Medicaid Impasse Pres. Ford And Brezhnev Sign Nuclear Arms Pact

RALEIGH (AP) — Officials of the state and the company handling North Carolina's Medicaid program under contract were at an apparent impasse over solution of the problem that has stopped payment of all Medicaid claims.

While nursing home and hospital officials were nervously calling the state Department of Human Resources urging a quick solution to the problem, the officials said it would be late Friday before any proposals could be suggested.

The company handling the program, Health Applications Systems (HAS), is to pay all the state's Medicaid claims for a flat $406 million over the life of the two-year contract that runs through June 1977. Wednesday, company officials told the state it was out of Medicaid funds and temporarily would stop paying claims.

State officials have been reluctant to give HAS additional funds and rejected the firm's request for an extra $5 million right away. The next scheduled payment is $14.6 million due June 10.

HAS has argued it should get more money because the anticipated number of Medicaid claims was far below the actual number made so far in the contract. The state had supplied inaccurate figures, the company has said, though it said the mistake was unintentional.

The company began complaining earlier this month that the number of recipients had risen faster than anticipated causing the total cost of the program to soar beyond expectations. Medicaid is a health program for the poor.

On Thursday, hospitals and nursing home officials swamped the Department of Human Resources with complaints that they needed their checks to meet payroll.

When HAS took the contract, it was to cut costs of handling the program and make a profit through its efficiency. Also, the state was to save money by paying HAS less to handle the program than it would pay to run the program itself.

HAS officials said they were able to lower the per recipient cost of the program, but the number of recipients grew beyond expectations. The Los Angeles-based firm said it does not object to the per recipient payment rate in the contract, but objects to the maximum premium of $406 million to be paid in the two-year contract.

HAS officials said earlier this month they would be satisfied if they were paid on a per recipient basis without a ceiling.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev today signed a precedent-setting treaty that will open some Russian nuclear test sites to American inspectors for the first time.

The simultaneous ceremonies here and in Moscow followed 18 months of complex negotiations and may, according to U.S. officials, spur negotiations in Geneva to reach a long-delayed agreement limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

Term of the five-year treaty permit American inspectors to visit sites when the Russians conduct certain underground blasts that have potential use for changing the levels of rivers or excavating for minerals.

Years ago, American scientists abandoned the idea of experimenting with underground nuclear explosions for those purposes.

But the Soviets remain interested in such projects, and the treaty limits the megaton level of any single blast for such a purpose to 150 kilotons — the equivalent of 150,000 tons of TNT.

Until now, the Soviet Union has refused to permit anymore than 150 kilotons, will be submitted to the Senate for ratification "in a very modest period of time," U.S. officials said.

Some arms control analysts have expressed doubt about the value of the twin pacts, saying the ceiling is too high to be meaningful. Defenders within the administration stress the precedent of on-site inspection and the detailed arrangements worked out by the two countries to exchange geological and testing data.

American inspectors monitoring Soviet facilities will be permitted to take depth soundings and to examine the hole left by the explosion, but not the nuclear device itself. They will use a cable with an oscillator at the end which indicates the force of the blast.

The treaty limiting weapons tests was signed in Moscow in 1974 by then-President Richard M. Nixon and Brezhnev. Ratification has been held up for completion of the second agreement, which U.S. officials said will make it easier to distinguish between weapons and peaceful tests.

Terms were completed in early April by negotiators in Moscow. The treaty was initiated May 12 but the signings were delayed.

Stroud Announces He'll Seek GOP Nomination As Congress Candidate

Former Pink Hill Mayor Harold Stroud announced his intentions to file as a candidate for representative from the First Congressional District on the Republican ticket.

Stroud, who said he planned to file this morning, will oppose Dr. Joe Ward of Greenville who announced his candidacy on Thursday for the seat now held by Walter Jones, a Democrat.

Stroud, 46, is a native of Lenoir County and is president of Har-Scott Inc. in Pink Hill and the Association of Lenoir County Manufacturers.

2,500 Grads

Approximately 2,500 East Carolina University students will receive undergraduate and graduate degrees in campus Commencement Exercises Sunday, May 30.

The ceremony is scheduled for 2 p.m. in ECU's Ficklen Stadium.

Guest commencement speaker is Dr. Lloyd H. Elliott, president of George Washington University and chairman of the Council on Postsecondary Accreditation Inc.

Dr. Elliott is also a member and former president of the National Council on Accrediting, a former president of the Association of Urban Universities and a director of the American College and University Presidents.

In making his announcement, he pointed out, "I believe the people are tired of the same old Washington crowd and that it is time for the common man to step forward, just as he did in 1776, and assert himself in the best interest of his country."

The candidate asserted that, "Young people with fresh ideas that are not worn out on the Washington treadmill are badly needed."

Stroud cited recent threats to the eastern North Carolina tobacco industry including the new Kennedy-Hart bill which he said would "levy a burdensome federal tax on cigarettes to discourage their use."

He contended, "It is time that when the tobacco industry is attacked our own representatives need to reciprocate in kind and let our opponents know that we won't sit still for it. The tobacco raising states are a distinct minority and must have

Assessment Questioned

East Carolina University officials have taken issue with a study by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching released in San Francisco yesterday which says North Carolina is one of six states that have surplus medical school facilities or are developing them.

"I think that it is interesting that a group using arbitrary criteria could draw any valid conclusions about anything in North Carolina," Dr. Ed Monroe, Vice-chancellor for Health Affairs at ECU said, "including its commitment to medical education."

Dr. Monroe pointed out, "I'm commenting on a wire service story without having seen the document the story refers to."

However, Monroe said, "I am delighted that any group looking at North Carolina's resources and commitments to higher education would recognize so readily what people in North Carolina have known for many generations; namely that North Carolinians strongly support and strain to provide the resources needed to educate their children, including the recent strides that the state has taken to increase the supply of doctors for North Carolina."

Monroe referred to sections of the report that said North Carolina ranked fifth in the nation in "concern"—measured by expenditures per full-time equivalent student in public institutions—and ranked 11th among the 50 states in "effort"—measured by the percentage of state personal income spent on higher education.

The Carnegie Foundation study ranked North Carolina 38th in "fiscal capacity"—reflecting a state's per capita income, tax capacity and unemployment rate.

Monroe added, "I see a continued shortage of doctors in North Carolina in the next 15 to 20 years, even when this school is in full swing."

ECU Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins said "These reports are not invariable..." and added, "just try to get yourself a family doctor when you move to a North Carolina town. Certainly we need more doctors. It's almost a social status symbol to brag you have a family doctor."

Dr. William Laupus, dean of the medical school said, "basically, I believe there are legitimate differences of opinion between national

Grant Is Approved

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Economic Council has received notice of approval of a $30,000 technical assistance grant from the Economic Development Administration "to help prepare for long-range industrial growth to create permanent year-round jobs in the Farmville area."

The grant was applied for by the Town of Farmville. It is designed to study the feasibility of two areas of Farmville as industrial parks. Mrs. Anne McGaughey, acting director of the Economic Council, said new jobs are needed in this area for workers who have become unemployed by the closing of the International Paper Company plant here and by those displaced by the ever-increasing mechanization of farming. Farmville is conducting the growth program in cooperation with the overall economic development programs of Pitt County and the multi-county Mid-East Economic Development District.

