Carter And Jackson Win Demo Contests; 6th For Ford

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent Jimmy Carter and Henry M. Jackson gained the victories, but in the end, the divided Democratic verdicts of the Wisconsin and New York presidential primary elections could prove a boon to the man who wasn't there - Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

President Ford won his sixth Republican primary, winning easily over challenger Ronald Reagan in Wisconsin. But the drama was packed into the Democratic contest there, a race that turned around early today and tipped into Carter's column as the final votes were counted, hours after Rep. Morris K. Udall staged a premature victory celebration. Washington's Sen. Jackson won convincingly in New York, although he fell short of the delegate majority he had forecast. He wound up with 41 per cent of the state's 274 Democratic National Convention delegates. Udall came up a loser despite a costly, intensive Wisconsin campaign. The defeat was magnified by his claim he had won on the basis of an early lead and victory projections by ABC and NBC. But the Arizona congressman won a big bloc of New York delegates. That showing, coupled with his near miss in Wisconsin, probably will be enough to keep his campaign going. So Tuesday's two primary elections point to another three-way race in the next big Democratic test, for Pennsylvania's 178 delegates on April 27. That could work to Humphrey's advantage. The more candidates there are to divide the votes, the more likely a stalemate that would leave room for a late entry by the Minnesota senator, who is shunning the primaries but says he will reassess his potential candidacy if there is no clear leader after the final primary voting on June 8.

In addition, there is both overt and latent Humphrey support, among the uncommitted Democratic delegates elected in New York. NBC said it surveyed Wisconsin voters and found that 40 per cent of those who cast ballots for Udall said they would have gone for Humphrey had he been running Tuesday. There were signals that Humphrey would have preferred a Udall win in Wisconsin to stall Carter. The former Georgia governor suggested that Humphrey had in effect campaigned for Udall. In Milwaukee, the smiling Carter got out of bed for a belated victory statement, displaying a newspaper with a

Pitt School Board Drops Sewage-Connection Plan

By SUSAN QUINN Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education voted Tuesday not to complete plans to connect the sewage of the Ayden-Grifton High School with the force main pumping station of the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewage District on Highway 11 across from the school.

changes, violation testing times, and a timetable which should be followed for the conversion of the systems. "We are supportive of the change, but we have found that coal is more accessible at this time," said Supt. Ott Alford. The board voted to continue with plans to change the heating systems as previously planned unless forced to change the systems before.

A proposed $80,229.17 Driver Education Budget was accepted by the board and the board voted to employ Larry Lewis as Director of Driver Education with the responsibility of instructing a minimum number of students while giving overall direction to the operation of the Summer Driver Education Program. Glenn Strickland, principal of A.G. Cox School in Winterville presented plans to the board for the construction of a field house on the A.G. Cox School grounds. The construction project will be financed by the Winterville Kiwanis Club according to Strickland. The board voted to allow the construction of the building and to finance and handle the wiring, electricity and sewage of the building. Occupational Director Carl Toot asked the board to consider the leveling of occupational programs' status. Toot explained that since all of the occupational programs are given a Level II status, college bound students are limited to the number of quality points in these programs. The board voted to submit the problem to the Planning Team to decide what levelling or quality point system should be used for these programs, but in the meantime not to penalize any individual student because of lack of quality points for the coming school year.

The board voted to allow a fixed sum to support occupational programs and other school clubs in release time for teachers, and travel expenses be given to each school. Shelly Marsh, Chairman of the Pitt County Association of Coaches, appeared before the board to discuss the following: (a) Representation from the coaches group at each board meeting, (b) A one-hour practice session for each team during semester and six weeks examinations, (c) An after school and summer recreational program for each school area (high school) to be supported and financed by the county, (d) the reestablishment of the county coaches supplement pay schedule, (e) An updating of athletic facilities to include tracks, baseball fields, fieldhouses, and laundry facilities, and (f) Transportation of athletic teams to be borne by the county and the addition of county vans for use by athletic teams.

Supt. Alford explained that he favors the representation of the coaches to the board to be made by an administrator, rather than a coach. The board voted to study the six points that the coaches had presented for 30 days. The board voted to accept the Goodson and Flanagan bid of $543 annually for the $25,000 Blanket Position Bond on school employees.

In other business the board: -Heard a report by John McKnight about the preparation of the second phase of the state accreditation in the schools. -Voted to approve a request for miscellaneous appropriations totalling $2,097.23. -Accepted plans for the spring baseball and softball programs and plans for the seventh and eighth grade Field

Day presented by Gibb Chauncey Coordinator of the Middle School Athletic Program. -Accepted recommendations for maternity leave, employment replacements and substitute teachers. -Approved the assignment of student interns to Richard Daves, Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor. The board adjourned and held an executive session concerning two personnel matters.

Close Fight Expected On Ford's Veto

WASHINGTON (AP)—A close fight is expected as Congress prepares to try to override President Ford's veto of a bill that would provide $125 million to help the states meet new federal standards in establishing day care centers.

Ford vetoed the bill on Tuesday, saying it "would perpetuate rigid federal child day-care standards for all the states and localities in the nation, with the cost to be paid by the federal taxpayer."

He urged Congress to enact his own program, under which states would establish and enforce their own day care standards and set up the social service programs they want. Day care centers care for children of working mothers and have been cited as one way women with small children can get off welfare rolls and into jobs without leaving their children unattended.

"I sure hope we can override, but it will be close," said Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., after the House set May 4 as the date for an override vote.

Ullman said the measure was a "good honorable compromise" bill.

The four-county Senatorial District is currently served by two Democrats—Vernon White of Winterville and Julian Allsbrook of Roanoke Rapids.

Prior to his recent retirement, Grayiel served 35 years with the U.S. Postal Service. A Bertie County native, he attended public schools in Scotland Neck and Williamston before his family moved to Tarboro where he graduated from high school.

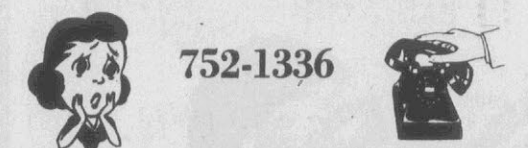

Grayiel is married to the former Climmie Ruth Wooten of Ayden and the couple has three children. He is a member of Tarboro's First Baptist Church and is Cubmaster of Pack 553 in Tarboro and recipient of the Green Band, the Compass and Silver Beaver awards for his work in scouting.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

MEDICAID, MEDICARE ACCEPTANCE DIFFICULT

Who in Greenville can give information on where to take an elderly person who is on Medicaid and Medicare to a doctor. I recently spent three hours on the phone trying to find a doctor to whom to take my father, who is 76. Mrs. R. B.

If you get a good answer to this question, Hotline would like to hear it and share it with our readers. So many have asked us the same question. A doctor to whom we posed this question said, "The reason you can't get a good answer is because there is not one. It's all part of the doctor shortage here. Medicaid and Medicare patients are particularly difficult problems, unless they're long-time patients of a particularly physician, because of the great amount of paper work involved and because of the federal governments slow and inadequate reimbursement plan."

We realize this is a simplistic answer to a complicated question, and is not helping you with your present dilemma. We're relieved to learn that you did finally find a physician in a nearby town who agreed to see your father, but we realize that there are many other people who have not been so fortunate.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

SCRAPBOOK RETURNED

Hotline is mailing the scrapbook whose owner was appealed for last week back to Willie Lou Grizzard's mother.

Mrs. Myrtle Magee, who lives in Capron, Va., called Friday to say she had seen a notice about our wish to return her daughter's scrapbook in the Waverly, Va. Sussex-Surry Dispatch. We had written this newspaper, asking them to either run an appeal for us or check around on their own. They apparently did the former and we thank them.

Mrs. Magee expressed her surprise and delight at the scrapbook's turning up, saying that her daughter has not lived in Farmville, where the book was found, in the past two years. She said she would be glad to remit postage if we'd mail it to her. This we're doing today.

BILL CRAWFORD

Reports Progress In Bike Race Planning

By SUSAN QUINN Reflector Staff Writer Bill Crawford, Race Director of the U.S. Bike Race scheduled for June 11-19 on a route from Murphy, N.C. to Manteo visited Greenville Tuesday.

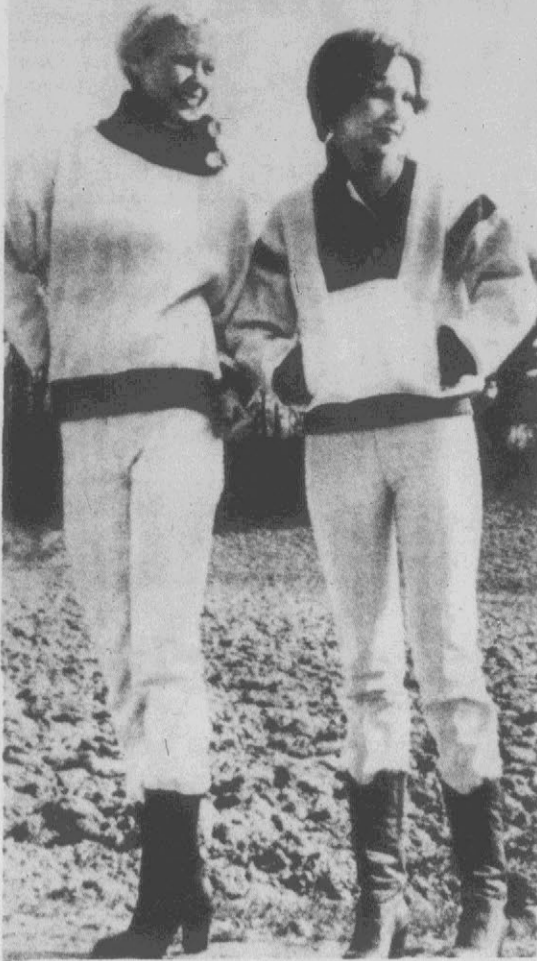

Crawford presented a film to Chamber of Commerce merchant Association members he explained is similar to the race to be held in North Carolina. The 900-mile race will have competitors, of Olympic calibre," Crawford said. "The 90 members competing will consist of 15 five member teams with five U.S. teams and 10 foreign teams." "The race will be very important to pre-Olympic practice for the racers who will be competing in Montreal one month after the N.C. race. "The race will begin in

Murphy then travel to Bryson City, Asheville, Boone, Winston-Salem, Pinehurst, Wilmington, New Bern, Greenville, and Manteo, "Crawford said. "Each racer will ride about 100 miles daily at speeds of 25 to 45 per hour on the flat land and about 60 miles per hour on the mountain slopes. Only men will compete in the race. They will eat, drink and partially rest on their bicycles but will not stop until the finish of each leg of the race each day." "This will be a very difficult race and we will be working closely with the N.C. Highway Patrol and the city police officers. I rode downtown with Chief Glenn Cannon today and we decided to bring the racers into Greenville on Hwy. 264 from New Bern, turn left on to the by-pass, turn right on 14th Street, turn left on Elm Street and ride into Ficklen Stadium." The race will bring international publicity to North Carolina in that 10 foreign journalists are being brought to North Carolina at the expense of the U.S. Travel Service to cover the race for the foreign countries represented in the race, the Mutual Radio Network will

National Food Day Planned For Thursday

National Food Day is being observed in Greenville and throughout the nation Thursday, Apr. 8, as a kickoff for public education on how individual eating habits affect the world, says ECU United Methodist Campus Minister Dan Earnings.

"We're asking all the churches in the area to promote this idea in their bulletins and in their services and activities," he said. I know there will be a special appeal in the Methodist Church and the Newman Club on campus is planning to give its profits from a Walk for Development in early May to a world hunger fund.

Part of this year's observance has been to publicize a day's menu prepared by Boston nutritionist Arlene Gorelick featuring healthy, nutritious and tasty eating at reasonable prices, Earnings said.

The day's good eating begins with whole wheat-apple pancakes for breakfast. The main course for lunch is an open-faced sandwich of melted cheese over tomato slices and young bean sprouts. Dinner includes eggplant-chickpea ragout with brown rice, spinach salad, steamed broccoli, and fruit salad for dessert. The menu also allows for snacks during the day and in the evening.

Nutritionist Gorelick said, "This meal plan is both high in protein; it has almost no added sugar; and it's substantially lower in fat than the typical American meal (28 percent as opposed to the average of 42 percent)."

The meal plan, consisting of breakfast, lunch, dinner, and two snacks, contains at least 100 percent of the U.S. RDA of iron, calcium, protein, thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, vitamin A and vitamin C. The food is rich in fiber because it includes many servings of whole, unrefined vegetables, grains, and beans. Standard servings of the foods will provide a total of 2,083 calories.

The national coordinator of Food Day, Michael Jacobson, Ph.D., observed, "This meal plan should lay to rest any idea that nourishing foods cannot be delicious. And if everyone regularly ate the kinds of foods included in Ms. Gorelick's menu, the national toll of such diet-related health problems as tooth decay, bowel cancer, and heart disease would be significantly lower."

Food Day, a project of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, is a national day of education and action on problems related to nutrition, hunger, and agribusiness.

Recipes for the two more complicated items on the menu follow:

Whole Wheat-Apple Pancakes
This recipe was inspired by the pancake recipes in the Tassajara cookbook.
2 cups whole wheat flour
2 eggs
2 cups skim milk
2 medium cooking apples
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 Tablespoons vegetable oil

1 Tablespoon honey
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg, mace
Grate the apples. (You should have about 1 cup grated apple.)
Beat the eggs. Combine eggs, apple, milk, honey, and oil. Mix or sift together flour, salt, baking powder, and spices. Make a well in dry ingredients, add liquid ingredients, and stir. Cook pancakes on a hot griddle, lightly oiled. Serves 6.

Eggplant-Chickpea Ragout
1 cup dry chickpeas (garbanzos)
1 eggplant, weighing about 1 lb.

2 lbs. tomatoes
2 onions
juice of ½ lemon
3 Tablespoons vegetable oil
2 teaspoons dill weed

The night before, wash the chickpeas thoroughly; soak overnight in 5-6 cups water. To cook, put peas into 5-6 cups cold water (you can use the water they soaked in), bring to boil, and simmer about 1 hour. (In a pressure cooker, allow about 15-20 minutes.) While they cook, dice the eggplant into ½-inch cubes, slice the onions, dice the tomatoes. Heat oil in a heavy frying pan. Add dill, onions; saute until onions are translucent. Add eggplant, cooking until eggplant browns. Add tomatoes, chickpeas, and lemon juice; salt to taste; and allow to cook 10-15 minutes more. Serves 6. Can be eaten over or alongside brown rice.

WHOLEWHEAT BANANA LOAF
1 cup wholewheat (graham) flour

¼ cup wheat germ
1 teaspoon baking soda
¾ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups mashed ripe bananas (4 medium)
¼ cup plain yogurt
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup raisins

Stir together the wholewheat flour, wheat germ, baking soda and salt. Stir together bananas and yogurt. In a medium mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar; beat in egg; gently beat in flour mixture in several additions, alternately with banana mixture just until smooth each time. Stir in raisins. Turn into a greased 8 by 4 by 2¼-inch loaf pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—55 to 60 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out on wire rack; turn right side up; cool completely before slicing.

Note: The wholewheat (graham) flour should be about as fine as white flour; coarser stoneground wholewheat flour does not work in this recipe. The raisins are needed to absorb moisture; without them the bread may have a "sad" line at the bottom.

Abby Helps Child Deal With Death

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a Sunday School teacher. One of my pupils' mothers told me that a few years ago you had something in your column in reply to a child who had lost his baby brother. She said your answer explained death beautifully on a child's level. If you recall such a letter, I would appreciate your printing it again.

