CONCORDE SERVICE BEGINS—The French supersonic airliner Concorde will begin regular flight service on a trial basis today, landing at Dulles International Airport near Washington. (AP Wirephoto)

Concordes Starting U.S. Flights Today

By The Associated Press

Two stork-nosed Concorde jetliners, one marked British Airways and the other Air France, lifted off from London and Paris five minutes apart today carrying passengers at the speed of a bullet in the first commercial supersonic flights in America.

The BA jetliner lifted off at 1,350 miles an hour, the jets were to land at Dulles Airport and the French plane went up five minutes later. Racing the sun across the Atlantic at up to that means they would be landing before noon — earlier than they left. The two aircraft were to taxi up to the terminal together and park together, needle nose to needle nose.

The British jet carried 76 passengers, the French 80.

Among the British passengers was Edinburgh bus driver John Trotter, who applied 12 years ago for a ticket to take a 3,658-mile break from his habitual eight-mile routine.

American businessman Myron Karne, another passenger on British Airways' pioneer flight, said before boarding he had just signed a $444,000 contract in Britain.

"The marvel is," he said, "that I will be in Washington in time to sign another major contract there."

Boarding the French plane, Alfred Huete of Milwaukee, Wis., said: "It's the adventure. I've aspired to fly this plane ever since it was on the drawing boards."

Al Piesik of McKeesport, Pa., said, "I'm excited about it but I don't know what to feel. It's a feeling of being part of history. I guess."

Piesik and his friend Bill Spears of Pittsburgh, Pa., flew to Paris especially for the flight and paid for it out of their own pockets. Spears, a businessman who frequently travels, said "I feel it's a better way for me. I will use the Concorde. Any advancement in aviation is a big factor for me."

Ford Looking For Delegates In N.Y.

By RUSS PULLIAM

Associated Press Writer
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — President Ford was expected to get a boost today in his campaign against challenger Ronald Reagan as leaders of New York's Republican organization met to decide whether to swing the uncommitted state delegation behind the President.

State Republican Chairman Richard Rosenbaum, who called the meeting of the state's delegation to the August GOP convention in Kansas City, said he would ask the 154 delegates to back Ford.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, who appointed Rosenbaum and still exerts major influence on the state's Republican politics, was one of the delegates scheduled to attend the meeting.

Ford was in California today, campaigning for that state's June 8 primary.

GOP leaders said they expected at least 100 of the New York delegates, and perhaps as many as 130, to follow Rosenbaum's lead. Rosenbaum predicted Sunday that "in excess of 100" delegates would do so.

When first disclosed last week, the impending New York move was expected to push Ford to a healthy lead over Reagan in the nationwide delegate count.

But Ford pulled ahead over the weekend without New York's help, picking up 55 delegates in state conventions to 14 for Reagan and getting the backing of 88 previously uncommitted Pennsylvania delegates. That gave Ford a 578-540 lead in committed delegates.

Ford could be trailing again by Wednesday without the swing by New York delegates, Rosenbaum said Sunday. Idaho, Oregon, Nevada, Tennessee, Kentucky and Arkansas hold primaries Tuesday, and Reagan is favored to pick up many of the 176 delegates at stake in those six states.

Backers of both Ford and Reagan predicted Sunday that the challenger probably will win four of the six primaries.

Sen. John Tower of Texas, a Ford supporter, said the President "will do well to win two of them." He said he feels Ford is safe in Oregon and has a chance in Tennessee, Idaho and Nevada.

Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, the chairman of Citizens for Reagan, said Ford is pushing Reagan only in Oregon and Tennessee.

There were 113 Democratic delegates selected in various state caucuses on Saturday. Forty-one were uncommitted, but frontrunner Jimmy Carter picked up 27, giving him 741 delegates, almost half the 1,505 needed for the nomination.

Carter claims he will get more than 100 of the 191 Democratic delegates to be picked in Tuesday's primaries.

Before leaving Oregon Sunday evening to fight what is considered by both sides to be an uphill race in California, the President told reporters in Pendleton. "We had a good day yesterday. The momentum has turned our way and we hope to keep the bandwagon rolling toward a first ballot victory in Kansas City."

Reagan, in Eugene, Ore., Sunday, said he was not concerned about the shift in delegates in Pennsylvania. "Those are delegates we had always counted as in his corner. We'd never counted on them," he said.

NAACP Questions Closing Of School

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Officials of the Pitt County Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said this morning that the closing of Third Street School Friday—with only 12 days remaining before the end of the year—was either racially motivated or the result of negligence on the part of the Greenville Board of Education and officials of the City of Greenville.

The city's codes enforcement chief, Alton Warren, ordered the 47-year-old building closed Friday after city building inspectors and fire prevention inspectors checked the building Thursday.

Warren said Fire Marshal Jerry McLawhorn cited 21 violations of fire safety codes, while building inspectors enumerated more than 100 unsafe conditions.

D. D. Garrett, Pitt NAACP president, said "we will have a conference today with the attorneys... this afternoon. At that time, we are going to analyze the inspectors' reports."

He continued, "We are going to, at that time, decide whether or not to seek a temporary injunction," to keep the school open.

Garrett said the closing was either racially motivated or due to "negligence on the part of the board of Education and City of Greenville, for letting the school get in the shape it is in."

"If we discover the Board of Education and City of Greenville was negligent, we will ask to them to answer for that negligence."

Garrett continued, "The mayor tells me it's not a racial situation. Then it's negligence. Take your choice."

"The way it's working now, the City of Greenville, either by design or coincidence, is moving the cultural facilities from the Western part of Greenville to the Eastern part. By design or not, it's happening."

Mayor Percy Cox said this morning that "I can see no basis for a racial overtone on this. I will have to admit," Cox emphasized, "the city inspection department was negligent in not inspecting this building sooner. They have been bogged down in inspecting buildings for community development money," the mayor explained.

But Mayor Cox said, "The school board is equally responsible for this." He said "school board members or the superintendent should have been going into the school and know what shape it's in."

"The City of Greenville and the school board should share the responsibility."

Cox indicated that the time element involved should prove there is "no basis at all for racial overtones" to the closing.

"Now," the mayor said, "it gives the school board time to repair the school in time for next year's opening."

Warren, commenting on his order closing the school admitted the building was maintained men have "gone throughout the building" placing "pieces of plywood over rotted floors."

Supt. of Schools Glenn Cox said an engineer inspected the Third Street building early this morning and an architect conducted a "similar appraisal" at 10 a.m.

He said their survey of the (Continued on page 10)

Easy Transition

The Transition of students from the Third Street School to Wahl-Coates School and to the Old Memorial Baptist Church Educational Building was handled with few problems today according to Greenville City School Superintendent Glenn Cox.

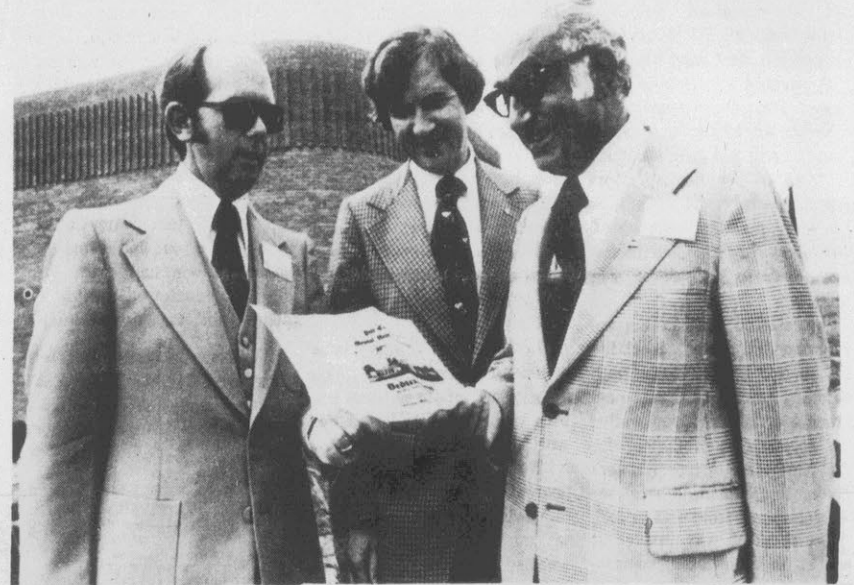

"As far as I know everything is in good shape. I visited Wahl-Coates School this morning and I do not think that a visitor would have recognized that there was an additional program going on this morning. I feel that the instructional program for the students has been well taken care of," Cox said.

"Very few students walked to school because of the transition. A few of the students attending the Extended-Day programs at the Old Memorial Baptist Church Educational Building walked."

Cox said that he did not foresee any additional problems in the scheduling or busing in the transition.

"Our next question is to make an engineering study of the Third Street School and decide what must be done to it."

Dedicate Mental Health Facilities

By PAUL BARWICK

"Pitt County should take pride in this new facility but it should take more pride in the services that are provided through this building," Dr. N. P. Zarzar, Director, N. C. Division of Mental Health Services, said during dedication ceremonies Sunday afternoon of the new facility on Old Stantonburg Road.

"The really important thing is that all of us dedicate ourselves to providing everyday services to the citizens. We are now meeting only about 30 to 40 per cent of the citizens in need in Pitt County and North Carolina. We must continue to improve our services in mental health and provide these services for the remaining 60 per cent needing mental health services," he added.

Dr. Zarzar also commented on the close ties that exist between Mental Health in North Carolina and East Carolina University in the training program and the impact it is having on the delivery of quality mental health services.

"We want to know your views on how we can improve mental health services," Dr. Zarzar said. "It is important that you not only let us know, but also members of the Legislature."

He recognized Representative Sam Bundy of Farmville, for his support of total Mental Health in North Carolina as well as the Pitt County Mental Health Program.

Dr. Zarzar pointed out that the area of focus in Mental Health for the next several years will be: (1) to upgrade standards and services in the Community Mental Health Services (2) increase funds for local Mental Health Programs (3) insure that clinical and program standards are up to par through concern and interest of County Commissioners and Area Boards (4) insure that services delivered to patients are by well qualified persons (5) continued citizens involvement so that Federal funds can be maintained and increased and (6) to know that cannot community services cannot be separated from institutions and to maintain the best possible care.

"In the dedication of this facility we need to dedicate ourselves today to a commitment of care, love and being to our fellowman in the months and years to come."

Dr. Zarzar also paid tribute to Mrs. J. P. Spilman, of Greenville, for her services as executive director of the North Carolina Mental Health Association "when it was not popular to be so strong for mental health services." Recognition was also given to Dr. Clinton R. Prewett and Mrs. Myree Hayes for the services they have given to the development of mental health services in Pitt County.

Also appearing on the program were: Burney L. Tucker, chairman, Pitt County Board of Commissioners; Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, consultant to the Pitt County Mental Health Center; Dr. Robert R. Ratcliffe, director, Eastern Regional Office of Mental Health Services; William Sneed, chairman, Pitt County Mental Health

REFUND

I paid $175 for a Vitamixer, which was sent me from the Vitamix Corporation in Cleveland, Ohio. When I got it, it didn't work as advertised, so I sent it back. They called me and insisted I had not followed directions, so I agreed to let them send it back to me. I followed instructions written in and the shaft was wrung off. I called and told them I'd return it again and was promised I'd get my money back. Six weeks went by and nothing came, so I called again. It's been several days since I was promised again I'd get a refund. B. T.

Hotline advised you to wait a while longer and see if your last promise would be kept. When it was not, you called us again and we used the company's toll-free number to inquire about your refund. A spokesman for the company promised to check on the matter and call us back. She did, saying that your file had inadvertently been placed in the repair section rather than the refund section. She said a $175 check would go out in the day's mail. It must have, as you got your refund two days later, you said.

Hunting Meteor

HOT SPRINGS, N.C. (AP) — "A ball of fire streaking across the sky" has been blamed for a fire on Rich Mountain that destroyed eight acres of timber Saturday night.

Forest rangers said today that a flaming ball of fire described by several witnesses must have been a meteor.

"I saw something come down. I saw it for five or six seconds, then it went behind the mountain," said R. H. Forrester, who said he and a friend saw the phenomenon as they sat on his front porch about 8 p.m. Saturday.

"It didn't have a tail. It was just a round ball of fire. I was in the war and I saw planes fall. This wasn't a plane," he said.

Forest ranger Robert Grady said he received several calls from people who reported seeing the fiery object.

"These were pretty reliable people. I think they must have seen something," he said.

CHANGE MEETING SITE

The Greenville City School Board meeting previously scheduled for tonight at the Board Room has been rescheduled for 8 p.m. at the Wahl Coates School Auditorium.

Seized By Big Foot?

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A search has been launched in the mountains near here for a 23-year-old woman who, according to a group of backpackers, was carried off by a "large, hairy animal," possibly the legendary ape-like creature called "Big Foot."

The Humboldt County sheriff's office and U.S. Forest Service sent posses into a wooded, mountainous area 40 miles north of here Sunday to search for Sherie Darvell of Modoc County.

Officers said about 50 persons would resume the search today.

The report was filed with authorities Saturday afternoon.

"We don't really know what we've got up there," said Sheriff's Sgt. Harold Reed. "A young lady is missing. Until we can definitely show it's an unfounded call, we handle it as if it's strictly legitimate."

Reed added, however, that Big Foot has "never, ever carried someone off before. But none of her family or friends, no one we've been able to contact will admit to knowing where she (Miss Darvell) is."

Female AF Sergeant Runs Tokyo Radio Program

By KATHRYN TOLBERT
TOKYO (AP) — Thousands of foreigners and others who tune in to the only English language radio station in the Tokyo area, the throaty, feminine voice of Norma Royal is a familiar one.

What they don't know is that she is an outgoing, scholarly and professional journalist, a 30-year-old black woman and U.S. Air Force sergeant with 10 years military service behind her.

She has been in the Orient a little more than a year, was in Spain for four years and all over the United States the remainder of the time.

For the Far East Network in Japan, hers was the voice of the early morning news for a year before she recently took over network spot programming and production. In addition to a music program called "Shades of Soul" she is starting a daily series of interviews on topics of interest to women, called "Everybody's Talking."

She and her husband, Timothy, a telecommunications supervisor at a base communications center, are both stationed near Tokyo.

A tennis buff and avid reader — "I belong to all the book clubs" — the Roanoke, Va., native is also taking a course in American studies at the University of Maryland's Far East division at Yokota Air Force Base, aiming for a bachelor of arts degree in 1976.

"A lot of people think women are sort of giggly and shallow. So I thought I'd better have the college education," she said.

Far from either being on the defensive or flaunting the fact that she is a woman and a member of a racial minority in a field dominated by men, she seems naturally outgoing and is obviously popular among her colleagues — "one of the fellas," she said.

"I don't feel any discrimination because I'm vocal," she explained. "I'm not a total feminist. I'll be adamant if you tell me I can't have that job because it's reserved for a guy. But if someone says 'Here's something for a pretty lady,' I still feel good about it."

"And as for holding doors open, courtesy has nothing to do with liberation," she added, her long fingers punctuating her words in the air as she talked.

She started out as an accounting and finance specialist for the Air Force, "along with so many other jobs," before beginning a radio program called "A Second Cup of Coffee" for the American Forces Network Spain in Madrid, where she was stationed from 1969 to 1972. The program was directed at women in the military community.

"It was tokenism," she said.

RADIO PRO—Air Force Sgt. Norma Royal, shown at her desk in the studio of Far East Network radio station near Tokyo, runs an English-language daily series of interviews on topics of interest to women.

"They needed a female and they needed a black. Zap. There I was. One person filled both bills."

Her work in Spain was followed by television experience in Denver, Colo., both for the military and for an independent commercial television station, and a half dozen journalism courses as a part-time student.

"In the media, it's politics. It's who you know. I don't mind competition, but it's bitter competition among TV voices and talents. I don't want that and prefer to work in public relations when I go back to the United States," she said.

She plans to leave the military after her tour of duty in Japan is over two years from now.

"One of the hazards of living on a military installation is that you don't get to mingle as much," she said, although in Spain it was better than in Japan because there she lived in a small city outside the base.

It was through living and dealing with the Spanish people that she became fluent in the language. Her grasp of Japanese, she said, is limited.

"In Spain you can talk about anything and the people are very open. In Japan, they don't shun you but they're more reserved."

She lives in a Western-style house on a military base and drives her car an hour to work every day. Her husband drives to a different base, about a half hour away.

"Living on the military base is a handicap," she said. "You may go out for three hours but then you go back to your other world."

"We (and the Japanese people) like each other. We do things together. But at the end we go back to our separate worlds."

She added, "I haven't run into any problems. I'm not saying."

Joint Installation Held By Auxiliary And Post

The Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Post Members met Thursday night at the Post Home for a covered-dish supper followed by a joint installation of officers.

