Closed Following Inspection

Third Street School Condemned

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Following a Thursday, May 20 inspection of Third Street School by both the City Building Inspector and the City Fire Marshal, Chief Inspector Alton Warren on Friday notified Superintendent Glenn Cox by letter dated May 21 (Friday), "It is my duty as Chief Inspector for the City of Greenville to condemn this structure and order it vacated and closed upon receipt of this letter."

Warren also noted in his letter, "This department has received several calls from parents concerning the condition of Third Street School. Some of these parents were quite concerned and more or less demanded an inspection of this school."

Inspection and closure of Third Street School follows close on the heels of a recommendation presented in an alternate plan on Monday night to the Greenville Board of Education that "no students be at Third Street School."

That recommendation, presented by attorney Mickey Herrin on behalf on residents of Eastwood Subdivision, was in connection with proposals for redistricting for elementary schools in Greenville for the 1976-77 School year. Board members have that alternate plan, along with school staff prepared proposals, under study at the time pending a final decision on the subject of redistricting.

In each of the report of findings submitted by Warren and by City Fire Marshal Jerry McLawhorn, a total of 21 numbered discrepancies were noted. The discrepancies ranged from minor items—i.e. "bell off wall in room number 4" to major ones—i.e. "floors throughout the entire structure are rotted."

(Efforts on the part of "The Daily Reflector" to secure information from City Hall on the date and findings of the last building inspection of Third Street School prior to the Thursday, May 20 inspection were not successful).

At a special call emergency meeting of the Greenville Education Board at 1 p.m. Friday, chairman Henry Dunn related the sequence of events. "I received a call at 6:30 p.m. Thursday from the building inspector, informing me about the inspection," Dunn said. "He told me 'it was the first time he'd ever inspected a building in that condition.' "

On Friday at 9:30 a.m. Dunn met with Warren and Board of Education vice-chairman Ed Carter. "The mayor (Mayor Percy Cox), Mrs. Shank (board member Mrs. Terry Shank), Captain McLawhorn and the city manager (Jim Caldwell) were also present at the meeting," Dunn added.

Dunn said that a call was put in to the Office of the Commissioner of Insurance in Raleigh, and that the results of the inspections were read to the commissioner over the phone. "The commissioner said the building would have to be closed down," Dunn related. "During the phone conversation the commissioner was asked if the city school board could be held responsible for conditions at the school. The commissioner's reply was that the City Fire Marshall and the City Building Inspector have the responsibility for maintaining safety inspections and standards."

During the emergency call meeting, Dunn also commented, "I personally asked the building inspector last October to have his department inspect every building in the school system and to give us a written report of any discrepancies. He assured me he would, but he didn't. Now all at once two weeks before the close of school, he finds time to inspect with these results."

Mrs. Shank added, "Mayor Cox said at the meeting (on Friday morning) it has been two years since the Third Street School has been inspected."

The school board approved a motion that a written request be immediately sent to the city inspectors asking that all city schools be inspected, that an itemized list of any defects be reported, and that continuing inspections be made of each school on not less than an annual basis.

Board member Dr. James Bearden noted that "we (the board) have assumed that on the basis of no report, the schools have been meeting safety standards."

After considering several alternatives for placement of Third Street students for the remaining 12 days of the current school year, the board made a decision to place students in kindergarten through the sixth grade at Wahl-Coates, with Extended Day Program students to use space at the classroom buildings of the former Memorial Baptist Church between Greene and Pitt Streets along West Fourth Streets. (Details are enumerated elsewhere in today's paper.)

A workshop session for the board has been set for 8 p.m. Monday, May 24 for the purpose of discussing the status of Third Street. School Supt. Cox said Saturday morning that an engineer and an architect had been invited to be present. (The

Crash Victims Returned Home

By GEORGE FRANK

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI) — The bodies of the Yuba City High School choir started coming home Saturday, carried two-at-a-time in undertakers' station wagons to this anguished farming community.

In funeral homes, grieving parents filled out forms and arranged to bury their children. Twenty-seven youngsters and one adult were killed Friday when a bus carrying the choir to a weekend outing crashed on a bridge offramp at Martinez, Calif., 90 miles away.

Burwell Ullrey, owner of Ullrey Memorial Chapel, dispatched two station wagons to carry bodies from the San Francisco Bay area to this community of 15,000 in the fruit orchard country of the northern Sacramento Valley.

The cars would make several trips, he said, with each vehicle carrying two bodies of victims. The choir was en route to Orinda, Calif., for a concert in an annual exchange program.

"There may be memorial, but not a mass funeral," Ullrey said. "Families will act individually."

A memorial service was scheduled at the school for Friday, a day originally set aside for Grad Day, a celebration by seniors. Eleven seniors were on the bus, but it was unclear how many of the graduating class were killed.

Final exams were to start this week with graduation in three weeks.

Ullrey's wife, Loretta, a retired elementary school teacher, pointed to pictures of the victims in the local newspaper and said the choir members were among the best students in the school.

"You could tell that even when they were in third grade," she recalled.

Military Role Questioned In Drug Smuggling Trial

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — S. Sgt. Ronald E. Ward of the U.S. Air Force was explaining to the jury what happened the day his friend Freddie Clay Thornton had dropped by his home with two chests of drawers in the back of a U-Haul trailer.

Ward and Thornton, who are old friends, are both prosecution witnesses in the heroin conspiracy trial of Leslie "Ike" Atkinson and nine other defendants. That trial enters its second week Monday.

On that day in March, 1975, Ward recalled, he and Thornton carried the furniture inside the Ward home. Thornton asked for a screwdriver. He and Ward together took the bottom panels off the chests.

"There were some packages inside, plastic bags wrapped in some oriental newspaper. One of the bags had busted open and there was white powder spilled all over. . . I knew it was some kind of drug. . . I presumed it was heroin," Ward testified.

Thornton collected the dope and they nailed the bottoms back on the furniture. He gave Ward $1,000. Ward turned in his friend's U-Haul trailer the next day. He never mentioned the incident until U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency officials questioned him about eight months later.

Ward, at the time, was a military policeman. Asked whether he "had an obligation" to report Thornton, he replied, "Whether I had an obligation or not, I didn't."

Ward is still a military policeman, he testified Friday. The Air Force has taken no action against him, and he works as a security patrolman at an air base near Fairbanks, Alaska.

His situation is only one of many described in the Atkinson trial that raises questions about the role of the military in drug smuggling and the ability of the military to control the smuggling activities of its personnel.

Atkinson, Thornton and nearly all of the other figures in the alleged conspiracy are either retired or active military enlisted men who have spent in Southeast Asia, generally in Thailand. Three of the defendants—Charles M. Gillis, William K. Wright and William K. Brown—are appearing in uniform at the trial.

According to the testimony given by Thornton and others, the Atkinson organization bought its heroin from a Thai national named Luchai Ruviway and transported it back to the United States in a variety of ways; nearly all of the conduits involved the military.

There were shipments in "AMCL" bags carried in Air Force and Army planes. Hundreds of pounds of heroin, worth millions of dollars in street sales, came through in the false bottoms of furniture shipped for military families. Military mail carried money to Thailand and drugs back to the United States, according to the indictment and the witnesses.

At the Pentagon, official spokesmen responded to queries Friday by saying that both the Air Force and the Army have active programs to combat drug smuggling.

In the case of Sgt. Ward, an Air Force spokesman said the Air Force was aware that he was a witness in the Atkinson case but had taken no initiative to find out what his involvement in the case was.

The spokesman, Maj. Charles DeMille, was asked whether the Air Force had a regulation against transporting someone else's property from overseas.

School Assignment Details

Superintendent of Greenville City Schools Glenn Cox has announced plans to be effective Monday for placement of students previously enrolled at Third Street School prior to the closing of that facility at the end of the school day on Friday.

A total of 147 students in kindergarten through grades six will be relocated in the art room, the music room, a resource room and in auditorium space at Wahl-Coates Elementary School.

"All these students are to take the same buses they have been previously taking to Third Street School," Cox said. "Bus drivers have been instructed to take students to Wahl-Coates." He added that personnel would be on hand at Wahl-Coates to assist students and parents in locating classrooms.

The 109 students in the Extended Day Program will be relocated to classrooms on the second story of the former Memorial Baptist Church Classroom Building, located between Pitt and Washington and West Fourth Streets, Cox noted. The space is being furnished by the city.

Cox noted that the School Board's decision to relocate all kindergarten through sixth grade students at one school (Wahl-Coates) rather than farm them out to several schools was based on several factors—primarily to keep the student body and staff intact; and to permit continuance of team teaching. "In effect," Cox said, "Third Street School will continue to operate as an entity at Wahl-Coates for the rest of the school year."

Food, Water Given Hijackers, Hostages

BY FERNANDO DEL MUNDO

MANILA, The Philippines (UPI) — The six Moslem hijackers of a Philippine Air Lines domestic jetliner, grounded since Friday with its tires shot out and surrounded by armored cars, threatened Saturday to execute their 89 hostages if demands for food and water were not met.

Apparently buckling under the threat, military authorities eased their tough no-deal stance somewhat, and Zamboanga City Airport sources said a cheese sandwich and a glass of water would be provided for each hijacker and hostage.

The young Moslem gunmen earlier released 14 of the 109 persons aboard the plane. The nine children and five women, including an American, were let go not long after government sharpshooters shot out the tires.

Sources at the airport where armored vehicles surrounded the disabled BAC111 jetliner had said the six hijackers demanded through the pilot and a stewardess that food and water be provided or they would begin the killing.

The stewardess who accompanied the pilot conveying the hijackers' ultimatum to the military authorities was in tears, the sources said. The two later returned to the aircraft.

Military authorities already had turned down the hijackers's original demands for $375,000 ransom and a long-range DC8 jet to carry them to a sanctuary in the Middle East. They had insisted the hijackers release 35 more women among the remaining hostages before food and water would be delivered but relented after the appeal by the stewardess.

Guam Declared Disaster Area

By United Press International

President Ford Saturday declared Guam a major disaster area in the wake of Typhoon Pamela which killed at least three persons and wrecked at least 80 per cent of the buildings on the American island territory in the Pacific.

The presidential declaration, which would permit use of federal funds in relief and recovery efforts in typhoon ravaged areas of the 210-square-mile island, came in response to an appeal from Gov. Richardo J. Bordallo.

Federal Disaster Assistance Administration in Washington said its regional officials were meeting with the joint military commanders of the Pacific in Hawaii to determine how best to provide disaster assistance to Guam, an island of approximately 90,000 population. All shipping in the Pacific area was being diverted to assist Guam, officials said.

There were three known dead, including a two-month-old baby, officials said. They said eight vessels sunk in the Guam harbor, one containing over 100,000 gallons of fuel oil which is leaking, and about 1,000 military families were homeless.

In Manila, a helicopter search party Saturday recovered five bodies from the wreckage of a civilian plane, bringing the death toll in the four-day assault on the Philippines by Typhoon Olga to at least 35. A search continued for another plane with eight passengers aboard in the aftermath of Olga, which triggered flash floods that left more than 20,000 persons in Manila and outlying areas homeless.

The Guam governor's appeal to Washington came after he declared a state of emergency in the island and said damage from the typhoon would be well over $100 million.

The authorities said the tropical storm wrecked more than 80 per cent of the buildings on the South Pacific island, at least half of them beyond repair.

Bordallo said he had not yet made an assessment of the damage but said from a preliminary inspection the damage would amount to as much as that caused by typhoon Karen, which hit the island in November, 1962.

Two Concorde Jets To Arrive In U.S. Monday

By EDWARD K. DeLONG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger cleared the way Saturday for a pair of Concorde jetliners to speed faster than rifle bullets across the Atlantic Ocean from London and Paris Monday, opening the age of supersonic travel to the United States.

Burger rejected an 11th-hour plea by county officials in Virginia and New York for the Supreme Court to stop the inaugural supersonic transport flights to Dulles International Airport outside Washington.

With that final legal barrier removed, British Airways and Air France pressed ahead with plans for their red, white and blue SSTs to touch down three minutes apart at Dulles just before noon EDT Monday in a ceremonial twin arrival.

The $60 million superjets will zip across the Atlantic in about 3½ hours, half the time for subsonic flights, hitting cruising speeds of twice the speed of sound or about 1,360 miles per hour. A .22 rifle bullet goes 884 m.p.h.

Concorde passengers will pay the equivalent of subsonic first class fares plus 20 per cent — $804 between Washington and London, and $830 on the Paris route.

Diplomats and protesters planned separate greetings for the first SSTs. The Federal Aviation Administration announced tight security measures to avoid trouble, and protesters said they would keep their demonstrations peaceful.

The U.S. Concorde landings will represent a major defeat for environmental and consumer groups, two Northern Virginia counties that border Dulles and one New York county that lies beside John F. Kennedy Airport, all of which fought to ban the SST because of its noise and potential damage to the environment.

But the Washington flights are only a partial victory for Concorde supporters. The British and French spent $3 billion to develop the SST in an unparalleled joint effort, won U.S. government permission to fly it to New York as well as Washington, and then were banned from New York by local airport authorities.

The final anti-SST effort at Washington came Friday when Fairfax and Loudoun Counties in Virginia and Nassau County, N.Y., appealing a U.S. Appeals Court decision, asked Burger to stay an order by Transportation Secretary William Coleman allowing 16 months of trial Concorde flights.

Burger responded in less than 24 hours, writing the single word "denied" on the petition.

The Political Scene

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) The major candidates in the tightening nomination races converged Saturday on Oregon, where the presidential primaries first reach the Pacific coast.

President Ford and his Republican challenger, Ronald Reagan, both stumped the state. Jimmy Carter, giving up his plans for a weekend of rest, remained in the West to defend his frontrunner's status against a surge by Sen. Frank Church of Idaho and Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Pennsylvania's delegates to the Republican National Convention Saturday overwhelmingly approved a resolution supporting the nomination of President Ford.

The 88-9 vote on the resolution did not actually bind delegates to Ford. Five delegates voted "present." One of the 103 delegates was absent.

Only five of the nine "no" votes came from delegates loyal to Ronald Reagan. The other four said they would take no position until the convention.

With 103 members, Pennsylvania will send the third-largest delegation to the GOP convention in Kansas City.

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan, seeking Kansas' remaining 19 uncommitted delegates, Saturday told a cheering GOP convention President Ford dealt unsuccessfully with a liberal Democratic Congress for too long and to the detriment of the country.

"It's long since time that the President take the case over the heads of Congress to the people," Reagan told the 2,000 state delegates and alternates.

At stake in Kansas were 19 of the state's 34 delegates to the national convention. The May 8 congressional district conventions gave Ford 11 delegates and Reagan three. One delegate was uncommitted.

MEDFORD, Ore. (UPI) — President Ford signed a $274 million funding bill for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and spoke out strongly Saturday in favor of expanding U.S. atomic power generation.

Ford's stand contrasted sharply with that expressed Saturday by Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, who told an Idaho audience he views nuclear power as a last resort.

In Coos Bay, Ore., Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Frank Church said an administration proposal to export U.S. atomic power reactors to South Africa is "nuclear folly" and could result in peaceful atoms being used to produce nuclear weapons.

Repairs May Cost $55 Million

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — It will cost trans-Alaska pipeline builders up to $55 million if the Interior Department orders repair of 1,700 pipe welds whose quality is disputed by the builders and federal and state monitors.

Vows To Fight Discharge

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Vowing to fight to stay in the Navy, Ens. Vernon Berg III says he'll ask a federal court to bar the Navy from discharging him next week because he is a homosexual.

Berg, the first Navy officer to admit publicly he is gay, said at his apartment here Friday that his lawyers will file for an injunction in U.S. District Court in Washington.

Drug Smuggling....

He rattled off the Department of Defense's joint travel regulation, Chapter Eight, subsection J; "items not included in household goods (for shipment by the government) include articles intended directly or indirectly for persons other than members of the family." Was that regulation enforced? "Our answer is a straightforward 'Yes,'" he said.

But on the witness stand, different stories were told. Thornton, an ex-Air Force maintenance inspector, said he routinely approached crew chiefs' he did not even know and had no trouble getting them to agree to transport bags back to the United States. They did not know what was in the bags, Thornton said, and did not ask. Some were paid and some were not.

"I just asked them if they'd do it and they said yes," he said.

Spec. 5 Andrew Reid testified that he became friendly with one of the defendants, William Thomas, over a pool table in Bangkok. When Thomas learned Reid was going to be transferred, he asked Reid to take back some souvenir elephants "for his sister."

Reid agreed and did not protest when Thomas changed his mind and decided to ship a couple of pieces of furniture to his sister. Reid did not know what was in the false bottoms of the furniture. Neither did the customs inspectors who passed it through.

The military spokesman said both the Army and Air Force had detailed and rigorous customs checks both overseas and in the United States. Some are done by military personnel and some by U.S. Customs agents.

Neither the Army nor the Air Force had readily available figures on the number of men arrested in recent years by military police for smuggling drugs into the United States.

They did not comment on the general effectiveness of the enforcement effort, "although if there is an effort, I assume it means there is a problem there," one said.

School Condemned....

board has a ten day period to file an appeal on the condemnation of the school).

Among factors to be considered are plans for renovation of the school during the summer months. "The money has already been committed," Dunn said, "and we have on hand some $3,000 worth of material already purchased for this purpose."

Money Back?

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Utilities customers who paid a deposit to get their service started may be able to get their money back.

The North Carolina Utilities Commission sent a letter to utilities operations across the state Friday clarifying a rule which says customers who paid a deposit can get their money back if they can establish a good credit rating.

The letter specifies that utility companies not obeying the rule must notify their customers of that provision.

Tenney Deane, the new utilities comission chairman, said the rule was vague, but the letter should clarify its provisions to the companies.

Crash Victims.....

Some residents gathered in the local Sambo's Restaurant, staring at newspaper banner headlines and pictures of the overturned bus at the bridge.

Virtually all weekend social events in Yuba City were canceled. Barbecues, a fashion show and a Little League breakfast all were called off. Many citizens turned to action to help relieve their sorrow. Babysitting and transportation to Martinez were offered to families of victims. A telephone "crisis center" was set up to help the grief-stricken.

Blood banks and a scholarship fund in memory of the dead were established.

A bank started to coordinate money being donated to families and the scholarship fund.

News Briefs

Reports On Chinese Explosion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reports are building that an explosion and fire rocked China's principal oil fields in the north at the height of riots and agitation in connection with Peking's power struggle.

Hints on the story have been popping up in Tokyo, Hong Kong and in the United States and one report said fires were still burning in the Chinese oil fields near Taching.

Rejects Peacekeeping Troops Idea

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt Saturday rejected any plan for French peacekeeping troops to be stationed in Lebanon. He called on Syria to withdraw its forces from the country to avoid any excuse for foreign intervention "French or otherwise."

Recruiting Soldiers Of Fortune

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A group called "American Aid for Rhodesia" has begun recruiting 1,000 soldiers of fortune for an expeditionary force to aid the white minority regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Mike Gonzalez, 29, a former Army infantryman, revealed the formation of the organization in an interview with United Press International and said it was recruiting members and seeking financial aid and other donations in San Antonio, El Paso, Houston, Phoenix and other areas of the Southwest.

Controversial Genetic Research

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A controversial type of genetic research, capable of creating new life forms and considered potentially dangerous by its critics, has received the go-ahead from the University of Michigan Regents.

The Regents approved a faculty committee report Friday which recommended that recombinant DNA research be conducted at the university as long "as it is submitted to appropriate controls."

Japanese Frees Journalist

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan Saturday freed a Russian journalist accused of trying to buy U.S. military secrets because of "diplomatic considerations." But it warned the Soviet government not to let such a thing happen again.

Alexandre Matchekhine, 38, a correspondent for the Soviet Novosti Press Agency, was arrested in Tokyo May 12 for trying to buy information from a crewman stationed aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier USS Midway.

PACE Endorsements

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The political arm of the North Carolina Association of Educators Saturday endorsed Democratic Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. and Republican David T. Flaherty as candidates for governor in their respective primary races.

In the lieutenant governor's race, the Political Action Committee for Education endorsed House Speaker James C. Green for the Democratic nomination and Greensboro businessman Odell Payne for the GOP nomination.

State Rep. R. Lane Brown, D-Stanly, won the PACE endorsement in the race for state treasurer.

Mrs. Ruth B. Jones, chairperson of the PACE state steering committee, said the endorsements would carry only through the August 17 first primary. PACE will then reevaluate its endorsements.

She expressed confidence teachers and other educators will support the recommendations.

"We know from past races that educators trust this committee to analyze the candidates and tell them which candidates are most favorable to education," said Mrs. Jones, a Rocky Mount teacher.

She said teachers would be asked to involve themselves in the campaigns of the endorsed candidates.

Plan Now For Future Traffic

New streets and widening of thoroughfares are underway all over Greenville. Greene Street is being improved. Construction is underway on Reade Circle and other improvements are underway.

Out on the edges of town, the Department of Transportation is completing dual laning of Memorial Drive north from the Tar River. Four-laning on U.S. 264 east of the Eastern bypass has been completed. Soon work will get underway on a new road system in the area of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital.

In recent years Tenth Street has been improved to Dickinson Avenue and Charles Street is now five laned to Tenth, these projects giving better access to the downtown area.

Alas, planning and construction of new thoroughfares is sadly lacking in one section of the city, and perhaps where it will be needed most in a few years.

There is simply no suitable route from the eastern portions of the city through the west side, where a huge amount of development is expected to take place in the next decade.

The medical complex which will grow up in the new Pitt Memorial Hospital area is going to mean far more traffic making its way from the university area and eastern sections of the city to the west side. Only Third Street, Fifth Street and 14th Street via Farmville Boulevard are available to carry traffic across town. All of these streets are two-laned and built primarily for local neighborhood traffic.

If we don't start planning soon for an adequate cross town thoroughfare we can expect huge traffic problems in the western section of the city in a few years. It is clear that the traffic is going to develop, and we had better start planning now to handle it.

Buyers Want Tobacco, Not That Sand

Officials of the Tobacco Division of Agriculture Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, urged warehousemen to try and eliminate excessive sand from tobacco.

The officials speaking at the Eastern Carolina Warehouse Association urged warehousemen to ask farmers to do everything they can to cut down on sand in tobacco.

There ie expense involved in cleaning sand from tobacco and the sand also causes damage to equipment.

It is essential that tobacco growers put tobacco on the warehouse floors in the best possible condition. Retaining the markets for Eastern Belt tobacco depends on it.

Tough Job As Warden

By JIM SCHOLOSSER
Greensboro Record
Written for The AP

RALEIGH (AP) — Sam Garrison, warden of Central Prison, has the toughest job in state government, say many observers who know the 6-foot-4, 250-pounder.

His office is in the bleakest-looking building in Raleigh. There is never enough money to do the job as he would like to do it. Everyone under him is miserable and constantly griping. They would rather be elsewhere.

It's a 24-hour-a-day, seven-days-a-week job. It's not unusual for Garrison to receive a call at home in the middle of the night from a staffer who says, "Sam, you had better come on down back here, we got a problem."

Garrison is in charge of 1,370 inmates and a staff of 590, all crammed into a facility built in 1884 to hold 800 prisoners.

Seventy-five per cent of those in his custody are serving life or "life plus" sentences. More than 100 are awaiting execution.

"The Rock," as Central often is called, is where North Carolina incarcerates its most hardened criminals. Most come from poverty-stricken backgrounds, but Garrison says all segments of society are represented behind Central's big stone wall.

"We even got a millionaire on Death Row now," Garrison said, referring to a prominent Stanly County businessman recently convicted of murder.

Garrison, who started as a guard at Central 18 years ago, was interviewed as he sat behind his big, rectangular desk in the administrative wing.

It was early afternoon,and so far that day he had attended a press conference, read 25 newly arrived letters with complaints and problems from prisoners, and had completed 15 responses to cases pending before the state Inmate Grievance Commission.

The complaints included: "My shoes don't fit," "They don't give us enough time to take a shower," "I don't like my cellmate."

In addition, Garrison had answered 15 letters from the outside world. He had examined a prison capital improvements budget for the upcoming fiscal year. And he had held numerous staff meetings to discuss and settle present and future problems.

Garrison was born 40 years ago in Louisburg, Franklin County of eastern North Carolina. He grew up in Fuquay Springs, Wake County.

Surprises In State Budget

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Surprising little tidbits lurk within the 75 closely typed pages of the new North Carolina Budget for fiscal year 1976-77.

Some of the hidden items are merely interesting. Others have potential explosive impact on certain people and programs.

As usual, some will not become obvious until much later when various agency heads get down to a careful reading and interpretation. Of course, some of the surprises are tucked away there by those same agency heads who have a particular plan in mind and need "legislative authority" to carry it out over the objections of their own bosses.

Even more than the usual added attractions are contained in this budget because the General Assembly was limited by law to restricting it self pretty much to budget items. It's surprising some of the things which were found to qualify as budget-related.

Here is a brief review of some of the more readily apparent surprises and the impact they will have:

New Chairman

There will be a new chairman of the Youth Services Commission which runs the state's juvenile training schools and related programs.

The chairman has been appointed by the governor, but of late there has been disagreement between legislators, agency staff, and the commission led by Durham Attorney William Sheffield. That break surfaced in staff efforts to close the Fountain School at Rocky Mount.

Now, in specific language, the commission will elect leadership with, "The first election. . .held as soon as possible after July 1, 1976, and the terms of the present chairman and vice-chairman shall end. . ." In another step, the Legislature closed Fountain School.

Patrol School

The State Highway Patrol which fought long and hard to win the Garner Road campus of the Governor Morehead School for the Blind was foiled by the legislature. At one point several months ago, Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr., pushed a measure through the Advisory Budget Commission to get the property for the Patrol over objections of some legislators. He would, he vowed, make the change even if no money was made available. The Patrol wants a new rookie school.

The new law provides over $100,000 and specifically assigns the major part of the complex to the State Bureau of Investigation instead, and makes it clear the SBI will get it "notwithstanding any existing conflicting action or policy of the Department of Administration or of the Council of State. . ."

Foreign Trade

A push by the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce to allow Foreign Trade Zones in North Carolina is neatly written into the budget by the simple expedient of allowing the State Department of Natural and Economic Resources to spend $25,000 of its own money (that made it a budget matter) to "coordinate a program for the establishment, operation, and maintenance of foreign trade zones as provided hereafter. . ." and followed by a lengthy new law.

The result will be specified areas into which foreign goods can be imported for storage, distribution, assembly, or manufacture without duty being paid until such items are sold in this country. The measure is expected to boost foreign commerce locating in this state.

Lost Jobs

A lot of jobs are on the line in the budget, with specific instructions to wipe out the jobs of chief deputy or chief assistant secretary in departments of Administration, Commerce, Natural and Economic Resources and in Military and Veterans Affairs. To make that binding, the law adds that the agencies must not use other available funds to keep the jobs on board, and that they mustn't maneuver around the rule by having somebody do the same job with a different title.

Similar action was taken regarding several public relations job in several state agencies.

Plush Offices

And a surprise is in store for bureaucrats who want new carpet, panelling, and decoation in their offices. The assembly has passed a law requiring approval of the Advisory Budget Commission for any alternations or remodeling costing more than $1,000.

Sunday Morning Notes

The skies looked ghastly last Tuesday night. Rapidly dropping temperatures brought high winds and heavy, low clouds.

It was tornado-like weather and warnings about the treacherous storms were put out by the Weather Bureau. Fortunately none developed in this immediate area and during the night the winds subsided and the skies cleared.

The next morning it was clear and crisp.

Someone inquired of a newcomer about the weather conditions outside that morning.

In late May?

A journalism student was to visit to discuss how editorial policy for the paper is arrived at.

"I think I'll tell him we just go up on a mountain and wait for stone tablets to be delivered," one of our editors chuckled.

"Don't blame our editorial policy on the Lord," the office cynic said.

Okay, Okay.

one exception. The pilot was unable to read the run-way number. Seems the grass was growing through it.

Oh well. We understand there are plans to resurface the runways. Undoubtedly then the numbers will be repainted.

A Hotline inquiry was about the city's stop lights with the caller commenting that they all seem to turn red just as a motorist arrives at the intersection.

A city spokesman said a master control system for all the traffic lights is being installed. There have been some holdups in deliveries but it is hoped that the master system will be operational by the end of the year.

One person read it and commented. "I thought the master control system was already operational. I assumed the lights were supposed to all turn red just as you approached them."

Now, now. It just seems that way.

Other Editors Say Owes $500 Million

(Henderson Dispatch)

While in Henderson Tuesday, Harlan E. Boyles, deputy State treasurer and secretary of the Local Government Commission, said North Carolina's debt currently is approximately $500 million. It will be increased slightly in the near future with the offering of an additional block of securities.

The half billion is not alarming for the State. Boyles, who is seeking election to succeed veteran retiring Treasurer Edwin Gill, said the fiscal status is sound, based upon conservative policies that have been in effect for many years. At the same time, half a billion dollars isn't chicken feed by any calculation, and is sufficient to justify restraint in capital obligations.

From time to time, of course, bonds become due and are paid, thus reducing the debt to that extent. The State has a financial rating in bond circles as one of the best in the nation, and will remain that way so long as prudence is recognized in fiscal affairs.

A great deal of credit for the excellent status of the State is due to Treasurer Gill's unusual capacity in handling its money affairs. He has served in that capacity for more than twenty years and in his public service has achieved status as one of North Carolina's great men. Boyles has served under Gill and says he will continue the retiring official's policies if elected.

Not only is the State's financial affairs handled to the best advantage but that is true of counties and municipalities in general. Fiscal affairs of Vance county and of the City of Henderson are conducted in conservative manner and their credit is also unusually good, along with that of the State. All are well above the average, without reference, of course, to the tragic status of the Federal government.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Civil Defense Under Fire

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — With "detente" now stricken from the administration's lexicon and Congress unwilling to challenge President Ford's record-high defense program, this country's increasing danger on the civil defense front is under belated attack from an unlikely combination of hawks and doves.

What is astonishing is that defense of the homeland against possible nuclear attack — "thinking the unthinkable," in the words of former Secretary of Defense James Shclesinger — has been a virtual no-no topic of serious politicial debate for 15 years.

But this stark warning from a dovish House Armed Services Committee panel signals belated change:

"The panel received truly alarming estimates . . . about the comparative casualties in the event of nuclear attack if the Soviets had evacuated their people during the crisis period and we were unable to do so: the Soviets would lose about 10½ million people; the United States would lose about 90 million people."

The chairman of that three-man panel is Democratic Rep. Robert L. Leggett of California, a moderate dove. Also on the panel is moderate Republican Donald Mitchell of New York and one of the most dovish freshman Democrats in the House, Rep. Robert Carr of Michigan. Their unanimous recommendation: that the miserly $71 million civil defense program he increased to $110 million at once.

Even such an increase would not come close to the long-time Soviet spending level on civil defense, which the panel estimated at $1 billion a year. Before he was fired as Defense Secretary, Schlesinger was deeply worried over the low level of civil defense preparedness in this country, for a fundamental and frightening reason: Soviet ability to "survive" — and U.S. ability not to survival — a nuclear exchange with an enemy.

Soviet survival is based on rapid evacuation of the cities, on vast subterranean fallout shelters in the evacuated areas and on war plants capable of continuing operations after a nuclear exchange by virtue of "hardened" sites or geographic dispersal in remote areas.

Lacking even skeleton programs for these "war-survival" measures (often called passive defense), the U.S. could find itself prohibitively out-psyched if deadlock between Moscow and Washington became the prelude to a possible nuclear exchange. Rather than risk such an exchange from a position of proven inferiority

Strength For Today

GOD IS EVERYWHERE

In the year 1665 a great plague swept over London, killing thousands and driving multitudes of people out of the city in a desperate attempt to escape its ravages.

Among those preparing to leave was Lord William Craven, who intended to wait out the plague at his comfortable manor in the country. As he was about to enter his carriage he heard his negro servant, newly arrived from Africa, say to a companion, "Since my Lord leaves London for fear of the plague, his God must live in the country, I suppose."

Upon hearing the remark, Craven turned and went back into his house. As he said later in life, "That young man taught me something I had well-nigh forgotten. My God is truly everywhere. He can keep me safe in town as well as in the country."

As a result of this revelation Craven remained in London and did a noble work in organizing relief and medical treatment for the hapless victims of the plague.

And the God he trusted preserved him. The plague did not come nigh his dwelling.

Those Money Market Myths

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "Money managers are a jittery lot and feel most comfortable when they are worrying," said the securities firm in a report to customers on why so many "myths" exist in the stock market today.

"They worry when they are in the consensus of investment thinking, and they worry when they are outside of it. They constantly try to extend the forecasting horizon beyond what is realistically visible and analyzable ..."

That analysis seems to suggest that money managers are similar to other normal people, even if their particular job calls for handling millions of dollars in a fat stock portfolio rather than a few dollars in a thin wallet.

But Goldman Sachs, the firm that made this unusual analysis, isn't concerned with the similarities of people so much as in destroying what it says are the prevailing myths that many big money managers currently accept.

Myth One: "Most institutional market participants are fully invested, and hence, there is not sufficient sidelined cash to fuel a market advance."

Goldman Sachs' explanation: As with many myths, there is some truth connected with this belief.

Mutual fund cash reserves have been nearly depleted, at about 6.1 per cent of assets. And cash reserves for most other major market participants probably have fallen to 5-10 per cent from 10-15 per cent six to nine months ago.

"However, the market rose about 15 per cent in 1972 when mutual fund cash as a per cent of total assets averaged about 5.5 per cent and the industry was in a net redemption position during the last 11 months of the year."

Recent history, therefore, doesn't support this widely held "truth."

Myth Two: "Tightening monetary policy and rising short term interest rates will send the market lower."

Explanation: "We doubt that there are many investors today who do not anticipate rising short-term interest rates in the period ahead. In our view, if the rise in rates is gradual and does not worry 90-day Treasuries much above 6 per cent, the stock market can advance from current levels."

Again, recent history does not support the widely held notion. From mid-1962 to yearend 1965 the market rose along with rising Treasury bill rates. It did so again in 1968 and in 1972.

Myth Three: "The historically wide spread — 5 per cent — between bond yields and stock dividend returns renders stocks unattractive relative to bonds."

Explanation: "We have always been a proponent of the theory that bond yields play an important role in stock valuation. However, historically, the bond-stock yield differential has been a poor forecaster ..."

