School Bd. Defers Redistricting

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Board of Education deferred action on a plan to redistrict elementary school attendance zones until school officials have an opportunity to review a proposal submitted by a group of citizens at last night's meeting.

About 400 persons attended the lengthy session at which the reassignment of elementary students—to gain a racial balance in the kindergarten through sixth grade level—was the prime topic.

Supt. Glenn Cox first presented the redistricting plan developed by the school administrative staff, based on criteria established by the school board.

Some of the guidelines included: establishment of a base population of walking students; maintain (within 5 per cent) a racial ratio consistent with the city wide K-6 racial ratio (51.9 white, 48.1 black); change as few students as possible; and maintain "neighborhood" groups where possible in the assignment patterns.

Under the administration plan, according to figures presented by Cox, 629 students—about one-fourth of the 2,540 elementary students in the system—would be moved under the proposed assignment pattern. Moving the 244 white and 385 black students would give a maximum variation of 2.8 per cent (Eastern Elementary) and average only 1.35 per cent variance from the pupil ratio.

Under the administration plan, per cent white and non-white for each school and the variance from average includes: Eastern, 49.1, 50.8, 2.8 per cent; Elmhurst 51.9, 48.1, 0 per cent; Sadie Sautler, 51.5, 48.5, 4 per cent; South Greenville, 49.6, 50.4, 2.3 per cent; Third Street, 52.2, 47.8, .3 per cent; and Wahl-Coates, 54.2, 45.8, 2.3 per cent.

Attorney Charles Vincent acted as spokesman for the Belvedere and Club Pines subdivisions—two of the areas most vocal in their objection to the reassignment plan.

He told the board, "this is a very emotional thing to these people and their children."

Vincent continued, "I commend the school board for trying to correct this balance... they saw it was out of line. But is this the only alternative? How far do we have to go?"

The spokesman said "I feel that this is not the best action. There has to be action, but is this the answer?" Vincent then urged "move as few students as possible. This proposal is too vast, too encompassing. Move fewer students," he suggested, and the costs would be less.

Attorney Mickey Herrin—representing residents of the Eastwood Subdivision—then presented the alternate reassignment plan. (Under the School Board's plan, about 110 students living in Eastwood—within walking distance of Eastern Elementary—would be bussed to another school.)

Pointing out that the board is under no directive from the Federal Court or the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to redistrict, Herrin said there is no requirement to make all schools meet the student ratio.

"Our main thought... simply defer any action until such time as the middle school has been opened," Herrin suggested.

Continuing with the alternate proposal, Herrin said "basically, what we have done is propose no students be at Third Street School."

He said there are now only 151 elementary students attending that school. The alternate plan would take 60 white students from Third Street and move them to Sadie Sautler. The 91 blacks now at Third Street would be moved, along with 60 blacks, from Sadie Sautler, to Eastern and Wahl-Coates.

Under the alternate proposal, only 211 students would be moved as opposed to the administration's plan which would move 629.

According to the plan presented by Herrin, "our proposal would bus 80 additional children as opposed to the city's busing 140 additional children."

Under the compromise proposal, the percentage of white and non-white in each school as compared with the 1975-1976 school year percentages (in parenthesis) include: Eastern, 54.1, 45.9 (62, 38); Elmhurst, 59.6, 40.4 (59.6, 40.4); Sadie Sautler, 42.4, 57.6 (30.5, 69.5); South Greenville, 58.5, 41.5 (59.9, 40.1); Wahl-Coates, 59.3, 40.7 (64.7, 35.3); and Third Street, no elementary students in 1976-1977 (40.3, 59.7).

Herrin theorized that redistricting would have to occur again when the new middle school is opened because all sixth grade students would then attend classes at the new facility. He also suggested that spending an estimated $150,000 to renovate the 47-year-old Third Street building would not be a sound move.

"We feel the compromise plan meets the criteria" of the board and is a better plan," Herrin emphasized. "We feel like we have come up with something that should be considered," and he said "we would urge the board not to approve the city's plan tonight. Take under advisement our plan."

A number of citizens commented on the plans outlined during the meeting. Several residents of Lake Ellsworth spoke in support of the plan proposed by the school administration. However, most of those that commented on the plans voiced support for the alternate proposal.

Following the open discussion on the two plans, officials said the alternate plan would be reviewed and a meeting of the Board of Education would be scheduled to take final action on the redistricting question.

In other business last night, the board approved the retirement of Mrs. Lena B. Brown, a professional employee of the system for 37 years and for the past 26 years principal of South Greenville School. Her retirement is to become effective June 30.

The Board also rejected all bids received—on the advice of architects—for site work (grading, drainage and seeding) at the middle school site because all bids exceeded the amount budgeted.

Cox told board members that the site work would be re-advertised for bids after changes in the plans are made.

The superintendent also reported that architectural and structural drawings for the middle school are about 95 per cent complete while mechanical and electrical designs are about 90 per cent complete.

He said the firm of Dudley and Shoe, Architects, reported the plans should be completed within a few weeks and that bids for the proposed middle school should be received the last week in June.

The board also approved a one-hour planning period for elementary teachers for the 1976-1977 school year. The planning time would come at the end of the school day.

Cox was instructed to develop a plan to define the structure of the teachers' work day to include the planning time and, if necessary, to shorten the elementary school day for students by one-half hour.

Urge Officials Be 'Accountable' To Party's Platform

By DON McLEOD

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A citizens lobby and a labor leader said today the Democratic party's elected officials should be held accountable to the party's platform, which they said is being blatantly ignored.

Testifying in the second day of hearings by the Democratic platform committee, Common Cause president David Cohen said, "Your Democratic leadership in Congress has finically ignored major planks in your 1972 platform."

United Auto Workers president Leonard Woodcock told the committee the platform should be a meaningful policy guideline for the national, state and local Democratic organizations as well as elected officials, including Democratic presidents.

"You must commit the candidates to the platform," Woodcock said in written testimony submitted to the committee.

This year the party is moving toward a platform aimed at doing battle with the Republicans on economic issues, with the emphasis on jobs.

Cohen reminded the group that the 1972 platform called for stringent controls against conflicts of interest in Congress and the executive branch, including disclosure of financial holdings.

"The House of Representatives has dragged its feet on such legislation and continues to allow congressmen to serve on committees where they can advance their personal financial interest, a practice the platform plank specifically singled out as an abuse that should be eliminated," Cohen said.

Cohen said the Democratic-controlled Congress also had ignored platform directives to provide public financing of elections, disclosures of lobbying activities and abolition of the electoral college. "The Democratic party should hold its leaders in Congress to account," Cohen said.

Woodcock said the platform "should bring a message to the Congress" and that "the new Democratic president" should report annually on party affairs as well as the state of the union

"to provide new accountability to Democrats."

The outline of a party position, already expressed by individual contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination, emerged Monday in a report from a panel which had been working for three and a half years on a Democratic platform for 1976.

The report of the Democratic Advisory Council of Elected Officials, designated by party chairman Robert Strauss to propose policies for the national party, was submitted to the platform committee as the committee opened final hearings in Washington.

Addressing the committee Monday Strauss urged it to end the "myopia, bitterness, pettiness and often downright stupidity" that he said led to the party's defeat in 1968 and 1972.

"The Democratic Party fully understands now what we couldn't understand in the past—that our internal bickering and internal warfare brought the nation nothing but disaster," he said.

His criticism of former President Richard M. Nixon and President Ford was echoed in the advisory council's report.

Night Of Death In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem and Christian armies fought another dusk-to-dawn duel with rockets and artillery, police said today, leaving at least 207 persons killed and 346 wounded.

"Our morgue is full with unidentified bodies, we have no room for more," said a spokesman for one of Beirut's largest Moslem hospitals.

By police estimates, nearly 500 persons have been killed in the past three days, marking it as one of the bloodiest periods in Lebanon's 13½-month-old civil war that has taken nearly 20,000 lives.

Moslem leftists and their Palestinian allies sent hundreds of Soviet-made rockets slamming into Christian residential areas. Christian gunners answered with barrages of 155mm and 120mm artillery fire.

Dozens of office buildings in the commercial center and port area were ablaze. Flying shrapnel kept fire brigades out of the zones.

Tanks manned by renegade Christian and Moslem officers from Lebanon's disintegrated 18,000-man army reportedly were locked in combat for control of several ski resorts overlooking a beleaguered Christian enclave north of the capital.

Police reported Moslems on the slopes fired shells into the pine forests surrounding Bkirki, 10 miles north of Beirut and traditional seat of the patriarch of the Maronite Christians.