The Town of Farmville will provide $10,000 to complete the $40,000 total cost of the six-month project.

Cites 'Revolution' In The Tobacco Industry

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C. (AP)—A Washington, D.C. exporter says a worldwide revolution is being brought to the tobacco industry, caused by the prospects of higher taxes and increasing production of low tar and nicotine cigarettes.

Tobacco Associates President J. R. Williams made the comments Thursday at the closing session of the South Carolina Warehouse Association annual meeting.

Calling for the industry to "stand together," Williams said these trends are the most revolutionary the industry has faced since "the advent of the filter in 1954-55."

Encouraging the industry to fight opposition from "a united foe," Williams said "the health boys and the tax boys are after us all over the world—we must fight this opposition."

According to Williams, American export of flue cured tobacco will suffer if the flavor of the U.S. product is allowed to be diminished.

"Major portions of the industry, under the guise of low tar and nicotine, are devoting more energy to produce cheaper, but not better cigarettes," he said.

Williams was critical of the Kennedy-Hart bill in the U. S.

Senate which would tax cigarettes on the basis of tar and nicotine content. He called the legislation a mechanism for pricing cigarettes out of the range of the average consumer.

Liquor and tobacco are the first sources of additional tax revenue sought by legislators, and the industry should work to defeat cigarette tax proposals in states where tobacco is produced, he said.

Williams urged members of the warehouse association to join the National Tax Council in defeating such tax proposals, adding that the tobacco industry is willing to pay a fair but not discriminatory amount.

On another subject, Williams said tobacco mechanization is necessary to offset cheap foreign labor in world markets. However, in making the move to mechanization, producers must not ruin American tobacco's superior flavor since U.S. exporters cannot undersell foreign competitors, he said.

In assessing the future of American tobacco exports, Williams said the immediate prospects are bright, while the long-range outlook is dim.

Manufacturers have record quantities of tobacco, but a high percentage of their supply is of inferior quality, he said. If

Varmints

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Voles made the holes.

That's the best guess of Jim Murray, animal control officer, about what has pockmarked two neighboring lawns and a vacant lot with more than 100 holes an inch and a half in diameter.

Voles are burrowing rodents related to field mice. That's what Murray thinks the two brown and gray varmints he has caught in a trap on the lawn are.

Gassing, flooding and poisoning the holes hasn't helped.

Murray is studying what literature he can find on voles to plan a new campaign.

Winterville Plans For Bicentennial

WINTERVILLE—As Winterville prepares to celebrate the nation's bicentennial with planned activities tomorrow, two long-time residents recall the town's development.

Miss Fannie May Ange, who presently operates Ange's Department Store in Winterville, has lived all of her life in Winterville. Her father opened Ange's Department Store in 1904 and relocated the store in 1922 when the town got electricity and the paved road came through the town.

"I attended the boarding school here," she said. "I was in the fifth grade when the lightning struck a steeple and burned the school."

"I remember when there was a water pump in the main part of town where the people from the stores could get their water and the rest would flow down into a trough

Williams said the American farmer must do a better job of cleaning lugs and primings, sorting and grading his tobacco if he expects to compete with foreign producers.

First, Try To Improve Marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am not trying to justify my getting involved with another man, but maybe if you knew what my husband was like, you wouldn't blame me.

I have been married less than five years, and my husband stopped paying attention to me about two years ago. His whole life is sports and running with his unmarried pals. We have one preschool child.

I became so lonely and frustrated that I took up with a man I met while he was demonstrating something in a nearby shopping center (don't say where). Anyway, this new man in my life has been coming to my home during the daytime while my husband is at work, and I've never been happier!

He's single and wants me to leave my husband for him. Abby, I'm only 25 and have my whole life before me. What should I do?

CONSIDERING A CHANGE

DEAR CONSIDERING: First try to improve your marriage through professional counseling. The new man in your life may provide some temporary excitement, but all you really know about him is that he spends his afternoons with married women while their husbands work. Is THAT the kind of man you want for a husband? Think it over.

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for the city of Duluth, Minn.!

Persons caught shoplifting used to be sentenced to clean the cages of the Duluth zoo. Last winter they started something new: Instead of cleaning cages, shoplifters were sentenced to 40 hours of shoveling snow outside the residences of elderly citizens and the infirm.

Now the city gets free labor by putting the law violators to work doing something useful.

DIZZY IZZY IN DULUTH

DEAR DIZZY: Great idea! And in the summer, let 'em rake leaves. (Personally I'd prefer shoveling and raking to cleaning cages in a zoo.)

DEAR ABBY: I work in a two-girl office with a woman who is very pleasant, but she talks too much. Every morning she regales me with stories about what her daughter's boyfriend said or the details concerning her husband's stop-smoking clinic. She talks endlessly about her relatives and neighbors I've never met, and it's all very boring.

I've tried to act interested, but I am bored stiff and resent being kept from my work. I work with figures, and it's not easy to concentrate when I'm interrupted by something she just thought of and has to tell me.

So, how do I get the idea across to her that she shouldn't talk so much? I'm not very good at telling people off.

NO TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO TOWN: You don't have to tell her OFF; just tell her that you feel guilty "chatting" when you're being paid to work, so to please save the conversation for before or after office hours. She'll get the message. And if she doesn't, keep repeating it until she does.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The dinner, which is being sponsored by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, will be held at the Greenville Moose Lodge at 7:00 p.m.

Commissioner Nye will address the honorees on the theme of this year's awards program, "Safety—A Team Effort". The commissioner will also present the award winners with the North Carolina Department of Labor's "Certificate of Safety Achievement." He will be introduced by Tom M. Reese, Chairman and Chief Inspector

In announcing the awards dinner, Commissioner Nye said, "I am extremely pleased by the interest which has been shown by business and industry in our Safety Program. This year we have almost doubled the number of participants in this worthwhile program. I am proud of this accomplishment, for I believe that outstanding effort, such as that exhibited by those who will be receiving these awards, should be recognized."

There will be 25 such award presentations across the state honoring over 2600 business and industrial establishments in North Carolina.

Miss Ange also said that she had known A.G. Cox, and remembered when cotton was sold in Winterville and when the tobacco factory was here.

Another long-time area resident of Winterville is George Cox. Cox lived part of his early years around Ayden and in the outskirts of Winterville.

He was the chairman of the planning and zoning board in Winterville for five years. "I saw this area (beyond Forbes Street toward Tar Road) as a field."

The area today contains close to 100 houses.

"I remember the establishment of the rural fire association. We helped the rural people and charged each man for each building on his property. The present fire station and city hall was paid for by Winterville residents only. We received no state or federal funds to help build."

"I remember in March of 1927 we had a snow that was 27 inches deep in my backyard. Also in 1927 most of the crops around here drowned. It was a bad farming year."