The key question investors must ask themselves, says Goldman Sachs, is whether the inflation that drove up bond yields will eventually do the same thing for earnings and dividends.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Myths In The System

When listening to the national candidates, it helps to have some facts in hand. The following facts come courtesy of Rep. Richardson Preyer, a usually reliable source, who wrote an essay on "Your Tax Dollar and What's Happening To It" and sent it back home to his district:

Fact 1: For the last 25 years that part of our national income which goes to the federal government has remained around 20 per cent. It was about 21.6 per cent last year, will be about 22.1 per cent this year and, if the budget projections are right, should fall back to about 20.8 per cent next year.

Fact 2: The national debt is now about 35 per cent of our Gross National Product. Twenty years ago it was about 74 per cent, and during and just after World War II it was more than 100 per cent.

Preyer finds that much of the political rhetoric being heard these days tends to promote myths at opposite ends of the spectrum. "On the one hand," he says, "there are those who believe that every problem can be solved with money and are convinced that whatever is wrong with our country will simply disappear if overwhelmed by a new federal program. On the other there are those who approach government as though it were some monster lurking in a cave waiting to devour our free enterprise system."

The truths about our system, he believes, lie somewhere between those extremes. He expresses a measure of confidence that the new rules under which the Congress operates will help keep the lid on while it searches for proper spending priorities.—The High Point Enterprise

Distance To Far East

An old saying is that a traveler has a right to embellish his tales, and it is impolite of his audience to refuse him deference and applause.

But Senator Robert Morgan's reasons for his recent jaunt to the Far East, not-so-subtly expressed in his new "Report to the People," hardly deserve deference or applause.

"The Far East," he writes, "sounds like an old place to realize some important things about North Carolina agriculture, but during the recent tour I made of Korea, Taiwan, and Japan that is exactly what happened."

What did he realize at the taxpayer cost of X-number of thousands of dollars? That North Carolina ships a lot of tobacco to the Philippines, Taiwan and Japan. Oh, yes, and North Carolina farmers might also be interested in the fact that even though they don't raise any rice that South Korea buys a lot of it from the United States.

These earthshaking facts, which are readily available from any of a half dozen Washington agencies a telephone call away from his Washington office, are Senator Morgan's justification for his ill-timed trip. We say ill-timed because it came just at the time his presence was needed in Washington by Tar Heels battling to save the New River from power development.

We will give the senator credit for trying valiantly to explain zeal for pointless travel. He explains, "A distant, abstract issue? Not at all. I could be as near, and as concrete, as North Carolina's booming agricultural export market."

Senator Morgan has little to do with the export of North Carolina farm products to the Far East. But he has a lot to do with the fate of New River which, despite Senator Morgan's imaginative shrinkage of distances, is a lot closer home.—The Salisbury Evening Post

Where They Stand

That poll conducted recently among North Carolina State University's freshmen seems to indicate the trend of the country. The average individual no longer wants to be considered a liberal or a conservative; most people like to consider themselves moderate.

In 1972 when the poll was first conducted at State, 31 per cent of the class considered themselves to be liberal, 52 per cent moderate, 15 per cent conservative, one per cent ultra-liberal and one per cent ultra-conservative. This time around the vote was 26 per cent liberal, 58 per cent moderate, 14 per cent conservative, two per cent ultra-liberal, and one per cent ultra-conservative.—The Chapel Hill Newspaper

The ex-sailor has moved up rapidly in Central's chain of command since he started as a guard in 1958 at only $1,980 a year.

Promoted to warden in 1973, he now earns $20,064--a good salary but lower than that of some 9-to-5 bureaucrats in fancy downtown Raleigh office towers.

Recently, while ushering newsmen through the prison, he seemed to know every inmate's name. And one could tell by the ribbing and kidding that took place among them that the prisoners seemed to like him.

Garrison likes to point out that he can be very compassionate, believing sincerely that most inmates are capable of being rehabilitated. But he also stresses that he can be very tough.

"If an inmate declares war, we in turn declare war on him, he said. "That's a poor word choice--war--but I don't know of a better one to use."

in terms of the ability to withstand it, the U.S. might be forced to yield.

Indeed, ability to absorb a nuclear attack and continue as a nation is regarded by some experts as only marginally less important than possession of rough "equivalence" in nuclear striking force. That is why a Soviet diplomatic agent — openly and above board — attended all 11 sessions of the Leggett panel. What the U.S. does in civil defense is of paramount importance to Moscow.

The heart of the panel's report warned that "the size and the reach of the Soviet effort, coupled with its aggressive buildup of arms, raise profound questions about the appropriate defensive counter-actions to be taken by the United States."

That conclusion fits a totally separate warning by former Ambassador to the Soviet Union Foy D. Kohler, now a professor at the school for advanced international study at Miami University. A hard-line hawk, Kohler, who ran the U.S. embassy in Moscow from 1962 to 1966, states in the foreword to a just-published book ("War Survival in Soviet Strategy," by Dr. Leon Goure, published by Miami University):

"The Soviet Union has stepped up in very substantial ways its war-survival program since the advent of the detente relationship with the U.S. in May 1972, and is today steadily increasing its attention and resource allocations to the program."

TO Kohler, the essential and dangerous difference between American and Soviet response to the terrifying possibility of nuclear war is that Americans really believe no exchange will ever occur, because neither nation will risk its own destruction; but the Soviets "have never accepted the "overkill' concept or the concept of 'mutual assured destruction' . . . The Soviet emphasis has rather been on survivability and indeed on the possibility of victory in a nuclear war."

With knowledgeable hawks like Shclesinger and Kohler and dovish Democrats like Carr and Leggett in basic agreement, perhaps the time has come when this country will stop playing the most dangerous kind of Russian roulette with a totally unpredictable future.

Governor Brown Set Some Heads To Wagging

By JAMES KILPATRICK

California's Governor Jerry Brown came to our town last week, spent an hour at the Washington Star, and left a group of us wagging our heads. Some were wagging yes, and some were wagging no, and some were wagging catty-wampus. The catty-wampus wag means, ain't he sump'n?

He is sure 'nough something. The governor had come east to promote his fortunes in Maryland's presidential primary. His purpose was not to win delegates, for he had no delegate candidates running. His chief purpose was to give the Jimmy Carter campaign a bad case of acid indigestion. His secondary purpose was to get us wagging our heads.

I can't say how he succeeded on the first score, but he did fine on the second. Brown is the classiest welterweight contender to come along in years. He has style. He may have substance also—I dunno—but in the jaded world of the Washington press corps he is a bright-plumed bird of passage.

Brown is 38. He is a good-looking fellow: dark hair, dark eyes, good firm brows, a mobile mouth. He stands maybe five-nine. My guess is that he puts on the first tie he happens to lay his hands on in the morning, and he seldom has time to get by the barbershop. He seems to be running sitting still.

Here in Washington, most of our time is spent with politicians who think they have the answers. They introduce bills, they sponsor resolutions, they promote various programs, they exude a certain confidence that to cure a given ailment, their particular medicine will work.

Brown, by contrast, doubts that much of anything will work. Our conversation began with a discussion of the Humphrey-Hawkins bill to provide for comprehensive economic planning. Brown seemed to be for it, more or less, but much more less than more.

"I am very skeptical of economic planning," he said. "I'm skeptical of all planning. I don't have a lot of faith in fine-tuning the economy." If he were president, he would try to relieve unemployment in "small incremental ways," but he wouldn't promise miracles: "I'm skeptical of my own efforts."

During the course of the hour's discussion, the governor spread his doubts around:

"I am not sure the human species will survive."

"I am not sure the schools work."

"I have a very healthy skepticism about 'experts.'"

"All this talk about 'progress.' I am skeptical about the benefits of technological 'progress.' I doubt that we have much ability to change human nature."

Brown views government as "a big battleship: You can turn it very slowly." He is doubtful about the mechanisms of government, but he would use the tools of federal intervention to get people back to work. He sees his attitude on this score as one of the characteristics that distinguish his positions from Republican positions. He favors a "greater assertion of federal authority," but "I am not sure that anything will work."

Brown is the first intellectual to come down the pike since Eugene McCarthy ten years ago. Mary McGrory asked him about amnesty for draft evaders. Brown came down, more or less, against it. He thought the Vietnam war was wrong, but the war never had been ruled unlawful; in his view, law cannot be violated with impunity; the draft evaders had broken the law. It was, he said, the dilemma of Antigone: the conflict of moral law and civil law.

The conversation turned to foreign affairs. Brown conceded his inexperience, but no matter: in his observation, people were pretty much the same the world over. Israelis, Arabs, Teamsters, Farm Workers. He was entirely capable of absorbing data and running it through his own calculators. As for the recent Rhodesian statement, he approved it, but he was skeptical of merely precatory admonitions.

What was that word again? In my dingo shorthand, the symbols for "r" and "l" look pretty much the same. I thought he had said "placatory," a nice $2.95 word, but I ran after him down the sidewalk to check. He had said "precatory," a three-dollar word if there ever was one. That was when I started wagging catty-wampus. I'm skeptical of Brown; but I'm impressed.

SCHOOL OF HARD KNOCKS, SUMMER COURSE!

Tax Man Was Pitted Against Industry Giant

WALLACE, N.C.—Heading a tax office won't help a person win any popularity contests. Sandy Shaw knows that. He knew it when he was mayor of Wagram, N.C. (population 718) and depended on local taxes to support the police and fire departments. And he knew it when he later became tax assessor himself in Duplin County, several counties away in eastern North Carolina.

But Shaw approached both the jobs of mayor and tax assessor with similar attitudes. "Being the mayor taught me one thing," he explains, his tall lean frame bending over, face gaunt and intense. "It's not worth it to climb to the top of anything if you can't be true to yourself and to everyone you touch with your actions."

Shortly after beginning his new job in 1972, he found it hard to follow that path. "There was a fire in a tobacco warehouse that J.P. Stevens, the big textile company, had leased part of. Stevens claimed in a lawsuit they had $2.5 million inventory in that one warehouse. But they didn't list that much with the county. There was a discrepancy between the two amounts—what was on our books and what Stevens reported lost.

"We began an inventory check. Covered the entire town of Wallace where the warehouse burned. It looked like an understatement. I contacted the Stevens local office to set up a meeting to discuss the matter.

"Several weeks later, a group met to discuss the situation. Stevens officials admitted that a secret deal had been made with the town of Wallace and Duplin County when they built their plants. They would report inventory on a 'loom equivalency formula'—a fancy name which meant they paid less taxes.

"Roger Ellis of the State Department of Revenue made an announcement of his own that day. He said the Raleigh tax specialists were investigating the company for possible irregularities in inventory reported throughout the state."

Several months later the state reported that Stevens owed $500,000 in back taxes in 22 N.C. counties. By law, however, the state could only recommend to the county tax assessors that they collect the money.

"It was my job," continues Shaw, "to get the money from them. That's what the county paid me to do. But some of the county commissioners quit working with me. They knew that Stevens was the largest employer in the county and the major taxpayer. And they were good friends with the Stevens officials.

"I filed a tax bill with the commission immediately (on December 18) so we wouldn't lose a year of taxes—the statute of limitations only allowed payments to go back six years. Shortly after Christmas and before the end of the year, U.S. Congressman David Henderson requested postponement and I agreed to it. He signed his letter, 'Attorney for J.P. Stevens.'

"Several months later, Stevens and I went face-to-face again. I presented Stevens with a back bill of $250,000. Stevens offered to pay one-half. They quoted fancy formulas and court decisions, but they weren't going to pay it all.

"Several weeks later, I was out of town and the commissioners had a special meeting. Some of them agreed to a compromise payment and then went into an executive session on 'matters of personnel.' I knew they were talking about me. Stevens wouldn't pay the county what they owed. And I quit."

Sandy Shaw was left thin and weak from the 18 month struggle. He had taken on the most powerful corporation in the area. He was tired.

He was successful enough to get J.P. Stevens to pay Duplin County $190,000. But in the end, J.P. Stevens beat the taxman at his own game. The company saved itself some $60,000 in taxes in Duplin County alone. And they pressured Sandy Shaw so much that he quit.

Sandy Shaw didn't become tax assessor to make friends. He just felt he had a job to do. Even if it meant upsetting big businesses, he had a job to do. And he did it.

"It has been our contention for some time that we are likely to see an increase in corporate profits' share of national income over the next five years, resulting in profits rising more rapidly than nominal Gross National Product."

If bond rates remain stable, the analysis continues, there is room for profits and stock prices to grow.

Myth Four: "The rate of inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, will escalate significantly in 1977, bringing with it declining stock prices."

Explanation: Again, says Goldman Sachs, there is an element of truth in the myth. Inflation is indeed widely expected to accelerate in 1977. But that, it adds, doesn't mean stock prices will automatically drop.

"The key question again is whether the inflation that pushes bond yields up will also find its way into profit growth," the securities firm argues. And its own answer to the question is that, yes, it will.

Summation: "We are in a primary bull market, though the extreme degree of undervaluation has been removed and the easy money has been made."

A Minor Detail In The Lifespan Of Pine Tree

My husband, Phillip, never was one for doing yardwork. He mowed the lawn on an average of twice a year when we were renting a house. While all our neighbors were having backyard parties, we were having big game parties — the person who braved the underbrush and bagged the biggest mosquito bite got a free Band-Aid. When we decided to move into a home of our own, Phillip insisted on a condominium, and the first thing he did when we bought one was to sell the lawnmower.

So it surprised me no end when Phillip came in and announced one day that he was going to grow bonsai trees.

"Are you crazy?" I asked. "Do you know how much care those trees require? The most care you've ever given to a plant was when you stumbled over my snake plant and tried to glue the leaves back together.

"But this is different," he explained. "Growing bonsai is creative, and I'm a creative person. I'll enjoy doing all that detailed shaping and trimming."

"That's what worries me. You never have bothered with details before. Remember when you sawed the boards for our bedslats and you didn't bother to measure? A minor detail, you said. Now all the slats are too short for the bed."

"Only by one-fourth inch," he answered defensively. "I'm shocked at your lack of confidence in me. But I'll show you."

And for awhile he almost did. The next Saturday he bought himself a trowel and went out into the woods. For two hours I sat on the patio and listened to him thrashing through the woods. Finally, he emerged triumphantly, hugging a malnourished pine seedling close to his bosom.

Then he filched some of my potting soil, and tenderly planted his spindly-looking prize. "Isn't it something else?!" he exclaimed, standing back to admire it.

"It sure is," I said drily. "Now what are you going to do with it?"

"I'm going to wait for it to grow."

And he did. He waited two whole weeks for it to grow. The only problem was that he didn't bother to check on it during that time.

"Phillip," I said, "Your tree is dying. It needs water."

"Don't you worry about it. I know what my tree needs."

A week later, I said, "Phillip, your tree is turning an icky brown; aren't you going to water it?"

"Mind your own business."

Two days later, I said, "Have I ever told you about my Uncle Turner and the chickens? Well, Uncle Turner's job when he was little was to feed the chickens — but he never did. Every day my grandfather would go down to the barn and find those hungry little chickens, and he would go back to the house and spank Uncle Turner. But Uncle Turner still didn't feed the chickens, so Granddaddy put Uncle Turner on his lap one night and told him all about the poor, starving chickens and how they depended on him, and if he didn't feed them they would die, and it would be all his fault. And Uncle Turner just cried and cried to think that he'd been the cause of so much misery."

"Did he feed them after that?"

"No."

"Why are you telling me this?" he asked.

"Because you remind me a lot of my Uncle Turner."

The next day the pine seedling was gone. "It didn't grow fast enough," Phillip explained.

"That wouldn't have anything to do with the fact that it was dead, would it?" I asked.

"A minor detail."

Victories, Few Headlines, In War On Poverty

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Remember the war on poverty?

A lot of people thought it got misplaced on the battlefields of Vietnam. Some believe it was laid waste in the urban riots of 1968. Others think it was dismantled by President Nixon and filed away with other rhetoric from Lyndon Johnson's "Great Society."

Samuel Martinez, a 43-yearold Coloradan who is the new director of the government's antipoverty program, says it might not be a "war" any more, but that the effort to eliminate poverty from American society is still flourishing — even if less ambitious and controversial than in its heyday in the 1960s.

Martinez is director of the Community Services Administration, the agency created to replace the Johnson era's Office of Economic Opportunity.

President Ford appointed Martinez to take over the demoralized and embattled antipoverty agency in March. He formerly was regional director for both OEO and the Colorado state labor department.

Martinez, of Lakewood, Colo., already has set out to reorganize the agency and generate new enthusiasm among CSA employes. At the same time, he is more modest about the agency's goals than his early predecessors.

"The war on poverty was mislabeled," he said in an interview. "Conceptually, it promised more than it could deliver.

"We find that a lot of people, from John Q. Public to Congress to private enterprise, still believe the war on poverty is the Community Services Administation. They couldn't be further from the truth."

The OEO began as an umbrella agency for all government antipoverty activities. When he took office in 1969, Nixon began transferring many of its functions — manpower training and legal services — to older, politically safe federal departments. OEO was left as a skeletal administrative office in the White House.

The new CSA, however, retains community action, one of the most controversial antipoverty efforts of a decade ago. Community action agencies once angered local governments by using federal funds to support homegrown activists using street demonstrations and sit-ins to demand improved public services for the poor.

"When they were first set up," Martinez said, "they attracted some very volatile people who saw them as a tremendous opportunity to turn the problem around overnight. They tended to to alienate city hall, mayors and the government.

"The system needed to be refined, to find a way to link community action with municipal government. As there began to develop a little sophistication, there was a realization that they had to make a contribution, too."

Martinez said 875 local community action agencies remain, and they receive the bulk of his office's $500 million annual budget.

"The mayors now see the action agencies as a good thing," he said. "They provide a forum where frustrations can be vented, ideas exchanged and resources identified."

Locally, community action agencies operate a wide range of programs, including comprehensive neighborhood service centers, Head Start programs for needy preschool children, job training, food assistance and health care.

On the federal level, he said, the CSA's most ambitious project has involved "winterizing" the homes of poor people.

Growing out of the Arab embargo fuel shortages of 1973, the program has resulted in fuel-saving insulation of 40,000 homes out of an estimated eight million needing it, a pilot fuel subsidy for the poor, and creation of emergency fuel depots.

"The effort against poverty is still here," he said. "Poor people are better off today than they were 10 years ago.

"Percentagewise, there are considerably fewer poor people now than then. I remember the figure of 33 million when the antipoverty program was launched. The figure now is somewhere around 22.5 million."

Martinez said it is difficult to measure the impact of government action, but he believes it has been tremendous.

"Take Head Start, for example. How do you objectively measure that experience for a poor child?" he asked. "Having been an educator, I know you can't expose someone to a new experience without them having learned something."

Martinez is unconcerned about his agency's low-key image these days.

"When programs are first initiated, they generate excitement, enthusiasm and controversy," he said. "Once in place they don't generate that same excitement, and maybe they're not all called the same thing.

"But they're still out there doing their job."

Jenkins Receives Toastmasters' DSA

WASHINGTON, N.C.—Accepting the Distinguished Service Award of the Toastmasters of North Carolina in ceremonies here Saturday, Dr. Leo W. Jenkins said the challenge of providing effective leadership must be met by a "burning desire" on the part of individuals to listen and respond to the needs of the people.

Leadership is provided by people "who can communicate and who believe in what they are doing," Jenkins said.

The president and chancellor of East Carolina University during its era of unprecedented development over the past 16 years, Dr. Jenkins was voted the coveted award in recognition of communication and leadership by an outstanding North Carolinian.

Dr. Jenkins received the award and a plaque at a luncheon highlighting the annual state convention of Toastmasters of North Carolina.

"It is a tremendous honor to receive this award," Dr. Jenkins said. "It is symbolic of work done by many people for me and for East Carolina University."

Among the important qualities in America, he said, is "the burning desire to succeed as individuals. Our state and nation have been built and become great on the success of individuals.

"Through good communications and leadership as a nation we have given our citizens the greatest country in history." Leaders, he said, do not take a "balcony view of life." Rather, he said, they "must know the human mind, possess motivation, have sympathy and love." They "recognize the inevitability of change," he said. "No one can be an effective leader without living with change."

Jenkins cited accomplishments and achievements in the growth and development of East Carolina University as examples of response to needs of the people.

"You have asked me to share my philosophy regarding community leadership," he said. "The best weapon is honesty. Research thoroughly before embarking on an undertaking. Believe in what you try to sell. Use expertise, but don't fake it.

"You must maintain a two-way street of communication," he said. "Have a burning desire to listen to people and respond by extending services to meet the needs of the people.

"Don't be discouraged by pessimists. Leaders pursue life goals and objectives optimistically.

North Carolina and the nation will realize their full potential when more people have the desire and accept the responsibility to engage in leadership roles, Jenkins said.

The Toastmasters organization in North Carolina includes some 50 clubs with more than 800 members across the state.

SGA Votes Transit Expansion

The ECU Student Government Association Legislature voted Monday to appropriate $50,000 for the expansion of the present campus transit system.

The bill introduced by SGA president Tim Sullivan is one of the largest single appropriations ever passed by the ECU legislature.

"The appropriation of $50,000 will be to buy two additional buses. Our campus transit system presently has two buses which each make 14 stops per hour and carry 1,000 riders daily. The additional buses would be for an additional bus route and a back-up bus," said Sullivan.

"The back-up bus would be used if one of the regular route buses needs repairs and to carry groups on field trips."

"The Greenville Transit System will not be completed until about a year and a half from now and we feel that there is a present need for expansion in our campus transit system. The new buses will be in operation on campus by the fall quarter. Our system will work with the city transit system when it is completed," he added.

Dedication Of New Mental Health Center Today

Editor's Note: Barwick is Information and Education Specialist, N.C. Department of Human Resources, Division of Mental Health Services.

In the development of providing mental health services on the local or community level in North Carolina, Pitt County has been a pioneer.

Since the Pitt County Mental Health Center first opened 20 years ago on February 1, 1956, it has expanded its services from a clinic that provided limited outpatient, consultation and education services to a more comprehensive Mental Health Center providing basic portions of the five essential services in four basic categories.

Since 1956, the number of people using the mental health services has mounted. Currently, the Center has an active monthly caseload of 945 clients. When the first building was constructed in 1958, it was the first facility in North Carolina that was built solely for the purpose of providing local or community mental health services.

Both services and staff have grown.

New Facility Needed

Both services and staff have grown (48 full-time staff members) to the point that it was essential to secure larger facilities. With the aid of a $300,000 construction grant from the N.C. Division of Mental Health Services and a $196,000 appropriation from the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, a new and modern 12,000 square-foot facility was occupied March 15, 1976, and is being dedicated to the people of Pitt County today at 2 p.m. The new facility is located on Old Stantonsburg Road adjacent to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The Center provides outpatient, inpatient, partial hospitalization, emergency, and consultation and education services in four basic areas. These are alcohol and drug abuse, children and youth, mental retardation, and adult services.

Area Board

The Pitt County Mental Health Area Board, appointed by the Board of County Commissioners and composed of 15 local citizens, is the local Mental Health Authority acting on behalf of the County Commissioners.

The Area Board, established by law through action of the 1973 N.C. General Assembly, is responsible for the development of quality mental health services and is to be responsive to the N.C. Division of Mental Health Services.

As the governing body for local mental health services, the Area Board appoints the Area Director who has the responsibility of assuring that proper and adequate treatment and programs are available and delivered to the people.

The Pitt County Mental Health Area Board is composed of: William Sneed, Chairman; Charles Ross, Vice Chairman; Van Fleming, Jr., Treasurer; Reginald Gray; Robert Martin, Dr. Malene Irons, Jack W. Richardson; Ms. Dorothy Bolton; Dr. Al Woodworth; Rev. James Bailey; Mrs. H.R. Reaves, Raymond Reddick; Bill McDonald; John M. Mewborn; and Allen Hahn.

Dr. Stephen K. Creech, Area Director, is the Executive Secretary to the Area Board as an ex-officio member.

Dr. Creech, who was appointed Pitt County Mental Health Center Director on September 23, 1974, has the responsibility of assuring that complete and adequate mental health programs and services are provided for the total population of Pitt County on behalf of the Area Board.

Director Creech

Dr. Creech, a native of Kenly, received his B.A. Degree from Wake Forest University in 1961 and his Master of Divinity Degree from Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1964. In 1969, he was awarded a Master of Science Degree in Recreation Administration from UNC-Chapel Hill, and received his Doctorate in Education from UNC-Chapel Hill in 1974.

His field work experience has been at the N.C. Baptist Hospital, Winston-Salem; Central Prison, Raleigh; John Umstead Hospital, Butner; and Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, Butner. Watson in conducting various human relations laboratory training groups.

Dr. Creech has had full-time work experience with the Durham Neighborhood Youth Corps; Director of Volunteer Services and Community Relations and Researcher in Staff Development at John Unstead Hospital, Butner; and as Program Coordinator of the Mental Health Associate Program at Durham Technical Institute.

He is a member of several professional organizations and has published two papers concerning mental health in North Carolina. He is married and has two daughters, and is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Early Planner

Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, former Chairman of the Psychology Department at East Carolina University and continuing as a Professor of Psychology today, has been involved in the planning and development of the Pitt County Mental Health Center from its inception in 1956.

He continues to be involved as a consultant in the total development of the Center and its services and was principally responsible for the writing of the Center's application for the construction grant. Dr. Prewett has been actively involved in writing an application for a federal operations grant in cooperation with Area Director Creech and the Area Board.

At Pitt County Mental Health Center, Dr. Henrietta Williams is Director of Psychological Services and Coordinator of inservice training and staff development.

Ms. Annie K. May and Richard Petree, Jr. are Administrative Assistants to Dr. Creech with specific areas of operational responsibility.

Medical Services

At the present time, Dr. A. Ray Evans, a private psychiatrist practicing in Greenville, is Pitt Mental Health Center's Medical Director on a part-time basis. There are three other part-time psychiatrists—Dr. Alfred Yongue, Dr. Karla Nelson, and Dr. Robert R. Ratcliffe—and one medical doctor, Dr. Sumiko Tsukamura on the staff to assure adequate medical and psychiatric coverage for clients.

Dr. Creech has also announced that Dr. Victor L. Slater, a psychiatrist, will assume the position of full-time Medical Director at Pitt Mental Health Center on August 1, 1976.

Dr. Slater, a native of Geneva, Ohio, is coming to Pitt County Mental Health Center from the Panama Canal Zone where he was Chief of Division of Mental Health and Chief of Psychiatric Services, Gorgas Hospital.

He received his B.S. Degree from Michigan State University and his medical degree from Wayne State University Medical School. He was a resident in psychiatry at Duke University Medical School and the University of Miami Medical School.

Each program has its own Coordinator and specialists to assure that a wide range of specialized treatment and programs are tied together to provide appropriate services for the individual client and to meet the mental health needs of the community as a whole.

Alcohol And Drug Abuse

The Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program has many aspects and is designed to meet the needs of persons with alcohol or drug problems.

The Center provides outpatient treatment services for persons involved with alcohol and drug abuse. Treatment is available through counseling and various kinds of individual and group therapy.

Too, short-term inpatient treatment is provided for alcoholic clients through referral to the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Unit; the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Unit at Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro; and Pitt Memorial Hospital. Drug abusers are treated locally and at Cherry Hospital.

Since alcohol and drug abuse affect more persons than the abuser, the Center provides both treatment for family members and consultation with employers of alcohol and drug abusers.

The Pitt County Mental Health Center staff maintains close cooperation with other human service agencies in the community, such as Social Services, Vocational Rehabilitation, Employment Security Commission, Public Health, the courts, law enforcement, schools and churches. This is maintained in order that these agencies can assist the abuser and his--her family when such need is indicated.

The Center's treatment team, working with Alcoholics Anonymous, other community agencies, regional inpatient facilities, the local hospital, schools, courts and industries provide early identification of persons who have problems with alcohol and other drugs. Aftercare for those returning from inpatient facilities is important and is essential in the total care for individuals, families and communities that are involved with alcohol and drug abuse problems in Pitt County.

Adults And Senior Citizens

Outpatient services are available to persons 18 years old and older who request help with their problems. Problem areas could include loneliness, depression, marriage difficulties, vocational problems, family disruption, alcohol and drugs, suicidal tendencies, and so on.

Services involve initial interviews, diagnosis, evaluation, psychological testing and psychiatric evaluation when needed. Treatment includes individual, family and group therapy and-or counseling and use of medication as indicated. Help is also available for elderly persons who may become depressed, lonely, withdrawn or experience gross changes in normal behavior patterns.

Murray Chesson is coordinator of Adult Service.

Children And Adolescents

Persons under 18 years of age and their families receive services through the Child Mental Health Division of the Pitt Mental Health Center. Outpatient Services include psychiatric and psychological evaluation, parental counseling, activity therapy, individual, family and group therapy and use of medication when appropriate.

Eastern Area Residential Treatment Home (EARTH) for severely emotionally disturbed and autistic children is maintained in Greenville., New Directions, a group home for youths who have been adjudicated delinquent or pre-delinquent juveniles, serves residents of Pitt County. Admission to Camp Chowanoc in Gates County for emotionally disturbed children is available when appropriate.

Staff consultation with school personnel and other agencies can be a part of the treatment process. The Pitt Mental Health Center staff is available for crisis intervention through telephone and walk-in contact.

Ms. Audrey Viner is coordinator of Children's Services. Services can be received at the Pitt Mental Health Center as well as through REAL Crisis Center in Greenville. Individual counseling is available at the Center concerning pregnancies, abortion, suicidal tendencies, drug and alcohol problems, personality conflicts and living problems.

Mental Retardation

Mental Retardation is a significantly below average general intellectual functioning which affects a person's ability to deal effectively with his environment and which originates during the developmental years. It is not mental illness or emotional disturbance. It is not a sickness or disease. It is a condition of slow learning and development. Help for the mentally retarded child or adult is available at the Pitt County Mental Health Center. Partial hospitalization is provided through the Adult Developmental Activities Program (ADAP) for mentally retarded adults.

Services are provided for mentally retarded children in four child development centers throughout Pitt County. The Center has a cooperating agreement with the East Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation facility for a work activity program for adults with various types of disabilities.

When residential treatment is necessary, clients can be admitted to Caswell Center in Kinston. Screening of clients for admission to Caswell Center is accomplished through extensive study by an Interagency Council made up of members of various agencies in Pitt County.

Relief or rest for the family of a mentally retarded child or adult that requires constant attention is available through the Respite Care Home. The person needing constant care may be placed in the Respite Care facility for a few hours or up to 30 days to provide care while the family (usually parents) is involved in family crisis situations or attending to necessary functions outside the home.

Aftercare

The Aftercare Program involves follow-up careof Pitt County clients—patients who have been admitted to an inpatient or residential facility such as the local hospital, Cherry Hospital, Caswell Center or the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. Plans are made for their involvement in available programs while at the facility and their follow-up in the community. This planning is made possible through weekly staff conferences.

The Mental Health Center provides screening and evaluation of individuals prior to their admission to the facility. The staff provides follow-up in evaluation, progress, rehabilitation and disposition at the facility and prepares the individual and family for his—her return to the community. After the person returns home, follow-up care is provided under the supervision of Center personnel and family members. Before and after the client's return home, a staff member visits family members and instructs them in the care and supervision of the person.

Ms. Lenore Morton is coordinator of Aftercare Services.

Emergency Services

Emergency Services are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. During office hours (8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.) Monday through Friday, call 752-7151 in Greenville or 753-5350 in Farmville from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. At all other times, anyone needing help can dial 752-7151 in Greenville. Emergency hospitalization is available at Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville or at Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro.

Admissions

All residents of Pitt County are eligible to receive services provided by the Pitt County Mental Health Center. Any individual can personally request services or be referred through various sources—family, physician, school counselors, ministers, teachers, the courts and others. All information is regarded as confidential and is released only with the written permission of the client.

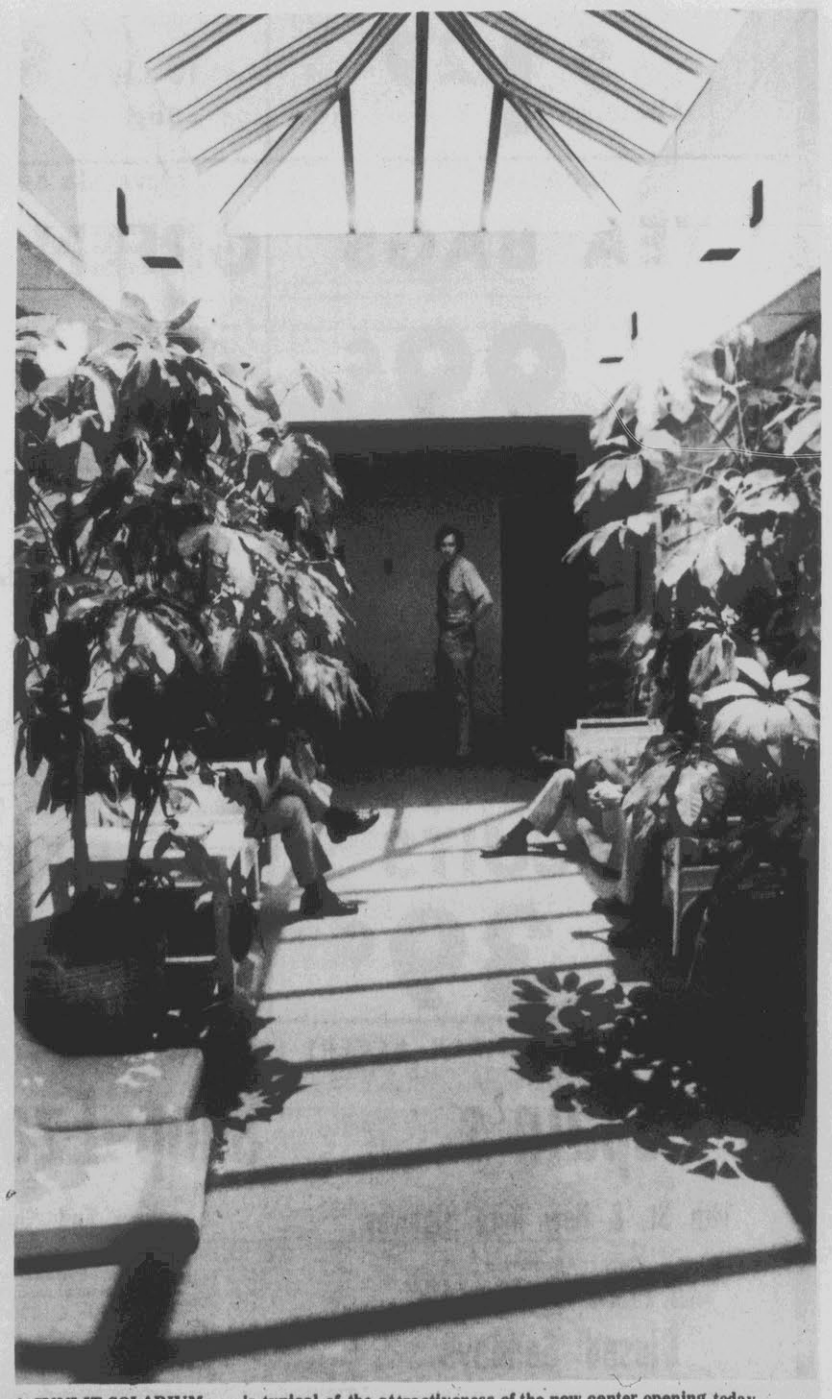
Cost

The cost of services is paid from several sources. The financial resources of an individual or family may include personal income, group health care insurance or assistance programs such as Medicare, Medicaid and personal health care coverage. Finally, local, state and federal funds supplement these individual or family resources. No person is denied services because of inability to pay.