The Maronites, a Roman Catholic sect and the largest Christian faction in Lebanon, have dominated the presidency and the nation's top army posts since the country gained independence from France 32 years ago.

Now 15 Wills

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The number of purported Howard Hughes wills has reached 15, with nine new documents turning up. Officials dismissed most of the new ones as obvious fakes. The Clark County clerk's office received five new documents in the mail Monday and the probate commissioner got four. Hughes died April 5.

One of the joke-wills ordered that all the late billionaire's assets, estimated at up to $2.5 billion, be converted into "currency of the realm" and burned. It named the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board as executor.

Another document left all of Hughes' fortune to a person in Pennsylvania and another left the wealth to someone in Kennewick, Wash. It was witnessed by Hopalong Cassidy, Jack the Ripper, Samuel Spade and Alfred E. Newman.

County officials indicated the only will being considered as possibly authentic is the first one, found by officials of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) and filed April 29.

That document was turned over Monday to a handwriting expert hired by Nevada National Bank and Hughes' giant holding company, Summa Corp.

d'Estaing Avows France Is A Dependable Friend

By FRANCES LEWINE

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Preparing to address a joint session of Congress, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing says his country is "a dependable friend" in prosperity and adversity.

He told President Ford in a toast at a White House dinner Monday night that relations between the United States and France are at their best.

There has never been a time when contacts "have been more frequent, consultation more sustained and cooperation more good-willed," Giscard said. "Though our methods may sometimes differ, our final objectives are inspired by that same ideal of liberty, peace and justice."

Giscard speaks to a joint session of Congress today.

He and Ford took time out between formal talks on matters including nuclear non-proliferation to spend Monday evening dining, dancing, and listening to jazz pianist Earl "Fatha" Hines at the White House party for 157 guests, including Hollywood and sports stars.

Giscard, here to celebrate the Bicentennial, found one of his ancestors given a place of honor in the White House State Dining Room.

It was French Admiral Charles Henri d'Estaing, who brought the first French fleet to America's aid in the Revolutionary War.

Ford said that a bust of the admiral had long resided at the White House, and it was brought out for display for the occasion. "Unfortunately, Gen. Washington never met Admiral d'Estaing," Ford said. "I count it a special privilege as the 38th President that I can welcome one of his descendants to this house and personally express our long overdue thanks for the distinguished contribution that was made by one of your predecessors in our struggle for our independence."

The Fords gathered an especially large array of guests in honor of the French president, including dancers Ray Bolger, Martha Graham and Judith Jamison; movie stars Clint Eastwood, June Allyson and Marisa Berenson, and Olympic ice-skating winners Colleen O'Connor, James Millns and Sheila Young.

Giscard wore the scarlet sash of the French Legion of Honor with his white tie and tails. His wife, Anne-Aymone, wore a pale, sea-green, pearl-decorated Dior gown.

It was the night before the crucial Michigan primary for President Ford, but he seemed to put that aside as he enjoyed the party and danced until almost 1 a.m. Before they left at 12:20 a.m., Giscard and his wife danced, too.

Developers Believe Damaged Brain Can Be 'Programmed'

Part 3 of a Three-part Series
By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Glenn Doman, Dr. Robert Doman, and Dr. Carl Delacato, developers of the neurological organization approach to treating brain injury, maintain that in almost every brain where injury has occurred there are millions of healthy cells remaining which can be trained to take over the functions of the injured cells.

They believe that the human brain can be likened to a marvelous computer which is programmed by the actions that "normal" infants go through — 1. movement without mobility — waving arms and legs, but not getting from place to place; 2. crawling — moving from place to place with the abdomen pressed to the floor; 3. creeping — moving from place to place on the hands and knees; and walking — getting up on the "hind legs" and moving from place to place. They are convinced that if an otherwise well child misses any of these stages, he will not be normal in his brain development. Of course, he may have been prevented from going through these stages on his own by previous injuries, often those occurring before and at birth. Or he may have experienced them, but later received injuries which would necessitate his going through the stages again.

This reasoning is the basis for the Doman-Delacato patterning techniques. The child is helped to crawl and creep until he can do it on his own. Three people help him to move his arms and legs and head in the creeping motions until he can do it on his own. And then he must practice it for hours, because he will have to "make up for lost time" to catch up with his own chronological age.

Doman and Delacato believe that various other stimuli during infancy account for other "skills" of the normal person. For instance, the knowledge that there are people living in caves in the Philippines who are blind led them to wonder if sight isn't activated by light stimulation. Thus, they encourage eye stimulation and have indeed helped blind children to see, along with other improvements in neurological organization.

Neurological organization, they believe, is the key to all treatment of brain injury and indeed to all healthy development. They claim successes with comatose children, as well as those who have onony "minor" problems, like inability to read or hyperactivity.

Glenn Doman maintains that problems like mental retardation, autism, certain types of blindness and deafness, cerebral palsy, hyperactivity, and learning disability are not illnesses or conditions, but symptoms. Only treating the brain itself can alleviate the cause and therefore the symptoms, he says.

Appointments at the Institutes for the Achievement of Human Potential in Philadelphia have to be waited for, but no child is ever turned away because of the severity or the lack of severity of his problem. If preliminary questioning of the parent and his doctor makes it seem likely that he is brain-injured, he is diagnosed and the parents are taught to administer the treatment. The initial appointment is one week in length, as was indicated in Article 2. Doman says that the Institutes' experiences have proved that severity is not a factor in the success of the treatment. "Hopeless" children have been made normal and "mildly retarded" or "learning disabled" children have been failures.

At several places in the world there are centers using the Institutes' methods. Yet, ironically enough, in the United States the Doman-Delacato method is loudly criticized by some and not widely used.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

You'll look time before you find a more decadent group than research rats and mice.

Throughout the years these furry swingers have been plied with booze, pot, cigarettes, birth control pills, too much sun, cyclamates, caffeine, raucous music at ear-splitting decibels, late hours and a steady diet of snack food.

All this should leave people with some unanswered questions. First how come there are still more rats and mice than people? Second how come you never see an iron-starved, dull, listless mouse drag around the house? They spring from one place to another like Edith Bunker.

Third, did you ever see a mouse with a salad in one hand and a calorie counter in the other? Yet did you ever see a fat mouse? Have you ever yelled at a rat and had him say "Huh?"

These unanswered questions really bother me because every time I turn around a new research study is taking away something that has made my life infinitely more pleasant in the past but in the future is going to make me sick. The latest of these is Red Dye No. 2, a man-made color additive found in lipstick and rouge. According to researchers controlled tests on hundreds of rats and mice brought a ban on the dye by the Food and Drug Administration.

with lipstick on his teeth?" "Actually the mice under my sink have always been what my Avon lady would describe as 'understated.'"

"Why do I have the feeling we are in a rat race and the rats are having all the fun? I mean you only go around once in this life Mayva and you ought to be able to do it with gusto."

"Did I tell you about the research rat who had everything tested on him from artificial sweeteners to bread preservatives to foot fungus viruses to the brutal subway experiment and survived them all? A researcher figured he was something of a supermouse and took him home as a pet for the kids. Within three months this indestructible mouse was dead!"

"What happened?" I asked. "Drove in the car one day with the family's teenage son and had a heart attack."

I shook my head. "I'm for research, Mayva, but that's cruel."

Wife Should Make Deal With Hubby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband's new teeth don't fit him right and he talks funny, but that's not the problem. Every time I ask him to repeat something, he gets mad at me and says, "Why don't you get a hearing aid?"

Abby, there is nothing wrong with my hearing. It's the way he talks. Lately I have to be careful not to ask him to repeat anything for fear he'll take my head off.

How can I handle this problem without starting World War III?

AL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Make a deal with Al. Tell him that you will have your hearing tested if he'll go back to the dentist who made his new teeth and get an adjustment.

DEAR ABBY: GRANNY-TO-BE is thrilled at the prospect of becoming a grandmother even though her unmarried daughter, who is on welfare, has no plans to marry the baby's father and chooses not to disclose his identity!

You say, "That's her business and her secret." Abby, don't you think a child has the right to know who his real father is? And don't you think that when the child grows up, he should have the right to get in touch with his real father if he chooses to do so?

Also, maybe the father wants to support his child. Women talk about WOMEN'S rights. How about MEN'S rights?

MEN'S LIBBER

DEAR LIBBER: Fortunately (or possibly unfortunately), since women literally carry the load alone and deliver it, it is their prerogative as to whether or not to inform the father. And not all fathers are willing to own up to it. But read on for another enlightened viewpoint:

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the unmarried mother-to-be who is on welfare and prefers to keep the identity of her baby's father a secret: According to you, it may be her business and her secret, but that baby becomes the taxpayers' burden, and we taxpayers are sick and tired of supporting illegitimate children.