LOVES CHILDREN

DEAR LOVES CHILDREN: I do recall such a letter because of the many requests I had from clergymen requesting permission to reprint it in their church bulletins. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: My Sunday School teacher says that God is everywhere. Please put this letter in the paper and maybe he will see it:

Dear God: Why did you let my brother die? When he was hit by the car my mother prayed to you to let him live but you wouldn't. My little brother was only 2 years old, and he couldn't have sinned so bad that you had to punish him that way. Everyone says you are good and can do anything you want to do. You could have saved my little brother, but you let him die. You broke my mother's heart. How can I love you?

PETER

DEAR PETER: Your question is one that has troubled religious men for thousands of years. One great thinker wrote a book about it. It is called "Job" and is part of the Bible. It says that the suffering of innocent people is something we cannot understand.

But this much is sure: Death is not a punishment. It is one of life's mysteries. Speak to your minister, Peter. Communicate with God by praying, and He will help you in your search for wisdom and goodness, and make your Mommy happy again.

DEAR ABBY: My husband plays cards with the boys one night a week. Whenever I ask him how he came out, he says, "Oh, I broke even."

Abby, it's not possible to break even every time. Do you think he keeps his losses a secret because he's ashamed or because he thinks I'll try to keep him from playing if he loses too much? On the other hand, could he keep his winnings a secret because he's afraid I'll ask him for part of his winnings?

FAYE

DEAR FAYE: Both

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal study shows a strong demand for single family, detached housing continuing, despite big growth in the condominium concept of residential living.

A 384 per cent growth in condominiums, or shared-ownership units, has occurred since 1970, when 440,000 such units existed in the United States. Nearly half the current total are in California, New York and Florida, the study showed.

More people of all ages are using bank services than ever before. Besides the many adults who depend on the efficiency of bank services, young people often begin savings accounts as children and then open checking accounts as they begin to work and handle their own business affairs. Some older adults who have never used bank services are now enjoying the convenience and safety of having their Social Security payments deposited directly into a bank account.

There are many good reasons for using a bank. It can help you:

• Keep money and valuables safe. Your accounts are usually insured by the government.
• Save time, energy, and money, especially when you pay bills or make deposits by mail.
• Keep records of payments you have made by saving the cancelled checks.

If you keep money in a bank, you may also be able to establish a good credit rating, use a bank for reference, get a loan more easily, and get financial advice.

If you want to open a checking account, there are some things you will need to do:

1. Decide where you want to bank. You will need to consider the location of the bank or its branches and the types of checking services offered by the different banks. You may also be concerned about the time that the bank will be open and when you can go.

2. Investigate the types of checking accounts at several convenient banks. Each bank has several different types of checking accounts, and the charges may vary depending upon the type of checks you want to use, the number you will write each month and whether or not you will be required to keep some minimum balance in the account at all times. Decide which type of account is best for you.

3. To open the account you will need to give your name, address and other information such as Social Security number to the bank you choose. You will sign a signature card which indicates the way you will sign your name on checks, and a card which indicates the ownership of funds in the account. The latter card concerns who gets the money if you die.

4. You will have some choice in the form and color of checks you will use, and will need to order checks. The bank will provide some checks to use until your personal checks are delivered.

5. Deposit some money to activate the account.

6. If you would keep your checkbook under control, you must:

—Record the amount of each deposit and add that amount to the balance in your checkbook.
—Record the amount of each check written and subtract that amount from the balance.

Never write checks for more than the balance that is showing in your checkbook unless you have signed an agreement with the bank to put an automatic loan in your account when the balance goes below a certain amount.

—Subtract from the balance the amount of any bank charges that show on the bank statement, such as service charges for checks, drafts you have authorized from businesses, overdrafts, or North Carolina "intangibles" tax.

WINE RECORD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California wine shipments to market last year set an all-time record of 272.5 million gallons, an increase of more than 22 million over the previous year. John De Luca, president of the Wine Institute, a trade organization, said table wines were up 11.2 per cent, appetizer and dessert wines rose 4.5 per cent and sparkling wines, 6.1 per cent.

Reagan Has Become A Battler

Ronald Reagan's win in North Carolina's recent presidential primary has given his campaign for the GOP nomination new impetus. Reagan faced dismal prospects prior to the North Carolina primary and knowledgeable observers were predicting his withdrawal from the race, anticipating a loss for Reagan in the Tar Heel state.

Things didn't go according to the script, however, and Reagan won in North Carolina. Last week he followed up that win with a fighting nationwide address on television.

In that address Reagan accused President Ford of not doing a good job of pulling the nation out of the recession.

He accused Secretary of State Kissinger of being willing to negotiate for a second place position in world affairs.

"Dr. Kissinger is quoted as saying that he thinks of the United States as Athens and the Soviet Union as Sparta," Reagan said. "The day of the United States is past," Reagan attributed to Kissinger, "and today is the day of the Soviet Union."

Kissinger, by the way, denied the attributed statements as false and "totally irresponsible."

At any rate, Reagan went on to say that he didn't want to live "in a world where the Soviet Union is No. 1."

Reagan said peace will come "from the restoration of American military superiority."

The Reagan talk last week is a good indication that he will continue to battle for the Republican nomination — and it is generally felt that taking the nomination away from an incumbent president is very difficult indeed.

We can expect Reagan to hit harder at the foreign affairs aspect of the Ford administration. Considering the state of things that might be Ford's most vulnerable area.

Make All Pitt Phone Calls Toll-Free

Ed Yancey, Pitt agriculture extension chairman, reported to the county commissioners this week that residents Grifton and Fountain initiate a request for toll free telephone service to Greenville.

A survey would then be conducted and then a vote could be held.

We would certainly like to see this done. Much of Pitt County now has toll free service to Greenville and we would want to see the day when the entire county is toll free.

We hope steps will soon be taken so that Fountain and Grifton will enjoy toll-free telephone service to Greenville.

Building A Health System

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Work is moving ahead in North Carolina's six regional health planning areas to set up the Health Systems Agencies required by a new federal law.

Despite a suit soon to be filed by the state Department of Human Resources and the N.C. Medical Society challenging that law, and a pending suit against it by the American Medical Association, state officials expect the regional organizations to be in operation before summer.

The theory at work is simply this: a number of health officials consider the new federal approach a blatant takeover of local and state authorities, but figure steps to comply will be essential to gaining federal funds.

Recently resigned Human Resources Secretary David T. Flaherty labels the new law a step toward socialized medicine, and one which creates a "health czar" to dictate all federal spending.

Federal Control
Archie, T. Johnson, assistant human resources secretary for health, says the new approach is deliberately designed to become the mechanism for eventually implementing a federal health insurance program.

Any health program in which federal funds are used is affected; nursing homes, hospitals, medical schools, rehabilitation centers, health clinics, etc.

In a nutshell, the law requires regional agencies (six in this state) to set priorities for all health programs and major investments in expanded or new facilities or equipment.

It also gives the secretary of the federal Department of Health Education and Welfare full power to deny or approve all plans.

"Any act that delegates such overwhelming authority to the (feds) is unsound in providing quality medical care to the public," says Dr. James E. Davis, president of the state Medical Society.

"We will, however, continue to cooperate with the law until there is some final determination..."

Gearing up for the new system has caused considerable trouble across this state. In the eastern 29 counties, lumped into one region, the planning body was fired by the governor and a new one set up. In several regions, the sprawling size and orientation to distant communities is creating problems.

Medical leaders oppose the law because it will affect public or private plans for investment and programs, and because one phase of the approach calls for a study of rate regulation.

"Everything is working against this law... it usurps Constitutional rights of the state; it requires federal approval over local or state decisions; and one individual can regulate all health plans," Johnson says.

Strong Reaction
Flaherty believes the law "is in direct conflict with the so-called New Federalism trend of allowing state and local governments more decision-making authority," and Johnson has said he believes the law was passed by Congressmen who did not realize what they were adopting and signed by President Ford without his full understanding.

There was some confusion left following the recent announcement of the state's intention to sue the federal government. Officials and lawyers focused on one narrow portion of the new law: the certificate-of-need requirement.

That provision was singled out simply because North Carolina's Supreme Court has held a particular certificate-of-need law unconstitutional. Thus, the suit can have a Constitutional foundation.

A certificate-of-need requirement is simply that any new or expanded health facility must pass a planning board test to avoid overbuilding.

That is far from the most objectionable feature of the new federal health law, those involved confess, and the state suit will be aimed at the entire new law, not just that portion.

North Carolina is well ahead of other states in planning to put the new law into effect, and intends to continue that work. Officials expect an increasing uproar nationally as other states realize the far-reaching implications of the law.

BUT WHAT'LL HE HAVE LEFT?

No Georgetown Snickers

WASHINGTON—My good friend William Safire is a very rare bird in Washington. He is the only columnist in town who still is willing to defend his old boss Richard Nixon. Last week Mr. Safire raged at all the Nixon-haters for snickering at the story in the Woodward and Bernstein book when President Nixon asked Henry Kissinger to get down on his knees and pray with him. Then the President broke down in tears and cried like a baby.

Mr. Safire, who constantly points out the excesses of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson to show that Mr. Nixon was guilty of no more wrongdoing, accused the Georgetown set of ascribing the praying and crying of Nixon to mental instability.

As spokesman for the Georgetown set, I wish to assure Safire that not one person in the area snickered when they read the story. The reason was, according to Woodward and Bernstein, Mr. Nixon had not only been praying and crying—he had also been drinking. It is perfectly all right with the Georgetown set for a President to pray, even with Henry Kissinger. But it's another thing for the President of the United States to drown his sorrows in booze.

The reason is obvious. The President of the United States, as everyone is aware, has his finger on the BUTTON. The fear of all of us was that a drunk President might decide in his stupor that if he had to go, he was going to take Georgetown with him.

We had a nightmare of Mr. Nixon staggering through the White House mumbling, "Where's the button? Gotta push the button. I'll show those (expletives) that they can't push the President of the United States around. Pat, where's the BUTTON?"

"I hid it. Go to bed, Richard."

"You had no right to hide the button. It's my button and I can push it if I want to."

"Please, Richard, you've had too much to drink. I'll tell you where the button is in the morning."

"I want to know where it is now. As Commander-in-Chief, I order you to tell me where the button is. If you refuse, I'll have to assume you're one of THEM."

"Please, Richard. Tell me again about China."

"I Don't want to talk about China. I want a drink, and then I'm going to find the button."

"Richard, will you stop throwing all my clothes out of the drawers! It's not in any of them. I didn't hide the button in the medicine cabinet either... No, it's not under the bed. Now why don't you go to sleep?"

"It's gotta be somewhere in this house. I'll bet you Al Haig knows where the button is... Operator, get me Haig... Al, you have any idea where Pat hid the button? ... Yeah, THAT button... what do you mean why do I want to know? ... Don't argue with me... Where the hell is it? ... You don't know? ... Well, is there another button around? ... There's only one? ... Dammit, there should be a spare one... Suppose it got lost or something. Al, the first thing I want you to do tomorrow morning is put a button in every room in the White House... When I want to push it, I don't want to have to go looking all over for it... You wanna come up and have a drink with me? ... Ah, you're no fun. I don't know"

Other Editors Say Freedom's Price

(Wilson Daily Times)

Eternal vigilance is the price. North Carolina will be found in the ranks of those fighting for freedom with every chance it has. The latest example is when Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., members of the state Broadcasters Association, Bar Association, and the N. C. Press Association carried the fight for freedom all the way to top levels of the Washington bureaucracy and won a reversal of regulations which would have had the weight of law.

The issue was free access to criminal records by the public. The new federal regulations published by the U. S. Justice Department said essentially that the only access to criminal justice information from couris to police sources would be in current cases and even then the information could be gained only if the asker knew the date of the court action.

Thus, rather than being able to inquire about a specific person and get a complete rundown of any previous brushes with the law, as is now the case, the information would have been available only in a limited manner, with the inquirer needing to know the answers before being able to get them verified.

There are numerous cases in which people need to know a person's possible criminal background. A bank guard or night watchman should be trustworthy, a person handling the funds for a business or charity drive should be honest, a candidate for political office should have his record inspected so voters can judge, a person hired to work with young people should be clean of previous offenses.

Gov. Holshouser considers his work in overturning the federal regulations a major accomplishment of his term in office. No other state governor or national press leader foresaw the problems envisioned by this state's leadership.

In this case and in many others federal directives which have significant effect on the daily lives of citizens are contained in bulky, technical papers. Often by the time you realize there are important problems it is too late to do anything about it. The regulations have taken effect and the plans are drawn.

In this case, though, top officials got concerned, carried their questions to Deputy Attorney General Harold Tyler and found that he was astonished to see what his own agency was proposing.

Tyler arranged public hearings in Washington. North Carolina was the only state represented, the others either being unaware or unconcerned.

THE INSIDE REPORT

A 'No' From Thurmond

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, whose steadfast support pinned down the Republican presidential nomination for Richard M. Nixon against Ronald Reagan's challenge in 1968, politely turned down a secret White House request to do the same for President Ford shortly before the March 23 North Carolina primary.

The explicit request was made at a time Mr. Ford's political managers sensed a rising tide against Reagan and were eager to apply the him. Present also was Harry Dent, a top Republican in South Carolina who once served as Thurmond's administrative aide and later as political agent in the Nixon White House.

Thurmond's response: he will maintain his neutrality until the issue is resolved either by Reagan's possible withdrawal before the Kansas City convention (now regarded as unlikely) or the convention itself decides the issue.

Thurmond's importance to Mr. Ford could scarcely be overestimated. Thurmond more than any other party leader saved shaky Southern states for Nixon against Reagan's later bid for the 1968 nomination.

Not long after Nixon became President in 1969, Reagan asked and got from Thurmond a pledge of neutrality in the event Reagan ever should make another bid for his party's presidential nomination.

Thurmond privately says he is now honoring that pledge. He indicated as much when Mr. Ford himself brought up the possibility of a Thurmond endorsement with the Senator soon after Reagan announced his candidacy last November. That Mr. Ford sent Spencer to McLean four months later shows how eager the President was to get rid of Reagan.

Since then, the President's case has deteriorated — with North Carolina lost and severe tests approaching in six Southern states in May (beginning with Texas May 1).

BETTER VISIBILITY
If you have ever stood on the seashore looking out over the waves, you have no doubt observed that visibility is better on a cloudy day than on a fair day. One can see further out to sea when the heavens are overcast than when the sun is shining brightly.

Those who have been through great sorrow almost invariably testify that they saw farther into the purposes of God and understood them better upon life's dark days than upon its sunny days. Always, when the sun shone brightly, the distant objects of life seemed to be obscured. It was after a day of storm, while the clouds still covered the sky, that distant objects stood out in bold relief against the horizon.

What a strange world we live in. Pain begets resignation; sacrifice brings forth happiness. It is in sorrow that we know God's greatest gifts of comfort. Some day we shall know why.

An 'Affordable Home' Resulted

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The "affordable home," as builders sometimes call it, is one of the most beneficial consequences of the late and unlamented recession of 1974-1975.

Benefits? Yes, recessions do help us out in a way, a very painful way, by correcting some of the excesses of price and demand. Both those excesses were evident in the housing market.

The typical new single-family dwelling swelled in size in the late 1960s and early 1970s through the addition of the guest room, the family room, the extra bath, the eat-in kitchen. The home was becoming the castle.

