that are being introduced in the United States.

French Accent Toys Debut

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
French toys are making their debut in the United States, where their "old world craftsmanship and unique function" are expected to turn on Charlie and Carol just as they have intrigued Mimi and Pierre.

At the moment there are no dolls that cry "mama" in French. But someday, who knows, dolls may cry "mama" with French accents, said Marty Forman, general manager of the five French toy companies that have introduced their lines in this country in a joint venture. There are educational, high fashion, mechanical and squeeze toys and the line includes Christmas ornaments. "The plush animals are mostly made by hand, the squeeze toys are made of pure rubber, and some of the toys — the crane and the bus — are so different we can't keep toy buyers from playing with them," Forman said.

The lifelike quality of the plush animals is especially emphasized by such toys as the American buffalo and family, which have long silky hair and real leather horns. Such toys are different from stuffed toys, Forman explained, because they are filled with "pure virgin kapok." Stuffed animals which are mass merchandised are made with filler materials. Plush animals, of course, are plush-priced. A 16-inch toy might sell for $40, whereas a stuffed animal of that size might be about half that price.

Squeeze toys for infants include the well known nursery characters, Donald, Mickey, Pinocchio, Bambi, and Pluto, as well as pigs, elephants, mules and giraffes. Although these don't have French-sounding squeaks and they resemble their American counterparts, "they are safe, natural rubber rather than imported plastic and other materials," Forman emphasizes. Colors are chewable, nontoxic, and safety whistles do not come out, he maintains.

Although the toys are sold over the world, some lines have been designed to please children in certain countries, Forman explained. With the prospect of a downward trend in European economy upon them, the group of French toy makers decided to band together and seek other areas of distribution, he said, in explaining the new merchandising effort.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Ever since I read a newspaper article about myself stating I was the mother of four, I've gone crazy trying to find the other kid. Newspapers don't lie. If they said I have four children, then it stands to reason I've misplaced one.

You know something? I think I just found the missing Bombeck. His name is I. Dunno. Everyone sees him but me. All I know is he's rotten.

Who left the front door open? I. Dunno.

Who let the soap melt down the drain? I. Dunno.

Who ate the banana I was saving for the cake? I. Dunno.

Frankly, I. Dunno is driving me nuts. He's lost two umbrellas, four pairs of boots and a bicycle. He has 13 books overdue from the library, hasn't brought home a paper from school in three years, and once left a thermos of milk in the car for three weeks.

The other day the phone rang. I ran from the mail box, cut my leg, tore off a fingernail in the door, and got to the phone in time to see my son hanging up. "Who was it?" I asked breathlessly.

"I. Dunno. He hung up."

"The little jerk could have let it ring a few more times," I grumbled.

When I told my neighbor about it, she said "Cheer up. I've had an invisible child for years."

"What's his name?" I asked miserably.

"Nobody."

"Is he rotten?" I asked.

"He makes Dennis the Menace look like a statue. He cracked the top of an heirloom candy dish, tears up the paper before anyone gets to read it, and once when I was driving the car pool he nearly knocked me senseless with a ball bat."

"Hah," I said bitterly. "You should have seen I. Dunno. He left 13 lights burning the other night when he went out. I don't know how much longer I can stand it."

This morning at breakfast I said to my husband, "Who wants liver for dinner this evening?"

My husband looked up and said, "I. Don't care."

I. Dunno has a brother.

THINK BETTER

BOSTON (UPI) — A study on aging supports the long-held theory that wisdom comes with age.

Dr. Raymond Bosse, associate director of the study by the Veterans Administration Out-patient Clinic here, said older people think more slowly, but seem to make more accurate judgments, partly because they are cautious. The on-going study began in 1963 with 2,000 veterans between the ages of 30 and 75.

Hospital Should Advise Relatives

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son, David, was recently killed in a car accident. He was taken by ambulance to a hospital where he died five hours later.

A state trooper removed David's wallet at the scene of the accident, and we recovered it at the local state police post two days later.

David's wallet contained a UNIFORM DONOR CARD issued by the Kidney Foundation and signed by him. In our grief we had forgotten about our son's desire to donate his kidneys at death. How we wish that his wallet could have been examined at the scene of the accident so that his wishes could have been carried out!

It's too late for David, but my purpose in writing is to ask you to please remind all police and hospital personnel to examine the victim's wallet or purse for such documents. Had this been done, perhaps a life could have been saved through our David's death.

MRS. R.D. WATT, BLOOMINGTON, IND.

DEAR MRS. WATT: I am informed that in your state, the officer who arrives first at the scene of an accident must collect the victim's personal property and immediately turn it in to headquarters — WITHOUT even opening the wallet!

However, the hospital personnel should have advised you that if you knew that your son had signed a donor card, a form was available at the hospital for the next of kin to sign, granting permission for a transplant.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a man who refuses to bathe or brush his teeth?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: Nothing.

DEAR ABBY: My problem concerns my husband and our sex life. He won't have sex with me since I had our baby five months ago. He was with me when the baby was born, and he said watching the birth made him sick and he can't get it out of his mind. We have had sex only twice since and he acted like he was doing me a favor.

If I am aggressive toward him he just pushes me away. Whenever I bring up the subject, he tells me to shut up. We've been married for two years and always got along great. I am willing to try anything. I truly love him and I know he loves me. He's a good father and provider, but our sex life is zilch.

I don't want to get a divorce over this, but I sure feel cheated.

FRUSTRATED IN FLORIDA

DEAR FRUSTRATED: If your husband really loves you, he will want to get over this hang-up. Ask your doctor to talk with him. He needs some sessions with a professional to straighten him out. He's being unfair to you as well as to himself.

Military Authority Is Upheld

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Twice in one day, the Supreme Court rejected constitutional challenges to military authority, citing the special role of the armed forces in society.

The court ruled 5 to 3 Wednesday that an enlisted military man being tried for a minor offense by a summary court-martial does not have a constitutional right to a lawyer.

And in a 6 to 3 decision, the justices held that a commanding officer has power to prohibit political speeches and rallies on areas of a base which are open to the public.

Dissenting justices charged the court majority with giving "unblinking" and "almost total" deference to military laws and regulations.

Justice William H. Rehnquist, who spoke for the court in the right-to-counsel case, said there are many differences between a summary court-martial and a misdemeanor trial in which a civilian is entitled to legal representation before he can be sent to jail.

The most important of the differences, said Rehnquist, is that the court-martial "occurs within the military community."

Citing "military necessity," Rehnquist said that for servicemen the question of a right to counsel "depends upon an analysis of the interests of the individual and the regime to which he is subject."

In the political campaigning case, Justice Potter Stewart declared for the court that "the business of a military installation" is "to train soldiers, not to provide a public forum."

The court also ruled Wednesday that victims of job discrimination may, when they are finally hired, be awarded seniority by court order as of the date they were originally turned down.

By a vote of 5 to 3, the justices said courts should not refuse such seniority solely because it would give the discrimination victim an economic advantage over employees who are already on the payroll.

In a 6 to 2 decision the court ruled that hospital pharmacies may not sell drugs at cut rates to former patients or to doctors purchasing them for home or office use.

The military cases followed a consistent trend of the court to rule that the armed forces need not observe the constitutional rights of individuals as rigorously as civilian authorities must.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, who dissented from both of Wednesday's military rulings, said the court had "taken its second step in a single day toward establishing a doctrine under which any military regulation can evade searching constitutional scrutiny."

Marshall made the statement in his dissent from the court's decision upholding the exclusion of Dr. Benjamin Spock and other antiwar activists from Fort Dix, N.J., during the 1972 presidential campaign.

Denial of counsel in summary courts-martial was challenged by Marines who were convicted of minor disciplinary infractions at the El Toro Air Base in Santa Ana, Calif.

Pigs Probably Can Catch Humans' Flu

WASHINGTON (AP) — No one seems sure, but Agriculture Department scientists say that pigs can probably catch the flu from humans as well as pass it on to them if everyone concerned is not careful.

Swine — that means hogs and pigs — have recently come in for notoriety with the identification of a deadly "swine flu strain" of virus, and the government announced plans Wednesday to vaccinate Americans against the disease.

The swine flu strain was blamed for 20 million deaths worldwide in a 1918 epidemic, including 548,000 Americans. The rare kind of flu, which now has cropped up again, reportedly was first identified or associated among swine and thus named after the barnyard animals.

Dr. J. M. Hejl, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said that pigs catch colds and flu the same as humans and that those ailments probably can be passed back and forth between people and pigs.

"I don't know, but if I can believe what I read, I think they are saying that people can be affected by a flu virus from swine," Hejl told a reporter. "If it goes one way (from hogs to people), I would think it could go the other way (from people to hogs), too."

Reagan Offered Real Surprise

The real surprise of Tuesday's presidential primary election was challenger Ronald Reagan's sound defeat of President Gerald Ford in North Carolina.

Reagan carried Pitt County, which in itself was not so surprising. But he also carried the entire state, with Reagan getting 101,448 votes to Ford's 88,924. This was indeed unexpected with political observers forecasting another Ford primary win as late as Monday night.

It is difficult to say where the experts went wrong. There might have been considerable vote switching in the late stages of the campaign. More likely, many registered Republicans simply had not made up their minds until election day. Then these undecideds went for Reagan.

The North Carolina win was a big boost for Reagan, but with previous defeats behind him it may have come too late to give him the big push he needs to wrestle the GOP nomination from an in-cumbant president. Events of the next few weeks probably will determine that.

The Reagan win may be even more significant for North Carolina internal Republican politics, for Gov. Jim Holshouser was a strong supporter of the president and Ford's southeastern campaign manager.

Reagan, on the other hand, was supported by the state's Republican senator, Jesse Helms, and some observers are picturing the Reagan primary win as a personal victory for Helms.

The Reagan win definitely was not helpful to Holshouser's role as head and influential leader of the North Carolina Republican Party. On the other hand, it does increase Helms influence and prestige among his fellow Republicans.

The Reagan win was a big one for the candidate in his quest for the GOP nomination, but it also foretells that Sen. Helms will have much more to say about the direction the North Carolina Republican Party is going to take in the future.

Wallace Lost More Ground In Primary

In contrast to the Republican primary, the Democratic presidential primary went as predicted.

Georgian Jimmy Carter took an early lead over George Wallace and went on to win with 54 percent of the vote to Wallace's 35 percent. The remainder of the votes were divided between four other candidates and the "no preference" category.

No doubt Wallace's health was a matter of concern to the voters; but also the issues he favored simply are not of as much concern to Tar Heel voters as they were four years ago.

The North Carolina defeat probably ends any hope that Wallace has of being a serious candidate for the nomination at the Democratic convention. It may be the end of the line for him in national politics.

THIS AFTERNOON

Future Shock In Revenues

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — North Carolina did not tighten her belt quickly enough or tightly enough when it became obvious that state government revenues were due to plummet with the 1974-75 recession.

And now, political leaders are getting ready to let the belt out a notch or two—how much depends on a lot of variables. Experts predict future shock as a result.

The one thing almost certain from the upcoming May session of the General Assembly is a pay raise for state employees including teachers. The leadership in both houses of the assembly have as much as promised that, and facing the combined voting clout of some 135,000 on the state payroll will likely prompt would be office-holders to scurry for the money.

But to top financial experts in state government it is not all that simple.

A Hazy Look

Computers are now gnawing away at projections and proposals designed to paint a portrait of the 1976-77 fiscal year economy.

At this early stage, only some dim outlines can be seen:

1. Any hope for a surplus can be dropped; it will probably take the possible $70 million in unspent state money this fiscal year just to pay the bills;

2. Another shortfall of actual income below projections on which the 1976-77 budget is based is likely, to the tune of about $50 million.

3. The economy is recovering on a slow curve, and while things look brighter, there will be no extra dollars to spend.

4. Just a five per cent pay raise across the board to all state employees will cost $70 million in fiscal 1976-77, and employees are pressing for a cost of living raise between 15 and 20 per cent.

5. "Future Shock" is the catch phrase most commonly heard from the financial wizards in Raleigh these days. It means simply this: pay raises are a recurring item in the budget which means if the total payroll (and fringes) is pushed from $1.4 billion to $1.5 billion by this raise, then next year it has to start off at $1.5 billion, and with another raise, go up to $1.6 billion.

A raise of 10 per cent doubles that upward club, of course, and 15 per cent triples it.

Bottom Line

Thus, when the legislative money leaders convene in April to prepare for the May assembly session, they must quickly get to the bottom line: $70 million (or more) for raises, plus $50 million shortfall, plus just a few pet projects will equal $150 million.

For fiscal 1977-78, add another $100 million for continuing raises and a few new projects, plus another $100 million for new raises, and even if there is full economic recovery, the state will start off $200 million short.

For fiscal 1978-79, add $200 million to continue the pay raise cycle started in 1976, plus $100 million for new raises. . . . That's future shock!

As one of the most respected financial experts in government put it bluntly: "The Legislature must either come up with $150 million next year in new income (that means taxes), or cut spending. And you can't cut spending looking at line items on the budget like typewriters or desks or paperclips. . . . You've got to look at the payroll."

With between 135,000 and 140,000 employees, the payroll takes between 60 and 70 per cent of the state budget. Add on fringes, personnel support costs, etc., and it is clear why government is called "labor intensive."

And that is the base reason some have sought from the beginning to put a lid on state employment. Turnover runs between 10 and 15 per cent with many of the jobs remaining vacant for months.

In December, 1974, State Rep. Graham Bell, D-Gaston, proposed a freeze on hiring without proving need to a monitoring commission. The measure was defeated in the General Assembly.

The idea is not popular with the state agency lobby, but most observers agree that cutting the payroll is the only way to save substantial dollars.

INSIDE REPORT

Thorn In Jackson's Rose

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — Although Sen. Henry M. Jackson's flower-strewn course through admiring Jewish ghettos of New York City and its Long Island-Westchester suburbs last week forecasts a major Jackson win in the April 6 Democratic presidential primary, warning thorns were among the flowers.