With all the resources available to prevent pregnancies, there is no excuse for any sexually active female to bear a child! And why should the father be excused from the responsibility of supporting his child? Yet, you would let taxpayers assume this responsibility because some 21-year-old female decides she wants to be a mother.

VARIED DIET

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Because no one food can provide adequate nutrition for humans, people who fail to eat a varied diet may be trading one problem for another, says P.V.J. Hegarty, associate professor in the University of Minnesota Department of Food Science and Nutrition. Hegarty says research indicates high fiber diets that are thought to be linked to low levels of colon cancer also speed up the movement of food through the digestive track, reducing the time for vitamins and minerals to be absorbed.

Statler Brothers Cite Links To Gospel Music

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

What makes harmonious sounds ranging from a high tenor to a very low bass? The Statler Brothers.

The Statler Brothers performed as part of a country music show at D. H. Conley High School Friday night.

Their performance included nostalgic tunes such as "The Class of '57," and selections from "Pictures and Memories of Home," love songs such as "Susan When She Tried" and "I'll Love You 'Til My Grave" and selections from their new gospel albums entitled "Holy Bible—Old Testament" and "Holy Bible—New Testament."

In a backstage interview the four singers, Harold Reid, Don Reid, Lew DeWitt, and Phil Baisley explained their professional relationship with religion.

"Religion has had quite an influence on us and we plan to continue to use it to influence others through our music," Don Reid said.

"Gospel music is a great part of our show. We have participated in several crusades with evangelists like Billy Graham," Harold Reid said.

The Statler Brothers have traveled around the world and performed in places such as the White House, Amsterdam Europe. However, they explained that they prefer to perform in the United States.

"We're not too fond of the rest of the world. We would rather play right here in America," Harold Reid said.

"There are a lot of places in America that we have never played; take for instance Bee Bee Arkansas," he continued. After prompting Harold's recollection by this reporter, Harold said "We have never played in Grainger Stations either, so that is two places we have not had a chance to get to in America yet."

Asked what the best part of their performing career has been the Statler Brothers provided a variety of answers.

"Coming home after a show. We only perform about 10 days each month, but it's good to get home," Harold Reid said.

"Being accepted by the audience is a rewarding part of performing and it is nice to get home," Phil Baisley said.

Home for the Statler Brothers is Staunton, Va. Home for the group on the road is a red, white, silver and blue bus. The Statlers' on-the-road-home follows the bicentennial theme with plush couch sets upholstered with bicentennial scenes and blue dividing curtains were accompanied by "Bull" Durham, guitarist and "Moosey" Buddy Harman, drummer.

After appearing before two fullhouse shows at D.H. Conley Friday, the Statlers traveled to Raleigh Saturday. They plan to tour the United States during the bicentennial year.

Want To Study Cigarette Ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans puffed nearly 9 billion more cigarettes last year than in 1974 and a government agency wants to know whether the cigarette industry is using deceptive advertisements to encourage people to light up more.

In its annual report to Congress Monday, the Federal Trade Commission estimated 601 billion to 603 billion cigarettes were sold in the United States in 1975, up 1.5 per cent from the previous year's 594.5 billion.

The FTC, repeating a concern it voiced last year, said certain ads "may tend to encourage consumers to ignore the grave health consequences of smoking." It cited a recent ad "for Salem in which a smoker asserts, 'I don't analyze smoking. I enjoy it.'"

The FTC is undertaking the investigation "to learn what the cigarette industry knows about the effects of its advertising and other promotional activities on consumers and potential consumers."

The commission wants Congress to provide a more sharply worded health warning on cigarette packs and ads. Since 1970 the packs have carried the wording, "The Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

The agency favors a warning that either would spell out the diseases smoking can lead to, or declare smoking "may result in your death."

The report defended the current label, despite the rise in cigarette sales.

The rise does not take into account the fact that some cigarettes now have less tar and nicotine than in past years, it argued. Likewise, the average amount of tobacco in cigarettes has decreased steadily over the past two decades, the FTC said.

It also said that "changing mores concerning women and youth have been accompanied by a sharp increase in the use of cigarettes by these groups."

The commission renewed a previous recommendation that each cigarette brand be required to list its tar and nicotine rating on both packaging and advertisements.

It called for mandatory listing of any other component that is shown dangerous in further medical studies. One such ingredient now under study is carbon monoxide.

Limit Inmate 'Gatherings'

RALEIGH (AP) — A new policy that will restrict inmate gatherings sponsored by outside organizations to no more than 25 prisoners has touched off another dispute between Corrections Secretary David Jones and Fred Morrison, executive director of the Inmate Grievance Commission.

Jones announced the new policy Monday, and Morrison's rebuttal followed closely behind. The new policy is needed, Jones said, because of a recent U.S. Court of Appeals ruling that inmates may form "prison labor unions." And Morrison called the action another example of "fear and paranoia" among the prison system's leadership.

No limit has previously applied to the number of inmates that could participate in outside-sponsored programs like the Jaycees, the Womens Club and the Yokefellows religious organization. But Jones told a meeting of representatives of outside organizations active in the prisons that the policy was needed to curtail possible "labor union" activities.

In its recent ruling, the Court of Appeals said inmates could be permitted to join the unions, but were not allowed the right to collective bargaining and other functions typical of labor unions. In addition, the unions would have to limit meetings and activities to those allowed for other groups.

Although many of the prison groups sponsored by outside organizations have fewer than 25 members, several Jaycee chapters and the Womens Club have a large number of participants, Morrison said. The new policy might require discrimination over which 25 inmates would be allowed to participate in their activities.

The new policy does not apply to chapel programs, religious services and other programs that are coordinated within the prison system.

Far-Fetched Prophecy Arrived

Some years ago when East Carolina University was flexing its muscles with a small college athletic program, a Greensboro sports writer noted that the eastern school was headed toward the Southern Conference.

It was speculated that East Carolina would be a major force in the Southern and that as the school's athletic program grew even the Southern might not be able to hold it.

That was a far-fetched prophecy as the eastern school with a modest athletic program was attempting to gain membership in the Southern Conference. As those who follow North Carolina collegiate sports know, though, East Carolina did become a member of the Southern Conference and now its athletic ambitions have grown to the point where the university is leaving the conference to move on a still bigger things athletically.

Last week the Southern Conference held its Spring meeting on the ECU campus, and it was a sentimental time as far as ECU officials were concerned. It had already been announced that ECU would leave on July 1, 1977, and there were rumors in the air about the prospects of several independents joining together to form a new conference which would participate in Division I NCAA football.

A prophecy concerning the growth of the ECU athletic program has been fulfilled, but there should be nothing but the best of feeling toward the Southern Conference here in Greenville.

It was, after all, as a member of the Southern that the ECU athletic program grew from a modest one to the point where it is now nationally recognized.

"Something for under $30,000...? It just so happens we do have one available in that price range."

Assassination Speculation Lingers On

Just as questions are still raised about the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, there are still implications that there is something more than generally known about the shooting of John F. Kennedy.

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., member of the senate intelligence committee accused the CIA and FBI of lying to the Warren Commission about the assassination of Kennedy. He suggested some "hot" leads be followed in the assassination.

"We don't know what the senator has in mind, but we think that every possible lead should be followed up in the Kennedy assassination."

Unity Is Alexander's Goal

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — GOP gubernatorial hopeful Jacob F. Alexander sees the Republican primary contest as having little to do with issues: everything to do with pulling the warring factions of the party back together.

The issues, Alexander says, are pretty well spelled out for Democrat or Republican, and will play a major role in the November election.

For the August intra-party battle, however, thinks the key to his possible success is from straddling the divisions which best North Carolina Republicans.

Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr., entered office over three years ago to guide the divided Republicans. But peace has not come between Holshouser and his chief foe, Republican U.S. Senator Jesse Helms.

The Split
There are numerous reasons, having less to do with political philosophy than with personalities and methods. The latest example of the split was evident in the spring's Republican Presidential Primary as Helms' man, Ronald Reagan, bested President Ford for whom Holshouser serves as Southern coordinator.

Historically, North Carolina governors have been victims of declining popularity in the final months of their lame-duck years in office. Holshouser has received more than his fair share of that declining popularity, and many blame a portion of that on his closest political advisor and operative, Gene Anderson. Alexander, a Holshouser appointee to serve as Secretary of Transportation (now resigned to run), sharply divorces himself from Anderson and the Holshouser administration—but not so sharply from Holshouser as to alienate the branch of the party.