Labor and materials prices were rising at the same time, and gradually the typical home price rose from the low and mid-$30,000 range up into the $40,000-plus category. Taxes and interest rates were rising too.

The American dream became wishful thinking; it became unaffordable, and home starts collapsed from a peak of 2.4 million units in 1972 to fewer than 1 million in the first quarter of this year.

Back to the drawing boards went builders all over America, seeking to design homes whose prices would be in line with incomes. Potential buyers at the same time were lowering their demands.

So, out of the recession came a gradual return to sanity in the housing market. Builders all over the country today are offering houses that actually cost less than those of two years ago.

Some of the economies were obtained by shrinking the size of the unit, eliminating extras, substituting good for expensive cabinets, eliminating the garage, leaving the attic unfinished. But this was only part of the story.

Builders recognized also that economies could be produced through changes in their own business practices — by eliminating waste, ordering materials more sensibly, scheduling work better, marketing the product more intelligently.

One company, Kaufman and Broad, a major builder, now claims it has brought prices down to a $29,000 to $36,000 range, affordable by families with income of $15,000, whereas the $40,000-plus price of a few years ago required a $20,000 income.

Meanwhile, savings and loan associations and other lenders are loaded with funds to lend, and interest rates are settling lower generally under 9 per cent, making home financing a slight bit easier.

Again, the influx of money to the lending institutions is a direct consequence of the recession. People save — or attempt to save — during insecure economic times, thus preparing the financing for the next upturn.

The lessons of thrift and efficiency and prudence that are learned in recession have a way of disappearing again as times get better. But for the time being, Americans can take advantage of the healthier situation.

Seeking Better Service

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — On March 19, Moscow's evening newspaper published a glowing report about the city taxi drivers of Motor Pool 15. They had pledged themselves to "excellent service," had posted little signs to that effect on their dashboards and praise from customers was rolling in.

But on a recent night outside Moscow's biggest hotel, the model drivers of Motor Pool 15 were nowhere to be found and the surly, more traditional cab drivers of Moscow were, as always, demanding exorbitant fares and insulting anyone who complained.

The contrast points up the difficulties the Soviet government is having with its latest drive to improve service in taxis, restaurants, stores, government offices and other banes of the long-suffering consumer.

The controlled press, aided by the Communist party and the Young Communist League, has no trouble finding model citizens to write about. But when it comes to convincing the average worker that he has something to gain from giving good service, the message obviously still hasn't gotten through.

This year's campaign is not the first time the Soviets have tried to perk up the service industries, but the stakes in the current campaign are higher than ever.

The 1976-80 economic plan calls for a 27-29 per cent increase in retail turnover, aimed at getting more money into circulation and moving the goods and services that many citizens consider the best test of how well their government is taking care of them.

If citizens aren't satisfied with the assortment of goods, perhaps smiling service will convince them to buy something anyhow. As M. Golubtsova, a department head at Moscow's Detsky Mir

Carolina rivers already out of their banks at some points, rose slowly toward their flood crests today as small tributaries, swollen by a four-inch rain, disgorged their heavy loads.

Flood waters covered lowlands at many points, damaging spring crops and 21 highways in South Carolina and nine in western North Carolina.

The Southern Railway suspended service over several lines in South Carolina.

B. T. Clark, in charge of the local weather bureau, said today the Tar River is rising rapidly and predicted it would at least reach its flood stage of 14 feet.

Heavy rains last night and this morning will carry the river out of its banks, he predicted, but whether it would reach the high mark of the season — over 17 feet — was not known.

The river was standing at 12.3 feet this morning, but reaching higher ground hourly.

Took $851,000 Probably Would Take In Cash Robbery N.Y. City To Court

JACKSON CELEBRATES NEW YORK VICTORY—Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., waves to crowd as he stands beside his wife, Helen, in New York late Tuesday night after he won the New York Democratic primary for the presidential nomination. Jackson made his victory speech to crowd outside the Essex House Hotel after he refused to cross picket lines by striking NBC workers. Jackson said, "We're doing about as predicted." (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — The elevator door opened and two Wells Fargo couriers, their guns drawn, wheeled a dolly through the quiet basement corridor toward the Citibank paymaster's office.

Suddenly, three armed men wearing colorful ski masks sprang from a stairwell, disarmed the guards and ordered them up against the wall.

In less than 10 well-planned minutes, the three bandits grabbed three white canvas money bags, handcuffed the guards and two other employees to a railing and calmly left the building with $851,000 in cash — one of the richest bank hauls in the city's history.

The guards were jumped while making a routine payroll delivery Tuesday morning to the Citibank branch in the basement of the Daily News building in mid-Manhattan. Two News employees who were walking in the area were herded together with the guards.

"Don't be afraid, lady. Nobody's going to get hurt," one of the robbers told Betts Bresson, a News employee.

One of the guards, Arthur Dres, was knocked to the floor of the brightly lit marble hallway by a bandit when he apparently didn't move fast enough. He suffered a slight head injury.

Left behind were several other sacks containing only coins.

The heist appeared well rehearsed, and police on the scene said they believed it was an inside job.

"The robbers knew the building, the escape route they planned to use and when the delivery would be made," one detective said.

Police reportedly believed the three robbers made their getaway in a car parked outside the building. They apparently walked back down the corridor away from the bank office, through two sets of doors and up a truck ramp to the street.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration says it probably would take New York City to court if the city fails to repay emergency federal loans.

Although the federal government technically would have first claim on city money if there was such a default, Deputy Assistant Treasury Secretary Robert Gerard said Tuesday he doubts a court would rule in Washington's favor.

Gerard made the statement at hearings by House and Senate appropriations panels on the Treasury Department's request for $1.25 billion to administer the federal loans during the next fiscal year.

The city currently owes the federal government $1.26 billion which it must repay by June 30. The city is expected to ask for another loan on July 1 of approximately $1 billion which should meet the majority of its needs at least through November.

During the hearing before the House panel, Gerard was asked by Rep. C.W. Young, R-Fla., what would happen if New York City defaulted on its loan payments to the federal government.

Gerard said the government would exercise its right to get the taxpayers' money back. "The government would have first priority over every nickel in the city treasury," he said.

During the Senate panel's hearing, Gerard was asked what would happen if the city had enough money either to repay a loan, or to meet fire and police payrolls and chose the latter.

"I suspect we'd sue for our money," Gerard said. "I have my own personal doubts that a court faced with paying firemen and policemen would pay Uncle Sam the money," he said.

The chairman of the Senate panel, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., asked Gerard if a labor contract negotiated with New York transit workers might "destroy any chance of the financial plan's succeeding."

The state emergency Financial Control Board, which has the final say on the contract, is set to rule on the pact that incorporates a 22 cent per hour cost of living adjustment that includes a 3.3 cents per hour increase for each percentage point the consumer price index rises.

Area Entertainers Going To Halifax

Greenville and Pitt County entertainers will be extensively involved in events marking the celebration of the Halifax Resolves during the coming week-end in the historic village of Halifax.

On Friday, April 9, instrumentalists from East Carolina University and the Greenville community will join forces as a group called The Carolina Dixieland Group to provide old-style Dixieland music.

Also scheduled to perform are members of the Greenville Boys' Choir and the Pitt County 4-H Club Choir. The 4-H singers will perform a program "Youth Sings for Patriotism."

Rounding out the local representatives to be Stuart Aronson, baritone. These events will be between 1 and 4 p.m.

On Saturday, April 10, two Greenville groups, the Flatland Family Band, the Green Grass Cloggers will be part of a series of players furnishing Bluegrass Festival music. The groups will perform morning and afternoon.

For the third day of entertainment, Sunday, April 10, local entertainers scheduled to perform between 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. are Billy and Sandra Stinson and Tony and Leigh Duke. Billy Stinson wrote the Halifax Resolves song that has been officially adopted for the occasion and will sing it during the afternoon. Stuart Aronson will make a second appearance during this time period and will sing a duet with his young son, Philippe.

There is no admission charge for the entertainments and the public is invited to attend.

want the thousands of visiting sports fans and correspondents to go home with stories of insolent waiters and organizational foulups.

So the campaign is under way. One tool, as usual, is the barrage of press publicity.

More substantive techniques, though, are also being tried. The number of self-service stores is increasing as opposed to the still widespread Soviet system of the customer waiting in three lines: one to see goods, one to pay for them and a third to pick them up.

Customers are also being urged to order hard-to-get goods — such as certain vegetables or new volumes in sets of books — in advance. This may decrease the long, excited lines that form in Soviet cities whenever scarce products go on sale.

children's department store, said in a newspaper article: "Our goal is to give such good service that no one leaves our store without buying something."

The Soviet image abroad also depends increasingly on what kind of treatment foreign visitors get in restaurants, taxis, hotels and shops. Fifteen million foreigners came here in the past five years and 37 million are expected to come between now and 1980.

It probably didn't happen this way, but I have to tell you, Safire, that's what we in Georgetown thought was going on in those last days and that is why we aren't snickering now. We were scared stiff!

with its astounding ignorance of the new campaign law.

Brown, who ended a year of political seclusion with a burst of telephone calls to politicians across the country right after announcing his candidacy, called one of California's most powerful Democrats last week in an ebullient mood.

Fateat Mr. X had pledged a contribution of $5,000 for his campaign, enthused the Governor, and fateat Mr. Y had pledged another $5,000. Wait a minute, the politician interrupted, that's against the law. Brown simply did not know that the new federal election law puts a $1,000 limit on presidential contributions.

That lends credence to the complaint of Brown's critics that he is long on philosophy but short on planning. Although Brown clearly has been thinking about the presidency since being elected governor in 1974, he had done nothing about it — revealed by his ignorance not only of the federal election law but state filing procedures as well.

A Brown aide last week contacted a party pro to scout the Governor's chances in the April 27 Pennsylvania primary: he was informed the filing deadline passed Feb. 17. On March 19, Brown himself telephoned a high-ranking United Auto Workers (UAW) official in Detroit to check the Michigan primary. That evening the labor leader checked — and discovered the filing deadline was that very day.

In sum, Brown has let time pass him by. Besides California on June 8, the only other primaries he might enter are Maryland (May 18), Kentucky (May 25) and Nevada (May 25).

Nor does Brown have a national campaign manager, even though his operatives in California have been spreading the word that nationally renowned liberal-Democratic politician Allard K. Lowenstein will be in charge. But Lowenstein, who is running in the New York primary as an uncommitted delegate, has teaching and writing commitments in New York City until June. Although he strongly admires Brown, Lowenstein certainly has not agreed to run his campaign.

A footnote: Brown's icy distance from fellow governors is ending. In a routine letter to other governors, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin pencilled in a P.S. to Brown complimenting him for his recent performance on CBS' "60 Minutes." Lucey, who like most governors has never met the mysterious Californian, soon received a warm and congenial telephone call from Brown in Sacramento.

Six Plead Guilty In Pot Case

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Trial of the last remaining defendant was to continue in federal court today after six of seven defendants entered guilty pleas on charges growing out of the smuggling of 22 tons of marijuana into North Carolina last January.

The guilty pleas were offered Tuesday by John David Steele Sr., former mayor of Hallandale, Fla.; his son, John David Steele Jr.; George Brent Poppas of Miami, Fla.; Ernest Hugh Mayo, owner of the trawler on which the marijuana was smuggled and a fish processing plant at Mesc, N. C., where it was landed; Gary S. Mayo, his son; and Johnny Burt Armstrong, skipper of the trawler, the Lillian B.

This left to be tried only Graydon Lewis Lupton, 38, of the original 10 defendants. Lupton is of Pamlico County, scene of the January raid.

Judge John A. MacKenzie had dismissed charges against Michael Rowe, 30, of Bayboro, and his brother-in-law, Danny Isenhardt, Monday after they agreed to testify against the other defendants.

Still another defendant, Daniel E. Engler of Hollywood, Fla. pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana with intent to distribute in exchange for having other charges against him dropped.

MacKenzie set Thursday at 4 p.m. for sentencing all the defendants who pleaded guilty except the senior Steele who has not completed interviews with court officials.

Ernest Hugh Mayo, John David Steele Sr., and Poppas pleaded guilty to conspiracy to import marijuana and possession with intent to distribute. John David Steele Jr. pleaded guilty to conspiracy to import marijuana. Gary S. Mayo and possession of marijuana with dismissed other charges. marijuana and importation of Armstrong pleaded guilty to intent to distribute. MacKenzie against these defendants.

Threatens To Bring Down Italian Govm't

By HILMI TOROS
Assorted Press Writer
ROME (AP)— Socialist party leader Francesco de Martino is threatening to bring down Premier Aldo Moro's minority Christian Democratic government and force Italy into a general election unless Moro agrees to more liberal provisions in the proposed abortion law.

After a meeting Tuesday night with Moro, De Martino said they were still far apart, but he indicated further attempts would be made to reach agreement.

The Socialist leader also planned to meet today with Communist chief Enrico Berlinguer.

Although the Christian Democrats are Italy's largest party, they do not have a majority in the Chamber of Deputies, and Moro's 56-day-old government survives only because the Socialists, the country's third largest party, agreed not to vote against it on major issues.

The Socialists are threatening to abandon this arrangement and force Moro into an election because the Christian Democrats, under pressure from the Vatican, joined forces with the neo-fascist Italian Social Movement last week and passed an amendment restricting legislation to replace the 1930 law making all abortions illegal.

The Socialists want unrestricted abortions but agreed to a bill to permit abortion whenever a woman's physical or psychological health was considered at stake, and economic and family troubles were to be recognized as factors to be taken into consideration. This latter liberalization was erased by the amendment, which would allow only therapeutic abortion and abortion following rape.

With only 267 seats in the 630-member Chamber of Deputies, the Christian Democrats cannot form a majority government without the 61 Socialists or the 179 Communists, and so far the right wing of the Christian Democrats will not agree to a coalition with the Communists. A Communist voice in the government is also opposed by the U. S. government because Italy is the key member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in the Mediterranean. U.S. officials have hinted at economic reprisals if the Communists are admitted to the government.

Sen. Byrd To Be Featured

U.S. Senator Robert Byrd of West Virginia will be the main speaker for the Northeast Democratic Rally scheduled for April 23-24 in Dare County, it was announced by First District Rep. Walter B. Jones.

Jones said that Byrd will be the featured speaker at a banquet to be held at The Carolinian Motor Hotel, highlighting the two-day event.

Byrd, a native of North Wilkesboro, has served in both Houses of the State Legislature in West Virginia and the U.S. House of Representatives. He was elected to the U. S. Senate in 1958 and reelected in 1964.

He is currently serving as chairman of the Senate Interior Subcommittee on Appropriations, as a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee and the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration.

Dare County will serve as host county with the other 20 counties of the district, serving as co-hosts.

Libertarian Pledges Cut

RALEIGH (AP)—Roger L. MacBride of the Libertarian Party has promised taxes will be cut if he is elected president of the United States.

MacBride came to Raleigh to launch a campaign to have his party listed on the North Carolina ballot in November's general election.

MacBride said taxation had led to a "strangulation of personal liberty." He added that cuts could not be made overnight but would have to be "unraveled like a bowl of spaghetti."

When asked at a news conference how he proposed to continue tax supported government programs, MacBride said he would "have to come up with something as he went along."

"We're going to have to have taxation for some time to come," he said. "But we want to gradually cut taxes to the point that we all feel we can put up with them."

The Libertarian Party, which was founded in 1971, is seeking signatures of 10,000 registered voters needed under state law to have the party placed on the ballot in North Carolina.