For Jackson, self-professed heir to Franklin Roosevelt's famed grand Democratic coalition, the Empire State is crucial. Failure here would doom his nomination. Consequently, it is understandable that he plays to his strongest suit: his commitment to human rights and what he has long seen as its corollary — unquestioning support for the state of Israel, for Israel's rising demands on the U. S. and for Jews tragically trapped in Soviet Russia.

"It is almost a shidach," an admiring rabbi told Jackson from the head table lectern as 450 diners ($50 a plate) at Brooklyn's Aperia Manor roared their welcome for the Senator Thursday evening. Shidach is Yiddish for a merger into one, and that is what the evening was: a merger of political potency and sentimental intimacy between Jackson and the Jewish Democrats who will dominate the primary vote two weeks from Tuesday.

In similar fashion Jackson swept through other major Jewish areas: the Greenberg Community Center in Westchester County's Dobbs Ferry; Singers Hotel in Spring Valley; and late at night, the jam-packed Temple Beth-el out at Rockaway Beach on Long Island.

Perhaps carried away by the extraordinary force of his welcome in one encounter after another, Jackson tossed restraint to the winds and before his standing-room-only audience at the Greenberg Community Center referred to the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) this way:

"First it was genocide against the Jews and now (in Lebanon) it is genocide against the Catholics. . . . It is terroristic war against the Jew and the Christian alike."

Politically-minded Jewish and other Democratic leaders privately differed whether this definition of Jackson of the Lebanese civil war was acceptable political hyperbole. But they were unanimous that continuation of such inflammatory rhetoric could endanger Jackson's post-New York campaign.

"This is going to hurt Scoop in the West and the Midwest," a top non-Jewish party leader who is publicly committed to Jackson told us. A liberal Jewish politician who may wind up supporting Jackson for President was more pointed. "That's bad both for Scoop and for (Continued on page 5)

LIFT UP YOUR EYES

A woman who was constantly tormented by worry received some excellent advice from a perceptive friend: "Go and see a few things," said the friend. "See Niagara Falls, the Pyramids, the Alps. You will find that you will remember these things and that by comparison they will make most of your worries seem very small indeed."

The tonic of big things is often good for small minds as well. John Bunyan writes in one of his books: "When I was thus afflicted with a sense of my own damnation, there were two things which made me wonder. One was when I saw old people hunting after the things of this life, as if they should live here always; the other was when I found professing Christians much distressed and cast down when they met with outward losses. Lord, thought I, what ado is there about such little things as these!"

If life has lost its relish for us, it may be that what we need is contact with things that are truly big. Littleness may have wrought evil work in our hearts and minds.

ALL IT'LL TAKE IS A SLIGHT PUSH!

The Acid Keeps 'Biting'

The Watergate experience is proving to be like one of those awful acids they used to warn about in freshman chemistry. It keeps biting. Time scarcely dilutes it. Lately the acid has been eating at a thoroughly decent American, Howard H. "Bo" Callaway. It's a sad business all around.

There was a time when we gave at least lip service—and usually more than lip service—to an old concept. This was the concept that a person, charged with some offense, should be regarded as innocent until proved guilty. There was also a time, before Watergate, when we clung to what Henry Kissinger has called "a minimum level of confidence" in persons in public life.

The corrosive effects of Watergate have terribly damaged those civilized propositions. Three and a half years have passed since that tale of corruption began to unfold. The acid still eats at human relationships. We live in a miasma of doubt, breathing acrid fumes of suspicion. As in a dream, I hear myself saying to an old friend, "If you've left a smoking pistol, Bo, I've got to know it." It was a hell of a thing to say.

Callaway served as a member of the House from Georgia from 1955 to 1966, and then returned to public service in May, 1973, as secretary of the Army. He served in that capacity until July 4, 1975, when he resigned to become manager of President Ford's campaign. Now he's out.

Ten days ago the Denver Post broke a story that Colorado's Senator Floyd K. Haskell would hold hearings on certain alleged improprieties involving Callaway. Within hours Callaway voluntarily asked the President to put him on a temporary leave of absence. Ford expressed his "full faith" in Callaway, but promptly suspended him. That was on March 13. By the 16th, the word was all over Washington that Callaway would never return. On the night of the 18th, a local TV station reported flatly (and erroneously) that the White House had "announced" that Rogers Morton, former commerce secretary, would replace him as campaign manager.

On the morning of the 18th, when I interviewed Callaway, his eyes were red from tears or from sheer fatigue. He sat on a sofa in his lawyer's office, his face a study in misery. Bo is a West Point man, which is to say, a man of honor. He earnestly insists that he has done nothing criminal, improper, or wrong. He feels these charges like a wound.

The story, briefly, is that in 1970, when he was simply private citizen Callaway, he and his brother-in-law Ralph Walton began to develop a 600-acre tract of land near Gunnison, Colorado. They obtained a joint-use permit from the Forest Service to develop a ski area on Crested Butte mountain. The enterprise caught on. Including the investment of others, it's now an $11 million proposition.

In 1971, Callaway and Walton applied for a supplementary permit to develop ski runs on adjoining Snodgrass mountain. Their application languished while the Forest Service studied a comprehensive plan for the whole East River area. In January 1975, the service finally said yes and no: Snodgrass could be used for skiing, but not for five or ten years. Callaway by this time was secretary of the Army. Callaway and Walton did what any other businessmen would have done under identical circumstances. They protested, objected and asked for review.

UNC-Charlotte may as well celebrate now. Soon enough they'll realize what making the big time in basketball really means.

Before the Forty-Niners beat N. C. State in the NIT second round, Charlotteans were having trouble getting up $2,500 to send their pep band to Madison Square Garden, Cary High's band has outdone that level of hat-passing for years.

But now, UNC-C will doubtless start dreaming the mammoth dreams that beset the nights of major powers in athletics. Their alumni will start getting impassioned appeals to kick in for the Forty-Niners Club, at levels like $100 and up.

Somebody will launch a drive to build a big new sports palace. Charlotte businessmen who're into motels, restaurants, and construction will spearhead it — not out of self-interest, of course.

Another group will be raising money to make life sweeter for coaches. More recruiters will be needed, as well as more recruits, and that's the toughest-competition league of all. Somebody will try to cash in on the new glory by launching a complete line of '40-9er-emblazoned items from warm-up suits to golf balls to bumper stickers to toilet seats. There'll be so much green and white around Charlotte it will look like one big Green Survival interstate highway.

The UNC-C women will start complaining that their athletics teams aren't getting equal time, space or money. In the school's English department, plaintive voices will decry the over-emphasis on sports as deleterious to the proper function of education.

And underneath it all will run the constant theme, money, money, money.

The original Forty-Niners found striking it rich in the gold fields wasn't as simple as it looked, and those who got lucky got problems too. We hope the Queen City's campus of the university system will take it kindly, from communities with more experience at this sort of thing, if we warn them their big strike is likely to prove better than fool's gold but not quite the end of the rainbow.

Given Little Chance

By KENNETH J. FREED

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The white-supremacist government in Rhodesia cannot survive a guerrilla war with black nationalists even if Cuba does not intervene on the side of the revolutionaries, American intelligence specialists say.

At this point, the U.S. sources also say there appears no option to a bloody war in Rhodesia as long as Prime Minister Ian Smith keeps power, unless he suddenly reverses his position on white political supremacy.

These sources add that a major guerrilla effort is not expected until the next rainy season, which starts in November, when the climate favors hit-and-run tactics.

In any fighting, the white Rhodesian forces are not considered capable of defeating the guerrillas over the long run, unless they get outside help or unless the nationalists' unity and discipline break down.

At this stage, the U.S. analysts feel certain that the Ian Smith regime will not be aided by other countries, not even the white-supremacist government in neighboring South Africa.

On the other side, these analysts say the leftist guerrilla movement is growing with increasing support from African nations, the Soviet Union and China and will be in a position to seriously challenge the Salisbury regime by next fall.

The whites, led by Smith, total only about 270,000 and are outnumbered by Rhodesian blacks 20 to 1. The government army has only 3,000 regulars and an effective reserve force of 10,000.

To date, intelligence sources say, there are about 1,000 guerrillas in Rhodesia with 4,000 more trained fighters just across the border in Mozambique. More guerrilla troops are being recruited and trained and should be ready within the year, the American sources add.

In explaining the dismal outlook seen for Smith, U.S. specialists say that even South African Prime Minister Johannes Vorster has made it clear to Smith that he will not help him keep power.

Negotiations have broken down between Smith and nationalist leaders on a transfer of power to the black majority, and Smith has rejected British efforts to arrange a settlement. The "best hope" now for avoiding a bloody overthrow is "a palace revolt," according to the intelligence specialists.

40 Years Ago Today

March 25, 1936

The United States and Great Britain guaranteed a continuance of their parity in naval armaments today before these two nations and France signed the new London Naval Treaty, dropping restrictions on the size of the world's greatest navies.

The chief American delegate, Norman H. Davis, and the British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, exchanged letters, each declaring that the principle of parity contained in existing treaties with regard to their own two fleets would continue to hold good after the old treaties expire and the new ones go into effect.

Learn To Read The Fine Print

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Difficult and boring as it is sure to be, Americans have learned they must read the details of, for example, a product guarantee or an insurance policy.

It is there in the fine print that the truth might lie, most commonly in the form of limitations or exceptions to the over-all impression created by the general promise the salesman makes.

Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, seems to feel we should take a lesson from such experiences and apply the same scrutiny to some of the official government statistics we seem to live by.

While pleased with the report that the Consumer

Price Index barely rose in February, Burns cautions Americans not to become euphoric. Reading the fine print, he concludes: "I continue to be disturbed by the rate of inflation."

Burns didn't specify those he thought might become euphoric, but his statement followed by only a few days one by William E. Simon, Treasury secretary, who suggested a 2 per cent inflation rate might be achievable in this decade.

Burns suggested to the Senate Budget Committee that it break down the February price index and examine the ingredients that made up the tiny, one-tenth of 1 per cent increase in that month.

If you remove food and energy supplies, the prices of which moderated in the year's second month, you will find that the underlying direction of prices might even be worsening, he said.

In the second quarter of 1975, he said, the rate of price increase was 5.1 per cent; in the second quarter, 5.8; in the third, 7.1; and in the fourth quarter, 7.1 per cent. In January it was 11 per cent, in February, 6 per cent.

But why, you ask, should we remove food and energy prices, since they make up such an important part of the price index? If this were an insurance policy you wouldn't scratch out the important benefits, would you?

That is true. But Burns doesn't say the policy is no good or that certain paragraphs should be excised. He does, however, wish to remind Americans that there are some weak paragraphs therein.

A major factor in the February price rate was a decline in food prices, largely the result of last year's harvest. But harvests are unpredictable; no farmer expects continued good harvest.

And energy prices. It was a relatively mild winter in some parts of the nation. Fuel consumption was less than it might have been in large areas, and thus there was less than expected pressure on prices.

Gasoline prices also turned a bit weak in some areas, but industry authorities now expect demand to pick up, not only because of the summer driving season, but because the crisis atmosphere that limited usage has receded.

Kilpatrick....

July 3, 1975, the day before he was to become Ford's campaign manager, Callaway conferred in his Pentagon office with three Department of Agriculture and Forest Service officials. He insists he did not "summon" them; two of the three were old friends from Georgia. But he did press his request for reconsideration, and in time the Forest Service reversed its earlier position.

Was this a gross impropriety? It does not seem so to me. Hundreds of members of Congress look after their own private business and professional interests while serving honorably in the House and Senate. No conflict of interest can be perceived in Bo's situation. Other charges against Callaway, involving a permit to arrange charter air service to Gunnison from the southeastern states seem as dubious. But it will be months before Callaway can even hope for exoneration. Meanwhile he lives under a cloud that casts a shadow like a stain; and neither he, nor Ford, nor a cynical press can make the acid go away.

Evans-Novak....

Israel," he said, because it could help crystallize a political sentiment in this country to challenge pro-Israel sentiment.

Moreover, such rhetorical overkill by the politician who is far and away and most admired by American Jews of any politician today seems unnecessary and runs counter to a slight change in emphasis in Jackson's foreign policy talks. Cautioned that liberal Manhattan Jewish Democrats are not entirely happy with his attacks on detente (in contrast to far-left liberal Jewish voters in Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx), Jackson is heavily emphasizing his devotion to a detente that is "properly managed" and to an immediate, mutual reduction of nuclear and conventional arms.

Although his hold on the vital Jewish vote is secure here, Jackson is using his close ties to New York labor unions—including the building and construction trades unions—to build an election-day labor organization. He hopes to duplicate the phenomenal labor showing in Massachusetts March 2, when he beat the field—including both of his opponents here: former Gov. Jimmy Carter and Rep. Morris Udall.

But New York state labor unions never have performed noticeably well in Democratic primary elections. That may be why Jackson is playing his Jewish trump card so very hard. It should assure him a major victory here where the Jewish share of a normal Democratic primary vote tops 40 per cent because Jews take the trouble to go to the polls and vote.

But his trump card here could turn into a joker in the later primaries, starting with Pennsylvania on April 27, if he does not use it with less flourish soon. It could tag Jackson (who is already under grossly inaccurate attack by anti-Jackson Democrats as a "conservative") as a one-issue candidate on an issue—the Middle East—of rapidly changing perceptions.

Striking At Ford Plant

STERLING HEIGHTS, Mich. (AP) — About 6,100 United Auto Workers union members have struck the Ford Motor Co. plant here, the sole producer of axles and drive shafts for Ford cars.

A UAW spokesman said the union was well aware of a prolonged strike could mean layoffs at other Ford plants. A Ford official declined to estimate how long it might be before the strike could lead to shutdowns elsewhere.

The walkout, which began Wednesday, involves unresolved complaints from workers that the plant is hazardous because of unsafe forklift trucks, exposed wiring, dangerous steel-handling practices and oil leaks and fumes.

Negotiators have been discussing health and safety grievances at the plant for several months. At a recent UAW conference in Detroit, union officials said Ford and other auto makers were "foot-dragging" on housekeeping and safety issues during the sales slump of the past two years.