President Carrie West and Cmdr. Leon Evans welcomed guests and members. Chaplain Walter Oakley gave the invocation.

Mrs. Belle Boyle, department chaplain and state membership chairman, and Woodrow Smith, Post Cmdr. of the Second District, were the installing officers. Auxiliary officers installed included:

Mrs. West, president; Mrs. Alice Moseley, senior vice president; Mrs. Rosa Lee Williams, junior vice president; Mrs. Margaret Brown, treasurer; Mrs. Margaret Joyner, conductress; Mrs. Myrtle Meeks, chaplain; Mrs. Hattie Manning, guard; Mrs. Kathleen Woolard, trustee two years; Mrs. Genses Boyd, trustee three years; Mrs. Marjorie Angstadt, secretary; and Mrs. Merle Austin, assistant conductress.

Pos Officers installed were: Leon Evans, post cmdr.; Elmer Meeks, senior vice cmdr.; Abby Williams, sergeant at arms; Walter Oakley, chaplain; Oscar Moore, quarter master; Elbert Bullock and Gorman Dickerson, trustees.

Mrs. West and Cmdr. Evans thanked the officers for their support and pledged their loyalty and efforts to maintain their high standards of the organization.

Guests recognized were Ms. Jane English and Roy Boyle of Kinston.

Mrs. Boyle stated that the Second District was first in the nation in the membership drive and second in donations to the cancer aid and research fund. Mrs. Williams, chairman, thanked the auxiliary and post members for making the cancer drive a success and altogether $1,089 had been donated to the fund.

A blue print of the new VWF building was shown.

Decorations accentuated patriotic colors. The ceter arrangement was of red and white carnations flanked by red tapers and blue hydrangeas.

Post Chaplain Oakley gave the benediction.

Bride Doesn't Deserve White

DEAR ABBY: You are an ignorant woman for giving your approval to a traditional church wedding for a 23-year-old "bride" who was being married for the first time and who admitted to having had an illegitimate child. She said it was her "heart's desire," and even asked if her illegitimate child could be her flower girl, and you said yes to that, which was also ridiculous.

I have no doubt that you would also approve of a traditional church wedding for a girl who was only six-months pregnant simply because it was her "heart's desire."

What about the standards set up by a conventional society?

STILL LAUGHING

DEAR LAUGHING: Enjoy your laugh, but I weep for one who values the opinion of a "conventional society" above the feelings of a bride who would harm no one by realizing her heart's desire.

DEAR ABBY: I am a junior high school teacher. Yesterday I found a crumpled note written by one of my students. It read,

Hi, Tina:
Yesterday Nancy and I skipped school. We went to her house and watched television. Her mother works which makes it nice. When I went home at 4 o'clock my mother told me that the school had telephoned to find out why I was absent. Lucky for me, my mom said that I was home sick.

Abby, a child skipped school, and her mother lied to protect her. This type of thing is very discouraging. What is happening to the integrity of people today?

UPSET TEACHER

DEAR TEACHER: There have always been mothers who would lie to cover up for their children, and there always will be. But I believe they are in the minority. Most mothers would have told the truth and let their child suffer the consequences.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago my best friend asked me to be her maid of honor, and of course I was delighted. I live in Iowa and the wedding will take place in California, which is where she lives.

Nothing was mentioned about who would pay my plane fare, so I guess I am expected to pay it. We are both working girls, and I doubt if her parents can foot the bill for my transportation, although they are putting on the wedding and the plans are quite lavish.

Should I write and mention my plane fare? Or do you think I should just assume that I'm expected to pay it myself? When she asked me to be her maid of honor she said that her parents were buying the gowns for the girls in the wedding party, but we would have to buy our own shoes. Hurry your reply.

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Since nothing was mentioned about your plane fare, it's safe to assume that you are expected to pay your own way. If she sends you a ticket, it will be a pleasant surprise.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

ing there aren't any problems. But they accept you much more for who you are than what you are."

She said the Japanese people were helpful and she and her husband liked to spend their days off traveling around the country.

Department Meeting Held

The Home Life Department of the Greenville Woman's Club held its May meeting at the club building.

Miss Alya Ray Taylor, chairman, presided and Mrs. Eula Mae Cannon gave the devotional "Spirit Lifters." Miss Taylor reported that the department will have a bridge luncheon in September.

Mrs. Elizabeth Savage gave a report on the winners at the Author's Luncheon. Mrs. Florence Holt won first place for a poem which she had written. Mrs. Savage won the champion award in bowling for the aged.

Miss Taylor displayed antique lingerie which was handmade and worn by members of her family in the 1800's. Mrs. Colten Smith told about and displayed handwork she had made including crocheted afghans, pillows and various ceramics.

Hostesses were Harriet Roseveare, Cynthia Passel, Eva Corbett, Gladys Bowles, Marie Clark, Mary Cole and Eunice McGee.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Melva Hester, bride-elect of Dennis Buck, was entertained Saturday night at a miscellaneous shower at First Federal.

The honoree was presented with a corsage of flowers. Mrs. Edgar L. Hester, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. J.C. Buck, mother of the bridegroom-elect, were special guests.

The room was decorated with spring flowers and candles. The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and centered with a bouquet of mixed spring flowers.

Hostesses were Mrs. Jean Hester, Mrs. Adele Tyson and Mrs. Martha Langley.

The wedding will take place June 27.

Wig Mimics Wedge-Style Cut

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Anticipating the success of the wedge haircut months before ice skating champion Dorothy Hamill made it famous at Innsbruck, Josef of Rome, as he is known, was turning out the haircut in wigs. A winner, the wig style he calls Super Star now sells at the rate of 20,000 a month, said the San Francisco wig designer.

"The style is a little longer than the (real) hairdo worn by Dorothy because the longer length is more flattering to more women," he explained.

Straight, smooth and bowl-like from the crown with bangs that play hide and seek with eyebrows, the hairdo requires full shape, he explains. "You need good thick hair for body, otherwise the hairdo may look good when you leave a salon, but it may look limp the next day. In a wig, it will keep its shape."

In fact, the hairstyle surprised the trend setters, he said.

"Until two or three months ago, curly hair and curly wigs were popular. They were at a peak. Then, all of a sudden hair went straight because of the wedge. But I think it will last only about eight months or so and after that the hair will be wavy."

"I think waves will come back very strong next winter. One advantage of curly wigs has been that you don't need to have a permanent wave to see whether you like the style. If you don't like it, you can change it," he maintains.

When Josef Scigliano began making wigs in Italy many years ago they were expensive — maybe $300 — and they were bought only by the very rich or those balding women for whom they were a necessity. He worked on real hair wigs but there was just so much you could do with them because they behaved like real hair, he said.

In 1963, he opened his own salon in San Francisco and made wigs for the wholesale and retail markets. He is now top wig designer and stylist for Eva Gabor International.

"There has been a lot of advancement in wig making. Action wear wigs are made of modacrylic fibers that look like real hair and can be woven in a way that makes the hair completely flexible. A method of sewing on the cap has completely changed wig making in these last years.

"People are not so aware of wigs now because they are so skillfully made — hairdressers have mastered the cut — that they simply cannot be detected. And they are convenient and easy-care. They can be washed quickly and hung up to dry in a jiffy."

Dilapidated House Now Troops Rushed Hijacked Plane

An Elegant Restaurant

COLONIAL COSTUMES . . . complement the Williamsburg decor of the Colonial House. Mrs. Mernie Outland, daughter of the co-owner, Mrs. Myrtle Tucker, models a waitress's dress and apron.

FARMVILLE—As Myrtle Tucker and Louise Garner looked at a dilapidated house on West Wilson Street near the downtown area of Farmville several months ago, they envisioned an elegantly appointed restaurant that would serve true home-cooked fare.

But they did more than look and dream—they rolled up their sleeves, put themselves and their husbands to work, learned a few new skills like wallpapering, and transformed the place. "We knew we wanted to restore the exterior to its original beauty," Mrs. Garner said, "and we wanted to use a Williamsburg decor on the interior. Overall we wanted to create a homey atmosphere, not the business-like one that most restaurants have."

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — Filipino troops rushed a hijacked airliner with 93 persons aboard and opened fire only after the leader of the six young Moslem rebels holding the plane shot two women passengers at close range, the Philippine government claimed today.

Officials said 10 passengers and three of the hijackers were killed in the battle. One of the dead was the leader of the hijackers.

"He gave government troops no alternative but to rush the plane and save as many lives as possible," a government television commentator said of the battle Sunday at Zamboanga airport, about 600 miles south of Manila.

Twenty-two other persons were reported wounded in the fray which ended the hijacking after 48 hours and set the $4

Youth Slain In Target Shooting

SWANSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Target shooting by three friends ended tragically Saturday when the 18-year-old son of former Fayetteville Mayor and State Rep. Charles B.C. Holt was fatally wounded at Shell Rock Landing.

The victim was Charles Calvert Holt, a senior at Terry Sanford High School. He died as he was being transferred by ambulance from Onslow County Hospital in Jacksonville to New Hanover Memorial Hospital in Wilmington.

Officers said Holt was struck in the back of the head by a .22 caliber rifle bullet as he and two friends, Richard Osgenberg, 19, and Rick Iseversie, 19, were target shooting.

Billy Woodward, chief of detectives with the Onslow County sheriff's department said the shooting was "completely accidental" and no charges were planned.

million Philippine Airlines (PAL) jet afloat. The airline said the plane, a British BAC111, was a total loss.

The TV commentator said a hijacker hurled a hand grenade after the women were shot. Some passengers said the government troops first fired a tear-gas grenade.

Rear Adm. Romulo Espaldon, the commander of military forces in the southern Philippines, said the pilot of the airliner, Capt. Jovencio Lagazo, gave the signal from inside the plane to start the attack.

Several hijackers tried to escape by mingling with the fleeing passengers, but the passengers pointed them out, and the soldiers shot them, sources said. The three surviving gunmen were taken away for questioning.

Officials said the bodies of 10 persons were found in the gutted fuselage. They included the leader of the hijackers, 22-year-old Pendutan Danansa, alias Zapata, and two of his confederates, Nasser Omar, 15, and Lomuntana Dimaronsing, the officials said.

Three Americans escaped the ordeal unharmed. John Mallett of Cleveland, Ohio, the manager of a banana plantation on Mindanao island, said a stewardess helped him smash a window and he crawled through it to safety.

The other two Americans were Andrew Mac, a lumber executive whose hometown was not known, and Martha Talton of Charleston, S.C. Mrs. Talton was released Saturday in a group of 14 women and children. Three others were released shortly before the shooting.

There were 104 passengers, including the six hijackers, and six crew members on board the plane when the young Moslems commandeered it Friday after it left Davao for Manila. The hijackers forced the pilot to land at Zamboanga.

The government said the hijackers were members of a new rebel organization called the Lanao Revolutionary Command in north central Mindanao. The government has been fighting a Moslem rebellion there for 3½ years.

The hijackers demanded $375,000 and a DC8 to carry them to Libya, which has supported the secessionist movement in the southern Philippines. The government refused but offered them amnesty if they released the hostages.

Not Merely 'Good', But 'Best'

An honor has come to the Pitt staff of the N.C. Extension Service. Epsilon Sigma Phi, professional fraternity of extension workers, named the Pitt staff as tops in the 15 county Northeastern Extension District. The Pitt staff was selected because of "their strong spirit of cooperation and teamwork, and because of their innovative educational programs and leadership." Ed Yancey, chairman of the Pitt Extension staff responded, "I am proud of the staff for receiving this award because we have a well qualified group and they work well together toward goals. District Extension Chairman, J.C. Jones, made the presentation of the County Staff Performance Award. We couldn't be more proud. We were aware that our local Extension Service does an outstanding job in Pitt County. Now the local staff has been honored by an organization of professionals. Our heartiest congratulations to the extension staff for this honor.

Some Too Lax In Their Welfare Aid?

It is distressing to us that welfare costs increased 21.4 percent last year and reached a record high of $24.8 billion. This is not to attack the social services program generally. Children, the elderly the disabled certainly should receive aid. Still the HEW's report carries a strong implication that a few states might be too lax in granting aid. The HEW said that seven states accounted for 70 percent of the increase. There could be other factors involved, of course, but every state should study carefully their criteria for aid and make certain that the criteria is being met. Those states with the largest increases last year should study their programs most carefully.

Lessons From Pay Battle

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — North Carolina legislators will not soon forget the pay-raise battle of 1976. From the midst of the budget session, lawmakers were able to see more clearly which pressure groups were behaving responsibly, and which were not; which groups in future years will be accorded respect, and which will be viewed with suspicion. The lessons learned will be drawn on in future years. One glaring deficiency came to light in the teacher-pay debates, and a number of legislators intend to correct that: the dedicated, career teacher peaks out on the salary scale after 13 years and receives no further regular increases—only across-the-board pay raises granted by the assembly.

teachers are "peaked but." To the minds of some lawmakers, the solid, responsible teachers who refused to dignify threats of a "sick-in" or participate in pressure tactics against the General Assembly were not rewarded properly. The young, militant teachers who marched, demonstrated, postured, and threatened wound up getting more—even though less than the demanded 16 per cent. It is widely accepted among many legislators that the teachers who turned up the heat by political threats, telegrams and demonstrations did little to help themselves in the long term. Neither did the top officials and staff of the North Carolina Association of Educators. While privately the NCAE spokesman sought to convince legislators that the teacher organization was not directing the pressure campaign, the fact remained that many messages came signed by representatives of that group, and the allied Political Action Committee for Educators. Some legislators were irked that NCAE leaders declined to publicly divorce themselves from the teacher demonstration staged in Raleigh at which banners and tee-shirts carried militantly threatening messages, and the rhetoric did little to establish the demonstrators as actual leaders of the majority of North Carolina's responsible teachers. At the same time, however, some vote-seeking legislators urged the teachers to intensified lobbying activities. Less Strident Other state employees affiliated with the two organizations separate from the NCAE early in the maneuvering recognized the futility of making unmeetable demands. Legislators largely responded positively to that position, and some teacher demands that additional money be used for teacher raises at the expense of other state employees further aggravated the situation. In the end, the assembly decided to give the same treatment to all state employees. Cooler heads than those in the teacher ranks prevailed among the other state employees, as legislators got the message that a raise of whatever size available would be appreciated, and the employees were loyal to the state and her citizens. Future years will tell just how much that attitude will mean to state employees, and to the majority of teachers who behaved responsibly. Already there is considerable talk among lawmakers of methods whereby teacher training institutes can do a better job of screening and preparing "responsible" people for classroom duty, and especially of testing techniques which can be used at the state level before a teacher can receive a certificate, and at the local level before a teacher is hired. The purpose, to seek to screen some of the so-called "young rebels" from the classrooms. Additionally, it is certain that future pay raise work will go toward rewarding the experienced teacher at the top of the scale, even at the expense of the beginners.

Wrong Result The net result is a penalty at the top; higher rewards at the beginners' level. Several efforts to correct the fault died because of limited time in the 1976 session, but future adjustments will likely be concentrated at the top, where about one-third of the

The GALLUP POLL

Unregistered Young Adults

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N.J.—The latest nationwide surveys show that fewer than half of young adults are registered to vote, with the proportion having changed little since the beginning of the current year. Young voters 18 to 29 years old account for fully one-fourth of the adult population of voting age. Yet only 44 per cent are currently registered to vote. This failure to register on the part of many young adults undoubtedly deprived President Ford of some of his support in recent primary contests, since young Republicans, both those registered and unregistered, lean heavily to Ford over Reagan in recent nationwide showdown tests. Voter Turnout Could Be Low Unless a presidential candidate succeeds in capturing the imagination of young voters, the voting record of this age group in November may prove to be as unimpressive as it was four years ago. Only 47 per cent of the 18 to 29-year-old group voted in 1972. Their vote divided 52 per cent to President Nixon and 48 per cent to Sen. George McGovern. Vote Is 'Up For Grabs' In a sense the youth vote is "up for grabs," since an unduly large proportion in this age group are not aligned politically and prefer to describe themselves as independents. Correspondingly, they vote for the man rather than the party. Young voters (18 to 29) are the most volatile of any age group, shifting sharply in their choices and attitudes in a short period of time. As a case in point, young voters currently lean heavily to Jimmy Carter over President Ford, 57 to 39 per cent, but in a survey taken two weeks earlier their choices had been closely divided.

