

No Surprises In ECU Med School Study

East Carolina University School of Medicine Dean William Laupus said the report on a visit of accreditation officials to the Medical School last March holds no surprises and seems to him to be a "simple recapitulation of where we were last March."

The report was released yesterday by UNC.

Accreditation officials indicated that opening of the ECU School would not be delayed by the $3.8 million budget cut for the hospital recommended last week by a House-Senate budget committee.

Funding for the medical school was termed "ample" in the report and it scheduled the $3.8 million addition of 100 beds for "sometime in the future." Legislators have said they intended to push to restore the $3.8 million in the 1977-78 budget.

The report indicated overall that the medical school still must meet a tight schedule in order to admit its first students next January. This would be a year and a half later than originally planned.

The report was approved at a late March meeting of the Liaison Committee on Medical Education (LCME).

It is the joint accrediting agency of the American Medical Association and the Association of American Medical Colleges. LCME officials visited the Greenville campus in early March.

"There was general agreement that while good progress had been made toward the development of a creditable four-year medical program, the school was definitely not ready to admit medical students in the fall of 1976," the report said. "The earliest possible date might be January, 1977."

Before students can be admitted in January, the LCME, would have to make an accreditation visit in July. The report said if ECU cannot meet the deadline, the earliest possible date for admitting students would be September, 1977.

The cost of necessary modification on the new hospital, now under construction, is estimated at $12.3 million, compared with the $20 million estimated cost of the separate 200-bed teaching hospital originally proposed.

The LCME report listed seven other hospitals in the area and said that "it is most urgent that affiliation agreement be concluded with a number of additional hospitals in the region."

"The number of beds that will be available in the Pitt County Hospital may be marginal to provide adequate clinical maternal patients even for a small initial entering class of 24," the report said. Additional affiliation agreements are "already underway," Laupus said.

The report continued: "It is imperative that the full support of the PCMH physician staff be obtained, as an early priority" although the hospital "seems well designed and a good affiliation agreement has been concluded."

"We've come a ways since that visit," Laupus said this morning. "We've offered 12 contracts and obtained 11 new faculty members. And we found potential chairmen for our pathology, microbiology, and internal medicine departments.

"All in all, I'd call this report a documentation of the course already set at the time of the visit. In general, it's an agreement with what we'd set out to do, not a matter of telling of what to do, as some readers could interpret it."

In Lebanon

Fighting Goes On As Peace Mapped

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) The new truce supervision committee said today that Palestinian troops would form a buffer force between Beirut's warring Moslem and Christian street fighters, but meanwhile the fighting raged without letup.

Police said about 100 persons were killed and 160 wounded by mortar and rocket fire during the night. One of those killed was the 16-year-old grandson of Pierre Gemayel, whose right-wing Phalange party has the largest Christian militia in the year-old civil war.

Police also reported that more than 150 persons were kidnaped but that most were released after a short time.

A new cease-fire, agreed to under Syrian pressure during the weekend, was to have gone into effect at midnight Monday. But the deadline made no difference in the fighting in the capital and nearby mountain towns.

Decisions made by the leaders were not transformed into orders to the hodgepodge of street armies, reflecting the leaders' tenuous control over their forces and their distrust of each other.

As leftist Moslem and Palestinian leaders met Monday night to discuss ways of enforcing the cease-fire, leftist gunmen were attacking Phalangist positions in the Beirut port area.

Similarly, long after Gemayel subscribed to the truce, Christian gunmen were firing mortar and artillery shells into Moslem positions in the charred downtown hotel district and nearby commercial streets.

The truce supervision committee is made up of representatives of the Syrians, the Lebanese leftists and Christians and the Palestinians. It is to put together joint Lebanese-Palestinian patrols to enforce the cease-fire, but sources in Damascus say Syrian President Hafez Assad will add Syrian troops to the teams if necessary.

In Washington, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that although the Ford administration opposes "military intervention that could lead to a Middle East war," Syria's role in Lebanon has been generally a constructive one.

There are an estimated 6,000 Syrian troops in frontier areas in eastern and northern Lebanon, and Syria also controls about 7,000 men of the Saiga Palestinian guerrilla organization.

Joint Meeting

A joint City Council-Greenville School Board meeting will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of the new North Carolina National Bank on Greene and First Streets.

The meeting is being held to discuss property and road factors involved in proposed plans to place tennis courts on the school ground at Elmhurst Elementary School.

Tornado Injuries Eleven

By The Associated Press
Eleven persons were injured when a tornado struck Brownwood, Tex., in a post-Easter patchwork of weather that brought sweltering temperatures to the East and twisters and thunderstorms to some other sections.

One twister wrecked three houses near a pecan orchard in Brownwood Monday night and injured 11 persons, requiring hospitalization for nine of them. The tornado also did $1 million damage to the central Texas city's municipal airport, officials said.

Meanwhile, it appeared that the East Coast was getting some relief from a hot spell that had sent temperatures into the 90s on Sunday and Monday. However, the National Weather Service said temperatures would remain unseasonably warm in the region.

New York City cooled from a high of 92 degrees Monday to a midmorning reading of 80 degrees today.

While New England and Mid-Atlantic states were hot, sunny Miami had a high of only 75 Monday.

Brooks To Run

Raleigh attorney John Brooks is expected to announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Commissioner of Labor here on Thursday at the Holiday Inn.

The announcement is expected to be made at 10 a.m., it was pointed out.

Brooks, a Greenville native, sought the nomination for Commissioner of Labor in 1972 and received 46 per cent of the vote in the runoff primary.

CUSTOMER METER READING—WHY NOT?

The utilities companies have complained about their labor and postage costs. Have they considered letting their customers read their own meters and then send out statements only at less frequent intervals than once a month? E.W.

George Reel of Greenville Utilities says he does not believe this would be practical here. One reason he cited is that Greenville uses the dial-type meters which would make for easy errors if the reader is not trained and accustomed to reading them.

Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corporation, which has its office in Farmville, is an example of a utilities system which does let members read their own meters. It uses a cyclometer (similar to an automobile speedometer), which makes for easy reading. Pitt and Greene General Manager Gilbert Whitley says.

Reel says he understands there are more maintenance problems with these. Whitley agrees that there probably are, though he says he has no way of knowing what the degree of difference is.

When custom-read meters' readings are not turned in, Pitt and Greene's billing is done by estimating usage based on average past usage. Reel said he believes, with this system, there would be problems with fuel charge computation if the estimates were to prove not to be near accurate, and also with large catch-up bills if the estimates turns out to be low.

Fuel charges haven't been too much of a problem, Whitley said, because the computer takes care of the variance pretty well. Large make-up bills are sometimes a problem, but, of course, when this happens, the customer knows it's his own fault for having failed to send in monthly readings.

"We wish our customers would be more conscientious about sending in their readings," Whitley said, "but all-in-all the system works very well. We have no plans to change."

Pitt and Greene does send out a monthly statement which has a blank for the customer to send in his meter reading along with payment for the previous month, so there is no postage saved. The savings is in the labor and transportation saved with fewer readings. Of course, there is more of a problem for a rural coop than for a city utilities service, because of distances involved.

Reel said a number of utilities systems which have the customer-read meter plan are thinking of changing to a system similar to GUCO's, but Pitt and Greene apparently is not one of them.

Connally Opines Ford Is Trailing Reagan In Texas

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford is trailing Ronald Reagan in their contest for Texas' delegates to the Republican National Convention, former Texas Gov. John Connally feels.

But Connally told reporters at a GOP fund-raiser in Austin, Tex., Monday night that the vote could swing either way in the closing days before Texas' May 1 primary.

If 10 per cent of Texas' Republicans change their minds in the last three days, it could alter the outcome, predicted Connally, who also promised to tell Texans before May 1 why he has remained neutral. His influence, Connally said, has been "grossly exaggerated."

Local and state GOP officials honored Connally at a $50-a-plate dinner. The former Democrat told the crowd of 500 that he felt like former President Nixon must have felt when he got off the plane recently in Peking — "It's nice to be back among friends."

President Ford told a group of newspaper editors in the White House Monday that Reagan was "absolutely irresponsible" for advocating an end to the current Panama Canal negotiations.

There was no immediate response from Reagan, who did not campaign Monday. Reagan, who has been hammering away against Ford's defense policies, has charged that the negotiations will lead to a surrender of America's control over the Canal Zone.

Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington told supporters in a Woodbridge, Conn., synagogue Monday night, "I want to see American foreign policy committed to human rights."

"I'm tired of detente without a human soul," declared Jackson. He said the United States should use trade concessions to force the Soviet Union to ease its emigration restrictions. Jackson has Gov. Ella Grasso's backing in Connecticut's May 11 primary.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, attacked Ford Monday during a five-minute paid political broadcast on CBS. Church branded Ford as "a weak president" for pardoning former President Richard M. Nixon and for failing "to punish powerful government agencies that break the law and bully the people."

Church headed the Senate intelligence committee's recent CIA probe.

Church also denied in a Boise, Idaho, appearance that he was in the race to secure a nomination as vice president or secretary of state, or as a buildup for a full fledged campaign in 1980.

Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, who lost a close race to Democratic front-runner Jimmy Carter in Wisconsin earlier this month, promised supporters he will win his first primary in his home state Saturday. Udall says he will win at least 15 of the 25 delegates at stake.