His motive? "Who can best pull the party together and demonstrate success in winning against a Democratic opponent in the fall will be able to carry the primary," the Salisbury resident says.

"We do have factions, and many are concerned that this might continue in future years." Alexander's hope is to survive a first primary, get into a runoff with either of his two major Republican opponents: David T. Flaherty or Cox Prevette, then win big by demonstrating that he alone can bring unity while Flaherty on the one hand and Prevette on the other would tend to continue the divisiveness.

Can Win
Alexander thinks public sentiment which, in the wake of the Watergate mess tended to discount the prospects of a Republican victory, has shifted. "A Republican can win. If I didn't think so, I wouldn't be running." "Time has blunted the impact of the Watergate mess, and more and more people are beginning to realize that while much publicity surrounded that, it was not necessarily the worst situation we have been as scandalous."

But to win in North Carolina, any Republican must demonstrate his "electability... to get enough Democrats to switch over... all of which makes Republicans today look more closely and deeper into what makes a candidate run for office, and what makes up the candidate, himself," Alexander feels.

Thus far, the Alexander candidacy doesn't seem to have caught on statewide. There has been the lack of name recognition in the wake of the more flamboyant and better-known opponents; then a late entry for Alexander was further spoiled by a week at home battling laryngitis.

But the delay may pay off in the long run, Alexander says. He is more carefully and deliberately selecting people to work in his campaign, not accepting the first offer of help. Money is beginning to come in, and he will shortly launch a media campaign.

The hard rows right now involve gaining Republican party support; the public issues can come in the fall. "There are no issues of significant influence on the primary outcome," he said.

Some Grits On The Side

The Northerner who ventures into Dixie soon discovers, with a mixture of curiosity and suspicion, that famous Southern institution known as grits. Metaphorically speaking, that's mostly what we're getting in the campaign of Jimmy Carter.

For the unenlightened, it should be explained that grits, or hominy grits, are what you get when you take the husk off kernels of corn and grind the stuff to a nice white meal. You can mix grits with any leftover that's handy; you can fry grits like potato cakes; you can use grits to thicken a soup. Ordinarily, grits are encountered most often at breakfast, where you get them with salt, pepper and butter, or if you're lucky, swimming in red-eye gravy.

Grits are a Southern institution. They reflect what might be termed the softer side of Southern life. They have no particular character of their own; they do not offend; they go down easy. Not counting the red-eye gravy, grits are wholly forgettable. You eat them with your mind on something else. Grits are not exactly mush, but they are the next thing to mush, and if they aren't well-drained, they are mush. They are something on the side; take 'em or leave 'em.

In the seventh installment of his serialized autobiography, Jimmy Carter spells out, more or less, the "new commitments and new ideas" he brings to his presidential campaign. What his program amounts to is about one spoonful of gravy on a platterful of grits.

The gentleman does advance one mildly novel proposal. To enhance better public understanding of executive policy, he says, "Cabinet members representing the President should meet in scheduled and televised public interrogation sessions with the full bodies of Congress." The idea is probably impractical; traditionalists in Congress would oppose it; but however feeble, it is an idea, and it provides the red-eye gravy. Otherwise: mush. Carter is in favor of government that is trustworthy, honest, and open. Carter believes that the activities of lobbyists must be more thoroughly revealed and controlled. Carter says that minimum secrecy in government should be matched with maximum personal privacy for citizens. The candidate wants judges and ambassadors chosen on merit only. "All our citizens must know they are being treated fairly."

"As important as honesty and openness are," says the gentleman, "they are not enough. There must also be substance and logical direction in government." Could anyone disagree with that?

Carter is the last person on earth to be evasive. Therefore he gives us his "specific steps." For one, "we must abolish and consolidate hundreds of obsolete and unnecessary federal programs and agencies." One is minded to ask, would the gentleman name perhaps fifty? Or thirty? Or twenty, or ten, or even one? An "agency," in federal parlance, is something more than a mere advisory committee or a paper council. A federal "program" ordinarily involves a service mandated by Congress. Carter would abolish or consolidate "hundreds" of agencies and programs. He would?

Here is another specific: He wants a "practical and comprehensive national health program." If he would give us a little more gravy, or even some salt, pepper and butter, he would inform us what this program would cost, how it would be financed, and how it would work. He would similarly fortify his "comprehensive education program." He would give us something to chew on.

"Energy imports and consumption must be reduced," the gentleman says. How, one inquires? We must have "a firm commitment to pure air, clean water, and unspoiled land." Splendid, one remarks! Carter is against loopholes; he is against gross tax inequities, porkbarrel projects, political corruption, and the waste of energy resources. He is in favor of good health, fair profits for farmers, fair prices for consumers, and high ethical standards. "The time for

Test Alaska Defense

By EDMUND PINTO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet bombers periodically breach U.S. air space off the Alaskan coast to test American defenses and are routinely intercepted by U.S. warplanes, an Air Force spokesman says.

The Soviet bombers fly between 20 and 300 miles off the Alaskan coast over the Bering Sea when the planes cross the U.S. defense perimeter known as the Alaskan Air Defense Identification Zone (ADIZ). "They challenge our... test identification zone procedures on a periodic basis," the Air Force spokesman said Monday. He emphasized that the Soviet planes are not flying over Alaskan land areas.

The ADIZ generally follows the contours of the Alaskan coastline. It shrinks from its 300-mile maximum to 20 miles where the Soviet Union and

40 Years Ago Today

A big week of pre-convention politics got underway today with major attention directed toward a strength test between supporters of Senator Borah of Idaho and Governor Alf Lando of Kansas in tomorrow's state-wide presidential primary in New Jersey.

While neither of these two Republicans officially entered the primary, their supporters put the two names into the preferential contest and entered candidates for delegates in nearly all the 14 congressional districts.

A fight between Gov. Harold G. Hoffman and Franklin W. Fort for a seat as delegate-at-large to the Republican convention is a feature of the New Jersey primary. Fort opposes Hoffman on the issue of the Lindbergh kidnaping case, in which Hoffman stayed the execution of the convicted murderer for a period of several weeks.

THE INSIDE REPORT

A Bomb In Israel's Policy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Despite the fuzzy decision of the Israeli government last week to block a new Jewish settlement on the Arab West Bank of the Jordan, Middle East experts here predict major new controversy between the U.S. and Israel over Israel's policy of creeping annexation.

Vivid testimony to this came last month when Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York, perhaps Israel's strongest benefactor in American politics, issued this confidential warning to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin:

The U.S. government does not and will not allow old or new "settlements" — on territory that belonged to Arab states before the six-day war of 1967 — to influence in any way a final political settlement between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

That word, which Javits passed privately to Rabin and, separately, to Defense Minister Shimon Peres, the cabinet's leading hawk, and Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, its leading dove, would have been extraordinary in any other time. But in April 1976, when Javits made his trip to Israel and the Middle East, it was simply the latest in a series of warnings from prominent Americans underlining the grave political crisis now building between the U.S. and Israel.

Indeed, the mere itinerary of Javits' tour dramatized the change now threatening what until recently has been 99 per cent approval by the American Jewish community of everything Israel chose to do.

For the first time since the Nasser revolution in Egypt 23 years ago, Javits went to Egypt, Syria and Jordan. According to confidential reports received by diplomats here, he informed the rules of Israel that all the Arab leaders he talked to now accept the existence of Israel.

Accordingly, he warned, there may be an irresistible movement in the U.S. to impose a political settlement if the parties to the conflict don't settle it themselves. For that reason, Javits sternly advised his old friends that Israel itself should move toward a more flexible negotiating position. Otherwise, he said, growing impatience in the U.S. — which is keeping Israel alive with annual aid of close to $2 billion — might take a nasty turn toward high-pressure Israel.

The impact of this careful warning from Israel's friend was questionable, to say the least. Within a few days of his departure, the feuding Israeli cabinet, over which Rabin has minimum control, reached its alarming decision on the settlements question. Bravely, in the face of fanatical opposition from religious Zionists, the cabinet voted to expel the Jewish settlement of Kaddum, located in the heart of the Arab-Palestinian West Bank population. But at the same time it voted — not bravely — both to let the Kaddum settlers move their settlement closer to the Jordan River and to establish other settlements in the Arab West Bank, along with the 17 already there.

Such a "compromise" of one of the most inflammatory political issues in Israel guarantees confrontation with the U.S. indeed, it flies in the face of repeated warnings from high American officials (most recently) William W. Scranton, U.S. ambassador at the United Nations).