They explain they are not talking about a coup. Rather Smith would be told by business and political leaders that he must resign to be replaced by officials who would negotiate an end to white control.

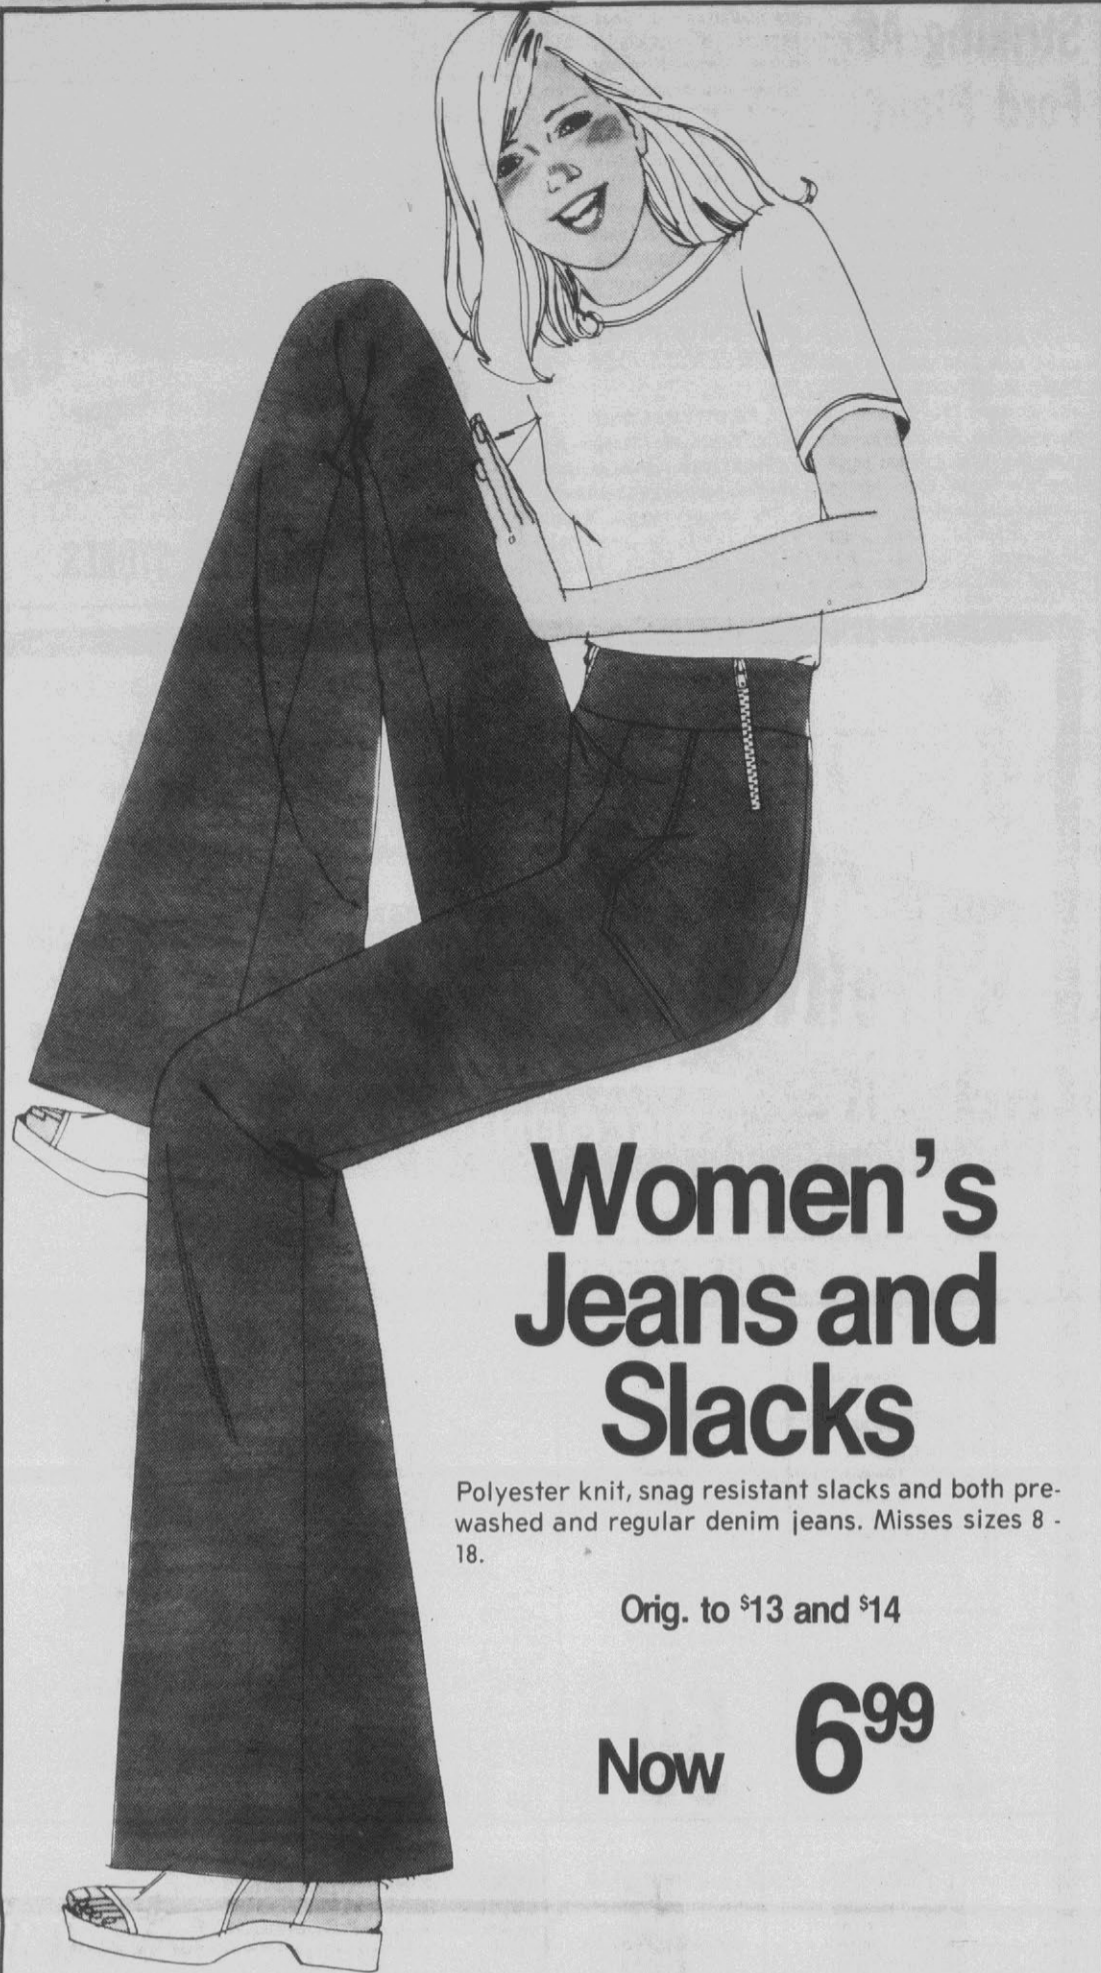

But even this option is given little chance of success. Most of the whites support Smith, and it would be difficult to pressure the stubborn prime minister to step down, the experts say.

Add Stipulation To Dam Plan

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The U. S. Appeals Court in Washington has ruled that the Appalachian Power Co. license to dam the New River in North Carolina and Virginia is valid. But certain stipulations have been imposed.

The court, handing down its ruling Wednesday, said the power company first must complete archeological research, excavation and salvage in the area to be flooded, which includes thousands of acres in North Carolina and Virginia.

North Carolina had challenged the license in a continuing battle to halt the hydroelectric project and have a portion of its part of the New River included in the national Wild and Scenic River System.

Secretary of the Interior Thomas Kleppe announced nearly two weeks ago his decision to add the river to the system, but he acknowledged that any court ruling would take precedence.

North Carolina Atty. Gen. Rufus Edmisten said he was "extremely disappointed" at the court decision. He said he had conferred with Gov. Jim Holshouser and expected to appeal the case to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Edmisten said, however, he would study the Appeals Court ruling before making a final decision.

In Washington, Rep. Stephen Neal, D-N. C., expressed his displeasure at the decision and said he has asked Rep. Roy Taylor, D-N. C., to begin hearings immediately on a bill to place a 26-mile stretch of the river under the wild and scenic designation.

Taylor is a member of the House Interior Committee and chairman of the Parks and Recreation subcommittee.

Neal said he also has asked Kleppe to take administrative action that would place the river in the system.

"Mr. Kleppe indicated almost two weeks ago that he would declare it a wild and scenic river but he did not go ahead and do it, so I have asked him to take the action immediately," Neal said.

Neal said he also asked Kleppe to petition the Federal Power Commission to have the project delayed. Neal said this would allow time for a decision on whether administrative action by Kleppe would stop construction of the project.

Meanwhile, in Roanoke, Va., Appalachian Power Co. officials expressed delight at the court decision.

"Apco is delighted with the decision and hopes to go forward with the work under the license as expeditiously as possible," said John W. Vaughan, Apco executive vice president.

R. Joseph Dowd, general counsel for American Electric Power Co., Apco's parent firm, said simply, "We intend to build the project."

In another development, Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W. Va., called the Appeals Court decision "ridiculous."

Hechler, a long-time opponent of the twin-dam project, said, "The United States Court of Appeals decision is a severe blow to all the citizens who worked so long and hard to save the New River."

Hechler, in whose state a portion of the river also flows, said he would "push immediately" for congressional action to invalidate the Federal Power Commission's licensing of the power project.

The Appeals Court concentrated on two issues raised by the State of North Carolina and found them without merit.

One was the FPC's alleged failure to consider energy conservation as an alternative. The other was the commission's alleged failure to consider one of the social costs of the dams and reservoir, the relocation of persons who would be displaced.

Some 40,000 acres of land and a segment of the river in North Carolina's Ashe and Alleghany counties and Virginia's Grayson County would be inundated by water backed up by the dams to be erected for the power project.

Israeli 'Seethe'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States was under pressure from the Arabs today to deny Israel the protection of its veto and allow passage of a Security Council resolution deploring Israeli practices in occupied Arab territories.

Taking their cue from U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton's surprise blast at Israel on Tuesday, nonaligned states and Arab states circulated a draft resolution lauded of language and provisions certain to trigger the American veto.

Diplomats agreed that the United States would not vote for the resolution. But they said Scranton had left the door open for abstention, which would assure passage of the measure.

State Department officials in Washington said Scranton would veto any resolution condemning Israel. But they refused to say what would be done about a lesser censure.

The Israelis were seething over Scranton's speech in which he declared that the construction of Jewish settlements in occupied territories violated international law and hampered peace negotiations.

Israel's ambassador to Washington, Simcha Dinitz, complained to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said Scranton was only restating the position taken by the U.S. government since 1969.

Tania's Lawyers Fight For 'Extensive' Delay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — One of Patricia Hearst's lawyers says it may be a long time before the newspaper heiress, convicted of bank robbery, stands trial on other charges arising from her underground odyssey.

Al Johnson said Wednesday that he and his partner, F. Lee Bailey, have "a strong conviction that she could not be tried in the foreseeable future anywhere" and will battle for an extensive delay.

Miss Hearst's upcoming legal hurdles include arraignment in Los Angeles on state charges, expected early next week, and an April 12 sentencing date here for her federal bank robbery conviction.

She was to meet again today with federal probation officers who will recommend what punishment — if any — should be imposed. Her sentence could range from probation to 25 years in prison.

Probation officer Harry

Schloetter and deputy Charles J. Roberts interviewed her for two hours Tuesday at the San Mateo County Jail. Schloetter has said "wide-ranging examinations" of her will precede their recommendations to U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter.

Miss Hearst, meanwhile, faces arraignment soon in Los Angeles on charges of kidnapping, robbery and assault.

Johnson said he will argue that a fair trial would be impossible at least until publicity that surrounded her bank robbery trial subsides.

Miss Hearst, 22, was convicted Saturday of willingly joining her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers in an April 15, 1974, holdup of a Hibernia Bank branch.

The robbery came two months after Miss Hearst was dragged from her Berkeley apartment by SLA members. She testified that her captors threatened to kill her if she did not accompany them in the robbery.

"I cannot understand how any jury can ever be empaneled in Los Angeles that would not have prior knowledge of her conviction. I would say that applies to the rest of the country as well," Johnson said. He also said again he will seek to sever Miss Hearst's trial from that of her underground companions, William and Emily Harris.

Although she is charged with using gunfire to rescue the Harris from certain arrest, Miss Hearst repudiated them at her San Francisco trial, saying they kept her a hostage of fear through mental and physical abuse. She identified Harris as one of her kidnapers.

WHY IT'S GOOD BUSINESS TO KNOW AS MUCH AS YOU CAN BEFORE YOU MAKE A MOVE.

AN ANALYSIS BY GAYLORD PERRY.

Before I throw a pitch, I want to know all I can about the batter I'm facing. And I'll listen to advice from my manager, my catcher and other teammates on the best way to get him out.

I go about my banking business the same way. Before I make a move, I'll ask for advice from the professionals at NCNB. Whether it's the number of months to pay off a loan or which certificate of deposit to buy.

Sure, they're glad to get my business, but they're just as eager to help me make the right financial decisions.

That's why I do all my banking at NCNB. They always give it to you straight. Without doctoring the ball.

Kissinger Attacked By Carter In Wisconsin Tour

By The Associated Press
Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, a five-time primary election winner in his run for the Democratic presidential nomination, has taken his campaign into Wisconsin with an attack on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

In Washington, meanwhile, President Ford's campaign aides said they would take a close look at the results in North Carolina's Republican primary. The President lost there Tuesday for the first time to Ronald Reagan, the former California governor.

Reagan was at home in California on Wednesday. Reagan campaign officials were negotiating for purchase of television time for what they said would be a major nationwide address next week.