Wreck Injured Two Persons

MORNING WRECK — An early morning accident near Belvoir left two persons injured. Patrolman John Brinkley reported that Betty L. Sutton, of Greenville was injured in a collision at the intersection of rural paved roads 1400 and 1401. The officer said the car struck a van type truck driven by George C. Bailey, of Washington, N.C. between the truck and a trailer the vehicle was pulling. Bailey was also reported injured. Investigation into the accident is continuing. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Farres)

Small Business Pension Program 'Too Costly' Under Regulations

RALEIGH (AP)—Twenty employees of Hobson Construction Co. in Asheville recently suffered a blow when they learned Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Hobson had decided to drop the pension plan on which they had been counting.

The reason was the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) of 1974, Mrs. Hobson said.

In some respects, the law, designed to protect an employee's pension benefits, has backfired by prompting many small and medium-sized companies to give up their pension plans.

A small company just can't absorb the extra costs of filling forms and keeping records required by the new law, pension experts said.

"The average small business in Eastern North Carolina, with say 15 to 25 employees, is going to drop its plan," said William G. Rand, a Raleigh pension consultant. "For them, a pension plan is now just too much trouble."

The employees will still receive the benefits accumulated while the pension plan was in effect, but their future work for the company won't increase the amounts they receive.

Some companies where laborers are hired and let go depending on the job, had provided pensions to certain classes of employees only. Hobson Construction was one of these.

It and some other firms say they can't afford to broaden their plans as required by the law to include all full-time workers. Although the law was designed to prevent retirement plans that benefit only a handful of executives, it was not intended to eliminate plans.

"We're very upset about dropping it," said Mrs. Hobson in a telephone interview. "But under the new federal laws we would have to cover everybody—about 100 employees—and in this business we just can't do it. With laborers coming and going, we would be constantly dealing with red tape."

"It's just too expensive," she said. She said the firm would have had to contribute $30,000 to $40,000 to the pension plan. One portion of the law causing a great deal of cost is vesting—a requirement that employees, after a certain length of time on the job, are guaranteed pension payments on retirement, even if they leave the company before normal retirement.

An employee under the law may get some rights to a pension in as few as five years. Job changing has been so prevalent that only a fraction of employees could count on collecting earned pension credits if they changed jobs before 10 or 15 years with one employer.

In the first seven months of the present fiscal year, 176 retirement plans were terminated in North Carolina, almost as many as were dropped in the previous 12 months.

Center Expected Boost Triangle Population

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP)—Population of the three-county Triangle area may be boosted 105,000 by construction of the proposed National Environmental Research Center in the Research Triangle Park, according to an environmental impact statement.

The report, released Monday, estimated that if the multi-faceted research facility is completed by the year 2,000 it would account for about 30 per cent of the expected population growth in Wake, Durham and Orange counties from the present 450,000 to 796,000 by the end of the century.

The projected growth would include the 12,000 persons eventually working in the center and their families, plus another 30,000 people filling new jobs created by the center and their families.

The report said the most significant effect of the big increase in population would be an increased need for housing, schools, utilities and medical services in the area.

However, it said development of the center would not overtax water and other utility services in the Triangle area. It added that by 1980 some schools might be overcrowded, depending on where new workers settle and the size of their families.

The center was conceived in 1965, when the federal government decided to build a single health research center at least 50 miles from Washington. That same year, Congress appro-riated $1 million for planning, and the Research Triangle site was obtained the following year.

The center will be composed of the new National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences (NIEHS), the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) facilities, two research labs and a maintenance plant that would also house the center's utilities.

NIEHS engages in research on effects of chemical agents on human health. It has investigated such agents as asbestos, vinyl chloride and the pesticide Kepone.

Congress has appropriated $25 million of the $64 million needed to build the NIEHS facility, which could be completed by 1980. The remaining $39 million is still to be appropriated.

The proposed center will be construction on a wooded, 509-acre tract in the Research Triangle Park. An NIEHS official said the entire center may not be completed before the year 2015.

The report said the lack of rapid transit facilities could lead to traffic congestion in the area unless workers use car pools or new highway facilities are built. It said that while enough hospital beds exist to meet the demands, long-term hospital beds and emergency medical facilities may not be adequate.

The impact statement has been sent to state and federal agencies, conservation groups and public interests groups which have until May 31 to make their comments.

Couple Weds In Ceremony Performed On Sunday

The Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding of Teresa Ann Heath and Donald Lindsey Greene. The Rev. Bronson Matney performed the double ring ceremony at 3:30 p.m. A program of organ music was presented by Diane Goodall. Parents of the bride are Mrs. Mary Lou Heath and Mrs. Carson Heath, both of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Nina Bell Greene of Portsmouth, Va., and the late Mr. Raymond Greene. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white A-lined empire dress of taffeta with a lacy overlay fashioned with a scooped neckline. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion net with streamers and carried a nosegay of spring flowers.

Mrs. Donald Lindsey Greene

Larry Fields of Chesapeake, Va., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man.

The ceremony was performed before an altar decorated with burning candles. Arrangements of ferns with white and yellow mums and spring flowers were used to decorate the church.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of blue polyester with lace sleeves. A corsage of white carnations complimented her dress.

The grandmothers were presented with white carnation corsages. The great grandmother was presented a cymbidium orchid.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Janet Joyner.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride attended the Greenville City School and the bridegroom attended school in Virginia. He works with the George Pugh Tire and Service Center.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The hall was decorated with magnolia leaves and candles.

The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white and yellow mums and yellow gladioli.

Guests were served wedding cake by Miss Brenda Joyner of Raleigh, aunt of the bride, and punch was poured by Mrs. Lenora Stancill of Belvoir. Mrs. Annie Joyner, Mrs. Marquise Heath and Mrs. Maureen Evans assisted in serving.

Rich Food Can Be Booby-Trap

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor
"Hazards for the gastronomic traveler ... usually are self-invited. If you eat about twice your normal quantity of food, washing it down with spirits and wine, some of which may be very young and very acid, expose yourself to the sun regardless, and go on traveling when you are tired and full of food and drink, you may well expect your digestion to protest."

This warning comes from Pamela Vandyke Price, an English food and wine writer and widow of a physician, in an excellent guidebook. Her suggestions about "Eating and Drinking in France Today" (Scribners $7.95) are widely applicable.

Too much rich food and wine are the principal booby-traps for all travelers in any region that is famous for its cuisine.

We tend to rationalize this gluttony: it may be a long-dreamed-of trip, or a very costly one. We want to get our money's worth, so we eat and drink to excess day after day, starting virtually from the moment we set foot on foreign soil. This practice, combined with loss of sleep and/or exhaustion from jet lag, can spoil your whole vacation, or make you lose precious days on any trip.

Mrs. Price recommends discriminating indulgence. She reminds us that the French eat a light breakfast and a big lunch and dinner, but they do not generally eat between meals.

If you are accustomed to a big breakfast, by all means stick to that habit, but eat a light lunch and take your big meal in the evening, or vice versa.

If you are tired from last-minute chores, relax for a day or two: don't start immediately on a strenuous sightseeing schedule. Give your body time to adjust to jet lag and a different diet.

In France, you won't be tabbed as a tourist if your first dinner is entrecote (steak) with a simple maitre d'hotel butter, the butter creamed with fresh parsley, lemon juice and pepper. That and pommes-frites (French fried potatoes) are favorites with the French themselves.

If you are unaccustomed to drinking wine daily, limit yourself to a glass or two with lunch and/or dinner the first few days.

Don't try to eat a big lunch and dinner daily if you are accustomed to a soup and sandwich-type lunch back home. In good weather, a loaf of bread, a bottle of wine, some cheese and fruit makes a satisfying picnic lunch in such nations as France and Italy.

For lunch, Denmark's open-faced sandwiches or hot dogs sold by vendors go deliciously with the local beers, which are less alcoholic than export beers from the same breweries.

Treat yourself only occasionally to rich pastries at teatime or with coffee in midmorning or late afternoon. Denmark, Switzerland, France and Italy offer many temptations in pastry shops and cafes.

In France, if your trip includes meals at one or more three-star restaurants, try to space them out over a period of days. Eat lightly the day before and the day after any such feast. If you want a rich dessert, by all means have it. But choose light courses for the rest of the meal.

Treat yourself occasionally to tropical fruit in the Caribbean and home-grown fruit in other areas, but don't overeat. If you are doubtful about cleanliness, either select fruit that can be peeled, or wash the fruit first in bottled water.

In one way, cruise ships offer the maximum gastronomic temptation. On a typical liner, six meals and snacks a day are included in the cost of your voyage: breakfast, midmorning bouillon, lunch, afternoon tea, dinner and a lavish buffet around midnight.

Any time of day passengers can order snacks or extras served in their cabin or suite, for a fee. Few shipping companies include table wine in the overall cost any more, but wine and spirits are cheap, about half to one-third of what you would pay for the same thing in the United States.

Perhaps the biggest hazard involved in overeating aboard ship is the limited opportunities cruising offers for exercising to compensate for all those extra calories. Even sightseeing in ports often means riding around instead of walking.

At Wit's End

Entertainers know when they've made it.

They're billed in Las Vegas with only one name on the marquee: Elvis! Sammy! Cher! They occupy the center desk on "Hollywood Squares."

They leave early on the Carson show.

But how does a wife and mother know it when she becomes a Superstar—a person in her own right?

I'll know. One day the phone will ring and it will be for me.

I'll see my child in public, speak to him and he'll recognize me.

One of these mornings, out of four cars in the driveway one of them will be running and I'll get it.

Or the kids will set the table and someone else will get the bend fork.