Community Services

Consultation and Education are an essential and necessary function of the Pitt County Mental Health Center in delivering mental health services to the people of the Pitt County community. A close working relationship is maintained with all human service agencies, churches, schools, law enforcement, correction officials and the courts for case consultation and referrals when needed.

Educational workshops and training sessions for school personnel, nurses, ministers, volunteers and others are a vital activity and function of the staff. Training and educational opportunities are available for various community groups. The entire staff of the Pitt County Mental Health Center and its Farmville Clinic is available for speaking engagements before civic clubs, church congregations and concerned citizens interested in the mental health of the people of the Pitt County community.



A SUNLIT SOLARIUM . . . is typical of the attractiveness of the new center opening today.

The public is invited to attend the dedication ceremony today of the new Pitt County Mental Health Center.

The dedication takes place at two o'clock this afternoon. The new center is located on the Old Stantonsburg Road, adjacent to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

In operation since March 15, 1976, the new modern facility provides varied services to the public in a 12,000 square foot building constructed at a cost of half a million dollars.

Summer Jobs Available, Says Placement Officer

East Carolina University students will not begin their summer vacations until the end of May, when most other colleges and universities will have been into vacation for weeks, but they have equally good chances of finding summer jobs, says the ECU placement officer.

Furney James, director of the ECU Office of Career Planning and Placement, reminds ECU students that while they are late entering the summer job market, they will also be available for work later in the summer.

"This is particularly essential for many resort areas, which must have their temporary summer workers on duty for Labor Day weekend," he said. "ECU does not begin full classes until after Labor Day, but most other campuses will resume classes in August.

"For students looking for work at hotels and restrauants near lakes, beaches, mountain resorts or parks, this is a definite advantage."

James said resort areas often provide the most enjoyable, and profitable, summer work for students. Another good possibility is counseling at summer recreational campus.

"One ECU student has worked at the same camp in the Pocno mountains for three summers. Others regularly work at summer camps in the Adirondacks. A freshmen who secures a job as a camp counselor is likely to be rehired each summer vacation afterward."

Students interested in sales and promotional work can usually find jobs with one of many large companies who hire students on a salary-plus-commission basis during the summer months. Sometimes a scholarship is offered to students who do particularly well.

"It is probably too late to find camp counseling or sales jobs for this summer," said James, "but since many resort workers tend to be transient, there will still be openings at the popular vacation spots.

"This summer appears to be a good one for tourism; we heard from one Myrtle Beach campground that its reservations are already up more than 20 percent over last year.

"Finding summer work involves many of the same tactics as finding permanent careers upon graduation; a student must be willing to go where the jobs are, demonstrate a willingness to work and to learn, and not become discouraged easily."

Also, James said, many students sill be able to find summer jobs harvesting tobacco or working on tobacco warehouse floors beginning in July.

Andretti Turns Fastest Time Of Year

POLE SITTER WITH THE FASTEST—Pole position winner Johnny Rutherford (right) grabs Mario Andretti in Gasoline Alley of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Saturday after Andretti qualified for the Memorial Day race with an average speed of 189.404 mph. Rutherford, who qualified last week at 188.957, will still start 23 positions ahead of Andretti. (AP Wirephoto)

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mario Andretti, who vowed he wouldn't "hang it all out" in qualifying, couldn't resist the temptation of almost ideal conditions Saturday to better Johnny Rutherford's pole position speed in time trials for the May 30 Indianapolis 500.

Andretti, a half-mile an hour faster than Rutherford over the 10-mile run, ripped off an average of 189.404 m.p.h. with a gaudy lap at 190.638. Unofficially it was the ninth time in history another driver besides the pole sitter grabbed the top speed for the Memorial Day weekend classic.

"Yes, it was sort of a matter of pride," Andretti said. "If you can, I suppose you always want to be No. 1. We proved our point."

Earlier this week, Andretti said he was confident he would have had a shot at the pole if he had qualified last week. He passed up the first weekend of qualifications for the Belgian Grand Prix.

When he finally qualified Saturday, he dropped 1974 winner Rutherford to second-fastest at 188.957.

"I don't want to rub it in, though," said the 1969 champ from Nazareth, Pa.

Andretti, driving his first race for the Roger Penske organization in a McLaren, said this has been one of the few times in his career all he's had to worry about is driving the car.

"That really is a good feeling. It makes me much more relaxed," he said. "This is the best championship car I've ever driven, no question.

"I told (chief mechanic) Jim McGee once that I'd give anything to drive a McLaren. I wasn't disappointed.

"I've found it to be such a 'sincere ' car, so developed. You make a change and it tells you 'yes' or 'no.' It's unbelievably responsive."

Andretti's car indeed handled nearly flawlessly, but even he admitted Rutherford probably would have gone faster had the same conditions prevailed a week earlier.

A relatively cool, clean track, and temperatures in the mid-70s combined to make the late morning conditions condusive to exceptional speeds Saturday—about two miles per hour faster than most trackside observers expected.

Saturday's qualifying was filled with other success stories.

Al Loquasto, who passed his rookie test for the first time seven years ago and has crashed six cars trying to make the field, finally appears in. Loquasto, of Easton, Pa., coaxed 182.002 m.p.h. out of his McLaren, which looks like an iron-clad pass into the starting lineup.

"Good things don't come easy," Loquasto said in an emotional interview. "I just about lost it there on the last lap, but otherwise it felt fine, just fine."

Loquasto, 35, is shooting for an unprecedented sweep of "Rookie of the Year" honors in the three 500-mile Indy car races. He previously was named top rookie in both the California 500 and Schaefer 500.

Jerry Grant, the 10-year veteran who still believes he won the 1972 race in Dan Gurney's Eagle, which was penalized to 12th place for illegally taking on fuel, cranked 183.617 m.p.h. out of his unique stock block American Motors-powered Eagle.

That's the fastest the car has ever run with that engine, but a subdued Grant said it was "very disappointing. The car has a lot more potential. I didn't give it the ride that I should have."

George Snider also said he should have gone faster on his run, identical to Harkey's at 181.141. "I guess I just didn't push it hard enough. A.J. Foyt told me the weight of the right foot controlled the speed."

One car still unable to get up to qualifying speed was the Vollstedt-Offenhauser piloted by Janet Guthrie, the first woman entry in the 500.

Miss Guthrie's 173.611 m.p.h. in practice Saturday afternoon, however, set an unofficial closed track record for women. The official record is 172.366, set several weeks ago by Paula Murphy in a Dodge stock car at Talladega, Ala.

She is second in line behind Tom Bigelow when qualifying resumes Sunday.

Speeds picked up dramatically in the late afternoon and four late qualifiers all found their way into the field. Veteran Jim McElreath at 179.122 m.p.h., and Bigelow's front line car, which qualified at 179.991, were bumped.

"On the bubble," or the next to be bumped, are Jan Opperman at 180.045 m.p.h., Bobby Olivero at 180.288 m.p.h., and Bill Simpson at 180.406 m.p.h.

Those speeds appear to be in the most danger with aces like Lloyd Ruby, David Hobbs, and Mike Hiss still to be heard from.

The final qualifying session will run from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Foyt Offers Guthrie Ride

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Janet Guthrie has been offered A.J. Foyt's backup car for a shakedown run Sunday, and possibly a qualification attempt on the final day of qualifying for the May 30 Indianapolis 500.

A U.S. Auto Club official told The Associated Press late Saturday, "A.J. is going to let her take it out tomorrow. She is in his garage right now being measured for the cockpit."

If Miss Guthrie likes the machine, a Coyote with which Foyt set the fastest time of the month so far at more than 191 miles an hour Friday, she may make a qualifying attempt, the official said.

If she does, she is considered almost a cinch to make the 33-car field.

Miss Guthrie, however, is reportedly under a three-year contract with Rolla Vollstedt.

Speculation is that Miss Guthrie may try to qualify the Vollstedt car, which is clearly not fast enough to make the field with any driver, let it be too slow or be bumped, then jump into Foyt's car without jeopardizing her contract.

There was no comment from Foyt, Vollstedt or Miss Guthrie, all of whom were closeted in Foyt's garage late Saturday.

Miss Guthrie has hit 173.611 m.p.h. in the Vollstedt car. Although that speed is unofficially the fastest lap ever run by a woman on a closed course, it would take a four-lap, 10-mile average of more than 180.045 m.p.h. to make the field even now.

Indians Lose Fourth In Row

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bill Sharp and Don Money combined for seven hits and three runs batted in Saturday as the Milwaukee Brewers handed the Cleveland Indians their fourth straight setback, 6-5.

With the score tied 4-4, Sharp rapped out his fourth single of the game with two out in the sixth inning and Money added his third single. Darrell Porter and Hank Aaron followed with run-scoring singles, making a winner of Milwaukee starter Jim Slaton, 6-1.

The Indians got a run in the ninth on singles by George Hendrick, Charlie Spikes and playing-Manager Frank Robinson, a pinch hitter. An error by Milwaukee first baseman Mike Hegan loaded the bases with two out, but reliever Tom Murphy fanned Buddy Bell to end the game.

Eagle Starts Gilbert On Charge Into Lead

By BOB GREEN

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Gibby Gilbert, four strokes back at one time, started his charge with an eagle three, swept past faltering Fred Marti with a solid 66 and established a three-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

Gilbert, who's twice quit the tour in disgust, made up three strokes on the front-running Marti on the seventh hole, played the back nine in 32 and put together a 54-hole total of 201, 15 under par on the 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club course. Dr. Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist, flashed out of the pack with a seven-under-par 65 that put him in second place at 204.

The veteran Marti, who held a two-stroke lead at the end of the first and second rounds, improved his margin to four shots after six holes and, at that stage, appeared in fine shape to make a run at his first victory in 13 long years of tour activity.

Forrest Fezler came on with a 67 in the almost ideal playing conditions—warm, hazy with just a gentle breeze—and claimed third at 206.

South African Gary Player shot a solid 67 for 210 while Lee Trevino, a two-time Memphis champion and the winner last week in Fort Worth, Tex., lured a huge gallery to watch his two-under-par 70. Trevino, however, was out of title contention at 213, 12 strokes back.

Marti went four strokes ahead of Gilbert with birdies on three of four holes starting at the third.

Gilbert, who has won but once in a 10-year tour career, played in the group just in front of Marti and laced a four wood second shot only 18 inches from the cup on the 565 yard seventh hole. He tapped in for eagle.

Marti bogeyed the hole from a bunker just moments later and it was a three-stroke swing in Gilbert's favor.

"I went to the 10th tee and told my caddy, "I've got to play the back nine in four under.' And I did it."

While Marti was fading back in the pack, Gilbert wedged to about 10 feet and made both putts on the 10th and 11th holes, reached the par five 16th in two and two-putted for bird, and holed a 12 footer for birdie on the final hole.

"I really wanted that putt on the last one," the sturdy, stocky Gilbert said. "A three stroke lead is a lot bigger than two strokes."

Clemson Gains Finals; Paladins Chase Tech

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Kurt Seibert and David Caldwell led a brutal hitting attack for Clemson on Saturday as the Tigers crushed South Carolina 10-4 in the NCAA Atlantic Regional double elimination baseball tournament.

A night game matched South Carolina and Furman, which eliminated Virginia Tech 5-4 earlier in the day. Clemson will meet the night game winner for the title Sunday, and again Monday if the Tigers lose.

Seibert homered in two runs in the third inning to send Clemson on its way. In the fifth, the Atlantic Coast Conference champions' shortstop tripled in another run.

Leftfielder Caldwell, who was credited with four runs batted in, rapped out two doubles and two singles.

Clemson broke the game open in the seventh inning. The Tigers loaded the bases three times and twice cleared them for a six-run inning.

The Tigers touched four South Carolina pitchers for 16 hits.

In South Carolina's half of the seventh, the Gamecocks rapped out four consecutive singles, but could only manage one run to make the score 10-2. The Gamecocks added two more in the eighth.

Furman's Jeff Roberts survived six errors by his teammates to hold Virginia Tech in check and eliminate the Gobblers in the morning game.

The husky righthander gave up five scattered hits and struck out five before his Southern Conference champion teammates scored the winning run in the eighth on a two-base error, a steal and a sacrifice fly.

South Carolina, which dropped VPI 7-6 Friday night, met Clemson in the winner's bracket Saturday afternoon. Furman, defeated 13-2 loser Friday by Clemson, played the the loser of that game in the nightcap.

The championship will be Sunday—or Monday night if necessary.

Virginia Tech, sent home by its second loss in the tournament, tied the game in the fifth on a pair of singles and two errors that resulted in two unearned runs.

Randy Howell's two-run homer over the left centerfield fence helped give Furman three runs in the third. A walk, a steal and a single accounted for the first run.

Virginia Tech combined two singles, a walk and a sacrifice fly for two runs in the bottom half of the inning. Furman came right back in the fourth with another run on a walk, a steal and a single.

Furman's winning run, scored by Bob Grove, came when his grounder was thrown wild to first and Grove romped to second. He stole third when a pickoff throw was too late. The leftfielder raced home after Smith's fly to center.

Bostock Leads Twin Victory

By BRENT KALLESTAD
AP Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON (AP) — Lyman Bostock drove in three runs, two with a tie-breaking triple in the fifth inning, and Dave Goltz hurled a seven-hitter as the Minnesota Twins cooled off the Kansas City Royals 5-3 in a nationally televised baseball game Saturday.

The Royals had won five games in row, 10 of their last 11 and 16 of 19. Minnesota snapped a three-game skid.

Bostock, who also singled home the Twins' final run in the seventh inning, ripped his two-out triple down the right field line off previously unbeaten Al Fitzmorris, who was saddled with his first loss after five victories.

The three-base hit scored Craig Kusick and Bob Randall and gave Minnesota a 3-1 lead. Bostock then came home on a single by Larry Hisle. The rally started after Fitzmorris retired the first two batters.

Goltz, who won his third straight after dropping his first two decisions, allowed only five hits after the second inning, four of them in Kansas City's two-run ninth.

Kansas City took a 1-0 lead in the second when John Mayberry walked, moved to third on a double by Hal McRae and scored on Bob Stinson's infield single. The Royals got their other two runs in the ninth on a single by Amos Otis, George Brett's triple and Mayberry's sacrifice fly.

Minnesota tied the score 1-1 in the fourth on a double by Hisle, a sacrifice and Steve Braun's infield out.

Goltz was working on a two-hitter and had retired 14 batters in a row until a pinch single by Tony Solaita with two out in the eighth.

After the Royals scored their final two runs in the ninth, McRae singled. Al Cowens bounced a single up the middle, sending McRae to third, but Cowens killed the rally when he rounded first too far and was trapped. Stinson then flied out to end the game.

Bostock, who has been among the league's top hitters all year, boosted his average to .353 with his two hits.

The Twins also notched their third victory in as many tries this season on national TV. Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch, out of action with an intestinal virus, missed his second straight game.

Bucs Win On Sacrifice Fly

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mario Mendoza's sacrifice fly scored Willie Stargell from third base to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 16-inning, 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Stargell led off the 16th inning with a single to center and Richie Zisk followed with a single to left. Bill Robinson sacrificed both along and after Duffy Dyer was intentionally walked, Mendoza hit Paul Reuschel's second pitch to left field.

The game was played with members of a striking service union picketing Three Rivers Stadium and with umpires from Pittsburgh's sandlot league in charge for the second straight game. Regular National League umpires appeared at the stadium shortly before game time and agreed to work, but Pirates General Manager Joe L. Brown told them he did not want to delay the start of the game and refused to remove the substitutes.

Bob Moose, who pitched the last four innings, was credited with the victory, his first decision in 12 relief appearances this year. He has not given up an earned run in 22 1-3 innings.

Paul Reuschel, who came on in the 12th, was charged with the loss, his second in three decisions.

Bruce Kison, Pittsburgh's starter, went nine innings and allowed one earned run.

Mendoza had entered the game in the 10th inning after shortstop Frank Taveras had been lifted for a pinch hitter. He had failed to hit the ball out of the infield until he hit the game-winning fly ball.

Umpires Show Up For Saturday's Game, But Are Told 'Too Late'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Four National League umpires who honored a union picket line here Friday night, apparently decided to return to work just minutes before the start of Saturday's game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Chicago Cubs.

But Pirates General Manager Joe L. Brown said the umpiring crew had waited too long to make its decision and Brown opted to let four sandlot umpires handle the game, televised regionally in some areas.

Brown said the members of the umpiring crew, headed by Lee Weyer, had each been served at 1:25 p.m., EDT, Saturday with copies of a federal judge's order to return to work.

He said the umpires showed up at the ballpark at 1:30 but did not make their final decision to return until 2:06 p.m., nine minutes before game time.

"I said I am sorry I can't call these guys (the sandlot crew) off the field," Brown said.

"I was not going to embarrass the umpires already in uniform and delay the game in order to have these fellows come in nine minutes before a scheduled game and say they're ready to go to work."

Brown said umpire Nick Colosi then said: "You don't want us. Come on, let's go."

With that the umpires left the stadium and the game got underway with the sandlot umpires, selected from amateur leagues in the area.

"What will happen tomorrow, I don't know,"said Brown. "I talked to Chub Feeney, president of the league, and he thinks they will be here tomorrow. He hopes so and I do, too."

Joe Schratz, a 30-year-old former college baseball player at Arizona State, was the home plate umpire. Schratz, who works at a nearby veterans hospital, was a college teammate of Cubs outfielder Rick Monday.

The crowd didn't seem to mind the umpiring changes. They greeted Schratz and his umpiring mates, dressed in light blue shirts, with cheers as they stepped on the field.

The union walkout began Friday when the 400 vendors, members of Teamsters Local 250, rejected a contract Thurdsay night from Araserv Inc., the stadium concessionaire.

Another vote was taken one hour before Friday's game between the Pirates and the Cubs, but the vendors also rejected that offer despite the recommendation of Sam Montani, secretary of the Teamster local.

Pickets were set at only the main entrance of the stadium after Three Rivers Management Corp., which runs the stadium, requested an injunction to limit pickets. Allegheny County Common Pleas Judge Warren Watson issued the injunction.

Ushers, electricians, and other stadium employes honored the picket lines, forcing Pirate Treasurer Art Routzong to handle the ticket window, Brown to help with the tarpaulin and Public Relations assistant Sally O'Leary to help serve food to writers.

Fans, however, were left without their usual snacks of popcorn, peanuts, sodas, beer and hot dogs.

Besides Schratz, the other umpires were Al Cohen, who was behind the plate on Friday night, and new faces Joe Ruskaric and Clarence Adams.

Williams Ties His 100 Meter Record; McTear Trails Field

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Williams of the Florida Track Club equaled for the fifth time his world record of 9.9 seconds in the 100-meter dash Saturday, outrunning a star-studded field in the Martin Luther King International Freedom Games.

Williams, who said he "didn't run a very good race, especially in the first half," nudged Aubrun's Harvey Glance at the finish line of a race that included three world record holders at 100 meters and two others at 100 yards.

Williams appeared to get a poor start, and was trailing most of the field at the 30-meter mark before making his move and finally overtaking Glance, who also has run a 9.9.

Glance finished second in 10 flat, followed by Ed Preston of Arkansas State, Robert Woods of Grambling and Charles Hopkins of the Macon Track Club, all in 10.3.

Failing to place were Florida schoolboy Houston McTear and Ivory Crockett, coholders of the 100-yard record at 9 flat, and Florida State's Don Merrick, who also shares the 100-meter record.

Crockett was sixth in the race at 10.4 and McTear, who had predicted victory, was clocked in 10.5. McTear was never in contention, apparently running out of steam on the longer metric event, about nine yards farther than the 100-yard dash.

Dave Roberts of the Florida Track Club, world record holder in the pole vault, twice narrowly missed breaking his mark of 18-6½. He officially cleared 18 feet to win the event but missed three attempts at 18-7¼, twice knocking off the bar on his way down after clearing the height.

Williams also captured the 200-meter dash, tying his meet record of 19.9 to easily defeat the second-place Glance, 20.2, by about five yards.

Edwin Moses of Morehouse captured the 400 meter intermediate hurdles in 48.8, eclipsing two tenths of a second off the meet record set two years ago by Ralph Mann of the Beverly Hills Striders.

Florida State set a meet record in the 440-yard relay with a 39.5 clocking, .1 better than the previous record set six years ago by Texas A&M. It appeared that FSU's Merrick, running the anchor leg, barely defeated Auburn's Glance, whose team was timed in 39.8.

Evis Jennings of Mississippi State edged out Fred Newhouse of the Baton Rouge Track Club to win the 400 meters in 45.0, breaking the old meet record of 45.3 set last year by Penn State's Mike Sands.

Another meet record fell in the long jump when Theo Hamilton, competing unattached, jumped 26-7, shattering the record of 25-8 set in 1971 by Norm Tate of the Philadelphia Pioneers.

Steve Foster of the Florida Track Club captured the 1500 meters in 3:41.3, edging Canada's Paul Craig by four-tenths of a second. Foster's time broke the meet record held by Marty Liquori at 3:43.3.

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Spencer hit a tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning and Bucky Dent drilled three hits and drove in two runs Saturday, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 7-2 victory over Oakland which extended the A's losing streak to six games.

Jesse Jefferson worked seven innings and picked up his first victory by allowing five hits as the White Sox posted their fifth consecutive triumph. The Sox wrapped up the decision game with a four-run uprising in the seventh inning.

Spencer's second homer of the year and first since opening day broke a 2-2 tie and came off starter and loser Mike Norris, 0-2.

The A's took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on a single by Bert Campaneris and Phil Garner's triple. Chicago tied it in the third on a double by Ralph Garr and a triple by Dent.

Oakland went ahead again in the fourth on a single by Don Baylor, a balk, a sacrifice bunt and Billy Williams' sacrifice fly. The White Sox tied it in the fifth on a double by Pat Kelly and a single by Dent.

The White Sox scored all four of their seventh-inning runs after two were out with Dent contributing a single and Spencer a run-scoring double.

Bear Grass Claims Title

WILLIAMSTON—Bear Grass, which last year went to the 1-A Eastern Finals in baseball, won another trip to the playoffs Saturday in a playoff game with conference rival Jamesville, 10-3.

The Bears, who ended up in a tie with the Bullets, reversed the finish of last year that saw Jamesville finish first to Bear Grass' second place finish. Again, both teams move on this year to state play.

Bear Grass, as the conference champ, will entertain Creswell Tuesday at 4 p.m. while Jamesville travels to Manteo the same day for an 8 p.m. encounter. The two winners collide on Friday.

Both teams scored in the second inning. Bear Grass drew blood first, scoring four runs in the top of the frame. Terry Wobbleton doubled and Richard Knox walked. Danny Rogerson reached on an error, loading the bases. Alton Cratt doubled in two runs, and Jerry Wynne doubled in the other two.

Jamesville came back with three in their half of the inning. Danny Lilly walked and Duke Stone singled. Toby Holliday reached on a fielder's choice and a double by Larry Pierce scored two runs. Robbie Hardison then sacrificed in Holliday.

It stayed that way until the sixth, when the Bears broke it open with six runs. Wobbleton and Knox both walked and Ray Wynne reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Wobbleton. Craft also reached on a fielder's choice, scoring the second run. Jerry Wynne was safe on an error that allowed a third run to score, and Jimmy Peaks doubled in Cratt and Wynne. A sacrifice fly by Dickie Williams scored Peaks.

Bear Grass is now 13-2 in Beaufort-Hyde-Martin play, while Jamesville finished at 12-3.

Ali Helps Promoters

MUNICH (AP) - Muhammad Ali stepped in Saturday to help bail out the German promoters of his title fight with Richard Dunn by buying up tickets worth more than $100,000 for free distribution to American servicemen here.

The money, Ali said, indicating his respect for his English opponent, is "nothin' when you make a million-five just by joking around."

Ali talked to reporters after doing three rounds on the heavy bag and skipping a little rope in a Munich gymnasium.

Optimists Rip Kiwanis, 16-2

The Optimists moved into a share of first place in the North State Little League with a 16-2 rout of the Kiwanis yesterday.

The Optimist are tied with the Jaycees for the lead with a 5-1 record. The Kiwanis are now 0-6.

The Optimist got all they needed in the first inning, scoring three runs. Andy Holloman walked and Kenny Kirkland singled. Sammy Hodges also got a hit, loading the bases. Tony Heath sacrificed in Holloman, and passed balls let in the other two runs.

In the fourth, the Optimists added six more runs for a 9-0 lead. Glen Buck doubled and Rudy Stalls was hit by a pitch. Holloman reached on an error and Kirkland singled in Buck. An error on the relay let both Stalls and Holloman score. Hodges then hit a homer to score two more runs. Jeff Porter walked and moved up on a wild pitch, scoring on John Hause's double.

The lone Kiwanis' runs came in the sixth. Jeff Simpson singled and Brian Hill got a hit. John Parnell walked and a hit by Jeff Boyd scored Simpson, while an error let Hill score.

Hodges led the Optimist hitting with three, while Holloman, Kirkland, Hause and Michael Moon each had two. No one had more than one for the Kiwanis.

Graniteers KO Leader

Three walks in the bottom of the seventh forced in the winning run as the Graniteers struggled past First Federal, 5-4, knocking First Federal out of sole possession of first place in the Tar Heel Little League.

The loss dropped First Federal back into a three-way tie for the top spot with Exchange and Big Value all with 4-2 records. The Graniteers are 3-3.

Lance Searle won the game in relief pitching one inning. He gave up a hit in his stint walking and fanning none. Tony Ellis started for the Graniteers. He gave up five hits and four runs, walked five and struck out nine.

Mike Holloman had started for FF but was relieved in the seventh also. Randy Warren pitched the last frame absorbing the loss.

First Federal jumped out to a three-run lead in the first. Mont Carter scored on Holloman's single after doubling. Horace Barret walked and both runners scored on an error.

First Federal added another in the fifth when Carter homered. But in the bottom of the frame, the Graniteers rallied for three to tie the game, 4-4.

Lance Searle singled and Steve Holloman reached on an error. Tony Ellis doubled in Searle and a hit by Smith scored Holloman. Ellis was thrown out at home but Smith came around to score on an error on Bubba Briley's grounder.

First Federal put runners on in both the sixth and seventh but failed to score. Holloman led off the bottom of the seventh with a double and walks to Smith, Pittman and Briley forced him over.

Smith had three hits, Holloman, Pittman and Mike Tucker two each for the Graniteers while Carter and Cliff Warren had two each for FF.

Curtis Strange Captures Title In North-South For Second Time

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest University junior Curtis Strange won his second straight North and South golf championship Saturday, defeating U.S. Amateur champion Fred Ridley, 6 and 5, in the final of two 18-hole matches.

The 21-year-old Strange, who became the first back-to-back winner of the prestigious tournament since Billy Joe Patton in 1962-63, fired a three-under-par 69 in the morning round to take a 4-up lead over Ridley in the 76th annual match play event.

The former NCAA champion finished the tournament 17 under par for the week and five under par for the day.

Strange, of Virginia Beach, Va., polished off the Stetson University law student in the final round with straight birdies on the 12th and 13th holes of the 7,051-yard No. 2 course at Pinehurst Country Club.

In the morning round, Strange carded five birdies and two bogeys while Ridley had 73. The turning point in the first match came at the seventh hole when Ridley's second shot to the par four, 398-yard hole came to rest in the bank of a greenside bunker. Ridley, of Winter Haven, Fla., led 1-up at the time. The ball moved one-sixteenth of an inch while Ridley was removing a loose impediment.

The 23-year-old Ridley made an improper interpretation of the rule, assumed he had lost the hole and picked up his ball and the match was even. He did not ask the referee for a ruling.

Strange birdied the No. 9, after which Ridley missed the green at the 10th. A 30-foot birdie at 13 gave the Wake Forest golfer a 3-up bulge.

Ridley conceded a birdie tap-in to Strange after a bunker shot at 16 for a 4-up. Both Players had birdie putts at the 18th go astray. Strange's 30-footer hit the hole, jumped up and refused to drop. Ridley rimmed out from 15 feet.

In 1975, Strange was second-seeded to George Burns here and won 2-up.

Strange also beat Ridley in the second round of the 1975 Western Amateur 2-up and then lost to him in the fifth round of last year's U.S. Amateur, 2 and 1.

Light Heavyweight Champion In 15th Round Knockout Victory

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Victor Galindez of the Argentina retained his World Boxing Association light heavyweight crown when he knocked out Richie Kates of Trenton, N.J., in the 15th round Saturday night.

The 27-year old champion proved his worth by shrugging off the effects of a badly cut eye sustained in the third round.

In the last seconds of the final round, with blood splattered everywhere including all over the referre's shirt, Galindez unleashed a tremendous left hook to 23-year-old Kates' head.

Kates went down and even while the referree started the count Galindez was leaping round the ring in a victory dance.

The fight began at a fast pace with Kates, a black, finding Galindez's face with snappy left jabs.

Referee Stan Christodoulou was forced to break early clinches as Galindez appeared worried by the ferocity of the American's initial attack and hung on desperately.

In the third round, Kates landed two rights and the fighters again clinched. Galindez came up with blood pouring from a cut over his right eye.

Christodoulou stopped the fight while a doctor examined the gash.

Pandemonium broke out and photogrpahers jumped into the ring, thinking Kates had won. But they were shoved out after it was announced the fight would continue.

Last Year's Champs This Year's Chumps

The Boston Red Sox and Oakland A's may be the defending champions in the American League but right now they're only second-division teams.

The Red Sox dropped a 6-5, 12-inning decision to the New York Yankees Friday night and fell into fourth place in the East Division, six games from the top. The A's, fifth in the AL West, lost their fifth in a row and are eight games off the pace.

Neither manager is particularly worried, though.

"I don't consider this a crucial series," Boston's Darrell Johnson said of the Red Sox' current four-game set with first-place New York, "but I don't want to get too far back."

"I'm not discouraged because of our losing streak," insisted Oakland's Chuck Tanner. "Baseball is a season, not a month. We're a solid club and we'll come out of it."

Elsewhere, the Kansas City Royals downed the Minnesota Twins 5-1, the Texas Rangers defeated the California Angels 5-2, the Baltimore Orioles outlasted the Detroit Tigers 8-5 and the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Cleveland Indians 4-3.

Kerry Dineen, who didn't arrive at Yankee Stadium until the middle innings after his recall from the minors, singled home an unearned run with two out in the 12th inning to boost the Yankees over the Red Sox. Carlos May reached when second baseman Denny Doyle booted his two-out grounder and went to third on a single by Graig Nettles before Dineen came through.

Meanwhile, Bucky Dent rapped out four hits and ex-Yankee Ken Brett made his Chicago pitching debut a success as the White Sox downed the skidding A's. Vida Blue, who had beaten the White Sox seven straight times, was the victim while Brett allowed one hit in five innings before giving way to Clay Carroll. It was his first game for the Sox after pitching only 2 1-3 innings in two appearances for New York.

Royals 5, Twins 1

John Mayberry slammed four straight hits, including his third home run of the season, and Freddie Patek added three more, leading the red-hot Royals over Minnesota behind Dennis Leonard's four-hit pitching. It was the Royals' fifth triumph in a row and 16th in their last 19 games.

Rangers 5, Angels 2

Nelson Briles held California to one hit after the third inning and Mike Hargrove brought the Rangers from behind with a two-run homer in the third before a record Texas crowd of 40,854 on Bat Night.

Orioles 8, Tigers 5

Doug DeCinces continued to sparkle as a replacement for veteran third baseman Brooks Robinson, slamming a grand slam homer in Baltimore's six-run first inning. DeCinces has gone 12-for-29 in his last eight games.

Brewers 4, Indians 3

Bill Travers fired a four-hitter, Sixto Lezcano hit a two-run homer and Milwaukee beat Cleveland with the help of two unearned runs in the seventh inning. The Brewers broke a 2-2 tie when shortstop Frank Duffy bobbled Bobby Darwin's grounder. Bill Sharp hit a pinch single and Tim Johnson and Robin Yount followed with run-scoring singles off Pat Dobson.

Oscar Bonavena Dies In Shooting

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Heavyweight fighter Oscar Bonavena of Argentina was shot and killed Saturday in front of the nearby Mustang Ranch Brothel, sheriff's deputies said.

Bonavena, 33, was one of the top contenders for Muhammad Ali's world heavyweight championship.

Booked for investigation of homicide was Willard Ross Brymer, 31, of Lockwood, Nev., said a spokesman for the Storey County Sheriff's Department. Brymer was being held without bail, the spokesman said.

No details on what led to the shooting were available.

The Mustang Ranch Brothel, located about eight miles east of Reno, is owned by Joseph Conforte. Neither he nor Mustang Ranch spokesmen could immediately be reached for comment.

A native of Buenos Aires, Argentina, Bonavena began his professional boxing career with six consecutive knockouts and eight straight victories before he lost to Zora Folley in New York's Madison Square Garden Feb. 28, 1965.

Another string of six victories—all by knockouts—gave Bonavena a shot at the South American heavyweight championship, which he won by decisioning Gregorio Peralta Sept. 4, 1965.

But the 5-foot-11 Bonavena, known for his bull-like tactics in the ring, is better known for his losses than his victories.

He lost twice to Joe Frazier, before Frazier became world heavyweight champ. And Bonavena lost to Jimmy Ellis, Muhammad Ali, Ron Lyle and Floyd Patterson. All except Lyle held the world title at one time, but Bonavena never fought for the crown.

His last bout was a 10-round decision over Raul Gorosito of Buenos Aires Nov. 1, 1975.