Impact On Vote In Presidential Races While young adults have deprived themselves of some of their impact on primary and presidential contests due to a low registration level and to a low turnout in elections, they have had a decisive impact on the results of certain of the presidential elections of the last 25 years. For example, if only young voters had participated in the 1968 presidential election, it would have been a shoo-in for Sen. Hubert Humphrey in his race against Richard Nixon and Gov. George Wallace. Humphrey won the vote of 47 per cent of young adults (21 to 29 years old), to 38 per cent for Nixon and 15 per cent for Wallace. In 1960, young voters helped turn the presidential contest into one of the closest in history and gave Sen. John Kennedy the victory. While adults 50 and over voted 54 to 46 per cent for Nixon, voters under 50 voted just the other way, 54 to 46 per cent for Kennedy.

somewhat more in favor than are older adults of the death penalty for persons convicted of murder. They vote 52 to 38 per cent in favor. * They favor the ERA (Equal Rights Amendment) to a greater extent than do their elders. Their vote: 64 to 18 per cent in favor. * They are just as concerned as are older adults about a decline in morals and honesty in America. By the margin of 64 to 33 per cent they say morals and standards of behavior are not as high as they were in the past. * Young adults are slightly less inclined to place importance on balancing the federal budget, although 63 per cent say it is "very important" to balance it. * A greater proportion of young adults express approval of the Bartley-Fox Act, a Massachusetts gun law which requires that a person who carries a gun outside the home must have a license to do so. The vote is 81 to 17 per cent in favor. * Young adults are slightly more likely than are older persons to oppose an amendment which would prohibit abortions. They vote 57 to 38 per cent in opposition. Here is the question asked to measure registration levels: "Is your name now (Continued on page 5)

'I Want Lots Of Smoke'

WASHINGTON—The original idea for the political conventions was that the Democrats were supposed to choose their candidate in a smoke-filled room in New York City after a deadlock amongst all the candidates who ran in the primaries. The Republicans, on the other hand, were going to go through the motions of nominating Gerald Ford unanimously after three days of filling in TV time at Kansas City. Well, a funny thing happened on the way to the conventions. It looks as if Jimmy Carter will be the Democratic candidate without too much of a struggle, while a real brouhaha will take place in Kansas City. The first inkling of this was when the national Democratic Party tried to cancel the smoke-filled room it ordered at the Statler Hotel across from Madison Square Garden. A high functionary of the party called the manager of the hotel and said, "We won't be needing a smoke-filled room in July for the convention." "Does this mean Mayor Daley, Leonard Woodcock, George Meany, George Wallace, Mo Udall, Sen. Jackson and Gov. Carey will not be coming to the convention?" the manager asked.

"No, they'll probably be there along with all the other power brokers, but it doesn't look as if there will be any horse trading at the convention as was originally planned. Carter should have the whole thing sewed up by then." "Do you want me to cancel Sen. Humphrey's room?" "No, I think he's still hoping lightning will strike, and if we canceled his room at this stage he might feel unwanted."

"You know," the manager said, "there will be a charge for this cancellation. We had special air conditioning put in the room because you insisted that you would be needing it."

"I understand that," the Democratic official said, "but at the time we were certain it would be necessary to have it. How did we know Carter would walk away with all the marbles? The power brokers in the party aren't any happier about this than we are. They were hoping to call the shots when they came to New York. Now they have to sit there with egg on their faces instead of cigars, pretending they were for Carter all the time."

In the meantime, over at the Republican National Headquarters an official was calling the Radisson Muehlebach Hotel manager in Kansas City.

"Listen," the official said, "we're going to need a smoke-filled room for our convention."

"The manager became very huffy. "It was my understanding that the Republicans would not have any smoke-filled rooms. If you recall it was one of the conditions of your being permitted to hold the convention in our city."

Woods' Quiet Asset

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — On its face, Democratic gubernatorial candidate George Wood's opposition to capital punishment seems to be a political liability. After all, several polls have shown that as many as three-fourths of North Carolina voters favor the death penalty. But Wood's position may actually be an asset, despite the polls, because he is the only major candidate who has promised not to permit the execution of the 108 inmates on Death Row.

This is a year when nearly all of the gubernatorial candidates, Democrats and Republicans, are taking accurate polls and getting much the same picture of the electorate's feelings. As a result, they are sounding very much alike on the issues. Wood's position on capital punishment sets him apart, and even though it is a minority position, it may be worth taking.

Like fellow Democrats Edward O'Herron and Thomas Strickland, Wood's best chance for the nomination is to finish second behind Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, with enough votes to force a runoff. Then he would have a chance to unite the anti-Hunt forces in a winning coalition.

To do that, he might need no more than 25 or 30 per cent of the vote in the first primary. But where was Wood, starting late and without a statewide reputation, to find that much support?

The only potential place was in the liberal wing of the party. O'Herron and Strickland, both conservatives, had pre-empted the right wing. Hunt, with his own anti-crime packages and rhetoric, had positioned himself almost as far to the right, figuring that his liberal supporters had no other candidate to turn to.

Wood has threatened to change that. Although his record does not indicate he would be a particularly liberal governor, the capital punishment issue gives him a powerful appeal to those who do not wish to see North Carolina become the execution center of the nation.

And that is what it might well become. The U.S. Supreme Court, after years of skirting the issue, is expected to hand down a more definitive ruling (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Assessing Damage

(Greensboro Daily News)
The General Assembly is disbanded, and the $3.4 billion 1976-77 budget is written.

For both these blessings, North Carolinians can be grateful. It is often said that citizens should be thankful not so much for what the legislature does, but for what it decides not to do. The same can be said for the short budget session just completed.

Mercifully, the legislature did not capitulate to demands from teachers for a 16 per cent pay raise. It did not gouge the University of North Carolina system. It did not enact excessive legislation in the field of medical malpractice insurance.

In each of these areas, the temptation to meddle was great. Nonetheless the departed legislature did set some very disturbing precedents for future years — both in its budget-making and its raids on the powers of the executive branch.

For starters, the use of a one-shot corporate tax windfall to help finance the pay raise for teachers and state employees is a risky venture at best. The questionable use of budget-bill riders to make substantive changes in laws or policy was also popularized by this General Assembly.

In their search for $50 million in budget cuts, legislators also dipped into special funds, postponed capital projects and arbitrarily shifted monies from one department to another. Pet projects, such as completion of the kindergarten program, were funded. But unpopular departments or programs, such as prisons and corrections, were slashed.

The General Assembly also took partisan aim at the executive branch this year. Provisions were tacked on to the budget telling the governor how to prepare the next budget and telling executive agencies which jobs to eliminate — usurpations that House minority leader Rep. Laurence Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, attacked as an unconstitutional breach of the separation of powers.

The Senate also took the first step toward stripping the lieutenant governor of his power of committee appointment in the Senate. The kind of budget shell game engaged in by the legislature this session may find temporary popularity with the folks back home, but it will have consequences later on.

Among them could be a tax increase. Likewise, the legislature's raid on the executive is a blatant power play the General Assembly may come to regret if a strong-willed governor finds his way to Raleigh next year. In the end that may be the only way to put a stop to the politics of drift and vacuum in North Carolina.

Predicts Booming China Trade

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A China authority with top-level trade contacts predicts a huge increase within two years in commerce between that country and the United States, now stalled at about a $500 million annual rate. Impetus for the trade will be the rapid industrialization of the People's Republic, fueled partly by enormous oil reserves recently discovered there, said Harned Pettus Hoose, China agent for several U.S. concerns. Hoose, a Los Angeles lawyer who was born and raised in China, has spent 245 days there as a corporate representative since 1972, when President Nixon made his historic visit. Hoose briefed the president prior to that visit. He forecast that U.S.-China trade, which amounted to $450 million in 1975, would swell to $5 billion or more by 1980, and that by about 1985, U.S. sales alone to that country would reach well above $5 billion. "One current deal, by itself, if consummated, would involve payments by China to an American consortium in the billions of dollars, enough to generate many thousands of man-years of work for Americans," said Hoose. His views are in direct contrast to assertions by some congressmen and businessmen that China doesn't seek further trade expansion with the United States, especially in view of recent political changes there. The precise opposite is true, Hoose said, adding that Chinese trade officials have expressed frustration at their inability to obtain official recognition of their desires from U.S. government officials. The expansion is bound to take place despite little support from the State Department, Hoose said, because U.S. companies and those of other nations, aware of the possibilities, are going ahead on their own. China, Hoose said, is undergoing an agricultural and industrial revolution, partly in response to what it fears is a relatively weak defensive position. It seeks agricultural mechanization by 1980, and superpower status before 2000, he said. "We have the technology and equipment required to spark and then drive China's economic machinery," said Hoose. He said the potential for expansion in China — and therefore for U.S. firms to develop trade — is almost beyond comprehension, involving port facilities, railways, highway networks, telecommunications, mining, electronic computers. Other nations already have recognized the potential for trade better than has the U.S. government, Hoose believes. "The Chinese told me their trade show facilities in Peking are booked solidly for the next four years," he said. But, he concluded, while the low echelons of the U.S. State Department are working valiantly to help businessmen and persuade those higher up, the China potential is "ignored at the top echelon of the State Department."

Strength For Today

D-DAY AND H-HOUR
Nothing in the Bible is more clearly expressed than the fact that the Almighty has a D-Day and an H-Hour. We read, "And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with great power and glory... But of that day and that hour no man know; no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father."
The Bible sets forth a distinct philosophy of history. It declares that this world had a beginning, that it has a purpose, and that it will have an ending. This ending will take place coincidentally with the return of Christ. The present world order will be destroyed, the last judgment will take place, and there will emerge "a new heaven and a new earth where in dwelleth righteousness."
The Bible teaches that history and the issue of all events are in God's hands. It is our responsibility to be ready, and we are to try to make the world ready. We are to watch with eager expectation and pray with deep sincerity.

Now Is Time For Consumers To Air Suggestions

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Now is the time to get your two cents' worth in on proposed government rules and regulations affecting everything from airport safety to antacid side effects.

Federal agencies are seeking comments from consumers. If you have an idea, a complaint or some information to add, you can let the government know by following a few simple steps.

Here are some proposed regulations and directions on how to make your views heard:

The products. The warnings generally deal with possible side-effects or suggest a doctor's advice about use.

The FTC says many consumers don't read the labels and instead rely on advertising for information about antacids.

Among the questions the commission is asking are: Would warnings in advertisements affect the ability of manufacturers to communicate the therapeutic effects of the product? What sort of warnings would be appropriate?

June 11 is the deadline for comments which should be sent to Special Assistant Director for Rulemaking, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C., 20580.

AIRPORTS
The Federal Aviation Administration has proposed requiring major airports to have a detailed medical plan for coping with accidents and other emergencies. The plan would have to spell out facilities and personnel needed to accommodate the maximum number of people who might be on board the largest aircraft authorized to serve the airport.

Among items that would have to be included are: name, location and emergency capability of participating hospitals and other medical facilities; designated areas for sheltering passengers and crew members; the number of surface vehicles and aircraft to be provided by cooperating agencies.

Present rules require airports to provide medical services in emergency plans, but do not describe specifics.

FOOD ADS
The Federal Trade Commission is holding hearings around the country on the first phase of proposals to set standards for nutritional claims in foods ads. (Nutritional claims on food labels already are regulated by the Food and Drug Administration; the FTC plan deals with advertising only.)

The hearings will deal with voluntary claims on natural and organic food, energy and calories, fat, fatty acid and cholesterol content, and health or related claims. Among the things the FTC is trying to learn is whether consumers understand terms such as "organically grown" and "health food."

Here is the hearing schedule: San Francisco, July 12, Room 12138, Federal Bldg., 450 Golden Gate Ave. Contact: Kerner G. Probert at the federal building address, San Francisco, Calif., 94102, by June 22. Telephone: 415-556-1270.

Chicago, Sept. 13, Room 347-A, John C. Kluczynski, Federal Bldg., 230 S. Dearborn St. Contact: June Alvord, FTC, 55 E. Monroe St., Chicago, Ill., 60603, by Aug. 24. Telephone: 312-353-4423.

Dallas, Oct. 12, Room 452-B, 500 S. Ervay St. Contact: Rossanna Nardizzi at the hearing address, by Sept. 21. Telephone: 214-749-3176.

MATCHBOOKS

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has proposed mandatory safety standards for matchbooks. The standards, which would not apply to wooden matches packaged in boxes or to "strike anywhere" wooden kitchen matches, would require that the striking surface be located on the outside back of the matchbook and would set certain performance standards.

June 1 is the deadline for comments which should be sent to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C., 20207. A public hearing will be held May 21 in the Sixth Floor Hearing Room, 1750 K St., N.W., Washington.

Woman Killed In Skiing Accident

ANGIER, N.C. (AP) — A woman was killed and four persons injured Sunday when a motorboat crashed into spectators during a water show.

The dead woman was identified as Patricia Wade, 25, of Angier.

Two spectators on the shore of Young's Pond and two other persons in the boat were injured, and two other spectators were taken to the hospital for treatment of a heart attack and stroke, Harnett County Deputy Sheriff Lemuel Gregory.

An 18-foot boat went out of control during first boat and skiing show of the Angier Ski Mites, Gregory said. The boat was just a few feet from shore, and from what I understand, it was riding the wake of a boat in front of it and the wake washed the boat into the crowd."

About 1,200 persons had gathered for the show at the private 115-120 acre lake about two miles east of Angier.

The injured were identified as Fred Wade, the dead woman's husband and operator of the inboard boat; Robert Slane of High Point, an occupant, and spectators Jimmy Bell and Forrest Tharington, both of Raleigh.

Gregory said Jerry Hargis of Angier, described by a relative as a heart patient, suffered a heart attack and Hargis' sister-in-law, Brenda Hargis, went into shock. The deputy said Mrs. Hargis was 5½-6 months pregnant.

All the victims, including Mrs. Wade, were taken to hospitals in Raleigh.

A witness said the accident occurred as about 16 boats were being introduced by the public address announcer and were making a pass near the grandstand. The witness said the boat struck two trees before it came to rest, and Mrs. Wade was nearly decapitated.

Occult Lured Many Signers

NEW YORK (AP) — The reverse of the Great Seal of the United States shows an Egyptian pyramid because more than 50 of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were concerned with esoteric sciences such as astrology and numerology, according to Harvey Day's "Occult Illustrated Dictionary" (Oxford University Press).

The book also says Evangeline Adams, a descendant of John Quincy Adams, was recognized as the first professional astrologer in America.

soon. Its content will probably depend on how the newest justice, Republican John Stevens, rules. If he favors the death penalty, the gates to the gas chamber at Central Prison will probably be opened.

One man would then have the power to close them: the governor. Thus, probably no single issue in the gubernatorial campaign is as clear cut as capital punishment.

Gubernatorial candidates can talk about improving school funding, but they must get the cooperation of the legislature and the Department of Public Instruction to do it.

They can talk about reforming utilities laws, but the real power lies with the legislature and the utilities commission.

But the North Carolina Constitution, which forces the governor to share so much power, is generous in its grant of perhaps the most awesome power there is—the power of life and death.

For those who feel strongly against capital punishment, Wood offers a powerful inducement: elect him and there will be no executions for four years. Those who feel strongly in favor of the death penalty can divide their support among six candidates, Republicans and Democrats, who have pledged to let the executions go on.

Wood admitted last week that as recently as April, he was speaking publicly in favor of the death penalty. He said the change came about when he read some articles that convinced him there was no proof that the death penalty deters crime.

An aide said Wood changed his mind when he decided to run for governor, but not for political reasons. Capital punishment, the aide said, "stopped being an academic issue. He just thought about it and decided he couldn't 'pull the switch.'"

Whatever the reason, Wood's change of heart has served to give North Carolinians a clear choice on what history may well deem the most critical issue of the 1976 campaign.

winning, we may have to settle the whole thing in a smoke-filled room."

"I'm not sure the fire department will approve," the manager said testily. "Although we're willing to do anything to help you people, we never thought you would request something like this."

"Neither did we," the Republican official said. "But it now seems imperative that we have one. Money is no object as long as we get enough smoke to fill the room."

"Why can't your people just smoke cigars while they choose their candidate?" the manager asked.

"Because Republicans don't smoke cigars," the official shouted. "We smoke pipes. The Democratic bosses smoke cigars. That's the main difference between the two parties."

"I'll discuss it with my engineer," the manager said. "We'll do the best we can on such short notice. I never thought I'd see the day when the Republicans would be talking about a brokered convention."

The Republican official said sadly, "Neither did President Ford."

Rep. Hays Denies 'Mistress'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Wayne L. Hays canceled a planned trip to England to receive the Magna Carta as moves got under way for a possible congressional investigation into accusations that he kept a mistress on the House payroll. The accusation against Hays, 64, chairman of the House Administration Committee, was made by the woman who claimed she has been his mistress, Elizabeth Ray, 27. "The woman is a former mental patient," Hays said Sunday during a speech at a Memorial Day observance in Hanoverton, Ohio. "I deny vehemently any of the charges." A congressional delegation which was to have included Hays flew to England without him Sunday to receive a lent copy of the Magna Carta, the original charter of English liberties, for the U.S. Bicentennial.