Carter was in Milwaukee on Wednesday — the day after he won North Carolina's Democratic primary with more than half the vote. He said Kissinger's refusal to specifically rule out a U.S. invasion of Cuba if Cuban troops become further involved in Africa "is the sort of thing that ought to be explained to the American people."

As Carter took the offensive in his push for votes, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace spoke in pessimistic tones of his own chances for the nomination — but said he plans to continue the fight, anyway.

Arizona Rep. Morris K. Udall, Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris — among those battling Carter and Wallace for the Democratic nomination — spent the day in New York, which sends more than four times Wisconsin's 88 delegates to the national convention.

Candidates have two weeks to prepare for the next primaries — April 6 in New York and Wisconsin. It is the first break in what has been a grinding schedule of weekly primaries since New Hampshire's election on Feb. 24.

Several of the candidates, however, campaigned at full-tilt Wednesday, and there were other significant developments on the political front.

—A judge ordered local officials to stop preparing for Michigan's May 18 primary. "The election is off," said Ingham County Circuit Judge Ray Hotchkiss as he ruled in a suit filed by local officials who claim they shouldn't have to pay for the voting.

Hotchkiss said he would decide within five days whether to make his ruling permanent. His decision apparently depends in part on whether the legislature agrees to fund the election.

Official delegate slates were certified for New York's Democratic primary. The secretary of state said Udall will have slates in 37 of the state's 39 congressional districts, Jackson in 36, Carter in 34, Harris in 19, Wallace in 3 and anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack in 1. New York will send 274 delegates to the Democratic National Convention this summer, and all but 68 will be picked April 6. —A survey of the first, six primary elections showed more than two-thirds of the 5.96 million votes cast were on Democratic ballots.

And although President Ford was the choice of 55.6 per cent of Republicans voting, his popular vote total of 1.06 million was less than the 1.53 million polled by Carter. Carter was the favorite of 37.9 per cent of Democrats voting so far.

—Howard "Bo" Callaway

said it is "very unlikely" that he will return as Ford's campaign director. Callaway was suspended from the job at his own request two weeks ago after allegations that he improperly tried to influence government actions concerning a ski area in Colorado.

Callaway, in Atlanta, said he will discuss the matter with Ford in the next few days.

Carter chided Kissinger for making policy without consulting public opinion. He said he didn't know what Kissinger had in mind in his comments on use of Cuban troops in Africa.

"We don't want to shoot down a Russian plane," the candidate said, referring to the reported use of Soviet planes in airlifting Cuban troops into Angola.

"I hope we learned our lesson in Vietnam," he added.

Wallace, at home in Montgomery, conceded it would be "very difficult" for him to win the Democratic nomination after his latest primary defeat in North Carolina. The Alabama governor said, however, he will remain in the race, if only to amass more delegates for a possible position of influence at the nominating convention. Carter and Wallace were the only Democrats who actively sought votes in North Carolina. Jackson, who won the Massachusetts primary, said in New York City that Carter's third straight defeat of Wallace means the Alabama governor, "for all practical purposes, is out of the race."

Udall, meantime, shook hands in Manhattan and said later he finds people cynical and unwilling to believe one politician is any different from the rest.

"It makes me disheartened," he said.

Harris, his campaign hurt by money problems from the start and rocked by poor showings in the early primaries, was in New York, too. He said his effort for the April 6 election will be minimal and that he will concentrate instead on Pennsylvania's April 27 primary.

In Sacramento, Calif., state Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, campaign chairman for another Democrat in the race — California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. — said he has advised Brown not to talk about foreign policy until two or three weeks before California's June 8 primary.

Cigarette Official Speaks At Meeting

Bill Longest, vice president of Phillip Morris, Inc. told the Pitt County Young Farmers Association Tuesday, that Phillip Morris is not interested in altering the method of curing or handling tobacco. Allen Clark, supervisor for tobacco research for Phillip Morris said that synthetics presently have no place in the tobacco manufacturing process and there is no need for developing synthetics which will not sell.

Phillip Morris Inc. and Universal Leaf presented a film on tobacco processing and a series of slides about tobacco.

According to Jim Moore, supervisor of leaf buying for Phillip Morris, no other climate or soil condition in the world are suitable to produce the high quality tobacco that can be produced in the southeastern United States. Quality will be the main factor for better sales in 1976, according to Moore. Sand and other foreign materials must be removed from the tobacco before it reaches the warehouse floor, Moore said.

The film presentation was concluded by a question and answer session.

During the business session of the meeting, Chap Tucker and Dall McLawhorn, members of the planning committee for young farmers, presented Ken Bateman a plaque of appreciation. Bateman, an assistant agricultural Extension agent in Pitt County has accepted a position with the Johnston County Extension Service, effective April 1.

One Sacrificial Meal Weekly

PHILADELPHIA, Pa (AP) — Americans are being urged to contribute the savings from one weekly sacrificial meal to Operation Rice Bowl (ORB), an inter-faith program designed to help feed the world's hungry.

ORB is sponsored by the 41st International Eucharistic Congress, a worldwide spiritual assembly of Catholics and other Christians, which convenes here Aug. 1-8. The over-all theme of the conclave is "The Eucharist and the Hungers of the Human Family."

The Congress recommends the restricted diet meal be eaten each Wednesday during the seven weeks of Lent.

Insurance Paid Out $9.3 Billion

NEW YORK (AP) — An estimated $9.3 billion was paid in 1975 by life insurance companies to beneficiaries of policyholders who had died. The Institute of Life Insurance said the sum was more than nine times the amount paid in 1940.

centers located in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Shopping centers are under development in Kinston, Goldsboro, Siler City, Marion and Mt. Olive.

According to Beal, the principal tenant in the local center will be K-Mart.

In other business, the Greenville board approved the final plat of Camelot Subdivision, Section II located across from Cherry Oaks. Holliday said that Section II is a continuation of the first segment of the subdivision.

The board voted, three to two, to recommend that a rezoning request of Jeanette Cox Agency for some 32,000 square feet on the south side of NC 43 be denied.

The agency requested a change in the rezoning of the property, which is adjacent to the Texaco Station at the intersection of Memorial Drive and NC 43, from Medical Arts to Downtown Commercial Fringe in order to locate a convenience store on the site.

A spokesman for the developers said that a Fast Fare convenience store was planned for the site if the rezoning request was approved. He said that Fast Fare was formerly known as Kwik Pik.

Mrs. Trevathan asserted that commercial development is "slowly chewing off" Medical Arts zoning in the area.

Board member Karl Faser said that the matter boils down to the question of whether it would be better to stop the incursion of commercial development into the Medical Arts zoning or provide a facility for the citizens of the Moyewood and surrounding area.

Mayor Percy Cox said that several requests have been received from Moyewood residents to provide a grocery facility in their area.

The lot is bounded on one side and to the rear by Medical Arts zoning.

Mrs. Trevathan, Faser and Ernest Eaton voted to recommend denial of the request while Arnett Harris and Lyman Ormond Jr. voted against denial. Harris and Ormond contended that the location of the lot was such that they doubted it would be suitable for medical oriented development.

Other board action included: approval of final plat of Professional Center in the medical complex located north of Stantonsburg Road and west of the new hospital; and approval of the final plat of Singletree Farm Subdivision located to the west of the Hugh Winslow property off Hooker Road.

The board tabled action on the preliminary plat of Section I of Courtney Square scheduled for development by W. E. Dansey. The action was taken in order to receive some direction on the matter by the City Council, which is scheduled to hold a workshop session around the first of April.

The commission continued its policy of considering items that were not scheduled or published as part of the regular agenda. Approval was given to the sediment or erosion control plans of Grant Buick for property located on Greenville Boulevard near its intersection with NC 11, and of D. L. Keetch for property located on the southeast corner of Lawrence and 11th Streets adjacent to Green Mill Run. Apartments are planned for the 4.7-acre tract under construction by Keetch.

Carter Delegate Role Sought By Sugg, Morgan

RALEIGH (AP) — James R. Sugg, state Democratic chairman, says he would like to go to the Democratic National Convention as a delegate pledged to former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., reportedly is also preparing to seek election to the national convention delegation as a Carter supporter.

The Sugg decision and Morgan's experted move indicate the lining up that must now be done within the Democratic Party as a result of Tuesday's presidential primary which saw Carter trounce Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Unofficial figures indicated that only Carter and Wallace won enough votes to qualify for national convention delegates from North Carolina with Carter entitled to 36 and Wallace to 25.

Defector Held Nearly Three Years In Solitary Confinement

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet defector was subjected to nearly three years of solitary confinement because CIA interrogators suspected him and his claim that Lee Harvey Oswald was not a Russian agent, according to informed sources.

Yuri Nosenko was confined to a CIA barracks-like building where he had a bed, chair and toilet but no contact with other people, the sources said Wednesday. One former intelligence official familiar with the case said Nosenko was subjected to "hostile interrogation" but was not physically abused.

Nosenko, who claimed to be a high ranking KGB officer with first hand knowledge of the Oswald case, defected to the United States less than three months after the November 1963 slaying of President John F. Kennedy.

Intelligence officials were skeptical of his story. One source noted, "the coincidence of the person who just happened to have the (Oswald) file coming to this country so soon after (the Kennedy assassination) almost belies credibility."

The Rockefeller Commission's report last June gave bare details of Nosenko's "spartan" confinement and said it was unlawful.

Nosenko was freed in 1967

when CIA officials could no longer justify such extreme measures in the absence of any solid evidence that he was an imposter, the sources said. He now lives in the Washington area under an assumed name.

Documents released by the CIA and the National Archives show that Nosenko consistently maintained that he personally had participated in the decision that Oswald was of no interest to the KGB because Oswald "appeared somewhat abnormal" when he arrived in Moscow in 1959 seeking Soviet citizenship.

Right after Oswald was named the prime suspect in the assassination, Nosenko reviewed Oswald's file and determined there was nothing to indicate Oswald ever worked for the KGB, according to CIA and FBI accounts of Nosenko's story.

Documents show the Warren Commission asked the CIA if Nosenko could be believed. Then-counterintelligence chief James J. Angleton responded, "this agency has no information which would specifically corroborate or disprove Nosenko's statements regarding Lee Harvey Oswald."

ARC Board Held Meet

The board of directors of the Pitt Red Cross met Wednesday evening at St. Paul's Episcopal Church and heard reports from the chairmen of the various chapter committees.

Committee reports dealt with the chapter's blood program, first aid and water safety, and service to military families.

It was announced during the meeting that Billy Ross has resigned as Blood chairman after three years of service. The board members commended Ross for his excellent service and effort on behalf of the blood program. A search is underway for a new chairman, it was pointed out.

The board of directors appointed a nominating committee to secure new members under the rotation system of board service.

O. E. Dowd Sr. presided during the meeting, attended by 16 board members.

Pirates Overcome Campbell By 5-3 Score

Bucs Running In Relay Event

East Carolina's track and field team will join 28 other clubs in Raleigh Saturday for the fourth annual Atlantic Coast Relays. Though team scores will not be kept, the Pirates are expected to make a strong showing in the meet. The competition will be very keen in all events as the best from the East Coast will be there.

East Carolina will be entered in all the field events and some of the key relays along with the 100 and 220 dashes and high hurdles. Lafan Forbes, winner of the javelin throw in the ECU Invitational, will be going up against several athletes that have thrown further than his best of 203 feet but this does not get Forbes down. "All I can do is go out there and do my best, but with those guys there, my adrenaline will most definitely be flowing."

Marvin Rankins, winner of the MVP in the running events at the Invitational, will be attempting to make his name a household one in the relays as he will be going up against strong competition. Rankins ran a fantastic time of 13.9 in the high hurdles in the Invitational, with just 15 minutes rest coming off a leg on the winning ECU 440 relay. His 13.9 qualifies Rankins for the NCAA Championships in June.

Carter Suggs, who won the 100 dash and was on the winning relay team, holds the track record at State in the 220 with a time of 21.3. He will be in both individual events (100 and 220) plus being in on a couple of relays. The Pirates 440 relay team ran a 40.9 in the Invitational, just a tenth of a second off the national qualifying time, and will attempt to better that time in the Relays. The Pirates also hold the track record in that event, with a 41.3 clocking in last year's East Coast Invitationals.

Herman McIntyre, the Pirates' top triple jumper, won the event in the Invitational, but believes it will take a 50 jump to win in Raleigh. "I jumped 48' 7" last week, but for me to win it will take 50 feet to do it."

The Pirates will be traveling to Raleigh with a job to do; show the rest of the teams on the East coast that they are winner. Nobody is doubting that.

BUIES CREEK—East Carolina spotted Campbell College a one-run lead in the first inning, then rallied to gain a 5-3 victory over the Camels yesterday afternoon.

The victory was the 10th for the Pirates in 13 outings. Campbell is now 4-11. Keith Kurdewan hurled the victory, although he had to have help from Dean Reavis in the final frame. Kurdewan spotted Campbell only three hits during the afternoon, as he walked four and struck out four. All three of the runs came off him, however, but none of them were earned.

East Carolina banged out 10 hits, including doubles by Joe Roenker and Sonny Wooten. Ken Gentry was the only Buc with two hits, however. Campbell jumped into the lead in the first inning, getting a run. With one down, David Greene reached on an error and stole second. Tony Naumann struck out, but the ball got away from catcher Glen Card, allowing both runners to reach. A double steal was then attempted by Campbell, but Greene was thrown out at third, with Naumann taking second. Frank Floyd then singled to score Naumann.

The Pirates tied it up in the top of the second. With one down, Robert Brinkley and Macon Moye both singled. Gentry followed with the first of his two singles, scoring Brinkley for a 1-1 tie.

The third saw the Pirates push into the lead. Steve Bryant singled and moved up on an out. Roenker then hit one off the fence to double Bryant over for a 2-1 Pirate lead.