Braves Slip By Giants, 3-2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rangy left-hander Roger Moret posted his first National League victory and Jim Wynn homered for the go-ahead run, boosting the Atlanta Braves to a 3-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday.

Moret, 41-18 in the American League with the Boston Red Sox before his trade over the winter to Atlanta, allowed an unearned run in the first, then blanked the Giants before being lifted in the sixth.

Larry Herndon's single, an error by Marty Perez on Chris Arnold's forceout grounder and Bobby Murcer's single made it 1-1 in the bottom of the first off Moret, 1-0.

Wynn belted his fourth home run for a 2-1 Atlanta lead in the third. Evans singled and scored on Biff Pocoroba's double in the sixth to give the Braves a 3-1 advantage.

The Giants got their final run in the ninth when Willie Montanez doubled and eventually scored on Marc Hill's grounder.

Terry Sanford High School of Fayetteville captured first place in the Eastern Regional track meet at East Carolina University Friday, while five area athletes qualified for the state meet next Friday.

Terry Sanford finished the meet with 19 points, nipping New Bern, which finished with 18. Sectional champ Rose tied for third with Wilson Fike, both picking up 15 points. Seventy-First of Fayetteville was right behind with 14½ points.

Wilmington Hoggard was sixth with 13, followed by Cary with 12, Smithfield-Selma and Tarboro with 11 each and Union Pines with 10. A total of 37 schools scored points.

The top four finishers in each event qualified for next Friday's State Championship meet in Raleigh.

Among that group were four from Rose and one from Farmville Central. Rufus Mayo of Farmville will represent his school in the long jump. He finished third in the competition with a leap of 22 feet, 6½ inches, just five inches off the winning pace.

Doug Paschal of Rose took third place in the shot put with a heave of 52 feet, 11½ inches, and was second in the discus at 159 feet, 9 inches. He also joined with Michael Dyer, Mike McLawhorn and William Joyner to place second in the 880-yard relay in 1:29.8. Joyner also was seconds in the 220-yard dash in 21.8 seconds.

The meet produced two double winners. Earl George of New Bern took both of the hurdle events, while Otis Melvin of Terry Sanford won the 100 and the 220-yard dashes.

Other winners included Greg Artis of Wilson in the long jump; Kenny Rogers of Washington in the shot put; James Coleman of Seventy-First in the high jump; Dean Leavitt of Seventy-First in the discuss; Steve Holland of Douglas Byrd in the mile; Carlton Baker of Cary in the triple jump; Al Tillery of Reid Ross in the 440; Frank Jordan of Hoke County in the pole vault; Ricky Bizzell of Smithfield-Selma in the 880, and Hursey of Southern Durham in the two-mile. Jaycees And Optimists Win

Forty-nine runs were scored in two North State Little League games Friday in a doubleheader as the Jaycees dumped Coca-Cola, 13-6, and the Optimists drained Union Carbide, 26-6.

The Jaycees went to work getting a run in the first. The Jaycees added three more in the second and with Mike Pollard's three-run homer in the third, they ran the lead up to 12-1.

Coke scored its first in the third as Todd Lovette homered.

Coke picked up two in the fourth and one in the sixth. The Jaycees also scored once in the sixth.

Crowell Pope led the Jaycee hitting with three including a double. Pollard had two. Chuck Allen and Raynor Casey had two each for Coke.

The Optimists loaded the bases in the first with none out. Jeff Porter sacrificed one run in and after a walk, an error scored two more. Paul McMillan sacrificed in a run.

But the first inning was just the top of the proverbial iceberg. The Optimists picked up six walks, five singles and a double and six errors to push over 11 second inning runs for a 15-0 lead. They added one in the third, two in the fourth, one in the fifth and seven more in the sixth.

UC scored three in the third, two in the fourth and one in the sixth.

Jeff Porter had three hits, Andy Holloman, Kenny Kirkland, Rudy Stalls, John House and Michael Moon all had two hits for the Optimists. Dwayne Fischer had two for Union Carbide.

SECOND TO NONE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Babe Ruth hit 714 career home runs to rank second to Hank Aaron in that department. However, the New York Yankee legend hit a home run once every 11.76 at bats, while Aaron, who entered the 1976 season with 745 homers, needed an average of 16.23 at bats for each home run.

Bill Lee Says He Has A Score To Settle With New York Yanks

BOSTON (AP) — Maybe he'll simmer down over the next few weeks, but right now Boston Red Sox southpaw Bill Lee says he has a score to settle with a couple of New York Yankees.

"I'm going to rest for six weeks, get my arm strong again, then come back and drill (Craig) Nettles and drill (Mickey) Rivers," he said Friday.

Lee had his left arm strapped tight in a sling and displayed an assortment of bumps and bruises to go with his swollen, black left eye, all souvenirs of the brawl Thursday night at Yankee Stadium.

He flew home for an examination Friday by Hahnemann Hospital doctors. Dr. Thomas Tierney, team physician, said Lee suffered minor torn ligaments in the shoulder of his pitching arm and it will be in a sling for five weeks or so.

Then Lee flew back to New York to see Friday night's second game of a four-game series—but had to watch from the press box. New York won 6-5 in 12 innings.

The fracas started when New York's Lou Piniella was cut down trying to score and slammed into Boston catcher Carlton Fisk.

"I was backing up the plate on the play," said Lee, "and when Fisk and Piniella started after each other I saw (Otto) Velez come running in from second base.

"I clotheslined him and had him in a headlock to keep him off Fisk. Rivers hit me from behind, then Nettles came in, picked me up and threw me down sideways on my left shoulder.

"I landed hard with other people on top of me and that's when it was injured. While I was on the bottom, Nettles kept punching me. I was also kicked, spiked and mauled under that pile."

Lee said when all the grappling and punching broke up, he knew he was hurt. He said he went over to say a few choice words to Nettles and even tried a swing at him with his game left arm.

"Everybody started after me again and he hit me in the eye," said Lee. "I just lost."

Lee, the only starting left-hander the Red Sox had, said, "I'll pitch again this season, but I don't know how soon."

And as for settling any scores with the Yankees, the earliest he can hope for that is 10 weeks away when Boston goes to New York for two games over the July 24 weekend.

It also depends on whether that arm is healed and Lee is back in pitching form.

Exchange Rips Pepsi

Billy Bost cracked out five hits driving in five runs and Billy Kittrell threw a no-hitter to lead the Exchange to a 25-3 rout of Pepsi-Cola, Friday.

Bost had five straight hits in his first five innings. In his last time at bat, he was hit by a pitch. Kittrell fanned nine batters.

Bost drove in the first Exchange run with a single in the first. Pepsi tied it with a run in the bottom of the first but Exchange rallied for five in the second. Pepsi got two in the bottom of the frame but that ended their scoring.

Allison Taylor's double in the Exhange third ignited a 13-run rally. She drove in Timmy Norris and Taylor scored on a hit by Frank Norris. Bost drove in two and a double by Timmy Norris as the Exchange started its second time around drove in three more.

The Exchange added one in the fifth and five in the sixth.

Frank Norris, Billy Kittrell and Chip Cayton had three hits each and Taylor had two.

Aycock Wins In Final Game

WINSOR—E. B. Aycock scored twice in the top of the sixth to break a 3-3 tie and added two more runs in the top of the seventh to take a 7-3 season-ending victory over Bertie.

Al Alston pitched the win for the Jaguars walking four and striking out three. He gave up six hits.

Bertie got all its runs in the first. W. White walked and D. Cowan reached on an error. Cherry singled in both runners and an error let Cherry score.

Charles Daise was hit by a pitch in the second, stole second, was wild pitched to third and scored on an error.

In the third, Miccah Dixon singled and hits by Joey Mattheis and Ronnie Chapman drove him around.

Ricky West singled amd moved to third on an error in the fourth. A single by Ashely Taylor scored him to tie the game.

Will Sanderson opened the sixth with a walk and Reggie Selby singled him across after Sanderson was wild pitched to second. Taylor sacrificed Selby across.

Chapman had three hits and Dixon two for Aycock.

Sandlot Umpires Call Buc-Cub Contest

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Who was watching the school while Al Cohen was watching the game?

Cohen, the security chief of a suburban Pittsburgh school, did some moonlighting Friday night as a major league baseball umpire. He was a little rusty, though he hadn't done it for two years.

"It came to me very easily," said Cohen, one of four sandlot umpires rushed in to work the Pittsburgh-Chicago game after the regular National League crew honored a picket line by striking vendors at Three Rivers Stadium.

Cohen's last umpiring job was in a 1974 American Legion game, but he and his rookie colleagues handled all chances cleanly as the Cubs beat the Pirates 5-4. Cohen, the "chief" of the makeshift crew at home plate, was joined by Ralph Detcher at first base, Joe Shratz at second and Elmer Guckert at third.

"It was easier than Pony League," said Shratz, a former Arizona State baseball player. "These are great players. They make the easy plays and the hard plays, and you don't have to worry about anybody throwing to the wrong base and things like that."

There were no disputed calls in the game, which was decided by Chicago's four-run fourth keyed by Jose Cardenal's two-run double.

"I don't think either side can complain," said Chicago Manager Jim Marshall. "I told my players to understand the situation and be lenient, and as it turned out, those guys did a grand job."

In the other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1; the New York Mets tripped the Montreal Expos 4-3; the San Diego Padres stopped the Cincinnati Reds 4-2; the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Houston Astros 2-1 and the Atlanta Braves blanked the San Francisco Giants 8-0.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the second when Mick Kelleher singled home an unearned run off Pittsburgh starter Larry Demery. They opened a 5-0 lead with their four-run fourth off Demery, who yielded two walks and a pair of singles before Cardenal's double.

The Pirates rallied with four runs in the sixth off Chicago starter Rick Reuschel, who yielded a three-run, double to Bill Robinson. Darold Knowles pitched the final three innings for the Cubs to earn his third save of the season.

Phillies 2, Cardinals 1

Steve Carlton scattered eight hits and Garry Maddox cracked a two-run homer to lift Philadelphia over St. Louis. Carlton, 4-1, struck out seven and walked only one as he handcuffed the Cardinals for his fourth complete game this year.

Mets 4, Expos 3

Wayne Garrett's two-run double in the ninth inning lifted New York over Montreal. The Mets trailed 3-2 when Jerry Grote drew a leadoff walk off starter Steve Rogers, bringing in Dale Murray from the bullpen. Ron Hodges singled before Joe Torre forced pinch runner Mike Phillips and Garrett delivered the game-winning hit.

Padres 4, Reds 2

Dave Winfield's grand slam home run and the five-hit pitching of Randy Jones sparked San Diego over Cincinnati. Jones, last year's National League ERA champion, went the distance to record his seventh complete game of the year and become the first eight-game winner in the majors. Along with raising his won-lost record to 8-2, Jones lowered his ERA to 2.27 as both Cincinnati runs against him in the seventh were unearned.

Dodgers 2, Astros 1

Steve Yeager hit his sixth home run of the year in the bottom of the seventh to snap a tie and lead Los Angeles past Houston before 53,568 fans on Cap Night at Dodger Stadium. Burt Hooton scattered six hits for his fourth victory in six decisions as the Dodgers moved 2½ games ahead of Cincinnati in the National League West.

Braves 8, Giants 0

Andy Messersmith pitched a three-hitter and Dave May knocked in three runs with a triple and groundout to pace Atlanta past San Francisco. Messersmith, winning his second straight complete game following an 0-4 start, allowed a triple by Chris Arnold in the first, single by Bobby Murcer in the fourth and a double by Dave Rader in the seventh.

Carter Suggs from Tarboro, N.C., will run in the 100 yard dash after qualifying with a 9.4 in the Southern Conference meet. He also will be a member of ECU's 440 relay team.

Calvin Alston, a freshman from Henderson, N.C., will run the 200 meters. His qualifying time was 21.0. Alston also runs a leg on the 440 relay team.

Al Washington, a junior from Washington, D.C., will be the fourth member of the relay team. ECU qualified for the nationals in the 440 relay at :40.6. Larry Austin from Jacksonville, N.C., will go to the nationals as an alternate on the relay team.

This represents the largest group ever to qualify for the outdoor nationals from East Carolina University.

Williamston Is Champion

AHOSKIE—Williamston High School nipped Ahoskie, 4-3, Friday to capture the Northeastern Conference Baseball championship.

The victory gave the Tigers the chance to go after a second straight 3-A State title in the sport. They finished the regular season in league play with a 10-2 record.

All of the scoring came in the third inning. Williamston picked up four runs in the top of the frame. Herbie Rogers walked and Mike Koesy singled. An error let Rogers come in with the first run. Ken Herman then singled to score Koesy.

Tim Hardison doubled, and that brought Herman around. Butch Davis followed with a single, scoring Hardison for a 4-0 lead.

The Cougars tried to fight their way back in the bottom of the inning, coming with one run. Brinkley was hit by a pitch and Newsome singled. Riddick then cracked a three-run homer, but Williamston was able to slam the door after that.

The Tigers will now move into the 3-A playoffs, facing Ayden-Grifton in the first game of the state tourney.

Bobick Sets Sights On Muhammad's Title

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

MUNICH (AP) — The real great white hope — his hair is redder and he hits harder than Richard Dunn — took one look at Muhammad Ali and said all the trimmed fat and roadwork from Munich to Vienna can't hide that his reflexes are going.

The most biting, most critical observer of the champion in a week when he only heard how he looked 25 years old again and could waltz forever, was Duane Bobick, the 25-year-old fighter from Philadelphia, who is unbeaten after 35 straight pro bouts.

Bobick, who fights Bunny Johnson of England in a 10-round preliminary to Ali's title defense against Dunn Tuesday morning, crowded close to the ring while Ali finished his sparring with another heavyweight Bobick, his younger brother Rodney.

"What I saw was this," said Duane. "It seems to me that Ali sees the openings, but his reflexes are slowing down and he just misses. He's missing on his counter right-hand over the jab. He was just off, and Rodney isn't that quick. Ali has had to adapt his style. That's why he's slugging his sparring partners now. He's had to settle down and punch using his body and his weight. I really feel the reflexes are going."

Bobick is poised and analytical, a matured personality from the amateur who was knocked out by Teofilo Stevenson in the Munich Olympics, the day of the massacre of the Israeli team members by Arab terrorists. He talks easily about boxing, disecting Ali with precision.

"As an athlete," Bobick said, "you can have good condition, and strength, but yet not be sharp. That's the way Ali looks to me. It's not a completely specific thing. You know how if you're looking for something you've lost, you don't see it if its right in front of you, but you catch it sometimes in the corner of your eye.

"That's how I see how Ali has gone back. He would be very wise to retire shortly. Pride only takes you so far, and I think his body is cashing in its chips."

Talking of himself, Bobick maintains that the journeyman phase of his carreer is over.

"We're turning the corner into the contenders. We want a Chuck Wepner or a Henry Clark. My career is taking a big turn. When you think my purse for my 25th victory was $445.80 and that I went $300 into the hole to pay my trainers—then I'm moving ahead."

If Bobick were fighting Ali instead of Dunn, he says: "I'd fight him with pressure. I'd keep coming in on him. I'd fight him like Joe Frazier does, but I have more height and reach than Joe. I've got a good jab, a good hook and a good right."

When a friend remembered how Stevenson had shut his right eye with a continual jab and then finished him mercilessly, and pointed out that Ali's jab could be like a thrown scalpel, Bobick replied: "I'm learning to brush jabs away. Muhammad is a jabber, but against a guy who is a jabber I know how to slip inside. I'll take a jab in order to get in the good right hand or a hook."

Asked what he thought of Bobick, Ali said, "That's one white hope I wont be around for. Be retired by then."

BOSTON (AP) — When the surprising Phoenix Suns and the poised Boston Celtics meet Sunday in Game One of their National Basketball Association best-of-seven championship series, it will mark the first anniversary of a significant trade between the teams.

It was last May 23 that the Suns sent All-Star guard Charlie Scott to the Celtics for dependable but unspectacular backcourtman Paul Westphal.

It was one of those rare transactions that has worked out well for both clubs.

And it will be the performances of both the flashy Scott and the consistent Westphal—who will be playing against each other—that could go a long way toward determining the new NBA champion.

Scott and Westphal also opposed each other during the regular season, and the Celtics' guard and his teammates were the winners. While Boston was beating Phoenix in each of their four meetings, Scott outscored Westphal, averaging 24.0 points to 22.5 a game.

However, Westphal, who played brilliantly over the second half of the season, was a better scorer over-all than Scott, averaging 20.5 points—tops on Phoenix—to Scott's 17.6.

Both players have expressed their gratitude over the trade—and both teams have been extremely pleased with it.

"I can honestly say I'm much better off where I am," said the soft-spoken Westphal, who spent three seasons with the Celtics, including their 1974 championship year. "At least in Phoenix I'm appreciated."

In Boston, Westphal never felt he had the confidence of Coach Tom Heinsohn. "I always had the confidence of the players, and I had my own confidence, but I never had his," he explained. "It's a much better situation for a player when he thinks his coach thinks he's good. There will always be a part of me that will feel he held me back.

"I don't feel I'm playing any differently now than I did when I was with Boston," added Westphal. "I'm just getting my time, and I'm playing the kind of basketball I could have played for Boston."

Scott, perhaps, had to make a more difficult transformation than Westphal, because of a bad reputation he had carried with him at Phoenix.

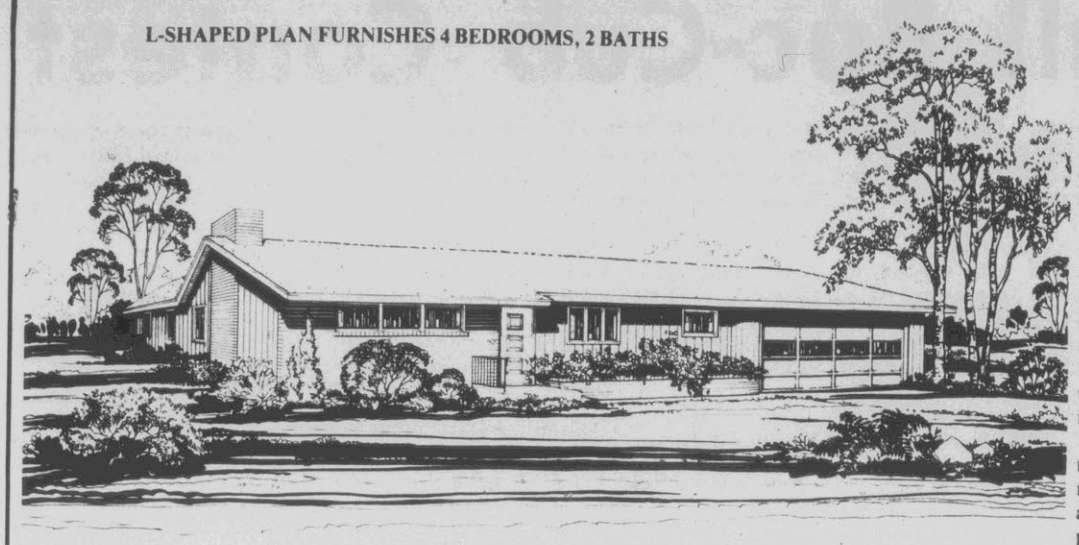
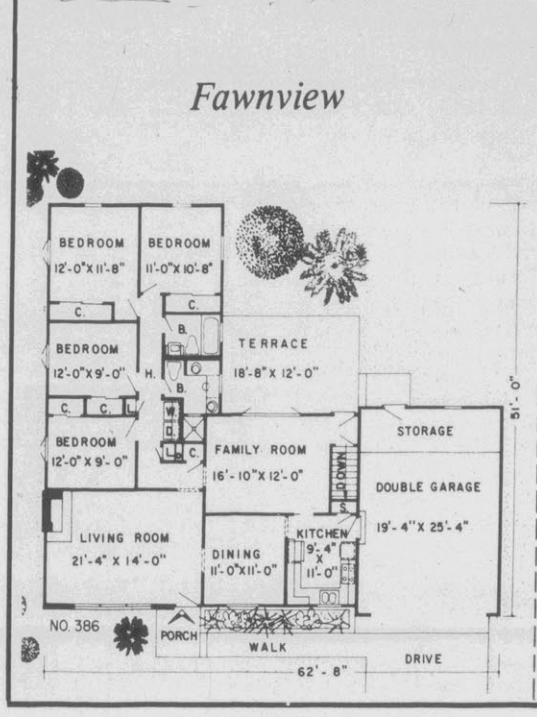
L-SHAPED PLAN FURNISHES 4 BEDROOMS, 2 BATHS



Fawnview



RANCH STYLE ZONES SLEEPING AREAS

By Jerry Bishop

Tucked away behind the living room for quiet and privacy, the sleeping wing sets the tone for this comfortable ranch style home. The Fawnview provides four bedrooms and two full baths in this simple, restful L-shaped design.

Layered with brick and vertical siding, the facade is accented by a planter treatment that borders the small porch. Entry is into the 21-ft. living room, where guests are greeted by the cozy corner fireplace.

For formal parties, the living room and bordering dining room create an efficient and spacious complex. The U-shaped kitchen is situated to serve the dining room and family room, and, for easy transfer of packages, opens into the garage.

Offering a casual contrast to the living room, the family room extends nearly 17 feet and overlooks the terrace to provide an airy center for family fun, television viewing, and children's play. The room is made even more useful by the handy entrance onto the terrace and access to the basement.

The long sleeping wing houses four bedrooms, two baths, and a total of seven closets. Edging the larger bath is a washer and dryer niche, located to minimize laundry chores and save steps.

A substantial storage area is defined in the double garage, where the entry to the rear yard saves time in moving garden equipment and patio furniture. Additional storage space is available in the large basement, which provides 945 sq. ft. of space.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Kitchen cabinets made of wood continue to hold their popularity in all kinds of homes, but most especially in those with a traditional flavor, which is to say, the majority of them.

In nearly all such cases, the wood is covered with a clear finish so that the grain or pattern shows through. This gives it the natural look prized by so many home owners, even though surfaces covered by plastic laminates are generally easier to maintain.

When kitchen cabinets require refinishing, they may need a little more attention than furniture in other parts of the house. That's because anything in the kitchen is subjected to grease and grime. Also, objects in a kitchen are handled very often, as witness the wear, tear and dirt around the door handles of the cabinets.

If you're contemplating perking up the kitchen cabinets, first determine whether they need a complete refinishing job or just a rejuvenation. If the finish appears intact everywhere except around the handles, a thorough cleansing, a little retouching and a new coat of wax may bring about a satisfactory restoration. Should you decide that a new clear finish is necessary, it can usually be done without removing the old finish. The removal will be required only if the old covering is in very bad condition or if you wish to make a decided change in the appearance of the cabinets as, for instance, by applying a lighter or darker stain under the clear finish. In the latter case, remember that sometimes the mere addition of another coat or two of clear finishing material will in itself impart a slightly darker tone to the wood.

Whatever your decision, kitchen cabinets need to be cleaned before a new finish is put on them. First, remove all the old wax. Even if it isn't visible, a wax residue is probably there if the cabinets have been waxed at any time in the past. Wash with turpentine (provide ventilation) or a commercial wax remover. This procedure is often sufficient to cleanse soiled surfaces as well as take off the wax. Should you judge that the surfaces are still dirty, wipe them with lukewarm water and a mild soap, using a soft, clean cloth. As soon as you finish one section, dry it immediately with another clean cloth, changing cloths each time one gets damp.

New finishes don't hold well on old finishes that are still glossy, so if that is the case you will have to dull the surfaces with a light sanding or an application of a liquid made especially to do away with the sanding chore.

There is a wide choice of final coats for your cabinets. Assuming you want a clear finish, you can use varnish, shellac, lacquer, one of the many plastics, an epoxy, a linseed oil-turpentine mixture or a penetrating resin oil, plus any of the special combinations that come in a variety of trade names. Varnish is still the best seller with the do-it-yourselfers. Among the plastics, polyurethane is gaining new adherents because of its great durability. It's a bit more expensive than most finishes, although not more so than epoxy, which is even more durable but seldom used for ordinary surfaces such as kitchen cabinets. One last note: don't apply lacquer over anything but lacquer; and don't use the penetrating finish or the linseed oil-turpentine mixture on anything but new or raw wood.

(You can get a copy of Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," by sending 30 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope To Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Seed Sales Are Double

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Increasing interest in home gardening almost doubled national sales of retail seeds and fertilizers between 1960 to 1974, says William Hepler, professor of plant breeding at Pennsylvania State University.

Hepler said the increase is most noticeable among high income groups, young adults, and the college-educated.

He said sales grew from nearly $4 billion in 1960 to more than $7 billion in the early 1970s. The number of garden outlets selling primarily to home gardeners increased 70 per cent in the same period, he said.

In addition, direct farm-to-market sales such as roadside stands and farmers' markets, and pick-your-own operations, helped create awareness of truly fresh fruits and vegetables. Seeing such high quality crops, many persons decided to grow their own, the professor said.

He estimates that a 15-by-25-foot garden can save as much as $280 annually. He said a knowledgeable gardener knows what crops, and how much of each crop his family will eat, and plans accordingly.

A one-acre garden can provide enough vegetables for a family of four for a year, Hepler said, adding that the increased popularity of home gardening and home food processing is due to the increased cost of living, concerns about the environment, outdoor recreation, productive use of leisure time, the satisfaction and triumph of the harvest, and the human need to till the soil.

Save The Cash To Buy Home

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

These days bridal gift money often sends many a young couple on the road to owning a house. The word is passed to parents "cash preferred" and everybody cooperates.

But some young newlyweds may get sidetracked, and at least one couple advises, "sock it away and don't touch it."

They had the right idea and they planned to let the money draw interest while they lived on earnings.

"But we began to borrow from it even before we had it" says the bride of one year. "We hadn't planned to take an expensive honeymoon, but we decided to live it up, just this once. Then we used some of the money for a used car and even for entertainment . .."

A year later they've spent almost $4,000 "and a house seems a long way off."

What were the mistakes? Well, they rented an apartment that was too expensive, and they also began buying furnishings that were not needed immediately for their lifestyle.

"Now our parents are asking when we are going to get a house and we really don't know what to say," says the bridegroom, 26.

It really isn't too late to start again, he says. He has just had a $20 weekly raise "that will go right into the bank," he has promised himself. But he caught himself saying, "When the sofa is paid off."

They have learned a lot in this year of money mistakes, and in some respects it may have been a good lesson. They feel equipped to pass on this advice to other young people:

—Put your wedding cash into an account so you will not be tempted to touch it. Pretend you don't have it. If one person is more frugal and thrifty put it in one name. (Savings bonds, they say, may be a better idea because it takes a little effort to convert them into cash.)

—Acquire only those luxuries you really can afford. (But they insist every young couple should save a little money for a nice honeymoon, even for only a few days — something to remember.)

—Have a real goal about the house you want so you don't lose sight of the idea. Save for it at once. Go to see houses occasionally. Occupy some of your time deciding what you want in a house. Decide how much you can comfortably pay for a house. (If you dismiss the idea, even temporarily, it may get too far behind you.)

—It is easy to live frugally the first year if you have a great goal. Buy inexpensive furnishings at garage sales and old furniture stores. Refurbished they should be useful later in a den or some other room of the house-to-be.

—Tap parents and friends for some things instead of trying to purchase every little thing. Small amounts add up. Many parents on the point of retirement may be willing to part with an extra set of dishes, pots, culinary things.

This couple has begun to take its own advice and is making an adventure out of refurbishing cast-offs. Lace insertion has gone into some old family draperies, a can of yellow paint has changed the look of a dinette set and new marble has gone to the top of a coffee table.

"If we continue our present trend, saving my wife's salary, my new raise, and whatever else we can get, we may be able to begin house-hunting in a year. Our entire goal now is directed to that. And we aren't going to look for a fancy house or a dream house. We don't want to get in over our heads. We want a starter house that we can parlay into a better house in a few years, so we aren't going to worry about needing a big down payment.

"The important thing is to get started in the best house we can afford," he said.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — Last year I removed the wallpaper from our dining room. After testing one section with hot water, which I applied with a brush, I found that the paper did not loosen the way I thought it would. At a neighbor's suggestion, I rented a steamer from our local hardware store. I got the paper off, finally, but it was a real messy job that I wouldn't want to undertake again. Since then, I have been advised that the paper would not yield readily because it was the type that had a waterproof coating. I now want to do a similar job in another room that has exactly the same type of paper. Do you have any suggestions?

A. — Wallpaper with a waterproof coating resists removal because it does not permit the softening material to penetrate properly. This time, try a commercial wallpaper remover. What you will have to do is to roughen the wallpaper with sandpaper wrapped around a wooden block. Use the roughest sandpaper you can buy. This should soften the waterproof coating so that the remover can get through to the paste underneath the paper. Let me warn you, however, that this, too, is a messy job. There simply is no easy or "clean" way to remove wallpaper. Have you considered the possibility of leaving the old wallpaper where it is and either repapering or painting right over it? This can be done where the old paper is solidly attached to the wall. There is a small amount of risk to it, because of the possibility that the new paste may soak through the old paper, but in this case the risk is minimized because of the waterproof coating.

Q. — We are having a house built. The attic is being left unfinished, as we intend to do this ourselves in a couple of years. Can pipes be run right up into the attic but not connected so that they can be used at any time if we decide to put in a bathroom?

A. — Yes. And it will be a lot less expensive if the site of the planned bathroom is directly above the one on the lower floor.

Gardening Questions

Q. Please help us with a "friendly" argument. When is the best time to cut roses? (Mrs. S. T., Shelby)

A. Better late than early—when it comes to gathering roses. Recent studies show that blooms cut in the late afternoon—about five or six o'clock—keep longer than those cut in early morning. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. What vegetables might grow best in a container garden on the patio? (G. L., Raleigh)

A. Tomatoes, radishes, peppers, chives and most of the leafy greens. Give the plants as much sunlight as possible. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Q. In traveling the coastal areas of North Carolina, I have noticed certain pine trees have a lush green color and others appear brown from salt spray. (B. G., New Bern)

A. Certain pine species can tolerate more salt spray than other species. Most pine now being planted near coastal areas are Japanese black pine. On fairly protected sites, slash pine exhibit more salt tolerance than do loblolly pine. (William M. Stanton, extension forest resources specialist)

Q. I have some asparagus plants that are three years old. Shouldn't they produce the edible vegetable this year? I would like to know more about this plant. (T. H., King)

A. If your plants have been growing vigorously for the past three years, you should have harvested spears this spring. The secret to having strong, healthy asparagus spears in the spring is to grow the plants vigorously the previous summer. Do not cut off fern growth before frost. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Death Street Is Dying

By KENNETH L. WHITING

SINGAPORE (AP) — Death street is dying in the name of urban renewal.

Skyscraper office buildings, apartment blocks and other new structures are changing Sago Lane in Chinatown, uprooting traditional death houses and related businesses.

What's left of the crowded thoroughfare may be unique. Death houses have been eliminated by the Communists in mainland China, and overseas Chinese elsewhere in Asia no longer have access to them, according to experts here.

Modern funeral parlors are replacing the "houses of big difficulty," as an older generation of Chinese call places that tend the dead and dying. And crematoriums are taking the place of cemeteries in this island-nation.

Death houses were once the hub around which life revolved in Sago Lane.

Doctors attended ailing occupants. Buddhist monks and Taoist priests made their ceremonial arrangements according to the old customs. Peddlers of herbal medicines displayed their wares and written testimonials in the narrow lane.

Craftsmen put the finishing touches to wooden coffins shaped like boats which were expected to sail the deceased to his ancestors. Makers of paper houses to be burned at the graveside kept busy. Funeral rites in progress could be heard in the street. Trucks were readied to haul bands, mourners and coffins.

In the evening, tables and chairs lined Sago Lane to accommodate relatives and friends visiting death house dwellers. Some played mahjong. Others ate, drank and chatted with the soon-to-be-dead.

"Many old Chinese are reluctant to enter a governmental hospital when they are sick and dying," said Lim Kim Guan, an expert on the area and its traditions.

"They dislike the impersonal atmosphere and the rules about visiting hours. And, in the crowded tenements of Chinatown many folks object to the close proximity of a sick person awaiting his last breath, or a corpse. In the house of big difficulty, relatives and friends may come and go as they please and cook food for them."

Lim said that death house is a harsh English label. The Chinese term is more apt because "they regard man's exit from the world as one of the biggest difficulties that any human being can face."

Some first class death houses are resplendent with wall-to-wall carpets, TV, air conditioning, chanting priests and other comforts. Buoyed by all this, some guests have been known to recover. Those with modest financial resources settle for second or third class death houses.

Five death houses from Sago Lane were shifted recently to a gleaming new industrial park at Geylang Bahru outside the central business district. Their proprietors say the move was bad for business.

A spokesman for the Wing Fatt death house said he had trouble keeping in touch with such allied services as florists, musicians and priests.

Contentment For Former City Cop In Small Town

By DOUGLAS MONROE

LAKE MARY, Fla. (UPI) — Sunday mornings often find Harry Benson, police chief, tuning up the squad cars behind city hall.

It is a different pace from the days when he sat behind a desk as director of police in West Orange, N.J., handling administrative headaches for an 150-employe department in the urban sprawl around New York.

HARRY BENSON

The 54-year-old Benson is now in charge of a five-person police force in this Central Florida town of 2,800, between Orlando and Sanford.

And he loves it.

In West Orange, Benson worked with a $2 million budget. When he took over the fledgling police department here, he says, "There wasn't a typewriter, there was no filing cabinet. I had to do everything."

Now the force has two cars, albeit one of them has a borrowed radio.

"It's been fun," says Benson. "It's a tremendous opportunity to get back close to the people."

Benson retired from his West Orange job two years ago after 25 years on the force and headed to Florida for sun and easy living. He had an idea that he might open his own security agency or some other kind of business.

"My wife and I wanted a little time to ourselves," he said.

It took him six weeks to fix up their new home in Altamonte Springs, an Orlando suburb. "Then I ran out of work and got bored," he said. "That's when this job came up."

And when it came up, Benson took it. Now he's working six and seven-day weeks.

"We even work on our own radio cars, tuning them up, on Sunday mornings," he says. On Saturdays, the department sometimes runs movies for kids, who are Benson's special concern.

"I've always been active in youth work," he says. "I feel prevention is not walking a street with a nightstick, but a full youth program with the police actively involved."

An athletic man who jogs two miles every morning, Benson said he started to get "a little sour" on the job in West Orange.

"I was battling so many things," he said. "The political picture was not too healthy and I had little control over personnel. My wife and I sat down for a talk and decided it wasn't worth it."

He took a step down financially, although he is getting a pension. He makes less as chief in Lake Mary than rookies make in West Orange.