Hays said he was remaining in Washington to discuss with his attorneys the possibility of a lawsuit in connection with the allegations.

Miss Ray said she was paid $14,000 a year in House funds to serve as Hays' mistress. After Miss Ray's accusations, Hays said he was going to fire her from her post on a subcommittee staff.

She described a luxuriously appointed office in the House Longworth Building where, she said, she spent a few hours a week but did no office work. Hays visited her apartment once or twice a week throughout the past two years for sexual relations, she said.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the accounts subcommittee of Hays' own House Administration Committee, said he would call his panel together to consider an investigation of Hays' and Miss Ray's relationship.

Thompson said he will convene the subcommittee as soon as possible after he returns from a European trip in mid-June. The panel may seek testimony from Hays, who routinely submits the committee's budget from which Miss Ray was paid, Thompson added.

As chairman of the Administration Committee, Hays exercises enormous power over House members controlling the allocation of offices, staffing, travel, payrolls, parking and police. Last year Hays survived an attempt to replace him as committee chairman with Thompson.

Hays was married five weeks ago to his longtime Ohio office secretary, Pat Peak, following a divorce from his first wife.

"I and my family are deeply disturbed at the report" of Miss Ray's allegations, Hays said in a statement Sunday. "My bride of five weeks is also disturbed." He called Miss Ray "a very sick woman" and added: "I'm sorry I felt sorry for her." Hays added that Miss Ray had been seeing a psychiatrist and "I have spoken with him about Miss Ray."

Miss Ray acknowledged in an interview with CBS News that she sees a psychiatrist. "However, a lot of people do," she said. "I think due to the situation I have been in for the past two years, I think almost anyone would have seen a psychiatrist."

Ingram Again Raps Policy Probably Dead, In SBI Chief's View

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The insurance industry discriminates against women, says John Ingram, North Carolina insurance commissioner.

He told the 34th annual convention of the North Carolina Association of Insurance Women that a task reported most women in the industry are employed in clerical jobs and few have an opportunity for advancement.

He also said Saturday that the task force found discrimination against women in every form of insurance, including life, annuities, health and property and casualty insurance.

Ingram said the survey found that some types of insurance are not available to women or are available only at a prohibitively high premium.

Ingram told the convention that women do the "real work" in the insurance companies and agencies in North Carolina.

"I know it, you know it and your bosses know it. It's time they recognized your contributions to this vital industry with better pay and promotions to executive positions," he said.

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — Haywood Starling, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, says his best guess is that Bradford Bishop, U.S. State Department official wanted in the slaying of five members of his family, is dead.

Starling told to North Carolina newspaper editors Saturday his opinion was pure supposition.

"My guess is that he's deceased back there where his car was found," in the Great Smoky Mountains near Gatlinburg, Tenn.

"In his apparent state of mind, he could have wandered off and shot himself somewhere. With the wild boars and other animals in those woods, he'd never be found."

His comments came in response to questions from newspapermen at the annual meeting of the Associated Press News Council.

Starling said the SBI was no longer actively investigating the case. Its role now is to respond to requests for assistance from Montgomery County, Md., officials.

Bishop lived with his wife, mother, and three sons in Montgomery County. In March, their bodies were found in a shallow grave in Tyrrell County of eastern North Carolina.

State Rep. Carl Stewart, Gaston County Democrat, sponsor of the North Carolina open meetings law passed in 1971, told the editors the time has come to change and strengthen the law.

He suggested an amendment requiring that public bodies give notice of their meetings. He said there should be criminal penalties for violation of the law, and that acts done in secret by board or commissions be voided.

Two educators and a newspaper editor agreed that aspiring journalists cannot write well. But they disagreed on the cause.

Prof. Byron Shaw of Wake Forest University blamed high schools. He said they no longer emphasize the development of writing skills.

David L. Howe of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg schools blamed society rather than the schools. "Society creates the schools; educators don't," he said. "Most people don't care anymore about good writing," he said.

Richard Creed of the Winston-Salem Journal said newspapers have to shoulder a large part of the blame because they do not promote good writing themselves.

CLAIMS TO BE HIS MISTRESS — Elizabeth Ray, 27, says that Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, right, chairman of the House Administration Committee, has kept her on his staff for two years as his $14,000-a-year mistress. (AP Wirephoto)

Mother Shocked Over Claim Of N.C. Native

MARSHALL, N.C. (AP) — "I was shocked," said Mrs. Norman Roberts, mother of a former beauty contestant who claims she was the mistress of Ohio Congressman Wayne L. Hays.

Mrs. Roberts, who lives in this western North Carolina town near Asheville, was contacted by telephone after the Washington Post reported Sunday that Elizabeth Ray, 27, said she did no congressional work and that the 64-year-old chairman of the House Administration Committee visited her apartment once or twice a week.

Hays said in Ohio that Miss Ray "is a former mental patient. I deny vehemently any of the charges."

Miss Ray was a contestant in the 1963 Miss Asheville pageant and attended a business school there for two months, Mrs. Roberts said.

Miss Ray later said in Washington that she was a few years older than 27, but would not give her exact age. She was graduated from Marshall High School and later moved to Asheville.

She said she now is looking for another job, probably something in public relations. The Washington Post quoted her as saying she had been given a clerical job by Hays although "I can't type, I can't file, I can't even answer the phone."

Mrs. Roberts said Elizabeth Ray was her only child by her first marriage to the late Oliver P. Ray.

"She was a photographer for two or three congressmen. She made quite a bit of money," Mrs. Roberts said. "She sent me a lot of money and helped me out a lot."

"I went up there (to Washington) about a year ago and saw her, but I don't know anything about her," she said. "The last time I talked to her was Easter Sunday on the phone."

She said her daughter was born in nearby Walnut in Madison County and grew up in Marshall.

A school teacher who asked not to be identified described Miss Ray as "sort of a scatter-brained blonde." She went by the name of Betty Lou Ray, the teacher said.

Her mother said she had small parts in two movies in California. She said "Scorpio" was the title of one and she did not remember the name of the other.

Miss Ray graduated from Marshall High School in 1962. Her annual said she was a member of the 4-H Club, newspaper staff and a business education student.

Mrs. Roberts said she is a housewife and has five other children by a second marriage.

Seven Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press

Seven persons died in North Carolina over the weekend.

The toll for the year rose to 496, but was 16 fewer than a year ago.

Among the victims was Ollie Junior Choplin, 30, of Rt. 1, Wake Forest, who was in a car which overturned in Wake County.

Cecil McIntyre, 28, a service station attendant of the Mathews-Mint Hill Road in Mecklenburg County, was killed on U.S. 74 near Charlotte by what police called a hit-and-run driver.

Victims of other accidents were: Ronald McGregor, 27, a Ft. Bragg soldier.

Michael L. Lott, 23, of Barnwell, S.C., who was killed in a head-on collision in Scotland County.

David Cormier, 21, of Cumberland, R. I., fatally injured in a collision near Wilmington. Christine Revis Slagle, 27, of Arden near Asheville. James Lester Stack, 51, of Kernersville near Winston-Salem.

Judge Leaving; Pay 'Too Low'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — District Court Judge Fred A. Hicks says he will give up his $23,500 a year job at the end of 1976 because the pay is too low.

"Lawyers with my experience can earn $30,000 a year, minimum," said Hicks, 33.

The judge announced over the weekend that he will return to private law practice in Mecklenburg County rather than seek reelection to a four-year term on the bench.

A study published this year by the National Center for State Courts ranks North Carolina 29th among the 50 states in salaries paid to judges of "general trial courts."

The study was based on the $30,500 annual salary North Carolina pays its Superior Court judges. Hicks contends that District Courts also are "general trial courts," and that on that basis, District Court judges are the lowest paid general trial court magistrates in the nation.

Superior Court judges in North Carolina try criminal cases involving potential sentences of more than two years, hear appeals from District Courts and try civil cases when the amount of money at issue exceeds $5,000.

District Courts handle misdemeanor cases, civil cases involving $5,000 or less, and domestic cases.

Bit Of History Being Returned

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A bit of Civil War history is being returned to the Spotsylvania, Va., courthouse thanks to a Gonzaga University law professor.

Gerard Magavero, a professor and law librarian at the Spokane university, said he's returning a law book pillaged from the courthouse 113 years ago by Union soldiers. The book was published in 1820 and deals with state laws enacted from 1756 to 1763.

Magavero said the book was donated recently to the Gonzaga library by former Spokane County Superior Court Judge Raymond F. Kelly, who said he had no idea how the volume got from Spotsylvania to Spokane.

TALK IS CHEAPER WHEN YOU DO IT BY THE BOOK.

Or, how to save money (and time) on directory assistance calls.

First, before calling Directory Assistance:

Check your telephone directory. You'll probably find the number already listed there.

Check your personal directory. Your frequently called numbers are always at your finger tips in this handy little directory, and they're available at no extra charge from your local telephone business office.

Check letterheads, business forms and invoices. Most businesses list their phone numbers on their stationary and printed forms.

Then, if you still find it necessary to call Directory Assistance:

Remember that you can get two local numbers with one call, and that you can get up to five free calls each month.

And don't forget to record the number you get in your telephone directory, personal directory or address book.

The fact is, most of the numbers now being requested are already included in your current local telephone directory.

So, do it by the book. And save.

Use Directory Assistance wisely. It pays. CarolinaTelephone

Pitt Native Is Next CO For Fighter Group

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Writer
Within the next few weeks—before July 1—Lt. Col. Harvey Bradshaw will receive silver eagles designating his promotion to the rank of full colonel in the U.S. Marine Corps. Bradshaw, who grew up in the Pitt County village of Bruce and on a farm off Hooker Road in what is now Greenville, has also been chosen to take over command of Marine Air Group 31 (MAG-31), stationed at Beaufort, S.C.

MAG-31, which has five squadrons of F-4 Phantom fighters, is "the biggest aircraft fighter group in the Marine Corps," Lt. Colonel Bradshaw said.

Currently on duty as Assistant G-3 (Operations Division) of the 2nd Marine Air Wing at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, Bradshaw detailed the composition of the elite Marine force he will be commanding soon.

"The group has about 75 F-4's and approximately 2,000 personnel," he said. "This number of men includes pilots, radar interceptors, supply men, administrators and mechanics."

"A large portion of the group's operational force is made up of mechanics with a great variety of specialties. It takes roughly 200 mechanics for each squadron, so a group like this has only a relatively few individuals in administrative and supply functions."

In addition to the main force of the fast-flying F-4 fighter aircraft, MAG-31 has ten other planes assigned. "There's eight TA-4's," Lt. Colonel Bradshaw explained. "These are two-seated trainer planes. In addition we have two C-117's, twin-engine transports, versions of the old DC-3's. The C-117 is a serviceable transport plane still in use after some 30 years."

As a pilot, Bradshaw is understandably proud of the record of the fabled F-4 Phantom. "It's a world record speed holder," he said, "and has attained a speed of 1,600 miles per hour."

Lt. Colonel Bradshaw joined the Marines "in June 1954, shortly after I graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill."

After graduating from the old Greenville High School, Bradshaw majored in journalism at Chapel Hill. "I've kept my hand in writing all along," he said. "I was editor of the base paper at Iwakuni, Japan."

Through the years he has periodically contributed articles to major military magazines. One article, written for the Marine Corps Gazette, Bradshaw stated, "was about the War Dogs of World War II. Another article I had published was Flying Tigers In The Sky, which pays tribute to enlisted Marines who fought in Vietnam. That was published in Leatherneck magazine."

Other major writing projects have included A Pictorial History of Marine Aviation, The First Fifty Years, 1912-1962, published in The Naval Institute Magazine, and A History of Marine Operations In Vietnam.

for which he received a Navy Achievement Award.

"I was very pleased to get a call from a former English teacher of mine here in Greenville, Miss Deanie Boone Haskett," Bradshaw said. "She's always shown interest in my writing. I'll never forget her pleasure when I won a state award for poetry when I was a sophomore in high school." (Miss Haskett called him after seeing him in a TV appearance recently on "Carolina Today"). Bradshaw added "I still find time occasionally to write poetry."

In 22 years of active Marine service, Lt. Colonel Bradshaw has served in several stateside and overseas marine posts, with tours at Quantico, Va., Cherry Point, Iwakuni, Japan, Memphis, Tenn., El Toro, California, and Washington, D. C. where he attended the Naval War College.

Bradshaw served all of calendar year 1967 in Vietnam "as a fighter pilot stationed at Chu Lai. My primary mission was air sorties over the Demilitarized Zone." In the summer of 1958 he was in the Mediterranean at the time the U.S. Government was standing in readiness to send assistance to Lebanon.

His most recent overseas tour before coming back to Cherry Point was in the Far East. "My home base was in Japan," he said, "with assignments out to Okinawa, the Philippines, Korea and Taiwan. While on that tour, I also went aboard the carrier Enterprise, where my squadron was qualified.

"We were standing by for possible support in the final days of the evacuation from Vietnam in April of '75."

Decorations and medals received by Lt. Colonel Bradshaw include the Distinguished Flying Cross with 23 air medals, the Navy Commendation Medal, and the Navy Achievement Medal. In addition, Bradshaw holds various service and duty awards and medals.

On the subjects of whether he hopes his two young sons will follow in his footsteps by choosing a military career, Bradshaw said "I've always made a point of leaving it up to them to make their own choices. Both my sons have always had a great love for animals. Both want to be veterinarians."

"My oldest son, Toby, is a pre-vet student at N.C. State University. Paul, my youngest son, will graduate from a high school in Virginia in a few weeks."

Lt. Colonel Bradshaw is married to the former Mary Eleanor Race. "She's from Quincy, Florida, near Tallahassee."

When Bradshaw accepts promotion to the rank of full colonel, he notes his acceptance will "involve an agreement to remain on active duty for an additional two years."

Asked about retirement plans, Bradshaw said "I may stay on to complete 30 years, or I may retire before then. At this point I've not really decided." He mentioned that chances are he'll return to the career he knew as a youth in Pitt County—that of a farmer.

"I've got a farm here in Greenville off Hooker Road and I've also bought some land on the Old River Road where I've established a fine white Muscadine vineyard."

Commenting on his personal reaction of being named commander elect of MAG-31, Lt. Colonel Bradshaw said "Naturally I'm very happy and consider myself extremely fortunate in being selected. There's only four such groups in the Marine Corps. As commander of the group at Beaufort, I'll have responsibility for the entire Marine Corps aircraft fighter activity east of the Mississippi.

"I'm fortunate too in that I know lots of people in the group. They're good people, and good people are the key to a successful organization. There's tremendous competition in getting a command such as this. Being the group's commander will be a real test for me, but I'm looking forward to it."

HARVEY BRADSHAW... Lt. Colonel, U.S. Marine Corps, has been selected for promotion to full colonel prior to July 1. The former Greenville resident will also assume command of MAG-31 at Beaufort, S.C. on or about that date.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 25, 1976

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning finds you with many new ideas but there would be some obstacles if you tried to put them in motion right away. Make sure you study them first. Not a good time for positive action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Know exactly what it is you desire to have in your personal life and then go after such aims. Don't neglect important business matter.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you help an influential person, you are able to gain more prestige and respect now. Show associates that you have fine ability.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you have a more broadminded attitude, you can gain the support of co-workers. Avoid extravagance when shopping.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle those important responsibilities early so you will free time for new interests later. Try to please loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Put those ideas to work that will bring harmony between you and a co-worker. Make long-range plans for the future. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) The morning finds it possible for you to accomplish much in your line of endeavor. Schedule your time and efforts intelligently.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make amusement plans early and then handle regular routines. More kindness toward mate brings fine rewards. Take proper exercise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Use more objectivity where a new interest is concerned. Show more creativity at work and you can get ahead in your line of endeavor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Consult higher-ups where your work is concerned and gain their suggestions for bettering it. Use the evening for relaxation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Morning is the best time for taking care of a monetary matter. Consult financial experts for the advice you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Improve your appearance and then engage in business affairs with confidence. Show good sense in handling money.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make a schedule that will help you accomplish the most throughout the day and evening. Show increased devotion to loved one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have a very gregarious nature and much can be accomplished in business as well as the social side of life. Be sure to give the finest education you can afford. Don't neglect spiritual training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Pope Paul Installs 20 New Cardinals In Consistory

FIRING LINE—A Bicentennial troop unleashes a volley of musket fire Saturday at a re-enactment of the Sept. 26, 1880 Battle of Charlotte. The Redcoats won the first one, and they followed through Saturday with another win, this one staged at the Charlotte

Motor Speedway. The event was sponsored by the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Bicentennial Committee and the speedway. The battle drew a crowd of 12,000 most of whom cheered for the losers. (AP Wirephoto)

By MICHAEL J. DUFFY
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI installed 20 new cardinals from six continents today in a consistory emphasizing a trend of internationalism in the top ranks of the Roman Catholic hierarchy. The number of prelates elevated to the Sacred College of Cardinals was increased by the surprise appearance of one of the two men the Pope named "in pectore," or in his breast, when he announced the identities of his other 19 choices four weeks ago.