Howard Hughes Quietly Buried In Texas Today

By MAX B. SKELTON
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Billionaire industrialist Howard Hughes was buried today in short, secretive graveside rites in an exclusive cemetery just west of downtown Houston.

There were few mourners at the Episcopal service and there was no eulogy for the eccentric recluse who died Monday of kidney failure.

Dean Robert Gibson of Christ Church Cathedral, one of Houston's oldest Episcopal churches, read the last rites from the 14th chapter of the Book of John and added, "We bring nothing into this world and we can take nothing out. Remember thy servant Howard."

Five women and 15 or 20 men gathered at Glenwood Cemetery for the three-minute service which had been kept secret from the public. There was no effort to exclude reporters and photographers at the gravesite.

Neither of Hughes' ex-wives attended the services.

The luxuriant cemetery — burial ground for many of Houston's early civic leaders — is in a thickly wooded glen some two miles west of the downtown area. It is bounded on one side by Memorial Freeway and on the other by heavily traveled Washington Avenue.

Hughes' body was quickly lowered into the grave in a 1,000-pound, silver-jacketed copper casket that will be covered by a matching vault, funeral home spokesmen said.

Mrs. Frederick Lummis Sr., Hughes' 85-year-old aunt, occupied a front-row seat at the services along with her son, Will Lummis.

Dean Gibson read from the Bible the words of Jesus, "In My Father's house are many mansions: If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

As Hughes was being buried there remained alive the question of disposition of his vast and far-flung empire.

Arelo Sederberg, a Hughes' spokesman in Los Angeles where Hughes' Summa Corp. has its headquarters, said there would be no comment on whether a will exists to detail disposal of his aerospace, hotel-casino and airline properties.

There also were reports of official concern over the identification of the body despite statements by hospital officials that the body they performed a 2½-hour autopsy on Tuesday was indeed Howard Robard Hughes, victim of "an ordinary death" from kidney failure.

With or without a will, there also remained the entangled legal question over the legal home of Hughes, who spent the last two decades hiding from public view, slipping from hideaway to hideaway.

This much was known today: —Hughes, a tall, romantic motion picture and aviation figure before going into hiding in the 1950s, was a scrawny 90 pounds and had apparently been bedridden sometime before he died Monday on a flight from Acapulco, Mexico, to Houston, doctors said.

—His multiple financial interests estimated to be worth $2 billion apparently will continue to operate normally since his organization always ran without personal contact from Hughes while he lived.

Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk, the Harris County, Tex., medical examiner who observed the autopsy which listed the cause of death as chronic kidney failure, said, "As far as I'm concerned, it's an ordinary death. It's just that it was not an ordinary person."

A Treasury Department spokesman said two Internal Revenue Service agents and a Customs Service officer were dispatched to make an official identification, although Hughes' body was reported to have been accompanied by his birth certificate.

In Washington, the Treasury Department said two IRS agents guarded Hughes' body. "We do not have official custody of the body but we are going to stick with it," until identity is confirmed, a Treasury spokesman said.

Jachimczyk said he took fingerprints from the body and forwarded them to the FBI for positive identification.

He said "there's always somebody that might say, 'That's not him.' We do this to answer all these questions."

Meanwhile, William Gay, president of Summa Corp., said, "It's tragic, it's tragic that Howard Hughes had to die to prove that he was alive."

As for the autopsy, Jachimczyk said, "I could not tell what kind of life he had led, but he was very emaciated. The evidence is there that he had been bedridden for some time. I don't know how long."

Although the official said Hughes appeared frail, he discounted earlier reports of Hughes having a bizarre appearance, including three-inch long fingernails and shoulder-length hair. He said the body had short hair, normal length fingernails but a full beard — "He looked like any other 70-year-old man who was in poor health."

Criminal Code Revisions Are Given Little Chance

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite agreement on such issues as limiting the death penalty and abolishing penalties for possession of small amounts of marijuana, administration officials have little hope that Congress will pass sweeping revisions in the federal criminal code.

Key Senate Judiciary Committee members on opposing sides have narrowed their differences in efforts to reach a compromise on the bill, known as S.1. Further committee efforts are at least at a temporary standstill, and administration officials say they have little hope Congress will be able to work out a final bill and pass it this year.

And Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and his GOP counterpart, Sen. Hugh Scott, said a month ago that unless an agreement could be reached within two weeks, it probably would be too late for action in this Congress.

The House Judiciary Committee, before starting its own hearings on the complex 799-page bill, is waiting for the Senate to act.

Liberals have won major concessions from the bill's sponsors that would allow the decriminalization of possession of marijuana in small amounts; repeal the Smith Act, which bars membership in groups that advocate the overthrow of the government, and limit the death penalty to murder in connection with an airplane hijacking.

Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., chief sponsors of the measure, were members of a commission appointed by the late President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1966 to recommend revision of federal criminal laws. The legislation is the outgrowth of the commission's studies.

Some features of the bill as it has evolved over the years have aroused controversy and have been denounced by opponents as repressive.

In recent weeks McClellan and Hruska have been negotiating with a trio of Senate Judiciary Committee liberals, Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and James Abourezk, D-S.D., in an effort to reach a compromise.

In a statement Tuesday, McClellan and Hruska said they felt they had "gone more than halfway in making the concessions necessary to bring about an accommodation," adding, "Some of those concessions were extremely difficult for us to make."

One of the concessions was to agree to drop from the bill provisions for the death penalty, which is required under certain circumstances for crimes like wartime espionage and sabotage and others like hijacking and kidnaping resulting in death.

In another major move, McClellan and Hruska agreed to keep intact present laws against espionage and disclosure of classified information.

Hart, Kennedy and Abourezk issued a statement saying the modifications already agreed to were constructive, but adding that "there remain certain areas of concern. In the next few days we will continue to analyze and review these areas in the hope of reaching some common understanding on the subject of criminal law reform."

TO AMEND CONSTITUTION—Lebanese Parliament speaker Kamel Assaad gestures in his Beirut home over a cup of coffee as he tells reporters that 99 legislators will meet in the Villa Esseily Saturday to amend the country's constitution. The amendment will be made to immediately end President Suleiman Franjeh's term six months ahead of schedule so a successor can be elected with the hope of ending Lebanon's civil war. Shortly after the announcement fighting was reported around the Villa Esseily. (AP Wirephoto)

Lutherans Appear Sliding Into Unwanted Schism

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Theological and political warfare within the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod has shifted to a new battleground, carrying the second largest Lutheran body in North America closer toward a schism that nobody really wants.

The internecine struggle already has prompted the resignation of one high official who, ironically, is respected by both sides.

Dr. Melvin M. Kieschnick quit as executive secretary of the board of parish education, complaining that the climate of "political manipulations, broken promises and unproven accusations" had made it "extremely difficult to work with effectiveness and joy."

Whether Dr. J.A.O. Preus, president of the 2.8 million-member denomination, can successfully maneuver himself and his church through its difficulties without a major split is still uncertain.

If not, the result probably would be one of the largest schisms in 20th century Protestantism. No one can predict exactly how many congregations would pull out of the church immediately.

The Missouri Synod is the seventh largest Protestant church in the United States, and second only to the three million-member Lutheran Church in America among Lutheran bodies.

The focus of the Missouri controversy recently shifted from the church's seminary to eight dissident district presidents, who are the equivalent of Lutheran bishops.

The presidents are leaders of the so-called "moderate" faction in the Missouri Synod, standing in theological and political opposition to Preus and other "conservatives" who have gained control of the denomination's administrative machinery in the past several years.

Preus' problem, which must be resolved before April 12, is deciding whether to remove four of those presidents from office and order new elections in their districts because of their defiance of a resolution adopted at the denomination's convention in Anaheim, Calif., last July.

The resolution prohibited ordination to the Lutheran ministry of graduates of a rebel seminary-in-exile, established by students, faculty and staff following Dr. John Tietjen's suspension as president of Concordia Seminary in St. Louis on charges of holding and teaching false doctrine.

The Missouri controversy, which has been simmering for more than a decade, crystallized in 1969 when Preus, a leader of the conservative bloc, was elected president of the denomination on a platform aimed at retaining the "doctrinal purity" of the church.

"Doctrinal purity" meant purging Concordia Seminary of alleged false doctrine being taught by professors who did not hold to a strict, literal interpretation of all stories in the Bible.

The synod's moderate faction, while regarding the Bible as the divinely inspired Word of God, believe it is permissible to interpret the Bible in a way that could challenge the literal truth of some stories, such as Jonah and the whale.

Wholesale charges of teaching false doctrine were leveled against the Concordia faculty, and Tietjen was suspended in 1974. Ninety per cent of the faculty, staff and students dramatically walked off campus in protest and established Seminex elsewhere in St. Louis.

The conservative-dominated Anaheim convention instructed all 38 district presidents to refrain from certifying Seminex graduates for the ministry, gave Preus the power to oust any president who defied the convention, and set a series of deadlines for Preus to act within 60 days of each district convention.

The eight moderates, in a statement read at the convention, announced their intention to authorize the rebel ordinations. Since then, Preus has moved gingerly against them, despite criticism from church conservatives.

Preus announced he would not remove four of the defiant presidents on the ground they had not authorized any questionable ordinations since Anaheim.

But he left open the possibility he might remove three of the other four — Bishops Harold Hecht of the English District, Rudolph Res-meyer of the Atlantic District and Robert J. Riedel of the New England District — who have continued to ordain Seminex graduates.

Preus has been particularly critical of Hecht, a leader of the moderate faction, for taking part in unauthorized ordinations "to a greater extent than any other district president. He has even participated in services held in congregations of other districts."

Unlike the other regional districts, the English district is a non-geographic entity formed early in the century of English-speaking Lutherans among the largely German-speaking congregations of the time. Because it was based on language rather than geography, it is a national district within the synod.

The English district has long been a haven of church progressives and a target of conservative wrath. A movement to dissolve it narrowly failed to pass the Anaheim convention, and conservatives to the right of Preus would be cheered to see Hecht removed from office.

But ousting Hecht might be the "trip wire" that sets churchwide schism into motion, a key element in the moderates' strategy which angers the conservatives most is the English district's unilateral move to accept membership of moderate congregations in conservative-dominated districts.

"Then, if Preus does force a division — and it must be unmistakably his choice — nobody is asked to move into a new church but simply to remain in continuity and solidarity with the ministry to which he has been called," says the moderate-oriented Lutheran Forum.

After the Anaheim convention, some "nonaligned" district presidents began meeting to see if they could find a way to avoid a seemingly inevitable split in the church.

The group of "middle-of-the-road" presidents has held at least two private meetings. It is said to be working on a statement to be presented to Preus outlining their proposals for avoiding schism and keeping the synod's 6,000 congregations together.

Whether either side can yet strike a compromise is unknown. Much will depend on events following April 12, when Preus must decide the fate of the remaining four dissident bishops.

So far, Preus has managed to keep the church together, by treading a delicate and dangerous course.

He let his first deadline pass without acting against Southern Illinois president Herman Neunaber, but chose instead to involve himself in a series of smaller "circuit" meetings preceding the district convention in February. Moderates believed Preus was trying to undercut Neunaber's support in Southern Illinois, the most divided of the eight rebel districts, in the hope the district convention would force the bishop's compliance with the Anaheim resolution.

But the district delegates endorsed Neunaber's "stance and ministry," and the synod's militant conservatives were beginning to demand Preus' ouster for failing to remove Neunaber in the first place.

East Carolina University will offer a wide variety of courses and programs of study enabling teachers to obtain credit to renew or upgrade certificates or to pursue graduate degrees during the summer session.

Courses in biology; elementary, counselor, secondary and special education, educational administration and supervision; health; home economics; library science; mathematics; music; physical education; psychology; sociology; business education; industrial arts and technology will be offered during the periods from June 14 through July 9 and/or July 14 through August 11.

Some two and three week courses will also be offered during these periods. These shorter periods were established in the summer of 1974 in response to the needs of teachers whose ten month contracts do not always allow attendance during the customary five and one-half week sessions. During the customary sessions from June 7 through July 13 and July 14 through August 19, numerous courses in those fields above and others will be given and are open to teachers whose schedules permit.

For further information undergraduates should apply to the ECU Office of Admissions or call 758-6640 in Greenville. Individuals who have completed the undergraduate degree should apply to the ECU Graduate School or call 758-6012.

May Bury Radioactive Waste Deep In Ocean Floor

By PETER BREWER
Associated Press Writer
WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — The dark, cold ocean bottom, geologically unchanged for 10 million years, someday may swallow the growing piles of radioactive waste from nuclear reactors.

A consortium of oceanographers and other scientists has been working on the burial of atomic wastes in the sea floor sediment or underlying rock for more than two years. Though cautious, the scientists say the idea looks promising.

"We have not found any information that tells us we ought to stop the study," said Dr. Charles D. Hollister of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. "The concept may be sound, but we don't want to say we have the answer."

The isolated seabed areas being studied — under the north Central Pacific and the north Central Atlantic — were not affected by the last ice age, 10,000 to 25,000 years ago, Hollister said.

"In the ocean (floor) we have a continuous record of the environment for 10 million years," he said. "It's a unique history book."

"If we can look back and see no evidence of environmental change for the last 10 million years, we have a better chance to convince ourselves there will be no change for the next half million years."

He said scientists expect to know enough by 1985 to say whether ocean floor burial of atomic wastes is feasible or not.

Prof. Henry Kendall of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a leader of the Union of Concerned Scientists, said the seabed disposal idea is relatively new, but worth study since some other plans fell apart.

"We are very much troubled at this point 25 years into the nuclear age that we find ourselves with no satisfactory way to dispose of nuclear waste," he said.

The Atomic Energy Commission had to abandon a plan to dump atomic trash in an old Lyons, Kan., salt mine and, according to Kendall returned to "building above ground crypts that would require permanent surveillance for very long periods of time."

He said there have already been leaks of stored radioactive material in New York, Georgia, Kentucky, Colorado, Idaho and Washington.

A group of 2,300 U.S. scientists concerned about the increasing quantities of dangerous atomic wastes asked President Ford and Congress recently to hold up nuclear power development until disposal and other safety issues are solved.

The United States alone now has 56 atomic power plants with an estimated 2,000 tons of stored, burned-out fuel. If development of these plants continues, the amount of dangerous nuclear material piling up may top that every year, scientists say.

Studies of earth's "plates," enormous chunks of the planet's crust which are still moving, indicate the most stable place to bury atomic junk safely is the floor of north central Pacific Ocean or possibly the north central Atlantic. Both are plate centers and are expected to remain stable for at least a million years.

The focus now is on muddy clay sediment, which covers the seabed rock up to several thousand feet, to see how much insulation it provides.

"These tests now are specifically trying to determine the rate of migration of radionuclides (atomic particles) through the sediment," said Hollister.

The researchers have already found that water seeps through this fine clay so slowly the rate cannot yet be determined.

G. Ross Heath, University of Rhode Island oceanographer, is researching how fast atomic particles work through 35-foot sample of sediment. They were taken from the Pacific Ocean floor about 20,000 feet under the surface.

"By the middle of the year we expect some preliminary findings," he said. "Later, we're hopeful of taking some very long cores, up to 100 feet." He said one problem is that dangerous atomic wastes for the first 1,000 years or so give off a lot of heat which may affect the sediment. And different types of radioactive material — strontium, cesium or plutonium — decay at different rates.

The scientists are also well aware of possible nonscientific roadblocks to putting any program into action.

"Even if it's technically feasible, it may not necessarily be feasible politically," Heath said.