Principal Prefers Scheduled Meetings

DEAR ABBY: I am a high school principal who has had it up to here with thoughtless parents who just pop in at their convenience for a special conference.

Will you please ask parents who want to discuss a problem concerning their child to phone for an appointment or write a note?

Other professionals do not accept walk-in conferences except in cases of emergency. Last week I had 16 walk-in meetings with parents! My time is scheduled, and I just can't see all these people who want to see me when it suits them.

HAD IT IN FULLERTON

DEAR HAD IT: You aren't the only one with this problem. Many teachers have complained, too. I hope this helps.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think this is a stupid question, but I don't know who else to ask.

Is there some place that buys used dentures? I have six sets that are good as new. They belonged to members of my family who are now deceased. Three pair belonged to my grandmother, and she never wore any of them for more than three months.

It seems a shame to just throw them out if they could be of use to someone. I would even be glad to GIVE them away if you could tell me where to send them.

I called my own dentist and asked if he wanted to buy them, and he said, "My God, lady, I don't BUY dentures, I SELL them!"

Please answer this as I am serious.

TEETH ON MY HANDS

DEAR TEETH: There's undoubtedly a law (with teeth in it) prohibiting the sale of used dentures. And I wouldn't know to whom you could give them.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the 31-year-old irate bachelor who always gets the "how-come-you're-not-married" routine when applying for employment prompts this letter:

I'm 45 and divorced many years with no intention of remarrying. Ten years ago I applied for a position with the Chamber of Commerce of one of Ohio's largest cities.

The interview went very well until the man in charge said, "I notice on your resume that you're not married." Then he said with a wink, "Not a 'homo' by any chance, are you?"

I just looked at him incredulously while he went on to sermonize on the virtues of marriage and explain that the Chamber wanted "a family man" whose wife could socialize with the wives of other chamber members and how a single man was usually "unstable" and just wouldn't fit in. He made it clear that a single man was "suspect" and didn't quite have the wholesome, highly moral image they required.

A week later, the same man called and asked me to meet him downtown for dinner that evening to "talk things over." Thinking that he had reconsidered hiring me, I gladly accepted.

When I got to the restaurant he had already had a few drinks, but he wasn't drunk. He was very friendly and told me what a handsome, sophisticated, cool young man I was, as he gripped my hand and slapped my thigh.

He went on to say that his wife and kids were at the lake for a week and he enjoyed being a bachelor for a while because he was trapped in a rotten marriage, etc.

"What about the job?" I asked.

"No. Too bad. They still prefer a stable, family-type man. But how about coming to the house and spending the weekend with me, because I'm not all that straight, and I really dig the gay life?"

I simply got up, shook his hand and walked out as he burst into tears and yelled, "Go to hell, you -----!"

News Services To Bear Question Patty's Credibility Brunt Of AT&T Plans

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is asking the Federal Communications Commission to approve proposed rate increases for interstate private lines effective May 19.

AT&T said it would mean increases for most of its 20,000 private line customers. But the impact, like that of the hi-lo tariff it replaces, is expected to fall heavily on national news wire services.

The earlier proposal, whose full imposition has been delayed by a court order, would have increased wire costs to The Associated Press by $1.3 million annually, or 34 per cent.

The impact of the new proposals on wire services was not detailed by AT&T, but the pattern of increases was similar to that in the old proposal.

Short haul private lines in areas away from major cities would bear the brunt of the increases. This type of service makes up the bulk of the news service leases from AT&T.

An AT&T representative told The AP that the increases under the proposal announced Monday would be higher than in the previous plan, but he did not attach a figure to his statement.

AT&T said if the FCC approves the new rate this would add $4 million to its $314 million in annual revenue from private lines. In a separate but related action, AT&T also proposed $3 million in increased revenue for its Telpak shortline bulk service.

The announcement did not detail how added charges would be divided among specific customers. However, under the previous proposal, the major news wire services alone would have had their costs increased by $2.4 million annually.

A U.S. appeals court stay here against imposition of the first proposal on the news wire services also stands in the way of the new proposal as regards the wire services. The court is expected to hear arguments in the case later this year.

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A prosecutor, challenging Patricia Hearst's credibility as an informer, says the secret bank robbery story she told authorities was motivated by loyalty to her underground lover, Steven Soliah.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Richard Nichols, opposing Soliah's request to open Miss Hearst's revelations to public view, indicated Monday that authorities believed the convict-heir has lied about the robbery.

Soliah is the only person charged in the April 21, 1975, robbery of a Crocker National Bank branch in suburban Carmichael in which a woman customer was slain by a shotgun blast.

"There is rational reason for disbelieving a woman who wants to look out for her boyfriend, and that's what it comes down to," said Nichols.

Miss Hearst's truthfulness is at the center of a dispute in which a major decision was due today. U.S. District Court Judge Philip Wilkins said he would decide whether to hold a full-fledged hearing demanded by Soliah's defense.

The hearing, eliciting testimony from prosecutors and FBI agents, would investigate details Miss Hearst confided about the Carmichael robbery.

The government argued that the story is irrelevant because it probably is not true.

"There is certainly an element of self-servingness and protectiveness to one's friend in any statement Miss Hearst might have made," Nichols said.

Soliah's attorney, Sheldon Otis, said he could prove at a hearing that prosecutors ignored Miss Hearst's scenario of the bank robbery because it differed with the recollections of two eyewitnesses.

"Miss Hearst told them that Steven Soliah was not in the bank when it was robbed," Otis declared. The two eyewitnesses have placed the 27-year-old house painter inside the bank.

In the first open court discussion of Miss Hearst's secret talks with prosecutors, Otis said he knew that U.S. Atty. Dwayne Keyes and others had listened to Miss Hearst in meetings at the San Francisco federal building between March 4 and April 12, during and after her own bank robbery trial. She was convicted March 20 and is under temporary sentence awaiting 90 days of psychological tests.

The attorney made no mention of summoning Miss Hearst.

She is confined to a Redwood City hospital for treatment of a collapsed lung.

Gang Violence Sees Upswing

BOSTON (AP) — Gangs of black youths in Boston's Roxbury section beat a white man and stopped a long-distance passenger train and stoned its crew in the latest in a series of racial incidents in the city, police said.

Richard Poleet, 31, of Boston was dragged from his car Monday night and was kicked and beaten on the head with bricks by 15 to 20 black youths, officers said. He was on the danger list at a hospital early today, officials said.

About the same time, a gang a mile away stoned trainmen trying to remove old tires and tree limbs piled on the tracks. No passengers or trainmen were injured, an Amtrak spokesman said.

Police reported no arrests in either incident.

Stonings of cars passing through the predominantly black Roxbury section were reported throughout the evening. Police said at least four windshields were smashed.

A white man and woman were treated for head cuts after stones smashed their car windows not far from the intersection where Poleet was beaten.

Police said both gangs apparently came from housing projects near the neighborhoods where the attacks occurred and retreated into the projects when patrol cars appeared.

Saturday, white youths beat two black bus drivers and three white drivers who came to their rescue. And two weeks ago, white antibusing demonstrators beat a black attorney with a pole bearing the American flag and others kicked him in an incident just outside Boston City Hall.

Racial violence has flared sporadically in Boston since a federal district court two years ago ordered school children bused between black and white neighborhoods as part of a school integration plan.

Holiday Saw 5 Drownings

Two Fayetteville sisters drowned Monday while swimming in a recreational lake in Cumberland County.

A total of five persons drowned in North Carolina during the long Easter weekend. Rescue workers in the Cumberland County town of Hope Mills said they recovered the bodies of Wanda Thomas, 16, and her sister, Cynthia, 14, after the girls drowned about 4 p.m. Monday.

Witnesses told authorities the girls went underwater and did not come up.

Joey Bailey, 19, of Williamston drowned Sunday in the Roanoke River. Authorities said he apparently fell into the river while fishing from a dock. His body was recovered Monday.

Mark Bellamy, 17, of Hubert, drowned Sunday while swimming in the White Oak River on the Onslow-Carteret county line, according to Onslow County authorities.

The body of a Wilkes County man was recovered Sunday in the Kerr Scott Dam reservoir. Authorities said Kenneth Edgar Woodie, 40, of Rt. 1, Hays, apparently fell from a boat Saturday.

Fire Department units responded to the alarm at 9:55 p.m.

Refund To Strapped Utilities

In a rare reversal of electric funds, the financially strapped Greenville Utilities, Winterville, Ayden, Robersonville and other municipal electric systems are to get a refund from Virginia Electric and Power Co.

A settlement of $3.5 million was approved by the Federal Power Commission. It will go to 24 North Carolina and Virginia wholesale customers, along with a reduction in the wholesale rate increase being sought by VEPCO.

The settlement approval was announced by Fred L. Harrison, mayor of Scotland Neck and president of Electricities of North Carolina. Electricities negotiated the VEPCO settlement.

It has yet to be determined how much each municipality will receive from the settlement, but for Greenville it will be considerable since the city is one of VEPCO's largest customers.

The funds received will in all likelihood be used for facilities improvements on the Greenville Utilities system. Since the local utilities uses the VEPCO retail rate schedule, local officials say they have been strapped for improvement funds for some time, and therefore, the extra funds will be needed for expansion.

Regardless, though, local citizens, owners of the Greenville Utilities system, will benefit because the improvements would have had to be financed in some other way—higher rates, bond issues, or tax monies.

Adequate Planning Is Prime Requisite

The N.C. Travel Council announced last week that the United States World Bicycle Race has been postponed until June, 1977.