The 20th cardinal was the archbishop of Hanoi, 76-year-old Joseph Marie Trinh-nhu Khue.

Vatican sources said the designation of the Hanoi prelate was not announced with the others because he was still negotiating with the Communist government in North Vietnam for a permit to travel to Rome. His identity was revealed when the Vatican secretary of state, Jean Cardinal Villot, summoned him to the papal throne after the other 19 to receive the red biretta, the three-cornered hat symbolic of the princes of the Church.

Because he did not arrive in Rome until Sunday, the Vietnamese prelate was the only one of the new cardinals who did not wear the robes of his new rank today.

The identity of the other cardinal named in pectore will remain secret until the Pope reveals it, and he will not function as a cardinal until then. Although cardinals have usually been named in pectore when they were serving in Communist countries, there is speculation that Pope Paul's other secret choice was Archbishop Raymond-Marie Tchidimbo of Conakry, Guinea, who has been in jail for several years on charges of subversive activities.

The new cardinals increased the Sacred College to a total membership of 137. They included five from North and South America, four from Africa, three from Asia, seven from Europe and one from New Zealand. Countries getting cardinals for the first time, in addition to North Vietnam, were

The last consistory in 1973 was a one-day event instead of the usual three days of ceremonies. But this year the installation of the new cardinals will not be completed until Thursday, the Feast of the Ascension, when the Pope gives them their sapphire rings and celebrates mass with them.

Much of the pomp of the past is gone, however, including the sword-bearers, the broad-brimmed galero hats, the silver-the Dominican Republic, Senegal, Uganda and Nigeria.

The only American, Archbishop William W. Baum of Washington, D.C., became the 12th cardinal in the United States, a country of 48 million Catholics whose membership in the Sacred College is exceeded only by Italy's 36.

The average age of the new cardinals is 60, with Archbishop Jaime L. Sin of Manila, 47, and Archbishop Baum, 49, the youngest. Cardinal Trinh-nhu Khue is the oldest.

Mark 70 Years Of Married Life

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Osovich celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary recently.

Mrs. Osovich said the marriage took place in Dolany, Poland, when she was 16.

She said the marriage years "have passed so fast, I don't realize it's been 70 years."

Osovich used to be a coal mine worker.

The couple has 7 children, 13 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

buckled red shoes and the ermine-lined capes.

First on the schedule today was a secret consistory of the previous members of the College of Cardinals in which the new men named by the Pope four weeks ago were formally chosen. This was followed by a public ceremony for the conferral of the birettas, the three-cornered red hats symbolic of the rank of cardinal.

Also in the secret consistory, the old cardinals voted on the elevation of three new saints. They were Father John Ogilvie, a Jesuit priest martyred in Scotland in 1615; Father Charbel Makholouf, a Maronite priest who lived as a hermit in Lebanon in the late 19th Century, and Beatriz de Silva Meneses, Spanish founder of the Order of the Most Holy Conception.

Event Postponed

The "First Great Bike Tour of Greenville," scheduled for today at 10 a. m., was postponed due to the threatening weather and rescheduled for Tuesday, June 1 at 10 a. m.

The joint city-East Carolina University effort was planned to promote bike safety and also to call attention to planning that is progressing towards construction of the first phase of the city's bike path system.

City and university officials were expected to take part in the three-mile bike tour, according to Jim Hix, chairman of a citizens advisory committee studying the potential bike path program for the area. Hix said that the officials have indicated they will be on hand for the June 1 event.

Hix also urged local citizens to make plans to participate in the biking event.

Holiday Weekend May Push Gas Prices Higher

CHICAGO (AP) — Gasoline prices may reach their highest levels in nearly a year as a result of Memorial Day weekend traffic, a leading oil industry analyst says.

Herbert Hugo, senior editor of Platt's Oilgram, an oil and energy newsletter, said Sunday, "The coming week may well be the week that was for American motorists. It may be the most dramatic and even traumatic week since last July 4."

A record demand for gasoline coming from the anticipated traffic during the holiday will tighten supplies of gasoline, Hugo said.

"This record demand has been in evidence for last few weeks, and it will crest during the Memorial Day weekend," he said. "Right now the nation is burning up gasoline like there is no tomorrow. We are using 10 per cent more than one year ago, and that's far more than any oil industry economist had anticipated."

The nationwide average price for a major brand of regular leaded gasoline is currently about 59 cents a gallon, compared with 63 cents a gallon last July 4.

The average price range from nonleaded regular — to the least expensive gasoline — to the highest grade of premium is 10 to 12 cents, Hugo said. He added that if the anticipated record demand over the summer months is met, prices may go above last year's July 4 level and almost certainly will reach it.

Hugo said the increase in demand follows a 2½-year period, beginning with the Arab oil embargo of late 1973 and continuing to this spring, when gasoline consumption across the country had been fairly stable.

"All of a sudden, John Doe is going back to big cars and not paying attention to prices, speed limits or anything having to do with energy conservation," Hugo said. "People are ignoring reality, but pretty soon reality is going to smack them real hard in their wallets."

WCU Opens Again Today

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Western Carolina University resumed classes today after being closed almost a week when a flood damaged the university-owned water system.

Nearly 5,700 students had been sent home Tuesday and water service for about 1,000 residents in Cullowhee also served by the system was disrupted when 8½ inches of rain flooded the Tuckaseegee River and knocked out the water pumps.

The closing will not affect the WCU's spring commencement on June 6, university spokesman John Slater said.

The river washed silt, sand and debris into the university pumping station following heavy rains on May 15-16.

"When the flood occurred, we were in the process of building a new pumping plant which was to have been completed in two to three weeks. But we got the contractor to expedite construction process to finish the new pumping station," Slater said.

There will be no similar trouble at the new plant because they will be able to close off the water from the river during a flood, Slater said.

Three Talks By Rep. Sam Bundy

State Rep. Sam D. Bundy will fill three speaking engagements this week and next.

Wednesday he will speak at the 20-Year banquet of the State Employees of Dorothea Dix Hospital at the N. C. State University Faculty Club. Sunday he will be the featured speaker at the Homecoming and Bicentennial program of Ashley Grove Baptist Church in Northampton County. Wednesday, June 2, he will speak at the Ladies' Night banquet of the Fremont Rescue Squad.

Tar Heel Died In Plane Crash

STURGIS, Ky. (AP) — A North Carolina man died Sunday when his small, home-made plane collided with another during an air race at the Sturgis Airport.

Jack Lowars of Clinton, N.C., and John Rowe of Southfield, Mich., were killed as their single-engine, Formula One one-seaters crashed on a turn.

Historical Soc. Names Officers

Dr. Joseph W. Congleton, Jr., professor in ECU's School of Education, was unanimously chosen president of the Pitt County Historical Society at a dinner meeting of the group held on Thursday, at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Also elected officers of the Society were Mrs. C. Wesley Harvey, of Greenville, vice president, and Mrs. Cherry Easley of Farmville, secretary, Miss Annie Turner and W. Connor Eagles, both of Greenville, were re-elected corresponding secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Judge Dink James of Greenville, chairman of the Nominating Committee, presented the slate of officers who will serve for 1976-77. Other members of this committee were Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell of Greenville and Mrs. Arch Flanagan of Farmville.

Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, retiring president, gave an address on "Pitt County On The Eve of the American War for Independence," in which he discussed the development of the country in the years immediately following its formation in 1760. He traced the large migration into the country from southside Virginia, the movement to separate what became Pitt County from Beaufort County, and the rise of the strong revolutionary sentiments among the residents of the county which led to the formation of an active Committee of Safety and "Pitt County Association" two years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Frank Sinatra Is Now 'Doctor'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — It's now Dr. "Old Blue Eyes." Entertainer Frank Sinatra got a Doctorate of Humane Letters at graduation ceremonies at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

After holding onto his mortar board throughout the opening speeches Sunday night, Sinatra received what he said was his first educational degree and added, "I will never forget what you have done for me today."

Sinatra, 60, told the graduates that school officials originally told him he would receive an honorary doctorate of music degree. "But the regents probably dropped in at Caesar's Palace and caught my act and decided the degree should be in humane letters."

The singer-actor said most of his schooling had been on the streets of New Jersey, where he learned in the "school of hard knocks."

Johnny Carson Revisits School

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP) — Television talk show host Johnny Carson told graduating seniors at his high school alma mater that he came to town for several reasons.

"And the most important was to see if they changed the movie at the Granada Theater any more often than they did when I was here."

Carson, host of NBC's Tonight Show, was the principal speaker at commencement exercises Sunday night for 120 Norfolk High School seniors.

A 1943 graduate of the school, Carson said, "I think there's a great advantage in growing up in a smaller community because you have a lot more personal relationships." Norfolk is a northeast Nebraska farming community of 16,000.

Play On Life With The Ik To Be Bicentennial Gift

By RICHARD NEWCOMBE
RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Sprawled on her back, the old blind woman kicked and screamed, struggling like an inverted turtle to turn over. Death was near. Around the aged African, people laughed. Colin M. Turnbull felt pity. He gave the old woman food, shelter and — perhaps most unusual for her — sympathy. But now, 10 years after first living with the Ik, a small tribe of hunters in northern Uganda, the 51-year-old social anthropologist and author isn't sure he'd do the same thing. The incident he first perceived as grisly is now understandable, despite the emotional pangs. And the woman herself questioned Turnbull's actions. "She probably would have been happier dying while laughing at herself that afternoon rather than having it prolonged," said Turnbull, whose book about the Ik, "The Mountain People," was a best seller a few years ago. "When I saw that woman on her back I couldn't resist helping her," he said. "But what good did I do? After giving her something to eat, I suggested she go and see her son."

But the old woman reminded Turnbull and his assistant that her son had already thrown his dying father out of his house because if he died inside he would have been required to hold a feast he could not afford for his neighbors. "Then the woman cried," Turnbull said. "How did we help her by bringing her inside? We had made her remember when people did care for one another."

His study of the 1,000 members of the mountain tribe led to a play sponsored by the French government and produced in London by Peter Brook that will be given to the United States this fall as a Bicentennial gift.

Accompanied by lectures, the play will be performed at American universities.

Turnbull, now a professor at Virginia Commonwealth University, said his time with the Ik is part of a concern with African customs that has dominated his professional life. He is a man with strong opinions about the validity of those customs, questioning the emphasis of white societies on technological development at the expense of personal relationships.

The Ik, Turnbull notes, are not typical of other African tribes, where traditions of family and dependence on elders are frequently much stronger than in Western countries.

Only half a century ago, the Ik was a tribe of proud hunters, individuals with normal emotions like other human beings.

But a life of bare subsistence — and the loss of those emotions — followed the imposition of colonial boundaries that prohibited hunters from venturing beyond certain geographical limits.

Rain hardly ever falls in the area, making the land almost impossible to farm.

Confronted with the limited natural resources and lacking the training, education or desire to abandon the tribe, the Ik learned to detach themselves from one another. A cliché perhaps, but only the strong survive.

Turnbull cites one particularly graphic scene from the play about the Ik in which a mother laughs at her 2-year-old son after he puts his hand in a fire, searing flesh.

"She was trying to teach the child not to care, not to trust anyone," he said. "Dependence is the one thing they can't afford."

By contrast with the Ik, other tribes encourage dependence.

"Other tribes teach their children from birth to be dependent," he said. "Mothers breast-feed their babies for three years, and it is not unusual for a father to hold his child up to his breast and tell him he may not be able to feed him the same way as his mother but that he can teach him how to hunt or other methods of getting food."

According to Turnbull, most African tribes have social systems in which the police are not armed, family ties are cohesive and crime is at a minimum.

In his newest book, "Man in Africa," Turnbull explores the ways Africans use nature as a guide for social customs involving such things as personal relationships, marriage and the family.

"Throughout Africa, social order is almost a given," he said. "We tend to expect disorder, we have come to expect it. With them it's the reverse, and that's incorporated into their religious beliefs. For them it's a very powerful force."

But Turnbull doesn't recommend the book.

"It was edited and rewritten so much I don't want anything to do with it at this point. They wanted to make it emotional, as my story about the Ik was, but I intended this one strictly for an academic market."

"They gave it the subtitle, 'From Cape to Cairo,' making it sound as if I were in a racing car zooming from one spot to another," he said.

Turnbull's experiences in primitive society wrought changes in his ability to deal with more technologically-oriented cultures.

And feeling he cannot revisit the Ik until he becomes more detached and objective, Turnbull has made the downtrodden of the United States one of his major concerns, saying the more he helps, the more he learns.

He teaches a course at the State Penitentiary and is working on two new books, one on Indian philosophy and the other that is to be an introduction to anthropology.

Turnbull lives in a rural black community outside Richmond, finding life in such surroundings more familiar than suburban American homes.

"When I first came over here I stayed with some friends in

New Jersey, and I simply was not used to the type of hospitality they provided — clean sheets, a fresh shirt every day, fresh pyjamas.

"Everybody called me by my first name and told me to help myself to whatever was in the refrigerator," he said. "I practically starved because it all seemed unreal and I was afraid to intrude."

"I find life where I am now much more typical of what I have become used to. I don't know if it's living around blacks or just being in a rural environment."

As an anthropologist, Turnbull says he benefits from studying the background of his prisoner-students, but he is also a severe critic of the nation's prison system.

He blames the large number of crimes committed by ex-convicts on a denial of opportunity for personal development.

But as students, Turnbull finds the prisoners more stimulating, more mature and more interested in learning than many of the college students he teaches.

"I find them very exciting students anthropologically, though I am not there for research," he said. "But in teaching you begin to learn about their lives, their communities. I'm getting great input from it."

While critical of some black African leaders, such as Uganda's Idi Amin, Turnbull argues Amin has assets as a leader.

He also believes much of the current political turmoil was predictable a decade ago and forecasts a short future for Ian Smith's white-minority rule in Rhodesia.

"They should have made changes 10 years ago, appointed blacks to cabinet positions," he said. "But now it's too late."

Turnbull regrets the fighting and bloodshed that have characterized political unrest in parts of Africa, but believes some whites "have behaved like such utter monsters" toward blacks that the unrest is to be expected.

"Britain is very fond of calling America racist, yet I have never seen anything since living in Richmond that resembles the way whites treat blacks in Africa," he said.

As for Amin, Turnbull said while he does not approve of recent dictatorial acts by the Ugandan premier, he contends Amin restored peace and at least some freedom to a

New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Brokers noted spreading expectations of some increases soon in the bank-prime lending rate because of the recent rise of open market money rates.

In London, Chairman Donald C. Platten of New York's Chemical Bank forecast a rise in the prime, or basic charge on business loans, to about 8 per cent by yearend. Oil stocks posted some notable declines after an Interior Department official's assertion that construction delays and problems with welds made it uncertain that the Alaska pipeline would be ready on schedule by next summer.

Among major companies directly involved in the pipeline, Standard Oil of Ohio fell 2 1/2 to 69 1/2; Atlantic Richfield was down 2 1/2 to 96, and Exxon lost 3/4 to 98 1/2.

In other oils, Getty and Standard Oil of Indiana each dropped more than a point, and Union Oil of California, the most active Big Board issue, was off 3/4 to 49 1/2. The NYSE's composite index fell .36 to 53.61 in the first hour. The American Stock Exchange market value index gave up .24 to 104.52.

(Continued from page 1) building will yield "some recommendations as what we might do as far as rehabilitation of the building." The superintendent also noted that "I talked with Dr. J. L. Pierce of the Division of School Planning in Raleigh. He will assemble a team from the Division of Planning," visit the school to review the condition of the building and the school's long range plans "and see how it might affect those plans... the use of the school in the future."

Cox added, "We are pretty well set for the remainder of the year," with students formerly housed at Third Street accommodated at other locations throughout the city.

The question of the Third Street closing, Cox said has now become "sort of a long range plan, rather than an immediate problem."

Play On Life...

(Continued from page 9) country previously plagued by roving robber bands and general disorder. Amin gained notoriety through a dispute with Britain's Queen Elizabeth over a Briton who was sentenced to death for calling the Ugandan leader "a village tyrant."

But Turnbull said Amin has an enormous potency with his people and is far more clever than realized by most Western journalists. "A good example was an international conference several years ago... where Amin couldn't leave the country because he would have been dethroned," he said. "There would have been a coup, but he couldn't very well announce that to the world."

"So instead he wrote to the Queen and demanded that he be escorted in her private plane and given an entourage, and he made several other outrageous demands, not so they would be met but so they would not."