He says he has no regrets at all about going from the city where he was born and raised to a small country town.

"I went back to visit at Thanksgiving for four days and I asked myself, 'Why did I come up here?'" he said.

"Living in a city with a congested population tends to increase conflict," he says. "Up there, it was much more difficult to work with youth. Everybody had too much money, too many connections."

"Policemen in many areas are actually hated," he said.

"It is much more satisfying down here. I enjoy coming to work.

"It's a lot different than it was up there. That was like knocking your head against a wall.

"Down here, you can see your accomplishments and there are people who appreciate it. I wouldn't leave."

Close Shave Is Out Of Style

MITCHELL, S. D. (AP) — The clean-shaven look is out for Mitchell males.

As part of the Bicentennial Corn Palace Stampede celebration, Mitchell men are required to grow beards or to purchase a $2 shaving permit.

Those who grow a beard will become Brothers of the Brush and will have an opportunity to purchase a button with that designation. Those who are found lacking both beard and permit will be subject to kangaroo court.

Few Right Whales Left

WASHINGTON (AP) — The right whale population once numbered in the tens of thousands but has shrunk to "perhaps fewer than 1,500 individuals," according to Dr. Roger Payne.

Payne explains in the National Geographic that the species got its name from whaling men in the 19th century. To them, "this was the 'right' whale to hunt because it swims slowly, has an unusually rich store of baleen, or whalebone, and floats when dead."

Use Credit Card At Garage Sale

DETROIT, Mich. (UPI) — The credit card has caught up with that American institution known as the garage sale.

When the Motor City decided to get rid of a huge supply of surplus equipment, it held what it called a gargantuan "garage sale" in Cobo Hall, which covers an area of 95,000 square feet — the equivalent of 300 garages.

With major credit cards accepted for purchases, an estimated 25,000 customers paid over $170,000 for such items as old fire alarm boxes, parking meters, Detroit cobblestones labeled "pet rocks," and even an old autopsy table. The sale of memorabilia, scheduled for three days, sold out in two.

CHAIR FILLED

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Dr. Paul F. Boller Jr., professor of history at the University of Massachusetts at Boston, will assume the Lyndon Baines Johnson Chair of U.S. history at Texas Christian University Aug. 1. The position was established in 1973 through a $500,000 endowment of the Brown Foundation of Houston.

Women Fill Positions In Various Fields

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman Editor

Today, a woman's place is anywhere she wants it to be and they play a role in practically every field one can name. Women fill important jobs throughout the economy.

Similar jobs are held by three women, employed by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., Greenville District. Rachel Croom is an assistant engineer, Vivian White is a test deskman, while Claudia Manning is a central office repairperson.

Miss Croom designs and engineers outside plant facilities necessary to meet present and future service requirements. "My job involves planning where and when telephone cable is needed in a certain area," she said.

Using a measuring wheel, she travels throughout this district determining the cable footage in a particular job and she stakes out the area for the new cable. She added that she is handy with a hammer and good at jumping ditches and climbing fences.

After her outside estimates are made, Miss Croom returns to the office and makes a construction drawing of the work she figures will be needed. She also estimates the overall cost of the project and sometimes she has to obtain a right of way easement.

In addition she plans and coordinates projects with state engineers, power company engineers, city engineers and developers.

A Second Look

"I very often receive that second look whereever I am walking along side the highway pushing my wheel or sometimes when I meet an engineer that is not expecting a female to talk or plan a project. Another time that this might happen is anytime I wear my hard hat," Miss Croom commented.

In recalling humorous happenings, Miss Croom said, "While out in the field, I had been chased back to my car by a German sheppard, I have stepped in a muddy ditch and have gotten tangled in a briar patch."

A native of Kinston, Miss Croom attended schools there and has worked with Carolina Tel. and Tel. for 15 years. She is also attending East Carolina University during the evenings.

"I like being outside while I am working—it provides good exercise especially when climbing over fences or jumping ditches, and through walking," she concluded.

Prior to beginning her job as a test deskman, Mrs. White attended a basic electricity school in Rocky Mount. She has been with the company for 15 years and has held her present position for five years.

"I think its advantageous to women employes that the company has provided the opportunity for us to make job advancements. People that are qualified to perform a certain job should be given the opprotunity to do so.

"Basically as a test deskman, we analyze trouble reports from our customers to determine what the trouble maybe and what action should be taken for needed repairs," Mrs. White pointed out.

"We dispatch the trouble as quickly as possible to a telephone repairman in order to give our customers more prompt service—we try to keep our customers happy. The people that operate the testboard are solely responsible for making sure that troubles are cleared as soon as possible.

"For example, when we receive a trouble report we first determine the type of equipment and type of line service that the customer has. We then know what procedure to follow insofar as determining the cause of the customer's problem. Each trouble report is handled individually and given special attention."

"It might be of interest to the public to know that we have a machine that records troubles on customers' lines that they might not be aware of. These troubles are tested and given special attention just as the customers' reports are. This wet weather machine operates at night and records lines with troubles. Often we clear a customer's line and they are not aware that their telephone has had a trouble," Mrs. White commented.

USING A MEASURING WHEEL . . . Miss Rachel Croom travels throughout the Greenville District determining the cable footage in a particular job.

Humorous Reports

"We often receive humorous reports on phone ailments. Sometimes a humorous report of a trouble is more beneficial than a technical one—such as blowing into the phone in order to be able to talk.

"We dispatch on all troubles received from Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Fountain, Snow Hill and Greenville," she added.

Greenville native, Mrs. White has been employed by the telephone company for 15 years.

Schools in electronics and basic electricity held in Rocky Mount were attended by Ms. Manning before she began her job as a central office repairman last September. Prior to that she was a central office clerk, updating directories.

"Our duties are best defined as maintaining and repairing equipment in the office. We also work closely with installer-repairmen when they are installing a new phone or repairing a line," said Ms. Manning.

Coed Scores High In Collegiate Table Tennis

By GEORGE THREEWITTS
ECU News Bureau

Kathy Straw, an East Carolina University student, who lists ping pong as her favorite sport, is most likely the best women's collegiate table tennis player in North Carolina.

A speech, language and auditory pathology major from Old Tappan, N.J., Kathy has for the past four years been blitzing opponents with blurred shots that ricochet wildly from their bats, belt buckles and the walls behind them.

This year, for the second time in a row, she has won the women's single and doubles title at the regional collegiate tournament in Knoxville, Tenn. The tournament, sponsored by the Association of College Unions International, qualified her as not only the collegiate women's champion of North Carolina but South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia as well.

Her doubles partner, Debra Willoughby of Lumberton, is also an ECU student.

In April, Kathy represented the region at the National Collegiate A.C.U.I. tournament in Denver, Colo. Out of a field of 16 entrants in the women's division, she finished fifth.

"I was really pleased with myself," she said. "There were some very good players at the tournament."

Kathy became interested in the sport when she came to ECU four years ago. That was in the wake of the U. S. Table Tennis team's visit to China and a subsequent appearance in this country by the Chinese players.

Unlike many American players who took up the game then and later dropped it, Kathy's interest flourished and her skill improved.

In her first year at ECU she attended the regionals where she finished in third place. She represented ECU again her sophomore year and managed a fourth place finish. But that was the last time she has lost a regional tournament match.

Kathy practices her game about two nights a week with members of a table tennis club at the ECU campus student center. She was instrumental in getting the club organized, and believes that a club is a must for players who want to improve their game.

The modern game, she says, is "speed and spin." It is usually played with an "inverted" rubber bat which features a smooth rubber surface with sponge beneath. The soft rubber and sponge gives more spin to the ball than the hard, pimpled rubber bats that many players use.

Her favorite stroke is a driving topspin produced by a quick upward and forward slice against the ball. The shot, her most consistent, creates an avalanche of rolling spin that usually sends the ball zooming past her opponents' paddles.

"I would love to compete in the National's again," she said. "I had such a great time in Denver this year and I believe I could do even better."

Although she graduates from ECU this spring, she may still get the chance when she enrolls next fall at Ohio University under a graduate associateship in speech pathology.

In Ohio, there are more active table tennis players than in North Carolina and the competition will be keener. But if Kathy can find the time to practice, she will probably be competing in next year's A.C.U.I Regional and National Collegiate tournaments and her chances for a first place finish in the women's divisions of both tournaments will be better than ever.

Author Believes In Cook-Ahead Party Cuisine

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Carol Cutler is a great believer in cook-ahead meals, especially for parties.

She has to be. She wrote her latest cookbook while holding down a full-time job as public affairs officer for the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C.

"One of my criteria is to work my husband's hours, 10 to 6," she said. "We carpool and get home about 6:45. I go up to my office and work until 9 or 9:15, and we eat about 10."

Hours like that would faze most women, but not Mrs. Cutler. As the wife of a journalist (Bernard J. Cutler, now chief editorial writer for a newspaper chain), she lived for years in Europe, where late dining often is customary. The Cutlers spent three years in Moscow, 12 in Paris and traveled a lot when Cutler became roving European columnist for his current employer.

"All this time, I was working as an art critic," Mrs. Cutler said in an interview.

Moving from the Russian capital to Paris is "comparable to being on a water diet, then switching to cream," she said. "I was turned off food for six weeks."

When she regained her appetite, she enrolled in Cordon Bleu and the Paris cooking school operated by Julia Child, Simone Beck and Louisette Bertholle.

"Newspapermen work long, crazy hours," she said. That gave her plenty of time to study fine cooking, to learn what was fresh and top quality, how a sauce was put together." "B.J. has a great plate. I can't cheat at home.

"I insist on a certain kind of table, and people we entertain expect it. I could not lower my standards.

"I left my maid in Paris; she even shopped for me. The American woman today is involved in so much. She has children and PTA meetings, she goes to the theater with her husband ..."

Mrs. Cutler described her new book, The Six-minute Souffle and Other Culinary Delights (Potter, distributed by Crown), as "not the be-all and end-all. In the first book (Haute Cuisine for Your Heart's Delight), I took out the cholesterol. In this one, I took out time.

"I didn't want to sacrifice quality," she said. "I tried to cut down on utensils. The time you spend washing pots and pans is just as important as the time you spend cooking."

One Cutler timesaver: squeeze lemon halves by hand through the end of a dish towel into a bowl or pot. This prevents seeds from falling into the food, saves washing a juicer and helps bleach the towel.

She also wants to put vegetables back in party menus where she said they generally are overlooked.

Her suggestions for first courses for inexpensive company dinners include ice cold tomatoes with hot curry sauce, Danish cauliflower in mustard mayonnaise on leaf lettuce or grapefruit fritters.

Her idea of a marvelous vacation is working in a three-star French restaurant. Last summer she put in three weeks of 10-hour days at a famous restaurant.

"I was a sort of utility infielder," she said of her experience. "I did a little bit of everything. Pastries, fish and sauces, en gelee (jelled dishes), peeled crayfish and artichoke bottoms, hand-sliced potatoes.

"I feel that kind of devotion is going to pass, given the economies of the restaurant world. The long period of apprenticeship is passing, and it is going to show up (in restaurants) in the long run. French women aren't cooking as much, and they won't be as criticial of restaurants."

Greenville District to be employed in her capacity. "After working as an operator, service assistant and clerk, I decided that I wanted to progress to a different area.

"Instead of having a job that required me to sit at a desk or typing, I now have the freedom of moving around and working with sensitive equipment, which I enjoy doing," she replied.

"I do enjoy working with the guys—they have been most helpful and patient while I am in the process of learning," she added.

"Two interesting aspects of my job include tracing a call whether it is 'trouble,' a bomb threat or an obscene phone call through the switches and the fact that all telephones having either 752 or 758 digets are wired into the equipment on the floor where I work," she concluded.

Ms. Manning is president of Communications Workers of America Local 3681, New Bern District, which includes Greenville, Washington, Havelock, Morehead City, Williamston, Kinston and others. All plant and traffic employes are represented in the union, which numbers approximately 700 in this district.

Mrs. Spangler Gives Program

The Sweet Gum Grove Extension Homemakers met Thursday afternoon. The program was presented by Mrs. Evelyn Spangler, Pitt County associate home economics agents.

Mrs. Eloise Futrell opened the meeting with a devotional. Mrs. Mae Briley, family life leader, gave a talk on "What America Means to Me." Mrs. Mayo J. Rogers, citizenship leader, reported on "Landscaping and Gardening."

Mrs. Howard Briley, president, conducted the business meeting and refreshments were served by Mrs. Mae Briley.

Engagement Announced

MISS PHYLLIS DENISE DAWSON . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony O. Dawson of Greenville, who announce her engagement to SP-6 Issac Lee Tyson, USA, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Janie Taft of Greenville. The wedding will take place June 19.

Miss Jane Amelia Wright Weds

MIDDLESEX—Miss Jane Amelia Wright of Middlesex and Monty Alan Riggs of Winterville were married Saturday in the Middlesex Baptist Church at 5:00 p.m. The double ring candlelight ceremony was perfromed by the Rev. Edward Chester Chamblee of Raleigh, uncle of the bride.

Mrs. Frances Chamblee of Middlesex directed the wedding. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Isaiah Strickland of Middlesex, organist, Mrs. Dillard Hopkins of Cameron, soloist, aunt of the bride, and Dr. James M. Chamblee of Murfreesboro, soloist, cousin of the bride.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Jake Hill Wright Jr., of Middlesex. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Manly Riggs of Winterville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of sata peau and cluny lace. The fitted bodice featured a victorian neckline with an illusion yoke and full length bishop sleeves. Bows of cluny lace trimmed the bodice and sleeves. A cluny lace ruffle encircled the collar and cuffs of the sleeves. The full length flared skirt extended into a chapel length train. Rows of cluny lace encircled the skirt of the gown and a lace ruffle bordered the hemline.

The bride's headpiece was a layered mantilla of cluny lace with an illusion blusher attached to the cluny lace cap. She carried a white Bible used by her mother in her wedding, with a cascading bouquet centered with phalaenopsis orchids, pink sweetheart rosebuds, miniature blue and white carnations, baby's breath, ivy and white streamers. The bride removed a miniature white carnation from her bouquet for the bridegroom to wear.

Miss Cathy Tatum of Fayetteville was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of duco dot blue voile. The fitted sleeveless bodice featured a high neckline and natural waistline. A ruffled bib effect trimmed the bodice and encircled the neck. The full length flared skirt fell into a deep flounce hemline. She carried a white parasol basket of mixed spring flowers, miniature carnations, daisies, starflowers, ivy, and streamers of blue, pink, yellow, and nile green. Her white picture hat was decorated with ribbons to match her dress.

The bridesmaids were Miss Rosemarie Hopkins of Cameron, cousin of the bride, Miss Ellen Riggs of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Anne Fitzpatrick of Asheboro, cousin of the bride, Miss Mary Ann Wright of Middlesex, cousin of the bride, Miss Mary Jane Edwards of Spring Hope, and Miss Alix Willcox of Enfield.

Miss Hopkins and Miss Riggs wore pink dresses fashioned like that of the maid of honor. They wore white hats with pink ribbons and carried parasol baskets of flowers like the maid of honor. Miss Fitzpatrick and Miss Wright wore identical yellow dresses with white hats and carried baskets of flowers with yellow streamers. Miss Edwards and Miss Willcox wore dresses of nile green with white hats and carried baskets of flowers with nile green streamers.

Howard Riggs, father of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Gary Riggs of Chapel Hill, brother of the bridegroom, Andy Riggs of Winterville, brother of the bridegroom, Jesse Riggs of Winterville, brother of the bridegroom, Bennie Thompson of Winterville, Jake Wright III of Raleigh, brother of the bride, and Donovan Vinson of Fayetteville.

The mother of the bride wore a blue floor length gown of chiffon and lace. The mother of the bridegroom wore a pink floor length gown. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

Mrs. Elton Lewis, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. J. N. Riggs Sr., grandmother of the bridegroom, wore white carnation corsages to complement their floor length dresses.

The bride's parents held a reception immediately after the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Guests were received by Mr.and Mrs. John Wright, aunt and uncle of the bride.

Assisting with the serving were Mrs. Thelbert Boykin, Mrs. Buzz Hagarman, Mrs. Bobby Cone and Mrs. Autry Lamm. Miss Pam Brantley served at the register. Miss Emily Finch Bailey and Mrs. Jimmy Brantley were in charge of programs.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Winterville.

The bride is a graduate of Southern Nash High School and Campbell College. The bridegroom is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and Campbell College.

An after-rehearsal party was held Friday night given by the bridegroom's parents for the bridal couple, members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The bride and her attendants were honored with a bridal luncheon Saturday in the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Elton Lewis of Middlesex. Hostesses were Mrs. Lewis and the bride's aunts, Mrs. Hugh Fitzpatrick and Mrs. Dillard Hopkins.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

This is a week in the life of a child who wonders how old she is.

MONDAY: "Do you know what you are? You're a baby! When you are 35, I'll be filling your milk glass half full, and your husband will be following you around with paper towls. When are you going to eat like a big girl?"

TUESDAY: "You want me to say yes to your staying out until midnight and then going to someone's house whose mother and father aren't going to be home? You've got plenty of time for that, Missy. Next thing, you'll think you're old enough to pierce your ears. You're just a little girl yet."

WEDNESDAY: "You're too big to sit there with your knees apart. It's time you realized you're a young lady now, and proper ladies do not sit in a chair on their tailbones in an unladylike position. Have you looked in the mirror lately? You're a young lady now."

THURSDAY: "You're reading what? Who told you you were old enough to read trash like that? I know I told you I wanted you to grow up, but not in one afternoon. Until you're old enough I'll take responsibility for what you read. You're a child!"

FRIDAY: "Who took this phone message? There's a digit missing, that's why. When are you going to learn responsibility and take some initiative? If you're mature enough to answer the phone, you should be mature enough to write down a simple message. Get with it. You're practically an adult."

SATURDAY: A learner's permit to drive? No way. Some children are ready to drive at 16. Some aren't. I've seen the way you keep time to the music in a car by rattling a paper cup filled with ice on the dashboard. No siree. You're not ready yet to chase people all over the road in a car. You're too immature."

SUNDAY: "A lot of people get jobs. You're old enough. There are loads of part-time things you could do. Mrs. Fronk wants a babysitter for a week while they go on vacation. You could handle that. After all, in a few years you'll be juggling children of your own. You're mature."

MONDAY: "I've contacted a babysitter to sit with you for a week while Daddy and I make a short trip. Leave you alone? Are you crazy? You're a baby yet. Why is it you never act your age?"

Maybe she doesn't know what it is.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

This is the time of year, before summer's full quota of fruit appears in abundance, to consider "putting up" an old-fashioned conserve made with fresh rhubarb and canned pineapple. It's a delicious spread for toast, biscuits, muffins and other hot breads.

RHUBARB-PINEAPPLE CONSERVE

4 cups sliced (1-inch pieces) rhubarb, about 1½ pounds
20-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
1½ cups sugar
¾ cup light corn syrup
1 tablespoon coarsely grated orange rind
¼ cup orange juice
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts

In a heavy 5-quart saucepot stir together the rhubarb, pineapple, sugar, corn syrup, orange rind and orange juice. Cook over low heat, stirring often, until sugar is dissolved. Increase heat and boil, stirring often, until thick — about 45 minutes; temperature, if tested with a candy thermometer, should reach 220 degrees. Stir in walnuts.

Ladle into clean, hot, dry half-pint wide-mouth jars leaving ¼-inch headspace. Wipe top edge of jars with a damp cloth. Seal according to jar manufacturer's directions.

Process in a boiling water bath for 10 minutes after boiling temperature is reached. Remove and cool on a wire rack or a folded towel. Label, date and store in a cool, dry place. For best flavor, use within 1 year.

Makes five ½-pint jars.

COOKBOOK NOTE

If you missed "The Pleasures of Preserving and Pickling" by Jeanne Lesem (Knopf) when it was published last year, and could use some marvelous recipes, we urge you to look into this cookbook. We've tasted about a dozen of the pickles and relishes, made from recipes in the book, and each was superb. The author first became interested in pickling and preserving when, in her growing-up years, she helped her mother in an Arkansas kitchen, and has been developing her own special recipes ever since. They're all presented with loving care.

Courting Customs Have History

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most famous courting customs of early settlers in the New World was the practice of bundling. With New England houses small, winters cold and firewood scarce, engaged couples were permitted to lie in bed during courting visits — although fully clothed and separated by a board running the north-south axis of the bed.

However, the rock-ribbed Puritans weren't all that permissive. After bundling on Saturday night the eager New England swain still found it a legal taboo to kiss his intended on Sunday!

In the early South, tobacco planters were able to purchase brides — the going rate being one pound of tobacco for each pound of bride. The purchased brides were young English women who had indentured themselves in order to defray their shipboard fare to the colonies. These purchase arrangements marked the beginnings of some of the nation's outstanding southern families.

To insure against any "lawful impediments to weddings taking place," prospective brides and their grooms-to-be posted surety bonds with Massachusetts town officials in the 17th century.

Apocryphal? Old wives tales? No. All true, says a suave former British army officer, A. Raymond Key, a spokesman for the platinum industry.

In the course of his activity in the jewelry industry Key became fascinated with weddings, their history and customs and the part gems and rings play in nuptials, and began studying the subject as a hobby.

His knowledge of the subject soon led to requests to lecture before civic and women's clubs and to appearances on radio talk shows.

According to Key's study, the word "wedding" is derived from early Anglo-Saxon days when children were often betrothed by their parents. The groom's pledge was accompanied by a "wed" or security contract, furnished by his father. The ceremony, as a natural extension, was called the wedding.

The bride's veil is the last vestige of the early-day custom in Plato's Greece when brides were swathed from head to foot in white on their wedding day, according to Key.

"The custom of the marriage ring finger being the fourth finger left hand had its beginnings in ancient times when it was believed that the Venus nerve or vein ran from that digit directly to the heart," Key says.

"More practically," he adds, "it was because the ring finger is well protected on both sides and since the left hand was used less, the ring would be subjected to much less wear."

Betrothal and wedding rings had their start back in early Egyptian times, says, adding that engagement rings with a variety of precious stones became popular in the Middle Ages, with the diamond achieving popularity in the 15th century but not becoming customary until the 1800s.

Betrothal adornments have included rushes and reeds in the early days of history, woven human hair wrist and finger circlets in ancient Ireland and iron bands worn by Romans.

The leather and wooden rings sometimes worn by Puritan women have been replaced by diamonds set in precious metal for the modern woman, Key points out.

Other wedding customs and anecdotes from Key's generous fund include the fact that the "best man" term comes from ancient days when most brides were captured by the groom-to-be, accompanied by his best friend.

It was in Boston in 1759 that the first ad of its kind — seeking "a young woman with 300 or 400 pounds sterling of her own to avoid the tiresome necessity of obtaining parents' permission" — was published in the Boston Evening Post. Even in staid Boston the ad started a trend.

Following the founding of the nation, Philadelphia soon became the center of ultra-lavish wedding balls and parties, some lasting as long as three days.

And a final historical note from Key: In the 18th century the officials of Hartford, Conn., to accelerate the rate of marriages, passed and collected a bachelor and spinster tax of 20 shillings per week for the "selfish luxury of solitary living."

Engagement Announced

MISS GLORIA JEAN PEADEN . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Day Peaden of Rt. 4, Greenville, who announce her engagement to Alfred Gaston Hathaway Jr., son of Mrs. Alfred G. Hathaway of Greenville, and the late Mr. Hathaway. The wedding will take place July 3.

Would Family Tree Invade Privacy?

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you made a big fuss because a teacher asked her students to make a "family tree." You said it was an invasion of privacy.

You sure tipped your mitt on that one, Abby. I'll bet you've never traced your family tree because you're afraid of what they might find.

KURT

DEAR KURT: No, I'm afraid they might send me back a bunch of bananas.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man at work, and we hit it off right away. He's married, but says his wife doesn't care if he goes with other women.

I guess it must be true because he never has to hurry home when we're together, and he can get away to see me whenever he wants to.

This seemed too good to be true, so I told him that I wouldn't see him anymore unless he brought me a note from his wife saying it was okay with her if he went out with me.

He said he'd put her on the phone, but she's not in favor of putting anything in writing.

What do you think, Abby?

I'm 42 and divorced, and I don't want any trouble.

LUCKY

DEAR LUCKY: Note or not, if you don't want any trouble, find yourself a single man. His wife could suddenly change her mind—and your luck!

DEAR ABBY: Last November I became very much attracted to a guy. There was only one problem. He had a 9-month-old baby. He's not married to the baby's mother, and he says the only reason he stays with her is because of the baby.

I am almost positive that he is interested in me. He gives me a ride to school every morning, and we have a lot of fun laughing and talking together.

He says that he and his boyfriends like to go to small towns near here and pick up girls. I'm afraid if I ever went out with him it would lead to something like that, and he would have no more regard for me than he does for the girls he picks up.

I like this guy a lot, but I'm terrified at the thought of having a relationship with him. Yet deep down I would like to. I am 15 and he is 17. Maybe if you print this, he will know I am talking about him and he'll talk to me about it.

DISTURBED IN WISCONSIN

DEAR DISTURBED: A 15-year-old girl needs a relationship with a 17-year-old unwed father like a giraffe needs a sore throat! The word from here is, find other transportation and put as much distance between you and this mixed-up kid as possible.

DEAR ABBY: My husband also has his ear pierced and he wears a small musical note in it to symbolize his profession. I don't particularly like it, but I'm sure I do a lot of things he doesn't particularly like, either.

If we bickered and quarreled over things so trivial, we wouldn't have much of a marriage. So tell MONTANA WIFE to accept her husband for what he is—a unique individual with the courage to do what he wants to do for his own reasons.

Author Calls Italy Matriarchal Society

By JOHN J. MULLINS
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — It is the women, not the men, who run things in the desperately poor mountain villages of southern Italy, says an author who spent about 20 years in the area.

Ann Cornelisen, author of "Women of the Shadows," said in an interview that she thought those women were much the same as the desperately poor in the South and Appalachia sections of the United States.

Her book, the third she has written on the Abruzzo and Lucania regions of Italy, presents a case that society there is a matriarchy, not a patriarchy as others have said.

The women are not placed on pedestals by their men, but they do much of the work, provide much of the family's incomes, and make the decisions that matter.

"There aren't any large decisions," Mrs. Cornelsen said, but "women have taken over all the decisions. They do the work only because there is nobody else. If man could function as he should, they would let him."

The women work in the fields, do other women's housework and errands as well as their own, and cook and care for children.

Bringing about this situation is the lack of jobs for men. The villages provide little outside of working in tiny fields, and there is not much chance of emigrating with great success.

Men can, and do, go north in Italy or to West Germany to find factory jobs. But they have little training or skills, and they get the lowest jobs at half pay if they are lucky enough to get those.

They send money home and return at Christmas and Easter. "The women are left coping with children and life in general," Mrs. Cornelsen said. The coping includes working in the home village, often providing most of the income.

The women, at least of tha older generations, "never contradict what their husbands say," and permit them to think they are running their lives.

"The Italian man really believes he is running things. He forgets his mother ordered him around," Mrs. Cornelsen said, "and his wife learns quickly how to continue the domination."

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

The creator of LUV Originals, Mrs. John Lewis of Winterville explains her counted cross stitch kits "as a hobby that has run over."

In May, 1961, the Lewis family moved to Xanthi, Greece, to live, where they remained for the next eight years. "The town was small and there were no Americans within a 50-minute drive of us. We became very Greek by American standards, but dards. "At least once a week, the Greek ladies had a tea, where they usually did some kind of hard work and the most beautiful work was counted cross stitch. In 1964, I finally decided, in self defense, that I was going to learn how so I wouldn't be the only one with empty hands. I learned and it developed into a passion," recalled Mrs. Lewis.

Continuing she said, "Soon I had a very large collection of D.M.C. patterns from Paris and since I've found them all over the world. I even have one from Russia that is dated 1912. We lived in Turkey and Mexico where I found many beautiful patterns."

"I remembered meeting an artist, Carolyn Hibbard, who had moved to this area from Kansas with her family. She does nostalgia water colors and I knew it was her work I wanted to do in thread. She agreed to try some sketches for me although at the time, she had no idea what I was doing. I worked them up on metrics and so LUV Originals was born.

"I enjoy all the areas that putting together the kits involve. I have spent a week traveling in North Carolina promoting my hobby. I enjoyed seeing the things being done across our state—there are many women doing beautiful and imaginative work," Mrs. Lewis said.

A native of Macon, Mrs. Lewis grew up in Raleigh, where she graduated from Needham Broughton High School. She attended Campbell College for a year and a half and had also studied accounting at Pitt Technical Institute for 15 months. She is now employed by the Pitt County Department of Social Services.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis have a son, Hector.

FOOD SCHEME

DENVER (UPI) — An organization called the African Children's Feeding Scheme is being used to nourish black children in the Johannesburg area and educate mothers about nutrition.

A report in the "School Foodservice Journal" in Denver says the ACFS project originated with Kay Glynn, a South African who serves as its organizing secretary.

Governmental programs to feed children vary from province to province in the nation. The ACFS program is funded partly by the Bantu Administration, roughly comparable to the United States Bureau of Indian Affairs. Donations make up the remainder of its support.

Corned-beef sandwiches benefit from being served with cabbage slaw to which thin strips of Swiss cheese have been added.

Artist Personalizes Wooden Shoe Souvenirs

CAMP NEW AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — Air Force Sgt. Lonnie Thompson has added a personal touch to the traditional wooden shoes that servicemen leaving camp like to take home as a reminder of the time spent in The Netherlands.

An instruments technician in Avionics here and an accomplished artist, Sgt. Thompson draws custom designs on the shoes.

"In Avionics we have a tradition of giving people who are leaving a pair of shoes with our signatures on them," he explains of his hobby. "One day I took one of them and started to doodle."

The sergeant, 23, who has been at Camp New Amsterdam for nearly two years, has been doing increasingly intricate doodling on wooden shoes for the past 16 months. He draws everything freehand, using photographs as models.

Since beginning the work he has compiled a folder of photographs from travel magazines, which he frequently uses.

"One person was a ski buff, so naturally he wanted a ski scene with ski slogans on it," Sgt. Thompson says, citing an example.

Another project the artist recently completed is an 18-inch-high plaster plaque of the 32d Tactical Fighter Squadron's wolfhound emblem. He began the plaque several months ago by carving the emblem in wax and having a silicone rubber mold made. After casting the plaster he hand-painted the plaque. He has also begun a mural for the lounge in the Avionics building.

Sgt. Thompson, whose home town is Idaho Falls, Idaho, has always been interested in art and as a sophomore in high school he sold paintings at traveling art shows.

However, he has no intention of making art a career. When he gets out of the service he intends to continue his interrupted college education. He plans to enter a theological seminary and to become a minister.

Stringfield To Be Honored

The North Carolina Symphony announces that a special Bicentennial ceremony honoring its founding conductor and Pulitzer-Prize-winning composer, Lamar E. Stringfield, will be held May 28 at the orchestra's permanent headquarters at Memorial Auditorium. The ceremony precedes the 8:15 p.m. concert by the Symphony which features the Raleigh Oratorio Society in "Chichester Psalms" by American composer Leonard Bernstein and "German Requiem" by Brahms. Season memberships will be honored and tickets will be available at the door.

This award is part of the Bicentennial Parade of American Music initiated by the National Music Council. The Tar Heel program is sponsored in conjunction with the North Carolina Music Educators Association and the North Carolina Federation of Music Clubs.

Among special guests expected to attend the ceremony will be members of Stringfield's family and musicians who comprised the original North Carolina Symphony.

Lamar Edwin Stringfield was born near Raleigh in 1897 and died in Asheville in 1959. He attended Mars Hill and Wake Forest Colleges, playing in the band at each school. A flutist who received diplomas from the Institute of Music Art in New York City and from the American Orchestral Society, he was eager to organize a symphony orchestra in his native state.

At age 35, he became the Founding Conductor of the North Carolina Symphony, an organization that has grown in the past 44 seasons into a totally professional ensemble composed of 70 fulltime musicians. The budget of the orchestra now tops $1.5 million annually.

The North Carolina Symphony gave its first concert on May 14, 1932, in Hill Hall at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. Performing under Stringfield's baton were 48 volunteer musicians from 16 communities. Included in this group were faculty members from several area colleges.

An authority on folk music and Southern ballads, Stringfield published approximately 150 works, including the orchestral suit "From the Southern Mountains" which won him a Pulitzer Prize in 1928.

Magnificant 'Reflections' On N.C.'s Outer Banks

Reflections. By Donald and Carol McAdoo. Manteo, N.C. Island Publishing House. Forward by Andy Griffith. 103 pps, illustrated in color. Large format 14¼ x 10¼ inches, $14.95. (Autographed, leatherbound edition limited to 1,000 copies, $100).

Increasingly in recent years, writers, artists and travelers with a penchant for sharing their experience in encountering the magic of the Outer Banks have written, photographed and painted their responses in books and articles for magazines and newspapers.

Now, in this bicentennial year, comes Reflections. With 32 full page (in some instances even larger) magnificent color reproductions of paintings by Donald McAdoo, coupled with informative text by his wife, Carol. Reflections is, in brief, that rare book treat—visual delight combined with lucid, entertaining text.

Donald McAdoo's realistic paintings have within them the magnetic quality that leads the mind to abstract explorations beyond what the eye sees. These paintings summon the viewer to share the essence of poetic loneliness inherent in a land where fragility is strength; where nature subtly plays with sky and sand and water as a child plays with dreams.

It is the ever changing impermanency of the landscapes of the Outer Banks that gives the area its spiritual appeal. The distillation of this haunting impermanance Donald McAdoo mirrors (or reflects) as the visual spokesman for all of us who love but cannot articulate the special bond that binds us to this very special world we call the Outer Banks.

Carol McAdoo's text provides all the necessary, mostly familiar basic facts about the land and people that have often been published before.

What makes her generous text a constant pleasure and of exceptional interest is the "take your shoes off and relax" type interviews with a goodly number of old-time residents.

More than any other writer I can recall who has written about the "old timers" on the Outer Banks, Mrs. McAdoo captures the easy-going vigor, the fundamental dignity of these individuals. Wisely, she has let them speak for themselves in their own characteristic manner. This results in many fine passages strongly reminiscent of the forthright charms of oft told folklore.

The story behind the publication of Reflections is one of love and devotion on the part of a number of people. One of those instrumental in seeing this excellent book materialize is Edward (Eddy) Greene. Proprietor of The Island Art Gallery and Christmas Shop, Greene, long an admirer and active advocate of McAdoo's painting, has fostered the dream of a book on his adopted home; one that would combine superb art and good story-telling.