Cox helped organize the Christian Church in Winterville but for many years has been a member of the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church. He and his wife Annie have been married 57 years and have lived most of that time in

Winterville

Present and Past

In 1976, afternoons in the main part of town are quiet. A few businesses and several vacant shops line one side of the Railroad Street. Their showcase windows reflect the old railroad depot across the street which now serves as a warehouse for fertilizer and seed.

Two main streets crisscross dividing the town into north, south, east and west. One street runs parallel to the railroad track the other runs perpendicular to it. In the town's beginning the railroad was an important part of the community and the town built around it.

Since its beginning at the end of the century, Winterville has grown by doubling, tripling and continuing to grow. Today its population is an estimated 1,900 and growing rapidly from the outgrowth of Greenville.

Winterville was started when a cotton planter and a railroad were developed in the country area. The cotton planter which John C. Cox made became a farm industry and was distributed to all parts of southeastern United States. Cox's son, A.G. Cox, operated A.G. Cox Manufacturing Company which produced tobacco trucks and farm machinery.

In 1889 the Atlantic Coastline Railroad Company reached Winterville. A.G. Cox supplied wood for the locomotives. He stacked it in a wood rack beside the tracks. This is where Winterville got its first name "Wood Rack". A few years later, R.H. Hunsucker came to Winterville and began building Hunsucker buggies at Winterville Carriage Company. The town was finally incorporated March 3, 1897.

terville in 1895 named the Winterville Academy. In 1910 the Roanoke Baptist Church organized Winterville High School. In 1916 lightning struck and burned the Academy.

The Bank of Winterville was established in 1906 with only $5,000 Capital Stock, the smallest the state would allow. Today the bank is First State Bank and also has two branches in Greenville.

The A.G. Cox Mfg. Co. bought a dynamo in 1921 for its own use but began selling current to others measured in candlepower. With the use of the dynamo Winterville residents had their current turned off at 11 p.m. and turned on again at 5 a.m.

In celebrating the Bicentennial Day Saturday, residents will also be celebrating the town's heritage by displaying photos and displays of the town's past.

Sugar Mountain Will Close Gates

BANNER ELK, N.C. (AP) — The Sugar Mountain ski resort near Banner Elk, a 3,600-acre, $10 million recreational complex, plans to close its gates Sunday for an indefinite period because of growing financial problems.

Company officials confirmed Thursday that the resort's visitor facilities will be closed as directors of the Sugar Mountain Co. meet to debate the resort's future.

"We are closing it all for an indefinite period. Most of the employees have already been laid off," said Bob Quinlan, the resort's vice president for operations.

Directors, who will meet Sunday, expressed the hope that Sugar Mountain might be reopened soon but they declined to predict when.

In a recent reorganization, Atlanta investor Earl Worsham assumed stock control of the privately held company from its developers, Alex Andrews of Raleigh and Al Johnson of Nashville, Tenn., according to corporate controller Craig Cooper.

Quinlan blamed the closing on "a shortage of operating funds," a problem that grew worse as the company's land sales suffered through the national recession.

The resort opened in 1969 and has been described as one of the largest ski centers in the Southeast. During last winter, 85,000 visitors skied on its slopes, according to Quinlan.

He said the closing will affect the company's 32-unit lodge, restaurant, 18-hole golf course, tennis courts and pool, facilities that normally would attract summer visitors.

The resort customarily employs as many as 300 persons during the winter season, 150 during the summer and 70 to 80 during the off-season.

Some employees were laid off a week ago as the company negotiated with creditors in an effort to work out a plan that could carry the resort through the summer.

Creditors previously had declared a moratorium on payments to assure the resort's operations during last winter.

Reportedly, however, creditors have balked at additional financial concessions to keep the resort in business through the summer.

The Costs Outran The Hopes

North Carolina faces another Medicaid crisis as Health Applications Systems reports that all the money for making payments has been used up. HAS is under a two-year contract to pay state Medicaid claims for a maximum charge of $405 million. The firm reported earlier this month that claims were running far higher than it expected and this was causing problems.

There are, of course, several ways out of the Medicaid dilemma, including a state loan to HAS, borrowing from other sources by HAS, raising by the state of the amount it pays HAS or outright takeover of the program by the state.

We had hopes that the method of contracting with a private firm to handle Medicaid payments would be helpful in reducing the cost of administering the program.

Obviously it has not. Regardless of how the immediate financial problems are worked out, it seems the state should be prepared to take over direct administration of the Medicaid program again.

Congressional Scandal Very Damaging

It is with sadness that the nation views another scandal involving its elected leaders in Washington. Rep. Wayne Hays has finally admitted to having an affair with Elizabeth Ray, who was on the government payroll on Hayes House Administration Committee.

Miss Ray claims she was on the payroll only for her personal relationship with Rep. Hays. While Hays admits the involvement he denies that Miss Ray was hired solely for his pleasures. It's not a very pretty picture for the electorate to view. The possibility is there that the taxpayer's were paying Miss Ray's salary to be available for Rep. Hays enjoyment.

We take no joy in Rep. Hays embarrassment, but there should be a warning there to elected and government officials that they should be leaders in the area of morality, as well as every other way.

THIS AFTERNOON

New Senate Power Center

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH—The power of the North Carolina Senate will shift from the lieutenant governor into the hands of a relatively few veteran legislators as one result of the rules changes recently adopted and now being worked out for future implementation.

The lieutenant governor has been much more than just the front man visualized by the casual observer. True, he presides over the Senate, voting only the case of a tie, and has seemed to have little to say about what was happening in the chamber before him.

But what was happening on the floor was generally well orchestrated beforehand, and the lieutenant governor's "people" were directing things as showdown votes neared.

As presiding officer, the lieutenant governor could, and did, make (and bend) the rules to speed or impede action even while the senate was in session.

Real Power
 The real power which has given the lieutenant governor control came from the rules which gave him the authority to name committee chairmen and members.

For it is in the committees, meeting both during the session and increasingly more of late, between sessions, that the real decisions are made.

A chairman, picked by the lieutenant governor for the prestigious post and grilled ahead of time as to loyalties and performance, can either block or pass legislation. He can control committee votes critical to whether proposed law is bottled up or pushed along. He can effectively sway fellow legislators so busy on their own interests that in-depth study of all proposals is impossible. Aside from hand-picking chairmen, the lieutenant governor determines which proposals go to which committees.

The result is power which effectively controls what the General Assembly does. Generally, such power has been carefully used; saved for the really critical issues. After all, abuse of such power would surely result in trouble, for the Senate which grants such authority could (and did) revoke it.

One underlying reason for the action taken is that an outsider is due to be elected lieutenant governor: only three of the major contenders for the post have legislative experience, and they are members of the House of Representatives. The long-running political and philosophical battle between the two chambers is not likely to produce amiable relations, should a "commoner" win.

The other underlying reason is consolidation of power through the new system.

New Approach
 A "little federal" system involving a Committee on Committees will assume control of the inner workings of the senate.

While the final procedure remains uncertain, it appears moving in the direction of a committee made up of the senior senator from each of the state's 12 U.S. Congressional Districts.

Presided over by the president pro tempore of the senate—a post filled by election of the Democratic majority—that committee would decide which senator will chair a committee, and which committee assignment senators will receive.