"This way Amin appears in his country as a strong leader capable of demanding that the Queen treat him as an equal. After she refused his request, he had an excuse for not leaving the country. That was a brilliant play, but few outsiders understood it."

Turnbull, who once taught at Hofstra University and worked in Harlem, offers understanding for critics who say he portrays Africa as if it can do no wrong. I can see how they could get that impression... he said, referring to his new book. "But I certainly did not mean to convey that message."

"In my writings I am not trying to over-value Africa," he said. "But there's certainly a great deal we can learn from their experiences."

Money-Source For Business, Industry

James T. Johnson, state director for Farmers Home Administration, announced that North Carolina businesses and industries have a new source of financing.

According to Johnson, over 60 businesses and industries in the state have borrowed some $40 million under the program to construct new plants, to expand and modernize existing businesses, and to enlarge operations through working capital loans.

The purpose of the program, the director explained, is to create and maintain employment and improve the economic climate of rural areas. He noted that a rural area is designated as a place of 50,000 population or less.

Under the program, Johnson noted, businessmen obtain loans from lenders such as banks and savings and loan associations, and the loans are then guaranteed by FHA up to 90 per cent.

According to Johnson, interest rates may be fixed or variable and are negotiated between the lender and the borrower. Farmers Home Administration does not set a maximum rate, it was pointed out, and there is no limit on the amount that can be borrowed.

Dr. Charles Russell, Assistant to the President of Pitt Technical Institute, and former Adult Basic Education (ABE) director, was the guest speaker at the Third Annual ABE Recognition Night at Pitt Tech Thursday.

Fifty-three students were recognized by being awarded Achievement Certificates, and 85 students were awarded Attendance Certificates; all are enrolled in Pitt Tech's ABE program.

Others included in the program are the following: Rev. James Hyman, Hugh Stanley, ABE director; Mrs. Geraldine Pilgreen, and Pitt Tech president Dr. W.E. Fulford, Jr. ABE students attending the ceremonies represented classes being held at Pitt Tech, Ayden, Farmville, Greenville, Pactivus, Warren's Chapel, Renston, Hanrahan, Haddock's Crossroads, and Grifton.

Approximately 160 students, their families and guests, and instructors attended the recognition program.

Hunting Cause Of Bus Crash

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — While services are held today for some of the 28 victims of a school bus crash, investigators continue their examination of the fatal plunge from a Martinez freeway exit ramp.

A joint funeral was scheduled for four of the victims at a church near Yuba City High School, where the choir group began its outing Friday. A moment of silence was to be observed at the start of classes today. A memorial ceremony is scheduled for Friday at the school football stadium in this town of 14,000.

Other funerals were scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday. Services for music teacher Cristina Estabrook, the only adult killed, were to be in San Jose today.

Eighteen of the 24 survivors remained hospitalized Sunday in the San Francisco Bay area, most in stable condition.

The first to return home was Kimberly Kenyon, 16, whose injured left leg was in a cast. About five minutes after the crash, she said, "I decided to grab onto a pole and pull my legs out from under a seat. I was climbing over people. The rest of them began to come out but it was so quiet. All I could hear was a lot of soft moans and muffled voices. Some kids whispered, 'Help me.'"

Over the weekend, investigators reconstructed the bus' path and examined the 26-year-old vehicle for signs of mechanical defects. They interviewed surviving students and planned to talk to driver Evan Prothro, 50, who remained hospitalized in critical condition.

The accident is being investigated by the California Highway Patrol, the National Transportation Safety Board and a team hired by the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Coordinator For Wood

Howard N. Wilson of Greenville has been named Pitt County coordinator of the George Wood for Governor campaign, the candidate announced.

Wilson, retired southeast sales manager for International Minerals and Chemicals Corp., Agricultural Chemicals Division, has lived in Greenville since 1953.

The Pitt coordinator, who took early retirement in 1971, has also worked with Chevron Chemical Co. He is a retired colonel in the Air Force Reserve and served with the Air Force in China.

He is married and has two daughters.

Wilson praised the Democratic candidate's "high integrity" and observed, "In my heart I think he will make an excellent governor — one of the best the state has ever had. That's the reason I'm offering my services."

Danish Queen

SOLVANG, Calif. (AP) — Queen Margrethe of Denmark made a return trip to this Danish tourist-attraction community — and this time she stayed for lunch in a traditional Danish setting.

The 36-year-old queen, world's youngest reigning monarch, had asked to repeat a visit she made in 1960 while she was crown princess.

But a few of the estimated 150 Danish-born residents of this 2,500-population community felt her last tour didn't go just right and some had refused to have anything to do with this visit. Her lunch stop the last time was at a Spanish restaurant outside of town.

For Sunday's visit, the queen's lunch stop was right in Solvang at the Danish Inn, where borrowed tables and chairs were carted in to accommodate the 250 guests and royal entourage.

The queen and her husband Prince Henrik are on a three-week tour of the United States. Virginia was named after the Virgin Queen of England — Queen Elizabeth.

Secret Service Spied On Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service spied on more than 1,200 persons attending the 1971 national convention of the Young Socialist Alliance, according to government documents disclosed today.

Secret Service agents covertly photographed the speakers and tape-recorded the convention in Houston and sent the material to the agency's intelligence division in Washington, the documents said.

The YSA is the youth affiliate of the Socialist Workers party, a Trotskyist group which says it hopes to achieve a socialist revolution in the United States by working through the system and fielding candidates for public office, including the presidency.

The party obtained the documents through a lawsuit — against the FBI, the Secret Service and other agencies — seeking more than $27 million in damages for allegedly illegal harassment of political activities.

The documents were made public by the Political Rights Defense Fund which is financing the lawsuit. It has been disclosed that the FBI directed a wide range of disruptive activities against the two socialist groups. But this was the first disclosure of Secret Service surveillance of the YSA convention.

"The Secret Service was re-sponsibly for the recording of the speeches and it did so in furtherance of its duties under" the law, Asst. U.S. Atty. William S. Brandt said in a letter accompanying the documents.

There was no explanation of what those duties were, although other documents released by the party indicate the agency was concerned about security at the 1972 Republican national convention.

Virginia was named after the Virgin Queen of England — Queen Elizabeth.

Gilbert Ends Drought With Win

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "After six years, I never thought it would come again," Gibby Gilbert said after he'd broken that long victory drought with a triumph in the Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

The stocky, sturdy veteran considered the statement for a moment, smiled and added:

"About halfway through the 17th hole, I thought it'd never come again."

It was on that hole in Sunday's final round that Gilbert had to chip in from about 35 feet to salvage a par and clinch his victory over hopeful Dr. Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist who took his doctorate in Memphis and was followed by a huge, vocal gallery of old friends, classmates and former neighbors.

"My mouth got awful dry," Gilbert said. "It got a lot closer than I wanted it to."

His once-commanding five-shot lead had dwindled to two. Gilbert came out of a buried lie in the bunker and was laying three in rough, short of the green on the par-four hole. He'd made double-bogey just two holes earlier, almost three-putted the hole before and now was looking at bogey — quite possibly a double bogey — and the loss of his lead.

"I thought, 'I need to chip it in for par.' I really didn't expect to do it. I just wanted to get it close. But I really thought about it. I really thought about chipping it in." And he did just that, holing the chip for the par that nailed it down.

Morgan eventually bogeyed the 18th from the lake and Gilbert made birdie, accounting for his four-stroke winning margin after a final round of par 72 and a 273 total, 15 under par on the hilly, windswept, 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club course.

Morgan's bogey on the 18th dropped him back into a three-way tie for second at 277. He was tied at that figure with Forrest Fezler and New Zealand's John Lister, neither of whom really got in the title chase on the hot, humid, hazy final day. Morgan shot a closing 73, Lister 68 and Fezler 71.

George Cadle was alone with a 69—278, followed at 279 by Tom Kite and Fred Marti, who led through the first two rounds. Kite shot a 69, Marti 72.

Lee Trevino birdied four of his first seven holes but couldn't keep it going and finished with a 68 and a tie at 281 with Gary Player, who shook off a bogey-bogey-triple bogey string for a 71.

The victory, his first since the 1970 Houston-Champions Open, was worth $40,000 to Gilbert, pushed his earnings to $67,597 and assured his wife, Judy, of a new wristwatch for her birthday next week.

"I told her that if I won, I'd buy her a diamond wristwatch," Gilbert said. "I won and she's got it."

Rose Back On Playoff Road

Rose High School's Rampants open play in the State 4-A Baseball playoffs this afternoon in a 4 p.m. game at Fayetteville.

The Rampants will be facing a team they have already fallen victim to earlier this year, South View, winners in Division III.

The South View Tigers finished the season with a 19-2 record, having lost early in the year to Hoggard, a defeat they later avenged. Their other loss came the day after they topped Rose, when they bowed to Williamston in the finals of the Gaylord Perry Tournament.

The first meeting between the two teams saw South View take a 3-2 victory. A long hit by Timmy Locklear in the bottom of the seventh broke a 2-2 tie and gave the Tigers the victory.

Locklear, despite not being the ace for former Met star Cal Koonce, the Tiger coach, did manage to post an unbeaten year on the mound. He is just a sophomore. The top hurler is Mickey Britt, who was the victim in both of the losses, and went 10-2 on the year.

Rose finished the season with a 14-8 record, and took second place in the Division I standings. Since the baseball playoffs follow the same pattern as did football, the Rampants, should they go all the way, would advance by the same route they did on the gridiron.

The defending state champs, thus, would have to win at least five games — all on the road — to win a second straight title.

The Rampants will be depending on the hurling of Mike Belton, who lost the earlier heartbreaker to South View. Belton, David Dixon, Mike Brewington, Wright Hooks and Jimmy Averette will be among those depended on for the hitting, along with catcher Eddy Connolly.

The winner of the game moves on to meet the winner of the game between the Cap Eight champ and the Division II runner-up.

Elsewhere, several other area teams will be in action this week also.

On the 3-A front, defending state champion Williamston will meet Ayden-Grifton in a first round game. That contest is slated for the Chargefield at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

In 1-A action, Bear Grass will host Creswell in a 4 p.m. game Tuesday, while Jamesville travels to Manteo for an 8 p.m. Tuesday game.

In girls' softball, Williamston visits Northampton in a first round state playoff game on Tuesday.

Ali Still Favored To Beat Dunn Despite Falling Floor

By DAVE MINTHORN
AP Sports Writer

MUNICH (AP)—A slimmed-down Muhammad Ali, boastful as ever despite pre-bout bad omens, was a solid favorite today to successfully defend his world heavyweight title against European champion Richard Dunn.

Climaxing his rigorous slenderizing campaign, Ali weighed in Sunday at 220 pounds, shedding some 10 pounds since his controversial title defense last month against Jimmy Young.

"I'm fast at 220. He hasn't got a chance," Ali said of his 31-year-old English opponent, who tipped the scales at 206½.

As Ali stepped off the scales onto a stage in the downtown arena where he trained, the wooden floor suddenly collapsed, snaring the champion in a dangerous tangle of splintered boards as 500 fans gasped in alarm. He was quickly freed, unharmed, and laughed off the incident.

But it wasn't funny for the German fight backers, who viewed the collapsed floor as the latest in a series of misfortunes that have plagued financial arrangements for the bout and have left them an estimated $500,000 in the red.

Ticket sales have lagged badly, with only about half the 12,500 seats in the Olympiahalle sold up the day of the bout. The cheapest seat is $12 and ringside spots cost $400.

The fight is scheduled for 3 a.m. Tuesday, local time 10 p.m. EDT, tonight for live prime-time television in the United States on NBC. The fight is also being televised live in West Germany and that hasn't helped ticket sales, either.

Ali bought up 2,000 tickets, worth $100,000, for free distribution to American servicemen, a gesture that helped cut the promoters' debt.

Earlier last week, Ali threatened to pull out of the fight because the promoters — a group of Bavarian businessmen — came up short in Ali's original purse of $1.65 million. The champ agreed to settle for about $1.5 million. Dunn is getting about $200,000.

The challenger, a 6-foot-3 ex-paratrooper, still insists he will surprise Ali and win the title. But the red-haired father of three young children enters the bout as a rank outsider with a reputation for a plodding style and a glass chin.

In his early career, Dunn lost nine of his 27 bouts, including five by knockout. Then he suddenly emerged from obscurity in a complete about-face and won six in a row — the last a quick knockout of West German Bernd August last month to win the European title and earn the shot at Ali.

"Someone's going to be lucky and catch the greatest fighter of all time on his way down," says Dunn's 72-year-old manager, George Biddles. "I think it will be Richard."

Boston's Attack

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics' famed racehorse style off the fast break may be a fraction slower, but veteran center Dave Cowens is ready to compensate for any slack in the National Basketball Association championship series with the Phoenix Suns.

Cowens, who became the heir to Bill Russell's old position in 1970, turned in another ironman performance Sunday as the Celtics defeated the Suns 98-87 in the best-of-seven playoff opener.

"He's the guy who's anchoring our club now, helping the guys who are hurting," Boston Coach Tommy Hainsohn said after Cowens scored 25 points, grabbed 21 rebounds, handed out 10 assists and stole the ball once while playing the entire 48 minutes.

Although team captain John Havlicek played a surprising 40 minutes despite a painful left foot injury, and JoJo White scored 20 of his 22 points in the second half, Cowens was the dominating force in Boston's tenacious defense.

"I thought we played a pretty smart game," Cowens said. "Paul Westphal and Keith Erickson are the truly pure shooters on the Phoenix team and what were they, something like 6-for-29?" (Actually they were 6-for-27.) "That's super as far as we're concerned. We didn't give them anything."

White did a tremendous job covering Westphal, a former teammate who hit on just four of 17 floor shots. However, the Suns, inexperienced but loaded with confidence after upsetting defending champion Golden State in the Western Conference final, were way off in shooting, making good on only 38 of 99 field goal attempts.

The Celtics, noted over the years for their free-shooting at tack, had only 77 shots but made good on 39. The Boston accuracy of 50.7 per cent compared with Phoenix' 38.4.

"I can't remember us ever getting only 77 shots and still winning," Havlicek said after scoring 16 points, grabbing six rebounds and collecting six assists.

"There's no way of predicting when you're going to be hot," said Westphal, who helped Boston to its 12th NBA title in 1974 before being traded to the Suns last May.

Montefusco Saves Split For San Francisco

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —
Right now, John Montefusco is the San Francisco Giants' main link to respectability. "I wish I could pitch him tomorrow," Manager Bill Rigney said Sunday after Montefusco's three-hit performance in a 10-inning, 1-0 victory which gave the team a split in a doubleheader against Atlanta. The first game, a 9-2 Braves victory in which the Giants committed three errors, was more typical of recent major league baseball-San Francisco style. The only bright spot for the Giants in that one was Willie Montanez' fifth-inning homer, first in 133 innings by a

San Francisco batter. Because of the Giants' troubles, team co-owner Bob Lurie is holding a top-level meeting this evening "to go over everything, evaluate and analyze things to see what can be done to turn this team around," according to Rigney. Montefusco, who has five of the Giants' 13 victories this season, threw no-hit ball for five innings against the Braves. The Count said later, "They knew they weren't going to get a run off me." But Braves' starter Phil Niekro was pitching with the same attitude. In his nine innings of work, he allowed just four hits and no San Francisco player reached third base. "His knuckleball was moving all over," said Montefusco, 5-3. "Heck, even I struck out twice." Niekro said that when the Candlestick Park wind was blowing toward home plate, "I just tossed the ball up for them to hit. I figured they'd have a tough time getting it out of the park against that wind." He also may have figured the Giants, who have just 14 homers for the season, were another 133 innings away from their next one.

The Giants scored with two out in the 10th. Reliever Max Leon, who gave up a single to Derrel Thomas and intentionally walked pinch hitter Dave Rader, hit Larry Herndon to load the bases. Chris Speier then hit a grounder to shortstop which brought in the winning run.

Marty Perez elected to go to second base for a force play but Herndon, speedy rookie center fielder, beat the throw. Second baseman Lee Lacy jumped in disbelief at the call, but Braves Manager Dave Bristol said later, "They tell me the television replay showed Herndon was safe."

returned the favor to Speier who had doubled up the Braves an inning earlier forcing Clarence Gaston at second (above). Atlanta won the game, 9-2. (AP Wirephoto)

Guthrie Thrilled, But Disappointed

By JERRY GARRETT
AP Motorsports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) —
Nearly alone for a rare moment this month, Janet Guthrie fought back tears as she stood over the cockpit of her race car in the solitude of the Vollstedt garage. Outside, the curious horde jammed Gasoline Alley, waiting for a glimpse of the woman who would challenge the Indianapolis 500. "Disappointed? I can't say what a disappointment it is," she said, thrusting her hands deep in the pockets of her blue-and-white driving suit. "But at the same time, I would have to say it's been the most thrilling experience of my life." She wasn't beaten by her own ability, nor by the demanding Indianapolis Motor Speedway. In the end, she was done in by a balky car that wouldn't respond to adjustments or keep running for more than just a few laps at a time. Before it ended, though, A.J.