He believed in it with a faith strong enough to venture into establishing a printing firm to see the book published.

Reflections is the fruit of this dream. It fully justifies Greene's faith and the efforts of everyone involved in its production. It's a beautiful book to own, to read, and to cherish.

Jerry Raynor

Note: Also available for purchase is a portfolio of three full-sized, signed and numbered limited edition prints from the book. These are "Chicamacomico" (16 x 28), "Reflections" (16 x 24), and "High and Dry" (17 x 30). The portfolio price is $90 plus $2 postage, and for N.C. residents, $3.60 sales tax available from: Island Publishing House, Drawer 758, Manteo, N.C. 27954.

HIGH AND DRY . . . is the title of this painting by Donald McAdoo of a weathered beached plank boat. The painting, from the collection of Andy Griffith, is one of 32 full color reproductions in "Reflections," a new book on North Carolina's Outer Banks.

Pitt County Students Show Works Of Art

There's a number of portraits of people, some comic looking, some very sad, nearly all endowed with big red circles to designate cheekds, hanging on the walls of the Greenville Art Center.

Most of these portraits also sport boat-shaped eyes. All are the product of students from the Pitt County Schools, and are currently on view at the Greenville Art Center. This is the final in a series of spring student shows from Greenville, the university and the county.

A fairly accurate estimate is that something like a little over 500 individual works are being exhibited in the 1976 Pitt County Student Show, which means all available wall space is a continuous bright maze of viewing pleasure.

Crayon drawings, small ceramics, miniature weavings, paper craft and construction paper collages, some fine abstractions, pencil and ink drawings, textile type patters—these are a few of the varied works by young school artists representing the county's school system.

One distraction —the fine full size quilt in red and white, a class project, is half obscured as it's hung so that the bottom half falls behind a radiator.

For an opportunity to once more realize what fun it is to see a big collection of children's art, the Pitt County Show is a top choice.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET SHEERAN

Pat Hutchins, the author and illustrator of ROSIE'S WALLS and TOM AND SAM, has done it again in DON'T FORGET THE BACON. Her brightly colored pictures are done in cartoon style, set off by the clean white background. The absentminded hero is given a shopping list by his mother—"Six farm eggs, a cake for tea, a pound of pairs and don't forget the bacon." As he and his dog walk to the store the order becomes "Six clothes pegs, a rake for leaves, and a pile of chairs, please." On his return trip, he straightens out the order but—he's forgotten the bacon. The cheerful illustrations, humor, and rhymes are sure to appeal to young children.

A ROBBER! A ROBBER! is the most recent picture book by the husband-and-wife team of Franz and Aliki Brandenburg. The cats from NO SCHOOL TODAY are frightened by noises in their rooms one night. They remain quiet to protect their prized porcelain and postcard collections from the thieves, only to discover in the morning, that Aunt Ann and Uncle Peter were their overnight visitors. There isn't much plot to this story, but the characters are engaging and the events are commonplace enough to appeal to the smallest listener.

Another new book which the pre-school child will enjoy is SOMEDAY, SAID MITCHELL written by Barbara Williams and illustrated by Kay Chorao. Mitchell tells his mother what he will do for her when he is big, a castle to live in, no work to do, she will always have time to play with him. His mother responds, that she needs the help and companionship he can give now. Chorao's soft charcoal drawings are perfect for this simple story, giving it a quiet, dreamy mood.

BIG STAR & HOLLY FARMS ARE HAVING A....

CHICKEN JAMBOREE

STARTS TODAY!

Now's the time to buy chicken during our big Chicken Jamboree. And Holly Farms is the chicken to buy. It's bred and fed to be plump and juicy. It's always U.S.D.A. Inspected. And every piece is always Grade A (or it doesn't reach our store). Shipped chilled, never frozen or packed in ice, so you're not paying for a lot of absorbed water. And it's dated for freshness right on the package. If you haven't tried Holly Farms Chicken before, now's the time. Look for the bright red and yellow ribbon emblem that identifies every package of Holly Farms Chicken. It's the one to pick to be sure.

RATED NUMBER 1

By one of the nation's leading consumer reports. The Fiat 131 was rated higher than the Audi Fox, Mazda Cosmo, Ford Granada and all others in the "compact field."

If you are considering the purchase of a new foreign car be smart. Look at and test drive 2 or 3 before buying. If you don't look and compare car and price you might make a BIG mistake. In reality, foreign cars are higher in price than ought to be, however there is the better car for the better price if you will seek and find it. All we ask is to let us show you what we have to offer.

The WCT Challenge Cup, a series of 15 tennis matches between eight of the game's most accomplished players, reaches its long awaited climax on Sunday, May 23, at 1:30 p.m. on NBC. Since January 21, Arthur Ashe, Rod Laver, Ilie Nastase, John Alexander, Bjorn Borg, John Newcombe, Paul Ramirez and Ken Rosewall have been completing in this tennis extravaganza from Hawaii.

The Challenge Cup series is a whole new concept of professional tennis competition for television. Ten of the fifteen matches have been colorcast 'live' from Keauhou-Kona on the Big Island of Hawaii. The total package as presnted on NBC is a quantum jump in progress from the standpoint of assemblage of tennis talent, prize money, and the communication logistics.

The eight players were divided into two groups, four players per group. The Aloha division was comprised of Ashe, Borg, Newcombe, and Ramirez; while the Mahalo division consisted of Nastase, Rosewall, Laver and Alexander. Each player competed in a round-robin within his group. The three round-robin matches that each athlete participated in was a $10,000 bount, winner-take all.

The four competitors with the best won-lost records in round-robin play would advance into the semi-finals. The player with the best record from the Aloha group plays the man with the second-best record from the Mahalo group and vice-versa. Both semi-final matches are $50,000 winner-take-all events.

Finally, the two winners from the semi-final competition meet in a title match blockbuster, winner-take all $100,000 contest. The winner between Bjorn Borg (won two, lost one in round-robin play and finished second in the Aloha division) and Ilie Nastase (won all three matches in round-robin-play and finished first in the Mahalo group) will meet the winner between Arthur Ashe (won all three matches in round-robin-play to finish first in the Aloha division) and Ken Rosewall (won two, lost one in round-robin-play and finished second in the Mahalo group) in the grand finale.

If a player goes undefeated through all five matches, he will walk off with $180,000. The total purse amounts to $320,000, the most prize money that has ever been offered in such tennis competition.

'Pursuit Of Happiness' Explored Thursday

"On the program Brinkley will evaluate whether Americans have achieved happiness, whether we are a happy people. Well, the results of that report are astonishing — 72 percent of Americans reveal they are happy. . ."

Executive producer Robert "Shad" Northshield is talking about the NBC News special, "The Pursuit of Happiness," the third program in the trilogy of prime-time Bicentennial documentaries designed to showcase the American experience during the last 200 years. The program, narrated by NBC News correspondent David Brinkley, will be colorcast Thursday, May 27, 9:30 to 11 p.m., on Channel 6-7.

The special will explore the meaning of Thomas Jefferson's words are represented in the second sentence of the Declaration of Independence at all men ". . .are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," said Northshield.

"In this program, Brinkley will explore whether the American idea equates property with happiness. Are property and happiness the same thing? In recent years there has been a growing awareness that material wealth, material advantage is not the same thing as happiness. And is certainly doesn't guarantee it. Reporting from the four corners of the continental United States, Brinkley will examine how Americans pursue their happiness, and whether Americans are truly a happy people."

Examining the results of an extensive survey conducted by Columbia University and Psychology Today magazine, in which more than 50,000 people across the country were interviewed, Brinkley reports on the concensus on what makes people happy.

For example: 72 percent of all Americans are on the happy side of neutral; 83 percent are optimistic about their lives; 13 percent say they are unhappy, but fewer than 10 percent are sour about their lives.

Happy people feel their lives are meaningful, have a sense that they can control good events.

Some define happiness as getting what one wants. The survey indicates that wants vary, and so therefore do definitions of happiness. Happy people are not happy about everything.

Cave Men Star As Comic Strip Characters

Comic strips did not begin when Little Orphan Annie skipped into her first scrape 47 years ago. Nor did they make their debut with Mutt and Jeff, whose age just qualified them for senior citizenship, or with the Katzenjammer Kids in 1897 or even with The Yellow Kid, whose appearance in a single sketch in the New York World in 1896 developed into a series considered to be the first big step toward modern cartooning.

According to cartoonist Johnny Hart, cave men started the art form that has resulted in the creation of Little Orphan Annie, Dick Tracy, Brenda Starr and all the other famous comic strip characters portrayed on "The Fabulous Funnies," a light hearted musical salute to the world of comic strips to be rebroadcast Tuesday, May 25, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC. Carl Reiner is the host with special guests Ken Berry, the Royal Guardsmen, Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber who will be bringing to life what may well have been the world's first medium of communication.

The very word 'cartoon' was once used to describe models for tapestries, mosaics and frescoes. That was in an era when satiric drawings were called "caricatures" or "hieroglyphics."

Hart's explanation of a much earlier time when a cave man sketching a bison with oversized feet and a funny nose first realized that such "art" on a cave wall could provoke his grunting neighbors to laugh and poke each other with masive elbows may be tongue-in-cheek, but ancient history proves that his theory is not without some basis.

In 1150 A.D., the French had a Bayeux tapestry, an embroidery depicting the wars between William the Conquerer and Harold of England. The huge objet d-art, which ended with the Battle of Hastings, was done in color segments explained by brief 'legends,' the 1150 A.D. word of captions. Eight hundred years ago it was primarily a mode of communication, although now it is considered to be an artistic masterpiece.

The tapestry, which is 230' long by 20" high, would never fit within the confines of a newspaper page, but it does fit the modern definition of a cartoon strip — a story laid out in a series of pictures and concerning a consistent character or set of characters.

John Davidson — Show Premieres

"The John Davidson Show" premieres Monday, May 24, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Ch. 6-7, with a host of guest stars.

Guesting on the comedy - variety hour are Academy Award winner George Burns, country singer Tanya Tucker, and Jimmie Walker, star of TV's "Good Times." Also featured will be comedian - musician Pete Barbutti and the Lenny Stack Orchestra.

Davidson sings "It's a Miracle" and "You Are So Beautiful" and joins Tanya Tucker for a medley called "Country Pain." Tanya performs "You've Got Me to Hold Onto" and Jimmie Walker sings "Abba, Dabba, Honeymoon."

Following in informal chat with Davidson, 80-year-old comedian George Burns answers questions from the audience dealing with his career in vaudeville, his reaction to winning an Oscar this year, and his plans for the future.

Other highlights of the hour are a medley of currently popular tunes and excerpts from some catchy commercials as sung and spoofed by Davidson.

Members of the studio audience are incorporated into the show. Davidson walks up and down the aisles with a hand microphone, and uses members of the studio audience to assist him in making introductions or in telling jokes.

John Davidson is not only a variety performer but has done situation comedy and dramatic acting, has made recordings, has appeared as a panelist on talk shows and has been host of the "Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

NEW LOOK—John Davidson will star in a "new look" musical-variety series "The John Davidson Show" to be colorcast on Mondays starting May 24 for four weeks (8-9 p.m.) on NBC Channels 6-7.

INDIANAPOLIS 500—Live coverage of the Indianapolis 500 time trials will be seen on ABC-TV Sunday, May 23 at 6 p.m. Although Mario Andretti will not drive at Indy this year, the field is filled with other greats: Wally Dallenbach, A.J. Foyt, Gordon Johncock, Johnny Rutherford, Tom Sneva, Al Unser and Bobby Unser, and many more.

Time Trials Held For Indianapolis 500

The world's top drivers compete for position in a great racing event at the Indianapolis 500 Time Trials. ABC Sports covers the action of the final qualifying round on Sunday, May 23, at 6 p.m. This is the culmination of nearly a month of time trials that will decide the final field of 33 cars.

As certain as the roar of high speed engines around the "old brickyard" in the month of May is the art of sandbagging. The obvious result of sandbagging is most noticeable on the very first day of qualifications when — for no apparent reason — certain cars speed around the track 3 to 10 miles an hour faster than their best practice runs.

These cars have actually been running much faster in practice than their unofficial clockings indicated. The drivers have intentionally eased off the throttle at specific intervals on each of the four laps so that no one lap reflects the true potential of the car.

The slower speeds can lull the other crews into a false sense of complacency as to the actual capabilities of a car, rather than terrifying them to improve their own machines.

Normally, a team will place four timers in the four turns, thus dividing the 2½ mile oval into fourths. The timers are told in advance which three laps will be flatout and which one will be sandbagged.

After the practice runs, a comparison of the three best times from each of the timers will provide a more accurate picture of the car's potential.

The Indianapolis 500 is the richest and most exciting auto race. The time trials — the race against the clock that determines the fastest cars and their position on the field — are attended by nearly a quarter of a million people. Each car races against the clock on the two - and - one - half - mile rectangular track.

Cousteau, Calypso Divers Explore Undersea World

The world of the grouper will be explored on "The Fish That Swallowed Jonah" to air Sunday, May 23 (7-8 p.m.) on "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau" on ABC Channels 3W-12.

Captain Jacques Cousteau and the divers of the Calypso explore the world of the grouper in "The Fish That Swallowed Jonah," a presentation of the ABC News award-winning sries, "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau," airing Sunday, May 23, 7 to 8 p.m., on ABC-TV.

According to Joseph Campanella, narrator for the telecast, the Bible story relates that "it was a whale that swallowed Jonah, but a whale's throat is too narrow a passage for a man. Only a giant, thousand-pounder grouper could have even temporarily inhaled Jonah."

Could a huge grouper have formed the basis for Jonah's legend? The question is historically moot, but physically within the realm of possibility, ws the Cousteau expidition notes. Members of the 400 species of groupers range from tiny one-inch fish to massive giants, and all feed by suction, swallowing whole prey often nearly as large as themselves.

Captain Cousteau's pursuit of the grouper for a study of its life style takes the crew to locations including the underwater caves of Isla Mujeres off Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula and the lush coral gardens of the world's second largest reef, off the coast of Belize (British Honduras).

At the latter site, oceanographic explorers are on hand to witness one of nature's most amazing spectacles — the annual pilgrimage by thousands of groupers traveling from widely dispersed areas to one small section of reef for their spawning frenzy.

It remains a mystery why over the centuries groupers have always returned to the very spot, a mere 150 yards in diameter. The annual grouper season, however, has been and remains a mainstay natural resource for the fishermen of the ara — a resource that may be rapidly depleted.

As Cousteau discovers, the native fishermen are on the verage of mechanization, and he fears that the introduction of the outboard motor could have disastrous effects on the gruper population, with perhaps as high as 95 percent of the spawning groupers netted each year.

Assisting the Calypso crew in their study of the grouper are expert marine biologists Phillip Dustan and Ian Robertson, Director of Belize Fisheries.

Rock Hudson Is Back Next Season

Rock Hudson will star in six 90-minute segments of "McMillan" when the series enters its sixth season as part of the "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" this fall.

Hudson will continue in his role as a police commissioner active in investigating crimes.

The 1976-77 season calls for six 90-minute "McMillan" dramas to be colorcast at a new time - 8 to 9:30 p.m. - Sundays.

In the coming season, the show will feature other changes, including different characters in key supporting roles.

The handsome actor has shuttled in and out of bedrooms, won the West, gunned his way through stark drama, outwitted international spies, scored the last - second touchdown, brought in Oklahoma oil gushers, got the girl and never lost a battle in his 25 years of acting.

Hudson wanted to be an actor since childhood and his dreams of a successful career came true with his role in "Magnificent Obsession," with leading lady Jane Wyman.

A few of his other leading ladies who followed Miss Wyman were Elizabeth Taylor, Lauren Bacall, Doris Day, Arlene Dahl, Anne Baxter, Julie Adams, Barbara Rush, Agnes Moorehead and Ursula Theiss.

To date, Hudson has made 59 movies but he cites "Giant" and "Seconds" as his favorites.

He resides in a spacious Spanish - style Beverly Hills home (where he's lived for 13 years).

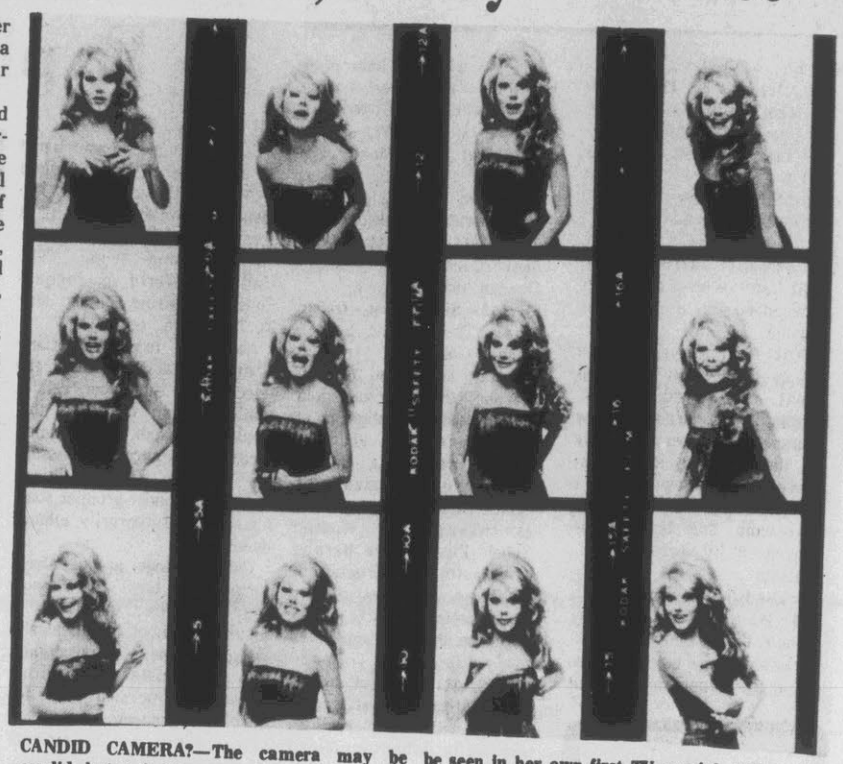
Has One Name, Many Talents



CANDID CAMERA?—The camera may be candid, but so is Charo, as she runs rapid-fire through a series of the poses which have nearly become her trademark. Her multiple talents will be seen in her own first TV special, "Charo," airing Monday, May 24 (8-8:30 p.m.) on ABC Channels 3W,5,12.

There's a street named after her in her native town of Murcia in Southern Spain — a singular honor for any performer.

And it's a well - deserved tribute, for there are few performers who combine the charisma, ebullience, individual style and multiple talents of Charo, the exciting blonde whose own first television special, "Charo," will be presented Monday, May 24, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on ABC Channel 3-5-12.

Charo sings, dances, plays outstanding flamenco guitar and is possessed of a comedic skill, which begins with, but far transcends the fractured English which has become her hallmark.

She has been described as a Spanish - spiced comedienne reflecting the verve and fireworks of an Iberian fair. Her dance style combines flamenco and Egyptian movements, and she can sing Jewish songs with a sufficiency of schmaltz to cover a generous portion of chopped liver.

She takes her career seriously, but she kids her image as a "sex symbol." It's there, though, anyway you look at it.

Midway through her nightclub act, Charo tells her audience: "Many people think I am an idiot. I think I am a genius."

Who can argue that premise with someone who can do so many things so well?

On her special, Charo plays a role she is completely familiar with - herself. The telecast is based on her experiences and amusing misadventures in adjusting to life in America after arriving in her adopted homeland from Spain. It's quintessential Charo - funny, touching, vulnerable and as effervescent as sparkling champagne.

Convent - bred Charo was only ten years old when she gave her first concert at the Teatro Romea in Murcia. And, at 15 - while living in Madrid and studying with several of Spain's foremost classical guitarists - she was recording and on local television.

She made her film debut in "Don Juan Teniorio," a Spanish classic, and, two pictures later, she was acclaimed Spain's newest superstar.

In 1966, while appearing in a Madrid stage production of "The Night of the Iguana," she was "discovered" by famed bandleader Xavier Cugat, who brought her to New York to appear with his orchestra at the Waldorf - Astoria.

Cugat garbed her in a lowcut dress and had her learn Abbe Lane's former routines. Then came opening night.

"I took off thees dress," Charo recalls, "and put on a white sweater, black pants and boots. Then, I picked up my guitar and walked out on the stage. Cugie took one look and almost - how you say? - passed up!

"I make beeg hit with audience, but, when I walk off, Cugies says to me, 'Tomorrow I give you return ticket to Madrid.' Next day his brother Enrique takes my sister and me to breakfast and tell me Cugie change his mind. He feel sorry for me and want me to stay.

"Later, I find out the truth. All the New York critics say nice things after the opening, like 'Cugat discovers a star,' and 'Cugat finds a great, new talent,' and business at the Waldorf is very great."

Charo pauses for a reminiscent chuckle. "That Cugie," she says, "always putting me off. I marry him because I love him, but one thing is even better; I like him."

'Senior Year' Evokes Many Memories

The sometimes poignant, often funny growing pains of teenagers are explored in "Senior Year," to be rebroadcast as "The CBS Late Movie" Monday, May 24, 11:30 p.m., on Channel 3N-9-11.

Starring are Gary Frank and Glynnis O'Connor as high school seniors Jeff and Anita, who are involved in a troubled case of puppy love. The drama looks back nostalgically to a beginning of the end of innocence for the seniors at Southwest High. Jeff and Anita's youthful romance runs into family tragedy that plunges the young people into responsibilities beyond their years. Life also changes for Jeff's closest friend Stash and their classmates, the shy Moose and make-out artist Charlie.

It may come as a surprise to adults viewing "Senior Year" that their teen-age years really weren't much different from today's teen-agers.

At least, that's the opinions of Frank and Miss O'Connor, who qualify fairly well as representatives of present-day teen-agers. She's 19, and he has been out of his teens only a few years.

"The movie should arouse a large amount of nostalgia among viewers who were in high school 20 years ago. When they see us, they'll probably tell themselves they sure were quaint and different compared to today's youngsters," said Miss O'Connor.

"I've read about life in America in the 1950s, and I've concluded that kids then must have been very much like kids are now. Then, when 1950 teenagers tell me stories about their high-school days and explain how they reacted to things, I just can't see much difference from the way my friends and I are. We have most of the same values."

Says Gary Frank on the subject:

"I go along with Glynnis. I also talked to a lot of people who were in high school in the 1950s. They say things like, 'High school kids of today must be weird—they certainly look it,' or 'We thought we were hip and knew it all, but compared to kids today we were babes in the woods.' They say complimentary things about today's kids and they say critical things, but they always stress how different they are from the kids of the '50s.

Feats Are Astounding

Three young women will be seen as they achieve new historic milestones in the annals of human endeavor — in belly dancing, tap dancing and laughing — in "The Fifth David Frost Presents the Guinness Book of World Records," a "Wide World: Special" rebroadcast Monday, May 24, 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

They are Jeri Witanovich, who belly dances her way to a new record, dancing seven and three-quarter hours nonstop; tap dancer Dorothy Nichols, who hoofed for five continuous hours, and laugher Ann Schalla, who guffawed for four hours without stopping.

'Fabulous Funnies' Presented

'FUNNIES' FOR BERRY—That's Ken Berry in Confederate garb reading the comics during a production number for "The Fabulous Funnies," the musical special saluting the world of comic strips which will be rebroadcast Tuesday, May 25 (8-9 p.m.) on NBC Channels 6-7.

Some of America's favorite comic strip characters of past and present - including Dick Tracy, Peanuts, Nancy, Prince Valiant, Henry, Brenda Starr and Little Orphan Annie - are featured in musical numbers, animated sequences and film clips in "The Fabulous Funnies," a special combining live action and animation which will be colorcast again Tuesday, May 25, 8 to 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

Carl Reiner is host of this salute to the world of comic strips. The Doodletown Pipes are special guest stars; Ken Berry, the Royal Guardsmen and the comedy team of Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber are guest stars.

The special reports on the evolution of comic strips and the impact they have had on American culture while entertaining millions for more than three quarters of a century.

Musical highlights include "Jubilation T. Cornpone" from the stage show, "Li'l Abner," performed by the Doodletown Pipers and Berry; "Alley Ooop," by the Doodletown Pipers; "Snoopy vs. the Red Baron," told in song, animation and live action and featuring the Royal Guardsmen. Other songs inspired by comic strips which are in the special: "Yes, We Have No Bananas," "Barney Google" and "Happiness Is Eating a Crayon," performed by the Doodletown Pipers, and "Little Orphan Annie," by Reiner. He is seen as an animated character introducing many of the comic favorites. He also provides the voices for his animated guests, including Little Orphan Annie.

Bugs Bunny Is Back

Wittier than "MASH," funnier than Johnny Carson, and more valuable than Barbara Walters is Bugs Bunny, who comes hopping onto the TV screen Tuesday, May 25, 8 to 8:30 p.m., on CBS. This milestone in Desperation Programming also happens to be a delightful breath of fresh air as Bugs, now 36-years-old, romps helter-skelter through four short subjects which comprise "The Bugs Bunny Road Runner Show."

One of the four jewels is a six-minute play written back in 1955 about a construction worker who finds a singing frog in a demolished building. The frog warbles "Hello, My Baby," "Come Back to Erin," "I'm Just Wild About Harry," and "The Michigan Rag." But, alas! He only sings when he is alone. When the poor man tries to get his 'discovery' to sing for anyone else, the frog just frowns and croaks.

In another 'shortie,' Daffy Duck plays a frustrated janitor at a movie studio who is bitter with envy over Bugs Bunny, the big-time movie star. Convinced he has more acting talents than Bugs, Daffy is determined to get into one of the star's pictures and steal the spotlight.

In "What's Opera, Doc?", Bugs Bunny plays another actor, but this time in an opera with Elmer Fudd (garbed in a Viking costume) who chases Bugs, costumed in a blonde wig and flimsy dress.

A tremendous amount of creativity and inventiveness are in the cartoons, which actually were not made for children. However, they've been knocking around from one network to another for the past nine years.

Eastwood Stars In 'Hang 'Em High'

After Clint Eastwood escapes the noose just one desperate breath before the end, he becomes a relentless lawman, leading the guilty to the rope in "Hang 'Em High," a western adventure of bitterness and-nevenge, on the "ABC Sunday Night Movie," May 23, 9 to 11 p.m.

Inger Stevens, Ed Begley and Pat Hingle are also starred in the first western that Eastwood made in this country after establishing himself as a new kind of superstar, in "A Fistful of Dollars" and other box-office record makers filmed in Italy.

In the Oklahoma territory in 1873, a drifter named Jed Cooper (Eastwood) is being hanged as a killer and rustler by Cap'n Wilson (Begley), who doesn't always wait for a trial before execution.

At the last breathless minute Jed is cut down, proof is provided that he is neither killer nor rustler, and the nervous judge (Hingle) appoints him deputy marshal, hoping that Jed will not seek revenge on Wilson and his men.

Jed is intensely devoted to his job, bringing the territory's roughest criminals to the gallons at Fort Frat (actually modeled after the gallows originally used in Fort Smith, Ark., in 1870).

There is more than concern for law and order in Jed's intensity. He is looking for the men who tried to lynch him. When some of those men gun him down to end his search, he is nursed back to health by a woman (Miss Stevens), who has shared his interest in criminals. She, he discovers, is looking for the man who killed her husband and assaulted her.

COWBOY—Clint Eastwood stars as a man bent on vengeance against those who had him strung up for a crime he didn't commit in "Hang 'em High," on the ABC Sunday Night Movie, May 23 (9-11 p.m.) on Channels 3W,5,12.

'Bermuda Triangle' Presented Thursday

Fred MacMurray stars as a contented, wealthy retiree whose life is suddenly filled with fascination and then grief when personal acquaintances vanish off the Florida coast in "Beyond the Bermuda Triangle," a World Premiere drama airing as the "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" May 27, 8 to 9:30 p.m., on Channel 6.

MacMurray portrays Harry Ballanger, a man who leads a relaxed day-to-day existence aboard a luxurious yacht in a wealthy southern Florida community.

When a lone pilot vanishes and then a friend and his new wife disappear on their honeymoon, Ballanger's attention is drawn to the area known as the Bermuda Triangle. For decades, this off shore area has been a place where planes and ships have disappeared without a trace of evidence that they ever existed.

After Wendy, the daughter of the newlyweds, pleads for answers and his assistance, Harry visits an expert on The Bermuda Triangle. In the meantime, Jed, a young racing boat builder and Claudia, Wendy's guardian, seek their own answers.

Harry proposes to Jill, and hours after she has told him that she will marry him, she disappears. While she is never found, her sailboat is.

McClure Stars As Welder

Being a movie makeup man isn't all face powder, lipstick and phony blood. Just ask Jerry Cash, who spent an entire week trying to get a tattoo to stay on the brawny arm of actor Doug McClure.

In "Playmates," a romantic comedy airing on the "Wednesday Movie of the Week," May 26, at 11:30 p.m. on ABC Channel 3W-5-12, McClure stars as a rugged welder with at too of a cupid heart and the inscription "Patty" on his right bicep.

"No actor has to have a real tattoo," Cash explained. "We usually make a paper transfer to apply to the skin, but Doug turned out to be allergic to the dye we usually use. Everytime we put the tattoo on, his arm turned as red as the heart."

Producer Lillian Gallo and director Ted Flicker still considered the tattoo vital to the character. Cash solved the problem caused by the dye, but immediately ran into another.

"A dermatologist helped me find a non-allergic that wouldn't hurt his skin," he said. "But the major scene, in which the tattoo would be seen, was a fight where Doug was sure to work up a sweat. Every time that happened, the dye would run."

Divorces Mix It Up

PLAYMATES—Alan Alda, Connie Stevens, Doug McClure and Barbara Feldon (l to r) are the "Playmates" in a rebroadcast of the film on the "Wednesday Movie of the Week" May 26, at 11:30 p.m. on ABC Channels 3W,5,12.

After two divorced men become friends, each secretly begins a romance with the other's ex-wife, causing even more complications than the original marriages did in "Playmates," a modern comedy airing on ABC-TV's "Wednesday Movie of the Week," May 26, at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 3-5-12.

Alan Alda, Barbara Feldon and Doug McClure star, with Connie Stevens as special guest star. Eileen Brennan, Severn Darden, Bryan Scott, Tiger Williams and Roger Bower co-star.

When Marshall Burnett (Alda) and Kermit Holvey (McClure) meet through their sons at Kiddieland, the two men seem to share nothing in common except their divorces and mutual loneliness, but a need to exchange sad tales of marital disasters leads the wealthy lawyer and the brawny welder to form an unlikely friendship.

Being curious about the ex-wives they are dicussing, they devise a sly plan to meet and evaluate the ladies in question, but these seemingly simple meetings turn into romantic problems and angry outbursts.

He's An Actor Not A Clown

James Garner stars as the old West's most clever con artist, a man who sells his most prized possession - his 'slave' - in town after town, in "Skin Game," to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," May 28, 8 to 10 p.m., on CBS Channel 9-11.

Lou Gossett co-stars as the 'slave,' along with Edward Asner of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." Brenda Sykes and Andrew Duggan are seen in important roles in the film.

Quincy Drew passes himself off as a plantation owner forced to sell his only real possession, his slave, Jason O'Rourke. Once money changes hands, Quincy helps Jason, who is actually a well-educated man, escape. However, Quincy and Jason meet their match in a reckless con girl named Ginger and a ruthless slave trader.

Harry Keller produced, Paul Bogart directed, and Pierre Marton wrote the screenplay from a story by Richard A. Simmons for the 1971 Warner Bros. release.

Has New Daughters

A daring escape plan is devised by Joshua Cabe's three beautiful 'daughters' when he is unjustly imprisoned on a murder charge in "The New Daughters of Joshua Cabe" on "The ABC Saturday Night Movie," May 29, 8:30 to 10:00 P.M., on Ch. 3W-5-12.

In the new comedy-drama special depicting the adventures of the three city-wise girls in the Wyoming Territory in 1880, Josh, concerned that his homestead claim will be taken from him because the girls are not really his daughters, goes to see the man who is trying to get his land.

Later, when the man is found murdered, Josh, who had been overheard threatening to kill him, is tried and sentenced to hang. With only a few hours before his scheduled execution, the girls scheme to free him before time runs out.

Here Comes The Bride, There Goes The Bride

The bride and groom step forward. The minister begins to read: "Dearly beloved. We assemble here to join together . . . ."

The scene is from "Here Comes the Bride, There Goes the Bride," to be colorcast on "The Best of Sanford and Son" Wednesday, May 26, 9 to 9:30 p.m., on NBC Ch. 6-7. The episode was originally telecast Jan. 28, 1972.

The minister is an actor named Alvin Childress. He played Amos on the television series "Amos 'n Andy," his first TV role.

"We did 68 or 70 of those shows," Childress recalls, "but the reruns were on for 13 years. They're probably still on somewhere. It was one of the first major shows to move from radio to television."

Childress's role in "Here Comes the Bride, There Goes the Bride" resulted in two reunions for him: Lillian Randolph, who appears as Aunt Hazel in the episode, was Madame Queen in "Amos 'n Andy"; and Lance Taylor Sr., who plays Uncle Edgar, was a fellow actor in the 1944 Broadway production of "Anna Lucasta."

Alvin, a charter member of the American Negro Theatre, only does one or two acting roles a year. He works for the County of Los Angeles in the Personnel Department. He says that people at the office know of his background as an actor and he still gets requests for autographs.

Demond Wilson, who has been Lamont on the hit comedy series "Sanford and Son" for five seasons, still has to explain to people he meets that he is not a comedian but an actor.

"People ask me to tell a joke or entertain at a benefit or something," says Wilson, "and they are really surprised when I tell them that's not my line. I suppose they look at the show and laugh and don't realize that Lamont is setting up the jokes for Fred (Redd Foxx).

"Redd is a comedian and one of the greatest in the business. He has taught me a lot about comedy and it has enriched my scope. But I still don't consider myself a comedian."

Wilson grew up in the theater, starting as a child in the play "Green Pastures." He appeared in several plays in New York including "Five on the Black Hand Side" and "Boys in the Band."

" 'Sandord and Son,' " he added, "is definately the best thing that has happened to my career. It is an invaluable experience."

'Tomorrow' Has People Team

NBC-TV's "Tomorrow" series, hosted by Tom Snyder, will present its 550 program Thursday, May 27, 1 to 2 a.m.

This milestone will probably command only a casual on-the-air remark from Snyder but it will kindle inner warmth within the host and the series production team.