This procedure, backers maintain, would assure continuity in leadership free of the whims of a newly elected lieutenant governor. It would also diminish the extent to which the lieutenant governor could build a power base for a bid for the governor's mansion in coming years.

Critics argue, however, that the new system would simply substitute one power center with another: the president pro tem would emerge as the new power. Additionally, opponents see the seniority system as one which will perpetuate in powerful positions "professional" legislators rather than "citizen lawmakers," and one which would encourage legislators to remain in office longer by convincing voters that unless re-elected, that district will lose its "powerful" representation.

Uncle Phil A Candidate

WASHINGTON — My Uncle Phil who lives in Brooklyn has decided to run for President on the Democratic ticket.

"If I had known what it takes this year to be a presidential candidate," he told me, "I would have thrown my hat in the ring months ago."

"What makes you think you would have a chance?"

"Well, for one thing, I've never been to Washington in my life, and that seems to be the main attraction for the voters who are looking for a presidential candidate."

"That's one of the main prerequisites," I admitted. "But what are your other qualifications?"

"I have a great smile," he said. "You can see all my teeth when I smile, can't you?"

"Yes," I said, "but smiling isn't everything. Where do you stand on the issues?"

"What issues?"

"The issues of government."

"I don't stand anywhere on the issues. Ask your Aunt Molly. I have no idea what the issues are. That's why I'd make the perfect candidate. People don't want their presidential candidates to be clear on the issues. It only confuses them."

"Uncle Phil," I said, "the Presidency of the United States is one of the most important jobs in the world. You have to have some ideas on the economy, foreign policy, defense spending, unemployment, and things like that."

"Why should I tip my hand now? The important thing is to say nothing about these things until you win the nomination. After that I'll deal with the issues."

"That's ridiculous," I told him. "Even if you don't get specific, we have to know what you're going to promise the people."

"I'm not going to promise the people anything. They're sick and tired of being promised things that the government can't deliver. If anyone asks me what I'm going to do, I'll say, 'I don't know until I become President.' What the American people are looking for is honesty in their candidates." "I can't argue with you on that point. But what about government? Are you for government or against it?"

"I'm against government interfering where it shouldn't interfere, but I'm not against government interfering if it has to. What I'm against are the bureaucrats in Washington who don't understand what the people in the country want."

"What about foreign affairs?"

"But what are you for?"

"I'm for getting rid of Henry Kissinger."

Pietist Views Argued

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 AP Religion Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Some political commentators, on the air and in print, are saying that religion has no place in politics. This is an old claim of some pietists who would restrict faith to the private sphere, but it's contrary to the teachings of the major historic churches.

It's also "non-Biblical and un-theological," says the Rev. Dr. Donald Shriver, president of New York's Union Theological Seminary, the country's oldest interdenominational educational institution. "Biblical faith includes both dimensions, the personal and the social. This is way beyond debate in Christian thought today."

What brought the issue to the forefront is the emergence of religious elements in the race for the U.S. presidential nomination, with various political commentators saying it shouldn't be there, implying

To the Citizens Of Greenville:
 When I came on the City Council last December, I was requested by the Council to serve as an observer in the Greenville Board of Education meetings. In these six months I have watched these people and Superintendent Cox put hour-upon-hour of concentrated work on budget, the new middle school and the re-districting plan. I have never seen a more dedicated and hard working group of people. My own conservative estimate is that this unpaid group of citizens put in a minimum of 12-15 hours each month.

Because of an obvious growing racial imbalance in the system (80-20 percent in one school) the Board worked for several months on a redistricting plan. They worked to meet federal guidelines to avoid facing federal courts later. It seemed to be a fair plan.

As might be expected the Board came under criticism from both the Black and White community. The attacks have often been unwarranted and excessive.

I believe I reflect the feeling of a large portion of the citizens of Greenville when I express my heart felt thanks to this group of committed people for their contribution to our community.

Public Pays For Stadiums

EDITOR'S NOTE — Building a super stadium involves a huge bill that supporters say is worth it. Where does the money for these projects come from and what are the returns on the investment? These questions are examined in the last article in a series on the modern Colosseums.

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
 AP Business Writer

While state officials in Louisiana were worrying this spring about the Superdome's operating deficit, Seattle was opening its new Kingdome.

Similarities between the two abound: downtown locations, roofs to keep out the rain, giant television screens for instant replays of football plays — and cost overruns, construction delays and controversy.

Kingdome is nevertheless considered "a tremendous bargain" by John Spellman, the county executive credited with keeping the project alive through disputes with labor and contractors.

"I suppose the political message is that, depending on how people view that stadium, I took charge and made some tough decisions and got the job done," he says.

One of his chief critics, real estate broker Frank Ruano, said: "Spellman's problem with the stadium is not the stadium itself. It's his failure to recognize that the public knows that it is costing more than was approved. Spellman has dipped into the taxpayers' pockets without their approval."

The same charge was sounded in Kansas City, where the Harry S. Truman Sports Complex is leased to the Chiefs football team and the Royals baseball team.

"Their leases have always given the illusion of a ripoff of the average Jackson County in the interest of big business and big business only," Harold L. Holiday, a member of the new county legislature, has said.

Who pays for a public sports stadium and who benefits?

In Seattle, income from football and soccer games, concessions and other stadium sources are expected to pay for the Kingdome's operating expenses.

To pay off the bonds that financed construction, a 2 percent tax was levied on the price of hotel rooms and King County property owners will pay a special real estate tax.

Property taxes will also be tapped for about $450,000 in San Francisco to pay for Candlestick Park's expansion project and cover an operating deficit.

The City of Philadelphia bears a $3 million annual expense to retire the bonds that built Veterans Stadium, plus $1.6 million a year for operating expenses.

Annual revenues from the stadium total almost $4.4 million, "so we're extremely close to breaking even — I think we compare very favorably with other stadiums around the country," said Joel Ralph, manager of the stadium complex. "We should go into the black next year."

Pontiac, Mich., pays a state stadium authority $2.2 million a year to retire the debt on the $55.7 million Pontiac Stadium, the home of the Detroit Lions that features an air-inflated roof. The city expects to receive about $2.9 million a year from the Lions and other sources of revenue.

In New Orleans, the Superdome's revenues fell an estimated $4.3 million short of its expenses in the first eight months and the state legislature was asked to make up the difference.

The Arthur D. Little management consulting firm, brought in to study the Superdome, estimates that revenues will cover expenses in a few years.

It also said the state's cost of retiring the bonds will not fall below $5 million a year in the near future.

But there are several economic benefits for a city that builds a stadium.

In New Orleans, for instance, the Superdome prompted an additional $170 million in construction by one estimate. Some predict that at full operating level, the dome will make possible an

40 Years Ago Today

May 28, 1936
 Mayor M. K. Blount today called upon the citizens of Pitt County, and especially of Greenville, to have a large representation at the court hearing here Saturday morning at 10:30 on a temporary order restraining local law enforcement from confiscating pin and slot machines.

The Mayor especially urged those persons who signed the cards enrolling them in the Law and Order League to attend the hearing, which was transferred from Snow Hill to this county in order that more local people could attend.