Heath said any atomic burial

Russia Adopted The Tie Chart

NEW YORK (AP) — Occasionally there are reports of advertising and promotional literature from American firms turning up inside Russia. The latest is "How To Tie a Tie," which is a chart put out by the Men's Tie Foundation for American retailers and consumers.

Herman Summer recently called the Men's Tie Foundation director, Gerald Andersen, and reported that the foundation's illustrated chart on "How To Tie a Tie" has been enlarged and translated into Russian. He saw it hanging prominently in the tie section of GUM department store during a recent Moscow trip.

sites would be in international waters, and negotiations among nuclear science nations should develop a joint program.

"It would probably be more economical if a single technique is done by all nuclear nations," he said.

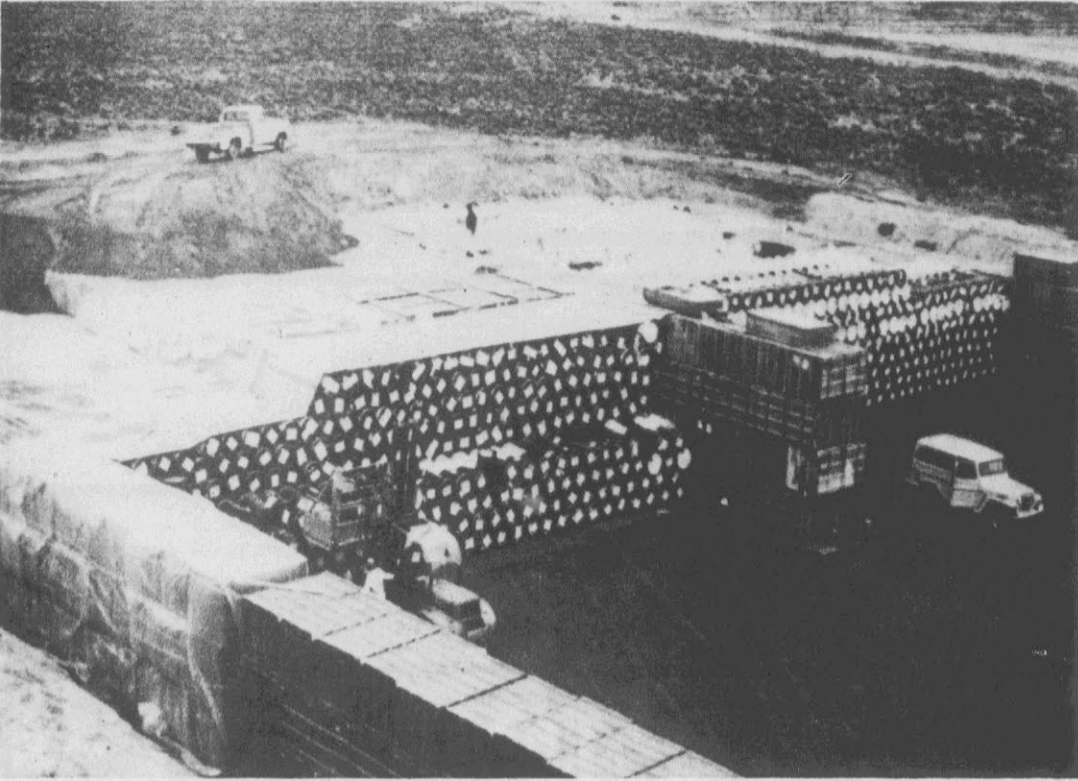

The senior chemist of the project, Dr. Vaughan T. Bowen of the Woods Hole institution, thinks it may be closer to 1990 before a final answer on seabed atomic tombs can be given.

He said: "It's going to take you so many years to obtain samples you need for testing. Then it will take one to two years before you get enough information from them to go on to the next set of questions."

He said one of the most critical aspects is to be able to show that the place they decide to bury atomic ash is uniformly safe over a great distance.

"It's going to require an ungodly amount of work to prove this," said Dr. Bowen. The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission is studying other disposal sites, such as another salt mine in New Mexico, rocketing waste to outer space and burial in deep granite areas or under polar ice.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off a fraction in the early going. Losers held a 7-5 edge on gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was fairly active. Analysts said investors were disappointed that the market couldn't make the gains it piled up in early trading Tuesday stand up.

Today's early prices included Texaco, down 1/4 at 26 1/2; S.S.Kresge, off 1/4 at 36 1/2; Southern Co., down 1/4 at 15 1/2; and Chrysler, up 1/4 at 20 1/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average finished with a 2.44 loss at 1,001.65 after being ahead as much as 7 points earlier.

Advances held a 4-3 edge on declines among NYSE-listed issues.

Big Board volume reached 24.17 million shares.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .07 to 55.13, and the American Stock Exchange market value index gained .07 to 104.96.

Hold Youth In Slaying

WILLIAMSTON — Martin Sheriff Raymond Rawls today revealed that a 15 year old white male juvenile was taken into custody Monday afternoon as a suspect in the Saturday murder of John Reginal Pierce, a 70 year old filling station owner and operator.

"The youth is being charged with murder and is being arraigned for a hearing on April 12 in District Court," Rawls said. "We have recovered the weapon believed used in the murder and a small amount of money apparently taken at the time."

Pierce, who operated a store on U.S. 17 about nine miles south of Williamston, was last seen alive at 11:35 a.m. Saturday. A customer, who habitually visits the store each Saturday at noon, found the store locked.

Neighbors and customers, alarmed by Pierce's absence from the store on Saturday and early Sunday, went into his home quarters in the back of the store on Sunday morning but were unable to find Pierce. After searching the woods behind the store and buildings adjacent to the store, they called the local hospital to determine if he might have become ill and gone there for treatment. When assured that such was not the case, a third search was made of Pierce's quarters. His body was found pushed far back under his bed.

An autopsy conducted in Greenville indicated that Pierce had died of a single bullet fired into the middle of his chest.

Find Body In Garbage Can

HOLLY RIDGE, N.C. (AP) — The body of a missing 2-year-old girl was found Tuesday night in a garbage can near her home.

It was wrapped in a garbage bag. Authorities said preliminary indications were that the child, Latisha Hart, daughter of a Marine, had suffocated.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Hart, had reported her missing. Members of a search party found the body four hours later.

Detectives then went from door to door trying to turn up clues. The child had been left with a babysitter while her father was at his military duties and her mother was away temporarily, authorities said.

The tot was last seen in late afternoon heading down the hall from the babysitter's apartment to that of her parents in the same project, they added.

The girl, still wearing the pajamas in which she was seen, was found dead in the garbage can about 100 yards from her home at Holly Ridge in Onslow County of southeastern North Carolina.

Fire Damage On WCU Campus

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Fire in a paper storage area on the ground floor of the Joyner Building, oldest on the Western Carolina University campus, caused several thousand dollars worth of damage late Tuesday night.

A broken window at the scene of the fire and a scorched bulletin board in another part of the building prompted university officials to call in the SBI to help determine whether arson was involved.

Some university records stored near the fire apparently were undamaged.

Students working in the building sounded the alarm when they smelled smoke shortly after 11 p.m. Volunteer fire departments from Cullowhee and Sylva worked for about two hours before extinguishing the blaze.

ECU After More Seats; Leaves Southern

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's Board of Trustees yesterday voted to withdraw from the Southern Conference and to seek the enlargement of Ficklen Stadium as a part of a general upgrading of the overall athletic program.

The withdrawal from the league will be formally presented at the Southern's spring meeting, to be held here in May. It will be effective on July 1, 1977, leaving the Pirates eligible for all conference championships during the coming academic year.

The full report of the Ad Hoc Committee on Athletics, as presented to the board, had a five-point program. The first called for the improvement of Women's Athletics, as required by Title IX, and the second called for the expansion of the stadium to a minimum of 35,000 seats.

With this as a goal, withdrawal from the Southern followed, along with a total evaluation of each sports program of the university.

Finally, the committee urged the university to seek future membership into an existing conference, or to help in the formation of a new one.

On a motion by Dr. J. E. Danieley, the second portion of the report was changed to authorize a fund-raising effort for stadium expansion, and Chairman Troy Pate named Roddy Jones to head up this committee.

Jones said later that he hoped to get the drive underway as soon as possible. "We want to involve as many of our alumni as we can in this, and we want to find national groups with interests in East Carolina to help too." The committee chairman said some $2 to $2½ million would be needed for the full construction. "The stadium could be put up in stages, but we would rather get it all done at one time."

Jones said he would shoot for a goal of December 31, 1976, for the completion of the fund-raising effort, and a goal of September 1, 1977 for the completion of the structure.

"We are now looking for major gifts as incentives," he said. "I think the timing in regard to the upswing of our football program, and in the Division I and I-A situation of the NCAA is great for this."

Ashley Futrell, who serves on the committee to study the situation, said that the withdrawal from the Southern should not be taken as a "slap in the face."

"There was really no middle ground as we saw it," he said. "We had to get in or get out, and when we found ourselves in a conference that seems destined to be classified as I-A, we had no choice. If we expanded our stadium, we had to move into a new area of competition. But no one should regard this as a slap at the Southern."

Clifton Moore, chairman of the study committee, said that each of the school's coaches had been questioned about their feelings about leaving the Southern, and that it was felt that this was the best move to take.

Jimmy Honeycutt, outgoing president of the Student Government Association, said he felt most of the student body would go along with the move.

Athletic Director Bill Cain, asked about future conference ties, said that underground currents have been going on for some time, most coming out of Virginia. "There are several things we could do," he said, "but none of them are really to a talking stage yet."

While the role of an independent is not an easy one, Cain said that having Class I status for football is important both in scheduling and financially. "We have to keep on playing schools like State and Carolina, where we draw well. This will improve our chances of being in Division I, too."

Cain noted that major efforts to form a new conference or to join an existing one would probably have to come from outside—at least for a while.

There have been several speculations about this already. These include the formation of a new conference, or the expansion to as many as 12 teams by the Atlantic Coast Conference. The same teams are mentioned in talking about both moves. These include, in addition to East Carolina: West Virginia, Virginia Tech, Richmond, South Carolina, and Georgia Tech.

STUDYING REPORT—Dr. Leo Jenkins, center, chancellor of East Carolina University, looks over the report of the committee to the Board of Trustees that advised withdrawal from the Southern Conference and the enlarging of Ficklen Stadium

Ayden-Grifton In Shutout Win

WHEAT SWAMP—Tim Shadle and Mike Teachy teamed up to pitch a three-hit shutout of North Lenoir Tuesday as the Ayden-Grifton Chargers took a 3-0 win over the North Lenoir Hawks.

The Charger got all their runs in the first two innings. In the first, Al Butts reached on an error and stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Steve Noble singled to drive him in.

In the second, Butts again had a hand in the scoring with a two-run single. Jed Hardy was hit by a pitch and Eddie Taylor moved him to third with a base hit.

Taylor stole second and both runners scored on Butts' single with two out.

The Chargers put two men on in the third but failed to score. North Lenoir did not get its first hit until the fourth and Shadle, who went five innings did not let a runner past first. He fanned three and walked two. Teachy struck out five and allowed two of the three hits.

Ayden-Grifton will face North Pitt Thursday night at 6:30.

Jaguars Take Southern Nash

SPRING HOPE—Farmville Central's revitalized Jaguars claimed their second straight Eastern Carolina Conference victory and their third in a row overall yesterday, downing Southern Nash, 6-4.

The Jags had to rally from a 4-2 deficit in the top of the seventh to pull out the victory however.

Farmville Central took the lead in the first inning, when Tommy Cobb slashed a solo home run.

Southern Nash came back to tie it up in the second. Perry singled and moved up on a fielder's choice and a hit by Strickland. Glover then singled Perry over.

Southern took the lead in the fourth. With two away, Wells singled and moved up on a wild pitch. S. Fasnachts doubled him over.

The Jaguars tied it at 2-2 with a run in the fifth. Mike Jenkins singled, stole second and took third on a passed ball. Cobb sacrificed him in with a fly ball.

The Firebirds went back out with two in the sixth. Strickland walked and Fasnachts doubled again, scoring him. Finch also doubled to score Fasnachts.

But the Jaguars came back with four in the seventh. Jenkins led off with a single and Cobb also got a hit. Both stole up, and David Winborn's hit brought both over. Winborn moved up on the relay and Lonnie James went into run for him, stealing third, and scoring on David Joyner's sacrifice fly. Emerson Hobgood, walked, David Cockran singled and Jerry Rackley singled in Hobgood.

The win raised the Jaguar record to 3-5 overall and 2-0 in league play. Farmville hosts Conley on Friday.

Anderson Taking No Chances Of Injuries

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Gary Nolan finds himself on the mound for Thursday's 1976 baseball opener in Cincinnati. But he won't find himself there very long, according to Manager Sparky Anderson.

Anderson has indicated that he'll pull his starters in favor of relief pitchers early in the season in order to guard against sore arms.

The Houston Astros can expect to see at least one reliever — and maybe even a parade. The defending world champions have one of the strongest bullpens in baseball and Anderson went through one extravagantly long stretch last year without a starter finishing a game.

While the Reds face J.R. Richard in their traditional opener at home, a step ahead of the rest of the National League, the first shot of the American League wars will be fired in Milwaukee where the Brewers host the New York Yankees. Catfish Hunter will pitch for New York against Milwaukee's Jim Slaton.

Those two games will be the only ones played on Opening Day, but they'll trigger a weekend landslide.

In Friday's National League action, the Montreal Expos will send Steve Rogers against Tom Seaver of the New York Mets; Don Sutton will pitch for the Los Angeles Dodgers against San Francisco's John Montefusco; Atlanta's Phil Neikro will duel Randy Jones of San Diego and Chicago's Ray Burris faces the St. Louis Cardinals and Lynn McGlothen.

American League action Friday features Boston's Ferguson Jenkins against Baltimore's Jim Palmer; Kansas City's Paul Splittorff vs. Chicago's Wilbur Wood; Minnesota's Best Blyleven against Texas' Gaylord Perry and Oakland's Mike Torrez vs. California's Frank Tanana.

The major leagues will play 11 games on Saturday and 13 more on Sunday to wrap up a busy first weekend.

Nolan staged one of baseball's great comebacks in 1975 to help the Reds win the National League pennant. Forced out of baseball nearly two years by arm trouble, the right-hander emerged as one of the team leaders with 15 triumphs as the Reds won the West title by a staggering 20 games and wound up with a club record 108 victories en route to the NL championship.

He's getting the prestigious Opening Day assignment, though, because staff leader Don Gullett isn't ready. The power-throwing southpaw was kept out of spring training camp until two weeks ago because of a salary dispute and is about two weeks behind schedule in his season's preparation.

Richard, a towering right-hander, had a 12-10 record last season for the Astros, who finished 43½ games behind Cincinnati in the West last year.

Hunter, a 20-game winner last year for the fifth straight season, will be making another in a long string of Opening Day starts.

The Jaguars did not have to go an extra set along the way as they picked their eighth victory in as many starts.

Farmville travels to C. B. Aycock on Thursday, while Greene Central hosts Southern Wayne.

Northern Nash Hands Rose First League Defeat On One-Hitter

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Mike Adams scored on an error in the top of the fourth for Northern Nash's only score and the one run was all the Knights needed to beat Rose High School yesterday, 1-0.

The loss was the first in Division I play for the Rampants who are now 2-1. Northern Nash is 3-0.

Northern Nash had baserunners in every inning but the seventh leaving five stranded while Rose left just four runners on.

Mike Belton went the distance for the Rampants as did Tim Sykes for the Knights. Sykes had a no-hitter going until Mike Brewinton spoiled it in the seventh with a single to left center. Sykes struck out three Rampants, walked three and was in trouble only once, in the seventh. Belton gave up five hits, struck out seven and walked two.