"Tomorrow" is co-produced by Pamela Burke, 31, a slim, trim, with-it blonde, and Bruce McKay, 27, a tall, athletic, articulate quipster. They are believed to be among the youngest producers of a current network television series.

Both Pam and Bruce share responsibilities and take enormous satisfaction in the record of many notable firsts scored by the late night series, with which they were associated even before the program's premiere on Oct. 15, 1973. "Tomorrow" is their only television job. Pam began as a researcher in August, 1973, after a versatile career in journalism; and Bruce joined as a staff assistant in September, 1973, after acquiring an M.A. in journalism from Syracuse University.

Though most TV series customarily have only one producer, both Pam and Bruce consider it as asset for "Tomorrow" to have two.

"We have remarkably similar tastes," Bruce says, "and because we have worked together since the beginning we have the same instincts regarding what themes and guests will play well."

In this era of female sensitivity to the hitherto male-dominated society, Pam hastens to explain their working relationship: "We're a team but not a male-female team. We're a people team."

Pam admits, however, to a more than passing interest in trying to present more women on the show. "We're constantly looking to balance out the show with women guests, but they're hard to find."

Bruce adds: "Unfortunately, it's a reflection of our times. In spite of this, we've managed to have many outstanding women guests including Clare Boothe Luce, Coretta King, Madame Nhu, Lillian Gish. Gloria Swanson and even an entire hour with Xaviera Hollander."

Pike's Peeks

HOLLYWOOD—Richard Masur, who co-stars as David in "One Day at a Time," is leaving the series after the first four episodes of the new Fall season. The reason is because of the belief that Richard's TV romance with series star Bonnie Franklin is too restrictive to the future storylines of the show.

Although this upcoming season is the last for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," look for Ed Asner to star in his own series the following year. Ed might continue his portrayal as Mr. Grant, or create a new character in the new show.

Sitting side-by-side at the recent CBS affiliates banquet were Sonny Bono and girlfriend Suzie Coehlo. It certainly appeared that Sonny doesn't miss Cher off camera.

Angie Dickinson is very upset with NBC's decision to move her successful "Police Woman" from Fridays to Tuesdays this next season. As she said, in commenting about what she's been doing to change the network's mind, "I've been raising hell!"

It's very likely that Louise Lasser, star of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," will be 'sentenced' to a drug rehabilitation program in the aftermath of her arrest for possession of cocaine. That's the standard procedure for a first-time offender in California.

Another 'first' for NBC and the 'Tonight Show' will be May 24th when Barbara Walters will be substitute host.

Word is that next season changes in the "Good Times" series will be the 'death' of Florida's husband, James (John Amos). Esther Rolle as a widow and Jimmie Walker as the man of the house presents endless comedy potential.

Bette Midler's off to Hawaii for rest and relaxation before she starts filming her first motion picture later this summer.

Julie Andrews' first PBS special, "The Puzzle Children," is scheduled to air October 18 on the full PBS network. The show will mark the start of a national campaign to help children's learning problems.

BICENTENNIAL 'PARTY' PLANNED

CBS-TV will present a bicentennial Fourth of July "birthday party" this year — running 16 hours, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Walter Cronkite will anchor the special which is titled "In Celebration of Us." Stars who will 'attend" include Valerie Harper, Danny Kaye and Beverly Sills.

Among the highlights will be Dan Rather reporting on a reenactment of the Battle of Gettysburg; an Indian 'pow-wow' in Carnegie, Okla., and President Ford at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, Pa.

FAILURES?—Students are filmed as they go through their day in a variety of programs at Evanston (Ill.) High School as part of the documentary, "ABC News Closeup: American Schools—Flunking the Test," airing Thursday, May 27 (10-11 p.m.) on Channels 3W-12.

Failures Explored

Public education in the United States costs more than $100 billion a year. But what is the value of a diploma from the public school system?

ABC News explores the answers in the documentary special, "ABC News Closeup: American Schools — Flunking the Test," airing Thursday, May 27, 10 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3-12.

Discussing the special, Marlene Sanders, ABC News Vice President and Director of Television Documentaries, said: "From 10 to 20 percent of the students graduating from our high schools, according to recent estimates, are functional illiterates. And many of those who have taken college preparatory courses must enroll in remedial reading and writing classes when they enter college.

"Our report looks at what is happening to students and why. We also examine the impact of the dilemma confronting schools across the country - taxpayer demands to cut back on budgets after years of expansion and the increasing militancy of teachers seeking more."

"ABC News Closeup: American Schools — Flunking the Test" is produced and written by Alice Herb. Steve Bell is the narrator and Brit Hume is the reporter.

'The Burglars' Is A Suspense Thriller

Jean-Paul Belmondo, Omar Sharif, Dyan Cannon and the sweeping beauty of the Greek Mediterranean provide the international flavor for "The Burglars," a suspense thriller about a gang of jewel thieves, a cover girl model and a crooked cop, making its television premier as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," May 28, 9 to 11 p.m., on Channel 3W-5-12.

A highly sophisticated computer makes safecracking a breeze for the four stickyfingered heist artists, but ship repairs stick their spoils-a fortune in emeralds-in a Mediterranean port for five days, making everyone very nervous.

The leader of the group, Azad (Belmondo), has been recognized by a police officer, Zacharia (Sharif), whose all-consuming interest is in crime and payment. After treating two of the other thieves in the most umpleasant manner possible, Zachazia offers Azad his freedom in exchange for a liar's share of the loot.

Unwilling to share his lardly earned gains with the lawless lawman, Azad slips away for a brief but distressingly revealing meeting with his lady love Dyan Cannon) before taking Zacharia to the warehouse where the gems are hidden and treating him to a terminal lesson in ethics.

A REAL WINNER

Ann Williams (Eunice Wyatt on "Search For Tomorrow") was pleased when her horse, Predious Little, won the pre-Olympic trials.

Busing Controversy Discussed

What busing of children has meant to two cities deeply affected by court-ordered integration of the public scools will be examined in CBS Reports: "Busing," Friday, May 28, 10 to 11 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

The two cities are Charlotte, North Carolina, where classes are operating relatively peacefully after five years of busing, and Boston, Massachusetts, where a number of schools and neighborhoods involved are still in a condition of tension and turmoil.

The North Carolina district, Charlotte Mecklenburg, began busing to achieve integration in 1970, as a result of an order handed down by Federal District Judge James B. McMillan. That order, which was appealed all the way up to the Supreme Court, became a landmark legal case when the Court upheld it in 1971, and thus created a precedent for similar court decisions which have caused busing throughout the country.

Judge McMillan explains the background of his decision in an exclusive interview with Charles Collingwood, reporter on the broadcast. Many people in this state still fervently believe that busing is wrong, Judge McMillan says, and he himself had many doubts about it because the case was brought to his court. But the evidence, the judge says, left him an alternative but to issue an unpopular order in obedience to the dictates of the Constitution.

How the district involved, Charlotte-Mecklenburg, now conducts classes without disorder will be examined by Collingwood in interviews with school administrators, teachers and students. Collingwood also will report on the decline in public-school enrollment, due to the establishment of private scoools and the continued movement of population away from the central city.

The condition of the troubled schools in Boston and the reasons for continued disorder there will be examined. Basically, Collingwood finds, Boston always has been split into tight ethnic neighborhoods which have fiercely resisted change of any kind and which continue to oppose any change in their schools.

Does busing work to achieve educational equality?

One of the biggest unanswered questions, after years of busing, ECS Reports found, is whether children integrated in classes not in their own neighborhoods are indeed receiving a better academic education. The question simply cannot be answered conclusively, Collingwood found.

To discover why testing cannot prove whether children from poorer neighborhoods are doing better in integrated classes and children from richer neighborhoods are not learning as well, Collingwood interviews a variety of experts studying the quality of education.

Among them are:

Diane Ravitch, a historian of education at Teachers College, Collmbia University.

James S. Coleman, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago and chief author of the landmark Coleman report (1966), which showed the effects of social composition of schools on achievement, a work often cited to justify desegregation orders.

Ron Edmonds, Director of the Center for Urban Studies, Harvard Graduate School of Education.

BUSING—CBS News Correspondent Chatrles Collingwood reports on what busing of children has meant to two cities (Charlotte, N.C., and Boston, Mass.) deeply affected by court-ordered integration of public schools on CBS REPORTS: "Busing," Friday, May 28 (10-11 p.m. on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

SOAPS NOW THE 'IN' THING

Currently in the works are more soap operas — ABC is presently developing five new serials, and speculations are that CBS will begin airing a new one next fall. This one is reportedly entitled "An Affair To Remember," and is based on the Cary Grant — Deborah Kerr 1957 flick.

A 'FIRST'

NBC was the first network to have TV coverage of a President's inauguration: that of Harry S. Truman in 1949.

GOLF—Jack Nicklaus designed the Muirfield Village Golf Course in Dublin, Ohio, the location of the 3rd round action in the Memorial Tournament. CBS will televise the action where the players are going after a $200,000 purse on Saturday, May 29 at 4:30 p.m.

Michele Will Tell

TO "UPSET" IN LYNCHBURG, VA.: Tom Berenger (Tim Siegel in "One Life to Live") decided to leave the series to further pursue his theatrical career. Dry your tears — he'll probably 'surface' in a movie-for-TV on another 'soap' soon.

TO L. DAMPIER, LAMAR, S.C.: "Roy Rogers was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 5, 1911. Before he legally changed his name he was Leonard Slye. A widower with three children, he married Dale Evans. Dale was born in Uvalde, Texas, pct. 31, Oct. 31, 1912.

TO S. RUSSELL, ASHEBORO, N.C.: Mac Davis and his wife are separated at this time. Rumors are that she is 'that-a-way' about Glen Campbell, whose wife recently divorced him!

TO K. HANGER, SWOOPE, VA.: As far as I know, there are no plans for another character for Charles Shultz's Peanuts gang. Richard Anderson (Oscar Goldman in "Six Million Dollar Man") has been acting for over 20 years. Among his film credits are "Tora! Tora! Tora!," "The Long Hot Summer" and "Redneck America." In TV he's had continuing roles in "12 O'Clock High," "Perry Mason" and "Bus Stop." He lives in Beverly Hills and enjoys tennis and bike riding.

TO MRS. E. POSTON, FLORENCE, S.C.: Forrest Tucker plays the gorilla in "Ghostbusters." A veteran performer, Tucker has appeared in well over 100 movies, starred in several Broadway shows, and has made many TV appearances.

TO L. WARREN, LAURINBURG, N.C.: Relax — the ratings for "Laverne and Shirley" are just great and they'll be back in the fall.

TO M.S.C., STAUNTON, VA.: Mark Goddard, who starred in TV series, "Johnny Ringo" and "Lost in Space," was studying law when he decided to become an actor. He's now 39 and was last seen in a movie-for-TV, "Lost in Space."

Unusual Golfer

The third round of the Memorial Tournament will be televised on CBS Saturday, May 29, at 4 p.m. The tournament is being held at the Muirfield Village Golf Club in Dublin, Ohio.

Jack Nicklaus, the owner of the Muirfield Village Golf Club, designed the course where the competition will be keen as players vie for the $200,000 purse. Nicklaus named his club Muirfield after the exalted Muirfield Golf Course in Edinburgh, England, a place obviously very special to Nicklaus.

Nicklaus has already achieved golf immortality by winning far more major golf championships than any living golfer. He is amazingly consistent, and he continues to put on a display from one tournament to another.

Aside from breaking a record just about every time he bends over and reaches toward the cup, Nicklaus differs from other golfers on the tour in the life he lives.

In 1975, Nicklaus played perhaps his best golf; but unlike most golfers, his interests are much broader than most touring professionals who seem to do little but play the game, or talk, think, worry and complain about golf.

During the year 1975, Jack participated in no less than nine sports other than golf. The others included tennis, basketball, fishing, water skiing, boating, swimming, quail hunting, and trapshooting. When Jack was home, tennis was a constant, everyday thing with his friends or kids. He also played basketball last winter on a team at various local high school gyms.

Scottish Film

"Mauro the Gypsy," a film from Scotland about a young gypsy boy and his travails in the alien atmosphere of a small Scottish village, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, May 29, 1 to 2 p.m.

When Mauro (Graeme Greenhowe), a gentle and sensitive boy, arrives with his family at a village, seeking a permanent campsite, the local council grants them permission to remain, provided they cause no trouble.

Musical Group Performs

Dick Clark welcomes to "American Bandstand" this Saturday, May 29, The Fifth Dimension, well-known musical group. The show will air from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

The group was originally known as the Hi-Fi's and sang nothing but blues. They changed to The Fifth Dimension in 1966.

They were the first black group to perform behind the Iron Curtain, having been chosen specifically by the State Department. During their trip they toured three Communist lands and were offered a contract by a recording company in Rumania.

Some of their hits have been: "Go Where You Wanna Go," "Up, Up and Away," "Sweet Blindness," "Stoned Soul Picnic," Aquarius," "Let the Sunshine In" and "Workin' on a Groovy Thing."

Behind The Scenes

What does it take to televise a golf tournament?

A great deal more than what meets the eye.

Golf fans at the tournament and home television viewers may see some of the equipment and staff, but in most cases what they won't see are the all-important elements that go into capturing all the golfing action.

Color cameras: 26, some of them mobile, to cover 34 separate camera positions.

Broadcast towers: Nine, varying in height up to 30 feet.

Camera cable: Seven-and-one-half miles of cable, much of it buried beneath the sod so as not to impede play or gallery flow.

Communications: 300 telephones, interconnected by 7 million feet of conductor wire.

Microphones: 56.

Mobile broadcast studios: three control rooms.

Miscellany: Specialized equipment for golf coverage - forklift trucks, golf carts, cranes and tripod camera mounts - plus all the odds and ends that are necessary to equip operational broadcasting and office operations, including coffee urns, water coolers, desks, chairs, wastebaskets, pencil sharpeners and electric power genetators.

Overall value of hardware and electronics: $5 million.

HOW TO WRITE, DIRECT AND STAR IN FILM

Ron Howard will make his writing and directing debut in an upcoming film, "Follow the Speeder," in which he will also star.

Ali-Dunn Bout Monday

World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, a winner over challenger Jimmy Young in a controversial decision which could have gone either way, is making a new evaluation of his next fight, a 15-round championship bout against European Champ Richard Dunn to be telecast Monday, May 24, 9 p.m., on NBC Channel 6-7.

"I know Dunn can hit," the champ said after his close call against the light-punching Young.

The Ali-Dunn fight, which will be colorcast live via satellite from Olympic Hall, Munich, Germany, has taken on a new dimension for Ali. Admittedly overweight, sluggish and minus his usual crisp punching style against Young, the champion has been vigorously training for his encounter with Dunn, a heavy-punching southpaw who makes no secret of the fact that he will come out swinging.

There is every indication that the underdog Dunn relies heavily on the big bomb. In his last six fights, all victories, the brawling Englishman has posted five knockouts. His last KO came at the expense of Bernd August, a tough, young heavyweight from West Germany. Dunn, showing a powerful left hand, KO'd August in the third round. It is this punching power which makes him such an appealing opponent for the champion.

The Ali-Dunn fight will be the feature attraction for NBC's boxing fans May 24. The other bout will match Duane Bovick, ranked eighth among the world's heavyweights, and Bunny Johnson, a ring-wise veteran.

Ted Nathanson, producer-director of the telecast, is a paractical fellow who has put fantasy ahead of fact.

"I imagine myself first as the two basic kinds of viewers who will tune in the fight," he said during a rundown of the production plans for the bout coverage.

"First there is the purist, the fight fan. He could care less about the showbiz frills, the window dressing. He wants the action. Then there is the quasi fan, or the not-at-all fan. They want the scene, the beautiful people on hand, the frills."

In establishing his game plan, Nathanson says "Some of the frills we hope will be palatable to all of our viewers."

One of the 'extras' was filmed in the plane en route from Chicago to Munich. The passenger list included Ali, his entourage of 40 people, and a film crew who recorded the scene surrounding the traveling style of a champion who floats like a butterfly, stings like a bee and lives like a rajah.

Hosting the coverage will be Joe Garagiola, and Dick Enberg — a versatile broad-caster on the sports beat — will call the action from ringside.

Duran Likes To Hit Back

Lightweight boxing champions are usually known for their cat-like quickness and knifelike-cutting blows. Roberto Duran, the present World Boxing Association king, is no exception to the role, often overwhelming opponents with his dazzling speed and dynamite punches.

Duran defends his title against challenger Lou Bizzarro in a World Lighweight Championship flight, to be televised on Sunday, May 23, at 2 p.m. on CBS-TV. Tom Brookshier and veteran ring announcer Don Dunphy will be the commentators for the live broadcast of the scheduled 15-round title bout.

Like many of the young, hungry punchers who grew up to be boxing champions, Roberto Duran grew up in total poverty. He was born in Chorrillo, a slum in Panama City, Panama, where wooden tenements are rapidly decaying on the old narrow streets. Memories of his poor, difficult childhood fill the words of the Panamanian champion.

I remember in Guarare I got up early in the morning, go out to chop wood, and sell the wood for a nickel or a dime," Roberto recalls. "I bring the money back and my mama bought milk and rice and that's what we have to eat for the day."

He also quickly learned that the only way to survive on the streets was to be uncompromising and tough when attacked. Against Ray Lampkin last March, Duran delivered a devastating volley of left and right hooks that left Lampkin out for a nervous 80 minutes. In fact, it took the challenger five days to recover from a severe concussion.

Roberto's reaction to being hit is similar to that of Rocky Garziano and the late Rocky Marciano — it simply makes him angrier.

"It is still the same," he said. "No trainers have changed me. My best teacher is a hit on the head. That makes me think how do I not get hit on the head the same way again. Some people have told me that is the hard way to learn, but for me it is the easy way."

Four Years Makes The Difference

Duane Bobick, a loser in a semi-final match of the 1972 Olympic Games, will be making a return visit to Munich's Olympic Hall when he battles Jamaica's Bunny Johnson in a bout on the same card with the heavyweight championship fight between Muhammad Ali and Richard Dunn, Monday, May 24, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

And for Bobick, what a difference four years make!

Since his defeat by Cuba's Theofilo Stevenson in the Olympics, Bobick has compiled the most eye-popping record of any young heavyweight. Turning pro simply turned the corner for Bobick, a strapping 25-year-old scrapper who has played a short right hand punch into a record of 35 victories and no losses.

This unblemished skein of victories shows an unbelievable 30 knockouts, tribute indeed to the Bobick blaster, a short lighning-fast righthander which has been getting quicker and more punishing with each bout

"MAYDAY" FOR JANE POWELL

Jane Powell has been signed by producer Andrew J. Fenady for a key role in "Mayday" 40.000 Ft.," a Warner Brothers movie for CBS-TV starring David Janssen.

Cowboy Rides Into Sunset

As a lad, Paul Savage wanted to be a cowboy, but fate (and his parents) decreed otherwise. Savage, who wrote and produced "The New Daughters of Joshua Cabe," airing as "The ABC Saturday Night Movie," May 29, 8:30 to 10 p.m., on ABC Ch. 3-5-12, later channeled his boyhood dreams into writing.

Savage thinks that western stories are changing and says, "The classic western might have trouble being accepted by the public today. The classic western is good against evil and the good is always represented by the single figure such as the lone lawman. These days, the lone man has a difficult time. We are becoming committee-minded."

Savage, who has written scripts for many western series and was for several years executive story consultant on "Gunsmoke," has set his newest story in the town of Grand Forks in the Wyoming Territory in 1880.

Starring in the title role of Joshua Cabe is John McIntire, a veteran of many western films. Bewhiskered Jack Elam, whose villainy was an integral part of dozens of western until producers discovered his kind heart, plays Josh's crusty friend, Bitterroot, and McIntire's wife, Jeanette Nolan, portrays the proprietor of Grand fork's boarding house.

FOR REP. PETER PEYSER (R.-N.Y.)

Are you seeking a way to punish those involved in the recent CIA report leak?—Mrs. Ann F. Mariani, Mamaroneck, N.Y.

● In January, the House voted 246 to 124 not to release the report of its Intelligence Committee. So the leaking of that report was in direct violation of the will of the House and, I believe, constitutes contempt of Congress. Unfortunately, no criminal penalties can be assessed against a staff member responsible for the leak, but (under Article 1, Section 5 of the Constitution), any Congressman involved can be punished by his colleagues. By a two-thirds vote, the House can expel that member. I introduced a resolution to do just that, if the Ethics Committee finds a member was involved. The resolution also calls for firing any staff member who is involved.

● Ted Williams could field better than a lot of people think. But Carl Yastrzemski does more than Williams or the others ever did.

FOR TINA TURNER

Did you always have lovely legs, or did you work to get them looking that way?—A.T., Hollywood, Fla.

● Until 1966 I hated them. They were so long, I felt like a pony on stilts. That's the year I came down with pneumonia. I got thin all over, and went down to 118. When I regained the 10 pounds I'd lost, my legs remained skinny and didn't look so bad. Quite nice in fact. What do I do to keep them this way? Wash well with soap and water!

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER

How do you handle hecklers?—L.M., Meridian, Miss.

● I rarely have them because my act is geared in such a way to make interruptions impossible. Either the audience is laughing (hopefully) or I'm talking. Hecklers thrive on silence, pauses that aren't pregnant, and questions. Never ask an audience a question. Because you'll get answers.

FOR MICKEY ROONEY, starring in "Rachel's Man"

How tall are you, and how do you feel about being short?—C.J., Athens, Ohio

● I'm 5-2. Of course there are times when I wish I were taller, but there was one occasion when I was glad I wasn't. During World War II, I was better off than my taller buddies. I didn't have to work as hard to dig my foxhole! [He got a Bronze Star for valor.]

FOR RONALD REAGAN

You say we should stop spending so much of the taxpayers' money. How do you explain your ordering the construction of a lavish new governor's mansion costing $2 million?—Diane Hodgdon, North Stratford, N.H.

● California has been trying to construct a new governor's residence for 40 years. It had become a political football. I decided the only way it would ever be built was for an outgoing governor to have it done for the governors to follow. I lived in a rented house as Governor, and the residence was built after I left office. It cost $1.3 million.

FOR REP. BELLA ABZUG (D.-N.Y.)

Is it easier for women to run for public office now than it was when you started?—Mrs. Dee Davis, Havelock, N.C.

● I believe it is. Thousands of women have run and won office in recent years. They're still a tiny minority, but listen to this: a Gallup poll last fall showed that 71 percent of the American public thought Government would be as good or better with more women in office.

FOR VALERIE PERRINE, actress

Does the scarcity of female directors in Hollywood bother you?—T.D., Buffalo, N.Y.

● No. I prefer working with men. There are very few women I really like and trust.

FOR CARL REINER, writer-actor-director

Are you religious?—M.G., Emmons, Minn.

● No. We're all here on a one-way ticket. My philosophy is "be good to each other now because the rewards are here." I don't believe in life after death. But if there is, I'll be in great shape because, with luck, I'll get my just deserts twice.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I watched "Rich Man, Poor Man," and am intrigued by actor Nick Nolte. Please tell me about him.—Ann Timpanaro, Westwood, N.J. [and many others!]

● He's one of those rare birds who don't care much about status and the Hollywood party circuit. His wardrobe consists of a few shirts and jeans. A bachelor, he lives on a five-acre working ranch in Cornell, far from Hollywood. His girlfriend shares his interests in gardening, ranching, cats and dogs. He drives a green 1962 Ford pickup truck that once belonged to the U.S. Government. In high school, he was an outstanding athlete, and his football talent took him to five colleges in four years. Says Nolte: "I wasn't much of a student. My report card looked like a scoreboard." He got interested in acting while playing football in Pasadena; during the last 10 years, he's played 160 roles. He can't understand why he's suddenly become a sex symbol.

Six Famous—And Long-Term—Couples Share Their Secrets of Togetherness

Why Our Marriage Works

Compiled by Alan Ebert

BARBARA BAIN and MARTIN LANDAU

(Married 18 years)

BARBARA

Martin would be my friend even if he weren't my husband. He's unpredictable, which is fascinating. He paints, writes and plays a terrific game of pool. In other words, he's never dull; he's exciting to be with.

Martin and I often clash. We holler good! We're both fighters and we both believe a good fight can do more for a marriage than no fight at all.

I think the longevity of our marriage is due to many things—good judgment, lots of luck, similar senses of humor and this rule—"Be Kind to Whoever Is Working." I think that's a good rule for people who are not always working at the same time. Martin and I are often asked, what's it like to see one of us in the arms of another actor on the set? As usual we disagree. Martin says, "It's just

LUCILLE BALL and GARY MORTON

LUCY

Firstly, Gary is a great guy! Secondly, he is a great guy with a great sense of humor—and believe me, that helps! The ability to see the happier side of life during times of stress can do wonders for any husband-wife relationship. Thirdly, Gary and I both know marriage means give-and-take. On a two-way street, you must respect the other driver. When Gary and I do find ourselves at odds, we make every possible effort to understand the causes and work them out.

Finally, we acknowledge our need for time off from each other—the need to be private. We take separate vacations. Gary loves golf, and I love the mountains. When he needs to, he spends time alone in our Palm Springs house, and I drag out the woolies and head to our other home in Snowmass, Colo. When we regroup, it's like meeting all over again.

GARY

They say marriage is a 50-50 business. But there are times—particularly during emotional stress—when marriage is an 80-20 or a 90-10 proposition. Mature marriage partners give when they must and take when they need. Lucy and I think of marriage as a 100-100 business. That's how much each of us must put into the effort.

Pictorial Parade

Lucy and I have deep respect for each other as people—not only as marriage partners, but as professionals who frequently work together. We don't seek to control or curtail each other's lives. We also share an awareness of each other's feelings.

> "On a two-way street, you must respect the other driver."—Lucille Ball

Finally, no matter what differences we might have, Lucy and I always sit down and talk things over. That's what really makes our marriage work.

Pictorial Parade

Allen and Betty: Togetherness on different wavelengths.

BETTY WHITE and ALLEN LUDDEN

BETTY

Our marriage is improved by the little war between us. Although we have our work in common, there are marked differences in our tastes and interests. For example: In public, no matter how I feel, I'm all sweetness; but at home, I can be a tiger. Allen is Allen anywhere, but he is more apt to be harmonious at home. Also, I am a fighter, ready to do battle at the drop of an emotion. Allen is cool, logical and rational.

Despite our differences—or maybe because of them—we have wonderful communication. A successful marriage needs two people who are willing to bounce off each other in ideas, interests, competition, anger and love. Both of us are unafraid to express what we feel.

Lastly, Allen is my best friend as well as my husband. And if that's not enough, I think he's kind of cute.

ALLEN

Betty White is the most stimulating person I know. She is involved with everything around her. Although I would rather be with Betty than with any other friend, we are not always together. We thrive on our individual pursuits. I like the idea of Betty wanting a life of her own, of making it on her own terms. Although this does separate us, it nourishes the relationship. When we get together, there's so much to talk about!

Our marriage works because it's a constant discovery. I am always learning about Betty from her far-flung interests. Imagine, 12 years of "togetherness" and I've never been bored! The fact that we are opposites in many ways helps. Since we are often on different wavelengths, we have had to "fight" that much more to stay tuned in to each other.

JAYNE MEADOWS and STEVE ALLEN

JAYNE

Life with Steve is never dull. We married at a time in our lives—after unhappy first marriages—when we very much needed the good qualities of the other. We were quite wary, quite cautious, about entering into another marriage. We knew what we didn't want, which helped us to give-and-get what we wanted.

work," and he leaves the set so that the actor won't feel uncomfortable. I stick around—I'm always ready to learn.

Lastly and firstly, the secret to our marriage is that I think Martin is a terrifically attractive man.

MARTIN

Barbara's not only beautiful, she's brilliant. Do you know that by the age of 12 she had read most Russian literature? She is involved in life—not just ours but our country's. She is socially and politically active; she cares.

People tend to think of Barbara as "cool." She isn't. She is volatile, exciting. She has great emotional responsiveness. Life affects her, and because it does, our life together is constantly stimulating.

Frankly, I'm not easy to live with. I save everything and have no use for a garbage pail. Barbara says I should be curator of the Smithsonian Institution! On the other hand, Barbara tosses everything out that's not nailed down. One day it will be me! When she buys something, she always throws out the instructions and the guarantee.

Most couples go through a ritual of telling the other what they did all day, but we don't have to. Barbara doesn't have to ask, "How was your day, honey?" and I know darn well she didn't spend hours fussing over a hot stove.

When people ask me if I get tired of working and living with the same woman, my answer is . . . never!

Pictorial Parade

Jayne and Steve: Better the second time around.

Our marriage is a combined effort in everything, but mostly in our roles as parents. Being a father is more important to Steve than it is to most men I know. You know, you never receive any training for marriage and parenthood. Why is that? As any parent knows, raising a child is by no means a matter of doing what comes naturally. Steve and I have worked very hard at being good parents. We are proud of that.

Steve deals with many day-to-day problems with humor, which is wonderful because he can make me laugh when I feel like crying. Of course, a joke is only a temporary way out of a discomforting situation—we both know that.

Finally, our marriage works because we've been unafraid to obtain professional psychological consultation over the years. The benefits we have derived from this make us think it is something every couple should consider for their marriage.

"Young people who are planning to marry would do well to learn the proper and improper methods of argument."
—Steve Allen

STEVE

The special ingredient in our marriage is Jayne. She's beautiful and talented, yes, but she's also intelligent and extremely sensitive. And she has a great sense of humor.

Jayne and I argue, and often quite heatedly. Being a word-oriented person, I tend to think and speak in rather straight, logical sequences. Jayne, having a more artistic, emotional personality, often communicates on another channel. These individual differences in personality do lead to problems, but Jayne and I have learned to "fight it out."

Actually, we feel that young people who are planning to marry and who hope to make a lifetime of that marriage would do well to learn the proper and improper methods of argument.

ALEXIS SMITH and CRAIG STEVENS

ALEXIS

It's been our mutually strong need for independence that's made our marriage work. Craig and I have never attempted the impossible: to possess each other. You possess things, not people. We learned to hold the strings lightly, which has made the ties-that-bind that much stronger.

Craig and I have a deep respect for each other's need for privacy. We're often separated by our work, but it's these separations that have kept our marriage fresh. Both Craig and I are accomplishers. We need to work in order to fulfill the creative urge within us. Without that fulfillment, there's discontent—the kind that spills over into a marriage. From the beginning, Craig and I have striven to grow individually first, and that has helped us to grow collectively for 31 marvelous years!

CRAIG

Alexis and I are both creative people who need outlets for our talents. If those outlets take us away from one another, there's a certain sadness in the separation, but there's also a joy. Because we're in the same business, we can share the frustrations, the highs and the lows. When work goes well for one or both of us, our marriage goes that much better.

But I think it's our friendship that really makes our marriage work. Over the years, a relationship alters. Love changes as people change. Because we care about how the other person feels, a trust has developed that is often denied lovers. But don't get me wrong—we're still lovers! And that's not bad for two people who've been married for three decades!

HELEN GURLEY BROWN and DAVID BROWN

HELEN

Our marriage works because I did the most remarkable thing! I married a very decent and lovely person. Why is it so few people ever list those as qualifications for a workable marriage? When I think of a couple of men I wanted to marry when I was very young, ugh! Decent? Lovely? Hardly! They were selfish, tyrannical, spoiled and exploitive. That is nobody to be married to.

I married David because I was attracted to him and liked the kind of life that he, as a decent and lovely person, could give me. We stayed married because he is a supportive person and, most important, a very human being.

DAVID

My marriage to Helen Gurley Brown has endured (actually flourished is a better word) for 16 years because: 1) Helen is a peer and no dumb bunny; 2) we are both compulsive about working; 3) we are rarely together all the time; 4) luckily, we turned out to be friends as well as lovers.

How I Learned To Stop Worrying and Love a Skunk

The Story of a Man and His Daughter's Fearless Pet

"The war between Lilac and me started before he was half grown. Since I was the one who had to housebreak him and discourage him from digging holes in the rugs with his claws, I was obviously an enemy who could never be forgiven."

Who loves skunks?

No one in my experience but my 12-year-old daughter Jessica. I trace her strange passion back to the Walt Disney movie, "Bambi," which depicts a cute talking skunk called "Flower." I'm glad that Mr. Disney did not do cute talking rattlesnakes.

"I want a skunk," Jessie said as she walked out of the movie theater.

Thinking I was smart, I advised her to write to her older brother, David, who is a professional zoologist and who can be counted upon to cast the cold light of reason on any sentimental ideas concerning animals. To my chagrin, David sent Jessie a long letter saying that skunks are good pets, perhaps the only wild animal which makes a really good pet. Furthermore, he added, skunks are fascinating because they know how to survive in the modern world—better, even, than people. When a skunk goes out for a walk at night, he is not afraid of being mugged. Large dogs which can terrorize people usually take one look at a skunk and run. Skunks almost never go hungry because they can eat anything, from bark to garbage to insects and mice. They also do not fear the rising price of fuel oil. With their beautiful coat, much like that of their relatives, the mink and the ermine, they can endure the coldest winters. When we call a person a skunk, we are saying that he enjoys more freedom and comfort than any creature alive.

"If you get a skunk for a pet," David concluded, "remember that no matter how tame he is, he is still a wild animal at heart. He will always be something like an Indian chief dressed in a business suit. Your skunk's reactions won't be anything like those of a dog or a cat. He will have absolutely no fear of anything in any circumstances. You can't intimidate him by shouting or by blows. If you try, he'll never forget and will never be your friend. Treat him well and he will be an affectionate pet."

Somehow Jessie learned the name of a dealer in Iowa who sold all sorts of animals. A skunk kitten, we discovered, cost less than most puppies or pure-bred cats. It had to be ordered in the spring because that's when skunks are born. It's best to buy a skunk of about five weeks old. Older skunks have had time to learn the hatred of Man from their mothers.

While we were waiting for our skunk kitten, my daughter and I argued about whether we should have the scent glands removed. Jessie pointed out that according to her book, skunks don't squirt their friends or foul their own home. Domesticated skunks rarely let fly unless they are startled by a dog or a child who wants to play too roughly. When I reminded Jessie that we have a dog and that there are many children in our neighborhood, she consented to the operation. We would have to protect the animal well after disarming him, she emphasized.

The skunk kitten, whom Jessie named "Lilac," arrived by air freight in Albany, N.Y., our nearest airport. When we took him out of his traveling cage, we got a surprise. Only about six inches long, he was far more white than black, and his thick, gleaming fur made our cat seem bald. Without the slightest fear, he allowed himself to be picked up by my daughter and gave her chin a few affectionate licks. When she stroked his glossy, almost silvery white back, Lilac emitted some strange but appreciative little squeaks and grunts.