The restraining order was secured by the owners of the machines to keep officers from taking the machines after Chief George Clark had warned that all such devices would have to be moved from public places by a specified time or be confiscated.

GOLDEN RULE AND RULE OF GOLD
 The Golden Rule is one thing, and the rule of gold is something quite different. The first runs, "Whatever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." The second might be phrased in these words: "Money talks. Get as much of it as you can, by fair means or foul. To have money is to have happiness and the fulfillment of all desires."

The individual who builds his life on the Golden Rule comes to know the meaning of true riches. On the other hand, the rule of gold is the most fascinating will-o-the-wisp that ever lured people along the board pathways of wrong-doing and over the precipice of disaster.

Many people make the rule of gold a fundamental principle and abide by it all of their lives. But others who follow this rule at some point begin to see that it is a snare and a delusion. Out of the growing unhappiness of their lives they come to appreciate the superior wisdom of the Golden Rule.

Small Businessman's Mistakes

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP) — Many small-business men think their best customers are the ones who purchase the most when, in fact, such customers might be the worst.

This comment is contained in Commercial Credit Co.'s list of common mistakes by small-business men, gathered by its representatives in the course of making $1.8 billion a year in sales—credit financing, that is—to businessmen.

What often makes such customers the worst, says CCC, is that they often take two months or more to pay their bills, thus costing the small-business man the use of his money during that time.

"Smaller companies frequently do not keep the right kind of records to track their accounts receivable," the commentary continues.

"In many instances the receivables are not even aged, and small-business men frequently don't even know how much they have in receivables on their books.

"Often the difference between success and failure is very slim, and the balance is tipped in a positive direction if the small-business man has had a course in practical accounting, or uses smart accounts receivable techniques."

Some small-business men will spot in such observations a subtle pitch for having their accounts receivable financed by CCC, but they and others will also observe that if CCC can make money on such business, they should too.

There is also a major need for bad debt insurance among small-business men, the CCC commentary continues.

"This type of service is utilized most often by larger companies, but it is the small-business man who can least afford to have one of his customers go bankrupt and thus be unable to collect his receivables."

Collection agencies are another type of service that small-business men fail to consider using in managing their accounts receivable, says CCC, a subsidiary of Control Data Corp., the electronic computer manufacturer.

These agencies, it states, are completely different from the consumer-oriented collection agencies, and can be very effective in helping the businessman to maximize turnover on his current assets.

Moreover, the collection agency can be relatively inexpensive in that it does not have to be paid anything unless it actually collects from the customer.

One of the most serious errors of small-business men, says CCC, is that they fail to take proper advantage of their most important current asset, which is cash. Too often they put the money in their checking account and draw no interest.

"More small-business men should give serious consideration to flexible short-term investing instruments, such as directly issued commercial paper from top-rated companies," it suggests.

This paper can be purchased and redeemed easily, and provides interest during the short times it is held, enabling the small-business man to make money on his own money while he isn't using the capital.

that the religious character of a man shouldn't count or be mentioned.

"A man's religion, or lack thereof, is his own business," writes historian-political analyst Arthur Schlesinger Jr., contending that "religion should stay out of politics."

Most complaints about it have been triggered by the candidly avowed Christian convictions of Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter, although other candidates also affirm their religious beliefs, albeit generally in less explicit terms.

"It's almost as if a politician merely mentions the name of God, it's some kind of heresy," observes Dr. Shriver, a Presbyterian and specialist in Christian ethics. "But many people are interested in knowing the religious convictions of national leaders. It's a basic, motivating influence."

Since Carter, a Southern Baptist, cites the late great Lutheran theologian Reinhold Niebuhr as his favorite theologian, Schlesinger says this is reassuring because Niebuhr insisted that simple "pietistic moralism" could not solve complex social problems, quoting Niebuhr as saying:

"American Christianity tends to be irrelevant to the problems of justice because it persists in presenting the law of love as a simple solution for every moral problem... Christian moralism has made meager contributions to the issues of justice in modern society."

"This, however, is precisely the lapse in Christian functioning early in this century that Niebuhr so scathingly assailed. It's the very pietism that he attacked," says Dr. Shriver.

Both as a pastor in Detroit's early labor struggles and in his subsequent years of teaching and writing, Niebuhr stressed that Biblical faith involved more than simple private "moralisms," and had relevance to the whole of life, social and political.

To Niebuhr, the great "danger to the church was its failure to involve itself in the contentious issues of American common life, writes Dr. Stone. "He spent his life trying to find ways to articulate the relevance of the Gospel to American social problems."

extra 1,900 jobs in addition to the dome's staff. And visitors from out of state are expected to spend some $25 million a year.

Several stadiums made positive contributions to their neighborhoods. The Superdome replaced an old warehouse district. Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium sits on the former site of a drive-in theater. The Kingdome will prove to be an economic benefit to the Seattle area, Spellman believes. The question, he says, is "whether that story can be told to, and appreciated by, enough people."

Dave Dixon, the promoter often considered the "father of the Superdome", says, "I don't think anything has happened to my offspring other than great things. The building itself is magnificent, the finest in the world. The key to the dome is the management of it. It is not being used efficiently, imaginatively enough."

"What makes cities great are places like Lincoln Center, Yankee Stadium and Madison Square Garden," Alan Cohen, president of the Garden, told a reporter at the opening of Yankee Stadium. "If cities as we have known them are to survive, they must offer facilities that make men civilized. — culture, sports, the arts."

Eight Scholars Receive Awards

Eight outstanding students in the East Carolina University Department of Biology received awards at the department's recent annual awards luncheon. Joseph Chan, graduating senior, received the Mary Caughey Helms Award, given annually to the graduating senior with the best record of academic achievement, research activity and contribution to the department. The award was established in 1967 to honor Prof. Helms, who retired that year after 40 years of service to East Carolina. Chan also received the 1975-76 Undergraduate Research Award presented by the campus chapter of Sigma Xi honor society in scientific research. The results of his research project were presented at the annual meeting of the N. C. Academy of Science earlier this year. Chan is a ward of Dr. and Mrs. Victor Ng of Robersonville. He plans to enter medical school in Hong Kong next year. Mark W. Simpson of Tarboro received the department's "Outstanding Senior" award. Susanne Bec von Bodman, Beaufort undergraduate, and

James Taylor of Bethel, graduate student, were recognized as departmental scholarship recipients for the current quarter. Ms. von Bodman was named outstanding woman undergraduate in the department during ECU's annual Women's Awareness Week earlier this spring. Taylor plans to enter medical school at UNC-Chapel Hill this fall. Harry Severance of Wilson, a graduating senior, was recognized as a nominee to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." He plans to begin medical studies at Duke University this fall. Graduate student Edward Proffitt, also of Wilson, received the Robert Mannino Alumni Scholarship, presented by the ECU biology department. He will enter a PhD degree program at the University of Florida later in the year. Craig Zamuda of North Springfield, Va., graduate student, was recognized as the recipient of a research award from the campus Sigma Xi chapter. This fall he will begin work toward the PhD degree at the University of Virginia. Cynthia Blanck of Greenville, S.C. was recognized as the

Your Future Is Our Present Concern

WHICH WAY TO TURN?