Since the race was scheduled to make a stop in Greenville and since it was set for the nation's bicentennial year, the postponement comes as a disappointment to us.

On the other hand, if the planning could not be accomplished to make the race a full success this year there is no question that the postponement was proper.

The worse thing we could have done was hold the race in 1976 without adequate planning and financing.

Regular Wage Hikes, Too

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — State employees who complain they have been two years without a pay raise are crying "Wolf."

In truth, two out of three teachers and half of the regular salaried state employees have received regular wage hikes through normal longevity increases or merit pay provisions.

Those who did not get raises are largely victims of their own past insistence on uniformity of pay scales and their adamant resistance to merit pay in the teacher ranks.

While legislators cull the state's budget to nail down a million here and there, and refine a scheme for one-time windfall money to finance a salary hike for state employees, there is little discussion of the pay raise record.

No Mention

Assemblies appear naturally reluctant to zero in on this information in an election year when the votes of teachers and other state employees are critical to election.

But beneath the surface, that regular pay raise system is the reasons for a hold-the-line attitude at five or six per cent rather than the 16 to 19 per cent raise employee associations are demanding.

A report to legislators from staff research people shows that since the legislature granted a 7.5 per cent pay raise for teachers and state employees for fiscal 1974-75, half of the 57,000 state employees (other than teachers) received bigger pay checks through automatic annual increases, classification changes, salary range changes, and merit increases.

The increase averaged between four and five per cent. That does not include promotions, which another 3,000-plus state employees received.

As for teachers, principals, and supervisors in the public schools, almost two out of every three received increases of about four per cent.

Teachers have 14 pay steps with a guaranteed annual raise of 3.2 per cent. Other school employees get a 4.6 per cent raise each of the first two years.

Other state employees have six pay steps, with the first three automatic, and the rest based on merit on longevity.

Looking ahead to fiscal 1976-77, researchers concluded that "the following salary increase possibility exists for a number of state employees: Merit—4.6 per cent; longevity—2.25 per cent; total—6.85 per cent... which would be added to a Legislative increase."

Steady Increase

Over the past 20 years, researchers discovered, teachers have received salary hikes totaling 127 per cent, and state employees got 82 per cent.

Fringe benefits for state workers cost 30 cents more on the dollar (vacation, sick leave, petty leave, retirement, etc.) and while teacher fringes do not quite measure up to those of other state employees, teachers do enjoy a lengthy summer vacation.

State employee salaries now reflect an average figure of around $10,000 per year; teachers are climbing toward an average of $11,500 yearly.

The approximately 16,495 teachers who received no raise are those who "peaked out" after 13 years experience. Teachers, unlike other state employees, have not instituted a merit pay system whereby some could be paid more, others less. In the Southeast, only Maryland and Texas pay teachers more, others less. In the Southeast, only Maryland and Texas pay teachers more than North Carolina.

Further research showed that state salaries since 1953 have risen consistently faster than in the private sector, until 1971. For the five years from 1967 to 1972, teachers averaged 8.3 per cent annually and other state employees averaged 4.7 per cent; the private sector average 6.3 per cent. From 1972 to 1975, however, the private sector average 9.3 per cent, while state employees and teachers averaged 4.2 per cent.

Cutting Back In Europe

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Some American corporations are cutting back operations in Europe because of rising costs, reduced profits and other factors, British business publications report.

The surveys by the weekly Economist and the daily Financial Times emphasize that there is no exodus yet. But they say a trend that began after World War II is being reversed.

The Economist reported that Goodyear Tire, White Motor, Union Carbide, American Motors and Eaton "have sold off investments in Europe or are cutting down on new investment." Litton Industries recently closed its two typewriter plants in Britain, and Chrysler threatened to shut down its ailing British operation until the Labor government bailed it out.

The Financial Times said that in West Germany, France and Italy, Singer, Westinghouse, W.R. Grace and General Foods "have abandoned or sold a variety of manufacturing and selling operations."

"The change can be exaggerated," said The Economist. "American corporations are not disenchanted with Western Europe, just less enchanted than they were in the 1950s and 1960s."

The Financial Times predicted "not a wholesale withdrawal from Europe but a changing relationship between Americans and European business which is probably healthy." But "the fact that some American companies are putting more emphasis on exports from the United States may make them more formidable competitors, not less," the paper said.

The Economist said 1976 will "perhaps see the beginning of the new epoch in multinationalism: retreating from the ownership of capital abroad in the face of creeping socialism; exporting goods and knowhow in-

40 Years Ago Today

April 20, 1936

Indications today were that Greenville and all of Pitt County would observe at least a partial holiday tomorrow with many business houses closing so businessmen, employees and office workers could join farmers in their "march on Raleigh" to request Governor Ehringhaus to call an immediate session of the legislature to consider tobacco compacts.

Proclamations calling on the citizens to observe a holiday have been issued by both Mayor M.K. Blount and Roy T. Cox, chairman of the county commissioners. John Coward, county auditor, said today all county offices had been ordered closed for the day. Mayor Blount said final action on what, if any, city offices would be closed would be decided tonight.

In Raleigh, Governor Ehringhaus said he would "tell the truth" to the farmers when they meet tomorrow.

"I shall try the case like I would a lawsuit and the truth will be told," the chief executive said. He added that he would speak extemporaneously.

lucrative trade. It was like frog-gigging: Fun for the boys, but hell on the frogs. The system operated with brutal unfairness. The rich defendant could always make bail; the poor defendant couldn't pay the bondsman's fee. Thus the rich went free and the poor went to jail. The well-to-do defendant could return to his daily routine, consult with his lawyer, prepare his defense, and avoid the hardships and the stigma of the lockup. The poor devil had none of these advantages.

Eight or ten years ago, in an effort to alleviate this patent injustice, a number of liberals and a few conservatives took up the cause of reform. Their labor culminated in the 1970 District of Columbia Court Reform and Criminal Procedures Act. This was seen as the "model law" that would inspire states and localities everywhere to adopt the same humane procedures. The law effectively requires that an accused be set free, without bail, if he can demonstrate the kind of community ties that suggest he will show up for trial. Only if a prosecutor can show a strong likelihood of conviction, or if he can prove that an accused presents a serious danger to the community, can a defendant be held on preventive detention.

Well, the law hasn't worked. The very name of "bail reform" has become a laughing-stock, but the laughter isn't funny. In hundreds upon hundreds of cases, defendants released without bond have been arrested on new charges within hours or days. The police are fuming in frustration; the law-abiding community is furious; the newspapers and TV stations are raising Cain; and persons

A Good Idea Gone Wrong

First it was postal reform. Now it's bail reform. I find myself in retreat these days, backing away from good ideas that somehow have gone wrong.

Of these two major reforms of the past decade, bail reform is by far the greater concern. A fouled-up mail service is a headache; a messed-up bail system is a heartache. Mail and bail might seem to have nothing in common but three shared letters, but the two failures share the same mechanical and human causes — failures of machinery, failures of men.

As a part of our system of criminal jurisprudence, the posting of bail antedates Magna Carta. Bail is the sum of money (or goods or property) deposited by an accused to secure his appearance for subsequent trial. Until recent years, the universal practice in both state and federal courts was for an accused to "post bond." Professional bondsmen hung around our courthouse, eager to ply their

Other Editors Say Sign Of Weakness

—Henderson Dispatch

If a new Panama Canal treaty should be signed with the tiny banana republic, as is being proposed, it would be taken by other nations as a sign of weakness on the part of the United States. It would in reality be that, or else indication of unwillingness to defend and retain our possessions.

If Panama is appeased by an outright gift, it might well be assumed that there will be other demands to follow which would further signify retreat from our once powerful status as a great nation.

The new proposal is the brainchild of Secretary Kissinger, who has conceded issues in the co-called detente with Soviet Russia. President Ford is supporting the secretary's plan. Ronald Reagan is strongly opposed to the giveaway. "We bought it, we paid for it," he says. "It's ours and we should tell Torrijos that we are going to keep it." That's the sentiment of a large segment of American public opinion. But the people are having no voice in the decision, which is already an issue in the political campaign. Reports have been that the Senate, which would have to approve a new treaty, is largely against the surrender. But pressure might change that.

The United States backed away from Africa to the benefit and advantage of Russia. We pulled out of Vietnam after terrific cost in men and treasure over a period of ten years, and the effect has been defeat. Now Kissinger wants to surrender to a small Latin America state.

Such a policy inevitably loses prestige for this country. It has the appearance of weakness, which in reality it is not, but would amount to about the same in the eyes of the world.

With Ford and Kissinger favorable to the giveaway, the only chance of preventing it lies in the Senate's refusal. There has been no showdown there, but in all likelihood will be after the election.

A policy of retreat and surrender on the part of the United States might well work into disaster. It is amazing indeed why high officials buy such an action by this government.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Yitzhak Rabin's High Noon

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The landslide of Palestinian nationalists and radicals in municipal elections on the Israeli-occupied West Bank last Monday (April 12) has now forced postponement of an Israeli cabinet showdown on new Jewish settlements, but only briefly.

Any maneuver by Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin to halt the new-settlements movement, a political-religious phenomenon strongly and emotionally backed by the Religious Parties, would be interpreted as weak-kneed reaction to the radical electoral sweep in Arab towns and cities on the West Bank. As such, it would probably be doomed to failure, despite growing concern within the Israeli government over American pressures to force a change in the explosive West Bank issue of new Jewish settlements.