Foyt made sure Miss Guthrie had the opportunity to show herself and a worldwide audience that she had the ability, given refined equipment, to become the first woman to make the field for the $1-million race. "I want to thank A.J.," Miss Guthrie said Sunday after her own car was withdrawn. "There never was any deal to qualify his car. There were some people who wanted to see it happen, including me. But I just appreciated the chance to drive the car this morning. "It felt like a million dollars, and that's probably what it's worth."

Three drivers were ousted from the lineup, making a total of six drivers bumped, Eldon Rasmussen, Bill Simpson, Bobby Olivero, Tom Bigelow, Jan Opperman and Jim McElreath. Bieglow and Opperman jumped to other cars and got back into the field. The 33 cars averaged 183.785 m.p.h., 1.272 miles an hour slower than last year.

Granteers, Cox Realty Take Wins

Jeannette Cox and Pitt Plaza both scored 11 runs Saturday night in Prep League action but while Cox Realty was on the winners' side, Pitt Plaza was not. Pitt Plaza fell in the opening game to the Granteers, who are now 4-0, 22-11. The Granteers doubled the Pitt Plaza score with an 11-run rally in the sixth. In the second game, Cox beat Auto Specialty 11-6 setting up Tuesday night's clash with the Granteers. Cox is also 3-0.

Pitt Plaza got out of a jam in top of the first and in the bottom of the frame pushed in three runs getting one on a hit by Southerland and two more on Morris's double. After the Granteers got one in the top of the second, Pitt Plaza extended its lead to 7-1 in the bottom of the frame.

But the Granteers started chipping away at the lead getting three in the third, two in the fourth and five in the fifth to trail by one, 11-10. The bottom fell out in the sixth. Cox Realty spotted Auto Specialty a run in the first inning of the afterpiece and bounced back in the bottom of the inning to go ahead, 4-1. Both teams scored three in the third and after Auto Specialty narrowed the margin to 7-6, Cox put the game away with three runs in the fourth and one in the fifth.

Tanner Looking For Right Time And Place

Foster Hits Goal Hitting Grand Slam At San Diego

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
George Foster began this baseball season with some unfinished business.

"The only two parks I didn't hit home runs in last year were in San Diego and Philadelphia," said the Cincinnati outfielder. He crossed off Philadelphia on April 26, and threw the list away entirely with a grand slam in the sixth inning Sunday to pace the Reds' 11-0 triumph over the Padres.

In the other National League games, Philadelphia trimmed St. Louis 3-2 in 11 innings; Montreal bested New York 5-4; Chicago nipped Pittsburgh 6-5 in the opener, but the Pirates came back to take the nightcap 9-1 from the Cubs; Atlanta dumped San Francisco 9-2 in the first game before the Giants squeezed out a 1-0, 10-inning decision in the nightcap, and Los Angeles outscored Houston 6-5 in 10 innings.

The benefactor of Foster's blast — one of his four hits in four at-bats which produced five runs batted in — was Jack Billingham, who handcuffed the Padres on three hits. Billingham struck out five and didn't walk a batter in raising his record to 5-3 with his 11th triumph in his last 12 decisions against the Padres and the 18th victory in 24 verdicts overall against them.

Phillies 3, Cardinals 2
Relief pitcher Al Hrabosky issued a bases-loaded walk to Larry Bowa with two out in the 11th inning, lifting Philadelphia past St. Louis and giving the Phillies their 22nd triumph in 28 games.

Solo home runs by Vic Harris and Hector Cruz had accounted for the St. Louis scoring, Mike Schmidt's RBI single in the first and Bob Boone's two-out RBI hit in the fourth provided the other Philadelphia runs.

Expos 5, Mets 4
Gary Carter's seventh-inning single, a hit which broke a 0-for-14 slump, drove in the run that gave Montreal its victory over the Mets.

Earlier in the inning, Andre Thornton's sacrifice fly had tied it. Del Unser's a two-run homer in the sixth had given New York its 4-3 lead.

Cubs 6-1, Pirates 5-9
Two-run homers by Bill Robinson and Al Oliver keyed a power barrage off Chicago pitcher Mike Garman and led the Pittsburgh past Chicago in the nightcap.

The Cubs took the opener on a wild pickoff attempt by relief pitcher Dave Giusti with one out in the ninth inning. The Pirates had rallied from a 5-0 deficit to tie on a two-run shot by Richie Zisk.

Braves 9-0, Giants 2-1
John Montefusco pitched a three-hitter and Chris Spier's infield single scored Derrel Thomas from third in the 10th inning to give San Francisco the nightcap after Atlanta won the opener on the strength of a five-run fourth-inning rally.

In the opener, Willie Montanez hit the Giants' first home run in 133 innings.

Dodgers 6, Astros 5
Manny Mota's 10th-inning pinch-hit single with the bases loaded scored Rick Auerbach to help Los Angeles extend its winning streak to six games.

Jerry DaVanon had given Houston the lead in the 10th with a sacrifice fly, but the Dodgers rallied twice in their half to win it.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer
Chuck Tanner may be in the right place, but at the wrong time.

The time to be in the Oakland dugout pulling the strings was from 1971-1975, when the A's were winning five straight American League West titles and three consecutive World Series flags.

Two men managed the A's during those times of plenty and neither of them was Tanner, who spent those years in Chicago, pushing buttons for the White Sox.

While the A's were up, the White Sox were mostly down, finishing third, second, fifth, fourth and fifth.

But now that the shoe seems to be on the other foot, poor Chuck Tanner might like to kick himself with it. He's in the wrong dugout once again.

Tanner, the 12th manager off the assembly line since A's owner and king Charles O. Finley took control of the franchise in 1961, isn't ready to say Oakland's reign is over. He sounded chipper Sunday, even though the A's lost a doubleheader to the White Sox, 3-1 and 4-3, for their seventh and eighth straight losses.

"This has happened to a lot of clubs before," Tanner said. "It happened to the Dodgers and Red Sox earlier this year. Good clubs will do this and bounce back."

Meanwhile, now calling the shots for the White Sox is Paul Richards, whose team has won seven straight.

"Looks like this may not be a streak," Richards said. "It could become routine."

Elsewhere in the AL, Cleveland swept a pair from Milwaukee, 2-1 and 8-5; Boston nipped the New York Yankees 7-6; Detroit stopped Baltimore 10-6; Minnesota beat Kansas City 3-1, and Texas crushed California 9-0 in a five-inning game shortened by hail.

Pat Kelly doubled in the tie-breaking run and scored on a single by Ralph Garr in the seventh inning to win the opener for Chicago.

In the nightcap, the White Sox tied the game 2-2 in the fourth on singles by Jorge Orta, Brian Downing and Chet Lemon. Downing and Lemon then pulled off a double steal with Downing scoring from third. Chicago added a run in the fifth when Bucky Dent singled Kelly home.

Clay Carroll, who won the first game in relief, saved the victory for Bart Johnson in the second game.

Red Sox 7, Yankees 6
Roy White could have been at third base, as the potential tying run, but a perfect relay turned White into the second out of the ninth inning and spelled victory for Boston.

With one out, Willie Randolph singled and White doubled. When the ball caromed past left fielder Rick Miller, Randolph scored and White steamed for third base. Shortstop Rick Burleson took the throw from Miller and fired to third baseman Rico Petrocelli to get White.

Twins 3, Royals 1
Minnesota turned over four double plays, and Bob Randall had a quick hand in all of them.

Randall, 28, is in his first major league season after spending eight years in the Los Angeles system.

"The double play is a pitcher's best friend," said winning pitcher Bert Blyleven. "That why Randall makes all the difference in the world to us."

Tigers 10, Orioles 6
Ron LeFlore extended his hitting streak to 25 straight games with four hits, including a double that triggered Detroit's six-run eighth inning.

"I've cut down on my swing considerably," said LeFlore, a free swinger last year who is now leading the American League with a .409 average. "I've got to have discipline and it's gonna come."

Indians 2-8, Brewers 1-5
Cleveland's Jim Kern won the second game and saved the opener for Jackie Brown.

John Lowenstein drove in four runs in the nightcap. In the opener, the Indians broke up a scoreless pitching duel between Brown and Pete Broberg with two runs in the seventh.

Rangers 9, Angels 0
In 1 2-3 innings, Nolan Ryan gave up seven runs and issued six walks. Texas scored nine runs in the second, highlighted by Tom Grieve's double and two-run homer.

Strange Planning To Make Decision

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Curtis Strange, who has won the North and South amateur golf tournament the last two years, says he will decide after he helps Wake Forest University defend its NCAA title whether he will enroll for his senior year or try to join the pro tour.

The 21-year-old shotmaker from Virginia Beach, Va., breezed past the U.S. Amateur champion, Fred Ridley of Winter Haven, Fla. 6 and 5, in Saturday's 36-hole final of the 76th North and South, the nation's oldest continuous golf tournament.

Strange departs Thursday for the British Amateur. Then he will play with Wake Forest in the NCAA event June 9-12 at Albuquerque, N.M.

He will be eligible for the fall pro rookie school.

He fired a 69, three under par, in his morning round to build a 4-up lead over Ridley on the No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club. He was two under par for the 13 holes he played in the afternoon.

Ridley, a Stetson University law student, was two over par for the 31 holes.

Strange became the first back-to-back winner of the North South in 13 years, and the sixth golfer in the 76 years to win two or more times in succession.

Mrs. Daniel Is Novice Winner

Mrs. Rae Daniel won the women's singles event of the Greenville Tennis Club's novice tournament Sunday by defeating Mrs. Grace Smith in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1.

Mrs. Daniel entered the tournament finals by defeating Mrs. Barbara Snow, 6-1, 6-3. Mrs. Smith was the semi-finalist winner over Mrs. Lyda Talley, 6-0, 6-2.

Women's doubles will be played next weekend and men's doubles and singles are scheduled on succeeding weekends.

The novice tournament is open to members of the tennis club who have never been winners or runners-up in the regular Greenville Tennis Club championship tournament.

Furman Moves Into Finals

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Furman Coach Tom Wall says the Clemson Tigers have been awesome at the Atlantic regional baseball tournament of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"But I'm glad we have another chance at them," Wall added after his Paladins had defeated Virginia Tech and South Carolina to get into today's finals against Clemson.

Wall had pulled in his third baseman, Bob Kellett, to pitch as the Paladins eliminated the Gamecocks by a score of 12-1 in Saturday's semifinals. Earlier in the day Furman had defeated Virginia Tech 5-4 to eliminate that opponent.

Asked who he might choose to pitch against Clemson, Wall grinned. "That's a good question," he answered. "I may use Randy Howell."

Howell, an all-Southern Conference outfielder, is not a stranger to the mound. He has pitched 16 and a third innings this year, but has no decisions. "He has a good arm," said Wall. "We might just use him."

It will be the second meeting for the Tigers and the Paladins in the tournament. The first time, Clemson, champion of the Atlantic Coast Conference, defeated Furman, the Southern Conference champs, by a score of 13-2.

Clemson, undefeated in the tournament, beat South Carolina 10-4 Saturday. The Tigers had edged Virginia Tech 7-6 Friday.

Farm Scene

by Henry C. Riddick
Agricultural Extension Agent

Tobacco mosaic is already showing up throughout Pitt County and it will cost tobacco growers thousands of dollars in 1976. Early infection, before tobacco is knee-high, could reduce yield as much as 25 percent over a normal crop. A shortage of plants, difficulty experienced in establishing a stand, and reluctance in accepting the milk preventative treatment, will no doubt mean an increase in the disease this year.

Tobacco mosaic is caused by a highly contagious virus that spreads by contact. This means that it is a simple job to spread the disease down the row as the crop is cultivated. When part of the cultivation equipment strikes a diseased plant, it becomes covered with the virus, thereby spreading the disease to many other plants during the operation.

Growers should remove all plants showing symptoms before the first cultivation, and by all means, before the second. Removal of these plants from the field, will do away with some of the mistakes made during the pulling and transplanting, and should hold down losses. Growers finding mosaic in their fields, will be wise to begin cultivating the crop after 9 o'clock in the morning and postponing the job until after plants are dry following a light rain. Cultivating tobacco early in the morning or immediately following rain is dangerous from a standpoint of down row spread. When tobacco leaves are turid and full of water, they tend to bruise easily and mosaic spread occurs at a more rapid rate. Cultivation should be kept to a minimum, absolute must, when mosaic is found in a field.

Operation R-6-P, or the job of destroying tobacco stalks the day harvest is completed, and burning crop refuse to encourage rotting and decaying process, is an important part of the overall program of reducing mosaic. It is generally believed that the virus that causes mosaic does not exist in the soil, but is carried from one crop to the next in undecayed crop refuse.

Free Wood For Area Residents

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Taking advantage of a free wood offer by the Jackson County Park Department, hundreds of people turned lumberjacks recently and helped themselves to pine, oak, maple, elm, walnut and other varieties of trees on the county's property.

The department had decided to let area residents chop trees on a part of the land where a 560-acre lake is going to be constructed in the early 1980s.

J.D. Ingram, chief park ranger, said the department decided to allow the cutting for two reasons: to provide people with free wood and to save the county the cost — an estimated $200,000 — of clearing the trees before the lake is built.

Militant Has Changed Views

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Bernard Nathanson, the former head of New York's first and busiest abortion clinic and militant crusader for abortion on demand now feels abortion "is the taking of human life," according to an article in the March issue of Good Housekeeping magazine.

Dr. Nathanson expresses the view that a legal climate that is "completely permissive" on the issue of abortion may be a threat to the very fabric of our society.

Wood Quits UNC Board

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate George M. Wood has resigned from the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

Wood sent a letter of resignation to UNC board Chairman William Dees last week stating he thought it would be inappropriate for him to serve on the board while running for governor.

Words of praise from Dees and UNC President William C. Friday are contained in the resignation announcement released by Wood's campaign office. Judy Bolch, his campaign press secretary, said both men knew their comments would be included in the release.

But Dees, contacted at his home in Goldsboro, said the comments do not mean they are endorsing him for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Wood has been active in the state university system for many years. He served on the old UNC board of trustees from 1963 to 1972 and was chairman of the North Carolina State University Board of Trustees in 1973.

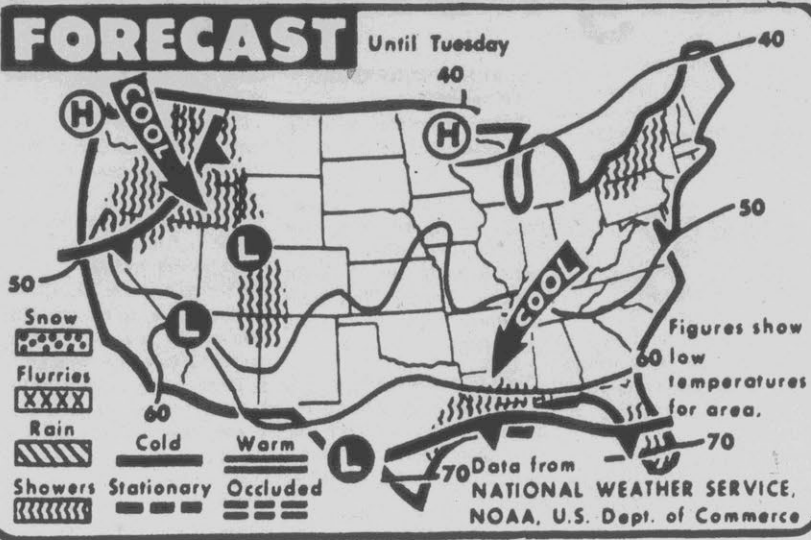

Dees said Wood's seat on the board will not be filled until the next session of the General Assembly appoints a successor. The UNC board oversees the 16-campus North Carolina university.

Mystery Lists

NEW YORK (AP) — One would hardly expect to find Nobel Prize winning writer William Faulkner listed in the "Encyclopedia Of Mystery & Detection" (McGraw-Hill).

But there he is right between Father Brown and Faust, Frederick. The book, edited by Chris Steinbrunner and Otto Penzler, observes that Faulkner's tales "sometimes contain elements of mystery, crime, and detection."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Cool weather is due over most of the nation today with showers expected in the Northwest, western Plains, central and western Gulf, southern Florida and the St. Lawrence Valley. (AP Wirephoto)

A low-pressure area moved up the coast today, bringing rain and winds averaging 20 miles an hour to the eastern half of North Carolina today.