There he goes, walking into the future. But what direction will he take? Whatever his choice, he will have to face problems and obstacles before his chosen goals can be reached. One thing is sure, the years ahead hold much promise. One day he may be landing a jet on a carrier at sea, building a bridge in a foreign country, closing a big sale, or perhaps covering a fast-breaking news story. But to successfully reach his goal he will have to find the strength and wisdom to rise above the knotty problems of life. Fortunately, he need not make his decisions alone. With the help of the Church, he can determine a course for successfully living his life in the world of tomorrow.

Find 'Grass' In Suitcase

Greenville Police, agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and Pitt County Sheriff's officers arrested two Route 2, Ayden residents early yesterday on charges of possession of marijuana.

Chief Glenn Cannon said William Earl Singleton II, 26 and Roberta Louise Bowman, 22, were taken into custody near the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets about 1:05 a.m. Thursday.

According to the chief, Singleton and Miss Bowman were charged after SBI agents, Pitt Deputies and Greenville and Ayden police searched a Route 2, Ayden dwelling about 9:55 p.m. Wednesday and found ten pounds of marijuana in a suitcase in a locked building beside the home, as well as marijuana seed and a small amount of "grass" inside the dwelling.

Both Singleton and Miss Bowman were placed under a $2,000 bond pending hearing of the case in court.

Huge Parade Hopes Fade

RALEIGH (AP) — Because no one wanted to participate, North Carolina won't have a big Independence Day parade in Raleigh July 3.

The parade, which was to be sponsored by the state Bicentennial Commission, was to have participants from all parts of the state. But, commission spokesmen said Thursday, there was an overwhelming lack of enthusiasm from local groups offered a chance to participate, so the event was cancelled.

"We were having trouble getting local response," said Dick Ellis, state bicentennial director. "It wasn't panning out to be the tremendous parade we had anticipated, so we are just going to turn it into an old-fashioned picnic rather than the parade," he said.

The parade was to have 120 marching units and be televised to a statewide audience. Ellis said there would have been more than enough response from spectators.

Conflict On Leadership

RALEIGH (AP) — State Democratic party chairman James R. Sugg has moved toward a head-on confrontation with Sen. Robert Morgan—the state's highest elected Democrat—over which of them will lead the state to the national convention.

Sugg is a New Bern attorney and has been state party chairman for nearly four years. Morgan was state attorney general and ran for the Senate seat two years ago.

Sugg has mailed letters seeking support to the convention delegates and alternates selected so far. "I want it known that I'm available and interested, but I don't plan any major campaign," Sugg said.

An aide said Morgan would continue his efforts to be elected head of the delegation, even if he must run against Sugg.

Sugg has been chosen a delegate representing the state's 1st District. Morgan is to seek election as a delegate at the party's state convention next month.

After the state convention, the 61 delegates and 44 alternates will meet in Raleigh to choose a chairman. The national convention will be in New York July 12-16.

CHARLOTTE (AP) Norwood Baker, 52, an assistant vice president of the North Carolina National Bank, was found shot to death behind his home in Charlotte Thursday, two weeks after being charged with shoplifting at a downtown drug store.

Police say he left a note to his wife on the dining room table. They did not disclose its contents.

Baker had a gunshot wound in the temple, and a rifle lay nearby.

He was a review officer for commercial loans. Baker was a native of Magnolia in Duplin County of eastern North Carolina.

Survivors include his widow and two daughters; his father, Jacob F. Baker of Teachey, N.C.; brothers Earl Baker of Magnolia and Austin Baker of Fayetteville; and a sister, Mrs. Stacy Evans of Greenville, N.C.

Close Gallery Of Lighthouse

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — The cast iron gallery at the top of the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse, weakened by the rust of a century, has been closed to visitors until it can be determined whether it is safe.

The interior of the historic lighthouse remains open.

The rust damage was discovered when workmen sand-blasted the lighthouse to prepare it for painting. Beneath the layers of paint, apparently serious rust damage showed up.

Optimists Nip Lions By 6-5

The Optimists took over full, firm control of first place in the North State Little League yesterday with a 6-5 victory over the Lions.

The victory boosted the Optimist record to 7-1 on the year, while the Lions fell off to third place, 5-3. The Jaycees are second at 5-2.

The Lions pushed over two runs in the first inning. Scott Galloway singled and Roger Williams cracked a home run.

The Lions added another in the third. Galloway singled and Ed Frazier reached on a fielder's choice. Troy Hudson was safe on an error, allowing Galloway to score.

In the bottom of the sixth, the Optimists broke the ice with three runs, tying the game at 3-3. Sammy Hodges walked and Jeff Porter reached on a hit. Both moved up on an out and John Hause reached on an error, scoring Hodges. Michael Moon doubled, driving in both Porter and Hause to tie it up.

In the seventh, the Lions pushed back out with two runs. Frazier cracked a home run, and Williams followed with another solo blast for a 5-3 edge.

But in the bottom of the frame, the Optimists came up with three to win it. Andy Holloman reached on an error and Kenny Kirkland singled. Hodges doubled in Holloman, and Porter singled in Kirkland, but Hodges was put out trying to score. Porter moved to third on a passed ball and scored on a Hause's hit to give the Optimists the victory.

Galloway and Williams each had two hits for the Lions, while Porter and Tony Heath picked up a pair for the Optimists.

Hiller Fires 69 To Lead Pirate Golfers

ATHENS, GA. — East Carolina University sophomore golfer Keith Hiller saved the best to last.

The Avon, Ohio, youngster fired a two-under par 70 in the opening round of the Southern Intercollegiate Golf Tournament here at the Athens Country Club, the final tournament of the year for the ECU team.

The nines of 35-35 consisted of 16 pars and two birdies and leaves Hiller standing just three strokes back of the leader, Chip Beck of the University of Georgia, the host school. Beck had a brilliant five-under par 67 to stand alone in first place.

Beck is originally from Fayetteville, N.C. Hiller is tied with one other golfer at 70, while three golfers had 69.

"Keith just played a great round of golf," said coach Mac McLendon. "He finally showed today what he can really do. His potential came alive. He was our real bright spot."

It marked the only subpar round this year for Hiller, but it came at a time when the team needed it badly. East Carolina finished at even 300 for the day to stand 15th in the strongest field the Pirates have faced this year.

Other scores included Rob Welton at 76, Frank Acker at 76, Steve Ridge at 78 and Mike Buckmaster at 82. The 300 total leaves ECU 19 strokes back of the first place team, the University of Georgia, that fired a seven-under par 281.

In second place is the University of North Carolina at 288. Bill Sibbick of UNC had a 69, while Bill Butner of UNC had a 71.

"We had to play the back side first today," continued McLendon, "which is the hardest side. The guys did not play well except for Hiller. All others were in the 40's. We came back strong on the front side, however, to stay in contention for the cut."

Following today's round, the field will be cut to the top 15 teams for Saturday's final round. Those that make the cut will automatically receive bids to the 1977 tournament. This marks the first year East Carolina has ever participated in this very prestigious tournament.