But the battle over settlements can only be briefly delayed, and when it comes in late spring it will pit the most powerful competing forces in Israeli politics against each other, with the results certain to have a profound effect on the political future of Israel, Rabin and Israeli-Arab relations.

What makes a new policy inescapable is the frenzied effort of more than 100 deeply religious Jews to settle at Kaddum on the outskirts of Nablus, the largest Arab city in the occupied West Bank. When Prime Minister Rabin ordered them out late last year, they refused to give up and instead started housekeeping under army safeguard a few miles away. They have been there ever since—demanding government sanction to build their settlement, infuriating West Bank Arabs and posing one more volatile threat to Israel's political manipulation of the West Bank, now more difficult than ever following the municipal elections.

Rabin's tricky problem in moving toward a cabinet showdown on the proposed settlement of Kaddum and the general question of new settlements is that it could risk his control over his own government. That control is now based on a narrow majority in Parliament which might disappear if the Religious Parties quit the governing coalition in retaliation.

Indeed, major Religious Party defections from the Rabin government are believed unavoidable if the effort to choke off new Jewish settlements, with Foreign Minister Yigal Allon leading the attack, succeeds.

Allon, a prominent cabinet dove, and his allies are pitted against Defense Minister Shimon Peres, the Religious Parties (with three cabinet members) and other government hawks. On the outside, the opposition Likud party, totally opposed to any concessions that would reduce Israeli claims to occupied Arab territories, will maneuver for an overthrow of Rabin and their own assumption of power.

This lethal internal political battle comes at a time when the whole Mideast is on the edge of another precipice in war-ravaged Lebanon, where Syrian intervention threatens to induce Israeli intervention. Yet, it is Rabin's misfortune to have ducked the explosive settlements issue for much too long, an avoidance that can be partly traced to the overall weakness of his government.

The issue can no longer be ducked, however. Israeli politicians said they were shocked when William W. Scranton, new U.S. ambassador to the UN, in his first major Security Council statement March 23 attacked Jewish settlements in Arab lands as an "obstacle" to Mideast peace that "inflames emotions" of both Jews and Arab.

In fact, however, it is doubtful that the shock was all that real. Moreover, experts here believe that Israel's population is generally opposed to territorial tampering and meddling, a judgment supported by such responsible barometers of public opinion as the widely-read independent Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz.

Strength For Today

LIFE'S GREATEST QUESTION

What is Christianity? People have been asking that question for centuries. Many who think they know the answer would point to creeds as the essence of Christianity. Others would identify it with a particular church. Still others think of it only in terms of conduct. They sum up their theory by saying that all religion is comprised within the Golden Rule.

Those who point to Christ and say, "There is Christianity," come nearer the truth. But Christianity is also the effect that Christ produces upon us. It is not only what we do, but what Christ does for us. And in return, it is the response of mankind to the open-hearted offer of God to have fellowship with humanity.

Finally, Christianity is the quality of life a person lives after he or she has decided that fellowship with God in both this life and the next is the one thing of supreme value in the universe.

Failures Mark The Reign Of Queen Elizabeth II

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II observes her 50th birthday Wednesday after a 24-year reign that began with hopes for a second glorious Elizabeth Age but has been downhill all the way for Britain.

When George VI died on Feb. 6, 1952, and his older daughter became queen while on a visit to Africa, Britain was Western Europe's leading nation, the pound sterling was one of the world's more stable currencies, there were 100,000 British soldiers in the Suez Canal Zone, and British air and naval bases stretched to Hong Kong.

Today as the queen prepares for a quiet family birthday at Windsor Castle, Britain's wealth and power are sharply diminished, its empire dismembered, its economy in disarray.

"Future historians will have little choice but to dismiss this period of our national life as one of unrelieved failure," the weekly New Statesman said recently. But it added: "The monarchy still appears a stable feature of our national life; perhaps the only thing that is."

The 19th century constitutional expert Walter Bagehot once commented that only three rights remained to the monarch: "the right to be consulted, the right to encourage, the right to warn."

But "after 24 years on the throne, the queen is the only person in Westminster and Whitehall who has followed, at the very highest level, the process of top-level decision-making going back over a whole generation," Paul Johnson, former editor of the New Statesman, wrote in the Daily Express.

"She has outlasted five British prime ministers, four U.S. presidents, three changes of regime in Russia, four German chancellors, two popes, and countless French and Italian governments — to say nothing of such venerable fixtures as De Gaulle, Franco, Chiang Kai-shek and Haile Selassie.

"Only Mao Tse-tung and Marshal Tito can claim greater continuity at the top, and they are in their 80s."

Public criticisms of the queen are confined almost entirely "to the marginal aspects of her existence — her dress-sense, her voice, her ferocious small dogs — and testify merely to the poverty of the material that can be amassed against her personally," the New Statesman said.

Scottish Laborite Willie Hamilton never lets up in his campaign to abolish the monarchy, which he attacks as an expensive, useless anachronism. But in his anti-royalty book last year, "My Queen and I," he said he had never said "a cruel or critical word" against Queen Elizabeth personally.

Most Britons view the royal establishment with quiet pride.

"She's good value for money, she is," one young Londoner said.

Millions still follow the unfolding royal story as if it was their favorite soap opera. The queen and her family are still persistent headline-makers in Britain and among the country's biggest crowd pullers. Thousands through the Mall and Whitehall every year for the queen's coach ride in October to open Parliament and the Trooping of the Color for the official celebration of her birthday in June, when the weather is most likely to be good.

The queen's oldest son and heir, Prince Charles, has matured into a serious, 27-year-old man with all the attributes Britons look for in a monarch — good looks, a sense of humor, tact, a quick mind and a talent for making people feel at ease. This has prompted some speculation that his mother may abdicate some day in his favor. But despite the prince's popularity, most Britons would probably not favor the change for many years to come.

The queen has been less lucky in her younger sister, Princess Margaret, who has presented her with the two biggest personal crises of her reign. One was Margaret's romance with a divorced man, Group Capt. Peter Townsend, in 1955. The other was her separation this year from her husband, the Earl of Snowdon.

Because the queen is the titular head of the Church of England and the church frowns on divorce, Margaret renounced Townsend after weeks of family anguish and a fever of public speculation. And though the change in public attitudes in 20 years was reflected by the open acknowledgment that Margaret's marriage had broken down, tradition was maintained by the queen's decision to approve a separation but not a divorce.

Bank Deposit Box Opened, But Yields No Howard Hughes' Will

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Hollywood bank safe deposit box maintained by Howard Hughes yielded some jewelry but further stymied those looking for the late billionaire's will, a source knowledgeable about the search says.

A source close to the Summa Corp. said Monday that officials didn't find the will Hughes associates insist he wrote and that some have said he put under lock at the South Hollywood Branch of the Bank of America.

The box held only some "not extremely valuable jewelry," the source said.

Summa runs Hughes' far-flung entertainment and aerospace enterprises. Some of the people who were closest to Hughes hold key positions in the corporation.

A former top Hughes aide, Noah Dietrich, said last week that the billionaire made a will and placed it in a box at the South Hollywood bank about two years before Dietrich left the organization in 1957.

Dietrich, Gregson Bautzer, a former Hughes attorney and a spokesman for Summa, restated their belief Monday that a will exists — somewhere.

Investigators are poring over files in Los Angeles and elsewhere for clues to where Hughes left the document telling where he wanted his more than $2 billion in assets distributed after his death, a source told The Associated Press.

Several people have said Hughes indicated he wanted the bulk of his estate turned over to the Hughes Medical Institute in Miami, but so far there has been no legal confirmation of that wish.

Arelo Sederberg, a Summa spokesman, said, "There is a continuing search for a will (but) for legal reasons we're not disclosing how the search is being done. "We're only saying we think there is a will."

If no will is found, officials have estimated that as much as two-thirds of the estate automatically will revert to government bodies as taxes.

Bautzer, a Los Angeles attorney who did legal work for Hughes for 25 years, confirmed that the box at the South Hollywood branch of the Bank of America had been opened but didn't say what it contained.

Bautzer said the search for the document may be complicated because he believes Hughes probably wrote the will in his own handwriting without witnesses.

He said Hughes asked him in person and by telephone many times about the legality of holographic (unwitnessed) wills. He said such wills are legal and could be prepared without knowledge of any other person.

But Dietrich says it's unlikely Hughes would have left a secret handwritten will prepared without the aid of typists or attorneys.

in law enforcement are passing the buck around.

One difficulty is mechanical. In other jurisdictions that are experimenting with bail reform, the same problem is reported. There simply are not enough jail facilities to house defendants who ought to be held without bail. The District is plagued by hard-eyed juvenile toughs, some as young as 12 or 13, but there is almost no place to put them.

Other difficulties are procedural. In order to demonstrate a strong likelihood of conviction, a prosecutor must virtually prepare and present his final case. In such a proceeding, the historic "presumption of innocence" is stood on its head. Questions arise of double jeopardy. Overburdened prosecutors take the easy road.

Still other problems are human. Judges with marshmallow spines and grits for brains too often regard a young defendant with misplaced compassion. The defendant gets the benefit of the doubt; the community gets the benefit of his switchblade knife.

Little will be gained by outright repeal of the well-intended act. Its principles remain sound. But bail reform laws will have to be toughened everywhere if the cause is to survive. The key factor in this knotty equation is the prompt trial. So long as "preventive detention" is not unduly prolonged, little harm is done by locking up the toughies pending trial. If judges also would crack down on drug addicts, and if probation boards, would instantly revoke the probation of an arrested probationer, our communities would be safer places.