The failure of those warnings to have the slightest effect on the Israeli government shows the impotence of

To the editor:

In response to the article in the Wednesday evening edition of The Daily Reflector regarding the gentleman griping and wanting to sue Social Security, I can kind of sympathize with him, but to sue, I can't see.

I am an E-7 retiree of the U.S. Navy since February, 1957, retired on half pay. An E-7 of that time only drew $304.20 base pay per month. We (the retirees of that year) have only had one raise equivalent to the percentage of an in-service raise—that was in 1958. Now all we get is a small per cent of the C.P.I. based on the 1967-69 scale (Check me if I'm wrong). Should the ones that retired just that year alone get retroactive pay to bring us in line with today's retirees, it would break the federal government. I'm thankful for what I get. The government doesn't owe me any more than I am getting. I just hope I can live long enough to be able to draw S. S.

Mystified By Economy Views

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — John Wright, the investment advisor, is aware that the economy has made a substantial recovery from the depths of a year ago and he rejoices in the improved living conditions this has meant for Americans.

But he is outraged too. He is appalled at the complacency with which some officials accept a 7.5 per cent jobless rate. He is mystified why some Americans, including perhaps the chairman of the Federal Reserve, feel interest rates have sunk very low.

Over-all, he is angry that some officials are beginning to fear the economy has advanced so far that it is time to raise interest rates and begin putting on the brakes. This he views as insanity.

"Interesting rates," he commented a few days ago, "are in fact actually at or above the levels which caused all of the prior post-war recessions: in 1960-61, 1957-58, 1953-54 and 1948-49."

As he views the economy, the mystery "is not the 'low' level of interest rates, but rather the unprecedented sluggishness of a 'recovery' which has not yet reduced unemployment significantly below even the highest level recorded before the 1974-75 recession."

He notes also that the recovery "has not yet restored utilization of productive capacity to even those levels which, in the past, marked the lowest rate of productivity during recessionary periods."

Wright operates Wrights Bankers Service, highly regarded by managers of bank trusts and other institutional portfolios who, in all, handle many hundreds of millions of dollars of investment funds.

Contrary to the widely held belief that high interest rates curtail an economy that is growing too fast, Wright maintains that high interest rates are themselves a cause of inflation and economic destruction.

"Just how high this barrier has become is clear enough to the citizen who finds that it costs him 50 per cent more to pay for a house with a 30-year, $35,000 mortgage at 9 per cent than at 5 per cent," he commented in a report to clients this week.

The difference between the monthly payments of $282 and $188 adds up to almost another $35,000 for total mortgage payments, he noted, adding this conclusion:

It could scarcely be more obvious that the high cost of money is by far the most serious impediment to economic recovery and the greatest inflationary element in our economy today.

Wright argues that our concepts about monetary policy are old-fashioned and incorrect. "Clear thinking and modern knowledge should be applied," he said. "We need good thinking to accomplish our national goals."

The Federal Reserve is said to be thinking of nudging interest rates higher in fear that the recovery will get out of hand and lead to more inflation. And that, Wright preaches, is precisely wrong.

Strength For Today

LOVE SHOWN THROUGH HARDSHIP

The Bible contains many messages of comfort, but it also contains messages which alarm us. We believe that God is a God of love, and we should like to think of his love in terms of gentle treatment of his children. But the Bible nowhere assures us that because God loves us He will always be gentle with us.

The Bible definitely shows that God often uses wicked men and wicked nations to chastise the individuals and nations He loves best. For example, he let His own chosen people be carried into captivity. Many places in the Bible we find the statement that when Israel forsook God, God used cruel and wicked oppressors to drive His people back into the pathways of righteousness.

When God permits trouble to come upon a person, He does it for a definite reason, and always the reason is a loving one, even though it may involve much suffering. This action by God is hard to realize and is never easy to endure.

American policymakers up to now in dealing with Israel. It has been a diplomatic truism for years that whenever the U.S. ambassador in Tel Aviv is asked to raise the settlements issue he invariably cables back that the moment would not be "opportune." But times are changing. One such change is the imminent capture of the Democratic presidential nomination by former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, regarded by Jewish leaders at best as an unknown quantity on the matter of Israel. Another is the possibility that former California Gov. Ronald Reagan will win the Republican nomination. Reagan's record on Israel is good, but his rich, conservative California backers are not trusted by some leaders of the American-Jewish community. The potential herein for political change harmful to what Israel perceives to be its best interest is obvious. To that must be added the growing skepticism among Jewish leaders — totally committed to Israel — who see creeping territorial expansion as a terrible future changer to Israel and who, like the Senator from New York, are saying so to Rabin. Accordingly, the compromise within the Israeli cabinet last Sunday does little to settle the settlements issue and much to invite U.S. retaliation — when the campaign is over and a President is elected.

Alaska are separated only by about 50 miles of Bering Sea. The ADIZ is not a legal boundary but is a U.S.-defined defense perimeter. The Soviet air force usually flies TU-16 Badgers, a medium-range bomber, or TU-95 Bears, a long-range bomber, on what essentially are reconnaissance flights, the spokesman said. He said the flights have been conducted in the Alaskan defense area since 1958.

Elmendorf Air Force Base, headquarters of the Alaska Air Defense Command, routinely sends two jet interceptors to identify and turn back the Russian planes. The interceptors are kept in readiness on the flight line for such duty, the spokesman said. The latest incident to come to light was a Jan. 16 flight of two Badgers. "They were intercepted and identified by U.S. Air Force fighter interceptors and they did not overfly the Alaskan land mass," an Air Force statement on the incident said.

The Air Force disclosed the flight of the Badgers in response to inquiries about a report that two Soviet MIG fighter planes flew over the Alaska pipeline and Army maneuvers in November-December 1975. Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., chairman of the House outer continental shelf subcommittee, said eyewitnesses told him of the intrusion by the two MIG 23 or MIG 25 fighters. In a May 7 letter to Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld about the incident, Murphy said he was told the MIGs flew over and photographed U.S. troops in defensive positions around pipeline installations during an exercise known as "Jack Frost."

A Pentagon spokesman denied that the Soviet fighters flew over Alaskan land areas during the "Jack Frost" exercise but said U.S. fighter planes were in the area. Murphy, however, said the incident was common knowledge among junior officers of the 172nd Infantry Brigade, which was involved in the field exercise with the First Ranger Battalion. He also said it was confirmed to him by high-level intelligence sources.

American intervention in all the problems of the world is over," he says. "But we cannot retreat into isolationism." And so on. Carter's account of his early years contains much that is impressive, much that commands respect: Good honest pork chops, if you please. Fried chicken. Turnip greens. Solid stuff. But when he gets to the main course—when he gets to presidential substance—what we get is something on the side. What we get is grits.

Estimated slaughter today was 1,237,000. The North Carolina hen market was steady to weak today. Supplies light for a light demand. Two few sales to report prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a mild upswing today, bouncing back from a week-long downtrend. Trading was moderate. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 3.07 at 990.71. Gainers held a 5-3 advantage over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Brokers noted a carryover of the bargain hunting that began to appear at midday Monday after a 20-point drop in the Dow since early last week. The Dow, down 7 points at its lowest level early Monday afternoon, finished with a 4.96 loss. Giving some apparent support to the upswing was a forecast from Alan Greenspan, President Ford's top economic adviser, that a solid economic recovery would continue through next year. Fansteel was the most active NYSE issue, unchanged at 22 3/4 in a 100,000-share block trade. The stock is the subject of a $22-a-share tender offer by Lear Siegler. S. S. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks picked up .20 to 54.04. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .25 at 104.56.

Million Miles Of Travel In Disaster Relief Role

By SUSAN QUINN
Reflector Staff Writer

DR. J. HARRY HAINES

Dr. J. Harry Haines has visited 93 countries, traveled one million miles in the past 11 years, and aided in assisting five and a half million people who needed help because of an emergency or a disaster.

When the Guatemala earthquake occurred we had our trained staff in the country and assisting the people within five hours, because we had people in Nicaragua who could get over there even before the United States Red Cross could get there. We go in and help with the emergency disaster period, then continue to help with housing projects and continue with long range plans for agriculture. Most emergency assistance programs pull out of the country within 30 or 60 days after the disaster, our group sometimes stays as long as three to 10 years. "The emergency relief programs are only about 20 percent of our total operation. Our major cause is conquering the root causes of hunger in the world." "We have contacts in about 85 or 90 countries. We have organized family planning clinics in 25 countries to help with population problems and we are working to help improve the agricultural facilities in many countries." "We feel that the greatest reward we receive is the tremendous amount of self help and pride we can give back to people who need our help. Our program shows compassion in contrast to charity by helping restore the dignity of people. We like to think that our work is not a gift from the United States but a helping partner relationship." "The Global Ministries operated on approximately $75 million last year and we had thousands of volunteers from all over the world. Haines, a New Zealand native presently resides in Tenafly, N.J. He has worked with Methodist ministries for 30 years.