It stayed that way until the sixth inning when the Bucs got what proved to be the winning runs. Gentry led off with a single and Card walked. Pete Paradossi ran for Card and both moved up on a passed ball. Another passed ball caught Gentry at the plate, however, but moved Paradossi to third. Geoff Beaston walked and Bryant grounded out, scoring Paradossi. Charlie Stevens followed with a hit, scoring Beaston.

The Pirates picked up their fifth run in the top of the eighth. Card singled and Paradossi again ran for him, moving up on an out. Bryant and Stevens both walked and Roenker hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Paradossi. Campbell came back with a run in the bottom of the eighth. With one out, Johnny McLab walked. Greene reached on an error, but was cut down on Naumann's infield grounder. An error on the attempted double play, however, let McLamb score.

The Camels got their final run in the ninth. Dave Johnson reached on an error and Martin Hatchell ran for him. Mark Little walked and John Lippert singled to lead the bases. Reavis came on to pitch at that point, fanning the next batter. But he walked Mike Evans on four straight pitches to force over Hatchell with the third Campbell run. The two went out, however, ending the threat. The Pirates return to Harrington Field on Sunday for a 1:30 p.m. doubleheader with Atlantic Christian. Between games, a "Mini-Clinic" will be held for youngsters. Members of the ECU baseball team will be on the field at their positions to answer questions by young players. The session will last 10 to 15 minutes.

Prior to the game, starting at 11 a.m., the Diamond Darlings will meet a media team in a softball game.

Four Swimmers Go To Nationals

Four swimmers will represent East Carolina at the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships at Brown University in Providence, R. I., this week. John McCauley leads the group, having qualified in two events, the 50-yard freestyle and as a member of the 400-yard freestyle relay team. McCauley ranks ninth in the latest standings across the country with a time of 20.83 seconds in the 50.

The top 12 finishers in each event are awarded All-America status, but Coach Ray Scharf said that McCauley will have to improve on his time to make the group. "When you get to the nationals, everybody's time improves," Scharf said. "John will have to swim about 20.5 to make it. I think he can, and if he does, he'll be our first Division I All-American."

Also competing on the 400-yard freestyle relay team will be John Tudor, Billy Thorne and Ross Bohlen. The team qualified in the Eastern with a time of 3:06.17. They are currently ranked 19th, but again, Scharf feels they have a chance to break into the top 12.

"We really weren't pushed in the regionals," Scharf said, "and we won by three seconds. Bohlen had a bad start, too. If we can cut three more seconds off our time, I think we can make the top 12."

Bohlen is a junior, while McCauley and Thorne are sophomores. Tudor is a freshman.

Third Place Battle Is On

By The Associated Press
Things being what they are, the struggle between San Antonio and Kentucky for third place is the big news these days in the American Basketball Association.

Denver has practically clinched first place and New York appears likely to finish second. So the battle for third remains the league's most entertaining contest — especially as far as the Spurs and Colonels are concerned.

San Antonio picked up a victory in an unlikely spot Wednesday night, beating the Nuggets in Denver 135-122. It was the first home loss for Denver in the last 27 games and, combined with Kentucky's 128-122 loss to lowly Virginia, it moved the Spurs into third place, one-half game ahead of the Colonels.

New York beat St. Louis 106-93 in the night's other ABA game. "We've never needed a win so bad anywhere, anytime," said San Antonio Coach Bob Bass. "To get one here has to help us."

The ABA's curious playoff format is the reason for all the commotion about third place. The top five teams make the playoffs and the first three get to sit out the opening round while the fourth and fifth-place clubs hammer away at each other. The survivor then gets the dubious honor of playing the first-place finisher in one semifinal while the second and third-place teams contend in the other semi.

"Playoff time is coming up and we want to get a fair place," said Spurs' guard James Silas.

Silas did more than his share to help the cause Wednesday night, pumping in 41 points.

Knight Happy To Be In The Final Four

By STEVE HERMAN

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Only two basketball teams ever have entered NCAA tournament competition undefeated for two straight years — and they play each other Saturday. Indiana's No. 1-rated Hur-ryin' Hoosiers, unbeaten in regular-season competition since early 1974, and the fifth-ranked UCLA Bruins, undefeated in 1972 and 1973, collide in a nationally televised NCAA semifinal game Saturday afternoon in Philadelphia.

The winner will face either No. 3 Rutgers or No. 9 Michigan, the other tourney semifinalists, for the national championship Monday night.

"I'm just delighted that we're there and with the opportunity of winning the championship," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight, whose Hoosiers have won — either individually or collectively — nearly every college honor except the national title.

"I've said all along that my philosophy is the hope that all the teams play their best, that injuries or other such factors play no part," Knight said. "We can accept the results of that with no regrets."

The Indiana-UCLA rivalry covers just seven previous meetings between the two Big Ten and Pac-8 powers. But the last two games have had tremendous intensity.

In the 1973 NCAA semifinals at St. Louis, the Bruins, led by Bill Walton, surged to a 20-point lead and withstood a frantic Indiana comeback to within two points before Hoosier center Stev Downing fouled out.

UCLA eventually beat Indiana 70-59 and went on to the national championship.

Then, in the season opener last November, again at St. Louis in front of a national television audience, Indiana pounded UCLA 84-64 behind All-American Scott May's 33 points. The Hoosiers have won 29 straight since then, while the Bruins take a 26-4 mark into Saturday's heralded rematch. "My concern earlier in the first-round (NCAA tourney) game (against St. John's) and the regional (against Alabama and Marquette) was that something might happen to deny our players the chance in the finals," Knight said. "What they have done in representing this university and our basketball program over the past four years has just been tremendous."

In those four years, the Hoosiers have won 106 games while losing just 12 — going 22-6, 23-5, 31-1 and 30-0 with two games left this year.

ECU Signs Transfer

East Carolina University Basketball Coach Dave Patton announced the first signing for the coming year today.

Don Whitaker, a graduate of Raleigh Broughton, comes to East Carolina after two years at Louisiana Junior College. A starter for both of the years, Whitaker set new Louisiana records in free throw accuracy. During his two year career, he hit 88.8 per cent of his foul shots.

He was named to the second team All-Cavalier Tar Heel Conference selections, and was a first team All-Tournament pick. He also made the first team of the Pickle Classic Tournament for two years.

Averaging about 11 points a game, Whitaker is primarily a playmaker at the point guard position. He set a single game Louisiana record of 14 assists against Anderson earlier this year.

Padres Could Climb To Third

By GREGORY GROSS
AP Sports Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — With a little luck, the San Diego Padres might have more to celebrate this year than the Bicentennial: third place in the National League West.

Two years ago, that prediction might have drawn attention only from a psychiatrist. But a lot has changed since then.

On paper, at least, the Padres aren't nearly strong enough to challenge either Los Angeles or Cincinnati for the two top spots in the NL West. On paper, perhaps no one is.

But if San Diego can get stronger performances out of more of their pitchers and most of their hitters, the Padres have a chance to beat out San Francisco, Atlanta, and Houston for third.

If nothing else, they have two big mental advantages over their three rivals.

Since McDonald's food chain owner Ray Kroc sank his teeth into the franchise in 1974, it has been financially stable. San Francisco can't say that.

Also, the Padres finished fourth last year, out of the cellar for the first time since they entered the National League in 1969.

"We don't have to waste time anymore establishing an attitude," said manager John McNamara. "After last year, I know everyone on the club feels we can be competitive."

The biggest Padre change last season was the emergence of Randy Jones. The fuzzy-haired young lefthander came back from a horrible 1974 season to win 20 games against 12 losses, with six shutouts and a 2.24 earned-run average.

In one season, he became San Diego's first pitching star and the main man in the Padre rotation.

Young Brent Strom, 8-8 and 2.55 ERA, also had some strong moments as a starter. But after that, the quality of Padre starting pitching tailed off considerably.

That meant that relievers Danny Frisella and Dave Tomlin saw a lot of action in 1975, too much to suit the Padre brass.

Frisella posted a 3.12 ERA in 65 appearances and Tomlin posted a 3.55 ERA in 67 outings. But like the starters, the bullpen needs reinforcements.

The pitchers considered most likely to help are starters Joe McIntosh, 8-15, and Dave Freisleben, 4-15; and relievers Bill Greif and Rich Folkers. Alan Foster, acquired last season from St. Louis, had arm trouble and was a major disappointment.

In the hitting department, Willie McCovey, whose aging knees have consigned him to platooning at first base with Mike Ivie, had a productive year in '75 with 23 home runs. How long he can continue at that pace is anyone's guess.

Outfielder Dave Winfield has yet to blossom into the superstar most observers expect, batting .267 with a paltry 15 homers last year.

Mauch's biggest concern is getting the pitchers' arms in shape for the regular season, which begins April 9 at Texas.

Right-handers Bert Blyleven, Jim Hughes and Dave Goltz combined for 45 victories last season and should have starting assignments locked up. Joe Decker, who won 16 games in 1974, is attempting to regain his control and win a spot in the regular rotation. Eddie Bane, a left-hander, and Steve Luebber have the best chances of the newcomers for starting roles.

Vic Albury, Bill Butler and Ray Corbin, who had bone chips removed from his right elbow late last season, could also earn starting jobs. Bill Campbell and lefty Tom Burmeier are returning for another season as the Twins' short relievers.

Five-time batting champion Rod Carew is being used at first base in spring training and is making a good adjustment. Carew, who won his fourth straight title with a .359 average in 1975, is being replaced at second base by Jerry Terrell.

Shortstop is wide open and of a major concern to Mauch, who prides himself upon having a strong defense up the middle. Incumbent Danny Thompson hasn't had a good season in three years. Luis Gomez is steady defensively, but a light hitter.

Third baseman Eric Soderholm is coming off a knee injury suffered last August and at age 27 appears to be moving into the prime of his career.

Second-year players Lyman Bostock and Danny Ford and hard-hitting Larry Hise, who is also coming off surgery, are the likely starters in the outfield. The three speedsters

Contract Problems No Real Problems

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins go into the 1976 season with 19 unsigned players and a new manager.

"Contract problems shouldn't affect us at all," said veteran skipper Gene Mauch, who takes over the young team after 16 seasons in the National League.

"It takes a lot of guts for a player to play without signing his contract," said Mauch. "He would have nothing to gain by not playing to the best of his abilities. The better he plays, the better his bargaining power."

Perhaps the next biggest obstacle for Mauch to overcome will be the three-week delay in the start of spring training because of the ongoing labor problems between club owners and players.

"We'll spend the entire spring training working hard on fundamentals," said Mauch.

But it's a crash program Mauch is running the Twins through and the rookies will have a tough time catching on with the team in a three week spring training.

Mauch's biggest concern is getting the pitchers' arms in shape for the regular season, which begins April 9 at Texas.

Second-year players Lyman Bostock and Danny Ford and hard-hitting Larry Hise, who is also coming off surgery, are the likely starters in the outfield. The three speedsters could give the Twins their best defensive outfield in the club's history.

Steve Brye, a proven hitter and defensive player, will add depth as the team's fourth outfielder.

Harold "Butch" Wynegar, a 20-year-old rookie given a good chance to make the team, is expected to challenge Phil Roof and Glenn Borgmann for the catcher's job.

Wynegar, a switch hitter, finished with a .314 batting average, 19 home runs and 112 runs batted in last year at Reno in the Class AA California League.

Randy Bass, a left-handed power hitter, was impressive in camp last spring and is the man the Twins hope will soon be able to answer their longball needs. The 215-pound first baseman has averaged 20 home runs a year in four minor league seasons.

The Twins have been one of baseball's best hitting teams for several years and should have a potent attack again.

Carew, 30, has hit .358 and averaged 205 hits a year the past three seasons. He also finished last year with career highs of 14 home runs and 80 runs batted in last season.

Steve Braun, who will replace Tony Oliva as the Twins' designated hitter this year, finished at .302 in 1975. Hise hit .314 with 11 home runs and 51 runs batted in despite being sidelined in mid-June for the rest of the year.

Soderholm hit .286 with 11 homers and 58 RBI before being sidelined in early August with the knee injury.

Mauch also plans to improve the Twins' baserunning because of the many fast players on the club.

"Stealing bases isn't necessarily a sign of good baserunning," said Mauch. "Taking the extra base and knowing when to advance are the little things that make big differences."

There were nearly $66,000 in uncashed mutual tickets following the 1974 Green Mountain thoroughbred racing season at the Pownal, Vt., track.

The Rams got the action going in the third inning, scoring a pair of runs. Jay Carraway walked and stole up. Jerry Speight reached on an error, scoring Carraway. Floyd Adams then singled in Speight.

The Rams got two more in the fifth. Speight and Adams both singled and scored on Thomas Hooker's double.

Greene Central came up with another run in the sixth. Russell Brand singled and stole up. Carraway then singled him over.

The final three came in the top of the seventh. Adams reached on an error and scored on a second double by Hooker. Ronnie Whitley singled and Donald Wooten got a hit, scoring Hooker. Brand then singled in Whitley.

Plymouth rallied for two in the Midwest Loop Is Weak Link

By The Associated Press
The Midwest Division of the National Basketball Association is so bad it seems the only way for someone to win a game is to play another member of the division.

That's what happened Wednesday night. The Detroit Pistons whipped the Kansas City Kings 130-117 since the NBA insists on playing to a decision, but the Seattle SuperSonics drubbed the Milwaukee Bucks 135-110 and the Boston Celtics downed the Chicago Bulls 94-87. That left 31-41 Milwaukee two games in front of 29-43 Detroit, which moved into second place by one-half game over 29-44 Kansas City. Chicago, 22-50, is nine games from the top.

In the only other NBA action, the Philadelphia 76ers trounced the New York Knicks 118-100.

Bob Lanier's 29 points sparked the Pistons past Kansas City both on the scoreboard and in the standings. The Kings stayed even until Lanier, Curtis Rowe and Eric Money combined to shoot Detroit into a 69-60 halftime lead.

In the third period, Lanier scored 14 to give the Pistons a 22-point lead. Money finished with 19 points, Rowe 17 and George Trapp 15. Nate Archibald had 26 for the losers.