Speaking as one who ardently supported the cause from the beginning, I have to confess disappointment. The old cruel system was bad; the new humane system is not demonstrably better.

Ha'aretz last week attacked cabinet approval of a "march" from Jerusalem to Jericho on Passover (Easter Sunday) by the same religious zealots trying to establish the new settlement at Kaddum. The newspaper said it would be highly provocative and would "deepen the impression that (Rabin) cannot stand up to his opponents in the cabinet."

Thus, if Rabin wins his battle over settlements, he will not only set new policy for the occupied territories but will also gain a personal victory of transcendent symbolic importance, establishing himself as leader in fact as well as name. Such an outcome is essential for Rabin to win the far more difficult political tests to be posed in any overall settlement with the Arabs.

How foreign oil affects your electric bill:

Costly imported oil has meant higher electric bills.

Since the '73 oil embargo, the price of imported residual oil has increased almost four times. This oil, along with coal and nuclear fuel, is used to make electricity. Together, they represent a whopping seventy percent of Vepco's operating costs — and therefore a large part of your electric bill.

Other things such as inflation, higher construction costs, and rising interest rates on the money Vepco must borrow have caused increases, too. But nothing like the enormous increase in imported oil.

Clearly, America can't continue to pay higher and higher prices for fuel. And you don't like to pay ever-increasing electric bills.

Something must be done.

We must move toward energy independence.

If we in America are to have dependable, yet affordable electricity, we must support a strong national policy of energy independence.

This means America must develop its own energy sources at home, so it can lessen its dependence on costly foreign oil. This will lessen the cost of producing electricity and will help keep your electric bill under control.

Vepco has been working to achieve energy independence in several ways. Nuclear plants are presently supplying about 30% of your electricity — and will produce 50% in late 1977. The company has switched from higher priced oil to less expensive coal wherever it can save money for its customers. It has urged its customers to conserve energy and prevent waste. And Vepco is developing pumped storage hydroelectric power generation.

By taking steps to bring about energy independence, America can extend a higher standard of living to those who do not share it today, and help all of us toward a more self-sufficient tomorrow.

Vepco

America is a powerful idea. Let's keep it that way.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market stepped ahead today on underlying optimism over the economy and a steady stream of improved corporate profit reports.

At 11:30 a.m., the Dow Jones average of 30 Industrial stock prices was ahead 6.85 at 994.96, and more than three times as many New York Stock Exchange issues were advancing as declining.

Trading was brisk at the opening but the pace slowed later.

The market has benefited by a better than expected growth in the Gross National Product, which the government said Monday rose at an annual rate of 7.5 per cent in the first quarter.

Other positive influences have been steady interest rates, a higher projection for new car sales by General Motors, and the improving profit picture for many corporations.

Xerox Corp., which announced higher first quarter income, was the most actively traded issue, rising ¾ to 53½ in price.

And interest was centered on Eastman Kodak, which unveiled a new instant camera today to compete with Polaroid's instant line.

Polaroid's stock drifted lower last week in anticipation of Kodak's announcement today, but bounded back 1½ to 34¾ before the exchange halted trading because of an influx of buy orders.

Kodak's stock, which has been firming, fell off 1¼ to 115.

Elsewhere, Allis Chalmers, which announced sharply higher first quarter net income, rose ¾ to 18¼.

Picket Over 2 Bad Cars

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Sandra Smith, her three children and 20 friends spent about four hours Monday picketing a Charlotte used car dealer who Miss Smith says sold her two bad cars then refused to refund her money.

With signs saying things such as, "Buy here—suffer later," the pickets marched in front of John's Used Cars.

John Sampson, general manager and part owner of the business, contends that Miss Smith ruined the two cars. He said Monday that she has refused his standing offer to fix the second car for only the wholesale cost of labor and materials.

Miss Smith, 34, said she bought one car for $350 dollars as a graduation gift for her daughter. On the way home after a test drive, it started smoking and making noise, she said.

When a salesman refused to refund her money, she chipped in another $50 for another car. That one "blew up" when her daughter drove it, Miss Smith said.

Sampson, 30, said he would not deliberately sell a bad car, but he said the only way he can sell cars for $200 to $500 is to "cut corners."

"Why should anybody walk about the street blindly and think that somebody will take care of them?" Sampson asked. "They have to take care of themselves."

Some people would give their right arm for more cash in hand.

The right arm you see above belongs to Jim "Catfish" Hunter. It put a lot of cash in his hands last year. Unfortunately, most people can't rely on their right arms to earn them that kind of money. So now and then, they need a loan. If you have a good reason to borrow, Planters National Bank has money to lend. Boston Marathon Winner Takes Aim On Olympics As Next Goal

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Jack Fultz, a 27-year-old Georgetown University senior, trained his sights on the U.S. Olympic trials today after winning the 80th Boston Marathon with the neighboring assistance of spectators along the route.

Fultz graciously accepted water and ice cubes and a few hosings as he conquered blistering heat and won the Patriots' Day run from Hopkinton to Boston Monday, qualifying for the Olympic trials May 22 in Oregon.

"You have to give the people with the hoses all the credit in the world," Fultz said. "They made the course tolerable. Otherwise, in this heat, it would have been intolerable."

The temperature was an unofficial 116 degrees on one thermometer in the sun outside Hopkinton High School when the race got under way at noon. There were 1,898 starters, plus about 70 women in their special race.

East Carolina Grabs Early Southern Lead

By WILLIE PATRICK
Special To The Reflector
FLORENCE, S. C.—Mac McLendon had a special theory Monday about what it would take to win the Southern Conference Golf Tournament.

McLendon said that his East Carolina University Pirates would have to "shoot three 75s per day" to win. They beat that by a single stroke in Monday's opening round, marking the first time in the last three years that the Pirates have gained a lead in the tournament.

Paced by a 35-38-73 by Tripp Boinest and a 39-35-74 by Mike Buckmaster, the Pirates' 374 put them three strokes ahead of defending champion Furman (377) and 15 strokes over arch-rival Appalachian State (389). Richmond finished at 390, while the second division read William & Mary 402; VMI 409, The Citadel 411, and Davidson, 412.

Jackson Wants To Hear Plans

BALTIMORE (AP) — Reggie Jackson says he's not a reluctant Baltimore Oriole, but if something doesn't happen soon to settle the contract stalemate he may not play this season.

In a story by Ken Nigro of the Baltimore Sun, Jackson, who came to the Orioles from the Oakland A's in a multi-player deal two weeks ago, said he would have signed on the dotted line immediately.

Meanwhile, Jackson said he missed baseball "from time to time," but added he is not "in a frenzy to play."

Bucs Top Campbell

BUIES CREEK — The East Carolina University tennis team swept an 8-1 decision from Campbell College Monday afternoon, winning all matches but one, that the number two singles position.

Tom Durfee, Randy Bailey and Bob Neff were all forced into a third set to win. Durfee came from a 4-6 first set loss to sweep the final two 6-1, 7-5 for the number one singles victory.

"I was very pleased with the win," said coach Neal Peterson. "The Campbell first four proved to be extremely tough, but our guys battled hard and won. The doubles were very satisfying as we completely dominated in those three matches."

The Pirates return to action this afternoon against the Seahawks of UNC-Wilmington in the coastal city. East Carolina entered today's match with an overall record of 5-10.

Unser Makes Up For His Error With Game-Winning Homer

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
With one wave of his wand, Del Unser made a baseball disappear and at the same time changed himself from a goat into a hero.

A misplay by the New York centerfielder allowed two St. Louis runs in the first inning, but he made up for it in the 17th with a home run that provided the Mets with a 4-3 victory Monday night.

"When you get into extra innings, there's no sense fooling around," said Unser, who pulverized a Mike Wallace fastball with 470 out to break up a marathon four-hour, 46-minute game.

The shot heard 'round Busch Stadium settled a dramatic battle which had been tied by the Cardinals in the seventh inning, some two hours before.

Perry Tourney Set To Start

Ragazzo Added To Deac Staff

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — Vito Ragazzo has been named assistant football coach at Wake Forest, moving to the Deacon staff from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Deacon head Coach Chuck Mills announced the appointment Monday, saying he was "elated at attracting him to our football and university family."

Before that he coached two Southern Conference players of the year as an assistant at East Carolina — Carlester Crumpler and Carl Summerell.

While serving as coach at VMI, Ragazzo was named the state's coach of the year in 1967 when his team upset Virginia and Virginia Tech.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER—Julius Erving of the New York Nets, known as Doctor J., warms up for last night's playoff game with the San Antonio Spurs. Erving was selected as the American Basketball Association's Most Valuable Player for the third straight year. He averaged 29.3 points a game. (AP Wirephoto)

Erving Shows Why He Is The Most Valuable

By The Associated Press
Julius Erving has been the American Basketball Association's Most Valuable Player each of the past three seasons, and he showed why at the Nassau Coliseum Monday night.

Erving's 32 points helped New York to a 110-108 lead over the San Antonio Spurs, and his blocked shot in the final five seconds kept it that way as the Nets grabbed a 3-2 advantage in their best-of-seven playoff semifinal.

With nine seconds to go and the Spurs trailing by two, San Antonio called time out and set up a play for Mike Gale. The 6-foot-4 guard, a former Net, shook free along the left side some 18 feet from the basket and let fly with a jumper with five seconds to play.

"I thought I had it," he said, shaking his head. "It looked good all the way. It seemed like it had eyes ... and then he came from out of nowhere."