Course Wins In Memorial

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Muirfield Village came to grips with pro golfer's hotshots for the first time Thursday. With few exceptions, it was no contest. The course won.

Jack Nicklaus' $7 million project even turned on its creator, depriving him of a share of the lead with Don Bies with a bogey-double bogey finish.

Shortly after his 68, four under par over the 7,072 yards that once served as Nicklaus' childhood hunting grounds, Bies offered tips on how to handle the 2-year-old monster.

"You have to be conservative. You have to think defensively. You have to lag every putt, even uphill," observed the quiet 16-year veteran, a single shot up on leading money-winner Hubert Green.

Gibby Gilbert, stalking a second consecutive victory, lost a share of the lead with a double bogey at 17 and was two off the pace.

Despite his horrendous finish — "I played like a yo-yo" — Nicklaus was one of just seven to master par in the field of 94. He was at 71 with Jerry McGee, Hale Irwin and Roger Maltbie.

Caught in the course's tree-lined, lake-filled vices were some of the game's biggest names. Bruce Crampton had 77. So did Tom Weiskopf. Lee Trevino needed a 15-foot par putt on 18 to crack 80.

"I hit every fairway, had no three-putt greens, but the balls I brought today were thirsty. I hit four of them in the water," cracked Trevino.

The scores were so high — 16 at 80 or higher — in the warm, sunny weather that a 157 was the projected cut figure today. That would be a whopping 10 strokes higher than the year's previous high, 147 at the Heritage.

Bies, 38, said his was a shaky lead, considering the new course's toughness. "Look at Jack today. That can happen if you get three or four under. You don't feel very secure. You have to work all the way."

The leader hit every fairway and missed just two greens. "The score was great, but it was not a fantastic round," he said.

Nicklaus' erratic performance was spiced with one double bogey, five bogeys, six birds and an eagle. In one eight-hole stretch, he had no pars.

"All the mistakes were made by me, not something else," said Nicklaus. "It was a lack of concentration. I rarely play a round like that."

Aching Jenkins Is Pain In The Neck

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Ferguson Jenkins is suffering from a bad back, but he's been nothing but a pain in the neck to American League hitters of late.

Despite pitching with a "sharp, nagging pain like a toothache," the Boston Red Sox pitcher won his third straight game Thursday, a four-hit, 2-1 beauty over the Milwaukee Brewers.

"On a couple of plays I thought my back would fall off," said the right-hander.

Jenkins has been pitching with violent muscle spasms in his back for a couple of years now, although you'd never know it. He won 25 games for the Texas Rangers in 1974 and 17 last year before his trade to the Red Sox.

In the other American League games, the Oakland A's beat the Minnesota Twins 5-3; the Cleveland Indians stopped the New York Yankees 5-3; the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Detroit Tigers 4-3; the California Angels trimmed the Chicago White Sox 3-1 and the Texas Rangers beat the Kansas City Royals twice, winning the completion of a suspended game 5-4 in 10 innings before taking the regularly scheduled contest, 6-4.

While Jenkins provided the arm for the Red Sox, Doug Griffin provided the legs and Cecil Cooper the bat. Griffin scored the winning run on Cooper's seventh-inning sacrifice fly.

With the score tied 1-1 and one out in the seventh, loser Pete Broberg, 1-4, hit Griffin with a pitch. Griffin took second on a wild pickoff attempt by Broberg and continued to third when first baseman George Scott was slow to retrieve the ball near the grandstand railing.

After an intentional walk to Rick Miller, Cooper followed with his pinch-hit sacrifice fly to center. Jenkins, 4-5, struck out eight and allowed only three runners to reach scoring position after serving up Darrell Porter's first home run of the year in the first inning.

Angels 5, White Sox 3

Bill Melton drove in three runs and Frank Tanana weathered 11 hits as California cooled off Chicago. The decision snapped a 10-game winning streak for the White Sox, their longest since 1967. Tanana struck out nine to take over the major league strikeout lead from teammate Nolan Ryan with 82.

Rangers 5-6, Royals 4-4

Jim Sundberg singled with the bases loaded to score Roy Howell in the bottom of the 10th inning and give Texas a victory over Kansas City in the completion of a suspended game. The game was suspended with the score tied 4-4 early Thursday morning after Kansas City had beaten Texas 14-2 in the first game of a doubleheader.

Designated hitter Jim Fregosi blasted a two-run homer to cap a four-run Texas fourth inning and the Rangers went on to beat Kansas City in the second game and move within a American League West.

Surprised Garret Is Happy About Fastball

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Wayne Garret vs. Tug McGraw.

"I'm saying to myself, 'don't try and pull him. Just try to go the other way,'" said Met pinch-hitter Garret.

Two outs and the bases loaded. Ninth inning. Phils ahead 2-1.

"I remember playing with him and he's a good hitter," said ex-Met McGraw, working in relief.

The count is 2-2.

"With the bases loaded and two out, I don't look for the fastball," said Garret.

"I tried to keep the ball away from him," said McGraw.

"There is no earthly way he'll give me a fastball," said Garret.

"I tried to sneak the fastball by," admitted McGraw.

In comes the fastball. CRUNCH. Out goes the fastball. Three runs score and Garret winds up on third with a triple. Mets win 5-2.

"My eyes really lit up when I saw that fastball," said Garret.

"Sometimes they pop 'em up, sometimes they hit a line drive, sometimes they miss it," said McGraw. "It's a round ball and a round bat ... and anything can happen."

There were only two other games played Thursday in the National League. Chicago beat St. Louis 2-1 and San Diego topped San Francisco 3-1.

The Phils built their 2-1 lead against Jerry Kosman on the strength of Bob Boone's RBI single in the fourth and Ollie Brown's homer in the sixth. Dave Kingman's 17th home run of the season, tops in the majors, accounted for the New York offense until the ninth.

A pinch-hit single by John Milner and an error by Phils starter Jim Kaat started the Mets' rally, and a force play and a brilliant throw by center-fielder Garry Maddox to cut down Bud Harrelson at home on Ed Kranepool's single almost ended it.

Reliever Gene Garber walked Kingman intentionally to load the bases before McGraw came on to face Garret and the left-handed batter drilled his three-bagger. Roy Staiger got Garret home with a double for the final run.

Kosman, 6-1, won it with relief help from Skip Lockwood. Garber, 1-1, lost it. The Phils saw their four-game win streak ended but they still lead the National League East by five games.

Boston Stuns Phoenix Suns

By BERT ROSENTHAL
BOSTON (AP) — Boston's pro basketball fans are used to watching the Celtics destroy opposing teams with one explosive period. But rarely have they witnessed anything like what they saw in the second game of the 1976 National Basketball Association championship series.

With a capacity crowd of 15,320 screaming loudly Thursday night, the Celtics combined near-perfect offense and defense for the first five minutes of the third period, outscoring the jittery Phoenix Suns 20-2. After that, the Celtics had to put down only one belated Phoenix rally before registering a 105-90 victory and assuming a 2-0 lead in the nationally televised best-of-seven series.

period and a 58-41 lead. Adams broke the string with a tip, but Boston came right back with eight points in a row and it was 66-43.