A little rain fell in the west, but it stopped by noon.

High temperatures were in the upper 60s and the 70s.

Skies will clear across the state tonight. The north coast will be the last area with lingering rain as the low-pressure moves out of the state.

The overnight lows will range from the 40s in the west to the 50s in the east.

Sunny skies will return to all of North Carolina Tuesday. Highs then will be in the 60s in the west and the 70s in the east.

Because of clouds, temperatures were mild Sunday. The afternoon highs were in the 70s and low 80s. The range included 70 at Greensboro and 81 at Rocky Mount, Wilson and Goldsboro.

Occasional rain fell in the west and moved into the southern counties of North Carolina, but it was only spotty and very light. Sunday evening the rain became more widespread across the southeast portions and occasional rain fell across the southeast during the remainder of the night.

Small-craft advisories are in effect along the coast for strong northeast winds and rough seas.

Why grasses may be your first and foremost weed problem.

Roger Walker

Let's consider two basic types of weeds. Grasses and broadleaves. While they are both serious threats to yield, in many cases grasses pose the greater problem. In general, grasses have smaller seeds than broadleaves. That means they germinate in greater numbers from the top inch or half inch of the soil profile. This is the first area of the soil to warm up and receive adequate moisture in the early spring, so many grasses germinate at that time, which is the same time your crop emerges.

Also, this is the time that your crop seedlings are germinating, which means that the grasses are competing with your young crop for vital moisture and nutrients. You can wait until later in the season to cultivate, but by then grasses have made their effect on your yield.

But you can effectively control many of the tough grasses you have in either corn or soybeans. You can apply Lasso® preemergent herbicide by Monsanto. Among the many grasses it controls are foxtails, crabgrass, fall panicum, barnyardgrass, goosegrass, and brachiaria.

You can combine Lasso in several labeled tank-mixes which provide broad-spectrum control of many grasses and broadleaf weeds.

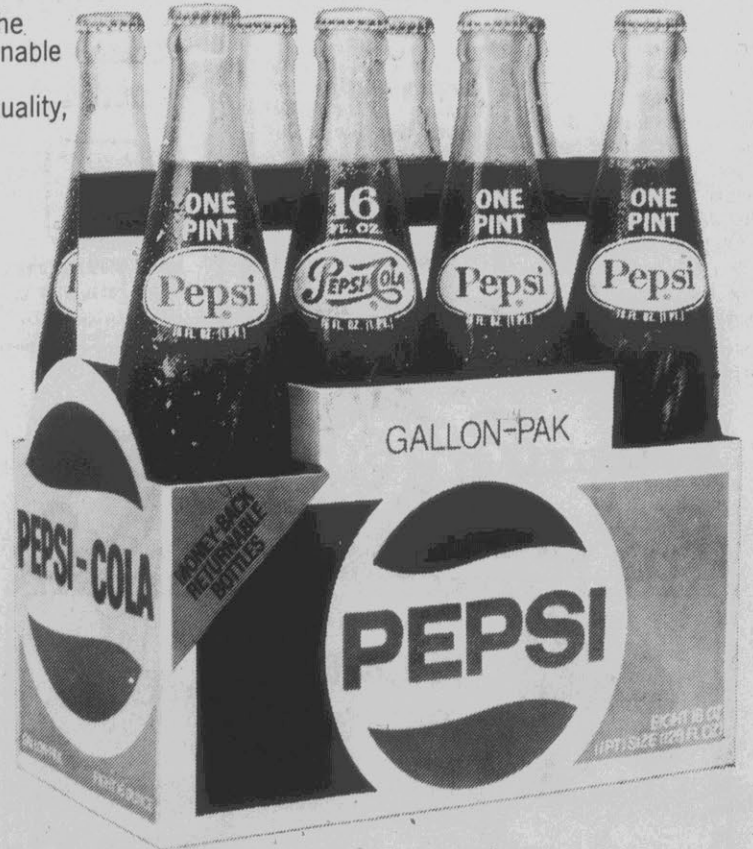

Lasso. The herbicide to start with. And stay with. By Monsanto.

Lasso is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company. Always read and follow the Lasso label directions.

Pepsi-Cola explodes a shopping myth.

Pepsi-Cola in this 8-pack of 16-oz. returnable bottles costs just about the same, ounce for ounce, as most of the brands that claim to be bargains.

It's true. Ounce for ounce you spend just about the same for Pepsi-Cola in this 8-pack of 16-oz. returnable bottles as you do for those brands you thought were bargains. And when you add in Pepsi-Cola quality, we think you'll agree that Pepsi is a real bargain. Next time you shop, compare.

Enide® 50w At Lay-by

PRE-EMERGENCE HERBICIDE

WEED CONTROL IN TOBACCO

Keeps your fields clean through harvesting.

Enide 50w applied at lay-by will give your weed control program the boost it needs to carry fields weed-free through harvesting. Even if you put down an earlier herbicide treatment, your row middles need the extra protection of Enide at lay-by. Lay-by cultivation brings untreated soil to the surface, and throws the treated soil up on the row ridges. That exposes the middles to renewed growth of weeds and grasses that can give you problems at harvest time. But, now you can prevent those problems easily and economically. Apply Enide either during or after your last cultivation.

Ask for more information on Enide as a lay-by treatment.

Other Teens Helped By Peer Counselors

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Teen-agers who don't seem to be able to talk about their problems to an adult counselor have another option at Lincoln High School: they can talk to other teen-agers trained as "peer counselors."

"We're not problem solvers," said Matt Allen, a Lincoln senior who is one of seven peer counselors. "We're ready to help them solve a problem, but we let them do it themselves."

Allen said most peer counseling is done on an informal basis — between classes, at lunch or after school. The counselors offer their services only to students who seek help.

"Many students don't have all that many people who will listen to them," Allen said. "We don't try to tell them what's right and wrong. I guess it comes down to giving them support."

The seven volunteers have received training in communication skills from staff members of the Heartland Area Education Agency. They meet monthly with adult counselors to discuss problems they've encountered in counseling other students.

Many students who are reluctant to discuss personal problems with adults don't mind letting a student counselor take them "under their wing," said Richard Malliet, an adult counselor at Lincoln.

Allen said a frequent problem involves teen-agers who are perplexed because friends are pressuring them to do something they object to — take drugs, engage in sex or even to wear certain clothing.

Allen said he tries to encourage the student to do what he thinks is best in such cases rather than what the friends want him to do.

"A lot of times the student needs reassurance that it's okay to ask for help on class-work outside the classroom — that he's not dumb just because he doesn't understand something," said Cinci Nevins, another peer counselor.

Adult counselors say the efforts by the peer counselors have led to improved academic work or helped keep students in school.

But Allen said counselors on the two-year-old program have run into resentment from some students. He said some students think the peer counselors are setting themselves up as "know-it-alls."

Miss Nevins said the peer counselors are sensitive about their relationship with fellow students, because "if one peer counselor leaves one bad impression, it will affect the whole program."

Applause Marks Her Life

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — In 1949 a slim young girl ran down a flight of steps on the stage of the old Metropolitan Opera House in New York City and into the hearts of a continent.

The girl was Margot Fonteyn, dancing Princess Aurora in the first North American performance of the Sadler's Wells Ballet production of "The Sleeping Beauty."

She has no recollection of dancing that evening, she says in her new autobiography (Alfred A. Knopf, $12.50):

"When I ran out on to the stage there was a burst of sound. It drowned out the music and also some part of my mind, for I have never been able to remember anything between those first minutes of deafening applause on my entrance and the incredible reception after the third act pas de deux."

Everyone else who was there remembers that incredible performance — even many people who were not present. The evening, among many other things, marked the emergence of Margot Fonteyn as the first of the modern dance superstars.

She was 30 then, and it was 15 years since her first professional appearance with Sadler's Wells as a snowflake. She had her 57th birthday here May 18. She's still a superstar, still dancing.

Next month she will appear in Washington and New York with the Australian Ballet in a new role, that of "The Merry Widow."

"I would probably give up except that the enticing invitations keep coming in," she says in the book. "Of course, I am aware that many people think I should have stopped by now, and I agree with them; on the other hand, there are also many who seem glad that I continue, and they have no need to say so if they don't mean it."

"I'm really quite happy with dancing," she said in an interview just prior to the May 16 publication of her book. "I don't feel the necessity of doing anything else."

"I haven't seen 'The Merry Widow' yet. But I've been working with the choreographer, Ronald Hynd, and with Bobby (longtime partner Robert Helpmann). I've been working with Ronald in London on my part. We'll start rehearsing in Washington at the end of this month."

Her dancing these days is slightly less strenuous than it was when her Rose Adagio in "Sleeping Beauty" brought audiences to their feet night after night a quarter of a century ago. But she still practices every day at the barre, and looks as lovely and as slim as ever.

"Even when traveling I try to practice every day," she said, "before going to the airport, or on arrival at a new place straight from the plane to a studio."

She still does not have a manager, arranging all her appearances and contracts herself. She explained, "If someone is going to ask me to dance, they might as well ask me as anyone else."

She always travels alone on her wide-ranging guest appearances, from Japan to New York to London to Australia. But she often has company: "I went out by myself to Tokyo, but when I came back Ivan Nagy (another favorite partner) was on the same plane, and that was nice."

Dame Margot is cool, private, sophisticated, immaculate. Her hotel suite is filled with flowers, her blue dress balanced perfectly by the red roses on the coffee table.

She was waiting for her husband, Dr. Roberto Arias, to return to the hotel. He is almost totally paralyzed from the neck down, as a result of an assassination attempt in the 1964 Panamanian elections, but is an active international lawyer and travels almost as much as she does.

"We're based in Panama and we have a home in London," she said. "We keep thinking we should settle somewhere, but we're traveling all the time. I always think it would be nice to stay in one place, but it never seems to work out that way. Fortunately, with the publicity tour and then rehearsing and dancing in Washington and New York we'll be spending most of the next two months together ..."

"Then I'll probably do a gala in London — Marguerite and Armand' with (Rudolf) Nureyev — and some scattered performances in August. And possibly back to the Philippines in November."

"I'm really quite happy with dancing..." An astonishing woman.

That Satellite Show Is Scene-Stealer Tonight

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight is the night NBC is televising live from Munich a fistfight between Duane Bobick and Bunny Johnson, followed by another dispute between Richard Dunn and a rich pug name of Ali.

The satellite show starts at 9 p.m. EDT, a half hour after ABC starts trying to relieve Ali of viewers by showing "The Andromeda Strain," the movie about what happens when a small town falls to use Lysol. Barring unforeseen developments, tonight's big bout on NBC will end Ali's policy of equal time for the networks this year.

You'll recall that in February he made the Lion of Flanders lie down for the CBS cameras and last month sort of beat Jimmy Young on ABC.

But only closed-circuit TV — for which citizens will have to pay — will be carrying his June 26 battle in Tokyo with a Japanese wrestler. If the wrestler wins, he'll graduate from the ring sumo cum laude.

Other new events on TV tonight are the premiere of singer John Davidson's four-week summer variety series on NBC at 8 p.m. EDT, which is when a 30-minute music-comedy show called "Charo" starts on ABC.

I don't know what Davidson's show looks like. It wasn't available for an advance peep at deadline time. But among other things, it'll feature Jimmie "Good Times Walker" singing "Aba Daba Honeymoon." Dymite.

We were able to inspect ABC's show, which stars Charo Cugat, wife of Xavier. She is the Spanish-born singer-comedienne who may have been on NBC's "Tonight" show more often than Johnny Carson in recent months.

In her own show, a pilot for a possible midseason series, she does her familiar fractured-English bit, with guest star Mike Connors, announcer David Michaels and conductor Frank DeVol serving as her straight men.

Michaels, taking note of her alleged difficulties with the English language, introduces her at the start of the show thusly: "Ladies and gentlemen — the incomprehensible Charo."

And on she comes, clad in a tuxedo, doing a wiggle here, an ay-yi-yi there and even her own brief impression of Jimmy Cagney, which must be seen to be believed.

The show's skits — a discussion of football and a fractured-history caper with Connors as George Washington and Charo as Martha — are so thin they'd be marked AWOL if turned sideways. Which is a shame.

Charo may act the adlebrained Latin bombshell, but she delivers her bad lines well, sings on key and is a very good guitarist — she even made "Granada" sound okay until the orchestra drowned out her playing.

Although most of tonight's show is a dog, it's not her fault. She deserves another try, with better writing, more emphasis on her guitar work and less emphasis on the caramba school of comedy.

A newcomer is headed for the "Today" show—Floyd Kalber, the veteran anchorman for NBC-owned WMAQ in Chicago. He's going to be the next newscaster on "Today" at a date to be announced, NBC says.

Low Wood, who has casted the "Today" news since Frank Blair's retirement in March 1974, is being shifted to other chores on the show. Exactly what chores will be made public later by NBC.

Crowned In State Event

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina NAACP crowned Mrs. Blanche Davis, Durham, and Mrs. Q. Wiley, Chatham County, Mothers of the Year Sunday.

They were crowned at the annual Mother's Freedom Fund Day meeting at Memorial Auditorium.

Mothers, grandmothers and stepmothers compete for the award each year by organizing women's groups in their districts to raise funds for the NAACP. More than 100 women entered the contest this year, Alexander Barnes, publicity director for the North Carolina Conference, said.

The large city division was won by Mrs. Davis. Her women's group raised $5200. Mrs. Wiley, whose group raised $3442, won the small city crown.

The state's NAACP branches fell about $1200 short of their $50,000 annual goal this year. But Barnes said the $48,802 raised was 25 per cent more than last year's total.

Half the funds will be used by the state conference and half will be sent to New York headquarters.

NAME'S ORIGIN

DIME BOX, Tex. (UPI) — In 1944 President Franklin D. Roosevelt couldn't think of a more logical place to launch the March of Dimes crusade than this tiny Texas settlement.

The town got its name when early settlers would leave a dime in the mailbox for the postman for picking up supplies for them.

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♦ Dble. Pass
2 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Bid four hearts. Don't worry about the fact that you have only two low hearts—partner's action should be based on a good six-card suit and a strong hand. After all, he has told you that he expects to make nine tricks even if you have nothing—your bid, in response to his takeout double, did not promise any values. Since you have two possible tricks for partner, you owe him a vote of confidence.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Two no trump. This hand is not as good as it looks because of a possible misfit. Nevertheless, some move toward game is indicated and three diamonds does not seem like the best action. The most likely place for game is in no trump, and you should make this suggestion to your partner now.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK7 ♥852 ♦K10873 ♣AK
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—It is usually correct to raise partner's major suit to game when he has jumped and you have three-card support. However, here all your points are outside partner's suit, so the hand might play better at no trump. We suggest you bid three no trump—if partner is highly unbalanced, he does not have to linger there.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠954 ♥KJ7652 ♦7 ♣Q72
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ 2 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?

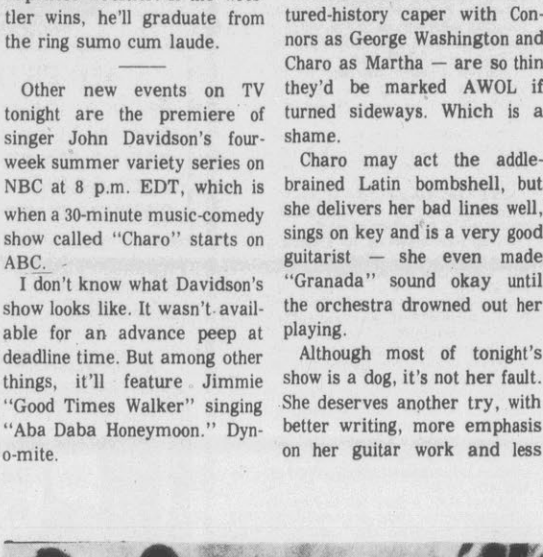

A.—Pass. While you might strike gold by introducing your heart suit, such action is fraught with danger. Partner will surely expect a better hand from you, and may do something rash. We really don't know how this question slipped in—we know that none of our readers would indulge in a rescue operation.

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East

What action do you take?

A.—If you play that a one no trump response to a one club opening bid shows 9-11 points, it is close as to whether you should pass or raise. However, since you have a combined count of at least 24 points, you should be safe at two no trump, and could Now's the time to buy chicken during our big Chicken Jamboree. And Holly Farms is the chicken to buy. It's bred and fed to be plump and juicy. It's always U.S.D.A. Inspected. And every piece is always Grade A (or it doesn't reach our store). Shipped chilled, never frozen or packed in ice, so you're not paying for a lot of absorbed water. And it's dated for freshness right on the package. If you haven't tried Holly Farms Chicken before, now's the time. Look for the bright red and yellow ribbon emblem that identifies every package of Holly Farms Chicken. It's the one to pick to be sure.