Both teams put a man on in the first and moved him to second with a sacrifice. Northern's Royce Wells was cut down at third trying to advance on an out and Rose's David Dixon was left at third after safely advancing on an out.

Jay Davis opened the Northern Nash second with a single but Belton fanned the side. Mike Leonard singled in the third but failed to score.

Adams led off the fourth with a single to left and was sacrificed to second. Sykes moved him up with an out and Adams scored when Harold Pittman's grounder was errored between short and third.

Leonard singled again in the fifth, and Davis in the sixth. Rose, however, had been shut out after the first inning. They finally broke Sykes' hold when Brewinton singled starting the seventh. Eddy Connolly sacrificed him to second and after Belton walked with two out, Brewinton stole third. Jim Wilkerson fouled off four pitches on a 1-2 count before finally popping up to centerfield.

Wilkerson had come close to putting one out in the second backing Knight leftfielder Willie Arrington to the fence. Dixon was robbed of a hit in the third when Adams, playing shallow in right, caught Dixon's line drive.

The Rampants hit the ball out of the infield five times out of 16 times they got a piece of the ball. The Rampant defense faltered once and that proved to be the deciding blow.

The Rampants will be hosting Wilson in another conference game this Friday.

Jackson, Birds Seeking Terms

MIAMI (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles' general manager says slugging outfielder Reggie Jackson would like to lead the club to a World Series title — if he can just agree to contract terms.

GM Hank Peters said Tuesday he failed to reach a contract agreement during two days of talks with Jackson and his agent in Arizona.

"Reggie wants to play and he would like to play for the Orioles," Peters said. "He thinks the Orioles are a great club and have great talent and would like to lead them to a World Series victory."

"At this time, however, his terms are unacceptable to the Orioles," the general manager added. "Reggie asked for a multi-year contract." Peters declined comment on reports that the 29-year-old Jackson asked for a three-year contract for about $675,000 and assurances that he would have permission to attend to his business interests in the West when necessary.

"I don't want to say too much," Peters said before leaving Phoenix. "We're still discussing things."

The Orioles obtained Jackson — the American League's most valuable player in 1973 — and pitchers Ken Holtzman and Bill Van Bommel last week in return for outfielder Don Baylor and pitchers Mike Torrez and Paul Mitchell.

The three former Orioles already have reported to the A's. Van Bommel pitched in the Orioles' 9-3 loss to Texas Tuesday and Holtzman was scheduled to join the club in Baltimore today.

Jackson — who has been in seclusion since the trade — and Walker were unavailable for comment.

Peters said he had three different meetings with Jackson and Walker during his time in Phoenix. The three met for over five hours Monday night and then again early Tuesday and at the airport before Peters left.

Peters expressed optimism. "Any time someone asks you for a multi-year contract, it means that he wants to play for you. The problem is strictly terms."

Shadow Of Jack Covers Masters

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The imposing shadow of Jack Nicklaus falls like a shroud over the 40th Masters Golf Tournament, starting Thursday, and the words of his strongest challengers sound like carvings on a tombstone.

"Nicklaus," said Hubert Green, winner of three straight tournaments in the last four weeks on the Florida circuit, "has to have the edge even if he is playing down a highway. Name any facet of the game, and in Jack's case it is either excellent or better."
"It is his marvelous temperament," added South Africa's Gary Player, who with Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer once formed golf's Big Three. "He is unshakable. He never panics."

California's explosive Johnny Miller, who with Tom Weiskopf carried Nicklaus down to the final hole last year in the most exciting of all Masters finishes, agreed.

"The difference between me and Jack," Miller said, "is that when Jack plays badly, he shoots par, and when I shoot badly, I wind up with an 80. From 25 feet in, there is no greater putter in the world."

Weiskopf, the towering stylist from Jack's home town of Columbus, Ohio, conceded that Nicklaus' advantage lay in his remarkable concentration and ability on the putting greens.

"Actually, they are intertwined," said Weiskopf, a former British Open winner. "Still, I think if Jack teed off with an iron instead of a wood on every hole, he still would find a way to win. He is that good."

An international, hand-picked field of 72, including 49 of the toughest practitioners on the U.S. tour, will tee off Thursday in the first round of the tournament that will extend through Sunday.

The setting is perhaps the most sumptuous in all the universe of golf — the lush pine-studded and flower-bedecked plantation that makes up the Augusta National Golf Club. The tournament was the creation of the late Bobby Jones, an amateur golfer immortal, and quickly developed from a cozy invitational gathering of friends to one of the major events of the sport.

The course itself, with its wide open fairways, meanders through clusters of dogwood, Chinese fir, yellow jasmine and magnolia, and offers natural amphitheaters for the thousands of spectators who flock here for the carnival weekend.

It measures 7,030 yards. It plays a routine par of 36-36-72, which seems to escalate in the extreme pressure of the occasion.

Even Nicklaus, at 36 and winner of close to $3 million in official prize money and an all-time record of 16 major titles, acknowledges that he is not immune to this assault on the human nervous system.

"I am one nervous guy when the Masters gets close," the big, golden-haired superstar said. "I get fever blisters."
Although he has made the Masters his personal domain by winning five championships, one more than Palmer, Nicklaus refuses to regard himself as a shoo-in, although unofficial odds makers have made him a prohibitive 4-1 favorite.

"There are more young players than ever before — strong, smart and good," he said. "No one man can claim a lock on any tournament — not even the Masters."

Idle Seattle Turns Out To Be The Winner

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
The Phoenix Suns opened the playoff door for the Los Angeles Lakers, but the Portland Trail Blazers slammed it shut.
The Suns, leading Los Angeles by one-half game in their battle for third place in the Pacific Division and a wild card berth in the National Basketball Association playoffs, dropped a 111-106 overtime decision to the Golden State Warriors Tuesday night.

But Los Angeles, leading by three points in the late going against Portland, saw the Blazers reel off seven points in a row and pull out a 106-104 decision, denying the Lakers' bid to climb into third.

So Seattle turned out to be the big winner among the three Pacific Division clubs involved in the battle for two playoff spots. By not playing, the Sonics, 40-38, gained one-half game on both Phoenix, 40-40, and Los Angeles, 40-41.

The Sonics return to action tonight at home against lowly Chicago. Los Angeles must win its season finale at Phoenix Thursday to keep its slim playoff hopes alive.

In other NBA games Tuesday, it was Cleveland 101, Boston 92, and New York 106, Buffalo 102.

In the only American Basketball Association game, it was Virginia 120, St. Louis 116.
Bill Walton scored 26 points and triggered a second half rally that carried the Blazers past Los Angeles.

Los Angeles led 100-97 before Portland scored seven straight points — two free throws by Steve Jones, a 15-foot jumper and a tip-in by Walton and a free throw by Sidney Wicks — to take the lead for good. Wicks sank two more free throws between baskets by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar for the final score.

Warriors 111, Suns 106, OT
Jamaal Wilkes scored six of his 27 points in overtime for Golden State. His two field goals put the Warriors ahead 107-104 with 39 seconds to play.

Charles Dudley added a pair of free throws to make it 109-104. Keith Ericson scored for Phoenix and then Wilkes clinched it with two free throws with nine seconds left.

The Suns had battled back from a seven-point deficit in the final four minutes, Erickson sending the game into overtime with a basket with 14 seconds to play.

Cavaliers 101, Celtics 92
Cleveland moved one-half game ahead of Washington in their race for first place in the Central Division by holding Boston to just 10 points in the second period as they turned a two-point deficit into a 44-33 halftime lead.

Knicks 106, Braves 102
Buffalo dropped one-half game behind Philadelphia in their battle for second place in the Atlantic Division and the home court advantage in the odd game of their best-of-three playoff series.

The Knicks jumped out to a 37-22 lead in the first quarter, Buffalo went ahead briefly early in the third period but the Knicks put the game away with nine points in a row, seven of them by Earl Monroe.

Squires 120, Spirits 116
Virginia, led by Mack Calvin's 27 points, overcame a 13-point halftime deficit and beat St. Louis for its 15th victory over the season, tying their win total of last year.

Bear Grass Rallies, 10-7

BATH — Danny Peaks slammed a two-run homer in the top of the eighth and the Bear Grass Bears added one more run in the inning to take a 10-7 win over Bath yesterday and remain tied with Jamesville for the lead in the Beaufort-Martin-Hyde conference.

The Bears have a 5-0 conference record and are 6-1 overall.

The Pirates had scored first getting three runs in the first on single by Anderson and Smith. Smith scored on an out.

The Bears came back in the fourth with five runs to take the lead. Jimmy Peaks singled, and walks to Alan Crawford, Richard Knox and Danny Rogerson forced him in. Jerry Wayne forced Knox at third but scored Crawford. Alton Cratt walked and a walk to Dickie Williams brought in Rogerson. Danny Peaks doubled in Wynne and Cratt.

The Pirates fought back to regain the lead on three fifth inning runs but a two-run double by Jimmy Peaks on the top of the sixth gave Bear Grass a 7-6 edge. Anderson walked, stole second, took third on a wild pitch and scored on an out for the Pirates to tie the game, 7-7.

Williams led off the eighth with a walk for the Bears and Danny Peaks homered. Jimmy Peaks singled, stole second and scored on a double by Knox.

Danny and Jimmy Peaks had three hits each while Terry Wobbleton had a pair for the Bears.

Jamesville Keeps Going

PANTEGO — Jamesville High School continued to romp past Beaufort-Hyde-Martin competition yesterday with a 15-4 win over Pantego.

The Bullets pushed over two runs in the first inning. Jerry Ange walked and stole up, with Robbie Hardison doubling to drive him in. Billy Brown hit into a fielder's choice that caught Hardison at third, and Jeff Holliday reached on a fielder's choice. A wild pitch then scored Brown.

In the second, Jamesville put the game on ice with five big runs. Duke Stone doubled and Toby Holliday walked. Larry Pierce reached on a fielder's choice that left the bases loaded. Jerry Ange reached on an error, scoring Stone. Brown then singled, and an error on the play unloaded the sacks, except for Brown, who ended up on third. A wild pitch brought him the rest of the way and left Jamesville up, 7-0.

The Bullets picked up three in the third, two each in the fourth and fifth and one in the sixth. Pantego got one in the second, two in the fifth and one in the seventh.

Robbie Hardison and Jeff Holliday each went two for four, with Hardison having two doubles. Brown and Stone were two for three, with Brown having a triple.

Williamston Nips Pam Pack

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School rallied for two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to take a 5-4 victory over Washington's Pam Pack.

The Tigers clawed their way into the lead in the first inning, scoring a pair of runs. Mike Koesy walked and stole second. Tim Hardison then singled him in, moving up on the relay. Butch Davis brought Hardison home with a sacrifice fly.

The Tigers got another run in the second. Herbie Rogers walked and scored on Greg Roberson's hit.

Trailing 3-0, Washington started a comeback in the third with a run. Ed Cherry singled and stole up. He scored when Ricky Payne reached on an error.

tripled him in, scoring the tying run on a passed ball. Doug Whitehead reached on an error and moved up on another. Bo Stevens walked and when a pickoff attempt went astray, Whitehead rached home.

In the bottom of the seventh, Greg Roberson walked and Eddie Odum ran for him, stealing second. Ken Herman walked and Tim Hardison singled. The ball got away from the outfielder, however, as both Odum and Herman raced home, ending the game as the Tigers pulled it out.

Williamston is now 5-1 overall and 2-0 in the conference. The Tigers travel to Plymouth on Thursday.

In the second, North Pitt scored all its runs in the sixth being shut out in the other frames. Williamston had 15 hits in the second game with Terry Hopkins getting three, Cullipher getting a triple and a home run and Lisa Robertson getting two.

Goldsboro Tops EBA

GOLDSBORO — Goldsboro Junior High School romped to an 11-1 victory over E.B. Aycock Junior High School yesterday.

D. Pennington of Goldsboro hurled a no-hitter at the Jaguars. He went six and a third innings before Barnett replaced him. Pennington struck out 13 and walked six.

The lone Aycock run came in the fourth. Jeff Wilson walked and Mike Shank ran for him, moving up on a wild pitch. Ronnie Chapman then reached on an error, scoring Shank.

Goldsboro took the lead with two in the second, and added single runs in the third and fourth, the latter on a homer by Pennington. Goldsboro got two more in the fifth and five in the sixth.

The loss dropped Aycock to 1-1. The Jaguars travel to Kinston on Friday.

Employment Of Veterans Up

The employment of Veterans in Pitt County has shown an increase during the past year, according to Kendrick Taylor, Veterans Employment Representative with the Greenville Employment Security Commission. Even though there has been a period of economic recession nationwide, the number of veterans placed through the Greenville local employment office has been on the increase. Four hundred and sixty eight veterans were placed in 1975 compared to 404 for the year 1974. There was also an increase in the number of applications taken on veterans during this time. In 1975 there were 838 veteran applications taken compared to 724 in 1974. Taylor noted that approximately 35 percent of all veterans apply for work at the local employment office were students. Those veterans were seeking part time work to supplement their VA benefits while attending school. Many of those students are married and are finding it difficult to continue in school without additional income. He also pointed out that there is a marked increase in competition for part time jobs in the area. As a result, many of these veterans are finding it almost impossible to find such jobs.

Since the Employment Security Commission is a state non-fee agency, employers are urged to list all of their job openings with the agency. Employers are also reminded that testing for various jobs is available through the employment office. As many employers are aware, testing was virtually outlawed a few years ago. The employment office now has many validated tests that employers may use in their selection of employees.

The new address for the Greenville Employment is 3101 Bismarck Street.

No Interest To Continue In Unionizing Old Policies

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — Organizer Robert Freeman says he will suggest to the Textile Workers Union of America that efforts to unionize Cannon Mills be dropped if enthusiasm of workers doesn't pick up by late May.

"I don't want to go through an election with no more interest than is shown now," Freeman said Tuesday. "People think I can build a union. There's no one on earth that can build a union here except the workers of Cannon Mills."

He said a second defeat might jeopardize the union's chances of moving into other textile mills in the Southeast.

Cannon employees rejected the TWUA 8,473-6,801 in November 1974 in the largest union election ever held in the textile industry.

Cannon has 15 mills and about 16,000 workers in Rowan and Cabarrus counties.

The union was able to get 12,000 workers to sign for a collective bargaining election in 1974, but Freeman said only about 5,000 have signed this time.

RALEIGH (AP)—At his swearing in ceremony Thursday as secretary of the state Department of Human Resources, Philip Kirk pledged to continue the policies of David Flaherty who stepped down to seek the Republican nomination for governor.

Kirk also pledged in support of Gov. Jim Holshouser whom he served as administrative assistant.

"It will be my goal to continue the record begun by Secretary Flaherty. My role will be much like that of a coach or a cheerleader—making sure that the game plan is carried out and keeping the employees excited about reaching the goals which have been set," Kirk said.

Kirk, 31, a former Salisbury school teacher and newspaper reporter and former state senator, said that children will continue the top priority of the Human Resources Department. "Community-based programs will continue to be emphasized in mental health and youth services," he said.

Secret Of Good Square Dancer Is Just Practice

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ralph Sloan may be the world's best known square dancer. He's celebrating his 25th anniversary on the Grand Ole Opry. He and his square dancers, the Tennessee Travelers, are seen by millions in this country and overseas on the syndicated television show, "That Good Ol' Nashville Music."