SuperSonics 135, Bucks 110

In a rare starting role, second-year forward Talvin Skinner grabbed 13 rebounds and scored a career-high 26 points. Skinner was pressed into service to replace Leonard Gray, who injured a knee Tuesday and is out for the season. At one point, he sank nine shots in a row.

Milwaukee led 18-13 with five minutes to go in the first quarter but Seattle began to dominate the backboards and outscored the Bucks 18-4 for a 31-22 edge. The Sonics eventually opened a 28-point bulge and took undisputed possession of second place in the Pacific Division, one-half game up on idle Los Angeles. Bruce Seals paced Seattle with 27 points while Brian Winters topped the Bucks with 20.

Celtics 94, Bulls 87

Dave Cowens ignited Boston's fast break in the third period and John Havlicek finished it off with 12 points in the session.

Harris Leads Delta State To First Round AIAW Tourney Win

By GARY MIHOCS
AP Sports Writer
STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — A stomach virus had kept her from solid food for two days, but Lusia Harris ate up the defense set for her by Penn State's women's basketball team.

"We didn't come all this way to lose," the 6-foot-3 Miss Harris said Wednesday after her 29 points helped Mississippi's Delta State open defense of its women's college basketball title with an 88-46 victory over Penn State.

Second-seeded Immaculata College of suburban Philadelphia and third-seeded Cal State-Fullerton also advanced to today's quarter-finals in the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women tournament.

Marianne Crawford-Stanley had 16 points and nine assists to help Immaculata beat Long Beach State 84-65 and move the Maes a step closer to regaining the title they held three years before losing to Delta in 1975.

Cal State-Fullerton, the West Coast champion, piled up the highest point total of the first round, beating Wisconsin-LaCrosse 103-85. Nancy Dunkel, a 6-2 center, had 27 points for the winners.

Delta was a heavy favorite against Penn State, which got a berth only because it was the host.

But after 4½ minutes, Delta led only 7-6 and the virus-stricken Miss Harris, also playing with tape around a ring finger she jammed a few games ago, had missed her first several shots.

After one miss, Miss Harris ripped off the tape, tossed it off the court and led Delta to 19 straight points, scoring 13 herself.

"The tape was more trouble than anything else. I felt better without it," said the 185-pound Miss Harris, who uses her inside power to gain position for soft jump shots.

Delta State, which has a 30-1 record, was joined here by more than 300 fans from Mis-issippi. They waved pompoms, hoisted a Confederate flag and sang "Dixie."

Immaculata, 22-2 including a split of two regular-season games with Delta, brought a cheering section that included students, nuns and priests from the small Catholic women's college.

The Delta and Immaculata fans tried to chant one another down during the Immaculata game.

Crowds were sparse for the other six first-round games in which fourth-seeded Queens College of New York was beaten 91-80 by unseeded Mississippi College; fifth-seeded Wayland Baptist of Texas beat Utah 86-46 with the aid of 16 points by Pearl "The Earl" Worrell, and sixth-seeded William Penn, a Quaker school in Iowa, gained a 78-70 victory over Tennessee Tech.

Other games saw seventh-seeded Montclair State of New Jersey defeat Portland State of Oregon 86-49, with the help of 25 points by Carol Blazewoj, and Sue Snider scored 33 points to help Baylor overcome a halftime deficit and down eight-seeded Southern Connecticut 76-72.

Today's quarter-finals: Delta vs. Baylor, Wayland Baptist vs. Mississippi College, Cal State-Fullerton vs. William Penn and Immaculata vs. Montclair.

Since Wednesday was the first full day of exhibition baseball, this will be the first story of the year about the flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la.

They're known as phenoms and they were out in force ... Jason Thompson, John Valle, Phil Mankowski, Chuck Scrivener, Bob Molinaro, Cleon Jones, Bob Oliver.

Cleon Jones? Bob Oliver? Those other folks all starred for the Detroit in the Tigers' 8-6 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals, but only two of them have ever appeared in a major league game and the numbers aren't very high — six games for Molinaro, four for Scrivener.

But Jones was in his 10th big league campaign and Oliver his seventh when they were cut adrift suddenly last summer. Jones by the New York Mets and Oliver by the New York Yankees. Both are trying to make it with the Chicago White Sox this spring and both hit home runs — Jones also had a run-scoring double — as the Chisox defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1.

"I should be worrying about getting my timing and stroke down, but instead I've been worrying about getting hits," said Jones, 33. "I have to, though. I ain't got a job here. If I don't hit now it's all over. If I didn't hit with the Mets — and usually I didn't in the spring —

I knew I still had a job. Until last year, that is."

Recuperating slowly from a knee injury, Jones compounded his problems last spring when he was picked up by St. Petersburg, Fla., police after being found in a state of undress with a young lady in a parked van. Then he had a fatal run-in with Manager Yogi Berra and no one seemed to want him after the Mets dropped him.

Oliver, also 33, doesn't see himself going head-to-head with Jones for a spot on the White Sox' final roster.

"This club needs right-handed hitting and I think we can do it," he said. "I don't think that it's an either-or situation with Cleon or me. He's mainly an outfielder. I can play first or third and, in a pinch, the outfield."

The big blows by the Tigers' rookie contingent came in the late innings. A home run by outfielder Valle produced a 6-6 tie in the eighth and, after a triple by veteran Mickey Stanley in the ninth, Thompson, a nonroster first baseman, homered off Mike Wallace.

Meanwhile, third baseman Mankowski played well defensively and delivered two singles, one driving in a run. Shortstop Scrivener also did well in the field, singled and walked. Ad Molinaro singled in two trips.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Dodgers sent 14 batters to the plate against three Montreal pitchers in the eighth inning and poured across nine runs on nine hits and two walks in routing the Expos 13-4. The outburst included Bill Buckner's two-run triple and Manny Mota's two-run pinch single.

Bob Bailey's two-out, two-run double in the 10th inning sparked the world champion Cincinnati Reds over the Baltimore Orioles 4-1 and Graig Nettles drove in two runs with a pair of singles as the Yankees trounced the Mets 7-1.

Carlton Fisk's tie-breaking single in the seventh inning gave the Boston Red Sox a 7-6 victory over the Houston Astros. Five Atlanta errors and Tommy Hutton's two-run single helped the Philadelphia Phillies defeat the Braves 6-1 while Lee Stanton homered in the California Angels' 4-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

The San Francisco Giants downed the Milwaukee Brewers 3-1 on Von Joshua's three-run homer and the Chicago Cubs scored three runs in the 10th inning, two on a dropped fly ball by San Diego's Bobby Valentine, and beat the Padres 9-6.

Newly acquired Dave Nelson singled twice, drove in a run and stole home to lead the Kansas City Royals over his old club, the Texas Rangers, 8-3.

Center fielder Dave Stegman led the University of Arizona's 17-hit parade with five-for-five, including a home run and a triple, as the Wildcats overpowered the Oakland A's 12-5. And Larry Hisle's two-run double highlighted the Minnesota Twins' 6-2 decision over the White Sox' 'B' squad.

In other developments, Ron Swoboda, who turned from baseball to broadcasting in 1973, will try to make a comeback with the Mets.

Nicklaus Might Be Thinking Of Masters

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus will be trying to make a successful defense of his title in the $215,000 Sea Pines Heritage Golf Classic this week.

But his mind might not be on the job at hand.

"You always want to win the tournament you're playing in," Nicklaus said before teeing off today on the tight, treacherous, doubly-difficult Harbour Town Golf Links in the first round of this chase for a $43,000 prize.

"But in the back of my mind, in a part of my mind I can't control, I may be thinking of the Masters," he said.

"It's not something I do on a conscious level. But I've always built my season around the Big Four tournaments. Since the Masters is the first of the Big Four, it's my first big goal of the year. Since it's the first of the year's majors, it's the first one I try to build to.

"I'll be trying as hard as I can to play well here, to win here. You always want to win the one you're playing in at the moment. But it's possible that I may find myself thinking of Augusta whether I want to or not."

But even with the Masters occupying such a major part of his thinking and planning, Nicklaus has more than a casual interest in this event, his last competitive start before Augusta.

Nicklaus, the game's premier player and holder of a record 14 major professional championships, used a victory here last year as a springboard to his record fifth Masters crown. And he'd like nothing better than to duplicate the feat this season.

"Of course I want to win this tournament for it's own sake. You always want to win," Nicklaus said. "And it's always a good thing, good for your confidence, to go into any major championship as a winner your last time out."

And he's ready to make the effort.

"I've played pretty well in my last two starts," he said. "I played well at Inverrary (where he won) and I played well at Doral (tied for second). I feel my game is pretty solid right now. Just a couple of little things to work on. I'm just about on schedule.

"There's no reason I can't play well this week."

Opposing him is a select, institutional field of 114 that ranks as the strongest since the Tournament Players Championship. Among Nicklaus' chief challengers are Hubert Green, Hale Irwin, Johnny Miller and Ben Crenshaw, each a two-time winner already this season.

Among the other standouts are Gary Player, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Bruce Crampton, British Open champ Tom Watson, U.S. Open king Lou Graham and J.C. Snead.

CBS-TV will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Murder Rate Dropped In 1975

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of crimes reported to police in the United States increased 9 per cent last year, but murders dropped for the first time in more than a decade, the FBI said today.

Murders in 1975 declined 1 per cent from the 1974 total of 20,600, preliminary figures showed.

But the other six categories measured by the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports reflected 1975 increases ranging from 1 per cent for rape to 12 per cent for larceny.

The new report suggested that while crime is continuing to rise, the rate of increase may be slowing. The 1975 increase was half the 18 per cent surge recorded a year earlier.

Broken down by quarters, the report showed that crime rose 18 per cent during the first three months of 1975 compared with the same period a year earlier. But the increase slowed to 8 per cent in the second quarter, 6 per cent in the third and 4 per cent in the fourth.

"While the per cent increase in reported serious crime in the nation was only half as great as it was in 1974, the levels of crime remain much too high," Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi said. "All segments of the criminal justice system must continue to improve their efforts to reduce crime."

The murder rate measurement is generally considered the most accurate FBI crime statistic because virtually all murders are reported to police. The FBI figures are a compilation of murders, rapes, robberies, assaults, burglaries, larcenies and vehicle thefts reported to state and local police.

The FBI acknowledges that in some categories, particularly rape, the number of offenses reported to police reflects only a portion of the crimes actually committed.

The 1 per cent decrease in the murder rate marked the first time since 1962 that homicides have declined over a full-year period. FBI figures showed there were 8,480 murders in 1962, a 2 per cent decrease from the previous year.

FBI officials said they will not have the total number of murders in 1975 until the final report is completed. The figures for selected cities included:

Chicago, 818 in 1975 and 970 in 1974; Detroit, 628 and 714; Philadelphia, 435 and 444; Washington, 235 and 277; Boston, 119 and 134; and Atlanta, 185 and 248.

But some cities had more slayings in 1975. Los Angeles listed 555 last year and 481 in 1974. New York reported 1,645 murders, up from 1,554.

The report also showed that vehicle thefts increased 2 per cent, robbery and assault each rose 5 per cent and burglary was up 7 per cent.

Crime on the whole rose 10 per cent in the suburbs, 9 per cent in rural areas and 8 per cent in cities over 25,000 in population.

By region, crime rose 6 per cent in Western states, 8 per cent in north central states, 10 per cent in the Northeast and 11 per cent in the South.

Postal Service Inquiry Begun

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is calling Postal Service officials to account for a billion-dollar mechanization program that critics say is ripping open an unprecedented number of packages.

Senior Asst. Postmaster General E.V. Dorsey and Asst. Postmaster General Edgar Brower were to testify today as the House postal facilities subcommittee begins hearings on the controversial bulk mail system.

"With millions of damaged parcels backing up at post offices around the country, I think it is clear that this billion-dollar operation is in very serious trouble," said Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., chairman of the panel.

He said he found vast numbers of parcels mangled by the new machines in a midnight inspection this month at the Detroit post office.

Subcommittee staff director George B. Gould said the Postal Service "has been trying to deceive the American public about the problems they have with this system."

"They have been assuring us all along that our concerns were unfounded. We investigated and found greater problems than we ever imagined."

The subcommittee staff, after months of investigation, reported that the system is loaded with unnecessary machines that only increase the chance of a parcel being damaged.

The Postal Service has acknowledged having 3.7 million items loose from their original wrappings at the Chicago post office. If the sender or intended recipient of these items cannot be identified, the parcels will be auctioned off.

The Postal Service has said much of the damage to parcels can be attributed to "phase-in problems" with the new machines. The bulk mail system, which handles some second and third class mail in addition to parcels, was completed this month after a five-year construction program.

Bomb Threats Evacuate Part Of U.S. Embassy

By GEORGE KRIMSKY
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — A bomb warning by an anonymous caller led to evacuation of part of the American Embassy today after a series of telephone calls to members of the embassy staff threatening them with retaliation for harassment of Soviet personnel in New York.

There was no explosion, and a search of the building turned up no trace of a bomb, an Embassy spokesman said. He said the caller had described the device as a four-pound block of "C4 (plastic explosive) with detonators."

The spokesman said about 50 persons working on the ground floor of the Embassy were evacuated after the telephone call at noon warned that the bomb would go off at 12:27 p.m. The caller spoke in unaccented English, the spokesman added.

Fourteen children in a nursery school class in the Embassy basement were also led quietly into the courtyard of the 10-story building on Tchaikovsky Street. There was no panic.

An Embassy spokesman said it was the first such scare since 1971, when Americans in Moscow were harassed and their cars vandalized in retaliation for attacks by militant Jews on Soviet offices and citizens in New York.

At least two Soviet plainclothesmen were added today to the Embassy guard of half a dozen uniformed Soviet police after the Embassy protested to the Soviet Foreign Office about the threatening nocturnal phone calls American diplomats have been receiving.

Embassy sources said some members of the staff have gotten three or four calls at home in the middle of the night. Typical of the calls, a source said, was one saying, "Our people are not being treated well.

Things could become much worse for you."