"He" was Erving. Dr. J, lurking near the foul line, swooped over and rejected the shot. A desperation try by George Gervin at the buzzer bounced off the rim, and the Nets had their 110-108 triumph.

In the other ABA semifinal, the Kentucky Colonels beat the Denver Nuggets 126-114 at Louisville to take a 2-1 lead in their series.

"I saw Gale from the foul line," said Erving. "I was waiting for him to commit himself. I was watching the ball, not my man. Once he went into the air I just moved over and blocked it."

Ex-Net Larry Kenon led the Spurs with 27 points.

Attles Trying To Keep Golden State Ready

By The Associated Press
The Detroit Pistons played Golden State five times during the regular season, and came away with five losses. But Warriors Coach Al Attles is trying hard not to take anything for granted as he prepares his defending National Basketball Association champions for their first playoff game at Oakland tonight.

"Detroit can hurt you physically," says Attles. "They really beat Milwaukee off the offensive boards."

The Pistons qualified to meet Golden State in the best-of-seven quarter-final series by beating Milwaukee 2-1 in a preliminary series, prompting Detroit Coach Herb Brown to exclaim: "Maybe now people will believe that the Detroit Pistons are a real entity!"

Maybe, but the Warriors still rate as overwhelming favorites in this series. Golden State won 59 games in the regular season, 23 more than Detroit. The Pistons did not win a game on the West Coast all season, against any of the Pacific Division teams.

Bucks Coach Larry Costello wasn't ready to pick the Pistons to win, but he felt they would hold their own. "The Pistons match up well with Golden State," he said. "I think they'll give the Warriors a battle."

In tonight's other NBA game, the Seattle SuperSonics, trailing 2-1, travel to Phoenix to play the Suns.

The Buffalo Braves, who beat the Philadelphia 76ers in the other preliminary series, open their quarter-final set against the Boston Celtics Wednesday night in Boston. The other series also resumes Wednesday, with the Cleveland Cavaliers, leading 2-1, meeting the Washington Bullets at Landover, Md.

Seattle Coach Bill Russell is reportedly considering some

Rose Doesn't Think Record

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose was only a couple of months old when Joe DiMaggio set a major league baseball record in 1941 with his hitting streak of 56 consecutive games.

DiMaggio's streak is still a record and is being mentioned more than ever around the Cincinnati Reds' clubhouse where Rose currently has a 22-game hitting streak going.

But, with all due respects, the bulldog-tough third baseman doubts that DiMaggio's streak can be duplicated in the current area of specialization.

"It's so hard to get any lengthy streak going because of today's relief pitching," said Rose, who is hitting .514 after eight games, thanks to a searing 18-for-35 start.

Hitting is Rose's grand obsession, but the 35-year-old veteran is not overly excited about his streak.

"You don't want to start thinking about that," he said. "I just swing and hope. You've got to be super lucky. You've got to be lucky just to hit .300." Rose has been lucky for 10 of his years in the majors, and 10 days ago he moved past Lou Brock of St. Louis as the all-time hit leader among active National League players. Rose has 2,565 hits during his 14-year career, 49th on the all-time list.

Hot streaks are nothing new for Rose, who is five games away from tying the Reds all-time mark of 27, jointly held by Edd Roush and Vada Pinson.

Sports Briefs

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — For many owners of professional sports franchises, win-loss records are for the record books — but the important thing is how many fans you get in the ballpark.

The fledgling Minnesota Kicks of the North American Soccer League have passed the Minnesota Twins of the American League in season tickets sold.

As of last week, the Kicks had sold 1,600 season tickets, while the baseball Twins had sold 1,400. And Kicks ticket manager Gail Hessing said that tally went over 2,000 on Monday.

But, noted Twins public relations chief Tom Mee, the Twins have home games stretching from April to September, while the Kicks will have nine home games.

"It's a completely different price range," said Mee. "A pair of ours will cost about $700. You can get a pair of theirs for about $70."

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — An awards luncheon today wrapped up the Jill St. John-Paul Masson Celebrity X-Country Races, which were held to raise money for the U.S. Ski Team, headquartered here.

The team headed by singer Ed Ames took first place in alpine team events Monday, followed by the teams headed by actor Hugh O'Brien, television game show host Tom Kennedy and Sam Melville of television's "The Rookies".

Other celebrities participating in the competition included comedian Buddy Hackett, former astronaut Wally Schirra, author-narrator Lowell Thomas, actresses Jane Powell, Ronne Blakely and Cathy Lee Crosby, Congressman Jack Kemp of New York, football player Merlin Olsen and actor Richard Roundtree.

Viewers Offered 3 News Specials

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — News specials usually don't draw big ratings, but the season's ratings race is over. This may be why viewers are being offered not one but three prime-time news specials tonight.

Two are on CBS, "Mr. Rooney Goes to Dinner" at 8 p.m. EST and "Inside Public Television" at 10 p.m. The latter show is competing with an ABC News special called "Gun Control: Pro And Con."

Further complicating viewer choices is the fact that the Public Broadcast Service has chosen tonight to feed public TV stations a brilliant film documentary, "Antonia: Portrait of the Woman."

That show, by film maker Jill Godmillow and singer Judy Collins, is a warm, exceptionally interesting profile of conductor Antonia Brico, one of the first women to lead a major symphony orchestra.

Give this show a look if you've time. Or find out when your station will rerun it this week if tonight's showing conflicts with reporter-writer Andy Rooney's CBS study of eats and dining out in America.

You've got to watch "Mr.

Rooney Goes to Dinner." It's kind of a burpee's catalogue of woe and hope, done in the gentle, whimsical, yet solidly reported style of his "Rooney Goes to Washington" show of 1975.

His "Dinner" hour is most thorough, studying not only eating places but also wine lists, advertising and menus. There's even a valuable warning against dining at joints featuring "home cooking."

One of the funniest moments — and it'll be most satisfying for all victims of long waits for unsatisfying meals — comes when Rooney brings the CBS camera to watch him lunch at a famous New Orleans restaurant.

For some reason, perhaps the camera, he gets superb service. We soon learn the service wasn't so hot the previous night, when Rooney, two pals and no camera, ate at the place, disguised as ordinary tourists.

We won't reveal what ensued when Rooney discussed this with the waiter — you'll have to watch to fully appreciate the moment — but suffice it to say a mighty blow is struck for all long-suffering diners.

Of the competing ABC and CBS news specials later tonight, we'd have to give the nod to ABC's gun show, half of which is devoted to folks advocating stronger legislation to control handgun ownership.

The second half hears from progyn forces who, as the show notes, argue that "the need is not for gun control; it is for better crime control."

This half-and-half technique seems quite effective. It focuses the issues more sharply than the usual news special method of seven-second claims immediately followed by seven-second rebuttals.

CBS' public TV study, which starts by showing the star-studded, gross excess of an auction WNBT here held to raise money last year, is fairly thorough. It goes over the history of public TV and old PTV issues, including old charges Nixon & Co. tried to sandbag PTV because the then-president felt PTV's news and public affairs shows had a liberal bias.

Porth, 66, is an inmate at the Forsyth unit here. He is

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury:

"The case of East vs. West is a relatively simple one. The defendant, West, on lead against a three no trump contract, attacked with a low diamond. East's jack was taken by declarer's ace. At trick two, declarer led a low heart and West ducked. After the queen won, declarer took seven more tricks in the minor suits and cheerfully conceded the rest.

"East charges West with gross negligence. He maintains that it should have been obvious to West to rise with the ace of hearts and shift to ace and another spade, in which case the defenders would have garnered five tricks. West maintains that it was impossible to judge this at trick two. That play might have given declarer the contract had he held a doubleton spade honor and king of hearts. How do you find?"

"Guilty, with extenuating circumstances. There were enough clues to suggest that it might be dangerous to duck the heart. Declarer was marked with five clubs on the bidding. If that suit was not solid, what was declarer doing tackling hearts, where he stood to lose two or more tricks, rather than setting up his clubs? And since declarer was known to have three sure tricks in diamonds after his play to the first trick, add five tricks in clubs and you reach the inescapable conclusion that declarer is trying to steal a heart trick for his contract. We commend declarer for making the key play early in the game, before he revealed his hand."

"I hereby find West guilty as charged, and sentence him to read 'Goren on Play and Defense' three times before he again sits down at the bridge table!"

Says Public Is 'Problem'

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Persuading the public to accept nuclear energy as a safe source of power is more of a problem than any technical difficulty facing nuclear scientists and engineers, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor said Monday.

Dr. Norman C. Rasmussen, head of the Department of Nuclear Engineering at MIT, told a news conference that a majority of the nation's citizens must accept nuclear power before it can provide its full share of United States energy needs.

On a visit to the Savannah River Plant of the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration, Rasmussen said disposal of nuclear wastes was a troublesome problem but less important than the diversion of nuclear materials by terrorists or thieves.

He said this especially is true outside the U.S. This nation, he said, is "doing a pretty good job" of controlling nuclear materials.

Rasmussen, who directed a federal study of risks at commercial nuclear power plants, showed there is more danger from fires, earthquakes, plane crashes, dam failures and tornadoes than from serious nuclear accidents.