PLEASE MADE PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The American Friends Service Committee, the independent Quaker relief organization, has urged South Korean president Park Chung Hee to release all Quaker and Christian political prisoners arrested as an outgrowth of the reading in a Seoul cathedral of a statement calling for return of democratic rights in South Korea. "We feel that the greatest reward we receive is the tremendous amount of self help and pride we can give back to people who need our help. Our program shows compassion in contrast to charity by helping restore the dignity of people. We like to think that our work is not a gift from the United States but a helping partner relationship." "The Global Ministries operated on approximately $75 million last year and we had thousands of volunteers from all over the world. Haines, a New Zealand native presently resides in Tenafly, N.J. Customers who got the quality building they needed, when they needed it, for the money they had to spend. Over the years, we've satisfied quite a few people's building needs. Satisfied them so well, in fact, that they came back when they needed a second building. And a fourth. And a fourth. If you're thinking about building, call us. ## Chargers Close With 9-2 Win

PIKEVILLE—Ayden-Grifton closed out the Eastern Carolina Conference season with a 9-2 victory over C. B. Aycock yesterday.

The Chargers, who have sewed up both the championship of the league and its post-season playoff berth, have one regular season game left, at Kinston on Wednesday.

The Chargers pushed over two runs in the first inning. Rod Kornegay walked and Jed Hardee singled. Dennis Cristiano also got a hit, loading the bases. Eddie Taylor's grounder to third was errored at home, scoring Kornegay. Mike Teachey then walked, scoring Hardee.

In the second, Ayden-Grifton got three more. Paul Ricciarelli slapped a lead off homer to start it. Kornegay walked and Hardee was hit by a pitch. Cristiano reached on an error, loading them up. Ned Craft's walk forced in Kornegay, and Taylor reached on a fielder's choice, bringing in Hardee.

Aycock broke the ice with one in the sixth. Curley Summerlin doubled and scored when Randy Pittman reached on an error.

Lions Run By Coca-Cola, 14-0

The Lions pushed over seven runs in the second inning and went on to take a 14-0 victory over Coca-Cola yesterday in the North State Little League.

The win moved the Lions record to 2-3 on the year, while Coke fell off to 3-2.

Coke had a number of scoring opportunities, but failed to cash in on them.

The Lions got two in the first. Edward Frazier reached on a fielder's choice and Roger Williams hit a two-run homer.

In the second, seven runs crossed the plate for the Lions. Marshall Rand doubled and scored when Burney Caraway reached on an error. Steve Staton was hit by a pitch, and a hit by Williams scored Caraway. Troy Hudson walked and Jim Whitehurst doubled in both Staton and Williams. Chris Smith singled in Hudson and Rand singled in Whitehurst. A wild pitch scored Smith with the seventh run of the inning.

Three more crossed in the third. Scott Galloway singled and moved up on a fielder's choice. A passed ball put him on third, and Williams walked. Hudson singled in Galloway, and Whitehurst singled and an error on the play let Williams and Hudson both score.

The final two came in the fifth. Patrick Rand walked and moved to third on two passed balls. He scored on Williams' fielder's choice. Hudson and Whitehurst both walked and Smith reached on a fielder's choice. Tripp Williford walked to force in Hudson.

Williams had three hits to lead the Lions, while Galloway, Whitehurst and Marshall Rand each had two. Jonathan McGee had two for Coke.

argument was the result of a game ending call at first by Wendelstedt. Astros Ken Boswell grounded to short, with the throw to first low and a little wide. Wendelstedt ruled that Evans' foot was not on the base, and Cesar Cedeno scored from third on the play for a 3-2 Astro win. (AP Wirephoto)

Robinson Benched By Orioles; Bat Is Sick

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Since he came up to stay during the 1959 All-Star break, Brooks Robinson has played in 2,599 of Baltimore's 2,675 games. Monday night wasn't one of them.

On the night before his 39th birthday, one of baseball's all-time great third basemen was benched because he had developed a rusty .165 bat to go with his perennial Gold Glove.

The new Brooks Robinson is 25-year-old Doug DeCinces, who collected a single and double and played errorless ball at third base as the Orioles rallied for three runs in the ninth and beat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3.

"The fans will be looking for miracles, but I'm just going out and play," he said.

Manager Earl Weaver said Robinson's benching was "not a permanent thing. I'll let him relax for a while. After we see what the others do, we'll decide how quick he'll be back in."

In other American League action, the Kansas City Royals nipped the Texas Rangers 8-7 in 12 innings, the Boston Red Sox blanked the Detroit Tigers 7-0, the Minnesota Twins edged the Oakland A's 5-4 in 11 innings and the California Angels pounded the Chicago White Sox 10-5. New York and Cleveland were rained out.

With Robinson watching from the bench, the Orioles won the game after Milwaukee reliever Ed Rodriguez walked three batters with one out in the ninth. Tony Muser tied the score with a two-run pinch single and eventually scored the winning run on a wild throw by catcher Darrell Porter trying to complete what would have been an inning-ending double play.

Royals 8, Rangers 7
Tom Poquette doubled home the winning run in the 12th inning after Al Cowens drew a two-out walk from Steve Foucault. The Royals had blown a 7-1 lead in the ninth inning as Jeff Burroughs of the Rangers started a six-run rally with a single and later singled home two runs to tie the score.

Red Sox 7, Tigers 0
Luis Tiant fired a five-hitter for his fifth victory and Carlton

Messersmith Finally Captures First Victory

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

A couple of anonymous scouts said earlier this spring that then free-agent pitcher Andy Messersmith had a sore arm, that he was damaged goods.

Evidently they never tried to hit against him.

Monday night, Messersmith, now happily chained to the Atlanta Braves, won his first game of the 1976 season, beating the Houston Astros 3-2 in the opener of a two-night doubleheader. The Astros turned the tables and won the second game 3-2.

"I'm just relieved to get the first one," said Messersmith, who signed with the Braves the first week of the regular season after missing spring training. "I can't believe it."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1; the Cincinnati Reds downed the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3, and the San Diego Padres pounded the San Francisco Giants 12-2.

Messersmith, backed by Darrell Evans' two runs batted in, gave up one walk and struck out four, while limiting the Astros to seven hits. He had been charged with four losses in his six previous starts and carried a 5.11 earned run average into the game.

But until he won, the ghosts of his reported arm trouble would come back to haunt him, even though those reports were denied by Messersmith, the Los Angeles Dodgers — his former employers — and the doctor who examined his arm last April.

The Red Sox sewed it up in the third on Rick Burleson's double, a triple by Rick Miller and RBI-singles by Cecil Cooper and Dwight Evans.

Twins 5, A's 4
Steve Brye, who had only three hits in 32 previous at-bats this season, singled home Bob Randall in the bottom of the 11th. Billy Williams and Claudell Washington homered for the A's and Dan Ford for Minnesota while Rod Carew of the Twins stole home for the 14th time in his career. Minnesota relief ace Bill Campbell earned his fifth triumph with three scoreless innings.

Ivey Tops NAIA Award

WILMINGTON—Robert Ivey of Snow Hill, a former Greene Central High School player, was named the Most Valuable Player in the District 29 NAIA Baseball Playoffs this weekend.

Ivey, a senior at UNC-Wilmington, was a shortstop of the Greene Central High School team four years ago when the Rams captured the state 3-A championship.

cause with a run-scoring single. Jones, runnerup in last year's voting for the National League Cy Young Award when he was the Padres' first 20-game winner, struck out three and walked one.

Pirates 2, Cardinals 1
John Curtis, who has a penchant for serving up home run balls, handled the power-laden Pirates, except for part-timer Bill Robinson, who slugged a two-run shot to lift Pittsburgh over St. Louis.

Richie Zisk led off the seventh with a single and trotted home on Robinson's second homer of the year.

Robinson's homer was the seventh yielded by Curtis in 45 innings.

Golfers Miss Bid

CAMP LEJEUNE—Rose High School's golf team failed to qualify for the state tournament in sectional play yesterday.

Hoggard took first place in the sectional tournament with a 309, while West Carteret finished with a 311 for second. Only the two top teams qualified. Rose finished with a 317.

Scores for the Rose individuals included Gary Corda 79; Sid Ashby 79; Molt Massey 79; Connor Merritt 81, and Cam Dudley 86.