Sloan, who also enjoys ballroom dancing, has had embarrassing moments. "I danced with my fly open once," he recalled. "I've fallen down, too. It's not to unusual if we mess up; if we do, I just try to smile; 90 per cent of the audience doesn't know the difference anyway."

He thinks square dancing serves a good purpose on the Opry. "To me, it's an essential part of the show. The audience hears one song after another; then we livin' it up — get the people of the cryin' tunes."

"When I hear that fiddle start and hear that great music, I'm ready to kick it up. I try to dance the way they did many years ago — Appalachian style. I try to keep it as down to earth as I can."

The secret of being a good square dancer? "Practice, practice, practice. It's just like Babe Ruth. He had to practice and practice to become the star he did. Lots of people have the music and rhythm in them, and square dancing is a way of letting it out."

Sloan began square dancing as a high school student in the early 1940s. After World War II, he formed his own dance group and began entering contests. He and his group caught the eye of Opry officials and began performing at the Opry in 1951.

"It always had been my desire to be on the Opry," he recalled. "Heck, I would have swept the floors and emptied the trash cans for them. Right now, it's like a hobby for me. I haven't made any money at it, that's for sure."

"We've never missed a scheduled Opry performance. And after 25 years, I'm still not an official member of the Opry; that's my goal — to be

Land-Use To Be Reviewed

On April 21 citizens from Pitt and surrounding counties will get their first opportunity in a public hearing to comment on a proposed land classification system that will guide the future use of land in our state.

The land classification system is only one recommendation of the N.C. Land Policy Council up for discussion April 21 at 7 p.m. at the Superior Court Courtroom in Greenville and also during April in Raleigh, Lenoir, Kernersville, Fayetteville, Bryson City, Asheville, and Charlotte.

According to the proposed classification system, local governments would make the decisions on categorizing lands for future use. The system would promote wise land use and guide federal, state, and local investments and policies affecting land use. The Council also recommends that three or four local citizens commissions, similar to the Coastal Plains Commission, be appointed to guide the classification process and later, to coordinate regional growth policy.

Other recommendations of the Land Policy Council include a policy on valuing property for tax purposes, an automated land use information system, and policies to coordinate land use programs among all levels of government.

The recommendations evolved from two years of work, including over 20 local workshops, by the Council and a 24-member citizens advisory committee representing agribusiness, tourism, land development, and environmental sciences throughout the state. The Council was established by the legislature in 1974 to recommend to the governor and General Assembly a land policy and classification system for the state.

A variety of local interests represented at the workshops and the composition of the Council and advisory committee have already assured that local interests are represented in the recommendations.

After the hearings, the recommendations and public comments will be reviewed by the governor and local planning agencies before submission to the legislature in 1977.

Giving Up On Florida's Oil

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Exxon is hanging in there but some other oil companies already have given up on 18 federal offshore leases along the Florida coast that cost them $58 million.

It's the latest melancholy indication that the Gulf of Mexico area known to oilmen as the "MAFLA Frontier" may be one of the great offshore busts in oil history.

Environmentalists who fought tooth and nail against the coming of the oilmen, fearful that Florida's sugar-white beaches might be fouled with oil scum, need not have worried. If there is any oil out there, they haven't found it yet.

MAFLA is short for Mississippi, Alabama and Florida. The shallow continental shelf seabottom along the coastline of those states was virgin territory that brought a gleam to the oilman's eye.

In an offshore lease sale held in New Orleans on Dec. 20, 1973, the Department of Interior sold 87 tracts for a fat $1.49 billion bonus.

In addition to bonus payments, the government was to receive one-eighth royalties on oil or gas production.

There were great expectations. That was before drillers stunned the geologists by coming up with 15 expensive holes so dry they were dusty.

After a glum reassessment of their tracts, several oil companies had severe second thoughts.

Keeping the leases another year would have meant coughing up a rental of $3 an acre. On three square miles, the normal size of a Gulf tract, $3 an acre runs to $17,280. The companies decided to take their tax writeoff losses and pull out instead.

The Bureau of Land Management here said Atlantic Richfield Co. relinquished nine leases that had cost a total of $12.5 million at the lease sale. Three bidding combines headed by Shell Oil Co. gave back six leases which they bought for $25.8 million. Two combines headed by Sun Oil Co. relinquished two leases that sold for $19 million. And a combine headed by Union Oil Co. of California relinquished one lease that had cost $503,000.

Sixty nine leases remain active. They are good for the life of production if a driller strikes it rich. Otherwise, they extend for five years if rent is paid, and lapse if no drilling is undertaken within that time.

The U.S. Geological Survey office here, which issues drilling permits in the Gulf, said nobody is drilling along the MAFLA these days and no applications are on file.

Exxon was the big plunger in the MAFLA lease sale, putting down a record $212 million on one tract. Mention "MAFLA" or "Destin" and some Exxon executives clutched convulsively at their heart — jokingly, but with real feeling.

Altogether, Exxon and its bidding combine partners paid about $700 million for eight tracts on the Destin anticline.

Must Serve Time

RALEIGH (AP)—Unless federal courts intercede, attorney Jerry Paul will have to serve the remaining nine days of a 14-day contempt of court sentence he received at the end of the Joan Little case last summer.

The state supreme court refused Tuesday to review the contempt of court citation against Paul, Miss Little's chief defense lawyer.

Paul was handed the jail sentence after the trial in which Miss Little was acquitted on charges of murder in the slaying of Clarence Alligood, a Beaufort County jailer.

The Supreme Court decision means that unless Paul appeals to federal court he must serve the remaining nine days of his contempt of court sentence. He served five days before being released to make his appeal.

During the Little trial, Paul accused Judge Hamilton Hobbgood of archaic and unreasonable behavior after Hobbgood restricted his questioning of potential jurors in the trial.

The state Court of Appeals last month rejected Paul's contentions that his remarks were only "heated advocacy" on Miss Little's behalf.

The court also turned down Paul's contention that an impartial judge should have heard the contempt case. The court said Hobbgood had exhibited no prejudice.

Navy Trimming ROTC Units

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Navy is dropping four Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps units, and placing 11 on probation because they come close to not enrolling enough cadets. Among the 11 is North Carolina Central University in Durham, N.C.

The four being dropped are at the University of Louisville, Ky.; the Maine Maritime Academy; the New York Maritime College, the Bronx; and the University of West Florida at Pensacola.

"The disestablishment actions result from a continuing need to improve efficiency and cost effectiveness," the Navy said Tuesday.

Factors considered included meeting Defense Department standards, geographical distribution, enrollment and "the diversity and range of academic programs."

The announcement did not say which factors applied in the individual cases.

The 11 institutions whose Naval ROTC enrollments are close to being below Defense Department Standards will be placed on probation during the next year. These schools are:

University of Illinois; Illinois Institute of Technology; Northwestern University; Savannah College, Ga.; University of Kansas; University of Minnesota; Southern University at Baton Rouge, La.; University of Pennsylvania; Rice University in Houston; University of Utah and North Carolina Central University.

These units will be re-evaluated next fall, but the four ROTC tabbed for elimination will be shut down starting this summer.

The Navy said students now enrolled in Naval ROTC programs at the four schools will be allowed to complete their Naval Science courses at the school they now attend. Such courses are required for Navy commissions.

The Naval ROTC historically provides nearly half of the regular Navy officers corps.

Honor Society To Initiate 277

The East Carolina University chapter of Phi Kappa Phi honor society will initiate 277 outstanding junior, senior and graduate students in ceremonies April 15.

Also to be initiated are Herman G. Moeller of the ECU Correctional services faculty and Troy Pate of Goldsboro, chairman of Trustees.

A reception for new members and their families will be given by Chancellor and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins following the initiation ceremonies.

Bundy To Speak At DAV Meet

State Rep. Sam D. Bundy will speak at the monthly meeting of the Disabled American Veterans and their wives Thursday in Greenville. Friday he will attend a meeting of the Advisory Budget Commission in Raleigh and also will be in Raleigh Wednesday, Apr. 14, for a meeting of the N. C. Advisory Council on Teacher Education.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

The death in New York at the age of 78 of Harry Fishbein, the former Maestro of the Mayfair, has robbed the bridge world of one of its most colorful personalities. His berets had become his trademark in the tournament world; no matter how long the tournament ran, he managed to produce a different beret every day. But his colorful attire could not camouflage his extraordinary skill at the table.

Fishbein held the South cards when this hand was played at rubber bridge some years ago. It is not easy to criticize the bidding. As the cards lie, three no trump would be a cinch; it would go down only if one hand held five diamonds and the ace of spades, and diamonds were held. However, four spades would have presented no problem were it not for the unfortunate spade break. The opening lead of the king of diamonds was won by dummy's ace, and Fishbein immediately cashed the three high clubs to get two diamond discards. Were it not for the double, the next step would have been to draw trumps, but West's double alerted declarer to the fact that trumps were going to break badly. If West got in with the ace of trumps and forced declarer by leading a minor suit, he would have longer trumps than South.

Fishbein continued with a heart to his queen, then tried to cash the ace of hearts. West ruffed and continued with a diamond to force declarer. Now Fishbein found the only play to make his contract—he led the three of hearts!

East won and returned a diamond, but declarer was in control. He ruffed, then ruffed his king of hearts with the queen of spades. West had to score his ace of trumps, but that was the third and last trick for the defense.

Note that South will be defeated if he plays his remaining heart honor when he leads that suit for the third time. West will ruff and continue with ace and another trump, and declarer will be stranded with a heart loser.

PBS Has Treat For Ballet Buffs

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Public Broadcasting Service tonight is sending public TV stations a show that may make ballet freaks leap for joy — a 50th anniversary salute to the works of modern dance pioneer Martha Graham.

The opus, the third in the four-part "Dance in America" series made by WNET here under grants totalling $1.5 million, features six dances Miss Graham created, plus an introduction of each by her.

(If you're interested, check your local newspaper to make certain the 90-minute show is playing in your area tonight. Some stations may elect to carry it on another night.)

Now I must confess that what I know about The Dance could be put in a ballet slipper with room left over for three corn plasters and a used entree.

And it does me little good that actor Gregory Peck, who once studied movement with Miss Graham, describes her innovations as "angular, dissonant" works that "shattered the mold of classical ballet."

True, Miss Graham does try to explain what each of her six dances tonight symbolize. For example, she says her "Diversion of Angels," a 1946 effort, tries to show "love of life and love of love."

But for those of us who don't know what she's about, I suspect it might have been better had the show periodically offered illustrations of classical ballet and how her work differs from it.

The producers might even have called on, say, humorist Woody Allen, a former Graham student, for a few words about her methods and approach, the idea being that he could explain more in fewer words than most dance critics, and maybe even make it understandable.

Oh, well. For the record, the Graham dances on display tonight, in addition to "Diversion of Angels," are "Adoration," "Appalachian Spring," "Lamentation," "Frontier" and what is described as "Medea's Dance of Vengeance from 'Cave of the Heart.'"

The music to which the leaping occurs ranges from the sound of a full symphonic orchestra to a delightful number featuring only classical guitar and cello.

Ballet aficionados will find this show a landmark in ballet on television. Civilians probably will enjoy it most as a nice head trip of movement and music.

And those who refuse to watch ballet will no doubt be singing tonight the old theme song of the I-Hate-Ballet faction, which is "Tutu Tootsie, Goodby."

Which Home Would You Buy?

Before you consider listing your home with any real estate agency, investigate our services and the advantages of offering your home for sale as guaranteed by our Buyers Protection Plan. We'll be happy to show you the BPP Agreement and explain exactly what is covered. There's no obligation of course; ask one of our qualified agents to visit your home and give you complete details.

It is obvious that our Buyers Protection Plan is a potent sales advantage for the seller. Not only is the purchaser assured of protection, but the seller, as well, is free from all future obligation when the home is sold. And, because BPP puts aside the worry about future repair or replacement costs, the home will often sell faster and at a much higher price; the small cost of BPP will often return itself many times over.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 28 through March 31.

House
SCIENCE TEACHING
Rejected, 160 for and 232 against, an amendment to eliminate funds for a controversial National Science Foundation curriculum development program and instead earmark the money for teacher training. The amendment was proposed to a bill (HR 12566) authorizing the NSF's $811 million fiscal year 1977 budget, later passed and sent to the Senate.

The proposed amendment would have prevented the NSF from using $1.4 million to continue developing textbooks and classroom materials for its Human Sciences Program. The program is billed by NSF as an effort to upgrade elementary and secondary education in the life sciences.

Rep. John Conlan (R-Ariz.), the sponsor, said the program "is fraught with extraordinary psychosocial danger to the children." He cited a lesson in which students have to "gather material on the attitudes of their parents, politics, everything from their zodiac signs to their medical history, all exposed right in the classroom."

Opponents said local school officials could take the curriculum or leave it. Rep. Timothy Wirth (D-Colo.) said a course in the life sciences "must necessarily deal directly with humans, their behavior and environment" and that the program was being carefully monitored.

Reps. Stephen Neal (D-5), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay."

DISCLOSURE Adopted, 293 for and 111 against, an amendment to continue the requirement that copies of congressional campaign finance reports be filed in state capitals. The amendment was attached to a bill (HR 12406) restructuring the Federal Election Commission, later passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

Since 1971 incumbent Members of Congress and their opponents have been required to file campaign finance statements with their respective secretary of state as well as at the Congress. HR 12406 would have discontinued the in-state filings if not for passage of this amendment.

Rep. Bill Frenzel (R-Minn.), the sponsor, said the reports on contributions and expenditures should also be filed back home in order to make them more accessible and thus enhance "the concept of disclosure." He added that "the local press and local observers of the political scene find it much easier to get this information within the state..."

One opponent, Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio), complained that he once received "an ocean of bad publicity" when the Ohio secretary of state's office apparently misplaced one of his campaign finance reports. Hays and other opponents also said the state filing causes "unnecessary paperwork."

Fountain, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea." Jones and Rose voted "nay." Henderson did not vote.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE
Rejected, 134 for and 269 against, an amendment to allow the Federal Election Commission (FEC) to continue issuing advisory opinions on campaign finance practices without facing congressional review. The amendment was proposed to HR 12406 (see above).

The vote upheld a new requirement that the FEC's legal guidance to candidates on individual campaign finance problems and questions be subjected to the same congressional scrutiny that applies to formal regulations issued by the FEC.

Advisory opinions have so far been free of such oversight. The basic issue here, as with other disagreements over the FEC bill, was the degree of independence Congress would allow a federal agency that regulated Members of Congress.

Charles Wiggins (R-Calif.), a supporter, said congressional authority to veto the opinions "is utterly destructive of the independence of the commission." Supporters said the oversight is unnecessary since the FEC's advisory opinions have not been controversial. Opponents of the amendment argued that oversight was necessary to insure that the commission complied with the intent of Congress. Rep. John Brademas (D-Ind.) said the FEC has "resorted to the device of an advisory opinion" to issue what actually were formal regulations.

Martin and Broyhill voted "yea." Jones, Fountain, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, and Taylor voted "nay." Henderson did not vote.

Senate
CONCORDE Defeated, 31 for and 50 against, an amendment to prohibit the Concorde supersonic transport jet from landing in the United States. The French-British jets would greatly reduce flying time between the U.S. and Europe, but raise noise and environmental questions.

Secretary of Transportation William Coleman has approved landings at Washington, D.C. and New York for a 16-month trial which begins in May if local legal obstacles are removed. This amendment, proposed to S3015, later passed and sent to conference with the House, was an effort to overrule Coleman's decision. S3015 authorized federal aid to airports.