When we got home from the airport, we put the skunk kitten in a steel cage which had been made for laboratory animals. Because of our dog, our big cat and other household hazards, such as swinging doors, we thought he would be safer there, though we had read that skunks like to have the run of the house.

No sooner had I put the skunk kitten in the cage than he began rattling the heavy wire door like an angry prisoner.

"The book says they don't like to be confined, Daddy," Jessie said.

"He's in there for his own protection," I said. "Let's go to bed."

Until very late that night I heard the wire door being rattled. When we went downstairs in the morning, we were astonished to see that the strong cage was empty. Two of the heavy wires had been pushed apart. Blood spotted the floor of that part of the cage.

Jessie was in tears, but we soon found Lilac under an armchair. His bid for freedom had mutilated his right paw.

"You can't lock him up again!" Jessie said.

While the vet examined and tried to save the mangled toes of Lilac's paw, the little animal never flinched nor tried to pull away. He took pain the way Indians did, with apparent scorn. His black eyes, which have no whites, followed every movement of the doctor's hand. That was the only sign he was awake.

The doctor said that Lilac would probably lose two or three toes. When we brought the animal home, he immediately ate off his bandage and administered some mysterious treatment of his own. In a few weeks the mutilated paw had regenerated itself and was as good as new. Meanwhile, Lilac got the run of the house. At first I was afraid that our dachshund or our big cat would hurt him, but although Lilac had been robbed of his main defensive weapon, he still had unusually long claws, needlelike teeth and the soul of Geronimo. When the dog came close to investigate, Lilac raised his feathery white tail like a battle flag and attempted to squirt his enemy. When that didn't work, the little skunk charged like the leader of a whole tribe of Indian cavalry. With an astonished yelp, the dachshund fled. A few hours later the cat got the same treatment and jumped on top of our highest bookcase. Lilac was the master of the house, except for me. So far.

The war between Lilac and me started before he was half grown. The older he got, the more affectionate he was with my wife and daughter and the more hostile he was to me. Since I was the one who had to housebreak him and discourage him from digging holes in the rugs with his claws, which were growing to be almost an inch long, I obviously was an enemy who could never be forgiven.

Lilac developed many tactics for driving me crazy. If we shut him out of our bedroom, he would scratch at it all night. If we let him in but did not take him on the bed, he tugged at whatever covers he could reach and bit the sheet at the edge of the mattress. If we put him on the bed, he curled around my wife's head like a hat, licked her face, then strolled across the blankets to give me a sharp nip.

When I was walking in the living room, he liked to rush from under a chair and pounce on my shoe, biting at it furiously, an activity which seemed relatively harmless until I learned that his teeth could penetrate shoe leather.

When the skunk started biting me more frequently, I asked my son for directions.

"Somehow you must have offended him," he said.

"He's offended me!"

"Calm down. You just have to work this out like a family quarrel. In time you two will learn to cooperate."

For a few minutes I was probably the only man in America who was honestly learning how to cooperate with a skunk. This was a struggle, I am glad to report, which I finally won. Lilac and I now rule our home as coequals. Sometimes when I go walking in the country, I take him with me, carrying him under my arm. He likes the ride, and I like the way he can send fierce farm dogs into a hasty retreat. If that's not cooperation, what is?

Novelist Sloan Wilson has "sequeled" his 1955 book, "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit," with his latest work, "What Shall We Wear to This Party? The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit Twenty Years Before & After" (Arbor House, $12.95). He lives in Ticonderoga, N.Y., with wife Betty, daughter Jessica and, of course, Lilac.

Sports Mini-Profile

The "new morality" has no appeal for Reds' left-hander Don Gullett. Gullett is a devoutly religious young man who believes in "using my role as a ballplayer to express my belief in Christ." He credits his success to "God's doing." After winning a crucial game over the Red Sox in last fall's World Series, he told a network TV audience, "I'd like to thank my Maker who gave me the ability to go out and pitch in a World Series."... The 25-year-old Gullett racked up a 15-4 record during the 1975 season, compiling the best pitching percentage in his league. He missed his chance to be a 20-game winner when he broke his thumb and was sidelined for two months. (Characteristically, he told people that "God had a reason for this.")... Gullett is one of the few players who came into the big leagues as a teenager. Raised in the small town of Sugar Camp, Ky., he is one of a close-knit family of five sisters and two brothers and learned to play football and baseball in the cow pastures. He went to a one-room schoolhouse and to McKell High School, where he starred in both football and baseball. His most spectacular feat was when he scored all the points in a 72-6 rout of a rival high-school football team.... Gullett spent only one year in minor-league play before joining the Reds' roster in 1970. He was used only in relief the first year. "Relieving in tight games actually involved more pressure than starting," Don says. "It didn't bother me to face pressure situations after that—I'd already been there." When Gullett has his stuff, he is virtually an unstoppable pitching machine. "I feel like a music teacher watching a great pianist at work when Gullett is out there," says Reds' pitching coach Larry Shepard.... Gullett remains close to his roots in the off-season. He and his wife Cathy have a home and a cattle ranch in Kentucky. The Gulletts have two children. —By Barry Abramson

The Gym-Dandy® 5 Minute Frame®. With the help of his quintuplets, it took Bill Kienast only 17 minutes

Under normal circumstances, our patented 5 Minute Frame really does take about 5 minutes to put up.

The reason: unlike any other gym, Gym-Dandy's top bar comes with its crossarms and leg sockets factory-assembled and pre-welded into place. All you have to do is slide the legs into the sockets, lock them in—only one bolt per leg—and the Gym-Dandy frame is on its feet.

But circumstances were anything but normal. The excited quints—Amy, Abigail, Sara, Gordon and Ted—insisted on "helping." Well, with all those little helpers on the job, it took Bill Kienast somewhat longer. About 12 minutes longer, in fact.

Not bad, considering how long it takes to assemble the frames of other gyms.

Gym-Dandy has yet another advantage over other gyms. Our factory-welded sockets and crossarms can't work loose, the way ordinary nut-and-bolt assemblies can. So a Gym-Dandy not only goes up easier, it stays up longer.

Our 5 Minute Frame. Sort of a minor miracle—like quintuplets.

What's Smart: Oriental dishes are usually well-suited for people with little time and little space. If you live in a small apartment, consider Japanese or Chinese dishes the next time you entertain.

Plant Now . . . Step Back . . . and Watch Out!

Amazing Super-Growing Species Soars Into A Magnificent Tree IN JUST ONE YEAR!

And if you think that's startling — just wait 'til you see the spectacular show when it starts to flower — Actually smothers itself in such lavish masses of bouquets, its branches appear to bend from the sheer mass and weight of the magnificent blooms.

That's the kind of wondrous results reported by the U.S. Gov't. Plant Research Stations . . . Botanical Gardens . . . and University Plant Scientists on what is undoubtedly the most fantastic flowering shade tree ever introduced in America — the incredibly beautiful Paulownia . . . the only flowering shade tree in all of nature that can do all of this and more:

READ WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY ABOUT THE INCREDIBLE PAULOWNIA . . . THE FASTEST GROWING FLOWERING SHADE TREE EVER DISCOVERED!

HEIGHT: Gov't. Plant Scientists and Botanical Experts report 18 to 22 feet of growth the very first year on specimen trees.

That's more growth IN JUST ONE SINGLE SEASON than even a fully matured 15-year-old flowering dogwood, or prize star magnolia.

SPREAD: University Researchers report beautiful ornamental spread of nearly 40 feet at maturity . . . packed with thousands of magnificent flowers. Think of it. Not only does it surge skyward in the most spectacular burst of beauty you've ever seen . . . but, also arches out in a magazine-cover display of color-drenched branches.

EASE: Leading editors report: Tree of unusual merit . . . grows in almost any soil . . . and below-zero root-hardy, too. Yes, because nature has endowed this landscape-artist's "dream-tree" with super-growing strength . . . because it is virtually resistant to most every common disease . . . requires practically no care at all. You simply plant it and forget it . . . it's as simple as that.

A TOWER OF BEAUTY IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

Yes, who says you have to spend a small fortune for a flowering shade tree? — and then spend half a lifetime waiting for it to grow? It used to be that way — BUT NOT ANY LONGER. Not since we have finally tracked down the one single tree in all of nature that hoists itself high, so fast you can literally measure the difference in both height and spread from week to week . . . or take a yardstick and measure the incredible difference in feet from month to month!

GROWS IN ANY SOIL — REQUIRES NO SPECIAL CARE — SOARS INTO A MASTERPIECE OF LUSH, GREEN BEAUTY IN JUST A MATTER OF MONTHS!

Best of all, unlike most trees that demand sprays, pesticides, insecticides and constant pampering . . . the only thing you do when you plant Paulownia is water it and enjoy it. That's why leading botanical gardens . . . landscape artists . . . garden editors . . . can't stop raving about its indescribable beauty . . . its super-growing, super-flowering ability . . . its trouble-free maintenance. Is it any wonder that every leading expert has hailed Paulownia in the most glowing terms . . . recommended it again and again for home-owners who want a stunning display of both beauty and shade . . . and with practically no more work than a couple of sprinkles a season.

VITAL STATISTICS FROM LEADING EXPERTS

MATURE GROWTH SIZE — 45 to 60 feet

MATURE GROWTH SPREAD — 35 to 50 feet

ZONE OF HARDINESS — completely root-hardy from deepest south to as far north as Montreal, Canada. Flowers beautifully even after 10 below zero winter freeze.

ONE YEAR GROWTH RATE — Experts report range of up to 22 feet the first year after planting on specimen trees under optimum conditions, up to 15 to 18 feet under poorer conditions when pruned for foliage growth only.

FLOWERS — When tree is at blooming size, in just a few short years, you'll enjoy thick panicles of fragrant lavender blooms. Highly recommended by landscape artists as specimen planting for front lawn.

SOIL REQUIREMENTS — Natural strength and vigor allow it to soar full forth in even poor soil. You can plant it anywhere.

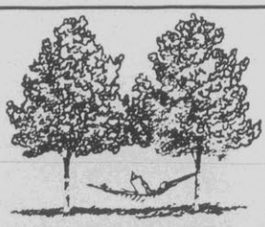
CARE — No special care whatsoever. No spraying. No dusting. No special feeding. Naturally resistant to most every disease, pest or insect.

TAKES BUT 10 MINUTES TO PLANT — REWARDS YOU WITH A LIFETIME OF BEAUTY STARTING THIS VERY YEAR!

ONLY A LIMITED SUPPLY YET AVAILABLE FOR RELEASE TO THE PUBLIC — FULL SUPPLY WON'T BE READY UNTIL 1976 . . . SO ACT NOW!

Now, the price of this super-growing shade tree is not the $20 or $30 you might expect . . . and probably be glad to pay. On this special introductory offer it is a mere $3.95 . . . yes, only $3.95 for this magnificent shade tree that rewards you with such a glorious display of growth IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

However, since supply is still sorely limited . . . it will take our growers at least another year or two to propagate enough trees for full nationwide distribution. Therefore, this may be your only chance this year to plant and enjoy this wonder-tree entirely at our risk. And since now is the time to plant, you must act now!



Here's a luxury sight you don't have to wait half a lifetime growing — a matched pair of flowering showpieces, so strong and sturdy you can actually sling a hammock between them.

AT LAST — the ingenious easy new physical fitness system, to help you: lose inches and pounds, improve the shape of your body, increase your sex appeal and feel and look years younger — and now at a great new low, low price!

An Easy, Proven System That Takes Just Minutes A Day

It's easy — because you exercise while you lie on your back and do just 3 basic routines. And yet you exercise and tone every muscle in your arms, legs, abdomen, waist, back, neck and tummy — all the important, problem spots that you want to help keep trim, firm and beautiful.

We recommend you start at a moderate 2 to 3 minutes a day. You'll soon find that you want to increase this to 4, 5 and up to 15 minutes at a time. But, and this is important, you do it at your own pace and you find it easier and easier to exercise for longer periods. The rhythmic movements you use are so simple that any child of 5 can master them in one minute, because all you do is lift and bend your arms and legs and the "Figure Trimmer" won't let you make a mistake. A simple, fully illustrated instruction booklet for the basic exercises is included.

By a special purchase from a manufacturer, we've been able to break the price wide open and offer "The Figure Trimmer" at this amazing low price!

To Help Weight Loss . . .

We recommend a moderate and sensible temporary 15 to 20% reduction in your normal food intake (while still eating exactly the same kinds of delicious foods you normally eat and like). We don't send you any fad or crash diet, because your own doctor will tell you that these are harmful. We suggest you continue this moderation until you reach desired weight loss. After that, just eat normally and continue exercises to feel and look better and younger.

Author Irwin Shaw At 63: The Importance Of Being Lucky

By Robin Thrush
Associate Editor

A self-described citizen of the world, Irwin Shaw at 63 is brimming with an uncommon exuberance. He has an eye for pretty women, a taste for liquor and rich food and a keen sense of what makes a "good read." His eighth novel, "Nightwork," like so many of his previous works, is a national best seller. His 1970 novel, "Rich Man, Poor Man" was recently a 12-hour ABC movie.

FAMILY WEEKLY: In your latest novel, "Nightwork," one of the characters says, "As far as I could see, the people who avoided being victims had at least one thing in common. Money." You've made a great deal of money. Has it saved you from being a victim?

SHAW: I've made a lot of money over the years, but I've lost it by trusting people who invested it badly. Also, even though I'm not an extravagant man, I surround myself with people who are extravagant. I could have made a lot more money by becoming a Hollywood screenwriter, but I didn't want to have to answer to a lot of businessmen. No, money doesn't save you from pain or suffering.

FW: If money isn't the answer, what is?

SHAW: In novels, people are saved by their good character, but unfortunately real life doesn't hold honor in such good stead. My novel explains just how demoralized Americans have become. It's the story of a young, undistinguished night clerk who finds $100,000 lying in one of the hotel's rooms, steals it and gets away with it. Because of what we've learned about the illegal goings-on in Government and big business, it's easy for us to condone the hero's actions. We say, "If the big guys can get away with things, why shouldn't the rest of us?" That's the moral of my story, and it's the way Americans are learning to react.

FW: Do you see any end to this cynicism?

SHAW: Not until we can regain our sense of pride and self-confidence. I think we have to sink to the bottom and lose all sight of ourselves before we will get back on our feet. I think we've got at least another eight years of going downhill.

FW: Do you think our discontent was caused by Watergate?

SHAW: I think what happened in the sixties was an even greater disappointment than Watergate. The sixties were a fake. There was great talk of revolution and radical change, but what happened? We got rid of Lyndon Johnson and got Richard Nixon. In baseball, would that be considered a good trade? For all the protests and violence, nobody came up with one constructive idea on how to change the system.

FW: Have you ever considered a career in politics?

SHAW: When John Lindsay was mayor of New York, he told me, "I want you on my team. What position do you want?" I replied, "Commissioner of Sewers." That was the beginning and end of my political career.

FW: To what do you attribute your success as a writer?

SHAW: All our lives are based on a combination of luck and fate. We are born with particular talents and gifts. I was once asked if I had any advice for young writers, and my response was: "Yes, quit!" All the unlucky untalented people better pack it in because they don't stand a chance. Talents can be improved, but they can't be manufactured.

FW: You've had your ups-and-downs with critics over the years. How has your writing been affected?

SHAW: When your first novel is "The Young Lions" and it's a critical as well as financial success, you're expected to write all forthcoming novels on the same grandiose scale. Tolstoy never repeated "War and Peace," so why should I feel guilty? On the other hand, Dorothy Parker once said, "There are only three things I want from critics: praise, praise and praise!" I guess I feel the same way. I don't want to sound sentimental, but I'd like to believe that 50 years after I'm dead, some college student will find one of my books on a library shelf, read it and think that Irwin Shaw had something important to say about America in the 20th century. I'm optimistic about my legacy.

To the 56,000,000 people who smoke cigarettes.

A lot of people have been telling you not to smoke, especially cigarettes with high 'tar' and nicotine. But smoking provides you with a pleasure you don't want to give up.

Naturally, we're prejudiced. We're in the business of selling cigarettes.

But there is one overriding fact that transcends whether you should or shouldn't smoke and that fact is that you do smoke.

And what are they going to do about that?

They can continue to exhort you not to smoke. Or they might look reality in the face and recommend that, if you smoke and want low 'tar' and nicotine in a cigarette, you smoke a cigarette like Vantage.

And we'll go along with that, because there is no other cigarette like Vantage.

Except Vantage.

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

Not that Vantage is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette. (But you probably wouldn't like the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette anyway.)

The plain truth is that smoke has to come through a filter if taste is to come through a filter. And where there is taste there has to be some 'tar.'

But Vantage is the only cigarette that gives you so much flavor with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

So much flavor that you'll never miss your high 'tar' cigarette.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER, MENTHOL: 11 mg. "tar", 0.7 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report SEPT. '75.

How Your Job Relationships Work

True or False? Getting in good with your boss or foreman is likely to make you unpopular with your fellow workers. (See number 1.)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Getting in good with your boss or foreman is likely to make you unpopular with your fellow workers.

2. The leadership qualities that go hand in hand with success are mysterious and difficult to pinpoint

3. Boring jobs can be hazardous to your health.

4. The effects of noise and time of day on your work efficiency depend on how old you are.

5. People tend to choose specific professions because of deep-seated personality needs.

6. Workers who see work as their central interest have different personality characteristics from those whose central interests focus away from work.

ANSWERS

1. True—in some cases, false in others. In a study of relationships between managers and their work associates, it was found that when an employee quickly becomes a "fair-haired boy" with the boss, he suffers poor relationships with his fellow workers. They tend to regard him with distrust, suspicion and unfriendliness. On the other hand, the investigation showed that when good relations are established with one's superior as the result of a gradual process over a period of time, the employee's relationship with his fellows tends to be markedly enhanced. And the chances are excellent that they may come to regard him as highly as the boss does.

2. True. Studies conducted by American University's Dr. James Owens show that leadership is a poorly understood quality which must be re-created and sustained daily by a manager. "With leadership," he finds, "other managerial skills and resources come to life; without it, managerial skills and group talents become paralyzed—and work results grind to a halt." It's further noted that what a person is and brings to the office in the form of a total personality largely determines what and how he does and with what degree of success. Managerial success, he concludes, is not a set of surface "techniques"; it is a working out of one's essential being in the form of action.

3. True—according to findings of a study of workers in 23 occupations, ranging from assembly-line worker to university administrator. It was found that when a job is boring and lacking in satisfaction, it results "in strain in the form of anxiety, depression or irritation, which frequently results in psychosomatic illness." It is important to note, however, that other psychological studies show that many people do not find repetitious jobs boring, and actually prefer them to jobs that demand more concentration, decision-making and responsibility.

4. True—as evidenced by studies conducted by psychologists at two British universities. It was found that noisy office conditions significantly improved the rate of work for older subjects without impairing accuracy. But this was not found true with the younger ones. A further finding: "Older subjects, but not younger ones, were significantly more accurate in the afternoon."

5. True—as indicated by a team of behavior specialists' wide-scale study of personality differences among professionals. They found, for example, that: "Physicists and biologists tended to be isolated during childhood and thus became less person-oriented and more thing-oriented. Psychologists tended to experience parental conflict but placed a high value on human relations. Business executives had high achievement needs, while artists displayed completely different thought patterns and a marked ability to discipline themselves."

6. True—at least for industrial workers, whose central interests and personality characteristics were measured in a broad-scale study by university researchers. Results: Those who derived greatest satisfaction from their jobs made much higher scores on ability to make decisions, capacity to take the initiative and supervisory ability. The investigators noted that "individuals who possess these personality characteristics are more likely to find opportunities to express them at work than away from work." Nonjob-oriented workers—those whose central life interests focused away from work—not only made significantly lower scores on the above characteristics but scored the highest on the Need for Job Security Scale. (They worried most about getting fired.)

WEIGHT LOSS BY THE HOUR

■ 8 AM...126 POUNDS!
■ 8 PM...124 POUNDS!
■ 8 AM TOMORROW ...122 POUNDS!

"There's no more healthful way to lose so much weight so fast!"
Dr. Louis F. Castaldo, M.D.

Yet, incredibly, on this fantastic new Health Watcher Weight-Loss Plan your hunger — often the problem with those 1,000-500 calorie starvation diets — actually disappears in as little as 24 hours. You feel great — and in an incredibly few days — you start to look great!

Imagine losing a full pound in the first 6 hours! 2 pounds between morning and night! Up to 5 pounds of fluid and fat in the first 24 hours! If that sounds unbelievable, get the entire program now and read what an eminent doctor says about it. Read what people who have tried it say happened to them! Read why it may very well be the fastest, most effective, safest way to lost weight that has ever been discovered.

What's the secret? It's as simple as 1-2-3! 1) You take a single high-powered diet supplement tablet containing natural bran, for bulk, plus natural vitamins for health. 2) You take it with your choice of any of a number of healthful, nutritious natural fruit juices! 3) You don't tease your body with low-calorie starvation diets that only stimulate your appetite and leave you constantly hungry. Instead you shut down your food intake and slow down your whole digestive process for a brief period — the duration is up to you! Anytime you want to stop you can. The Complete Health Watcher Weight Loss Plan tells you exactly how — precisely when. When you follow it, the weight loss results are so fast, so fantastic you'll be amazed!

How much can I lose? The most amazing part is that you lose the most weight in the first few days — from 2 to 5 pounds in the first 24 hours — up to 10 pounds in just one weekend. So if you're just 5 or 10 pounds heavier than your ideal, you can probably achieve in 100 hours or less what might take you 2 to 3 weeks or more on conventional "low calorie" or "low carbohydrate" diets that may leave you hungry, nervous and constantly famished! So on the Health Watcher Plan, you can lose as much as you need to — fast! It's up to you!

Suppose I want to lose a great deal, say 20 pounds? You could do it in as little as 7 days, depending on how overweight you are when you start. You could easily lose more — a 240 pounder might lose 10% to 15% of his body weight!

Will the Weight-Loss-by-the-Hour Plan interfere with my social life, or tennis, or golf? It needn't make the slightest difference. You could go on it for 5 week days, stop on the weekend, and resume the following week if you want — and keep the weight loss you've already achieved. The plan tells you exactly how! Or you can do it only on weekends if that suits you better. There's no need to give up any activity you enjoy — golf, tennis, swimming — whatever you normally like, you can do.

Will it affect my sex life? You bet it will — for the better! As you begin to shed all that extra weight, your energy level starts to increase. Not to mention the fact that you'll feel more desirable, and look it too!

Is the Weight-Loss-By-The-Hour Plan medically approved? Before beginning any weight loss program, says Dr. Louis F. Castaldo, M.D., you should consult your physician. But he continues "I do not hesitate to recommend Health Watcher's Weight-Loss-By-The-Hour Plan as the safest, healthiest way to lose pounds in the shortest period of time. Especially this is true for those frustrated people who have had little or no success with other methods of dieting. This amazing regimen, properly followed, may well be the beginning of a whole new life style!"

Send now for the plan, complete with everything you need on this no-risk guarantee. When you return the coupon, you've taken the first step toward being the trim, slim, attractive person you've always wanted to be! You will receive the complete plan, including precise instructions as to how to start, what you can expect to happen, how you'll feel, when to stop, and how to maintain the ideal weight you've achieved. You'll receive a 30-day supply of Health Watcher Diet Supplement Tablets containing healthful natural ingredients and no dangerous drugs — these provide vitamins and fiber while you're losing weight on the plan. And you receive instructions for a healthful exercise and weight maintenance program you can use to help maintain weight and feel great.

After you've received all this, you may follow and use this Plan for 14 days without obligation. If then you're not pleased, tickled, proud and delighted in every way, if you wish, you may return just the unused Health Watcher tablets and get a full refund of the purchase price. You may keep all the rest of the material in any case, as a gift!

But don't delay — mail the coupon at once! The sooner you start to follow and benefit from this amazing program, the sooner you'll have the trimmer, slimmer figure you've always wanted. Mail your order today!

Would you guess that Marie Glantz, President of Health Watcher USA and author of this plan, and a nationally known nutritionist and lecturer on health and weight loss, is a grandmother 4 times over? Or winner of numerous golf championships? And has more energy and pep than many people half her age? She follows her own advice — keeps her figure trim and slim, just as yours can be!

Dr. Castaldo has been a practicing physician for over 30 years. A graduate of the University of Maryland, he received his medical degree at Tufts University, then interned and was a resident at Stamford and Bridgeport Hospitals in Connecticut and Bellevue Hospital in New York.

Rare Find From The Andes!

GENUINE LAPIS LAZULI Gemstone

With Sterling Silver Chain

A rare once-in-a-blue-moon buy for lovers of the beautiful and unique – a huge, magnificent, genuine Lapis Lazuli gemstone on a real Sterling Silver chain—at a once-in-a-lifetime low low price! An ideal gift!

HAND-POLISHED & MOUNTED

Mined high on the rugged, wind-swept slopes of the Andes, each nugget is first gently "tumbled" in fine "lapidary's dust," then hand-polished to bring out all the lustrous depth of blue color and brilliance of golden highlights for which these gemstones are famed. Mounted with an ornamental baroque crown, then hung from an 18" Sterling Silver chain.

The oldest mineral mined by man—now increasingly scarce! Lapis was once prized by the ancients who believed that the "gold" sparkling from within its incredibly deep blue interior gave the stone "miraculous powers." Although we now know this "gold" to be "fool's gold" (iron pyrite), the unique and breathtaking beauty of Lapis makes it as prized today as it was thousands of years ago.

NO TWO ALIKE

No two nuggets are exactly alike, of course. But each weighs at least 15 carats, and all are unconditionally guaranteed (1) to be as described and (2) to please you in every way. At this low low price, spoil yourself a little and stock up for gifts. Each gift-boxed with attached card describing the ancient history of this gemstone. One of the rare gem finds of this or any other year at ONLY $10.99. © Madison House Gifts 1976

The U.S. Mint Coin No One Has Ever Been Able To Own

Now Available For Only $10 Clad In Real 23K Gold!

The first coin in U. S. Mint history to be accompanied by the signature of the artist who designed it was announced today

MINNEAPOLIS, Mn. (Special) — Calhoun's Collectors Society has announced they are making available to selected members of the public an historic collector's set of rare U.S. Bicentennial coinage.

Created in a strictly limited and serially numbered edition, the coins are to be clad in 23k gold and accompanied by the signature of Seth Huntington, the award-winning artist who created the design for the U.S. Mint.

This is the first time in the history of the U.S. Mint that a coin has in effect been signed, the Society explained, and less than one thousandth of one percent of the coins to be minted have been selected by us for this distinction. Their value to collectors is thus assured.

"Rare coins, stamps and gold have gone up 400% and even more in the past five years alone," the Society's spokesman continued. The U.S. Bicentennial Gold Set is the first to combine all three in a signed and numbered Bicentennial commemorative of enormous rarity.

The set consists of two U.S. Bicentennial Half Dollars bearing the rare double dates 1776-1976 and mounted in a handsome 5"x7" Lucite frame so as to show both front (obverse) and reverse designs.

The obverse of the coin is the stirring Kennedy portrait, appearing for the first time with double dates. On the reverse is Seth Huntington's powerful representation of Philadelphia's Independence Hall. The artist's initials SGH appear at the lower right hand corner of the building and, of course, his signature accompanies the coins.

In addition to the two gold clad coins, the Bicentennial Set includes a unique postage stamp to match. Exceedingly rare, the stamp is actually made of a sheet of 23k gold — not paper. Depicting the Bicentennial Half Dollar, the stamp is the first postal issue in history to recreate a U.S. coin in the relief of the coin itself. You can actually feel the coin's detail on the stamp!

The stamp is an issue of Staffa Scotland minted to honor the new U.S. coinage. Bearing a postal value of £6, the stamp alone would sell to collectors in the U.S. for $20. Yet as a unique Bicentennial commemorative of distinction, it has been teamed with the two gold clad Half Dollars for just $25. The price includes the deluxe Lucite display frame and a numbered Certificate of Authenticity with the signature of the artist. The coin alone, in Lucite frame with signature, is $10.

This is an exceptional collectible in that both the gold stamp and the gold clad coins have official value. Such commemoratives as medals and ingots do not, explained Stafford Calvin, Calhoun's Collectors Society Vice President. We believe the set provides a superior opportunity for the alert collector of rare coins, stamps and precious metals and will be a source of pleasure and pride for all Americans who appreciate superb value as well as beauty. Years from now, it could be worth many times your investment.

The last day of issue is July 4, 1976. However, the sooner orders are placed, the lower the number your set will bear within the limited edition. This is, of course, an important value feature. A money-back guarantee of satisfaction is offered to all prospective purchasers.

Since so many people are desirous of honoring the Bicentennial, why not acquire something of true value at the same time. It makes good sense, especially at the low original issue price.

You risk nothing by asking to examine the set for 15 days free.

FORMER SLAVE CHARLIE SMITH
A long and happy life

The oldest American? More than a century ago, a slave trader lured a Liberian native onto a boat bound for America. Today, former slave Charlie Smith lives in Bartow, Fla., is reported to be the oldest American (he's 132!) and claims to be a happy man. "Even though I was hoodwinked into coming to this country and spent some part of my life as a slave, I don't hold any grudges. I think I'm a lucky man. I can still walk. I smoke cigarettes when I feel like it. I don't need eyeglasses or a hearing aid, and I've got my son, Chester, who lives nearby and shaves me every morning. I was married three times, although I don't ever remember getting divorced from any of them. I figure I never could have led such an eventful life in Africa." Although Charlie never learned to read or write, he has a reputation as a great storyteller. His tales sometimes lean to the "inventive" side—he's fond of telling strangers how he taught outlaw Jesse James to shoot a six-gun. A tireless worker, Charlie finally retired after 50 years of picking citrus trees only because a Social Security worker said that a man of 113 shouldn't be climbing ladders every day. A few months later, Charlie moved to his present home and opened a candy stand in his home, which he had to close a few months ago when the Social Security people caught up with him again. But Charlie still manages to make a few dollars on the side—he charges the countless visitors who want to take a picture, meet and ask questions of America's oldest man.

"No, but you look like you could use a couple of boxes of Girl Scout cookies. . . ."

Will the JFK assassination ever be resolved? Hugh C. McDonald, a retired law-enforcement officer, wants more than anything to testify before a Congressional committee. He claims he knows the true identity of President John F. Kennedy's assassin. "It was not Lee Harvey Oswald. He wasn't even a very good marksman. Oswald was the fall guy. His job was to fire and miss, which he did," says McDonald, who has spent the last few years stalking the "true killer" across Europe. McDonald's story goes: Back in 1964, when McDonald was chief of security for Presidential candidate Barry Goldwater, his old CIA boss (ironically then working for McDonald) told him that he'd better pay special attention to Goldwater's security. Why? Because Goldwater, like JFK, was strongly opposed by a special-interest group that wielded a great deal of power. That old CIA boss, one Herman Kinsey, said Kennedy was assassinated because he was going to discard Lyndon Johnson as a running mate in 1964.

Hugh McDonald

A certain business group, allegedly Texan or Texas-oriented, wanted Johnson as President. Who, then, was the assassin? McDonald says it was a hired killer whose code name is "Saul," and whom McDonald finally caught up with in London. Saul supposedly admitted his guilt to McDonald but then disappeared. All this (and the above picture) is in McDonald's new best-selling paperback, "Appointment in Dallas," (Zebra Books, $1.95), as told to Geoffrey Bocca, one of England's top magazine writers. Can McDonald be believed? Says co-author Bocca: "His credentials are impeccable. He was a CIA contract agent, Chief of Detectives of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Office, the inventor of Identikit and the author of numerous standard police manuals on investigative work. I believe McDonald. He is one of America's senior and most sophisticated policemen. If they'd give him the go-ahead, he'd find Saul again and bring him to trial. If the story is fantasy, then two of our best investigators, McDonald and Kinsey, have been fooled." As of this writing, Bocca has joined McDonald in a new search for Saul, who is believed to be in the U.S.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

MAKE-UP

After quarrels, we make up,
My wife and I, and quickly.
I say "I'm sorry" (or she does)
And smile a little sickly.

Nor do they last for long,
For one of us, it seldom fails,
Says bravely, "I was wrong."

Well, make-up comes in bottles, jars,
And boxes. You can buy it.
And there've been times when I have thought
We really ought to try it.

Little Tommy was second in his class, and the top place was held by a girl. "Surely, son," said his father, "you are not going to let yourself be beaten by a mere girl!"

"Well, you see, Dad," Tommy explained soberly, "girls aren't nearly as mere as they used to be." —Conrad Fiorello

I smoke for pleasure. That's spelled T-A-S-T-E.

All Winston will ever give me is taste.
A taste that's very real. If a cigarette isn't real,
it isn't anything. Winston is for real.

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?

One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it — does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

Now is a Good Time to Order RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

by Hal Foster

Our Story: ONCE AGAIN PRINCE VALIANT COMES SAILING HOME WITH A CARGO OF TREASURE... BUT THIS TIME IT IS NOT HIS.

THE TREASURE THAT BRINGS HIM HOMEWARD SO SWIFTLY IS, OF COURSE, ALETA!

AN HOUR PASSES BEFORE HE REMEMBERS THAT ZILLA, TOO, IS IMPATIENT TO MEET A LOVED ONE.

"MY LADY QUEEN, WHEN I ASKED YOUR PERMISSION TO TAKE TAMIA, YOUR HANDMAIDEN, AS MY WIFE YOU DEMANDED THE SAME PRICE YOU PAID FOR HER IN THE TANGIER SLAVE MARKET. NAME THAT PRICE."

QUEEN ALETA NAMES THE PRICE. "NOW, DOWN TO BUSINESS. YOU ARE TO PAY FOR THE USE OF THE SHIP, PROVISIONS AND THE WAGES OF THE CREW. FOR THE MONEY I ADVANCED CAME FROM THE PUBLIC TREASURY."

"WHY DID YOU NOT LET ZILLA HAVE TAMIA WHEN HE FIRST ASKED?" GRUMBLES VAL. "BECAUSE HE WOULD HAVE BECOME A USELESS DEPENDENT WITHOUT FURTHER AMBITION. A PALACE DEPENDENT!"

HELENE, ALETA'S YOUNGER SISTER, IS UNHAPPY. WHEN HER HUSBAND, DIONSEUS, WAS BANISHED FOR TREACHERY AND COWARDICE, PRIDE MADE HER SHARE HIS FATE.