PLAYOFF STAR

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles running back Lawrence McCutcheon set a National Football League playoff record last December against St. Louis when he rushed for 202 yards in 37 carries in leading the Rams to an 35-23 victory.

Cavs Not Playing Nerve Game

CLEVELAND (AP) — You might expect the Cleveland Cavaliers to be uptight about tonight's National Basketball Association Eastern Conference playoff game against the Boston Celtics.

Guess again.

Despite being a relatively youthful and inexperienced playoff team and being down 3-2 in the best-of-seven series, the Cavaliers refuse to give in to nerves.

"We just have to go out and play our game," said the youngest of the Cavaliers, 24-year-old Campy Russell. "Boston played as well as they can Sunday. They've thrown everything at us to come up on top."

He was referring to Boston's 99-94 victory Sunday at home, their third triumph at Boston in the series. The Cavaliers were in the game until Celtics captain John Havlicek hit a pair of free throws with 11 seconds left.

Havlicek provided a psychological lift for Boston as well by playing the final few minutes of Sunday's game despite a painful arch injury. Team officials said it won't be known if the 37-year-old forward will play tonight until just before game time.

Cleveland's elder statesman, 34-year-old center Nate Thurmond, said, "With or without Havlicek in there, this team (Cleveland) can win this thing. We've just got to bounce back and play the way we can."

The Cavaliers must win tonight to play in Game Seven at Boston Friday night. The winner of this series will go on to play surprising Western Conference champion Phoenix for the NBA championship.

Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch, named Monday as NBA Coach of the Year, said, "It's all very simple, really. We just have to

Cavalier Coach Best Of Year

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's Bill Fitch, a man until recently known more for his one-liners than for his coaching ability, is the 1976 National Basketball Association Coach of the Year.

Fitch's reaction to the announcement?

"That real nice, I guess."

Fitch, who also is general manager of the Cavaliers and has been their coach for the franchise's entire six-year history, doesn't mean to belittle the award. He just doesn't believe in individual awards.

"You know, I take this as a real big compliment to my basketball players, my assistant coach Jimmy Rodgers and the rest of my staff," Fitch said. "When you get an individual award, you're aware of how many people there are that made it possible."

The Cavaliers, who won only 15 games in their initial season and never had made the playoffs until this year, beat out the Washington Bullets for the Central Division championship, then knocked off the Bullets in seven games in the first round of the playoffs.

They trail the Boston Celtics 3-2 going into tonight's Game Six here in the Eastern Conference finals.

Fitch was elected by a panel of 54 sports writers and broadcasters, three in each of the NBA's 18 cities. He received 24½ votes to 21½ for Al Attles, whose Golden State Warriors won the Pacific Division title for the second straight season. That was the closest finish since 1966, when Dolph Schayes of Philadelphia edged Red Auerbach of Boston.

John McLeod of Phoenix, Bill Russell of Seattle and Bill van Breda Kolff of New Orleans each received two votes, and Gene Shue of Philadelphia and Larry Costello of Milwaukee got one each.

Fitch and team president Nick Mileti still are embroiled in a painful public feud that could see the coach leaving at the end of this season.

But Fitch said, "I thank God for the opportunities he's given me. I'm thankful for the sacrifices made by my family, players and my staff. And I include Nick Mileti on the list of those people I'm grateful to."

STEP ONE PASSED — Indianapolis 500 rookie Janet Guthrie beams with happiness from the cockpit of her championship car at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Monday after she completed the second and last phase of her rookie test. Crew members who helped her become the first woman to pass the rookie test reach in to hug her. Male drivers on the course during the 20-lap run said her driving was excellent. (AP Wirephoto)

Rookie Test Passed, Janet Seeks Position

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "The serious work begins now," said Janet Guthrie, "getting up to qualifying speed."

Miss Guthrie, a 38-year-old physicist from New York City, received historic approval Monday to make a qualification attempt this weekend for the May 30 Indianapolis 500 — a goal she probably never really had in mind when she started racing sports cars 13 years ago.

"I'm not making any concrete plans for any particular speeds. We know what the goal is, and we're going to get working up to it," Miss Guthrie said happily after completing the final half of her 100-mile rookie test.

"It was all very smooth, no particular problems," Miss Guthrie advised after the run on a cold, wind-blown afternoon at Indianapolis Motor Speedway. "The car has some particular handling characteristics that will be corrected. Dick Simon says so, and he hasn't been wrong about anything yet.

"But we're relying on Dick's expertise with chassis settings and suspension adjustments to help sort that out."

Miss Guthrie credited Simon, a 44-year-old journeyman who is now her teammate, with helping get as far as she is.

"Dick certainly has done more for me than could be expected or asked from any normal teammate," she said.

Simon, who has already qualified the front-line Vollstedt team machine in the 33-car field, predicted Miss Guthrie could get the car up to qualifying speed if the crew gets enough time to work with the chassis before the final weekend of qualifying.

So far, rain has washed out major parts of three different practice days.

Miss Guthrie, who provided the only interest in an otherwise light day at the track, said she felt a great deal of the pressure she has been under is now over, although she concedes qualifying will be the most difficult task.

Rolla Vollstedt, her car owner, agreed.

"Back when we first got involved in this project, I was pretty sure we would have no problems getting going, and going right on up through the rookie test," he said. "We'll just have to wait and see what happens now."

The four veteran drivers who supervised her test, Gary Bettenhausen, Tom Bigelow, Al Loquasto and Graham McRae, reported Miss Guthrie performed steadily and impressively.

Sparring Not As Much Fun

By JOHN VINOCUR
AP Sports Writer

MUNICH (AP) — Serving as a sparring partner for Muhammad Ali used to be like having an officer's commission in the Swiss Navy: Room, board, good pay and only the motions of war without any of the risk or pain.

Now it's suddenly as if the Russians were advancing on Geneva. For the first time in his career, Ali is firing real bullets at the man he used to pay not so much to get hit but to pound at the places on his body where the admiral felt he needed toning up.

On Saturday and Sunday, preparing for his title fight here May 25 against Richard Dunn of England, Ali flicked dozens of knife-like jabs into the face of Rodney Bobick until it puffed crimson and puckered like a beefsteak tomato. He whacked Bobick again with left hooks on Monday, took a little in return, and then fired a closing volley worthy of a street fight.

Against Levy Forte, another sparring partner, Ali finished a round with a short right-hand howitzer burst. "Mahgawd," Forte exclaimed afterwards, "the man hurt me!"

Explaining the 'why' of the outpouring of violence in training, the same way that Joe Frazier, Rocky Marciano and Sonny Liston beat on sparring partners, Ali said: "I just want to kick some tail."

"I decided on a lot of things after that Jimmy Young fight, which was my worst ever and for which I was not properly prepared. I'm punishing people now. Did you see me go? Frazier does it and I think it's good for me."

Over the years, Ali developed a reputation as the champion who went the easiest on his sparring partners. His feeling was that there was just no point in hurting them or risking injury.

After the fight with Young last month, Ali said, his manager, Herbert Muhammad, suggested that he tighten up his training routine, limit the clowning and stop pulling so many punches.

Most of the punishment has been aimed at Bobick, the 24-year-old younger brother of Duane Bobick, who often gets called the 316th and newest great white hope of the heavyweight division.

Rodney, a friendly hulk at 245 pounds, doesn't mind his master's new brutality, but he took a beating beyond the call of duty Sunday when he was under instructions not to go for the champion's head because Ali was not wearing any protective gear.

"When he starts to throw punches like that, wherever you move it isn't out of the way," Bobick said. "I really got hit."

The inducements for sparring with Ali are fairly regular work, a check for an amount the boss decides at the end of the training period and, in most cases, a fight in one of the preliminaries on the championship card.

Ump Will File Report On Fuss

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Umpire Harry Wendelstedt says he will file a report with National League president Charles Feeney concerning a pushing incident that occurred on the final play of a doubleheader between Atlanta and Houston Monday night.

Houston's Ken Boswell hit a sharp grounder to Atlanta shortstop Darrel Chaney, who threw wide to Darrell Evans at first base. Wendelstedt ruled the throw pulled Evans off the base, allowing Cesar Cedeño to score the winning run from third base.

Braves players and Manager Dave Bristol protested the call vigorously and Wendelstedt said he was pushed by Bristol and Atlanta coach Vern Benson.

"I was butted by Mr. Bristol, which resulted in his ejection from the game," Wendelstedt said. "Then, as I attempted to walk off the field I was pushed by Vern Benson."

"He was the biggest offender once I tried to get off the field. He kept forcing his body against me. I'll file a report to president Charles Feeney in the morning."

Bristol denied anyone pushed the umpire.

Nuclear Energy: your powerful servant.