Supporters of the amendment said the Concorde violates noise and pollution standards set for subsonic planes, and could increase the incidence of cancer. Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.), the sponsor, charged that Americans' health and safety are jeopardized "only to score a few diplomatic points with European allies."

Sen. Howard Cannon (D-Nev.), an opponent, said the amendment was "environmentalism run amuck," compared it to early Twentieth Century attacks on airplanes and cars as "creatures of the devil." He said, "Man's quest for speed is inexorable... Time wasted in transportation is wasted forever."

Sens. Robert Morgan (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay." NO FAULT Approved, 49 for and 45 against, a motion to send back to committee, and thus kill, a bill (S 354) requiring that states establish no-fault auto insurance systems which meet minimum federal standards. Under no-fault, which some states already have enacted, a motorist can collect injury-related expenses from his own insurance company regardless of who caused the accident. No-fault preserves the right to sue, but only when damages are exceptionally high.

Supporters of the motion questioned the need for federal action on no-fault, disputed no-fault's claimed economies and challenged the constitutionality of limiting one's right to sue. "This is a question I think should be handled by the states," said Sen. Robert Morgan (D-N.C.). "We are trying to debate and run every facet of human life here in Washington."

Opponents favored no-fault as the means to simplify the accident claim process and ultimately lower the cost of insurance by eliminating in most cases expensive litigation now needed to establish liability for an accident. Sen. John Pastore (D-R.I.) said that in states with no fault systems settlements of claims "have been quick to come by, people have been paid, the benefits are very adequate." He also that a national no-fault requirement would end the

"crazy quilt" of different state insurance systems. Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

Now Textbook In Cajun French

CROWLEY, La. (AP) — Cajun French, the archaic patois used in South Louisiana and reviled by language purists, is achieving academic respectability.

A Cajun French textbook, claimed by its author to be a first, is nearing publication.

For the first time, the soft French South Louisiana inherited from Acadian forebears will be set down in the written word as a formal course for use in "its natural environment, the classroom," said the textbook's author, James D. Faulk.

Faulk, a French instructor in Acadia Parish schools, said the book is the first of two volumes designed to teach French as it is spoken by natives of South Louisiana, rather than as it is spoken in France.

The book is divided into thematic units — the home, the city, food and the family. Each unit introduces a new vocabulary of Cajun words and idiomatic expressions, and uses the vocabulary to teach the rules of grammar.

Faulk said he created 41 phonetic symbols by using familiar English sounds to teach pronunciation. Course materials have been used on an experimental basis since the 1974-1975 school year.

The author gathered vocabulary and phrases from native French speakers in Cameron, Acadia, Vermilion, Lafayette, St. Martin and Iberia parishes.

"The book's value is both technical and cultural," said Faulk, a college and high school instructor for 25 years.

"The purpose of teaching a foreign language is to have students native speakers. The majority of people in this area speak Cajun French, and if the student attempts to work and live in South Louisiana, then Cajun French meets his immediate needs better."

Faulk said his purpose in writing the text was not to replace or compete with the teaching of standard French, but to offer Cajun French as an alternative for students. He also said many Cajun customs are known only by Cajun French terms. In this way, the course in Cajun French, he said, serves as a cultural reinforcement.

Individuals and organizations have worried in the past that Cajun French would disappear.

A student's request to learn to converse in French with his grandmother prompted the idea for the course.

"At that point, I knew that all of my efforts were not helping him meet his immediate needs," Faulk said. "I knew that he had to learn Cajun French."

Bundy Named To Council Term

State Rep. Sam D. Bundy has been appointed by Speaker of the House James C. Green to serve a second three-year term on the N.C. Advisory Council on Teacher Education.

The three-year term will run from July 1, 1976 through June 30, 1979. Bundy will represent the House Education Committee on this Council.

Woodworker In Hollywood

J. NOLAN DAVIS displays a Berlin De Gala carriage he is making. (UPI Photo)

By LLOYD G. CARTER JR. MADERA, Calif. (UPI) — Despite remarkable skills in dozens of pioneer trades and a life filled with adventure and famous people, stagecoach maker J. Nolan Davis feels a bit unfulfilled in this Bicentennial year.

At the age of 60 he also wishes he had a bit more in his pockets.

He is struggling to start a trade school so he can pass on his talents to a generation of young people he believes want to learn how to work with their hands and their hearts.

"I want so bad to be a teacher," he says in his rich southern drawl, lamenting the fact he has no formal education and cannot teach in public schools.

Born in the Smoky Mountains of North Carolina in 1915, Davis was raised by a Cherokee Indian grandfather, a wheelwright and craftsman who taught him everything, except, as Davis wryly notes, how to make and keep money. By the age of 18 he was proficient in 52 trades and familiar with more than 100.

When movie cowboy Tom Mix toured the Carolinas in the 1930s, he hired the youth as a stage hand, and discovering his woodworking talents, urged him to go to Hollywood to make stagecoaches.

Davis did come west. And over the next four decades he built 46 stagecoaches for movie and television westerns, starting with a coach constructed for the classic 1939 western "Stagecoach."

"They never used it, it was too fancy," Davis remembers. "They used an original."

He also built dozens of frontier wagons and carriages and even the chariots for "Ben Hur."

In addition to his coach making, he doubled for actors, taught stuntmen tricks, fixed guns on the sets, made guitars for Gene Autry and Roy Rogers, built cannons, performed special effects, did carpentry at the homes of some stars, built miniatures of his coaches and made furniture for stars, became a scout master and deputy sheriff. The list goes on.

And he says on more occasions than he likes to remember those stars either cheated him or flatly refused to pay him for his work. He says it's not in his nature to "raise a fuss" so he let the debts go.

He often worked for the studios on a flat salary of $1.75 an hour and was later to see some of the stagecoaches he built sold by the studios for as much as $55,000.

By the mid 1960s, Westerns were often made outside the United States and, with many studios closing down, Davis decided to leave the Los Angeles area.

After a brief try at building a stagecoach line in the Simi Valley, he moved to the Sierra where he served briefly as a woodcarver and interpreter of Indian lore at the Wuwona Visitors Center in Yosemite National Park.

He then worked on a salary for a Fresno millionaire building two stagecoaches. For the past two years he and his wife, Marguerite, have lived modestly in a mobile home in nearby Fresno, Davis putting around in his Madera shop and trying to get someone to back his trade school.

"I have always done everything from my heart," Davis says, admitting a lack of financial skills. "I always taught everything I knew, gave away secrets, how to make fancy furniture, cut out fancy Queen Anne legs, things like that, without getting any money for it.

"I gave away all my talent all my life — and I'm still willing to do — so but I would like to have some help from the outside world to get me my school."

Boxes of dusty newspaper clippings detailing his exploits, signed photographs of actors ("here's one of Walter Brennan, he was like a father to me"), and project ideas clutter one corner of the shop.

From a small box full of odds and ends, Davis pulls out some pieces of jade and shows how to make an Indian necklace. He then pulls out a cigarette holder used by Charlie Chaplin and a bullet casing given him by Clark Gable on Gable's return from an African safari.

He then pulls out an old Masonic tie clip and holds it up.

"Charlie Manson found this tie clip and sold it to George Spahn (of the Spahn ranch where the Manson gang lived) for $5," Davis says. "Spahn gave it to me. I used to stop and see George all the time. Of course I never knew what the Manson gang was up to. I just thought it was a bunch of hippies. They was scared of me."

His storytelling causes one to wonder if exaggeration is also not one of his talents, but newspaper clippings bear out much of what he says.

He doesn't drink or swear, has a quiet belief in God, and says his only vice is smoking, which he recently took up after a lifetime of chewing tobacco.

He can quickly disarm cynics, performing card or magic tricks, showing how he can copy any signature perfectly ("That's one I don't show the kids, they'd get in trouble"), all the time dispensing homilies learned from his grandfather and spinning yarns like a Singer sewing machine.

One of his pet projects long dormant is a movie about the history of his family which would show pioneer skills exactly as they were performed. But his present and growing passion is creation of his trade school.

"I want to teach people how to survive," he notes. "How to go out into the world and make a living, how to build furniture, anything they want to know. I'm capable of teaching them real quick, because right away, the girls and boys who come in my shop want to do what they see me do. It looks so easy the way I do it that they think it's easy and it is. If they have any talent at all I will discover it right quick."

"In a year I can teach 100 men six trades apiece. They can go out anywhere and get a job. I'll teach women, too. I love to teach women. They are so creative."

Davis says he hasn't sought a government grant because "they'd be in here telling me what to do and what not to do." He says he would consider charging tuition, but would prefer that some wealthy history buff underwrite the project.

He says it would cost $50,000 to set up the school and supply the proper tools and equipment. He feels it would become self-supporting through the sale of furniture and other items made by the students.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

MOST SPLIT-LEVEL houses, because of their layout, force upon the architect an exterior design less attractive than a more conventional type of house. However, Plan HA907Y has an unusual exterior for a split level and an interior layout with an interesting relationship of living room to balconied dining room. Another interesting feature is a rear dining deck directly accessible from the kitchen. And there is a study which can readily serve as a hobby room. There are 1,139 square feet on the lower levels and 697 square feet on the upper level. Architects are York and Schenke, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica, N.Y. 11432. Anyone wishing further information can write to them, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Boy Guru Is Growing Up; Plans Tour

DEBORAH FRAZIER
DENVER (UPI) — With close associates extolling his new maturity, Guru Maharaj Ji plans a worldwide tour this year to fatten the bankroll of his Divine Light Mission, strengthen membership rolls and prove his group is not a cult.

"He will visit every continent in 1976," said Bob Mischler, the guru's executive director. "He is able to give that personal touch which provides great inspiration."

"He's grown, but he's the same. I have always been awed by his wisdom and awareness of the human condition. In the beginning, he used childlike examples, but now he has grown in his ability to communicate."

Formed in 1970 by the then 13-year-old Indian youth, the Divine Light Mission has weathered a financial crisis, a family battle for control and slackened membership figures.

Maharaj Ji, now 18, is married to his former secretary, Marolyn Lois Johnson, once an airline stewardess. They have a daughter, Premulata, and maintain a home in Denver and an estate at Malibu, Calif.

He has changed his lifestyle, his associates said, and no longer shoots followers with a water pistol or makes gadget-grabbing shopping trips.

The guru doesn't talk to reporters since he was once asked about his sex life. He appointed Joe Antcil as his press secretary and hasn't held a news conference in four years.

Antcil said much of the financial crisis was due to poorly-planned festivals and mismanagement by Maharaj Ji's family. The debt mounted to $650,000 at one point, but Antcil said it is now below $80,000.

According to Antcil this year's tour which was originally to begin in the summer has been postponed until fall because of the financial problem.

Maharaj Ji's mother, Rajeshwari Devi, disowned him for his renowned lifestyle and attempted to take control of the several million member mission. However, Antcil said a threatened lawsuit dissuaded her and the guru now is undisputed leader.

As for membership, which has dropped to under 15,000 in the United States, Antcil said record keeping was a fault for the original figures which were inflated.

In 1976, Maharaj Ji will emphasize personal contact with as many members as possible, Mischler said, as opposed to the earlier stress on converting thousands. Ten per cent of the tour receipts go to international headquarters in Denver, while the balance remains with the host.

The guru's early years in the United States were marked by mass gatherings where "Knowledge," Maharaj Ji's method for understanding the universe, was dispensed.

"We don't want to reach more people than we are capable of taking on," said Mischler. "We once thought the more people the better. Now we find that people were just joining the latest cult."

"Now we are making sure people that have joined are progressing and being more effective as persons and therefore more effective as a result of the program."

Cults have plagued the mission, Mischler said, because Maharaj Ji was frequently linked with the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, Hare Krishna and other more exotic religious groups. "People had a strange idea of what we are," he said.

In fact, Mischler said, Divine Light Mission does not consider itself a religion except for tax purposes. As a religion, the mission pays no taxes on revenues of $355,000 a month.

"We are just here to facilitate people have embraced the path of self discovery," he said. "We are a religion only through legal structures. What we really want to do is further human liberty."

As the thrust of the group changed, so did the membership. Instead of long-skirted, bearded followers of earlier years, the mission's downtown headquarters is run by Cardin suit-clad men and fashionably-attired women.

During his travels this year, Mischler said the guru will be accompanied by his wife and will rest up between trips at the Malibu residence which features a pool, tennis court and an ocean view.

The three balls symbol of the moneylender was first used by the Medici family.

Played Role In Settling Two States

By DR. H. G. JONES, Curator
North Carolina Collection
Written for the AP
CHAPEL HILL (AP)—A North Carolinian the founding father of two states? Hardly that, but Richard Henderson certainly played an important role in the settlement of both Tennessee and Kentucky.

Moving with his parents from Hanover County, Virginia, to the Nutbush community of Edgecombe County (later Granville, now Vance) when he was about five years old, Richard grew up in the sparsely settled back country. After the formation of Granville County, his father Samuel was appointed sheriff, and Richard undoubtedly became familiar with one of the sheriff's most important duties—the collection of taxes.

Young Henderson read law and joined his cousin, John Williams, in practice. Though little is known of his early career as a lawyer, he must have attracted considerable attention, for in 1788 he was appointed one of three justices of the colony's highest court.

In that capacity he incurred the wrath of many of his neighbors who joined the Regulator movement and disrupted his court and burned his home. He and his two colleagues conducted the trial at which a dozen Regulators were convicted of treason following the Battle of Alamance.

Though Henderson supported the colonial government against the Regulators, strangely he defied governmental policy in regard to the settlement of the trans-montane region of Virginia and North Carolina.

He hired a young man by the name of Daniel Boone to explore the area now encompassed by Kentucky, and in 1774 Henderson organized the Transylvania Company which bought from the Indians about 20 million acres of land.

The plans of the company, which intended to start a huge land boom, were scuttled by Virginia officials. The interest in Transylvania stimulated by the Henderson venture, however, led to rapid settlement, and Virginia soon established a county called Kentucky. The area became the state of Kentucky in 1792.

In 1778 Henderson was offered but declined appointment to the new state's highest court, perhaps because he still had designs on the western territory. The next year he headed North Carolina's commission to settle a western boundary dispute with Virginia. When the survey showed that part of his old Transylvania Company's land lay in North Carolina's western territory, Henderson organized another group from the Watauga settlement and established a colony on the Cumberland River.

He drew up and the settlers signed the Cumberland Compact, and in 1783 the area became the county of Davidson with Nashville (now Nashville) as the county seat. The town, incidentally, was named for General Francis Nash of Hillsborough. North Carolina later ceded its western lands to the federal government, and the state of Tennessee was admitted to the Union in 1796.

Returning to Granville, Henderson represented the county in the House of Commons in 1781. The following year he accepted appointment to the council of State.

Henderson and his wife, the former Elizabeth Keeling, had six children, of whom one—Leonard—became chief justice of the state supreme court and was honored by the name of a county and city; and another—Archibald—was elected to congress. Upon his death in 1785, Richard Henderson was buried in the family cemetery near Kerr Lake in Vance County.

Students Attend Emissions Class

Pitt Tech's Air and Water Resources students, attended a "Visible Emissions" school in Washington, N. C. last week. The purpose of the school was to teach practitioners to read smoke as one means of monitoring air pollution from smoke stacks and or from the tailpipes of automobiles.

The class of eight students successfully completed the course and were awarded a "Certificate of Competency to Determine Visible Emissions." Students receiving certificates were, Michael Brown, Steve Bimbo, Richard Gibson, Alma Lee Herndon, Rosa Lee Marriner, Stephen Holmes, Hugh Stokes, and Burl Syers.