Later in the period, the lead had ballooned to 80-52. The Suns, after shooting a poor 33 per cent from the floor through the first three periods, finally found the range in the fourth quarter, but it was too late.

With the help of 14 points in a row, they whittled Boston's lead to 89-80 with 3:16 left, but the poised, unrelenting Celtics didn't let them get any closer. They scored the next eight points, and that was all for the game — but undermanned — Suns.

Havlicek led Boston's balanced offense with 23 points, while Scott and Dave Cowens each scored 16. Westphal, Phoenix' leading scorer during both the regular season and playoffs but limited to just eight points in the Celtics' 98-87 opening-game victory, paced the Suns with 28.

Cubs 2, Cardinals 1

Steve Renko, 1-1, and Darold Knowles teamed for a six-hitter. Chicago got the winning run in the fourth when St. Louis second baseman Mike Tyson dropped the throw on a potential inning-ending double play. Tyson singled in the Cards' only run. Pete Falcone, 2-4, took the loss.

Padres 3, Giants 1

Brent Strom, 5-2, and Butch Metzger combined to stop San Francisco on seven hits. Dave Winfield drove in one run with a sacrifice fly and scored another on Doug Rader's double. Ed Halicki, 2-8, was the loser.

What really set the crowd afire was a deliberate foul called against former Celtics backcourt man Paul Westphal with Boston leading 51-41 early in the third quarter.

Westphal was called for the rare infraction when he grabbed Boston's Jo Jo White from behind as the Celtics' guard headed for what appeared to be an easy layup after he had stolen the ball from his ex-teammate.

"When they saw their beloved Paul (until then still a favorite of the Boston fans even one year after his trade to Phoenix) do something they didn't like ... it got the crowd rockin', it got the Celtics rockin', too," said Adams.

Phoenix Coach John MacLeod protested the call against Westphal and was tagged with a technical foul.

White, although infuriated, sank all three free throw attempts and the Celtics were winning.

White's steal had been preceded by a theft and an easy layup by Charlie Scott, and those two plays unglued the young, inexperienced Suns, who have not beaten the Celtics in 12 games on Boston's home court in five years.

After White's three foul shots, Scott and John Havlicek hit long jump shots, giving the Celtics 12 consecutive points in the first three minutes of the more in the fourth. Fisher and Duggins both singled and Fletcher got a hit, scoring Fisher. Williams singled in Duggins, and Tyson reached on a fielder's choice, getting Fletcher at third. Singleton singled in Williams.

Pitt Plaza got another in the fourth, then added two in the fifth.

Auto Specialty, ahead 7-4, picked up what proved to be the winning run in the seventh. Tyson doubled, took third on a wild pitch and waited while Byrd, Witcher and Talbert all walked, forcing in the run.

Pitt Plaza rallied for three in the bottom of the seventh, but fell one short.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Rain in the East is anticipated for much of today. Most of the nation is forecast to have mild, sunny weather. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A flash-flood watch is in effect for the North Carolina mountains and foothills until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Warm southerly winds laden with moisture pushed against the mountains and triggered heavy rain and thundershowers over the western half of the state.

Highs today were in the 60s in the mountains and the 70s elsewhere. The highs Saturday will be in the 70s.

The rains will end in the southwest mountains Saturday afternoon, and later in the afternoon elsewhere over the state. So it may be clear Sunday and Monday for the second half of the Independence Day holiday.

Thursday turned out nicely. Most temperatures rose into the 70s. Scattered showers developed in the mountains but it was sunny elsewhere. The highest afternoon temperature was 79 degrees at Wilmington and the Raleigh-Durham Airport. The only measurable rain was four hundredths of an inch at Black Mountain and a trace at Asheville.

Robert Goldman of Dallas was a member of the Aces Team that won the world championship in 1971 and 1972. Though his squad was defeated in the final of the Vanderbilt team championship held earlier this year in Kansas City, Mo., Goldman demonstrated on several occasions that he has lost none of the form which made him a world champion. A sparkling defensive effort on this hand was typical of his overall play.

When Goldman's teammates held the North-South cards, they settled in a quiet three club contract and made 11 tricks, losing only two heart tricks. The bidding shown occurred at the table where Goldman sat East. North's jump raise to three clubs was preemptive, but in spite of that South went hunting for slam. However, North had done more than his share at his first turn and kept signing off in clubs thereafter.

Five clubs might not be the world's best contract, but with the queen of spades guarded but once and the trump king onside, it seemed that the contract would be easily made after West led the ace of hearts. Had Goldman routinely followed with the six of hearts, he would have won the second heart trick and declarer would have taken the balance.

However, Goldman had other ideas. He dropped the king of hearts under his partner's ace! West, Paul Soloway of Los Angeles, had no problem about what to continue. He cashed the queen of hearts and then led the jack. Declarer ruffed the third heart in dummy with the ten, but Goldman over-ruffed with the king to notch a one-trick set.

New Chapter Methodists Loaned Is Chartered Students $53,025

Marion D. Huggins, national president of the American Production and Inventory Control Society (APICS) presented a charter to the new Eastern N.C. chapter of APICS Wednesday night.

Huggins, vice president of Taylor Instrument Consumer Products Division of Asheville spoke to the group on "What APICS Offers You."

Receiving the charter for the 21 members of the new chapter, was President Phillip Peoples. Other officers of the local chapter of APICS include the following: Tom Peterson, vice president; Ron LaFroschia, vice president; Jerry Singleton, secretary; Jim Lundy, treasurer; and four directors, Joe Zavorski, Ella Alley, Ken Good, and Jim Railsback. The Eastern N.C. Chapter was organized in April.

A total of $53,025 was received in 1975 by Methodist students at North Carolina campuses in the form of loans. According to Rev. Dan Earnhardt, Methodist minister at East Carolina University and current loan officer, requests for financial assistance have exceeded last year's number at this date.

North Carolina's Methodist offerings to support the student loan fund amounted to $11,263.33, which reflects an increase over 1974 loan offerings, said Earnhardt. The deficit is made up through larger offerings in other states, he noted.

The United Methodist Church makes up to $800 available to an undergraduate student at four percent interest, and up to $1,000 to a graduate student.

To be eligible for a Methodist loan, a student must be enrolled and attending class, maintain a "C" average and be working toward a degree.

Figures released by the church's national loan headquarters in Nashville, Tenn. revealed that nearly 3,000 students received financial aid last year, representing a total of $1,398,055 in loans and $495,229 in scholarships.

A record-breaking United Methodist Student Day offering totaled $267,012. The offering is taken in most local churches on the second Sunday in June.

Call your own time-out.

Some of the best moments in any sport take place right where you're sitting. Because where you're sitting can be a great place to cool the action.

Just grab a hold of a sizzling hot dog, spread the mustard thick, and drown your thirst with an ice-cold Pepsi. Nothing makes food taste better and good times last longer than Pepsi-Cola. And Pepsi is just as close to where you're sitting as the refreshment stand.

Go ahead. Right now is a great time to call your own time-out . . . and call for plenty of great-tasting Pepsi-Cola.