Some of the callers warned that cars belonging to Embassy staff members might be damaged, the sources said.

Crank calls to Embassy personnel and other members of the foreign community in Moscow are fairly common, but the informants said these harassing calls have been much more frequent than usual and apparently were part of a concerted campaign.

Because the calls were on the same subject and because it is very difficult for an ordinary Soviet citizen to obtain personal telephone numbers, U.S. officials said they believe the campaign was officially organized. Telephone directories are hard to find in Moscow, although a special directory is available to the foreign community.

In New York in recent weeks, rifle shots were fired into a Russian residential compound, there have been demonstrations against the Soviet Union and on March 8 an explosion damaged the building housing offices of Aeroflot, the Soviet airline. The Soviet government, in three protests to U.S. Ambassador Walter Stoessel, blamed the attacks on Zionists.

Zulu Chieftain Calls For Changes In South Africa

Newspaper Wine Club Has Success

LONDON (UPI) — Never a man to keep a good thing to himself if there was profit in spreading the word, Christopher Dolly wondered how he could capitalize on his ownership of interest in a wine company.

Dolly was chairman of a major book publishing house at the time. Business and friendship brought him into contact with Harold Evans of the Sunday Times.

"One day after lunch," Dolly recalled, "I told Harry I had seen these 'special offers' in his paper from time to time, and had he ever thought of extending them into something more regular such as a wine club? What I wanted to see achieved was a wine club whose members would be Sunday Times readers, prompted by the newspaper and offering the bargains available to mass buying power."

The Sunday Times wine club was formed in October, 1973. It has a fluctuating membership of about 20,000.

"It was an instant success," says Dolly.

For the past nine months he has been trying to repeat it with the Sunday Mirror, a tabloid whose readers are more likely to be beer than wine connoisseurs.

Although the Sunday Mirror wine club has only 10,000 members, Dolly said the interest is there and developing. He foresees much greater membership as readers learn of the pleasures of good wine from the club booklet: "No Nonsense Guide to Wine."

The Sunday Times Club now has Hugh Johnson, regarded here as one of the world's foremost wine experts, as its guide. Johnson has the power of veto over the selections of Tony Laithwaite, whose keen nose and palate for less well known vineyards of exceptional value first persuaded Dolly to invest in the business.

"It's nice to be able to get this quality around and make it available to a wider audience," Dolly said. "The bulk of it is now exclusive. The Sunday Times Club's buying power is strong enough, for example, to take the whole production of small vineyards. But we don't ram a specific wine down anyone's throat. There is a growing list of wines they can drink their way through instead."

Club members are offered reduced-price tasting trips to the vineyards of Burgundy, Bordeaux, the Rhine and Moselle and elsewhere. Last year more than 400 members went on a wine-tasting cruise around the Mediterranean on a chartered liner.

When such tours eventually are arranged for Sunday Mirror members, they will go to more popular and more instantly appealing vineyards, Dolly said. Satisfying the tastes of readers of the intellectually demanding Sunday Times and the entertaining tabloid really are two distinct operations, he added.

Julie Morrison, a Times club member who took one tour of the wineries of Bordeaux, rated it highly as a holiday and a cultural experience.

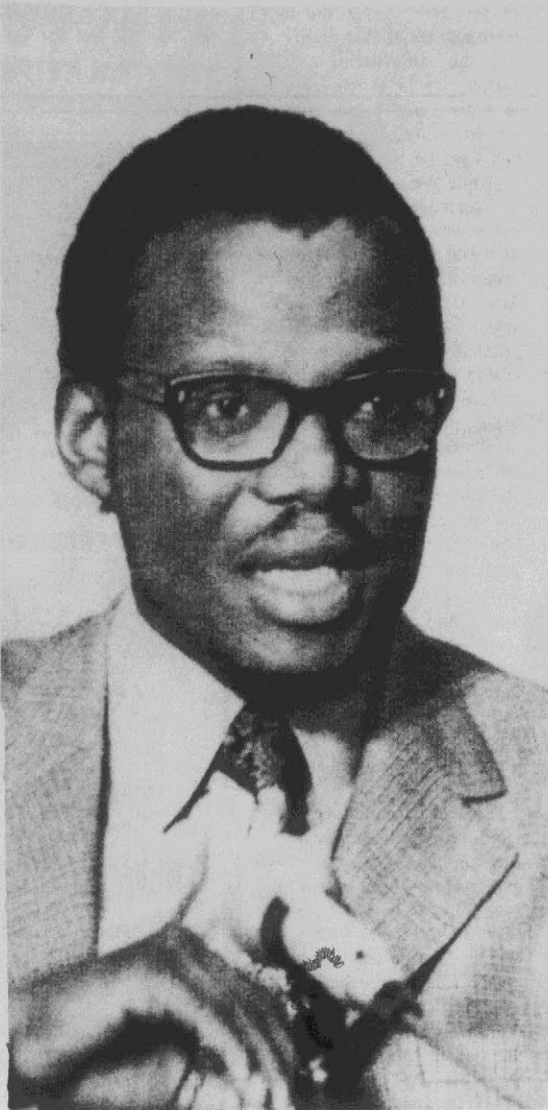

"We flew to France, and then went by coach to the various chateaux," she said. "They laid on light snacks and wine tastings, and I am certain that anyone like myself who could take wine or leave it before the trip now demands it at least for dinner."

Peter McKinley said the Daily Mirror Wine Club members he knew demanded unpretentious, inexpensive wines. "It has to be like that to win them away from beer and other drinks. They are not ready for the grand wines."

He said they were looking forward to a wine tour: a barge trip down the Rhine.

Dolly says the clubs unquestionably were adding to the quality of life by making fine wines available at fairly reasonable prices. The most expensive wine on the Times' list, more than double the next most price, is a Chateau Mouton Rothschild 1970, 1st growth Pauillac, "strangely seductive to the taste already, but don't be deceived, 1984 is the year to start drinking it," Dolly said. It costs the equivalent of $14 a bottle.

He said several British newspapers now have staff writers on wine. Club newsletters also spread the word.

CHIEF GATSHA BUTHELEZI

By LARRY HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — They defied the sticky heat of a Sunday afternoon to jam Jabulani Stadium in the sprawling African township of Soweto, roaring "power is ours."

They came on foot, in cars, buses and trucks. Black Africans from all over Johannesburg — to form a crowd of some 10,000 cheering people.

They came to cheer Chief Gatsha Buthelezi, leader of South Africa's 4 million Zulus, who spoke of oppression, racial apartheid discrimination and black liberation of white governed South Africa.

He called for moves towards "majority" rule in this nation of 18 million blacks governed by a minority of 4 million whites, declaring, "I am a kaffir (nigger) who has forgotten his place."

The Zulu prince, leader of the Kwa Zulu homeland or tribal reserve, also called on blacks of all tribes in South Africa to join his Inkatha National Cultural Liberation Movement.

While the Inkatha movement is essentially of Zulu origin it appears that Buthelezi was seeking to speak for all black South Africans.

There has been widespread speculation he is attempting to create a national black political movement to replace the long banned African National Congress led by the late Albert Luthuli in the 1950s.

Buthelezi said he was offering a black hand of friendship to South Africa's whites, but he added:

"In this eleventh hour, in this last hour, some things need to be said in this country. They need to be said by blacks and they need to be said very clearly and in unequivocal terms."

"We blacks are concerned first and foremost with liberation. We want to be free from the stigma of being unworthy of full citizenship or of being only worthy of fourth class citizenship and unworthy of having a real vote in the country of our birth."

"We want to be free to be equal to all other men. We want to be free to participate in majority decisions about the future of our country and our common destiny with other South Africans."

"We disdain the political role into which the white minority has relegated us. The white minority has foisted on us political circumstances which make a mockery of our dignity and our responsibility."

South Africa, he said, must move towards majority rule.

"It is this single principle that is central to any question to do with Southern Africa's politics. This is the burning question in Namibia (South-West Africa). This is the burning question in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) as much as it has been the burning question in Mozambique and Angola," he declared.

Buthelezi, long one of the most vocal black politicians in South Africa, also flatly rejected the government's policy of granting independence to African homelands or reserves carved out of South African territory.

Buthelezi referred to the homelands, the ultimate end of the policy of apartheid or separate racial development, as "Balkanisation which can only give white domination a breathing space and further prolong our peoples' suffering."

There were loud cheers as Buthelezi, his fist clenched in a black power salute, said:

"In spite of these words, I repeat that I still believe that it is still not too late to call for a white change of heart. I believe this not because I think that whites are going to have a sudden spasm of benevolence towards blacks."

"I believe that now that the whites can see the writing on the wall and that surely they can now realize that the country must move towards majority rule."

He said those trying to divide

South Africa into white areas and black tribal homelands are "mistaken men" who are "fighting against the force of history."

Most significant of all, perhaps, Buthelezi called for all Africans to join his movement with which "we shall produce a groundswell which will bring about change in South Africa."

There has been no official comment from the government, but Dieburger of Cape Town, official organ of the ruling National Party in the Cape Province, castigated Buthelezi sharply in an editorial last week.

It accused him of mobilizing and working up "radical expectations and feelings" among blacks.

Avoid Penalty

SNOW HILL, N.C. (AP) — Two brothers avoided possible death sentences Wednesday when they pleaded guilty to a variety of charges and were given three life sentences each.

Superior Court Judge John Webb sentenced Albert Lee Moore, 25, and Roy Alton Moore, 21, after they pleaded guilty to charges of second degree rape, first degree burglary and kidnaping.

The two white men had gone on trial accused of the capital crime of rape.

The rape victim, Miss Cleaster Ormond, a black woman, said she was satisfied with the sentences.

"I wanted them to get the punishment that they deserved, but I don't want nobody to take my life and I don't want to take nobody's life," she said.

Plan Tribute To Church Founders

Members of Holy Trinity Church will pay tribute to its founders and pioneers Sunday at 1 p.m. at the church. The church was organized in March, 1921.

All of the families of the founders will be given special recognition during the service and a bronze plaque bearing the names will be presented.

The public is invited to attend according to Charles W. Dingle, pastor.

Employment In Southeast Dips

ATLANTA (AP)—Employment figures show continuing recovery in Southeastern textile mills, but the overall number of jobs in the region dipped in January, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports.

Nonfarm employment in eight Southeastern states was reported at 11.9 million in January, down from 12 million in December but up 58,700 from the preceding January.

Employment in the region's textile mills rose 900 to a total of about 665,600 in January, the sixth monthly increase in a row, the federal agency reported.

The reports, compiled from state agencies' figures, cover Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

He is disappointed that United States liquor laws do not permit similar clubs in the United States.

"There are considerable problems there with the state liquor laws and the Federal Trade Commission, unfortunately," he said. "You can't use the club idea. They insist that if you make the offer in a newspaper, it must be available to everyone, whereas we think the club idea is vital."

"Despite the recession, one of the phenomenons of the past few years has been the way consumption of wine has increased. I think we have helped."

Contract construction continued to decline with 27,200 fewer jobs in January than in December and a loss of 83,200 jobs for the 12-month period.

There were about 60,300 fewer jobs in retail trade in January compared to December, the bureau said, but the loss in that category was just 17,000 from the preceding January.

The biggest increases during the 12-month period were in manufacturing—up 82,700 jobs—and all levels of government—up 75,300.

January figures show about 3.2 million Southerners employed in manufacturing, about 2.5 million in trade and 2.3 million in government work.

Average weekly earnings for workers in the region rose from $140.25 to $161.60 for the 12-month period but were down from the $163.59 December figure. National figures were $199.40 in January, $180.73 a year earlier, $204.00 in December.

Here are January 1976 and December 1975 nonfarm employment figures for the eight states:

Alabama 1.16 million, 1.17 million; Florida 2.71 million both months; Georgia 1.74 million, 1.76 million; Kentucky 1.08 million, 1.09 million; Mississippi 674,500, 685,300; North Carolina 2.03 million, 2.04 million; South Carolina 996,100, 1.01 million; Tennessee 1.55 million, 1.57 million.

LADY to the RESCUE

She's S. Sgt. Phyllis Jean Freed and she's shown here after over a year as the only flying female at Andrews Air Force Base, Md. Her job: aeromedical technician of Malcolm Grow General Hospital's 1st Helicopter Rescue Squadron at Andrews AFB. The job involves taking part in emergency evacuation of the sick and injured, and standing by as one of a helicopter rescue team on the ready for aircraft emergencies. The training for the job included Water Survival School—and being dropped by parachute into the Atlantic Ocean from 500 feet. She survived. Sgt. Freed joined the Air Force in 1968. She's married to S. Sgt. Regis J. Freed of Clark AFB in the Philippines and she's now assigned to join him there.

Many of the Bols tipsters have suggested that the key to successful play is to count the hands of the opponents. In the fifth entry in the second Bols Bridge Tips competition, Pietro Forquet, star of many of the Italian victories in the world championship and regarded by cognoscenti as perhaps the best player in the world, points out that might not be enough.

Forquet held the South cards in a rubber bridge game. He showed the power of his hand by cue-bidding the enemy suit and, when his partner showed values by jumping over game, Forquet elected to try for six no trump on the strength of his strong five-card suit.

Forquet won the opening heart lead and, when both defenders followed to two high clubs, he could count eleven tricks. The twelfth could come either from a 3-3 spade split or a successful diamond finesse. To get a better count of the defenders' hands, Forquet ran the rest of his clubs. Dummy and West each discarded two hearts, and East stuffed diamonds. Next, declarer cashed the ace and king of spades, to which both defenders followed.

Forquet could now count twelve of West's cards—seven hearts, three clubs and two spades. If West's thirteenth card was a spade, the diamond finesse had to succeed. If it was a diamond, the odds are 7:1 against it being the queen. So Forquet led a diamond to his jack and went down four!