Nuclear energy is one of the most abundant—and economical—sources of power available. Together with coal, it offers the best hope to meet America's growing need for electricity.

Consider the energy from one thimbleful of uranium. It would take 1,100 gallons of fuel oil to generate an equal amount of electricity. When you think about the way the cost of imported oil has risen, you can see the tremendous promise nuclear power holds.

How nuclear energy makes electricity.
What does fuel have to do with electricity? Vepco uses large quantities of fuels, such as coal or oil, to make the steam that turns the generators that make electricity.

With nuclear power, however, small amounts of relatively inexpensive uranium can be used to generate electricity, saving a tremendous amount of fossil fuels for other uses.

How nuclear energy saves.
In 1975, Vepco's Surry Nuclear Power Station saved the nation at least 588 million gallons of oil. A comparable amount of electricity generated from oil would have cost Vepco's customers $125 million more. Even though nuclear power stations cost more to build today than fossil fuel plants, they produce electricity at less cost. Vepco's two nuclear generators at North Anna will mean additional fuel savings over coal or oil when they go into operation in 1977.

Nuclear power: a giant step for energy independence.
Foreign suppliers control the price of the residual oil used to generate your electricity. By developing our own energy sources at home, we can lessen our dependence on this costly foreign oil. And we can help assure America dependable, affordable electricity.

Nuclear power is a giant step toward this independence. But it's not the only way. Vepco also has converted its plants from oil to cheaper domestic coal wherever it will save our customers money. Plans for generating electricity from pumped storage hydroelectric power are being developed. And Vepco is encouraging conservation of electricity in every way possible.

Economical energy is a necessity.
America depends on an adequate supply of electric energy. This energy provides jobs, food, conveniences—a standard of living that is the envy of hundreds of millions throughout the world.

By taking steps today to bring about energy independence, America can extend that standard of living to those of our fellow countrymen and women who do not share it today, and help all of us toward a more self-sufficient tomorrow.

Vepco
America is a powerful idea. Let's keep it that way.

How's The Weather? Ford Has Much To Lose Today

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are indicated for the northeast today with scattered showers in the northeast. Colder weather is expected to move into the eastern and northwestern portions of the nation with warmer temperatures moving into the central area. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The state Division of Civil Preparedness says property damage in Saturday's spring storm may be more than $1.5 million in three mountain counties alone. And damage estimates have not been completed in the central and eastern North Carolina areas hit by six tornadoes.

Three children were killed when a tornado ripped their mobile home near Pembroke.

The torrential rainstorm and flooding caused damage to drops, homes, business and public property that would run as high as $1 million in Haywood County. The figure comes from Bill Perrigo, preparedness coordinator for a 15-county division.

He also says damage has been estimated at between $250,000 and $300,000 in each of Jackson and Macon counties.

It was wet and cool in North Carolina today. An upper-level disturbance pushed a cold front across the state, bringing light showers.

Moreover, severe thunderstorms developed over southeastern Georgia and moved into the southern sections of South Carolina early today. A tornado watch was posted from shortly midnight until 4 a.m. for a large section of South Carolina, reaching as far north as the southern boundary of North Carolina.

Thunderstorms moved out of South Carolina and into the southeastern sections of North Carolina early this morning.

One heavy storm advanced to near Rockingham. Another smaller cell moved west of the Wilmington area.

The severe weather in South Carolina, which included a tornado at Summerville, moved northeastward along the coast. At 5 a.m. today winds of 40 to 50 miles an hour were reported 10 miles south of Wilmington.

The showers ended in western North Carolina today but continued in the eastern half of the state.

Hights were in the 70s in the east and 60s in the west today. Overnight lows will be 40s in the west and 50s in the east.

It will be sunny and breezy Wednesday, with highs from the 60s to mid 70s.

The weather for Thursday and Friday looks good. High pressure will dominate. Sunny skies are expected, with highs in the 70s and low 80s.

Small-craft advisories are in effect for the coast.

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
President Ford has more to lose than any other candidate as the primary election wheel takes two new spins today, with the Republican stakes highest in his own Michigan territory.

It is a day to watch the losers, in Michigan and in the Maryland Democratic primary. No candidate is going to win enough to settle the competition for presidential nominations.

Democrat Jimmy Carter is running in both states, trying to prove that his foes can't stop him, but saying it won't be serious if he loses.

Ford has pronounced victory in Michigan a must. Ronald Reagan said a win over the President in his home state would be something of a miracle.

Nonetheless, Reagan's strategists thought they had an opportunity to make a race of it, and spent more than $50,000 on a television advertising barrage in the days before the balloting. Michigan's delegates will be shared in proportion to the popular vote, so there is something to be gained even in defeat.

Ford intensified his campaign effort in Michigan after losing five of the last six primaries to Reagan, and said he expected to win.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, the Reagan campaign manager, said a Reagan victory in Michigan "would be tantamount to nomination."

As worrisome for Ford is the fact that Michigan voters can cast ballots in either primary. There is no party registration, and the President's camp is concerned that conservative voters who cast Democratic ballots for George C. Wallace in 1972 may vote Republican, for Reagan, this time.

Reagan has won four times in open primary states, and Ford spokesmen have blamed crossover Democrats for the losses. This time, the President appealed for Democratic and independent votes himself. They also met in Maryland, where the polls gave Ford the edge.

In Democratic competition, Carter faces California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., a new rival, in Maryland, and Rep. Morris K. Udall, an old one, in Michigan.

With his commanding lead in delegate strength, Carter said he could absorb a loss to Brown and, for that matter, to Udall as well. "I don't have to win every primary," he said.

But neither can he afford to start losing regularly. There is a stop-Carter movement out there and it did gain heart when Sen. Frank Church won the Nebraska primary a week ago.

A Brown victory in Maryland would give it more muscle, and a poll published by the Baltimore Sun indicates that race is a close one. In Michigan, Carter is counting on the endorsements and help he got from leaders of the United Auto Workers Union to help him beat Udall again.

Brown has said that Maryland voters hold his campaign future in their hands. But he also said that whatever the outcome, he intends to keep campaigning in Oregon, Nevada, and, finally, in his own California.

Investigated 3 Collisions

An estimated $2,050 property damage resulted from a series of three traffic collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted when vehicles driven by Jessie Brewington of 517 Vance St. and Alma Edwards Heath of 1305 Ragsdale Rd. collided about 10:35 a.m. at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road.

Police, who estimated damage at $1,000 to the vehicle operated by Brewington and $300 to the Heath car, reported no charges.

Again no charges were reported following investigation of a 12:15 p.m. collision on Dickinson Avenue 68 feet West of the Truman Street intersection involving cars driven by Curtis Ray Staton of Route 3, Greenville and Patrick Clark of 608 Ernul St.

Damage was set by investigators at $100 to the Staton car and $400 to the Clark vehicle. Vehicles operated by Raymond Edward Singleton of 1304 North Washington St. and Elsie Owens Bland of Shady Knoll Trailer Pk. collided about 4:14 p.m. on 14th Street, 83 feet West of the Charles Street intersection according to investigators.

No damage resulted to the Singleton truck, police said, while damage to the Bland car was estimated at $250.

No charges were reported.

At most banks, the person you ask for a loan has to ask someone else. But, at NCNB, the person you talk to...

is the same person that gives you the answer. Without asking someone else. That's why you get fast, direct answers at our bank.

These days, a lot of banks are talking about loans. The interest you pay, the way you pay it, the times you can pay it.

But somehow, in all of the hoopla, nobody's been talking about one of the biggest hassles in getting a loan.

It's called "The Waiting Game." And here's how it's played: After your interview, you wait for an answer.

Sometimes a few days, sometimes even a week. Or more.

Here's why you're waiting. At most banks, somebody has to ask somebody else (who may have to ask somebody else) about okaying the loan.

The person you ask for the loan doesn't have to ask someone else.

Most of the time, the bigger the bank, the longer the wait. But not at our bank.

We've cut out the runaround at NCNB. The person you talk with about the loan can give you the answer.

The reason for this is simple.

We have $25 million a month to lend and we're going to lend it.

"Direct Answers" is just one way we're working to make it as easy as possible for you to get a loan.

And it's just one reason why we're lending money to more people than any other bank in North Carolina.

How can a bank ask you to sign forms only bankers understand?

One other way we're making things easier: the loan agreement you sign is written in plain English, not "bank talk" and mumbo-jumbo.

We don't have to do this, but we think it's worth it: You know what we expect from you, and, more importantly, what you can expect from us.

So, before you go anywhere else for a loan, come see us.

And see just what it's like to get the money without the runaround.