He said scientists probably know more about the toxic effects of radio activity than they know of the potential harm of fossil fuels such as coal.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 21, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until midafternoon you may desire to make drastic changes that are not quite ready for action. Toward evening however, you will be able to put your new arrangements in effect more easily and rightly.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to April 19) Be with good pals in afternoon who can then be most helpful. For good results, don't be too forceful with anyone.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20) Contact a bigwig in midafternoon or make some important commitment vital to your welfare. Maintain good credit. Avoid limelight in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Others give suggestions in a case that do not seem worthwhile, but further study proves the case not to be so. Revise own ideas.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study ways to have a firmer foundation to all of your interests, then do the necessary work required on such.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being forceful with partners in morning can be very bad, so calm down and work along with them harmoniously.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Not a good day to spend a good deal of money for a foolish kind of entertainment that you may later regret. Get duties done.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Keep busy at practical matters during day. Evening favors recreation. Show mate affection and change his or her mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't be demanding at home. Relegate pleasure to the evening. Don't be imperious; kindness pays.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be careful in motion of all kinds and do only that shopping and running of errands that are necessary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Personal aims may seem difficult to obtain in a.m., so get at other duties and then later all changes in your favor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Improve appearance to be at your best when you go out socially in p.m. Friends grant favors if asked.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can do something constructive about limitations by thinking deeply. Arrive on time for appointments you make.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will always be asking questions in order to learn what is happening and could prove demanding, but it is well to answer questions so your progeny will be ahead of others in knowledge and make a big success in life. Permit to participate in sports to work off the excess energy here and give good religious training early.

Land-Use Discussion Is Scheduled Wednesday

On April 21 citizens from Pitt and surrounding counties will get their first opportunity in a public hearing to comment on a proposed land classification system that will guide the future use of land in our state.

The land classification system is only one recommendation of the N.C. Land Policy Council up for discussion April 21 at 7 p.m. at the Superior Court Courtroom in Greenville and also during April in Raleigh, Lenoir, Kernersville, Fayetteville, Bryson City, Asheville, and Charlotte.

According to the proposed classification system, local governments would make the decisions on categorizing lands for future use. The system would promote wise land use and guide federal, state, and local investments and policies affecting land use. The Council also recommends that three or four local citizens commissions, similar to the Coastal Plains Commission, be appointed to guide the classification process and later, to coordinate regional growth policy.

Other recommendations of the Land Policy Council include a policy on valuing property for tax purposes, an automated land use information system, and policies to coordinate land use programs among all levels of government.

The recommendations evolved from two years of work, including over 20 local workshops, by the Council and a 24-member citizens advisory committee representing agribusiness, tourism, land development, and environmental sciences throughout the state. The Council was established by the legislature in 1974 to recommend to the governor and General Assembly a land policy and classification system for the state.

After the hearings, the recommendations and public comments will be reviewed by the governor and local planning agencies before submission to the legislature in 1977.

Charged With Brutal Killing

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) Rocky Mount police have charged a 21-year-old man with the murder of an elderly Rocky Mount man.

Police Capt. W.O. Moore said Timothy Ray Tann of Rocky Mount was arrested early Monday, several hours after the body of Anthony White, 67, was found in White's house.

Moore said White had been beaten and cut, apparently with an axe that was found near the body. He said White's pockets had been turned inside out and a money belt had been taken from the body.

Tann was being held in the Rocky Mount jail without bond pending a hearing.

N—Noon M—Midnight

By The Associated Press
A ridge of high pressure over the southeastern states continues to keep temperatures high and skies dry in North Carolina.

The high ridge is blocking the approach of other weather systems to the state. Monday, it caused sunny skies in the west and also in the east after a morning fog.

Greensboro recorded a record high temperature for the second straight day Monday when the mercury climbed to 90 degrees. The old record was 89 set in 1941.

Elsewhere high temperatures were mostly in the mid and upper 80s except upper 70s and low 80s in the mountains and near the coast.

Skies were clear through the night over the state. Patchy areas of dense fog began developing over southeastern sections this morning.

Sunny skies will again keep temperatures in the 80s across the state today, and clear skies will be the rule tonight with lows from the 40s in the mountains to near 60 along the coast.

Skies will be sunny across most of the state again Wednesday. Still no rain is in sight for the next couple of days.

The recreational weather outlook calls for not much change in the weather of the past few days. Winds will be southerly today and tonight but fairly light.

PLAYING TENNIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Sanford University tennis coach Dick Gould has written a book that provides the "guidelines in both the technique for every stroke and the uses of those strokes in actual singles and doubles play."

The handbook, "Tennis, Anyone?" (Signet), contains photos and diagrams.

Consumer Given More Clout By Number Of Laws

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Complaining consumers are finding that the law is often on their side these days in the battle of the market place.

Many of the things taken for granted today are the result of legislation passed within the last 10 years. Until 1968, for example, lenders did not have to disclose the annual interest charge on revolving credit accounts.

Among key federal consumer laws cited by the Consumer Federation of America are the Drug Control Bill of 1962, the Truth in Packaging Act of 1966, the Truth in Lending Law of 1968, the 1972 legislation establishing the Consumer Product Safety Commission and the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act of 1975.

Other laws and regulations involving consumer rights cover such subjects as price fixing, discrimination in credit granting and responsibility for products that don't work.

State and local legislators, meanwhile, also have strengthened consumer rights. Several states now require unit pricing in supermarkets. Antitrust laws have been improved in other areas. There are stricter licensing provisions for repairmen. Consumer education programs have been set up in the public schools.

Here is a look at some key federal laws and rules and what they do:

—Drug Control Bill: It requires that drugs be proved effective and given approval by the government before marketing. It also requires drug manufacturers to register with the government and provide information about contents on product labels.

—Truth in Packaging: The law requires that household products generally sold in supermarkets and drugstores be clearly and accurately labeled regarding contents, net quantity, the name of the manufacturer and the number of servings, where applicable.

—Truth in Lending: This law requires lenders to disclose annual as well as monthly interest charges on revolving accounts. It makes sure that buyers know that the small-sounding 1½ per cent monthly charge is really 18 per cent a year.

—Consumer Product Safety Commission: It was established under a law passed Oct. 27, 1972. The panel began operations on May 14, 1973 to protect the public against "unreasonable risks of injury associated with consumer products;" to help individuals evaluate the comparative safety of different items; and to develop uniform safety standards for a wide variety of goods.

The commission has recalled more than 20 million allegedly unsafe items, but it reports that many of them — 83 per cent on the average through the first year and a half of operation — were never returned by the purchasers, even when a refund or replacement was offered.

The commission also has come in for criticism from some consumer groups, including the Consumer Federation of America, which charged that the panel is not concentrating on the real issues. These groups attacked the commission for working to establish mandatory standards for such things as architectural glass and swimming pool slides, rather than basic necessities. "You have to wonder who decides what (about priorities) over there," said Midge Shubow of the federation.

—Credit: Several laws, starting with the Fair Credit Reporting Act of 1971, give consumers the right to review their credit file, require credit grantors to tell rejected applicants why they were turned down, make it illegal for creditors to discriminate on the basis of race, religion, color, national origin, sex, marital status or age and provide procedures for settling billing disputes.

Those procedures require companies to resolve any complaint within 90 days of receiving a written notice of the grievance. The creditor can't close your account or threaten you with retaliation during this period. In addition, if you charge something and it turns out to be defective, you don't have to pay the credit card company, providing you first try to work out the dispute with the store. Previously, the credit grantor had no responsibility for quality of the product involved.

—Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act: The 1975 law requires that any warranty provided by a manufacturer or retailer be written in simple language. A Federal Trade Commission rule, effective Jan. 1, 1977, requires a warranty to include a clear description of products and parts covered — and not covered.

The warranty also must state what the warrantor will do in the event of a defect, with a list of which services will be paid for and provided and which will not. If a manufacturer will pay for the cost of replacement parts, for example, but will charge extra for labor, he must say so clearly.

The warranty must also include a step-by-step explanation of what you should do to get repairs or replacements, how long the warranty is good for and information about what to do in case of a dispute.

The law encourages informal and independent ways to settle disputes fairly, quickly and cheaply. The law does not provide specifics, but an FTC rule, taking effect July 4, sets minimum standards for things such as record-keeping and audits. The law allows warrantors to require that these informal dispute-settling mechanisms be used as a first step in resolving consumer complaints and, in certain cases, exempts warrantors from class action suits if they use these processes.

—Mail Orders: A Federal Trade Commission rule that took effect Feb. 2 requires mail order firms to fill orders within 30 days or give consumers their money back.

—Real Estate Settlement and Procedures Act: The law requires that mortgage lenders disclose, in advance of a sale, the settlement costs for both buyer and seller. The lender must use a uniform settlement statement, prepared by the Housing and Urban Development Department, and must give buyers a booklet prepared by HUD explaining settlement costs. The law gives consumers more information about things such as charges made by lenders to cover administrative loan costs and fees that must be paid to the person or company handling details of the final transaction.

—Moving: The Interstate Commerce Commission recently adopted new rules requiring truckers of household goods to assume responsibility for loss or damage to all items they accept for shipment. Previously, movers often refused to accept responsibility for unusually fragile or valuable items. The new rules also include limitations on liability. The company is not responsible for perishable articles, for example, the mover does not know such items are being shipped.

—Agency for Consumer Advocacy: The Consumer Federation of America lists the creation of an independent consumer agency within the federal government as a key goal. But the legislation is still pending after years of debate. It passed both houses of Congress last year and went before a conference committee. President Ford, however, says he will veto the bill, contending that it would simply create an additional bureaucracy. He has proposed instead, expanding consumer efforts within existing departments, a plan that the Consumer Federation of America attacks.