He was quick to point out that he had a sure play for his contract. (Note that he could not afford to cash a third spade before finessing in diamonds for if the suit didn't break he would have no entry to dummy's ace of diamonds.) The winning plan is to project an endplay against East. Before cashing the king of spades, he should have cashed the king of diamonds. Assume that West follows with a low diamond. Now declarer plays four rounds of spades, discarding the jack of diamonds from his hand and throwing East on lead. East has nothing but diamonds, and must lead into dummy's A-10 tenace.

Forquet's advice: Count the opponents' hands—but when you have counted them, play intelligently!

Show Will Mark Its 20th Year

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — On April 2, CBS' "As the World Turns" celebrates its 20th year on TV. It began as a 15-minute saga and now offers the nation an hour's worth of soap opera five days a week, 52 weeks a year.

That's a fair log of longevity for a show that still is set in a mythical Midwest city of Oakdale, still emphasizes traditional American values and still concerns the lives of the two families it began with.

But it seems time to ask the show's producer, Joe Willmore, what he thinks of the new, often controversial tribe on the soap opera box, the ones who make and run about in "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

"I'm not going to criticize them," says Willmore, 33. "But I will say I'm not sure they know quite yet what they want to be, whether it's a comedy, a satire or a serial."

Willmore, who began with "As the World Turns" 7½ years ago and has produced it for three years, is able to watch "Mary Hartman" here now and then because his 12-hour working day ends at 8 p.m. and "Mary Hartman" commences at 11 p.m. on weeknights in Fun City.

Having inspected it, he concedes "they do have a kind of thread of a storyline that takes them through five days of shows."

"So from that standpoint, there is a serial form. But as far as what their basic intent

Inmates Are Separated

RALEIGH (AP) — Inmates at the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women have been separated into two housing areas with about half the population in a minimum security section.

Louis C. Powell, the prison correction administrator, said women would be able to earn their way from medium security dormitories to the single rooms in the cottage-type minimum security area.

"Before we didn't have any separation according to custody, he said. "This way we have a true minimum security setting."

Powell said there would be a fence around the minimum security area but it would not be manned by guards.

He said the change, made Friday, appeared "to have had great impact" on the prison inmates. "They realized this is something they can see, a reward they can receive when they accomplish certain goals."

The change gives the inmates something to work toward, Powell said. The single room and privileges such as work release and other community-based programs are earned by good behavior and attitude, he said.

Moved From Death Row

RALEIGH (AP) — Reginald Lampkins was taken off North Carolina's crowded Death Row Wednesday, a day before his 20th birthday.

When he was convicted of rape at the age of 17 he had become the youngest prisoner on Death Row.

Superior Court Judge William Z. Wood resented him in his hometown of Winston-Salem to 30 to 40 years imprisonment after deciding the crime was second-degree rape.

Lampkins had been convicted of raping a 22-year-old woman he was walking home from a party in Winston-Salem. He was sentenced to the gas chamber, but his execution was stayed pending appeals.

His attorney, Annie Brown Kennedy, said he now will be eligible for parole in 5½ years. He is to be transferred from Central Prison to the Polk Youth Center in Raleigh. Mrs. Kennedy said she would withdraw an appeal before the U.S. Supreme Court. Lampkins is the second Death Row inmate to receive a new sentence since North Carolina modified its rape law, dividing it into first-degree and second-degree offenses.

Bryant Henry Williams of Raleigh was given a life sentence after a Wake County judge decided last Jan. 15 that he had committed second-degree rape.

Loyalists Paid High Price For Allegiance To Crown

NEW YORK (UPI) — While musket balls whizzed about his head, Maj. Patrick "Bulldog" Ferguson, leader of the American Riflemen, galloped into the thick of the battle and was shot dead.

"Bulldog" had reasoned that his position on a stony outcrop of Kings Mountain was impregnable. He and his 1,500 American Riflemen had kept their powder dry and they were zealous believers in the righteousness of their cause.

Their position on the mountain in North Carolina overlooked that of the enemy on the slopes below and the major was sure he could defend his redoubt against any attack. Legend has it that Ferguson swore he could maintain his stronghold against an attack from "the Almighty himself."

But he made a terrible miscalculation on that fateful Oct. 7, 1780.

His adversaries were seasoned woodsmen and dead-shots with their long-barreled muskets.

When the battle was joined the woodsmen made their way up the incline Indian-style, emitting terrifying war-whoops, firing their weapons and ducking behind trees and shrubs, their buckskin garb blending with the autumn foliage.

After being repelled several times by bayonet charges they reached the top and engaged the American Riflemen in ferocious hand-to-hand combat.

Ferguson himself led several forays against the enemy and had two horses shot from under him before being killed at the height of the battle.

The carnage was appalling. Tumbling corpses, bodies spilling blood on the grass and rocks, the smell of gunpowder in the air, the dead heaped in mounds and the screams of the wounded echoing on the mountainside were described by survivors.

The beaten American Rangers lost more than 150 in dead and a similar amount injured seriously. Their enemies lost about 90 men killed or injured.

But the name of Ferguson is relatively unknown to readers of American history and that of the Rangers is equally obscure. The reason?

The American Rangers were Americans all right, but they were the OTHER Americans — those who remained loyal to the British crown, and their leader in the Westchester area operated primarily as guerrillas but for the most part regarded themselves as official military units.

The late Catherine S. Crary, in an article included in "The Loyalist Americans" (Sleepy Hollow Restorations) raised the question of whether the various loyalist groups were freebooters or were within the bounds of conventional warfare.

Referring specifically to the Westchester campaigns, Ms. Crary noted that while one historian called James DeLancey's Cowboys "the worthless and criminal element of the neighborhood in which they operated," another writer suggested that the Cowboys were called outlaws and villains because of the prejudice of early American historians.

A Capt. Samuel Kipp of Chappaqua, N.Y., who received his commission from the British in 1779, wrote of the Cowboys:

"They occupied the Post in the Front of the Lines of the British Army during the whole war, without Pay or any other Reward than their Duty as faithful subjects..."

A contemporary, Samuel Chadeayne, told of an incident where private James Totten was expelled by DeLancey for killing a French officer.

Chadeayne wrote, "Totten had come up to Colonel (Christopher) Greene with a flag when for some reason he was coolly and slightly received... and felt so much neglected and insulted that at parting he let fall this threat: 'Colonel Greene shall before long repent the treatment I have this day received!'"

When some sick soldiers were left at North Castle a French surgeon came down daily from Yorktown to attend them. He was waylaid by Totten and three others, robbed of his clothes, money and watch. The robbers played a game among themselves to decide who should kill the doctor and the deed was done.

When Totten later appeared wearing the victim's clothes he was reproved by DeLancey, who said:

"Totten, you think you have accomplished an honorable and brave exploit in taking the life of a poor French doctor who made no resistance. You are a disgrace to the Refugees (loyalists) and I want to see you no more. Take my advice and withdraw from this place for rely upon it if you don't the rebels will spare no effort or expense to hang you..."

The patriots, in their zeal to throw off the British yoke, often blamed loyalist guerrillas and regulars for acts of wanton cruelty which history has been unable to discredit or prove.

But one thing is certain — at the end of the Revolution those Americans who stood by King George and were given or took the name of "loyalists" suffered the fate of many of history's losers.

Many of the activists were tarred, feathered and ridden on rails. They also lost their property.

A case in point, discussed at length by Dr. Judd in "The Loyalist Americans," is that of Frederick Philipse III, who owned an estate of more than 90,000 acres extending some 25 miles up the Hudson River from New York City.

Philipse had been a signatory to a number of petitions to England deploring various grievances such as the Tea Act but when the crunch came he opted for the Crown. He was for liberty but not separation.

His adherence to the British cause resulted in his house arrest and in 1776 "by order of his Excellency General Washington taken in Custody at his own house, and immediately sent Prisoner from thence to New Rochelle, where he was confined under Guard" and soon after removed to Connecticut.

NEW PROTOTYPES — The U.S. Army has received helicopters from two different firms, Sikorsky and Boeing, to begin competitive testing to decide which will eventually replace the now used "Huey." Whichever is selected will be the infantry squad carrier of the future. Here the Boeing (top) and Sikorsky (bottom) models fly by during demonstration at Fort Benning, Ga. (AP Wirephoto)

'Promised Land' In Hyde County

By Dr. H. G. Jones
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL (AP)—It was just over a hundred years ago that W.H. Risley reached the "Promised Land" in Hyde County. In letters to his business colleagues in New York, he glowingly described the prospects of this new Eden.

Risley was an agent for the Southern Land Co., headquartered in New York City. The company, formed by George and Dan Bible and his brother-in-law, David Edmondson, purchased 90,000 acres of land from the State Board of Education "for the purpose of colonization and settlement."

The enterprise began shortly after the Civil War when the immigration of white settlers into North Carolina was being encouraged. After all, with so little native wealth surviving the war, the state's best hope seemed to be to invite people with means to move in.

A handsome map was drawn of the huge tract between Lake

Pungo and New (now Alligator) Lake. The land was laid off into 20-acre plots. Three "cities" were surveyed: Hyde Park City south of Lake Pungo; New England City southwest of Alligator Lake; and Frankfort on the north shore of Alligator Lake.

Broad boulevards were drawn into the map. Grand Boulevard ran due west from Alligator Lake; and from north to south, one on each side of Pungo Canal, ran the tree-lined Washington and Lafayette boulevards which crossed Grand in the dead center of Hyde Park City.

Other street names, obviously designed to attract Northerners and Germans, included Franklin, Webster, Everett, Dusseldorf, Berlin and Heidelberg.

To promote their project, the proprietors published a handsome booklet describing the Hyde Park Settlement and sporting the impressive map. Land was offered for $5 an acre in the rural area or $25 for a quarter-acre city lot. Arrangements were made to furnish lumber for $16 a thousand feet and shingles for $6 per thousand, delivered at the settlement.

Lands were described as consisting of the "richest alluvions" with free drainage capable of growing cotton, corn, tobacco, rice, fruits, vegetables, pastures, and timber. A "large and commodious hotel" was promised, overlooking Pungo, Phelps, and Alligator lakes. As a resort it would have no equal for "beauty and healthiness of location, pure water, mild and genial climate, fine views, elegant fishing and hunting, beautiful sailing. . ."

The climate was said to have curative effects upon those suffering from pulmonary diseases. In April, 1970, a detachment of "Pioneer settlers" took up residence on the Pungo Canal and, according to the promotional booklet, others arrived in rapid succession. "Many buildings are erected, and the settlers are busy at work, putting up buildings, cultivating crops, building fences, etc., pleased with their situation, and satisfied with the prospects of the future."

Several of these pioneers were induced to write of their delight with the new country. The Rev. William Clark of Myrtle Street Church, Brooklyn, wrote that he expected upon his return to deliver a lecture to encourage his members to migrate to Hyde Park.

The owners nevertheless warned that "drones in the hive are not wanted" and that the first year would be a "tug of war." After that, however, "comes clear skies, calm seas, and manly independence." Settlers were urged to bring hardware, groceries, and dry goods with them, but they were told that they could purchase oxen for plowing upon their arrival. A thousand dollars was suggested as the investment needed to build a home and buy food-stuffs until their luxuriant crops matured.

It is not known just how many settlers were attracted. What they found was quite at variance with the promotional literature. Instead of broad boulevards, they found only lanes out through the brush; and instead of easily cultivated land, they found mostly barren and swampy soils.

They had, to put it charitably, been misled by the promotional literature, and only a few remained. Old timers in Hyde remember stories of settlers with names like Brady, Corren, Finney, and Morrison. One—an Irish woman—survives in Hyde County folklore.

Mrs. Gorren, it seems, often walked to the nearest village for whiskey. She explained that on the way to Leechville and Hope's Corner she could walk the logs over the creeks and canals, but that on her way back she had to "pick up me skirts and wade."

Today the Promised Land has largely been reclaimed by the wildlife which was probably inconvenienced very little by the ambitious but abortive efforts to populate the Hyde Park settlement.

ROYAL FLUSH—Damo, five-year-old miniature Schnauzer, demonstrates automatic dog toilet invented by his master, A. DeVere Brockhouse, of Chicago suburban Park Ridge. When Damo steps into box, his weight cocks flushing mechanism. When he steps out, water flushes the waste away. "Apparently Damo finds it very satisfactory," Brockhouse says. "When we're out in the yard, he often comes back inside to use it." (AP Wirephoto)

Sees Trend To Welfare

A business symposium at East Carolina University was told last week that America's free enterprise system is threatened by federal regulations and by a "vast move" toward complete social welfare.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor of ECU, stressed a need to "take care of the human needs of deprived citizens" but said the federal government should not undertake programs that can better be handled by the free enterprise system.

"The free enterprise system looks pretty good when we examine what it has done for America," Jenkins said. "We must protect this free enterprise system."

Calling attention to "thousands and thousands of regulations and guidelines" set forth by the federal government, he said, "We cannot afford to smother the best economic system in the world. . ."

The ECU Chancellor spoke to a symposium sponsored by Phi Beta Lambda, a business fraternity, and the ECU School of Business.

Business, civic and community leaders attended the daylong symposium.

Geneological And Historical Units Meet

On Saturday, at 9:00 a.m., the N. C. Geneological Society and the Hillsborough Historical Society will convene at the Colonial Inn in Hillsborough for their Spring meeting. The program has been arranged by Dr. Lenox D. Baker of Durham.

Interested persons, and especially prospective members, are invited to attend this public meeting. Addresses will be made by Mrs. Carl Anderson of Durham, Mrs. Mildred Mangum Harris of Bahama, Cecil Sanford (President of the Hillsborough Historical Society), Dr. Baker, and Dr. Charles R. Holloman of Raleigh, President of the N.C. Geneological Society.

Dr. Sparrow In Publication

An article by East Carolina University faculty member W. Keats Sparrow appeared recently in a professional journal for technical writers and university professors of communication.

Dr. Sparrow's "Motivating Recalcitrant Business and Technical Writing Students" was published in the fourth issue of the 1975 volume of "The Journal of Technical Writing and Communication." The article explains how technical communications play a major role in the effectiveness of career, social, and civic endeavors. It will be abstracted in a forthcoming issue of "Engineering Index."
